Son waited at bus stop for murdered mom

By Diane Gale
staff writer

A 13-year-old Canton boy stood waiting for his mother to pick him up from a bus stop near his home on Monday.

She never arrived. Beverly Wivell, 30, lay dead or near death on Gotfredson Road south of Ford Road in a rural section of Washtenaw County. She had been shot, according to Washtenaw County deputies, who discovered her body on the side of the road at 10:15 a.m. Monday. They were called to the scene by a passer-by, said Detective Lt. James Fink.

Wivell would "pick him up at the bus stop and take him back home. That day she didn't pick him up. He kept worrying and saying to my daughter: 'You don't think anything happened to her?' " said Laverna Oaks, a neighbor in the Holiday Estate Park, a mobile home park in Canton where Wivell lived.

"The boy spent the night, the night they found his mother," said Oaks, who added that her grandson played with Wivell's son.

On Tuesday, Wivell's husband, Michael Wivell, and a police chaplain drove to the trailer home, picked up the boy, his stepson, and took him to the Canton police department where he was told his mother was dead.

DEPUTIES CALLED an ambulance, which took the woman to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Ypsilanti, where she was pronounced dead. Deputies would not say if the woman was dead or alive when discovered.

Fink declined to say how many times Mrs. Wivell was wounded where the wounds were located.

Canton police learned Wivell's identity Monday night when a resident reported that a suspicious 1986 blue Pontiac was parked near Griffin Park on Sheldon and Cherry Hill. The car belongs to Wivell, Fink said.

No blood was found in the car, police said.

Police wouldn't say how they think the car ended up in Canton or how or where the murder took place.

Fink said Washtenaw County detectives have no motive in the slaying, but added that: "There's certainly a lot of speculation, but until we have a suspect in custody it's hard to say."

Sheriff's Commander Mark Ptaszek said officers initially couldn't determine if the woman was the victim of an auto accident or of foul play when they first arrived at the scene.

Beverly Wivell's husband lives in Canton's Holiday Estate Park and her parents live in Ann Arbor. Wivell lived off and on at both locations, Fink said.

AN ACQUAINTANCE of Wivell's, who lives at Holiday Estate, believed Wivell was living with her sister in Belleville.

"About a month ago her (Wivell's) husband came in and said he wanted to take her and (her son) off the lease, because they were getting a divorce," said Ruth Phillips, park manager.

Wivell was a "very good mother," Oak said. "She was very pleasant. Very mild. I'd have to say she was naive. She was very easy to get along with.

"It's just such a tragedy, because that makes him (her son) an orphan," she said, adding that she didn't believe the boy ever met his natural father.

Beverly Wivell was about 5-feet-5-inches tall, weighed 135-140 pounds, had medium-long dark brown hair and blue eyes. She was wearing an M Go Blue T-shirt, turquoise sweat pants and gray argyle socks when she was found.

Anyone with any information at all about the case is asked to call Washtenaw County Sheriff's at 971-8400 or on a confidential tip line at 973-7711.

Fink and Ptaszek said numerous people have called with tips. Reward money is available.

Dog sled racer talks strategy to Canton crowd

By Louise Okrutsky
staff writer

This year, the Widow's Lamp didn't burn for Joe Runyon.

The lamp at the Burl Arch outside Nome, Alaska traditionally burns until all the drivers or mushers finish the Iditarod International Dog Sled Race. This year, Runyon, with four previous attempts to his credit, claimed the $50,000 first prize.

His strategy in the March race sounds deceptively simple. He captured the lead early in the 1,167 mile course from Anchorage to Nome and kept it at all costs. While the competition rested, he drove 150 miles ahead of the others, Runyon told a group of 30 sledding fans during his recent appearance at Feed Rite Pet Supply in Canton Township.

A portion of the audience was made up of members of the Great Lakes Sled Dog Association.

"When you take the lead you have to be serious about it. You don't know what's out there," Runyon said.

Along the trail are 20 tiny villages, 30 to 100 miles apart. Between those villages, moose, storms and tree stumps hidden by the snow can harm dog, musher or sled.

While his competition rested, Runyon ran his 20-dog team for 13 hours and rested for 11. The team pulled a load totalling 300 pounds. "I planned to rest long and run hard," he said.

Iditarod rules specify that drivers must sign in at 27 check points to rest themselves and their dogs.

"Dogs like to travel at night," he said. "They can see and hear things that I can't."

Some drivers, like Libby Riddles, the first woman to win in 1986, said they nap while driving and trust to their lead dogs.

"I could never do that," Runyon said.

"The biggest problem is sleep management," he said. "You have to decide your strategy ahead of time, never on a sled. Your judgment flip flops then." Exhausted mushers have been known to hallucinate while driving on the trail.

Lead dogs chosen for their intelligence, athletic ability and curiousity remain an essential element in any strategy.

"A lead dog likes to be up front. He's one of these dogs that loves to see what's around the corner," Runyon said.

His 55-pound lead dog, Ferlin, dozed at his feet during the appearance.

"He's on vacation," Runyon said.

Occasionally Ferlin would get to his feet and allow members of the audience to pet him. The dark brown Alaskan Husky was named lead dog of the year for three consecutive years by other Iditarod mushers.

At 8 ½-years-old, Ferlin approaches "the twilight of his career," according to Runyon. Although he might make another Iditarod appearance, Ferlin will

Class size still target

By M.B. Dillon

The Plymouth-Canton school district hasn't yet implemented all the improvements suggested last May by a citizens' committee.

The Committee Researching Educational Workings, which studied class size, curriculum, finance, communications, discipline and organizational structure, received a progress report at the school board's workshop Monday night.

Among CREW's class size recommendations were:

- Lower class sizes to 25 for kindergarten through second grade, 28 for grades three-five; and 30 for grades 6-12.
- A bond issue to build a new elementary school, and eventually a new middle and high school.
- Reductions in class size at the elementary level first.
- Providing para-professionals (educational aides) for kindergarten through second-grade classes exceeding 25 and for classes of 30 or more in grades three-five.

Zoning changes approved, RV rule on hold

By Diane Gale
staff writer

A new book telling residents what they can and can't do with their property is closer to publication following unanimous approval of zoning ordinance changes by the Canton Planning Commission on Monday.

Planning commissioners gave their go ahead after it was decided to put the controversial chapter about recreational vehicles on hold.

MORE THAN 200 residents attended a Sept. 11 commission meeting filled with hisses, boos and catcalls at which most voiced their opposition to tight restrictions on recreational vehicles.

One man, for instance, said: "You don't have the right to tell me I can't put my RV on my own property. Am I supposed to use my Saturday just getting it from storage?"

The ordinance would have prevented residents from parking the vehicles outside garages in most subdivisions. The time that residents would have been allowed to keep their RVs parked at their homes was reduced from 48 to 24 hours, and residents complained that was too short a time span.

Homeowners who are against their neighbors parking recreational vehicles in driveways say their property values are lowered by what they say are eyesores.

A committee of planning commissioners and recreational vehicle owners was formed Sept. 11 to address restrictions.

Their recommendations are expected the first part of November, according to Kim Scherschligt, Canton community and economic development deputy director.

The 335 page document addressing development and regulations must be approved by the Canton Board of Trustees before it goes into effect. And in most cases the board follows the commission's recommendations. The zoning ordinances will be reviewed at an undetermined board meeting.

CREW calls for new school buildings, aides

• Establishing a class size review board of teachers, administrators and parents.

Norm Kee, assistant superintendent for employee relations, said voter approval of the tax increase request in June provided money to hire 24 teachers. Eighteen have been hired.

PEGGY KALIS, who served on the class size committee, told trustees, "At our school (Farrand), I see no difference. In fact I see an increase in class size. Parents are coming in and saying, 'Why is this? We passed the millage.'

"I think we should be targeting classes of 30 (for para-professional help), not 34 or 36," Kalis said.

"The problem is students don't come in neat packages," responded Kee. "There should be some relief in some classes."

"To change size by adding one or dropping one is a $700,000 item," said Supt. John Hoben. "In some buildings we're really handcuffed because we don't have any more space."

Added Michael Homes, assistant superintendent for instruction, "We haven't been as successful as some would have liked. We haven't been as successful as we would have liked."

Annette Remsburg, CREW co-chairman, said, "We just encourage you to look into resources that could be used. We have to remember this is at the very core of quality education. It's worth striving for and achieving as soon as possible."

UPDATING TEXTBOOKS, reinstituting instrumental music at the elementary level, offering foreign language to middle and elementary school students and advance placement classes in science and foreign language were recommendations made by the curriculum committee.

The district placed an order over the summer for $225,000 worth of textbooks.

CREW has identified "cost priority issues that we'll have to grapple with," said Homes.

Audience member Patricia Jenkins raised concerns about the lack of social studies text books at Central Middle School, saying: "Students are starting the fourth week of school and still don't have text books."

"I'm told at the school that it just takes time; they pass the buck. I can't even talk to anybody," said Jenkins.

Homes said the district has contacted the publisher and asked them to send the books as quickly as possible.

"Some shortages have resulted from imbalances in enrollment," he added.

MEMBERS OF THE DISCIPLINE committee are pleased the attendance policy has been reinstituted.

"The return of an attendance office has made a significant difference in the number of students in class," said Joan Claeys, committee chairwoman. "The halls are almost empty within a minute after the bell rings."

Progress has been slower in converting the schools a smoke-free environment, also recommended by CREW.

"We are moving in that direction," said Homes. "If one thing is clear, district-wide, it's that it is going to take the absolute commitment of every person in the school district to make it work. Without a full score of commitment, we aren't going to have success.

"We will have to consider stop-smoking clinics and support systems for folks who have the habit. It will take time and effort," Homes said.

UNLIKE THE other committees, CREW's communication group has continued its work. Its goals include improving printed materials and improving communication in the district and with the public.

Betty Jo Welsh showed trustees proposed logos and mottos for the district. "Board meetings have a more welcoming, open atmosphere. It's nice to see," Welsh said.

Schools have picked up on the committee's "Adopt an Administrator" proposal.

"The idea is to invite administrators to everything but not expect attendance at everything. That way administrators will be seen, and get to know the community better, one school at a time," said Welsh.

Remsburg encouraged the board to "think further on the suggestion of holding some kind of open community forum at least once a year as an important extension of your role as representatives of the community.

"I just would support the notion that the board is indeed representing the community, and in that light, you might want to make yourselves informed of the community's concerns. As we've learned together, an informed community is a supportive community."

ON FINANCE, Hoben said, "We've had a great deal of success with that during the I Care campaign. If we can enlarge upon that, we will be well served.

"Nov. 7 is less than a month and a half away. It's imperative that people have a clear understanding (of school finance proposals A and B, to appear on the ballot in the general election.) At the very least, we should support both."

Ray Buckman, who chaired the CREW finance committee, re-emphasized the need for a finance report to be published every three months.

"When people read it, you'll get some backlash, but it's necessary to maintain a better relationship with the public," he said.

Lastly, CREW advised that principals be given more responsibility, especially concerning budgets.

"We've looked at this very hard and are trying to get more of the decision-making process down at that level," said Hoben. "We have used a management-by-objective program for budgeting."

College program set

College Night '89 will be at the Western Campus of Wayne County Community College, 9555 Haggerty Road, Belleville, 7-9 p.m. Monday, Oct. 2. Admissions personnel from over 40 colleges and universities, trade and technical schools from Michigan will be present, a spokesman for the college said.

Area high school juniors, seniors and parents are invited to attend this program, planned to help students choose an institution of higher learning following high school.

Forty representatives will be in an open "College Fair" setting in the cafeteria. Visitors can meet the representatives and discuss admission to colleges and university.

A WCCC spokesman said information concerning requirements for admission, admission application procedures, curricular studies, majors, extracurricular programs, and college life will be discussed.

Racer, top dog visit probably end his career as a lead dog for drivers who hope only to finish a race.

Those who admire dogs for their pedigree papers would be disappointed in the sled dogs.

"There are no real pedigrees. We do pay close attention to the lines that we breed," Runyon said.

Ferlin is granddad to seven generations in Runyon's kennels 45 miles south of Fairbanks. He's descended from Indian sled dogs raised along the Yukon River.

When Runyon's not racing in Europe, Canada or the United States, he's raising and selling dogs. Proven lead dogs can command up to $5,000 according to Runyon. This summer he's sold dogs to German sledding enthusiasts.

"Europeans are crazy about sled dogs," said Runyon. He moved to Alaska from Idaho in 1971 when he was 21.

Sled dogs also are bred for stamina. They can log up to 125 miles a day in competition. When they're racing, they'll consume up to 10,000 calories a day. otherwise, they eat between 1,200 to 1,500 calories daily. It costs about 75 cents a day to feed a sled dog, Runyon said.

Careful to mention the name of the dog food manufacturer that sponsors him, Runyon also feeds his dogs lamb and beaver meat fit for human consumption. "I figured if I ever ran out of food, I could eat theirs."

While corporate sponsorship gives mushers a financial and technical edge, Runyon said there are still drivers who prefer to strike out on their own. For his first Iditarod, he spent about $1,200 for equipment. He spent about $800 preparing for this year's race.

Spending that amount of money on one race discouraged Cliff Ingham of Flushing from entering. Ingham, who owns 31 sled dogs, got into the sport about 18 years ago. Until his son and daughter moved away from home, the entire family was involved in raising the dogs.

"You have to be rich (for the Iditarod) or have a sponsor," said Ingham.

Zoning changed by I-275

IT TOOK nearly two years to draft the changes that deal with everything from land zoning to off-street parking rules, fencing requirements and yard debris.

Some planning commissioners feared the entire new zoning ordinance book would be stalled indefinitely after the dispute over recreational vehicle regulations.

A major change in the ordinances includes a residential agricultural designation primarily in the west central area of the township calling for 40-acre lots.

A newly C-4 commercial district would allow office buildings, restaurants, nightclubs and hotels targeted for land adjacent to I-275 and is patterned after Livonia's Six Mile and I-275 area.

Land eyed as preserve

UNDEVELOPED land in Canton is getting scarce.

There are few spots around where you can see great horned owls, red-tailed hawks, copper hawks, deer and other wild life.

That's why the Southeast Michigan Land Conservancy is trying to preserve 40 acres of wetlands and open fields along Koppernick near Hix and Joy roads, which is home to each of those species.

Jack Smiley, pesident of the nonprofit conservancy, said it's important to maintain the natural characteristics of the land to stop the continuation of one big urban sprawl from Ann Arbor to Detroit.

The 40 acres is owned by private investors and will be bought by the conservancy for $150,000 to be added to the William P. Holliday Forest & Wildlife Preserve, which borders Westland, Livonia and Canton.

Public hearing set on new subdivision

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Developers of 48 acres of farmland say the area's natural features will be a big selling point for a proposed subdivision.

But the houses won't be going up just yet. The project needs approval from the Canton Planning Commission, which is holding an Oct. 2 public hearing on the rezoning of the property.

Also, the township board must approve the project which is scheduled for construction on the south side of Joy Road between Ridge and Beck roads south of the Plymouth Township limits.

HOMES IN THE subdivision, called Heron Hollow Estates, will range in size from 1,800-square-feet to 2,400-square-feet and will be built on one acre lots. The homes will be priced between $250,000 and $300,000, according to Jon B. Weaver, director of development at Land Company of Michigan.

He said the subdivision is expected to be built within two years.

The project was named for the herons which are often spotted at a 3-acre pond in the parcel, Weaver said.

"The pond is the showpiece of the area," Weaver said. "People expect to have natural amenities surrounding their homes. I can understand some people with a point of wanting to preserve the agricultural areas, but with large lot zoning, like you have in Canton, you can preserve some of that open space."

A 10.5 acre wooded area with a ravine is northwest of the property and will be adjacent to the subdivision entrance.

Canton Township's new master plan calls for the construction of larger, more expensive homes on larger lots.

The land was long plowed by tenant farmers and owned by Detroit attorney George Helm who recently sold it to Joy-Ravine.

North of the property is Plymouth Township's Quail Run subdivision with 72 homes valued between $225,000 and $275,000; as well as 60 condominiums priced between $225,000 and $275,000.

"The days of going into an area and cutting out everything and putting in samplings are gone," said Weaver adding that wooded areas in subdivisions are big selling features in communities like Novi, Plymouth Township and parts of Canton.

ANOTHER PARCEL zoned agricultural on the north side of Michigan between Canton Center and Beck roads in Canton was rezoned to commercial by the Planning Commission Monday night. Much of the property in that area is used commercially or has been rezoned as such.

Development plans haven't been made public, according to Kim Scherschligt, Canton community and economic development deputy director.

Festival rescue succeeding

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

It's looking more like the ice sculpture festival will continue next year, as private and city donations are being counted.

The chamber has collected $100,000 in commitments to put on the festival — just $32,000 short of the amount Plymouth Chamber of Commerce President Pam Kosteva estimates is needed to host the event.

So will the festival be scheduled?

"I'd say it's very likely," Kosteva said Monday.

That $132,000 total covers "scholarships, ice, the awards banquet, printing, professional carvers who do major sculptures in the park" and more, she said.

CONTRIBUTIONS HAVE ranged from $25,000 from Don Massey Cadillac to $50 from Dorothy Evans, a retired Dearborn woman who heard Kosteva pitch the festival on a radio show.

At the Plymouth City Commission meeting Monday, commissioners voted to donate $20,000 in city services — employee time used to set up, providing bases for sculptures and more — to keep the festival going.

Yet, "This is a transition year," said Commissioner James Jabara. "This is not a commitment of $20,000 every year."

Commissioner Mary Childs enthusiastically urged commissioners to approve the money.

Reminding them that the proper name for the festival is the Plymouth Ice Sculpture Spectacular, she said, "This is an event that is free of charge to everyone. For this year, we need that amount of money."

COMMISSIONERS ROBERT Jones and Ron Loiselle voted against approving the full $20,000 for the festival.

Jones also offered an amendment to have the donated amount cut to $10,000, but it failed.

While Jones said he supports the festival, "I feel that agreeing to $20,000 is too much, when we provide zero to the other groups."

Commissioner David Pugh said, "I think we agree the festival is in jeopardy because of circumstances beyond the festival itself, the leaving of Hank Graper and Scott Lorenz."

Lorenz, a Mayflower Hotel co-owner no longer active in Plymouth, and Graper, the former city manager who resigned in July, co-chaired the festival.

LAST MONTH, the festival was nearly canceled after the non-profit organization was given a bill for city services supplied to the last event.

Fife and Drum Corps to play

Among the events scheduled at Camp Oakland's Fall Festival Sunday, Sept. 24, is a parade and performance by the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps.

The group of 48 Plymouth area musicians, ages 12 to 18, will begin marching at 1 p.m. They will present 45 minutes of music and lore in an area near the Festival tent on Camp Oakland's 320-acre site, 930 E. Drahner Road, one mile east of Lapeer Road (M-24).

The event is a benefit and community relations event for Camp Oakland Youth Programs Inc., a non-profit agency for children and neglected and abused adolescents.

Testing the waters

District studies school pool reopening

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

At the urging of resident Janice Schroth, Plymouth-Canton Community Schools are testing the waters concerning the idea of re-opening the Central Middle School pool.

"Kids went back to school, all geared up and ready for excitement, fun and learning," resident Janice Schroth told Plymouth-Canton school board members last week. "They were shocked to see the pool wasn't open.

"With the millage passing, maybe we were naive, but we thought the pool would be reopened.

"By opening the pool, the community could benefit and would feel a little bit better about the district," Schroth said.

OPENING THE pool could cost up to $50,000 a year by the time expenses for chlorine, fans, filters, lights, supplies and a custodian are totaled, said Ray Hoedel, associate superintendent for business.

"I would like to meet with the YMCA, and the city to see if there's interest enough to generate funds," Superintendent John Hoben said. "It seems to me the city benefits from having an open pool."

"It does seem like there might be interest from the Plymouth Parks and Recreation Department and maybe from other community groups who could set up a sharing arrangement," school board president Dean Swartzwelter said.

"ONE OF our concerns is middle school equity," said Michael Homes, assistant superintendent for instruction. "When that pool can't be accessed by other middle school students, you set up an unfair system."

"That's a very strange way of looking at things," Schroth responded. "Every school isn't fair. At Hulsing we have open schools, and that's a definite deficit. No one setting can be 100 percent equal to the building next door. We ought to try and figure out some way to open the pool. Closing it is a terrible solution."

"It has always been my intent, should money become available, to try and open the pool," trustee Roland Thomas said.

"But we don't have it today. That money would buy a number of teachers for our district. It's a cost prioritization right now. Be patient. We'll get there."

"If we had enough funding to initiate swim programs for all district eighth graders, I'd be for it. If not, I can't support it," trustee E.J. McClendon said.

Swartzwelter said he'd stay in contact with Schroth and explore alternatives.

YMCA shows interest

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

To folks who'd like to see the Central Middle School pool reopened, the fact that school officials are open to proposals from the Plymouth Community Family YMCA and the city parks and recreation department comes as good news.

Joanne McCarthy, director of the Plymouth Y, wrote Schools Superintendent John Hoben a month ago asking to use Central's pool.

"He sent a letter back saying, 'Please be advised that reopening the pool was not one of the restorations in the budget that the board had set aside with the current millage monies. At this point in time, there's no indication from the board to reopen, nor are there monies available to operate the pool," said McCarthy.

Hoben last week sent another letter, "asking if I had interest in the pool," McCarthy said. "I thought it was peculiar, because I'd sent a letter a month ago. I wrote him back, saying yes, but we would have to work on it. He said it would have to be completely funded by us.

"The Y has quite an extensive swim program, if we could ever get it going. We have swimming for infants to seniors, even for arthritics, but we're not really budgeted for a swim program," said McCarthy.

"I'm not sure what kind of revenues we could expect. It's something I'm going to look right into. We constantly get inquiries about swimming, and a Y facility in Plymouth."

The Y services Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Canton Township, Northville and Northville Township.

CHUCK SKENE, Plymouth director of parks and recreation, said if the pool became available, he'd like to start swim programs for youth, adults and senior citizens.

Skene also received a letter from Hoben. "He said he understood there was some interest in the community, but said they didn't have the money to fund it. They have a price tag of $34,000 for running the pool.

"Obviously, we don't have that kind of money either," said Skene.

"I am interested. We will get together and at least find out where these costs are and how much could be deferred by user fees."

Right now, Plymouth-Canton residents can swim only through the continuing education program, and sporadically at the privately-owned Colony Swim Club in Canton. The Y has used other private pools, trading swim lessons for use of the facilities.

BARBARA PELKEY, a 17-year-resident of a neighborhood near Central, has worked all summer on the pool issue.

"I thought the pool would be open this summer. Central was always open — we paid 50 cents an hour to swim. When the millage passed, I had the understanding it was going to be open," she said.

Pelkey served on the citizen's 1986 bond issue committee. Her sub-committee focused on Central.

"We were trying to save the building and property. They say there are people who want that site for condos. I don't know if it is something that would ever come about, but it's a very sound building, and we did pass a bond issue to save the building.

"A lot of renovation has been done, including to stands in the pool area."

FOR THE FIRST time Pelkey can remember, voters in the Central precinct voted yes on millage requests in the June election.

"A lot of elderly people, for the first time since I can remember, voted yes. They should open the pool just as a good will gesture to the community," Pelkey said.

This summer, the closure "upset kids in this community who don't have any pools to swim in to speak of," she added.

Pelkey said Canton's and Salem's pools are used for team sports. September through January, open swimming is available at the high school pools from 2-3 p.m. Sunday, and from 3 to 4 p.m. Sunday.

"I definitely think there's enough interest" to expand those hours, she said.

"My feeling is it would bring money into the district by letting people swim and pay. They run the filter and chlorinate the pool at least once a week. It costs money to keep it closed. You might as well be making some money."

CINDY BEJCZY-CROTHERS is a Central Middle School parent who'd also like the pool open.

"When I first moved here in 1974, I used it with my son. We used it during evening and open swim. My understanding was that the pool was there for us to use."

Bejczy-Crothers questioned Hoben's priorities.

"If the man can give himself a 7 percent pay raise and then says he can't open the pool, where are my tax dollars going? I don't mind supporting the school board, but not somebody's lifestyle."

At Sylvan
acts of courage.

Sylvan understands how tough it can be for a child who's falling behind in school. And how good it can feel when failure turns into success.

This fall, we can help your child develop the self-confidence — and the courage — to do better in school. In fact, we guarantee it.

Sylvan's proven approach to learning has already helped thousands of children. In a stress-free environment of positive encouragement and personal attention, we guarantee your child's reading or math skills will improve by at least one full grade level in just 36 instruction hours. Or we will provide up to 12 additional hours at no further cost.

Our Fall programs give your child the perfect opportunity to catch up on crucial math, reading, writing, study skills and readiness. You'll see a remarkable improvement in your child's performance. We guarantee it.*

NOW ENROLLING FOR FALL!

*Measurement will be based on a nationally recognized achievement test for improvement in either reading (comprehensive or vocabulary) or math (computation or application).

Schools unsure about fall ballot proposals

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Proposal A, a half-cent sales tax increase, would be good news for students in western Wayne County public schools, according to the leader of Michigan's largest teachers union.

Proposal B, a two-cent increase, would be good news for beleagured western Wayne County homeowners, according to a state representative who helped draft the proposal.

But many area superintendents and school board members left a Wednesday forum on both proposals without a taking firm stand on either.

Both ballot proposals were discussed in a forum before members of the Metropolitan Association for Improved School Legislation. MAISL, a lobbying group which includes the Garden City, Livonia, Plymouth-Canton, Redford Union, South Redford and Wayne-Westland public schools.

PROPOSAL B is best known as the proposal that would reduce school operating millages. Millage reduction should be especially welcome in western Wayne County, said state Rep. Glenn Oxender.

"Most of you in this part of the state have high millages," said Oxender, R-Sturgis, who helped draft the proposal.

While Oxender claimed Proposal B would raise $100 million a year more for schools than its rival, a Michigan Education Association representative disagreed.

PROPOSAL A, she said, would actually mean more money for individual school districts.

Wayne-Westland (host of Wednesday's meeting) would receive more than $6 million in 1990-91, according to MEA Executive Director Beverly Wolkow. "They would have to raise their millage by 4.4 mills to equal this amount," she said.

The MEA-prepared comparison showed Wayne-Westland would receive less than $2.5 million under Proposal B.

All area districts would gain from Proposal A exepct for South Redford, according to the MEA comparison.

The comparison of numbers, however, may have left school officials more confused than enlightened.

Many officials said they believed there were discrepancies between the MEA's figures and those prepared on behalf of the state House and Senate finance committees.

"It is confusing," said Garden City School Superintendent Michael Wilmot. "From these figures it's hard to tell just what we'd receive. We're obviously going to have to sit down and do some figuring of our own."

While statewide debate has primarily centered on property taxes and how much monoey school districts would receive, Oxender and Wolkow also touch on another issue: "quality" education versus local control.

Both proposals would deny state money to districts that fail to adopt a specified core curriculum.

Districts, under each proposal, would be required to adopt school building improvements, meet state accreditation standards and file an annual progress report with its community.

Proposal A would also mandate money for preschool, computer, drug education, drop-out prevention and other education-related programs.

That would go too far toward eliminating local control, Oxender said.

"You are all different school districts with different needs," he said.

Both proposals will appear on the Nov. 7 state election ballot. A "yes" or "no" vote is required on each.

Should voters approve both proposals, the one with highest number of "yes" votes will be adopted.

What would Proposal A and Proposal B do for local schools?

That is a good question, with the answer depending upon whose figures are used.

Proposals A and B: The effect on local schools

	Garden City	Livonia	Plymouth/ Canton	Redford Union	South Redford	Wayne/ Westland
New money: (in millions)
if A passes	$2.8	$.52	$.51	$2.29	$.1	$6.27
if B passes	$1.3	-$7.99	-$4.81	$1.13	$.48	$2.48
Spending per pupil:
current	$3,601	$5,185	$3,792	$3,603	$4,680	$3,915
if A passes	$4,032	$5,977	$4,435	$4,034	$4,827	$4,387
if B passes	$3,938	$5,468	$4,122	$3,939	$4,980	$4,241
Operating tax: (in mills)
current	39.3	33.6	38.1	39.3	35.4	43.1
if B passes	21.6	24.5	21.2	21.7	25.7	25.2

. . .but Headlee blasts Proposal B

(AP) — Passage of one of the school finance proposals this fall would rob voters of their right to fight rising property taxes at the ballot box, according to tax fighter Richard Headlee.

Headlee said recently that Proposal B on the Nov. 7 ballot would wipe out the limits on assessment increases that he fought to get added to the Michigan Constitution in 1978.

That proposal would boost the state sales tax to 6 percent from 4 percent, and use the money to cut property taxes and boost spending for public schools.

Although it would impose a limit on millage, the proposal would eliminate limits on the other side of the property tax equation, which is the assessment level, he said.

CURRENTLY, THE Headlee Amendment limits property tax increases to the rate of inflation, plus new construction, unless voters override that limit.

Approval of Proposal B would allow assessment levels to rise without any voter control, and that should be reflected in the wording on the ballot, Headlee told the Board of State Canvassers.

The panel has finalized the wording of the two ballot proposals. As approved by the board, the language for Proposal B didn't reflect any of Headlee's concerns.

"They should put it right up front. To do anything else would be to deceive the people," he said.

HOWEVER, STATE Rep. Glenn Oxender, one of the authors of Proposal B, said Headlee was wrong because the plan would lower millages and cap them, plus lock the state in to providing a higher level of money for schools.

"It's not the increasing assessments. It's the lack of state commitment to education that's driving up school property taxes. That's because if the state doesn't make its share then you have to raise local property taxes higher . . . . " the Sturgis Republican said.

"You're getting two things today. You're getting assessment increases and millage increases, both. This fixes the Headlee Amendment. The Headlee Amendment didn't take care of the (state) obligation and it didn't take care of the millages like this."

STILL, HEADLEE said he'd talked to state elections officials and expected the final title of the proposal to show it would "initially reduce school property taxes and eliminate voter approval of future property tax increases.

"This is a major change to the Constitution and you wouldn't know it to look at this," he said. "When you're making a major change like this, you've got to let the people know what they're voting on."

Richard Headlee

Headlee said Proposal B would wipe out limits on assessment increases contained in the amendment he championed in 1978.

Foundation kickoff aired

The Canton Community Foundation Kick Off Breakfast will be videotaped by Omnicom Cable. The program is scheduled to cablecast on the public access Channel 15 on the following dates and times: Thursday, Sept. 21, 8:30 p.m.; Friday, Sept. 22, 3 p.m.; Saturday, Sept. 23, 7 p.m.

For more information on the videotaping or cablecast of this program, contact Maria Holmes, 459-7321.

Free health tests set

Persons 60 years of age and older can receive free health tests at the Discover Good Health screening, Thursday, Sept. 28, at the Plymouth Cultural Center, 525 Farmer, Plymouth.

Discover Good Health screenings are sponsored by United Care with the Plymouth screening staffed by personnel from Beyer Hospital.

The full screening includes vision, glaucoma, cataract, hearing and blood chemistry tests, blood pressure check, lung check, breast exam, TB skin test, oral exam, health information and counseling and a take-home bowel cancer screening kit.

While some results are available at the test site, the full screening results will be mailed to the person about two weeks after the screening. Copies of the test results can also be made available to the person's physician.

In the event that test results fall outside of normal ranges and the person does not have a personal physician, referrals can be made to the appropriate area health organizations.

Kids' books are writer's dream

By Carolyn DeMarco

"Welcome to Camp Barry."

Camp Barry is the Keego Harbor abode of Barry Rudner, 35 — printing forms salesman, windsurfer, art collector, feline lover, flautist, one-time would-be scientist and children's book author. Did we mention bachelor?

And "Welcome to Camp Barry," is the greeting supplied by the enthusiastic, youthful Barry Rudner on the answering machine and at the door of his tiny, uniquely furnished, slightly Bohemian home, a short stone's throw from Cass Lake. "Not much bigger than most people's closet," is how Rudner describes the 450-square-foot home to visitors. He gives the grand tour from a single spot in the middle of the combination living room-dining room-kitchen-office.

THE BOOMS from three windsurfers sit in the corner. In the bathroom are the sails. On the back deck are the three boards. Why three? "Oh my God, are there three? Yesterday there were two. They must be breeding again," he says.

He shares Camp Barry's space with Woman, his generic cat. "She sort of looks like a speed bump, doesn't she," Rudner says by way of introduction, "sort of like . . . dirt."

About the home: "It's a cottage, but without the lake it would just be a shack . . . the house is paid for. I'm living free and I'm allowed to do what I want to do."

What he wants to do most is write children's books. What he wants almost as much is to get them published.

"I'd love to be able to write children's books for the rest of my life," he said in an interview last week. The dream is beginning to come true. Last month his illustrated paperback book, "The Littlest Tall Fellow," was released by a new children's publishing firm, Tiny Thought Press.

The book was rejected by 28 publishers before acceptance. In general his works have, in his own words, "been rejected by every major publisher at least four times. I have not been an instantaneous success."

The turning point came last year when Rudner sent his manuscript, with illustrations by Connecticut sculptor Thomas Fahsbender, to a well-known author-illustrator. The reply said, "Throw away the writer. The illustrations are great."

He queried a literary agent who replied. "The writing's great; throw away the illustrator."

"That gave me hope," Rudner said. "Two professionals couldn't agree."

RUDNER HAS been writing for 10 years, since he was in graduate school. Up until then he was normal, he insists. He grew up in Farmington Hills, son of Ellen and Ted, brother of Heidi, and twin brother of Bennett, now painting houses in California.

He graduated in 1972 from North Farmington High School and went on to Albion College, where he earned a bachelor's degree in biology and religious studies with time out for a stint at Hebrew University. ("I'm not a religious person but I am a man of God.")

In 1977 he moved to Lansing "to play in graduate school. I was being trained as a scientist. I thought I wanted to be a doctor when I was hit with the writing bug."

His first writing venture was about Lassie, his toilet-trained cat. He returned to Detroit to work at his "real job," as business forms and printing salesman in the family business, Great Lakes Printing. The job means long hours in his car during the day and writing on his home computer at night "until I drop. I brood every day. I'm constantly brooding, percolating while I'm driving. I'm in my car 100-150 miles a day."

Rudner spent three years researching children's literature while writing. "I like Shel Silverstein, Maurice Sendak, Jane Yolen and Dr. Seuss. He's been the most influential."

"IF I had to categorize my writing," Rudner says, "I would say that I am a writer of modern day fairy tales. Whether they are written in prose or verse they still follow the basic elements and structure of a fairy tale. Fairy tales address the fears and desires of children, which are not necessarily based on the laws of Newtonian physics, but the laws of imagination, which have no rules. Fairy tales, therefore, address what is true in the mind of a child, but not necessarily what is real: their understanding."

All fairy tales, Rudner believes, have the same basic elements — fantasy, recovery from despair, escape from predicament and consolation or revelation.

Rudner's aim is to give dignity to the smallest achievement. "Look at child-raising today. When the kid starts to crawl or say 'da-da' all hell breaks loose. It's the greatest thing since sliced bread."

"The Littlest Tall Fellow" reflects that. It has nothing to do with success and crossing the finish line, and everything to do with showing up at the starting line. It's about reaching for dreams, like dreams of being a children's book author.

About his own reaching, Rudner says:, "If it hurts more to give it up than to do it, then I think you really have no choice but to go on. I've had a lot of people criticize my writing, but no one ever told me to stop."

"The Littlest Tall Fellow" is available at Little Professor and Borders book stores for $3.95. Rudner will be signing books from noon to 1:30 p.m. Saturday at the Little Professor book store, 37115 Grand River, in Farmington Hills, and 2:30-4 p.m. in the Plymouth Little Professor, 380 Main.

Toastmasters to compete

The winners of the Humorous Speech Contest and the Impromptu Speaking contest of The Oral Majority Toastmasters Club will compete in area contests Saturday, Sept. 30, at 11 a.m. in Lerights Banquet Room, 626 S. Wayne Road.

Guests are welcome. Please call Susan Luther at 333-2109 or Hamid Minoui at 427-8586 for information and reservations before Sept. 27.

In each contest, five club champions will compete.

You may request agendas

Under provisions of Michigan's Open Meetings Act, you're entitled to receive notices of government meetings. A public body must mail notices to people who, on an annual basis, request such notification. Under the act, payment of a reasonable fee may be required before notices are mailed. This provision applies to all local, county and state governments. At the local level this includes city councils, school boards and various boards and commissions.

Eliminated county land bidder wants back in

A county review committee this week eliminated one of the four bidders for 1,000 Wayne County-owned acres in Northville Township.

But a spokesman for the eliminated bidder said his group would seek reinstatement.

"We are asking the committee for reinstatement," developer Walter Cohen said. "While bids were not open, we understand ours was the high bid and we can't understand why the high bid would be eliminated."

The eliminated bid was distinctive in that it included senior housing though it is unclear whether that influenced the committee.

"We really don't want to get into reasons until the final choice is made," said Bill Wild, county director of business development.

The eliminated bid group also included developer Arnold Cohen, owner of Arco Construction, Southfield and John Boll and Joseph Ministrelli, owners of Chateau Land Development Co., Mount Clemens.

In addition to a golf course and single family homes, the group's bid was distinctive for its inclusion of town houses, apartments and a senior citizens village, as well as retail, office and high tech development. It had been known as Group III.

County officials will be meeting with remaining bidders next week, deputy county executive Michael Duggan said.

"We'll be discussing our counterproposal," he said.

The property runs from Sheldon Road west to Beck and from Six Mile south to the Plymouth Township border. At one time it housed the Child Development Center. Remaining bid groups include:

- Nicklaus/Sierra Development of Tampa, Fla. The bid would develop 550 acres. It includes a golf course and luxury homes.

- Plymouth Township developer Robert DeMattia and downriver entrepreneur Heinz Prechter.

  The proposal includes a golf course, single family homes, condominiums, other recreational activities and a high tech center.

- Trammell Crow, developer of the Novi Town Center, and J & J Slavik, Inc. of Farmington Hills.

Madonna opens center for multicultural activity

Madonna College opened its new Office of Multicultural Affairs this week, during dedication ceremonies attended by county elected leaders.

The office marks the beginning of "a special focus on minority students," said a spokeswoman for the Livonia-based college.

Madonna's minority enrollment increased from 199 students to 373 for the period 1975-88, though its percentage of minority students shrunk from 11.1 to 9.3 percent over the same period.

The new office will promote racial diversity by developing programs, providing counseling and acting as a liaison among other college offices.

The office's creation is part of a four-part program to increase minority enrollment and retain currently-enrolled minority students.

Other programs include a new student-advisor program, admission of 30 disadvantaged minority students as provisional students and enrolling them in a summer seminar designed to improve study skills and a new course, College 101, to assist all incoming freshmen in self-assessment, study skills and time management.

Over the past four years, the college began several programs to promote multicultural education.

In 1985, Madonna began its Educational Access Program, to provide college bound minority high school students an opportunity to boost their skills in mathematics, communication and science.

Since then, 81 seniors have been placed in college through the program. An additional 307 students in grades 9-11 have attended program classes.

The Multicultural Students Association of Madonna College formed in 1986 to further promote multicultural education.

Madonna also participates in the Martin Luther King/Cesar Chavez/Rosa Parks education program in conjunction with Eastern Michigan University, Ypsilanti. the program guarantees college admission to minority students who maintain a minimum 2.0 grade point average in college preparatory classes, while meeting attendance and disciplinary standards.

Interior Design STUDIO

WORKSHOP

LEARN HOW TO MAKE YOUR HOME WORK FOR YOU.

Decorating a home is not easy. Basic principles must be observed, no matter what your lifestyle or how much you wish to invest. During 4 two-hour sessions, Hudson's professional interior designers will pass their expertise on to you. Here's a week-by-week breakdown.

WEEK ONE

History & Lifestyle. Learn about the history of interior design and explore your interests, hobbies, and your pattern of living. It's the most important basis for a decorating plan. Our personality surveys will give you suprising insights.

WEEK TWO

Floor Planning. You and your instructor will work with your floor plan to achieve a workable, livable room, taking into account traffic patterns, conversation areas and natural focal points.

WEEK THREE

Color, Backgrounds. First, learn how to use color to solve problems and create moods. You'll discuss how to make the most of your favorite colors and which colors work almost everywhere. Then we'll discuss ceilings, walls and floors. They are a big part of every room, and we'll study everything from vinyl tile to mirrors.

WEEK FOUR

Accessories, Putting it all together. A quilt. An antique chest with a high tech vase. Fall leaves in a plexiglass frame. Learn how accents can bring a room to life. And finally you'll get to see an empty room furnished in logical stages. From furniture and rugs to valances and chandeliers.

Throughout the course, you'll be using an information filled manual that's yours to keep. See hundreds of slides of beautiful rooms. You'll be able to ask lots of questions and have the opportunity for personal consultations with a designer. Tuition is only $50. Classes are limited and will fill up fast, so enroll now. To reserve space call our Interior Design Studio nearest you. Classes begin the week of October 9.

CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF PLYMOUTH
County of Wayne COMBINED NOTIFICATION FOR:
NOTICE OF FINDING OF NO SIGNIFICANT IMPACT ON THE ENVIRONMENT AND
NOTICE OF INTENT TO REQUEST RELEASE OF FUNDS

County of Wayne, 600 Randolph Street, Detroit, Michigan 48226.
TO ALL INTERESTED AGENCIES, GROUPS AND PERSONS:
On or about October 9, 1989, the above-named County will request the U.S. Department of Housing & Urban Development to release federal funds under Title 1 of the Housing & Community Development Act of 1974 (PL 93.383) for the following project(s) accordingly:

1. PROJECT: Asphalt surfacing of 0.7 miles of existing Ridge Road.
   LOCATION: Ridge Road, from Five Mile Road, south 0.7 miles, in Charter Township of Plymouth.
   PURPOSE: To provide a safe, lower maintenance, all weather road.
   COST: $126,561 1987 Block Grant Funds
   $68,300 1988 Block Grant Funds
   $71,000 1989 Block Grant Funds
   $71,296 1990 Block Grant Funds
2. It has been determined that such request for release of funds will not constitute an action significantly affecting the quality of the human environment and, accordingly, the County of Wayne has decided not to prepare an Environmental Impact Statement under the National Environment Policy Act of 1969 (PL 91-190). The reason for such decision not to prepare such a Statement are as follows:
   No significant impact was found as a result of the environmental assessment.

An environmental Review Record respecting the above project has been made by the County of Wayne which documents the environmental review of the project and more fully sets forth the reasons why such Statement is not required. This Environmental Review Record is on file at the above address and is available for public examination and copying, upon request, at the office of the Charter Township of Plymouth, 42350 Ann Arbor Road, Plymouth, Michigan 48170, between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday. No further environmental review of such project is proposed to be conducted, prior to the request of Federal Funds.

All interested agencies, groups, and person disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments for consideration by the County of Wayne to the office of the undersigned. Such written comments should be received at L-13 Wayne County Building, 600 Randolph Street, Detroit, Michigan 48226, on or before October 6, 1989. All such comments so received will be considered and the County will not request the release of Federal Funds or take administrative action on the within project prior to the date specified in the preceding sentence described above with Block Grant Funds from the U.S. Department of Housing & Urban Development (HUD) under Title 1 of the Housing & Development Act of 1974. The County of Wayne is certifying to HUD that the County of Wayne and Executive Edward H. McNamara, in his capacity as County Executive, consent to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal Courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relations to environmental reviews, decision-making and action, and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that upon its approval, the County of Wayne may use the Block Grant Funds, and HUD will have satisfied its responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. HUD will accept an objection to its approval of the release of funds and acceptance of the certification only if it is on one of the following bases:

a) That the certification was not in fact executed by the Chief Executive Office of the applicant; or
b) That the applicant's environmental review record for the project indicates omission of the required decision, finding or step applicable to the project in the environmental review process.

Objection must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedure (24 CFR Part 58), and may be addressed to HUD at: McNamara Building.- 17th. Floor, 477 Michigan Avenue, Detroit, Michigan 48226. Objections to the release of funds on the basis other than those stated above will not be considered by HUD. NO objection received after October 24, 1989, will be considered by HUD.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

Notice is hereby given by the undersigned, Loren N. Bennett, Clerk of the Charter Township of Canton, County of Wayne, State of Michigan, to all property owners in the proposed district described below and to all other interested persons:

1. That a petition for the formation of a special assessment district for the installation and maintenance of street lighting has been filed with the Board of Trustees of the Charter Township of Canton, pursuant to Act 264 of the Public Acts of 1917.
2. That hearing on the said petition concerning the necessity of said improvement and the formation of this special assessment district will be held before said Board of Trustees at 1150 S. Canton Center Road, Canton, Michigan 48188 on the 26th day of September, 1989 at 7:30 p.m.
3. That any property owner or other person interested in said proceedings may appear at said hearing, file objections to the entire petition or any part thereof, and be heard on said objections.
4. That the proposed special assessment district is located in the Charter Township of Canton and is described as follows: Lot numbers 1 through 308, Liber 94, page 57, 58 and 59 Forestbrook Subdivision Nos. 1 & 2, Register of Deeds, Wayne County, Michigan.
5. That said petition and the estimated costs and expenses of said assessment are filed in the office of the undersigned at 1150 S. Canton Center Road, Canton, Michigan 48188 and may be examined at any time during the regular business hours of said office, prior to said hearing.
6. That any property owner or other interested person who fails to appear and object to the proposed special assessment district at the time and place of said hearing may be deemed to have waived his right to object under Act 264 of the Public Acts of 1917.
7. That the proposed layout of streetlight placement can be viewed in the Office of the Township Clerk. AFTER INSTALLATION, MINOR VARIATIONS MAY OCCUR IN THE LAYOUT BECAUSE THE ACTUAL PLOTTING OF LIGHTS HAS NOT BEEN FIELD TESTED BY DETROIT EDISON.

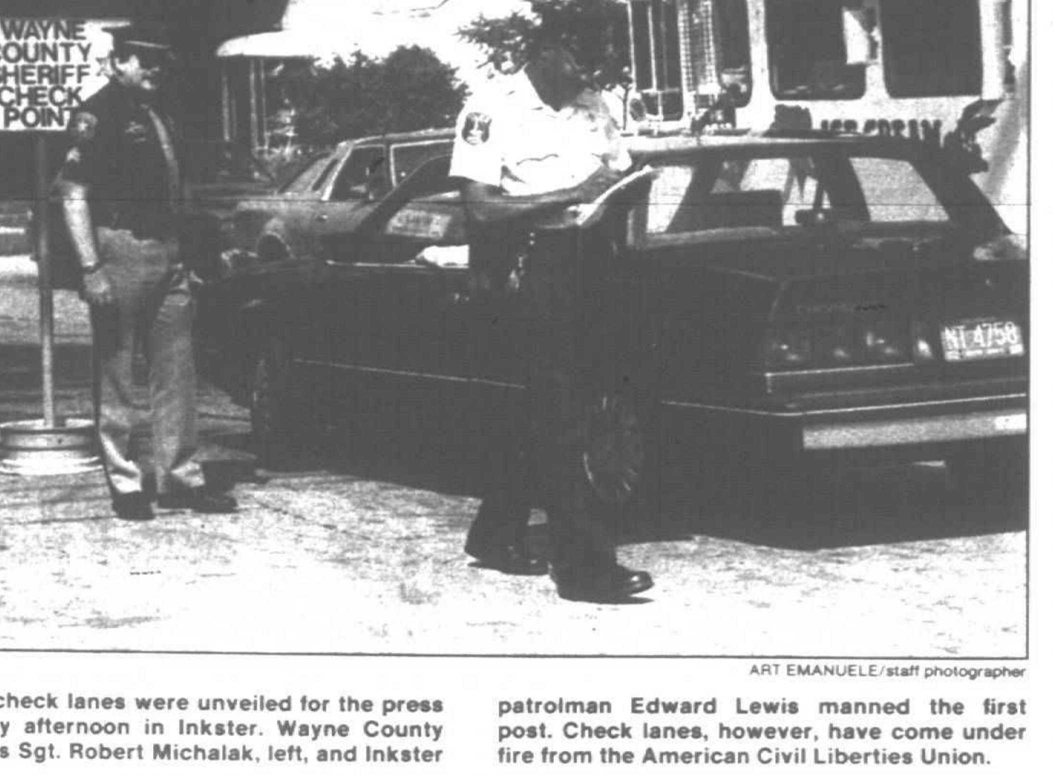
Area chiefs support sheriff on check lanes



WAYNE COUNTY SHERIFF CHECK POINT

ART EMANUELE/staff photographer

Driver check lanes were unveiled for the press Tuesday afternoon in Inkster. Wayne County Sheriff's Sgt. Robert Michalak, left, and Inkster patrolman Edward Lewis manned the first post. Check lanes, however, have come under fire from the American Civil Liberties Union.

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Area police chiefs back Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano's controversial driver check lanes.

"From what I've seen, most chiefs are interested in at least seeing it explored," said Plymouth Chief Richard Myers, newly elected president of the Wayne County Police Chiefs Association.

The anti-drug measure was first announced last week. Immediately, it came under fire from the American Civil Liberties Union.

The first check lane was scheduled to go into operation Tuesday in Inkster.

While they back the proposal, area chiefs were divided on whether check lanes would prove effective, or even necessary, in their own communities.

"I don't know if we'd need them here," Redford Chief David Parker said. "We have problems, but I don't think we have that kind of problem."

Westland Chief Paul Schnarr, however, said his department effectively used check lanes last year in response to residents' concerns about an alleged crack house.

"WHAT WE did was stop everyone going down the street and ask them to show their license," Schnarr said.

By the time the two-week program ended, Schnarr said, crack house allegations ceased.

The Michigan ACLU has said check lanes appear to violate constitutional provisions against unreasonable search and seizure. It has threatened to file suit to block their implementation.

Chiefs said the situation leaves them frustrated.

"Everytime police come up with something innovative, it seems there's a constitutional concern about individual rights," Myers said. "Individual rights are important, that's why we have a constitution, but most of us in law enforcement are frustrated."

Garden City Police Commander Roger Wilkes said he counted himself among those frustrated.

"What we need are judges dedicated to cleaning up the community, not just looking out for their own interest" he said. "This issue is going to be decided by a guy in black worried about his re-election."

Ficano has said he believed the check lanes would stand up in court because all approaching vehicles would be stopped.

"This is not a random search," he said.

ACLU representatives were unavailable for comment Tuesday.

In a related topic, chiefs also backed U.S. Defense Secretary Richard Cheyney's plan to use federal troops to combat the drug flow — so long as the troops didn't invade U.S. cities and towns.

"If they want to use them to protect our borders, that's fine," Livonia Chief William Crayk said. "But soldiers aren't trained law enforcement professionals."

Garden City's Wilkes said he doubted his community would see any immediate effect from greater federal intervention.

"It would probably be a ripple effect," he said. "It could be years before we see anything."

Investment help offered

Learning about the investment world and acting on that knowledge is the focus of two fall programs being offered by Schoolcraft College continuing education services.

Classes include:

- How to Read the Wall Street Journal — The class teaches students how to skim the business daily for information. Topics include interpreting financial statistics and the rationale behind individual columns. The one-day seminar meets Thursday evening, Oct. 5. Fee is $15.
- Investors Workshop — The one-day seminar explores marketing techniques and patterns. It meets Saturday, Oct. 7. Fee is $20.

Additional information is available by calling 462-4448. Schoolcraft is at 18600 Haggerty, between Six and Seven Mile roads, Livonia.

Park walk aids animal shelter

More than 500 people and 200 dogs turned out last Saturday for the Michigan Humane Society's first fund-raising walk in Hines Park.

The event, dubbed the "Hot To Trot" dog days walk, raised $27,000 for the shelter's animal emergency fund, said Ron Blauet, director of education services for the humane society.

"We were hoping for $20,000, so this ($27,000) was a pleasant surprise," Blauet said.

Nancy Koustas of Dearborn won a Sony Discman portable compact disc player from Highland Superstores for collecting the most pledges. She brought in $1,470.

Walkers who get more than $100 in pledges received a free "Hot to Trot" official walk T-shirt. Canine walkers got a bandanna and box of dog biscuits courtesy of the Milkbone Dog Biscuit Co.

Gray skies and afternoon rain showers didn't dampen the enthusiasm of pet owners or the canines which came in all shapes and sizes. Spotted among the canine walkers were several great Danes, collies, dachshunds, chihuahuas, spaniels, German shepherds and lots of mutts.

Most walkers came from western Wayne County but a few came from as far away as Flint and Marine City, according to Blauet.

Another walk is planned next year but Blauet said: "I hope we can pick a better day."

Other walk co-sponsors included WNIC-FM, Total Gas Station, Yogo Yogurt, Pepsi, Absopure and Better Made Potato Chips.

Eager to begin his walk, Casey, a golden retriever owned by Debbie Fakne of Livonia, checks in with Gina Palczyakski, a Humane Society volunteer.

AIDS care group wins grants

The AIDS Care Connection, a new coalition of 30 public and private health and social service organizations helping AIDS patients in southeastern Michigan, is the recipient of $3.6 million in state and federal grants.

Care Connection, founded early this summer, has received $323,000 from the Michigan Health Initiative and nearly $3.4 million from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, including $906,387 this year and $2.4 million the next two years.

"AIDS cases are being reported in epidemic numbers across the country. It affects all of us and permeates our society," said Geneva Jones Williams of United Community Services of Metropolitan Detroit, the organization that spearheaded formation of the coalition.

Care Connection will mainstream health and human services to those suffering from AIDS, Williams added. Services include day care, counseling, food, furniture and clothing programs, nursing, housekeeping, respite and hospice care, transportation, legal assistance and spiritual support.

Coalition organizations include the Wayne County Health Department, with offices in Westland, and Visiting Home Health Services, with offices in nine locations including Westland.

United Community Services, a central coordinating body funded by United Way, has addressed the needs of AIDS patients since 1983.

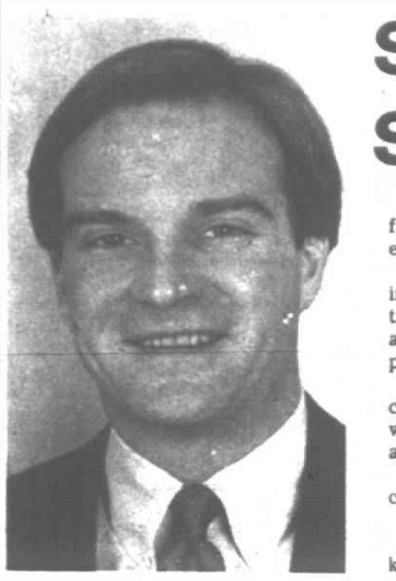
Clinic targets young adults

A new outpatient psychiatric clinic has opened in Redford Township.

Detroit-based Aurora Corp. recently announced opening of its outpatient treatment center at 14157 Telegraph.

The center provides treatment for patients 17-21. Center staff includes a doctor, nurse and case manager and two clinical outpatient therapists.

The company also operates two treatment centers in Detroit. Centers operate under a contract with the Michigan Department of Mental Health and Detroit/Wayne County Mental Health Services Board.



Bill Schuette seeks GOP Senate nod

Schuette seeks GOP Senate nomination

U.S. Rep. Bill Schuette, R-Sanford, announced Monday that he is entering the 1990 U.S. Senate race.

Schuette, 35, seeks to challenge incumbent Carl Levin, a Democrat, though he will face Grosse Pointe attorney Clark Durant in the GOP primary.

Targeting Levin, a two-term incumbent, Schuette said the election would give voters, "clear choices and an opportunity for change."

Outlining his candidacy, Schuette called for:

- No new taxes.
- The death penalty for "drug kingpins and cop killers."
- Stiffer sentences for criminals and expanded victims' rights.
- Arms reduction, as opposed to arms control. "I support a strategy that gives us strength and leverage at the bargaining table with the Soviets," he said.

Schuette is a member of the House Budget, Agriculture and Select Aging committees. He holds a law degree from the University of San Francisco and a bachelor's from Georgetown University, Washington, D.C.

His House district covers the center of the Lower Peninsula, including Midland. Schuette established an exploratory committee in June.

Schuette announced his candidacy at a series of statewide press conferences, including ones in Detroit and Pontiac.

Show goes on

Despite new construction, flood

By Cathie Breidenbach
special writer

THE BIRMINGHAM Village Players construction of a new stagehouse has been beset by minor snafus and by a major flood. The compounded frustrations and the trial by water have put to the test that old theatrical clarion call, "The show must go on."

Players president Bill Haycook assures everyone that the hit Broadway comedy, "Social Security," will open the players season on schedule, Friday, Sept. 29. Joann Britton, public relations chairwoman for the players, says, "This is our 67th year, and the stage has never been dark, even during the Depression and during the war."

Such is the historical mettle of the community theater group that has been staging plays in Birmingham since 1923.

When planning to renovate its playhouse on Chestnut Road and Hunter Boulevard, members voted not to tear down the entire building and begin anew but instead to update and preserve the charm and history of the old theater as much as possible. They were adamant about saving the Art Deco murals painted in 1933 on the walls of the auditorium. Haycook says, "The story goes that characters on the walls actually represent real-life members."

TRADITIONS MATTER to the members, and they don't intend to go against either the old "show must go on" rallying call or their own proud history of more than 1,200 performances with never a dark house. Haycook says, "We've taken the position that we've never failed to open a show before, and this show will also go on."

Phase I of the three-part renovation project required demolishing the old stage area and constructing a new two-story building to house the stage as well as backstage dressing rooms, scene workshops and storage areas for costumes, props and flats.

This summer the State of Michigan presented a temporary obstacle to construction of the backstage lavatory. The players assumed that because the lavatory was intended for use only by members, it wouldn't have to conform to state barrier-free regulations. Wrong. "Meeting state requirements made us make some hasty alterations," Haycook says of the change that was but one of the "thousand and one additions, deletions and details" needing attention during construction.

Over Labor Day weekend, just when season-ticket sales were getting into gear, the phone system went down — another nuisance to add to the list of obstacles overcome that will doubtless become part of club lore. Despite the inevitable snafus of construction and the last-minute scramble to satisfy state regulations, construction over the summer was progressing well — until the flood in July.

Past president Donna Masters says of the downpour, "I don't know how many inches fell in an hour, but it was just too much for the partial roof draped with tarps."

MEMBERS HAD previously cleared the stage for building crews by crowding furniture, props and sets into the basement. When a heavy rain pelted the temporary roof, water leaked onto the stage and ran into the basement, soaking props and equipment.

Haycook says, "We lost a lot of stage furniture that the insurance company just wrote off. The lights got wet and had to be completely disassembled and refurbished. The stage floor itself was soaked through and rippled, so it had to be replaced, and part of the auditorium floor flooded and warped so badly that a 14-by-14 foot section needed replacing." All repairs had to be finished before opening night of the first show.

Haycook explains that accomplishing the renovation project between the close of the season last spring and the opening this fall was a gamble to begin with but, "We met with the architects and the construction company and they were very optimistic that they could do it."

"It was a real cliffhanger," Masters says, "but the builder got out on schedule." The flood, however, complicated an already tight timetable. "Everything bunched up," Haycook says. "We had to wait for construction before we could build sets." Usually the players allow four weeks to build sets, but for "Social Security" they will have only five or six days to create scenery and to move all the stage equipment back into place.

Rehearsals in August and early September contended with the dust and confusion of construction. Cast members had to sweep debris off the stage and navigate around scaffolding as director John Reddy blocked movements for the comedy opener.

Lots of projects help raise money

By Cathie Breidenbach
special writer

With more than $500,000 to raise for the three-phase renovation of their playhouse, members "raise money any which way we can think of," according to Birmingahm Village Players president Bill Haycook.

The 250-member group began fund-raising by asking its membership to pledge and by asking businesses to contribute to the theater that has been active in Birmingham since 1923. Many merchants donated, including a substantial contribution made by Fred Lavery whose Porsche and Audi dealership is next door to the playhouse.

To build the coffers of the building fund, the players next expanded from direct requests for donations into inventive fund-raisers. A mammoth auction netted nearly $19,000. Before the auction, a Monday-night "collection" party at Punchinello's restaurant in Birmingham garnered donations and treasures to be auctioned off. To attend the hors d'oeuvres and wine party with a 1920s theme, patrons paid $25, or brought a gift of equal value. Other private, collection parties in members' homes accumulated quality merchandise for the auction, which local celebrities such as Nicki McWhirter, Jim Fitzgerald, Jimmy Launce and Gordon Staples attended.

A bowlathon brought in $8,000, as donors pledged to contribute money for each pin knocked down. Last year Birmingham Village Players

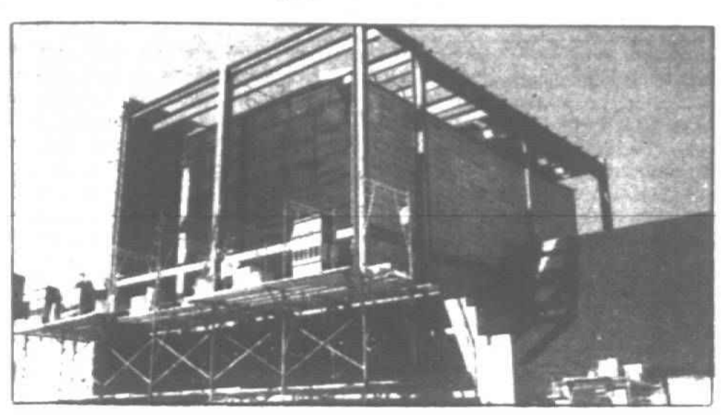
Show goes on despite construction, flood



Another view of scaffolding on exterior of building.

"ACTORS IN 'Social Security' have no sets, just tape marks on a badly damaged floor," Haycook says. Usually actors rehearse on a stage with complete sets because being surrounded by the belongings of characters they play helps them step into their roles and "become" the characters.

Remaining plays in the season are bound to run more smoothly without the complications of scaffolding, sawdust and time crunches. The Tony-award-winning musical "THe Mystery of Edwin Drood" opens Nov. 24 for a three-weekend run. Based on Charles Dickens' unfinished stories of Edwin Drood, the play — like the Dickens story — has no ending. Each night, the audience votes to decide who committed the murder, in this light-hearted production billed as a magical, musical mystery.

> 'We lost a lot of stage furniture that the insurance company just wrote off. The lights got wet and had to be completely disassembled and refurbished.'

The touching drama, "The Trip to Bountiful," opens Jan. 26 for a two-weekend run. The story by Horton Foote, made famous first by Lillian Gish on Broadway, then by Geraldine Page on film, gently probes memory to create heart-warming theater.

The ill-fated love between Anne Boleyn and headstrong Henry the Eighth of England takes center stage for two weekends beginning March 23 when the players present Maxwell Anderson's drama "Anne of a Thousand Days."

The players hope to get permission to use the comedy drama, "Steel Magnolias," which they have scheduled to close the season May 11-13, 18-20. Playwright Robert Harling's slice-of-life drama exposes the eccentricities of life in a small Southern town. The story, set in a beauty salon, brims with funny dialogue as it builds to its moving conclusion.

put on a summer show, in addition to the traditional five-play season.

TO DATE, the group has raised $135,000 to fund the first and most expensive phase of the renovation project — rebuilding a two-story stagehouse to replace the old one. Loans from Comerica Bank and from individual members added another $125,000 to the building fund.

Phase I construction began last spring and was completed just in time for the opening of the 1989-90 season. Costs for Phase I were originally projected at $280,000, but Haycook says, "Bills coming in put the actual cost at about $320,000."

Fund-raisers scheduled for this year include a square dance in October and a repeat of the popular "Lunch with Santa" during the holidays. Again this year as a fund-raiser, the players will sponsor a Sunday Matinee Brunch before one matinee performance of each production this season. Plans are in the works for a "theater evening," with dinner at a local restaurant followed by a play at the playhouse.

With Phase I nearly complete, Masters says, "We're hoping to start Phase II next year if we have the money." They will raise it with the same "any which way" inventiveness that took Phase I from dream to reality.

Now's a perfect time to take a drive out in the country to Leamington near Point Pelee National Park. Enjoy the quaint Victorian homes, lunch at a waterfront restaurant, watch the waves roll in on Lake Erie at Seacliffe Beach, buy fresh fruits and vegetables at the roadside stands, shop for china and furniture at the stores in town, or plan a weekend getaway at a charming Bed-and-Breakfast.

The famous Park Terrace Restaurant, at the Windsor Hilton. With a reputation justly-deserved for award-winning cuisine and superb service. The buffet lunch makes a perfect business meeting; for dinner, you'll enjoy a magnificent river view at the Park Terrace Restaurant. And don't forget to ask about Windsor Hilton's Bounce Back Weekend getaway package.

It's the Duty Free Shop, on the Canadian side of the Windsor-Detroit tunnel... home of exceptional prices on made-in-Canada gifts and souvenirs... fragrances by Nina Ricci and Shalimar, skin care products by Lancome, Fendi Swiss watches, Tundra sweaters, Swarovski crystal and always a great selection of Lladro figurines.

You'll look positively gorgeous in a fur from Constantini. Rich, lustrous mink, elegant silver fox, fabulous Russian lynx and more... in full and 7/8- length coats, jackets and hats. Constantini starts with top grade pelts from all over the world, and fashions them into exquisite styles, in its own workshops. Then it passes the savings on to you. Treat yourself to a custom-made fur at Constantini Furs, 531 Ouellette in downtown Windsor.

See you again, soon!

Whether you play hockey in school or in the pro's, you can get the equipment you need from National Sports Centre in Devonshire Mall, on Howard Avenue. Featuring Windsor's largest selection including Bauer, CCM, Micron and Daoust... and National's Guaranteed Fit Policy. Great prices, too. Get your hockey gear from people who know hockey at National Sports Centre.

Go back to a simpler time of horses plowing the land, banjo playing, square dancing, wagon rides and steam tractors, at the International Plowing Match. It's an old-fashioned country fair, with 600 exhibits on 100 acres, where you can buy things like hardwood furniture, carved geese, hand-made quilts, clay pottery, canned preserves and woolen sweaters. September 19 through 23, 8 miles east of Windsor on County Road 42. Details available at the Ontario Travel Information Centres.

Windsor.
& ESSEX COUNTY

The best thing to do after any visit to Windsor and surrounding Essex County is to plan the next one... for shopping, dining and entertainment.

For shopping, you'll enjoy downtown Windsor, with 300 stores, all in walking distance. On tree-lined avenues. With a European flair. And the styles of the Continent, and of Canada. Women's fashions. Men's fashions. Furs. Jewelry. China. Records and books. Fragrances. Artworks. Antiques. Gifts. It's where you'll find the hard-to-find: downtown Windsor.

Its also a great place for lunch, dinner, or a weekend escape.

RV parking

A better ordinance is needed

CANTON TOWNSHIP has a chance to do the right thing about the parking of recreational vehicles at houses, and we hope it takes advantage of that opportunity.

The township planning commission last week decided not to take action on an ordinance designed to prevent residents from parking RVs, campers, boats, snowmobiles and other such vehicles in their back yards.

The ordinance is part of a package crafted to update the township's zoning codes. We support that move, but we think that the RV ordinance was badly handled by the township.

That was evident by the number of people: More than 200 showed up at the meeting. Most were there in opposition to the ordinance.

Those were the people the township should have consulted prior to the meeting.

BUT NOW THAT the ordinance has been tabled and a committee appointed from members from the planning commission, there's a chance for the township to back up and do that work.

We'd suggest that the township hold public hearings on the issue. From there it could craft another ordinance that would work.

We think that while the RV ordinance was well intentioned, the township didn't do enough research. That was pointed out by one member of the public who spoke at the meeting. He told the commission that under the ordinance the specially equipped van he uses because he's handicapped would be banned by the proposed measure.

Had the township sought advice from residents, such a situation wouldn't have developed.

We just hope that the township and residents can get together and solve the problem.

We're looking forward to what the committee composed of members of the planning commission will being doing. We just hope they sit down and talk with people who were at the hearing.

Chemical fires

Companies should be taxed

DURING A LEGISLATIVE hearing in Wayne last week on the rail shipments of chemicals through western Wayne County, one official summed up the problem. His message was: There isn't money to train firefighters to handle chemical emergencies that happen when there's a derailment.

We think those who profit from those shipments should help pay for that training. In the case of the rail lines that run through Plymouth and Canton, that means CSX Transportation and Dow Chemical Co.

State officials at the hearing said there are plans to establish a state-run center at an initial cost of $1.5 million and continuing costs of $340,000 to train response teams.

However, there's no money for the center and the Legislature may be asked to finance it with state tax money.

THERE IS an alternative, though, and that's to impose a mileage tax on shippers and haulers of hazardous materials. That proposal is supported by the United Transportation Union in Lansing and the Michigan State Firefighters Union.

We could support such a tax. If Dow and CSX see themselves as good corporate citizens, they should be willing to pay such taxes or provide grants to start up the training center.

Dow Chemical could probably offer training services to the center. Dow, which is based in Midland, maintains its own fire department and could assist in helping the training center get off the ground.

We urge state Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton, who chaired the public hearing in Wayne, to try passing such a tax. Or, if that doesn't look likely, try obtaining training grants from railroads and shippers of hazardous materials to finance the center.

Mega-mall

Both sides are missing the point

HERE IT IS ONLY three weeks after Labor Day and everybody seems to be getting worked up over a shopping mall. We thought that kind of fervor was reserved for the holiday retail season, which nowadays doesn't begin until at least Oct. 1.

All kidding aside, residents and leaders in several suburban communities are up in arms over a proposed mega-mall for Auburn Hills. While their concerns over the project, dubbed Auburn Mills, show some validity, it seems like everyone involved in this battle — pro and con — is missing the point.

The proposed 2.3 million square-foot mall, off I-75 near Joslyn Road, would be substantially larger than Fairlane Town Center and the other major malls in western Wayne and Oakland Counties. Its Washington D.C.-based developers envision a kind of theme park for shoppers that will provide adventure as well as hundreds of retail outlets under one roof.

Auburn Mills is expected to cost about $300 million and be ready for occupancy as early as 1992.

AMONG ITS BENEFITS, the mall would create an additional $4 million-$5 million in annual tax revenue for the financially-strapped Pontiac Public School district, which includes the city of Auburn Hills. It would also provide an estimated 5,000 jobs in an region that, despite recent good times, could use them.

All that has city fathers in Rochester Hills and Southfield reaching for the aspirin bottle — for different reasons.

Officials in Rochester Hills (along with those in the small community of Lake Angelus) oppose the mall on the grounds that traffic congestion would overwhelm their towns, which border the proposed site. They helped convince the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) to order an unprecedented study of the project's impact on the region.

Southfield officials are worried that the mega-mall will draw business and people away from its retail centers.

But these towns — and the mall's proponents — have taken a very shortsighted view of the project.

FIRST, LET'S TAKE Southfield. The concern over a shrinking retail base as developers expand further north, east and west of Detroit is valid, but awfully hypocritical. One community losing business to another wasn't too hard to stomach three decades ago when you wooed developers of Northland and all but assured the decline of shopping in downtown Detroit.

Also, access to Rochester Hills and other communities surrounding the proposed mall is bound to be more difficult if the project goes as planned. Of course many residents in those towns commute to other areas for work, shopping and entertainment, increasing congestion in their destinations. And officials in one city simply don't have the right to call the shots on development in others.

But the mega-mall developers — along with developers of the Palace of Auburn Hills, the Oakland Hills Technology Park and other major projects — have perhaps been even more shortsighted than those opposed to the mall.

Instead of building their Mastercard Mecca out in some undeveloped cornfield, why couldn't they plop it down inside the Pontiac city limits, where there is still plenty of usable space with road and sewer connections already in place? That way, we might be talking about an economic resurgence for an entire city, not just a few million bucks for its schools.

A TAD UNREALISTIC, you say. Nobody in his right mind is going to build a shopping mall in a deteriorating city beset by crime and drug problems.

Maybe. But think about this:

Somewhere along the line, we've got to rid ourselves of the mentality that we develop an area and then abandon it when things begin to sour.

If not, 50 years from now we might still be talking about how to cope with urban decay and attract growth to such deteriorating communities as Livonia, Southfield and Farmington Hills.

Metro Detroit: Promote mystique—not mistakes

Steve Barnaby

METROPOLITAN Detroit should sell its mystique instead of being victimized by its mistakes.

That's the thought rolling around in my head since lifting off from the airport which services the St. Paul/Minneapolis metro area in Minnesota.

Exploring different metro areas is exciting business. It gives the traveler a chance to see how the national perception compares with the local outlook. Usually, the wary traveler finds that the reality differs somewhat from the perception.

We, in this metro area, certainly understand that. For years we all, suburbanites and city-dwellers alike, have been taking it on the chin because of a shabby national image.

Some of it is justly deserved. Most of it is bunk. But in many ways we are our own worst enemies. Instead of a unified confederation of communities, reveling in our differences but feeling proud of our unity, we have become a set of nearly bitter rivals. We are communities, one pitted against the other.

Minnesotans have taken a different tact.

Minneapolis/St. Paul residents brag about the Minnesota Mystique almost to a person.

Politicians and street-vendors alike talk about the progressive attitudes toward community staples like the arts and education.

BUSINESS leaders chime in with their own version of the mystique which dictates that private enterprise and the public sector ally to make for a better world — in this case, the better metropolitan area.

It's tough finding anyone at all who doesn't believe the mystique exists and, indeed, works its wonderful magic.

Actually, the Minneapolis/St. Paul area is pretty nice. You know, a decent place to live, for most folks. But even the most casual observers can easily notice the warts.

St. Paul has developed a skywalk system hooking most of its downtown buildings on the second floor level.

Ostensibly, the skywalk was built to help folks live with the harsh winters. Good enough.

But what has been created is a virtual two-tiered society, literally and figuratively. On the skywalk level the middle class works, shops, eats and plays. The street level, with its bleak facades and empty storefronts, is populated mostly by the less-fortunate of the metro area.

The metro area preens over its educational system which allows students to move from one district to another under certain circumstances. But officials admit that it does little for the Southeast Asians, that area's largest minority in an otherwise primarily white community.

A reading of its newspapers shows the area has its full share of crime.

But Minneapolis/St. Paul sells. Metro Detroit doesn't.

In a lot of respects metro Detroit, it's beautiful suburban housing, its wonderful lakes and spectacular riverfront, far outclasses Minneapolis/St. Paul.

But we've got to believe it and talk about it with pride. It's not good enough for just a few of our comunities to have a mystique, whether it be Birmingham, Farmington Hills or Bloomfield.

We must stand together.

Most of the communities with such diverse populations as ours are unable to prosper both spiritually and economically. We've faced a lot of very dramatic challenges and continue to survive.

In such a cynical world as ours, that is no small brag.

Residents concerned about height

To the editor:

We have recently become interested in the system used in the city of Plymouth to approve building projects. On Wednesday, Sept. 13, we attended our first planning commission meeting and were pleased with the interest and scrutiny displayed by commission members. We were also impressed by their desire to solicit input from those in attendance, especially residents. It became clear that the effect on the existing community is a major concern in approving all details of proposed projects.

The commission is undertaking a very thorough review of ordinances which govern building projects in the city. Currently the city codes allow for buildings up to 135 feet in height, which is well over twice the height of any current existing building downtown. Over the next few meetings the height issue, as well as numerous others, will be discussed and approved.

If you wish to be part of the planning that will direct the future development of Plymouth, make plans to attend the commission meetings which take place the second Wednesday of each month at 7:30 p.m. on the second floor of the city hall.

We have tremendous concerns about the trend toward high density housing in the city, and the effect that will have on the lifestyle we now enjoy. If you agree with us, or if you don't but are concerned with the future of Plymouth, mark your calendars and give your opinions to the commission that is genuinely interested in citizen input. Let's have the residents of Plymouth determine its future, not developers and speculators.

Look at individual teachers

To the editor:

As a teacher I would like to compliment Judith Berne on a well written article that appeared in a recent Observer & Eccentric. In defense of my fellow teachers however, I would like to point out a couple of aspects of teaching that you failed to point out.

- Please be careful when you use "average teacher salaries." If a district has a bunch of older teachers, that makes the average larger. That is not a reflection of what the average teacher makes.
- Our benefits in Farmington are excellent. Hurray. It is the only perk that we are proud of. We do not get company cars, stock options, telephones at our work station, air conditioned offices, or an expense account. With the multitude of germs that we are exposed to daily, we need the best medical insurance available.
- Our nine months of work is not decided by teachers. This antiquated calendar was based on a rural America. I would like to see a change. I would like to see schools built to run all year — especially in the heat and humidity of summer. I would like to take a vacation in the fall. Many teachers use this "vacation" for required college study; teaching summer school; preparation for a new course; and/or workshop attendance.

I agree with you on the job security issue. I would like to see teachers tested and evaluated. I would like to be judged on my experience, skills, and education and not on how many months I worked. I would like to have more input as to what is being taught in my classroom. I would like a smaller class size.

So please do not appraise our profession by what our unions demand. look at the individuals — the rewards in profession, the improvements needed, our place in society.

Honors class no ticket to top colleges

Doc Doyle

Q: Some districts use a grading process which gives extra honor points for advanced placement or honors classes. Our district is presently reviewing that type of system. How does this system work? Are there advantages or disadvantages to this type of program? Does this extra honor point system help a student get into the better universities?

What you are referring to is a weighted grading system. In most grading systems, An A equals four honor points. In a weight system, an A is an honors or advanced placement course. For example, advanced placement chemistry can equal five honor points. Hypothetically, if a student took all advanced placement courses in high school, earned all As in a weighted grading system, he/she would graduate with a 5.0 average instead of a 4.0 found in the traditional system.

Are there any advantages or disadvantages? Probably not. It is simply a district's choice of a system and although graduating with a 4.43 is impressive, almost all university admissions offices recalculate grade point averages based on their own system. Another type of weighted system is the differential grading system which grants four honor points for an A, 3.7 points for an A−, 3.3 points for a B+, three points for a B, 2.7 for a B− etc. (for both regular and honor classes).

In this case, a student who received all As in high school would graduate with a 4.0 average and a student who received all A−s graduates with a 3.7 grade point average. Consider the fact that the student who received all A−s for a 3.7 average in the differential system would not be valedictorian in this system but would be valedictorian with a 4.0 average in the traditional grading system. It should also be noted that many colleges and universities don't consider the pluses and minuses, i.e. B+, B−, when they recalculate a student's high school grade point average.

Will the weighted system for advanced placement and honor classes help a student into a prestigious university? Not really. If you accept the above premise that most colleges and universities recalculate grades and utilize their own system for entry. Indeed, one prestigious eastern university admissions officer said: "We can get all the 4.0 averages we want from across the country. However, we look for good grades and other contributing attributes in our students."

The major payoff for students taking advance placement or honors classes is not the grade point average but a more demanding curriculum which enhances preparation for the challenges of university life. Furthermore, those who take honors classes should have a better opportunity to pass advanced placement college tests which results in college credits gained while in high school and money saved for courses not needed at the university level.

Grading is objective and subjective. District philosophy and reasonable grading consistency in a district are the most crucial variables that lead to parental acceptance regardless of which system is the system of choice.

Hey, Sheriff Ficano: check his point

Jack Gladden

WE ARRIVED very early in the morning, one day in May of 1964.

As I walked down the ramp of the windowless military transport plane, the first thing I noticed was the air. Warm, damp, heavy with strange aromas. In the distance I could see palm trees . . . or maybe I just imagined that. It was a long time ago.

"So this is the Philippines," I thought, gawking like a tourist. "What the hell am I doing here?"

A glance at my traveling companions, all wearing the same dress blue Navy uniform as mine, reminded me. Oh, yeah.

Aboard the battleship-gray bus on the way to our duty station — a small base on the west coast of Luzon, right on the South China Sea — we all did our share of gawking.

Farmers, wearing bamboo hats and rattan shields on their shoulders to protect them from the sun, sloshed ankle-deep through the water in their rice fields behind homemade plows pulled by carabao.

Sari-sari stores, some of them no more than bamboo shanties, appeared along desolate stretches of the highway — the Philippine equivalent of 7-Eleven.

HALFWAY TO OUR base, in what seemed to be the middle of nothing, the driver pulled the bus onto the shoulder of the two-lane road and stopped.

Through the window I could see a small shack and two men who looked like soldiers. They were wearing khaki uniforms with Sam Browne belts. The belts supported holsters holding .45-caliber pistols. Each of the men had an automatic rifle slung over his shoulder.

The Filipino driver opened the door and one of the men approached the bus. He looked inside and waved his hand at the driver, who quickly closed the door and pulled the bus back onto the highway.

"What the hell was that?" somebody asked, as the bus started moving again.

"Checkpoint Charlie," one of the veterans on board said in explanation.

"Say what?"

"We just call it that," the veteran said. "It's a PC checkpoint. They're all over the island."

"PC," as all incoming servicemen learned quickly, stood for "Philippine Constabulary," a military unit that was kind of a cross between the National Guard and the State Police — perhaps more akin to the Texas Rangers.

THE PCs DID, indeed, have checkpoints everywhere and one of the first rules we learned was: "Don't mess with the PCs." Their sense of humor was somewhat below that of a U.S./Canada border guard. And those automatic rifles were fully loaded.

The PCs usually paid little attention to U.S. military vehicles. They'd wave them through the checkpoints with only a casual glance.

But all the others — cars, trucks, buses — were stopped and, if the PCs felt like it, searched.

They never said what they were looking for. They didn't have to. And no one ever asked.

All of this was at a time when The Philippines was about as democratic as it has ever been, under the leadership of President Diosdado Magapagal, before Ferdinand Marcos declared martial law and installed himself as a virtual dictator.

But violence was still a fact of life in the country and assassinations were as much a part of the political process as voting. Drugs and illegal weapons were readily available. And PC checkpoints were just another part of the landscape.

WHEN I WOULD tell my Filipino friends that such military tactics did not exist in the United States, that we could go where we pleased without being stopped by armed police, that we had constitutional rights that were honored and even upheld by the police and the military, they were sometimes skeptical, but they usually believed me.

Most of them, even in the middle 1960s, still thought of the United States as a country where individual liberties were considered sacrosanct and "Checkpoint Charlies" — the ultimate symbol of the police state — did not exist.

Will someone please tell that to Robert Ficano?

New districts make political races real

Tim Richard

ON PAPER the U.S. and Michigan constitutions say we have elections every two years for U.S. representative and state representative, and every four years for state senator. State law gives county commissioners two-year terms.

In practice, we have fresh elections only every 10 years, after a seemingly bureaucratic process called the U.S. census.

Political districts are re-drawn after every census. The uninitiated become bored. But to the politically savvy, districting is the name of the game — as important as raising money and polling.

It's almost a joke that 95 percent of incumbent members of Congress are routinely re-elected, so potent is the power of the incumbent to perpetuate himself or herself. It's almost the same at the state and county levels. Only after a census, when you have new districts, do you get real contests.

MICHIGAN lost one seat in Congress after the 1980 census, and Jim Blanchard of the 18th District made the solution easy by running for a different office — governor.

The shapes of other congressional districts were changed radically. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, had barely won in 1976 in a district that was supposed to have been Democratic. But in 1982 his friends in the Michigan Legislature took care of him by giving him a safe Republican district that eliminated Monroe and Ypsilanti and stretched it out to Hillsdale. Even the feminists' 1988 gold-plated campaign to beat him was doomed six years before it started, and Pursell's margin was barely dented.

The Legislature similarly packed a lot of Republican votes in to the district of Bill Broomfield, R-Lake Orion, gerrymandering it from the northern hinterlands of Macomb County, squiggling it across mid-Oakland, and picking up a southern corner of Livingston.

Majority Democrats were after the 6th District, which was stretched from East Lansing to Pontiac; the 3rd, gerrymandered from Kalamazoo to Lansing; and the 5th, around Grand Rapids. They won two out of three.

AFTER THE NEXT census, Michigan is predicted to lose two congressional seats. Whichever party controls the Legislature will simply target two opposition congressmen and juggle districts lines almost block by block.

Detroit, which has two full congressional districts and parts of two others, continues to lose people. It may even drop below a million population, in which case the Detroit districts may stretch into such close-in suburbs as Warren, Southfield and Redford.

Detroit also is likely to lose one of its five state Senate seats, in which case a chap from the northwest corner named Mike O'Brien may come shopping for real estate in Redford.

IF DETROIT shows less than one million, all legal and political hell will break loose, and not only because population determines legislative seats and federal aid.

Every time the Legislature writes a law affecting cities, it writes two laws — one for cities over one million (Detroit) and one for everyone else.

Detroit has a different court system, Detroit can charge double the municipal income tax rate, Detroit can perform audits on itself — all because it has had more than one million population for a half-century.

Mayor Coleman Young had a nasty suit claiming undercounting in the 1980 census. There will be even shriller screams of racism, bias, bigotry, plantation politics, discrimination and ethnic insensitivity against the Census Bureau if next Apirl's count is 999,999 or fewer.

So the U.S. census, now in preparation, is more than a mere function like recording deeds or mowing grass in the park. The census is at the center of politics. It determines who will wield power and money for a full 10 years.

> In practice, we have fresh elections only every 10 years, after a seemingly bureaucratic process called the U.S. census.

Critical Care Awareness Week: September 17th-23rd
State of the Art of Caring...

In St. Mary Hospital's SPECIAL CARE UNIT

Special people with special skills provide special care — every day, all day — in St. Mary Hospital's new Special Care Unit.
Located on the third floor of the new St. Mary Hospital Pavilion, the unit is staffed by highly trained professional nurses, such as Maria (pictured), and full-time intensivists and Pulmonologists, technicians and therapists. These professionals work as a team — with dedication and compassion to critically ill patients — comfort and support to family members.
The 16-bed high-tech unit, recently expanded in the new Pavilion, offers the latest medical technology available. State-of-the-Art monitors and computers measure vital information needed to provide fast, efficient intensive and coronary care.
St. Mary Hospital's Critical Care Medicine Department is well respected in Michigan medical circles — for its educational seminars — and quality medical care.
With the addition of the Special Care Unit, St. Mary provides monitoring to as many as 56 patients — State-of-the-Art of Caring.

Financial planner invests in community

By Louise Okrutsky
staff writer

> 'My husband insisted on my going for a master's degree. He has a lot of influence on me. He told me, "you'll be sorry if you don't." It's the best advice anyone ever gave me.'
> — Wende Sharma

FOR WENDE Sharma, the road to becoming a financial planner began one day in the mid-1970's in a social worker's office in Buffalo, N.Y.

The social worker began to unload his frustration with the job after Sharma spent a day with him on his rounds. The social worker thought he produced more paperwork than real solutions.

"He talked me out of it (social work)," said Sharma, who at the time was a student at State University College, Buffalo.

Six years after earning her master's in business administration from Eastern Michigan University, Sharma, of Canton Township, is a financial planner with Gemini Financial Services, Plymouth.

In some ways it's a manifestation of her original goal, to help people, she said. But it bypasses some of the frustrations of social work.

"You help people who have a chance to be something," she said.

"It's a myth that financial planning is only for the wealthy," Sharma said. "It's the people who aren't wealthy who need to plan for their future."

Once a client sits in front of her desk, the job calls for diplomacy. For many, it's tough to reveal their financial situation to a stranger. Some show up hoping for a way out of a crisis situation.

"Then it's harder," Sharma said. "You tell them what they can't do."

ONE OF NINE children, Sharma was taught by her parents that "to work hard, study hard is the only way you'll have anything." Her father owned several small businesses. After the youngest child entered school, her mother returned to school and earned a nursing degree.

Sharma worked her way through college, earning her bachelor's degree at Eastern Michigan in 1981. Her job at the Canton Public Library helped finance graduate school and gave her a toehold in the community.

She helped build the library's float for its first appearance in the Canton Country Festival. Her husband, Paul, an engineer with Ford Motor Co., was drafted to become technical advisor for the construction of unicorns and rainbows.

"There were cut outs in our basement," she said with a smile.

Her six years with the library left her with ties that she didn't want to sever. A member of the Friends of the Library, she helped established the homebound books program.

"I don't know why I'm not a librarian," she said.

In addition, she's worked with the Canton Rotary Club's literacy study. She's been a member since 1988.

Rotary's international scope appeals to her. While visiting her husband's family in India, she attended Rotary meetings there. Sharma spoke about her experiences as a woman Rotary member.

"They embrace you as if they know you," she said. "It's a warm feeling. You have family wherever you go."

ANOTHER GROUP that provides her with role models and professional support is the Business and Professional Women.

"That's a niche, too," she said. "They are women rising to the challenge. I need a lot of role models around me. I feel I want to be a role model."

Much of her support comes from her husband. They met while camping at adjacent sites in Yellowstone National Park. He came over to borrow some firewood. Eventually, they traded phone numbers. Ten years ago, after a telephone courtship, they married.

"My husband insisted on my going for a master's degree," she said. "He has a lot of influence on me. He told me, 'you'll be sorry if you don't.' It's the best advice anyone ever gave me."

Sand castle wizard designs his own Oz

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

> 'You can work with plans or without plans, alone or with a group, with tools or with your hands. It's really a performing art. It's a very pure creative activity. And it's a completely wide open field to explore.'
> — Todd Vander Pluym

How many middle-aged men get to build sand castles for a living?

Todd Vander Pluym is one of the proud but few.

The former architect created a mammoth — as in 70 tons of sand — sculpture scene from "The Wizard of Oz" in the center court of Novi's Twelve Oaks Mall.

There's the Emerald City soaring 17 feet high in all its surreal glory, the evil witch's castle, and still to come — figures of Dorothy, the Lion, Tinman and Scarecrow skipping arm in arm through a field of flowers. Even Toto will be there.

"Sand sculpture takes nothing away from the earth, yet it leaves visual pleasure," said Vander Pluym of Sand Sculptors International.

His Los Angeles-based firm has racked up 160 sand sculpture championships, including four world championships and six U.S. Open championships.

"Anyone can do it," he said modestly. "You can work with plans or without plans, alone or with a group, with tools or with your hands. It's really a performing art. It's a very pure creative activity. And it's a completely wide open field to explore.

"Like any performance art, there's instant gratification from the people."

THOUSANDS OF shoppers have already cast appreciative glances at the creation, which began taking shape Aug. 23. Serious-minded seniors in their sturdy walking shoes, moms with babes, teenagers, store workers, no one has been able to resist the urge to stop for a minute or two and watch the artisans in action.

The scene was completed Sept. 10. It will be on exhibit through Oct. 31.

"We've had a lot of changes at the mall over the past few years," said Philip Morosco, general manager of Twelve Oaks. "Our theme for this fall is 'There's no place like Twelve Oaks.'

"By chance we found out it was the 50th anniversary of the movie 'The Wizard of Oz.' We found out about these guys who sculpt sand and it all rolled together."

Vander Pluym and crew, all California natives, have been creating sand sculptures far and wide over the past few years.

Prior to their stint at Twelve Oaks Mall, they were in Japan creating a large European-style castle. Before that, it was Minnesota, where Vikings and sea dragons were on the agenda. Earlier this summer, they were in Virginia, creating patriotic scenes for an Independence Day commemorative work.

"We've never done the same piece twice," Vander Pluym said.

"The Wizard of Oz" scene was created as the project unfolded. It is based loosely on photographs from books on the making of the movie.

"The witch's castle has certain elements that are art deco, some surrealistic in the style prevalent in the 1920s and '30s when the movie set was designed," Vander Pluym said. "Some of the details are architecturally impossible or completely alien to any style that exists so all the experience in architecture doesn't help at all."

THAT'S WHERE creativity comes in. And the crew had no doubt that they would be finished by the deadline.

"We know by the weight what we can try to tackle," said Brad Goll, one crew member. "And we always try to put more into it."

Vander Pluym said he began building sand castles at 18 months of age.

"My mother used to bring a portable crib to the beach and I'd stick my hands through the bars and put sand in it. I was always building things. My dad would get angry when he had to close up the crib and it was heavy with sand."

The urge to create sand sculptures never ceased, but after high school, Vander Pluym chose a more lucrative career path — architecture. After college, he spent 20 years in the field, but never was completely happy there.

"Architecture is 10 percent creativity and 90 percent nuts and bolts," he said. "Sand sculpture is 90 percent creativity and 10 percent nuts and bolts."

RANDY BORST/staff photographer

"The Wizard of Oz" has come to life, so to speak, at 12 Oaks Mall, with the Emerald City, the evil witch's castle and figues of Dorothy, the Lion, Scarecrow and Tinman, all part of a sand sculpture that covers an area 35 feet long and 16 feet wide in the central court.

Vander Pluym and Goll and Greg Glenn, California sand sculptors he hooked up with a few years back, worked on the Twelve Oaks sculpture daily — following the mall hours pretty closely.

Japanese fairy tales, "Alice in Wonderland," even an ecological theme of "Heal the Bay," featuring sea life and endangered species in a mall in Santa Monica, have served as other topics for sculpture displays.

Seventy tons of sand sounds like a lot of beach, but one project Vander Pluym presided over used 182 tons.

Those who contract his services must provide the sand. Vander Pluym said he chose the current stuff from several samples, which Morosco said comes from a local quarry. Later it will be utilized in planting projects around the mall.

"IT STILL HAS lots of pebbles and must be sifted," Vander Pluym said. "Sands are very different."

The works are three-dimensional and can be viewed from all sides. Foreshortening techniques give the impression that both buildings are off in the distance. The total sculpture covers an area 35 feet long and 16 feet wide. The sand, rich in silt and clay, is mixed with water and added bit by bit to the sculpture.

The crew won't be around for dismantling the finished project. That's the mall's responsibility and, according to Morosco, hammers probably will be used.

"It depends on how tough it is," Morosco said. "The sand, as it dries, gets harder, so the longer it stands, the harder it gets."

Winning her audition

Nicolle Gauvin

Nicolle Gauvin of Canton Township has been selected as a cast member in the upcoming production of "Cinderella" at the Marquis Theatre, Northville.

The 10-year-old attends Eriksson Elementary School. She won a place in the production after auditioning with 88 other children. Her stage experience includes the parts of the lullaby munchkin in "The Wizard of Oz" and a ballerina doll in "The Velveteen Rabbit." Both were Marquis Theatre productions.

"Cinderella" will be presented weekends Nov. 25-26 and throughout December.

Wellness seminars set

Madonna College offers a series of Personal Wellness seminars that can be taken for continuing education credit.

Session II on Sept. 26 focuses on picking up the pieces when relationships end. Session III on Oct. 10 deals with healing for adult children from dysfunctional families. On Oct. 24, the fourth session discusses growing self-esteem. The last dession aims at helping people decide which direction a career change will take.

Instructor Sandy Benigna presides over the sessions. Each seminar includes a lecture and guided small group discussion. Sessions meet 7-9:30 p.m. Cost is $10 per session. For details, or to register by credit card, call the college, 591-5188. Madonna College is at 36600 Schoolcraft at Levan, Livonia.

Charities can send in cards

There are fewer than 90 shopping days left until Christmas and even less time to order Christmas cards.

As a public service, the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers are offering an easy way to select Christmas cards being sold by charitable, non-profit organizations with its greeting card pages.

Beginning Thursday, Oct. 12, the O&E will publish special pages of the different Christmas cards that are available.

Charitable organizations interested in having their cards included in the scrapbook and on the greeting card pages must submit five copies of each card that is available this year, as well as the ordering information and the name and telephone number of a contact person.

They should be sent to Susan Steinmueller, 410 N. Main, Rochester 48063.

And don't delay. The deadline for submitting cards and information is Tuesday, Oct. 10.

Writers fill gaps for TV viewers

By Shirlee Rose Iden
staff writer

Journalists don't do windows or fixtures. And they're not in the solution business, says Ellen Goodman, author and columnist.

"I'm in the 'what it means' business, and that's an increasing part of journalism. People who get their information from television need writing and newspapers."

Addressing the National Council of Jewish Women, a Southfield organization with longstanding credentials for social action, Goodman explained that she writes opinion in a column called "At Large" syndicated through the Washington Post Writers Group in more than 400 newspapers.

"Making sense is not like making bread," she wrote in her most recently published book, "Making Sense."

"There is no cookbook to study, no recipe to follow. The attempt to make sense of the personal and public world in which we live is a high-risk business."

GOODMAN DEFINED her task as columnist as chronicling and understanding the tenor of the times from her vantage point as associate editor of the Boston Globe.

After a two-year stint at Newsweek in the early 1960s, she spent 1965-67 as a reporter on the Detroit Free Press.

"My first husband's job was here and I zipped up and down the freeway to Ann Arbor for two years," she said.

Currently, she lives near Boston with her husband, Bob Levey. She has a grown daughter and two stepchildren.

"I write opinion," she told the audience at Temple Israel in West Bloomfield last Thursday. "An opinion grows out of your experience and understanding of the facts. A columnist has to figure out what's happening and also put themselves on the line."

Goodman's journalist bag contains "a lot of national politics, the interaction between political and public life, and so many topics made political in today's world.

"The most mundane of subjects such as eating, dressing, drinking and sex are examples of private issues now politicized," she said.

SPEAKING OF POLITICS, Goodman said it's difficult to discern whether President Bush is accomplishing anything or not.

"Dave Broder (a syndicated columnist) called him 'the Eisenhower of our day' "

Of former President Reagan, she said: "He left the government in financial shambles."

"Today kids are politics. Reagan was interested in children from the moment of conception to the moment of birth."

HER OWN parenting career began with the birth of a daughter "in the usual way" and a six-week stay at home.

"After that I became the only mother of a preschooler in the newsroom. Today, more than half of women with kids under 18 months are working."

Goodman said contemporary women are trying to keep the best of family life along with the best of work life, no easy task.

"What used to be referred to as Superwomen are now tagged by younger women as 'Superdrudges,' gals who wanted it all so they got stuck with it all.

"Women still earn only 70 cents to every $1 a male earns. And there are limits to the kind of success you can dress for."

GOODMAN, WHO wore a red suit with slim skirt and double-breasted jacket with drawstring waist, said women have been successful at making their agenda important.

"But will Bush support day care? There have to be changes, both because child care is necessary and it's right."

In the same year that Goodman covered the Republican National Convention in Detroit, she won the coveted Pulitzer Prize which, she said, "thrilled her."

"I had to submit about a dozen columns and the prize was for 'distinguished commentary.'

"When the New York Times wrote it up, they referred to me as a summa cum laude graduate of Radcliffe but I was just cum laude. I called the editor and he said, 'Well, you're the first person in history to get a Pulitzer and a summa on the same day.'

Ellen Goodman's writing talent and her down to earth view of the meaning of social change won her a Pulitzer Prize in 1980. The nationally syndicated columnist addressed the National Council of Jewish Women Wednesday, Sept. 13.

"The thing about the Pulitzer Prize is, it's different than other honors, the next day you have to do it all again."

AMONG CLOSE to 200 NCJW members present were Judge Susan Moiseev of Southfield's 46th District Court, who doffed her judicial robes to hear Goodman's address.

"I came especially to hear her. So many of her columns touch on the same social issues we face in the court."

The columnist was "talking to the real issues of the day, ones we have raised too," said Doreen Hermelin of Bingham Farms. "We've liberated women, but not yet men."

Lindsey is a 5-year-old diabetic. Her daily insulin shots, diet restrictions and constant blood monitoring only provide day-to-day control over the disease. They do not cure it. So Lindsey, along with 11 million other Americans, still faces the long-term risks of diabetes — like heart disease, blindness, stroke, amputation and kidney disease. The complications of diabetes will account for an estimated 150,000 deaths this year alone.

But thanks to your contributions to the Juvenile Diabetes Foundation, Lindsey and millions like her have something more to look forward to. In the past decade, JDF research has made great strides in isolating the causes and conditions of diabetes, bringing us closer to a cure. At the same time, diabetes increases by 6% every year. And in ten years the number of diabetics will have doubled.

So you see, your help is needed more desperately than ever before. For more information on the warning signs of diabetes and its treatment and what you can do to help call JDF at (313) 569-6171.

They named a street after Budget Rent a Truck.

"You know, I've had to send a lot of players packing in my time. So I always try to soften the blow by suggesting that they look into a Budget One-Way Truck. Budget Rent a Truck has a special fleet of 15- and 24-foot diesels and cargo vans that are priced just right for that one-way move to Miami or San Francisco. And they come equipped with automatic transmission, power steering, AM/FM stereo and air conditioning. Like I tell my players: there's only one way to go—my way. Budget rent a truck."

● MOTHERS OF TWINS

The Plymouth-Canton Mothers of Twins Club will hold its annual fall sale 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 23, at 214 Coronation Court, south of Cherry Hill and east of I-275. The sale will feature infants' and children's clothing, toys and equipment. For more information, call 397-1926.

● CLOTHING SALE

The Western Wayne County Mothers of Twins Club will hold its semi-annual sale of children's clothing 2-4 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 23, at Holy Cross Lutheran Church, 30650 Six Mile, between Middlebelt and Merriman in Livonia. The sale will include fall and winter clothing for infants and children. There will also be toys, baby goods and furniture for sale. A bake sale will be held, with proceeds supporting the organization. The public may attend.

● CRAFT GALLERY

A "Craft Gallery" juried folk art show will be held 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 24, at Roma's of Garden City, 32550 Cherry Hill, between Merriman and Venoy. There will be some 65 displays of country folk art, Victorian crafts and early Americana designs. Admission is $2. Lunches and refreshments will be available. Those attending should not bring cameras or strollers. Plymouth-Canton area participants will be Val Davis, Debbi Jordan, Lori Markiewicz, Rita Miller, Nola Hykal and Fran West. For show information, call 336-3947 between 8:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. Monday through Friday.

● NAME THAT LEAF

Students can learn how to identify leaves 2-4 p.m. Sundays, Sept. 24, Oct. 1 and Oct. 8, at the University of Michigan Matthaei Botanical Gardens, 1800 N. Dixboro, Ann Arbor. Students are asked to identify leaves they have collected before coming to the gardens, indicating what they think the leaf is. Notes with such information as type of plant (tree, shrub, vine), age of plant, arrangement of leaves on twig, type of leaf (simple or compound), color or characteristics of bark/fruit, characteristics of buds, and habitat (where the plant is growing) are helpful. Tree identification guide books will be available, with pressed, identified leaves to use for comparison. For more information, call 998-7061.

● CANTON NEWCOMERS

The Canton Newcomers will hold a tea at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 27. Guests will meet club officers and learn about activities sponsored by the club for women, children, couples and families. WE'D LIKE YOU TO RESERVE THE WEEK OF SEPTEMBER 17th FOR A MIRACLE.

George Washington said its creation was "little short of a miracle." James Madison said, "It is impossible for the man of pious reflection not to perceive in it a finger of that Almighty hand," when describing the process that created it.

Washington and Madison were commenting on nothing less than the document that created our government: The Constitution of the United States. The Constitution is the foundation of our country and the means by which we achieve the rule of law and protect our freedom.

The week of September 17th is Constitution Week. Many libraries will have displays and information on this incredible document.

Why not take a look at it. After all, it isn't often you can hold a miracle in your hands.

To get your copy, send your name and address to: Bicentennial Commission, 808 17th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006-3999.

Couple moves to Taiwan for mission work

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Bill Roberts still has to cut the grass and Charlotte Roberts will need to take care of the garden.

Except the Livonia couple will do those chores in Taiwan.

The Roberts left Tuesday as part of a rather new short-term missionary program designed for retirees. The couple, who belong to Ward Presbyterian Church in Livonia, will work for the next two years as caretakers for a missionary guest house in Taichung, Taiwan.

"It sounds like we're going over to play," said Charlotte Roberts, 58, who works as an on-call nurse, "but it really isn't. There's a lot of work to be done."

Not only will the Roberts take care of the three-story guest house, they'll be there to lend words of encouragement to missionaries who stay there.

The Roberts are cut out for such work, raising seven children in their Livonia home. Those qualities are what SEND International took into consideration when choosing the Roberts for the assignment.

SEND is based in Farmington and has several missions in Japan, the Philippines and Alaska along with Taiwan. The group began under the name Far Western Gospel Crusade shortly after World War II. The purpose was to bring Christianity to Asia after the war.

THE TYPICAL missionary is usually young, perhaps fresh out of college. The Roberts have skewed that image a bit.

"Obviously, there is a maturity and experience they've acquired over the years," said Betty Gray of SEND International. "Like with the Roberts, there is the element of odd jobs done around the home. If there is something that needs to be repaired at the guest house, he can do it.

"A new scene gives the mature person a fresh start in a new arena of ministry."

For the Roberts, the trip to Taiwan goes deeper. Bill Roberts, 62, said he made a personal resolution to go to China when he was 17. Some 45 years later, that dream is finally coming true.

"Somewhere, I have picture of a group of kids who were committed to go to missions," said Roberts, who is retired from Michigan Consolidated Gas and as an insurance salesman. "The Lord wanted us to raise a family first."

Their youngest son graduated from Livonia Churchill High School last June. The Roberts read an item about the SEND program and decided to act.

"We felt God was speaking to us," Charlotte Roberts said.

The couple spent a week in candidate school and went through prefield orientation. They also went through a cross-cultural training, which is designed to get the Roberts familiar with Taiwan.

ONLY SEVEN percent of the population of Taiwan is Christian. Bhuddism and Taoism are the major religions.

Cross-cultural training also prepares missionaries to deal with the differences in language. Mandarin Chinese is the main language spoken. The Roberts said they plan on learning a few phrases in order to get by.

"If you go over as a tourist, you're only there for two weeks," Charlotte Roberts said. "When you go over like we are, all of a sudden the reality strikes. 'What am I doing here?' "

The Roberts will use their retirement money to cover their salary. The couple had to raise an additional $10,000. Ward Presbyterian's mission program was instrumental in helping them get the additional money.

After a few delays due to visa problems, the Roberts left. They rented out their Livonia home to missionaries from Mexico.

"It's whole new situation," she said.

Fulfilling a long held ambition, Bill and Charlotte Roberts of Livonia are devoting part of their retirement to helping missionaries in Taiwan. The couple, members of Ward Presbyterian Church are affiliated with SEND International.

Women's life expectancy hits 87

A. Jolayne Farrell

Dear Jo:

At age 75, I'm well over the national life expectancy for women. Statistically speaking — what is now my life expectancy?

Mrs. G. G.
Northern Senior

Dear Mrs. G.:

According to federal statistics, a North American woman, your age — 75, can expect to live another 12 years — until age 87.

Dear Jo:

Should I take supplements of ultratrace minerals? I'm in my late 60s and eat a proper diet.

Mrs. P. M.
Detroit Reader

Dear Mrs. M.:

No. Ultratrace minerals (also referred to as microminerals), boron, chromium, molybdenum, nickel, selenium and silicon like all nutrients are all part of a well-balanced diet.

These minerals are measured in units as tiny as picograms — one trillionth of a gram. Presently scientists are unsure of what constitutes safe amounts for good health, so taking an ultratrace mineral supplement could be dangerous as even small amounts could be toxic.

Some of the ulratrace minerals, their functions and their food sources are as follows:

Boron is thought to regulate the body's use of calcium, phosphorus and magnesium. It is found in fruits, vegetables and nuts.

Chromium helps metabolize fats and carbohydrates. Sources include prunes, nuts, mushrooms, and brewer's yeast.

Molybdenum helps the body use enzymes to produce energy. It is found in dairy products, legumes, and grains.

Nickel may help in the utilization of certain enzymes, as well as iron, and copper. Food sources are chocolate, nuts, dried legumes and cereals.

Selenium, taken in normal dietary amounts is thought to protect against certain cancers. Major sources are fish, red meats, grains, chicken and garlic.

Silicon appears to help form connective tissue and bone. It is found in all foods, mainly in unrefined grains and root vegetables (Source: University of California, Berkeley Wellness Letter).

So, Mrs. M., as you can see when looking at the ultratrace minerals collectively, the wisest way to ensure their consumption is through a well-balanced and varied diet.

Parents target college savings

"The object of education is to prepare the young to educate themselves throughout their lives."

Our subjects this month believe in this very strongly and have made saving for their children's college education their primary goal.

Bill and Trudy Bass live in Plymouth with their 1-year-old daughter. Bill, 30, is a manufacturer's sales representative. Trudy, 26, has recently left a secretarial position to prepare for the arrival of their second child due in February.

The Basses have already established a Michigan Education Trust (MET) fund for their daughter and plan to borrow for a similar contribution for their second child. They realize the MET covers only in-state tuition and fees at a state university, which will cover an estimated 40 percent of the cost of attending college. Therefore they want to establish separate educational funds for their children as soon as possible for future education costs.

Bill asks, "Is the MET the correct vehicle to use for education planning?" Our response is that there is no one right way to plan for education costs. Bill and Trudy are relatively conservative, they plan to stay in Michigan, and they believe they need a "forced savings" to accomplish their goals.

These factors all weigh in favor of the MET program. But Bill and Trudy should also weigh the negatives of the program. There is a lack of flexibility and accessiblity of money placed in the MET program, and their is no guarantee that the MET will earn sufficient income to cover all of its obligations. Because their children's education is their most important goal, Bill and Trudy should review these pros and cons carefully.

THE BASSES HAVE not done any estate planning. This should be done as soon as possible. If they die without a valid will in effect, they will leave many important decisions regarding their children and assets to the Probate Court and Michigan intestacy laws.

If a person dies without a will, any property owned by that person alone will go to those persons described in the Michigan statute, which may be very different than where Trudy and Bill desire that their property go. The probate court, without any guidance from the parents, would decide who would be the guardians of their children and personal representative of the estate. A will for both Bill and Trudy should be a priority item, and later perhaps a revocable living trust for asset management and tax savings should become a part of their estate planning.

Bill and Trudy have a $100,000 limit of liability on both their homeowners and automobile insurance. In this era of increased litigation, it may be a good idea to increase that limit. For a few more dollars of premium each year, they could increase this to $300,000 on each policy.

A major weakness we see in Bill and Trudy's situation is that Bill has only short-term disability coverage though his employer. It is adequate coverage for 24 months, but then stops altogether. Because they are a young family without substantial outside resources, enormous problems could result from a long-term disability of the primary family income earner.

Bill should consider buying an individual long-term disability policy to dovetail with his short-term coverage. It could have a 24-month waiting period with benefits beginning when the other policy ends. This longer waiting period should reduce the cost of the policy. The new coverage should last until at least age 65, be non-cancelable and provide benefits equal to one-half to two-thirds of Bill's current income.

WHILE BILL DOES not want to be "insurance rich" and "cash poor," he should at least annually review his life insurance coverage to determine if his coverage is sufficient to take care of his family in the event of his untimely death. He has $250,000 of coverage. Because his children are young, he may want to increase his insurance for at least the short run by buying additional term life insurance.

Bill and Trudy may even want to consider combining a portion of their savings program with their life insurance program by buying a permanent type of insurance coverage. They should consult with their insurance agent before taking any action.

Bill would like to retire early, preferably at age 50. His current plans include selling their home at age 55 to support their future income needs during retirement. While it is too early to determine whether his goal of an early retirement is attainable, the plan to sell the home is questionable. Bill and Trudy will still have to live somewhere, probably incurring rental costs, and they will not likely be in a significantly enhanced financial position through the sale of their house. Some equity would be freed up, but it will not be sufficient to support them during their retirement years.

Bill is also saving for this retirement years by contributing $300 per month to his company 401(k) plan, and adding regularly to their mutual funds. Their established saving habit is a strength, but they are reviewing their current savings level in light of Trudy's decision not to return to work until both of their children are in school.

Trudy asks, "Should we reduce the 401(k) contributions or reduce our outside mutual fund savings?" Our recommendation is to continue with the 401(k) savings plan because it is easy, automatic, and is partly paid for through tax reduction.

BECAUSE TRUDY won't be working for the next few years, they will have to adjust their standard of living to the single income. We suggest they sit down together and plan a family budget that takes into account the reduced income. It is fine to reduce their savings level for the short term, but Bill and Trudy should try to live within their one income and not beyond it. Building up debt could put them behind for many years to come.

Bill and Trudy have a number of do-it-yourself projects around the house that they would like to complete in the next few years. They also plan to take a modest vacation next year. With proper planning, these goals are reachable.

Are takeovers bad?

No, professor claims

By Tim Richard
staff writer

"There's no cause for alarm, no reason for panic" because of corporate takeovers, a University of Michigan professor told an audience of business leaders last week.

"There's no supporting evidence of harm to people or communities" when one company bids successfully for control of another, Michael Bradley, a professor of business administration, finance and law told an audience gathered by the U-M business school.

Bradley's numbers showed that stockholders in targeted companies are big gainers, and there are no big layoffs resulting from takeovers.

"The popular press has American going to hell. They don't know what's going on or else they're listening to targeted managers," Bradley said.

HOSTILE TAKEOVERS are just one form of corporate restructuring. One company, often called a "raider," offers a price 30 percent or more beyond the market price for control of the target firm.

Other restructurings, said Bradley, are negotiated mergers and "leveraged buyouts," or LBOs. With an LBO, a firm's managers fight a hostile takeover by issuing risky, high yield "junk bonds" to take a firm off the stock market and into private control.

"Junk bonds are not doing very well," said Bradley, adding that they are really equity rather than debt instruments.

During the Reagan presidency, the number of transactions doubled from 2,000 in 1981 to the 4,000 range currently. Total value of the transactions tripled from $60 billion in 1981 to a high of more than $200 billion in 1986.

SHAREHOLDERS OF the targeted firms are big winners. "Takeovers are paid for mainly by cash distributions. Much net wealth is created. These are not paper profits. These are pictures of George (Washigton) you can go out and spend."

After a takeover, research and development expenditures tend to rise.

He said a U-M doctoral student is studying the effects of takeovers on employment and so far has found "no negative effect. There's more employment . . . That's where the research is going, but it's very slow."

An audience questioner raised the case of United Air Lines, where employees bought control at $300 a share of a company whose stock earlier had been less than $100 a share.

"Will you feel better getting on UAL? I'll feel a lot worse with an over-leveraged, rather desperate corporation run by desperate people," the listener said.

"I can make just as many arguments that it will be more efficient," Bradley replied. "We need some evidence. I don't know. I don't think there will be a material change (in safety)."

MERRITT FOX, a law professor, replied that gains to targeted shareholders weren't the only consideration.

"There's a sense of demoralization (at the targeted comapany)," Fox said. "It's difficult to get managers to identify with team interests if they don't know the team will be around. The sense of team identity disintegrates . . . They are working in an environment where you have a high chance of losing your job."

Fox noted a tendency for new owners to move operations to lower cost areas, resulting in a geographic redistribution of wealth between regions. "There are clearly losers," he said.

Joel Seligman, also a law professor, said the hottest area of anti-takeover law these days is at the state level. Legislatures are passing laws to protect local firms, "but state law may have gone too far in protecting management," he said.

He noted the U.S. Supreme Court, in a 6-3 decision, upheld an Indiana law saying target boards had the right to ask stockholder approval of a takeover. Michigan has adopted a similar law sponsored by Rep. John Bennet, D-Redford.

Seligman said there still are difficulties with state anti-takeover laws: The federal government has jurisdiction over interstate commerce, and federal law is pre-eminent when there is a conflict with state law.

State law can have only limited impact, he said, because 60 percent of all U.S. corporations are chartered in the state of Delaware.

A "SOFT LANDING" and no recession — that's the prediction of U-M's quarterly econometric model prepared by Saul Hymans and economists Joan Crary and Janet Wolfe.

"The slow growth phase will persist for a while without degenerating into recession," Crary said, adding that U-M economic forecasters have a little better record than weather forecasters — "on average."

Economic strengths are: a relatively flat governmental sector, plant usage drifting up slowly to 85 percent of capacity, residential building rising by the end of the year after several years of decline, consumer spending growing at a real 2 percent rate, and 5 percent consumer price inflation.

Unemployment will drift up to 5.7 percent in 1990 but remain flat in 1991.

Weak signs, Crary said, are the possibility of "megashocks" and the declining value of the dollar.

U-M'S SCHOOL of business administration has won a $480,000, three-year federal grant for a new, interdisciplinary teaching and research unit called the Center for International Business Education.

Business dean Gilbert Whittaker said his school was one of 60 competing for six grants.

Tax-saving ideas may help cut your bills

Last of five parts.

finances and you

Sid Mittra

In this concluding section, we will briefly mention a potpourri of tax-savings ideas that were not discussed in the previous columns.

Income shifting

Since the decline in tax rates under the 1986 Tax Reform Act is now complete, there is less reason to postpone income to lower the tax liability. Still, some tax payments can be postponed by delaying some investments or other earnings.

For instance, if a taxpayer defers non-wage income, which is not subject to withholding, the money could be received early in 1991 but taxes on this income will not be due until the 1991 tax return is filed in April 1992.

Furthermore, delaying income can save a taxpayer on taxes if the future income is expected to fall into a lower tax bracket.

Expense shifting

The reverse strategy works with respect to expenses. Since expenses reduce taxable income, accelerating deductions during the year may prove to be an attractive strategy. Prepayment of charitable contributions and professional dues, and realization of losses by selling property are examples of expense shifting.

Short sales

If a taxpayer does not want to realize taxable gains on a security sale during a taxable year but believes the security price may decline in the near future, the profit can be frozen by ordering a short sale of the security during the current year.

Then, after the year-end, the shares owned by the taxpayer can be delivered to the broker as a replacement of the borrowed shares sold as a short sale. By delivering the stock in the new year, the gain on the short sale is realized in that year.

Second home

The government allows the taxpayer to deduct many of the costs of the second home as long as it is not used for personal use for more than two weeks during a given year. Consequently, rental income and tax deductions generated by a second home can be an important part of a tax-reduction strategy.

Social Security tax

Social Security benefits of more than $8,800 for taxpayers younger than 70 are reduced by $1 for every $2 of "excess" earned income from other sources of more than $32,000 for a person filing a joint return. If the taxpayer is single, the "excess" income limit kicks in at $25,000, rather than $32,000.

Once this level is reached, additional earned income will generate a progressively smaller economic benefit due to income tax, Social Security tax and the reduction of benefits, until the Social Security benefits are entirely eliminated.

Consequently, before age 70 taxpayers planning to work after retirement should either perform largely volunteer work or work that generates substantial income.

Mutual fund sales

A little-known tax-savings strategy relates to the taxation of gains realized on the sale of a particular mutual fund or a stock. This strategy is best described by recounting the experience of a taxpayer named Bob Jones.

To his dismay and utter disbelief, in May 1989 Jones was ordered by the Tax Court to pay $33,149 to the Internal Revenue Service.

This situation was created when Jones sold in 1982 some of his shares in two mutual funds. To compute his capital gains and losses that year, Jones' CPA subtracted from the sale price the cost of the fund's share most recently bought by Jones.

The newer shares were bought at much higher prices than those bought seven years earlier. However, Jones never specified to his fund's transfer agent the particular shares that he wanted sold.

The Tax Court therefore ruled that, in accordance with IRS regulations, Jones' CPA should have assumed that the first shares bought were those that were sold.

The result was devastating. Instead of a deductible $6,708 net long-term loss under the original calculation, Jones was actually made liable for a $168,096 long-term gain.

A valuable lesson can be learned from the harrowing experience of Bob Jones. When placing a sell order, taxpayers must carefully instruct the broker or the mutual fund transfer agent to send a transaction confirmation that identifies the shares that were intended to be sold.

This will allow the taxpayer to minimize the taxable gains or maximize the deductible losses for that year.

College savings concern parents

A final problem we see is that 95 percent of their assets are in the stock market. Forty-three percent of their assets are in a single stock, which subjects their portfolio to a much higher volatility factor than is appropriate or necessary.

They should try to build a more substantial cash reserve, perhaps as much as $5,000. This will allow them to weather any unexpected financial crisis without having to prematurely liquidate an investment at an inopportune time.

Bill and Trudy may want to consider diversifying their portfolio at least partly into bonds and inflation-sensitive areas such as energy and real estate. Bill should certainly reduce his portfolio exposure in the individual stock he owns unless there is a compelling reason to maintain his current position in it.

The next few years will be challenging for Bill and Trudy as they watch their children grow, but by continuing to build a solid financial base now, their goals for their children and themselves can be reached.

H&R BLOCK INCOME TAX COURSE BEGINS OCTOBER 6th
Save time and money when you take the H&R Block Income Tax Course.
Thousands of people enjoy part-time employment and earn money each year as income tax preparers. Many received their training in income tax courses taught by H&R Block.
The 75-hour basic course introduced students to income tax preparation. They will receive hands-on experience in preparing indivdual tax returns, working with increasingly complex tax situations as the term progresses. It is ideal for homemakers, retirees, teachers or anyone else wanting to increase his or her tax knowledge.
Qualified graduates of the course may be offered job interviews with H&R Block but are under no obligation to accept employment.
Registration forms and brochures can be obtained by contacting H&R Block.

Honda is threatened by what it did to VW

Dan McCosh

It's not considered polite in the auto business to single out a single competitor and hunt it down like some pack of wolves following a Russian sleigh. But for most of its history in America, Honda has doggedly followed every corporate move made by Volkswagen of America and done it a little better.

The result is that for a decade or so, the sum total of retail sales in the United States of the two multi-national giants stood at slightly more than half a million cars. In the mid-1970s, VW had about 80 percent of that total, a ratio that eventually reversed to favor Honda.

LIKE VOLKSWAGEN, Honda was something of a cultural icon on campus in the 1960s, mainly by virtue of its 50cc motorscooters. Later, Honda kept it simple, eventually pre-empting the niche for basic transportation first established by the Volkswagen Beetle.

Volkswagen multiplied its model lineup, buying out Audi and enjoying the original yuppiemobile, the Audi 5000. Honda added the Accord and Legend.

Volkswagen built a U.S. plant to fend off criticism imports were taking U.S. jobs. Honda built a U.S. plant to fend off criticism its imports were taking U.S. jobs.

BUT THROUGH all this, Honda was winning in the clinches. Early Civics did better than early Beetles because Honda pushed them mainly on the West Coast, where their propensity to melt away in the winter's salt was diminished.

Volkswagen plugged away in the Northeast, which at that time was losing population like Ireland in the potato famine.

Volkswagen bragged about its U.S. plant, bringing down hordes of journalists anxious to prove American workers couldn't do the job. Honda denied it was even in operation for more than a year.

Ultimately, the duel climaxed when Audi was slapped by accusations of safety problems stemming from sudden acceleration, just as Honda launched its new upscale Acura franchise — the toughest competitor Audi ever had.

Incremental Acura sales pushed Honda's total volume to the 700,000-plus range, and it now holds its own with major domestic divisions.

CURIOUSLY, HONDA now is building a second U.S. assembly plant just as its sales are softening. A second U.S. plant was abandoned by Volkswagen when its sales began to fall.

Volkswagen likewise cut its ties with Porsche in the ultra-expensive sports car market. Honda is getting ready to enter that market on its own.

Probably the major distinction in strategy between the two companies was Honda's willingness to gamble capital on an extremely short product cycle, bringing out completely new cars every two years, while VW clung to aging designs seemingly forever.

BUT THE analogy now appears at an end, as Honda enters a new era. Japanese wages are higher than what it pays in the United States, and its basic manufacturing cost advantage is dwindling.

It also continues to push more into the mainstream U.S. stronghold, with larger cars such as the new-generation Accord, although it still manages to sell four-cylinder cars in a market dominated by V-6s and significantly larger cars.

Has the VW-Honda formula been wrung dry? The answer will be partially told at the end of the coming sales year, when Honda promises to make a turnaround despite the soft overall market.

The last answer will be the success of GM's Saturn division.

It's a new pack of wolves, and now Honda is in the sleigh.

By Mary DiPaolo
special writer

"It's important to see the difference between leadership and management. Some businesses are well managed but poorly led. That's a mating that begets mediocrity.

"The only useful definition of a leader is the simplest one: A leader is someone who has followers."

According to creative management experts, the days of merely "managing" a business to achieve long-term success are over. Prospering organizations today, in any field, require leaders and not managers.

Managmeent guru Peter Drucker put it succinctly when he said, "If a business fails to perform, we rightly hire not different people, but a new president." To prove Drucker's point, researchers have found that a direct relationship exists between the quality of a company's leadership and its organizational performance.

WILLIAM A. Martseller, author of the book, "Creative Management," defines an exceptional leader as someone whose principal characteristic is not academic achievement or years of experience.

"Like the football professional who remains in demand season after season, a leader has a proven track record of performance excellence. A manager, on the other hand, is described as a self-made individual who has usually "grown up" with the business.

"Managers know their business intimately and rely primarily on personal experience plus trial-and-error methods of operation." Management or leadership is a decision every person makes when he or she is given the responsibility of other people.

MANAGERS USUALLY get the work done, but the leaders develop a staff of competent and loyal followers as they accomplish the work. And in the process of leading, these people build strong, profitable businesses offering desirable employment to their staff.

Once a person has acquired important management skills, he or she can then move on to develop leadership qualities, Marsteller said.

"Management and leadership are successive steps," Martseller says. "Leadership follows management, although there is no easy way to become a leader.

"Much discipline is required to follow proven leadership techniques and eventually develop key leadership qualities."

AS SUCH, the process involved to become an effective business leader does not happen overnight. "Many individuals may believe they are natural born leaders and may very well be, but it's a different story when these 'leaders' are required to demonstrate their skills consistently within the work place."

There are 11 qualities that are apparent in any successful leader and serve to answer the question: Are you a manager or a leader? Next week, we will review these qualities as they apply to small business owners and managers.

Mary DiPaolo is the owner of MarkeTrends, a Farmington Hills based business consulting firm. She is also producer and host of the cable television series, "Chamber Perspectives."

Tanya Bowsman of Canton returns volley to Ann Gilmore during the No. 1 singles match Tuesday. Bowsman won the contest over her Salem opponent, 6-3, 6-0.

Chiefs top Salem to stay undefeated

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Plymouth Canton coach Carol Michaels knows there are tough matches ahead, but the Chiefs are presently riding the crest of success in girls tennis.

Canton remained undefeated and extended its winning streak to five matches Tuesday, beating Plymouth Salem 6-1 in a rain makeup at Centennial Educational Park.

'We were 5-4 last year, and most of the girls were coming back," Michaels said. "I hoped we'd have a nice team and so far the girls we're living up to it."

The Chiefs will play Western Division foe Northville and Livonia Stevenson in the weeks ahead, and those matches should tell the story, Michaels said.

"Northville defeated Salem quite handily, so that's one we'll have to go out and really play well," she said.

DESPITE THE score and the fact Canton won everything but No. 3 doubles, Canton didn't run roughshod over the Rocks. Three matches went three sets, and tiebreakers were needed in four, including both at No. 1 doubles.

"It was a tough match as usual," Salem coach Judy Braun said. "The score doesn't look like it; it looks like we got slaughtered.

"If you were standing there watching, you really and truly couldn't tell who was winning a lot of the matches. Though it was a bad loss, it isn't as bad as it looks."

Canton's Tanya Bowsman won the No. 1 singles match 6-3, 6-0 over Ann Gilmore, and Michaels said a win Monday against Walled Lake Central served to boost her confidence.

"The last couple nights she seems to be coming on and playing great," she said. "In the (Central) match, she was down 5-2 in the second set and came back and won it in a tiebreaker. The confidence she got from that match carried her through today."

Statistical roundup, Page 6D

One of the most unusual matches was the No. 2 singles contest in which Sherri Bajer of Canton lost the first set 0-6 to Wendy Shiek, then rallied to win the next two by equally lopsided margins, 6-1 and 6-0.

"I THINK THAT was a case of nerves," Michaels said. "Canton-Salem is like the city championship, and it's very important to them. They're friends yet it's important to beat each other.

"It took her a set to calm down and start playing. Not to take anything away from Wendy, but Sherri just had to relax and start playing her game."

Canton's Alissa Huth defeated Shieka Kapila (6-3, 6-2) at No. 3 singles, and Michelle Sparkman won the No. 4 match over Tracy Anderson (7-6, 6-4).

All of the doubles matches were competitive. Leanne Gurchak and Denise Gildo defeated Kathy Marschak and Michelle Minton (7-5, 7-6) at No. 1, and Heather Kaye and Resham Batra defeated Susie Bozelle and Leah Szafran (3-6, 6-4, 7-5) at No. 2.

Kelly Kirkpatrick and Tracey Livermore achieved Salem's lone victory, defeating Reetika Aulakh and Viraj Parikh (2-6, 6-3, 6-4) at No. 3.

"You can see by the scores in doubles, it could have gone either way," Michaels said. "In second doubles, there was a lot of drama out there. (Kaye and Resham) were down 5-2 in the third set and came back and won it 7-5.

"I moved up a 10th grader (Gildo) and I didn't know how she'd do, but I was pleased they were able to win one against a good doubles combination," she added.

Cauzillo's putting key to O&E success

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Gary Cauzillo waved his putter around like it was a magic wand. "This is the one right here," he claimed. "It always is."

Cauzillo's putting offset his marginal play elsewhere on the rain-drenched Whispering Willows Golf Course, allowing him to claim top honors in the Observer & Eccentric/Whispering Willows Tournament Sunday.

His six-over par 146 was just enough to edge Craig Henriksen of Farmington, who had a 72 Saturday and a 75 Sunday for a 147 total. David Koch of Canton was another stroke back at 148 and Mike Kerr of Livonia was next at 149.

Cauzillo's putting helped him shoot a pair of 73s, a solid score considering the conditions. Rain forced cancellation of Saturday's afternoon session, which meant half the field was forced to play all 36 holes Sunday.

The best single-round came from Koch, who played all 36 on Sunday and recorded the only sub-par round of the tournament – a 68. Unfortunately, his first trip around the course resulted in an 80.

AFTER SATURDAY, Henriksen and Leo Martin were the leaders, both having shot 72. Cauzillo knew he was in the hunt and thought he might have a shot at the victory until the 17th hole Sunday.

"I three-putted 17 and bogeyed 18, and I just said, 'Oh, man,' " he said.

But no one could match him. And it's doubtful anyone could match Cauzillo's putting — 57 for the 36-hole tournament.

"I didn't hit the ball real well, but I chipped and putted real well," the 37-year-old native Detroiter said.

His biggest concern on the course was Kerr, a former O&E champion who was playing with him. The pressure came at the 14th hole, a 370-yard par four. Kerr sank a 40-foot putt to pull to within two strokes of Cauzillo, but his stay was brief. Cauzillo hit a 35-foot putt to regain his three-stroke cushion.

It wasn't the best Cauzillo has played in this tournament. In '86, he shot a 144 but finished a stroke behind Mike Steggles and Doug Cummings. Steggles won in a playoff.

A PUBLINX PLAYER who annually plays the Michigan Amateur and has twice traveled to the National Publinx Tournament ('83 and '84), Cauzillo's philosophy on playing golf is simple enough: "Don't think. Just play.

"Too much thinking will kill you. You can't worry about what the other guy is doing. It doesn't do any good. You put a lot of pressure on yourself when you start thinking. Just go out and have fun."

Cauzillo must have had lots of fun Sunday.

Top prize was a $250 gift certificate. Henriksen earned a $175 certificate and Koch got one worth $125.

The winner of the first flight prize, a $200 gift certificate, was Nick Lubnik of Bloomfield Hills, with a 75-80/155 total. Bob Fields of Westland was second ($150), a stroke behind at 78-78/156.

In second flight, Karl Nagy of Livonia edged Kevin Furlong of Livonia with a 93-80/173 for the first-place prize, a $100 certificate. Furlong shot 90-85/175 ($60).

Third flight winner was Jerome McMahon of Livonia with an 87-99/186 ($90), a stroke better than Alan Jablin of West Bloomfield (90-97/187).

Canton takes its turn at winning S'craft title

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Last year's bridemaids caught the bouquets during Saturday's 24th running of the Schoolcraft College Invitational cross country meet.

Plymouth Canton, which lost in a tiebreaker to Farmington a year ago, captured its first boys crown ever.

And Farmington, which played second fiddle to Canton in the girls meet last season, garnered the 1989 crown. It was the Falcons' second crown in 12 years.

Farmington also boasted the boys and girls individual winners.

Ben Goba was the top boy with a runaway time of 15:47.52, while Jennifer Kiel was the No. 1 girl, holding off North Farmington's Lisa Rives by three seconds. (See statistical summary.)

But the most satisfied group had to be coach Jim Hayes and his Canton boys squad.

The Chiefs scored 73 points to rival Plymouth Salem's 93.

Senior Brian Beach led the way with a fifth-place finish, while senior Matt Boland added a 12th, junior Mike Ream, a 13th; junior Jason Napolitano, 20th; and senior Matt Hall, 22nd. (James Carnes and Ron Trosin took 35th and 42nd, respectively.)

"THIS IS A hard-working bunch that has set some goals for this year," said Hayes, the veteran Canton coach. "Our whole goal was to have five guys finish together.

"Even though we lost last year, it was a real nice surprise because we didn't know how good we were."

Boland, who was the Chiefs' seventh runner a year ago, has made tremendous strides.

cross country

"Matt did not run in the league meet and that was a big motivation for him going into this year," Hayes said. "He's a senior who's really worked his tail off."

Hayes can also take consolation in the fact that his Chiefs excel academically as well.

"We may have the highest honor-point average in the school," he said. "They're very bright kids who understand discipline and hard work."

ANOTHER TOP-FLIGHT student-athlete is Farmington's Goba, who breezed to the boys individual title after shaking off Novi's Brian Molloy and Livonia Churchill's Scott Westover.

"We expected Ben to do well, he won the West Bloomfield Invitational, it was a question of how fast?" said Farmington coach Jerry Young. "This is the first time he's been under 16 minutes, so he's improved significantly. He's a thin kid (6-feet, 125 pounds), but he's worked hard in the weight room and it's paid off for him."

Farmington's girls, meanwhile, outdistanced Redford Union by 26 points and Canton by 32.

Kiel clipped along the 5,000-meter course in 18:41.41. The senior is one of the state's top distance runners, having placed eighth in the 3,000 at the state Class A track meet.

"This girl has the most single-minded attitude of any runner I've ever coached," said Farmington's John Barrett. "She's got talent, but works hard to develop it. She expects a lot of herself and everybody else."

FARMINGTON'S GIRLS virtually ran in a pack.

Junior Jennifer Derwinski and sophomore Allison Davis finished 10th and 11th, respectively. Newcomer Gretchen Clappison, a junior, was 13th, while Margaret Martin, a senior co-captain, was 25th.

"Davis and Derwinski each had a good run," Barrett said. "And Clappison is a new runner for the first time. She has asthma, but she has great potential.

"And Martin is very aggressive. She motivates the rest of the team. This team is all focused. They stick to their goals and don't slack off in workouts."

The Falcons will become an even better team when Amy Trunk returns from a leg injury.

"This year we realize this is our best chance to win invitationals," said the Farmington coach. "Schoolcraft was one of our goals and so is the conference meet (Western Lakes Activities Association)."

RU, third a year ago, placed second thanks to the efforts of junior Liza Mockeridge, who was sixth, and junior Kelly Murray, who was ninth. Sophomore Tracey James, who ran despite being sick, was 15th. Laura Wedge and Michelle Daraban were 31st and 32nd, respectively.

"We just ran well," said RU coach Bob Ouellette. "We have no seniors this year so whatever happens, happens.

"It's a really tough bunch of kids. Two years ago we lost our program,

St. Joe holds off Mercy to win Hoops tourney

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Tracey Bloodworth had Farmington Hills Mercy's collective blood pressure going upward Saturday night in the first half of the Hoops Classic championship game.

But, in the second half, Mercy's pressure put the clamps on St. Joseph's Bloodworth and nearly stole the victory.

After a first-half shooting exhibition by the 5-foot-9 Bloodworth, the Marlins staged a furious fourth-quarter rally that fell just short of catching the Lady Bears, 42-41.

"Being the only Class B school here, this is a great win," St. Joseph coach Rick Bloodworth said. "We hope to come here and represent the west side of the state well. But we play all A schools, so it's nothing new."

Tracey Bloodworth, who was named the tournament's most valuable player, scored 22 of her 24 points, including four triples, in the first and second quarters as St. Joe built a 30-14 halftime lead.

"I KNEW SHE was an exceptional shooter," Mercy coach Larry Baker said, "but I must admit she put on a phenomenal three-point performance. I certainly didn't expect that in our gym with the kinds of defense we play."

Senior Jenny Clinton and junior Carrie Walton, both of whom were instrumental in the second-half defense played by Mercy, were named to the all-tournament team as were Plymouth Canton center Susan Ferko and St. Joe's Allison Remble.

After being virtually shot out of the game in the first half, the Marlins (2-3) held Bloodworth to two free throws in the last two quarters and made things happen with full-court pressure. Mercy used a zone defense with Walton shadowing Bloodworth.

"I only shot 4-5 times in the second half," Tracey said. "If we were going to score, I think we would have set more screens to open me up. We had a lead and decided we were going to hang on — and we barely did."

Leading 36-24 entering the fourth period, St. Joe (3-0) was willing to work the clock and be patient at the offensive end, but Mercy's pressure in the backcourt foiled that plan.

"I wasn't as concerned about the half-court part (and Tracey's lack of points) as I was the pressure," Rick said. "I knew (Mercy) had guts and wouldn't give up."

JOANNE STEPHENS, who came off the bench to score seven key points, and Walton brought the Marlins within 38-33 with little more than three minutes to play when Mercy really began to apply the pressure.

The Marlins forced St. Joe into five turnovers with a one-minute span, and Clinton, who led Mercy with 10 points, made it 38-36 with a triple. The Marlins missed two shots before Liz Vernasco sank two free throws with 26 seconds left.

Mercy's Kathleen Gerigk kept it a two-point difference, but Bloodworth got beyond the backcourt pressure on the inbounds play and fired ahead to Remble for an easy layup with :06 remaining, 42-38. Clinton hit another triple at the end to account for the final score.

"The kids on the bench helped to get some semblance of offense going," said Baker, who shuttled players in and out, "and they all helped in the second half. Jenny and Joanne were inspirational leaders out there."

Baker indicated the Marlins are beginning to realize their potential after two losses a week ago.

"I told the team it really exhibited its true character this week, both in the win (Thursday over Trenton) and today," he said. "We played with confidence when we needed it most.

"WE HAVE PROVEN to ourselves we'll never be out of a contest this season. The tournament should prove to be valuable preparation for the league season."

Rick Bloodworth added high-scoring halves are nothing new to Tracey, his daughter, but there was something special to her execution of textbook-perfect shots this night.

"She's done it before but maybe not at such a high level and against such a good team," he said.

Remble added 10 points for St. Joe, and Maureen Paulin and Walton chipped in six apiece for the Marlins.

2nd-half surge carries Chiefs

Plymouth Canton did an about-face in the second half Tuesday night to defeat North Farmington 55-49 in girls basketball.

The Chiefs, who trailed 26-24 at halftime, outscored their host by seven in the third quarter and limited the scoring of North's Eve Claar in the second half.

Claar, who along with Canton's Susan Ferko, scored a game-high 20 points, had three in the third quarter and none in the fourth.

"Jenny Russell did an outstanding defensive job on her, with a lot of support from her teammates," Canton coach Bob Blohm said.

The Chiefs carried a 38-33 lead into the finale, a high-scoring conclusion, which saw Canton outscore the Raiders 17-16.

Stacey Thompson added 15 points and Russell 10 for the Chiefs, who have won two straight. Kim Gurecki scored 14 and Ginger Donoghue nine for North, which has lost two straight. Both teams are 3-2.

"We gave up more points than I would like in the fourth, but I thought the chemistry was good," Blohm said. "In the second, third and fourth quarters, it was pretty good.

"We played a really solid game, and the recognition was better against the zone," he added.

North held the upper hand early, leading 17-12 after one quarter and by as many as eight at one point. But the Raiders missed two 1-and-1 opportunities, and the Chiefs scored the last six points of the half.

North was within a point, 48-47, in the fourth quarter when it missed a couple more 1-and-1 chances.

"Canton put a lot of pressure on us, and we threw the ball away," North coach Greg Capling said.

Nonetheless, Capling was proud of the effort the Raiders put forth.

"I told them, if they can play with Canton, they should be able to play with anybody," he said. "My kids played tremendously hard. I'm very proud of them."

CANTON 38, TRENTON 30: The Chiefs defeated Trenton a second time Saturday in the consolation game of the Mercy Hoops Classic.

Susan Ferko paced Canton with 20 points and nine rebounds. Stacey Thompson added eight points, and Jenny Russell had five assists.

Blohm said Russell played an outstanding defensive game that night, too, holding Trenton's Kim Hoppes to five points.

NORTHVILLE 49, FARMINGTON 27: Kate Holstein scored a game-high 17 points for the visiting Mustangs, who outscored the Falcons 35-12 in the second half after trailing 15-14 at halftime.

Rachael Cannon, Jennifer McGlinch and Erika Hatcher scored six points apiece for Farmington, 2-3. Northville is 3-2.

STEVENSON 77, HARRISON 34: Four players scored in double figures for the once-beaten Spartans, 4-1. Teresa Sarno led the way with 19 points, Kelly Cotter scored 18, Jessann Martin chipped in 13 and Stephy Sutter added 10.

Heather Hopkins led the Hawks, who trailed 39-10 at halftime, with 11 points. Harrison is 2-3.

Western melts Rocks in basketball

By Ray Setlock
staff writer

Like a hot knife through butter, the Walled Lake Western girls basketball team melted Plymouth Salem 48-45 Tuesday on the road.

The victory lifts the Warriors to 3-2, while the Rocks drop to 1-4.

Marsha Kosmatka's layup with 1:01 left in the game broke a 45-45 tie and ensured the Warriors of the victory.

The two teams exchanged points throughout much of the game as each team battled to take control. Salem took a 16-14 lead at the conclusion of the first quarter, but the Warriors battled back to tie 20-20 at halftime.

The Rocks began to assert themselves in the third quarter, outscoring the Warriors 14-9, but Western rallied in the fourth quarter to take the win.

"THESE CLOSE games are what make coaching fun," Salem coach Fred Thomann said. "It's really what we work for."

"These games come down to execution and we just didn't execute tonight," he added. "They were tough; they're a well-rounded team."

The Rocks had trouble stopping the Warriors' scoring duo of April Blanton and Shawna Schlimgen. Each chalked up a game-high 13 points.

"April Blanton leads by example," Western coach Bill St. John said. "She worked hard tonight and earned every point she got. Shawna Schlimgen also did a real nice job for us."

The Warriors made the best of their opportunities as they made seven of their 19 fourth-quarter points from the free throw line.

"I don't know how many free throws they made down the stretch, but they made their share," Thomann said. "Hey, free throws can make the difference, and they definitely hurt us tonight."

THE ROCKS were led by junior guard Sarah Ruete, who scored 10 points. Betsy McAllister and Kelly Austin added eight points apiece for Salem.

"Kelly Austin played a solid game for us," Thomann. "She executed real well. I won't say which players didn't execute, but Kelly was one of the few who did."

Ruete, McAllister and Austin sparked the Rocks in the third quarter as they accounted for 12 of Salem's 14 points.

"We played a good third quarter, but the whole game isn't decided in one quarter," Thomann said. "You have to give Walled Lake credit; they executed and won."

"I'm really satisfied with the win," St. John said. "We worked hard and won. I am really proud of the girls."

S'craft netters capture tourney trophy

Tom Teeters would like to think of last weekend's trip to the Lake Michigan College Volleyball Tournament in Benton Harbor as an investment in the future.

The reason was the final, championship match with Southwestern CC Saturday. Teeters' Schoolcraft College team trailed 13-6 and 14-11 in the fourth game, but battled back to win 16-14.

That game clinched the match and the tournament title for the Lady Ocelots, who beat Southwestern 15-13, 15-9, 13-15, 16-14.

"I always felt if you can come from behind it's like money in the bank," said Teeters. "You can always draw on it later in the season, when you really need it. Once they've done it, they've got that confidence and they know they can do it again."

It was the fourth-straight time SC has won the Lake Michigan tournament, and it improved the team's record to 6-2.

IN THE TOURNAMENT semifinals, SC ripped Kellogg CC 15-6, 15-1, 15-3. In pool play, the Lady Ocelots beat the same two teams: Southwestern by 15-7, 14-16, 15-2, 15-10 scores, and Kellogg by 15-2, 15-8, 15-7 margins.

Leading SC in the final match were: Angellette Love with 18 kills (a .368 kill percentage); Elena Oparka with 16 kills (.205); JoAnn Kolnitys with three solo blocks and nine block assists; Tricia Lukas with two solos and five block assists; Jenny Sproul with 35 assists to kills and five kills; Christy Clark with 16 digs; Alisha Love with seven service aces; and Cathy Coak with five aces.

Oparka's 10 kills (.250) topped the hitting in the semifinal win over Kellogg. Kolnitys contributed five kills (.266) and four aces.

The first victory over Southwestern was sparked by Angellette Love's 22 kills, Alisha Love's five kills and four aces, and Kolnitys' two solos and four block assists. In Friday's opener against Kellogg, Sproul had 34 assists to kills and Clark collected 11 digs.

"Our serve reception is good, our defense is good," said Teeters. "We're not quite consistent enough on offense."

SC will have a chance to perfect its game further at the eight-team Purdue University-Calumet Tournament this weekend. The Lady Ocelots host Oakland University at 6 p.m. and Madonna College at 7:30 p.m. in their home opener Sept. 28.

Warriors upset Canton in soccer

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Walled Lake Western's boys soccer program took a step forward Monday night when the Warriors upset Plymouth Canton 2-1.

Chris Crawford scored both goals in the second half as Western (3-1-1) rallied from a 1-0 halftime deficit.

"It was a nice win for our school and for our association," Warriors coach Dave Morgan said. "It shows all the schools are coming. Schools like Western are beginning to match the standards of some other teams."

Morgan said his team got a lesson in how to play the game a week ago in a 5-0 loss to Livonia Churchill.

"At times we were awed by how they played," he said. "We learned that moving the ball around and playing the game the way it's supposed to be played works quite well."

Both of Crawford's goals were unassisted. He tied the game at the 60-minute mark and added the game winner six minutes later. Morgan said the Warriors outshot Canton 11-7 in the second half and dominated play after the reverse occurred in the first half.

"He created both (scoring chances)," Morgan said. "It was a nice individual effort. Once he dribbled around three guys, got off a shot and put it in."

Morgan added: "The team as a whole played much better than it ever has. They're getting it. It's just must better soccer."

Canton (3-4-1) scored first on Dan Martin's shot with an assist from Steve Shiner, but the Chiefs had a second-half letdown and didn't take Western seriously enough, according to coach Don Smith.

He was further disheartened because the loss came after Canton had played so well in a 1-0 loss to undefeated and state-rated Plymouth Salem a week ago Wednesday.

"They stole one from our defense and put it in — and they got fired up," Smith said. "We put ourselves in a position to get beat and we did.

"I think the kids were taking them lightly. They didn't take them seriously enough despite what their coach said."

Smith agreed with Morgan, however, that a game like that is good for the entire league.

"(The Warriors) are definitely learning to play the game, which is good," he said. "It makes the league even stronger yet."

SALEM 7, W.L. CENTRAL 0: The undefeated Rocks extended their string of successes to seven consecutive games Monday.

Jeff Gold paced the victory for No. 3-rated Salem with three goals and two assists. Chris Olson and Greg Christensen scored one goal apiece, and freshman Tom Baker and sophomore Eric Stemmer recorded their first varsity goals.

Billy Joker and John Truskowski contributed two assists each, and goalie Matt Tudor posted his sixth straight shutout. The Rocks haven't been scored on since beating Grand Blanc 3-2 in the season opener.

"Everybody is playing great," coach Ken Johnson said. "They're very businesslike, and they're not getting cocky, which I like.

"Nine of the kids played with the Hornets team during the summer. So they were in plenty of high competition, and some made the Olympic development team. I knew it would be a good bunch of kids."

Churchill stuns No. 1 team

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Paul Kaliszewski was in the right spot at the right time.

His goal with 18:56 left in the match gave Livonia Churchill a 1-0 victory Monday over city rival Stevenson in a battle of state-ranked teams before nearly 1,000 fans.

It was a landmark victory for the visiting Chargers (6-0), who have not beaten the four-time state-champion Spartans since 1981. It was only Stevenson's second loss since the 1984 season.

"I can't say I have a fixation about beating them because we've tied them several times in the past," said Churchill coach John Neff. "We play to win every game, no matter who the opponent is. I've always wanted to beat the best and they've been the best. They're tough and they always have a lot of skills. Win, lose or draw, I love to play them because they're always good."

The veteran Chargers, in the unlikely role of being the favorite because of the return of All-Observer players John Gentile and Brady Ericson, had to dig down deep to pull out the win.

KALISZEWSKI, who did not start, scored the game-winner on a long throw-in from teammate Phil Todino. The Churchil senior controlled the ball in a scramble of bodies just outside the Stevenson net and drilled a shot with his right foot past goaltender Jerry Smolenski.

"He (Kaliszewski) is our 'Jack of All Trades,'" said Neff. "He helped us out the past two weeks at center-halfback. He plays all over the field and he's a tough kid."

With pint-sized Stevenson defender Brian Mitchell hawking the 6-foot-1 Ericson in one matchup, and the Spartans' Travis Roy shadowing Gentile in the middle, the Chargers had to rely on their defensive instincts.

Goalie Jeff Cassar, a sophomore, played an outstanding game.

He made a diving stop on a shot drilled by Stevenson's Doug Morrell early in the second half.

"We rotate Cassar with Jovan Trpovski, every other game" Neff said. "He's young, only a sophomore, but he's obviously coming.

"I was realy proud of our defense, from the goalie and through all 11 players."

THE CHARGERS' defense got caught out of position a few times, but the speed of such players like senior Chris Muzo made up for the mistakes.

"You can't buy speed," Neff said. "Muzo is the fastest of any kid around. He has great anticipation, his cuts in front of people. I thought he had a great game."

Stevenson coach Pete Scerri, whose team fell to 2-1-1 overall, knew the odds were stacked against his team coming in.

"I know they're a better team, but we don't have to take a backseat," said the coach of the defending state champs. "I'm very proud of my team. They gave 100 percent and played their hearts out.

"You can't dominate forever. Actually it's a rebuilding year, but we'll be back."

Scerri said the game-winning goal was "just a mix-up in front of the net."

"It wasn't pretty, it was a mistake, but that's how you get goals," Scerri said. "You can dominate the whole game, but what counts is the ball in the net. Give them credit, they're a good team."

AN EARLY SEASON tournament win by the Chargers during Labor Day weekend in Centerville, Ohio, has proved to be beneficial, according to Neff.

"It was a tournament of champions, with the state champs from Indiana and Ohio," Neff said. "That got us ready to play tough."

The Chargers proved tough on this night and will get another test on Monday, Oct. 2, when they travel to Plymouth Salem, which is also unbeaten thus far.

"We were probably expected to beat Stevenson because they lost a lot of people," Neff said. "We have a lot of seniors (11) and a lot of sophomores (5), but not many juniors (3). We do, however, have some outstanding talent."

On this night, Scerri and his Stevenson team couldn't argue that point.

Missed chances leave SC tied

Schoolcraft sports

Marv Gans, the former athletic director and soccer coach at Schoolcraft College, summed up the present team's problem simply and accurately, although his off-the-cuff comment wasn't directed at the Ocelots.

"You always need a finisher," Gans said midway through SC's game with Macomb Community College, a match expected to have major ramifications in deciding who gets the Region 12 berth in the NJCAA inter-regional tournament. "You can control the ball all over the field, but if you can't finish you can't win."

It's a lesson SC should take to heart. After a slow start, the Ocelots charged back to take control Wednesday. It was a match they should have won by two or three goals; instead, they settled for a 1-1 tie — after missing a wide open net twice.

Which means that, unless the Monarchs or SC (4-0-1 overall, 1-0-1 in the region) — the perennial champs in Region 12 — stumble, the Oct. 14 match between these two will decide the title. And that meeting will be at Macomb.

MACOMB WAS outplayed most of the way against SC Wednesday, but the Monarchs owned the opening 25 minutes and struck first. Chris Caldwell broke down the middle, took possession of the ball inside SC's penalty area and drilled a shot at SC keeper Brad Burgess.

Burgess made the save, diving to his right, but he couldn't control the rebound. Caldwell regained control, went unchallenged around the prone Burgess, and scored.

The goal came with 15 minutes elapsed, and for 10 more SC was in a shell. A change in strategy swung the momentum toward the Ocelots, as coach Van Dimitriou switched Brian Thomas from forward to midfield.

"That was the whole difference," Dimitriou said.

With four midfielders, SC began winning free balls and applying pressure. The Ocelots' only goal, however, didn't come until 14 minutes into the second half, after Dave Hebestreit was decked in front of Macomb's goal and a penalty kick was awarded.

CHRIS SPEEN took the shot and beat a diving David White, the Macomb keeper. The ball deflected off the crossbar and into the net.

Macomb had a golden chance to recapture the momentum when Thomas was given a red card and ejected for what the referee termed "serious foul play." SC played the final 27 minutes of regulation and 30 minutes of overtime with 10 men, but the Monarchs never took advantage.

With 14 minutes left, the Ocelots got a break when Chris Moore got control of a pass behind the Macomb defense. The keeper misplayed the ball and was out of the play — but Moore shot wide.

With less than five minutes left in regulation, Khaled Zeidan rifled a shot from 22 yards out that knocked White off his feet. The rebound went to SC's Bill Werthman — but he, too, dribbled his shot off-target.

"I don't like a tie, but what can you do?" said Dimitriou. "We'll get 'em. All they did was delay the inevitable."

And, sooner or later, some of those chances will be finished. It's inevitable.

Raiders cruise to relays win

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Once coach Pat Duthie got around to making out his lineup, he began to see possibilities for North Farmington in the Western Lakes Activities Association Relays.

The Raiders won five of the 10 events Saturday in the Plymouth Salem pool and won the annual early season event with 265 points over Plymouth Canton (232) and the host Rocks (219).

"I thought we kinda had a shot Friday night and started to get pumped up," Duthie said. "The coaching and competition are real good in this league, and you feel good about doing something.

"I probably feel a little better than (University of Michigan football coach) Bo (Schembechler), but he's still better known and probably makes more money, I'm sure."

North set one of two meet records in the 400-yard medley. Julianne Markey, Anna Palmer, Christie Duthie and Kerry Doran went 4:12.03 to eclipse the mark of 4:15.68 set a year ago by the Raiders.

DUTHIE SAID he was pleased by the performance of Palmer, a freshman who swam the breaststroke, in that event. She also was on the all-freshman unit that won the 200 breaststroke, teaming with Carrie Worthen, Natasha Kuberski and Emily Shively.

The Raiders were entered in the slow heat for the 200 backstroke and 400 individual medley but still won those events. North's other victory came in the crescendo relay.

Markey, Ann Schwartzberg (2), Amy Duthie, Kristen Celko, Worthen, Karrie Kranz, Doran, Nicole Vosganian, Jennifer Wagner, Shively and Christie Duthie comprised those combinations.

"I thought we had five pretty good relays, and five were fortunate to win," Duthie said. "I'm real bubbly about the whole thing because of the way the kids performed and the fun they had doing it.

"We came up with some pretty good combinations, and we got good utilization out of our kids. Some did a great job, but everybody did at least a real good job."

Canton won the meet last year, and coach Hooker Wellman thought the Chiefs had a chance to repeat until he got a look at North's relays.

THE CHIEFS, who won the diving, were second in four events and just missed first place in some cases. Canton might have improved its score by winning some of those races, but the Raiders still would have been tough to catch, according to Wellman.,

"The way the seeds were set up, I thought we had a chance at first place," he said. "I told the kids we had to hold on to the spots where we were seeded.

"Once I realized how strong North Farmington was, I just wanted to hang on to a (second-place) trophy. That's not bad in a league like this."

Becky Hoisington compiled a 192.30 score and Amy Kodrik a 186.05 as the Chiefs won the diving with a 378.35 total.

As for the swimming events, Canton, which had only a scrimmage meet prior to the relays, needs more work, Wellman said.

"We swam lesser than I thought," he said. "Some kids swam faster than last year, but we're just not ready yet. We need more meet situations to find out what we've got."

Until last year when the Chiefs finished second in the WLAA meet at the end of the season, the relays winner had always won the league title.

DUTHIE DOWNPLAYS that aspect, saying it's a confidence builder but means nothing more. The Raiders, however, made believers of Wellman and Salem coach Chuck Olson.

"North Farmington was sixth in the state last year, and I think they're better this year," Wellman said. "They've got all events covered real well."

"North Farmington has taken a step forward as far as being the favorite," Olson said. "They looked real good."

Olson also liked the way his team swam. The Rocks surprised some people by finishing as high as they did, and Olson hopes Salem is there to challenge the Raiders later this season.

"I said one of our goals is the conference championship," he said. "After finishing sixth last year, people might think I'm a little goofy, but maybe (the Rocks) gained a little credibility on Saturday."

Salem's best event was the 400 freestyle in which Cherie Vincent, Candy Bosse, Julie Hickey and Nicole Bosse competed. The Rocks also were among the top four teams in four other events.

"WE JUST SWAM real consistent all the way through," Olson said. "We had a couple girls out (Tammy Hickey and Jane Seidelman), who we hope will be a couple of our better swimmers at the league meet.

"If those two do what we think they're capable, that will make us a little stronger."

Farmington's 200 freestyle team of Katie Hohl, Missy Kendall, Jill Hawkins and Laura Hryczyk had the other meet record. The team won the race in 1:48.30 and clipped the time of 1:50.24 that Livonia Churchill posted three years ago.

Churchill's Michelle Berry, Jenny Ziober, Ellen Lessig and Katie Hammann won the 200 butterfly, and Northville was the 200 medley winner.

Lions varsity posts shutout over Eagles

Eric Burleson and Darren Petras scored touchdowns Sunday as the Canton Lions defeated Ann Arbor East 13-0.

A first-quarter interception by Brett Neiiendam led to Burleson's long run on a sweep. Rick Stults kicked the extra point. Petras scored on a quarterback sneak in the third quarter.

Burleson had 60 yards rushing and Eric Arnold 29. Defensive standouts included Burleson, Stults, Arnold and Chris Mazur.

The Lions junior varsity rallied from a 6-0 deficit to beat the Eagles 12-6. Kevin Kovachevich passed to Joe Anton for the winning score on the last play of the game, and he connected with Matt Bevevino after a fumble recovery by Kevin Grimmett. Adam Brantley was a standout on defense.

Arturo Martin scored two touchdowns for Ann Arbor as the Eagles defeated the freshman Lions 12-0.

Grid experts try to break deadlock

By Dan O'Meara
and Brad Emons
staff writers

IT'S A TIE ballgame in regards to predicting Observerland football games.

Your two area prognosticators, Brad Emons and Dan O'Meara, are deadlocked after three weekends with 31-11 records. A mere one game separated the two last week, and Emons easily made up the difference going 12-3 while O'Meara was 11-4.

Here is the lineup for Week No. 4:

FRIDAY'S GAMES
(All games at 7:30 p.m.)

Liv. Churchill at Ply. Canton: The Chiefs are 3-0 and own a four-game win streak dating back to last season. Churchill, while it's 0-3, has played a murderous schedule that includes Sterling Heights, North Farmington and Harrison. Pick: Canton gets the nod again.

Ply. Salem at Liv. Stevenson: The Spartans (1-2) got their first win last week, but now they face another of the area's unbeaten teams in Salem (3-0). The Rocks haven't allowed a touchdown since the opening game with Trenton. Pick: It might not be a shutout, but Salem goes to 4-0.

Westland John Glenn at W.L. Central: The Vikings (1-2) missed their chance last week when they played Stevenson. Central must hope the Rockets (3-0) have a letdown after their big showdown win over North Farmington last week. Pick: John Glenn blows past the Vikings like Raghib Ismail did the U-M.

Farm. Harrison at Northville: The last time Harrison (3-0) played at Northville (1-2), the Hawks had a closer-than-expected call and escaped with a 7-0 win. That was when Mill Coleman was a sophomore. He's a senior now and Harrison is probably a more explosive team, averaging 46 points per game. Pick: How can anyone go wrong picking the Hawks?

Woodhaven at Garden City: Woodhaven (1-2) lost to Dearborn Edsel Ford in what was considered the early showdown for the title in the Northwest Suburban League. Garden City (0-3) was a one-point loser to Ypsilanti Lincoln last week. Pick: The Warriors snap their two-game skid while extending the Cougars' to four.

Edsel Ford at Redford Union: The Thunderbirds (3-0) are thought to be in the driver's seat for the NSL championship now, and it's the job of Redford Union (1-2) to stop the Deabornites. The Panthers have lost two straight since beating Livonia Stevenson in the opener. Pick: Ford moves down the assembly line of success.

Southgate at Wayne Memorial: In this case, comparative scores say Southgate (1-2) should beat the Zebras (2-1). The Titans beat Wyandotte 10-6 last week after Wayne lost to the Bears 7-0 the previous week. Pick: That analysis has been rejected. The Zebras get the nod.

Lutheran North at Clarenceville: The undefeated football team, under first year coach Vic Balaj, has excited the student body and community at Clarenceville after starting the season with three straight wins. Mount Clemens Lutheran North (2-1) is coming off a last-second win over Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook. Pick: O'Meara says Clarenceville keeps going in the right direction, but Emons has a hunch, and takes North.

SATURDAY'S GAMES
(all games 1 p.m. unless noted)

N. Farmington at Farmington: The Raiders (2-1) will be eager to rebound from their 9-0 loss to Glenn. Farmington (0-3) has yet to score a touchdown and has been shut out in its last two games and the Falcons must face a tough defensive team in North. Pick: The Raiders put one in the win column.

W.L. Western at Liv. Franklin: The loser of this game drops to the cellar in the Western Division. The visiting Warriors are 0-3 while the Patriots are 1-2 overall. Pick: Franklin finds a way to get the job done.

Taylor Truman at Red. Thurston: Both teams are 1-2, and it's conceivable either one could walk away with the victory. Truman's only win was a 14-12 decision over Annapolis, the team that edged Thurtson 6-3 in triple overtime last week. Pick: The proverbial coin is needed for this one. O'Meara says Truman takes it but Emons goes with the Eagles for the third straight week.

Lutheran Westland at G.P. Liggett: Lutheran Westland (2-1) is coming off an impressive win last week, beating Tekonsha 26-0 in a game the Observer said the Warriors would lose. Liggett (2-1) might play a slightly tougher schedule, but Lutheran Westland has won some votes in this corner. Pick: The Warriors win a close one. Emons likes Liggett.

Red. St. Agatha at A.A. Richard, 7:30 p.m.: The Aggies (2-1) usually have success against Gabriel Richard (1-2). St. Agatha has won two in a row, and the question is will coach John Goddard take a dip in Ford Lake, Whitmore Lake or the Huron River should the Aggies win their third straight? Pick: Goddard had better take his bathing suit.

Redford CC vs. Bishop Borgess at Clarenceville High, 7:30 p.m.: The Shamrocks (3-0) are coming off that impressive win over Ann Arbor Pioneer last Friday. Borgess (1-2), hurting at quarterback, gave Dearborn Divine Child a tussle but won't be able to match Catholic Central. Pick: The Shamrocks, who haven't been scored on, start Central Division play with a win.

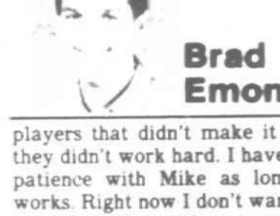
Modano will adjust to regimen of NHL



Brad Emons

HE'S THE CENTER of attention these days in a Minnesota North Stars' uniform.

No. 9 covers the back of his jersey. It's no oridinary number handed out in the National Hockey League.

Big things are expected some day out of 19-year-old Michael Modano, the only son of Westland's Michael and Karen Modano.

It may take awhile before he realizes his vast potential, but Sunday night against the Red Wings in an exhibition game at Joe Louis Arena, you caught a glimpse of what he's capable of doing. You could see he has the tools.

Modano, at 6 feet, 3 inches, 190 pounds, swoops around the ice gracefully. He skates almost effortlessly. He handles the puck like there's a magnet attached.

To old-time hockey fans, Modano reminds some of Gilbert Perreault, the once graceful center of the Buffalo Sabres.

Modano's toughness will be questioned this season, but his playmaking will not.

AND ONCE HE LEARNS to park himself in front of the net, a-la Phil Esposito, Alex Delvecchio or Jean Ratelle, the former No. 1 pick (overall) in the 1988 NHL draft will be a force to be reckoned with.

The same people who criticized Mario Lemieux early in his career will do the same with Modano.

Through the first two exhibition games, Modano was held scoreless, but don't forget he's learning to play with new teammates. It's not the same guys he played with on the Prince Albert Raiders, the Junior A club way up in Saskatchewan in the Western Hockey League. (In 41 games last season, before breaking his wrist, Modano had 39 goals and 66 assists for 105 points.)

Modano's NHL experience is limited, a couple of exhibitions and two playoff games last season to be exact, but Page can already get a read on his young pupil.

"There's no question about his ability," said North Stars head coach Pierre Page after Sunday's 4-1 loss. "All I expect of him is to work hard.

"I CAN THINK of so many great players that didn't make it because they didn't work hard. I have to have patience with Mike as long as he works. Right now I don't want him to pat him on the back too much or get down on him too much."

Modano's baby face reminds you of Delvecchio. His maturity reminds you of an Yzerman.

Having lived over 1,000 miles away in Prince Albert, Modano seems already adjusted to life as a professional.

"It's not really a problem, I've already been three years away from home," said Modano, who met with family and friends afterwards. "Last spring I stayed with (teammate) Brian Bellows (a veteran player). We'd go out a lot with the other guys. That was good for me."

Modano's first game at Joe Louis was something special, he admitted.

His father offered no critiques, only support.

"He lets me do my thing," said the North Stars' rookie. "My dad already had his chance when I was young and now he realizes he can't say much. I can do things on my own."

JIM JAGDFELD/staff photographer

Facing off against the Wings is No. 9, Mike Modano, the No. 1 pick of the 1988 NHL draft by the Minnesota North Stars.

PAGE HAS ALREADY seen some positive signs in the play of this promising rookie.

"It's an adjustment for the kid, how long did it take Steve Yzerman (of the Wings)?" Page said. "So far I think he's been good as the pointman on the power-play. And going five-on-five it's kind of hard to tell. We're still trying to find the right combinations, but he's been playing well, it just hasn't added up in results for him."

When the North Stars start the regular season, Modano could be flanked by veterans Mark Gartner and Basil McRae, the latter whom is considered an enforcer.

On this night, no Red Wing challenged him as he was paired up on a fast-skating line with Russian Helmut Balderis and Gaeten Duchesne. (The night before, however, in an exhibition game in Kalamazoo against the Red Wings, Modano was given a game misconduct in the third period for high sticking.)

Ultimately Modano will be tested, but his opponents will also be on the lookout, not wanting to get burned by this gifted athlete.

"He has moves other people don't have," Page said. "He has eyes other people don't have. He has a shot other people don't have. And he can make passes other people can't make."

MODANO, although young, realizes what is expected of him.

"I need to get more aggressive and go a little more to the net," he said. "And there's a lot more responsibility in our own zone.

"But as long as I work hard and do the things he (Page) wants me to do, he'll give me all the chances I need."

Modano, who was robbed of a goal by the Wings' Randy Hansch in the second period, called his first pro game at Joe Louis "something special."

"It's always nice to come home to your family and friends," said Modano, who got a big kiss from his mother Karen before the team bus pulled away. "It's something I'll look forward to."

Redford revives junior club

hockey

As the final seconds ticked away in Saturday's Redford NACE-Compuware North American Junior Hockey League game at Redford Arena, NACE players on the bench celebrated a thrilling 5-4 victory.

Well, it was only exhibition. But by defeating league power Compuware and stopping 16-year-old sensation Eric Lindros, the NACE team gained a hefty load of confidence while bringing themselves closer together.

And for a young team with players who have been acquainted for all of only five weeks, and a coaching staff that is only five months old, it was exactly the boost they needed in preparation for the 7:30 p.m. start for Saturday's season opener against Chicago at Redford Arena. The two teams meet again at 1 p.m. Sunday. (Tickets are $3 for adults and $2 for students. Children under 6 are free.)

"It proved to our players that if we execute a given system, we can play with anybody and we can beat anybody," Head Coach Kyle Krug said.

CONVINCING the team of winning is a hurdle that only a big victory can clear. But winning has been an ingredient missing in this organization over the past few years.

Formerly the Redford Royals, the 11-year-old organization has had many bright spots, turning out NHL players such as Larry DePalma (Minnesota North Stars) and Kelly Miller (Washington Capitals).

This year, however, the situation has changed. North American Computer Equipment has taken over the sponsorship of the club. Rudy Cifolelli and former Red Wings goalie Eddie Mio, who have coached together for two years, have assumed general managing responsibilities. Krug has moved over from the Compuware program to become the head coach and seven scouts have been added to the staff.

Thus far, the rookie organization has found a renewed spirit.

"MR. CIFOLELLI and Kyle, along with Eddie, Tim Zimmerman and Dave Rosteck (the assistant coaches), have really rejuvenated this hockey club," said center Jason Weber, a Livonia native. "They've changed the whole atmosphere around. The've got us believing we can win."

The new coaching staff has brought a lot more than enthusiasm to the team, however. Discipline on and off the ice has been instituted to uphold Krug's conviction of "making sure the players respect the staff."

"I have talked to some of the veterans who said the big problem last year was discipline," Mio said. "Whether they want it or not, or if they realize it, they're going to get it."

Fans can expect to see a very offensive-minded club on the ice this season. The coaches are emphasizing a heavy skating system, with breaking forwards and forechecking being primary features.

"THE GAME has changed so much. We have to be very offensive to win because everybody else is going to be offensive," Mio said. "We're trying to get them to play an NHL style of game. There will be a lot of skating and shooting."

The team feels it has the personnel to carry out the plans. The first line consists of three players who have the capability to move and shoot the puck.

In the win over Compuware, the line accounted for six points, with Mattis scoring two goals and Hultman scoring the game-winning goal, converting a perfect pass from Bamberger on a two-on-one break.

Mattis and Hultman are among seven returning players which include: Marc Chiappelli, a hard-nosed center who also is the team's assistant captain; Rich Sewell, a big right winger; and Brian Idalski, Dave McLenaghan (Redford Catholic Central High) and Steve Kast (team captain). They form the heart of the defense.

REDFORD ACQUIRED center Tony Molina from the Detroit Junior Wings and goalie Mark Rogers from the Bloomfield Junior A Jets.

Coming from the Midget AAA and Bantam AAA levels are defensemen Fred Hoffman, Chad Ackerman and Doug Smalley, centers Tom MacLean and Weber and forwards Mark Becker and Ron Cifolelli.

In the Midget Entry Draft in June, NACE chose Joe Condino with their top pick, a solid goalie who will start the season opener Saturday.

Rounding out the roster are a couple of talented wingers; Jason Lewis, who spent the last two years at a New Hampshire Prep School and Jim Aldridge, who comes to the team from Miami (Ohio) University.

Combined, this mixed roster forms a team that offers no big names like a Lindros. Instead, they'll come at you with depth.

"We have no superstars, no snipers, like Compuware," Lewis said. "We have a lot of hard workers. Everybody on this team is willing to work 100 percent."

ADDS MIO: "I think the kids that are out on the ice now have a lot of potential. We're not there now. We have a lot of work to do, but we'll get them there."

Getting them there in time to win a division title is the aim of the team. It may seem like a lofty goal for a new organization, but as Cifolelli explains, it's important to reestablish a quality program in Redford.

"The basic goal of the team is to win," he said. "But beyond winning, we want to make a contribution to the NAJHL and the community by improving the caliber of play, which will in turn attract more skill talent. All of this will strengthen hockey in this area."

Mercy records major swim win

Farmington Hills Mercy's first dual meet couldn't have come off better than it did.

The Marlins, ranked No. 6 in Class A in the preseason poll, toppled fourth-ranked and perennial state power Ann Arbor Huron 46-37 at Mercy.

Mercy splashed Huron in the medley relay as Katie Westhoff, Katie Knipper, Liz DeMattia and Karen Neyer stroked a time of 1:55.27.

Westhoff and Knipper also won individual events, Westhoff taking the 100-yard backstroke with a 1:05.19 mark, and Knipper the breaststroke with a time of 1:08.96.

Polly Tenuta and Becky Wiquist also won first-place honors for the Marlins. Tenuta was victorious in the 500 freestyle with a time of 5:28.2, and Wiquist the 200 individual medley with a 2:22.0 time.

In addition, Mercy's B medley relay passed the state cut as Jenny McCombs, Joan Huellmantel, Katie Scanlon and Erika Smith combined for a 2:00.7 time.

Neyer and DeMattia also met the qualifying standards with second-place swims. Neyer went 25.93 in the 50 freestyle and DeMattia 1:01.16 in the butterfly.

The Marlins received additional help from Michelle McCaffrey and Wiquist, both of whom had second-place swims in other events. McCaffrey swam 2:04.63 in the 200 freestyle and Wiquist 56.56 in the 100 freestyle.

Brighton nips Salem

Plymouth Salem dropped a heartbreaker in girls swimming Tuesday when its 400-yard freestyle relay team was edged at the finish.

Brighton posted a 4:05.52 time and the Rocks 4:06.6, giving the host Lady Bulldogs an 83-80 victory. The loss drops Salem to 1-2 and lifts Brighton to 2-1.

"This is just one of those disappointments you learn to live with," Salem coach Chuck Olson said.

The Rocks won the 200-yard medley relay, thanks to the efforts of Cherie Vincent, Kristin Stackpoole, Andrea Alex and Nicole Bosse who posted a time of 2:02.1.

Vincent and Stackpoole also won individual events. Vincent won the individual medley (2:24.2) and the 500 freestyle (5:41.5). Stackpoole, with a time of 1:09.8, won the backstroke.

Jennifer Ezzo finished first in diving for Salem with a score of 181.6.

Coaches: call in times

Observerland girls swim coaches are asked to phone Plymouth Canton coach Hooker Wellman with their best times for individuals and relays. Wellman can be reached at 451-6600, Ext. 313, from 2:30-3 p.m. during the week. The times will then be forwarded for statewide listing, according to Wellman.

We Need Volunteers Who Love Happy Campers!

Sun Deer® campers are happy campers and it's no wonder because most severely asthmatic kids are forced to spend their summers indoors. At Camp Sun Deer® asthmatic kids ages 9-12 participate in a variety of outdoor activities, but they can't do it without your help. The limitations and doubts they face can be diminished by a volunteer who cares. Your participation at Camp Sun Deer® can make all the difference in an asthmatic child's summer.

Sculpture takes the spotlight

By Corinne Abett
staff writer

IF THE PURPOSE of the 1989 Michigan Outdoor Sculpture Exhibition in Southfield is to give recognition to the artists, then mission accomplished.

Not only are the 32 works on display in the outdoor pavilion behind the Southfield Civic Center through Nov. 15, the artists have been wined and dined, saluted and applauded. Three — Michael Hall, Sandra Osip and Jon Rush, received monetary awards.

The artists were subjected to a lot of handshaking and verbal tributes, private, and public. They were all called upon to stand up and take a bow at last Thursday's award ceremony. The limelight was strange to some, embarrassing to others.

But, sculpture was the talk of the town — and that's a refreshing and exciting phenomenon. What's more, the Business Conscrtium for the Arts, BCA, in other words private business people and representatives from corporations, made it happen. The Consortium sponsored the event, the city of Southfield hosted it.

And if one person deserves a standing ovation, it's Louis Redstone, president of the BCA, a perfect example of the adage that if you want something done, ask the busiest person you know. Not only has Redstone, with his wife Ruth, written books outdoor sculpture throughout the world, he heads the architectural firm that carries his name and currently has a one-man watercolor exhibit at Crooked Tree Gallery of Petosky.

THE EXHIBIT HAS a healthy cross section of sculpture, from imagery as easy to understand and appreciate as "Flying Wild Geese" by Marshall Fredericks, "Woman Waiting I" by Norma Penchansky-Glasser and "Continuence" by Edward Chesney to contemporary statement pieces such as Michael Hall's 14-foot-high, "Rose and Briar" and Todd Erickson's "Ancestral Arch."

Hall's contemporary parallel to the story of Zeus visiting the nymph Dana in the guise of a gold shower, is a condemnation of a trash-overloaded society. Erickson's steel piece is a continuation of his fascination with growth, decay and regeneration.

There are colorful sculptures to simply enjoy and later recall with a smile — Jerome Kamrowski's whimsical and impressive, "Southwind," and Pamela Stump's pleasant entrapment, "Crazy Capers.," Others such as Joseph Wesner's "Pherein XX" and Sergio DeGiusti's "Stela I" deal with weighty concepts about life on earth and the human condition.

The workmanship of Sandra Osip's award-winning bronze is beautiful; the impact of such a seemingly simple form is amazing. Tom Rudd's "Garden with Fish and Grebe," is a world unto itself and Hanna Stiebel's aluminum "Equilibrium," seems to tap into unknown force fields.

Sue Linburg's "Porta Del' Oscurita," a magnificent, steel archway, and Morris Brose's powerful "Monolith," rightfully drew favorable comments from many viewers who found them compelling.

THERE ARE NO BAD pieces in this show, it's more a case of good, better, best. Jan van der MarcK, curator of 20th century art at Detroit Institute of Arts selected the award winners. Hall and Osip received $1,000 recognition awards donated by the Arts Foundation of Michigan.

Rush received a $500 recognition award from the BCA for his cor-ten steel work, "Stack II."

Bill Stone rests a hand on his "Trestle Piece" of limestone and wood. All of his shapes, in some way or other, relate to the human form.

Returning home — in style

By Corinne Abett
staff writer

The Michigan Outdoor Sculpture II exhibit at Southfield Civic Center through Nov. 14, brought sculptor Bill Stone back and closer to home turf than any of the artists.

Stone, in this show for the first time, grew up about a mile from where his limestone and oak, "Trestle Piece" is exhibited. First time he'd shown a major piece in his childhood stomping ground and he looked pleased at the idea. Stone, whose studio is in Fremont (about 50 miles north of Grand Rapids) said, "When I grew up in Lathrup Village — it wasn't even Lathrup Village then, it was Lathrup Town Site — this was all acres and acres of fields. I went to Annie Lathrup grade school then to Highland Park High School and then changed to Berkley High School."

While Stone is only is his early 50s, when he was playing in the fields were no high schools in Southfield, no high rises, no shopping malls.

"It was country," he said.

Still, Stone didn't spend his time reminiscing while he was in town for the opening ceremonies for the exhibition. He and his wife, Sandra Bartholmey, were visiting relatives (his father, Richard Stone, 91, still lives in Lathrup Village and his sister Peg Merritt lives in Southfield) meeting old friends, making new ones and strolling hand in hand through the outdoor exhibit in last Thursday's rain.

He said of his rather unobtrusive, beautifully shaped work, "I envisioned it in a small atrium or garden. Yes, they are abstract shapes, but they seem to have come out as my abstract shapes. And all my abstract shapes have a reference to the human body. . . I do mostly stone carving. My first love is stone carving. I've done portrait heads and wall reliefs in plaster that (pause) might turn into bronze. I work in wood, but essentially I'm a carver. Stone to me has this relationship to history — especially limestone — the material of all of the great cathedrals."

Stone completed his bachelor's in fine arts at Wayne State University in 1962. He had gone to University of Michigan and Eastern Michigan earlier, dropped out and traveled in Europe for a time before enrolling in fine arts at Wayne. A professor, whom he remembered as "Zambrisky,"was influential in his decision to become a sculptor.

Artists revive the fine art of furniture

The Janis Wetsman collection of contemporary furniture at Artpack Services, 31505 Grand River, Door # 10, Farmington, presents works by four outstanding East Coast craftspersons: Dale Broholm, John Dunnigan, Charles Crowley and Jamie Robertson.

These beautiful works — tables, chairs, cabinets and accessories — as much art as furniture, will be on display through Wednesday, Oct. 4. At a luncheon for interior designers and members of the trade, Wetsman illustrated how prices for such pieces have appreciated dramatically in just a few years, predicting that those purchased now will probably follow the same pattern.

"Contemporary furniture pieces are the antiques of the future," she said.

All four are experienced, award-winning artists. Each has a highly individual, easily recognizeable style.

Broholm, who has been designing and creating wooden furniture for the past seven years, combines traditional woodworking techniques with contemporary and historically based design techniques.

Dunnigan specializes in fine, functional furniture. He likes to use exotic woods in combination with metals, plastics, marble, glass and textiles.

Crowley who has a degree in metalsmithing, is known for his furniture, vessels, progressive metal

Double honors

Palette Guild winners get a 2nd invite

Winners in the annual Palette Guild exhibition, now under way in the Livonia City Hall, scored twice.

In addition to winning top honors for their work, the four winners have been invited to hang their work in the Muccioli Studio Gallery in Detroit during December.

That honor also means that their work will be part of Detroit's "art crawl," a fun event that draws hundreds of spectators to galleries throughout the city via city buses.

Best of show honors this year went to Callie Thomson, for a mixed media, "Flowers and Ribbons."

Thomson, herself, went on to win additional honors when she tied with herself for the Lillian Kortilla award for a mixed media, "Sea Garden" and a collage, "Rock Garden II." Kortilla is a dead guild member in whose honor the cash award is presented each year.

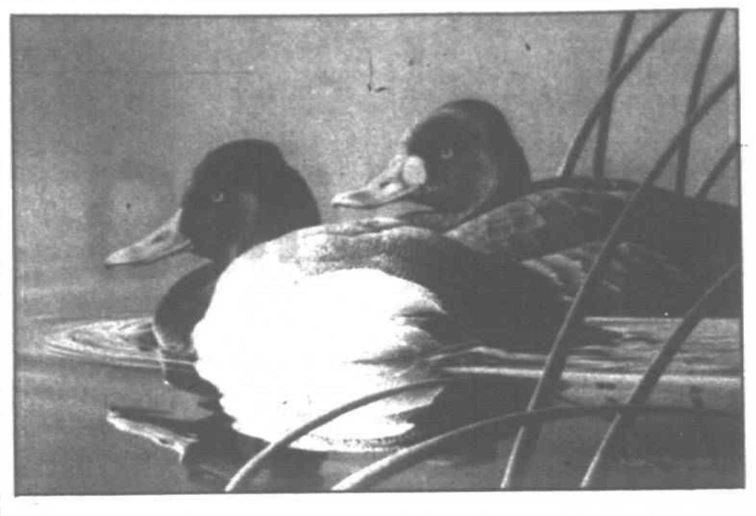
FIRST-PLACE HONORS went to Marlene Zazoulinsky for her acrylic, "Quiet Time." Second-place winner was Shirley Ceasar, with "Hats Galore," a watercolor; and third place went to Anna Mary Vollick, for her watercolor, "Lost Hours."

Popular choice award, chosen by those in attendance at the opening night reception, was shared by two members: long-time Livonia favorite Marie Tuthill, for an oil, "Flower Garden," and Evelyn Henry, for an acrylic, "Day's End."

Honorable mentions went to Anna Helkowsky, for an oil, "Sycamore;" Evelyn Henry, for an acrylic, "Day's End;" Claire Cosgrove, for oil/collage, "Symphony;" Melanthee Karagas, for an oil, "The Swan;" Therese H. Dabos, for pen-and-ink, "Seashells;" and Hedwig Reineke, for watercolor/collage, "Sunset in the Mountain."

THE GUILD'S WORK is on display in the lobby of the Livonia City Hall and can be seen daily during normal business hours. Sponsoring the show was the Livonia Arts Commission.

Exhibit chairman was Vollick. Committee members were Henry, Ramona Youngblood, Dorothy Rohe, Betty Nuttall, Gloria Millers, Mirga Michaels and Vada Stroup. Judging the show was Anna Muccioli, Detroit gallery owner and well-known artist.



Duck stamp artist coming

Neal Anderson, 1989 federal duck stamp designer, will make guest appearances at two area Wild Wings galleries. The first appearance will be 5-9 p.m. Friday, Oct. 6, in the Birmingham gallery and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 8, in the Plymouth gallery. Appearing with him will be well-known Michigan nature artist Cathy McClung. During Anderson's visit, he will autograph the federal duck stamp print and his new limited edition print releases. A poster of the federal duck stamp image also will be available. The Plymouth gallery is at 975 W. Ann Arbor Trail.

Comics filled a void then — and now

Victoria Diaz

I WILL tell you a secret if you promise never to breathe a word of it to another living soul.

Late at night, when my family is in bed and most of the neighbors seem to be asleep, I read comic books.

I know, I know. Somebody who can remember when Sparkle Plenty was a baby should have long since grown bored with such "trivialities."

Well, I haven't.

Though there are a few of these pulpy little publications I don't care for much, my persistently enthusiastic interest runs the gamut from things like Casper, the Friendly Ghost, to The Amazing Spider-Man and his ilk, to Archie Andrews and all the ageless gang at Riverdale High.

I guess you could say I'm serious about comic books.

OBVIOUSLY, THIS has been going on for awhile. When I was a kid, I simply couldn't get enough of comic books. I can remember many times after "lights out" at our house, pulling the covers over my head, flicking on a trusty little pen light I kept under my pillow for just such occasions and continuing to read and re-read the latest adventures of Sheena, Queen of the Jungle, even though my mother had threatened my life if she ever caught me "doing such a thing AGAIN!"

"You've got to get out of the house more," she used to say to me, exasperated, as I sat around, lay around, stood around, with my nose in a comic book.

So, I'd gather up my reading material and take it outside to read.

Aside from school books, there were not a lot of "real" books in my home during a good part of my childhood. Until I entered my teens, no public library existed in the small town where I grew up, and the school library was off-limits to anyone below the sixth grade.

Bookstores, of course, were nonexistent there (they still are), but, had there been dozens of them, it would have made little difference in my life, since I could have rarely afforded to buy books, anyway.

COMICS WERE another thing, however. They only set me back 10 cents apiece, and dimes were not so terribly hard to come by as dollars.

So, longing to read, I bought comic books and eventually owned a pretty impressive collection of around 500 or so by the time I was 12 years old.

Then I fell in love and my collection got messed up a little. Not surprisingly, the object of my affection was an avid comics fan, too, and like me, his favorite pastime was reading comic books. I can remember spending an entire afternoon once, doing nothing but delving through our respective collections and negotiating serious trades.

Somehow, I ended up with a lot of Roy Rogers and Gene Autry comics — things I cared for very little. And he ended up with some of my favorite issues of Captain Marvel, Wonder Woman, and the aforementioned Sheena. Love can make you pretty stupid, I guess.

ANYWAY, THAT, was then and this is now. And here I am, with this abiding predilection.

What to do?

I've decided to indulge it.

On Sunday, Oct. 1, I'm going to visit a comics convention (or "comcon," as they say). After I pay my $1.50 admission at the door of the American Legion Hall at 12 Mile and Rochester Roads in Royal Oak, I'm going to step inside, and lose myself in all the magic of 100,000 comic books.

I'm also hoping to meet and talk with others who share my enthusiasm. Maybe I'll run into somebody who will be impressed by the fact that one of my dress designs once appeared in an issue of Katy Keene Comics (Believe me, this is not something that comes up often in normal, everyday conversation).

Maybe I'll run into somebody who remembers Red Lantern or Bucky Bug or maybe even Bumbazine.

WHO KNOWS — I might even make a very modest investment or two, although I certainly won't be bringing home any mind-boggling financial treasure like the 1939 Detective Comics No. 27 (containing the first episode of "Batman") that sold somewhere last year in near-mint condition for a cool $35,000. (If we think positively, and assume that No. 27 was sold by its original owner, that's not a bad return on a dime.)

Really though, my reasons for taking in the comcon will have nothing at all to do with money, of course. I'm just going for the pure pleasure of hanging out in close proximity to 100,000 copies of a unique form of literature that went a long way toward nurturing in a young, voracious reader a lifelong enchantment with books of every kind.

Retirement party calls for special colors

Q: A number of us are getting together to give a retirement party for a very dear friend. I'm in charge of decorations and would like to achieve a look that compliments his sophistication and dignity, yet be festive enough for a party. The room we've rented for the occasion has a brass chandelier hanging from a high ceiling, but otherwise has no decorative features.

A: My suggestion is to use a blue, green, and gold accented color theme. Essentially, green signifies dynamic balance and growth; blue, calm and reason; and gold, hope and aspiration. In short, these colors represent ideally what a retirement is supposed to be. Something not mourned as an end, but as starting a new phase to a person's life.

In stores that sell party decorations you should be able to find table runners in 100 foot lengths, paper plates, napkins, streamers, and other decorations in the bright blue, green, and gold. Because of the more sophisticated imagery, I wouldn't use balloons, but the paper spheres instead.

Use the table runner also as swags, anchored from the chandelier, and attached to each of the four corners of the room, thereby creating a tent-like effect. Alternate your tables with blue or green covers, using the blue napkins on the green, and green napkins on the blue table cover. Yellow chrysanthemums would make appropriate centerpieces, and each table should be strewn with yellow, blue and green confetti. If your budget allows, use sequins instead at the guest of honors table. And have fun.

Q: Our 10-year-old son loves to ride his bicycle with his friends in the neighborhood. Even though he's not permitted to go out on any major road, I'm still concerned about his safety riding on local streets. Aside from the reflectors on his bicycle, are there any other precautions we could take that involve color?

A: Wearing a bright yellow jacket or shirt will help to make your son much more visible than any other color, especially if the garment incorporates a black, red, or navy stripe on the back. With brilliant colors so popular among the very young today, this coloration shouldn't be too difficult to locate, or make him feel out of place.

The high visibility of yellow is one of the reasons it serves in so many products where safety is a key consideration, such as school buses and life jackets.

Also be aware the time for greatest precaution is around sunset, when all color contrasts tend to blurr, or are minimized to varying degrees.

Q: As a younger woman, I had a strong attraction to bright orange and I used it a lot in my decorating and clothing. Over the years my color preferences shifted to browns, and now my favorite color is dark red. I think of myself as having a fairly happy life, raising a family with the help of a devoted husband. Only recently have the children left home for jobs out of state. Is there something significant in this shift in color preferences?

A: What you are experiencing, in part, is very normal and should be welcomed as inherent symbols of psychological maturation. However, you should not discount the influence of highly popular color trends in fashion and home furnishings that feature certain colors. It sounds to me as if your preferences were shaped by both elements.

Oranges, for example, were very popular when you were a younger woman. The color is, nonetheless, a reflection of an outgoing and friendly attitude, and very appropriate to a younger person's development. Whereas the brown, which followed the oranges in popular trends, is an evolution of orange into greater sense of depth of emotions.

briefly speaking

● AUDITIONS

● The Livonia Civic Ballet Company is holding auditions for the 1989-90 season which will include performances of the classic ballets, "The Nutcracker" and "Cinderella."

Openings exist for female dancers age 10 and up and male dancers age 16 and up. A minimum of three years experience is necessary. Auditions will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 24 at Miss Jean's Dance Arts, 32625 Seven Mile Road, Livonia. For more information, all 464-7310.

● Boys and girls between the ages of 7 and 11 are invited to audition with the Ann Arbor Ballet Theater for children's roles in the full-length Nutcracker ballet to be performed Dec. 15 with the Plymouth Symphony. Auditins will be held in Dance Unlimited, 757 W. Ann Arbor Trail from 4-6 p.m. Saturday, sept. 23.

Auditions and rehearsals will be under the direction of Barbara Raschke of Dance Unlimited and Carol Sharp, director of the Ann Arbor Ballet Theater. For more information, call 459-5920.

● PLATE ARTIST TO VISIT

Sandra Kuck, recently awarded "artist of the year" for the sixth consecutive year at the International Plate and Collectible Show, will make a guest appearance at Georgia's Gift Gallery, 575 Forest Avenue, Plymouth from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 30. She will autograph her creations. There is no admission charge. For more information, call 453-7733.

● FALL FLEECE FAIR

The Spinners' Flock, a Washtenaw County based handspinner's guild, will have its annual Fleece Fair at Matthaei Botanical Gardens, 1800 N. Dixboro Road, Ann Arbor from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 24.

The event will feature Michigan wool, mohair and angora as well as blends and exotic fibers. In addition to fleeces, rovings and batts for spinners, quilters and other fiber artists, there will be handspun yarns in natural and dyed colors. Finished goods including sweaters, mittens, hats and woven pieces will also be offered.

Demonstrations will take place throughout the day and individuals wanting to try their hands at spinning will be encouraged to do so. Experienced knitters will be available to give advice and recommendations for adapting handspun yarn to commercial knitting patterns. There is no admission charge for the event.

● TIVOLI FAIR

The Northville Historical Society will hold its annual Tivoli Fair, a juried arts and crafts show, on Friday, Sept. 29 and Saturday, Sept. 30. Hours are 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday. Admission is $2 with $1 for children under six. Proceeds from the fair are used for the restoration of Mill Race Village, Northville's historic village, where the fair is held. Over 100 exhibitors will be in attendance.

● EXHIBITORS SOUGHT

Crafters are being sought for the Delta Kappa Gamma Craft fall show, Saturday, Nov. 18. For more information, call 451-6600, Ext. 216.

Developers, golfers find good lies in 'hazardous' living

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Residential communities built around golf courses, popular in resort areas of the South and in northern Michigan, are sprouting in suburbia.

Two projects are well under way — The Heathers Club in Bloomfield Hills and Country Club Village of Northville.

A third, Country Club of Plymouth in the far western reaches of Plymouth Township, is on the drawing board.

A fourth probably will be built on 1,000 acres owned by Wayne County in Northville Township roughly bounded by Sheldon, Beck, Five Mile and Six Mile, site of the former Child Development Center.

So what gives?

People wanting more space where they live and play.

And developers looking to build more units than they otherwise could under existing lot limitations or local land use regulations in exchange for providing more open space on a site.

LARRY GARON, executive vice president of Real Estate Interests Inc., bought the 18-hole Dun Rovin Golf Course in 1986. The property now is evolving into Country Club Village of Northville.

"This is something we've felt in our corporation three or four years or more, that people, both parents of post-war children and their children, are no longer excited by cookie cutter subdivisions," Garon said.

"They're more excited by open space communities — a golf course, woods, a beautiful lake or all three. If you can provide a more unstructured community . . then you've got a much better chance of appealing to the market," he said.

Garon and Robert Halso, president of Pulte Homes of Michigan, plan to build upwards of 640 condominium units around nine re-designed holes at the course.

HAD GARON NOT kept part of the golf course as open space, he would have needed a rezoning permit to build the condos — a time consuming and unlikely possibility given the scope of the project, said Carol Maise, Northville's planning director.

Paul Robertson Jr., president of Robertson Brothers, built a nine-hole golf course from scratch as part of a 439-unit condominium complex, The Heathers Club, on the site of an old gravel pit in Bloomfield Hills.

"That's the reason I did the golf course," Robertson said. "It looked like a mine field."

It also happened to be a good way to incorporate protected wetlands as ponds on the site.

Brothers Marcello and Silvio Scappaticci intend to build 461 housing units, detached homes and condos, and an 18-hole golf course in Plymouth Township.

They haven't completed the planning approval process yet and probably won't break ground until next year, Marcello said.

GOLF COURSES will be used differently.

The 3,165-yard, par 35 course at the Country Club Village will continue to be open to the public. Condo residents may get a discount on green fees, but that hasn't yet been determined, Garon said.

The 2,643-yard, par 35 course at The Heathers will become a private club next spring with memberships priced at $4,000 to $4,500, Robertson said.

In neither of those developments will condominium association dues support the golf courses, Garon and Robertson said.

The course at Country Club of Plymouth, projected at 6,474 yards and par 70, also will be private, Scappaticci has said.

Bill Newcomb, golf architect for Scappaticci, said he doesn't expect that course will be maintained with condo association dues either.

IT TAKES more than a few green fees to buy into a residential golf community.

A two-bedroom unit at Country Club Village starts at $179,000 and can go as high as $260,000. The least expensive condo at The Heathers now sells for $135,900. The most expensive unit goes for $290,000.

But apparently there's no shortage of buyers. Some 165 units reportedly have been sold at The Heathers Club, about 95 at Country Club Village.

"The move-down, empty-nester is the primary target we're going after," said Dale Goodnight, a sales agent for Vintage Homes (Pulte) at Country Club Village. "I would say probably 90 percent are golfers."

Economics, lifestyle sway buyers

Bill Newcomb, a golf course architect from Ann Arbor, said 90 percent of his business today is combination golf course-residential communities.

"Economics simply aren't there for a golf course per se once the land is purchased and clubhouse built," he said.

Newcomb designed new courses at The Heathers Club in Bloomfield Hills, Square Lake Road between Adams and Opdyke, and Country Club Village of Northville, Haggerty between Five and Six Mile.

His firm also has been selected to design the course at Country Club of Plymouth on Ann Arbor Road between Ridge and Napier.

Residential golf communities became popular in the South because people enjoyed the amenities of living on or near the lush grounds, Newcomb said. An extended golf season didn't seem to be as big a factor.

"I think what you see happening is the same living environment is starting to take place in the north," he added.

Some condominium buyers who are moving into the Country Club Village would seem to bear out Newcomb's assessment.

"I'm not a golfer, but I felt good — like living on a resort," said Jan Davis. "It feels like I'm on vacation all the time."

OTHERS INDICATED that economics played a big part in their decision to buy near a golf course.

"The golf course didn't really pertain to us," said Sue Klevering. "We liked the models and got a good deal on it. We knew they were just going to go up in value, and interest rates were down so we bought. Very quickly."

Henry, a retiree who declined to give his last name, echoed the sentiments of both Davis and Klevering.

"I liked the area," he said. "For resale value, I thought the golf course was good even though I don't play golf.

Then there are the golfers.

"We moved back into the area from Atlanta," said Pat, who also declined to give her last name. "I didn't want to shovel snow. My husband said he wasn't ready for a condo — until he saw the golf course."

Bob Halso, president of Pulte Homes of Michigan, explained the growing attraction of residential golf communities from a builder's perspective.

"The whole essence of the community is the feel of a golf course, open space, greenery," he said. "Most people would prefer to find something like this where they've lived all their lives rather than move up north."

J&J Slavik names Turner president

By Doug Funke
staff writer

The selection of Jay S. Turner as president and chief executive officer of J&J Slavik Inc. signals that the Farmington Hills land development company is exploring the possibility of building more congregate apartments for senior citizens.

Turner, 33 of Rochester Hills, replaced Richard F. Corace as president and CEO at Slavik Aug. 1. Corace has moved to Slavik's affiliated firm, Signature Communities Inc. in Naples, Fla.

"I think you can assume . . . we'll continue to be involved in senior housing," Turner said. "I think the company has made a commitment to try and satisfy . . . housing needs of the elderly."

In addition to Turner's appointment, Patrick M. O'Keefe, 34 of Troy, was named vice president and chief financial officer at Slavik.

Ultra Ventures Inc., founded by Turner in 1986, became a wholly owned subsidiary of J&J Slavik Inc., and Turner became an equal partner in J&J Slavik Inc. when he became CEO.

TURNER BUILT a reputation for developing senior citizen housing at Ultra Ventures. His projects include Liberty Park in Westland and Carriage Park in Canton.

J&J Slavik has participated in the building of Brookhaven in Ann Arbor, Shorehaven in Sterling Heights, Westhaven in Westland and Kinghaven in Riverview — all senior congregate housing projects.

Those six projects translate into some 730 rental units.

Congregate housing enables senior citizens to live in their own units that include kitchens, but also take advantage of options like meals in a common dining area, housekeeping and medical programs at extra costs if they so desire.

"Certainly senior housing is something we're very familiar with and, with the senior population growing, I think it's a hot market," O'Keefe said. "Nationally, the jury's still out on whether seniors will accept it."

J&J SLAVIK will continue to be involved in non-exclusive senior housing projects like the Grayhaven apartments and townhouses and the renovation of the Stearns Building into loft apartments in Detroit, Turner added.

J&J Slavik also is one of several bidders to develop nearly 1,000 acres owned by Wayne County at the former Child Development Center in Northville Township.

The company has some 30 joint ventures and $150 million worth of developments under way, including residental lot and home developments, hotels, luxury condominiums, and apartment buildings in addition to senior housing.

The relationships between the four partners at J&J Slavik — Turner, O'Keefe, Joseph F. Slavik, founder and secretary, and J. Ronald Slavik, president and Joseph's son — go back at least several years.

The senior Slavik invested in Turner's company Ultra Ventures Inc. at its inception in 1986. In return, Turner agreed to serve as a consultant and adviser to Slavik's company.

O'Keefe, a certified public accountant and partner at Deloitte, Haskins & Sells in Detroit, had worked on Slavik's account for several years.

"I THINK it's important to note the change in J&J has been a planned one. We've been working on it six months," Turner said.

"Thirty to 50 percent of our purchases are cash. It's unbelievable," he said.

About half of the buyers are retirees, many of whom probably will head to warmer climates in winter, Goodnight said.

Sharon Bunnell, a saleswoman for America's Homes (Real Estate Interests), said she's sold units to families with children at Country Club Village.

"One had a 2-year-old, one had three children — the oldest 8; another just had a new baby," she said.

Robertson said he doesn't expect to see many children living at The Heathers.

"I HAVE a 22-year-old single woman, an 85-year-old widow and everyone in between," he said. "I have something for everybody. Some may need to get a roommate, but I have something."

Scappaticci estimated that housing in his development will start at $375,000 and go all the way up to $600,000.

One reason that new housing costs so much now is that development costs — especially land — are so high.

IF YOU WOULDN'T BUY THIS WITHOUT A WARRANTY,
WHY WOULD YOU BUY THIS WITHOUT ONE?
After all, a new house is the biggest purchase of your life. Unfortunately, most people don't know enough about building standards to inspect behind the new appliances and under the carpeting to figure out if the job's been done right.
And to add to the problem, while a blender, toaster, and other small appliances come with a written warranty, many homes don't! That's why you should look for a HOW builder.
The Home Owners Warranty symbol is a sure sign of a builder's commitment to quality construction and customer satisfaction. Every HOW Builder is subject to screening requirements covering his technical competence, financial stability and customer service.
So a HOW Builder makes two important commitments to you. First, he promises to do every job according to HOW's nationally-recognized construction standards. And second, he stands behind his work by carrying a 10-year insured protection plan. It's just the kind of assurance you need for the biggest investment of your life.
To find a truly professional, quality-conscious builder, look for the HOW logo as you shop for a new home.
HOW benefits apply only if the Builder properly enrolls the home and is in good standing with HOW at the time of settlement. See the sample warranty insurance documents for details.

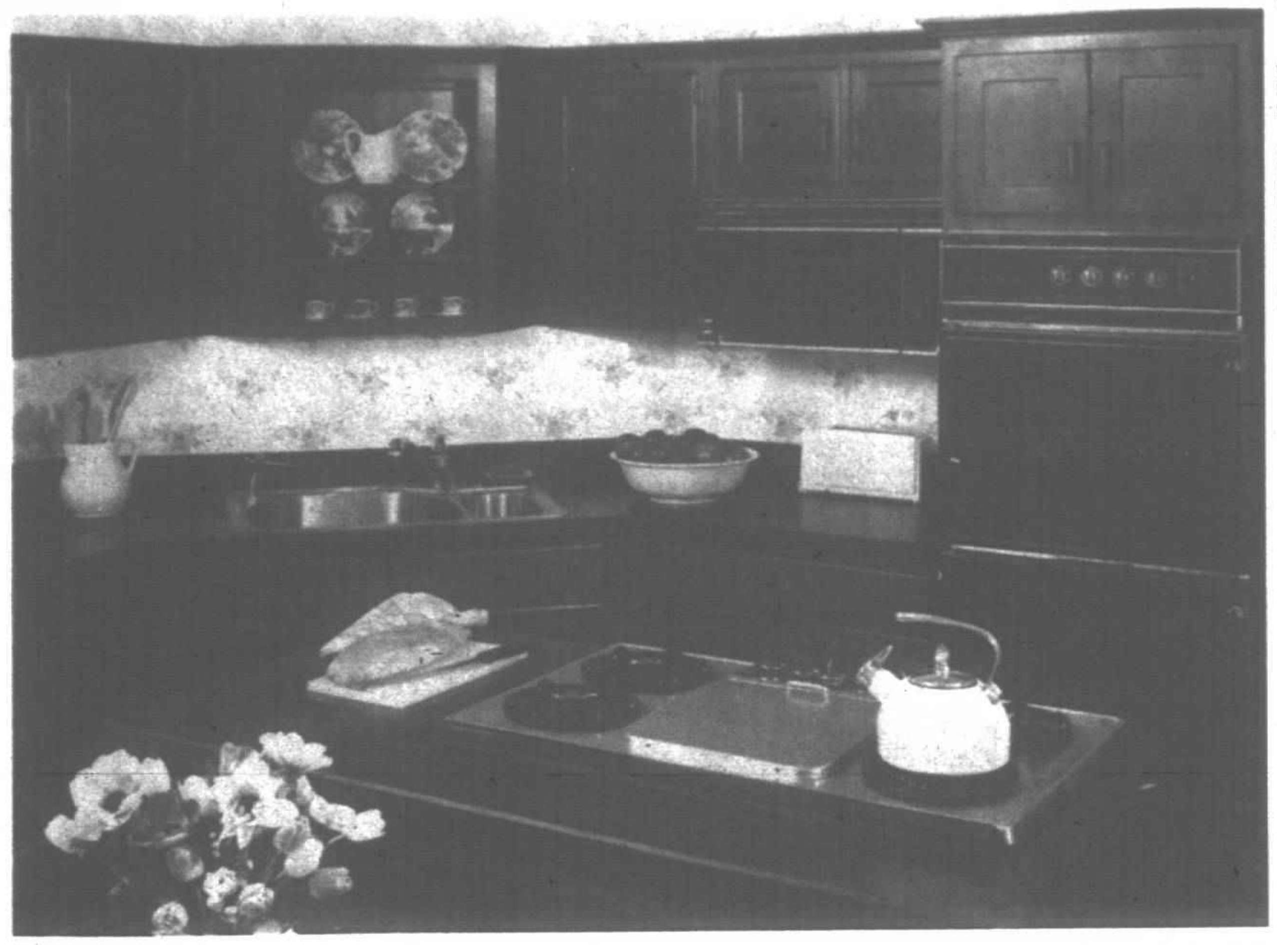
Green makes a comeback

Green is making a new splash on the kitchen design palette. But today's shades are far from the institutional or avocado hues that may come to mind.

In a kitchen featured in Woman's Day magazine, the dominant features are cherry cabinets and a hunter green countertop that was added to balance the rich cherry tones. Green and white floor tiles and a green dining set are complemented by floral wallpaper and lacy half-curtains.

The functional strength centers on an island with a cooktop stove and a downdraft vent system. Without a hood to hang down and obscure the view, guests or family members can sit at the table while the cook prepares the meal without missing out on the conversation.

The layout features a sink in an angled corner, a microwave oven, double wall oven, dishwasher and a lightweight table that can be moved to provide additional workspace. The effect is that the different zones of the kitchen — preparation, consumption and cleanup — all work together. The dishwasher doesn't drive people away, the microwave is installed in the cabinets to preserve counterspace, and the cooktop is centered where the cook can check it frequently.



Hunter green countertops and cherry cabinets harmonize in this kitchen, which was built for a family that likes to cook.

Home buyer seminar set

Looking to become a homeowner soon but still in the dark over points, title insurance and the other technical aspects of real estate transactions?

The Western Wayne Oakland County Board of Realtors will sponsor a free home buying seminar at 7 p.m. Tuesday at the Holiday Inn Livonia West, 17123 Laurel Park Drive at Six Mile and I-275.

"This will be an informational, not a selling, session in which we'll have experts discussing all the steps involved from saving for the downpayment to closing," said Eric J. Hunt, president of the board.

"The sessions are not restricted to first-time buyers. Anyone planning a move can gain new insight into the home buying process from the financial, legal and real estate information to be presented.

"With home ownership the largest investment ever made by the average American, we think it important that they be properly prepared to examine the many alternatives facing them in today's residential market."

The seminar is expected to last about two hours and will include a question-and-answer period. Advance reservations are necessary by calling 478-1700. A similar seminar held by the board earlier in the year drew more than 500 persons.

Fixed, adjustable mortgages require study

For some, selecting a mortgage is as mysterious and as infuriating a process as trying to keep track of the pea in a shell game. How do you know which one is right for you?

According to the Farmington Hills-based Michigan Association of CPAs, the key to choosing a mortgage is taking the time to understand how mortgages differ. In most cases, you will have to decide between a fixed- or adjustable-rate mortgage.

Fixed-rate mortgages feature monthly payments that remain the same over the life of the mortgage — usually ranging from 15 to 30 years. At the start of the loan, the payment goes almost entirely toward interest, which is tax deductible. In time, a greater percentage of the monthly payments will go toward the principal, thus increasing your equity in the property.

The primary advantage of a fixed-rate mortgage is its predictability. If your monthly payment is $1,000 today. It will be $1,000 20 years from now, and in 20 years, $1,000 will seem a lot less than it does today. The cost of this financial security is usually an interest rate that is two or more percentage points higher than those available on variable or adjustable loans.

When you apply for a fixed-rate mortgage, you generally have to decide between a 15- or 30-year term. Spreading the mortgage over 30 years means smaller monthly payments, which may enable you to qualify for a somewhat higher mortgage. As a general rule, the payments on a 30-year loan with an interest rate of 10 percent will be about 20 percent less than those on an equivalent 15-year loan. But if you can afford the higher payments on a 15-year mortgage, you can save a dramatic amount in interest costs and you will own your own home, free and clear, in 15 years.

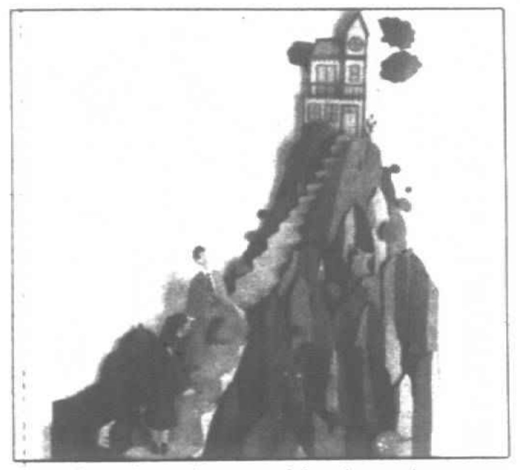
WHETHER A SHORTER- or longer-term mortgage is preferable depends entirely on an individual's particular goals and finances. For example, a young professional who plans to sell her home within a relatively short time should probably opt for a loan that demands smaller monthly payments. A couple in their 40s or 50s who want a mortgage free home for their retirement years should seriously investigate the advantages of a short-term mortgage.

Some CPAs argue that disciplined investors may be able to equal or exceed the amount of interest saved on a 15-year loan by intelligently investing the amount saved each month under a 30-year loan. Also, because a larger proportion of the payments on a 30-year mortgage go toward interest, the tax benefit of such loans is much greater.

In the first months of 1989, adjustable-rate mortgages (ARMs), accounted for approximately 60 percent of all new mortgages. The reason for the popularity of these mortgages is easy to understand. ARMs have an initial interest rate that is two to three percentage points lower than those on fixed-rate mortgages. Over the life of the loan, the interest rate periodically increases or decreases based upon a particular index selected by the lender. In most cases, ARMs are indexed to either one-year Treasury Bills or to the prime rate.

BEFORE YOU CHOOSE an ARM, do a fair amount of comparison shopping. Pay particular attention to the caps or limits on how high the interest rate can climb. Most lenders limit the annual adjustment to one or two percentage points, with the total interest rate guaranteed not to increase more than five or six points over the life of the loan.

ARMs are particularly attractive to those who are confident that interest rates will decline or that their own salaries will increase substantially over time. These people choose ARMs because the monthly payments are initially lower than those they could obtain through other means. For example, the monthly payment on a $100,000, 30-year fixed-rate mortgage at 10½ percent is $915. On an ARM with an interest rate of 7½ percent, the monthly payment is about $700. Theoretically, as the ARM's interest rates and monthly payments increase over time, so should the mortgage holder's income.



The American dream of buying a home starts with weaving your way through the mortgage maze.

IMAGINE DYING FROM A DISEASE YOU NEVER KNEW YOU HAD.

Eleven million people in the U.S. have diabetes. But almost half of them don't know it.

Untreated, diabetes can lead to heart disease, kidney disease, blindness and gangrene.

And for 150,000 people each year, it leads to death.

That's why you should be aware of the symptoms of diabetes: blurred vision, excessive thirst and frequent urination are just some of the warning signs. Because the sooner you find out if you have diabetes, the more likely you are to get it under control, before complications set in.

Finding out you have diabetes can be scary. But not finding out can be fatal.

FIGHT SOME OF THE WORST DISEASES OF OUR TIME.
Support the American Diabetes Association.

The Green Hill difference:

Do you come home to an apartment or a 75-acre estate?

Most apartment living measures 600+ sq. ft. Ours measures over 3,000,000 sq. ft. Green Hill residents enjoy a gorgeous 75-acre estate setting of park and woodland, peace and tranquility. You're right next door to the I-275 corridor, Michigan's multi-billion dollar explosive growth area and just minutes away from I-96, a direct route to downtown Detroit. See our 1- and 2-bedroom luxury apartments, terrace residences and country townhouses on 9 Mile, 1½ miles west of Farmington Road in Farmington Hills.

"All that we were told is true!"

We were told that Muirwood was the best and now we know that it is!

It's obvious why Muirwood is everyone's first choice. It's centrally located in Farmington Hills and features a 24-hour secured gatehouse that always has a reassuring welcome for you each time you come home. Plus, there's a wide variety of very private and spacious one and two bedroom apartments, each with its own private terrace or balcony. Muirwood also features attached covered parking, full-size washers and dryers, window coverings, magnificently-landscaped, rolling terrain that includes an 18-acre nature trail and private lagoon, swimming pools, tennis and volleyball courts, picnic area and an exquisite clubhouse.

Everyone's talking about Muirwood, and why not? Last year alone, more than half of our new residents were referred to us by people who live or used to live at Muirwood. Talk about satisfaction!

Muirwood is everyone's first choice. Call today and let us tell you why it should be yours, too! . . . And then tell your friends!

"THE BLUE RIBBON, MEDALLION, GOLD CUP AND GRAND PRIZE!..."

What kind of rental community has garnered so many prize floor plans? Come and see Citation Club, but be prepared to be surprised!

Everything you'd expect, and even more that you wouldn't.

- Ceramic tile flooring in foyers and kitchens
- Dramatic cut away walls
- Double soaring cathedral ceilings
- Entertainment centered kitchens with eating space, pass bars and fabulous chic white cabinetry

& Yes, fireplaces, oversized balconies and patios, covered parking, private laundry room with washer/dryer included and 24 hour manned entry gate.

But also, a million dollar club house featuring the usual banquet room, library, exercise room, plus the unusual natatorium, sudatorium. Don't know what they are - come let us show you. But hurry - some of our prizes have been awarded through next November.

Fun, creative gifts for today's brides

Many people immediately think of china, crystal and silver as the perfect gift for today's brides and grooms.

While these are always welcome gifts, says Bride's Magazine, the possibilities have expanded to "anything the couple might enjoy."

Brides and grooms of the '80s are requesting and receiving everything from his-and-hers exercise equipment and gardening tools to accessories for their personal computers.

"Couples marrying now have more defined ideas of what they need for setting up a home," said Barbara Tober, editor-in-chief of Bride's.

In contrast to the average bride and groom of the past, they're older or have been married before.

"They want the traditional items, of course, but they also appreciate gifts that are individual and creative, a bit out of the ordinary," Tober said.

BRIDE'S MAGAZINE has this advice for anyone shopping for a wedding present this season: Find out if the couple have listed their preferences with a wedding gift registry (65 percent of brides and grooms do).

Registries work by providing a clearinghouse where a couple can record the items they'd like, and guests can look over the list and choose the gift that fits their tastes and budgets.

In addition to traditional gift items, couples can register for furniture, housewares, electronic equipment, luggage, sporting goods and specialty foods.

If the couple are not registered, it's a safe bet that they can use extra blankets, towels, linens or a variety of tabletop items and housewares.

IF THEY have a distinct "personality," one of these ideas might fit:

- GOURMETS: Wine glasses, a wine rack, a wine label scrapbook, membership in a wine-of-the-month club.
- EXERCISERS: Warm-up suits and leotards, an exercise bike, membership at a health club.
- TRAVELERS: Luggage, sunglasses, beach towels, passport wallets, a travel alarm or iron.
- SOCIAL BUTTERFLIES: An appointment book, an engraved pen, theater or opera tickets, restaurant gift certificates.
- SPORTS FANS: A stadium blanket and thermos, season football tickets.
- SAILORS: Floating bar ware, deck chairs, a compass, an all-weather radio, a picnic basket for snacks.
- THE COUPLE SETTING up a home office: Bookends, paperweights, desk sets, a remote telephone, a tape recorder or dictaphone.
- THE COUPLE BUYING a first home: Gardening tools, a leaf blower, a lawn mower, a garden sundial, a wheelbarrow, snow shovels, a welcome mat, a bridge table, folding chairs.

Today's weddings:

Traditional but not all old-fashioned

THE WORD for weddings today is "traditional," and anyone who attends a nuptial '80s style can see why right away.

The barefoot-in-the-park ceremonies of the '60s and '70s have disappeared as completely as flower children and love beads. Elegant clothes, age-old ritual and a spirit of nostalgia are the rule.

But does this swing-back mean that all innovation is out of style? Does the bride of today really have a wedding that is no different from the one her mother or grandmother had?

"You need to look more closely to see what's happened," said Barbara Tober, editor-in-chief of Bride's Magazine. "Today's weddings do seek out the best and most beautiful traditions of the past — in contrast to a few years ago, when anything old was automatically suspect. But, at the same time, they're very, very modern in that they express new ideals.

Fewer "rules" of etiquette plus a climate that favors personal expression have led couples to add their own creative touch.

"BUT TODAY'S individuality is very different from the 'do your own thing' brand of the last decade," said Tober.

Couples don't throw out the whole ceremony and start from scratch; they must change or add little things. For example, they have their own special music played, personalize their vows, or pass out printed ceremony "programs."

Modern weddings also break with the past over the ideal of equality. Today's bride may be dressed in a demure, turn-of-the-century style, but that isn't where her head is.

The working bride may have helped pay for that Victorian gown herself, and the ritual phrase of "love, honor and obey" has largely disappeared from the ceremony.

The "giving away," a part of some ceremonies in which the celebrant asks, "Who gives this woman in marriage?" has also changed with the times. Today, a couple might rewrite the question to read, "Who blesses this marriage," with both the bride's and groom's parents answering "We do."

The same kind of thinking has likewise revised the idea of who pays for a wedding. Traditionally, the bride's parents shouldered the whole bill.

"BUT FOR THE first time," said Tober, "there's a definite trend toward the sharing of expenses by the groom's family."

This is partly economic — inflation for some families means everyone has to chip in for there to be a wedding at all. But it's also a sign of the times. A bride's parents are no longer considered to be "marrying off" their daughter. Rather, the wedding is seen as a joining of two people and two families.

Finally, equality means a new role in the wedding for today's groom. In the past, a groom often felt like a spectator at his bride's "big day." Modern couples simply take for granted that it's his wedding too!

Grooms have new responsibilities: They help pick the wedding site, choose china patterns,, address invitations and write thank you notes. And, they bask in a larger share of the limelight: Some men wear engagement rings, appear with their fiancees in newspaper announcements, and even have showers thrown in their honor.

> 'Finally, equality means a new role in the wedding for today's groom. In the past, a groom often felt like a spectator at his bride's 'big day.' Modern couples simply take it for granted that it's his wedding, too!

Do's and don'ts in preserving wedding gown

By Joan Boram
special writer

MANY of us have gone through life naively assuming that the bride is the feature attraction of the wedding. But to the 40 or so attendees at the two-hour seminar offered recently at the Detroit Historical Museum, "How to Store Your Wedding Gown," the bride's dress held center stage, and will command attention long after the bubbles have gone out of the champagne.

The prudent bride thinks about preserving her dress even as she shops for it.

"Ask the people at the bridal shop for recommendations on how to store the dress you're considering," said instructor Vicki Kruckeberg, costume curator at the museum. "Most dresses don't have a 'care' label. A responsible shop will be able to advise you. Eavesdrop — listen to what they're saying to other brides about storing their selections. Don't be afraid to ask questions — it makes you look like an intelligent consumer. If they seem to resent the questions, or are giving vague answers, find another shop."

Whatever you do, don't wrap the gown in its original plastic bag and put it in the attic. "The key to successful storage is to never subject the dress to any conditions that you would find uncomfortable. If it's too hot, too cold, too damp for your skin, it will be too hot, cold or damp for your dress. Select an area with minimum fluctuations in temperature and humidity, good air circulation and a minimum of light. This usually means an interior wall in the living area of your home."

One woman in the audience reported having a gown that's been under a bed for 70 years. She says it's still in excellent condition. Kruckeberg was impressed: "Re-package the dress, but don't try to dry clean it," she said.

Moving to the beat

Romance moving to the beat of the fall-winter bridal season, this Bianchi gown has dimensional appliques floating around the open neckline with plunge back, one or off the shoulder lace puffs sheltered with satin pearl-edged fans and detachable gauntlets.

SHOP AROUND FOR a dry cleaner and ask questions there, too, even if you have to get there at 7 a.m., before the shop opens.

"Find out how often they change solvent.," Kruckeberg advised. "Will they clean the dress first thing in the day? (Items in the first load get cleaner.) Do they use pre-spotters for stains? Do they have a dress in the store now that you can look at? Ask if you can see your dress before it's packed."

"Don't go for the cheapest," she continued. "Fifty to $100 isn't exorbitant."

"Don't even consider not having the dress cleaned. There's dirt on the train, and perspiration or white wine stains, which may be invisible today, but will turn brown in a few years."

Some dry cleaners feature blue tissue paper, as if it had some preservative value. In reality, it has no special properties, and the blue dye can bleed off it should become wet. Kruckeberg uses acid-free white tissue paper, and an acid-free box. (The Detroit Historical Society orders such boxes and tissue paper in large quantities and will accept orders from anyone wishing to buy them).

"Acid-free" doesn't mean forever, however. The tissue absorbs acid from the gown, so it should be changed yearly.

IF YOU'RE PACKING the gown yourself, you may want to use muslin or cotton sheets instead of tissue paper.

Kruckeberg stressed that new sheets should be washed four to six times and rinsed even more times to be sure sizing and other impurities are removed. Old sheets, too, must be absolutely clean, and patterned sheets should only be used if they are very old. Do no use any fabric softeners, rinses or softening sheets.

Line the box with well-washed and rinsed cotton fabric. Arrange gown to minimize folds to prevent formation of hard creases and line folds with tissue paper or muslin. The heaviest part of the gown goes on the bottom of the box. Cover the top of the gown with tissue or fabric before closing the box. Do not use plastic bags inside the box. Textile fabrics like to breathe.

The following items do not age well and should be removed from the gown and stored separately: plastic and metal buttons, pins, buckles, headpieces and veils with metal parts. Remove rubberized shields and foam padding — they deteriorate with age and may stain the fabric.

"Use your wedding anniversary as a time point to check your gown," suggested Kruckeberg. "Open the box to check for evidence of unremoved soils darkening — a number of colorless soils or stains turn dark as they age and oxidize. Change the position of the folds, replace all of the tissue paper with new paper. Wash muslin if it was used to line the folds, and wash the cotton used to line the box."

"This inspection," she said, "should be done whether you packaged the gown or it was done commercially."

Most couples shop together for rings

Buying a diamond engagement ring is often the first step toward matrimony for many couples. Before buying this important token of love, it is wise to know as much about diamonds and the variety of styles that are available, as well as to work out a budget for it.

Determining a budget is the first thing to do. Most couples find that two months' salary is a reasonable spending guide to follow when purchasing a quality diamond engagement ring. Considering that a diamond engagement ring lasts forever as the symbol of a couple's love, two months' salary is not too much to invest.

Most couples shop together for their diamond, but the majority of rings are still purchased by the male half of the couple after they have decided what they like together. Some of the exciting options in diamond engagement rings this year include new cuts and settings of traditional shapes.

The traditional shapes are brilliant (round), emerald (rectangular), marquise (diamond-shaped), pear, oval and heart. Seventy-eight percent of all brides receive the round, making it the most popular diamond engagement ring.

THREE NEW TYPES of cuts which have become very popular are the Starburst, the Quadrillion, and the Trillion, which have been created by diamond jewelry manufacturers Louis Glick, Ambar Diamonds, and L.F. Industries, respectively. These new styles are available at fine jewelry stores throughout the United States.

The Starburst diamond is a square or rectangular-shaped highly faceted stone. A round brilliant cut diamond has 58 facets — the Starburst has between 95 and 120 facets. Even more fire is added to this stone by the cutting technique in which more facets are cut on deeper angles. The corners of the Starburst are also cut. Usually the Starburst is mounted with two triangularly shaped stones on either side to highlight it.

The Quadrdillion is also square in shape, with 49 facets cut in a way that creates a star pattern and maximizes color refraction. Generally, Quadrillions are not used as solitaires, but instead are channel set in a continuous grouping which creates a diamond ring with no gaps.

There have always been three-sided diamonds called trilliants, but the Trillion, with 50 facets, is much more brilliant. More and more often the Trillion is used as a center stone, but it also works well in pairs as side stones to highlight almost any other diamond shape, from square to rectangular to round. Two Trillions on either side of a diamond solitaire create a completely new, extraordinarily fiery engagement ring.

The Prestige Collection, another diamond jewelery manufacturer, has created a new mounting which better illuminates the center stone. This new setting is called the "Prestige Pedestal." A vertical column of baguettes — very slender, rectangularly-shaped diamonds — meet at a gold collar which encircles the center stone. The center diamond is thereby given even more brilliance by the translucent baguettes beneath it.

NEW TECHNIQUES IN laser cutting have enabled the very precise science of diamond faceting and polishing to progress dramatically, thus making these new rings possible.

One of the most important things to know about diamonds in general is the 4C's. The 4C's are Cut, which is the shape the diamond takes when faceted and polished; Color — no color at all is best for diamonds; Clarity, which is the degree to which the stone is free of natural flaws called inclusions; and Carat Weight, which is the size of the stone, measured in carats.

Color is rated on an alphabetical scale, the whitest stones being graded "D." The yellower the stone, the lower its grade. As for clarity, almost all diamonds contain minute traces of noncrystalized carbon, most of which are not visible to the naked eye. Many of these inclusions are visible upon magnification, however. The fewer inclusions there are, the rarer the stone.

If you can't give newlyweds a maid . . .

FEW NEWLYWEDS would turn down household help as a shower or wedding gift. In fact, if you have the funds and know reliable help, it's not a bad idea.

For those of us with less ample budgets, however, you might consider some sensible gifts that will speed housecleaning for the bride and, hopefully, the groom.

Shower themes might focus on the practical, especially if it's a large wedding and the bride already has registerd her needs for crystal, silver and linens.

The couple may be too preoccupied with wedding plans to think about the everyday aspects of running a household. Once the honeymoon is over, practical gifts will be much appreciated.

If you can figure out just what the bride and groom have already in the way of cleaning tools and appliances, you can plan a shower or gift that will save the couple money and hassle.

Ideas for gift "packages:"

- Whoever has enough wastebaskets, especially now, when many people are recycling?

Nest a small bathroom-size vanity wastebasket inside a tall, step-on wastebasket and fill with rubber gloves, cleaning supplies, garbage bags and labels marked for bottles and cans.

If you're imaginative, enclose a card that itemizes "ten ways to get others to take out the trash."

- If you know the color scheme of the couple's new home, buy a half-dozen rolls of shelf liner in colors or patterns to match.

Although this is one of the more satisfying tasks when setting up a home, you might enclose a homemade "gift certificate" that offers your help in putting the shelf liner in place.

- To ease the routine chores of cleaning the kitchen and bathrooms, equip a Roughneck tote or clean-up caddy with necessary supplies: Cleaning solutions, sponges and rubber gloves. The caddy or tote keeps supplies organized and portable.

Or, fill a laundry basket with a bowl brush set, bath mat, toilet paper, laundry powder and other necessities. Another idea — equip a broom and mop organizer with a broom, mop and dustpan.

- To organize tools, Rubbermaid's new Work Space System makes a great his 'n her gift.

What couple moving to that first apartment or home won't find a hammer, nails and other tools a necessity? Many products in this new line (made to hold nuts, bolts and other supplies) can be mounted on the Wall Strip or pegboard, then moved into the Tool Caddy for portable use.

Coping with wedding day mishaps

YOUR WEDDING is a few weeks away and, naturally, you're dreaming of a perfect, worry-free day. But it's true of weddings as of anything else: The best-laid plans often go awry.

If you're the victim of a no-show organist or a record heat wave, will you know how to cope?

Bride's Magazine has these tips for handling common wedding-day crises:

● The photographer is nowhere to be found. Or, the wedding cake does come but it says, "Bon Voyage Aunt Claire." The florist has dropped off six centerpieces; you ordered 12.

Forestall these mishaps by getting everything in writing. A reliable contract should specify delivery date and hour, and include such details as dress colors, frosting flavors and liquor amounts.

PROVIDE ALL delivery people with a map and instructions for reaching your home or the reception place. And, confirm all services a week ahead and again, the day before the wedding.

On the day itself, ask a friend to get to the church early to make sure flowers are being delivered and the photographer is setting up.

As a last resort, turn to back-ups. A talented cousin might be your pinch-hit photographer. Send ushers to the deli, bakery or liquor store for missing items. (Don't wait too long!)

● You spill red wine on your dress. Everything imaginable can go wrong with clothes — zippers stick, wrinkles appear, veils tear, and buttons fall off.

Ask your salon owner beforehand what your dress is made of and how to repair it in an emergency. Then, pack a "just-in-case" kit with needle and thread, spot remover, glue, safety pins, tape, and a travel steamer. In a pinch, move flowers to hide the spot or tear.

● The best man forgets the ring. Or, it gets stuck on his finger. Or, it falls off the ring bearer's cushion and rolls out of sight. Generally, the best man should keep the ring in his pocket, not on his finger.

Secure the ring on the ring bearer's pillow with a ribbon — or use a fake just for the effect. If your ring really is temporarily out of commission, borrow a ring from an attendant or a parent, and carry on.

● A bridesmaid is about to keel over. It could be stage fright, a skipped breakfast, or just too much excitement. Be sure to include every attendant in your wedding rehearsal and practice walking down the aisle and what to do at the altar.

ENCOURAGE "R&R" time for everyone the week before, including plenty of sleep and exercise. Plan your rehearsal dinner as an early evening — or hold it two nights ahead. Ask your ~~maid of honor~~ to carry smelling salts, aspirin and tissues.

● It's pouring rain. Or it's sunny — but the heat threatens to wilt flowers and you! It's essential to have a back-up location for anything planned outdoors.

You should also be prepared to: Dress at the church or nearby. Delay the ceremony. Put up sighns for a detour route to church in case of flooded roads. Use beach umbrellas to ferry everyone from cars to church in a downpour. Borrow small air conditioners and fans to keep the wedding party cool and makeup intact until the ceremony.
