The Canton Connection

Observer seminar

Editors and reporters from the Canton Observer will be at the Cherry Hill School House in Canton Township at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday to answer questions about how to get news in the paper.

The seminar, a chance for groups and individuals to understand the workings of the paper, is free and open to the public.

For more information, call 459-2700.

Point of view

Architect Erick Carne was the bearer of bad news at last week's Plymouth-Canton Board of Education workshop. And for a minute there, things grew a bit uncomfortable. Carne was telling trustees about objections raised at a Plymouth Planning Commission meeting to the proposed renovation of the school board office at 454 S. Harvey. Seven residents spoke in opposition to the plan.

"It was as though they (planning commissioners) had their minds made up before the agitators said anything," Carne said.

Board president Dean Swartzwelter asked whether Carne really wanted to use the word "agitators." Trustee E.J. McClendon rallied to Carne's defense. "I happen to feel the same way. People have a right to speak in the manner they wish," he said. Wonder how the minutes will read?

Greening of Canton

Canton Township is a little greener these days along the Sheldon Center Connector, and that has been noted by the Keep Michigan Beautiful program. The project, called the Bradford Pear tree planting program, was sponsored by the township Beautification Committee and was completed last spring.

The work was done with $7,500 donated by area businesses and $27,900 from the township.

The state also recognized "Let's Color Canton," a coloring book designed to instill pride in the community. About 2,600 books were distributed, including 700 with seedlings. Kimcraft Printers Inc. was recognized by the state for supplying the paper, technical assistance, labor and printing the book.

Contest winners

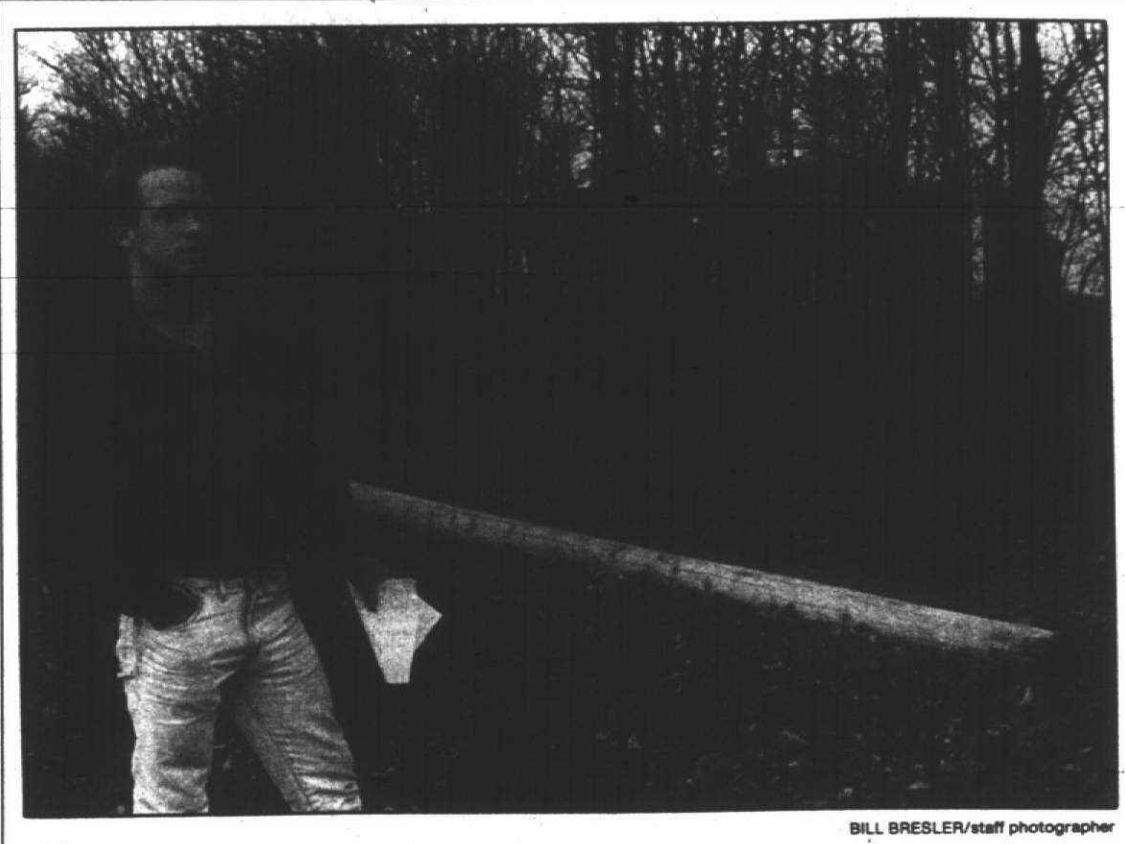

Winners in the Canton Chamber of Commerce/Canton Fire Department Fire Prevention Poster Coloring Contest are: Bryan Lusebrink, Hoben School, first place for the first through third grades; Julie Glaza, first place, Hulsing School, fourth through sixth grades; Krista Skillman, Hulsing School, second place; and Scott Richardson, Hulsing School, second place.

Honorable mention winners are: Elizabeth Bahrou, Hoben School; Denise Brooks, Field School; Johnny Demergis, Hulsing School; Steven Sink, Francis Ko, and Andrea Sherman, all of Plymouth Christian Academy; and Chris Wagrinen, Hoben School.

The winning schools were Hoben and Hulsing.

Book fair

The Plymouth Canton High School Library is sponsoring a book fair in the viewing and listening room of the library Nov. 7-9. The event will be from 7 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. daily and from 6-8 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 9. For more information, call 451-6600, extension 385.

Joseph Spellman wants trees, not power lines, behind his Canton home.

Resident fights to save trees

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Joseph Spellman is fighting Detroit Edison plans to mow down a wooded area to erect overhead wires in Canton.

"That's why we bought this lot, just because of the woods," Spellman said.

His house on Fair Oaks is east of Sheldon Road, south of Ford Road, and backs up to Griffin Park.

THE UTILITY owns the land and has every right to put up the lines, Edison representatives said.

The new lines will travel from a voltage changing station at Cherry Hill west of Lilley Road to Canton Center Road at Plum Hollow, said Mary Kay Bean, an Edison spokeswoman.

"Canton Township has had an extremely high growth rate," Bean said.

The new lines will help lessen the load for existing lines and accommodate new development, she said.

SPELLMAN'S NEIGHBOR, Steve Ross, questions why Edison isn't required to pull a permit with the township, explaining to township officials what the utility plans to do and ensuring safety and health codes are followed.

"To say they can drop the poles tomorrow without asking anyone is ridiculous," Ross said. "If a person in the neighborhood goes out and wants to put in electrical wiring they have to get an inspection. It's amazing Edison doesn't have to get permission or pass sight inspections or anything."

Township officials have been fielding complaints from residents against the Edison plan.

Township Supervisor Tom Yack was "upset, because the community made a commitment to put utilities underground," he said.

IN FACT, Canton has a zoning ordinance ensuring utilities go underground. The buried lines are

'Use us,' council tells school board

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Members of the Community School Council, comprised of parents from Plymouth-Canton Community Schools' 19 buildings, told the school board they want to be treated as allies — not adversaries.

"We wish you would use us as a communication link between the board, schools and parents," Community School Council president Joan Noricks told trustees last week, at the council and board's first joint meeting in years.

"The council wants to be treated as an ally, not an adversary," she said.

BECAUSE CITIZENS' groups such as I CARE and the Committee Researching Educational Workings are new, they receive more attention from the board, council members said.

Concern is also that I CARE and CREW are duplicating the council's efforts, Noricks said.

"It's as though we're viewed as the old council that's over there; a worn-out shoe, whereas these other groups are new and exciting," she said. "'We're here to volunteer for you. Use us.' That's what I keep hearing from our members."

"Sometimes the board is reluctant to get us involved because we are viewed as adversaries," said council member Nola Schlachter, representing Canton High School. "The board and administration is a bit leery of what we will come up with."

Council members serve on the district's safety and housing committees; something Schlachter said should continue.

"I think the community accepts things better when the council is involved," she said.

COUNCIL MEMBER Arlene Caron said she's tired of receiving "canned speeches" from school officials in response to questions.

Caron and others from Central Middle School are concerned about the closing of the school's pool. Several individuals approached the board recently about the possibility of it reopening.

"We were waiting to have someone talk to us, and no one was. I feel like I was kind of shoved under the table," she said.

"From time to time, individual schools do have problems, but we don't know which channels to go through," Caron told the board. "When we come to you, we get pat answers. They're rehearsed. What channels do we go through to have our concerns heard?"

RV owners battle parking restrictions

By Diane Gale
staff writer

A Canton couple say they plan to park themselves at a planning commission meeting tonight until the commission looks at their plan to handle the parking of recreational vehicles in the township.

"We're people with rights, too," said Nancy Beinke. With her husband, Fred, she helped form the Michigan RV homeowners Association and a Canton chapter. They say the proposed ordinance would violate their civil rights.

The couple formed the groups in response to proposed changes in the township's zoning ordinances that call for practically banning recreational vehicles from neighborhoods.

That ordinance change has been bogged down for several months because of opposition from RV owners.

But that could end at 7 tonight when the planning commission takes up the issue again. The meeting will be in the township hall, 1150 S. Canton Center.

THE BEINKES plan to present their plan at the meeting.

Commission chairman John Burdziak said he believed a compromise could be struck, adding: "I'm sure both sides won't be completely satisfied, but we have to do the best for the most amount of people."

The commission proposal was an attempt "to turn this township into Rochester Hills or Palo Alto, Calif., and they want to impose their lifestyle on this entire town," Beinke said.

Beinke was surprised that more than 200 residents, opposing the ordinance, stormed township hall at a recent meeting, he said. They stopped the planning commission from voting on restrictions limiting RV storage around houses to periods of up to 24 hours before and after use. Currently RVs are allowed to be stored on side yards and in back yards.

Anti-drug program helps kids triumph over peer pressure

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Canton, Plymouth and Plymouth Township police want to help attack drug abuse by catching fifth and sixth graders before they get into trouble.

"Those are the exit grades before they move on," said Pat Nemecek, Canton police spokesman.

"That's the age of kids you can do the most good," he said. "That's the age they are either going into something or going out of something."

DRUG ABUSE is becoming the "number one concern" in law enforcement, Nemecek said, adding that "more and more juvenile offense cases are drug related."

Plymouth police Chief Richard Myers said DARE (Drug Awareness Resistance Education) "is a step toward the most likely solution to the current drug problem."

"Until we can raise a generation of kids that won't feed the market for drug sources, we are never going to win the drug program," he said.

"Substance abuse is like an unbroken cycle and it's feeding on itself. We need to raise a generation of kids who can break the cycle of abuse to have the strength, energy and ability to direct their energies to other activities and deal with the stresses of life without turning to drugs.

"And that's what DARE offers."

The program is perfect for Plymouth, he said, because it addresses the issues faced by a middle class children.

The $800 price tag to train officers involves the officer talking to students once a week for 17 weeks Nemecek said.

Group asks to be involved in schools

Dennis Williams, council vice president, is happy to receive feedback but "I feel frustrated because we've felt distanced from the school board," he said. "We're trying to get a feeling for how best to (bridge that gap)."

"I TAKE it personally to hear we don't take you seriously, because that's where we came from," trustee Marilyn Schwinn told council members. "Council is a strong group of people. We know you won't always agree with us, but keep working."

Trustee Jeanette Wines agreed that the council is underutilized, and that its efforts are being duplicated by others.

"Your perspectives are very important," board member Roland Thomas told council members. "Four of seven of us don't have children in school. You do. Unless we hear from you, we're unaware of many of your problems."

THE DISTRICT has attempted to involve parents in a variety of things, said Superintendent John Hoben, who offered to supply council with copies of board agendas and packets.

"We have been trying to get citizen involvement for the principal selection at Smith School and in the review of controversial materials; it's been the objective of the administration to include parents in all selections," Hoben said.

None of the existing citizen groups "obviates the need for the others," trustee E.J. McClendon said. "We do need more team work sometimes."

THOMAS CALLED the session "very beneficial; much like meetings with local units of government. These meetings should be regular to keep dialogue going," he said.

"Obviously, we're in an evolutionary process. If we work together we will do it, because you folks will make it happen, not the seven of us. It's an exciting time."

Council member Kemmie Schumacher cautioned board members.

"Do you understand we as a council will still question actions you take regarding things like books and computers? Our role is to question. Don't be afraid of our questions and of us not accepting your answers.

"If you come in with a pat answer, we won't accept it, because we've heard it at the PTO level. It is not a negativism. It's simply wanting to know," Schumacher said.

"We would like to hear from the board, and hear that in some way you could use us," Noricks said.

Currently state police are taking the DARE message of building self-confidence and self-esteem to Plymouth-Canton school students; however, they haven't been able to hit all the schools.

"We need to get the message out to the schools that don't have it now," said John Santomauro, Canton public safety director.

"The state is over-taxed and we need to help them," he said. "I think it's the single best program for that age group. We have a host of service groups in Canton that I think we can go to and ask for their assistance.

"I think we all benefit from young people who learn the importance of self-confidence and the whole substance abuse issue. I haven't seen anything that deals with it as effectively as DARE has."

PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP police chief Carl Berry said he couldn't promise that township officials would support the program, but he did say he would pitch them the idea.

"We're looking for all types of support," Berry added.

The Plymouth-Canton substance abuse task force — involving Canton, Plymouth and Plymouth Township police, school officials and community representatives — talked with state police Friday about DARE and how the local program can be expanded.

Officers must take 80 hours of training from state police before they would be allowed to teach DARE, Nemecek said.

"They're showing a cop how to be a teacher," he said. "The basis of the course is that it teaches kids self-confidence and self-esteem. It teaches them how to say no and to stand up for themselves."

Still, the drug offenses in Canton are somewhat low. For instance, from January through June this year 16 adults and one juvenile were arrested on narcotic drug offenses.

Other statistics, however, point to a bigger problem. So far this year there were 59 complaints involving drugs and juveniles, Nemecek said. And there were 10 drug cases at the Plymouth-Canton high school complex from January through June.

RV owners demand parking space people. Their ordinance was a blatant attempt to run people out of town."

The proposed ordinance would ban RVs from Canton "unless you bury it," he said.

"We feel they're stomping all over our rights as citizens. We feel like we're being viewed as second class citizens. We have a lot of people in this town without a lot of disposable income, and I don't think it's fair that we say get out of town."

Backyard swimming pools are more dangerous than RVs parked in neighborhoods, he said.

Recreational equipment is an important part of family life, Nancy Beinke said.

THE BEINKES proposal for an RV ordinance says:

- RVs won't have permanently fixed utility or sewer connections;
- RVs won't be used for living or housekeeping purposes in neighborhoods;
- RVs parked outside garages will be on a prepared surface;
- RVs will be properly braked and/or wheel chocked;
- RVs must be kept in good repair;
- Mobile homes aren't to be considered RVs;
- An RV in a residential district must be on a prepared surface no later than the effective date of the ordinance; and
- No other ordinance will restrict or alter the intent of this ordinance.

'We found an awful lot of irate people. Their ordinance was a blatant attempt to run people out of town.'

— Fred Beinke

The present ordinance provides adequate restrictions, Nancy Beinke said, and some people on fixed incomes would suffer because they can't afford to pay for storage.

"It's pettiness like this that tears a community apart. Find some other thing to complain about and leave the families enjoy their togetherness.

"There isn't enough family togetherness with both parents working anymore. Let us enjoy being with our families and let us enjoy being with our neighbors."

Aid for college topic Nov. 15

The guidance and counseling department at Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem high schools is sponsoring a financial information night for students seeking information about paying for college.

The session will be 7-9 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 15, in the Plymouth Salem High School library.

Representatives from a bank will be there to discuss loans, and a college financial aid officer will discuss other options of financing school beyond high school.

If you are planning to attend, call 451-6600, extension 219. Reservations are not required.

Earl Mulligan, a Fellows Creek Golf Course employee, blows leaves to one side of the course for a sweeper to pick them up later.

photos by GUY WARREN/staff photographer

Winter preparation a matter of course

IF YOU see a golfer shed a tear, it could be due to the sting of a cool fall wind.

Or, it could be because November is the saddest time of year for lovers of golf.

The coming of November triggers the yearly ritual of lugging those clubs into the basement, as temperatures drop and snowfall looms.

At Fellows Creek Golf Club in Canton, as at golf courses around the Midwest, maintenance crews are getting the courses ready for winter.

First on the list is aerating the greens — drilling holes and removing plugs of grass.

"What you're doing is relieving compaction from the golfers," said Dennis Nordling, course superintendent.

During the regular golf season, Nordling explained, "There's a lot of foot traffic.," Aerating allows air to get down to the grass roots, and, by adding sand to the holes, it helps add moisture and nutrients and reduce thatch buildup, he added.

Also in the fall, crews remove leaves.

"If you let them build up in certain areas, it can smother the grass underneath," Nordling said. It's also more convenient for golfers to have leaves removed, since it's easier to find golf balls.

Fall is a time for crews to work on special projects like correcting drainage problems, as there is less traffic.

"There's no set closing date," Nordling said. "We're basically open until it snows, probably into December. It's starting to wind down right now a lot."

Fellows Creek will reopen in March or April, depending on when temperatures warm up.

Body of nursing home patient, 71, found in field

By Tedd Schneider
staff writer

The body of a Nightingale Convalescent Center resident who had been missing from the nursing home for a week was found by police Friday morning in a field near the home, on Newburgh south of Joy.

The man was identified as Edward Jarembo, 71, said a spokesman for the Wayne County medical examiner's office. An autopsy was scheduled for Saturday morning.

Police don't believe foul play was involved, although an investigation into the incident is continuing, Sgt. Michael Terry said Friday.

In a press release Friday, police confirmed the dead man was a resident of a local nursing home, but declined to name the home or identify the victim, pending notification of his family.

Jarembo was reported missing from the Nightingale home on Oct. 27. An employee of the nursing home told police Jarembo walked away from the home between 7:30 and 8:30 a.m.

NORMAN BERGER, Nightingale administrator, refused to confirm the man's identity or comment on the incident.

"We have people walking around (the grounds) here all the time," Berger said Friday.

With the help of a police tracking dog, the man's body was found at 11 a.m. in a wooded field adjacent to the partially-completed Warris Farms apartment complex, Terry said. The complex is across the street and just south of the nursing home.

There was no estimate on the date or time of death, and Terry declined to speculate on how long the body had been there.

Terry said a search of the area, made shortly after the man's reported disappearance, turned up nothing.

"We had to borrow the dog from the Wayne County Sheriff's department and that took a couple of days," Terry said. "We couldn't go out there (and be effective with the dog) on Wednesday because of the rain."

Following the initial report, Westland police notified police departments in Livonia and Canton Township about the missing man, Terry said.

Hit-and-run car sought

By LeAnne Rogers
staff writer

Garden City Police are looking for the car that killed a man last week.

George Korona, 46, of Pardo Street was struck by a car between 1:30 a.m. and 2:10 a.m. Tuesday, Oct. 31, in the parking lot behind the Powerhouse Gym. The car that hit him did not stop.

Korona was apparently walking across the parking lot when struck by a car traveling east, Garden City police Sgt. Cory Coldren said. Although the parking lot is lighted, areas near the building can be shadowy, and Korona was wearing dark clothing.

The driver probably is a local person since the parking lot apparently was being used as a shortcut to Pardo, Coldren said.

"The vehicle would have front end damage. They would definitely know that they hit him. The victim was probably struck and landed on the hood. He fell off then they stopped."

POLICE WERE contacted after a second car hit Korona while cutting through the parking lot.

"To the best of our knowledge, he was dead when the second car hit him."

If you have any information, call police at 422-1122.

preferable, Yack said, because they are more attractive, less susceptible to storm damage and less inclined to allow power outages.

But a $800,000 cost difference between overhead lines and underground wires is the reason why Edison decided to put in poles, Bean said.

"All residents who live along the route would have to pay the difference," she said.

Property owners abutting the Edison property line would have to sign a petition and would have to pay, she said.

CANTON OFFICIALS say the issue of 8,000 feet of overhead Edison lines from Morton Taylor west of Canton Center and north of Cherry Hill is really out of their hands, according to Tom Casari, Canton engineer.

However, Edison is permitted to erect the overhead lines on the utility's property according to a franchise agreement with the township.

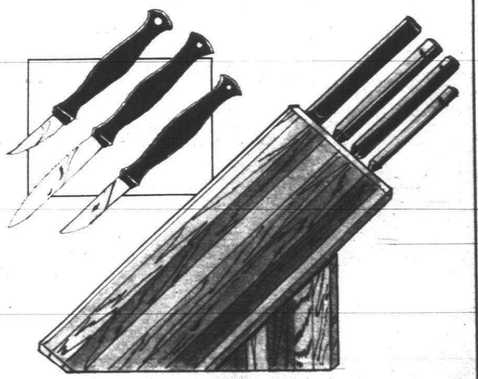

"We don't like overhead lines either, but there's not much we can do," Casari said. "I think the frustrating thing for those folks is that they moved in with a certain set of circumstances and that's changed."

SPELLMAN BELIEVES the overhead lines in his neighborhood is "definitely overkill," because a few feet further are the mammoth utility towers, he said. Studies show that there are health hazards for children and others who live near such towers, Spellman said.

Edison will try to "minimize the visual impact," Bean said. Wooden poles will be erected at approximately 200-foot intervals, about every three houses, and will be placed on the side property line. A resident looking out in the back yard wouldn't see the poles, she said.

Yack will send a letter to residents in the area explaining what is planned, he said.

"And I encouraged Edison to do a door-to-door to give everyone the information," Yack said. "It may not change people's feelings, but at least it will give them current information."

Miracle worker: Teacher of Year opens up world of the autistic

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

"Little miracles occur on a daily basis."

That's how teacher Colleen Presley describes Garden City's Burger School, the nation's largest school for autistic youths.

But some of the happiness accompanying those wonderful events drains away every time Presely thinks about the proposed closing of the aging school.

Presley, a Plymouth resident, recently was named Teacher of the Year by the Wayne County Autistic Society. A recipient of the Wayne County Intermediate School District's Golden Apple award for excellence in education, Presley was one of four teachers selected by the state Department of Education to film a documentary on careers.

"Autistic children over the years have been viewed as children in a world of their own — in a glass bubble. But that's only one level," said Presley. "Children here range in ability from severely mentally impaired up to normal gifted intelligence." More than 200 youths, ages 3-26, attend Burger.

Autism is a developmental disability affecting up to 13,800 children and adults in Michigan. Autistic individuals may have language skills that are delayed, unusual or absent; difficulty mixing with others; impaired judgment and limited understanding of ideas and words.

ON A RECENT Monday morning, Presley's 14 students and four aides jump-started their day, singing "The Weekday Rock" in a room draped with ghosts, goblins and jack o'lanterns.

As an animated Presley sang and gestured, big smiles transformed the faces of the no longer listless youngsters who joined her; singing, twirling and dancing to the record. Children were well-behaved, and the class seemed much like any other.

Only rarely is Presley — who teaches at Burger along with two of her sisters — presented with situations that come close to exhausting her patience.

"We had a young child with us for two months who bit me severely, right through my clothing," said Presley. "He punched me in the face and eye and ran out of the school. I had to chase him, or he would have run right into traffic."

That youngster, whose confusion was compounded by a troubled home life, left Burger when his family moved out of state, Presley said.

BEHIND JUST about every other child is a success story.

When Chris Coleman came to Burger, "He couldn't even sit in a desk and use a new color crayon," said Presley. "He'd react by throwing himself on the floor." It took time to build a relationship, but now Chris and his teachers thrive in an atmosphere of trust and respect.

"His behavior is changing before our eyes," said Presley. "His aggressive behavior is diminishing. For him to sit and be attentive for him is remarkable. He does the Pledge of Allegiance — and we begin singing the national anthem he'll say, 'Hold your hand on your heart.'"

One child from Detroit (Burger serves all of Wayne County) was tied to his chair at his old school because teachers there couldn't control him.

"Basically he was just misunderstood," said Presley, said of her former student. "He's one of the most perceptive young men I know.

"The other day he came by my classroom, but he wouldn't say hi.

"I asked him, 'How come you don't talk to me any more? Don't you miss me?'"

PRESLEY WAS so struck by his response that she wrote it down.

"He said, 'How can I miss you when you've never been gone? You've been here all the time. A lot of things have changed, but you haven't changed. You have done more than the rest. It's just that I have an active mind.'

"People say these kids don't communicate, feel, or know what's going on," Presley said. "We know otherwise here.

"Some of our 7-year-olds can tell you everything about the Red Wings. Others can tell you what day it will be on this date in the year 2003," said Presley.

In reading class one day, one of Presley's students was bouncing in his seat and shaking the table. After he was asked to sit still, he apologized saying, "Sorry, Colleen. I was just having an earthquake."

CHRIS McALLISTER is a talented, talkative young artist.

"Those were some pretzels. Colleen, they were terrific," said the youngster who thoroughly enjoyed snack time.

Drawing signs and logos is Chris's passion. He has renamed the class playhouse "The Susie Q Night Club."

One of his latest pieces of artwork serves as a sad reminder for Presley.

Over a bright red heart severed in half are the words "The Burger Relocation. Fate vs. Love."

FINANCIAL PROBLEMS mean this is the last year Burger School will be in operation — something that greatly upsets Burger staffers, students and parents.

"We've been told we're going to die. It's up to us to decide how," said Presley, who says parents are reacting with tears.

Chris came to school one morning crying, Presley said.

"He said, "I cried all night because I realize I need to spend more time with you. I need someone like you to help me along."

TEARS FORM in Presley's eyes when she talks about the "dispersing" of Burger.

"We're not claiming to be the only experts. But I don't think that something that has been working should be cast aside because of a new educational trend," he said.

Unlike schools in which autistic children are "mainstreamed" into regular education classes, "We can provide age-appropriate classrooms" and low teacher-student ratios, and place children according to their cognitive abilities, she said.

"We've been the largest program in the country, and offered a model program. That's why it's hard to suddenly find ourselves gone after all the good things that are said about us by experts."

Presley thinks school officials "have to look a little harder" for a solution

Financial problems closing area school

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Due to financial problems, this likely will be the last year Burger School — which serves 217 autistic youths from throughout Wayne County — will exist.

Plans call for the school to be razed to make room for condominiums and single-family homes.

Nearly three-quarters of a million dollars is needed to repair the roof of the aging school and remove asbestos as required by federal law.

It's money that neither Garden City Public Schools nor the Wayne County Intermediate School District is willing to spend, said Dr. Michael Wilmot, Garden City superintendent.

Garden City has operated at a deficit the last six years. The program it operates for autistic youth is funded by a Wayne County special education millage.

"We made an approach to the county, given the fact that such a disproportionate share of our students come from other places," said Wilmot. Just three Burger students are from Garden City.

"WE EVEN offered to deed the building to the county lock, stock and barrel if they would fix it up. They responded by saying they didn't see a viable alternative for that building.

"We've provided notice to the state and the Intermediate School District that we would vacate the building at the end of the year," in compliance with the asbestos abatement law, Wilmot said. Asbestos was installed in buildings in the 1940s and 1950s as a fire retardant. It since has been found to be a carcinogen.

"The county is seeking another location," Wilmot said.

Thus far, one hasn't been found, and it's been suggested that autistic children be placed in available classrooms in districts throughout the county.

It's unlikely Garden City will administer the program, Wilmot said.

"The likelihood is very good we won't operate the program," he said. "There would have to be some clear advantage for Garden City, and I don't see what that advantage would be right now."

IN THE MEANTIME, developer Marcello Scappaticci has signed an offer to purchase with the schools. He has until Nov. 10 to execute the agreement, Wilmot said.

"Marcello Scappaticci is looking at it for residential condos and single family homes," he said.

Profits from the sale would be used for general revenue and to pay off existing bonded indebtedness on existing buildings.

McNamara threatens to veto county budget

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara said he will "absolutely" veto the county's new budget.

Though he had not yet received a copy of the revised document, McNamara said Friday he would veto the budget unless commissioners restored his original figures.

"Really, it's the whole budget," McNamara said outlining his disputes with the commission.

McNamara said the commission was spending money the county doesn't have.

"That's the old game," he said. "That's why the county was in financial trouble for so long."

The executive is particularly upset commissioners increased general fund spending — including raising county clerk's office fees — and restricted spending for the new county jail.

Commissioners approved the revised budget Thursday. A veto battle, should it emerge, is expected to be resolved by Dec. 1, when the new budget is scheduled to take effect.

Commission Chairman Arthur Blackwell II called the revised document "A balanced budget that protects the county's solvency."

McNamara, however, said commissioners threatened county finances by, "playing the old game."

AT ISSUE is an estimated $1.3 million added to the $272.8 million general operating budget proposed by McNamara.

The additional money is to go for a variety of police and drug enforcement activities. It includes hiring new legal staff, probation officers and a victim rights advocate. All would assist in drug and other criminal cases.

Additional money would also go for bullet proof vests and chemical testing equipment for the sheriff's department, as well as for drug education programs aimed at school children.

Commissioners, however, believe McNamara's original budget projections were overly conservative. They believe, the county will receive at least $176,000 more in interest than projected in the executive's budget.

"That's a conservative estimate, too," said commission budget adviser Marya Sieminski, "But we felt the original estimate was too conservative."

Grants, additional revenue estimated to be raised through confiscated drug revenue, and nearly $300,000 pulled from drug forfeiture fund reserves, are also expected to finance anti-drug efforts.

IN ANOTHER major step, the commission approved fee increases for the county clerk's office. Those increases are expected to produce $412,500 in additional revenue during the coming fiscal year. McNamara said he would veto them along with the budget. (See related story.)

Disputes not only center on money put into the budget, but money taken out.

Commissioners approved a total county budget of $1.3 billion — including capital projects, like roads and sewers.

Another dispute centers on a $37.8 million cut commissioners made to the overall budget.

The cut was taken from $49.5 million McNamara had set aside for jail construction.

Commissioners said they deleted the money from the budget because bond financing hadn't yet been approved. In a related move, commissioners established a contingency fund for $11.7 million expected to be raised through the county's new jail construction tax. That move assures the commission will maintain control over jail spending, commissioners said.

McNamara, however, said the action jeopardizes swift completion of the Hamtramck jail.

"This just ties our hands," he said. "It means we'd work for two days, then sit around waiting for two weeks for the commission to take action."

Commissioners also said they would set aside money for a county work academy for young offenders.

A key project of former commission chairman Arthur Carter, the youth academy has been less of a priority with McNamara.

McNamara can veto the budget within 10 days after receiving it from the commission. To sustain his veto, however, he would have to change the minds of at least six commissioners.

Commissioners approved the budget 12-3, with new commissioners Kevin Kelley, D-Redford and Susan Hubbard, D-Dearborn joining William O'Neil, D-Allen Park in rejecting the budget.

Kelley said he was concerned with budget projections, but believed the budget was generally sound. He added he expects to meet with Blackwell to discuss his concerns.

The commission and executive have traditionally argued over the budget, however, and their are indications this year's disputes aren't as great as those in years past.

"Two years ago, we were livid, last year we were angry," McNamara said. "This year it's, 'Hohum, here we go again'."

. . . county fee increases also face veto

It will cost Wayne County residents more to be born, more to get married and more to die, unless the board of commissioners fails to override an expected veto by county executive Edward McNamara.

The increase in fees would be used to help the clerk's office become computerized.

New fees would take effect Dec. 1.

The fee increases would be temporary.

"We have it tabbed as a five-year project," chief deputy clerk Steven Kelley said. "But it's hard to say just when it will be complete."

McNamara, however, said the move was a tax increase in disguise and that he would veto it along with the proposed 1989-90 county budget.

The new fee ordinance contains a provision allowing the clerk to waive fees for needy county residents who provide a Medicaid, county care or food stamp card or a signed affidavit based upon a general assistance or disability number.

Among the increases:

- Birth information — Birth certificate, $23, up from $15; determination of birth, $23, up from $15; birth card, $15, up from $10.
- Marriage information — Marriage license affidavit, $28, up from $20; license certification, $23, up from $15; marriage record search, $15, up from $10.
- Death information — Death certificate, $23, up from $15.

Concealed weapons registration increased from $40 to $48, though the fee remains $10 for retired police officers and police reserves.

Among commissioners, William O'Neil, D-Allen Park, Milton Mack, D-Wayne, and Susan Heintz, R-Northville Township, voted against the increase.

"I understand fees are necessary, but I do worry about where the money goes," said Heintz, who has traditionally opposed any fee increase.

Madonna drive sets $10 million as five-year goal

Sister Mary Francilene, president of Madonna College, discusses fund-raising strategy with Mike Illitch (left) of Little Caesar Enterprises Inc., Dean E. Richardson, chairman of Manufacturers National Corp., and David Treadwell, managing director of Heritage Development Group. (representing Heinz Prechter). Illitch and Prechter are co-chairing the college's fund drive. Richardson is the honorary chairman.

Madonna College has launched a five-year, $10 million fund-raising campaign with pizza mogul Mike Illitch and downriver businessman Heinz Prechter co-chairing the drive.

"It is our most comprehensive effort to date," said Sister Mary Francilene, president of the Livonia college, which has an enrollment of 4,000 students.

The $10 million figure was calculated by a long-range planning team of college administrators, deans and faculty. The college has already received $2.4 million in pledges and cash, Francilene said.

"Madonna is Michigan's most affordable independent four-year liberal arts college," Francilene said.

"Our campaign for academic excellence is based on the needs of all students and the programs and tools to assist them in developing their talents and reaching their goals."

MONEY DONATED to the campaign will go toward: student scholarships and grants ($4 million); faculty development, international studies and honors programs ($3 million); programs for disabled people, fund for high school outreach, sign language and interpreting for deaf students ($2 million).

The remaining $1 million will be spent on improving computer equipment, library automation and instruction aids for math and science projects.

"We wanted to make sure that more than one-third of our goal, actually 40 percent, would be earmarked for student scholarships and grants. Those who have the ability and ambition but who lack financial resources are our priority," Francilene said.

THE CAMPAIGN co-chairmen were chosen by the Madonna Board of Trustees.

In addition to Little Caesars Pizza, which he founded in 1959, Illitch is owner of the Detroit Red Wings. His latest acquisition is the nationally known, historic Fox Theatre.

Prechter founded American Sunroof Co. in 1965 and later branched out to three divisions. He also is founder of Heritage Network Inc., a group of southeastern Michigan companies involved in the transportation, hospitality and communications industries.

He also owns a real estate development company and a weekly newspaper chain.

"Both are benefactors of Madonna College, business leaders, and were gracious enough to accept when asked," Francilene said.

A HOST of business and education leaders were invited to a campaign kickoff breakfast at the Hotel St. Regis in Detroit late last month.

An executive committee was formed and a meeting scheduled for Nov. 14 to plan strategy. Dean Richardson, chairman of Manufacturers National Corp., was named honorary chairman.

"I'm very optimistic we will reach our goal," Francilene said. "This is a step toward a future beyond mere survival. It is a plan for continued and expanded quality."

FRANCILENE HAS been president of Madonna for 13 years. A national study of college presidents identified Francilene as one of the 100 most effective college presidents in the nation in 1987.

More than half of Madonna's student population are first-generation college students. Many transfer from area community colleges. Current undergraduate tuition is under $4,000 a year.

The 42-year old college, founded by the Felician Sisters of Livonia, has always operated with a balanced budget and no debts. The current budget is just over $14 million, with instruction accounting for almost 39 percent of expenditures.

What began as a women's college turned co-educational in 1972. Although Madonna College is a Catholic institution, Protestants, non-Christians and those affiliated with no formal religion comprise nearly half the student population.

WITH ARTHRITIS, THE END DOESN'T MEAN IT'S OVER

If you are fortunate, treatment for arthritis stops the condition. However, do not conclude that your joint problems are gone.

Rheumatoid arthritis of the hands illustrates this point. Frequently, inflammation attacks the tendons where they cross the large knuckles. The tendons lose their taut character and the fingers start to slant to the outside of the wrist, a state called ulnar drift.

Fingers that assume this position lose their strength and ability to grasp. Even if the arthritis is stopped, ulnar drift will not reverse, and is likely to worsen. The reason is that the tendons initially weakened now are stretched, causing more weakness and further tendon stretch.

Neither hand splints nor medication will stop this self-perpetuating cycle. Only surgery, which carries risks, can possibly shorten elongated tendons, repair torn joint capsules, and clear cartilage of inflammed tissues.

Similar difficulties are found in the feet, shoulders, and knees after arthritis has ended. These joints are subject to deformity from the arthritis itself, and from accelerated wear and tear thereafter.

Thus, arthritis may stop, but the concerns it brings may continue.

Disposal plan is released

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Wayne County's revised solid waste management plan isn't a question of how much, but of how.

In a compromise between a faction favoring recycling and one favoring incineration, the new county plan mandates communities must begin cutting waste 40 percent by the year 2000 — while exempting communities that have implemented weekly curbside recycling, composting and waste reduction education programs.

"We feel we've pleased everyone," said county commissioner Milton Mack, D-Wayne, who heads the county's solid waste implementation committee.

THE PLAN was being circulated to county officials Thursday and Friday.

It is expected to be placed in area public libraries prior to a public hearing 7 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 5, at the Wayne County Intermeidate Schools auditorium, 33500 Van Born, Wayne.

"We've accepted incineration as a viable option, but, in my mind, the edge goes to recycling," Mack said.

Communities that routinely recycle would be judged in compliance with the county plan, even if their total waste reduction fell below the 40 percent level.

"Even if it's 25 percent, that's still a big accomplishment," Mack said. "That means that's 25 percent less going to landfills."

OFFICIALS HAVE warned county landfill space would dry up by the end of the next decade.

Those pushing incineration, however, believe trash burning is the only way to enact massive cuts in the amount of waste going to landfills.

An initial draft would have required 75 percent cuts in each communities' trash output. At the time, many community leaders said such a requirement would force them to build costly, environmentally unpopular incinerators.

In his role as committee chairman, Mack has championed recycling and source reduction — eliminating waste by reducing unnecessary packaging.

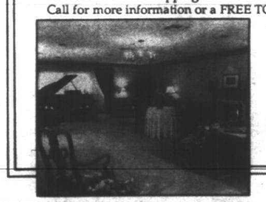

CURBSIDE RECYCLING already occurs in many East Coast and Midwestern communities.

It requires consumers to separate waste as many as a half-dozen ways, for shipment to recycling centers. Normally, glass, cardboard, plastic and metal items are disposed up separately under such a plan.

CAFE defends movie shown in school

To the editor:

CAFE is disappointed that CBE is at it again, despite the failure of their candidate in the last school board election and despite the passage of the millages over their objections. Once again they are attacking the school system for allowing the showing of the movie "Excalibur" in a British literature class. This is the same issue they have been harping on since 1986.

A newspaper photo of the signs they were carrying gives an important insight into the fallacy of their position and the real danger that CBE poses to educational excellence. One sign in the photo appears to say, "No! R-Rated;" the other clearly says, "No Porn."

This illustrates perfectly why we must resist CBE's attempts at censorship. "Excalibur" is an example of one of many treatments of the legend of King Arthur. It is an adult treatment, and it is rated R (as are many excellent movies, "Rain Man," for example). "Excalibur" is not pornography, but this important distinction doesn't seem to bother CBE's membership. Apparently, if it offends them, it's pornography. Can you imagine what it would do to the curriculum if their definitions were adopted?

The Board of Education has an excellent review process for the use of controversial materials. The current showing of "Excalibur" met this test, as it met earlier tests. CBE has shown once again why that organization should not be taken seriously when it comes to promoting better education in the Plymouth-Canton Schools.

Clean up youth soccer

To the editor:

Thank you for printing my letter to the Michigan State Youth Soccer Association regarding the increasing illegal play in soccer. If anyone wishes to write a letter, they may address it to Rick Larson, MSYSA President, c MSYSA Newsletter, 4194 Thornoaks, Ann Arbor, MI 48104.

Hopefully parents, coaches and referees can work together.

Both sides are wrong on abortion

To the editor:

With all the heat blazing in this country over the abortion issue, it reminds me of watching a football game. What an analogy, you say. Many of our politicians are like avid sports fans switching to what they feel is the winning team. A true fan goes all the way (no pun intended) win or lose.

Thousands of citizens are way out of control. They are on the sidelines wishing a lineman would crush the quarterback for a heavy loss in yardage. A spectator should simply cheer for their own side in this issue, and not try to manipulate the play.

Pro-lifers feel the only ones who become pregnant are simply promiscuous teenagers. Any pro-lifer who has stood outside an abortion clinic can tell you nearly 65 percent of all who enter are over 21 years of age. Study your own statistics.

Pro-choice must realize not all who enter an abortion clinic are not in their early stages of pregnancy. Many are in maternity clothes. Why the long delay? This is simply horrid.

Women should be allowed one abortion for whatever reason. It is the repeat offenders that bother me. If you need a second one, it is obvious you did not learn from your first mistake. At this time, it should be made mandatory you have your tubes burnt and tied. No more children you say? What a blessing in disguise.

But wait! What about all the couples waiting for adoption? How about all pro-lifers helping out in this dilemma? You only want to help, right? Here is your chance.

If all else fails, drop back and punt.

LWV head criticizes Headlee

To the editor:

Mr. Richard Headlee's concerns about school finance and possible abuse of the Michigan Constitution are misplaced. On Nov. 7, the people of Michigan will have an opportunity to say whether or not they want to make the education of the future citizens of our state a high priority by constitutionally protecting stable funding for public education in Michigan and at the same time provide significant property tax relief.

At the State Board of Canvassers meeting on Aug. 31, Richard Headlee testified that the 1978 Headlee amendment to the constitution has not worked to keep local property taxes down. I would add to his testimony that at the same time that amendment has created a real burden for public schools.

It seems that Mr. Headlee has forgotten that the people have the power to amend the constitution to meet the needs of our state and its people. His concern for funding schools seems to be limited to restricting those funds without regard for the quality of education offered. Mr. Headlee does not seem to trust local school boards, who have been elected by the people, to make decisions about curriculum and school programs.

He does not seem to be concerned that there are school districts who have as little as $2,000 per pupil while others spend over $7,000 per pupil. His letter does not support the view that we need to offer complete educational programs to all of our children so that all of them can become productive citizens — equipped to compete in today's world.

The League of Women Voters of Michigan supports Proposal B which will provide stable funding for public schools and make a beginning toward reducing the inequities among school districts. Additionally, it will provide significant relief from the most onerous of Michigan taxes, the property tax. These important reforms will be funded by a 2 cent increase in the sales tax which is currently lower than that in many other states.

The sales tax increase requires an amendment to the constitution and that requires a vote of the people. The other aspects of the proposal, which lower the property tax; call for part of the remaining property tax to be placed in a pool to be shared; and create a protected fund for public education, are set constitutionally.

The only part of the proposal which permits input from the Legislature is the provision which would permit the Legislature to adjust the formula for distribution by a two-thirds vote. This requirement of a two-thirds majority is a significant obstacle to even that adjustment. This provision was added to permit flexibility should the formula not meet the needs of our educational communities sometime in the future.

Proposal B offers the citizens of Michigan a special opportunity for property tax relief and for providing a stable source of funding for education. Let's pass Proposal B and show that the education of the children of Michigan is a high priority for the citizens of our state.

Parents have hand in making of skin heads

Jeff Counts

ONE RECENT morning a woman came into our office and identified herself as the mother of one of the so-called skin heads who have been handing out racist material at Plymouth-Canton High School.

There were things to be said about the skin heads' point of view, she said. However, when one of our reporters called later, she refused to be quoted in our story.

For me, as a parent, it was interesting to meet the mother of a skin head. I've seen them on streets and talked to them, but never to their parents. And I admit to being curious as to how a parent goes about raising a skin head.

Are they taught racism at home? Are they told nasty things about Jews? Do they make fun of the pope? What was their first haircut like?

THE WOMAN'S behavior gave me a hint as to why seemingly normal kids shave their heads and march around in black boots talking about things they really don't understand. The woman was defending her kid, reinforcing her kid's stupid behavior.

And while that could be a normal instinct for a parent, it showed me why her kid could go around acting like a skin head.

Her kid had a right to his opinions, she said. I had to agree as a newspaper person, but as a parent I was wondering how I would deal with my two sons if they started borrowing my razor for haircuts and opted for boots instead of basketball shoes.

It would probably be cheaper for me. Shaving your head at home sure beats the price of a $15 haircut in a barbershop. Also, boots from an Army surplus store have got to cost less than white high tops.

ALTHOUGH THE price would be less, I'd have to deal with the ideals that the skin head look represents. I'd have to face having my kids identify with a group that's going to do nothing but get them in trouble for a few years until they eventually grow out of it.

And I think that happens often. The political or social movements that seem so important in your youth don't seem so significant when you enter the adult world.

That's why when I see kids dressed as skin heads, squids or stoners I just want to tell them: "Give it up. You've got a lot of things to do with your life, and buying into some weird subculture isn't going to do you any good."

I HAD to restrain myself from telling that to a kid who called the newspaper. The kid identified himself as a skin head who was one of three involved in an altercation with a jock in a Canton neighborhood.

Two of the skin heads were beaten up by the jock, whom police identified as a wrestler at the school. The other skin head fled the fight scene, police said.

The confrontation between the jock and the skin heads developed because jocks at the school have been leaders in rejecting the skin heads' racial messages.

Our paper covered the story and ran an editorial lauding the jocks for being good role models.

ANYWAY, MY skin head caller objected to the editorial. Jocks really aren't good role models and police gave a distorted version of the fight with the jock, he said. He said the wrestler didn't get the better of the two skin heads in the fight.

I felt sorry for the kid after the call. He was just another kid looking for an identity.

And that's nothing new. When I was a kid some of my companions decided that walking around in Nazi uniforms and talking about a master race was the thing to do. They tried to start a street gang based on that mode of dress and those ideas. I didn't quite know how to view it at the time, but now I wonder if those kids weren't looking to start their own kind of varsity club, with their own style of varsity jacket.

Or, maybe they were just still kids playing another World War II game where they were playing dress up.

Most of them grew out of it. Maybe there's hope for the skin heads.

Group keeps memory of MIAs alive

By Marie Chestney
staff writer

Come Saturday, Veteran's Day, the thoughts and prayers of many will be on those Americans who went to fight in Vietnam and never came back.

One group, the Prisoner of War Committee of Michigan, believes some of the 2,334 Americans listed as Missing In Action in Vietnam are still alive.

Group members such as Livonia resident Dorothy Goslin spend a good portion of their time trying to keep that number before the public's eye.

"We want to get the fullest possible accounting on the missing," Goslin said. "We want a final accounting so that this chapter can be closed and the families can move on with their lives."

JIM JAGDFELD/staff photographer

The names of American servicemen who never came back from the Vietnam War appears on a T-shirt sold by the Prisoner of War Committee of Michigan. The T-shirts are sold to keep the memory of the missing prisoners of war alive.

SEVENTY-FOUR OF the 2,334 missing Americans are from Michigan.

One — Craig Dix, a 1968 graduate of Livonia Stevenson High — is from Livonia. Another, Refugio Teran, is from Westland.

Dix was in a helicopter in March 1971 when it was shot down. He was then wounded in ground gunfire and later seen in a Cambodian hospital.

Dix and Teran are two of the Americans city officials and POW group members will be remembering at 8:45 a.m. Thursday when the black POW-MIA flag is raised over Livonia City Hall.

The flag says simply, "You are not forgotten."

On hand will be an ROTC honor guard from Stevenson High.

FLYING THE MIA flag is one of the many ways the Prisoner of War Committee of Michigan keeps the memory of the missing Americans alive throughout the year.

The group also holds candlelight vigils and sells bumper stickers, patches, T-shirts and other items, all with the MIA logo. Printed on the T-shirt are the names of the missing Americans from Michigan, including those of Dix and Teran.

Money raised through these sales is then used to buy more flags and other items, all meant to reinforce the fact that 2,334 Vietnam fighters are still missing. The items are sold to keep Americans from forgetting.

"For these Americans, the war is not over," said Goslin, who became involved with the group after her nephew, Michael O'Connor, became a POW in 1966.

O'CONNOR, AFTER 5½ years in captivity, came home in 1974. Still, Goslin has never forgotten the many who didn't.

Some of the missing POWs died in Vietnam. Group members simply want their remains returned.

Others, the group believes, still are captive in work camps.

"The Vietnam government won't admit anyone is still over there," Goslin said.

But she is optimistic about the future.

"Our government eventually will break through. We're getting closer. It has to be a government-to-government type of thing. This country owes it to the men who fought for it. It's the goal that unites all of us, the faith that keeps us going."

Those wanting to order T-shirts and other items sold by the organization should contact Jean King, 2416 Harmony Drive, Burton, Mich. 48509.

Program to speak out about 'silent disease'

A program on the early detection and treatment of postmenopausal osteoporosis will be given Wednesday in Livonia.

Dr. William Conley, director of the American Osteoporosis Institute in Farmington Hills, will speak before the American Association of University Women beginning at 1 p.m. in the Monaghan Knights of Columbus hall at 19801 Farmington Road.

The purpose of the program is to alert women 40 and older to their vulnerability to the effects of the disease.

Postmenopausal osteoporosis, the so-called "silent disease," leaves many women 40 and older vulnerable to bone fractures. It is known as the silent disease because PMO often is without symptoms until a fracture occurs.

Famous feline sets visit

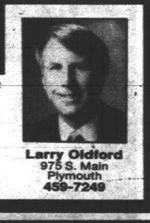

Garfield, the favorite lasagna-loving feline of comic, television and book fame, will be coming to Wonderland Mall for a special holiday edition of "Garfield Furry Tales."

The fat Garfield will appear live performing his own rendition of favorite holiday tales at 11 a.m. and 1, 3 and 5 p.m. Friday-Saturday, Dec. 8-9.

Joining in the holiday spirit will be reindeer, elves and Ebenezer Kitty as Garfield learns the true meaning of giving. All children will receive a free Garfield gift.

The mall is at Plymouth and Middlebelt roads in Livonia.

Is your health plan everything you bargained for?
You work hard. And you have a right to expect your health benefits plan to work just as hard as you do. It should be on the job when you're well, as well as when you're sick. And it should offer you the care of some of the best doctors in the area. That's why it should be Care Choices Health Plans, the health coverage plan that works.
Care Choices even works to save you money. Because with Care Choices HMO, you're covered for many kinds of preventive care, for only a small co-pay. That means your checkups are covered, and so are any immunizations, x-rays, or lab tests you or your family may need. And that adds up to a lot of good care, and a lot of savings over traditional health plans.
Of course Care Choices isn't just working to meet your needs today. You can count on it in the future, too. Because Care Choices also covers emergency care anywhere and hospitalization at some of the best hospitals around.
So talk to your benefits representative to be sure Care Choices is offered where you work. Or call 800-852-9780 or 313-489-6200 for more information. After all, you should have the security of knowing you'll get what you bargained for: a health plan that works hard for you today ... and tomorrow.

taste buds

Getting fired up over food

O.K., I'll admit it. I'm more than a foodie. The preparation seduces me. The aromas ignite a passion from within. The presentation conjures thoughts of an artist's palette strategically positioned with cherries a ruby red, pea pods a glistening emerald intermingled with an amber-emblazoned chowder.

Think about this one for a minute: Which has more allure, the first taste or the lingering finish? Is it the explosion of cherry liqueur that you enjoy when biting a chocolate-covered cherry or is it the overwhelming satisfaction emulating from a sugar rush that just satisfied your sweet tooth?

For some odd reason, I think the anticipation of a food can be even more sensual than the taste itself.

I remember the first time I tasted a truffle. Having done my homework and research, these little black beauties surely must be the epitome of mushrooms. The summit. No wonder they were $500 per pound. You needed specially trained pigs to sniff them from the ground.

I EVEN WENT out and paid $12.50 for a stainless-steel truffle slicer so that I could "shave" off tender morsels. At $31.25 per ounce, I thought they were tough, pungent and, needless to say, highly overrated for the price.

Another one of the chic foods that always sounds better than it tastes is caviar. I can't tell if it's sturgeon, salmon or carp, fish eggs are fish eggs. They taste salty and I always seem to get them stuck between my teeth, so it never fails that when I'm enjoying a slice of pie for dessert one becomes dislodged and I get that awful taste of salty fish with my next two bites of pie.

And forget the letters, folks. Yes, I have tasted Beluga, and the only thing that makes caviar go down any easier is the consistent shots of vodka.

On a recent trip to the Big Apple, I was lured to the one and only establishment that can now serve the dreaded Japanese fugu fish. Fugu is the seafood-lovers' version of Russian roulette, and if not prepared properly contains tetrodotoxin, a deadly poison that is said to kill more than 100 Japanese diners a year.

I paid $50 for about 2½ ounces of razor-thin fugu that deserved a minus two on a scale of zero to 10. It didn't taste like fish. As a matter of fact, it didn't taste like anything. Period. Zip. Nothing. For 50 bucks, all I got was a good chew and, yes, it was chewy. When I complained to a fellow foodie, I was told that fugu loses a lot when it's frozen. I felt like I lost $50.

NOT EVERYTHING chic has to be expensive. Take tofu for instance. Coming in at just under $1.59 per pound, this trendy Asian import makes its way into stir-fries, sandwiches, casseroles and even ice cream.

Honestly now, have you ever stuck your finger into a batch of tofu? Worse yet, have you ever tasted said finger after removing it from the tofu? Not only does it just sit on your tongue, it's bland, tasteless, unimaginative, boring and downright nauseating.

When you stir tofu into chili in place of meat, you get little lumps of tofu the same color the ceiling was painted in the house you grew up in. It doesn't melt, and God only knows it will never incorporate into a sauce.

But why are these chic foods so chi-chi? My guess is that there will always be folks like me who will be dumb enough to plop down 50 bucks a crack to sample what some culinary guru from the West Coast says is de rigueur.

This is only a smattering of what some folks call trendy foods. Yes, it's my job, and for the sake of my job, I will continue to sample the likes of goose livers, thymus glands and chili-stuffed hot dogs that plump when you cook 'em. But just between you and me, I'll always welcome the sight of a BLT, the aroma of a bowl of Momma's bean soup and a tall, cool, frosty A&W root beer with a scoop of artificially flavored vanilla ice milk floating on top. Bon appetit!

A healthy grocery bag

By Larry Janes
special writer

THE HEALTH FOOD store of yesterday, which seemed to cater to the likes of folks in tie-dyed T-shirts and Earth shoes, is slowly being replaced by the larger, more upscale and much more diversified natural food stores of today.

Whereas before, "health-food"-type stores stocked an assortment of vitamins, supplements and occasional packs of tofu (bean curd), the full-line natural food markets now cater to families who predominately spend almost 50 percent of their weekly food budget on items like soy milk, organically grown veggies, and plastic cartons brimming with vegetarian tabbouleh, hummus, brown rice dishes and an occasional oat bran muffin.

Today's shopper for these gourmet, natural-food havens can find aisles chock-full of all-natural, fruit-flavored cereals even the Janes gang kids love, naturally fruit-sweetened cookies and treats, and an assortment of flours ranging from whole wheat to cracked wheat to barley, not to mention healthy-for-you canned products ranging from soup to nuts.

Speaking of nuts, health food groceries stock one of the most complete assortment of nuts available — raw cashews, pine nuts, walnut-flavored oil and even nut flour.

AND YOU THOUGHT today's health food stores were mainly filled with vitamins and supplements? Look again. Betty's Grocery at 877 S. Hunter in Birmingham has been in existence for more than 14 years. The store's trade has grown from basic health foods to a full line of canned goods, bakery items, organic produce, organic poultry, herbs, dairy products and even a deli, all specially earmarked for the health-conscious shopper.

Stacey Hessen, store buyer and deli manager, started working for Betty's more than four years ago. At that time, she was some 80 pounds overweight and her diet consisted mainly of pizzas and Cokes. Today, she is a svelte, vivacious young woman who follows a vegetarian re-

Her cookbooks a way for sharing recipes

Updated version published

By Arlene Funke
special writer

The Redford woman with a big heart is at it again.

Ann Miller has produced her second collection of mouth-watering recipes. She is selling copies to benefit Children's Hospital of Michigan research projects into all forms of childhood cancer.

The book, "Sharing Recipes II," is selling for $6 per copy. Proceeds from sales of the softcover book will be given to the fund-raising organization Leukemia, Research, Life, Inc.

"I don't look at it as much from the profit standpoint," said Miller, a retired Michigan Bell Telephone Co. operator.

"The more books we can sell, the better. It's good for public relations and a little extra way of raising money. If we can sell some cookbooks, we can save a few kids."

Miller and her husband, James, a tool and die welder with Tel-X in Garden City, are eight-year members of Leukemia, Research, Life, Inc.

The non-profit organization sponsors several fund-raisers annually to support ongoing research projects at Children's Hospital.

"Sharing Recipes II" contains approximately 250 recipes. Its cover is white with royal-blue lettering and graphics. Miller compiled an earlier cookbook in 1985. That edition, with a blue-and-yellow cover, sold 2,200 copies.

"WHY DID I update it?" Miller said. "People would say, 'Are you going to to do another one?' A lot of people told me they like the cookbook because it contains people's favorite recipes."

The cookbook features several of Miller's own favorite recipes, including the unusual, molded potato salad that won Miller first prize in the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers contest last year.

"I really like that one because it's different," Miller said of her winning recipe. "Although a lot of people prefer creamy potato salad."

For Miller's new cookbook, her daughter, Betty Fryer of Westland, contributed a recipe for Swiss chicken casserole.

Janie Grandinett of Livonia — another active member of Leukemia, Research, Life — chipped in with her recipe for low-cholesterol baked chicken with sweet-and-spicy sauce.

"There are so many good things in here," said Miller, who has tried many of the recipes herself. "A day doesn't go by that I don't pick the book up and look at it."

MILLER HAS successfully solicited recipes from celebrities and politicians for inclusion in the book. President George Bush obliged by sending a recipe for all-American clam chowder. Miller tried it and gives the recipe a thumbs-up.

Columnist Ann Landers sent her recipe for lemon pie. Britain's Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher sent a recipe for her favorite orange and walnut cake.

The Millers don't have a child suffering from leukemia. They are simply among the legions of people who are concerned about finding a treatment or cure for childhood cancers.

The couple has two grown daughters and a grown son, and "six healthy grandchildren," according to Miller.

BUT THE Millers have experienced their own tragedy — the death of their oldest son, John, 10 years ago at age 29. He was struck and killed while riding a bicycle.

Working to raise money for cancer research has helped channel some of the grief, Miller said. And the entire family has rallied to the cause.

"You do open yourself to hurt," said Miller, who has comforted friends whose children have died.

But she has also rejoiced with others, such as David and Janie Grandinetti, whose son Scott's leukemia is in remission.

"I think it helps if you have personally lost a child through illness or accident," Miller said. "You know what feelings come and go, and I think it helps."

Cooking also is therapeutic for Miller, who pulls out the stew pots and baking tins when she needs diversion.

For several years, Miller has handled major baby-sitting chores for grandsons Christopher Fryer, 6, and his brother Scott, 3. She likes to get the boys into the kitchen to measure spices and crack eggs.

THE LEUKEMIA research group puts on several fund-raisers each year. These include a March dinner dance, which this year raised almost $30,000.

The group also had a golf outing, sponsored by a police officers organization, and a sock hop in St. Clair Shores.

The Millers also are involved in other charitable work. Jim Miller, who served in the U.S. Navy, is a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Ann Miller is a former counselor with RALY (Redford Assisting Local Youth), which works with troubled youths.

Ann Miller is a former hospice volunteer with Angela Hospice. The hospice, affiliated with Madonna College, gives comfort and friendship to terminal patients in their homes.

Ann Miller is a member of the Telephone Pioneers of America, a philanthropic group among communications workers. And she is an advocate for the handicapped at her parish, St. John Bosco Catholic Church of Redford.

Both Millers are active in the Livonia Civitans.

Where book is available

"Sharing Recipes II" is available at several local shops in Redford. It also may be ordered by mail.

The book, which contains some 250 recipes, also has weights and measurement charts, baking tips, calorie counts and other useful information. The softcover book costs $6.

Copies may be purchased at deRos Delicacies, 25533 Five Mile Road, east of Beech-Daly Road, and Designs on You hair salon, 25850 Plymouth Road, between Beech-Daly and Inkster roads.

The cookbook also may be ordered by mail. Send check or money order in amount of $7 (cost of book plus postage), payable to Leukemia, Research, Life Inc. Print full name and complete address and send order to Mrs. James (Ann) Miller, 13500 Garfield, Redford 48239.

Contributions, which are tax-deductible, will benefit the non-profit organization. Group meetings, which are open to the public, are held at 7:30 p.m. the second Monday of each month at Children's Hospital of Michigan.

ANN MILLER'S MOLDED POTATO SALAD
(First-prize winning entry in the Observer & Eccentric's potato-salad recipe contest in June 1988)

2-3 tablespoons white wine vinegar
1 (7-ounce) envelope Good Seasons mild Italian salad dressing mix
3 cups cooked potatoes, diced
2-3 strips bacon, cooked and crumbled
½ cup minced onion
1 (three ounce) package lemon Jell-O
1 cup boiling water
¼ cup cold water
1½ cups mayonnaise

Combine vinegar and dressing mix. Add potatoes, bacon and onion. Chill around 1 hour. Dissolve Jell-O in boiling water, stirring until clear. Add cold water and blend in mayonnaise. Chill until mixture lumps when stirred. Fold Jell-O mixture into potato mixture. Turn into 6-cup mold or metal bowl. Chill until firm, at least 3 hours. Unmold onto plate and garnish as desired. Serves 8-10.

ALL-AMERICAN CLAM CHOWDER
3 slices bacon
½ cup minced onions
1 (7½ ounce) can minced clams (save clam juice)
1 cup cubed potatoes
1 can cream of celery soup
1½ cups milk
dash of pepper

Cook bacon in frying pan until crisp. Remove and break into 1-inch pieces. Brown onions in bacon fat. Add clam juice and potatoes. Cover and cook over low heat until potatoes are done (about 15 minutes). Blend in bacon pieces, minced clams and other ingredients. Heat but do not boil. Bacon may be used for garnish.

BETTY FRYER'S SWISS CHICKEN QUICHE
2 cups cubed chicken
1 (9-inch) unbaked pastry shell
2 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon chicken-flavor instant bouillon
1 cup shredded swiss cheese
3 eggs, beaten
¼ cup chopped onion
2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento
1 cup milk

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Bake pastry shell for 8 minutes. Remove from oven. Reduce oven temperature to 350 degrees. In medium bowl toss cheese with flour and bouillon. Add remaining ingredients. Mix well. Pour into pastry shell. Bake for 40-45 minutes or until set. Let stand for 10 minutes before serving. Serves 6.

MARLYS KOSCIOLEK'S BUSTER BAR DESSERT
¾ package Oreo cookies, crushed
¼ pound butter, melted
½ gallon vanilla ice cream
2 cups powdered sugar
1 cup evaporated milk
⅔ cup chocolate chips
½ cup margarine
1 teaspoon vanilla

Put crushed Oreos and melted butter in a 9-by-13-inch pan. Place softened ice cream on the crust and put in freezer. Bring powdered sugar, evaporated milk, chocolate chips and margarine to a gentle boil in saucepan for 8 minutes. Remove from heat. Add vanilla. Cool. Put on top of ice cream. Garnish with peanuts. Freeze.

For a healthy grocery bag

gime and reads all she can about vitamins, natural foods and natural food cookbooks.

Hessen is one of 14 store employees who strictly adheres to a healthy lifestyle, mainly to maintain her health but also to help educate her buying public. As with most of the Betty's employees, she can answer just about any question concerning natural cuisine for her demanding customers.

Hessen claims that Betty's Grocery services a well-diversified customer, ranging in age from eight to 80. "We like to think of Betty's as a full-line grocery specializing in natural foods," says Hessen. "Sure, many of our customers come in looking for exotic herbs, vitamins and supplements, but now that we have expanded to include a deli, bakeshop and full-line dairy, we can cater to just about everyone looking for a more healthy lifestyle."

SHE ADDS, "We're seeing more men, especially with the popularity of weight gain and body building products that are presently the rage."

The average customer at Betty's Grocery spends between $30-$40 at the checkout. If the shopping carts are filled with Amish-raised chickens from Indiana and organically raised fruits and vegetables without a trace of pesticides, not to be outdone is the library and literature section. Here, customers can browse through their favorite natural reading materials and get information on supplements and vegetarian diet regimes.

Clear across town is the venerable Good Food Company in Livonia. "We just celebrated our five-year anniversary," says Joe Defranco, general manager. At 33251 W. Eight Mile Road in the northern part of Livonia, the Good Food Company is to the west side as Betty's is to the northern suburbs. Defranco is quick to point out that the Good Food Company is unlike most health food stores, and places its emphasis on food more than vitamins.

"Sure, we carry everything the naturalist demands with regards to herbs, vitamins and supplements, but we try to make more of an effort, giving our customers the freshest, organically raised produce, dairy and deli items in the area" Defranco says.

For moral reasons, the Good Food Company refuses to stock meat items, even those organically raised. After a recent visit, this writer was surprised to see the vast array of dairy items, in addition to organically grown produce. Defranco says Good Foods' main competition is the larger-chain groceries such as Farmer Jack, which has recently jumped on the natural food bandwagon.

BOTH DEFRANCO and Stacey Hessen of Betty's believe their stores are far superior to the larger chains, mainly because of the knowledgeable salespeople that come with the territory. Although you don't have to be a vegetarian to be employed at either location, both stores stress that the employees usually adapt to a healthier lifestyle after their initial indoctrinations.

In general, the average shopper at either of these two unique groceries can expect to pay about 50 percent more for organically raised produce. Canned goods and processed foods are about 40 percent more expensive, mainly due in part to the specialized production methods, natural ingredients and special handling required. Both locations have oodles of literature on all aspects of healthy living, including information on massage, body building, herbology, supplements and all-around alternative healthy lifestyles.

MISSING EGG SALAD
(no eggs, but tastes just as good)

1 pound fresh tofu, drained and rinsed
¼ cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
2 tablespoons soy sauce or tamari
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
1 teaspoon tumeric (for color)
3 tablespoons finely chopped onion
3 tablespoons finely chopped celery

Combine all ingredients in a non-metallic bowl. Mash with a fork, mix well, cover and refrigerate at least for 1 hour before serving.

CHILLED TABBOULEH SALAD

1½ cups dry bulgur wheat
1 cup hot water
1 cup fresh chopped parsley
1 large tomato, diced
4 bunch green onions, diced
1 cup garbanzo beans, drained salt and pepper to taste
⅓ cup oil
¼ cup fresh lemon juice (or more to taste)

Place dry bulgur wheat in a glass bowl. Add just enough hot water to cover. Let stand for 30 minutes or until all the liquid is absorbed. Flake bulgur with fork. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. Cover and chill for at least 1 hour before serving.

MIXED GRAIN BALLS
(just like meatballs; but with no meat)

¾ cup cornmeal
¼ cup rye flour
½ cup whole wheat flour
¼ cup soy flour
1 small onion, minced fine
1 clove garlic, minced
2 teaspoons soy sauce
1 tablespoon oil
½ to ¾ cup water or broth

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Combine cornmeal, all flours, onion, garlic and salt. Stir in soy sauce and ½ cup water, mixing well until dough is moist and slightly sticky. If dry, add water or broth by the tablespoon until desired consistency is reached. Form balls using a generous tablespoon of mixture for each. Keep hands moist while working, using cold water to prevent sticking. Place the balls in a generously oiled baking dish. Roll in the oil to coat, then bake for 20-25 minutes until firm and golden.

SPAGHETTI ROAST
(makes great use of leftover pasta)

2 cups cooked pasta
1 medium onion, chopped
¾ cup soft breadcrumbs
¾ cup chopped nuts or seeds
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon minced parsley
½ teaspoon poultry seasoning
2 eggs, lightly beaten

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Cut spaghetti into small pieces. Combine with remaining ingredients and mix well. Shape into 4 mounds on an oiled baking sheet. Drizzle a small amount of oil on top. Bake for 35 minutes until firm and browned. Serves 4.

family-tested winner dinner

Nutritious meal helps getting over Halloween

Phew, it's over! The pumpkins carved with such excitement and anticipation have bit the dust and hit the garbage can.

The costumes once again assembled at the last minute are resting in peace in the attic, ready to be resurrected and recycled next year.

And now, as I pull down the last fake spider web and stash the bats, I can finally reward myself for making it through another Halloween by savoring snitched candy from my sons' Trick or Treat bags. I hate to admit it but, after all, what would Halloween be without candy?

That's enough sweet talk. The reason I'm here is to present one Family-Tested Winner Dinner each week, based on the premise that each family has at least one or two dinners everyone in the family likes and will eat.

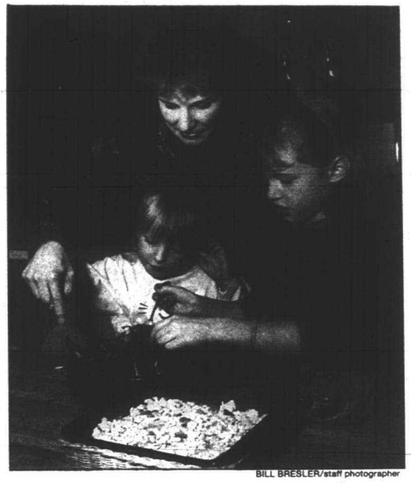

It is not difficult to get children to eat candy but getting them to eat a nutritious dinner can be a real challenge. Thus, I encourage you to send in your family's favorite dinner menu because what works for your family may work for others as well.

THIS WEEK'S Winner Dinner, Chicken Souffle Casserole submitted by Patti Devine of Plymouth, is truly divine and delicious. The mother of two young girls, Devine works full-time as a speech therapist in Ann Arbor. With an hour-long commute each day to contend with, Devine particularly likes this casserole, as it is made a day in advance and all she has to do when she comes home from work is pop it in the oven and let it bake.

She likes to serve it with steamed broccoli spears and a spinach salad filled with all kinds of interesting things. Devine has served this versatile dish to company as well as to her family, and even takes it on the road to potluck parties and to welcome home new babies and their weary moms.

Thank to Devine for sharing her family's Winner Dinner. Hopefully, it will uplift sagging culinary spirits and please palates across the land.

Submit your recipes, to be considered for publication in this column or elsewhere, to: Winner Dinner, P.O. Box 3503, Birmingham 48012. Please include a complete dinner, with recipes as needed. All submissions become the property of the publisher.

SPINACH SALAD

Recipes

CHICKEN SOUFFLE CASSEROLE

This delicious casserole takes minutes to put together once the chicken has been cooked and cubed. It should be prepared a day in advance of when you would like to serve it.

7 slices of white bread, crusts removed
4 cups cooked chicken, cut into bite-sized pieces (I used 2 whole breasts)
½ cup or more sliced mushrooms
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 (5-ounce) can of sliced, drained water chestnuts
8 ounces grated sharp cheddar cheese
4 eggs
1½ cup milk
½ cup mayonnaise
1 (2-ounce) jar of chopped pimento
1 can cream of celery soup
1 can cream of mushroom soup
2 cups buttered bread crumbs (These can be made from the crusts by placing the crusts on a baking sheet and baking them at 250 degrees for 15 minutes or until lightly browned. Place the crusts in a zip-seal plastic bag and roll with a rolling pin until crusts are crushed.)

Use a non-stick spray on a 13-by-9-inch baking dish. Line the bottom of the dish with the crustless bread. If using fresh mushrooms, saute in butter for 5 minutes. Place the chicken on top of the bread, followed by a layer of mushrooms and then water chestnuts. Top with grated cheese. Beat the eggs with milk and pour over all. Mix the soups, mayonnaise and pimentos together and spread over the top. Cover and refrigerate overnight. Bake at 325 degrees uncovered for 1½ hours. Sprinkle the bread crumbs on top during the last 15 minutes of baking.

STEAMED BROCCOLI SPEARS

Wash broccoli and remove the large leaves and the tough part of the stalks. Steam in 1 inch of water in a tightly covered saucepan until it is barely tender, 10-12 minutes. Serve as is or sprinkled with a little melted butter or margarine.

A choice of the following ingredients can be used with fresh, washed spinach:
bean sprouts
chopped hard-boiled eggs crisp bacon pieces
sliced water chestnuts chopped green onions and tops mandarin orange sections or pineapple bits

Dressing

Mix together and refrigerate 2 or more hours:
½ cup vegetable oil
½ cup sugar
⅓ cup catsup
¼ cup vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon paprika
1 teaspoon A-1 Sauce
1 small chopped onion or ½ teaspoon onion powder

Shopping List

white bread
2 whole chicken breasts mushrooms (fresh or canned)
2 (5-ounce) cans sliced water chestnuts
1 (2-ounce) jar chopped pimentos
1 (11-ounce can) mandarin oranges or pineapple bits
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1 can cream of celery soup
mayonnaise
8 ounces grated sharp cheddar cheese
milk butter or margarine
1 bag fresh spinach
1 bunch broccoli
1 bunch green onions
bacon

Christmas cards help charities fight illness

As a public service, the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers annually publishes samplers of holiday cards sold by non-profit organizations.

These cards, which help support the research and programs of the organizations, are greetings that continue to give all year.

In addition, scrapbooks of the cards are maintained at the five Observer & Eccentric offices at: 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia; 33203 Grand River, Farmington; 410 N. Main, Rochester; 744 Wing, Plymouth; and 805 E. Maple, Birmingham.

The cards featured today are those of area health organizations. Holiday cards featured on this page can be ordered as follows:

Arthritis Foundation: Six styles are offered; there are 25 cards per box. The style shown is $10.75. To order, call the Arthritis Foundation, Michigan Chapter, 350-3030, in Southfield. The foundation helps patients, families, health professionals and the general public through programs of research, patient services, public education and professional training.

Cystic Fibrosis Foundation: A box has 25 cards; the style shown is $16.50 a box. There are 12 styles of the Cystic Fibrosis "Breath of Life" greeting cards; they help benefit children born with cystic fibrosis, an inherited and presently incurable disease. Cards support research, care and education programs for these children. Cards range from $16.50 to $27.25. Checks are payable to Cystic Fibrosis Foundation, Metro Detroit Chapter, 20300 Center Drive, Suite 304, Southfield. Call the foundation, 354-6565 for more information.

Children's Leukemia Foundation: There are six styles of cards; all boxes contain 25 cards. The style shown is $10 a box. Make checks payable to Children's Leukemia Foundation of Michigan, 19022 W. 10 Mile, Southfield 48075. The Children's Leukemia Foundation serves both adults and children. As well as aiding in patient support, the foundation contributes to serious blood disease research, with the goal of finding a cure for leukemia and blood diseases.

Muscular Dystrophy Association: There are three styles of cards; a box of 25 is $14. Make checks payable to Muscular Dystrophy Association, 20270 Middlebelt, Suite 5, Livonia 48152, or call 476-2920.

Southeastern Michigan SIDS Foundation: Three cards are available this year, a box of 25 is $10. Check is payable to National SIDS Foundation. For home delivery via UPS, call Jan Maloney, Southeast Michigan SIDS Foundation chairwoman, at 549-8215 after 6 p.m. Cards may also be picked up 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 7, at The Community House in Birmingham, at its holiday card display event.

American Cancer Society: The American Cancer Society offers a set of 12 secular and religious cards geared for business and personal use. A box of 25 ranges in price from $11 to $19. Imprinting is available. Buy cards or obtain a brochure at Wayne County office, 6701 Harrison, Garden City 425-6830; or Oakland County office, 29350 Southfield Road, Southfield, 48076, 557-5353.

Salem whips CC but loses star for semi

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Jeff Gold is considered the best player on the Plymouth Salem soccer team but not the only quality player, he wants people to know.

His affirmation will be put to the test Wednesday when the Rocks meet Portage Northern at 2 p.m. in a Class A semifinal game at Okemos High School.

Gold, who scored two goals Saturday to help Salem defeat Redford Catholic Central 5-1 and win its first regional championship, received a red card and will have to sit out the next game.

But it wasn't necessarily a costly victory, according to Salem coach Ken Johnson and Gold.

"As long as he's alive for the next game, I'm sure the boys will carry the game for him," Johnson said. "I think we have such overall strength, the boys will be there for him. He'll still be the emotional leader."

Gold, who put the Rocks on top 2-0 in the first half, pointed to the fact his teammates, after his ejection, scored three quick goals without his help to ice the victory.

"WE HAVE guys on the bench who can fill in easily," said Gold, who has scored a team-leading 30 goals and has 19 assists. "I'm confident we'll be fine."

With the Rocks leading 2-1 early in the second half, Salem had a man advantage after CC's Scott Leadbetter was red-carded for pushing Gold to the ground.

That was nullified a short time later when referee Steven DiClemente sent Gold to the sideline. Gold was carrying the ball into CC territory when he got tangled among three Shamrocks. CC defender Chris Williams had to leave the game after being shaken up on the play.

"One of their guys pushed me into one of their players," Gold said. "He fell over the guy laying on the ground and kicked him in the head. But the ref said I stepped on his face because he didn't see it.

"It's kinda upsetting because I didn't do anything. But right now it doesn't mean anything. A 5-1 win against this team is great."

Gold said he told his teammates at the beginning of the season Salem (17-3-1) would have to beat either Livonia Stevenson, Livonia Churchill or CC — or possibly two of the three — to win a state title. The No. 5-rated Rocks faced No. 2 Stevenson and the No. 3 Shamrocks (18-3-1) in the regional.

"The guys were kinda scared of CC earlier in the year," Gold said. "They have nine players on the state team, a lot of known players, and that was kinda intimidating.

"AS A TEAM, they talked about how they were going to beat us. But (my teammates) just came out today and showed them who the real team is."

Following the game that included physical play on both sides and the issuance of three red cards — CC's Jim Bernthal received the other — and four yellow cards, CC coach John Boots was not impressed by what he saw from the Rocks.

"They're the dirtiest team we've played this year," he said. "I've got one kid in the hospital and four others limping. That's not skill (the Rocks used to win the game); they just beat the hell out of us.

"They've got two or three decent players, and the rest kick the ball and run to it. But it's efficient.

"I'm just not impressed with them," he added. "They won the game, but they don't play good soccer."

Johnson said Boots is entitled to his opinion but thought the Shamrocks were just as rough. He added his team's only intention is to play tough soccer.

"The boys are told never to hurt anyone deliberately," Johnson said. "I wouldn't stand for it."

SHORTLY AFTER Gold's departure, Bill Joker gave the Rocks a 3-1 lead with a hard shot from 25 yards out front. The ball bounced off the hands of CC goalkeeper J.P. Angell and dropped behind him.

A quick switch led to an even greater turn in momentum for the Rocks.

Tom Baker made a big play, heading the ball away from the Salem goal, and Andy Cosenza picked it up at midfield where two CC defenders collided and fell. That allowed Cosenza to go 1-on-1 with Angell, and he maneuvered around Angell for a 4-1 score after the goalkeeper committed himself.

Then, less than a minute later, Greg Christensen took a cross off a free kick and scored the final goal on a header.

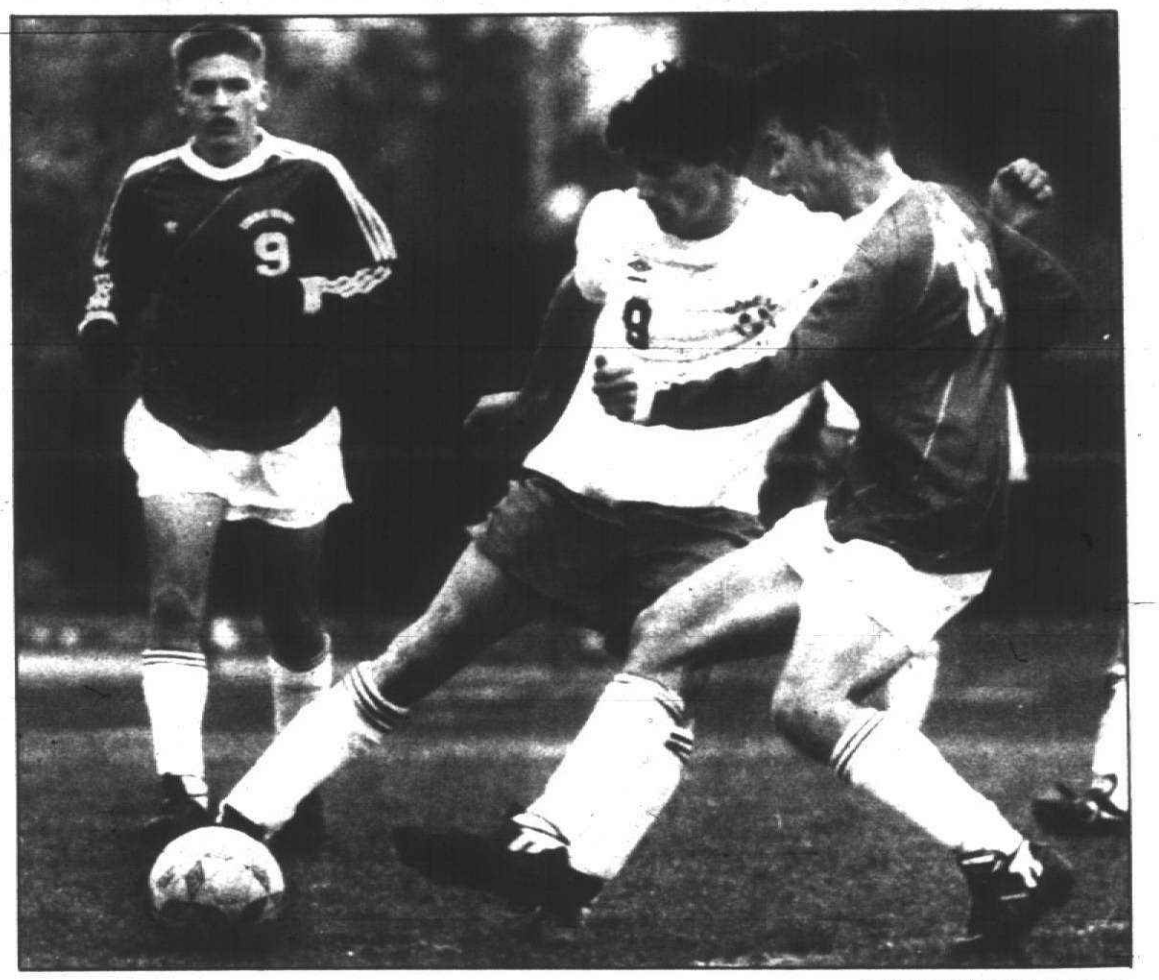

In tournament play, the Rocks have seen their fortunes do a 180-degree turnabout from late in the regular season when they couldn't score despite dominating games. Salem has averaged nearly five goals in five post-season contests.

"Every goal we've scored has been an opportunistic goal," Johnson said. "We're following up, taking every possible chance."

"It's not one player," said Gold, citing the team effort. "It's just incredible. The team has come together and is playing as one, and it's just awesome."

Gold's goals sparked Salem in the first half.

"I felt it was our game after (Gold scored twice into the wind)," Johnson said. "That was all speed, opportunism, anticipation on his part."

Jeff Gold of Salem (9) scored both first-half goals for the Rocks, who led 2-1 at halftime and eventually won 5-1 over Catholic Central. Gold also was red-carded and will miss the semifinal game Wednesday. CC players are Jon Petoskey (left) and Mike Duffy.

Chiefs finish in 3-way tie for top place

swimming

Plymouth Canton won its dual-meet finale Thursday in girls swimming to tie Northville and Livonia Churchill for the Western Division championship.

The Chiefs, who won eight events, whipped host Livonia Franklin 110-61 to finish with an 8-2 overall record. The Chiefs, the Mustangs and the Chargers were 4-1 in the division.

Canton began the meet by winning the medley relay. Cassie Cummins, Val Gildhaus, Chris Lang and Tami Santomauro combined for a 2:03.21 time.

The next successes occurred in the 200 and 50 freestyles, in which Sonya McWhirter was clocked at 2:18.02 and Jennifer Cooper 27.10, respectively. The intermission saw Canton's Becky Hoisington compile 203.90 diving points to win that event.

The Chiefs next won the 100 and 500 freestyles with Christy Geddes swimming 1:04.68 and Renee DeBell 6:11.08, respectively. Kristy Brugar was the backstroke winner in 1:09.82.

Canton concluded the evening with a winning time of 4:00.43 in the freestyle relay, the team of Kelly Rische, Janet Roberts, Cooper and Nicole Drake comprising the unit.

Franklin firsts came from Christine Scott in the individual medley (2:31.08), Jennifer Beardslee in the butterfly (1:04) and Jenny Fisher in the breaststroke (1:17).

FARMINGTON SWIMMERS set two school records and qualified both relays for the state meet Thursday despite losing 100-71 to host Plymouth Salem.

The Rocks, who will be host for the Western Lakes Activities Association meet this week, finished 3-2 in the Lakes Division and 6-6 in all dual meets.

The WLAA preliminaries are at 2 p.m. Wednesday, the diving at 4 p.m. Thursday and the finals at 7 p.m. Friday.

Tanya Slicker of Farmington posted a record 252.45 points to win the diving, and Katie Hohl swam 54.90 to break Kim Pouge's record (set in 1985) in the 100 freestyle. Hohl also was on both relay teams.

Hohl, Missy Kendall, Nicole Geratowski and Jill Hawkins won the medley relay in 1:59.56, and it was Hohl, Kendall, Hawkins and Laura Hryczyk winning the freestyle relay in 3:50.87.

"We had some outstanding performances," Farmington coach Ross Bandy said. "I'm just thrilled to death. The ones who've been loyal over the last four years are reaping the rewards.

"It was the last shot for the 200 medley relay to qualify. I expected it of the freestyle relay; it was just a matter of time."

Kendall and Hawkins also had individual victories. Kendall won the butterfly with a 1:06.48 time and Hawkins the 50 freestyle in 26.65.

Salem, prevailing with superior depth, won five individual events, including Cheri Vincent's school-record swim in the 100 backstroke. She broke her own record with a 1:03.27 time.

Julie Hickey and Kristen Stackpoole helped the Rocks early in the meet with victories in the 200 freestyle and individual medley. Hickey went 2:10.49 in the former and Stackpoole 2:26.6 in the latter.

Jane Seidelman and Megan Andrews added two more wins for Salem later in the meet. Seidelman

CEP cagers gain semis

Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem advanced to the semifinals of the Western Lakes Activities Association girls basketball tournament with victories Thursday.

Canton, champion of the Western Division, will play North Farmington on the road at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday. The Chiefs rebounded from their two-point loss to Livonia Franklin two days earlier to whip Westland John Glenn 64-50.

Salem, co-champion of the Lakes Division with North, will face Franklin at home Tuesday. The Rocks stifled host Northville 37-21 Thursday to run their record to 11-7.

Senior center Susan Ferko scored 26 points to lead Canton to its 15th victory in 18 games. Stacey Thompson added 12 points, and Jenny Russell had one of her best offensive nights with 10.

North wins 44-36, Page 2C

"The kids did a nice job of getting the ball inside to Ferko," Canton coach Bob Blohm said.

Cathy Mruk scored 13 points and Carrie Rachwal 12 for the Rockets, 6-12. The Chiefs led 34-21 at halftime and 50-33 after three quarters.

Glenn made 14 of 21 free throws, but the Chiefs still won easily despite being 5-of-7 at the line.

Defense played a big role in Salem's win. The Rocks held Northville to a Katie Houstein free throw in the first quarter while building a 10-point advantage.

Salem, which led 18-7 at halftime and 27-17 after three quarters, got 11 points from both Emily Giuliani and Sarah Ruete. Houstein had 10 to lead the Mustangs, 10-8.

"I thought our defense played well most of the night, but I thought they missed some makeable shots, too," Salem coach Fred Thomann said. "When they came with pressure, we broke it and got some easy transition baskets."

FARMINGTON 53, HARRISON 26: Sophomore guard Mandy Cannon scored 19 points to lead the Falcons to victory over their crosstown rivals.

Farmington, 5-13, also got nine points from Erika Hatcher, and Shari Barnes scored 11 to lead the Hawks, 2-13.

The Falcons raced to an 18-7 lead in the opening quarter and maintained that margin with an 18-12 difference in the middle periods. Farmington, 8-of-21 at the free-throw line, outscored Harrison 17-7 in the finale. The Hawks made six of 18 free throws.

Ocelots put past behind them

Schoolcraft sports

Expect a different look from Schoolcraft College's mens basketball team this season.

One telltale sign that things will be different is coach Dave Bogataj's attitude.

"I don't sound like my usual optimistic self, do I?" Bogataj said after describing his '89-90 squad. "I still am, but I'm a little more of a realist after the last two years.

"I do think we'll be a better team than last year."

A coach like Bogataj has needed his optimism the last couple of seasons. He came to SC as a last-minute replacement for Bob Wetzel just before the 1987-88 season. The results were predictable; recruiting problems, academic problems, and an 8-21 record.

Last year, Bogataj was more hopeful. He had been on the job a full year, he had some promising recruits, and although he wasn't predicting a championship, he figured the Ocelots could reach .500.

Then came the end of the first semester in January. Seven players were lost, four to academic deficiencies and three others who just quit. The result: another dismal season and a 6-24 record.

Anyone's optimism would be tempered after two such disappointments. And yet, this year Bogataj has better reason to approach the season with high hopes than any other.

INDEED, THIS group of Ocelots is better than any since Rocky Watkins left as coach in 1986.

There's experience, with six sophomores returning; there's talent, according to Bogataj ("We're in a position where we're going to play eight or nine kids"); there's size, with four players standing 6-foot-5 or better; and, best of all, there's depth, with 14 names on the roster.

Of course, one pivotal question remains: Are there grades? Can these guys cut it academically?

"We're going to be fine," Bogataj said when asked about the Ocelots' past academic troubles. "We'll be all right."

One reason for his assuredness is SASS — the Student-Athlete Support System, a program designed to make certain athletes are fulfilling their academic requirements. Included is a weekly check; if a player stumbles in the classroom, he can't play until he gets back on track.

"I know it's forced learning," Bogataj said. "But at least we've got them opening their books. Hopefully we won't have the devastation we had last year."

That would be a major victory in itself. And it will result in some on-court victories, as well.

BECAUSE THERE'S another factor to consider as SC opens its '89-90 campaign 5:15 p.m. Wednesday against Siena Heights junior varsity in Adrian: With 14 wins in 59 games over the past two years, the Ocelots should be seeing red every time the ball goes up to start a game.

"I think that ate at the kids," Bogataj said. "People came out and just flat beat us. (The sophomores) have played a lot of basketball this summer. They came in in shape. They were ready.

"But besides working on their own game, they've been taking the freshmen aside and basically telling them, 'We're not going to put up with what happened last year.' "

But can the players he has change that history?

Six who started some time during last season are back (of course, almost everyone got a shot at starting for SC last year).

The biggest is Al Hudson, a 6-foot-7 center who would be better suited to forward. Still, Hudson, from Romulus, averaged 10 points and nine rebounds per game and, Bogataj said, "has really worked at his game."

Ken Fuster, a 6-2 guard from River Rouge, also returns. Fuster averaged 12 ppg last year. Rob Harmon (6-3 from Redford Bishop Borgess), Mike Mercer (5-10 from Southgate Aquinas) and John Moran (6-1 from Allen Park Cabrini) are back, too; each averaged approximately eight points a game last season.

ANOTHER RETURNEE is Ed Hudson, a 6-3 forward from Royal Oak Shrine who was leading the Ocelots in scoring (16 ppg) when he was sidelined by poor grades last January.

Among the newcomers who could crack the starting lineup are Tony Rumple, a 6-0 guard from Wayne Memorial; Jeff Elliott, a 6-3 guard-forward from Plymouth Salem; and Randy Waters, a 6-4 rebounder from Milford-Lakeland.

Sean Hansen, a 6-2 guard from Berkley, is expected to contribute when he recovers from a broken jaw suffered in a batting cage accident in August.

Others Bogataj is counting on are 6-7, 240-pound Butch Layow (Whitmore Lake), who will back up Al Hudson and provide inside defense and muscle; 6-5 forward Dave Hamilton (Taylor Center); 6-5 forward Chris Hebner (Wayne Memorial); and 6-1 guard Tom Progar (Dearborn Divine Child).

"We're deeper on the bench, and a little taller," Bogataj said. "I hope we can finish in the middle of the (Eastern Conference) pack. I'm optimistic we're going to be very competitive."

Scoring duo lifts North to victory

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Trying to prevent Eve Claar and Kim Gurecki from scoring points is trying to do the impossible.

That's why North Farmington is 15-3 this year and in the semifinals of the Western Lakes Activities Association girls basketball tournament.

Claar and Gurecki combined for 37 points Thursday as the Raiders trimmed host Walled Lake Western 44-36 in the first round.

"I've seen every top team in the county, and they have the best backcourt in the county," Western coach Bill St. John said. "I don't think anybody touches them in what they do for their team.

"Everybody knows they're going to be 85 percent of their total output, but you can't stop them."

The Raiders, co-champions of the Lakes Division, will play host to Western Division winner Plymouth Canton at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday. The final is scheduled for 8 p.m. Saturday at Plymouth Salem.

CLAAR SCORED a game-high 21 points, which included a pair of triples, and Gurecki, who made five free throws at the end to seal the victory, 16. Center Vikki Seamons added five points.

Laura Call had 10 points to lead the Warriors, 10-7. April Blanton added eight points, Marsha Kosmatka and Holly Miller six apiece.

Every opposing team knows Gurecki, a 5-foot-2 senior, and Claar, a 5-foot-7 junior, are going to take the majority of shots and North is going to sink or swim on their offense. But defensing two players isn't as easy as it might seem, as their combined 35 points-per-game average attests.

"We've seen every defense imaginable this year, but the kids just get the job done," North coach Greg Capling said.

"Kim Gurecki has had one hellacious year for us. She's done everything a coach could ask. She leads the team in steals, assists and is 10th in the county in scoring."

The one thing Gurecki, who averages 15½ points, hadn't done well of late was shoot free throws, making 30 percent in the previous four games, Capling said. But she was 6-of-8 Thursday and 5-of-6 in the final first criteria but hit less than 35 percent of its field-goal attempts.

"WE MISSED 11 layups; what are you going to do?" St. John said, referring to the poor percentage. "You just don't do that against North Farmington.

"We did what we wanted to (in holding the North duo under 40) and we didn't let the others beat us, but we missed some shots."

North jumped in front 6-0 when the diminutive Gurecki dodged between the taller Western defenders for a pair of layups. Historically, that was crucial to the Raiders having a good game, according to Capling.

"We needed to get off to a good start," he said. "It's been like that all year. In the three games we lost, we got off to an extremely slow start.

"(The layups) opened things up. She's extremely quick and she knifes through the defense. It's designed for her and if it's open she goes for it."

Claar's outside shooting gave the Raiders an 18-12 lead in the second quarter, but Western rallied behind the scoring of Call, Miller and Blanton.

The Warriors were within four, 30-26, at the end of three quarters, and the action really heated up when Miller sank a layup to make it 36-34 midway in the final period.

NORTH, WHICH never trailed, went up 39-34 on Claar's layup and free throw, and the Raiders spread the floor and forced Western to foul, leading to Gurecki's clinching free throws.

While Gurecki and Claar do most of the scoring, the Raiders have obviously played well in other phases of the game, also.

"All the other kids have played extremely well for me and have accepted their roles on the team," Capling said. "They know who's going to do the scoring, who's going to play the defense, who's going to get the rebounds.

"A big key to our success has been defense," he added. "We've only given up 36 points a game, and not being a big team that's exceptional."

The smaller Raiders rebounded surprisingly well against their bigger opponent. Seamons, a 5-foot-10 senior who has averaged 11½ rebounds in the last four games, and Amy Post were leaders in that regard, and Claar and Gurecki grabbed their share of rebounds, too.

"They were cheating on our No. 2 guard and dared us to shoot," St. John said. "They were positioning to rebound before the shot was ever taken.

"They totally boxed my kids out. It's not athletic ability as much as it is positioning. Short people can rebound as long as they're smart."

With the WLAA title no longer a possibility, the Warriors are looking ahead to the district tournament, according to St. John.

"Our goal at the beginning of the season was the district and regional," he said. "We've won two districts in a row, and our goal this year is to go to the regional final. It's how you finish, not how you start."

Rockets jettison Fordson, 20-7

By Bill Parker
staff writer

Westland John Glenn football coach Chuck Gordon said last year's trip to the Michigan High School Athletic Association's Class A state playoffs — in which the Rockets lost to Catholic Central in the regional final — left his team hungry.

"When you've been there and tasted it, it makes you hungry," said Gordon.

The Rockets satisfied some of those hunger pains Saturday as they made a meal of host Dearborn Fordson in the opening round of the 1989 Class A state playoffs with a 20-7 victory. Glenn, 9-1 on the season, hosts top-ranked Birmingham Brother Rice, 10-0, at 1:30 p.m. Saturday in this year's regional final.

Senior quarterback Eric Stover fueled the Rockets Saturday, completing 15-of-24 passes for 206-yards and two touchdowns.

"I have a lot of confidence in Eric," Gordon said. "The whole team does. We weren't going to move the ball on the ground against Fordson and that's why we started throwing."

AFTER A 7-7 first half, the Rockets turned momentum in their favor early in the third quarter when they capitalized on the first turnover of the game.

Glenn's Mark Johnson pounced on a fumbled Fordson pitch giving the Rockets possession at the Tractors' 45-yard-line. Five plays later, after completions of 37 and 7 yards to David Ryan (eight catches for 89 yards), Stover hooked up with Garnett Woody on a 7-yard touchdown pass. Wes Taylor's extra point put the Rockets ahead to stay, 14-7.

"That fumble was a big play," said Gordon. "I told the kids at halftime that someone needed a big play to get us going and that was it."

Another play in that series gave the Rockets a mental boost. Facing second-and-15 at midfield, Stover dropped back and lofted a pass over the middle. But Fordson's Marcelo Ortiz stepped in front of the pass, intercepted it and streaked down the sideline toward paydirt. Stover, the last Glenn player between Ortiz and the end zone, leveled Ortiz with a bone-crushing tackle. Although the play was nullified by offsetting penalties, Stover's determination sparked the Rockets.

"I was so mad at myself," Stover said. "I saw him running down the field and there was no way he was getting past me. After I hit him, everyone seemed even more jacked-up to win."

GLENN'S DEFENSE led by the hard hitting of Sam Weddington and Jason Gould, stifled Fordson on it's next possession. After a shanked Fordson punt Glenn again took over at the Fordson 45. Stover completed three passes, including a 15-yarder to Mark Wetmore, and marched the Rockets to the Dearborn 23 before Taylor put the Rockets ahead by 10, 17-7, with a 41-yard field goal.

"Their quarterback is awfully good and their kicker is outstanding," said Fordson coach Charlie Jestice, who slips quietly into retirement with the loss. "They started throwing quick-outs and we lost control of the game. They have a really nice team and I give them credit. I wish them luck."

Taylor rounded out Glenn's scoring with a 28-yard field goal with 9:40 remaining in the game. Tom Luxton sealed the victory for the Rockets when he intercepted Fordson on both of its' final two possessions.

FORDSON CONTROLED the game in the first quarter and mounted a couple nice drives. But Glenn's defense came up with the big plays when they needed them. Chris Maddish made a great play in the secondary, batting away a sure first-down pass on third-and-seven. Gould, Sean O'Brien and Kraig Kuban each recorded tackles-for-loss on Fordson's second possession as the Tractors closed in on the goal line. Faced with fourth-and-14 at the 20, Fordson attempted a 37-yard field goal that sailed wide of the goal post.

Glenn opened the scoring at 6:42 of the second quarter on a 15-yard TD pass from Stover to Wetmore. Taylor's PAT gave the Rockets a 7-0 lead. The 80-yard drive was kept alive by a pair of critical off side penalties by Fordson, and a 47-yard pass from Stover to Woody.

Fordson scored on its' ensuing possession, marching 51-yards in eight plays. The Tractors scored on a determined 16-yard run by Ed Ortiz. Raid Jewad kicked the extra point to tie the game at seven apiece.

On the afternoon, Glenn racked up 298 yards of total offense. Shannon Layne led the running game with 83 yards on 25 carries. Fordson totaled 172 yards, led by Yousef Sareini with 72 yards on 16 carries and Mohamed Baldoun with six completions in 14 attempts for 51 yards.

Hawks struggle with Riverview

By Bob Stebbins
staff writer

The road to the Silverdome is going to be a tougher one to travel this year for the Farmington Hills Harrison football team.

The Hawks took the first step Saturday with a hard-fought, 23-7 victory over Riverview in a Class B playoff game at Harrison.

The game was closer than the final score might indicate as the Pirates had the ball and an opportunity to score the tying touchdown with just over three minutes to play.

Trailing 14-7, Riverview got the ball on its own 21-yard line with 3:08 remaining in the fourth quarter.

On first down, the game's most important play took place. Pirate receiver Brett McCartney got open at the Hawks' 40 but dropped a well-thrown pass from quarterback Scott Czopek.

Harrison defensive back Scott Ratsos provided tight coverage on the play, and the Riverview coaches felt it might have been too tight.

"(Ratsos) had his back to the receiver," Riverview coach Don Lessner said. "The guys in the box thought it was interference. We would have had the ball on their 35 with three minutes left."

Hawks' coach John Herrington saw it differently, stating "I didn't think it was (interference)."

Harrison iced the win two plays later when defensive end Matt Sperry intercepted a Czopek pass and returned it 21 yards for a touchdown with 2:39 left. Tackle Blazo Sarcevich caused the miscue by hitting Czopek just as he released the ball.

Harrison completed the scoring with 1:26 remaining when Sarcevich sacked Czopek for a safety. Sarcevich was the star defensively for Harrison, compiling 13 solo tackles and assisting on two others.

The entire Hawk defense dominated all game long, holding the visitors to 122 yards in total offense. The defense was particularly stingy against the run, limiting the ground-oriented Pirates to 13 yards on 28 carries.

"We couldn't run at all," Lessner said.

Harrison, however, used its running game to jump out to an early lead. The Hawks took the opening kickoff and drove 91 yards for a score, with 52 of the yards coming from the ground game.

Quarterback Mill Coleman completed the march by running it in from 38 yards out on a quarterback sweep. Steve Hill's extra point made it 7-0 with 10:21 left in the opening quarter.

Harrison controlled the remainder of the half, outgaining the Pirates 229-24 but was unable to put any more points on the board. A strong, gusting wind and an attacking Riverview defense kept the high-scoring Hawks off the scoreboard.

Riverview often brought eight men to the line of scrimmage and played a great deal of man-to-man coverage in the secondary. The Pirates switched defensive looks throughout the game but did not get away from what they usually run.

"We didn't change anything defensively," Lessner said. "We played some man; we played some zone. It really doesn't phase (Coleman) at all. He is a phenomenal passer."

Herrington thought playing man-to-man coverage was an intelligent idea.

"It is smart playing man in conditions like this," he said. "You don't have to take many chances getting beat deep because the ball floats when you do get deep."

The Hawks increased their lead on their first possession of the second half, driving 63 yards on seven plays to move the score to 14-0 with 6:03 left in the third quarter. Gary Devine culminated the drive by sweeping into the end zone around left end from six yards out.

Down 14 points and unable to run the football, Riverview resorted to the passing game and the change was somewhat effective.

Helped along by a personal foul penalty after the drive appeared stopped, the Pirates moved the ball from their 46 down to the Harrison 4. However, an illegal procedure penalty and a quarterback sack by Cres Gove stymied the Pirates, and Riverview turned the ball over on downs at the 16.

On its next possession, Riverview finally got on the scoreboard on a 6-yard run by Darren Donathan. The touchdown drive took only four plays, the key one being a 41-yard, halfback-option pass from Kevin Jenkins to McCartney.

The resulting extra point made the score 14-7 with 6:43 left in the fourth quarter and set up the exciting finish.

Harrison rushed for 222 yards during the game, including 113 on 14 carries by Coleman. Tailback Matt Conley chipped in 89 yards on 16 attempts. Through the air, Coleman was 10-of-18 for 116 yards and two interceptions.

Joe George (10 tackles), Devine (10) and Steve Hill (9) all had big days defensively for the Hawks.

Lessner was impressed by the team that knocked his club out of the playoffs for the second straight year, but he would not say whether this year's version is better than last season's club.

"John (Herrington) does a great job with this team," he said. "Coleman's better than he was a year ago, but I can't say (about the team) because I've only seen them this one time."

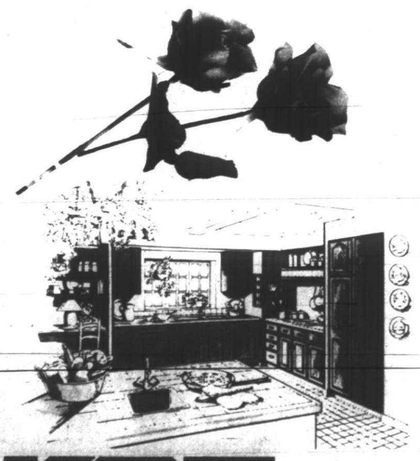

The Hawks will get a chance to continue to prove their mettle next Saturday when they take on Allen Park in a second-round game.

Is A Rose Always A Rose?

Several yesterdays ago it was safe to say "A Rose Is A Rose Is A Rose." Today, we're faced with flowers of different petals.

The rose on the left is indeed a rose. The rose on the right is man made—of silk. See the difference?

You can't always see the difference in kitchens either. That's why you need to invest some time examining Merillat Kitchens in our KSI Showrooms. We will demonstrate how Merillat craftsmanship is more than skin deep—the many innovative features such as the Whisperglide® Roller Drawer System— and best of all how Merillat gives you the custom look without the custom price tag.

YABA sets ball in motion

STATE AND LOCAL OFFICIALS of the Young American Bowling Alliance (YABA) met last weekend at Drakeshire Lanes in Farmington Hills for their Jamboree.

The purpose of the gathering was to review rules and preview the upcoming state tournament.

The Jamboree also included a no-tap tournament for those in attendance.

The sight for the Jamboree is always the same as the location of the next YABA tournament. The tourney will begin March 25 and run through April 30, 1989.

Last season, the tournament was held in Grand Rapids. About 600 teams, along with some 2,000 doubles and singles competitors entered the tourney.

Last season's event was attended by YABA Field Representative John Meyer. He traveled from the YABA Headquarters in Milwaukee, Wis. to attend the event.

The tournament is divided into various divisions, with four scholarship prizes being awarded. The four categories are: boys and girls, eighth grade and under; boys and girls, ninth grade and up.

The winners will be decided by the most pins over average in each category.

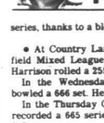

Most of the adults involved in the Jamboree are the coaches for the various YABA sanctioned leagues.

There will be a meeting Wednesday at Thunderbowl Lanes in Allen Park to review the YABA Scholarship Tournament.

The local YABA people are doing a great job of organizing these kids and helping them develop into the next crop of league bowlers:

● Bel Aire Lanes in Farmington was on fire this week, thanks to the Senior House League. Jim McPhail Jr. rolled a 747 series, including a 274 game. Dave Halstead bowled a 700 set and 258 game. Fred Rossman managed to put together a 675 total. Bill Parker hit himself a whopping 684 series and 255 game. Kevin Cram had a 268 game and Neil Beckman a 653 set. Steve Fetterman rolled a 651 with a 267 game.

In the Pinbusters League, Dan Winkel rolled a 653 series, thanks to a block of 204, 214 and 235.

Al Harrison

● At Country Lanes on Nine Mile Road, the Greenfield Mixed League witnessed Tom Gow's 674 set. Al Harrison rolled a 255 game.

In the Wednesday Keglers League, Dean Johnson bowled a 666 set. He had a block of 201, 219 and 246.

In the Thursday Countrymen League, Terry Yarmak recorded a 665 series, including a block of 233, 215 and 217.

In the Tuesday Ladies Classic, Linda Harris recorded a 660 series, including a block of 211, 217 and 232.

In the YABA Leagues, Suzanne Carlson rolled a 180. Joe Milkovic bowled a 202 and Paul Bisoirek scored a 176.

In the High School League, Shawn Goodman had himself a nifty 621 set.

● Redford Lanes was the site of the West Side Lutheran League, where Ron Breuhan rolled a 683 set and 289 game.

● At Woodland Lanes, Greg Preston of the Ford Parts had a 713 series, including a 267 game, Gary Gerisch bowled a 728 total, thanks to a 274 effort and Jim Carling rolled a 704 set.

The All-State League featured Linda Lewicki putting together a 256 game. In the Gay Ninetys, and Ken Craft scored a 259.

For the Strikers, Jim Daniels rolled a 279 and Dick Danielson a 277.

The Men's Trio witnessed Dan Emmett's 717 series, Mark Payne's 698 and Greg Wisgirds 671.

● Wonderland Lanes in Livonia was the sight of Bud Bogataj's 726 series. He had games of 265 and 253. Bob Pniewski hit a 716 set, including a 267 game. John Chetaway and Marv Holly rolled a 709 series. Terry Tesars had a 698 total and John McGraw a 691.

● At Oak Lanes in Westland, John Wodaseki rolled a 265 game in the Sunday Classic League.

In the Saturday Odd Couples, John Bates hit a 632 set with games of 219, 207 and 206.

● At Mayflower Lanes in Redford, Jack Heady Jr. put together a 703 series in the Monday Keglers League.

The Livonia-Novi Spartan Aquatic Club hosted an A-B age group meet this past weekend and finished high among the 28 teams entered.

Matt Martin and Ron Orris won honors in the 13-14 and open categories, respectively.

Martin captured the 100-yard backstroke, the 200 backstroke and the 200 freestyle. Additionally, he placed second in the 100 and 1,000 freestyles, the 200 butterfly and the 400 individual medley, finished third in the 200 breaststroke and placed fifth in the 100 breaststroke.

Orris, a Plymouth Salem High senior who was recently selected to represent the United States in Paris and East Berlin in February 1990 as a member of the Junior National Team, won all nine events he entered during the meet.

Orris won in the 50, 500 and 1,000 freestyles, the 100 and 200 backstrokes, the 100 and 200 breaststrokes, the 100 butterfly and the 200 individual medley.

swam the 500 freestyle in 5:59.6 and Andrews the breaststroke in 1:16.67.

NORTH FARMINGTON completed an unbeaten dual-meet season in girls swimming Thursday with its 129-37 victory over visiting Westland John Glenn.

The Raiders won the Lakes Division championship with a 5-0 record and finished with a 9-0 overall slate.

"We're very happy about that," North coach Pat Duthie said of the perfect season. "The girls at North have never done that, and it comes on the heels of the boys doing that last year.

"The last couple seasons have been very nice. The kids deserve what they've accomplished this season, because they've worked very hard for it."

The Raiders also will be considered the favorite to win the WLAA meet later this week.

"It puts the pressure on," Duthie said. "But it's time to swim fast, so we'll see what we can do. The competition will be keen; it always is."

Kerry Doran and Christie Duthie were on both winning relay teams Thursday and also won individual events.

Kristen Celko, Doran, Duthie and Karrie Kranz won the medley relay in 1:59.5, and Carrie Worthen, Doran, Amy Duthie and Christie Duthie completed the freestyle relay in 3:59.22.

Christie Duthie later won the 500 freestyle in 5:19.58, and Doran captured first place in the backstroke at 1:07.67.

Celko and Kranz had individual wins, too. Celko won the individual medley (2:33.86) and Kranz the breaststroke (1:18.43).

In other events, North's Julianne Markey was first in the 50 freestyle (27.10), Michelle Starrs won the diving with 173.75 points and Anna Palmer won the butterfly (1:09.95).

Glenn swimmers won the 200 and 100 freestyles. Dawn Wensko swam 2:12.94 in the former and Laurie Trosen 1:01.61 in the latter.

● MEN'S RACQUETBALL

A men's winter racquetball league will begin play Wednesday, Nov. 29, at Rogers Shores of Canton. The fee for the 13-week session, sponsored by the Canton Parks and Recreation Department, is $82 per person.

The league will be divided into divisions based on player ability. Court times will be 7:30 and 8 p.m. Call 397-5110 for details.

● USED EQUIPMENT

The fifth annual used Sports Equipment Sale is scheduled for 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 2, at the Coventry Commons Shopping Center. The new location for this year's event is 43335 Joy Road between Arbor Drugs and ACO Hardware.

Sellers can bring their equipment to Coventry Commons 6-9 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 30, to be priced and tagged for sale Dec. 2. The seller sets the price and gets the money, with the exception of 15 percent the Parks and Recreation Department keeps. Volunteers will do the selling, so the equipment owner need not be present.

For information, call Bob Dates at the Parks and Recreation Department at 397-5110.

● SOCCER CHAMPS AGAIN

The '74 Michigan Hawks, sponsored by the Livonia Y and affiliated with the Little Caesars Premier Soccer League, captured the under-16 girls state championship (Oct. 28) with a 3-1 victory over the Plymouth Lightning in an encounter at Livonia's Bicentennial Park.

It was the Hawks unprecedented fifth age group state cup title. They will represent Michigan in July of 1990 in the Midwest Regionals with their sights set on the National finals in Virginia (late July, 1990).

The Hawks advanced to the state finals with victories over SUSA (7-0) and East Detroit (5-0).

Members of the victorious Hawks, coached by Tom Coyne, include Bridget Bradley, Aimee Cousino, Ragen Coyne, Catherine Donkers, Julie Dwyer, Molly Ferguson, Lisa Grace, Kristi McGough, Tracy Morrell, Kara Nance, Natalie Neaton, Kim Phillips, Kim Popyk, Dana Posnak, Patty Shea, Lisa Thomas, Kristen Westveer and Shannon Wilkinson.

● SPIRIT OF '77

The Spirit of '77 under-13 boys soccer team completed its inaugural season by winning the Little Caesars Division III title with an 8-1-1 record.

The team, coached by Louis Stankovich, began play in June and has compiled an overall record of 18-3-3 to date. Due to its success this year, the team will compete in Division II next spring.

Team members include Erik Dolesh, Chris Kemp, Ben Sommers and Jon Zugel of Farmington; Mike McPherson and Owen Townsend of Canton; and Ty Fowler, Bill Rundell, Rob Willard and James Elsesser of Northville.

● KARATE LESSONS

Lessons in Isshinryu Karate are being offered by the Canton Parks and Recreation Department for $35 per person for the 10-week session.

Instructor Sam Santilli, a sixth-degree black belt, will give lessons in the Isshinryu style of karate for all levels and ages. The class

- At what time is the event scheduled?
- Why is this event taking place?
- Where can people buy tickets?
- How much is admission ?
- Who can the public call for further information ?

Please provide the Observer with the name and telephone number of a person with whom we can verify the information.

If you are submitting a photo for our consideration, please keep in mind that black and white pictures reproduce the best. Snapshots of large groups don't reproduce well and aren't considered suitable for publication. As a rule we don't publish photographs depicting the presentation of checks or plaques.

If you want us to return a photograph, please indicate this on the back of the picture.

Identify people in the photograph from left to right and by their first names and surnames as well as by the towns in which they live.

Send the information to the Observer Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150 at least two weeks in advance of the event.

Free calls at Wonderland

MCI will be at Wonderland Mall this weekend offering free long-distance calls.

The phones will be set up for use in the Poland's corridor Nov. 10-12. Wonderland is at Plymouth and Middlebelt roads in Livonia.

These bikers are easy to like...

That's because they are a great bunch of conscientious kids who have turned in their Observer & Eccentric newspaper collections accurately and on time.

Their routes take them out into all kinds of weather all year long.

So what better way to show our appreciation than a 10-speed bike? Because these 12 youngsters are exceptional carriers, they were allowed to enter our annual drawing for a new bike. They are winners in every way!

If you have a potential carrier—someone reliable and responsible— in your family or know of someone who does, call us at one of the numbers below.

Guesstimations set the pie-in-the-face number as around 19,000, give or take a few coconut cream or lemon. And who knows how many kids learned to eat veggies because of him. Then there the untold number of mothers made to tow the line for lunch all because of Soupy Sales. Find out more about the man on 5D.

Songmen: Glasnost continues

By Jill Hamilton
special writer

The glasnost begun by Mikhail Gorbachev goes on. The Moscow Circus is coming to town and so is the latest musical glasnost entry, The Songmen.

Soviet singers Thomas and Tarmo, better known as The Songmen, have only been in the United States for five months, but already they are beginning to re-interpret the usual role of a performer.

Whereas most American rockers are aiming for a record deal and arena-sized gigs, The Songmen are interested in neither.

The Songmen are more at home in a small setting In fact, they will make their Midwestern debut with a pair of performances 7:30 p.m. Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 6-7, at the home of Kathy Korpi in West Bloomfield.

Much to the chargrin of their manager, The Songmen seem to feel that getting a record deal is low-priority and are taking their time making a demo.

And, as far as arena-sized gigs, well, that would distract from their original purpose — to teach and heal through their music. Thomas and Tarmo feel that this can best be achieved through small, intimate performances.

"Americans are only taught to have fun," said Tarmo in a telephone interview at the New York home of Muppets creator Jim Henson. "They also need to learn the essence of the music, to go into the back yard of a song.

"IN HOUSES, we play to smaller group so there is more concentration. They experience something more than pay me, then go home."

For the Songmen, performing in America is a continuation of 20 years of performing together as troubadours.

"Being Songmen means singing is not a business, but a way of life," said Tarmo.

The Songmen say that, like nightingales, they sing because they must sing.

"If there are wars, if there are different political situations," Tarmo said, "the nightingale sings — a nightingale sings all of its life. If it ceases to sing, it ceases to exist.

"There are many songs that are physically healing people from disease. Every song has a magic, its own vibration. If you are part of it, this already is a blessing."

For many years, Thomas and Tarmo lived in Estonia under the oppression of a totalitarian regime, continuing to create their songs. They are extremely well-known in Estonia, Finland, Lithuania and Sweden.

The name, Songmen, was given to them by the newspapers and audiences of those countries. Songmen were the singing medicine men of the deep past. They are heroes in Scandinavian mythology.

In 1979, Tarmo married an Italian. That began a nightmare that would eventually lead Tarmo and Thomas defecting in October of last year.

IN 1979, marrying a foreigner was considered an ideological crime. It placed Tarmo on the KGB blacklist and led to many years in and out of jails and mental asylums.

The Songmen would perform together whenever Tarmo was released from jail. Their music began to be considered "dangerous" by the authorities. Although their songs are politically subtle to Americans, they were growing threat to the Soviets because they demonstrated a belief in God and freedom.

"In a country of darkness," Tarmo said, "even a firefly can be dangerous, because it makes people see that light exists."

When perestroika began, Thomas and his friends wrote to Gorbachev about Tarmo. Many officials were afraid of perestroika and the ramifications on their own lives, they said.

The reply came back from the Kremlin, "Resolve this immediately."

Tarmo was released in April of 1987, after eight years in and out of every possible jail and mental asylum. The nightmare ended, but there was always the possibility that he would be taken again.

The release of Tarmo made it possible for The Songmen to perform full time again. They sang all over Estonia — small concerts, large concerts, cathedrals, open fields.

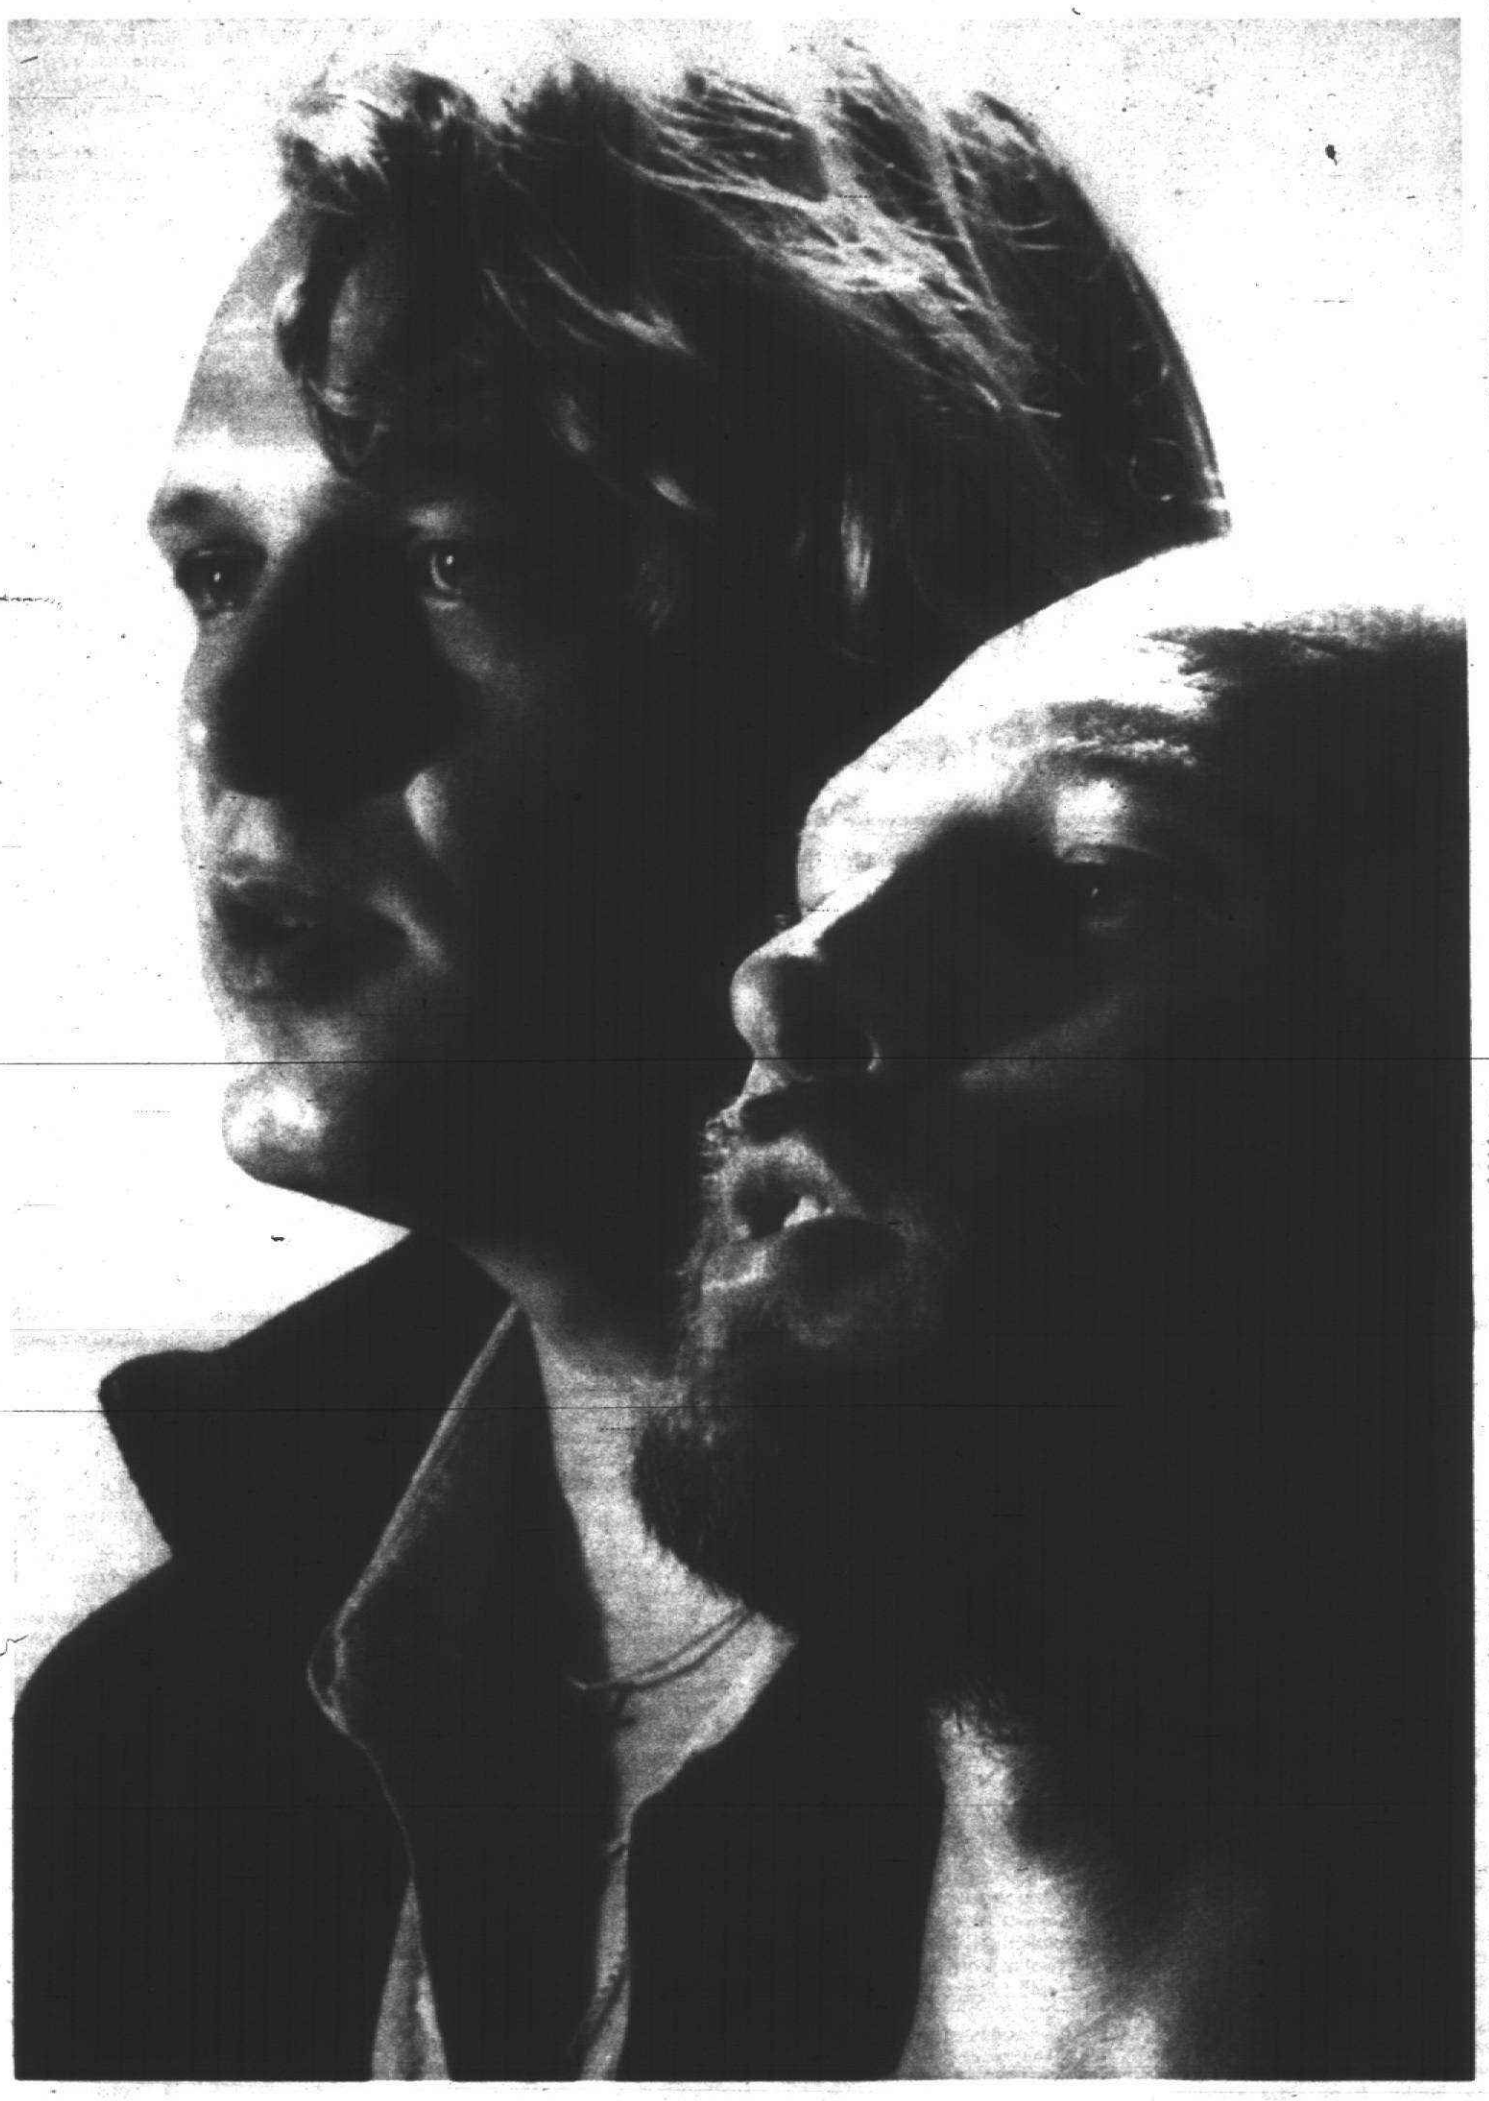

FOR THE PAST few months, The Songmen have been on a unusual concert tour. Instead of taking the usual route of playing in small, beer-soaked clubs to indifferent strangers, Thomas and Tarmo have been playing at small gatherings in private homes across the country. For such newcomers, the list of homes they play at is impressive, including the home of Arlo Guthrie.

So far, Tarmo finds America a pretty agreeable place except for one thing.

"I like America very much," he said. "It is a very beautiful place. The only thing that has damaged Americans is niceness. I think the word 'niceness' connects with "to lie.'

"Many people feel I am rude because I tell the truth and they do not want to hear the truth."

For information call 334-0808 or 335-0433.

Thomas and Tarmo, or The Songmen, are the latest bit of glasnost to invade the United States from the Soviet Union. And the musicians are beginning to reinterpret the usual role of a performer.

When in need, call an 'angel'

By Carolyn DeMarco
staff writer

Wanted: licensed pilots to donate time, airplane, fuel, telephone and other incidentals to fly people in need of non-emergency medical help and to transport organs and rare blood types for transfer. No remuneration except for the sincere thanks of grateful passengers. Call 879-2146.

Think it's just pie in the sky, that only an angel would apply?

No and yes.

The service does exist, and angels are part of it. It's Angel Flight, officially known as the American Medical Support Flight Team of Southeast Michigan.

But these angels live on earth. They include two dozen area private pilots with job titles as varied as microbiologist, pipefitter, certified public accountant and physician.

They volunteer their time to take cancer patients for out-of-state treatment, to deliver eyes from recently dead bodies to give sight to blind people, to transport medical equipment and personnel, and for other missions of mercy. And they get no reward except for the feeling that they've helped.

"IT'S AMAZING how few people know of us," said Jim Quinn, Angel Flight's coordinator, "although we've approached a number of area hospitals, offering our help. No one believes you get something for nothing."

Quinn, a Troy resident who works as a design engineer for General Motors, began the local chapter of Angel Flight three years ago. As a member of a flying club he was looking for a way to keep up his cross country trips. He contacted the national club and found there was no medical support flight team in Michigan.

He began his own unit by recruiting members of the flying club.

The group is no frills, non-structured. Members pay $35 per year and get together infrequently.

"PEOPLE JUST don't have time for meetings," Quinn said. Their only reason for being is to give their services to those who need them when called upon.

Organization members stand ready to help anyone in need at no cost to the individual or medical organization. Angel Flight is not an air ambulance for emergency runs, Quinn stressed. Passengers are those who for financial or comfort reasons are unable to fly on commercial flights. Passengers must be ambulatory and cannot be so ill that they need medical care while in the air.

Angel Flight does not supply medical care but does allow passengers to bring their own oxygen, usually a prohibition on commercial flights.

MOVING PICTURES

Woody Allen and Mia Farrow star in a scene from Allen's film, "Crimes and Misdemeanors."

'Crimes, Misdemeanors:' Woody Allen at his best

Dan Greenberg

"Crimes and Misdemeanors" (A+, PG-13, 100 minutes) is one of the decade's better films because at one and the same time it is an entertaining, romantic comedy and a profound statement about moral choices and ethical behavior.

That's a pretty tall order, but Woody Allen fills it, because you can take the ethical debate or leave it. Whatever you choose, the film is still a very entertaining, romantic comedy — Woody Allen at his best — and he never mentions his mother.

Cliff Stern (Allen) is an obscure documentary filmmaker, working on a documentary about Professor Louis Levy. Cliff's marriage is crumbling, apparently because his wife, Wendy (Joanna Gleason), is unhappy with Cliff's failure and with his cynical view of materialistic success.

Wendy's brother Lester (Alan Alda) is the antithesis of Cliff — and the butt of a good many, very funny and very typical Woody Allen one liners. "Crimes and Misdemeanors" is enriched throughout by the wry, ironic vision associated with Allen's humorous self-deprecation. Lester is a lecherous but extremely successful television producer.

There's another brother, Ben (Sam Waterson), a rabbi who is going blind. Ben's ophthalmologist, Dr. Judah Rosenthal (Martin Landau), is an incredibly successful medical practitioner, businessman and philanthropist. His trappings of success include a marvelous country home, a lovely wife, Miriam (Claire Bloom), a daughter, Sharon (Stephanie Roth), and a neurotic girlfriend, Delores Paley (Anjelica Huston). Judah also has a brother on the fringes, Jack (Jerry Orbach).

CLIFF IS TRYING to educate his niece Jenny (Jenny Nichols) in the ways of the world, as he promised her father before the father died. This education involves a lot of old movies. Cliff also spends a lot of time at the movies with a TV producer, Halley Reed (Mia Farrow). They met while Cliff was directing a documentary about Lester for public television.

Got all that? Sounds pretty complicated, doesn't it? But it plays better than it reads because of the skill and clarity with which Allen tells this complicated story about a lot of very interesting characters.

This accomplished cast, both stars and supporting members, are excellent, as is Sven Nykvist's photography — lots of warm colors and an integration of the eye/camera imagery. But clearly Woody Allen's talented writing and directing make a difference. The naturalism of every aspect of the film is its great strength. There are never any real, significant moral dilemmas.

As Professor Levy says in one of the segments in Cliff Stern's documentary: "We give meaning to the universe by the choices we make. We define ourselves by the choices we make."

Woody Allen has given meaning to a particular corner of the universe by creating a very fine film, one which discusses at any price, giving, taking, complaining. It is to his credit that he presents people we can care about as examples of the choices we must make.

"Dealers" (R) features Rebecca DeMornay as a brilliant securities trader at London's Whitney Paine Bank. There are big losses and major gains while everyone's love life is at stake.

A number of films are opening this week without benefit of screenings, so viewers are on their own. Martial arts movie fans may be interested in "Bloodfist" (R), starring Don "The Dragon" Wilson and others. (Who ya kidding?)

"After Midnight" (R) is about a woman taking a college course in the psychology of fear.

"Second Sight" (PG) is a comedy about two detectives, one of whom has psychic powers. The Cardinal of Boston and his secretary have been kidnapped and need rescuing.

While we're on the comedy kick, "Erik the Viking" (PG-13, 104 minutes) is a Monty Python style story of ancient rape and pillage with an all-star cast featuring two Python people, John Cleese and Terry Jones (director of "Life of Brian"). Jones wrote and directed this epic, whose cast includes Mickey Rooney and Eartha Kitt.

Besides the re-appearance of Eartha Kitt ("see Video Viewing") Menahem Golan has risen from the ashes of Cannon Films with the 21st Century Film Corporation's production of "Phantom of the Opera" (R). This version stars Robert Englund, best known as Freddy Krueger in the "Nightmare on Elm Street" films.

STILL PLAYING:

"Animal Behavior" (PG).

Romantic comedy about conflict between career and romance starring Karen Allen, Armand Assante, Holly Hunter and Josh Mostel.

"Batman" (C+, (PG-13) 120 minutes.

"The Bear" (D-) (R) 120 minutes.

Excellent nature photography but film often lacks continuity and gets pretty sappy at times.

"Black Rain" (D-) (R) 120 minutes.

"Breaking In" (R).

"Dad" (B) (PG) 119 minutes.

Excellent acting by Jack Lemmon, Ted Danson, Zakes Mokae and Olympia Dukakis marred by cliches.

"A Dry White Season" (A+) (R) 100 minutes.

The worst of South African apartheid and the best of human sacrifice for brotherhood in this excellent story of one man coming to grips with government terror.

"The Fabulous Baker Boys" (R).

"Fat Man and Little Boy" (A-) (PG-13) 120 minutes.

"Gross Anatomy" (C-) (PG-13) 105 minutes.

Bland, slow, weakly structured romantic comedy about five, first-year med students.

"Halloween 5."

Donald Pleasence and others in more of the same.

"Honey, I Shrunk the Kids" (B+) (PG) 105 minutes.

"Immediate Family" (B+) (PG-13) 95 minutes.

"An Innocent Man" (B-) (R) 90 minutes.

"Lethal Weapon II" (B+) (R) 115 minutes.

"Look Who's Talking" (C+) (PG-13) 97 minutes.

Contrived, poorly structured story of pregnant CPA (Kirstie Alley) and her search for a perfect father for her baby. Bruce Willis is the baby's voice.

"Sea of Love" (C) (R) 110 minutes.

Al Pacino as a burned-out detective adds nothing to the cliche nor does a very weak script.

Grading the movies

A+	Top marks - sure to please
A	Close behind - excellent
A-	Still in running for top honors
B+	Pretty good stuff, not perfect

MT screens 'Dybbuk'

By John Monaghan
special writer

In Jewish folklore, dybbuk means ghost — the tormented soul of a person who died before his or her time.

A 1937 Polish film about hassidic spirits makes its own haunting return to Ann Arbor's Michigan Theater next weekend in a newly restored print.

"The Dybbuk" first surfaced as a play, written by S. Ansky between 1912-1917 and based on folk tales he collected during travels throughout small villages in Eastern Europe. It has since become the most widely produced play in Jewish theater.

Michael Waszynski worked with F.W. Murnau and Stanislavski and directed some 25 other films before tackling "The Dybbuk" in 1937. This accounts for both the German Expressionist imagery and understated performances from his talented troupe of actors.

This dybbuk is a young student, Khonnon (Leon Liebgold), scorned by love. He asks for the hand of the beautiful Leah (Lili Liliana), betrothed to him at birth. Leah's father, forgetting the promise he made to Khonnon's father, insists that she marry a wealthy man instead.

KHONNON turns to mystic rituals and Satan worship to change his fate, only to die in the process.

The film links the everyday spiritual and even supernatural aspects of Jewish life. Leah visits the graveyard to ask her dead mother to attend her wedding. She even invites Khonnon.

He shows up — his spirit anyway — and magically enters her body. In one of the film's more bizarre sequences, astonished wedding guests look on as Leah dances in a trance-like state with a spectral hooded figure.

The supernatural aspects are occasionally handled with camera tricks like the mysterious Messenger who appears out of nowhere to remark on the actions occurring on the screen. Leah's transformation, however, is depicted by a subtle drop in her voice.

The film also features popular Yiddish actor Max Bozyk as the comic servant Note. His widow, Reizl, played Amy Irving's grandmother in "Crossing Delancey."

A European hit upon release, "The Dybbuk" screened in New York and toured metropolitan American cities in 1938. A year later, with Poland ravaged by World War II, original negatives of the film were destroyed. The film has been available since, but only in incomplete and badly washed out prints.

The restored print, funded by the National Center for Jewish Film, arrives after five years of painstaking detective work. It's comprised of five different prints from the United States, Australia, Canada and England. Each provided important footage, including the rare exorcism scene that caps the film.

Those who have seen the 123-minute version during recent runs in New York and Boston call it the most artistic and gripping of early Yiddish films.

VIDEO VIEWING

By Dan Greenberg
special writer

If you're in the mood for some very funny, pointed French satire, look for Claude Zidi's "My New Partner" (1985, color, 104 minutes, R) in video cassette Nov.8.

"My New Partner" garnered Cesar (the French equivalent of Oscar) awards for best picture, director and editing. Media Home Entertainment's video cassette has excellent yellow subtitles with black outlines that are easy to read, if you don't mind occasional misspellings and a lot of confusion in translating French francs into American dollars.

The money is important since "My New Partner" is about a corrupt cop, Rene Boisrond (Philipe Noiret), who arrests his own partner, Pierrot, when they get caught robbing a pimp. Shaking down everyone they can — when they're not skimming and scamming — is their way of life.

The very French tone is not right at this opening moment as Rene entreats Pierrot, "Let me arrest you, no sense both of us getting caught." Pierrot wants to know why Rene should get off by arresting Pierrot. "Because," Rene responds, "I thought of it."

That scam works and Rene goes free while Pierrot is imprisoned for two years. But Rene's punishment arrives in the form of a new partner, Francois Lesbuch (Theirry Lhermitte), a clean-cut, hardworking, would-be officer who believes in paying for his meals and arresting each and every criminal he can. "Hard work," he says, "is the road to success."

HE SOON LEARNS that's not how things work, as Rene continually extricates his new partner from embarrassing situations. Some of the film's funniest scenes involve Rene releasing criminals Francois has collared. Why? In one case it's a confidential directive that warns the police precinct is arresting too many petty criminals and will get a bad reputation. "Besides," Rene says with a very Gallic shrug, "jails are overcrowded anyways."

The astonished expressions of the criminals released is matched by those of the perplexed maitre d' who never is sure whether Rene and Francois want their check or the free meal detectives often extort.

This conflict between older, corrupt cop and younger, idealistic one is played for its inherent, satiric humor, and it highlights a lot of contemporary problems in municipal administration.

RENE REALIZES he must do something to corrupt Francois so he can get along with his business — shaking down the neighborhood and playing the horses.

His girlfriend, Simone (Grace de Capitani), a retired hooker who is constantly enlightened about men, if not about horses, sets up Francois with a lady of the night, Natasha (Regine). The concept here is that Natasha will corrupt Francois, who will then stop hampering Rene's scams.

The plot works, even better than Simone or Rene expected, but in several different ways. The Gallic flavor is there in full force. "My New Partner" is a well-told tale guaranteed to delight all.

HAVE YOU ever wondered what's behind the aisles and aisles of lurid, suggestive video cassette covers? Have you ever lusted through a 36-page Cannon Film advertisement in Variety and imagined the sensational experience of the heroes and heroines of those impossible film worlds?

From the highest ecstasy to the grim and grisly ancient dungeons, it's all there — at least in the advertisements. Although Golan and Globus' Cannon Films has gone down the financial tubes, Menahem Golan has resurfaced as the 21st Century Film Corporation (see "The Movies" review of "Phantom of the Opera").

Whether Cannon or 21st Century, none of the exaggerated, tantalizing promises are missing from the ad copy. It's just that anticipation is far greater than realization.

"Master of Dragonard Hill" (Color, 1961, R, 92 minutes) — left over from Cannon Films — is advertised as containing "the savage passions of a land enslaved." It turns out to contain the rather trite adolescent fantasies of inept scriptwriters, the usual big-budget B-movie.

This time it's the story of 18th century St. Joseph's Island in the Caribbean, complete with obligatory pirates, rape, miscegenation, torture, frontal nudity, graphic sexuality and the old-good-guys-storming-the-castle routine.

What is surprising is that it stars Oliver Reed ("Oliver!" "The Three Musketeers") as the evil Captain Shanks, noted songstress Eartha Kitt as the mistress of the local bordello

STREET BEATS

Peter Murphy: Communicating

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

The man whose music has been something of hieroglyphics in the past has decided to communicate in exquisite handwriting this time.

For Peter Murphy, that's almost akin to printing in block letters. Chances are, though, Peter Murphy fans will not complain when they get a listen to his new album, "Deep," due out in January on RCA/Beggar's Banquet.

A 12-inch single, "The Line Between the Devil's Teeth," has already been released off the LP.

One of the creative forces behind one of post-punk's most influential groups, Bauhaus, has made an album that is something of a crystallization of thoughts previously hid behind dark, swirling images.

The lines of Peter Murphy are somewhat easier to see — even for Peter Murphy.

"It wasn't consciously like that," said Murphy in a telephone interview from New York, "but it turned out that way, didn't it?"

More than that, "Deep" signals an artist who is in command of his craft. His Bauhaus days are behind him as Murphy's solo work increasingly becomes his calling card.

With each album, Murphy said he discovers more about himself. As a result, he's found some of the most intimate feelings are best said. Such is the case with "Marlene Dietrich Favorite Poem," a cut off his latest album.

"I was watching a TV documentary where Marlene Dietrich was being interviewed," Murphy said. "She wasn't being filmed because she wouldn't allow it. She was talking about what it is like to be a star and all.

"Then she started talking about her feelings on death. She really started talking from her heart. It was magical. I thought it was an interesting and wonderful moment. I thought I'd write specifically about that."

SUCH SOURCES of musical inspiration should be of no surprise. After all, this is someone who lists such influences as Doris Day and the incandescent lullabies his mother used to sing to him.

Murphy's story hasn't been so much who influenced him, but rather who he has influenced. Bauhaus defined a genre of music with its overpowering and visionary performances in the late '70s and early '80s.

The group disbanded in 1983, part of the remains became Love & Rockets. Yet in its wake, several bands were spawned in the goth-rock tradition — Jesus and Mary Chain and Sisters of Mercy. Some were good, but more than a handful have been rather lame.

"I guess it's someone recognizing a good thing visually and dressing up in black, wearing make-up and using floodlights," Murphy said. "That is about as far as it goes. Then it comes down to their talent. No one can be Bauhaus. No one can be Led Zeppelin, but 1,001 rock acts are trying to be Led Zeppelin."

Murphy gets a little testy when the list of Bauhaus questions exceeds one. ("Is this a Bauhaus interview?," he asked. "If not, let's get our priorities straight here."). Perhaps that is understandable since Bauhaus tended to stir in brooding disillusionment.

MURPHY'S FIRST two solo endeavors were marked by introspective intensity. "Love Hysteria" was his last LP in 1988 and was well-received by critics.

Obviously, Murphy hopes to capitalize on the follow-up. He's already preparing for a tour that will start in February. His live performances have often been marked by theatrical displays with Murphy lurking about in and out of the shadows he creates musically.

Murphy is also busy writing new material. He plans to play the stuff from scratch and see what develops. That technique worked on the "The Line Between the Devil's Teeth," which is on "Deep."

He wrote the number alone and then went into the studio with his band, Hundred Men.

"I wanted the band to perform much of these songs live-ish, getting energy from individuals in the studio," Murphy said. "Once the band was set up, I took them through these chords and directed them, almost like a Bauhaus song."

He had much of the Hill crowd on its feet by the third song, "Positively 4th Street," snarling with as much venom as ever, "I know you're dissatisfied with your position and your place/Don't you understand it's not my problem?"

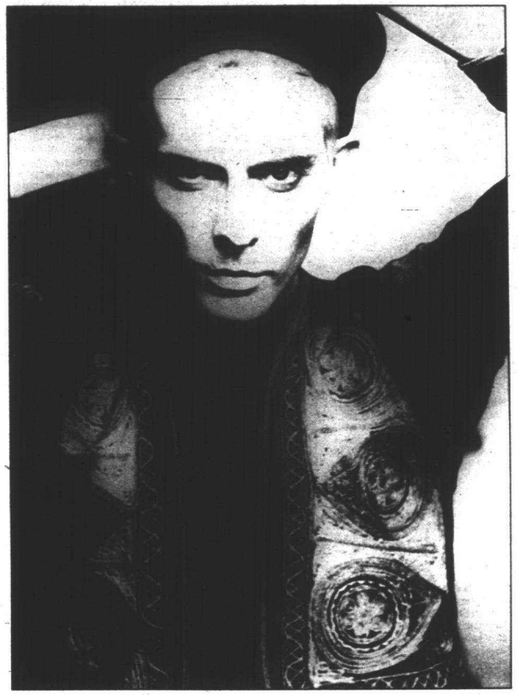

Dylan and guitarist G.E. Smith of "Saturday Night Live" teamed for a few acoustic numbers, including a chilling "It's all Right Ma, (I'm Only Bleeding)" and the mystical "Visions of Johanna."

Dylan's songwriting prowess is well-noted, but his guitar work was shocking. Playing as if he'd been watching nothing but Eric Clapton videotape for six months, Dylan tore through some fine guitar interplay with Smith. Their crisp arrangements ranged from boppin' blues on "I'll Be Your Baby Tonight" to straight ahead rock on "All Along the Watchtower" and "Highway 61 Revisited," which featured Smith on a searing slide guitar.

On the harmonica, Dylan was typically strong, and he was also impressive on the piano on "Disease of Conceit," standing up and banging the ivories not unlike the Killer himself.

The autumn evening in Ann Arbor, which began with an erratic set from Tennessee's country rockers Jason and the Scorchers, ended with artist/audience dialogue. (See, guys, he did talk.) Dylan repeatedly wailed the question — How does it feel? And the audience echoed the appropriate response — Pretty damn good, Bob.

With each album, Peter Murphy discovers more about himself in his post-Bauhaus life.

LIVE

BOB DYLAN — Hill Auditorium, Ann Arbor

Bob Dylan took the stage at Hill Auditorium a little after 9 p.m. Wednesday.

At 10:20 p.m., he spoke his first words to the audience — "Thank you" — and left the stage, closing his regular set.

Some misguided fans nearby insisted upon shouting, "Talk to us, Bob" throughout the show. He was talking, guys. You weren't listening.

Dylan spoke to the lively crowd of nearly 4,000 in ways that no one else can, simply through the power of his words and music.

He relied only upon his soul-searching lyrics, sung with confidence and clarity. As opposed to stadium or outdoor pavilion shows, fans were close enough in this venue to hear Dylan's lyrics, to watch his steady rhythm guitar hand, to study the lines on his face.

The 90-minute, 17-song set spanned Dylan's nearly 30-year career, including five cuts from his latest release, "Oh Mercy," and going back as far as his 1962 tribute to Woody Gutherie, "Song to Woody." Dylan opened the show with two electrified numbers from his 1962 folk masterpiece "The Freewheelin' Bob Dylan," — "Don't Think Twice, It's All Right" and "Masters of War."

REVIEWS

THE BEST OF DARK HORSE (1976-89) — George Harrison

On one of his 1970s albums, George Harrison introduced himself as "Ohnothimagin" in joking reference to the critical and commercial drubbing his work was receiving at the time.

Riding high after the twin triumphs of "Cloud Nine," his 1987 solo smash, as well as his part in the Traveling Willbury collaboration, Harrison is a lot more welcome now.

Although it's no replacement for a album of all-new material, this greatest hits set (Warner) shows that at least some of Harrison's late '70s-early '80s recordings have aged well and may, in fact, have been better than we all believed at the time.

Particular standouts are three songs drawn from his self-titled, though ignored, 1979 album. "Blow Away," its hit, "Love Comes to Everyone" and "Here Comes the Moon" (that's right) show a gentle pop touch not often associated with Harrison. The latter song sounds especially fine on CD.

"I Got My Mind Set On You," a No. 1 hit from last year, as well as the witty, very Beatlesque "When We Was Fab" and "All Those Years Ago," Harrison's tribute to former bandmate John Lennon, give this package substance.

Other songs show Harrison's less-attractive side — ponderous melodies coupled with defensive lyrics. Certainly, no rock musician has ever defended himself so vigorously, or so often, from alleged abuse at the hands of critics.

That means this isn't a must-have album.

— Wayne Peal

MONSTERS — Fetchin' Bones

Fetchin' Bones is a southern band (North Carolina) that can more than hold its own in any music circle, be it the trendy college/alternative scene or Fred's Bowling Center Pub.

Simply stated, this band can rock. (People can find out for themselves as the band performs Wednesday, Nov. 8, at the Blind Pig in Ann Arbor.)

Except rock here is not uttered in the banal argot of the headbanger crowd. This has bite. This has verve.

Granted, Fetchin' Bones can go overboard on occasion, namely the opening three cuts on "Monsters" (Capitol). But the group more than makes up for it with some funk-twinged rock and roll.

Hope Nicholls is the lead vocalist for Fetchin' Bones. Her voice is raw and impassioned. At times, her fury strikes memories of Janis Joplin.

Some of her songs are filled with references to "I, my and I've." That does become annoying at times.

Her saving grace is when she comes to terms about what exactly she wants from life. "Deep Blue" is this album's best song for that reason. Instead of hammering it home, Nicholls and her fellow Bones slow things up. As a result, her voice becomes more mellow and focused.

Then the rest of the hard-edged songs become more palatable, if not downright enjoyable. Some stand out on their energy alone, most notably "I Dig You" and "You're So Much Boneworth."

The Errol Stewart-Aaron Pitkin guitar combo burns throughout the LP. Along with Damma Pontes on bass and violin, they lay down the perfect funk-rock lines in which Nicholls can work.

This LP may have some warts, but Fetchin Bones' better days certainly are ahead.

— Larry O'Connor

IN HEAT — The Fuzztones

In 1985, The Fuzztones backed Screamin' Jay Hawkins for a delirious swing through Hawkins' bigger songs. The resulting EP was the third release by the then-New York-based quintet, and probably their best. They brought the often erratic Hawkins to the peak of his form.

Since then, Fuzztones leader Rudi Protrudi has moved to Los Angeles, shed all of the original Fuzztones, and toured Germany with a new lineup. "In Heat" is comprised of tracks by the "new" Fuzztones, produced by the deservedly legendary and supposedly retired Shel Talmy.

Talmy produced many classic British Invasion bands — most notably the Kinks and the Who — and on paper he's probably the ideal producer for The Fuzztones. After all, the band plays instruments from Talmy's heyday (Vox and Rickenbacker guitars, and every-so-cheesy Vox Continental and Farfisa Organs) and The Fuzztones clearly aspire to the driving R&B-based rock sound that Talmy helped invent.

But "In Heat" is a pale echo of Talmy's '60s efforts, and even worse, it's also a pale echo of past Fuzztones outings. Somewhere along the road, or maybe the Autobahn, The Fuzztones lost their shtront. Part of the problem is modern recording technology, which is unkind to Protrudi's thin and often weakly rasping vocals.

Each instrument is so distinct in the mix, it sounds like the band members were all in separate rooms. The sounds never mingle, never cross-pollinate, and never develop into the gritty, gruesome garage buzz that obviously inspired Rudi Protrudi.

Only "Cheyenne Rider," a movie-biker psychodrama (with a guest Harley-Davidson solo by Billy Idol, among others) has the requisite kick and spit.

Our intrepid Street Scene reporter is always looking for the unusual and welcomes comments and suggestions from readers and entrepreneurs. Send those to this column in care of this newspaper, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150, or call 591-2300, Ext. 313.

Just fur you

Attending a special event? This luxurious black fox hat with coordinating black fox fling will transform any suit or coat into a look from Dynasty. The fur pieces are also available in white. The duo is available at Classique in Oakland Mall, Troy, or Tel-12 Mall in Southfield.

Canned contours

From T-shirts to sweaters to formal wear, Stay-Put shoulder pads ($9) are the ideal way to customize your entire wardrobe. Uniquely packaged in vacuumed-packed cans, the foam pads will stay in place without pins, snaps or Velcro. The shoulder pads are available in two sizes and are washable. Also available is the Stay-Put strapless push-up bra ($13) for a more enhancing silhouette. Can be worn with or without a bra. Exclusively at Images in Vogue, Vogue Plaza, 1919 S. Telegraph, Bloomfield Hills.

Babar buffs

"The Adventures of Babar" was a hit at the box office this year with the sandbox set. Now, you can bring Babar into your home. Silvers (not just an office supply store) at Tel-12 Mall in Southfield has a series of Babar collectibles — T-shirts, lunch totes, plush toys and safe and soft rubber car Babars. Prices range from $9 to $40.

For your eyes only

Estee Lauder's Eyzone Repair Gel is a unique treatment that actually helps restore and repair the skin's appearance as it moisturizes and maintains the vulnerable skin around the eye for a smoother, less lined look. Within weeks skin damaged by age and sun exposure will begin to look smoother and less lined. It also helps reduce puffiness and dark circles. Ophthalmologist tested and fragrance free. Available at Lord & Taylor stores.

Calculating diet

It's an electronic innovation. A quick and easy way to monitor your calorie, sodium and fat intake. The diet calculator allows you to keep a running total of your daily intake of calories. A nutritional data guide is included. Priced at $19.99 at Sears Roebuck and Co.

Best to play it safe dating

Dear Barbara,

I am 35 and have been divorced for nine years. I have been raising my children and so have not dated much since my divorce. I am nervous about re-entering the dating scene, mainly because of sex and the diseases it can cause.

How long should I wait to sleep with a guy and how dangerous is it for me to sleep with more than one at a time?

Thank you in advance for helping out. I like your column.

Scared in Royal Oak

Dear Scared,

Recently, a local paper reported that private detectives were being hired by Birmingham divorcees to follow prospective mates after they had left their intended's home. These women, the article said, were afraid that their fiances or boyfriends might be frequenting prostitutes in the after-hours.

Such then is the paranoia in our society, and worse, it is justified. In today's world, sex has become extremely risky and if the statistics about infidelity are correct, the risks when married are, while diminished, still present.

Only abstention will keep you completely out of danger and I take it from your letter that you are ready to explore intimate companionship.

After abstention, the next safest alternative combines condoms, confrontation and judgment. Don't ever have sex without using a condom is rule number one.

Then be forward and assertive about asking your partner about his past sexual history, whether or not he has been tested for AIDS and/or venereal disease and whether he currently is intimate with only you or others as well.

If you agree to an exclusive relationship, you both might be tested at the onset and with trust between you, forego the use of a condom afterward. Again, judgment plays an ongoing role in the continual assessment of whether or not your partner is safe.

It is reasonable to understand that a widower who has been married for some years is a safer bet than a young hedonistic single who has been dating for those same years. But even at these extremes, individual differences can be paradoxical.

Of course, if you are intimate with two men, you double your chances for danger. With three, you triple it and so forth.

FEAR & LOAFING

Introducing Media Mania — Part 1

By Karl Nilsson
special writer

P.T. Barnum once said, "There's a sucker born every minute."

Unless you're running a leech farm, that's not good news.

With the peak shopping season coming up fast, Madison Avenue is working overtime to lighten your wallet. To avoid being clipped, it's important to understand the hidden psychology behind different categories of advertising:

1. Some ads appeal to our greed.

Laboratory tests prove that when the words "easy money" are flashed on a screen, a little understood gland in our neck releases a hormone that suspends all rational thought and prepares the fingertips to dial an 800 number.

A recent TV ad is based on this research — "Become a millionaire this fall . . . with the Cash-O-Matic leaf shredder!

"Any lawn shredder can chop up leaves and twigs to make mulch for your garden. But even if you could sell every bag you produce for five bucks a hit, you'd still be a long way from retiring in Bloomfield Hills.

"Now, for just $449, you can earn easy money right in your own backyard. Here's how it works. Leaves and shrubs go in the funnel and crisp green $10 bills come out the other side. Obviously, to avoid being copied, we can't explain exactly how this happened, but believe me, there are plenty of luxurious homes in West Bloomfield filled with former skeptics just like you.

"Think of it. For the first time in your life, raking leaves will be a pleasure. Instead of dreading fall, you'll be out in the yard shaking the trees, vacuuming your neighbor's lawn and smiling all the way to the bank.

"For even faster riches, order the deluxe model, Cash-O-Matic II, for just $549. Same easy loading chute, same electric start motor, but this beauty pumps out 20s instead of 10s.

"Call now and remember our motto: Rake up the leaves and rake in the easy money."

2. Some ads appeal to our sense of destiny.

Many of us feel fated to someday live a life of luxury. And what better way to get rich quick than by winning a contest we never entered. Combined with the impact of a telegram, the kismet approach is virtually irresistible:

"Congratulations! You have already won a prize! You are a guaranteed winner of one of the following grand prizes . . .

A. Ferrari Testarossa.
B. $50,000 in cash.
C. European dream vacation.
D. S coat hanger.

"Conditions: You must redeem your prize in person at the Tidal Wave Resort where you'll enjoy a brief five-hour tour of the underwater homesites. Even if you've never paddled a glass-bottom boat before, you'll quickly get the hang of it as your SCUBA guide points out future golf courses and tennis courts. Choose your lot now, and when the swamp is drained, you'll be among the first to enjoy vacation living at its best.

"After a fascinating slide show by the Army Corps of Engineers, you'll be invited to join other lucky winners stacking sandbags along the creek bank.

"Due to all the fun and excitement, some older contestants may collapse while waiting for their prize to be processed. Don't be alarmed. Should you choose to take a nap at our visitor's center (it's the building on stilts), hip-boots and mosquito netting will be available for a small service fee . . . "

Karl Nilsson

3. Some ads appeal to our desire to be self-sufficient.

This survivalist mentality is what sells thousands of 4-wheel drive trucks to wimpy office workers. Ad men use it to sell just about anything:

"Worried about the rising cost of energy? Now you can do something about it. Stop paying those monthly utility bills and start generating your own power with our easy-to-build nuclear reactor.

"Everything you need to do on-line is included.

A. Large bag of glow-in-the-dark uranium pellets.

B. Control rods (so helpful in preventing annoying meltdown).

C. Concrete shielding (for your nervous spouse).

D. Wacky 'Gone Fission' bumper sticker.

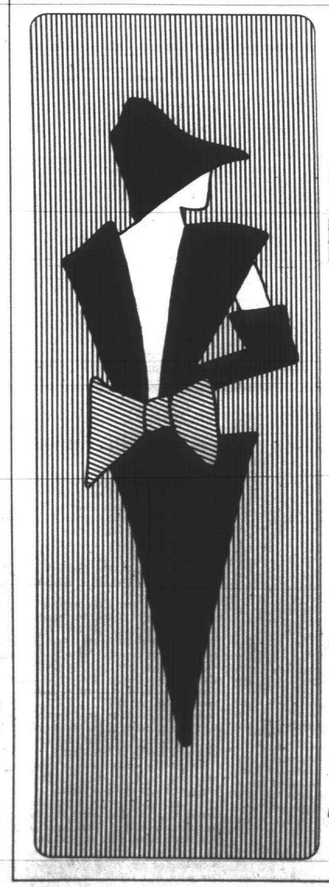

"With this step-by-step video, your home reactor will reach critical mass in no time! All instructions are in clear easy-to-understand language — 'Here's the deal, dudes. Heavy nuclei are bombarded with these far-out neutrons and like split into two particles of mass, producing really hip kinetic energy, which provides totally awesome heat to drive steam turbines, which can run your guitar for free, if you dig that action. Accompanying the reaction is the release of up to seven wild and crazy neutrons, those party animal gamma rays, the always fun beta particles and just back from a world tour, the fabulous neutrinos . . .

"Order now and receive two free bonus books — 'How to Disguise Radioactive Waste for Weekly Trash Pickup" and "How to Extract Weapons-Grade Plutonium from Breeder Fuel," formerly titled 'How to Attract Unstable Governments to Your Next Garage Sale.' " and Herbert Lom ("The Pink Panther" series, among many film credits) as the Pirate LeFarge.

Outside of their presence in credible roles are some highly incompetent performances in a script that is not to be believed. But there's plenty of sensationalism.

STREET CRACKS

Soupy: Laughing and loving work

By Shirlee Rose Iden
staff writer

Anyone who was a kid in the 1960s in Michigan probably had lunch with Soupy Sales.

"I became a hero when kids began eating veggies," said Sales, a lanky, salt and pepper-haired comedic star of radio, television, comedy and nightclubs who once reigned as the king of comedy on Detroit television.

As one fan from out of the past ventured: "He threw more pies in more faces and did more in the slapstick vein than anyone around in those days.

"But what delighted us fans about Soupy is that he didn't take himself seriously."

Guesstimations set the pie-in-the-face number as around 19,000, give or take a few coconut cream or lemon.

Sales, who was born Milton Hines in Franklington, N.C., said he is always running into parents who were "my kids' way back then.

"I knew all along that half the people liked me and half hated me," he said.

Scheduled to play at Joey's Comedy and Sports Emporium in Allen Park Wednesday, Nov. 8 through Saturday, Nov. 11, Sales acknowledged he'll have to be prepared for anything, including the weather.

"MICHIGAN ALWAYS did have a great device for getting rid of snow — it's called July," he quipped.

Commenting on Detroit's recent red hot Devil's Night, the comedian said, "I live in New York City where nothing can burn. Here, they're just out mugging and stabbing each other."

While most people believe Sales, a Detroit fixture for so long, was a native, he answers those who ask: "Well, I wasn't born in Detroit, but I died there a couple of times."

Arriving in town as Soupy Hines, his first adjustment came when John Pival, general manager at Channel 7, who discovered him, decided his name might conflict with food products (such as Heinz) and dubbed him "Sales."

"In 1957 I legally became Soupy Sales, in court" he said.

Sales' fantastic television success in Detroit began in 1953 and lasted about seven years. For a while, he was starred in an unprecedented 11 hours of TV time each week and reigned as the area's top-rated television personality.

"Once I signed 7,200 autographs in one session," he recalled.

"Lunch with Soupy Sales" was one of his greatest triumphs. Mothers everywhere had to toe the mark, serving up the lunch on Soupy's blackboard if they wanted their kids to eat. A Saturday noontime version was picked up on the ABC-TV network.

SALES GREW UP in Huntington, W. Va. (to be near his mother), where he first became interested in dramatics in high school. He earned a journalism degree at Marshall University and landed a $20 a week job as a radio script writer at a small Huntington station.

Evenings he would often drive 80 miles to do his comedy shows for $15 a night.

"The experience was invaluable," he said.

Diverted by World War II, Sales served in the U.S. Navy and took part in the invasion of Okinawa.

"I found a way to beat the Army," he said. "I joined the Navy."

After scoring as a top-rated disc jockey, he ventured to television and in 1950 his "Soupy's Soda Shop" became the nation's first television teenage dance program.

Sales parlayed his seven years of success in Detroit to a move to the West Coast in 1960. There he built his "Soupy Sales Show"into LA's No. 1 television offering. Two sons were born to Sales and his wife in California.

Over the years fans have seen the comedian in nightclubs, on game shows and on TV's "Bloopers and Practical Joke" where he has made regular appearances.

ON HIS RETURN to the metro area, he will rehearse a Channel 20 appearance that will mark his dramatic debut on the air in "Monsters" as a guest star.

Five years ago, Sales sold a screenplay to Warner Brothers with a small part written in for himself.

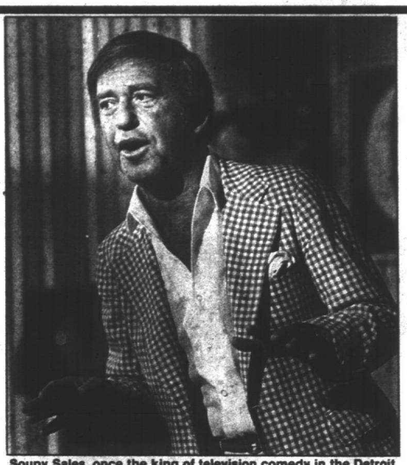

"So far, it's not been done, but I did sell it," he said, adding that he still hopes it will be produced.

He also would like do a situation comedy or his own show again.

"Television should be a great medium for escape and relaxation," he said. "There should be more live programming and amateur shows. We've got to give something back. How many news shows can you air?"

"The problem is TV stopped being entertainment when salesmen took over the television business in 1960."

Sales peers back on a colorful career, while looking forward: "What's been wonderful has been that I've done what I wanted to do," he said. "Lots of people get up in the morning to jobs they don't want to go to. I will work anywhere and I love it."

Soupy Sales, once the king of television comedy in the Detroit area, will be back in town for appearances at Joey's Comedy and Sport Emporium in Allen Park this week.

'Oh how I want to go to Europe'

By Iris Sanderson Jones
contributing travel editor

Q: Can you help two couples who want desperately to vacation in Europe? We all backpacked through Western Europe at some time, but now we want to do it comfortably. Not luxury class. Not on a bus tour. On our own. But the more we hear about the cost of traveling in Europe, the farther away it seems!

A: There is a whole world of European travel out there between back-packing and luxury hotels. A $200-a-night room in a London hotel would scare most of us, but there are ways to avoid both the high expense-account travel done by business travelers and the regimentation of tour buses.

Since you have all done a once-over of the continent already, choose an area and a travel style that suits both your interests and your budget.

This week we'll talk about a trip to the Republic of Ireland, which you can use as a launching pad for England, Scotland or the continent. Next week, we'll look at Yugoslavia, by car or boat. That gives you an English-speaking destination and a more exotic one, two of many good choices for the cost-conscious individual travelers.

Four travel categories determine your budget — airfare, car rental, accommodations and the level at which you eat, drink and shop. Start watching the airline ads and call airlines like Pan Am, American, British Airways, Delta, TWA and Aer Lingus for low fares to Shannon, on the west coast of Ireland.

TRAVEL OFF-SEASON, preferably in the spring or fall. Check profit and non-profit tour groups that offer air-only fares. Call Canadian airlines, too. Cut air travel costs to the bone.

Contact the World Travel desk of the Automobile Club of Michigan for car rental rates and book ahead. Explore an air fare that includes car rental. If any of you have frequent flier points, they might apply to car rental. Some credit cards give you points toward air travel. Start now and check them all.

Ireland offers one of the most extensive and least expensive accommodation alternatives in Europe — bed and breakfast, country homes, farmhouses and townhouses. Ireland wants tourists, but they don't have enough big hotels, so the government gives private citizens grants to build guest accommodations.

The Irish Tourist Board rates them and sells guidebooks for $2-3. One guide is overall, others focus on farm houses or castles, etc. You can get a fine, comfortable room for two people, including a good Irish breakfast, for $25.

Money isn't the only incentive. This is a way to explore the city and village, to meet Irish people as well as other travelers, and get a feeling for the country over breakfast or dinner, or at pubs and restaurants recommended by your hosts.

At a farmhouse, called Farnatrane House, in County Wexford, for example, our hosts were standing at the farmhouse door, hands outstretched in welcome, when we arrived. And they were standing there, waving goodbye, when we left. We felt like cousins saying goodbye to family, except we had only been there one one night.

THE BIG STONE farmhouse goes back to 1798, the same date as the uprising on Vinegar Hill in nearby Enniscorthy. When I called from a public telephone booth at 5:30 p.m., I was told that it was too late to order dinner, but they would make us "a little tea." That turned out to be hot homemade soup, cold chicken and salad with bread, cake and tea or coffee, quite enough "dinner" for us.

We took the last cup into the lounge where their son Frank was watching an American football game on television. Just after 9 p.m. we joined Cy and Willy for more tea, cake and talk at the kitchen table.

I liked the story they told about the couple who went to a pub, got lost, didn't know the farm name or the family name, went to several other B&Bs in vain, slept in the car and got back to Farantrane House at 2 p.m the next day.

That farmhouse offered very basic accommodation, a clean plain room on the second floor with a double bed and the bathroom down the hall. We stayed in many that were more luxurious and had bathrooms in the rooms, but none that offered better hospitality.

Diamond Hill, in Slieverue, a suburb of Waterford, was a large stucco house recommended by Susan Poole, author of Frommer's "Ireland on $30 a Day." Hostess Mary Malone brought us a tray of tea and biscuits to wash the road away when we checked into a room with a queen-sized bed.

Bathrooms are usually "down the hall," but Diamond Hill, like many guest houses, offers rooms with bathrooms en suite for another $5 or so per person.

MANY PLACES, like Diamond Hill or Shangri-la, which overlooks Bantry Bay in County Cork, are private homes where the residents have added on a wing for guests, so you are not really in the family kitchen as we were at the Heffernans.

Some accommodations are in the heart of a town. We stayed on the top floor of the The Presbytery, a high narrow private home in a street of attached houses. It was once the presbytery of a nearby church. We walked easily to downtown Kinsale (County Cork) and swapped stories over breakfast with other travelers in the spacious breakfast room.

Each place has its own setting and attractions.

From Diamond Hill, we toured the plant where Waterford crystal is made. From Bantry, we watched the clams being harvested in the bay and then drove the Ring of Beara, one of three peninsulas that stick out like fingers into the Atlantic. (Most bus tours do the Ring of Kerry.) We especially love the Dingle Peninsula, where Gaelic culture and language still reign.

Doyle's Seafood Bar in Dingle is popular, its second-story rooms are nice, but it's not in the tourist guide because it charges more than the government will accept for its guide book. We stayed in a contemporary house called Cleevan, just out of Dingle, for $25.

In Kenmare, County Kerry, on the other hand, we gladly chose the unlisted Hawthorn House when we found it in the dark of night and were rewarded with a pot of tea beside a warm fire and the smells of a fine dinner. Dinner was expensive, about the same price as the room.

MANY IRISH B & Bs offer dinner, usually for about 10 pounds Irish per person. Sometimes you must reserve before noon to get it.

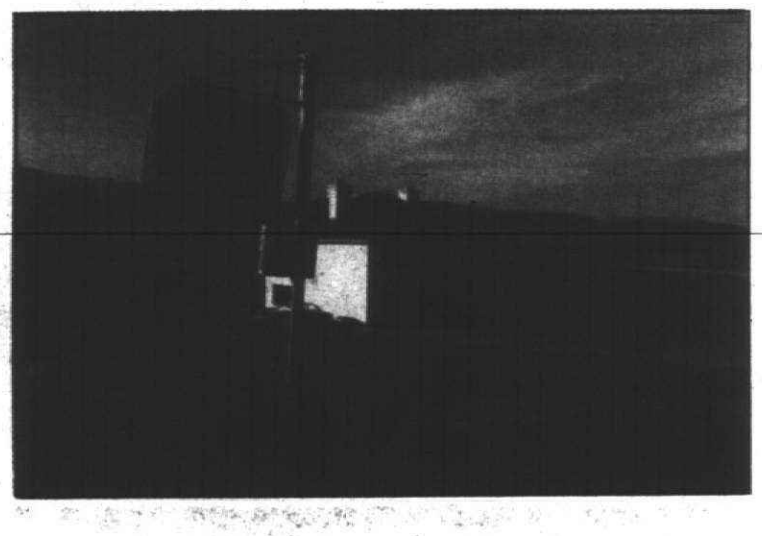

Each country offers its own style of personal accommodations. Northern Ireland manor houses. Welsh farmhouses. Scottish castles. English bed and breakfast homes. In season, university dorms are an alternative.

Contact the Irish Tourist Board, 757 Third Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017 or the British Tourist Authority, 40 West 57th St., New York, N.Y. 10019, for information.

Ireland offers one of the most extensive and least expensive accommodation alternatives in Europe — bed and breakfast like this one in Kilcullen. And afternoon tea at a countryside tea room can be a place to meet Irish people as well as other travelers and get a feeling for the country.

Angel Flight pairs pilots with patients

Examples of a potential passengers are "one who cannot sit up for a extended time period or one whose immune system is so suppressed that entering an airport is inviting disaster.

"THERE HAS to be a medical need, but that's pretty broad. We rule out taking doctors to golf outings, but a person vacationing in Florida and has a medical problem qualifies."

Recent flights have included taking eyes from Pellston to Cadillac for the Michigan Eye Bank and taking an 18-year-old cancer patient to Johns Hopkins in Baltimore.

Largely because of costs, trips have been restricted to a 500-mile radius. Costs average $30 to $50 per hour. An average plane travels 100 to 125 miles per hour.

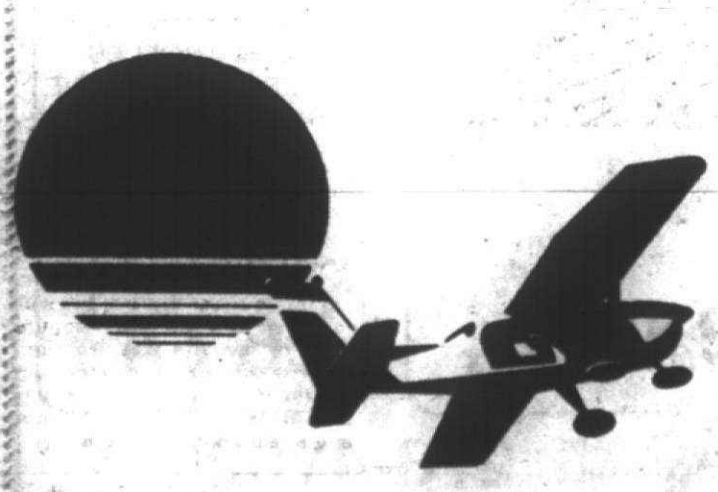

"If you're flying five hours, 10 hours round trip, that gets a little expensive. They're willing to pay for one or two trips a year. Beyond that, it gets expensive.

THE ORGANIZATION is looking for more pilots to defray the costs as well as financial angels to support the flying angels so that the service can be expanded.

"We ask the pilots to pick up the tab. If the trip were financed, they'd go (more often), anything for free flying."

"We're looking for new pilots and a lot of things at once. If we have the missions, we need pilots. And we need pilots with a lot of money. Actually all three at once."

The organization is trying to get the word out to those who could use it. Angel Flight is often asked, Quinn said, "Are they real pilots? They're not just practicing?"

Try your level best to communicate organizing

Dorothy Lehmkuhl

Poor communication causes many problems — from organizing to misunderstandings to hurt feelings. Good techniques enhance relationships, allowing your mind to be clear and helping you think better.

The keys are simple:

- The speaker's willingness to communicate.
- The listener's response.

If people don't interact at the same level, however, problems may arise. The five levels of communication help explain problems:

LEVEL 1: Cliche Conversation. This is typified by the familiar, "Hi, how are you?" and the "Fine, how are you?" response. While shallow and the weakest and most distant way of relating to others, it is a necessary and healthy exchange and serves the purpose of saying, "Here's a friendly greeting." There is no sharing at all, however.

LEVEL 2: Reporting Facts About Others: Also necessary, this is the lowest level of real conversation. It lacks opinion, reveals nothing of ourselves and invites none from others. This may include jokes, stories, gossip or rehashes of sports or the stock market. It might be referred to as Safe Speech.

LEVEL 3: Ideas and Judgments. This level includes a cautious risk of revealing some facts about self. A person may say he is a Republican but won't reveal the reasons why. The information is carefully censored to "test the waters" of how it will be received. At the first sign of negative response, the speaker will revert to Level 2.

LEVEL 4: Feelings/Emotions. Once an adequate comfort level is attained, the speaker can risk sharing gut-level inner feelings. This is the level of a trusting relationship that might include a shoulder to cry on. At this level, a person begins to explain his convictions about personal life, religion, etc. Again, if it is not well received, the speaker will withdraw.

LEVEL 5: Peak Communication. This is based on absolute openness and honesty. There is no holding back, and it can only be maintained between two people in almost perfect harmony.

Like two finely tuned instruments playing the same note, two friends totally understand each other. Judgment has no place in their communication, and there is no threat in disclosing innermost thoughts.

Childhood friends who grow up together often experience this level of disclosure — even years later after extended separations.

An important element of interaction is the willingness of an individual to open up to others. If one person is willing to share but the listener is judgmental, for instance, this could explain communication failure.

Conversely, some people complain that everyone seems to "dump" their woes on them, not realizing that they regularly give Level four or five responses, even when they do not wish to invite deeper communication. Only when both parties cooperate can deep levels be attained.

A more thorough explanation of this theory may be found in the book entitled "Why Am I Afraid to Tell Who I Am?" by John Powell.

Color expands RV feeling of space

Helen Diane Vincent

Q. We are buying a fairly large recreational vehicle — about 30 feet in length — to live in during our winter stay in Florida. We've never owned one before and our concern is that we choose the right color for the interior to help us avoid any possibility of claustrophobia. Because of the large investment, we know we'll have to live with our choice for a long time. Neither of of us have a very strong preference for the color options being offered. They are mauve, blue, beige and seafoam green.

A. Because each of the color options is quite muted and the patterns and textures coordinated to avoid any strong impression, the best choice will center around key optical qualities and your potential reaction to the chosen color over an extended period of time.

Warm colors such as mauve, or rose, give the impression of advancing, while cool colors, such as blue, appear to recede. Greens fall somewhere in between, balancing the receding with the advancing tendencies.

Because beige is the least stimulating for its absence of hue (color), your response is to its level of darkness or lightness. Each color has other positive and negative qualities: mauve conveys a coziness and warmth but it will also make a space appear somewhat smaller; blue suggests calm and helps in the appearance of openness, but it can come across as cold and uninviting; green's sense of balance is the very quality that aggravates some people; and beige becomes boring although it can open up a sense of space.

Given all of these conditions and the fact that you are dealing with a vehicle and not an actual home, my recommendation is to choose blue, as long as the textiles for the upholstery and the curtains include a touch of terracotta for optical balance.

My reasons are that in such close quarters, you need a calming, somewhat cool setting that expands the sense of space. You can also be assured by the fact that blue remains high on the list of most preferred colors. Green would be my second choice for its sense of balance.

Q. I can't help but notice how different our son's pictures are from his classmates in kindergarten. Theirs are bright, freely drawn and colorful. Our son's pictures are finely detailed and lack color. Could this be a clue to a larger problem?

A. Before anyone can determine whether or not your son has a psychological problem, you ought to have him tested for his capacity to see the full color spectrum. The whole matter might come down to having a color deficiency (inaccurately called color blindness) so much more characteristic in males than females.

Once that matter is settled, I would take the following into consideration: your son may be passing through a phase in his young life that will correct itself. Putting undue attention on it might just extend the matter. If his behavior seems otherwise normal, you might have to recognize that he is a natural introvert with a sense of precision and organization.

If that is the case, he has as much right to his psychological orientation as an extrovert; in time, both of these qualities balance each other, with introversion or extroversion being most dominant.

Pianist/conductor on podium Thursday

John Covelli

John Covelli, pianist/conductor, will be on the podium for the first pops concert of Birmingham-Bloomfield Symphony Orchestra's new season at 9 p.m. Thursday. It will be held in Handleman Hall, Temple Beth El, 14 Mile and Telegraph, Bloomfield Township. Felix Resnick is the permanent conductor and artistic director.

As a pianist, Covelli has won many awards, including the Busoni International Prize in Bolzano, Italy. In his conducting career, he began as a protege of Pierre Monteux and he has held conducting positions with the St. Louis Symphony, the Milwaukee Symphony and the New York City Opera. He is currently music director and conductor of the Binghamton (New York) Symphony.

The Thursday concert will include Smetana's "Dance of the Comedians" and Offenbach's "Orpheus in Hades" Overture. "The Classic Piano Goes to the Movies" is the title for part of the concert. For a conclusion, Covelli and the orchestra will perform Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue."

For ticket information, call 645-BBSO. Ticket sales have been brisk. Any that become available will be at the door.

Nancy Delewsky Villeneuve soprano is soloist

Symphony benefit

Laurel Place Mall will host a benefit for the Livonia Symphony Orchestra 7-9:30 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 15, that promises to be a culinary treat as well as a fine night of music.

And if you're a model train enthusiast — you'll really be in your glory.

All three events will be combined in the center court of the new mall at Six Mile and Newburgh roads, Livonia.

Featured soloist will be Nancy Delewsky Villeneuve. Francesco DiBlasi will conduct the symphony in selections from Broadway musicals and excerpts from "Les Miserables," "Sound of Music," "The King and I" and other popular favorites.

Fifteen Livonia area restaurants will present culinary delights as guests mingle and view the Lionel Train exhibition — as well as tour the newly completed Laurel Park Place Mall.

Tickets are $20 per person and black tie is optional. For reservations and information, call 462-1100. Tickets will also be available at the door. Valet parking will be available at the Six Mile entrance.

"It's the best kept secret in Livonia."
It's called Woodridge Apartments. It's the most perfect combination of luxury and comfort I've found. And I love being just a couple of minutes from the great malls in Livonia, and I-696. (Of course I love to shop--who doesn't?!) I also love the tennis and pool right here, and the fact that I have covered parking for my car. The rent makes sense to me too. Since I have so many other things I want to spend my vast (!) resources on. Call 477-6448...and see for yourself today.

Introducing The Crossings At Canton.
Apartment living just got better.
We're making The Crossings a better place to live and a better value. You'll feel it in the new hallways and newly refurbished clubhouse. You'll see it in the plush landscaping when you enter the grounds. And that's just the beginning. It's the new look and feel of The Crossings at Canton — and it's for you.
The Crossings at Canton offers 19 different floor-plans with 1 to 4 bedrooms. And whether you choose a 2-level townhome or a luxury apartment, the renewed beauty of this charming rental community shines through in every one — the result of our recent "Capital Improvement & Upgrading" program. These apartments and townhomes are the largest in the area, yet are still incredibly affordable.
Discover these features at The Crossings at Canton:
• Dens & Fireplaces
• Fully-appliances Kitchens
• Patios or Balconies
• Central Air Conditioning
• A Clubhouse with sauna, indoor pool, exercise room, a new party room, and more!
*See rental agent for details.
Visit The Crossings at Canton today. We're just 20 minutes from Ann Arbor and downtown Detroit, yet comfortably away from it all. From I-275, just exit Arbor Rd. West to Haggerty Rd., follow south to Joy Rd., then east to The Crossings. Open Mon.-Fri., 9-6 Sat. 10-5 Sun. 12-5. Phone 455-2424 today.

Prudential 1000 Town Center is shaped like a gold cube rotating within a bronze cube, creating eight corners — one of the most attractive features to companies looking for space in office buildings.

Prudential snips ribbon on latest office building

By Gerald Frawley
staff writer

It has been called the single most impressive office project in Oakland County, the best example of good architecture in Southfield and one of the most convenient locations in southeastern Michigan.

Nearly two years after ground breaking, Prudential 1000 Town Center was opened recently in a gala affair for business representatives and government officials replete with catering by the Golden Mushroom restaurant, wine tasting, musicians, caricaturists and a drawing for a trip to Paris, France.

Scott Swedburg, vice president of the Prudential Property Co., said 1000 Town Center will be an outstanding contribution to the the town center complex, but it is also special in its own right.

"The architects were charged with coming up with a design that would have its own identity, but would also match the rest of the town center," Swedburg said. "I think they've succeeded."

Designed by the Houston, Texas-based architectural firm of Sikes, Jennings, Kelly and Brewer, 1000 Town Center has unusual qualities, but perhaps the most intriguing feature is the actual design, Swedburg said.

Shaped like a gold cube rotating within a bronze cube, the design creates eight corners — one of the most attractive features to companies looking for space in office buildings, Swedburg said.

Bill Pankhurst, vice president of Grubb and Ellis, the office leasing agent for 1000 Town Center, said it will take 2½ to three years to fill the building. Approximately 145,000 of the rentable 570,000 square feet have been leased.

COMPUTER COMPANIES like Bull Worldwide Information Systems and Sun Micro Systems, Toshiba Electronics, the commercial real estate broker Coldwell Banker, and the law firm Brooks and Kushman are some of the major tenants, Pankhurst said.

"We're seeing a lot of professional companies, but we're seeing more and more high-tech firms," he said.

It is essential for these high-tech firms to be able to get to all parts of southeastern Michigan quickly, and 1000 Town Center provides that, Pankhurst said. Once I-696 is complete, travel will be easier still.

Prudential's Swedburg said the office vacancy rate in Southfield — 20.4 percent according to the third quarter major office market report by the Southfield marketing firm of Cushman and Wakefield — does not disturb him. "It's a competitive market, but our product is such that the added benefits will induce leasing."

PRUDENTIAL OWNS 23 acres east of 1000 Town Center on Evergreen Road, Swedburg said, and is in early planning stages for the property.

"It could be residential, it could be office, it could be retail."

Donald Gross, Southfield director of strategic planning, said that while the town center is not synonymous with Southfield, it is one of the most prominent landmarks in the city and perhaps southeast Michigan.

"It provides us with a lot of the basic ingredients of a downtown," he said. "We use it as a focal point of the community — as a foundation for a city center."

As for the remaining acres, Gross said Prudential Properties has preliminary plans for at least one more high rise building, which is expected to be an apartment building, as well as an upscale retail center.

"Then it would be a city within a city, so to speak," Gross said.

Early conversations have centered on stores like Bloomingdales, but no plans have been completed.

More upscale shopping at the town center would complement both the center and surrounding areas, Gross said, and could only benefit other areas in southeast Michigan because of the town center's proximity to several major freeways.

Parcel two-thirds developed

By Gerald Frawley
special writer

Another piece in the Prudential Town Center puzzle was added to the picture with the official opening of 1000 Town Center, but the gleaming gold and bronze building is only part of a 67-acre, multi-phase development started on a largely vacant tract of land nearly 20 years ago.

The Prudential Property Co. purchased the 67-acre tract in 1972 and broke ground on 3000 Town Center, a 32-story office building with two floors of retail space, a year later. The complex was officially opened in 1975.

The 4000 Town Center, a 20-story office building with two floors of retail space, and the two-story medical offices complex, 4400 Town Center, were completed four years later in 1979.

In 1980, Prudential Property Co. began construction on 5000 Town Center, a 33-story residential tower. The 216-unit apartment complex was completed in 1982.

Work on the next phase of the town center project, the 28-story office and retail 2000 Town Center, was concluded in 1986.

The 12-story, 385-room Radisson Plaza Hotel was completed it 1987. Elevated walkways connect the hotel to the high-rise office towers and the three parking structures with available space for up to 6,350 vehicles.

In November 1987, work began on 1000 Town Center. While the work force may not match that of the cathedrals of Europe in the Middle Ages, more than 450 skilled tradesmen, laborers and supervisors were involved in on site construction.

The entire Prudential Town Center includes four high-rise towers and two smaller buildings that include 2.1 million square feet of office space, 169,000 square feet of retail space and 31,000 square feet of medical office space.

Bonus room provides space to grow

Visitors to this 3,239-square-foot home are welcomed in a two-story foyer leading to a two-story great room. That expands to the breakfast room or sun deck. The breakfast, kitchen and dining room are in a line, backing to each other. A tray ceiling sets off the dining room, and another is found in the master bedroom.

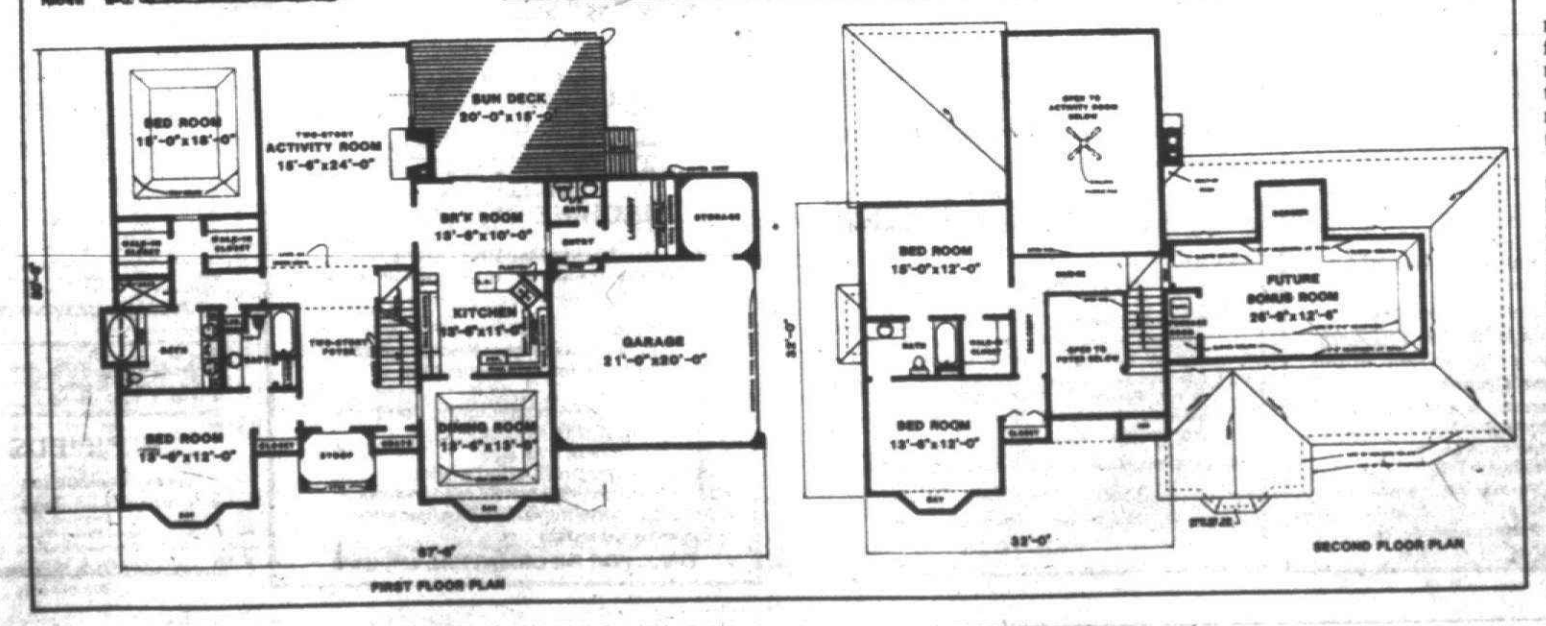

There are two bedrooms on the first floor, one a master bedroom suite with two walk-in closets and bath. The master bedroom measures 15 by 18 feet. The second bedroom, 13.6 by 12 feet, is intended as a guest room.

There are two bedrooms and a bonus room on the second floor. A bath is shared by the two bedrooms. A span of balcony and open rail is shown for the upper hall, which offers a view of the great room.

The formal exterior style is strengthened by multiple roof breaks and highlighted by one stacked bay window, one single bay window and an expense of glass above the main entry allowing a flow of light throughout the center portion of the home.

The plan is No. 3218. The square footage includes the bonus room. All W.D. Farmer plans include construction details for energy efficiency and are drawn to meet FHA and VA requirements. For information, write W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, Ga. 30345.

condo queries
Robert M. Meisner

Please explain why it is necessary to obtain the signature of a wife on a purchase agreement if the husband, who owns the property alone, has signed the purchase agreement and they do not own the property as tenants in common.

I am not totally clear from your question exactly what the facts are, but it would appear that to the extent the sellers of the property are married, the wife has a "dower interest" in the property. Accordingly, the purchase agreement may not be binding upon the wife in regard to releasing her dower unless her signature is affixed to the purchase agreement.

You should ensure that she is prepared to enter into the purchase agreement or otherwise release her dower, as well as to confirm exactly what interest she claims to have with respect to the property. It is better that you resolve these problems before proceeding to closing and, it is hoped, before any further problems arise.

I am selling my condominium on my own and have received an offer from a prospective purchaser who is married. His wife has refused to sign the purchase agreement, but both names are on the purchase agreement. Does this pose a problem?

You have a problem if you intend to have a conveyance to both husband and wife. The purchase agreement technically only obligates you to have entered into an agreement with the husband. If, of course, the wife consents to a deed to her and the monies are paid to you at the time of closing, you should have no objection to conveying it to husband and wife, so long as the husband is in agreement.

But the fact that the wife is not willing to sign the purchase agreement should create suspicion in your mind. Perhaps you should contact an attorney to advise you specifically on the facts and circumstances of your case after reviewing the purchase agreement in question. Remember, discretion is the better part of valor.

I am interested in buying a cooperative and have looked at one in the Lafayette Park area. The association claims that they do not have a set of bylaws or articles of incorporation but merely the proprietary lease. I have sought advice from counsel who indicated that there must be some set of documents, such as bylaws, in effect. I have decided to go ahead without counsel, but am wondering what suggestions you would have.

It appears that you are between a rock and a hard place. No doubt the cooperative association is a nonprofit corporation that has a set of articles of incorporation. Similarly, it presumably has a set of bylaws and, in fact, if it does not, you should look into the question seriously of whether you wish to enter into an arrangement in such a cooperative.

The fact that you are already being put on notice about the possible inadequacy of the cooperative documents should lead you to the inescapable conclusion that legal counsel is necessary to protect your rights.

Some of the best deals made are the ones that are not consummated. For example, if the cooperative is that disorganized, you may not wish to become a member of it because it is likely to guarantee future problems for you as well as the other members of the cooperative association.
