Youth sought in knife-waving at school

By Diane Gale
staff writer

A 16-year-old former student threatened Plymouth-Canton High School administrators with a knife Monday, Dec. 11 and vowed he wouldn't "be taken alive."

The youth fled from the school into the woods behind the Centennial Education Park complex on Canton Center and Joy roads in Canton. No one was injured during the incident.

The youth, a ward of the state who escaped last summer from the Starr Commonwealth for Boys in Calhoun County, is being sought by authorities.

He was sent to the facility for unruly behavior, an extensive police record and because "he couldn't be handled at home," said Pat Nemecek Canton public safety information officer.

CANTON POLICE charged him with larceny in 1988, according to police Detective Keith Lazar. In 1987 he was charged by township police with breaking and entering a home.

School authorities said the boy caused problems when he was in school.

CEP area coordinator Ken Jacobs said he unsuccessfully tried to have him expelled in 1987 before he was finally kicked-out for "persistent disobedience" in January 1989. Jacobs declined to elaborate.

Police believe the boy is living on the streets when he can't get a friend to take him in.

If he's caught, police said they will seek a warrant charging him with felonious assault for Monday's incident.

THE INCIDENT occurred at 11:25 a.m. when school security officers saw two former students on the campus. The 16-year-old was accompanied by a 17-year-old who dropped-out of Plymouth-Canton schools last year. Both boys were detained.

The school district's policy on trespassing is to issue a warning against showing up at the schools without notification, Jacobs said.

During the detention, however, security officers said they believed the 16-year-old was wanted for violating probation. They called Canton police.

Jacobs and CEP security head Jim Collins tried to detain the boys until police arrived.

It became evident that the 16-year-old wasn't going to leave with his friend and he became anxious, Jacobs said.

"He stood up, put his hands in his pockets

Survey shows demand for latchkey program

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

If all goes as planned, beginning next fall Plymouth-Canton Community Schools will offer programming before and after school for the children of working parents.

Trustees are expected to vote on the proposal next month.

Shirley Spaniel, executive director of elementary education, told school board members Monday night that results of a community survey show there's a strong demand for the service.

"We're talking about one of the leading needs in the nation," she said.

Parents of more than 400 children in all 12 elementaries said they'd take advantage of a self-supporting day care program. Field School topped the list with 68 families expressing interest.

"Our committee has been looking into this for three or four years," said Spaniel. "We've had an increasing number of requests for some sort of child care program before and after school. The need is great enough to start one in every school."

Spaniel anticipates some schools will have waiting lists.

Plymouth-Canton is playing catch-up with several area districts, she added.

"Ann Arbor and Livonia have had programs up and running for five years. We have tried to stall getting into this because we haven't had space."

Ideally, she said, schools should have a furnished room with a stove and refrigerator to house a day care program.

As envisioned by a committee including Spaniel, school staffers, a parent and human resources analyst,

Suicides, crime, tight money down side of holiday season

By Diane Gale
staff writer

'Tis not always the season to be jolly.

Especially for the folks who have the spirit knocked out of them by street jackals who steal their holiday decorations.

And ask the people who have their gifts nabbed from under their Christmas trees about holiday cheer.

BUT THERE ARE more serious occurences than having a few gifts stolen. The number of suicides increases during the holiday season, according to Pat Nemecek, Canton public safety information officer.

"People are feeling lonely. They don't have family."

'They're thinking more about shopping than about security. It's easy to get caught up in the season and forget your basic crime prevention tips.'
— Pat Nemecek Canton public safety information officer.

Canton police say that this time of year typically means increased reports of suicide attempts and domestic violence. Shoppers sometimes have their gift purchases stolen.

Financial burdens sometimes cause the fights. Other times it's too much alcohol or drugs.

"We do find in the holiday season a lot of juvenile mischief," Nemecek said.

Often times the nativity scenes and decorations are found close to where they were stolen pointing to the likelihood they were stolen for fun.

Thefts from vehicles always go up in December, Nemecek said. And most are caused by carelessness.

People take more money to go shopping than they normally would, he said. And to lighten their load, they put their packages in cars and

Former union chief charged with posing as police officer

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Former UAW leader Richard Debs, indicted this week on charges of trying to hire five men to attack two union rivals, also faces Canton Township charges stemming from two incidents during which he is charged with impersonating a police officer.

Debs, 52, of Westland, has been charged in both incidents and is facing court action. He is scheduled to appear Friday in 35th District Court for a preliminary examination on a charge of impersonating a police officer in Canton.

IN THE OTHER CASE, Debs faces a Feb. 26 Recorder's Court trial on one charge of carrying a concealed weapon.

He told Canton officer he was a Van Buren Township police officer and flashed a Van Buren Township police badge. Canton police learned that Debs no longer worked with Van Buren Township police.

Debs was arrested Monday by FBI agents on a four-count federal grand jury indictment.

He was released on a $25,000 personal bond and ordered to surrender any weapons by U.S. Magistrate Marcia G. Cooke. A not guilty plea was entered for him and a pre-trial hearing set for Dec. 19.

Debs lost his job as union president at the General Motors assembly plant in an April election.

The indictment charged that Debs hired the person who on Dec. 29, 1988 shot plant bargaining chairman Jesse Gray, who is still on sick leave from his GM job. Debs denied any connection with the shooting.

The indictment also said Debs solicited five men to rough up Gray and Bob Harlow, Local 1776 vice-

Schools closer to kicking smoking habit

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

The Plymouth-Canton school board took another step toward making the schools tobacco-free on Monday by directing a committee studying the issue to come up with recommendations on how to start a no-smoking policy.

The committee has suggested that the district become tobacco-free by 1993. Currently, students 18 years and older are allowed to smoke in areas outside Plymouth Canton and Salem high schools. Faculty members may smoke in designated areas inside school buildings.

TRUSTEE JEANETTE Wines said 1993 is too long to wait.

"I can see that this can't be done immediately, but all of 1991 and 1992? This feeling is out there; the knowledge is out there.

"Most of the staff is aware we are moving this way," she said. "We need to get moving and have the public involved so we can get going sooner than 1993."

Dick Egli, community relations director, serves on the tobacco committee.

"We took a hard look at what we could do immediately. We do need time, so we set the date out far enough for this to happen," said Egli.

Serving with Egli on the committee are high school area coordinators Joan Claeys and Ken Jacobs; Pioneer Middle School assistant principal Lee Harrison; Shirley Waters, director of School office expansion a jobs issue in Plymouth

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

It may not compare with the recent Leonard-Duran "Uno Mas" fight.

But the battle lines are being drawn.

In one corner are residents and city planning commissioners opposed to school administration office expansion and expanded parking where houses and an office district meet downtown.

And in the other corner are school administrators, the business community and some city officials, who want to keep jobs in Plymouth.

BECAUSE THE planning commission has balked at the expansion plan proposed by school district officials, "We've turned it over to our attorney. We'll let him battle the planning commission," said John Hoben, schools superintendent.

"There's no lawsuit being contemplated," said attorney Michael Pollard, who is representing the school district. "We haven't had a final decision from the planning commission."

Pollard this week asked the planning commission to delay consideration of the school district plan until January. School officials hope to schedule a presentation to neighborhood residents on the plan later this month, Pollard said.

Meanwhile, area residents have signed more than 100 petition signatures opposing the plan.

"If it does grow, it should have a residential appearance at least, even if that is not its function," said Karen Jallos of McKinley Street.

'If they build there, the residents want the schools to abide by the city regulation on building height.'
— Karen Jallos

SCHOOL OFFICIALS want to add a building housing 7,500 square feet on the west side of the current administration building at 454 S. Harvey — 2,500 feet in a basement and on each of two floors — and 73 parking spaces. The building sits south of Ann Arbor Trail.

To make room for parking, school officials want to raze two houses the district owns south of Robert Bake Realtors on Ann Arbor Trail.

To pay for the project, officials would use the $925,000 approved by voters in a 1986 bond issue.

Plymouth planning commissioners and residents have raised objections concerning parking, building height, landscaping and screening.

"They want to take residential property and use it for parking," said Jallos. She said area residents are concerned for "the safety of children and pedestrians" if the project goes in.

"If they build there, the residents want the schools to abide by the city regulation on building height," Jallos added.

THE SCHOOLS got a variance from the zoning board of appeals to increase the building height from 25 feet — maximum allowed under the zoning ordinance — to 31 feet.

Pam Kosteva, president of the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce, wrote in a letter to Hoben that the chamber "fully supports the renovation and expansion of the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools board office."

"As a business association we clearly recognize the importance of maintaining this vital employer within the city boundaries," she continued.

In early November, school board Trustee E.J. McClendon suggested "going to other sites if the city doesn't want us here."

But Hoben said on Monday, "We're still interested in expanding," at the current school administration office site.

In its Dec. 4 editions the Plymouth and Canton Observer Newspapers incorrectly stated that David Kotcher was fired from American Yazaki Corp. after receiving numerous memos about employment policies at the firm. The story should have said that Kotcher sent memos about employment policies to Yazaki's president. The mistake was due to an editing change.

carrier of the month

Canton

Becky Heneveld

Becky, 15, a 10th grader at Plymouth-Canton High School, has been named the Carrier of the Month for November by the Canton Observer.

She is the daughter of Harvey and Elaine Heneveld, of Canton, and has had a paper route since October 1987.

He favorite subjects in school are English and history. Her hobbies are reading, shopping and singing. She has been listed in the "Who's Who Among American High School Students" and is a member of the Honor's Choir.

Her plans for the future are to attend Hope College and become a teacher.

She likes her route because it's a chance to earn spending money. On her route, she has developed her sense of responsibility and record keeping skills. She said other young people could benefit from a route because it helps develop responsibility.

kindergartners through fifth-graders would be eligible for day care.

The program would be offered from 7 — 9 a.m. and from after school until 6 p.m. five days a week. The cost for full-time users would be $40 per week. Families with more than one child would receive a $10 discount for each enrolled youngster.

Transportation would be parents' responsibility.

Slots would be filled on a first-come, first-served basis, Spaniel said.

The program would staff at least one adult supervisor per 12 children as required by state law.

The supervisor needn't be a certified teacher, but must have 60 semester hours of college credit in a field such as early childhood education, said Spaniel. A second staffer can be a lesser-paid aide.

"We're really excited about this. This will be a stimulating, enriching program, not something that's strictly watching TV. We want it to be relaxing and fun," said Spaniel.

Foreign language, cooking, physical education, athletics, computers, games, drama and reading are among the suggested activities, she added.

Day care for pre-schoolers is a possibility for the future, Spaniel said.

Board members asked the committee to return in January with specifics, including job descriptions for those who'd operate the program. It's estimated that supervisors would be paid bout $12 per hour, and aides $6.

FEEDBACK FROM board members was positive.

"I think child care is a very important thing to the parents in this community," said Trustee Roland Thomas.

"If we can provide that service at no cost, I think we should use it. It's a better utilization of public facilities.

"My only concern would be whether there'd be a significant increase in our liability insurance. Other communities have made it a very viable program. I think we should work in that direction," he said.

Trustee E. J. McClendon, a strong endorser of district-sponsored day care, said the program will be difficult to accommodate because of space restrictions.

McClendon suggested that "libraries could be used for the before-school program. After school would be another matter.

"Someone raised the issue of the displacement of after-school community activities by day care. That's not an issue at all."

Students get a taste of life in Africa, continent in turmoil

African tell students about problems, future of their land

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Seniors studying international relations at Centennial Educational Park learned firsthand Tuesday about apartheid, famine, civil war and injustices plaguing countries in Africa.

An all-day, in-school field trip featured talks by African-born representatives of Michigan State University's African Studies Center. Students broke into small groups to draft papers addressing economic and political solutions to problems.

Tshepo Molai of South Africa said racism affects him every day of his life.

"Racism has been directed against me from birth. I wake up every day in a house in an area in which whites cannot live," Molai said.

"Blacks get less and less. The fact my parents get less money means I don't get the education whites get.

"I have to pay for going to school with less money. Education is free for white children."

Molai valued his day with Plymouth-Canton students.

"It will benefit my country greatly, because they are the future of the United States. If they have more knowledge and more education, they are in a better position to make decisions.

"The United States is involved economically in South Africa," he added. "Whether that economic involvement should continue or not will be determined by people who are better informed. That's better for the United States and for our country."

As bad as conditions are in South Africa, Molai said he has hope.

"The future will be better, not because of what the government is doing, but because of what it has been forced to do now," Molai said.

Halima Awale of Somalia told students that her countrymen are striving for freedom.

"People are suffering because of the economy. People are exiled for political reasons," said Awale.

Awale works for her country's minister of agriculture teaching farmers how to produce new crops and increase their yield.

Getacew Begashaw of Ethiopia told students about the 28-year civil war, famine and economic problems gripping his homeland.

"The government, a one-man dictatorship, has a policy of starving people and forcefully relocating them so the opposing forces will not get support from the people," Begashaw said.

'I think something has to happen, and that's what we're here trying to do — figure out ways to raise the standard of living and commercialize.'
— Bill Randall
Salem senior

Begashaw also saw his visit with high school students as time well-spent.

"The more the people of your community understand the situation, the more they will be helpful in resolving problems of the least developed countries.

"The civil war is something that is devastating our country now, but which can be solved if government and the opposing forces get involved in the interests of their people," he said.

Increasing awareness "may bring help to Ethiopia in our efforts to resolve our problems and increase international involvement and support. That will force them to come to the table."

Students worked on ways to solve both economic and political problems in Africa.

"We tried to relate it to what the world can do on an international level," said Anne Whalen, a Salem senior who plans a career in international business.

One idea was to "improve the economy by diversifying agriculture and industry, and also by commercializing because most are farming countries only supplying enough food to feed themselves."

Whalen's group also suggested encouraging "the United Nations and other governments to urge multi-national corporations to profit-share and invest in indigenous business people in Africa rather than in just the United States or Soviet Union."

Salem senior Bill Randall said the day was "very enlightening.

"Coming from the perspective of someone from Africa you get more of a feeling for the situation. It's more interesting when you hear it from someone who's actually lived there."

What disturbed Randall most was learning about "how the minorities are totally ruling the majority, and that's allowed to go on in South Africa and in the Sudan.

"I think something has to happen, and that's what we're here trying to do — figure out ways to raise the standard of living and commercialize."

There's hope for Africa in the long-term, but not the short, Randall said.

"Right now they are really in crisis. There's guerilla warfare, civil wars and economic instability," he said.

Randall said he hopes to learn more about Africa at an upcoming Model United Nations conference in Kalamazoo.

Heather Murley, Halima Awale of Somalia and Albert Chun work in a study group.

and pulled out a (4-inch) knife," Jacobs said.

The boy yelled: "I won't be taken alive," police said.

When he tried to leave the office, Collins put his hand on the door to stop him. The boy took a few swipes at Collins, Jacobs said.

"Our immediate concern was to protect our safety and the students in the outer office," said Jacobs.

Still swinging the knife, the boy tried to leave the school from the north end of the building when he spotted two security officers in that direction. He made a quick turn and bolted through the building's south end and into the woods near the athletic building.

CANTON POLICE and school employees searched the area.

The boy has occasionally been spotted in Canton since he escaped from the boys home last summer, Nemecek said. The boy's mother lives in the township.

The missing youth is described as Asian, having dark shoulder length hair, 5 feet 4 inches tall, 130 pounds, small build and slender.

president, to dissuade them from running against Debs for the UAW local presidency.

Each count carries a penalty of up to 20 years in prison or a $250,000 fine.

THE CANTON TOWNSHIP case in which Debs is charged with impersonating an officer stems from a May 27 incident.

Police said they saw Debs with two Westland men on Michigan Avenue at the Willow Run Credit Union, according to Canton public information officer Pat Nemecek.

Canton police said Debs, who was wearing a jacket with "police" written in bold white letters on the back, was about to dump a truck-load of asphalt roofing, shingles and pieces of wood.

He told Canton officer he was a Van Buren Township police officer and flashed a Van Buren Township police badge. Canton police learned that Debs no longer worked with Van Buren Township police.

Debs turned himself in to Canton police July 26. He was released on a personal bond.

In the other Canton case, Debs was charged with carrying a concealed weapon on Aug. 5.

go back and do more shopping.

"They're thinking more about shopping than about security," Nemecek said. "It's easy to get caught up in the season and forget your basic crime prevention tips."

AVOID LARGE amounts of cash. Avoid putting gifts in the view of car and house windows. Lock car doors, house doors and windows.

Walk confidently in parking lots and other places that make you vulnerable to robbers. Avoid areas that appear to be dangerous.

Carrying a weapon is asking for trouble, Nemecek said, because it's too easy for it to be turned against you. Carry a whistle instead.

Have your keys out and ready before you get to your car to avoid fumbling for them in a dark parking lot.

Smaller purses are attractive to thieves, because they are easily hidden for quick getaways. Large purses with shoulder straps are the style of choice, Nemecek said. And purses should always be kept close to the owner.

Nemecek advises if you follow these steps you may indeed make your holidays happier.

Schools to be smoke-free by '93 attendance; Marguerite Vollrath, president of the teachers' union; and Pat O'Donnell, director of special programs and student services.

Trustee Dave Artley agreed 1993 is "far too long to wait."

School board president Dean Swartzwelter said, "If we want to adopt this, there are a number of things that need to happen. What are we going to do to help staff? We need a commitment to make it work," he said. "I don't want to shove it down anyone's throat."

HIGH SCHOOL ADMINISTRATORS have balked at the idea because of the difficulty of enforcing a no-smoking policy. District officials say enforcement will be costly. They estimate the security personnel they'd have to hire will mean an annual expense of up to $90,000.

"There are all kinds of debates about how many people it would take," said Trustee E.J. McClendon, a retired University of Michigan public health professor.

"The principals say if we can't afford to hire security, this will be one more rule we can't enforce, and that erodes the sense of authority and responsibility of abiding by the rules in the buildings. It kind of encourages kids to be cavalier in ignoring rules. If they can't enforce them, I think they have a point there," said McClendon.

TRUSTEE ROLAND THOMAS agreed establishing a no-smoking policy will boil down to "having adequate people to supervise" at Centennial Educational Park.

"I am willing to look at phasing it in. I know what we've been through at Ford. We've phased it in over two, two-and-a-half years. I want to provide those people with help in breaking the habit of smoking."

While smoking cessation clinics are costly, Thomas sees them as a necessary expense.

"I think we owe it to our employees to have that available to them. It's a social responsibility as much as anything else. It think it will pay back in the long run. I think medical evidence shows people who smoke are ill more often than others."

MCCLENDON WOULD LIKE to see the district "eliminate not only smoking, but the use of smokeless tobacco, which is just about as harmful."

McClendon also favors a phase-in plan.

"I think the first thing is to eliminate smoking by students both inside and outside the buildings, and then in offices so students aren't walking into principals' offices and finding smoke-filled rooms.

"Then we have to come down to teachers' lounges" and the custodial staff, he said.

McClendon is anxious for the policy to be put in place.

Love for animals guides volunteers at area shelter

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

One lady can't seem to stop adopting homeless animals. Another says her friends tune her out because she is constantly trying to find homes for cats. And a third woman has become a guardian of newborn puppies.

These volunteers from Westland, Redford Township and Canton Township are just three of the estimated 500 who give their free time to the Michigan Humane Society and have a perpetual soft spot for animals.

"If every pet owner would volunteer just a couple of hours a week at the shelter, I don't think there would be so many abused animals out there," said Ursula Vorase of Westland.

Vorase discovered the nearby Westland shelter, one of three branches of the humane society in the metro Detroit area, when her mother-in-law's 16-year old dog, Smokey, ran away.

"I went there every day and I became friends with the staff," she recalled. "I got interested."

Unfortunately, Smokey was never found. But Vorase has made a host of new animal friends.

"IT'S GOING to be three years in February," she said. "I take the animals for walks, I feed and comfort them. Once they start eating, it relieves some of the stress. You socialize them and they usually respond."

Vorase's specialty is fostering puppies.

"My husband built a big enclosure in the basement, about eight feet by eight feet. I cover it with newspapers. I clean (puppies), feed them, play with them," she said.

"The sad thing is that people bring (the puppies) in way too young. They can't be adopted under seven weeks old. I give them their first shots at six weeks. I take stool samples into the clinic. I know what to look for in the way of problems — a runny eye or runny nose, unusual diarrhea. I have fostered 94 puppies so far so I know what to look for."

Vorase's permanent pets are Daisy, an 8-year-old terrier/labrador mix who was adopted at 3 months, and Gidget, a Yorkie puppy she adopted last year.

"I fell in love with her. She's adorable."

Vorase said she keeps her animals away from the fostered newborns until she is sure that the visiting puppies are completely healthy. Kennel cough is especially contagious among dogs, she said.

"But eventually I bring the puppies up from the basement one by one to meet my pets. They all get along."

Vorase spends up to four days a week at the shelter and says she is always on call.

"I'll go in if someone needs me."

JEAN LAW began volunteering at the Westland shelter a year ago last September.

"I got my granddaughter a kitten and I trained it to use the litterbox," she said. "Then I missed it so much that I went (to the Humane Society) to get myself a cat."

Law, of Redford Township, sometimes finds it hard to turn away the cats she has fostered for the Westland shelter. To date she has adopted four of them.

"I also have two Dobermans. One I already had and the other I adopted out of the shelter," she added.

What she gets out of her volunteer work is satisfaction in seeing the animals transformed from scared, often sickly creatures, to healthy, mellow and trusting animals ready for adoption.

Law volunteers on Tuesday and Thursday mornings. She is currently fostering three cats. She is not anxious to give them back until she is reasonably sure homes can be found for them.

"I tell everybody I see about the cats," she said. "They see me coming and they tune me out."

Law's latest acquisition is a black Persian cat named Oliver.

"He had a problem with his fur so they cut his hair off. He got an infection. They took an X-ray and discovered he was kicked as a kitten, resulting in a fractured spine. He couldn't be put up for adoption. So he'll get fixed and then I'm going to adopt him."

Sue Gates, who manages the Westland shelter, can't estimate the number of volunteers who work at the site, some just a few hours a week, some almost daily. But all totaled, the MHS has 500 volunteers, she said.

"They are very important to our operation, particularly at the Westland shelter because we don't have inside and outside runs. It's very important to walk the dogs."

NOLA BONANBRINI of Canton Township combines volunteering with a paid part-time position at the Westland shelter.

"I've volunteered two different times," she said. "First for four years, then I was off for a couple of years because of health problems. Now I've been back for a couple of years."

In addition to one afternoon per week of volunteering at the shelter, Bonanbrini volunteers for special events and is also involved in the animal fostering program. On Mondays and Saturdays, she works at the shelter as an adoption counselor.

"My two dogs were both adopted from here," she said. "Watson is a 5-year-old shepherd-hound-doberman mix. Sherlock is an 11-year-old husky-spaniel mix. We just adore them."

The most difficult part of volunteering at the shelter is "giving up the animals you've fostered," she said. "Even after they are adopted, I'll call the families and see how they are doing."

At the shelter, Bonanbrini walks dogs, cleans soiled cages and gives the animals treats. She also calls people whose names are on a wish list for specific breeds of animals.

Adoption prices are $30 for dogs and $20 for cats. Shots and sterilization are extra and vary according to the size of the animal. The Westland shelter is open six days a week, from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. on Saturday, which is the busiest day.

"The Westland shelter is a pound for five cities," Bonanbrini said. "We get many strays. If they have a good temperament and good health, they are put up for adoption."

In addition to dogs and cats, the shelter houses hamsters, gerbils, guinea pigs and rabbits — also available to loving families.

"People should remember that at the local pound, we are required by law to keep strays only four full days. So they should check with us before placing ads in the newspaper," Bonanbrini said.

The shelter is a pound for Westland, Redford Township, Livonia, Dearborn Heights and Canton Township.

For more information on volunteering or operation of the shelter, call 721-7300.

Humane society discourages giving pets as holiday gifts

Christmas cards and holiday greetings often picture cuddly puppies and kittens popping out of packages or decked out in ribbons and bows.

These images have become so commonplace that we tend to forget what they depict — pets as holiday gifts.

The Michigan Humane Society knows that while giving a pet for Christmas might seem like a good idea, all too often it is a negative experience for the animal and the recipient.

New pets need quiet time to adjust to their new surroundings. The excitement and confusion of a holiday celebration can be a frightening experience to an animal unaccustomed to his surroundings.

The human members of the family are especially busy during the holiday season and may not have the extra time needed to help the new pet become adjusted and to give him the extra care and attention he needs.

In addition, close surveillance of the new pet may not be possible. Potential holiday dangers for the new pet (as well as established ones) include chewing on tinsel, ribbons and electric cords — all dangerous things that can cause serious illness or even death.

Finally, having a pet is a personal choice and responsibility. Most people would prefer the opportunity to choose their own pet — to select that certain pet that has the qualities and temperament that matches their lifestyle. When you give someone a pet, you are making a choice that they will have to live with for 10 to 15 years.

If a "living" gift is definitely the choice, try to wait until the holiday excitement and confusion have subsided to introduce him into your home. This little being deserves his best chance at a good, loving home and the post holiday period offers the greatest likelihood of successful match-up.

Movie benefit scheduled

The Michigan Humane Society invites families to a special movie showing 10 a.m. Saturday, Dec. 16 and Sunday, Dec. 17 at Laurel Park Theaters, Livonia.

The film is a popular, first run movie aimed for a family audience.

Admission is $1, with proceeds earmarked for Michigan Humane Society programs.

Laurel Park theaters are at Six Mile and I-275. Additional information is available by calling 463-4133.

SUNKEN TREASURE FOUND ON THE ATOCHA

A 1622 Spanish Galleon

Join Treasure Traders™ of Beverly Hills as they unveil original pieces once destined for the King of Spain. Silver bars, gold, emeralds and chests of silver coins were aboard the galleon Nuestra Senora de Atocha when it sank in a raging hurricane in 1622 off the coast of the Florida Keys. All attempts to locate the wreckage failed for more than three centuries, until 1985 when the vast cargo was found. It's reputed to be the largest sunken treasure find ever, and you can see it now at one of our trunk showings.

You'll see the original silver and gold coins fashioned into exquisite pendants, surrounded by gold, diamonds and precious stones. Plus, reproductions of the original treasure, made from the actual silver ingots retrieved from the ship. Pendants, pins and earrings in the shapes of coins, crucifixes, crosses, artifacts, hearts and more. All part of the original treasure trove. Each with a certificate of authenticity. And most are engraved with "Atocha 1622!" Don't miss this chance to see and own a piece of sunken treasure. $35 to $1,000. Selection may vary by store. Fashion Jewelry.

Panel debates how non-Christians should deal with Christmas holiday

By James Radebaugh
staff writer

One woman, settling into her seat in Temple Israel, said it would be just like Oprah or Phil Donahue.

They even had a microphone so the audience could comment and ask questions, she said.

"It" was a panel discussion of the December Dilemma — the conflicts that arise at Christmastime when non-Christians are made aware of the fact that they live in a predominantly Christian society.

The discussion included a local school superintendent and a minister. They attempted to answer questions such as how much public Christmas celebrations should be tolerated and when do such celebrations make non-Christians feel like second-class citizens.

"Rather than sitting around talking to ourselves, we thought it would be instructive to bring in other perspectives," said Miriam Imerman, of the Jewish Community Council of Metropolitan Detroit, which hosted the Monday evening discussion.

The problem, one currently getting a lot of attention in the Birmingham schools, was dramatized in an introductory skit performed by a troupe from a local Jewish theater.

It focused on a Jewish family taking in the day's events. At school the teenage daughter was offered a part in a Christmas concert — singing in praise of Jesus. She was excited and her mother said it was her big chance. But her father refuses to allow her participation, which he calls a threat to the girl's heritage.

Was it? Was the school's staging a Christmas concert an assault on the family's right to choose their daughter's religious instruction? These are some of the questions the panel attempted to answer.

Much of the tone of the evening was set by Detroit News columnist George Cantor, who is Jewish and has opposed Christmas celebrations in the schools or other public places. He served as moderator for the evening.

Nevertheless, he said, Christmas hype leaves him with lots of breathing room to practice Judaism and he survived his own experiences singing Christmas songs in school with no apparent harm.

The Rev. Mark Jensen, senior minister at North Congregational Church in Southfield, stressed his own opposition to the celebration of Christmas in public schools. But he also told the mostly Jewish audience that for many people there are deep seated wishes to preserve certain traditions, like school Christmas parties.

Panelist Robert Appleford, a former mayor of Birmingham, said his city learned a simple solution to these conflicts through a lengthy court battle in recent years when the Amercian Civil Liberties Union challenged the city's placement of a creche on public property.

The solution, he said, is to keep nativity scenes off public property. It can be displayed just as well at a church and no one is made to feel someone else's religion has been sanctioned by the government.

Dr. Seymour Gretchko, superintendent of West Bloomfield schools, said that officials in his district have tried to avoid imposing strict rules governing Christmas celebrations. Gretchko, who is Jewish, said, that an "obsession with complete separation of church and state" will only make matters worse.

"It seems to me that ultimately, common sense must prevail," he said.

Questions remain about how much was accomplished during the discussion.

Isabel Sweet, of Southfield, said she thought little was accomplished.

"I thought it was very poorly presented," she said. "It was just a chance to (be conciliatory) and not seriously address the issues," she said.

Sweet said she thought Jensen was "insensitive" and said she felt patronized by comments he made in praise of social activism among Jews.

"And the thought of the school superintendent saying he was going to leave it up to teachers and principals to deal with, God help us," she said.

Alex Bensky, an attorney from Detroit, said he thought the evening was interesting, but not necessarily productive.

"The issues have been rehashed ad infinitum," Bensky said. "I don't think we're any closer to understanding them."

A Farmington Hills mother of two school-age children, however, said she thought it helped to have the issues aired. She said her children have experienced insensitivity at school, such as having a test review day scheduled on Yom Kippur, and that she would go home and discuss with them some of the points the speakers raised.

"I was really impressed with the speakers," she said.

Commissioner crusades for U.S. health plan

By Tom Ferguson
staff writer

Kay Beard thinks national health insurance is an idea whose time is long past due.

The Wayne County commissioner has supported the idea for years. Tragedy in Beard's own family has only stiffened her resolve to help see an old political football across the goal line.

"Industries and businessmen are starting to talk about national health care," she said. "Once business people start to put the pressure on, we'll see it happen."

Beard, a Democrat whose district includes Garden City, Westland and Inkster, said: "We're at the point now where so many people — maybe 30 million — are not covered. The working poor really get it in the neck."

"The McDonald's of the world employ a lot of people, but don't supply many health benefits."

"THERE ARE a lot of middle-class, blue-collar workers in my district, and a lot of young professionals, too. As health-care costs continue to rise, I think we'll all agree there is no other solution."

Beard's husband, Jerome, died this fall two years after undergoing emergency heart surgery at University Hospital in Ann Arbor. The initial surgery was followed by an unending series of complications: stomach surgery, jaundice, pneumonia, months of feeding through a tube, and a valiant, futile fight to survive.

"Jerry had a fantastic constitution," Beard said. In the first six weeks of her husband's illness there were four "catastrophic events." In the two years he fought to recover there were 10 surgical procedures.

Between the first heart surgery in October 1987 and his death this year, Jerry Beard's weight fell from 149 pounds to 91 pounds. The commercial artist, who was well-known in the community, spent virtually the entire two-year period in either University Hospital or the VA hospital in Ann Arbor.

There were attempts to bring him home, frustrated by new complications and the need for skilled care.

Despite the trauma, there was Blue Cross, and Medicare and some VA benefits, though the VA "eventually kicked him out because his problems were not service-related."

WITHOUT THESE traditional middle-class safety nets, the Beards would have stared poverty in the face. "And there does come a time when coverage ends," Beard said. "I was prepared to sell the house if we used up all the benefits."

Asked if this dilemma would be a major part of the rest of her public life, Beard said: "Undoubtedly."

"There is only one answer: national health care," she said.

"It's got to be a universal kind of thing, the same as Social Security. That was the flaw in the catastrophic coverage. It was funded by a surtax on senior citizens. Everybody must pay into it."

Politically, Beard is jousting in a social policy debate that has endured for generations. But she believes times are changing.

"I never thought I'd live to see the day, she said, "but this year a group of health-care professionals wrote a piece in the New England Journal of Medicine that advocated national health care on the Canadian model."

"Sen. Kennedy," she said in reference to Massachusetts Sen. Edward Kennedy, a longtime proponent of national health insurance, "is starting to get a little more credence."

For her part, Beard will speak out wherever a forum is available, as last week at a Detroit hearing to gather testimony on the need for long-term care programs.

Asked what she told the hearing, Beard said:

"I told them about my husband."

'We're at the point now where so many people — maybe 30 million — are not covered. The working poor really get it in the neck.'

S'craft music professor receives honor

Schoolcraft College music professor Donald Morelock recently received a Faculty Recognition Award from the Community College consortium in honor of his artistic ability and dedication to education.

Morelock, an Ann Arbor resident, coordinates the college piano program, teaches piano and directs the Piano Teachers Certification Program.

In addition, he conducts professional recitals, master classes and workshops.

Morelock is also the founder of the Schoolcraft College Music Club, bringing live performing arts to the Livonia campus from leading universities and organizations.

Morelock holds a Master of Music degree from the University of Michigan and has also studied in Vienna.

He has received "Teacher of the Year" honors from the Michigan Music Teachers Association and the Schoolcraft College Presidential Award.

The consortium is sponsored by the University of Michigan, University of Toledo and Michigan State University.

Cookbook is available

"Cooking With Love," a cookbook featuring gourmet to easy-to-fix meals, is available through the area chapter of the Alzheimer's Association.

The cookbook contains never-before-published recipes provided by families of Alzheimer's patients.

The spiral-bound book is available for $5.95 at Alzheimer's Association offices or by mailing a check for that amount, plus a $1.50 shipping and handling fee, to Alzheimer's Association, 17251 W. Twelve Mile, Suite 109, Southfield 48076.

Proceeds will help further association work to provide services, research and education on behalf of Alzheimer's patients and their families. Additional information is available by calling 557-8277.

Dems, GOP going to war on auto insurance

By Tim Richard
staff writer

"Cut prices," say Democrats, the Michigan Citizens Lobby and critics of the auto insurance business.

"Control costs," say Republicans and the industry.

Those are the battle lines in the Michigan Legislature as the election year of 1990 dawns.

The only point of agreement is that both sides see auto owners' premiums rising faster than general inflation.

All say something must be done because all — governor, senators and representatives — face voters next year.

Complicating the partisan debate is a Detroit-suburban argument over who is being subsidized by the present Essential Insurance Act of 1981.

THIS WEEK the Mackinac Center, a right-of-center think tank in Midland, released a report by Scott E. Harrington, a University of South Carolina professor of insurance and finance, which says Michigan rates are lower than national averages and not rising as fast.

Harrington's key points favor the industry view of flaws in the present system:

- High rates in Detroit are justified because claims per vehicle are 142 percent of the state average and personal injury claims are 163 percent of the state average.
- Young females are subsidizing young males.
- Young marrieds are subsidizing young singles.
- "Persons who reside in areas with low accident costs subsidize persons in areas with high accident costs." Translation: White outstate and suburban areas subsidize black urban areas.

Harrington called for efforts to hold down costs.

HISTORICALLY, Michigan has tried to wipe out differences between geographic and socioeconomic groups in the population. The theory is that such groupings are discriminatory, particularly against blacks.

In this view, espoused by Democrats and the Citizens Lobby, rising premiums are caused by the greed of a handful of companies whose rates must be controlled by state law.

House Bill 5313 orders such a rollback. House Speaker Lewis Dodak, R-Birch Run, called it necessary because Michigan drivers "are required by law to have insurance, so we want to ensure that it is available and affordable in all parts of the state."

Last week, the Democrat-controlled state House passed the bill rolling back rates 60 percent — and Republicans went along with it in a 105-0 vote.

"A holiday gift," said Citizens Lobby president Richard Stoddard.

"Irresponsible . . . meaningless," said the insurers.

IT BECAME a game of one-upmanship as the GOP offered an amendment to hike the rollback to 50 percent. Democrats shot it down, 68-37.

Republicans made their philosophical point with another amendment requiring auto repair shops, parts suppliers and medical providers to roll back their prices 30 percent, too. Their point was that if the state is going to regulate the final price of insurance, it must regulate the costs that insurance most cover. Democrats shot it down, 68-39.

In an understatement, Rep. Jan Dolan, R-Farmington Hills, said she voted for the bill on final passage "to keep the reform process moving . . . The Senate will continue to address the problem."

Added Nancy McKeague, president of the Michigan Insurance Federation: "Now tht they've had their fun and they've gotten this out of their system . . ."

THE BATTLE shifts to the Senate Commerce Committee, chaired by Richard Posthumus, R-Alto. Posthumus is not only a potent figure himself but is the right-hand man of Republican gubernatorial aspirant John Engler.

Posthumus has bills to reduce mandatory no-fault coverage premiums by 25 percent by cutting costs. Items:

- Convicted drunk drivers would pay a $100 surcharge on their next premiums. So would drivers convicted of using drugs, reckless driving, negligent homicide and drag racing.
- Wage loss coverage would become optional.
- Recovery for non-economic damages ("pain and suffering") by people who are predominantly at fault in a collision would be limited.
- The law would re-define "reasonable and necessary medical expenses." It would eliminate duplication of benefit payments by requiring coordination of auto and health policies.
- The state would determine a maximum fee schedule for health benefits.

Posthumus was joined in a recent news conference by the House GOP insurance expert, Paul Wartner of Portage, who said, "The industry and the trial lawyers won't like some parts. That's when you have good legislation."

Tenant rights bill takes a big beating

By Tim Richard
staff writer

State representatives are nice to each other. Even when they blow one member out of the ballpark, they give him a chance to cover up the score.

That happened to Rep. Ted Wallace, D-Detroit, and his bill to prohibit "retaliatory evictions" by landlords — a bill supported by a few suburbanites.

As a blaze of red lights (no) and only a few green lights (yes) flashed on the tally board in the House chamber Thursday, Wallace saw defeat and shouted "Clear the board" — a signal to the speaker to stop the roll call without completing it. So House Bill 4536 still sits on the calendar.

The bill would bar a landlord from evicting a tenant in retaliation for the tenant's joining an association to secure rights or reporting health and safety code violations.

"A GOOD piece of legislation," said Rep. Maxine Berman, D-Southfield, who two years ago had attempted to pass a batch of "tenant's rights" bills. She took no part in this debate.

Wallace's bill failed last June 15 and had languished on the House calendar almost six months.

He got vocal help last week from one Republican, Rep. David Honigman of West Bloomfield.

"I was the only Republican to support it in the Judiciary Committee," said Honigman. "I've represented landlords. Believe me, it doesn't do anything bad to landlords.

"We've compromised a lot with the landlord community," he said, claiming support from small landlords' groups in the outstate area. "The Apartment Owners' Association is the only one opposed to it, and the president of that group (Mel Kaftan) lives in my district."

Honigman said tenants should be protected when protesting that an apartment "is infested with rats or hasn't had hot water in three months."

WALLACE INTRODUCED the bill after the state Court of Appeals found a hole in a 1972 tenants' rights law passed by the Legislature.

The appeals court said the law applied only to month-to-month leases, not to fixed term leases.

Rep. Bill Runco, R-Dearborn, said "the spirit of the bill is good" but made it too difficult for a landlord to evict a tenant for cause. "They (tenants) can drag this lease out. It's not going to be very good for landlords."

Rep. Paul Wartner, R-Portage, a real estate broker who denied being a "slum landlord," said landlords already lose two months rent in evicting a tenant — "that's how slow the courts are. This bill is an unconscionable burden on the landlord."

The bill is supported by the Michigan Rental Housing Association and Michigan Consumers Council.

It is opposed by the Michigan Apartment Owners Association and Michigan Association of Realtors.

Schools urged to watch spending

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Michigan's education chief is urging most school districts to tighten their financial belts in the wake of November's defeat of two state ballot proposals that would have given them more money.

At the same time, in-formula school districts will have to wait until next year, at the earliest, before challenging the state aid formula in court.

In-formula school districts, those that receive direct state aid for classroom expenses, campaigned for proposals A and B. Both were heavily rejected by voters.

Defeat of the proposals means districts that receive direct state aid may have to implement tight budgeting, especially during contract talks, said state Superintendent of Schools Donald Bemis.

"NO ONE knows how many (districts) will be in trouble until budgets are adopted," Bemis said. "If they live within their budget, they won't be in trouble."

Hefty contract settlements, be said, could cause trouble.

"If they give away 20-percent pay raises at the bargaining table, then they will be in trouble," Bemis said. "Collective bargaining is always a major factor."

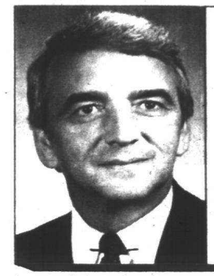
Area in-formula districts include Garden City, Redford Union and Wayne-Westland. Combined, those districts serve an estimated 32,000 students.

Though most metro Detroit districts are out-of-formula, and receive no direct state aid, the overwhelming majority of Michigan public schools remains in-formula.

MANY DISTRICTS throughout Michigan could be required to make tough financial choices, said the state's top schools administrator for Oakland County.

"There are some schools that are looking down the barrel of a loaded gun," said Rick Simonson, assistant superintendent of state and federal affairs for Oakland County schools.

More than 100 of Michigan's 570 public school districts face serious fiscal problems in the future unless reforms are made in state financing, Simonson said. Some districts might have to eliminate classes or even consolidate with other districts to survive, he said.



'If they give away 20-percent pay raises at the bargaining table, then they will be in trouble.'

— Donald Bemis
Michigan Superintendent of Schools

EVEN BEFORE the election, in-formula districts filed suit to change the state aid formula.

That lawsuit, however, won't be heard until at least 1990 and maybe not even then.

"Initially, we hope to receive approval to spend tax dollars to challenge the state in court," said Gary Jackson, Huron Schools superintendent and spokesman for the numerous districts that filed suit.

A ruling on that phase of the suit was supposed to occur this month in Chief Wayne County Circuit Judge Richard Kaufman's court.

High schools

There are several alternatives

THE PLYMOUTH-CANTON schools will face a dilemma in the 1990s: To stay on the path of centralized high schools or look toward a third high school elsewhere in the district?

School officials and board members say a third high school is needed to handle the anticipated growth in Canton and Plymouth townships. More houses mean more kids.

An increase in the number of kids means even more students will be headed to the Centennial Educational Park, where Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem high schools are located.

Estimates are that more than 5,000 students will be in the two high schools.

We think that's too many.

One suggested solution is that Central Middle School in Plymouth be turned into a high school again.

However, we think the school district should take a look at where the students will be coming from before deciding on a route to take. If western Canton Township becomes as developed as officials say, we think the school district should look to building another high school in that area and western Plymouth Township.

Also, before the district makes any sort of decision, parents should be consulted. Where kids go to school is always an emotional subject with parents.

So, before the school district selects an avenue to take, there's plenty of ground to cover. We're glad the school board is talking about it now. Residents should be aware of all the options available before they are asked to pay for a solution.

Art in Canton

Community support is needed

WE'RE GLAD THERE are people around like Joseph DeLauro in Canton Township.

DeLauro is an artist who wants to bring art, drama and music to the township as part of his job as head of the Canton Community Arts Council.

He has some admirable goals and it's too bad he doesn't have a budget to match. The Canton Community Foundation has earmarked $4,000 for the programs.

However, the council is looking to obtain money from builders and developers by asking them to set aside a percentage of development costs to support art projects.

We think that's a good place to start. Developers are the ones making profits from new neighborhoods and businesses in Canton, and it's an opportunity for them to put something back into the community.

But it goes further. Art, drama and music improve the quality of life. When that's improved, it makes a community a more desirable place to live. And that translates into higher property values.

That could sound crass when talking about the arts. However, such communities as Birmingham and nearby Ann Arbor have cashed in on their reputations for supporting the arts. Property values in both communities are high, although not just because of their support of the arts.

Canton doesn't have the same image as either Birmingham or Ann Arbor, but at least the arts council is a start.

Let's just hope it goes someplace.

Yea, I-696

East side, west side merge

BACK IN THE 1920s there was a little ditty that ran, "East side, west side, all around the town . . ." The young man singing proceeded to croon his love for all to hear.

Well, the concept for I-696 may not have been around as long as that song, but you're going to love the new freeway when officials join in a chorus of praise to herald today's opening.

The freeway, named the Walter P. Reuther after a UAW president who died in a plane crash in 1970, is significant both for its engineering and for the sociological changes it is bound to forge in southeastern Michigan.

When the freeway opens today, the 28.2-mile artery will pump traffic quickly along its course from I-94 on the east to I-275 on the west. Thus "East Meets West," as the Michigan Department of Transportation puts it.

BUT EAST won't collide with west at the old, traditional boundary of Woodward Avenue. Rather, cultural exchanges are likely to occur as travelers from both directions merge to shop at major malls, travel to lakes Michigan and St. Clair or visit cross-town friends more frequently.

The significance of the freeway goes well beyond linking east and west. As the final 9.1-mile chunk of I-696 opens, a beltway loops around the tri-county area.

That provides easy travel all around town. For those who live or work in Wayne County, easy access is assured as far as Port Huron. For Southfield community development director Dor Gross, travel all the way to Florida is possible "without stopping for a traffic light."

While some offices buildings, such as the high-rises in Southfield, were built in anticipation of the new freeway, other communities are carefully watching what effect the freeway will have on economic development and office occupancy rates.

WHILE IT'S TOO early to tell, predictions are that the freeway will bolster development or at least hold steady what already exists. That's good news when there's a forecast of a downturn in the economy coming.

Further, some reduction in traffic is projected for heavily traveled mile roads.

With all the good news, there are a couple of cautions: We hope that the new freeway doesn't become just another excuse to avoid Detroit, further isolating the central city from the suburbs.

Both Wayne and Oakland counties also will have to pay continued attention to their mile roads, particularly the beleagured Eight Mile, to maintain the quality of the rest of bordering cities.

But in the end, whether it's east side, west side or all around the town, I-696 and the new beltway system is about the closest thing to mass transit we're likely to see for some time to come.

Talking trash

County waste plan a start

WAYNE COUNTY'S Solid Waste Management Plan isn't the document some people thought it would be.

It won't outlaw trash burning incinerators. Nor will it order communities to begin recycling (though it contains a strong incentive for those that do).

We share concerns over the safety of incineration — and we are definitely pro-recycling. Nonetheless, we find the county master plan a workable document, one that should be approved, provided the county also lends its services and expertise to communities beginning solid waste disposal programs of their own.

Washtenaw County assisted a number of its cities when it began a regional composting program. There's no reason Wayne County can't do the same.

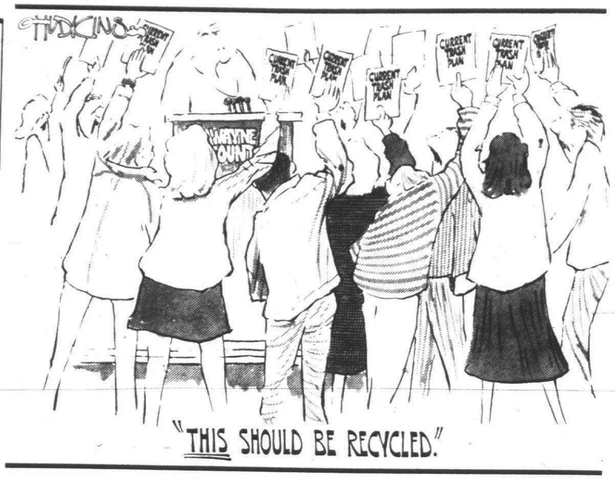
In that spirit, we urge members of Wayne County's Solid Waste Implementation Committee to work with the county Department of Public Works and regional groups such as the Conference of Western Wayne to clearly define the limits of county and local responsibility. This should be done before county Solid Waste Implementation Committee members tour local city councils and township boards early next year to solicit communities' individual master plan approval.

As for other solid waste concerns, it's hoped action by the state legislature can achieve what the county plan cannot.

Right now, bills pending in the state Legislature would regulate disposal of scrap tires, place a surcharge on household waste to underwrite the cost of recycling, boost the use of recycled material among contractors seeking state bids, as well as place deposits on car batteries and require state incinerator authorities to also begin recycling.

On closer inspection, some of the bills may not be feasible or desirable.

They point out, however, that the county master plan isn't the whole war, or even one battle. But at least it's worth a shot.



Detroit suburbs hold a 'separate people'

"A racial divide, cavernous, pervasive."

These words paint bleak, shadowy portraits of a metropolitan area striving to survive.

But that's the way our area has drawn itself in a recent survey recently completed by researchers at the University of Michigan.

We, in the suburbs, are a separate people from our brothers and sisters in the city. I guess no one is surprised that white suburbanites make more money than inner-city minorities. We could have guessed that with the money comes a higher level of education.

But shocking is the rapidly-growing disparity between the haves and the have nots in metropolitan Detroit. The white median household income is $32,500. For blacks, it is $16,000. Since 1980, the increase in median income for whites has risen nearly $10,000. For blacks it has increased only $2,300.

What is disheartening is that whites, the segment of society in control, show such a high inclination towards racial prejudice.

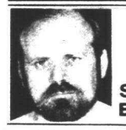
Nearly 40 percent of whites surveyed were deemed to be highly racially prejudiced. Only 5 percent of blacks were so labeled.

Detroit NAACP president Arthur Johnson calls it "our own form of apartheid."

And he is right.

We are a society living apart, with little understanding of one another.

In this season of good will we must realize that running from the problem is no solution at all.



Steve Barnaby

The white suburbs are still just that, white. Overall, the suburbs are 93 percent white. The central city is 75 percent black.

Blacks suffer from a 19.9 percent unemployment rate. For whites, it's 6.6 percent.

RECENTLY, Univeristy of Michigan president James Duderstadt entered the fray by taking a shot at state priorities by saying we should spend more money on education than we do on building prisons.

"I sometimes refer to corrections as the new system of higher education because (prisons) are educating the next generation of criminal leadership," he said.

Bitter words, but ones that should leave an unforgettable taste in our mouths.

Our priorities are out of whack when considering that 34.2 percent of blacks don't complete high school, that only a third as many blacks hold four year college degrees as whites.

Lack of education and opportunity mixed with discrimination make for a grisly brew of crime and poverty.

In this season of good will we must realize that running from the problem is no solution at all.

This year on Christmas day or during Hanukkah, when you are enjoying the holidays with your family, take a minute to think about those who, if the trend continues, will never have a chance to enjoy such freedom and wealth as does white America.

And then, when you celebrate the New Year, the new decade, resolve that this is the time we will stop depriving others of the privileges we all should have an opportunity to strive for and enjoy.

Resolve that this is the time we will bring a whole new group into the mid-stream of American society where their talents can be used to build a healthier and freer society.

And finally, let us resolve that metropolitan Detroit, instead of following, will take the lead in showing the rest of the nation hw we can live in an integrated America.

Yazaki is good place to work

To the editor:

It seems to us that all we read about is negative views of American Yazaki Corp. How come we never read about the positive things? The recent article you published on Dec. 4, regarding the lawsuit involving Mr. Kotcher that he settled out of court makes one believe that working at AYC is insufferable and terrible.

We don't think it portrays what it's really like to work here. This year we received at least 27 days off. Our benefits rate among the highest around. We receive medical, dental, optical, retirement and have job security. Our pay scale is at the industry average.

Let's face it, no one ever feels they're ever paid enough for what they do. The company has contributed to various community services. They gave the Canton Library a nice donation for the building of the new library; are highly involved in the United Foundation and support: Feed the Hungry, "No kid without a Christmas" programs and Red Cross Blood Drives.

After reading the article on Dec. 4, it makes us feel very insecure about the confidentiality we incurred when speaking with Mr. Kotcher. The purpose of the survey mentioned was to provide an opportunity for the employees to express their opinions and ideas through proper channels, while providing confidentiality and anonymity. Good programs have been implemented as a result of the survey.

For example, a retirement program was established. We're tired of this paper always printing articles that make it look like AYC is such a hell-hole! We believe it's all because it's a Japanese-owned company. Give us a break! Look at how many jobs AYC has created. AYC was one of the forerunners in starting industry in Canton. Because of their involvement in the area, Canton is attracting other companies.

We wonder if someone at the Observer has it in for American Yazaki or does Mr. Kotcher have pull with this paper? Mr. Kotcher gave a one-sided view. The very nature of his position naturally dealt with negative feelings of the employees.

Maybe someone from your paper should come here and take a survey to see how his leaving has enlightened many of us.

Don't forget MIAs, POWs

To The editor:

Most people believe that our POWs and MIA s returned years ago to the USA. Nothing could be further from the truth. According to Ms. Ann Mills Griffiths of the National League of POW/MIA Families in Washington D.C. there are still over 2,400 POWs and MIAs of ours in Vietnam and Laos. I am sorry I didn't mention this on Memorial Day or Veteran's Day. Jails in Asia torture. Some of our people have been in prison there since 1963. Isn't it time they got out of hell?

Knowing they are still there causes me bottomless depression. We have always had veterans in my family. Please encourage your readers to write to their senators and representatives.

Our veterans' return from hell is 20 years overdue. They would really appreciate being home for this Christmas. I'm trying to keep from crying so I can write.

Sorry, Virginia, but that's the way it is

Jack Gladden

In 1897 an 8-year-old girl wrote a letter to The New York Sun. "Some of my little friends say there is no Santa Claus. Papa says, 'If you see it in The Sun, it's so.' Please tell me the truth, is there a Santa Claus?" The editorial reply, written by Francis Pharcellus Church, has become a classic piece of Christmas literature. But today it is outdated. As a public service, I offer the following revisionist version of "Is There a Santa Claus?"

VIRGINIA, YOUR little friends are right. They are the products of an age of sensitivity, of a society that is culturally diverse and pluralistic. They know, oecause they have been taught, that nothing should be allowed to exist if it offends even one other person. They know that nothing can be good that is not acceptable to all elements of the population, no matter how little their minds.

All minds. Virgin'., whether they be adults' or children's, are little. In this great universe of ours, man is a mere insect, an ant, in his intellect, as compared with the boundless world around him, as measured by the intelligence capable of grasping the whole of truth and knowledge.

Those who control some of our school systems today know that many things have no business in the classroom, that our little minds, and theirs, are incapable of putting them into proper perspective, that we cannot grasp the overall significance of certain events because we are too preoccupied with the individual elements. They know that something as seemingly innocent as the presence of Santa Claus in a public school is, in reality, a symbol of the establishment of a state religion, which is strictly forbidden by the Constitution. They are wise, and we must listen to what they say.

NO, VIRGINIA, there is no Santa Claus. Some of our great thinkers and philosophers have decided that he is an anachronism. Unless everyone believes in him, then he should not exist. School leaders have banned him from the premises, along with Christmas carols and gift exchanges. Oh, he once existed. In a less sensitive world he existed as certainly as love and generosity and devotion existed, those qualities that abounded and gave life its highest beauty and joy. But no more.

True, the world may be a bit dreary without Santa Claus. It may be as dreary as if there were no Virginias, but that's the way it is. There is no longer a need for childlike faith, nor for poetry, nor for romance to make tolerable this existence. We need no enjoyment, except in sense and sight. The eternal light with which childhood once filled the world has been extinguished.

BELIEVE IN Santa Claus? You might as well believe in fairies! He has no educational value. He is not curriculum-driven. And he symbolizes the beliefs of a particular religion. The most real things in the world are those that children and adults can see. Did you ever see fairies dancing on the lawn? Of course not, because they are not there. Nobody sees Santa Claus, either, because he does not exist. Don't trouble your little mind with trying to conceive or imagine all the wonders that are unseen and unseeable in the world. They are not important.

You may tear apart the baby's rattle and see what makes the noise inside, but there is a veil covering the unseen world which not the strongest man, nor even the united strength of all the strongest men that ever lived, could tear apart. Only faith, fancy, poetry, love, romance can push aside that curtain and view and picture the supernatural beauty and glory beyond. And it is not the business of the schools to deal with the supernatural. Such things are best left alone in a sensitive and pluralistic society.

No Santa Claus? That's right. The schools have killed him because he's too controversial. A thousand years from now, Virginia, nay, ten times ten thousand years from now, he might be resurrected to make glad the heart of childhood once again. But for now, he's dead as a doornail.

Some local cops are back in the saddle

Judith Doner Berne

A HORSE! A horse! My kingdom for a horse!

Well, in a turnabout of time, the safety of some of our kingdoms now appears to depend on these four-legged creatures. Police responsible for patrolling the business district in Birmingham and at the Northland Center in Southfield have recently hit the saddle in a combination PR (public relations) and RP (robbery protection) move.

Birmingham has appropriated "Spanky" from the Detroit Police Department. The 14-year-old horse began patrolling downtown Birmingham late last month with Officer James Heppner aboard. The Birmingham-Bloomfield Eccentric, in conjunction with the Birmingham police, is running a "Name the Horse Contest" for youngsters to rename "Spanky" to perhaps a trendier, more Birminghamish name — and the suggestions have come galloping in.

The prizes aren't hay — $200, $100 and $50 U.S. Savings Bonds for the top three "handles". The winning moniker, however, may turn out to be more official than practical. After all, if you had answered to Spanky for 14 years, how would you react? And is it only rumor that at the same time he must get used to a new diet — oatbran?

BIRMINGHAM POLICE sold the idea for a mounted steed to the Birmingham City Commission — no easy task — on the basis that a horse and rider patrolling the shopping district would be a good way to police a crowded area, a good public relations tool — and cost effective.

"A horse is cheaper than a car," according to police Lt. Peter Kauffman. "And the risk management people loved it, because a horse can't get involved in a high-speed chase."

A letter this week from a Birmingham resident confirms that the commission exercised good horse sense. John Fawcett writes, "The first benefit is better public relations between the community and the police department . . ." And, "In Spanky's first day of duty he helped sort out a fender-bender, and his rider wrote two traffic tickets."

In fact, Birmingham returned to the horse age several years back when it instituted horse and buggy rides through downtown streets.

Meanwhile, in a nearby pasture, Southfield city officials deny that recent crime at Northland Center and the nearby Americana Theater spurred mounted patrols there.

But each weekend through Christmas, 10 horseback riding officers of the Oakland County Sheriff's Division are keeping watch over Northland's parking lots, assisting Southfield police and Northland security officers.

SOUTHFIELD'S PUBLIC safety chief, Rollin G. Tobin, says that in reality the crime rate has dropped 40-50 percent since 1986 in the area that includes Northland.

He realizes that the perception is otherwise — yet too much security scares people off. The solution? The mounted deputies.

"This is a kind of positive security," Tobin says. "What's more exciting? People love people on horseback."

Doc Doyle

Dr. James Doyle is an assistant superintendent in the Troy School District. The answers provided here are the opinions of Doyle and not the Troy School District. Questions for this column should be sent to Doc Doyle c/o the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

Q. In one of your articles you said that you believe long range curriculum decisions should be based on research and program evaluation. You stated that this is the best procedure and the first step in generating meaningful information for program improvement. What is the best process for evaluating a subject area such as math or science?

A. I believe that each curriculum subject area should be evaluated every few years internally by staff and by bringing in an outside educational program evaluator or auditor. Without the outside educational evaluator we educators sometimes end up talking to ourselves and telling ourselves how wonderful we are.

In light of this belief and since this week marks my first anniversary of writing this column and in the spirit of a person who believes in evaluation, I am seeking the support of those who have read my column to do me a favor. It would help me to better serve the readers by determining the timeliness and appropriateness of the format I use.

Club's skaters look forward to their time on the ice

By Julie Brown

The show will highlight the talents of some 55 skaters from the club. Children, teens and adult skaters are hard at work these days, rehearsing for the "I'll Be Home for Christmas" show.

"It's a fun type of thing for the skaters," said Tammy Doroshewitz of Plymouth, show director. A cast party after the show will contribute to the fun.

This is the second year the club has presented a Christmas show. The show will be held 7-8 p.m. Friday, Dec. 15, at the Plymouth Cultural Center, 525 Farmer. Tickets, available at the door, will be priced at $3 each. Admission is free of charge for children age 12 and younger.

Concentration's called for for these young skaters (left to right): Cheryl Hackett, 8, of Northville; Angela Kelly, 12, of Canton; and Chrissy Collins, 12, of Northville.

HOLIDAY MUSIC will be part of the show. Preschool children from Academic Gardens Learning Center in Plymouth will sing before and during the show. Beverly Venables is director for the preschool group.

Vocalist Theresa Zednicek, a Wixom resident, will also perform during the show. Zednicek's performance will include singing the opening number, "I'll Be Home for Christmas."

Zednicek's about 6½ months pregnant, so she won't be among those skating. Doroshewitz, who's been skating since she was 1½, won't skate during the show either. She'll be working behind the scenes.

"I skated for enough years," said Doroshewitz, who gives private skating lessons for groups and individuals. "Now I like the creative part of it."

Working on music, costumes and other essentials keeps Doroshewitz busy. She finds it rewarding to see young skaters improve in a short time.

Northville Township resident Alice Bohr will perform in the Christmas show. She'll appear as Frosty

Skaters Brian Scherle, 17, of Canton and Jenny DeJohn, 15, of Plymouth share some laughs during a rehearsal. Members of the Plymouth Figure Skating Club are preparing for their Friday, Dec. 15, Christmas show.

In October of 1988, Betty Swyers's husband had a heart attack.

"It's very scary," said Swyers, a Canton resident. Her husband, a retired methods analyst for Western Electric, had intense back pain that day, and they didn't realize right away that he was having a heart attack.

Linda Koeppel's husband had two consecutive heart attacks in January and early February this year. After his second attack, he went into the hospital for angioplasty, a procedure in which a balloon-tipped catheter is used to widen the narrowing in an artery and improve blood flow to the heart.

"That worked," said Koeppel, an Ann Arbor resident. Her husband, a manager for Ford Motor Co., is exercising regularly and following a strict diet.

Swyer's husband also had angioplasty done, although it wasn't as successful. Helping their husbands cope with the changes required following a heart attack hasn't been effortless for the women.

THEY'VE HAD help from other members of the Cardiac Spouse Support Group, which meets 7-9 p.m. the fourth Tuesday of the month at the Arbor Health Building, Ann Arbor Trail at Harvey, Plymouth.

"I find it very helpful," said Swyers, who's been coming to group meetings for about a year. "You get questions answered. We're all in the same boat, more or less, and Dolly is very helpful."

Sessions are led by Dolly Bentley, cardiac nurse educator at Catherine McAuley Health Center in Ann Arbor. The health center sponsors the Cardiac Spouse Support Group.

A few years back, Bentley and her colleagues started giving weekly lectures for cardiac rehabilitation patients and their spouses. Health care professionals discussed risk factors, stress, nutrition, medications and other topics.

Bentley, a registered nurse, was approached by some of the spouses who said they'd like a support group of their own. She began meeting with those people after lectures. When the Arbor Health Building opened in late 1984, a support group for spouses began meeting in Plymouth.

Ann Arbor also has a support group for spouses of cardiac patients, although that group hasn't met as consistently. Its meetings are 7-9 p.m. the second Monday of each month at the Reichert Health Building.

BENTLEY'S FOUND newcomers to the group often have questions about what a diagnosis means. She discusses heart anatomy and physiology, and explains what terms mean.

Members have a chance to talk about their feelings of anger and frustration.

"I try to get them to realize they're not so responsible," Bentley said. Some group members feel guilty; they think the food they've served led to the heart attack, or think they should have seen signs of heart disease.

A recent group meeting in Plymouth included Mae Webb of Westland, Eleanor Campbell of Plymouth Township, Linda Koeppel and Betty Swyers. They met with Bentley in the Arbor Health Building's community room.

The group includes women, most of them middle-aged, Bentley said. Not all the women are married to cardiac rehabilitation patients. Some members' husbands have had chronic pulmonary (lung) disease.

Some of the husbands have had bypass surgery, while others have had heart attacks. Many of the men have been patients at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor, although that's not required to participate.

the Snowman and is among adults in the cast.

Performing in the show provides personal satisfaction, said Bohr, who is also show coordinator. Some people are surprised that adults are in the cast.

Show director Tammy Doroshewitz, a Plymouth resident, gives skaters some guidance during a rehearsal session at the Plymouth Cultural Center.

"Some of them are so dedicated. They find time to do it," said Bohr, who's skated for about 15 years and recently joined an adult precision team, the Royal Blades, part of the Detroit Skating Club.

THE PLYMOUTH Figure Skating Club includes a competitive precision team, Plymouth Pizzazz, coached by Doroshewitz. The team will perform in the Christmas show.

The show skaters have been on the ice rehearsing at the Plymouth Cultural Center since mid-November. Planning started last April.

Show organizers concentrate on putting together a show people will enjoy. Many people attended last year's show, and organizers are hoping this year's will be well-received.

Women have many concerns, "one, the big fear that you'll lose your spouse," Bentley said. Group members often take on additional responsibilities, such as working outside the home or paying bills.

DIET'S A common subject of discussion at the meetings.

"It's very frustrating for the spouses, I think. They feel so responsible in a sense for feeding their husband the right thing," Bentley said. Group members talk about new foods to serve and new ways of preparing foods.

Sometimes, a woman believes she must serve different meals for her husband and her children. A low-fat, low-cholesterol diet is good for everyone in the family, Bentley said. Children and teens can be indulged occasionally with less-nutritious foods, but it's important that they learn good eating habits.

Bentley reminds group members that their husbands can help choose and prepare foods.

Changing her cooking was difficult for Betty Swyers, ahomemaker. She'd never fried food, choosing instead to broil it, and had always used margarine and skim milk.

Even so, Swyers had to make some changes. She and her husband now eat more fish and chicken rather than beef and pork. He's getting more exercise these days.

Linda Koeppel's husband exercises three times a week and is careful about what he eats.

"I was always careful about what I fixed and how I fixed it," she said. Her husband used to eat large portions at home and often ate out at lunch, choosing foods that weren't the most nutritious.

He was only 44 when he had his heart attack, and Koeppel's husband has been conscientious about making necessary lifestyle changes. She's learned how to read food labels and is careful about food she buys.

"So you do the best you can," said Koeppel, who has a home-based business spinning wool and making craft items, and is the mother of two daughters, ages 20 and 23.

Koeppel's found participating in the Cardiac Spouse Support Group helpful.

"I think it's harder for the wives," she said. Cardiac patients get a great deal of attention, but that's not always the case for their spouses.

(Plymouth's Cardiac Spouse Support Group won't meet in December, due to the holidays. The next meeting will be 7-9 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 23. Participation is free of charge. For more information, call Dolly Bentley, 572-5213.)

By Julie Brown
staff writer

Virginia Kocik, Jeanne Dumas and Pam Lyle have a pretty good idea of what clothing styles are popular with local students.

The women volunteer their time at the Plymouth-Canton Clothing Bank and see many styles of clothing. They have children of different ages and that helps them keep up with what's current.

"It's just very important for that age children to feel good about themselves," said Kocik, a Canton resident.

The clothing bank has been operating for about 16 years, and serves Plymouth and Canton residents who are receiving some kind of public assistance or who are referred by school officials.

"It's really basically for school-children," said Kocik, who has supervised clothing bank operations for about four years. The clothing bank has some clothes for adults.

THE FACILITY, staffed by volunteers, was established by Canton resident Flossie Tonda when she served on the Board of Education for the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. The school district provides a portable building, behind Central Middle School, 650 W. Church in Plymouth, and pays utility bills for the facility.

The center is open 9:30 a.m. to noon Tuesday and Thursday when school's in session.

"We have been busier this year than any year since I've been here," Kocik said. "Every day we've been open we've been busy."

She and the other volunteers aren't sure just why that's so. People seem to be more aware of the clothing bank and more people are referred by school officials.

The clothing bank's closed during the summer, other than for emergencies. Kocik opened the clothing bank this past summer occasionally for emergencies, such as when a family had a fire at their home.

It's best if people make an appointment to come to the clothing bank to look for what they need. A dressing room's available, and people are encouraged to try on clothes.

PEOPLE DON'T pay anything for clothes they get from the clothing bank. Clothing that isn't distributed or that needs extensive repairs goes to the Salvation Army, and nothing is thrown away.

Simpler repairs, such as fixing hems and seams or sewing on buttons, are done by a local woman. Clothing bank volunteers encourage residents to contribute clean, used clothing.

Some Plymouth-Canton adult education students come to the clothing bank. Those students are often ready to start work and need uniforms or clothes suitable for office jobs.

"We always need coats," Kocik said. Volunteers always need pants for grade-school boys and girls.

"They're hard on them," she said. "They wear them right out before we get them."

Other items they'd appreciate include larger-size gloves, women's pants and boots for younger students. It's hard to predict exactly what people will need throughout the year. People come to the clothing bank twice a year to choose what they need.

Donations of new clothing and cash are also appreciated. Cash donations are used to buy new socks and underwear, given to people once a year.

"They really seem to appreciate that," Kocik said. When they have the money available, volunteers also like to buy new shoes for students.

SOME CLOTHING bank items are a bit more unusual. Prom dresses are displayed each spring, along with some party shoes and evening bags. One time, a wedding gown was donated.

"We had it hanging up for a while," she said. "Nobody took it." The gown eventually went to the Salvation Army.

Donations of furniture and dishes can't be accepted at the clothing bank, as there's no room to store those items. Volunteers are happy to accept linens, including sheets, blankets, bedspreads, curtains and towels.

This time of year, many churches and school PTOs make clothing bank donations, and Kocik appreciates that support. She's found people are generous about donating items regularly.

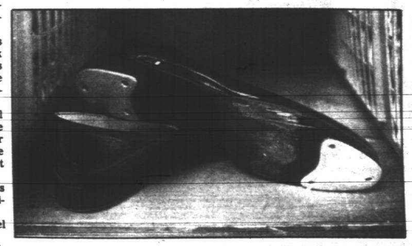
Kocik volunteered for several years at the clothing bank before she became director, also a volunteer position. She saw an item in the newspaper a few years back about the need for volunteers.

"I always donated my children's clothing here." She's glad she decided to volunteer her time.

"I really have enjoyed it. I feel like I'm contributing something."

(For more information, call 451-6673 during clothing bank hours, 9:30 a.m. to noon Tuesday and Thursday.)

The Plymouth-Canton Clothing Bank is staffed by volunteers, including its director, Canton resident Virginia Kocik.



Some more unusual items, such as these tap shoes, find their way to the clothing bank.

Swartz-Staniforth

Juliet Phillips was the matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Holly Mueller, Elizabeth Schroeder and Laura Geiss.

Brother of the bridegroom David Swartz was the best man. The groomsmen were Kevin Sullivan, Greg Rettig and Brian O'Mara. The ushers were brothers of the bride Christopher Staniforth and Mark Staniforth.

Lynn Therese Staniforth of Plymouth and Glenn Robert Swartz of Center Line were married Sept. 1 at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church in Plymouth. The Rev. James Murphy and Deacon Edward Swartz, father of the bridegroom, performed the ceremony.

Parents of the couple are James and Barbara Staniforth of Plymouth and Edward and Mary Lou Swartz of Center Line.

The bride is a graduate of Plymouth Salem High School and of the University of Michigan-Ann Arbor, where she received a bachelor of science degree in mathematics.

Her husband is a graduate of St. Clement's High School in Center Line and of Ferris State University in Big Rapids, Mich., where he received a bachelor of accounting degree and a bachelor of finance degree.

For her wedding, the bride wore a white silk taffeta gown of imported French Alencon lace with beads and sequins. Her cathedral-length train had three triangular lace inserts. She carried a bouquet of white gardenias, white roses, pink roses, stephanotis and ivy.

A reception was held at Roma's of Livonia.

Following a wedding trip to Paradise Island in the Bahamas, the newlyweds are making their home in Plymouth Township.

Schiavi-Lee

Michael and Diana Schiavi of Northville, formerly of Plymouth Township, announce the engagement of their daughter, Carri, to Edward Joseph Lee, son of Donald and Barbara Lee of Warren.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Madonna College, where she received a bachelor of science degree.

Her fiance is a graduate of Wayne State University, where he received a bachelor of arts degree in economics, and of the Detroit College of Law. He is employed as an attorney with Steven L. Schwartz, PC, in Farmington Hills.

An early June 1990 wedding is planned at Mill Race Historical Village in Northville.

Dr. and Mrs. Gary Stafford of Canton announce the birth of a daughter, Kimberly Ann, Dec. 2 at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor. Grandparents are Gil and Charlene Stafford of Plymouth.

Mark and Kathy Fogarty of Canton announce the birth of a son, Kyle Geoffrey, Nov. 29, at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor. Grandparents are Bill and Carol Elliott of South Lyon, Joan Fogarty of Plymouth and Don Fogarty of Canton. Great-grandparents are William and Thelma Elliott of Northville, Norm and Jean Johnson of Canton, and Irvin and Corrine Jarinski of Sterling Heights.

James and Kimberly Fiscus of Canton announce the birth of a daughter, Kristin Leigh, Oct. 12 at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Norm Cesarz of Canton, formerly of Westland, and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Fiscus of West Bloomfield. Great-grandparents are Mrs. Leora Fiscus of Waterford and Mrs. Genevieve Houghton of West Bloomfield.

Jeffrey and Lisa Cesarz of Charlotte, N.C., announce the birth of a son, Austin Thomas, Oct. 16 at Presbyterian Hospital in Charlotte. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Norm Cesarz of Canton, formerly of Westland, and Mrs. Ruth Fisher of West Bloomfield. Great-grandparents are Mrs. Mildred Pichler of LaHabra, Calif., and Harry Fisher of Grayling, Mich.

Straight Inc. volunteers Mike Salsbery and Bill Nelson look over some of the Christmas trees available for sale. Proceeds from the fund-raising project will be used to treat substance abuse problems among young people.

Holiday tree sale supports Straight

FINDING THAT just-right Christmas tree doesn't necessarily entail traveling far from home.

Straight, a non-profit drug/alcohol treatment program for adolescents, is selling trees throughout December. The sale is being held at Straight's Plymouth Township facility, 42320 Ann Arbor Road, just east of Lilley.

"Right now, it's particularly important," said Carson Wood, Straight administrator. Money raised will be used to treat substance abuse problems.

About 70 percent of the financial support for Straight comes from fees, so fund-raising projects are needed to provide the balance.

Christmas trees are priced at $20 to $35 each, and part of the purchase is tax-deductible.

The sale will be held 4-8 p.m. Monday and Friday, 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. It will continue through Dec. 24. Howard Ballard is sale co-chairman.

INFORMATION ON substance abuse among young people will be available during sale hours. Straight Inc., which has nine facilities nationwide, began operating in Plymouth in 1986.

Straight has held other local fund-raising projects in the past, including a gift wrap sale, auto raffle, walkathon and candy/popcorn sales.

"We've had golf tournaments in the past," Wood said. Straight officials are also doing some grant writing, seeking corporate support for their efforts.

This is the first time they've sold Christmas trees. There's "very little competition in this area," Wood said. Other Straight facilities have sold Christmas trees and found that's a successful way to raise money.

"I think we'll do OK," he said. "It appears to be promising right now."

There's still a good selection of trees of various sizes available. The sale is being held in the back of the parking lot at Straight. For more information, call 453-2610.

Council offers teacher grants

The Plymouth Community Arts Council is beginning the holiday season by giving early Christmas presents to 15 Plymouth-Canton area teachers and their students.

The "presents" are 1989 Teacher Project Assistance Grants awarded to teachers for creative projects designed to enhance instruction in all aspects of the arts and humanities. Most grants underwrite speaker fees or are used to buy special materials.

The 22 applicants requested a total of more than $16,000 for their proposed projects. The grants committee, with Lorna Nitz as this year's chairwoman, chose to fund 15 grants totaling more than $6,000. In order to be funded, a project must relate to the arts and humanities, and must provide enrichment for students beyond the normal school curriculum.

SOME OF the grant projects are:

● Debra MacGregor, a fifth grade teacher at Allen Elementary School, was awarded a $300 grant for her unit integrating the study of weather and the arts. She plans to develop her students' awareness of the sky, a source of inspiration for paintings, music and literature. The grant will be used to buy books, music cassettes and art reproductions.

● Mable Partain, a visual arts teacher at Plymouth Christian Academy, received a $700 grant to buy a metal enameling kiln. Her students will explore the three-dimensional craft of jewelry making.

● The Humanities and Odyssey Program at Plymouth Salem High School was awarded $1,600 to bring in various speakers in such areas as Russian culture, opera, dance and religion. Maribeth Carroll is chairwoman of the high school program. The grant will also be used to buy special materials. The program has received nearly $10,000 in the past five years from the Plymouth Community Arts Council.

● H. Michael Endres, orchestra director, Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, received a $400 grant to bring four professional string instrument players to the schools. Musicians will provide demonstration clinics for orchestra students at all levels.

The PCAC's grant program began 13 years ago. For more information on the program, call 455-5260.

School hosts yuletide tea

The counseling department at Plymouth Canton High School will sponsor a Christmas tea Wednesday, Dec. 20, for Canton High School graduates from the class of 1989.

The tea will be held 1-3 p.m. in the Canton cafeteria, 8415 Canton Center Road, Canton. Canton High School's 1989 graduates are encouraged to attend.

Graduates who attend will meet with Canton staffers and with students from this year's senior class. Graduates will talk with students about their experiences in the world of work, college and the armed services.

All former graduates from recent years may attend. Refreshments will be served.

Those who plan to attend are asked to RSVP by Monday, Dec. 18, by calling the Canton High School guidance office, 451-6600, Ext. 322.

Men, if you're about to turn 18, it's time to register with Selective Service at any U.S. Post Office.
It's quick. It's easy. And it's the law.

With M-CARE, the sky is not the limit.

There's a serious accident. Time is crucial. A helicopter is dispatched to speed the victim to the University of Michigan Burn Center...a service you, hopefully, will never have to call on. But it's there if you need it, and much, much more through M-CARE.

M-CARE is the only HMO that links all the resources of the U of M Medical Center to the personal care of your family doctor and your nearby hospital. M-CARE covers you for office visits, checkups, hospitalization—even emergency helicopter transport.

Of course, with the M-CARE network of hospitals in cities like Royal Oak, Dearborn and Rochester, you don't always have to go to the U of M Medical Center. But isn't it good to know it's there whenever you need it? To find out more, ask your employer. Or call M-CARE at 747-8700.

Singles spend holiday times together

By Julie Brown
staff writer

The holiday season can be tough for singles — but it doesn't have to be.

"I think it does have a family focus," said Marcia Myers, a member of the Single Place group. "It's the time when you think you should be with somebody else."

The season can be especially difficult for newly-single people, according to the Rev. Andy Morgan, minister to singles at Ward Presbyterian Church in Livonia.

"They're facing the holidays for the first time as a single adult," he said.

And the second year of holiday celebrations can be equally difficult for some newly-single people.

But singles don't have to be alone this season if they don't want to be. Singles' groups, some sponsored by western Wayne County churches, have planned a variety of holiday get-togethers.

MYERS, A Northville Township resident, belongs to Single Place, a group sponsored by the First Presbyterian Church of Northville. The mother of a 7-year-old daughter, Myers first became involved in the Starting Over Single divorce recovery group at that church.

"It's really a great program."

She went on to participate in other activities for singles sponsored by the church.

The group usually has some type of program every other Sunday night, and that's supplemented with other activities and seminars, Myers said. The Rev. Jim Russell serves as group advisor at the church in Northville.

Myers has found being with other singles makes the holidays more enjoyable. Some divorced people find themselves alone at the holidays when their children leave to visit the other parent.

IT HELPS newly-single people to realize others are in the same boat, said Myers, a client services manager for the state Department of Mental Health.

Myers isn't a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Northville, and that's true of many others who participate in Single Place activities. The many Single Point Ministries programs at Ward Church also attracts people who aren't church members.

New Year's Eve can also be a particularly tough holiday for singles, Myers said, adding that, unlike Christmas, it doesn't usually involve children.

"It's typically a couple's thing," she said.

MYERS AND Morgan have found some singles feel more comfortable joining a church-affiliated group.

"I think it can work both ways," Myers said, adding that some people may feel they won't fit in if they're not "religious."

Morgan, a Livonia resident, used to own a bar before he went into the ministry. He remembers that some church people wouldn't go into the bar, and some bar regulars wouldn't think of going to church.

Some singles find a church-affiliated group helps meet their spiritual needs, said Morgan, who is married and the father of a 5-year-old son.

"They're looking for a safe place to be within a singles ministry."

Morgan does a radio program on WMUZ-FM (103.5), "Solo Flight." Throughout December, the call-in talk show for singles is featuring discussions on handling the holidays.

"There's a lot of magic associated with Christmas in people's minds," Morgan said.

People often have fantasy images of what will take place, and they're bound to be disappointed when reality doesn't live up to those images.

"Try to establish new traditions, acknowledge that some of the old traditions just will no longer be," he said.

It helps singles cope if they remember to take time for themselves, Morgan added. Focusing on the spiritual aspect of the season and remembering its original meaning helps many people.

SINGLE PLACE will have its Christmas party at 8 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 16. This will be a BYOB party, and participants should bring an appetizer to serve six. For directions, call 437-6931.

Single Place will have a New Year's Eve celebration starting at 8:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 31, at Getzie's Pub in Northville. Price is $17, including admission, food and music provided by a disc jockey. There will be a cash bar. Attendance is limited, and will be priced at $22 at the door if available. For more information, call 349-0911.

A Saturday, Dec. 30, get-together for singles is planned by Single Point Ministries at Ward Presbyterian Church. The second annual "Convivial Concrescence" will be from 7:30 p.m. to midnight in the ballroom at the Radisson Hotel of Plymouth, 14707 Northville Road, Plymouth Township.

The event is expected to attract some 500 singles, Morgan said. It will include a harpist playing during the sit-down dinner, followed by a 20-minute slide presentation on singles' events at the church.

That evening, Dan Williams will present a short vocal concert, and a comedy team, Hicks and Cohagen, will perform. Harold I. Smith, author of "Singles Ask," "Life-Changing Answers to Depression," and other books, will speak on life during the 1980s.

DINNER PRICE is $30 per person and reservations are required. For reservation information, call 422-1854.

The event will continue from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 31, at the Radisson Hotel of Plymouth. Smith will speak that day, and music and fellowship will be part of the fun. Admission will be free of charge Sunday, Dec. 31, and reservations aren't required for that get-together.

Many other singles groups have planned holiday events. There will be a get-together for singles at 7:30 p.m. Friday, Dec. 15, at St. Michael Lutheran Church, 7000 N. Sheldon, Canton. The evening will include food, fellowship and fun. A nursery will be available, and a freewill offering will be taken. For more information, call 981-6360.

The Church School of Garden City Presbyterian Church will present its annual Christmas program at 7 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 17, in the church sanctuary, 1841 Middlebelt, Garden City. The play will be "The Greatest Christmas Card in the Whole World" by Betty Hager and Fred Bock. There will be a choir of 25 children and many roles played by children and youth of the church school. The musical will be directed by Cynthia Bradley, who is music director at Garden City Presbyterian Church.

In addition to the play, the preschool children will be in angel costumes for their traditional "Away in the Manger" song. Admission is free. The public may attend. For information, call 421-7620.

● CHRISTMAS PLANS
Antioch Lutheran Church, 33360 W. 13 Mile, corner of Farmington Road, Farmington Hills, will present special Christmas services. At 11 a.m. Sunday, Dec. 17, the Sunday School will present the annual Christmas program. Children of all ages will tell the story of the Nativity based on the Gospel of Luke, using dialogue and song while in costume.

On Christmas Eve, Sunday, Dec. 24, Antioch will offer services at 5, 7:30 and 10 p.m. At 5 p.m., the children's service will feature a "Birthday Party for Jesus." Children will enjoy favorite carols, presents, balloons and birthday cake.

Antioch's family service will be at 7:30 p.m. The service will include a children's sermon, carol singing, communion and special music by the Junior Choir. The 10 p.m. candlelight service will feature musical offerings by harp, brass and choir in addition to caroling and communion. For information, call 626-7906.

● CHRISTMAS MUSICALES
Christ Our Savior Lutheran Church, 14175 Farmington Road, Livonia, continues to celebrate the Christmas season with two special musicales this week. The Christmas choir concert will be held at 7 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 17. Familiar and classical Christmas selections will be performed by adult and children's choirs, organ, piano, brass, woodwinds and strings. The concert will be arranged and directed by Lois Drake, music director. Refreshments will be available after the concert. The annual children's Christmas pageant will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 20. Music will include children's vocal, instrumental and bell choirs. For information, call 522-6830.

● CAROL NIGHT
Rosedale Gardens Presbyterian Church, 9601 Hubbard at West Chicago, Livonia, will present "An Evening of Lessons and Carols" at 7 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 17, in the sanctuary. The program will include familiar Scripture readings and caroling. Dessert will be served after the program.

● CANTATA SINGERS
The Ann Arbor Cantata Singers will present "Festival Christmas XI" at 8 p.m. Monday, Dec. 18, at the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth, 45201 N. Territorial, Plymouth Township. Bradley Bloom is music director of The Ann Arbor Cantata Singers. A freewill offering will be taken.

● ADVENT SERVICES
Historic Trinity Lutheran Church observes traditional Advent services at noon Wednesdays through Dec. 20. A light lunch is served after the services. A freewill offering will be taken. The church is at 1345 Gratiot, Detroit.

● HOLIDAY DOINGS
St. Matthew Evangelical Lutheran Church, 5885 Venoy, Westland, has several activities planned for the holiday season. At 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 20, an Advent Sunday School service will be held.

● ADVENT WORSHIP
St. Paul Lutheran Church (Wisconsin Synod) prepares for Christmas with special Advent worship services 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Dec. 20, at the church, 17810 Farmington Road, between Six Mile and Seven Mile, Livonia. For information, call 261-1360.

● LIVING TREE
Temple Baptist Church will present its fifth annual Christmas celebration, "The Living Christmas Tree Concert," beginning at 7 p.m. Friday-Sunday, Dec. 15-17, in the church, 23800 W. Chicago, just east of Telegraph, Redford. The church's choir and Alleluia orchestra perform under the direction of Kim Cannon. There will be a sing-along. For complimentary tickets, call 255-3333.

● COME CELEBRATE
Praise Chapel Church of God's choir will present "Come Celebrate Jesus," a musical celebrating the life of Christ, at 7 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 16, and 6 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 17. The church is at 585 N. Mill in Plymouth's Old Village. The choir will perform under the direction of Dan Lacks. Also included in the program will be a girls' ballet and tap class directed by Cindi Goins. Admission is free of charge for both presentations.

● LIVING MESSIAH
Chancel Choir of Ward Presbyterian Church will present "The Living Messiah," a blend of narrative and choral performances, at 7:30 p.m. Friday-Saturday, Dec. 15-16, and 7 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 17, in the church, Six Mile at Farmington Road, Livonia. The concert is free, but tickets are needed to reserve seats. The public may attend.

● GERMAN SERVICE
Historic Trinity Lutheran Church will conduct its annual German language Christmas service at 4 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 17, in the church, 1345 Gratiot, Detroit. The Rev. Jakob Heckert of Concordia College, Ann Arbor, will conduct the service. St. Peter's Lutheran Church Choir of Warren will provide special German choral anthems. Christmas Eve services will be at 7 p.m. and 11 p.m. Christmas Day services will be at 10:45 a.m.

● YULE CONCERT
The Music Ministry at Our Lady of Good Counsel Catholic Church will present a gala concert, "Festival of Lessons and Carols," at 7 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 21. The church is at 1160 Penniman, Plymouth. The program, performed in the British yuletide tradition, will open with a candlelight procession of 140 participating musicians.

Eight choirs, including the parish choir, guitar group, three bell choirs and other ensembles, will perform seasonal selections to enhance the scripture readings. The finale will feature an organ fanfare, followed by the musicians leading the audience in the final traditional carol. Dr. Michele Johns, director of music ministry at Our Lady of Good Counsel, will direct the concert. The public may attend.

● NEW YEAR'S EVE
Sacred Heart Byzantine Catholic Church will host a parish New Year's Eve party in the activities center, 29125 W. Six Mile, Livonia. Hors d'oeuvres and cocktails will be served at 7 p.m., the sirloin dinner at 8 p.m. Live music with The Music Makers, an open bar, noisemakers, favors and hats will be included. Champagne will be served at midnight. Ticket price is $25 per person. Tickets are available by calling 261-8560. Proceeds will benefit the building fund.

● ST. TIMOTHY
St. Timothy Presbyterian Church plans its 25th anniversary on March 11. Organizers are looking for movies, videos, snapshots and mementos of those 25 years. If you're willing to share them, call the church office and leave your name and phone number. Also needed are the addresses of former members. To help, call the church office, 464-8844.

● ACTION MINISTRIES
A.C.T.I.O.N. Ministries is an auxiliary of Single Point Ministries, a Single Adult Ministry of Ward Presbyterian Church, 17000 Farmington Road, Livonia. The group is open to all single adults, providing educational and support services to meet the needs of individuals during career transitions. The group meets at 7 p.m. the second and fourth Mondays of the month in the Lighthouse of Ward Church. For information, call 422-1854.

● CLEAN BLANKETS

Rev. Lloyd Buss

Children learn what they live

I do not remember the exact date, nor even the specific moment where it became obvious to me. I just remember that there was a time when I did it, and a time when it was no longer a good idea. And the reason for changing my "habit" was the example it was setting for our children.

The habit I changed was my style of shopping — picking up items and holding them in my hands . . . examining them even if I knew I was not planning on buying them. I changed this habit when I realized that trying to teach our son and daughter not to pick up merchandise in a store, if they were not planning to buy it, was going counter to what they saw their father (and mother) do. How could I ask them not to pick up merchandise if they were not planning to buy it if I were doing it in front of them?

Instead of walking down store aisles and picking up items here and there and examining them, I would ask them to keep their hands folded behind their backs, just as I was doing. Modeling was a good method of instruction.

FATHER AND mother bring home pencils and notepads, perhaps a notebook or two from work. Or they might even arrive late and leave early from work. Why should they be surprised if their children pick up "loose things" at school and bring them home? Why should they be surprised if their children resist giving a full day of attention to their school program?

Mother and father come home from work and have a drink before supper. They might share experiences from the activities of their day, including criticisms of colleagues and superiors. Why should they be surprised if their children want to experiment with some type of stimulant that will help them relax and enjoy the conclusion of their day? Why should they be surprised if their children are critical of their teachers and speak disparagingly about peers?

Father and mother drive their cars aggressively, driving above the speed limit, disrupting the flow of traffic to be in front of one more car . . . shouting obscenities or displaying obscene gestures to others in their way.

Why should they be surprised if their children receive traffic tickets or have the kind of accidents that come from poor driving habits? Why should they be surprised if their children become the same kind of drivers they so dislike and criticize?

PARENTS CLAIM it as a right. Parents claim it as a legitimate feature of adulthood. Some actions, they would insist, are appropriate for adults and not so for children. Don't do as I do . . . do as I say. "When you are older," parents say to their children, "then you will be able to make your own decisions."

Yes, some actions are appropriate for adults and inappropriate for children. Some behavioral patterns are acceptable for adults and unacceptable for children. But why should adults expect children and youth to understand and distinguish differences and insist that they make the hard decisions of compliance?

We do what we see being done. We speak what we hear being spoken. We trust what we see being trusted. We imitate the lives of those who go before us. Why should we be surprised if those who follow after us do what they have seen us do, speak what they have heard us speak and trust what they have watched us trust? They learned well.

The Rev. Lloyd Buss is pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Abiding Presence in Rochester Hills.

U-M study maps changes in attitudes over 30 years

A 30-year look at American family values shows a revolution in attitudes regarding marriage, divorce, sex and other issues during the 1960s and early 1970s, but little change in attitudes on those issues since the mid-'70s.

The study by a University of Michigan social researcher indicates that much of the ought and should has been deleted from former social imperatives about marriage and family, but the new tolerance doesn't replace old-fashioned values held by individuals.

"The data suggests that the vast majority of Americans still value marriage, parenthood and family life," said Arland Thornton, professor of sociology and research scientist at the U-M Institute for Social Research. "Most Americans still value marriage, parenthood and family life. Most Americans still plan to marry and to have children, and optimism for success in marriage remains high."

However, Thornton added that that there has been a "dramatic and pervasive weakening" of the imperative to marry, to remain married, to have children, to restrict intimate relations to marriage and to maintain separate roles for males and females.

Thorton's analysis is based primarily on three major sets of data — the General Social Survey conducted annually by the National Opinion Research Center; Monitoring the Future, a survey of high school seniors conducted by U-M's Survey Research Center, and the Study of American Families, a panel study of mothers and children begun in 1962.

THORTON'S STUDY appeared in the November issue of the Journal of Marriage and the Family.

The most substantial changes in attitudes toward family issues occurred in the 1960s and '70s, while, since 1975, there has been little change except for continuing increase in support for greater equality for women, the study showed.

Changed attitudes toward family issues, with "decreased emphasis on conformity and an increased emphasis on individual freedom, also are consistent with value shifts in other domains of life, including socialization values, religion, abortion, civil liberties and political allegiance," Thornton said.

In addition, the trends in changing attitudes toward family issues since the 1950s have been broadly reflected in changes in behavior in such areas as birth rates, divorce, co-habitation and premarital sex. Those rapid changes occurred in the '60s and '70s, followed by a slower pace of change in behavior in the late '70s and early '80s, Thornton said.

Some of the other findings include:

- Sex roles — All of the surveys indicate "a very substantial and continuing transformation of sex role attitudes in the United States," supporting women's equality.

In the Study of American Families, substantial increases in egalitarian sentiments were found between 1962 and 1977, a trend that apparently has continued through 1985.

Among high school seniors, the "data clearly confirm a historical shift in attitudes between 1976 and 1981," Thornton found.

- MARRIAGE — While the survey of high school seniors does not suggest any decline during the late 1970s and early 1980s in the importance of marriage, or in their expectations that they will marry, Thornton noted that in national surveys between 1957 and 1976, negative attitudes toward remaining single declined significantly.

The same surveys documented an increasing negative orientation toward marriage and a growing emphasis on the "restrictive" aspects of marriage.

- Divorce — trends in attitudes toward divorce between 1962 and 1977 are "both clear and dramatic" with the social acceptance of divorce, Thornton said.

In 1962, 51 percent of the women in the Study of American Families disagreed with the statement that "when there are children in the family, parents should stay together, even if they don't get along." In 1977, 80 percent of the respondents disagreed with the statement.

The rapid change in attitudes toward divorce ended around 1977, with little change from then through 1985, Thornton said.

- Childlessness — While 85 percent of the mothers participating in the Study of American Families in 1962 said that all married couples who can have children ought to have them, the number had fallen to 43 percent by 1980.

Despite the growing acceptance of childlessness and less favorable attitudes toward parenthood, there is no indication that young adults do not want to have children, Thornton said.

"Apparently, what has happened has been the weakening of norms so that childlessness is acceptable, but the desire to have children continues," he said.

- PREMARITAL sex — There was a strong trend toward less restrictive attitudes toward premarital sex in the late 1960s and early 1970s, according to the U-M study.

Caring place

Hospice offers comfort to dying

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

The common misconception about hospice is that it is a place terminally ill people go to die.

"In 1990, we are looking to increase community awareness of who we are," said Deborah Bohler, executive director of the the Hospice of Western Wayne County. "Hospice is not someplace you go to be hospitalized. We offer comfort, palliation and pain control. One of the stipulations is that (patients) have given up aggressive therapy."

Hospice in Michigan is an all home care concept. It allows a person with an incurable disease to have choice in how and where they want to die, Bohler said.

Bohler, the first minority executive director in the state of Michigan, assumed her position last February when her predecessor, Nola Anderson, retired.

She has presided over many changes, including an expanded, computerized payroll system, the addition of new employees and a more comprehensive bereavement support program. Maureen Marion also has been named the new volunteer coordinator.

NOW HOUSED in Garden City with a staff of 10 paid workers, Hospice of Western Wayne was created in 1981 in Westland as a total volunteer operation.

"We are licensed and certified," Bohler said. "We are proficient in care of the terminally ill — social work, pastoral care, nutritional guidance, therapy."

Volunteers are still the backbone of hospice. It takes 30 hours of training to be a volunteer. There are currently 70 active volunteers with Hospice of Western Wayne.

Communities served include Canton Township, Dearborn and Dearborn Heights, Garden City, Livonia, Inkster, Plymouth, Northville, Redford Township, Westland and Wayne.

"We do go beyond those zones, if necessary," Bohler said.

Bohler has a degree in community health and has spent the last 13 years in the area of gerontology nurse/practitioner.

"In-home health care with a community focus has been my specialty," she said, adding that the progression to her current spot was natural.

Although hospice is an available alternative to all terminally ill people, most patients tend to be age 60 and over.

"THEIR FAMILY has to be accepting of the concept because they are the primary care givers," Bohler said.

One of the ways she hopes to spread the word on hospice is by networking with area nursing homes.

Although the hospice accepts third party reimbursement from insurance carriers, contributions and memorials are its financial backbone.

Donations can be addressed to Hospice of Western Wayne, 6701 Harrison St., Garden City 48135.

A large wall hanging, presented at a recent memorial service, graces to wall behind Deborah Bohler, executive director of Hospice Services of Western Wayne County. Designed in the shape of a tree, the leaves bear the names of hospice patients who died between Sept. 1, 1988, and Oct. 14, 1989.

Auto supplier entering planning process early

By R.J. King
special writer

When is blue not blue?

When it's Versaille or Gulfstream or Riviera.

So why dress up colors with fancy names, when the owner will refer to his cinnamon chocolate caramel car as brown?

"The names add a rich, exotic feel to the color and are used primarily as an attractive addition," said Brian Stewart, manager of the advance styling studio and a color stylist for PPG Industries, which recently opened an automotive technical center in Troy. "It's really a mental image you conjure up."

During a tour of the styling studio, home of hundreds of colors, Stewart referred to the hues as an artist explaining the colors of an intimate painting.

"The automobile today is a single instrument of shadows and colors and contrast, and the multiple palette allows people to find a color that expresses their personality. Even though people may refer to Rio Grande as brown, it's a lot more appealing to say Rio Grande."

While the names are invented by a color committee, PPG is also expected to take on the role of color prophets — predicting what reds and violets will be right for the 1993 model year.

"It's up to us to anticipate what colors will be popular three years down the road." Stewart said. "This allows our automotive clients the necessary time to make a decision as well as to discern whether the industry can meet the demand."

BUT WITH THE debate of colors moving ever further from the rainbow, paints or coatings, as they are referred to in the industry, are just one aspect of PPG's role in today's automotive market. The company also offers a wide range of glass and fiberglass applications.

As part of the growing trend in the auto industry, caused in large part by the consolidation of the domestic automotive market due to fierce competition from overseas and the recession earlier this decade, suppliers such as PPG find themselves facing greater expectations.

"Ten years ago if one of the automakers asked us to supply a particular windshield, they'd say: 'Here are the prints, check the figures and we want to know how much it will cost to produce each one,' " said Robert Moore, general manger of the automotive glass group.

"Now we're involved in the very early stages of future car design, and we're looking at cars that won't

Casey says farewell

PR exec eyes other careers

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Deep down, Jack Casey knew last year that his days with the Southfield public relations firm which he founded and still bears his name were numbered.

The day he notified Shandwick, plc, of London, England, that he intended to voluntarily relinquish duties as chairman and chief executive officer within a year really was the beginning of the end.

Shandwick, the largest independent PR group in the world, bought Casey Communications Management in 1987.

Casey said he could have stayed with the firm in other capacities. But he didn't think it would be appropriate nor would he feel comfortable hanging around looking over the shoulder of his successor, Jeffrey Caponigno.

So he decided on a clean break, announcing last week that he'll leave Jan. 5 when he receives final payment from Shandwick for the firm.

"We can leave here confident that everyone on this floor, the gang of people we hired, will have jobs, clients get service and we will be paid," Casey said. "You can't beat that, I think."

THINGS AREN'T quite the same when you aren't running your own show, Casey conceded. And Casey, 61, never has been much for just putting in time.

In addition to his career in public relations, Casey has worked as a staff writer for the Detroit Free Press and as a special assistant to the late Detroit mayor Jerome Cavanagh.

He also serves as a political and public opinion analyst for WJR Radio.

Casey said he hasn't decided on a new career.

"It's the first time in my life I don't know what my next job is," he said. "I don't want to work in PR. If I wanted to do that, I'd stay here and work in a nice office.

"I have prospects in other business fields somewhat related," Casey said, declining to elaborate. "I'm not sure I want to take one thing and put all my eggs in one basket."

AMONG IDEAS he's mulling — teaching college seminars and talk-show host.

"I've been running two careers, PR counselor full time and running the business as chief executive officer. To go to a 40-50 hour week will be a piece of cake," he said.

Casey said he would consider a political appointive position but wouldn't run for election.

Mary Lou Butcher, 46, executive vice president at Casey Communications Management and Casey's wife, will leave the firm at the end of this week.

She had announced those intentions last September when Caponigro, 32, was named president.

Butcher, a former reporter and editor at the Detroit News and vice president of a public relations firm before joining Casey, will teach a class in public relations next term at the University of Michigan.

Jack Casey

Mary Lou Butcher

"I think I might like to do some writing again. I'm a journalist at heart," she said.

BUTCHER, WHO filed and won a class action discrimination lawsuit against the News on behalf of female staff members, said she intends to keep active in women's rights causes.

In addition to managing accounts, Butcher has served as personnel recruiter and training coordinator. She also was instrumental in modernizing the office's communications equipment.

Casey founded his company in 1982. Both he and Butcher worked together when the firm was small potatoes. Caponigro, who will become chairman and CEO when Casey leaves, was one of their first hires.

Check out these expenses

practically speaking

While you're wrapping up your holiday packages, don't forget to wrap up you tax year as well. In the next few weeks, you can take some quick tax action steps that can result in a lower tax bill.

Start by reviewing your miscellaneous expenses, suggests the Michigan Association of CPAs. Although miscellaneous expenses are deductible only to the extent that they exceed 2 percent of your adjusted gross income (AGI), they can still provide substantial tax benefits. For example, a taxpayer with an AGI of $20,000 can deduct any miscellaneous expenses in excess of $400.

Miscellaneous expenses can help reduce your taxes only if you itemize, so find out now whether you will be able to itemize on your 1989 tax return. If some quick calculations indicate that itemizing is in your future, you may be able to vault over the 2 percent threshold by accelerating some of your qualified expenses into this year. To help you get off to a running start, here's a list of miscellaneous expenses taxpayers often overlook.

- Attend a work-related seminar. Before the month ends, attend a one- or two-day seminar related to your current job. Educational expenses for courses that maintain or improve your job skills are generally deductible as a miscellaneous expense.
- Stock up on uniforms. Does your job require you to wear a uniform? If so, December may be a good time to pick up a few extra sets of work clothes. To be deductible, the clothes must be suitable for general wear. The expense may help you reach or pass the 2 percent threshold.
- Start subscribing. You can deduct the subscription cost of any newspaper or magazine related to your business. In addition, you can write off subscription fees to investment or tax-related magazines. But the costs have to be reasonable. If you take out a three-year subscription, you can generally deduct only one third of the entire cost. The remaining two thirds can be deducted in subsequent years.
- Buy tax books. If you want extra advice this tax season, start purchasing tax publications before the year ends. Any tax book you buy now will trim your taxes in April.
- Join a professional society or union. The membership fees or union dues constitute a miscellaneous expense.
- Look for a job. If you are contemplating a job change, start pounding the pavement right away. Any job hunting expenses you incur through the remainder of the year can be written off on your 1989 return. Eligible expenses include phone calls, transportation costs and fees charged by a career counselor. In addition, any cost related to revising your resume — from typesetting or xeroxing charges — is deductible.
- Get a safe deposit box. Store investment papers or taxable securities in a safe deposit box and the fees become deductible.
- Hire an appraiser. If you hire an appraiser to evaluate a real estate investment or the value of a charitable contribution, the appraisal fees in either situation are fully deductible. Remember, too, that if

Set definite goals to avoid burn-out

The term burnout represents a newly coined phrase that has taken the modern business world by surprise in recent years. In the past, individuals suffering from burnout have been inappropriately described as being simply depressed, pessimistic or difficult.

Many find themselves unhappy with their personal or professional lives had been previously advised to "just change jobs" or "go on vacation" as quick-fix solutions. But telling someone with burnout to "just do" anything is a lot like advising a person who is seriously depressed to "just cheer up." It doesn't work.

If you find yourself exhibiting the symptoms of personal or professional burnout, there are several self-help exercises and sources of assistance.

To start, setting realistic goals that can be accomplished over a specific time frame is crucial. It accomplishes absolutely nothing to work at your business 12 hours a day if you believe it isn't getting you anywhere, your spouse is unhappy and your family never sees you.

To assist with personal and professional goal setting, I recommend Zig Ziglar's audio tape cassette series, "Goals." The tapes are available at major public libraries or can be found at local book stores.

IT IS also important to re-evaluate your work situation. Can you let up a little and still do an excellent job? Can you better delegate your responsibilities? Too many business owners and managers have the attitude that unless they do the job themselves, it won't be done properly. This philosophy not only breeds burnout, but it communicates to employees and others that they are incapable of handling new personal or professional challenges.

Re-evaluating your lifestyle will help determine if you work to avoid or invite stress into your life. Are you overweight? Do you take at least 30 minutes a day for uninterrupted relaxation? Do you regularly exercise or pursue a favorite hobby? If not, you are taking the shortcut to burnout by ignoring opportunities to unwind and relax. Dr. Jonathan Parker's tape series, "Discovering Stress" is recommended to those who need assistance in changing their "all work and no play" lifestyle.

Stress is inherent in any profession, especially in the last-minute pressures of serving customers on a daily basis. Contact your local hospital for information on stress-reduction programs that teach relaxation and stress-reduction techniques.

Mary DiPaolo is the owner of MarkeTrends, a Farmington Hills-based business consulting firm. She is also producer and host of the cable television series, "Chamber Perspectives."

be on the road until 1995 or 1996. We've gone from being a supplier to becoming an integral part of the team."

Automotive suppliers are also expected to shorten the product development process as well as provide just-in-time delivery to cut down on warehouse costs and fluctuations in supply and demand. In addition, suppliers are also guiding technical centers in the area to better market their services to the automakers.

"THE REASON we opened a technical center here is to enable our automotive clients easier access to such areas as design engineering, tooling and advance styling," said Frank Lovett, manager of design and development services.

"We're also ideally located near I-75 and Crooks Road. It just makes more sense to have one facility for our clients to come to than the 15 or so we operate in this area."

Employing close to 140 automotive sales, marketing and technical personnel, PPG's two-story, 81,000-square-foot facility was built at a cost in excess of $10 million.

PPG's clients include General Motors, Ford and Chrysler, as well as a host of European and Far Eastern automobile manufacturers.

Since 1984, the firm has grown from four to 45 employees and become the largest in Michigan in terms of billings with fees of $3.3 million last year.

"I think it will be a good opportunity for them and us to look at other ventures," Butcher said of the couple's exit. "I think it's good to leave on top. We have a lot of confidence in our team to move the firm forward."

"And we have confidence in ourselves to do something else," Casey added.

Casey and Butcher, who live in Bloomfield Township, also plan to sharpen their golf games, catch up on their reading and learn more about classical music.

"Our goal always was to develop the company so it would continue after us," Butcher said.

"We're just going to re-channel our interests," Casey said.

How to cut tax bill

you donate property valued at more than $5,000, an independent appraisal is not optional, it's mandatory.

- Give a holiday party for clients or employees. If you hold a legitimate business meeting and follow it up with a holiday gathering, you may be able to deduct 80 percent of the expenses. Be sure to document the purpose and extent of the business meeting, the names of attendees and all related expenses.
- Buy flowers for your secretary. Or send a get well bouquet to an employee laid up in the hospital. You may deduct the cost of business gifts worth up to $25 presented to any one person in one year.
- Deduct miscellaneous business expenses. You can also deduct expenses such as those incurred by mailing holiday cards to employees or clients, but be ready to prove that the cards serve a valid business function. Other items that may fall under this category include buying a poster for your office or a pen and pencil set for your desk.
- See a tax adviser. You know that tax preparation fees are deductible, but do you know that you can also deduct the cost of consulting a tax advisor about the tax implications of a divorce or an employment contract? If you have any questions on these matters, remember that a meeting held in 1989 may turn into a very smart investment — and a tax deduction.
- Visit your financial adviser. If you're worried about the performance of your favorite stock or mutual fund, visit your financial adviser. If the visit is "ordinary and necessary" and you discuss your investments, the costs of attending the meeting are usually deductible.
- Deduct business meals. You can generally deduct 80 percent of the cost of a business meal if it is 'directly related to" or "associated with" the active conduct of your trade or business. Just make sure the expenses are not lavish or extravagant. If your company does not reimburse your business meal expenses, you must add the 80 percent to your other miscellaneous itemized deductions.

Men, if you're about to turn 18, it's time to register with Selective Service at any U.S. Post Office.

It's quick. It's easy. And it's the law.

Claudia Could End Up In An Institution. Her Crime Was Getting Sick.

It happens every day. In every community in the Tri-county area.

Someone like Claudia is forced to leave their own residence, give up their independence and be placed in a "home." Simply because they can no longer take care of themselves. Simply because no one is there to help them.

That's where CareGivers comes in. A United Way agency since 1965, CareGivers serves thousands of persons just like Claudia, whose physical or mental limitations prevent them from performing essential personal and household chores.

We bring our care right into their homes, providing whatever services are needed – at no fee: personal care, nursing services, household work, parenting education, just to name a few. Preventing those like Claudia from ending up in an institution...or children from troubled families being placed in a foster home. Encouraging their self-reliance. Preserving their dignity.

But limited funding prevents us from reaching out to everyone in the Tri-county area who needs our care. That's where you can make the difference!

Your gift can help brighten the holiday season for hundreds of other individuals just like Claudia who are now on CareGivers' waiting lists.

Please help us help them.

Dan McCosh

Detroit nirvana: another freeway

Expressways are pretty much a Detroit invention, one of those things that started here and had to go to California to get famous, like Tom Hayden, Diana Ross and shopping malls.

Not every city actually wants to be known as the birthplace of something like the expressway, but I figure we ought to take what we can get. Ultimately the invention of the expressway will be understood as having had at least as much impact on American history as stealing land from the Indians.

These concrete canyons have, in fact, become a surrogate religion — the kind that gets explained in pamphlets handed out in airport terminals.

The basic tenets of Expresswayology are simple: building more expressways will "improve" traffic; the good life is always at the far end of the expressway; the expressway will be great for business development; things will get better, if only we build more expressways.

I suddenly realized they are about to finish I-696, an expressway that was started about the same time Howdy Doody was the hottest thing on TV. To some, it might seem like just another expressway, but to a believer in Expresswayology, it has kept the faith.

IT'S BEEN great for the economy, since the expressway planners started when it traversed mainly empty farm land, bided their time until it was solidly houses, churches, schools and shopping centers, then began buying it up at exhorbitant prices.

This is good for the economy. In fact, if expressway planners were in charge of taking land from the Indians, the Indians today would be richer than the Japanese.

In its final form, I-696 it has some features that can only be traced to a deep-seated belief in Expresswayology.

For example, the Expresswayologists spent $2 million on three 600-foot long tunnels in Oak Park. The tunnels cut underneath three parks with brick-paved paths and two shuffleboard courts. the overpasses last spring, adding another $2 million to the cost. Now the bored Oak Park kids have a ready supply of bricks and shuffleboard pucks handy on an expressway overpass. Some of us might have stuck to the chicken-wire tubes that get the kids to school everywhere else.

My mother was one who never quite understood the new theology. When the John Lodge opened she set forth on a highway that let you go barreling along within 10 miles an hour of the top speed of the old Chevy.

This was more or less her style anyway, even in pre-Escort days.

But then she missed her exit.

Quickly realizing her mistake, she stopped, reversed in an effort at correcting the error and backed into a squad car that had mindlessly blocked her path. For a long time after, Woodward Avenue was good enough for her.

Still, there is scientific evidence that things indeed are improving. A chart of a study conducted by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments points out that nearly every road other than I-696 will have less traffic and be a lot easier to get around on. I-696 itself will immediately become a monumental traffic jam with a lot of slow-moving targets for those shuffleboard pucks.

How to figure out your net worth

By Sid Mittra
special writer

First of 2 parts

For an individual or a family, net worth is the basic measure of financial health.

It is the total fair market value of all assets owned, such as a house, stocks, bonds, and other securities, minus all outstanding liabilities owed, such as a mortgage and revolving-credit loans.

Net worth is the amount by which assets exceed liabilities at a specific time.

To calculate net worth, first pull together the relevant financial records.

These include latest tax records, bank statements, canceled checks, credit card information, other itemized living expenses, brokerage account and mutual fund records, mortgage payments, real estate closing records, insurance policies indicating free market value of personal property, pension account records, and loan repayment schedules for automobile and other goods purchased on credit.

Coming up with all of this documentation can seem daunting, but it is essential for net worth planning.

These records also lay the foundation for savings, credit, debt, investment, tax and estate planning.

The statement of net worth presented in the accompanying table has several important features.

First, assets are divided between liquid, investment and personal assets.

Second, investment assets are further subdivided between short-term and long-term assets.

Third, long-term assets are divided between equity, debt and miscellaneous categories.

Fourth, liabilities are divided between short-term and long-term liabilities.

Once the statement has been completed, subtracting total liabilities from total assets would provide the net worth figure for the family as of a given date.

Madonna blankets spread love, warmth

The Madonna College Social Work Association wants blankets — new blankets, that is — and plenty of them.

No, the group isn't planning on opening a blanket store and yes, they are offering donors something in return — a party.

The association is holding a "Love and Warmth" Christmas party and dance for the benefit of Darlene the Blanket Lady Friday, Dec. 15. Admission (per twosome) is a new blanket still in its wrapper.

"The reason we're having it is to arouse awareness of the public that it's getting cold outside and the homeless need blankets," said association vice president Donna Liss. "They need more than that, but at least we can address their need for warmth."

The benefit will be at 7 p.m. at the Daniel Lord Hall, 39050 Schoolcraft, Livonia. In exchange for blankets — feel free to bring more than one, Liss said — party goers will be treated to dancing provided by a disc jockey, an open bar, snacks and a raffle, with prizes including a microwave oven.

The association hopes to collect 200-300 blankets for the Blanket Lady who distributes blankets to the homeless in Detroit. The blankets will go for her new project, Detroit Cover-Up, slated to start in January. Cover-Up is geared for homeless women and children, Liss said.

Persons who prefer to skip the party but still donate blankets may leave them in a drop box in the main lobby of the college's administration building. And financial donations also will be welcome, Liss said.

The association has gained major assistance for the benefit from several companies, including, A.B.O.W. Companies Inc. and Metropolitan Maintenance Co., and expects to "scrape by" in meeting the cost of staging it, Liss said.

"It's probably going to cost around $1,000," she said. "People may say where are you going to come up with the money, but if you don't do something like this, how will they become aware of the problem.

"The Blanket Lady has a dream and she's going with it. If more people did that, this world would be a better place."

'It's getting cold outside and the homeless need blankets.'

People interested in donating blankets or money to the benefit can call Donna Liss at 937-0377.

County's best drivers could receive 'tickets'

Safe and courteous drivers just might pick up $10 worth of free groceries while Christmas shopping this week as part of the second annual Good Drivers campaign sponsored by the Wayne County Sheriff's Road Patrol.

Deputies will be looking for motorists who obey traffic signs, use turn signals, extend courtesy to other drivers and generally exhibit superior driving skills. Instead of being ticketed, they'll be stopped and given a Kroger gift certificate.

Cost of the campaign is borne by the Community Services Fund, which is fueled by citizens' crime-fighting donations. Sheriff Robert Ficano also donates all of his speaking fees to the fund.

Freeway opening closes era in history

staff writer

An ample niche will be carved in history for I-696. Never has east had so much trouble meeting west as the final eight-mile link of the expressway through south Oakland County.

They built the Jeffries and Chrysler freeways in the nearly 30 years it took to argue about the route of I-696.

The dispute had been raging since Ike was in the White House, since the Russians launched Sputnik I and the U.S. sent man to the moon.

THE CONCEPT of I-696 took shape in 1955 when the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads (now the Federal Highway Administration) approved the Michigan State Highway Department's recommendation to include the east-west freeway to serve the rapidly growing areas of south Oakland and Macomb counties.

Studies between 1956 and 1963 determined that the road should run along a corridor between 10 and 11 Mile.

In 1957, newly elected State Highway Commissioner John C. Mackie included construction of the first 8.8 mile-section of the freeway in his first five-year construction plan.

The western stretch of I-696 — from the I-96 interchange in Novi to Telegraph in Southfield — opened in 1963.

Officials met in Lansing for heated discussions and negotiations. Smoke rings formed big zeros as state officials and community leaders failed to agree on an alignment. Hoped-for construction was repeatedly delayed.

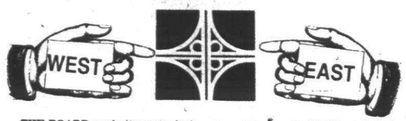
Gov. George Romney entered the fray in 1964. But a later 16-hour marathon session in Southfield with leaders from six cities ended in a stalemate.

AFTER MORE squabbling, a bill was signed by the Legislature in 1968 authorizing binding arbitration of disputes over freeway routes that couldn't be settled by negotiations.

Trying to promote agreement, the State Highway Commission altered the proposed route location but left it on the 10 and 11 Mile corridor.

When some communities stood firm against the new route, the commission declared the situation deadlocked. Romney appointed a three-member arbitration panel, all Detroiters.

Opponents sought a court injunction to prohibit the board from taking action. But the Oakland County Circuit Court upheld the arbitration law.



THE BOARD made its route decision in October 1968, setting off another round of legal battles to halt implementation of the board's decision.

The State Supreme Court finally settled the brouhaha, upholding the constitutionality of the arbitration law.

In 1969, Congress passed the National Environmental Protection Act setting up stiff requirements for highways that affect parks, wetlands and other environmental features.

Opponents of I-696 seized the opportunity to proclaim that I-696 construction would imperil the Detroit Zoo and Rackham Golf Course which fell in the proposed path of the highway.

A 1974 headline in the Southfield Eccentric read "I-696 definitely coming — and before 1980." But the eight-mile link remained a concrete phantom without a shovel.

OPPOSITION CONTINUED from Lathrup Village and Pleasant Ridge and from a group called COUPON, Community Organizations United to Preserve Our Neighborhoods.

Freeway fighters took their arguments to court. COUPON called for reconstruction of 10 Mile, 11 Mile and 13 Mile in Southfield.

But Southfield officials argued that mile roads can't be made large enough to handle peak hour traffic.

Southfield Mayor Donald Fracassi in 1980 was called to Washington for what was billed as a very important meeting with officials from the U.S. Department of Transportation.

The topic was completion of the I-696 freeway. The big powwow turned out to be another delay of the decision to fund or shelve plans for the expressway.

"I just came back from another meeting on I-696 to work out differences which are in the way," Fracassi said. "In 1999, I'll probably still be saying we just had another meeting on the expressway.

"We're now observing the silver anniversary of nothing."

THE STATE conducted a socio-economic study of the effects of the freeway route on the orthodox Jewish community.

By 1982, MDOT had purchased 90 percent of the homes in the path of the freeway. The first tunnel sewer was being installed and work had begun on three bridges in Royal Oak.

But the lawsuit filed by Lathrup Village and Pleasant Ridge stalled approval of plans for the freeway's design.

Impacts on the Detroit Zoo were to be minimized and recreation areas in Pleasant Ridge would be replaced after construction.

PEDESTRIAN walkways were proposed for areas where there are large orthodox Jewish communities.

Homeowners in the proposed path of I-696 have had their problems over the years. Few new buyers were interested in sparsely populated subdivisions near the highway's path.

The long, long, winding road is finally a reality.

Men: Rethink those bicycle trips

Barry Franklin

Did you know that...

- The percentage of calories from fat is the key in identifying the true fat content of foods. Calculating this measurement requires two pieces of information from the food label: the total number of calories in the product and the grams of fat. Simply multiply the grams of fat by 9 to get calories from fat. Then, divide the calories from fat by the total calories in the product. For food to be truly low-fat, less than 30 percent of the total calories should come from fat.
- A new study shows that women who smoke "low nicotine" cigarettes are four times more likely to have a first heart attack than women who don't smoke. By the way, that's the same heart risk that high-nicotine cigarettes pose.
- It takes about three months to lose the benefits of regular weight training once you stop. The good news: Even once a week workouts will enable you to maintain full strength.
- There is no good scientific evidence that taking vitamin C, even in megadoses, can prevent or cure colds, cancer, or heart disease. Moreover, an excessive intake of vitamin C can cause unpleasant side effects such as diarrhea, nausea and stomach cramps.
- The terminology "No cholesterol" on a food label does not guarantee that the food is truly heart healthy. Although these products don't contain cholesterol, the labeling may be misleading. For example, one widely advertised canned shortening which carries a "no cholesterol" label contains saturated vegetable fat which can raise blood cholesterol levels in the same way as animal fats.
- Recent research indicates that sexual disorders are relatively common among men who are avid bicyclists. Presumably, banging the groin area on a narrow, hard seat over long distances may cause damage to critical blood vessels and nerves. There is also evidence that excessive exercise (overtraining) can lower the sperm count and related hormone levels.
- The American family's favorite pasttime, television watching, appears to add pounds and inches to our frames. According to a just-released study, men who spent more than three hours in front of the tube each day were twice as likely to be obese as those who watched less than an hour. Clearly, a large part of the problem is the snacking that often accompanies TV viewing.

Barry A. Franklin, Ph.D., is Director of Cardiac Rehabilitation and Exercise Laboratories, William Beaumont Hospital, Royal Oak, and Associate Professor of Physiology, Wayne State University, School of Medicine.

Recent studies indicate heavy bike riding and romance don't go hand-in-hand.

SC profs are given new status

Five professors, including three current or former area residents, were recently granted emeritus status by Schoolcraft college.

Emeritus status honors individuals who have demonstrated a "consistent record of contribution to students and the college".

those receiving emeritus status included Ralph Miller of Livonia, Mary Jawor, formerly of Livonia, Elizabeth Andrews of Plymouth, Louis Rupp of Troy and J. Bryce Lockwood of Northville.

Miller, retired after 18 years as a Schoolcraft geology instructor, helped develop the college' geology department. A Rhodes Scholar, Miller is also a member of the Geographic Society board and a frequent lecturer on European and Japanese issues.

Jawor, retired after 25 years as a professor of English, was a founding member of the Schoolcraft faculty. During her stay at Schoolcraft, she helped develop a children's literature course and internships in children's literature for local community schools.

Andrews, a former assistant dean for community services, established retired senior volunteer programs at Schoolcraft and other community colleges. Her work included a study on housing opportunities for older adults in the Schoolcraft College area.

Rupp, retired after 19 years as a counseling professor, served on the college committees for curriculum instruction, student discipline, athletics and architecture. In addition, he served on the state guidance committee and as president of the Lakeview Educational Association.

Lockwood, a 25 year college employee and former physics professor, helped found the college physics department. He helped organize the first college five year plan for geology, physics and geography. He also served on committees for athletics, curriculum instruction, evaluation, governance, and pre-needs, as well as being the physics department representative.

Telephone solicitors targeted

Project Hang Up, a project of the Michigan State Troopers Association, is being implemented this holiday season.

Through the project, state troopers are advising citizens to hang up on telephone solicitors who use pressure or other questionable tactics to receive donations.

Troopers especially want to get the word out on solicitations from groups claiming police affiliation.

"Millions of dollars are contributed annually by the public with the expectation that the money will be used for police-supported programs, when in fact much of the money is profit for a private sector," said Sgt. Richard Darling, president of the Michigan State Troopers Association.

Troopers advise citizens to hang up immediately on anyone using intimidation, implied special privilege or threats of withholding services to get contributors to contribute.

What kind of a kid do you suppose Thomas Edison was?

Ad Council
A Public Service of This Publication

Bet he looked at problems and saw solutions. Like Maurice Scales who invented Baby No-Mash to prevent doors from closing on little fingers.

Bet he saw how things were done, and imagined better ways to do them. Like Lillian Lukas who invented the Puddle Detecting Cane for the blind.

Bet he watched how things work and thought of ways to avoid wasting time or effort. Like Caitilin McCracken who invented the Orphan Kitten Feeder for Three.

Maurice, Lillian and Caitilin were three of the thousands of winners in the Invent America! education program.

Area groups still looking for holiday donors for needy

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

'Tis the season for holiday giving, and plenty of organizations in the metro area are looking for assistance.

Following is a list of some groups that need help.

● Salvation Army — 9451 S. Main, south of Ann Arbor Road, Plymouth, is looking for volunteers to help lift and sort canned goods weekdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. to help with the food drive. Volunteer bell ringers are also needed. Call Linda Price at 453-8480.

● Growth Works — Funded by the United Way, this organization works with first time juvenile offenders and also provides substance abuse counseling for youth. The group is launching a day treatment program for chemically dependent adolescents. Make checks payable to Growth Works, 271 S. Main, Plymouth 48170.

● Focus Hope Holiday Program — Two major holiday programs are Share with a Senior and Family to Family. Volunteers are matched with a senior citizen or a family in the Focus Hope food program. The idea is to prepare a food box of groceries worth $40 to $60 and deliver it to the family sometime before Christmas. Toys or clothes could be added where appropriate.

Last year, 3,000 people were matched, according to Annalisa Mulroy, special projects coordinator. Recipients live in communities in and around Detroit. Those interested should call 883-3131 Monday through Friday between 9 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Volunteers are also needed to deliver food baskets on Dec. 16.

● Gleaners Community Food Bank — In one capacity or another, Gleaners provides 155,000 meals a week throughout southeastern Michigan via 185 soup kitchens, church pantries or emergency shelters. For the holidays, Gleaners is asking volunteers to provide money to buy a case of food — instant potatoes $11.20; corn muffin mix $6; pork and beans $9; pineapple $15.20; peas and carrots $12; peanut butter $13.20; green beans $9; tuna $32.40; peaches $14; beef stew $13.20. Donations are tax deductible. Make checks payable to: Gleaners Community Food Bank, 2131 Beaufait, Detroit 48207.

● Capuchin Community Center — Want to serve a holiday meal or work in the kitchen? This well-established soup kitchen needs your help. Meals are served daily at 9 a.m. (breakfast) and 11 a.m. (lunch). Kitchen help is always needed. Canned food and money are always appreciated. The Capuchin Community Center is at 1760 Mt. Elliott, Detroit. Call 579-1330.

● Holy Trinity Church — Eight hundred Christmas baskets will be distributed on Friday, Dec. 15 to families in need. Canned goods are needed, and monetary donations are always appreciated. For more information, call Sister Ann at 965-4450. Holy Trinity, long associated with caring for the homeless, is at 1050 Porter, Detroit.

● Methodist Children's Village — 26645 W. Six Mile, Redford, operates several programs ranging from residential treatment for abused and neglected children who are emotionally impaired and wards of the court to foster care, adoption placement and pregnancy counseling. This year's multi-tiered wish list includes: grocery store gift certificates of $25 for families of children in treatment (offered by most major chains); $25 gift certificates from Toys R Us or J.C. Penney for children in the foster care program; major gifts like televisions, videocassette recorders or coffee makers for cottages where permanent residents are housed, seven or eight children per cottage.

There are seven cottages with boys of similar age range and one cottage with girls age 8 to 12. Instead of adopting one child for the holidays, volunteers are asked to adopt a cottage, providing goods for all children in that home. Because of treatment programs, sponsors don't deliver the goods firsthand. For more information, call Mary Banks at 531-4060. Checks can be made payable to Methodist Children's Home Society.

● Redford Township Goodfellows — Two hundred families are going to receive a package of goods from this organization, but "there are always a few families we can't accommodate," said Irene Newton. "What we need more than anything are people to sell newspapers Friday and Saturday, Dec. 15 and 16. Just come pick up the papers at Redford Town Hall Friday and/or Saturday and choose your favorite corner. Papers will be sold from dawn to dusk." Call Newton at 537-3030 for more information.

● Residential Care Directors of Wayne County — Represents 200 group homes, each with up to six residents who are developmentally disabled. Although no particular holiday fund-raiser is planned, the organization always needs money for its residents, many who are subsisting on meager government assistance. Ron Ward, president of the non-profit organization, said that money could be used for such varied projects as sending a resident to summer camp to burying a deceased resident without enough money. Checks should be made to Residential Care Directors of Wayne County, P.O. Box 488, Wayne MI 48184.

● Livonia Goodfellows — Gerald Wolfe of the Prudential Harry Wolfe Realtors is spearheading the 1989 Goodfellows drive. Sale of newspapers was Saturday, Dec. 2, but the Goodfellows can use cash. "We buy the clothes now and pay the bills in January," Wolfe said. While most canned food is donated from local school canned goods drives, Goodfellows' biggest expense is clothing for children. Some 200 families will be served this year — food baskets, clothes and toys for children. Checks can be mailed to: Livonia Goodfellows, in care of the Livonia City Clerk's office, 33000 Civic Centre Drive, Livonia, 48154. Or drop off donations at the Prudential Harry Wolfe Realtors on Five Mile Road, between Merriman and Farmington.

● Westland Jaycees — The Jaycees are teaming up with local Cub Scouts and Wayne-Westland's 12 elementary schools for its annual Christmas food basket project. Baskets will be delivered to 250 needy families Dec. 17. Nominations should be sent to: Westland Jaycee Food Basket, 34435 School, Westland 48185. Or call John Frieders at 595-6892.

MAJOR REVISIONS TO THE CANTON TOWNSHIP REVISED ZONING ORDINANCE FIRST READING TO BECOME EFFECTIVE UPON THE SECOND READING

Major Revisions
A summary of the major revisions to the Zoning Ordinance follows:

1. First, the format of the Ordinance was revised to eliminate conflicting provisions and to correct improper crossreferencing. After many years of having provisions added or deleted as a result of amendments, the internal structure of the existing Ordinance lacked logical order. The new Ordinance is organized into six major divisions.
   - The first division contains basic information, such as the title, rules of construction, and definitions (Article 1.00).
   - The second division contains general provisions that apply to all districts, such as standards for nonconformities, off-street parking and loading, landscaping, and so forth (Articles 2.00 through 7.00).
   - The third division contains zoning district regulations for the residential, commercial, industrial and other districts (Articles 8.00 through 25.00).
   - The fourth division contains general procedures for site plan review, special land use review, planned development, amendments, and so forth (Article 27.00).
   - The fifth division contains administrative standards, such as the responsibilities of the Planning Commission, Zoning Board of Appeals, and other officials with respect to enforcement of the Zoning Ordinance (Article 28.00).
   - The sixth division contains provisions that deal with severability, repeal and effective date (Article 29.00).
2. A second broad-based revision concerns the regulations and standards each of which has been re-written to clarify the intent and to be more specific concerning the limits of the provisions. This is most evident in Articles 2.00 through 7.00, which deal with general regulations. Provisions dealing with the following subjects have been substantially revised:
   - Accessory Structures and Uses — Section 2.03. Accessory structures are frequently the subject of ZBA action. Considerable time was spent in devising the appropriate formula for determining maximum floor area for accessory structures.
   - Home Occupations — Section 2.06. Explicit standards for home occupations were added.
   - Private Roads or Streets — Section 2.10. Design and maintenance standards were clarified and expanded upon.
   - Sidewalks — Section 2.19. Design and maintenance standards for sidewalks were added.
   - Nonconformities — Article 3.00. The regulations concerning nonconformities were re-written. The Class A/Class B format was retained, but standards were revised to facilitate removal in the event that nonconforming structures or uses are demanded in excess of 50 percent their value. Provisions were clarified to allow for normal repair and renovation of nonconforming structures.
   - Off-Street Parking Standards — Article 4.00. Requirements for off-street parking were updated, based on past experience in the Township as well as current published standards.
   - Landscaping — Article 5.00. Landscaping standards were substantially revised. In the existing Ordinance, landscaping standards are located in several sections. In some cases, the standards in different sections are not consistent with each other. In the new Ordinance, all of the landscaping provisions are in one article, Article 5.00. The Ordinance clearly states the requirements for general landscaping, berm plantings, parking lot landscaping, landscaping of the right-of-way, and specific landscaping requirements for each zoning district. In addition, provisions are included for installation and maintenance, and for treatment of existing plant material. The new Ordinance gives the Planning Commission the flexibility to consider and approve creative landscape designs which meet the spirit and intent of the Ordinance.
   - Performance Standards — Article 7.00. The performance standards covering noise, air pollution, glare and heat, water pollution and similar matters, have been completely revised based on recent legislative action at the Federal, state, and local level, as well as current standards devised by the scientific community.
3. The Statement of Intent for each zoning district has been revised to more clearly indicate the desired use of land within the district.
4. The names of certain districts were changed to more properly reflect the purpose of the districts. For example, the Agricultural Industrial District was re-named Rural Agricultural District. The Argicultural Residential District was re-named Rural Residential District.
5. The most substantial revision to zoning district regulations concerns the commercial districts. The current ordinance contains regulations for three commercial districts: neighborhood, community, and highway oriented commercial districts. The commercial district regulations were under study for several months prior to the Zoning Ordinance revision. As a result of a joint meeting of the Planning Commission and Township Board, the determination was made that four commercial districts are required, as follows:
   - Article 15.00 sets forth provisions for a C-1, Neighborhood Commercial District, designed for the convenience of persons residing in surrounding neighborhoods.
   - Article 16.00 sets forth provisions for a C-2, Community Commercial District, which is intended to cater to the convenience and comparison shopping needs of Township residents.
   - Article 17.00 sets forth provisions for a C-3, Regional Commercial District, which is intended to cater primarily to the comparison shopping needs of residents of the whole Township and surrounding communities.
   - Article 18.00 sets forth provisions for a C-4, Interchange Service District, which is intended to accommodate regional retail facilities, office buildings, and businesses that serve the needs of those who are travelling within or through the Township.
6. One industrial district — the LIR, Light Industrial Redevelopment District — has been eliminated. This district was designed to facilitate development of the Dye Brothers industrial park. The purposes served by the LIR district can now be adequately served by other industrial districts.
7. The General Procedures and Related Standards in Article 27.00 have been substantially re-written and expanded upon. This Article covers site plan review, special land use review procedures, planned development, variance and appeals, amendments, and other procedures. For each of these procedures, the new Ordinance indicates in a very thorough manner the steps required to apply and obtain review, the application data requirements, standards for approval, and similar considerations.
8. Administrative provisions in Article 28.00 have been substantially re-written and expanded upon. This article covers the responsibilities of the Township Board of Trustees, Township Planning Commission, Zoning Board of Appeals, and various Township enforcement officials with respect to the implementation of the Zoning Ordinance.
9. Unlike the existing Ordinance, the new Ordinance does not contain sign regulations. It is the intent of the Township to prepare and adopt a separate Sign Ordinance.

A new Zoning Map has been prepared to coincide with the new zoning district regulations. As noted earlier, the most significant change to the Zoning Map involves redrafting of the commercial district boundaries, based on the intent of the new C-1, C-2, C-3, and C-4 districts. Also, the names of certain districts have been changed.

Bryce Anderson is among the top returning swimmers on the Plymouth Canton team. The Chiefs, who came close to upsetting Salem in the league meet last year, suffered major losses to graduation and will count heavily on veterans like Anderson, a senior who specializes in the butterfly and individual medley.

Canton faces rebuilding job

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

swimming

Plymouth Canton has won three straight Western Division titles in boys swimming, but that streak could be in jeopardy this year.

"Oh, yeah, it's a lot in jeopardy," coach Hooker Wellman said.

The primary reason the Chiefs might be nearing the end of their reign is the large number of quality swimmers who were lost to graduation.

Furthermore, it's looks as if Northville — always the main rival for the division championship — has an exceptionally strong team, having beaten Redford Catholic Central and Plymouth Salem to win the Belleville Invitational on Saturday.

Among the losses from the Canton team that finished second to Salem in the Western Lakes Activities Association meet were swimmers Jeff Homan, Scott Swartzwelter, Jim Hartnett, Mike Helmstadter, Mark Levesque and Mitch Timberlake and diver Brad Flowers.

"EVERYBODY lost last year, but nobody lost as much as we did," Wellman said. "We were only eight points out of first, and this year we'll be fighting to be in the top six.

"(Graduation) completely wiped us out. We're rebuilding and trying to hold ourselves together at the same time."

While the outlook might sound bleak, Wellman is actually looking forward to the upcoming season and the challenge of coaching a raw team, which begins the season Saturday in the annual WLAA Relays at Salem.

"This year will be fun," he said. "There's not as much expected of us. We won the relays last year, and it looked like we were going to be in the running. And there was pressure with that.

"We look for this year to be just as fun while we re-establish some strengths and rebuild our team."

The top returnees are senior co-captains Bryce Anderson and Steve Geddes.

ANDERSON IS the lone returning member of the All-Observer medley relay team. In addition to helping Canton win that event at the WLAA meet, he was second in the butterfly and scored in the individual medley.

Geddes, a middle and distance freestyler, placed in the 200 and 500 freestyles and freestyle relay at the league meet. But he can swim a number of events, including the breaststroke and IM.

Other seniors who will have key roles are Matt Boland and Bob Fisher. Both are primarily backstrokers, but Wellman plans to capitalize on the 6-foot-3 Fisher's arm reach by using him more often in freestyle events.

Canton still has a large team with 35-40 boys, and other swimmers who are being counted on include juniors David and Doug Nevi, Jeff Brandenberg, Ron Trosin, Shawn MacInnis and sophomores Matt Tertel and Kevin Beach.

David Nevi scored in the butterfly, and Beach is expected to be the No. 1 breaststroker, having finished seventh in that event. Tertel, Brandenberg and Doug Nevi are freestylers, Trosin a breaststroker and IMer, MacInnis a freestyler and breaststroker. Sophomores Chris Pierpecchi and Mark Elovega are others to watch.

Wellman expects the Chiefs to "hold our own in diving" where they return juniors John Stirling and Chris Berg and sophomore Nick Atwell.

TEAMING WITH Anderson on the medley relay this year could be any combination of Beach, Dave Nevi, junior Josh Blunt, MacInnis or Boland. The top freestyle prospects are Geddes, Tertel, Brandenberg, Doug Nevi and sophomore Chris Bird, a transfer from Belleville.

"We've got a long ways to go and a lot of building to do," Wellman said, "but I guarantee we'll be a real competitive team at the end of the year and will qualify kids for the state meet."

Orris stars for 3rd-place Rocks

Northville's first-place showing in the Belleville Invitational overshadowed a pair of outstanding individual efforts by Observerland swimmers Saturday.

Troy Shumate of runner-up Redford Catholic Central and Ron Orris of third-place Plymouth Salem won two events apiece and helped a relay team to a high finish.

The Mustangs had 308 points, the Shamrocks 302 and the Rocks 296. The host school was last in the four-team meet with 238 points.

Shumate shattered a meet record in the 200-yard freestyle with a 1:49.35 time. The old mark was 1:53.45 set last year by former Salem swimmer Mike Hill. He also won the butterfly in 55.11 and just missed the record in that event by .07.

Shumate also anchored the Shamrocks' second-place freestyle relay team. Alan Afsari, John Brogan, Brian Dynda and Shumate finished in 3:27.69.

ORRIS WON the 50 freestyle in 21.73 and the 100 freestyle in 47.28. The Rocks were third in the freestyle relay with Orris swimming the anchor leg. Joe Pawluszka, Brett Meik, Craig Wilsher and Orris went 3:37.69.

In addition to Shumate, CC had other first-place swimmers in Mike Hoeflein, Randy Teeters and the medley relay team.

Hoeflein set a record in the backstroke, which he won in 58.22. Brian Bogardus set the former mark of 59.90 while swimming for Belleville last year.

Hoeflein and Teeters also combined with Brogan and Dave West to win the medley relay in 1:49.39. Teeters won the breaststroke in 1:05.80, missing the meet record by .80.

Teeters and Hoeflein also contributed a pair of second places. Teeters finished the individual medley in 2:08.39 and Hoeflein the 100 freestyle in 51.17.

Dynda was third in the 500 freestyle (5:27.16) and fourth in the 200 (1:58.39), Afsari was third in the 100 freestyle (52.66) and Brogan was fourth in the 50 freestyle (24.08).

OTHER THAN Orris' individual wins, the only additional top-three finish for Salem was the medley relay team's second-place effort. Eric Bunch, Mark Erickson, Albert Sneath and Chris Caloia put together a 1:51.08 time.

Bunch also was fourth in the IM (2:15.55) as was Bryan Keppen in the breaststroke (1:11.59).

Court decision

Plymouth Canton won a thrilling, 61-60 basketball game at Brighton on Brett Howell's late basket Tuesday. Kevin Holmes, squaring up in the season opener against Ann Arbor Huron (above), had 13 rebounds for the Chiefs. See story on Page 2D.

Salem matmen do well

Plymouth Salem is supposed to have one of the best wrestling teams in Observerland, and the Rocks provided proof of that Saturday.

Salem finished third, behind two teams annually among the state's best, in the Temperance Bedford Invitational.

The host school and defending Class A champion won the meet with 203½ points. Lake Orion, runner-up a year ago, was second with 162½, and Salem, which had three individual winners and placed wrestlers in nine weight classes, 145.

"We're going to get better as the year goes on," Salem coach Ron Krueger said. "We might have been able to get to second, but we'll keep scratching and working and, hopefully, we'll get there."

Salem's champions were Ken Stopa (125), Steve Burlison (160) and Brian Burlison (189). Dan Bonnett (112) and Julian Sell (130) were runners-up.

STOPA PINNED opponents from Lake Orion and Hazel Park in his first two matches, and he rallied from a 5-0 deficit in the final to beat Bedford's Larry Patton 11-8.

Steve Burlison, who nearly breezed through the tournament, decisioned John Frysinger of Huntington (Ind.) North and pinned Greg Coon of Bedford. In the final, he pinned Lake Orion's Nick Agro in 2:58.

Brian Burlison had a tougher time in the championship round but scored an impressive victory over Chelsea's Tim Van Schoick, who was fifth in Class B last year, 5-3.

Burlison was dominant in the early matches, too, with a pair of quick pins. He stuck Dan Timmzl of Huntington North in 58 seconds and Tom

Chiefs nip Brighton; Salem whips Trojans

basketball

Plymouth Canton rallied from a 13-point, third-quarter deficit on the road Tuesday and defeated Brighton 61-60.

A defensive adjustment helped turn the game around for the Chiefs.

"We switched to an aggressive 2-3 zone in the third quarter, and that kind of brought us back," Canton coach Dave Van Wagoner said.

Brett Howell's eight-foot shot with 36 seconds to play gave the Chiefs (1-1) the lead, and they held on to post their first victory.

Van Wagoner described what he told his players before Howell's basket.

"I told them to get a great shot, and if we couldn't get a great shot, to get the last shot . . . Fortunately, we got a great shot."

The Chiefs, however, were not in the clear after Howell's hoop. Brighton had three opportunities to win the game in the last seconds and misfired on all of them.

Karl Wukie led Canton with 17 points, including a trio of three-pointers.

Howell and Geoff Allen each added 12 markers, and Daryl Magreta had seven points and, according to Van Wagoner, "played some good defense."

Kevin Holmes and Howell had big games on the glass for the Chiefs, pulling down 13 and 11 rebounds, respectively.

Bob Hartman had 29 points to lead Brighton, including 11-of-11 foul shooting. The Bulldogs (2-1) suffered their first loss.

SALEM 76, MONROE 49: The Rocks quickly overcame a two-point Monroe lead after some road-game jitters and took control of Tuesday's game.

Salem outscored the Trojans 14-9 in the second quarter, 21-14 in the third and 31-14 in the last.

Senior guard Jeff Gold led the Rocks with 12 points and six steals, and fellow senior guard Tom Noonan also scored in double figures with 11 points.

Defensive efforts by junior forward K.C. Kirkpatrick, who had 11 rebounds, and junior forward Jake Baker, who grabbed eight rebounds and had nine points, clinched the game.

Monroe's Curt Eighmey, a senior center, scored 13 points.

Salem coach Bob Brodie said his team gambled defensively in the first quarter and took some bad shots. But, as the game wore on, the Rocks became more comfortable, got their offense going and played the way they can, he said.

Hoffman ignites North victory

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Frank Zielinski has already earned a scholarship to Larry Bird's old school, Indiana State.

But Zielinski, a 6-foot-7 forward at Birmingham Seaholm, wasn't the only Division I player on the court Tuesday at Seaholm.

North Farmington point guard Matt Hoffman showed he may be just as worthy of a scholarship, scoring 16 straight third-quarter points and turning a close game into a rout, 81-62.

Hoffman, playing on a sprained right ankle he aggravated last week in practice, finished with 27 points to lead four North players in double figures. The non-conference win moved North to 2-0 overall, while Seaholm fell to 2-1.

"I THINK I am (a Division I player)," said Hoffman, who is being recruited by a handful of Division I schools in the Mid-American Conference. "I figure the better the team does, the better chance I have to go to college. I'm trying to do whatever it takes for the team to win.

"We wanted to win. In the locker room at halftime, the team was excited and ready to go."

North led only 40-39 when the Raiders scored 19 straight points to open up a commanding, 59-39 lead with 1:54 left in the third quarter.

A 3-point shot by guard Brian Temple started the onslaught and then Hoffman reeled off his 16 straight points, including three 3-pointers, to put the game out of reach.

Zielinski scored 18 of his game-high 29 points before intermission to keep the Maples close at halftime, 36-35. But the second-half show was reserved for Hoffman and Temple, who combined for 23 of North's 27 third-quarter points. Temple finished with 19 points and Chris White and Bill Chwalik contributed 10 apiece.

Seaholm made only four of 19 shots (21 percent) from the field in the second half. Babuk Ghuman was the only other Maple close to double figures, finishing with eight points.

"NORTH STARTED hitting its shots, and we thought we had to get them back in a hurry," Seaholm coach Gary Chamberlain said. "We started losing our poise and control and that just buries yourself. Hoffman is a nice ball player. He's probably the best guard we'll see, that I know of, anyway."

Hoffman means a lot to North's offense, but so does the last man on North's bench, according to coach Tom Negoshian. North's depth showed when Hoffman went to the bench with 6:02 left before halftime with his third foul and didn't return until the second half.

"We feel depth is one of our advantages," Negoshian said. "Our players feel comfortable with other kids playing. I've got eight players who started at one time or another last year, and there's no animosity among them.

"That's a credit to them. They play as hard as they can for as long as they can."

ALTHOUGH NEGOSHIAN points to depth as a key, he was worried about having enough players suit up against Seaholm.

Hoffman and White both have ankle sprains; center Eric Carlson is just getting over the flu; and Chwalik had tonsillitis last week.

To make matters worse, the Raiders picked up 25 team fouls, with Carlson saddled with four and Hoffman three.

"We expect that," Negoshian said. "If you play hard you're going to get fouls. We let the chips fall where they may."

The injuries, however, worry him.

"I'm worried about Matt's ankle, Chris White's ankle, Carlson's flu and Chwalik's tonsillitis," he said. "That's part of being a coach."

Hawks undefeated

basketball

Farmington Hills Harrison overwhelmed visiting Redford Union in the second half Tuesday to register an 81-52 victory in boys basketball.

The Panthers outscored Harrison in the first quarter 15-13, but it was all Harrison after that. The unbeaten Hawks, who improved to 3-0, held a 55-27 advantage in the second half.

Harrison outscored RU by seven points in the second quarter, 18 in the third and 10 in the finale.

Junior forward Andy Smith led the Hawks with 23 points, 15 rebounds, six assists and three steals.

Sophomore center Paul Gilliyes came off the bench to score 15 points and grab eight rebounds, and senior guard Mill Coleman had 10 points and six assists.

Senior forward Steve Nowak and senior guard Dan Lazotte led the Panthers with 15 and 10 points, respectively. RU dropped to 2-1 overall.

RU coach Tip Smathers praised Harrison's team effort.

"Their press hurt us and they were quicker to the ball," he said, adding the Hawks also beat his team on offensive rebounds.

WATER. MOTT 60, FARMINGTON 53: The Corsairs edged Farmington in three of four quarters Tuesday night, handing the Falcons (1-2) their second loss this season.

Mott outscored Farmington 15-8 in the first quarter, and those seven points were ultimately the deciding factor after three quarters of even play that followed.

Salem quintet dual perfect

Rocks split duals

Plymouth Salem had five wrestlers win both matches in a double dual Tuesday at Hazel Park.

Dan Bonnett (112), Ken Stopa (125), Jeff Coleman (130), Steve Burlison (160) and Brian Burlison (189) were unbeaten on the night.

The No. 8-ranked Rocks lost to No. 2 Lake Orion 45-22 and whipped Hazel Park 60-16. Westland John Glenn also participated in the meet but didn't tangle with Salem. The Rockets defeated Hazel Park 42-28 but lost to Lake Orion 60-6.

"Considering we didn't have a lot of kids there, we did pretty well," Salem coach Ron Krueger said. "I would have liked to wrestle Lake Orion with all of our team there."

Bonnett and Stopa pinned both of their opponents. Bonnett stopped Lake Orion's Tony Lankford in 1:35 and Hazel Park's Gary Harrison in 5:57, and Stopa pinned Brian Bissell of Lake Orion in 4:17 and Jason Nagy of Hazel Park in 1:00.

COLEMAN EDGED Lake Orion's Matt Stephens 10-9 and pinned Hazel Park's Bret Ameffe in 17 seconds.

Steve Burlison won a 3-2 decision over Nick Agro of Lake Orion, runner-up in the state team tournament last season, and pinned Jamie Majeski of Hazel Park in 1:30.

Brian Burlison handled Lake Orion's Mark Detposier 11-1 and pinned Hazel Park's Tom Perryman just before time expired (5:47).

Salem's Scott Martin (103), Jeff Shumate (135), Charlie Apigian (152), Pete Israel (171) and heavyweight Scott Breithaupt won their bouts in the Hazel Park dual.

Martin pinned Josh Bauman (5:00), Shumate pinned Nathan Ethmoge (0:40), Apigian pinned Terry Payne (2:58), Israel won by forfeit and Breithaupt pinned Kevin Lloyd (0:26).

Perryman of Hazel Park in 43 seconds.

Bonnett, a sophomore, got to the final at 112 where he lost by technical fall (17-2) to Bedford senior Alan Barnhizer.

"If he (Barnhizer) isn't the state champion, I don't know who is," Krueger said.

SELL ADVANCED with a pin and one-sided decision (9-0) before dropping a 7-5 score to Bedford's Nick Buchanan, who was third in the state.

Salem's Charlie Apigian was third at 152. Apigian, who was seeded third, lost to a Bedford wrestler in the semifinals and defeated Chelsea's Adam Taylor, whom he pinned in the first round, with a 14-3 decision in the consolation final.

In addition, Salem's Colin Trombeta (103), Mike Shumate (135) and Pete Israel (171) finished fourth.

Following the Rocks in the team standings were Chelsea, 125; Huntington North, 91; Hazel Park, 50½; New Boston Huron, 34; and Monroe, 33.

Salem sent its B team to the Flint Kearsley Invitational and had two wrestlers place in that tournament. Heavyweight Ken Coker was second and 103-pound Scott Martin third.

Fitness Studio fills void for failed club's members

Plymouth Fitness Studio for Ladies is accepting former members of Living Well Lady, a similar health club that filed for bankruptcy earlier this week.

Jan Harwood, owner of Plymouth Fitness Studio, said her club will review contracts made between the defunct club and its former clients and reach an agreeable compromise that will enable those women to use the Fitness Studio facilities.

"They should bring (the contract) in to let us look at it," Harwood said, "and we'll work out a program so they can continue to work out during the winter months.

"We want to let them know they do have an option. We'll design a plan to help them."

Women interested in transferring or joining the all-female Plymouth Fitness should contact a studio representative at 451-1165. The studio is at 1058 W. Ann Arbor Road, between Sheldon and Main, and is open seven days a week.

Collegiate game suits Shasky fine

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Jennifer Shasky hasn't experienced an "all-nighter" yet at George Washington University, but with this being finals week she is prepared for one.

"I was up 'til 3:30 last night (Monday) studying for my Old Testament exam," said Shasky, a freshman basketball player from Birmingham Marian. "That's an all-nighter for me. My brain is pretty fried right now."

So far, academics have been a greater challenge for Shasky, a fine addition to the Colonials' women's basketball team.

Shasky, last year's Miss Basketball winner, twice has been named the Atlantic 10 Conference's Rookie of the Week. That's quite an honor, considering the season is less than a month old.

A starter at small forward, Shasky is averaging 14.6 points, 2.8 rebounds and 1.8 steals per game for the 4-1 Colonials. She is making 48 percent of her 3-point field goals (12 of 25) and is shooting 43 percent overall from the field.

EVEN SHASKY, the all-time leading scorer at Marian, didn't expect to fare this well as a freshman.

"One of my goals when I first came in was to get a steady position — that's what I was aiming for," said Shasky, who made five 3-point shots in a 71-63 win over South Alabama. "It's been fun so far. Being a freshman, the other teams have left me open because they don't know if I can shoot or can't. I've been open a lot and I've been lucky enough to make my shots."

Shasky hasn't let George Washington down, but at the start of the season, she and many of her teammates felt betrayed by last year's coaching staff.

In August, days before school began, head coach Jennifer Bednarek announced her resignation. Not long after, both assistant coaches — including former Bloomfield Hills Andover cager Lisa Zodtner, who recruited Shasky — decided to take jobs elsewhere.

The vacancies weren't filled until late September, when Joe McKeown was named head coach. Practice began Oct. 15, so preseason conditioning was up to the players.

"IN SOME WAYS, it worked out for the best," Shasky said. "The whole situation — with the coach leaving — brought us together as a team. We were responsible for conditioning ourselves in the preseason without a coach.

"We had to be in condition and it wasn't like we were going to say no. It didn't seem so much like a chore, because we wanted to do it."

SOCCER HOPEFUL

Tom Baker, a freshman at Plymouth Salem High School, is one of 24 players still in contention for a spot on the under-16 national soccer team.

Baker, a starting defender on Salem's state runner-up team, will attend a five-day camp in San Antonio next February at which time the national team will be selected. The national team will compete in the Dallas Cup in March.

Baker, along with Canton's Brendon Sullivan, Livonia's Scott Lamphear and Farmington's Mike Giese, went to Dallas on Thanksgiving weekend as members of the Midwest team.

sports shorts

The list of players being considered for the national team was pared to 24 after that round-robin competition, with Baker advancing to the next stage.

SOCCER SIGN-UP

The Canton Soccer Club is planning to take registrations for the spring season for girls and boys who will be 5 years and older by April 1, 1990. Open registration will take place on Saturday, Jan. 13, and Saturday, Jan. 20, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

OFFICIAL'S CLINIC

The Canton Referees' Association will sponsor a series of clinics for new soccer referees early next year. The clinic dates are Jan. 16 and 18, Jan. 23 and 25 and Feb. 1, 6 and 8. For information call John Davidson at 459-6739 or Jerry Sibbons at 453-8616.

AAU BASKETBALL

Tryouts for AAU girls basketball teams will be Sunday, Dec. 17, at Walled Lake Western High School for other age groups. The times are 10 a.m. for 13-and-under, noon for 15-under, 2 p.m. for 16-under and 4 p.m. for 11-under.

For information call Chris Drogosh at 623-1664 or Larry Cupp at 349-7338.

Area players in GLI

Area hockey players Tim Keough, Pete Podrasky, Bill Pye and Walt Bartels will participate in the 25th Annual Great Lakes Invitational on Friday and Saturday, Dec. 29-30, at Joe Louis Arena.

Keough, Podrasky and Pye are Canton residents. Bartels is from Plymouth.

Pye, a junior goaltender for Northern Michigan University, was named most valuable player of the Western Collegiate Hockey Association playoffs last season and was an All-WCHA honorable mention. Pye, a 1987 graduate of Canton High School, also was voted the Huskies' MVP.

Podrasky, a senior defenseman at NMU, was second on the team in assists with 31 a year ago. He is a 1986 graduate of Redford Catholic Central.

Bartels, a junior right wing at Michigan State University, has played in every game for the Spartans. He had three goals and five assists in the first 12 games, including the game-winner against Illinois-Chicago on Oct. 27. Bartels also is a CC graduate.

Keough, a sophomore netminder for the University of Michigan, compiled a 5-4-2 record with a 3.51 goals-against average last year. Before joining the Wolverines, he played for Compuware.

Tickets for the GLI are $16, $12.50, $10 and $8 and are available at the JLA Box Office, which is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., and all Ticketmaster outlets. To charge tickets by phone using Visa or Mastercard, call 645-6666. For more information call 567-6000.

college sports

The all-MIAA womens soccer teams included five from Kalamazoo College, which captured the title with a 6-0 record. Included are Karen Carney, a freshman from Livonia who was selected to the first tem, and Leigh Clancy, a junior from Livonia, who was named to the second team.

The II-MIAA mens soccer second team included a pair of players from Farmington: Pete Keller, a freshman from Olivet College, and David Frauenheim, a senior at Albion.

In volleyball, sophomore Rocky Cibor f Livonia (Stevenson) was selected to the all-MIAA second team. And infield hockey, two Farmington native — Johanna Fox, a sophomore, and Cyndi Reiden, a junior, both f Kalamazoo College — were secon team choices.

MICHELLE FORTIER isn't letting her freshman status slow her down. The Plymouth Canton graduate sored 13 points for the Western Michian women's basketball team, whichwas hardly enough in its 98-57 loss to defending NCAA champion Tennessee (where Plymouth Salem grad Dena Head starts at guard) at Read Field House Dec. 1.

Fortier was averaging 7.5 points and 3.5 assists through two games. She had made 58.3 percent of her floor shots. WMU opened its season with a 91-68 win at Chicago State Nov. 28.

A YEAR AGO, Albion College's mens basketball team had to rely on Ken George for its outside scoring. Not anymore.

George, a senior guard from Farmington (Harrison), is still doing his share. Through Albion's first five games — four of them wins — George led the team with a 15.8 scoring average. His 5.0 assists per game was also a team best, and he had made 29-of-32 (90.7 percent) of his free throws.

But another has helped shoulder the scoring load. Steve Hawley, a jonior from Westland John Glenn, has transferred to NCAA Division III Albion from Division I Hardin-Simmons University (before that, he played at Schoolcraft College) and has made quite an impact.

Hawley is third on the team in scoring, averaging 12.8 points. He is also averaging 3.4 assists and a team-best 2.4 steals, and has made 14-of-34 three-point shots (41.2 percent), which also leads the team.

TWO PLYMOUTH CANTON grads have become important parts of the Kalamazoo College women's basketball team. Diana Knickerbocker, a senior forward, was the Hornets' top three-point shooter and was averaging 12 points and 4.8 rebounds a game.

Candi Jones, a freshman forward, was a team leader in rebounding, averaging 10 per game through the early stages of the season.

Ocelots trounce Alpena

One thing became very evident after a few minutes of Saturday's Alpena Community College-Schoolcraft College womens basketball game: Alpena just didn't have it.

If the game had been a horse race, SC's home court stallions would have made Alpena look like plow horses. The 69-51 final margin might have been worse had the Lady Ocelots maintained their intensity for the entire 40 minutes.

"We played a full-court man-to-man defense in the first half," said SC coach Jack Grenan. "The kids just dug in. (Alpena) had trouble getting it past mid-court."

Guards Tracy Osborne, Ann Hardy and Teresa Farkas forced a bundle of Alpena turnovers. When on offense, SC proved just as effective — thanks to Alpena's sticking to a zone defense throughout the first half.

Osborne took advantage of that. She sank a pair of three-pointers and scored 11 points from the perimeter in the opening 20 minutes to spark SC to a 35-21 halftime lead. When Alpena was fast enough to cover Osborne on one wing, the Lady Ocelots rotated the ball to Denise Kokowicz on the opposite side.

KOKOWICZ RESPONDED by hitting five-of-six outside shots, scoring 10 first-half points.

After a few minutes of the second half, SC's lead had grown to 20 and Alpena abandoned its zone for a man-to-man defense. The move worked for a while, as the Lady Ocelot lead was trimmed to 12. After baffling Alpena with its high-speed fast break in the first half, SC relaxed, and the tempo reflected it.

The Lady Ocelots' rebounding also slackened, which perturbed Grenan. But they did adjust to Alpena's defensive change, pegging the ball inside to center Barb Krug. Krug had just four points in the first half against the zone, but against the man-to-man she found enough openings to score 12 second-half points.

Krug finished with 16 points and 11 rebounds. Osborne totaled 15 points, Kokowicz notched 14 and Farkas had 10 (eight in the second half). Lisa DePlanche collected eight points and 10 boards.

Joy Hyvarinen's 18 points led Alpena. Kris Thurston netted 15.

The win allowed SC to open its Eastern Conference season on a winning note. The Lady Ocelots are 5-2 overall, with four consecutive victories. Alpena slipped to 4-3 overall and to 1-1 in the conference.

SC MENS BASKETBALL: The optimistic view would be: How many times in the last 60 days have the Ocelots even in position to win a game in the final seconds?

The obvious answer is very seldom. But in Saturday's Eastern Conference opener against Alpena at SC, Ken Fuster was at the free-throw line with 14 seconds to play and his team trailing 70-68.

Unfortunately for the Ocelots, while the situation may have been new, the results were all-too-familiar. Fuster, an 85 percent shooter at the line, missed the first in his one-and-one opportunity. Alpena got the ball and Bobby Allen was fouled.

He made one-of-two foul shots with seven seconds remaining, increasing Alpena's advantage to three. The Ocelots tried to get the ball into Ed Hudson's hands for a tying three-pointer, but Darrin Morgan intercepted and scored at the buzzer, making the final 73-68 in favor of Alpena.

"It was a tough loss, but we played well," said SC coach Dave Bogataj. "It was one of those games we had a chance to win and we just didn't do it."

BLAMING FUSTER, a sophomore, for the loss would be grossly unfair. Several other experienced players suffered through sub-par performances. Ed Hudson, averaging better than 18 points a game, managed just nine and missed all seven of his three-point attempts. Al Hudson played less than 20 minutes because of foul trouble, totalling seven points and eight rebounds.

Rob Harmon was limited to nine points. All, like Fuster (who had six points), are sophomores.

The main reason SC was able to stay in the game was freshman Randy Watters, who riddled Alpena for 25 points and grabbed nine rebounds. Watters made five-of-seven three-point efforts.

Alpena led 40-37 at the half. The game remained close the rest of the way, until Morgan (16 points), Scott Olsen (15) and Allen (13) carried Alpena to the win.

Bogataj admitted he is having trouble accepting losses, close or not. This defeat dropped SC to 5-7 overall and to 0-1 in the conference. Alpena is 7-3 overall, 1-1 in the conference.

"We play hard like this and I just got to believe the breaks will start going our way," he said.

No records, but area hunters did well

Bill Parker

With DEER hunters, the 1989 season is over. Muzzleloading season ends Sunday in the Lower Peninsula and only die-hard archers will brave the frigid temperatures to participate in the second archery season, which runs through the end of the month.

In case you missed it, Fred Trost's annual Big Buck Night aired last Thursday on Michigan Outdoors and there were some very, very big racks taken in the state this year. Although I didn't receive any calls on record book bucks, Observer & Eccentric area hunters did bag some nice trophies.

The most interesting story was called in by Don Navigato, of South Lyon, who explained how his son Don II, took his first buck with a bow.

Hunting from a ground blind in Livingston County, Navigato shot a 6-point on Oct. 26th at 5 p.m. Picking up the trail on the morning of the 27th, Navigato trailed the buck for three hours only to lose the trail at the bank of the Huron River.

The other side of the river was thick swamp and inaccessible by foot. The elder Navigato assumed the buck was lost for good, but not his son.

Realizing he was already too late to take his family to the zoo, as he had promised, the younger Navigato convinced his wife to take a canoe trip with him down the Huron River. Renting a canoe in Milford, Navigato and his wife paddled up-stream to the spot where the buck had crossed the river. Thirty-yards into the swamp he found the buck. After field-dressing the buck, he loaded it into the canoe and headed for home with a satisfied smile. Now that's determination!

Other lucky hunters called in the following reports:

● William Sutherland, 34, of Westland, had a fantastic deer season bagging a total of three bucks during the early archery and the firearm season.

On Oct. 1, Sutherland arrowed a 3-point in Livingston County near Fowlerville. On Nov. 17th he shot a 180-pound, 8-point in Lenawee County and on Thanksgiving Day he he took a 160-pound, 4-point, also in Lenawee County.

● Troy's Dan Gardner, 16, took his first buck ever on Nov. 24.

Hunting in Roscommon County, Gardner sat down in a friend's blind (the friend had gone in for lunch) and in less than 10 minutes he shot a dandy 4-point.

● Art Kannisto, 74, of Farmington Hills has taken a buck each of the last four years and he wasted little time filling his tag this season.

Kannisto took a 170-pound, 8-point at 7 a.m., Nov. 15, while hunting from a blind in Alger County near Rumley.

● Bob Branton, 47, of Farmington Hills enjoyed a fantastic bow season bagging two nice bucks.

On Oct. 13, Branton arrowed a 150-pound, 7-point from a tree blind in Luddington County. On Nov. 12, the archer bagged a 140-pound, 8-point from a tree blind in Lapeer County. He used a game tracker to find both deer.

On Sept. 25, Branton also shot a 150-pound, 6-point mule deer while elk hunting in Montana.

● Troy's Ryan Riddle, 17, took the second buck of his hunting career this year when he shot a spike-horn at 8 a.m. on Nov. 24. Riddle took the buck from his blind near Manistee.

● Dan Vandesteen, 36, of Rochester Hills, harvested two deer in the span of about two hours on Nov. 18. Hunting from a blind near Caseville, Vandesteen shot a 8-point at 8 a.m., took the deer to camp, then headed back to his blind. By 9:45 a.m. he had filled his antlerless-only permit and was dragging his second deer of the day back to camp.

● Jim Lukomski, 51, of Dearborn, bagged his first buck ever at 8 a.m. on Nov. 15. Hunting in Chippewa County, Lukomski took a 150-pound, 4-point, "in an area where my buddies said I might as well not hunt," he said.

● Bob Leonard, 60, of Farmington Hills, took a 130-pound, 6-point. Hunting in Montcalm County in Winfield Township, Leonard harvested his buck with a 30.06 from his blind in a fence row.

● Farmington Hills resident Thomas M. Bliznik, 21, a fourth-year student at Michigan Tech, shot a 5-point, 150-pound buck on Nov. 19th.

Bliznik, a first-time deer hunter, bagged the buck in Houghton County with a 12 gauge shotgun.

● Mark Grodi, 34, of Auburn Hills took his second buck in two years. Hunting in Oakland County, Grodi downed an 8-point on the opening day of the firearm season.

● Jack Ross, 31, of Rochester Hills, took two bucks during the first week of the firearm season.

Hunting near Capac in St. Clair County, Ross dropped a spike-horn on opening day and bagged a 7-point on Nov. 18. Ross also arrowed a doe on the opening day of the archery season.

● Westland's Tom Lewis, 29, bagged a 140-pound, 3-point buck near Hale on Nov. 25.

● Livonia's Steve Ditchkoff, 19, took his first buck ever at 7:15 a.m. on Nov. 25. Hunting near St. Ignace, Ditchkoff bagged an 8-point, 150-pound buck.

● Greg Trolley, 27, of Rochester, arrowed a 7-point buck on Oct. 7 while hunting in St. Clair County.

● Bobby Stubbs, 18, of Garden City, downed a 185-pound, 5-point buck at 4:45 p.m. on Nov. 17. Hunting in his blind near Cass City, Stubbs saw the buck checking a scrape 60-yards away. He dropped the buck with one shot from his 20-gauge shotgun.

● Troy's Mike Wills, 43, took two bucks during the opening week of the firearm season. Hunting in Escanaba, Wills dropped a 120-pound, 3-point on Nov. 15th, then bagged a 120-pound, 4-point buck on Nov. 17th.

● Jim Ferrett, 47, of Troy, enjoyed a prosperous opening week. Hunting near Escanaba (with Mike Wills), Ferrett took a 180-pound, 9-point with a 20-inch spread on Nov. 16th. He followed that with a 140-pound, 6-point on Nov. 18th.

● Sheryl Sutherland, 32, of Westland, took a doe on Nov. 18 in Lenawee County.

● Joe Derek, of Farmington Hills, took a doe on Nov. 15 in Livingston County.

● Bill Edwards, 34, of Auburn Hills, took a doe on Nov. 18 in Oakland County.

● Last, but not least, my brother John has been tough to keep pace with this year. On Nov. 15, the 34-year-old Oxford hunter took a 3-point buck in Lapeer County and on Nov. 25 he bagged an 8-point buck in Sanilac County. He also arrowed a doe on Oct. 9.

Through 15 years of hunting, only once have I been able to out-hunt my big brother. This year, although brother John has more venison in his refrigerator than I do, I have the bragging rights for 1990. Hunting from a ground blind, I took my first buck with a bow, a 180-pound, 9-point with a 20-inch spread, on Nov. 10 in Lapeer County.

Compuware takes title

The Compuware Junior A hockey team won the Pepsi International Hockey Classic on the weekend of Dec. 1-3 and captured the Father David Bauer Memorial Cup in the process.

Pat Peake scored the winning goal three minutes into the second overtime as Compuware defeated the Wexford Raiders, one of Canada's best Tier II teams, 3-2 in the final.

The victory gave Farmington Hills-based Compuware a 5-0 record in the tournament and its second championship in three years. Compuware is 26-0-1 for the season.

Father Bauer, a member of the Hockey Hall of Fame, coached or managed the Canadian Olympic team for two decades and also received a gold medal for sportsmanship in the 1964 Olympics.

Peake, a member of the U.S. elect 16 National team, was named the most valuable player after scoring seven goals, including three game-winners, and adding five assists.

Winning an MVP award was nothing new to Peake. The Madison Heights resident has won that honor four previous times while playing in Canadian tournaments.

Peake has been projected as a early-round selection in the 1991 National Hockey League draft and is expected to be the first American taken. Peake's teammate, Eric Ladros, is the top Canadian prospect.

Lindros was named the best forward in the tournament.

Movie greats highlight mall series

By Kevin Lawrence
special writer

The series, only one of its kind at an area mall, is the brainchild of Bill Checks, Livonia Mall marketing director.

JIM JAGOFELD/staff photographer
Tillie Sosnowski, waiting in line with her husband Jozef, receives a poster from "Some Like It Hot" and a month's schedule for the free movie series from Livonia Mall marketing director Bill Checks.

WHAT DO Elizabeth Taylor, Judy Garland, Debbie Reynolds, Doris Day, Bette Davis, Clark Gable, Jimmy Stewart and Jack Lemmon have in common beside being great actors?

They've all been seen at Livonia Mall.

Well, on the silver screen, that is. All these movie stars have appeared in recent months at the mall's cinema, compliments of the Livonia Mall Merchants Association and its free Classic Film Series, Tuesday mornings at 10 a.m. The series, only one of its kind at an area mall, is the brainchild of Bill Checks, Livonia Mall marketing director.

Checks is an avid movie fan and memorabilia collector, whose office walls feature framed stills of many movie favorites, and whose personal movie collection numbers in the thousands.

"A few years back we used to do a customer appreciation day, with specials at the stores, along with a free movie — one of the films that was currently showing at the cinema," he said. "But that didn't work out and we dropped it."

A YEAR LATER, Checks decided to do something a little different. He conducted a survey of mall theatergoers, asking them what type of movies they really like to see. Survey results were the classics, the great musicals and Bette Davis.

"Most of the comments on the surveys centered on wanting to see movies really made for the movie screen," he said. "Clean and, for lack of a better word, decent films that hint, leave things to your imagination. People really indicated they wanted to see something other than the explicit sex, violence and language that is in today's films."

Checks then came up with the concept of the monthly feature, showing four movies based on a theme — Academy Award winners, for example. The series began with a modest audience turnout of some 80 people per show. When moviegoers began asking for specific stars, Checks switched to the current format of one featured star per month. December is Jack Lemmon. Most Tuesdays now, the theater is filled to its 500-seat capacity.

Just who is filling these seats every Tuesday morning?

Checks explained that roughly 60 percent are retirees or people who don't work.

"But really the audience cuts across all age groups," he said. "In the summer we have more kids. It's really a nice mix. We even have a mother who's here every week with her baby. She brings a bottle, nurses her baby and watches a movie. It's great."

Livonia Mall Assistant Marketing Director Janice Morrow said, "We get compliments every week. And people are always calling to see what's showing next week. Many folks are making Tuesday their day out — taking in the movie, lunching and shopping at the mall."

WHEN YOU ATTEND one of these classic film screenings, you come away with more than just a good feeling about the golden days of the silver screen. The first Tuesday of each month, when Checks greets theatergoers, he distributes an 11-by-14 souvenir movie-still of the month's featured actor or actress. The month's schedule is printed on the back.

"Many folks like to collect the stills," Cheeks said. "If they can't make that first Tuesday of the month showing, they call or get a friend to pick one up for them."

One of the few times that a scheduled film wasn't delivered to the theater on time, Checks apologized to the audience and ran one of the currently showing features — "When Harry Met Sally," starring Billy Crystal and Meg Ryan.

The film carried an "R" rating. Half the audience walked out, saying thanks but no thanks. Checks said there weren't any hard feelings but this seemed to bear out what his initial moviegoer preference survey suggested.

Because response has been so good, Checks is planning to continue the classic film series indefinitely. The month of December finishes up the Lemmon series with "The Fortune Cookie" (1966), pairing Lemmon with Walter Matthau — showing Dec. 19, and "Some Like It Hot" (1959), starring Tony Curtis along with Lemmon — Dec. 26.

Come January, if you hear reports that Burt Lancaster has been seen at Livonia Mall, don't doubt it. You might even be able to catch more than just a glimpse of him yourself, Tuesday mornings on the movie screen.

Garden room

Cafe Cortina in Farmington Hills has opened a new addition — the European Garden Room. Rina Tonon (she and husband Adriano own the Italian restaurant) says the garden room is being used mainly for larger dinner parties, wedding showers and corporate meetings. The interior is European, with the use of French doors overlooking a small courtyard, where owner Adriano has planted Italian vines. The room seats 40-75, and the private patio may be used for serving beverages and appetizers out of doors. Cafe Cortina also has its own garden, to grow vegetables, herbs and flowers for the restaurant.

Holiday feast

An Old English Holiday Feast, featuring traditional English holiday fare, will be held at 7 p.m. Monday-Wednesday, Dec. 18-20, at the Lark in West Bloomfield. The menu include such courses as Oysters with Periwinkles in Champagne Sauce, Atlantic Salmon with Salmon Caviar and Sour Cream Sauce, Roast Fresh Goose, and Yule Log with Rum Sauce. For more information call 661-4466.

Special menu

New Year's Eve will be celebrated, with a special menu, from 5 p.m. to 1 a.m. at the Clarkston Cafe. Chef Gary Grzywacz plans dishes that include chicken Murat, grilled veal chop, sauteed game, fresh seafood, rack of lamb and stir-fry shrimp. Among appetizers will be oysters on the half shell, smoked salmon and clams casino. No reservations are required. For more information call 625-5660.

Great wine list

Machus Red Fox in Bloomfield Township is among 30 restaurants in the United States which have been honored with the Great Wine List award by Nation's Restaurant News. David Page, manager at the Red Fox, was instrumental in preparing his restaurant's wine list.

Holiday dinner

Christmas Dinner for the family will be offered from noon to 9 p.m. Monday, Dec. 25, at Elaine's Restaurant at the Hotel Pontchartrain in downtown Detroit. Among entrees are roast turkey, sauteed pickerel, roast strip sirloin of beef, and roast half duckling. Dinner is $18.95 for adults, $10.95 for children under 12. For reservations call 965-0200, ext. 3767 or 3768.

New Year

A black-tie New Year's Eve Gala will be held Sunday, Dec. 31, at the Grand Ballroom at the Ritz-Carlton in Dearborn. Music will be by bandleader Lester Lanin, who has played at eight inaugural balls and the wedding reception of Prince Charles and Diana. Also to be held is the World's Smallest New Year's Eve Party, for children whose parents are attending the Grand Ballroom party. The gala is $400 per couple. For individual diners, the hotel's Restaurant and the Grill offers two dinner seatings with dance music. For more information or reservations call 441-2000.

Hyatt Regency

Festivities begin at 8 p.m. Dec. 31 for the Hyatt Regency Dearborn New Year's Eve Party. Guests are being invited to come early-to sample cuisine from the Hyatt's three restaurants. There will be dancing till dawn to the music of Motown artists Junior Walker and the All-stars, the Shirelles, and the Marvelettes and rock 'n' roll from Mel Ball and Colours, Teen Angels, D.C. Drive and a D.J. in the revolving Rotunda Lounge. Tickets are available only at Ticketmaster's 80 ticket centers. To charge tickets by phone call 645-6666.

Holiday parties

Christmas, New Year's Eve and other holiday parties are being held in all the restaurants, Renaissance Ballroom and several other banquet facilities and private hotel rooms and suites at the Westin Hotel at Renaissance Center in Detroit. Celebrations at the Westin begin on Christmas Day, with dinner at the Summit Restaurant from noon to 8 p.m. New Year's Eve celebrations will go on from top to bottom at the hotel. Reservations are required for all the Westin's New Year's Eve parties. For more information call the hotel's Holiday Hotline at 567-XMAS.

price dinners, at $24, $28.75 and $33. Kile intends to continue in the classical French mode of cooking for which the Moveable Feast is known. He also plans to introduce ethnic accents and contemporary American dishes. Kile apprenticed for five years under Master Chef Milos Chehka at the Golden Mushroom in Southfield. From 1984-89, Kile worked at La Becasse in Glen Arbor.

Marriott hotels

Holiday packages are being offered by several Marriott hotels. The Southfield Marriot Hotel will have two packages, one in the main ballroom at 8 p.m. Dec. 31, with music by Krosswinds. The packages including dinner, overnight accommodations and breakfast is $260 per couple. A $220 package features food and entertainment at the hotel's Garden Court Restaurant.

The Livonia Marriott Hotel, adjacent to the Laurel Park Mall, will celebrate New Year's with the sounds of Forever Yours and Dixieland music by Doug Jacobs and the Red Garter Band. The package at $275 per couple includes a four-course gourmet dinner, 10 drink tickets, overnight accommodations and a Recovery Brunch.

The Detroit Airport Marriott Hotel will offer a New Year's Eve package that begins at 8 p.m. Dec. 31 and costs $99 plus tax, per couple. There will be food and drinks at the Concierge Lounge and the Innkeeper Restaurant and a party at the Saloon. Dinner, overnight accommodations and breakfast are included.

Jacques Demers

Open throughout the holiday season, including Christmas and New Year's Day, is Jacques Demers' Restaurant and Lounge in Southfield's Embassy Suites. (The restaurant is not to be confused with Jacques restaurant in Bingham Farms, which recently closed its doors.)

Rattlesnake Club

Two seatings on New Year's Eve will welcome guests to Jimmy Schmidt's Rattlesnake Club in downtown Detroit. The first seating, at $35 per person for a three-course dinner, will be at 5:30, 6 and 7 p.m.; second seating, at $85 per person for a five-course dinner, two glasses of champagne and entertainment, is at 9:30 and 10 p.m. For reservations call 567-4400.

Executive chef

Max Weeks recently was appointed executive chef at the Ritz-Carlton in Dearborn. He formerly was executive sous chef for this 308-room hotel. Weeks supervises all food preparation for the Restaurant, the Grill and banquet operations. He is continuing the hotel's American expression of classic, international cuisine.

Family portraits

During the holiday season, free family portraits will be taken of all Classic Sunday Brunch guests at the Ritz-Carlton in Dearborn. A professional photographer will photograph the family in front of the hotel's seasonally decorated fireplace, through Sunday, Dec. 24. Brunch includes a hot entree from the menu, a visit to a cold buffet, and choice of holiday dessert. Cost is $28 per person; $12 for children under 12, and free for children under 5. For reservations call 441-2000.

Restaurant honored

The Olive Garden Restaurants (including one in Livonia) has been named "Company of the Year 1989" by Restaurant Business magazine. The cover story in a recent issue of the magazine described the article that followed as "the inside story on how General Mills grew this Italian dinner-house chain in tandem with Red Lobster without relying on francise sales to build business."

Healthy dining

Keith Famie, chef at Les Auteurs in Royal Oak, is author of the recently published "Cookit — Myway, the Pocket Guide to Healthy Dining," for frequent restaurant diners. Famie said the breast-pocket guide incorporates useful knowledge about healthful foods and preparation methods and also offers a simple yes/no approach to healthy meal selection. The guide is available for $5.95 at Border's Books and Metro News, or may be ordered by writing "Cookit — Myway," P.O. Box 12113, Dept. N-8, Birmingham 48012-2113.

Party time

The Days Hotel/Southfield Convention Center will host two New Year's Eve parties in the facility's grand ballroom and lounge. Persons attending the grand ballroom gala can check in at noon Dec. 31. The New Year's Eve party starts at 8 p.m. with a four-course prime rib dinner and drinks, followed by live entertainment, dancing, party favors, champagne toast at midnight and New Year's Day brunch. Late checkout is at 5 p.m. Price per couple is $150, which includes overnight stay, tax, gratuity and all the extras. Tickets (without a room reservation) are $75 per couple. Special two and three-night packages also are available.

Yesterday's Lounge in the hotel/convention center is hosting a New Year's Eve party from 8 p.m. to 2 a.m. The $10 cover charge ($15 at the door) includes food, party favors, a champagne toast and continental breakfast served after midnight. Live entertainment will be provided. For more information call 557-4800.

● DETROIT ZOO

Hundreds of thousands of twinkling transform the Detroit Zoo into a Winter Wonderland through Saturday, Dec. 23 (excluding Monday-Tuesday when the zoo is closed). A holiday show, choreographed exclusively for Winter Wonderland, includes three nightly performances at 6:30, 7:30 and 8:30. "Come Follow the Bears," choreographed by Moloney Productions, Inc., features Raggedy Ann and Andy and a friendly, costumed bear family. Admission is $2 for everyone 2 years old and older. Tickets are available at the Detroit Zoo Ticket Office on Wednesday-Sunday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. For more information about zoo hours, admissions and events, call the Zoo Information Line at 398-0990.

● FILM ATTRACTIONS

Michigan Theater continues the area premiere-engagement of "Split," a comic sci-fi film featuring state-of-the-art computerized special effects, and a new "Festival of Animation," showcasing the latest developments in the field of animation. "Split" plays through Saturday, Dec.15, and the "Festival of Animation" is screened Saturdays, Dec. 16, through Saturday, Dec. 23. For those more inclined to nostalgia, the theater brings old-time movie magic back to the silver screen, Saturday, Dec. 16, through Friday, Dec. 29, in a holiday showcase of three of the world's most popular films — all made in 1939 — "Wuthering Heights," "Gone with the Wind," and "The Wizard of Oz." Tickets are $4 general admission, $3.25 for students with valid identification and $2.50 for Michigan Theater members and children under 12. For further information call 668-8480 or 668-8397.

● KING ARTHUR

Several holiday concerts are being offered by musicians from Oakland University in Rochester Hills. For youngsters, T. Andrew Aston has something special planned. The Center for the Arts, in cooperation with Oakland Schools, presents Aston's version of "The Legend of King Arthur's Christmas" for the Concerts-for-Youth Series in Varner Recital Hall. The play is set to Edward Elgar's "King Arthur Suite." Showtimes are 10 and 11:30 a.m. Thursday-Friday, Dec. 14-15, and 1 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 16. Tickets are $4. For ticket information, call the CFA box office at 370-3013 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

● JAZZ BAND

Seasonal favorites will be featured during holiday performance of the OCC Jazz Band at 8 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 14, in Smith Theatre on the Orchard Ridge Campus of Oakland Community College in Farmington Hills. The band is directed by Craig Strain. Admission is $3. For more information, call 471-7700.

● IN 'CINDERELLA'

More than 30 students from Detroit and 23 other Michigan cities are appearing in Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Cinderella" at the Bonstelle Theatre in Detroit. Performances are 8 p.m. Friday-Saturday, 15-16, and 2 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 17. Area students in the cast include: Birmingham, Jon P. Liebetrau; Farmington Hills, Jennifer George; Rochester, Kate Kenny; Troy, Mary Anne Tighe; and West Bloomfield, Tracy Aller, Todd Hoffman and David Silberman. For ticket information, call the Bonstelle Theatre box office at 577-2960.

● HANUKKAH PARTY

The eight days of Hanukkah will be celebrated at a party at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 19, at the Community Center Farmington-Farmington Hills. Observing the Celebration of Lights holiday, the family party will feature an hourlong show by entertainer Maureen Schiffman. With monkey puppets Coco and Mooch, Schiffman will tell original Hanukkah stories and perform traditional Hebrew songs and dances. Additionally, she will sing several original Hanukkah songs in English. Tickets are $3 per person. For more information or to purchase tickets by phone, call 477-8404.

Sculptor lifts neon skyward

By Corinne Abatt
staff writer

In the course of its history neon has been utilized for everything from spelling out "Eats" on the side of back road restaurants in the '30s to the freeform arches in the People Mover Greektown Station designed by Stephen Antonakos.

"Keith Sonnier: Neon," an installation of four sculptures at Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum through this month, aids in re-establishing it as a fine art medium. Sonnier uses it with all of the panache of a celebrated painter. While he leaves the actual technical hands-on part of the work to experts, he is the designer who has a thorough knowledge of the scientific aspects of his medium and how to get the colors and effects he wants.

He was greatly influenced by his extensive travel and study in India and the Far East. He said the piece in the show from his "Sel" series, the earliest in the exhibit, is "made from drawings in China. It is deriative of calligraphy, it's sort of a symbol of man."

Another piece is the show he said is reminiscent of pictographs "just before the drawings begin to be less abstract."

SINCE 1965 when he was awarded a graduate fellowship at Rutgers, he has been known for working with industrial materials such as felt, vacuformed plastics and extruded alumnium. He has also done sculptures of bamboo, cheesecloth, foam rubber and combinations thereof. But, he said he wanted to do free standing work, he wanted to release it from the base completely. The neon works in this exhibition, particularly the pictogram one, float without any apparent anchor or peripheral confinement, so he succeeds in lifting his work from the ground.

That, some may remember, was the excitement of early neon signs, they seemed to hang in the atmosphere on snowy or foggy nights like colorful messages from outer space.

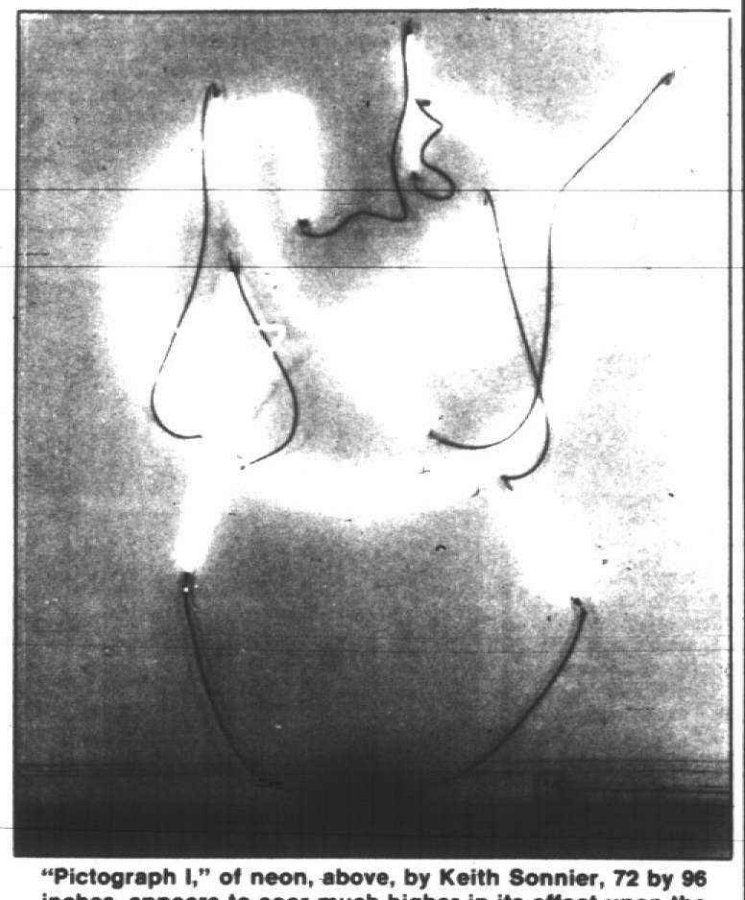
Sonnier makes sure there's no pretense of that kind in his work. He almost flaunts his debt to technology, showing the wires, plugs and transformers and actually incorporating the wires into the design as lines in a drawing.

To achieve the effects he wanted with neon, he knew he had to work with architects and he is presently doing large public works of art in Long Beach, Ca. and New Orleans, La.. A third, major work for the airport in Munich, Germany awaits final approval. This latter, he said, will be a functional piece of art, for it will help orient people to the color coding of the four zones of the airport.

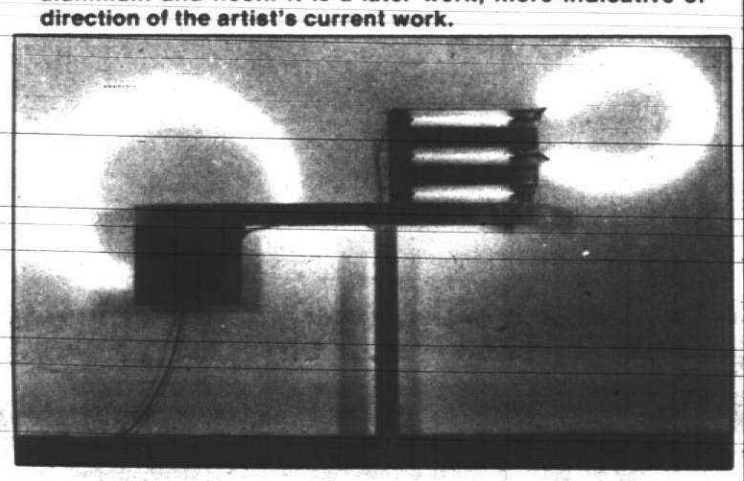
He likes to combine neon with other materials, "I'm fascinated by mirrors," he said adding that he has used mirrors in the past and plans to do so again. He sees alumnium and copper continuing to have strong potential for using in combination with neon.

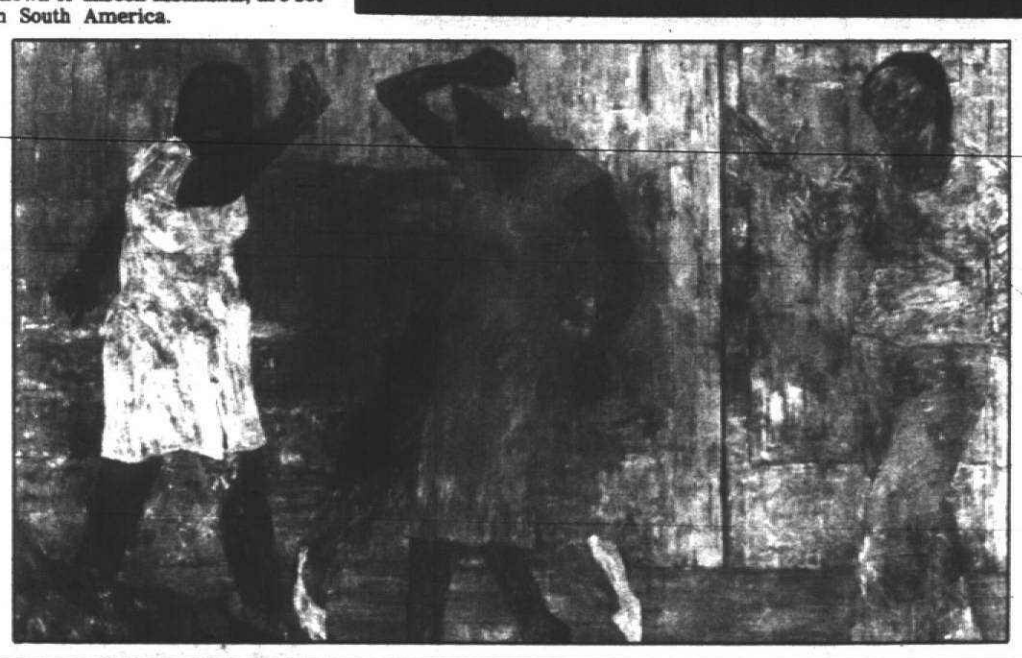
The exhibition in the hall opposite is "Leon Golub: The Aesthetics of Power," six very large social commentary, paintings on unstretched canvas. Golub built up his paint, then scraped and removed the layers, to create a sparsely colored surface as free of gloss and shine as the skin of a potato.

His dramas of simple, basic people whose lives are upset by unknown or unseen assailants, are set in South America.



"Pictograph I," of neon, above, by Keith Sonnier, 72 by 96 inches, appears to soar much higher in its effect upon the senses. "Wall Slash II," 97 by 157 by 12 inches, combines alumnium and neon. It is a later work, more indicative of direction of the artist's current work.





Leon Golub is one of a few artists presently working who uses his skills to build awareness of the need for social change. Some of his works in the Cranbrook show depict violence. The one pictured at right, "Threnody," speaks of terror.

On her toes or in the air, she's ready

By Corinne Abatt
staff writer

Wendy Shapero of West Bloomfield may soften her naturally mischevious look when she dances the role of Clara in the "Nutcracker" ballet at 7:30 p.m. Friday at Oakland Community College, Royal Oak. Certainly, in pensive moments, the 18-year old dancer with the beautiful complexion, haunting blue eyes and cascade of strawberry blond hair, looks the part and is looking forward to it.

The production is by the Contemporary Civic Ballet Company, Rose Marie Floyd, director and choreographer. Shapero, a 1989 Groves High School graduate, Oakland Community College student and dance teacher at Floyd's school, has been performing on stage since she was 3 years old and has studied with Floyd for 15 years.

Her most unusual appearance was as the double for the witch in Michigan Opera Theatre's "Hansel and Gretel" last month when she flew 40 feet above the stage, wiggling and squirming in full witch regalia — to the delight of the audience. She also was one of the two flying angels in the opera but felt more encumbered with the bulk of the wings and halo than in her outrageous witch costume.

Jeffrey Bruce who played the witch, wanted no part of flying. Shapero, on the other hand, said, "I didn't have a problem with it from the start. I could do whatever I wanted."

THE MENTION of a another flying role, "Peter Pan," brings a big smile to her face — indeed, she'd like to do that one sometime. One she has done and especially liked was Puck in "Midsummer Night's Dream" with the Contemporary Civic Ballet. The video of that won first prize in heavy competition. A guest artist from the Joffrey Ballet who was in that production advised her to go to New York and start auditioning for everything she could.

JERRY ZOLYNSKY/staff photographer

Wendy Shapero, who will dance the role of Clara in the "Nutcracker" ballet on Friday also studies voice and theater in preparation for an exciting future.

The vivacious dancer is every bit the classic ballerina, except for her eyes. There is too much animation and sparkle in those rich, blue eyes, too many flickers of a comedic smile to ever typecast her as pure ballerina. And she senses that, too.

She attended a two-week dance seminar last summer at Hofstra University on Long Island studying with many top names in dance today. She's been studying voice with soprano Edith Diggory and acting at Actor's Alliance Theater.

These preparations plus the fact that her sister, Alyson, 23, recently was transferred to the New York City college marketing department for CBS Records make New York look very inviting.

Meantime, she likes teaching tap and jazz to students from children through adults. Her parents have supported and encouraged her career. Myrna Shapero said she knows one of these days both her daughters may be living in New York City. She is a bit wistful as she talks about it, but that's mixed with a great deal of honest pride in their achievements.

The auditorium at Oakland Community College, Royal Oak, is on the campus on Main, between 10 and 11 Mile roads. For ticket information, call 546-7484 or 641-9063.

More than 30 dancers from the Detroit area, including Wendy Shapero as Clara (left), will be in the Civic Ballet Company's production of the "The Nutcracker Ballet" Friday at Oakland Community College, Royal Oak.

Local authors turn out some classy stuff

By Corinne Abatt
staff writer

If there are still question marks on your gift list, then some new books by local authors that may never make the best seller list, could erase your worries.

During the year, handsome books arrive at the newspaper office and some never get as much attention as they deserve.

What better time than now to present a few unhearalded literary works when the whole world is aglitter with millions of things to choose from and that very array dims the senses and puts the selective juices on automatic pilot?

If the word architecture creates pleasant brain waves then two locally generated, elegantly presented books may make it to your list.

"Color in Architectural Illustration" by Richard Rochon and Harold Linton, VanNostrand Reinhiold, is an engaging and detailed study of the effect color in illustrations of buildings has on the final product. Linton, an artist and color theorist, is a professor at Lawrence Technological University of Southfield and Rochon is a lecturer in architecture at the same school.

"THE ARCHITECTURE OF GUNNAR Birkerts," The American Institute of Architects Press, covers the work of this Birmingham-based architect in a very comprehensive fashion. You want to see what he's done — not just in Livonia, Southfield and Ann Arbor, but nationwide? Here it is, complete with drawings and excellent color photographs — a handsome tribute to an outstanding creative mind.

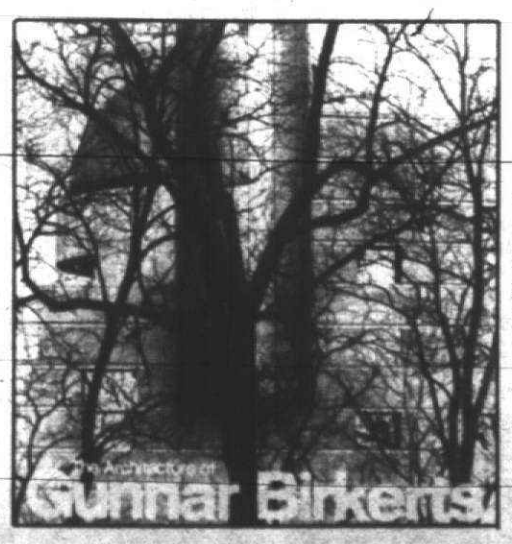
This is the second book on contemporary glass artists that Ferdinand Hampson has edited and compiled.

Louis Redstone, Livonia-based architect, is best known, as an author, for his books surveying the sculpture of the world. This new one, "Louis G. Redstone From Israeli Pioneer to American Architect," Iowa State University Press, is the story of an impressive individual who never stops giving of himself. It begins in Grodno, Russia, where he was born in 1903 and relates his escape to Palestine in 1920 and life in the United States. His physical work in Palestine, to help build a country, in turn cemented his desire to become an architect. He accomplished that after he arrived in Michigan, for the first time in 1923, to study architecture at the University of Michigan. It's an inspiring story that ought to be widely circulated among young people who often take the good life for granted.

"Fred M. Warner Progressive Governor" by Jean M. Fox, published by the Farmington Hills Historical Commission, is an extremely well-documented biography of the man who was governor of Michigan from 1905 to 1911. The author never does anything halfway, her research is thorough, the story is well told and the many photographs add visual intereat. It's a fine piece for those who are interested in regional history and politics.

GLASS AS A CONTEMPORARY art medium has flourished and grown dramatically in the past decade. Habatat Galleries of Farmington Hills is a center for support for glass artists from all over the world. "Glass: State of the Art II," edited and compiled by Ferdinant Hampson, founder/owner of Habatat Galleries with partners Tom and Linda Boone. This book, Elliot Johnston Publishers of Huntington Woods, documents in outstanding color the work of some of the finest artists working in glass today.

Sean C. Monk is most familiar in the Birmingham Bloomfield area as the expert on watches and clocks. He's active in the community as well as in professional watchmaker organizations. But there's another side to this genial person. He's a poet, a traveler and a writer. His new book, "The Road Past Wicklow — Stories of the Irish People," Fithian Press, is an attractively packaged volume of personal reminiscences. Each chapter is an entity, which can be read as a short story. Monk has as good an ear for conversation and stories as he does for the tick of a clock. Early on, he began jotting down impressions as he traveled back and forth across Ireland, starting when he was 19 in 1935. Photographs of some of the people and places and an occasional poem by the author make it especially enjoyable. Birmingham Bookstore carries it, others may also.



The book contains a biography of Birkerts by Kay Kaiser as well as outstanding examples of his work.

TED SEEMEYER., 85, a Berkley resident, has friends from one end of the metropolitan area to the other. He's been involved in some aspect of the print media for many years. He did several well-documented pieces for this Creative Living section a couple of years ago. He even did a radio show on yachting in the '40s.

What many of those longtime friends don't know about Ted is that he wrote a novel, "The Blond Eaglet," in 1943. He forgot about it himself for a long time. Then last year, he found his manuscript and decided to publish it through Vantage Press. His 60-page love story, set on Belle Isle, is available at several area bookstores.

They're gone now — waiting to be assigned to a happy home — but for awhile the lobby of the American Community Mutual Insurance Co. in Livonia looked like this. Thanks to the efforts of many of the employes, 250 dolls were dressed. Among the volunteers were Sue Tresdale, Cathy Woolsey, Doris Russell, Tammy McCoy and Tricia Spurgeon.

'Ad-dressing' team spirit

By Ingrid Tomey
special writer

YOU EXPECT a respectable insurance company to be housed in a large, white building, sure, but not this. There's a Disneyland feel when you approach this big, white insurance building, the Livonia home of American Community Mutual Insurance Co.

First of all, there's that elbow — that huge, red elbow that juts out over the entrance like the arm of a red-gloved chanteuse. And the building doesn't sit right. It sprawls across the corner at an angle so you wonder — is it on Seven Mile or it on Haggerty Road?

There's no east and west here. No north and south — just that big elbow poking out at I-275's Golden Corridor. And there is that long-dark-ribbed tunnel you must go through to get inside. Could this be the entrance to the Space Mountain?

BUT ONCE INSIDE, the visitor is reassured. The decor is pleasingly conservative and full of soothing greenery. And right away the people you encounter are real dolls.

Literally. There are 250 of them, all smiling right at you. The rows of dolls in the lobby, dressed in ballgowns and pinafores and nightgowns and sweat shirts, tell you a lot about American Community.

"We are a company of contrasts," said Carol Murray, director of human resources. "Maybe dressing up a bunch of dolls doesn't seem like something a large insurance company would do, but we try to keep a family feeling here."

How does a company, the 6th largest insurer in the U. S. with 650 employees and 10,000 independent agents, keep that family feeling?

According to Murray, they do things like make doll clothes for 250 dolls going to foster children and mentally handicapped children this Christmas. And they support the Ronald McDonald House with donations and supplies. And they send food to the Salvation Army and money to Children's Hospital and the Lions Club and the Cancer Foundation and the Detroit Rescue Mission and lots of other needy groups. But that's not it, Murray explains. After all, anyone can pass the hat.

As Murray walks through the halls, occasionally stopping to chat with an employee, once to admire one of the Christmas dolls propped on someone's desk, it is evident that there is a team feeling at work here. At intervals, taped to the walls is this poster: "Together Everyone Achieves More." The words are stacked so, read vertically, they spell TEAM. And beside the phone on the desk of another employee is a mirror with these words: "My smile is the difference — Let it be heard."

IF YOU haven't yet finished that holiday shopping, take heart. The following books may be just what you're looking for:

● Jane Smiley's "Ordinary Love & Good Will" (Knopf, $16.95). This is not a novel, but two memorable novellas by the author of the critically acclaimed "The Age of Grief."

In "Ordinary Love," a middle-aged, divorced mother tells her grown children of the "ancient agitations" of her divorce from their father and, as a result, learns something about their abiding pain.

In "Good Will," a young farmer and woodworker happily isolates himself and his family on a small, self-sufficient farm in Pennsylvania, only to recognize the futility of imposing one's dreams on others. If you're looking for a strong and moving story of contemporary familial relationships, look no further.

● African Rainbow: Across Africa by Boat" (William Morrow, $40) by Lorenzo and Mirella Ricciardi. From Tanzania, across the Dark Continent to the Atlantic Ocean, the Ricciardis trekked 3,700 miles, making the first known crossing of Africa via waterways between the Indian and Atlantic oceans. Lucky for all of us armchair travelers, they recorded their amazing adventure through fine writing — and photography that is absolutely first-rate.

● "Heartlands: An American Odyssey" (Simon & Schuster, $29.95) by Jane Sobel and Arthur Klonsky will delight the heart of anyone who grew up in a small town (plus all of those who wish they had.) Sobel and Klonsky traveled 57,000 miles across the back roads of this country to capture the spirit of small-town America. Here, via interviews with people in places like Panagea, Fla.; Granbury, Tex.; and Mackinaw City, Mich, is what they found. Splendid photography completes the picture.

● "Hollyhocks and Radishes" (Pickle Point Publishing, $19.95), compiled by Bonnie Stewart Mickelson. This utterly charming, unpretentious little cookbook is comprised of plenty of recipes, plus letters to Michelson from "Grandma" Judy Chard, who runs a fruit and vegetable stand in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan. In addition to recipes for such dishes as rhubarb bundt cake, fried green tomatoes with cheese, and corn apple hotcakes, "Hollyhocks and Radishes" contains observations from "Grandma" on a melange of Midwestern foods.

● John Updike's "Just Looking: Essays on Art (Knof, $35). In 23 richly-illustrated essays, this prize-winning author (and sometimes artist) discusses, in his own inimitable style, such diverse works as John Singer Sargent's portraits, Modigliani's "Reclining Nude," and Johannes Vermerr's "View of Delft." Candid and engaging, Updike's observations are consistently accessible to non-artists.

● Roddy McDowell's 10-by-14-inch volume, "Double Exposure, Take Two," (William Morrow, $60). This is a collection of 125 black-and-white and 19 color portraits of famous entertainers, taken by McDowell. Among those captured on film by the actor-photographer are a youthful Elizabeth Taylor, a melancholy Vivien Leigh, and a quintessentially-British Alec Guiness.

Accompanying each photo is a commentary written by a celebrity-friend of those pictured. Isaac Stern writes of Agnes DeMille, Dirk Bogarde of Ava Gardner ("Her presence is a reminder that beauty still walks the land"), Walter Matthau of Charlie Chaplin, James Stewart of Marlene Dietrich. This big, beautiful book can be great fun for anyone who has ever gone to the movies. If he ever runs out of roles to play, McDowell (who published a first photo collection, "Double Exposure," in 1966), definitely has something to fall back on.

● "Crazy English" (Pocket Books, $16.95) by Richard Lederer. On these pages, readers can peruse such chapters as "A Hymn to Heteronyms," "Tease Times with Verbs," and "The Strange Case of the English Language" Lederer also deals with tantalizing questions why we drive on parkways and why we park on driveways.

● Tracy Kidder's "Among Schoolchildren" (Houghton Mifflin, $19.95). Named one of the most notable books of 1989 by the New York Times Book Review, this is an exciting, thought-provoking account of a year the author spent "among schoolchildren" in a fifth-grade Massachusetts classroom. Kidder, whose previous works include "House" and "The Soul of the New Machine," possesses an astonishing gift for conveying the inherent drama of everyday occurrences.

If you're looking for something a little different:

● "Born to be Bad" (Pantheon, $8.95), a rare collection of bound postcards, depicting advertising posters from some of the most "notorious" B-movies of the '40s and '50s. Selected by Michael Barson, the tear-out cards will bring memories of such old favorites as "High School Hellcats," "Larceny" and "Cry Baby Killer" for long-time movie buffs.

● A similar collection, "Rip It Up!" (8.95) also published by Pantheon and compiled by Barson, contains 31 postcards picturing memorabilia (concert programs, movie posters, record jackets) from the early days of Rock and Roll.

● "Happy Origami" (Kodansha International, $17.95) by Toshie Takahama includes a lively introduction to the art of origami, plus paper and instructions on how to create flowers, stars, and other projects for holiday celebrations.

● "United State Power Squadrons' Boating Court for Power and Sail" (William Morrow, $39.95) is a combination book-and-video set designed as an introductory course for beginners, and a refresher course for more experienced sailors.

Holiday project promotes family feeling

ALL THIS GOODWILL, Murray points out, is not by accident. It is something generated, not only by management, but by an in-company organization called the Employees Committee, made up of six elected employees, president William Huppenbauer, chief financial officer Jerry Meaich, vice president of administrative services Connie Gullen and Murray.

Fifty-one years ago, the Employees Committee helped coordinate the company picnic. Today, Murray stresses, it helps coordinate the company policy.

"For instance, " she said, "this is a No Smoking building. I would like to say that management determined that policy because we're an insurance company selling life and health insurance but, in fact, the policy was determined by the employees. We just had so many notes in the suggestion box complaining about working in a smoke-filled environment. We discussed the problem with the Employees Committee and we made the change.

"The suggestion to dress the dolls," she continued "also came from the suggestion box."

She goes on to explain about the almost monthly raffles, the dances, the recent "Gong Show" for company employees — all activities generated by the Employees Committee and all fund-raisers benefiting numerous charities and causes.

"Fifty-one years ago, this was a very small company," Murray said. "This was a family business and when American Community moved here from Plymouth eight years ago, it still had only 150 employees — some had been with the company many years.

"Back then, the employees always felt taken care of. In 1938, we were coming out of the Depression but times were still tough. The company paid their employees every week so they wouldn't have to stretch to buy groceries. And they still do that today. How many big companies pay by the week?"

Commenting on the doll project and the other fund-raisers, Huppenbauer said: "We don't have a large community orientation. So we do some small thing like this."

Small indeed. Among the 12-inch dolls lined up in the lobby is LaToya Jackson, Michael's glamorous sister. She is wearing a red-sequined coronet, a black ball gown and feather boa.

And then there is Stephanie Vanderkillen, dressed like one of the idle rich, poised for an afternoon of mailing. And a scrumptious, unnamed blond in a chiffon nightie. It's hard to believe these dolls were dressed by actuaries and underwriters.

But then, first impressions aside, this is a homey company.

We Can't Afford To Lose Our Wetlands.

For years, swamps, marshes and other wetlands were considered wasted space, better suited for conversion to farmland or building sites.

But we need our wetlands.

Wetlands nurture animal and bird life, blunt the destructive forces of floods and storms and help cleanse polluted waters.

Nearly 40 percent of our country's original wetlands have vanished - gone forever.

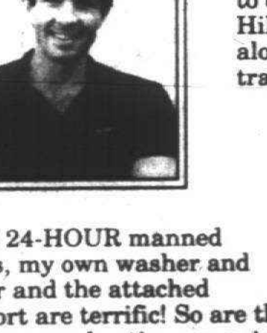
MUIRWOOD . . . first choice.
And for so many reasons!


"THE LOCATION, Grand River and Drake is perfect. I had to be close to the expressways and convenient to downtown Farmington Hills. Plus, I love jogging along the private nature trails!"

"THE 24-HOUR manned gates, my own washer and dryer and the attached carport are terrific! So are the windows and eating space in the kitchen."

"ALL ON ONE FLOOR with really big rooms and lots of storage, like the home we just sold. It even has it's own private entry!"
And then there is the clubhouse and all those scheduled activities, the resort-like pool and spa and the most beautiful grounds believable. Muirwood...First Choice! Call today and let us tell you why it should be yours too!

The Crossings At Canton.
Apartment living just got better.
We're making The Crossings a better place to live and a better value. You'll feel it in the new hallways and newly refurbished clubhouse. You'll see it in the plush landscaping when you enter the grounds. And that's just the beginning. It's the new look and feel of The Crossings at Canton—and it's for you.
The Crossings at Canton offers 19 different floorplans with 1 to 4 bedrooms. And whether you choose a 2-level townhome or a luxury apartment, the renewed beauty of this charming rental community shines through in every one—the result of our recent "Capital Improvements & Upgrading" program. These apartments and townhomes are the largest in the area, yet are still incredibly affordable.
Discover these features at The Crossings at Canton:
• Dens & Fireplaces
• Fully-applianced Kitchens
• Patios or Balconies
• Central Air Conditioning
• A Clubhouse with sauna, indoor pool, exercise room, a new party room, and more!
Visit The Crossings at Canton today. We're just 20 minutes from Ann Arbor and downtown Detroit, yet comfortably away from it all. From I-275, just exit Arbor Rd. West to Haggerty Rd., follow south to Joy Rd., then east to The Crossings. Open Mon.-Fri. 10-6, Sat. 10-5, Sun. 12-5 Phone 455-2424 today.

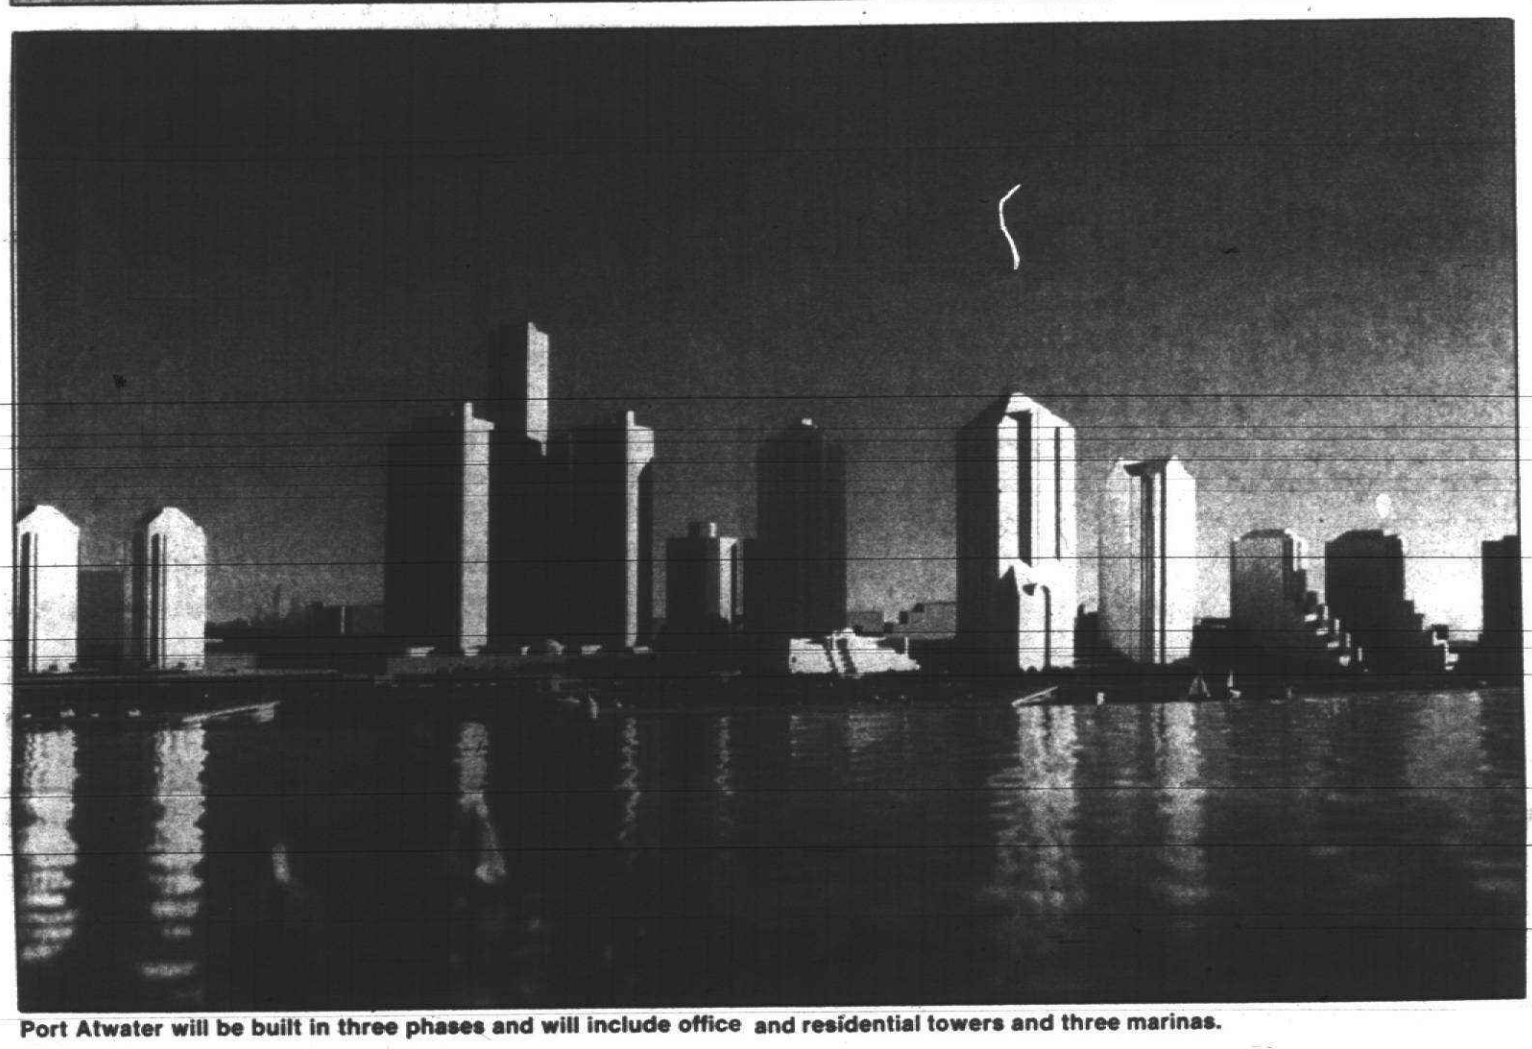
Outline shows the site of the proposed Port Atwater development next to the Renaissance Center.



Port Atwater will be built in three phases and will include office and residential towers and three marinas.

Development returns river to the public

By Dale Northup
special writer

With the planning vision of Amerivest Properties of Farmington Hills, Detroit is in the process of recapturing more of its riverfront.

The project is Port Atwater, which extends 3,500 feet along the Detroit River and includes hotel, office, retail and recreational facilities adjacent to Renaissance Center.

It will consist of 6.8 million square feet, including parking facilities, on 30 acres of riverfront property in Detroit's central business district from Hart Plaza, east to Rivard Street, bounded on the south by the river and on the north by Franklin Street.

Whereas Renaissance Center has been accused of setting itself apart from the city behind massive berms that contain its mechanical systems, Port Atwater allows for the greatest exposure on the Detroit River of any project in the city's history.

Whereas Renaissance Center has been accused of setting itself apart from the city behind massive berms that contain its mechanical systems, Port Atwater allows for the greatest exposure on the Detroit River of any project in the city's history.

THE MASTER planning is being done by Minoru Yamasaki Associates of Troy. According to Paul Bertin, senior associate in charge of planning, Atwater Street had to be realigned to facilitate returning the river's edge to the public. This involved adding 50 feet of fill in the river at the west/southwest section of the project and extending the waterfront approximately 600 feet. A landscaped pedestrian plaza with adjoining marinas will complement the site.

Five years of planning and negotiating between Amerivest, the city's planning commission and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources set the stage for the start of the project. (See related story.)

Phase One, bounded by the river, Beaubien and St. Antoine streets involves a 600,000-square-foot tower for mixed use. Adjacent to the tower will be a suite-concept hotel consisting of three individual floor plans. Contained within the tower are to be retail, restaurants and support facilities. The tower is being designed by Minoru Yamasaki Associates.

Phase Two to the east involves two office towers, one 40 stories with 900,000 square feet and one 35 stories with 750,000 square feet, as well as two, 28-story residential towers to the west of Renaissance Center, each containing 300 units. The construction timetable is slated from 1992 to 2000.

Phase Three, terminating at Rivard Street, will include two 20-story residential towers with 136 units each. The initial design calls for a series of stepped setbacks perhaps allowing for individual apartment terraces lending a view of the river. The construction timetable is from 2000 to 2002, but could be completed concurrently with Phase Two subject to market conditions and absorption rates.

THREE MARINAS will allow residents and visitors access to the riverfront. Port Atwater will be the single most public-oriented design attempted since the Civic Center development.

Public works funds needed

By Gerald Frawley
staff writer

Developers of the proposed Port Atwater are awaiting word on whether state or federal funds will be made available for road, water line and sewer improvements before the project can proceed. They expect to hear on the availability of funds in early 1990. The largest private project in downtown Detroit's history is being developed by a partnership between Melody Corp. president Michael George and Amerivest Properties president Brian Palmer. Both companies are based in Farmington Hills.

George and Palmer also were expected to apply for Michigan transportation economic development funds, according to Bill Swanson of the department's planning division.

George said he got into the venture when Palmer, who was working on a project for Melody Corp. at the time, asked him if he would be interested in becoming an investor in a major downtown development endeavor.

"It seemed like a good opportunity at the time, since the Canadian-American Free Trade Pact was moving towards reality and there seems to be a trend towards re-centralization," George said.

THE DEVELOPMENT'S tenants, he said, will be out-of-state firms trying to cash in on the Canadian-American Free Trade agreement since Michigan is ideally located to capitalize on the pact.

George said he expects some firms will also relocate from the suburbs and other areas of Michigan. "We'll probably even get some people from within the city."

But Swanson of the transportation department, said in order for the project to work people will need to get to it — which is where the Michigan Department of Transportation (MDOT) comes in. According to the economic impact statement developed by the Detroit-based accounting firm BDO Seidman, the development will generate nearly 12,000 jobs when complete — nearly 4,000 in phase one alone.

Swanson said a project as large as Port Atwater is bound to have an effect on traffic patterns as far away as the I-75 and I-94 interchanges. "We're glad we're getting involved in the planning early in the game.

"We know what is happening with other cities, and it will happen here," he said, referring to development along urban riverfronts. "Development exploits the riverfront."

Before construction can even begin, roads, sewers and water lines will have to be relocated and improved at an estimated cost of $55 million, Swanson said. The city of Detroit has already committed $10 million dollars. But it will take more than $55 million to make sure transportation needs are adequately met, he said.

CURRENT ESTIMATES indicate the project will generate 31,640 trips per day by the time it is complete, Swanson said. "That's a lot of traffic to dump onto the road system."

By using computer models, Swanson said MDOT can predict project traffic patterns. "Logically, those folks are going to go in and out of there and they'll take the Chrysler — and that's already overpacked."

Port Atwater seeks public works funds

Swanson said a project as large as Port Atwater is bound to have an effect on traffic patterns as far away as the I-75 and I-94 interchanges. "We're glad we're getting involved in the planning early in the game.

"We know what is happening with other cities, and it will happen here," he said, referring to development along urban riverfronts. "Development exploits the riverfront."

Before construction can even begin, roads, sewers and water lines will have to be relocated and improved at an estimated cost of $55 million, Swanson said. The city of Detroit has already committed $10 million dollars. But it will take more than $55 million to make sure transportation needs are adequately met, he said.

CURRENT ESTIMATES indicate the project will generate 31,640 trips per day by the time it is complete, Swanson said. "That's a lot of traffic to dump onto the road system."

By using computer models, Swanson said MDOT can predict project traffic patterns. "Logically, those folks are going to go in and out of there and they'll take the Chrysler — and that's already overpacked."

Swanson said one alternative that's been proposed is a new access ramp from the Chrysler to the development.

Improvement may also be needed at the I-94/Chrysler interchange, but MDOT doesn't have any solutions for alleviating traffic congestion on the two freeways, Swanson said.

Bill Lontz, of the Michigan Department of Commerce manufacturing and development division, said the department became involved because of the project's size and potential impact.

The commerce department doesn't get involved with any project, Lontz said. "This is billion dollar project with a 10-year construction life."

So far, the commerce department has acted as an adviser for the project, directing Amerivest Properties in its dealings with MDOT and the department of natural resource (DNR), Lontz said.

The DNR became involved because it was necessary to add nearly 50 feet of land into the river, Lontz said.

As the project moves forward, Lontz said the department will become more involved in helping the project get financing.

"We haven't done much on the project yet, other than guide them and help them avoid the trouble spots," he said, adding the commerce department is taking the same role it took in the Mazda manufacturing plant in Flat Rock.

Developer George said he and Palmer chose the riverfront because it is a viable area, and new development succeeds best when it's near other successful developments. "For development to work (in the city), the area has to grow contiguously — that's why we start at the riverfront.

"It's not going to happen overnight — it will take a long time (for Detroit to redevelop), but people won't come back unless there's some first class developments for them to come back to," George said.

"We feel we will have a sophisticated enough project that people will want to come down," George said.

George said financing the project will not be difficult as long as he and Palmer can get the state and federal aid for infrastructure improvements.

Once the federal and state funds come through, George said he and Palmer will be able to beginning getting commitments for tenants in the development. "Financing is not an issue as long as you have the tenants."

Brian Palmer, president of Amerivest, together with Michael George, co-owner, president and chief executive officer of Melody Farms, formed the company in 1985. Palmer calls Port Atwater "an outstanding use of downtown riverfront that all Detroiters and visitors will find exciting and stimulating."

According to an economic impact analysis prepared by the public accounting and consulting firm of BDO Seidman, Port Atwater will create nearly 2,000 jobs generating more than $487 million in annual payroll at its completion and hundreds of construction-related jobs over the next 12 years.

The Seidman study also projects up to $568 million in annual sales revenue that will be generated by the development and $60 million in annual tax revenues that will be generated for the city and state.

The economic impact analysis demonstrates the "multiplier effect" on the city, area and state economies of $426 million as a result of increased visitor traffic, office tenants, hotel guests and more recreational dollars being spent downtown.

Robertson Brothers Community Developers has broken ground on a $1.2 million Palladian-style clubhouse within the $180 million Heathers, a 439-unit condominium project in Bloomfield Hills. The 8,300-square foot clubhouse will feature a 1,400-square-foot pool, three tennis courts, locker rooms and grille style room and bar to serve 80.

Narrow lot? Try this plan for size

If a narrow lot is holding you back from building, here's a plan for a split-level house.

The living room is separated from the dining room by a cased opening. Kitchen access also can be gained from the living room and near the stair leading to the upper level. The kitchen is U-shaped, providing ample work space. The plan calls for built-in appliances. Sliding glass doors open the dining room to a rear terrace.

The upper level is shown with three bedrooms and either a compartment bath (two toilets, two sinks and one tub) or two full compartment baths, both with a tub. A laundry chute sends clothes to the lower level that encompasses the double garage and laundry area.

The country exterior style is enhanced by shuttered windows, vertical siding and wood rail porch with columns.

The plan is No. 190 SL A. It has 1,197 square feet of heated area and includes construction details for energy efficiency. The W.D. Farmer plans are drawn to met FHA and VA requirements.

For more information, write to W.D. Farmer, P.O. Box 450025, Atlanta, Ga. 30345.

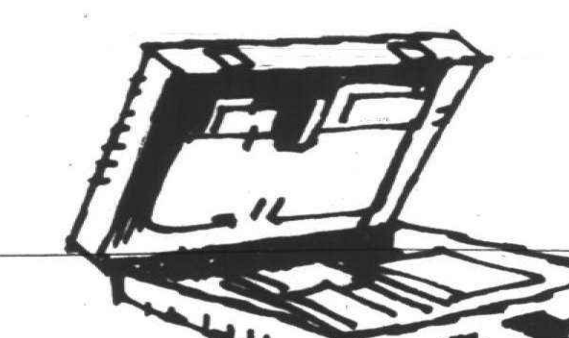
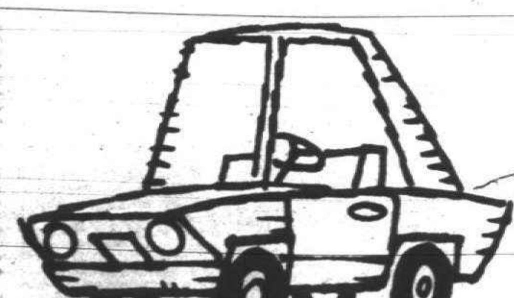
WRITE IT AND REAP!

1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!

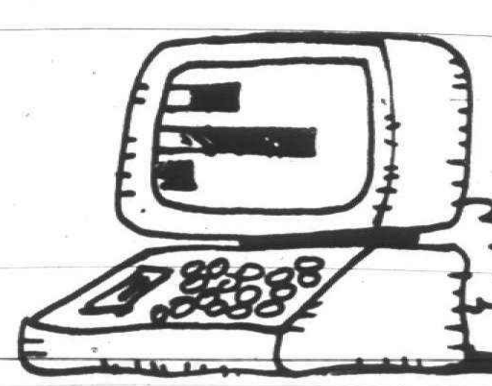


2. Include the price. Don't waste your time or a potential buyer's time. If you advertise the price of the item or service you offer, the people who respond to your ad will be those who are genuinely interested. Surveys show that readers are more interested in those items and services they know are within their price range.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or WSW (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.



4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a sale!



5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.
