Charlie fought leukemia with hope, optimism

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Little Charlie Everhardt pulled on the heartstrings of family members and friends with his endearing personality and his struggle against the leukemia that began chipping away at his strength in 1988.

His body finally gave up on Friday, Jan. 26. He was 7.

Charlie and his mother, Diana, were at the A. Alfred Taubman Health Care Center at the University of Michigan Hospital for one of Charlie's many routine check-ups when he died.

"He was really tired," Diana Everhardt said. "I said, 'Charlie, do you want to watch cartoons?' and he said, 'I want to.' And I turned on 'Duck Tails' and his eyes rolled back and he died."

CHARLIE, a Canton resident, didn't have to be placed on a respirator. In fact, about 20 minutes before he died, Charlie asked his mother not to treat him as though he were sick, she said.

"Charlie never would have wanted that. I think he did it his way."

Charlie recently suffered two attacks of shingles, an acute virus.

"The infection went through his body so quickly that he couldn't fight it," his mother said.

"The night before he died he looked at me and said, 'Mom you're the best' and I said, 'No you're the best' and he said, 'No you're the best.'

"We were coming down the stairs and I said, 'We've done everything together haven't we?' and he said, 'We're the best buddies.' "

'The infection went through his body so quickly that he couldn't fight it.'
— Diana Everhardt

CHARLIE WAS making plans for the future until a few hours before he died.

"He was making plans of being a doctor so no kids would have to be sick," said Diana Everhardt, who described Charlie as her hero.

"He was optimistic, brave and hopeful. He loved life."

Charlie's mother and his father, Greg, remained optimistic about the fate of their only child after he received a bone marrow transplant last October at the University of Minneapolis Hospital. Diana stayed at the Ronald McDonald House near the hospital to be near him while Greg waited and worried at home.

The Rolling Stones happened to be in Minneapolis at the time of the operation, and his mother played a tape of the rock band for Charlie.

"He danced and he did beautifully. The day after Christmas, he had a relapse. I never thought he would go. I even told the doctors my son won't die. He was just so strong. I thought if anyone ever pulled it off it would be him."

After the bone marrow transplant, doctors said Charlie had a 75 percent chance of having a relapse.

DIANA AND GREG said they wanted to thank the community for the support it has shown during Charlie's illness.

"We couldn't have made it without it," Diana Everhardt said.

The Make-a-Wish Foundation picked up the tab for a limousine ride when Charlie landed at Metropolitan Airport from Minneapolis after the bone transplant. The organization also paid for a trip the Everhardts took to Disney World before Charlie went to the hospital.

Riding a Canton fire truck, touring the police station and riding in Lamborghinis and Ferraris were other wishes that came true for Charlie.

"They've (community members) been just wonderful to us," Diana Everhardt said. "Most of our neighborhood even showed up at the funeral home.

"I would like people to take a look at their lives and their children and really appreciate what they have."

A memorial fund in honor of Charlie Everhardt has been set up at Ann Arbor's C.S. Mott Children's Hospital.

Grants available for township to buy airport

By Diane Gale
staff writer

If Canton buys Mettetal Airport the federal government is expected to pay 90 percent, and the state and township would each pay 5 percent, according to Robert Addy, Michigan Department of Transportation bureau of aeronautics.

The federal and state grants would come from aircraft gas taxes and commercial passenger taxes.

Since aviation officials have declared a dire need for community airports, like Mettetal, the grants are almost assured, Addy said.

Pilots in the area are worried the land will be sold for commercial or industrial development.

IF CANTON isn't interested in buying the 64.4 acres, which has 110 hangers on Lilley and Joy roads, the county and other communities will be solicited, Addy said.

The federal and state grants are only available to public entities.

Another option is to form an airport authority, made up of representatives from area communities that benefit from business filtering out of Mettetal.

The authority would jointly own the airport and would take on responsibility of the 5 percent local purchase costs, said Addy.

State and other documents erroneously list the airport as Plymouth's Mettetal Airport even though the land is in Canton.

A MEETING last week was held among a Preservation of Mettetal Airport group, state MDOT officials and aircraft association representatives with township administrators to discuss Canton buying the airport.

Susan and Ashley Heimbaugh are the owners and operators of Mettetal's general operations. The airport is owned by Desert Sand Inn, which is owned by the Klocko family.

The cost of the land is unknown, Heimbaugh said. However, some estimates have been in excess of $3 million.

Canton Supervisor Tom Yack said after the meeting that he is undecided about buying the airport. He said he his considering the following points:

- The economic impact the airport has on area business. An estimated $70 to $116 daily is spent in the area on rental cars, hotels, restaurants and other services by each person flying into the airport, according to Peter Burgher, regional

Teen suicides increase; teachers react

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

At a recent seminar for Plymouth-Canton faculty at Lowell Middle School, a teacher said she found it alarming that when she asked her class how many had contemplated suicide, every one of her students raised their hand.

Bill Steele, seminar presenter and community services director of Community Mental Health Services, wasn't surprised.

"Communities across the country are having to deal with teenage suicide — a tragedy because suicide is a preventable death," said Steele, who has addressed Plymouth-Canton staffers three times in the last four years.

"This has been identified as an epidemic among young people. This is now in their problem-solving bag of tricks. This is one way out; one way to solve a problem."

SUICIDE IS the third leading cause of death in this country. This year, more than 6,500 adolescents will kill themselves. Every 24 hours, more than 1,000 young people attempt suicide.

Wayne County is reflective of counties throughout the country, said Steele, who develops scholastic mental health programs for CMHS — a public, non-profit agency offering outpatient services and counseling.

"We've seen an increase. The suicide death rate among younger children in middle and elementary school is increasing. That's one of the concerns among middle school people."

Suicide is a tragedy that knows no socio-economic bounds, according to Steele.

"Only about 20 percent of the total number of kids who kill themselves are minorities. The largest percentage are white males, then white females, then minority males, then minority females.

"There is an increase in terms of the minority population, but it still

Stress overwhelms teens

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Kids today must cope with a lot of stress — one of the reasons teenage suicide is a concern among educators, says Lowell Middle School Principal Pat Patton.

"We see on a day-to-day basis that our students live under a great deal of stress. They're very aware of changing economic conditions, of the need to have schooling and find jobs; they're concerned about what's going to happen to the world," said Patton.

"When you see the statistics on how many families are non-traditional, it is pretty startling.

"We see students whose families move frequenlty for economic reasons. We see kids who've attended four or five schools throughout their elementary career. You do that too many times, and you stop making friendships because you don't want to lose them.

"It also may very seriously affect schoolwork you do because you don't know when you're going to leave, and you don't have the same commitment to it. Plus there are curriculum changes, so the continuity is not there, and that is real stressful. It's like starting a new job for an adult over and over again."

BILL STEELE, director of community services for Community Mental Health Services in Detroit, sees still other sources of stress.

"What I see is that number one, these youngsters live in a quick-fix society. They want something, and believe they should have it right away. If they have a problem, it

Judgeship bill faces competition

By C.L. Rugenstein
staff writer

A third judgeship for the 35th District Court in Plymouth moved a step closer to reality last week in Lansing.

However, the bill to fund the judgeship will have to compete for attention in Lansing during an election year where the stakes are high.

The Michigan Court Administrator's office recommended adding a third judgeship to the Plymouth court. The judgeship is one of 16 recommended for the state, said Tom Farrell, a spokesman for the state Supreme Court.

The court administrator's office recommended judgeships for 12 district courts, including Bloomfield Hills, Farmington Hills, Ann Arbor and Romulus, as well as Plymouth. They also recommended adding three outstate circuit court judges and one for probate court.

The creation of the judgeships needs the approval of the state legislature and it couldn't have come at a worse time, said State Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth.

"This is going to be a highly charged election year," he said, with lawmakers not wanting to go on record on controversial bills.

There will be races for governor, a U.S. Senate seat, the entire state Legislature and all 18 U.S. House seats.

should be solved in 30 or 60 minutes. We haven't taught this generation to problem solve, to deal with conditions and situations."

Adults try to protect their children from frustration and pain, which exacerbates the problem, added Steele.

"We've tried to give our kids more than we have to protect them from painful events. That's harmed them."

Kids also grapple with the fear of failure, he said.

"A student who has friends and seems to be doing quite well socially may fear they can't keep up the pace, or achieve the goals set for them by their families, themselves, or society. It's so overwhelming for these kids that suicide basically is a way of saying, why bother?

"They feel powerless. They feel this is the way it's going to be the rest of their lives. People want so much from them today."

PEER PRESSURE AND SUBSTANCE abuse are other things middle school counselors hear a lot about. For high school students, there's the added stress of sexual pressure, said Patton.

"There's a lot of pressure to look good, dress well, be slim and attractive to the opposite sex. Even for adults the pressure is more intense than it used to be," she said. "At least we know who we are. They're just developing who they are."

The pressures of dealing with substance abuse are very real, added Patton. "Some of the recent high school statistics say we're seeing some reduction in use, which is a good sign But for all children everywhere, I don't think there is anywhere you can go to hide from substance abuse.

"In the past, children were allowed to be children longer. They were more protected from these things. Now they deal with them firsthand, before they may really have the experience and the maturity to make good decisions."

Patton urges parents who feel overwhelmed to seek help at school.

"We're here to help them and respond to them when they need us," she said.

Sharon Klein is a counselor at Lowell.

It surprised her to learn at a seminar given by Steele that kids don't realize suicide is final.

"Ask them exactly how they think things are going to be better after they do this, and it's enlightening to see they think life is going to continue on after they do this," said Klein.

"That was unbelievable to me. Unless someone had done research, we wouldn't have known this. You can't believe this is the way kids think, because we're adults and we forget."

Klein suggests that parents who think their youngsters may be suicidal talk about it.

"Teach them what finality is. Let them know someone cares," she said.

Kids who are for the most part content don't mention the word suicide. So when Klein hears the word, "to me it's a red light that says, 'Get this kid counseling immediately. I don't take it lightly."

HELPING KIDS stay emotionally healthy and out of trouble really isn't that hard, adds Klein.

"Listen to your kids. Sit down and spend time. Reward them for any good thing they do. Praise them and have fun with them. Take time and the outcome will be good communication and a peaceful adolescence."

The rewards are endless for parents who take time, said Klein.

"Kids will trust them, talk to them and feel like they're understood by their parents, even if the parents don't give them the solutions, money, and everything they want," she said.

Another plus is "enhanced self-esteem; so that kids don't have to go out and look for drugs, because drugs are just like a surrogate parent. Drugs numb them from their misery. If their parents are nice to them, they won't feel miserable to begin with.

"They'll feel loved, and they won't have the need to escape.

"It doesn't take much, but parents are so busy these days," Klein said.

"Everybody's working.

"We forget it's essential to spend time, which is called having fun. That of course would alleviate parents' stress because if the kid is having fun, the parent is having fun, and the parent won't be as stressed out either."

Peggy Butler, also a counselor at Lowell, was instrumental in lining up the recent suicide seminar at Lowell.

She says that while suicide statistics are staggering, there are positives. More young people are seeking help, unbothered by any stigma that at one time may have attached to admitting a need.

"I think the kids are getting more sophisticated in getting help," Butler said. "We're concentrating on the prevention aspect, making kids aware and getting them help, and also helping their parents get help."

Teachers learn the danger signs of suicidal teens

does not compare to the number of kids in white America, or middle class America who are killing themselves."

STATISTICS ON suicides among Plymouth-Canton students aren't available, said community relations director Richard Egli.

"It has happened in the district," said Pat Patton, principal at Lowell.

"There are times parents choose that that not be made public, and because of that there is a respect for their wishes. But we know there have been suicides among our students. There are some teachers who've had students who talked about it.

"Fortunately, we have not had that experience here (at Lowell). But we have a lot of regard for statistics that say the risk is always there. The staff all felt they definitely want to know more about it."

STEELE INFORMED teachers, counselors, social workers, psychologists and nurses about the danger signals.

"If we do a psychological autopsy with the families, we can find certain characteristics that correlate with suicide at any age," Steele said.

"There's depression over a period of time. This person has suffered a number of losses. The person begins to experience less pleasure in people and experiences than he or she normally would.

"When faced with major decision-making, they can't make a decision. They're withdrawing more, and spending more time off to themselves. They may be sick more often, or just have low energy. They seem to be fatigued.

"What's nice with kids is that they'll come right out and say, 'I'm not going to live anymore,'" Steele said. "They haven't learned to inhibit their feelings.

"With adolescents, you have to kind of basically go on the premise that if their behavior and mood seems to be changing, something is going on.

"It may be you're seeing very normal reactions to stress. But you have to find out, because in today's society, the possibility exists they could be depressed and suicidal."

STEELE ADVISES parents and teachers who suspect a youngster is suicidal to deal with it immediately.

"You have to ask. Say, 'I see what's happening to you.' Let them know that with all that's going on in their life, it's not unusual to feel that way.

"Talk to them in the present tenses. Dead is dead — no more MTV, no more pizza,

"Ask them, 'Do you want to be dead, or do you want to change something?'"

Steele tells parents who feel uncomfortable broaching the subject with children "to say to the youngster, 'I'm concerned, and for your benefit as well as my own, we're going to go see someone and see if we can't straighten this out.'

"In Wayne County, they can always call Suicide Prevention at 224-7000. They can tell them what places might be available to them."

YOUNG PEOPLE are advised to keep telling family and friends until they find someone who will listen and understand.

"They need to hear someone say, 'It really must be tough. This is serious. Let's see what we can come up with to help you out.'

"Kids really need to know that someone really means it when they say, 'I don't want you to die,'" Steele said.

"Take immediate action to prove it. Don't delay. Don't say, 'We'll check this out a week from now.' It may be too late."

Ashley Heimbaugh and John Vergona, both Canton residents, are fighting to save Mettetal Airport.

representative of the Aircraft Owners & Pilots Association.

An estimated $3.5 million annually is generated from the airport, MDOT said.

- The probability that another unit of government — like Wayne County, Plymouth, Livonia or Westland — could take control of the airport and would decide how it is operated. "If it were to be purchased by another governmental unit then they are calling the shots on what happens to an important piece of property in the community," Yack said.
- Light industrial and commercial economic development could go in that area if Mettetal closes. Yack said he would have to consider how that would affect the economy.
- Some companies could be drawn to Canton, because of the easy access to the airport.
- What do residents west and south of the airport think? Yack asked.

There will be no Lear jets operated from the airport, which handles medium twin engine planes, mostly nine passenger types.
— Ashley Heimbaugh

THERE WILL be no Lear jets operated from the airport, which handles medium twin engine planes, mostly nine passenger types, Heimbaugh said.

Offering stability to pilots is another key factor in a public entity buying the land, Heimbaugh said. If the township agrees there would be a 20-year contract that the land would remain an airport.

John Vergona, who is spearheading a drive to keep Mettetal operating, said the land could be maintained as a first-class airport, or it could be developed into a light industrial project or "another strip mall."

Vergona, a Canton resident who keeps his plane at Mettetal, said the land is best used as an airport.

Yack said so far the township has only "brought a group of people together who are interested in saving and keeping the airport viable. We don't share the same mission these other folks do."

Yack said there is no specific timetable; however, he believes he will make a recommendation to the board in 30 days.

Group wants to preserve Mettetal Airport for the community

By Diane Gale
staff writer

When John Vergona was a boy he watched his father gaze into the sky at the soaring planes.

His father raised six children and the financial strain of taking flying lessons and buying a plane were out of reach.

SO WHEN the little boy grew up, he believed that earning his own pilot's license was like living out his idol's dream. And now he likes to take his father up for rides in his own plane.

Learning to fly is a common dream, Vergona said, and he sees the familiar wanderlust look in people who take flying lessons at the airport. Other admirers park their cars on outlying roads to watch the planes land and descend.

Vergona said he wants to perserve those fantasies by keeping Mettetal Airport open.

"I listen to people who say: "I wish I could fly," said Vergona who is spearheading the group, Preservation of Mettetal Airport.

"It's (Mettetal) part of the community's history and it has fulfilled a lot of dreams," said Vergona.

The Canton resident learned to fly in 1978 and three years ago bought a plane, which he keeps at Mettetal. Vergona works as a Ford Motor Company test driver. He downplays the danger of the job saying it supports his family and flying hobby, which Vergona describes as expensive.

ASHLEY HEIMBAUGH along with his wife, Susan, own the general operations of the airport, which include a flight school.

Ashley Heimbaugh, also a Canton resident, said he sees people of all ages, up to 75 years old, wanting to fly.

"There's no age limit," Heimbaugh said. "It's just always been a dream for them."

The Heimbaughs want to bring more community involvement to the airport.

"You don't have to fly to enjoy the atmosphere," said Susan Heimbaugh.

School children tour the airport; there is an annual pancake breakfast, pilots using the airport transport hearts for the University of Michigan Hospital (last month the airport transported 12 hearts); and fly emergency patients to the University of Michigan Burn Center in Ann Arbor.

Ashley Heimbaugh services five radio stations for aerial traffic conditions.

The airport also is available to police and fire officials who need a plane for special cases, said Heimbaugh adding that neither Canton agency has taken advantage of the offer.

Sightseers often sit in or near the parking lot to watch the airplanes take off and land. Heimbaugh said a lot of people are unaware that Mettetal has picnic tables to make the viewing more comfortable.

"Whatever party is in the majority has the option of writing the redistricting" boundaries for the next 10 years — or to the year 2000 — Law said.

State lawmakers have also been told that the budget must be cut and that there will be a 5-percent increase across the board for education funding.

"Anything in the world can happen" with the judgeship bill, Law said. "I really haven't had any feeling at all about how it will go."

The bill has to go through the judiciary committees of the House and Senate before the lawmakers vote on it.

It can change at any point in between.

"There'll be some argument over who wants what, who gets it and who doesn't," Law said.

Law's main concern about the judgeship is financial.

The state pays 90 to 100 percent of the judge's $91,080 salary. The local court unit pays for the judge's office and staff requirements.

Estimates by Law and 35th District Judge John McDonald to renovate the court building to house a third judge range between $400,000 and $500,000.

If the bill passes in Lansing there'll be an August primary. Law said he knows of at least 10 candidates for the run-off. The two primary winners will run for the judgeship in the November election.

Gas station reports robbery

An armed robbery was reported at Citgo gas station at Ford and Haggerty roads, previously a 76 station, about 4 a.m. Thursday morning.

The gas station attendant said a man entered the pay area, walked up to the clerk and implied he had a gun in his pocket, police said.

The man reportedly fled with $10. No one was reported injured.

TOOLS STOLEN: More than $5,000 worth of business tools were stolen from various locations around the township sometime between Tuesday and Wednesday, police reported.

A generator, saw and electrical equipment valued at about $3,000 were reportedly taken from a 1974 Chevrolet van parked at a construction company, police said.

More than $1,000 worth of drills and hammers were taken from a 1987 GMC van during the same time period.

Another vehicle on Ranier Street was broken into and a $1,000 generator was taken, police said.

BREAK-IN: More than $1,500 worth of goods were stolen from a mobile home in the Academy Way Park on Michigan Avenue last week, police said.

The owner reported the following goods stolen: a $275 color television, a $200 video cassette recorder, a $250 compact disc player, a $250 microwave, $150 phone answering machine, $100 speakers, $200 stereo and $200 cash.

The thief or thieves broke into an east side window, police said.

Fake letter sent to constituents

By C.L. Rugenstein
staff writer

Some people think it was a satire, but U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, wasn't laughing last week about a bogus letter that portrays him as a supporter of rule by death squads in El Salvador.

"There was no indication anywhere in the letter that it was not from our office" said Pursell's press secretary Gary Cates from his Ann Arbor office. "Political satire would have indicated who did it, or put in a disclaimer."

Pursell was on his way to Washington and unavailable for comment.

The matter was turned over to the FBI and the postal services to determine jurisdiction and what method of investigation to pursue.

"The real tragedy is the potential for damage beyond the letter's" scope, Cates said.

THE FIRST paragraph of the 2-page letter refers to mail Pursell supposedly got from constituents concerned about the killing of six priests, their housekeeper and her daughter last year by the Salvadoran military.

The phony letter said: "While I can understand these concerns, it is important that these killings be viewed in the larger context of U.S. strategic interests in this troubled region."

The letter goes on to infer that past killings spurred support for the government's Salvadoran policies, and would eventually be forgotten: "I am confident that with the help of the media and my Congressional colleagues on both side of the aisle, this incident involving the six priests will also pass from the public's attention."

Said Cates: "When the priests were killed, Rep. Pursell was one of the first to call for an investigation to determine if government soldiers were involved, and to bring them to justice."

And though Pursell voted most recently in favor of aid to the country, he would continue to "appraise each funding issue with an open mind," Cates said.

The letter, dated Jan. 20, was written on a reproduction of Purcell's official stationery. The envelopes were identical to Pursell's but lacked the congressional frank — Pursell's signature in place of a stamp.

The envelopes were mailed with 25-cent stamps instead.

Cates said they'd received 50 calls by Friday from people in the Ann Arbor area who'd received the letters. He also said the mailing didn't appear to go to other areas in Purcell's district.

Postmarks on the envelopes indicate they were mailed in the 481-zipcode area in souteastern Michigan.

School tax vote

7-10 percent turnout expected Thursday

By Todd Schneider
staff writer

A 7-10 percent turnout in Thursday's Wayne-Westland millage election is expected by Eleanor Harrington, school district elections clerk.

"I really haven't had much of an indication that it's going to be different than the previous few years," Harrington said.

Harrington said there are just over 68,000 registered voters in the district, meaning anywhere from 5,000 to 7,000 will vote on three millage-related proposals. The district includes about 300 Canton Township students.

About 7 percent of the district's registered voters cast ballots to approve a $12.9 million bond issue in January 1988. The bond issue and a millage increase were on the ballot in April 1987 when 7,100, or 10.8 percent turned out at the polls.

Proposals on Thursday's ballot call for:

- Renewal of 2.75 operating mills scheduled to expire in June.
- Approval of a 4.9-mill increase for a two-year period.
- Override the district's current Headlee rollback of slightly over a half mill.

HARRINGTON SAID she about 500 absentee ballots had been sent through Wednesday, and added that that number is typical for the week before an election.

Absentee ballots can be picked up from the district anytime before the election and are due by 4 p.m. election day, Harrington said.

Precincts in local schools will be open 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Anybody standing in line at 8 p.m. will be able to vote.

Harrington said the atypical Thursday election shouldn't skew results.

"We've had elections on Friday and other days so I don't really view that as all that unusual," she said. "I think probably the weather will have more of an affect (on turnout).

Dave Moranty, chairman of the Wayne-Westland Citizens for Education Committee which opposes all three ballot proposals, said he thought turnout might be slightly higher than previous elections.

"The response we've received has been tremendous," Moranty said. "My phone has been ringing off the hook."

"Regardless of how people vote Thursday, getting a higher turnout has been part of our goal. We want people to take an active part in their schools and know what the issues are," Moranty said.

TOM SVITKOVICH, the district's associate superintendent for communications and finance, said the district has received a "positive response" to the millage campaign.

"I think people realize our plight and they know that this (the ballot proposals) isn't a long-range solution, but something that is needed right now for quality education," Svitkovich said.

Svitkovich said the attitude towards the millage proposals from within the school community has been positive.

Crash kills Canton woman's passenger

A 21-year-old Detroit woman was killed Thursday night in a two-car accident at the intersection of Ford and John Hix roads, the first traffic fatality in Westland this year, police said.

Killed was Veronica Cooper, a front-seat passenger in a car being driven by a 19-year-old Canton Township woman.

Cooper was pronounced dead 1:30 a.m. Friday at the Westland Medical Center from a broken neck and other injuries suffered in the accident, police said.

Police said Friday they expected to charge the Canton woman with negligent homicide.

A second passenger in the woman's car, as well as the driver of the second car, suffered minor injuries in the accident, which occurred at 9:43 p.m., said Westland Police officer Jon Handzlik.

Cooper and a 21-year-old Westland woman were riding in a 1984 Oldsmobile driven westbound on Ford at 9:43 p.m. by the Canton woman. The car had been stopped in the middle of the intersection, the driver waiting to make a left turn onto southbound John Hix.

THE CAR began the turn as the light turned amber and was hit broadside by a 1987 Ford station wagon traveling eastbound on Ford, police said.

Witnesses told police the station wagon was traveling about 40 to 45 mph and appeared to be at or under the speed limit at the time of the collision. The Oldsmobile went into a 180-degree spin and came to rest on the curb, witnesses said.

"It looks like the driver wasn't paying attention to traffic as she began to make the turn," Handzlik said.

The other passenger in the Oldsmobile complained of head and neck pain and was taken to Westland Medical Center for observation, police said. The driver of the station wagon, a 39-year-old Westland man, suffered a mild bruise on his leg, police said.

Handzlik said none of the occupants in the Oldsmobile were wearing seatbelts. Alcohol didn't appear to be a factor in the accident, he said.

Water rates going up

But not every consumer will feel pinch

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Water rates are going up for area communities and for most — but not all — homeowners.

The Detroit Water and Sewerage Department last week announced plans to raise rates charged to its suburban customers. Rates for Western Wayne communities will generally increase 7.5-8.5 percent. (For individual rates, see accompanying chart.)

Not all communities plan to pass the increase along to consumers.

"We've looked at it but it doesn't appear there'll be a rate increase at this time," said Doug Pakkala, Livonia public utility manager.

Livonia is one of the Detroit system's biggest customers, buying water for industrial and home use.

While each local community has its own water department, all buy water from Detroit. Local rates, however, are set by city councils and township boards.

Many area communities haven't yet decided on 1990 water rates.

"IT'S UP to the the township board to decide, but we haven't passed an increase on to the consumer in five years," said Ron Caryl, superintendent of Redford's water department.

In Westland, city officials won't decide until the Detroit system holds a public hearing on the new charges Feb. 15.

"I plan to go, then afterward I'll get together with our mayor and we'll discuss what to do," said Westland water superintendent Douglas Tredinnick.

Garden City also hasn't yet decided.

Some communities have already announced increases.

Plymouth Township rates will rise July 1, but not necessarily because of the Detroit increase.

"Because we're going in with Ypsilanti on sewer treatment we sold bonds through the Western Townships Utility Association," said township spokesman Tom Hollis.

The $86 million bond issue also includes Canton and Northville townships.

Water rates in the city of Plymouth will also be going up as of July 1, a city spokeswoman said.

Plymouth, one of the area's smallest consumers buys about 500 million gallons of water each year. In contrast, Westland buys about three trillion gallons.

Canton's projected increase — 2.05 percent — is well below that for other communities. Township officials said the substantially smaller increase occurred because Canton recently paid off a 30-year-old water line.

"ESSENTIALLY, our increase is less because our base rate is less," said chief township financial officer John Spencer. "We were paying on a line we put in along Cherry Hill in the early 1960s and that contract just expired."

The average increase for all Detroit water customers is estimated at 8.8 percent, said system financial manager Trent Hicks. Suburban customers are also bracing for increased sewer charges but many said they didn't know what those increases would be.

Capital improvements and rising worker salaries and benefits were given as reasons for the increase.

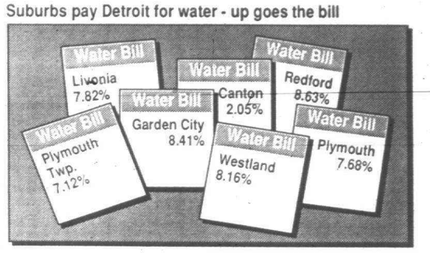
Increases are subject to Detroit City Council approval. While suburban leaders can speak at the public hearing, they cannot veto increases for their communities.

The Detroit system is one of the nation's largest, pumping water throughout much of southeastern Michigan.

Distance from Detroit is one of a number of factors used to determine local charges, Hicks said, but it isn't necessarily the most important factor.

"That (distance) is one of the things we consider, but we also consider elevation, peak use and other factors," he said.

Suburbs pay Detroit for water - up goes the bill



DAVID FRANK/graphics editor

The Detroit water system is raising rates for the suburban communities it serves. While most communities expect to pass the increase along to consumers, homeowners' individual increases might not be known for several weeks.

Bill calls for deposit on batteries

AP — Consumers would have to pay a $6 deposit on every car battery they buy under a bill to control the dumping of batteries in Michigan's landfills.

Legislation imposing the surcharge was approved last Tuesday by the House Conservation, Recreation and Environment Committee.

The $6 deposit on lead acid batteries would be refunded when a used battery is returned. Anyone who improperly disposes of a battery would be fined $25.

Proponents of the Senate-passed legislation say batteries can contaminate the environment by leaking their heavy metal content or through incineration.

About 80 percent of the automotive batteries already are recycled, said the bill's sponsor, Sen. Vernon Ehlers, R-Grand Rapids.

"The issue is not whether to take them out of the waste stream, the real issue is how to deal with them," Ehlers said.

The bill doesn't address most household batteries, such as nickel cadmium rechargeable batteries and mercury batteries, which are believed to be two of the most hazardous for the environment.

A task force will study how to deal with those batteries and report to the committee before Dec. 31.

Some lawmakers expressed concern that going ahead with the lead acid battery portion of the legislation would endanger eventual passage of a more controversial nickel cadmium agreement.

"If the industry doesn't come up with a mechanism in that time, then we'll come up with a mechanism they don't like," said Rep. James Middaugh, R-Paw Paw, vice chairman of the conservation committee.

Ehlers said the committee would review having a deposit on the smaller batteries.

Task force eyes ways to boost the use of recycled newsprint

'Michigan is a national leader in reducing and recycling solid waste. We must do more to encourage recycling and create new markets for recycled materials.'
— Gov. Blanchard at MPA meeting

AP — Saving landfill space by boosting the use of recycled newsprint will be the goal of a joint effort of the Michigan newspaper industry and state government, Gov. James Blanchard says.

The governor will chair a task force that will try to more than triple the amount of recycled newsprint used by the state's papers.

"Michigan is a national leader in reducing and recycling solid waste. We must do more to encourage recycling and create new markets for recycled materials," Blanchard said last week in a speech at the winter meeting of the Michigan Press Association.

Newspapers use about 7 percent recycled newsprint. The task force's target is to boost that to 24 percent by 1995.

Publishers said meeting that goal depends on their ability to obtain recycled newsprint that's competitive in price, quality and supply.

The newsprint recycling task force has as its members publishers, printers, recycled newsprint manufacturers, and representatives from the state Departments of Commerce and Natural Resources.

Richard Aginian, president of Suburban Communications Corp., the parent company of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers; Malcolm Applegate, publisher of the Lansing State Journal; Jim Brown, president of Inco Development Corp.; Benjamin Burns, publisher of the Macomb Daily and the Daily Tribune; Leif Christensen, president of Manistique Papers Inc.; Robert Giles, publisher of The Detroit News; James Grisso, publisher of the Gaylord Herald Times; David Hales, director of the Department of Natural Resources.

Robert Hall, publisher of the Detroit Free Press; Warren M. Hoyt, executive director of the Michigan Press Association; Pete Kraeger, production director of Booth Newspapers; Alan Lenhoff, special projects director for the Detroit Newspaper Agency; Larry Meyer, director of the Department of Commerce; Ray Pike, publisher of the Mount Pleasant Morning Sun; Karen Spang, publisher of the Hamtramck Citizen; John Stafford, publisher of the Greenville Daily News; H. Allen Wamsley, publisher of the Huron Daily Tribune, and F.T. Weaver, publisher of the Jackson Citizen Patriot.

On other subjects, Blanchard said this year's legislative session still can be productive, but he expects to see a lot of jockeying on the budget.

Some observers expect this year's session to become bogged down in battling between Blanchard, a Democrat who's expected to seek a third term, and Senate Majority Leader John Engler, R-Mount Pleasant, who plans to announce next month that he'll oppose Blanchard.

The governor said he expected the main battling to be on the budget.

"Even though revenues will be up $300 million, demand for those dollars will be upwards of a billion and everyone will promise everyone they'll get more," he said.

Blanchard also said:

● A maximum effort must be made to make sure every Detroit citizen is counted in the new census and keep the city's population from dropping below a million, which would mean a loss of millions of dollars in federal revenues.

● State drug czar Donald Reisig, a former prosecutor and former judge, has a better grasp of the drug problem and possible solutions than national drug czar William Bennett. He said that meant no disrespect to Bennett, but recognized that Reisig had a better background for the job.

● Drug czars deserve an "A" for effort, but a "D" for results. "We've built a lot of prisons, but if that's all you do, we'll never get a handle on it."

● Michigan State University officials and backers should work to overcome the furor generated by the appointment of football coach George Perles to be athletic director.

REASONS FOR THE VARIABILITY OF ARTHRITIS

One of the most certain aspects of arthritis is its unpredictability! One day you will hurt in the wrists and hands, and the next morning find that pain is gone, replaced by irritable shoulders and ankles.

Much of this variability has an explanation. You may take the same medicine daily, but you cannot be sure that the same amount is reaching your joints each day. For example, episodes of diarrhea or constipation may change the absorption of medicine; food or drugs may have the same effect. Once in the body, arthritic drugs are broken down by enzymes whose changing activity can lead to a substantial variance in drug concentration.

Also, there are swings in the stress you place on your joints. While each day may seem the same to you, your joints may be experiencing marked changed in strain as they are confronted by rain, ice, high van steps, and low chair or car seats.

In addition, joint inflammation may make its presence known after periods of seeming inactivity, when in fact there was a slow build up of increasing irritation. Thus, what may appear to you as quirky changes in joints usually is the result of related events in the body's response to inflammation.

Problem goes beyond those red ribbons

Jack Gladden

COMING OUT OF Detroit, heading west on the Jeffries, doing about 60 miles an hour — five miles over the limit.

Everybody else is passing me. One guy in particular, driving a big black sedan, cruises by in the inside lane. He's doing at least 70, maybe 75.

Later, moving east on Cherry Hill, trying to stay on the road. It's covered with slush and ice and when I pump the brake a quarter of a block from the stop light, I start to slide sideways. Whoops. Take it easy.

I keep checking my rearview mirror, keeping an eye on the jerk in the BMW who's been tailgating me for the last two blocks. I hope neither one of us has to stop suddenly. Somebody's gonna get bashed.

And still later, sitting in the car on the Target parking lot, waiting for my son to finish his shopping so we can go home, I'm watching this woman trying to park. There's plenty of room in the parking space she's going for, but someone has left a shopping cart near the front and right of the spot.

If she'd just pull in straight, she'd have no problems. But she's coming in at an angle. She pulls in, straddling the yellow line between the spaces, brings the front end of her car to within a inch or two of the cart and stops. She's parked. Not very well, but she's parked.

Then she starts to back up and cuts her wheels to the left. Her car bumps the shopping cart, which spins around, starts rolling and smashes into the car in the next spot. She shuts off the engine, gets out and goes into the store. Doesn't even look at the cart sitting against the other car.

Three incidents typifying life in the Motor City and its environs.

BUT ALL OF these drivers had one thing in common: They had red ribbons displayed prominently on their cars. The guy roaring along the Jeffries had four of them — one on each of his two radio antennas and two more attached to the door handles.

The ribbons, of course, for the benefit of Punxsutawney Phil and anyone else who has been hibernating all winter, have been distributed by Mothers Against Drunk Driving and various other organizations (including this newspaper) as a part of the "The One On" campaign.

They're supposed to remind people not to drink and drive. That's good.

But some of the drivers who tied them on seem to have missed the point. Or maybe they just took the message too literally.

By their actions they are saying it's OK to drive like a jerk as long as you're a sober jerk. I've got a problem with that.

The problem goes beyond watching clowns with red ribbons flying from their cars driving like idiots. The problem lies with what such actions represent. It's the mindless bandwagon effect at its worst.

TODAY IT'S "in" to be against many things — drugs, ugly signs, underage drinking, smoking, racism, soft porn, hard porn, overdevelopment, drunk driving, fur coats, ad infinitum. Some of the causes are noble, some are questionable. Almost all are complex issues with no simple solutions.

But too many people take the simple-minded approach. Too often they join the cause just because it's popular. They don't consider the complexity of the issue. If pornography offends them, they're ready to close the newsstand that sells it. If racism is perceived, make it illegal to utter ethnic slurs. If drugs are a problem, just say no.

It's stupid and dangerous and illegal to drive like a lunatic when you are sober.

The people and organizations passing out those red ribbons recognize this. They are trying to make a specific point against drunk driving. But reckless driving can be just as deadly.

And it's even more stupid to drive like a jerk if you're flying a red ribbon from your antenna. You're sending a message, but it's the wrong one.

Mental illness label may tag non-conformist

To the editor:

Many people have a misconception about what is normative behavior. Aldous Huxley's "Brave New World," and Alpha, Beta Gamma and Delta Mentality with pills as regulators to keep the individuals in their state of equillibrium is a satire on normative behavior.

Mental illness is often a dumping ground for political activists, social activists, artists, free thinkers and unfortunately the poor. Any one who does not choose to conform to the norm or cannot afford to conform to our growth oriented, upward mobile society with stereotypic behavior dictated by mundane television, peers and family members can become a candidate for the local asylum.

Our state mental institutions are an abomination. Once transported there for what ever the reason the inpatients are fed pills of varying nature. The drug level is monitored on a regular basis by blood test. The only treatment that is administered is heavy sedation, occasional therapy or solitary confinement.

There is very little way in which new attitudes or behavior can be adopted as expected because the environment of the mentally ill is not conducive nor designed to induce change.

Staffing in our state institutions is poor, made up of the foreign speaking physicians who possibly could not hold a job in the private sector. Psychiatric nurses are few and the aids are of a poor caliber and frequently take opportunity to act out their own frustrations and personality problems on the patient.

The courts have taken opportunities with those designated mentally ill. The Probate Court system is kept rich with the processing of cases. Court appointed attornies are spoon fed cases of guardians and guardian ad litems alike become appointed and are able to misuse their duties by performing duties that enable them to get rich performing functions not essential in nature or unassigned.

Up until House Bill 4069 there was no real designation of the duties of the guardian ad litem.

Outside independent physicians, a list provided by the court, can do a five minute evaluation and recommend out patient treatment at a fee in their personal office.

Exit needed on I-275 corridor

To the editor:

I read with interest a recent article relating to Westland's attempt to convince the Michigan State Highway Authority of the need for an interchange at I-275 and Warren Road.

Anyone who regularly commutes in the I-275 corridor does not need to be convinced of this need.

They see it every day in the excess congestion that occurs at both the I-275 and Ann Arbor Road interchange and at I-275 and Ford Road interchange.

I personally have traveled this route for 12 years, and it is a regular hassle to board I-275 at Ford Road with backups of more than one mile to Lilley Road when going to work, and another backup on I-275 from the Kopernick railroad bridge to the Ford Road exit on the way home from work.

An interchange at I-275 and Warren Road would greatly relieve the congestion that exists in this area today.

Interchanges are already in place at one mile intervals east along I-96 from Merriman to I-275, and north along I-275 from Six to Eight Mile Roads. But south from 6 Mile Road there are interchanges at only 2.7 mile intervals at Ann Arbor Road and at Ford Road. No wonder these interchanges are always jammed.

I hope all the residents of Plymouth, Livonia, Canton and Westland who use the I-275 commuting corridor write to their mayors and state representatives in support of Westland's proposal for an interchange at I-275 and Warren Road.

Stan Sidick,
Canton

Board takes choice away from parents

To the editor:

I am a concerned parent with regard to the boundary changes affecting students at Bird and West, specifically from the City of Plymouth.

Residents of the well-established neighborhoods affected by this proposal are people strongly dedicated to providing stability in our children's school program. We chose to live in this area because we strongly believe in the feeder system so successfully in place from Bird to West. We chose to live here rather than move to the newer development where disruptive changes would be more likely to occur. We chose to live in the town atmosphere so our children would have continuity in their friendships.

The board of edueation is now proposing to take our choices away from us. We all know that future changes are needed in our school system, but they should be well thought out and planned over the long term, not just making a temporary solution to a permanent problem. Citizens would be much more receptive to boundary changes if we knew the long term plan and could be assured these changes would only occur once after the final boundary changes for the entire district are established. We should have at least one year modification before the changes are effective. This would give us time to make our choices again.

1. Remain where we are.
2. Move our families within the district to attend the school of our choice.
3. Move out of the district entirely.
4. Choose alternative educational facilities.

As it stands now and based on the Task Force recommendations for the 1990-1994 school years, we can't make any choices and be assured that this will not happen to us again.

Give us the long term plan, then give us back our choices.

Teachers want too much money

To the editor:

Mr. Portelli states that, "In industry, I would say seven isn't gigantic, but in education, 7 percent is nice."

What industry is he talking about? Certainly not automotive manufacturing where the norm for several years has been 4 percent based on merit.

When do we ever hear about merit in reference to raises for teachers?

Teachers like to compare themselves to professionals in industry.

Why? Are their raises based on individual performance or performance of the education industry as a whole?

When cars don't sell, raises cease, plants close and people lose jobs. Yet in the face of an education crisis, teachers still expect their raises.

More money in the pockets of the same employees is not going to improve education in this, or any other community.

I want value for my dollar in everything I buy. This especially has to be true for the education of my children.

Lunch rooms overcrowded at high school

To the editor:

As educators at the high school, we are concerned about a problem of overcrowding during the lunch periods that results in noisy and dirty halls.

One of the options being considered is to split the lunch period into three sections.

This, however, will split some classes as well. A split classroom is one in which students attend class for 26 minutes, break for lunch, and then return to the classroom for 26 minutes.

With few exceptions, this would have a negative impact on learning.

We feel that the wasted time generated by this option, the limitation imposed on learning activities, and the turmoil created in classroom planning go against our commitment to excellence.

In addition, past attempts by the high school to maintain split classrooms were not successful.

Therefore, after having expressed our concern to the administration, we are now publicly opposing this measure as a solution for the overcrowding that occurs during lunch.

Senate amendment jeopardizes asbestos inspections in state

By Tim Richard
staff writer

The state Senate is tied in knots over bills to keep asbestos inspectors on the job.

Deadlocked senators this weeek will try again to pass the bills amid charges that Michigan's asbestos removal rules are too strict.

"The state shouldn't have higher standards than the federal government," complained Sen. John Schwarz, R-Battle Creek. He tried to amend the package to lower Michigan's standards to the federal level — an amendment that would have thrown the bills into a time-consuming conference committee.

Schwarz was joined by Senate majority leader John Engler, R-Mount Pleasant, whose gubernatorial campaign will emphasize deregulation of business.

THEY WERE opposed by Fred Dillingham, R-Fowlerville, who was guiding the bills through floor debate. The bills would impose 1 percent fees on asbestos removal contractors to pay for the Public Health Department's inspection program.

"We're tying up this package and eliminating the inspectors," said Dillingham, whose Senate Human Resources Committee reported out the bills.

"We're going to have no one out there protecting the public for three or four months. To tie-bar (Schwarz's amendment) to the fee bill destroys the whole package," Dillingham argued.

REPLIED SCHWARZ, a physician and surgeon: "It's irresponsible for the state to rush pell-mell into a situation."

Much asbestos insulation, he said, "is not deleterious to the lungs. We are developing a cottage industry — asbestos removal — because there's so much government money in it.

> 'The state shouldn't have higher standards than the federal government.'
> — Sen. John Schwarz Republican

"Over 90 percent of asbestos does not contain cancer-causing compounds. It's time for us to back off this thing and not throw away millions of dollars."

Added Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville: "The federal government has a screwball rule that is wasteful of money and health."

SCHWARZ'S AMENDMENT was adopted, but Dillingham won 16-15 approval of a procedural move to send the package to the Appropriations Commmittee.

Supporting Dillingham were Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills; Richard Fessler, R-Commerce; and George Z. Hart, D-Dearborn.

Supporting Schwarz were Doug Cruce, R-Troy, and Geake.

William Faust, D-Westland, and Rudy Nichols, R-Waterford, had excused absences.

The package included House Bills 4222 through 4226. "These fees would raise about $500,000," Dillingham said. "Six asbestos inspectors are due to be laid off Feb. 1.

"The whole budget is predicated on passage of these fee bills.

"Hopefully, the (asbestos removal) contractors will talk to the senators and tell them how important the inspectors are. We're not going to stop the removal of asbestos."

Rep. Ford to get key post

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

U.S. Rep. William Ford, D-Taylor, is scheduled to become chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee, a move seen as strengthening the 25-year representative's power base.

Ford, whose district includes southern Livonia, Westland, Canton and Garden City will become chairman with retirement of Rep. Augustus Hawkins, D-Cal., at the close of Congress this year.

To do so, Ford will give up his current post as chairman of the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee, though he will retain his committee seat.

"They don't want you to wear too many hats around here," said Ford, who added it would have been "page one news in Washington" if he declined the Education and Labor post.

"OBVIOUSLY, Education and Labor is one of the most important committees in the Congress," he said.

With Michigan expected to lose two House seats by 1992 as a result of post-census redistricting, acceptance of the post is seen as strengthening Ford's chances of maintaining his district.

It is also seen as boosting his chances for re-election in this year's Congressional race.

His predecessor, Hawkins, 82, is considered one of the House's old-line liberals, perhaps best-known for sponsoring the 1978 Humphrey-Hawkins Full employment Act with former Sen. Hubert Humphrey.

Ford said his philosophy won't vary much from Hawkins'.

"Gus and I have been pretty close over the years," Ford said. "Sometimes, he would emphasize one issue more, sometimes I would, but basically there was much agreement."

Ford, 62, has been chairman of the Subcommittee on Postsecondary Education and is considered an expert in the field. Job training has been one of his priorities and the Wayne-Westland Schools' vocational education center bears his name.

Though grappling with major issues such as minimum wage and child care, the committee failed to deliver minimum wage and parental job leave bills to the House floor in 1987 or 1988 — a major disappointment for organized labor interests.

Also in 1988, committee suggestions for overhauling the nation's welfare system never made it out of the sub-committee level.

At present, Education and Labor and the powerful Ways and Means Committee are locked in a fight over child care legislation.

Ford has he favors new child care programs, not tax credits as proposed by the president.

When is price right?

Did you ever stop and wonder why a bottle of apple juice at grocery store "A" sells for 97 cents while the same exact bottle at store "B" sells for $1.39?

Just exactly how much difference is there in a can of Campbell's Chicken Noodle Soup, especially when one store has it 39 cents and when you take a walk around the corner to another grocery, there the same can sits for 48 cents?

I know there are more important questions in this world to be asked, but when you think about how many cans of Campbell's soup pass through cash register scanners nowadays, doesn't it make you wonder?

We're not talking pennies here, folks. Do a little comparison shopping and see for yourself. Or are the major grocery chains expecting us to get our soup from store "A," our juices from store "B" and our paper products from store "C"?

PERSONALLY, I LIKE to shop at one local grocery, not necessarily for the prices but for the simple fact that I'm always no further than second in line and what's probably more important, to have a cashier personally say, "Thank you," rather than hearing it from a computer.

From what I can garner, fewer than 10 percent of us use grocery coupons when shopping for groceries. It almost makes me want to say, "Na-na-na-na-na," when I observe the person in front of me buying many of the same basic items but the difference is the bottom dollar. With coupons, I pay less.

I'll even go so far as to say the person behind me in line probably has even more coupons, and deep down that person's little voice is echoing the same verse because I only saved 25 cents on my toilet paper while that individual has a 35-cent coupon.

So does this mean that coupons are to blame for the 42-cent difference in bottled apple juice between store "A" and store "B"?

Now that I have the old cynical juices flowing, something else has my curiosity piqued about grocery stores. What do they do with all the leftover meat, fish and poultry that doesn't sell by the expiration date? Do they grind up the T-bone steaks into hamburger? Is it true they repackage the fish and put it in the freezer for some poor unsuspecting dolt to come by and pay top dollar for five-day-old frozen fish?

FREQUENTLY I SEE a shopping cart full of mushrooms that belong in a petrie dish along with black bananas and bruised apples, but when was the last time you saw a rib-eye steak marked down 50 percent?

I think it would be a good idea for the grocery stores to lay off a few of those bluish-gray-haired women who pass out samples of prune danish and liverwurst and incorporate an information booth in the center of the store between dog food and cereals so that folks like you and me can ask these questions.

Nothing unnerves me more than to stop by the manager's booth and have him/her look down on me from behind a 15-foot wall saying they have no control over the store's pricing policies. Personally, I think all grocery store managers are four-foot midgets who hide behind these managerial booster walls, just waiting for the moment to get on the loudspeaker and tell some poor 16-year-old bagger to go out in two feet of snow and bring in more baskarts.

Let Gorbachev worry about Azerbaijan and let Bush deal with arms reduction. I'll let you know if I get any response from the store managers or food dealers.

Americans have long loved rice

By Irene H. Burchard
special writer

RICE, THE STAPLE food for hundreds of millions in Asian countries, has been part or the traditional American meal since it was first grown in the United States more than 300 years ago.

The history of rice in North America began with colonization of the new land. During America's colonial period the Carolinas were considered to be the most fertile land. By 1726, the Port of Charleston, S.C., was exporting nearly 4,500 metric tons of rice annually and during the next four years rice exports doubled.

Fifty years later, after America gained its independence, rice had become one of the country's major agricultural businesses.

From its scanty beginnings in South Carolina, rice has become a major agricultural product of the

Thais serve rice with every meal

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

Rice in Thailand is comparable in importance to potatoes in Bolivia or bread in America. It is the mainstay of nearly every meal, served morning, noon and night to balance other foods and fill hungry stomachs.

"People in Thailand eat rice or rice noodles, actually more rice than rice noodles, like people here eat bread," said "Randy" Chanyawatanakul, owner of Siam Spicy, a restaurant featuring Thai food that opened in Royal Oak eight months ago.

Until then, Chanyawatanakul had been an architect, arriving in the United States from Bangkok in 1974 to study at Wayne State University.

"I always wanted to get into the restaurant business, for a long, long time. I love cooking and tasting food. So, I just decided to do it," Chanyawatanakul said in English gently laced with a Thai accent.

Accompanying each entree served at Siam Spicy is a bountiful bowl of rich steamed rice, special sticky or semi-sticky varieties containing additional starch that are grown in Thailand and exported as Riceland throughout the Far East.

The Cooker scene: American regional

Some down-home Southern dishes — as well as a range of regional entrees from Yankee pot roast to Hawaiian steak — are cooking at the new Cooker restaurant in Livonia.

The restaurant, first of a Nashville-based chain to locate in Michigan, has a menu that would appeal to almost anyone — and an atmosphere for which that is true also. It's noisy — so beware — but the noise coming from conversations bouncing off the tile floor and wood booths is more like background music that will absorb the cries of a baby or provide privacy for an intimate conversation.

Upon first glance, the Cooker Bar and Grille looks like a trendy place a la Friday's. But the night we visited, the restaurant was filled with older couples, young families and everyone in between. Even on a week night, it was crowded, surprising because the restaurant relies only on word-of-mouth advertising.

Or maybe that's not so surprising given the fact that the menu is anything but dull, and the prices are exceptionally reasonable. Though it offers the expected selection of burgers and salads, it has an exceptional array of "regional American" dishes. We tried the lime chicken ($7.95) and Hawaiian steak ($8.95) and found both to be very well prepared and tasty.

THE LIME CHICKEN is one of Cooker's specialties and features a half chicken marinated in lime, garlic, white wine and honey before being grilled. The combination of seasonings made for a very delicious dish and the marinade definitely penetrated the meat — instead of just resting on the skin.

Though almost all the other chicken dishes are boneless, this was on the bone but was moist enough to cut off easily. Only fault with this dish was that a pre-packaged moist towel was unappetizingly served on the dinner plate.

The Hawaiian steak was cooked as ordered and pleasantly flavored with a teriyaki sauce. The steak came with onion strings — a version of onion rings where the rings are slivered.

Both entrees were served with a small broccoli-cheese casserole, which was a little mushy for our taste. Next time we will try the green beans cooked with bacon. The seasoned french fries were delicious. A la carte side dishes also include squash, baked potato and baked cinnamon apples.

The soups were good, including a vegetable cheese soup that was a little cool on arrival and a very warm potato cheese soup that featured chunks of potatoes and a tasty blend of cheeses.

Americans have loved rice since early days

United States. Ninety percent of the rice consumed in the U.S. is produced within its boarders, most of it grown in the rice belts of the Gulf Coast, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, Texas and California.

The United States is respected worldwide for our abundant production of high quality rice and, in the world market, is one of the largest exporters of rice. About two-thirds of the U.S. rice crop is exported to more than 100 countries.

DIVERSE CULINARY cultures and differing climatic soil conditions have evolved more than 40,000 different varieties of rice. The major descriptive categories have to do with the shape (round or oval), width (in India, superfine, fine or coarse) and length (long, medium or short), whether its brown (bran) layer under the husk has been removed, and whether it is raw or processed (precooked, converted and so on).

Some rices are even described by their aromatic qualities. The primary difference in these rices are their cooking characteristics, and in some cases, a subtle flavor difference. From the nutritional point of view, they are equal, and indeed can often be interchanged in recipes.

Forms of Rice

- Regular-milled white rice
- Parboiled rice
- Pre-cooked rice
- Brown rice

Wild rice, a dark-brown native American grain, is not rice at all but rather a grain shaped like rice. The best wild rice is long, fat and glossy and has a tealike fragrance. During its preparation wild rice will swell and expose the more tender inner meat.

When to use which rice? It is a matter of personal preference because there are no hard, fast rules. Be creative and experiment to see which type you prefer. Choose brown rice in dishes like pilaf, or long grain for paella. Medium grain rice would be an excellent choice for making dishes that have a creamy characteristic, such as risotto, molds, croquettes or desserts. Short grain rice works well in sushi.

New specialty or "aromatic" rices are showing up in our specialty shops and on supermarket shelves. Brand names include Texmati, an Americanized version of India's long-grained basmati rice. It has a nutty flavor and an aroma like freshly popped corn when it is cooking.

Texamiti has marketed a "Light Bran," a nutritional and appetizing way to increase fiber intake; "Brown-Long Grain American Basmati" and "Royal Blend," a blend of brown and white basmati rice with wild rice. Phone orders — Farms of Texas 1-800-232-RICE.

ANOTHER GROWER produces Wehani, an earthy, honey-red, basmati-style rice with the scent of hot buttered peanuts as well as a Sweet Wehani, assorted blends of brown, black and red rice. Phone orders — Lundberg Family Farms, 1-916-882-4551.

Arborio, a short-grain rice cooks up creamy. This rice is a staple in Northern Italian restaurants and homes, where it is mixed with stock or wine and other ingredients to create risotto. Imported brands available at specialty stores and supermarkets are Arborio, Superfino and Carnoralli.

Rice is important for its nutritional value. It is an excellent source of complex carbohydrates, an important part of the diet. Nutritionists agree, at least half the calories consumed should be from carbohydrates.

Rice is also low in calories. The protein content of rice, while limited, is superior to that provided by other cereal grains. Rice contains only a trace of fat and is cholesterol-free. It is non-allergenic and gluten-free, and is low in sodium and excellent for diets restrictive in these factors.

Rice is wholesome, nutritious food and has qualities which make it ideally suited for special dietary needs.

RISOTTO
5 cups, more or less, chicken stock
4 tablespoons butter
1 large onion, chopped
1 garlic clove, chopped
2 cups Italian rice
6 tablespoons dry white wine salt and fresh pepper to taste
½ teaspoon saffron threads (optional)
8 tablespoons butter, softened
2-4 tablespoons freshly grated Parmesan cheese

Bring the stock to a boil and hold at simmer. In a heavy-bottomed casserole, melt the 4 tablespoons butter. Add the onion and garlic. Cook over medium-high heat for a few minutes until the onion is limp. Reduce the heat to a simmer and add the rice, stirring to coat the rice with butter.

Add the wine. Raise the heat and cook, stirring, until the wine is absorbed. Add salt and pepper. Dissolve the saffron in a bit of stock and add.

Start adding the stock, a ladleful at a time. Stir with a wooden spatula to keep the rice from sticking. When the stock is absorbed, add another ladleful. Continue adding stock gradually until the rice is cooked. It should have a creamy consistency, but the rice should have a bite to it. The rice mixture should not be dry like a pilaf.

Remove the pan from the heat and add the softened butter and Parmesan cheese. Stir it gently and serve immediately.

WILD RICE WITH SNOW PEAS
1 cup wild rice
2 scallions
1 tablespoon butter
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups or more chicken broth (canned if desired)
¼ pound (1 cup) snow peas
4 large mushrooms
one 4-ounce can water chestnuts, drained
2 tablespoons peanut or salad oil
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
¼ cup toasted almonds

Wash the rice thoroughly, changing the water several times. Cut the green scallion stems diagonally into 2-inch lengths. Chop the white part of the scallions fine.

Melt the butter in a large saucepan. Add the minced white scallion and saute until tender. Add the rice, salt and 2 cups chicken broth. Bring to a boil, stir once and reduce the heat. Cover tightly and cook over low heat until the rice is tender and the liquid is absorbed, about 35 minutes. If necessary add more broth as the rice cooks.

Meanwhile, remove the ends and strings from the peas. Cut the mushrooms and water chestnuts into thin slices.

Heat the oil in a large skillet. Add the scallion stems, peas, mushrooms, water chestnuts and almonds and saute only until mushrooms are tender.

Transfer the cooked rice and vegetable mixture to a casserole. Add salt and pepper to taste and sprinkle with toasted almonds. Mix lightly and keep hot for serving in a very slow oven.

5 steps lead to elegant souffle

AP — You will be surprised at how simple a glorious souffle can be. Remember these five important steps:

- Beat the egg whites until stiff peaks form (tips stand straight). Perfectly beaten egg whites will not slip and slide when you tilt the bowl.
- Add a little cream of tartar to stabilize the egg whites.
- Preheat the oven; don't open the oven door to peek during the first 20-25 minutes of baking. A cool draft can deflate a partially baked souffle.
- Have your family and guests ready at the table before souffle comes out so you can bring it to the table high, hot and handsome.
- To serve, use two forks held back to back to break the top crust into serving-size portions. Then use a large spoon to serve. Include some of the yummy crust with each serving.

BLUE CHEESE AND BROCCOLI SOUFFLE
4 egg yolks
¼ cup margarine or butter
¼ cup all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
dash ground red pepper dash ground dry mustard
1 cup milk
1 cup finely chopped cooked broccoli flowerets, drained
½ cup crumbled blue cheese or finely shredded Cheddar cheese (2 ounces)
4 egg whites
½ teaspoon cream of tartar

Measure enough foil to go around a 1½-quart souffle dish plus a 2-inch overlap. Fold foil into thirds lengthwise. Lightly butter one side of foil. Position foil, buttered side in, around dish, letting collar extend 2 inches above top of dish; fasten foil with masking tape.

Lightly beat egg yolks with a fork; set aside. In a medium saucepan melt margarine. Stir in flour, salt, red pepper and dry mustard. Stir in milk. Cook and stir until thickened and bubbly. Cook and stir 1-2 minutes more. Remove from heat.

Add broccoli and cheese to sauce, stirring until cheese is melted. Slowly add broccoli mixture to egg yolks stirring constantly. Cool slightly.

In a large mixer bowl beat egg whites and cream of tartar with electric mixer on high speed until stiff peaks form (tips stand straight). Gradually pour yolk mixture over beaten egg whites, folding to combine. Pour egg mixture into ungreased souffle dish.

Bake in 350-degree oven for 35-40 minutes or until souffle jiggles when gently shaken. Do not open the oven door during the first 20-25 minutes of baking.

'Chili Joe' cooks up a prize-winning dish

Betsy Brethen

I have found that certain meals tend to elicit a particular sort of response from my three sons.

For example, they don't eat chili the same way that they eat meatloaf. In fact, they don't eat anything that has a bean in it without launching into one of their all-time favorite songs, "Beans, beans, the musical fruit . . ."

But all songs aside, beans are an important source of protein, carbohydrates, several B-complex vitamins and minerals.

THIS WEEK'S winner dinner includes a recipe for cooking pinto beans that is simple and very economical.

Combined with a prize-winning chili recipe sent in by "Chili Joe" Wnuk of Westland, and served with Chippewa Corn Bread and a refreshing Fruit Bowl Dessert, this dinner promises to spice up your life.

Wnuk works as an automotive engineer for United Technologies in Dearborn, but when he comes home from work he trades in his coat and tie for an apron and chef's hat.

First bitten by the chili bug 10 years ago, Wnuk is a regular participant in chili cook-offs and has earned lots of trophies for his efforts.

A year and a half ago, he started doing a cooking show for Omnicon Studios. He has just completed a cookbook, containing more than 40 different chili recipes, called "Chili Today, Hot Tomale" that should be available in bookstores next year.

Wnuk's four children have been enthusiastic sous chefs, and his wife has helped by designing aprons for his television shows.

AN AVID Tiger fan, Chili Joe is eagerly anticipating opening day at Tiger Stadium.

Loyal fans will be able to find him cooking up 60 quarts of his special Tiger Chili on the corner of Michigan Avenue and Trumbull for radio station WLLZ.

Thank you, Chili Joe, for sharing your special recipes with us, and congratulations on being our Winner Dinner Winner of the week. Here's hoping this week's dinner will be a gastronomic success for you and yours.

Submit your recipes, to be considered for publication in this column or elsewhere, to: Winner Dinner, P.O. Box 3503, Birmingham 48012. All submissions become the property of the publisher. Each week's winner receives an apron with the words Winner Dinner Winner on it.

Recipes

OLD MISSION LIGHTHOUSE CHILI

This dish takes about 25 minutes to assemble, can be prepared a day in advance of being served and can be frozen. It serves eight people and is delicious reheated.

2½ pounds beef chuck or stew meat, cubed into bite-sized pieces
2 large onions, finely chopped
1 large green bell pepper, finely chopped
2 large jalapeno peppers, finely chopped (for a milder chili, adjust the amount to your taste)
5 small garlic cloves, minced
1 can tomato sauce (15 ounces)
1 can beer or water (12 ounces)
2 tablespoons chili powder (use more or less, depending on your taste)
salt and pepper to taste

Brown the cubed meat with a dash of oil in a large pot. Drain any excess liquids. Saute the chopped vegetables until tender and add to the large pot along with the remaining ingredients. Quick and easy! Simmer for 2 hours. Mix in the beans and garnish with sour cream, grated cheese, crushed red pepper or any other topping of your choice.

1837 MICHIGAN BEAN RECIPE

In chili cook-offs, beans are never added to the chili so that the judges can get the true flavor of the sauce.

If you use canned beans, Chili Joe recommends that you take a minute to rinse them, as the flavor of the sauce that the beans are canned in imparts a different and metallic flavor to the chili.

This recipe for beans is simple, economical and nutritious.

1 pound dry pinto beans, washed and drained
6 cups water
1 teaspoon salt

Bring the beans to a boil in a large pot, simmer them for 5 minutes and then let them sit for an least 1 hour. Mix with the Old Mission Lighthouse Chili.

CHIPPEWA INDIAN CORN BREAD

Quick and easy to mix together, this bread is best when baked just before serving. It makes 8 ample servings. Garnish with plenty of butter or margarine.

1 cup yellow cornmeal
1 cup flour
2 tablespoons sugar
4 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk
2 large eggs
¼ cup shortening
1 can kernel corn (8 ounces), drained

Preheat the oven to 425 degrees and use a nonstick spray on a 9- by 9- by 2-inch pan. Mix all the ingredients, pour into the pan and bake for 20 minutes.

FRUIT BOWL DESSERT

Refreshingly cooling after the spiciness of the chili, this recipe tastes better with fresh fruit; however, frozen fruit can be substituted.

1 cup sweet cherries, fresh or frozen
2 cups strawberries, fresh or frozen
1 cup blueberries, fresh or frozen
½ cup sour cream
1 tablespoon honey
1 tablespoon apple cider or juice

Slice the fruit into a bowl. Cover the bowl and chill. Before serving, combine the sour cream, honey and cider and pour on the fruit and toss. Serves 8.

Notes

Greek Beef and Onion Stew suitable for party time

This recipe for Greek Beef and Onion Stew is from an article on winter stews for entertaining, in a recent issue of Gourmet magazine.

GREEK BEEF AND ONION STEW
½ cup vegetable oil
4 pounds beef chuck, cut into 1½ inch pieces
1½ cups chopped onion
4 garlic cloves, minced
2 cups dry red wine
1 cup beef broth
one 8-ounce can tomato sauce
½ cup red-wine vinegar
2½ tablespoons firmly packed brown sugar one 3½ inch cinnamon stick
1½ teaspoons ground cumin
1 bay leaf
2 pounds small white onions, blanched in boiling water for 1 minute, drained, and peeled ½ cup minced fresh parsley leaves rice or mashed potatoes as an accompaniment

In a kettle heat the oil over moderately high heat until it is hot but not smoking and in it brown the chuck, patted dry, in batches, transferring it as it is browned to a bowl. Pour off all but 1 tablespoon fat from the kettle, add the chopped onion, and cook it over moderate heat, stirring occasionally, until it is golden. Add the garlic and cook the mixture, stirring, for 30 seconds. Add the wine, the broth, the tomato sauce, the vinegar, the brown sugar, the cinnamon stick, the cumin, the bay leaf, 1 cup water, and the chuck with any juices that have accumulated in the bowl, bring the liquid to a boil, and braise the mixture, covered, in a preheated 350-degree oven for 2 hours. Stir in the small onions and braise the mixture, covered, for 1-1½ hours, or until the onions are tender. The stew improves in flavor if cooled to room temperature, uncovered, and chilled, covered, overnight. Discard the bay leaf and the cinnamon stick, sprinkle the stew with the parsley, and serve it with the rice. Serves 8.

Hockey association publishes cookbook

"Hockey in Our Heart" is a newly published collection of recipes from families of the Plymouth/Canton Hockey Association.

The 252-page, spiral-bound cookbook leads off with recipes called "Red Wing Specialties," reprinted with permission of the Detroit Red Wings. Included are Yzerman's Fresh Blueberry Pie, Gallant's No Bake Cheesecake, Hanlon's Outdoor Delight and Stefan's Lovers' Meatballs.

The cookbook costs $10 and is available from the Plymouth Cultural Center and Ice Arena, the Cozy Cafe in Plymouth, or by calling Cheryl Feiler at 451-0924 or Debbie Timberlake at 459-2275.

Here's a recipe that is one of the Kid's Favorites:

SAUSAGE AND PEPPERS

1½ pounds Italian Sausage (sweet with fennel seeds), cut in ½-inch slices
1½-2 green peppers cut in ½ inch slices
1 onion quartered
⅛ cup olive oil

Sauce:
one 15-ounce can tomato suace
½ scant tablespoon oregano
½ teaspoon sugar
½ can water (maybe a little less)
½ tablespoon parsley

Broil sausage on a cookie sheet with olive oil for approximately 10 minutes. Place green peppers and onions on cookie sheet and continue to broil for another 10 minutes, until brown. Meanwhile, combine ingredients for sauce and simmer for approximately 15 minutes. Put cooked sausage and peppers in 8- by 8-inch casseroie, with some juice from cookie sheet (not all). Pour sauce over sausage and vegetables. Heat in oven at 325 degrees for about ½ hour. Serve with rice.

Pizza pie in 6 layers reaches for the sky

one 16-ounce loaf frozen whole-wheat bread dough cornmeal
2 cups shredded Swiss cheese (8 ounces)
one 10-ounce package frozen chopped spinach, cooked
1 cup ricotta cheese
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
¼ teaspoon dried oregano, crushed one 8-ounce can pizza sauce
two 4-ounce cans sliced mushrooms, drained
6 ounces sliced Canadian-style bacon
¼ cup sliced pitted ripe olives

Thaw dough. Sprinkle a 12-inch pizza pan with cornmeal. Halve dough; roll half to a 10-inch circle. Transfer to pan. Roll remaining dough to an 11-inch circle. Sprinkle dough on pan with 1 cup of the Swiss cheese, leaving 1 inch around the edge.

Drain spinach well; put on top of cheese. Combine ½ cup of the Swiss cheese, ricotta cheese, garlic powder and oregano; spread over spinach, leaving 1 inch around edge. Top with ¼ cup of the pizza sauce. Reserve ¼ cup mushrooms; place remaining mushrooms on top of sauce. Top with bacon.

Position the 11-inch circle of dough over filling. Moisten edges and crimp together, pressing to seal. Make eight 2-inch steam slits in top crust. Cover outer 2 inches of crust with foil.

Bake in a 400 degree oven for 10 minutes. Reduce temperature to 350 degrees; bake 1 hour more or until golden brown. Remove foil. Spread remaining pizza sauce on top. Sprinkle with reserved mushrooms, remaining Swiss cheese and olives. Bake 5 minutes more. Cut into wedges to serve. Makes 8 servings.

from a Chicago-based import company that specializes in Thai goods because the Thai varieties, unique for their aroma, are not sold in most U.S. groceries or supermarkets.

HE SAID, "STIR FRY, CURRY, vegetables, beef. No matter what it is, everything has to go with rice," partially to balance meats and vegetables that, when heavily spiced with chili peppers, cause the eyes and nose to run.

"You would not want to eat very hot dishes without rice," he said with a laugh.

Ideally, Thai rice sticks together, either slightly so, as with semi-sticky, or very much so, although there is generally less demand for very sticky varieties.

Chanyawatanakul buys the highest grades of rice possible because individual kernels are more uniform in size than lesser grades.

Aside from its aroma and sticky consistency when cooked, Thai rice is similar in color, size and shape to Uncle Ben's long-grained varieties, according to Chanyawatanakul. The Thai variety is a water rice, grown in a region of Thailand deluged with monsoon rains. The product is noted for its pure whiteness that is easily obtained with a minimum of washing.

The restaurateur also serves Thai-style fried rice, sticky rice seasoned with eggs, green onions, peas, pea pods and carrots.

Siam Spicy, 2438 N. Woodward, Royal Oak, phone 545-4305, is open 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. and 5-10 p.m. Tuesday-Thursday, 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. and 5-11:30 p.m. Friday-Saturday, and 4:30-9 p.m. Sunday.

Rice browned Mexican-style

Don Carlos Mexican Restaurante, a family enterprise founded in 1984 by Shaffran, husband Charles and three children, has grown into a small chain with eateries in Redford, Garden City and four additional locations.

A seventh is scheduled to open soon in Ann Arbor.

At each, cuisine is prepared by chefs who are trained by Maria Shaffran, using family recipes she has specially tailored for use in the restaurants.

"I know a lot about the kitchen," she said, in accented English, of the array and variety of offerings.

Shaffran is particularly knowledgeable about rice, a staple food served prior to most meals in Acaponeta, the city near the Pacific Ocean in Nayarit, Mexico, where she was born and raised. She arrived in the United States in 1957 as a new bride.

"WHENEVER YOU SIT down to eat in Acaponeta, a small bowl of consomme is served, followed by a serving of rice. Then the entree. It's nothing special," she said of the long-standing custom.

Although Texamiti, a long-grained, aromatic rice, is currently enjoying increasing popularity among chefs of Mexican cuisine, Shaffran favors any long-grained rice, regardless of variety, so long as it is hard and has not been processed.

She washes the rice thoroughly, first in cold water, followed by a comprehensive warm bath that transforms beige-colored kernels into snow white specimens. She then sautes the rice for 30 minutes in "very hot" oil that has been seasoned with chopped onion. The kernels turn into browned, transparencies ready for steaming.

The rice is simmered to full richness in chicken broth seasoned with Saffran's special tomato sauce laced with basil, garlic, salt and pepper. Though decidedly Mexican in taste, it is not spicy hot.

"We eat a lot of hot peppers in Acaponeta," but not in traditional rice that is served before each meal, she said.

Don Carlos, 7034 Middlebelt, Garden City, phone 458-2900, is open 4-9 p.m., Monday-Thursday, 4-11 p.m. Friday-Saturday, and 3-8 p.m. Sunday. Don Carlos, 9565 Telegraph, Redford, phone 533-8000, is open 11 a.m. to 9 p.m., Monday-Thursday, 3-11 p.m., Friday-Saturday, and 3:30-9 p.m. Sunday.

Italian risotto grows in popularity balls chock-full of vegetables and mozzarella cheese that are gently fried and served with veal or beef.

"When I want to make something special, something that tastes really good, I make this," Bassonatti said in English laced with a thick Italian accent.

Originally from Naples, Bassonatti studied the art of cookery some 25 years ago in Switzerland, shortly before arriving in the United States.

RISOTTO, LONG a traditional dish throughout Italy, remains a mystery to many American diners.

To be genuine, risotto must be firm, a variation on pasta that, when prepared correctly, is eaten with a fork, according to Bassonatti.

It should never, ever be served as a soup with a spoon, as too often happens, he said.

To create a pefect risotto, Bassonatti relies on short-grain rice, an Italian variety named Baretta that is noted for its flat contour and hardness.

"Baretta cooks slowly and never gets mushy," dual absolutes for scrupulous chefs preparing proper risotto, Bassonatti said.

TO MAKE the dish, Baretta, a rice that resembles Uncle Ben's in color and variety, is browned with minced onion in butter.

It is then set to simmer in rich broth, or "real stock" prepared from soup bones that have simmered for hours with slices of celery, onion and carrot.

The stock is gradually added to the rice, until it fully puffs and all the liquid is absorbed.

"The rice has to be loose and dry and not be sticky or mushy," Bassonatti said.

THE FINAL product is seasoned with a grating of fresh Parmesan cheese and "a nice chunk of butter."

Risotto may be served alone or smothered in an endless array of toppings, including seafood, chicken, vegetables or any combination thereof.

To prepare arangino, leftover risotto rice is fashioned into dumpling-shaped balls and stuffed with peas or pieces of hard-boiled egg and mozzarella cheese, breaded and fried in butter.

The office/clerical and maintenance support groups have been working without a contract since July 1, 1989.

After several negotiation sessions, both groups were recommended to go to the mediation process. This has resulted in the further continuation of negotiations.

We are reasonable and responsible people who care very much about the students at Schoolcraft College, but we are concerned that the lack of progress in the past may carry on into future negotiations.

We thank you for your support as we try to bargain a fair and equitable contract.

Red brightens winter season nature

Timothy Nowicki

Amid the neutral tones of winter both green and red show up vividly.

Even in summer when the lush green foliage predominates, red can be seen readily. In fact, many animals use red as a warning color just as humans do. Red feathers are often hidden until the need to demonstrate agression.

In winter, red is one of the first colors to catch the eye. Male cardinals can be seen at the opposite end of your yard because of their bright red color.

Not many animals are as brightly colored as the cardinal, but several plants, or berries of plants, rival the brilliance of the cardinal.

One such plant with scarlet red berries hugging the branches is the winterberry, or Michigan holly. Unlike the holly that most people think of with evergreen leaves, Michigan holly loses its leaves in fall. Bright red berries persist on the branches however, until birds eat them or until they fall off naturally in midwinter.

Winterberry grows in low wet areas and can often be seen in large clusters. Dense colonies of plants laden with berries are very striking when contrasting with the dark grey bark of the surrounding tree trunks and branches.

Another red berry that likes wet areas is the high bush cranberry. This bush produces red berries that form drooping clusters. Like the bog cranberry that we enjoy at holiday dinners, the high bush cranberry is also edible, though not as preferred. Even birds do not eat the berries until other choice berries are gone.

Wet areas seem to be the best place to find red in the plant world. Growing along with both of the plants mentioned above, one can find the red-stemmed, or red-osier dogwood. One can find the red stems of this dogwood all year, but they seem more noticeable when viewed against the white winter snow.

The cardinal illustrates how red stands out in drab winter scene.

In forested areas you may be lucky to find a cluster of red berries on the end of a stalk about a foot off the ground. These berries came from one of the jack-in-the-pulpit plants you saw in the spring. Their berries often do not last long because they are enjoyed by mice and birds.

Take a stroll through the woods and meadows and enjoy their decorations.

Elderly can take steps against crime

A. Jolayne Farrell

Dear Jo:

Would you please give your readers some hints on protecting themselves against pickpockets and purse snatchers? The elderly population are prime targets for this type of crime. I am sending you some literature that we distribute to our senior citizen centers — please pass it on to your (larger) readership.

Sergeant M.H.
City Policeman

Dear Sergeant H.:

Thank you for your letter and the information — which I have edited.

Older people are more vulnerable to this type of crime because of the changes that go along with aging — decreased strength and slower reflexes — and because they often live in or frequent high population density areas.

Before leaving home, it is wise to plan where you'll be going and what in the line of cash and credit cards you'll need. Never carry more than the necessities.

Men should never carry their wallets in their back pants pocket. Pickpockets are so skilled that their victims seldom know that they have been robbed until it's too late.

Pockets are often picked during diversions. Pickpockets usually work in pairs; one bumps you and the other makes the grab. A popular diversion these days is the "ketchup spill" whereby someone eating a hot-dog with copious amounts of ketchup on it spills it on the victim. While the first partner supposedly helps the victim wipe off the substance, the accomplice picks the pocket or runs off with a purse.

The safest place for men to carry their wallets is in their inside jacket pockets.

Purse snatchers usually come from behind, grab the purse and then run and disappear around a corner or into the crowd.

Some helpful hints to prevent purse snatching are:

- Carry your purse (latchside pressed tight to your body) with your arm through the handle or strap.
- Think "purse snatcher" when in a dense crowd and act accordingly.
- Never leave your purse in an unattended shopping cart or on a counter.
- Don't drape your purse over the back of your chair in a restaurant. Instead, place it on your lap or put it on the floor under the table.
- When trying on clothes in a store, do not leave your purse or your valuables in the dressing room.
- In times of stress or when going to an overly crowded area, put your few valuables in a small shoulder strap bag and wear it under your coat.

Remember that pickpockets are quick, young and agile and are generally between the ages of 14 and 24. If holding onto your wallet or purse during a robbery means physical harm — let it go, it's not worth getting hurt.

Rocks buy insurance with latest win

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Livonia Stevenson tried to get a piece of the Plymouth Salem Rocks on Friday, but all the host Spartans could find was a terminated policy.

Salem kept rolling by winning its 11th basketball game in 12 starts this season — burying the Spartans, 95-68.

The 27-point victory gives the Rocks a little more protection in the Lakes Division race in the Western Lake Activities Association.

Stevenson, which took the Rocks to overtime before losing 76-74 in a game played last month, nearly eliminated itself from contention with the loss. Stevenson fell to 8-5 overall and 4-3 in divisional play.

"This is a big one, but we need another one, we can't overlook any of them," said Salem coach Bob Brodie, whose team is 6-0 with four games left to play in the division.

Salem, which had control from start to finish, took advantage of the absence of 6-foot-9 Stevenson shot-blocker Glenn Szeman, who sat out the game with the chicken pox.

THE ROCKS zipped in-and-around Stevenson's half-court trap, scoring layup after layup. In the final quarter, the Rocks shot 100 percent from the field (14-for-14). For the game they hit 65 percent (38 of 58).

Eleven of 12 Salem players scored with five netting double figures led by senior forward Ryan Johnson's 20 points.

Other scoring contributions came from junior center Jake Baker (15), senior guard Tom Noonan (13), junior forward K.C. Kirkpatrick (11) and junior reserve forward John Hoffmeyer (10).

Junior center Cliff Lee, who had eight off the bench, squandered a chance to be the sixth Salem player to score in double figures when he missed a dunk.

"You're going to shoot a good percentage when you're shooting from two feet and in," said Brodie. "But we made some nice passes inside and we were very unselfish. We made some nice decisions on the floor. When you execute the press breaker well, you'll get some layups."

basketball

STEVENSON content to fire away from outside, found itself down 20-8 after one quarter and 43-33 at the half.

The Spartans got within seven, 45-38, with 7:19 left in the third quarter on one of Ron Baran's five 3-pointers, but Salem went on a tear at the end of the period, going up by 18 on a pair of three-pointers from Mike Mulder.

The fourth quarter was all Salem.

The Rocks got just about everybody into the act, outscoring Stevenson 34-25.

"We never got in sync," said Stevenson coach Jim McIntyre. "Every time we got within nine (points), we never took charge to make it a ball game."

Baran, a senior guard, and Steve Leonard, a 6-5 senior forward, scored 25 and 20, respectively.

But overall the Spartans could only make 20 of 67 shots from the floor for 29 percent. Stevenson's three guards — Baran, Rick Laven and Matt Grodzicki — hit a combined total of eight for 35.

"We never shot as many balls that didn't have a chance to go in, it was total team effort," McIntyre said. "But Salem played well. They executed when they had to get it done. Give them credit."

BRODIE WAS pleased with not only the way his team shot the ball, but with the way they played defense.

"We had a hand in the face and they didn't get too many second shots. That's critical against Stevenson," he said.

The absence of the 6-9 Szeman may have had an affect on the lopsided outcome.

"With Szeman back on their half-court trap it makes a difference. Once you break it, you're looking to get by him at 6-9. But when you're attacking the basket three-on-one without him back there, it's tough for them to stop," said Brodie.

"It's too bad because he (Szeman) had been coming along and making strides," said McIntyre. "He gives us a different dimension. He makes you pull up and think before you start attacking the basket. There were so many times tonight where they (Salem) just put the head down and drove the basket.

"But tonight, with or without him (Szeman), we were out of sync offensively and defensively."

And while Stevenson could not absorb the loss of its key post player, Salem is a team of interchangeable parts.

"This is probably the most depth since I've been coaching the varsity," Brodie said. "So many people are contributing and when everybody works as hard as they have in practice, it makes for a good situation."

Nothing like a good insurance policy.

Salem sets sights on division crown

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Plymouth Salem is having an outstanding gymnastics season, but the Rocks are working toward even better things in the weeks ahead.

Salem, rated No. 5 in the state, won its fourth straight dual meet against visiting Farmington Wednesday, boosting its record to 4-0.

The Rocks, who scored 132.35, can win the Lakes Division title when they meet defending Western Lakes Activities Association champion North Farmington tonight at North. The Falcons scored 121.9.

"I'm working on peaking my kids," Salem coach Kathi Kinsella said. "I need to keep them healthy, interested and happy. They've been good for so long, but they need to stay intense.

"I don't want them learning new stuff. We have to keep drilling the old stuff. We have to keep things as clean as possible, because I think we can beat (North)."

SALEM HAS a big dual meet next Monday when it faces cross-campus rival Plymouth Canton. Both have excellent teams this year, and bragging rights will be more coveted than usual. Looking farther ahead, the WLAA meet will be Thursday, March 1, at Northville.

"We're hoping to peak at the right time," Kinsella said. "The sport, for (her athletes) right now is 90 percent mental. Physically, we're in good shape. I'm excited about this team."

In trying to keep her gymnasts sharp and interested, Kinsella gave some the night off Wednesday. Others, on a team loaded with talent, had the opportunity to compete.

Kinsella said she asked for volunteers who had qualified in certain events to step aside. Freshman star Courtney Gonyea didn't compete because of pulled knee ligaments. Jenny Skylakos was not on vault, and Kim Miller didn't compete on bars.

Miller, however, set a school record in the floor exercise, and she also was first on vault and on the balance beam.

Her score of 9.35 in floor erased the record of 9.30 set by Jackie Huff in 1987, and which Miller and Gonyea had tied. She scored 9.1 on vault and 9.15 on beam.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Kim Miller won the vault, beam and floor exercise events.

'I've had good teams before but never this much talent — and talent for the future to develop.'

— Kathi Kinsella
Salem gymnastics coach

AUTUMN BUNCH was the only Salem gymnast doing all-around but merited first place in that category. She posted a personal best of 34.75, finishing first on bars (8.55), second on vault (8.6), beam (8.65) and floor (8.95).

"She wanted to break 34," Kinsella said. "She's always been 33.8, 33.9, and she had a good meet."

gymnastics

Kinsella also cited the performances of Jenny Wong, Stefanie Anguilo and Theresa Giacherio.

Wong, competing in her first high school meet, qualified on bars, vault and floor. She was fifth on vault (7.9), tied for fourth on bars (7.8) and seventh on floor (7.9).

"I said 'Courtney is out; I've got some spots open, Jenny. Do you want to go for it?'" Kinsella said. "It turned out real well. It was her first time on bars and floor."

Anguilo met the qualifying score on floor, and Giacherio, in her debut, scored 8.05 and placed third on vault. Anguilo was fourth on floor (8.1) and sixth on bars (7.4).

SALEM'S AIMEE Wong achieved her best score (8.4) and finished second on bars and also was fourth on vault (7.95).

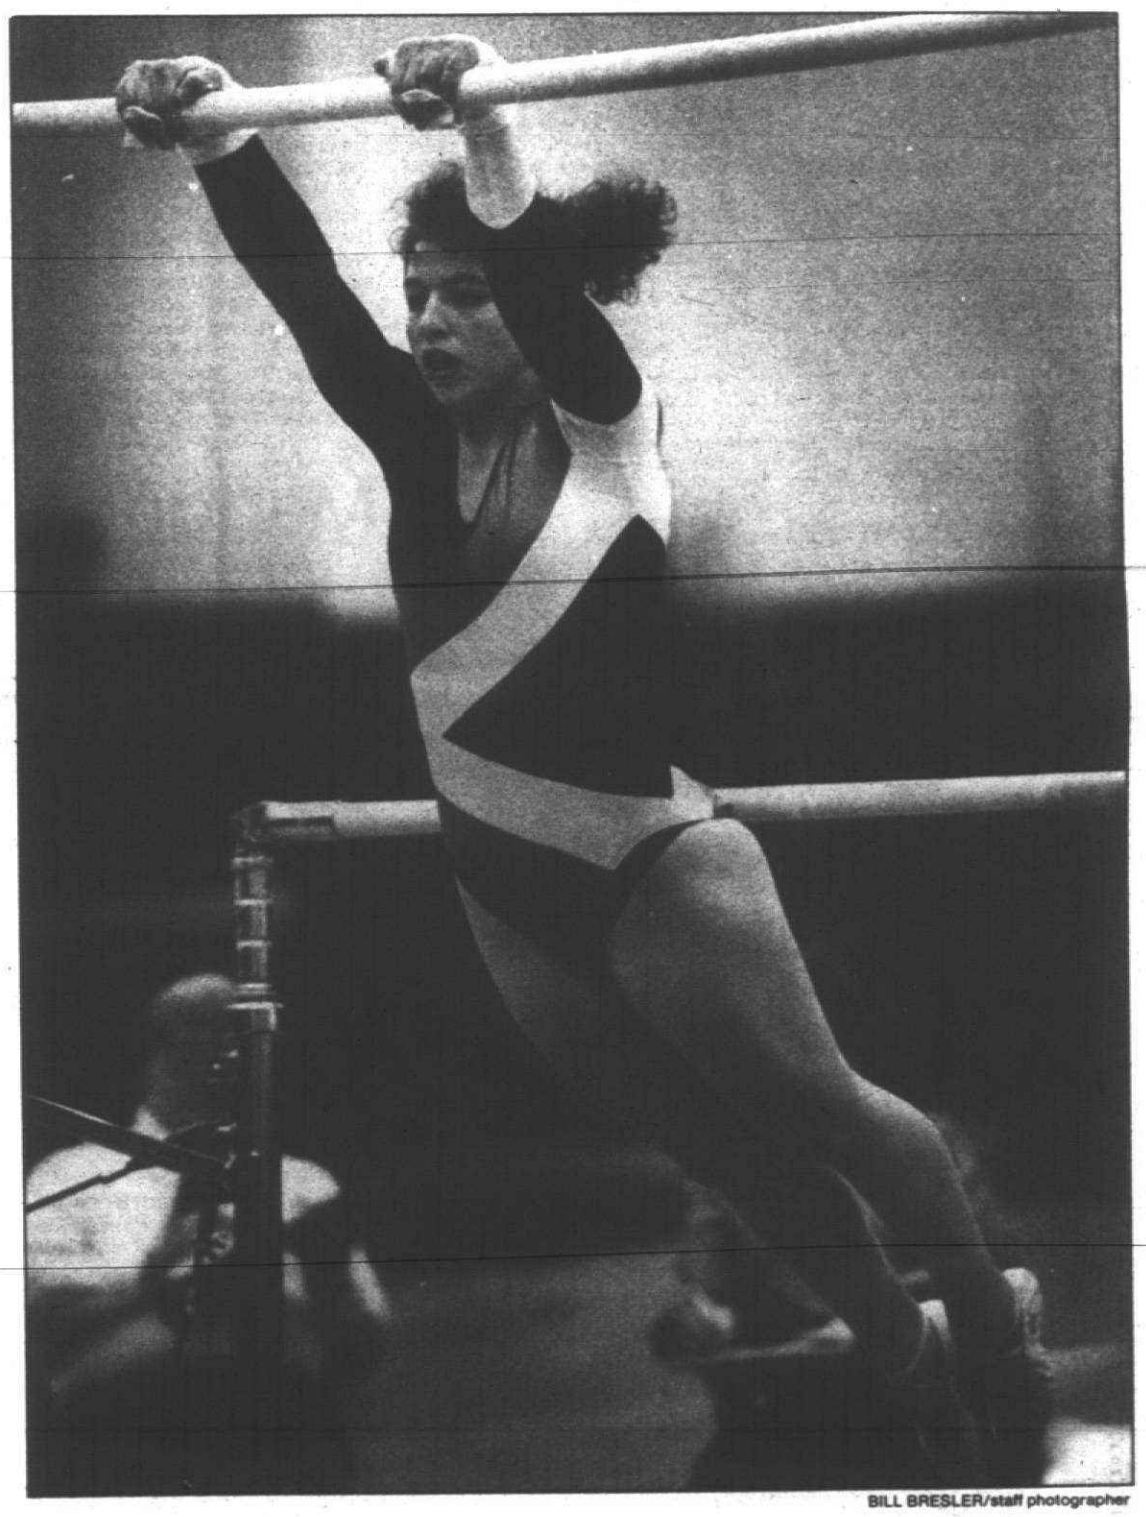
Other high placers for the Rocks included Skylakos, who was fourth on beam (7.9) and Dana Driscoll, who was fifth on floor (8.05) and tied with Farmington's Maya Sardy for sixth on vault (7.7).

The only record Salem hasn't broken is the team score, but that might fall, too, if the Rocks keep going like they have been. The goal is to exceed 136.85.

"The program has come up two notches," Kinsella said. "I've had good teams before but never this much talent — and talent for the future to develop.

"And I haven't competed my full ride yet. I haven't competed all of my best people at the same time yet."

Farmington's Christine Oates placed third on bars (8.35), beam (7.9) and floor (8.7) and compiled a 28.85 all-around total. Teammate Nicole Gerwatowski tied with Wong on bars (7.8) and was fifth on beam (7.5).



BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Autumn Bunch of Plymouth Salem took first place on the uneven parallel bars with an 8.55 score. Bunch, who was second in every other event, recorded a personal best and meet-high score of 34.75 in the all-around.

Chief win streak at 2 in volleyball

Plymouth Canton won its second consecutive volleyball match Wednesday, defeating host Livonia Franklin in a Western Lakes Activities Association match match, 15-11, 9-15, 15-4, 15-10.

The Chiefs are 2-3 in the Western Division and 2-6 in the league.

"These two wins have helped us," Canton coach Jacque Merrifield said. "We needed it to get over the edge and feel what it's like to win.

"Now that we've gone through the league, I think it will be easier the second time around, and I think we'll come on and surprise some of the teams."

Susan Ferko led the Chiefs with 18 kills (out of 26 attacks), and Christyn Halliday played an all-round good match, collecting nine kills and 13 digs. Ferko had nine digs, and Halliday had 20 hitting attempts.

Cindy Granger was the leader in other areas with four aces and 21 assists. Danielle Meyka assisted on 11 kills and served two aces. Lorena Sanford matched Granger's four aces and helped on defense with 11 digs.

"The key is the time it takes to get to know each other and what balls the other players are going to go for," Merrifield said. "It's made them more comfortable, and they're playing relaxed."

Franklin's Erica Sundeck recorded 10 kills in 27 attacks. Emily Skura added four aces in 23 serves. Teammate Nicole Chiesa collected two in 17 serves.

The Patriots are 2-5 in the WLAA.

Rocks, Canton coast to victory

Plymouth Salem evened its swimming record at 4-4 while blasting host Walled Lake Central out of the water Thursday, 133-38.

The Rocks, 1-1 in Lakes Division dual meets, won every event and did so without Ron Orris, who is in Europe with the United States Junior National team. He's expected to be back Thursday for the meet with North Farmington at Salem.

Curt Witthoff and Albert Sneath registered two first places apiece for the Rocks.

Witthoff was the lead-off man on both relays. He, Bryan Keppen, Joe Pawluszka and Sneath comprised the medley unit, which posted a 1:30.82 time. Witthoff, Paul Schryer, Brett Meik and Gary Bergman combined to win the freestyle relay in 3:44.37.

Sneath's other victory came in the 100 freestyle in which he had a 55.26 time.

The other freestyle winners were Chris Caloia in the 200 (1:58.73), Eric Bunch in the 50 (25.17) and Brady Musson in the 500 (5:45.4).

Matt Erickson's individual medley swim of 2:20 netted him first place, and Craig Wilsher took butterfly honors with a 1:03.44 swim. Salem's Pat McManaman compiled a 225-point total in diving.

Scott Helmstadter captured the backstroke in 1:06.25, and Matt Wisniewski completed Salem's sweep of individual events by winning the breaststroke in 1:11.53.

PLYMOUTH CANTON extended its winning streak to two meets Thursday and is 2-0 in the Western Division after pounding Walled Lake Western 137-32 at Canton.

The Chiefs, 2-4 overall, won every event and went 1-2-3 in all but the backstroke, 500 freestyle and breaststroke.

"It was a good meet for us," Canton coach Hooker Wellman said. "We got a chance to swim some of our JV kids and see how they are."

Doug Nevi and Bob Fisher had two firsts apiece for the Chiefs.

Nevi, Shawn MacInnis, David Nevi and Matt Boland went 1:53.77 in the medley relay, and Nevi also won the backstroke in 1:03.44.

Fisher swam the 200 freestyle in 2:03.18 and teamed with Wes Shasko, Pat Lancaster and Kevin Beach for a winning time of 3:51.6 in the freestyle relay.

Canton's other freestyle winners were Drew Lang in the 50 (24.92), Steve Geddes in the 100 (53.46) and Jeff Brandenburg in the 500 (5:43.55).

Matt Tertel won the individual medley (2:20.71), Bryce Anderson the butterfly (55.8) and Ryan Henkel the breaststroke (1:12.61). Canton's Nick Atwell won the diving with 194.15 points.

Western is 0-2 and 1-7.

Churchill sends Canton to defeat

basketball

More basketball, 4C

Mike Thomas scored a game-high 20 points and grabbed six rebounds Friday to lead Livonia Churchill to a 52-40 victory over host Plymouth Canton.

"Mike Thomas played just an outstanding game for us. His scoring and contributions were well balanced," said Churchill coach Fred Price.

The Chargers improve their record to 7-4 overall and 3-3 in the Western Lakes Activities Association's Western Division. Canton, having lost five straight, drops to 2-4 and 5-7.

Churchill mounted leads of 11-8 after one quarter and 23-18 at halftime en route to the victory.

"I really think our kids played a strong defensive game. It was a good win," Price said.

Tony Coshatt and Karl Wukie sparked the Chiefs with six points apiece.

The Charger converted 10 of 18 free throws, while Canton connected on 11 of 17.

THURSTON 56, MELVINDALE 49: The Eagles, thanks to Jason Muller's 15 points on Friday, gained a Tri-River League basketball victory on the road.

Despite trailing 26-22 at halftime, the Eagles outscored Melvindale 17-10 in the third quarter and 17-13 in the fourth quarter to seal the victory.

Senior forward D.J. Kellogg scored 14 points for Thurston. Senior guard Colin Shanahan added 11.

Junior foward Don Kujaj paced Melvindale with a game-high 16 points.

The Eagles are 10-8 overall and 7-2 in the league.

Melvindale is 2-9, 2-7.

BISHOP BORGESS 82, BISHOP GALLAGHER 63: Redford Bishop Borgess scooted to a 32-21 halftime lead Friday, defeating host Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher.

Senior guard Shawn Respert scored a game-high 21 points to give the Spartans an offensive lift. Artie Brown and Randy White chipped in 17 and 15, respectively.

Brian Smith scored 20 points in a losing effort for the Lancers.

Borgess is 11-2 overall and 7-1 in the Catholic League Central Division. Gallagher is 6-8, 4-4.

WAYNE 47, SOUTHGATE 38: Despite being tied 17-17 at halftime on Friday, Southgate Anderson couldn't pull off an upset against highly-touted Wayne Memorial.

The Titans tried to slow the pace in the second half, but Wayne still managed to outscore Southgate 10-5 in the third quarter and 20-16 in the fourth quarter.

Kevin Hankerson pourred in a game-high 22 points to lead Wayne. He converted eight of 10 free throws. Senior forward Pierre Hixson added 12.

Junior forward Tim Gross scored 14 points for the Titans.

The Zebras connected on 19 of 24 free throws.

Wayne remains in first place in the Wolverine A League with a perfect 10-0 record. They are 15-1 overall.

FRANKLIN 90, W.L. WESTERN 44: All 13 players scored Friday for Livonia Franklin, as the host Patriots routed Walled Lake Western.

"It was good to see everyone play," Franklin coach Rod Hanna said. "Our team did the job and did it well."

Senior guard Craig Overaitis guided a balanced attack for Franklin, scoring 16 points. Dave Barina added 15 points and eight rebounds, while John Santi contributed 14 points.

Senior guard Chris Johnson poured in 20 points for Western.

"They came out and threw a full-court press at us," Western coach Brian Ives said. "We handled it OK, but their speed just killed us."

The Patriots even their overall record at 6-6. They are 4-2 in the WLAA Western Division. Western is 1-11, 0-6.

DEARBORN 71, REDFORD UNION 69: Muhammed Abdrabboh connected on a jumper at the buzzer Friday to lead the Pioneers past the host Panthers.

Abdrabboh's jumper came just nine seconds after RU sophomore Bill Malecki converted a three-pointer to tie the score at 69.

"We would have liked our defense to be better. I think we had better personnel than they did," RU coach Tip Smathers said.

Steve Harworth sparked Dearborn with 16 points, nine of which came in the fourth quarter.

Steve Nowak scored a game-high 23 points to lead RU. Dan Lezotte added 19 and Malecki 11.

The Panthers record falls to 6-8 overall and 1-4 in the Northwest Suburban League. Dearborn improves to 5-8, 1-4.

JOHN GLENN 51, W.L. CENTRAL 41: Junior forward Garnal Ahmed scored 12 points Friday to pace Westland John Glenn past host Walled Lake Central.

John Glenn is 7-5 overall and 3-4 in the WLAA Lakes Division.

The Rockets took control early, jumping to a comfortable 27-10 halftime lead.

Jason Olson scored a game-high 22 points in a losing cause for the Vikings (0-7, 1-11).

CRANBROOK 58, CLARENCEVILLE 51: It took overtime Friday, but visiting Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook still defeated Livonia Clarenceville.

Cranbrook, guided by 15 points from Tennay Evans, outscored Clarenceville 9-2 in the extra session.

Kenrick Harrington and Derek Herr scored 11 points apiece to lead the Trojans.

Clarenceville is 5-9 overall and 1-6 in the Metro Conference.

Big men power North victory

By Dan O'Meara

basketball

Size eventually overruled spunk on the basketball court Friday night at Farmington High School.

North Farmington, apparently tired of being pushed around by the smaller Falcons, put its height advantage to good use in the second half of its 67-57 victory.

"The three big kids played well at the end, and that was the difference. We got the ball to some people in the box, and they started scoring," North coach Tom Negoshian said.

The big kids are Eric Carlson, Bill Chwalik and Eric Detter, but Carlson, the tallest one at 6-foot-6, was foremost among them this night.

Carlson racked up a game-high 19 points on seven field goals and 5-of-7 free throw shooting to lead the Raiders, 5-1 in the Lakes Division and 8-4 overall.

BUT DETTER and Chwalik pitched in at a crucial point in the late third quarter and early part of the fourth, scoring most of their eight and seven points, respectively, when it had the maximum impact.

"Carlson killed them inside. "The big guys just played a helluva game," said North guard Matt Hoffman, who played a big role himself with 18 points and eight assists.

Farmington, trailing 27-26 at halftime, jumped in front with a pair of triples by Brian Browne and Chris Schmid, and Greg Bjedov's three layups helped the Falcons create their biggest lead of the game, 41-35, midway in the third period.

But that's when North turned it around.

The Raiders scored the next seven points in little more than a minute to regain the lead, 42-41, but they didn't stop there. North, leading 48-45, after three, posted the first eight points of the final quarter to complete a 21-4 run that put the Raiders on top 56-45 with 6½ minutes remaining.

Hoffman, who sank two triples earlier, made two three-point plays during that stretch. Detter scored six points, Carlson four. Chwalik capped it with a layup and another three-point play for the Raiders.

FARMINGTON coach Bob Kaump agreed with Negoshian the inside play of Carlson, Detter and Chwalik was the deciding factor.

"Carlson kept posting up on us and, with his size, that was too much," he said. "We talked about fronting him but didn't get that accomplished. Detter really hurt us, too. We weren't expecting anything from him."

The Falcons, who fall to 1-5 in the Lakes and 4-8 overall, have experienced their share of frustrations, playing well but losing tight games. Farmington was averaging 59 points going into Friday's game, according to Kaump, and the opposition 60.

"We start a 6-1 center (Bjedov), and I think my kids have been doing a knockout job of playing with taller teams. We're very small, yet we're working very hard," Kaump said.

Guard Brian Browne scored 16 points to lead Farmington, including 7-of-11 free throw shooting. Chris Schmid and Eric Miller chipped in 14 points each, and Bjedov finished with 11.

Browne got nine of his points in the second half, but only two resulted from a drive to the basket. Keeping him out of the paint was necessary for North to win, according to Negoshian and Hoffman.

"MATT HAD to step up and guard Browne, because he was driving in the first half and creating some (layups for his teammates)," Negoshian said.

"I knew I had to go up and do something — and put it on the line," Hoffman said. "I knew, if he didn't have the ball, they weren't going to be able to do anything."

Hoffman spent most of Thursday in the hospital after experiencing stomach pains. The tests proved inconclusive, and there was no outward indication that the ailment affected his play Friday.

"It did a little bit," he said. "I struggled on my shot. I had to push it a little harder, and I missed some free throws. I couldn't keep my elbow in."

Farmington got as close as seven points, 64-57, with back-to-back baskets by Schmid, but there was less than 20 seconds left in the game by then.

"We weren't able to hit anything from outside, and they were able to lay off everybody and pack (the defense) inside," Kaump said. "Then we needed some 3-pointers, and they extended their defense and did a good job of pressuring us."

Henry Ford has SC's number

What success the Henry Ford Community College men's basketball team has enjoyed this season — and there isn't a whole lot of it — can be attributed to Schoolcraft College.

SC lost for the third time this season to the Hawks Wednesday. The combined margin of victory in the three games is 10 points. The most recent loss was also the most "lopsided" — 87-82 at Ford.

"Half of their wins have come against us," noted Ocelot coach Dave Bogataj. His math isn't exact, but it's close. The Hawks improved to just 7-13 overall with the win, 4-8 in the Eastern Conference. SC dropped to 10-16 overall, 3-8 in the conference.

The game was lost for the Ocelots by a lack of execution in the final 2½ minutes. They battled back from a 14-point, first-half deficit to lead 79-78 with under 2½ minutes left.

Ford didn't score on its next three possessions, but neither did SC. "We could have pulled away," said Bogataj. Instead, his team was outscored 9-3 the rest of the way. "Down at the end, we did not play smart basketball. We got silly with it."

ONE OF THOSE "silly" things was not getting the ball to the right people. Randy Watters canned six of his first seven shots before getting into first-half foul trouble. He was a major reason the Ocelots got off to a 20-8 start, but in the final minutes "he didn't even touch the ball."

The Hawks owned the rest of the opening half, building a 47-38 halftime lead. SC battled back, however, eventually tying it with six minutes left in the game. It was a back-and-forth struggle the rest of the way, until Ford's late run iced it.

What also ruined the Ocelots was a lack of rebounding. "We did not have a rebounding mentality," said Bogataj, noting his team's total of just 20 boards. Ed Hudson and Al Hudson each had five to top the team.

Ken Fuster poured in 23 points (14 in the second half) to pace SC. Watters finished with 19 (15 in the first half) and Tom Progar came off the bench to net eight, all in the second half.

Ford had five players reach double-figures in scoring: Brian Miller (18), Livonia Stevenson grad Chris Nazelli (13), Michael Wink and John Seurynck (12 each), and Plymouth Salem grad Bill Anderson (11).

Madonna falls shy

The good news was Madonna College's women's basketball team never surrendered. It overcame three double-digit deficits in Thursday's battle with Concordia, including a 12-pointer late in the second half.

The bad news was, the Fighting Crusaders were able to catch up but not stay up.

Concordia always had an answer, including a 10-1 run over the final four minutes to close out a 71-62 win at Madonna.

The Crusaders dropped to 4-9 with the loss. The Cardinals are 11-12.

"We struggled real hard. But as soon as we'd get back in it, (Concordia) would get a surge," said Madonna coach Bob Belf.

"Where we're really getting hurt against all these teams is our own execution and failure to take care of the ball in the last four or five minutes. We have to find somebody to step up and take charge down the stretch."

IT DIDN'T help when Michelle Dyksinski, Madonna's major inside threat, fouled out with 3½ minutes left. She exited after scoring 14 points and grabbing seven rebounds.

Concordia had a 10-point lead early, but Madonna tied it at 12. The Cardinals answered with another surge that gave them a 36-26 halftime advantage.

Madonna battled back to get to within two early in the second half, but again Concordia shifted gears to jump ahead by 12.

Lisa Kline's three-pointer with four minutes left tied the score at 61 for Madonna. It also ended the Crusaders' comebacks.

Kline finished with 18 points and nine rebounds. Holly Murphy totaled 14 points and 11 boards, and Becky Poszywak got 10 points. Cheryl Schlickenmeyer's 18 points was best for the Cards; Gretchen Krug collected 17 and 10 rebounds, and Lisa Smith chipped in with 11 points.

Belf was not discouraged, despite the defeat. "We're still playing better and better and better. It's more our offensive lapses that are causing problems. Our defense is getting better every night."

S'craft women rip HFCC

Schoolcraft College's women's basketball team overcame a slow start with strong second-half defense, limiting Henry Ford Community College to 19 points over the final 20 minutes to record a 69-52 triumph at home Wednesday.

The win left the Lady Ocelots a game ahead in the loss column in the Eastern Conference race with an 8-2 mark (14-4 overall). Oakland CC, Delta CC and Highland Park CC were 8-3. Wednesday's loss dropped Ford to 4-7.

SC started slowly, making just 11 of 35 first-half shots. "It was probably (a lack of) intensity and concentration," said SC coach Jack Grenan. "It shows in the turnovers. We had 13 in the first half."

The Lady Ocelots got that turned around in the second, making just eight. But as Grenan said, "Our second-half defense was the key."

SC trailed 33-28 at halftime; with 14:00 left the game was tied at 43. Tracy Osborne turned the tide in SC's favor with two three-pointers to put the Lady Ocelots up 49-43.

"That seemed to spark us," Grenan said. "Everybody dug in. Plus, our full-court pressure seemed to wear on them."

North win big step in Lakes

swimming

North Farmington's hopes of winning the Lakes Division dual-meet swimming championship received a major boost Thursday when the Raiders defeated Livonia Stevenson 92-80 in the North pool.

The Spartans won six of 11 events, but North's depth proved to be the difference.

Chuck Chuba led the Raiders, 3-0 in the Lakes and 3-2 overall, with firsts in the 50 and 100 freestyles. He recorded times of 23.44 and 51.2, respectively. Chuba also combined with Jerry Jehle, Dan Knipper and Chris Knoche to win the freestyle relay in 3:33.56.

"I didn't know what to expect," North coach Sue Gendron said. "It was whoever wanted it, and our kids wanted it badly. They were very excited. Our depth really paid off, but Stevenson also swam very well."

North can wrap up the Lakes Division title with a win Thursday at Plymouth Salem. Stevenson, meanwhile, will host Westland John Glenn. Both meets start at 7 p.m.

Knoche also won the 200 freestyle (1:52.2) and John Juliano the diving with 229½ points to boost North early in the meet.

Key second-place finishes by the Raiders included Knoche in the 500 freestyle (5:03.85), Knipper in the breaststroke (1:07.09) and Mike Drelles in the IM (2:10.38) and backstroke (58.78).

Scott DeWolf and Aaron Rieder each figured in three firsts for the Spartans, now 5-3 overall and 2-1 in the Lakes.

DeWolf captured the 100 butterfly (56.24) and 500 freestyle (4:58.83), while Rieder took the 200 individual medley (2:05.68) and 100 backstroke (57.93).

The two also teamed up with Mike Goecke and Taki Caranicolas to win the 400 freestyle relay in 1:48.29. Stevenson's other first was recorded by Alex Goecke in the 100 breaststroke (1:04.12).

FARMINGTON HILLS Harrison captured first place in eight events Thursday to defeat visiting Livonia Franklin 101-70 and post its first dual-meet victory.

Jason Schwalm, in a leading role for the Hawks, won the 200 freestyle (2:02.96) and butterfly (55.71) and was on the winning freestyle relay team.

Ed Serzo, Chad Hughes and Jason Barringer also had individual and relay success.

Serzo, who won the backstroke (1:00.79), combined with Dana Herman, Jeff Sklar and Craig Dixon for first place in the medley relay (1:58.71).

Hughes, Jeff Hurley, Schwalm and Barringer comprised the freestyle relay team that had a 3:43.62 time. Hughes also won the 50 freestyle (24.92) and Barringer the breaststroke (1:06.06).

Harrison's Carl Johnson had 251.6 points to capture diving honors.

Paul Hokett of Franklin captured two events, the IM (2:12.03) and butterfly (1:00.4). Teammate Paul Champoux took Franklin's other first in the 500 freestyle (5:47.91).

MIKE HOEFLEIN and Troy Shumate each figured in three first place finishes Thursday, leading Redford Catholic Central to a 96-76 boys swim victory over Catholic League rival Birmingham Brother Rice in a meet at Oakland Community College's Orchard Ridge campus.

Hoeflein captured the 50-yard freestyle (23.01) and 100 butterfly (57.25), while Shumate swept the 200- and 500 freestyles with clockings of 1:50.45 and 4:55.68, respectively.

The two also teamed up with John Brogan and Alan Afsari to win the 400 freestyle relay in a state qualifying time of 3:20.97.

Other CC firsts were recorded by Afsari in the 100 freestyle (50.8) and Randy Teeters in the 100 backstroke (58.98).

CC is now 7-1 in dual meets and 3-0 in the Catholic League.

The Shamrocks return to action Thursday at Warren DeLaSalle.

FARMINGTON GOT back on the winning track Thursday, swamping host Westland John Glenn 106-56.

The Falcons, who started with two victories before falling to North Farmington and Berkley, are 3-2 overall and 1-1 in the Lakes Division.

Farmington's G.T. Meili won two individual events and was a member of the winning freestyle relay team. His solo wins occurred in the 200 freestyle (1:55.74) and the 500 freestyle (5:11.54).

Meili was the lead-off man in the relay. Eric Crawford, Gary Kurzer and Tom Bonner followed, and the Falcons finished in 3:39.36.

Bonner was on the winning medley relay team, too, and each of the four swimmers in the relay had an individual win.

Rob Stauffer, Matt Moore, Bonner and Brian Riley swam the medley relay in 1:52.65. Riley came back with a victory in the 50 freestyle (24.53), Bonner went 1:00.28 in the butterfly, Stauffer did the backstroke in 1:04.63 and Moore swam the breaststroke in 1:10.43.

Kurzer was an individual winner, too, his success being in the 100 freestyle (53.32). Teammate Mark Scanio won the IM with a 2:17.33 effort.

Glenn's only victory was in diving.

In the Berkley meet, Farmington won four events. Meili was a double winner in the IM (2:14.37) and 500 freestyle (5:21.98), and Brandon Richardson won the diving with 199.05 points.

The Falcons won the freestyle relay in this meet, too. Kurzer, Riley, Bonner and Meili combined for a 3:39.29 time.

It was good week for Canton netters

WESTLAND JOHN Glenn won its Western Lakes Activities Association encounter Wednesday against visiting North Farmington, defeating the Raiders in three of four games, 15-10, 15-13, 10-15, 15-3.

Sophomore Nikki Wojcik controlled the net for Glenn, recording nine kills and eight solo blocks.

In the final game, Glenn overcame a 3-1 deficit as Ross served 12 consecutive points.

"This was the best net game we've played all season," said Glenn first-year coach Linda Jimenez, whose team had 28 kills and 12 blocks.

North coach Sandy Lubienecki said "most everyone played poorly" for the Raiders.

Amy Post was North's most effective server.

Glenn is 4-3 in the WLAA and 7-9 overall, while North fell to 4-2 and 7-8.

LIVONIA STEVENSON remained undefeated in the Western Lakes Activities Association with a convincing 15-3, 15-0, 15-6 triumph Wednesday over visiting Walled Lake Central.

The Spartans are 8-0 in the WLAA and 13-4 overall.

Laura Zatorski, Stevenson's setter in the first two games, record eight assists in 17 sets. She added six aces in 18 service attempts with no errors.

Teammate Renea Bonser contributed five kills in 12 attacks with no errors. She also had three ace serves, six solo blocks and two assists.

"It was one of our best matches of the year all around," said Stevenson coach Lee Cagle. "Our concern coming in was having Laura and Renea concentrating on one role. Laura concentrated more on setting and Renea concentrated just on hitting. Consequently we were much more fluid."

Andrea Wittrock and Sue Bell each added three kills. The Spartans also got solid passing and defensive play from Collette Rockwell.

LIVONIA LADYWOOD, sparked by junior Rebecca Willey's 10 kills, downed host Harper Woods Regina in a Catholic League Central Division match, 15-3, 15-10.

Other contributions for the Blazers came from Keli Haeger, two aces in 19 serves; Kari Domanski, two aces in eight serves; and Julie Wilson, five digs.

Ladywood is 20-4 overall.

REDFORD ST. AGATHA split a pair of Catholic League matches last week. Agatha is 4-8 overall.

On Thursday, visiting Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher outlasted the Aggies, 15-13, 13-15, 15-8.

Laura Williams had six ace serves in defeat, while teammate Laura Rakowski contributed four kills.

Earlier in the week, Agatha dumped host Detroit DePorres, 15-2, 12-15, 15-1, as Rakowski and Nancy Rychlinski, both seniors, contributed five kills apiece.

300 games no sweat for Reed

JON REED'S first game of the night was a 235 and that's pretty good by anybody's standards, but what made this score so special was that Reed followed it up with back-to-back 300 games.

This occurred Wednesday at West Bloomfield Lanes in the Michigan Beli Men's League.

One perfect game (12 strikes in a row) is a difficult feat, but two perfect games is incredible.

For Reed, 300 games are no stranger. Wednesday's perfect efforts accounted for his 10th and 11th.

Reed's series was 835, thanks to a block of 235-300-300. He converted an amazing 28 strikes in a row.

Reed and his wife Zoe Ann met while competing in Flint a few years ago. They presently live in Redford, where Jon is an accountant for Ameritech Applied Technologies.

Reed carries a 206 average in the Michigan Bell League. He also bowls in the Miller Lite Classic League at Plum Hollow Lanes in Southfield, where he averages 229.

● Last week's column mentioned the introduction of a new bowling radio talk show called Oakland County Bowling Round-up. The show will air at 7:30 p.m. each Thursday on WPON 1410 AM. This should be an interesting show, as host Roy Akers will be on location from various bowling centers.

● How about bowling at Bloomfield Charley's Restaurant on Maple and Orchard Lake Road in West Bloomfield? Not exactly like the real thing, but their newly installed Capcom Bowling video game is interesting.

This is about as close to the real thing as your going to get on a 19 inch video screen. For just one quarter, you can dictate whether or not you want your ball to hook.

The food at Charley's is great and it is just up the road from West Bloomfield Lanes, where Jon Reed rolled a pair of 300 games.

● One segment close to my heart is the youth traveling leagues. This is the foudation for bowling.

Let's give these kids credit. They bowl at a different location every week. This new atmosphere and lane conditions can be puzzling, yet these teenagers keep coming through with excellent scores.

Many of these kids will go on to compete in the area's top leagues and some may even go on to compete in the professional ranks.

The standout league in this area are Wards Burger King Youth Traveling Classic.

Originated by Cecil Ward more than 40 years ago, the league is now directed by Bill and Betty Heder. The Sunday Youth Classic is directed by Jim Lhamon and Ed Wright and the Western Wayne Youth Traveling Classic is under the guidance of Norm Kluska and Joyce Zelek.

● Wayne-Westland just completed its Youth Scholarship Tournament. Bill Ladd won the event with a 715 series, which included a 277 game. The effort gave him a $1,000 scholarship to be applied toward his college tuition.

● In the Sunday Youth Classic League at Parkway Lanes, Julie Wright of Farmington Hills rolled 233/580. Other top scorers included Clint Berryman of Redford (236 game), Jill Lhamon of Farmington Hills (210), Robert McDonald of Farmington Hills (248), Lisa Granfield of Redfort (217), Robbie Lhamon of Farmington Hills (206), Butch Clark of Livonia (212) and Jill Fehrenbach of Farmington Hills (221).

Mercy skiers at peak

Farmington Hills Mercy won its third slalom race Thursday and extended its lead in the Mount Brighton High School Ski Association.

With low score being the best, the Marlins had half the total of runner-up Birmingham Seaholm in the all-league meet.

Mercy scored 24 points, the Maples 42, Brighton 45, Hartland 75, Birmingham Groves 88, East Lansing 101½ and Howell 130.

The Marlins again were paced by Mary Kay Jarneycic, who finished third overall in 32.68.

Mercy, following coach Cass Zarlikowski's formula for success, placed four skiers among the top 10. Megan Lombardi captured fifth place (33.48), Taya Tiplady seventh (34.38) and Patrice Vincenti ninth (34.68).

THE MARLINS lead the MBHSSA with 54 season points, high score being the best in this case. Brighton is second (45) and Seaholm third (44).

There are two more league-wide slalom races today and Tuesday before the day-long league championship meet (slalom and giant slalom) Thursday at Mount Brighton.

Redford Catholic Central is doing as well in the MBHSSA boys competition. The Shamrocks scored a meet low of 16 points Thursday, besting Brighton (24) and East Lansing (60).

The order of finish included Hartland (67), Groves (90½), Seaholm (95), Howell (108), Southfield-Lathrup (137) and Dearborn Divine Child (176).

CC also had four skiers in the top 10, with Chris Jones of Farmington leading the pack. He was second at 29.84, trailing Brighton's Peter Kent (29.25) by less than a second.

The Shamrocks were bunched together with Jason Worley placing third (29.84), Peter Lombardi fifth (30.43) and Jeff Turnas sixth (30.59).

CC holds a two-point advantage over Brighton in the league standings, 71 to 69. Hartland is third with 57 points.

Medical evidence rebuts new theory on cholesterol

fitness
Barry Franklin

Picture a flexible rubber pipe that is hooked up to a water source that regulates flow and pressure.

You now begin to run water through it that contains many different elements, including tiny red particles. This process continues month after month, year after year. Periodically, the flow and pressure may increase or decrease.

One day you decide to turn off the water and gaze into the pipe. You note that the insides have a crusty reddish tint, and that the opening for water to flow through has narrowed considerably.

You now examine the deposits inside the pipe and, in fact, find that they are nothing more than the caked red particles that have been circulating in the pipe for years. Although it seems clear what has happened, you are perplexed by what caused the apparent settling of the particles on the inside of the pipe?

A BYSTANDER appears and attempts to help you resolve the question. After weighing the information that you have provided him, he suggests that the circulating red particles in the water really had little to do with the narrowing of the pipe.

Would you believe his theory? Probably not. Yet, a similar argument has been voiced in "Heart Failure," a new book (Random House, $19.95), by investigative reporter Thomas Moore who also had a recent article in the Atlantic Monthly magazine. Moore suggests that all of the attention given to cholesterol is really based on speculation, not science.

Certainly his contentions have comforted those who have lusted for real butter instead of margarine, whole milk rather than skim, steak in place of fish, and ice cream as an alternative to low-fat yogurt.

Moore charges that the cholesterol-heart disease link has been perpetuated by clinicians, researchers, government officials and food and drug companies, many of whom have a vested interest in cholesterol research. He also contends that the major clinical trials designed to lower blood cholesterol by either diet or drugs have produced disappointing results, and that the small reductions in cholesterol that have been achieved (averaging 5 to 10 percent) don't improve or extend people's lives.

HE NEGLECTS to point out, however, that the failure to produce more dramatic reductions in cholesterol was, in large part, due to poor patient compliance. Thus, it's not surprising that the anticipated health benefits (i.e., markedly reduced fatal and nonfatal heart attacks) weren't achieved in many of these clinical trials. The potential of such measures can only be realized when the intervention is carefully monitored and adhered to.

Admittedly, Moore isn't alone in these views. The cholesterol theory has had a number of distinguished critics over the years. Nevertheless, an overwhelming body of scientific evidence now supports the belief that a sustained high blood cholesterol can lead to heart disease.

Before you decide to take Moore's advice, and go back to your "burgers and greasy french fries," consider the following facts relating diet, elevated blood cholesterol, and coronary heart disease:

● Persons who have high levels of blood cholesterol also have high rates of heart disease. This relationship has been substantiated in numerous scientific investigations, including the famous Framingham Heart Study, begun in 1948, involving more than 5,000 residents of Framingham, Mass. Furthermore, heart disease is virtually nonexistent in persons whose cholesterol level is below 150.

● Increased cholesterol levels are found among countries where the typical diet is high in saturated fats and cholesterol. People who live in Finland and Australia have even higher average blood cholesterol levels (and heart attack rates) than Americans do. Accordingly, they also consume more dietary fat and cholesterol.

● Increased rates of heart disease are found among countries with elevated cholesterol levels. Heart disease is several times more prevalent in the United States, Finland and Australia than it is in Japan or China, where average cholesterol levels are much lower. But Asians who move to America end up increasing their cholesterol levels and heart disease rate.

● Persons with inborn errors of cholesterol metabolism often develop heart disease at an early age. There are many medical reports of children, teenagers and young adults who have died from heart attacks. Almost without exception, these individuals had blood cholesterol levels in excess of 400. Many had cholesterol levels greater than 600.

● Related high cholesterol diseases are associated with heart disease in laboratory animals. Scientists have known for nearly a century that rabbits raised on milk and eggs develop fatty deposits inside their coronary arteries.

● Atherosclerotic deposits are loaded with cholesterol. Autopsy and pathology reports have shown, unequivocally, that it is the low-density lipoprotein (LDL) cholesterol form that actually deposits in blood vessels. Ultimately, these same blood vessels become clogged by the formation of hardened plaques. In contrast, many health experts believe that high density lipoprotein (HDL) cholesterol actually helps to clear the blood vessel — a human "Drano," so to speak.

In conclusion, it appears that many factors may contribute to the development of heart disease, including heredity, cigarette smoking, high blood pressure, obesity and sedentary living. But a basic fact underlies all of the attention focused on cholesterol: These "risk factors," in and of themselves, do not seem to accelerate the atherosclerotic process unless the cholesterol level is elevated (above 150). Accordingly, some scientists have even gone so far as to suggest that cholesterol is not just a "primary" risk factor for heart disease — it is the only risk factor.

PERHAPS DR. Thomas Chalmers of Harvard's School of Public Health summed it up best when he said: "People who eat high-fat, high-cholesterol diets all of their lives suffer high rates of heart disease. It's as simple as that. A moderate change of diet may not bring instant results, but at worst it's harmless, and it just might save your life."

Although the mechanisms underlying the atherosclerotic process still are open to debate, there's no longer any questions that too much cholesterol is hazardous to your health.

Hawks take lead in Western race

Farmington Hills Harrison recorded a crucial Western Lakes Activities Association win at Northville, 68-59, behind the strength of Andy Smith's 27-point performance Friday.

With the win, the Hawks avenge their only Western Division loss and sit alone atop the division with a 5-1 slate. Harrison has won six straight games and is 9-3 overall. Northville falls to 8-4 and 4-2.

Smith canned 11 of his game-high total in the second quarter, vaulting the Hawks to a 36-26 halftime lead after the squads battled to a 15-15, first-quarter standoff.

Northville pulled to within eight after three quarters, 52-44, but Harrison nailed 10 of 15 free throws in the fourth quarter to fend off any comeback hopes by the Mustangs.

For the game, the Hawks were 16 of 24 from the free throw line, Northville 11 of 15.

Guard Todd Herremans contributed 14 points for the Hawks, including two 3-pointers in Harrison's 21-point second quarter. Teammate Rob Karbowski finished with 11 points.

Northville was paced by senior forward Joe Kaley's 20 points. Jason Flading added 13 and Scott Meredith 11.

"They're just a solid team," Northville JV coach Larry Taylor said. "We didn't play smart in the second quarter. We turned the ball over too much. They were just quicker than we were."

CRANBROOK 58, CLARENCEVILLE 51: It took overtime Friday, but visiting Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook still defeated Livonia Clarenceville.

Cranbrook, guided by 15 points from Tennay Evans, outscored Clarenceville 9-2 in the extra session.

Kenrick Harrington and Derek Herr scored 11 points apiece to lead the Trojans.

Clarenceville is 5-9 overall and 1-6 in the Metro Conference.

S'FIELD CHRIST. 69, LUTH. WESTLAND 62: Mike Albers poured in 21 points Friday to lift the visiting Eagles past the Warriors.

Sophomore guard Jason Taylor chipped in 15 points for Southfield Christian.

Junior forward Chris Habitz controlled the Warriors offense, scoring a game-high 22 points. He also grabbed 11 rebound and dished off six assists. Doug Nelson contributed 16 points.

Southfield Christian improves to 8-4 overall and 3-1 in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference. The Warriors are 5-7, 3-2.

To buy or not to buy a boat

By Debbie L. Sklar
special writer

Ship ahoy, mates!

With the Detroit Boat and Fishing Show going on at Cobo Hall in Detroit this week, it's a good time to consider joining the more than 700,000 registered marine boat owners in Michigan. Hey, if both New York Real Estate aficionado Donald Trump and ex-Miami Vicer Don Johnson can own one, so can you.

But with thousands of boats, yachts and other marine vehicles on the market, where in the world do you begin?

"The first thing you have to do is decide what type of boat you want," said Lindy Rymill, coowner of Avon Sailboats Limited in Rochester Hills. "Next, you have to find the right dealer because they can usually help you find the right boat."

Rymill said potential customers should also take the same approach in buying a boat as they do a car.

"Buying a sailboat is like buying a car; there are basic types of sailboats just like there are cars, like an 18-wheel truck, motorcycle or Porshe. They all go down the road, but each is different. And it's the same way in sailing."

Rymill suggest customers take a few minutes to decide what type of sailboat they want whether it's for the family or independent use.

"They have to decide whether they want a sailboat that's easy to learn or a sail boat that takes a little bit more work," she said. "The most common way for a person to get into sailing is to buy a small boat to start with.

"BUT THAT'S not the only way. There are sailing programs, schools and clinics to help someone learn the art of sailing."

If the buyer is interested in purchasing a small boat, prices range from $60 to $10,000.

"The majority of our first time customers spend around $4,000 to $5,000 on their first boat. It's not as expensive of a hobby as one would believe."

In regards to sailboats, there are three different categories to choose from — catamaran (two separate hulls with a trampoline in the center), board boats and day sailors.

"Catamarans are generally more sporty, tend to go faster, are more exhilarating and are a lot wetter," Rymill said. "A catamaran is a good first sailboat for a small family to invest in, but it is a little harder to rig up." Prices range from $5,000 to $8,500.

The board boat is a flat type boat which generally has one single sail and tends to be a little more sporty.

"It only sails — you can't take a family of 12 on it or have a party," Rymill said. "It's a very pure way of sailing." Costs range from $600 to $2,000.

The third choice is the day sailor — "By this I mean a day sailboat you use during the day. It doesn't have a cabin in it and generally, it's a drier, speeder, wider and deeper boat that you sit inside or versus on top of."

"A day sailor can be sailed by one, but they usually appeal to either two or more," Rymill said. Prices, depending on the brand, range from $2,500 to $5,500.

NOW THAT you've got the boat, who's going to teach you how to sail the darn thing?

"We do give rigging lessons with everything we sell," Rymill said. "One of the key things that's helping sailing is the offering of fleets — the joining of a group of sailors who are at the same sailing level."

Fleet sailing is an excellent way to learn sailing. You're exposed to a lot of other boats like yours. It's a better way to learn to operate your boat and operate it better, Rymill said.

"Sailing is a very intense sport," she said. "It puts you up against the elements, but there is nothing more rewarding than feeling that wind in your hair as you glide across the cool waters."

But what if sailing isn't your bag and you want something that doesn't seem to take as much work? Maybe a motor boat is more your speed.

According to George Field of Class One Marine in West Bloomfield, there are several different routes that a first time boat owner could embark on.

Filling the intellectual banter void

By Chris Rizk
special writer

In a typical day, most adults talk about work, their household and children.

Not very heady stuff says Dr. Harold Mathis, a West Bloomfield psychologist and marriage counselor. When it comes to meaningful, intellectual banter, the void seems impossible to fill, he said.

Mathis thinks he's found however a way past the "yak, yak, yak" and "blah, blah blah" of everyday conversation. A year ago Mathis formed a different kind of self help group.

Called "I Think" it is his idea of rejuvenating an extinct tradition — talking.

"I think we're becoming a spectator society," Mathis said. "Face to face conversations are dying out. We're interacting with computers."

Technology, while providing innovations that are undeniably making life easier, has inadvertently lessened the need for personal contact for most people, Mathis said.

HIS GROUP provides a wide forum for discussion of topics such as global dilemmas, books, movies and social implications of living in a technological age.

It is not, he said, a therapy group for the lonely,. Mathis calls it instead a "safari into the world of ideas."

So far, his safari has been little attended despite the current or provocative themes.

Mathis is not discouraged, however. He attributes the lack of attendance — he usually has between six and 12 people during each weekly session — to the very thing from which his group evolved, advancing technology that prevents face-to-face contact and keeps society too busy to talk.

And then there's that ever present evil, TV, Mathis said.

"Whole households are built around the television set," he said with antipathy. "People have been taught not to talk. TV is a passive medium. With techonolgy comes a reduction of our own humanity," a lack of passion.

He hopes to restore that emotion during his weekly meetings at the West Bloomfield Library. All he asks is that participants attend the meetings with an open mind he said.

The agendas for upcoming meetings read like a college course syllabus, "What Do You Think" Mathis asks in flyers he prepares for his weekly meetings: "Follow your bliss into the abyss" where an examination of personal mythologies that shape our existence or success beyond belief.

JEFFREY CLARK, 36,is perhaps the youngest male to attend Mathis' group which is composed of people from ages 20 to 60.

A tool and die worker during the day, Clark, of Westland, said he looks forward to sharing ideas and discussing different topics when he meets with the group every Monday.

"Certainly there is more atmosphere for discussion when you go to the I Think meetings," Clark said. "It gives you an opportunity to hear other people's views, no matter what the subject."

On Nov. 20, the discussion was about the opening of the wall in East Germany.

Mathis' reasons for forming the group were more an act of survival than a quest to showcase intelligence.

After 20 years of counseling, Mathis said he was 'starved' for intelligent conversation.

"I consider myself somewhat of an intellectual," he explained. "I read a lot and have a lot of unorthodox ideas. To some extent, I surround myself with people who stimulate me but it's hard to find people who are passionate."

The remedy for a brain dead age may be found he said by filling up on a protein filled "mental diet" and intellectual stimulation.

Mathis' group meets at 7 p.m. every Monday at the West Bloomfield Library on Walnut Lake Road. For more information, call 626-5413.

MOVING PICTURES

"Flashback" (B-, R, 105 minutes) is an entertaining bit of fluff that shifts gears too often to fulfill its mission as the definitive statement about the '60s.

Despite some clever, sardonic comments on that vaunted time in America, the movie isn't thoughtful or serious enough to play in the big leagues. Nonetheless, it's worth your time and money.

San Francisco, 1989, is the point from which the film trips back on what turns out to be comical, albeit cynical, nostalgia.

Straight-arrow FBI agent John Buckner (Kiefer Sutherland) is assigned to get a prisoner, Huey Walker (Dennis Hopper), to Spokane, Wash., for trial. Walker has been on the lam for 20 years, hiding out from a charge of malicious mischief when he disconnected Vice President Spiro Agnew's car from the train as it pulled out of the station on a whistle-stop tour.

The FBI is more concerned, however, with his status as an escaped prisoner. Their pride suffers when a prisoner escapes.

Films such as "Flashback" have a lot to say about the '60s and, as well, about contemporary times. Unfortunately, most of the message is petty lightweight and the frivolity of Walker's character doesn't match the seriousness of the message his fame is supposed to rest upon.

There's also a buddy-film hiding in all the shenanigans as the enforced comradeship of guard and prisoner leads to the usual complications — the menacing local lawman, Sheriff Hightower (Cliff De Young) and the evolution from antagonism to respect and camaraderie between Buckner and Walker.

THERE'S ALSO a few '60s twists — a former flower child, Maggie (Carol Kane) and two aging yuppies, Barry and Hal (Richard Masur and Michael McKean). The latter two exhibit great and funny guilt for having rejected their counter-culture youth for middle-age comfort and success.

While the film has enough laughs, some poignancy and an occasional witty socio-political comment, it's awfully slow getting started, has too many rapid mood shifts and too many unlikely coincidents. But, it's still fun.

In "Heart Condition" (B-, R, 95 minutes), racist Los Angeles Detective Jack Moony (Bob Hoskins) is eager to nail high-profile, black Beverly Hills lawyer Leon Stone (Denzel Washington). In addition to his racial prejudice and his suspicions about Stone's illegal activities, Moony is upset when his girl, Crystal Gerrity (Chloe Webb) leaves him to take up with Stone.

Then, in a rare stroke of fate, Moony has a heart attack, Stone is killed and Moony is saved by having Stone's heart transplanted. To further aggravate the bigoted detective, Stone turns up as a ghost to advise Moony on how to catch the guys that bumped Stone off.

COMPLICATIONS also include a U.S. Senator dead from a drug overdose — but since the senator was on a committee to pass anti-drug legislation, his death is hushed up. There's a connection, friends, so stay with it — film at eleven.

There's enough plot, a clever idea and excellent performances by Denzel Washington and Bob Hoskins so it's a worthwhile evening even though "Heart Condition" won't raise everyone's blood pressure. Reviewed by Jason Brown.

If you're in the mood for Bette Midler or if you enjoy slow-paced, but well-produced soap operas, then "Stella" (C, PG-13, 105 minutes) is your emotional detergent.

In the title role, based on Olive Proudty's novel, "Stella Dallas," Bette Midler is a sharp-witted, smart-talking and fast-moving barmaid who attracts the attention of young Dr. Dallas (Stephen Collins).

Back in '69 when this, the third and hopefully last "Stella" opens, young doctors were quite naive. How else can you explain young Dr. Dallas being infatuated by a somewhat chunky, late 30ish-looking barmaid dancing on the bar.

It's just too hokey for words. After the dance, Stella refuses Stephen's entreaties for a date with a convincing, "stop-some-more" attitude and pretty soon they're hugging and kissing and Stella is pregnant.

Recognizing the difference in their worlds, Stella rejects his marriage proposal, and his money and raises daughter Jenny (Trini Alvarado) herself.

There's all the usual, soapy ups-and-downs and the remarkable durability of Stella and Stephen. After 20 years she still looks like a chunky, late 30ish-looking barmaid and he is still young Dr. Dallas. He just dresses better.

Good performances, music and photography can't save this one.

STILL PLAYING:

"All Dogs Go To Heaven" (B+) (Gse) 90 minutes.

Well-known voices back this animated story about Charlie the German Shepherd and lucky the Dachshund.

"Always" (B-) (PG) 110 minutes.

"Back to the Future Part II" (B+) (PG) 90 minutes.

"Blaze" (A) (R) 110 minutes.

Superb Paul Newman portrayal of Louisiana Governor Earl K. Long with Lolita Davidovich excellent as stripper/girlfriend, Blaze Starr.

"Born on the Fourth of July" (A) (R) 144 minutes.

Touching, graphically disturbing, poignant, frightening autobiography of Ron Kovic (Tom Cruise), a paraplegic Viet Vet.

"Crimes and Misdemeanors" (A+) (PG-13) 100 minutes.

Woody Allen at his best in this romantic comedy about family life with all its joy and sadness.

The new installment of "The International Tournes of Animation" used to highlight the Detroit Film Theatre winter schedule. Lines typically stretch out the door for the sold-out night of contemporary animation from around the world.

This weekend's three-night run of "The Animation Celebration" offers a somewhat more commercial look at 24 animated shorts from a half dozen countries. These were the most popular films at the Second and Third Los Angeles International Animation Celebrations.

Though often radically different in terms of concept and execution, each animated film brings home the same point — cartoons aren't just for kids anymore.

Take Bill Plympton's brutally funny "25 Ways to Quit Smoking" for example. In a companion piece to his earlier "My Face," a smoker demonstrates fool-proof ways to kick the habit. In a section of self-discipline, the smoker follows each puff with a punch into his impossibly malleable face.

THERE ARE some familiar images to ground a commercial audience. Matt Groeing's "The Simpsons" (who currently have their own half-hour television show) are interspersed throughout the program, as are award-winning TV spots for Yoplait and MTV.

Some cartoons even reflect the spirit of international relations. In the American-made "Propogandance," stereotypical Russian and American dancers come together in the performance of traditional cossack and '80s break dancing moves. Unfortunately, it's better in concept than in execution.

More interesting is "The Marathon," a touching Soviet tribute to Mickey Mouse in celebration of his 60th anniversary. Moscow student animators show Mickey cavorting on one half of the screen while generations grow up and die on the other, all the while entertained by the cartoon mouse.

The Pixar Studio's "Tin Toy," shown in other festivals, displays just how far computer animation has come in the past decade. Pixar's latest effort, "Knicknack," about a snowman's efforts to break free from his glass prison, makes its debut here.

MY FAVORITE selection is "Umbabarauma," a five-minute whirlwind of color and rhythm set to the music of Jorge Ben Talking Heads leader David Byrne commissioned the film to promote a compilation of Brazilian music he released last year.

Directed by Susan Young and Mike Smith, "Umbabarauma" uses a number of techniques — watercolor on paper, ink brush strokes, oil pastels, drawing and cut-outs on film and also conventional cel animation. It goes far beyond the average music video.

Not all of the choices are this good. "Rarg," which starts with an engaging concept of a kingdom that exists solely in a man's dream and will soon be destroyed when he awakes, doesn't live up to its 21-minute running time.

You certainly get your money's worth from "The Animation Celebration." But at 105 minutes, even a party this good goes on a bit too long.

VIDEO VIEWING

"The Adventures of Milo & Otis" (1989, color, G, 76 minutes) will be available on cassette Jan. 31. The film is a live-action animal fantasy that received very little play at the local theaters last year. Its rapid appearance on video allows your children to view a "G" film — take advantage of this rare opportunity.

Milo the kitten and his friend, a puppy named Otis, spend their day exploring the barnyard where they were born. Gradually, they branch out in the countryside and Milo is swept away by a rapid river current. Otis tries to rescue his friend and they have marvelous adventures. It should delight the young-at-heart as well as the little children.

At the other end of the scale is "Blood Relations" from Nelson Entertainment. This film is so slow and pretentious that they ought to change the company's name to Nelson Snooze.

Dr. Andreas Wells (Jan Ruebes) is a neurosurgeon with too many quirks in his personality for my taste. I certainly wouldn't let him operate on my brain. His estranged son, Thomas (Kevin Hicks), blames dad for the death of mom. Thomas finally returns home with a beautiful fiancee, Marie Desette (Lydie Denier).

Ray Walston appears as wealthy Grandpa Charles MacLeod. The father/son triangle with Marie shapes up as "Donovan's Brain" with sex, but there wasn't enough of anything to keep me from dozing off. You know, I don't really care what happened and you shouldn't either. Available Jan. 25.

FRANK ZAPPA fans will appreciate the master's Jan. 31 release of a half-dozen tapes although — with the exception of "The Amazing Mr. Bickford" — I can't imagine who else might, if there are any clues in the portions I watched of "Uncle Meat — The Mothers of Invention Movie." It's 120 minutes of color footage shot over a 20-year period, starting in 1967.

This counter-culture hodgepodge purportedly presents an alternative view of our time — different, that is, from the plasticized caricatures seen on TV. While I hold no brief for television sit-coms, "Uncle Meat" is even less amusing. It represents home movies at their worst, a terrific lack of discipline and the unmitigated gall to believe that anyone would care to watch two hours of boring nonsense and personal jokes.

"The True Story of Frank Zappa's 200 Motels," "Video From Hell," "Baby Snakes" and "Frank Zappa Live: Does Humor Belong in Music?" are four of the remaining five tapes.

The fifth is one worth your time and attention. Bruce Bickford, aptly billed as "Master of Clay Animation" offers some truly amazing vistas in the little world of clay.

Animation is frame by frame photography and in the case of clay, a frame is shot, the clay is modeled slightly, another frame is exposed and so on. Thus the 55-minute tape contains 79,200 separate sequential photographs, each one requiring planning, record-keeping and modeling of clay.

THE "BICKFORD" musical score was by Frank Zappa, with performances by Ensemble Intercontemporian conducted by Pierre Boulez and The London Symphony conducted by Kent Nagano.

Despite stunning claymation, the images and characters in Bickford's work are always complex and generally hostile. Excretion and violent animal-monsters are major motifs as is the loner versus authoritarian figures.

But the truly amazing animation makes it all worth while, particularly the ways in which forms continually evolve from one another. It's hard to imagine the time, patience and artistic vision required to complete such a project. Nonetheless it will be available for $29.98 on Jan. 31.

A bit of culture

Bandits are long on music and on style

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Guitarist Ken Haas, drummer and bassist Jason Bowes have shed the regimented halls of Catholic Central High School to become the rock group Culture Bandits.

Ken Haas wildly swings his blond mane out from his eyes and kick starts his guitar. Terry Bradley drums along, stripped down to a pair of cutoff sweats and bassist Jason Bowes wears his graying white Doughboys T-shirt like a trophy.

Let it not be said the Culture Bandits lack style.

It's kind of hard to imagine these three musicians once walking down the regimented halls of Catholic Central High School, but they did. All three graduated from the all-boys school in Redford in 1987.

"We were kind of misfits there," said Haas, who is from Livonia. "Besides ourselves, we didn't have many friends."

This amiable trio, no friends? Naw. These guys are just misunderstood youth.

Haas said he was nearly kicked out for his long hair and Bradley had to sweep the parking lot because he "oppressed" another student.

"We took some guy with a broken leg and picked him up by his elbows. We started to take him down to the end of the hall so we could take him outside," said Bradley, who shakes his head.

"They take a dim view of humor there," Bowes added.

They might have the same view for metal pop bands, who are influenced by such unlikely music heroes as the Doughboys, All and Big Drill Car. Nonetheless, the three decided to give it a shot by auditioning for the school's "Battle of the Bands" competition.

They didn't make the cut, further fueling their ambition to become a raucous rock outfit.

A LITTLE Culture history is in order.

First, before becoming the Culture Bandits, the group was a foursome with a lead singer and was known as the Basements.

After a few gigs together, members went their separate academic ways. Bowes went to Western Michigan University, while Haas went to Oakland Community College and Bradley attended Henry Ford Community College.

A year in Kalamazoo was enough for Bowes (who without his glasses is a deadringer for the Dead Milkmen's Dave Blood). The rebels banded together again, this time as the Culture Bandits.

The group performs regularly at Blondie's in Detroit, often sandwiched between the heavy metal acts.

The Culture Bandits also can be found at other venues as Paycheck's Lounge in Hamtramck and Club Heidelberg in Ann Arbor. On this night, the Bandits have rolled into the Heidelberg, opening up for the Generals.

The audience is small, but enthusiastic. Haas seems to be on first-name basis with most of them. Much to their delight, he leaps into the air while driving out some gutteral guitar twang.

Among the originals are a few odd covers from Roxanne Cash and alike. The decibel level doesn't relent until the very last song when Haas performs a reggaified cover of Dire Strait's "Once Upon a Time in the West."

If anything, the band might be lauded for tightness. That, again, can be attributed to friendship. One doesn't do without the other.

BEFORE THE band goes on, Bradley joins his two bandmates at a table. He promptly tells Haas he owes for some film he just bought. Haas reminds he just paid the phone bill, so they're even Steven.

"We divide the costs on everything," Haas said. That way of operation applies to other band functions, such as songwriting and material selection. The trio has been visiting White Rose Studios in Ann Arbor, putting together a demo tape.

Like many bands, they've come along way in a short time. Haas recalls, with a laugh, recently listening to some tapes the Culture Bandits recorded in their uncultured days. All three admit the band was too loud and too fast for its own good.

Not any more, though, as the Culture Bandits come to grips with the music they've play out of rebellion. At any rate, seriousness is not a high order.

"If something happens we're prepared to drop everything and let it happen," Haas said. "If not, we have lives to fall back on."

The Culture Bandits will perform along with Colorful Trauma and New Godz on Sunday, Feb. 11, at Blondie's in Detroit. For information, call 535-8108.

TREMOR REVUE — Paycheck's Lounge, Hamtramck

Recently, far too many patrons packed Paycheck's Hamtramck for the second night of the annual Tremor Revue, a smorgasbord of area bands. As always, the format was one of the best things about the show.

With 10 bands on the bill, no band performed for more than 20 minutes. This rendered the show's lesser talents more bearable than they might otherwise have been and forced the better acts to present their finest material.

As might have been expected, the best performances came from two bands which have recently released their debut LPs, the Orange Roughies and the Volebeats.

After four years on the local scene, the Roughies have ironed out most of their undesirable kinks and become the area's finest "art pop/new music/prog rock" combo.

Guitarist Dave Feeny's technical prowess plowed through his many effects boxes. Lead singer/dancer Rosey occasionally spouted alarming poetry, but he did so with impressive verve and combined this with a startling array of dervish-like stage maneuvers.

The Roughies hit the stage with more force than the other bands and packed a whole set's worth of energy into their four songs.

The Volebeats, a country/folk combo that sounds for all the world like a Hank Williams hangover, maintained the high standard set in recent performances. Owing to fiddle player Rebecca Kaplan's temporary hiatus, the band is performing as a quintet. The reconfiguration emphasized the excellent guitar playing of Mark Niemenski and Matt Smith.

On a bill filled with more traditional rock bands, the Volebeats were bound to stand out, but they distinguished themselves through inspired playing in addition to their uncommon sound.

While some bands were a few gigs away from hitting their stride, or a few past their prime, the Revue did feature pleasant surprises.

Scotsy X and his Lovemasters churned out a satisfying and upbeat, albeit unrepentantly "new wave" set. Colorful Trauma, a stripped-down trio, played a promising set of straight-ahead rock with occasional "new music" nods.

Bass player Chris Girard gave excellent performances as part of a quasi-industrial duo and as a member of Cinecyde. In both settings, he managed to pull the bass from its traditional background role without becoming too flashy or overbearing.

Tremor's "Whitman's Sampler" approach to local music is becoming an institution and deservedly so. The bands got on and off stage quickly, played hard, and undoubtedly won a few new fans.

DESERT WIND — Ofra Haza

As "world music" gains popularity, more artists are experimenting with mixing various styles of music. Quirky popster David Byrne went Brazilian and Paul Simon gave his slacking career a major boost when he found the African sound.

Perhaps the strangest combination yet can be found on Ofra Haza's second album, "Desert Wind. This album contains a truly bizarre mix of Middle Eastern traditional music and Western dance music.

Haza sings about such atypical dance music subjects as deserts, the Jewish/Palestinian situation and slavery. She incorporates lyrics in English with the ancient Aramic language and chanting choruses like, "Hoo bak oaa eyoo ni hoo bak." Now, imagine this set to a pulsing disco beat.

Two of the songs on the album, "Taw Shi" and "Fatamorgan (Mirage)" were produced by Thomas Dolby. His typical mechanical sound, popularized in the 1980s' new wave hit "She Blinded Me With Science" is obvious as is his love of programmed drum sequences and synthesized sounds.

Whether or not you'll like the dance tracks on this album depends on your opinion of dance music in general. If you listen to Madonna and frequent Clubland, you'll like them — it's techno-pop with a twist.

If you don't care for dance music, you won't be very fond of Middle Eastern dance music either.

Haza is at her best on songs where she gets rid of the driving back beat and focuses on a more traditional sound. The best of these is the beautiful song, "Slave Dream." In the liner notes, Haza writes that the song was inspired by a visit to a seaport in Bahia, Salvador where ships of the slave trade from Africa used to anchor.

She writes, "In my imagination I heard the screaming voices of people turned to slaves by other people. I heard it through ancient walls." Haza sings the words, "Wen e za maan/Ei hi/I want to fly" in a passionate voice filled with yearning.

Even if you don't understand all the words on "Desert Wind," you'll understand the meaning. Kaza sings with an honesty and intensity that transcends language barriers.

WOKE UP THIS MORNING — Passion Fodder

This record is so horrible, it leaves the listener numb and disoriented. It is impossible to understand how a decision was made to record this material and this band for posterity. Passion Fodder is not just an irritant, it is a powerful argument against Western civilization.

The band is made up of men with names like Pascal, Benedicte and Jean-Yves, which suggests that the record springs from the same Gallic pretension that produced Jean-Luc Godard. In fact, the record is in some senses quite similar to Godard's "Hail Mary."

It announces itself as art grappling with the great issues of the times while simultaneously forwarding appeals to people's baser instincts. The results is a product that is too pretentious to develop sleaze appeal and too degraded to be mistaken for art.

But this is a mole hill, not a mountain. One need only listen to the faux U2 guitars, or the plodding bass-work, or the snickering percussion, or the smarmy wobbles of the lead singer, or the lyrics, to be sure that this is tripe. And those last two elements constitute a stunning indictment.

No vocalist deserves to be compared to Passion Fodder's lead singer, but in the interest of greater understanding, Stan Ridgway will be victimized. Fodder's lead singer sounds a bit like the former Wall of Voodoo frontman, but he possesses none of Ridgway's humor, none of Ridgway's twitchy spookiness.

And the lyrics consist of name-dropping, over-the-counter dada and cautiously twisted religious imagery. That might be too harsh. Maybe there are people out there waiting for a partially educated seam-artist to croon, "I'd sell my soul to God, if they'd give yours back to you/chop the head off my dog, if that's what I had to do/I'd go out and campaign for more acid rain . . . I'd swear off champagne, trout fishing and cocaine/if it would help make you sane, make you whole."

Now that's love — making Fido partial to make your lover whole. Later in the song he says he'll knife a kitten for his true love. Makes one nostalgic for the old cherry that had no stone, doesn't it?

— John Logie

HUMAN SOUL — Graham Parker

Graham Parker emerged with the 1976 explosion of new faces, although he was already a favorite on the London club and pub rock scene.

He was quickly acclaimed as a major protagonist of the "angry, cynical young man" syndrome on the release of his first LP "Howling Wind," with his experienced and solid backing band, "The Rumour," featuring Brinsley Schwarz on guitar.

After the release of their second LP "Heat Treatment," there followed a downturn in critical and commercial reactions.

It wasn't until 1979 and the release of the landmark "Squeezing Out Sparks" that Parker and The Rumour were once again revered.

Since then Parker has coasted along as a popular cult figure, always known for writing solid, emotional and meaningful songs.

This is Parker's third LP for RCA and, once again, he is joined by the wonderful Brinsley Schwarz on guitar and production duties.

He is also ably assisted by Steve Nieve and Pete Thomas from Elvis Costello's Attractions.

"Human Soul" is split into two distinct halves: The "real side" has a more conventional structure of songs dealing with personal relationships, love ("When the world's asleep and there's no one in your arms, raindrops hit the window like distant alarms, you don't have to worry, hey girl, don't you cry, my love beats adversity baby, eats it alive"), and self doubt ("Big Man on Paper").

The surreal side has one song flowing into another and dealing with more social issues such as AIDS, environmental politics, drugs and commercialism.

Musically, Parker remains the aggressive, soulful cynic he always was.

With liberal use of brass, keyboards and Schwarz's subtle guitar he presents an album of songs on a par with his releases in the '70s.

Songs not to be missed are the elegy to self doubt, "Big Man on Paper," the news headline style reflection of modern living, "Everything Goes," and a comment on AIDS, "Green Monkeys." — Cormac Wright

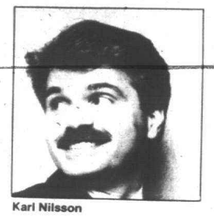
FEAR & LOAFING

Driving ambition



Kari Nilsson

Buying the Sidewinder was easy. Getting a license for it was another story.

In today's squeamish atmosphere of gun control mania, obtaining a permit to carry a concealed missile isn't easy.

First, you must prove that you've never committed a felony crime. Or if you did commit a felony, you must prove that you had a bad headache at the time, or that you didn't fully understand the difference between concepts like stealing and borrowing, arguing and shooting.

Unfortunately, my computer file showed a few minor bruises with the law — pulling the tags off my mattress, storing eggs with the small end down and robbing Fort Knox.

Once your criminal record is clear, you must justify your need to carry a concealed weapon to the police. The most common applicant is the merchant who must carry a lot of cash in a bad neighborhood. Ironically, I live in a good neighborhood, which means I have no cash left over to carry anywhere. Thankfully, they bought my story about marauding squirrels in the attic.

But why, you ask, did I want a hood-mounted, heat-seeking missile anyway? To rid suburbia of a new kind of sleazeball driving tactic with vigilante justice, that's why.

Here's how it happens: You're stopped at a red light. Across the intersection is a car sitting in the left turn lane. The instant the light turns green, he floors the gas and turns in front of you. Instead of waiting for oncoming traffic to clear, this lab specimen tries to beat it!

THE SHEAR arrogance of this begs for a "Road Runner" cartoon response — like dropping a boulder on his car or making him swallow dynamite. But instead of resorting to violence, I simply push the launch button on my steering wheel and faster than you can say "Top Gun" I drive through a cloud of smoke that used to be a car.

There's dozens of other candidates for Rambo-style citizen enforcement, but the common trait of all obnoxious driving is an air of superiority behind the wheel. These self-obsessed drivers are boring nerds from dull families who act out a fantasy in their cars — by projecting an artificial image of power and prestige.

Today, thanks to leasing, even a clerk in a shoe store can drive a high-profile machine. To separate reality from illusion, here's a suburban spotter's guide to four leading phonies:

(1) EXOTIC SPORTS CAR

Projected Image — Playboy of the western world on the prowl for danger and romance.

Actual Reality — Carpet salesman in mid-life crisis on the way to see his chiropractor. Unable to drive a stick shift, his only ticket was for littering, when his toupee blew off.

(2) TINTED PRIVACY GLASS

Projected Image — Incognito celebrity hiding out from adoring fans.

Actual Reality — Overweight bookkeeper going to the deli. The only person who would recognize him is his mother who he still lives with. After dark, he can't see at all and drives with his head out the window.

(3) DRIVER ON CAR PHONE

Projected Image — Wealthy power broker closing a major deal with Donald Trump.

Actual Reality — Bank teller with almond boneless chicken on his lap, calling for directions. He delivers Chinese food to pay for the phone and the biggest deal he's ever cut in the car is the two-for-one egg roll special.

(4)FOUR-WHEEL DRIVE PICK-UP

Projected Image — Rugged rancher delivering hay to his prize herd of Arabian horses.

Actual Image — Librarian delivering an overdue magazine. The only time he went "off-roading" was when he backed into the ditch at the end of his driveway. Combination of deep tread tires and high ground clearance gets him to work everyday — even when it's cloudy.

Someone once said the way to solve over-population is to inflict capital punishment for parking violations. A similar rule could end traffic congestion: Anyone caught driving under the influence of false affectations would be sentenced to five years riding the bus.

Help for the 'imprisoned' mother

Dear Ms. Schiff,

While reading the Observer newspaper Monday, I came across your column. The column was of interest to me because the letter from the parent of the 2-year-old with cerebral palsy was so sad and filled with so many misconceptions. I am aware that both the mother's letter and your response may have been edited due to space constraints. If however, neither was condensed, there is much to tell this frustrated and tired mom.

The biggest concerns I have have to do with the mother's statement (and your agreement) that this child will eventually be institutionalized and the lack of direction to the many resources available to this family.

Persons with developmental disabilities are no longer institutionalized in the state of Michigan unless their behavior is such that community living is unsafe. This young girl, regardless the degree to which she has an impairment, will be educated and live in a community, if not with her own family, then with a foster family. As an adult, she may be in a group home or individualized living program.

There are many organizations that can offer this family the support and services they need. I have enclosed brochures of the Detroit-Wayne County Community Mental Health Board funded programs for people with developmental disabilities.

I am the director of the Rose F. Kennedy Respite Center, which could provide the mom some of the relief she seeks. There are other resources, if the family lives out of Wayne County. The mom should call United Cerebral Palsy at 557-5070 for support and direction.

Sincerely,
Cheryl Betz, M.A.

Dear Barbara,

Regarding the Dec. 25 letter from "Imprisoned," please advise her to investigate and try to enter her daughter in the Cloverdale School of the Farmington Schools — on Freedom Road (along side the 10 expressway) between Farmington and Orchard Lake Road. (Does she live in Oakland County? If not, maybe they could move!) If you're unfamiliar with this institution, you should visit it and be educated.

K.B.

To the "Imprisoned" Mother:

I would like to reply to the letter you wrote Barbara about your daughter who has cerebral palsy. I am a special education teacher who has taught children with all degrees of handicaps. The biggest problem I run into is not the children but the parents who blame themselves or don't want to accept reality.

Things happen in life and we as humans are not always responsible. What we are responsible for is to make the best of things and to continue to love ourselves and others.

The children that I have had the greatest fortune in life to be with (retarded, cerebral palsy, emotionally disturbed, mentally ill, autistic) have taught me more and given me more love than I will ever be able to receive in one lifetime. They do not know their handicap unless we, as "normal" people, let them know it or see it.

Feeling guilty only makes them feel guilty for something they had no control of. Giving them love, care and the best you can give is all that is expected. If this means hiring help, then do so. You would hire a baby sitter for a "normal" child to relieve yourself of stress! Resentment should not be there!

Ease yourself of pain, guilt and resentment and replace these negatives with love, caring and educational services schools can provide you with.

There are many dedicated people who are willing to help you, but first stop hurting yourself as a mother.

Seek and the answer will be there for you.

Your daughter is one of the most beautiful children on earth. She is not only God's child, but God's special child.

Before you think of institutions, think of schools, day care for special needs children, Call University Hospital, schools in your community, for services.

I chose this teaching field called special education because it is special — the kids make it so.

There are a lot of people out there willing to help you. Call us.

Sincerely,
One Special Education Teacher

Dear Barbara,

In regards to your column on Dec. 25. Being a parent of a child that is classified with cerebral palsy and is mentally impaired, my heart goes out to the lady that feels "imprisoned."

I feel, however, you might have left out an option for her, and that is her local school district. By state law they must educate this child, and if not in their district, in another and must supply transportation to and from. They will also help her apply for state aid.

My son Christopher at 3 years old could not walk, crawl and could barely roll over by himself. He is 7 years old and has started to walk by himself.

There is hope and there is help. I don't know if I could help her, but please feel free to give my address to her. I could at least point her in the right direction.

Thanks.

D.S.

Barbara Schiff

Dear readers,

These letters were written in response to a plea for help by a mother of a baby with cerebral palsy. Her question was printed in the Dec. 25 edition.

There is both enormous good sense and great kindness in these responses. Intermediate school districts provide support and guidance for disabled youngsters and their families. Parents of disabled youngsters can offer emotional support to each other when it is allowed.

The name and address of the mother who stimulated these caring responses is not available. Hopefully, she will see this column and will be able to use the advice it contains.

May I thank these four helpful responders for teaching me and showing me the many ways that people can give to one another.

My thanks to all the readers who take the time and energy to write.

Barbara

Buying a boat? Consider the basics

Class One carries Cobalt and Stingray power boats as well as Yamaha water vehicles, takeoffs of the jet ski.

"They're very attractive and a lot of people are using them as yacht tenders or just for zipping around and having a good time," he said.

Cobalts are the "Lincoln/Cadillac of power boats" while Stingrays "are more of a bread and butter type of power boat," he said. Prices range from $12,000 to $80,000 for the powerboats and $3,600 to $4,200 for the water vehicles.

One of the best ways to get started is to attend a boat show. It's the best way for a new owner to "get a handle on what's out there" and "find everything from a canoe to a 200-footer," he said.

"THE POTENTIAL buyer has to decide what type of recreation he's looking for," he said. "Is it sailing or power boating? Do you just want to sail on one of the many lakes or do you want to cruise the Caribbean?"

For general lake use, he suggested a a boat in the 17- to 21-foot range as the best place to start.

"A real popular model is the bow rider," he said. "It looks like a speedboat, but instead of a front deck, it has seating which gives it extra room." Prices range from $10,000 to $38,000, depending on size.

If you don't like the bow rider, you can get a larger boat with a cuddy cabin — a small cabin you can lay in with a bunk and possibly a portable toilet. Prices depend on size.

According to Field, he has the perfect boat for the "yuppie" crowd.

"The Cobalt is a boat that is usually written up in the marine journals as the BMW of boats," he said. "It's a company that is relatively small, but the boat is a quality boat. It takes four times as long to build it and they adhere to various materials and assembly when manufacturing.

"It is very obvious that it isn't your standard marine product. The finished product is beautiful, from top to bottom." Prices for the Cobalt are anywhere from 15 to 35 percent higher than the average boat.

"The marine industry has grown immensely," he said. "More and more people are buying and the trend that is really emerging is the fact that people are buying larger boats, spending more money the first time around."

And, Field said, trying to get financing for a boat is a lot easier than a car these days.

"YOU CAN finance boats, even small ones for 15 or 20 years," he said. "One of the reasons is that lenders have found that boats are safe loans. Even though there may be a discretionary income, people that really get enthusiastic about boating, really want to preserve the ability to do that. So they see to it that payments get made."

If neither a sailboat or a 21-foot power boat seems to get your Adrenalin going for the high seas, maybe it's a yacht you're after.

"The person that buys a yacht basically has already had a smaller power boat," said Vick Andreson, a salesman at Excel Marine at Belle Maer Harbor in Mt. Clemens.

Anderson said a boat is considered a yacht when it measures 40 feet or longer.

"The person who buys a yacht is someone that is looking for more quality, not necessarily speed," he said. "They want more bedrooms and living space."

At Excell Marine, prices range from $100,000 to $1 million. They specialize in Tollycraft, one of the premiere yachts made today.

"We sell a lot of the $100,000 and over yachts," he said. "But we probably only sell one or two of the million dollar boats a year."

Willie Farrell 'loves' to talk to audience

By Rebecca Haynes
staff writer

Being a comic was fifth on Willie Farrell's list of possible careers — a list where becoming a professional baseball player or basketball player were ranked one and two.

But the 33-year-old Des Moines native is making a name for himself in the comedy business. He's opened for the Beach Boys, Melissa Manchester, Fabian and Henry Mancini, and has a good attitude about the ups and downs expected in his profession.

"I just like to make people laugh," he said. "I grew up in an Italian family and I tell a lot of ethnic jokes. I talk about my friends who are black and my friends who are gay.

"I started in Des Moines on an amateur night and there were about 300 people in the audience," Farrell said. "I almost backed out, but all my friends were there and they told me I either had to get up on stage or I had to give them all their $3 back."

FARRELL SAID he wasn't the funniest one in his group of friends, but was the one with the talent needed to perform on stage. His favorite thing to do is to improvise, go with whatever the crowd is into.

"I love to talk to the audience," he said. "I guess I'm pretty good at thinking on my feet."

His family encouraged his choice of professions.

"My brothers and sister thought it was a fun thing to do," he said. "And my mother is a saint. She's one of those little Italian women and my saying I wanted to be a comic was like saying I want to be a surfer and live in Kansas, but she was behind me."

Now when he goes back home everyone has a joke for him to use in his act.

Aside from nightclub work, Farrell also does a lot of corporate shows.

"I go from a G (rating) to an R, depending on who my audience is," he said. "I try to gauge everything on what the crowd will accept. I'm not going to do the same act I did at a club on Saturday night for a ladies' auxiliary."

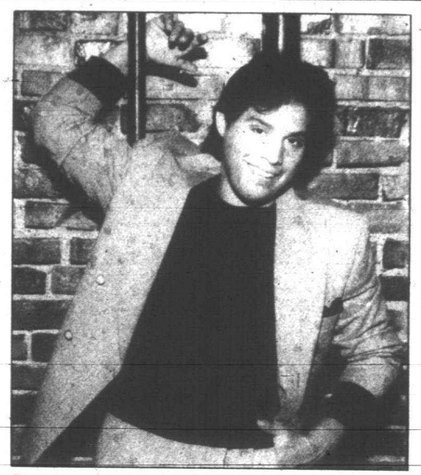
HIS WIFE travels with him on the road, something for which Farrell is thankful. "If you can last together on the road, you can last through anything."

And where does Farrell find comedy? In the everyday things that happen to him and the people he knows.

"My comedy is pretty true," he said. "If I talk about going to the doctor it's because I've just been"

"I had been out of the business for a while and I'd turn on the TV and see a comic I'd played with at some club," he said. "I figured if they could do it, I could do it too."

Willie Farrell will appear at Chaplin's, Plymouth, Wednesday, Feb. 7 through Saturday, Feb. 10. Show times are 8:30 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday, with tickets running at $5 and performances for Friday and Saturday are set for 8 and 10:30 p.m. Tickets for the weekend shows are $8. He'll also appear at Chaplin's West April 10-14.



Becoming a comedian wasn't Willie Farrell's first choice for a career and since it is his career, he's learned to handle the ups and downs and do what he likes to do the best — make people laugh.

Bright lights in a rainbow of colors brighten up the nightime along Cable Beach at the Crystal Palace Resort in Nassau, Bahamas.

Sun worshippers discover Crystal Palace

By Iris Sanderson Jones

When I want to clarify something, I often explain it to an extraterrestrial who knows nothing about Planet Earth and needs to be told everything. I started doing this long before E.T., so my alien is a little guy who sits on my shoulder. I call him The Martian.

I did that this morning when I sat in my sunburn around one of the pools at the Crystal Palace Resort in Nassau, Bahamas.

Last time I was on Cable Beach where there were a few five- and six-story hotels scattered along a wide strip of sand. Now we have a "mega-resort" rising in pink and purple buildings, with 1,500 rooms full of people cavorting in the sea, in the pools and especially in the casino. There are only narrow strips of golden sands left.

"What's going on here?" my Martian said.

He had never heard of a Caribbean beach resort, but he knew about seasons, so I didn't have to explain summer and winter and the tilting of the earth toward the sun. He quickly understood why people who live amid winter snow can be attracted to a warm Caribbean Sea where sun, sea and sand are served up year-round.

"The leisure rich had this place to themselves until cheap air travel allowed middle-class folks like me to jet down here for a week's debauchery," I said.

"You mean that people who live in hot places are more sinful than those who live in cold places," the Martian said.

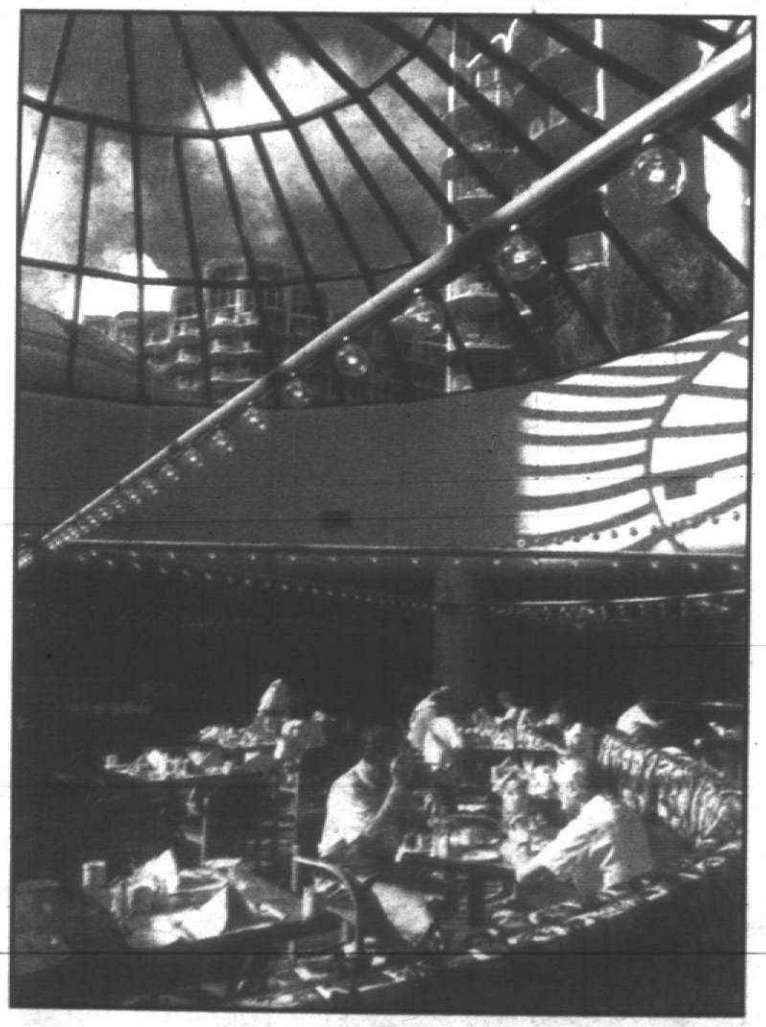
"No, it just seems that way to those of us who must shovel our driveways before getting on a plane to the tropics."

ONE REASON is that sin is associated with guilt, and those of us stretched out on beach chairs beneath glossy green palm trees feel twinges of guilt when we think of the poor slobs back home who are stuck in snow and ice. But most of us are only here for three days, so the guilt doesn't last long.

Nassau is only one of 700 islands in the Bahamas. If you fly in at night, lights are scattered against the dark sea like a handful of jewels flung across black velvet. Ponce de Leon didn't see it from that height when he sailed these waters in search of the fountain of youth in the 16th century, but he might think he'd found it if he was here now, looking at all the skin spread out to cook in the sun and the kids of various ages zooming down the great coiled slide into the pool.

I couldn't explain some of this scene to either the Ponce or the Martian — parasails making red and white circles against the blue sky, cruise ships on the horizon, four young men being towed on a banana boat, jet skiers, young bikini-clad woman on a windsurfer, the two couples boiling away in the whirlpool, or the reason that young and old, long-haired, bald and grey, bake like that in the hot island sun.

Ponce de Leon was a Spanish explorer. What would he know about the desperation of people who live in snow country?



A glass roof lets diners enjoy the bright tropical sky in the Crystal Cafe.

This stretch of Nassau is called Cable Beach because a transcontinental hookup was completed when a telegraph cable was laid here in 1892. The beach was an uninhabited crescent of glorious sand, crocheted here and there by the flower gardens of British colonials.

The rich and famous joined the exclusive Balmoral Beach Club, now the Royal Bahamian Hotel, in the 1940s, so the sand was full of whispered stories about the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, Richard Nixon, and the Beatles, all of whom passed this way when the unrich and the unfamous were getting frostbite.

CABLE BEACH was aging in the sun when package tours brought plane loads of travelers to Nassau, many to the high-rise hotels and casino of Paradise Island, across a toll bridge from downtown Nassau.

"Is that what they used to call Hog Island?" the Martian asked. You never know what extraterrestrials will come up with.

Tourists learn as little as possible about the world in which they travel, but thousands of Americans soon learned that the Bahamas was settled as a British Crown Colony, that a lot of Loyalists fled the American Revolution to settle here, that it became an independent member of the British Commonwealth in 1973.

They learn this while touring the forts, where shots were seldom fired, the English gardens, the Queen's Staircase, Parliament Square, the Changing of the Guard at Government House and the famous straw market. Tourists carry straw home on their heads and carry all those other souvenirs in the straw suitcases crammed into overhead bins aboard homebound airplanes.

Cable Beach slept in the sun until the government hotel corporation committed $120 million to rejuvenate the area in the 1980s, building the $100 million Cable Beach Hotel and Casino as centerpiece and restoring other hotels nearby.

Enter a Texan called Trammel Crowe who managed all these accommodations through Wyndham Hotels and an Israeli-born American called Ted Aaronsen who founded the Carnival fun ships and wanted to get into the casino business. Carnival managed the Cable Beach Casino and eventually began building the mega-resort now spread in high-rise splendor behind what's left of Cable Beach.

Phase One opened when the casino was revamped and the Casino Towers hotel built above it in late 1988. Phase two was completed when Prime Minister Sir Lynden Pindling the ribbon at the grand opening of the four Crystal Palace towers in January.

Paint the whole sprawl pink and purple to tie together the old Cable Beach Hotel, now Riviera Tower, the Casino, the Casino Towers and the four new towers; edge the balconies with a pallet of colors, set it against the white sand and the emerald sea and you've got a Las-Vegas style hotel/casino wrapped in sea, sun and sand.

"Why do they call Cable Beach the Bahamian Riviera?" the Martian wants to know. I can't explain everything, pal. Ask the Public Relations Department.

One of the best ways to get into the pool at Carnival's Crystal Palace Resort in Nassau, Bahamas, is on the spiral slide.

How to get to 'Palace'

By Iris Sanderson Jones
contributing travel editor

Carnival Air Lines is carrying hundreds of vacationers on Thursdays and Sundays to Nassau, where they spend three, four or seven days at Carnival's Crystal Palace Resort and Casino, which had its final grand opening in January.

Early birds got a $299 unadvertised special covering air fare and accommodations. Rates from Detroit through Feb. 11 are $479 for three days, $569 for four days and $829 for a week. Add $30 through April 29.

Ask a travel agent about low summer rates. Also check tour companies like Key Tours, Travel Charter and Apple for packages. Prices vary widely on this one; the rates I quote are directly from Carnival. Call toll-free, 800-222-7466.

Those rates will get you and your luggage there on Carnival Air Lines and get you a room in either the older Riviera Towers, formerly Cable Beach Hotel, or one of the four new Crystal Palace Towers. Most of the new Tower rooms have ocean views, but be sure you get what you pay for because a few have only a peek from a back balcony.

MOST PEOPLE buy these packages. I met one woman who paid rack rates, which range from $175 for a standard room to $550 for one of the famous theme suites and $25,000 for a suite called Galactic Fantasy. (No, that isn't a misprint. And it's per night.)

The major costs on this trip are for food. The Crystal Palace offers a wide variety of restaurants, upscale and down, very good food, but they are all expensive. If you plan to eat most meals at the resort, consider buying a meal plan.

The gourmet plan, $156 for breakfast and dinner for three days, covers anything on the menu and includes the meal at the Palace Theater dinner show. Another plan, for $108, has limitations on your order and doesn't cover all restaurants.

Be prepared to pay a 15 percent gratuity and 8 percent tax on the menu price of everything you order on these plans. That's 23 percent on your bill when you check out.

If you expect to buy many meals outside the resort, skip the meal plans, eat lightly for breakfast and lunch and take the 75-cent city bus from outside the hotel to downtown Nassau. Taxi the same distance for $15 to $20.

Restaurants near the Crystal Towers are mostly in other hotels — the Traveler's Rest about four miles away on West Bay is popular.

THE YOUNG people who work in the Crystal Palace find low-priced meals at the Poop Deck or the Ivory Coast, both just east of the mainland end of the Paradise Island bridge downtown, the Three Queens on Wulff Road, all specialize in Bahamian food.

The least expensive is The Shoal on Ponciana Drive — locals call the area "over the hill."

There is a very popular disco called Fanta-Z just off the casino in the Crystal Palace. You can dance downstairs or watch from upstairs. There is an $8 cover charge, but one free admission is included in most tour packages.

Other Nassau clubs include Club Waterloo, which features a local band called High Voltage, which plays reggae and popular music. There is a $15 cover charge that includes two drinks; Thursday is Ladies Night. A similar place, the Ritz, is on East Bay. The Club Mystique offers disco in the Cable Beach Inn half a mile west of the Crystal Palace.

Trio finds plenty to do at resort

By Iris Sanderson Jones
contributing travel editor

Cheryl Genson and her friends Christina and Linda Stanaj, all of Farmington Hills, recently spent three days at Carnival's Crystal Palace in Nassau.

Chris and Cheryl are both 18, Linda is 19, all three graduated from Farmington High School and currently study at Oakland Community College.

The girls traveled as a group with their parents and other family members but spent most of their time on their own after they got there. They thought it was a great experience, but more expensive than they anticipated to do the things they wanted to do, even though air fare, accommodations and most meals were covered by their parents.

"We met lots of people, on the beach, in the casino, in the disco, and downtown in the music clubs," Cheryl said. "No trouble at all meeting either Bahamians or tourists. We would spend the day on the beach or in the pool, and of course, that didn't cost anything unless we ordered hamburgers by the pool or did one of the optional activities."

They all had their hair braided by a local lady on the beach — $2 a braid. They tried the jet skis at $25 for 15 minutes, although the promoters sometimes would take a lower fee at the end of the day when business was slow.

FIVE MINUTES on the banana boat costs $5. Snorkeling is $5 an hour, windsurfing $12 for the first half hour, parasailing a minimum of $30.

The parents paid for the Booze Cruise, $28 per person for four hours on a glass bottom party boat, with snorkeling, snacks and all the rum punch you can drink.

"There is no minimum drinking age in Nassau," Christina said. That means that the girls could order drinks on the cruise, in the clubs or in casino, where drinks are free to gamblers.

THE CRYSTAL Palace Casino has a very friendly ambiance, helpful and courteous staff, so most people feel comfortable there. Carnival puts all its staff through special training, and it shows in many places, like the casino and in the slow-but-friendly service in the Crystal Cafe. The training still has a long way to go in some areas of the resort, especially at the front desk and in the Sea Side Buffet.

Overall, I would agree with the three Farmington girls that this is a good vacation for anyone who enjoys a sun-sea-sand resort, sunning or cavorting on the beach or around the pool, playing in the casino or disco at night. Smart travelers learn how to do it without blowing their budget.

Right-brainers are often misjudged

Dorothy Lehmkuhl

Q. My son has been having emotional difficulties for many years and has been in and out of various therapies. When I read your columns about right and left brain thinking and how it affects your life, it just clicked in my head and I'm sure my son is an extreme right brain person. Do you know of any therapists who specialize in that field?

A. I hope the woman who phoned with this question is reading this, because the next day I learned that Dolores Lamping is such a counselor. In practice at the Farmington Hills Counseling Service, Lamping shared more information on this subject.

Because the left brain controls the "organizing" aspect of our lives, people who think predominantly with their right brain have trouble "living in a left brain world." Right brain people (R/p) may have their own way of organizing, but it doesn't usually meet the standards of left brain people (L/p).

While L/p think vertically and just naturally tend to hang up their clothes or file papers upright, R/p think horizontally. They tend to lay clothes across the tops of beds, chairs, dressers or doorknobs and stack their papers in side-by-side piles on their desk. L/p are sometimes awestruck when a R/p can reach into a stack and pull out exactly the paper they need.

Unfortunately, well organized L/p often judge the R/p, claiming they are uncooperative, lazy, careless or not conscientious. Such negative feedback can result in self doubts in terms of low self esteem. The R/p may begin to feel that something is wrong with them, that they are inadequate, not good enough or not like other people.

These suggestions sometimes become self-fulfilling prophesies in the sense that the R/p begins to form a concept of him — or herself as one who is disorganized, unable to meet deadlines, loses items, forgets things and sometimes even begins to act as if they were incompetent.

Dorothy Lehmkuhl's Organizing for Success seminars begin this Wednesday, Feb. 7 at Schoolcraft College. Call 462-4448 to enroll in any single session or the full course.

● ARTFUL DOMAIN/ARTSPEAK

Artful Domain, 700 N. Woodward, Birmingham, will initiate Artspeak, a series of slides/lectures/dialogue/exhibit on three Thursdays, Feb. 8 and 15 and March 8, in the gallery. Two of the presentations will be accompanied by an exhibit of art furniture.

The first presentation will be given by Clifton Monteith, creator of twig furniture/sculpture. He will discuss the historic development of rustic furniture in America and its design and construction by present-day artists/craftsmen. Several new pieces of his bent willow furniture will be on display.

Other speakers in the series will be furniture designer Thomas Stender and art historian/professor Hope Palmer, whose topic will be: "One canny decision at a time: the Art of Collecting."

There is no admission charge, but reservations are required because of limited seating. Call 646-2030.

● GARDEN CITY GALLERY WORKSHOPS

Artist and instructor Kathleen Titus of Ann Arbor will teach "Drawing the Face" in three Saturday workshops 2-5 p.m. beginning Saturday, Feb. 17. Fee is $30.

Titus is an experienced jurist, graduate of the University of Michigan art school and did postgraduate work at Eastern Michigan University. She has conducted art classes in the Ann Arbor and Dearborn area for all age groups.

The workshops will be an in-depth introduction to basic facial proportions and the use of guidelines and symmetry as aids in developing correct proportions.

The sessions will be held in the Gallery, 30116 Ford Road in Sheridan Square Mall, Garden City. For more information, call 261-0379. Deadline for registering is Monday, Feb. 12.

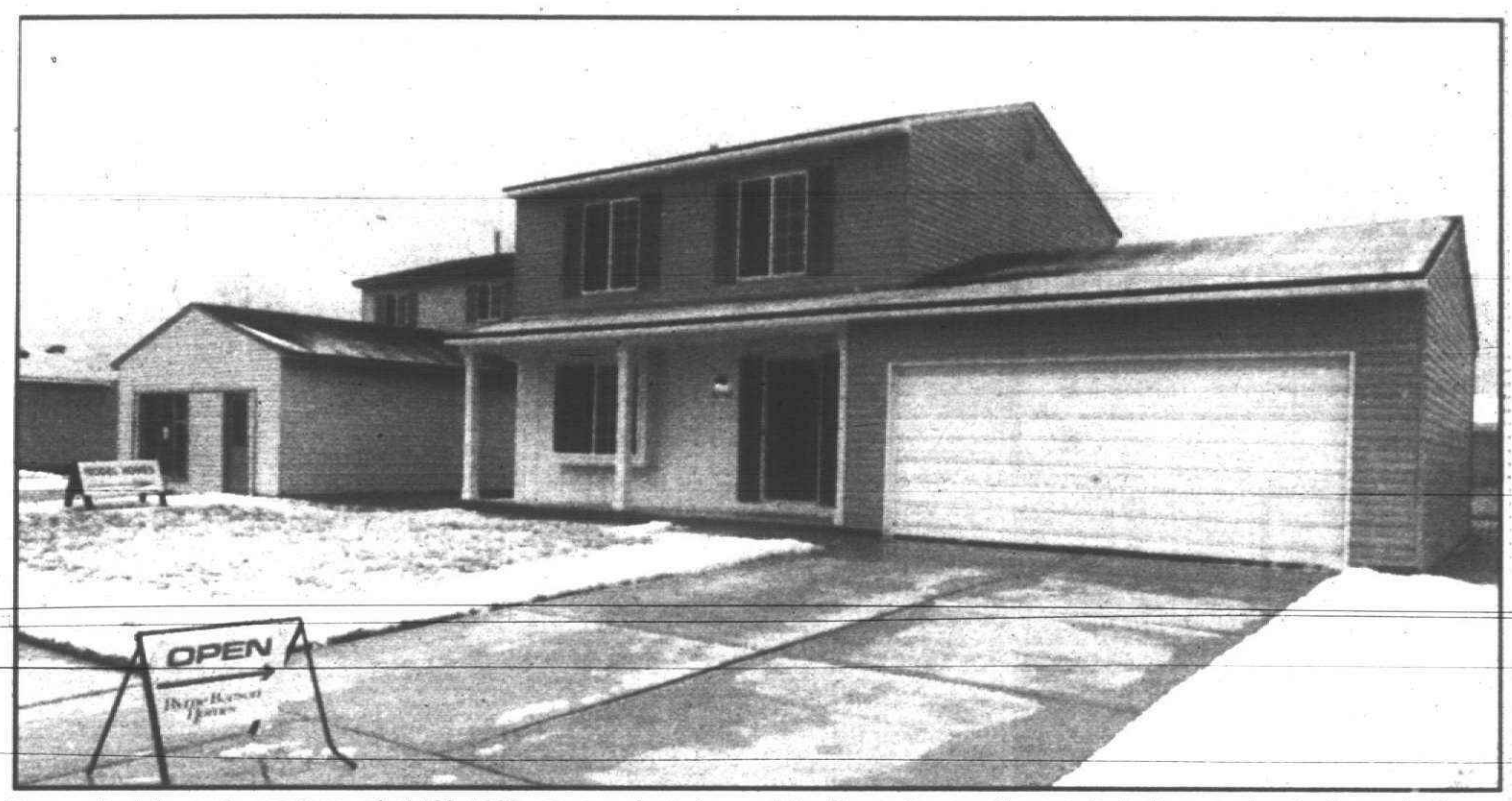
The cost of land is the key to delivering new houses to buyers for less than $100,000, said Byrne Benson, who specializes in building so-called affordable homes.



New colonials and ranches of 1,100-1,200 square feet in Romulus' Meadowdale Subdivision southeast of Metropolitan Airport are priced at less than $80,000. The houses, constructed by Byrne Benson Homes, include a master bedroom bath, three bedrooms and an unfinished basement.

Building affordable housing

By Doug Funke
staff writer

You can still buy a new house for less than $100,000 in metropolitan Detroit.

But it probably won't be in an upscale neighborhood, won't be surrounded by a spacious yard, won't offer oodles of living space and won't have amenities such as built-in appliances, fireplaces and marble foyers.

Forget about Golden Corridors and Miracle Miles.

You have to go into into communities like Romulus, Westland, Canton or off the beaten track in Livonia and Farmington Hills.

But new houses can still be had without putting up your first-born as downpayment or facing a mortgage that could have financed a dozen starter homes a generation ago.

Everyone in this market hasn't gone the custom-built route.

● Byrne Benson, president of a Drayton Plains company, is building in the Meadowdale Subdivision in Romulus off Middlebelt south of Eureka.

Houses of 1,100 to 1,200 square feet, ranch or colonial model, with three bedrooms, at least a bath and a half, a basement and an attached, two-car garage can be claimed for $74,000-$78,000.

Upwards of 80 have been built there, with some 80 to go.

● Melvin Belovicz, president of Belle Construction, is building 38 ranches in the Van Lawn Park Subdivision in Westland off Cherry Hill, west of Wayne Road.

Buyers can choose one of two models of 1,250 or 1,160 square feet containing three bedrooms, at least a bath-and-a-half, cathedral ceilings, attached, two-car garage and basement.

The cost — $82,900 or $88,900, depending on the size.

● Daniel Ryan, a Keego Harbor builder just breaking into the business, has built a half-dozen houses on scattered lots in Farmington Hills, Livonia and the city of Plymouth.

He has built two off Nine Mile Road just west of Orchard Lake Road that have three bedrooms, two baths or a bath and a half, a two-car attached garage, cathedral ceilings and a basement for $89,900.

● Stephen Taglione, president of BBC Group of Farmington Hills, is building on 40 lots in the Riverpark Subdivision in Canton off Sheldon, just south of Palmer.

For $99,990, a buyer can acquire a 1,330-square-foot ranch with two baths or a 1,400-square-foot colonial with 2½ baths. Both models have three bedrooms, a basement, a two-car garage, a first-floor utility room and a brick facade.

HOW CAN they do it?

"First of all, we're not on lots that cost $50,000 to $60,000," Benson said. "The fact is we're on 60-foot lots. Another thing is we build smaller houses."

"It's a matter of buying properly," said Taglione. "It's just a matter of us finding lots so we can bring them in for under $100,000."

"The toughest thing is finding property," said Ryan, a part-time real estate agent. "It used to be that 20 percent of the cost of a house went into land. Now, it's 30, 35 percent."

You probably won't find deals on vacant land in places like Rochester Hills, Northville and Plymouth.

Builders might find scattered lots outside of high-rent districts in Farmington Hills and Livonia. Larger tracts may be available in less prestigious zip codes.

"FOR EVERY lot I buy, I probably talk to 30 people," Ryan said of his scattergun approach.

Belovicz likes to buy surplus school property that has been vacant for years. He finds that he usually gets a good price and the land is zoned for smaller-sized residential lots.

Belovicz bought land for Van Lawn Park from the Wayne-Westland schools.

"I'm fortunate to be sitting on some good buys," Belovicz said. "The little guys that want to do this don't have a lot of money."

Builders who install their own water, sewers and streets say they can reduce prices to individual buyers by dividing those costs among more houses.

But the trend among communities, often demanded by people who live there, is toward larger minimum lot sizes.

"Most municipalities don't want small houses," Belovicz said. "They just don't want affordable housing. They want people with higher incomes, the image of a very prosperous area."

Ryan said it's becoming increasingly difficult to find smaller lots on which to build. Municipal infrastructure requirements and tap fees, on the rise, could make the under-$100,000 house a pipe dream in a couple of years, he said.

Benson said there were pockets in north Oakland County with smaller lot requirements about 18 months ago, but he suspects land values there since have soared. He also wonders whether buyers would want to make a long commute.

SO WHO buys a new house for less than $100,000 nowadays?

Kevin and Mary Jo Baringhaus moved into their first house, built by Ryan, around Thanksgiving.

"We looked at used houses, 15 years old, costing $95,000-$98,000," Kevin said. "With older houses, you have older problems."

A new home with a bathroom in the master bedroom costing less than an existing house swayed the couple toward new.

Deborah and Barry Williams live in a colonial built by Ryan across the street from the Baringhauses. They wanted to buy new and plan to buy up in about five years.

Get title insurance for estate property

condo queries

Robert M. Meisner

I am buying some property from an estate and am wondering if there are any unique problems of which I should be aware. I apparently am the highest bidder and the sale is about to be confirmed by the court.

Make sure you have a clear understanding as to what you are getting from the estate. More than likely, you will not be getting a warranty deed. It is important that you obtain title insurance to be sure that you are getting clear and marketable title to the property. Make sure that all of the requirements of the probate court have been met concerning the confirmation of the sale by, presumably, the personal representative of the estate. Make sure that there are no other claims to the property.

I am reading more about the environmental risks and liability in regard to pre-acquisition site assessments. What about the potential liability regarding the purchase of a piece of property on the seller?

Hazardous waste liability and the environment are key considerations for anyone purchasing real estate. There are a number of regulations or statutes in place with respect to underground storage tanks, hazardous waste materials and the like that can bring substantial liability to bear upon the seller and persons in concert with seller. Oftentimes, the buyer may be found responsible for the condition of the sub-soils and an Environmental Protection Agency superfund claim. Your best advice is to consult with an experienced real estate lawyer who has knowledge of the environmental ramifications and who can assist you in obtaining adequate environmental experts so as to avoid being a "potential responsible party" as a result of environmental liability.

Is there a law protecting homeowner association boards in the event of a lawsuit? We are a new subdivision checking into the necessity of liability insurance. Our research shows such rates to be astronomical.

Yes, there is a statute that was passed effective Jan. 1, 1988, that allows for the insulation of the liability of directors and officers of a nonprofit corporation under certain circumstances. You should consult with legal counsel regarding the applicability of the new amendment. On the other hand, that is not a substitute for your obtaining comprehensive liability insurance to the extent that the homeowners association has exposure, as well as officers and directors liability insurance.
