Chisholm was struck about 9:45 p.m. May 14 on Ford Road west of Lilley Road.

The car is a small to mid-size Ford Motor Co. product with a dark metallic gray clear-coat finish. Police believe the car was probably a 1988 or 1989 make.

Reward donation checks should be made to: Melissa Chisholm Reward Fund. They should be mailed to P.O. Box 87652, Canton, Mich., 48187-0652.

Home schooled resident graduates, plans future

For Scott Bennett's friends, May and June have been studded with events they'll remember for a lifetime: senior prom at the Fairlane Manor, graduation at Hill Auditorium and senior skip day.

For Scott, 17, graduating has been a rather solitary experience. He still lives in Canton, not far from kids he once attended classes with at Field Elementary and East Middle School. But since 1984, Scott has been home schooled.

With a handful of other students, sans caps and gowns, Scott received his diploma at ceremonies held by the National Home Schooling Association last month in Toledo.

The Bennetts pulled their children out of Plymouth-Canton schools after they were unable to resolve disputes with Scott's teachers.

The district sued the Bennetts for truancy in 35th District Court, and won. The Bennetts appealed, and for six years their case has been mired in the courts.

The Home School Legal Defense Association petitioned the state Supreme Court to hear the Bennett case five months ago. They've not yet heard whether their request will be granted.

"Our whole purpose is to keep the wolves away from our door until they can graduate," said John Bennett, an electrical designer with GM Truck and Bus.

Sandra and John Bennett, graduates of John Adams High School in Cleveland, Ohio, have spent $13,000 so far on legal fees.

Scott said he had mixed emotions about leaving public school.

"At first, it didn't really click that I was out of school. I liked my school work," he said.

"It's been different. Sometimes it's been nerve-racking being around my brothers and sisters all the time. I think I've learned more staying at home than in the public schools. I was two years behind. Here, I caught up. Mom and Dad let me work at my own pace."

Academically, he's surpassed his friends, he said.

"If I wanted to base myself against some of my friends, I'm a genius. A lot of them don't go to class. They let you skip so many classes, and they skip as many as they can. Their parents will say, 'Scott does this, why can't you?' "

Since graduating with 22 and a half credits and good grades, Scott has worked full time at the White Castle in Canton, running the register and cooking. He plans to enlist in the Marines Corps.

"One of my employers told me I'd be in prison before I was 17, and that I wouldn't amount to anything. I

There's no place like home school

Home School
by the Bennett Children

It takes a lot of love and learning
in a house to make it a home school.

It's parents and kids working together with patience, time and effort.

Don't need a piece of paper to qualify
just God's love and help is enough.

A brick building doesn't make a school,
you can learn
reading, writing and arithmetic anywhere,
even in God's green meadows.

There is no competition and no peer pressure, no drugs or guns.

More learning
a closer family, helping each other,
a thirst for knowledge . . . we draw nearer to God.

Respecting the world around us, because
it takes a lot of love and learning
in a house to make it a home school.

Man, 27, faces charges in slaying

By Diane Gale
staff writer

William R. Corbin, 27, of Van Buren Township, will be arraigned June 22 in Recorder's Court on murder charges in the death of a 36-year-old Westland man at Canton Commons Apartments last week.

Corbin waived a 35th District Court preliminary examination Friday to determine if there is enough evidence to hold a trial. It is undetermined which Recorder's judge will hear the case.

MEANWHILE, Corbin is in Wayne County Jail, and family members said he doesn't expect to post the $500,000 bond set by 35th District Court Judge John MacDonald last week.

Corbin faces three charges in the death: First-degree murder, first-degree felony murder while committing a breaking and entering and using a firearm in the commission of a felony.

Corbin, who was without an attorney for his arraignment in district court, had by the end of the week retained Charlie Campbell to represent him, according to court records.

The victim, Terry Serman, was shot in the abdomen and later died in Annapolis Hospital, Wayne. He was the guest of Ann Boland, 24, when the shooting took place at 5 a.m. June 3 in her apartment.

Someone kicked in the apartment front door, went to Boland's unit and found the couple, police said. Boland gave police Corbin's name and address, where officers arrested the suspect without incident.

Serman's family was in court Friday before the scheduled preliminary examination.

"The family's very concerned to make sure he's (Corbin) prosecuted to the fullest," said Canton police Det. Brian Schultz.

CORBIN'S FATHER, Ray Corbin, said Boland and his son lived together for "a long time" and they had a child together.

Their 2-year-old son was in the apartment right before the shooting, Schultz said.

Boland's sister had been baby-sitting the toddler and was in the apartment when the incident took place, Schultz said. She apparently grabbed the toddler and took him downstairs.

Boland and Corbin's family also were in court before the preliminary examination Friday.

Conviction of first-degree murder carries a mandatory life in prison sentence.

Don't forget to vote, polls open until 8 p.m.

If you're a registered voter in the Plymouth-Canton school district and haven't yet cast your ballot, a precinct worker is waiting for you.

It's election day, and voters are deciding which of seven candidates will win two four-year terms. No millage questions are on the ballot.

Polls will be open until 8 p.m.

If you are uncertain about where to vote, call the board office at 451-3135.

"Calls would be welcome as far as where people should go to vote," said Bernice Nichols, district election clerk. "They shouldn't hesitate to call here."

Election observers are predicting a low turnout. But as of Friday, 370 absentees had voted.

"That's a little bit above average for a non-monetary election," Nichols said. "We'd expect 300 to 350 in a normal year.

"We're pleased, because there's the rest of the day and up until 2 p.m. Saturday."

Absentee ballots must be received by 8 p.m. tonight.

Running for school board are Bob Anderson, Carl Battishill, Toni Hartke, K.C. Mueller, Diane Stamp, Richard Sumpter and Les Walker.

John Engdahl's name will appear on the ballot, however, he hasn't campaigned and is supporting Mueller.

Incumbents Marilyn Schwinn and Jeanette Wines have opted not to seek re-election.

Superintendent John Hoben expects about 10 percent of the district's 85,000 voters to participate in the election.

"It's kind of a sad commentary, but that's about what it will be," Hoben said. "Turnout won't be as high as you'd normally expect in terms of an election that deals with a millage or a renewal issue."

The amount of money some candidates are willing to spend on the election puzzles Hoben.

"You kind of have to wonder why someone would spend $4,000 or $5,000 for a job paying a maximum of $1,500 a year," he said. "They're spending more than what they'd make in the four years of the term.

"It's kind of interesting. It's been that way the last three sessions."

Hoben says he has no idea why

After Angela Kennedy plunked down her 50 cents to fish in the Canton Challenge Fest Fishing Derby, she caught two fish and landed a round-trip for two to Disneyworld.

Kennedy, a Canton resident, pocketed the festival's grand prize, valued at $2,000. Not a bad catch for an hour of fishing.

THE FLORIDA trip is a dream come true for the 8-year-old second grader who can't wait to try the rides at the famous amusement park in Orlando, Fla.

And it will be her first plane trip ride, her mom Kathy Kennedy said.

Angela became an instant celebrity after the other Isbister Elementary School students heard she won the trip.

Jurors in the negligent homicide trial of Mark Vernier traveled in a van (left) to the scene of a fatal accident in Plymouth Township last October. Police drove through the intersection to help jurors envision what Vernier saw before he proceeded southbound across North Territorial.

Jury finds youth guilty in traffic death

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

An eight-man, four-woman jury deliberated for three hours Thursday before finding Mark Vernier, 17, of Milford guilty of negligent homicide in the traffic death of Robert Valicento, 68, of Canton Township.

The four-day trial was heard by Recorder's Judge Lawrence Silverman, who set a sentencing date of July 20. Negligent homicide is punishable by up to two years in prison.

Vernier, who worked part-time for Exquisite Landscaping, Inc. of Northville, was southbound on Ridge en route to a job site in a Ford Ranger pickup truck when the accident occurred on Oct. 13, 1989.

The Redford Catholic Central senior testified that he met his employer at the corner of North Territorial and Ridge Road about 4 p.m. His boss, waiting in a jeep, "signaled the direction I was to go.

"I stopped at the intersection for 20-25 seconds before proceeding," Vernier testified.

He said he looked left, right and left again at his employer, who signaled a second time to proceed south.

Vernier said he felt he "pulled up to a place where I could view the road in a normal, cautious manner."

He "looked forward and saw open road" before taking his foot off the clutch and crossing North Territorial, he said. "Then I blanked out. I don't remember anything after that."

Vernier hit his head on the windshield, but wasn't seriously hurt. Neither alcohol nor speeding were factors in the accident. Road and weather conditions were good.

"I saw an 18-wheeler gravel truck. I thought I hit that," said Vernier. "Then I saw a car in the ditch."

Valicento was traveling east at 45 to 50 m.p.h. in a 1988 Crown Victoria LTD when he was hit. His car rolled and Valicento was pronounced dead at the scene. He was not wearing a seat belt.

Valicento was a captain with the Detroit Fire Department for 31 years. He retired in 1973.

Valicento was returning from the home of his daughter, Priscilla Krencicki of South Lyon, who described her dad as "more than our father. He was our best friend."

Vernier broke down while telling the court, "I didn't want to hurt anybody. I'm sorry that I did. I felt I couldn't see anyone. To the best of my knowledge, no one was there. I'm sorry someone got hurt."

Accompanied by Silverman, attorneys, court officers and Vernier, jurors traveled in a van to Plymouth Township to view the intersection Wednesday. Police drove east past Ridge on North Territorial, enabling jurors to see how a rise in the road, a utility pole and brush may have obscured Vernier's view.

James Dunleavy of Highland Township, Vernier's uncle and director of highway maintenance for the Oakland County Road Commission, testified as a character witness.

He described as excellent Vernier's "reputation in the community for truth and veracity."

Assistant Wayne County Prosecutor Stephen Adams said in his closing argument, "I don't know that a nice guy can commit a murder. But a nice guy can make a mistake.

"It doesn't mean the defendant isn't guilty. It means you can commit a crime by accident if you are negligent and your negligence causes a death."

Defense attorney Brian Lavan told jurors, "this is not a case where a 17-year-old young man was showing off for friends. He was not under the influence of alcohol or drugs. He wasn't fleeing or eluding police. This young man left home at 7 a.m., drove 30 miles to school, got done with classes and then went to work to earn money so he could go to college.

"We're not talking about speeding you would normally expect in a negligent homicide case. We're not talking about ignoring a stop sign.

"It's far from a perfect intersection," he added. "The fact an accident occurred is not in itself any evidence of negligence."

Lavan called the accident "a tragedy for the deceased's family and a tragedy for the defendant and his family. A conviction would almost add insult to injury."

Jurors were instructed by Silverman that they had to decide only whether the prosecutor proved beyond a reasonable doubt that Vernier was driving, that Vernier was guilty of ordinary negligence, and that the negligence was a substantial cause of Valicento's injury and death.

Ordinary negligence is defined as failure to exercise reasonable care, or to do what an ordinarily sensible person would have done under the conditions.

Tom Workman, principal at East Middle School, served on the jury and was chosen as foreperson.

"Our decision was a very, very narrow decision," Workman said. "Really our decision was simply a case of was it ordinary neglect or slight neglect?

"I wasn't as critical of the intersection as some might be, because the north and south roads don't line up exactly. It means you have to turn slightly west if your coming south on Ridge."

Workman said Vernier's view would have been obscured "only if he'd not pulled the truck up to the edge of the highway. He was just doing everything right, except taking the necessary caution before entering the intersection."

Workman didn't relish his juror's role.

"Mark Vernier just appeared to be everything we want our young people to be at that age coming out of high school. He had the initiative and interest to travel for four years 35 miles to school and 35 miles home again. He had the industry and drive to work on his own time to earn money to go to college. He was not involved in any way as far as anyone could tell with alcohol or drugs.

"You hate to be part of anything that brings discomfort to any person," added Workman. "But sometimes you have to do what you have to do."

Vandals strike Hulsing

Vandals spray-painted obscenities and drawings of sexual acts on a wall at Hulsing Elementary School in Canton late Wednesday or early Thursday.

"The benefit of our school is its downfall," said Hulsing principal Cheryl Clason.

"It's beautiful with the woods, but it gives vandals their privacy," she said, adding that the school has been vandalized before.

Canton police regularly patrol the area, because the secluded spot is an ideal hangout for teens, she said.

The writing and drawings — including references that promoted cocaine — was cleaned off by noon Thursday.

The damage was estimated at $500, police said.

An Observer story about school board candidates' campaign finances should have said Carl Battishill received $550 from Plymouth-Canton's 2A PAC council — the political action arm of the union representing district teachers, custodial/maintenance and food service staff, and paraprofessional educational aides.

The $2,000 loan Robert Anderson reported as having received from Diane Daskalakis is money he borrowed last year.

Plymouth-Canton High School students enter Hill Auditorium.

Seniors feel the excitement

By Michelle Johnson
staff writer

Some were nervous. Some were excited. Many searched frantically for bobby pins to hold on their caps.

Almost 600 Plymouth-Canton High School seniors graduated Sunday at Hill Auditorium in Ann Arbor.

Barbara Monette's son William graduated.

"I'm nervous and excited for him,' she said.

The graduates had mixed feelings.

"I'm excited," said Eric Miller. "It felt like it was never going to get here.'

The Canton resident said he had a hard time believing he was through with high school, and added: "I feel like I have to go back to school on Monday."

Canton resident Kristen Taurianen agreed saying, "It was a long wait, and then suddenly, it popped up and it was here."

After the National Antherm, students cheered as Neha Shah began the commencement with the invocation.

"We do not know where we are going," said Shah in her address. She asked God to give the graduates wisdom, faith, enthusiasm, and courage to face the challenges ahead of them.

The other three speakers focused on the past.

Faculty speaker James Muneio opened his address by saying he was honored to have been chosen to speak.

"I think one of the reasons I was selected was, my age is so close to yours, and I can relate to you."

Amidst laughter, Muneio went on to list some of the graduating class's accomplishments. The class had the first winning football team, several divisional champions in other sports, a state champion pom-pon squad, state champion marching band, and an award winning newspaper.

Noting that one class member had been appointed to all three military academies, Muneio said, "These people over here are one tremendous class.'

Muneio urged the graduates to think about others.

"It's always natural to think about number one," he said.

He told the graduates to consider the feelings of roommates, co-workers, and friends when they made decisions. He told them to give special consideration to their parents who had taken care of them for the last 18 years.

"You mean more than all the other assets those people have," Muneio said.

Jeanne Steffanni, class president, said the graduates will draw on their high school experiences in the future. Recalling a conflict in the Plymouth-Canton Pit that occured two years ago, Steffani said one of the most important lesson graduates learned was to get along with people who are different.

She cited the students' campaign for the millage and the environmental work of Students Organized For Action as positive examples of classmates working together.

"I believe we are prepared for the future," Steffanni said.

Saying she used to be embarrassed by her height, senior class speaker Heidi Neuroth told the class to be proud of its diversity.

"We all have our unique qualities, but unfortunately we often try to hide them," she said.

Thomas Tatten, Plymouth-Canton High School principal, told the graduates their class is the first to receive a diploma with a warranty. He announced Steffani's name as the first to receive a diploma. From that moment to the graduates final shout and the tossing of the caps, the applause never ceased.

Plymouth-Salem students applaud Terese Rosinski's emotional farewell speech.

Graduation just the beginning

By Michelle Johnson
staff writer

Applause, cheers, and the "Ooo!Ooo!" chant made famous on the Arsenio Hall show could be heard as 480 Plymouth-Salem High School seniors and 63 adult education students filed into Hill Auditorium on Sunday.

The orderly procession belied the nervous tension both graduates and their families felt.

Before the ceremony, Canton resident Faye Holt nervously scanned the lobby looking for her son. She was supposed the meet him and was afraid he would be late for his sister's commencement.

"It's been a hectic day," she said.

Jim and Sue Bergen rushed up the auditorium steps, afraid they would be late for daughter Amy's ceremony. Jim said he was looking forward the ceremony, but wondered if they would be able to find a seat.

The graduates themselves were anxious. As one senior fussed with her cap, she said, "I need a comb or I'm going to die."

Plymouth-Salem students stream out of Hill Auditorium.

But best friends David Weil and Robert Luke remained calm. Weil said he felt great, and Luke said he had been looking forward to graduation.

"The sooner, the better," Luke said.

The moment soon arrived.

Graduate Suman Vij opened the ceremony with the invocation. She spoke of the future the graduates had to look forward to. She asked them to work to match military strength with moral strength and to support causes such as the preservation of the environment.

"Let us hope that in these days we have heard the last of mediocrity and conformity," Vij said. She urged the graduates to make their own contributions to society and closed her invocation by saying, "We look forward to a world that will be safe not only for democracy but for diversity."

Kristina Gustin introduced the class and congratulated them on their accomplishments.

"Graduation is not the end, it is the beginning," she reminded the graduates.

Terese Rosinski received a standing ovation at the end of the Senior Class Farewell. She opened by saying, "I'm not the validictorian. I'm not a 4.0 student. I'm not president of the National Honor Society. I'm up here because I won the graduation speech contest."

Rosinski said entering the contest was something she decided to do on her own. She then urged the graduates to start making their own decisions and not to rely on teachers, parents, or friends to make their decisions for them.

Noting that the class started with 540 members, Rosinski told the graduates to set goals and work to achelve their potential.

"Make your mark," she said. "Don't take what you can get."

At one point Rosinski broke down in tears and admitted, "I'm scared for what the future holds for me."

Rallying to applause, she asked the graduates to look at the person next to them.

"Guess what guys," she said. "There's the future." As the graduates laughed, Gustin smiled and then added, "Pretty scary isn't it?"

Rosinski closed by telling the graduates to look at themselves and decide what they want their future to be.

Plymouth-Salem High School principal Gerald Ostoin also focused on the future. After telling the audience some experts' predictions about the future, Ostoin admitted that all changes may not be for the best. He said the graduates will need to be organized and have their priorities set to be successful in a changing world.

"Nobody will ever get far without knowing what they want in life," he said. "Set goals."

The applause and cheers started quietly as the graduates received their diplomas from some of the school board members. They grew steadily. When the final recipient, Jennifer Tebben, accepted her diploma, the graduates and audience uttered a tremendous cheer.

candidates' pockets are so deep. "Maybe it's something that's a sign of the times. I think it's a trend that will continue, not only in school elections, but more so in governmental elections."

As for the candidates, Hoben said, "I think all of them are well-intentioned people. Whoever is successful, we will have to work with them. That's what we've done in the past and what we will do in the future.

"I haven't found a person yet I couldn't work with. Whoever is successful, we will have to blend them with other five and work with administration. That's what we intend to do."

want to prove to people I can make it through boot camp," he said. "When they see me in uniform, they'll freak."

Scott's sister Erika, 15, also plans to graduate early and join the Marines.

Also being schooled at home are Jason, 14; Krista, 11; and Melyssa, 4.

Sandra Bennett, a licensed practical nurse, says she and her husband have given their children the opportunity to return to public school. "We've given them that choice. They all said they wanted to stay in home school," she said.

Plymouth-Canton schools Superintendent John Hoben, who's had no recent contact with the family, questions whether the Bennett children have been properly socialized.

"We purposely socialized our children to make sure they got other people around them," said Sandra Bennett. "They play basketball, wallyball, volleyball and soccer. Krista tutors other kids in math and science and babysits. They have lots of outside activities."

"My parents keep telling me I'm oversocialized," said Scott. "I'm never home."

"I wish Dr. Hoben would take time to understand parents are serious about their kids' education," said John Bennett.

School officials never showed genuine concern about the Bennett children, added their mother.

"When all of this started, they never said, 'We want to come to see what your kids are doing.' They just wanted their heads in those little school seats. They were very aggressive right from the start. They didn't act civilized. They just wanted to attack. We had to circle the wagons."

Recent court decisions haven't influenced Hoben's thinking on home schooling.

"The state still requires certified teachers," he said.

The effectiveness of home schooling "depends on what opportunities and the type of teaching home schoolers have. If it's a one-on-one tutorial situation, that would be an advantage," he said. "But it depends on the program, and each one differs."

Girl catches 2 fish, trip to Disneyworld

"All the kids were saying: 'Can I go? Can I go? Can I go?,'" she said.

All participants of the Challenge Fest, which ended last week, were invited to enter the free drawing.

Angela said she was surprised to learn her father, John, had put her name in the drawing.

"They just came to fish," said Kathy Kennedy. "They've come for the last couple of years.

"Fifty cents for a fishing license and we got a trip to Florida," she added.

Angela Kennedy's family can choose any date before the end of the year to take the trip, according to a letter presented to her by Russ Courville, festival chairman.

Angela will be joined in Florida by her mother, father and younger brother, Danny, 6.

Angela also has a younger sister, Sarah and a younger brother, Bobby, 1.

Woman reports driver

A Canton woman reported that a male driver in a large, tan color vehicle tried to abduct her last week.

The driver continuously made U-turns and followed the woman from Lilley Road at Proctor Road to Palmer, police said.

The woman told police that the driver asked: "Where do you live?" "How far do you have to go?" "Can I take you home?"

The woman failed to get a license plate before she lost sight of the vehicle, she said.

BUGGED VICTIM: A Canton homeowner reported jewelry missing after a fumigation team worked in the Mayben Road home last week, police said.

Two mens rings, valued at $4,700, and a ladies ring, valued at between $700 and $800, were reported stolen, police said.

POLICE CHASE: Police chased a driver, clocked at more than 100 mph, eastbound on Ford Road west of Lilley Road last week, police said.

The driver traveled eastbound in a westbound lane for a short time, police said. Before police started following the driver, he apparently had been drag racing with another motorist, police said.

DOG FIGHT: A Denton Road resident told police the family's Doberman was attacked last week by the next door neighbor's dog, a mixed-breed pit bull, police said.

The mixed breed apparently jumped a 4-foot fence and bit the Doberman in the neck. Police ordered the owner of the mixed breed to chain the dog.

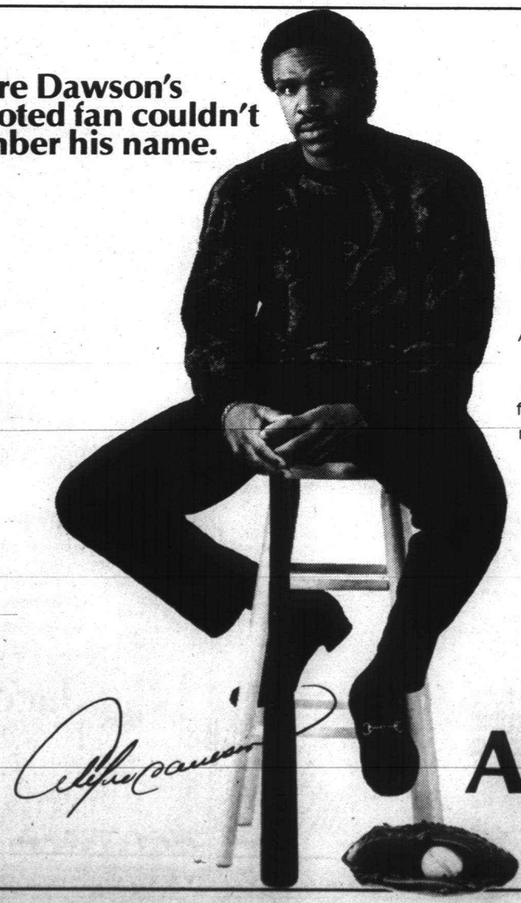
Andre Dawson's most devoted fan couldn't remember his name.



"My grandmother was like a mother to me. I turned to her for motivation and inspiration. But with Alzheimer's Disease, she gradually forgot the people around her. She couldn't even recognize me. All I could do was witness a very long, slow death...and suffer watching."

Andre Dawson knows first-hand the isolation and lonelinesss of caring for a loved one with Alzheimer's Disease. Now for the millions of family members who stand by a loved one with Alzheimer's Disease... there's someone to stand by you. The Alzheimer's Association.

At the Alzheimer's Association, we have support groups where you can get in touch with your feelings. And community services that can put you in touch with the facts. And, we are leading the way in funding medical research that hopefully, one day, will put us all in touch with the cure.

S'craft, unions reach tentative agreement

Schoolcraft College and its custodians and secretaries have reached a tentative agreement on a new contract.

Negotiators confirmed an agreement had been reached Friday, but declined to comment on specifics.

Members of the 56-member Schoolcraft Office Personnel Association and 38-member Schoolcraft Support Personnel Association are expected to meet today to discuss the contract. A ratification vote is expected Wednesday.

Schoolcraft trustees are expected to vote on the contract during their June 24 meeting.

Union members had been working without a contract for nearly a year. Office workers currently earn $7.92-$11.67 an hour. Support workers currently earn $7.46-$14.32 an hour.

Non-union school administrators recently received raises of roughly 5.5 percent.

Proposed homeless shelter gets $1 million federal grant

Wayne County has received a $1 million federal grant for its proposed homeless shelter in Westland.

The grant was issued Wednesday by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. It includes roughly $619,000 for shelter operating costs and roughly $333,000 for support services.

The office of U.S. Rep. William Ford, D-Taylor, announced the grant. Ford's district includes the shelter site.

The shelter is designed for homeless families in the western Wayne and downriver areas. It is believed to the the first shelter of its kind specifically designed to service a suburban area.

When completed this fall, the shelter will include space for up to 80 people. It is expected to include job and family counseling as well as temporary shelter.

The center was proposed earlier this year by Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara. Since then, 38 suburban communities have contributed their share of federal Community Development Block Grants to the project.

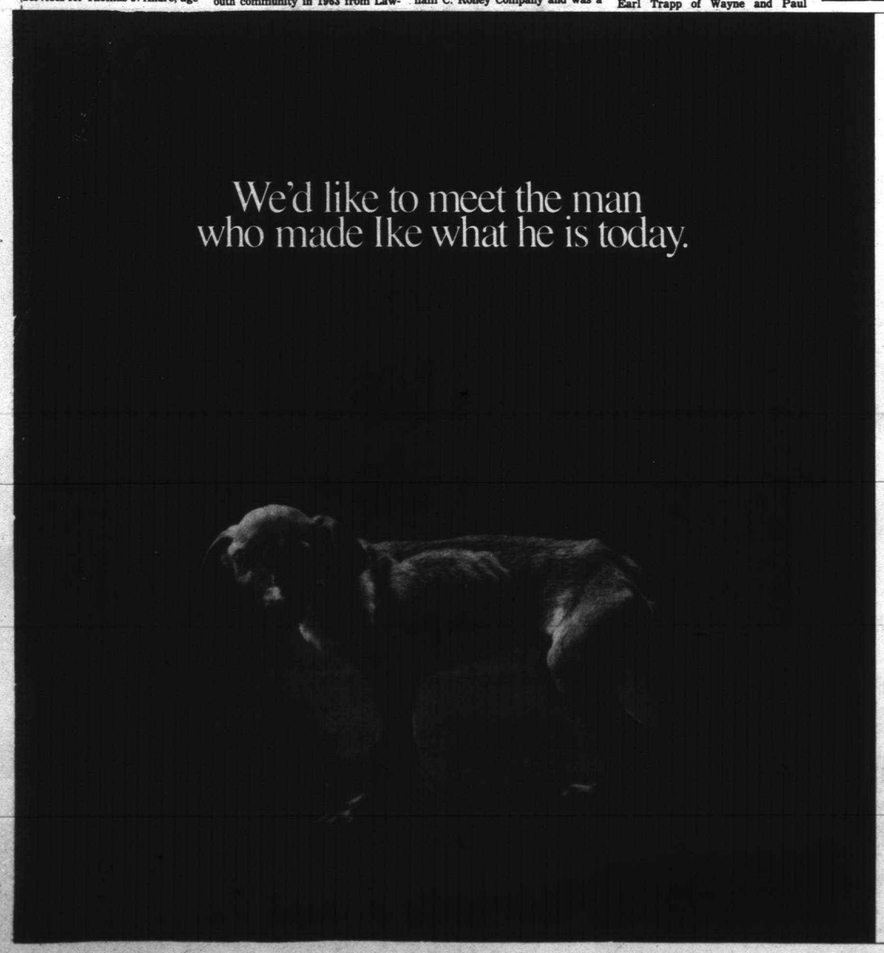
Men, if you're about to turn 18, it's time to register with Selective Service at any U.S. Post Office.

It's quick. It's easy. And it's the law.



In fact, we have a warrant out for his arrest. Because no one should be able to do things like this to an animal and get away with it.

On December 15, in response to an emergency call, Michigan Humane Society (MHS) cruelty investigators arrived at a house that had been abandoned by its former tenant for over a month. There, among the trash and other garbage the owner had no further use for, they found Ike. A five-month-old puppy lying huddled behind a locked bathroom door. Lying because he was too weak to stand. So malnourished he could barely move his chest to breathe.

He had been locked inside that bathroom for over a month. Without food. Without heat. And with only the water from a rusty toilet to keep him alive. MHS investigators called it the closest to death they'd ever seen an animal. Yet Ike was fortunate. A kitten found in another part of the house was already dead.

This kind of willful neglect and cruelty is more than an outrage. It's a crime.

And that's why your help is so important to us. Your contribution to the Michigan Humane Society helps us fight for stronger legislation and tougher prosecution of animal abusers. To fight back for those who can't. And to make sure that this kind of crime doesn't go unpunished.

Your contribution also ensures that when we finally meet the man who locked up Ike, we can do the same for him.

Landfill rules are criticized

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Planned restrictions on waste bound for Wayne County landfills drew heavy criticism from business last week during a public hearing on the county's proposed solid waste master plan.

Seeking to preserve shrinking landfill space, county officials would allow non-county businesses and municipalities to ship waste to area landfills by permit only.

That proposal, however, was called bad for business at by representatives of the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce, Ford Motor Co. and Detroit Edison.

"IT WILL only serve to have other counties erect barriers," Edison spokesman Dennis Leonard said.

Under the proposal, the county director of public works would review applications.

Non-county businesses and municipalities would have to provide an analysis of their trash content and an analysis of its affect on county landfills space, among other criteria.

But while business leaders called the county plan too restrictive, a representative of a county environmental agency called it too lax.

"You should clearly state the goal is to reduce, reuse and recycle (waste)," said Alan Greenberg of the county air pollution control division. "You should state that incineration is not a preferred objective".

Greenberg also said the plan could do more to prevent batteries from being burned in incinerators.

Concern of air pollution from battery-burning was among the reasons the Detroit incinerator was temporarily shut earlier this year.

Comments made during the hearing will be reviewed by the County Solid Waste Implementation Committee, committee chairman Milton Mack said.

The plan must be approved by the county commission.

The plan seeks to cut county waste production by 75 percent. Wayne County communities would themselves be banned from dumping in county landfills unless they adopted waste reduction plans.

Depsite the 75 percent reduction goal, it is expected any community conducting curbside recycling and yard waste composting would be judged in compliance with the plan.

Communities would be given until Jan. 1, 1992 to develop their own waste reduction plans.

Compost planners look to law

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Planners of a Canton compost pile say newly-proposed state laws could be the boost they need to get their facility up and running.

The Western Townships Utility Association — which authorized the Beck and Geddes Road site — believes proposed laws banning the burning or curbside disposal of yard waste could help attract other communities.

"We have a letter of support in the works to the Central Wayne Sanitation Authority asking for their participation," said WTUA director Ann Bollin. The WTUA group includes Plymouth, Canton and Northville townships.

The Central Wayne group, operator of a Dearborn Heights incinerator, includes Westland and Garden City, as well as Inkster.

Representatives of both cities said they were considering the Canton site, but were also considering other offers.

"THEY'RE IN the running," Westland Mayor Robert Thomas said. "It comes down to price."

City Manager Jon Austin of Garden City said his community is also considering the Canton site, as well as a Northville site and another site at the Browning Ferris Industries landfill in southwestern Wayne County.

"We have a task force and we have requests for proposals out," Austin said. "But we haven't made a decision yet."

Livonia is also moving toward composting but hasn't decided on a site.

"My hope is we'll begin something within a year," Mayor Robert Bennett said. "We haven't ruled out going it alone, but it looks like we'll have to go in with other communities."

Redford, however, is proceeding more cautiously.

"Right now, we want to see how things go with our recycling program," Supervisor James Kelly said. "Composting is something we're going to look at, but it's not an immediate concern."

Don't tear Central down

To the editor:

I am a former student of Central Middle School and I have heard different rumors about the building being torn down to build condominiums.

I feel strongly that this is wrong for two reasons. The first is because the "I Care" committee worked very hard to get the millage passed for our school system. The millage being passed raised taxes for the citizens. Tearing down Central could mean building another school or forcing the Central students into our already crowded four other middle schools.

The second reason why I feel Central shouldn't be torn down is because the school is equipped with many facilities that the other middle schools don't have, such as a track. Tearing down Central would stop middle school track altogether. As a former member of a middle school track team for two years, I wouldn't want any student who is eager to be a member of a track team to be denied that privilege.

Central Middle School is a part of Plymouth's history and has recently had a lot of money spent on it to be improved. I would hate to see that money go to waste, therefore Central should not be torn down.

CEP addition is best option

To the editor:

A recent article in the Observer has caught my attention. This article outlined the proposed solutions to CEP's recent population overflow. As an eighth grader, I am anxiously awaiting my freshman year at the park, but I am also concerned about this population problem.

As I understand it, there are three options: (a) we can turn Central Middle School into another high school, (b) we can build another high school, or (c) we can build a phase four addition to the park.

Making Central another high school would be the least desirable option. This would isolate students, and it would also limit their class selections. Building another high school would be costly, close to $40 million, and time-consuming. Clearly, constructing a fourth building to complement CEP would be the best option. This would maintain the two high school systems that Plymouth-Canton is famous for, and therefore carry on the excellence in education and spirit.

Facts should back editorial

To the editor:

If you feel no apology is needed for your editorial about backroom politics, then how about some facts. On what street can I get the word about the two school board members who are going to resign this year? If you know please tell us.

However if your "rumor" is just that, then I wonder why a community newspaper would write such an editorial. Rumors will mar both the community and your newspaper. Facts will strengthen our community and your newspaper. The community has the right to know the truth and you have the responsibility to tell it.

I agree one of your major missions should be to take public bodies to task. But do so by telling the community that the "word on the street" has been verified, or at least questioned. Tell the community who you talked to and what they said. Then we can formulate our opinions based on the facts you gave us.

You have the power to influence our community. Please do it with fairness to all. If you do have some facts, I think the community would like to read them in your next editorial, and if you don't have any facts maybe an apology is in order. As you said, "That's the way things should be."

Earth Day is important

To the editor:

I am writing in regard to the article entitled, "Recycle to become a part of trash day" from the May 14th paper.

I have learned many things this Earth Day and throughout this whole year. I have learned that our earth is in danger and it's up to me and the rest of my generation to help save our planet. It is not of great importance who has started the problem. What's important is how to improve upon what we're already doing. If we don't start now we'll regret it later.

I would just like to say how lucky we are to have a recycling center for glass, tin, newspapers, and even some plastics right here in Plymouth. I support the idea of requiring residents to put their recyclable materials at the curb for trash pickup. That just makes it easier to help the Earl solve its large landfill and trash problem.

If you're not part of the solution, you're part of the problem.

It's time to save our earth

To the editor:

Recently, there has been rising consciousness in the Plymouth-Canton community as to the environmental problems our world is facing. Recycling and energy conservation are two easy and efficient means of dealing with the way we are fatally trashing our earth. I am writing to thank those who have taken into consideration the fact that we must work to save and prepare our earth for future generations; namely, the children of my own generation. Also, to urge those who may be uninformed, or just don't care, to become aware and help rid our society of this selfish attitude. The selfish decade of the 80s has most definitely come to a halt, and it's time to save Mother Earth.

No-knock: not off base

To the editor:

I am having difficulty understanding how you can perceive House Bill 5319 (a.k.a. no-knock bill) as a vehicle to "deprive citizens of their constitutional rights."

If you are such an advocate of our judicial system, you must then realize the hurdles police officers are confronted with to obtain a search warrant, let alone one with a no-knock clause.

The Fourth Amendment does not guarantee our privacy as you proclaim. Rather, it is our protection against unreasonable search and seizure.

It is not unreasonable to allow police officers armed with a court order to enter without announcing their presence to reduce the opportunity for drugs to be flushed, ingested or otherwise destroyed.

The Detroit News featured a front-page article the same day your editorial appeared that echoed a sense of disturbing irony, "Violence in schools moves to suburbs."

Suburban school violence is nurtured by societal problems — guns, drugs and a lack of supervision.

Robert Trojanowicz, director of criminology at Michigan State University, was quoted, "Violence is on the increase and will cluster around the areas where you have the greatest crime and drugs."

Our forefathers were not witness to chemically addicted, crazed individuals toting fully automatic weapons. You want your privacy? Simply say no to drugs.

Two educators travel far from home turf

Tim Richard

GIVEN OUR level of prosperity and the southeastern Michigan quality of life, one would think this is the top of the heap.

Yet two educational leaders — C. Nelson Grote and R. Stephen Nicholson — have chosen to move on. And it appears they haven't changed their goals about educating the communities they serve.

Grote was president of Schoolcraft College in northwestern Wayne County for the better part of a decade, bringing on a lot of technology programs and surviving two recessions.

He left for what looked like an ideal two-campus job in Spokane, Wash., but about three years ago he went back to a four-year college to which he had strong ties.

IT'S MOREHEAD State University, and it's in the Appalachian foothills of eastern Kentucky. Grote sent me a local newspaper supplement shortly after his arrival. One had to read between the lines, but it looked as if he had walked into a hornet's nest.

"It was a hornet's nest all right," Grote agreed at a recent social gathering of the Schoolcraft Old Guard. "They had lost students. They came within an inch — within an inch — of being closed and converted to a prison."

What a sad social commentary that would have been!

To make several years of work into a short story, Grote has led a turnaround. The student body has grown from 5,000 to some 8,500. Most of the students come from nearby counties. It's not the kind of comfortable, middle-class existence of Livonia, Garden City and Plymouth-Canton. But Grote has a sense of accomplishment.

"At commencement, Nelson asks the graduates who are the first in their families to attend college to stand," said Tilma Costa, his associ-ed wife of 41 years. A lot of them stand. A lot.

NICHOLSON, AT 64, could have retired as Oakland Community College's chief executive in a short spell. He chose instead to head for the United Arab Emirates, a hot but wealthy little nation whose inland border with Saudi Arabia is so sandy that it's not even defined on my globe.

"It's not an under-developed country. It's highly developed," Nicholson said at his going-away party last week. "They say they have 490,000 residents and 800,000 expatriates who do the work. They told me they'd have trouble fixing an elevator without outside help. They want to learn to operate their own country."

As of this week, Nicholson is vice chancellor in charge of the colleges of technology.

NICHOLSON IS a sociologist and cultural anthropologist. In his new job on the Persian Gulf, just a short job from Iran, he will help guide a Middle Eastern oil nation into the 21st century. Much as he loved Oakland County, it was an offer he couldn't refuse.

I only hope he doesn't melt in the 110-degree heat.

Idealism. Devotion to teaching. Who said the suburbs are loaded with jaded materialism?

Let's clean up our state's campaign act

To the editor:

Where are you, Jeff Counts and Phil Power? Gubernatorial candidate John Engler has proposed the "Michigan Clean Campaign Act" which provides:

1. Require gubernatorial candidates, as a condition of receiving public funding for their campaigns, to engage in one-on-one debates in each of Michigan's 11 major media markets.

2. Prohibit publicly financed candidates for governor from running negative ads against their opponents, unless the candidates make their claims on camera or radio tape in person.

3. Require political parties and all other independent campaign committees to file affidavits with their ads, stating that all information contained in those ads is true and correct.

IF A candidate knowingly files a false affidavit, he or she could be fined $1,000 or given a 90-day jail sentence. Media consultants who produce false campaign ads could also face a $1,000 fine, plus a fine of $1,000 for each time a false advertisement is broadcast or published.

While the intent of the legislation is good, who gets to define what constitutes the "truth?" Supposedly, the election division of the Secretary of State's office — and inevitably the lawyers and the judges (In God we trust, but the judges run the country).

Perhaps the open debate (point—counter-point) in the press could establish the "truth." But who is their watchdog or review board?

I am all for positive campaign literature and substantive debates, but let's make sure we have clear and concise criteria to evaluate these campaign tools.

While we are considering political accountability, let's extend this legislation to include state legislative campaigns and also campaign finance reform, personal financial disclosure and a legislative code of ethics.

Group seeks to turn old mill into art center

By Wayne Peal

File photo

Wilcox Mill, once a member of Henry Ford's village industries, later a county storage area, is planned for use as a new art center.

A coat of paint, a touch of plaster, and tattered old Wilcox Mill could turn into something special.

At least that's what its potential new operators believe. And since it's the Plymouth Community Arts Council that would be operating the site, the vision isn't exactly surprising.

"Sure, there's work to be done on the building, but the setting is gorgeous," said new executive director Kay Jaeger. "We feel this is a site ideally suited to our needs."

Rather than seeing the building as it is, with peeling paint and chipped masonry, council members envision the site as a bustling arts center.

Classrooms and galleries are planned at the Hines Drive/Wilcox Road building. A small stage for performing artists is also under consideration.

Council members see it as a place where all of western Wayne County's art lovers can gather.

"Any arts commission is, naturally, going to serve the people in its own community," Jaeger said. "But we see this as being open for anyone who is interested in the arts."

Wayne County Parks, which will retain ownership, is equally pleased with the arrangement.

"IT REPRESENTS the best of both worlds," parks director Hurley Coleman said. "We were looking for someone who would put it to recreational use and they were looking for a bigger site."

Though the county would receive only $1 per year under the proposed 20-year lease, arts council members would be responsible for "at least $100,000" in renovations, according to former director Susan Froelich, who helped arrange the lease.

A new roof and new heating and cooling system are among the items being considered.

> "There's work to be done on the building, but the setting is gorgeous.'
> —Kay Jaeger, Plymouth Community Arts Council

The council has already received a $75,000 Michigan Equity Grant, though Froelich said the grant might have to be revised.

"There might have to be some changes because we're leasing, not buying," she said. "We don't expect it to be a problem, though."

Council members expect to conduct fund-raising efforts to meet the grant's requirement of $48,000 in matching funds.

County commissioners must also approve the lease agreement.

If all involved agencies approve, the center could be in operation by the start of next year, Jaeger said.

IF SO, it would represent another chapter in the site's long history.

Nestled near Wilcox Lake, the site initially housed a grist mill. Auto magnate Henry Ford bought the mill in 1920 and operated a small parts plant — one of his so-called "village industries" — on the site from 1923-48.

The village industries were an experiment authorized by Ford to reconcile industry with the area's traditional rural setting.

After abandoning the concept, Ford donated the plant to Wayne County.

Since then, it has served as a maintenance yard for the now-defunct Wayne County Road Commission and was later main base for the county alternative work force.

It is currently a winter storage area for the parks department.

Wilcox Mill isn't the only former village industry plant due for big changes.

Nankin Mills, the Westland site that now serves as the main parks office, is expected to be converted into a nature center.

Parks office are expected to move to Phoenix Mill in Northville Township.

HAVING ARTHRITIS - WHO IS TO BLAME?
Only too commonly you may believe that your arthritis is the result of having done: "something wrong." You may feel that if you had lived differently, eaten better, or not been ruled by anger or jealousy, then your arthritis would not have occured.
Such ideas are out of order. Medicine may not know the cause of arthritis, particularly rheumatoid and osteoarthritis, but enough is understood to be certain that such beliefs are untenable.
Alternatively, you may feel that hardship in your upbringing or circumstances, or strain created by your spouse and family, brought on your arthritis. This view also lacks validity. The information to date, which is substantial, does not support placing blame on others any more than it permits you to put the responsibility for your arthritis on yourself.
For most people arthritis is the result of inherent suseptibility combined with the chance of circumstance. A reaction occurs within your body over which you have no conscious control. You cannot wish or will arthritis away, any more than your mind alone can bring it on.
Where attitude intervenes is in your willingness to acknowledge the presence of arthritis, and to act to minimize the intrusion it brings to your daily life.

Legumes instead of meat

Entire cookbooks have been written about the satisfying and economical legume.

Most of us are complacent. We buy a can of the prepared product and simply heat and serve.

For the uninitiated, a legume is simply a humble lentil, pea or bean.

For the Janes Gang, our weekly menus are usually comprised of a cooked pinto or refried bean, with an occasional kidney bean dish or split pea thrown in for variance.

ALTHOUGH LEGUMES can be eaten fresh, sprouted or dried, the dried are by far the most abundant and economical.

Bulk food shops carry a wide assortment of dried peas, split peas, kidney beans and lentils, with prices in the lower dollar-per-pound range.

Natural food stores are also a great source for dried legumes, and occasionally carry fresh varieties.

BUT SHORT of opening a can or soaking them for hours on end, can legumes really be used as a so-called "meat alternative" and still taste great? You bet.

In the spring and summer, many dried beans can be sprouted to make interesting and tasty additions to a light salad.

Dried adouki or dried kidney beans will sprout if first soaked in water and then placed between damp paper towels.

The process will take between three and five days, but fresh bean sprouts lightly rinsed, then splashed with a little oil and vinegar and tossed with fresh tomatoes and chopped artichoke hearts, make just the right accompaniment for a summery-light lunch or dinner entree.

Most gourmet shops and natural food stores even carry sprouting jars, which are no more than glass mason jars with a screw-screen top, in addition to a wide assortment of dried legumes for sprouting.

SPEAKING OF natural food stores, the health- and diet-conscious have long known the value of the legume as an everyday wholesome food, especially when paired with grains and a dairy product.

Legumes are chock-full of valuable nutrients and are very low in fat and cholesterol.

This surprises me somewhat, especially when I can buy refried beans in a can, and upon reading the label, notice they are mixed with lard.

Here I am trying to offer a healthy alternative to my family, only to be shot down by insidious additives.

Fortunately, however, I have noticed many of the larger grocery stores now stocking canned refried beans made without lard.

If you are lucky enough to locate fresh legumes, look for unshelled or shelled beans that are plump with a tender skin. Anything dried, shriveled, spotted, over-yellow or with flabby pods should be passed by.

NOW, IF you're not interested in sprouting, and the Eastern Market farmers aren't offering fresh alternatives, how can the everyday household cook prepare legumes so that the family yells "Encore!"?

The traditional method for preparing legumes has you rinsing and draining the dried product under cold running water, then placing it in a large bowl with enough cold water to allow the legumes to expand at least 2½ times.

This means using about 3 cups of water to each cup of dried legume. Soak for at least 8 hours or overnight, but whatever you do, don't throw away the soaking water. Use it for cooking the legumes.

If you are pressed for time, legumes also can be quick-cooked by simply combining 1 cup of rinsed legumes with 3 cups of water in a pot, bringing to a boil over medium heat, boiling for 2-3 minutes, removing from heat, covering and soaking for 1 hour.

DOUG SUSALLA

Mom's not the only cook in the household. Peter Sugar first met Marva, now Mrs. Sugar, in a gourmet cooking class. They live in Bloomfield Hills with their three daughters, Liza, 6, and twins Carly and Danya, 1. Here, Peter keeps the home fires burning as he grills salmon steaks.

Dad's cooking rivals Mom's

See recipes, Page 2B.

By Noreen Flack
staff writer

BACK WHEN I was a kid, Mom did all the cooking. But once in a while Dad would get in that gourmet mood, head for the kitchen with spatula in hand and wrap Mom's pink "We love you, Mom" apron around his waist.

By mid-recipe, Dad was digging through drawers, shuffling through spices, mixing through mixes and yelling at us kids for help.

Although Dad's cooking sessions were supposed to double as quiet time for Mom, our biggest job as assistant cooks was to relay messages from living room to kitchen.

"Go ask Mom where she puts the garlic," Dad would say.

Before we could get to the living room, Mom would yell back, "In the pantry, second cupboard, third shelf, under 'G' for garlic."

She would then roll her eyes, remind us this was her quiet time and mutter something like, "I wish he would get out of my kitchen."

Eventually, we all wished Dad would get out of "Mom's kitchen," but he was determined to be the chef of the house, and as his children, we thought it was our duty to allow him to believe it was so.

UNLIKE MY DAD, many fathers aren't strangers to the kitchen environment. As a matter of fact, there are some local modern-day dads who could compete with the best restaurants in town.

Peter Sugar of Bloomfield Township gives his wife, Marva, credit as the chef of the house, but she said he runs a competitive race in the kitchen.

On his specialty list, Marva raves about his veal dishes and classic chef salad.

"I have never had a good chef salad in a restaurant," Peter said. "So I decided to make one of my own."

With his own choice spices and dressing, Peter fills his chef salad with lots of romaine lettuce, spinach, fresh croutons, olive oil, lemon juice and garlic.

AND HIS veal. Oh, his veal!

First, lightly breaded and pan fried in olive oil, the veal is sauteed in shallots, ground pepper, basil and other spices. And he adds lots of morel mushrooms and red bell peppers.

Topping off the dish, the veal is served separately with asparagus and squash. Why go out?

Peter, a private investment adviser, cooks about two or three times a week. He is the father of three daughters: Liza, 6, and the twins, Carly and Danya, 1.

Born in Budapest, Peter was raised on good Hungarian food, including paprikash and caroway seed soup, cooked by both parents.

IRONICALLY, HE and Marva met in a gourmet cooking class in 1975. He attended the course after his divorce in order to learn more about cooking and foods.

"I never though I'd meet anyone in my cooking class," Marva said. "It's wonderful to have a husband who cooks and likes it. It's refreshing. It's like going out to eat sometimes."

"We drive each other crazy," Peter said. "We're under each other's feet all the time. But as long as I stay out of her way and clean up, it's OK.

"When I cook, I really think of it as a way of contributing, a way of participating and sharing in what has to be done at home."

Marva's expertise lies in Chinese cooking and Peter raves about her Chinese barbecue ribs.

"I swear, they are the best ribs I have ever eaten."

THE BEST meal starts in the market, Peter said. You should decide on your meal depending on the quality of the meats and vegtables presented at the market that day.

By fiddling in the kitchen one day, he made a palate-perking pasta dish out of leftovers in the refrigerator. The dish was mainly a mixture of fresh linguine, Italian sausage, jalapenoes and tomato sauce.

"It really came out good," he said. "The next night, the baby sitter had some and when we got home she said, 'What was that? That was delicious.' "

THERE ARE TWO problems men must overcome about the kitchen, Peter said.

Some men believe they're the only ones who can cook and be chefs, while for others it's a "macho thing" and they fear a stigma will be attached to them if they enjoy working in the kitchen.

"As strange as it may be, some men still think the kitchen is the woman's place."

Between Peter and Marva's gourmet meals, the two remain slim and fit. Peter ignores the hype on health-nut eating and low-cal food substitutes.

"I don't mind low-calorie foods as long as they don't sacrifice the flavor," Peter said. "The balance comes with reduction. A half-pound of meat will feed the three of us because we eat a balanced meal."

It's got panache along with comfort

Located as it is in Birmingham's island fortress, the 555 Building between Woodward and Hunter avenues, Panache could easily be a forbidding, supercilious restaurant. Diners might expect haute pretensions to go along with haute cuisine.

They would be wrong. Panache, though on the expensive side and richly decorated, is an especially friendly, comfortable restaurant in an exclusive spot in Birmingham.

People have fun at Panache. On a recent weeknight, Panache was packed for dinner — with customers from throughout the Detroit area, a couple of couples tete-a-teteing, yuppsters winding down from a tough day and family groups that looked like regulars.

Happy chatter predominated. The menu is non-threatening, allowing diners to concentrate on relaxing with their friends while the chef prepares a satisfying, above-average meal.

Panache, under the same ownership as Maverick's further south on Woodward and the numerous Charley's tavern/restaurants, is pleasant rather than adventurous dining. Seafood dominates the selections, with a few exciting options mixed in with several standard entrees.

A SEAFOOD STRUDEL ($18.50) is one of these interesting variations, featuring salmon, shrimp, scallops, crabmeat, gruyere cheese and artichoke hearts wrapped in a pastry. Though good and competently prepared, it lacked a bit of an edge.

Oftentimes, ordering a seafood platter is a gamble. You are as likely to get warmed-up leftovers as freshly prepared entrees. But we ventured ahead here in an effort to try a little of several intriguing entrees. We weren't disappointed.

The outstanding entree delivered was the Shrimp Orly. The shrimp itself was lightly breaded, deep fried and served with a tangy strawberry sauce. Equally good were the Maryland crabcakes, loaded with crab and nicely seasoned. The others — scallops cooked in sherry, sauteed shrimp, grilled tuna and frog legs — were good.

Salads were solid, though the dressing on the spinach salad was almost syrupy sweet. The potatoes Anna, scalloped potatoes poached in chicken broth and sprinkled with Parmesan cheese, were delicious. The wine list is neither exceptional nor exceptionally priced, but the house wines are varied and of good quality.

From a lengthy list of seafood-dominated appetizers, we tried something different — peanut chicken. The skewered chicken was grilled with onions, topped by a fantastic, warm peanut sauce and accompanied by breaded, fried apples. Excellent.

Almost any diner would find a satisfying meal at Panache. Its traditional, somewhat formal atmosphere manages to be warm and accommodating rather than cold and pretentious.

Details: Panache, 555 S. Woodward, south of Maple, Birmingham. 642-9400.

Hours: Dinner only during the summer, 5 p.m. to midnight Tuesday-Saturday. Lunches will return in the fall with updated menu.

Prices: $14.95-$23, including bread, salad, vegetable. Visa, MasterCard, American Express, Diner's Club, Discover, Carte Blanche.

Value: Very good.

Fetzer wines stand out for quality and value

Eleanor and Ray Heald

Founded in 1968, by Barney Fetzer, Fetzer Vineyards is celebrating 22 years of commitment to fine winemaking. Owned and operated by 11 family members, the winery has experienced double-digit growth rates through the 1970s and 1980s.

The bottlings from this Mendocino County, Calif., winery represents quality and value, and American wine drinkers are, more than ever, saying "yes" to Fetzer wines.

These wines are available everywhere from the most prestigious restaurants to the smallest grocery store in all 50 states, Puerto Rico and several foreign countries. The Fetzers see no end in sight to their phenomenal growth.

"We have been growing grapes since 1958. That's an advantage we have over other wineries," contends the winery's CEO, John Fetzer. "We also know the best growers, and each family member knows all the vineyard techniques and spends a lot of time in vineyards.

"Our buildings are not fancy, but they are very functional. We spend our money on equipment, technology and people. Only after 15 years did we fix up the grounds. Other wineries built elaborate building first. There isn't that kind of money in this business. We need to be very frugal.

"Our business grew from nothing. We learned to work hard as children. It's easy to get carried away in this business with a big life-style, but we remember hard times and struggles."

"OUR STAFF is probably ⅓ to ¼ the size of any other winery in our production range," maintains Paul Dolan, the head of Fetzer's winemaking team since 1977. "We operate on a small winery philosophy. Our equipment is designed around reacting to the wine as expeditently as possible during the harvest period when it could make or break us."

Fetzer currently produces cabernet sauvignon, chardonnay, chenin blanc, fume blanc, gamay beaujolais, gewurztraminer, johannisberg riesling, petite syrah, pinot noir and zinfandel, with a variety of labels. Bel Arbors began as a private label in Michigan and was developed into a second label by Fetzer for its lower-priced wines. The Merlot under this label is a definite best buy.

In a mid-price range, Fetzer's "ranch" (vineyard) wines are top values. Its first "ranch" success was Sundial Chardonnay ($8.50), first produced from the family ranch in 1980. Valley Oaks Fume ($7.50) is modeled similarly. Both wines are light, fruity, easy to drink, and make perfect accompaniments for lighter summertime fare.

"The key to our other wines is blending," Dolan says. "We blend grapes from different counties and different vineyards. Each of the areas produces a different style of wine. We use different percentages from various tanks to make what we think is the best wine.

"It's really the blending process more than the winemaking process. With whites, we have developed a system that makes the wines softer in character and fruit without the bitter components."

FETZER'S LARGEST-SELLING red wine is cabernet sauvignon ($8.50), followed closely by red zinfandel ($7.50), both with a California appellation. They have intense fruit aromas and palate flavors. They are soft and drinkable because they are processed with a short fermentation on the skins and aged in older barrels.

Concentrating on the two most popular varieties, chardonnay and cabernet sauvignon, Fetzer bottles Barrel Select wines priced at $12 per bottle. The Barrel Select chardonnay comes from vineyards with potential for more intense fruit and complexities of character which are barrel fermented.

As cabernet sauvignon goes through the barrel aging regime, certain wines develop to fit the profile of a Barrel Select release. The 1986 is highlighted by cherry and cassis-like fruit with gentle clove spiciness and hints of tobacco and oak. The finish is rich, round and complex and perfect for a rosemary-accented filet of beef.

"Barrel aging for 12 months tends to soften our Barrel Select and Reserve wines," Dolan says. "After six months' bottle age, the reds are just about ready to drink, but many will age five years or longer."

The crown jewel of the Fetzer line is the limited production of Reserve wines, handsomely packaged with a new, simple, elegant label. We particularly liked the 1986 Mendocino Zinfandel, Ricetti Vineyard Zinfandel and Petite Syrah. Bottled aged for an average of 18 months before release, they are value-priced at $14.

The 1985 Reserve Cabernet Sauvignon at $25 is rich with blackberry, cassis and oak nuances, reminiscent of a young red Bordeaux from a ripe vintage. It's a big, dynamic wine with opulent fruit, good structure and controlled tannins that will age gracefully.

WINE SELECTION OF THE WEEK

1988 Fetzer Vineyards Barrel Select Chardonnay ($12) showcases fresh apple and pear aromas and flavors with a hint of vanilla oakiness. Its rich, toasty oak characters last in the finish and make an excellent accompaniment for grilled chicken breast or seabass with a lemon-tarragon wine sauce.

Peter Sugar shares a few favorite recipes

SALMON SIMPLEX

4 tablespoons butter or olive oil
4 fresh salmon steaks
Salt and pepper
½ pound sliced fresh mushrooms
½ cup sour cream
3 teaspoons chopped chives
2 tablespoons dry Madeira wine

Rub four pieces of foil (10 by 12 inches each) on 1 side with butter or oil. Wash and dry salmon steaks, salt and pepper both sides, and set 1 steak on each piece of foil.

Heat the remaining butter or oil and saute mushrooms until they render their moisture. Raise heat and add salt, pepper and Madeira.

Stir mushrooms over high heat until liquid is reabsorbed (about 1 minute). Remove from heat and allow to cool slightly. Distribute mushrooms evenly over salmon steaks and seal foil tightly.

Place on covered grill (or in oven) preheated to 400 degrees and cook for 15-18 minutes. If using a grill, turn salmon steaks over after 8 minutes.

Pierce salmon with a small skewer after 15 minutes and withdraw slowly. When the skewer can be removed easily and does not "grab," salmon is done.

In a small saucepan, heat, but do not boil, sour cream, a pinch of salt and pepper, and the chives. Plate the salmon steaks and spoon the sour cream over each salmon steak and mushroom mixture.

Serve with buttered noodles (or rice or orzo) and grilled asparagus spears.

GRILLED ASPARAGUS SPEARS

1 bunch of asparagus spears
1 clove garlic, finely chopped
¼ cup olive oil
Juice of ½ lemon
Ground fresh pepper
4 strips lean bacon

Wrap 4 individual bunches (4-5 spears each) of asparagus with a strip of bacon. Sprinkle with fresh pepper. Mix olive oil, garlic and lemon juice and spread over asparagus bunches.

Grill asparagus bunches, turning frequently, until done. When the asparagus is easy to pierce with a skewer or fork but the texture is still firm, it is done.

STRAWBERRY MOUSSE WITH RASPBERRY SAUCE
(4 servings)

1½ quarts fresh strawberries
1 pint fresh raspberries
½ cup sugar
2-3 tablespoons of Kirsch or Framboise
1¼ cups heavy (whipping) cream
¼ cup lemon juice

Mousse: Puree 1 quart of the strawberries. Add sugar and lemon juice and cook mixture until reduced to approximately 1 cup of liquid. Strain through a small strainer to remove berry seeds. Chill and mix in liquor (can be omitted for children's portions).

Whip heavy cream and fold ⅔ into cooled berry mixture, being careful not to overfold so that volume is retained. Spoon mixture into 4 large, stemmed glasses or small serving bowls.

Sauce: Puree remaining strawberries and raspberries together in the blender, strain and chill. Dollop remaining whipped cream on individual mousse servings, spoon on sauce and serve.

Wash and dry salmon steaks, salt and pepper both sides, and set 1 steak on each piece of foil. Heat the remaining butter or oil and saute mushrooms until they render their moisture.

Tasty outdoor meal is grilled chicken kebabs

Betsy Brethen

Having highlighted the origins of Mother's Day in a previous column, I thought it would only be fair to give the dads equal time as well, what with Father's Day occurring this Sunday.

Mrs. John B. Dodd of Spokane, Wash., started the observance of Father's Day in 1910. Although the idea was publicly supported by President Calvin Coolidge in 1924, it wasn't presidentially proclaimed a national holiday until 1966. Surprisingly enough, it was assured annual recognition by public law in April 1972, 58 years after the first Mother's Day was nationally celebrated.

WHEN I discovered this bit of trivia, I found myself puzzling over the disparity of years between the two holidays. After some thought, I realized that perhaps it was because until the Women's Liberation Movement started shaking the foundations of family life across America, every day was Father's Day.

But as men learned how to cook, clean and even change diapers, legislators finally reacted to the clamor from their male constituents by saying, "Hey, dads, you deserve a break today, too!"

AND NOW, as we continue to move along through the month of June, we can look forward to honoring fathers Sunday.

This week's Winner Dinner was selected with dads in mind, as so many fathers enjoy and excel at outdoor grilling. Submitted by Toni Johnson of Birmingham, the week's winning menu features a wonderful recipe for grilled chicken kebabs that are served over a flavorful rice dish.

A quick and easy recipe for magic cocnut pie, whipped up in the blender, concludes this meal, which is sure to put smiles on your family's faces.

In addition to being a busy wife and mother of a teenaged daughter, Johnson is a noted cook and hostess. She believes in eating the freshest of food and produce, even though it means more frequent trips to the grocery store. She also believes in the importance of exercise and walks four or five miles every day and plays tennis regularly.

EVERY MONDAY morning, Johnson can be found at the First Methodist Church of Birmingham where she is one of the teachers of the Community Bible Study group. An international program out of Washington, D.C., the bible study group has many chapters across the country. Johnson has been actively involved with the group for more than eight years.

Thank you, Toni Johnson, for sharing your recipes with us and congratulations on being our Dinner Winner of the week. Wishing all fathers a happy day of rest and honor, here's hoping that this special menu will add to your family's enjoyment.

It is hard to believe, but the Fourth of July is less than 3½ weeks away. If you have a special menu you like to serve, please send it my way.

I am especially looking for favorite salad recipes, such as potato salad, pasta salad or bean salad. My goal is to offer you a menu that can easily be prepared in advance of the big day so that you can celebrate your freedom from the kitchen as well as the freedom of our country.

Submit your recipes, to be considered for publication to: Winner Dinner, P.O. Box 3503, Birmingham 48012. All submissions become the property of the publisher. Each week's winner receives an apron with the words Winner Dinner Winner on it.

CHICKEN KEBABS
MAGIC COCONUT PIE

Recipes

CHICKEN KEBABS

This is quick and easy to assemble. With a little bit of supervision you can delegate and let your children make up their own kabobs. This recipe makes four to six kabobs, depending on the size of the vegetables that you use.

Kebabs

1½ pounds boned chicken breast, cut into 1-inch chunks
2 large zucchini, sliced thickly and halved
12 cherry tomatoes
1 red pepper, cut into 1-inch strips
3 onions, quartered
8-9 large mushrooms

Marinade

¾ cup soy sauce
¼ cup red wine
1 clove garlic, pressed

Marinate the chicken alone in the marinade. The longer the meat marinates, the tastier it will be. However, it can be marinated for just a few minutes and still have a delicious flavor. Peel and quarter the onions and microwave them for 2 minutes. Thread the 4 skewers in this order: chicken, onion, cherry tomato, zucchini, mushroom and red pepper. Place the skewers in a 9-by-13-inch Pyrex baking dish and cover with some of the marinade. Cook on a hot grill for 5 minutes on a side, turning once after brushing the kebabs with more marinade. Remove the meat and vegetables from the skewers and serve over the rice, spooning more marinade on top, if desired.

RICE WITH CELERY AND ONIONS

This rice dish is so delicious. It is practically a meal unto itself.
1 cup converted long grain rice
2 cups chicken broth
1 head celery hearts, coarsely chopped, leaves and all
1 large onion, coarsely chopped
1 heaping teaspoon instant chicken bouillon

Bring all the ingredients to a boil and simmer, covered, for 20 minutes. Remove from the heat and let the rice rest until all the moisture is absorbed.

MAGIC COCONUT PIE

This dessert is easy to make and so delicious!
2 cups milk
¾ cups sugar
½ cup biscuit mix
4 eggs
¼ cup butter or margarine
1½ teaspoons vanilla
1 cup shredded coconut

Combine milk, sugar, biscuit mix, eggs, butter and vanilla in a blender. Blend on low for 3 minutes. Pour into a greased 9-inch pie pan and let stand for 5 minutes. Sprinkle with coconut and bake at 350 degrees for 40 minutes. Serve warm or cool.

COOL KIDNEY BEAN SALAD

1 cup red kidney beans, soaked overnight and drained (or) 1 pound canned, drained and rinsed
1 bunch green onions, chopped
1 cup walnuts, chopped
2 medium pickles, chopped
6 tablespoons olive oil
2 tablespoons good vinegar
1 clove garlic, crushed
Pinch dry mustard or cumin
Salt and fresh ground pepper to taste

Cook the beans until tender. Drain and chill. If using canned beans, omit this step. Combine chilled beans with green onions, walnuts and chopped pickles. Toss. Combine remaining ingredients and whisk until well blended. Pour over bean mixture and toss to coat. Allow to stand for 1 hour before serving. Toss again. Garnish with sliced, hard boiled egg, if desired.

Note: You can make this salad with any legume or a mixture for a tasty difference.

WARM LENTIL SALAD

6 ounces (¾ cup) green lentils
6 tablespoons bottled French dressing
1 clove garlic, crushed
Salt and fresh ground pepper to taste
4 green onions, chopped
4 tomatoes, skinned and chopped
2 stalks celery, chopped

Soak the lentils for 1 hour, then cook in lightly salted water for 30 minutes until tender. Drain well and combine with remaining ingredients while still warm. Toss. Can be served warm or chilled.

BLACK BEAN AND VEGETABLE CASSEROLE

12 ounces black beans, soaked overnight and drained salt and pepper to taste
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
2 large onions, sliced
4 stalks celery, chopped
4 carrots, sliced
2 parsnips, sliced
1 clove garlic, crushed
1 tablespoon tomato puree

Place the beans into a pan with fresh cold water and bring to a boil. Cover and simmer for 2 hours, adding a dash of salt toward the end of the cooking period, if desired. Drain and reserve the liquid. Heat oil in a frypan and fry the onions, celery, carrots, parsnips and garlic for 8 minutes or until onions are transparent. Add to drained beans and mix well.

Pour tomato puree over and stir in 2 cups of the reserved bean liquid and season to taste with additional salt and pepper. Pour into an ovenproof casserole and bake, covered, for 1 hour at 350 degrees. For a tasty treat, remove cover and sprinkle with 1 cup shredded cheddar cheese and 1 cup seasoned bread crumbs. Pop under broiler and broil till golden.

Here are ways to cut down breakfast fat

AP — Like many popular breakfast combinations, sausage, scrambled eggs with cheese, and potatoes are high in fat. Check out test-kitchen changes that cut fat by half, calories by one-third. It's a great-tasting way to start the day.

— Use non-stick spray coating instead of oil for browning.

— Substitute smoked turkey sausage for regular breakfast sausage.

— Use half whole eggs, half egg whites.

— Choose a low-fat cheese product.

— Heat the potatoes with broccoli instead of frying.

SAUSAGE AND CHEESE SCRAMBLE

Non-stick spray coating
8 ounces fully cooked smoked turkey sausage, thinly sliced and quartered
5 eggs
4 egg whites
¼ cup skim milk
1 teaspoon dried minced onion
¼ teaspoon dried oregano, crushed
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
⅓ cup shredded low-fat cheddar cheese (1¼ ounces)
2 cups fresh or frozen broccoli flowerets
One 15-ounce can sliced potatoes, drained
2 teaspoons imitation butter granules
Dash dried oregano, crushed
3 English muffins, split and toasted

Spray a cold large skillet with non-stick coating. Preheat skillet over medium-high heat. Cook sausage in hot skillet for 2 minutes.

In a mixing bowl beat eggs, egg whites, milk, onion, oregano, salt and pepper. Stir in half the cheese.

Add egg mixture to the skillet. Cook, without stirring, until mixture begins to set on the bottom and around edges. Using a large spoon or spatula, lift and fold partially cooked eggs so uncooked portion flows underneath. Continue cooking over medium heat about 4 minutes or until eggs are cooked through but are still glossy and moist.

Using a large spoon or spatula, lift and fold partially cooked eggs so uncooked portion flows underneath.

Meanwhile, in a medium saucepan cook broccoli, covered, in a small amount of boiling water 8 to 10 minutes (3 to 4 minutes for frozen broccoli), adding potatoes the last 2 minutes of cooking. Drain. Sprinkle butter granules and oregano over vegetables. Spoon egg mixture on top of muffin halves. Sprinkle with remaining cheese. Serve with vegetables. Makes 6 servings.

Fresh berry sundaes low-fat party dessert

AP — These desserts are the berries. They're fun to make, taste delicious and are a low-fat alternative to conventional sundaes. Set out a big bowl of berries and small bowls with condiments. Family members and guests can assemble their own sundaes exactly the way they want them. Serve the sundaes for brunch or as an easy dessert for a backyard barbecue.

FRESH BERRY SUNDAES

Fresh strawberries and blackberries
Vanilla yogurt
Ground nutmeg
Brown sugar
Granola
Toasted coconut
Toasted sliced almonds

Plan on 1 cup berries per person. Remove stems from berries. Rinse berries in cold water and drain well. Transfer berries to a large serving bowl. For toppers, set out bowls or cups of vanilla yogurt sprinkled with ground nutmeg, brown sugar, granola, coconut and sliced almonds. Let each person build a sundae.

Apple jelly, jalapeno peppers enliven chops

AP — Sweet and hot, the robust flavor of these chops comes from apple jelly and jalapeno peppers. Wait until about the last 10 minutes of cooking to begin brushing on the sauce so it doesn't scorch.

Cook the chops at medium-slow heat. That means you should be able to hold your hand over the drip pan for 5 seconds. If coals are too hot, raise the grill rack, spread the coals apart, or close the air vents halfway. If coals are not hot enough, move the coals closer together, lower the grill rack, or open the vents to allow more air to circulate.

JALAPENO AND APPLE PORK CHOPS

1 apple
One 10-ounce jar apple jelly
1 or 2 jalapeno chili peppers, chopped, from 7⅛-ounce can ¼ cup apple juice or orange juice
1 tablespoon cornstarch
4 pork loin chops, cut 1¼-inches thick

Cut apple horizontally, in ½-inch slices. Core and halve the slices. Set aside.

In a small saucepan combine jelly and 1 or 2 jalapeno peppers. Cook and stir over low heat until jelly melts. Combine apple juice and cornstarch. Stir into jelly mixture. Cook and stir until thickened and bubbly. Cook and stir 2 minutes more.

In a covered grill arrange preheated coals around a drip pan. Test for medium-heat above pan. Place chops on rack over pan. Lower hood. Grill for 40-45 minutes or until well-done, turning once. Brush with jelly mixture during last 10 minutes of cooking.

Meanwhile, wrap apple slices in foil. Place on side of grill during last 10 minutes of cooking. Serve on top of chops. Spoon any remaining jelly mixture over all. Makes 4 servings.

Falcons nip Salem, get flattened in final

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Taylor Center, hoping to avoid another disaster in a regional baseball final, inflicted one on Farmington, instead.

The Rams, who were beaten 7-3 by Redford Catholic Central last year, blasted the Falcons 16-7 to win the Wyandotte Roosevelt regional and dash Farmington's title hopes Saturday.

Taylor Center, 20-5, advances to the Class A semifinal game 12:30 p.m. Friday at Bailey Park in Battle Creek. The Falcons, who beat Plymouth Salem 6-5 in the first round, end their season with a 22-4 record.

The Rams, 6-1 winners over Dearborn Edsel Ford in the first game of a triple-header, had a deja vu experience in the first inning of the final, falling behind 5-0 as Farmington appeared on the road its first regional championship.

Taylor, which trailed CC by a 3-0 margin after a half inning last year, answered with seven runs in the bottom of the first and led 13-6 at the end of two, decimating Farmington's pitching while doing an about face.

"IT WAS shades of last year," Rams coach Tom Bluhm said. "We got jumped by CC a year ago. When we came off the field, I said 'We're not going through what we did last year. We're going to come back.' "

It didn't take much to convince the Rams of that, either. They responded with 13 runs on 10 hits, three Farmington errors and four walks in the next two innings.

The Falcons felt apart as Taylor worked over three of their pitchers before Chris Schmid, who started the first game and had the game-winning hit in the bottom of the seventh inning, returned to ease the Falcons through the final 3⅔ innings.

— John Gravlin
Salem baseball coach

Farmington coach Kevin Kansman said he had no explanation for what happened to his pitching and seemed equally mystified by the team's collapse.

"They hit the ball well," he said of the Rams. "We kept playing but what impressed me about their team is their comeback. They hit the ball and beat us."

Farmington had developed the reputation of being the comeback team, rallying from a 7-1 deficit in the district final to beat CC and 3-0 and 5-4 deficits against Salem. But this time it was Taylor's turn.

"EIGHTY-FIVE percent of the time we've been behind," Bluhm said. "Other teams have scored first, but we manage to come back."

Eric Miller, who relieved Schmid and won the Salem game, pitched to five Taylor batters and didn't get anybody out, leaving with the game tied 5-5.

Kevin Young, the losing pitcher, gave up two more runs before getting the Falcons out of the first. He lasted 1⅓ innings and faced 11 batters, giving up six runs on six hits.

Brian Vicchio, who hadn't pitched since early May because of injury, finished the second and began the third, pitching a full inning. He didn't allow a hit but walked four, and the Rams added three more runs to lead 14-6.

A combination of Farmington mistakes and Taylor's timely hitting marked the first two innings.

Any one of three Falcons could have made a play on Bryon Keathley's hit that fell in short right field and scored two runs in the first, but nobody took control of the situation. On the other hand, Keathley hit another Texas Leaguer in the second inning that was simply well placed and knocked in two more.

KEATHLEY AND teammate Kevin Floyd had three hits apiece, winning pitcher Todd Bullion and Norman Bunch two each. Bullion had RBI singles in the first and second innings, and catcher Rocki Alazazi had a two-run single in the second.

Schmid had two hits, including a two-run double in the first, and three RBI for the Falcons. Also in the opening inning, Miller singled home two runs and Mark Vellucci hit an RBI single. Scott Lakatos homered to lead off the sixth.

Taylor starter Todd Boike lasted only one-third of an inning and faced six batters, but Bullion was superb in relief. He shut down the Falcons after that, giving up just two runs and five of Farmington's eight hits. Furthermore, he walked only two while striking out four.

"He has the lowest ERA on the team and is a real tough kid," Bluhm said. "He's a 5-foot-6 pitcher who weighs 140 pounds, but he catches when Alazazi doesn't."

Schmid's two-out single in the seventh broke a 5-5 tie and beat Salem in the first game. He lined the first pitch from loser Rob Kowalski into right field, scoring P.J. Green, who got a lead-off single when the ball hit the bag at first base and popped over Tracey Ewald's head.

"I was looking for a fastball right away, and he put one right there," Schmid said. "That was my chance to redeem myself. I kinda felt I had let the guys down and wanted to contribute."

SCHMID PITCHED the first three innings and faced three men in the fourth, but he didn't get anybody out and left with the score deadlocked at 4-4. Miller held the Rocks (17-11) to two hits and a run over the final four innings.

Kowalski pitched 4⅓ innings in relief of starter Jeff Paluk. He allowed only three hits and two walks, but each hit figured in Farmington's last two runs.

The Falcons tied 5-5 in the sixth when Mark Vellucci reached on an error, was sacrificed to second by Vicchio with one out and Mark Mitchell produced a two-out, pinch-hit single.

"I don't know why, when we play Farmington, we have to make so many mistakes," Salem coach John Gravlin said. "The tying run is unearned because we don't pick up the ball.

Farmington catcher Gary Shelp puts the tag on Salem baserunner Jeff Coleman in the fourth inning. Coleman was attempting to steal home during a bases-loaded, suicide-squeeze play, which backfired on the Rocks and resulted in an inning-ending double play.

Thurston's Kellogg man for all events

REDFORD THURSTON track and field standout D.J. Kellogg bears a resemblance to former Livonia Churchill standout Jason Belaire.

But the two have more in common than just their looks.

Kellogg, following in the footsteps of Belaire, has been named Observerland Boys Track Athlete of the Year. Belaire, a standout hurdler and member of the Alma College track team, won the same honor in 1989.

The Thurston senior, who won the award over Westland John Glenn's superb runner Carl Lowe, is a multi-talented trackman who is not only competitive in seven individual events but one of the area's best in each.

Kellogg, a 4.0 student and solid prospect to compete as a decathlete in college, finished an outstanding season with the ultimate high school achievement: a state championship.

He won the Class B title in the 300-meter hurdles and set a state record of 38.1 in doing so. Kellogg also was fifth in the state in the long jump.

Furthermore, he was undefeated in the 300 hurdles, long jump and 200 dash during the dual-meet season, and his best efforts in the pole vault, high jump and 100 dash rank him among Observerland's best in those events, too.

"He is a true benchmark of a champion, a fierce competitor," Thurston coach Glenn Davis said. "But he is very humble in his victories and, without question, one of the finest athletes in the area."

This year's all-area team has five first-team repeaters: Farmington's Jason Gutting (shot put), Steve Johnson of Redford Bishop Borgess (100), Lowe (800), Redford Catholic Central's Mike Sheridan (3,200) and John Glenn relayman David Ryan.

Johnson and Lowe made the team last year in the 200 and 400, respectively. As a junior, Kellogg was a second-team pick in the long jump.

Richard Gordon, who coached John Glenn to its third Western Lakes Activities Association championship in four years, was named Coach of the Year.

The Rockets, bolstered by an exceptionally strong sprint crew and someone of ability in most every event, won the Observerland Relays and were the area's foremost track and field power.

FIELD EVENTS

Jason Gutting, shot put, Farmington: Gutting threw the shot 52-9 at the WLAA meet, taking over the No. 1 spot in the Observerland rankings.

Besides being a league champion, Gutting won the regional (51-2), was fourth at the Oakland County meet (50-9) and placed fifth in the state (51-7). He also had a best discus throw of 141-5 and was fifth in the WLAA.

"He's been with us four years and has come a long ways," coach Jerry Young said.

"The first year he threw 37-38, so in the last two years he's come almost 15 feet. He finished higher than anybody from our area (Class A) in the state and was only a few inches from moving up a couple places."

Kurt Roth, discus, Churchill: Roth reached the top of the Observerland chart when he threw the discus 162-4 in a dual meet with Northville. He was second in the regional (152-1) and third in the WLAA (144-0). Roth also was regional champion in the shot put (51-10¼) and 10th in the state.

"He started last year as a half miler," coach Fred Price said. "He's only been throwing for a year and a half. He was just a fill-in person at the start of the year, but he became a very dominant thrower.

"His primary goal was the shot put, but he got real comfortable with the discus and started throwing well. The day he threw 162 he had five throws that were over 152."

Jason Hodge, long jump, Wayne: The All-Wolverine A athlete had the area's best long jump at 21-10, averaging 20 feet per jump. Hodge was a member of Wayne's league champion 400 and 1,600 relay teams, too.

"Jason is a versatile athlete who can be used in various events," coach Bob Lynn said. "He has good speed and just the right attitude."

Bill Griffiths, high jump, John Glenn: Griffiths set a school record in the high jump this year at 6-6, which ranks as the area's best jump. He won the WLAA championship, was second at Observerland and placed third at the Monroe Relays.

Glenn coach Richard Gordon described the sophomore Griffiths as a very dedicated team member and outstanding achiever.

"His first jump of the season was 5-3 and now he holds the school record at 6-6," Gordon said.

Dan Lago, pole vault, John Glenn: Lago and Kellogg were the only area vaulters to clear 13 feet this year. Lago, a senior, was the top vaulter at Observerland and was undefeated in dual meets. He was third in the WLAA and regional.

Battery sparks Walter's Appliance

Walter's Appliance used a familiar energy source, it's battery, to beat Hines Park Lincoln/Mercury in Livonia Collegiate Baseball League action Wednesday at Ford Field.

Two Michigan State University players, Bob Bullach and Tim Crabtree combined to give Walter's, the defending LCBL champions, their third straight triumph, a 5-4 win.

Bullach, a red-shirt from MSU, pitched 3⅔ innings of hitless relief, while Crabtree, the catcher, went 3-for-3. He also knocked in two runs and gunned down two base stealers to key the win.

Walter's trailed 4-1 before scoring one in the bottom of the fourth and three more in the fifth.

John Gotts and Dave Houghtby each contributed RBI singles for Walter's in the fifth. Jim Maruszewski's RBI sacrifice fly proved to be the game-winner.

Hines Park collected all four of its hits off Walter's starter Chad Wrona in the fourth, scoring three times thanks a double by Bill Bannon, back-to-back triples by Jeremy Krol and Bill Terski, followed by an RBI single from Ron Groh.

John Bonham walked four times for Hines Park, but was thrown out twice stealing by Crabtree.

Brian Paupore, the starting pitcher for Hines Park (4-2), worked four innings before giving way to Krol, who suffered the loss.

LITTLE CAESARS rode the arm and bat Wednesday of another MSU Spartan, Waterford's Jim Miller, who socked a two-run homer, RBI triple and pitched five innings to pick up the win in an 8-6 victory over Total Travel. The game was played at Orchard Lake St. Mary's.

Miller, a quarterback on the MSU football team, scattered seven hits and seven walks, while fanning seven.

Leo Devine went 3-for-4 in a losing cause.

Rick Rachner, the losing pitcher, went five innings. He allowed six hits, two walks and struck out three.

Farmington rally puts end to Salem's season

"I can second guess myself a hundred times over. But last week Jeff pitched with more velocity than Robbie, and this is the hardest he's been hit all year. I can say a hundred things, but the bottom line is Jeff and Robbie didn't pitch very well."

Gravlin wasn't second guessing himself about his decision to have Brian Rudolph attempt a suicide squeeze with the bases loaded and two strikes on him in the fourth. Rudolph struck out and Jeff Coleman was tagged out coming down the third-base line.

"THAT'S THE best bunter on the face of the earth," Gravlin said. "Rudy isn't a flyball hitter, and his forte is to put the ball on the ground. He had 17 drag-bunt singles this year. With Rudy at the bat, it's the play."

Miller had two hits, including an RBI single for the Falcons. Kevin Van Ord hit a solo homer, and Young and Vellucci drove in one run each with a double and a single, respectively.

Eric Nielson had three RBI singles in three at-bats for Salem. Dave Makowiec got the Rocks started with an RBI sacrifice fly, and Ed Gundry also had an RBI single.

The script had been sent out well in advance. Steve Mastrogianis and his Rochester Adams soccer team should have known it, even though they had just two days to prepare.

But knowing what's coming, and what to expect, doesn't always help prevent it — does it, Highlanders?

They did about all they could do. They played Livonia Stevenson evenly in Saturday's Class A state final — but just as it was throughout their improbable tournament run, the Spartans punched in a goal in the waning minutes to beat Adams 2-1 at Plymouth Canton High School.

The win gave Stevenson (final record: 15-4-1) its third state crown in the eight-year history of the girls' tournament. Spartan coach Mary Kay Boots was a starting midfielder on those first two championship teams, both one-sided victories (8-0 and 5-2). This match was quite different.

"What it comes down to in a game like this," said Boots, "is who wants it most. That's what we talked about at halftime."

Added Mastrogianis: "These were two evenly-matched teams. It's a break like that that can make the difference."

THE BREAK the Adams' coach referred to resulted in the game-winner. Less than 10 minutes remained when Stevenson's Lori Godlewski lined up a corner kick. She drove it into the center of the box; Ragen Coyne knocked it down and —

"It hit off her knee and I just tipped it in," was how Shannon Wilkinson described her score. Wilkinson was in the right place at the right time, sure, but just as important, the Spartans outfought Adams' defenders to the ball. And on a day when the temperature is in the 80s, and the teams have already played for 80 minutes, persistence doesn't come easy.

Wilkinson's description of her feelings after the championship was clinched were even more concise. "Great," she said. "It's the best feeling."

Her goal solidified Stevenson's aura for finishing games hard. The Spartans won their first Class A district title since '85 by beating Northville in a shootout; after a lopsided win over Milford-Lakeland, they edged Grand Blanc by scoring with :45 left in overtime.

In the semifinal Wednesday, Coyne got a goal with under 13 minutes left to break a 1-1 tie, and the Spartans got two more in the final 5½ minutes to beat Kalamazoo Central 4-1.

"THEY WERE very opportunistic," said Mastrogianis of Stevenson's play. "They were deserving. They elevated their play in the second half."

The Spartans also took advantage of their chance when they got it. Adams, which finished 16-3, had a similar opportunity with 6:40 to go in the first half.

Nikki Wilczynski hammered a shot that Stevenson keeper Alicia Smith dived to stop. The rebound bounced free, and Stephanie Kane got off a shot that got through Smith — but defender Tracy Morrell, positioned behind Smith, retrieved the ball and cleared it out of danger.

"I thought the first half was all Adams," said Mastrogianis. "We had quite a few chances."

But the Highlanders couldn't get in front. Indeed, Stevenson struck first, thanks to a powerful set-up by Godlewski.

ADAMS GOT on the board 10 minutes later. Molly Burke took a direct kick just outside the penalty area and drove it over Stevenson's defensive wall. Morrell deflected it with her hand to prevent the goal, but Kane converted the penalty kick awarded because of the hand ball to tie it 1-1 with 12:56 left.

"Our girls were not playing their game in the first half," said Boots. She knew her team had dodged a bullet on Morrell's goal-saving kick. "Our team just stood there instead of clearing it out."

With the championship secure, Boots was content to stand there and watch her very young team — not a senior on the squad, with a pair of sophomores (Coyne and defender Lisa Thomas) as captains — celebrate.

The pressure of such a big match should have benefited the older Adams team, but it didn't. "These players have already played a lot of big games, in the Olympic Development program and with the youth clubs," said Boots.

Which was better, the question was asked of Boots, a state title as a player or as a coach?

"As a player," she answered without hesitation. "It's always more exciting when you're a kid."

With everyone due to return next year, Stevenson may get the chance to see if two titles are better than one.

Dairy King shuts out Mantle foe

Plymouth Dairy King began its Mickey Mantle baseball season Tuesday with a 13-0 shutout over West Seven of Detroit at Plymouth Canton.

Frank Learned pitched four innings and got the victory in the game shortened to six innings because of darkness. Learned allowed only two hits and one walk. He struck out three. John Stimac pitched the last two innings.

Brian Tiell had two hits and three RBI for Dairy King. Todd Pniewski knocked in two runs, and Mike Stafford doubled home another run. Eric Cunningham, Brian Stidham and Stimac had RBI singles. Jon Paupore played a good game at shortstop, according to coach Mark LaPointe.

Dairy King plays its games on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

"Dan is a hard worker who'll continue to go up in the world," Gordon said.

RUNNING EVENTS

Pierre Hixon, high hurdles, Wayne: Hixon, a senior and three-sport standout, is the only Observerland hurdler to run under 15 seconds in the 110 highs. His best time was 14.8. He was second at the regional.

Hixon has accepted a football scholarship to Western Michigan and was Wayne's top defensive player on the basketball court.

"Pierre is a disciplined and coachable athlete who has always given 100 percent," Lynn said.

D.J. Kellogg, low hurdles, Thurston: As a state champion, having won the 300 hurdles at the Class B meet with a record time of 38.1, Kellogg will compete at the prestigious Meet of Champions in Indianapolis later this month.

A versatile athlete, Kellogg competed in seven individual events and relays. He had season bests of 13-0 in the pole vault, 22-5½ in the long jump, 6-4 in the high jump, 10.9 in the 100 dash, 22.6 in the 200 and 49.5 in the 400.

Kellogg also was a regional champion in the 300 hurdles and was third in the high jump and long jump. He was the Tri-River champ in the 300 hurdles and long jump.

"Darrell Kellogg never had a bad day," coach Glenn Davis said. "He overcame injury and difficult conditions to always compete at his best. Darrell is the most positive and responsive athlete I have ever coached."

Steve Johnson, 100 dash, Bishop Borgess: Johnson finished fourth in the 100 dash and fifth in the 200 at the Class B finals, running 11.4 and 22.8. He earned a spot on the All-Observer first team based on his 10.9 time at the regional, a performance that ranked him No. 1 in the area.

Shawn Ma-Azza, 200 dash, Wayne: Ma-Azza had a season best of 22.2 in the 200 dash and 10.9 in the 100. He also is a 20-foot-plus long jumper.

Ma-Azza was third in the 200 at the Ypsilanti regional, ran on the WAC champion 800 and 400 relays and helped the Zebras break the Observerland Relays long jump record.

"Shawn is only a sophomore and will soon become one of the premier sprinters in the state," Lynn said. "Shawn has a wealth of speed but needs to mature."

Carlos Horne, 400 dash, Wayne: Horne won a regional championship in the 400 and had a season best of 50.4. He ran 48.6 a year ago. Horne was a member of three league championship relays.

"Carlos Horne has more ability in the 400 meters than anyone in the area," Lynn said.

Carl Lowe, 800 run, John Glenn: Lowe was probably the most gifted athlete on a team loaded with talented runners. He capped his senior year by taking third place in the 800, earning all-state honors, at the Class A championships.

His season-best time was 1:55.3, and he won the regional at 1:55.7. He also had an outstanding 48.7 time in the 400 and was the WLAA champion in that event.

Lowe's 800 and 400 times are school records. He was Glenn's top point scorer the last two years and also will compete in the Meet of Champions.

"He is among the finest athletes I have ever coached," Gordon said. "As he continues his track career at Eastern Michigan University, we will hear of his exploits in the future."

Mike Sheridan, 1,600 run, Catholic Central: Sheridan had a season best of 4:22 in the 1,600 as well as times of 2:02.6 in the 800 and 9:36.8 in the 3,200.

Sheridan won the 1,600 and 3,200 races at the Toledo and Oxford Relays, Jackson Invitational and Class A regional. He won the 3,200 at the Catholic League meet and the 1,600 at the Operation Friendship meet. Sheridan finished fifth in the state at 3,200 meters.

"Mike is talented on the track as well as in the classroom," CC coach Tony Magni said. He said Sheridan will enter Brown University in the fall. "He has great ambition and determination."

Steve Kellogg, 100 dash, Bishop Borgess: Kellogg was a regional champion in the 100 dash and was third in the high jump and long jump. He was the Tri-River champ in the 300 hurdles and long jump.

"Darrell Kellogg never had a bad day," coach Glenn Davis said. "He overcame injury and difficult conditions to always compete at his best. Darrell is the most positive and responsive athlete I have ever coached."

Steve Johnson, 100 dash, Bishop Borgess: Johnson finished fourth in the 100 dash and fifth in the 200 at the Class B finals, running 11.4 and 22.8. He earned a spot on the All-Observer first team based on his 10.9 time at the regional, a performance that ranked him No. 1 in the area.

Shawn Ma-Azza, 200 dash, Wayne: Ma-Azza had a season best of 22.2 in the 200 dash and 10.9 in the 100. He also is a 20-foot-plus long jumper.

Ma-Azza was third in the 200 at the Ypsilanti regional, ran on the WAC champion 800 and 400 relays and helped the Zebras break the Observerland Relays long jump record.

"Shawn is only a sophomore and will soon become one of the premier sprinters in the state," Lynn said. "Shawn has a wealth of speed but needs to mature."

Carlos Horne, 400 dash, Wayne: Horne won a regional championship in the 400 and had a season best of 50.4. He ran 48.6 a year ago. Horne was a member of three league championship relays.

"Carlos Horne has more ability in the 400 meters than anyone in the area," Lynn said.

Carl Lowe, 800 run, John Glenn: Lowe was probably the most gifted athlete on a team loaded with talented runners. He capped his senior year by taking third place in the 800, earning all-state honors, at the Class A championships.

His season-best time was 1:55.3, and he won the regional at 1:55.7. He also had an outstanding 48.7 time in the 400 and was the WLAA champion in that event.

Lowe's 800 and 400 times are school records. He was Glenn's top point scorer the last two years and also will compete in the Meet of Champions.

"He is among the finest athletes I have ever coached," Gordon said. "As he continues his track career at Eastern Michigan University, we will hear of his exploits in the future."

Mike Sheridan, 1,600 run, Catholic Central: Sheridan had a season best of 4:22 in the 1,600 as well as times of 2:02.6 in the 800 and 9:36.8 in the 3,200.

Sheridan won the 1,600 and 3,200 races at the Toledo and Oxford Relays, Jackson Invitational and Class A regional. He won the 3,200 at the Catholic League meet and the 1,600 at the Operation Friendship meet. Sheridan finished fifth in the state at 3,200 meters.

"Mike is talented on the track as well as in the classroom," CC coach Tony Magni said. He said Sheridan will enter Brown University in the fall. "He has great ambition and determination."

Ben Goba, 3,200 run, Farmington: Goba, like Sheridan and Brendon Masterson of Plymouth Salem, was an all-area selection in cross country last fall.

Goba, a junior, has the distinction of being the Oakland County champion in cross country and the 3,200-meter race in track. He won the county title with a 9:39.3 time.

Goba also captured the WLAA championship in the 3,200 with a 9:37.8 time and had a season best of 9:37.3 in the regional where he was second. He was sixth in Class A at 9:43.

"We were hoping he might run a little faster, but we had lousy weather all year," Young said. "It was pretty warm the day of the state meet, and the kids were not used to it. They needed some warm weather and we didn't get it.

"There's no doubt Ben is one of the premier distance runners in the state, and he'll be back next year."

RELAY EVENTS

John Glenn, 400 (Randy Seach, Jason Pizzuti, Brian Schultz and Andrew Dobbins): The Rockets were first at the Monroe and Observerland Relays and were WLAA champs.

The outstanding foursome had the area's best time at 44.8, placed second in the regional and ran 45.1 at the state finals to finish 15th. Pizzuti and Dobbins are seniors, Seach a junior and Schultz a sophomore.

"They were competitive throughout the season and were the most consistent team in the area," Gordon said.

John Glenn, 800 (Chris Gumke, Randy Seach, Carl Lowe and Andrew Dobbins): They won first place honors at Observerland, the Elks Relays, Monroe and the WLAA meet. The Rockets had the best time of 1:30.3 and were fourth at the regional. Lowe is a senior, Gumke a junior.

"They were a well-balanced relay that always accepted the challenge of competition," Gordon said.

John Glenn, 1,600 (Carl Lowe, David Ryan, Andrew Dobbins and Randy Seach): The Rockets were the best in Observerland with a 3:25.2 time. They were champions of the Elks, Monroe and Observerland relays. They were third in the regional and 10th in the state. All are seniors but Seach.

Plymouth Salem, 3,200 (John Thomas, Brendon Masterson, Todd Cimo and Mike Patterson): The Rocks were WLAA champions with an 8:13.2 time, which gave them the honor of being No. 1 in Observerland. Masterson and Cimo are seniors, Thomas and Patterson juniors.

"These four young men worked together all year," coach Gary Balconi said. "They make up the nucleus of an excellent distance team that has been successful, first, through cross country and now track."

10-SPEED WINNERS

Pictured here are thirteen Observer & Eccentric carriers--recent 10-speed bicycle winners Their names were put into a lotto contest every time they brought their collections in on time. On April 10, a lotto drawing was held and one slip was pulled from the accumulated contest slips from each of our circulation areas.

Our carriers are encouraged to be conscientious and businesslike in delivering their hometown paper and prompt in turning in their collections. Every month they can earn prizes by handling their route reliably.

If you are a young person, 11 to 14 years of age, and would like to be a happy carrier and maybe even a winner, too, call our circulation department and ask for a carrier route.

'Wheels' come of age as art

'This all started as my husband's hobby. But even before that, he loved cars.'

— Denise Michalak

By Greg Kowalski
staff writer

Call them car nuts.

That's how they refer to themselves. They're in love with the machines. They want to own them and nearly everything related to them . . . Such as car art.

Car art?

Consider a $14,00 sculpture of a Mercedes. Or a $7,000 painting of a group of cars racing around a track. Or a $5 postcard of a Ford?

The range of car art extends across a spectrum of items and prices.

Gallery Automania, 304 East St., Rochester, has it all. Owners Bill and Denise Michalak, operate the gallery in a 90-year-old modified home on a quiet street off a main shopping district.

But inside the gallery, you can almost hear the roar of high-performance engines. The gallery's front room is where most of the classic paintings hang. Many of them carry price tages of thousands of dollars.

On one corner of the floor rests the brilliantly painted dashboard of a '55 Oldsmobile. It's done by an artist who specializes in painting car parts at artwork, said Denise.

In fact, there is a whole subculture of art devoted to cars.

Perhaps the premiere car. art gallery is l'art et l'automobile in New York City. But there are at least 25 other galleries across the country, according to the Automotive Fine Arts Society, which publishes a slick quarterly magazine promoting artists and their works as well as upcoming shows.

GALLERY AUTOMANIA isn't the only car art gallery in the state, but its works are representative of the best car art available.

"This all started as my husband's hobby," said Denise. Bill has been a designer for GM since 1966.

"But even before that, he loved cars," she said.

There's more to denim than a pair of jeans

By Debbie Sklar
special writer

While the British and the rest of Europe were growing up with Mick Jagger and the Rolling Stones, Americans were opting for apple pie, baseball and Chevrolets.

The U.S. of A. and Europe may be a world apart, but they do have one thing in common — DENIM! And like the Virginia Slims cigarette ad says, "You've come a long way, baby," and denim certainly has.

According to the fashion books, the first post-war World's Fair was in Brussels in 1958 and for the American Pavilion, "Vogue magazine was commissioned to select the fashions to be shown.

One of the most important American classics presented was the blue-jean.

The jean is the most truly American piece of apparel in our costume history. It is a reflection of the lifestyle of an entire nation, worn by young people, old people, teenagers, men and women. It has everything — durability, toughness, identity and a certain cachet that belies its humble origins in gold mining camps more than a century ago.

Invented by Levi Strauss in San Francisco during the Gold Rush days of 1850, they were designed to be work pants for miners and were made of canvas. One hundred years later, it's the largest manufacturer of jeans in the world. The name Levi itself has become generic, and the work pants have become not only that, but a uniform for millions.

WHILE DESIGNER jeans enjoyed tremendous success in the 1970s and 1980s, nothing has ever dented the Levi mystique. Levi's have been everywhere in the world and those countries where they can't be found are filled with people who will trade, buy, swap or steal to own an authentic pair of American jeans, Levi's, of, course, being the ultimate.

Today, it's not uncommon to find blue jeans in every shape, size and color. Don't be surprised to discover everything from blue jean shoes to skirts, children's apparel, pet attire and even denim by the yard at fabric stores.

And interestingly enough, denim isn't just blue anymore. Just like the variety of cable television stations out there, there's a bevy of different denims. There's stone-washed, acid-washed, white denim, black denim and even stretch denim.

Step aside patent leather and stiletto heels, the denim pump is all the craze.

At Birmingham Designer Shoes Inc., a high-heeled denim pump with silver nail head rivets is making a big splash with women of all ages for $29 a pair.

Around the corner at Kiddlywinks, a children's store, owner Cindy Obron Khan has an oh-so-trendy one-piece denim jumpsuit for your little ones. Designed by Guess, the stone-washed outfit retails for $50.

MOVING PICTURES

Eddie Murphy, back as Reggie Hammond, and Nick Nolte as Det. Jack Cates are out to stop a murderous bunch of bikers in "Another 48 HRS."

'48' II: Wait for the video

Dan Greenberg

One thing you can say for "Another 48 Hrs." (C-, R, 90 minutes), it has a unique title. How nice to screen a sequel that isn't headed "Part 27." Aside from that, "Another 48 Hrs." proves how difficult it is to recapture the attraction and innovative novelty that made the original successful enough to justify a sequel.

"Another 48 Hrs." has a murky plot that lumbers around without ever explaining satisfactorily why Reggie Hammond (Eddie Murphy) was sentenced to an additional five years in jail. Nor does it seem reasonable that Reggie's prison survival suddenly became dependent upon the good will of another inmate, Kirkland Smith (Bernie Casey), to whom Reggie is now beholden.

Finally, there is the master criminal from whom all trouble emanates, particularly for Detective Jack Cates (Nick Nolte) — The Iceman (his name is a big secret). This guy (oops, I almost let it out) is never developed sufficiently as a character. When you do discover who he is, well, so what? Along the way, several red herrings are thrown across the trail in an offhanded, obvious way.

CATES IS under the gun (literally and figuratively) to catch The Iceman or go to jail for killing a hoodlum. Cates needs Reggie's help since the money Cates has held for him since the end of Part I, well, that money was stolen from The Iceman. This unknown villain is afraid his cover will be blown because Reggie can identify him.

So The Iceman puts out a contract on Reggie and one of The Iceman's lieutenants, Burroughs (Brent Jennings), hires two motorcycle assassins. They're blowing people away right and left.

It's so obvious that something dastardly is occurring that it's hard to accept the official police attitude — in particular as expressed by Internal Affairs Inspector Blake Wilson (Kevin Tighe) — that Cates has paranoid delusions about The Iceman.

There are occasional flashes of the Nolte/Murphy style and camaraderie that made Part I entertaining and successful, but "Another 48 Hrs." is mostly one violent sequence after another. It's not a lot of fun to watch all the mayhem. And all those acute-angle camera shots are tiresome.

There's far too much mindless violence on the screen these days — and very little humor, action or adventure. Lacking intelligence, wit and cleverness, screenwriters rely on blood and gore.

AFTER A while, all the shooting and killing and hitting is as meaningful as flashing lights and loud noises. In this regard, "Another 48 Hrs." isn't as bad as "Total Recall" — but it's close.

Nonetheless, audiences probably will disregard the weak plot and get their yucks from the Nolte/Murphy interaction and Murphy's use of four-letter words. When all is said and done, it's just not worth trekking out to your local Bijou for this one. Wait. "Another 49 Hrs." will be on video soon enough.

"Happily Ever After" (*, G) is a new, animated Snow White story with her prince imprisoned by the evil Lord Malice. Snow White to the rescue. Voices are those of Dom DeLuise, Phyliss Diller, Zsa Zsa Gabor, Edward Asner, Sally Kellerman, Irene Cara, Carol Channing and Tracey Ullman.

Excellent performances can't save this weakly plotted story of a wife's (Tracy Ullman) revenge on her unfaithful husband (Kevin Kline).

Disney animation of Hans Christian Andersen tale of a mermaid in love with a human.

"Pretty Woman" (A-, R, 120 minutes).

Cagney's in Southfield

By John Monaghan
special writer

If James Cagney hadn't sauntered onto a Hollywood soundstage in 1930, two decades of movies would have lacked a certain spark. Even in his lesser films (and there were several), Cagney transcended the material with live-wire portrayals.

The Days Inn in Southfield will screen three recognizable Cagney titles this weekend — "Angels with Dirty Faces," "Yankee Doodle Dandy" and "White Heat." Through June, the hotel will pay tribute to Hollywood performers in a small screening room set up in one of the conference areas.

James Cagney was born on New York City's Lower East Side, where acting and fighting vied as major passions. After working as a dancer and actor on Broadway, Cagney found himself at Warner Bros. Studios, where he would make almost all of his films.

Through the 1930s, Cagney made up to four films a year. In fact, they churned out at such breakneck speed that it appears as if Cagney is literally running across the sets. Quick movements and non-stop banter became Cagney trademarks.

"Angels With Dirty Faces" (1938) typifies this period in an inspired version of one of the oldest stories in the book. Two boys get nabbed during a petty heist. One escapes and becomes a priest (Pat O'Brien); the other is captured an enters a life of crime (Cagney, of course).

THE GANGSTER, Rocky, becomes a hero to the same group of boys the good father is trying to save. Cagney's climatic walk to the electric chair, where he breaks down screeching so the boys won't end up like him, is still chilling in its schmatzy sacrifice.

"Yankee Doodle Dandy," made in 1942, shows Cagney at the height of his powers. Cagney always hungered for more musicals and the flag-waving biography of theater legend of George M. Cohan brought a favorite role as well as his only Oscar.

Most consider "White Heat" (1949) Cagney's last great gangster role. Here he comes full circle from the cocky young tough in "Public Enemy" (1931) to Cody Jarret, an aginh psychopath with a mother fixation, trying to keep his sanity during one last major heist.

All of the elements come together in "White Heat." Raoul Walsh directed with a harsh brutality that makes the film seem years ahead of its time. In one of the film's many classic scenes, Cagney locks an unfaithful colleague in the trunk of a long black sedan. "What? You need more air?" he growls before pumping the trunk full of lead, all the while chomping on a chicken leg.

TTHERE'S ALSO an excellent supporting cast, led by Virginia Mayo as Jarret's leggy girlfriend; Margaret Wycherly as his tough but

The Maple is back in the saddle, highlighting quality foreign films on all three of its screens. Call for show times.

"Cinema Paradiso" (Italy — 1989). Last year's winner for best foreign film is this sentimental, totally winning tale about the power of movies. In it, a young boy grows to manhood, all the while fascinated by the local movie house, the sole and very popular entertainment in his small Italian village.

"The Cook, the Thief, His Wife and Her Lover" (Britain — 1990). The bizarre and violent story of a gangster's nightly disruption of a swanky French restaurant. At times brilliantly directed by Peter Greenway, the film ultimately leaves a very bad taste in your mouth.

VIDEO VIEWING

By Dan Greenberg

Ted Turner controls, among other items, worldwide home video distribution rights to 3,900 MGM and UA motion pictures. Those rights cost Turner $1.5 billion, so his distribution schedule is fast and furious in order to pay the bills.

During the last half of June, look for sell-throughs — that's the reduced rate, usually $19.95, to clear out previously released titles — as well as motion pictures making their first home video appearance.

Of particular interest in the latter category are two foreign films being released for the first time in their original French versions with English subtitles — "King of Hearts" (1966, NR, color, 103 minutes) and "La Cage Aux Folles" (1979, R, color, 92 minutes).

"KING OF HEARTS" is a superb satire of human folly and an extremely amusing comedy.

The film is set in the French countryside during World War I. Alan Bates is a Scottish soldier on a suicide mission to dismantle explosives with which the enemy has rigged an entire town.

The ironic twist is that the town's only inhabitants are inmates of an insane asylum who recognize that their institution is the only rational and pleasant place left in a world gone mad with war. Also stars Genevieve Bujold.

"La Cage Aux Folles" is more recent and better known, in part because of its sequel. Based on the longest running comedy in Paris history, it was voted Best Foreign Film by the National Board of Review in 1979.

Nothing dead about Milkmen

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Geez, last time we checked in on the Dead Milkmen, the No. 1 man in the White House was Ronald Reagan and the band's No. 1 fan Jim Walewander was playing for the Detroit Tigers.

Since, Reagan has been farmed out to California and Walewander is toiling in the minors for the Columbus Clippers.

The Dead Milkmen? Unlike most dairy products, these purveyors of pasturized punk seem to get better with age.

The Philadelphia foursome's latest installment "Metaphysical Graffiti" is another dandy. The Enigma LP features such sure to bust-a-gut nuggets "Do the Brown Nose" and "In Praise of Sha Na Na."

Included in the accompanying promotional package is the Methodist Coloring Book to coincide with the number of the same name on the LP. Juvenile, sophomoric, perhaps, but the crayons are nice.

"Funniest song we ever wrote?" asked bassist Dave Blood rhetorically."Hmmm. I'd have to say 'All Along the Watch Tower.'"

But, uh, isn't that Bob Dylan's number?

The Dead Milkmen — Joe Jack Talcum, Dean Clean, Rodney Anonymous and Dave Blood — have gotten better with age as shown by their latest installment, "Metaphysical Graffiti."

"Naw," Blood countered. "We've been trying to get in touch with him about that. We can never get his address. We call the operator asking for his number and she won't give it to us."

WHEN TALKING to the Dead Milkmen, the first number that does come to mind is "Punk Rock Girl." The video for the jaunty number received tons of airplay on MTV, propelling the punk outfit from an entity on the small club circuit to the households of the common man.

Blood reports that all four band members share in a twisted vision of life in America.

"I didn't tell you how I put my feet in the toilet?," Blood said. "Yeah. You pour in some Epsom salt and flush. It's like a foot massage.

Advice well taken.

The Dead Milkmen will perform on Friday, June 15, at Saint Andreu's Hall, 431 E. Congress, Detroit. For information, call 961-MELT. The band will also appear 3-5 p.m. the same day to sign copies of its new album at Sam's Jams, Plymouth Road, west of Middlebelt, Livonia.

Red C mixes music and morality

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Moralism and contemporary pop music. The two seldom mix.

Red C would like to change that. In fact, the foursome has already started.

With a progressive pop sound, Red C attacks the premise that contemporary dance music must only appeal to the loins.

"It's an art form," said Tim Diaz, guitarist with the band. "There's got to be something more to offer than songs about sex or drugs.

"Everyone in the band has been raised in the church. None of us are keen on taking the words 'Pump it' and using it with sexual overtones in a song."

If Red C's convictions come off a bit strong, it's because they are. Refreshingly, though, the band doesn't resemble an outfit of traveling evangelists on stage.

Red C's music is devoid of preaching or finger-pointing. The group is not a "Christian band."

First and foremost, Red C wants to known as a good group of musicians. After all, as Diaz points out, there are Christians who are dentists and doctors. They are not known as Christian doctors or Christian dentists.

YET MANY find Christianity and contemporary music are a major incongruity. For those who profess their faith, it's a double-edged sword.

Devout Christians want the music to reflect those beliefs 100 percent of the time. Others sometimes find spiritually-based tunes to be overbearing if not pretentious. Just ask U2.

Instead, Red C sings about how love heals all in "Circle of Love" and about falling out of love in "Falling Out of Love With Love."

Non-offensive lines, plus some fine musicianship and the velvet-smooth vocals by Susan Calloway has helped Red C rise quickly in local circles.

Red C was the house band at Midtown Cafe in Birmingham and has performed around the circuit at such places as Paycheck's in Hamtramck and Alvin's in Detroit. The group only decided to play live club dates a year ago.

"We're musicians and we try to be the best we can," said Calloway, a graduate of Southfield Christian High School and a student at Oakland University. "You can't do that unless you play the club circuit."

RED C FORMED two years ago, not with the intention of playing in clubs but just to play. Calloway met up with Birmingham Groves graduate Steve Woods at Highland Park Baptist Church. Later, they got in touch with Diaz. After a host of bass players, Red C settled on Jeff Hoffer, who is graduate Troy Zion Christian High School.

Band experience is limited, though Diaz did tour with a Christian band Morning Star at one time. All four members contribute in meshing the the group's sound, which has evolved from strictly pop to a divergent mix of jazz to a gritty blues base. Calloway and Diaz write the majority of lyrics.

For most of the members, the club scene has been an eye-opening experience. Bands such as Ashcan Van Gogh have been very helpful in the transition, said Diaz.

Though not evangelical, band members say Christian beliefs do find their way indirectly into the music.

"If you were raised in the ghetto of New York, you'd look at life differently than someone who grew up in Manhattan," Calloway said. "In my relationship with God, it influences the way I look at life.

"It's something we don't take lightly."

Red C performs on Thursday, July 14, at 3-D in Royal Oak. For information, call 589-3344. The band will also appear Wednesday, June 20, at Woodward Jukebox, 4616 N. Woodward, Royal Oak. For information, call 549-2233.

Red C — Stephen Woods, Jeff Hoffer, Timothy Diaz and Susan Calloway — has a progressive pop sound that attacks the premise contemporary dance music must only appeal to the loins.

REVIEWS

TOYBOATTOY BOATTOYBOAT — O-Positive

O-Positive is a Boston-based band that showed remarkable potential on a pair of releases, the most notably the LP "Cloud Factory" which received favorable reviews in a host of music publications and charted in the Gavin Report and Rolling Stone.

The beauty of O-Positive's music has always been their ability to present an echoing, atmospheric sound with a breath of passion.

Unfortunately, we don't hear enough of that on the band's major label debut, "ToyBoatToyBoatToyBoat" (Epic). Instead, what we do hear is a group that has undoubtedly turned over the reigns to the producer.

The result is a radio-ready, commercially acceptable album that is certainly far from being a dud. Yet "ToyBoatToyBoatToyBoat" is devoid of some of those earmarks which brought O-Positive their following on the East Coast and beyond.

Granted, there are flashes of the former O-Positive in songs "On to Something" and "Holding on to You." In "On to Something," vocalist Dave Herlihy and guitarist Alan Petitti let loose and delve into a different realm. "Holding on to You" is a soft, yearning piece with band member Dave Martin adding background noise with a saw.

The rest of the LP is crafted with pop sensibilities, breaking few traditions. "ToyBoatToyBoatToyBoat" producer Peter Walsh has worked with the likes of Peter Gabriel, Simple Minds and Love & Rockets. To his credit, he brings out several sides of O-Positive. Albeit, sometimes not always the best. Case in point in the funk-laden "International," which is a bar-band dance number better left on the floor along with the spilled beer and cigarette butts.

Weighing pluses and minuses, O-Positive still comes out ahead. But, holding their past against them, we expect a little more.

STUCK TOGETHER WITH GOD'S GLUE — Something Happens

Something Happens' debut album, "Stuck Together With God's Glue," on Charisma Records is something of a shock at first. Especially, if one has had a listen to their two previous, import-only releases on Virgin "I Know Ray Harman" (EP) and "Been There, Seen That, Done That."

Those two products featured a raw, driving guitar outfit with a knack for clever, heartfelt lyrics. Understandable since Something Happens has always been a reputed raucous act on stage, earning "Top Live Act" honors in a Hot Press magazine reader's poll over fellow Irishmen U2.

With this effort, though, Happens have gone from rock alley out onto Pop Avenue. Those precious melodies and indelible hooks only hinted at before are refined, and in some cases, redefined.

The end result is a damn fine album that has the potential for commercial success. No matter what musical persuasion one comes from — be it from New Music sensibilities or from straight-ahead rock-and-roll stock — it's hard to deny this foursome's its due.

Tom Dunne's mellow, well-honed vocals have always had the perfect foil in Ray Harman's spirited guitar.

This time, Harman's guitar is tempered a bit, though its rawness peaks through on "Hello, Hello, Hello, Hello (Petrol) and "I Had a Feeling."

Dunne helps bring this album home, milking each lyric for its worth with his smooth vocal renderings. For example, "Kill the Roses" is otherwise AOR argot until Dunne gets ahold of this number. Along with the piano on "Parachute," the Dunne-Harman combination is as unbeatable.

Which might be said for "Stuck Together With God's Glue."

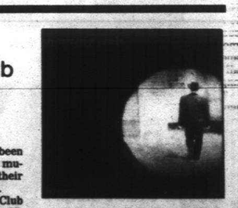
SHHH . . . — Shouting Club



The Shouting Club has never been one to knock you over with their musicianship, or for that matter, their vocals. Yet they get the job done.

For the most part, Shouting Club succeed on their debut cassette/CD release, "Shhh . . ." (Dogbunny).

One reason why is many bands exist only to make songs (and meet girls); Shouting Club exists because of their songs.

Ear-catching numbers such as "Call," "Bible Belt," and "6 a.m." have become as much of the band's hallmarks as the group's name itself in the Shouting Club's four-year history. Yes, that's right, four-year history.

With Cortez went a good deal of cynicism that gives numbers such as "Bible Belt" and "6 a.m." lyrical bite. Cortez sings those numbers on "Shhh . . ." his voice wrenched trying ever-so-hard to feign indifference. Too bad he left. He was just coming into his own as a vocalist.

FEAR & LOAFING

Karl Nilsson

Orbiting high above the earth's atmosphere, the Hubble space telescope is finally ready to reach the galaxy and take detailed pictures of aliens in the bathtub.

According to NASA, piercing through countless light years of cosmic void will be easy compared to getting a decent shot through those awful plastic shower curtains these so-called "superior beings" prefer.

Granted, unlocking the secrets of the universe will grab the big headlines ("Elvis Runs Health Spa on Distant Planet"), but what about the everyday riddles that stump us down here?

I don't want to know why Saturn wobbles, I want to know why it only rains on the weekends. I don't care about things that disappear in a black hole, I care about things that disappear in my sock drawer.

In other words, I want answers to the unsolved mysteries of suburbia, mysteries like Chet Anderson's bottomless hot tub . . .

To be a member, you must be at least 45 years old, 45 pounds overweight and wear dental floss for a swimsuit. The mystery is why don't they update their G-strings to a pair of baggy surfer jams? With today's funky look, even a beached whale can be stylish and modest at the same time.

OUR STAFF solved the puzzle — Fat Men are paid by the park rangers to reduce overcrowding! One stroll across the sand and 12 families scream "Gag me with a Fudgecicle" and leave the beach in disgust.

Not all mysteries are so easily solved. Our next case occurred in one of those new Rochester subdivisions where zoning laws require each fake Tudor to use an entire rain forest's worth of lumber on a tri-level deck and a pair of gazebos.

It was here that police received a call about a missing child. Men and dogs combed the area until the parents explained their son was lost inside the house:

"He was last seen in the gift-wrapping suite, but his shoes were found in the planetarium annex, and his bike was parked in the computer wing. My husband heard him in the indoor driving range, but when the elevator stopped there, he was gone. Now we just leave trays of food for his every 500 feet or so along the hallways and hope he turns up during the spring cleaning."

Speaking of cleaning, I suspect some of you are like me. On a list of favorite things to do, housecleaning comes in just below being handcuffed and dragged behind a motorcycle.

In fact, the only time we get the mop out is to impress a special guest (by "special" I mean anyone who would still be surprised to know we live like rodents).

THIS LAISSEZ faire approach to housework means the normal microspic dirt floating in the air clumps together, falls to the floor and forms into full-sized futton bed rolls.

Now, here's the mysterious part.

Last week, during an elegant party (by "elegant" I mean we rotoilled the carpet), a trio of fluffy gray objects the size of basketballs rolled into the dining room like tumbleweeds. When one blew up against a guest's leg, she reached down without looking and petted it.

Horrified, we stuttered and stammered until suddenly the dustball began to purr and hopped up in her lap!

We may not be rocket scientists around here, but we did find a new life form — long before the Hubble telescope.

STREET SENSE

You have a choice; she doesn't

Barbara Schiff

Dear Barbara,

I am a 21-year-old that is graduating from college this year. My girlfriend is also graduating. I found out after dating her for several months that she has been taking anti-depressants for six years. This was the result of her almost being hospitalized following the breakup of a previous long-term romantic relationship. I love her and accepted this.

However, in the past few weeks I witnessed several occasions when she became distressed and threatened suicide. Witnessing this was different than hearing about it and now I feel confused. I didn't know whether to break up with her and I felt guilty. She even asked me if I was going to end the relationship because of the way she was behaving.

She is now back to her old self — fun-loving and very sweet. She explained her depression and suicide threats as being a way of getting my attention because she thought I had been preoccupied with other things, and maybe I was. Now, I'm unsure what to do.

On one hand, I would like to believe that what she is saying is true and put the past few weeks behind us. Then I could continue the relationship without doubts. On the other hand, I am a little suspicious about whether her explanation is accurate and honest.

As you can tell from this letter, I am ambivalent.

Oakland Student

Dear O.S.,

The answer that follows is the type that brings responses from other people accusing the columnist of being insensitive, non-empathic and prejudiced against people with emotional problems.

You do not give me enough information to know whether this is a genetically determined depression, treatable by anti-depressants and destined to recur throughout your girlfriend's life span.

A psychiatrist who has taken a careful family history would be able to make an adequate assessment. Genetically determined mood swings are difficult to control completely with medication, even with the most capable psychiatrist.

The question you must ask yourself is whether you are willing to accept this life-long uncertainty. You have a choice. Unfortunately for her, if her depressions are due to neurohormonal changes, she does not have such a choice.

Your ambivalence may be a warning to you that you could not accept such a problem. To accept it, one should have a conviction rather than ambivalence.

Gallery touts cars' artistic merit

As the couple nurtured an appreciation for the machines over the years, they decided to turn their hobby into a business.

Four years ago they took their first step into the world of sales. At first, they approached artists offering to display their works. Now their reputation is such that artists often seek them out.

But Gallery Automania doesn't quite fit the mold of a typical art gallery. The works are properly displayed and the price tags are often impressive. But more than half of the store is devoted to miscellaneous auto items, ranging from posters to scale models.

It's a cross between an upscale art house and a toy store. These toys, however, are for the big boys. (Three-quarters of the gallery's customers are men, said Denise.)

The offerings include hand-crafted wooden models, ceramics, books and even stamps from around the world.

The stamps come closest to being the most unusual items the gallery offers, "but no particular item is really exotic," Denise said.

EVEN TO NON-FANS, however, the reproductions of hood ornaments, such as the Pierce Arrow archer and the Packard Adonis, are striking . . . And for sale.

Denise said there isn't any particular item that is favored by collectors, although items relating to Ferraris draw a lot of attention.

As for customers, "we get all kinds, from auto executives to blue collar workers," said Denise.

As she speaks, a well-dressed man comes in to pick up a specially ordered poster. The $60 cost goes on an American Express Gold Card. A few minutes later, frequent customer Bob Gustafson stops by.

"I'm interested in all kinds of cars," said Gustafson. His favorite, however, is the Mazda Miata. He drove one to the gallery.

"My Miata is one of the first delivered in the Detroit area," he said. "It's small, well-made and an agile car." And it's affordable. Gustafson's Miata ran about $18,000, about $5,000 above base price.

Being a self-described "car nut," Gufstafson collects items — he had 98 at last count — relating to the Miata. They include magazines, which brought him to Gallery Automania.

ALL CUSTOMERS to the gallery are treated with the cordiality of an old-time corner store. Attention is personalized but without the of intimidation you might feel in a traditional art gallery.

Customer-gallery relations are carefully nurtured and kept on a personalized level. Denise likes it that way and so do her customers. They know the gallery is a place that caters to their special wants and shares their enthusiasm.

"I've had a chance to meet and learn from some really wonderful people," Denise said. "Our customers really are the best there are."

They feeling is mutual even among new arrivals.

Bryan Bergero, a designer with Creative Industries, an area car design firm, is a first-time customer at the gallery. He strolls among the art works and views the scale models with an especially keen interest. He knows cars and he knows product quality. He also appreciates the sense of familiarity he feels at the gallery.

In two brief sentences, he sums up the reason Gallery Automania reaches its customers so well:

"Car people are a nice group of people. They're just a little crazy."

Gallery Automania is open 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday, 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Thursday and Friday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday. For more information, call 656-8571.

doting mother; and Edmond O'Brien as an FBI agent who successfully infiltrates Jarret's mob. Ultimately, it's he who picks Jarret off while the gangster makes his last stand high atop a flammable gasoline tank.

This was far from a last stand for Cagney, who worked consistently during the 1950s. His last film before retiring in 1961 was "One, Two, Three," a Cold War comedy directed by Billy Wilder. The actor plays a fast-talking Coca-Cola salesman stationed in West Berlin.

This is one of the titles I wish the hotel had booked to supplement the more oft-seen titles. I keep hoping that someone will unearth little-seen gems like "Footlight Parade" and "Hard to Handle," both from 1933. Success this weekend might bring a Cagney Fest part two.

'It's fun. I like to watch 'em get beat up.'

King mixes his magic with humor

By Susan Steinmueller
staff writer

Chuck King's show is a mix of magic and comedy that is guaranteed to entertain and amuse.

"I do some things that are top-quality magic and the rest is just fooling around, having a good time," said King, 33, a Lansing resident. "It's time-tested material. It's a good time."

King will be appearing this week at Miss Kitty's Comedy Club at the Long Branch in Oxford.

His routine will include half a dozen magic acts that could stand on their own as magic acts on television, he said. It will also include what he calls "adult humor."

This won't be the first time that he has appeared at Miss Kitty's. He is one of the club's favorites, having appeared there about a half a dozen times, and was most recently there for a Valentine's Day special.

"They can expect to have a good time," he said of those seeing his show. "What's nice about Miss Kitty's is it's a dinner thing and you can make a night of it."

• KING IS one of the few comedy club performers in the country who combine magic and comedy. He does well with his act.

"I have a real good market," he said.

King became interested in magic as a child. At age 18, he saw a magician perform in a bar, and became inspired to try performing himself.

He began performing magic while attending Lansing Community College, where he earned an associate's degree, and then started doing it full time.

His career as a magician was given a boost when he won the national Sleight-of-Hand championship in 1982 in Las Vegas. That was followed with the prestigious international Sleight-of-Hand championship in competition in 1984 in Switzerland.

"That's probably pushed me as far as I have gone," King said. "just having those credentials."

He has written three books on magic, and has a video company that produces videos as a learning tool for magicians. He has also worked with legendary musicians Harry Blackstone, Doug Henning and David Copperfield.

KING BEGAN performing in comedy clubs seven years after starting his career as a magician, doing so because of the increased opportunities to perform.

"I kind of slipped into it," he said. "I was seasoned a little bit. That made it easy for me."

King performs mostly in Michigan. However, he also headlines at comedy clubs around the country, and opens for well known performers such as Bob Hope and Jay Leno.

"If I had to define what I do, I can open for anybody," he quipped. "I'm pretty versatile."

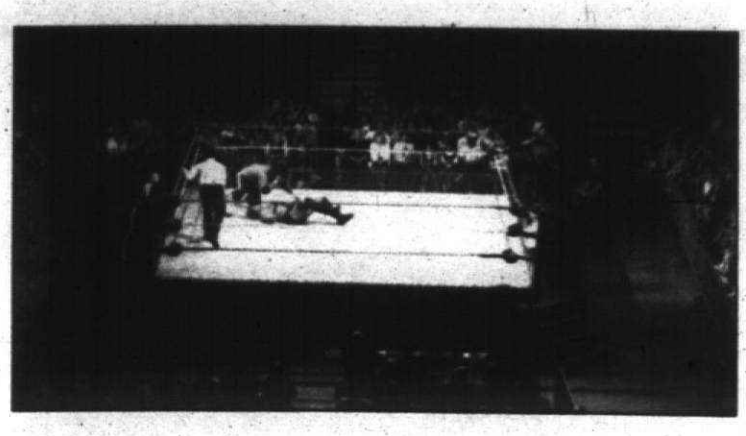
'There is no other sport this exciting. You can keep your basketball, hockey and the Lions . . .'



'It's fun. I like to watch 'em get beat up.'

Glitz, glamor and 'rasslin

By Charlene Mitchell
special writer

They come in pick-up trucks and limousines. Most wear worn-out and faded jeans, but plenty of folks in the crowd sport designer duds and Louis Vuitton handbags. They're old and young, a mix of ethnic types.

No, this isn't your typical uppity, yuppity Pistons crowd. These hyped-up city dwellers and suburbanites bring a different kind of fire to The Palace of Auburn Hills.

In case you're not one of the new hip sports fans who understands what this is all about, it's the Saturday Night Main Event and the stars are oversized, grizzly and, sometimes, kooky members of the World Wrestling Federation.

They have names like Jake the Snake Roberts, Bad News Brown and Rugged Ronnie Garvin. They range in appearance from 6-foot-5 pot-bellied former pro football stars to younger well-built body builders with bleached hair and salon tans.

FOR DIE-HARD 'rasslin' " fans, this new form of wrestling may be a bit too glitzy with its show-business overtones. But it's clear by the nearly packed house and the rising television ratings on three metro Detroit stations that the WWF is all the rage.

"Awesome" is the word of the evening as youngsters with colorful painted face designs lift clinched fists and cheer their favorites in the ring. But don't misunderstand, this entertainment by the WWF is a family affair.

A case in point is 36-year-old Dan Osklow of Port Huron. He knows his wrestling trivia and he made sure everyone noticed him in his second row ringside seat.

"I wear my WWF gear every time I come here," he said. (He comes often, never missing the WWF at the Palace or Detroit's Joe Louis Arena.) "There is no other sport this exciting. You can keep your basketball, hockey and the Lions . . . Hulk Hogan is my man!"

AS HOSTESSES, dressed in pert black and white uniforms make their way through the wild fans trying to take orders for beverages and snacks, they are constantly forced to conquer what seems to be an obstacle course. WWF paraphernalia like posters, banners and handmade stuffed statues in the likenesses of Macho Man Randy Savage, or Ax from the popular tag team Demolition, litter their pathways.

These fans don't just come to matches and sit, they bring goo-gobs of stuff with them. Like I said before, this isn't just a sport . . . it's big-time, shout-time, no-holds-barred entertainment.

A trio of West Bloomfield boys mugged for the camera. The designs on their faces represented the Demolition tag team, whose the black, red and silver zigzagged lines set them apart from their opponents.

Here's how the Doherty Elementary School wrestling fans describe the event:

"It's fun," said Casey Lezell, 11. "I like to watch 'em get beat up." His younger brother Jordan laughed throughout most of the night, never seeming to take it seriously but having a great time nonetheless.

THEIR FRIEND Jonathan Rodgers was the most vocal of the group as he shouted at the top of his voice, hoping to be acknowledged but none of the mighty guys in the ring ever noticed him. Poor child, all dressed and painted up, without as much as a smile or a nod from his favorite wrestlers.

"I watch all these guys on Channel 7, Channel 2 and Channel 50; they're also on cable TV," said a 9-year-old whose knowledge of WWF statistics makes one wonder how really beneficial television could be if more educational programs were touted in the same way as wrestling matches.

Sports writers and entertainment reporters take a lot of mystique out of a particular card by predicting . . . er, uh . . . announcing the winners in advance. This is the part that wrestling fans don't like to hear.

The facts are that all this is fake! Yes, contrived, planned ahead of time and orchestrated to the hilt. The slam-bam style of wrestling choreography assures the WWF and the arenas of huge crowds and big money at the ticket offices.

Palace officials say wrestling is one of their biggest attractions, and they have a long-term contact which means we'll be able to keep up with the action for a few more years at least.

ON THIS NIGHT, Bad News Brown lost to Jake the Snake, and the crowd went wild when the champ opened his famous canvas bag to take out the famed pet he wrapped around his neck. Handsome Mr. Perfect nailed Hercules while also getting best dressed honors for his form-fitting flourescent orange tank suit.

The highlight of the evening's line-up was a spectacular match between two of the star wrestlers' managers. Sensational Queen Sheery and Sapphire put on a real knock-down, drag-out fight complete with hair-pulling and name-calling.

But don't think for a moment that they aren't as skilled in the art of how to fake a fall as the men. Sapphire's knee pads bulged through her black tights and even though Sherry opted for her regular attire of a red cocktail dress with black stockings, garters and spiked heels, her skills as a champion wrestler made all the throwing and falling look easy.

At first, a full card of match after matched seems like a long boring night for a non-wrestling fan like myself, but I found the atmosphere addictive.

Bernell Wood of Detroit nearly knocked over my chair shouting, "Oh, Jesus, what's wrong with you? Get up," during the match between Hacksaw Jim Duggan and someone whose name I can't remember.

I SUDDENLY felt the need to participate. I stood up. I looked around at everyone else going crazy, then I got up the nerve to say "Tear him to pieces!" That was it . . . My 9-year-old son looked at me like I was nuts and I quickly sat back down.

If I learned anything from the experience, it's the fact that the men and women of the WWF have brought the sport of wrestling to a higher level. They've put spark and finesse into it. They've created a cult following . . . and a few closet fans like myself.

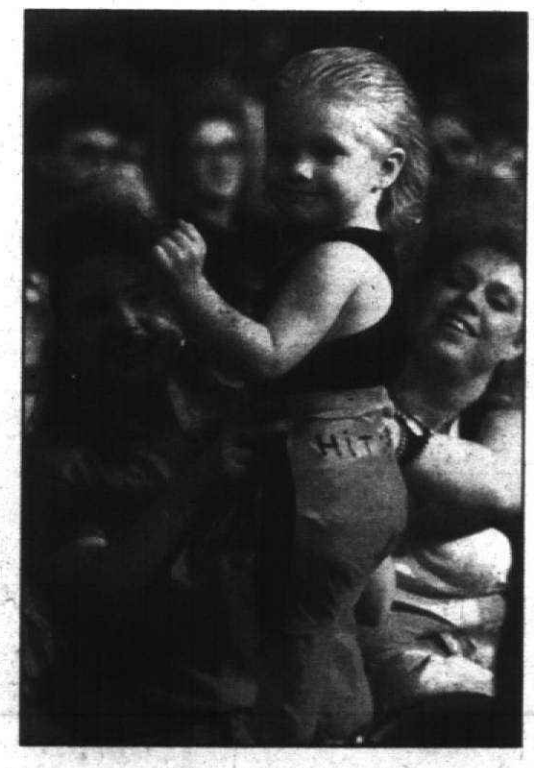
John DiLuco, 10, of Rochester (left) was the quiet one while Anthony Lamona, 5, of Utica cheered on one his wrestling favorites.



Three-year-old Kyle Martinus of Flint came to the Saturday Night Main Event dressed like a wrestler, with hot pink pants and a muscle T-shirt.

Denim finds place in fashion head to toe, doesn't the most faithful member deserve to be comfortable as well?

At Napier's Kennel Shop on Woodward Avenue in Birmingham, genuine denim overalls for your pet in sizes 14-inch to 18-inch and $18-20 each are cute enough to make even Fido wag his tail.

Remember those $15 Levi days? Well, times have definitely changed. At Mark Keller's West End, manager Barbara Jacobs said the imported Italian Replay jean is the hottest thing on the shelves today. The price tag? A mere $115.

"These jeans are so hot that we're already on our third re-order," she said. "When I was in New York, they were all I saw."

Yeah, but what do you get for $115.

"Well, the best thing about these jeans is their fit; they're terrific," Jacobs said. "Everyone who works here has at least one pair."

In another trendy part of town, custom-made blue jean jackets are all the rage, according to one energetic shop owner.

For a mere $250, the folks at Patti Smith in Royal Oak will have local artist Stephen Gemignani custom design you a very special denim jacket.

"The jackets he makes are really awesome," said shop manager Mary Abess. "I have one and everywhere I go, people literally stop me to find out where I got it.

"I'VE BEEN AT concerts and people grab my coat wanting to buy it right off me."

Abess said the jackets take about a week to construct and "no two turn out alike." The artist uses a variety of belt loops, pockets and other pieces from blue jeans to give it that authentic look.

So, you say, "There's no way you'd spend that kind of money on a jean coat; well, how about making your own?

At Stretch and Sew Fabrics in Troy, you can buy denim-like material by the yard to create your own masterpiece. The store carries either stretch denim in black at $8.98 per yard or regular jean material in a half dozen colors at $8.50 per yard.

Possibly the newest addition to the blue jean craze is the stretch jean, according to fashion experts.

"The material looks like regular denim, but one the customer tries to pull it on, it stretches and conforms to the body shape," said a buyer for Cherokee brand blue jeans.

AT THE CLOTHES Encounters in downtown Farmington Hills, they offer Farlow jeans, a brand of stretch denim, in a variety of colors, including effervescent blue jean, at $44-55 a pair.

And if none of these unusual denim items grabs you, no worries. There's always the old stand-by — a comfy pair of Levi's. The Gap stores throughout the metropolitan area carry numerous Levi styles — be it zipper ($38) or button ($38) flies.

Remember, there's nothing like coming home after a long day's work and slipping into your favorite pair of worn-out Levi's.

MS hits, but doesn't stop him

By Jill Hamilton
special writer

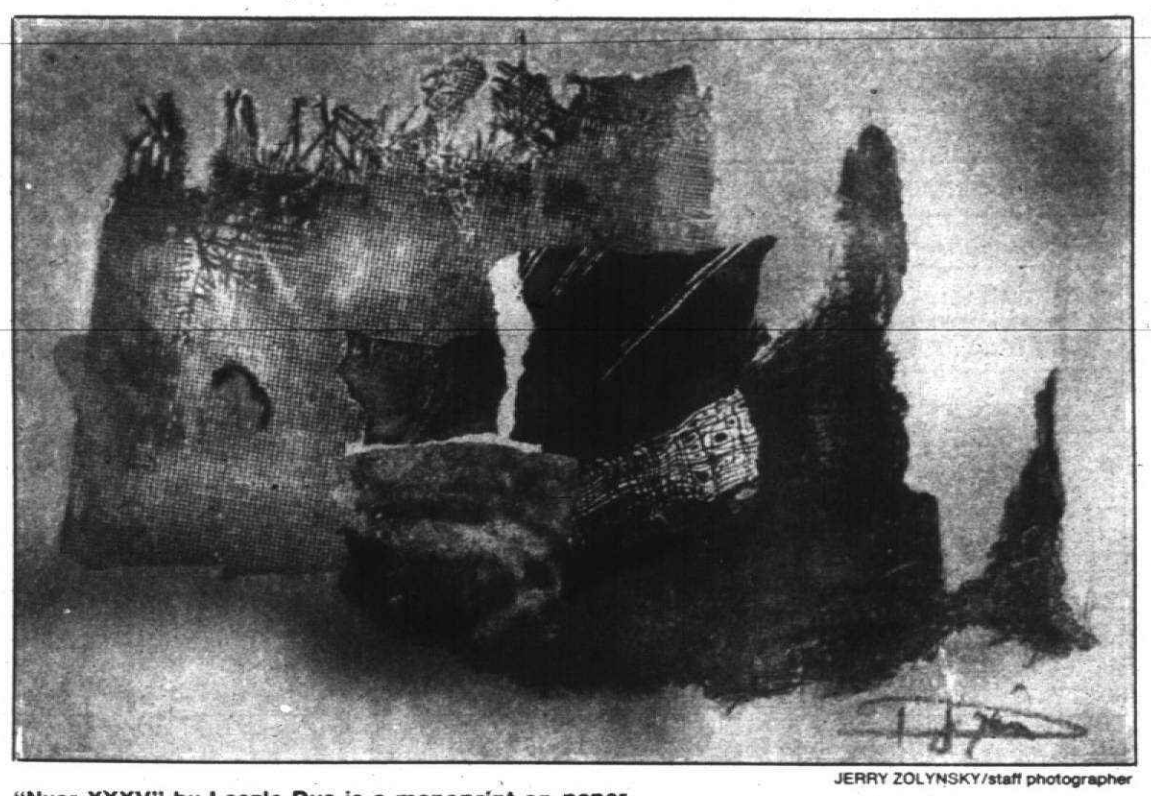
Stricken with multiple sclerosis a year ago, Dus is enjoying a remission and taking advantage of his mobility to create as many works as he can.

"I used to paint day and night," said Dus, "When I became paralyzed, it was impossible to work, very scary. I would think, 'If I can make just one more piece, I will be happy.' Since then, I've made hundreds."

Dus said he is always aware of the threat of paralysis and has said that it would take "three lifetimes" to put all the things he would like to express on canvas.

To look at him, you wouldn't realize he is battling MS. He is a robust man, looking a bit like Ernest Hemingway. He is so full of life that he almost seems to be glowing with it.

His recent works are full of that same glow. They are abstact paintings — full of thick layers of rich textures and an unerring sense of balance of color.



JERRY ZOLYNSKY/staff photographer

"Nyar XXXV" by Laszlo Dus is a monoprint on paper.

"AFTER HIS REMISSION, his art changed, reflecting it," said Alan Klopman, director of the Park West Gallery in Southfield where Dus's work is now on exhibit. Klopman pointed to some of Dus's earlier work. "These are strong and powerful, almost angry. Since then, his work is more about all parts of human existence — it's more harmonious."

It's true. Dus's work before the disease is somehow sharper or more intense. The colors are stronger and the shapes and forms seem more jagged, reflecting, perhaps, a sudden passion. The earlier paintings are like a moment in time, a single emotion or a specific time.

The later works are calmer, showing more of a slow contemplation of the world around the artist. If each of the earlier works is like a painting of a single flower, the later works are wide-angle overviews of an entire landscape.

Dus, a native of Hungary who considers himself an American artist, came to the United States several years ago to pursue artistic freedom. In Hungary, he said abstact work isn't accepted as it is in America. Though he is gifted at realistic portrayals (Klopman recalls a time when Dus, armed only with a pen and sheet of paper drew an "incredible" sketch of the director), he became intested in abstract art after a moment of enlightenment.

He explained, "I was painting realistic work and one day I'll never forget, I woke up, it was wintertime, very cold. I woke up and saw a magnificent form frozen in ice on the glass window. I never saw anything so beautiful.

"I then realized I should not be copying something from existing life. Rather, I should paint and create something that had never been done before, something that no one else could do. Since that time, I have devoted my life to that single pursuit."

Years later, the tiny crystalline ice shapes that originally inspired him are still a recurring pattern in his work.

DUS IS A MAN who is proud of his work. He excitedly pointed to several pieces of special interest. His enthusiasm about his work is shared by others. His paintings are part of important collections in museums throughout the nation, including the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York and the Detroit Institute of Arts.

But, perhaps Klopman put it best, saying simply, "He is truly a master."

"Laszlo Dus, A Contemporary American Master" continues through June at Park West Gallery, 29469 Northwestern Highway. For more information, call 354-2343.

Dorothy Lehmkuhl

Q: I'm constantly upset with my husband. After 18 years of marriage he still leaves a trail of clutter wherever he goes. I'm tired of fighting over this and am afraid he'll never change. Do you have any suggestions?

A: Your husband needs to understand your relationship would improve if he would change his habits. When innumerable people have asked me that same question in the past; however, I have half-jokingly recommended the Serenity Prayer. This time I'm not joking.

I recently visited my 91-year-old mother down in the Southwest and once again noticed the copy of the Serenity Prayer she keeps posted on her wall. It reads:

God grant me the courage to change what I can,
The serenity to accept what I cannot change,
And the wisdom to know the difference.

Most people know this prayer is used by Alcoholics Anonymous. While neither she nor I belong to AA, we both know people who do and believe in its benefits. Somehow that same prayer had renewed meaning for me on this visit.

Mother is still amazingly active. She regularly drives herself to church, on errands, to the doctor, the beauty salon, and to play bridge with her chums — most of whom are younger than she is now. While we are grateful she is still able to maintain herself independently, she has had to give up a lot, too. She attended my niece's wedding while I was there but was unable to join us for the rehearsal dinner or the more relaxed family gatherings after the reception. I felt bad leaving her home alone but she insisted she was fine — she simply didn't have the strength to do everything.

When I mentioned the prayer on her wall, she told me she says the Serenity Prayer several times a day. I knew of the times when she feels lonely, when she can't get a jar open, when her friends are buried one by one, when she sees weeds in the garden and can't pull them, when she can't attend social affairs. There is no hint of self-pity from her, however — only serenity. She accepts the way her life is now and she is (and we are) delighted she is still so mentally crisp, retains a hearty sense of humor and continues to enjoy some activities.

No one lives a perfect life. Some have physical handicaps, some are plagued by mental illness and some have spouses who are less than perfect. (In fact, all spouses are imperfect!) A silent prayer to be able to serenely accept what you cannot change might give you as much peace of mind as winning the Battle of the Clutterbug.

You can order the first year of Dorothy Lehmkuhl's Organizing columns, "Volume 1" by sending a $5 check and a long self-addressed envelope with 65 cents postage to Organizing Techniques, 6165 Worlington, Birmingham 48010.

Bloomsday set

With apologies to James Joyce and Leopold Bloom, the Detroit chapter of the Irish American Cultural Institute has scheduled its "Bloomsday Celebration" for Thursday, June 14.

June 16 is the actual anniversary of the day in 1904 that Bloom, Joyce's fictional character, set out on his daylong journey through the streets of Dublin. That falls on a Saturday this year, and it will be a heavy traffic day in Detroit — both the Grand Prix and a Tigers home game are scheduled. Admission is $5. For information, 535-7425.

Where would Her Majesty live in Birmingham?

At Buckingham, naturally.

She'd love the royal park across the street. She'd dote on the spacious two-bedroom apartment with fresh new interiors from the most modern appliances to the best lighting fixtures to designer carpeting to contemporary verticals.
She'd like the uncommon amount of room and royal way the service staff treats her. After all, a person's home ought to be their palace.

Robert S. Kenning, executive director of Oakland Housing, looks over the River's Edge development from a house under construction in the subdivision.

How would you like to buy a new three-bedroom house of 1,600 square feet with major appliances, two full baths, two-car garage and a landscaped lot for $85,900?

How about if you could buy the house with a down-payment of $4,300 and finance the balance with a 10-year land contract with a 30-year amortization period and an interest rate ranging from 3-10¼ percent?

And no closing costs.

You could do it if you buy from Oakland Housing Inc., a non-profit foundation founded 54 years ago to provide homes and financing for moderate income families.

The Birmingham-based foundation will buy 27 houses in the River's Edge development of Pontiac and resell the houses to families whose annual gross household incomes generally range from $26,000-$40,000. Children's earnings are excluded.

"TO A LARGE degree, these are young families with a promising future, but when they're starting out, they just don't have funds to buy a home," said Robert S. Kenning, director of the foundation and former Birmingham city manager.

The lower the annual family income, the lower the mortgage rate.

An annual income of $28,700-$30,599 would qualify for the 3-percent mortgage. Annual income of $34,900-$37,199 would fetch 6 percent.

In determining income, $2,800 is deducted for each family member in excess of two.

The mortgage rate, if less than 10¼ percent, would rise by 1 percentage point every two years never to exceed 10¼ percent.

Escrow accounts aren't necessary, but applicants should figure on paying $300-$325 per month for taxes and insurance in addition to principal and interest.

"After 10 years, they refinance, pay us off and we go off on other projects," Kenning said.

OAKLAND HOUSING buys houses in the subdivision from the builder, Welcome Homes of Clarkston, then re-sells to individual buyers. Oakland Housing also finances the land contracts.

So far, the foundation has approved nine applicants for River's Edge. Eighteen homes are still available in the subdivision on Orchard Lake Road just west of Wide Track Drive.

Rodger and Trosie Davis, along with daughter Ashley, moved in a couple of weeks ago.

The River's Edge quad is the family's first experience with home ownership. Rodger heard about the development from the office of Wallace Holland, mayor of Pontiac.

"It's nice, really well built," Davis said. "It's convenient, roomy, spacious. There's enough room at each level for maneuvering.

"WHAT WE'RE saving is a cut in down payment and closing costs. That's the hardest part of buying a house. As long as you've got good credit, you're fine," Davis said.

No applicant will be denied consideration because of race, religion, age, sex or ethnic background, maintains promotional materials for the development. There is no application fee.

Potential buyers can get the process started by phoning Oakland Housing at 647-4501.

Arrangements will be made to tour models.

"We'll send a brochure and application," Kenning said. "If they send it back, we'll send it to a credit bureau for review. If that's satisfactory, we provide a social worker who calls on them in their home."

The social worker fills in holes in the application, checks to see how applicants maintain their current household and gets an idea how they will do in River's Edge, Kenning said.

THE FOUNDATION'S board of directors, which includes Richard H. Austin, secretary of state, makes the final decision on applications.

If buyers don't live in the homes at least three years, they must reimburse the foundation for the mortgage subsidy.

A big reason Welcome Homes could build new houses so inexpensively is that Pontiac paid for the utilities and made the land available at bargain basement prices as part of an urban renewal effort.

Legal audit necessary

condo queries

Robert M. Meisner

We have been told that there are a number of agreements the association should have prepared in its initial formation once it takes over control from the developer. Can you give us any help in that regard?

We recommend to associations that they establish resolutions regarding bylaw enforcement and collection procedures and have "modification agreements" for those requested to the common elements and a special agreement for handicapped people. We also recommend a legal audit of the association's condominium documents and operating procedures in its initial stages to ensure that the developer's attorney put into the documents all of the requirements for the successful operation of the association. These are items we usually recommend the association undertake in its first year.

Our industrial condominium is being poorly managed. The developer does not seem to care about the manner in which the units are being maintained by the individual owners and has abdicated that role to the management company, which has never had any experience in an industrial condominim. What can we do as a practical matter, short of litigation?

Have a meeting with the co-owners of the units to discuss whether new management is necessary and whether a strong letter to the developer would be appropriate to ensure that the units are being properly maintained. Also, you have recourse under the condominium documents and state statutes to deal with this problem. It may be necessary to shake up the developer before you get a successful resolution. You may also wish to consult with counsel regarding your various remedies under the particular documents of your industrial condominium. If you are successful in ensuring that the developer meets its responsibilities in an industrial condominium, you have a better chance to operate the industrial condominium more successfully.

I don't want to sound petty, but our association had food at our annual meeting by way of a boxed lunch for anyone who attended. I was not able to attend, and I think it is unreasonable for the association to have spent this money. Do you have any comments?

There is always a gray area as to what the association can do by way of entertainment. To me it seems reasonable for the association to spend money by way of entertainment for an annual meeting to the extent that the money serves to bring out members to participate in the affairs of the association. While I do not necessarily think that it would be advisable or proper to have an open bar at the annual meeting, I do believe that it is more then reasonable to serve refreshments and, if necessary, a lunch or other type of modest meal to the members of the association who wish to attend. I do not necessarily believe that that is abuse of discretion. It may be an excellent way of getting people to participate more in the affairs of their association.

Our condominium deed restriction has a provision that says that no dog can weigh more than 35 pounds. Our dog is about 45 pounds, but the board has threatened to take legal action against me. Our management company is using an attorney in behalf of the association who I know also has done work for the management company. I think that is wrong. Can something be done?

You may well have the association over the barrel on two counts. First, a Michigan Court of Appeals decision has held that a weight restriction on dogs is unenforceable and unreasonable on the basis that a pit bull who may weigh 10-15 pounds may be just as dangerous as a German shepherd weighing 60 pounds. When the attorney for the association comes after you, you might also point out to the board that the attorney may well be in a conflict of interest if he has not advised and gotten the approval of the board to represent the association regarding the work he has done for the management company.

The board of directors may well be in a conflict of interest under these circumstances and disclosure is necessary to both parties. If the attorney has done work for the management company, it may impair his or her ability to zealously represent the association's interest, particularly if there arises a dispute with the management company or if there is any issue as to the performance of the management company.

FAMILY FARE

Showtime presents week filled with star-studded family classics

By Donna Gooch

Cher narrates an animated version of "The Ugly Duckling" Tuesday morning, June 12, as part of Showtime's Storybook Classics series.

The family favorite by Hans Christian Andersen relates the tale of a lonely duckling who finally discovers his true worth as a beautiful swan.

The show features painting by Robert Van Nutt and music by harpist Patrick Ball and Joan Jeanrenaud.

Other Storybook Classics this week include animals in trio as "The Three Billy Goats Gruff" and "The Three Little Pigs," both air Friday, June 15. Holly Hunter serves as narrator for the two family fables.

The first tells about three goats and their attempts to cross a bridge guarded by a very grumpy troll. In the second, a menacing wolf meets his match in a clever pig.

Also on Tuesday morning on Showtime, get your VCR warmed up for The Wonderful World Of The Brothers Grimm.

This fanciful adaptation of the Grimm tales is offset by a look at the famed brothers' lives.

The large cast includes Laurence Harvey, Claire Bloom, Jim Backus, Barbara Eden and Beulah Bondi.

More family programming on Showtime includes a music-filled, animated version of "The Three Musketeers" airing Thursday, June 14.

In this family classic, a young man who dreams of joining the famous musketeers aids the swashbuckling swordsmen in defeating an evil cardinal and saving the queen.

Cable Comments

By LARK L. SAMOUELIAN
Executive Director,
SW Oakland Cable Comm.

SAMOUELIAN

Every person has their own reason why they watch television, then why they select particular shows. Well this also applies why one decides to produce a television show. An important factor that all advertisers know is that television is a very powerful tool. For several years the "commercial" world was very vocal to tout Community Access Channels as being not of any significance. Not so anymore. All National Competition and National Television Programming Services are recognizing all types of produced television product.

A fine example of this was through the 'Emmy' and the 'Ace' Awards Programs. The 'Emmy' is representational of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences. their purpose is to advance and foster creative leadership in the television industry. Granted the past membership was very dominated by the familiar Broadcast Channels. Each year the membership represents a more realistic view of the Television Spectrum.

The Michigan Chapter held its Annual Awards May 5, 1990 at the Troy Marrit Hotel. Everyone you see on the local TV was there. It is interesting that those who we mostcommonly recognize are the News Commentators.

We attended to lend support to our very own Fred Shaheen. Fred produced a Documentary in support of the organization P-Flag.The Documentary is entitled, "Listening, Learning, Loving: Parents of Lesbians and Gays." How proud we were of Fred, that evening as the excitement rollicked through the room. In the Documentary Category were commonly recognized heavy hitters. Philip Handleman of WTVS and Mort Crim, John Owens of WDIV and then there was Community Access with Fred Shaheen of Ch. 12 MetroVisionWOCC. The winning Documentary was "Remembering the Holocaust" by Philip Handleman-WTVS. What a thrill and an honor for all.

The evening saluted forty-six categories. They also honored "zany comedian" Soupy Sales, with the Governors' Award. This Award is presented each year at the Emmy Gala to a person whom the Board of Governors deems having made a significant contribution to the broadcasting industry.

The "Ace" Awards represent the National Cable Television Association which consist of Cable Companies throughout the United States. The 'Ace' Award Evening drew international appeal with participants from Europe, Japan, Canada and the United States.

Our Local News Intern Coordinator, Farmington Resident Tracy Thompson covered the event. Tracy is an instructor at Wayne State in the area of Television and Film SDcript Writing. She headed up an enterage of students to support our local entrant. Denise Swope, a Canton resident, began and has continued her advocatin in Community Television through producing of socially significant documentaries. She had been nominated in the Public Sevice Announcement single spot category for her PSA, "Stop Child Abuse".

Accompanying Denise Swope to the awards were two of her production crew-Victor Spicer, theanimator and John Prusak, the videographer. Terry Kelly and Tom Daughtery, other production members did not attend.

Tracy reported that local producers are honored in over thirty-five catagories, which range from News, to talk shows, educational series and documentaries. Martin Mull hosted this twelfth annual "Ace" competition.

In the opening remarks, "Visions for the '90's," it was predicted that by the end of the decade, cable television systems could offer menus with up to 250 channels. Viewers would pay only for what they consume.

Tracy reports that the show was also saturated with exhibitors displaying their cable offerings such as: Disney Channel, ESPN, TNT andd the Movie Channel.

Several of the new items attracted Tracy's attention. tye Sci-Fi Channel plans to mix old TV series, Fantasy and Horror movies with original programming starting in 1991. Two other channels plan to offer legal programming, one of which is "N COURT". This channel operates in New York. It features real trials from "44" states.

How our world is becomng so accessable to us! Also the 'aura' of television stars are reaching more and more into our own homes. Just think of the people in our neighborhoods who are now being seen on television, and the most powerful of all, they are beingheard and listened to! Watch and Recognize and Listen and See if You Agree. Then please know that you have your own very own opportunity to share in the excitement of the 'aura' within television not too far from your home. I will be happy to help you link up with the television facilitator in your area. At the Southwestern Oakland Cable Commission my number is 473-7266.

Chevy Chase guest stars on The Dave Thomas Comedy Show, airing Monday on CBS.

Jane Pauley reports on The Secret Race: The East German Sports Machine, on NBC Wednesday.

Gerald McRaney stars as tenderfoot dad

By MARY ANN TOWNSEND

Most families just have a generation gap between parents and offspring to conquer, but in "Major Dad," one of this past season's hit CBS comedies, there is much more to overcome than the two generations.

Not only do the three children in the show come up against the typical differences between parent and child, but they also face a "major" difference of opinion between their parents about child rearing. That difference of opinion is what has made the show a success.

Gerald McRaney stars as Mac MacGillis, a conservative Marine major who, in the premiere episode, fell in love with and proposed to Polly Cooper, a liberal journalist played by Shanna Reed. Mac's new assignment soon became the most difficult one he had ever faced, heading up a household of an independent wife and three daughters.

"The producers of 'Simon & Simon,' John Stephens and Rick Okie, sort of together came up with the idea, basically, of a guy in an odd profession, a la Army, Marine Corps, some sort of seemingly terribly right-wing sort of profession having to deal with kids for the first time in his life seriously," McRaney explained about the show's genesis.

"I think a lot of people have this notion of a Marine being about as far right-wng as you can go without becoming Genghis Khan, and a lot of other people have the notion that journalists are about as left-wing as you can go without actually pledging allegiance to the red flag," he joked.

"The thing we'd like to carry out in this show is the notion that you can have divergent points of view, but we're all in the same game, here," he added. "Maybe it's too much of a cliche to say that 'love conquers all,' but it can conquer a lot."

The first season of the show has proven that point time and time again, as Mac has dealt with situations he never thought he would.

McRaney's real-life parenthood has had its share of hard knocks, but determination pulled him through the rough times. The actor was faced with a difficult decision when his son from his first marriage, Angus, now 19, was diagnosed at age 3 as having been born deaf. At one point, McRaney considered giving up acting to seek more reliable employment and help his son.

But a flurry of parts kept him from having to change careers, and enabled him to help his son in other ways. For two grueling summers, McRaney joined his son in an intensive program at the John Tracy Clinic in Los Angeles, a clinic named after the late actor Spencer Tracy's son, where speaking and lip reading, rather than signing, were taught. His son's vocabulary quickly improved to the levels of other children his age.

"Mackie's what used to be called a square," said McRaney's one-time co-star Jameson Parker when the two were starring in "Simon & Simon," "a very stable guy, a family man."

Roseanne Barr stars as Roseanne Conner, a blue-collar working mom, and John Goodman as her lovable husband, Dan, on the hit comedy series, Roseanne, Tuesdays on ABC.

SOAP TALK

Dawn Winthrop a character for experimentation

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: I was wondering why they keep replacing the character Dawn Winthrop on General Hospital. I liked the first one the best. Why don't they just kill her off or have her leave town if they can't use the character any more?

I'm also still upset about the way they got rid of the new Duke. He was terrific. Why can't they just leave the good actors alone? —Soap pal, Trinity, Texas

Dear Reader: The newest actress to portray Dawn is Jennifer Guthrie. Guthrie replaces Lisa Fuller, who replaced Sharon Case, who replaced Kim Valentine. It seems that GH is trying to go in a different direction with the character, and that is why they keep replacing the role.

I'm certain that it's difficult to find someone who fits an already existing role, but many times we are the ones who suffer through these sudden cast changes. Look at Y&R's bad luck with replacing Jack Abbott. I have received an amazing amount of mail from viewers who have stopped watching the show because they detest Peter Bergman (the new Jack).

On the other side of that coin, Terry Lester has gone on to successfully take over the role of Mason Capwell, previously portrayed by Lane Davies, on Santa Barbara.

I am interested in how One Life To Live fans have accepted the new Tina Lord Roberts. Karen Witter has taken over the role from longtime favorite Andrea Evans. Two other actresses, Kelli Maroney and Marsha Clark, briefly played Tina several years ago and they didn't work out. Then when Evans came back to OLTL from her stint on The Young And The Restless, the role was once again successful. Is it possible that Evans is the only one who could ever portray the manipulative Tina? We'll just have to wait and see.

I want to hear from you! If you have a favorite soap scenario you would like to sound off about, or a question about the soaps, write to Candace Havens, Soap Talk, P.O. Box 17748, Fort Worth, TX 76102-0748.

BITS AND PIECES

'Empty Nest' co-star one of stars in upcoming parenthood comedy

Emmy Award winner Lindsay Wagner, Dinah Manoff (Empty Nest) and Marcy Walker (Santa Barbara) star in Babies, a lighthearted NBC drama about three friends who are all hearing their biological clocks ticking and who learn to cope with the trials and triumphs of having a baby in the 1990s. Adam Arkin and Valerie Lansberg also star in the world premiere movie, which recently completed production and will be telecast during the 1990-91 season.

Barbara Walters, ABC News correspondent, has been honored with a 1990 Lowell Thomas Award administered by Marist College in Poughkeepsie, N.Y. Walters became the first woman recipient of the award given for excellence in broadcast journalism. The Lowell Thomas Award was founded in 1983 to recognize the lifetime achievements of the leaders in the communications industry who exemplify the high ideals of Lowell Thomas, the legendary newsman who was an honorary alumnus of Marist College.

Mel Blanc's greatest fan is carrying on as the voices of Bugs Bunny, Daffy Duck and Elmer Fudd. Jeff Bergman was a speech major at the University of Pittsburgh when Blanc performed there in 1981. He was such a fan that he pounded on Blanc's motel room door until the great mimic agreed to critique his impressions. After Blanc's death in 1989, Bergman auditioned and landed the three roles. "I want to help Bugs live for another 50 years," Bergman says.

TRIVIA, ETC.

Trekkies, take heart!

By Steven Alan McGaw

Yeah, yeah, I've finally succumbed to the obvious. Herewith is the first segment of a two-part Star Trek trivia quiz. For some, it'll be too easy (real Trekkies may sigh heavily), too hard for more distant fans (like myself) and just plain unappealing to those who don't know Klingon from Teflon and couldn't care less. Anyway, here it is and many, many thanks to pals Stephen Welborn and Christopher Payton for the questions.

Questions:

1. In the series pilot, "Where No Man Has Gone Before," the crew of the Enterprise finds a recorder bouy belonging to what ship?
2. Who among the following performers have not appeared in either a series episode or one of the Star Trek movies: Joan Collins, Ricardo Montalban, or Sally Kellerman?
3. What is James Kirk's middle name?
4. Kirk originally served on what ship?
5. In the episode "Space Seed," on what planet are evil Khan and his people marooned?

Answers:

5. The planet was Ceti Alpha V.
4. The U.S.S. Farragut.
3. Tiberius.
2. Gotcha! All of the performers named have been aboard at one time or another.
1. The U.S.S. Valiant.

Wyman may return this fall, if 'Falcon Crest' does

By Polly Vonetes

Q: I have watched Falcon Crest from the first show. I am happy to see Angela is finally back. I think she really makes the show. My question is, will Angela be back this fall when Falcon Crest starts again? I sure hope so. —Sue in Olympia, Wash.

A: I, too, enjoy watching Jane Wyman as Angela Channing on Falcon Crest, however the big question is, will Falcon Crest return at all in the fall? The ratings have been low and the show has not been included in the CBS fall schedule.

Q: Could you please tell me how old Bob Barker is? And is he married and if so who to? —Faithful Price Is Right watcher, Sioux City, Iowa

A: Bob Barker was born on Dec. 12, 1923, in Darrington, Wash. He is a widower. His wife, Dorothy Jo, died of cancer in October, 1981.

Q: I've been watching The Beverly Hillbillies lately and wondered what happened to 'Ellie Mae'? I would also like to know what has happened to Shirley Temple. Did she make any movies after she grew up? —Amy Piver, Tabor City, N.C.

A: Donna Douglas, who portrayed Elly May, drifted into real estate after the series was canceled. She still acts on occasion, but she is also a successful real estate agent. Shirley Temple filmed her last movie in 1949, she was then 21 years old. She is currently serving as our ambassador to Czechoslovakia, having been appointed by President Bush.

Q: Could you tell me if the actor Glen Ford is still alive? If so, what is he doing these days and where does he live? Also, whatever happened to that cute little boy named Rodney Allen Rippy who did commercials years ago? —Maisie Miller, Salem, Ill.

A: Gwylln Ford, born on May 1, 1916, in Quebec City, Canada, lives in Beverly Hills in the home he designed years ago. He has had three marriages and is currently romantically linked with Carol Lynley. He always favored his Western roles, but has not been offered any lately. Rodney Allen Rippy, now 21 years old, retired at the age of 12 to his mother's hometown of Julian, N.C. He returned to California last year hoping to reenter show business. Living off his childhood earnings, he has enrolled at Cerritos College, where he's studying business and marketing. In his spare time he looks for acting jobs.

Q: Could you please help me? I would love to know more about Jay R. Ferguson, who plays Ponyboy Curtis on The Outsiders. Please try to find out his address, too. —Caron Yarbrough, Texas

A: The Outsiders was 15-year-old Jay's television debut performance, although at the age of 16 months he appeared with his mother, actress Bobbie Ferguson, in the film Drive-In. At age 7 he began to study acting, and at age 11 enrolled in the Pacoima Fine Arts Magnate School, where he concentrated on drama, dance and musical theater in addition to his regular studies. A natural athlete, Jay participates in basketball, baseball, water and snow skiing, and occasionally spends the day surfing with friends at Malibu Beach. Currently residing in Los Angeles, his hobbies include dancing, traveling, hiking and cooking. Write to him c/o The Outsiders, Fox Broadcasting Co., P.O. Box 900, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90213.

HOROSCOPE

June 10 through June 16 By A. Murphy

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
When wondering how to fill up a quiet moment, seek to fulfill your body, spirit and mind. Take a walk, read or write. Make decisions carefully.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
Pay close attention to your emotions. Do not involve yourself in what you know is dangerous. Many people could use help and comforting.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
The more you remain a quiet observer, the more you will learn. Don't discuss problems until you have observed the situation first-hand.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
Demonstrate your appreciation to those who have helped you, whether financially or emotionally. The best gift of all is friendship.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
Make surprise visitors feel at home in your house, but do not allow yourself to be used or stepped on. Agree on details right from the start.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
Allow yourself to be freed from forces which cause you great pain, suffering or guilt. It may well be time to put that all behind you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
Don't allow yourself to lose your temper over small incidents like traffic slow-downs. Instead, examine the reasons for your hurry.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Use your imagination to prevent long-distance friendships from diminishing. Hand-make a special card. Send a cassette tape to keep in touch.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
It is normal and healthy to fantasize about what you would do with three wishes. Keep your dreams alive, but work toward real goals as well.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
Find comfort in the idea that you need not live under the rules of your childhood forever. Seek help if you feel pressures you don't understand.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Feel free to sing out loud if you feel like it. As long as there is no serious danger, let a child learn from experience. Memory is built that way.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
When you are feeling needy, very likely there is someone nearby who is feeling giving. Letting another help you is not a selfish act.
