Mettetal to wing it until an offer comes along

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Exactly what will happen to Mettetal Airport is up in the air after Canton shot down a proposal to buy it Wednesday.

But it doesn't mean that action will close Mettetal, at Joy and Lilley roads in Canton Township. State and federal aviation officials are fighting to keep it open.

"The airport is obviously available for sale to anyone and actually has been" for three years, said Tom Klochko, vice-president of Desert Sands, Inc., the company that owns the airport. The Mettetal family owned it from 1939 until December 1987.

'The airport is obviously available for sale to anyone and actually has been' for three years.

— Tom Klochko

THE PRICE tag is $4.1 million, according to information provided to a committee studying the possibility of Canton buying Mettetal.

Despite a majority of the committee recommending to buy, the Canton board of trustees decided last week against the purchase. They said they didn't want to spend tax dollars to support the project.

"I can't say I didn't expect this decision," Klochko said. "It will be for sale as an airport or anything else."

The future is hard to predict, Klochko said. "There's no way to tell. There's no rush to this."

Area pilots were upset by news that Canton declined to buy Mettetal, according to Peter H. Burgher, Great Lakes Area Representative, aircraft owners and pilots association.

"The real tragedy is not what they (the board of trustees) did, but how they went about it," Burgher said.

Canton spent a great deal of time and money to study an issue that Supervisor Tom Yack was already against, Burgher said. The study committee "was just an exercise."

Yack has said he could have rejected the idea at the start, but decided to appoint the committee as a courtesy to area pilots, as well as state aeronautics officials.

VARIED OPTIONS exist for how Mettetal land will be used.

- Developers could buy it for light industrial projects.
- Another community, or governmental body, could buy the airport, according to Richard Jackson, assistant deputy director of aeronautics of the state bureau of aeronautics.
- Also, a group of communities could form an authority to jointly operate the airport, Jackson said.

The Federal Aviation Association will continue to look for public sponsorship of the airport, according to Local boys head for Middle East

Pfc. Brian Barbee of Canton is headed for the Middle East.

Iraq's invasion of Kuwait last week sparked local reaction from families of U.S. servicemen, and from residents of Middle Eastern descent.

Pfc. Brian Barbee of Canton was scheduled to leave Sunday from Fort Cambell, Ky., for the Middle East. He's one of three local servicemen likely headed for the Middle East, spokesmen for U.S. armed services said.

Barbee, 20, a 1988 Plymouth Salem High graduate, has "a positive attitude" about the mission, said his mother, Faye Barbee of Canton.

"I feel terrible," she said.

"He joined the service to get the money to go to college and all of a sudden he's going to end up in who knows what.

"It's a hell of a way to get money for an education."

Pvt. Stephen Fleming, 20, of Plymouth Township, told his family he was leaving last week with the 82nd Airborne Division based in Fort Bragg, N.C., for the Middle East, said his stepmother, Sharon Fleming.

MEANWHILE, Army and Navy recruiting offices in Plymouth report no surge in calls from young men interested in joining the armed forces to serve in the Middle East.

"There hasn't been any increases in activity, and there hasn't been any decrease," said Petty Officer 1st Class Doug Ford, a Navy recruiter in Plymouth.

Board ready to roll on revised film guidelines

By M.B. Dillon

A proposal to tighten a policy on the use of instructional materials used in the Plymouth-Canton schools would have a chilling effect on education, according to Marguerite Vollrath, outgoing president of the teacher's union.

The policy change to be discussed at tonight's 7:30 meeting will require teachers who wish to use films, videos or cassettes in the classroom to explain in writing the educational purpose of the materials, as well as activities to be completed before and after the audio-visual material is used.

Teachers also will be required to give principals 72 hours notice of the showing of a film or video.

'Other districts require approval before teachers can bring in movies and tapes. Compared to other school districts, we've been lax.'

— Bob Anderson

IN THE past, teachers have been required to submit forms when guest speakers are visiting or when R-rated movies are shown. So this isn't a "drastic departure from the past," Vollrath said.

"Teachers always have objectives, and to put them on paper and turn them into the principal doesn't seem excessive. But whenever you put a demand on time, it's one more thing you have to do."

At the high school level, the 72-hour requirement could "really be a deterrent to the educational process" as far as the teaching of current events is concerned, she said.

Often, government teachers like to show tapes of CNN broadcasts dealing with timely events, she said.

"Having to notify the principal 72 hours in advance may be difficult, because if you see something on the news, it means you can't show it the next day. Unless there's a waiver for that particular thing, I know it will be a problem at the high school."

Vollrath is a media specialist at Centennial Educational Park.

REPRESENTATIVES OF Citizens for Better Education — a conservative Christian group that has protested the schools' use of R-rated films — think the policy change is well-advised and overdue.

"Other districts require approval before teachers can bring in movies and tapes. Compared to other school districts, we've been lax," said Bob Anderson, a CBE member who ran for school board.

"I don't want to be a crusader for censorship, but I think the freedom teachers have been given has been abused in some cases.

"It's as though some of the teachers feel parents aren't doing their job, so teachers then have to promote values to the children. That just isn't the case. It's true some students aren't getting a value-based upbringing, but I'd say the majority of parents try to transfer their values to their children.

"If there is some effort, it shouldn't be done in the context of the curriculum."

School counselors and extracurricular programs like Head Start should be used instead, Anderson said.

Anderson is glad to see something is being done, but the policy "still doesn't guarantee objectionable materials won't reach the classroom, because who's doing the approving?" he said.

THE BOARD, in revising the policy, is responding to "an issue people have raised, and one of those we were looking at anyhow," school board member Roland Thomas said.

There is no connection between the action and the hanging death last spring of an 8-year-old Gallimore student, Stephen Nalepa, after he viewed the film "Nobody's Useless" at school, he said.

"Most people feel, and I think most teachers feel, that before you present something in the classroom, it ought to be reviewed," Thomas said.

New Resurrection parish to hold first mass Sunday

By Diane Gale
staff writer

A new Roman Catholic parish in Canton has taken the name of a closed Detroit church and plans to have its first Mass on Sunday.

Members of the new Resurrection Catholic Church will come from new residential areas in western Canton, as well as people who choose to make the switch from Our Lady of Good Counsel, Plymouth, and St. John Neumann, Canton.

"We expect it to grow and it might be down the road that another parish will cut off from this (Resurrection) one," said the Rev. Richard Perfetto, pastor of Good Counsel and founding pastor of Resurrection.

The Rev. James Wysocki will replace Perfetto at Good Counsel.

BY THE YEAR 2010, Canton's population is expected to grow from 55,000 to 91,438, according to the Southeastern Michigan Council of Governments. Between 35 and 40 percent of residents in western Wayne County are Roman Catholic, Perfetto said.

The name for the church was developed during brainstorming sessions at St. John Neumann and Good Counsel. Separately people at both meetings came up with the same name, Perfetto said.

The first Mass will be 10 a.m. Sunday in Isbister Elementary School, on Canton Center between Joy and Ann Arbor Trail. And a potluck is planned after the Mass.

Schools to look at policy on films

"All we're doing is formalizing that process. It's a more structured process that gives the principal time to review materials to be used in the classroom.

"This is part of our ongoing process of reviewing policy. Most of our policies were written in the period between 1971 and 1972.

"Dr. (Superintendent John) Hoben gave (community relations director) Dick Egli that assignment two or three years ago; to begin going through the policy book for updating. Dick gets to it as he can."

NINETY-NINE PERCENT of the instructional material won't present a problem, Thomas said.

"You're always going to have those areas that are questionable as far as how the item relates to the curriculum. This will help address those. Principals are expected to be curriculum leaders. This just puts the onus where it belongs more directly."

Board discussion tonight probably will revolve around whether "we've given principals enough time to look at what's going to be viewed in the classroom.

"We'll probably also discuss whether we want the principal to approve or just to be aware of the material . . . those kinds of issues," he said.

Airport seeks municipal buyer

Dean Nitz director of the Michigan section of the FAA.

"Because the township of Canton has rejected it doesn't mean we will stop our search for a municipality (to buy it," Nitz said."We continue to believe the airport is a valuable asset to the community for a variety of reasons and we're disappointed the township is not pursuing the purchase of the airport. It's an asset that may be lost."

The state has difficulty in finding communities that will accept new airports in southeastern Michigan, Nitz said.

"We think we need to save what we have," he said. "It's important that we have small airports in the metropolitan area, so small aircrafts can be separated from larger aircraft and not use their facilities."

KLOCHKO HAS said that maintenance and improvement costs for Mettetal are expensive.

Communities are offered state and federal grants that would cover 95 percent, or possibly 100 percent, of the purchase and operating costs. Private owners aren't offered grants.

Another disadvantage to private ownership, Klochko said, is that Mettetal pays tax on fuel sales that go into the state aviation improvements fund, which goes to publicly owned airports.

Mettetal currently has 110 hangars with capacity for 200 hangars.

The study committee found that many improvements were needed at Mettetal.

They include paving the parking lot, tearing down and rebuilding at least 100 hangars, repaving and widening the runway; buying 29 acres to the north and south preventing anyone from building near the approach and removing underground fuel storage tanks.

Group rejects plan to sell church

A plan to sell the Plymouth site of the Jehovah's Witnesses Plymouth Congregation church to the UAW has been rejected by city planning commissioners.

While the congregation leaders can still seek the rezoning necessary for the sale before the city commission, nearby residents of the church on Sheldon Road are united in opposition to the sale.

"There was not one neighbor who spoke in favor of it," said Douglas Miller, planning commission vice chairman, adding residents packed the commission chambers for the public hearing on Wednesday.

"It's inconsistent with the existing use in the area, which is all single-family residential, and it's inconsistent with the master land use plan, which also calls for single-family homes in that area," Miller continued, explaining planning commissioners' rejection of the request.

The church is at the southeast corner of Sheldon and Junction.

Some residents said a rezoning could encourage others to seek office zoning along Sheldon, where homes now stand.

In their application for rezoning, the Jehovah's Witnesses maintain that between 10 and 180 people visit the congregation on various weekdays, and 180 to 200 on Sunday.

In contrast, they say one or two secretaries would use the UAW office on weekdays, adding there would be monthly UAW meetings.

Tom Kayfes, presiding overseer of the congregation, said they plan to sell because "We just want a more modern building and we're outgrowing that one."

He said the congregation, which includes members from Plymouth, Northville, Novi and Canton, is looking for land to build a new building near Five Mile Road in Plymouth.

Kayfes could not be reached for comment on church leaders' plans, after the planning commission rejected the rezoning.

Law beats Keen-McCarthy

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

What if they gave a primary election and nobody came?

Well, it wouldn't be much different from what happened when they gave an election on Tuesday.

While observers predicted a low turnout — about 20 percent of registered voters — the actual turnout in Plymouth and Plymouth Township was even smaller.

"It's dreadful," said township Clerk Esther Hulsing, of the 15 percent turnout in Plymouth Township.

"I don't think we ever had one that was quite this low," Hulsing said, in the 12 years she's served as clerk. In the township, 2,503 of 16,482 registered voters cast ballots.

In the city, 1,167 voted — just over 16 percent of those registered to vote.

In the Republican primary for the 36th District state House seat, incumbent Rep. Gerald Law defeated challenger Kathleen Keen-McCarthy, by winning 55 percent of the vote in Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton Township.

"I'm very happy obviously," said Law, who survived his first primary challenge since he first won election to the state House in 1982.

"I appreciate all the Republicans in the primary voting for me," Law said. He described his campaign approach as low key. "I put up some signs, did some phone calling, some mailing," he said.

IN THE fall when Law faces Democrat Dennis Shrewsbury — unopposed in Tuesday's primary — Law said he plans mailings, dropping off campaign literature door-to-door, some newspaper ads and calling homes in the district.

Keen-McCarthy, an associate administrator at Oakwood Hospital, went door-to-door to around 5,000 homes to talk with voters. "Certainly I'm dissapointed, but I think that it was overall a good thing to do," she said.

"It got people to take a look at the issues," she said, adding she'll consider running for the state House seat again.

"I enjoyed it, I learned a lot. I hope that if nothing else, it (her effort) will get Gerald Law to pay more attention to his district."

Law defeated Keen-McCarthy in Plymouth 512-241, and in Plymouth Township by 1,252-480. Law won in Canton Township 844-506.

In the Republican primary for governor, John Engler defeated John Lauve 1,525-192 in Plymouth Township, and 627-94 in Plymouth. Gov. James Blanchard, unopposed in the Democratic primary for governor, got 519 votes in Plymouth Township and 309 in Plymouth.

Local voters also supported a measure to renew the 1 mill tax levied by Wayne County, by a 1,240-1,056 vote in Plymouth Township, and by a 522-373 vote in Plymouth.

Worker reports electricity theft

crime watch

TAPPED OUT: A Columbus street resident was tapped out last week when a Detroit Edison worker discovered that an electrical meter had been tampered with.

The meter was turned upside down to obtain free electricity.

The worker told police that a meter had already been replaced once at the location. The stolen electricity was worth $78.18. The worker was willing to prosecute.

CAUGHT IN ACT: Two youths were arrested last week by Canton police after they found them in a wooded area of Cherry Hill and Lotz after the attempted theft of a 1985 Porsche.

The boys were in the process of removing two passenger side wheels when police arrived. Police found a lug wrench, car jack, claw hammer and vise grip.

WORK VANDETTA: A car parked in the garage on Bannockburn was broken into last week. The suspect is a 46-year-old Plymouth resident who was about to be fired by the homeowner from her job, also in Plymouth.

The missing items included $40 worth of cassettes, a $30 purse and $70 worth of medicine. A Hanford Road resident returned some of the missing items.

JEWELRY HEISTS: Three wedding rings, valued at almost $3,000, were reported stolen last week from a jewelry box, owned by a Canton resident, when the owner was moving the box from one residence to another.

Another jewelry box was broken into from a residence on Old Michigan Avenue last week. The box was left on a kitchen counter when the suspect left the residence.

She said a friend was eating pizza with three other friends when she left the residence. When she returned, the box was missing. More than $700 worth of jewelry was reported stolen last week, police said.

men, to find out if they've been sent to the Middle East, he said.

While it's possible at least one Navy man from the area is now in that region, "we don't know for certain — it's hard to tell," he said.

Army Staff Sgt. Howard McIntyre also reported no increase in calls from young people interested in joining the Army.

Of the ones who do call, "They're asking a few questions, 'Would I have to go to the Middle East?'" he said. "It depends on where they need you."

PLYMOUTH-CANTON residents of Middle Eastern descent say they support President George Bush for sending troops to the area.

"We are Americans, we haye been over here for 17 years," said Mark Yaldo, owner of Beyer Drugs on Main in Plymouth.

"We support this country," said Yaldo, who was born in Iraq and has family there.

He said he had talked with a brother in Iraq on Monday.

"They say they're safe," Yaldo said. "We hope nothing will happen, we all hope that."

Dimitri Ayoub, owner of Dimitri's Party Pantry on Main Street in Plymouth, was born in Jerusalem.

"Hey — I'm an American, I support Bush," he said. "I hope there's peace in the world, a lot of innocent people are going to get hurt."

It's ironic that when Israel has invaded an Arab country, "they don't send an international force to deal with it," as is being considered after the Iraq invasion, he said.

porary location until the church is built on Warren between Beck and Ridge.

"We're inviting everyone to the first Mass and mainly people who might be interested in becoming members from here (Good Counsel) and St. John Neumann," said Perfetto, pastor of Good Counsel for four years.

"A lot will depend on the rate of growth," said Perfetto, citing population growth statistics in Canton.

Between 15 and 20 families have already signed up as Resurrection parishioners.

"It's exciting to start something brand-new," Perfetto said. "There's no road to follow."

It will probably be at least three years before the church is built. In the meantime, Perfetto plans to rent an office in Canton and remain living at Good Counsel, at least for a while.

'It's exciting to start something brand-new.'
— Rev. Richard Perfetto, pastor

PERFETTO NOTICES an upswing in church attendance during national crises, he said.

For instance, for three months after President John F. Kennedy was shot, Perfetto said, he noticed a marked increase in the number of people attending Mass. And he predicts that if a war erupts in the Middle East, there will be another spurt of church-goers.

Art is center of attention for opening

Art was the center of attention last week in Canton

But it wasn't just art. It was the work of Canton sculptor Joseph DeLauro that was on display during the grand opening of Village Green Apartments.

The event raised more than $2,400 for the Canton Community Foundation and the Canton Historical Commission, according to event chairman William Joyner.

DeLauro's work was displayed in the apartment complex's community house and included many of the sculptor's works from the past 50 years.

DeLauro was chairman of the art department at the University of Windsor. He is now retired.

His works are displayed in many public places, including one at the Detroit Public Library and at the Hiram Walker whiskey factory in Windsor. He is a long-time Canton resident.

Group on the lookout for regional compost location

By Diane Gale
staff writer

A Canton group is looking for a new location for a compost site to handle grass clippings and yard waste.

The plan to start a compost site at Beck and Geddes road in Canton to handle yard wastes from Canton, Plymouth and Northville was buried by opposition from nearby residents concerned over environmental damage.

The voluntary compost program was to begin this summer, with the $250,000 start up cost to be covered by a state grant to the three communities in the Western Townships Utility Authority. The authority was established to deal with sewers, solid waste and other issues.

THE MICHIGAN Department of Natural Resources grant expired Aug. 2 when the Canton township board failed to approve the Beck and Geddes location.

The authority has applied for a grant extension and is looking for a new location that may not even be in the authority's communities, according to Ann Bollin, WTUA executive director.

By 1994 communities won't be allowed to take yard clippings to landfills or incinerators if a state law proposed by State Rep. James Kosteva is approved by the House and Senate.

By 1994 communities won't be allowed to take yard clippings to landfills or incinerators if a state law proposed by State Rep. James Kosteva is approved by the House and Senate. House Bill 4872 was approved House and is being reviewed by the Senate.

Canton trustees were lobbied hard by residents opposed to the compost site in their neighborhood.

They feared chemicals on grass would seep into their well water and their property values would fall if such a site was in their neighborhood. The 80 acre site would have been split into six fields, and eventually would have been turned into a sod farm.

Research shows that composts sites don't cause groundwater contamination, according to Wayne Koser, a DNR environmental analyst.

He said that when compost sites are managed correctly there's no problem with liquid that would seep through the decomposing yard waste.

Residents also complained about potential odor, increased truck traffic to haul the compost material and rats in wood piles.

Regarding the demise of the compost, area resident, Perry Cellini said, "I think it's great."

The fight against the compost, "was pretty cohesive, the area residents were together, a little unorganized at times, but we got the job done."

Meanwhile the idea of launching a community compost is still alive.

"The three communities are committed to decreasing their dependency on landfills and I'm optimistic that we'll come up with a solution for the three communities," Bollin said.

"In three years we will all be composting," said Bollin referring to Kosteva's bill.

Teacher's contract expires Aug. 27; talks moving 'slowly'

By Ralph R. Echtinaw
staff writer

Wayne-Westland school teachers have yet to reach an agreement with the district on a new contract.

William Reese, president of the Wayne-Westland Education Association and chief negotiator, said contract talks are moving "slowly."

Negotiating teams are meeting three times a week, but haven't yet begun to discuss financial issues like pay increases.

"Within the next two weeks we'll be able to get a lot of the non-economic issues off the table," Reese said.

The current contract expires Monday, Aug. 27, the day teachers are scheduled to report to work for the new school year. Students are scheduled to be in classes the next day.

"I don't think they're serious about trying to get a contract before the opening of school," Reese said, adding that the union negotiating team will decided after next week whether or not to ask teachers to vote on a strike.

Wayne-Westland schools Superintendent Dennis O'Neill said "right now everything is pleasant (in negotiations)."

BUT HE said there will be trouble if the union wants a pay increase for teachers. "We don't have any money, so there isn't anything to talk about," he said. "There's no money in the budget for any raises. If (Reese is) going to include some economics, I'm sure it will be very difficult to get an agreement."

On the possibility of a strike, O'Neill said, "I would be surprised if that happens, but you never know."

Contract talks are coming on the heels of the board of education losing two millage increase/renewal requests in the past six months.

In early February, voters overwhelmingly turned down separate tax increase and renewal proposals. In a second try, the board combined the tax hike and renewal into one proposal, also rejected by voters, although by a closer vote.

There has been no public discussion yet of a third tax election this year.

The 2.75 mill levy that expired June 30 will have to be described as a tax increase if the board of education puts that proposal before the voters again. Any levy would have to be approved by November to be collected on the property tax bills to be mailed in December.

Station managers react to increases

The price of gasoline jumped as much as 25 cents per gallon at some Michigan stations last week, though the increases were about 16 cents at most area pumps. But motorists who feel tempted to lash out at local stations for increasing prices might want to reconsider.

Gas station managers and owners said they are not raking in higher profits locally. Instead, they're raising prices at the directive of major corporations.

Some area managers and owners, fearing a corporate backlash, refused to reveal their names in comments they made that placed blame for fuel price increases on the major corporations. Some had been instructed not to speak to reporters.

Some managers said they had no authority to discuss the price increases.

Meanwhile, AAA Michigan reported Thursday that although fuel costs continued to climb, the rate of increase had begun to slow down late last week.

A special "fuel gauge" survey of 294 stations in Michigan showed 63 percent maintained prices, 26 percent increased them and 11 percent actually dropped them.

AAA also offered tips for motorists heeding President George Bush's call for gasoline conservation:

- Form car pools. Two people who ride to work together daily can save up to 25 percent of the fuel used weekly by each.
- Combine near-home trips. About half of all car trips are under five miles.
- Drive conservatively, accelerate smoothly and drive at a steady pace with minimal braking.
- Drive at moderate speeds. Vehicles can get 15 percent to 20 percent more miles per gallon at 55 mph than at 65 mph.
- Maintain vehicles. Following a maintenance schedule improves mileage up to 10 percent. Properly inflated tires, for example, can add a mile per gallon of fuel.

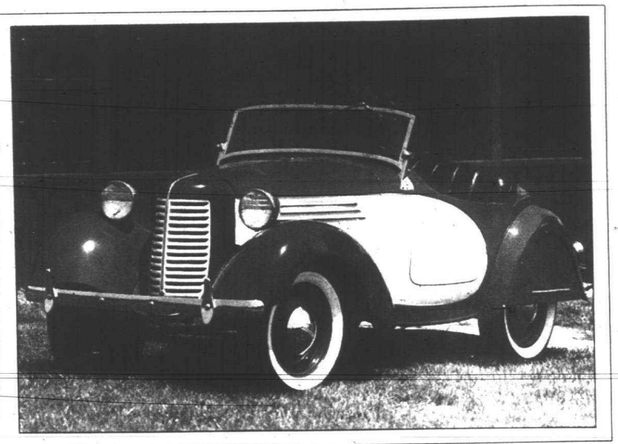
Bantam on display

A 1938 Bantam Roadster from Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village will be on display throughout August at Wonderland Mall, Plymouth Road at Middlebelt in Livonia. Advertised in 1938 as America's only economy car, the Bantam's Butler, Pa., maker claimed up to 60 miles per gallon and a top speed of 60 mph. Receiving most of its publicity from its use in Hollywood motion pictures, the Bantam was priced in the $400 range. The exhibit is to acquaint people with the new Automobile in American Life and other recent changes at Henry Ford Museum & Greenfield Village. Discount coupons will be available for shoppers at Wonderland Mall during the exhibit.



You may ask for agendas

Under provisions of Michigan's Open Meetings Act, you're entitled to receive notices of government meetings. A public body must mail notices to people who, on an annual basis, request such notification. Under the act, payment of a reasonable fee may be required before notices are mailed. This provision applies to all local, county and state governments. At the local level this includes city councils, school boards and various boards and commissions.

How to win at the numbers game.

The game is newspaper advertising — and the rules are changing. Rates are up in the Detroit News and Free Press. Suburban circulation is down. And all around town, advertisers are wondering what numbers to trust — and where to place their media dollars. What should you do?

Beware of smoke and mirrors.

Right now, the News and Free Press circulation is unstable at best. On the other hand, SPRING's network of 39 Detroit suburban newspapers delivers to more than 500,000 households — and that's a real number.

How do we know? All SPRING newspapers are audited. Every year, the circulation figures for each SPRING newspaper are verified by either CAC or ABC — two of the industry's most highly-respected independent auditors.

No slippery stuff here. SPRING's numbers are tested, tried, and true.

See what's behind the numbers.

OK — so dazzling numbers can be misleading. And, when it comes to newspaper circulation figures, you want more than quantity. You want quality.

We've got it. SPRING's one million readers are some of the most affluent consumers around. SPRING newspapers go to suburbs with the spending power to buy more cars, condos, boats, bikes, appliances, apparel, gizmos, and gadgets than most other Michigan communities combined.

Best of all, SPRING delivers this upscale suburban market at a lower cost per thousand than either the News or the Free Press.

Place your bet on SPRING.

Once you've studied the numbers, we're sure you'll agree: SPRING is a sure winner.

SPRING's circulation is solid and stable. It's audited. And it represents more than one million readers who have the means to buy what you sell.

No matter how you figure it — those are very good odds, indeed.

Get ready for rare show of no stars

skywatch
Raymond E. Bullock

On the morning of Aug. 14th, the moon will pass directly over the center of the Pleiades (Plee a dees) star cluster, occulting (covering) a great number of stars.

An occultation of a bright star by the moon doesn't occur very often, when it does it is only visible to those people who happen to be in the proper line of sight.

It is extremely rare for so many bright stars to be occulted within the space of a few hours AND be visible to a large segment of the population.

The show will begin shortly after 1 a.m. on Aug. 14 when one of the brighter members of the cluster, named Electra, is covered. Electra will reappear about one hour later, but as time is passing the moon will continue to drift across the Pleiades, covering other stars with its lighted edge while covered stars reappear from behind the unlighted portion. It will take more than three hours for the moon to complete its passage through Pleiades.

Because it is the lighted edge that covers the stars, the glare will make the exact moment of occultation difficult to observe. But the reappearance of a star from behind the unlighted edge of the moon will be most dramatic. The star will suddenly appear as the moon completes its passage in front of it. The best way to observe the occultations will be with binoculars or a telescope at low power.

THE PLEIADES marks the "shoulder" of Taurus the bull. To the naked eye five or six stars can be seen; with binoculars more are visible. The bright star twelve degrees below the moon is Aldebaran (al DEB a ran), the orange-red "eye" of Taurus.

Have a close look at Aldebaran and compare it to Mars. Both objects have similar color and brightness. That's the only similarity between the two. Mars is a planet, orbiting the sun and reflecting sunlight. Aldebaran is a star. It is about 68 light years away from us (the light we see tonight left Aldebaran 68 years ago) and produces its own light. Watch Mars close the distance between it and Aldebaran during the next two weeks.

Have another look at Venus, Jupiter, Castor and Pollux on the morning of the 16th. Venus is now four degrees from Jupiter; a distance that will continue to increase. A line drawn from Castor and Pollux still leads to Jupiter. That planet moves much more slowly than Venus, and Jupiter wil linger within the constellation of Cancer for the rest of the year.

On the morning of Aug. 18 the moon stand a mere 0.4 degrees above Jupiter. An extremely rare occultation (covering) of Jupiter will occur as the moon eclipses the planet. Unfortunately, the occultation occurs after sunrise and will not be visible to the naked eye, although observers using telescopes will be able to keep track of the event.

DRAW A LINE from Jupiter through Venus on the morning of the 19th and you'll come to the waning crescent moon. Notice how far the moon has moved in just one day following its close brush with Jupiter.

New Moon is at 8:39 a.m. on August 20. The moon is located between the earth and the sun and is not visible.

Look for Mercury, 15 minutes after sunset, on Aug. 21 and 22. The sky will be bright with the glow of evening twilight, but use binoculars and observe from an area that has an obstructed horizon. Mercury will be only four degrees above due west. The two-day old moon will be six degrees to the south (left) of the moon, on the evening of the 23rd, is Spica (SPY ca), in Virgo. On the next night the moon is four degrees below Spica. Spica is a bright blue-white star. It is about 275 light years away; the light we see tonight has been traveling since the year 1715.

Autistic center saved for now

Task force recommends keeping Burger open

By Wayne Peal and Susan Rosiek
staff writers

Burger Center, home of Wayne County education programs for autistic children, could remain open beyond the coming school year.

A task force formed by the Wayne County Intermediate School District has recommended restoring the former Garden City junior high school and keeping it open at least another 10 years.

"It's dependent upon Garden City continuing to have the program," Kathryn Mathey, director of county special education field services.

The task force was formed earlier this year, after a group of Burger Center parents protested the building's planned closing.

The 13-member task force was comprised of teachers, parents and school administrators from throughout Wayne County.

Task force recommendations were delivered last week to county school trustees and Garden City Schools officials.

Both groups must approve the plan for Burger to remain open.

The center, initially tabbed for closing at the conclusion of the past school year, will be maintained at least through June 1991. It is the largest center-based program in the nation.

A DECISION on its future beyond that is expected within two months.

"Really, we could go until January, but it's probably not fair to keep people waiting that long," Mathey said. "My gut feeling is that there will be a decision at the (county) board's October meeting."

Colleen Presley, task force member and a teacher at Burger, said she's "very optimistic."

"The fight to save our program which began years ago was to get other education people to recognize the value. I strongly support exploring all options in special education. I know this program is effective; it works in the lives of the children and families," said Presley.

"For the first time I understand what we need to continue to do is to have each of the ISD board members recognize the need for the program and the support that this task force has lent to this study," added Presley, who has worked in the Garden City system for the last 15 years.

Garden City School Superintendent Michael Wilmot said the county task force "did a good job" but said the report left several unanswered questions.

"We're going to have to sit down and talk with them (county officials) to see just what their plans are," Wilmot said. "For instance, we might not want to keep the program going for another 10 years if other districts would be pulling their students out of the program."

While the report also talks about having the county buy the building from Garden City Schools, Wilmot said the district is interested in learning just how much the county school would be willing to pay.

"We might be interested in selling, but we aren't going to give the building away," he said.

Burger Center had been scheduled for closing, in part, because of major repairs necessary to keep the building open.

BOTH THE local district and county agree the building's leaky roof needs replacing. As with many buildings its age, building must also undergo asbestos removal.

A February estimate placed repair costs at a minimum $155,000 just to keep the building open another year. The same study estimated it would take about $2.3 million — including $440,000 for new windows and another $440,000 for a new heating system — to keep the center open for another decade.

Whatever improvements are made would be paid for by the county, not the local schools, Wilmot said.

Beyond repairs, Burger Center was also center of a dispute on how best to meet the needs of the more than 200 autistic children it serves.

The majority of parents have worked to keep the center open, fearing changes would prove too disruptive to their children.

Kenneth Howse of Livonia is one of those parents. He's "encouraged by the recommendation" but stressed that it's just that — a recommendation. Howse, whose 6-year-old son attends Burger, said the parent group plans to continue its efort to keep the center open.

A few parents, however, believe their children would be better served by being placed in a standard school building, rather than a special education center like Burger.

ULNAR DRIFT
Ulnar drift is a complication of rheumatoid arthritis in which the wrist and hand pull to the outer side of the forearm.
The basis for this change is inflammation in the large knuckles. Muscles that keep the fingers and wrist straight originate in the palm. They journey through the capsule of the large knuckles, and insert into the sides of the fingers. If the knuckles become inflammed these muscles are weakened, with subsequent loss of ability to keep the fingers and wrist aligned.
The individual with ulnar drift faces problems of weak grip, pain from stretched tendons, and feelings of embarrassment because of their ugly hands.
Placing a splint on the outside of the hand will not help. Wearing the splint prevents the individual from using the hand, and removing the splint brings the hand back to its former position and weakness.
Effective treatment entails control of the underlying inflammation. Therefore, the presence of ulnar drift is reason to use drugs such as gold, methotrexate or penicillamine.
Surgical therapy includes placement of artifical joints in conjunction with straightening the fingers. This operation will relieve pain and improve the look of the hands, but the patient may be left with only limited grip strength thereafter.

Dorothy, I'll take Florida

Jack Gladden

SORRY, DOROTHY, but given the choice, I'd have to take Oz.

Home is a nice place and all of that. It's familiar and secure and comfortable. But give me a pair of those ruby slippers, size 11, and I'd cram them on my feet, click my heels together three times and recite, "There's no place like . . . Florida."

Forget Kansas. As far as Michigan's concerned, if you seek a pleasant peninsula, go south. About 1,000 miles.

All right. Maybe I'm just having withdrawal symptoms from the first real vacation in so many years I can't even remember how long it's been.

But even the native Detroiter . . . the don't-trust-anybody, count-your-change-before-you-leave-the-counter, vacations-are-fine-but-there's-no-place-like-home native of this frozen wasteland . . . caught the fever.

"I don't wanna go home," she blubbered, squeezing her mother's hand as we sat on the floor in the manse, watching the digital clock on the microwave count down the minutes until it was time to leave for the airport.

"And I don't want you to go."

THE 6-YEAR-OLD, sitting on the floor counting the shells she had collected on the white Gulf beach, gave up when she reached 313. There were at least that many more still in the plastic freezer bag. She didn't want to go home either.

And, I admit it, neither did I. But the 10 days were up and it was time. So we sat around, not saying much, watching the clock on the microwave, which Nana still hadn't learned to operate, even though they had been in the place for more than two years.

The native Detroiter's foot still throbbed when she put weight on it. She had fallen down the stairs a week before the vacation started and, although the doctor claimed it wasn't broken, just sprained, it hurt like hell.

She had hobbled through Disney World, Universal Studios, beaches on the Atlantic and the Gulf and more shopping malls than I could tolerate — and there was nothing wrong with my foot.

And Papa, the family curmudgeon, had tagged along through it all without complaining. After 40 or so years of working for a living, his idea of retirement was to do nothing.

But for the past 10 days he had put an extra thousand miles on his car and at least that many — or so it seemed — on his feet.

SOMEHOW THE three pieces of luggage and the one carry-on bag we had brought with us had grown to five pieces to be checked and three to carry on. Souvenirs. Stuffed animals. Seashells.

The new cowboy boots I had bought for myself were on my feet. No way was there room to stuff them into the already bulging bags.

On the way to the airport, nobody said much. I was thinking about the fish the 6-year-old and I had caught in the lagoon behind Nana and Papa's house. They were only bream, 2 or 3 inches long, but they were her first fish and she couldn't have been more excited if they had been marlin.

And the night before we left, eating barbecued ribs and fishing in the canal behind the neighbor's house across the street, we finally saw one: a real, live "gator" floating on the surface about 10 feet from the fishing pier.

IT WASN'T really Oz, but for the 6-year-old it was close enough. From the fantasy worlds of the Magic Kingdom and Universal to the pounding surf along Daytona Beach to the placid (if broiling) beaches along the Gulf, it was a world she had never known before. And her parents, who had been there, thought it was pretty neat, too.

Hugs and kisses turned to tears as we got ready to board the plane for Atlanta, then on to Detroit, where the air temperature was 20 degrees cooler than the water of the Gulf.

"So, did you have a nice vacation?" a colleague asked when I got back to the office.

I hesitated for a minute, then said, "It was OK."

Belafonte smooths flaws

To the editor:

I want to congratulate you for sponsoring the Harry Belafonte concert at Meadowbrook Music Festival on July 24th.

He and his supporting group presented a very entertaining evening. He is truly a professional.

However, the evening started out as a real disaster. For the first half hour the audience was forced to listen to a fairly crude and very unfunny person.

I believe anyone from the audience could have done a better job. After a half hour of this, the announcer stated that there would be a 20 minute intermission. No one, at least near where we were sitting, could believe it.

All of this was forgotten within minutes after Harry came on stage. I can't believe Harry knew who preceded him and if you did then shame on you.

Summer courses need revamping

To the editor:

I read with interest your article about the summer programs for children at Schoolcraft College. There are, in fact, two programs which you wrote about as if they were equal, but they are not.

There is one program for TAG (talented and gifted) children who must bring a permission form signed by someone in their local school district indicating their TAG status. There is a separate program for non-TAG children. But are these programs equal?

The TAG courses are more numerous, more interesting, and broader in scope than the non-TAG courses. There are nine non-TAG courses and 22 TAG courses. TAG subjects include keyboarding, advanced computer programming, math done on computers, ecology, biology, chemistry, fitness, French, creative writing, dramatics, speedreading, and drawing. In the past, physics, poetry writing, Spanish, video production, and philosophy have also been offered. However, non-TAG courses are limited to study skills, reviews of math, algebra, and English, building a radio, cartooning, general science, and basic computers. The basic computer course description says that "keyboard skills (are) recommended," even though only TAG students can take the keyboarding course in the first place.

TAG programs are fine for the regular school year. But during the summer why can't non-TAG children like mine take advantage of any course they desire? No grades or credits are awarded, so why would it matter? Such courses might even open up a child to a whole new way of thinking and to many new interests that he or she would not be exposed to during the school year.

The Schoolcraft summer courses do cost money, but a course averages about $55. Schoolcraft is convenient to most Plymouth and Canton residents (we live just over a mile away). Yet, in the summer of 1988 I had to pay $75 and drive one of my children daily to Oakland Community College (Farmington Hills) for a three-week ceramics course. Last summer I paid over $100 and drove one child to Birmingham daily for one week so that he could participate in a Russian language summer day camp (Chinese and Japanese were also available). None of these classes had any requirement that children be designated TAG students before they could apply.

I have contacted persons in charge of the summer program but they say the program cannot be changed. As a parent and taxpayer, I would like to see all public summer school programs open to all children, whether they are TAG or non-TAG.

Budget issue riles reader

To the editor:

I read the article by Mary Rodrique "Bush tax shift riles some local lawmakers," Thursday, July 26 with considerable interest.

The comments by my own representative as well as those by the other three representatives who are interviewed caused me to try and recall the congressional budget process workings for the last couple of decades. I can not truly recall the last time Congress did its budgetary job on time. I don't remember when they did not use the odious technique of a "continuing resolution" because they could not do their job before campaigning for re-election.

There was a time when Congress did complete the budget process on time and there also was a time when the Administration did not have to spend every last dime that Congress appropriated. Since the Administration can not not spend the appropriated money, I'm about ready to ask the President to not sign any "continuing resolution" which Congress might use to fill the gap caused by their collective incompetence.

How is it that Congress, being filled with such highly competent individuals, can be an incompetent institution? Perhaps it is time that we tell our congressmen and senators that they should not come home every year to campaign for re-election until after they have completed their primary duty of completing a budget.

SC program targets Mumford students

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Students from Detroit Mumford High School are expected to begin attending Schoolcraft College this fall, as part of a special arrangement between the Detroit Public Schools and Livonia-based community college.

But how many students will be attending — if any — is open to question.

Last April, Schoolcraft became part of the Detroit Compact Collegiate Program, a program designed to increase college opportunities for inner city youngsters.

"IT'S A chance to get students to at least look at college," said Brendy Barr, a spokeswoman for the program.

But to this point, only Mumford is participating in the Schoolcraft program.

"How many students will participate is hard to say," Schoolcraft spokeswoman Saundra Florek said. "We are kind of far away for students who lack transportation."

Based on information given the college, Florek said, the number could be as high as 125, or as low as zero.

Nonetheless, Schoolcraft stands ready to provide full-tuition scholarships for eligible students who aren't eligible for other financial assistance programs.

It wouldn't be the first time the suburban community college has welcomed Detroit students. Under other programs, Detroit students have pursued careers in engineering and culinary arts at Schoolcraft.

This program is somewhat different, Florek said, because of its strict guidelines.

Students must be "job ready" under terms of the compact. Toward that end, they must score at least 40 percent on standardized reading and mathematics tests. They must also have posted 95 percent attendance or better in high school with no major disciplinary violations.

They must also meet a series of "teamwork skills," as certified by employers or other persons who are neither relatives nor school officials.

Schoolcraft isn't the only school participating in the compact. Oakland and Wayne County community colleges are also members.

The compact was drafted through an agreement between the Detroit Schools, state of Michigan and Detroit Renaissance.

Abortion rights groups fatten campaign funds

AP — The battle over abortion rights in Michigan has pushed activists on both sides of the issue to reach for their wallets and give more money to political candidates than two years ago.

Campaign finance reports to the Michigan Secretary of State's office show abortion rights activists lead anti-abortion political action committees in both fund-raising and contributions to legislative candidates.

Pro-choice activists link the increases to growing concern among women about the erosion of abortion rights in the year since a U.S. Supreme Court ruling gave states more power to restrict abortion.

"It is confirmation of what we have been feeling all along, the increased excitement and concern on the part of people that we have been witnessing," said Carol King, executive director of the Michigan Abortion Rights Action League.

Jane Muldoon, chairwoman of Right to Life of Michigan's political action committee, said the higher spending by the other side isn't an insurmountable threat for anti-abortion forces.

"I think it's clear that they are concentrating on legislative races and I think it's important for our people to be alerted to that," she said.

"I don't see that as alarming that they're able to raise the money. There are individuals who are concerned about both sides of the issue."

Reports from nine political action committees that contribute only to pro-choice candidates show they have raised $126,800 since the 1988 election and have given candidates $81,858. That leaves them with $57,463 after starting with $12,521 on hand.

The political action committees already have raised more than the $56,652 collected for the 1988 election. And on the eve of Tuesday's primary, with three months until the Nov. 6 election, the political action committees had spent more than the $75,307 spent for both the primary and general election in 1988.

Right to Life of Michigan's political action committee has raised $47,493 since the 1988 election and spent $32,435. It started with $166 and has $15,224 left.

It raised $35,151 for the last election and spent $35,259 after starting with $273.

The 1988 figures might be lower than normal because abortion activists were pouring resources into a referendum on a measure to end state-paid abortions for poor women, Muldoon said. Voters approved the measure initiated by Right to Life.

King said this year's figures may underestimate contributions from abortion activists since some PACs encourage contributors also to make out checks directly to candidates. The PAC collects them and delivers them so it's clear they come from abortion rights supporters.

Anti-abortion lawmakers outnumber pro-choice legislators in both the Michigan House and Senate, but pro-choice groups are hoping to reverse that, starting with Tuesday's primary.

"In many of the races we're watching it will be all over Aug. 7 because these are districts so identified with one party or another," King said.

"It is really pointless to look at trying to change that. The importance of primaries is paramount these days."

Two years ago, the Michigan Abortion Rights Action League raised no money for the 1988 election, but spent $2,993 from its cash on hand. By April 20, its PAC fund was empty.

Susan Rogin, chairwoman of the league's PAC, said this election it plans to spend up to $7,500 on primary races. Its report showed it has raised $1,830 between April 21 and July 20 and had spent $1,566, leaving a balance of $264.

"We're better organized. People are feeling tremendously threatened, even before Justice (William) Brennan resigned. They know following the Webster decision, involvement in state legislative races is the most important thing they can do," she said.

The court's July 3 Webster decision also prompted the formation of a new PAC by Sen. Lana Pollack, D-Ann Arbor. The group is called Our Choice and expects to raise and spend $40,000 in Senate races, said Barbara Ryan Fuller, vice chairwoman of the PAC.

Our Choice has raised $26,892 since it began in March and spent $8,014 on primary races.

The lion's share of funds was raised by the Michigan Women's Campaign Fund, which has collected $75,034 since the last election. It has spent $53,342 and has $29,780 left after starting with $8,088 cash on hand.

Schuette agrees to debates

Schuette's staff members said their request for debates were issued as soon as he declared victory Tuesday night.

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Sen. Carl Levin and Senate challenger Bill Schuette may not agree on the issues, but they've agreed to debate them in public.

Both sides in the upcoming Senate race say they favor holding public debates — unlike the GOP Senate primary where Schuette ignored fellow challenger Clark Durant's debate request.

Levin said he called for debates in letters written to both GOP contenders before Tuesday's primary.

"I'VE SAID we should get our people together as soon as possible to work something out," Levin said. "I made the same offer to Durant."

Schuette's staff members said their request for debates were issued "as soon as we declared victory Tuesday night."

"We look forward to pointing out Bill Schuette's conservative record on the issues as compared with Carl Levin's liberal record," Schuette communications director Don Kraft said.

The incumbent, however, said efforts to depict the race in strict ideological terms may backfire.

"In terms of spending I have voted for responsible deficit reduction and the mechanism (Gramm-Rudman spending guidelines) to make it possible," Levin said. "I don't think the labels apply."

SCHUETTE'S FAILURE to debate may have boosted Durant in the primary. Schuette's margin of victory, 60-40 percent, was smaller than many election observers expected.

"I think the failure to debate hurt him," Levin said.

Schuette staffers, however, said their candidate was following the "11th commandment" of politics.

"Our feeling was, when a Republican debates another Republican, it only helps the Democrats," Kraft said.

"Plus, Bill Schuette's differences on spending and on fighting drugs weren't with Clark Durant. They're with Carl Levin."

Cool it nicely with ice

Finally, a recipe anyone can make. It doesn't take much skill and uses only one ingredient. As far as equipment is concerned, it can be made with just one appliance and needs no stirring, no heating, no Cuisinart. Just time. I'm talking about the proverbial summer favorite — ice.

Close your eyes for a minute and imagine a cube of ice slowly being rubbed on a lightly sunburned shoulder. The feeling is quasi-erotic and would surely bring goosebumps to even the most hearty outdoors person.

It's amazing what a few chunks of this lowly summer favorite can do to quench your thirst. The best cold drinks satisfy the eyes way before the liquid ever reaches the parched lips. Reach for the tallest, prettiest glasses in the cupboard. Swish them in cold water and stow them in the freezer until they're frosted.

Pull them out and assemble the cool contents in the simplest way. Two basics will do: ice and fruit flavors. From there it's all personal preference.

IF YOUR TASTE buds long for a tangy taste, use citrus or cranberry juice. Crave a bit of sweetness? Plop in plump cherries or succulent raspberries. Do bubbles turn you on? Add a bottle of carbonated water.

Ice has a way of melting even the stubbornest thirst.

But whatever you do, keep it alcohol free. Alcohol on a hot summer's day is like a blanket in 90 percent humidity and will result in further dehydration.

The preparation of something cool and frosty on a hot summer's day need not be a major undertaking. For example:

- Check out the local health food store (Have you seen the selections at the Good Food Company?) for bottled creations consisting of peach and guava nectar. Fill a tall glass with ice, add half nectar and top off with sparkling water, garnish with a wedge of fresh peach.
- Mash or puree a handful of sweet berries. Stir into a tall glass filled with ice and top it off with a splash of Squirt or Detroit's perennial favorite, Vernor's ginger ale.
- Combine slices of fresh orange, lemon and lime, toss in a few teabags and pour boiling water over, cover and allow to steep for 30 minutes. Then pour this mixture over ice and garnish with a sprig of mint.
- The spike of apple cider can spritz up a cold drink, especially when mixed with a spoonful of frozen concentrated orange juice and, again, a splash of sparkling water.
- For the daring, a tablespoon of strawberry or raspberry preserves stirred into a tall glass of iced tea presents a unique "teaberry" taste.
- Even the diet-conscious can get into the chilly swing of things with a combination of grapefruit juice, a teaspoon of instant tea and a splash of club soda, all poured over some crushed ice and garnished with fresh fruit.

It's easy to cool off this summer with easy thirst-quenchers, especially with recipes from a new celebrity cookbook entitled "Drinks With a Twist: A Celebrity Guide to St. Louis' Best Non-Alcoholic Beverage Recipes." This book can be ordered by sending a check or money order for $7 (postage included in price) to: Carpenter Health Care Systems, 13723 Riverport Road, Suite 340, Maryland Heights, MO 63043. With a little luck, the book will arrive long before the dog days of summer do you in. Skoal!

For the daring, a tablespoon of strawberry or raspberry preserves stirred into a tall glass of iced tea presents a unique 'teaberry' taste.

Herb garden delights senses

See recipes, Page 2B.

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

MARY LARK'S herb garden in West Bloomfield is an experience in sensory stimulation, a kaleidoscope of scent and taste that lingers long after a stroll through the quaint European-styled country garden.

Ensconced within protective hedges of old brick decorated with unusual planters and winery artifacts from Germany, Mary's fresh herbs play an integral role in cuisine prepared at the Lark, an elegant inn she and husband Jim launched nine years ago.

Greek oregano and the far more pungent Italian version, sturdy bushes of sweet bay leaf or scented wormwood, wispy golden marjoram, sages of purple and gold, fragrant candy mint and much, much more grow in wonderful profusion, carefully tended by Mary, and plucked in season for daily use.

The Lark's chef, Marcus Haight, a master of French cuisine, translates the fresh pickings into lemony sauces of sorrel, garnishes of miniature Alpine strawberries or flowery puffs from the elephant garlic, and salad accents carved from the fennel bulb.

"Taste enhancers," Mary said, describing the house-grown produce. Much of it is quite unusual, either because of its special variety or because of its special use.

"IT'S A WONDERFUL, old-fashioned celery-like thing. I love its look," Mary said of lovage, an infrequently used green that is easy to grow and excellent in soup stock.

Above the lush stand of lovage are planters filled with decorative varieties of oregano and rosemary, flowers of which are used as garnish.

Leaves from a clump of lemon verbena embellish tumblers of drinking water, replacing familiar slices of lemon.

Sauces are seasoned with gooseberries, currants, plums, cherries, grapes and other pickings that landscape the property.

Nearby, kale grows tall into showy flowers, and across the way are chives, a flat garlic variety and the more common round blade.

Three varieties of thyme, including carpet, lemon and mother of thyme, as well as winter and summer savory, watercress and a miniature variety of tomato called Sweet 100's line stone paths architecturally planned and artistically laid in a manner conducive to strong growth.

MANY OF the plantings are normally not gardened except by the most enterprising of herbalists.

In searching out rare specimens, Mary haunts fresh produce markets and seed catalogs for new plantings and seeds, basing final selection on personal appeal.

Planting is "by trial and error," and if a particular variety fails to grow well or produce quality taste, or is not decorative enough, she quickly discards it.

"I'm kind of ruthless. It if doesn't work, out it goes," Mary said with a laugh. "Gardening should be fun."

The rule also applies to a collection of unusual floral varieties that add to the decorative scene — miniature hollyhock, charming Cotton Tuffs and fuzzy Lamb's Ear.

"IT'S LIKE I'VE died and gone to chef's heaven. Everything is available, 60 different herbs," Haight said of Mary's garden.

The real challenge, according to both, is keeping up with produce ready for picking.

"We use everything we can," Mary said.

"Fresh is so wonderful," Haight said. "There's a big difference in taste."

THIS SPRING, strong garlic-tasting Egyptian onions ripened first. By June, thyme was ready. Haight clipped mature plants back four inches, using what he could and freezing the remainder in an air-tight bucket.

The process will be repeated in September, providing thyme enough "in somewhat of a fresh state" for much of the winter.

Ideal picking, Mary said, is when growth "is at its most plush, when herbs are most aromatic."

HAIGHT ALSO freezes fresh basil coated in olive oil and preserves fresh tarragon and chervil in white vinegar. While most herbs are zestiest when fresh, bay leaf is best used when dried, he said.

Five varieties of lettuce, parsley, ornamental kale and cabbage will be available well into winter.

Naturally enough, the Lark's Eden attracts a host of admirers, including an enterprising woodchuck who tunneled in and dined on lettuce and parsley, a chipmunk who enjoys seeds from a bird feeder and a mourning dove whose offspring hatched in a nest she fashioned atop a clay dove.

"They're garden pluses," Mary said, especially for diners who stroll the area between courses while dining.

The Lark is at 6430 Farmington Road in West Bloomfield, one-half block north of Maple Road.

Chef picks freshest of herbs

One of chef Jeff LaPointe's greatest pleasures is astonishing diners at Charley's Crab in Troy by marching outside, flashlight in hand and picking herbs fresh from the vine to season cuisine ordered moments before by the restaurant's patrons.

The herb garden, now a Charley's Crab tradition, is planted in an outdoor nook created by an arched alcove of windows in the eatery's main dining room, an elegant area rebuilt from the salvaged Macauley mansion.

LaPointe, flashlight shining, is visible to diners as he hunts and picks his precious house-grown produce.

Diners respond with both surprise and humor. How can a chef do both — farm and cook? they gently rib, according to La-

Young entrepreneurs do different carryout

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

Westside Carryout in Livonia is more than a mere delicatessen. It offers such delectable morsels as hot bacon salad with crumbled bleu cheese, rich french onion soup or frothy chocolate cream pie, all prepared from scratch.

It is testimony to hard work, unflagging spirit and a sense of family enterprise.

One year ago this summer, a brother and two sisters, Dave, Natalie and Jennifer Zywicki, 25, 23 and 19 years of age, executed a carefully planned business idea and launched the shop, funding most of the venture with money invested for each of them a decade earlier by paternal grandparents.

In the year since, each of the trio has regularly labored 70-hour weeks, without yet having drawn their first paycheck.

And today?

"We're real optimistic," said Dave, who, in addition to kitchen duties, attends to business chores like paying bills.

"We're confident it's going to go. We feel like we're going to stay. We're slowly building a regular base of customers," said Natalie who, as a 1987 graduate of Schoolcraft College's culinary arts program, is chief chef of the group.

'The taste is in the dressing,' said Natalie of Westside's chilled potato salad based on a recipe borrowed from her mother.

Jennifer, who found herself working seven days a week within a month of graduation from Stevenson High in 1989, nods agreement.

"THE TASTE IS in the dressing," said Natalie of Westside's chilled potato salad based on a recipe borrowed from her mother. Containing potatoes, eggs and minced onion and celery, the salad is drenched in a clear french dressing of Natalie's creation that enlivens otherwise basic fare.

Westside Chicken, a salad of bacon, avocado and other ingredients smoothered in creamy bleu buttermilk, is based on a traditional cobb salad recipe, again refined by Natalie into a savory, tender dish.

Super Cheese, Jennifer's favorite sandwich of grilled munster with bacon, avocado, tomato and onion, was culled from a recipe book and tailored to suit Natalie's taste test.

Each of the Zywickis regularly peruses culinary publications, searching for recipes that fit the Westside menu. After experimenting at home until the recipes are just right, they offer many of these creative endeavors as weekly specials. Based on customer response, the new recipes become a part of regular fare.

Turkey Divine, a specialty sandwich topped with french fried onions floating in a special cheese sauce, is the shop's most popular item, according to Dave.

"I've never seen a sandwich like it anywhere before," he said, to which Natalie responded, "You don't see most of our sandwiches anywhere else."

The fare at Westside is homemade — soups of the day like cheddar cheese or cream of broccoli, baked items like carrot pineapple or pecan fudge cake, and fruit drinks such as strawberry-banana or pineapple-orange-coconut.

"IT WAS A nightmare," Natalie

Pointe, who graduated in 1981 from Oakland Community College's school of culinary arts.

"Our thrill," LaPointe said, "is letting our guests know we go out of our way to do for them. It makes me proud." He oversees planning and upkeep of the garden.

This year, basil, oregano, thyme, chives, mint and parsley are planted, but a visit to the area reveals Charley's Crab manager Bob Jones has been at work. Reared on a farm, Jones, who loves gardening, has added sorrel, tarragon, sage, marjoram, chervil and savory.

In addition, there are hearty bell pepper plants and a host of tomato varieties.

"There's nothing better than a Michigan tomato grown out of Michigan soil," LaPointe said.

The following recipes are from chef Marcus Haight of the Lark in West Bloomfield.

SORREL SOUP

½ cup leeks, chopped
1 medium onion, diced
1 cup celery, chopped
3 tablespoons unsalted butter
6 cups fresh sorrel leaves, whole and washed
8 cups chicken stock or canned chicken consomme
2½ cups potatoes, diced
4 bay leaves
4 sprigs fresh thyme
1 cup heavy whipping cream

Melt butter in soup pot. Brown leeks, onions and celery for 5 minutes. Add sorrel leaves and simmer 3 minutes. Add chicken stock, potatoes and herbs. Simmer until potatoes are tender. Remove bay leaves and thyme. Puree mixture in a blender until smooth. Strain. Whip in cream. Serves 8.

HERB DRESSING

4 tablespoons salad oil
2 tablespoons olive oil
3 tablespoons sherry vinegar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cloves garlic, chopped fine
1 tablespoon fresh chopped basil
1 tablespoon fresh chopped oregano
1 teaspoon fresh chopped thyme
2 teaspoons chopped shallots
Fresh ground black pepper to taste

Mix all ingredients together. Serve on your favorite salad greens. Dressing can be served cold or slightly warmed.

RED SNAPPER IN SOUR CREAM WITH DILL

4 red snapper fillets
2 tablespoons fresh dill, chopped fine
1 tablespoon fresh sorrel, chopped fine
¼ teaspoon lemon thyme, chopped fine
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon white pepper
1 tablespoon shallots
1 cup sour cream

Mix all ingredients except fish together. Place fish in a buttered casserole dish. Add mixture and bake at 400 degrees until just bubbling. Serve immediately, topping each portion with a sprig of dill.

The following recipes are from chef Jeff LaPointe of Charley's Crab in Troy.

TOMATO, BASIL AND PARMESAN SOUP

2 ounces vegetable oil
8 ounces each celery, onions and carrots, diced 1½-inch thick
2 fresh tomatoes, diced
One 16-ounce can tomatoes
12 cups chicken broth
1 bay leaf
6 ounces fresh basil, coarsely chopped
½ ounce fresh oregano, coarsely chopped
Dash of salt
1 tablespoon pepper
2 cups grated Parmesan cheese, fresh or dried
8 ounces butter
8 ounces flour
2 cups whipping cream
2 cups half and half

Heat oil. Saute celery, onions and carrots for 5 minutes. Add tomatoes, broth, bay leaf, basil, oregano, salt, pepper and cheese and bring to boil. Simmer 15 to 20 minutes, until carrots are tender.

Melt butter and add flour. Blend into soup. Slowly add cream and half and half. Simmer on low for 5 minutes. Makes 4 quarts.

CHEF LA POINTE'S GARDEN SALAD with Gorgonzola Cheese and Fresh Basil Vinaigrette Dressing

1 beefsteak tomato, sliced into wheels 1¼-inch thick
1 red onion (Vidalia if in season), peeled and sliced same as tomato
1 fresh pineapple, peeled and cut in half, cored and sliced into 1¼-inch thick slices
½ cup Gorgonzola cheese, grated

Arrange tomato, onion and pineapple on large plate, top with cheese.

Dressing
8 ounces olive oil
8 ounces balsamic vinegar
½ cup fresh basil, coarsely chopped

Mix well and top each salad with 2 ounces dressing.

Doing a different carryout said, in recalling the first week of business a year ago. "We worked 90 to 95 hours. We weren't used to making everything at once. We'd panic, and forget a recipe."

Eventually, panic led to routine and a growing business that seems to prove the young Zywickis' hunch. There is a need for good takeout food in the area of Seven Mile and Farmington Hills roads, close to the home where they were raised and continue to live.

Originally, Natalie and Dave discussed opening a restaurant. Jennifer soon joined the talks, followed by parents Terry, an automotive engineer, and Cynthia, who now occasionally helps out at Westside.

They wanted a cafe but, never having been in business before, decided it was too much for them. Then their dad suggested carryout. Each of the siblings owns one-fourth interest. Their parents, who also invested money, own the final one-fourth interest.

"This is something we're really interested in, cooking and eating," Natalie said, laughing. Since the carryout opened, she is the only sibling who has not gained weight. Dave has added 25 pounds and Jennifer, an additional 10.

All three say they are lucky. Their parents are willing to support them until the business can accommodate salaries. In the interim, they draw on personal savings for spending money.

"WE KNEW IT WAS the season, but is was still real frustrating," David said of a slump in business following Christmas last winter.

The young entreprenuers responded with new ideas, including a new array of old favorites called Westside Basics and 99-cent specials on Saturdays. Tuna, chicken salad or club sandwiches and other basic fare are now available daily and hamburgers and hot dogs sell for 99 cents each on Saturday.

More recent is a catering service, offering a host of hot and cold hors d'ourvres, appetizers such as stuffed cabbage rolls, two-foot subs, condiment trays, luncheon salads and side dishes. Also available are homemade desserts, including individualized sheet cakes.

The catering service, which they envision will carry them through an anticipated slow season this winter, was the source of tension during a particularly busy graduation season late last spring.

They had an argument. "We argue over stupid things that don't have anything to do with anything, like the radio or something at home," Jennifer said, adding they never disagree over work. "We each do our fair share."

The future?

"We don't ever think of failure," Natalie said. "Hopefully we'll be here making good food. But if worse comes to worse, we just go to work at other jobs and pay back the loan."

Westside is at 33610 7 Mile Road west of Farmington Road. Hours are 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday-Saturday. Prices start at $2.25 for salads and $3.50 for sandwiches.

European grape varieties grown in Michigan

focus on wine
Eleanor and Ray Heald

For the last two decades, a small band of dedicated grape growers has been cultivating European grape varieties (vitis vinifera) in both the Traverse City area and along the Lake Michigan shore.

Prior to the early 1970s, the common belief was that Michigan's winters were too severe to permit survival of vinifera vines.

Consequently, the majority of grape vine plantings in this state are the strangely named French-American hybrids, known to withstand harsh winter climes. Winemakers in Michigan have perfected the art of hybrid winemaking. Today, their releases offer the consumer some of the best moderately priced wine-drinking available.

But the fact remains that there are a growing number of believers in the future of European grape varieties in Michigan.

One such person is Wisconsin-born Jim Eshner, who grew up in Chicago and always wanted to be a scientist. He acquired a love for horticulture from his grandparents, who owned a farm in Wisconsin.

IN 1972, he read a Chicago Sun Times story about Tabor Hill Winery in Buchanan, Mich. "I decided to investigate further," Eshner said. "I liked the Tabor Hill wines when I tasted them. They were balanced and dry.

"Because I was enthusiastic, they offered me a job. Over the years, it gave me practice in all facets of winemaking and grape-growing."

By 1974, he was appointed winemaker at Tabor Hill and in 1978, he used his life's savings to buy a 20-acre parcel of pastureland that topographical studies indicated would be suitable for grape-growing.

Today, at 41, Eshner, who describes himself as a "fruitaholic," is growing grapes and making wine 10 miles inland from Lake Michigan for his Madron Lake Hills brand, one of the most talked-about wine enterprises in the state.

Before planting the first vines in 1982, Eshner consulted with many Eastern growers and decided upon three different chardonnay clones to begin the vineyard venture. The first wines from this planting gave rise to the highly successful 1987 Madron Lake Hills Chardonnay.

Currently, Eshner's plantings for a 900-case production include five acres of chardonnay, 3.6 acres of white riesling, 1.5 acres of pinot noir that are not yet bearing and 1 acre of gewurztraminer, half of which is bearing fruit. The planting of nine more acres is planned during the next five years.

Wine Selection of the Week

1988 Heartland Vineyards Gewurztraminer ($9). After personal selection by Jim Eshner and his partners, the grapes for this wine were brought to Madron Lake Hills Winery for complete winemaking and bottling. It is a superior example of the quality found in Heartland Vineyards series wines.

Sporting a flowery, spicy nose with a flavorful, spicy follow-through, it has a delicate palate impression and finish. In its dry, Alsatian style, it will complement grilled bratwurst, mesquite-grilled chicken, Oriental or Cajun-prepared shrimp and crab.

ADDITIONALLY, Eshner has hopes for the success of several test plots of wine grape varieties including chenin blanc, muscat ottonel and pinot gris.

"We're styling our wines to be food wines," Eshner said. "I'm not trying to be a crafty winemaker. I try to make wine the way the fruit directs."

Although it's the Madron Lake Hills Chardonnay that has garnered Eshner a host of fans, his largest case production is white riesling. The 1988 White Riesling won a Gold Medal in the 1989 Michigan State Fair Wine Competition. "I like riesslings," he says. "They have up-front, peachy, appley fruit with a floral nose.

"Rieslings have to be balanced and the racy acidity harmonizes it well with food. I believe our riesling will cellar well for 10 years"

The 1989 Madron Lake Hills White Riesling ($10) lives up to Eshner's description. With only nine percent alcohol, it makes a delightful accompaniment to roast pork tenderloin, lake perch or walleye. It is versatile enough to use as a dessert wine with a fruit tart or fresh fruit.

Because Eshner believes strongly that there is too much adulteration of Midwest wines by West Coast grapes, he created the Heartland Vineyards series to complement the Madron Lake Hills label that uses only estate-grown grapes.

"FOR THESE WINES, he sources grapes from some of the best European variety grape growers in the Great Lakes area. "The invasion from the West creates a loss of viticultural identity for our heartland," Eshner said.

"Glacial moraine soils found in several locations near the Great Lakes shores are some of the best vineyard soils in the world," Eshner said. Winter temperatures are moderated by the lakes' effect, making it possible to grow vinifera varieties in these special microclimates.

With odds squarely against them because of harsh winters and a short growing season, Michigan winemakers, in general, have been hard pressed to run economically viable enterprises growing only European grape varieties. However, Jim Eshner and his partners, Jim Lester and Bernie Lickteig, are determined to make their venture successful. Their success could open up new prospects for grape-growing and winemaking in Western Michigan.

Tourney format draws manager's ire

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Being ousted from Friday's five-team All-American Amateur Baseball Association regional in Zanesville, Ohio, didn't upset manager Walter's Appliance manager Mike Keller as much as the way the AAABA conducted its draw.

After going 1-2 in the double-elimination tournament following successive losses to Marietta, Ga., (7-2 on Friday) and Washington, D.C., (11-0 on Thursday), Keller blasted the way the brackets were set up to determine the regional winner, which sends a representative to today's 16-team AAABA national tourney in Johnstown, Pa.

"Something was wrong somewhere and I hope we don't have to come back under these circumstances," said Keller. "It's just a bad set-up."

Walter's opened regional play Wednesday with a 3-2 win over Marietta, while Philadelphia beat host Zanesville, a team already bracketed into the Johnstown tournament because first place Columbus, the Ohio franchise winner, could not send enough players to Johnstown because of football commitments. Thus, the AAABA decided to give the second place team from that franchise, Zanesville, the automatic bid.

"BASICALLY, Zanesville was just playing for practice while the other four teams were battling for a berth," said Keller. "They (the AAABA) decided to put them in the regional because they were the host and they figured maybe they could draw more fans.

"What's wrong is that Washington, D.C., gets a bye the first day (Wednesday) and Philly gets the bye the next day. Washington gets another bye after beating Philly on Friday and only has to win three games to get to Johnstown, while Marietta and us (Walter's) wind up having to win six games to get out. The Marietta coach and I let the people at the AAABA know we were upset."

As of late Friday night, unbeaten Washington (2-0) was waiting to meet the winner of the Marietta (2-1) versus Philadelphia (1-1) game.

Walter's, meanwhile, couldn't control its own destiny as Marietta pitcher Jim Myers scattered eight hits and three walks over nine innings.

Losing pitcher Steve Owens went three innings, allowing six earned runs before giving way to Gene Boyce, who finished up.

Owens was tagged for one run in the first and one in the third. Marietta chased the Walter's right-hander in the fourth, scoring four times, keyed by Mike Tarta's two-run double.

WALTER'S tallied its only two runs in the first when Damien Hull singled, stole second and scored on Joe Sturtz's single. Jeremy Krol singled and Jerry Koester walked, loading the bases. Ken Dropiewski singled in Sturtz for the go-ahead run, but Krol was thrown out at the plate.

Sturtz and Jason Gabel each had two hits in a losing cause.

On Thursday, Washington got a two-run homer from Rick Burr in the first and a grand slam from Mike Ianello in the sixth off Krol and Kevin Walker, respectively, in an seven-inning mercy rule win.

Winning pitcher Tim Voglegesang scattered two hits over six innings. Hull and Jim Maruszewski had Walter only's hits.

"We didn't hit like I thought we would," said Keller, whose team went 3-2 last year in Johnstown. "We left a lot of runners in scoring position and you can't do that in tourney play.

"But we performed well in this season (21-14-1 record) and we had a good group of kids. I wish the ones not coming back the best in whatever endeavors they decide to pursue.

"And I can't thank our sponsor (John Mistak) enough to the job he did."

Curt White of Boyle Chevrolet is met by Insurance Exchange catcher Tim Cain as he slides into home plate Wednesday night. White was out on the play but later scored a key run during a rally that saw Boyle take a come-from-behind win in the modified fast-pitch game, 11-9.

Craiger claims 7th straight title

Craiger captured its seventh straight Canton Babe Ruth championship, finishing with a 12-4 record, bringing the team's seven-year total to 97 wins, 22 losses and one tie.

Craiger concluded its season Thursday with a 5-4 win over the Dairy Junction Express as Matt Horn pitched six strong innings, scattering eight hits.

Scott Valimont relieved Horn in the seventh, getting the last two outs with the tying run on base.

Horn also went 3-for-4 with a home run and four RBI. He was supported by Josh Wiegand, Mike Setlock and J. Rozum, each of whom had two hits apiece.

Eric Kida and Tim Bober had three hits each for the Express.

WIEGAND WAS Craiger's leading hitter this year with a .532 average. Jeff Kley hit .486, Vince Turri .451, Horn .422 and Setlock .390.

The Craiger roster also includes Dave Kapla, John Lahti, Jeff Korczyk, Joe Niemenski, Dave Knight, Ahmande Grimes and Erik Ruete. The team is coached by Bob Ruete and John Lahti Sr.

The Dry Clean Company (10-6) came in second after going 1-1 the last week against the Express.

Dry Clean won 10-7 on Monday as Mark Schankowski pitched a complete game and added a two-run homer. Matt Abbott went 3-for-4 on Tuesday in Dairy Junction's 8-4 victory.

The third-place Express also picked up two wins against Twist 'N' Shake. The games saw a grand slam by Adam Hammons and five hits apiece by Jim Cunningham, Kida and Brandon Walton.

Boyle stays unbeaten

Boyle Chevrolet needed a dramatic, last-inning rally Wednesday to defeat the Insurance Exchange and remain unbeaten in the Plymouth Modified Men's Fast-Pitch Softball League.

Boyle, which won the Livonia League's post-season championship, came back from a five-run deficit to win 11-9 and improve its record to 8-0.

With his team facing a 9-4 deficit entering the bottom of the sixth inning, Doug Kirkpatrick started the inning with a triple and Mike Kesson followed with a run-scoring double.

After two were out, Al White, Tim Bowden and Dave Brubaker hit consecutive RBI singles, and an error by the shortstop on Curt White's ground ball enabled the tying run to score.

For the second time in two weeks, Jim Foster belted a two-run homer to break a tie and win a game for Boyle.

Bowden, who also homered and had three RBI, and Foster were 3-for-4. Kesson and Al White went 2-for-3. Rick Dreher, a Boyle teammate in the Livonia circuit, had two hits for the Insurance Exchange.

Al White was the winning pitcher in relief of son Curt White. Al White entered in the fourth inning and pitched the last 2⅔ innings.

Madonna cage program stays afloat

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

It's August, and uncertainty surrounds Madonna College's women's basketball program.

So what's new?

Last year, you may remember, the program's future was in doubt until August, when it was decided — what the heck? — to keep it. That gave coach Bob Belf a whole lot of time, an entire month, to recruit a team.

The Fighting Crusaders didn't confirm their schedule until then; their first game wasn't until Dec. 29.

It was hoped this year would be different, that things would run more smoothly. But, alas, no such luck.

A misunderstanding on how much scholarship money Belf had to work with, combined with a late confirmation (July) of his budget, led to trouble. Belf overspent, promising his recruits more than his reduced budget — smaller than last year because of the addition of softball as a varsity sport — allowed.

OPTIONS RANGED from reneging on the promised scholarship money to finding other ways to come up with it. The disagreement between Belf and athletic director Ray Summers grew so heated, Belf's resignation — which most likely would have caused cancellation of the program — was threatened.

Hopefully, all's well that ends well, and this episode is now over. Summers and Belf met Tuesday and decided to make some adjustments, sponsor a few fundraisers and try to deliver the money promised.

"My biggest concern," said Belf, "was that I didn't want to screw everything up for my kids. Those kids had already committed."

If Belf and his players can put these troubled times behind them, they might have a pretty good season ahead. The Crusaders finished 6-15 last season, 4-9 in the NAIA's District 23, even though they had just eight squad members.

With six returnees and four promising recruits, depth shouldn't be as big a problem. And the newcomers could help immediately.

basketball

At least Belf is counting on them to. "Our (team) quickness, shooting, (playing) tempo are all improved," he said. "The last thing we need to improve is rebounding. I think, at our level of competition, the quality of your athletes will dictate how well you play defensively."

THE TWO players expected to contribute most are both former Oakland Community College stars: Stephanie Niebauer, a 5-foot-8 shooting guard, and Alice Williams, a 5-7 point guard. Both will have junior eligibility.

Niebauer, from Romeo HS, went to OCC to play softball but never did after making her mark on the basketball court. "She's predominantly a perimeter player," said Belf. "The kid's a tremendous shooter, and a great three-point shooter. She's at her best in an up-tempo game."

Which is what Belf is trying to install. "I want to make people play with us athletically," he said.

Williams, from Lapeer West HS, is similar to her former teammate. "In the open court, she's just dynamite. The more you let her loose, the more she makes happen. She sees the floor well, she's a good shooter, and she gets out on the break well."

Belf is considering using Williams, who also positions herself well for rebounds, at small forward, which would allow him to use both her and returning point guard Lyndel Ingalls at the same time.

THE BIGGEST Madonna recruit will provide the team with what it needs most: a dominating figure in the post. Lori Creten, a Gladstone HS grad, may be all of that. She stands 6-1, but just as impressive are her athletic credentials — she ran track in high school, anchoring the 400-meter and 800-meter relays.

"She's not a great scorer, but she runs the court, blocks shots and rebounds real well," the Madonna coach said.

The fourth Crusader recruit is 5-6 Renee Bennett, a 22-year-old from Dearborn HS who will add depth at point guard. "She's real quick — like lightning," said Belf.

Others may be coming as well. With the University of Michigan-Dearborn women's program folding, transfer possibilities exist. Madonna may need them; some problems may have been solved, but not all.

Three returning players will be forced to sit out the first semester because of eligibility restrictions. All three — forwards Michelle Dyksinski, Lisa Kline and Theresa Ternes — have three semesters of eligibility remaining.

Which means Madonna will have just seven players available (unless others are added) for the first 11 games. Still, at least there will be a season — and a team to play it.

Ex-prep stars helps put Lakers on top

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

The coaches are in agreement: The same teams that dominated the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference football race a year ago will prove most powerful in the Midwest Intercollegiate Football Conference's initial season.

The GLIAC's football-playing schools merged with the Heartland Conference — which consisted of Ashland University, Butler University, University of Indianapolis and Valparaiso University — to form the MIFC.

Grand Valley State was unbeatable in the regular season a year ago, going 11-0 overall and 5-0 in the GLIAC. With 26 of the 37 players with starting experience returning, GVSU was picked to repeat in a vote of the MIFC's 11 coaches.

Hillsdale was selected to finish second and Northern Michigan was chosen fourth (behind Butler), giving former GLIAC teams three of the top four places in the balloting.

football

TWO REASONS GVSU has received such rave reviews are tight end Bob Mitchell, from Bloomfield Hills (Birmingham Brother Rice), and running back Ike Lipsey, from Southfield (Southfield-Lathrup).

"Mitchell, without question, is a great player," was Laker coach Tom Beck's description of the 6-foot-5, 235-pound junior. "It's my feeling he could be starting in the Big Ten. I think he'll play pro football."

Mitchell was first-team all-GLIAC last year, snaring 48 passes for 735 yards and seven touchdowns. "He's an outstanding athlete," added Beck. "He has great awareness on the field and, like all great athletes, he wants to be in the center of things."

Lipsey also posted impressive numbers for GVSU a year ago. A 6-foot, 199-pound senior, Lipsey gained 1,013 yards on 168 carries, averaging 6.0 yards an attempt, and scored six TDs in '89. He also caught 34 passes for 409 yards, second only to Mitchell.

"Ike Lipsey had a great year for us last year," acknowledged Beck. "He has great strength — great upper body strength and great leg drive."

HILLSDALE, 6-4 overall and 3-2 in the GLIAC a year ago, hopes improvement defensively will enable it to make a run at GVSU. The Chargers expect junior outside linebacker Joe Jouppi, a 6-2, 220-pounder from Canton (Plymouth Salem), to provide leadership and steady play.

Hillsdale has 14-of-22 starters back, which will help. Kurt Urban, a 6-2, 235-pound sophomore center from Canton (Salem), will anchor the offensive line. Junior Mark Wolter, from Livonia (Stevenson) returns as the Chargers' punter; he averaged 36.3 yards a kick last year.

NMU's '89 campaign was, like Hillsdale's, not up to normal standards. The Wildcats finished 5-5, 3-2 in the GLIAC, but with 17-of-22 starters returning, that should change.

Sadly, aging adults become less active

Dear Myrna: I am 73 years old and my husband is only 68. I look good for my age (in fact, my husband doesn't even know my age). We recently have been married. I started exercising about two years ago. To my surprise, it feels great. I feel younger and even more beautiful. I guess this is a testimonial. Please tell everyone.

Good for you Sally. It takes guts to challenge our aging and you've done it. Proper exercise at any age is extremely beneficial.

If you are healthy, it is never too late. Now let's sell it to other adults.

As many people age, they slowly become less active. Sadly, 57 to 71 per cent of today's older adults believe they get enough exercise through minimal walking and other routine activities.

Each year, these everyday tasks become more work for the sedentary senior. The person thinks this is due to old age, not neglected muscles. Furthermore, some doctors do not encourage seniors to be active. Four out of five American adults of all ages say they have never been advised to exercise. If true, this is an example of neglect in medical practices. Inactivity is not only demoralizing, but it also reduces the capacity of the individual to perform ordinary daily activities.

According to Richard L. Bohannon, M.D., "after age 50, our need for fitness grows more critical. If you don't exercise regularly, many physiological changes will be augmented as you get older."

Your heart and lungs will weaken. As a result, you will tire faster. Your body composition will change — more fat, less muscle.

In recent studies by Herbert Devies, P.H.D., of the University of Southern California, he found that healthy men and women in their 70s and 80s can achieve levels of vigor not ordinarily associated with those 30 years younger. Devies studied the physiological response of older men to six, 18 and 42 weeks of vigorous physical conditioning.

He found that oxygen consumption and lung ventilation improved by 33 per cent and that there was significant improvement in percentage of body fat, physical work capacity and blood pressure. Devies concludes that the trainability of older people is considerably greater than had been suspected.

Older adults, like everyone else, must make a commitment to exercise. Remember, as I have said before, inactivity is not only demoralizing, but it also reduces the capacity of the individual to perform ordinary daily activities.

Thank you for your letter.

Wolves win tourney

The 1977 Michigan Wolves became the first United States soccer team to win the prestigious Edinburgh Cup during a successful European tour in late July.

In the championship game of the Edinburgh Classic, the Wolves surprised a team from the host country Scotland, St. Columbas, by winning 2-0.

The Americans prevailed over a Venezuelan opponent during a physical semifinal match, 3-1.

At the Wedgewood Classic in England prior to the Scottish tournament, the Wolves were runners-up to the Manchester Eagles, known throughout England as the "School of Excellence" team.

In the championship game, the Wolves played the Eagles to a scoreless tie in regulation time but lost in a penalty-kick shootout.

Wolves team members are Livonia's Jay Barnes, Danny Christenson, Charlie Roberts and Anthony Vetraino; Canton's Mark Biro, Brian Bobo, Scott Buczek, Paul Dood, Jeremy Stillings and Graham Wilk; Plymouth's Trevor Pruett, Farmington Hills' Sean Noble, West Bloomfield's Scott Emert, Brighton's R.D. Tips for landing a lunker

Bill Parker

THE POPULARITY of bass fishing has been on the increase in recent years, especially for the serious angler. Professional tournaments such as the Federation and Redman Trail circuits lure thousands of anglers each year.

But for the average angler, the angler who may only get out six to 10 times a summer, success doesn't come as easily as it does for the pro. Landing a lunker is often as trying as tying a knot with two-pound test line — it can be done, but it takes a little extra effort.

In response to several letters and phone calls from anxious readers, I've interviewed several prominent bass anglers to find our what their favorite techniques are.

Pat Kleppert, Rochester, pro bass angler. Current leader of the Michigan Division of the Operation Bass Redman Tournament Trail.

"My favorite time of the year for catching bass is from September to November. In lakes around here, when the weather starts to cool, there are two techniques that work well for me: flipping around boats and boat docks and fishing the weed lines.

"I like to use the 'Jig-N-Pig', but if it's a sunny day, I'll flip everything. A lot of bass hold up under anchored boats and boat docks in about one to three-feet of water. If the wind is blowing, I'll work the weed lines with minnow baits like 'Rattlin Rouges' and 'Rapalas'. At this time of year the fish seem to be either real shallow or in the weed lines."

Todd Grischke, fisheries biologist with the Michigan United Conservation Clubs.

"Once the water heats up you have to go deep for bass. When the surface water gets into the 70's it's a little warm for bass. When this happens I tend to use spinner bait and rubber crawlers in 12 to 15-feet of water off breaks and weed beds between 6-9 a.m. you can find a lot of bass in the shallows, but after that they'll start moving off into the deeper water.

"Once the fall weather starts to move in the bass patterns are about the same as they are in spring and early summer. The fish sense the change in seasons and they start feeding heavily in preparation for winter. Fall bass season is overlooked by many anglers and it's a real good time to catch fish. In the fall they're up in the shallows foraging heavily."

Jim Clauser, Rochester, pro bass angler. Top five finisher three of the last four years in the Michigan Division of the Operation Bass Red Man Tournament Trail.

"For big fish I like flippin a 'Jig-N-Pig. It's a shallow type pattern and works well along docks, boats, lilly pads and break walls. Pontoon boats are great cover for bass. Heavy weed pockets also tend to produce fish.

"If the weather is cloudy and windy, generally speaking, flipping is not very productive so I'll turn to spinner bait, which are also very effective."

Ray Wioskowski, Westland, member of the Wayne County Bass Anglers Association and a qualifier for the 1989 Michigan International Tournament.

"I fish with 'Gitzits' 90-percent of the time and catch a lot of fish with them. I'll also use bright colored spinner bait and crank bait. If it's a cloudy day I'll use something with a rattle. If the weather dips down into the 60's I'll work the deeper water with a Texas-rigged worm."

Joe Derek, Farmington Hills, conducts fishing seminars and fishing classes through the Farmington and West Bloomfield Community Education programs.

"I use spinner baits more then anything else and just about any time of the year. I got hooked in spinner bait about four years ago when I caught 42 bass in about five hours of fishing over a two-day period on a lake up near Mt. Pleasant.

"I prefer to use light colored lures with light skirts and find a lot of bass in two to four-feet of water, especially early in the morning. I like cloudy days. I'll fish in thick weeds or cast parallel to shore along a weed line. Another technique that works well for me is to work anchored boats and boat docks on sunny days. This year fishing in the shallow water has been very good because the nights have been pretty cool and the water has remained cool most of the summer."

Dan Kimmel, pro bass angler. Editor of the Michigan Bass Federation's Classic Trail newsletter.

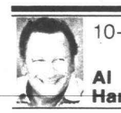
"Most southern Michigan lakes have a lot of docks and boat wells. People would be amazed at their success if they would fish the manmade cover. I like to flip along docks with rubber worms and spinner bait. Docks offer a lot of shade and minnows come through there all day long. The brighter and higher the sun gets, the more fish tend to get under cover. Dock fish are much easier to catch than those in weed beds.

"Early in the day I'll fish the edges of docks and the clumps of weeds in front or along side of the docks. As the sun gets higher in the sky, you'll want to get right underneath the docks. Top water lures can be very effective if you're good at skipping them and can get them under the docks. You must have good ethics when fishing boats and docks because you can't be banging your lures off peoples' boats and things."

There you have it. The secret tips and techniques from the pros and other people in the know. Try these sure-fire techniques the next time you're on the lake and let me know if your luck changes. But even if you come back empty handed, remember the old saying, "A bad day fishing is better than a good day at work," so enjoy!

(Bill Parker is happy to answer questions readers have regarding the outdoors. Anglers who land trophy fish are also urged to report their success. Send questions or comments to: Outdoors, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, Mi. 48009.)

National junior title at stake



10-pin alley

Al Harrison

THE TWO BIGGEST local bowling stories this summer concerned "national" bowling events. First, there was the women's U.S. Open Championship in May at Satellite Bowl, and now comes the National Junior Bowling Championships at Thunderbowl Lanes in Allen Park.

The event begins Friday, Aug. 17, and it will end Sunday, Aug. 19. Admission is free.

There will be 240 youngsters competing for $45,000 in scholarship awards. The champion youth bowlers from across the nation and Canada are invited, as are those champions from U.S. military bases around the world.

They will compete in four divisions: boys scratch, boys handicap, girls scratch, and girls handicap. Each division will award scholarship money for its winners. The Observer & Eccentric area is well-represented in the girls scratch division by Tamika Glenn of Farmington Hills, who will bowl for the Michigan foursome in that event.

Although only 15 years old, Glenn is a veteran of competitive bowling, having competed in the Cecil Ward Youth Traveling League and numerous area tournaments. A lefty, Glenn has been in the winner's circle many times already.

Any bowling fans and enthusiasts can come on down to the Thunderbowl and be treated to an exhibit of great youth bowling. And how about giving Glenn a nice cheering section.

Tournament officials are in need of score monitors for the event. Anyone 16 or older interested should contact Christine Samuels at 864-7452 after 6 p.m.

Country Lanes in Farmington Hills has announced its own youth scholarship winners for 1990. The top girls prize of $1,000 went to Cecelia Buffa of Livonia, and Julie Wright of Farmington Hills captured the second-place prize money of $500. The boys winners included Julie's brother, Scott Wright ($1,000) and Charles Favor, of Livonia, who took second ($500).

Since 1981, the Jim Hamlin houses have given out more than $45,000 in scholarship prizes to youth bowlers. That includes the old Farmington Lanes, which Jim owned and operated prior to the acquisition of Country Lanes.

The Western Wayne Youth Traveling Classic is now forming teams for the fall. The league is YABA sanctioned and is competitive with juniors and majors ages 12 and up, with averages 135 or better. They bowl at 10 a.m., Sundays at Westland Lanes, Lodge Lanes (Belleville) and Town & Country in Westland. Anyone interested can call Hal Winters at 459-5380.

The Ten Pin Personality of the Week is Mary Mohasci of Livonia.

Mohasci has been a Livonia resident for 31 years, and during that time has amassed honors and championships that very few people could hope to attain. She is a member of both the Michigan and Detroit Bowling Hall of Fames, and also has been elected to the Michigan Amateur Sports Hall of Fame.

Since 1963, Mohasci has been selected as the DWBA "Queen of Bowling" 10 times. Most notably, though, she has prevailed in international competition, having won five gold medals, two silver medals, and three bronze medals, representing the U.S. in international events in London, England; Winnipeg, Manitoba; and twice in Venezuela.

She has averaged as high as 208 in season competition and has rolled two 300 games and one 299. Mohasci's high series is 771. She also is a certified lane inspector. Along with her son, Mark, Mohasci owns the "Right Approach" bowling pro shop located in Merri Bowl Lanes on Five Mile Road in Livonia.

Both are widely renowned instructors for both individual and group lessons. Mohasci offers this tip for all bowlers: "This time of the year, you should check your equipment if you haven't been bowling during the summer. Make sure everything still fits right. The first time out, take it easy, not to overdo and wind up with blisters or a pulled muscle. It's a good idea to do a bit of stretching and warm-up exercises before you throw that first ball."

BOWLING HONOR ROLL

Westland booted from Pony tourney

The Pony League All-Stars from the Westland Youth Athletic Association couldn't get past host Bay City in regional action last week.

Bay City swept WYAA 2-0 and 13-6 (on Aug. 7) to advance to Pony League Zone play this week in Davenport, Iowa.

The tournament opened with promise for Westland on Aug. 3.

Brian Morrison pitched a two-hitter, struck out 11 and did not walk a batter in a 9-2 triumph (Aug. 3) over Pinckneyville, Ill.

Chris Sartin led the Westland offense, going 3-for-4 with two doubles. Bryan Besco added two hits.

On Aug. 5, Westland's Jeromey Cosby was the hero, delivering a clutch homer with two-out in the top of the eighth to beat Evansville, Ind., 5-4.

Dereck Besco, who retired nine straight batters (including four strikeouts) in relief of Sartin, the starter, picked up the victory.

BAY CITY, however, climbed back from the loser's bracket to hand Westland two straight losses.

Morrison's seven-inning, four-hitter went in vain as Bay City pushed across a pair of runs, including a homer. Morrison did not walk a batter.

Steve Hewer collected two hits for Westland.

In the final elimination game, Bay City scored a seven-run win as Dereck Besco suffered the loss. Cosby had an RBI single.

Tennis tourney winners

Victors were crowned for both boys and girls in three age divisions at the Canton Parks and Recreation-sponsored second Junior Open Tennis Tournament Aug. 3-5 at Plymouth Canton High School.

The age divisions were 10-12, 13-15 and 16-18. A total of 78 netters competed.

In the 10-12 division, Amit Bahl of Canton beat Jason Gourley 6-4, 6-1 for the boys title. Jennifer Clack of Canton won by default for the girls.

In the 13-15 boys, Fred Stalen of Plymouth fought off a stubborn Alex Persu of Ypsilanti for a 6-7, 6-4, 6-4 triumph. The girls 13-15 crown went to Maggie Persu of Ypsilanti, who defeated Dorothy Pao 7-5, 6-3.

In the 16-18 boys, Chris Marschak of Canton bested K.C. Kirkpatrick of Plymouth 6-4, 6-1. The 16-18 girls title went to Kris Anderson of Livonia, formerly the No. 1 singles player at Livonia Franklin, who tipped Leanne Gurchack of Plymouth 6-1, 6-2.

State team favored in new grid league

A key to NMU's resurgence will be junior wide receiver Eric Stokes, a 6-foot, 174-pound native of Southfield (Lathrup). Stokes topped the Wildcats with 40 catches for 536 yards and two TDs a year ago.

Andy Avery will beef up NMU's offensive front. The 6-2, 245-pound junior played various line positions last season and was named offensive player of the week for his performance against Hillsdale.

FERRIS STATE posted its first winning season since 1985 last year, winning six-of-11 games (2-3 in the GLIAC). With 15 starters, including two top offensive producers, coming back, Bulldogs' coach Keith Otterbein is optimistic his team can make the jump from middle-of-the-pack to contender.

"No matter where we're picked, our goal is to win the championship," said Otterbein, a Southfield-Lathrup graduate. Having sophomore quarterback Doug Arnold and senior tailback Delbert Littlejohn, both from Rochester (Adams), returning will help to achieve those goals.

Arnold, 6-foot and 169-pounds, had impressive statistics as a redshirt freshman. He connected on 115-of-219 passes (52.5 percent) for 1,732 yards, with 13 touchdowns and nine interceptions. Otterbein is expecting even better numbers this year.

"He's much more familiar with our offense," the Bulldogs' coach said. "He's very intelligent and he's a leader, and he's got a good knowledge of what we're trying to do."

LITTLEJOHN, 5-7 and 162-pounds, is an outside threat with the ability to score from anywhere on the field. In '89, he paced FSU with 659 yards rushing on 136 carries (4.8 average), scoring three TDs. Littlejohn also caught 22 passes for 381 yards (17.3 average) and two TDs.

"Delbert's probably the ideal guy to play tailback in our offense," said Otterbein. "He's the type of individual who, when you get the ball in his hands, can make people miss. He's outstanding in the open field."

Defense is where the Bulldogs need help. Among those who could contribute: safety Shannon McDougal, a 6-foot and 175-pound senior, from Rochester (Adams); outside linebackers Pat McGrath, a 6-1 and 199-pound senior, from Garden City (Redford Catholic Central), and Gino Taliercio, a 6-foot and 204-pound senior, from Troy (Avondale); and tackle Don Croft, a 6-1 and 232-pound senior, from Westland (John Glenn).

Tony Svaluto, from Westland (John Glenn), anchors FSU's kicking game. He hit six-of-nine field goals and 13-of-14 PATs for 31 points last season.

ONE TEAM expecting to challenge FSU and move up the ladder is Wayne State. The Tartars return 20-of-25 players with starting experience, including their biggest surprise of '89, linebacker Tim Morris, a 6-foot, 205-pounder from West Bloomfield (Birmingham Groves).

Morris started as a freshman last year, recording a team-high 113 tackles, including two sacks. "Tim is our leader out there," said WSU coach Joe Horn. "He's very smart. Last year he was forced to be a leader and as a freshman that was hard. Now, as a sophomore, he's accepting that role better."

Offensively, Horn is sticking with the run-and-shoot, expecting greater returns in '90. Sophomore Joe Delfgauw should help. The 5-11, 180-pound receiver from Redford (Union) caught 30 passes for 485 yards and two TDs in '89. He also punted, averaging 37.5 yards, and had a school-record 91-yarder against Ashland.

Other Tartars to watch are junior guard Todd Vydick, 6-0 and 230, from Auburn Hills (Avondale), and junior defensive tackle Dan Mastrovito, 5-10 and 235, from Troy.

Their offensive line is a strength, thanks to senior returnees Don McAnelly (6-3, 250), from Troy Athens, and Rick Forsythe (6-2, 242), from CC. Brian Tiller (5-8, 165), from Plymouth Salem, started as a sophomore in the secondary for SVSU, which finished '89 3-6 overall, 2-3 in the GLIAC.

Aufdemberge stars in Roadrunner race

By Tom Henderson
staff writer

running

Paul Aufdemberge of East Detroit, perhaps the premier road racer in Michigan, made his Redford Roadrunner debut one to remember July 28, conquering the heat and his last two competitors with a blistering surge at the three-mile mark in a runaway.

Aufdemberge, who broke the American record for 25 kilometers in Grand Rapids in May and followed by winning three races in four days in mid-June, downshifted into third gear at three miles and pulled away to a 14-second victory over former Eastern Michigan All-American Don Johns, 24:19 to 24:33.

Wally Rodriguez, up from Ohio and running in the 35-39 age group, hung tough, getting nipped by Johns just before the finish line at Veterans Park in Livonia.

THE WOMEN'S RACE was a runaway, with the absence of course record holder Kathy Hadler, an All-America from Tennessee who now lives in Ann Arbor. She was in Ohio for her high school reunion, opening the door for Mindy Rowand-Schmidt, a newlywed who survived her honeymoon in good enough shape to set a personal record by 20 seconds, 27:55.

Terry Mahr, a masters (40-44) runner from Ohio, was runner-up, in 29:05.

Rowand-Schmidt, who recently married Joe Schmidt, a top Ann Arbor runner, has one more year of eligibility left for the University of Michigan four-time Big Ten champ and a five-time All-America, she was running her first race since the national collegiate championships in the spring.

"Joe and I just got married, and we didn't train much on our honeymoon in Hawaii. I don't feel I'm in very good shape, but I had a good rhythm going . . . I was just going to wing it. When I started, I felt real strong."

Strong enough to hammer through the first mile in 5:19.

"It felt so sweet," said Rowand-Schmidt of her race.

AUFDEMBERGE ADMITTED the steamy day affected his strategy.

"It was hot and tough," he said. "I really wanted to go out conservatively and run an even pace, which is pretty much how it worked out. But I slowed down the last mile."

He may have run even miles, but that doesn't mean he ran evenly throughout. He tested his foes with some surges, a test they failed.

"Don had a slight lead at one, and Paul was back just a little," said Rodriguez. "Just before the second mile, Paul came up and pushed the pace. At three, I was with Paul and Paul pushed hard again."

Too hard.

One of the more remarkable performances was turned in by Jim O'Neill, another of the strong Ohio contingent. He finished seventh, and his time of 25:40 and averaged out to about 5:10 per mile for the 4.97-mile race. Oh, yes, O'Neill is 52 years old. His nearest competitor in the 50-55 age group, Jim Fitch, was more than three minutes back, and that was the best time Fitch has ever run for the distance.

O'Neill would have won the 15-19 division, the 20-24 division and the 30-34 division.

ANOTHER SUPERB performance was turned in by Robert Fitch of East Lansing, who raced his three-wheeled wheelchair around the course in 20:25 for his third straight triumph in Livonia.

Fitch was the top paraplegic, the top male quadraplegic was Thomas Ottenwess of Grandville, who clocked 25:53.

The three female wheelers, all racing in the open division, were led by Debbie LaPlante of Toledo in 29:19.

About 1,000 entered the 8K.

One of them was a former area prep standout making a comeback of sorts. Andy Dillon of Redford, an 1980 All-Stater at Catholic Central and later captain of the track and cross country teams at Notre Dame, jogged with his girlfriend most of the way, then picked up the pace to finish in about 43 minutes.

"This is probably only the 20th time I've run since I got out of Notre Dame," said Dillon, an attorney downtown who was making his road-race debut. "I was so burned out with running when I graduated, but I'd like to get back into it."

Several hundred entered the one-miler, which preceded the longer race. And about 40 kids entered the inaugural 3K (1.86 miles) for children 12 and under.

A campy cult classic comes of comic age

By Greg Kowalski
staff writer

Fans of the bizarre take note: If you want to see the cult classic film "The Rocky Horror Picture Show," don't wait for it to come to cable or on video cassette.

Fifteen years after the film's release, it still plays regularly in theaters, mainly at midnight showings. And producers of the enormously profitable film have no intention of drying up theater profits.

Too sleepy to make it to the show at the stroke of 12? Then try Caliber Press' newly released comic book version of the picture. Caliber is a Westland-based publishing company that specializes in creating original and adpating stories to comic book format.

But publisher Gary Reed is quick to point out that the term "comic book" is misleading. These comics are a high caliber indeed. The artwork is flawless and dialogue and story tightly follow the original film script.

For the uninitiated, "Rocky Horror" is a somewhat insane musical about a young couple stranded in a remote mansion inhabited by an assortment of weirdos.

Film critic Leonard Maltin gives it three stars, calling it "outrageously kinky."

The 1975 film was produced in England (at Charles DeGaulle's summer home, no less) at a cost of about $1 million. It was adapted from a stage play that ran an incredible 24,000 performances.

The film has since grossed (the term is appropriate) about $83 million — more than "Gone With the Wind."

IT HAS ALSO spun off a spate of products, including T-shirts, posters, key chains and records, and has even contributed to the sales of Scott tissue, which the audience is invited to throw at the screen at the appropriate moment.

"Rocky Horror" is an audience-participation film.

Getting the comic rights to "Rocky Horror" was a coup of sorts for Reed, who also owns Readers, a comic book sales company with outlets at 31152 Warren, Westland, and 14216 Michigan Ave., Dearborn.

But it's not unexpected. Reed knows comics, He's been in the comic sales business since 1982 and now publishes local comics through Caliber Press. We're not just talking about Superman, Spider-Man and Batman. Although the super heroes still make up a bulk of comic sales, comics have expanded to a wide spectrum of styles and stories.

And just as the people who read them as kids have grown up, so has the comic book as art.

"Actually, comics are struggling to decide just what they are today," Reed said. "They're shaking their juvenile image. Plots are becoming more sophisticated and the artwork often achieves the meaning of that term."

Take the "Rocky Horror" comic, which actually is being released as a three-issue series. The film was adapted by artist Kevin VanHook, who is also Caliber's art director.

THE COMIC re-creates the film scene for scene. But the most difficult part of translating the film to paper was "getting the likenesses right," said VanHook.

"Very few adaptations I've seen have likenesses that look like the characters," he said.

Even more important was matching the feel and pacing of the movie on paper. How, for example, do you draw a musical number?

You give the characters fluid motions, set the lyrics in slightly wavy type, add music signs, such as drawn notes, and stretch the dialogue balloons across the pages.

The technique is subtle, but surprisingly effective.

And just to make sure the reader gets a full feel for the film. the song lyrics are reprinted in a special section of the 48-page comic,.

"This is an entirely faithful adaptation of the movie," said Reed. "It has to be that way because people who have seen the film expect it to be that way."

A trying time

Nothing minor when you're scouting the prospects

By William Coutant
staff writer

It's the game within the game — usually behind the scenes.

But anyone in the major leagues will tell you, scouting is the backbone of any baseball organization.

And as scouts will tell you, it's a never-ending job.

"We start in June and have 25 tryout camps every day," said Gene Bennet, scouting supervisor of the Cincinnati Reds and no stranger to Michigan. "The rest of the summer I look at triple A players. There are instructional leagues in the winter and fall, the draft and a lot of paper work. Then it starts again."

Never-ending and, for some scouts, not knowing where they'll be and who they'll be looking at next.

"A lot of times, I will make some calls in the morning before I decide where I'm going," said Detroit Tigers scout Bill Schudlich, who looks for talent in the high school, junior college and college ranks. "Tomorrow I'm going to Pittsburgh."

But Schudlich, a scout for the past 24 years, can't see everyone himself. That's where part-time scouts like Clyde Weir come in.

Unlike Bennet, who was with the Reds for 40 years as a player, coach and scout, or Schudlich, Weir never made it to "the show." Then scout, and now Tigers general manager Bill Lajoie knew a baseball man when he saw him.

'I was out of college, had a family and knew that I was what they consider a mild prospect.'

— Clyde Weir

"I PLAYED tons of amateur ball," the Owosso native said. "Bill Lajoie saw me in high school where I was a three-sport athlete."

Weir impressed in high school, but went on to Western Michigan University and a business career with GTE.

"Years later, I went to a tryout camp and Lajoie was running it," Weir said. "He said where've you been?"

After trying out and talking with Lajoie, Weir said he knew that his chances of making the big leagues were just so-so.

"I was out of college, had a family and knew that I was what they consider a mild prospect."

Weir might well have considered himself less than a sure bet to make the majors when compared to another player who tried out with him at that camp in the early '70s — Ron LeFlore. But Weir's knowledge and love of the game did not escape Lajoie's notice, who asked him to scout for the Tigers. Weir has done so ever since.

Although a "sure thing" will show up on occasion at a tryout, most players who are signed have already been scouted several times.

"There are always some that pop up," Weir said. "Coaches give you names of players and the Tigers send out a form letter to colleges asking for names of promising players.

"WE (WEIR and Schudlich) work together," he said. "All the kids have to be seen. The more people that see these kids, the Keifer Sutherland, Kevin Bacon, Julia Roberts, Oliver Platt and William Baldwin play medical students involved in a chilling life-after-death experiment in "Flatliners."

'Flatliners:' It's not too flat when it comes to suspense

While "Flatliners" (B, R, 111 minutes) won't win awards for scientific realism, it will keep you on the edge of your seat as five med students in a strange and gloomy med school experiment with the quick and the dead and end up embracing life.

A University Hospital of Medicine student, Nelson (Kiefer Sutherland), seeks fame and fortune through a project in controlled death and return after a peek at the next world.

Nelson convinces four of his classmates — Rachel (Julia Roberts), Labraccio (Kevin Bacon), Joe (William Baldwin) and Steckle (Oliver Platt) — to join his experiment.

Each is motivated by the desire for success and, in addition, some of them have had a brush with death that heightens curiosity and stimulates guilt.

It's never quite clear which university hospital these med students attend and it probably doesn't matter. This is a psychic thriller whose success, in part, depends upon the moody, atmospheric school they attend with strange statues, a remarkably Fellini-like Halloween parade and, in general, an aura of dark spiritualism pervading virtually every shot.

On of the clever elements of "Flatliners" is that these travellers in death bring back physical representations of the guilt their psyches carry for past deeds. Much of the settings outside the med school itself — aside from their visions while they're dead — are in graveyards, steamy sewers and seedy parts of town.

Low-level lighting, intense acting and terse editing guarantee suspense and excitement — so much so that you'll hardly notice the many loopholes in the plot.

PICTURE THIS: An Oriental bar — not very fancy — filled with young Laotian prostitutes eager to please drunken American pilots. One of them, a newcomer (Robert Downey Jr.), naively asks, "Why do you guys go on a bender every evening?"

The response, "This ain't no bender, this is nighttime."

For anyone who saw service during the Vietnam War or who has been in the Orient, that little scene, like much of "Air America" (B-, R, 105 minutes), encapsulates the insanity of the Vietnam War and the overwhelming human sorrow of life in the heavily populated Orient.

"Air America" tries to capture that sorrow and insanity and impress us with its significance via a comedy about two pilots (Downey and Mel Gibson) flying cargo for the CIA in the "silent, non-existent war" that took its toll despite President Nixon's denial that it was going on.

The title refers to a CIA financed airline that officially doesn't exist despite the heroic as well as self-serving antics of its pilots. While they performed all sorts of miracles and good deeds, they also lined their own pockets whenever they could.

Why not? According to the film, the CIA was financing this silent war through drug trafficking. As a matter of fact, as the conclusion to "Air America" hints, there was a significant relationship between the CIA in Indochina and the Iran-Contra affair.

WHETHER OR not any of this is accurate, the film tries heroically to prove it while emphasizing the insanity of war in a comic format. Unfortunately, the responsible parties on the production team imagined this is common knowledge and, therefore, there was no need for clear explanation of "Air America's" politics.

Wrong!

In fact, the episodic, erratic structure is difficult to follow and fails to explain clearly this complicated political mess and the human suffering it engendered.

STILL PLAYING:

"The Adventures of Milo and Otis" (G). A curious kitten (Milo) and its puppy friend (Otis) embark on numerous live-action adventures. Narrated by Dudley Moore.

"The Adventures of Ford Fairlane" (F, R, 90 minutes).

Andrew Dice Clay in title role is as offensive as possible in this poorly done story which fails miserably in blending hard boiled private-eye genre with rock'n'roll.

"Another 48 Hrs." (C-, R, 90 minutes). Murky plot and lots of violence but by-and-large this Nolte-Murphy reunion is unsatisfying.

"Arachnophobia" (B-, PG-13, 95 minutes).

Killer spiders from Venezuela are no match for Jeff Daniels despite his fear of furry litle, eight-legged creatures.

"Back to the Future Part III" A, PG, 105 minutes).

This time Doc and Marty are back to the past in an extremely entertaining adventure in the old west.

As a comedy, "Air America" fares better with Downey and Gibson playing well off one another with considerable style and some pretty snappy dialogue. The sardonic quality of their repartee underlines the foolishness of war.

The bottom line of "The Two Jakes" (B+, R, 140 minutes) is that one has to have seen "Chinatown" in order to fully appreciate and, at times, understand it. This is a disappointing fact since both Jack Nicholson and his character, private investigator Jake Gittes, are strong personalities deserving of new and independent material. Instead, Gittes is obsessed with a tragic incident from his past.

This mystery's convolutions and sharp dialogue are suspenseful and amusing while Nicholson's direction and acting are superb until everything gets tangled in the past and the film comes to a painfully screeching halt in its final 20 minutes.

JACK NICHOLSON'S personal reputation created a situation which allowed for no middle ground in the success or failure of "The Two Jakes" and he gracefully established himself as a first-rate director. His vision is clear, his leadership strong and, ultimately, the film is entertaining.

Writer Robert Towne tailored the script to his leading man's rapier wit and successfully merged it with the movie's leading character. The supporting cast, without exception, is excellent, particularly Madeleine Stowe as Lillian Bodine. She and Nicholson share one of the most hilarious film love scenes in recent memory. In fact, the humor in "The Two Jakes" is full of vintage pop culture irony.

Set in 1948, "The Two Jakes" lovingly and faithfully captures that period. From the Deco buildings to the post-Deco furnishings, from the wooden oil rigs dotting the cityscape to the rural dirt roads in Pasadena, the atmosphere rings true.

These details are extremely critical to "The Two Jakes" credibility and Nicholson wisely did not underestimate their importance. To avoid a big-band rehash on the score, period radio commercials are ingeniously used in a fresh approach to film sound.

Were it not for the obsessive plot which remains unresolved, "The Two Jakes" would rank among the year's finest films. Unfortunately, this potentially great detective yarn

DFT schedule brings change

After another dry summer at the movies, the new Detroit Film Theatre schedule has arrived just in the nick of time. With it comes a major premiere, some wonderfully obscure titles, several programs of animation and a couple of changes.

The DFT may have its biggest opening yet with this weekend's premiere of "Wild at Heart," the latest from director David Lynch. Laura Dern and Nicolas Cage play lovers on the run in a film which captured the big prize at Cannes this year.

Lynch, the force behind "Blue Velvet" and TV's "Twin Peaks," is currently the hottest name in international film circles.

Though "Wild at Heart" will certainly go into wider release after its two-weekend premiere, local film fans will want to see it first at the DFT. The Detroit Institute of Arts auditorium combines superior image and sound with art museum ambiance.

Other films scheduled for double weekends are "May Fools" and "Life and Nothing But." The first, by Louis Malle, finds a family gathering to bury their matriarch amid student upheaval in the streets of 1968 Paris. The second is set on the battlefields of World War I — after the war is over.

The immensely popular "International Tourneo of Animation," in its 22nd edition, screens Aug. 31-Sept. 2. The 1989 Academy Award winner "Balance" will be featured along with "Plymptoons" by animator Bill Plympton.

OTHER FILMS in the fall series are relatively obscure, which film curator Elliot Wilhelm said likens it to "the old format of DFT." A gentle short film, "Egg," about a 35-year-

Movies take certain liberties with reality in their quest for exciting entertainment. Quite often that artistic license raises questions that detract from the viewing experience.

In the case of "By Dawn's Early Light" (1990, color, no rating, 100 minutes) a fine cast, effective photography and some fairly decent scripting overcome most of those questions and the film turns out to be quite compelling and very frightening.

Appropriately enough, given the current Middle East crisis with the United States and the Soviet Union cooperating on the international political scene for the first time in 45 years, "By Dawn's Early Light" is set in the present where some unidentified fanatics detonate a nuclear device over a Russian city.

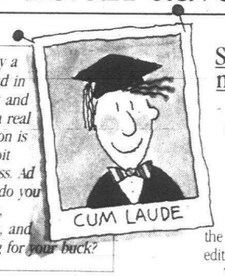
The Soviet military assume the United States are to blame and retaliate. The crisis escalates and the burden is upon the Soviet president and his U.S. counterpart (Martin Landau) to defuse this "limited" nuclear exchange before the entire world is incinerated.

While it might seem a rather simple matter to cease hostilities, it isn't — particularly given four decades of Cold War suspicion, fear and animosity — to say nothing of the complexity of communication during combat. The film focuses on the process of governmental and political decision making, particularly on the U.S. side.

"BY DAWN'S Early Light" also raises the question of personal commitment and individual responsibility in the face of military orders which are considered to be, if not criminal, at least morally wrong.

How to be an advertising whiz.

You have to buy a newspaper ad in the Detroit market and you're faced with a real dilemma. Circulation is down for the Detroit News and Free Press. Ad rates are up. How do you juggle the numbers, stretch your budget, and get the biggest bang for your buck?



See for yourself how SPRING measures up.

You don't need a yardstick to see that your advertising dollar can buy more in SPRING. SPRING's network of 39 suburban Detroit newspapers reaches more than 1,000,000 readers at a cost-per-inch that's below that of the News or Free Press — daily or Sunday editions.

That means you can run bigger ads or run more ads when you put SPRING in your media buy.

Get the lowest CPMs.

This is pretty easy — even for math phobics. Just take the total cost of your newspaper ad and divide that number by the circulation (the DNAs un-audited figures, or SPRING's audited numbers).

You'll find SPRING delivers Detroit's upscale suburban market at a lower cost per thousand than either the News or the Free Press.

So, you can reach more consumers for less money when you place your ad in SPRING's newspaper network.

The bottom line? SPRING delivers the suburbs best.

No matter how you add it up, the bottom line is this: SPRING is simply a better buy.

SPRING reaches more than one million readers. SPRING's circulation is strong and stable. And all SPRING newspapers are audited by either CAC or ABC.

Best of all, SPRING costs less per thousand — and less per inch — than the Detroit dailies.

Now that you know the score, shouldn't you put SPRING in your advertising plan?

STREET BEATS

Lenny Price has made quick inroads with his tape, "From the Heart," which has a song "Double Take" in medium rotation on WJZZ-FM.

Jazz sound has the right price

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

After the military, Lenny Price's life has been music.

So much so that the Naval Academy graduate has decided to pursue his saxophone beyond playing in smoky clubs.

Price has a four-song tape out on Midshipman Records, "From My Heart," which sold 500 units in six weeks. A cut "Double Take" is also in medium rotation on WJZZ-FM.

Both are admirable feats, considering that outlets for local jazz artists are about as plentiful as mango trees in Minsk.

"I was kind of impatient waiting for a major record deal," said Price, a 1984 graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy in Annapolis, Md. "Working in retail (he's a manager at Musicland in Nortland Center), you get to see what type of products are coming through. I saw what was going on and I said, 'I can do this.' "

Apparently, quite well. PolyGram and Virgin Records are reportedly both interested in Price.

Price's saxophone sound is quite contemporary, at times bordering on New Age.

HIS INFLUENCES include a diverse pool of artists — David Sanborn, Toto, Steely Dan and Gerald Albright. He also studied under well-known trumpet player Marcus Belgrave.

But his real workshop comes from performing live at such places as the Stardust Lounge in Inkster and at the city's upcoming community festival Friday and Saturday, Aug. 17-18.

"It's more than playing well," Price said. "You have to perform well. Some people can do it in the studio, but they can't perform well live."

Price has played the saxophone for 17 years, but things didn't really take off until he entered the Navy. He played with a band, Sea Breeze, which performed around the Annapolis area.

Price also performed in a backup band for a "Bob Hope Special" at the Naval Academy. He didn't get to meet the poobah of one-liners, but he's not broken-hearted. He did say hello to Brooke Shields and Bernadette Peters.

Since his return home, Price has also performed at the annual Goodfellows telethon on cable television.

As things progressed, Price formed Midshipman Records. His mother, Thelma Price, is director of operations and Adrienne Thomas is director of public relations.

ALL THREE have been instrumental in getting the word out. As a result, Price has been the benefactor of radio air play in his home city, almost unheard of in area rock'n'roll circles.

Program director Terry Arnold and disc jockey Rosetta Hines were instrumental in breaking Price at WJZZ-FM. Other stations such as WDET-FM, WEMU-FM and WUMD-FM have followed suit.

"I was speechless for about an hour," said Price, remembering when he first heard "Double Take" played on the radio. "We went around and turned on every radio on in the store."

An option for alternative music

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Is the new LP from Charlie Burton & the Hiccups just trapped air? Are there any holes in the recently-released Cancer Moon album?

Chances are answers to those musical questions won't be found in Rolling Stone or even Spin magazines on local newsstands.

Option is becoming the best option for getting the low-down on obscure groups on independent labels. The Los Angeles-based, bi-monthly publication caters to the alternative crowd with features on groups such as The Chills, Died Pretty and on Lou Reed and John Cale.

But what separates Option from others of its genre are the reviews, more than 300 alone in the July/August issue. Local groups such as The Colors, 3-D Invisibles, Volebeats and Strange Bedfellows all have their latest releases reviewed in the latest issue.

"There's a lot of music out there," said Scott Becker, who is publisher of Option. "If they can't actually hear it, they have to seek it out in other ways."

WHICH WAS the impetus for starting Option magazine five years ago. Actually, the publication is an outgrowth of a tabloid newspaper, OP, out of the Seattle, Wash., area that attempted to chronicle the burgeoning post-punk movement of the 1980s.

Becker worked on OP. He, along with a few other OP staffers, refused to let the original mission die when the newspaper stopped publishing in 1984. Option debut in March 1985.

As AOR radio has shut the door on new music, publications such as Option have become increasingly important.

Music magazines such as Rolling Stone and Spin give independent music only cursory attention while fanzines — albeit enthusiastic and informative — lack the resources.

Option tackles alternative music with the same zest, but comes in a slick, graphically attractive package.

The magazine has a small-base of 5,000 mail subscriptions spread out across the United States and abroad. Readership averages 45,000 an issue.

According to demographics, the average reader is male, 30, and college educated. Becker said those who buy the magazine tend to be record collectors. Option has also become popular with workers in the music trade.

"I DON'T want to sound elitist," Becker said, "but people who read our magazine think about what they listen to."

As a result, feature stories are not the usual banal fare of "oh-the-new-album-going-well-but-we're-artists-first-and-foremost." For instance, an upcoming issue will include a story about Michael Stipe — not talking about REM — but discussing film and other bands.

For the musician, Option has a "Home Studio" column that looks at budget recording. Other issues such as censorship, the DAT controversy and the economic feasibility of the independent music scene are examined in its pages.

Reviews, though, continue to be Option's strength. The magazine serves dual role of being an encyclopedia/consumer index for record buyers.

Those who do the reviews come from a wide-variety of backgrounds, most are not professional critics but music lovers. As a result, the capsule summaries are humorous.

Culled from the 3-D Invisibles review by Jason Cohen: ' "They Won't Stay Dead" is about funny as, say, an album of 'Garry Shandling Sings Bauhaus' or 'Emo Phillips: 13 Cramps Classics' would be.' "

A year subscription (six issues) to Option is $15. Write to: Sonic Options Network, Inc., 2345 Westwood Blvd., Room 2, Los Angeles 90064.

Option magazine offers music alternatives with more than 300 reviews of independent artists in each issue.

PHINEAS GAGE

— Phineas Gage

Word has it that Phineas Gage is a thinking man's band. Such assessments are either hard to live up to or live down.

For skeptics, it raises the cynicism level to a boiling point. So with trepidation and a thesaurus, one plops this debut cassette release by Phineas Gage and grimaces.

Oh, but not for long.

This group of talented individuals has proven there is a difference between being thoughtful and claiming to be "intellectual," being wistful instead of becoming a smart ass and being intriguing without becoming a bore.

Real intelligence inspires thought by others; not beating someone over the head with one's world view or IQ.

All that said, Phineas Gage has produced an excellent debut tape whose nice harmonies and orchestra of soothing guitars never tire. Sean Hickey and Alex Lumelsky are oh so subtle on guitar, painting a framework and then branching off into swirling and atmospheric pieces. Lumelsky and Hickey build off another.

As a vocalist Chris Farnum can sound congested, but gosh, let's not introduce him to cold medicine. His voice is distinctive, heartfelt and makes lines like "Spinning sadly for the wind demands everything be out of my hands" in "Spinning Sadly" challenging or "I want honesty, but the truth can't be found. And there's love in me, but there's no love around" remarkably profound.

Lyrically, Phineas Gage relies heavily on first-person references. Yet the "I's" in this case have no answers and often speak of loss, hurt and confusion.

May we all be this smart.

KISS OF LIFE

— Gene Loves Jezebel

Gene Loves Jezebel is usually classified as an "alternative" band. Alternative bands play something that is often called "new" music. The label of "new" doesn't necessarily refer to the age of the music. It usually means that the music is different or original in some way.

Old stuff by Elvis Costello is often called new music, same with Love and Rockets, Kate Bush and the Church. (This is true — just check out the new music sections at Harmony House).

In other cases, the label "new" refers to the music made by bands which never seems to catch on with the general record buying public. In some cases, this may be due to a lack of radio air play, lack of publicity, whatever. This is the case with someone like Billy Bragg.

Finally, there is yet another kind of "new" music. This is music that never catches on with the general public for good reason — because it is simply bad music. This is the case with "Kiss of Life" (Geffen/Beggars Banquet) by the perennially non-selling band Gene Loves Jezebel. Perhaps, there is some wisdom left in the general record buying public.

Gene Loves Jezebel began their record-making career with a bad name and things have pretty much gone down hill ever since. Yes, we're being snotty here, but sometimes you hear an album and wonder why the people involved even bothered to take the time to make it.

The point we're making is that everything on this album has been done before — and quite a bit better we might add. We've heard these dreary predictable guitar licks before. Those tired, trite bridges. The whiny Robert Plant wannabe vocals. The repetitious song structures. The repetitious song structures.

And another thing — Gene Loves Jezebel has been around for awhile — they should have discovered what they want to sound like by now.

NIGHT ON THE TOWN

— Bruce Hornsby and the Range

Bruce Hornsby is the kind of guy you'd like to see date your sister. Clean-cut, sincere, friendly. And he likes to shoot hoop.

But the qualities that make him a good potential brother-in-law often work against him as a rock star.

While more in league with the Springsteen, Seger and Mellencamp axis than with Christopher Cross-types, this Virginia-based pianist's work has generally rocked a bit too politely in the past.

Here, he tries a harder-edged approach, appropriating one-time Mellencamp producer Don Gehman to provide the extra punch.

But while Night on the Town (RCA) at least sounds bigger, it's still flawed.

The major shortcoming is Hornsby's own song writing. Springsteen's a story teller, Seger's best work is more personal, Hornsby, like Mellencamp, tries to walk a middle ground between the two. But his characters aren't as sharply drawn, nor are his personal observations as clear.

"Stander on the Mountain," for instance, works the same territory as Springsteen's "Glory Days." But while the Springsteen song is peopled with characters you might actually meet in some dusty roadside bar, it isn't clear where Hornsby's are coming from — or headed.

The same holds true on "Stranded on Easy Street," a country boy's good-timey look at how the other half lives. Hornsby does try for a witty observation or two about big city women, but why he's amused we can only guess. One wonders what Mellencamp would do with the same topic.

Like all nice guys, Hornsby's a bit boring, and Sis, of course, is free to date whoever she wishes.

Another side of family leave

Dear Barbara:

There is another side to the family leave bill, written about by Jackie. As an industrial relations director for a large company, I see the other side of this new concept.

First of all, the U.S. employment relationship has been an "at will" bargain. In other words, our society has been built on the premise of individual rights in that an employer is free to end the employment relationship at any time with or without cause, just as the employee is within his/her rights to quit the job at any time.

The real issue of the family leave bill is an encroachment upon this right, For example, if you (Barbara) should decide to have a child and take the 12 weeks of leave, how does your employer get your column written? In business, this is a significant cost and, in some cases, disastrous.

Some positions can be replaced with temporary help and most companies already provide pregnancy leave. The fact remains, however, that not all positions can be filled in without great cost or hardship. Not all companies can afford the paid benefits during the leave, which is often 40 percent of the salary paid.

Unlike the government, business must pay for its programs and ensure that the company can survive. In these competitive times, we have no one to pass on the costs to.

As to the countries mentioned in Jackie's letter, I would note that they are all in serious economic trouble, in great part due to their socialistic approach to costs of employment.

I would be the first in line to vote for increased benefits and programs to assist families, my own included. But we must have priorities and most important, a clear consensus on who will pay for the programs and how much.

One further point to add — The law demands the employer to be sex-blind to all employment related issues, and rightfully so. If this is to be set aside when dealing with the issues of procreation and its inherent circumstances?

Ed C.

Barbara Schiff

Dear Most Frequent Writer,

Thank you for your usual clear presentation. I print it with appreciation and with hope that other readers will respond to the issues involved. This will give us a cross-section of our contrasting values that are present in our complex society.

It is my personal hope that our form of government will be able to solve the issues involved with a minimum of disturbance to the various groups involved.

Comic captures cult of it all

Other comics often don't follow such a rigid structure. Some are single-issue stories. Others have stories that run for several issues and still others are ongoing.

Caliber Press operates out of a cramped one-room office in the back of Readers in Westland. There's a five-person staff — administrator Susan Harris, artist Guy Davis, paste-up and designer artist Nate Pride, VanHook and Reed — which produces about 100 comics a year.

CALIBER'S MOST popular title is "Dead World," a "Night of the Living Dead"-style saga of a world under attack by zombies. Another favorite is "Baker Street," a female punk version of Sherlock Holmes, if you can imagine that.

A more specialized title is "Crow," a continuing series about a serial killer. It's violence is graphic. The art is lyrical . . . "almost poetry," said Reed. Nevertheless, it's not for kids.

"We deal with the mature market," Reed said of Caliber's products. "Our audience isn't 12-year-olds."

The issue doesn't just focus on sex and violence. Although they are present in some comics, it can't compare to what you can see on cable TV any day.

These comics are geared for adults who can appreciate their themes and art. Consider "Puma Blues," which has an ecological slant. And sophisticated readers seek out books with art by an established master, such as Bill Sienkiewicz. His adaptation of "Moby Dick" is astonishingly beautiful.

That doesn't mean the kids have been forgotten. Disney books are making a comeback, Reed said. Even Clasic's Illustrated has new and improved works out.

And all the super heroes are alive, including the three versions of Spider-Man — Amazing, Spectacular and All New. The first issue of All New has just become the biggest selling comic in history, with two million copies sold.

Lineup changes at DFT

old Dutch baker in love with a "foreign woman," screens Dec. 7 in a double feature.

"Mr. Universe," a Hungarian/American comedy about a Budapest actor's odyssey in Los Angeles, plays Nov. 30-Dec. 1.

Two changes worth noting — The ticket price has risen to a steady $4, with $5 for "Wild at Heart." Coupon books are still available for $25, which makes per film admission only $2.50.

Meanwhile, the DFT has completely abandoned its Sunday night series of vintage titles from a particular director or genre. Saturday nights, once a showcase for obscure second-run and vintage titles, are now devoted to rerunning Friday night's films.

The oldest films you'll see this season screen during the "Salute to Rocky and Bullwinkle" on Sept. 30. A documentary, called "Hollywood Mavericks," (Sept. 9) encapsulates several decades of movie making with interviews from Orson Welles, Sam Peckinpah , Martin Scorsese and John Ford.

Scorsese returns in a trio of short films on Sept. 7-8. "Italianamerican" (1974) visits the director's parents while "American Boy" (1978) is an outrageous interview with the hyper gun salesman from "Taxi Driver." Scorsese's student project, "The Big Shave" (1968), rounds out the bill.

THE REASON for focusing on newer titles is twofold, according to Wilhelm. Decent 35mm prints of vintage films are increasingly hard to find. The audience, meanwhile, has dried up for vintage films, which are so readily available through cable television and videotape.

Does this mean that the audience for the DFT has changed over the years?

"The audience has certainly grown over the years, but the DFT regulars, the ones who have brand loyalty, have remained constant," Wilhelm said. "A lot of people still come without even knowing what's playing just because they think they'll see something interesting."

Older titles make a return to daytime, as The Afternoon Film Theatre bounces back after a year-long hiatus.

Cavanagh: Comedy is natural spin-off of teaching

By Susan Steinmueller
staff writer

Tim Cavanagh recalls that when he started in comedy, he would get his evening job as a stand-up comic and day job as a high school teacher mixed up.

"I taught religion at an all girls Catholic high school. I would be doing my act in the morning and Genesis and Exodus at night," he joked. "It made everyone happy."

He said he found that teaching is similar to comedy.

"It was a matter of getting up in front of people and trying to convince them I knew what I was doing," he said.

Comedy eventually won out and in the early '80s, he started honing his comedy craft full time. Today, Cavanagh, 37, a Chicago native, headlines at major comedy clubs around the United States.

His gigs have brought him to Michigan several times, including to Mainstreet Comedy Showcase in Ann Arbor, where he is performing this week. He has also performed on television and at colleges and universities around the world.

Cavanagh's act is part stand-up dialogue and part song and verse. His song parodies are the greater part of his act. Many have received radio play on stations nationwide. The songs have been praised by Dr. Demento and have been popular with the listeners of the nationally syndicated radio program, "The Dr. Demento Show."

SOME OF his titles are "99 Dead Baboons" ("99 Red Balloons") and "Ukrainian Uranium Bread," a remembrance of Chernobyl.

One of his songs, "I Wanna Kiss Her (But She Won't Let Me)" is on the anthology album "Demento's Mementos."

"More and more, I'm using original music and words," he said of his current songs, adding he hopes to one day put out his own album.

As for his stand-up dialogue, Cavanagh touches upon many different topics, but said he goes beyond what some comedians might call "observational comedy," stemming from everyday life.

"I don't know where the inspiration comes from," he admitted. "You will hear a song and something in your mind clicks on — it was funny."

His blend of music and madness includes audience participation.

"Basically, I like to do a clean upbeat show," he said of his act. "The kind where the audience doesn't have to feel they have to take a shower afterwards. I try to keep it upbeat, life affirming."

What are his plans for the future?

"My biggest goal is to finish my electro-shock therapy treatments," he quipped. "I'd like to get those out of the way."

On the more serious side, he said, "I'd like to do more television — I think that's the goal of most comedians."

CAVANAGH made his primetime network television debut in September 1988 on ABC-TV, appearing on "George Schlatter's Comedy Club Special." He has also appeared on "Goerge Schlatter"s Comedy Club," a syndicated show from the creator of "Laugh In" and two cable television shows.

"Basically, I love to do stand-up — at this point I am trying to be as good and funny as I can possibly be," he said.

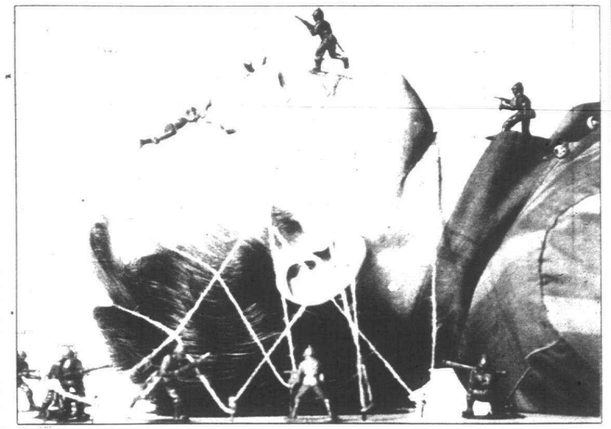
Cavanagh used to make most of his appearances at colleges, but now works almost exclusively at clubs.

"I find that creatively, I seem to grow a little more when I am working clubs," he said while on the road in Louisville, Ky. "For instance, on weekdays, you have smaller crowds, you feel you can experiment. In colleges, they pay you to do one hour of the best comedy you have."

Cavanagh is accompanied on the road by his wife, Chris, whom he said is very supportive of his career.

"We have a good time, and we see America and try to make people laugh," he said.

The couple have no children yet, but "right now, each new joke is a new child for us — and you don't have to change them."



Tim Cavanagh started out teaching religion at an all girls Catholic high school, but closed the book on that career for one as a stand-up comic.

Tim Cavanagh will appear at the Mainstreet Comedy Showcase, 314 E. Liberty in Ann Arbor on Friday and Saturday, Aug. 17-18. Show times are 8:30 and 11 p.m. Tickets are $10 general admission; $12 for advance reservations. For more information, call 996-9080.

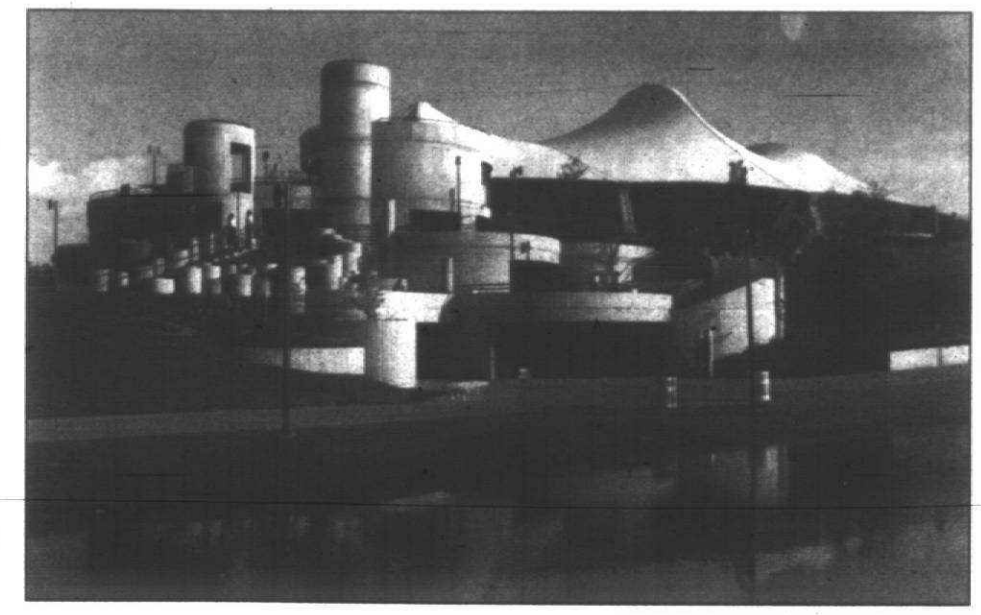
Riverfront Music Theatre

Detroit's jewel of the river



photos by BILL HANSEN

A lagoon reflects the Chene Park amphitheater, the newest addition to the metropolitan area's outdoor entertainment centers.

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

As the sun sets, an orange glow is cast over the concrete edifice. The Detroit River splashes along against backstage as cabin cruisers bob in the waves. A cool breeze off the water makes shirt sleeves rustle.

The sights of summer, sure. But at Chene Park's Rivertown Music Theatre you get the sounds of the season as well.

But that almost seems secondary as the view at the Detroit city park is stunning at first.

The outdoor amphitheater has re-opened this summer, featuring a busy schedule of pop, jazz, classical and blues music.

Diverse acts such as Jimmy Cliff and Fela, Freddie Jackson, Najee, Little Feat and John Hiatt have performed. Free concerts with Detroit Brass Society and Summer Jazz are offered during the day.

This month's scheduled acts include Ray Charles Saturday, Aug. 18, Frankie Valli and the Four Seasons Sunday, Aug. 19, and B.B. King Friday, Aug. 24, B.B. King.

All of those acts perform against the backdrop of the Detroit River and the city of Windsor beyond, offering certainly the most panoramic of views for outdoor concert goers. Chene Park has 5,500 seats.

"First of all, we are a much smaller, intimate facility," said Kathy Haberthur, marketing and public relations director of the Rivertown Music Theatre. "Also, we have nearly 50 percent of our shows are free to the public."

CHENE PARK has other upgraded features, keeping the music listener in mind. A new canopy hovers over the amphitheater so inclement weather is not a problem.

On our visit, we checked out other important features like concessions, restrooms, the vantage points and overall comfort of the facility.

Of the latter, we stood on the last blade of the lawn behind the pavilion for the recent Najee show at Rivertown Music Theatre.

Remarkably, the view of the stage was unobstructed and close enough that binoculars are only an option — not a necessity. Acoustically, the subtleties of the jazz music being played were highly audible.

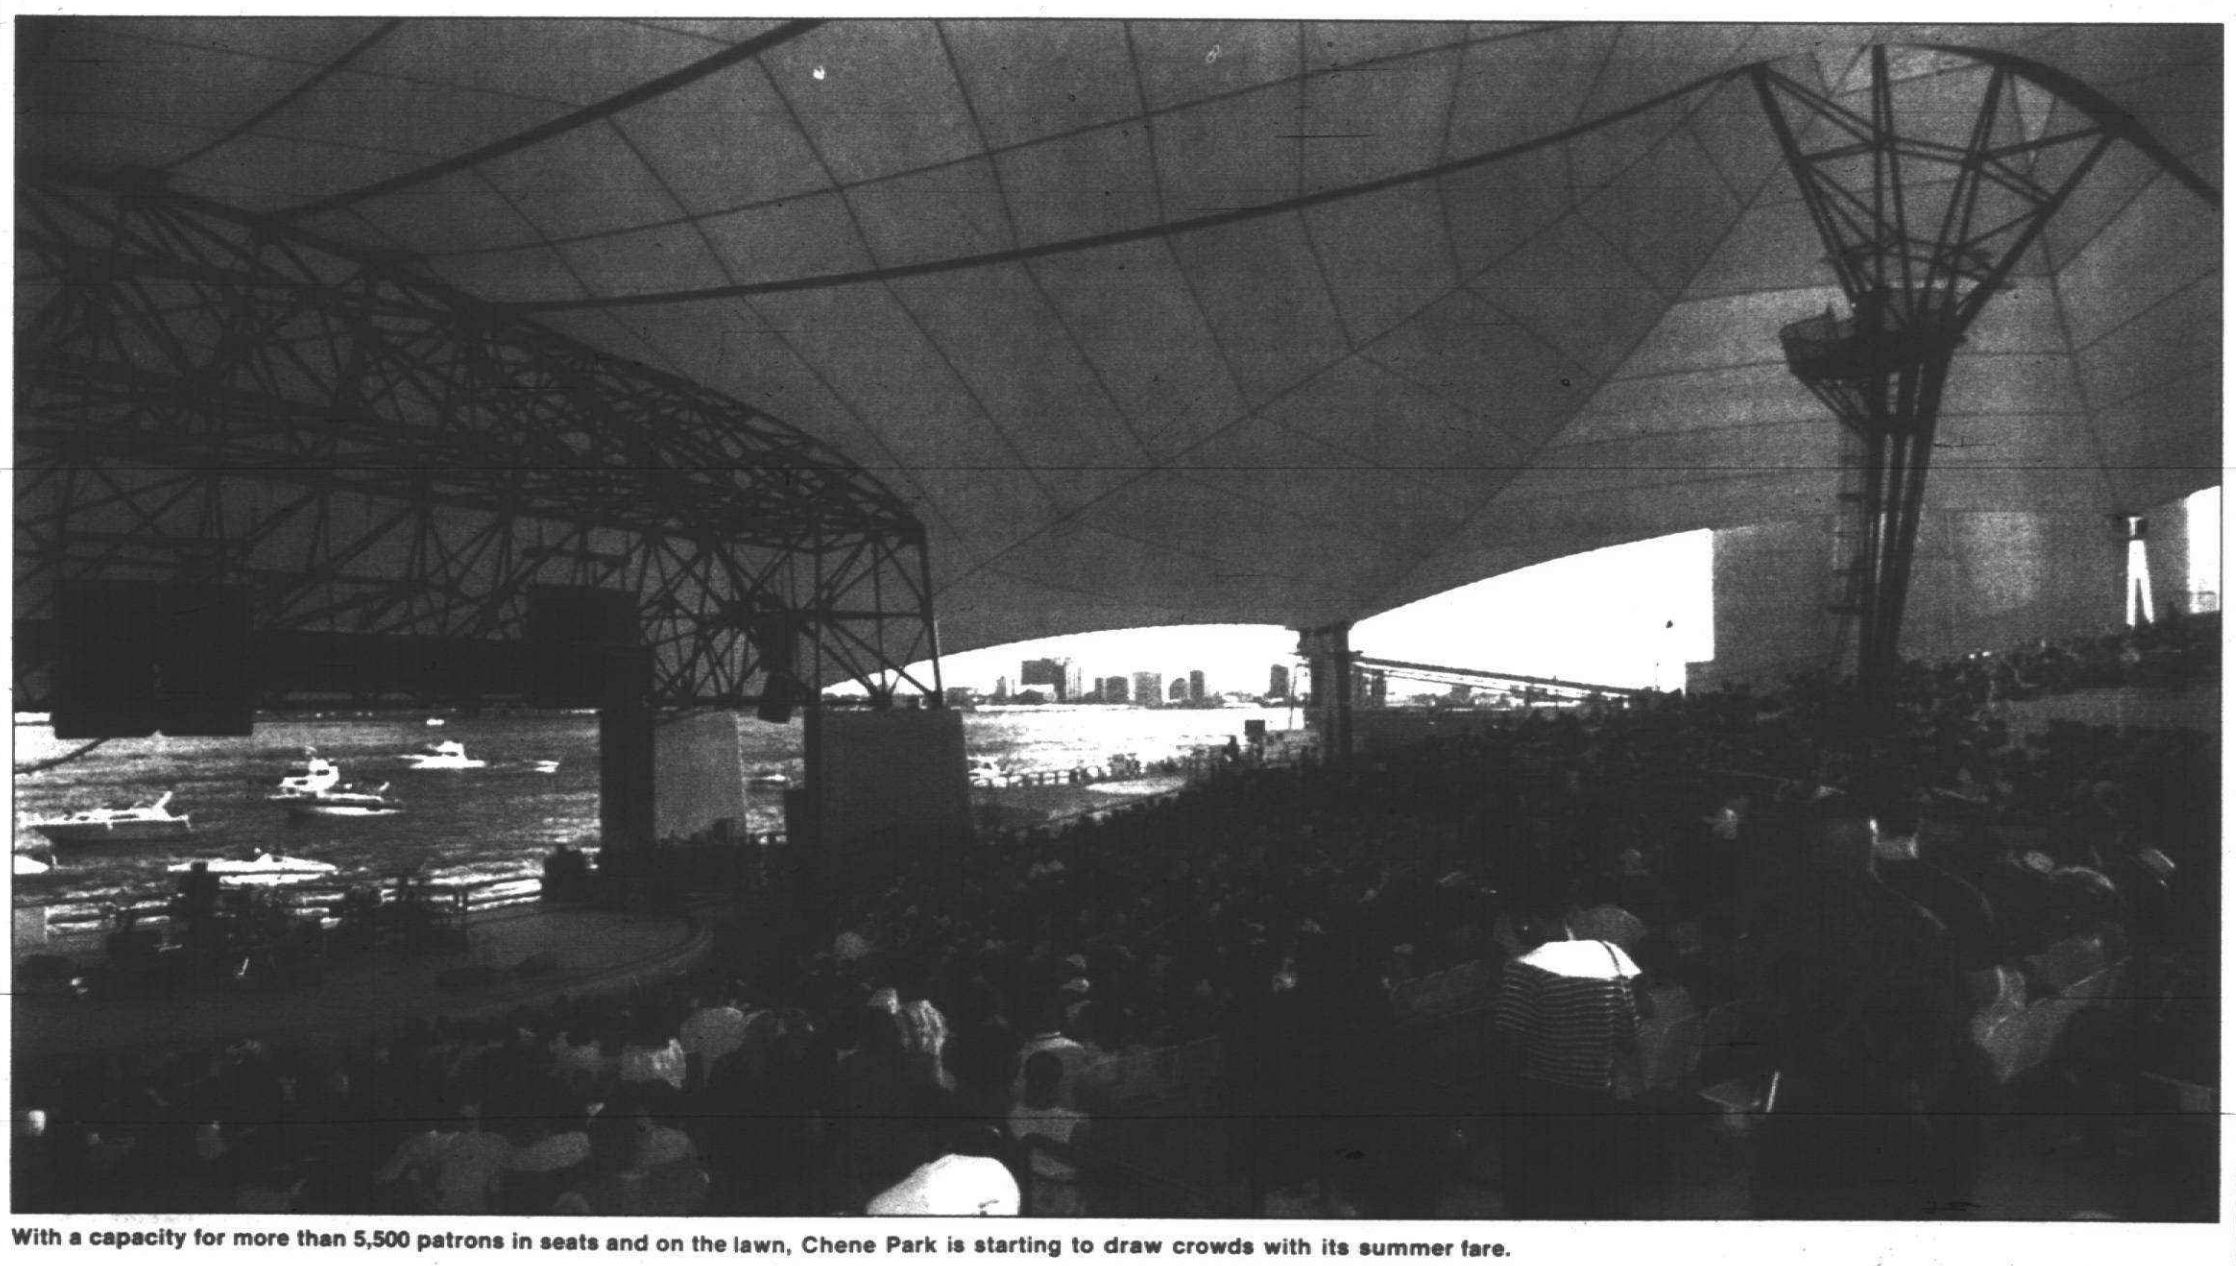
We moved down to the bleacher section, which includes 14 rows of benches that sit behind the chair back seats, and found the view and acoustics splendid as well.

A plush section of lawn veers down the right side of the facility, providing another excellent viewing spot.

On our subsequent return for the John Hiatt/Little Feat double bill, we took up shop on the grass. Again, the sound was excellent as Hiatt and crew burned through their set.

BOTH THE bleachers and the section of lawn on the right side of the stage will be replaced by chair seating next summer, according to Haberthur.

The choice seating up front features metal lawn furniture type chairs with wire-mesh backing.



With a capacity for more than 5,500 patrons in seats and on the lawn, Chene Park is starting to draw crowds with its summer fare.

Talent scout is key to a baseball team's success

Scouts called 'backbone of every ballclub'

By William Coutant
staff writer

When you think of the Detroit Tigers, names like Alan Trammell, Lou Whitaker, Cecil Fielder and Clyde Weir should come to mind.

You ask what position does Clyde Weir play? Why, according to the Detroit front office, he's a key player — a scout.

"Absolutely. They're the backbone of every ball club," said Rick Farrell, former scouting director and now a consultant for the Tigers. "Trammell, (Kirk) Gibson, people like that. That's how we find and get those kinds of ball players."

Like many scouts in the majors, Weir balances his considerable scouting duties with a full-time business career and a family life. Weir scouts prospects at games throughout the area and runs early summer tryout camps at Henry Ford Community College in Dearborn.

And as any scout will tell you, a major-league prospect needs two things to succeed.

"Can he run and can he throw?" Weir said. "That's what scouts are looking for. If he can do those things, he can learn everything else."

Sounds simple. But there's a little more to it than that.

BALL CLUBS are looking for younger players they can develop, but they want to be sure a player can do what his coach says he can do before signing him up.

"We don't want to sign or draft a player we haven't worked out ourselves," said Gene Bennett, a top scout with the Cincinnati Reds who signed Detroit Catholic Central star Chris Sabo and former University of Michigan all-American and Olympian Barry Larkin. "Many times, where a team gets hurt is seeing him (prospect) play against competition that isn't that good.

"In tryout camp you know that he can throw and run."

Bennett, a full-time scout for the Reds, said finding the Chris Sabos is easy, it's the borderline players that test a scout's skill and judgment.

"You see a guy like Sabo and figure, 'how can he miss?' " he said. "It's the players that are taken low in the draft where it's hard to tell if they'll make it."

The Reds once allowed a 16-year-old to try his pitching arm against some good college players in a tryout camp. He struck out 11 of them and went on a few years later to fame and fortune in the big time. His name is Don Gullett.

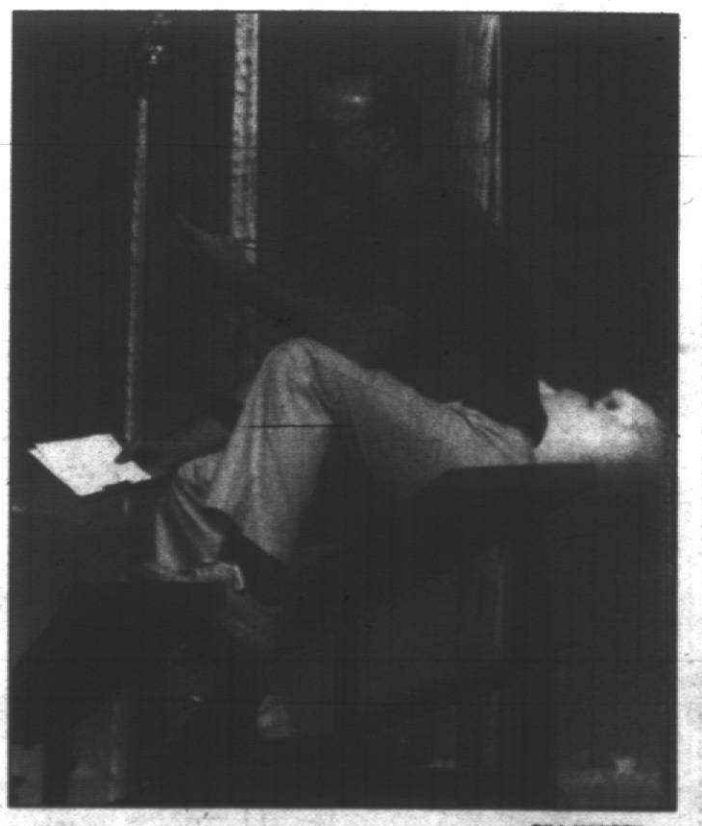
But the odds are long that a player spotted at a tryout camp will be good enough to earn a professional contract. That doesn't stop hopefuls from trying.

"THEY TOLD me I was a little slow," said 19-year-old Gary Kelley of Monroe after a tryout with the Chicago White Sox last summer. "I've been working on my speed. I think I can play."

Kelley, who's chance to tryout for the Tigers was rained out, said he would try again with the Cincinnati Reds. Unlike a lot of players who just want to see what they can do, Kelley, who catches in amateur ball, has a larger purpose.

"I want to make the team," he said. "I'm not just doing this to see how I stack up."

If Kelley can play, its likely that Clyde Weir, or someone like him, will get him the chance to show his stuff.



BILL HANSEN

Using a stopwatch, Detroit Tiger scout Clyde Weir keeps track of how fast the players traverse the stretch between home plate and first base during a scoting visit at Jaycee Park in Pontiac.

Nothing is 'minor' scouting prospects better. We develop and follow up a list of players"

Calling them "kids" is not too far from the truth. Most prospects major league teams scout are 17-18 years old. So area high school stars, such as Rochester's James Bonnici (drafted by the Seattle Mariners) and Taylor's Steve Avery (pitching for the Atlanta Braves), are players who have a good chance at a baseball career. That's considering that only about half of the first-round draft choices make it to the majors.

And in baseball as in most things, their youth can work for and against them.

"It (making the majors) is a big challenge for a 17- to 18-year-old," Weir said. "What kind of heart does he have? Can he go that extra mile? There's no clear-cut formula. That's what makes scouting such a tough job."

More and more, scouts are encouraging young players to go on to college, add some maturity and then see if they still want to play in the big leagues.

"We have excellent rapport with every college coach in the state," he said. "A majority of scouts encourage kids to go to school. They care about the kids."

Bay Street Gallery passes a milestone

By Corinne Abatt
staff writer

There's an on-going celebration taking place at Joppich's Bay Street Gallery of Northport this summer. Not only did Farmington Hills based artist, teacher and art dealer, Edee Joppich make it as a gallery owner in this small picturesque community on the Leelanau Peninsula, she has done it successfully for a decade. That's the reason for the festivities — and it's a good one.

Edee and her family, husband, Ed, brother-in-law, Herb and their sons and daughters commuted for about a year while they worked on refurbishing and remodeling the stone house facing the harbor at Northport into gallery space.

She started with a commitment to show Michigan artists and the bulk of the 53 in the gallery this year either live in Michigan or have strong connections to it. This is a slick, professional operation and Joppich looks for quality when she chooses her artists — so over the years she's shown works by the likes of Morris Brose, Sue Linberg, Richard Kozlow, B.J. Bennett, Kegham Tazian, Marjorie Chellstorp, Susan Thomas and many from the faculties of colleges and universities.

"I'm so aware of what wonderful artists we have in this state. I've shown close to 300 in the 10 years I've had the gallery."

She said in the decade since she's been at it, she's come to feel like a part of the summer life there. "It's so personal. Young people will bring their new babies in for me to see. They look forward to coming back every year — to seeing who's new this year. I love acquainting them with the artists as well as with the art. It gets them to buy Michigan art and collect Michigan art.

Many of the people who come in will connect with one artist — they look at everything in the gallery and then find one who speaks to them."

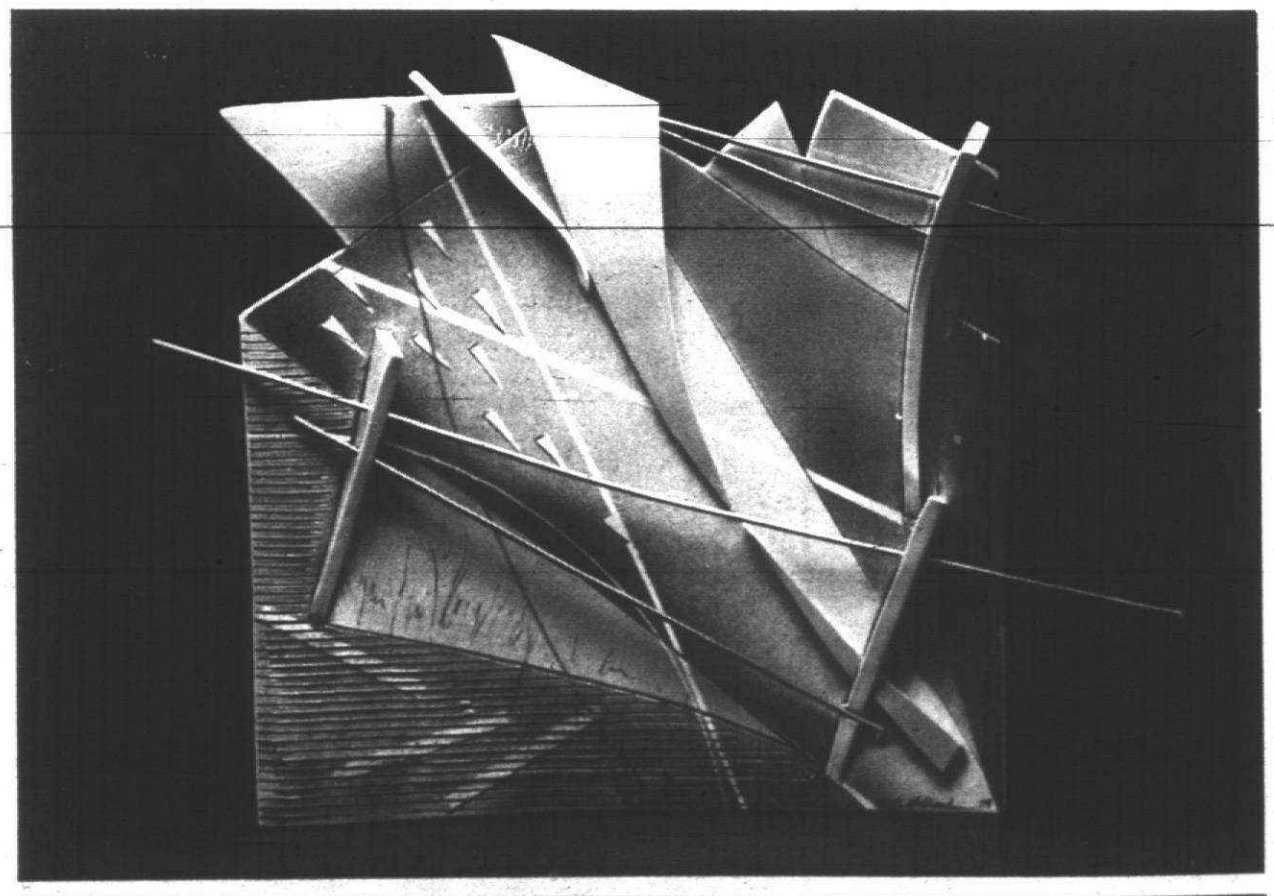
That's not unusual, especially this year, because she said many of her 53 artists are definitely communicating something, "My role is the matchmaker."

When she isn't doing that (and she's in the gallery 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. everyday in July and August) she works on her own art or is running or planning workshops and seminars.

She has a piece in the current Watercolor USA exhibition in the St. Louis Museum of Art. Hers is one of a modest size group chosen from a very large field of entries.

Joppich's Bay Street Gallery is on Bay Street, one block north of the marina, Northport.

Edee Joppich, wearing a handpainted silk outfit from her gallery, stands behind a group of pedestal sculptures surrounded by paintings and graphics which she hand picks each year before she opens for business in late May.



Farmington Hills artist Gwen Tomkow does colorful paintings of favorite Michigan landscapes such as the dunes along Lake Michigan. Edee Joppich said Tomkow's work gets a good reception in her gallery. At left is a ceramic sculpture by Sharon Hubbard of Dexter, a full-time artist who completed her MFA at University of Michigan.

This book may hold answers to neatness

Q: My daughter is home from college for the summer, doesn't know what she wants to do with her life, is non-cooperative in keeping our home neat and is really "getting to me." She'll be leaving again soon, but I don't think either of us will remember this summer with a good feeling.

A: A book called "The Blessing" by Gary Smalley and John Trent, Ph.D. discusses the importance of the parents' "blessing" of their children. There are five elements of this blessing, which include meaningful touch, spoken words, expressive high value, picturing a special future and an active commitment. You need to read the book to fully understand these elements.

You may wonder what this has to do with organizing, but I have seen many cases of people who experienced constant criticism from their parents or other adults during their childhood, and who have still never been able to stay organized as adults.

A woman I know read "The Blessing" recently and, as a direct result of it, "pictured the future" for her college age daughter (whom I'll call Lisa). Lisa's boyfriend was kidding about her messy room and remarked that she would obviously never change. The mother said, "Oh, I don't know about that. Lisa is innately the best organized person in this house."

After Lisa and her boyfriend recovered from their shock, the mother continued, "When she was little she used to line everything up perfectly, kept her toys neat and was the most cooperative of our children. She only got messy when she became a teenager. I have full confidence as she matures Lisa will return to being a very well-organized person."

It was the mother's turn to be shocked when she heard the vacuum cleaner running late one night about a week after that, and was pleasantly surprised to find Lisa had gotten tired of her room being in such chaos and had cleaned it up.

Not all results will be as dramatic as this, but I do feel it's important to express confidence in your daughter's abilities to do well. If you chose to do this, be careful not to express glossy over-all compliments, such as "You're wonderful." Your daughter isn't completely "wonderful," and you both know it. She is very capable in certain areas or has the ability to develop those areas, however, so be specific in your comments.

Your daughter needs to work out her own problems and will do so when she's ready. You needn't take abuse from her, but your patience and availability for help in decision-making when she asks will go a long way toward working out her own problems. I'm sure when she gets her own act together she will once again be more cooperative with you.

Dorothy Lehmkuhl is owner of Organizing Techniques of Birmingham. She teaches time management and organizing through speeches to organizations, seminars, consulting and writing.

The front of this West Bloomfield home is a combination of Great Lakes Split Face manufactured stone and aluminum siding. Workers from Williams Panel Brick turned inside corners by butting manufactured stones together and outside corners with special matching corner pieces.

Manufactured stone's popularity on the rise

By Gerald Frawley
staff writer

Most people like the look of stone, but don't like the price tag.

But an alternative is available; one that offers the appearance of stone at a fraction of the cost — manufactured stone.

From luxury homes to bank buildings, from fast food emporiums to Disney World, from Marriott Hotels to Heritage USA, manufactured stone has adorned interior and exterior walls, leaving no one the wiser that what they're seeing is anything but actual cut stone.

Manufactured or pre-cast stone is hardly new to building, but it has gained in popularity in recent years, said Mark Pool, contractor and builder sales representative for William's Panel Brick in Detroit.

"Stone adds character to a building and that's why people like it," Pool said.

Manufactured stone's appearance and style have improved to the point where the average person cannot tell the difference between manufactured and cut stone, Pool said.

GREAT LAKES split face, gray castle stone, cobblestone textures, limestone, driftstone, river rock, glacier rock and lava stone are only some of the pre-cast stone types, Pool said. Manufacturers use actual stones from around the country as models for the manufactured stone.

Manufactured stone is made from Portland Cement, aggregate and iron oxide dies. While durable, the pre-cast stone is aerated during mixing so it hardens at half the weight of real stone, Pool said.

And at only eight pounds per square foot, manufactured stone can be secured to walls at higher elevations than cut stone, he said. But the surface is still durable, which is why builders of commercial, office and residential projects have turned to it in recent years.

"But you can't tell the difference (by appearance) between manufactured stone and real stone," Pool said. "That's why builders use it."

THE USE of manufactured stone bucks the national building trend, said Robert Heath, president of Stucco Stone Products Inc. in Napa, Calif., the world's largest producer of manufactured stone under the trade name Culture Stone.

Even when construction slowed during the early 1980s, manufactured stone sales continued to grow, he said.

"In the industry, we think in terms of production — the amount of product we have on the market exceeds 1 billion square feet," Heath said.

As an industry, manufactured stone sales exceed $150 million a year.

The Midwest, the West Coast and New York are all strong markets for manufactured stone, he said. Manufactured stone was also a popular building materials in Texas, prior to the construction bust there, he said.

Michigan has been particularly strong in manufactured stone sales, Heath said.

"In the state of Michigan we've had a growth of 20 percent, 35 percent and 25 percent in the last three years."

THERE ARE limitations to manufactured stone, Heath said. Manufactured stone should not be assumed to add strength to load bearing walls and should not be used below grade or below water.

"It has the same qualities as brick."

Also, manufactured stone should not be used in areas vulnerable to slush formed by salt or other snow or ice melting chemicals, Heath said.

Natural stone is also subject to staining, discoloration and cracking under similar conditions.

"Because (manufactured stone) is man-made, some people expect it to be better than natural stone."

Pre-cast stone does offer ease of installation, affordability, design flexibility and consistent quality, Heath said.

"You can get the same type of stone out of two parts of a quarry and they'll differ significantly."

Al King, owner of Atlas Fireplaces Inc. in Troy, said he has sold manufactured stone for about 15 years.

While more expensive than aluminum and vinyl siding, manufactured stone is about one-third less the cost of real stone at about six to seven dollars per square foot for materials, King said.

MUCH OF THE manufactured stone sold by King is used in interior use to decorate fireplaces, he said, but he also does building faces.

"Michigan has always been a popular state for stone," King said.

The popularity probably stems from the fact that natural stone — an abundant resource in Michigan — is a traditional building material, he said.

"Stone is not used everywhere — probably 30 percent of states are really stone states," King said.

Manufactured stone has come a long way in the 15 years since he began selling it.

"It started out with maybe two colors, but now there's probably 20."

The quality has also improved, he said.

"Most people can't tell the difference between (manufactured stone) and real stone."

The improved quality, he said, is the main reason for manufactured stone's growing popularity. Previously, manufactured stone was used mainly as an exterior siding, but the improved looks made it appropriate for interior use, he said.

Housing act sinks adult swim

condo queries

Robert M. Meisner

Our board voted to have an adult swim on certain evenings, which represented a small percentage of the time that the pool is open. One of the parents threatened to bring a lawsuit claiming that her child's civil rights were violated. In your opinion, can we have an adult swimming time (18 and over) for a reasonable period of time.

Amendments to the Fair Housing Act have made it clear that a condominium or apartment complex cannot discriminate against children in the use of their facilities. Because of severe problems in the past with discrimination against families, the rules are stringent. Clearly a swimming pool is a "facility," so it is subject to the act. The board should not make any restrictions based on age. A rule requiring that small children be accompanied by an adult would be permissible because it does not exclude children and because it has a basis other than the child is not an adult. Another possibility is for a group of co-owners to have a swim party later in the evening, when children are less likely to attend.

I am a co-owner in a condominium where the board has instructed that all requests be sent to the board in writing which I do, even though the majority of the co-owners call the board members. Apparently my requests irritate the board. The reply to my last letter was carbon copied to all of the other members of the association. The board is trying to make me look like a bad co-owner and a constant complainer. Is it legal for the board to circulate private correspondence to other co-owners? If not, what legal recourse do I have and to whom may I write who has the authority over the board's actions? I have asked the board for an apology and sent copies of same to the other co-owners but have not received a reply.

If in fact the board is intentionally attempting to embarrass you as a co-owner, you may have legal redress against the board and the association. To the extent that dissemination of board decisions and correspondence are made to the co-owners, there may be what is called a "qualified privilege" on the part of the board to do so, so long as it is not done for malicious purposes or to unnecessarily embarrass or harass a co-owner. It appears that in this instance the board is attempting to unduly embarrass you because there appears to be no legitimate reason for them to circulate your letters, unless they are doing so with respect to the other co-owners complaints as well. You may well have a legitimate claim against the board and the association for invasion of privacy and may wish to consult legal counsel.

Weaver addresses BASM

"Building an Image for the '90s" will be the focus of remarks by television commentator Joe Weaver when he addresses a general membership meeting of the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan Tuesday, Aug. 21, at Roma's of Bloomfield, 2101 Telegraph, north of Square Lake.

Weaver, editorial director of WJBK-TV2, will discuss the public's perception of the building industry and what builders can do to enhance their image in communities.

The meeting will also feature displays of new home products and services for builders.

New member orientation will be at 9 a.m., followed by supplier displays from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.. The luncheon and address will be from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m.
