The Canton Connection

Hot diggity

About 200 people turned out for the second annual Corn Roast Sept. 23 at the Canton Recreation Complex.

The fall harvest event, sponsored by Big Boy, raised $200 for the Canton Senior Citizen Athletic Fund. Next year, the Canton Jaycees are expected to take on the project.

Hunt for hazards

"Keep your place fire safe — Hunt for home hazards" is the theme for the 1990 Fire Prevention Week Oct. 7-13.

This year marks the 12th year the Canton Chamber of Commerce and the Canton Fire Department will be co-sponsoring the fire prevention poster coloring contest for grade school students.

Art Winkel, Canton fire marshal, will be hosting open houses at all fire stations during the week. "All parents and kids are invited to look over our equipment and learn about fire prevention," Winkel said.

Free seminars on the use of fire extinguishers also are available to area businesses.

McDonald's of Canton will again help host the poster coloring contest. They will provide refreshments at the open house and ceremonies for the winners. First, second and third place winners will receive $50 savings bonds. The public is invited to attend the awards ceremony 1 p.m. Oct. 23 at Canton Township administration building.

For more information call the Chamber of Commerce, 453-4040.

Soccer kudos

The U-16 Plymouth Lightning Grills soccer team in the Little Caeser's Premier League brought home two trophies in three weeks.

They defeated teams from Ontario, Canada and Ohio to come in first place at the Bay Challenge Cup tournament in Cleveland, Ohio. At the Oakland University Marriott Soccer Classic, they defeated other Michigan teams.

Firefighters fired up over safety exhibit

By Diane Gale
staff writer

The smoke thickens in the small house, setting off an ear-piercing alarm, and your heart beats faster when you realize you can't see your hand in front of your face.

What do you do?

Youngsters will be given firsthand experience of what it's like to be in a house fire, and more important, life-saving instructions, if Canton officials give the final go-ahead to buy a Fire Safety House that costs about $22,000.

Fire Capt. Art Winkel invited visitors into the small scale mobile house.

The first lesson on tap is the stove, set up to show the things you should avoid. Pot handles are facing out and a roll of paper towels and matches sit on the back of a burner.

Up a small flight of stairs he invites you to sit on a bench across from a sink with a electric radio on the counter. That's another example to show children what not to do.

SUDDENLY, THE cramped room quickly fills with smoke and everything except the white, choking film disappears.

"Touch the door," Winkel said.

It's warm.

"Then find another way out."

The first rule, he said, is to crawl on the ground until you come to a window or door. You grope your way to a mini door wall and ahhhhh — the smoke begins to clear from your eyes as you step down a chain ladder, out into the fresh air.

Don't worry about the fumes, Winkel said, the smoke is non-toxic.

Inside the house, fans are turned on and the smoke clears. More people are invited inside to learn how not to die in a fire.

A LOT of youngsters panic when they hear the fire alarm, said Canton fire Inspector Claude Gersky.

"We teach them what it is and how to exit by crawling and touching the door," Gersky said.

Firefighters also try to get across that "when we have the masks on, we're not animals and don't hide," Gersky said. Children sometimes are frightened by the gear, or fear they will get in trouble for starting the fire.

THE KEY is to have a plan in line before the fire begins, Gersky said.

"They can go to their parents and say: 'Do we have an escape plan?'

"We're going to start with the kids, but we'd like to expand it to the parents."

The plan should instruct family members to:

- get out of the house right away;
- crawl low under the smoke;
- feel doors, and if they're hot, get out another way;
- never go back inside; and
- call the fire department from another location.

WINKEL ALSO lauded other fire safety programs taught to preschoolers.

A mother called him and said her son, 5 years old, was in the family back yard and saw smoke coming from a house two doors away, Winkel said. The boy got down on his hands and knees, crawled into his own house and told his mother about the fire.

The youngster used the tips he learned in a fire safety program.

Chamber president enjoys work, Shriners

By A. Giralt Bedford
staff writer

As the owner of two businesses, the president of the Canton Chamber of Commerce, a hunter and angler, Mel Morris wears plenty of hats.

But even with all that, he has time to put on a fez and participate with other Shriners in parades to raise money for 17 orthopedic hospital and burn centers for children.

"We treat any crippled child of any creed or race — absolutely free," said Morris, who owns Mel's Auto Clinics in Canton and Livonia.

Shriners not only cover a child's medical needs, but pay for transportation and meals. The care is provided regardless of income and until the child's 18th birthday.

SHRINE HOSPITALS are operated entirely through donations, some given by communities when Shriners participate in their parades. And that's Morris' thing.

With his club, the Lancers, he attends some 20 parades a year, driving a small car.

He said he likes everything about it. Before the parade, he meets with friends and gets to talk for a while. During the parade, he enjoys the car maneuvers and the reaction of the public.

"It's exciting. I like seeing people having fun."

After the parade, the whole group, Shriners and their families get together for supper.

This emphasis on contact among its members is what Morris likes best. "The biggest advantage is the fellowship that goes along with it," he said.

A mason since 1964, he joined the Shrine in 1973 when a Shriner-customer talked him into it. He said he told him, "You'll meet a lot of nice people," which he said he did. "It's been the highlight of my life," he said.

Morris finds similarities between the Shrine and the Chamber of Commerce. "It parallels the Shrine outfit a lot because you meet a lot of people."

As president of the chamber, Morris takes part in the decision making process, together with the board of directors.

HE SAID HE'S ENJOYING his position. "We've been getting involved with the Canton Challenge Fest, the Canton Foundation and the Economic Club."

The chamber also sponsors an Annual Dinner and Auction and now it's getting ready for Santa

She's on the job to fight prejudice

By A. Giralt Bedford
staff writer

As a handicapped student and worker, Canton resident Patricia Lute knows the most difficult task is not studying for finals, but tearing down prospective employers' prejudices.

Some employers fear their businesses will have to undergo major reforms to accommodate handicapped employees, others worry about high absenteeism. Both assumptions are false, Lute said. To help erase them, Gov. James Blanchard has proclaimed October 1-7 "Invest in Ability Week."

Through media coverage of issues facing handicapped people, the week is designed to increase the awareness of employers and of the general public.

The general attitude toward handicappers has changed since 1968, when Lute was in a car accident. "I just wish it would change more," she said.

AT THAT time, her senior year in high school, she was the lucky one. A girlfriend who was riding in the car with her was killed. Since then, Lute has needed a wheelchair to move around, but that has not stopped her from going to Oakland University and receiving a bachelor's degree in psychology.

To get a job in her field, Lute needed a master's degree. She began such a program, but quit to be a homemaker and raise her daughter.

Now that her 12-year-old daughter does not require so much attention, Lute has decided to get a job. She wanted to prepare income tax returns and to do so she chose to enroll in a H&R Block tax class. Although she gets around in her car, she said she is concerned that years from now, she might not be able. "If it got to that point, I could do that from my home," she said.

Since she couldn't afford the tuition, she turned to an agency that had helped her since her accident, Michigan Rehabilitation Services (MRS), part of the Michigan Department of Education.

MRS had financed her college and helped her make her home barrier-free. At that time it was called Divi-

Education secretary, Schuette to visit kids

U.S. Secretary of Education Lauro Cavazos and senatorial candidate U.S. Rep. Bill Schuette will address government students at the Canton Little Theater at Plymouth-Canton High School 6:30 p.m. tonight.

Up to 300 students are expected, so seating will be limited. But if you don't mind a crowd, you're welcome to attend, said Mike McCauley, who teaches Close Up, a Canton government class that stresses hands-on learning.

Bill Gretzinger, who teaches Close Up at Salem, said students will be asking "some very serious questions about education. They want to find out where he (Cavazos) is lending his emphasis.

"Kids are worried about their future, where they'll be going to college and what education will be like when they, and their little brothers and sisters, get there."

Among Cavazos' priorities are improving academic standards and improving teaching, Gretzinger said.

Cavazos, appointed by President George Bush, was born in Kingsville, Texas in 1927. A graduate of Texas Tech, he is the father of 10 children and has been a classroom teacher.

Schuette is challenging incumbent Sen. Carl Levin in the Nov. 6 election.

Republican gubernatorial hopeful John Engler also may attend, McCauley said.

sion of Vocational Rehabilitation.

MRS is one agency helping handicapped people who want to help themselves. It provides training and job placement to some 900 clients in western Wayne County, said Caroline Zyskowski, a supervisor at the agency. Some attend vocational school, college or any other training licensed by the Department of Education. Financial assistance is based on need.

'When you look at the person who has some kind of disability, look at the person first. It (the disability) is a part of them, but it isn't defining the person.'

— Patricia Lute

SOME STUDENTS encounter opposition when trying to enter the labor force. "Invest in Ability Week" can help, Zyskowski said, "bringing attention to the fact that handicapped people are overlooked very often in the labor market. We want them to have an equal shot at getting a good job."

"Their aim is to get you in a position and to keep it," Lute said, adding that this is the reason why the agency also helps installing hand controls in vehicles. It is not enough that people get jobs, they have to be able to drive to work.

Most stereotypes feared by employers are false, Lute said, adding that when she was hired in a clerical position, the only remodeling needed was raising her desk. She also noted that studies show absenteeism among handicapped employees is lower than among other people. It's not that handicapped workers don't get sick, she said, it's that they are aware how fast stereotypes extend and do not want to contribute to them.

This week can also make people aware that handicappers are like any other people, Lute said. "I have bad days like everybody. I'm not some kind of martyr or saint. When you look at the person who has some kind of disability, look at the person first. It (the disability) is a part of them, but it isn't defining the person."

Comes to Canton and the Christmas lighting.

Morris said he enjoys meeting people and being around them. Next week, he'll have a chance to do both when he travels to Long Island to meet hundreds of relatives he's never met before. He and his wife will participate in a family reunion honoring English-born Barneabus Horton, Morris' great-grandfather 11 generations ago. Horton's descendants will be celebrating his landing in Portsmouth, Va., 350 years ago.

Finding out about his ancestry was his wife's work, he said, adding that it's fascinating to find out that one ancestor was a gambler on a boat in northern Michigan's AuSable River.

He said that now he is also interested in genealogy, but to research it he would need even more time.

Area merchant has Thanksgiving plan

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

They want to "postpone" Christmas in Plymouth.

"Let's put it off until the first weekend in December," suggested downtown businessman Fred Hill.

At a Downtown Development Authority meeting Thursday, Hill unveiled his "Thanksgiving Mall-ternative, or whatever," he said.

Emphasis on a Thanksgiving celebration in Plymouth would be a reaction to the modern over-celebration of Christmas, he said.

"It's too early to celebrate Christmas (in October)," Hill said.

By mid-October, the malls that compete with downtown Plymouth for business have already erected Christmas displays.

"Let's just slow down, and celebrate a great American holiday, Thanksgiving."

The event would be a good way to promote downtown businesses, by contrasting Plymouth's style with that of the malls, he said.

THE HIGHLIGHT of the celebration would be a re-enactment of the first Thanksgiving in Kellogg Park the day after Thanksgiving — complete with residents, business people and even actors dressed as pilgrims and Indians.

Another highlight of the celebration would involve a 10-minute nondenominational service in the park to commemorate Thanksgiving, on both the Friday and Saturday after the holiday, Hill said.

It would also involve downtown business owners closing up shop for 10 minutes on Friday, to join the service.

"All I need to do is convince most of the merchants that they can make more money during the rest of the day than they can make in 10 minutes."

AS PART of the celebration, folks dressed as pilgrims would pass out flyers at intersections, and "be speaking 1620," Hill said — using "thee" and "thou."

Plans call for the celebration to include 1620s types of crafts, and ears of Indian corn along streets, Hill said.

"(In Kellogg Park) there might be a teepee and stockade-type fencing and pumpkins and gourds."

An area farmer is donating four acres of corn, Hill said. Organizers plan to tie the ears on signs and parking meters as the celebration approaches.

"It's our first shot at it and not all the things we're talking about are firmed up at this point."

HILL CREDITED local business women Sharon Pugh and Nancy Sheehan for helping to come up with ideas for the celebration.

Hill said it will take $5,000 to $10,000 to put on the event, and he's seeking some of the money from the DDA, among other sources.

People interested in participating in the event can call the chamber of commerce office at 453-1540.

New health program aimed at elderly

By A. Giralt Bedford
staff writer

A Canton home care firm is offering a program aimed at providing area senior citizens with free preventive medicine services.

Home Health Services Inc. (UHHS) is a local home care agency established in 1982 that offers home health care after a hospital stay, instead of it. It provides nursing care after surgery, running of a kidney dialysis machine and caring for chronically ill elderly people, among other services.

Now it's starting a community outreach program, according to Helen Levandovsky, its community relations director.

She said she has contacted several senior citizens complexes to inform them of a new service by which weekly or monthly clinics would be conducted at their locations.

Residents would receive free cholesterol, blood and sugar screenings as well as vision and foot checks, "which are quite important for the elderly," she said.

If during the service, the nurses notice a potential problem, they would refer that person to his or her own personal physician. If they don't have one, UHHS could recommend one.

So far, the response she has received has been positive. "The demand is much greater than I ever thought it would be," Levandovski said.

There would not be any fees charged to the residents nor to the senior citizens complexes. "This is just our community service," she said. She said the cost to UHHS would not be very high either. "The only expense would be the time nurses spend in the complexes."

Any senior citizen complex in western Wayne County interested in this services can contact Helen Levandovski at 981-8820.

Levandovsky said she is also developing a similar program for local employers. "It will be a wellness program," she said. "We'll send our team of professionals to the business site," records will be kept and if the nurses notice significant changes, employees would be advised to take action. "Hopefully, we'll get some support from the business community." This program would be financed by the employer, Levandovski said.

Gas contamination found

There is gasoline contamination underground at the site of a former Plymouth Township gas station, according to a state investigator.

Detective Sgt. Dave Stayer, of the fire marshal's division Michigan State Police, said the contamination poses "no imminent life safety hazard." Stayer said he will soon file a report on the situation with the Department of Natural Resources. Authorities were alerted to the problem last week when a gasoline odor was detected in the area.

Stayer said the DNR could order a cleanup of the site, at 40600 Ann Arbor Trail.

That site, now occupied by Plymouth Auto Service, was once the site of a Mobil gas station. The station was closed in the 1960s, said Larry Groth, township fire chief, and underground gas tanks were removed in 1971.

Stayer said it could be several weeks before the DNR completes its own investigation of the problem.

Pilots trade sky for brooms

By Diane Gale
staff writer

'We can prove to the community it's a viable airport.'

— Joanne Daniels

Area pilots traded a day in the sky Saturday to paint, clean, repair and do whatever it takes to breathe life into Mettetal Airport in Canton.

More than 150 volunteers, pilots and others, such as Frank Fowler of Livonia, who just likes to watch planes, came out despite threatening clouds.

"I'm retired, and I come out here in the evening and watch," Fowler said.

Ashley Heimbaugh, operator of Mettetal, said he was encouraged by the support the volunteers showed.

"We're trying to make this airport one of the best in the state, if not the best — in service, appearance and community involvement," Heimbaugh said.

THE WORKERS hoped that their paint brushes and shovels would help fend off a controversy about whether Plymouth Township, Canton or some other group will buy the airport, which is at Joy and Lilley roads.

Immediately after the Canton board of trustees shot down an offer, Plymouth Township jumped into the arena. Officials are trying to get another government to form an authority that would run the airport.

Tom Ranta of Livonia flew out of Mettetal Airport for the first time in 1946. "This airport used to be very busy, and I hope it gets back," Ranta said.

His son, Canton resident Tom Ranta, said he had a good feeling about the airport's future.

"People keep saying we're a small group of people here," the younger Ranta said. "It's a lot of small people that make a bigger community."

Kevin Kennedy of Plymouth Township, who earned his flight license when he was 17, said there's nothing quite like flying.

"When you're up there, you're like a little kid."

Jack Gardella of Farmington Hills said he'd like to see Mettetal remain an airport because it's "a local airport with local people."

Joanne Daniels of Ypsilanti kept right on painting as she explained her reasons for wanting to save the airport.

"There's a lot of negativism, but I think if all those people came out we can prove to the community it's a viable airport."

Mark Mitchell of Dearborn Heights has flown out of Mettetal for six years and keeps a positive attitude that nothing will change.

"I'm glad to see that the airport is going to survive. I wanted to take part."

THOMAS J. KENNEDY, a TWA captain who lives in Plymouth Township, has plans to launch an education program for airline mechanics and pilots at Mettetal.

Ken Martin, a Plymouth flight instructor, said four of his 10 students use the airport for training to become pilots at major airlines. The other students are learning to fly for pleasure.

"We want a college at the airport — make it an aviation air park," Kennedy said. "Certainly everyone else gets to use it."

Airplane mechanics are scarce, Kennedy said, and once people are trained they can make $30,000 easily and often are quickly hired by major airlines. Kennedy said he's trying to encourage more women to sign up for the mechanics positions.

To the people who are against the airport, Heimbaugh said, "We ask them to come here (Mettetal) and see what it's like. It's an open invitation."

Kirksey quits S'craft board

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Jack Kirksey had threatened to resign from the Schoolcraft College board; Wednesday, he made good on his threat.

But the Livonia resident added a twist.

Kirksey, disgruntled over the college's attorney selection process, didn't issue a resignation date. That means he will be free to vote on the new college attorney, as well as next year's college budget and other important issues.

Kirksey, a former state representative, said he wanted to leave "as small a window as possible" between his resignation and next year's trustee election. He added he's looking at leaving the board in early 1991.

Jack Kirksey

KIRKSEY GAVE no reason for his resignation, either in a letter submitted to the board, or in statements at Wednesday's meeting.

"I'll give my reasons at my last meeting, whenever it is," Kirksey said afterward.

Though not a surprise, Kirksey's resignation adds a new controversy to the already controversial situation surrounding selection of a legal representative for the Livonia-based community college.

Initially, Law, Hemming, Essad & Polaczyk had been recommended for the job, but Kirksey charged law firm partner Robert Lawand his friend, Schoolcraft board president Mary Breen used undue influence in attempting to secure college legal work for the Plymouth firm. Both the firm and Breen called Kirksey's charges untrue.

A second controversy erupted a few weeks later, when fellow trustee Wendell Smith charged Kirksey was being unduly influenced by Miller, Canfield, Paddock & Stone — the college's current legal representative — using contribution records from Kirksey's 1987 Livonia mayoral campaign.

ATTEMPTING TO resolve the first controversy, trustees invited law firms to submit bids.

Eight responded and, on Wednesday, they trimmed the field to four: Law, Hemming, Miller, Canfield; Brashear, Tangora & Spence of Livonia and Plunkett, Cooney of Southfield.

But it was the second controversy that may have prompted Wednesday's resignation.

"In spite of what you might think of me, I still love this college," Kirksey said to his fellow board members.

Kirksey issued his resignation at the start of Wednesday's meeting. Afterward, relations between the second-year board member and his fellow trustees appeared cordial.

Breen thanked Kirksey for his service to date. Kirksey promised Breen he wouldn't be a "lame duck" and would continue to attend meetings.

Kirksey was appointed to the board in 1988 to fill the unexpired term of Laura Toy. He was elected to a six-year term of his own in 1989.

Kirksey is director of community education for Livonia Public Schools. He represented the Livonia area in the state House from 1977-84.

The six-year term runs through 1995, its unexpired four years would be up for election next year.

Campaign financing sheds light on feud

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Campaign contributions to Schoolcraft College candidates have rarely, if ever, been an issue.

That is because community college campaigns have traditionally been run on shoe string budgets.

Campaign financing, however, has become a side controversy in the larger controversy surrounding selection of the college's legal firm.

Trustee Jack Kirksey charged board president Mary Breen was unduly influenced by Robert Law, a partner in a firm under consideration for the job, initially alleging Law was her former campaign manager.

In response, fellow trustee Wendell Smith alleged Kirksey was unduly influenced by the college's current firm Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone — whose members contributed to Kirksey's 1987 Livonia mayoral campaign.

The campaign contributions under question, in themselves, represent no impropriety on anyone's part, nor any violation of state campaign law.

But an examination of each board member's financial records sheds light on the allegations, if not answering them entirely.

Records show:

● Kirksey raised $47,493 during his unsuccessful mayoral campaign, with $550 clearly identified as coming from Miller, Canfield attorneys. "Attorneys, like other professional groups, are big campaign contributors," Kirksey said. Campaign records show $3,930 in contributions from contributors clearly identified as lawyers — with $450 coming from Charles Tangora, a partner in another firm under consideration for the legal representative's job.

— Ironically, the Miller, Canfield contributors apparently need only have been identified by name, not profession, under state election law because they each contributed less than $200 each to the Kirksey campaign.

Records for Kirksey's 1989 Schoolcraft campaign show no contributions, either from lawyers or any other group.

● Breen's records show Law was not her campaign director, as Kirksey once alleged. Breen's filings list her own name as campaign director. Records from May 1983 to July 1989 show Breen has raised $3,321 during her two Schoolcraft campaigns. The largest single contributor, giving $100 last year, was Weintstein & Weinstein, a Southfield law firm that isn't under consideration for the Schoolcraft job.

Breen's fund shows a $78.65 balance.

● Smith's campaign contributions, $1,813, all came in increments too small for identification beyond the contributor's name. His campaign fund is now empty.

Among other trustees:

● Michael Burley filed a campaign waiver for his 1985 campaign, indicating he intended to raise and spend less than $500.

● Harry Greenleaf, raised $2,670 between 1985-89. The largest contribution, $200 came from the Wayne County 2nd Congressional district GOP Committee. His campaign fund, too, is empty.

● Thaddeus McCotter, elected in 1989, raised $3,070 in his campaign. The biggest contribution: $450 from himself. McCotter's fund retained a $432 balance after the campaign.

● Jeanne Stempien, like Burley, filed a waiver for her 1987 Schoolcraft campaign. Records show Stempien raised $9,859 one year later in her unsuccessful 36th District state House campaign. The biggest contribution: $1,800 from the Wayne County UAW political action committee.

'Let's do it today'

Downtown streetscape plan applauded

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

The plan to improve the look of Plymouth's downtown is done, and officials want to show it to business owners and residents.

The streetscape master plan, put together by Schervish Vogel Merz of Detroit with suggestions from Downtown Development Authority members, was presented in final form to the DDA on Thursday.

"What this plan shows is a balanced approach to public space and the need for parking," said architect Kent Anderson.

"It's beautiful," said DDA member Fred Hill.

"Let's do it today," said another DDA member, Mayor Dennis Bila.

"We are just chomping at the bit to get it off the ground and turn it into reality," said DDA chairman Greg Goodman.

Goodman hopes construction can begin by this time next year, he said.

DDA MEMBERS even applauded the team of architects who worked on the plan, and made plans to preview it with the public.

The authority members accepted city finance director William Graham's suggestion that the architects' posterboard drawings of planned changes to the downtown streetscape be displayed in bank lobbies.

"The banks get an awful lot of traffic from the business community," Graham said.

DDA members agreed to move the drawings around from bank to bank downtown, and to display them in downtown storefront windows.

"THE NEXT bit of business will be to get input from the community," said Gordon Jaeger, city manager. "We need to begin talking about implementation and taking the steps to get things moving."

The master streetscape plan should go before the city planning commission in the next month or so for approval, Jaeger said. Details of how to finance improvements, and which improvements might come first, have yet to be decided, he said.

The DDA also plans public hearings to present the changes to businesses and residents.

PLANNED IMPROVEMENTS include:

- English style forecourt gardens placed between businesses and sidewalks along Ann Arbor Trail and Penniman and some other central business district streets, to improve the look of downtown to help draw shoppers.
- New sidewalks flanked by brick surfaces.
- "Bumped out" curbs at intersections downtown, which set parallel parking areas along some streets off traffic lanes.
- Addition of another paved walkway in Kellogg Park toward Main Street, to tie in the park further with the business district.

The plan recommends closing some smaller parking lots in favor of larger ones, to encourage motorists to park and shop at more than one store.

The architects are to be paid $52,000 for their work on the streetscape plan.

Proposal includes Amoco site

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

It's not likely to happen, Downtown Development Authority members say.

Still, officials say they'd love to see a modern, mixed-use development on the corner of Ann Arbor Trail and Main.

Such a development, complete with atriums and multi levels designed to present a step-down effect at the corner, would look a whole lot better than the abandoned Amoco station that sits there now, authority members say.

But more important, such a development could provide a downtown anchor — important to rejuvenating the downtown business climate.

"It's a potential development site, we don't have anybody in line," said City Manager Gordon Jaeger.

"It's really just a 'what if you got this property plan,' said Greg Goodman, DDA chairman. The property, he said, is "really sitting dormant."

The DDA asked architects Schervish Vogel Merz to create on paper a possible anchor development for the corner. It's included in drawings for a revised downtown streetscape, accepted by the DDA on Thursday.

On paper, the development would replace the Amoco station, Mayflower Meeting House and Box Bar.

Box Bar owner Chip Falcusan said Friday, "I'm kind of shocked."

"It's the first I've heard of it. It seems like the plans they have there call for the elimination of me.

"I don't know why they didn't come to me and talk to me about it," Falcusan said. "To think about eliminating a business that's been downtown for how many years now — it's kind of incredible. I'm going to have to talk to Gordon (Jaeger)."

Mayflower Meeting House owner Ralph Lorenz was unavailable for comment.

Amoco officials have said it will take 2-5 years to clean up the petroleum contamination caused when underground tanks at the site leaked. That played a part in the closing of the station there in June.

DDA members have said the contamination could be a turn off for potential developers.

Enrollment drop means budget cuts

By Tedd Schneider
staff writer

The continuing enrollment decline in the Wayne-Westland Community School district will mean additional budget cuts and could slow contract negotiations with teachers, which had picked up last week, a school official said Friday.

The district's "fourth Friday" attendance revealed 15,863 students in kindergarten through the 12th grade, 248 fewer than last year and 30 below the district's pre-survey projection.

Wayne-Westland serves southeast Canton.

"It means we'll have less (money) than we projected in the budget and we'll have to make some additional revisions," said Tom Svitkovich, associate superintendent of administration.

Asked if contract talks between the district and the teachers would be adversely affected by the decline, Svitkovich said the figures "reaffirm the situation we're in, which is very tight fiscally."

BARGAINING WAS scheduled to continue during the weekend.

Wayne-Westland School District
The district serves southeast Canton.

The Wayne-Westland Education Association had hoped the annual enrollment count would leave the district with additional state aid.

Teachers have been working without a contract since the start of school Aug. 27.

Instead, the 1990-91 enrollment figure, coupled with the district's reduced millage rate (voters rejected a renewal of 2.75 mills that expired last June), will mean a decline of $151,295 in state money compared with district projections, Svitkovich said.

That includes additional funds Wayne-Westland will receive as a result of last summer's redistribution of categorical aid by the state legislature.

Under the new formula the district will receive $3,879 per student, Svitkovich said.

That figure is $82 per student more than the district would have received before the new law, but still $27 less than the 1988-89 figure.

Enrollment in kindergarten through the 12th grade is down 1.5 percent from last year and about 3 percent from two years ago.

The district's enrollment decline has slowed in recent years after 2- to 3-percent annual declines throughout the past decade.

NOTICE
CITY OF PLYMOUTH
INFORMAL HEARINGS FOR COMMERCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL PROPERTIES

Great Lake Appraisal Company has been reappraising each commercial and industrial property in the City of Plymouth. The tentative values have been completed and notices have been sent to each taxpayer.
The appraisal conforms to Michigan State Law in establishing a true cash value for each parcel. If you wish to discuss the 1991 Tentative State Equalized Value, a Great Lakes representative will be conducting informal hearings at Plymouth City Hall, 201 South Main Street, Plymouth, Michigan; 48170, in the Commission Chambers, second floor, beginning October 8th through October 12th, 1990.
Please compare our value with comparable recent sales, actual appraisals and/or other evidence of current value of your property. Any information that you may wish to present should reflect current values, not the original cost. INCOME AND EXPENSE INFORMATION WOULD BE EXTREMELY HELPFUL.
The hearings will be held by "APPOINTMENT ONLY". Please contact our office at 453-1234 to make an appointment and please "bring this notice with you", it will expedite proceedings.
It is anticipated that the 1991 assessments will be identical to the State Equalized Value (SEV). Compare the 1990 SEV to the 1991 TENTATIVE SEV, the TENTATIVE SEV should represent fifty percent (50%) of current market value.
The hearings do not replace the statutory Board of Review, schedules March 5, 1991 from 12 Noon to 6:00 P.M. and March 6, 1991 from 3:00 P.M. to 9:00 P.M. It is necessary to attend the local Board of Review should you wish to appeal the 1991 assessment before an appeal can be made to the Michigan Tax Tribunal.

OU dorm stays substance free

By Pat Murphy
staff writer

To the casual listener, "Animal House" and "Anibal House" might sound the same.

But there's a world of difference between "Animal House," the 1978 film, and "Anibal House," the 1990 addition to Oakland University's dormitory options.

Residents of the fictional fraternity in "Animal House" were portrayed as lust-driven young people for whom drugs and alcohol were a part of daily living.

The film's star, John Belushi, died in 1982 after "speedballing," or using a cocaine and heroin combination.

Residents of the real-life Anibal House swear off drugs, alcohol and smoking — at least in the dormitory — and pledge themselves to good diets, regular exercise and a healthy lifestyle.

Drug overdose is just one of the perils they intend to avoid. Others include lung cancer, obesity, cirrhosis of the liver and low grades.

EIGHTY-FOUR STUDENTS on the Rochester campus have opted to live in at Anibal House this semester, the first time OU has offered a drug- and alcohol-free residence hall.

OU has five other dormitories housing about 1,700 students, or better than 10 percent of the school's enrollment of 12,500.

"We silenced the skeptics," said OU spokesman James Llewellyn, referring to the new dorm, which houses a capacity number of students — about 5 percent of those who live in dorms.

"When we announced this, a lot of people said it would never fly," he said. "There was the suggestion it would only attract wierdos.

"But we've had to turn some people away. We may have to expand the option next year."

At an Anibal House open house Monday, Julie Lawless, a junior from West Bloomfield Township, and Jason Preuss, a freshman from Rochester Hills, said they saw nothing weird about choosing a wellness dormitory and a healthy lifestyle.

"I'm a nursing major," said Lawless, a 1988 graduate of Birmingham Groves High School. "It just made sense to be part of a program promoting a healthy lifestyle."

Preuss, who graduated last spring from Lutheran High School Northwest, said he wanted to be around "serious" students. "People who drink or do drugs are not serious about school," said Preuss, a math-science major.

PREUSS AND Lawless talked about their experiences so far this semester as dozens of students and adults inspected the dorm's amenities, which include a weight room and an aerobics facility.

They wondered why the idea of wellness residence halls should be novel, or why some think that people who live there are strange or different.

Yet that misconception exists, they said.

Preuss' sister, for example, expressed concerned about his social life after learning he would live in a dormitory committed to wellness, he said.

"She was concerned other kids here wouldn't be sociable," Preuss said.

Not to worry, Preuss told his sister, a student at the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor. Being serious about academics and wellness does not mean boredom or losing out on campus friendships.

"People here will party" or socialize at the drop of a hat, Preuss said. "They just don't use alcohol or drugs when they do it."

Lawless agreed. "I transferred here from Central Michigan University," she said. "That's a real party school, where kids start Thursday and continue through the weekend. But I've made more friends in three weeks here than I did in two years at Central."

Preuss and Lawless said they don't regard living at the Anibal House as restrictive.

THEIR AGREEMENT with the university only concerns what they do in the dorm, not off campus.

Besides, they emphasized, not doing things is only part of the picture.

"To me, wellness means more than not doing something," Preuss said. "It includes eating well and things like regular exercise. I ran in high school and that's something I want to maintain."

Lawless was very happy about the role her parents played — or, rather, didn't play — in her decision to chose the dorm.

"They left the decision entirely to me," she said. "It was my choice all the way."

"We've had to turn some people away. We may have to expand the option next year."
— James Llewellyn, OU spokesman

Measles shots offered

Measles, mumps and rubella immunization shots are available to seventh grade students at several locations throughout the western Wayne area.

Nationally, there was a 423 percent increase in measles during 1989. A 40 percent increase over last year's figures also reported during the first few months of 1990.

Immunization centers include:

- Westland Health Center — Merriman, north of Michigan Avenue, 467-3319.
- Dearborn Health Department, 16301 Michigan Ave., 943-2090.
- Inkster Health Center, 3505 Walnut, 565-1133.

Additional information is available by calling the Wayne County Health Department, 467-3300. Health department hours are 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. weekdays.

MSU also adding alcohol free living

By Pat Murphy
staff writer

About 800 students at Michigan State University have signed up for alcohol-free living quarters this fall, the first time such an option became available.

By making the option available, MSU became the last of the state's 14 public colleges and universities with dormitories to give students some choice about the lifestyle of the people with whom they live.

The idea of offering substance free residence halls came about several years ago, according to one of its advocates.

"We wanted to giving students a choice," said state Rep. David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield who saw the option as a means of aiding students who don't drink.

He, U.S. District Judge Bernard Friedman and others insisted such living arrangements would reduce peer pressure to smoke, drink or do drugs.

The response was gratifying, Honigman said, with most state schools responding. Oakland University, the University of Michigan and Eastern Michigan University led the way.

MSU, THE STATE'S largest university with more than 42,000, was the notable exception.

The university always demanded students abide by state drinking laws and always emphasized education about alcohol and drug abuse, said Mary N. Hass, MSU director of university housing projects. "And we've had no-smoking residence halls for years."

Part of the reason was opposition from students themselves, according to James D. Studer, assistant vice president for student affairs and services.

Students were concerned parents would insist on a controlled living environment for their youngsters, rather than letting them decide for themselves, Studer said in March.

However, when MSU found that students wanted an alcohol-free option.

Students were very much involved in MSU's decision to offer alcohol-free living quarters this term, said Haas.

AN UNUSUAL FEVER CAUSED BY RHEUMATOID ARTHRITIS
If you have rheumatoid arthritis, you have more than enough woes. The condition, besides causing your joints to ache, can be the source of pneumonia-like chest pain, and is associated with numbness of the hands and feet.
There is another little known complication that you should be aware of: the sudden onset of high fever and an encompassing stiffness of your joints that can render you nearly helpless.
The fever may be as high as 104 degrees; the stiffness may be so profound that you can hardly walk from your kitchen to your bed between the onset of the attack and its settling into your joints.
A physician unaccustomed to treating rheumatoid arthritis usually believes you have a joint infection. The doctor will order you into the hospital and immediately begin intravenous antibiotics.
Medical experience indicates that no infection is responsible for this attack; hence antibiotics are of little help. The treatment of choice is cortisone injection into the joints that hurt the most, followed by oral cortisone for 5 days to 2 weeks. Some individuals need to be on low doses of cortistone thereafter to fend off a repeat episode.
The cause for this unusual effect of rheumatoid arthritis is unknown, but the treatment is specific and effective.

To the editor:

In response to your opinion about the veal protest:

The animal rights activists, from what I understand, were more accurately handing out leaflets to inform people of the manner in which some veal calves are raised. Educating people about a particular inhumane process is hardly "trivializing the issue." Also, only one veal crate was displayed.

Animal rights philosophy does not contend that animals should "live a life similar to humans." Instead, animal rights advocates generally speak of animals being able to live their lives without exploitation by humans. Veal crates deny a calf a natural mother/offspring rearing.

Your conclusion that animal rights activists worry more about animal suffering than a starving third world is incorrect. Most activists I know are active in several issues. Animal rights is just one of them. Also, animal rights activists are usually vegetarians which is a powerful statement that addresses world hunger. It takes sixteen pounds of grain and soybeans to produce one pound of feedlot beef.

You state your concern is human health. If so, again, the diet espoused by animal rights activists should be focused on. Vegetarian diets have been praised for their health benefits in countless studies. The book "Diet for a New America" can provide references.

Your commentary suggests that extending more rights to animals implies a lesser value is placed on human life. My view is that there is not a fixed quantity of rights in the universe, that is, if one party gains some rights then another party must lose some rights. Instead, the rights of all sentient creatures are an expanding sphere where everyone benefits from an expanded social consciousness.

I do not believe that animal rights activists give animals human qualities or view them as cartoon characters. Instead, again, they believe that animals should be able to live their lives without human exploitation.

You missed the whole point of what some of our ancestors struggled for in a farming existence. Animals were an asset consumed only sparingly, and, further, were raised in much more humane way, as opposed to the modern factory farms methods such as the veal crate.

I also question who is sane in regard to what is considered food. To consume the rotting flesh of a dead animal does seem especially sane to me. Consumption of grains, legumes, vegetables and fruits does seem sane, though. A dead deer on the side of the road fails to make my mouth water.

With our modern society's loss of our agricultural roots the act of slaughtering, bleeding and butchering your own animal for dinner would indeed be a shock. I think that the vegetarian alternative would have more adherents if these tasks were an individual's responsibility.

I think the sanity of a half million people sitting in the woods with rifles raised ready to kill during the opening days of hunting season is questionable. The sane people are those questioning such a practice given the number of fatalities and environmental (mis)management associated with hunting.

Regarding your allegation that all animal rights activists are insane or lunatics, Doris Day, Paul McCartney, Issac B. Singer, Casey Kasem and Christopher Reeve, to name a few, would beg to differ.

Jeff, I think that your ill-informed and poorly researched conclusion on animal issues and stereotyped view of activists is foolish. For someone in your position in the media, this is sad.

Parental consent a good law

To the editor:

I am very concerned about The Observer's editorial on Thursday, Sept. 20, regarding your disappointment in the passage of the parental consent for abortion law.

Seventy percent of people surveyed were in favor of this law because they have a responsibility: the health and well-being of their children. Whether we as parents claim to be pro-life or pro-choice, the real issue involved here is responsibility.

Let's not forget that abortion is surgery. Whether we believe it is the death of an unborn child or not, our young daughters are undergoing this surgery every day without our knowledge or permission.

Many times abortion involves the administering of prescription drugs, it also involves the dilation of their cervixes. Then a suction tube is inserted into the uterus and the "contents" are removed.

In a later pregnancy there are much more involved and complicated methods of terminating the pregnancy. There are complications that every parent should know about.

Come on, parents, let's show our kids we love them!

Thanks from preserve

To the editor:

On behalf of the Holliday Nature Preserve Association, I thank you for the feature article you did on us. I thought it was excellent, and all the comments I have heard echo that opinion.

Ralph Echtinaw certainly wrote an informative and witty article. Many have said the article was an enjoyable read. I, personally, am pleased that Ralph used a couple of my better quotes. Jim's photos were very representative of what there is to see in the preserve. The map was the most vital piece of information we needed to get to the public. Now more people will come on our tours, or just enjoy the preserve on their own.

The article has already generated requests for tours from several school teachers and Boy Scout leaders. You have not only done a good deed for the HNPA, but for the community as well. We'll enjoy the increased attendance, and they'll enjoy the Holliday Forest and Wildlife Preserve. Thank you.

William Craig,
Chairman HNPA

Animal rights fanatics want to turn the world on its ear

Jeff Counts

They're naive do-gooders with the analytical skills of a chicken and couldn't think their way out of a paper bag. They feel sorry for animals, but have no idea what would happen to our society if their ideas were to be adopted.

The folks who call themselves animal rights activists come on as warm, fuzzy types who just want to see animals treated nicely. They want cows to be allowed to frolic in a field living some sort of life out of a Walt Disney movie.

Their message sounds nice on the surface, but let's face it, they're trying to change the way we live. They aren't out protesting at events in Plymouth and Canton just to try convincing us that veal could be raised more humanely, they're out to change laws.

THEY WON'T BE content until they have banned hunting and fishing and turned us into vegetarians. They're a mutant strain of puritans who want to ban meat eating simply because they don't like it. It makes me wonder where it would stop. Will there eventually be vegetable rights?

I don't even like to call them animals rights actlyists, but we in the media are forced by convention to use such terms. To me they're just plain nuts.

They're naive do-gooders with the analytical skills of a chicken and couldn't think their way out of a paper bag. They feel sorry for animals, but have no idea what would happen to our society if their ideas were to be adopted.

If we were to adopt those ideas, there would be no animals used for medical research. What they do to animals in a lab isn't pretty. But if it helps to find a cure for AIDS or some other disease that afflicts humans, then it's worth it.

In third world countries where animals are used for farm work, folks would probably have to stop because that would be a violation of an oxen's rights. Then the people in the country wouldn't be able to raise food.

They also claim we should all be vegetarians because it's a so-called powerful statement about world hunger.

THEIR SO-CALLED stance on world hunger is so naive that it's funny. The problems of world hunger are human ones, not a problem with resources. Corrupt governments in third world countries use food as a club to keep people in line, and all this happens while farmers in American stockpile tons upon tons of grain in elevators. In Russia crops of potatoes rot in fields because the government can't figure out how to get them to market.

We aren't starving anyone by feeding grain to animals as the animal nuts would have us believe.

I first noticed this version of insanity several years ago when working at a newspaper in central Michigan. A group of local doctors asked the county to borrow cats from the county animal shelter.

The doctors' wanted to use them to practice a medical technique used to save newborn children from choking. The doctors' plan was to sedate the cats, practice the techniques and return the cats to the shelter unharmed.

It sounded fine. I believe that the lives of all the cats in the world aren't worth the life of one baby. I figured that if a few cats didn't make it, there wouldn't be much harm.

But the local cat nuts showed up at the county commission meeting and convinced the commission to reject the plan.

It was insane, especially when the county animal shelter was known to gas stray cats. I've often wondered if any babies died in that community as a result of that incident.

IT WORRIES ME THAT these animal nuts are gaining credibility. In California there's talk of banning hunting and fishing. And the animal nuts are also trying to push a bill of rights for animals. That one makes me shudder.

Could you imagine an argument before the Supreme Court about the rights of a chicken? And taking into consideration what the courts have done to disrupt human affairs, I hate to think of them messing with our food supply. I'm certain that if anybody could turn a chicken into a turkey, a court could.

The animal nuts don't acknowledge there are laws protecting animals. Species are protected from hunting, people can be charged with cruelty to animals and fishing and hunting laws govern those sports.

So, why is a bill of rights for animals needed where there's legislation on that can either be strengthened or added to? My conclusion is that the animal folks want fish and animals treated as humans under the legal system.

The animal nuts claim there is no fixed quantity of rights that are doled out on a portion basis. That's very poetic. But it's naive. The legal system is designed to deal with humans and is supported by taxpayers. To add animal rights to that stew would either clog the courts with even more cases or force governments to spend more money for judges and lawyer fees. Either way, there would be an effect on humans.

BUT ADVOCATING SUCH outrageous changes the animal nuts do a disservice to their own cause. There are real animal rights issues. Whales shouldn't be slaughtered into extinction and baby seals shouldn't be beaten to death. Also, we should protect our environment so that all species of animals can live. It's part of our heritage.

We should use our financial resources to further their protection and not waste our time, money or breath on worrying about the rights of a chicken or cow to live a psychologically fulfilling life.

People who do that are confusing humans with animals. That makes them crazy.

Plymouth United Way is on road toward $500,000

By A. Giralt Bedford
staff writer

Instead of failing into a cycle of repeated offenses, some local first-time juvenile offenders and teenage substance abusers will lead happy, productive lives — thanks to the generosity of Plymouth-area residents.

The Plymouth Community United Way is conducting a fund-raiser, now through Oct. 31.

Growthworks is one of the agencies that will benefit from it. Among other services, Growthworks offers counseling for adolescents who are chemically dependent or first-time offenders.

"We would not be able to operate the programs and provide the range of services we do without the community funds," said Scott Levely, director for substance abuse services at Growthworks.

THROUGH INTENSIVE day treatments and after-care programs for young people who have undergone treatment at other centers, Growthworks helps some 30 to 60 teenagers a year.

A very important component of the programs is mandatory parent involvement, Levely said. Parents attend counseling sessions dealing with how to regain control of their children, how to set limits and how to understand children's reasoning.

The Youth Assistance Program helps some 100 children a year who have been arrested for relatively minor offenses, Levely said, such as shoplifting and loitering.

THEY ARE referred to the center by the juvenile court or the police. They meet one-on-one with a counselor and with a group of teenagers.

"They look at how they make choices, who their peers are and peer influence," Levely said.

Parents also meet with counselors in this program.

Fees are based on a payment scale.

"Because of the support we get from the Plymouth Community United Way we have been able to subsidize some of the people or pay on their abilities," Levely said.

THIS YEAR'S goal is $500,000, said campaign chairman Chris Boyle.

"It's going very well," Boyle said. "We've had a lot of positive response from the citizens of Plymouth. It's looking very likely that we'll achieve that goal."

Direct solicitation of individuals and campaigning outside stores and restaurants are some of the methods used to raise money, he said. Some companies also have internal fund drives.

Plymouth Community United Way is the umbrella organization of numerous local agencies, collecting money and distributing them to other organizations, such as the American Red Cross, the Detroit Area Council Boy Scouts of America and the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council.

ALTHOUGH THE Plymouth United Way helps finance organizations throughout southeastern Michigan, approximately 80 percent of the money raised in Plymouth stays in Plymouth, Boyle said.

Each agency makes a request to United Way stating how it spent the money last year, its plans for the coming year and the amount needed. The board of directors studies the requests and allocates the money.

The agency that received the largest amount of money last year — $94,000 — was Growthworks, followed by Plymouth Family Services ($90,000) and the Plymouth Salvation Army ($40,000).

"It is clearly a very worthwhile campaign," Boyle said.

New health program aimed at senior citizens

By A. Giralt Bedford
staff writer

A Canton home care firm is offering a program aimed at providing area senior citizens with free preventive medicine services.

Home Health Services Inc. (UHHS) is a local home care agency established in 1982 that offers at-home health care after a hospital stay, instead of it. It provides nursing care after surgery, running of a kidney dialysis machine and caring for chronically ill elderly people, among other services.

Now it's starting a community outreach program, according to Helen Levandovsky, its community relations director.

She said she has contacted several senior citizens complexes to inform them of a new service by which weekly or monthly clinics would be conducted at their locations.

Residents would receive free cholesterol, blood and sugar screenings as well as vision and foot checks, "which are quite important for the elderly," she said.

If during the service, the nurses notice a potential problem, they would refer that person to his or her own personal physician. If they don't have one, UHHS could recommend one.

So far, the response she has received has been positive. "The demand is much greater than I ever thought it would be," Levandovski said.

There would not be any fees charged to the residents nor to the senior citizens complexes.

Why does the cookie crumble?

With the onslaught of school comes school lunches, and especially at the beginning of the school year, moms (and some dads) get roped into joining the great cookie brigade. You might get asked to make cookies for the school open house, Brownies or Boy Scouts, Indian Guides or field trips.

Unfortunately, most folks don't have a clue as to what makes a cookie crumble. Americans love to eat cookies and most love to make them, but all too often their ideas about why one cookie is crisp and another dry are pretty half baked. It's because of the dough.

Basically, cookie dough is a combination of fat, sugar, flour, leavening and moisture, such as egg. Changing the proportion of any basic ingredient also changes the cookie's character. Little variations make the difference between a great chocolate chip and a mediocre one.

All doughs begin with the addition of a fat. This might be butter, margarine, solid shortening or lard. Butter creates the finest flavor but it also has a tendency to make the cookies bleed and spread out. Margarine helps hold the cookie's shape. Therefore, the best combination is half butter, half margarine. Avoid using whipped butter or diet fats because they contain too high a concentration of water.

SUGAR NOT ONLY sweetens the dough but it also makes the cookies tender. Most cookies call for granulated sugar, but light or dark brown sugar can be substituted in most cases. Brown sugars give the cookies a richer flavor and a more moist texture. Honey and molasses can be substituted for a chewier cookie but remember to lower the dry ingredients to substitute for the added moisture. Again, the best cookies use combinations of half granulated sugar and half brown sugar.

When it comes to using eggs, the protein in eggs is what binds the dough together while the moisture in the eggs adds liquid. There are no ifs, ands or buts about this one — use only the freshest, Grade A Large eggs for the best results. Room temperature eggs are best because they blend in easier.

In most cookie recipes, baking powder or baking soda will provide fluffiness. Without this leavening, the cookies would be dry and hard instead of light and flaky. Adding leavening is another way of incorporating air into the dough. Baking powder and soda contain an alkaline and an acid that react when wet. This reaction forms carbon dioxide, a gas which will expand in a hot oven and fills the cookie with tiny air pockets. The pocket remains after the cookie is baked, creating light, tender cookies. Double-acting baking powder is the most common leavening and will give the best results.

Flour is the foundation of the cookie, but the flavor of flour should never be apparent when tasting the finished product. Cookies with too much flour are pasty and tough. Most recipes call for using an all-purpose flour, which is a mixture of hard and soft flour. Some recipes calling for whole wheat or other grain flours offer a more nutritious cookie with a nuttier taste. Even cookies calling for all-whole-wheat flour should contain some amount of all-purpose flour for best results.

Cake flour is best when cookies call for lots of handling, such as those formed by pressing or rolling the dough. Regardless of the type used, flour should be added at the last minute and mixed as little as possible for optimum results.

THE USE OF flavorings can make or break a cookie. For best results, use extracts instead of flavors which leave a more intense flavor. How much is a matter of preference.

Fig tree gets new lease on life

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

COME LATE OCTOBER, Mike Soranno, 72, will participate in a ritual he has practiced annually for half a century.

Assisted by a son, a son-in-law or possibly a brother-in-law, he will loosen earth around the roots of 10 sturdy fig trees growing in the small backyard of his Dearborn Heights home, bend the trunks and bury the trees, protecting them from Michigan's harsh winter and ensuring healthly growth again next spring.

And for the first time next spring, Soranno's son Michael intends to take a cutting from one of his father's trees and plant it in the neat yard of his Livonia home, ensuring a continuation of the elder Soranno's unique method of fig harvesting in a climate totally unsuited to the fragile trees.

By his own admittance, the younger Soranno is no gardener. "I don't have the love for it. My father has."

But, "He's getting up in years. It's his legacy and I want to make sure at least one of his trees survives," Michael said, explaining why he intends to nurture a second-generation orchard in his own yard.

THE ELDER SORANNO'S love affair with figs — succulent, sweet fruit fit for the gods — has its origins in Bari, Italy, a southern region, noted for lush growth and juicy produce, where he was born.

As a child, Mike partook of figs fresh from the tree and warmed by the sun, turned sugary from long storage in large crocks or roasted and delicately stuffed with crunchy almonds.

"My mother wrapped figs in a napkin. I carried them to school in my pocket for lunch," he said in recalling a simple childhood long past.

Such memories abruptly ended when, as a lad of 12 years, Mike joined his father and an older brother in the United States. It would be eight long years before he saw his mother again.

It was on a visit with his brother to the home of a sweetheart in Detroit that Mike first saw someone bury a fig tree. "Her father needed to bury his trees. I told him I'd help. It was my first experience."

In the more than 50 years since, Mike has tailored his own method through trial and error. "I know what works best."

The trees are planted some eight feet apart. After leaves drop in the fall and before the first hard freeze of winter, a wide, deep trench is dug and partially filled with dried leaves covered with cardboard.

Earth is dug from around the root base; the small, outer roots loosened and cut, and the tap root left intact. The tree is then bent earthward and covered with cardboard, a generous heaping of leaves and earth, forming a mound reflective of a new grave.

The tree is buried until spring, when the fear of frost has passed.

"IT REQUIRES A LOT of patience. You have to love it," said Carmela, Mike's wife of 49 years. She and daughter Jean, the couple's eldest child, adore figs. Michael and his two brothers are indifferent to them, but Michael's daughter Leslie, 13, loves them.

Special figs are set aside for her. This summer, Mike had a basket of prized fruit delivered to the girl in Traverse City. They had ripened while she was attending a camp for music and the arts.

"The fig is very sustaining. Very nourishing. It was the first fruit given to Adam and Eve, according to the Bible," Mike mused. "I thought it was the apple," Michael said with a laugh.

Mike's small orchard reflects his history.

An Eggplant Fig, fica melenzana in Italian, was started from a cutting carried here by Mike years before, from Gizzeria in Italy, his wife's hometown. The tree bears an elongated, deep purple fruit and is the first to ripen each spring.

The Bride Fig, fica sponsina, also represents the old country. Shortly after his marriage, Mike planted a cutting culled from a tree in Dearborn that had been started years ago by an old Italian woman who used to sell her fruit from the roadside.

Sky Blue and Brown Turkey varieties, each bearing brown-hued fruit, and the Magnolia Fig that bears a light purple fruit are American varities, purchased by Mike in Florida where fig trees flourish in warm, humid temperatures.

Flavor of Japan

It's in evidence at Akasaka restaurant

Even if the thought of sushi leaves you cold, that's no reason to ignore Japanese food. It doesn't take a connoisseur to appreciate the extraordinary flavor in Japanese dishes.

Japanese cooking seems to seal in the flavors of meat, chicken and seafood as they are cooked quickly over high temperatures. Consequently, a simple chicken dish becomes extraordinary as the meat itself retains its moisture and can be dipped in various sauces, from a sweet teriyaki to a spicy sauce.

So we found it at Akasaka restaurant in Livonia. This small restaurant in Laurel Commons, a strip center that also includes a Japanese grocery and a Japanese bookstore, is a delight. Just two years old, it is simply decorated with beautiful blond wood throughout, comfortable and quiet. And it must be genuine because we found ourselves among the few non-Japanese diners in a nearly full house.

The restaurant has a few tatami, rooms where guests shed their shoes and sit at benches surrounding low tables. Two other small, spare rooms provide seating at tables. Women wearing traditional Japanese garb wait on tables, and they appear adept at communicating in both Japanese and English.

THE RESTAURANT'S tempura dishes are excellent, particularly the shrimp tempura in which the breading was almost spider-web fine and the shrimp were large and succulent. The tempura vegetables are equally tasty, particularly the carrots and eggplant. Both were accompanied by a sauce with a mild soy and ginger taste, and daikon, thinly sliced white radishes that added to the sauce for more flavor.

Also superb was the broiled salmon, a thick cut of fish that was cooked through but not overdone. We also were pleased with the beef teriyaki.

Novices can get a good introduction to Japanese dining through Akasaka's combination dinners ($16.95). Guests may choose two entrees from shrimp tempura, salmon, chicken teriyaki or beef teriyaki. The dinner comes with miso soup, a flavorful soybean paste soup, and a fresh garden salad, featuring romaine lettuce, cucumber and tomato.

For those more familiar with Japanese dining, there are a few more adventuresome dishes, such as unaju (broiled eel) — as well as an assortment of sushi (seasoned rice with fresh seafood) and sashimi (artistically sliced fresh, and often raw, seafood). Although sea urchin is reportedly the rage in Japan, the only entree we noticed of sea urchin was unizosui, a soup.

Because of our inexperience with Japanese dining, we could have used a little more assistance from our waitress, but she appeared preoccupied and wasn't helpful. We were confused when our salads came first, then our appetizer and then our main entree and soup.

Still, we overcame our awkwardness with chopsticks and enjoyed our meals throughly — regardless of the order in which the food came.

California vintage marks 50th year

Today is a historic day in the California wine industry. Oct. 1, 1990, marks official release of the 1986 Beaulieu Vineyards Georges de Latour Private Reserve Cabernet Sauvignon — the 50th vintage of a wine first produced in 1936. It is the original California "private reserve."

In the youthful California wine industry, it is unusual to hear a winery boasting a 90-year history, or a 50-year track record for a single wine style, but Beaulieu Vineyards can do both.

The Georges de Latour Private Reserve Cabernet Sauvignon is a blend of selected cabernet lots from Beaulieu Vineyards No. 1 and 2," contends Beaulieu Vineyard's president Anthony Bell. "Each tank of fermenting, free-run cabernet (no press wine is ever used) is evaluated daily. The selected lots then go to large redwood tanks to complete malolactic fermentation. Following this, the wine is lightly clarified and cold stablized before spending 30 months in a mixture of new to 15-year-old American oak barrels. The tannins are softened with a light egg white fining and the wine receives one full year bottle age prior to release."

"We use oak only as a spice in the Beaulieu Vineyards Private Reserve," explains winemaker Joel Aiken. "We do not want it to overpower the wine. The intense concentration, characteristic of the vine-yards, comes through every year."

ALTHOUGH MANY California producers insist on using French oak barrels for aging cabernet sauvignon, it is mature American oak that gives the Beaulieu Vineyards Private Reserve its delicate cedary signature. One of the few truly collectible California cabernets, the Beaulieu Vineyards Private Reserve is noted for early approachability as well as longevity.

'We use oak only as a spice in the Beaulieu Vineyards Private Reserve.'

— Joel Aiken winemaker

WINE SELECTION OF THE WEEK

1986 Beaulieu Vineyards Georges de Latour Private Reserve Cabernet Sauvignon ($35). Intense oak and cedar aromas with blackberry and cassis. Depthful, complex and extracted black cherry and black currant flavors. Lengthy, balanced finish with developed fruit and tight, lean structure. It is packaged in six-bottle cases with a special capsule, tapered bottles and a reproduction of the original 1936 label. Unfortunately, 1986 yielded only one-half normal production so it will be a challenge to find. But a wise man once said, "No pain, no gain."

The wine's success can be attributed to the soil and location of the vineyards that produce small, intensely flavored berries. As the vineyards age, the vines are replanted in small blocks with cuttings that have been selected, by clonal trials, from the best parts of the exisiting vineyards.

Modern cellar methods and vineyard techniques help Aiken to retain a wine style that has proven its age-worthiness over the years.

Georges de Latour came from France to found Beaulieu Vineyards in 1900. Beaulieu Vineyard No. 1 and No. 2 were purchased by him. They are located on what is now commonly called the "Rutherford Bench," situated near the original Beaulieu property in Rutherford, Calif.

Nearly four decades after establishing Beaulieu Vineyards, Latour raised a glass of his 1936 Cabernet Sauvignon and said, "This is the wine I have been trying to make all my life." That wine, which received a gold medal and the sweepstakes award in the 1939 San Francisco Fair, was named the Georges de Latour Private Reserve following his death.

THE YEAR 1982 was an unusual one for the Soranno family. Mike's fig trees did not get buried until Christmas Eve, late by all standards and especially Mike's. He was in the hospital, recovering from major, life-threatening surgery, and unable to attend to the task.

At their mother's request, Mike's sons and daughter attended to the chore during holiday festivities.

"We must have had a mild winter," Carmela said, still marveling that the trees did not freeze.

The trees survived and Mike fully recovered from his illness, an unusual and special year, indeed, for the Sorannos.

"I plan to be growing figs until the day I die," Mike now says, proudly plucking one for the visitor to taste.

Recipes from "The Mediterranean Kitchen" by Joyce Goldstein.

BAKED FIG COMPOTE
12 purple figs
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup water

GRAND MARNIER SAUCE
½ cup heavy cream
3 tablespoons confectioner's sugar
¼ cup Grand Marnier
½ cup sour cream
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
Fresh raspberries for garnish

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Prick each fig with a fork in a few places and place them in a single layer standing on end in a shallow baking dish. Sprinkle with the sugar and pour over the water. Bake, basting often with the liquid, until puffed and tender, 25 to 35 minutes.

Meanwhile, prepare the sauce. Whip the cream to soft peaks. Beat in the sugar and Grand Mariner. Then fold in the sour cream.

Dust the hot figs with the spices and serve hot with the pan juices and sauce. Garnish with raspberries.

CATALAN-STYLE GRILLED QUAIL STUFFED WITH FIGS

8 boneless quail
8 fresh large black or Adriatic figs, or 16 dried Black Mission figs, soaked 1 hour in ¼ cup brandy and hot water to cover 16 grape leaves, rinsed, patted dry and stems removed 8 long thin strips pancetta (about 4 ounces)
8 to 12 small leeks
Salt
16 small red potatoes
½ cup olive oil
Freshly ground pepper
8 chorizo links (about 4 ounces each)

Stuff each quail with a fresh fig or 2 dried figs. There is no need to skewer the quail closed. Wrap each quail in 2 grape leaves, then again in a strip of pancetta. The quail can be stuffed and wrapped well ahead of time and refrigerated up to 1 day.

Trim the root end and most of the green tops from the leeks, leaving the root end intact. Split the leeks down the middle but do not cut entirely through the root ends. Rinse the leeks very well in a sink full of water to remove any sand. Blanch in a large pot of simmering salted water until tender, 5 to 8 minutes. When you squeeze the root end, it should crack a bit. Refresh in cold water and drain well.

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Rub the potatoes with 2 to 3 tablespoons olive oil. Place them on a baking sheet and sprinkle lightly with salt and pepper. Bake until tender, about 25 to 35 minutes. Cut in half and set aside.

Let the quail and chorizo warm to room temperature. Heat the broiler or grill. Brush the wrapped quail with olive oil and sprinkle lightly with pepper.

Grill the sausage, turning occasionally, 7 to 8 minutes. Grill the quail, turning as needed, until medium rare to medium, about 5 minutes. Brush the leeks and potatoes with oil and grill until heated through and marked, about 2 minutes each side.

Divide the quail, sausages and vegetables among 4 serving plates.

Salads zingier from fresh choices

AP — Fresh ingredients add special zest to salads.

- For eye appeal, add deep dark greens such as spinach or watercress and colorful radicchio or ruby lettuce to the salad bowl.
- Use tender-crisp leftover vegetables such as broccoli, cauliflower or beans for garnish.
- If using fresh herbs in a salad dressing, reserve a few sprigs to garnish the salad.
- Serve warm pasta tossed with raw, chopped vegetables and shredded mozzarella.
- Blend slices of mozzarella or ricotta with vegetables or herbs for a refreshing summer main course.

LIGHT MOZZARELLA, TOMATO AND AVOCADO SALAD
½ cup olive oil
2 tablespoons white-wine vinegar
1 small garlic clove, minced
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon ground black pepper
½ cup finely chopped fresh basil
One 12-ounce package light mozzarella, cut into ¼-inch slices
2 medium-sized ripe tomatoes, sliced ¼-inch thick
1 small ripe avocado, peeled and sliced ¾-inch thick
One-half small red onion, thinly sliced and separated into rings

In small bowl, whisk together olive oil, vinegar, garlic, salt and pepper. Stir in basil.

On large serving platter, alternate slices of mozzarella, tomato and avocado. Top with onion rings. Just before serving, drizzle on dressing. Makes 6 servings.

Note: To slice tomatoes, use a long-handled, serrated knife. For slicing mozzarella, use the same knife and chill the cheese before slicing.

HERBED RICOTTA SALAD
One 15-ounce container light ricotta
1 teaspoon finely grated lemon peel
2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley
2 tablespoons finely chopped chives or green onion
½ teaspoon dried tarragon
3 tablespoons olive oil
1½ tablespoons fresh lemon juice
¼ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon ground black pepper
6 cups salad greens, such as spinach, romaine, radicchio, arugula or watercress, trimmed and torn into bite-size pieces

In medium bowl, combine ricotta, lemon peel, parsley, chives and tarragon. Line four 4-ounce custard cups with plastic wrap. Pack ricotta mixture into cups. Cover and chill 1 hour or overnight.

To prepare dressing, in small bowl, whisk together oil, lemon juice, salt and pepper. Toss salad greens with dressing and divide onto four chilled plates. Unmold ricotta rounds into center of salad and serve immediately. Makes 4 servings.

MOZZARELLA GARDEN SALAD
1 pound ditalini (elbow-shaped pasta)
½ cup olive oil
One 12-ounce package shredded mozzarella
½ teaspoon salt
Ground black pepper to taste
3 large ripe tomatoes, seeded and diced
¼ cup finely chopped fresh basil
1 small garlic clove, crushed

In large pot of boiling salted water, cook pasta until firm yet tender to the bite; drain well.

Place pasta in large bowl and toss with olive oil, mozzarella, salt and pepper. Stir in remaining ingredients and serve immediately. Makes 6 servings.

Note: Additional raw or leftover, tender-crisp vegetables may be added as desired.

Upside-Down Pizza is lower in fat, calories

Eleanor and Ray Heald

JIM RIDER/staff photographer

Carol Beatty Witte is a full-time homemaker who never has time to be bored. Upside-Down Pizza (foreground) is served with 6-Cup Ambrosia and Oatmeal Brownies.

Recently I was talking with a friend whose children have grown up and left home. She was telling me how much she is enjoying this stage of her life and how organized her house is now.

We laughed together when she related to me that just the other day she actually felt bored. "Bored!" I cried out. "Yes, bored," she replied, as she was all caught up on her housework and couldn't quite decide what she wanted to do next. She seemed to be delighted to experience this new sensation. She had certainly logged her time in raising her own children.

At this point, having everything done, and, furthermore, having it stay that way, still seems very far off, to me. But perhaps that is one of the "sweet" parts of the bittersweet reality of raising children, then having them leave and go off on their own path of life.

For now, this week's Winner Dinner Winner, Carol Witte of Rochester Hills, has no room in her vocabulary for the word "bored." With two young children to care for, her life is a busy one. She volunteers her time at her church as well as for the Crisis Pregnancy Center of Rochester, a Pro-Life organization that provides help and support to single moms and teens.

WITTE AND HER husband opened their home and housed two different young women throughout their pregnancies, and found each experience to be very rewarding. Because her children are still young, Witte works for the Crisis Pregnancy Center at home, washing and storing the baby clothes which are donated to the Center and then given to mothers who need them.

Originally from Pennsylvania, Witte met her husband at the General Motors Institute in Flint, where she earned a degree in industrial engineering. Before her children were born, she worked as a computer simulation engineer but now is enjoying being a full-time homemaker. Her recipe for Upside-Down Pizza is a tasty variation of almost every child's favorite meal but is much lower in fat and calories than the original.

Served with Six-Cup Ambrosia Salad, carrots and celery sticks and delicious oatmeal brownies, this is one dinner that will satisfy your family's hungry appetites.

Thank you, Carol Witte, for sharing your recipes with us and congratulations on being this week's Winner Dinner Winner. As a last note, please keep those recipes coming in. I'm especially looking for hearty stew recipes made with either chicken, veal or seafood.

Submit your recipes, to be considered for publication, to: Winner Dinner, P.O. Box 3503, Birmingham 48012. All submissions become the property of the publisher. Each week's winner receives an apron with the words' Winner Dinner Winner on it.

UPSIDE-DOWN PIZZA

This recipe offers a low-fat version of pizza that is quick and easy to make. It can be prepared in advance up to the point where it has to be baked, which should be done just prior to serving.

2 teaspoons vegetable oil, divided
10 ounces ground turkey
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup plus 1 tablespoon flour, divided
1 cup tomato sauce
¼ teaspoon basil leaves
¼ teaspoon fennel seed
⅛ teaspoon oregano
1 egg
3 ounces mozzarella cheese, shredded
½ cup skim milk
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon Parmesan cheese

Heat ½ teaspoon oil in skillet; add turkey and onion. Using back of wooden spoon, crumble meat and cook, stirring occasionally, until onion is tender and turkey is no longer pink. Sprinkle mixture with 1 tablespoon flour and stir quickly to combine. Cook, stirring constantly, for 1 minute. Gradually stir in tomato sauce. Add basil, fennel and oregano and bring to a boil. Reduce heat and cook, stirring frequently, for 1 minute.

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Spray a 3-quart casserole pan with non-stick cooking spray and put the turkey mixture in the pan. Sprinkle with the mozzarella cheese.

In a small mixing bowl, using an electric mixer, beat the egg. Add ½ cup flour and 1½ teaspoon oil along with milk and salt. Continue beating until mixture is smooth. Pour the batter into the casserole pan, over the turkey mixture and cheese. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Bake until it is puffed and golden, 25-30 minutes.

SIX-CUP AMBROSIA

Although this salad is best when it has had a few hours to absorb the flavors, it can be assembled and served right away.

Using "no-sugar added" cans of fruit, combine all ingredients and refrigerate until serving.

1 can mandarin oranges, 11-ounce size, drained
1 can pineapple chunks, 15-ounce size, drained
1 cup miniature marshmallows
1 cup shredded coconut
1 container plain yogurt, 8-ounce size
1 cup seedless grapes

CARROTS AND CELERY STICKS

Pare carrots and cut into sticks. Clean celery stalks and cut into sticks. Serve with seasoned salt, if desired.

OATMEAL BROWNIES

Crust:
2½ cup rolled oats
1 cup flaked coconut
¾ cup packed light brown sugar
½ cup butter
½ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt
¾ cup melted margarine

Mix oats, coconut, sugar, soda and salt in bowl; stir in butter. Reserve ¾ cup of the mixture. Put oatmeal mixture in bottom of greased 13-by-9-by-2-inch baking pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 10 minutes. Cool for five minutes.

Brownies:
½ cup margarine
2 squares unsweetened chocolate, 1-ounce size
1 cup granulated sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
¾ cup all-purpose flour
½ cup oatmeal

In saucepan, melt butter and chocolate over low heat. Remove from heat. Stir in sugar. Blend in eggs, one at a time. Add vanilla. Stir in flour and oatmeal; mix well.

PEANUT BUTTER GOODIES
Makes about 7 dozen
½ cup butter
½ cup margarine
1 cup peanut butter
1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 cup granulated sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
3½ cups all purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
Granulated sugar

In a large bowl of an electric mixer, cream together butter, margarine, peanut butter, brown sugar and granulated sugar. Then beat in eggs and vanilla. In another bowl, stir together the dry ingredients and gradually add to the creamed mixture. Roll dough into 1-inch balls and place 2 inches apart on lightly greased baking sheets. Press balls down with fork tines dipped in granulated sugar. Bake at 375 degrees for 10-12 minutes or until golden brown. Let cool on baking sheets for 1 minute, then transfer to racks to finish cooling. Store in airtight containers.

OATMEAL CHEWIES
Makes 4½ dozen
½ cup butter
½ cup margarine
1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
¼ cup granulated sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup whole wheat flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ cup toasted wheat germ
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon salt
1½ cups rolled oats
1 cup chopped walnuts (optional)
Granulated sugar

In a large bowl of an electric mixer, cream together the butter, margarine, brown sugar and granulated sugar until creamy. Beat in eggs and vanilla. In another bowl, stir together the dry ingredients and gradually add to the creamed mixture. Cover and refrigerate until easy to handle, at least 2 hours or up to three days. For each cookie, shape about 1 tablespoon of dough into a ball. Place balls about 4 inches apart on a well-greased cookie sheet. Generously grease the bottom of a glass jar. For each cookie, dip glass jar into granulated sugar, then press the ball of dough with the jar to flatten about ¼ inch thick. Bake at 375 degrees for 5-6 minutes or until lightly browned. Let cool on baking sheets for 1 minute, transfer to racks to finish cooling. Store airtight.

Homegrown veggies are special

Here is a menu for a September meal that will be remembered all winter long.

This year the combination of sun and rain seems to have been just right to produce the best homegrown vegetables in years. Here is an opportunity to use several kinds of these vegetables in one delectable meal that is fit for entertaining the most important of guests and simple enough to prepare for an informal supper on the deck for just you and the family.

It is also economical since most of the ingredients can be found in your garden or purchased reasonably this time of the year from roadside stands or in the produce department of your favorite supermarket. So you can even afford to splurge on a small steak if you like. However, if you add sausage to the pasta sauce (see recipe below) you really don't need to.

I need not mention the nutritional value of these vegetables, nor the aphrodisiac qualities attributed to them, since, if you are a regular reader of this column, I'm sure you will already know that this meal will help to make those who eat it healthy, happy and romantic as well.

Properly prepared and served, each dish is a work of art, pleasing to all the senses. The colorful combination of vegetables looks terrific and smells divine. Tearing the fresh bread apart with your fingers and dipping it in the oil is a sensuous experience to the touch. The taste is a heavenly delight and the compliments you receive from those who eat it will fall sweetly on your ears.

I suggest you serve this meal on stoneware set on a bright cloth table cover, with real cloth napkins. Stick a candle in a wine bottle and adorn the table with flowers you picked yourself from the backyard or wild ones from some vacant lot.

Relax and enjoy your dinner. I guarantee those who eat it will remember the delightful experience long after summer has gone.

SEPTEMBER MENU
Green Gazpacho Soup
Pasta Augusta
Steak with Roasted Garlic Bulbs
Fresh Italian or French Bread served with herbed olive oil for dipping
Watermelon Ade
Tea or Coffee
Chocolate Zucchini Cake

GREEN GAZPACHO SOUP
1 fennel bulb (finely chopped)
One 12-inch English cucumber (peeled and cut up)
½ cup fresh parsley (finely chopped)
2 sticks celery (finely chopped)
1 small sweet onion (finely chopped)
2 cloves garlic
1 green bell pepper (finely chopped)
⅓ cup olive oil (or other vegetable oil if you prefer)
Juice of ½ lemon
2 cups chicken stock

Mix together in a food processor or blender and season to taste with: salt, pepper, oregano, dill and mixed Italian seasoning

Chill for several hours. Serve icy cold and garnish with any or all of the following: Thinly sliced black olives, croutons, finely chopped pimento, sour cream or grated Parmesan cheese.

PASTA AUGUSTA
(so called because all the ingredients are ripe and ready in late August and early September)

In a large, heavy, iron skillet heat:
2 tablespoons olive oil (or vegetable oil)

Add the following vegetables and lightly saute — DO NOT OVERCOOK:

1 onion, coarsely chopped
2 small or 1 large zucchini, cut into bite-size pieces
1 cup sliced mushrooms (if they are the small button kind leave whole)
1 green pepper, coarsely chopped
2 cups raw spinach (torn into pieces and the stems removed)
3-4 medium size tomatoes cut into wedges (adjust the number depending on the kind of tomatoes. Example: 1 large beefsteak or 6-7 little Italian pear-shaped ones)

Optional:
1 pound kielbasa cut into bite-size round slices

Season to taste with garlic powder, seasoned salt, pepper, basil and oregano.

Arrange cooked spagetti (1 pound) on a platter and top with the vegetable mixture, spooning the juice evenly over the pasta. The fresh green spinach and bright red tomatoes make this a beautiful dish. Serve with grated Parmesan or Romano cheese.

WATERMELON ADE

Combine equal parts of prepared lemonade and fresh watermelon juice. Chill well and serve in tall glasses with long straws. (If you're not on a salt-free diet, add a dash of salt.)

ROASTED GARLIC

Allow 1 whole garlic bulb for each person.

Slice off the top of the bulb, exposing all of the cloves. Place root side down on a baking plate or pan. Brush well with olive oil or melted butter. Roast in 375 degree oven until tender and lightly browned. (These can also be prepared in a hot greased skillet for a minute or so after they are fully cooked.)

Place each garlic on a sprig of fennel leaf to garnish individual plates or arrange them on your meat platter along with your favorite small steaks.

Provide each diner with a seafood fork with which to remove the individual cloves and eat them.

FRENCH OR ITALIAN BREAD WITH HERBED OLIVE OIL

Season your olive oil with oregano and mixed Italian spices. Fennel is also nice and you may add a crushed clove of garlic if you like. Place in a small bowl.

Serve unsliced loaves of fresh French or Italian bread to be torn apart at the table and dipped into the oil instead of using butter.

CHOCOLATE ZUCCHINI CAKE

½ cup white sugar
1 cup brown sugar
¼ cup butter or margarine (stick, not whipped) (or butter-flavored Crisco)
¾ cup vegetable oil
3 eggs
½ cup sour milk (you may add 1 teaspoon vinegar to sweet milk to sour it)
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups flour
¼ cup dry cocoa
2 teaspoons baking soda
½ teaspoon allspice
½ teaspoon cinnamon
1 ½ cup grated zucchini
½ cup diced zucchini
1 cup walnut meats
1 cup chocolate chips

Mix sugars, butter and oil together and cream until fluffy. And eggs, sour milk and vanilla and beat until smooth.

In another bowl, mix the flower, cocoa, baking soda, allspice and cinnamon together. Add this flour mixture to the sugar, shortening and egg mixture. Beat until smooth.

Fold in the zucchini, nut meats and chocolate chips — mix well.

Pour mixture into a greased and floured Bundt pan and bake at 325 degrees until it tests done (about 45 minutes to an hour).

Cool before removing from the pan. Cut into thick slices and serve.

Do not frost this cake. It's very rich and doesn't need it.

Grilled bread appetizer Italian style, so tasty

AP — Bruschetta is a simple appetizer for the grill.

All over Italy, grilled country bread topped with a mixture of chopped tomatoes and arugula is the most commonly served type of bruschetta. However, fresh basil leaves also can be used.

BRUSCHETTA
12 slices (each about ½-inch thick) Italian bread
2 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
1 cup chopped firm-ripe plum tomatoes
1 small clove garlic, pressed.
Salt and pepper to taste
12 fresh basil leaves

Grill or broil the bread on both sides until lightly browned. Meanwhile, combine the olive oil, tomatoes, garlic, salt and pepper in a small bowl; toss to blend. Arrange the toasted bread on a large platter or tray. Place a basil leaf on each piece of bread and top with a rounded teaspoon of the tomato mixture. Serve at once. Makes 6 servings.

GRILLED COUNTRY BREAD WITH TOMATOES AND ARUGULA
3 large red, ripe tomatos, blossom ends removed, diced
2 small bunches arugula, stems removed, coarsely chopped
Salt and pepper to taste
6 thick slices good-quality country bread
2 garlic cloves, peeled
Extra-virgin olive oil

In a small bowl mix together the tomatoes and the arugula. Season with salt and pepper to taste. Set aside. Grill or lightly toast bread. Rub with garlic cloves. Spoon tomato-arugula mixture over each slice of bread. Generously dizzle olive oil over the top. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Wayne County MADD celebrates 10th birthday

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

MADD, the organization that helped turn drunk driving from a minor concern into a major national issue, is celebrating its 10th birthday, and a party for the Wayne County chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Driving is scheduled Thursday in Livonia.

Lee and Sue Landes, founders of both the Wayne County and Michigan State chapters, will be recognized for their efforts in promoting MADD objectives.

The couple's son, Stephen, will attend the event. Another son, George, will not. He was killed nine years ago by a drunk driver, a tragedy that propelled the Landes into action.

Their efforts, combined with an estimated 2.8 million MADD supporters now working nationally (including 25,000 in Wayne County), equate a significant increase in public awareness about drinking and driving, preventative education and legislation aimed at regulating behavior and punishing offenders.

"We are not a prohabitionist organization, but we believe there must be consequences for drinking and driving," said Sandi Wolf, a Birmingham resident trained in substance abuse who directs activities for the Wayne County chapter from small offices in Livonia.

MICHIGAN MADD members are particularly jubilant with passage last week by the state legislature of tough, drunk driving legislation that allows for an automatic 30-day suspension of driving privileges and mandatory sentencing of 48 consecutive hours in jail or 10 days community service for a second conviction. The bill is now before the state Senate Judiciary Committee.

The measure also provides for "administrative" revocation of a driver's license at the time of arrest, empowering police to seize the license of any driver who refuses or fails a breath alcohol content or blood test.

"In MADD's first decade," according to information distributed by MADD's headquarters in Dallas, "more than 1,000 new anti-drunk driving laws were passed nationwide. The U.S. Congress also enacted several key bills to establish a uniform minimum drinking age of 21 and to provide federal incentive grants to assist states that get tough on drunk drivers."

The organization's strength, according to Wolf, is the result of a grass roots organization composed of victims and committed volunteers.

In addition to legislative action, MADD programs include public education and awareness through such things as victim impact panels. Members who have lost loved ones address public gatherings and substance abuse recovery groups, describing personal ordeals and showing graphic films.

Future efforts include increased protection of victims' rights, reducing traffic alcohol-related fatalities 20 percent by the year 2000 and a national reduction of illegal blood alcohol levels from .07 to .05 for impaired and from .10 to .08 for drunk driving.

"WE THINK IT'S happening," Wolf said, of changing attitudes toward drinking and driving, citing examples.

"We no longer laugh at drunks. Businessmen tell me there is less drinking at lunch. Restaurants are offering alternative drinks. Stadiums and arenas are no longer selling beer after the seventh inning or the third quarter. Hosts are more careful about guests getting home safely. More people are using cabs."

Lee Landes also said there are definite changes in attitude. "Designated drivers are a part of life. The red ribbon campaign (holiday awareness program) is fixed in our lives. And for the first time, youth is learning it's OK to say no."

And has MADD's message reached those who repeatedly drink and drive?

"I don't know," Wolf said. "With my background, I often ask that question. In the long run, the heavy, addictive, abusive user, I don't know if we can ever reach them.

"But we have to start somewhere."

Thursday's reception is 5-7 p.m. at the Detroit Golf Club, 17911 Hamilton Road, Detroit. It is open to the public. For more information, call 422-6233.

Roadside stands are still filled with harvest

Florine Mark

This time of year isn't the end of delicious fresh-from-the-garden produce. Many summer vegetables continue to grow throughout September and into October.

Roadside stands, produce departments and gardens overflow with late summer harvest. Juicy tomatoes, fresh potatoes and ears of just-picked corn are bound to inspire your cooking. Butternut and acorn squash, Michigan carrots and celery and glossy eggplants are also at their peak. These vegetables easily find their way into salads and soups to highlight your menu.

Vegetables are excellent sources of fiber, high in vitamins and contain almost no fat or sodium. Learn to love these nutrient-rich foods. Vegetables high in Vitamin A include carrots, greens and squash. Those high in Vitamin C include broccoli, potatoes, green peppers and tomatoes. To add a touch of zest to cooked vegetables, sprinkle with lemon juice or your favorite herbs instead of adding butter.

Vegetables are also terrific as a snack food. In fact, I often carry sliced, raw carrots in a Ziplock bag inside my purse for something healthy to crunch on — great for curbing your appetite, too.

If you're looking for an alternative to basic vegetable soup, try a creamy blend of autumn vegetables with Golden Soup.

Going "vegetarian" one night a week wouldn't hurt, either. Vegetables that combine with pasta or Garden Variety Pizza make for hearty, healthy entrees.

Fresh vegetables are vital to healthy eating. Don't miss out on the earthy essence of Michigan's end-of-summer harvest.

GARDEN VARIETY PIZZA
Makes 8 servings

2 packages of 8 crescent rolls
½ cup reduced-calorie salad dressing
½ cup low-fat yogurt (plain)
1 cup part-skim-milk ricotta cheese
1 package reduced-calorie ranch dressing mix
12 ounces cheddar cheese
6 cups vegetable of your choice
8 sliced ripe olives
Sprinkle of seasoning salt (optional)

Press crescent rolls into a jelly roll pan and bake at 375 degrees for 8 minutes. Cool. Mix together the yogurt, salad dressing, ricotta cheese and dressing mix. Spread mixture on the cooled crust. Top with thin slices of your favorite vegetables in layers. Top with a sprinkle of seasoning salt (optional), Cheddar cheese and 8 sliced ripe olives.

Each serving provides: 2 Bread Exchanges; 1 Fat Exchange; 2 Protein Exchanges; 1½ Vegetable Exchanges; 27 Optional Calories.

GOLDEN SOUP
Makes 2 Servings

1 tablespoon margarine
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup skim milk
½ cup beef bouillon
6 ounces diced cooked potatoes
½ cup sliced cooked carrots
1 stalk diced celery
1 small onion, minced
½ teaspoon parsley flakes
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
4 ounces American pasteurized processed cheese

Melt margarine in saucepan. Add flour and stir in milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture begins to boil and thicken. Stir in bouillon. Add remaining ingredients. Cook and stir until cheese melts. Divide evenly.

Each serving provides: 1 Bread Exchange; ½ Milk Exchange; 1½ Vegetable Exchanges; 2 Protein Exchanges; 1½ Fat Exchanges; 20 Optional Calories.

EGGPLANT-TOMATO MEDLEY
Makes four 1-cup serving each

1 tablespoon plus 1 teaspoon olive oil
4 cups cubed eggplant (1-inch cubes)
½ cup diced onion
2 garlic cloves, minced
2 cups canned Italian tomatoes (with liquid); drain and chop tomatoes, reserving liquid
1 cup chopped mushrooms
½ cup dry red table wine
1 tablespoon chopped fresh parsley
2 teaspoons chopped fresh basil
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper

In 3-quart saucepan heat oil; add eggplant, onion and remaining ingredients. Stirring occasionally, bring mixture to a boil. Reduce heat to low, cover, and let simmer, stirring occasionally, for 30 minutes.

Each Serving Provides: 3¾ Vegetables Exchanges; 1 Fat Exchange; 30 Calories Optional Exchange.

Per Serving: 124 cal, 3 g pro, 5 g fat, 14 g car, 79 mg cal, 476 mg sod, 0 mg chol.

Butternut and acorn squash, Michigan carrots and celery and glossy eggplants are also at their peak.

Strong finish sparks Salem

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Here's one way to rate a swim coach: Ask him (or her) to handicap a meet. A good, experienced coach will not only give you the winning team nine out of 10 times, but can come within a point or two of the spread.

An example — the Plymouth Salem-Plymouth Canton girls' meet Tuesday at Salem. Here's what the two respective coaches thought would happen.

Hooker Wellman, Canton: "I thought it would be about eight points."

Chuck Olson, Salem: "Before the meet, I figured we would win by 10."

Final score: Salem 98, Canton 88.

These guys are more than just accurate prognosticators, though. As emotional a meet as this one is, both know it doesn't really matter how well a team does in September. It's what they're doing in November that counts.

Still, swimming is more an exercise in conquering mental barriers than physical ones. So using the emotions released in a meet between cross-court (which is all that separates the two schools) rivals positively is of utmost importance.

"WE SWAM well," said Wellman after his team's loss. "We bettered most of our times. This meet brings out the best of both teams."

Then he added: "I think at the (Western Lakes Activities Association) meet we'll be much closer to them."

Olson wouldn't disagree with Wellman's league-meet prediction. He also wouldn't let the mental lift provided by the victory over Canton, Salem's first in four years, escape.

"We swam better than I thought we would," said Olson. "I don't want to go back through all the records, but I know our seniors have never won a dual meet against Canton.

"It's a big step for us. It's good for our confidence."

What was also uplifting for the Rocks was the lineup Olson used. "That," said Wellman, "was the most bizarre lineup I've ever seen Chuck use. It was great."

The biggest gamble was Candi Bosse. Olson had her swimming 100-yard butterfly and the 500 freestyle, with just one event — the 100 free — in between. Not much recovery time.

BUT BOSSE came through, winning the fly in 1:04.00 and finishing second to Canton's Pam Pritchard (winning time: 5:48.52) in the 500.

Bosse was also part of Salem's 200 medley relay team, with Kristin Stackpoole, Amy Austin and Mandi Ras, which finished first in 1:58.89 and made the state-meet qualifying cut.

The turning point in the meet was the 200 free relay. Entering the event, the score was knotted at 63-all through eight events. The race was close all the way and wasn't decided until the final five yards, when Salem's Nicole Bosse touched out Canton's Tami Santomauro.

The Rocks' quartet of Julie Hickey, Ras, Stephanie Long and Nicole Bosse won in 1:46.99; Canton's Jeni Cooper, Leslie Moore, Chris Lang and Santomauro were second in 1:47.14.

Canton's Chris Lang churned to a second-place finish in the 200-yard individual medley, but it was Salem that won the meet.

WHEN ASKED if that kind of finish had been part of his vision on the meet's outcome, Olson replied, "Well, I was very pleased with it, but, no, I hadn't planned it. Let's just say I was feeling a lot better after the 200 free relay."

No doubt. The Rocks never again trailed, taking firsts in the next two events (the 100 backstroke and 100 breaststroke). The 100 breast clinched the dual-meet victory — Amy Austin took first (1:14.24) and Amy Homan was second (1:17.04) for Salem.

Canton's Pritchard and Cooper and Salem's Stackpoole were top finishers, each collecting two individual wins. Pritchard added a first in the 200 free (2:07.12) to her 500 triumph; Cooper was best in the 50 (25.74) and 100 (58.03) free. Stackpoole got victories in the 200 individual medley (2:28.13) and 100 backstroke (1:05.80).

In diving, Canton's Becky Hoisington captured top honors (212.95 points).

The victory improved Salem's dual-meet mark to 4-1; Canton slipped to 1-2. Salem hosts Farmington while Canton travels to Livonia Franklin for 7 p.m. meets Thursday.

Wukie lifts Chiefs to win

football

Plymouth Canton senior quarterback Karl Wukie ran for two touchdowns and passed for another Friday as the Chiefs rolled to a 29-6 victory over host Livonia Churchill in a Western Lakes Activities Association football encounter.

Wukie rushed for 99 yards on six carries and also completed three-of-four passes for 85 yards and a touchdown.

Wukie connected with Brett Howell for a 35-yard touchdown in the first quarter. Running back Chris James capped the Chiefs' scoring with a touchdown run in the second quarter.

Churchill was held off the board until the fourth quarter when Mike Brooks scored on a 6-yard run. He finished the game with 46 yards rushing on 13 carries.

The Chiefs are 4-1 overall and 2-1 in the WLAA Western Division. Churchill is 0-5 overall and 0-3 in the division.

SALEM 35, STEVENSON 0: Plymouth Salem had little trouble beating visiting Livonia Stevenson Friday, thanks in large part to Leon Hister.

The Rocks improve to 4-2 overall and 2-1 in the WLAA Lakes Division. Stevenson falls to 3-2 overall and 1-2 in the division.

Hister, a senior tailback, scored four touchdowns on runs of 1, 2, 5 and 14 yards. He finished the game with 104 yards rushing on 21 carries.

Salem quarterback Chris Tebbin rushed for 107 yards on six carries. He also completed one-of-two passes for 11 yards and a touchdown. Tebbins hit Kevin Craggs with an 11-yard touchdown strike in the first quarter.

Stevenson quarterback Randy Micallef made good on seven-of-18 passes for 72 yards. He threw one interception.

North can't keep Salem from recording 6th win

According to Plymouth Salem golf coach Rick Wilson, the home course advantage means everything in golf. That's why Friday's 212-219 victory over host North Farmington was so satisfying for Wilson.

Salem hit the links at North's home course, Glenn Oaks Golf Club, and walked away with its sixth win of the season.

"This is a big win for us," Wilson said. "Its always hard to go and play on someone else's course and come away with a win. I don't think a lot of people understand how hard that is."

Brian Botwinski led the Salem attack with a 40.

Jason Behnke and Chad Edgar chipped in with 42, while Dave Weaver and Ray Alvarado scored 43 and 45 respectively.

"Hopefully we are getting the ball rolling," Wilson said. "I knew we wouldn't have spectacular scores, but we are consistent and hopefully that will be in our favor when the conference tournament rolls around."

Brian Botwinski fired a 40 to lead Salem in its win over North Farmington.

Rocks stay perfect in Lakes

cross country

The Plymouth Salem boys' cross country team cruised to a 22-39 victory Thursday over Farmington in a Western Lakes Activites Association encounter at Oakland Community College.

The Rocks improve their record to 2-1 overall and 2-0 in the Lakes division. Farmington is 2-2 overall and 1-1 in the division.

Farmington's Ben Goba won the race, posting a time of 16:36. He finished one minute in front of Salem's John Thomas, who took second in 17:36.

Other runners in the top 10 for Salem were: Mike Patterson, third in 17:51; Derek Cudini, fourth in 17:54; Steve Boudreau, sixth in 18:31; Jayson McDonald, seventh in 18:43; Andy Hellmers, eighth in 18:55; and Matt Erickson, ninth in 19:01.

Farmington had just two runners besides Goba in the top 10. Dave Clinard took fifth (18:09), while John Duff captured 10th (19:12).

SALEM EDGED Farmington 27-28 Thursday in a girls' meet at OCC.

Farmington (1-3, 0-2) boasted the top two finishers: Allison Davis in 21:29 and Jennifer Derwinski in 21:39.

Corey Gulkewicz paced Salem with a third-place finish in 21:41. Kelly Morante was fourth in 22:18 followed by Emily Farrell, fifth in 22:28; Beth Turomsha, sixth in 22:29; and Jill Czaplicki, ninth in 22:49.

Other Farmington finishers in the top 10 include: Jodi VanOrd, seventh in 22:38; Michelle Cassaroll, eighth in 22:44; and Sarah Urevig, 10th in 23:03.

Salem's record improves to 2-1 overall and 2-0 in the Lakes Division of the WLAA.

NORTH FARMINGTON rolled to a 17-46 boys' win Thursday over Westland John Glenn at Central City Park.

The Raiders, who improved their record to 3-3 overall and 1-1 in the Lakes Division, were paced by Paul Simpson's first-place finish in 18:23.

North captured eight of the top-10 finishes. Josh Chinitz took second place in 18:34, followed by Jon Szutarski, third in 18:36; Phil Bindon, fifth in 19:05; Spencer Turett, sixth in 19:07; Jeff Howle, seventh in 19:16; Marc Harwin, eighth in 19:28; and Yasohiko Kunieda, 10th in 20:03.

The Rockets only two finishers in the top 10 were Joe Rajewski, who claimed fourth with a time of 18:46 and Mark Coleman, who took ninth in 19:47.

NORTH HAD little trouble winning its girls' meet with Westland John Glenn Thursday at Central City Park. The Raiders improved to 4-2 overall and 1-1 in the Lakes Division by grounding the Rockets 19-39.

North captured the first three slots, as Tracy Mitchell captured first with a time of 22:39, followed by Jenny Weh in second (22:56) and Carolyn Atto in third (23:16).

Other top-10 finishers for the Raiders were Lisa Biederman, sixth in 24:41; Alicia Crossland, seventh in 24:44; and Leah Berenholz, eighth in 26:50.

Jennifer Caplis paced John Glenn, finishing fourth with a time of 23:18. Tina Honeycutt followed in fifth place with a 23:45 mark, Kelley Mullinix captured ninth in 28:21, while Susanna Muurineu finished 10th in 28:29.

LIVONIA CHURCHILL edged WLAA foe Farmington Hills Harrison 28-29 Thursday in a boys' encounter at Cass Benton Park.

The Hawks' Jason Zydrski won the race with a time of 18:03. He led a Harrison group which included Mike Deans, second in 18:27; Tim Bisson, fifth in 19:15; and Adam Greerer, ninth in 19:51.

Jon Curry's third place finish in 19:03 paced the victorious Chargers (3-1, 1-1).

The Churchill contingent also consisted of Brian Johnson, fourth in 19:11; Chad Giles, sixth in 19:27; Steve Townsend, seventh in 19:29; Scott Sepanski, eighth in 19:45; and John Wyderko, 10th in 20:02.

CHURCHILL WON its girls' meet Thursday with Harrison at Cass Benton Park. The Chargers evened their record at 2-2 overall and 1-1 in the WLAA by beating the Hawks by a 23-32 margin.

Harrison's Alissa Amani won the race with a time of 23:11. Jennifer

Although Livonia Stevenson managed to beat Plymouth Canton, 4-2, Wednesday in a Western Lakes Activities Association soccer match at Centennial Educational Park, Spartans coach Wally Barrett was impressed with the Chiefs' tactics.

"They're the first team to put their heads down and try to beat us," Barrett said.

It wasn't good enough, however, as four different Stevenson players scored in front of the Spartans' victorious goalkeeper Scott Plagenhoef. Stevenson scored two late goals to break a 2-2 tie and move its record to 7-0-1 overall.

Registering goals were Dave Matovski, Travis Roy, Rob Haar and Dave Nordwal. Plagenhoef stopped 18 shots on goal.

W.L. WESTERN 3, N. FARMINGTON 1: Marcus Geiger scored North Farmington's only goal Wednesday, in a game played at Walled Lake Western.

North, which fell to 1-6 overall, trailed 3-0 before Geiger got the Raiders on the board. Western led 1-0 at halftime.

North also suffered a 5-1 defeat Monday at Livonia Churchill. Aaron Lawrence scored the Raiders only goal in that contest.

CHURCHILL 9, HARRISON 0: Dominic Vella and Vince Troiani had three goals each Wednesday, leading host Livonia Churchill to the impressive win in the Western Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association.

The Chargers are 8-0-1 overall.

Dario Rauker had two goals for Churchill and Scott Lamphear added one. The Chargers fired 20 shots on Harrison's goal.

Rocks open fast, then roll

girls basketball

Plymouth Salem's girls basketball team got off to a quick start Thursday and buried Walled Lake Central before halftime in a 79-41 win.

The Rocks, 7-2 overall and 3-0 in the Lakes Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association, led 26-3 after the first quarter and 38-15 at halftime. Salem outscored Central, 21-15, in the third quarter to open up a 59-30 lead.

Central fell to 4-4 overall and 1-2 in the Lakes Division.

"We got out good," Salem coach Fred Thomann said. "That was as good a quarter (the first) as we've played for awhile. They struggled handling our pressure and our straight defense.

"It was a good win. Athletically, Central is a good team. They've got size, athletes, and run and jump well but we hurt them inside pretty well."

Three Salem players scored in double figures, led by sophomore forward Yolando Jackson with 18 points and Cyndi Platter and Darcie Miller with 14 each. Senior Sarah Ruete had eight points.

Karyn Koslowski led Central with 10 points.

CANTON 53, W.L. WESTERN 47: Plymouth Canton held off a second-half rally Thurston by visiting Walled Lake Western, and beat the Warriors, 53-47 in the Western Divsion opener.

The Chiefs are 5-3 overall, while Western fell to 3-6.

Better free throw shooting by Western could have made for a different outcome. The Warriors went to the line 30 times, but made only 12 shots. Canton, meanwhile, made six-of-12 opportunities.

Mary Barna led Canton with 16 points. Stephanie Gray added 11 points and Kelly Holmes nine for the winners.

"We got off to a quick start but our old nemesis got to us again — foul trouble," Canton coach Bob Bluhm said. "I thought defense we were pretty good but they got into the bonus (one-and-one free throw opportunities) early and that hurt us."

Canton led 26-14 at halftime, but Western outscored the Chiefs, 21-13 in the third quarter to pull within four, 39-35. Canton held a 47-45 lead late in the game and Barna sealed the win with a pair of field goals and two free throws down the stretch.

Holly Miller scored 14 points to lead Western.

Madonna extends its streak

For the first time this season, Madonna College's volleyball went over the .500 mark — and the way the Fighting Crusaders are currently playing, they may just keep on going.

Madonna improved to 2-1 in the NAIA District 23 with an easy 15-13, 15-4, 15-7 triumph at Spring Arbor Thursday. Tonia Smith (from Walled Lake Central) led the Crusaders with 13 kills. Evette Sluder (Wayne Memorial) had eight and Kristy McFadden (Redford Bishop Borgess) and Dana Hicks collected seven each.

Jenny Sladewski (Livonia Stevenson), Val Perrone and Melissa Mars (both from Borgess) paced the defense with six digs apiece.

The win was Madonna's ninth-straight, and upped its overall record to 14-13.

SCHOOLCRAFT COLLEGE'S volleyball team kept rolling through Eastern Conference foes, ripping Henry Ford CC 15-5, 15-7, 15-11 Thursday at Ford. Under coach Tom Teeters, now in his sixth season at SC, the Lady Ocelots have yet to lose a conference match.

Close shave

Late scores lift Harrison

By C.J. Risak

football

For three quarters of Friday's game against Northville, it seemed all Farmington Harrison's football team had going for it was tradition.

Maybe that was enough. Trailing 7-0, the Hawks mounted two long scoring drives in the final period to subdue the stubborn Mustangs 14-7 at Harrison.

The victory in this Western Lakes Activities Association's Western Division showdown gave the Hawks' a 3-0 division record. They are 4-1 overall. Northville lost for the first time this season, but the 4-1 Mustangs are 2-1 in the division.

Nothing's come easily for Harrison this season. "You better believe it," agreed Hawks' coach John Herrington. Indeed, Northville showed little respect for tradition in the first half.

The Mustangs surrendered just 96 first-half yards. Quarterback Ryan Huzjak and receiver-defensive back Mark Hilfinger were Harrison's biggest nemeses. Huzjak completed seven-of-nine passes for 107 yards in the first half. Hilfinger caught four passes, two from each team.

HIS BIGGEST catch came on a first-down play from the Northville 42. A play-action fake froze Hawk cornerback Greg Piscopink and Hilfinger streaked down the sideline uncovered. Huzjak hit him at about the Harrison 20 and he went in untouched for the game's first score. Todd Pieti's placement made it 7-0.

The Hawks never got untracked offensively in the first half. Quarterback Plamen Magdevski completed just four-of-15 passes for 50 yards, and was picked off twice by Hilfinger. Running back Gary Devine was limited to 24 rushing yards.

It was apparent Northville was trying to take away Devine's running. The strategy worked — at least for a while. "All until we needed it," said Mustang coach Daryl Schumacher.

A few offensive adjustments for the second half paid off nicely for both Harrison and Devine. The Hawks started attacking the middle of the Northville defensive line, with fullback Mike Pesci banging up the middle. He found some daylight, gaining 56 yards on eight second-half carries.

"That's about the only thing we did (differently in the second half), go with the fullback more," said Herrington. "We had a tighter formation, and went outside more."

PESCI'S GAINS set up Harrison's first real scoring opportunity. The Hawks drove from their own 43 to the Northville 8-yard line, where they had a first-down-and-goal. But the drive fell apart there, with an illegal block by Pesci, a short completion and two incomplete passes.

The Hawks couldn't even get off a 32-yard field goal try. Magdevski failed to handle the snap, allowing Northville to take over on downs at the 18.

Huzjak had been successful throwing to a variety of receivers running mostly short pass routes in the first half; in the second half, nothing worked. Huzjak's first two passes were intercepted, by Roy Granger and Pesci.

It was an omen of what was to come. Huzjak hit just one-of-five second-half passes, and that lost two yards. Northville's ground game was hardly better, grinding out only two first downs in the final two quarters, and managing a mere 24 yards on 34 attempts in the game.

Harrison finally got going offensively with 11:10 left in the game, driving 63 yards in 10 plays — eight of them runs by Devine. The diminutive (5-foot-6, 155 pounds) senior accounted for 53 of the yards, including the final three that, with Mark Lebovitz's placement, tied the score at 7-all with 7:04 left.

NORTHVILLE'S ENSUING possession was familiar: two runs that gained five yards, a pass completion that lost two and a punt. Harrison took over at its 28 with 4:28 remaining.

Three Devine runs (for 12, 5 and 8 yards) mixed with two Pesci slams (for 6 and 2) gave Harrison a first down at the Northville 39. Devine took the next handoff and raced around left end, broke a couple of tackles and scampered into the end zone for the go-ahead TD with 3:11 left.

"They started running at us and we couldn't handle it," said Schumacher. "But I've got to hand it to 42 (Devine), he was running hard."

Added Herrington: "It wasn't pretty, but it got the job done."

Devine finished with 156 yards rushing on 24 attempts. Magdevski's passing, though, was off-target. He hit only five-of-17 for 54 yards. "We just haven't been throwing the ball well lately," said Herrington.

Still, the Hawks keep winning, thanks in great part to a strong defense, led by Blazo Sarcevich (13 tackles against Northville) and Tony Schaieb (nine tackles). And as Herrington concluded: "I'd rather look (lousy) and win than look good and lose."

Canton beats Franklin

Johnson, who took fifth in 25:35 and Carrie Hentnik, who captured seventh in 25:49, rounded out the Hawks' contingent.

Jenette Swartout sparked the Chargers with a second in 24:10, followed by Teri Moore, third in 24:16; Anne Cooper, fourth in 24:58; Mellissa Johnson, sixth in 25:40; and Becky Smedley, eighth in 25:50.

CANTON WON its boys' clash with Livonia Franklin Thursday at Cass Benton Park, routing the Patriots 15-50.

Canton captured the first six places, led by Mike Ream's winning time of 16:48. He was followed by Jason Crain, second in 17:42; Chris Nelson, third in 17:58; Jim Carnes, fourth in 18:01; Jason Napolitano, fifth in 18:15; and Dave Yack, sixth in 18:26.

The Chiefs improved to 3-0 overall and 2-0 in the WLAA's Western Division.

Fran Devers led the Patriots with a seventh-place finish in 19:24 followed by Frank White in 19:59.

CANTON SOUNDLY defeated Franklin 16-43 Thursday in its girls' race at Cass Benton Park.

Canton had the top four finishers, led by junior Amy Smith's first-place effort in 21:45. She was followed by Kim Gudeth, second in 21:49; Heather Meyer, third in 21:50; and Lana Boroditsch, fourth in 21:55.

Due to a watch malfunction times weren't available for the remaining finishers.

Canton's Anne Dibble and Alison Way finished sixth and eighth respectively, while Franklin's Tammy Bauer took sixth and Kelly Gustafson ninth.

Numbers game

It all adds up to good old time

Al Harrison

BOWLING IS A GAME of numbers and sometimes those numbers can do strange things.

There are even awards based on numbers, such as the "triplicate" award for three consecutive games of the same score.

Some people also like to play the lottery, another game of numbers. I have also heard instances where someone would play their bowling score in the lottery and actually win.

I am not saying that this is an instant way to get rich, but that is what happened to a bowler last weekend.

While competing in his Friday league, he rolled two consecutive 222 games. Oddly enough, the check he used to pay his bowling happened to be check No. 222. To keep the ball rolling, he went to fill up his gas tank and the pump stopped at $22.22.

In the lottery last weekend, deuces were wild. The Michigan State Lottery numbers were 5-2-2-2. I didn't play these numbers, but now I'm a believer.

- The Greater Detroit Bowling Association will host a bowling instructional clinic on Saturday, Nov. 3 at Satellite Bowl.

The program will be geared towards begining and low average bowlers. It will feature Team USA coach Fred Borden.

Registration will being at noon and cost $5.

A video instruction tape will be shown at 12:30 p.m. followed by two hours of lane instruction.

There will be a limit of 168 bowlers, four to a lane.

"This is an excellent opportunity for beginning and low average bowlers to learn the game," GDBA Executive Secretary Tom McKay said. "We are expecting to have one qualified instructor for each pair of lanes and Fred Borden, one of the leading bowling instructors in the country, will be here to direct the program."

Borden, who has conducted bowling instruction seminars throughout the world, is one of the first coaches to use videotaping as an instructional tool.

Borden is currently head bowling coach of Team USA, which is slated to compete in the 1991 Olympic Festival, Pan-American Games and various other national and international events.

For more information, contact Tom McKay at 773-6350.

- We have been seeing bigger and better scores from the women bowlers over the past several years. The women have been keeping up with the guys and even supassing them on some occasions.

Pam Morgan, a Redford resident and bowler at Merri Bowl Lanes in Livonia came up with an amazing block of 244-269-244 for a 757 series Sunday while competing in the Over and Under Mixed League.

Pam carries a fine 175 average.

How about it guys, can you come close to a series like that?

- Super Bowl Lanes in Canton has some chice openings for teams and individuals. There are also youth league openings.

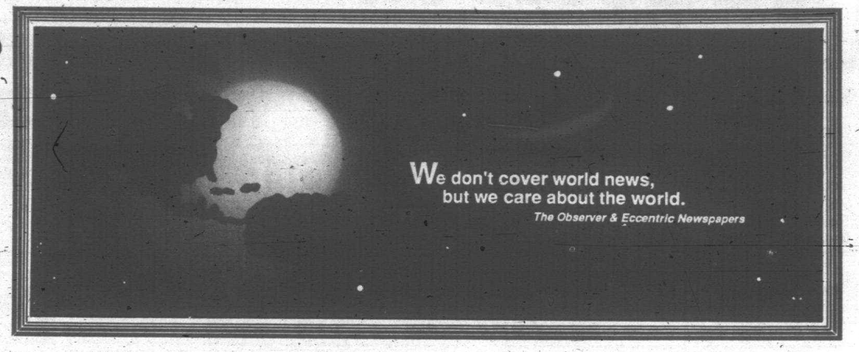
RECYCLING IS GOOD NEWS:



Overcrowded landfills. Garbage barges no one wants to deal with. Terminal trash.

News.

Bad news.

The good news? More and more people, businesses and industries are finding ways to recycle.

It takes more than 6,000 tons of newsprint each year to print The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers plus a number of other publications, so we're doing a number of things to help the solid waste situation:

1. For years we've sold our waste newsprint to a recycling firm.

2. 25% of the newsprint we print on is recycled and we're increasing this amount by another 25% this year.

3. Our employees have begun to routinely put officer paper (memos, computer paper, waste copy paper) in recycle bins instead of waste baskets.

Of course, we still deliver thousands of newspapers twice each week. It's our business to bring you news of your local government, schools, sports scene and community events; the news you need to know.

And when you're finished reading your hometown newspaper there are places that will recycle them.

We've listed a few for you on this page because we think recycling is Good News.

THE Observer & Eccentric NEWSPAPERS

What do an apple, a cow, and a car door have in common?

Recycled newspapers play a role in all three. Apple growers in the northwest use recycled newsprint for packing, farmers use it for bedding instead of straw and auto manufacturers use it in car doors.

There are many uses for your used newspapers, why not start saving them today?

It's picture perfect pets

By Joanne T. Sobczak
special writer

There she was. The bright lights reflecting against her beautiful hair made it glisten. Those big brown eyes were staring right into mine. What voluptuousness at 108 pounds.

Bernadette is a dog — and a spayed one at that. Even male dogs like Ambersand (the Gambler) can fantasize. They certainly do dream.

Berandette is a mostly brown and white St. Bernard that belongs to Mary Shelly of Bloomfield Hills. She's also a model . . . dog to Shelly and a fashion show piece to Barbara Bocci, who owns Pets in Pictures, an agency in Madison Heights, that supplies dogs (and sometimes cats) for commercials and photo shoots.

Bernadette and Ambersand, another St. Bernard owned by Judi Sage of Pontiac, were both in last November's ski fashion show hosted by the Don Thomas Sporthaus in Birmingham.

Bocci wouldn't use a dog she couldn't trust in a crowd of people. She chose the 4-year-old St. Bernard because the canine beauty was friendly and two St. Bernards were requested for the runway affair held in the parking area of Bloomfield Plaza.

Bocci made sure the dogs met each other beforehand as well as were introduced to — or one should say, pet and cuddled by — the other human fashion models in the show.

"WE HAD TO report an hour earlier and in the parking lot, Barb taught Bernadette some commands," Shelly said of the dog's debut. "She loves Barb and wanted to please her.

"We were initially very nervous about our dog being in a strange situation. But she was in seventh heaven. So may people gave her a pat on the head. And she didn't need any special training."

Bocci, a former model herself with a career in television and radio, began taking her pets on the runway as companions and interesting accessories. She was such a big hit, and the idea so successful, that her fashion experience combined with avid participation in dog training lead to her creation of the agency as an offshoot of her already established Trainers Academy for Obedience and Behavioral Sciences.

Although Bocci prefers that mom or dad stay home because the dog is less distracted, she will take the owners along, if they insist, but reminds them that the situation calls for extreme professionalism.

"The owner doesn't have to do much at all," Bocci said. "If it takes additional training to use the animal (for a specific show or shoot) then the person would have to train the pet or have one of our trainers teach the dog for that event."

SHE DOES expect some level of obedience training (not necessarily at her school) before registering with the agency. Shelly's dog has fulfilled beginner's level, but has not yet participated in advance instructions which Bocci adamantly requires for commercial filming.

"We don't always select animals that are our graduates," she said. "Anyone can sign up with the agency, although a lot of people in our agency are our students. We don't screen; that's up to the client. Certainly, we don't take aggressive dogs."

So if you have a dog that you believe is the canine equivalent to Marilyn Monroe, Shirley Temple, Fred Astaire or Bozo the Clown, what is your first step?

Rebecca Chamberlin, director of the Training Obedience Center classes and coordinator of Pets in Pictures, suggests you register with the agency. The fee is $15 annually.

And don't forget to bring impressive photos of your pooch. The more the pictures reflect the dog's abilities, the better the chance it has of being selected. Clients may request a certain breed but the performance of a particular task usually determines who is the "lucky dog." So make sure they're action shots.

THE AGENCY lists some 50 to 75 dogs and, in the past year, has accumulated a couple dozen customers including Jacobson's, AT&T, Somerset Mall, Kelly & Company and Dayton-Hudson.

Cats are not registered with the agency because they are not considered trainable. But if there is a need for one, the agency has connections.

Pooch better love its job because megabucks star income is not around the corner. The talent (canine) and master receive $100 per assignment. The TOC trainer, who is always present and instructing the dog, gets $50 an hour.

Bocci herself recently assisted as trainer at the production of a Michigan Lottery commercial filmed in Port Huron.

"They told us they wanted a dog that would just jump up and have a good time with a child and maybe retrieve a stick out of the water," said Bocci, an obedience instructor for more than a decade. "So, we basically had to provide advance dogs; you can't use an animal that's not trained and hope it will inadvertently go and fetch a stick.

"When you are working on a commercial, the dog has to do the trick over and over again. If that dog isn't trained, after three times the average dog doesn't feel like playing anymore. Then what do you do? The answer is nothing."

THE MICHIGAN Lottery shoot involved 20 takes, so the dog retrieved 20 times. So that's why when there is a 25-30 person crew, cameras and technical equipment, it's Bocci and Chamberlin's job to provide a dog that will perform accordingly.

According to Bocci, making commercials is the most lengthy, pressuresome activity for a dog. Unlike print or runway work, the dog is constantly moving and is expected to come in on cue. There is stress on the animal although Bocci does make it fun — of course, with edibles.

"An animal is right now; you can't explain to it that lunch break is in a half hour," she said. "The time frame is the present. You have to think, 'Get going now while the animal is fresh.' "

Print work generally requires the dog to sit or stand, so a pet with just a beginner's background can be used even though the hours are long — and any fashion model can testify to that.

Runway is another challenge.

"You just can't take a dog on a runway that has never seen height, people or lights," said Bocci.

MICHELE PARTON'S 9-year-old German Shepherd, Tara, has been enjoying stardom for about a year. Her interest in putting her pets in pictures (she also owns a Shetland sheep dog named Chevy) is for fun and to earn extra cash.

"I thought it would be nice to make a little money to pay for their show entries," said the Oak Park resident. "I like doing as much as I can with my dogs — they're my buddies.

DFT premieres cool 'Thief'

By John Monaghan
special writer

In his native Italy, Maurizio Nichetti is a star, a household name. Only now with the overseas release of his fourth film, "The Icicle Thief," can American audiences see why the writer/director/actor has been called "the Italian Woody Allen."

Like other great comic directors, Nichetti cut his teeth in animated films. He collaborated with Bruno Bozzetto on "Allegro Non Troppo" in 1976 and even played an artist in a live-action sequence.

The fast-paced tone of cartoons translates well to "The Icicle Thief," an amazingly well-thought out bit of mayhem that pays tribute to a classic Italian film while lampooning the television age. It plays this weekend at the Detroit Film Theatre.

Nichetti plays a famous film director who has agreed to introduce his classic film, "The Icicle Thief," during its first national TV broadcast. More than a little reminiscent of Vittorio de Sica's "The Bicycle Thief" (1947), the movie is about a poor man (also played by Nichetti) in post-war Italy desperately trying to care for his family.

THE STARK black-and-white film contrasts badly with the glitzy commercials that randomly interrupt it.

Give Bogdanovich a 'D' for very dull 'Texasville'

Dan Greenberg

It's difficult to imagine what Peter Bogdanovich had in mind when he wrote, co-produced and directed "Texasville" (D, R, 123 minutes).

Certainly, keeping the audience awake wasn't one of his top priorities. Billed as the "long-awaited sequel" to Bogdanovich's 1971 "The Last Picture Show," screening "Texasville" raises several questions. Why? By whom? Couldn't they have waited until it was an attractive, entertaining film?

Many of the same actors/characters who peopled the original star in "Texasville" — Jeff Bridges, Timothy Bottoms, Cloris Leachman, Cybill Shepherd and Randy Quaid. Unlike the original, however, it's not an interesting character study about the small North Texas town of the title.

Rather, it's about a lot of dull, uninteresting and generally unpleasant folks whose problems don't stimulate viewers' interest or empathy. There's nothing much to redeem these folks as they lack force, wit, intelligence, romance, love or anything else to attract sympathy and interest.

Duane Jackson (Bridges), a wealthy oilman, is having a mid-life crisis which apparently is unrelated to the depressed oil business in 1984. How wealthy is he? He can afford to be $12 million in debt. One of the problems with the film is that it's never really clear why he's moping around and what's wrong with everybody else.

COULD IT be that his wife of 20 years, Karla (Annie Potts), still loves him? Or maybe it's because she drinks too much? Or is it because they and their kids are strange. The housekeeper, Minirva (Pearl Jones), tells Duane, "You've got a wired family, but unstable."

The family includes super-stud son Dickie (William McNamara), divorced daughter Nellie (Katherine Bonfeldt) and her child plus hellion twins, Julie and Jack (Romy Snyder and Jimmy Howell) and a rather young boy whose name escaped me. Quite a crowd.

Names of the numerous other characters in town were also difficult to keep track of, particularly since so many of them lack the star or celebrity recognition factor. Quick cuts and references to who they were divorcing and/or sleeping with might normally keep an audience actively involved. Except there's so little reason to care about these folks.

One would assume that a filmmaker of Bogdanovich's stature would recognize that character is developed by what actors and actresses do on the screen. Standing around moping and chewing toothpicks while the camera lingers on their passive faces is not character study. It's just dull footage that adds up to nothing worth viewing.

"I Came in Peace" (R) is a slightly different twist on the current spate of gangster/drug dealer films. This one features Dolph Lundgren as a Houston police detective who breaks the rules to get the job done. This time the job involves intergalactic drug dealers as well as local ones. That's a new twist.

"BACKSTREET Dreams" (*, R, 104 minutes) stars writer, co-producer Jason O'Malley as Dean Costello, a small-time hood from Hoboken.

His son, Shane, is autistic, and Dean falls in love with the dedicated psychologist, Stephanie Bloom (Brooke Shields), who succeeds where so many medical personnel have failed in helping Shane.

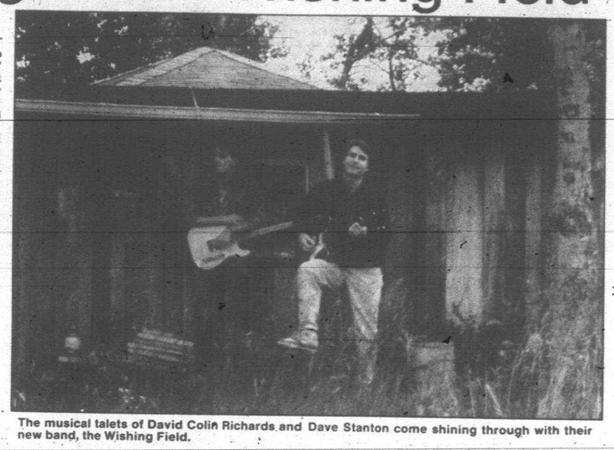
Daves get their Wishing Field

By Jill Hamilton
special writer



The musical talets of David Colin Richards and Dave Stanton come shining through with their new band, the Wishing Field.

It was sort of like the old proverb "too many cooks spoil the broth." But in the case of the Bluefields, it was more like "too many songwriters spoil the band."

And that's how the Wishing Field was formed.

You see, the Bluefields as a band were doing just fine. They played a fair amount of gigs and were recently named finalists in Musician magazine's "Best Unsigned Band in America" contest. But there was one problem — they had too many songs.

"We had an overabundance of material," said Dave Colin Richards, formerly of the Bluefields and now a singer/songwriter/guitarist for the Wishing Field. Yeah, some problem.

So, the Bluefields decided to split up. Mike Campbell continued with his material as the Bluefields and Richards and Dave Stanton formed the Wishing Field. Got it? Well, it doesn't matter whether you do or not because today we're only concerned with the Wishing Field.

After the two aforementioned Daves (Richards and Stanton) formed the Wishing Field, they decided they needed a bassist and a drummer.

ENTER BASSIST Bob Okonowski, formerly of Mariner and drummer Chris Connolly, formerly of Shock Therapy (not the same guy in Premiere magazine or MTV's "The Big Picture"). Thus, the Wishing Field was born.

Although the Wishing Field has only played one gig so far, they're already showing promise of being one of the year's best local bands. How can this be?

Well, they've all been around awhile and have learned the ropes of the local music biz.

"I'm not new to the scene," said the soft-spoken Richards, "I've been playing in alternative, college-type bands for eight years."

Apparently, all of this experience has given each of the band members time to figure out exactly what they want to sound like.

So what do they sound like? Well, here's a written montage to give you an idea: Vocal harmonies a la Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young in the old days. Melodic, catchy tunes. Pink Floyd-ish aural overlays of "found sounds" like an old Timothy Leary speech. Tight, hook-laden songs reminiscent of everything from the British Invasion to REM.

Beyond that, you'll just have to see them for yourself.

Although the band has by now learned how to write songs, they still could use a little work on learning to sell themselves. They seem to be under the mistaken (and innocent) impression that if a band is good they will automatically rise to the top.

"OUR APPROACH to the business is that we try to write really good songs, something out of the ordinary," Richards said. "Our songs are sincere."

Richards takes his songwriting chores seriously and it shows. A Wishing Field song is a well-constructed gem about a particular mood or event. It is sincere music.

"It's really hard for a writer to sit down and analyze themselves and say what they're like," Richards said.

But, at 27, Richards realized that, hard or not, writing songs is what he wants to do with his life.

"I just want to make a living off of music," Richards said.

He adds the long hours, low pay and lack of glory don't matter to him as long as I am content with what I'm doing."

"My friends have two kids, two cars and a nice insurance plan," Richards said.

That's fine for them, but Richards wants something more — "I don't want grown-up-dom for a little while longer."

Richards will stick with the Wishing Field which is searching for some sort of outlet for their music to be heard. Right now, they are working on a 12-14 song cassette which should be ready in December. Until then, they will hop onto the local club circuit.

So get out there and check them out.

He lets music do the talking

Senegelese singer Youssou N'Dour is hoping for success with the release of his first album in the United States.

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Youssou N'Dour needs an interpreter for interviews. But his music transcends any language barriers.

Though the Senegelese singer has recently released his first album in the United States, chances are you've heard or even seen N'Dour before.

His distinctive, haunting background vocals were one of the highlights of Peter Gabriel's megahit album, "So."

N'Dour was also the one on stage with Tracy Chapman, Sting and Bruce Springsteen during the Amnesty International Tour in 1988.

Yet N'Dour is virtually starting from scratch in the United States, despite having three albums to his credit and being something of a pop star in his native country of Senegal.

"There's no pressure on me to do that (conform to American commercial standards)," said N'Dour, speaking French through an interpreter. "It's something I want to have happen. I wanted my music to be played on the radio."

The world music he plays is called mbalax, which is described as bluesy polyrhythmic.

N'Dour's album, "Set," encompasses both a soaring spirit and gentleness. There's a passion to his singing that transcends the boundaries of an LP format.

FOR N'DOUR, he's only doing something that is natural. He's been performing since the age of 12. He was known as "Dakar's Little Prince," referring to the capital of Senegal where he grew up.

The country of Senegal is in West Africa and is approximately the size of South Dakota. French culture in Senegal is still predominate, including the language. Yet, the majority of people living there are Muslim.

Traditional music of Senegal had the biggest impact of N'Dour, that, and perhaps, Cuban music he heard in his youth.

From his debut at 12, N'Dour went on to sing in his mid-teens with Senegal's biggest group at the time — the Star Band. He formed Etoile de Dakar in 1979, which later became Super Etoile de Dakar — his band today.

An entirely new musical horizon opened up for N'Dour in the 1980s. He visited Europe, listening to Western pop for the first time. N'Dour has been trying to find the middle between traditional and contemporary styles ever since.

"In terms of harmony, I see some linkages between traditional African music and Western pop," he said. "Rhythmically, I don't feel there is (any comparison)."

While N'Dour was discovering new sounds in Europe, others had discovered him. Peter Gabriel happened to see N'Dour performing in Paris, France.

Afterward, Gabriel rushed backstage to pass along his admiration of N'Dour's work. Gabriel then showed up at one his shows in Dakar a few months later, asking N'Dour to sing background vocals on "So."

N'DOUR'S GUEST vocals became the trademark on the LP's hit number "In Your Eyes."

Around the same time, N'Dour also performed on Paul Simon's

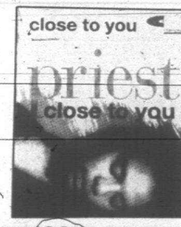
REVIEWS



BONA FIDE — Maxi Priest

"Bona Fide" by Maxi Priest has the quintessential sound of pop music in the 1990s. What do we mean by this? Well, the boundaries between different forms of music are breaking down. Like rock was a distillation and interpretation of traditional blues, modern pop music is a combination of world music, rap, blues and everything else.

With "Bona Fide," Maxi Priest combines reggae, pop and soul and comes up with some top-40, radio-ready stuff. The album was produced by a Jamaican producer named Geoffrey Chung and Jazzie B and Nellee Hooper, the creative forces behind Soul II Soul. Presumably, Priest is trying to hit upon the same magic formula as Soul II Soul, but, frankly, Soul II Soul does a better job of merging divergent styles to come up with a unique sound.

Priest didn't write any of the songs on the album — he doesn't even share any song writing credits — so the songs run toward the generic. Most of the songs are about that crazy little thing called love except for two, "Prayer for the World" and "Peace Throughout the World."

Two of the songs "Close to You" and "You" are written by someone named G. Benson. These sound like they could have been penned by George Benson, but for all we know, G. could just as easily stand for Geronimo or Geraldine.

The songs are mild and good-tempered, with a touch of gospel thrown in here, a bit of dance music thrown in there. Although the songs are supposed to range from ballads to dance music, they all tend to sound the same. In other words the ballads have a danceable drum track and the dance tunes have tender, ballad-like lyrics.

The result of all this is an album that is certainly serviceable mid-tempo pop music, but nothing particularly special. Priest's voice sounds fine, but seems to lack passion. The playing is competent, but not inspired. This adds up to an album that is OK. Not groundbreaking, not really offensive, just OK.

VEGETARIANS OF LOVE — Bob Geldof

He's back. He of the many titles: Saint, Sir, Peace Ambassador, Pop Diplomat, Loud Mouth, Meat Head.

Take your pick. All of them have applied at one time or another. One of the original pop/punks, leader of Ireland's Boomtown Rats, whose only American hit was the controversial "I Don't Like Mondays," he shot to worldwide prominence when he organized the Live Aid concert/record/charity/multi-media event after being seriously disturbed by a BBC-TV documentary on Africa's starving.

Having spawned the multitude of "Aid"- type concerts, he has tried to remove himself from this responsibility over the past few years.

"The Vegetarians of Love" is his first since the bleak solo album "Deep in the Heart of Nowhere" of three years ago. And what a change.

It is an eclectic mixture of R'n'B and Cajun influences with the odd bit of Irish diddley-eye thrown in for good measure. As such, it fits neatly into the "New Roots" movement of the moment, which shows the overriding influences of those who have adapted roots music into a contemporary style, most notably Geldof's personal musical idols, Dylan and Van Morrison.

The album has a spontaneity and an immediacy with most of the tracks chosen from 25 songs that were recorded in just five days. Geldof can even be heard calling out chord changes, and laughing between tracks.

His backing band is probably crucial to the success of this LP. If anyone is familiar with a band called The Penguin Cafe Orchestra, they will find most of the members here along with old Boomtown Rat friend and bassist Pete Briquette.

Their wonderful musicianship and Geldof's lust for life and apocalyptic lyrical ideas fuse to make this album a marvelous listening experience.

From the single "The Great Song of Indifference," Geldof uses the opportunity to exorcise the demons which have plagued him.

Anyone who had written Sir Bob off must give him some serious consideration once again.

"The Vegetarians of Love" can eat your heart out for breakfast.

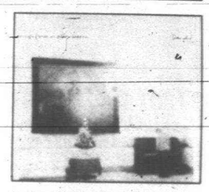
SONGS FROM ANOTHER SEASON — David J



From the opening track, the single, "I'll Be Your Chauffeur," be ready to disregard any preconceptions that may be generated by David J's previous associations, i.e. Love and Rockets and Bauhaus.

With a jaunty acoustic twist on the Beatles' "Drive My Car," David J reveals a completely different personality to that which we're accustomed.

While lyrically it is a blatant, and vulnerable, declaration of his dedication to the song's recipient, musically it is subtle and dare I say it, even laid back.

With an acoustic guitar leading the way, as it does on the entire album, backed up by some beautiful lead guitar and — don't be wary — an accordion!

Mr. J throws himself at somebody's mercy:

"I'll be your chauffeur, the go-fer who will fetch and carry you home so curl up on this mobile sofa/I'll turn the key and let these four wheels roam.""

Maybe the reasons for this solo album is revealed on the song "Sad Side to the Sandboy" when he sings "He's the lonely circus clown/with the booze in the trailer for when he's down/ruined and blue./No one knows there's a side to the sandboy."

This song has some particularly plaintiff steel guitar in the best country boy tradition.

His songs range from the self-pitying "Sad Side" to the how to improve himself on "A Long Look." On the way, he addresses topics such as the throwaway "New Woman Is an Attitude" dealing with the power of fashion advertising and the personal difficulty of dealing with fame on "Stranded Trans-Atlantic Hotel Nearly Famous Blues."

All songs are based around a gentle acoustic guitar and David J's quiet, almost whispered, vocals. There are a variety of other instruments thrown in for flavoring with the aforementioned accordion on "Chauffeur," a kazoo solo on "Fingers in the Grease."

A pleasing overall sound, some slightly pretentious lyrics, but good songs nonetheless.

'Peace:' Drugs with a twist

Hopefully, the film is not as soapy as it sounds.

"King of New York" (R, 103 minutes) stars Christopher Walken in a contemporary crime drama about a drug lord released from prison. Back home, he quickly and violently re-establishes control over his territory while projecting the public image of a charitable fellow.

STILL PLAYING:

"After Dark My Sweet" (R).

Rachel Ward and Bruce Dern in a thrilling but reckless kidnapping.

"Air America" (R-, R, 105 minutes).

The insanity of war and the human sorrow of Southeast Asia in a jumbled but interesting story about two CIA pilots in Laos.

"Arachnophobia" (B-, PG-13, 95 minutes).

Killer spiders from Venezuela are no match for Jeff Daniels despite his fear of furry little, eight-legged creatures.

"Darkman" (A-, PG-13, 116 minutes).

"Death Warrent" (B-, R, 87 minutes).

Kickboxer Jean-Claude VanDamme as RCMP Sergeant Burke goes undercover in a California prison.

"Delta Force II" (R).

Chuch Norris as Colonel Scott McCoy leading the Delta Force to rescue American DEA agents held captive by drug lords.

"Duck Tales: The Movie — Treasure of the Lost Lamp" (A, G, 70 minutes).

Scrooge McDuck from daytime TV in an entertaining and exciting animated feature that owes a great debt to Indiana Jones.

"The Exorcist III" (*, R).

Picks up where number one left off with an evil spirit inhabiting the priest's body.

"Flatliners" (B, R, 111 minutes).

Moody, atmospheric, suspenseful story of five med students experimenting with death.

"Funny About Love" (PG-13).

Gene Wilder as a New York cartoonist whose life and loves are the centerpiece of this comedy.

"Ghost" (A-, PG-13, 116 minutes).

Banker's ghost (Patrick Swayze) hangs around after life to protect loved one (Demi Moore). Spiritualist (Whoopi Goldberg) helps him and this romantic/comedy/thriller.

"GoodFellas" (B+, R, 145 minuta).

Martin Scorsese's intense, compelling saga of three mobsters. Fine production techniques and excellent performances by Robert DeNiro, Joe Pesci and Ray Liotta, notwithstanding, they are bad guys.

"Hardware" (*, R).

A scientific experiment out of control.

"The Jungle Book" (A, G, 78 minutes).

Re-release of 1967 Disney animated feature based on Kipling's Mowgli stories.

"The Lemon Sisters" (*, PG-13).

Diane Keaton, Carol Kane and Kathryn Grody in a deep friendship.

"Men at Work" (B+, PG-13, 92 minutes).

Good entertainment in story of two garbagemen who discover a body in the trash.

"Metropolitan" (PG-13).

Some young socialites discuss life.

"Mirror, Mirror" (D+, R, 100 minutes).

Another teeny-bopper horror film with graphically depicted violence.

"Mo' Better Blues" (D, R, 120 minutes).

Long, boring, corny, 1930-style musical set in the black idiom.

"My Blue Heaven" (*, PG-13).

Mafia informant (Steve Martin) is hidden in Federal Witness Protection Program with Rick Moranis as FBI agent-in-charge.

"Narrow Margin" (B, R, 95 minutes).

Despite an obvious plot with a hokum-laden conclusion, Gene Hackman and Anne Archer are entertaining in this DA versus the Mob, chase film.

"Navy Seals" (R, 113 minutes).

U.S. Navy Commandos hit the beaches to save American helicopter crew from terrorists.

"Postcards From The Edge" (C+, R, 105 minutes).

Disappointing, jumbled, show-biz story of mother-daughter conflict doesn't live up to its advanced billing nor to its superb cast.

"Presumed Innocent" (B+, R, 125 minutes).

Well-done courtroom drama with interesting, surprise (if you haven't read the book) ending.

"Pretty Woman" (A-, R, 120 minutes).

Charming, romantic fantasy with Wall Street mogul (Richard Gere) falling in love with a prostitute (Julia Roberts).

"Problem Child" (*, PG).

Suburban couple adopt mischievous child.

"Pump Up the Volume" (R, 100 minutes).

Shy, disillusioned high school student accidentally sets up pirate radio station and becomes a hero.

"White Hunter, Black Heart" (PG).

Clint Eastwood as John Huston in Africa preparing to film "The African Queen."

"Wild at Heart" (R).

David Lynch is back with Nicholas Cage and Laura Dern as a young couple on the run.

"The Witches" (A, PG, 90 minutes).

Delightfully wicked fantasy with Anjelica Houston in a hysterically vampy performance as Britain's Grand High Witch.

Director Nichetti can't believe that his grueling scenes of poverty are immediately followed by banal commercials for laundry detergent and dog food.

Then a power failure jumbles the broadcast, causing actors from the commercials to walk into the old film and vice versa. A sexy model falls into a river and is saved by the father character. When he dries her off, all the color washes off, too. The black-and-white mother, meanwhile, drifts into the modern world of consumer goods and commercialism.

Interspersed are scenes with a typical Italian family who always has the television on. Mom wants to watch the movie, but ends up on the phone most of the time instead. Dad wakes up only during sexy commercials. Junior builds an ever-growing cathedral out of Legos.

Instead of lambasting TV addicts, Nichetti gives them a certain warmth and pathos. His message about the warped relationship between movies and television still comes across beautifully.

"PEOPLE WILL often say they have seen one of my films on television," Nichetti has said, "but they have not seen a film at all . . . They have seen little pieces, on a little screen, in electronic color and in a different aspect ratio. They have seen television."

Ironically, since most Italian movies are financed by the big broadcasting companies, Nichetti has been placed in a position where he can criticize the TV industry on their dime.

And in a recent case that may or may not relate to the film, an Italian High Court in Rome ruled that private television companies in Italy can no longer interrupt a film with commercials. The court said such intrusions "alter the identity" of the film.

Too bad we can't get them over here to do the same thing with American colorization.

Grammy-winning "Graceland" album.

Finally, N'Dour released two albums of his own "The Lion" in 1989 and "Immigres," re-released in 1988. "Set" marks N'Dour's turn back to the traditional music he was raised on, music that provides more than a beat and a good time.

"First of all, rhythm itself carries the message in African music," he said. "The message of African music is there is a certain security in the culture. When we hear the rhythm, we're moved by the feeling there is cultural stability and continuity being transmitted by the music.

"Second, you're quite right implying African music ought to have a message in it. We the artist can sing about things that people wouldn't dare say in conversation."

Clarify your style's rules

Dear Barbara,

I am angry at my wife a lot of the time, particularly when she interferes when I an disciplining our two boys, ages four and eight. Our styles are entirely different. Personally, I don't think she is tough enough with them. She thinks I am too hard and sometimes she calls me belittling.

As an example, I am going to tell you something that happened last night. Our youngest son always needs some coddling at bedtime. Usually, my wife or I have to go in two or three times to get him a glass of water or give him one more kiss. As all this usually takes place five to 10 minutes, I don't mind, and then he goes to sleep.

Sometimes, like last night, he drags this ritual on for a half hour to 45 minutes. I finally got angry and so must have sounded angry and told "John" that he would have to quiet down and go to sleep. He started crying harder. My wife started yelling at me to look at how I had upset John and proceeded to go in and comfort him. I then yelled at her.

What should I do? The tension is unbearable. I am a good father and I love my kids very much. I can't stand the continual belittlement from my wife.

Angry Husband

Dear Angry Husband,

You will continue to stay angry for as long as you do not find a solution to this problem.

You and your wife should not put your son to bed together. The nights she does it, you should not be involved. The nights you do, she should stay out of it. Your son can kiss the other one good night first and then be told that Mom or Dad is in charge of bedtime tonight.

Even very small children can become accustom to different parenting styles. It is important that each of you is consistent and clear about the rules within your own style.

So, it is easy to solve this one situation. But it sounds from your letter that this is only one area in which problems between you and your wife manifest. If there are others, then you and your wife need counseling.

Counselors often hear this complaint — the husband is too harsh, the wife too easy. In more traditional households, this is even their roles. Mom is the nurturer and Dad is the voice of reality.

In good marriages, where there is respect and love, one rubs off on the other. Each, out of love and respect for the other, tries to be a little more like the other one. The molding that then ensues creates a harmonious home.

Shandling cuts his hair but not sense of humor

By Amy Rosa
staff writer

Two things have changed about Garry Shandling since he was last in town.

Number one, he's not just dating any more — he has a steady "chick." Number two, his hair is shorter.

If you don't believe it, stop by Mark Ridley's Comedy Castle in Royal Oak this week and see for yourself. Shandling, who's been away from the Motor City for just a couple of years, will give three 90-minute shows this Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 2-4.

Back to those startling revelations, the most significant of which is, of course, his hair.

"I got it cut about two weeks ago, and it's really short," said Shandling last week, sounding somewhat despondent over the phone. "My friend Jeff Goldblum talked me into going to get my hair cut by a girl who does his. And the first thing she said was that it looked 'feminine.'"

So, his masculinity at stake, the locks were cut. "It is growing out," he added. Was it a mistake? Tune in to find out.

Now, for the second revelation. Gary has a girlfriend (sung to the tune of na . . . nana . . . na . . . na . . . na).

AND IF HE thought dating was tough in the '80s, making a relationship work in the '90s is even tougher, claimed the 40-year-old.

"I now talk about my current relationship, rather than about dating, like in my old act," he said. "I solicit advice from the audience."

He also solicits advice from reporters.

"You sound happy, what's your secret?" Shandling interrupted.

Back to the interview. Exactly how serious is this relationship of his anyway? Is he engaged? Shacking up? Does he call her his significant other? What's the poop?

"What is this?" he answered. "Women, I'm not even involved with want to define my relationships. That's the worst thing you can do. That's like going up to your boss and asking him what your job is today.

"I don't think people should be forced to define relationships."

It's not that Shandling is sensitive. Really. He's just a private guy — even though he doesn't come off that way to his audiences. His routines — which include intimate details of his life — leave crowds with the feeling that they really know him, that he's just a regular guy.

Shandling attributes this to the fact that he writes all his own material.

"I take my personal experiences . . . or I take unusual things in life that happen to all of us and work with them," he said.

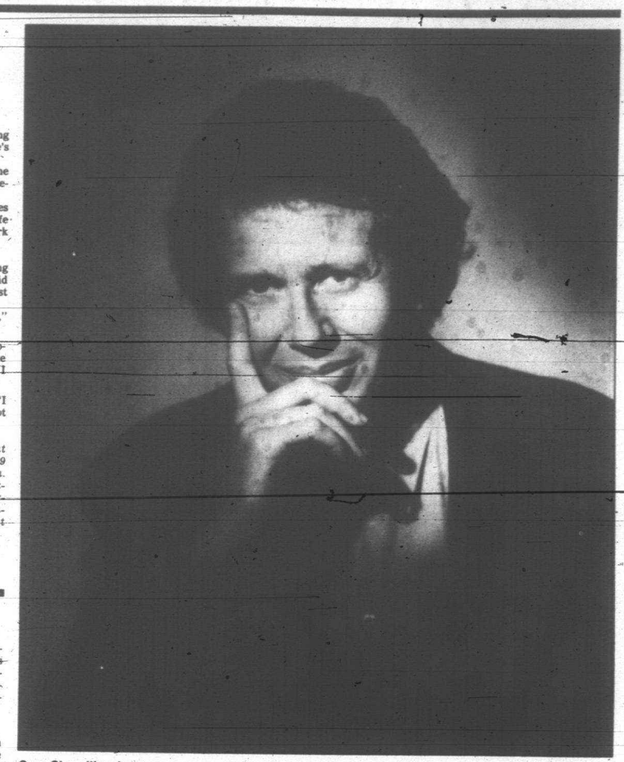
SHANDLING, who's been doing standup comedy for 15 years, said Mark Ridley's was one of the first places he appeared.

"Mark and I go back a long way," he said.

Reflecting on his very first appearance, Shandling admitted he was "good." And then laughed, "but I was bad the next 20 times."

"I had no spontaneity," he said. "I had to learn to develop that. It's not as easy at it looks."

Gary Shandling will perform at Mark Ridley's Comedy Castle, 269 E. Fourth St., Royal Oak, at 7 p.m. Tuesday-Thursday, Oct. 2-4. Tickets cost $16 and must be purchased in advance. For reservations, call the Comedy Castle at 542-9900.



Gary Shandling has won over crowds with his routines, which involve the audience and leave them the feeling that they really know him, that he's just a regular guy.

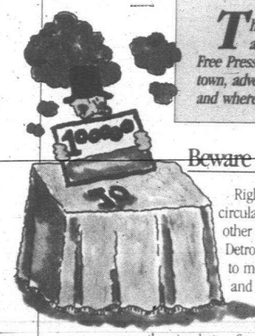
How to win at the numbers game.

The game is newspaper advertising — and the rules are changing. Rates are up in the Detroit News and Free Press. Suburban circulation is down. And all around town, advertisers are wondering what numbers to trust — and where to place their media dollars. What should you do?

LUCKY U PICK 'EM



Beware of smoke and mirrors.

Right now, the News and Free Press circulation is unstable at best. On the other hand, SPRING's network of 39 Detroit suburban newspapers delivers to more than 500,000 households — and that's a real number.

How do we know? All SPRING newspapers are audited. Every year, the circulation figures for each SPRING newspaper are verified by either CAC or ABC — two of the industry's most highly-respected independent auditors.

No slippery stuff here. SPRING's numbers are tested, tried, and true.

Place your bet on SPRING.

Once you've studied the numbers, we're sure you'll agree: SPRING is a sure winner.

SPRING's circulation is solid and stable. It's audited. And it represents more than one million readers who have the means to buy what you sell.

No matter how you figure it — those are very good odds, indeed.

See what's behind the numbers.

OK — so dazzling numbers can be misleading. And, when it comes to newspaper circulation figures, you want more than quantity. You want quality.

We've got it. SPRING's one million readers are some of the most affluent consumers around. SPRING newspapers go to suburbs with the spending power to buy more cars, condos, boats, bikes, appliances, apparel, gizmos, and gadgets than most other Michigan communities combined.

Best of all, SPRING delivers this upscale suburban market at a lower cost per thousand than either the News or the Free Press.

SPRING
SUBURBAN DETROIT NEWSPAPER NETWORK

One call. One order. One ad. One million readers. One heck-of-a-buy.

GLITZ, GLAMOUR AND TV

It's not all it's cracked up to be

By Debbie Sklar
special writer

MONDAY, 8:30 A.M. Armed with a reporter's notebook and mini tape recorder, WJBK-TV business editor Murray Feldman makes a mad dash to cover a breaking news story in the heart of Detroit hoping to beat out the competition.

Monday, 9 a.m. WKBD-TV's energetic host of "NEWSline," Cynthia Canty, is frantically banging away at the typewriter keys, hoping to get her morning scripts completed in time for her show which airs shortly.

Monday, 10 a.m. It may be mid-morning for most people, but WXYZ-TV star street reporter Cheryl Chodin has been awake for several hours, continuing her hot pursuit of the Detroit Police Department scandal.

Welcome to the glamorous world of television news . . . glitz and glamour, glamour and glitz.

That's how most people see television news. In actuality (at least according to the celebs), it's anyting but glitzy and glamorous.

Sure, the salaries are high (the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists won't release such figures and the celebs don't want to talk about them), but the work is tedious, the hours long and the day-to-day grind grueling.

Take Feldman for example. He's been with WJBK for 14 years and despite those last minute breaking news stories and in-house emergencies, he said he "couldn't be happier."

"IT'S FUNNY because people have a strong misconception about working for a television station," said Feldman, 38. "Not only is it hard work, it's the only job you can be fired from because of the way you look."

Feldman came to WJBK from WPRI-TV in Providence, R.I., where he worked as a news anchor/reporter for nearly three years. He also was a weekend anchor/reporter at WNYS-TV in Syracuse, N.Y., newscaster and music announcer at WWBZ-AM in Vineland, N.J., and part-time witer at WKYW-AM in Philadelphia, Pa.

Feldman's broadcasting career began in 1964 at WCAM-AM in Camden, N.J., where he worked as a production assistant part time. But he knew as early as age 13 that he wanted to be a disc jockey.

"I always knew that I was going to be in the communications field," he said. "If I remember correctly, I had my first article published when I was seven or eight years old. I was a member of the Junior Reporter's Club in grade school."

Although Feldman loves his career, the business has changed tremendously since his days as a reporter for that small Rhode Island news station. The market is "tighter," he said.

"It's definitely a field that's difficult to break into, but once you're there, it's incredibly rewarding," he said. "But again, people don't realize that it's a business where you're constantly on call. It's a job that finds you in situations that you would never expect."

> 'It's funny because people have a strong misconception about working for a television station. Not only is it hard work, it's the only job you can be fired from because of the way you look.'

FELDMAN DOES business reports for the 6 p.m. news show five days a week, for the 4:30 p.m. news three days a week and sometimes special reports for the 11 p.m. news. On the average, he works 60 hours a week.

"My advice to anyone starting out in this business is to be ready to pay your dues and just hang in there," Feldman said. "If you're good, you'll make it. If you've got it, you'll be swept up, but if you're not, you'll be lost in the shuffle."

Canty would be an example of that. She has been with WKBD since 1987, doing "Morning Break," renamed "NEWSline" last September. It airs at 11:30 a.m. Monday through Friday.

"It must be the most controversial, interactive news program in the city," she said. "It's a great show because we take live calls. I believe it's the only talk show in the city that does that."

Canty didn't always grace the television screen. At one time she was a health educator for the American Cancer Society, but it wasn't until 1977, when her boss asked her to fill in for him on a former public affairs TV show, "Soundings," that she knew she was destined for stardom.

"I FILLED IN for him and absolutely loved it," she said. "I guess there's a little bit of the ham in all of us."

Canty started speaking about ACS on such shows as "Good Morning Detroit" and "Kelly & Company." The more she did, the more she liked it. She is probably best known for her work on WNIC's "St. James & Harper," Harper & Gannon" and "Harper & Company" morning shows.

Canty always knew she wanted to be in the communications field. She started out as a pre-med student in college but switched to history in her junior year when she spent a year in Ireland.

But when she returned, Canty decided to follow up on a suggestion from a friend about a job opening for a news and public affairs director at WMUZ radio. She talked to the program director one day and ended up reading copy off the PR newswire the next.

After stints at several radio stations, she ended up at WKBD.

Canty's goal is to have an hourlong talk show in which viewers could call in and voice their opinions.

"I'd like to stay in television even though I miss radio at times," she said. "Being on radio is much more laid-back then being on television. On TV, you have to make sure you're sitting up straight, your clothing is intact and that your war paint is on correctly.

"THERE'S A LOT more to worry about than if you're on the radio. Television isn't a rags-to-riches story. People think newscasters just waltz into the station looking beautiful and wearing pretty clothes."

And how does it feel being at the top?

"I'm really very flattered when someone recognizes me when I'm out in public," Canty said. "I think because I'm not so glamorous and gorgeous, I appeal to a wider spectrum of people. Knowing that makes me feel good."

Sure, it may be nice when a viewer recognizes you while you're grocery shopping, but what happens when you're trying to have a quiet dinner out with your husband.

According to Chodin, it's nice "when someone recognizes me and I always feel it's important to acknowledge a viewer, but there are times when I just want to have a quiet, relaxed dinner without someone walking up to me."

Chodin started out as a free-lance reporter, first with the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers and then the Detroit News Sunday Magazine.

"I loved seeing my name in print," she said. "I used to cover the city of Lathrup Village for the Eccentric. It was great."

AFTER DABBLING in newspaper writing for a few years, she was hired as a writer for Channel 7 where she stayed for seven years before a one-year stint with WCXI, a country music radio station.

She then switched to WJR-AM as a crime reporter until she was called back to Channel 7 more than a year ago to be a street reporter.

"I've always loved working the streets and being called back to Channel 7 was like being called home again," she said. "But let me tell you, this is a tough business. People don't realize how much work goes into a story. Viewers only see the reporter on television, but in reality a lot of other people have worked on the piece in order for it to go on the air."

Chodin works long hours and can be called out at all hours of the day and night. She wears a beeper so the station can get in touch with her at any time of the day.

"It's a job that definitely isn't all glitz and glamour," she said. "One morning you could be interviewing the governor and that same afternoon you could be covering a triple homicide."

An Emmy Award-winning reporter, the only qualm Chodin has about her job is when people put down the media.

"Where would we be without newspapers and television?" she queeried. "People think news people are insensitive individuals, but we're probably the most sensitive people you'll ever find."

As owner of Pets in Pictures, a modeling agency for the furry set, Barbara Bocci poses with a few of her canine clients.

Furry friends find flashy life on film

"We try to make training fun for them by using a motivational approach and a lot of praise. For the dogs, it is a choice between sitting home or going out to work."

Chevy was originally assigned to do the Michigan Lottery commercial but because he didn't work out, the agency still paid Parton her $100.

Parton's dog Tara participated in a photo session for Bocci's book "A Diamond in Ruff — Creating a Canine Gem." The book is a pictorial display of different breeds used in various photo sessions, an account of Bocci's life and experience with her dogs, instructors and students (human and pet) and a "how to" section on training a dog and dealing with behavioral problems.

There is a good deal to say about gaining experience even for canines.

"THE MORE you take dogs out and they are used, the more you can use them," said Bocci, a firm believer in the employed dog. She has dedicated one chapter in her book to the subject, encouraging owners to put their dogs back to work.

"Shepherds were bred to herd; springers were bred to flush," Bocci said "Dogs were bred for purposes and our dogs don't do anything but sit around at home.

"People think they have a life of leisure. The reality of the situation is that we see the consequences of the life of leisure. Separation anxiety, inappropriate chewing, howling, crying all day result because dogs, which are generally social animals, aren't put to task anymore."

If you are interested in registering with the agency, call Pets in Pictures, 547-8500.

HOROSCOPE

September 30 through October 6 By C.D. Clark

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
Don't shy away from the unexpected. Your dreams may come true if you listen to those trying to help. Stay calm and you will do fine.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
Serious thought about a specific situation will result in different options. Follow your instincts and you can't go wrong. Plan for the future.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
Romance is in the air, and you're ready for whatever comes your way. A phone call could bring about the changes you have been hoping for.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Don't be so obstinate with family members. They continually forgive your stubbornness, but they may have had just enough to last a lifetime.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
Always looking out for No. 1 isn't in your best interest. Look at those close to you and give them the attention they need and deserve.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
Things seem crazy and sometimes you wonder if it is going to end. It will, and with some interesting results. A loved one comes through for you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Family and career concerns will need equal attention. You will be put in the position of peacemaker for both family and co-workers.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
Communication and travel sectors are strong. A short weekend trip will revive your perspective. Be fair in disagreements with family members.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
The domestic front could get you down, but don't let it. An hidden strength gets you through any situation. Communication is the key.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
Talking over financial arrangements with an expert eases your mind and saves you money at the same time. Friends need your attention.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
If you keep busy and stick to tasks at hand, you could avoid putting yourself in an awkward situation. You could make great changes in your life.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
You will feel a great sense of stability. Things have been crazy, but it has all been for a worthy cause. Now you can take time for yourself.

Actor treasures move from film to television

By Mary Ann Townsend

Joe Pantoliano doesn't worry about getting bogged down with his work on the new NBC series The Fanelli Boys.

The actor, who has been seen in big-grossing feature films for the past 10 years, is actually looking forward to what others may consider the grind of weekly television.

"The medium is completely different from the mediums I've practiced in—theater and film and television—this is a combination. You're filming the show in front of a live audience, so you're getting the immediate response, but the cameras are covering you like you're on film, so you can't really play the audience because then you'd be too large for the people that are going to watch you on television. It's a medium that intrigues me in terms of conquering it," he said.

Pantoliano has always loved the challenge of conquering new things. Having "slipped through" grade school in Hoboken, N.J., the actor was evaluated with having a third grade reading equivalency when he was in high school. With the help of a concerned history teacher and a tutor, Pantoliano soon set a goal for himself. "It was just practice. I just needed to read and learn, my comprehension was good. So I started reading a book a week for like the next 10 years and it got better."

Whether it was the ability to read or talent or both, Pantoliano has done well with acting.

Throughout the course of his 18-year professional acting career, Pantoliano has played Maggio in the miniseries From Here To Eternity, Gino in The Idolmaker, Guido the killer pimp in Risky Business, a photojournalist in The Mean Season, a punk rocker in Running Scared, Ritchie Valens' manager in La Bamba, and a retarded brother in Orphans, as well as many other roles.

Even with that diversity, the actor said he doesn't think he'll look at The Fanelli Boys as a weekly rut. "With any luck, if the show is successful, I would need about 22 to 25 shows just to get into the swing of things."

Cable Comments

By LARK L. SAMOUELIAN
Executive Director,
SW Oakland Cable Comm.

"Quite a surprise!" said Kay Briggs. Elinor Holland of Novi and I walked into the book store at Northwood Institute in Midland last Friday. Two of the clerks recognized us from being on Channel 12! They talked about my travel program and said they heard Elinor talk about the new Novi Garden Club!" How thrilled both women were to learn of their program being seen elsewhere as well as being recognized! Viewership on all television stations is increasing and changing as never before. This phenomena is to the benefit of Community Television Channels. People are changing. More and more are developing a thirst for knowledge.

People are beginning to take stock of all the opportunities available to them on community television. I want them to experience the richness Community Television brings to those who participate and watch. Kay Briggs is the perfect example of such positive energy. She is making every moment count in her life.

Not only does Kay have a lifetime of honored recognition, but she bounds out of bed every day energizing everything she touches.

Kay was one of the first people to have faith in the concept of Community Televison. She was the first to take the Garden Clubs and to share their colorful splendor. I will never forget what a wonderful time two of my staff people, Todd Whitman and Intern Julie Smith, had with Kay as she drove them all over the area introducing them to lovely gardens. They could hardly keep up with her.

Kay has traveled throughout the world as well as the United States. She used to take pictures with film.

Now she has a 8mm camcorder. Among the areas Kay has shared with us are: Iceland, New Zealand, Vienna, Austria, Rome, Italy, Africa, Israel, Japan, Venezuela, Ireland, Scotland, China, Tibet, Spain, Peru, the South Pacific, Switzerland, Iraq, the Phillippines, the Baltic States, the Orient, Alaska, the Galopogos Islands, the Colorado River, England, Yugoslavia, Sri Lanka and the lower Mississippi.

The emphasis of the program has been to show the people and well known sites of the visited area. Her advise to fellow travelers with a video camera is, "Think a smile!" Approach people in a pleasant way and everyone, everywhere, returns it. She always asks the people permission to tape them, especially parents. They have always been pleased.

When I asked Kay what could she share with us as result of traveling throughout the world she replied, "Except the Netherlands and Belgium the standard of living is much lower than ours. Yet people are happy and proud of what they have. They like to share what they have, too." Her favorite country is New Zealand as "the scenery is a microcosm of the world." There are mountains, hot springs, rain forests and large cities. "Christ Church, New Zealand, is a very British City, says Kay, "it looks more like the English than England."

For Kay the most work of the entire project is to edit all the footage afterwards. The decision making necessary to create a program that flows well is a lot of work. Editing doubles the television production time for her. MetroVision's staff works closely with her.

I asked Kay to give us a piece of advice. Her voice was full of warmth and enthusiasm as she chirped, "Do it now when you can!"

Look into your life. What do you already do? Who do you already know? Through Community Access Television you may have the knowhow to make a difference in someone else's life. Through Community Access Television you can add challenge and purpose to your life. All you have to do is share. This concept is what makes advertisers flock to be placed within network talk shows. If you have something to say, someone will be in the viewing audience to listen.

You may have the good fortune to travel throughout the world as Kay Briggs does or you may just be able to travel across the room to your televison dial. Either way, you have something treasured in your life just waiting to be shared.

Randy Travis, Reba McEntire co-host CMA Awards show

Ceremonies mark another first for country's Randy Travis

By MARY ANN TOWNSEND

Country star Randy Travis knows all about firsts. His first album, "Storms of Life" in 1986 became the first debut LP by a solo country performer to achieve platinum status in less than one year. He was also the youngest male singer ever to be inducted into the Grand Ole Opry.

His career undergoes another first on Monday, Oct. 8, when he takes the stage for the first time as host of an awards program. With Reba McEntire, Travis co-hosts "The 24th Annual Country Music Association Awards," to air live from Nashville's Grand Ole Opry House on CBS.

Travis, undoubtedly has won a good portion of awards, but this marks the first time he will officiate any of the ceremonies.

"I would imagine I'll feel a little nervous about it, especially being the first time. Working with Reba though, she's done it a couple of times before and she'll probably be fairly comfortable with it, so maybe she'll help me a little bit," Travis speculated.

In addition to serving as host, Travis is also up for two awards this year, Entertainer of the Year and Music Video of the Year for "He Walked On Water." Likewise his co-host McEntire is up for two awards, Vocal Event of the Year, for her performance with Vince Gill, and Female Vocalist of the Year.

The singer/songwriter remains low-key, yet fully appreciative about the multitude of awards he has won from The Country Music Association, The Academy of Country Music, Music City News and others. Now a multiple Grammy Award-winner, too, Travis received the CMA's Horizon Award, an award given to newcomers, as recently as 1986.

"It seems like only last year. It literally seems like last year that I won the Horizon Award," Travis said. "We're working on the fifth year of traveling on the road. The years have gone by so quick it just seems amazing to me. It's just hard to imagine. It's hard to imagine the awards that I've won, and the record sales. All that was such a surprise anyway. I never expected that at all."

It would have been impossible, however, to have bottled up all of his successes in just one year. Since the 1986 release of "Storms of Life," Travis has carefully cranked out three other platinum albums, including "Always & Forever," "Old 8x10," and "No Holdin' Back." Last month Travis released another album, a montage of 14 duets with the likes of George Jones, Tammy Wynette, Loretta Lynn, Dolly Parton, Chet Atkins, Clint Eastwood, Roy Rogers, Merle Haggard, Verne Gosdon, Conway Twitty, Kris Kristofferson and B.B. King.

Travis said he displays the awards, photographs and plaques around the walls of his office, where they can be shared with everyone who is involved with his success.

"Everybody can see everything as they go through the office. And a lot of pictures, too, of people that I've worked with. It's nice. The chart of the first No. 1 record, the first time that "1982" was the No. 1 song, and then "On the Other Hand," just good stuff to remember," the singer/songwriter said, chuckling over his choice of words. "That's a good way to put it, the good stuff."

Don Franklin is the newest Pony Express rider on ABC's The Young Riders, Saturdays.

Q: Could you send me the mailing address for Mr. Johnny Cash? I have a photo that I would like to send him. I'm sure that he will enjoy seeing it. Appreciate your help. —Don Huber, Rapid City, S.D.

A: Send your photo to Mr. Johnny Cash, c/o House of Cash, 711 Summerfield Dr., Hendersonville, TN 37075.

Q: I know that Lorne Greene, who played Ben Cartwright on Bonanza passed away. What I want to know is the year that he died. —Yolanda Hubinek, Navarre, Fla.

A: Lorne Greene died in St. John's Hospital in Santa Monica, Calif. of cancer on Sept. 11, 1987. He was 72 years old.

STAR NOTES

Barbara Eden, Larry Hagman together again

By Christy Bergslien

Barbara Eden's joining the cast of Dallas this year just might lend the night-time drama a little magic.

Eden, 56, will be reunited with her I Dream Of Jeannie co-star Larry Hagman for the first time since 1971 when she and Hagman starred opposite each other in the horror film Howling In The Woods.

Eden won't be addressing Hagman as "master," though. On Dallas, Eden will play LeeAnn De La Vega, a very nasty—and very wealthy billionairess out to get J.R. "She's a real fun part," said Eden of her character. "And this time he calls me 'boss.'"

The pert and perky blonde was born in Tucson, Ariz. and grew up in San Francisco, where she studied singing and dancing. A high-school cheerleader, she then moved to Los Angeles after turning 19. Her first big break occurred when she was cast in the TV version of How To Marry A Millionaire.

In 1965, Eden was cast in I Dream Of Jeannie for which audiences will always remember her, and she has had an active film and television career ever since. However, not until 1981 could "Jeannie" create for herself another TV series role. In that year she starred in Harper Valley P.T.A., a spin-off of her popular film, and in 1989 A Brand New Life. © TV Listing Inc

TIME OUT

Teams spar as 49ers take the week off

By Steve Paschal

Although the Super Bowl champion San Francisco 49ers have the fourth week of the 1990 National Football League season off, all three major networks will feature games involving former Super Bowl teams bent on dethroning the dominant professional team of the 1980s.

On Sunday, Sept. 30, NBC highlights its six-game regional schedule with the Denver Broncos taking on the Buffalo Bills. Denver is trying to make it back to the Super Bowl after a humiliating loss to the 49ers last year, while the Bills, considered by many to be the team to beat in the AFC last season before losing to Cleveland in the playoffs, are looking to regain the intensity that propelled them to a 12-4 record in 1988.

CBS will spotlight a legitimate Super Bowl contender against a team trying to recapture its glory days when the New York Giants host the Dallas Cowboys. The Giants, winners over Denver in Super Bowl XXI, are favored to win the NFC East.

ABC's Monday Night Football will showcase the battle between the Seattle Seahawks and the Cincinnati Bengals. With quarterback Boomer Esiason, who led all AFC passers with 28 touchdowns a year ago, throwing to receivers Tim McGee, Eddie Brown and Rodney Holman, the Bengals are picked to face the 49ers in a replay of Super Bowl XXIII. © TV Listing Inc

CABLE NEWS

Michael Douglas stars in 'Black Rain'

By Amy Schmidt

Oscar winner Michael Douglas plays in Black Rain premiering on HBO Saturday, Oct. 6. Ridley Scott, who produced such hits as Alien and Blade Runner, directs this action thriller about a New York detective who, while escorting a Japanese gangster, loses him in the Osaka underworld.

Showtime's top billing goes to the critically acclaimed hit Dead Poets Society premiering Monday, Oct. 1. The picture was a surprise smash, and won an Oscar for Best Original Screenplay. It was also nominated for Best Picture, Actor and Director. Robin Williams plays an unconventional school teacher whose odd methods open the minds of his young charges in a traditional New England prep school.

Cheers' Ted Danson hosts A TBS "World Audubon Special" titled Danger At The Beach, premiering Sunday, Sept. 30. Danson will travel across the country from the nation's dirtiest harbor in Boston to Washington's Puget Sound to discuss the impact of pollution on water, wildlife and, ultimately, man.

A vegetable-oil car and robots for disabled people will be featured on The Discovery Channel's new series, Invention, premiering Tuesday, Oct. 2. Produced in conjunction with the Smithsonian Institution, the show will feature inventors' creations and gadgets. © TV Listing Inc

TRIVIA, ETC.

Who played role of Jim Stark?

By Steven Alan McGaw

Questions:

1. Identify the film in which the central character is named Jim Stark. (Easy bonus: Who played the role?)
2. Name the actor who played Major Armbruster in The Dirty Dozen.
3. Here's an easy one, but fun. Name the film that features this immortal line: "Of all the gin joints in all the towns in all the world, she walks into mine."
4. This actor killed Humphrey Bogart in three different movies. He was:
5. Some time ago, they made a film (not a really great movie, but interesting) of Jack Kerouac's The Subterraneans. Here are the questions: a.) When was the film made? b.) Who are the stars (try for four)? c.) Several jazz artists appear in the film, but who among them actually composed the score?

Answers:

1. Rebel Without A Cause, starring James Dean.
2. George Kennedy.
3. Casablanca, of course!
4. James Cagney, the dirty rat.
5. a.) 1960. b.) You might have mentioned George Peppard, Leslie Caron, Janice Rule, Anne Seymour or Jim Hutton, and everybody who's seen the film remembers Roddy McDowall. c.) Andre Previn.

BITS AND PIECES

Mary Hart happy with reviews of second syndicated special

Mary Hart, Entertainment Tonight co-anchor, happy with the reviews of her second syndicated special, Mary Hart Presents Power In The Public Eye, reminds fans not to compare her to Barbara Walters. "My show is totally different. I'm trying to create something unique from the Barbara Walters format," she said. However, she plans to do only three specials a year.

Mary Hart

Wendy Kilbourne, who portrays KJCM radio station owner Devon King on the NBC series Midnight Caller, will leave her regular role on the series after completion of this season's fifth episode. Kilbourne, who makes her home in Los Angeles and is expecting her first child in November, has opted to leave the series, which films on location in San Francisco. "My husband (actor James Read) and I are thrilled about the upcoming birth of our baby. It is unfortunate, however, that the demands of commuting to the San Francisco location are incompatible with the needs of an infant," she explained.

Actor Paul Winfield will host PBS' Showcase Week Sept. 30 through Oct. 6. It offers a sample of the series that will air on public television this fall. Winfield will appear during breaks to talk about the value of public TV.

The new half-hour CBS comedy series Lenny, starring Lenny Clarke, is set in Clarke's real-life hometown of Boston and parallels many of the comedian's personal experiences.

A world-wide search has begun for a beautiful, and perhaps unknown, actress to play America's most celebrated and intriguing First Lady—Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis—in a six-hour miniseries. Based on the C. Davis Heymann best seller A Woman Named Jackie, the miniseries, costing $20 million, will air on NBC.

SOAP TALK

Billy Warlock returns to 'Days'

By Candace Havens

OK! Hold on to your hat! You'll never guess who's coming back to the popular daytime soap Days Of Our Lives.

Billy Warlock (Frankie Brady) will return to the show in early November, to the delight of millions of fans. Warlock left the show in October of 1988 when his character headed out to Columbia University in New York.

After leaving the show, Warlock landed a starring role in NBC's prime-time series, Baywatch. He also took the time to do a few television movies including, Swimsuit, Class Cruise and an after school special, But It Wasn't My Fault.

Will he return to rekindle the fires with Jennifer? Al Rabin, supervising executive producer for the show, says "We welcome him back with a storyline which I'm certain will intrigue, surprise and delight his many fans."

We'll see, Al, we'll see.

Dear Candace: I agree with P.L. in Wisconsin, there is "too much" Cricket on The Young And The Restless. But what really is unreal is—there are no! new! men! on the show for Ashley. She needs someone besides Victor and Brad. She needs a new love interest. They need some new blood on the show instead of recycling Brad, Victor and Jack. —B.S., California

Dear Candace: I am a big fan of Cricket on Y&R and I really enjoy watching her on the show. She is both pretty and talented. I think the people who criticize her are out of their minds. —Thanks for listening, Tiffany, Eagar, Ariz.

Dear Candace: I agree with Hattie Rand who wrote to your column about Susan Lucci (Erica, All My Children). I, too, believe that Lucci is a super actress and she most certainly deserves an Emmy for her work. I'm convinced that the people who choose the winners are very unfair. She is far superior to anyone chosen in the past 10 years. She should have won this prestigious award years ago. I am sure that someone is cheating her out of this award. —Thanks, Raymonce D. Baca, Las Vegas, N.M.

I want to hear from you! If you have a favorite soap scenario you would like to sound off about, or a question about the soaps, write to Candace Havens, Soap Talk, P.O. Box 17748, Fort Worth, TX 76102-0748.

LET'S TALK

Eric Pierpoint's youth spent accompanying journalist dad

By Polly Vonetes

Q: I am fascinated by the young actor, Eric Pierpoint who plays George in Alien Nation. How did he get started in show business? Is he married? —Vivian Pollard, Lenox, Iowa

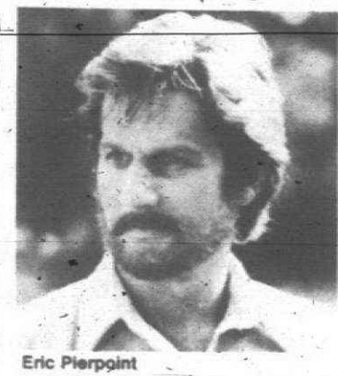
A: Eric Pierpoint was born in Redlands, Calif., Nov. 18, 1944. Growing up as the son of CBS correspondent Robert Pierpoint, Eric has wonderfully jaded memories of flying on the presidential press plane in the 1960s, his dad's typewriter in tow. Traveling with those many salty press corps characters perhaps prepared him for his many travels in theater. He attended the Landon School and Walt Whitman High School in Bethesda, Md., excelling at soccer and tennis. But by the end of his college days at the University of Redlands and Catholic University, he knew an athletic career wasn't in his future. So he "shifted to theater as a means of expression." During the 1977-78 theatrical season, a year he considers to be "the biggest influence" on his career, Eric joined up with the National Players touring company to take classical theater on the road, dropping Shakespeare into towns around the States. He was married once, but at present has no immediate family. His TV credits include a recurring role on Hill Street Blues, a series regular part on Fame, a starring role in the series Hot Pursuit, and starring roles in Bud Greenspan's documentaries on the 1932 and '36 Olympics.



Eric Pierpoint

Q: I am looking for a movie I saw on TV three years ago. It is called Nadia and stars Talia Balsom and Joe Bennett. It's a drama based on the life of Romanian gymnast Nadia Comaneci. I cannot find this video at any movie outlet. Can you give me any information as to where I could purchase this? And why is it never shown on TV again? —Phyllis Gaither, Prescott, Ariz.

A: The film Nadia you have inquired about was released in syndication in June of 1984. A British-Yugoslavian co-production, it was distributed by the Tribune Entertainment Co. You can write to MPI Home Video, 15824 Rob Roy Drive, Oak Forest, IL 60452, or call toll-free at 800-323-0442 to inquire if a video tape is available.

Q: Your article appears in the Gig Harbor, Washington* Gateway *and is great. I'm a songwriter, with over 20 years of backlog, and am attempting to find the ex-Beatle Paul McCartney's home or business address. You seem to know about everything, can you get this for me? —Bill Johnson, Pt. Orchard, Wash.

A: Well, I don't know about knowing everything, but I do have some good sources for information. I am told you can contact Paul McCarthey by writing his public relations firm: Rogers & Cowan, 10000 Santa Monica Blvd., Los Angeles, CA 90067.

Send your questions about the world of entertainment to: Polly Vonetes, Let's Talk, P.O. Box 17748, Fort Worth, Texas 76102-0748. Because of the volume of mail, only questions of general interest can be answered.

'Andy Griffith Show' reunion airs on TBS

By Amy Schmidt

Oh boy! Members of "The Andy Griffith Show Rerun Watchers Club," and "The Andy Griffith Appreciation Society" comprise the studio audience for the special, 30 Years Of Andy: A Mayberry Reunion, airing on TBS Wednesday, Oct. 3.

On that date in 1960, the very first episode of The Andy Griffith Show delighted television audiences. The TBS special will consist of one hour of air time for each decade since the show's debut, for a whopping total of three hours. Don Knotts will host as celebrities who guest-starred on the show, Mayberry trivia questions and five episodes are featured.

In the first episode, "The New Housekeeper," Aunt Bee (Frances Bavier) comes to live with the Taylors but she first has to win Opie's (Ron Howard) acceptance. In "Fun Girls," Helen (Aneta Corsaut) and Thelma Lou (Betty Lynn) jump to conclusions after spotting Andy and Barney with Daphne (Jean Carson) and Skippy (Joyce Jameson)—the fun-loving blondes from Mt. Pilot. A pack of hunting hounds overruns the Mayberry courthouse in "Dogs, Dogs, Dogs," and Andy tries to pass actor Howard Morris off as his sophisticated cousin at a high-society party in "My Fair Ernest T. Bass." "Big Fish In A Small Town," stars Jack Dodson catching the carp of Tucker Lake.

These are part of the 59-piece Powell glass collection from the Wetsman Collection's fall show, "Turns in Nature." James Powell & Sons (Whitefriars) Ltd. is a 200-year-old English glass company that balances a fine line between pure function and artistic pieces; the latter didn't come until the 1920s.

Decorative art

Wood, glass exhibit showcases 'turns in nature'

THE WOOD lathe is a mere conduit to the artist's final vision, but whether it be a bowl made of Norfolk pine carved to a striking one-tenth of an inch thick, or solid sculptural pieces made of pink ivory, it's a sophisticated tool that turns wood to art.

"Turns of Nature," an exclusive exhibit of wood vessels of all sizes and 59 pieces of Powell glass, will bring to life the sophisticated turns of the lathe and glass works. The exhibit will premiere on Thursday in Farmington. It's sponsored by the Janis Wetsman 20th Century Decorative Art Collection, Birmingham.

Exhibit-goers will be treated to the dreamy, wave-patterned vessels in the Powell glass collection, as well as more functional pieces with just a hint of color.

Artists from California, Hawaii, Vermont and Georgia will display wood-turned pieces in the exhibit. An opening night reception will be from 5-8 p.m. on Thursday at Artpack Services Inc., in Farmington, 31505 Grand River, Door No. 10.

"People are buying wood-turned pieces as part of the new art of accessorization," said Janis Wetsman, owner of the Janis Wetsman 20th Century Decorative Art Collection. "The pieces bring instant character when they're placed in the home or office."

"TURNS OF Nature," Wetsman's sixth exhibit, will feature works by William Hunter, Ronald Kent, Bruce Mitchell, Michael Mode, Philip C. Moulthrop and Mike Shuler.

Among the pieces are:

- The razor-thin, translucent bowls of Ron Kent, represented in the permanent collections of The Louvre and the Detroit Institute of Arts.
- The vessels of native-Californian wood sculptor William Hunter.
- The different colorations of Powell glass, all functional, made in the 1920s and 1930s.

DATING BACK to 1600 B.C., "the wood-turning craft is making a comeback among artists," Wetsman added, noting artists today are concerned more with form than function.

Early archaeological findings have indicated wood turning started nearly 3,000 years ago by Etruscans, Celts and people living in the area now known as Crimea. The first wood turners would mount blocks of wood into poles, great wheels or treadle machines, then carve the wood as it spun on a central axis.

'People are buying wood-turned pieces as part of the new art of accessorization. The pieces bring instant character when they're placed in the home or office.'

— Janis Wetsman collection owner

The greatest advancement in early wood turning was the lathe, which reduced the time needed to complete a wood-turned piece. It also introduced a level of sophisticated visual essence.

Modern-day wood turners use the lathe to concentrate on the form of the object rather than the grain of the wood. Most wood turners use special gauge tools that help configurate the wood into functional bowls or larger vessels and sculptures.

As in ancient times, drying techniques create the final image. Distorting, crackling and natural element deposits in the wood give character and unusual quality to the finished works.

THE COLLECTION of Powell glass, meanwhile, includes many examples of the Whitefriars glassworks designs and colors that changed during various periods of the two-century-old company.

The collection is represented by both "cloudy" and "streaky" colors such as amber, amethyst, pale blue, sea green and ruby.

The company's involvement in World War I glass production kept the Powell's sculptural forms on the backburner. That is why the more creative designs are sometimes referred to as "glass between the wars."

The glass pieces presented by Janis Westman range in price from $400 to $1,200. The wood-turned objects are priced from $400 to $4,000.

Gallery hours for the Farmington exhibit are 1-5 p.m. Oct. 5-7 and 11-13, and by appointment Oct. 8-10. For more information, call 645-6212 or 478-8946.

Rodin sculpture inspired her

While on vacation in 1960, Janis Wetsman was captivated by an original Rodin sculpture.

Unaccustomed to art collecting, her impulsive purchase of the sculpture inspired her to become one of metro Detroit's most experienced collectors of 20th century decorative art.

As an avid traveler, Wetsman honed her newfound interest by seeking out fine art and sculpture throughout the United States, Europe and parts of Africa.

Although her selections were based on personal appeal, the mounting collection profiled the important decorative art styles from various periods of the 20th century, from the late 1920s to the 1980s.

Initially, her artistic forays were relegated to summer and holiday periods while earning a bachelor's and master's degree in special education from Wayne State University.

BY 1968, Wetsman was actively buying and selling art to upgrade her personal collection.

She became particularly enamored with American Indian art from the southwest region of the United States. Soon, she was researching rugs, pottery and other decorative objects indigenous to the area to showcase in a second home in Arizona and her permanent residence in Birmingham.

Through the 1970s and '80s, Wetsman traveled and studies art history of decorative furniture and accent pieces, and the names which inspired classic designs during the century.

She began buying rare works of Charles Eames, Gilbert Rohde, Donald Knorr, George Nakashima, Ettorre Sottsass and others who became her inspiration.

SHE ALSO was inspired by the ancient art of wood turning, which, according to Wetsman, is just beginning to resurface among artisan and artist trades.

"More people are showing interest in natural elements like wood, clay and glass," she said. "Wood-turned crafts bring instant character to a home or office."

In 1988, Wetsman decided to offer private tours of her Birmingham gallery, Janis Wetsman 20th Century Decorative Art, to interior design professionals and independent collectors. The gallery is accented by handcrafted, wood-turned vessels and custom-designed furniture that are for sale.

Director appointed for Center Galleries

The appointment of Dennis Alan Nawrocki as director of the Center for Creative Galleries was recently announced by The Center for Creative Studies/College of Art and Design, Detroit.

The Center Galleries are on Woodward Avenue and Kirby in the Park Shelton Building. They are an exhibition facility for works by college faculty, alumni, nationally and internationally known artists and college students.

Within this facility are the Sarkis Gallery, which features exhibitions of regional and national interest; the Society Gallery, which presents faculty and alumni work; and the Underground 245 Gallery, which is managed by students and presents selected exhibitions of their work.

Hours September-July are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday-Friday and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Nawrocki, who also teaches art history in the Academic Studies Department at CCS-CAD, has taught at colleges and museums, including the Detroit Institute of Arts; the University of Michigan; the Museum of Contemporary Art, Chicago; and Eastern Michigan University.

He was assistant curator of education at the Detroit Institute of Arts and associate curator for research and collection at the Museum of Contemporary Art, Chicago, where he also served as director of education.

As recently as May, he was curator of education and associate chairman of the museum practice program at the University of Michigan Museum of Contemporary Art.

Start a business with great care

Q: I have an idea for a new business that I'm sure would be successful. I've done all the research and am convinced it would be a good thing to do, yet I can't seem to get started. Why would a person delay such a good thing?

A: Any of a host of reasons may be holding you back. I can only guess at yours. Fear of failure or success are two of the most common reasons for avoiding risk.

Although you seem sure the business would be financially profitable, you may not be convinced of your personal ability to handle it. Don't, therefore, discount fear of failure as a factor. Taking a merchandising or other appropriate class might overcome a lack of knowledge.

Fear of success can be more difficult to understand. Perhaps you can imagine yourself rising to only a certain level in life.

If your business venture became wildly successful, would that place you above, and, therefore, out of your comfort zone? Mike Todd once said, "If you make a million dollars and lose it, you can do it again." Changing your perception of your status in life may be helpful.

Talking with others who have started businesses can also soothe your fears. Two people currently taking risk are Gayle Gardner and Paula Rand of Ann Arbor. They tuned into two factors: 1) People spend prolonged periods recuperating in hospitals with nothing to do. 2) Thousands of audiotapes are purchased, played once and then stored away.

They have, therefore, founded Companion Cassettes Inc., an audiotape rental and sales business run through hospital gift shops to help patients pass long idle days and weeks. Every type of cassette is available — books on tape, motivational, educational, etc. Tape players can also be rented.

Gardner, a registered nurse, and Rand, a corporate librarian, were both scared and excited about their new venture when I met them last week at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor.

"We're taking a real risk," they said as they laughed heartily but nervously. "Some of our friends think we are crazy. But we're convinced there's a real need for this."

They hope to expand into the corporate world next, so that traveling business people can rent their tapes and return them in mailers. Companion Cassettes can be reached at 683-6919 or 994-1511.

I would encourage you to ask yourself, "What is the worst thing that can happen if I start this business?"

Visualizing worst-case scenarios and then dealing with those fears is an effective way to remove mental roadblocks. Good luck.

The Crossings At Canton.
Apartment living just got better.
We're making The Crossings a better place to live and a better value. You'll feel it in the new hallways and newly refurbished clubhouse. You'll see it in the plush landscaping when you enter the grounds. And that's just the beginning. It's the new look and feel of The Crossings at Canton—and it's for you.
The Crossings at Canton offers 19 different floorplans with 1 to 4 bedrooms. And whether you choose a 2-level townhome or a luxury apartment, the renewed beauty of this charming rental community shines through in every one—the result of our recent "Capital Improvements & Upgrading" program. These apartments and townhomes are the largest in the area, yet are still incredibly affordable.
Discover these features at The Crossings at Canton:
• Dens & Fireplaces
• Fully-appliance Kitchens
• Patios or Balconies
• Central Air Conditioning
• A Clubhouse with sauna, indoor pool, exercise room, a new party room, and more!
Visit The Crossings at Canton today. We're just 20 minutes from Ann Arbor and downtown Detroit, yet comfortably away from it all. From I-275, just exit Arbor Rd. West to Haggerty Rd., follow south to Joy Rd. then east to The Crossings. Open Mon.-Fri., 10-6, Sat. 10-5, Sun. 12-5 Phone 455-2424 today.

RESEARCH SYSTEMS, INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY DIVISION
The University of Michigan
The Research Systems unit of the Information Technology Division of the University of Michigan is searching for an Associate Director of Development and Deployment and an Associate Director for Computing Services both of whom will report to the Director. The Information Technology Division provides voice and data technology services to the University community. Research Systems' role is to take the lead in providing centrally supported and integrated computer information services to faculty, students, and staff in order to support them in their academic activities, and to provide similar services to outside organizations. Research Systems collaborates with other units of ITD in the design of the campus information system architecture of the future. An integrated electronic mail system, campus-wide UNIX support, and provision of an institutional file system are among the challenges for Research Systems.

Associate Director of Development and Deployment
The Associate Director of Development and Deployment will provide leadership and be responsible for the program of Research Systems in the design, development, integration, and maintenance of workstation, and mainframe/server operating systems, applications software, and electronic mail, and will plan for new and emerging technologies.
The successful candidate must have a Master's degree in Computer Science or a related field or an equivalent combination of education and experience, and have considerable experience in the supervision and management of professional and technical staff in a large institutional setting.

Associate Director for Computing Services
The Associate Director for Computing Services will plan and direct the delivery of academic computing services by Research Systems to the UM community. The successful candidate will be responsible for short and long range planning for new computer equipment; computer software testing and installation, and physical facilities, and will prepare and administer the computing services budget for Research Systems. The incumbent will also manage the operation of the Scientific Computation Group and the Visualization Laboratory.
The successful candidate must have a Master's degree in Computer Science, Engineering, or other discipline relevant to the management of large computer systems or an equivalent combination of education and experience. Considerable experience in the technical, administrative, and management aspects of computer installations and distributed systems in a large institutional setting is necessary.
To ensure consideration of your credentials, a letter of interest and two copies of your resume should be sent by October 15, 1990 to: The University Of Michigan, Attn: Richard Lederer, 519 W. Williams, Dept., OE, Ann Arbor, MI., 48103-4943.
The University of Michigan is a non-discriminatory, affirmative action employer

Slowdown? Builders don't see it

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Residential construction continues on a fairly steady pace here, builders say, despite talk about Michigan being near or in economic recession and the military build-up in the Middle East.

Many builders contacted reported that building activity is as good or better than they had projected at the beginning of the year.

Declines were described as slight.

"It is a little moderate, but it's always moderate at this time of year," said James S. Bonadeo, president of the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan and president of a Plymouth building company.

"We (Bonadeo Builders) are way ahead of last year, about 20 percent," he said. "I expect we'll do $10-11 million in business."

Byrne Benson, president of a Waterford building company, spoke of similar success.

"Our business is up 25-30 percent from last year and last year was a good year for us," Benson said. "This year we project out to 125-130 houses.

"WE DON'T build much over $100,000," he said. "We have financing tools available, FHA and VA. If people are credit worthy, we can usually get them in a house.

"We got worried six weeks ago when things cropped up in the Middle East," he added. "We're building up in North Oakland, Ortonville. That's a big drive but people are coming out every weekend."

Builders expressed few concerns about interest rates, which they say have been steady this year.

Bernard Glieberman, president of Crosswinds Communities of West Bloomfield, said his sales have been better than expected this year.

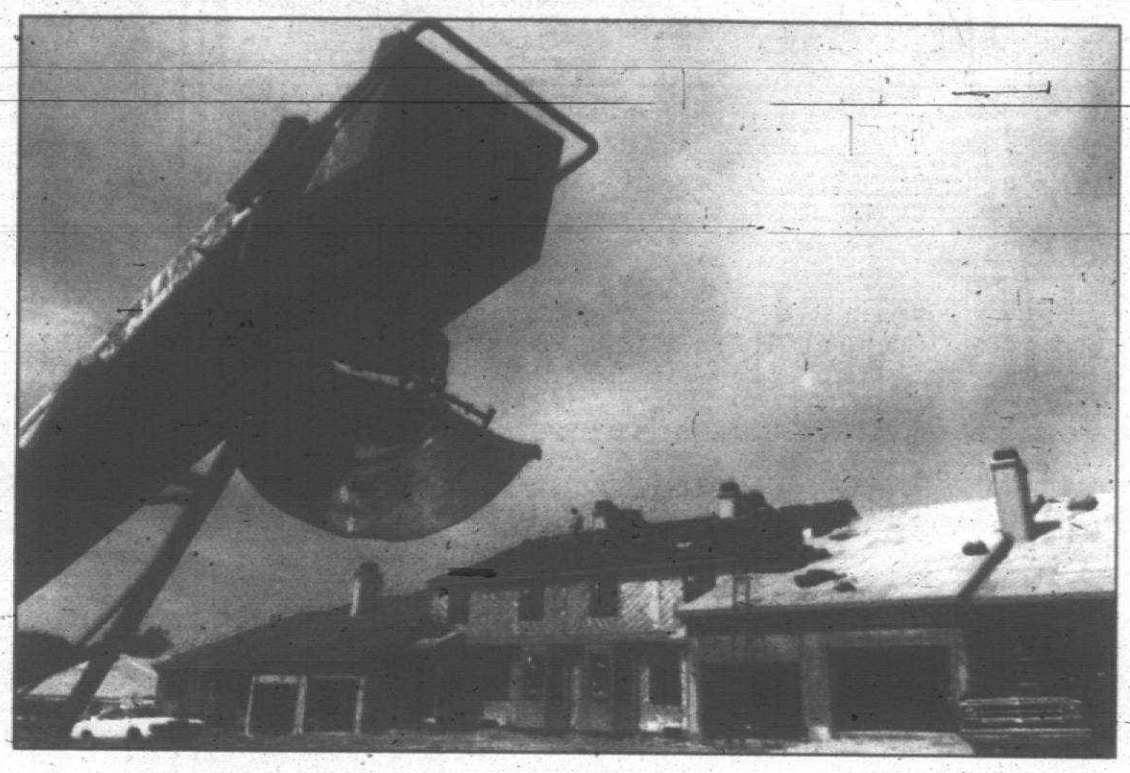
"The affordable market is alive and well," he said. "We haven't really been affected much by the economy."

Glieberman said he expects to sell out all 136 condominium sites in Farmington Hills, priced $114,990-$126,990, by next spring. He's sold 50 condos in Westland priced $75,000-$100,000 before even opening a model.

Donald Pratt, president of Wake-Pratt of Troy, also reported a solid 1990.

"WE'RE HAVING a good year even though the market is a little soft now," he said. "I'm projecting a good year next year, too."

Pratt builds custom designed houses priced at $350,000 and up, plus starter condominiums in Pontiac for $50,000-$60,000.



SHARON LeMIEUX/staff photographer

No dramatic downturn in residential housing starts has occurred in metro Detroit this year. While builders reported varying degrees of starts, preliminary figures compiled through June by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments indicated almost as many starts this year as last in Oakland and Wayne counties. Here, work crews labor at the Copper Creek condominium community in Farmington Hills.

"The higher end stuff is usually not quite as dependent on the ups and downs of the economy," he said.

Young couples and singles are keeping traffic brisk at the condominiums. This year, Pratt expects to build 50-60 condos as he annually does and seven to eight custom homes when he normally does 10-15.

A downturn in the auto industry will have some affect, but not nearly as much as in previous years, Pratt speculated.

"We're dependent on it, but not as dependent as we used to be."

Joseph Slavik, an owner of the Slavik Cos. of Farmington Hills, wasn't as upbeat as his counterparts.

"UP UNTIL a month ago," it was about what we had projected," he said. "We knew there was going to be a slowdown, but didn't know when it was going to happen.

"In the lower end ($80,000-$150,000), 30-60 days ago, things slowed up considerably. I think I'm going to build a few less than I had anticipated."

Buying cools for a variety of reasons, Slavik said.

"Why they don't buy? There's a million reasons. When consumers decide things don't look too good either nationally or locally, a couple meets at breakfast and says, 'Let's wait.'

"If they feel real estate values will fall, they won't buy. If interest rates are falling, they won't buy.

"The higher end is a different animal," Slavik added. "Normally you have people with a lot of money in the bank and security. This (housing) is a luxury."

Scott Jacobson, president of a Birmingham building company, attributes a 5 percent decline in his housing starts this year to consumer uncertainty about the direction of the economy and a slowdown in the resale market.

UNCERTAINTY causes people to sit on the fence, delay decisions, even though they may not be directly affected by unfolding events, he said.

Jacobson prices in the middle range, $180,000-$350,000, especially attractive for second-time buyers who upgrade.

"There's some difficulty in the sale of used houses. They're just not moving as quickly as in years past," he said.

Mark Guidobono, president of Cambridge Homes of Northville, said he believes the cyclical real estate market probably is due for a downward swing.

"Anybody could have made money in the building business the last five years," he said. "Guys who know what they're doing and have a professional way of doing business will survive. Those who don't, will be weeded out in the next recession, which could be starting now."

The Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan projected last January that housing starts could increase by some 5 percent this year.

Prelimary statistics compiled by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments indicate that permits were issued for 3,644 housing units in Oakland County through June of this year compared to 3,696for the first six months of 1989.

Corresponding figures for Wayne County are 1,518 for the first half of 1990, 1,569 for 1989.

"The best month for the builder is January in terms of sales," Bonadeo said. "Second is February and March is third. The holidays are over, people don't have much to do. The weather is not great. So they look at model homes and end up buying."

Architects say law on their side in design squabble

By Gerald Frawley
staff writer

Residential, commercial, office and industrial buildings are being designed illegally because state law is either misunderstood or ignored.

Architects say the law is the law and is should be followed; builders say the law is antiquated and should be changed.

"This is not just a Homearama issue," said Ben Tiseo, the chairman of the Detroit chapter of the American Institute of Architects (AIA) professional practices committee.

"This has to do with the profession and practice of architecture."

THE RECENT flap in local newspapers regarding the use of designers providing architectural services at the upcoming show of homes in Genoa Township is just an example of a larger problem, Tiseo said.

"It's bad press in a way because it sounds like a turf war. People may not agree with the law, but that's not the problem — if you don't like the law, change it, but don't ignore it."

The problem is simply stated — people unlicensed to offer architectural services are offering them, and in some cases, licensed architects, careless building officials and builders are helping them.

"If the architects are policing themselves, the problem will go away," Tiseo said. "That's one area we've really been negligent in — getting the message out."

BY REFUSING to review projects at the end of a design — in a practice known as "selling the seal" — architects could eliminate most of the problems.

If building officials refuse to issue a permit for plans without a licensed architect's signature, the problem would also be resolved.

In all the hoopla raised over the architects' interpretation of the law, no has focused on the need for the law, said Irvin Yackness, executive director of the Builders Association of Southeast Michigan.

"I haven't heard of any houses with structural problems," he said.

Whenever complaints are lodged by homeowners, he said, they are about aesthetic concerns.

YACKNESS STRESSED the law requiring architect supervision was passed in the 1930s and does not reflect the present-day building environment.

"Maybe it's time we look at it again."

Building codes and individual building departments are more sophisticated than when the law was enacted.

"The public doesn't have to be apprehensive that they are moving into unsafe houses."

A home has to pass through 18 to 20 inspections by building departments and other experts before an occupancy permit is granted.

"Every stage of construction is covered.

"The best proof of what I'm saying is that we haven't had any problems."

TISEO DISAGREED.

"If there is a (design) problem, or an injury, or a death — everyone will point to the architect because he is the professional."

BUILDING OFFICIALS shouldn't issue building permits unless an architect has supervised or done the design; architects should not review designs they didn't do or supervise; designers shouldn't design buildings larger than 3,500 square feet; engineers shouldn't act in the place of architects by approving designs; and builders should be aware of the law and follow it, Tiseo said.

Tiseo said he and other architects decided last November that the problem had gone on long enough, and they formed the professional practices committee to monitor and evaluate the situation.

What they found was widespread abuses of the law, Tiseo said.

"Most people are aware of the licensing act but they don't want to abide by it."

IN THE PAST year, the AIA has made 58 complaints — 30 of which were levied last week and only three were levied at Homearama homes — of improper practices by architects, engineers, builders and designers for violations of state law.

THE LAW requiring that architects design or supervise the design of a project was written for the express reason of protecting the public health, safety and welfare.

To get a license, architects must take five years of schooling, three years of apprenticeship and a standardized national test.

A designer, on the other hand, may not have studied architecture at all, Dumke said.

JACK SHARPE, the licensing administrator with the state board of architects, said there are probably many abuses of the state law, but it's almost impossible to figure out to what degree.

Most violations are reported by building officials, disgruntled clients or other architects, he said.

IT'S DIFFICULT to gauge how often these violations occur, said William Wagner, the supervisor of the state licensing and regulation enforcement division.

"The state traditionally doesn't investigate cases on its own — we're a consumer protection agency that responds to complaints," he said.

Wagner supervises 23 investigators — each has a case load in excess of 100 cases.

Wagner doesn't know how many are architecture-related complaints because his department is also responsible for 28 other occupations and professions, he said.

BUILDERS USE designers instead of architects for two reasons — cost and control, Tiseo said.

"Designers are less expensive than architects," he said. "(Also) if an architect is doing his job, (the builder) has less control."

Builders use staff designers for two reasons, Yackness said:

One, the builder can establish a relationship with a staff designer better than he can with an independent architect, and two, builders often work in specific customer niches, and an in-house designer who is familiar with that niche can better serve the builder.

Are You Like Me?
I'm 33, have 2 children, and want the better things in life. My career rewards me well for my efforts. I work between 42 and 46 hours in a well-displayed showroom. I enjoy people and get great personal satisfaction from knowing their lives will be better for having purchased my product. I presently earn in excess of $2500 a month salary plus commission and I'm not the highest paid salesperson in my company. I also have a full benefits package including major medical, prescription, dental, and even profit-sharing. If this sounds like you, we should talk.

12-point car check saves time, money

AAA Michigan

The 12-point car check can be done at home if you're equipped with the owner's manual, a wire brush, a tire pressure gauge, a screwdriver, an antifreeze hydrometer and baking soda.

A FEW household tools and a half hour of spare time could save motorists from inconvenient breakdowns and costly auto repair bills this winter, AAA Michigan reports.

"By performing a simple 12-point car care checkup, motorists can avoid many of the problems a typical Michigan car owner experiences in winter," said Paul Gliesman, AAA Michigan Emergency Road Service manager.

"For example, last year our Emergency Road Service crew assisted 884,870 motorists, with nearly half involving jump starts."

For those car owners doing the 12-point check at home, the only items required are the owner's manual, a wire brush, a tire pressure gauge, a screwdriver, an antifreeze hydrometer and baking soda.

THE FOLLOWING items should be checked:

- Battery — Dip a wire brush in a baking soda and water solution and scrub the battery terminals and cable ends. Do not splash the solution on painted surfaces. If the battery is not maintenance-free, make sure water is at the correct level.
- Antifreeze — Check the radiator's antifreeze strength with a hydrometer to make sure it's about 36 degrees below zero. The level of antifreeze in the overflow tank should also be checked.
- Brake fluid — Pry off the chamber's cover clips with a screwdriver if necessary, or just screw off the cap on some of the newer models. Keep the fluid level within one-quarter inch from the top of the reservoir. New models have translucent reservoirs and can be checked visually.
- Oil — Check level with dipstick. Add oil as needed. Check owner's manual for exact intervals between changes and for SAE viscosity grade.
- Power steering fluid — Follow directions in owner's manual when checking the indicator stick. Add fluid slowly to avoid overfilling.
- Automatic transmission fluid — Check the indicator stick, usually located behind the engine on the passenger side. Make sure the car is on level ground and placed in "park" with the engine running when doing the check.
- Tires — Check tire pressure with a gauge for correct inflation and inspect tread wear. For accuracy, check inflation pressures when the tires are cold, after a car has been sitting for three hours or more.
- Belts and hoses — Press on the middle of each belt to test tension. Tighten or replace belts that give more than 1 to 1½ inches. Check for cracks and fraying and be sure hoses are firmly in place. Replace as needed.
- Lights, signals — Activate them to make sure they work.
- Air filter — Hold the filter up to a light. Replace it if you can't see the light through it.

IT'S THE season of apple cider, falling leaves and school bells.

But it's also time to start giving serious thought to something often taken for granted: your car.

Noises are a clue that something's wrong with your car. Squealing brakes mean worn brake pads. Sudden screeching under the hood signifies a worn loose drive belt. Knocking or pinging might announce it's the time for a tuneup.

To help get you in the proper spirit to fine-tune your trusted buggy before Old Man Winter roars in, we've put together this handy fall car care guide, appearing today in all 13 Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

It's chock full of informative and just plain interesting facts about the world of auto care.

From finding a good mechanic to doing repairs yourself, you'll find useful tips here.

Car security — alarms, locks and more

By Monica Perez
special writer

WHOA — THERE went one! Depending on which statistics you read, in the United States a car is stolen approximately every 22 seconds.

By the time you finish this article, another five or six of the 1.43 million cars that get snatched this year will be heading for the border or a "chop shop" to be stripped and sold in parts.

Four out of five stolen cars don't have locked doors when they're taken, according to the Insurance Information Institute, and one in five are recovered with the owner's keys still in them!

THE INSTITUTE suggests the following ways to reduce the chance of your car being ripped off:

- Always roll up windows, lock the doors and pocket the key.
- Have your vehicle identification number etched onto the windshield, flip top and sunroof.
- Sharply turn the front wheels of the car to make it difficult to tow backward. On front-wheel-drive vehicles, engage the emergency brake and set the gear in park to lock all four wheels.
- Put packages and valuables out of sight.
- Keep the license and registration in your wallet or purse.
- Park in well-lighted, highly visible areas.

THE INSTITUTE offers free consumer information about car, home and business insurance; write to it at 110 William St., New York 10038.

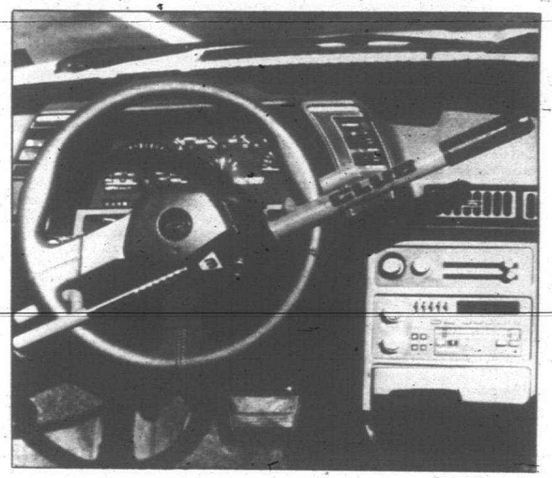
The technology available in car security these days is phenomenal.

The simplest is a locking device on the steering wheel, such as the much-publicized The Club. This locks on the steering wheel, rendering it undriveable; it's endorsed by police departments in a number of U.S. cities. It doesn't however, prevent your stereo from being ripped off. The cost is around $50 to $60; and it's sold at auto supply stores and major department stores.

If an alarm system is more what you had in mind, for an affordable $100 you can install the Fox Guard I, a black box with a cord you plug into the car lighter. A red light alerts thieves of its presence; when triggered through a current sensor, a motion sensor and/or a glass-break detector, it blasts two sirens and a strobe light.



Copley News Service

Protecting your vehicle can be as simple as using a steering wheel lock or as elaborate as a laser alarm system.

PASSIVE SECURITY systems are those that automatically switch themselves on a few moments after you leave your car; some even lock the doors for you. These are the systems favored by insurance companies, many of which will reduce your premiums by as much as 10 percent (in some states, they're required by law to do so).

The range of options in this category is staggering; the least expensive of which start at around $250. Some can tell the difference between a nudge from another car and an actual break-in.

Systems that must be armed manually can sometimes get you a 5-percent rate break from your insurance company; before you go shopping, call your agent and see if there are particular brands they discount for.

Perhaps the most high-tech systems to date are the ones that track your car via transmitter. In California, the Mobile Electronic Tracking System has a central station hookup; when the alarm is alerted, the station calls the owner to verify it has been taken. If so, the police are alerted. Cost is around $600 installed with a $10 to $15 monthly service charge.

Finding a tuned-in mechanic no easy task

By Sharon Achatz
special writer

IF YOU put the pedal to the metal and your Cougar pussyfoots around rather than clawing into action, you will be on your way to find a mechanic — pronto.

No matter what your make of car, today's high-tech automotive wonders demand more from a mechanic than the grease-monkey image of TV's Goober of Mayberry.

Today's mechanics often are called technicians and have highly specialized training. According to Home Mechanix magazine, one person simply can't keep up with the complexity of all technological advances, so one technician will specialize on steering and suspension, for example, another on heating and air-conditioning systems.

This is good news if you know your problem is a muffler, transmission or brakes since you can then go to one of the nationwide chains that specializes in these repairs and, for a reasonable price, know you are getting a technician who knows his stuff.

The same strategy applies if your vehicle needs a paint job or body work — if the business has a good reputation, a specialty shop is probably your best bet.

BUT IF you are uncertain of the cause of your automotive nightmare, do not waste time and money spinning the auto repair wheel of fortune in a hit-and-miss attempt to find a qualified technician.

Instead, find a shop that employs competent mechanics in a variety of areas. The following American Automobile Association tips can keep you from being taken for a ride:

- Get recommendations. Ask friends and co-workers, especially if they own a car like yours, where they get their cars serviced.
- Call the local Better Business Bureau or Chamber of Commerce to check the business's reputation.
- Check for certification.

Auto repair businesses that are members of AAA's Approved Auto Repair Program have passed inspections for cleanliness, training, quality of work, efficiency and courtesy.

Mechanics with ASE credentials are called certified master technicians, which means they have taken and passed written examinations sponsored by the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence. The tests cover topics such as engine repair, transmissions, brakes, electrical systems and engine performance.

- Inspect the auto shop. Look for a clean, neatly organized and well-equipped shop to tell you the management is serious about its business and prepared to provide good service.

ONCE YOU have narrowed your options to qualified full-service shops, you will need to build a relationship of trust with your technician.

Start by accurately describing the symptoms of your car's problems. Tell the mechanic how your car sounds, such as whether it screeches, buzzes or thumps, and tell him when such sounds occur, such as when the car is parked or when you are accelerating. Ask the technician to take a drive with you so he can experience the problem firsthand.

Once the technician has an idea of where he can start looking to solve the Car fluids are pivotal to performance

"OH, ALL gasoline is the same," you probably think as your needle moves to empty and you seek out a service station. Think twice.

The truth, now more than ever, is that the quality of gasoline you put in your car can make a big difference in such areas as power, exhaust emissions and overall car performance.

"The best place to take control of your car is at the gasoline pump," said Lewis Gibbs, senior engineering associate with Chevron.

Why do we need higher-quality gasoline? Just what sort of damage can a bad gasoline do? How can you fix the problems?

The problem actually results from improvements in car technology. While newer fuel-injected engines found in most cars produced after 1985 deliver big gains in overall performance, their refined design demands more precision and care from the gas tank.

Without proper care and attention at the gas pump, the result can be a clogged fuel injector and excessive intake valve deposits.

The symptoms of this malaise soon emerge. Sputtering, loss of acceleration and even stalling can leave many a car owner angry and confused.

Fortunately, the damage caused by low-quality gasolines can easily be remedied in many cases.

"IT'S IMPORTANT to look for a gasoline with high-quality additives," said Chevron Research Co. research manager Ron Kiskis. "Many oil companies incorporate these additives directly into the products they sell at retail outlets.

"Pumping a quality gasoline into your car can often fix its problems in as little as a thousand miles and not only remove deposits in the fuel injector, but also help clean the entire intake system.

"Another solution," Kiskis added, "is to pour a bottle of a proven concentrated additive directly into your gas tank. Concentrated additives can clear up deposits and make a difference in a couple of tankfuls of gasoline."

HERE ARE a few tips that will help you save fuel and make your car last even longer:

- Avoid lengthy warm-up idling. Once the engine is running smoothly, begin driving — gently. On colder winter days, this may take a bit longer.
- Accelerate slowly and smoothly. Avoid jackrabbit starts and plan your driving so as to keep stop-and-go driving to a minimum.
- Do not rest your foot on the clutch or brake pedal. What appears harmless can actually cause needless wear and tear, overheating and poor fuel economy.
- Keep the front wheels in proper alignment. Avoid hitting curbs and be sure to slow down on rough roads. Poor alignment not only wears down your tires but can reduce fuel economy.
- Keep your tire inflated at the proper pressure. Underinflated tires not only cause wear and waste fuel, but can also be unsafe.
- Check fluids. The life of your car depends on vigilant monitoring of its liquids. Before starting the car, pop the hood and check dipstick levels for engine oil and power steering fluid.

Also check the radiator coolant and brake fluid level, as well as the fluid levels in the window washer and battery cells (that is, if it's not a maintenance-free battery). Corrosion around battery cables can easily be removed with baking soda and water. Then with the engine running, check the automatic transmission fluid dipstick.

If it has been six months or 3,000 miles since your last oil and filter change, head to your service station and get it done before you hit the highway.

Mechanics need high-tech background

problem, get a written estimate. Make sure the estimate includes costs for parts and labor and a projected completion time/date for repairs.

For major repairs, you may want to get several estimates, or at least have your mechanic outline various courses of action. According to Home Mechanix, major repairs often can be solved in a variety of ways.

Get a description of all options, along with costs and risks. For example, the mechanic should advise you about the possibility of using rebuilt parts. He also should outline the pros and cons of making partial repairs, replacing one defective front shock absorber on a new car instead of both, for instance.

In most cases, auto repair work is done properly the first time. There are times, however, particularly with today's electronic diagnostic systems, when a difficult-to-isolate problem may not be fixed on the first attempt. If this happens, the shop should take back your car and fix it immediately, putting aside new work to accommodate you.

WHEN YOU pick up your car after repairs have been made, ask the technician to show you the parts replaced. If you want new parts, ask for equipment made by the original parts manufacturer, such as Volkswagen or Chrysler. If you want a price break, ask the facility to use rebuilt parts to repair your vehicle.

Before you leave, examine the bill. Make sure all costs are itemized and that the addition is correct, and that you are not charged for repairs covered by your car's warranty. If you are charged more than the estimate, ask for an explanation.

Finally, in developing a relationship of trust with a technician, consumers must realize that their car is ultimately their responsibility.

Most car owners live by the adage, "If it isn't broken, don't fix it," and then complain about big-bucks repair bills. But expecting minimal repair bills for a neglected car is about as realistic as expecting to win the Indy 500 in an economy car.

Keep your repair bills low by following the maintenance schedule in your owner's manual. Checking and changing oil, keeping coolant fresh and at the correct level, inflating tires properly and inspecting brake and transmission fluid levels will help keep your car ready for the road and probably extend its life.

In a recent survey conducted by the National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence, 98 percent of technicians said auto owners could increase the life of their car by maintaining it according to the manufacturer's specifications.

Copley News Service provided this report.

Accidents rise at night

Improved highway markings and better automotive lighting are helping to hold down night-time traffic accidents, but the after-dark fatality rate is still nearly triple the day-time rate.

While driver condition (visual acuity, sobriety and other factors) is a big factor in this statistical phenomenon, car condition also plays a major role. One out of five cars going through check lanes during National Car Care Month were found to have one or more lights out.

"These findings undescore the value of our inspections," said Donald Midgley, president of the Car Care Council, which coordinates the annual campaign.

"Mandatory inspections could reduce the hazards of poorly maintained safety components and systems," Midgley said.

"Short of that, we need intensified public awareness measures. Anyone capable of driving should be able to check his or her lights, windshield wipers and washers periodically. It is irresponsible to endanger people's lives through simple vehicle neglect."

The American Association of Retired Persons, aiming their message at the fastest-growing segment of our driving population, the older driver, says 90 percent of all sensory input needed to drive comes through the eyes.

But as your eyes change with age, your sensitivity to glare increases, you need more illumination and you'll find you don't adapt as well to the dark.

Exercise caution in jump-starting

A MOTORIST could find it expensive and dangerous to use the wrong procedures when jump-starting a dead battery, AAA Michigan said.

"Before attempting to jump-start a battery, car owners should consult their owner's manual for specific instructions," said Paul Gliesman, AAA Michigan Emergency Road Service manager.

"Improper procedures can lead to explosions, serious damage to the automobile's electrical system and personal injury."

Gliesman advises motorists to wear safety glasses and remove all jewelry to avoid the possibility of unwanted sparks when working near the battery. No smoking or open flames should be allowed near the automobile when trying to jump-start; clothing and hands should be kept away from moving parts under the car's hood.

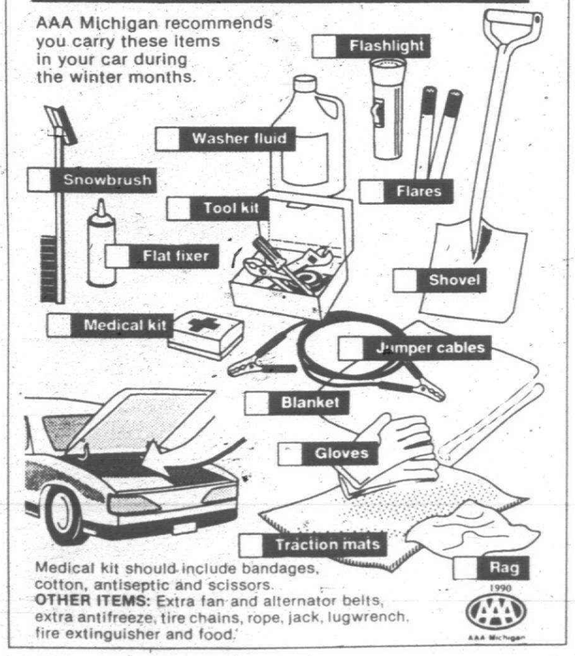
Before hooking up the cables, the motorist should inspect the battery for cracks or bulges. The battery posts should be cleared of acid build-up with a pasty solution of baking soda and water.

TO JUMP-START the car, AAA Michigan advises motorists to follow these procedures:

- Position the cars so they are close enough for jumper cables to be connected but not touching. Automatic-transmission cars should be in park. Manual-transmission cars should be in neutral. Be sure the parking brake is set and the ignition and accessories are off.
- Connect one end of the positive cable to the positive terminal of the good battery.
- Attach the other end of the positive cable to the positive terminal of the disabled battery.
- Connect one end of the negative cable to the negative terminal of the good battery.
- Attach the other end of the negative to a good ground such as a bolt on the engine or other unpainted, metallic surface on the car with the dead battery. Do not connect the negative cable to the negative terminal of the dead battery.
- Start the engine on the car providing the jump. When trying to start on disabled car, don't crank the starter for more than 20 seconds. If it doesn't start in 20 seconds, wait two minutes before trying again.
- When the disabled car is running, disconnect the jumper cables in the reverse order from which they were connected.

Winter Driving Readiness Kit

AAA Michigan recommends you carry these items in your car during the winter months.



Medical kit should include bandages, cotton, antiseptic and scissors.

OTHER ITEMS: Extra fan and alternator belts, extra antifreeze, tire chains, rope, jack, lugwrench, fire extinguisher and food.

How to jump start your car safely

AAA Michigan warns that jump-starting a car with a weak battery can be dangerous if proper procedures are not followed. ■ Before attaching booster cables, make sure both cars are in "park" and not touching each other. ■ Turn off the ignitions and all electrical accessories. ■ If the "dead" battery has water caps, remove them and place a damp cloth over the openings.

- STEP 1. Connect one end of the positive cable to the positive terminal of the good battery.
- STEP 2. Attach the other end of the positive cable to the positive terminal of the disabled battery.
- STEP 3. Connect one end of the negative cable to the negative terminal of the good battery.
- STEP 4. Attach the other end of the negative to a good ground, such as a bolt on the engine or other unpainted, metal surface of the disabled car, as far from the battery as possible.
- START the healthy car's engine and let it run for several minutes before starting the disabled car. To remove the cables, reverse the order above.

Strive to maintain tires, brakes, finish

By Steven Parker
special writer

THERE WAS a time when turning the hose on the trusty family buggy was all it took to get your car ready for a night on the town.

But paint and tire care for cars has gone high-tech. And today's braking systems, using new materials and computer-controlled electronics, are so sophisticated, most of us can barely comprehend how they operate, much less how to maintain them correctly.

So the three basic systems that keep your car or truck in tiptop shape — paint, tires and brakes — deserve a bit more of your attention than you may have paid them in the past.

● FINISH FIRST

You might be surprised to learn that car and truck paints have been completely reformulated over the last decade. These new chemical processes have made paint care something that might be more suited for a chemical engineer than a typical car owner. But lacking your own personal chemist, here is a look at how and why paints have changed — and how to care for them.

The enamel paints that widely in the auto industry until the start of the 1980s had a lot going for them. Mostly, they had a lot of paint going for them. Cars and trucks were painted by being sprayed with layer after layer of colored paint. This made for a great finish on the car if cared for properly, but it also created lots of problems.

The process added considerably to air pollution problems, and automakers spent time and money developing a new method for painting cars that would cut down on pollution.

That method is called clear-coating. Instead of painting with many layers of colored paint, only a few layers of color are sprayed on. Then they are covered with several layers of clear-coat paint, which serves to seal the paint and protect the surface.

Clear-coating's main problem is that if scratched or damaged in any way, the clear coat tends to show off that damage much more vividly than the old enamel paints. This is because the clear coat, when scraped or scratched, reflects that surface problem in a much more pronounced way than the old-and-polluting enamel paint methods. Clear coat, simply put, is delicate.

How to care for clear-coat paints?

First, determine the condition of the paint. Has your car been waxed in the past year? Do you live in a bad environment for the clear coat (heavy pollution, high heat, salt from snow-covered roads, acid rain and factories in your area)?

If the paint is generally in bad condition, it is probably best to start the cleaning process with a moderately abrasive cleanser. Don't rush to the kitchen and get out the scouring powder. You need to use products specifically formulated for cleaning the clear coat without scratching the delicate finish.

Harry Robinson, a consumer relations representative for Armor All Products Corp. of Aliso Viego, Calif., said his company and others like it offer several different kinds of waxes and cleansers formulated for the new clear-coat finishes.

"Armor All has three waxes available. Armor All wax is formulated for clear-coat paint. Raindance is a bit more abrasive and longer lasting, and Rally is best for older vehicles or those needing the most intensive cleansing," Robinson said.

"For instance, the cleanser in our top-line wax is the same product jewelers use to clean gemstones and rings. It's non-abrasive, but it would not be appropriate for an enamel paint car, only for clear coat. Be sure to check the labels."

Robinson said waxing a car once a year is a good rule of thumb, but if conditions dictate, you may want to do it more often. Just check the label first so you do not ruin your paint job.

How best to apply the wax?

"We supply applicators with our wax and so do some other manufacturers," Robinson said. "It's safe to use either a sponge or terry-cloth applicator, whichever you prefer."

● TIRE TIME

When it comes to tire care, basic rules apply. Tire rotation is still a good idea, especially if it is recommended in your owner's handbook.

Proper balancing of your tires is essential, of course. Have this work done at the appropriate shop or at the dealer if still under warranty.

Most new cars come with a manual from the tire manufacturer (which also contains your new car tire warranty). Following the instructions there should give your tires a nice, long life.

Remember, the sportier a tire is, the less comfortable a ride it will give, and it will probably have a shorter life than you might expect. Luxury car tires last a long time and give a smooth ride, but they do not provide the same handling that a sport tire

Using too much antifreeze can raise the freezing point and diminish its effectiveness.

Antifreeze: a vital protective

TOO MUCH of a good thing can be bad when it comes to filling your car's radiator with antifreeze, AAA Michigan reports.

"If too much antifreeze is put into the cooling system, it will raise the freezing point and diminish its effectiveness," said Paul Gliesman, AAA Michigan Emergency Road Service manager.

"Antifreeze must be diluted with water before it can be used effectively," Gliesman said. "A mixture of 50 percent antifreeze and 50 percent water is recommended to ensure protection to 36 degrees below zero."

For protection beyond 36 degrees below zero, motorists can use a mixture of two-thirds antifreeze to one third water, Gliesman said.

AAA MICHIGAN offers winter drivers these tips on antifreeze used to keep a car's cooling system from freezing, boiling and corroding:

● Check the level of radiator fluid in the cooling system every time the gas tank is filled. Marks on the radiator overflow tank indicate the proper level. If it's low, a mixture of antifreeze and water should be poured into the overflow tank.

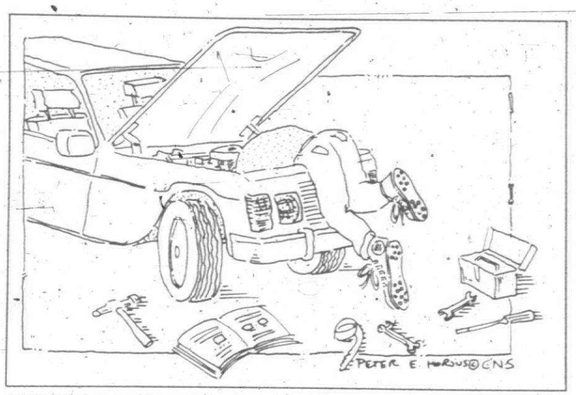
● During winter, use an antifreeze hydrometer monthly to test the fluid's freezing point.

● Change the radiator fluid and flush the cooling system every two years.

● Read the automobile owner's manual thoroughly to see if a special type of antifreeze is needed for your vehicle. Some cars require a special type of antifreeze compatible with aluminum engine parts.

Do it yourself, but also practice 3 E's

By Norm Hudecki
special writer



WITH THE average price of a new car at more than $15,000, many car owners are taking more of a hands-on approach to protecting their investment.

While the convenience of quick lubes and specialty service centers is becoming increasingly attractive, most folks still perform at least some maintenance or repairs on their vehicles. Research by Valvoline Inc. shows that two-thirds of the motor oil sold in the United States was bought by do-it-yourselfers.

To be successful as a do-it-yourselfer, follow the three E's: educate, equip and execute.

● Educate: Before you pop the hood and start poking around, learn about the procedures you want to perform. Your best instructional tool is probably right in the glove compartment: your owner's manual. This widely published, seldom-read book contains a wealth of information on troubleshooting, basic maintenance and recommended parts and supplies.

You might also look for seminars or classes on car care in your area. Many American Automobile Association chapters across the country sponsor car care clinics, taught by the organization's trained auto service technicians. Check the telephone book under AAA for the office nearest you.

Community colleges, vocational schools and some car dealerships also offer classes for the public.

There are a number of books and guides for specific models available at bookstores. No matter how you educate yourself, make sure you know what the job entails before you start in.

Know where the parts involved are and how to reach them. Know when the engine should be running and when it should be shut off. And have an idea of how long the job should take so you can allow enough time and avoid hasty mistakes.

● Equip: Good auto service requires the proper tools and supplies. After you educate yourself on what items you need for your project, set about getting the equipment you need.

An oil change is a good example. You would need a drain pan for the used oil, a wrench for the oil pan plug, a filter wrench, a funnel for putting in the new oil and a container for transporting the used oil to a collection site.

As for supplies, you would need the proper amount of new motor oil (usually 3-4 quarts) and a new oil filter.

Another consideration: Find out if your vehicle requires wrenches or sockets in metric or U.S. standard measurements.

● Execute: Now that you've educated and equipped yourself, it's time to execute the work. First, find a good work area. Your vehicle should be parked on level, firm ground or pavement. Try to find an area protected from the weather but well-ventilated so you avoid being overcome by fumes or engine exhaust.

Take precautions for safety while you work. If you are under the car, make sure the jack or ramp is sturdy enough and in the proper position and that your car is in "park" with the emergency brake on.

Be careful when working around the battery, electrical system, refrigerant storage tank and moving parts. Wash your hands after exposing them to fluids.

A KEY part of car maintenance and repair is practicing environmental responsibility. Learn where to dispose of old fluids, batteries, tires and other items.

And it's generally best to have a professional technician with recycling equipment handle air-conditioner recharging; refrigerants contain harmful CFCs that can be leaked into the atmosphere when the procedure is done improperly.

The final step in the execution phase is to record what you have serviced and when the next check is due. Most owner's manuals have a section for this. Such records can often be helpful if you choose to sell the vehicle as evidence of its good care and performance.

In addition to these three E's, there are a couple more to keep in mind. One is experience: The first time you try a particular job, it may take you a little longer; with experience, you will become more adept at the task.

And expertise: Don't let your ego get in the way of asking for help when you need it. If you get in a bind, seek someone with the expertise to help you finish the job.

Do-it-yourself car service can be easy, enlightening, economical and enjoyable.

This quiz tests automobile awareness

SUMMER IS history. Now we're looking forward, more or less, to the cold winter ahead.

In the spirit of the season, here's a true/false quiz to test your auto awareness:

Questions

1. For better traction on ice or snow, "bleed" air from your tires. (T) or (F)

2. Headlight aiming is unnecessary with the new halogen lights. (T) or (F)

3. When the alternator warning light goes on, it could indicate your car needs a new drive belt. (T) or (F)

4. The average-size automobile engine develops enough heat to keep a five-room house comfortably warm during zero degree weather. (T) or (F)

5. When windshield wipers smear the glass, they should be cleaned off and coated with mineral oil. (T) or (F)

6. A squealing noise when you apply the brakes is not necessarily a sign that they need to be relined. (T) or (F)

7. One misfiring spark plug can affect gas mileage by as much as 25 percent. (T) or (F)

8. A thumping sound from the front of the car usually comes from a bad tire. (T) or (F)

9. When filling the gasoline tank in cold weather, it's best to fill the tank to the top of the filler neck, just short of overflowing. (T) or (F)

10. The CV joints on a front-wheel-drive car should not wear out under normal driving conditions. (T) or (F)

Answers

1. False. Maximum tread contact and, therefore, best traction is achieved with properly inflated tires.

2. False. Any type of headlight can go out of adjustment due to vibration or body damage.

3. True. A worn or improperly adjusted drive belt can slip its pulley, causing low output from the alternator.

4. True. Metal temperatures inside the engine can reach 1,000 degrees Fahrenheit. Excess heat is dissipated by the cooling system.

5. False. Keeping windshield wiper blades clean will improve their wiping ability, but stop right there. A film of wax or oil on the windshield or windshield wiper blades will cause smearing. Clean the edge of the blade and the glass with windshield washer solvent or a mild detergent. If the wiper still smears, replace the blade.

6. True. New semi-metallic brake linings tend to be noisy. However, if you're uncertain about the condition of your brake lining and pads, have them checked. The noise could be a signal that you're due for a brake job.

7. True. On a four-cylinder engine, when one spark plug isn't firing, the fuel in that cylinder is wasted.

8. True. The thump can come from a flat spot or from a lump on the tire. Flat spots usually are caused by improper wheel balance or alignment. A blister or bulge may be due to tread separation, a potentially dangerous condition.

9. False. Overfilling the gasoline tank can cause raw fuel to enter the vapor recovery line that leads to the engine. This can result in hard starting and erratic operation until that fuel is burned off.

10. False. Although they can last much longer, constant velocity joints normally need replacement between 75,000 and 100,000 miles.

Scoring
9-10 right is excellent.
7-9 is passing.
Below that, brush-up on car care.

will. Some new high-performance tires are unidirectional (made to roll in one direction), so make sure these tires are installed properly for the best performance.

Tire life can also be extended by applying protectant to the tire, usually in the form of a water-based silicone spray.

"Ozone, oxidation and ultraviolet radiation are your tire's worst enemies," Robinson said. "If you are going to use a protectant, make sure it is water-based and has no petroleum products in it. If the protectant has any fragrance, it probably has alcohol in it, and that is as bad for your tires as driving nails through them. Again, read the labels first."
