The Canton Connection

Old fashioned Christmas

The Canton Beautification Committee has started to sell luminaries for Christmas. The candles will be sold in sets of 10 for $2.50. The package includes a bag, candle and sand taken from behind the Canton Administration Building.

They're available at the clerk's office during regular working hours or by calling 459-4132.

Critter control contract

Canton Township trustees have decided to contract services from Critter Control, Inc. in Plymouth to handle animal complaint calls in Canton.

Previously, Canton had a civilian animal control officer who was responsible for all animal ordinance enforcement. With salaries and benefits the cost was $28,731, and for 1990 the cost would gone up to $35,731.

Critter Control is a national company, Santomauro said, that provides animal control services for communities throughout the country. It is open 24 hours.

Trustee Elaine Kirchgatter asked why nuisance animals are commonly dropped off in the western end of the township where the houses are set far from one another. People in the field, Santomauro said, consider leaving them in these areas is the most humane thing to do.

Home chore program

The home chore program that was on the chopping block has been reinstated by Canton trustees.

The program provides snow shoveling and grass cutting for senior citizens. The board considered dropping it before reconsidering last week. The average person using the services is female, 77 years old, living alone, and has an average monthly income of $536. About 50 percent are handicapped.

Walls came tumbling down

Bob Paciocco stands with his son, Nino, at the construction site where someone took a bulldozer and last week demolished the partly built office of an industrial building that Paciocco's company was constructing on Market Street near Ronda and Koppernick. Paciocco estimated the damage at $30,000. Police are looking for suspects. Anyone with information is asked to call Canton police at 397-3000.

Road deadly for drivers

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Is Michigan Avenue becoming a deadly highway in Canton?

Accident statistics say it may be.

Of the 11 fatalities in the township this year, four were on Michigan Avenue, which accounted for more deaths than any other road.

DESI STRAKOVITS, an engineer with the Michigan Department of Transportation, which is responsible for the state highway, said the numbers don't necessarily mean there's a problem with the road conditions. The speed limit is 50 mph on the unlit road, which is two lanes each direction.

"Just because there's a fatality, which is very tragic, it doesn't mean that there's a problem with the road," Strakovits said. "You have to look at each accident."

Driver error was linked to each of the four accidents, according to Canton police reports. However, road conditions will add to the odds of accidents happening, according to Canton public safety director John Santomauro.

A major flaw with the road construction, Santomauro said, is the fact that long stretches of Michigan are without any breaks to stop motorists and ultimately slow traffic.

"And you can't discount the fact that in comparison to Ford Road, which has a lot of breaks and is well-lit, Michigan Avenue is not well lit," Santomauro said. "When you couple that with driver negligence it's very dangerous."

Santomauro said one way to improve traffic conditions is to increase police enforcement.

CANTON ENGINEER Tom Casari said a traffic study conducted last year shows that the state highway will need to be widened and improved west of I-275 as Michigan Avenue industrial corridor is developed and generates more traffic.

Group cultivates community pride

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Canton's Beautification Committee has grown into more than a group of women giving away trees and planting flowers.

This year, for instance, committee member Pamela Roman Swiderek was awarded, for a second year, a Keep Michigan Beautiful plaque for her work developing coloring books to spread a message of community spirit and cooperation.

"It's the community pride and commitment in the hearts of the citizens that makes a community truly beautiful," she said.

"This is why the Canton Beautification Committee is now committed to education. We still plant flowers and give away free tree seedlings, but we're now trying to plant the seeds of beautification in the hearts of our youngest citizens."

THE COLORING books are distributed to Plymouth-Canton school children. The effort doesn't stop in Canton.

Swiderek was approached recently by representatives from East Detroit asking for an order of coloring books, she said. And Swiderek is trying to get other communities to adopt the idea, she said.

'It's the community pride and commitment in the hearts of the citizens that makes a community truly beautiful.'

— Pamela Roman Swiderek

The coloring books have individual themes: "Let's Color Canton," "Let's Clean Up Canton," "Let's Conserve Canton," targeting recycling issues, and "Let's Cooperate Canton," which talks about Canton volunteer organizations.

Each book is filled with puzzles,

Shannon Glutting

By M.B. Dillon

Watch Channel 4 WDIV-TV's parade coverage Thanksgiving Day morning, and you may someday say, "I knew her when . . ."

Canton's Shannon Glutting outshone her competitors — all 500 of them — while auditioning recently for a chance to co-host the parade along with co-anchors Mort Crim, Carmen Harlan and Chuck Gaidica.

From 9 a.m. until noon, the 10-year-old will share the airwaves with the anchors and three other children selected from throughout the tri-county area.

The Plymouth Centennial Education Park Marching Band performed in the Indianapolis Hoosierdome Nov. 17. But their time in the spotlight hasn't ended. The Detroit Lions have asked the band to perform at halftime during their nationally televised game against Denver on Thanksgiving Day.

Ice festival organizers carve out new events

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

To handle the usual January melt-down better — a Plymouth ice festival tradition of sorts — organizers are planning more melt-proof events.

The festival, now entering its ninth year, also has a new name: the Plymouth International Ice Sculpture Spectacular.

This year the winning team of the Winter World Championship, Asahikawa, Japan, and the singles champion of Sapporo, Japan, will be present to design and carve the major sponsor sculptures.

BESIDES FOCUSING on international participation this year, organizers have added events that can survive a heat wave.

"The variety of events hasn't existed," said festival organizer Pam Kosteva. "The ice is the purpose of the event, but we want the spectators to have even more to do."

Pam Roman Swiderek, beautification member, holds a plaque she was given by the Keep Michigan Beautiful. Swiderek, who teaches at St. Raphael in Garden City, uses coloring books and a toy flower to encourage young people to get involved. These students, who live in Canton, surround posters she made for the Keep Michigan Beautiful award ceremony.

games and anecdotes, such as "A concerned citizen is a criminal's worst enemy," and "Let's care for this township, Canton, our home and protect it with pride every day." The stories are illustrated with and told through smiling-faced flowers.

"Everyone likes these books," Swiderek said. "I've shown them to senior citizens and they like them, too."

SWIDEREK, AN elementary school teacher at St. Raphael's in Garden City, won't rest with the innovative coloring book idea. She recently had an artist construct a toy Ms. Flower with a swivel head that allows a happy face to show in the center.

And all of her work, like that of other beautification committee members, is done on a voluntary basis. Group members take pride in working with other volunteer groups in Canton.

The group's purpose is "working with each other, caring for the environment and working with people," said Geri Wojcik, beautification committee member.

Beautification committee members hope family members will look at and study the book when the youngsters bring them home, said Wojcik, who also dresses as a clown and volunteers her time for groups and hospitals.

Next year Swiderek hopes to capture a Christa McAuliffe scholarship from the national Christa McAuliffe Institute for Educational Pioneering to help her further her ideas, she said.

The first coloring books were subsidized by Kimcraft Printers Inc. in Livonia.

Scheduled for this year's festival, Jan. 16-21, is a hockey game between a group of Detroit Red Wings old timers and a Plymouth team at the cultural center.

Also scheduled is a laser show and an "Old Man Winter Look-Alike Contest."

"We're getting local businessmen to grow beards to try to get in the spirit of things," said Lynda Ryder, festival administrative assistant.

SOME NEW ideas for the ice-carving portion of the festival include a contest in which local TV and radio personalities will try their hand at ice carving, with likely humorous results.

Also this year, a free trip to the Carribean will be raffled.

FESTIVAL ORGANIZERS have agreed to scale down the festival this year, so that it runs on only one weekend, Kosteva said — good news for the residents who bemoan traffic generated by the ice festival.

"We are firming up the judges, firming up (sculpture) designs for major sponsors in the park," Kosteva said.

Also planned this year is a photo competition open to the public and co-sponsored by the Plymouth Community Arts Council. Plans call for contestants to enter photos of sculptures.

City commissioner Jim Jabara is serving as president of the board of directors of the 1991 festival.

THE FESTIVAL, which attracts 400,000 people annually to downtown Plymouth, will feature more than 200 carved ice sculptures. Three competitions will be featured: one for individual professional carvers, one for individual student carvers and one for a national team title.

blue-eyed, freckle-faced Shannon.

"I am a little nervous, but I'm used to being in front of people because I dance. This is my fourth year in tap, jazz and ballet," added the fifth-grader during a break from class at Field Elementary Thursday.

The 64th annual parade marks a couple of firsts. "It's the first time Channel 4 has aired the parade," said WDIV's press and publicity manager Laura Benavides. It's also the first time children have been welcomed into the broadcast booth.

"We sat around and thought about the parade and asked ourselves what we could do to come up with a new angle on the parade. We decided what better way than to show viewers the parade through the eyes of children?

"We auditioned nearly 500 children on Oct. 27, and had representation from the entire tri-county area. They were all terrific, but these four were great together."

Thirty youngsters were called back for a second audition Nov. 5 and were interviewed in groups. Shannon was among seven asked to return for the final round Nov. 7. The children answered questions about holiday festivities and offered color commentary while watching videos of parades.

"In every group there are kids who shine. These four were kids who were exceptional in their groups," said Benavides. "We plucked them out and put them together as a group. They're lively, well-spoken and very eager to talk. They interacted like they'd known each other forever.

"Shannon is real vivacious and real animated. She was great. She was just what we were looking for."

Broadcasting with Shannon will be Jason Hill, 11, who attends Our Lady Star of the Sea School in Grosse Pointe Woods; Reha Mallory, 11, a student at Holly Middle School in Detroit, and Elvin Pitts, 11, of Bishop Foley School in Madison Heights.

The audition wasn't too bad, Shannon said.

"We went into this studio and they asked us questions about what we do while the camera was on us. They wanted to see if kids shriveled up and got tied up inside."

Shannon, who's had lead roles in two school plays, said she was photographed with Chuck Gaidica.

"Did you know he wears glasses? He's short, too. And he does the weather in his own little office, not in the studio."

Shannon is looking forward to Wednesday night's party, to be held in the parade warehouse in East Detroit. "It's going to be a black tie affair the night before the parade," said Shannon. "I'll get to meet all the people at Channel 4, Bernie Smilovitz, J. P. McCarthy and Jimmy Launce."

Parts of the party will be broadcast during cutaways from "Miracle on 34th Street," which Channel 4 will air from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. Wednesday.

"It's really neat, because after the black tie affair, we will be able to go up and touch the floats and the balloons. I think that's pretty cool — I've never done anything like this before," said Shannon, who lives with her mom, dad and sister Julie, 13.

Eight-thirty a.m. Thursday will find Shannon on the parade route. "We're going to be in an outside booth on Woodward. I'm going to wear my snuggies," said Shannon.

Could this be Shannon's ticket to stardom?

"My mom said it could lead to a career. I said, 'Oh my!'

"I think I'm taking a good step forward. But I'm not getting my hopes up. I won't be all bummed if something doesn't happen."

In the meantime, Shannon has plans. "I like to dance a lot, but I'd rather be an actress or a movie star. I'd like to be in movies or sitcoms. I'd love to be in sitcoms."

Shannon's school principal Larry Miller says the community is proud of her. "It's a wonderful honor. She's a charmer and a doll. We're very happy Shannon is representing us," he said.

Resident, 16, arrested in breaking and entering

A 16-year-old Canton boy was arrested by police on a breaking-and-entering charge about 9:30 a.m. Nov. 14 at Fellows Creek Apartments, on Ford and Sheldon. The Plymouth Canton High School student lives in Fellows Creek Apartments.

Police received a call from a resident in the apartment complex who reported seeing him break into an apartment.

She reportedly saw him standing outside one unit and later remove the sliding door. He went in and when he came out, he was was wearing jewelry.

Initially, the woman said she thought he was a youngster who lived in that apartment unit. However, when he came out she knew that it was a different youngster.

When police arrived, he had already run away. They tracked him down on foot.

Canton police are petitioning charges to the Wayne County Juvenile Court. The youngster was taken to the Wayne County youth home in Detroit.

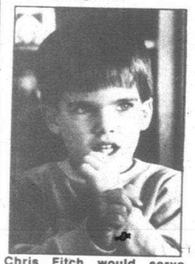
Talking turkey

Youngsters serve up holiday dinner ideas

Mike Ball would serve "some peas and artichokes and cherry pudding" with his Thanksgiving meal.



Chris Fitch would serve "corn, mashed potatoes — a big hung of mashed potatoes — chicken nuggets, hamster skin and turkey" on Thanksgiving.

By M.B. Dillon

Getting panicky about putting together a Thanksgiving Day feast? Need some ideas?

Eriksson and Field elementary school students have come to the rescue, sharing their favorite holiday recipes. So grab your scissors.

Eriksson student Cariel Durr, 5, says he'd opt for the traditional turkey dinner for his family of five.

"THE WAY MY BROTHER eats, I'd probably buy about a 70-pound turkey," said Cariel. "I'd have dressing and potato salad and no dessert. I'd cook the turkey at 200 degrees for about an hour."

Field's Kevin O'Beirne, 6, said he'd invite 15 family members and friends to Thanksgiving dinner and serve "squash, mashed potatoes and gravy, turkey and ice cream." He'd buy a "20-pound turkey and cook it for two hours at 15 degrees.

"Then I would thank God for everything, like friends to play with and for mom and dad."

Tara Mathena, who says she's 5-and-11¾ 2 years old, ("my birthday is Nov. 30,") would serve "salad, turkey and stuffing and sweet potatoes. I don't like them, but I would have it. And some rice."

A one-pound turkey would suffice for her family of five. "I'd sort of slice it up in quarters, put it in with the rice and cook it an hour, and 25 minutes in the oven at 30 degrees."

Eriksson's David Dumas, 6, says he'd fix "turkey, and I forgot this other thing that's red with a circle; mashed potatoes, celery and red delicious Jell-O.

"I'D COOK A 20-pound turkey. I'd throw everything in I could and put it in a warm oven for about 50 minutes.

David Dumas would make sure to serve celery and "red, delicious Jell-O" with turkey at Thanksgiving dinner.

"Then I would put all the food on the table, get all the silverware out and get us some milk. Then I would say a prayer and then I would eat."

Molly Kelm, a kindergartner at Field Elementary, would serve her parents and brother "chicken, turkey, green beans and chocolate ice cream." What size turkey would she buy?

"Two-hundred and forty pounds. I'd tell the kids to stay away from the stove and put it in the oven, for maybe about four seconds."

Field's Mike Ball, 5, would serve his family of three "turkey, mashed potatoes with gravy on top, and some peas and artichokes and cherry pudding."

Mike said an eight-pound turkey would do. He'd put it in the oven "for about five minutes at five degrees."

Chris Fitch, 5, who also attends Field, would invite 18 relatives for Thanksgiving dinner. "I'd make corn, mashed potatoes — a big hunk of mashed potatoes — chicken nuggets, hamster skin and turkey."

FOR A CROWD THAT size Chris would recommend a 100-pound turkey. He'd "put it in the oven at 100 degrees for four hours. Then I'd go to my Grampa's, go swimming and help him set up the railroad track in time for Christmas."

Field's Kristen Schmiedel, 7, would serve turkey, mashed potatoes, peas, beans and cherry pie for her family of five. She'd bake her five-pound turkey in the oven "for 10 minutes at six degrees."

Brittany Thompson, 5, of Field would treat her mom and her buddy John to "turkey, mashed potatoes and peas. I don't have dessert on Thanksgiving.

"I would by a turkey, six pounds, and cook it in the oven for seven minutes at seven degrees." I would give Thanksgiving presents; phones, and pictures too."

RYAN COOK, a first-grader at Eriksson, would serve for his family of four turkey, salad, mashed potatoes and "vanilla ice cream with a cherry on top."

He'd buy a 50-pound turkey, "stuff it with stuffing and put it in the oven for one hour at 70 degrees."

If she were cooking for her family of five, Eriksson first-grader Tanya Koenig says she'd serve turkey, mashed potatoes, salad and "I don't know about dessert." Tanya, who's 6, would buy a 10-pound turkey, put it in the oven "in a pan it would fit in and cook it for 10 minutes or more at 300 degrees."

Tyler Clark, 7, who attends Field, would serve "turkey, cranberry sauce, some stew, some

Teen program seeks volunteers

By Leonard Poger
staff writer

The Wayne-Westland school district, which serves southeast Canton, is looking for volunteers throughout the community to help teenagers in the Cherry Hill alternative program for high school students.

"Community members may help establish a bridge between the schools and the community in four ways," said Lynn Kleiman, student assistance coordinator at the Cherry Hill center.

"We are looking for a resource bank" which would include business persons willing to have students visit for a day; businesses willing to take part in a career day fair; community members who would be part of a support group for the students, and community members who would tutor and provide support and encouragement for success," she said.

Kleiman said the district recently received a $35,000 grant from the Michigan Department of Education to work jointly program with the Livonia-Westland Community Commission on Drug Abuse. Community coordinator for the new 12-month program is Carolyn Colburn.

Kleiman said that the program is geared to the needs of high school students with attendance and/or behavioral problems.

"RESEARCH INDICATES that an important element in any intervention and prevention program is community involvement," she said.

A key objective for the grant is to establish a community resource bank of members from industry, business, agencies, and law enforcement willing to come to speak at Cherry Hill and/or provide mentorships to students."

Staff members hope that the increased community involvement will improve the self-esteem of students, make teens more aware of the "working world," and learn appropriate social behaviors.

Other goals are to improve students' school attendance and successes.

Colburn said that community volunteers can help the Cherry Hill center students "by showing 'I'm making it and you can too.' There are hard times, but there are also good times, too.

"It's been rewarding and it's worth it," the volunteers can tell the students.

Volunteers can also be used for tutoring students in basic academic subjects, "develop a relationship with the pupils to provide guidance, and supervision and help them make wise choices."

Basic purpose of the program, Kleiman said, is to provide students with the skills and tools for the future and "so they can be happy, functional, and productive adults in society."

Michigan would be widened to four lanes in each direction from Haggerty to west of Lilley and to three lanes in each direction from west of Lilley to Belleville.

"The traffic study looked at needs of the future, which is based on development," said Casari explaining that the suggested changes weren't linked to accidents. Current traffic counts, Casari said, show there is no immediate need to increase the number of lanes.

However, Canton is working with the state to get the road changes completed by 1994. Also a new sewer is scheduled to be installed in 1994.

Lighting improvements won't be installed until after the road changes are made, according to Supervisor Tom Yack.

"It's as expensive as all get out," Yack said. "The appropriate time to look at lighting is when they do a major road improvement, like they did in (the city of) Wayne. Now one of the problems is where you put the lights."

THE FATALITIES on Michigan this year include two men who died when a pickup truck they were in collided with a semi-truck on Michigan Avenue near I-275, according to Canton police records. There was heavy fog at the time of the accident. Speed also was considered to be a factor.

In a June 29 accident a man was killed at Michigan and Belleville Road. The cause was listed as the driver following too close and was unable to stop. On March 19, an 8-year-old girl was killed in an accident on Michigan and Lotz Road. The cause was listed the disregarding of a traffic control signal.

You may ask for agendas

Under provisions of Michigan's Open Meetings Act, you're entitled to receive notices of government meetings. A public body must mail notices to people who, on an annual basis, request such notification. Under the act, payment of a reasonable fee may be required before notices are mailed. This provision applies to all local, county and state governments. At the local level this includes city councils, school boards and various boards and commissions. Locally, requests may be submitted to the city or township clerk, or to the school superintendent.

Landscaping planned for station

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Howard Miller, Amoco Corp.'s area adviser, says that while "we may have irreparably harmed ourselves in this town, we can't allow that to happen."

Amoco will "begin to prove to Plymouth that Amoco is a company with a strong sense of corporate responsibility," he said.

AMOCO OWNS THE abandoned service station at Ann Arbor Trail and Main Street in downtown Plymouth; an area that since 1979 has been on a Michigan Department of Natural Resources list of contaminated sites.

Fuel and petroleum products leaked from underground storage tanks for years into groundwater and soil. A large portion of the contaminants seeped underneath the Mayflower Meeting House, whose offices — with the exception of a Speedy Printing — have been vacated because of the situation. Components of fuel oil include benzene and ethylbenzene, which are carcinogens.

Amoco's district office is on the verge of making an announcement about its plans to landscape the station, Miller said.

"I can understand why the community is anxious to see the site cleaned up from an aesthetic as well as an environmental viewpoint," he said. "I've reviewed the situation and I honestly believe we will in short order have removed the concern about it being an eyesore."

Plans call for a "berm to raise the earth three feet from the street level and a series of evergreens and pines so that the station will become an extension of the park.

"It will create a barrier so people won't see the station."

Miller said the landscaping will be done before winter if at all possible.

"The station will remain; it'll house our remediation equipment," he said.

Amoco is pumping and treating groundwater; collecting and hauling away petroleum pollutants and discharging the treated water into the sewer.

The DNR is still waiting for Amoco to submit a final plan for remediation of the soil.

"I was on site with Amoco Sept. 12 and told them to submit it as soon as possible and I'd review it," said Charles San Juan, district geologist with the DNR's environmental response division.

"TO DATE, WE have not reviewed any final plans and specifications. We want them starting on the clean-up as soon as possible because the site has been there for some time and there clearly is a gas leak out of the site and into the soil and groundwater beneath it.

"We told Amoco to get going on their remedial design so we can get this site cleaned up once and for all."

Amoco has "detailed plans to be reviewed by the DNR," said Miller. "It will take state-of-the-art, complex equipment to remediate the site."

The content of the soil has complicated the process, Miller said. "You have to understand we're dealing with a difficult situation here. The soils here lack sufficient water to enable normal pumping and treating to remove enough product. The unique geology requires some specialized technology to thoroughly cleanse the groundwater and soil."

Amoco proposes a vacuum air-stripping method whereby "air is circulated into the soil to volatize as well as biodegrade any remaining contaminants."

The clean up is expected to take two to five years; a time frame the DNR doesn't object to.

"We realize these sites are not going to be cleaned up overnight," said San Juan. "We accept that, but we also accept that we want as proactive a remediation as possible. I think realistically, for a site where a lot of gas has leaked out, two to five years is really not that far out of line."

IT'S NOT FEASIBLE to restore the site to its original condition, added Miller.

"We will remediate the site, but it doesn't mean 100 percent removal. The reality is the technology doesn't exist," he said. "We attempt to use state-of-the-art technology to remove and clean as much soil as we can; then we depend on Mother Nature to wash away and aerate any remaining portions."

The other option would be excavation, which Amoco has ruled out, Miller said.

"In addition to being extraordinarily disruptive, and easily a disruption for business, it would be inherently unsafe to the integrity of the building (Mayflower Meeting House,)" Miller said.

"The foundation is on sandy soil, and excavation would probably seriously endanger the integrity of the building."

San Juan says he's confident "we will see quite a bit of activity there. I have every confidence we will make some progress on that clean up. The responsibility lies with Amoco; they'll be held accountable in the end."

Miller says "the situation in Plymouth is truly unfortunate, because it's not the way Amoco traditionally does business.

"We value our customers and our name. We don't normally allow situations to progress to the point where we wouldn't be cast in anything but a positive light."

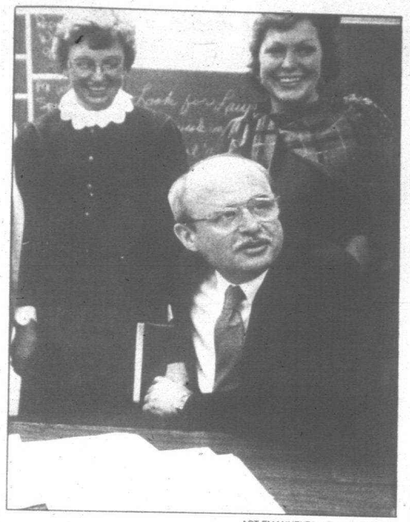
Class is in for teachers, federal administrator



ART EMANUELE/staff photographer

Christopher T. Cross, assistant secretary of education in charge of $96 million in research grants, shares a moment with local teachers during his recent visit to Livonia.

By Tim Richard
staff writer

A western Wayne County teacher raised her hand to ask her congressman and a U.S. Department of Education administrator:

"How does all that research out there apply to us in southeastern Michigan?"

Her question, asked in Livonia's Randolph Elementary School, echoed the words of a reading teacher in Ann Arbor's Abbott Elementary a day earlier:

"I think grants are given to researchers on the basis of what they want to research, not what we need to know."

Listening and taking notes were U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, a senior member of the House appropriations subcommittee on education, and Christopher T. Cross, assistant secretary of education in charge of $96 million in research grants.

A WEEK AFTER being elected to his eighth term in Congress, Pursell held forums with teachers in Jackson, Ann Arbor and Lansing to test several ideas on the nation's growing education budget:

- The findings take 10 years to "trickle down" to classroom teachers.
- Much research on education is done in think tanks with a "Washington Beltway/University of Michigan mentality" and is less than useful to classroom teachers. In the words of James (Doc) Doyle, Observer & Eccentric columnist and Pursell consultant: "A lot of educational research is a bunch of crap."
- The money might better go to state departments of education or regional teachers' colleges like Eastern Michigan.
- Classroom teachers themselves need to be actively involved in research projects. "We need more collaborative research," said a Livonia master teacher.
- Teachers need help dealing with new social problems — kids from broken homes, parents from Asian and other cultures, the continuing "achievement gap" between black and white students.

PURSELL said two national problems prompted what will be a two-year project:

First, the $1.3 trillion federal budget is likely to be $300 billion in the red next year, and cuts are needed. Education gets $27 billion, all research $96 million, education research $50 million.

Second, in a global economy where Japanese and Taiwanese companies are gaining dominance, American kids are falling drastically behind in such critical areas as math by fifth grade.

"Our assistant superintendent is excellent in pulling research," said a Northville teacher — a distinct minority. Most teachers complained they didn't know what was being done and had little timefor in-service training.

"Here we are, taking on all the social problems of the world," said a teacher in the Livonia forum. "The divorce rate is sky-high. They (kids) are left at home alone."

"Years ago we used to see only one or two (with emotional problems)," added another.

OTHER TEACHERS' comments:

"We need more information on what's available to us" — an Ann Arbor teacher.

Pursell reply: "At U-M, 400 researchers are getting National Institute of Health grants."

Teacher's comment: "They're there, and we're here."

"A lot of research is good because it tells us to keep on with what we're doing.to ditch it . . . Sometimes we don't give the federal government credit" — a reading teacher. She cited a federal finding that says girls have as many problems as boys, confounding the conventional wisdom that boys have the majority of reading problems.

"It takes 10 years for research to get to the practical level" — Ann Arbor teacher.

Pursell's comment: "We can't afford 10 years."

"We don't know what's going on around the country" in improving blacks' performances.

Cross' reply: "We're making progress. Among blacks the high school graduation rate is 81 percent; among whites, 84 percent."

Teacher's response: "We're not closing the gap. Where do we go to find out what other districts are doing?"

"There's no time to plan" — a western Wayne teacher.

"You have three months every year" — a Jackson County superintendent.

CROSS, AS an administrator, often is at odds with Pursell, a former classroom teacher in Taylor and Livonia in the 1960s.

Cross said laws and the bidding process require many educational research grants to go to universities.

"I've put emphasis on the dissemination. We have that on the boards — get the information into the hands of teachers," Cross said, citing the addition of a journalist from U.S. News & World Report to his staff.

Teachers couldn't find lab — on a bet

U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell said he won lunch in a bet with Chris Cross, assistant secretary of education. Cross said he won a second bet.

The two are at odds over the usefulness of federal educational research grants.

"We have a federal (education) lab that serves Michigan. How many of you know where it is?" Pursell asked educators from Plymouth-Canton, Northville and Livonia.

No hands went up — except for Livonia Superintendent Joe Marinelli.

Answer: the Midwest Educational Research Lab in Elmhurst, Ill. — a $200 million a year lab serving seven states. It's one of nine regional labs in the country.

Cross claimed his victory when he asked teachers whether they knew about certain research and innovations. Many said yes.

"You're using the product coming from it, but you don't know where it's coming from," said Cross.

Barber shop keeps local resident on cutting edge

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

It seemed like any other day at Ray Attwater's barber shop in Keego Harbor. Then she walked in.

In front of several customers, including some off-duty police officers, the woman accused Attwater of getting her pregnant.

"My chin hit the floor. I'd never seen the lady before," Attwater, a Plymouth resident, recalls. "If my mouth had been a fly trap, I'd have caught all kinds of flies."

IT WASN'T UNTIL the police began to laugh that Attwater, who had worked with them as an auxiliary officer, caught on.

"They had paid some waitress to come in here and tell me that I got her pregnant," he said.

Sitting in the barber chair of his Keego Harbor shop, Mr. and Ms. Hair Biz, Attwater still chuckles about the incident of several years ago.

"I wondered why there were so many police officers in here that day," he said.

Keego Harbor police are among the customers who've come to Attwater for a trim since he opened his Cass Lake Road shop 27 years ago. Although the cost of a basic haircut has increased from $2 to $7.50 since then, most regulars still agree it's a good deal.

"It's the best haircut in town," said Mike Packard, a Waterford attorney who stopped in on Wednesday, just as he has for the past 14 years. "I send all of my friends here."

Attwater, 47, runs his part-time business with help from his good friend Joan Parry, 43. She first cut hair at Attwater's shop in the winter of 1976, when a severe ice storm knocked out the power to the nearby Sylvan Lake salon where she was working.

"Ray volunteered to let me use his chair," Parry said. By springtime she had switched jobs.

"A LOT OF times, people think we're married because we argue back and forth so much," she said. "Basically we do get along pretty well, though."

Both have other jobs. Attwater is a custodian for Birmingham Public Schools, Parry, of Keego Harbor, drives a school bus in West Bloomfield.

Before Attwater moved to Plymouth eight years ago, he wore many hats in Keego Harbor, a close-knit community of some 3,000 people. He served six years on the city council, including a one-year term as mayor, and he was a 15-year volunteer for the Tri-City Fire Department, which serves Keego Harbor, Sylvan Lake and Orchard Lake.

Attwater was mayor when the former owners of the Keego Theater began showing X-rated films. He had no idea of their plans until a city resident called him after seeing the marquee that advertised adult movies.

"I jumped in my car and drove past the theater, and I just about died," Attwater recalls.

City residents began protesting in front of the theater and telephoning Attwater at home and at work, demanding action to shut down the movie house. Council meetings drew such large crowds that they had to be moved from city hall to the Roosevelt School gymnasium.

The city took the theater owners to court and won, but the decision was later overturned. However, the owners sold the theater, and the new owners changed its image after they began showing popular, second-run films at discount prices.

ATTWATER HAS WITNESSED other dramatic changes in the city. Growing up in neighboring Sylvan Lake, he remembers a time before the vacant fields and gravel sidestreets of his hometown and Keego Harbor were replaced by strip malls and pavement. Many of the houses were summer cottages where Detroit residents spent their weekends.

Much like the cities, the haircuts changed over the years.

"I hated the longer hairstyles for men, even though I had long hair myself," Attwater said. "The long hair was a pain."

Since he opened his shop, he has seen men's hairstyles come full circle with the return of the short brushcut. And he's now giving second-generation haircuts for some longtime customers who came to him as a child, and now bring their own children to him.

"I enjoy cutting hair, and I enjoy my customers," Attwater said. "The majority of my customers aren't really customers — they're my friends."

Pranks have been common at Mr. and Ms. Hair Biz. A local youngster once stole the barber pole from outside Attwater's shop, but police recovered it. The youngster, now an adult, has become a friend of Attwater's, and they joke about the incident.

On another occasion, some Michigan State University fans, who knew that Attwater and Parry favored the University of Michigan, sneaked into the shop at night and decorated it in MSU's green and white colors before a football game.

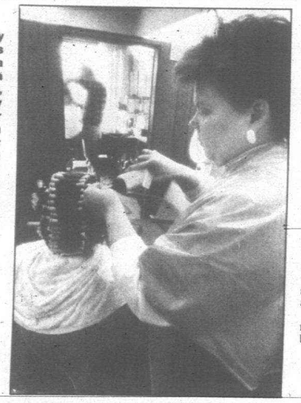
Bill Cook, sitting in the barber chair, is a longtime customer who returns to Keego Harbor from Lapeer for the haircut that he grew accustomed to when he lived closer to Ray Attwater's shop. His wife, Betty, accompanies him.



Joan Parry gives Claudia Meizler a permanent, while Ray Attwater cuts hair on the other side of a partition at the Mr. and Ms. Hair Biz shop in Keego Harbor.

CALF SWELLING & ARTHRITIS
You would expect that the feature of knee arthritis is pain in that joint. This rule is usually right, but not always.
For instance: you experience swelling in your calf. The cause may not be what you think — a blood clot in the leg; the leg swelling could be the result of arthritis of the knee.
The main vein to the knee lies in the back of the knee joint. If that joint fills with fluid and distends, the enlarged joint may push against the vein. If this compression is of sufficient force, the distended joint can collapse the vein, preventing the exit of blood from the leg to the thigh. Your leg looks and feels like it suffers from a blood clot. If you noted little pain in the knee, you may have no idea that the fluid build up occurred.
Knowing the cause of your leg swelling is important. If swelling is from a blood clot, you need hospitalization and immediate therapy with a blood thinner.
If the reason is fluid on the knee, you only need to have the fluid removed. A visit to your doctor generally will suffice.
Physicians know about arthritis as a possible cause for a swollen leg, and generally examine the knee before diagnosing the problem as a blood clot.

Columnist honored

Tim Nowicki, an Oakland County naturalist, was recently named a recipient of the Michigan Wildlife Habitat Foundation Bengel Habitat Award for 1990. He will be honored at the Foundation's "Habitat '90" program Dec. 1 in Lansing. Nowicki, a Livonia resident, is a naturalist at Independence Oaks Nature Center, an Oakland County Park. He writes the column "Nature" for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers and is heard weekly on radio station WJR.

Schools seek to reinstate suit

By Brian Lysaght
staff writer

An attorney representing dozens of Michigan school districts challenging this year's "Robin Hood" school aid cuts is seeking a rehearing after the state Court of Appeals dismissed the lawsuit in a surprise move Nov. 9.

Birmingham attorney Dennis Pollard said the court, in its dismissal order of the suit filed Sept. 13, made a clerical error and confused two sections of state statute.

"It's obvious they confused two sections (of law) and will have to clarify that," said Pollard, who expressed frustration over the situation.

In the lawsuit, Pollard represents 56 Michigan school districts suing the state for massive funding cuts enacted this year. The state recaptured $72 million worth of categorical that, in part, paid for state-mandated programs.

THE CUTS AFFECTED only out-of-formula, or property wealthy school districts, among them Livonia, Plymouth-Canton and South Redford.

"It's really that simple. They blew it," Pollard said of the court decision. Pollard got word of the dismissal last Monday and filed a motion for rehearing the same day. He said he expected a decision on the most recent motion in a week or two.

The dismissal was all the more unusual because five days earlier the same Court of Appeals handed down a ruling in another Pollard-handled case that appeared to strengthen the recapture lawsuit.

The Michigan Court of Appeals decided Nov. 5 in a 10-year-old case involving Macomb County's Fitzgerald school district that the state cannot reduce aid for state-mandated programs programs.

In the 3-0 decision, the appeals court said the "state is required to maintain the level of funding of categorical aid for the necessary costs of program required" by law.

THE COURT ALSO ruled that the court improperly reduced to below 1978-79 levels funding for mandated programs.

The two cases share the same major issues, and Pollard said portions of legal briefs in the two cases are nearly identical.

"The (Fitzgerald) ruling supports directly our position" in the recapture case, Pollard said earlier.

"The court ruled that mechanism the legislature used to reduce payment to school districts is inappropriate," Pollard said.

The money cut from wealthy school districts this year was to be redistributed to poorer school districts in state Legislature-backed effort to equalize pupil spending across the state.

Out-of-formula districts harshly criticized the move, then many filed suit against the state Department of Education.

THE COURT OF APPEALS ruling in the Fitzgerald case backed recommendations of Macomb Circuit Judge George Denewith, fact finder in the case. Denewith determined that Department of Education's "Robin Hood approach" — taking from rich schools and giving to poor ones — was illegal.

Pollard had originally sought Denewith to hear the recapture case, but Denewith died two weeks ago.

In a related move, parent representatives of 26 school districts met in Lansing Thursday to discuss their lobbying effort to dissuade legislators from further funding cuts to out of formula school districts.

The parents were to discuss goals for their group, Coalition of Michigan Parents. Among COMP's efforts will be to provide sample letters that parents can mail to legislators urging an end to recapture, which school officials say could hit wealthy school districts even harder next year.

THE GROUP WAS formed after a suggestion by Bloomfield Hills parent Jan Furman in a P.T.O. meeting with Superintendent W. Robert Docking, said district spokeswoman Penny Cambier.

Metro Airport sets parking lot 'hot line'

People flying out of Metro airport this Thanksgiving season are advised to arrive 90 minutes before their scheduled departure time to avoid delays.

The Wednesday before Thanksgiving and the Sunday after are traditionally the busiest time of the year for the metro airport.

Most airlines flying out of Metro expect passenger traffic at least equal to last year's, though some are expecting increases.

Curb space in front of terminals is being reserved for loading and unloading only. Vehicles parked in front of terminals will be ticketed and towed by the Wayne County sheriff's Department.

An airport parking hot line has been established to tell travelers, in advance, which lots are open. Call 942-3838 for parking information.

Skycaps request passengers have luggage tags filled out and attached before arrival.

Men, if you're about to turn 18, it's time to register with Selective Service at any U.S. Post Office.
It's quick. It's easy. And it's the law.

I-696 traffic grows

AP — The final stretch of I-696 has been open less than a year, but state transportation officials say the freeway already is 10 years ahead of its time.

Michigan Department of Transportation figures show traffic on the 28.2-mile highway exceeds projections for the end of the decade.

"I think the day it opened, it was up above the projected volume," said Paul Riley, district traffic and safety engineer for the department.

The department estimated 130,000 vehicles would use I-696 daily. Ralph Swan, a department management supervisor, said Friday as many as 175,000 vehicles have been counted on the road in one day.

The daily average was about 143,000 in September, Swan said.

Traffic on I-696, which runs east-west in Macomb and Oakland counties north of Detroit, is below other area freeways, which average as many as 190,000 vehicles daily.

Studies of traffic on surface streets aren't complete, but officials in the Oakland County cities of Southfield and Royal Oak say the difference has been felt.

In Southfield, officials say traffic is down 40 percent on 12 Mile Road, which parallels I-696. In Royal Oak, officials say 30 percent fewer vehicles use 12 Mile.

Traffic has picked up on some north-south surface routes, including Woodward Avenue. John Joy, a spokesman for the Oakland County Road Commission, said I-696 has funneled vehicles onto Woodward.

Ben Giampetroni, Macomb County's executive director of planning and economic development, said the freeway has benefited county businesses.

"Our businesses used to be locked into the local area," he said. "Now they can reach out."

Making liqueurs at home

Is it just me or are the holidays creeping closer and closer to Halloween? I can remember ushering in the Christmas season the day after Thanksgiving. I was strolling the mall while getting my oil changed Nov. 1 and was shocked to see Santa Bears, trees bedecked in holiday regalia and a red stocking booth announcing the mall's opening for the '90 holiday season. Even my Christmas Club check was mailed out and received Nov. 2.

All this from one of life's greatest appreciators of procrastination. I purchased the Janes Gang Halloween pumpkin on the eve of Oct. 30. Of course, it's still sitting on the front porch. I'm kind of hoping it will disintegrate and just blow away, like the majority of my leaves.

But surprise! As the old saying goes, stick around long enough and things are apt to change, if for any reason, just out of boredom. So it is with this column that I welcome in the holiday season with tips to prepare a variety of homemade liqueurs that, if made within the week, will be ripe and ready for holiday consumption.

Before beginning the shopping trip to the liquor and grocery store for the basics, spend an hour or so soaking up the holiday spirit while visiting your favorite local gourmet retailer for empty jars and storage containers. Last year, during the post-holiday clearance sales, I picked up several unique cork-stopped bottles from Pier One Imports that will make dandy presentations for this year's batch of homemade Irish cream liqueur.

THE NEWLY OPENED Cargo Express should offer somewhat of a selection. Kitchen Glamour also stocks a trendy variey of jars that could double as liqueur bottles, homemade vinegar bottles or flavored oil holders. If you happen to be out Ann Arbor way, check out Hertler Bros. old-time hardware downtown. If you absolutely hate to shop, clean mason-type jars with tight-fitting screw-on lids will suffice, especially if topped with pinking scissor-cut material secured with a holiday ribbon. Jars should be washed and sanitized before filling.

As far as the basics are concerned, these recipes are definitely not for the weight-conscious. Pick up some real granulated sugar (not dextrose). When the recipe calls for liquor, if you can tell the difference between a premium brand and a house pour. Rest assured that the taste difference will be as significant in the liqueur. The cheapest liquor will only make the liqueur harsh and not as smooth, and when you find that the recipes all make almost a fifth, the two or three extra dollars spent on upgrading the liquor will prove most beneficial, taste-wise.

If the recipe calls for chocolate extract, use extract and not flavoring. The alcohol content in the extract makes a difference, trust me.

LASTLY, AND probably most important, try to refrain from tasting and allow the liqueur to mellow out as long as the recipe calls for. The recipes listed will produce the most accurate resemblance to their commercial counterparts only if followed exactly and for the correct amount of mellowing time.

No need to run around crowded malls looking for just the right gift. If you start now, you can enjoy the holidays with easy entertaining gifts and luscious additions to your home bar, with minor time expenditures.

As always, know when to say when, and if you do drink, please don't drive.

CRAN-BERRIES:

Keep plenty on hand for the holidays

By Geri Rinschler
special writer

THE NOTION PERSISTS that we celebrate Thanksgiving the way our Puritan forebears did, but the truth is that this annual feasting day has melted over the centuries into the pot of the American experience. No one is absolutely certain of the dishes shared by the Indians and Pilgrims in 1621 but we do know that during their festival, venison, wild game birds, pumpkins, squash, corn and berries were on the menu.

The brilliant red cranberries which have become a symbol of Thanksgiving were most likely among the berries served since they are native to North America, especially in the Cape Cod area.

According to Beatrice Buszek, author of "The Cranberry Connection" (1980, Cranberrie Cottage Publishers, Nova Scotia, Canada), it was the Pequot Indians who introduced the cranberry to the Pilgrims. The Indians called the berry "ibim" meaning bitter berry, but the new settlers chose to call it "craneberry" because its pink blossoms resembled the head of a crane. It's uncertain when the word craneberry was contracted into its present form.

As the wild berries were readily available, the colonists prepared them in condiments, jam, tarts and sauce in a similar fashion to those prepared with grapes in England. To compensate for the berries' natural tartness, the colonists initially sweetened them with syrup made from pumpkin pulp, and later with honey and maple syrup.

IF YOU HAVE wondered why cranberries are only available in autumn, it is because they don't ripen until mid-September. That is when the bogs are flooded and the berries are wet-harvested mechanically. As the berries float to the top, they are collected and sorted later.

How do you judge a top-quality cranberry from an inferior one? Well, you may find this hard to believe, but cranberries are graded by their bounce. Commercial separating machines were designed with four-inch hurdles, allowing the berries seven chances to bounce over. Those that can't make it over are rejected.

If you are anxious to view the cultivated cranberries on site, it is recommended that you do so either in June when the vines are covered with their graceful pink blossoms or in mid-September during the harvest. Although most of the berries are grown in Eastern Massachusetts and Rhode Island, they also are cultivated in New Jersey, Wisconsin (near Kenosha), Washington and Oregon, and British Columbia and Nova Scotia in Canada.

Because the cranberry is a very tart fruit, its distinctive flavor enhances many condiments which accompany poultry and game or fruit desserts and breads containing sugar. They often can be substituted in baking recipes that call for blueberries. Either slice them in half with a knife or rough chop them briefly in a food processor. Then roll or dredge them in granulated sugar before adding to a batter.

FROZEN CRANBERRIES can be cooked without thawing and can be ground more easily as well. Thaw frozen berries only when they are to be incorporated into a recipe that doesn't require cooking. To freeze cranberries, rinse, sort and double wrap. They will keep in a deep freezer nine months to a year. In a refrigerator, they will keep about a month before deteriorating. Store them unwashed but covered since moisture hastens spoilage.

The natural color of the cranberry will vary from bright to dark red, depending on the variety. Although nearly 100 varieties have been noted, only four of them are cultivated commercially.

If you are experimenting with new recipe ideas, cranberry flavor blends well with oranges, pineapple, lemon, bananas, apples and raisins. Adding a little fresh mint into a cranberry sauce will alter its character enough to be served with roasted leg of lamb or chops.

Traditional pumpkin pie spices such as cinnamon, cloves, nutmeg and allspice will all add interest and dimension to a cranberry recipe such as Spicy Cranberry Sauce or Cape Cod Apple Crisp.

Here's hoping this year, you will be inspired to take a little extra time and prepare a Thanksgiving dish with fresh cranberries instead of opening up that handy little can.

From woods to freezer

By Larry Janes
special writer

Gazing into the Department of Natural Resources crystal ball, hunting season this year should rank as one of the best in Michigan's history. An abundant supply of does, coupled with a growing buck population and the speculation of above-average snowfall, should produce a record kill.

Being an avid fisherman and hunter, every year I look forward to a week in the woods with friends. Whether it be on the Big Manistee crankbaiting for salmon or combing the woods for that elusive buck, listening to the snowfall, I enjoy the great Michigan outdoors and feel that somewhere along the line, a little bit of Mort Neff's blood must have mixed with mine.

In all honesty, though, when it comes to deer hunting, I would much rather sit in a blind shooting my Minolta rather than my Winchester. My avid hunting buddies, however, seem to have more luck with their rifles, and we usually end up in a 32-degree garage with our knives and hacksaws cutting up the bounty for the chest freezer that must grace every deer hunter's basement.

For those hunters who have little skill in butchering, there are folks like George Anton, owner of the Standard Food Market in Garden City, who will do all the cutting, wrapping and processing for not much more than a nominal fee.

For those hunters who have little skill in butchering, there are folks like George Anton, owner of the Standard Food Market in Garden City, who will do all the cutting, wrapping and processing for not much more than a nominal fee.

AT THE MARKET on Ford Road just east of Merriman Road, Anton and his family will process your prize buck or doe for about $40. This price is quoted for a deer coming in at about 125 pounds. It includes skinning and cutting the deer, utilizing what Anton claims is an extra-fancy cut that will transform the deer into freezer-wrapped packages of roasts, chops, spareribs, steaks, rumps and ground venison.

Larger kills increase in price as does the making of the meat into a very popular hunting staple also known as venison sausage.

It takes Anton and his barrage of butchers about one hour to completely cut up and wrap an average-size deer. This process is done after all the regular meats are cut in the morning at the Standard Market and usually keeps his butchers busy during hunting season into the evening. After the deer is processed, all the equipment must be cleaned and sanitized according to Health Department regulations before any regular beef can be returned to the cutting room tables and saws.

Anton was secretive when responding to the exact number of deer processed at the Standard Market. "It really depends on the weather conditions" was his somewhat pat response to the numbers question. During bow season, he might do a few deer but the numbers steadily

Cranbery sauce a spicy one

SPICY CRANBERRY SAUCE
Two 10-ounce bags fresh cranberries, rinsed and sorted
Two ½ cups dark brown sugar
Two 3-inch cinnamon sticks
8 cloves (tied in a small piece of cheesecloth)
1 tablespoon orange peel
2 cups water (optional: substitute cranberry-apple juice)

Mix ingredients together in a heavy saucepan or dutch oven. Cook over medium heat stirring occasionally. Bring to a boil and cook 10 to 15 minutes when all fruit skins have popped and sauce has thickened. Remove spices and orange peel. Straining sauce is optional. Pour into serving bowl. Allow to cool, then refrigerate until serving. The sauce also may be served warm. Makes 5-6 cups, enough to serve 16 people.

CAPE COD APPLE CRISP
3 cups chopped cooking apples
2 cups cranberries
1 cup granulated sugar
1 tablespoon orange zest
2 tablespoons cornstarch
¼ cup orange juice

Topping
1 cup rolled oats
½ cup plus 2 tablespoons unsalted butter or margarine, diced
¾ cup brown sugar
½ teaspoon ground allspice
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 egg

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Mix together apples, cranberries, granulated sugar and zest in a medium-size mixing bowl. Dissolve cornstarch into orange juice and stir into apple mixture. Pour into a buttered 8-inch-square baking dish. Toss together oats, diced butter, brown sugar and spices. Fold in lightly beaten egg. Pour over apple mixture and bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour. Serves 6.

CRANBERRY GLOW WINE
32 ounces cranberry cocktail juice
2 cups water
½ cup orange juice
1 cup sugar
2 bottles red burgundy wine
2 star anise
8 whole cloves
Two 3-inch cinnamon sticks

Mix all ingredients together in a large heavy saucepan/dutch oven. Slowly bring to the boiling point. Reduce the temperature and barely simmer 10 minutes. Serve hot (strain before serving). Makes 12 cups

CRANBERRY-PINEAPPLE SORBET
Can be served as a dessert or a palate cleanser between courses.
1 pound fresh or frozen cranberries
2 cups chopped pineapple
1 cup chopped orange pieces
Zest of 1 whole lemon
2 tablespoons creme de cassis liquer (substitute brandy, Grand Marnier or Triple Sec)
1 cup superfine sugar

Mix together all ingredients in the bowl of a food processor. Chop using quick on/off turns of the motor. If you do not have a processor, you may chop everything finely with a large chef's knife or a mezzaluna (an Italian double-handle chopping knife).

Spoon mixture into a metal pan and freeze for 2-3 hours. Remove and mix with a hand-operated electric mixer or return to processor and process again with 3-4 quick on/off turns. Refreeze.

Serve in individual dessert or wine glasses. Garnish with sprigs of mint or lemon peel curls. Serves 6.

Making liqueurs for the holidays

See Larry Janes' column Taste Buds, Page 1B.

MEXICAN COFFEE LIQUEUR
2 cups water
¼ cup plus 2 teaspoons coffee granules or powder
3½ cups granulated sugar
1 vanilla bean, split
2¾ cups vodka
¾ cup brandy
¼ teaspoon chocolate extract
1 drop red food coloring

Heat water in medium saucepan. When hot, add coffee and stir until dissolved. Add sugar and vanilla bean, stirring well to combine. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Immediately reduce heat so that a very low boil is maintained for 1 minute. Remove from heat. Cool to lukewarm. Pour in vodka and brandy. Stir. Add chocolate extract and food color. Pour into aging container. Cap and allow to age in a cool dark place for at least 3 weeks. After initial aging, strain liqueur through cheesecloth over a large bowl until desired clarity is reached. (I did it 3 times). Bottle, cap and age 1-2 weeks, then enjoy as desired.

IRISH CREAM LIQUEUR
(and you thought Bailey's was good!)

● Please Note: This recipe uses uncooked eggs in its preparation. Follow directions completely for safest results.

2 eggs
1½ cups evaporated milk
½ teaspoon chocolate syrup
1 tablespoon vanilla extract
½ teaspoon lemon extract
¼ teaspoon instant coffee granules
⅔ cup granulated sugar
1¾ cups Irish whiskey

Place all ingredients in a blender and blend until smooth. Bottle and allow to mellow in refrigerator for 2 weeks. Keep product stored in the refrigerator. For safest results, use within 4 weeks.

AMARETTO LIQUEUR
1 cup granulated sugar
¾ cup water
2 dried apricot halves
1 tablespoon almond extract
½ cup pure grain alcohol
½ cup water
1 cup brandy
3 drops yellow food coloring
6 drops red food coloring
2 drops blue food coloring
½ teaspoon glycerine

Combine sugar and ¾ cup water in a small saucepan; bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Reduce heat and simmer until all sugar is dissolved. Remove from heat and cool. In aging container, combine apricot halves, almond extract, pure grain alcohol with ½ cup water and brandy. Stir in cooled syrup mixture. Cap and allow to age 2 days. Remove apricot halves. Add food coloring and glycerine. Stir, recap and allow to age for 1-2 months. Rebottle as desired. Liqueur is ready to serve but will improve with additional aging.

increase once rifle season begins. Seems that a good snow helps the hunters and makes the deer wander more in the woods, making them more susceptible to the hunters.

AVID HUNTERS have already missed bow season in Michigan. Beginning Oct. 1 and running through Nov. 14, bow season not only tests the skill of the hunter using just a bow and special-tipped arrows, it also allows the hunter to strategically place deer apples, carrots, sugar beets and salt licks for the rifle season, which began Thursday, Nov. 15, and runs through Nov. 30. Then it's back again to bow hunting from Dec. 1 through Jan. 1, running conjunctively with muzzleloading season from Dec. 4-23.

If you don't happen to live in the Garden City area or close to George Anton and the Standard Market, there are many talented butchers who perform deer processing. Ask any hunter for recommendations, or you can talk directly to your neighborhood butcher for recommendations. By the way, Anton's market not only does deer processing but also processes any animal such as elk and moose and even fresh-caught fish such as salmon, trout and perch.

Like most processors, the Standard Market hopes that all successful hunters do a proper job in field dressing (gutting) the animal first, and then recommends the animal be kept as cold as possible prior to processing. Very infrequently, thankfully, a hunter arrives on the doorsteps of the Standard Market with decomposed meat that is unsuitable for processing and, unfortunately, must be turned away. But if you're not into freezing in a cold damp garage with a knife and hacksaw, custom processing just might be worth the $40-$50 that most area processors charge. Good Luck.

HOT LINK VENISON SAUSAGE
2 ½ pounds ground venison
2 ½ pounds ground pork (shoulder cut)
2 teaspoons crushed red pepper
2 teaspoons paprika
2 teaspoons ground cumin
2 teaspoons ground sage
2 teaspoons sweet dried basil
2 teaspoons anise seed
2 teaspoons dried oregano
Dash salt and fresh ground pepper
Sausage casings

Mix the ground meats and the spices. Attach the 2 ½-inch sausage casings to the stuffer nozzle on a hand meat grinder. Stuff the casings to the desired length, cut the links and secure the ends with string. These can be barbecued or can be slow roasted for two hours at 250 degrees. This also can be made into sausage patties without the casings.

ROASTED HONEY-MUSTARD VENISON LOIN
One 3-6 pound venison loin
1 ½ cups honey
½ cup mustard (for best results use a Dijon or pommerey)

Season the loin with a small amount of salt and pepper. Heat honey until the consistency of water, but do not boil. Stir in mustard and brush the loin with the mixture liberally. Place the loin in a roasting pan and roast, covered for 2 ½ hours at 325 degrees, basting every 15 minutes or so with the honey-mustard mixture.

George Antons' Standard Market is at 31226 Ford Road, Garden City. Phone 427-3100 for more information.

Vegetable combination is perfect for grill

AP - Steak, ribs, burgers — this grilled vegetable combo is the perfect partner for whatever grilled meat you choose. Assemble it up to 12 hours ahead and chill until cooking time.

VEGETABLE POTPOURRI
1 tablespoon cooking oil
1 tablespoon white-wine vinegar
1 tablespoon white-wine Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon snipped fresh tarragon, or ¼ teaspoon dried tarragon, crushed ½ teaspoon finely shredded lemon peel
¼ teaspoon salt
8 ounces large whole fresh mushrooms, halved (about 12)
2 small yellow summer squash, halved lengthwise and cut into ½-inch-thick slices
1 cup pearl onions, or 1 large onion, cut into chunks
1 large stalk celery, bias-sliced into 1-inch pieces
2 tablespoons sliced pimiento

Tear off a 36-by-18-inch piece of heavy foil. Fold in half to make an 18-inch square. Fold up sides, using your fist to form a pouch.

In a small mixing bowl stir together oil, vinegar, Worcestershire sauce, tarragon, lemon peel and salt.

In the foil pouch combine mushrooms, squash, onions, celery and pimiento. Pour oil mixture over vegetables. Fold edges of foil to seal pouch securely, leaving space for expansion of steam.

Grill on an uncovered grill directly over medium-hot coals about 30 minutes or until vegetables are crisp-tender, turning the pouch occasionally. Makes 4-6 servings.

Put cranberries, cheese in bread

AP — Add festive Cranberry-Cheese Bread to your holiday table. The recipe is provided by the Wisconsin Milk Marketing Board.

CRANBERRY-CHEESE BREAD
2 cups all-purpose flour
1 cup sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons grated orange peel
2 tablespoons shortening
Juice of 1 orange plus enough water to make ¾ cup
1 egg, beaten
1½ cups shredded cheddar cheese (6 ounces)
1 cup fresh or frozen, thawed cranberries
¾ cup chopped walnuts

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease a 9-by-5-by-3-inch loaf pan. In large bowl combine flour, sugar, baking powder, salt and orange peel. Cut in shortening. Add juice-water mixture, egg and cheese. Mix in cranberries and walnuts just to blend thoroughly. Turn into prepared pan; level top. Bake in a 350-degree oven 60 to 70 minutes or until toothpick inserted into center comes out clean. Cool in pan 10 minutes. Turn out onto rack to cool completely. Wrap securely. For best texture and flavor, let stand at least 8 hours before slicing. Makes 1 loaf.

With M-CARE, the sky is not the limit.

There's a serious accident. Time is crucial. A helicopter is dispatched to speed the victim to the University of Michigan Burn Center... a service you, hopefully, will never have to call on. But it's there if you need it, and much, much more through M-CARE.

M-CARE is the only HMO that links all the resources of the U of M Medical Center to the personal care of your family doctor and your nearby hospital. M-CARE covers you for office visits, checkups, hospitalization – even emergency helicopter transport.

Of course, with the M-CARE network of hospitals in cities like Royal Oak, Dearborn and Rochester, you don't always have to go to the U of M Medical Center. But isn't it good to know it's there whenever you need it? To find out more, ask your employer. Or call M-CARE at 747-8700.

Kathy Moriarty of Franklin prepares meal featuring Spaghetti with White Clam Sauce for herself and husband, TV newsman Ken Ford.

family-tested winner dinner

Whether you are cooking for your family, spouse or even just for yourself, it is hoped that within the context of each week's menu there is something that can be useful and applicable to your particular lifestyle and tastes.

Many of the recipes that have appeared in this column are geared for cooks on the run, who have very little time to prepare a meal, let alone sit down and eat it. And yet some people, like this week's Winner Dinner Winner, Kathy Moriarty, look forward to coming home from work and preparing a simple meal a wonderful way to unwind and relax after a busy day. Moriarty has the added pleasure of watching her husband, Ken Ford, report the 6 p.m. news on Channel 7 while she cooks.

Her simple but elegant menu includes recipes for a garlic-scented clam sauce, as well as a yummy strawberry and lemon tart. It is easy to understand why they much prefer to eat at home rather than go out for dinner.

Originally from the Detroit area and now living in Franklin with her husband, Moriarty works as a sales representative for Alitalia Airlines. Because of her job, she has the opportunity to go to Italy once or twice a year and always enjoys traveling around this beautiful country, sampling its wonderful cuisine. With all this exposure to Italy, it comes as no surprise that Moriarty loves Italian cooking and enjoys inviting their friends over for specially prepared gourmet dinners.

Thank you, Kathy Moriarty, for sharing your delicious recipes with us and congratulations on being this week's Winner Dinner Winner. All the best to you and your husband and continued good luck with your career.

Submit your recipes, to be considered for publication in this column or elsewhere, to: Winner Dinner, P.O. Box 3503, Birmingham 48012. All submissions become the property of the publisher. Each week's winner receives an apron with the words Winner Dinner Winner on it.

Recipes are printed the same size so that you may clip and save them in a three-ring binder. Use a paper punch to make holes in the clipping or paste the clipping on a blank sheet of three-ring notebook paper. Another option is to simply file the clippings in a folder with pockets that will hold them.

Recipes

SPAGHETTI AND WHITE CLAM SAUCE

Easy to prepare, this tasty sauce easily rivals if not betters what you might be served in an Italian restaurant. This recipe makes enough sauce to serve 4 and can be prepared earlier in the day and then reheated just prior to serving.

6 tablespoons olive oil
2 garlic cloves, minced
Dash of dried red pepper
2 cans chopped clams, 6½ ounce size
Salt to taste
Freshly ground black pepper to taste
1 tablespoon flour
½ cup white wine
¾ cup hot water
6 tablespoons butter
1 tablespon parsley, finely chopped
1 pound thin spaghetti

Heat the olive oil in a medium-sized sauce pan. Add garlic and red pepper. Saute until the garlic is tender and a very light shade of golden brown. Add the clams, salt and pepper to taste and saute for 5 minutes. Add the flour and stir. And the wine and mix well. This mixture should simmer for about 5 minutes so that the alcohol in the wine can evaporate. Pour in the water and simmer for another 10 minutes.

Cook the spaghetti in a large pot of boiling water. Be sure to add a little salt and a little bit of olive oil which will help prevent the pasta from sticking together. Cook until the pasta is "al dente."

When the pasta is cooking, add the butter and parsley to the clam sauce. If it is dry, a little more water may be added. Drain the pasta and place in a serving bowl. Pour the sauce over the pasta and toss well.

ORANGE SALAD
1 small head romaine lettuce
1 large orange, cut and sectioned
½ cup prepared croutons
1 slice sweet red onion
½ cup of following salad dressing or your own choice (Wishbone Classic Dijon Vinaigrette is recommended):

½ cup olive oil
Juice of half a lemon
1 teaspoon Dijon mustard
A few drops Worcestershire sauce
1 small clove garlic
Salt and pepper to taste

While washing and drying lettuce, chill salad plates by putting them in the freezer. The lettuce can be dried more quickly by using a salad spinner. Wrap the dried lettuce in a dish towel and place it in the refrigerator to keep it crisp until serving time. Assemble all the salad ingredients in a large bowl, pour on the dressing and toss well once again.

STRAWBERRY AND LEMON CREAM TART

This yummy dessert is sure to become a favorite. For your information, lemon curd is a lemon-flavored pudding that is available in specialty food stores.

½ cup whipping cream
½ cup prepared lemon curd
½ package (or 1 sheet) Pepperidge Farm frozen puff pastry
1 egg mixed with 1 tablespoon water
Sugar
1 pint strawberries, sliced

Whip the cream. Mix one-half of the whipped cream mixture in a medium-sized bowl with the lemon curd. Fold in the remaining cream. This can be made one day ahead. Cover and refrigerate.

Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. Roll out the pastry puff and transfer it to an ungreased cookie sheet. Pierce with a fork and brush with the egg glaze. Form a crust around the edges of puff pastry. Sprinkle with sugar. Bake for about 20 minutes or until lightly browned. Spread the cream mixture in the tart. Decorate with the strawberries.

Business firms launch programs on wellness

Lois Thieleke
home economist, Cooperative Extension Service

Wellness is the popular food, nutrition and health buzzword of the '90s. Even high-powered, highly visible Fortune 500 companies are concerned about wellness as it relates to health care costs, employee absenteeism and productivity.

Many of these companies are conducting worksite wellness programs for employees. The nutrition connection to wellness is too important to be left to chance. Healthy-mindedness is in.

The average person eats about one ton of food a year. Hopefully, included in this 2,000 pounds are the nutrients you need to be at peak performance every day. These essential nutrients are carbohydrates, fat, protein, vitamins, minerals and water. In addition, food also contains other substances such as chemicals and additives.

Among the most common substances are caffeine (found in coffee, black teas, some colas and chocolate) and alcohol. Both chemicals have powerful effects on mood, energy and well-being. Examine your diet record to see how much caffeine and alcohol you are consuming.

GOOD NUTRITION starts with awareness. All too often it is easy to allow our eating habits to be influenced by stress, habit, convenience and other people. In this hurry-up, call-up, drive-through, prepackaged and frozen food world, it can be very difficult to eat a well-balanced meal.

Eating for comfort is learned from infancy, food is pleasurable and temporarily soothes the person who is under pressure. Stress does not significantly alter calorie requirements but can certainly affect how much you eat. For many, stress triggers a desire to overeat while others lose their appetite and will not eat. Remember, an adequately fed body responds more readily to stressful situations and keeps you at your peak.

Some foods can become a habit. Things go wrong and you reach for the box of chocolates for comfort. Indeed, it may make you feel better until the waistline starts to bulge. Chocolate, or whatever your comfort food, can become a habit. Some people rely on things other than good food. Don't waste your time and money on fad diets, diet pills or magic potions. Most of this weight loss is only water, not fat. Get into the habit of eating balanced meals at the same time everyday. This way you condition your body to expect foods at certain times.

A diet poor in nutrients can have devastating effects on your body at any age and over a long period of time can cause permanent damage. Proper nutrition throughout the life cycle will keep the elderly at peak performance. Of course it doesn't stop the aging process, but it can help delay or avoid disorders commonly caused by nutritional deficiencies. Only you can change your eating style.

The right balance of minerals is essential to health. Sodium, calcium and iron are three nutrients that require special attention. Shake that salt habit. There is enough salt in foods, adequate for your body needs, so put the salt shaker away. Too much sodium, of course, leads to high blood pressure, increased risk of heart attack, stroke and kidney disease.

LACK OF CALCIUM can lead to a dangerous thinning of bones later in life, so the need for calcium-rich food never stops. Iron is also an important nutrient. Iron enables the red blood cells to carry oxygen throughout the body and to remove carbon dioxide. Too little iron can cause irritability and fatigue. I'm sure you can see how these can affect your peak performance.

Today we hear a lot about good foods, bad foods, how much is enough, how much is too much, and it certainly gets confusing. Here are five major skills to learn: the essential nutrients in foods, how to cut back on fat and cholesterol, eat more fiber and less sugar, keep mindful of your minerals, and how you can choose and prepare foods.

If you are lucky enough to work for a company that offers worksite wellness programs, attend the sessions. We all want to perform at our very best, feel good, look good. Maybe better nutritional habits can be the answer to peak performance. Food should be more than just something to stop your stomach from growling.

Sewer improvement on tap for area community

By Joe Bauman
staff writer

Construction is scheduled to begin early next spring on a massive sanitary sewer rehabilitation project that, when completed, will end the city of Livonia's involvement in the 12-year-old Super Sewer project.

The bulk of the work involves four local projects aimed at reducing the amount of storm water that infiltrates the sanitary sewer lines.

The infiltration overwhelms the sewer lines, causing basements to flood and pollutes the Rouge River basin.

The cost of the local improvements is estimated at $5 million. A federal grant will pay for 55 percent of the costs.

AMONG THE work to be completed is:

The repair and replacement of 2,800 manhole covers; eliminating sanitary sewer catch basins and replacing sewer lines at about 70 city residences; installing a sewer line along Six Mile from Farmington to Levan; and placing permanent meters in various sewer lines to document the city's outflow to the Detroit treatment plant.

Two other Super Sewer-related efforts will take place simultaneously with the local improvements: The city plans to conduct a survey identifying areas where gutter downspouts on houses and businesses are still tied into the sewer system, and Wayne County will begin construction on a sewer retention basin on the city's east side.

"All of this work is directed at reducing the amount of storm water that infiltrates and eventually overwhelms the sanitary sewer system, and reducing the amount of flow that leaves the city for treatment," said Livonia public services director Robert Beckley.

"First and foremost, the Super Sewer was an environmental project mandated by the federal Environmental Protection Agency and the state Department of Natural Resources to stop pollution of the Rouge River basin from untreated sewage."

BECKLEY SAID officials hope the new Six Mile sewer line will solve basement flooding problems in the Levan corridor from Five Mile to Six Mile by diverting some of the sewage flows to other lines.

"What happens is the pipes get overwhelmed and force the sewage up through basement drains.

"The sewer retention basin should reduce flooding on the east side by holding back some of the flow during heavy rains and spring thaws."

While the city projects are set to go, the sewer retention basin remains a controversial projects.

Residents living near the proposed basin, scheduled for the Inkster-Lyndon area, wager an unsuccessful yearlong battle to have the EPA block the project because of what they perceive as environmental concerns and a lack of proper planning and notification for the basin.

Harold Dunne, attorney for the Association of Significantly Impacted Neighbors, said the group plans to file a lawsuit in federal court within two weeks in an attempt to halt construction of the basin until their concerns are satisfied.

Chardonnay pairs well with holiday turkey

Eleanor and Ray Heald

The holiday season begins with Thanksgiving. The air has turned nippy, the first snow may have fallen, and family and friends are gathered to celebrate the joy of living in America and the blessings we all appreciate.

Before you select the wines to have with your holiday meals, consider what's on your menu — not just the meat, but the side dishes as well.

Turkey matches easily with a variety of wines, but fragrant dressing, sweet potatoes, hearty vegetables and cranberry sauce make the wine choice for roast turkey and all the trimmings a relatively tough one.

Buena Vista Winery in Sonoma, Calif., which makes a full spectrum of California's most-recognized varietals, has tuned into the plight of matching wines to holiday roast turkey. Its suggestion for the perfect wine with the traditional harvest holiday meal is America's favorite varietal — chardonnay.

"Pairing wine and food isn't difficult or mysterious," says Buena Vista's winemaker Jill Davis. "Chardonney blends and complements the tastes and textures of the traditional Thanksgiving meal. We've created our 1989 Carneros Chardonnay with this in mind. We'd like Americans to taste for themselves and be the judge.

"FOR ME, personally, the Thanksgiving meal is a lot of work, but it's fun. The best part of the holiday season is sharing wonderful food and wine with people you love."

Buena Vista Winery has captured its winemaker's spirit with a Wine Country Holiday Promotion to celebrate the pairing of chardonnay with America's favorite holiday meal, roast turkey.

Buena Vista is offering a $2.50 refund for any turkey bought during the holiday season when a bottle of 1989 Buena Vista Carneros Chardonnay is purchased.

"I'm excited about our promotion and I hope it encourages people to try one of my favorite wine and food pairings," Davis says. Included with the promotion is an easy-to-prepare Harvest Soup recipe, one of Davis' family favorites.

We will throw our opinions in, too, but without the $2.50 refund on a turkey. The drier styles of chenin blanc have just a touch of residual sugar to carry them off against dressing and sweet potatoes. We recommend the 1989 Chenin Blanc from Girard, Hacienda or Villa Mt. Eden.

If you prefer chenins sweet edged, there is none better than the 1989 Pine Ridge Winery Chenin Blanc. The 1988 Simi Chenin Blanc is the current release from this winery and it is drinking handsomely now.

California gewurztraminers have just the right spice accent to complement richer, spicier turkey stuffing. The recommendation here is the one from Fetzer.

LIGHT RED wines complement turkey but not sweet potatoes, so if your family is into mashed potatoes and gravy, this is the way to go. Italian chiantis are versatile in this role. Ruffino Chianti Classico is always well-priced and delicious.

WINE SELECTION OF THE WEEK

1989 Buena Vista Carneros Chardonnay ($11). Look for the neckband $2.50 turkey-purchase-refund accompanying this wine deliberately stylized to complement a traditional Thanksgiving feast. The pineapple-citrus, butter and oaky aromas with matching flavors will enhance your celebration. Medium-full textures finish round and full. A delicious rendition.

In the true harvest spirit, try a Beaujolais Nouveau from Georges Duboeuf, France's premier negociant, who has made Beaujolais his specialty, or the always-pleasing Gamay Beaujolais Nouveau from California's Beringer Vineyards or Charles Shaw Winery.

Try hot dogs on pita or croissant

AP — Americans slather hot dogs with all the familiar condiments, but more and more they give the standard a fresh look with toppings ranging from guacamole to peanut butter.

To further enhance the hot dog, the National Hot Dog and Sausage Council suggests an alternative to the familiar bun.

Rye, wheat, Vienna or pita breads all add distinction. For a real change of pace, consider crepes, thin pancakes, potato pancakes, muffins, bagels, tortillas or croissants as a base.

IN ADDITION to a universe of potential toppings, a number of marinades can be produced quickly. This is a particularly useful notion when the hot dogs are cut into chunks for kebabs.

Apple cider, pineapple juice, beer, dry wines or soy sauce mixed with orange juice — all will add a special flavor to the hot dog after marinating only a few hours.

Here, from the Hot Dog and Sausage Council, are some hot dog variations:

Kraut Dog: Heat canned or homemade sauerkraut with caraway seeds, 1 chopped dill pickle and ¼ teaspoon sugar. Spoon over hot dog.

Hawaiian Dog: Combine crushed pineapple, sweet-and-sour sauce and finely chopped green peppers for the topping.

Greek Dog: Spread hot dog with chopped olives (preferably Kalamata). Top with dollop of sour cream, onion dip or yogurt.

Salad Dog: Top with shredded lettuce, chopped green onions, celery and tomato. Drizzle with 1 teaspoon of your favorite salad dressing.

Slaw Dog: Cover hot dog with your favorite style of slaw, tangy or creamy. Drain off excess liquid before using as a topping.

Veggie Dog: Combine your favorite raw vegetables thinly sliced, including tomatoes, mushrooms, cucumbers, green onions. Top with alfalfa sprouts.

SAUERKRAUT RELISH
One 8-ounce can sauerkraut, drained
¼ cup finely chopped celery
¼ cup finely chopped onion
¼ cup shredded carrot
2-3 tablespoons packed brown sugar
2 tablespoons vinegar
½ teaspoon celery seed

Combine all ingredients in a small bowl. Let stand 1 hour for flavors to blend. Serve with grilled smoked sausages or franks. Makes 1½ cups relish.

Salem's Sarah Ruete struggles with Stevenson's Patty Diamond for possession of the basketball in the district final Friday. The Rocks rolled in the second half to a 73-46 victory. Salem plays Ann Arbor Pioneer at 6 tonight in the regional tournament at Trenton High School.

Rocks hold court in district tourney

By Neal Zipser
staff writer

After two grueling weeks of games against North Farmington, Northville and Plymouth Canton, it looked as if Plymouth Salem might have run out of gas in Friday's Class A district final.

Despite leading throughout the first half, the Rocks were unable to put away Livonia Stevenson and led only 36-31 at halftime.

Any worries of fatigue were forgotten, however, in the second half as Salem shot 62 percent from the field to score an easy 73-46 victory at Northville.

It was the Rocks' seventh district championship in eight years. Salem improved to 19-3 overall and plays tonight at 6 p.m. in a regional against Ann Arbor Pioneer at Trenton.

The Spartans, 12-10 overall, didn't help their cause with 16 percent shooting from the floor in the second half. They missed all but one of their 16 fourth quarter field goal attempts.

WE DIDN'T DO anything differently in the second half," Salem coach Fred Thomann said. "We adjusted our defense just a tad. Offensively we got good shots and were making them. I think the key was that we stopped giving them second chances from offensive rebounds.

"We knew if it was going to be a scoring contest, it would be good for us. We have had a tough two weeks. Everything has been riding on each game. If you stub your toe in one of the district games, then your season is over. This was a good, solid win."

Said Stevenson coach Chuck Hebestreit: "I think the key to the game was the perimeter shooting of Salem. They were driving and were able to pull up and hit their jumpers. You always want to play a team the caliber of Salem, because when you play a good team, it brings your game up. We knew it would be a challenge and a tough game."

Senior guard Sarah Ruete scored 12 points in each half to finish with a game-high 24 points, as she penetrated at will on the Spartan defense.

"I saw the openings and drove the ball in," Ruete said. "My shot was on tonight."

Salem took a 15-10 lead in the second quarter. Back-to-back layups by Emily Giuliani gave the Rocks a 19-10 lead, Stevenson's Teresa Sarno kept the game close.

SARNO, WHO finished with 21 points, tallied 10 in the second quarter. She was five of seven at the free throw stripe and hit a three-pointer to close the margin to 34-31. Two free throws by Ruete gave the Rocks a 36-31 halftime edge.

Two more baskets by Sarno brought the Spartans within three, at 39-36. But that was when Salem began to connect.

The Rocks exploded on a 16-4 run and took a 55-40 lead late in the third quarter. Stevenson's Jenny Audet's buzzer beating jumper ended the third, but Salem clinged to a 13-point lead heading into the final quarter.

The Rocks dominated the fourth quarter, outscoring the Spartans 18-4. Salem scored on its first five possessions, while Stevenson missed its first five shots.

A Sarno layup broke the Spartan dry spell, but nothing was cooling the hot-shooting Rocks down. Betsy McAllister poured in 12 points for Salem, which also received 10 points each from Giuliani, Yolanda Jackson and Darcie Miller.

Audet and Laura Zatorski added 11 and 10 points respectively for Stevenson.

"We are only losing two seniors," Hebestreit said. "We'll have 13 girls back. We beat some good teams like Canton this year and achieved goals the entire way. I think playing in a district final game like this will be an advantage to the girls who return next year."

Oakland rally downs Eagles

Oakland Catholic outscored Plymouth Christian Academy 20-7 in the final seven minutes Thursday and knocked the Eagles out of the girls state basketball tournament.

Oakland's fourth-quarter comeback erased a 36-24 deficit and gave the Titan a 44-43 win over Plymouth Christian in the second round of the Class D district tournament at Oakland Christian.

Michelle Collins scored 14 points to pace the winners, 15-6. Jenny Moore tallied a game-high 19 points for Plymouth Christian, which finishes the season 16-6.

Defense leads way as CC storms into AA final

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Brian Chaney played on the last Redford Catholic Central football team that made it to the state finals in 1988 — and lost to Traverse City.

"I didn't play a big part in that game," said Chaney, a senior defensive end. "Now I've got a chance to make my presence known."

The entire CC team earned itself at least that much Saturday with an impressive 21-0 win over Saginaw in a Class AA semifinal played before 3,011 at Flint's Atwood Stadium. CC took a 14-0 halftime lead and held Saginaw's powerful offense to 120 yards in total offense.

Saginaw shut out six teams during the regular season but never had the favor returned before Saturday. The loss ends Saginaw's season at 10-2.

"CC is a good football team," Saginaw coach George Genyk said. "As far as talent, we've played better teams. But as far as discipline, fundamentals and cohesiveness, this is the best team we've faced."

CC, 10-2 OVERALL, will meet Detroit Martin Luther King for the AA title at at 1 p.m. Saturday at the Pontiac Silverdome. King, undefeated in 12 games, beat Troy 19-0 in the other semifinal.

This is CC's third trip to a state final in the last four years. CC lost to King, 20-7, earlier this year, so it's revenge time for the Shamrocks.

"This is a great opportunity for us," said CC coach Tom Mach, who led the Shamrocks to the 1979 Class A title. "I don't care who it is. We're going there to win it. We're just worried about what we have to do. We feel we've played the toughest schedule in the state and have played three teams who made it to the semifinal round of their classes."

CC scored in the first half on a 19-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Jason Carr to Frank Yoakam and a 17-yard run by tailback Arshon Stewart. The Shamrocks, who amassed 147 of their 192 yards in total offense by halftime, capitalized on a Saginaw turnover and scored their last points on a 2-yard run by fullback Jon Barbara in the fourth quarter.

Placekicker Kerry Zavagnin made all three extra points.

BUT IT WAS CC's defense, led by down linemen Dan Gusoff, Gary Gurgold, Rob Sylvester and Dan Cretu, which made the biggest impression. The Shamrocks intercepted two of quarterback Jamie Lay's passes and allowed the Trojans three quarterbacks only 61 yards through the air. Lay left the game on a couple of occasions because of a hand injury and finished the day five of 14 for 46 yards and two interceptions.

CC's defense, which limited Saginaw to only six first downs, came up with the game's first big play on the Trojans first possession. Saginaw drove 54 yards on 10 plays to CC's 21, but on first down, Shamrocks' safety Matt Roney intercepted a Lay pass near the goal line.

"We needed a sudden change and we got it," Chaney said. "It busted their bubble."

Said Mach: "Sometimes a momentum change lasts a whole half. Our kids played real well, especially defensively. That was a real key for us, because they were able to move the ball and put it near the end zone."

CC took a 7-0 lead early in the second quarter on a 10-play, 76-yard drive. Carr, who completed two of eight passes for 28 yards, ended the drive with a 19-yard TD pass in the corner of the end zone to wide receiver Frank Yoakam.

SAGINAW HELPED keep the drive alive with a face mask penalty after a 7-yard end-around run by Yoakam.

An interception near midfield by CC's Jeff Rees set up CC's second score. The Shamrocks took the ball 46 yards on four plays and scored on a 17-yard run by Stewart with 2:20 left for a 14-0 lead.

Stewart led CC with 87 yards on 23 carries and seems to have locked up the No. 1 tailback job in place of senior Mike Thomas. Thomas, who has missed the last four games because of an ankle injury, played in CC's secondary Saturday.

"Right now, he's a better runner," Mach said. "Mike is a better safety, but if anything happens, Mike is not a bad guy to go to."

Rees recovered a fumble at Saginaw's 28 early in the fourth quarter to set up CC's last score. The Shamrocks scored five plays later on Barbara's 2-yard run with 5:24 remaining to put the game away.

Barbara finished with 64 yards on 13 carries.

"We just kept our mouths shut and came up with a victory," Barbara said. "We feel good about ourselves and put ourselves in a position to accomplish our goal. Now we've just got to do it."

Marlins district champs

Mercy boosts hoop tradition

The tradition continues for Farmington Hills Mercy basketball, though Walled Lake Central did its best to disrupt the Marlins' amazing success in postseason play.

Mercy won its 14th district championship in coach Larry Baker's 18 years Friday but only after surviving a fourth-quarter rally by the Vikings.

Junior center Laure DeMattia scored 16 points and led an impressive showing at the free-throw line as the Marlins fought off Central 51-48 in the final of the Walled Lake Western tournament.

Mercy (16-5) will play Royal Oak Kimball at 6 tonight in the first round of the Southfield-Lathrup regional. The final is scheduled for 7 p.m. Tuesday. Central finishes with a 12-10 record.

The Marlins appeared to be on Easy Street, breaking away from a 21-21 halftime tie and holding a 42-31 lead early in the final period.

BUT THE Vikings nearly won the game behind the play of senior Karyn Koslowski and sophomore Cindy Miaha, the two of them accounting for all of Central's 20 points in the last quarter. Koslowski had 14 of her game-high 23 points in the second half, Muha 10 of her 14.

"I told the kids it wasn't a matter of us losing our poise or starting to choke," Baker said. "Credit an exceptional effort by Muha and Koslowski. They really stepped forward and played outstanding basketball. Those two almost willed the game into overtime."

Mercy still had a 46-38 lead after Maureen Paulin's free throws, but the Marlins committed turnovers on their next two possessions. Koslowski scored five straight points to make it a three-point game with under three minutes remaining.

Muha got the Vikings within two, 47-45, and Mercy again made consecutive turnovers. But Central failed to capitalize, turning the ball over and missing a shot on its possessions. Central coach Ken Butler thought Kerri Kobus should have awarded a two-shot foul after driving the lane on the second one.

Mercy's Kathleen Gerigk sank the front end of a one-and-one with 13 seconds left, and Mary Bieniewicz put back the rebound for a 51-45 lead. Muha sank a triple at the buzzer.

"I thought (Mercy) panicked a little, which is unlike Mercy," Butler said. "They couldn't take the air out of the ball because of the pressure we put on them. That's why we're an up-tempo team — a six-point lead is nothing against us.

"WE ONLY got outplayed for four minutes of the game, and that was the first four minutes of the second half."

The Marlins made more field goals in the first 3½ minutes of the second half than they did in the entire first and broke away to a 33-24 lead. After shooting 23 percent (8-22) in the first half, Mercy made seven of 19 field goals in the third quarter.

Carrie Walton, who added 11 points for the Marlins despite playing with a severe case of tonsilitis, scored the first three baskets of the third period, and Mercy's momentum held for a 36-28 lead at the end.

"We set up a little trap we haven't used since early September," Baker said. "It was one of those situations where the coach plays a bunch — show them something they're not expecting — and we got a couple quick ones. You can attribute that one to coaching genius."

Walton's driving layup gave Mercy its 42-31 lead, but the Marlins went nearly six minutes without another field goal, relying on seven free throws to maintain their lead in the face of Central's comeback.

Mercy was 21 of 30 shooting free throws, the Vikings 10 of 14. DeMattia, who got crunched attempting layups time and again, made eight, Paulin and Bieniewicz four apiece.

"WE KNOW they're not a very physical team," said Butler, who chose not to play senior Kelly Glennie, the team's second-leading scorer, because she missed practice Thursday.

"They don't like the body put on them. Most teams are afraid and back off, but we went right after them. We always do that anyway. I had no question in my mind we could win this game."

While the Marlins took advantage of the free throws, Central's aggressive and physical play had an effect on the Marlins, Baker said.

"Their aggressiveness always hurt us when we lost our concentration," he said. "So it didn't completely backfire. They forced us to make some turnovers.

"I thought we could go inside with Laure. That's just the way they play. It's not as much fun when a Carrie Walton makes a great move, gets cleaned out and has to do it at the free throw line."

Central went ahead 19-13 in the second quarter, but Mercy rallied to tie 21-21 after going nearly eight minutes without a field goal. A pair of outside baskets by Gerigk were key.

"The '90 Marlins play well together, they move the ball and you never know who's going to come through on a given night," Baker said. "Tonight it was Laure and Carrie, and Maureen and Mary Bieniewicz stepped up and played outstanding basketball too."

Oxford stuns Harrison

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Offense, offense, offense. Everything was offense Saturday in the Class BB semifinal football game at Jackson Withington Stadium.

Defense was non-existent as Oxford and Farmington Hills Harrison combined for an incredible 86 points and 936 yards in total offense while playing ping-pong with the football.

That was as unexpected as the result, which had Oxford cutting through a vaunted Harrison defense for seven touchdowns and a stunning 48-38 victory over the defending champion Hawks.

The No. 2-ranked Wildcats (12-0) will play Dowagiac for the title at 8 p.m. Saturday in the Pontiac Silverdome. Top-ranked Harrison, which failed to make the state final for the first in four years, ends the season at 10-2.

"Harrison football is like Michigan football," Oxford coach Bud Rowley said. "When you beat those kids, you beat a great, great tradition.

"WE'VE GOT some great athletes, and we got this one. This is the biggest win in Oxford athletic history. We felt we had the athletes, the people, to play with them."

The amazing display of offense featured big plays by individuals and saw the teams score on seven of the first eight possessions, eight of 13 in the first half and 13 of 22 overall.

Harrison's trouble was its failure to stop the Oxford option. Though he never reached the end zone, tailback Steve McCracken got outside for 193 yards on 21 carries and frustrated the Hawks.

"Nobody has really stopped us all year," McCracken said. "It started working, so we kept going to it. (The upset win) is like a dream come true."

Quarterback Mike Fedorinchik, the trigger man on the option, might have been more responsible for Oxford's awesome offensive showing. He rushed for 102 yards on nine attempts and scored on runs of 33, 10 and 8 yards. Fedorinchik balanced that with six-of-12 passing and another 105 yards.

Halfback Jeff Beane had 3 yards rushing but scored 3 touchdowns — all on 1-yard line smashes. Fullback Lee Fragoso added 77 yards on 14 carries, including a 48-yarder to set up Beane's first TD that gave the Wildcats a 7-0 lead.

"OUR DEFENSE has been good against the power game, but we've been a little vulnerable to the option," Harrison coach John Herrington said. "They run it much better than anything we've seen.

"They've got such a varied offense, because they throw out of the slot and then option it. You've got to get up and make some tackles, and we didn't do it."

Oxford's defense had as much trouble with the Hawks. The Wildcats had 480 total yards, 375 of it rushing. Harrison had 456 yards — 366 on the ground and 90 in the air.

Roy Granger ran an effective counter sweep 11 times for 184 yards, which included scoring runs of 5 and 54 yards.

He also caught a 41-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Plamen Magdevski, who hit six of 21 passes and threw a 19-yard strike to Greg Piscopink for Harrison's first TD.

Tailback Gary Devine countered McCracken's big day with 161 yards rushing and a 1-yard TD run on 21 carries.

"WE HAD KIDS out there who make you miss on both sides," Herrington said. "It was a defensive coordinator's nightmare. I really thought the score would end in the 20s somewhere."

"I thought four touchdowns would win it," Rowley said. "At the beginning of the third quarter, I was thinking whoever had it last would win it."

In a game that featured six lead changes, the Hawks scored with 20 seconds left in the first half, cutting Oxford's lead to 28-25 on Granger's TD catch and Magdevski's conversion pass to Larry Loewen.

The momentum carried over to the second half, and Harrison scored the first two times it had the ball, taking a 38-28 lead. Granger dashed 54 yards on the counter, and Devine capped a nine-play drive after Dan Hight's interception.

But Harrison failed to stop the Wildcats, who scored on their next three possessions while forcing the Hawks to punt twice.

McCracken picked up the first down on fourth-and-one at the Oxford 41, and Fedorinchik passed 43 yards to tight end Mike Jensen, setting up Beane's second TD (38-34).

McCracken sprinted 46 yards to the Harrison 15, and the Wildcats regained the lead, 41-38, on Fedorinchik's second TD run with 8:26 to play.

"I THOUGHT WE would do a lot better on the option," Herrington said. "We couldn't figure it out; we tried everything."

The Hawks were three-and-out on their next series after a sure first-down pass was dropped at midfield. Oxford decided the game with a time-consuming drive resulting in Fedorinchik's third TD.

The Wildcats, who benefited from good field position much of the day, started at the 50 with 7:00 to play, converted a fourth-and-inches play at the Harrison 26 (McCracken on the carry again) and scored with just 1:42 remaining.

"Oxford can play football. We've got the athletes. We happened to put them in the right spot, get a few breaks and make the right plays."

The Wildcats needed only 2:49 to open the scoring on Beane's first run. Harrison responded with a three-play drive capped by Magdevski's pass to Piscopink, and a 32-yard field goal by Mark Lebovitz made it 10-7.

Oxford sandwiched scoring runs by Fragoso and Fedorinchik around Granger's 5-yarder, putting the Wildcats in front 21-17 with six minutes left in the half. Back-to-back holding penalties (Harrison was penalized eight times for 95 yards) put the Hawks in bad field position for the punt, and McCracken's 44-yard run led to another Beane run and a 28-17 lead for Oxford.

"It's the greatest boost you want," said Rowley of beating Harrison and earning the trip to the Dome. "It's what you want to get you're program and the kids pumped up. You can't ask for a better scenario."

Salem, Canton harriers pace squad

By Brad Emons
staff writer

THE LATEST EDITION of the All-Area boys cross country squad features some familiar names as well as some new faces.

Featured on the first team are three harriers from Plymouth Salem. Meanwhile, neighbor Canton placed two on the first team.

Both schools went to the state Class A meet, finishing 21st and 23rd, respectively, in the team standings.

Salem, which qualified for the state meet by winning the regional at Marshbank Park, was led by coach Geoff Baker, a Salem grad who garners Coach of the Year honors for the first time.

Introducing the 1990 All-Area Boys Cross Country Team:

FIRST TEAM

Ben Goba, Farmington: The area's premier runner, Goba enjoyed a banner senior year, winning the West Bloomfield, Schoolcraft College, Redford Union and Shrine invitationals, as well as the Western Lakes Activities Association and regional meets.

In the state Class A individual race, Goba finished third overall with a time of 15:58 (for 5,000 meters).

His best performance of the season and his career came at RU Invitational, where he was clocked in 15:53.

"As far as focusing, concentrating on a race, his work ethic is real strong," said coach Jerry Young of the two-time All-Stater. "The first thing he has in mind is first place. He goes right to the front. He has that attitude. I'm going to get out front and you're going to have to catch me."

Mike Ream, Plymouth Canton: The senior took third in the Class A regional and finished fourth in both the WLAA and Schoolcraft College meets.

In the state Class A team race, Ream finished 18th.

He recorded the school's second best time ever this season with a clocking of 16:19.

Ream is a three-time All-Ypsilanti Invitational, RU Invitational and Team MVP for the Chiefs.

"This kind of performance can only come from hard work and dedication," said Canton coach Jim Hayes. "As a captain this year, Mike has helped ensure the continued success of Canton cross country."

Ken Podina, Redford Union: The senior came on strong his final prep season, recording the area's third best finish at the state meet, gaining 22nd place in the individual race.

He took fourth in the Northwest Suburban League meet, fifth at the Sterling Heights Invitational and sixth at the regional. Podina was also 10th in the Schoolcraft Invitational and 14th at RU.

"The more pressure, the better for Kenny," said RU coach Tobin Jones. "He became a force to be reckoned with at the state level."

Eric Curnow, Livonia Franklin: The 6-foot-3 senior, in only his second year of running, posted some impressive numbers.

He holds the Franklin course record (at Nankin Mills) with a time of 16:37.

His best finishes were at the Livonia Public Schools meet (first), WLAA (fifth) regional (fifth) and Schoolcraft (ninth).

Curnow suffered bad luck at the state meet, going down with a sprained ankle.

He will run track next spring for the Patriots after winning the No. 4 singles title last spring at the WLAA tennis tourney.

"Eric does not have an extensive running background, but in just two years he became a fine runner," said Franklin coach Bob Holmes. "With added strength he'll be even better."

Jason Crain, Plymouth Canton: The senior took eighth in both the regional and Schoolcraft meets. He also made all-invitational at RU and Ypsilanti.

His best time of the season was 16:42.

"Jason has been a nice surprise to our team this year," said the Canton coach. "Last season he was injured and he ran in only three races. We knew he was a hard worker and it showed as the season began.

"He vaulted past three of our returning runners to become our second best runner this year. His contributions both on and off the race course will be missed next year."

John Thomas, Plymouth Salem: Thomas, a senior, gained seventh places at both the regional and WLAA meets.

In the Gibraltar Carlson meet he took fifth with a personal best of 16:38. He also took 14th at the Ann Arbor Pioneer Invitational and 25th at Holly.

"John was one of our captains and our No. 1 runner all year," said Salem coach Geoff Baker. "He worked hard this year and was a great asset to Salem cross country."

Jon Borke, Redford Catholic Central: The senior paced the Shamrocks in most meets this season, gaining eighth place at the West Bloomfield and Haslett (16:44) invitationals.

Borke took ninth at both the Catholic League and Operation-Friendship meets.

He finished 18th at the regional and 31st in the state Class A individual race. Among his other top invitational performances: Sturgis (10th), Shamrock (11th) and Holly (18th).

"He was our most consistent front runner," said CC coach Tony Magni. "He provided steady senior leadership. He dedicated himself to the sport this year."

Mike Patterson, Plymouth Salem: The senior helped solidify one of the area's top teams by finishing eighth in the WLAA meet and 13th at the regional.

He also made a strong showing at the state Class A meet.

"Mike was a captain and ran with pain during the early part of the season," said coach Baker. "He ran well for us at the end and worked hard to get better all season.

Patterson posted his best time of the year (17:07) at Carlson Invitational where he placed ninth.

Derek Cudini, Plymouth Salem: Only a sophomore, Cudini finished 11th in both the WLAA and regional meets.

He recorded his best time in the regional (17:09).

Cudini also grabbed 43rd in the state Class A team race, as well as finishing 20th in both the Carlson and Pioneer invitationals.

"Derek was one of our most consistent runners," said the Salem coach. "Derek, being a sophomore, will be a great runner the next two years. He is not afraid to work hard."

Rodney Westlake, Livonia Stevenson: The Spartan captain performed well in the major meets, taking ninth in the WLAA and regional.

The state qualifier finished second in the Livonia City Meet and first at the Western Wayne Invitational.

"Rodney is an outstanding individual, as well as a fine athlete," said Stevenson coach John Gores. "He is dedicated, hard working and is very coachable. He was our No. 1 runner all season long. He also did a fine job of providing leadership for the Stevenson team."

Schoolcraft seeded 4th in NJCAA tourney

volleyball

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Schoolcraft College is seeded No. 4 as 16 teams from across the country converge on Miami-Dade South (Fla.) today for the annual National Junior College Athletic Association women's volleyball tournament.

The Lady Ocelots, who won the NJCAA crown in 1988, will compete in a four-team pool which includes No. 5 seed Jefferson CC (Mo.), the only junior college team to beat Schoolcraft this season; No. 12 seed Waldorf CC (Iowa), sporting a 37-5 overall record; and Ondaga CC (N.Y.), 47-2 overall.

The top two teams from each of the four pools advance to Tuesday's double elimination round. The finals are set for Wednesday.

Miami-Dade Wolfson, featuring three South American players who competed in the 1990 Pan-American Games, earned the No. 1 seed.

The second seed is Eastern Arizona and in front of Schoolcraft is Barton CC (Kan.), whom the Ocelots defeated earlier this year.

"We ended up ahead of Barton last year and we beat them head-to-head this year," said SC coach Tom Teeters. "It's determined by a committee. Last year's results are taken into consideration. It's strange how it works out."

THE LADY OCELOTS, 40-3 overall and 20-1 against JC foes, will be taking 11 players to Miami, including Region 12 Tournament MVP Jenny Sproul, a Livonia Churchill High product.

Schoolcraft, making its fifth NJCAA appearance, also features several other Observerland products including Christy Clark (Churchill), Renea Bonser (Livonia Stevenson), Laura Brown (Stevenson) and Kari Domanski (Livonia Ladywood).

Brown, who sat out last season, was a back-row specialist for the Lady Ocelots when they captured the coveted title in '88.

"The top six seeds are very tough," Teeters said. "I think this is the toughest field the NJCAA has ever had. We've had a tough schedule and we're hoping that pays off for us."

Teeters' immediate goal is to make it out of pool play as the first place seed.

"That's because second place teams are usually weaker," said the SC coach.

Three starters return from last year's SC team, including All-Region 12 tourney picks Sproul, Angellette Love (Detroit Henry Ford) and Elena Oparka (Madison Heights Lamphere).

Lady Ocelots 3rd at NJCAA tourney

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

TRENTON, N.J. — With eight minutes left in the first half of Saturday's match, Schoolcraft College's women's soccer team lined up to take a corner kick. Nikki Johnson took it, tapping it a few yards to an unmarked Sarah Hayes.

As Hayes dribbled toward the net, a Mercer County Community College defender came out to challenge her. Hayes lined a crossing pass to the far side of the net, where three Lady Ocelots — Donna O'Brien, Bonnie Boyle and Bev DeJohn — were bunched. O'Brien knocked down the ball and Boyle jammed it into the net, giving SC a 1-0 lead.

"That," announced a smiling Nick O'Shea, the SC coach, "was a set play."

It was well-designed and well-executed. And it wasn't the first time during the four-day National Junior College Athletic Association Tournament that O'Shea's insight was on track.

SC GOT another goal in the second half against Mercer, the host team, to finish the tourney with a 2-0 victory in the consolation final. It gave the Lady Ocelots a season-ending record of 9-4-4, with two wins in three games and a third place in the tourney.

Which was right about where O'Shea figured his team would end up.

He was hoping for more, of course. "It was one of those things, I told our AD (Marty Nowak) we could take third," said O'Shea. "You're never 100 percent sure, but looking over the brackets and the other teams, I was pretty certain.

"Plus the girls put in a lot of effort during the two weeks before. I thought our team had a gutty performance. They were playing with a lot of aches and pains, and the thing was, they were still playing hard."

The game that ended their championship hopes was Friday against Florissant Valley Community College (from St. Louis). SC surrendered a goal with 1:10 remaining before halftime, but continued to battle the No. 1-ranked team in the NJCAA evenly until the last 20 minutes before succumbing, 4-0.

In their tournament opener Thursday against Anne Arundel Community College (Arnold, Md.), the Lady Ocelots escaped with a 1-0 triumph.

IT WAS the Flo Valley match that was pivotal. Which — of course — O'Shea knew prior to the tournament. He figured his empty-bench team (since late in the season, SC has had just 11 players on the roster) could get past Anne Arundel in the opener.

But the second-round match, played the very next day against either Flo Valley or No. 2-ranked Brevard (N.C.) Community College, would be very difficult for his short-handed team.

Flo Valley beat Brevard and SC disposed of Anne Arundel, setting up a rematch with SC (the two teams had played twice, with Flo Valley winning one and tying the other). Breaks would decide the issue, O'Shea figured — breaks and Flo Valley's Laura Goeke.

O'Shea's plan was to have DeJohn mark Goeke. With the first half nearly expired, the strategy seemed solid, even though DeJohn — who was suffering from the flu — was far from full strength. But to that point, Goeke had not been a factor.

"Yeah," said O'Shea in reply to that observation. "But the thing is, it only takes once for her to burn you."

A PROPHETIC remark. Goeke got possession near the center of the field and took off, with DeJohn trailing. She sent a pass ahead to Debbie Hadley, and Hadley split two SC defenders and bounced the ball past keeper Cindy Bowman to put Flo Valley up 1-0.

Goeke created the second goal without any help at all. She intercepted the ball at midfield, ran straight through SC's defense and beat Bowman to give Flo Valley the insurance it needed, a 2-0 lead.

A poor clearing pass from Angie Stiglmaier to DeJohn, who went in to play goal for Bowman, was intercepted by Kris Kaczmarek. She rifled it in for a 3-0 lead with 18:33 to go. Kim Beeman made it 4-0, lofting a 30-yard shot over DeJohn with 12:43 left.

"Schoolcraft played very well against us," said Flo Valley coach Karen Lombardo. "Nick had them in a low pressure defense and was countering quickly. And in the first half, we just played terrible. We were long-balling it instead of playing our game. In the second half, we adjusted better."

In Saturday's win over Mercer, Boyle — playing with a cracked rib and a possible fractured knuckle — figured in all the scoring. Her second-half free kick from 40 yards was deflected toward the Mercer goal by a defender. Bowman got possession and scored to make it 2-0.

The win over Anne Arundel didn't come easily, due to both bad breaks (three shots off the post) and bad play by SC. But Hayes' first-half goal, set up by Boyle, was enough.

SC men exit quickly from tourney

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

TRENTON, N.J. — A lesson learned — the hard way.

Two games and out. That's as long as Schoolcraft College's men's soccer team lasted at the National Junior College Athletic Association's Tournament, which made their first trip to the tournament in a decade a disappointing one.

And bitter. And frustrating.

The Ocelots found out very quickly what it takes to win here. In their opener Thursday, they surrendered three goals in the first 28:16 to a lightning-quick Passaic County CC and never recovered, losing 3-0.

SC's second game, a consolation match Friday against Lees McRae, was more of the same. Still banged up from the Passaic match — the Ocelots were missing leading scorer Khaled Zeidan and several others were nursing injuries — they got bounced around and lost 3-0 again.

"If we play the first game and it's against a team that has one or two superior players, we can make adjustments on the field," said SC coach Van Dimitriou. "But that team was loaded. We would have had to play one of our better games to win."

DIMITRIOU accepted some of the blame for SC's poor showing.

"There was a lack of mental preparedness — by everyone," he said. "Our getting here, not enough time for practice, we could have used more preparation. I thought we lost some of our edge on the long trip."

But it wasn't just the 12-hour bus ride, spread over Tuesday and Wednesday, that hurt SC. Dimitriou never bothered to get a scouting report on his opponents.

That proved to be a mistake when Passaic sweeper Keith Thomlinson victimized the Ocelot defense — after Ed Dzyngel fanned on a clearing attempt — and scored 10 minutes into the match.

Altimont Butler quickly buried SC further, getting back-to-back goals with just under 28 minutes and 17 minutes left in the half.

Any adjustments made after that were too late.

"I thought we were coming here to play another junior college team," said Dimitriou, referring the Passaic roster, which was dotted with foreign players. "I didn't prepare myself, nor my team, for it.

"I assumed we could play with any team here, that we could make adjustments on the field.

"I made some mistakes as a first-year coach at this tournament."

MISTAKES COST the Ocelots against Lees McRae, too. With SC trailing 1-0, Gary Deehan got free on a break when Dzyngel fell. Deehan bounced a shot at the far side of the net that a sprawling keeper Scott Hauman could not stop. The ball bounced over Hauman and into the net for a 2-0 margin.

Adding to their woes — the Ocelots were already playing a man short after Jerry Staszel was red-carded on a questionable call — Dzyngel failed to convert a penalty kick. Lees McRae got its final goal from Tom Oxenreider late in the match.

"We were eliminated, but we learned a lot of lessons," said Dimitriou. "Hopefully, we can come back and improve on our performance of this year, which won't be too hard."

And, hopefully, SC won't have to wait another 10 years.

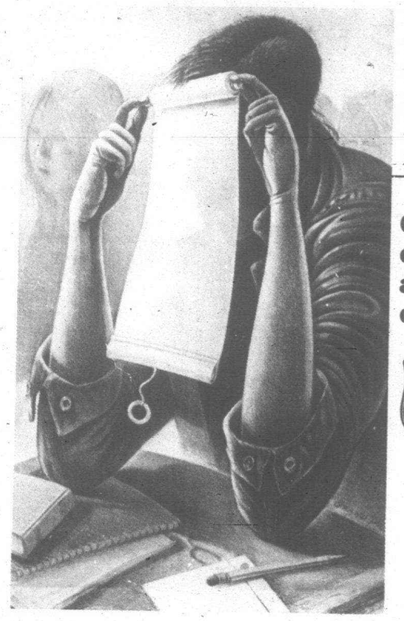
The Hometown and Observer and Eccentric "Creative Living" section has the largest selection of suburban display real estate ads in the metro area.

It's hard to learn anything on Monday when you didn't eat anything on Sunday

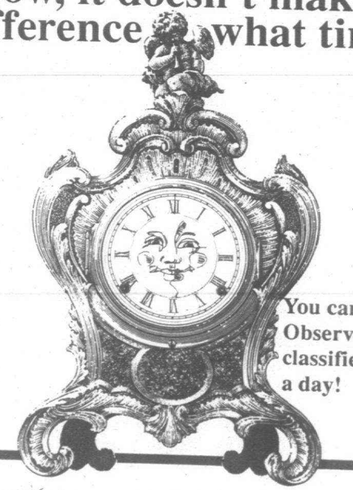


Last year we fed millions of hungry people in the United States. You can help us. We're The Salvation Army.

God cares... and so do we!

THE SALVATION ARMY

Now, it doesn't make any difference what time it is.



You can place an Observer & Eccentric classified ad 24 hours a day!

Here's how it works:
First, you must have a touch-tone telephone.
Then, all you do is call us—remember, it doesn't make any difference if we're not here—to place an ad, cancel one or change something on one you've placed earlier.
Let's say it's eight o'clock at night and you've just realized that the cupid on the clock you're selling plays a tin whistle. It's a good selling point, so you punch up our classified number and wait for the operator to guide you through the steps for changing your ad. Have in mind the exact information you want to give us, speak clearly and a bit slower than you usually do. And that's it.
If it's after 5:00 p.m. on Tuesday, your changes will be made for the next Monday paper. Or, if it's after 5:00 p.m. on a Friday or the weekend, your changes will hit the Thursday papers.
Pretty neat, huh?
Of course, our Classified Ad Takers are here every Monday through Thursday from 8:00 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. and until 5:00 p.m. each Friday. But now, if you miss them, you can still do something about your ad—at your convenience.

Today's rockers, Cole Porter 'team up' on benefit CD

By David Bauder
AP Newsfeatures

Fine Young Cannibal — David Steele, Roland Gift and Andy Cox — provide a cool soul version to Cole Porter's "Love for Sale" on "Red, Hot and Blue."

The songs of Cole Porter have come alive again for a cause the composer couldn't have imagined before his death in 1964.

"Red, Hot and Blue," a benefit album for AIDS research and relief, matches such artists as U2, Sinead O'Connor, Fine Young Cannibals, Neneh Cherry and the Neville Brothers to songs made popular in the 1930s and '40s.

The 20-song CD is a daydream come true for New York City art critic John Carlin and his friends at the New York city law firm that manages the late songwriter's trust fund.

"It struck me that the Cole Porter songs were a wonderful way to make a contemporary record that would appeal to all sorts of people and deliver a message," said Carlin, who wanted to do something for friends dying of AIDS.

"Everyone loves Cole Porter," he said. "No one's covered his songs for 20 or 30 years. In the back of my mind, I always wondered what it would be like for David Byrne to sing a Cole Porter song, or Tom Waits."

In those cases, it sounds a lot like how Byrne and Waits sing their own songs. But other results will surprise fans of both Porter and contemporary music — like the Jungle Brothers' rap on "I Get a Kick Out of You" and the torch song stylings of country star k.d. lang and dance-pop singer Jody Watley.

"THE SONGS worked better than we dreamed," Carlin said. "What was a simple love ballad, when played in this context, took on a different meaning."

Porter's career stretched from the '20s through the '50s. His songs were a staple on Broadway and in movies, and he was known for his humorous, often boundary-breaking, treatments of love and sex.

AIDS, of course, wasn't a worry when Porter was around. On a few of the new versions of Porter's songs, particularly Cherry's blunt rap to "I've Got You Under My Skin," the disease is addressed.

It was the initial participation of Cherry and Byrne that really got the project going, because it helped convince other artists to join in, Carlin said. Carlin and two entertainment lawyers who work at the law firm that manages the Porter trust fund, F. Richard Pappas and Leigh Blake, put it together.

'It struck me that the Cole Porter songs were a wonderful way to make a contemporary record that would appeal to all sorts of people and deliver a message.'
— John Carlin

The album veers recklessly from style to style. There's the campy rock duet of Deborah Harry and Iggy Pop on "Well, Did You Evah," the cool soul of Fine Young Cannibals' "Love for Sale," the African language version of "Begin the Beguine" by Salif Keita and the rollicking Irish duet by Kirsty MacColl and the Pogues on "Miss Otis Regrets."

Despite the album's variety, Carlin concedes there's something missing. The album has no Latin influences and not enough black voices, an important omission considering the impact of AIDS in those communities.

AND THERE are no heavy metal artists.

Carlin said the lack of hard rock artists was largely by design because he didn't feel the genre was appropriate to Porter's songs. It's also because, he said, that community is without a doubt the most homophobic in the music business.

Last year, the Gay Men's Health Crisis in New York City dropped the band Guns 'N Roses from an AIDS benefit concert after organization volunteers noted the lyrics to one of their songs, "One in a Million," contained the lyrics: "Immigrants and faggots, they make no sense to me."

Several artists asked to participate refused because of the stigma attached to AIDS and homosexuality, Carlin said.

"There were a few big artists," he said. "I don't want to give the names of people who didn't do it for the wrong reasons. I'm surprised at how many artists we did get."

The only artist Carlin will reveal who turned down a request to participate was Prince, but it had nothing to do with homophobia. Carlin said he wanted him to record a version of "Let's Misbehave," but Prince was too busy on his "Graffiti Bridge" movie and soundtrack.

WHEN ORGANIZERS approached an artist to ask for involvement, they suggested a tune from the Porter songbook. Most took the advice. Some artists, including MacColl and Watley, had their own ideas for songs.

"We wanted the album to be very modern and very youth-oriented," Carlin said. "We wanted a club sound, not an Ella Fitzgerald sound."

Watley, known for her dance music, remembered a Fitzgerald recording she listened to as a child to use as a model for her version of "After You, Who." She said she relished the chance to sing a jazz tune, something she can't do on her own records.

"After recording this song I've been asked by virtually everyone who heard it, 'Are you going to do an album like this?'" Watley said. "Even my mom asked me that."

An expert on Porter's work said he's excited about the project and predicted that Porter would have been, too.

"The man was insatiable in his curiosity and he traveled all over the world to listen to all kinds of performances of his music," said Robert Kimball, who's written and edited several books on Porter's music. "He was genuinely open to all different interpretations. My feeling is he would have reacted very enthusiastically to it."

A 90-minute TV special, featuring videos of artists performing their Porter songs, is scheduled to air on ABC-TV at 11:30 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 1. A video cassette is expected to be released next year.

The lawyers have formed a non-profit corporation called King Cole Inc. that will funnel profits from "Red, Hot and Blue" to AIDS organizations all over the world. A committee of representatives from the project, including musicians and filmmakers, will recommend which charities receive the money.

Sleepy-eyed turtles are the leaders of the pack, so to speak, of parade costumes and heads stored in the Poletown warehouse between Thanksgiving Day parades.

Santa Claus, Woodward Ave. and the parade

By Jill Hamilton
special writer

The tradition has been going on for 64 years now. Every Thanksgiving Day around 9 million people gather on the streets of Detroit (or around their television sets) to watch the "big" parade.

To young eyes, the parade is a giant and magical event. That's because the Michigan Thanksgiving Day Parade IS giant. This year there will be 31 floats, 19 inflatable figures, 19 marching bands and seven two-minute production numbers.

And, heck, it's pretty magical, too.

"I know adults that cry when Santa comes down the street," said Bruce Lantto of Livonia.

Bruce Lantto was one of those millions of people who watched the parade every year. It was a tradition for Lantto and his eight brothers and sister to spend every Thanksgiving morning watching the parade.

"It was the thing to do," Lantto said. "Beside there's not much else to do on Thanksgiving."

Now, all of the Lantto children have grown up and all of them but one have become parade volunteers. Lantto has the weighty title of supervisor of march replacements. In layman's terms, he monitors the hundreds of costumed people marching in the parade . . . and it's no small task.

LANTTO IS one of 1,200 volunteers who give of their time each year to make the parade possible.

After a visit to the huge workshop in Poletown where the floats are created, built and stored, it's easy to see why volunteers like Lantto get hooked.

To the casual observer, the outside of the Poletown workshop looks like any other factory in the area — serious, industrial looking and business-like. Inside, however, is a different story. The closest comparison is to Santa' workshop.

Ridiculously huge floats with figures on top like smiling Cinderella's, furry cats and even the Vlasic pickle stork stand silently in the warehouse waiting for the big day.

There's a bit of excitement in the room over the Chrysler float. It features a real working air bag and workers are anxious to show it off.

Actually, all of the workers in the warehouse seem excited. Everyone is busy, happy and generally acting as industrious as elves. It's easy to see why. After all, who could be grumpy while putting the finishing touches on Hobnobble Gobble, the large, happy turkey?

In the corner of the large warehouse is a section filled with giant heads. Pirate heads, Indians heads, dog heads, monkey heads, horse heads, a Diana Ross head, a Tom Selleck head, a Gerald Ford head and any other sort of head you could dream up, sit in orderly lines, smiling and waiting to be donned.

THE HEADS LOOK pretty darned big in the parade, but up close, they look even bigger. Some of them stand more than seven feet tall. Their size becomes even more amazing when you realize what the heads are for. Individual marches actually wear these giant heads during the long parade trek.

This year, parade volunteers won't have to make heads for at least two prominent Detroiters. Carole Gist, Miss USA, will make a personal appearance as this year's grand marshal. And Aretha Franklin, the Queen of Soul, will serve as the music grand marshal.

The other 800 marchers in the parade get to explore the costume room. Here, hundreds of colorful costumes hang on racks. Volunteers can choose from such proper parade attire as clown costumes and monkey costumes.

"Everyone that's involved with this is here to have fun," said Lantto, a funeral director by day. He got involved with the parade six years ago through a friend who worked for Hudson's. In those days, you had have to have connections to participate in the parade.

"The first year I wore a head," Lantto said, "I was a hound dog."

Since then, Lantto has tried his hand at "every side" of behind-the-scenes parade work.

Why does he keep coming back every year, often working six days a week?

"The most important part of the parade is that it's an institution," Lantto said. "I really get worked up seeing the reaction of the kids. When you see that, you know its something special.

"Besides, we're all big kids in some way."

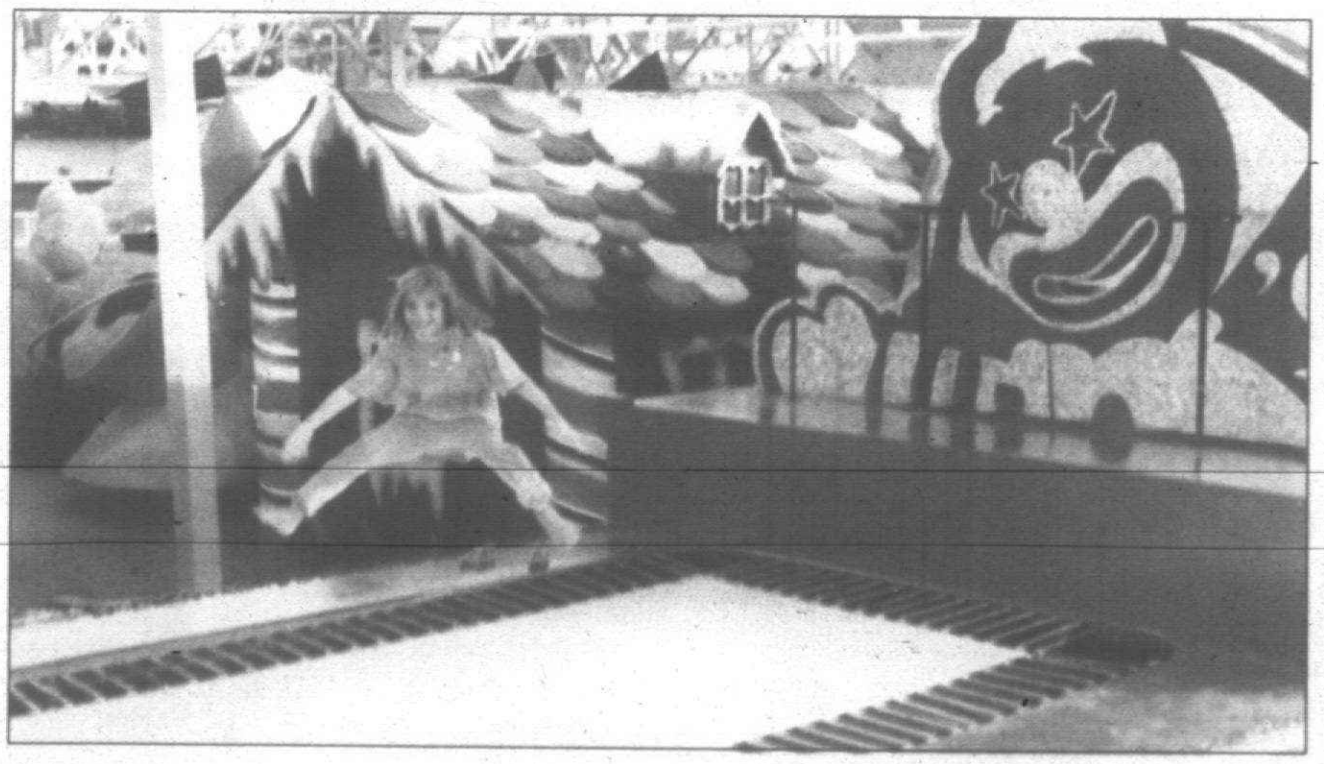
Joie Martin adds some touches of gold to the records decorating the float for parade music grand marshall Aretha Franklin.



Mary Kelly, 8, of Troy does some tension testing on a trampoline-equipped parade float.

MOVING PICTURES

Lt. John Dunbar (Kevin Costner) returns the injured Stands With a Fist (Mary McDonnell) to her camp in a scene from "Dance With Wolves."

'Dances with Wolves' is a Thanksgiving delight

There'll be no time to eat turkey this Thanksgiving week as Hollywood has lined up 10 new movies for your viewing pleasure. While you may decide to skip a few in favor of cranberry sauce and family dinners, don't miss Kevin Costner's sensitive and touching look at America's western frontier during the Civil War.

Costner directed himself in "Dances with Wolves" (A, PG-13, 180 minutes) as Lt. John Dunbar, a Northern Army cavalry officer who receives the post of his choice for bravery in action against the Confederates.

He picks a distant outpost, Fort Sedgewick, on the western frontier in order to see the wilderness "while it's still there." It's strange that an officer would desire to be away from the "real action" during the Civil War but Dunbar is a thoughtful, battle weary veteran in search of himself.

"Dances with Wolves" opens with much of the widescreen grandeur associated with John Ford westerns but quickly turns into something very different and very special — an epic poem to humanity and brotherhood.

Like great paintings hung in museums, the vast panoramas depicted in Dean Semler's cinematography are worth seeing for their intrinsic beauty. But they serve as well to emphasize the ultimate insignificance of individuals facing the overwhelming power of social and natural forces. One has only to see a small wagon with a few lonely souls to understand the great bravery of those who crossed the western plains on horseback or in Conestoga wagons.

LT. DUNDAR becomes friendly with a nearby Sioux tribe. Much to the film's credit, the problems of inter-cultural contact are not minimized nor taken lightly. It is a slow process as Dunbar and the Sioux learn each other languages, customs, feelings. There is a white woman, Stands with a Fist (Mary McDonnell), who had been captured as a young girl and had grown up in the tribe. She married the Indian who had captured her.

When Stand with a Fist's husband died, she went into mourning and is reluctant to speak English or translate for Dunbar. This is a very slow process of inter-cultural accommodation, handled delicately, and is at the heart of the emotional appeal of "Dances with Wolves." This atmosphere is reinforced by the vast visual pleasures of the scenery.

"Dances with Wolves" is a remarkably fine-textured film, a movie to make one wax eloquent and poetic about human courage and about the brotherhood of man.

Ordinarily, sequels of hit films don't pass muster when the basic plot is simply rehashed for those who loved the original. That's exactly the case in "Three Men and a Little Lady" (B+, PG, 105 minutes), a very funny look at parenthood from a very different point of view.

In the original "Three Men and a Baby," the American remake of the successful 1985 French film, "Three Men and a Cradle," the three were bachelors. Jack Holden (Ted Danson), Peter Mitcell (Tom Selleck) and Michael Colum (Steve Gutenberg) care for and raise a baby left in their care.

NOW, FIVE years later, the baby, fathered by one of the swinging bachelors, is the adorable and precocious Mary, played with engaging sweetness by Robin Weisman. The plot thickens, as they say, when her mother, Sylvia Bennington (Nancy Travis), an actress, returns and moves in. It's quite a menage and "Three Men . . ." plays it to the comic hilt.

Further complications arise when Sylvia's boyfriend, Edward, an English theatrical director offers a part on the London stage — and a permanent part as his wife. The three bachelor fathers are devastated but quickly summon up a number of clever strategies to avert that terrible fate. Not since "The Graduate" have viewers been treated to such a comic wedding-chase scene. But there's much more.

Grading the movies

A+	Top marks - sure to please
A	Close behind - excellent
A-	Still in running for top honors
B+	Pretty good stuff, not perfect
B	Good
B-	Good but notable deficiencies
C+	Just a cut above average
C	Mediocre
C-	Not so hot and slipping fast
D+	The very best of the poor stuff
D	Poor
D-	It doesn't get much worse
F	Truly awful

The film's only drawback is its failure to explain the background for those who missed the original. That, however, shouldn't spoil your fun.

There's no truth to the rumor that Sylvester Stallone goes in a roomful of mirrors in "Rocky XXXVI" and beats himself up. But it is true that Stallone beats viewers over the head in "Rocky V" (C+, PG-13, 100 minutes) with the same stuff that made "Rocky I-IV" successful.

As "V" opens, Rocky losses everything because his brother-in-law, Paulie (Burt Young), had him sign a power-of-attorney to an accountant who used Rocky's wealth in a real estate deal that went sour. Rocky thought he was signing some IRS documents. It also turns out that the accountant hadn't paid Rocky's taxes for six years.

THAT'S ALL pretty thin for a major plot device. It's hard to believe such a widely known celebrity could dodge the IRS for six years while living on the top of the heap. There are similar plot flaws later on as the four of them — Paulie, Rocky, Adrian (Talia Shire) and their son, Rocky Jr., played quite well by Sylvester's son Sage — return to the old neighborhood and settle in together.

Seems doubtful that the brother-in-law who just lost the family fortune would be welcomed into the family's bosom with everything forgiven and forgotten. Even Rocky isn't that punch-drunk. Nor is it reasonable that Rocky would quickly come to his senses after alienating his son in favor of a new young boxer, Tommy Gunn (Tommy Morrison). The latter just had come to Rocky for training in the old gym, which, incidentally, is inhabited by the ghost of Rocky's trainer, Mickey (Burgess Meredith).

Just a few words from Adrian and father and son quickly reconcile. Despite doctors' orders, Rocky fights again and neither his brain nor his vision are strained. Viewers who aren't "Rocky" fans will find their patience strained by the trite and repetitive plot development and by Stallone's exaggerated, nervous rendition of uneducated street talk.

ON THE OTHER HAND, "Rocky" fans will be pleased to see their hero bash the opposition in flashbacks as well as in the present. Me, I've taken enough beatings from "Rocky. I'm punch-drunk . . . rocky, you might say.

"Home Alone (B-, PG, 100 minutes) is a fairly engaging comedy that is at its best when Kevin McCallister (Macaulay Culkin) is left alone to do his thing — that is protect his home from intruders with the mature cleverness children often display.

The McCallister family is vacationing in Paris and accidentally left Kevin behind when they rushed off to catch their plane. Some of the

By John Monaghan
special writer

"To Sleep with Anger" is unusual for a couple of reasons. First, for giving Danny Glover the chance to act in a film where he's not a sidekick for some popular white star.

More importantly, it offers a take off on family life that you'll never see on "The Cosby Show."

Gideon and Susie are hardworking senior citizens, farmers transplanted in Southern California. Today, their crops consist of a small plot of corn and sunflowers; their livestock a few chickens and pigeons.

When Harry (played by Glover) shows up on the doorstep one day and is invited to stay, you can see, through the hearty smile and laughter almost immediately.

"He plays the part of the colored gentleman," a friend says. "He shows a polite side, but the other is black and evil."

HARRY'S SHADY past is hinted at throughout — something about a lynching and knifing of three men that Harry was certainly mixed up in. He brings superstition with him, tossing salt over both shoulders when a boy accidentally sweeps over his feet.

He also escalates the problems of the family, definitely teaching his evil ways to the youngest son, Babe Brother, and perhaps putting Gideon in the hospital. Old friends sum it up best: "Anyone been around Harry ends up with pennies over their eyes."

VIDEO VIEWING

By Dan Greenberg
special writer

It's really quite remarkable how talented people sometimes assemble with good ideas and produce mediocre motion pictures.

Telly Savalas in "The Hollywood Detective" (1989, color, PG, 88 minutes) and "Eternity" (1990, color, R, 122 minutes) with Jon Voight, Armand Assante, Lainie Kazan, Kaye Ballard and Wilford Brimley are two examples of this unfortunate situation. Both hit video racks Nov. 15.

Of the two, "The Hollywood Detective" is a far better choice for an evening's entertainment. Its occasional moments of action and humor are complimented by the pleasure of seeing Telly Savalas satirize his role as Kojak.

Now a washed-up drunk, Harry Powell (Savalas) is still remembered for his starring role in a once successful TV series, "John Crown, Private Eye." He has kept in touch with his agent, his writer and the police lieutenant who was the show's technical consultant. Everybody still loves Harry, but his drinking makes it impossible for him to get acting assignments.

"The Hollywood Detective" is fun, however, because of the play on the Kojak character that Savalas does so well. Re-runs of the "John Crown" series shown in "The Hollywood Detective" clearly satirize "Kojak" and Savalas.

A young girl (Helene Udy) appears at Harry's door. She has a sad story about a missing boyfriend. She also has $10,000 and mistakes Harry for a real private eye.

(A Fun, Festive Event Guaranteed to Put You in The Holiday Spirit)

Sunday, December 2, 1990 10:00 A.M.

JOIN US!
It's Max & Erma's Third Annual Jingle Bell Run for Arthritis. Bring family and friends, neighbors and co-workers to join you for this unique holiday event. You will receive a complimentary pair of jingle bells for your shoelaces and the first 1200 preregistered entrants will receive the official Max & Erma's Jingle Bell Run T-shirt.

THE EVENT
It's a 5K course. (Erma says that's a little over three miles.) Starting and finishing at the Oakland University in Rochester, this course runs through campus and is for serious or amateur athletes—young or old, tall or short, fit or fat, runners or walkers!

RACE DIVISIONS

10 and under	30-39	60 +
11-17	40-49	Wheelchair

AWARDS
The top three male and female finishers overall will receive trophies and a $20 Max & Erma's gift certificate. The top three finishers in each race division will be presented with plaques. The awards ceremony will immediately follow the race at MeadowBrook Village Mall. Although walkers will not be eligible for trophies and plaques, they are able to participate in the costume competition and the pledge incentive program.

PACKET PICK-UP
Entrants may pick up their race packets or register November 28th from 10:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. at MeadowBrook Village Mall in Rochester (Adams and Walton.)

Registration and packet pickup can also be done on race day from 8:30 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. at the Lepley Sports Center on the Oakland University Campus.

DON YOUR HOLIDAY DUDS!
Don reindeer antlers or elf's garb; dress as a Snowman, Santa, or Good King Wenceslas! (Don't be a Scrooge, at least wear your holiday colors and get festive!)

Judging will begin one hour before the start of the race. Judged by a celebrity panel, and the costume competition will be based on originality, holiday theme, humor and skill.

The overall winner will receive a wealth of prizes and a $100 gift certificate to MeadowBrook Village Mall plus a $100 gift certificate to Max & Erma's. A $100 gift certificate to Max & Erma's will also be awarded to the best group costume.

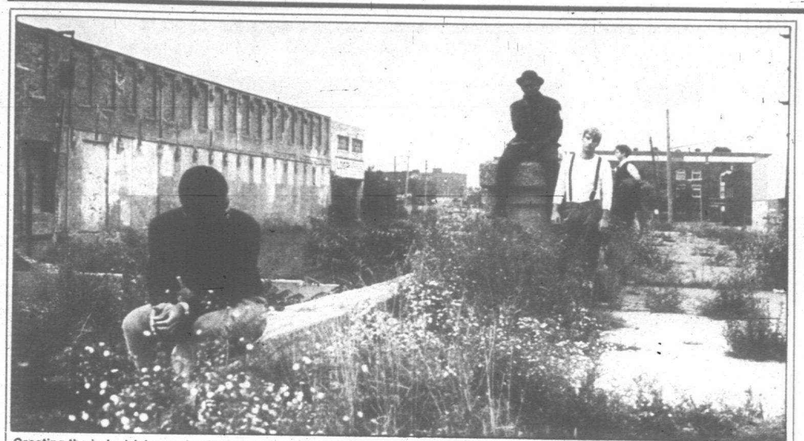
STREET BEATS



Creating the industrial sounds of the techno-band Skin Horse are band founders Andre Royster, 26, bass and vocals; and Dwayne Williams, 27, guitarist.

Skin Horse: Techno with a beat

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Skin Horse is four people. At least that's what we counted in the living room the night we met them.

Andre Royster, 26, bass and vocals; Dwayne Williams, 27, guitarist; Mike Ferguson, 27, keyboards and vocals; and Tracy Popp, 17, drums, make up the band.

Skin Horse is industrial. At least that's what we gathered listening to the cut off of "Industrial Chaos," a compilation of techno-bands on Nebula Records.

Skin Horse is human. Which, combined with the other two observations, can be construed as a contradiction of terms.

Industrial music, though pounding and pulsating, is often faceless. The sound relies on a beat, which can be cold and impersonal.

"That is the thing we wanted," said Royster, his eyes lighting up to the idea. "We wanted something danceable and we still wanted to have that feeling of a band. We didn't want to become too electronic.

"We've gone to see the competition," Royster added later. "By no means are we gods, but a lot of what we've seen is cold. What we want to do is have people participate in this band. We just don't want to be up there just pushing buttons."

SKIN HORSE is one of a new breed of Detroit area bands pushing all the right buttons. The group is one of a growing number of techno, industrial outfits defining a new scene.

Local music promoter Sue Summers is putting together a group of bands, some rock and some techno, on one label, Chaos. Skin Horse, Culture Bandits, Blue Nimbus and the Generals are part of the roster.

The "Industrial Chaos" compilation, which features national talent as well as Detroit area groups, was Summer's first project.

Summers said while a lot industrial bands are "copying off each other," there is something different about Skin Horse.

"They're making it more danceable," Summers said. "Plus, they didn't have the egos when they approached me about playing at the club (Finney's) or when I asked them to be on the compilation."

Live, Skin Horse has performed at Finney's Pub, Majestic Theatre and the Hamtramck Pub.

The current lineup of Skin Horse has been together for three months. The core dates back much further.

Royster and Williams have known one another for seven years, collaborating musically for a number of years. Originally, both were in a band that performed Gothic "Cure type of music." The pair quit and joined other bands.

FINALLY, THE duo formed Skin Horse three years ago. Beaux Mitchell of Skanking Voodoo Dolls fame, was instrumental in getting the word out about the band.

Members drifted in and out. Then Royster and Williams met up with Ferguson, who was a founding member of both Passion Nouveau and Toxic Beat Syndrome. Popp joined the fray later.

Royster and Ferguson write a good deal of the music; Williams handles the lyrics. Things clicked immediately.

"For one thing, there is a drive here I haven't experienced in any other band," Ferguson said. "It's a desire to be heard. It's a desire to be taken serious as someone to contend with in Detroit musically."

Creatively, those Gothic days have not been lost. Skin Horse is merging '80s sound with a futuristic beat.

"I'd like to think we've developed that techno-punk sound with a hard beat like Nitzer Ebb and a hard edge like Gang of Four," Williams said. "It's still evolving."

What makes techno such alluring genre is the creative freedom, according to Williams. Whereas rock, pop and rhythm & blues are defined in separate categories, Skin Horse uses all of the elements to their advantage.

"It's all really connected," he said.

Bragg: Trying to be a regular guy

By Jill Hamilton
special writer

Billy Bragg was just trying to be a regular guy.

Before his recent concert at the State Theater in Kalamazoo, he was out on the street in front of the theater trying to help the driver of his tour van maneuver into a tight parking space.

"Just helping 'em park," Bragg said amiably to passersby.

Due to Bragg's helpful parking guidance the van nicked the car behind it. But that was OK, because other than that little traffic mishap, Bragg could otherwise do no wrong that night.

The ornate State Theater was only about half full, but every person there seemed to be a die-hard Bragg fan (Braggarts?). From the opening number to the second encore, most of the fans remained on their feet, transfixed by what the Englishman was saying and singing.

Bragg did not disappoint. He sang a couple of songs off of each album to satisfy fans of every phase of his career. Crowd pleasers included "I Dreamed I Saw Phil Ochs Last Night" off of "The Internationale," "Richard" off of "Life's a Riot with Spy vs. Spy," and "There is Power in a Union" off of "Talking with the Taxman About Poetry."

But the song that most fans seemed to want to hear — judging by their shouted requests for it during pauses in the show was "Waiting for the Great Leap Forward" from "Workers Playtime." Bragg finally got around to it during one of the encores.

INTERSPERSED WITH the older Bragg songs were some new tunes which Bragg said he is working on for his next album. And what did the new songs sound like? Simple guitar songs about politics and love, of course. What else would you expect from Bragg? House music?

During the part of the concert where Bragg wasn't singing (about half the show), he rapped with the audience about everything including a reference to the Sinead O'Connor

REVIEWS

VOLUME THREE Traveling Wilburys

This band of famous musician "brothers" snuck up on the music world in 1988 with their first Warner Brothers LP, featuring plenty of tongue-in-cheek, low-key humor. George Harrison, Bob Dylan, Tom Petty, Jeff Lynne and Roy Orbison crafted a relaxed masterpiece that sold millions.

So, what do you do to top such an unexpected success? Particularly when smooth-crooning Orbison has since died and the surprise factor is long gone? Answer: Toughen up the Wilbury sound, change nicknames and call the second album "Volume Three."

It works from start (the toe-tapping single "She's My Baby") to finish, the self-mocking "Wilbury Twist."

Although there are bits and pieces of humor interspersed into the 11-song set, it is "Wilbury Twist" that drives home the point that the fun found on the debut album is back again the second time around.

"Lift your other foot up . . . fall on your ass/ Get back up. . . put your teeth in a glass," goes one of the verses.

Who knows whether their version of the "Twist" catches on like Chubby's did. But the Wilburys insist, during the chorus, that folks from Poland to China to the U.S. are jumping around in their underwear and turning around and around like a screw.

Just to be sure, the liner notes are complete with an illustrated, step-by-step dance manual.

There are other typically-Wilbury moments. On the hootenanny "Poor House," Petty ("Muddy") sings about the lament of somebody being taken to the cleaners in a divorce.

Punctuating the track is a Harrison guitar solo that harkens back to the Beatles' 1965 era, when the youngest Beatle (now "Spike" Wilbury) laid down plenty of Carl Perkins-like riffs.

Even more so than on the first album, the Wilburys sing the new songs by committee, switching from brother to brother as if passing a vocal baton.

That could be a recipe for failure in some groups. But these Wilburys seem to mix and match on a whim. It helps, of course, that the music is nearly impeccable throughout.

WRONG WAY UP
— Brian Eno and John Cale

Brian Eno and John Cale continue to prove their versatility with "Wrong Way Up" (Opal), a collection of complex but accessible pop tunes.

Long involved in the art-rock and avant-garde music scenes, Eno and Cale step out on another limb with this collaboration. Obscure and unusual instruments — the rhythm bed, Shinto bell and dumbek, for example — are blended with guitars, drums and keyboards to form intricately crafted songs that represent a broad range of styles.

Hazy at times, and sprinkled with distracting nonsense rhymes, the album's lyrics travel the globe. In "One Word," a wanderer uses non sequiturs to describe a life of happy impermanence: "These are the ones I found in Rome/Very few things I keep for long/When does your plane leave for Cologne?"

But their best journeys are internal. In "Spinning Away," a man tells of sitting on a hill "as the day dissolves" with a pencil "turning moments into life" and watching the sky and stars. Brooding, swept up in dreams, he reflects on his state:

"High on a hill, under a raven sky/I have no idea exactly what I've drawn/Some kind a change, some kind of spinning away/With every single line moving further out in time." In "Footsteps," Cale sings of Tokyo and Zurich, of tragedy and unhappiness, but looks inside to find: "All is clear/I can see for miles and miles/I can hear/Your footsteps in my heart."

"Wrong Way Up," though likely to receive a fraction of the attention paid to the latest slop by Madonna or Guns 'n Roses, is a must for Eno and Cale fans — and for those whose brains MTV hasn't turned to mush.

RHYTHM OF THE SAINTS
— Paul Simon

"Rhythm of the Saints" (Warner Bros.), Simon's foray into Latin American rhythms, at first seems as dense and remote as the Brazilian rain forest. Repeated listenings, however, reveal its charms.

While somewhat unfair, comparisons between this album and "Graceland," Simon's 1986 masterpiece, are inevitable. This time out, Simon submerges himself even further into the native rhythms of South America than he did on his earlier exploration into the rhythms of South Africa.

His quirky, low key sense of humor is also less evident — though not entirely absent. In "The Obvious Child," for instance, his zings of a son, named Sonny, whose disposition gets sunnier day by day.

Despite that, Simon seems more content to let the music do the talking this time — and a rich, surprising mix it is, with drumbeats popping up in unexpected places and western-style song structure more or less abandoned.

Like "Graceland," this is also a political album. With destruction of the rain forest a major global political issue — not to mention long standing concerns about U.S. policy in Latin America — merely recording an album in the region amounts to a political act.

As with "Graceland," too, Simon leaves himself open to charges of being a musical exploiter — mining the native culture for gold records the way conquistadors once mined the local landscape for gold.

Bragg: Politics and love

national anthem controversy to comments about censorship. A couple of times he made fun of ex-Smith members Johnny Marr and Morrissey.

But, Bragg spent most of his stage time discussing socialism. He said that, sure, he was glad that the bad parts of Communism had failed with the end of the Cold War, but what about the good parts like free health care and free education?

In an interview before the concert, Bragg had this to say about his strong ties to socialism: "Socialism may only be a utopian ideal. We may never get there, but we've got to try. I'm not saying I'm leading this, but I'm making a contribution in my own little way."

ASIDE FROM politics, Bragg's other favorite subject is love. His songs about love have a way of both telling about the moments that every love affair has and making those same moments seemed charged with a sense of heightened reality.

"I like to find common moments in people and put a spin on them, bend them a bit," Bragg said. "It's observing things and finding a way of expressing them that's more evocative than just saying them."

He mentioned the line describing his girlfriend as "a little black cloud in a dress.

"Instead of saying that this person has a lot of mood swings, I say that her moods come over like a cloud," Bragg said. "Or in 'Life With the Lions' (on "Workers Playtime") instead of saying 'Everytime I see you I get pissed off,' I say, 'I hate the arsehole I become everytime I'm with you.' "

Lyrics like these seem to ring true to a lot of people. Bragg said many people tell him that the songs seem to be about their personal lives.

"But it's much more of a broad statement," Bragg said. "What you want to do is communicate with common experience. The experiences aren't the same but, what is similar is emotional reaction to these experiences."

"I READ INTO America, take common American culture and pervert it," Bragg said. "In one song, I paraphrase a Beach Boys lyric — 'fun, fun, fun, 'till daddy takes your T-bird away — and change it to ' 'till daddy takes your gun away." Besides my version rhymes better."

Bragg said being able to sing openly about personal matters is a way he can come to terms with it."

English folk artist Billy Bragg could do no wrong when he recently performed at the State Theater in Kalamazoo.

liberating experience.

"Writing deeply about your own emotions is hard, but it also can be a great relief," Bragg said. "When the audience is applauding, they're saying 'we recognize what you're saying.' That reaction is kind of like absolution. And, by singing about these things every night, I

Director Charles Burnett lets his events unfold like a play, leisurely and full of symbolism. He doesn't try to rely on Spike Lee-type hipness (no rap music anywhere), but works for honesty in situations and characters that he has obviously drawn from life.

Some of the scenes are especially moving. Suzie, on a deathwatch for her husband, is proposed to by one of Gideon's lodge brothers. You can see the outrage and pain in her face as she kindly informs the coot, "I need to feed my dog."

THERE'S ALSO a well-drawn relationship between Babe Brother and his more responsible older brother, Junior. It's not especially original, but still effective here.

The film works best when it injects black comedy, dealing with irony and death. Burnett gives more than a slight nod to Hitchcock's "The Trouble with Harry," especially near the end.

The downbeat, realistic side of "To Sleep with Anger" has led to good reviews but small audiences. See it quickly before it leaves the Maple Theatre in Bloomfield this week.

FOR THOSE kind of dollars, Harry's willing to go along with the mistake. Soon, however, Harry begins to wonder when he discovers her boyfriend's dead body — and gets charged with murder.

All the usual tough PI versus Mr. Big cliches are included as the story works itself out. While the idea is more clever than the ways in which it's presented, Savalas still has some of the rough charm that made "Kojak" such a success. Unfortunately, the directing is stiff and stilted so "The Hollywood Detective" lacks the impact viewers might otherwise expect.

"Eternity" is much more imaginative — and much more disappointing.

It begins with a rather enticing medieval setting as Jon Voight and Armand Assante appear as princely brothers while Wilford Brimley is the king of this unnamed medieval kingdom. Voight is the good prince firmly committed to love and peace while Assante is the war-like one. Talk about cliches.

Voight finds a young maiden (Eileen Davidson), falls in love with her and marries her. Just as she is kidnapped by some evil, enemy knights Voight awakes from his nightmare.

It turns out that he's James Harris, a crusading TV reporter with a faithful staff and a Ralph Nader-like image. Assante is Shawn Wallace, a big corporate type out to rule things his way. Davidson is an up-and-coming performer who will "do anything to be in show-biz."

THINGS BEGIN to fall apart, however, when it turns out she's on the make in show-business with a conscience despite her willingness to ignore Shawn's evil. There's a limit to how far a cliche will stretch.

Not far when imaginative writing and directing are missing. Cliches need new life to make them work and the clever situations never materialize in "Eternity."

Wilford Brimley is Ed, Harris' business manager. Kaye Ballard and Laine Kazan have bit parts on Harris' staff. With such a fine cast and interesting concept driving the story, it would seem that "Eternity" should be an exciting film. Unfortunately, it never lives up to expectations. The characters are so transparent and so unidimensional that after the first 40 or so minutes, "Eternity" is dull and predictable.

Mid-November was also the release date for five Greta Garbo films never before available on video cassette. They're part of a package of eight released by MGM/UA Home Video at $19.98 each.

The first-time release include "Conquest" (1937, 112 minutes) with Charles Boyer as Napolean and Garbo as Polish Countess Walewska. "The Painted Veil" (1934, 83 minutes) was loosely based on a Somerset Maugham novel. Herbert Marshall, George Brent and Beulah Bondi star.

CLARK GABLE appears with Garbo in "Susan Lenox: Her Fall and Rise" (1931, 76 mintues).

"As You Desire Me" (1932, 71 minutes) stars Erich von Stroheim and Melvyn Douglas with an appearance by Hedda Hopper. Based on Luigi Pirandello play, the film features Garbo as an amnesiac who returns to her husband even though she doesn't remember him.

Garbo's first talkie, "Anna Christie" (1930, 90 minutes), derived from the Eugene O'Neill play, rounds out this selection of first-time-on-home-video selections featuring Garbo in some of her best roles.

The three previously released titles in this package also are well worth viewing. "Camille" (1936, 108 minutes) co-stars Robert Taylor and won Garbo a best actress nomination. "Anna Karenina" (1935, 95 minutes) with Fredric March and Basil Rathbone supporting Garbo in Tolstoy's famous story is excellent entertainment as is "Mata Hari" (1932, 90 minutes).

All these Garbo films are in black and white and unrated. Given the standards of those day, however, and the control exerted by the Hays Office, viewers will not be offended.

A time to say thank you

Dear Readers,

In this week of Thanksgiving, I want to give a most sincere thanks to all of you, especially to the many of you who have taken the time to both write and comment on this column. The energy that you have expended has helped others. I thank you for this assistance.

A friend called me two months ago and said that she had been at COTS (Coalition for Temporary Shelter) Petersboro, a downtown Detroit shelter for the homeless, and had seen my picture on the bulletin board. She was more than surprised to see a suburban column in the middle of Detroit.

After speaking to her, I called the director of the shelter and she told me that the column in question was the one written by Cheryl Betts, director of the Rose F. Kennedy Respite Center in Westland, regarding handicapped children. She said that many of the women at COTS Petersboro were mothers of children described in the letter and that it had been both inspirational and educational for them.

My gratitude to the unknown mother of the cerebral palsied children who wrote the initial letter and again to Ms. Betts for helping so many with her kind and enlightening words.

The second vignette is also important. Another friend came to me and thanked me for the column on the famlhy leave bill. She said that her daughter had had many angry feelings about the inability of our government to pass such a bill.

The letter, written by E.C., who wrote more than once this year and thus repeatedly helped others gain greater insight. Thanks also to Jackie for initially bringing the subject to our attention.

All issues are multi-faceted. Any time there can be an open, friendly exchange of ideas, we are making our world a better place in which to live. My life, too, has been enriched by our continuing exchanges. My gratitude to you for the personal growth and development I have experienced from your letters.

A warm toast to all of you. Without you, this column would not be possible. May you have much to be thankful for.

Teeple parlays laughs into a thriving business, act

By Susan Steinmueller
staff writer

Kirkland Teeple is getting more laughs from life than ever these days, even though he is performing less.

His ownership of the successful MainStreet Comedy Showcase in Ann Arbor is a main reason. The dual role of comedian and entrepreneur, he explains, allows him the freedom to perform when he wants, and when he does, to perform with less pressure.

"One of the reasons I enjoy performing now so much is it's not my livelihood, it's my hobby," said Teeple, 32, who founded the club in 1984, and will be performing there during Thanksgiving weekend.

But he also enjoys his role as businessman, perhaps even more than that of comedian.

"I think I enjoy being a businessman more in the sense that it is a day to day gratification."

A native of Dearborn, Teeple got his start in comedy in 1982 by taking to the stage on open mike nights at clubs around Detroit.

By 1983, he dropped out of college, quit his odd jobs, packed up his navy blue Escort and hit the comedy club road.

"I WAS unemployable," he said was his reason for taking up comedy.

Success came at high speed. But he swiftly encountered some of the perils of life when you have a traveling job — including drugs and alcohol.

"I don't think it's so much the entertainment business. I think it is just any work with lots of travel," he said. "When I was in treatment, there were a lot of doctors and traveling salesman."

His "treatment," which led to his recovery, came from the Betty Ford Center, which he praises highly.

While on the fast track, his Ann Arbor club, located above the Heidelberg Restaurant, faltered. In 1986, however, he moved the club to a hall below the Seva Restaurant, and channeled his drive and commitment to comedy into turning the club into a success — which he has done. In fact, "Rolling Stone" magazine, in its 1990 guide to comedy clubs, hailed Mainstreet as "one of the best clubs between the coasts."

"The ironic thing is since opening the room and working on getting clean, everything has taken off for me," Teeple said.

Teeple has been coming into his own as well, comedy wise. A gifted storyteller, his material is a foray into his own life experiences. He also enjoys chatting with the audience, and says he just "enjoys himself" during his shows.

A GROWING list of club credits include New York's "Catch A Rising Star," in addition to "Dangerfield's" and "Stand Up, New York."

Teeple notes that MainStreet has an advantage, in that while on the road, he often spots and books new talent, which MainStreet will then introduce into the area.

As for Teeple's show over Thanksgiving, he said he believes the audience will be thankful.

"I just stare at the audience and I say, 'You think of something funny,' and people say, 'oh my gosh, I can't believe I paid to get in here.' And then I say, 'you have to pay to get out of here, too.' Boy are they thankful that it's over."

Teeple, of course, is joking — but then, that's his hobby.

As for his profession, Teeple intends to stay with it and expand. He most recently opened The MainStreet Comedy Showcase Roadshow, which takes place Thursday nights at Ramada Heritage Center in Southgate.

"I think people are always going to want to laugh and have an economical alternative to staying at home. The challenge for me is consistently to find a fresh approach."

Kirkland Teeple will perform at MainStreet Comedy Showcase, 314 E.Liberty, beneath Seva Restaurant, at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 21, and 8:30 and 11 p.m. Friday, Nov. 23, and 7, 9 and 11 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 24. Tickets are $10; reserved seating is $12. For more information, call 996-9080.

Comedy for Kirkland Teeple means ownership of the successful MainStreet Comedy Showcase in Ann Arbor and a successful career as a comedian.

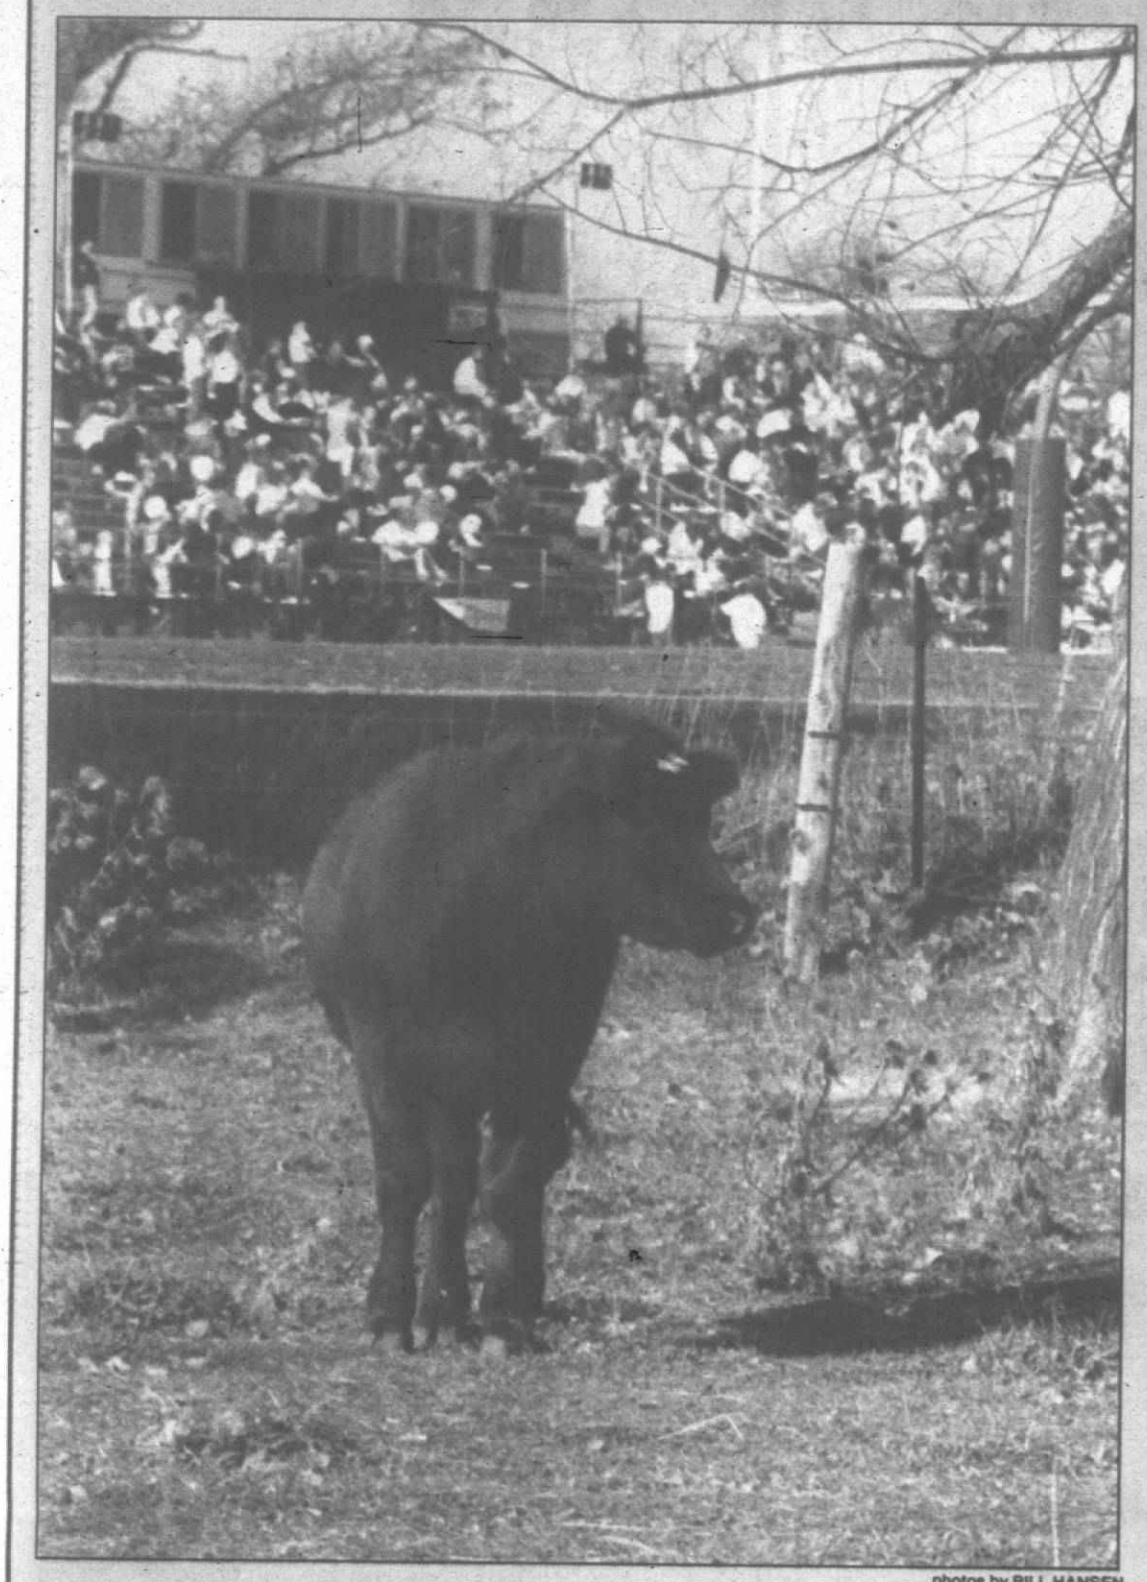
Big time sports — small college flavor



photos by BILL HANSEN

The cheers from the fans don't seem to bother a brown cow who grazes peacefully beside the end zone at Olivet College's Griswold Stadium.

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Away from the recruiting violations, steroid scandals and overzealous alumni calling for the coach's neck, there is a place. A place where opulence is forsaken for the serenity of fallen leaves crunching underfoot and the stinging, sweet smell of leaf fires.

A place, if one were to go to the big guy in the sky and ask for a ticket on the 50-yard line of rural life, they would probably end up here.

Pull up a seat. Olivet is about to play Adrian in a Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association football game at Griswold Field.

The game is one of several NCAA Division III football match-ups on this day. For Olivet, a private school with 750 students, this is a chance to finish with the first winning record since 1974.

All that quickly grows less important as the day unfolds before a small, but enthusiastic audience. Time has left this brand of collegiate athletics untouched.

No scholarships, TV contracts or season ticket revenue on this level — just tradition and intimacy.

"Follow me," said Olivet assistant coach Bob Kubiak after introducing himself to a pair of visitors. "If anyone asks, I'll tell them you're recruits."

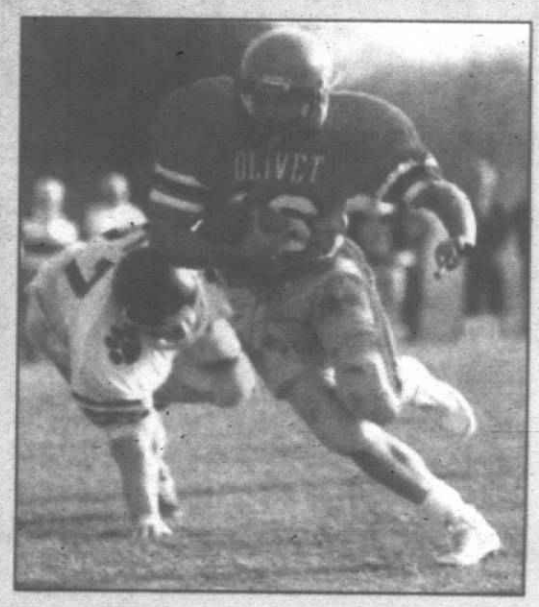
Kubiak leads the pair into the Kirk Center where breakfast of steak and spaghetti is being served to the Olivet players three hours before kick-off.

KUBIAK JOINS other coaches at the roundtable in the cafeteria. The coaches are all wearing white sweaters except for one — Dominic Livedoti who is the head football coach at Olivet. The moustached gentleman might be mistaken for Mike Ditka. He begins to leave when he notices some unfamilair faces.

Livedoti introduces himself and sits down. Without much prompting, he begins discussing Olivet and the allure of small-time college football. Imagine Bo Schembechler or George Perles chewing the fat with a pair of strangers — let alone a journalist — the morning of a game.

With no scholarships and bigger schools swooping in on prep talent, Livedoti's job is more like a '49er sifting for gold in a stream. He gets by with what's left over.

"I look for a kid with a big heart," Livedoti said. "Maybe one from a big family with eight other kids because I know they probably had to fight for everything."



The game between Adrian and Olivet was a thriller with Olivet pulling to within three points with 2:07 left.

"WHAT I'M SELLING here is the environment, the one-on-one interaction you have at a place like this. Here, you might be in a classroom with 15 other students instead being in an auditorium where the instructor is a video."

Such an atmosphere brought Livedoti back to Olivet College, where he starred as a receiver for the Comets. He held the team's single game receiving record and career pass receptions with 83.

He left West Bloomfield High School to coach at Olivet, whose football program was in disarray. So far, so good. The Comets battled for the MIAA title despite three early-season losses and brought respectability back to Olivet's football team.

With him are West Bloomfield High players, such as running back Dan Shrewsberry, corner back Chris Alexander and linebacker Tom Lamb. Another member of his backfield, Todd Pasick, plays with one arm.

A person walks into the cafeteria with a potential recruit. Livedoti excuses himself and leaves. He instantly warms up to the teenager with a retainer and a pin-decorated varsity jacket.

"What do you play son?," asked Livedoti, putting his arm around him as they exit. "Running back and linebacker, huh. Well I have a running back with one arm and he's as tough as nails . . ."

A WALK THROUGH the oak tree-lined campus before reveals little pre-game revelry, just quiet tradition.

Olivet College was founded in 1844 by Congregationalists from Ohio and New England. The school opened its doors immediately to women and minorities.

The school has been a charter member of the MIAA since 1888. The league also includes Albion, Alma, Calvin, Adrian, Hope and Kalamazoo. Olivet has the smallest enrollment of the bunch.

The town of Olivet itself seems oblivious to the importance of today's game. The downtown occupies two blocks. There is a pizzeria, a pharmacy, a snack shop and a grocery store. City hall and the police department share one storefront-sized building.

We look for a pregame party inside the town's tavern, The Coach Light Inn. The only fanfare in the darkened bar is the whiring noise of the ceiling variety.

An older man in a battered baseball cap eats a hamburger while another in flannel shirt drinks a Pabst Blue Ribbon and watches TV. The waitresses talks loudly about how she lost weight after she quit drinking beer.

AS THE NOVEMBER sun casts an orange tint through the leaf-barren branches, the serenity of the walk down Main Street to Griswold Field is only interrupted by a few passing cars and a stray dog.

Outside the gates, there are no ticket scalpers. Heck, there's not even any tickets. Instead a pair of students work the entrance. One collects $4 from each adult; the other sells programs.

The Olivet team of 89 players walks down Main Street from campus in two rows holding hands. The marching band, with 19 members, arrives to play the school fight song and the National Anthem.

During the first half, Olivet scores the first touchdown. The home stand is filled with people attired in red and white — the school's colors. Across the field, a small jury box of people cheer for Adrian. A brown cow grazes behind the scoreboard.

Quarterback Pete Mazzoni, who is a Livonia Stevenson graduate, connects with Larry Anshschuetz for a 10-yard tochdown pass. The air lets out of the Olivet crowd like a vacuum cleaner bag.

AT THE HALF, Adrian players sit with their should pads and jerseys off on the grass behind the restrooms. The Olivet band performs and then is followed by an Irish setter who catches Frisbees.

Three more cows and a calf convene behind the scoreboard as the second half commences.

Olivet pulls to within three points on Shrewsberry's 1-yard plunge with 2:07 left. The Comets try an on-side kick but the Bulldogs recover.

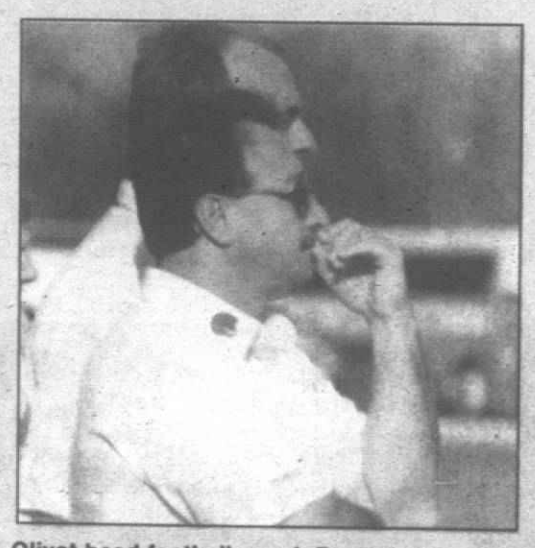
After the final whistle, fans and family filter onto the field. Shrewsberry gets a hug from his mother as he walks off.

Livedoti stays around to talk as the afternoon sun begins to fade into another fall night. An alumna congratulates him on the team's season, which concluded at 4-5 and 3-2 in the MIAA.

"Why don't you come back to the house and I'll get you a cap," Livedoti said to the Olivet grad as they walk off the field together.

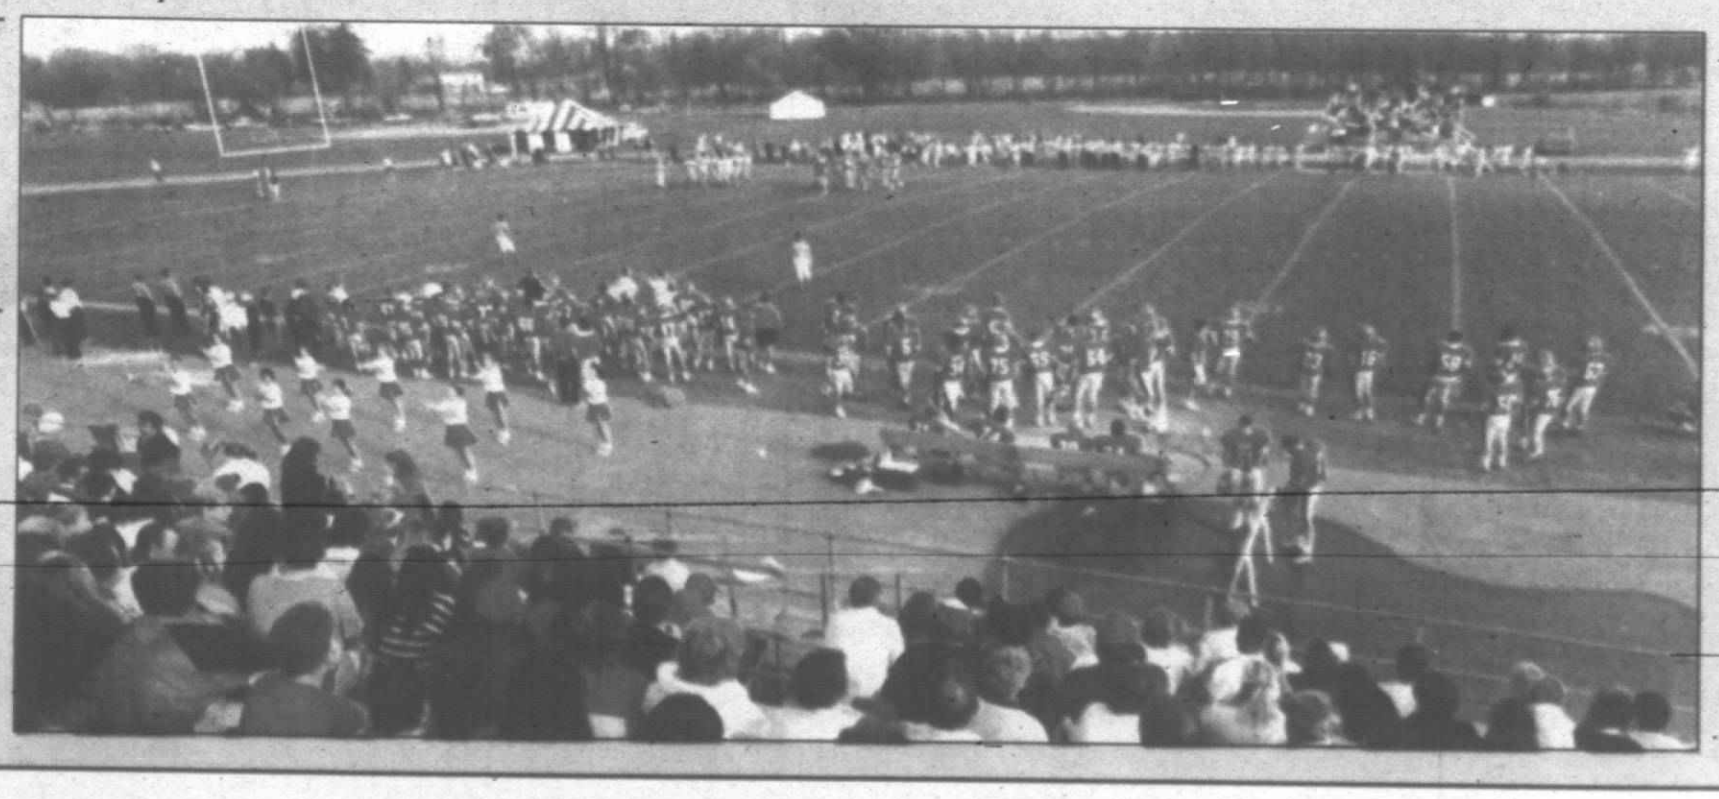
By then, even the cows could go home.



Olivet head football coach Dominic Livedoti stands along the sidelines in a stance that might lead someone to mistake him for Chicago Bears coach Mike Ditka.

Partisan Olivet fans give their team a rousing cheer as the Comets pull within three points of rival Adrian Bulldogs.

'I look for a kid with a big heart. Maybe one from a big family with eight other kids because I know they probably had to fight for everything.'
— Dominic Livediti



Forget the tier after tier of fans, Olivet's Griswold Stadium is like one at a high school — plenty of seats for the hometown fans and a few bleachers for the loyal opposition.

Hand-set letterpress: key to creativity

By Cathleen Collins Lee
special writer

THEY BOUGHT it in the late '60s for $150. And they had no idea what they were getting into.

It was an old, hand-set letterpress. Ann and Ken Mikolowski, part of a thriving community of artists and writers centered in Detroit's Cass Corridor, bought the press to bring contemporary poetry to the public. But they didn't begin to realize how time-consuming and difficult a hand-set press can be.

"We thought we had all the time in the world and that we could do anything. This was the '60s," said Ann, with a laugh.

A little older and wiser, the Mikolowskis now know they can't do absolutely anything, but they certainly can operate a printing press. For the past 20 years, under the name The Alternative Press, they have used the press to publish intriguing, humorous and thoughtful combinations of poetry and visual images in very accessible formats.

A sampling of their postcards, bumper stickers, bookmarks and broadsides is on display now through Sunday, Nov. 25, in the Exhibit Gallery alongside the library at Madonna College, Schoolcraft and Levan, Livonia.

IMMERSED IN an active arts community, the Mikolowskis were dismayed that contemporary poetry often lacked an outlet and an audience.

When they bought the press, they became, in effect, publishers, free to print the art and poetry that they valued so much. They combined their talents, Ken is a poet and Ann is an artist, to print poems and hand them out for free on street corners.

"We figured if we took a single poem rather than a gathering, and if we made it functional and attractive, maybe we could reach people," Ken said.

Bradley Jones' oil painting, which depicts violence through a car with bullet holes and through a pool of blood and a gun on the pavement, was used on the cover of this poetry book. He's a former Cass Corridor artist.

organizing

Dorothy Lehmkuhl

Dear Readers: This Thursday is Thanksgiving Day, a time to give thanks for our blessings. Things aren't perfect in the world now with concerns over the Persian Gulf, crime, drugs and a slow slide into recession, among others.

But the world never has been perfect and it never will be, and we need to remember that for every negative, there are always many more positives.

Life itself is a blessing, one that can and should be appreciated every day. As you awake each day, be thankful for each breath of life — and for warmth, clothing, food and freedom.

Tell yourself it will be a good day, and then make it the best you can. Thank God for small things like toothpaste, hair dryers, comfy chairs and the morning paper. Have gratitude for hot running water, electric lights, expressways and your car.

Despite the warts, be grateful for the myriad of not-so-small things like a job, insurance, computers, sports and entertainment and stores loaded with every kind of merchandise. Be glad for your family, friends and places to go with your problems like the medical profession, support groups, your church, synagogue or charitable organizations.

For younger people who have grown up with every possible advantage, it may be difficult to really appreciate how much they have and how little so much of the rest of the world has. As Thomas Paine said: "What we obtain too cheap, we esteem too lightly; 'tis dearness only which gives everything its value."

DURING THE upcoming holiday season, set aside a little time to share something of yourself with others less fortunate. Contribute to one of the many organizations that provide holiday dinners to the needy.

When you are part of a large family group, it's easy to forget how lonely others may be. Perhaps you could invite an extra person or two to join your own gathering, even if they aren't your favorite people.

If you're afraid you'll be lonely on Thanksgiving Day, and are able, get off your duff and do something for someone else. Find someone else who would appreciate your company.

Invite several different people to your place and ask each one to bring a dish, visit shut-ins, help serve in one of the bread lines, take a single person out to eat or call someone long distance who you know will be alone.

Since it's better to give than to receive, don't wait for others to "do unto you." By thinking of others, you'll automatically remove the focus from yourself and feel less lonely. Try it! You'll be thankful you did.

When they ran out of money, the couple began sending packets of materials to subscribers for a set fee. This approach covered their costs. It gave themselves and the artists the freedom to choose any format they wished. The subscription service continues today at $15 for a once-a-year mailing.

The Mikolowskis combine contemporary poetry with carefully chosen paper, typeface and ink color, often using a wood block, linoleum block or photo engraving as well. The interplay of the visual and verbal is well-thought-out and often subtle.

A poem called "Wedding," by Donna Brook, is printed like a simple, elegant wedding invitation. "Ichabod," by Robert Hershon, is printed on brown paper with a shadowy, gangly darker brown figure near the title. And their noted tongue-in-cheek bumper sticker "NEW HOPE/For the Dead," by William Matthews, is accompanied by some tasteful lillies.

THE MIKOLOWKSIS publish their own work and that of other respected artists and poets, including Faye Kicknosway, Allen Ginsberg, Andrei Codrescu, Robert Creeley, Paul Schwarz, Robert Bly, Betty Brownlee and Bill Berkson. They're friends of John Sinclair, and printed several of his poems written at Marquette Prison.

In the late '70s, the couple added an innovative twist to their subscription packages: original postcards. They sent each artist or writer who was interested 500 blank postcards printed on the back with their name and the name of the press. They asked them — challenged them — to create 500 original works of art, alone or in collaboration with someone else.

The result has been a tremendously varied and original array of postcards, many forming a series.

Marilyn Schechter painted designs in purple, blue, red and mauve on embossed paper and attached to each a shiny smooth ceramic piece. Betty Brownlee did a series of collages combining hearts, glitter and lace doilies in yellow, reds and oranges. Faye Kicknosway contributed 500 original poems adorned with her own simple pictures.

Although their work ranges from short, humorous poems to love poems to political pieces, each combines words and images in striking ways.

"WE'RE NOT interested in obscure poetry," Ken said. "We want a sense of immediacy, a transference of energy from writer to reader. Painting and music and poetry, they all produce a spark. And people are surprised when it does hit them."

The Mikolowskis are working within a tradition of collaboration between artists and writers that can be seen in the Dada and Surrealist movements and elsewhere.

Doug Semivan, assistant professor of art at Madonna and a longtime friend of the Mikolowskis, feels they've added a great deal to that tradition. And he admires their long and continuing commitment to it.

"I'm just incredibly impressed that Ann and Ken have really done this, and for no other reason that they love it," Semivan said. "They haven't made any money at it. The contribution is just incredible. It's a national treasure."

That contribution was recognized in a two-month exhibit at the Detroit Institute of Arts this past spring. Titled "Art Poetry Melodrama: 20 Years of The Alternative Press," it was part of the Ongoing Michigan Artists Program.

A retrospective exhibit, like the one at the DIA or the current one at Madonna, is perhaps as much of an education for the Mikolowskis as anyone else. As they take 20 years worth of work out of manilla folders, it gives them a pespective on the past.

MUCH HAS changed in 20 years. The hair is shorter and grayer. They've raised two children, Michael, 27, who is also an artist, and Molly, 17. They've moved twice, to Grindstone City in Michigan's thumb in 1974 and then to Ann Arbor in 1988 when Ken was offered a full-time job teaching at the Residential College at the University of Michigan.

The Mikolowskis have also found other outlets for their craft in addition to The Alternative Press. Ann exhibits her paintings, primarily landscapes and miniature portraits of people who have inspired her, at the Joy Emery Gallery in Grosse Pointe. She is also an artist-in-residence in the Pinckney Schools. Ken's third book of poetry will be published in December by Past Tents Press.

But even though much has happened in 20 years, the Mikowloskis can also look over their work and see that they've remained committed to their original goal.

That goal is perhaps best summed up in one of the postcards in the collection, by poet/art critic Bill Berkson: "When poetry meets painting, you begin to know about art."

'Good Cheer' will benefit less-fortunate

In conjunction with "Operation Good Cheer" through Dec. 7, Ford Motor Credit Co. and the Spirit of Detroit Chorus will host a holiday concert at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 1, in the Ford Motor Co. World Headquarters Building Auditorium.

On the program will be the Ford Motor Co. Chorus, the Renaissance Chorus of Wayne Chapter, SPEBSQSA; the Myron Wahls Trio; and the Spirit of Detroit Chapter of Harmony International.

Under "Operation Good Cheer," children referred by the courts to Child and Family Services of Michigan can be recipients of holiday gifts and financial support for special needs. Many of these victims of neglect and abuse are not eligible for other gift-giving programs and are living in foster homes, institutions or adult-supervised young adult homes.

Spirit of Detroit Chapter has been involved in "Operation Good Cheer" since 1988, providing Christmas gifts, financial support, entertainment and co-sponsorship of this year's fund-raiser event.

Under auspices of Ford Motor Credit Co. with the cooperation of the Ford Communication Network and Cablevision of Dearborn/Wayne, Spirit of Detroit has coordinated a program of music for everyone with three award-winning choruses and featuring the sound of Appeals Court Judge Myron Wahl's Jazz Trio.

Tickets are free, but due to limited seating, they must be ordered in advance. Donations will be accepted at the event or by mail until Jan. 15.

For more information, call Janet Dillon, co-chairman public relations, Spirit of Detroit Chorus, at 534-4468.

Ballet days set

A ballet workshop for intermediate/advanced level dancers of all ages will be held this week in Southfield.

The Center for Creative Studies-Institute of Music & Dance will host the workshop for four days: 6-8:15 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday and 2-4:15 p.m. Saturday at the Evergreen Center, 13 Mile and Evergreen, Southfield.

Christina Kammuller is the instructor. For reservations, call 831-2870.

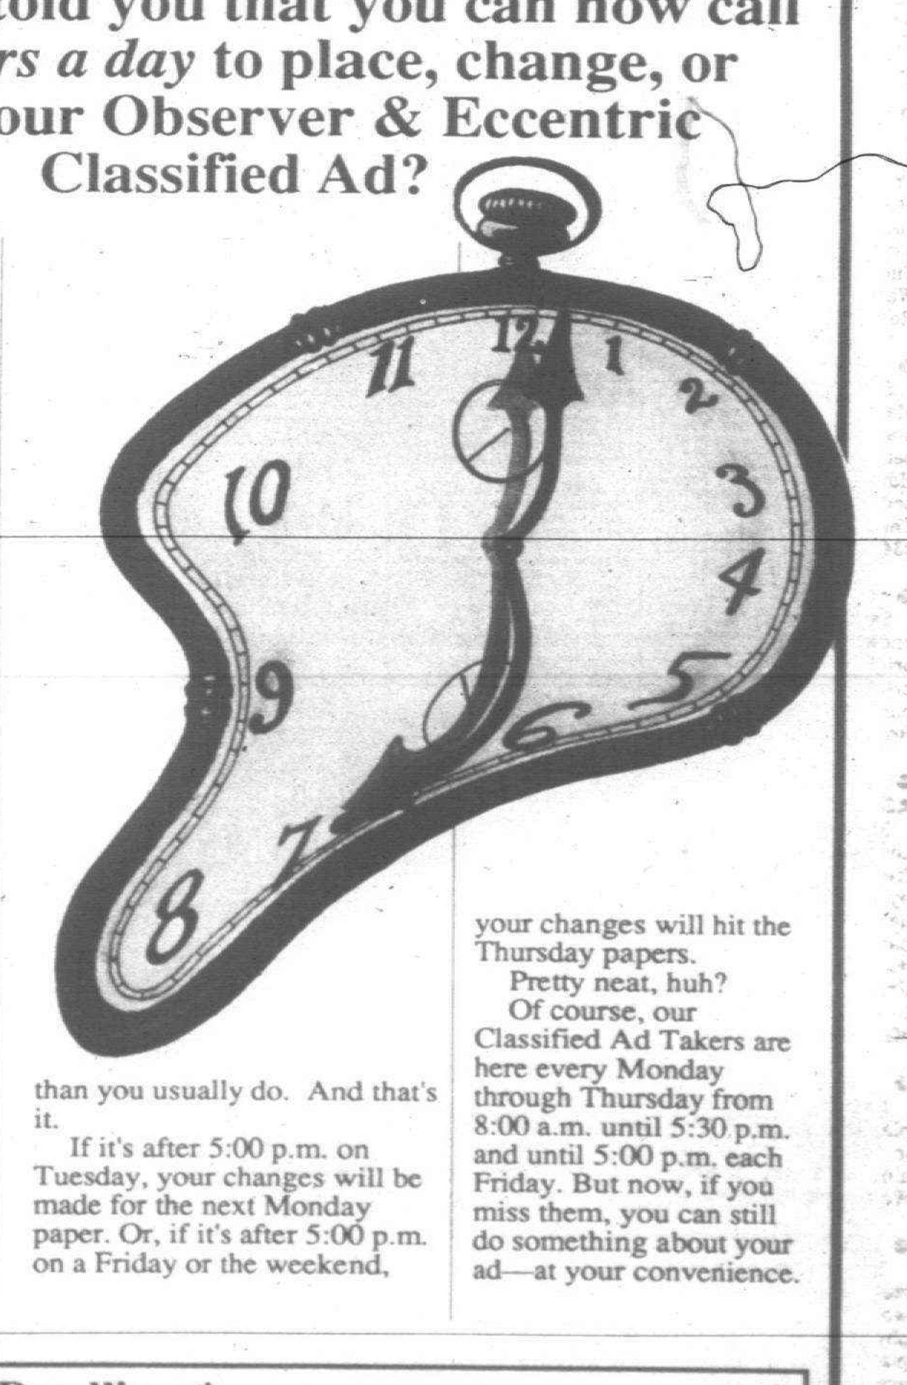
What if we told you that you can now call us 24 hours a day to place, change, or cancel your Observer & Eccentric Classified Ad?



No, we didn't change our deadlines, we didn't even bend them, they're still the same*— we did something a whole lot better.

We installed an electronic answering system that's on the job 24 hours a day, every day.

Here's how it works:

First, you must have a touch-tone telephone.

Then, all you do is call us—remember, it doesn't make any difference if we're not here—to place an ad, cancel one or change something on one you've placed earlier.

Let's say it's three o'clock in the morning and you've just sat straight up in bed remembering that you forgot to place that classified ad for your snowmobile. No problem. Just punch up our classified number and wait for the operator to guide you through the steps for changing your ad. Have in mind the exact information you want to give us, speak clearly and a bit slower than you usually do. And that's it.

If it's after 5:00 p.m. on Tuesday, your changes will be made for the next Monday paper. Or, if it's after 5:00 p.m. on a Friday or the weekend, your changes will hit the Thursday papers.

Pretty neat, huh?

Of course, our Classified Ad Takers are here every Monday through Thursday from 8:00 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. and until 5:00 p.m. each Friday. But now, if you miss them, you can still do something about your ad—at your convenience.

Deadlines* For placing, cancelling or correcting line ads: Monday issue: 5:00 p.m. Friday
Thursday issue: 5:00 p.m. Tuesday

Who cares what time it is?

Now you can place your Observer & Eccentric Classified Ad 24 hours a day!

Here's how it works:
First, you must have a touch-tone telephone.
Then, all you do is call us—remember, it doesn't make any difference if we're not here—to place an ad, cancel one or change something on one you've placed earlier.
Let's say it's 10 o'clock at night and you've just realized that you forgot to include the fact that the car you're selling has air conditioning. It's a good selling point, so you punch up our classified number and wait for the operator to guide you through the steps for changing your ad. Have in mind the exact information you want to give us, speak clearly and a bit slower than you usually do. And that's it.
If it's after 5:00 p.m. on Tuesday, your changes will be made for the next Monday paper. Or, if it's after 5:00 p.m. on a Friday or the weekend, your changes will hit the Thursday papers.
Pretty neat, huh?
Of course, our Classified Ad Takers are here every Monday through Thursday from 8:00 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. and until 5:00 p.m. each Friday. But now, if you miss them, you can still do something about your ad—at your convenience.

Although sales of property are occurring, like this parcel along M-14 in western Wayne County, a combination of factors are causing developers to adopt a wait-and-see attitude.

Economy, taxes, interest rates stall land deals

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Concerns about the economy and how long it sometimes can take to bring a project to fruition have made developers and syndicates much more cautious about buying vacant land.

There doesn't seem to be any great rush to acquire and stockpile now. Lessons apparently were well learned in the late 1970s when interest rates rocketed.

"If a guy's got a project a third of the way built and the prime rate went to 22 percent, that stopped a lot of things," said Gregory Donovan, president of the Land Company of Michigan in Plymouth.

Recalled Robert Katzman, president of Abbey Homes of Birmingham: "1980-81-82 was death here. It was absolute, total disaster."

"It used to be interest costs were 4-5-6 percent in the early '70s," said Michael Horowitz, president of The Selective Group of Farmington Hills. "That's different than 10-11-12 percent. Taxes have increased. There's not as much land speculation for that reason."

Lengthy governmental approval processes and a reluctance to battle anti-growth factions also have caused developers to take a harder look at long-term involvement, Horowitz said.

"YOU CAN'T be sure land you have today can be developed," he said. "On a best-case basis, under normal circumstances, it takes two years from the time you identify a parcel to construction."

Caution is the watchword.

"At this point, if an exceptional deal came along, we'd take a look at it," said Bruce Gershenson, vice president of land acquisition for Ramco-Gershenson of Southfield. "I don't think we'd start (developing) immediately," he added. "We're interested in leasing up what we have and disposing of peripheral land."

Donovan puts together land deals for investors, eventually selling to developers. "Compared to two years ago, our sales activity is a little less. Our buying is considerably less," he said.

"If it (economy) slows a little, we may do more buying. Prices are better. We'll probably buy more ready-to-go stuff, closer to market, where chances for rezoning are better and water and sewer are almost there," Donovan said.

"As far as buying new land, unless we perceive it as an absolute steal, we wouldn't speculate," Horowitz said.

DEVELOPERS ARE much more attuned to financing matters today because they have to be, Katzman said. "Banks are routinely not lending any land development loans.

"We have cash reserves in our deals, partners. It takes longer to bring tracts to market. There are more risks," he said.

A developers usually pays a sum of money for an option to buy land, then finalizes the purchases after potential roadblocks like rezonings and site plans have been hurdled.

Sellers often finance land contract for several years capped by balloon payments. Specifics — interest rates, length and down payment — are negotiable. Taxes may be paid during the option period by the purchaser or option holder.

Some purchasers like Ramco-Gershenson prefer to pay cash.

Donovan said he finds a holding period of one to three years best from a yield perspective for syndicates. That's why he looks for parcels — the fewer owners the better — that can be developed within that time frame.

"Good, smart developers are ones who have enough (cash) reserves in individual deals to cover rainy days," Katzman said.

Furniture manufacturers turn to accessories to boost sales

(AP) — Interior designers know it. Furniture showroom designers know it. And now furniture manufacturers are beginning to catch on. It's the accessories, not the big pieces, that create the charm in most rooms.

On average, Americans change their furniture only about 1.5 times in their lives, preferring to buy new accessories and an occasional unusual piece of furniture to update their rooms, furniture designer Vladimir Kagan said at the recent wholesale market in High Point, N.C.

Among accessories at High Point that can enliven furniture in the home:

- Trompe l'oeil painted armoires, decorative chests and tables;
- Tables with antiqued metal bases and glass, faux-painted wood or marble tops;
- Painted and upholstered paneled screens;
- Interesting lamps and lampshades, especially those based on Chinese and Japanese antiques;
- Tapestry cushions with multicolored fringes;
- Highly unusual reproductions of ornate Victorian pieces, such as a child's rocking horse or an antique bird cage.

NEW FABRIC treatments updated old sofa, chair and loveseat frames. Extra-long and full fabric skirts and dramatic overscaled prints — often with floral and vegetable themes — sparked traditional pieces. Luscious colors and startling geometric patterns provided the jazz on modern frames.

Many designers relied on coordinated fabric treatments such as matching bed headboards and spreads to arrest the eye. Mario Buatta provided the ultimate touch with lamp shade slipcovers of his printed bed sheet fabric. The gathered skirts, offered by Frederick Cooper Inc., simply fit over a plain shade.

Botanical prints, architectural prints, mirrors and reproductions of old Vanity Fair engravings are among the more popular items of wall decor.

Finding interesting accessories is likely to get much easier for the consumer since the larger furniture companies now are putting packages of appropriate accessories together, says Don Hekhuis, a designer from Thomasville, N.C.

Hekhuis designed an eight-room "house," 6,500 square feet complete with screened porch, inside the showroom building so Lexington Furniture Industries could show its new offering, "The World of Bob Timberlake."

BY VARYING the wall coverings, floor treatments, fabrics and accessories, the design team created nine looks ranging from a rustic log cabin to a formal dining room. To set the varying scenes, Hekhuis rounded up building parts from an old farm; stone from a local quarry; old toys, agateware and pottery; even old newspapers pasted to the walls, as was the custom to ward off the cold in 19th-century country houses.

'At-will' disclaimers must be clearly stated

condo queries

Robert M. Meisner

I am thinking about putting a disclaimer in our employment agreement with our on-site man at the condominium project. We want to retain the right to terminate these people at our whim. What do you suggest we do?

Recent cases at both state and federal level regarding employment contracts make it clear that if employers wish to ensure that they are entering into "at will" employment agreements with employees, that is, terminable with or without cause, a disclaimer that is buried in the back of a handbook and not prominently displayed may not be successful.

To be on the safe side, you should make it clear that there is no question in anyone's mind as to that fact. If there is a question of fact, the employee will be able to sue for wrongful discharge and probably go before a jury or trier of fact, which generally results in an unfavorable result for the employer. You should consult with your counsel as to the exact form and terminology of the employee contracts with your employees.

Robert M. Meisner is a Birmingham attorney specializing in condominiums, real estate and corporate law. WRITE IT AND REAP!

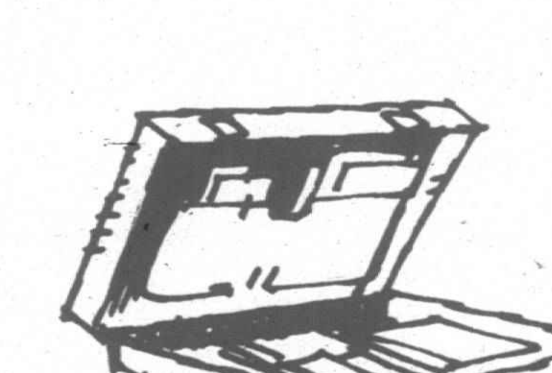
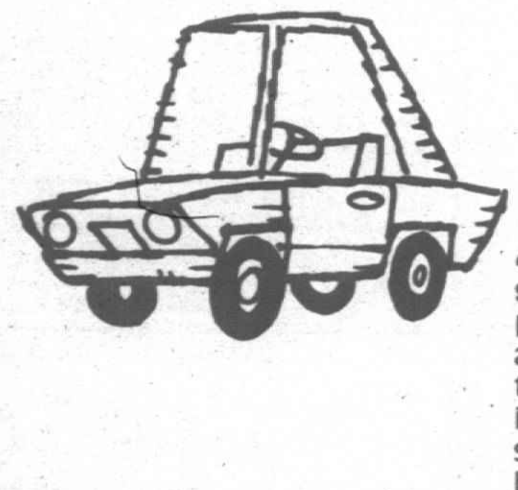
1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!

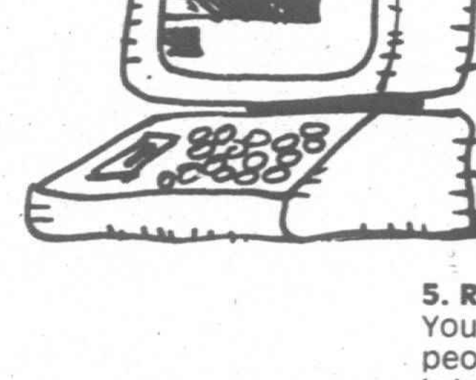


2. Include the price. Don't waste your time or a potential buyer's time. If you advertise the price of the item or service you offer, the people who respond to your ad will be those who are genuinely interested. Surveys show that readers are more interested in those items and services they know are within their price range.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or WSW (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.



4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a sale!



5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT
Holy Spirit, You make me see everything & show me the way to reach my ideals. You give me the Divine Gift to forgive & forget the wrongs that are done to me & You are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue, want to thank You for everything & confirm once more that I never want to be separated from You, no matter how great the material desire may be. I want to be with You & my loved ones in Your perpetual glory. Amen. Thank you for your love toward me & my loved ones. Say daily without mentioning your petition. It has never been known to fail. Your prayer will be answered. Promise to publish.

ST. JUDE NOVENA
May the Sacred Heart of Jesus be adored, glorified, loved & preserved throughout the world, now & forever. Sacred Heart Of Jesus, pray for us. St. Jude, worker of miracles, pray for us. St. Jude, help of the hopeless, pray for us. Say this prayer nine times a day, by the eighth day your prayer will be answered. It has never been known to fail. Publication must be promised. My prayers have been answered.
MR

THANK YOU St. Jude for answering my prayer. JJB.
