Father salutes son with song

'Desert Strength' strikes a chord

By Diane Gale
staff writer

THE GULF WAR
Hitting Home

While most parents send letters to their children in Operation Desert Storm, Larry Kneeshaw of Canton wrote a song and hopes to deliver a cassette personally.

Kneeshaw's ballad, "Desert Strength," is a musical note to his son, Scott, and at the same time applies to all troops in Saudi Arabia.

"Couldn't find the words to write you son, So, I wrote this song to right that wrong. Your mother and I are very proud of you, So let our prayers be your Desert Shield."

"I'm sure all the parents would like to see their prayers serve as a desert shield," said Kneeshaw, a structural engineer who plays the guitar as a hobby.

His friend, Canton resident Eric Webster, owner of tropical fish stores Aquaria in Westland and Cichlid World of Garden City, produced the song and sings backup.

"Larry and I worked before on some songs," Kneeshaw said. "This was something that is happening right now and affected everyone in the entire world. I dropped all my other projects."

THEIR FRIEND, Tom Ford, a Farmington Hills resident, has promised the financial backing that will pay for 900 copies of the song, which will be donated to Desert Storm and Desert Shield support groups.

They're calling their efforts Sand Aid, patterned after the national Farm Aid, Live Aid and Band Aid fund-raisers.

Ford, owner of T & M Asphalt Paving, Milford, said he was swamped with work-related matters when he got a call from Kneeshaw.

"I said I'll give you five minutes, Larry, and three hours later we were still talking," Ford said.

War protesters challenge assumptions of supporters

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

The stars and stripes and yellow ribbons are everywhere you look, and polls say 80 percent of Americans favor the war against Iraq.

But some around the country and in Plymouth-Canton oppose the Gulf War.

"I support the troops also — they should be brought home. They shouldn't be used to do something that requires non-lethal force," said one Plymouth-Canton teacher who declined to be named for job-related reasons.

"My primary objection is the amount of money being spent in relation to the importance of that particular conflict," said Mark Oppat, former Old Village Association president. "It has taken interest from more vital domestic issues."

Local people against the war say it's disturbing that most Americans favor the action. They challenge some assumptions held by those favoring the war.

The Plymouth-Canton teacher, acknowledging the popular belief that Saddam Hussein is a madman who must be stopped, said the U.S. government routinely terms as mentally ill foreign leaders deemed as enemies.

"Khomeini was mentally ill, later it was Qaddafi, Noriega was mentally ill," he said. "Anybody who our government wants to denigrate as a threat."

The teacher, who was active in demonstrations against the Vietnam War, said he has "written letters, gone to a couple demonstrations, a couple of teach-ins," on the Gulf War.

Oppat also opposed the Vietnam War: "I never thought that was justified," he said.

But neither said he's a pacifist. "I'm not, maybe I should be," said the Plymouth-Canton teacher. Maybe that refects more fully the traditional American I am."

"To be against the war doesn't mean you're for Saddam Hussein," Oppat said. "Anybody who has any sense in their head wouldn't believe that."

Bill Joyner of Plymouth Township, a former Wayne County commissioner, said, "I'm opposed to the war in the Middle East, but I want to make sure that this time there's support for the troops. In the 60s we should have taken our anger out on the political leadership that got us in Vietnam in the first place and not the soldiers."

Of the broad support for the current war, Joyner said, "People tend to jump in and be very supportive initially, but it doesn't get to what caused us to be there in the first place.

"When the euphoria wears off, we're going to wonder, 'Why the dependence on foreign oil?'," Joyner said. "I'm one who feels that negotiation is always favorable to fighting.

War memorial

Residents working to build a war memorial in Canton will meet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, March 7, at the Canton administration building to plan what needs to be done.

"A lot of people are under the impression that the Vietnam Vets are doing this," said Tim LaGrow, a member of the Plymouth-Canton Vietnam Veterans group.

"We hope to get all citizens involved," LaGrow said.

Packages for troops

A Friends of Freedom chapter was started in Canton last week. The township becomes the 19th community with a local chapter of the group that sends packages to troops fighting in the Persian Gulf.

"All we want to do is make sure the troops get a little something from home," said Michael Brobecker, Friends of Freedom president, during a presentation to the board of trustees Feb. 12.

It costs the group between $10-12 for each package, Brobecker said.

Cherry Hill district destined for history

By Diane Gale
staff writer

While the rest of the world rushes by, a hamlet in what is now western Canton, with a little luck, will continue to be forgotten by time.

The Cherry Hill and Ridge Road crossing has long been called the Cherry Hill historic district. Canton trustees took steps Tuesday to make the local designation official by having a public hearing.

The 75-acre village includes some of Canton's few remaining farms and 24 houses. A small factory built by Henry Ford in the 1940s and the Cherry Hill United Methodist Church are antiquated landmarks of Canton's roots.

"The name of the historic district has always been in spirit," said Melissa McLaughlin, historic district commission member.

The local designation will require that the historic district commission approve any new buildings or additions.

"Basically we're trying to prevent inappropriate additions or out buildings that would not be in correspondence with the entire district," McLaughlin said. "It wouldn't prohibit anyone from adding, it would ensure that the integrity of the structure would be maintained."

THE FOLKSY, old-time character of the Cherry Hill Village has long been an attraction for tourists and residents alike. Some passersby even get out of their cars, walk into yards and take pictures, said Mary Hauk, a Canton farmer who lives in the district.

Airport foes chart course

Seek ballot issue, plan to file appeal

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

Despite some initial setbacks, Mettetal Airport opponents are pursuing their opposition to the Plymouth-Plymouth Township purchase of the airport on two fronts.

The actions are:

- Plymouth Concerned Citizens, which opposes public ownership of the Canton airport, is collecting petition signatures seeking an amendment to the city charter to prohibit city commissioners from buying the airport.
- James Romzek, the attorney representing Canton Township and Plymouth Concerned Citizens, said he plans to file an appeal Tuesday of a circuit judge's Feb. 6 ruling that city commissioners and Plymouth Township trustees can pursue efforts to buy and run the airport.

As to what he'll cite in that appeal, "I'll leave that to the pleadings," Romzek said.

MEANWHILE, BILL McANINCH of Plymouth Concerned Citizens said his group is having "no trouble" collecting petition signatures favoring the charter amendment.

"Almost nobody is for the airport," he said. "This group is going to do everything we can to be heard."

Yack's assistant receives 7.7% pay increase

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Canton Supervisor Tom Yack's administrative assistant was given a 7.7 percent pay increase at a Tuesday, Feb. 12, board meeting.

Dan Calabrese was hired to the newly created post Jan. 29, 1990.

Canton trustees voted 6-1 for the increase. Treasurer Gerald Brown cast the lone vote against the pay raise that increases the salary from $26,000 to $28,000 retroactive to Jan. 29.

All Canton employees, except elected officials, received a 2.5 percent raise July 29, 1990 and another 2.5 percent Jan. 29, 1991, Yack said to the board.

"I feel that during the past year Dan Calabrese has performed his duties as the supervisor's assistant in a satisfactory manner," Yack said. "He has increased his knowledge of the township operations and has developed to the point where he is a tremendous asset both to me and to the township. We should treat him like all the other employees, that's all."

CALABRESE SERVES at the whim of the voters, Brown said, explaining that if Yack isn't re-elected Calabrese will be out of a job.

"I can't justify giving him 7.7 percent when I got 5.2 percent," Brown said. "It's a political appointment job."

Trustee Phil LaJoy said he supported the raise, because it was consistant with the other township employee raises.

"We have some rhyme or reason for it," said LaJoy, owner of Norrell temporary service employer, Ann Arbor.

Trustee Robert Shefferly said the raise was appropriate.

"I think at this particular point, when you go to a new organization, the person is in line for a raise within 4-6 months," Shefferly said. "Next time, although, I will have to take a hard look at (a raise)."

Yack said the system in applying raises for elected officials, supervisor, clerk and treasurer, "stinks."

ELECTED OFFICIALS don't receive a pay increase until Nov. 20 yearly. All other employees receive their year to year increases at the start of the year.

The supervisor receives $53,600 annually; treasurer and clerk each earn, $44,400 annually.

The increase this year will be determined by what the classified employees receive, which hasn't been determined. Likely it will be between 4-5 percent annually, Dan Durack, municipal services administrator.

Father sends musical note to son

Kneeshaw said, their pretense is that "there's too much blood being spilled for oil.

"We want the people who think this is a greedy move to see that the people over there are looking for peace."

"We're not promoting the war," Webster said. "We're promoting the people out there defending America."

KNEESHAW'S SON, Scott, 21, is serving in the 82nd Airborne and is a veteran of the U.S. invasion of Panama.

"The sun is going down in the desert sky. Bullets are flying, soldiers are fighting. Stand behind the flags that you represent. Let it be your desert shield. Moving through the sand like a Desert Storm."

Kneeshaw shook his head of thick blond hair and chuckled nervously when he recalled that after his son graduated from high school, he suggested that he join the military, and of course, he didn't know the danger that lay ahead.

"I'd rather have him home now, but at the same time, I'm proud as hell of him," Kneeshaw said.

"The last time I heard from Scott was Jan. 11."

Kneeshaw said he and his wife, Sylvia, spend endless hours in front of the CNN (Cable News Network) channel, hoping they'll catch a glimpse of their son.

"We got all his personal belongings he sent home and that was the last we heard of him," Kneeshaw said, explaining that his son was preparing to go to battle. "It's kind of scary."

ALTHOUGH HE'S hoping to deliver a copy of the song to his son, the second best scenario, he said, would be to convince a media agency, like CNN or Stars and Stripes, a military newspaper, to deliver a copy.

"I want him (Scott) to realize what he and his buddies over there are doing," Kneeshaw said.

Anti-war voices challenge assumptions

"I value people that have served but I don't value a foreign policy that has brought us to a place where we have to go to war," he said.

"I've never been for war, I used to demonstrate in the 60s against war," said one Plymouth business woman, adding, "My marching days are past. I have a job."

She declined to be named to protect her business. "I know there are a lot of conflicts in the world and lots of evil people. I wish there were some other way of going about it besides sending guns and airplanes and bombs. If George Bush had a young son and had to send him over, we probably wouldn't be fighting."

When she notices the support for the war expressed by most, "I think, oh goodness, we don't think alike — here's a person I don't share basic values with."

To those supporting the war who bring up the argument that Hussein's capability to launch nuclear weapons must be stopped, she asks, "Why couldn't we send in 20 guys and do the same thing?

"Why are they having war? It doesn't make any sense to me. It seems the people who are in power have economic interests that are bettered by it."

Airport opposition to pursue ballot issue, appeal on ruling

While city commissioners have already voted to take steps to buy the airport, mostly with federal and state money, a citywide vote on the charter amendment "hopefully would be held before acquisition of the property," Romzek said.

ON THE petitions being circulated throughout the city, voters are asked to support a charter amendment specifying "that the city shall not directly or indirectly acquire, establish, operate, construct, maintain or own an airport either within or without its boundaries," or enter into an intergovernmental airport operation agreement "unless approved by the majority of the qualified elector-ate of the city."

Earlier petition signatures submitted to the city seeking a similar charter amendment to set a public vote on an airport were rejected on the basis that the name of the group seeking the amendment was not listed on two places on the petitions, as required by law.

The petitions now being circulated should be accepted by the city "and we will get a vote," McAninch said.

At city commission meetings where Plymouth residents told commissioners they didn't want an airport purchase, "They were treating us in such a fashion that we weren't citizens, we weren't part of the action," McAninch said.

City Attorney Ron Lowe said that whether it could actually stop the city-township effort to operate the airport. Mayor Dennis Bila has directed Lowe to research this.

"I DON'T think the court should start today (to allow airport acquisitions outside the boundaries of the municipalities seeking to buy the airport)," Romzek said before Wayne County Circuit Judge Richard Kaufman on Feb. 6.

Among reasons for rejecting the public purchase of the airport, opponents have cited a lack of information on potential liability and other potential costs to taxpayers.

City commissioners favoring the airport purchase have stressed that the agreement between Plymouth and Plymouth Township calls for no use of local taxes to support the airport.

Man steals gasoline

The driver of a white Ford pickup truck reportedly stole 36 gallons of gas valued at $44.50 on Feb. 12 from an Amoco station on Lilley Road, according to police.

A man, 5-foot-7-inches tall, about 160 pounds with brown hair, left the station without paying.

BAD DROP: Police arrested a man standing outside Crossings of Canton apartments Feb. 13 after they were called on a possible trespassing and suspicious situation case.

At the police station, a bag apparently containing marijuana fell out of the man's jacket, police said.

COLD CRIME: A snowblower, valued at $270, was reported stolen Feb. 12 from a garage on Hedgerow Court.

ON FILM: A 14-year-old Canton boy last week videotaped a 15-year-old boy who he said has been harassing him.

The 15-year-old went to the other boy's house, with what appeared to be a pistol, and said: "That's for you," a police report said.

Although the weapon was orange, the 14-year-old told police that he is frightened by what the other boy might do.

HOUSE BREAK-IN: Thieves broke into a mobile home in Royal Holiday, on Warren Road, last week.

A woman told police that her mother, who owns the house, was in Florida at the time of the break-in. The daughter reported a $300 VCR was stolen; along with three bottles of alcohol, valued at $25; and jewelry, which did not have a listed value.

In a separate case, a Geddes Road homeowner reported that her house was broken into sometime between Feb. 1 and 11.

She reported $500 worth of damage to doors, $100 worth of dry wall damage and that $700 worth of fireplace utensils were stolen.

Trustees take action to preserve Cherry Hill

"People are so bold as to walk into our houses and take pictures," she said. "(Canton residents also) like to see what's out here."

Speeding drivers can be dangerous to the slow moving farm equipment and the children playing in the area. And curiosity seekers can be intrusive, Hauk said. However, she and her family support the historic designation, she said.

"We support and want to see the old homes preserved," she said.

The architectural styles range in the village from the 1800s to 1991 and include Victorian, Queen Anne, Italianate, Georgian and Greek Revival. No one particular design is promoted over another.

DAN WEST, whose ancestors have long lived in the village, was concerned that restrictions could become intrusive, he said at the board meeting Tuesday.

The village is made up of a community of close-knit residents who should be assured that their rights won't be violated, he said.

"I'm not against the (historic) district (designation)," West said.

THE HISTORIC district commission plans to work on zoning and planning proposals that would also "wedge and bulwark from development encroaching on the district," McLaughlin said. The farms add a special flavor, she said.

"But we realize that the large landowners have a right to sell their land and in many cases that is their retirements."

The historic designation is a method to encourage developers to be sensitive about the district's special character and to work in protecting it.

"It's pretty fairly near perfect out there," said McLaughlin, who owns a home in the district.

Pact spurs other unions to seek pay hikes

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

A contract settlement for Wayne-Westland teachers has prompted hundreds of other school employees to line up for their share of the pay-raise pie.

The district serves southeast Canton.

Contract talks between school officials and union leaders representing bus drivers, custodians, cafeteria workers, secretaries and principals, among others, had been virtually pushed aside pending last week's approval of a teacher pact.

But the various bargaining teams now plan to return to the negotiating table for what they hope will be a swift settlement of unresolved issues — mostly related to salaries and benefits.

No strikes have been threatened by the seven unions representing nearly 600 school employees — some of whom have been working for 1½ years without a contract. Those workers had been closely watching teacher contract negotiations.

"They were waiting to see what the big kid on the block was going to receive," said Bill Taylor, associate superintendent for employee services.

School board member Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek, during a recent board meeting, appeared somewhat concerned that the 11.9-percent teacher pay raises awarded over two years could raise expectations among other school employees. (Teachers actually will receive 9.8 percent "in-pocket" because the contract expires in August of the second year.)

It appears Kozorosky-Wiacek was on target.

ARTHUR WOOD, union president of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees Local 1483, which represents some 300 school bus drivers, custodians and cafeteria workers, said union members would welcome a settlement similar to the one teachers received.

"I'm sure they would all love that, if the (school) board is going to be fair about it," Wood said. Local AFSCME members have been working without a contract since July 1, 1989.

However, school officials refrained from linking the teacher pay raises to potential wage hikes for other employees.

"We're going to negotiate with each of these (bargaining) units individually," said Thomas Svitkovich, associate superintendent.

Though no deadline has been set for the AFSCME negotiations, Wood said some workers hope for a settlement prior to March 13. That's when school district voters will decide in a special election whether to approve a five-year, 7.75-mill tax increase that would pump an additional $11.5 million a year into district coffers.

"I'm not going to let that be a gun to my head," Wood said, but he conceded some workers fear they won't receive a fair settlement if the millage proposal fails before a contract is approved.

THOUGH SOME workers are in their second year without a contract, negotiators described the tone of talks as cordial.

"Our problem is not that we have problems at the (negotiating) table," Taylor said. "The problem is the (district's) financial difficulties. But we're optimistic. We'd like to see a settlement as soon as possible."

The school bus drivers, custodians and cafeteria workers represented by Wood account for more than half of the nearly 600 employees working without a contract.

But school officials also must reach an accord with six other groups: secretaries; maintenance workers; building administrators, such as principals; para-professionals; some central office administrators; and employees at the Tinkham Center for special education students.

All of the groups are without a contract except for the two administrative unions, which are in the third year of separate pacts that called for salary reopeners in the final year.

Ford plant workers, students exchange information, ideas

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

National Vocational Education Week brought lots more than proclamations and yawns to the Plymouth-Canton Community last week.

For one thing, professionals from Ford Motor Co.'s Sheldon Road plant visited business and engineering classes at Plymouth Salem High School, exchanging information with teachers and students.

The visit gave Ford's Anne Sandford, Bob Sly and Freda Robbins an idea of what skills students are bringing to the workplace.

And it provided teachers Joan Savage, Laurie Howe and Larry Phillips as well as vocational education director Harold Gaertner insights into the skill levels and technology in place in the industrial world.

The exchange was an outgrowth of the Plymouth-Canton Community Business Education Partnership that began with Unisys and the school district about two years ago.

"Joan Savage and I visited Ford Motor last week and spent an afternoon seeing their latest technology firsthand," said Howe, who like Savage teaches in the business department.

"They came back to reciprocate."

"I was quite impressed," said Sly, a manufacturing engineer who works with heat exchangers in Ford's aluminum operations.

"I saw some students today that would surpass any engineer in our computer-aided design area." Sly was speaking of students in Phillips' engineering and drawing class.

SANDFORD, A secretary for Ford's division controller, said that after visiting the computer applications class, she realized "computerized table setting is changing rapidly. That's one case where we are behind."

The theme of this year's voc-ed week was "Vocational Education: Classroom of the Future."

Gaertner said students are being prepared for a new world, "one emphasizing robotics, computer-assisted manufacturing and design, health fields, business and telecommunication. The 1990's fastest-growing occupations will demand 30 million workers with less than four years of college," he said.

Gaertner called Ford Motor "a pillar as far as the Plymouth-Canton community's business-education partnership.

"The program is growing very well, in fact very deliberately."

Ford invites students every year to tour its climate control plant on Sheldon Road. An improvement in the economy should bring more opportunities for student co-op programs and internships, Sly said.

Savage and Howe encouraged the Ford representatives to speak to their classes.

"Teachers and parents can tell students things, but it's so much more meaningful to them when they hear it from someone in the workplace," said Savage.

"Coming from an outsider it does carry a lot of weight," agreed Howe.

Sandford immediately thought of one message she'd deliver to students.

"I would hope people realize that being a secretary is an important, significant class of work," she said. "There's a stigma attached to it, but if you're a secretary, you contribute."

Betty Bloch, who coordinates the Plymouth-Canton Business-Education Partnerships, said the program's intent is to "match teachers with business professionals in related fields in order to expose students to all types of careers."

In addition to Ford and Unisys, area companies involved include Strom Computer of Plymouth, the Packaging Corp. of America, and Johnson Controls Inc. of Plymouth Township. "The whole program is a joint effort by the Plymouth and Canton Chambers of Commerce and the school district," Bloch said.

County, AFSCME agree on contracts

Members of six Wayne County American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees locals will receive a 6-percent wage increase this year and a combined 13-percent increase over the next three years as a result of contracts approved Thursday by the county Board of Commissioners.
Contracts cover county office workers, as well as those in the county health service, public service and engineering departments, the county youth home and union-affiliated supervisors.
AFSCME workers will receive a 6-percent increase retroactive to Dec. 1. Step increases over the next two years will increase wages 13 percent by the time the contracts expire in November 1993, deputy county executive Michael Duggan said.
Step increases are due in December and again in December 1992. Those at top union scale will receive a 3.5-percent percent bonus, plus an additional $300 at that time.
Contracts cover an estimated 2,400 workers, roughly one-half the county's union workforce.
AFSME locals 25, 101, 409, 1659, 1862 and 2926 have already ratified the contract, county officials said. Commissioners unanimously approved the the contracts.
Negotiations continue with unions representing sheriff's department sergeants and lieutenants, airport fire fighters and power plant employees, Duggan said.

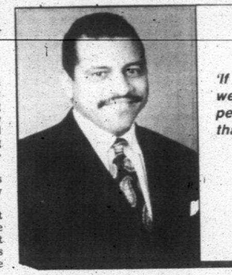
Budget fight over — for now

By Wayne Peal
staff writer



'If the assumption is we're doing this so people will get paid, that's not the truth.'
— Arthur Blackwell county commission chairman

Wayne County's budget fight appears over, but both sides accuse the other of hitting below the belt.
County commissioners trimmed the county's $1.8 billion budget by $950,345 Thursday, eliminating revenue that was expected to come from the sale of county owned property in Northville and cutting spending for numerous county operations.
In the process, commissioners abandoned plans to sue the county executive's office over the budget.
While neither side was calling it a tradeoff, the executive's office said it would authorize payment for county workers whose checks had been withheld as a result of the dispute over the land sale revenue.
Despite the apparent truce, additional — possibly heated — budget negotiations are expected to continue.
"WE NOW have a legal budget, but it's not a responsible budget," deputy county executive Michael Duggan said.
Two reductions approved by the commission Thursday are now at issue. They include a $95,000 cut to the county prosecutor's office and $50,000 reduction for personnel at the new county jail in Hamtramck.
The executive's office is also upset that commissioners approved withhold payment for jobs they authorized.
"I think it's totally unfair, in fact I think it's unconscionable," said Kay Beard, D-Inkster.
Commission Chairman Arthur Blackwell, D-Detroit, agreed. Withholding payment, he said, set "a dangerous precedent."
Despite their concerns, commissioners generally seemed glad a court fight would be avoided.
"I question the cuts for the prosecutor and jail, but I believe this is a good starting point," Kevin Kelley, D-Redford said.
Commission operations director Warren Evans was among the "10 to 12 people" whose checks were withheld, Duggan said.
"The county commission shouldn't have approved jobs when there wasn't money to pay those people," Duggan said.
Land sale revenue won't be assured until May, Duggan said, when developer R.A. DeMattia decides whether to exercise his option. Homes and offices are planned for the 930-acre site.
Commissioners eliminated the land sale revenue due to concern over the slumping housing market, Blackwell said.
"If the assumption is we're doing this so people will get paid, that's not the truth," he said.
Commissioners had earlier sought legal representation, though McNamara vetoed their hiring of outside counsel.
While commissioners didn't try to override the veto, they said they expected the executive to authorize a $1,000 payment for legal bills they incurred in the budget fight.
Most of the budget cuts authorized Thursday were for capital expenses and equipment, not personnel. But commissioners said other deeper cuts could be coming.
"Because we run one to two quarters behind the general economy, we might not feel the recession until our next fiscal year," said George Cushingberry, D-Detroit.

COMPARING PRESCRIPTIONS - TAKING ADVICE
You may have experienced the following: a friend of yours used a drug prescribed by his doctor, and your friend if feeling fine. At your next appointment with your doctor, you intend to ask him if you could try that drug.
Considering a change in medication based on what you heard from others is dangerous in arthritis. First, it is likely that your arthritis is not the same as the one treated successfully by the other drug. There are more than a hundred arthritic conditions. Each one differs from the others by its cause, treatment, and outcome. Medicine that is appropriate for one arthritis may be hazardous for another.
Second, the report of success may be wrong. If you are hearing second hand about an improvement, you should be careful before believing what you are told. Often a new drug has an early success but in a few months the person is back into the previous state of pain and limitations.
Third, recall that all medicines have side effects. A new medication may seem wonderful but continued use often brings out its toxic side.
If a medication fails to decrease your pain or improve your mobility, then a change is in order. Let your doctor's knowledge of appropriate drugs form the basis for that move.

Jail guards are needed

To the editor:

We need our corrections officers.

The Department of Corrections handed out 2,900 layoff notices, 1,800 of these were given to uniformed officers. This is a dangerous way to try to save money and creates a very volatile situation.

Our prisons are understaffed. In Ionia there are approximately 5,000 prison inmates and 1,000 officers to guard them. These 1,000 guards are not all on duty at the same time. They all have days off and this number covers three shifts. This is not a good balance.

The Riverside Correctional Facility has three officers for 90-plus inmates living in a gymnasium. The Michigan Training Unit, where they are double bunking (two inmates in a room made for one) has three officers to 178 inmates. I call this a very dangerous and a potentially life-threatening situation. Not just officers lives or inmates lives, but yours and mine as well. Our prisons are not like those on television. These officers are not allowed to carry weapons. They are unarmed.

I am not a corrections officer. I do not work for the prison system. I do, however, live and work in a prison community, so I have friends and relatives who do. The state could never compensate for the injury to or loss of one of these people. I have lived and worked in this area for almost 13 years and I have felt safe until now.

Students are thankful

To the editor:

The students of West Middle School overwhelmingly thank the community for supporting our IBM computer through the collection of Kroger receipts. We have received one IBM computer and have a second one on the way. Thank you for remembering West with your Kroger receipts.

Some simple advice for parents

To the editor:

I have only been a teacher for five years, so I can't give advice based on decades of teaching. I can put 20 years of parenting and five years of teaching together and come up with some pretty profound, yet simple suggestions for helping your child experience success in school.

The most obvious conclusion I have come up with, is that if a parent thinks their child's education is important, the child will usually feel the same way. Parents have different ways of showing interest in their children's education.

Some talk to them about school on a daily basis. Some help their children with homework. Some volunteer for parent activities in the school, and some just look through their child's papers with them at night. Depending on their style, a concerned parent will find a way to show interest in their child's education. In my opinion, this makes the difference. This becomes the difference between the kids who experience success in school and the kids who experience failure in school.

In my position as a special education teacher, I am required to look at IQ scores. I am not terribly interested in IQ, but motivation excites me.

When I hear, "I can't," that's where my job begins. I love showing kids how they "can!" But if they "won't," they have chosen not to, and this presents a problem to me and a bigger one to them. This brings me back to where I started, "attitude about education."

Right now, today, you can do something about changing your child's attitude about school. We used to play a game in our family at dinner time, where the adults each shared something good that happened at work or at home that day, and the kids each shared something good that happened at school. For some kids who are already experiencing failure, it may have to start with, "I didn't get sent to the principal's office today," or "I didn't hit Todd at recess today," or possibly, "I got a 'C' on my spelling test." It may start out slow, and it may sound "phony" at first, to be sharing good things that happened that day, but you will be the model to follow and if you can be sincere and consistent in this practice, you and your child will reap the rewards. This could start a habit of looking on the positive side.

If you have been hesitant to talk to your middle schooler on a regular basis about what is happening at school because you may be afraid to know, or you may feel like you will get mad, or will have to give advice, relax. Because I have taught middle schoolers, I know how important it is for them to be listened to. And that is all a good listener does, "listen." They don't want your advice, they just want to be listened to. I feel that when kids are in elementary school they need a "quantity" of attention from parents, but when they get to middle school they need "quality" of attention (a good listener). If a parent has been judgmental, it may take time for a child to feel comfortable sharing.

If this advice seems simple, it is. Try it.

Band did good job

To the editor:

An open letter to the CEP Marching Band and all music makers of Variety Is:

Dear Music Makers:

Thank you for a most enjoyable evening when we attended "Variety Is 1991" at Salem High School.

After a most stressful week with the beginning of the war, it was absolutely wonderful to be entertained so beautifully. All of you did such a good job.

Congratulations to the National Champions.

Airport a benefit to community

To the editor:

Dwight Eckler and other concerned citizens are going to sue Plymouth over Mettetal Airport. He and his cohorts are not only suing the city but also commissioners who voted in favor of the JOA with Plymouth Township as well as the Plymouth Township Trustees who voted in favor of it.

He is filing recall petitions against our fine, dedicated city commissioners who have to sometimes vote on difficult and emotional issues. He sounds like some kind of a nut.

Doesn't he know how much money it's going to cost to have all these elections on the charter, recall, and defend his group's barrage of lawsuits?

He and his supporters are doing a disservice to our fine community and these actions will certainly hurt Plymouth's image and reputation.

I agree with those city commissioners who voted in favor of the JOA with Plymouth Township to save Mettetal Airport. It's a community asset. I have been following this issue closely and I have spoken to friends who aren't the "rebel-rouser" types to write a lot of letters and attend city commission meetings. They favor keeping Mettetal Airport, especially in view of the fact that, if it is municipally owned, there will be no money used from local taxes or the general fund and it will all come from Federal government grants, a state grant, and private money. How can we lose? The only way we lose is all the money that this "concerned citizens group" is costing our taxpayers.

I can't believe anything Supervisor Tom Yack says when reading his quotes in articles and press releases. It's my understanding that Canton Township was invited to join and preserve the airport. Yack had a better idea. He talked an about industrial park. This would include tax abatements so all of the figures being thrown around must be taken with a grain of salt. Aren't there other 60-acre plots throughout Canton Township that could be used for this purpose?

There are rumors going around that his real intent is to put a shopping center there. Well, if this is done, you might as well kiss downtown Plymouth good bye. Can't these concerned citizens see that the city commissioners are attempting to protect and preserve their interests by, not only keeping a unique aspect to our tri-community, but also looking out for the businesses in the city of Plymouth who might have to compete with even more strip malls.

Fly flag correctly

To the editor:

It is great and very patriotic for people to fly the American flag. But unfortunately some people do not know the proper etiquette in which you display our flag.

Like if left out after dark it should have a light on it, and if it is raining it should be taken in, etc.

If your research department has the complete set of rules, I would appreciate it if you could put it in the paper.

Fire squad did good job

To all members of the Canton firefighters emergency squad:

On Saturday morning, Jan. 12, my wife was required to call on your people due to my experiencing severe chest discomfort and an anxiety attack. I want to express my sincere appreciation to each and every one of you for the outstanding job done by your crew.

The calm approach and demeanor demonstrated by the people dispatched to my aid was a major reason that I, my wife and children were able to get through this situation. I am happy to advise you that all appears well now and that my problem apparently was caused by a sudden increase in blood pressure.

This event has caused me to wonder how many other people who live here in Canton do not really understand and appreciate the excellent job done by your highly qualified members.

I am sure, just like me, many complain when their taxes go up, but I want to assure you I will never complain again about any increase in fire protection taxes for I have experienced the result of these requirements.

Hopefully, neither I nor any other member of my family will be required to call on your people again. But the one thing I truly learned to appreciate as the result of this instance is that, if we must, we are very fortunate to have available such outstanding emergency squad service in Canton. All of you should be truly proud of the services you provide to our community and you are living examples of "unsung heroes."

I hope my note truly conveys the sincere appreciation I have for each and every member of the team that came to my rescue, as I know that is the major reason I have the ability to write this thank you note. Again thank you, thank you and may God bless each and every member of your union and their families.

Colleges exploit students

To the editor:

Doc Doyle has articulated an idea I explored during the years of our daughter's college education.

I would expand upon his suspicions that colleges are purposely making required courses inaccessible and appropriate counseling difficult to obtain in order to extend the time of captivity for their paying audience.

I believe that an investigation of these and similar practices would reveal something akin to fraud. I would invite the state attorney general to research the methods by which academia manages to require that even "A" students must take summer school classes, at the very least, if they wish to graduate within four years.

Pollack featured

"A New Governor: Will It Make a Difference? An Insider's Insight," will be discussed by Democratic State Sen. Lana Pollack's 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 21 at a town hall forum sponsored by the Business and Professional Women's Organization in the Garden City High School cafeteria, 6500 Middlebelt, between Warren and Ford roads. After Pollack's remarks a question and answer session will be held. Admission is free and refreshments will be served. Pollack is working on legislation to provide better enforcement of Michigan's environmental laws, withdraw Michigan from the Midwest Low Level Radioactive Waste Compact, improve school bus safety and provide restrictions over placement of prisoners in community corrections.

Group protests cuts to mental health

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Include parents of Michigan group home residents among those outraged at proposed cuts to the state mental health budget.

Parent groups say safety and services will deteriorate if cuts go into effect.

"One of our major concerns is that there will be cuts in staff," said Alice Saules, of the Plymouth Association for Retarded Citizens.

That not only mean fewer field trips, parents said, but also greater risk for group home residents.

"It means less opportunity to take somebody to the store or out for a hamburger," said Henry Widrich, parents association president for the Macomb-Oakland Regional Center. "But it could also mean having only one person on midnights, instead of two, in a home where there's a behavior problem."

"NATURALLY, safety is our biggest concern," said Saules, whose son lives in a Dearborn Heights group home.

Money could be taken from group homes as a result of the nearly across-the-board 9.2 percent cuts expected to go into effect to balance the state budget.

Rising eligibility requirements for state aid is another concern.

"They're talking about raising the requirement from $30,000 a year to $60,000," Widrich said. "But who makes $60,000?"

Dental service for group home residents is another program at risk, parents said.

Deteriorating service, Widrich said, could also mean deteriorating group home maintenance.

"It could mean group homes won't get painted and that would certainly make neighbors scream," Widrich said.

The Plymouth ARC and MORC cosponsored an emergency parents meeting Sunday in Southfield to discuss the mental health budget.

"We invited over 3,000 people, including state legislators," Saules said.

State Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, said more money for group homes could be forthcoming as soon as this week.

"WE ARE trying to push through a package that wouldn't impact group homes as greatly," said Geake, vice chairman of the state Senate Appropriations Committee, the group that would ultimately decide how much money is set aside for group homes. "Right now, we're working on the corrections budget, once that's decided we should turn our attention to social services."

Whatever the outcome, parents affiliated with Plymouth ARC and MORC said they'll keep fighting for their loved ones.

"I've been at this 40 years," said Widrich, whose late brother-in-law was a longtime group home resident. "I'm not going to stop now."

'We are trying to push through a package that wouldn't impact group homes as greatly.'

Classic sauces dying out

In this modern age of weight-watching and health consciousness, with fads coming and going so fast they make your head spin, velvety sauces are becoming a thing of the past in the kitchen.

Is it obscene to dress a fish with a dollop of orange glaze? My fresh broccoli shivers at the thought of a squeeze of fresh lemon where a glossy egg-enriched hollandaise used to envelope it. The next thing you know, Campbell's will start advocating the use of its Cream of Mushroom Soup as a soup instead of a sauce.

In some of the trendier restaurants around town, you can just about kiss the classic sauces goodbye. Fortunately, there are still a few of the old bastions (like Benno's) who can still do justice to a bordelaise. It might be healthier for me to enjoy an enoki mushroom puree with my filet, but a wild mushroom cream reduction could send shivers down this spine.

Making a great sauce at home always turns into a labor of love. A simple brown gravy, delicately ladled over a mound of hand-mashed potatoes, can make even a plate of fish sticks look good. Al dente pasta shimmers under candlelight, covered with a fresh basil and butter sauce. Even ribs can take on a whole new meaning when slathered with a lip-tingling baste.

OLD TIMERS use a myriad of kitchen tips when making great sauces. The tip is only as good as the recipe it's making, but if you find yourself with lumps, curdling and separating, you might want to remember a few of these suggestions:

- The reason momma's gravy is so good with nary a lump is that when she goes to thicken it with a flour and cornstarch 50/50 disolved in some milk, she always strains the lumps out before she whisks the thickening in. (She uses a small, inexpensive tea strainer).
- Emulsified butter sauces (hollandaise and bernaise) sometimes separate, no matter how careful you have been. If this happens, try removing the pan from the heat and beating in a tablespoon or two of ice-cold water. Better yet, place the icy water in a bowl, add just a little of the separated sauce and beat until it emulsifies again. Then beat the remaining sauce in a steady stream.
- When making a gravy or sauce, a "skin" may develop. If you want to keep the gravy or sauce for an extended period, do not beat the skin in. Instead, remove with a slotted spoon. To help keep the skin from forming, use a stick of butter or margarine and lightly rub the top of the sauce with the end of the stick, allowing a gossamer-thin layer of fat to prevent skinning.
- Tomato-based sauces freeze well. Herbs don't. The freezing of herbs in sauces will intensify and could possibly make the sauce bitter.

If you are looking for a natural addition to your home cooking library and want to learn more about sauces, check out "The Complete Book of Sauces" (Sallie Y. Williams, 1990, MacMillan Publishing, $19.95). This tome is home for more than 300 great sauces, especially the classics, not to mention some great recipes for mole (a spicy Mexican sauce), salsa, dressings and bastes.

A simple brown gravy, delicately ladled over a mound of hand-mashed potatoes, can make even a plate of fish sticks look good.

WAFFLES

They stack up as breakfast or brunch favorite

By Larry Janes
special writer

CRISP AND CRUNCHY on the outside, tender and delicate on the inside.

Drizzled with real maple syrup or slathered with butter. Studded with blueberries or drenched in strawberries.

There's little doubt that waffles will always have the "preferred favorite" status among breakfast and brunch items.

Unfortunately for the history buff, there is little information regarding the how and when of a waffle's birth.

WAFFLES, LIKE their cousins the pancakes, consist of a thin mixture called a pour batter — the amount of liquid and dry ingredients are about equal and are wet enough to be pourable.

Most pour batters are classified as quick breads because they use a leavening other than yeast. However, I have included a recipe for waffle batter using yeast that, in my opinion, makes for an outstanding addition.

Basic ingredients for making homemade waffles include flour, baking powder or soda, salt and occasionally sugar, combined with liquids consisting of milk, oil or melted butter and eggs.

Frequently, the same batter can be used for either pancakes or waffles, the difference being in how the batter is cooked.

I prefer waffles over pancakes, which are soft and pliable and get far too soggy when bombarded with accoutrements.

Waffles are like ridged potato chips. They coddle the syrup into tiny pools. Cooked properly, they let forth a distinctive crunch when cut with the side of a fork and chewed.

SOME FASCINATING utensils have been designed to produce classic waffles. The iron in which waffles are baked — giving them a distinctive gridlike pattern — may be round, square or rectangular.

The most popular waffle irons are electric, while others are designed for use on the stovetop.

Modern technology has developed non-stick coatings that are far superior to their earlier counterparts, when you needed almost a quarter cup of oil and a paintbrush to make sure the waffles would not stick and create havoc.

The more popular non-stick models on the market require no advanced seasoning.

A simple spray of a non-stick coating material such as Pam or Mazola No-Stick is all that is required to have them virtually popping out of the waffler by themselves.

There are still traditional wafflers that do not use a non-stick surface, for the hard-core waffle curmudgeon.

These should be seasoned prior to use, with a ritual of grease, heat and cool, repeated a minimum of three times before using.

A PERSONAL favorite of the Janes Gang is the classic Belgian waffle.

These waffles were the hit of the 1964 World's Fair in New York, and they are thick, with deeper pockets than the traditional waffle.

Classified as more of a dessert waffle, they are usually piled high with strawberries and whipped cream but are equally as delicious with ice cream and fruit.

Since we, in the United States, have our classic wafflers and the Belgians have their own version, it didn't take the Scandinavians long to develop their own type of waffler using five interlocking hearts forming one waffle.

Even the Italians have created their own version, dubbed a pizzelle, that produces a flatter, more cookie-ish version of the regular waffle.

HERE ARE A FEW tips for making waffles.

The pan or appliance should be preheated to the proper temperature before adding the batter.

Electric wafflers will signal proper temperatures with a light. Non-electric wafflers should be heated so that a droplet of water will jump when it hits the surface of the hot pan.

COOK WAFFLES until steam is no longer given off from the sides of the waffler. Waffles are best when served immediately after cooking, for best texture and flavor.

For optimum results, plates should be warmed as well as any syrup, butter or sauce accompaniment. Never stack waffles or they will loose their crispness and become soggy.

Extra waffles can be frozen, well wrapped, and then toasted, but they will never have the same crispy flavor as when freshly made.

For best results when using a traditional soda-leavened batter, allow the batter to sit for up to one hour after mixing.

This technique relaxes the batter and makes it airier, resulting in a more tender product. Buttermilk, buckwheat and sourdough waffles will develop greater character if allowed to stand for the same amount of time.

FROM HER new book "All New Hints from Heloise" (Putnam Publishing, 1989, $9.95), this household authority says that waffle iron grids can accumulate burned-on grease.

To clean metal grids, place an ammonia-soaked paper towel or napkin between them, and leave it overnight. Then brush with steel wool.

If you have non-stick grids, follow manufacturer's instructions so the surface is not damaged.

The author goes on to say that new or recently cleaned grids can stick and for best results should be greased well with an unsalted fat and then preheated thoroughly before using.

IF YOU ARE considering buying a waffler (what a great Father's Day gift idea), non-electric varieties start at around $12-$15.

Electric models start at $39.95 and creep upward, with the priciest having interchangeable grids and cooking surfaces for all types of waffles, pancakes and grilled sandwiches.

A personal recommendation calls for considering a Black Angus waffler. I received one for a wedding present 18 years ago and it's still going strong.

Best to begin with a basic waffler and then, as the need arises, consider buying a Belgian waffler and/or pizzelle.

A historical place to dine

DISHING IT OUT By K.C.

If there's one restaurant around where time seems to have stopped, it's the dining room of the Mayflower Hotel in Plymouth. The dining room today wears the same endearing decor it has had for years — ever since hotel owner Ralph Lorenz commissioned a decorating feat at a time when restaurants did little more than slap on a coat of paint and cover tables with white cloths.

The feat involved photographing paintings in Pilgrim Hall in Massachusetts and then having the photos blown up, retouched and fitted into coves along the dining room walls. The room itself is patterned after one room in the governor's mansion in Williamsburg, Va. The result is a museum-like atmosphere, where scenes of the pilgrims' first years in Massachusetts surround guests.

Its historic theme (even the phone number — 453-1620 — marks a significant date) isn't surprising, given the nature of the city of Plymouth and the Lorenz family's longstanding role in the community. Lorenz believes "history never goes out of style" and he has proven that.

But atmosphere, or ambience, is only one element in dining out. What about the food? Not surprisingly, the Mayflower menu follows a traditional course here too: steak, chicken, fish — mostly scrod, and ribs are served baked, breaded and broiled. A few more contemporary offerings are the cajun scrod and swordfish steaks. Prices hover around $9.95-$12.95, with a few exceptions, for a full meal.

STEAK AND SCROD are the restaurant's specialities, and this month they are offering a combination of both for $9.95. Although the scrod almondine is a specialty, it was our least favorite entree. It was dry, listless, boring and a tad overcooked. The same could be said for the steak, which was cooked beyond the degree ordered.

A chicken picata entree, with mushrooms and artichokes added to the cream sauce, was pretty good — and the best prepared of the four entrees we tried. Alas, a steak and lobster special of the evening looked mouthwateringly fantastic, only to be overcooked.

A seafood appetizer gave us a taste of the scrodettes (scrod rolled in bread crumbs) that were tasty as an appetizer but seemed too bland to take on as an entree, as many apparently do. The shrimp and scallops in the appetizer were much tastier, cooked more appropriately than our main entrees. Accompaniments, a la baked potato, rice or fries, are about average, with the baked potato the best selection.

The all-you-can-eat dinner salads are good, especially with the housemade creamy garlic dressing. Desserts are terrific, most notably the lemon meringue pie and the rice pudding, both served in hearty portions. Next time we may start with dessert.

The service is friendly — and familiar. Several waitresses have worked there for years, as many as 25 years.

BUTTERMILK WAFFLES

1 ¾ cups flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
2 tablespoons sugar
2 cups buttermilk
½ cup butter, melted
2 eggs, separated

Sift together the flour, baking powder, baking soda and sugar. In another bowl, combine buttermilk, butter and egg yolks. Add this to dry ingredients and stir with a whisk until smooth and creamy. Beat egg whites to soft peaks and fold ½ of beaten whites into the batter to lighten. Gently fold in remaining whites. Pour enough batter onto a preheated and coated waffler to spread into corners. Cook for exactly 2 minutes after moment when steam stops escaping from sides of waffler. Serve immediately with warmed butter and syrup.

RAISED WAFFLES
(A Janes Gang favorite)

½ cup warm water
1 package dry yeast
2 cups warmed milk
½ cup (1 stick) butter, melted
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
2 cups flour
2 eggs
¼ teaspoon baking soda

Use a large mixing bowl, as batter will double its original volume. Place water in mixing bowl and sprinkle in the yeast. Let stand to dissolve for 5 minutes. Add the milk, butter, salt, sugar and the flour to the yeast mixture and beat until smooth and well blended. Cover the bowl with plastic wrap and allow to stand overnight at room temperature. Just before cooking the waffles, beat in the eggs and baking soda and stir until well blended. The batter will be thin. Cook waffles according to directions.

KITCHEN GLAMOR
WAFFLE BATTER

Looking for a recipe the pros use? This is so easy and, like the pros said it would be, tastes great.

4 eggs, separated
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 tablespoons butter, melted
1 cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup milk

Combine egg yolks with vanilla and butter. Mix well. Combine flour and salt and stir in egg yolk mixture. Add milk and mix well. Beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Fold ½ beaten whites into batter to lighten, then gently fold in remaining beaten whites. Cook waffles according to directions.

WHOLE WHEAT
GRANOLA WAFFLES

Adding granola makes a chewy, tasty and substantial waffle that soaks up butter and syrup and is great with fresh fruit.

1 ½ cups granola without raisins or dried fruit
1 ¾ cups milk
½ cup (1 stick) butter, melted
2 eggs
1 ½ cups whole wheat flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
¼ teaspoon salt

Stir together the granola and milk and allow to stand for 15 minutes to soften granola. Beat the melted butter and the eggs into the granola mixture. In a separate bowl, stir together the dry ingredients. Add the liquid mixture to the dry ingredients and mix well, using a wire whisk, until smooth. Cook according to waffler directions. If the batter becomes too thick while standing, stir in 2 tablespoons milk.

CLASSIC ITALIAN PIZZELLES

2 cups flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
1 ½ teaspoons ground nutmeg
½ teaspoon ground cardamom
3 eggs
¾ cup sugar
½ cup butter, melted
2 teaspoons vanilla

Combine the dry ingredients and mix well. Combine the wet ingredients and mix well; fold into dry ingredients and mix well. Cook per directions on pizzelle iron.

You don't need a pizzelle iron to make this. It's also great in a standard waffler.

Glen Ellen — farming for flavors

Eleanor and Ray Heald

Glen Ellen Winery is 10 years old. Yet, a visit to the "home" ranch in Sonoma Valley might lead you to believe that nothing changed during the decade.

The visitors, so warmly welcomed to the ranch, depart with the impression of a California boutique winery. But in the 1980s, Glen Ellen's astute marketing strategies developed it into a big winery with a "little" image.

Glen Ellen began its successful 10-year rise in the industry by producing a series of affordable wines. "We call our inexpensive wine Proprietor's Reserve because we want to provide value," explains Mike Benziger, managing-general partner. "We want to sell a wine that everyone can afford to drink daily.

"The Glen Ellen style is determined in the vineyard with innovative farming techniques — watering, fertilizing, canopy control, time of harvest and vineyard selection. We farm for flavors," he says.

THE BENZIGERS do their flavor farming by buying grapes from 240 growers in seven California viticultural areas. "We purchase fruit from 101 growers for our Proprietor's Reserve Chardonnay," remarks Glenn Proctor, director of viticultural operations.

WINE SELECTIONS OF THE WEEK

Glen Ellen Proprietor's Reserve wines are value-priced. The 1989 Proprietor's Reserve White ($5.40) shows attractive floral-spice aromas with flavors reminiscent of gewurztraminer. The 1989 Glen Ellen PR Sauvignon Blanc ($6) highlights aromas of honeydew melon with clean, fresh flavors and an off-dry finish. The 1989 Chardonnay ($7) emphasizes crisp, appley aromas and flavors. The 1989 PR Gamay Beaujolais ($4.20) is a fruit-juicy, light red wine with raspberry and strawberry flavors. The 1988 PR Merlot ($7) shows honest grape flavors without hindrance of overpowering oak.

"By working with so many growers in such diverse areas, we are able to build a wine from the ground up. Chardonnay from Paso Robles helps increase body and full-ness. Santa Maria area fruit improves aging potential, while grapes from Mendocino contribute intensity and approachability."

After harvest, each grower's wine is fermented and stored separately. Growers are invited to taste their wines in comparison to a neighbor's in a quality feedback program. The result is innovative vineyard techniques that improve flavors.

In the winery, each lot of wine is classified according to vineyard origin, style, flavor, and aging potential. Chardonnays from Santa Maria, a cool growing area with lean soils, exhibit apple and lemon-citrus characters that enhance ageability.

Warm region, Paso Robles chardonnay has rich, smooth flavors that add body to the wine. Monterey fruit comes from the cool Salinas Valley known for lean soils that limit vine vigor. In a blend, the Monterey fruit adds apple and pear aromas, plus a rich, spicy character.

WARM DAYS and cool nights in Napa Valley yield chardonnay that increases complexity and structure as well as adding a tart, minty-apple nuance.

Sonoma County grapes contribute a flavor intensity reminiscent of Granny Smith apples.

Glen Ellen uses the principles of "farming for flavors" when producing red wines too. Cabernet sauvignon grown in Paso Robles contributes a cedar aroma, while Santa Maria cabernet gives a berry-cherry quality. Monterey cabernet is peppery while that from the Clarksburg area yields a hint of chocolate and coffee. The people at Glen Ellen use a large flavor palette for making consistently attractive wines for your enjoyment.

Chef Larry gives classic sauce recipes

See Larry Janes' column Taste Buds on Page 1B.

BORDELAISE

3 large shallots, minced
⅔ cup dry red wine (such as red bordeaux)
Salt and fresh ground black pepper to taste
1 teaspoon chopped fresh thyme
4 tablespoons (½ stick) butter
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup brown stock or broth (boiled over high heat until reduced to ⅔ cup)
2 tablespoons beef marrow, cubed, poached 5 minutes in simmering water to cover, then drained
3 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley

Place the shallots, wine, salt, pepper and thyme in a small saucepan and bring to a boil. Continue to boil until reduced by half. Remove from heat and strain through a sieve. Melt 1 tablespoon of the butter in a heavy saucepan over medium heat. Stir in the flour, turn the heat to low and cook until browned, about 2 minutes. Then pour in the stock and continue simmering over low heat for 15-20 minutes, stirring from time to time. Stir in the reduced wine and the marrow and cook several minutes longer. Remove from heat, beat in the remaining butter and stir in the parsley. Correct seasonings, if necessary and serve very hot.

Marrow can be bought from most reputable butchers.

Brrrr. It's cold out there. Time for a super soup supper, don't you think?

Thanks to Freda Bloom of Southfield, this week's Winner Dinner features a hearty chicken vegetable soup that is an ideal way to make use of any vegetables languishing in your refrigerator. It is also a hearty, one-dish meal bound to satisfy those who eat it, not to mention the person doing the dishes.

Bloom is the mother of two grown daughters and works full-time in women's retail. Her hobby is cooking, and she reads cookbooks the way other people read novels. Through her reading and studying, she has developed many new recipes, and finds cooking to be a pleasurable necessity.

Some of her favorite recipes have been compiled into a family cookbook she gave her older daughter. She is now in the process of making another cookbook for her younger daughter who is planning to marry this summer. She enjoys writing and eventually hopes to publish a cookbook of some of her favorite recipes.

THANK YOU, Freda Bloom, for sharing your delicious recipes with us and congratulations on being this week's Winner Dinner Winner. Good luck with your cookbook.

Until next week, all the best and if anyone asks you what you are planning to serve for dinner, just tell them that you have a soupcon that soup's on for dinner this week.

Submit your recipes, to be considered for publication in this column or elsewhere, to: Winner Dinner, P.O. Box 3503, Birmingham 48012. All submissions become the property of the publisher. Each week's winner receives an apron with the words Winner Dinner Winner on it.

Recipes are printed the same size so that you may clip and save them in a three-ring binder. Use a paper punch to make holes in the clipping or paste the clipping on a blank sheet of three-ring notebook paper. Another option is to simply file the clippings in a folder with pockets that will hold them.

HOMEMADE CHICKEN VEGETABLE SOUP

Served piping hot and chock-full of vegetables, this tasty soup can be made in advance and promises to be a heartwarming and filling meal. Freeze any soup that is left over and you will have at least a snack and, depending on the amount, perhaps another meal all ready and waiting.

This recipe makes a thick soup and is a wonderful way to be creative and use up any vegetables you have on hand. If you prefer soup a little thinner, simply add more water or chicken broth. Serves 6-8.

1 can stewed tomatoes
1 small can tomato juice
1 can tomato paste, 6-ounce size
2½-3 cups water
3 pieces chicken, any size, for flavor
2 fresh carrots, diced
1 small can mixed peas and carrots, 8-ounce size, drained
1 onion, diced
1 potato, cubed
1 cup turnips, cubed
1 cup shredded cabbage
1 cup fresh string beans, cut into ½-inch pieces or 1 can string beans, 8-ounce size, drained
½ box frozen lima beans, 10-ounce size
½ box frozen corn, 10-ounce size

Combine the first 12 ingredients in a soup pot and cook over medium heat for 1-1½ hours, depending on your type of stove. Add lima beans, corn and string beans and cook for another ½ hour. Stir frequently to prevent scorching, and season to taste. Remove chicken pieces and take the meat off the bones. Chop meat into bite-sized pieces and return to the soup.

Cool to room temperature and refrigerate. Before serving, skim off any accumulated fat. Serve with crackers.

COTTAGE CHEESE DAIRY MEAL

Good for dessert or little snacks, these filled treats are best when served right out of the oven. Serves 6.

Dough
3½ cups all-purpose flour
1 cup oil
½ cup plus 2 tablespoons milk

Filling
2 cups cottage cheese
2 tablespoons plus 2 teaspoons sugar
½ teaspoon cinnamon
2 teaspoons milk
Dash of nutmeg

Blend the flour, oil and milk. Knead to make a dough and chill for 15 minutes. Roll out dough and divide dough into 6 long pieces. Combine the cottage cheese, sugar, cinnamon, milk and nutmeg. Place a heaping amount of the cheese filling on each section of dough. Fold the strip of dough and pinch the edges together. Place on a greased cookie sheet and bake for 25 minutes at 350 degrees.

Tomatoes retain intense flavor, color when dried

AP — Dried tomatoes provide the flavor and color of fresh tomatoes. They are height-of-season, vine-ripened tomatoes, cut in half and dehydrated, either in the sun or in a dehydrator.

In the drying process, a fresh tomato shrinks to about one 17th of its original volume, producing a small, deep red, wrinkled 'morsel with an intense, sweet tomato flavor and chewy, satisfying texture.

Timber Crest Farms of Healdsburg, Calif., maker of Sonoma Dried Tomatoes, says it takes 17 pounds of fresh tomatoes to make 1 pound of dried tomatoes.

Dried tomatoes are available as minced bits, dried tomato halves or marinated in olive oil. Minced dried tomato bits can be used like bacon bits. Dried tomato halves can be used in pastas, sauces and soups.

ITALIAN GREENS AND VINAIGRETTE ON GOAT CHEESE TOASTS

12 baguette slices, cut ½-inch thick, toasted
2 ounces fresh goat cheese, at room temperature
8 cups crisp torn mixed greens (such as escarole, curly endive, Belgian endive, radicchio, watercress and Italian parsley)
Dried Tomato Vinaigrette (recipe follows)
3 tablespoons walnut pieces, toasted

Spread toasted baguette slices with goat cheese; set aside. In large bowl, toss greens with ⅔ cup of the Vinaigrette. Divide greens among 4 salad plates. Sprinkle with walnuts and serve with cheese toasts. Makes 4 servings.

Dried Tomato Vinaigrette

½ cup olive oil
2½ tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
3 tablespoons red-wine vinegar
2 tablespoons balsamic vinegar
1 ½ teaspoons sugar
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
¼ cup dried tomato bits
2 tablespoons fresh parsley, chopped
2 tablespoons fresh basil, chopped
1 tablespoon garlic, minced
1 tablespoon shallots, minced

Combine olive oils, vinegars, sugar, salt and pepper in a small bowl; whisk to blend thoroughly. Mix in tomato bits, parsley, basil, garlic and shallots. Cover. Set aside for at least 2 hours to blend flavors. Bring to room temperature before serving. Makes about 1 cup.

Note: The vinaigrette can be stored, properly covered, in the refrigerator for up to 1 week.

It's time for hot, hearty meals

It's cold outside, so make your meals hot and hearty.

Good home cooking makes the house smell warm and inviting. It says, "Hey, come in from the cold, forget your worries and relax by the fire."

I have an old free-standing fireplace I bought at a yard sale for $300. My son-in-law spent another $20-$30 on extra chimney pipe to bring it up to code.

It was some of the best money I ever spent. In the winter at our house, activity centers around the fire, not the TV. When I'm home alone, I read and write by the fire. When I have company, or family members are there, we play Scrabble, cards or other games in front of the fire. And most satisfying of all, we eat by the fire.

IF YOU ARE fortunate enough to have a real fireplace, don't put plants in it. Use it for good, crackling, old-fashioned fires. Relaxing and dreaming in front of it will save you dollars you might otherwise have to spend on counseling to ease your tense nerves.

I know a number of people who have fireplaces and never build a fire because they think it's too much trouble or too messy.

Homes are to be lived in and enjoyed. I, for one, can't think of a more uncomfortable place to be than in a house where people are afraid to mess it up a little by enjoying themselves. I don't mind if my guests put their feet on my furniture (of course, I do appreciate it if they take their boots off). But when my kids were growing up, I used to upholster all the furniture with various shades of brown so the chocolate and peanut butter stains wouldn't show. Big pillows on the floor are a great place to have supper occasionally — even if you don't have a roaring fire beside you.

Hot soups and stews served with sandwiches of any kind are great fare for this time of year.

Don't throw out your left-over meat bones. Bones from ham, beef, pork, chicken or other fowl all make great stock for soup. You don't need a recipe. Throw in whatever you like. Potatoes, rice, pasta, beans, onions, any vegetables, including greens, frozen or fresh, can be combined in the stew pot, with seasoning to taste, and simmered into a delightful brew. Some soups are improved with a dollop of cream, some by a sprinkle of white wine. Experiment.

I MAKE SOUP often and I seldom go out and buy anything special to do it. If you can't use your own imagination, call me and tell me what you have on hand and I will tell you how to combine it and make a soup you will love.

Dumplings help too. There are lots of ways to make dumplings. Beat up an egg, add a tiny bit of milk and stir in some flour. Dribble this stiff dough into your boiling pot to make tiny chewy yellow dumplings, or make big fluffy ones by simply following the recipes on a box of Bisquick or Jiffy Mix.

You also can make use of the ready-to-bake Bisquick or rolls of bread dough found in the dairy section of your supermarket. Break it off in little chunks, drop it into the boiling soup and allow it to cook until done in the center.

Don't be timid. Anyone can make good soup. Experiment a few times and you will soon earn a reputation as the best cook in town. Just ask your family.

Here are a couple of simple soups that are easy and inexpensive to make.

CREAM OF ANYTHING SOUP

(Suggestions: Corn, broccoli, spinach, cauliflower, mixed vegetables, cabbage, asparagus, dried beef, hamburger or clams.)

Cook your chosen ingredients until tender. Drain, chop, and set aside.

Mix together:
1 tablespoon minced onion
4 chicken bouillon cubes (Knorr is best)
2 cups milk (or non-dairy substitute)
1 chopped garlic clove
1 cup sour cream (or ¼ cup margarine or butter)
Salt and pepper to taste

Simmer (do not boil) for 15 minutes, then add your vegetable, fish or meat. Simmer to heat thoroughly. Sprinkle with grated cheese — Parmesan or other.

HAMBURGER OR SAUSAGE SOUP
1 pound ground beef or chopped Polish sausage (if using hamburger, cook loosely until brown).

Drain off grease.

Place meat in pot with:
1 bay leaf
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon pepper
2 quarts water
Dash of rosemary
1 cup canned tomatoes
½ cup raw carrots, cut up
1 large onion, chopped
1 cup diced potatoes

Bring to a boil, cover and slowly simmer until vegetables are cooked.

You may call Gundella at 427-1072 for any special bread recipe, such as onion, cheese or herb, that you want but cannot find.

Almond topping paired with pears

BAKED PEARS WITH ALMONDS
4 large ripe pears, pared, cored and cut into wedges
½ cup light brown sugar, packed
2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground cloves
3 tablespoons extra-light olive oil
½ cup sliced unblanched almonds
Plain non-fat yogurt, to taste (optional)

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Lightly brush a 2-quart shallow baking dish with oil. Arrange the pears in even rows in the baking dish.

In a separate bowl, combine the brown sugar, flour, cinnamon and cloves; stir to blend. Add the 3 tablespoons oil and ½ cup almonds. Stir with a fork until well blended. Sprinkle over the pears in an even layer. Bake in a 350-degree oven until the pears are tender and topping is golden, about 30 minutes. Serve warm with a spoonful of yogurt, if desired. Makes 8 servings.

Stay away from a la mode

Lois Thieleke
home economist, Cooperative Extension Service

Food and nutrition issues have become a national pastime, with the battle cry of "You are what you eat!"

Food, of course, enables our bodies to operate and function by providing energy, building blocks to support growth and repair of tissues, and providing nutrients to keep our systems running smoothly. The role of nutrition from the foods we eat helps us to reach our potential for growth and development and maintenance of good health. The bottom line is to choose more nutritious foods for better health.

Avoid foods such as: a la mode, au gratin, basted, bisque, buttered and escalloped, when checking recipes or eating out. Casseroles, pan-fried, sauteed or creamed also could spell trouble for the health conscious.

High-fat soups include cream soups, chunky soups and peas with ham. A medium-fat soup choice would be beef noodle, black bean, chicken noodle or chicken vegetable. Lower in fat choices are chicken bouillon, vegetable, vegetarian, gazpacho or onion.

CREAM SOUPS are the most common ingredient in any casserole and not great nutritionally. Beware of the high sodium content in most canned soups. For a casserole opt for the low-sodium version or make your own casserole base. Replace cream soups with chicken stock, wine or a combination and thicken with cornstarch or arrowroot.

Add your own mushrooms and you have an unbeatable cream of mushroom base for a casserole. For a richer soup base, combine non-fat dry milk with the chicken stock.

High-fat meat choices are bacon, tuna in oil, rack of lamb, luncheon meats and spareribs. A medium-fat choice would be eggs, ham, veal or beef roast. Even lower in fat are chicken or turkey, lean beef, fish, scallops, oysters and crab. Basting any meat product with butter adds fat. Instead, baste with tomato or lemon juice, stock or wine. Use a non-stick spray or non-stick skillet to avoid adding more fat.

High-fat dairy products include American cheese, blue, Brie, Swiss, brick and cheddar. Medium-fat cheeses are cream ed cottage cheese, sour cream, feta, mozzarella, Lorraine or Alpine Swiss. Choose instead a lower fat such as Laughing Cow, skim milk, one percent milk, low-fat cottage cheese or yogurt.

Substitute Neufchatel for cream cheese, and use cold skimmed evaporated milk with a touch of honey and vanilla for a super whipped topping for desserts. It takes longer to whip but the nutritional gains are worth the extra time.

RECIPES CALLING for sour cream or mayonnaise will usually allow you to substitute plain, low-fat yogurt or low-fat cottage cheese that has been blended smooth. This makes a low-calorie treat for baked potatoes. Add a few chives or grated Parmesan cheese for a taste delight.

Other high-fat food choices are avocados, butter, mayonnaise, margarine, almonds, pecans, cashews, coconut, olives, oils and shortening. Medium-fat choices are Brazil nuts, peanuts and salad dressings. Even lower in fat are sunflower seeds and reduced-calorie salad dressings. Use safflower oil, corn oil or olive oil for salads or cooking. They are valuable sources of polyunsaturated and monounsaturated fats.

Points to consider when buying a margarine or spread: The first ingredient listed on the carton should be a liquid vegetable oil. Always look for a higher percentage of polyunsaturated fat to saturated. A ratio of 3:1 or 2:1 is good. Choose tub margarine over stick. The tub has less fat because it is made with water, and less saturated fat is needed for soft brands.

Try legumes (dried beans and peas) as a main dish or a meat substitute for a very high-nutrition, low-fat, low-cost meal. Use brown rice instead of white, whole wheat pasta, and whole grain crackers instead of saltine.

When baking, use a little more vanilla and spices in a recipe. This will help cut down on sugar. The vanilla and spices give the impression of sweetness and have very few calories. Use some healthy substitutes to make your favorite recipes even better and more nutritious.

Malted milk balls add crunch

AP — Put away your straw and enjoy a square malt. These bars, dotted with crunchy bits of malted milk balls, make a scrumptious snack.

CHOCOLATE MALT BARS
⅓ cup margarine or butter, softened
½ cup sugar
1 egg
⅓ cup instant malted milk powder
¼ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
1¼ cups all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 cup malted milk balls, coarsely chopped
Quick Fudge Frosting (optional)
⅓ cup malted milk balls, coarsely chopped (optional)

In a large mixer bowl beat margarine or butter and sugar with an electric mixer on medium speed until light and fluffy. Add egg, malted milk powder, milk and vanilla. Beat for 2 to 3 minutes more or until thoroughly combined.

In a small bowl stir together flour and baking powder. With mixer on low speed, gradually add flour mixture to sugar mixture, beating for 2 to 3 minutes or until thoroughly combined. Fold in 1 cup malted milk balls. Spread into a greased 9-by-9-by-2-inch baking pan. Bake in a 350-degree oven for 25 to 30 minutes or until a toothpick inserted near the center comes out clean. Cool bars on a wire rack. Frost cooled bars with Quick Fudge Frosting and sprinkle with ⅓ cup malted milk balls, if desired. Makes 16 bars.

Quick Fudge Frosting

In a mixer bowl combine 2½ cups sifted powdered sugar and ¼ cup unsweetened cocoa powder. Add margarine or butter, 3 tablespoons boiling water, and ½ teaspoon vanilla. Beat with an electric mixer on low speed until combined. Beat 1 minute on medium speed. Cool 20 to 30 minutes or until spreadable.

Rocks defense Raiders

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Of all the things Plymouth Salem's basketball team does well, its defense is the one most easily overlooked, according to North Farmington coach Tom Negoshian.

"There's no question they're big and they're good," said Negoshian after Salem routed the Raiders 84-63 Saturday afternoon at North, "but I don't think people give (Salem coach) Bob (Brodie) enough credit for the defense they play.

"That's where they're an exceptional ballclub. Yes, they do all of the other things, but they are very tough defensively."

The Rocks used their defensive ability to build a 22-10 lead in the first quarter and set a pattern of dominance for the entire game. Salem frustrated North's shooters early while getting the quick outlet for transition baskets.

"They did a nice job on us defensively in the first half," Negoshian said. "They do a very good job rebounding defensively. They get the ball out and run very well.

"I'VE ALWAYS said they're probably the class of the league. They have good players, they're well prepared and they play very hard."

The Rocks, who finish 11-1 in league play and are 15-2 overall, will be the top seed and host for a first-round game in the Western Lakes Activities Association playoffs Friday night.

North, which plays a makeup game Tuesday with Farmington Hills Harrison, is 4-6 in the WLAA and 6-10. The Raiders must beat visiting Harrison to qualify for the playoffs as the No. 8 seed.

"We're playing probably as well as we have all year, which hopefully will carry over to the tournaments," Brodie said. "Now it's compressed into a one-game season. Every game is meaningful, and you have to be ready every game.

"But right now (Livonia) Stevenson is the defending champ, not Salem. We're a good team but we've felt the sting of defeat, and we have to come in focused or we know it could happen again."

The Rocks were upset by Stevenson in the league final last year, and the Spartans are the only WLAA team to beat Salem this year.

IN THE LAST pre-tournament tuneup, all-state forward Jake Baker scored 11 of his 14 points in the first quarter Saturday, but teammate Mike Mulder had a game-high 24 to lead the Rocks. The senior guard hit three of his four triples in the second half.

"Mike has gone through some hard times," Brodie said. "He scored 28 against Northville and has not been a scoring threat in the last eight or nine games. But it looks like he's back."

Salem stretched its lead to 41-24 at halftime with a balance of scoring. Furthermore, North's leading scorers, Chris White and Jon Sturtz, went scoreless in the first half.

"That might be my fault," Negoshian said, "because I started the seniors and took (Sturtz) out of his rhythm and he has been starting."

Dean Pennala had six of his 11 points and Bill Chwalik six of his 10 to lead the Raiders in the first half. White ended up as North's leading scorer, with all 12 of his points coming in the third quarter.

"They're their main offensive people and we made sure we stepped to those people," said Brodie of White and Sturtz. "It was not so much their ineptness at scoring but our defense.

"TRADITIONALLY, the good teams you see at every level are great defensive teams. We put a lot of points on the board, but you win with defense."

John Hoffmeyer added 12 points, K.C. Kirkpatrick nine and Chris Tebben eight for the Rocks, who saw their lead trimmed to 62-47 after being outscored 23-21 in the third quarter. North's attempt to rally was helped by a pair of White triples.

Salem, leading 67-52 early in the fourth, outscored the Raiders 17-5 to win going away.

Canton stops Chargers

Plymouth Canton used excellent first-half defense and fourth-quarter free throw shooting to fend off visiting Livonia Churchill in a Saturday afternoon basketball game, 61-52.

The contest was postponed from Friday night because the Plymouth-Canton schools were not in session Friday due to bad weather.

The Chiefs finish 8-3 in the Western Lakes Activities Association and take a 10-7 overall record into tournament play Friday.

Depending on the outcome of Tuesday's Farmington Hills Harrison-North Farmington game, Canton could be the No. 2-seed behind Plymouth Salem or the No. 4-seed behind Salem, Livonia Stevenson and Harrison.

The Chargers, who play a makeup game Tuesday with Farmington, are 5-5 in the league, 9-7 overall and have qualified for the playoffs.

"WE'VE BEEN struggling the last couple of weeks," Canton coach Dave Van Wagoner said. "This is a pretty good win for us, because we think Churchill is a pretty good basketball team.

"Our goal all along has been to win the league championship, and today's win is a good way to head into the league tournament. If we play good defense, I think we're a very capable team."

It was defense that got the Chiefs started right Saturday. They held Churchill to six first-quarter points and led 35-16 at halftime.

"All we talked about before the game was defense," Van Wagoner said. "We played some good man-to-man defense, and I think we frustrated them a bit."

Derrick McDonald scored 10 of his 18 points in the first half, and Mike Stafford had all seven of his points before halftime.

The Chargers rallied in the third quarter and outscored Canton 22-8 to get within 43-38. Churchill's 6-foot-9 center Randy Calcaterra scored half of his game-high 24 points in that period.

"THEY POSTED him on the block, and he hit a lot of nice turnaround baskets," Van Wagoner said. "I think Calcaterra is really a fine basketball player who can run and jump well."

Canton made 12 of 14 free throws in the fourth quarter, however, and held off the Chargers with an 18-14 edge in scoring. Kevin Holmes was four of four from the line in the fourth and Tony Coshatt three of four. For the game, the Chiefs were 23 of 31 and Churchill eight of 12.

"I told the kids 'It's money time now. We have to play some D, take our time on offense and make our free throws.' And that's what we did," Van Wagoner said.

Brett Howell followed McDonald in scoring with nine points and, according to Van Wagoner, played a great defensive game against Churchill's Mike Thomas, holding him to one point.

Coshatt added eight points and grabbed 14 rebounds, and Karl Wukie also had seven points. Scott Bowser scored 10 points and Marcus Sarnovsky nine for Churchill.

Mercy 2-peats in volleyball

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Farmington Hills Mercy managed to subdue an inspired Livonia Ladywood opponent and win its second straight Catholic League volleyball championship Wednesday.

The Marlins, who defeated the Blazers in last year's final and have beaten their rival three times this season, won the first game 15-10 but trailed 11-3 in the second.

Mercy (37-4-2) rallied to tie the score at 11. The Blazers edged in front 12-11, but the Marlins surged again to take the title with a 15-13 victory.

"It made for a dramatic match," Mercy coach Tim DeBeliso said. "From a purist point of view, it was not a pretty match, but we rose to a level needed to win the game.

"TO A COACH on the bench, you think 'We're going three here,' but maybe the kids had more confidence in themselves than the coach. It got to 11-9 and then it was anybody's ballgame."

Ladywood, making its fourth consecutive appearance in the final and having won in 1988-1989, learned from its earlier losses (15-4/15-3 and 15-8/15-5) and was well prepared.

"We had looked over the tapes and found out where some of their weaknesses were," Ladywood coach Tom Teeters said.

"We're going up against a team that has more well-rounded talent than we have, and the only way we can beat them is to outsmart them. We have to find out where we can single block and where their weak zones are along the net."

Unforced errors cost the Blazers (39-10-2) in the first game with the score tied 10-10 and a combination of hitting and serve reception miscues caused Ladywood to lose it momentum late in the second, according to Teeters.

"We knew they were not out of it (when the Blazers led 11-3), but our problem has always been inconsistency," he said. "We still lack in passing and consistency, but that's improved as our sophomore players have improved."

DeBeliso acknowledged Ladywood errors helped the Marlins, but he credited his team's defense for turning the second game in its favor. Maureen Paulin led the Marlins with 11 digs in the match. Nora Hand had 10 and Shannon Goff eight.

"WE HAD some great defense at the end, and I thought that was the deciding factor," DeBeliso said. "We were able to get the ball up off the floor, get an attack and force them to play defense."

And it took that kind of defensive effort to overcome the Blazers, who played their best match of the season against the league's premier power.

"They were tremendous," DeBeliso said. "They were at the top of their game.

"That was the most emotional and intense game I've seen from a Ladywood team in a while. Ladywood had total control (in the second game), and we were back on our heels."

The Marlins began their comeback behind the serving of Nora Hand. Mercy got timely hitting from Maureen Paulin and good back row play from Goff and Hand, DeBeliso said, and suddenly the Marlins had a 14-12 lead.

"We played pretty good volleyball, too," DeBeliso said. "I don't want to discount our effort. I thought we rose to the level we needed in a very high-pressure situation.

"It's a tremendous thing for Mercy High School and these kids. You don't think about (winning the league championship) at the start of the season, but when it's all said and done you have a great sense of pride in what these young people have done."

MERCY WAS not at the top of its game but still performed well enough to prevail under trying circumstances, even if the individual statistics don't reflect it, according to DeBeliso.

Paulin had seven kills and was 25-of-27 attacking, Karen Pinkerton five and 20-of-23, Gail Murie three and 15-of-20. Murie also had 10 blocks, Laure DeMattia six and Pinkerton four.

"They don't sound like the kind of stats that tell you we won the game," DeBeliso said. "But sometimes it's more perseverance and determination that win a match for you."

DeBeliso praised his team's serving, a team strength and area consistency all season. Hand (15-of-15), Pinkerton (11-of-11) and Murie (6-of-6) were perfect on the service line, and Hand, Pinkerton and Paulin (11-of-12) had two aces apiece.

Val Adzima was able to keep the Marlins off balance with her short-serve delivery, according to Teeters, who attributed much of Ladywood's better showing against the Marlins to the improved play of sophomore setter/hitter Mary Jo Kelley.

Keli Haeger led the Blazers with nine kills and was 17-of-22 hitting. Rebecca Willey recorded six blocks and six kills, and Jannel Hemme blocked six Mercy spikes.

Julie Wilson was Ladywood's top defensive player with eight digs, and she was 14-of-17 on serve reception. Liz Gunn added four digs, Kelley three kills and Adzima two aces.

THERE IS A parallel between last year and this season. Mercy defeated the Blazers four consecutive times, the last in the league final, before Ladywood upset the Marlins in the Class A semifinals.

Teeters hopes history will repeat itself, but the Blazers will have to get past powerhouse teams such as Livonia Churchill and/or Stevenson before that meeting could take place.

"We've taken a similar path," he said. "We've had two good matches with them and got blown out once. If we have two good matches, we can figure out something that works. Hopefully, we'll see them again down the road.

"But it still comes down to execution, and again we have to play good teams before we get to Mercy."

Chiefs crush WLW

Plymouth Canton drilled visiting Walled Lake Western in the last two games Wednesday to take a four-game volleyball victory.

After the teams exchanged 15-11 wins with the Chiefs winning the first, Canton dominated the Warriors 15-6 and 15-5, improving its record to 4-7.

"We finally came together as a team and played well," Canton coach Jacque Getz said.

The Chiefs accomplished the victory without sophomore middle hitter Stephanie Gray, who was ill and missed the match.

But Lorena Sanford and Karrie Drinkhan played very well, according to Getz, and helped Canton compensate for Gray's absence.

Heidi Klaes registered five kills and Jenny Davis four. Renee Dory had 11 digs on defense and Sanford six.

Kavanaugh returns to coach Ladywood

By Brad Emons
staff writer

With an overall record of 245-42, two state Class B championships and two runner-up finishes, Ed Kavanaugh established a strong foundation as Livonia Ladywood's basketball coach.

But Kavanaugh left coaching three years ago, resigning as Schoolcraft College's part-time athletic director to devote time to his building endeavors, his new family and his full-time teaching job.

What appeared to be a permanent sabbatical ended abruptly last week when Kavanaugh was named Ladywood's basketball for the second time.

He succeeds Toni Gasparovic, who resigned after a rocky two-year tenure and 17-22 record.

"I don't know much about last year and I really don't care to know," Kavanaugh said. "I did not attend one full game last year, but I missed coaching. It's the adrenaline you get from coaching. It's the game-time feeling that you can't replace. You can't get it out of your blood, no coach ever does."

KAVANAUGH wanted to make it clear that he isn't returning because his daughter, Kelly, played as a freshman on the Ladywood JV squad last year.

"I have a daughter in the program, but that has nothing to do with it," he said.

Sister Mary Alexander, Ladywood's principal said Kavanaugh is involved with a fund-raising project for the school's proposed new gymnasium where ground-breaking is expected to take place in mid-March.

"We were looking for somebody and I said to him, 'Are you interested?'" said Sister Alexander. "We hired him because we're building a new gym and he's part of the development project. He's going to oversee much of the building process because he's been involved in that business."

Sister Alexander, now in her sixth year as Ladywood's principal, has worked with Kavanaugh in the past and has nothing but high praise for the new coach.

"He's very cooperative, no matter what I ask he'll always do," Sister Alexander said. "He's fair with the girls and he works hard. He's tactful, he's nice to get along with and he's friendly. And he's good at it (coaching). He's one of the best."

KAVANAUGH, a math instructor at Schoolcraft, spent two years as coach of the Ocelots and two years as athletic director before stepping down.

He was succeeded as Schoolcraft women's coach by Jack Grenan and at A.D. by Marty Nowak.

Ken Bechard, an assistant under Kavanaugh at Ladywood, coached one year at the varsity level, going 16-7, winning the Class district and regional titles in 1988.

10-pin alley

Women excel at bowling, too

THROUGHOUT THE YEARS, women have excelled in many sports. However, few other sports offer women the chance to compete equitably with the men. The lady bowlers have proven many times they can be skilled at the alley.

Many of us are familiar with the top women bowlers such as Aleta Sill, Cheryl Daniels and Dede Davidson who have been highly visible on national television. There are also plenty of not-so-famous names in our own backyard who have proven their skill on the lanes of Observerland.

There are scores reported every week in this column from the ladies classic leagues and house leagues which are nothing short of fantastic. Two local associations, the Detroit Women's Bowling Association and the Tri-County Women's Bowling Association, easily rank first in the nation numerically with the Greater Detroit Bowling Association at about 88,000 members. Fifty-six of these ladies averaged 190 or more last season.

Most of the ladies bowl in the classic leagues, with the Luxury All-Star Bowlerettes leading the way with an 184.8 average. Other top leagues include the King Louie Right Approach (184.2); Wonderland Scratch Trio (183.4); the Arena Pro Shop Ladies Majors (182.4); the Super Sunday 7,000 (179.5); the Molson Classic (179.3); the Country Lanes Ladies Classic (174.9); and the Wonderland Ladies Senior House League (170.7).

IT WAS ONLY last week when the Detroit All-Star Ladies doubles tournament took place at the Bonanza Lanes. The top women bowlers were paired with some of the groups alumni which included many stars of yesteryear and members of the Hall of Fame such as Anita Cantaline, Mary Mohacsi, Gerry Ritter, Kathy Haislip and Penny Behn.

The winning pair was Darlene Morrow of Canton and Sue Veach of Chesterfield. Kathy Haislip of West Bloomfield gained 11th with a 675 series.

High games of the event were registered by Mary Rose Allese (258), Veach (246) and Deb Blakely (241).

• The Michigan Women's Senior Tournament is slated for May 8-19 at the Airport Lanes in Jackson. The events are singles and doubles with age divisions at 55-59, 60-64, 65-59, and 70-over. The tournament is WIBC sanctioned and the entries close March 2. For more information, call 453-1718.

• If you look closely at this week's highlights, you will see fine scores from our ladies such as Cheryl Anderson, 268; Judy Hill, 257; Lucy Shaffer, 269; Alicia Mazzei, 267; Barb Christiansen, 254; Donna O'Neil, 267; Marge Peterson, 258; Blandine Suppelsa, 278; Kathy Miller, 256; Cathy Ringer, 254; Charlene Jaskolski, 278; Pat Telmos, 672; Mary Gisslander (series), 672; Chris Calvin, 670; Tamika Glenn, 732; and Michelle LaRouche, 622.

• Country Lanes in Farmington Hills is now hosting the American Legion State Tournament Feb. 16 through March 24. Over 200 five-man teams will be competing from all over the state with competition being held on Saturdays (noon and 3 p.m. squads), while the singles and doubles are on Sundays with squads at 8:30 a.m., 11:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Spectators are welcome and scorekeepers are wanted.

JC experience benefits gridder

By Dan O'Meara

Zaim Cunmulaj
Division I player

The two years Zaim Cunmulaj spent at Grand Rapids Junior College was time well spent.

The payoff came recently in the form of a football scholarship to East Carolina University, a Division I school in Greenville, N.C.

Cunmulaj was a three-sport star at North Farmington High School in 1988-89 and distinguished himself as the noseguard on the GRJC football team.

It was during a game last fall against the College of DuPage the opposing coach noticed Cunmulaj and recommended him to his friend, East Carolina coach Bill Lewis.

Lewis scouted the Farmington Hills player in person when GRJC played DuPage again last November in the Midwest Bowl on Thanksgiving Day.

"He said he liked my aggressiveness and quickness," Cunmulaj said.

"TO TELL you the truth, I had never heard of (East Carolina) until this year but when I went there for a visit I really liked it. When I left here (in January), it was snowing and down there it was 65 degrees."

The 6-foot-2, 250-pound Cunmulaj had offers from Eastern Michigan, Western Michigan, Youngstown State, Grand Valley State and Toledo, but the big-time schedule the Pirates play had more appeal.

East Carolina's first game next season, on Aug. 31 against Illinois, will be televised by ESPN. The Pirates will play Syracuse, Pittsburgh, Louisiana Tech, Temple, South Carolina, Cincinnati, Tulane, Memphis State and Central Florida.

"I decided to go and play with the big boys," said Cunmulaj, who earned JuCo All-American honors on defense. "I think there's a lot more exposure.

"I'm glad I came here," he said. "I've got my grades up to a three-point. I'm glad I did it now."

North football coach Jim O'Leary never had any doubt about Cunmulaj's athletic abilities, nor his academic abilities once he applied himself.

"In high school, Zaim had the capability, he didn't have the grades," O'Leary said. "He had good size, good agility. He was aggressive, tough and hard-nosed. He proved what kind of athlete he was in wrestling.

"He was intense. Football was something he loved. He thrived on contact. He used to hurt our kids in practice. In three years, I never saw him get hurt. He either had a high tolerance for pain, or he took good care of himself.

"IT WAS just a matter of wanting to go to school and taking it seriously. His priorities in high school were athletics, and he would be the first one to admit it."

Cunmulaj has also improved his physical stature in two years at GRJC, adding 35 pounds to his playing weight of 215 in high school.

"I never thought he would get as big as he is," O'Leary said. "But he's put in a lot of time on the weights, and every ounce of it is muscle."

Cunmulaj played offensive tackle and, after starting his senior season at linebacker, was moved back to defensive tackle to fill a need. As a heavyweight wrestler, he finished third in the state tournament, and he also was the state discus champion in track and field.

Cunmulaj wrestled for GRJC last year and earned All-American honors, finishing seventh in the national tournament. He isn't wrestling this year and is concentrating on maintaining his weight for football, hoping to add another 10 pounds.

CUNMULAJ IS a good example of a student-athlete who seized the opportunity presented by the JuCo system and made it work to his benefit.

He excelled in football, wrestling and track at North but didn't have the academic record to attract athletic recruiters from four-year colleges when he was a senior.

Cunmulaj has improved his grades at GRJC and plans to earn a degree in physical education at East Carolina.

CC's Barbara picks N'wood

Jon Barbara, the All-Observer first-team fullback from Redford Catholic Central, signed a national letter of intent Wednesday with Northwood Institute.

Barbara joins CC teammate Gary Gurgold, who last week signed with Northwood, an independent team that is affiliated with the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics.

Barbara, who gained 788 yards and scored 14 touchdowns last fall for the Class AA state champion Shamrocks, turned down scholarship offers from Ferris State, Wayne State and St. Joe's College (Indiana). He also had opportunities to walk on at Western Michigan, Eastern Michigan, Michigan State, Toledo and Bowling Green.

Northwood is located in Midland, about a half hour northwest of Saginaw.

"I had a lot of chances to walk on, but Northwood was a lot like CC in many different ways," Barbara said. "I really liked the coaching staff, the people and campus. Everything was great. I hope to go to Northwood next year and make an impact and let people know I can play football. Walking on at a Division I school doesn't guarantee anything.

"(The recruiting process) is tough if you don't know what's going on. My mom (Sandy), dad (John) and brother Chris helped me out and have been very patient along with (CC) coach (Tom) Mach."

Area wrestling teams eliminated

Observerland's final two survivors were eliminated Wednesday in the state Class A team wrestling regionals at Plymouth Salem.

Redford Catholic Central bowed out with a 21-8 dualmeet record after falling to perennial power Temperance-Bedford in the Region VIII finals at Salem, 39-24.

CC advanced to the final with a 53-12 win over Romulus, while Bedford pinned Southgate Anderson, 58-12, in the other semifinal.

Meanwhile, Livonia Franklin (11-3-1) lost in the semifinals of Region VII (also at Salem) to Novi, 31-25. In one semifinal, eventual winner Belleville defeated Brighton, 36-22.

Belleville captured the title with a 36-24 win over Novi.

Both Bedford and Belleville advance to the Class A team semifinals Friday in Battle Creek.

"It was one of those things, I knew it was going to happen," CC coach Mike Rodriguez said following the loss to Bedford. "We haven't had a great season, but our guys gave a real good effort."

MARIO SICICLUNA (103), Rusty Fowler (119), Jason Krueger (160) and Dan Kelly (171) all won their matches against Bedford. Heavyweight Rob Sylvester picked up six points when he went unopposed. CC's Dan Suhadja (189) tied Jeremy Miller at 4-4.

Fowler, Krueger, Kelly, Suhadja and Sylvester each won their matches against Romulus, along with teammates Adam Gianatassio (112), by void; Phil Bache (125), Dan Rieple (145), Jim Whall (152) and heavyweight Aaron Babicz (by void).

Franklin had its chances to beat Novi, winning six of 13 matches. The Patriots lost 12 points at 130 (by void) and 135 pounds (a pin).

Franklin's Bobby Johnson (heavyweight) and Brian Whetstone (189) each picked up six points with pins. Brian Poisson (171) gained four by a major decision, while Nick Kostakis (125), Jesse Shakarian (119) and Derek Rowland (103) all won by decisions.

"We had a lot of close matches," Franklin assistant coach Frank Vilardi said.

SC cagers lose Fyke to injury

More bad news hit the Schoolcraft College men's basketball team Wednesday.

The Ocelots, who lost four players to academic problems in January, lost another to injury in their game at Henry Ford Community College. Mitch Fyke, from Plymouth Canton, whose three-pointer at the buzzer beat Alpena CC earlier this season, dislocated his shoulder and will be out for the remainder of the season.

Without Fyke, the Ocelots' chances of catching Henry Ford in the second half — they trailed 43-41 at halftime — were diminished. They never did, losing 89-78.

The loss left SC with a 13-13 overall record, 4-9 in the Eastern Conference. The Hawks are 5-8 in the conference and are now a game ahead of SC in the chase for the sixth — and final — Michigan Community College Athletic Association playoff spot.

The Ocelots got 24 points from Randy Watters and 21 from Kwesi McGill. Fyke scored 13 before going to the sidelines. Jake Tuttle's 19 points were best for Henry Ford.

SC'S WOMEN'S team ran in to problems with fouls and turnovers Wednesday, and the result was a 92-79 home-ourt loss to Henry Ford.

Three Lady Ocelots fouled out of the game; the team committed 33 fouls. The Lady Hawks converted 28 of 41 from the free-throw line to 13 of 20 for SC.

The Lady Ocelots' 33 turnovers didn't help their cause, either. They trailed 48-38 at halftime.

Julie Sawicki scored 22 points and Leeann Lightfoot 21 to lead SC. Tricia Lucas added 12 points and 10 rebounds.

● CHAMPION SKIER
Plymouth resident Sharon Henry captured first place Feb. 3 in the Plymouth All-American Ski Series at Mount Holly. Henry, 27, won the women's novice class competition.

Henry, a supervisor employed by the University of Michigan, learned to ski 15 years ago and has been racing for two years. The All-American Ski Series is the largest series of recreational races in the nation.

Participants accumulate points toward end-of-season awards, including a free trip to the national finals in Keystone, Colo. The series is sanctioned by the United States Recreational Ski Association.

● COLLEGE SOCCER
Randy Balconi of Plymouth has been elected captain of the Wittenberg College men's soccer team for the 1991 season. Balconi, who will be a senior next fall, played soccer at Plymouth Salem High School and was a member of the All-Observer team in 1987.

● GYMNASTS EXCEL
Doug Stibel of Canton won top honors in the boys Class I-II level (ages 13-18) during invitational competition Feb. 9 with 51.60 points.

Stibel and other members of the Livonia All-Around Gymnastics Center competed against boys from five Michigan teams in the optional category. All five team members placed in the top 10.

Stibel, a Class I gymnast, placed first in four events: still rings (8.2), vault (9.5), parallel bars (9.1) and high bar (8.2). He finished second on pommel horse and floor exercise with scores of 7.5 and 8.9, respectively.

Justin Semion of Canton, a Class II gymnast, earned fifth with a score of 38.8. He was third in rings (6.1) and vault (8.6) and fourth on high bar (4.8) and floor exercise (8.1).

Matt Friday of Plymouth, a Class II gymnast, placed ninth with a 28.4 score. He was fourth in vault (8.3), ninth in floor (6.1) and 10th in pommel horse, rings and bars.

Randy Watters
Schoolcraft leader

When it comes to shooting the basketball, Randy Watters has an accuracy comparable to the Patriot Missile.

Usually on target and never off by much, the 6-foot-4½ sophomore forward from Milford Lakeland has quietly become one of Schoolcraft College's all-time prolific scorers, ranking second only to Carlos Briggs, the former SC All-American who went on to star at Baylor.

"He can flat-out shoot," Schoolcraft coach Dave Bogataj said. "He's quiet, unassuming and not flashy, but he puts it in at great percentage."

The numbers back up Bogataj's claim. In two seasons, Watters has scored a total of 1,163 points.

In 24 games this season, he leads the Ocelots in all shooting categories — scoring (24.1 points per game), field goal accuracy (158 of 239 for 66 percent), three-point shooting (58 of 114 for 51 percent), and free throws (38 of 47 for 82 percent).

And don't get the impression he's just a gunner.

Watters also leads the team in total assists with 85.

"I've got the green light, when it's there I'll take it," Watters said. "I just concentrate on hitting the rim. When I shoot, I want it to go in."

WATTERS RECALLS the time when Bogataj sent him to the bench for not shooting.

"I bricked my first shot and I didn't shoot it for about 7½ minutes," Watter said. "Before I shoot, I have to be warmed up body-wise. It's hard to tell when that happens, but I was always taught not to be selfish and that you have to pass it."

Watters is getting passing grades throughout the Eastern Conference of the Michigan Community College Athletic Association where he is chasing Highland Park's Jose Lewis for the scoring lead.

He has been named Eastern Conference Player of the Week three different times this season.

"His greatest value, when he came here as a freshman, was his work ethic," Bogataj said. "He's a leader by example, not by voice."

Watters, who drives 45 minutes each way to Schoolcraft's campus from his home in Highland Township, more or less found his new school by accident.

"I never saw him play in high school," said the Schoolcraft coach. "Steve Emert, the Walled Lake Central coach, called me. He had never seen him play, but had heard about him."

Watters made the Schoolcraft connection only after his girlfriend's mother, a secretary at Walled Lake Central, had called Bogataj on his behalf.

"I HAD THIS round-faced kid who looked about 14 years old, but he was 6-4," Bogataj remembers. "He came to a game with his parents and he came to a couple of our spring practices. He just dropped on our doorstep."

Watters played three sports at Lakeland.

He was a punter/cornerback in football, a pitcher/third baseman in baseball and a center for coach Bob McFarland's basketball team.

Lakeland went 15-5 his senior year, losing in the second round of the districts. Watters was not his team's top scorer, but averaged nearly 20 points per game, primarily playing the post.

"I improved the most the summer after my senior year," he said. "I practiced every day up at OCC (Oakland Community College). I had a lot of friends who played up there."

OCC coach Lynn Reed, the ex-Lakeland High coach, tried in vain to lure Watters onto the Orchard Ridge campus. But the chance to play right away at Schoolcraft proved pivotal.

"Coach Reed helped me a lot, he still tells me he wishes I would have come there," Watters said. "He's a good guy. Things just worked out differently."

WATTERS' strong work habits began to pay dividends midway through his freshman year (1989-90) for the Ocelots.

He began to blossom as a scorer, tallying off a 43-point performance late in the season.

"He did a great job rebounding for us as a freshman, but he also learned he could shoot," Bogataj said. "He still doesn't shoot as much as we like. He's very selective."

As a freshman, Watters finished with a 18.9 scoring average. He averaged 64 percent from the floor, 53 percent from three-point range and 78 percent from the line as the Ocelots finished 11-20 overall.

This season, Schoolcraft is battling Henry Ford CC for the sixth and final playoff spot in the Eastern Conference. The two teams were tied going into last night's game with 4-8 records.

With Watters leading the way, SC has climbed over the .500 mark for the first time in years (13-12).

"We've won more games the last two years than we have in the previous three," Bogataj said. "And Randy is one of the reasons."

LOSING, however, gnaws away at Watters.

"I think we have talent on this team," he said. "We just have five-minute blackouts during games where we can't score and teams make 20-point runs on us. If we just could eliminate those runs, our record would be better than what it shows."

Although he has yet to receive a scholarship offer, it's a good bet Watters will end up playing and contributing at a four-year school. West Virginia Wesleyan and Fort Hays State (Kansas), perennial powers in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics, have made contacts.

"He gets a letter a day," Bogataj said. "A lot of Division II (NCAA) schools and good NAIA schools are after him. He'd be a great No. 3 man (swing player)."

Watters not only has an attractive portfolio as a basketball player, but also as a student.

He was excused from Monday's practice to go to the library to prepare a report for his geology class. He plans to major in business and work in the corporate health field.

"I DID NOT study hard in high school," he admitted. "But here (Schoolcraft) you have to have good grades to transfer. My parents pressure me to study."

Watters, meanwhile, has become a quick study the basketball court during his two-year stint at Schoolcraft.

"In my 23 years of coaching, Randy's probably one of the top two or three players I've ever coached," said Bogataj, who coached the late Bob Fowler, an Inkster Cherry Hill High star who later played at Kentucky and Iowa State. "Randy's a scorer. He just comes off picks and shoots it."

And he shoots with great accuracy, don't forget.

TIM NOWICKI/illustration

The long-tailed weasel is found throughout the southern half of the lower peninsula, in a few counties in the northern half and throughout most of the upper peninsula.

Winter snow may not be the best thing to drive in, but it is great to have when identifying animal activity. No matter where an animal goes, it will leave tracks that can be followed. It is difficult if not impossible to recognize such extensive activity any other time of the year.

Tracks are left behind by all animals, common, and not so common — or at least not commonly seen. Recently, while walking the trails in a forest of aspen with some young invading hickories, I saw some tracks of the long-tailed weasel.

There are three species of weasel in Michigan. The short-tailed weasel, or ermine, is typically found in the upper peninsula and the northern half of the lower peninsula. A few counties from southern Michigan have reported them, but not many.

Least weasels, as their name implies, is the smallest of the three. They average about six inches in length. Males are typically larger than females. This species of weasel is found mostly in the southern half of the lower peninsula.

The tracks I saw were too big for least weasel but were the right size for the long-tailed weasel which is found throughout the southern half of the lower peninsula, in a few counties in the northern half and throughout most of the upper peninsula.

Not only is the track of a weasel easy to recognize, but the activity demonstrated by the tracks is characteristic of a hunter. I could see where the long, think-bodied animal went down under fallen brush to investigate the hiding places of mice, one of their most common prey items.

After leaving one brush pile the tracks showed the characteristic narrow breadth of the paired paw impressions separated by about 16 inches.

I was fortunate to have seen its tracks as it hunted within a home range that may cover four to 50 acres depending on the availability of prey. If it was not for the snow on the ground I would not have had any idea that the weasel was ever there.

Tim Nowicki is a naturalist at Independence-Oaks County Park in Oakland County. He lives in Livonia.

State income tax check-off aids children

The current recession means hard times for Michigan's children, says one of the state's top child abuse prevention experts.

According to Joe Crump, chairman of the board of the Children's Trust Fund for the Prevention of Child Abuse, "It's a vicious circle."

"One of the tragic outcomes of tough economic times is the increase in family stress, which in turn produces a sad increase in child abuse. And all this is happening at the same time there is a decrease in the amount of money available to provide child abuse prevention services," said Crump.

Crump said the Children's Trust Fund itself is the victim of the current economic downturn.

"We're hoping Michigan taxpayers will be generous with their contributions this year. Last year we had to reduce our support because of dwindling donations and cuts in a federal matching grant. This year, programs offering child abuse prevention services are depending on us more than ever because there is less money available from other sources. You can be sure that state budget reductions will hit these programs hard," Crump said.

This year's tax form includes a new CTF logo which Crump hopes will draw more taxpayers' attention to the check-off. The new logo includes the words "Stop Child Abuse," is a child-like print with an octagon stop-sign shape and the word "Before Another Child is Hurt" underneath.

The trust fund is an independent, non-profit agency established in 1982 as a permanent source of funding for local programs throughout the state to prevent child abuse and neglect. Currently more than 100 programs and local child abuse prevention councils receive funding in 76 of Michigan's 83 counties.

Featured will be a variety of workshops and Pre-Conference Intensives directed to health care professionals, caregivers and people who work with older adults and their families.

The opening Plenary Session will have a panel discussion on the "Right to Die." There will also be an Exhibition and Trade Show, breakfast roundtable discussions and an opening night reception, at the Henry Ford Museum, featuring the Marcus Belgrave Quartet.

St. Pat's parade fund-raiser features area Irish musicians

The 11th annual St. Patrick's Parade fund-raiser will be 1-9 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 24, in Monaghan Knights of Columbus Hall, 19801 Farmington, north of Seven Mile Road.

The theme of the 33rd annual parade is "A Downtown Irish-American Family Affair." The fund-raiser is a celebration of music. A dozen groups of Detroit's best Irish musicians will play non-stop for the benefit of parade supporters.

Returning to perform this year are Murphy's Men from the Tipperary Pub, The Wake's and Wedding Band, Birmingham Celtic Pipe and Drum Band and Strathmore.

There also will be traditional Irish music played in the lounge.

"The United Irish Societies, the parade's sponsor, truly appreciates our fine musicians donating their services for the day in order to help defray the mounting costs of staging the parde," said Sharon Berry, chairwoman.

Donations will be accepted at the door. Children will be admitted free. A cash bar and food will be available.

Help us make steps in the fight against SIDS

If you knew a healthy, happy baby had died suddenly without reason, you'd want to help. There are over 7,000 babies who die from a cruel, mysterious killer. It's called SIDS: Sudden Infant Death Syndrome.
Perhaps you've heard SIDS referred to as "Crib Death." But maybe you didn't hear that SIDS is the number one cause of death in infants from one week to one year.
A SIDS baby dies within seconds, usually during sleep. He suffers no pain. And contrary to belief, a SIDS baby doesn't suffocate or choke. There are no symptoms.
SIDS picks its victims randomly, paying no attention to social or economic levels. It kills babies of all races and religions. And it's not hereditary.
Donations of your time and dollars will make a difference. And we can make bigger steps to fighting SIDS.

MOVING PICTURES

Jodie Foster plays Clarice Starling, an FBI agent-in-training who is assigned to interview Dr. Hannibal Lecter (Anthony Hopkins), a psychiatrist incarcerated in a maximum-security asylum for the criminally insane, in "The Silence of the Lambs."

'Mr. and Mrs. Bridge' is not as great as expected the movies

Dan Greenberg

Director James Ivory and producer Ismail Merchant are noted for their finely textured films — particularly "A Room with a View" — films which vividly portray memorable characters who stand as important symbols of human experience.

"Mr. and Mrs. Bridge" (A-, PG-13, 127 minutes) is another example of Merchant and Ivory's excellent work although several factors detract. While "Mr. and Mrs. Bridge" is very good, it's not as absolutely great as expected.

Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward play the title roles to perfection as the Bridge's marriage evolves during the '30s and '40s. They have three children Carolyn (Margaret Welsh), Douglas (Robert Sean Leonard) and Ruth (Kyra Sedgwick).

As a matter of film continuity, the appearance (and disappearance) of these three children in their parents' lives seems forced and artificial. There is never the sense of a complete family, but rather Walter and India Bridge are the focus of the movie and, when needed to keep the story flowing, the children appear. The same applies to the Bridges' friends in town.

Given the film's importance as a picture of the values of that time and the timeless problems of intergenerational relationships, that seems faulty. Families were much closer in those days and such an erratic pattern is bothersome.

SON DOUGLAS, for example, appears as a noisome child at a family barbecue and suddenly he's an unpleasant adolescent some eight years later as he becomes an Eagle Scout. Why he dislikes his mother is never clear. Is it supposed to be a symbol of his father's proper but distant behavior which characterizes Newman's tightly controlled performance?

Taken with the film's sometimes unclear and questionable time flow, "Mr. and Mrs. Bridge" has a jumpy, episodic quality unbefitting of its fine character portraits and excellent depiction of behavior in a certain time in America.

The scene design of the "Mr. and Mrs. Bridge" is soft and beautiful with just the right physical touches to present that era to contemporary eyes although Paul Newman in one early scene wears a T-shirt as underwear, something proper men of the '30s would never have done.

Despite it's problems, "Mr. and Mrs. Bridge" is definitely a film for everyone to see.

The exact opposite is the case when considering Jodie Foster's latest, "The Silence of the Lambs" (C-, R, 115 minutes) which should only appeal to those who take ghoulish delight in the torment and suffering of others.

Foster is Clarice Starling, an FBI cadet-in-training who is assigned to interview Dr. Hannibal Lecter, a psychiatrist currently incarcerated in a maximum-security asylum for the criminally insane. Dr. Frederick Chilton (Anthony Heald) is the chief psychiatrist there.

Given Lecter's prison cage, it's hard to believe he was able to talk to other prisoners and torment Miggs into committing suicide. It's also pretty hard to believe that the FBI would let a cadet undertake field work on her own.

DR. CHILTON'S political manueverings are unclear and, well . . . to take it any further would give away crucial plot elements and I wouldn't want to do that.

Anyone foolish enough to subject themselves to this gross, sadistic and unpleasant experience deserves to discover the holes in the plot for themselves.

Merry-old-England will never be the same once "King Ralph" (B, PG-13, 95 minutes) ascends the throne in this delightful romantic comedy.

Because of some quirky parentage, Ralph Jones (John Goodman), a down-and-out Vegas lounge pianist, is next in line for the English throne when the entire Royal Family dies in an accident during a photo session.

The Royal Secretary, Sir Cedric Willingham (Peter O'Toole), has quite a task whipping Ralph into royal shape before his coronation. A good deal of "King Ralph's" appeal evolves from the by-play between John Goodman's cheerful, bumbling bear-like character and the very proper, very British Peter O'Toole.

Shades of "Pygmalion" as Sir Cedric transforms Ralph from a crass, common and very ignorant fellow into a royal gentleman.

Meanwhile Lord Percival Graves (John Hurt) tries to discredit Ralph in order to assert his claim to the throne. He does so by bribing Miranda (Camille Coduri), a lovely young thing Ralph likes, to place Ralph in a compromising position.

All these characters and complications are rich sources for sight gags set against authentic English backdrops. It all adds up to a pleasant, entertaining film.

STILL PLAYING:

"Alice" (B+, PG-13, 100 minutes).

Woody Allen's latest, fanciful and romantic comedy about New York City stars Mia Farrow as a privileged but troubled lady.

"Awakenings" (B, PG-13, 121 minutes).

Robin Williams and Robert DeNiro as doctor and catatonic patient call to mind too many other films. The doctor's special care and sensitivity lead to temporary recovery but film lacks spark expected from these talented actors.

"Cadence" (C+, PG-13, 95 minutes).

"Dances With Wolves" (A, PG-13, 180 minutes).

Kevin Costner's magnificent ode to brotherhood and brutality on America's western frontier during and after the Civil War.

"Edward Scissorhands" (C, PG-13, 100 minutes).

Unusual young man with scissors instead of hands shakes up the suburbs after moving in with the Avon lady and her family.

"Flight of the Intruder" (B, PG-13, 95 minutes).

DFT screens black films

By John Monaghan
special writer

In 1985, the contents of a film vault in Tyler Texas, revealed a gold mine of film history. The collection contained more than 100 rare features and shorts made by independent filmmakers with black casts.

"Ever since the Tyler, Texas, discovery, we've wanted to put on a schedule like this," said Larry Baranski, a film curator at the Detroit Institute of Arts. He's referring to "African American Independent Cinema 1930-50," which plays at the Detroit Film Theatre's afternoon program through May 19.

A handful of titles from the Texas collection have made it on the list. Baranski said others have been available from other sources, but rarely get screened. The 16-film retrospective will provide a healthy sampling of these projects made on a shoestring, but with lots of heart.

This week's opening film, "Scar of Shame" (1927) was the third film from a small production company called The Colored Players Film Corp. It was formed by Philadelphia theater owner David Starkman and a veteran black vaudevillian named Sherman Dudley.

The story concerns a classically trained pianist who marries a laundry woman to save her from an abusive father. According to Baranski, the low-budget film attempted to capture the quality of the area's best silent productions.

THE REST of the series tracks a number of different genres from melodramas to musicals.

"They have some technical problems," said Baranski, "but they're fascinating."

Some of the upcoming highlights include "Moon Over Harlem" (1939), directed by low-budget master Edgar G. Ulmer, March 28-31. A number of works by Spencer Williams and Oscar Micheaux, the most recognizable directors of the early black movement are also scheduled.

One of the more well-known titles, "Spirit of Youth" (1937) stars Joe Louis as a drifter from Alabama who moves to Detroit and launches a boxing career. It screens May 2-5 with a rare documentary about Louis, called "The Brown Bomber."

In organizing the series, Baranski called on James A. Wheeler, a local film historian and nationally known collector of early black film memorabilia. His collection of posters, films and lobby cards are on display in his own Concept East II Gallery in Detroit.

VIDEO VIEWING

By Dan Greenberg
special writer

Media Home Entertainment has long been known for a wide variety of home video offerings — The Chaplin Collection, eight films by noted Spanish director Luis Bunuel and all sorts of marginal adventure stuff plus a side-line of sophomoric erotica.

Now, as their senior vice president David Bixler notes, they're attempting to fill a perceived void — "People want new films with intelligent scripts, high production values and big name actors."

Two out of three is not bad as their Feb. 20 release of "The Maid" (1990, PG-color, 91 minutes) proves. It is the first in Media's recently acquired package of what they term "high quality motion pictures created specifically for the family video market." This one carries a $3 million production tag, quite high as videopics go.

In the "big name actor" category, "The Maid" stars Martin Sheen as Anthony Wayne, an unorthodox New York investment banker whose supposedly flamboyant character is not well-drawn as the film opens and he decides to take a new position at a top banking house in Paris.

He is to be teamed with a lovely executive, Nicole (Jacqueline Bisset), and they will co-manage C. P. Oliver's (Jean-Pierre Cassel) investment banking.

NATURALLY, Nicole resents sharing management of the department. But Nicole has other problems — a bratty daughter, Marie (Victoria Shalet), who drives away every housekeeper her mother hires and the company's biggest client, Laurent Leclair, the biggest lecher in Paris who is hot on Nicole's trail.

Big shooter Anthony Wayne walks into this and immediately falls in love with the beautiful Nicole. In making his pitch, Anthony accidentally is hired as the maid to care for Nicole's home and daughter.

Production values are high as all this is filmed on pretty slick Parisian locales with some good performances by the principals although Martin Sheen is not at his best doing slapstick.

There's the two out of three but the last "intelligent scripts" doesn't describe Tim Prager's weak screenplay, which falls far short of the mark.

The major problem with "The Maids" is construction of inconsistent characters with simplistic dialogue. Their ability to change personality and behavior with great rapidity just doesn't wash like the flamboyant Anthony Wayne.

Is this just a character name or is Prager trading on Mad Anthony Wayne, the American Revolutionary General? In any event, Wayne's style is not playing housemaid in such a way to reveal that fine, warm individual lurking beneath his flamboyance. Far more more developement is required for credibility.

THE SAME must be said about Marie, the bratty child well-played by Victoria Shalet, who becomes everyone's darling the moment Anthony puts his foot down and lets her know who's boss.

These difficulties permeate the script which lacks the flair necessary to turn Martin Sheen into Mr. Belvedere. Despite such faults in a predictable scenario, the film does have its charm, no doubt due to the acting quality and slick production values. Not bad — but far from its advertised standards.

February and March promise a considerable number of first-time laserdisc releases with two dozen titles from MGM/UA Home Video and two more from MCA/Universal Home Video — Sam Raimi's "Darkman" (1990, R, color, 96 minutes) and an older Schwarzenegger epic, "Conan the Barbarian" (1981, R, color or 126 minutes) with James Earl Jones and Max Von Sydow.

MGM's two dozen cover a wider range with Busby Berkeley's 1934 musical "Dames"(90 minutes, black & white) heading the list.

FREDERIC MARCH won the 1932 Oscar for his portrayal of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." This laserdisc runs 98 minutes with 17 minutes of restored footage considered too strong for audiences of that earlier time.

More recent titles in MGM's laserdisc release include "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof" (108 minutes), the 1958 color rendition of Tennessee Williams' play starring Elizabeth Taylor, Paul Newman and Burl Ives.

On a lighter note, there's "On Her Majesty's Secret Service"(1969, color, 140 minutes). This one, number six in the 007 series, is considered the best by many Bond fans.

All this is good news for owners of laserdisc players as more and more titles of movies in every genre hit the racks.

Cry Wolf: Staying true to self

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Cry Wolf is a metal band with something to say, albeit quite loudly.

"We're not into glorifying ourselves," said bassist Phil Deckard, whose band performs Thursday, Feb. 21, at The Ritz. "That's what I don't understand — bands who get some success and their attitudes completely change. It's not like they're not genetically superior or anything compared to when they first started out."

Songs on Cry Wolf's debut album on I.R.S./Grand Slamm bear this credo out. While many a band dresses to the hilt in spandex and leather and sings about babes, booze and bitchin' Camaros, this San Francisco-based quartet avoids the banal heavy-metal cliches.

In fact, chief songwriter and lead singer Timmy Hall bores through the fallacies of idol worship with some rather pointed commentary.

Sings Hall in "Face Down in the Wishing Well": "Face down in the wishing well/Another one takes a fall/Money has a wicked smell/When you got to have it all/Sucker took the easy trip and he fell."

THERE HAVE been no easy trips for Cry Wolf. After forming in San Francisco four years ago, guitarist

Cavedogs lead musical pack around Boston

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

In Boston, rock'n'roll was nothing but a dog meet dog world.

"So Todd Spahr, Brian Stevens and Mark Rivers found initially when they moved there and formed the Cavedogs in 1985. Already building heads on the Beantown circuit were the Raindogs, the Straw Dogs and the Riverdogs.

The band's Capitol debut "Joy Rides for Shut-ins" is an incendiary batch of pop songs that burn in several different hues.

From the opening cut of "Tayter Country" influences such as Elvis Costello are easy to detect. Other times, the Cavedogs appear to be charting their own power-chord course.

The trio's sound has been likened to the result of a clandestine meeting of Husker Du's Bob Mould and pop's prince Paul McCartney. The mere thought of Mould snarling through "Ebony and Ivory" is humorous, but the comparison doesn't apply to the Cavedogs.

Instead, the sound is more of the constant struggle between the voltage of rock'n'roll and the accessibility of pop.

"EVERYBODY has their definition of those things," said guitarist Todd Spahr, whose band opens for Charlatans UK on Friday, Feb. 22, at Saint Andrew's Hall. "Pop tends to make people nervous, especially in this country where people think of WHAM!

Perhaps which is why noted producer Ed Stasium (Living Colour, Smithereens, Something Happens) took the Cavedogs under his tutelage. Stasium has a knack for accentuating a band's pop sensibilities while containing its sonic edge.

He took several demos the Cavedogs did over a period of five years and crafted them into "Joy Rides for Shut-ins."

REVIEWS

EAST OF THE SUN, WEST OF THE MOON — a-ha

"East of the Sun, West of the Moon" is both a mythical destination in Nordic legend, and the title of the latest harmonious collection from the band called a-ha.

Their new release shows a lot of different shades and gradations that this band is capable of.

For instance, "Sycamore Leaves," sounds a lot like some of Simon & Garfunkel's early works, not only in the acoustical but also the vocal contribution of this song.

On the title track called "East of the Sun," socio-political lyrics aside, there is a certain U2 essence to it.

This is the band's fourth release, and very likely their best to date.

The song "Slender Frame" is a lucid example of where this artistic trio is headed. It is a contemporary piece with the a-ha signature all over it.

This album also features one of the bands first cover songs. It is a remake of the old Everly Brothers hit called "Crying in the Rain."

The album was produced by Ian Stanley, who you might know as the "third member" of the band Tears For Fears, and co-produced by Chris Neil (Mike plus the Mechanics).

There is 11 new cuts on this album, ranging from upbeat contemporary to the balmy ballads they're known for.

Outside of the three permanent members, who do all the writing (Magne Furuholmen, keyboards, Morten Harket, vocals, and Pat Waaktaar, guitars), Jorun Bogeberg and Per Hillestad fill in on the bass and drums nicely.

This album is well worth a listen for those of you interested in a new contemporary addition to your music collection.

THE BEST OF THE DAMNED — The Damned

"The Best of the Damned." Is that a contradiction in terms? Is there a best? Apparently so. Thus, the latest release from the English punk group.

The "Best of the Damned" is alternately titled "Machine Gun Etiquette." Maybe this alternate title better describes their buzzsaw guitars, hammering drums, throbbing bass and repugnant lyrical content.

There are 14 cuts in this "best of" collection, spanning two decades of their work.

The Damned is one of the first generation punk rock groups spawned out of Britain in the late '70s. There is even a live version of their callow sounding song "New Rose" on the album.

Also included is an interesting raw punk version of Jefferson Airplane's "White Rabbit." It's not too bad, although Grace Slick may not attest to that.

"Hit or Miss" sounds like something you might find on a Clash album.

Through the years the members of the band have changed several times, and after a year of sabbatical, the band members of the present band are Rat Scabies, Captain Sensible, Dave Vanian and Paul Gray. They're in the studio preparing material for their '90s contribution.

Overall, The Damned's material of the past, closely resembles the works of today's cutting edge bands like The Misfits and Wire.

It is bands like The Damn that were the innovators that have helped to shape and influence today's cutting edge groups. What about this "best of" collection? Well . . . it is raw in its most intrinsic form. At that, I'll leave the final decision up to you.

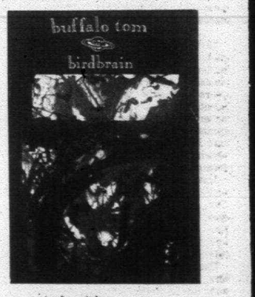
BIRDBRAIN — Buffalo Tom



Buffalo Tom was formed by three guys — Bill Janovitz, Tom Maginnis and Chris Colburn — at the University of Massachusetts in 1986 when they realized the "impending doom that is life after graduation."

Apparently, though, there was a problem — all three of them played guitar. They wisely decided that two of them should switch instruments and now, according to their press release, "Chris plays his bass like a guitar, and Tom plays his drums like a guitar."

What they ended up with is something that sounds pretty good. They released a debut album on SST Records, so "Birdbrain" is a sophomore effort, and a fine one at that.

The album has a garagey feel to it and sounds raw and guitar heavy — a bit like the Hindu Love Gods record. Janovitz has a good rock'n'roll voice with the right amount of obligatory roughness. He's in the same vocal category as Warren Zevon or Paul Westerberg.

Usually, I tend to stay away from records described as "raw" or "garagey" because, to me at least, that usually means "lack of talent." But that's not the case on "Birdbrain." This album has melodies and everything.

The first song on the album, also called "Birdbrain" is the perfect garage pop song. It's short (3:13), sounds best played loudly and is unceasingly catchy.

"Crawl" is another standout. Angry vocals and unrelenting guitar add up to an almost chaotic, but still fun little catharsis. "Fortune Teller" is slower and quieter and show that this trio can also sing two-part harmony.

"Birdbrain" is the right choice for those who like their music short, sharp and to the point and to whom overproduction is a dirty word. There's none of that fancy-schmantzy sampling stuff or anything that sounds like it didn't come directly from a guitar, bass, drum or human throat on this record.

If that sounds good to you then Buffalo Tom is a band to check out.

ALTERNATIVE MOVIE

According to Wheeler,, "When I grew up in Alabama, my mom and dad owned a cafe. These films, like 'Blood of Jesus' and 'Go Down Death' were shown right there in the cafe.

"THESE WERE films I could relate to because these were black people parading across the screen that looked like me. They're called independents, but these were mainstream movies for a lot of people. A Hollywood movie was strange to me."

While Wheeler admits the technical limitations of the films, he considers them classics.

"They're more than nostalgia," he said. "They're about visions, aspirations, hopes and dreams of African American people who wanted to see their lives better.

"There's life, blood, sweat and tears that went into each of these productions."

Some of Wheeler's astounding collection will be on display in the carpeted lounge near the Detroit Film Theatre main auditorium. Stone lithographs employ up to 10 different colors.

"They look more like circus posters of the time," said Baranski. "They're really incredible."

Wheeler will also lecture this Sunday at 3 p.m., giving an overview of the early black film movement. He drew the line, however, when the DFT asked to run five of his film prints in the series. These were the incredibly rare ones that weren't available in catalogs.

These titles will show up when Wheeler programs his own film series at Concept East II. Wheeler is still reeling from Michigan Council for the Arts grant cuts that have put severe limitations on his self-sustaining gallery.

Wheeler says this had little to do with his decision to pull the prints. Says the collector, "I think if there wasn't such good material available through other sources. I might have reconsidered."

Steve McKnight, drummer Paul Cancilla, Hall and Deckard headed to Los Angeles to ply their trade on the bustling club scene. Recognition wasn't forthcoming.

Then the band cut a demo of four songs (some of which ended up on "Crunch"). A thousand singles were pressed from the effort, some of which found their way overseas.

A Japanese promoter was impressed enough to invite Cry Wolf to perform in the Land of the Rising Sun in February 1989.

Soon, Cry Wolf was performing before sold-out crowds of 2,000 to 3,000 people. The band suddenly had a worldwide publishing deal with CBS/Sony and a Japanese record release on Epic/Sony. A record deal with Grand Slamm with I.R.S. distribution followed stateside.

The band is one of the few groups (Cheap Trick and the Scorpions) whose initial success was attained in Japan.

"There's so many clubs in a place like L.A., there's so many bands to see," Deckard said. "Sometimes it's hard to get even half of a response.

"Japan is very different. They're more attentive. They have their screaming, but between songs they listen to what you have to say. It's almost like a classroom in a sense."

THE MAIN assignment for Cry Wolf is to capitalize on their success in America. Already, the band has a steady slate of shows and has been bolstered by radio air play. WLLZ-FM and WRIF-FM has Cry Wolf's "Pretender" in rotation.

Since returning, Cry Wolf has used a good deal of their time writing new songs.

"The stuff we're writing now — I don't mean to sound pretentious — is more mature," Deckard said. "It sounds like it's from a band that has been together for awhile."

Cavedogs aren't pop nor rock

The problem was finding a record company to release it. Originally, Enigma had planned to but Capitol stepped in.

"At first, we were afraid of the major label and the repercussions that go with it such as artistic control," Spahr said. "Capitol seems to let us do what we want."

The difficult part in the beginning was finding out what the band wanted. Remnants of the Cavedogs is traced to University of Miami (Ohio) when Spahr and Stevens formed Who Made the Salad. The duo performed in coffee houses around the campus.

AFTER GRADUATION, the pair moved to Boston where they performed as the Blame and the Numbered Thumbs. Then Stevens met Rivers, who worked in the mail-room of a Boston law office.

The Cavedogs made an immediate impact on the already talented-laden Boston scene, which has spawned the likes of The Pixies, Throwing Muses and Aerosmith just to name a few.

Not so immediate were the songs, which the band has gone to painstaking lengths to sound simple but loud.

"One guy will come in with an idea . . . and throw it on the ground," Spahr said. "Then we glue it together. That's the painful part, but that's democracy for you."

Try to respect mother's rights

Dear Barbara,

My father died a year ago; he was 78. Since then, my mother, who had always been healthy, is failing. She is 76. I don't think she wants to live. I have tried everything to make her want to live, but to no avail. I feel so guilty and responsible and stressed. I have run out of ideas. She is in the hospital now and even the doctors think that she is dying of a broken heart.

Geraldine

Barbara Schiff

Dear Geraldine,

You are not responsible for your mother living or dying. Respect her right and do not put your needs before hers. When we manipulate others, we show a lack of respect for that person's right to be who they are.

Perhaps you grew up in a house where your parents felt responsible for your happiness or for each others. If you were brought up in such an environment then my advising you to no longer feel this way will not be sufficient to relieve you of your feelings of responsibility.

In that case, call the hospital where your mother is and ask whether they have any support groups or social work services for family members who are undergoing similar stress.

Comedy and Coen: He's always wanted to do it

By Julie Brown
staff writer

Comic Jack Coen has found it pretty difficult to avoid doing war-related material in recent weeks. At the same time, he doesn't want to hurt or offend people with family members in the Middle East.

"I wouldn't want my son there," said Coen, 32. "I don't mean to make light of their situation."

Coen, who lives about 40 minutes north of Los Angeles, isn't sure yet how he feels about U.S. involvement in the Persian Gulf crisis.

"There's a part of me that just feels war is wrong."

He avoids telling offensive jokes about Arab-Americans.

"I don't want Arab bashing to become the new racism in America." Rather than relying on stereotypes, he tries to find the humor in a grim situation. In one part of his routine, he asks people to imagine what it would be like to be in Iraq right now.

"I want them to see what I'm laughing at. I like to stay abreast of what's going on."

'I don't put my family down. I don't praise them either. I've got to find humor.'

— Jack Coen

HE'S NOT sure people necessarily need comedy more so now that during peacetime.

"It'd be nice if they really needed it." When the war began, that could have been the case.

"They didn't want to hear about it, they wanted to escape it." The war's impact is severe for those with family members in the Middle East. For others, it's almost unreal, he said.

Coen comes to the Detroit area about once every six months or so. He'll be at Chaplin's Comedy Club West Feb. 19-23.

"I always have a good time at Chaplin's. It's a great club." He's found audiences there responsive.

Coen, who grew up in New Jersey, has been working full time as a stand-up comedian for more than 10 years.

"It's just something I always wanted to do." He began in the mid-1970s, performing at a bar in New Jersey while in high school. That experience wasn't the greatest.

"It was just really horrible," Coen said. "A few years went by before I did it again."

HE WAS taking night classes at Middlesex County College in New Jersey, and did some performing at the student center. At 21, Coen headed west to Phoenix, Ariz., on his motorcycle.

"That's when I really started doing stand-up a lot." He stayed in Arizona for several years, and took some classes at Mesa Community College.

Comic Richard Belzer came through Phoenix and told Coen he'd get more work back east. Coen took that advice, moved to New York City and began to work regularly as a comic.

His work now takes him throughout the U.S. Coen's performed in Hawaii and the Bahamas, and kept vacationers entertained on a cruise ship that traveled from Los Angeles to Mexico and back.

"It was really an enjoyable experience and I would do it again." Coen was able to take his family along on the cruise.

He and his wife have a 5-year-old son and another child due in March. Coen's family does some traveling with him when he's on the road.

Family situations find their way into his material.

"I don't put my family down. I don't praise them either. I've got to find humor."

HE TALKS about having played sports when he was growing up, and how that compares to watching his son play.

Coen's done TV work.

"I've done just about every show, including 'The Tonight Show.'" He's appeared on "Star Search" and various TV comedy programs.

His future includes polishing his craft.

"I want to be a really good stand-up comedian, which takes a lot of dedication."

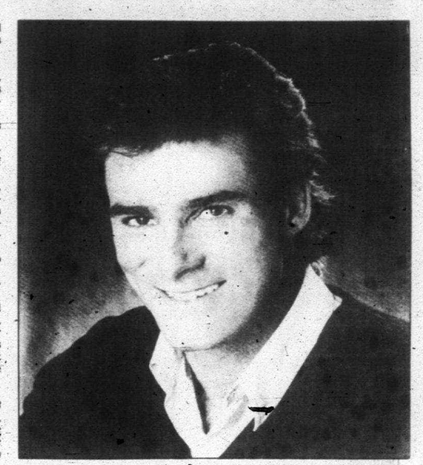
He'd like to branch out into acting, and has taken acting classes. He's interested in working on stage with other people and in evoking reactions other than laughter from audience members.

"Ultimately, I would just like to do good work."

In his free time, Coen enjoys playing racquetball and tennis.

"I can sit and throw a football all day long with anyone." He runs, plays basketball and enjoys other sports. Coen's a New York Giants fan and won a bet he'd made last August when the Giants won the Super Bowl this year.

Jack Coen will appear Feb. 19-23 at Chaplin's Comedy Club West, 16890 Telegraph, south of Six Mile, in Detroit. Performances will be 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 19-21, 8 p.m. and 10:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Feb. 22-23. For reservations, call 533-8866.



Jack Coen, who grew up in New Jersey, has been working full time as a stand-up comedian for more than 10 years. Comedy, he said, "is just something I always wanted to do."

Kitty Elenbaas, fitness director at the One-on-One Athletic Club, takes John McLellan, a Rollerblade salesman, for a spin on the club's covered tennis courts.

Getting 'in-line' for fun and fitness

By Pat Schutte
special writer

It used to be that going to the roller rink was kind of a right of passage as we were growing up. For many teenagers, the local roller rink was the place to be on a Friday night. Somebody's mom would drop off a carload of kids and somebody's dad would pick them up.

There was a certain romance about that time in our lives. Many teenagers experienced their first "crush" or "kiss" at a roller rink, choked on their first cigarette, or acted drunk off a can of beer split between three other people.

There also was the excitement of the "chase scene" as you and your friends whipped around in circles, playing tag, while trying to out fox the guy with the whistle.

These days it's hard to say what 12-year-olds are doing on Friday nights. Roller rinks, as we knew them, faded considerably when disco music was liquidated. And as for the standard roller skate, the one with four wheels situated side by side and sporting a toe stop, they've since given way to the "in-line" skates.

You've probably seen them. They look like hockey skates with wheels. They're faster and better able to handle rougher riding surfaces, like asphalt and cement, than a roller skate.

KIDS DELIVER newspapers on them. Teens play street hockey with them. Adults use them to train with, increasing the speed and excitement of the workout while decreasing the joint shock caused by running.

So what we've see here is a new trend in roller skating that has taken people out of the roller rinks and allowed them to utilize the thousands of miles of asphalt veins that make up the metropolitan area.

And many of those who own these skates have, in the past, undoubtedly spun a few laps around that mirrored ball.

Well, guess what. The One on One Athletic Club in West Bloomfield has brought the old roller rink into the 1990s. On Sundays (5-9 p.m.), One on One kicks the tennis players out of their 25,000-square-foot, air supported tennis bubble and the Surf's Up Shop from Keego Harbor provides the Rollerblade-style skates for an evening called "One on One's Rock and Rollers . . . A New Fitness Adventure."

"This is really fitness equated with fun," said Kitty Elenbaas, One on One's fitness and aerobics director. "It helps with 'cabin fever' by getting you out of the house and into a nice big area to move around in."

In its first few months of offering the program, One on One has been averaging 20-25 people. Non-club members are more than welcome to show up, pay a reasonable fee, and cruise around on their own skates or try a pair of the demos that Surf's Up provides.

"WE GET A lot of calls on these skates," said Kurt Manecke of Surf's Up. "So we worked out a deal where we provide the skates and One on One provides the forum to use them."

And just like the old roller rink, One on One provides some games for the younger skaters. Gone is the "Shoot the Duck" game, which is nearly impossible on in-line skates.

Couples skating? Go ahead, if you want. A few of the people there are either there to get a workout or to learn, or relearn, how to skate. The majority of the crew burns circles around those new to the sport, playing tag, throwing tennis balls back and forth and generally having a riot.

"We're really going to focus on the youth," said Ron Austin, general manager of One on One. "We'll have races, tag and freestyle games for the kids along with instructional skating sessions for everyone."

"I like Rollerblading because you get to go really fast and race against the other people," said Joey Slavik, 10, of Birmingham., while showing off the Surf's Up T-shirt he had just won in a race.

"This is totally RAD!" yelled Blair Byrnes, 11, of West Bloomfield. "These things are faster and more maneuverable than regular roller skates."

AND WHEN asked why he wasn't wearing knee pads like the other kids, 7-year-old Brandon Watzman of West Bloomfield confidently replied "That's because I hardly ever fall."

A couple of adults, including Austin, had only been on the skates a couple of times and seemed to be tapping on that roller rink style of the past while nearly remaining upright. And many of the skaters opted for safety equipment.

"It's optional, yet recommended," Manecke said.

Jeff Jones, 28, of West Bloomfield, had brought his nephew, Brandon Watzman, to skate. Jones, who used to play ice hockey, started skating with Brandon over the summer. He believes the new style roller skating is tougher than ice skates, "mainly because it's harder to stop in these things."

From a fitness standpoint, the in-line skates "are definitely a fat burner," Elenbaas said. "Not only do they work every muscle in your body, they also help healthy people develop coordination and agility."

Elenbaas added that the skates are a great tool for people who have had knee injuries because they are a "very low impact" training and recreation tool.

The young and the young at heart are having themselves a "rolling blast" in the One on One Athletic Club tennis bubble, showing off their moves and burning off the calories.

Just like a chorus line, it was high kicks around from in-line skaters Jason Hare, 10, of Birmingham, Michael Hertzberg, 10 of West Bloomfield, Aaron Cohen, 10, of West Bloomfield and Robby Everett, 10 of West Bloomfield.

Jason Mansour and Stephen Cohen, both of West Bloomfield, take a breather during the Rock 'n' Rollerblading under the dome at the One-on-One Athletic Club.

Avid collector promoting her joy of antiques

By Janice Tigar-Kramer
special writer

JUST BEING in the right place at the right time introduced antique dealer Gloria Siegert to a career mixing business with pleasure.

The Livonia resident, who conducts and promotes antique shows in a six-county area, started collecting antique furniture simply as a hobby about 25 years ago. She often bought pieces from an aunt who traveled to antique auctions and often picked up collectible furnishings on her own antiquing expeditions around the state.

To help with expenses for three college-bound children, Siegert decided to sell her finds at the local shows in 1968 with longtime friend and fellow antique buff Marge Kulifay. In 1972, she decided to look for ways to reach more buyers.

That fall, Siegert convinced her friend to haul their antiques out of town to a show at Meridian Mall in Okemos, just outside Lansing. There, Siegert and Kulifay met the show's promoter, an experienced antiquer like themselves, who happened to be moving out of state.

By the end of the five-day show, the promoter was convinced that Siegert and Kulifay had the skill and know-how to take over the job of show coordinator.

"Timing is everything," Siegert said. "We'd never thought about putting a show together until meeting the promoter. It was a great opportunity and we decided to give it a try."

THE NEXT year, the two successfully assembled a variety of dealers for two antique shows at Meridian Mall, placed newspaper advertising to publicize the event and even participated in the show.

Increasing the number of shows they conducted each year, the two worked together until Marge Kulifay's death in 1986.

Today, Siegert, who heads Gloria Siegert Promotions, conducts up to 15 shows each year at local and out-of-town malls. Besides selling her own antiques at each show, she finds time to market her furnishings, glassware and jewelry at about a dozen additional shows conducted by other promoters.

A typical day for Siegert begins by 8:30 a.m. when she looks through her roster of 500 antique dealers to contact for upcoming shows. She's now working on four shows scheduled at four different malls during four consecutive weeks.

While she contacts the rental company to reserve tables for one event, she may be placing newspaper ads to announce another or finding dealers to fill in for last-minute cancellations.

"It's a tremendous amount of responsibility, but the work is fun for me," Siegert said. "I've grown into the job over the years, so it becomes easier to handle a number of shows at one time."

THOUGH FILLED with antiques, her home office includes all the modern conveniences needed to run a small business. A personal computer keeps contracts and other correspondence in order and helps with mass mailings.

Besides the necessary recordkeeping, Siegert also visits each mall shortly before a show to make sure necessary space is available and makes last-minute contact with mall managers. And every summer, the work begins over again when she begins scheduling events for the upcoming year.

To make sure each show includes an interesting mix of antiques, Siegert becomes acquainted with the merchandise offered by every dealer and visits each booth during a show.

Every event includes a selection of antique glassware, furniture, primitives, linens, jewelry and vintage clothing.

Even discounted glassware and china, called collectibles, is sold at the antique markets. Today's most-sought-after collectibles, Siegert said, include Azalea china, available from 1916-1930 through the Larkin Soap Co., Heisey glass and candlewick glassware, produced by the Imperial Glass Co. in the 1940s.

"One collector I met at almost every show last year bought enough Azalea china to fill a cabinet. Then he put rose-colored carpeting in the house to match the collection," she said.

BESIDES RUNNING her company and attending every show, Siegert and her husband, Milton, travel to Ohio, Indiana and Pennsylvania about six times a year to buy antiques. Siegert usually makes the furniture selections, which later will be restored by her husband, an accomplished refinisher and collector of antique toys.

Though most buying trips harvest antiques for resale, the Siegerts still buy furnishings and accessories for the home they built in Coventry Gardens 40 years ago. The couple found a walnut, Victorian-style bedroom set dating to the 1800s in Ohio, and a buried walnut, cylinder desk and an antique cradle in Pennsylvania.

Siegert still researches antiques by reading trade magazines and books and talking with other antique dealers. Even customers often supply missing information about an antique on display.

"I'm always learning from the customers," Siegert said. "I love it when someone says 'My grandmother had one of those.' Then I know I'm going to learn something new."

Gloria Siegert's show schedule includes March 7-10 at Arborland Consumer Mall, Ann Arbor, and April 18-21 at Wonderland Mall, Livonia.

How to help keep young students attentive

Q: At the beginning of every school year, our children start doing well, but as the year wears on, they lose enthusiasm and their grades fall. What can we do to help?

A: The most common difficulty school children have is getting their homework done and, too often, parents don't persist in seeing their children follow through. Besides falling grades, this results in frustration and guilt for the parents and faulty lessons about responsibility for the children.

Your household needs a new game plan. It's imperative your children be included in setting up a system that will work.

According to Ray Maloney of Birmingham's Self Esteem Center, teens in his workshops complain most about parents who suddenly impose new rules in a household without getting any input from those affected most by them, the children themselves.

They "could have worked it out together," they tell Maloney, and resent being left out. Their normal reaction is to resist cooperating.

According to Maloney, author of his newly released third book, "Pieces for Puzzled Parents," it's OK for parents to take the first step — deciding a new system is needed — alone.

Step 2, however, must include communicating with the child to find a workable solution.

Step 3 is most critical of all, and that's called follow-up. If consistency is not maintained, the plan will fall apart once again. The only reliable way to persevere is to put weekly reminders on the calendar for the rest of the school year.

Finally, students need to be included in Step 4: rewards. Maloney has found that youngsters under 14 want acceptable rewards such as staying up an extra hour to watch TV on Friday night, going out for pizza with the parent(s) and ordering a whole pizza just for the child alone, or doing some other activity alone with the parent(s).

Examples of acceptable rewards older children want include permission for extra (same sex) sleepovers, getting the car on Friday night, or a subscription to a hobby magazine of their choice addressed to the student.

Maloney pointed out a child's greatest need is to be recognized as unique in a family, that each child craves positive recognition alone.

The workshop leader had identified four areas of self esteem: A Sense of Belonging; Being Special; "I can make a difference in my life," and Having Personal Values and Goals.

If you keep these ideas in mind as you communicate with your children and then follow through, everyone in your family will benefit.

Cranbrook Guild hosts quartet

Cranbrook Music Guild chamber series will present the Cavani String Quartet in concert at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 19 at Cranbrook House.

Formed in 1984, the quartet has an international reputation along with a collection of favorable reviews from critics and performances with major series and festivals here and abroad.

The young artists began collecting distinguished awards and privileges early in their careers. Winning the Cleveland Quartet Competition gave the group a two-year study period with the Cleveland Quartet at Eastman School of Music.

Their musical ascent continued with the Carmel (California) Competition prize and a subsequent invitation to the Aspen Music Festival, a prestigious association for a fledgling ensemble. In 1989, they won the Naumberg Chamber Music Award.

It is a mark of the changing world of chamber music that the Cavani Quartet follows other all-female quartets enjoying "substantial careers such as the pioneer Colorado String Quartet and the local and popular Lafayette String Quartet, soon to be leaving the area.

The young Cavani performers admit that much of the challenge of string quartet playing is finding personalities who are compatible. The quartet is currently in residence at Cleveland Institute of Music and also maintains a heavy concert schedule.

The program includes Mozart's C Major String Quartet, String Quartet No. 2 by Donald Erb (commissioned for the Cavani ensemble), and Dvorak's F Major Quartet (The American).

Tuesday's concert is in the library of Cranbrook House on Lone Pine Road in Bloomfield Hills. Parking is provided in the Christ Church Cranbrook parking lot with shuttle bus service to the door. Tickets are $15, half price for students, and are available at the door or by calling 751-2435.

Post office architecture has changed dramatically over the years but one thing remains the same — work space for employees is the primary factor in any design. Extras like an atrium running the length of the new Garden City Post Office and a fancier entrance bring a more modern look to government structures. Compare elements of the Garden City building to the former main post office in downtown Birmingham.

New post offices earn stamps of approval for design, function

By Doug Funke
staff writer

A steady increase in the volume of mail, explosive growth in suburbia and greater numbers of customers coming by to rent boxes, buy stamps or drop off letters have sparked a building boom here by the U.S. Postal Service.

New post offices have opened recently in Garden City and Birmingham and are under construction in Plymouth, West Bloomfield and Livonia.

"It used to be if you looked at a post office, you knew it was a post office," said Susan Moore, spokeswoman for the postal service.

And not necessarily because the structures were pleasing to the eye.

Post offices often were small, low-slung buildings with cinder blocks on three sides. Downtown stations tended to be a little more quaint, but couldn't be expanded as the work load increased.

Facilities generally looked dreary and dingy. Parking was a major hassle for patrons and employees.

NOW, YOU'RE likely to see atriums, recessed lighting, two-tone floor tile, tinted glass, colorful window treatments, cloth wall coverings and carpeting.

Yet, form follows function as far as new facilities go.

"The primary factor is need . . . for work space," Moore said. "Carriers to sort mail and clerks to service delivery area need certain square footage."

The postal service uses a kit-of-parts approach to new construction. Basic standard parameters are provided for work areas like sorting stations, loading docks, post office boxes and service counter.

Architects who bid projects are given freedom to arrange the elements to make best use of a particular site. Architects also have a choice of several different facades.

"THEY REALLY look very carefully at what their requirements are, what goes on in the work room and how things function from one step to another," said Anita Toews, an architect with Corporate Design Group of Ann Arbor.

That firm designed both the Garden City and Plymouth post offices.

"They tell us what size each part will be. We choose materials. We can push, pull, add touches as we see fit. The way you put them together is up to you," Toews said.

Division facility planning staff, with input from the local postmasters, makes the final decision. Contractors then bid on the construction.

"IT'S LAID OUT more conveniently for the customer than it used to be," he said. "It has a larger lobby area. The teller area is more thought out."

The kit-of-parts approach allows for more uniformity in the postal service's far-flung empire, but still allows for local architectural variation, Schiller said.

"There's a lot more design effort going in structures than there used to be. There's no doubt they're more conscious about traffic patterns, traffic flow, natural lighting in the building. The post office is trying to create buildings that will appeal to the eye for the next 20 years.

"Personally, I think they're very aesthetically pleasing," Schiller said. "I like the thought that has gone in. They're designed structurally very sound so they last a long time."

NEW POST offices don't come cheap. Moore provided budgets for several built or under way in the area.

- West Bloomfield, 29,500 square feet, $5 million.
- Birmingham, 38,000 square feet, $4.9 million.
- Plymouth, 22,000 square feet, $4.2 million.
- Livonia, 22,000 square feet, $3.4 million.
- Garden City, 23,000 square feet, $3 million.

But the money can be well-spent if employee morale and productivity increase and customers have an easier time getting in and out.

"If going to a new facility gives better light, better ventilation, better access, it certainly enhances the work environment and enhances productivity," said Hector Peshkopia, an industrial psychologist and owner of Human Factors & Resources Group of Southfield.

ARCHITECTURE for specific post offices, like any other building, will have its supporters and detractors.

Doreen Matich, a Garden City resident, likes the spaciousness and modern look of that community's new post office. Parking is much better too, she said, describing the old as "horrendous."

Tom Honeycutt of Wayne wondered about high heating bills at the new Garden City facility with the atrium and maintained that parking was still a problem.

He described the building as "a little elaborate" but the atmosphere as "nice."

Said Len Parker, a Birmingham resident, of that community's new post office: "It seems functional. I'm kind of disappointed they had to leave downtown. It doesn't have the charm the old one did."

Hilary Borman of Birmingham said she was surprised at how large that new post office is.

Paula Surma of Garden City said she loved the service she received in that new building, but wished the structure had a less modern, more historic appearance.

Postmasters of the new facilities are complimentary about their new work places.

"It's not only pleasing to the eye, but architecturally efficient," said Gregory D. Cox, Birmingham postmaster.

Radon danger 'overstated?'

(AP) — Radon gas in homes may not be quite as dangerous as previously believed, but in high concentrations it can cause lung cancer, experts said.

A study issued recently by the National Research Council said that earlier estimates of the risk of lung cancer in homes may have overstated the danger by 20 to 30 percent.

Estimates by the National Council on Radiation Protection and Measurements and other agencies compared the danger of developing lung cancer from exposure to radon in homes with the risks of radon-caused lung cancer among mine workers.

Radon gas is a byproduct from the decay of uranium-238, which is present in most soils and rocks. The invisible substance often is strongly present in some mines and can collect in unventilated homes built on some types of soils.

Radon decays into a group of short-lived radioisotopes that can attach themselves to dust particles and then be inhaled. Two of the radioisotopes, polonium-218 and polonium-214, emit alpha radiation that can damage cells and cause lung cancer.

HIGH LEVELS of lung cancer among some miners are attributed to their daily contact with radon, and some earlier studies found that the risk was as great or greater for residents in homes where radon was concentrated.

But the new NRC study said that when comparing how the radon particles would be inhaled and absorbed, the risk of cancer "tends to be lower for the home environment — by about 30 percent for adults of both sexes and by 20 percent or less for infants and children."

As a result, the study said, "direct extrapolation of risk estimates from the mining to the home environment may overestimate the numbers of radon-caused lung cancer cases by these percentages."

Dust particles in homes tend to be smaller than in mines, the study said. This increases the likelihood that home particles, including those attached to radon, would be deposited in the lung.

But the committee said miners tend to breathe more rapidly, due to the exertion of heavy work, so they are inhaling a greater amount of radon.

Children in homes tend to be more susceptible to radon-caused disease than are adults because they breathe more rapidly and are more apt to be physically active. But children in the domestic environment still are less at risk of lung cancer than are miners, the study said.

Board member undermines association

Robert M. Meisner

I am co-owner in a condominium and am disgusted with one of the board members. He is a tyrant who is abusive to the association's employees and their service-related people. Since he has gotten on the board, he has undermined the relationship between the other directors and the association's management company, its attorney and its other consultants. What can I do as a co-owner to deal with this tyrant?

I would suggest that you write this director a personal letter advising him that you are on to his antics and that you plan to bring this to the attention of the board or the entire association, seeking his removal unless he mends his ways. It sounds as though he has already done a great deal of damage in your condominium and you may consider bringing a petition to remove him as a director if the word is out to the other members of the association of his abusive tactics. In any event, allowing someone to continue in that role will continue to undermine the best interests of the association for which all of the co-owners will pay.

I am not a prude, but I can no longer stand my upstairs neighbor cavorting at all hours of the night with her multiple boyfriends. I have written the board on several occasions, but they say it is not their business. I have pounded on the pipes to try to get this woman to show basic decency but to no avail. Moreover the association won't take care of any sound conditioning problems that I am having. What can I do?

The first thing is to determine whether there is anything structurally wrong with your unit in regard to sound transmission. Assuming there is not, you then have a problem of a co-owner presumably abusing her privileges as member of the association, to the extent that she is unreasonably interfering with your use and enjoyment of the premises. I would formally write a letter to the to the neighbor requesting her to keep the noise down.

I would also write the board demanding that it take some action against her to the extent that your complaints about her can be documented by a third person. If the board is unwilling to take action, consider taking action on your own against the neighbor and perhaps against the board for failing to discharge its legal responsibilities in your behalf.

Can you tell me what the rules are in general for vacation homes under the Internal Revenue Code?

Where a home is used for personal purposes for more than a set number of days of the year, the home is treated as a vacation home and is not subject to the passive loss rules of the Internal Revenue Code. Instead expenses are deductible only to the extent of gross rental income from the property. Personal use arises when the residence is rented for 15 days or more and personal use exceeds 14 days or 10 percent of the number of days that the property is rented in the year. When the period is 15 days or more but personal use does not exceed the 14-day/10 percent use test, then the residence does not fall under the vacation home rules, and losses are limited by the passive loss rules of the Internal Revenue Code. These rules in general provide that the losses cannot exceed income from passive activities.

Example: In 1990, 10 percent of losses from pre-Oct. 23, 1986 investments may be deducted against other income. For 1991 and later years, losses from pre-Oct. 23, 1986 investment are treated the same as any other investments. You are advised to consult a tax adviser regarding specific information.

HOME & SERVICE GUIDE

It is difficult to place a value on the sense of wonder that comes from living in a beautiful, natural environment, but the benefits become apparent the moment you step outside and look at the grandeur surrounding you. Grand Canyon National Park Lodges is located at one of the most breathtakingly natural wonders in the world — a place like no other.

We are currently recruiting for entry positions in our hotels, restaurants, and retail shops located on the South Rim of Grand Canyon. Starting wages range from $4.25 to $5.10 per hour with overtime paid for more than 8 hours in a day or 40 hours per week at time and a half. Benefit eligibility begins after 90 days of employment. Initial work agreements are written for periods of three to seven months with generous bonuses for completions of the following terms:

3-month agreement — No bonus
4-month agreement — $200 bonus
5-month agreement — $300 bonus
6-month agreement — $500 bonus

To apply, you must be at least 19 years of age and have both a professional appearance and people-oriented attitude.

Dormitory-style housing is located within the Park, and housing charges of $16 weekly will be deducted from your wages. Meals are available at reduced rates. Couples are welcome, but housing is not available for children. (Sorry, no pets allowed.)

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
It is important for you to have faith in your authority figures. It won't seem they have your best interest at heart, but they do.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Trouble may head your way, but you are prepared for just about anything. Others envy your achievements and act differently toward you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
Even though things seem to have come full circle on the domestic front, there have been some improvements. Loved ones may seek your counsel.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
Keep your sense of humor about you this week, especially when dealing with authority figures. Their ideas may not be as crazy as they seem.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
Problems at work or home can be dealt with easily this week, as long as you keep your temper. Clear sailing is ahead in your love sector.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
Making decisions at work may be difficult due to circumstances beyond your control. Take heart and know these tough times will soon pass.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
If you have been feeling down in the dumps, it may be time to try a new look. A new haircut or jacket could do wonders for your disposition.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
Major tasks can be completed easily by taking them one step at a time. Things aren't always what they appear to be, especially at work or school.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
You shouldn't let an argument with a loved one get out of control. Sometimes you have to agree to disagree and get on with more important issues.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
If things aren't going quite the way you expected, it may be time to map out a plan of action that will give you some direction.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Look at finances closely. You may find a windfall in your own checkbook. A friend needs to know you care; show your appreciation.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
Don't let others belittle your talents; you know you are special. These people will soon be envious of your accomplishments.

Cable Comments

By LARK L. SAMOUELIAN
Executive Director,
SW Oakland Cable Comm.

Creating a Scene for television has more to do with your imagination than it does with money. In one of our fall community newsletters for cable TV, I wrote about the advent of the 'remote' control and how important it is to our television environment. Convenience, spontaneity and options are key components. Leaning on the eye-hand motor skills means all of us in TV land are up against stiff competition.

The illusions we create through our set designs trigger instant curiosity or boredom for our shows. My philosophy is that we need not be concerned about the dollars behind the other alternative channels, but the 'picture seen' in comparison to our shows. Cable Companies have created teaching materials to help aid in simple, imaginative instruction to local producers. For example, MetroVision corporate, regional and local productio nstaff have updated their instruction manuals into a book of 77 pages entitled, "More Than Just Television."

Back in the late 70's and early 80's we all began producing local TV by the seat of our pants. I remember my first series which hosted about 30 shows entitled, "Around Town with Lark Samouelian." It was telecast throughout the Omnicom franchised areas. Always a decorator at heart, I was thrilled to have the opportunity to create a fascinating set. A decade down the road, I now shudder at my set design attempts. (Thank goodness the content was fun and lively) because I had great ideas but little basic TV knowledge. In the studio I thought the set was gorgeous and intriguing. It was on a carpeted riser about ten inches high. The backdrop was the frame and book drawer base of a seven foot high antique Oak Pier Mirror of my Great-Grandfather Rogers. In stead of the 4'x5' mirror, I placed thickly gathered cream shearred curtains which created a lush draped look. I painted two blond oak chairs black and upholstered the seats with black and rose floral fabric. I added a variety of end tables suitable for my guest's props. To lend a unique touch each week 'Sparrs Florist' provided a large fresh floral arrangement which I would give to my guests as a thank you. (Sparr's name and location appeared in the credits of the show which ran everytime and everywhere the show was seen on TV).

Even as I describe this set my senses ring of pleasant visuals. And yet it did not work on TV. Everytime I watched the show I wondered why the viewer didn't get the same effect.

It was because all my props (furniture) were taller than wider! A television screen is ASPECT RATIO...this means that "regardless of the size of a TV screen its' aspect ratio is always 3 units tall to 4 units wide." Your set plans and traffic pattern plans must take this dimensional fact into serious consideration! You see my beautiful family heirloom was much taller than the TV screen and the width was too narrow. This left the camera angles shooting my guests and myself with only a plain wall in the background and the primary set could be seen only when a distant cover shot was used.

Kind of amazing how the camera could always make my body look wider and yet didn't do a thing for the furniture! Anyway.....As the text teaches "All scenery used in a cable production should be designed for the camera." The director should practice expected camera shots with each of the camera people to anticipate visual casualties and resolve them before taping!

I have been impressed with a group of regulars on our local channel. They captivate the fun and creative visuals through stage productions. The Novi 'Skits-O-Frantic- Players' formed in 1982. In recent years they carried their performances to television so that those who could not come to the shows could enjoy them from their home. Novi Public Information Officer Cindy Stewart and Senior Center Director Kathy Crawford are eager for you to watch and join in the fun. The goal of the group is to make people laugh, especially seniors. For a brief moment they will take their minds off their problems, laugh and be happy. Both, those performing and those watching in the audience. Making fun of things they can relate such as: loss of Memory, Treatment by Family or Physical Ailments. "Laughter with a purpose."

Some leaders are Larry Keys, Chuck Burke, Shirley Comp and Aimee Lanford. Their ages range from 65 to 86 years old. They put on two shows a year in the spring and fall and a potluck dinner goes along with the entertainment. With a current membership of twenty, they are delighted to think that more of us will join them.

Most of the performances are Slap Stick, Singing, Dance and Variety Shows are also incorporated. Past Performances video taped were: "A Touch of Class," "Good Old Summertime," "Mister Senior America Pageant," "Fall Frenzy" and "June Is Busting Out All Over."

The most recent performance was written by Larry Keys, "Ham-A-Lot."

NBC brings back show with 'Down Home' flair

Co-stars Judith Ivey, Ray Baker glad to return

By Mary Ann Townsend

Like many TV shows of late, NBC's "Down Home" has been on-again, off-again. This week the comedy is on-again when it makes its season premiere Thursday and takes a regular time slot Saturday.

The show centers around a Texas Gulf Coast cafe/bait shop about to buckle under to urban-oriented developers, but not if Kate McCrorey has anything to do with it.

Renowned stage actress Judith Ivey makes her foray into series television as Kate, a woman in her mid-30s who is struggling with her values, trying to balance career advancement with the importance of family. She puts her high-dollar, fast-paced New York City career on hold and returns to her small Texas hometown to keep her family home and business from being bought out.

The original six episodes of "Down Home" first aired in the spring of 1990, then the cast was asked to take a hiatus. NBC liked what it saw, however, and retained the cast to continue production last fall. Now "Down Home" is a mid-season replacement for "The Fanelli Boys," which itself is on hiatus and being considered for a return next season.

Ivey is an established screen and stage actress, having appeared in nearly 20 feature films and on Broadway for 10 years, receiving two Tony and Drama Desk Awards in the process. She admits the commitment to making a series was a bit frightening.

"It meant giving up something," she said, "but it also means...looking forward and learning about a medium I've never done...It's an adventure. That ought to be good for a couple of years, if people watch it, just for me to learn about it."

For Ivey's co-star Ray Baker, the return of "Down Home" was doubly exciting. He's glad the show's back because he thinks it is a good one and also because he'll still be getting a paycheck. That's especially important now since his wife, actress Pat Richardson, had twins — a girl and a boy named Roxanne and Joseph — Jan 3.

Baker plays the obnoxious real estate developer and Kate's former boyfriend, who is trying to buy the McCrorey's cafe. For Baker, who has played mainly serious roles on stage and screen, "Down Home" is an adventure into comedy.

"This is just a lot more lighthearted and a chance for me to get laughs, which is great. So that's unique," Baker said of liking his role. "Another things is that this is a character that a lot of bad things happen to, and you love it. You like seeing bad things happen to this guy, and they do, every week. And that's a lot of fun, to sort of get pie in the face every week."

Ivey said as an actress she is attracted to roles that have something similar to her own in personality. She identifies with her "Down Home" character's perseverance and determination. "I don't take no for an answer, and I consider myself an independent person. I think I'm imaginative and creative and feisty and probably say too much for my own good sometimes, and therefore, cause trouble. And she's definitely going to do that."

FAMILY FARE

CBS takes a look at TV's classics

By Amy Schmidt

All in the Family, The Mary Tyler Moore Show and The Ed Sullivan Show were three of the best programs ever to air on American television. They were the kind of programs you weren't afraid to let your kids watch — the kind of programs to which the whole family sat down faithfully every week with a bowl of popcorn and tuned in.

Feb. 16, 17 and 18, many of the cast members of these three shows will reunite for a very special look back at classic television on CBS. Feb. 16 marked the 20th anniversary of All in the Family, which starred Carroll O'Connor, Jean Stapleton, Rob Reiner and Sally Struthers. Initially rejected by TV executives, All in the Family finally premiered on Jan. 12, 1971, and lasted seven years.

Carol Burnett will host The Very Best of the Ed Sullivan Show, Sunday, Feb. 17. Film clips of celebrities who have appeared on the show during the course of its 23-year run will include Elvis Presley, The Beatles, Jackie Gleason, Pearl Bailey, The Rolling Stones, Lucille Ball and Desi Arnaz, and George Burns and Gracie Allen.

Finally, Monday, Feb. 18, Mary Tyler Moore will join Ed Asner, Valerie Harper, Betty White and Gavin McLeod for Mary Tyler Moore: The 20th Anniversary Special. The original show aired September 1970 and continued until 1977.

Grammy Awards to be given for 33rd consecutive year

M.C. Hammer could dance away with two awards

By Anne Wheeler

Top rap musician M.C. Hammer, who danced away with five American Music Awards last month, is among the multiple nominees in The 33rd Annual Grammy Awards, set to air Wednesday, Feb. 20, on CBS.

The Grammys, considered the most prestigious awards in the recording field, are given for artistic or technical achievement, not for sales figures or chart positions. Winners, in effect, are selected by their peers. Comedian Garry Shandling will serve as host of the awards for the second year.

With two nominations, Hammer joins Phil Collins and Mariah Carey as nominees for both Record of the Year and Album of the Year honors. Collins and Carey are tied for top nominee, with five each, while new group Wilson Phillips is right behind with four.

Carey and Wilson Phillips are among the best new artist nominees. Others include The Black Crowes, Lisa Stansfield and The Kentucky HeadHunters, who won favorite new country artist at the AMA Awards.

Best song awards go to the songwriters rather than the singers. In the world of country music, best song nominees include K.T. Oslin, Rory Michael Bourke and Charlie Black's "Come Next Monday," Tony Arata's "The Dance," DeWayne Blackwell and Earl Bud Lee's "Friends in Low Places," Vince Gill and Tim Dubbis' "When I Call Your Name," and John Vesner and Don Henry's "Where've You Been."

Best song nominees in the pop category include Collins' "Another Day in Paradise," Julie Gold's "From a Distance," Chynna Phillips, Glen Ballard and Carnie Wilson's "Hold On," Prince's "Nothing Compares 2 U," and Mariah Carey and Ben Margulies' "Vision of Love."

Nominations for Grammys are made through the secret balloting of the more than 6,000 members of the National Academy of Recording Arts & Sciences (NARAS). The group consists of singers, musicians, conductors, producers, composers, engineers and others who have contributed creatively to recordings.

SOAP TALK

Bradley Carlton's story will likely drag on a while

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: On The Young and the Restless, why doesn't Bradley Carlton fly to Las Vegas and find out about his marriage? He's supposed to be such a bright person, why hasn't he thought about that? —Thank you, Mrs. D.M. Screder, Stillwater, Minn.

Dear Mrs. Screder: If Bradley were to find out the truth so soon, it would be a definite end to the storyline, and the writers won't let that happen. True to the Y&R format, the Brad-Cassandra-Traci storyline has to last so long that we just become sick of it, or used to it.

Dear Candace: Don't the writers remember on Y&R that Leanna was married to Psychiatrist Stephen Lassiter, Ashley's former husband, who was killed? The storyline now is that she was a virgin before she married Victor and has only had sex with two men.

And why doesn't someone look into David's past — Catherine, Jill, Cricket or Danny — just someone? —Thanks, Vicky Veselenak, Byesville, Ohio

Dear Vicky: Leanna was never really married to Stephen. She fantasized about him incessantly and tried to kill him when he put off her advances. Supposedly, she was a virgin when she married Victor, but who knows, that story could change tomorrow. I'd say from the looks of things David's time is up, one way or another.

Dear Candace: I watch the soap opera Days of Our Lives and love Patsy Pease. She is a wonderful actress and so pretty. I'm so glad she is back on the program, and I hope she never leaves the soap again. Also, is Mike Horton ever going to be on Days of Our Lives again? —Thanks, A Soap Opera Watcher

Dear Soap Watcher: Michael Weiss is now on NBC's Dark Shadows, shown on Friday evenings. With actors you can never say never, but it is doubtful he will return to the soap any time soon. You are not alone in your excitement about the return of Pease. Several readers have written to say how happy they are that she is back.

I want to hear from you! If you have a favorite soap scenario you would like to sound off about, or a question about the soaps, write to Candace Havens, Soap Talk, P.O. Box 17748, Fort Worth, TX 76102-0748.

STAR NOTES

Sarah Jessica Parker multi-talented actress

By Christy Bergslien

The attractive blue-eyed blonde actress who plays JoAnn Harris on ABC's new law and order drama Equal Justice is Sarah Jessica Parker.

Parker is among the lucky few who have made the transition from child actor to adult actor. One of eight children, Sarah grew up in Ohio, where she studied ballet with the Cincinnati Ballet Company. She made her professional debut in a television production of The Little Match Girl.

Her other credits as a youngster include theater roles in The Sound of Music and the hit musical Annie. In 1978 she joined the Broadway cast of Annie and later assumed the lead. Parker also sang with the Metropolitan Opera Company for two years and studied with the American Ballet Theater.

Parker's television credits include starring roles on the series Square Pegs and A Year in the Life, and the TV movies My Body, My Child, starring Vanessa Redgrave, The Ryan White Story, Pursuit and DadahTs Death. She also appeared in the theatrical films Footloose, Rich Kids, Girls Just Want to Have Fun and Flight of the Navigator.

Off-screen she is active in the American Civil Liberties Union and the Hollywood Women's Political Committee.
