The Canton Connection

Challenge Fest

Canton's annual festival of the year begins May 24. Various events are planned until June 2. Some of the activities include the Bittering/Remax Realty Youth Fitness Field Day, a soccer tournament, fishing tournament, world champion kite flying, remote control car races, a used book sale, a gospel sing-a-long and much, much more.

May clean-up

The annual Canton May Clean-up program will be held again this year.

Canton residents will have the chance to bring material to Canton Recycling free of charge each weekend during May as part of an overall effort to enhance the appearance of the community.

Each residence in Canton will be limited to one level pick-up truck load each weekend. The hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Fridays and 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturdays.

May Cleanup was started several years ago to allow for a spring cleanup of homes and property and the disposal of loads of material too large to place at the end of one's driveway.

Canton Recycling is located on Van Born Road just east of Lilley.

Prayer for graduates

The senior class president of Salem High School, Jason Loiselle, asked Canton to declare Sunday, June 9, as a special day of prayer for all 1991 graduates of Centennial Educational Park.

"The 1991 graduates of Centennial Educational Park have achieved an outstanding accomplishment in completion of their secondary education and the education they have received is intended to prepare them for future career and educational challenges," according to the township resolution establishing the special day of prayer.

School fair

Eriksson Elementary School in Canton will hold a World Fair on Tuesday, May 9, as part of a learning program on cultural diversity. The event will feature ethnic foods, costumes and dances.

Cops answer charges of misconduct

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Police practices are being looked at nationwide following the videotaped beating by police of a motorist in Los Angeles.

In Canton, police have been charged with using excessive force in two lawsuits during the past five years, according to Wayne County records.

In one case, an Allen Park woman alleged that she was pregnant and lost her child because excessive force was used by a Canton officer on Dec. 3, 1989. The lawsuit was filed earlier this year and has not yet been to court.

The woman said she suffered limited use of her wrist because the

'The public has to keep in mind that anyone can make allegations or file lawsuits. Just because someone makes an allegation it doesn't mean the facts are correct.'

— John Santomauro

handcuffs placed on her during the arrest were too tight.

She also said she warned the officer at the time of the arrest that she would sue if she miscarried.

According to Canton police reports, the woman was in the parking lot of the Meijer store when she was warned that if she didn't stop interfering with another police action she would be arrested. She ignored police orders, the report said.

Canton Public Safety Director John Santomauro said: "In this case, we obviously disagree with what she has said.

"The public has to keep in mind that anyone can make allegations or file lawsuits. Just because someone makes an allegation it doesn't mean the facts are correct."

INVESTIGATIONS of police brutality charges are important to help the department weed out bad officers and to exonerate those who are unfairly accused, Santomauro said.

Another lawsuit against Canton police alleges excessive force. A Belleville man said he was stopped and beaten on March 22, 1986.

The lawsuit charges the officer with beating the man as well as verbally abusing him.

Police did not have a report on this case, which indicates that the officer didn't believe the traffic stop was worth writing a report about, Santomauro said.

SEPARATE FROM legal action, the department has a system allowing the public to complain about police behavior. The complaint system was launched in 1985, when Santomauro was hired. The reports were made available to the Observer.

Four written complaints charging excessive force were filed between 1989 and 1991, according to Canton police complaint forms.

Of the four complaints, one allegation was believed to be valid by officers who investigated the cases.

Winging it Spirits soar in tour of Mettetal Airport

It was just plain fun.

About a dozen children from the Willow Creek Co-op Preschool got a chance last week to get their hands on the tillers of some real planes during a tour of Mettetal Airport in Canton.

The event was sponsored by the Plymouth-Canton Airport Association and is a taste of what's to come on Thursday and Friday when there will be an open house at the airport. The event will be held from 11 a.m. until 8 p.m.

The airport is at the center of a controversy which has pitted residents in Plymouth and Plymouth Township against the city of Plymouth and Plymouth Township. The two governmental units have formed a Joint Operating Agreement to purchase the privately owned airport and run it.

Minister, wife admit abuse of daughter

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

A Westland minister and his wife, who continue to draw strong support from their congregation that includes Canton and Plymouth residents, admitted Thursday they abused their 16-year-old daughter by biting her hand and beating her buttocks.

Michael K. Enersen, 36-year-old pastor of Westland Full Gospel Church, and his 33-year-old wife, Carol, pleaded guilty to child abuse charges Thursday in Detroit Recorder's Court.

"I bit my daughter one time on the hand and left a mark," Carol Enersen told Judge Harvey F. Tennen.

Michael Enersen admitted in court that he caused bruises on the girl's buttocks when he beat her with a wooden paddle. Westland police have said the girl's buttocks had been so severely beaten that they were seeping blood.

THE ENERSENS, who have six children, showed no emotion as they pleaded guilty Thursday under a plea agreement arranged by their attorney, Mark Kriger, and child abuse prosecutor Maria Oxholm.

Tennen plans to sentence the Enersens May 31. The couple didn't respond directly to questions posed by a reporter outside the courtroom Thursday morning.

"They feel the whole thing is regrettable, and I can assure you that nothing similar will ever happen in the future," their attorney said.

UNDER THE plea agreement, Michael Enersen pleaded guilty to one count of second-degree child abuse, but three counts of fourth-degree child abuse were dropped. Carol Enersen pleaded guilty to one count of third-degree child abuse, and one count of fourth-degree child abuse was dismissed.

The minister could be sentenced to up to four years in prison. His wife could receive a two-year term.

However, attorneys have recommended in their plea agreement that the Enersens be placed on probation for five years and be forbidden to have contact with their two oldest children — the 16-year-old girl and a 13-year-old boy — who have been removed from their home and placed in foster care.

"They're not going to go to prison," Oxholm said Thursday.

She said prison terms could make the ordeal harder on the Enersens' six children — four of whom remain in their parents' custody under supervision by Wayne County Child Protective Services.

THE PLEA agreement also orders the Enersens not to use corporal punishment on the four children who remain at home.

Moreover, the couple, who schooled their children at home, would have to enroll them in a pub-

Policy addresses charges of police misconduct

Even though the person filing the complaint said he didn't want to pursue the allegation, the investigation continued and the officer was suspended for one day.

In the complaint, the man said he was hit on the head by an officer after he was arrested for being disorderly in July of 1989.

HE WAS handcuffed, with his hands behind his back, while the officer tried to place him in the squad car. When the man resisted, the officer struck him in the forehead with a closed fist, the man said. The man had a bruise where the officer struck him, he said.

Mid-way through the investigation, the man said he wanted to withdraw his complaint. He told the investigator the officer who struck him must have had a "bad day" and

'It's just as important to us to prove or disprove the complaint.'

— John Santomauro
Canton public safety director

asked to perform a field sobriety test and passed three times.

In the complaint, the man said the officer became angry and struck him with the palm of his hand in the right shoulder.

He said he filed the complaint several days after the incident, because the more he thought about it the more it bothered him.

The man told police that he had a bruise, but he refused to show it to the investigating officer, because, he said, it had been too long after the incident and mark had disappeared.

The investigating officer said the man was "uncooperative" and the complaint was found to be invalid.

"It's just as important to us to prove or disprove the complaint," Santomauro said. "If the officer hasn't done anything, he or she should be exonerated."

THE PUBLIC complaint system handles all types of allegations, from those of police brutality to those concerning an officer's demeanor.

In one complaint, an officer was charged with using a "naasty tone of voice" and for being abrupt. But even those complaints have a place, Santomauro said.

"I think our organization more closely scrutinizes citizens' complaints to the point that they contribute to the professionalism of the organization," he said.

He said he wasn't aware of all the information obtained through the investigation of the Los Angeles police beating case. However, he did say that the beating of a motorist by several officers in Los Angeles was "unacceptable."

"I believe in this day and age, and particularly in this area, that any police department would condone or allow police brutality," Santomauro said.

WHEN ASKED whether blacks or other minorities are stopped for police questioning more often than whites, Santomauro said that is not the case. "I would hope not," he added.

When officers stop people, they must have a legal basis for doing so. They also look for unusual situations, he said.

"If four people are driving in a commercial area at 3 a.m. they would probably be asked why they were cruising," Santomauro said. "I'm not aware of anyone being singled out because of race. There are no citizens' complaints made, as far as I know, based on race."

Officers use peer pressure among themselves to discourage brutality, a natural way to eliminate inappropriate behavior, Santomauro said.

"Unfortunately, in many allegations we have in citizens' complaints, people aren't always honest," Santomauro said.

"It's one of three cases: They're motivated by money; in many cases they use it as a bargaining chip to have charges lowered; or the complaint is absolutely correct."

Neighboring cops say brute force is not tolerated

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

Police officers who use more force than needed are unprofessional and not tolerated in Plymouth Township, police Chief Carl Berry said.

Berry, chief since the department was created in 1985, said the March 3 beating of a black motorist by Los Angeles police, seen on videotape nationwide, disgusted him.

"I could not understand how police officers could possibly react that way," the Plymouth Township police chief said.

City of Plymouth acting Chief Robert Scoggins echoed Berry's comments.

"It was outrageous behavior. I think it sheds a black eye on all law enforcement personnel that go out there and do a good job every day."

The Los Angeles officers face disciplinary action, and that city's police chief was recently reinstated after being forced to step down by a police authority board, in the wake of the beating.

A CHECK of Wayne County Circuit Court records for the past five years shows no lawsuits filed against either the township or city police departments alleging brutality.

"I think that's indicative of the department's ability to deal with this issue," Scoggins said.

Berry said his main problem with the Los Angeles incident is the lack of professionalism shown by the officers.

"It's hard for me to be objective because I've been in the business for 30 years. They went far beyond the limits of necessary force to affect an arrest," he said.

"WE HAVE here a lot of training in the necessary force needed to affect an arrest. You don't need to do that."

Should a Plymouth Township officer get too rough with a suspect, "The attitude here is excessive use of force would be dealt with."

chief determined used excessive force in arresting a prisoner. The prisoner was not seriously injured.

"That was investigated and brought to a conclusion," he said.

The officer is no longer with the department, he said.

"Training is the key," Berry said. "They are given a psychological profile before they're hired to identify aggressive behavior. If they're low on these areas, they're out of here. They don't even make it to probation."

ally by a suspect has a right to defend himself, Berry said.

"You want to put enough pressure on him to stop that behavior."

That sort of pressure administered by officers mainly involves physical restraining holds. Unlike Los Angeles Police, officers in Plymouth Township don't use nightsticks, Berry said.

THE Los Angeles police incident, in which a black suspect was beaten by white officers, raised the issue of possible racism among white police officers.

Do Plymouth Township officers on patrol tend to be more suspicious of black motorists than whites?

"The color of the driver? Absolutely no difference," Berry said.

'The color of the driver? Absolutely no difference.'

would have been there.

"If it was a rusted Ford in Beacon Hill, I would be a little bit suspicious of it."

ASKED IF white officers he has worked with over his career have shown racism, he said, "Maybe I'm naive in that respect. I never have felt that race has been an issue out here."

Scoggins, noting that his wife is Korean, said, "You can imagine what my feelings are on the race issue."

"It's outrageous in the sense that it's 1991 and we should have advanced."

Local police don't hold negative attitudes toward blacks, said Scoggins, who has worked for the Plymouth department for 15 years.

"I've never felt that it's a problem in this area," he said.

Golden gloves Senior ball teams get into swing of things

By Diane Gale

Kay Oswald practices.

If you're over 55 and you're looking for something to do this summer, Canton's senior baseball teams need you.

The only qualification for the men's and women's teams is the age. In fact, you can live in any neighboring community and still join the Canton team.

And if Jerry Gawura, 72, is right, the players receive a lot from participating.

Gawura said playing baseball with the Canton Sluggers, helps her both physically and psychologically.

WHILE THE men's and women's teams practiced last week in the Salvation Army gymnasium, Gawura said, she joined the team after retiring from working more than 40 years, for a lot of reasons.

"I decided it was time to get some recreation," she said. "I was afraid that after working so long that I would get bored or depressed. I got involved so I could keep away from boredom, keep healthy and to get involved with other people."

"We like doing it," she said. "We may not be the best, but we try."

The Sluggers have been successful, too. Two years ago the team won the gold medal in the U.S. National Senior Olympics.

"We have to get our exercise and it makes you feel kind of young," said Eleanor Hoelscher, captain of the Sluggers.

"It's thrilling to see what you can do," she said. "Some of us can't run too fast, so we have to hit the ball hard so that we can get around all the bases."

This year the team will compete in the Olympics in June in Syracuse.

However, because players are scarce, they don't play league games. So they settle for scrimmage games, tournaments and co-ed games intermingling with some of the men's teams.

CANTON HAS two men's teams — one for players 55 and older and another for players 65 and older. They're recruiting, too.

The oldest player in the men's 55

and older team is 80-year-old Adam Brozek. However, most of the players are between 68 and 72 years old, according to Tim DeConnick, team manager of the 65 year and older team.

The team plays Mondays and Wednesdays and the season starts May 13.

"We're struggling to get enough men to play on the team," he said.

Again, the only requirement is that the players be at least 65 years old and players from any community are welcome.

Once the players sign up, they love to play, DeConnick said.

"They like the exercise, stretching and I think it's relaxing with a lot of good fellowship and comradery."

"Guys will come out in the rain just because they like it," he said.

AND, THEN there's always the bloopers that keep players smiling. Like the time a few years ago, DeConnick said, when an outfielder was running for a ball and it hit him on the head.

Harry Smith, manager of the 55 and older men's team, said the focus is on having fun. The men who sign-up will be allowed to play anytime they show for a game.

"We're in it for the recreation and then the competition," Smith said.

Player Harold Rocholl laughed when he explained the playing requirements: "You have to be able to walk and chew gum at the same time."

For more information about the men's teams call Smith, at 458-8747, or Rocholl, at 455-8761. And for information about any of the teams call the Canton Senior Center, at 397-5444.

Retired executive driven by challenges during Ford years

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

There can be no doubt that retired Ford Motor Co. executive John Manoogian was a loyal Ford employee — just check out his Plymouth Township street address.

The last of his many assignments at Ford — he retired April 1 after 50 years with Ford — was general manager of the firm's Alpha organization, geared to innovation. So when Manoogian moved into his second Plymouth Township home three years ago, he had the new street named Alpha Drive.

"After about 50 phone calls I got what I wanted," he explained.

Manoogian was honored at a retirement party addressed by Ford Executive Vice President Red Poling, and is scheduled May 6 to receive the 1991 Sargent Progress Award from the Society of Manufacturing Engineers. Earlier recipients include former Gov. George Romney.

MANOOGIAN STARTED at Ford in 1940, as a drafting apprentice. Soon, he was helping to build test engines.

Manoogian said the first time he entered the Rouge Plant, "I was overwhelmed really, by the size, the complexity of the auto plant.

He recalled the time Henry Ford Sr. came to the engine lab to examine a new overhead cam engine. "He was really revised. The body style was all new, the car was new from the ground up."

HIS NEXT assignment was product research, from 1949-56. "They wanted somebody that had total vehicle experience," he said. "Power steering was developed there."

While the '49 Ford was his favorite, "I think very highly of the Thunderbird in '55," adding he also favored the Mustang and Taurus.

The late '50s period was marked by "fins" on cars. "In those days the stylists wanted to get the closest they could get to the feeling of aircraft," Manoogian recalled. "Now, I think we're more functionally oriented, we try to maximize the space on the inside."

By 1965, he was named assistant chief of engine carburetion, where the assignment was to meet the first federal emissions standards, set to begin in 1968.

"In those days, we had no idea how to meet emissions standards. I worked seven days a week," he said, usually 12 to 18 hours per day, for one year. "All year long I had only

State arts groups must be more responsive to people

If I'm forced to read or listen to any more whining about Gov. John Engler's proposed cuts to the arts in Michigan, I'm afraid I'll be tempted to take a shotgun to fellow members of the media.

Jeff Counts

We've swallowed the line of the arts community hook, line and sinker without questioning it. It makes me embarrassed.

Our problem is that we want to look sensitive, and unfortunately these days sensitivity too often passes for intelligence.

The arts people are a special interest group just like welfare families, boaters, fishermen and who fly private planes. The only difference is we've made them sacred.

And all Engler is doing is trying to take them off the altar. I agree. They should fend for themselves and be forced to compete with the others in Lansing.

OTHER SPECIAL interest groups know how to play the game. They join groups and associations to which they pay dues. Out of those dues lobbyists are hired to plead their case in Lansing.

But the arts are different, or so they think. Under former Gov. James Blanchard, they had a free ride. Last year $40 million was spent on the arts. That's $6 per taxpayer.

Now where did the money go? It went to such poor institutions as the Cranbrook Academy of Art in Bloomfield Hills.

Let's face it, grants to the arts are nothing but welfare for the middle and upper middle classes in Michigan. They allow another fairly well-license, he or she is arrested and treated as a criminal for violating the poaching laws.

Arts patrons on the other hand go blithely along, poaching from the public art preserve with immunity. It's arrogant.

BUT IT'S more than that. It's also racist and elitist. The Detroit Symphony and others around the state continue to play the boring music of dead, white European composers, ignoring the music of African-American jazz composers. And this in a city with such a rich heritage.

And then we hear the symphony folks complaining that there's no interest, and support is waning. It's time for them to wake up. This ain't Prague, it's Detroit. Let's play something for the home crowd.

But the arts people need to do more than just become more responsive to people in the state, they need to wise up politically and see themselves as a special interest group.

The user fee or license would be their best option. The state and arts groups could join together and sell arts licenses that could be used as passes for cultural events. That way the groups could raise money to support their activities just like hunters, fishermen and boaters.

The free arts ride is over. I'm glad to see it, and the arts people should be, too. It gives them the opportunity to build a better system of financing their fun and games.

Jeff Counts is the editor of the Plymouth and Canton Observer Newspapers.

Law steps on 'down' to improved job, pay

"WHY WOULD he want to move down? Isn't it a step down to go from state representative to township supervisor?"

Tim Richard

I heard the question two dozen times as Jerry Law departed the state House of Representatives to be appointed Plymouth Township supervisor.

Indeed, the House has been called "the retired supervisors club." Many members once were township supervisors. Becoming one of 110 members of the lower chamber has been the high point of many a political career.

Certainly, I have never heard of anyone leaving the House for township government, and neither had Jerry Law when we talked about it during his last day in Lansing.

BUT LAW had many good reasons for making the move.

State rep can be a stepping stone, but Law said, "I've never had any aspirations to run for (Congressman Carl) Pursell's or even (state Sen. Bob) Geake's seats."

Plymouth Township is no rural, rinky-dink operation. Supervisor is a more responsible job. You're the top guy. It's a very organized operation — computerized. It's not keeping records in the basement of your home."

Plymouth Township has a high-toned population of 25,000, a respectable levy of about four mills and an industrial belt.

isn't a deliberative body that works by debate. Rather, big decisions are brokered by the leadership, and everyone else is a foot soldier marching in line. For a minority Republican like Law, it's worse.

I doubt that two-thirds of the members even speak on the House floor except to introduce the sixth grade class of Washington School sitting in the south gallery. Some never even speak in committee.

IN THE 1989-90 term, Law was energetic enough to introduce 51 bills of which four passed — a bit below the average of 10 percent. It wasn't due to lack of effort. His attendance and sobriety records are excellent.

What passed were bills to swap state land in Wayne County, regulate retail sales, to certify recreational taxes and to regulate "crane" games. Minor stuff for an agile mind.

But Law's more ambitious bills — requiring teens to stay in school to obtain driver's licenses, allowing single business tax credits for research and development, giving export incentives to small business, requiring real estate agents to disclose clients, fixing the catastrophic claims mess — got nowhere.

If we could peer into the souls of state representatives, we would find two types: those who want to change things and those who like holding the office. Law strikes me as the former.

He will have more career satisfaction in Plymouth Township.

A rebirth of patriotism

To the editor: Patriotism

It used to be that when you went to war, you just were gone for years, our lives went on, and you were just another trophy that symbolized one more feud fought for democracy. However, the war in the Middle East created a new rebirth of patronage by the residents of the United States. We may have enshrined the Vietnam-era mentality but have retained its trend: patriotism. This inclination led CNN, once known as the chicken noodle network, to become the most watched and informative station on the war in the Gulf. Another example of true patriotism was a song, produced and arranged by David Foster and other various artists, called, "Voices That Care."

You, the American soldier, will find signals that you have returned home to a different country than the one you left in August: dignified, persevering, united and engulfed with national purpose. You will be embellished with honors, badges and ribbons. Desert Storm ice cream flavors and people who care. We, the true Americans of this glorious nation, carried your memory in our hearts, on our T-shirts and through each flag that was flown. Through the Adopt-a-Soldier Program you wrote to us of your fears of coming home, please do not worry.

No one will spit on you, deny you to see it, and the arts people should be proud of you. We are the real patriots of this nation and understand the words of life, liberty and justice for all.

Congregation shows support for 'loving' couple

By Darrell Cism staff writer

Calling the charges against Michael Enersen and Carol Enersen "a pack of lies," church member Diane Berry described the Enersens as "loving people who love their children very much."

Full Gospel Church where Michael Enersen remains head minister, defended the Enersens' right as parents to discipline their six children. "The fact that they spanked their children, hey, that's God's word," Berry said. "Rebellion is in the heart of the child, and the rod drives it far from the child. The Bible says if you spare the rod, you spoil the child."

Enersen, 36, admitted Thursday in Detroit Recorder's Court that he used a wooden paddle that caused bruising on the buttocks of his 16-year-old daughter. Westland police said Enersen beat the girl so severely her buttocks bled.

Carol Enersen, 33, admitted in court that she caused bite marks on the girl's hand.

The girl and her 13-year-old brother, both of whom police said were abused for several years, have been taken away from the Enersens and placed in a foster home. Their parents have been ordered not to try to contact them.

additional requirements that he wants to impose" at the May 31 sentencing.

In reaching the plea agreement, Osholm and Kriger agreed that other pending charges against the Enersens would not be brought.

Both of Kriger's clients are undergoing psychological counseling, he said.

Enersen children sneaked away from home and sought help from a former church member, who reported the child abuse to Westland police.

"THEY ARE not child abusers," Berry said. "They've given their love to the congregation. I have nothing but to say about these people. They've been a tremendous help in my life through the preaching of God's word."

Brother-sister team among 5 local skaters to win honors

Five Garden City Figure Skating Club members did well in national competition held recently in Monsey, N.Y.

Two were the brother and sister team of Steve and Danielle Hartsell of Westland.

They won first place honors in the intermediate pairs competition.

High, Jennifer has been skating since age 6. For the past two years, she placed first in figures and in free-style.

ORGANIZERS OF the national event hope that the championship will become an important element in the development of young skating talent.

"Early competitive experience among all of our country's top skaters is valuable for the youngsters who will later move into the upper level spotlight and then on to world and Olympic competition," said Ian Anderson, executive director of the USFSA.

DANIELLE, 10, a fourth grader at Hamilton Elementary School, began skating at the age of 3. Her brother, 13, is a seventh grader at Marshall Junior High School.

They are coached by John Johns and Mitch Moyer, the club's pairs coaches. Sandy Donegan is their singles coach.

In the National Juvenile and Intermediate Championships, the Hartsells won five "ones" and two "twos" to finish far ahead of their nearest competitors.

Stephanie Senterfit, 13, placed 11th in the national event after placing fourth in the Midwest sectional of the ladies' freestyle event.

Jennifer Matraz, 12, of Redford placed fourth in the Juvenile Ladies initial round and in 11th place in the championship round.

Budget cuts worry SC board

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Schoolcraft College trustees got their first look at the proposed 1991-92 college budget Wednesday and, while happy initial state cuts were low, they're concerned about the future.

"We haven't heard we're going to be cut, but we're waiting to hear about any more cuts this year," Schoolcraft President Richard McDowell said.

The proposed $29 million budget represents an increase of 5.9 percent over this year.

The college tax rate is expected to rise slightly, from 1.94 to 1.96 mill. Fluctuating payments on college bonds is the reason for the tax rate increase, college officials said.

People living in houses assessed at $150,000 would pay $147 a year in Schoolcraft taxes — $1 more than they would under the current millage rate.

Schoolcraft officials expect a 1 percent cut in state aid for the July-September quarter, losing slightly less than $20,000.

College officials expect a substantial revenue drop next year, when the newly-approved state property tax assessment freeze goes into effect.

WITH THAT in mind, trustees will consider a number of revenue-raising options at Wednesday's budget study session.

Of items already discussed, a student parking fee appears unlikely. Lower, "off-rate" tuition to boost attendance at afternoon classes appears slightly less unlikely.

But a $1 per student computer fee may find its way into the final budget, either this year or next.

Some trustees see the computer fee as a means of maintaining classroom equipment, as well as helping finance new equipment.

But others see it as placing too much of a burden on students.

"I think we're going too much in one direction," trustee Michael Burley said.

Trustees are expected to adopt the budget at their May 29 meeting.

Of the proposed $29 million budget, $8.6 million would be raised through tuition and student fees. Taxes would raise $11.9 million, an 8 percent increase over last year. State aid would rise to $7.9 million, but the 2.89 percent increase is expected to fall well below the rate of inflation.

Salaries and benefits are expected to account for 76 percent of expenditures.

Trustees will review the budget and all college fees, including tuition, during their board meeting this week.

At that time, they're also expected to vote on a $2 per credit-hour tuition

The proposed $29 million budget represents an increase of 5.9 percent over this year.

tion increase proposed for most Schoolcraft students.

College officials propose raising tuition to $37 per credit hour for students living in the Schoolcraft service district. The district includes the Livonia, Plymouth-Canton, Garden City, Clarenceville and Northville school districts, as well as a portion of the Novi school district.

Students living outside the district would see a $3 increase, raising tuition to $56.

The increase offsets inflation said Adelard Raby, college vice president for business services.

Pursell pushing school counseling plan

By Tim Richard
staff writer

U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell today is trying to sell his pet idea — elementary school counselors — to Education Secretary Lamar Alexander.

Pursell, R-Plymouth, wants the administration to include the idea in the major initiative designed to make George Bush "the education president."

"I may be a major sponsor of the new initiative," Pursell said Thursday during a visit to address a 2nd District-Wayne Republican dinner at Schoolcraft College.

AS RANKING Republican on the House Appropriations subcommittee for education, Pursell is the party's most visible congressional member on education issues.

But he said there would be no "quid pro quo" — he won't require Bush to endorse his counselor plan in return for supporting the president's initiative.

Elementary teaching is becoming more difficult, and teachers need the backup support of counselors, said Pursell, a former teacher.

"Today kids spend 91 percent of their time outside the classroom and 9 percent in class. Half the parents are divorced, even in an affluent place like Livonia," he said in response to an audience question about reducing dropout rates.

"The teacher has very little help in an elementary classroom with 25 to 32 students," he said.

His plan would seek a pilot program, perhaps in Michigan, to introduce counselors into elementary schools, not just high schools.

THE BUSH policy is to encourage educational experimentation with the states as laboratories for new ideas, he said.

The eight-term congressman said textbooks aren't enough in classrooms filled with kids who have working parents and who watch a lot of television.

"We need satellite technology to help teachers... videotapes... floppy disks. You will see major, significant, educational changes in the next five to 10 years," Pursell said.

A SECOND PET Pursell project is being studied by the National Science Foundation: spreading educational research to the classroom teacher.

Consulting dozens of veteran teachers in the 2nd District, from Livonia to Jackson, Pursell last winter found the federal government was spending millions for educational research that most teachers outside Ann Arbor didn't even know about.

The concept NSF is studying, he said in an interview, is the one used in the agricultural Cooperative Extension Service which, beginning in the 1860s, transformed American farms into the world's most efficient.

"It worked then. It can work now," he said.

Pursell said Alexander, former governor of Tennessee, "cleaned house" in the Education Department. Christopher Cross, the assistant secretary who accompanied Pursell on his winter trip, has been replaced.

"I don't know if that's good or bad," Pursell said.

Civil rights leader is honored Sunday

By Casey Hans
staff writer

Rosa Parks didn't have to surrender anything Sunday.

The 78-year-old mother of the civil rights movement — best known for her refusal to surrender her bus seat to a white male passenger in Montgomery, Alabama in 1955 — was given a seat of honor at the University of Michigan-Dearborn winter commencement and an honorary degree for her many years of accomplishments and activism.

Her action more than 35 years ago launched a year long protest and is commonly credited as the spark which lit the civil rights movement across the U.S.

"I only felt that, as an individual, my rights were being violated," Parks said Sunday before the commencement ceremony. "When I got on the bus — it wasn't to be arrested. All the black people, and many white people, joined in and made it a very significant protest."

PARKS RECEIVED an honorary Doctor of Laws degree Sunday — the campus' first such honorary degree given to individuals who have distinguished themselves through a life of public service.

"We're thrilled somebody of this magnitude would get this degree," said U-M spokesman Steve Wasko. He said the school made the decision about giving her the honor some time ago.

Parks was hesitant at first about accepting an award from the university because of racial concerns and incidents at U-M during the past several years, especially on the Ann Arbor campus. She accepted Sunday's award with a hope for the future of "bridging the racial gap," she said.

She has received 10 other honorary doctorate degrees, of which she said "each is special." She is also the honoree of such prestigious awards as the NAACP's Spingarn Medal, the UAW's Social Justice Award, the Martin Luther King, Jr. Non-Violent Peace Prize and the Roger Joseph Prize from the Hebrew Union College.

"We have made some progress, but we do have a long way to go," she added. "I certainly would like to see peace in the world, the end of war and the end of racism."

Sausage making is a first

I did something last weekend I had never done before. Remember the first loaf of bread you ever created? Maybe it was that perfect pie.

Last weekend, along with a fellow foodie toting pork shoulder and curing salts, we created homemade sausage.

Not just any sausage, mind you, but homemade brats and about 10 pounds of a spicy New Orleans favorite dubbed Andouille.

THERE CAN'T be very many folks out there who are into sausage making.

When my foodie friend visited the butcher's supply for some hog casings and requested enough casings for about 15 pounds of sausage, she said that the counterperson almost laughed aloud while screaming at the top of his lungs, "The smallest package of casings sold will make about 1,000 pounds!"

"No problem," my friend retorted. "Casings keep forever when smothered in kosher salt."

"You'd keep forever if covered in kosher salt, too," I responded.

SO WITH A powerful KitchenAid mixer sporting a brand-new food grinder option and sausage horns in hand, we trimmed pork shoulder, ground fresh spices, rinsed hog casings and stuffed sausage to our heart's content.

Fortunately, we had a little help.

A few weeks back, Bruce Aidells, one of the authors of "Hot Links and Country Flavors: Sausages in American Regional Cooking," visited Zingerman's Deli in Ann Arbor.

He so impressed us with his knowledge that we just had to get the book.

Anyone remotely contemplating homemade sausage should check out this tome, stuffed with regional delights such as Michigan Dutch farmer's sausage, Southwestern chorizo and authentic Southern Boudin, not to mention new American cuisine sausages like pheasant and wild mushroom, duck sausage and venison sausage.

THE GRINDING of the spices mortared into a paste, the rinsing of the elongated and twisted casings, the grinding of the meat and fat and finally, the stuffing, proved to be almost instinctive.

You knew when the spice mixture was just right by its smell. You could tell by the feel of the sausage if it was stuffed too loose or tight.

There was a "colonial" feeling as we sat around the table trimming the pork shoulder.

The gentle mixing of the meat, fat and spices so as not to "melt" the mixture reminded me of kneading bread, knowing just when to stop.

AFTER THE physical labor was finished, we found ourselves almost fighting for the chance to stoke the smoker with an assortment of alderwood, mesquite, hickory and apple wood that was soaked to aromatic perfection.

The brats, fortunately for us, smoked to perfection in under two hours, just waiting to be plucked with tongs and tossed with some freshly sautéed red and green peppers and Vidalia onions and sautéed baby red skins.

The Andouille summoned a smoking that would last at least 12 hours.

WHEN THE sausage had finally passed the 14-hour mark and I wouldn't stand it any longer, it was removed from the smoker, only to fill my kitchen with faint aromas of a smokehouse. Need I say more?

If you are remotely interested in the fine art of sausage making, you must get this book.

At home in Olga's kitchen

By Janice Brunson special writer

ASIDE FROM providing mere substance, food has played an unusually important role in the life of Olga Loizon of Olga's Kitchen fame.

It has been the means by which she has passed along Greek tradition to her children and their children. It has also provided a meaningful reason for being during a particularly difficult period of life, enriching Loizon in the process.

Twenty-one years ago last month, Loizon founded the first Olga's in a sliver of a shop in what was then the Continental Market in Birmingham. It was an instant success, frequented by businessmen and students who quickly adopted the small eatery as their hangout.

Today, Olga's is a chain of 55 restaurants in 11 states, employing some 4,000 people. Two years ago, the chain became a franchiser, with new locations opening at breathtaking pace. Among the many locations, there are Olga's in Westland, Livonia, West Bloomfield, Bloomfield Township and Birmingham. Rochester Hills is slated next.

At openings of each new restaurant, "I stand there in my little place with tears in my eyes. Oh, Daddy, if only you could see me now," the diminutive Loizon said, during a recent interview in her striking Mediterranean-style home in Birmingham, designed by architect husband John.

HER FATHER'S DEATH 26 years ago and continuing dreams of him afterwards inspired Loizon to spend a year with her children in his homeland of Greece. It was there she discovered souvlaki, later to become the mainstay of her restaurant.

Although reared in a Greek home of immigrant parents, enjoying traditional cuisine prepared by her mother and passed along to Loizon, she had never before tasted souvlaki until the year's sojourn to Greece.

"This is when I saw the sandwich. The kids loved them. I wondered if this could go over in America. The kids got very excited. They thought the idea was great."

After much persistence, Loizon finally purchased a spit on which to broil lamb and beef, carefully packing and carrying the prized possession back to the United States at the end of the year's visit.

But her husband opposed the idea of a restaurant and so, for four years, the spit sat unused in the basement of their home.

Meanwhile, Loizon prepared souvlaki for family and friends, spending endless hours refining the ever-important bread recipe into a softer finished product more befitting of the American palate.

Acting on inspiration, she added a sauce of seasoned yogurt to the pocket of bread, filling it with sizzling slices of meat garnished with chopped onion and tomato.

THE CREATION, a mouth-watering original that has since become well known as a gyros or hero sandwich, was virtually unknown at the time. Diners raved over the finished product, feeding Loizon's confidence that she had indeed stumbled upon a gastronomic wonder.

A visit to the local doctor for a case of depression provided the final impetus. "There's nothing wrong with you. Go out and get a job," Loizon said the doctor told her. She then revealed her idea. The doctor, a Persian by birth, grew excited. "Souvlaki. I grew up on it. I love it," he said.

With renewed determination, Olga's Kitchen was born within the month. Son Bill, then a student at Lawrence Institute of Technology, became a willing partner. Five years later the two were catering a party in Bloomfield Hills when two guests, properly impressed by the tasty fare, approached her about selling the business. Two weeks later, the deal was consummated over a meal of pancakes.

Loizon, the colorful founder of Olga's Kitchens, was retained as an ambassador of goodwill, a position she finds "very nice. They are very respectful of me and I'm very proud of what they are doing." Each week she is scheduled to visit various restaurants.

Last week, a 5-year-old caught Loizon and other patrons in a Detroit-area Olga's off guard when he asked to shake the hand of the woman who created such a tasty sandwich. "That's a true story," she said, simultaneously crossing herself in Catholic fashion.

GIVEN TO LAUGHING, she delights in the story and countless others, all evolving around her food. "Little things like that happen all the time."

The secret bread recipe, still known to only two people in addition to Loizon, is prepared fresh daily at corporate headquarters in Troy. Frozen bread balls are shipped daily to each "kitchen," along with Olga's famous spinach pie.

See Recipes, Page 2B.

Spotlight is on you, along with 4-star food, at the Bijou

A night at the Bijou is a night of stardom.

Guests are greeted and pampered in a style befitting this Southfield restaurant's Hollywood theme and in a manner that is unique today to establishments run by longtime restaurateurs like the Bijou's Swiss-born owner Walter Maeder.

Our evening there was full of pleasant surprises, from maitre d' Robert Kimoto's quiet attentiveness to the subdued showmanship with which entrees are prepared table-side to the parking attendant's impeccable timing. It was like being swept into a toned-down Hollywood production.

Maeder's restaurant is a bit of a classic — and so is its menu. It is influenced by Maeder's European roots and experiences. Trendy sundried tomatoes are out. Top billing at the Bijou goes to dishes like Dover sole, rack of lamb and filet mignon served with classic sauces, butter with almonds, peanut and bearnaise respectively.

It's also a place where guests can spend a tidy sum without much effort. Entrees are served with a vegetable, in our case green beans with tomatoes. Soups, salads and other vegetables are a la carte. And you can spend between $3.50 and $65 on appetizers alone, with selections like an ounce of Beluga caviar ($65), terrine of goose liver with truffles ($25), a popular smoked salmon ($12.50), or a simply wonderful serving of crab toast ($3.50). The four wedges of toast are stuffed with a delicious crab-mayo mixture and served with a sweet and sour sauce. Very good.

ON TO THE SOUPS, where choices include french onion, a soup of the day and the restaurant's extraordinary lobster bisque. The choice is simple — the thick, creamy and delicately seasoned lobster bisque is fantastic. It is sweetened with a touch of coconut milk and is equally good with or without the sherry that accompanies it. The soup is quite filling, but is a "must try" and is worth every penny of its $6 charge.

On salads, the Bijou again deserves a rave. Kimoto's excellent captain's salad features a delicious combination of celery, mushrooms and artichoke hearts all sliced diagonally to soak up the delicious creamy dressing with a faint taste of mustard. Bibb lettuce with seafood oriental dressing is also quite popular. Salads are tossed alongside your table in a huge metal bowl that is the envy of any home chef.

The showmanship continues as the waiter prepares main entrees table-side as well, from slicing the Chateaubriand to arranging shrimp artfully on the oversized plates. With a deft hand, maitre d' Kimoto deboned our Dover sole as gracefully and expertly as we've ever seen it done.

The Indonesian-style roast rack of lamb ($25) is truly worthy of the praise it receives. Marinated in spices which include a slight touch of curry, cooked medium rare and served with a peanut sauce that truly complements the meat, this entree is delicious and memorable.

Opera Ball to serve Viennese pastries

Douglas Flick, pastry chef at the Ritz-Carlton, Dearborn, will make Viennese pastries for the fifth annual Michigan Opera Theatre Opera Ball on Friday, May 3, in the hotel's Grand Ballroom.

The ball is in conjunction with performances of Mozart's "The Magic Flute" Saturday, April 27, Wednesday, May 1, and Saturday, May 4, at the Masonic Temple in Detroit. The $200-per-person, black-tie ball will evoke the magic of Mozart's Vienna. Ticket information is available by calling 874-7850.

For the event, Flick offers classical apple strudel and other Viennese pastries including Vienna Raspberry Fancies. He plans to serve 20 kinds of pastries, plus chocolates, truffles

CAJUN-STYLE ANDOUILLE

- 2 tablespoons minced garlic
- 2 tablespoons kosher salt
- 1 tablespoon fresh ground black pepper
- 1 teaspoon red pepper flakes
- 2 teaspoons cayenne
- 2 tablespoons paprika
- 1/2 teaspoon dried thyme
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- 1 teaspoon curing salts (optional)
- 5 pounds pork butt, fat and lean separated, cut into chunks
- 1/2 cup cold water
- 1 wide hog casings

Mix the garlic, salt, spices and optional curing salts in a bowl. Separate the meat and the fat into 2 bowls, and rub each thoroughly with the spice mixture. Cover and refrigerate overnight. (We skipped this step.) Grind the fat in a meat grinder fitted with a 1/2-inch blade. Grind the meat using the 1/2-inch blade. Mix the meat and the fat together in a large bowl, add the cold water and knead gently until the mixture is absorbed and the spices are blended. Stuff the mixture into wide casings.

If hot smoking, dry the sausages for 2 hours in a cool location and smoke-cook in a covered barbecue. If you prefer cold smoking (this is what we did) dry the andouille in a cool place overnight, then cold

Thrift bakery carries many name brands

Another thrift store has come to our attention since the April 8 article in Taste about bargain bakeries. Lynn Millar has been operating Lynn's Budget Bakery in Livonia for nine years. Her old location was at Seven Mile and Inkster roads and the store is now on Middlebelt Road, across from the Livonia Mall, in Martin Plaza.

The store carries many brands including Schaefer, Buttermaid, Rose's and Sunmaid. All are at 50 percent off and more. Sanders cakes are 50 percent off. The store also carries Pepperidge Farm, Nabisco and a large assortment of fresh Sanders cakes, toppings and candies at discount prices.

EGGPLANT CASSEROLE (Moussaka)

- 2 medium eggplants, chopped
- 2 medium onions, chopped
- 2 tablespoons minced parsley
- 1 cup water
- 1/2 cup tomato paste
- 2 eggs, well beaten
- 1/2 cup grated cheese
- 1/2 cup butter
- 1/2 cup olive oil
- 1 pound ground lamb
- 1/2 cup ground fennel
- Salt, pepper to taste
- 1/2 cup bread crumbs

Mix puree and cream together, making sure it is very cold. Whisk until soft peak. Four chocolate cuts wrap paper and let harden. Cut out circles and pipe cream in between. Garnish with raspberry or other fancies.

Pastry chef gives recipe for Lemon Bars

The Fox and Hounds Pastry Den will be represented at Cranbrook School's 13th consecutive Le Gala de Cuisine from 3-7 p.m. Sunday, May 5, at the school's Quadrangle, in Bloomfield Hills.

More than 45 of metropolitan Detroit's top chefs are creating hors d'oeuvres, entrees and desserts for the event. Tickets are $125 (friend), $150 (patron) and $200 (benefactor). For ticket information call Betty Badstuber at 641-0711.

Following is a recipe provided by Chef Eric Beerge of the pastry den.

LEMON BARS

- Yield one 18-by-12-inch sheet
- Dough: 1 1/2 cups powdered sugar
- 1 cup unsalted butter
- 4 1/2 cups cake flour

Mix the meat, fat and all the seasonings in a large bowl and grind everything through a 1/4-inch plate. Add the water, and the optional curing salts if you intend to cold smoke the sausages. Knead and squeeze the mixture to blend all the ingredients smoothly. Stuff into medium hog casings, and tie into 5-to-6-inch links. If you choose to cold smoke, air-dry the links overnight in a cool location. Cold smoke for 12-24 hours. Brats can also be hot smoked (we did this) to an internal temperature of 155 degrees. The sausages will keep 1 week refrigerated, 2 months frozen. Makes 3 pounds.

Recipes from "Hot Links and Country Flavors: Sausages in American Regional Cooking" by Bruce Aidells and Denis Kelly (Knopf Publishers, $19.95, 1990).

Mix the flour, sugar and butter in a bowl. Add the flour and mix until the mixture is crumbly. Press the mixture into a greased 18-by-12-inch sheet. Bake in a 350-degree oven for 35 to 40 minutes.

Remove grape leaves from jar; rinse and drain well. Place 1 teaspoon rice mixture on each leaf and roll sealing edges well. Lay in 9-by-13-pan side by side in 2 layers. Add 3 cups water, 1/4 cup vegetable oil and sprinkle with 1 teaspoon salt, cover with foil. Bake at 400 degrees for 1 1/2 hours, lower to 350 degrees for 1 hour, total 2 1/2 hours. When cooked squeeze juice of lemon over all.

Pastry chef gives recipe for Lemon Bars

- 6 tablespoons cake flour
- 1/2 cup baking powder
- Mousse topping: 1/2 cup lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon lemon zest
- 6 egg yolks
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 1/2 tablespoons gelatin
- 1/2 cup water
- 1/4 quart heavy cream

For dough — grease and flour one 18-by-12-inch sheet. In electric mixer cream butter and sugar until smooth, on low speed gradually add flour. Do not overmix. Spread on sheet with hands and pre-bake to a very light brown and cool at room temperature.

For filling — Beat together eggs, sugar, lemon juice and lemon zest, saving 1 tablespoon for mousse. When mixed thoroughly, sift flour and baking powder over egg mixture and beat in. Pour over pre-baked dough and bake to a golden brown. Refrigerate overnight.

Mousse topping — Measure water and gelatin. Keeping in separate containers gelatin should be in small

- 1 pound ground lamb
- 2 onions, chopped fine
- Parsley, salt, pepper
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1 egg
- 1/2 cup grated cheese
- 1/2 cup milk

Cut eggplants lengthwise and scoop out meat from center. Fry the onions in butter, add the pulp of the eggplant and then the meat. Season and mix well together, cooking for about 10 minutes. Stuff the eggplant shells with the mixture and bake in a moderate oven for about 1 1/2 hours. While they are baking, beat up egg and milk together and add the grated cheese. Season to taste. Remove eggplants from oven and cover each one with the cheese sauce. Place under broiler until brown. Serve at once.

Pastry chef gives recipe for Lemon Bars

- 1/2 cup fresh parsley
- 1/2 cup fresh dill (2 tablespoons dry)
- 1/4 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 cup granulated sugar

In a large pot, combine milk, sugar, farina and butter. Melt together. Under medium heat, stir mixture constantly until thickened. Set aside. Beat eggs. Take custard filling just cooked, at little at a time, and add to eggs slowly. Pour into hot mixture, slowly. Can make into sheet and cut pieces or make in individual rolls. Brush lightly with melted butter. Bake sheet for 40 minutes at 350 degrees. Bake rolls 15-20 minutes at 350 degrees.

Combine these ingredients in a bowl (no salt; cheese is salty enough for recipe). Add vegetables and spices; mix thoroughly.

Cut 1 pound filo dough in fifths. Folding process used is same as folding a flag. Clarify 1/2 pound butter. Take 1 strip; brush clarified butter on it. Layer another strip of strudel; brush with butter, then cut in fifths. Lay 1 heaping tablespoon spinach mixture. Place finished triangle on cookie sheet; brush with butter and bake at 400 degrees for 20 minutes. Makes 50 pieces.

Optional: Or, use a 10-1/2-by-15-1/2 pan and place 5 layers of filo dough, brushing each with clarified butter. Place spinach filling in center and spread evenly. Overlap dough edges and cover with 4 more layers of filo, each brushed with butter. Bake in a 350 degree oven for 35 to 40 minutes.

Remove grape leaves from jar; rinse and drain well. Place 1 teaspoon rice mixture on each leaf and roll sealing edges well. Lay in 9-by-13-pan side by side in 2 layers. # Grandmother finds cooking therapeutic

Energetic, loving, patient and committed are adjectives that apply to describe this week's Winner Dinner Winner, Ann Miller of Redford.

Miller is the mother of four children, one of whom is deceased. Her life revolves around her four grandchildren, four of whom she cares for during the week while their mothers work.

Believing it is important for children to have a strong relationship with their grandparents, Miller thoroughly enjoys the time she is able to spend with them. Their days together are never dull. They find adventure in the simplest things, from going on walks and checking out interesting bugs to learning how to sew on buttons and making a cake.

Now retired from Michigan Bell, Miller worked as a telephone operator for 30 years. In addition to working and raising her children, she was also a foster parent, taking in newborn babies until they were adopted.

TEN YEARS AGO, she and husband Jim got involved in the Research Life Inc., a volunteer group that raises money for cancer research at Children's Hospital in Detroit. This group holds four major fund-raisers a year, and through their efforts more than $1 million has been raised.

Miller was the driving force behind the creation of two cookbooks that have been sold to raise funds as well. If you are interested in purchasing the group's most recent cookbook, "Sharing Recipes II," call Miller at 532-3064. The cookbook sells for $6 and also is available at Floyd's Flower Shop and De Ros Delicacies on Five Mile Road in Redford Township.

Miller selected this week's winning menu from the cookbook, and it includes a no-fuss recipe for beef stew, as well as delicious recipes for bread, cole slaw and a refreshing-tasting orange Jell-O dessert. Miller finds cooking to be therapeutic. She loves to get involved in a good recipe that takes her mind off things, yet produces delicious, edible results.

She also enjoys gardening, is a stamp collector and is a member of the Livonia Civitan, a community service organization that helps with Special Olympic programs and senior citizen projects.

Congratulations, Ann Miller, for being selected this week's Winner Dinner Winner. Thank you for supporting this column and continued success with your many endeavors. Your family as well as the community to be user friendly," says Martha. Recipe pages offer column inserts with information on the particular food when it should be introduced in the diet, the food's nutritional values, and how you select and store it. "Every single recipe is easy," she says, adding that recipes were developed with the idea that a mother had a baby in her arms and possibly a toddler under her feet.

What have the Kimmels learned about food and children, based on the professional and personal experience with Teddi and their 3-year-old daughter, Renee? "Moisture in the mouth is critical to success with kids," says David, explaining that two of kids' favorite foods — pasta and Chinese food — are moist. Children like foods that are flavorful, colorful, bite-size, all of which are characteristics of Chinese food, he adds. "YOU CAN disguise food," says Martha, who often presents food in cookie cutter or other fun shapes. A teacher of cooking classes for toddlers and their parents, she believes that if you get children involved in the cooking process, they'll be better eaters.

DAVID DREW on his expertise as a graduate of the Culinary Institute of America, developer of recipes for Time-Life books and president of Caraway Associates, a Manhattan-based food consulting firm. To fill the information gap, the Kimmels have devoted the first 99 pages of the book to basic information, including introducing babies to food, information on nutrition and food allergies and their detection, teaching children to eat by themselves, and food preparation, storage and handling techniques. The remainder of the book contains the recipes they developed

A visit to California wine country

Learning about wine at the source makes an impression that is hard to forget. With the prohibitive cost of European travel, a California wine-country trip may be a sensible travel alternative.

Flying to either San Francisco or Oakland will put you within an hour's drive of Napa Valley. Napa is beautiful almost any time of the year, but it is becoming a busier place to visit. Traveling in off-season is best, but not everyone can plan his or her time that well.

In addition to more tourists each year, Napa Valley features bed and breakfasts, hot air balloons, gourmet restaurants, a wine train and nearly 300 wineries. All this is packed into a valley that is only 30 miles long and five miles wide.

If you would like to take a trip back in time and get a peek at what life used to be like in this old farming community, we suggest a visit to Villa Mt. Eden winery. Established in 1881, Villa Mt. Eden is Napa Valley's 11th bonded winery and still produces only 16,000 cases of wine annually.

IT IS OFF the highway, almost hidden from view, at the end of a curving gravel drive that takes you back 20 years. The cluster of small, white, frame buildings, complete with old water towers, offer a sense of history and a reminder that farming existed here long before indoor plumbing.

This land originally belonged to Mexican General M.G. Vallejo and

WINE SELECTIONS OF THE WEEK

1989 Villa Mt. Eden Chenin Blanc, Napa Valley ($8.50) is one of the best made in California. It is meant to be enjoyed when it is young, fresh and fruity. This wine is an excellent aperitif but in a style to accompany food. It boasts wonderful aromas of peach, fig and honeydew melon, with smooth, round fruit flavors and a touch of vanilla.

1985 Conn Creek Zinfandel, Napa Valley ($12) highlights cherry, spice and anise aromas with a supple, approachable mouthfeel, in a style that is ready to enjoy.

1985 Conn Creek Barrel Select Cabernet Sauvignon, Napa Valley ($18) is blended with small amounts of merlot and cabernet franc. It features broad flavors, good fruit and balanced oak. Winemaker Jeff Booth says it has the aromas of tobacco-leaf, mint and tar, ending with a note of chocolate. All Conn Creek Cabernets show intense, extracted berry-cassis character in a style that can be enjoyed when first released or aged for 10 years or more.

breath of fresh air and enjoy lunch with a chilled bottle of Villa Mt. Eden Chenin Blanc ($8.50) at the picnic tables right next to the vineyards. Other Villa Mt. Eden wines available locally include the 1985 Cabernet Sauvignon ($15), 1989 Chardonnay ($14) and 1988 (red) Zinfandel ($11.75).

Conn Creek's wines are made to enjoy with food, and Booth's taste for the pungent and spicy is obvious in his wines. At six years of age the die was cast for Booth when he joined his father on a 30,000-mile culinary adventure through Mexico.

The elder Booth, with a passion for food, wine and ideas, was creating the foundation for America's first authentic Mexican cookbook and a career in the pleasures of the palate for his son Jeff.

Conn Creek wines available in Michigan include 1987 Sauvignon Blanc ($12), 1987 Chardonnay ($14.50), 1985 Barrel Select Cabernet Sauvignon ($18) and 1985 (red) Zinfandel ($12). They are particularly impressed with the big, rich, spicy red wines from Conn Creek (see Wine Selections of the Week).

Brunch dish pairs tuna, asparagus

Trying to get the gang together but having trouble juggling iced appetizers everyone for a weekend brunch, since mornings often aren't so planned. You won't have to wake up at dawn because you assemble this dish the evening before and chill it overnight. In the morning, while breakfast is baking, beat up some purchased rolls, cut up some fruit, and put on the coffee.

TURKEY-ASPARAGUS BRUNCH BAKE

1 pound fresh asparagus, or one 10-ounce package frozen cut asparagus, or one 10-ounce package frozen cut broccoli
1 pound ground raw turkey
1 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup chopped red or green sweet pepper
2 eggs
2 cups milk
1 cup all-purpose flour
1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese
1 teaspoon lemon pepper
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon dried tarragon, crushed
Non-stick spray coating
1 cup shredded Swiss cheese (4 ounces)

To cook fresh asparagus, wash and scrape off scales. Break off woody bases where spears snap easily. Reserve a few spears for garnish. If desired, cut remaining asparagus into 1 1/2-inch pieces. Cook reserved spears and pieces, covered, in a small amount of boiling water for 7 to 8 minutes or until crisp-tender. (Or, follow package directions for cooking frozen asparagus or broccoli.) Drain, set aside.

In a large skillet cook turkey, onion and pepper until vegetables are just tender and turkey is no longer pink. Remove from heat; drain. Set aside.

In a large mixing bowl beat eggs. Add milk, flour, Parmesan cheese, lemon pepper, salt and tarragon; beat until smooth with a rotary beater. (Or, combine egg, milk, flour, Parmesan cheese, lemon pepper, salt and tarragon in a blender container; cover and blend for 20 seconds.)

Spray bottom and sides of a 13-by-9-by-2-inch baking dish with non-stick spray coating. Arrange meat mixture in dish; top with cooked cut asparagus and cover and chill. Cover and chill egg mixture separately. To bake, stir egg mixture well and pour over turkey mixture. Bake, uncovered, in a 425-degree oven about 30 minutes or until a knife inserted near the center comes out clean. Top with cheese; bake for 3 to 5 minutes longer or until melted. If desired, top with reserved steamed asparagus spears. Serve immediately. Makes 10 servings.

Stuffing goes in 'double-pocket' chops

AP - The following stuffing recipe can be used with the "double-pocket" technique for baked, broiled or grilled pork chops.

MEDITERRANEAN STUFFING

1/4 cup pine nuts
1 clove garlic, minced

1 medium red pepper, seeded and finely chopped
1 teaspoon butter
1/2 teaspoon grated lemon peel
1 1/2 tablespoons green onion, minced
1 1/2 tablespoons parsley, minced
1/2 teaspoon oregano
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper

Saute onion, garlic and red pepper in butter until nuts are golden. Remove from heat, stir in remaining ingredients. Stuff in pork chop and cook as desired. Makes 1 cup stuffing, which fills 4 pork chops.

BLUE CHEESE STUFFING
1/2 cup crumbled blue cheese
1/2 cup walnuts, coarsely chopped
1/4 teaspoon black pepper

Stir together all ingredients. Stuff in pork chop and cook as desired. Makes 1 cup stuffing, which fills 4 pork chops.

Childhood foods are comforting

Hot homemade soup, old-fashioned pudding, fresh-from-the-oven bread or biscuits, or anything chocolate are all comfort foods.

These seem to evoke fond memories of foods you loved as a child. We never seem to outgrow the taste for these delightful comfort foods as we think of the simple pleasures in life. Take care making your comfort foods memorable.

In a hurry for your pudding comfort, use the microwave. Microwave cooking of pudding occurs from all sides rather than only the bottom. This eliminated the possibility of scorching. For added convenience, measure, mix and cook pudding in a four-cup glass measure.

You may have given up on pudding thinking it is too fattening. Make some changes. Use skim milk, egg substitutes, cut down on sugar by adding more vanilla and use reduced-calorie margarine. The pudding will still be good and smell as wonderful as you remember.

THE "QUEEN" of old-fashion pudding is bread pudding, blending lemon and vanilla flavors. Old favorites also include rice, tapioca, vanilla or chocolate puddings. (Homemade, of course.) Basically, pudding comes in two versions, top of the stove or baked.

For a top-of-the-stove pudding, use a double boiler, being careful that the heat is not too high or the egg will toughen. Baked versions are set in hot water in the oven. Bake until they are "set." The water allows for a gentle heat to avoid the break or curdling of the pudding.

When fresh from the oven, steaming-hot bread or biscuits say, "Welcome!" The aroma alone gets the memories going. Yeast breads are easy to make and now you can use the microwave to cut the rising time in half.

Place the yeast dough in a well-greased microwave bowl, grease the top and cover loosely with wax paper. Set the bowl in a baking dish and pour hot water to the depth of about one inch in the bottom dish. Microwave at medium-low (30 percent power) two minutes, let stand in microwave for five minutes. Repeat this procedure three times or until dough is doubled in bulk. Give the dish a quarter turn after each microwaving period. If the top looks dry, carefully turn the dough over in the bowl.

Fiber-rich whole grains give breads and biscuits a robust flavor. For a light and flaky biscuit, handle the dough as little as possible. Too much mixing makes them heavy and tough. The most tender biscuits are made with solid fat such as shortening or butter. Biscuits should be cut close together, leaving as little dough as possible to reroll. Do not knead the scraps. Simply press together, reroll and cut. Too fattening for your diet? Try to serve steaming hot. There is no need for additional butter and jam.

A SIMMERING pot of soup is a welcome, comforting sight any day. Serve soup in mugs to spark appetites and offer comfort. The secret to flavorful soup is the broth or stock. A tasty broth can be prepared with little effort. To make a great broth let the mixture simmer slowly. If the liquid boils the broth will be cloudy.

Add vegetables and herbs for extra flavor. Carrots and onion deepen the color of the broth and add sweetness. Remember to strain several times and remove fat to make a lighter and healthier broth. Chilling helps to degrease broth and stock. The solidified fat can be easily removed before reheating. Soups make large batches, so the enjoyment can continue, especially since many taste better the second day.

The above comfort foods are healthier than the following one but certainly not tastier. Small amounts once in awhile. What can it hurt? Just like kids, many of us will eat anything as long as it has chocolate on it. A real chocolate fantasy would be not only a bar but a chocolate dessert filled with chocolate and frosted with chocolate. That's comfort!

Everyone seems to have a food or foods that mean comfort by representing a fond memory of childhood. On a stress-filled day, try one of your favorite comfort foods.

If you haven't tried tofu yet, you're missing out on a nutritious food that is high in protein, low in fat and cholesterol free.

Tofu, made from soybeans, has been a staple of Oriental cooking for about 2,000 years. It provides the major source of complete protein for the Oriental diet, which is largely vegetarian. Tofu has one of the highest ratios of protein to calories of all plant foods. It also is low in calories compared to beef. A four-ounce serving of tofu is just 82 calories. An equal amount of beef contains about four times that many calories.

Part of the attraction of this "meat substitute" is its ability to take on the flavors of whatever it is cooked with — from cheesecake to stir-fry dishes to tasty dips. Once you cook with tofu, you will find its flavor, nutritional benefits and versatility will win you over.

Tofu is usually found water-packed in a sealed plastic container and is available in most major supermarkets in the produce section. It comes ready to eat with no cooking necessary. Make sure to read the expiration date. Tofu, like milk, is perishable and turns sour after time.

STORING TOFU properly takes a little effort, but it is well worth it. When you get the tofu home, drain, rinse and submerge it in a container filled with fresh cold water; cover and refrigerate. The cold water should be changed daily. Tofu will remain fresh up to a week. If you have extra tofu that you don't want to use right away, drain and freeze. When ready for use, place the bag in warm water to thaw, then press out any water from the tofu.

There are many ways to cook and experiment with tofu: Try cutting it into bite-size cubes and stir-fry with vegetables, or add cubed tofu to create Tofu and Vegetable Salad. As tofu takes on the flavor of the food around it, olive oil, garlic and fresh spices combined with fresh vegetables make Tofu Tostadas a tasty Mexican entree.

Get creative! The possibilities for adding variety to your recipes with tofu are endless.

TOFU AND VEGETABLE SALAD

Makes 2 Servings

1 medium tomato, blanched, peeled and seeded

- 1 tablespoon rice vinegar
- 1 1/2 teaspoons peanut or vegetable oil
- 1 teaspoon each reduced-sodium soy sauce and honey
- 1/2 teaspoon Chinese sesame oil
- 6 ounces firm-style tofu, cut into cubes
- 1 cup each sliced seeded pared cucumbers and julienne-cut (matchstick pieces) carrots
- 1/2 cup each julienne-cut (matchstick pieces) red bell pepper, sliced mushrooms, sliced scallions (green onions) and bean sprouts

In blender container combine tomato, vinegar, peanut oil, soy sauce, honey and Chinese sesame oil and process until smooth. In large mixing bowl combine remaining ingredients; add tomato mixture and toss to coat. Cover and refrigerate until chilled, at least 30 minutes, or overnight. Toss again before serving.

Each serving provides: 1 Fat, 1 1/2 Proteins, 5 Vegetables, 10 Optional Calories.

TOFU TOSTADAS

Makes 2 Servings

- 3 ounces firm-style tofu, diced
- 2 tablespoons each diced scallion (green onion), red bell pepper, green bell pepper and tomato
- 2 pimiento-stuffed green olives, sliced
- 1 1/2 teaspoons each chopped hot or mild chili pepper, chopped cilantro (Chinese parsley) or parsley, and lime juice (no sugar added)
- 1 teaspoon olive or vegetable oil
- 1 garlic clove, chopped
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- Dash pepper
- 2 tostada shells
- 1 ounce Monterey Jack cheese, shredded
- 1 tablespoon sour cream

Garnish: cilantro (Chinese parsley) or parsley sprigs

In medium mixing bowl combine all ingredients except tostada shells, cheese, sour cream, and cilantro (or parsley); stir to combine and set aside. On nonstick baking sheet arrange tostada shells and broil until they begin to brown, about 1 minute.

Lite success

Florine Mark

Top each shell with 1/4 of the tofu mixture; sprinkle each with 1/2 ounce cheese and broil just until cheese melts, about 1 minute.

To serve, transfer tostadas to serving platter and serve with sour cream on the side. Garnish platter with cilantro (or parsley).

Each serving provides: 1 Protein, 1 Bread, 1/2 Vegetable, 1/2 Fat, 20 Optional Calories.

THE FALLACY OF: "IF IT CAN'T HELP, IT WON'T HURT"

If you have arthritis, you are a target for unsolicited advice. Someone wanting you to try a dubious remedy, often will end with the words: "Try it. If it can't help, it won't hurt."

The recent epidemic of eosinophilia-myalgia syndrome from L-tryptophan, belies such talk.

As you may know, L-tryptophan is an essential amino acid; what we require is abundant in foods readily available to us. However among individuals with odd ideas of nutrition, L-tryptophan takes on special importance; as a result a market exists for L-tryptophan supplements.

The largest source of the tablets comes from a single firm. In 1988 it changed from a chemical basis for producing L-tryptophan to a bacterial method. In 1989 cases of a crippling-to-killing muscle disease called eosinophilia-myalgia syndrome, appeared in the U.S. Eventually investigators traced the cause to the company making L-tryptophan. The bacterial method of producing the amino acid resulted in contamination of the product with disastrous consequences to consumers.

The point is that anything that can't help, well may hurt. Don't take arthritis supplements unless clearly needed. All remedies carry not only a cost but a risk.

Chiefs, Rocks easy winners in dual meets

Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem blitzed the opposition for a second straight week in girls track and field Thursday.

The defending Western Division champion Chiefs smashed host Farmington Hills Harrison 103-25, and the Rocks ripped visiting North Farmington 105-23 in the Lakes Division.

Canton and Salem are 2-0 in their respective division races and the same overall.

The Chiefs won every event but the 100 and 200 dashes in which Harrison's Heather Conley had the winning times at 13.4 and 28.4.

Karina Kilpelainen was a double winner for Canton in individual events and also was a member of two winning relay teams.

Six of her teammates — Aleah Collier, Ifoema Okwumabua, Kim Gudeth, Christie Saffron, Amy Smith and Lana Boroditsch — had one individual victory each and participated in at least one relay victory.

Collier won the shot put (37-1) and Okwumabua the discus (104-2). The Chiefs swept first place in the field events with Stephanie Gray winning the high jump (5-3) and Heather Pastor the long jump (15-¼).

Gudeth, Saffron, Smith and Boroditsch were successful in running events with respective times of 1:04.4, 2:34.8, 5:40.3 and 12:38.4 in the 400 through the 3,200 races.

Kilpelainen and Ndu Okwumabua anchored the second half of the 400 and 800 relays, which finished in 54.1 and 1:53.5. They were joined by Collier and Ifoema Okwumabua on the 400 team, Michelle Dean and Gudeth on the 800 unit.

Saffron, Gudeth and Boroditsch ran the first, third and fourth legs of the 1,600 and 3,200 relays, which turned in times of 4:26.1 and 10:24.6. The No. 2 runner on those teams was Jennifer Hartke and Smith, respectively.

Harrison is 1-1 in the division and overall.

THE SALEM girls had four double winners in Nikki Santilli, Tonya Wheeler, Sarah Makins and Andrea Kinnelly, who also was on two winning relay teams.

Tracey Livermore won the long jump (15-3) and participated in each of Salem's three relay victories. Wheeler also had a third first place as the anchor on the 1,600 relay.

Santilli threw the shot put 29-10 and the discus 89-6 for her wins. Makins ran the high hurdles in 18.4 and the intermediates in 52.7 and Kinnelly posted times of 13.7 and 28.2 in the 100 and 200 dashes.

girls track

The Salem girls had four double winners in Nikki Santilli, Tonya Wheeler, Sarah Makins and Andrea Kinnelly, who also was on two winning relay teams.

Wheeler was first in the high jump (4-4) and the 400 run (1:03.1), and she followed Stacey Witthoff, Livermore and Jessica Moyer in the 1,600 relay. The Rocks won the race in 4:26.

Kinnelly and Livermore opened the 400 and 800 relays, being the first and second to carry the baton. Dana Driscoll and Alysia Sofios helped Salem close the 400 in 54 seconds and the 800 in 1:53.4.

Salem's remaining victory came in the 3,200 run in which Emily Farrell completed the eight laps in 12:47.3.

Jenny Weh of North Farmington won the 800 run with a 2:33.8 time and ran the first leg of the successful 3,200 relay (10:42.7). Emily Shively finished the 1,600 in 5:38.3 to win that race for the Raiders, 0-2 in the division and overall.

SHELLI GAUL and Kay Rodgers of Farmington combined for six first places, but the Falcons failed to win a relay and overcome defending Western Lakes Activities Association champion Livonia Stevenson.

The 77-51 loss dropped Farmington to 0-2 in the Lakes Division and overall.

Gaul won the high hurdles in 16.7, the intermediate hurdles in 51.4 and the high jump at 4-1. Rodgers was first in the long jump at 14-10½, and she outraced the Stevenson sprinters in the 100 and 200 dashes with times of 13.3 and 29.1.

Stevenson's Teresa Sarno won the shot put (34-11) and the discus (121-1). The Spartans did well in the distance runs with Carrie Creehan winning the 3,200 (12:26), Jennifer Pfander the 800 (2:36) and Gail Grewe the 1,600 (6:02.4).

Stevenson's relay times were 10:45 for the 3,200, 1:56 (800), 54.2 (400) and 4:31.2 (1,600).

Jason Riggs slides into second base ahead of the tag by Northville infielder Kevin Smoot. The Chiefs didn't have one of the better hitting games but still won the WLAA contest 3-2.

Pitching saves day in baseball

Good pitching served as a counterweight to sub-par hitting Thursday, enabling the Centennial Educational Park varsity baseball teams to win a pair of games.

Plymouth-Salem stayed unbeaten with an 8-2 victory over visiting Walled Lake Central, and host Plymouth-Canton trimmed Northville 3-2.

The Rocks are 3-0 in the Lakes Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association and 6-0 overall. Canton is 3-0 in the Western Division of the WLAA and 4-2 overall.

Chris Tomas pitched a two-hitter for Salem, but his teammates had only six hits — the same as the Chiefs — and made five errors. Tomas struck out three and walked two in six innings.

"It wasn't a well-played game," Salem coach John Gravlin said. "Tomas almost had a no-hitter. We didn't swing the bats well."

Jeff Belisle and Tom Davey had one double each, and Belisle drove in a pair of runs.

Junior right-hander Frank Learned pitched 5½ innings for Canton and gave up all three Northville hits. He struck out three and walked one.

Scott Kennedy entered with the bases loaded and one out in the top of the sixth inning, and he retired the side with two strikeouts. Kennedy struck out four, walked none, allowed no hits and earned a save.

The Chiefs took a 2-0 lead in the first inning and led 3-1 after both teams scored once in the fourth.

"We had the ballgame but then we relaxed," Canton coach Fred Crissey said, "and when you do that, crazy things are going to happen."

"Kennedy pitched very well in relief, and Frank did a good job. We just got a little complacent."

Brian Tiell had two hits and one RBI, and Jason Riggs, Mike Wougamon, Todd Pniwski and Michael Stafford had single hits for Canton.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Frank Learned pitched a strong game over 5½ innings to earn the victory for Canton.

Smith's work ethic rates No. 1

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Missy Smith, a 1989 Plymouth Salem graduate, plays No. 6 singles and No. 3 doubles for the Eastern Michigan University women's tennis team.

But if EMU coach Claudia Wasik made a list of her hardest workers, Smith might rank No. 1.

"It's nice to have athletes who recognize the value of weight training, conditioning and running," said Wasik, in her 12th year. "She comes from an athletic family. Not all tennis players like working as hard off the court, but she works hard at conditioning as well as stroking and is intent on improving in tennis."

"We're really never out of the season. The MAC (Mid-American Conference) consists of only the spring, but really we play year-round. We have a very long season."

Yes, indeed.

COLLEGE TENNIS teams play in both the fall and spring seasons and in between there is weight lifting, running and indoor tennis. Not to mention all the homework college students face.

Smith played soccer at Salem, often opposing her father — Canton coach Don Smith — and his team in the big games. She probably appreciates that sport more now than she did two years ago. All that extra run-

'It's nice to have athletes who recognize the value of weight training, conditioning and running. (Missy Smith) comes from an athletic family. EMU tennis coach ning has helped the younger Smith condition herself for her demanding schedule.

"It gets to be too much, especially in the spring," admits Smith, who plans to go into teaching after she graduates. "You're playing all the time and it's more demanding, more competitive (than high school). It's hard to do your work when you're traveling — and when it ends I'm pretty excited.

"My goal is to just do well, both in school and tennis and to graduate." The fall season is full of tournaments, while the spring season is made up of the MAC's six-team schedule. Eastern, which last year finished third in the MAC tournament, closed its league schedule Saturday with a home match against Bowling Green State University.

SMITH WAS 2-2 in singles matches prior to Saturday's action and as a partner with roommate and Florida resident Candee Nelms, she likewise is 2-2 in doubles play.

Wasik said she has been working more with Smith as a doubles player since she was only allowed to play singles in high school. (High school tennis players must play one or the other.)

Smith describes herself as a player who stays back and rallies, and Wasik has seen improvement in her game.

"She's playing the same position (No. 6) but her ground strokes are stronger and she feels more comfortable," Wasik said. "Her record in the MAC, she and I would both like to see get stronger, but she is stronger overall (than last year)."

Canton achieves 4th win

Plymouth Canton won its fifth straight dual meet in boys tennis Wednesday, trouncing Walled Lake Western 6-1.

Brian Schmidt also stayed undefeated at No. 1 singles, besting Carl Bustron 6-3, 6-0 in his latest match.

The Chiefs swept the singles contests with No. 2 Rod Jesena defeating Brent Mackowiak 6-0, 6-0; No. 3 Scott Jones defeating Nate Stovall 6-1, 6-2; and No. 4 Shawn Hart defeating Dan Milenko 6-1, 6-0.

Canton's No. 1 doubles team of Eric Mitchell and Jeff Fuerst downed John Bull and Scott Ward 6-2, 6-2, and the No. 3 duo of Tom Fazio and Steve Dale was a 6-2, 6-1 winner over Olge Kotlyar and Ronnen Golenbek.

Western took its only victory at No. 2 doubles where J.R. Matson and Jayson Schoedertine defeated Scott Boersma and Alex Warden 7-5, 6-4.

The Chiefs are 3-0 in the Western Lakes Activities Association and 4-1 overall.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Missy Smith, former Salem athlete, has continued her tennis career at Eastern Michigan University.

Tidal bore is far from boring

By Ann Corless
special writer

The city of Moncton is famous for two natural phenomena: the tidal bore and Magnetic Hill. Many people have heard of tidal bores, but few know about "The Hill". There are two places in Canada's maritime provinces where a tidal bore can best be seen - Truro, Nova Scotia, and Moncton, New Brunswick. Moncton even provides a viewing stand with floodlights so you can see the bore if it comes in at night. Webster's New World Dictionary says a tidal bore is "a high, abrupt tidal wave in a narrow channel, having great force." But the height of these bores vary from barely a ripple to several feet, depending on time of year and phase of moon. The tide comes in twice a day and there are timetables available everywhere to tell you exactly when the bore will appear. We were lucky to be there at the right time of year and month and were treated to the sight of a definite wave rushing in over what had previously been bare ground. The tides in the Bay of Fundy are the largest in the world and have been as high as 54 feet. That's a lot of water sloshing back and forth twice a day!

Although Moncton claims Magnetic Hill is the third most frequently visited attraction in Canada, it would be hard to find anyone outside Canada who has heard of it, although most guidebooks give it at least passing mention. Unless you experience it yourself, you would be inclined to pass it up or pool-pool the whole idea. The "hill" is a rather slight incline which you drive down, stop at the bottom, put the car in neutral - and find yourself going backwards "uphill" rather rapidly until you coast to a stop at the "top". Logic tells you it must be an optical illusion rather than a giant magnet pulling you up (as the signs would have you believe). However, a logical explanation doesn't seem to fit when you're behind the wheel looking "down" at the bottom of the hill as you fight an inclination to step on the brakes! Anyway, even doubting Thomases should give it a try, just for fun. In my mind, Moncton's best attraction is the charming Hotel Canadiana where we had a most pleasant stay. The word hotel is really a misnomer as the Canadiana is far more like an inn, having only 17 rooms and the appearance of a very large house. Each room has been lovingly refinished and decorated in individual ways, sort of a cross between Colonial and Victorian. All rooms have private baths and are spotlessly clean and comfortable. There's a lovely formal Victorian sitting room on the main floor and another lounge on the top floor for TV viewing, writing, or relaxing. While breakfasts are not included, they can be obtained to order. The Canadiana also has the advantage of being centrally located almost in the heart of downtown, but yet away from heavy traffic. Price for a double was about $53. The address is 46 Archibald St., Moncton, New Brunswick E1A4L6, (506) 382-1054.

ROPEWELL CAPE
Another scenic highlight of my trip was the "flowerpot" rocks at Hopewell Cape Provincial Park, about 20 miles south of Moncton. These are huge monoliths, standing up to 50 feet high on the beach, which over many years have broken off from the surrounding cliffs. But trees and other vegetation continue to grow on top, hence the nickname flowerpots. At low tide you can climb down a staircase from the cliffs and walk on the beach around these large formations, some of which describe natural arches.

Ann Corless, author of this article (at right), contemplates a brace of oxen at Kings Landing, an historical settlement in Fredericton, New Brunswick.

There are also many caves to be found in the cliffs. Here again, the high tides of the Bay of Fundy play an interesting part, as in less than an hour, what has been an exposed sandy beach is covered with water, rising rapidly to as high as 40 feet and leaving only the upper part of the rocks exposed. From here one can continue around to Fundy National Park and pick up the main highway leading to St. John. Oh yes, one requirement of this trip is to stop at the little village of Alma, known as the "Home of the Sticky Bun," and pick up at least one of these delectable gooey delights.

FREDERICTON/KINGS LANDING
When you're tired of the coastal routes, one of the prettiest drives in the Maritimes takes you inland from St. John to Fredericton, following the meandering St. John River (Highway 102). One of the delights of this route is being able to cross back and forth over the river at several points along the way via the tiny car ferries that run continuously. They are all free, and the crossings take just a few minutes. Fredericton, the capital of New Brunswick, is a gracious city of tree-lined streets and elegant homes. The downtown area has a self-guided walking tour which takes you around the major historical buildings, parks and monuments. A truly serendipitous experience in the Fredericton area was a side trip to Kings Landing, about 20 miles away. Kings Landing is a restored village typical of the loyalist settlements that sprang up after the Revolutionary War. It's a bit like Greenfield Village, but far more of a living museum covering 300 acres of picturesque countryside containing homes, stores and farms depicting life as it was in New Brunswick's past. Costumed residents carry out daily tasks, and farm animals are used as they were in days gone by. A huge waterwheel-powered sawmill still cuts timber and provides one of those perfect picture opportunities as you see the building reflected in the river below. Kings Landing really makes you feel part of a way of life long past.

FDR's cottage a favorite New Brunswick attraction

their children. The red Roosevelt Cottage still stands beside the sea in the park and can be toured. If you're lucky, Linnea Calder will be there, talking in an aging voice about the days when her father and mother worked at the cottage. "The park inherited me," she says.

The Roosevelt Campobello International Park occupies 1,200 acres at the bridge end of the island. Alice Gough works "next door" at the Herring Cove Provincial Park, with its sand beaches, picnic areas and campsites, and she cheerfully drove me around the rest of the island. Campobello has 1,300 residents and three villages, each tied to the sea with colorful fishing boats, docks and wharves. We drove uphill to the Owen House, where painter Joyce Morell runs a bed-and-breakfast. We saw the historic churches and the East Quoddy Head Lighthouse on Head Harbour Island at the opposite end of the island from the bridge.

"My son and his children walked across to the lighthouse at low tide once and stayed too long," Alice said. "They were trapped there for hours until the tide went out again."

It's hard to visualize a 28-foot tide, even if you've seen the waters of the St. John River rushing upstream, or the famous tidal bore in Nova Scotia. The water rises five feet an hour, so Alice's family could pick their way across the narrow channel at low tide but were faced with water 28 feet deep at high tide. "Could they swim back?" I asked. "The water's too cold. Even the fishermen don't learn how to swim. The tide goes out so far, it brings very cold water back to shore."

When I told that story to Billy McCready later, she said "this water is either very refreshing or very cold." She's been known to lead strangers to the beach, yell "last one in is a rotten egg" and await the results. If you like to walk quiet beaches, take land ferries, watch whales swimming and eagles flying, you'll love the Quoddy Loop. You can take a boat out of St. Andrews, ride down the west pass past Deer Island, cross through the second largest whirlpool on Earth at Old Sow, see the osprey nests on Cherry Island and the cormorants and gulls on Green Island.

Start the day easy... It's sure to have some dramatic results.

Begin with a leisurely breakfast in one of Stratford's many fine hotels or cozy bed and breakfast inns. Browse through unique and intriguing shops. Stroll along the banks of the Avon river. Complete your day with a delicious dinner and an evening of superb theatre. Is there any better way to spend a day? The City of Stratford and the Stratford Festival welcome you to the 1991 season of 14 splendid productions in our 3 magnificent playhouses - a choice as rich and varied as the charms of the city and surrounding countryside.

History turns to stone in Canada

Rocky Atlantic coastlines. Lighthouses shrouded in mist. Fishing boats knocking against net-webbed walls. Where are you in North America?

If you said New England, you were close but not quite close enough. Canadians call them the maritime provinces, or The Maritimes: New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland.

Americans from Virginia and New Mexico like to argue about which state has the oldest European settlement in America, but they don't consider St. Johns, Newfoundland. We will celebrate the 500th anniversary of Christopher Columbus' voyage in 1992, but St. Johns celebrated its 500th years ago.

Newfoundland, sitting amid the world's largest fishing banks, has restored Viking villages that are 1,000 years old. In case you ever need a bit of Canadian trivia, the province of Newfoundland also includes the territory known as Labrador.

If you like to mosey through tiny fishing villages, photograph scenic coastlines and enjoy a touch of history converted to stone, you'll enjoy Newfoundland. Cape Spear National Historic Site is the most easterly point in North America. You can fly into St. Johns or take a ferry to Newfoundland from Nova Scotia.

Nova Scotia, which means literally New Scotland, can be reached by ferry from several parts of Maine. You can see where French explorer John Cabot landed on this almost-island, photograph the French fishing villages that still stand on Cape Breton, tour the magnificently-restored French fortress town of Louisburg, and read a little Longfellow at the birthplace of Evangeline. Peggy's Cove is one of the most photographed places on the Atlantic coast.

Prince Edward Island has many claims to fame, but most of us know it best as the site of "Anne of Green Gables."

New Brunswick is the subject of our main story this week. If you get beyond the Quoddy Loop you'll want to explore St. John, the restored Loyalist village at Kings Landing, the flowerpot rocks at Hopewell Cape Provincial Park near Moncton, etc.

CANADIAN TOURISM TIPS

TULIP FESTIVAL

Three million tulips will bloom along the Rideau Canal May 10-20 for the 40th anniversary of the Canadian Tulip Festival in Ottawa.

Queen Juliana of the Netherlands donated the tulips to the Canadian government because her daughter, Princess Margriet, was born in Canada during World War II.

A craft show featuring 70 artisans from across Canada will be a major feature of the festival May 15-20. Nearby, there are continuous performances of music and other entertainment. Of the more than 70 events, the flotilla on the Rideau Canal (May 19) is a favorite crowd-pleaser.

BLYTH FESTIVAL

The Blyth Festival in Blyth, Ontario, begins June 14 and runs through Sept. 14, offering professional productions of Canadian plays and musicals. In most cases these stage presentations are being produced for the first time. For information, call (800) ONTARIO.

New Brunswick

By Iris Sanderson Jones
special writer

"We tell people that we're a republic and we're bilingual. We speak Canadian and American. I'm from New Brunswick, but I speak American perfectly."

That was Billy McCready talking as we got off the Deer Island ferry at Campobello Island and headed for the Roosevelt Campobello International Park. She is the voice of the Quoddy Loop, an area that runs up the coast of Maine and down the coast of New Brunswick, circling Passamaquoddy Bay.

Passamaquoddy means "the people of the fish," which was appropriate when Indian fishermen welcomed Samuel de Champlain in 1604 and when Captain William Owen landed in 1881 as the first Principal Proprietary of the Great Outer Island of Passamaquoddy, with a land grant from King George III.

The translation is appropriate now, when local fishermen go out in their purse seiners, sardine carriers, fish draggers and handliners, riding the 28-foot tides that are famous in this area. Check the package of frozen fish you have in your freezer; it probably comes from here.

Most people come to Campobello Island by bus or car over the Franklin D. Roosevelt International Memorial Bridge from Lubec, Maine, visit the Roosevelt cottage, and continue around the Quoddy Loop, sometimes stopping at bed-and-breakfasts along the way or taking the whale-watching tours.

We came 60 miles south from the capital city of St. John, New Brunswick, via towns that raise Atlantic salmon from fingerlings, and past the lobster ponds of Deer Island.

"In the old days, they used lobster as fertilizer around here. When guests came, they aired out their houses and served beef." That was Alice Gough, wife of a fisherman, mother of a fisherman. Alice hasn't bought salmon or lobster for years. "Somebody always gives them to me; always more than one. One lobster is just an aggravation."

Alice says too many people come to Campobello to see FDR and move on, so she was pleased to know I had checked in to the Campobello Island Club Lodge and was staying at least a day.

There are many islands in the Passamaquoddy area. Campobello is famous because Roosevelt spent his childhood summers here, sailing to Grand Manan Island, fishing the bay. Polio struck him here, so he was carried away in a stretcher, returning in a wheelchair twice as US president.

He called Campobello his "beloved isle." The film at the Roosevelt Campobello International Park tells how his father, James Roosevelt, built a summer house here, and how his mother bought a summer cottage for Franklin, Eleanor and

Canadian railroad ride a rousing revelation

By Phyllis Kreger Stillman
special writer

Most people, when making train reservations, don't think they can afford first-class seats. But Via Rail, Canada's version of Amtrak, offers a first-class bargain. For $25 more than the coach fare of $54.57 Canadian, you can travel first class between Windsor and Toronto on what is called the Club Car. The one-way cost, tax included, is $70.62 Canadian.

The Club Car is only available with a regularly-priced ticket. A limited number of discounted coach seats are available any day but Friday and Sunday for $33.17 Canadian with a five-day advance purchase, but you must pay the regular fare

reader's report

to ride in the Club Car.

Is first class worth the extra cost? I traveled coach class to Toronto and first class on the return trip. Based on immediate comparison, I felt the Club Car was worth the extra money.

The benefits of first-class travel start as soon as you reach the station. If you've ever returned by train from Toronto on a Sunday, you'll undoubtedly remember the long line of people waiting to board the train. As a first-class passenger you can walk right past that line because Club Car passengers board first.

Once aboard, you'll see that the car itself is different. There are fewer seats (38 opposed to 52-75 in coach, depending on the car), the seats are wider and more comfortable, the rest rooms are much larger and the car is non-smoking.

But the biggest difference on the Club Car is service. There are two service attendants who pamper Club Car passengers.

The pampering starts as soon as you leave the station when attendants make the first of many trips down the aisle offering soft drinks, mixed drinks, beer and peanuts. If you get thirsty or hungry between scheduled passes, never fear: You can ask for whatever you want, whenever you want it.

Incidentally, the Club Car is a great value for people who like to drink. In coach, beer costs about $3.50 and mixed drinks are more than $4. In the Club Car, alcoholic beverages are free, and available whenever you want them.

Hot meals with wine are served halfway through trip. (In coach you get cold snacks.) Hot towels, brought around just before dinner, are a nice, classy touch.

The meal starts with a fresh salad, fruit cup and a roll. Two entrees are offered. On my trip the choice was between sole with crab stuffing and steak with mushrooms.

MOVING PICTURES

How 'Toy Soldiers' is told makes for a good movie

My apologies to C. & P.S. of Rochester Hills for erroneously listing "The Five Heartbeats." You're both quite correct, it is an R film. Thanks for the rest of your very nice letters. To all those who avoid R-rated films, my apologies, and don't hesitate to check box office listings and verify that this column was correct.

On the surface of it, the "Toy Soldiers" (R, 112 minutes) plot isn't too promising. Colombian drug lord Enrique Call (Jesse Doran) is extradited to the U.S. His son, Luis (Andrew Divoff) leads a terrorist seizure of the private boys school, The Regis, attended by the son of the federal judge with jurisdiction over the Call case.

But the FBI is one step ahead of Call and removes the judge's son. Unfortunately, for Call's plan, the FBI left behind five "problem" students whose pranks have (Louis Gossett, Jr.) and the school's headmaster (Denholm Elliott).

Obviously, these five are more than a match for the terrorists who have taken their school hostage. It's not the story so much, as how it's told, and "Toy Soldiers" turns out to be an entertaining, fast-paced adventure story with good performances by all concerned, including the five troublemakers, led by Bill Tepper (Sean Astin) who is the obvious ringleader and keeps Joey Trotta (Will Wheaton), Smuffy Brashers (Keith Coogan), Ricardo Montoya (George Perez) and Hank Giles (T.E. Russell) inspired by his personal courage. If you analyze "Toy Soldiers" too much, however, it spoils the fun of the adventure so just go and try it, you'll like it.

"OSCAR" (D-, PG, 105 minutes) proves that it is impossible to mix Runyon's "Guys and Dolls," Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro," Abbott and Costello and the Three Stooges, particularly when the lead of this excessively obvious and exaggerated farce is badly played by Mumbles Stallone.

Until the last 10 minutes or so when a strange tropical brain fever destroyed the mind of director/scenarist Michael Lindsay-Hogg, "The Object of Beauty" (A-, R, 106 minutes) is an excellent, compelling film.

Despite an inappropriate conclusion, it is highly recommended as a fine character piece about two decadent lovers, Jake (John Malkovich) and Tina (Andie Macdowell), living on the edge of the fast lane. They are so totally committed to themselves that the world merely serves as a pleasant backdrop to provide the pleasures they regularly require — even if it's a dozen bottles of Perrier in the middle of the night.

But they can't afford it because Jake's such a despicable ass that no one will provide credit when his market trading adventures collapse. All they have left is her bronze head by Sir Henry Moore. The statue and its value is destructive as their privileged life collapses in a welter of deceit and recrimination, as might be expected of such shallow folks. Malkovich and Macdowell perform so well against True story of Detroit's William Street who was an impresario of doctors and other folks. "Class Action" (C+, R, 100 minutes).

Father-daughter attorneys, Gene Hackman and Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio, are not a team. "Dances With Wolves" (A, PG-13, 189 minutes).

Kevin Costner's magnificent ode to brotherhood and brutality on America's western frontier during and after the Civil War. "Defending Your Life" (C, PG, 95 minutes).

Unsatisfactory romance in the afterlife as Albert Brooks defends his life and falls in love with Meryl Streep. "The Doors" (C, R, 135 minutes).

Oliver Stone's overly long, repetitive story of Jim Morrison and rock group The Doors. Excessive attention to Morrison's drug, booze and sex problems are neither attractive nor entertaining. Doubtful, as well, that it will serve as a cautionary lesson.

Grading the movies table with columns A+ through Z and descriptions like 'Top marks - sure to please', 'Close behind - excellent', etc.

FEW RECENT films have been as suspenseful and mind-joggling as "A Kiss Before Dying" (B+, R, 96 minutes). Writer/director John Darden's ("Fatal Attraction") latest contribution to screen entertainment.

The story centers around the wealthy Carson family, secretly victimized by Jonathan Corliss (Matt Dillon), a psychopathic killer who always seems to be one step ahead of everyone else as he becomes involved with one of the Carson daughters — they're both played by Sean Young.

Jonathan picks on the daughter who is a sort of Mother Theresa of the Streets, she takes care of everyone but herself. The film's momentum and tension is generated by foreshadowing, music pounding in deep tones and the clarity of editing which makes a complicated plot easy to follow.

Despite an inappropriate conclusion, it is highly recommended as a fine character piece about two decadent lovers, Jake (John Malkovich) and Tina (Andie Macdowell), living on the edge of the fast lane. They are so totally committed to themselves that the world merely serves as a pleasant backdrop to provide the pleasures they regularly require — even if it's a dozen bottles of Perrier in the middle of the night.

Grady Hazy sees success clearly

By Larry O'Connor staff writer

A band starting out needs many things: A vision, a good batch of songs and a determination to succeed. Three members of Grady Hazy had all of those, but were missing one little ingredient — a lead singer.

CYNICISM, THOUGH doesn't have a ducat to ride with this band. Grady Hazy plans to leave for the west coast in October with wide-eyed ambition and belief their virulent blend of funk, punk and rock'n'roll will be clamored for by record executives.

THE decision to go (to L.A.) was my own, said Scott, who will also look for a job in Los Angeles. He graduates in May from Center for Creative Studies with a degree in industrial design. "I told them (band members) if they wanted to come out, it was up to them."

Members of the band obviously think so. This trend has led them to believe this is a divining rod for their funk-invested guitar music to head west. And we're not talking about venturing out to Ann Arbor.

Grady Hazy has set their sights on Los Angeles, a place where rock'n'roll dreams are often left scattered like losing tickets at the race track after derby day. Insert all the proper cliches.

Trout and Scott collaborate on songwriting. Scott said he's tries to use symbolism when writing numbers, trying to avoid the typical boy-meets-girl stuff.

"I never got straight for a message," Scott said. "I try to make it a little quiz for everyone to figure out."

The funkier side to Grady Hazy's sound comes from Trout's guitar, while the rock'n'roll blues emanates Scott's way. And the blues Scott speaks of are of the Jimmy Page Led Zeppelin variety, noting liked it, according to Scott. Their decision didn't surprise the singer-guitarist. "They're really serious about the music," he said.

Grady Hazy's music is about a merging of styles. Trout, Wigley and Stone were a trio, enamored with the snarling punk sound associated with the Ramones and the Sex Pistols. But something happened when Scott entered the fray.

REVIEWS

THE REAL RAMONA

— Throwing Muses

Throwing Muses is a Rhode Island-based quartet, fronted by guitarist Kristin Hersh and Tanya Donelly. "The Real Ramona" is the follow-up to "Hunkpapa," an effort embraced heavily by the British press and some critics on this side of the Atlantic.

"Counting Backwards," the initial single, hits you immediately with its jaggy guitar melody and gets things off to a good start. "Red Shoes" slows down the frenetic pace a bit — the rhythm guitar chords on this track border on the hypnotic.

"Shoes" and "Graffiti" a track that conjures up memories of Aimee Mann and Til Tuesday, are this album's highlights.

"Golden Thing" is a major departure. It sounds like a party anthem in the fine tradition of Kate Pierson and the B-52s.

Side two languishes in comparison to its predecessor. The only two Donelly compositions on the album punctuate the inconsistency of the side. "Not Too Soon" starts with an almost Go Go's feel and then diverges into a punkier version of Katrina and the Waves.

"Honeychain" starts slower with some breathy vocals and then transitions into cacophony. "The Real Ramona" could have been an excellent EP, but doesn't have the goods over the long haul.

"Guitar Voodoo," "Love in a Burning Universe," "Soul Deep." The instruments used on this record also hint at large fondness for the good old 1960s and 1970s. The keyboards completely capture the sound of the Doors' Ramsey's sound swirly, loungey organ. The guitar is firmly in psychedelic blues territory. The guitar player is prone to digress into long, extended Hendrix jams.

In fact, the entire first song, "Guitar Voodoo," is a big extendo-jam, primarily featuring the guitar. This is not a bad thing because the Dark side's music entices a listener to pay close attention through all its twists and turns. It's the kind of music that makes you want to hide your room, put on headphones and contemplate the universe. Or something like that.

What makes this band sound like it's not a recently unearthed lost classic is the vocals. The unnamed singer (we'll get to that in a second) diones with that sort of disaffected, bored, late 1980s, Depeche Mode-ish kind of voice — you know what I'm talking about.

Now onto that unnamed singer stuff. The Darkside is a very mysterious band. In the liner notes, no one is listed as actually being in the band except Darren Windsor who plays keyboards. Song writing and performance credits are simply given to "The Darkside." They do include their picture, so you can see if you recognize them, but you probably won't since they're from England.

Anyway, the album is quite groovy and these guys can really play — whoever they are. — Jill Hamilton

Answer or don't use a letter

Dear Readers,
I had a very interesting response from a lawyer last week about one of my columns.
A few weeks ago, I published a letter from a reader. She expressed pain about the confusion of her marriage and in an extramarital affair. The writer was anxious about her dilemma and asked that I answer her questions right away.
In her letter, she also said that she and her husband were going to begin seeing a marriage counselor.
I replied that since she and her husband would be seeing a therapist, I did not want to give any advice other than saying that getting professional help was their best course of action.
The lawyer I have mentioned was not satisfied with my response and felt that either I should have told this lady what was wrong with her or not use the letter.

I would like my readers to respond and guide me as to whether you would prefer that I not put the letter in or put it in with a less even-handed response. I think it would be helpful to the writer to do either one — not use the letter or be curt in a response.
What do you think?
Barbara

Flaherty soon found himself on the outside of the production, even to the point where he was replaced as cameraman by Floyd Crosby.
The finished film, though full of incredible imagery, was unfortunately released at an awkward time, when audiences were lining up for talkies. "Tabu" was one of the last great films released silent with a synchronized music score.
Murnau died in a freak car accident shortly before "Tabu" was released, which began the film's complicated legal history. The original negative was returned to Germany and thought lost during World War II. A quality nitrate print found in 1973 and the cooperation of Murnau's nieces (who now own rights to the film) allowed putting "Tabu" back on the big screen.
"Grass" and "Chang" were the works of Ernest Schoedaack and Merian C. Cooper, the directors of "King Kong" (1933). More than just curious predecessors of the famous monster movie, the two films are adventure classics in their own right.

Both were made under incredible circumstances. "Grass" records the migration of the Bakhtiara nomads of Persia, who annually cross vast snow-covered mountain ranges and freezing cold rivers will all their worldly possessions and animals in tow.
"Chang" made two years later, tells of a family's struggle to survive in the jungles of Siam. It included amazing animal sequences with man-eating tigers, filmed in close proximity so that the directors could achieve greater depth of field.
The directors, always interested in technical innovations, used a wide screen process called Magnascope to record a climactic stampede of elephants. The screen image opens up to almost double width, a gimmick that will be re-created during the Detroit Film Theatre screenings.
Simply put, the three films combined will display some of the greatest adventure sequences ever captured on film.

characters don't function well as generic incompetents.

WITH FINE cinematography against brilliant African vistas — and with fine performers like Cage and Giancarlo Giannini ("New York Stories") — "A Time to Kill" has the basic ingredients of an emboldening character study, but it turns sour pretty quickly because of its faulty script.

April 25 also was the release date for four significant foreign films, the best of which is Louis Malle's "Atlantic City." "Au Revoir Les Enfants" ("May Fools" (1990, R, color, 105 minutes).

The film takes some very funny and pointed shots at human nature in a black satire revolving around a large, dispersed family gathering for the funeral of their patriarch, Milou (Michel Piccoli).

Set in the French countryside and lovingly photographed with a quality suggesting French impressionist painting, the story is told against the backdrop of the May 1968 revolution.

The family members are mainly interested in themselves, their share of Milou's estate, the difficulty in obtaining food and supplies during the revolution and, only perhaps, slightly in grieving for their mother and grandmother's passing.
Malle brings the exactly right light but bitterness touch to this comedy of human foibles.

Dennis Wolfberg: getting high on life and success

By Shirlee Rose Iden staff writer

What could be better than having strangers on the street smile and call out your name, or interrupt you in a restaurant and ask for your autograph?

This type of celebrity is no small thing to a working comedian and it's no joke when comic Dennis Wolfberg declares: "I'm getting my biggest kick out of going around known as Mr. Y. Chromosome."

Wolfberg refers to his 4-year-old son and twin sons expected to be born to his wife Jeannie and himself at the end of summer.
Having grown up dreaming of being an entertainer, Wolfberg is living it out now.

"All this is beyond my wildest imagination," said the comic. "No matter what people think, we comedians are not morose, droll and depressed."

Wolfberg admits he doesn't have much to be down over with a career that has taken off like an intercontinental missile. "Recently, I was named the American Comedy Award as The Best Male Stand Up Comic in America for 1990 and was on the ABC network. That was great credibility."

WOLFBERG ALSO was honored with the title of "best drawing comic" by club owners. Actually, he has been voted tops by comedy club owners twice, and honored by Rave Magazine as top comic for 1989.

Wolfberg, who travels for appearances about 30 weekends a year, will perform at the Comedy Castle in Royal Oak April 30 to May 4. Wolfberg lived most of his life in New York and made the move to "Insel town" in 1988.

"Truthfully, since I'm Jewish I was going to be a doctor. It was

'No matter what people think, we comedians are not morose, droll and depressed.'
— Dennis Wolfberg

mandated that I at least go through pre-med studies. But when I got to organic chemistry, I was done in. But I got an M.A. in clinical psychology. So I'm a master but not a doctor."

WOLFBERG relates that he went into education and spent 12 years teaching sixth graders which gave him endless material for comedy writing.

"Teachers and comics have a lot in common," he said.

"I always wanted to entertain and my turning point came in the summer of 1976 when I landed a 3 a.m. audition in a club. In those days, I sang and played the guitar when the jokes bombed, and I happened to play a song that was a favorite of the club owner."

"This was sheer luck, because at that hour the audience was zero. The owner gave me a 1:40 a.m. time for another audition the next night and I was ecstatic."

"In those days, I sang more than I joked because I still had a lot to learn about the business."

Wolfberg, like many comedians, writes his own material which is largely anecdotal. His stories are derived from experiences in his own life. Early on, his material was about teaching in the ghetto and inner city life. Later, it evolved with his real life romance, his marriage, and the birth of his son Daniel.

"RIGHT NOW family discussions focus a lot on naming those twins," said Wolfberg who expects to have reams of baby naming stories very soon.

Jeannie McBride, Wolfberg's wife, is a former comedienne who maintains a close partnership with her husband.

"She's very much a part of the writing, the publicity, and every facet of the business," he said.

Most of the couple's friends are involved in the entertainment business, but Wolfberg said they also have "non-show biz" aspects to their social life.

The family is knee deep in renovation now, fixing up a historical house on the old MGM block.

"This involves having no furniture," said Wolfberg. "But I just got a desk and now have somewhere to count my money. My kid Daniel plays beneath the trees that Tarzan swung from."

On a vacation in Orlando recently, Wolfberg got a lucky break and landed a six-minute television appearance. "They picked up all our expenses too," he said.

The comic does a great deal of TV including regular spots on the Arsenio Hall Show, To Tell the Truth, Joan Rivers, David Letterman, Johnny Carson, and more. He did a one-hour HBO show and hopes for another end of this summer.

With twins boys on the way and Daniel growing fast, Wolfberg, a man who loves entertaining almost as much as his family, says that working 30 weekends a year gives him two or three times as much quality time as most fathers. And that's no joke either.

Dennis Wolfberg will perform April 30 to May 4 at the Comedy Castle, 269 E. Fourth, Royal Oak. For reservations, call 542-9900.

Comedian Dennis Wolfberg expects to have plenty of fodder for jokes, especially from naming a set of twins that will join the family this summer.

This Todd gives socks a pair of pockets

By Debbie L. Sklar
special writer

Hey, you men who are tired of carrying around prophylactics in your billfold, listen up!

Thanks to a West Bloomfield entrepreneur, safe sex is now as easy as pulling on your socks — literally.

Todd Decker of the Decker Group Inc. in West Bloomfield has created SAFE SOX available through Midwest AIDS Prevention Project in Ferndale.

"SAFE SOX are socks with a Velcro pocket discretely placed on the side," Decker said. "Inside the pocket is a condom."

The Velcro-flapped pocket also can hold money, jewelry, credit cards and other small necessities, according to Decker, 39, whose firm is credited with developing the forerunner to the SAFE SOX, the SOCAROO, the sock with a pocket.

"I had been thinking about the idea for a long time," said Decker who grew up in Birmingham. "I guess you could say that it all started when I was an assistant manager in the sock department of a K mart store in the early 1980s — I've always loved socks."

A graduate of Birmingham Brother Rice High School, Decker majored in advertising at Michigan State University. In the sock department, he said he always "kept way ahead of what was new and different in the sock market."

"THROUGHOUT TIME, socks have been pretty basic — navy, red, black and brown," he said. "But I always tried to keep the shelves in my department filled with different types of socks in all sorts of colors, textures and styles."

After K mart, Decker took a job with the Hanes DSD/L/eggs Corp., but later left to go into electrical lighting.

In 1984, during a business call in California, he stopped at a J.C. Penney store to check out . . . what else but . . . its sock inventory.

"I looked around and saw all these great socks with everything from sequins to charms," he said. "Then I started thinking and realized that socks had everything on them except a pocket for conveniences during leisure or athletic activities."

He checked with the salesperson about the store carrying a sock with a pocket. She didn't recall one, but "thought it was a great idea," Decker said.

"She wanted to go ask her manager, but I told her that was OK — I knew I had a great idea," he said.

During the next few years, Decker traveled throughout the country, trying to find someone to help him manufacture the sock and get the idea off the ground.

DECKER APPROACHED every firm from Reebok to L.A. Gear and Nike with samples of his pocket sock, but nobody was willing to take a risk. Although the idea was grand, trying to make the pocket would be the hardest part — and, needless to say, the most expensive.

In the meantime, he met with an attorney to apply for a patent, because "I knew sooner or later I was going to sell this thing," he said.

In 1990, Decker was able to find one company that would help him out. The man could order the pockets from the Far East. But there was a few catches. He could only order a certain amount at a time and there would be long gaps between the orders' arrival in this country. Decker needed 10,000 every few weeks.

Because his demands couldn't be met, Decker was forced to find someone else. The solution was literally heaven sent.

"One day I went over to this church and as I was walking around, I noticed about 50 old sewing machines just sitting there," Decker said. "I asked this guy what they were and he told me his brother made socks."

As it turned out, the man's brother owned a sock company in Warren. Enter Soyad Brothers Textile Corp.

"I COULDN'T believe my luck; it was amazing," Decker said. "The guy had been in the sock business for more than 10 years. I had him sign a confidentiality agreement and shared with him my idea. He was sold on it immediately."

Decker formed Decker Group Inc. to patent, register the trademark, manufacture and market SOCAROO, a sport sock with a pocket. The sock is manufactured under license by Decker Group and Soyad Brothers Textile.

"The sock has gone over really well," said Decker. "We've had tremendous interest from sports associations, corporations and theme parks," Decker said. "The Detroit Red Wings have purchased the sock and several other major organizations are expressing interest. We've already sold 15,000 socks."

Decker Group already is working on deals with Sea World, Disney World and Universal Studios. Locally, SOCAROOS are available at Dunham's Sporting Goods, Sherman Shoes, the Bloomfield Sports Shop and Tout N' Tennis in Birmingham.

Earlier this year, Decker launched the MAPP promotion of SAFE SOX, using the idea of putting a condom in the SOCAROO to promote AIDS prevention and a safe sex message.

"AIDS IS A serious matter and we thought by combining that message with SAFE SOX, it was a classy way of getting a positive message out into the public," Decker said. "The socks are humorous to an extent, but they deliver a very strong message."

"Eventually, I want to have the socks available in all department of public health offices, high schools and universities."

The crew sock is made of thick Orlon/nylon or cotton/nylon and comes in stretch sizes 7-11 and 10-15. SAFE SOX are available in white, black or white with pink trim with cotton duck pockets. The lubricated latex condoms, one per pair, are supplied by a leading manufacturer.

SAFE SOX sell for $6 each and can be ordered by calling 1-800-MAPP-SOX, by fax at 1-313-548-4652, or by writing to MAPP/SAFE SOX, 660 Livernois, Ferndale 48220.

"MAPP and other AIDS educators are always looking for different practical and creative approaches to convey the serious message of safe sex to the general public," said Craig Covey, MAPP president. "We felt the SAFE SOX concept was an excellent way to get the message across."

Todd Decker has plenty of reason to smile. With the help of Soyad Brothers Textile Co., he's been able to manufacture and market his SOCAROO, the sock with a pocket.

And this Todd puts feet into customized shoes

By Debbie Sklar
special writer

Run along Reeboks, Nike and Adidas. Make way because there's a new athletic shoe in town and it's called MVP — Most Valuable Player.

According to Todd Beyer, vice president of MVP Products, based in Novi, "our company has revolutionized the high quality footwear industry."

MVP has been in business for more than a year and has developed the capability of creating, manufacturing and marketing personalized athletic shoes. Its target market is high schools and colleges . . . and eventually professional teams.

It may sound farfetched, but sales has been increasing at a clip of 75 percent each month. Not bad, considering MVP athletic shoes are only available through phone orders.

"MVP has the technology to take a specific logo and/or color combination request and incorporate that into a high tech designed low or high top style shoe for both men and women," Beyer said.

Prices for both ladies and men's MVP athletic shoes range from $61-74. And children's shoes are next on the agenda. Sizes range from 5 to 10 for women, including half sizes, and 7-13 for men (in half sizes as well).

THE COMPANY was founded by Harold Martin, 33, a former engineer and native Detroit who built his reputation as the builder of race cars and auto engines. In the early 1980s, he and his family sold their "Little Kim Race Cars," the only black professional race car design company in the country.

Now, he and 15 staffers are building an athletic shoe manufacturing company from the ground up. They're willing to take on the big boys in the market with an idea that some business analysts say is sure to be impenetrable arch support and comfort.

• THE INNER lining with additional padding, covered by a new soft nylax material reduces the potential of ankle blistering and aids in overall soothing of the foot.

"Today, there are so many negatives in the athletic shoe industry and we want to change that around; we want to offer something really great and we are," Beyer said.

Beyer added that the goal of MVP is to provide local colleges and high schools with a great shoe, at a great cost, that represents the buyer's favorite institution.

"Personalizing athletic shoes for high schools and colleges statewide is the open niche in the sneaker industry that will enable us to cut into the business of other sneaker giants like Nike and Reebok," Beyer said. "Tying education into athletic shoes is a hot idea."

Since MVP began marketing school footwear last summer, the company has received more than 300 calls from interested individuals throughout the state.

"The competition in athletic shoes is extreme," he said, "but with our dynamite concept, quality product and competitive price, we're going to try and bring some of the athletic shoe business back to Michigan."

EARLIER THIS fall, MVP produced shoes with both the University of Michigan and Michigan State University logos.

The MSU shoe is a full grain leather athletic shoe in a base white color accented with gray and green trim and highlighted by the Spartan logo. U-M's shoe is all white full grain leather shoe that has the distinctive block M logo and the maize and blue colors incorporated throughout the shoe design.

Community involvement and a commitment to the educational system are two of MVP's important focuses, Beyer said. Cass Tech, Plymouth-Canton, Plymouth-Salem, Livonia Stevenson, Redford, Wayne Memorial and Westland John Glenn are some of the local high schools that will be offered the opportunity to benefit the larger companies.

"Basically, what Martin has done is combine a light weight quality leather shoe that is durable and long lasting," Beyer said. "It's an all-purpose court shoe that can be worn for everything ranging from racquetball to running to wallyball."

Consider this:

• MVP shoes have improved padding and cushion to add performance without added impact on the feet.

• The EVA (ethylene vinyl acetate) midsole provides extreme cushioning and has excellent shock absorbing qualities.

• The polyurethane (durable synthetic rubber) outsole increases traction and adds to stability.

• The contoured removable insole provides excellent cushioning and shock absorption. The structure by MVP, Beyer added.

"MVP has been listening to the requests of many local students," Beyer said. "They're thrilled as we are. I think what they're really excited about is having the opportunity to show their school pride and spirit by wearing their own school shoe."

Northville seniors Karne Vogt and Shannon Price said their shoes with the Mustang logo are "awesome."

And companies like Ford Motor Co. are also entering one of the hottest ideas of the decade. Corporate customers are using athletic shoes as promotional items, employee incentives and for special events that are company sponsored.

Paul Przesmycki, MVP's operations manager, said that the shoes are a very dynamic new advertising tool that truly creates awareness.

"From the calls and orders that we've been receiving over the past few months, that statement couldn't be more accurate," Beyer said.

Loni Anderson sizzles in fact-based 'White Hot'

Film probes cover-up of starlet's death

Amy Schmidt

"She was a real party girl, I think probably because alcohol is a downer, and she was flying around so high on diet pills," tells Loni Anderson of the woman she is to portray Sunday, May 5, on NBC. "I wear so many gowns in this movie because all she did was go from one party to another, and one man to another—and several at the same time!"

No, Anderson isn't talking about Marilyn Monroe, Janis Joplin or Vivien Leigh. She's talking about the subject of her title role in "White Hot: The Mysterious Death of Thelma Todd." "Thelma who?" you might ask.

Bold, blond and beautiful, Thelma Todd was fast becoming Hollywood's queen of comedy in the early 1930s. Genuinely funny and talented, she starred opposite the Marx Brothers in "Monkey Business" and "Horse Feathers," as well as in her own comedy shorts. But the actress led a dangerously wild life, flirting with alcohol, drugs and mobsters, such as Lucky Luciano. On a chilly night in December 1935, her battered body was discovered slumped behind the wheel of her Lincoln Phaeton convertible in a garage above the restaurant that bore her name, Thelma Todd's Sidewalk Cafe. In spite of the bruises on her face and body, authorities immediately declared her death a suicide, and the case was closed—or so they thought.

For the last 14 years, author Andy Edmond has researched Todd's tragic demise. Sunday's film conclusion leans toward Edmond's conclusion—and the gossip of the day regarding one of Hollywood's greatest unsolved mysteries.

But Loni Anderson isn't giving the ending away. The former "WKRP" bombshell is so enamored of the project she's milking it for all it's worth. "This movie has been kind of a wonderful monster," she says, describing the "fabulous" gowns she wore on the set and the film sites such as Thelma Todd's Sidewalk Cafe on Pacific Coast Highway in Malibu and the famous Coconut Grove, restored to its 1930's look.

"I must say that I had to work out and work out trying not to get an ounce of fat on my body, because these gowns are very unforgiving," confesses Anderson, explaining that all of the dresses she wore were originals that had been remade to fit her. "I ate dry lettuce leaves the whole time I made the movie!" she laughs.

Even more enthralled is Anderson by Todd, herself. "She was so lovely and so funny, and playing someone with that sense of humor couldn't be more exciting. Everyone I talked to said, 'Oh she was so much fun. We just loved her.' But I think her dealings with men were her downfall."

Anderson's own life couldn't be less like her character's though. "I'm so very content," she says warmly, if not downright giddy, of her relationship with husband Burt Reynolds. "I'm married to my best friend." And of the couple's 2-year-old son, she adds affectionately, "he's quite a little hell-raiser—all boy—just like his daddy."

Emmy nominee Loni Anderson portrays a Hollywood starlet whose life on the wild side ended suddenly in 1935. The docudrama, titled "White Hot: The Mysterious Death of Thelma Todd," is said to expose the cover-up that shrouded the talented comedian's death for over 50 years.

SOAP TALK

Fans try to recall Mary Stuart's soap

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: My friend and I have tried and tried to think of the name of the soap which starred Mary Stuart for so many years. My friend thinks it might be Secret Storm, but that doesn't sound right to me. Will you help us?
— M.C., Mankato, Minn.

Dear Reader: The soap you are trying to think of is Search for Tomorrow. Mary Stuart, who had been a Hollywood starlet during her teen years, was cast as the featured character, Joanne Gardner Barron, in 1951. She continued on the show until its demise.

Dear Candace: I was so disappointed that General Hospital killed Dawn Winthrop off the show. It seemed with all of the affairs, lying and cheating, she was the only bright spot in the show. She was the only one doing good instead of evil. Now that she and Mark St. James (Edge) have left the show, what are they doing with their lives?
— S.W., Carlsbad, N.M.

Dear Reader: Jennifer Guthrie (Dawn) and St. James are actively pursuing their acting careers on the West Coast. It is a shame GH finally found a decent actress to portray the Winthrop character, only to have Gloria Monty toss her out.

Is this really the end of J.R.?

By Kate Ironside

One of the greatest publicity coups in the history of network TV was Dallas' "Who Shot J.R.?" saga. The conclusion to the cliff-hanger on the 1981 season premiere was watched by an astonishing 42 million households across the country. Little did we know J.R. wasn't going to die, but that he would recover to hang around another 10 years.

Larry Hagman was, of course, the man behind the evil Southern villain. A native Texan and the son of actress Mary Martin, Hagman began his career at Dallas' Theatre-in-the-Round. Later he moved to New York and then to England, where he was cast in his mother's big stage hit South Pacific. Eventually he moved back to New York for a series of Broadway and off-Broadway plays and his first television appearance on the daytime soap The Edge of Night.

In 1965, Hagman was launched to stardom as an amiable astronaut in the comedy series I Dream of Jeannie. His subsequent TV series following Jeannie's five-year run include The Good Life, Here We Go Again and Dallas.

With the demise of the 13-season series, Hagman said he can't imagine doing another series, but he has at least three roles waiting: a film biography of the late Texas billionaire H.L. Hunt; a good guy in the European-made film Vendetta, Inc., and a Love Letters co-starring role with Linda Gray.

Hunt no more for 'Red October'

By Amy Schmidt

Sean Connery and Alec Baldwin star in the submarine thriller The Hunt for Red October, Saturday, May 4, on HBO. Last summer's box-office hit dramatizes a U.S. Intelligence officer's dilemma of initiating a first strike against a nuclear Soviet sub headed for American shores.

Milo the kitten sails downstream while Otis, his bull-dog friend, gives chase in The Adventures of Milo and Otis, a heart-rending children's tale premiering Wednesday, May 1, on HBO. Dudley Moore narrates.

Anthony Denison (Crime Story) and Sela Ward (Hello Again) co-star in Child of Darkness, Child of Light, airing on the USA Network Wednesday. A Vatican priest is assigned the chilling task of investigating the virgin pregnancies of two women.

I Love You to Death is based on a true story about a woman who hired thugs to kill her womanizing pizza-shop-owner husband. Kevin Kline plays the Cassanova in jeopardy of losing more than his sex life; Tracey Ullman is his jealous wife; William Hurt, River Phoenix and Keanu Reeves depict the hooligans hired to do the dirty deed. The comedy premieres Wednesday on Showtime.

C-Span covers the American-Arab Anti-Discrimination Committee's eighth annual conference on Saturday. This year's timely topic: "Arab-Americans: The Struggle for Peace and Justice."

BITS AND PIECES

Singer Whitney Houston getting star-spangled reviews from fans

Whitney Houston

Arista Records reports Whitney Houston's version of "The Star-Spangled Banner" has become the fastest-selling single in the label's history, with about 750,000 copies moving in just eight days.

A one-hour documentary celebrating the life, career and musical legacy of Marian Anderson will premiere on PBS May 8. Celebrating her 89th birthday this year, Anderson reminisces about the people, events and influences that shaped her personal and musical development.

Actors Eli Wallach and Anne Jackson, wed for 43 years, will receive a lifetime achievement award at the Helen Hayes Awards show May 6.

The debut of HBO's The Josephine Baker Story outscored all three broadcast networks in the Nielsen's and Showtime's premiere of Pretty Woman, too. "I guess our pretty woman was better than theirs," said HBO's senior vice president Robert Cooper, gleefully.

Rapper M.C. Hammer is the subject of a new animated children's series scheduled for ABC this fall. Hammerman takes place before he discovers his "magic dancing shoes."

Chevy Chase and Julianne Phillips are caught in Southern intrigue in Fletch Lives, Saturday on CBS.
