Township looks at pay hike

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Canton trustees are considering a 5 percent pay raise for all non-union workers.

The board is scheduled to review the pay increase at Tuesday's public meeting after a vote on the raise was delayed last week when trustee Bob Shefferly said he would like to discuss the mattter.

"The timing seems a little bad for 5 percent," Shefferly said.

State employees are receiving a 4 percent increase, but lay-offs are necessary to maintain the budget. Shefferly added that he would like to see a system to compensate employees for their work performances.

Canton's merit commission attached a letter of explanation along with the raise recommendation. The commission decides pay rates and other benefits for non-union township employees.

"We wish to reiterate our position that we generally do not favor across-the-board salary increases," the letter said.

The performance appraisal system for the non-union employees has been established but hasn't been implemented.

Local DPW worker faces assault charges

A 40-year-old Canton Township department of Public Works employee faces a June 14 district court preliminary hearing on three counts of first degree criminal sexual assault.

Rodney C. Brown of Canton Township was arraigned Thursday on the charges before 35th District Judge John MacDonald in Plymouth. Brown stood mute and an innocent plea was entered. Brown is free on bond.

The charges stem from allegations that Brown sexually assaulted a 3-year-old girl in February 1990, according to Canton police. Police said Brown's wife, whom they declined to identify, was baby-sitting the child when the incident allegedly occurred.

Horse lover runs stable business

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

HORSES ARE special, says Nancy Lampton.

"I just love 'em to death, they're just really neat animals," she explains.

For example, some horses coming in from her fenced pasture to one of two pole barns "run into another one's stall, grab a bite of food, and go back in their own stall," she said.

In 1985, Lampton, who grew up in Garden City, moved with her dad to her 45 acres in Salem Township owned by her grandfather. Back then, she got her first horse, Blonday, and took riding lessons.

Not long after, she decided, "We bought a horse, might as well put up a barn."

NOW, LAMPTON offers riding lessons at her ENL Stables business and boards more than 40 horses. She also offers carriage rides along 6 miles of country roads to the Lord Fox restaurant in Dixboro, and will soon offer carriage rides in downtown Plymouth.

Ticket sticks not tag

Bump costs resident $35

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Canton resident Sigmund Soborowski said a bump in the road cost him a $35 ticket.

Soborowski was on his way to breakfast at Nancy's Restaurant on Sheldon Road north of Ford Road in Harvard Square mall April 23 when the series of fateful events began.

During his travels, Soborowski, 75, said he passed a couple of speed bumps in the parking lot in front of Kroger. Not noticing that a sticker designating that he's eligible to park in the handicap zone had fallen, Soborowski went into the restaurant and ate his breakfast.

A ticket lay on his windshield when he returned. It seems that the sticker fell from the dashboard when he drove over the bumps. Soborowski said he was issued the sticker in 1989 after he fractured his leg.

"If I was wrong, I'd keep quiet and pay my fine," Soborowski said. "But I think there's a little injustice there. I didn't try to get away with anything."

The ticket called for $75 fine. However, it was lowered to $35 by 35th District Magistrate Eric Colthurst.

Soborowski said he thought when he produced his sticker for handicap drivers that the fee would be waived.

Colhurst disagreed.

"IT'S a $75 ticket if you don't have a sticker or its not displayed on the dash," Colthurst said.

He lowers the fee to $35 if the sticker is not properly displayed, for whatever reason.

"It cost every taxpayer $35, because that's the approximate amount of money for that ticket to be issued," Colthurst said. "It's not fair to the taxpayer that it wasn't visible. If they have no sticker it's $75.

"It's a standard thing that I do no matter who they are."

Colthurst said the misplaced sticker causes another problem. Everyone who walks by the car is noting that the car doesn't have a sticker but is parked in the handicapped zone.

"They don't know that the person has the sticker," Colthurst said.

During the last two years, Colthurst said, he has reviewed 170 tickets issued to people who have illegally parked in handicapped zones.

Of that figure only about "two or three" didn't have a sticker, Colthurst said.

If that's any indication, Colthurst said, most drivers observe the handicap parking laws.

Board candidates give views on education issues

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Plymouth-Canton voters had a chance to grill board of education candidates at a League of Women Voters forum at West Middle School Wednesday evening.

Two four-year seats on the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education will be filled in the June 10 election. Running are incumbents Dean Swartzwelter and Roland Thomas of Plymouth Township and Canton residents Deborah Lynch and Bobbie Cleary.

LYNCH IS A FINANCIAL planner with a degree in business administration and work experience in commercial real estate development.

Lynch said she decided to run because of her concerns regarding government-mandated changes in education, her experiences as a parent and business professional. She's concerned about the implementation of the Michigan Model core curriculum, replacement of Superintendent John Hoben upon his retirement and communication within the school district.

Swartzwelter, a financial manager for Ford Motor Co., said he'd like to continue working on funding and curriculum issues, be instrumental in naming Hoben's replacement, and to follow the work of the blue ribbon committee studying the district's needs.

He said he believes the district has a social responsiblity to provide students with the support they need, especially those who don't receive adequate parental support.

Cleary, a chemical engineer, has work experience with Kerr/McGee Corp. in Oklahoma researching coal liquefaction for the U.S. Department of Energy. For three years, she's volunteered as a Sunday school teacher.

Cleary said she wants to work on improving the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools so that she can be confident her children will receive a good education.

THE DISTRICT'S emphasis on students' self esteem has led to a situation in which teachers report that second graders are reading at lower levels than second graders of previous years, yet grading themselves very high. Making sure students receive a sound education should be the district's first priority, Cleary said.

Roland Thomas, planning and analysis manager for Ford Motor's Pre-delivery Service Corporation, said this election is about improving the learning environment in a rapidly changing society.

Before this year's first graders graduate, the volume of available information will have more than quadrupled. While students need to learn the basics, change is necessary if our children are to compete in a global community, he said.

In response to a question on elementary counselors, Cleary said that while students need to have healthy self esteem — an issue addressed by counselors — "less than 30 percent of the school day is spent on actual academics. That's my concern," Cleary said.

Public Act 25

Candidates offered their opinions on Public Act 25, a state law mandating school improvement.

Swartzwelter said most Plymouth-Canton schools already have begun implementing school improvement programs. Individual school buildings will publish the required "annual reports," he said. "The thing I don't like is the additional state control, paperwork and bureaucracy it creates. The objective is good."

Lynch said part of Public Act 25 involves "implementing the Michigan model curriculum goals so that children will leave schools with a lifelong desire to learn. We need to increase communication and help our parents and residents in the dis-

Township eyes non-union pay raise

"If it proves successful, we hope to implement a merit pay system in the future," the letter said.

Pay rates for elected officials — supervisor, treasurer and clerk — in the past have been based on non-union employees salary grades.

However, the board is currently looking at amending that system and creating an independent commission to set those pay rates, said Dan Durack, Canton administrative services director.

Pay rates for elected officials — supervisor, treasurer and clerk — in the past have been based on non-union employees salary grades.

THE FOLLOWING are pay rates for Canton non-union employees:

IRS investigates records at Don Massey Cadillac

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

It will take nearly six months for the Internal Revenue Service to complete an investigation of a Don Massey Cadillac records-filing practice, an IRS spokeswoman said last week.

The local landmark Cadillac dealer, one of the nation's largest, remained open for business Friday after 20-25 IRS agents descended upon the business at 9 a.m.

The agents spent roughly six hours at the dealership, just southwest of I-275 and Ann Arbor Road.

Sarah Wreford, IRS public affairs officer, said, "basically we were executing a search warrant for records."

Wreford said the IRS — which has filed no charges against the auto dealership — had probable cause to suspect the dealership of failing to file paperwork on cash transactions over $10,000, as required by federal law.

Massey's secretary, Melissa Henaughen, said: "We really don't have any comment," on the IRS visit to the dealership.

"This is the first time we have executed a search warrant for this reason in the state of Michigan," Wreford said.

SHE SAID THE law requiring the filing of form 8300 seeks to keep drug dealers and others engaging in illegal activity from converting cash into cars. The form shows the cash transaction took place and includes the buyer's name, and driver's license and Social Security numbers.

Does the IRS investigation of the auto dealership send a message? "That wasn't the purpose, but we certainly hope that will be an offshoot of it," Wreford said.

Saying that only 882 of the forms were filed with the IRS last year, Wreford said, "That's not enough. There's a great deal of non-compliance out there."

"That's what we're here for, we're trying to fix that problem."

Don Massey told the Observer in 1989 that he didn't think much of car dealers acting as pseudo-police officers.

"If this happened, we'd sell the car," he said, given the scenario of a man trying to buy a car with cash.

"If he brought the cash we'd take it in a room and count it with him and deliver the car. If he's of legal age and has a driver's license, I guess we can't police where the money came from, and we could be very wrong, being inexperienced (in police work).

"We could make an accusation about a person that could be totally incorrect and wind up being litigated," Massey said, adding cash transactions make up less than 2 percent of the auto dealership's revenue.

WREFORD SAID the maximum fine for not filing a form ranges from $50 to $100,000 and five years in jail. The law requiring filing of the form was enacted in 1985.

The IRS agents visit to Massey Cadillac drew the interest of area newspaper and TV news people. One, Channel 2 photographer Mark McVittie, filed assault charges against an unidentified Massey employee who he accused of trying to take a video camera he was holding and grabbing his wrist.

In his complaint filed with township police, McVittie, 39, of Southfield, said he pushed the man away from the open van he was sitting in with his foot.

Horse sense guides area businesswoman

On a recent weekday, one of Lampton's three part-time employees was scubbing stall doors, as barn sparrows chirped and darted in and out of the barn. Another employee conducted a riding lesson in the indoor arena built off of one barn.

About eight feet above the sand-covered arena floor are windows set into a wooden wall. A look through the glass reveals a viewing room complete with TV, VCR, stereo and fold-out bed, for the horses' owners.

"If the horses get sick, they can stay here all night," Lampton explained.

She takes a visitor on a tour of a barn, and gestures toward the inside of a stall. "We bed them down with sawdust and feed with oats and corn," Lampton said.

She learned the business from talking to farmers, vets and other borders, and from publications. She advertised in the phone book to get customers.

OF HORSES, she said, "Each one has their own personality, they really do." They prefer the company of certain other horses, while shunning others.

And when it's time to feed, "The ones that come in first are the kings of the pasture," Lampton explained.

Yet, "Because they're an animial and because they think, there isn't one moment you should let your guard down," she said. Horses can kick from the front or the rear.

"You have to discipline them as fast as they strike," she said — by pulling on a chain over the nose, "or give them a little crop."

To reward them, "They love to have their noses or foreheads rubbed, or their ears rubbed, and apples and carrots. The quickest way to a horses heart is treats," Lampton said.

When it comes to treats, one particular horse at the stables goes for Craklin' Oat Bran cereal and Wheat Thins crackers.

People who board horses with Lampton include residents of Salem Township, Plymouth, Canton, Livonia and Farmington.

Festival fun

The park behind Canton Township Hall came alive Saturday and Sunday as soccer players, anglers and others participated in the Canton Challenge Fest. There was something for everyone. Above, spectators watched as remote control radio cars roll around a dirt track. At right, Jim Smith of Ypsilanti starts his radio controlled plane for another event. But it wasn't all spectator sports. Kids of all ages got to wet their lines Saturday in quest of trout planted in ponds behind the township hall. The festival started on May 24 and ended Sunday. Other events included a book sale at the Canton Library, golf, tennis, basketball and fireworks.

Rouge turnout falls short, but worker spirits stay high

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

There were sunny skies, but heavy rain the night before swelled the Rouge River and may have kept turnout below expected levels for Saturday's sixth annual Rouge Rescue.

Volunteers worked all morning at sites throughout western Wayne and Oakland counties. But while some sites saw fairly heavy turnout, it was slow going at others.

"We do this every year and I'd have to say turnout was lower this year," said Rita Spence of Farmington, a member of Bell Telephone Pioneers which helped sign up about 40 workers at the Nankin Mills cleanup site in Westland.

"There was so much on the news earlier about the river being high, I'll bet that had something to do with it," Spence said.

Though final figures hadn't been tallied, event organizers said overall turnout fell below the projected 3,000 level.

"WE'RE LOOKING at something fairly close to last year (when about 2,700 people participated)," Friends of the Rouge executive director Carol Weihe said. "But it may be just a little below that." Livonia-based Friends of the Rouge has coordinated the volunteer cleanups since 1986.

Heavier than normal spring rainfall turned the Rouge into a thick, chocolate brown mess at many area sites.

Flooding canceled two Detroit work sites along the Middle Rouge, Weihe said. Elsewhere, volunteers did the best they could.

Some three dozen teenage workers gamely scrambled down a steep river bank to help clear logjams at the Canton/Wayne site along the lower Rouge.

"We'd really targeted another area, but we just couldn't get to it," site coordinator Kim Scherschligt of Canton said.

Area volunteers participated at sites in northeastern Livonia, Holliday Nature Preserve, Westland and at the Western Wayne Conservation Association, near Plymouth Township.

"This is a pretty good way to do something for the community and to meet other people who are interested in the environment," said Don Hartford, an early volunteer at the city of Westland site in Dorsey Park.

A potentially serious accident was apparently avoided later at the Holliday Park site, also in Westland, where two men were briefly pinned under water when a log they were cutting rolled back onto them.

Setbacks, however, did little to dampen enthusiasm.

"IT'S NOT too bad here," said Shelia Majeswski of Westland, who helped out at Nankin Mills site. "We didn't find anything too exciting, like couches or automobiles, but we did clear lots and lots of logjams."

Unlike previous years, many workers steered clear of the river.

"Mostly, we stayed up on the banks," said Craig Schmatz of Plymouth Township, a Ford Motor Co. volunteer who also worked the Nankin Mills site.

Even though turnout was lower, observers from Take Pride in America were still suitably impressed.

"We were very inspired not only by the number of people who showed up, but by the variety, especially with all the children we saw" said Trudy Harlow, information director for the Washington, D.C. group that has five times honored the Rouge Rescue for its volunteer spirit.

Take Pride representatives roamed from site to site, observing cleanup efforts. The group, a promotional effort of 13 federal agencies, is deigned to spur volunteerism. It was the first time group representatives visited the cleanup.

Youngsters appeared to outnumber adults at several sites, including the Canton/Wayne site behind UAW 900 Hall on Michigan Avenue. Students from Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem government classes muddied themselves hauling fallen trees and other debris from the river.

Many of the same students would be scrubbed and fresh a few hours later, said Jenny Masters of Canton. "Our prom is tonight."

Learning program an issue

To the editor:

I attended the League of Women Voters candidate night Wednesday, May 29. I was particularly interested in asking Bobbie Cleary about her stand on the developmental learning program.

I read her letter to the editor and was quite perplexed about some of the "facts" she used in developing her stance on whole language learning.

Immediately after the formal questions were over, I approached Ms. Cleary and asked her if she had sought out any parents who were pleased with the developmental program. I told her that I was extremely pleased with my daughter's education at Field Elementary and that she was an excellent reader and her math skills are exceptional.

Ms. Cleary said that she was glad that I was pleased with her education and that my daughter must have been lucky to have teachers that really understood the program and used an integrated approach.

I told her that it sounded like she was agreeing with the concept of multiple approaches to learning (which whole language is), but the problem is with the implementation, not the approach itself. That calls for more and better teacher training, which I support fully.

Ms. Cleary's willingness to scrap a viable learning approach for implementation problems gives me great doubt to her grasp and understanding of how children learn.

As a parent who has volunteered in several classrooms at Field Elementary and has been active in parent groups and sports teams at East Middle School, I can testify firsthand that there's a lot of good people teaching our children. There are certainly problems and areas for improvement, but I believe that we need board members who can look fully into an issue and make a decision.

Therefore, I cannot vote for Bobbie Cleary because she doesn't have the background or the experience to make these decisions for other people's children.

I'm voting for Roland Thomas and Dean Swartzwelter because their choices have positively affected my children's education.

Encounter of the best kind

To the editor:

I'm writing to tell you about an encounter I had with the Canton Fire Department. On Monday, May 13, I had experienced severe abdominal pain for several hours, and decided that I needed to go to the emergency room at Oakwood Center for help and pain relief.

Being a single mom, I took my 7-year-old daughter with me for the ride to Oakwood, about three miles away. Before I had gone one mile, I felt myself blacking out, and pulled over at the corner of Sheldon and Cherry Hill to collect myself. After some time, I proceeded (with my emergency flashers on) down Cherry Hill, encouraged by my very frightened daughter. Seeing the fire department on the corner, I pulled in, collected myself again, and went in to ask for help.

I can hardly express the relief and subsequent admiration I felt for the extremely solicitous and professional treatment I received from them, not to mention how well they handled my daughter's fright and concern. I was promptly taken to Oakwood, where I received the tests and relief required.

I regret that I don't recall the names of the men on duty that night that helped us so much, but I would publicly like to thank them and the entire department for their kindness and thoroughly professional service to a citizen like myself.

The best part: Yesterday I received a get well card from the men at that station which said they were glad to be of service when I needed them. Can you beat that? The whole department, and particularly the firefighters (paramedics?) who helped me that evening are to be highly commended.

An ode to morning

To the editor:

The Loving Hands

It was a beautiful morning
I started to cross the street
The same as I do everyday
When the mean thing hit me
I fell back into the ditch
When I awoke, I headed for the street again
But my back leg wouldn't work
And my nose was wet
I laid back down and closed my eyes
It was then I felt the loving hands smooth my fur
I didn't try to get up
But listened to the soft voice
Soon the loving hands lifted me into a box
And then I was put into a different mean thing
I tried to climb out
Because I thought the pain must be coming from the box
The loving hands pushed hard to keep me down
And then began to stroke my back
Inside the building
I thought I could smell dogs
I waited in the box on the counter
With the loving hands massaging my neck
Now I could hear two soft voices
I felt the loving hands let go
And I closed my eyes
Until the pain was gone.

Senior urges yes vote on millage

To the editor:

As a senior citizen, I urge the voters of the Plymouth-Canton Community School District to please vote "Yes" on the 1.74 millage renewal. Since this represents approximately 60 percent of the district's annual budget, it is important that this millage renewal is passed.

We should be proud that our school district spends less per student — $4,075 — than the following 10 surrounding school districts: Ann Arbor, $6,375; Bloomfield Hills, $6,737; Detroit, $4,311; Farmington, $6,105; Inkster, $4,221; Livonia, $5,148; Northville, $4,679; Rochester, $4,893; Wayne-Westland, $4,794; West Bloomfield, $6,065.

In Wayne County, Plymouth-Canton is 25th out of 34 local districts in per-pupil spending. The average per-pupil spending is $4,455 in Wayne County and $4,988 in Oakland County.

Also, there will be two four-year board of education seats to be filled in this election. Vote for Dean Swartzwelter and Roland Thomas.

Candidate is off base on program

To the editor:

As a teacher and resident of Canton, I feel it necessary to respond to Ms. Cleary's remarks to the Canton Observer on May 30, 1991.

Ms. Cleary obviously lacks knowledge and understanding regarding developmentally based programs and the whole language approach to reading.

In a developmentally based classroom, the structure is much more sophisticated than in a traditionally based program. The developmentally based program meets the children's individual needs. Research has shown that children develop socially, emotionally, and physically at varying rates, which we as teachers know, value, and accept. Research has also shown that children learn best when given opportunity to explore and investigate on their own, depending on what their stage of development and thinking.

In my developmentally based kindergarten program, I have gifted children who are reading, as well as those who are just beginning to identify letters of the alphabet. They are all experiencing success.

My second concern deals with Ms. Cleary's comments regarding whole language. "The whole language approach is based on memorizing words and sounding them out." That is totally false. In whole language, we look at a whole story, poems, etc. and through that begin looking at parts, including phonics. We use a variety of literature including poetry, nursery rhymes, fingerplays, and even the children's own written stories.

I suggest Ms. Cleary do more research on developmentally based programs and whole language before she again makes blanket statements which are incorrect and misleading.

Engler sees Detroit area as a cesspool

Jeff Counts

Suburban Detroiters seem perplexed about our new governor. They thought he was another good, white Republican, one of them.

They voted for him, but then he turned on them. And it hasn't been a pretty sight. He wants to cut welfare benefits and trash funding for the arts. Bill Milliken was another out-state Republican, and he didn't do all that.

The thing is that Engler just isn't one of them. Part of it is geography. Milliken is from Traverse City, which really is part of Oakland County. It has nothing to do with the rest of the state, just like southeastern Michigan may as well be in Ohio as far as out-state residents are concerned.

Engler is from central Michigan, where people don't even notice the recessions because they're in a near depression.

And their view of southeastern Michigan, regardless of political party, is that it's a cesspool. The folks there just see Engler as the clean up man.

I SHARE SOME of Engler's sensibilities. I spent 15 years working at a newspaper in central Michigan. The story there was the decline of farming and the auto industry.

And when you spend that much time writing about the plight of people caught up in a changing economy, you just tend to see Detroit and the suburbs as a cesspool of excesses. Grinding poverty co-exists with obscene displays of wealth.

Even the lawns in suburban Detroit look different. They're too green. They're the result of too much money spent on too many chemicals. There's too much gold trim on cars and men and women dress too well.

Those are things you just don't see very often out-state. They just aren't the right things to do in towns like Bay City, Muskegon or Marquette. Even if you're a successful professional person, you don't buy a car with gold trim on it. Chances are your neighbor is just making it or is laid off.

And chances are that if you're unemployed or laid off, the last thing you do is go to the social service office for a handout.

THE REFUSAL TO accept welfare or to display how much money you have are old-fashioned, but those ideas still exist in small towns. And they are ones that Engler is trying to bring back.

I hope Engler has some success. It would be nice to bring some of out-state Michigan to suburban Detroit.

Engler has his list, but here are my favorite out-state characteristics that could be imported:

- Pool tables in bars.
- The out-state definition of safe sex. It's not getting caught by the woman's husband.
- Rusty pickup trucks.
- Pork rinds.
- Smoked fish.
- Cigars.
- Domestic beer.
- Front yard tire swings.
- Shotguns instead of uzis.
- Jackets with the names of bars on them.
- Country and western bands.
- Tight jeans.
- Garrison Keillor.
- Deer heads on walls.
- Jim Harrison.
- Visiting people instead of networking.

Those are just some of the things that make the fabric of life different out-state. There are others.

It's time for suburban Detroit residents to wake up and smell the smoked fish. We've got Engler for three more years.

Hopefuls discuss job skills and other education issues

trict understand the core curriculum and help support its implementation."

Said Thomas: "Of the five quality issues the Legislature passed, I think the school improvement program will have the most impact on staff and students. It will force us to work together as a team, and there's nothing more rewarding than working as a team to improve education."

Cleary said that while Public Act 25 is very important to this district, it's necessary to look at more than exit outcomes. "I think it's also important to emphasize content," she said.

Swartzwelter was asked why audience members at board meetings are prohibited from speaking unless they've filled out a card before the meeting begins.

The policy, put into place five or six years ago, allows residents to address the board before votes are taken on specific agenda items. "The board has been very generous with many people, allowing them to speak spontaneously," said Swartzwelter, "but one cannot allow meetings to get out of control. There are business items that have to be taken care of."

Lynch was asked what alternative sources of funding she'd seek for the district. "Businesses could be considered," she said. "What it takes is an active process of marketing and soliciting responsibility from businesses in the community."

Voters to decide tax renewal, pick 3 S'craft trustees

In addition to electing two school board members, Plymouth-Canton voters will decide June 10 on a tax renewal.

The 17.74-mill renewal represents about $35 million in revenue, or half the district's operating budget.

All four Plymouth-Canton candidates support the renewal.

Said candidate Deborah Lynch of Canton: "I think the renewal is necessary. It represents half our current operating budget. We are the 12th lowest in per student expense in Wayne County now, so we are keeping it at a reasonable cost. A renewal is just that; it's not an increase in taxes."

Incumbent Dean Swartzwelter said that while 21.74 mills are expiring, "we are only requesting the renewal of 17.74 mills.

"We're not asking for a renewal of the two-year, four-mill levy. If someone came along and said we are going to take half your family income away, would you find it difficult to keep the household going? The renewal is extremely critical. I'd encourage everyone to get out and talk to people" and urge support.

Candidate Bobbie Cleary of Canton also favors the renewal. "Since it represents half the operating budget, it's essential to the success of our schools."

Incumbent Roland Thomas said, "I feel so strongly about the renewal that I put it on my campaign literature, urging people to vote yes. The board did say the four mills was a two-year commitment. I support the renewal, and that will be distributed in the community."

Voters also will elect Schoolcraft College trustees, one to a four-year term and two to six-year terms.

Voting will take place 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday, June 10, at the regular school election polling places. For information on precincts and absentee voting, call 451-3135.

Plymouth-Canton school officials probably will ask voters to approve a $59.9 million bond issue Sept. 24. The bond issue would pay for school construction and capital improvements including buying electronics for classrooms.

Developmental education

Asked about developmental education, Cleary said students not yet ready for formal education can benefit by the learn-at-your-own-pace educational program. "As a mother of three children, I can see that one of the minuses is that the system doesn't offer the direction and guidance children need. They need to be told at certain times to do certain things, even though they may not feel like doing it. Otherwise, they're not going to do them."

Thomas said that with developmental education, "teachers teach to the child's level of development," alleviating one of the chief reasons children fail.

Lynch said that while developmental education boosts self-esteem and students' desire to learn, "it places a tremendous workload on teachers. We need constant monitoring of the system so we can evaluate how the program is working. It's up to our local school board to come up with an evaulation system."

Swartzwelter said, "We beleive all students can learn and achieve personal success. Developmental education recognizes that all students coming in aren't the same age or at the same maturation level. Recognizing that allows stuents to proceed without being compared to everyone else. It does take more teacher time."

Job skills

WHETHER PLYMOUTH-CANTON graduates have skills required by business and industry also was addressed by candidates.

"Our SAT scores are 100 points above the national average, however with our restructuring, I don't know what the future will hold," said Cleary. "I'm very concerned about changes we are undergoing. I'm also concerned about our policy that says that if we graduate students who can't read and write, we'll let them go back to school again."

Thomas said, "We are working very hard so we meet the needs of business. Eighty-three percent of our graduates went on last year to two- or four-year colleges and universities. Those who go on to work right after high school have the broadest vocational education. Because we have two high schools on one site, we have a huge advantage."

Lynch said "Being involved with executive management, I've had the opportunity to look at business criteria. Plymouth-Canton students are looked at a little more seriously than others."

Swartzwelter said he's "very happy with the education" his three children received in the district. "Things are changing so fast in not only the business world, but in the whole country that it behooves us as a board of education, administration and a community to come up with a plan to cope with this change."

The top three issues facing education were identified by Thomas as: changing the learning process and learning environment; school financing; and incorporating technology into the classroom.

Lynch ranked the issues as: how we react to governmental influence on education; the district's ability to develop alternative funding sources; and the ability to act versus react to the schools of choice issue.

Swartzwelter listed school financing; exploring high technology in the classroom; and getting parents involved to improve education.

Cleary listed academic achievement; school financing; and the need for the board to listen to all voices in the community.

Special Olympics

Athletes go for gold at state games

Local residents joined the more than 3,400 athletes with mental retardation from across the state over the weekend to compete in the Michigan Special Olympics summer games at Central Michigan University.

Competition was held in swimming and diving, track and field events, bowling, gymnastics, weightlifting, team handball, tennis, volleyball and the Motor Activities Training Program.

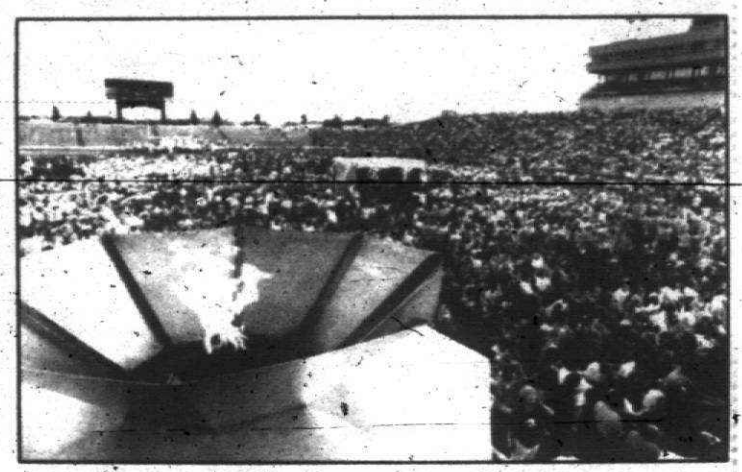
Prior to the state summer games, local athletes ages 8 and older trained and competed in local programs.

The summer games are part of Michigan Special Olympics' year-round program, according to Lois Arnold, MSO state director.

In Michigan, more than 20,000 athletes participate throughout the year.

"Special Olympics gives people with mental retardation the chance to discover how much they can do and to experience the pride and self-confidence that go along with that," said Arnold.

Special Olympics competition places athletes in divisions based on age and ability. Regardless of skill level, special olympians compete against others of the same, sex, age and similar ability making the competition "fair and fun." The emphasis is on effort, enthusiasm and sportsmanship.



Athletes, volunteers and spectators gathered Friday for opening ceremonies at CMU's Kelly/Shorts Stadium.

First- through fourth-place ribbons are awarded.

Opening ceremonies featured a torch-lighting ceremony, parade of athletes and free concert by the Oak Ridge Boys in CMU's Kelly/Shorts Stadium in Mount Pleasant.

Michigan Special Olympics is a non-profit organization and receives no state or federal funds.

Arnold points out that volunteers — some 12,000 of them — are the backbone of the organization.

Volunteers coach athletes, raise funds and coordinate local programs.

The 1991 games marked the seventh consecutive year of exclusive sponsorship by Spartan Stores Inc. The company has donated more than $1.5 million to the program. It also provides nearly 800 volunteers during the three-day event.

Some stores, including L&L Food Center in Rochester Hills, raised money to send athletes from their area to the summer games.

Your party deserves a change

Here it is early June, a time when flowers bloom, strawberries ripen and graduation-party hosts and hostesses scour major food magazines for new ideas. Everyone wants his or her party to be special and that's kind of difficult when you serve cocktail weenies along with corn chips and ranch dip.

There's little disputing the fact that a great party begins wth planning. If you plan a graduation party, you can count on the weather being either in the 90s with ditto humidity or ushering in a thunderstorm that undoubtedly will blow all the tents and umbrellas you borrowed or rented into the neighbor's yard, forcing all the guests to huddle in a steamy basement full of dirty laundry and boxes of Christmas ornaments you still haven't put away.

If you plan a graduation party, don't forget you may need an oven larger than the State of Rhode Island to handle the meat, potatoes, beans, vegetables, bread, rolls and hot appetizers. Empty the oven if it has been filled with crud-encrusted pots and pans you temporarily stored there to keep from your guests' eyes.

All kidding aside, a little planning can take those unexpected challenges and turn them into conquered feats.

A GOOD PLANNER will always take the weather into account. Alternate plans, seating arrangements and adequate space should always be available. The difference between a food schlepper and a caterer is that a caterer should always make a pre-site inspection or, at least, give you a list of needed equipment the caterer will/will not supply.

Although food magazines can be a great source for creative ideas, a good planner will have selected and tested all recipes so as not to be surprised when the meatball recipe turns into taco filling. This doesn't happen as much with the big food magazines because their recipes are tested numerous times before publication but, rest assured, get a recipe from a relative or friend and it's bound to happen.

Some of the more trendy foods on the party circuit this year are:

- Salsas: What used to be ordinary salsa in a jar and yellow corn chips has turned into black bean salsa with blue corn tortilla chips. Homemade salsas using fresh ingredients and the discovery of the imported food store make this a sure bet.
- Stuffed Veggies: Everything from stuffed grape leaves to stuffed hearts of palm to mini-stuffed cherry tomatoes, stuffing vegetables is the heart-healthy alternative to wing dings and grape-jelly-coated meatballs. Better yet, you can do this all days in advance.
- Grilling parties: If your yard can handle it, beg, borrow or steal three more barbecue grills and have iced buckets of shrimps, scallops and chunked monkfish at one; brats, Italian sausages and kielbasa at another, and grilled veggies like green onions, eggplant slices, red and green peppers and Vidalia onions, all brushed with bottled Italian dressing, at the other grills. Invite your guests or, better yet, flamboyant relatives and friends to get the grilling going.

Last, but not least, the best planners always remember that, yes, this is a party and all the guests are hoping they will enjoy it. Good party planners will be well prepared, thus allowing the host and/or hostess also to have fun and enjoy the guests.

There's little disputing the fact that a great party begins with planning.

Slimmery is the word for dessert

By Anne R. Lehmann
special writer

OPEN THE DOOR to one of the five area American Bulk Food Stores and you are treated to what one might call a sensory carnival.

Surrounding you are the smell of spices, the visual display of colorful candies in lucite bins and the sound of coffee being freshly ground.

With a fast-growing clientele, American Bulk Food is establishing a reputation as a testing ground for new products including a wide variety of hard-to-find low-calorie and kosher products.

The stores are owned and operated by Marty Benson, a former pharmacist who listened when his wife suggested he open bulk candy sections in his two Wyandotte pharmacies 11 years ago.

Without intending to, they were test marketing a concept that was so successful he sold his pharmacies and started a chain of bulk-food-concept stores.

BESIDES MARKETING unusual products, Benson, the son of a former ice cream manufacturer, enjoyed innovating his own food creations.

Consequently, Slimmery, a patented soft-serve frozen dessert, was born.

Available in such flavors as double dutch fudge, peanut butter cup and raspberry royale, this swirled confection adds up to nine calories per ounce and conforms to many diet plans.

ALTHOUGH SLIMMERY is now fat and sugar free, it wasn't always that way.

"When we started out, we were sugar free. When everyone started asking for fat-free ice cream, we changed the recipe. The point is we always try to accommodate the tastes and demands of our customers," Benson said.

Besides cups of Slimmery, there are variations on the theme including Slimmery pies, mousse, apple strudel and chocolate cake brownies — none of them weighing in for more than 179 calories.

Four ounces of Slimmery, which Benson admits is made up mostly of air, costs $1.29.

Custom-designed ice cream machines and pure Nutrasweet make the item expensive to produce.

"The pure form of Nutrasweet costs $200 a pound."

ALTHOUGH THE soft-serve frozen dessert makes up a good part of the business, Benson is always branching out.

In recent years he has added a line of 150-calorie muffins and baked goods including 40-calorie fruit bars. Benson developed these recipes and sells the muffin mix in bulk form for $1.99 a pound.

"People can buy the mix and make the muffins at home for so much less money, yet they prefer to buy them from our bakery case."

Benson also collaborates with candy manufacturing companies to develop improved varieties of old favorites, including double dipped chocolate raisins and peanuts.

STILL, THE mainstay of Benson's business comes from the items that fill the bins throughout the store.

"Buying bulk makes sense for so many reasons. We eliminate obvious costs for packaging, distribution and advertising and the savings are passed on to the consumer."

Freshness is another factor that makes buying in bulk sensible. Prepackaged items often wait in warehouses to be shipped. When purchasing in bulk, one buys products in their freshest form, Benson said.

This is especially true of spices, which are more robust when they are fresher. Additionally, spices, a very important ingredient for some recipes, are costly.

Instead of having to commit to a container of a condiment for something that might be used once or twice, buying bulk allows a person to buy quantities by the ounce.

WITH THE beginning of warmer weather, patrons stopping in for bulk items are walking away with a Slimmery frozen dessert.

Though it may look dangerously fattening, the calorie content makes it an indulgence most dieters can afford.

"My wife," Benson said, laughing, "calls it a grand illusion."

American Bulk Food Stores owned and operated by Marty Benson are in West Bloomfield, Rochester, Dearborn, Ann Arbor and Southgate.

Fitness buffs keep in best of shape enjoying meals at World Gym Cafe

BILL BRESLER
staff photographer

By Arlene Funke
special writer

Eating healthy doesn't have to mean a steady diet of carrot sticks and mung sprouts.

Tom Alonzo, chef of the new World Gym Cafe in Canton, is determined to cut fat and eliminate high sodium without sacrificing taste. "Our theme is food for fitness," said Alonzo, 24, of Westland. "I try to get many different spices, to take the place of salt."

The restaurant, which opened last month, sells sandwiches, salads and hot dishes packed in carry-out containers. Packages are labeled with information about sodium, fat, cholesterol and calories.

For example, Alonzo tops a large baked potato with a medley of chopped, cooked tomatoes, zucchini, onions and mushrooms seasoned with basil and thyme. The vegetables are crowned with melted, part-skim mozzarella cheese.

HE BOILS chicken pieces to obtain stock for black bean soup, avoiding salty commercial base. Alonzo's smoked turkey pita sandwich is garnished with a dollop of spicy mustard and cholesterol-free mayonnaise.

The restaurant is nestled in a storefront which is part of the World Gym aerobics and fitness center at Warren and Lilley roads. The gym and restaurant are owned by Tom Kosh, 41, of Farmington Hills.

Alonzo's stated goal is to provide a healthy alternative to the burger-and-fries meal. "Once people try this food, I think they are going to take a complete look," said Alonzo, a 1985 graduate of Plymouth-Canton High School.

For example, the veggie baked potato contains 20 grams of protein, 12 grams of fat, 74 grams of carbohydrate and 571 milligrams of sodium. It has 461 calories. The vegetable pita, at 237 calories, has 9 grams of protein, 42 grams of carbohydrate, 4 grams of fat and 126 milligrams of sodium.

Alonzo became interested in cooking during high school. He studied culinary arts at Johnson and Wales University in Providence, R.I., and hotel and restaurant management at Eastern Michigan University.

THE CHEF, who has worked at several local restaurants, is fulfilling requirements toward becoming certified as an executive chef. He also teaches culinary arts at the William D. Ford Vocational/Technical Center in Westland.

Substituting spices for salt and creating low-fat sauces is second nature to Alonzo, a fitness buff. "I have been doing it at home for myself for a number of years," he said.

The World Gym Cafe, geared to carry-out trade, has only a few tables. Previously, lowfat frozen yogurt was sold there. Yogurt still is on the menu. But the repertoire now includes interesting salads, sandwiches and dishes such as vegetable lasagna and pasta with broccoli and mushrooms.

Prices are reasonable. The veggie baked potato costs $1.85. Sandwiches are in the $3 range. Salads range from around $1.50 to $3.50 for a pasta-and-chicken blend. Hot entrees cost around $4.

Owner Kosh intends to concentrate on establishing his customer base during the next two years, then moving his entire operation to a larger site within a mile or two.

World Gym Cafe is in the World Gym complex at Lilley and Warren roads, Canton, phone 455-7860. Hours are 5 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. Monday-Friday; 9 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. Saturday, and 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Sunday.

1 egg, lightly beaten
¼ cup blackstrap molasses
1 tablespoon vegetable oil

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Lightly butter muffin pan, dust with whole wheat flour, and shake off excess.

In mixing bowl combine flour, bran, baking soda, nutmeg and cinnamon. Stir in the orange rind, apples, raisins and walnuts. Combine remaining ingredients then add to dry mixture. Do not overblend. Fill the muffin tins ⅔ full and bake 25 minutes. 125 calories per muffin.

MINESTRONE SOUP

½ onion, sliced
1 tablespoon olive oil
2 potatoes diced
4 carrots, sliced
2 celery stalks, sliced
¾ cup long-grain rice
¾ cup elbow macaroni
1 teaspoon basil
1 teaspoon oregano
½-1 teaspoon salt
1 can kidney beans

In a soup pot or large casserole, saute onion in olive oil until tender. Mix in potatoes, carrots and celery. Add water to cover. Add rice, basil, oregano, salt and kidney beans. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat, cover and simmer until rice is cooked and vegetables are tender.

NEOPOLITAN PIZZA

1 cup warm water
1 package dry active yeast
3 tablespoons olive oil
½ cup whole wheat flour
1 ¾ cups unbleached white flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cornmeal
1 ¼ cups Marinara Sauce
1 ½ cups (6 ounces) grated mozzarella cheese
1 ½ cups (6 ounces) grated Muenster cheese
4 cups (12 ounces) sliced mushrooms, sauteed (optional)

Pour the warm water into a large bowl and sprinkle in the yeast. Stir to mix and let sit for 5 minutes. Stir in the oil, then add the flours and salt. Beat with a wooden spoon until well mixed. Turn the dough onto a lightly floured board or work surface and knead for 10 minutes (no less). You will have to keep lightly flouring the work surface to prevent the dough from sticking.

Put the dough in a lightly oiled bowl, then invert the dough so the oiled surface is on top. Cover the bowl with a newspaper and let rise in a warm place (no hotter than 85 degrees) for 1 ½ hours, or until double in bulk. (You can place the bowl in the oven if there is a pilot light, or lightly heat the oven for a few seconds, turn off the heat, then let it sit in the barely warm oven.)

Punch down the dough and knead a few times. Lightly flour your work surface, and with a rolling pin roll the dough into a rectangle large enough to fit your jelly roll pan. Sprinkle the cornmeal on the pan and line with the dough. It is not necessary to form an edge.

Preheat the oven to 500 degrees.

Spread a layer of Marinara Sauce over the dough. Cover the pizza with a mixture of the two 2. Top with the sliced mushrooms, if you wish.

Bake for 15-17 minutes, or until the crust is golden underneath and the cheese lightly browned. (To test the crust insert a knife or spatula under the crust and lift carefully to peek.) Cut into squares and serve immediately. Makes one 17-inch rectangular pizza (serves 4).

BLACK BEAN SALSA

1 pound black turtle beans
½ medium white onion, sliced
½ small head garlic
10 cups hot water
½ cup chopped cilantro (fresh)

Rinse beans in cold water and place in a slow cooker. Add onions and garlic and cover with hot water. Cover the pot and cook at the highest temperature until the skins are soft — from 4-12 hours depending on the beans. Mash and season to taste with a little salt and fresh cilantro. Serve warm or cold with corn tortillas or nacho chips.

Chef's suggestion: Stir in some chopped tomato or chopped jalapeno peppers for added taste.

Mash and season to taste with a little salt and fresh cilantro. Serve warm or cold with corn tortillas or nacho chips.

STUFFED GRAPE LEAVES

30 canned grape leaves
2 cups finely chopped onion
½ cup uncooked rice
½ cup olive oil
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
¼ cup pine nuts (optional)
1 cup finely minced lamb (optional)
1 cup water or chicken broth
½ cup lemon juice

Rinse grape leaves and separate. In a large bowl, combine onion with rice, oil, parsley, nuts and minced lamb. Mix well. Place a generous tablespoon of mixture into center of each grape leaf and roll, not too tightly, securing ends. Place in a heavy pot. When finished rolling, combine water/stock with lemon juice. Mix and pour over grape leaves. Place a heavy plate on top, then cover and cook over low heat about 1½ hours. Serve warm or chilled.

VEGETABLE PITA

4 pita bread
1 tablespoon plus 1 teaspoon safflower mayonnaise (Kraft cholesterol-free, fat-free mayo)
2 teaspoons Dijon mustard
16 slices fresh tomato
4 thinly sliced zucchini
8 lettuce leaves
Pinch alfalfa sprouts

Slice each pita in half. Spread each pita pocket with mayo and mustard. Layer with tomatoes, zucchini, lettuce and sprouts. Yield: 8 half-pita sandwiches.

GRILLED LEMON CHICKEN

1 boneless, skinless chicken breast, grilled until done
1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
¼ cup chicken stock
½ teaspoon arrowroot
1 teaspoon chopped parsley
½ teaspoon fresh chopped basil
½ teaspoon fresh thyme
Dash of pepper

Bring stock to boil. Dissolve arrowroot in small amount of cold water and add to stock. Add remaining herbs and spices. Simmer a few minutes. Serve with chicken.

Aromatic rices gain popularity

AP — Buying rice once meant choosing between white rice and brown. But no more. Aromatic rices such as basmati, texmati, wild pecan and popcorn rice are growing in popularity right alongside their traditional cousins. Available in fancy food shops and from mail-order houses, these flavorful alternatives can change an ordinary stir-fry into an extraordinary entrée, or a simple seafood sauce into a fancy gourmet meal.

To me, one of the pluses of cooking with aromatic rices is the tantalizing aroma. While simmering, each smells like toasting nuts or popping corn. And, believe me, their rich, nutty flavor lives up to their delicious fragrances.

TYPES OF AROMATIC RICES

● Basmati: If rice were judged for beauty, this would be one of the winners for its slender pearl-white grains. A staple in Indian cooking, basmati cooks up light and fluffy. Serve it with curries, Oriental dishes and kebabs.

● Texmati: This rice is the Texas-grown version of basmati, similar in looks, taste and fluffiness. Serve it with the same foods you'd serve with basmati rice, or try it with gumbo, spicy red sauces, and roasted or grilled poultry.

● Wild pecan: No nuts here! The pecan-like aroma and flavor give this delicious rice its name. The grains look like brown rice. For nutty-flavored wild rice, add some pecan rice when the wild rice is half-done. Try it in pilafs or stuffings to serve with grilled poultry, pork or fish.

● Popcorn: You'll think of popcorn when you smell the rice cooking. Its fluffiness makes it ideal for pilafs or rice salads.

COOKING AROMATIC RICES

Follow these basic cooking directions when you plan to serve aromatic rice as a simple side dish. For each cup of rice, bring 2 cups broth or water to boiling. Add rice, then reduce heat. Cover and simmer for 20 to 25 minutes or until the rice is tender and all of the liquid is absorbed.

Meal ends with Chocolate-Dipped Treats

AP - These minty chocolate desserts are great to end a meal.

CHOCOLATE-DIPPED TREATS

One 10-to-12-ounce package chocolate morsels, any flavor
2 tablespoons vegetable shortening (not butter or margarine)
Fresh strawberries or other seasonal fruit, rinsed and patted dry
Pretzels

Combine morsels and vegetable shortening over hot (not boiling) water. Stir until melted and smooth. Remove from heat. (If chocolate begins to set, place over hot water; stir until smooth.)

Dip fruit and pretzels into chocolate mixture, shaking off excess. Place on foil-lined cookie sheets. Chill until set, about 10 to 15 minutes. Gently loosen from foil with a metal spatula. Serve immediately. Makes 1 cup melted chocolate.

Note: Chocolate-Dipped Treats can be kept at room temperature for up to 1 hour. If chocolate becomes sticky, return to refrigerator.

CHOCOLATE CUPS

One 11⅝-ounce package milk chocolate morsels
2 teaspoons vegetable shortening
Twelve 2-inch foil (not paper) baking cups
Minty Mousse (recipe follows)

Combine milk chocolate morsels and vegetable shortening over hot (not boiling) water. Stir until chocolate is melted and mixture is smooth. Remove from heat and let stand until mixture is slightly cooled and thickened.

Spoon about 4 teaspoons of the chocolate mixture into each foil baking cup. Using a small pastry brush, coat inside of cups generously with the chocolate mixture. Refrigerate until firm, about 30 minutes. Refrigerate cups until ready to use. Fill with Minty Mousse. Makes 12 servings.

Minty Mousse

1 cup milk
2 eggs
One 10-ounce package mint-flavored semisweet chocolate morsels
Whipped cream
Mint sprigs (for garnish)

Heat milk to simmering. Place eggs in a blender. With blender running, gradually add hot milk to eggs. Add chocolate morsels to egg-milk mixture. Cover; blend on high speed for 3 minutes.

To assemble:

Place chocolate cups (with foil baking cups) in a muffin pan. Pour blended Minty Mousse into cups. Refrigerate until firm, at least 1 hour. Gently peel foil baking cups from chocolate. Garnish with whipped cream and mint sprig.

ARTHRITIS & AUDITORIUMS
Do not let arthritis keep you from summer festivals and the entertainment offered at the Fox, Pine Knob, Meadowbrook, or the Palace.
Call the theatre or arena box office. Inform the management that you have arthritis and explain your needs such as accommodation for a walker or wheelchair, or to stand frequently to prevent profound stiffness. Ask to have your seat near the washroom, or on the aisle. Inquire if a special entrance is available. Request a map that shows the elevators and the location of handicapped parking.
The law and good business relations encourage management to provide a barrier free access; your questions should receive a satisfactory reply and a prompt mailing of the information you request.
Arrive to the show early. Accept that some employees may not know the handicap provisions of the theatre, and may be more an obstacle to your seating than a help.
Come to the performance with a good attitude. Be proud that you venture into the world, rather than apologetic that you need an assist from others. The greatest difficulty to enjoyment may not be the stairs in front of you, or the crowd rushing about you. Too often the most difficult problem to overcome is your reluctance to set aside the fears within you.

Meeting the challenge of Scallops Linguine family-tested winner dinner

Betsy Brethen

ART EMANUELE/staff photographer

Debbie Cox of Livonia and daughters Christine Cox, 4, and Alicia Cox, 15 months, gather around her Winner Dinner.

With the ever-increasing focus on eating healthful food and keeping fit, many people are experimenting with different ingredients in order to make favorite recipes lower in fat and calories.

This week's Winner Dinner Winner, Debbie Cox of Livonia, submitted a menu that includes a recipe for Scallops Linguine.

Substituting cornstarch and evaporated skim milk for heavy cream and butter, she succeeded in maintaining the creamy texture and great flavor of a recipe that had long been a personal favorite.

Fresh, steamed asparagus; dinner rolls; and peanut butter pie, made with CoolWhip, complete the meal that has the added benefit of being quick and easy to put together.

COX, ORIGINALLY from Owosso, Mich., received her bachelor's and master's degrees in business administration from Central Michigan University in Mount Pleasant.

With her hard-earned diplomas in hand, Cox came to Detroit and began her career with Manufacturers Bank.

Working as a branch manager, she met her husband, Jim, the owner of a landscaping service called Bush Gardens. They eventually married and are now the parents of two young girls.

As with her recipe, Cox has had to make adjustments in her professional life as well, now that she is a mother.

She has been able to combine motherhood with a career successfully and teaches one or two evening classes a semester at Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

COX ENJOYS cooking, especially cakes, cookies and anything with chocolate in it.

To accommodate her sweet tooth, she exercises regularly and watches her caloric intake. She enjoys getting together with friends and their children, loves to shop and, when she has a quiet moment, likes to read books on child-rearing.

Thank you, Debbie Cox, for sharing your recipes with us, and congratulations on being selected this week's Winner Dinner Winner. All the best to you and your family. Your support of this column is much appreciated.

ON A final note, as we welcome the long-awaited summer months, I encourage you to send in your family's favorite hot-weather meals.

I am also looking for menus from people who are from or who have lived in countries other than the United States. After all, variety is the spice of life!

Submit your recipes, to be considered for publication in this column or elsewhere, to: Winner Dinner, P.O. Box 3503, Birmingham 48012.

All submissions become the property of the publisher. Each week's winner receives an apron with the words Winner Dinner Winner on it.

Recipes

SCALLOPS LINGUINE

It's delicious tasting and easy. Your family will swear you have been slaving away to make this wonderful dinner when, in fact, it only takes minutes to put together. Although the pasta should be cooked just before serving, everything else can be made in advance. This recipe serves 5.

8 ounces linguine (or thin spaghetti)
1 pound bay scallops, rinsed and drained
1½ tablespoons lemon juice
1 clove garlic, minced
1 teaspoon fresh or dried parsley, chopped finely
¼ teaspoon fresh or dried dill weed, chopped finely
Dash of salt and pepper
1 tablespoon margarine (or omit, and use vegetable spray)
1 teaspoon cornstarch
½ cup evaporated skim milk
½ cup Parmesan cheese, divided

In a medium-sized bowl, combine the scallops, lemon juice, garlic, parsley, dill weed, salt and pepper. Toss gently. Cover and refrigerate 10-15 minutes so that the flavors can blend.

Cook the linguine al dente, according to the directions on the package. Drain and rinse with hot water.

Melt the margarine or spray a skillet or large saucepan with vegetable spray. Drain the scallops and cook over medium-high heat for 3-4 minutes, stirring frequently. Sprinkle cornstarch on the scallops, add the milk and heat until bubbly and thickened, about 2 minutes. Add the linguine to the scallops along with half of the Parmesan cheese and toss well, distributing the scallops evenly. Heat the mixture through, top with the remaining cheese and serve.

FRESH ASPARAGUS

Wash and cut the ends off the asparagus spears. Place them in a microwavable dish with a small amount of water. Cover and cook on high until crisp-tender, about 7 minutes.

If not using a microwave, steam the spears in a covered pan of boiling water until they are crisp-tender.

HEAT-AND-SERVE ROLLS

This week's Winner Dinner Winner suggests using Bread Du Jour Bavarian Cracked Wheat Rolls, found in the fresh bread aisle in the supermarket.

PEANUT BUTTER PIE

This recipe comes from the Sweet Onion Restaurant in Mt. Pleasant. It is easy to make and not too heavy tasting.

4 ounces cream cheese, softened
1 cup powdered sugar

Beat the above until smooth, then add:

½ cup peanut butter
½ cup milk

Beat until smooth and then fold in 9 ounces of CoolWhip. Place the mixture in a graham cracker Readycrust, extra-large size, and place in the freezer. Freeze until firm. Allow to sit several minutes at room temperature before serving. For an extra taste treat, top with hot fudge.

Shopping List

Notes

Summer's the time to serve cooling mint juleps

AP — Mint juleps, a refreshing warm-weather drink, are traditionally served in sterling silver julep cups, filled with crushed ice, or 8-to 10-ounce glasses.

MINT JULEPS

1 cup sugar
1 cup water
1 bunch fresh mint sprigs (2 ounces or about 2 cups lightly packed)
Crushed ice
Kentucky bourbon

Combine sugar and water; boil for 5 minutes without stirring. Cool. Place mint in a jar with a lid, add syrup. Refrigerate overnight. Remove mint. Keep syrup refrigerated. This will keep several weeks and individual juleps may be made as desired.

For each serving, fill an 8-ounce glass with crushed ice. Add 1 tablespoon syrup, 1 tablespoon water and 2 ounces (¼ cup) bourbon. Stir gently until glass is frosted. Insert straw and garnish with a sprig of mint.

(Recipe from: "Kentucky Derby Museum Cookbook." The Kentucky Derby Museum, Louisville, Ky. $22.)

MINT JULEP

Confectioners' sugar
2½ ounces whiskey
Fresh mint sprigs

Dissolve 1 teaspoon confectioners' sugar with 2 teaspoons water in a silver mug. Fill with finely shaved ice and 2½ ounces whiskey. Stir until mug is heavily frosted; add more ice if necessary. (Do not hold mug while stirring.)

Decorate with 5 or 6 sprigs of fresh mint so that the tops are about 2 inches above the rim of the mug.

MINT ICE TEA JULEPS

2 cups boiling water
2 mint tea bags
4 teaspoons sugar
Crushed ice
4 ounces bourbon
Fresh mint

Pour two cups boiling water over two mint tea bags. Steep for 5 minutes. Remove tea bags. Stir in 4 teaspoons sugar. Allow tea to cool. Fill 4 tall glasses with crushed ice. Measure 1 ounce bourbon and ½ cup cooled tea over ice in each glass. If necessary, add ice to fill glass.

Living history

Students learn the old-fashioned way

By Marie Chestney
staff writer

If only for a morning, some Livonia fourth graders got to travel back in time Thursday to see what it was like to be a student in Livonia in the early 1900s.

Instead of staying at their regular school, Cleveland Elementary, the 23 youngsters — the girls dressed in long dresses, the boys in knickers — were bused to Livonia's restored Newburg School at Greenmead Historical Village.

For three hours, the youngsters learned the 3 R's the old-fashioned way, led by a teacher dressed in green bonnet, cape, ruffled blouse, long skirt and black high-top shoes.

JUST TO WALK into the one room school house, the students had to learn new rules.

The school has two front doors, and they couldn't just rush through either one. No, following the strict formality of the era, boys lined up at the left door, girls at the right, and neither side budged until told to do so by their teacher, Susan Krekeler.

It quickly became apparent to the students that new rules also applied inside the school.

When speaking to Krekeler, they couldn't just sit at their desk. They had to stand up next to it, hands at their sides and politely speak to her.

"You have to show proper respect for this hardworking school teacher," Krekler told them.

When writing, the students' hands had to be placed just so on their desk. And there was absolutely no slouching.

"If they saw you slouching, some school masters would whack you with the ruler," Krekeler said.

In return, Krekeler spoke to the students just as formally. Bobby wasn't Bobby; he was Robert. Billy wasn't Billy; he was William.

"Everything back then was more formal," Krekler said. "They dressed up for school, stood up when they answered. They treated school like important business, like a job."

'Everything back then was more formal. They dressed up for school, stood up when they answered. They treated school like important business, like a job.'

—Susan Krekeler teacher

THE STUDENTS couldn't help but notice the similiarities and differences between Newburg and Cleveland.

At Cleveland, they had a blackboard and a hanging wall map. But, at Cleveland, they didn't have a carpetless wooden floor, a wood-burning stove and a piano tucked in a corner of their room.

For their day's reading assignment, the students read a story, "Courage and Cowardice" from McGuffey's Reader. Through McGuffey's, turn-of-the-century students not only learned how to read, but how to get along and prosper in the world. McGuffey's offered knowledge with a moral.

On this morning, the Cleveland students read about a boy who was thought by his friends to be a coward because he wouldn't fight, but who later rescued a boy who was drowning.

The moral? Never be afraid to do good. But always fear to do evil.

"They simply say in an old-fashioned way things like good choices which are taught to kids today," Krekeler said.

At recess time, the youngsters formally lined up and then filed out the two doors, eager to play tag on the grassy grounds near the school.

On the way back in, the girls forgot to wait for Krekeler's approval to enter, and were promptly reprimanded.

"In the old days, that would have been considered unladylike behavior and you would have stayed after school and wrote pages," Krekeler admonished them.

NEXT CAME a lessen in penmanship, where the students practiced strokes, not letters, while the teacher coughed.

When Krekeler reached "six," the stroke was supposed to have been completed.

"They'd do pages and pages of strokes and only then would put them together to form letters," Krekeler said. "They made a big deal about penmanship, and everyone had to write the same way. That's different today, where our handwriting is part of our identity."

Back in the early 1900s, lefties weren't allowed to write with their left hand. But on this day, Krekeler relented and let one leftie write in her own style.

Also back in this era, students weren't allowed to whisper to each other.

"There was never talk between times," Krekeler said. "If they did, the teacher had the parents' permission to cut a switch off a tree and switch them."

A spelling bee ended the morning's instruction. Words such as corset, rivet, gossip, gallop and beggar stumped many of the students.

When time ran out there were seven left standing: Billy Kokenos, Tim Beckett, Kathy Migrin, Bob LaDouceur, Jessica Jozwiak, Chrissy Balagna and Karen Koleczko.

BEFORE LEAVING the school house, which once stood in Livonia's south end, the students grabbed their lunches and headed outside.

Most of the lunches weren't in paper bags; they were in tin cans and baskets, just like students would have carried to the school house at the turn of the century.

On the bus back to Cleveland, room mother Mary Kazak asked her son Michael which school era he liked better, yesterday's or today's.

"It wouldn't have been bad back then, except for the penmanship. That was too hard," Michael said.

Krekeler, an actress in local theater groups, definitely enjoyed dressing up to play the part of an old-fashioned schoolmarm. And she enjoyed the respect given by the students as they quickly learned to play their own roles.

But she also definitely enjoys teaching in today's world.

"Today, the kids are more responsive, and there's no formal wall between us. I prefer being able to put my arm around a kid if I want to."

Make low-fat selections in dairy products

June is recognized as National Dairy Month to celebrate dairy products and the importance they play in our daily diet.

Milk and other dairy products supply protein as well as a variety of vitamins and minerals essential for good health.

Vitamin A, vitamin D, phosphorus, riboflavin and vitamin B-12 are among those necessary for healthy skin and hair.

The most commonly known benefit of milk and milk products is calcium — the mineral vital for strong teeth and bones.

WHILE IT'S important to choose dairy products for the vitamins and minerals they provide, it's equally important to choose from the low-fat selections available in today's market.

Many delicious low-fat dairy products can be found in the dairy case for the health- and diet-conscious consumer.

Low-fat and skim milk, reduced-calorie margarine, low-fat and part-skim cheese, and the many low-fat frozen dairy desserts are all excellent choices.

YOGURT, WHICH gained popularity as a "health food" in the '70s and '80s, has been perfected to taste wonderfully good as a snack or frozen treat. Frozen yogurt, which is low in calories and fat and high in calcium and protein, is one of my favorites.

Other low-fat dairy tips to try: Substitute 2 tablespoons plain yogurt for 2 tablespoons sour cream to top your baked potato.

Spread 1 ounce part-skim ricotta cheese on a bagel instead of 1 ounce cream cheese and cut the calories in half.

Spoon into chocolate frozen yogurt (105 calories and 2 grams fat per ½ cup) instead of high-fat premium chocolate ice cream (230 calories and 8 grams fat per ½ cup) for dessert.

Go ahead and celebrate National Dairy Month by choosing low-fat dairy products. Healthy selections make all the difference in fat and calories.

BUTTERMILK-WALNUT SOUP
Makes 2 servings
About ¾ cup each

1 ½ cups low-fat buttermilk (1 percent milk fat)
1 ounce finely ground walnuts
½ teaspoon minced scallion (green onion)
1 garlic clove, minced
½ packet (about ½ teaspoon) instant chicken broth and seasoning mix
⅛ teaspoon salt
Dash white pepper
1 ½ teaspoons minced fresh dill

In blender combine all ingredients exxcept dill and process until smooth, stir in dill. Cover and refrigerate until flavors blend, at least 1 hour.

Each serving provides: ¾ Milk, 1 Fat, 1 Protein, 20 Optional Calories.

Per serving: 170 calories, 8 g protein, 10 g fat, 12 g carbohydrate, 234 mg calcium, 581 mg sodium, 7 mg cholesterol, ½ g dietary fiber

BANANA-YOGURT ORLEANS
Makes 2 Servings

1 tablespoon whipped butter
1 teaspoon margarine
¼ cup freshly squeezed orange juice
1 tablespoon dark rum
2 teaspoons firmly packed light brown sugar
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
1 medium banana (about 6 ounces), peeled and diagonally sliced
1 cup plain low-fat yogurt
2 teaspoons grated orange zest

In 1-quart microwaveable shallow casserole combine butter and margarine and microwave on high (100 percent) for 30 seconds, until melted.

Stir in orange juice, rum, sugar and cinnamon and stir to dissolve sugar. Microwave on High for 2 minutes until mixture is reduced by ¼. Add banana and turn to coat; microwave on high for 30 seconds, until banana is heated through (do not overcook).

In small mixing bowl combine yogurt and vanilla. Into each of 2 dessert dishes spoon half of the yogurt; top each portion with half of the banana mixture and 1 teaspoon orange zest.

The 'zest' of the orange is the peel without any of the pith (white membrane). To remove zest from orange, use a zester or vegetable peeler; wrap orange in plastic wrap and refrigerate for use at another time.

Each serving provides: ½ Fat, 1 ¼ Fruit, 1 Milk, 65 Optional Calories.

Per serving: 220 Calories, 7 g Protein, 7 g Fat, 30 g Carbohydrate, 225 mg Calcium, 133 mg Sodium, 15 mg Cholesterol, 1 g Dietary Fiber.

SPINACH AND CHEDDAR RICE
Makes 2 Servings

2 tablespoons chopped scallion (green onion)
3 ounces uncooked regular long-grain rice
2 teaspoons each reduced-calorie margarine (tub) and all-purpose flour
½ cup low-fat milk (1 percent milk-fat)
¾ ounce sharp reduced-fat Cheddar cheese, shredded
¼ cup thawed frozen chopped spinach

In 1-quart saucepan combine 1 ¼ cups water and scallion; cover and cook over high heat until mixture comes to a boil. Stir in rice. Reduce heat to low, recover and let simmer until rice is tender and liquid is absorbed, about 15 minutes.

While rice is cooking, prepare sauce. In small, non-stick saucepan melt margarine over high heat. Sprinkle flour over margarine and stir quickly to combine; cook, stirring constantly, for 1 minute.

Stir in milk. Reduce heat to medium and cook, stirring frequently, until mixture thickens, about 5 minutes. Stir in cheese and cook until cheese melts.

Add spinach to rice mixture and stir to combine. Pour cheese mixture over spinach-rice mixture and stir to combine.

Each serving provides: ¼ Milk, ½ Fat, ½ Protein, ¼ Vegetable, 1 ½ Breads, 15 Optional Calories.

Per serving: 248 Calories, 9 g Protein, 5 g Fat, 41 g Carbohydrate, 213 Calcium, 168 Sodium, 10 g Cholesterol, 1 g Dietary Fat.

Markham wines a real value

Eleanor and Ray Heald

Every few years since the late 1970s, we have stopped by the humble stone structure of Markham Vineyards just north of the town of St. Helena in the Napa Valley. To be quite blunt about it, we tasted the wines, yawned, mumbled a ho-hum to each other and left as quietly as we entered.

Last year, we blind-tasted the 1987 Merlot and were surprised because it stole the show. Fearing a flash in the pan, we've been tasting Markham regularly and are now prepared to declare the wines consistent, right on target and undiscovered Napa Valley values.

"In 1978, the winery lacked vineyards with premium grapes," remarks winemaker Bob Foley. "It has taken us 10 years of planting and replanting to have vineyards worthy of premium bottlings."

The stone building housing Markham Vineyards was constructed by Bordeaux emigre Jean Laurent more than 100 years ago. It is the fourth most continuously used winery in Napa County. In 1978, Markham Vineyards was founded by Bruce Markham. It was purchased in 1988 by Mercian Corp., a Japanese conglomerate and largest producer of wine in Japan.

TO MATCH its new wine image, the winery is undergoing a massive reconstruction to double the size of its production facility. When the project is completed in 1992, the winery will be 75,000 square feet to accommodate fruit from the winery-owned vineyards. The 85-acre Napa Ranch is planted chardonnay and sauvignon while the 110-acre Yountville Ranch, and the 60-acre Calistoga Vineyard at the base of Mt. St. Helena yield the classic Bordeaux red grapes, cabernet sauvignon, merlot and cabernet franc.

Led by president Bryan del Bondio and winemaker Bob Foley, Markham wines show the excitement of a new breed of California producer, respectful of winemaking traditions but willing to experiment and question the old assumptions.

They approach winemaking like a puzzle, fitting together the interlocking pieces of separate vineyards, clones and vinification techniques into an integrated, complex picture.

In addition to outstanding merlot, Markham produces cabernet sauvignon, sauvignon blanc, muscat blanc and chardonnay. "In the future, I'd like to produce varietal semillon," Foley maintains.

"Both Bryan (del Bondio) and I have technical winemaking degrees from the University of California at Davis, but we believe taste buds can measure much more than the lab. Joe Heitz once told me that chemists make lousy winemakers.

"We determine grape ripeness by walking the vineyards and sampling the fruit. We also watch where the birds are hanging out. This gives us more information about grape ripeness than a refractometer."

A CURRENT tasting of the 1989 Markham Napa Valley Chardonnay ($15) reveals a wine with appley and citrus aromas happily married to solid melony, tropical fruit flavors and balanced oak. It's lush and opulent.

WINE SELECTION OF THE WEEK

WINE BULLETIN BOARD

Wine Dinner ($60 per person) with Jim Allen of the Napa Valley's Sequoia Grove Vineyards on Tuesday, June 11, at the Golden Mushroom restaurant in Southfield. Event begins with appetizers at 6 p.m. Three of Allen's lush chardonnays and four of his stunning cabernets will complement the multi-course dinner. For reservations phone 559-4230.

Markham's 1990 Sauvignon Blanc ($10) is complexed by the addition of 25 percent semillon. The wine is finesseful with a generous mouthfeel and refined finish.

Walnuts make a good addition to salads

AP — For a salad that is low in calories, cholesterol and saturated fats — but high in appetite appeal — combine seasonal vegetables and crunchy walnuts.

Walnuts contain fat that is 70 percent polyunsaturated. They are low in sodium, contain no cholesterol, and are a source of protein and fiber, according to the Walnut Marketing Board.

"Aside from their nutritional composition, walnuts are an excellent addition" to salads, the board says, "because their strong flavor has a chameleonlike quality, tasting sweet when paired with fresh vegetables and cheese, or sharp when paired with savory ingredients such as onions and grilled meats."

Basic ingredient substitutions, such as non-stick vegetable cooking spray instead of oil, and creative cooking methods, such as grilling, broiling and steaming, make it possible to add "indulgent" ingredients such as walnuts, low-fat cheese and meats to salads, according to the board.

The Walnut Board asked Harris Golden of Arizona's Maine Chance resort to create a spa salad recipe for at-home cooks. The result: a Sunburst Salad made with slices of summer squash, zucchini, carrot and red bell pepper, topped with walnuts and a sherry ginger dressing.

MAINE CHANCE SUNBURST SALAD WITH SHERRY-GINGER DRESSING

½ cup walnuts, coarsely chopped
2 teaspoons honey
1 large zucchini, cut into slices 2½ inches in length
1 yellow summer squash, cut into slices 2½ inches in length
1 carrot, cut into slices 2½ inches in length
1½ pound Chinese snow peas
1 red bell pepper, cut into slices 2½ inches in length
¾ cup (3 ounces) Jarlsberg "lite" cheese, shredded
Sherry Ginger Dressing (recipe follows)

Combine walnuts with honey in a small bowl; stir to coat. Place walnuts on a greased baking sheet. Roast in a 350-degree oven for 12 to 15 minutes. Set aside.

Bring large pot of water to a boil over medium heat. Prepare a large bowl of ice water. Plunge zucchini into the boiling water for 30 seconds. Using tongs or a slotted spoon, transfer the zucchini into the bowl of ice water. Drain on paper towels. Repeat with the summer squash, carrot and snow peas. (Do not blanch the red pepper.)

Place 2 tablespoons of the shredded cheese in a mound on each of 6 serving plates. Arrange zucchini, summer squash, carrot, snow peas and red bell pepper in a sunburst pattern around the cheese. Top with the roasted walnuts. Serve with Sherry Ginger Dressing. Makes 6 servings.

Sherry Ginger Dressing
2 tablespoons peanut oil
½ cup rice vinegar
1 tablespoon dry sherry
1 tablespoon granulated sugar
2 teaspoons minced ginger
½ teaspoon cayenne pepper

In a small mixing bowl, whisk all ingredients together. Chill before serving.

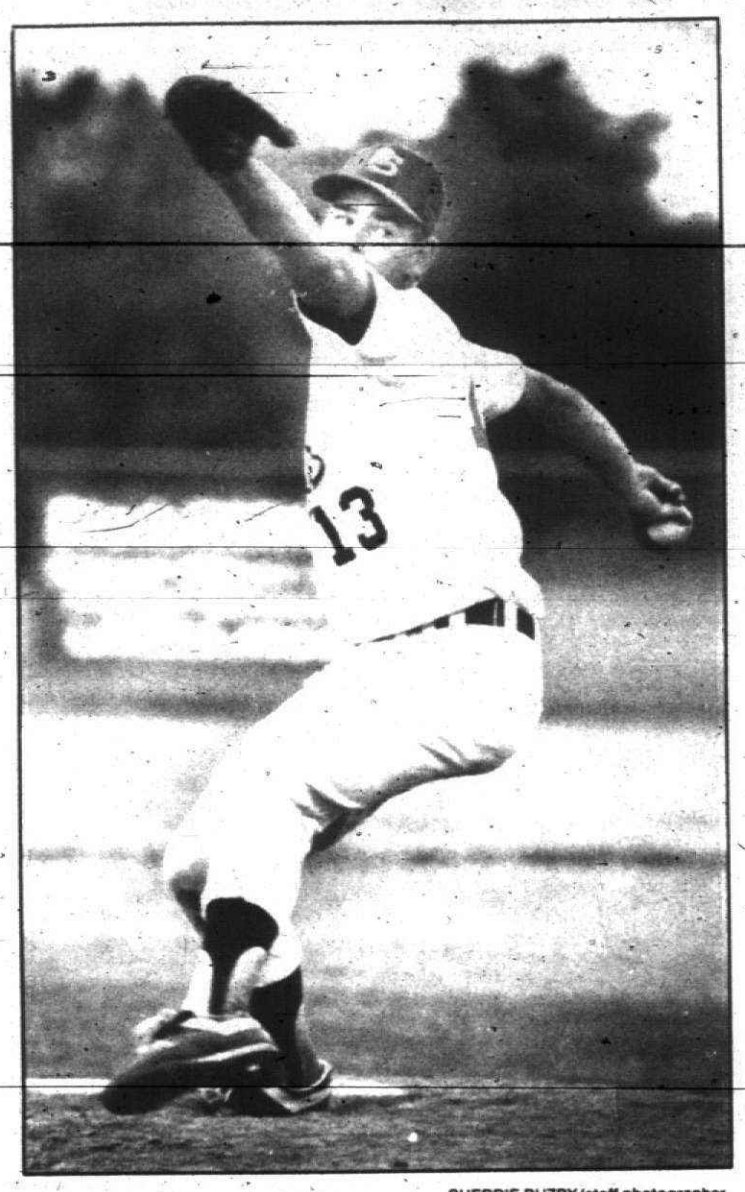
Pitching carries Salem to district title



SHERRIE BUZBY/staff photographer

Scott Rodgers pitched a one-hitter, missing a no-hitter by one inning, as Salem defeated John Glenn 4-3 in the district tournament.

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Plymouth Salem coach John Gravlin opened the packet of information he was given Saturday afternoon to learn who the Rocks will be playing in the regional baseball tournament.

The salutation atop the introductory letter said: "Congratulatons on your district championship."

"I'm getting used to this," Gravlin said after reading that.

Regional appearances have become an annual event for Salem, which won its fourth district title in the last five years Saturday with a 3-1 victory over Plymouth Canton at Ann Arbor Huron.

The Rocks have twice won back-to-back championships, in 1987-88 and 1990-91. Canton, which has lost three of those games to Salem, won in 1989.

"OF THE four, this one is the most impressive," Gravlin said. "We had four great teams in this district and three of the top pitchers in the state."

The second figure should probably be increased to four, also, after Jeff Belisle's performance in the championship game.

After teammate Scott Rodgers threw a one-hitter in the second game to help Salem defeat Western Lakes Activities Association champion Westland John Glenn 4-3, Belisle tossed a two-hitter at the Chiefs in the final.

Canton ace Scott Kennedy outdueled Adrian's Dan Lock in the first game as the Chiefs prevailed with a 3-2, come-from-behind victory.

Furthermore, every team in the tournament had more than 20 wins. Salem advances with a (22-6) record to play the Wyandotte district winner at 12:30 p.m. Saturday in the regional at Wyandotte. Glenn finishes with a 23-3 record and Canton 22-7.

"The difference in all those years is that we've had the better No. 2 pitcher," Gravlin said. "That seems to be it every time.

"THAT WAS a masterful game by Belisle. He's clearly been our No. 2 since midway in the season. There are days Jeff Belisle just heats it up."

Belisle faced 25 batters and threw 87 pitches, 53 for strikes. He struck out four and walked two. Canton's only run came on pinch-hitter Ben Hendricks' solo homer after the Rocks had taken a 3-0 lead.

"The home run was my fault," Gravlin said. "I assumed the kid was taking it and we'd throw one across."

Frank Learned pitched 4⅓ innings and gave up all three runs and five Salem hits but didn't walk anyone. Kennedy returned to pitch 2⅔ hitless innings of relief, striking out six.

baseball

"Our idea was to get (Learned) to the point we can come back with Kennedy and have it tied," Canton coach Fred Crissey said. "(Belisle) threw strikes and he didn't give us a lot. We hit the ball but couldn't find the gap."

Learned allowed only one baserunner until the fourth, when Salem scored twice. Eric Nielson led off with a single, and Scott Niemiec and Rodgers had consecutive doubles.

BUT THE key run, according to both coaches, was the one Scott Bright scored in the fifth. He singled, went to third on Ed Gundry's double and scored when the Chiefs made an infield error and a sliding Niemiec beat the throw to first.

"If it's a 2-1 game, there are a lot of things you can do," Crissey said. "If it's 3-1, you simply have to hit the ball and get on base."

"Not only that but you're not going to score many off Kennedy," Gravlin said. "He might be the best high school pitcher I've ever seen. We never faced him for seven, but a Kennedy-Rodgers matchup would have been one hell of a game.

"(Niemiec) didn't have a hit and I guess he won't get the RBI, but it was a clutch at-bat. We teach that in our program. Every time you step up there, you want to have a good at-bat. If you do that, we'll be successful, and I guess we have been."

In the Salem-Glenn game, Rodgers took a no-hitter into the seventh inning before giving up a single to Andy Gagne. But he walked 10 and hit one batter, and the Rockets had numerous scoring chances because of it.

"That was the wildest he's been all year, but he got it done when had to get it done," Gravlin said.

"JOHN GLENN has been his nemesis. It's the only team he hadn't beaten, and a little of that showed today. He got nervous in a some situations, but he dug down deep and stayed with it."

Two walks and the hit batter loaded the bases for Glenn in the fifth, and the Rockets got a run on Mike White's sacrifice fly. Rodgers ended the inning with one of five strikeouts, leaving the bases still full.

Gravlin considered going with a relief pitcher in the seventh when Glenn threatened again, scoring a run to make it 4-3 on two walks, the hit and an error.

"But you know the guy has a no-hitter going, and they know he's been shutting people down," Gravlin said. "They might come after a new guy. They tore up our relief pitching the last time.

"So it's to our advantage if he can stay in it. That says a lot about Scott Rodgers, because Glenn is one of the best hitting teams in Michigan."

The one hit was uncharacteristic of the Rockets, who scored first on Lawrence Scheffer's first-inning sacrifice fly.

"WE'VE BEEN living with (offense) all year," Glenn coach Norm Hoenes said. "We've been getting 8-9 a game and today only one.

"I thought we gave them a run in the first inning and one in the sixth, but we had our chances with the bats and didn't get the hits. I'm not going to put the blame on the defense."

Ed Gundry, who had two of Salem's seven hits, singled in the first, advanced on an error and scored on a wild pitch. The Rocks got the deciding run in the sixth when Rodgers walked and worked his way around on two errors.

"Ordinarily, by then we've scored enough runs to cover up our errors, but today was a tough ballgame and it showed up more than it has all season," Hoenes said.

Gundry slammed an RBI double in the second to give Salem the lead, and Kevin Craggs hit a solo homer in the fourth for a 3-1 advantage.

"When Ed Gundry hit one off the fence, that told us we were going to win the game," Gravlin said. "We were emotionally pumped for the game, but your confidence can turn on or off. When Eddie hit that one, we had a lift and our confidence went sky high."

AARON SCHEFFER went the distance for Glenn, striking five and walking one. Salem had five of its seven hits in the first two innings.

Kennedy pitched a two-hitter, struck out 12 and walked four to beat Adrian. After the first inning when the Maples scored both runs, he allowed one hit and two walks.

The Chiefs got four hits and four walks off Lock, who struck out seven.

Marc Pennebaker's RBI single made it 2-1, and Canton scored twice in the fifth. Chris James tied it with a sacrifice bunt, and Mike Wougamon raced home when Lock made a wild pitch on a strikeout.

Stevenson sinks Rocks

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

Yes, yes, it's true — the best play their best in big games. In Saturday's Class A state regional girls soccer showdown between Plymouth Salem and Livonia Stevenson, the Spartans' Ragen Coyne and Lori Godlewski proved that.

But it's also true that you need a little luck to be a champion.

Stevenson proved that as well. With the match tied 1-1 eight minutes into the second half, Lisa Ferguson headed a shot at the Spartan goal. Keeper Karen Groulx lunged at the ball and was able to get just a piece of it, deflecting it with her right hand enough to keep it out of the net.

But not hard enough to push it out of danger. Jennifer Oleksiak charged in from left wing and — with Groulx sprawled on the turf — drilled the rebound over the bar.

The tie had been maintained. Six minutes later it was broken, but it was Stevenson that did the untying. A corner kick from Coyne was bobbled and dropped by Salem keeper Jennifer Emmett after she collided with a Stevenson player. Andrea Wittrock knocked the ball into the net and the Spartans were ahead.

COYNE ADDED an insurance goal — her second of the game — and the defending state champs had survived their biggest test of the state tournament thus far, beating Salem 3-1 at Woodhaven HS.

The win puts Stevenson into the state semifinals against Troy Athens, 5:30 p.m. Wednesday at Troy HS.

soccer

"I don't know if it was luck or experience," said Stevenson coach Mary Kay Hussey — before admitting that Groulx's save was, very likely, a game-saver.

It certainly turned things around for the Spartans. Indeed, they were fortunate to be tied after 50 minutes. Salem outplayed them in the first half, but it was Stevenson that scored first.

"We played awful in the first half," agreed Hussey. "We were playing kickball, and we're not a kickball team — or at least we're not as successful playing kickball.

"In the second half, we put the ball on the ground and we played much better."

SALEM WAS more effective in the opening half with a physical style of play. But the Rocks were hurting; leading scorer Erin Harvey was hampered by a knee injury and played sparingly, and Mackenzie Emmett and Amy Krajewski were both hobbled.

Still, they controlled play until a defensive breakdown allowed Coyne, one of the state's top players, to get loose.

It didn't stay that way long. The Rocks counterattacked immediately, and Mandy Drummond cashed in after fielding a pass 18 yards out, setting it and knocking it past Groulx to tie it at 1-all with 12:18 remaining in the half.

The Rocks sounded confident at halftime, and rightly so. They started the second half with three good scoring chances (the last was Oleksiak's miss), but didn't convert any.

AND THAT cost them. "We had our chances today," said Salem coach Ken Johnson. "But you've got to put them in the net. All we needed were a few breaks."

The Rocks didn't get many. And after Wittrock's goal with 31:28 remaining put Stevenson ahead, the tide shifted. The Spartans took control and maintained it, with Salem getting just one other true scoring chance — a loose ball that was cleared out of danger by Stevenson's Patty Diamond with 25:00 left.

Coyne got the insurance score with 12:35 left after another free kick from Godlewski. The Salem defense froze, and Coyne made them pay, launching a shot from 22 yards that went into the corner.

"What can I say? She's a big game player," said Hussey of Coyne. "She knows what it means, and she doesn't stop. I think it's her experience in pressure situations. She knows when to dig down."

Coyne was certainly good enough to provide her team with the kick-start it needed this time. The Spartans are unbeaten since losing 5-1 to Salem in the regular season last year. They are 17-0-2; Salem bows out at 16-2-1.

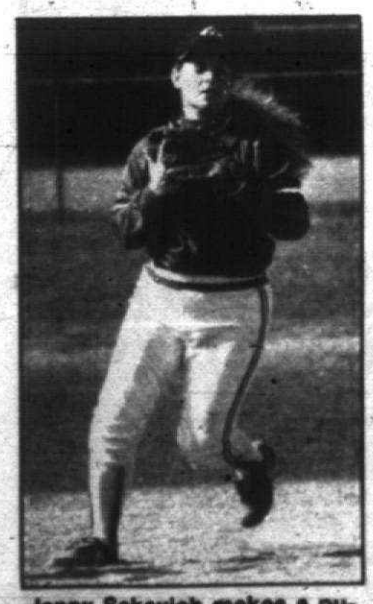
Belleville buries Canton, 10-0



Jenny Sekovich makes a putout on the infield.

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

It didn't take 21 innings to decide the Plymouth Canton-Belleville softball game this year, but the outcome was the same.

Belleville needed the regulation seven innings Saturday to defeat the Chiefs 10-0 in the championship game of the Ann Arbor Huron district tournament.

The same teams played a five-hour marathon game last year in a district semifinal contest before the Tigers broke loose to claim an 8-2 victory.

The game Saturday was scoreless until the fourth inning, when Belleville scored three runs. The Tigers added three in the fifth and fourth in the seventh.

Belleville had nine hits off Canton pitcher Kelly Holmes, but the Chiefs made four errors behind her.

TANYA KJELLIN, Keshia Wilson and Jenny Adkins had two hits apiece for the winners. Kjellin also scored three runs, Wilson and Adkins two each.

"They're a good hitting team," Canton coach Jim Arnold said. "They came out aggressively, trying to stretch singles to doubles.

"Kelly pitched well enough to win, but we had all the errors in one inning. That turned the tide; that's what hurt us."

Canton had six hits, half by Renee Dory, who was 3-for-3 in that game and 5-for-6 in the tournament.

"I'm not going to take anything away from them," said Arnold of the Tigers. "They just made some unbelievable defensive plays. They probably played their best game of the season.

"If we played them 10 times, they might play once like that. It just happened to be against us."

CANTON'S BEST scoring opportunity came in the fifth inning, but third baseman Kris Ford was thrown out at home on Dory's two-out hit.

"She made a valiant effort at the plate," Arnold said. "She made a head-first slide. She's a gutsy kid, the captain of the team.

"There's a theory I use that says 'If you score first, you win 80 percent of the time,' " he added. "We didn't score first."

Belleville pitcher Dawn Rochowiak struck out four and walked two. Holmes, who struck out 22 last year, had no strikeouts and one walk.

The Chiefs, who finish with a 20-5 record, defeated Adrian 5-2 in the first game while Belleville mercied Huron 14-0.

Holmes pitched a two-hitter in the semifinals, struck out nine and walked one.

Dory had two hits, including an RBI single in the fifth for a 4-0 score. Kim Hengy had an RBI double in the sixth and scored the last run on an error.

Ford scored two runs, and Sarah Schimmelpfennig, Holmes and Nicole Sequin had one hit and scored one run apiece. Dani Mortiere scored the other run.

'They're a good hitting team. They came out aggressively, trying to stretch singles to doubles. Kelly (Holmes) pitched well enough to win, but we had all the errors in one inning. That turned the tide; that's what hurt us.'

S'craft budget half full or empty?

C.J. Risak

A RAGGED GROUP of Neanderthals crouched around a flickering fire discussing their future. It was the year 10,600 B.C. and — much like their ancestors would later do — they deliberated over who should guide them into the next century.

One of the older guys — about 150, maybe 155 (there were no environmental hazards to shorten lifespans back then, except the occasional roving tyrannosaurus rex) — thumped his chest and trumpeted, "I always led well. Look."

He thrust forward his hand, into the firelight. In it was a roughly hewn, hollowed-out piece of wood with water in it. "I have always found water for us. Our cups are never empty," he said.

A younger member of the clan — no more than 135 — waited until the murmuring among his comrades died down. Then, narrowing his eyes, he said:

"Yes — but our cups are never full. Always they are half-empty."

That was the dawn of politics.

FORUMS AND THEORIES have changed since, but the basic rules of political thinking are much the same. The Is the cup half-empty or half-full? adage has been retold countless times. It offers more than a descriptive definition of the difference between optimism and pessimism.

Politically speaking, it illustrates how hard facts can be twisted to suit one's own purpose.

A more contemporary example is currently on display at Schoolcraft College.

Wednesday, I was informed by Adelard Raby, a member of the SC administration, that information I had used in an earlier column regarding athletic scholarship budget cuts was incorrect.

Raby told me the athletic scholarship fund for 1990-91 was $33,600; he added the fund for 1991-92 was exactly the same.

So why the cuts?

It was a question he could not answer. Only the department head, Midge Carleton, could shed insight into that, and she's still on vacation.

IF ATHLETIC DIRECTOR Marty Nowak knew anything regarding the budget, he refused to say. "No comment" was the only answer Nowak supplied.

I requestioned three of the coaches I had interviewed previously, and each of them reaffirmed that there were, indeed, cuts to be dealt with in scholarships — more than 50 percent in some cases.

Right about now, you should be asking yourself what I was asking myself. Like: What the heck is going on here?

There are really only two possible answers. Either costs have risen so dramatically that the same amount of money cannot come close to paying for the same number of scholarships, or the dollars meant for athletic scholarships are being diverted elsewhere.

Raby assured me it wasn't the former. Tuition costs have risen slightly, he said, but "not enough (difference) to make a hill of beans."

SO WHERE ELSE could the money be going? Cost overruns in other areas of the athletic budget (something that doesn't really exist, according to several sources; there is no firm budget for athletics, they say) is a good guess. But are those due to overruns from the past or rising costs?

Again, Raby said he could not answer those questions. And Nowak gave his usual "no comment." Carleton, apparently (hopefully) is the only person who could.

So what's the deal? Is SC's athletic scholarship budget half-empty or just as full as it's ever been?

Both are true, I guess.

So is this, according to coaches: The money they get for scholarships from the school is already gone. Unless there is more adjusting to the budget, coaches will be left to raise additional scholarship funds for themselves.

And if the history of politics maintains its course, there will be a lot of finger-wagging as each group blames the other. The ultimate victims, of course, will be the kids who don't get scholarships and the coaches who will look foolish when forced to renege on promises of scholarships previously made.

Ocelots focus on improved depth

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

It should come as no surprise, really. Dave Bogataj, Schoolcraft College's men's basketball coach, had one very basic aim when he started recruiting in earnest for the 1991-92 season:

Improving his team's depth.

Of course, he also had a lot to replace in the regular lineup. Like three starters, including the Ocelots' top two scorers in Randy Watters (24 points a game) and Kwesi McGill. McGill has already signed with West Virginia Wesleyan, an NAIA school, while Watters is considering Oakland University, West New Mexico State and Wesleyan.

The third graduating starter was center Barry Quayle. That leaves Bogataj with returnees Mitch Fyke, Scott Meredith and Jeff Wagner to build around.

The SC coach believes he has done so successfully.

SIGNED TO play with the Ocelots are 6-foot-5 guard Chris Habitz, from Lutheran Westland; 6-5 forward Lamonte Fondren, from Oak Park; 6-3 guard Robby Raymonds, from Southgate Aquinas; and 6-7 forward Jarvis Murray, from Detroit Cody.

"We're pleased where we are right now," said Bogataj. "Everybody we've (signed) is good at the position we have them."

At the top of his list is Habitz. Although he's not the same type of player Watters (an all-conference selection) was, Habitz "has a tremendous amount of skills. He can shoot the three, he passes well and he can jump. And he takes it to the basket.

"He's not as strong down in the low post as Randy, but he's a much better passer."

Fondren is "a strong kid who runs the court and can handle the ball. He doesn't have a three-point shot but he's very athletic. He jumps real well, he's aggressive defensively and he's a team player. He has nice inside moves plus a good 10 to 12-foot jumper."

UNLIKE FONDREN, who fills the small forward slot, Murray is a power player. His offensive range is like Fondren's, but Murray "works the boards real hard, and he's a good defensive player — just what we need." Murray averaged over 10 points and seven rebounds a game for Cody.

Raymonds was all-Catholic League at Aquinas, scoring close to 14 points a game. "He's a heckuva player," said Bogataj. "He's a three-point shooter, a strong kid. He hits the boards and passes the ball well." Another Aquinas player, 5-10 guard Jason Ward, is considering SC but remains uncommitted.

With the players he's signed and the others he may get, Bogataj thinks this team will be better than last season's 14-15 squad (5-11 in the Eastern Conference).

"ALL (THE RECRUITS) are team players," noted Bogataj. "We'll score 94 points a game again, like last year. But we'll be better defensively. We're quicker and better athletes.

"We've improved on the boards, our depth and our defense. We could go down to nine or 10 kids without any problems. Last year, we could go seven."

Depth like that is unknown at SC, where academic problems have devastated the team at the January semester change. Bogataj pointed out that all four of his current recruits had grades good enough to get them into a four-year school.

Hopefully, they'll carry that classroom success over to SC. And just as hopefully, they'll be as effective on the court in college as they were in high school.

Clawson defeats Harrison

A heartbreaker.

There's no other way to describe Farmington Hills Harrison's 4-3 loss Saturday to Clawson in a Class B district semifinal game at Madison High School.

The game was a heartbreaker not only because it lasted 15 innings, but because Harrison stranded the tying run at third base in the bottom of the 15th. Dan Hight walked, stole second base and was sacrificed to third base.

The Clawson pitcher struck out both Jeff Cislo and Gary Devine to end the threat and the Hawks' season.

Mike Pesci started and lasted the first four innings on the mound for Harrison. Devine came on in the fifth with the Hawks ahead 3-2, but Clawson tied the score at three to send the game into extra innings.

Devine was removed after the 14th inning, because he had pitched his allotted 10 innings in one week of state tournament play.

Pesci helped his own cause by hitting a solo home run.

Fitness programs fit form for family fun

Dear Myrna: It is spring now and everyone in my family is overweight. My children are young teenagers — the usual lazy type. My husband is a little athletic. How can I get everyone moving? Something to spark a little interest in exercise.

A successful family fitness program can establish healthy, lifelong habits in children, which is a great gift from any parent. Even if your family members are at different fitness levels, you still can do a number of things to get all family members involved in the healthy habit.

Spend the time together and talk about what activities your family members like the best. Make a list of activities that are aerobically sound. For example, there is speed walking, jogging, aerobic class, aerobic machinery (treadmill, stairmaster, etc.). Choose one activity to start with. I suggest speed walking which is a natural activity. Make sure you all agree on the time of day to take this energetic walk. Everyone might need to be flexible.

Now, don't set your family goals too high. If some members of your family want to lose weight, remember that muscle weighs much more than fat. You can't always count on the scale. It's not a bad idea to have an exercise expert come to your home and instruct your family in proper abdominal exercise and upper body fitness. The abdominal and upper body muscles respond to exercise more quickly than other muscle groups so allo of you might get faster, positive feedback. When you can actually see results, you are encouraged to keep plugging away. Mental attitude plays a big part here.

Make a commitment for one month. It is not long enough to be too intimidating, but just enough time to start to see results. You are all looking for a long-term lifestyle change, not just a short spurt.

Another little tip is to tell your friends. Talk about it to others. This will help you stay into it. Nobody wants their friends to know they have failed at something so important.

Remember to reward yourselves constantly — maybe with a hiking trip to an interesting place might be fun.

Gradually change your activity. You don't want any dropouts. Together your family can make that choice to shape up and take control of your life and then do the same on every successive day. Some days are easier to keep your promise of exercise than other days. Be prepared for those negative workout days and mentally push yourselves. It is called boot-strapping each other.

Just think — a happy family who exercises together, stays together.

(Myrna Partrich, co-owner of The Workout Company Inc. of Bloomfield Township, and a member of the President's Council on Physical Fitness, is happy to answer any questions readers may have regarding exercise. Send your letters to: Sports Department, Myrna Partrich, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham 48009.)

● GIRLS BASKETBALL

The West Oakland Chargers, a team of 13-year-old girls from western Wayne and Oakland counties, will compete in the Junior Olympic National Championships in Cincinnati this summer.

Plymouth's Julie Angell is one of the Chargers, who won the state tournament in April. Other players are from Novi, Livonia, West Bloomfield, Farmington Hills, Waterford, Bay City and Detroit. The roster includes Becky Bilicki, Melissa Campeau, Chris Edwards, Julianne Grant, Karen Hanley, Ann Marie Lemire, Holly Myszenski, Tara Overaitis, Ann Poglits, Andrea Salyer and Laura Snider.

The Chargers are trying to raise $9,000 for their trip to the nationals. Tax-deductible donations can be sent to the West Oakland Chargers at 4256N Knollwood Ct., Northville, 48167.

● BASEBALL REUNION

All former and present Plymouth Canton baseball players, families and fans are invited to attend a reunion dinner/dance on Saturday, June 29. For information call 453-4538 or 455-3564 by Saturday, June 15.

● TENNIS LESSONS

Tennis lessons are being offered by Canton Parks and Recreation Services from Monday, June 17, to Friday, July 5, at Griffin Community Park.

The fee is $25 for Canton residents, $30 for non-residents. Six lessons will be given during the three-week period. Age groups are youth (ages 8-12), juniors (13-17) and adults (18-up). Lessons are for players of all ability levels.

Call the Parks and Recreation Office at 397-5110 for details.

● FOOTBALL CAMP

A non-contact, instructional football camp sponsored by the Canton Lions will take place Friday and Saturday, June 21-22, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The fee is $15, and children age 7-14 are eligible.

Lunch will be provided, and all participants will receive a T-shirt. For information call Debby at 397-1720 or Cindy at 981-4856.

● FATHER'S DAY GOLF

The 11th Annual Father's Day Scrambles Golf Tournament will be played Sunday, June 16, at Fellows Creek Golf Course. Tee times begin at 11 a.m.

The fee is $69 per three-person team, which includes greens fees and awards. Advance registration is required. Call 397-5110 for information.

● PISTONS AT CAMP

Detroit Pistons Joe Dumars and Isiah Thomas will be instructors for a three-day basketball camp Thursday, Friday and Saturday, July 25-27, at the Plymouth Salem and Canton high schools. The cost is $125.

Boys and girls ages 7-17 are eligible to participate. Session I is for ages 7-10 and goes from 8 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. each day; Session II ages 11-12 from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.; Session III ages 13-17 from 3-5:30 p.m. Campers should come dressed to play.

Thomas will attend one day, Dumars another. Another NBA player or Pistons coach will instruct the third day.

For information call Camp Coordinator Fred Thomann at 451-6600, ext. 247; or Bob Blohm at 451-6600, ext. 302; or send a self-addressed envelope to Thomann at Salem High School, 46181 Joy Road, Canton, 48187.

● SOCCER NEWS

Susan O'Neill of Canton has been chosen as a member of the Sport For Understanding soccer team which will travel to Germany this summer. She is a student at Plymouth Christian Academy.

SFU is a non-profit exchange program for teen athletes. Players must be between the ages of 14 and 19, be active in their chosen sport and have a grade-point average of at least 2.0.

● SOCCER CHAMPS

The Canton Bullets won the 1982 boys recreation division championship in the Ninth Annual Canton Challenge Festival Soccer Invitational May 26 at Canton Recreation Center.

The Bullets were inadvertently omitted from the list of tournament winners in the last issue of the Observer. The Bullets had a 3-0 record in the division and clinched the title with a 3-0 victory over Garden City.

The Spirit of '77 had a successful trip to the Amherst Invitational in Amherst, N.Y., winning the championship in five games.

The Spirit was unscored upon as goalkeeper Ben Lawton gave an outstanding performance. The team defeated the Chili (N.Y.) Lancers 1-0, Unionville (Ontario) 1-0, the Warren (Mich.) Carpathia Kickers 1-0, the Hamburg (N.Y.) Redhawks 6-0 and, in the final, the Brighton (N.Y.) Hot Shots 1-0. The Spirit needed a shootout to defeat the Kickers.

● SOFTBALL QUALIFIER

A junior world qualifying softball tournament for girls teams will be played Saturday and Sunday, June 8-9, at Canton Recreation Center. The age groups are 10-under, 12-under, 15-under and 18-under. The fee is $145.

For information call Bill Martin at 347-2056 during daytime hours or 722-4999 in the evening. The world tournament will be played Aug. 2-5 in Cocoa, Fla.

● SOCCER TRYOUT

The Plymouth Kicks '78 premier soccer team will have tryouts on Sunday, June 23, and Wednesday, June 26, from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at Pioneer Middle School. Tryouts are open to boys born between Aug. 1, 1977 and Dec. 31, 1978. Players should bring a light and dark shirt for scrimmaging. For information call Armando Santos at 453-5929.

Area bowlers in PBA event

Al Harrison

THE PINS WERE really flying last weekend at Drakeshire Lanes in Farmington Hills as the Professional Bowlers Association (PBA) held its regional tournament.

The PBA stages 20 of these events annually. The region includes Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and West Virginia.

Regional competition is usually a stepping stone for the national PBA tour, and it affords a chance for the younger bowlers to try their skills against the toughest possible competition. This is also a great opportunity for the local classic bowlers to bowl with the PBA without the heavy travel expenses incurred when competing away from home.

In order to bowl in the PBA, it is necessary to meet the standards of the PBA bowlers, pay the entry fees and meet the dress and conduct codes of the PBA.

Among the top bowlers from the Observerland area entered were: Mike Samardzija, John Bryngelson, D.J. Hochstein and Lee Snow, all of Farmington Hills; Mark Stawski and Mark Abelle, both of Garden City; Doug Spicer and Bob Raf of West Bloomfield; Ken Kubit, Dave Myers, David Mahaz and Tim Detherage, all of Livonia.

FRIDAY WAS the first day of competition for the Pro-Am event, in which amateurs can team up with a professional for a special prize fund. There were 73 amateurs competing in four divisions; mens, womens, seniors and youth.

The Pro-Am winners included: Lewis Rowe, 1,564, men's; Barbara Scribner, 1,559, womens; John Crissman, 1,507, seniors; Shannon Rowe, 1,395, junior girls; Lisa Bishop, 1,455, major girls; Jason Swartz, 1,452, junior boys; and Jim O'Doherty, 1,419, major boys.

The field for qualifying was cut to 24 Saturday. The bowlers had 10 games in which to quality for the head-to-head finals on Sunday. The surviving competitors included Samardzija, Snow, Stawski, and Tom Shively of Northville.

The head-to-head competition weeded the field down to the final five for the stepladder finals (television format). Samardzija held the fifth and final spot. Snow just missed the cut and took home the sixth place money.

THE MATCH play finals had Mark Aseltine of Flint eliminating Samardzija in a close contest, 218-214. Jeff DeKubber of Grand Rapids then beat Aseltine by a wide margin, 258-206. The third match featured a lot of strikes as DeKubber wiped out Shively, 279-243.

The championship match pitted DeKubber against Kevin Taber of Toledo for the $3,000 first prize. It was DeKubber in the lead all the way until an unfortunate 4-6-7-10 split (double pinocle) occurred in the ninth frame, opening the door for Taber, who took home the championship trophy.

The next regional tournament takes place June 6-8 in Indianapolis. Drakeshire will be the host site again for a future PBA regional. I will keep you posted.

All told, our local bowlers performed very well in this elite level of competition. With a few more lucky breaks, anyone could have won.

● TEAM USA STATE rolloffs are currently underway at Allen Park's Thunderbowl Lanes. There are 23 women and 23 men attempting to advance all the way to the nationals.

Among the contestants are: Kathy Haislip of West Blomfield, David Myers of Livonia, Judy Grewicki, Marilyn Lueck and Ken Resnick of Canton Township, Sally Harris of Westland, and Garden City's Tom Johnston, Garrett Nagle, Larry Walker, Steve Pencola and Paul Hutchinson.

Five women and four men will then advance to the regionals based on actual pinfall. The ultimate goal is to make "Team USA" and represent the country in international competition.

The regionals will be held in late June and the national finals in late July in Atlanta.

● BRUNSWICK Corp. and Kmart have entered into a long-term nationwide vendor partnership for a varity of bowling products.

Beginning Aug. 1, Brunswick will supply Kmart with bowling balls, bags and shoes. Kmart, based in Troy, is the world's largest retailer of bowling products with approximately 2,100 stores throughout the country.

● FARMINGTON'S Bel Aire Lanes has openings in the youth leagues which start up June 4 and run at 4 p.m. each Tuesday for both regular youth and bumper bowlers. Bel Aire is located on Orchard Lake Road, just south of Greenes Road.

● MERRI BOWL Lanes in Livonia announced its summer open bowling schedule Monday through Thursday will be "all you can bowl" for $4.95 and will take place between 1 and 5 p.m.

Monday evenings will feature summer singles no-tap. The $11 entry fee includes a mystery game, prize money and the bowling cost.

Rock-n-Bowl for kids only will take place every Friday. Ages 10-15 will bowl 7-10 p.m. The night features prizes, fun and dancing. For more information, call 427-2900.

Company in Orchard Lake, caught more Michigan DNR Master Angler Award trout and salmon than any other spoon, plug or type of live bait.

Included in the survey were Atlantic, chinook, coho and pink salmon along with brown, lake and rainbow/steelhead trout.

Silver Streaks accounted for 18 awards compared to 12 for J-Plugs, 11 for Northport Nailers and 10 for Northern King Spoons. For the third year in a row, Silver Streaks caught more king (chinook) salmon than any other lure.

● ELK HUNT SCHEDULED

A total of 155 licenses will be issued for the winter elk hunt, held Dec. 10-17 in Michigan's northern Lower Peninsula. There will be 57 hunter's choice permits and 98 antlerless-only permits available.

● BEAR LICENSES AVAILABLE

The 1991 bear hunting license applications are now available at license dealers and selected Department of Natural Resourtces offices.

A total of 5,519 harvest licenses, an increase of 32-percent over 1990, will be distributed among the state's eight-bear hunting management units (seven in the Upper Peninsula and one in the Lower Peninsula).

Season dates, which vary according to hunt periods within the management unit, are Sept. 10-Oct. 24.

Applications must be postmarked no later than June 15 and successful applicants will be notified in early July.

● NEW STATE RECORD

An 11.5-inch, 5.8-ounce smelt, taken from Big Bay de Noc in Delta County, has aset a new state record, Department of Natural Resources fisheries biologists announced.

Maynard B. Salisbury of Grand Rapids caught the fish while still-fishing with a minnow on April 27.

It beats the old record of an 11.3-inch, 4-ounce smelt caught in Houghton County's Cowles Creek.

You'll notice that the Warhawk pictured on the museum's brochure has a female pilot, Sue Parish, a grandmother and one of the museum's co-founders. Parish, a World War II pilot, flew military planes from factory to bases.

NOT ALL the planes in the collection are on view. In the museum's restoration center, "new" old planes are disassembled, meticulously researched and restored with new skins, wiring, etc.

Their future includes flight. At 2:00 p.m. daily during the summer (weather permitting) one of these veterans rolls onto the runway and roars into the air. If you want to see a particular plane in its natural element, try calling ahead to see when it's scheduled to fly.

The museum has engines, uniforms, model planes, vintage photos and memorabilia from both sides of the battle. Dioramas depict air, ground and sea forces in action together. The Veterans of Guadalcanal organization has an exhibit displaying a collection of maps, clippings, photographs and personal diaries.

Visitors can sit in a Link Trainer, see aviation films in a small theater and purchase books, models and T-shirts in the gift shop.

AIR SHOW

The museum's imminent air show has long been one of the most popular air events in the nation. Aging warbirds fly, modern jets soar in precision aerobatics and daredevils walk on wings.

The show commemorates the 50th anniversary of the United States entry into World War II with a mock air battle between U.S. fighters and a Mitsubishi Zero replica.

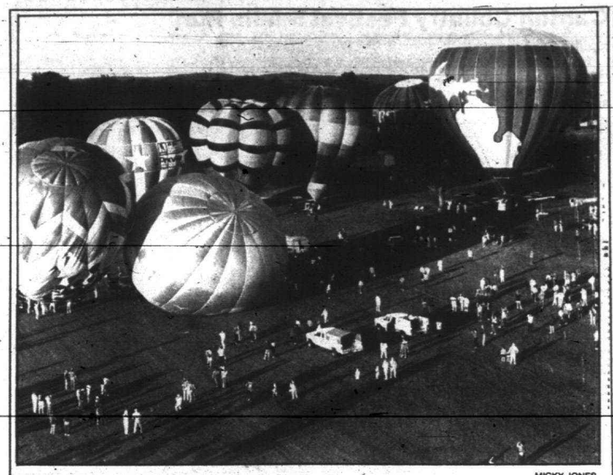
A flying salute to World War II veterans, the show will also pay tribute to the men and women of operation Desert Storm. Proceeds will go to programs for military families and the Kalamazoo High on Heroes Fund.

ON TAP for the event is the U.S. Army Golden Knights skydiving team, set to perform a Saturday twilight show amid fireworks and flares. Also scheduled are the Coors Light Silver Bullet Jet Team, Showcat wingwalking, aerobatics and "Fireflight," the Pepsi Skydance and Skywriter and more.

A special feature of the air show is the "Flight of the Gruntman Cats" whereby the museum's Wildcat, Hellcat, Bearcat and Tigercat whiz over the field in formation.

The museum is on the south side of the Kalamazoo Airport and open 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday. The museum is closed June 8-9 when the planes are flying in the air show.

For more information, contact the Kalamazoo Aviation Museum, 3101 East Milham Road, Kalamazoo, 49002, or telephone (616) 382-6555.



MICKY JONES

Da balloons boss, da balloons!

The Battle Creek International Balloon Championship and Air Show will fly high June 29 through July 6 at W.K. Kellogg Regional Airport. Comedian Pat Paulsen will be there, once again announcing whether he will run for president. The show will include the U.S. Army Golden Knights parachute team, the Air Force Thunderbirds flying F-16 Electric Jets, the Canadian Forces Parachute Team, a hot air balloon competition, the Chicago Fire Stunt Kite Team, an amusement park and live entertainment. The Battle Creek Hot-Air Balloon Championship is a non-profit organization supported in part by parking and gate fees. Parking is $4 a day; admission is $2 per person per day. Contact the organization at 237 North Helmer Road, PO Box 2019, Battle Creek, 49015-2019, or telephone (616) 962-0592.

Poet was wrong about K'zoo

By Doris Schartsenberg

Glen Miller once had the country stompin' to "I've Got A Gal In Kalamazoo-zoo-zoo-zoo . . ." H.L. Mencken said the name added "barbaric brilliancy to the American map." Carl Sandburg must have reckoned such a moniker had wicked connotations. Although he wrote a poem called the "Sins of Kalamazoo," it is suspected that Sandburg never came to town, let alone sample the local sins.

Residents of today's Kalamazoo proudly pop it all in their tin whistles (kazoos) and blow a tune called "There Really Is A Kalamazoo," debunking the myths and laughing at the bad jokes. The name, they will tell you, comes from an Indian word meaning "mirage of reflecting river."

K'zoo is a walker's place. It's easy to stroll from midtown shops and parks to heritage streets with Italianate, Queen Anne or Sears-catalogue houses. Including Western Michigan University, there are five colleges, dozens of churches, excellent shopping, art theaters, a superb music hall (the late Thomas Schippers, who conducted the Metropolitan Opera, grew up here).

Willow Run air show sports Patriot missile, Blue Angels

Perhaps the most dramatic demonstration of American technology in the Gulf War was the Patriot air defense missile system.

The Patriot guarded both Israel and Saudi Arabia from attack by providing a shield against Iraqi Scud missiles.

And now you can see one! A Patriot from Redstone Arsenal, Ala. will be visible at Air Michigan '91 June 8-9 at Willow Run Airport near Ypsilanti. This will be among the first public displays of the Patriot system.

Manufactured by Raytheon in Andover, Mass., the Patriot was designed to shoot down aircraft but modified to intercept missiles.

The Patriot system includes several components, all of which are truck or trailer mounted. The whole package can be air-lifted by the C-5 Galaxy or C-141 Starlifter.

The missiles can be off-loaded, road-marched and set up in a relatively short time. The system incorporates self-check and fault diagnostic software, providing rapid location of failed components and a check for proper operations after repair.

The status monitoring function automatically checks system performance every 15 seconds, assesses detected faults for severity of impact on mission capability and measures them against specific "fight or fix" criteria. It takes a crew of three to operate each Patriot unit.

The Patriot's combat success had a significant impact on the politics of the Gulf War. By providing a shield against Scuds launched at Israel, the United States was able to keep Israel out of the war.

The air show will also feature the U.S. Navy Blue Angels in their F/A-18 Hornets, an F-16 Electric Jet, numerous civilian performers and aircraft on static display.

Advance tickets are available from TicketMaster, Kroger stores and the air show office. Advanced tickets are $8 adult, $5 children (age 6-11). Children 5 and under are free.

Adult tickets at the gate are $11 and children's tickets are $8. For more information, call 482-8888.

Summer events lure boats to state harbors

Boaters won't have to cruise far to find tempting summertime festivals at Michigan's state-sponsored facilities, generally no more than 15 shoreline miles from a Great Lakes harbor.

Boaters can kick back in front-row seats for a fireworks display in downtown Detroit or view a passing parade of lighted vessels in Charlevoix. They can stretch their sea legs during bridge walks in Mackinaw City and Sault Ste. Marie or stroll among Michigan-made arts and crafts in St. Clair.

Most activities, listed on the AAA Michigan 1991 Harbor Guide, are within walking distance of the harbor, a few require land transportation. In addition to the events, restaurants, grocery stores, beaches and picnic areas are a short walk from most harbors.

Boaters will be able to dock at two new state-sponsored facilities this summer in Bay City and Baraga.

But it will cost more to tie up for the evening at all state docks. The Michigan State Waterways Commission's new fee schedule ranges from a flat rate of $15 for boats less than 24 feet long to $1.09 per foot for boats 60 feet and longer. Last year, rates were $14.50 and $1.04, respectively.

Also new in 1991 is a $5 charge for temporary daytime moorage. Pumpout charges remain $4 per connection.

Dock space is rented on a first-come, first-serve basis. However, Detroit's St. Aubin Park will accept reservations on a trial basis this year. If successful, the reservation system could be expanded to other sites in 1992.

The majority of harbors maintain pumpout facilities, restrooms, showers and fuel docks. Other services can be obtained at commercial marinas.

One-horse towns offer more than you know

Compared to Augusta, Marietta is a metropolis with a population of nearly 17,000. It's Ohio's oldest town, home of Marietta College, founded in 1835, and Rossi Pasta.

Rossi Pasta? This is one of Marietta's surprises: a factory producing handmade, all-natural pasta for Nieman-Marcus, Williams-Sonoma, gourmet cooks and, of course, the rest of the world. (Visitors can check out the pastas in the wonderful-smelling retail shop. Others can order by mail.)

Spinach-basil, saffron, black olive, jalapeno and garlic are a few of the selections, and the company is generous with recipes and cooking tips written in a lighthearted style. (Ask for the Rossi Pasta Prima; "A (Simple) Guide for the Kitchen Frail.")

MARIETTA, NAMED for Queen Marie Antoinette of France, was founded in 1788 by veterans of the Revolutionary War and became the gateway to the Northwest Territory (land which later became Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and part of Minnesota) and its first permanent settlement.

The town survived the bloody battles of the last Indian wars (1790 to 1794) and became a busy and prosperous ship-building center and steamboat port.

This part of Marietta's heritage is reflected in the popularity of the Valley Gem, a sternwheeler providing hourly trips on the Muskingum and Ohio rivers, and melodramas presented during the summer on the showboat Becky Thatcher.

Sternwheelers from around the country will race on the river during the Ohio River Sternwheel Festival the first weekend after Labor Day. The festival features live entertainment, fireworks and craft booths along the riverbank.

Marietta is an appealing tree-shaded town in a pleasant countryside of hills, valleys and river views. There are two museums, the Ohio River Museum and the Campus Martius, fine old Victorian houses and some remaining brick streets and alleys.

TROLLEY TOURS of Marietta are conducted regularly, beginning on Green Street near the historic Lafayette Hotel.

Tours are also offered free at the Fenton Art Glass Company, in nearby Williamstown, W.V., where glass is blown and hand-shaped by craftsmen.

The Middleton Doll Factory is another popular place. The dolls, created by Ohio artist Lee Middleton, have faces sculpted from images of real children and are prized by collectors. (An outlet with near-perfect dolls is at 268 Front St. in Marietta.)

For more information, contact the Marietta Tourist and Convention Bureau, 316 Third St., Marietta, OH 45750 or telephone toll-free (800) 288-2577. The Rossi Pasta Factory is at 114 Greene St., Marietta, OH 45750 or call toll-free (800) 227-6774.

Blasting through the white water

The most important thing is teamwork. Keep paddling at all times, even if someone falls out. Getting the person back in the raft is priority number one, but you can't do it until you're past the wild waters.

Don't wear jeans, even if it's cold. You get drenched when you walk into the water to reach the raft, and you haven't even started yet. Soaked jeans are impossible to get off! Most companies will rent wet suits, but you won't need one unless it's really cold.

I had canoed before, but rafting is very different. The raft moves, bends and rolls with the waves. You can feel the rocks scraping under you.

After we conquered several rapids without a scratch, we lost one of our crew, Don VanSickle of Canton, a close friend. Before I knew what happened, he was gone, nowhere in sight.

ALL I could see was white froth with an occasional rock jutting out of the violent water. No sign of Don.

Having heard rumors of someone dying on that very river years ago made us forget paddling to find Don. The guide plunged his paddle into the water to see if Don would grab it. No luck.

After what seemed a lifetime, Don's head poked up through the water. All of our safety instruction came in handy as we tried to rescue him. The sound of the water was so loud he couldn't hear us screaming to keep his feet in front of him, although he knew to do it anyway.

Don came out unscathed. When we hauled him into the raft, we sighed with relief and headed for the next set of rapids.

Even though white-water rafting can be dangerous, it's great fun. There's always the anticipation of what lies ahead, like on the uphill trek of a roller coaster. You feel a sense of vulnerability and power at having conquered the waters. I went rafting again this year on a tougher river, the Cheat in West Virginia, and it was more exhilarating. Who knows what lies ahead for next year!

The cost of white-water rafting varies from $50 to $150 depending on the river, the day of the week and time of year. Mountain Streams offer a group discount. If 19 people pay, one goes free!

THERE ARE some minimum age requirements. On the Lower Youghiogheny River, it's 12, on the Cheat, Gauley, Upper Yough, and Tygart's Valley River and the Big Sandy Creek you must be 16 years old. The Middle Youghiogheny is the easiest run, open to anyone 6 or older.

The difficulty level of each river is indicated by "class." Class I for youngsters and families and Class VI for experienced rafters.

The river rides run during certain times of the year. For example, Cheat River trips are in the spring while Youghiogheny trips are May through September.

Four-man rafts are common, but 10-man rafts are used if the water is high. Lunch is served halfway through the trip.

For more information, contact Mountain Streams and Trails: PO Box 106, Ohiopyle, PA 15470 or call toll-free (800) 245-4090.

The play's the thing at Stratford Festival

The Stratford Festival opened officially last week in a flurry of black-tie events and premiere showings. I say "officially" because the plays have been performed daily since the season opened April 29.

That's when the swans were released from their winter quarters behind the arena, the ducks started dropping in on picnic dinners and the water birds began their daily parades across the roads.

By mid May the pedal boats were busy on the Avon River, spring flowers were blooming in the Shakespearean Gardens and the bed-and-breakfast places had their signs out for the summer.

I saw three of this summer's plays during the unofficial-preview season: "Much Ado About Nothing" at the Festival Theater, "Our Town" and "Les Belles Soeurs" at the Avon Theater. I didn't get into the Tom Patterson Theater, named after the Stratford journalist largely responsible for launching this festival; the theater was formerly called Third Stage.

I PREDICT that "Les Belles Soeurs," written by Canadian playwright Michel Tremblay and performed for the first time in English, will be the main topic of conversation this summer. It is a funny, angry, loud, unusual play about a group of French-Canadian women who gathered to help paste into booklets the one million gold stamps won by a housewife.

People either love it or hate it, think it has too much swearing or is realistic, etc. Whether you like it or not, you should see it and join the conversation at the Festival this year.

That kind of information is available when you buy a theater ticket, but if you want other important Stratford information you must ask somebody who has been there and knows the bed and breakfasts, the restaurants, the best bookstore, etc.

I pick the brains of all my friends who travel and I would like to pick yours. If you have been to Stratford, Ontario and have a small tip for our readers, read on.

K'zoo air zoo plans air show

By Doris Scharfenberg
special writer

Wildcat, Hellcat, Tigercat, Bearcat, Grasshopper, Warhawk, Aircobra . . .

The "K'zoo air zoo" hunkers down in a gleaming hanger of its own; a fighting menagerie with engines that purr and hearts ready to take off.

These fierce sky creatures of World War II, gathered at the Kalamazoo Aviation History Museum, take to the sky June 8-9 in the High on Kalamazoo Air Show, but the museum is open year round.

In skins of yellow, green, blue and even pink, the trim fuselages and taut struts evoke admiring stares as their individual exploits are recounted by the guide.

BENEATH BRIGHT banners and flags, you meet such veterans as the Grumman F4F Wildcat, a plane with a victory-to-loss ratio of 6 to 1. The F6F-5 Hellcat (victory-to-loss ratio 19 to 1) turned the tide in the air war over the Pacific. Designed to intercept Japan's kamikazes, the F8F-1 Bearcat never saw service in the war, but served admirably into the '80s.

Also on display is "The Sweetheart of Okinawa" (F4U Corsair), the P-39 Aircobra with an Oldsmobile cannon in its nose, the Douglas A1E Skyraider used in Korea and Vietnam, a Douglas Skytrooper transport, etc. The display even includes a German-built aircraft, the HA 1112 M1L Hispano Buchon.

One of the most stared-at planes on the museum floor has a light pink body, fierce mouth painted with teeth ready to rip into its prey and stenciled eyes (with eyelashes).

The Curtiss P-40N Warhawk, the only U.S. plane to engage Japanese aircraft at Pearl Harbor, turned into a Flying Tiger against the Japanese in China. It is credited with shooting down 297 enemy aircraft, with a loss of 12 planes in combat.

Think small

One-horse towns offer more than you know

By Mary Augusta Rodgers
special writer

Travelers driving south on interstate highways often don't know — or forget — what they're missing as the miles go by and the countryside becomes a blur. Small towns, for instance, can be a refreshing change. Many are interesting, easy to deal with and fun to explore. They're pleasant places for a walk, a little sightseeing and shopping, lunch or dinner or an overnight stay.

Here are two to consider: Augusta, Ky., and Marietta, Ohio, riverboat towns on either side of the Ohio River.

AUGUSTA

Just 35 miles from Cincinnati and I-75, Augusta is a little (population 1,400) world of its own, nestled on the banks of the Ohio River.

The last time we were there, the sky was blue, the river shone in the sunlight, fishermen waited patiently on a shady bank with their lines out, and the ferry from Boudes Landing, Ohio came in to dock with its flag flying in the breeze.

It was such a happy scene that a man strolling down Riverside Drive suddenly stopped and serenaded a woman he didn't know. "Come on-a my house!" he sang. "My house a-come on!"

The woman, sitting on the stoop of her house, enjoying the sun, smiled and waved. "You're off key, but I love it," said singer Rosemary Clooney. ("Come on-a My House" was one of her biggest hits.)

This is Rosemary Clooney country. There's a Rosemary Clooney Street in Maysville, not far away, where she was born. A show of watercolor and oil paintings by Gabriel Ferrer, her son, is on display at Augusta's small but prestigious Piedmont Gallery.

Augusta is also pioneer country, founded in 1797 and built on the site of an ancient Indian burial ground. It's survived wars, cholera epidemics, floods, fires and a blight that finished off the promising vineyards planted by German settlers. (The winery, a massive limestone structure, remains; it's just off Route 8 on the way to Maysville.)

PARTS OF the TV mini-series "Centennial" were filmed in Augusta, as well as "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn," made for public television. "Augusta has one of the very few open 19th-century waterfronts left in the country," said Bill Grooms, the producer. "It's a real treasure."

Augusta's oldest remaining house, on the corner of Ferry and Riverside, was built in 1800 by General John Payne, a cavalry officer in the War of 1812. Houses from the pioneer, federal and Victorian periods, graced with flowers, boxwood and brick walks, overlook the river. A 1795 log cabin, known as Broshears Tavern, was frequented by Daniel Boone and Simon Kenton.

The Piedmont Gallery has a fine collection of crafts, folk art and paintings of late 19th century artists from Northern Kentucky. Within a few blocks, visitors will find the Lamplighter Inn and several bed and breakfasts; the Beehive Tavern, which offers regional dishes, like transparent pie and blackberry jam cake; two antique shops; and The Monday Morning Workshop, which sells handmade leather goods and handwoven rugs.

An arts and crafts festival and a sternwheeler regatta occur in Augusta June 28-30, and an event called Heritage Days (historic house tours, a flea market and street fair) is held Labor Day weekend.

The Piedmont Gallery: 115 West Riverside, Augusta, Ky. 41002; (606) 756-2216. Walking-tour maps of Augusta are available at the gallery, the drugstore, the bank and city hall. Augusta is too small to have a tourist bureau, but you can call the city clerk at (606) 756-2183 for information.

MARIETTA, OHIO

Another historic river town, Marietta is situated where the Muskingum River flows into the Ohio; just off I-77, with Parkersburg, W.V. across the river.

Blasting down the river

By Denise Bahs
special writer

I could hear the crashing sound of the approaching rapids as I sat on a swiftly-moving raft on the Youghiogheny River in Pennsylvania. I held my breath in anticipation of plunging into the fierce waters for the first time.

We were paddling like crazy and before I knew it I was staring into the plunging water and the raft was at the mercy of hydraulic forces. We surged downward, crashing through the white water, paddling and praying for our lives.

When the water calmed we looked at each other with exhilaration — we conquered the wild waters! The first set anyway. Between each set of rapids was calm water, allowing us to catch our breath and revel in the victory.

As a rookie rafter, there were a few things I didn't know: how to dress, what white-water rafting feels like and safety precautions to name a few. I quickly learned.

I went with the Mountain Streams and Trails Outfitters rafting company that runs rafting trips in Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Maryland. The difficulty of the rafting depends on the water level, the river, and the time of year.

WHEN WATER levels are high, or when running a difficult river, a professional guide attends each raft. The guide explains paddling procedures and how to handle different rapids. You need to know how to paddle when going backwards downstream, what to do if the raft capsizes, and how to avoid smashing into rocks face first if you fall out.

MOVING PICTURES

Celeste Talbert (Sally Field) gets carried away by Montanna Moorehead (Cathy Moriarty) and Roee Schwartz (Whoopi Goldberg) in "Soapdish."

Dan Greenberg

The rush to premiere films for Memorial Day weekend has passed and only one new film is on this week's docket, "Soapdish" (B-, PG-13, 95 minutes).

As all sorts of "real life" intrigue unfolds during filming of "The Sun Also Sets," the film's fictitious soap opera, the program's scriptwriter, Rose Schwartz (Whoopi Goldberg), wonders aloud, "Why can't I write stuff like this?"

The answer, of course, as the movie proves, is that the offstage lives of actors are much more interesting than the unbelievable storylines of their show.

Multiple plots revolve around the set of the daytime drama whose ratings are falling. Driven by pressure from network execs and lust for supporting actress Montana Moorehead (Cathy Moriarty), producer David Barnes (Robert Downey Jr.) takes drastic action.

Moorehead wants him to axe the reigning "queen of misery," the show's star, Celeste Talbert (Sally Field), in order to further her own career. Barnes sees this as a way to boost ratings, but every time he plots to write Celeste out of the show, something foils his plans, whether it is the effects of returning her ex-lover, Jeffrey Anderson (Kevin Kline), to the show or the rise to fame of her niece, Lori Craven (Elisabeth Shue), an extra on the set.

SOUND CONFUSING? That's only the beginning — proving that the phony "real life" of these actors can be more surprising than television soaps ever imagined, and twice as contrived.

There are other sub-plots in both the movie and the soap, and some even manage to surprise the audience. The climactic scene is a live broadcast of the soap opera, which disintegrates into an ad-libre conciliation of both the characters and the actors.

This, and other scenes, leave the audience wondering where the acting ends and the real life drama begins. Some scenes also demonstrate that actors can give more convincing performances off-camera than on, given the proper motivations.

Unfortunately, just as in the daytime soaps, "Soapdish" sports far too many stars for one movie. Potentially excellent performances from Whoopi Goldberg and Carrie Fisher are buried in the proliferation of stars and plots.

The movie begins in the middle and, while this creates the feeling that we are actually watching a soap opera that began long before we tuned in, it also makes it difficult to sort out who's who for the first 20 minutes.

Add an abrupt and sappy ending, and you have either a confusing mess of a movie, or an interesting statement about TV and how it figures into the daily lives of both the viewers and the actors. Sadly, the film's full potential is lost amid the hubbub of the happy Hollywood ending.

STILL PLAYING:

"Backdraft" (C-, R, 130 minutes). Disappointing, cornball, cliched story of two brothers, both Chicago firefighters.

"Class Action" (C+, R, 100 minutes). Father-daughter attorneys, Gene Hackman and Mary Elizabeth Mastrantonio, are not a team.

"Dances With Wolves" (A, PG-13, 180 minutes). Kevin Costner's magnificent ode to brotherhood and brutality on America's western frontier during and after the Civil War.

"Dice Rules" (F, NC-17, 87 minutes).

"Drop Dead Fred" (B+, PG-13, 100 minutes).

"The Five Heartbeats" (A-, R).

"FX2: The Deadly Art of Illusion" (C+, PG-13, 105 minutes).

"GoodFellas" (B+, R, 145 minutes).

Martin Scorsese's intense, compelling saga of three mobsters returns after receiving half-dozen Oscar nominations. Despite good acting and fine technical values, the film is to be condemned for glorifying vicious and violent gangsters.

"Hudson Hawk" (A, PG-13, 97 minutes).

"A Kiss Before Dying" (B+, R, 90 minutes).

Nerve-wracking, tense entertainment with Matt Dillon as psychopathic killer preying on wealthy family.

"Love Your Momma" (D, PG-13, 97 minutes).

ALTERNATIVE VIEWING

'Vanishing:' Thrills, chills

By John Monaghan
special writer

Submitted for your approval: A young couple on the road to France stops at a gas station off the highway. She goes in for cold drinks and never returns. Was she abducted? Or has she just entered . . .

It's difficult not to think of Rod Serling when recounting the plot for "The Vanishing." A Dutch import, playing this weekend at the Music Hall Center, puts in feature form the brand of chills and twists that shows like "The Twilight Zone" and "Alfred Hitchcock Presents" once delivered weekly.

The abandoned husband, Rex (Gene Bervoets), doesn't give up on his search. Three years later, he has borrowed money to amount a major media campaign including street corner posters and TV news interviews.

A new relationship with a patient, attractive photographer falls apart because of his obsession. After awhile, it's not so much being reunited with his wife as it is finding out exactly what happened to her.

WRITER/producer/director George Sluizer has a low-key style that savors the unusual plot twists. There is a knockout aerial shot, however, when half-crazed Rex takes to the street and screams for the murderer to show himself.

The villian, by the way, is not your average drooling psychotic. Played by Bernard-Pierre Donnadieu, he's a milquetoast schoolteacher who leads a normal, if unemotional, life with his loving wife and two daughters.

Knowing who aided in the woman's disappearance is not what "The Vanishing" is all about. The question here is: Why did he do it and what

As our culture continues to shift from print to video, more and more summer vactioners are stopping at video stores instead of at libraries to find something to do during summer's idle hours.

Paramount Pictures is playing right into that trend with its "Great American Writers' Series," released Thursday. The package contains five re-packaged films from their catalog and six new releases, all priced at $19.95.

These major motion pictures were based on work by some of the country's best-known writers. The six new-to-video titles include "Carrie" (1952, no rating, black and white, 118 minutes) which was taken from Theodore Dreiser's "Sister Carrie" and stars Laurence Olivier and Jennifer Jones.

Two Tennessee Williams' works were the basis for "Summer and Smoke"(1962, no rating, color, 118 minutes) and "The Rose Tattoo" (1955, no rating, black and white, 116 minutes).

The former stars Laurence Harvey as well as Geraldine Page while the latter features Burt Lancaster and noted Italian film star Anna Magnani who won a best actress Oscar for this role.

ANOTHER FAMOUS Italian film actress, Sophia Loren, stars with Anthony Perkins in Eugene O'Neill's "Desire Under the Elms"(1958, no

Singing blues for love, not money

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

In the course of a performance, Big Dave and the Ultrasonics can throw a lot at you.

There's a saxophonist, a harmonica player, two guitarists, a bassist and a drummer. The band can play soulful houserockin' blues, uptown boogie and gutbucket blues when called upon.

But calling out for Dave can present a problem. The group only has four of them by the same first name.

"When I first started working with these guys, it was kind of confusing at first," said bass player Todd Perkins, one of two Todds in the band. "We pretty much refer to each other on a last name basis.

"In the beginning, when I didn't know everybody, I would say 'harp-playing Dave,' 'sax-playing Dave' and 'guitar-playing Dave.' But there's two guitar-playing Daves."

Sorting out guitarist Dave Farzalo, sax and keyboard man Dave Salvator and harpist Dave Morris may be difficult at first.

AMONG THE Daves, though, there's only one Big Dave. He's Dave Steele, whose throaty growl and stinging guitar licks reveal the heart of a bluesman. Better yet, he even talks like one.

"You have to love it (the blues)," Steele said. "That's all. There's no money in it."

What inspires the blues in him?

"Like everyone, it's women and money," he answers.

THIS IS a passion shared by other band members, who formed Big Dave and the Ultrasonics after three Daves (Steele, Farzalo and Salvator) and one Todd (Nero) moved from Erie, Pa., to Ann Arbor.

Those guys played in The Zip City Blues Band, which performed regularly in Erie's only blues club, the Docksider. Band members possess a wide knowledge of different blues styles — Delta, Texas and New Orleans — and incorporate it into the final stew.

In a short time, Big Dave and the Ultrasonics have made an immediate impact on the Ann Arbor and Detroit club scene. Onstage, the band serves up a searing brand of urban blues.

There's plenty of Daves and Todds in Big Dave and the Ultrasonics, but there's only one person whose throaty growl and stinging guitar licks reveal the heart of a bluesman. That's Big Dave himself, Dave Steele.

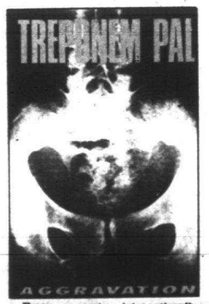
REVIEWS

AGGRAVATION — Treponem Pal



Treponem Pal might seem like a mystical name for a mysterious heavy metal band, and in reality it is. But it is also the French word for the virus that causes syphilis.

Treponem Pal is a perverse, industrial thrash band. The group's latest release is "Aggravation." I think that says it all.

Their style of music lies somewhere between the likes of bands like Slayer and Judas Priest.

The opening track, called "Rest is War," is a grating, energy pack song that is guaranteed to rock any headbanger's socks off.

This is a band that comes from France, but you might likely guess it came out of the New York City metal circuit by the sound of it.

Some truly salvageable songs are in this nine-song package. "Out With No Flag" and "Sweet Coma" are pretty decent metallic pieces.

One song in the package was not written by Treponem Pak. It is called "Radioactivity." It is a noxious, stentorian mix written and arranged for TP by the band known as Kraftwerk.

From a country internationally known for romance and elegance (tres chic), Treponem Pal is proud to say it represents "the ugly reality of worldwide culture." Although members never explained this claim to any great depth, it does come through in their music.

They are striving to be a diverse and controversial thrash band. "Aggravation" is a positive step in that direction.

AWA YIO — Ivan Lins

You're on a tropical beach in Brazil. You have your toes in the sand, a drink in your hand, and you feel grand. In your head you can hear the sounds of a samba/calypso band.

The music on Ivan Lins' latest album called "Awa Yio" will send such images running through your mind.

This is a true South American-style delight, after a while you won't even care that he doesn't sing a single lyric in English. If you want to sing along its possible, just fake your way through.

But you'll probably be interested in knowing that the lyrics are included in both English and Spanish.

Ivan (pronounced E-von) Lins' mission on this album was to expose more people to the native music and culture of Brazil. After some of the lyrics, he provides a brief explanation of some of the myths, expressions and cultural beliefs of his native country.

Sure, the music has been commercialized just a tad, but you'll get the basic idea.

The song "Meu Pais" ("My Country") is pleasurable ballad about the tropical paradise where he grew up. Throughout the song, he sings about some of the popular characters of Brazilian folklore.

Lins was born in Rio de Janeiro, the son of a Naval engineer. Via his father's military career, he ended up spending some formative years in Cambridge, Mass., where his musical aspirations took shape.

He speaks of this combination of cultural experiences in his song "America, Brazil — America, Brazil." This is a very upbeat samba.

All together you will find 11 multicultural songs in this package. This one is a must for someone with a hankering for something nuevo y diferente (that's Spanish for new and different).

STREET SENSE

Stay mum about fantasy

Dear Barbara,

When I was a teenager, I had fantasies of kissing my sister who is two years older than I am. These fantasies always embarrassed me greatly. I thought they were sick and yet I couldn't change them.

Barbara Schiff

I have a son and a daughter who are becoming teenagers. I want to say something to my son to tell him I would understand if he had such fantasies, but I don't know if I should. Maybe he doesn't and will think I am perverted.

What do you think?

Jerry

Dear Jerry,

Your fantasies are normal. They are not sick and you need not be embarrassed. The jokes that are made about teenagers' sexuality are true. They are generally pretty randy and for them, even minimal stimuli can lead to sexual fantasies.

Brothers and sisters are strong stimuli. They are intimate with each other by the sheer fact that they live together.

On the other hand, you are quite right not to say anything to your son. Why place the burden of these problems on someone who might no have them? If you keep a spirit of openness in your home, a spirit that is non-judgmental, then there is a better chance that your son will reveal himself to you if he needs advice.

It seems that you did not find your parents approachable on sexual matters. Is there something they could have done to make you feel less afraid? Think about it. Maybe you will be able to do it for your son.

Barbara

If you have a question of comment for Barbara Schiff, a trained therapist and experienced counselor, send it to Street Sense at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

ALTERNATIVE MOVIE

exactly did he do? A number of possibilities arise.

At the beginning of the film, during their car trip, Rex and Saskia run out of gas in a long mountain tunnel. While she fumbles for a flashlight, Rex rudely starts off for the mouth of the tunnel without her.

From then on, we are left on the edge with the possibility that maybe, just maybe, Saskia left him on her own accord.

WHILE THE question ultimately gets answered, others remain wonderfully ambiguous. "The Vanishing" becomes the kind of challenging film that will prompt long discussions afterward over a cup of coffee. Make it two cups.

"The Vanishing" is also the first film to screen at Music Hall Center as part of City Wide Cinema. The non-profit film group recently left its space at the Tele-Arts Theatre and will now screen films here and at Wayne State University.

This weekend offers an excellent opportunity to see what they're up to, with a Friday night reception and regular performances Saturday and Sunday. "The Vanishing" is the best film City Wide Cinema has gotten its hands on in a long time.

In "The Vanishing," an abandoned husband resorts to borrowed money to mount a major media campaign including street corner posters, to find his missing wife.

An All-American

The Longaberger Company is at it again. Now through July 15, the Dresden, Ohio, company will offer its Crisco American Pie Celebraton basket only through in-home shows and outside orders.

The basket was created specifically for the fourth annual Crisco American Pie Celebration.

Measuring 11¾ inches long, 11¾ inches wide and 5½ inches deep, the commemorative basket features a red and blue accent weave and trim strip, a two-pie storage divider, swinging handles, a leather and oak closure and attached woven lid displaying the burned-in Crisco American Pie Celebration logo.

Locally, the Longaberger Compnay is represented by Victoria Heinecke, 46376 Westbriar Ct., Plymouth; Laurie Maltby, 42489 Saltz Road, Canton; Deborah Grant-Kelterborn, 10329 Dobbin Lane, Plymouth; Saundra Bailey, 1520 Granada, Ann Arbor; Ohly Tierney, 1702 Henbert Road, West Bloomfield; and Denise Hauser, 5785 Springbrook, Troy.

Hair flair

Hairdressers from Mario Max Salon in Farmington Hills have discovered a new tool to achieve new soft and manageable headlines for spring and summer. The razor cuts of the '50s and '60s are back in '90s style.

"The razor is an incredible tool," said Mario Bitonti of Mario Max. "It puts movement into hair that scissors can't. Also razor cuts allow the hair to blend better, producing softer lines."

Mario Max Salon is in Loehmann's Square, Orchard Lake Road, Farmington Hills.

Big Dave can sing the blues

A recent show at Rick's Cafe had the normally placid collegiate crowd dancing feverishly to the uptown swing of Big Dave and the Ultrasonics. Instead of relying on one tempo, there's a series of musical instrument interplay within the context of one song and to the band's diverse sound.

SOMEHOW IN the litany of name similarities and multitude of players, Big Dave and the Ultrasonics cut through the confusion.

"Every additional player you have, it makes it more difficult because you play less," Steele said. "In a four-piece, your role is pretty much defined. We have four soloists. When one is playing, the others have to step back."

Big Dave directs the traffic.

"He's a subtle leader," Perkins said. "Instead of telling you he doesn't like something, he tells you why he doesn't like something. Usually, it's a pretty good reason."

A LIFELONG blues aficionado, Steele started listening to records when he was young. His favorites are the Kings — B.B., Albert and Freddie. Also, he enjoys the guitar works of Albert Collins and the vocal stylings of Howlin' Wolf and Muddy Waters.

Several covers in the Big Dave set reveal several other influences, including Willie Dixon's "Built for Comfort" and Jimmy Reed's "Bright Lights, Big City."

Uptempo dance blues is the preference in the band's original music featured on a four-song demo. The group plans to record a full-length cassette to release sometime in the fall.

In the meantime, members of the band are busy further establishing its reputation in the blues-rich area of Detroit.

Big Dave is a regular at the Blind Pig and Rick's, where college students congregate. The band has also performed at the Soup Kitchen, where blues purists pull up a stool.

Either way, the music is the same and so are the names.

Big Dave and the Ultrasonics perform Thursday, June 6, at the Blind Pig in Ann Arbor. For information, call 996-8555.

Just too much packed into this star-studded romantic, comic, adventure of southern gold in Harlem with all the greedy folks out in force.

"The Silence of the Lambs" (C-, R, 115 minutes).

Disgusting film about FBI Cadet (Jodi Foster) confronting cannibalistic psychiatrist and serial killer. Despite technical accomplishment, this film is only for those who take ghoulish delight in the suffering of others.

"Sleeping With the Enemy" (C+, R, 95 minutes).

Julia Roberts' excellent performance as battered wife who takes matters into her own hands can't overcome weak scenario about psychotic hubbie.

"Stone Cold" (R, 90 minutes).

Brian Bosworth is an undercover cop working to bring outlaw biker-gang to justice.

"Switch" (A-, R, 90 minutes).

Murdered chauvinust-womaniser returns to earth looking for a woman who will speak on his behalf. But there's a catch.

"Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles II: The Secret of the Ooze" (PG, 88 minutes).

Lots of action, but little violence as everybody's favorite turtles do it again.

"Thelma and Louise" (A, R, 130 minutes).

"Truth or Dare" (F, R, 118 minutes).

Obscene and pretentious display of Madonna's egomania.

"What About Bob?" (B, PG, 97 minutes).

FB"Wild Hearts Can't Be Broken" (A-, G, 85 minutes).

Enjoyable Disney story as young lady strives hard to become diving horse-girl in traveling stunt show.

Lancaster also has the lead in yet another of these films derived from great American writers. He appears in William Inge's "Come Back, Little Sheba" (1952, no rating, black and white, 99 minutes) with Shirley Booth who won an Oscar for this role.

Booth also stars in the last of these new releases, Thornton Wilder's "The Matchmaker" (1958, no rating, black and white, 110 minutes), the play on which "Hello Dolly" was based.

The five re-packaged titles are "The Great Gatsby" (1974, PG, color, 146 minutes) and "The Last Tycoon" (1977, PG, color, 123 minutes) both by F. Scott Fitzgerald, "A Place in the Sun" (1951, no rating, black and white, 120 minutes), based on Theodore Dreiser's "American Tragedy," Ernest Hemingway's "Islands in the Stream" (1978, PG, color, 110 minutes) and one more from Tennessee Williams, "This Property Is Condemned" (1966, no rating, color, 109 minutes).

A terrific film that didn't get as much play as it deserved, "The Grifters" (1990, R, color, 114 minutes), stars Anjelica Huston, John Cusack and Annette Bening as three con-artists out to grift a buck any way they can. The film was nominated for four Oscars and will be released on video cassette this coming Wednesday.

MAJOR NAMES such as Anjelica Huston usually signal excellent films — but not always. Huston has a good bit of screen time but no dialogue in "Swashbuckler" (1976, PG, color, 101 minutes). The film also features Robert Shaw, James Earl Jones, Genevieve Bujold, Beau Bridges and comedian Avery Schreiber.

Casting a stand-up comic as an 18th century pirate may be a clue to the faults in this dippy pirate movie. It has all the cliches of the genre but none of the excitement.

Janine Gardner: If this is Monday, it must be . . .

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Her dog looks like Toto, her 1984 Mazda serves as her pair of ruby slippers. She even experienced her first tornado in Texas recently.

But unlike Dorothy in "The Wizard of Oz," comedian Janine Gardner is apparently in no hurry to get home.

That's at least judging by Gardner's frantic schedule, which includes performing 48 weeks out of the year on the road. Gardner and her dog, Kiwi, tool around the country in her Mazda RX 7 that has 243,000 miles on its engine.

"I wrote them (Mazda) a letter telling them I've encircled the globe at least eight times in my Mazda," said Gardner, who performs Wednesday through Saturday at Joey's in Livonia.

"I keep writing them. I would like them to give me another car to test drive. At least they could have done is send me a flier for a free lube job."

Such a nomadic existence is commonplace in the world of comedy. Whereas many comedians bemoan being on the road, Gardner appears to relish a life of hotels, fast food and rest stops.

GARDNER DESCRIBES herself "poor as a church mouse." Any money made from comedy club engagements is often eaten up in expenses, she said.

All of this serves to conjure up cliched images of a woman and her dog facing a cold, cruel world alone. Really, Gardner's comedic adventure perhaps attacks a sexist stereotype that views women as being too naive for such endeavors.

"Men have been doing it for years. There's a lot of benefits. I don't have to make a bed every day. I don't have to do dishes all the time . . . and I get to see the country.

"If I want to see someone who lives four hours away, I just get in my car and go. My sister packs a compass to go to the supermarket."

AFTER CONQUERING a number of jobs, comedy greeted her at age 30. In nearly seven years, she has criss-crossed the country in a whirlwind odyssey.

Onstage, Gardner's humor can be personally revealing.

She jokes about growing up in a dysfunctional family with a mother who was addicted to Valium. She brings humor in being raised Catholic in the Mormon hub of Salt Lake City.

OBVIOUSLY, Gardner's not a "joke machine." She adheres to the belief comics should leave something of themselves with an audience during a routine.

"At first, (comedy) was therapeutic. I feel no one could steal my jokes unless they lived my life. I want my comedy to say something."

On the urging of friends, Gardner plied her comedic talents at a club contest in Salt Lake City. Soon, she earned the title of "Funniest Woman in Utah."

EVEN BEFORE then, though, Gardner remembers being a cutup in the fifth grade.

One of her favorite ploys was to roll up a paper, point it toward the P.A. speaker and call herself out of class. The teacher fell for the trick every time.

In reality, Gardner was merely coping with her environment.

"I felt like I stuck out in a crowd. The Mormons were sheltered people, especially the staunch ones. They were unsympathetic towards me just because of the fact my parents drank coffee and smoked. Some kids were not allowed to play with us because we were Catholic."

Roseanne Barr is also from Utah. It was the "Star-Spangled" singing comedian who gave Gardner her best advice: Write three punch lines and throw the first two away. That way, the most obscure humor will rise to the top.

WORKING IN the male-dominated field doesn't bother Gardner. She has had several jobs outside of comedy where women are the minority, including as a customer service analyst for a company that designed sewage treatment systems.

Yet a few things gnaw at her being a female comedian. For example, few women comedians are booked together on the same bill. At Joey's in Livonia, though, Gardner will appear with Gilda Hauser.

"They use us as sandwich fillers. There's this myth out there that if you're a woman, especially an attractive one, you can't be funny."

Janine Gardner appears Wednesday-Saturday, June 5-8, at Joey's Comedy Club in Livonia. For information, call 261-0555. She also appears Friday-Saturday, June 14-15, at Joey's at the Roxy in Belleville. For information, call 699-1829.

Comedienne Janine Gardner has a frantic schedule, so much so that her Mazda RX 7 has 243,000 miles on its engine.

Lori Lynn Ross has to be careful doing her routine like hanging upside down during a roll. One wrong step and she could break through the fabric covering the wing of Walt Pierce's biplane.

Walking the wings of Ol' Smokey

Stuntwoman has firm grip on aerial life

By Sue Mason
staff writer

You could say Lori Lynn Ross is a drag, not a big drag, but a drag nonetheless. Just ask Walt Pierce. He drags her around on and off.

It's not that she's doesn't like fun. Hey, this woman has done fire dives. We're not talking going through a fiery hoop, but rather setting herself on fire and diving into a pool 30 feet below.

At 4 feet 11½ inches tall and 98 pounds — "I'm little but I'm strong." — she's a a bit of a drag on the wing of Pierce's 1940 Stearman biplane, "Ol' Smokey." Ross, when not working as a stuntwoman in Hollywood, occasionally does the air show circuit with Pierce as his wingwalker.

"I really have a fun time because I enjoy performing," said Ross, a former Southfield resident. "I really have good time out there and when I get off and see that the people have had a good time, it makes it all the better."

Not quite what you'd expect from a woman who at one time studied to be an elementary school teacher and was a high school cheerleader and member of the girls' softball and basketball teams at Southfield High School.

But she admits she's always been adventurous. She began skiing and riding motorcycles at the age of five and on her way to a career in Hollywood picked up rock-climbing, SCUBA diving and high diving.

The 29-year-old Ross was working at a store, selling climbing equipment, when a stuntman mentioned that with her experiences she should consider stunt work. About two months later, while studying for final exams at the beach, she met a another stuntman who said the same thing.

SHE DECIDED to heed their advice and, after graduating from California State University at Northridge, she signed on with the U.S. Professional High Diving Team and marketed herself as a stuntwoman by doing the fire dives, not to mention clown dives, ladder diving and, shades of Acapulco, cliff diving.

Ross, who will team up with Pierce for AirMichigan '91 at Willow Run Airport in Ypsilanti this weekend, has been a stuntwoman for about nine years.

A member of the United Stuntwomen's Association, her stunt work has included such feature films as "Terminator II," "Karate Kid II," "Bill & Ted's Excellent Adventure" and "Edward Scissorhands" to name a few. She also has done stunts for such TV shows as "Rescue 911," "Falcon Crest," "Life Goes on" and "The Outsiders."

"I love my work," said Ross. "I started out doing dance and sports as a kid and never thought of being a stuntwoman or dreamed of being a wingwalker."

ROSS HAS been wingwalking for about six years, having learned the art from legendary wing walker Johnny Kazian. She was originally recruited Jim Franklin who wanted a female wingwalker.

"He figured with my diving experience, I could handle the acrobatics and with my rock-climbing experience, I could climb around the plane," she said.

Wingwalking is no easy task. The plane travels at between 80 and 180 miles per hour, so Ross has to be careful how and when she moves around the plane, especially since she wears a safety strap for only about 20 percent of of her 20-minute routine. She wears no such strap when walking around on the wing of the plane, but dons it for acobatic fly-bys.

"It takes a lot of strength to hang on," Ross said. "What people don't realize is that when I move from the upper to the lower wing behind the propeller, I'm in the most vulnerable position. Walt has to power back the plane so he doesn't blow me off the wing."

Ross' routine is very choreographed, very precise. It is learned on the ground before it's done in the air. There are no verbal commands between Pierce and Ross. Communication is by hand signals and eye contact.

Her hardest routine is doing a headstand on the upper wing. She has to flip her body upside down and hang on to a post. With the speed of the plane, she is "literally plastered to the post to where I can't move."

OTHER ROUTINES include hanging on to the plane and shaking hands with the pilot, doing backspins and hanging off the back part of a post on the upper wing.

Her favorite maneuver is doing a cartwheel in the air.

"I walk out to the end of the struts and get to see the crowd as we fly by," she said.

And when it comes to the aerobatics, she in for a "wild ride."

"My body is used to spinning and twisting in the air," she said. "With the loops and rolls, I get to see the earth and the crowd waving at me. It's a wild and exciting time."

But the hardest part is the five-minute or so wait on the ground before the plane takes to the air. She has a one-inch bar that she stands on on the balls of her toes. One step the wrong way and she could end up putting a foot through the wing's fabric skin.

Because of her stunt work, Ross has limited her wingwalking to just three air shows this year. She picked AirMichigan '91 because "Detroit is special for me."

"I HAD SO many wonderful experiences growing up in Michigan," she said. "It's a good time to to get back and reminisce, a really fun time."

Married, Ross describes her husband Dan, who builds custom homes in mainly Beverly Hills and Malibu, as "pretty adventurous." He shares her interest in rock- and ice-climbing, windsurfing and skiing.

But as exciting as her life is, safety is foremost in Ross' mind. She is as picky about who she performs with as she is about what stunts she will do. She doesn't take jobs she doesn't think she can do. As a result her worst injuries have been a few cuts and bruises.

She likes flying with Pierce. He is "a great guy . . . he's at the top of the list," she said.

"Safety is very important to me," she added. "I try to keep my safety record at 100 percent. So far my training has paid off . . . and I've been a bit lucky, too."

Ross' career continues to expand — she plays the part of the mermaid in the soon-to-be-released film "Rocketeer" — and she jokingly blames her parents for it. It's their fault for letting her water ski and ride a motorcycle at the age of five, she said.

But she adds: "I'm glad I had the opportunity to try out different sports. I think it makes me a better stuntwoman."

Stuntwoman Lori Lynn Ross does a one-legged stand on the wing of Ol' Smokey as part of her wingwalking performance.

'Arctic Arc' marks ancient migration

By Corinne Abatt
staff writer

THE TENUOUS bond of understanding between the United States and the Soviet Union will soon be strengthened through the vision and effort of sculptor David Barr of Novi.

Barr and his wife, Elizabeth, Jim Pallas, Michigan sculptor, Paul Gray, Chicago art dealer and Dan Kruzyniec of Hamtramck, a video cameraman, will leave for Uelen in the Soviet Union on the Bering Strait early in July. With them will be the second part of Barr's Arctic Arc sculpture project to be installed on a promontory facing the American coastline, some 50 miles across the icy waters.

Barr, who has been working on global projects since 1980, installed the American half of his Arctic Arc in Wales, Alaska, on the westernmost tip of the Seward Peninsula, in 1988. That one is a wood sculpture suggesting a sled with an extended hand. The main wooden beam of the sled is a 30-foot timber weighing about 500 pounds.

The work to be installed next month is a 30-foot-long stainless steel structure, reminiscent of the hull of a umiak, a traditional walrus skin boat, minus the skin. The sculpture, with a hand motif in the ribs of the hull, will be aligned with the equinoxes and summer solstice.

BARR SAID, "The Arctic Arc is drawing attention to geographical history — the land bridge that's always been there. I'm responding to invisible history. There's nothing there to tell you that the first migration took place there."

His wish to memorialize that momentous ancient migration from Asia to North America, is readily accepted by the Eskimos in the remote coastal villages. "I never had any problem getting the most humble of the villages to understand."

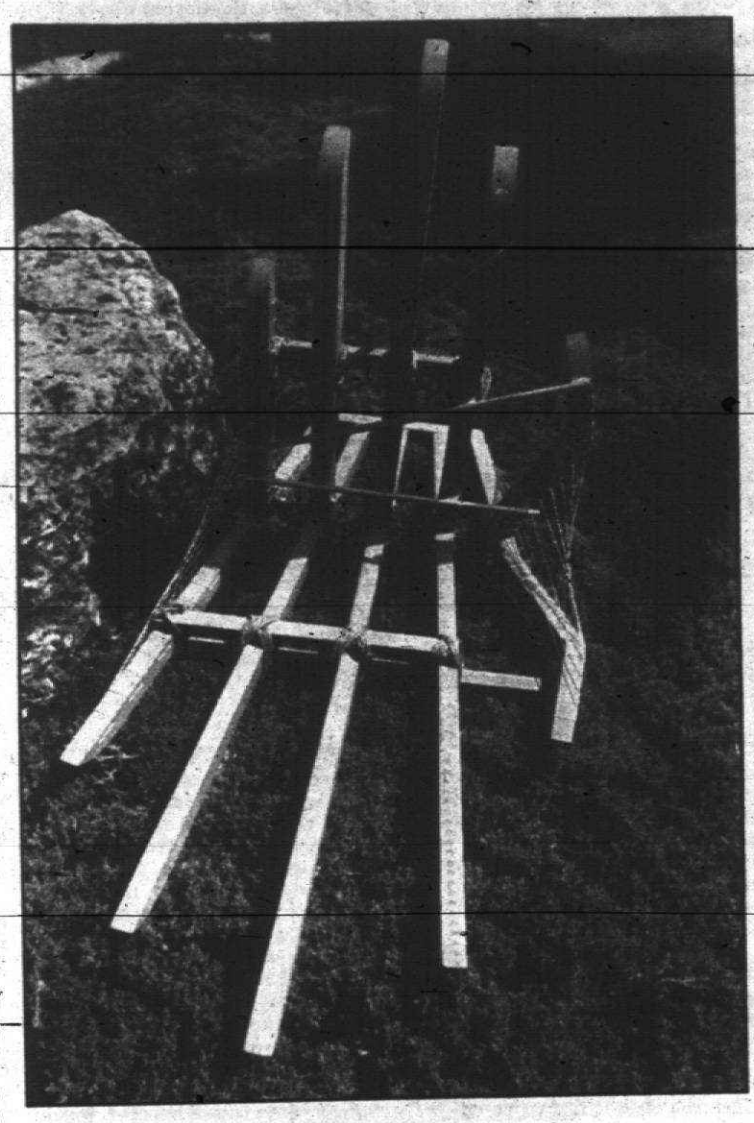
The villagers are aware of the link across the narrow waters. Many on one side have close relatives on the other and until the last few years, when tensions between the super powers eased, they couldn't see each other.

"On the Soviet side, we are going to be assisted by the Elgar Native Corporation in housing and moving around. Here is the Soviet Union in the depths of depression and art is still a priority, cultural exchange is still a priority — and in my own backyard is the most resistance to these ideas . . . the Arctic is the hardest place in the world to live — the temperature is 50 degrees below zero, the wind blows at 50 miles an hour and 12 people live in an area the size of my living room."

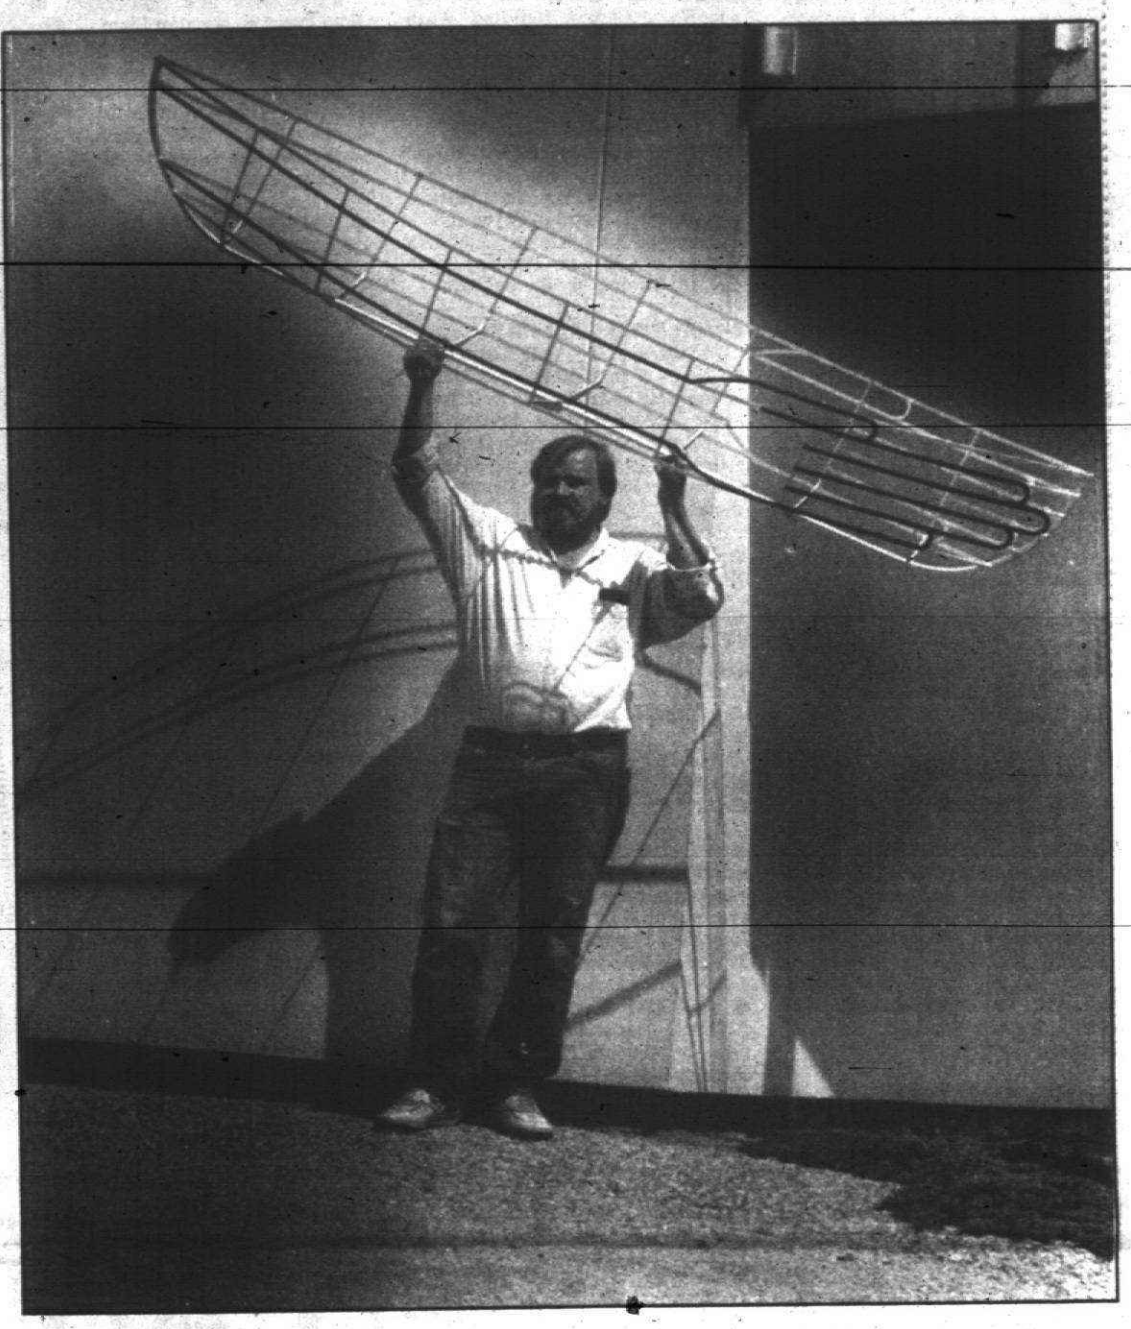
Barr acknowledged the valuable assistance he's had in cutting through bureaucratic red tape, getting visas and making things happen, "Sen. Carl Levin has helped me in all these efforts."

Help in the cutting and machining of the sculpture came from Capital Welding of Southfield. The art work was to designed to be assembled like a kit, because the final leg of the journey will be by bush plane from Providenija to Uelen and space will be tight. Northwest Airlines, he said, has been very helpful in scheduling.

ALL OF these projects are strictly out-of-pocket for Barr, no grants, no stipends, "I couldn't do them without a credit card," he said.



David Barr keeps a model of the wood sculpture placed near the coastal village of Wales, Alaska in 1988. It faces the coast of the Soviet Union. He uses an extended hand motif in all of his global works as a symbol of friendship.



David Barr holds ½-scale model of the sculpture he will install in the Soviet Far East coast early next month to complete his "Arctic Arc."

Barr called it "a gift from Middle America," adding, "It will be there for 100 years unless somebody decides to use it for plumbing."

'The Arctic Arc is drawing attention to geographical history — the land bridge that's always been there. I'm responding to invisible history. There's nothing there to tell you that the first migration took place there.'

— David Barr, sculptor

Then why does he do it when as he says they are "financially and physically draining." Why leave the beautiful, contemporary home (which he built himself) and the broad lawn and pond, which he has turned into a magnificent sculpture park for his own work?

One of the early projects was to mark the four corners of the globe. Another was "Sun Sweep," a series of sculptures along the U.S./Canadian border. He is already working on "Sun Weep," marking the U.S./Mexican border. In all instances, the response, the connections made with other artists and individuals who have social concerns reward him for his efforts. It is about creating a broader understanding in the world.

"On an intimate level, it helps my own understandiing and deepens my experience of things. . . . doing them knocks rigidity, arrogance and certainty out of you — you don't do any of it alone.

"I know that when we get there there will be a number of human stories and a number of human beings that will be with me the rest of my life. Jim Pallas went with me to New Guinea and he's still corresponding with some missionaries we met there."

PALLAS MAY make an accessory piece for Arctic Arc. Four Soviet villagers from around Uelen, two of them artists, are on their way here to meet Barr. He wants them to do some accessory pieces to Arctic Arc — maybe a ring of harpoons.

Well-known native artist, Joe Senungetuk, did a bird for the one in Alaska.

As a studio sculptor, Barr likes to portray the invisible — the subject of some of his his newer works is atomic cloud chambers and atomic particles and their pathways.

Staff photos by Bryan Mitchell

There are references to math and astronomy in many of his large pieces. In his global projects, he adds a spirit of human history, a touch of humanity — and sometimes those are as invisible as atomic particles.

Concert, garden party to aid Arctic project

Two upcoming events will benefit sculptor David Barr's Arctic Arc project. The first benefit will be a piano concert by Vladislav Kovalsky at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, June 5 at the Southfield Civic Center Pavilion. The program will include a video presentation about the Arctic Arc project. A reception with Kovalsky and Barr will follow the program.

Kovalsky emigrated to the United States in 1980. He has taught at Wisconsin Conservatory of Music, University of Michigan and Wayne State. In 1990 he was appointed artistic director of D'Etre University Conservatory of Music in Southfield. He will perform on the Steinway concert grand that once belonged to Vladimir Horowitz.

There will be a benefit exhibition of the Arctic Arc sculpture 2-5 p.m. Sunday, June 9, at Barr's Novi Sculpture Garden. This Sculpture Garden has been shown in local and national media. Maps will be available at the concert on June 5 and at The Great Frame Up, 215 Peabody, Birmingham.

General admission tickets for each event are $15, students and seniors $7. Concert tickets will be available at the door or from the Great Frame Up.

These events are sponsored by Art Exchange International, a nonprofit organization dedicated to advancing international understanding and cooperation through the exchange of art and culture. Barr said this is the first time a group such as Art Exchange International has come forward to help with his global projects.

Careful clipping saves time later

Dorothy Lehmkuhl

Q: The other day, my husband tore out a whole newspaper page to keep an article he wanted and tossed it on the counter. I suggested he file it, so he folded the page somewhat and crammed it into the file, letting it hang out both ends of the folder. I removed it, cut out the article with a scissors I had right there, refiled it neatly and tossed the scraps away. Then he commented, "Do you realize how much your time is worth? Why would you waste it cutting out articles?" Do you have any comments?

A: There's something to be said for both sides of your conflicting views. It's true that it's much quicker at the time to rip out a column and stuff it into a file. It's even quicker just to toss it in a pile rather than file it, and I can understand a busy person might think cutting it would be a waste of time.

It's one thing to be a perfectionist, however, and quite another to take the time to do things properly now so you can save time later. What your husband isn't taking into account is the time it takes to deal with that paper later once it's landed in a pile or is just stuffed into a file.

First, by keeping the whole page without even marking the article, a person may waste time later perusing both sides trying to figure out why he kept it is the first place.

On a pile, it will gradually become lost in a shuffle of other papers. When you need it later, you will vaguely know "it's here somewhere," but it will take far longer to find it than it would have taken to cut it out and file it properly in the first place. In the meantime, you will have handled that same article repeatedly while sorting through your stack looking for other papers — another added cost of time.

Or, if you filed it carelessly, chances are you have a habit of filing other items in the same manner. When you just "stuff" papers, at least three problems are created: 1) Space is poorly utilized because "lumps" are allowed to occur, which take unwarranted amount of drawer space, 2) Papers tend to stick out the top, obscuring the folder labels and costing the loss of more time later searching for hidden files, 3) Papers become tattered from hitting the tops, sides and hinges of the files, sometimes tearing the critical information you wanted or even getting caught with other files.

None of the foregoing takes much time on an individual basis, but if your husband lives his life that way, he will find performing innumerable little tasks inadequately at the proper time will add up to cost him incredible amounts of time later, and his life will be out of control.

ARE YOU LIKE ME?
I work hard and want the better things in life. My career rewards me well for my effort. I work between 42 and 46 hours in a well displayed showroom. I enjoy people and get personal satisfaction from knowing that their lives will be better for having purchased my product. I presently earn in excess of $2500/mo. and I'm not the highest paid salesperson in my company. I also have a full benefits package including major medical and dental, paid vacations and even profit sharing.
If this sounds like you, we should talk.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT
Holy Spirit, You make me see everything & show me the way to reach my ideals. You give me the Divine Gift to forgive & forget the wrongs that are done to me & You are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue, want to thank You for everything & confirm once more that I never want to be separated from You, no matter how great the material desire may be. I want to be with you, my Loved One, in Your perpetual glory. Amen.

HOROSCOPE

June 2 through June 8 By C.C. Clark

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
This is the week for being in the right place at the right time. Good things are bound to happen if you keep that positive attitude.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
Taking care of health matters for you or loved ones should be your highest priority. Preventive medicine could make your future brighter.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
Take some time off and rest. If you don't slow down the pace, there could be big problems later. Don't let others try to tell you otherwise.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
Stop being such a perfectionist, especially on the domestic front. You are driving your loved ones crazy. They want you to accept them as they are.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
A new locale for business and pleasure is on the horizon. Don't take shortcuts with financial matters; it could cause problems.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
A friend or relative needs your loving support this week. Any time you can spend with them will be appreciated. Avoid being condescending.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
New clothes or a stylish new haircut can do wonders for your attitude. You needn't go on a major shopping spree. Just add a few refined touches.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Don't let finances cause you distress. Some compromises with a loved one will make your life easier. Concentrate on needs rather than wants.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
Sit back and relax with a good book. You will be amazed how a little time off can benefit your sense of well-being. Put mundane tasks on hold.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
Your career may need to take a back seat to your love life. In other words, don't let work interfere with your enjoyment of loved ones.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
A change in the workplace could be just what you need. Take advantage of your free time and do something special for a close friend.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
Laughing at your mistakes will help you through some tough times. Your jovial manner will also help ease the tension with others.

'C. Everett Koop, M.D.' specials search for medical prescription

Will medicine leave you in a lurch?

By Amy Schmidt

You're in good shape. You're covered by medical insurance. You figure you have nothing to worry about, health-wise. Think again. Rising medical costs, deficient patient care and inadequate insurance coverage are problems plaguing more and more Americans yearly — many of whom never dreamed it could happen to them.

Sunday, June 9, on NBC, former Surgeon General C. Everett Koop hosts the second of five Sunday specials about our national medical crisis. "We in this country scramble for health care, and I think that is the No. 1 health problem we face," said Koop in a recent interview. "I don't know anybody who is really satisfied with health-crae delivery in this country, and it gets worse day by day."

Installment one of the specials concerned itself with children. Installments two and three deal with teenagers and the elderly, respectively. Together the three episodes expose problems faced by Americans across and through the generations: from premature, drug-dependent and low birth-weight babies; to anorexia nervosa, depression and pregnancy problems among today's adolescents; and finally to the elderly and the health concerns they face, from broken hips and incontinence to sexual needs and the loss of loved ones.

Slow at times, these episodes neglect to answer the nagging question: "What can we do about it?" But don't feel let down, because the final two shows, "Hard Choices" and "A Time for Change," pack a wallop.

They deal with such things as rationing. People who can no longer afford health insurance will soon find more costly services out of reach. Oregon has already passed the first rationing law providing limited patient care, no matter if lack of treatment results in death. Indeed, in 10 years, open-heart surgery may be unaffordable for the average person. Already emergency services are being rationed. Koop traveled to different emergency rooms around the country where patients can wait as long as 48 hours before being seen by a doctor.

"My anger is evident in the last two shows," said Koop, "and I hope that anger is contagious, because I think it's time for Americans to say enough is enough."

Truly a man of vision, Koop puts forth many ideas, some already in practice in other countries. Hospitals and doctors must become competitive in order to keep prices down. Consumers must learn to shop around for medical care. He envisions a day when patients will be able to examine the "batting averages" of doctors from whom they seek treatment. He also believes a full one-third of medical costs constitute administrative fat ripe for the trimming.

What can the average individual do right now to change the face of medicine? "Let his Congressman know he's fed up. Writing and voting at the ballot box are the only ways you can change the situation," said Koop. He doubts the Republicans will make an issue of health care in 1992, but Democrats may.

What can the average individual do in terms of their own health/medical situation? Follow Koop's prescription: "Don't smoke. If you drink, do so in moderation, and exercise regularly — so you don't ever have to use the system."

Sunday on NBC, former U.S. Surgeon General C. Everett Koop hosts the second of a five-part series focusing on health-related issues. "Listening to Teenagers," explores those topics that most concern this nation's not-so-healthy adolescents.

TRIVIA, ETC.

Once again, stage, film intertwine

By Steven Alan McGaw

Questions:

1. Author Peter Shaffer had a big hit in the '80s with a play that starred Ian McKellan and Tim Curry. Name the show and the actors who took those respective roles in the film version.

2. As a Broadway play it won the Pulitzer Prize. As a movie it won an Oscar for Jack Albertson's terrific performance. It also helped launch a then-young actor's career. The title, please, and the actor.

3. A few years back, recent Oscar-winner Jeremy Irons won a Tony for his performance in The Real Thing. His co-star was...

4. When Frank Langella was being fitted for his costume for a certain Broadway hit in the late '70s, a well-known French actor was in the same shop being fitted for a TV version of the same story. Name the play and the actor in question.

Answers:

1. In Shaffer's Amadeus, F. Murray Abraham won an Oscar for his portrayal of Salieri (the McKellan role) on film. Tom Hulce was terrific as the peculiant genius Mozart.
2. The play was The Subject Was Roses, the actor was Martin Sheen.
3. Irons' co-star was Glenn Close.
4. Langella, of course, was about to debut on stage in Dracula. Louis Jordan started telling of Bram Stoker's a rather surreal later that same year in tale for Public Television.

David Birney now a pollster

By Jeff Ambler

David Birney has taken on a new mission as a pollster on Lifetime's weekday series Great American TV Poll. I asked Birney about the show:

Jeff Ambler: Could you describe the show for me?

David Birney: It's a blend of news, information and entertainment, which uses the Princeton Survey Research Associates. It will deal with a variety of issues. ... We dealt with vigilantism and found out that 44 percent of Americans don't trust their local police, and this poll was done before the Los Angeles videotape incident. We also polled some parents and found out their attitudes on how they feel about their child going to school with another child who has AIDS.

J.A.: Do you feel this show is significant to society?

D.B.: I do because no matter how trivial the subject is at first or how substantial the issue is, it forces you to look at your own attitudes and your culture.

J.A.: Are all the questions dealing with current news events?

D.B.: No, not at all. We deal with lighter subjects such as sex, the media and just general information-type issues. We also have a man-on-the-street segment where we ask people would-you-ever-do-this- and would-you-ever-do-that-type questions, and you would be surprised what people will say right to the camera.

STAR NOTES

Robin Leach began as news reporter

By Lisa Otoupal

Each week, Robin Leach brings champagne wishes and caviar dreams to millions of viewers as he searches for the best of the good life. But what many viewers don't know is that Leach started his career as a news reporter, and it's only been in the last 10 years that he's been living the good life.

Leach began his journalism career at the age of 15 in England as a general news reporter for the Harrow Observer and then moved on to the Daily Mail. At that time he was Britain's youngest reporter. When he was 21 he moved to New York and wrote for a number of publications. Leach eventually became the show-business editor for The Star.

In 1980, Leach joined CNN's People Tonight after reporting for morning shows in Los Angeles and New York. He also reported for Entertainment Tonight. In 1983, Leach and the president and founder of TeleRep developed Lifestyles of the Rich and Famous. Leach wanted a show that looked at the celebrities intimately and made millionaires and moguls into stars. Four years later, Runaway With the Rich and Famous premiered, and a new show, Home Videos of the Stars, is expected to debut this fall.

Leach has authored three books and is now working on his first novel. In addition to his television shows, he does voice-overs for numerous commercials that stress the good life.

TIME OUT

CBS' plans announced for NFL season

By Steve Paschal

CBS Sports launches its 36th season of National Football League coverage Sunday, Sept. 1, and will feature 95 games throughout the season, climaxing with Super Bowl XXVI.

The network opens the 17-week regular season with a doubleheader that includes Philadelphia at Green Bay, Tampa Bay at the New York Jets, Atlanta at Kansas City and Dallas at Cleveland. For a nightcap, viewers will see either Phoenix at the Los Angeles Rams or Minnesota at Chicago.

The New York Giants, who narrowly defeated Buffalo in last year's Super Bowl, will make 10 appearances beginning Sept. 8 when they host the Los Angeles Rams. Other appearances include division battles against Philadelphia, Dallas and Phoenix, as well as NFC showdowns with Chicago, Tampa Bay and the Rams. On Dec. 1, the Giants travel to Cincinnati to take on the Bengals in a game that has become one of the traditional NFC-AFC grudge matches.

The Giants will kick off CBS Sports' pre-season schedule with a Saturday, Aug. 10, game against the Cleveland Browns. The Super Bowl runner-up Buffalo Bills will take center stage the next two weeks with games against the Green Bay Packers and the NFC Central champion Chicago Bears.

SOAP TALK

'Young & Restless' fan has wish list for characters

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: I read that I could send in my favorite soap scenario. My favorite and the only soap I watch is The Young and the Restless. I really wish the writers would bring Chase back. He and Nina made such a good pair. I just love Cricket and Danny. I would also like to see Paul and his secretary get together. It would be great if Victor and Nikki got remarried. I really wish they would get that overbearing David out of the picture. —Thank you, O.T., Tahlequah, Okla.

I want to hear from you! If you have a favorite soap scenario you would like to sound off about, or a question about the soaps, write to Candace Havens, Soap Talk, P.O. Box 961009, Fort Worth, TX 76161-1009.

BITS AND PIECES

Sharon Gless found wedded bliss with 'Rosie O'Neill' producer

Sharon Gless

Trials of Rosie O'Neill star Sharon Gless has married her longtime companion and producer Barney Rosenzweig. Gless and Rosenzweig were married May 4 in a Malibu sunset ceremony. At 47, it's Gless' first marriage. It's Rosenzweig's third; he's 53. In an interview with Gless last fall, she said the show is keeping her and Barney so busy they don't have time to date. "But at least I always know where he's at," she kidded.

Academy Award-winning director Woody Allen will, for the first time, write and direct TV commercials. Allen has signed a contract with Italy's National Association of Consumer Cooperatives for a rumored 3 billion lire ($2.35 million) for five spots.

Give Susan Lucci the Emmy. The All My Children star has been nominated again for the daytime honor, upping her total nominations to a record-setting 12. She has never won. The awards show airs June 27 on CBS.

J.R. blew himself (and the competition) away with Dallas' series ender May 3. CBS clobbered NBC and ABC before the fatal shot was fired, but did J.R. really kill himself? Former Dallas ite Victoria Principal said she refused to participate in the finale because the show's producers wouldn't guarantee her it would be the last.

Entertainment Tonight discusses Dudley Moore's new film Blame It on the Bellboy, Friday.

Twin Peaks fans tried to rescue the show from ABC's cancellation list, but to no avail. The saga's final season hurrah winds down June 10. Take heart, Peaks lovers. Director David Lynch has plans to launch Twin Peaks — The Movie.

James Garner will make his TV comedy series debut in Man of the People, a pilot for NBC. His characters have always had wit, and this one's no different. He plays a con artist who suddenly finds himself taking his late ex-wife's seat on the city council.
