The Canton Connection

Volunteers needed for veterans memorial

A design for the Canton veteran's memorial is being narrowed down and cost will play a big role in which one will be chosen.

The memorial committee has requested construction requests for three designs.

After the design is chosen, a lot of work remains before the memorial will be built, said Tim LaGrow of the Plymouth-Canton Vietnam Veterans.

The memorial will be a tribute to all the men and women who have served in all branches of the U.S. armed forces during all wars, as well as during peacetime.

LaGrow said there is still a lot of work to be done, like staging fund-raisers, before the memorial is erected. A planning meeting is scheduled 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 7 in the Canton Administration Building. Anyone interested in participating is invited to attend.

Schools need emergency cards

Before Plymouth Canton and Salem high school students can receive their fall class schedules, they must fill out and return emergency cards to their school office.

Emergency cards are being mailed to parents today. They are due Aug. 10.

The cards ask for information on who should be contacted in the event of an emergency and related information.

For details, call attendance supervisor Rita Ringer at 451-6600, ext. 357.

Schools to hire 3 administrators

Good luck trying to get a hold of Plymouth-Canton Community Schools' assistant superintendent for instruction Michael Homes these days. Homes' schedule has been booked solid by the 70-plus individuals applying for the district's two principalships and an administrative post that opened with the retirement of Shirley Spaniel, executive director of elementary education.

The principals' jobs opened when Beverly Marshall of Bird Elementary retired and William Pearson left Hoben Elementary to accept a position with the South Lyon school district.

The salary range for Plymouth-Canton principals is $55,850 — $68,350, depending upon experience and background. The executive director post pays between $56,200 and $79,700.

Summer school for teachers

Summer spells vacation for most teachers and students, but for more than 70 Plymouth-Canton staff and students, it meant a recent week-long workshop on "integrated thematic instruction."

Thematic instruction is designed to enhance learning by teaching all subjects around a common theme. Concepts and skills are then taught as they relate to the theme. In dissecting an animal, for instance, a teacher can demonstrate the inter-relationship of science, biology, math and English.

Participating in the workshop were second-, third-, fourth-, and fifth-grade teachers and students from throughout the district. Conducting the workshop was Barbara Till, a teacher from the Mt. Clemens School District.

3 candidiates in GOP runoff

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

Voters in the 36th state House district will choose a new state representative Tuesday.

While Tuesday's election is a primary, one of three Republican candidates will survive to run unopposed in the Aug. 27 general election.

The district includes part of Canton Township, Plymouth Township, the city of Plymouth, Northville Township and part of the city of Northville.

The candidates are Georgina Goss, Northville Township supervisor; Jerry Vorva, a Plymouth city commissioner; and Deborah Whyman, a systems engineer for Ford Motor Co.

Polls are open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. A low voter turnout is predicted, because this is a special election, and because the election is taking place in August.

Voting in the primary is not limited to Republicans. Democrats, independants and others can cast ballots Tuesday.

Canton Township Clerk Loren Bennett said that "especially on the special elections, it's so difficult to tell" voter turnout. He predicts that 10 percent of Canton's voters registered in the 36th District will cast ballots.

Bennett's office by Thursday had mailed out 1,106 absentee ballots, and 731 had been returned. The deadline for returning absentee ballots in Canton is 8 p.m. Tuesday.

IN CANTON'S portion of the 36th District, there are 23,325 registered voters. Canton's portion of the 37th District, represented by Democrat James Kosteva, has 9,058 registered voters.

"I'm expecting about 10 percent, we're not getting a lot of returns on the absentee ballots," said Plymouth city clerk Linda Langmesser. She said 614 absentee ballots were mailed. They deadline for returning those ballots is Tuesday morning, she said.

Plymouth Township clerk Esther Hulsing predicts a "poor" turnout,

Documents filed last month with the state show that Plymouth city commissioner Jerry Vorva had spent the most money as of July 21 in the race for the 36th state House seat.

Northville Township Supervisor Georgina Goss and Deborah Whyman of Canton Township were second and third respectively in the amount of money spent.

Statements filed with the state Bureau of Elections show Vorva spent $22,194.70, Goss $15,110.30 and Whyman $7,186.98.

This 'Foreman' is a born builder

Signs of Tim Foreman's hard work are easy to spot in Canton Township.

Foreman, 14, of Canton has been working on his Eagle Scout project in recent months which includes repairing more than 20 park benches at Fellows Creek Golf Course in Canton, along with constructing baseball bat racks for the Canton Recreation Complex.

Foreman, a freshman at Plymouth Salem High School in Canton, also made a dozen birdhouses. Those will be placed at Griffin Park, Flodin Park and the Canton Recreation Complex.

"We did most of the benches in the winter and spring," said Foreman, a member of Troop No. 898, which meets at St. Thomas A Becket Catholic Church in Canton.

He didn't have to do that part outdoors in the winter. Foreman and others were able to work on the benches at home, and began that part of the project early this year.

FOREMAN, THE son of Lon and Donna Foreman of Canton, and others who helped began by disassembling the benches. After doing some planning, they refinished and reassembled the benches.

He got some help from others in doing the Eagle Scout project including his parents and his sister, Sarah, 11. A total of 450 hours went into the parks project.

"It's very beneficial for us," said Kevin Mill, grounds foreman for Canton Township. Another Eagle Scout did a landscaping project for the township a while back and that was a tremendous help as well.

"They're very important. We can provide a little more quality in the parks," Mill said. "I just think Tim did a great job and I'd like to see him continue in the Scouts." Such efforts help to provide a good role model for other young people, he said.

Bob Dates, recreation supervisor for Canton Township, agreed with that assessment.

"It's a big help. They're extras that help make the park that much better," Dates said. Such projects free up grounds crew members to work on other things, he added.

Foreman's project included construction of six baseball bat racks for the Canton Recreation Complex and 12 birdhouses designed for bluebirds. He's looking forward to having Canton residents visit local parks and see the results of his efforts.

"They'll know that I did that. They'd better think it's a good job," he said with a smile.

Foreman hopes to remain active with the Boy Scouts. He's a tuba player and member of the Centennial Educational Park Marching Band.

FAA: Land near airport essential for approaches

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

Nearby land that would expand Mettetal Airport's acreage is an essential part of Plymouth Township's planned airport purchase, a Federal Aviation Administration official said Wednesday.

But FAA official Dean Nitz said the proposed expansion of the airport from 56 to 85 acres is mainly to protect runway approaches, adding "we are satisfied with the length" of the current runway.

"There is no intent to increase the runway length, that is not part of these projects nor is it a requirement of the federal and state government," Nitz said.

"We are suggesting that the runway be shifted," he continued. "We think the north end of the runway should be 300 feet from Joy Road," he said.

When the runway is shifted to the south, the portion of the runway now nearest Joy "would be marked as taxi way or paved overrun," Nitz said, adding it could not be used for computing runway length.

Land parcels that would expand the current airport are listed in a separate project from the one currently before township officials. Nitz said two separate projects were created due to FAA budget constraints, as only the first project could be paid for out of the agency's fiscal year 1991 budget.

"This is not a runway extension," Nitz said. "There are no major changes planned or intended to my knowledge for the Plymouth Mettetal airport."

'We are suggesting that the runway be shifted. We think the north end of the runway should be 300 feet from Joy Road.'
— Dean Nitz, FAA official

For opponents of the Plymouth Township effort to use federal and state grants to buy the airport, the proposed expansion of Mettetal Airport's acreage suggests future runway expansion.

"We're letting the biggest gorrilla in the zoo out," said Mike Stankov, by allowing FAA involvement with the airport, just south of the Plymouth Township border in Canton.

"It opens this community up for outside intervention," Stankov said.

His comments came at a joint meeting Tuesday between Plymouth Township Concerned Citizens members Stankov, Robert Zaetta and Warren Dusbiber, and township Supervisor Gerald Law and trustee Smith Horton.

A meeting between the two sides — earlier suggested by trustee John Stewart — was again suggested in mid-July by Law and Horton, so both sides could take more time to present their views on the airport.

Increasing the airport acreage, Law said, could cause trustees to review their support of the save-the-airport effort.

Video, parked car studied for clues in fatal crash

By Diane Gale
staff writer

A car parked on the side of the road at the Geddes and Denton intersection may have played a role in the accident Tuesday in which a 76-year-old woman and her 5-year-old great-granddaughter were killed after a Canton ambulance struck their car broadside, police said.

The accident that killed Sadie M. Grimm, of Flat Rock, and Jennifer Sheffler, of Ypsilanti Township was captured on a videotape taken by a Westland man.

He was filming the intersection to gather information about a one-car crash his daughter was involved in at the same location July 26.

"There is some information revealed on the tape that we felt may be pertinent to the investigation," said Canton police Capt. Alex Wilson.

The car was parked on the south east corner of the intersection on the curb side and the trunk was up.

"The vehicle may have played a part in the accident," he said. "To what degree I don't know."

Accident reconstruction teams will determine if the parked car caused the accident, he added.

Residents in the neighborhood have demanded that signs be erected on Geddes. Stop signs are already in place on Denton.

JAMES F. GRIMM Jr., Mrs. Grimm's son and Jennifer's great uncle, said: "There's going to be some questions about that intersection. The visibility is just terrible."

Grimm said his mother lived with him. "The day it happened, she was picking Jennifer up (from a realtive's house)," he said. "They were going to a niece's house and coming on home."

"My niece, who lives a couple of houses from the corner, said she heard the impact," Grimm said.

Jennifer was going to stay with her great-grandmother and the Grimm family for a couple of days, he added.

"I know the people there are concerned about that intersection, Wilson said adding that police are investigating accident data.

"Virtually every (accident) we reviewed was the result of driver error," Wilson said. "If that vehicle did block her view of the intersection that again doesn't lend itself to a flawed intersection."

Also, the July 26 accident involved one car. Faulty brakes is listed as the cause of the accident.

"A lot of times people want to blame intersections instead of driver error," Wilson said.

There have been 27 accidents at the intersection since 1986, according to police reports.

Four of those accidents involved someone being taken to the hospital for treatment. Three involved passengers with minor injuries and the remaining involved no reported injuries.

Accident causes were listed as: icy roads, improper passing, failing to yield, running stop signs, drunk driving, failing to take "care and caution" and bad brakes.

"Is it really worth it?" Stankov asked.

"That's a very important point and we're not diminishing it," Law responded, adding the township attorney is studying questions raised by the Concerned Citizens about the FAA's ability to order future expansion.

Law said that while he'd prefer that a new private owner come in to save the airport, Plymouth Township's effort to obtain the airport mainly through grants would benefit residents.

Industrial development planned for the airport property would significantly increase area truck traffic, he said, as trucks would use Plymouth Township roads to get to the I-275-Ann Arbor Road exit.

"We're looking at 1,000 trucks a day coming down our roads to go to industrial parks in Canton Township," Law said. "It effects the quality of living in the whole area."

Further, Law said pilots report that the airport keeps commercial planes bound for Metro Airport at higher altitudes, heading off noise problems reported by residents along Metro Airport approaches in Dearborn and Romulus.

Dusbiber challenged this, saying an FAA official has said the airport has no impact on the altitudes of commercial airplanes flying over Plymouth and Canton.

Residents show pride in apartment complex

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Not everyone at Canton Commons lives in rundown apartments with broken screen doors and tattered front entranceways.

Residents in the federally subsidized housing on Haggerty Road and Palmer stressed that point last week.

They were angry about a July Observer article reporting on another group of tenants complaining that management failed to fix various household items like toilets, air conditioners and garbage disposals.

MANAGEMENT DENIED the claims and the residents who met last week said they never have had a problem with maintenance. They also said they work at keeping their property looking good.

There's countless opportunities available at the complex, said resident Kathy McShane.

"I'm a second generation ADC (Aid to Dependent Children) recipient who made good," she said adding that "all the studies say I shouldn't have been able to do it."

She took advantage of a bus that takes single mothers from the complex to Starkweather School where she earned a medical assistant's certification. "I got a job and I'm off ADC and hopefully I'll get out of here in a couple of years."

Day care was available at Starkweather. Also, the federally funded Headstart program that provides day care for children was available at the complex and McShane said she appreciated that convenience.

And for residents who want their property to look good, she added, there's free dirt and seeds available to Canton Commons residents.

"For all the benefits you get from living here, how can you put it down?"

Canton Commons is "a stepping stone for a lot of people," according to a woman named Sharon, who asked that her last name not be used.

She's married with two children and her husband recently got out of the military service.

Since rents at Canton Commons are based on income and federally subsidized by the department of Housing and Urban Development the lower rate is a cushion to the family budget. The extra income allows her husband to take classes, she said.

Inside her neat apartment, Sharon said: "It's what you make of what you have."

"Hopefully, in a couple of years we can get a house and move on," she added.

Mary Langdon said: "I've been here 12 years. I have a new garbage disposal, screens and doorwalls. When I call they come out and I always say, 'thank you.' "

"There are residents who take care of their property. We pick up the paper and pull the weeds," she added. "I don't want to live in a ghetto. I don't want to live that way."

Lois Ruehl shows off a rose among the many flowers and trees she tends to behind her apartment at Canton Commons.

Diane Danieli planted flowers, bushes and a tree in front of her entranceway.

FLOWERS ARE in full bloom bordered by lush green grass outside Diane Danieli's apartment. "I bought the bulbs for pennies from Frank's when they went on sale. You can do a lot with sales."

The mid-sized tree at the corner of her small lot was a Canton Beautification Committee seedling given away a few years ago.

Inside her apartment the rooms are neat and the walls and are papered.

"I live here," Danieli said. "It's a reflection of me."

There are other residents, Danieli said, who don't take care of their property or their children. Toddlers are often out unattended early in the morning and late at night.

"But there are a lot of people here and most are responsible," Danieli said.

Resident Lois Ruehl said: "We don't all live like trash. We may be low income, but we don't all treat it as such. We all planted shrubs and flowers," Ruehl said, extending her arms to the seven or eight neighbors.

"I have never called for maintenance when I didn't get it in a reasonable time," she said.

Local teen misses accident

A Canton teenager escaped injury in a California bus accident Wednesday in which seven people died.

Jennifer Weir, 17, was among those on a Girl Scout Wider Opportunities program in southern California. Weir was riding in the bus behind the one that ran off the road and crashed in a ravine.

Huron Valley Girl Scout Council officials made arrangements for Weir's mother, Barbara, to fly to California Thursday to bring Weir home, said Jessica Hartung, public relations director for the council.

Weir, a senior at Plymouth Canton High School, was the only girl from the Huron Valley Council on the "California Dreamin'" trip. Two Michigan girls, one from Detroit and one from Rochester Hills, were among those killed. A number of others were injured.

Council officials were shocked to hear of the bus accident, which happened in Palm Springs, Calif.

"It definitely is something we've been fortunate enough not to experience before," Hartung said.

Wider Opportunities programs give girls the chance to explore different regions of the United States and in some cases other countries. Girls on the "California Dreamin'" trip were exploring southern California.

2 sentenced in rest stop case

Two men charged with engaging in homosexual activity in a public place were sentenced July 31 by 35th District Judge James MacDonald.

Nicholas Anthony Papp, a 30-year-old Detroit truck driver, was sentenced to probation for one year and ordered to stay away from the I-275 rest stop.

Papp also must attend the court's misdemeanor program for a year, and perform 10 days of community service. He was assessed $705 in fines and judgment fees.

David Miller, an 18-year-old student from Southgate, also was placed on probation for 12 months and told not to go to the I-275 rest stop.

Miller was ordered to undergo psychological evaluation at the Consortium for Human Development and to perform 10 days of community service. He also was assessed a total of $705 in fines and fees.

Papp and Miller pleaded guilty at their arraignments before MacDonald in June. The sentencings of Matthew John Haskill of Wixom and Tim Larkin of Belleville were adjourned to Aug. 8.

THE TWO were among six men arrested by Michigan State police at the rest stop May 23 for disorderly, obscene conduct and soliciting undercover officers for homosexual liaisons. The misdemeanor carries a maximum sentence of 90 days in jail.

July 26, MacDonald sentenced a fifth suspect, Robert Day, 35, of Ann Arbor, to a one-year deferred sentence, meaning there's a chance the offense will be removed from Day's record in a year.

Day was ordered not to go to the rest stop, to perform 10 days of community service and to receive counseling as directed by the court. He was assessed costs and fees totaling $700.

A pre-trial hearing for the sixth suspect, a 62-year-old Livonia man, is scheduled for Aug. 23.

$10,000 worth of equipment stolen

Almost $10,000 worth of equipment was reported stolen sometime last week from Center Stage on Ford Road, police reported.

The reported stolen goods included a turntable, cassette players, video cassette recorder, equalizer and amplifiers.

DEVILISH DEED: A waist pouch, wallet and credit cards were reported stolen from a 1984 Buick Century parked in the Plymouth Christian Academy on Joy Road.

GARAGE BREAK-IN: Thieves broke into a garage July 31 on Hanford. They entered an open garage, broke into a 1990 red Toyota and stole a purse. When the woman called her bank, a representative reported that there had been transactions on her checking accounts.

Bank officials learned that there had been 11 attempts before the thieves hit on her right identification number to access the account. The thieves took $100.

School vote victor spent most money

By Darrell Clem
staff writer

Campaign expense reports show that Vicki Welty — the top vote-getter in the June 10 Wayne-Westland Board of Education — also spent the most money among 19 candidates who ran for three seats.

The Wayne-Westland District includes a portion of Canton Township.

Welty, a political unknown until she made her first bid for public office, spent $4,835 on her campaign — thousands more than most candidates reported.

Only five candidates spent more than $1,000 and, therefore, were required to file campaign expense reports at the Wayne County elections office. Fourteen candidates did not exceed that amount.

Two of the three school board winners — Welty and Laurel Raisanen — ranked among the top five spenders. The other winner, Fred Warmbier, spent less than $1,000 minimum needed to require a report.

The three incumbents — Sharon Scott, Mathew McCusker and Michael Reddy — rounded out the top five spenders, but all three lost their election bids.

Welty's closest spending rival, Scott, spent $3,874 on the election. Reddy ranked third in spending after waging $3,780 on his campaign.

Raisanen, whose successful campaign cost her $1,980, placed fourth in spending, followed by McCusker's $1,303.

Though Welty and Raisanen, respectively, won the most votes, money did not decide the race. All three incumbents fell, even though they were among the biggest spenders.

Fred Warmbier spent less than $1,000, yet earned a new term on the board after a six-year absence. He had served 16 years before his defeat in 1985.

Among contributors, Welty became the largest single source of money for her campaign, pumping $1,150 into it. She also received hundreds of dollars from her co-workers at RN Home Health Care in Westland, where she is an administrator.

WELTY ADMITTED that her top-winning campaign was expensive because of the $4,835 she spent on signs, advertising and various campaign literature — giving her campaign a boost.

"I think that getting my name out in the community had a lot to do with it," she said. "I was unknown until a couple of months ago."

However, Welty also gave credit to an unrelenting campaign by her supporters and said her moderate platform appealed to voters. Many candidates had strongly supported or opposed the school district's administration.

Special blood drive set for Friday

At a time when blood supply is weakest, WJOI-FM (97) and Boblo Island are teaming up on Friday, Aug. 9, to replenish the area's supply. Collections have been slowly decreasing since March and turned critical in mid-July.

"We're not out of the woods yet," said Dr. A. William Shafer, executive director of the American Red Cross Southeastern Michigan Chapter and Regional Blood Services.

"Between the 15 to 20 percent no-show rate at our mobiles and the extreme heat we've had recently, our area's blood supply has dwindled to a critical state." Daily collections must average at least 1,000 pints to meet the needs of area patients. For the past several weeks daily collections have averaged only 800 units.

The first 500 participants at this special drive receive a pair of complimentary Boblo Island admission tickets. Donor centers in Bloomfield, Canton, Dearborn, Livonia, Oak Park, Renaissance Center, Roseville and Southgate will be participating in this special promotion.

Call 494-2800 or 1-800-582-4383 for donor center hours and to make an appointment to donate.

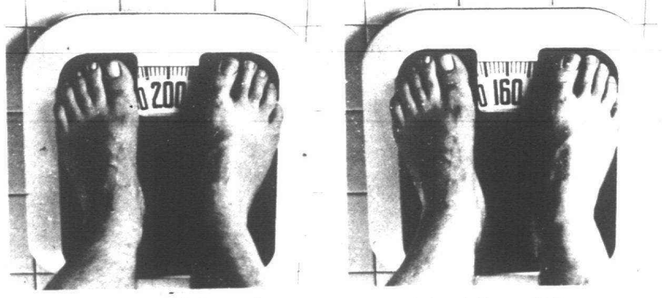
REDUCE YOUR CHANCES OF GETTING HEART DISEASE, KIDNEY DISEASE OR GOING BLIND.



Obesity can start a chain reaction to poor health that can be devastating.

To begin with, most physicians and researchers consider obesity to be the major cause of diabetes in adults. Up to 90% of adults diagnosed as having diabetes, in fact, are overweight.

Of course, once you have diabetes your chances of developing heart disease, kidney disease, or going blind increase dramatically.

As a person with diabetes you'll be twice as prone to heart disease. 17 times as prone to kidney disease. And 25 times as prone to blindness, if you are insulin-dependent.

Diabetes, in fact, can shorten your life expectancy by one-third.

Fortunately, diabetes in adults, in most cases, can be prevented with careful weight control, healthy eating habits, and regular exercise.

So if you're overweight, doesn't it make sense to take off the extra weight?

Instead of years off your life?

FIGHT SOME OF THE WORST DISEASES OF OUR TIME.

Madonna gets humanities grant

Madonna University will award a distinguished professorship to a model faculty member in the humanities — made possible through a challenge grant received from the National Endowment of the Humanities.

The university is one of only 14 colleges and universities in the United States to be granted NEH funding this year to endow a faculty chair in humanities. The grant is a result of a recently established NEH program designed to help colleges and universities encourage and reward outstanding teaching in humanities on the undergraduate level.

"The individual receiving this teaching award will serve as a mentor to fellow colleagues and students in introductory humanities classes," said Dr. Ernest Nolan, dean of humanities.

"The endowed chair will be awarded on a rotating basis for a two year term to someone who can lend talent, experience and insight to course planning and development, promoting active learning and providing inspired and enthusiastic teaching."

The $150,000 NEH grant requires a triple match of $450,000, bringing the total endowment to $600,000. The university has until 1995 to raise these funds from private sources. With donations of over $100,000 already received, Madonna is off to a good start. Donors include the DeSerrano Education Foundation, Ghafari Associates and the World Heritage Foundation.

"Throughout Madonna's history, the college has promoted the humanities as a means of broadening the intellectual, social and ethical perspectives of its students," said Nolan. "The distinguished professorship will provide further opportunity to reward and encourage high quality faculty committed to Madonna's mission of dedicated teaching."

Humanities courses at Madonna comprise half of the General Education requirements and involve core courses in the traditional humanities disciplines of history, philosophy, literature, art history, music appreciation, rhetoric and comparative religion.

A nominating committee chaired by Nolan and made up of humanities faculty members will solicit nominations from the teaching faculty of the Humanities Departments. The appointment is expected to be made in the 1993-94 academic year.

Summer's busting out all over state

By Iris Sanderson Jones
special writer

Do you hear the voices rising around you? "It's August already!" "What happened to summer?" "Do you realize it is only four weeks to Labor Day?!"

If you have that sinking feeling that summer is disappearing too fast, get your pencil and your calendar out and get busy. Summer activities are at their peak in Michigan this month, so you could do something every day if you want to overdose on sunshine activities.

Three of the "1991 Celebrate! The Great Lakes Festivals" are yet to come. The Michigan Travel Bureau picked these festivals as highlights this year, so they should be good.

THE ANTIQUE WOODEN BOAT SHOW and Festival of Arts will be Aug. 10 in Hessel, the gateway to an archipelago of 36 islands that dot the northernmost waters of Lake Huron. You will see 170 classic wooden boats ranging from 30 to 90 years old, boats that have come from as far away as Florida and California.

The boats range from powerboats and sailboats to dinghies, launches, cruises and canoes. Some are varnished, polished jewels with names like Chris-Craft, Gar Wood, Hacker and Century.

The festival features several dozen artists, folk dancing, ferryboat tours of the channel islands, Les Cheneaux and the landing of 12 costumed voyageurs in a 34-foot replica of a 17th century voyageur canoe.

Only in Michigan!

THE UPPER PENINSULA STATE FAIR will be in full swing Aug. 13-18 in Escanaba, a popular tourist town at the mouth of the Little Bay De Noc. It will have all the traditional state fair activities: agricultural, industrial, educational and recreational displays, barbecues, grandstand shows, animal acts, hot dogs and pink sugar candy.

THE MONTREUX DETROIT JAZZ FESTIVAL will wind the Great Lakes Festival series up Aug. 29 to Sept. 2 in Detroit. More than three quarters of a million fans go to the 100 free concerts, said to be the largest free jazz festival in North America.

And that's only three of the things going on in Michigan.

It's magic

Colon's Get-together features tricks, treats

By Mike Michaelson
special writer

It's no illusion! There's magic in the air in southwest Michigan when the tiny town of Colon holds the annual Magic Get-Together Aug. 7-10.

Colon is the home of Abbott's Magic Co., an unusual business that makes and sells magic tricks, puts on magic shows for visitors and stages this huge annual magic festival.

When you're looking for an entertaining and offbeat outing, this is a good trip to have up your sleeve. Faster than you can say "Hey, presto!" a little deft sleight of hand will put a smile on the faces of the most car-weary youngsters and turn bored "are we there yets" into "awesomes."

Colon styles itself "The Magic Capital of the World." There's a street named Blackstone (in honor of magician Harry Blackstone Sr. who made his home there from 1925 until 1958), a Magic Carpet cocktail lounge and Magic City hardware store. The high school team is called the Running Rabbits, and there's even a graveyard with some unusual headstones that magicians are dying to get into.

Affable Greg Bordner runs Abbott's, co-founded by his father in 1934. The showroom is housed in a cinder block building, its stark black walls adorned with painted white skeletons. Inside, shelves and showcases are crammed with magic tricks and books on magic, and walls are covered with photographs and assorted magic memorabilia. The ceiling is a museum piece, entirely covered with posters, most of them originals, many of them rare, valued at $30,000.

There's a small stage where Greg and his sales staff — all professional magicians — put on magic shows. If you're part of a group, you can arrange a show in advance. Or you can simply walk in unannounced and browse. One of the resident magicians is always on hand to demonstrate tricks. The shop carries about 100 magic tricks that cost only $2 and two dozen or so that you can buy for a buck.

There also are gift sets with multiple tricks.

Abbott's claims to be the world's largest magic manufacturing company, and keeps 15 employees busy producing a line of magic products that ranges from inexpensive novelties to ambitious illusions that market for several hundred dollars. It also publishes about 200 books and pamphlets on magic and offers a 506-page, 3-pound catalog.

You can spend $20 on a vanishing pitcher of milk or about $2,500 to make a lovely female assistant vanish (which may seem counterproductive). If it is a live elephant you want to disappear, Abbott's can help you create this illusion, as it did both for a television show and for the Broadway stage.

More than 1,000 magicians converge on Colon for the annual Magic Get-Together Aug. 7-10, literally doubling the population of the tiny town. "This annual event has been going on for more than 50 years," said Bordner.

Commission seeks more stadium plan details

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

One area county commissioner is promoting his own stadium financing plan, another is taking shots at Detroit Tigers president Bo Schembechler, but all seek more information on city and county plans for a new Tiger Stadium.

Commissioners hold final county approval over the proposed five-member stadium authority that would govern stadium financing and construction.

"At least that's what we believe," said Commissioner Kay Beard, D-Inkster. "We haven't really heard too much from the CEO."

Beard, who represents Westland and Garden City, said it was "a positive sign" to see county Executive Edward McNamara and Detroit Mayor Coleman Young make a joint stadium proposal Thursday.

But area commissioners agreed the announcement was short on specifics, specifically when it comes to stadium financing.

"There really isn't too much before 'us,'" Maurice Breen, R-Plymouth Township said: Breen's district includes Livonia and the city of Plymouth.

Financing, they agreed, is the key.

"IF FINANCING is solid, this could all fall into place very quickly," Breen said.

While a county hotel/motel room tax is among the proposed financing options, county and city officials didn't detail a full financing package during Thursday's joint announcement.

The 5 percent hotel/motel room tax has drawn fire from area innkeepers who say they're already reeling from one of the lowest occupancy rates in the U.S.

"We're being inundated with calls from hotel and motel folks," Beard said.

A rental car tax, proposed by commissioner Kevin Kelley, D-Redford, could replace or limit the hotel/motel room tax.

"I think it stands a good chance of being included in the final package," Kelley said.

McNamara and Young announced a 300-member "City Suburban Coalition" of government, community, business and union leaders committed to keeping the major league baseball team in Detroit.

Peter Stroh of the Stroh Brewery Co., UAW Region 1 director Bob King, Detroit NAACP president Arthur Johnson are among the coalition members, as is New Detroit president Paul Hubbard.

"Mr. McNamara's put together a good coalition," Kelley said. But Beard noted the absence of any Tigers representatives from Thursday's announcement.

Bryan Amann, D-Wayne, chided Schembechler for the team's earlier announcement of preference for a new stadium near the current ballpark instead of a downtown site.

"Bo's constant demands will make it impossible to gain support for any proposal," said Amann, whose district includes Canton Township, in a prepared statement. "Bo should stop blowing hot air and start talking about cold cash."

Kelley agreed. "I know he's (Schembechler) not a politician and I know he's trying to represent the Tigers position, but I wish he'd be a little more sensitive to public concerns," Kelley said.

Local leaders join stadium coalition

A number of local dignitaries lent their names to the 300-member City Suburban Coalition that Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara and Detroit Mayor Coleman Young are using to promote a new Detroit baseball stadium.

Local officials listed as coalition members include Canton Supervisor Thomas Yack, Garden City Mayor Jim Plakas, Livonia Mayor Robert Bennett, Redford Supervisor James Kelley and Westland Mayor Robert Thomas.

The Rev. George Shalhoub of St. Mary Antiochan Orthodox Church, Livonia and Plymouth developer Robert DeMattia are also listed as coalition members.

Though specifics were lacking, the county and city announced a six-point stadium proposal:

- The stadium will be "built, owned and operated by the Detroit-Wayne County Stadium Authority". The five-member authority would include three county executive appointees, two mayoral appointees. The authority would issue bonds, acquire land and manage stadium construction.
- Stadium bonds would pay for the bulk of construction costs. Detroit would cede city land within the project boundaries, with the stadium to be leased to the Tigers. The county would seek "necessary approvals" for any countywide taxes needed to pay off the bonds.
- Two stadium sites — the Briggs Neighborhood site north of I-75 and a downtown site north of the Hudson's Warehouse — will be offered to the Tigers. Tigers president Bo Schembechler has already gone on record in favor of the Briggs site, north of the current stadium. Mayor Young, however, favors the downtown site.
- An "enterprise zone" would be created, with state approval, to promote business development near the stadium site. The proposed five-member enterprise zone authority would offer tax incentives to business developers. Three of its members would be appointed by the mayor, two by the county executive.
- A season ticket sales drive would undertake a season ticket drive designed to boost Tigers attendance by 400,000. Tigers management has noted current attendance, estimated at 1.5 million, places the club in the bottom third of all major league clubs.
- The Greater Detroit building Trades Council has agreed to a no strike pledge during stadium construction.

IF YOU HURT ALL OVER & EVERYWHERE
You may think that relief is impossible if you hurt in all joints and everywhere in your body. Where can the doctor begin to treat?
You are not in a hopeless position. Because movement is a coordinated action involving the whole body, usually one or two key joints, if relieved, will reverse the flare.
In the legs, often the knees are the source of the trouble. If you cannot walk properly, your back will hurt as you adopt a forward flexed position to spare knee strain. That change in posture brings on discomfort to your hips and thighs. The cumulative effect causes pain in the ankles and feet because of stress at these sites from your impaired gait.
In the arms, the shoulders are the pivotal joints. Limitation of shoulder motion puts a strain on the elbows, wrists and hands. When you wash, eat, drive, or hold a pen the strain continues and increases. In time these other joints begin to ache, claiming attention so they can obtain the relief from movement the body gives to the shoulders.
Thus, it is not necessary to increase your medication or change your therapy when you "hurt all over." Rather, your doctor will seek a key joint. Removing fluid from your shoulder or knee may initiate a change that provides relief for all your body.

House race

Vorva is best choice on Tuesday

VOTERS IN THE 36th state House district will choose a new state representative Tuesday.

The candidates are Jerry Vorva, a Plymouth city commissioner, Georgina Goss, Northville Township supervisor and Deborah Whyman of Canton Township, a systems engineer for Ford Motor Co.

The Observer reminds voters that the polls are open 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. One of three Republican candidates will survive to run unopposed in the Aug. 27 general election.

Jerry Vorva for state House

In this race, the Observer recommends Jerry Vorva.

When it comes to the issues, all three candidates sound pretty much the same . . . cut taxes, cut government waste, reform school financing, protect the environment.

But where Vorva stands out is his moderate views including his opinion on the abortion issue.

Vorva is pro-choice and throughout the campaign he never has been afraid to express his view on the subject.

Whyman is pro-life, and Goss, until lately, managed to cloud her stance on the issue.

We approve of Vorva's pro-choice stance. It's in the moderate Republican tradition to leave people alone, and we believe Plymouth-Canton residents - for the most part - are moderates.

We're glad Vorva's a traditionalist on that subject.

We also believe that Vorva will quickly grasp the Lansing scene and the art of compromise.

Many areas of southeastern Michigan and outstate are not as fortunate as the Canton-Plymouth area to have a decent economy.

While we would expect Vorva to represent his district first and others second, he must understand what other state representatives are facing to be effective.

Vorva is a solid choice on Tuesday. His stand on the issues best represents the district, and he's a fighter who we're sure will quickly learn the Lansing scene.

Vorva is a solid choice on Tuesday. His stand on the issues best represents the district, and he's a fighter who we're sure will quickly learn the Lansing scene.

Since there are no Democratic challengers and barring a last-minute groundswell of support for a write-in candidate on Aug. 27, the primary is tantamount to election in this district which encompasses the city of Plymouth, Northville and Plymouth townships, part of Canton Township and part of the city of Northville.

The Observer has interviewed each of the candidates. All of the candidates are qualified to serve. Goss has a strong background in local government through her work as Northville Township supervisor. Whyman is intelligent and articulate. She has a good grasp of the problems facing the area and the state.

We believe, however, the most important characteristic for a candidate to possess is the aptitude for hard work. Vorva has that.

During his stint on the Plymouth City Commission, he has worked hard for residents.

VORVA is a fighter. If elected, he'll raise a little hell in Lansing on behalf of residents, as he has in Plymouth.

Residents are reminded that voting in the primary is not limited to Republicans. Democrats, independents and others can cast ballots Tuesday.

Express your opinion. Vote on Tuesday.

VFW supports DARE program

To the editor:

We congratulate all the volunteers, companies, police and fire departments and service organizations who made the DARE pancake breakfast fund-raiser such a success on Saturday, July 27.

We, the members of the Mayflower-Lt. Gamble Post No. 6695, Veterans of Foreign War of Plymouth, were delighted to again have the opportunity to play a small part in supporting the DARE program.

We appreciate the efforts made by the organizers to acknowledge the help given by all the organizations, but where was the credit given for the VFW? In June, a check for $1,000 was donated to the DARE program and was accepted by Chief Carl Berry on behalf of the program and was accepted by Chief Carl Berry on behalf of the program.

In addition, 25 banquet tables were loaned by the Post on Saturday, the day of the breakfast. As a non-profit organization we do need the recognition documentation to maintain that status with both the State and Federal governments.

Again, our congratulations for a job well done.

Gun column made sense

To the editor:

Jeff Counts' column in the July 29 Observer is a breath of fresh air regarding guns. We aren't used to reading a common sense article about guns and gun ownership in the liberal controlled press.

I don't totally agree with your views on "military assault rifles." As a competitive shooter some of these types of firearms do have a legitimate use in competitive shooting and hunting.

Thank you and keep up the good articles.

Reader likes Whyman's firm stand on issues

To the editor:

In your recent interviews of the 36th District State Representative candidates, I was most impressed by the candor of Deborah Whyman. She was the only candidate to take firm, clear, and strong positions on the major issues. Georgina Goss waffled and didn't take sides. For example, she claimed that she had no definite position on abortion and will accept no label.

The people deserve to know how candidates stand on the issues before voting. It is impossible to try and please everyone by not taking a position on abortion.

Understandably, people may get angry and emotional over such an issue, but it's a voter's right to know.

I congratulate Deborah Whyman for putting public service before politics.

Logic allows for no rights

To the editor:

John Telford's July 18 column "Kindness must be taught to all" was an unkind collection of errors. Consider three of them. He said, "God's furry and feathered creatures have rights, too." That's not true. Rights stem from obligations. For example, human beings have an obligation to participate in government, therefore they have a right to freedom of speech. Lacking the powers of abstract thinking and free choice, animals are incapable of assuming obligations. Hence, animals have no rights.

Secular and religious institutions agree. That's why they reject a Bill of Rights for animals and condone hunting, animal experimentation, incarceration of animals in zoos, and execution of pound animals. Of course, causing animals unnecessary suffering is immoral, not because it violates animal rights, but because infliction of pain merely for sadistic pleasure constitutes an irrational act by beings responsible for acting rationally.

Telford's second error occurs in his reference to hunting as a blood rite "that countless insecure males of both blue and white collar background indulge in to reassure themselves of their manhood." I suspect that this highly emotional condemnation of countless hunters is based on too little evidence. Thus, Telford is guilty of the fallacy of hasty generalization. He would have us believe that few males hunt solely for pleasure or food or camaraderie. How unkind and illogical!

Finally, Telford says ". . . laboratory researchers are continuing to inflict pain and death on innocent animals in experiments that either could be performed by some other means or are unnecessary." When the phrase "laboratory researchers" is used without qualification, it becomes a universal term signifying all laboratory researchers in all places at all times. Telford didn't mean this? Then why did he say it? His wild generalization calls into question the motives of the esteemed American Medical Association. The AMA insists, on the basis of scientific evidence, that laboratory research involving animals is "absolutely necessary" (Journal of the American Medical Association, Nov. 17, 1989).

May I suggest that Mr. Telford enroll in two classes: one on kindness, the other on logic.

Pay raises are opposed

To the editor:

In regards to the (U.S.) senators' $23,000 pay raise, it reminds me of the quotation by professor historian Alexander Tyler 200 years ago, when we only had 13 states in the union.

His quotation was, "Why Democracy Fails."

A democracy can not exist as a permanent form of government. It can only exist until the voters and public officials discover that they can vote themselves a larger pay check out of the public treasury, from that moment on the majority will vote for the candidate that promises more benefits from the public treasury.

The results are the democracy collapses due to a loose fiscal policy, always followed by a dictatorship.

Judges to teach legal classes at Madonna this fall

Judges Gene Schnelz and Fred M. Mester of Oakland County Circuit Court, and Judge Patrick Duggan of Federal District Court will be among the faculty for 14 legal assistant courses being offered by Madonna University this fall.

A four-day workshop, "Special Problems in the Law: Environmental Law," will focus on the legal assistant's role in environmental law. Held on two Fridays, Nov. 8 and 22, from 6-10 p.m., and two Saturdays, Nov. 9 and 23, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., the course will be taught by Mary Urisko, Detroit-area attorney and assistant director of Madonna's Legal Assistant program.

"Special Problems in Law: Arbitration and Mediation," conducted by Detroit attorney Richard Dimanin, will concentrate on assembling facts to present a case before an arbitration panel or mediation tribunal. The course will be held on two Fridays, Oct. 18 and 25, from 6-10 p.m., and two Saturdays, Oct. 19 and 26, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and will include preparation of mediation summaries and a mock arbitration hearing.

"Using Computers in the Law," will encompass word processing, computer programming theory and demonstrations of legal research. The prerequisite for the class is either "Fundamentals of Computers" or "Introduction to Computers."

Medical legal concepts will be covered in the seminar, "Special Problems in Law: Medical Legal Concepts and Medical Records," taught by Dimanin. The class will meet for two Fridays, Sept. 20 and 27, from 6-10 p.m. and two Saturdays, Sept. 21 and 28, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Madonna University's Legal Assistant Program, the first in Wayne County approved by the American Bar Association, offers associate and bachelor of science degrees and post baccalaureate certificates in the field.

For beginning legal assistants, two classes, taught by Urisko, will be offered this semester. "Legal Assistant Orientation" and "Legal Research and Writing I." Other classes offered are "Legal Interviewing and Investigation" and "Law Office Economics and Management" which will both be conducted by Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Gene Schnelz; "Legal Research and Writing II," taught by Oakland County Circuit Court Judge Fred M. Mester; "Litigation," two sections, taught by Federal District Court Judge Patrick Duggan and Detroit attorney Debra Holt; and "Torts: An Overview of Negligence," will be conducted by Richard Dimanin, J.D. Jennifer Cote', Brighton attorney and Director of Madonna's Legal Assistant Program will teach the "Legal Seminar and Practicum" beginning Sept. 7.

Registration for the fall term for new, returning and transfer students is being held through Aug. 31. Classes begin Tuesday, Sept. 3. For more information call Mary Urisko, Assistant Director of Madonna's Legal Assistant Program, at (313) 591-5195.

Little Caesars rallies to win LCBL title

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

A steady rain began falling after midnight Friday, when the Livonia Little Caesars baseball team gathered near the pitcher's mound to accept the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League playoff plaque.

The players didn't mind getting wet, because they earned a trip to the All-American Amateur Baseball Association Tournament in Johnstown, Pa. — a place which has had its share of rain, including the famous flood of 1889.

Doing it in typical Caesars' style, coach John Moraitis' team rallied with three runs in the bottom of the eighth inning to beat Delwal, 11-9, at Livonia's Ford Field. The victory capped an incredible playoff run by Caesars, which used late-inning rallies to win all three games it played in the double-elimination tournament.

Caesars last played in Johnstown in 1988, when it failed to win a game in two tries. The team had better success in '87, winning three games and losing two.

Ken Wandzel, a current Caesars assistant coach, played on the '88 team "which went one-two, skiddoo," he said. "That means, one-two, you're done. Now I think things will be different."

There's no telling how many games Caesars can win in Johnstown, but looking at its recent track record, the team will be fun to watch.

Trailing, 9-8, after 7⅓ innings, Caesars rallied for three runs with two outs in the eighth to overtake Delwal for the second time in two nights.

Joe Ransley (Livonia Franklin), in his only at-bat of the playoffs, began the rally with a single off Delwal reliever and loser Andrew Margolick (North Farmington). Eric Stanczak, the next batter, hit a grounder to shortstop Ron Hollis, whose throw to first base ricocheted off the mitt of Eric Sumpter and landed down the right-field line, allowing the speedy Ransley to score from first to tie the game at 9-9.

Leadoff man Earl Johnson followed with a single to center to send Stanczak to second base, and the two came home on Don Sikora's double to make the score 11-9.

Margolis (North Farmington) had been impressive heading into the eighth, allowing no runs and only three hits in 3⅓ innings of relief of Hollis, Delwal's starting pitcher.

"All we were thinking was getting base hits," said Johnson. "Their pitcher was getting weak, and everyone had seen him two times, so we just had to make him throw strikes. One spark plug sparks everyone else."

Sean Henkel (Livonia Stevenson), pitching in relief of Caesars' starter Lou McKaig, walked two batters with two out in the top of the ninth but ended the suspense by getting Mark Dube to ground out back to the mound for the last out. Henkel, who had pitched less than 30 innings during the season, allowed no runs, struck out four and surrendered only one hit over the last four innings to earn the win.

"Henkel really saved us," Moraitis said.

Another key player was third baseman Rich Roy (Clarenceville), who in the seventh inning dived to his left on a grounder and threw out Dube at first to strand runners at second and third with Delwal ahead, 9-8.

Caesars had an uphill battle most of the game.

Tim Bruce stroked a three-run double in the first, and Delwal raised its lead to 7-0 after four innings. But Caesars, which rallied for an 8-6 win Wednesday over Fieger & Fieger, and a wild, 15-14, win Thursday, over Delwal, would rally again.

Caesars sent 12 batters to the plate in the fourth to take an 8-7 lead and send Delwal starter Hollis to the bench. Hollis, a 37th round recent draft pick of the New York Yankees, struck out eight and allowed only one hit through three innings, before getting in serious trouble.

Four Caesars batters received walks in the fourth, and Kevin Crociata and Stanczak highlighted the rally with a pair of hits each.

Crociata led off the fourth with a single and Stanczak followed with a run-scoring triple. Later in the inning, with two outs and four runs already in, Crociata came up to the plate again and singled to score two more runs and finish Hollis. Stanczak finished the rally with a two-run single.

Johnson and Mike Giacamontonio also collected RBI during the fourth.

Stanczak, who played on Harper Woods Notre Dame's 1989 Class A state champion team, said Caesars "is the most intense team I've played on."

The title was satisfying for several Caesars players who thought they were overlooked and underrated prior to the season by opposing coaches, including Delwal coach Bob Peterson.

"Delwal said, 'Caesars gets what we left you,' " said one Caesars player.

"That gave us the incentive," said Wandzel.

DELWAL EARNED a right to play in the final with a wild, 18-11, win earlier Friday over two-time defending playoff champion Walter's Appliance.

Delwal led 6-0 after one inning, only to trail, 8-7, after three. The playoff format, which called for games on three consecutive days, seemed to get the best of both teams' pitching staffs.

Still, Walter's coach Mike Keller lauded his team's effort, including that of Joe Brusseau (Redford Bishop Borgess and Madonna University), three-run double; league most valuable player Jerry Koester (Westland John Glenn), three runs, on base five of six times; Mark Hribar, two hits, three RBI; Jason Gabel (Livonia Churchill), three hits, two RBI; and Joe Sturtz (North Farmington), two hits.

"We ran out of runs, is what happened," Keller said. "It's been a hitting tourney."

Keller said Walter's, the regular-season LCBL champ, will leave Wednesday for Dayton, Ohio, the site of the National Amateur Baseball Federation World Series.

ON THURSDAY, Craig Overaitis (Franklin) hit a home run and a ground-rule double as Walter's made Fieger & Fieger exit the tourney early, 13-2. Gabel was 4-5, including a 400-foot homer, with three RBI.

Also on Thursday, Caesars trailed Delwal, 10-7, after eight but Giacamontonio's monstrous three-run homer highlighted an 8-run ninth to let Caesars prevail, 15-14. Jeff Bates was the Caesars starter and he re-entered in the ninth to end a Delwal threat.

Craiger, Dry Clean in playoff

By virtue of their victories last week, Craiger and the Dry Clean Company will have a two-of-three playoff series to determine the Babe Ruth League championship.

There had been a three-way tie for first place entering the final week of the regular season. Craiger eliminated the Plymouth Rocks from contention with a 3-2 win, while Dry Clean edged Twist 'N' Shake 9-8 to keep pace.

Craiger and Dry Clean will play Tuesday, Wednesday and, if necessary, Thursday at Flodin Park. Game time will be 6 p.m. each night.

Craiger needed nine innings to subdue the Rocks. In the bottom half, Keith McDonald drew a leadoff walk, stole second base and scored on a single by Ryan King.

Chris Kennedy pitched the last two innings to get the victory, surviving a close call in the top of the ninth.

THE ROCKS had the go-ahead run at second base, but King's throw from right field cut down the runner as he tried to score on a single.

For the most part, the game was a pitching duel between Craiger's Dave Kapla and Bobby Schneider of the Rocks. After seven innings, Schneider had struck out 14 hitters, while Kapla had allowed only four hits.

SC claims scholarship problems settled

THE SCHOLARSHIP problems facing Schoolcraft College coaches have been defused, for now.

According to Midge Carleton, the assistant dean of physical education who oversees SC's athletic department: "We have not disapproved any scholarships that have been given out. We are operating under the same procedure as in previous years."

Carleton also insisted that the college "has not cut any scholarship funding," and added, "I will work with any coach individually on any problem presented to me."

Whew. That's a relief.

Now maybe the coaches can get down to business and start signing recruits for the fall season, which — in case you haven't seen a calendar lately — gets underway in about six weeks.

Okay, I admit such a remark may seem both sarcastic (What? Me?) and somewhat unfair. After all, SC coaches have been busy — in the last few weeks in particular — signing people.

BUT THEIR busyness is due more to the reversal in the administration's position, and the fear it may reverse again, as anything else.

A recap may be necessary, since it's taken most of the summer for SC's scholarship problems to be ironed out.

In a meeting in May, athletic director Marty Nowak told coaches that scholarship budgets were going to be trimmed — in some cases by more than 50 percent. This was met, understandably, with resentment from the coaches. Many said they had already promised more to recruits than their new, drastically reduced budgets allowed.

Telling coaches in the middle of their recruiting campaigns their budgets were being slashed in half is grossly unfair. Asking those coaches to then renege on what they had already promised to athletes added insult to the injury.

NO WONDER the coaches were near rebellion. Several threatened to resign rather than damage the reputations they had worked so hard to build — both their own and the school's.

Through all of this, Nowak refused to comment. On anything. Even when Adelard Raby, an SC administrative official, called to tell me the athletic scholarship budget was the same for the coming year as it had been the previous year, Nowak was steadfast.

Only Carleton was deemed able to answer queries like why the cuts were necessary, why they were coming at such a late date, and what was going to happen if coaches had already overspent their budgets. But when the story broke, Carleton was out of town on vacation.

When she returned, Carleton insisted she "would not renege on any promises coaches already made." She added that fund raising was going to be necessary if the athletic budget was to balance. "I've been running a budget that has not balanced the last two years," she said.

ONE REASON, believe it or not, is the price of success. Post-season trips to National Junior College Athletic Association tournaments by the volleyball and men's and women's soccer teams have put SC's athletic department in the red, asserted Carleton.

But what Carleton said that the coaches found reassuring — and what certainly reversed a quickly-deteriorating situation — was her promise to fulfill all scholarship promises coaches have made.

"No one has complained to me that they haven't been able to get any athletes because of a lack of funding," she said.

And yet. . . well, forgive my pessimism, but the situation may not yet be completely resolved. After all, if coaches continue to operate believing they have as much money as they had previously — and some are, quickly signing recruits to full-year scholarships before the administration changes back again — then the deficit problem is bound to reoccur.

THEN WHAT?

To be sure, coaches are trying to trim expenses. Said women's soccer coach Nick O'Shea: "I'm not planning on spending my whole (scholarship budget). I will cut back."

Men's basketball coach Dave Bogataj pledged his help to fund-raising efforts, noting: "It's just the idea that all the coaches will get involved (in fund raisers)."

But what if the fund raisers come up short and don't cover expenses?

Will end-of-the-season trips to the NJCAA tournaments, the carrot dangled in front of every SC coach and athlete, be cut?

Such a nightmarish turn of events is too ghastly to contemplate for O'Shea. His SC coaching compadres would share his feelings, no doubt.

Perhaps its silly to dwell upon the "what ifs" of life. Who can accurately forsee the future? And remember, Carleton did pledge her help. "When the coaches have been in a bind, I've been there," she said.

Spartans' keeper has Olympic goal

hockey

Mike Gilmore of Farmington Hills has been an underdog other times and come out on top, so the 23-year-old hockey player isn't afraid of increasing stakes in pursuit of his next goal.

Gilmore, who rose from walk-on status to become the No. 1 goalkeeper on the Michigan State University team, is trying to make the United States Olympic team this summer.

"I've always been a longshot everywhere I've gone," Gilmore said. "I've already had a taste of what it takes. I've always had to work for it."

Gilmore would like to follow in the footsteps of Jim Craig, the goalie for the 1980 U.S. team, which won the gold medal. To do that, he's prepared to give his best effort again.

"Ever since the '80 Olympics, any kid who played hockey and was American wanted to play in the Olympics," he said. "I watch the tape of when (the U.S.) beat the Russians, and it still gives me chills."

GILMORE, WHO attended Our Lady of Sorrows and graduated from Redford Catholic Central in 1986, is spending a lot of time in St. Cloud, Minn. He was there in July for the Olympic Sports Festival and returned last week for the Olympic Trials camp.

Twenty-nine of the 80 college players at the Sports Fest were invited to the Olympic camp, where they were joined by a half dozen pro players, most of whom have played in the minor leagues.

"I'll probably have to stop every shot they send at me," Gilmore said. "I'll go there and do what I have been doing, keep my concentration level up and not be intimidated by the pros."

Gilmore, who says he is coming from "virtual obscurity" in his attempt to make the team, is considered a longshot since he will be one of at least four goalies in camp.

He and Mike Dunham of Maine are the only college players, while a trio from the NHL farm system — Robb Stauber, Guy Herbert and Pat Jablonski — were expected to join them.

"It's going to be really tough," said Gilmore, adding the team will be selected not long after camp opens. "You've only got so many days to show them what you've got.

MSU hockey star has Olympic goal

"I COULD BE there six days or six months, because if I make it I won't be coming home. I could be shipping out to Europe, or I could be back here in a couple days."

A plus for Gilmore is the fact he played previously for U.S. Olympic coach Dave Peterson at the Pravda Cup series in the Soviet Union last April.

His performance in those games and the Sports Fest, which served as the first stage in the Olympic selection process, earned him a return trip to St. Cloud and a second look, according to Peterson.

Team USA won just one of four games in Leningrad, but Gilmore played well enough to make the all-star team. In the Sports Fest, he played 3½ of the four games after the other goalie got hurt and helped the North win the gold medal.

"I was up against the top American competition," Gilmore said. "If you didn't play at the top of your game, you were at the bottom."

Gilmore is a little surprised at how fast his stock has rocketed upward.

He was drafted a year ago by the New York Rangers in the NHL supplemental draft but returned to MSU, not knowing how much playing time he would receive.

GILMORE BECAME the top netminder, sharing time with Jason Muzzatti and developing a reputation for quality play, which led to the post-season invitations. Now he's on the verge of becoming an Olympian, too.

"They usually groom these guys from the time they're 16 years old," Gilmore said. "Not in my wildest imaginings did I think I would be standing where I am today."

Gilmore has other options, however, and will wait to see what his role might be if he does make the Olympic team.

Gilmore has a fifth year eligibility remaining at MSU and will return to play a final season for the Spartans if ends up being a third-string goalie for the Olympic team.

"If I'm only going to play a few games, it's not really worth it," he said. "The way I look at it I'm in a no-lose situation. If I make the team, it'll be great; if not, I've got another year to play at MSU.

"I'd be disappointed if I didn't make (the Olympic team), but I'm looking at it with open eyes."

GILMORE PLAYED in 22 games for MSU last season, making the all-CCHA second team after posting a 9-8-3 record and 2.66 goals-against average. He is certain to be the No. 1 goalie if he returns since the Spartans have only an incoming freshman at that position.

Gilmore also made the CCHA all-academic team, graduating last spring with a 3.4 grade point in engineering arts. If he returns to MSU, Gilmore plans to pursue a master's degree in business.

"Hockey really came through for me," he said. "I've done pretty well. I got an education and I have a lot of options.

Gilmore hopes one of those options leads to an eventual contract with the Rangers.

"After my senior season, hopefully, they'll try and sign me," he said. "When I started as a freshman, pro hockey was just a dream."

The same can said of making the Olympic team, but underdogs sometimes beat the odds and surprise people.

Playoff to decide champion

Primo's Pizza and AJ's Lounge will have a playoff game to determine the champion of the Livonia Modified Fast-Pitch Softball League Monday night at Ford Field.

The teams tied for first place with 12-1 records. A score was incorrectly reported last week, indicating Primo's Pizza had lost to Malarkey's Pub and suffered a second defeat.

Primo's won that game to remain one behind AJ's and then gained a share of the regular-season title when Total Foods upset AJ's 8-7 Monday. Primo's beat the Marauders 4-2.

Total Foods led 8-3 going into the seventh inning when AJ's scored five runs to take a 7-4 lead. Total Foods rallied with four in the bottom of the inning and scored the winning run when a fly ball was dropped in the outfield.

STEVE KARRIS was 3-for-4 with two RBI and Joe Walacavags hit a two-run single for Total Foods. Brian Murphy was the winning pitcher and Jerry Stazel the loser. Keith McManaway hit a three-run homer for AJ's.

In other games, Crestwood Lounge blanked ALT 3-0, Bedson Electric won by forfeit over Suburban Door, Malarkey's ripped Pulice Bros. Construction 13-1, Mid-Joy Inc. upset All-American Sports Center 9-8 and Papa Romano's won by forfeit over O'Connell Industries.

Mid-Joy scored two runs in the bottom of the sixth (and last) inning to erase an 8-7 lead by All-American, which scored three times in the top half to take the lead.

Mick Rotter was 3-for-3, with a two-run homer, and four RBI to lead Mid-Joy. Mike Greener, Doug Fulton and Craig Delugas had two hits apiece. Greener also knocked in a run and scored two, and Fulton chalked up two RBI.

Ron Wandzel had three hits, Curt White and Rick Dreher two apiece, for All-American. Tom Lee was the winning pitcher and Al White the loser.

The final standings are: 1. AJ's Lounge and Primo's Pizza, 12-1; 3. All-American, 10-3; 4. Total Foods, 8-5; 5. Suburban Door, Malarkey's and Mid-Joy, 7-6; 8. Marauders, Bedson and Papa Romano's, 6-7; 11. ALT, 3-9-1; 12. Pulice, 3-10; 13. O'Connell, 2-10-1; 14. Crestwood, 2-11.

Craiger trailed 2-1, but tied the score in the seventh when Kapla hit a leadoff triple and advanced to home plate because of a throwing error.

Mike Brannan scored Craiger's first run when he doubled and scored on Matt Abbott's base hit.

Dry Clean also came from behind to beat Twist 'N' Shake. Trailing 8-6 in the bottom of the sixth, Josh Stickney hit a three-run homer for the winning margin.

Nirav Kher got the win, pitching a complete game and striking out 12.

The foursome of Andrew Werner, Nick Szczechowski, Jacob Gray and Adam Wilson was awarded the championship trophy after the Golden Turkeys won five straight games in their division, outscoring their opponents 70-22.

The Golden Turkeys, who played together as a team for the first time in the Macker tournament, bested 19 other teams in their division. Rick Wilson, golf and JV boys basketball coach at Salem High School, coached the team.

● TENNIS LESSONS

Tennis players of all ability levels are welcome to sign up for six weeks of tennis lessons Aug. 19 to Sept. 27. Kristen Harrison of Canton Parks and Recreation Servies and her staff will give the lessons at Griffin Park.

Insurance Exchange takes title

The Insurance Exchange required a rally of major proportions Wednesday to clinch the championship of the Plymouth Modified Fast-Pitch Softball League.

Trailing 12-1 early in the game, the Insurance Exchange made an extraordinary comeback and eventually won 13-12 over Dick Scott Buick. Brian Murphy was the winning pitcher.

Following that game, Curt White pitched and batted Cinnacraz to a 15-5 victory over Dick Scott.

White scattered seven hits and walked five, and he was 3-for-3 with the bat and knocked in two runs.

Rick Dreher and John Longridge had two hits and three RBI apiece for Cinnacraz. Jim Dillon also drove in three runs with a fielder's choice, a sacrifice fly and a single.

Dave Brubaker and Doug Kirkpatrick also had two hits each, along with two and one RBI, respectively. Rodney Shellenberger chipped in one RBI, too.

The four hits by Longridge and Brubaker were doubles.

In the only other game, AJ's Lounge defeated the Trading Post 6-0.

Bowlers getting ready

BOWLING LEAGUE officers have been receiving those familiar manila envelopes from ABC during the past week.

This is the first sign of fall, the time to start getting ready for the coming season. There are the usual league meetings coming up soon. Some newly elected officers are finding out what it's all about to take on the responsibilities of running a bowling league.

That manila envelope contains several important items: the league president handbook, the secretary/treasurer handbook, one copy of the rule book (perhaps the most important piece that ABC provides) and a supply of applications for awards.

Also included in the packet is a letter listing the four league officer meetings. The GDBA will conduct these meetings at the following times and places: Thursday, Aug. 15, Airway Lanes, 4825 Highland Road, Pontiac; Monday, Aug. 19, Ark Sterling Lanes, 33200 Schoenherr; Sterling Heights; Wednesday, Aug. 21, Satellite Bowl, 25451 Michigan, Dearborn Heights; Monday, Aug. 26, Thunderbowl Lanes, 4200 Allen Road, Allen Park.

In addition to receiving scoring record sheets and other material, there will be discussion on the league operations. Association representatives will be in attendance from 3 to 7 p.m. with a question and answer session at 6:30. Another item to be found in the envelope is a folder about ABC sanctioning and the benefits to every bowler from the membership.

The brochure says: "To a bowler — not just someone who bowls."

This is a moot point for most leagues, but for some, there is a point of discussion about each season: "Why pay the extra money for sanctioning?" This may be an even bigger point to ponder this time, since last season's $6 fee has now grown to $9 per person. We all like to save money whenever we can, so consider the benefits from ABC (this also goes for the WIBC ladies) and the local associations.

As far as the money, 66 percent goes to membership benefits, 21 percent for communication and 13 percent for administration.

This is still called your best buy in sports with these services provided by the national organization: 1) all of the league supplies, schedules, standing sheets, rule books, educational materials, etc. . . 2) standardized rules for both leagues and tournaments. Constant updating of the rule book; 3) nearly 1,000,000 awards annually; 4) bonding program to protect the league funds from misuse or theft; 5) sanction materials, direction and consultation to managers of more than 9,000 tournaments each year. An ABC-sanctioned event gives the bowler protection that the event is properly conducted in accordance with ABC rules; 6) research and testing to keep up with today's technology. An elaborate testing facility houses studies on pins, lane finishes and conditioners and various equipment which affect our game; 7) rules interpretation and consultation for a wide variety of situations; 8) a 10-man service staff to travel around the country, working with the local level; 9) financial support to the National Bowling Council which distributes information and statistics to help strengthen the sport; 10) free film library with instructional and educational materials as well as entertainment films for your use at league meetings or end of the season banquet; 11) a monthly magazine to every ABC sanctioned winter league. ABC's communications department helps to make bowlers the most informed sports group in the world; 12) staff and/or funds to support senior citizens, collegiate and youth 10 pin bowlers; 13) participants for international 10 pin competition and is working toward full admittance as a regular sport in the Olympic Games; 14) ABC is instrumental in the support of the bowling "Hall of Fame" in St. Louis.

So do we need sanctioning?

You bet we do! Every bowling league should be a fully-accredited league, with all of the benefits for the members. One new item has been added, incidentally to the list of awards, and that is a wrist watch for anyone bowling a game of 100 pins over average.

Of all the services rendered, perhaps the most indispensable is the annual yearbook which contains the league averages for all sanctioned men and women bowlers within that group. This is important to anyone who ever wants to enter a tournamament.

The yearbook also contains the local records of those whose bowling accomplishments are so noted. Last year's edition contained the stats of all 102,818 league bowlers who competed in 2,822 leagues along with 79,556 women bowlers in 2,409 WIBC sanctioned leagues.

All those who bowled 21 games or more in any league are listed. If anyone ever brags about their great bowling feats, you can look them up in the book and find out if they are for real.

● A new format in ladies bowling leagues is beginning now for the better bowlers with averages of 160 or more. This is a trio match play league and will be competing at Cherry Hill Lanes located at Inkster Road and Cherry Hill.

The match play will provide something new and different for those women bowlers who are seeking more challenging competition with a different format than the usual team play.

There will be an estimated 30 teams, bowling 35 weeks with a 6 p.m. starting time on Thursdays. For more details, contact Rose Vickerman, 31474 Rush, Garden City, 48135, or phone her at 422-5261.

Make your own family cookbook

Aunt Phyllis' Chicken Enchilada Casserole gets rave reviews at every family gathering.

Cousin Nyla's Applesauce Cake always elicits requests for seconds.

Whenever I visit my best friend, John, in Okemos, I always hope his Sauteed Venison Tenderloin with Onions is on the menu.

Most of us have fond memories of special recipes that are linked to a particular relative, friend or social gathering. The food, the people, and the function are equally important elements of any occasion where food will be served.

But sometimes those recipes get lost or misplaced, diminishing food traditions.

After a recent trip to Phoenix, Sedona and the Grand Canyon, I met a small family that had just produced a family cookbook. "Food is the fabric that binds us all together," said Becky Berry, a Mesa, Ariz. resident who conceived the cookbook project as a way to preserve the heritage of her mother's family, the Millers.

When I think of all momma's recipes scribbled on tattered and torn yellow paper, not to mention a compendium of recipe boxes stuffed with clippings and other hand scratched delights, I begin to feel that someday, the monumental task of sorting through will be all mine.

Compiling a family cookbook requires much organization. In addition to requesting family recipes, there is the compilation, sorting, testing, typing, planning the content and format, the design, and finally the production.

Professional cookbook publishers charge varying amounts, but in general, it will cost about $2.50 per book for 200-300 books of 150 recipes each. For 1,000-1,500 cookbooks, with as many as 1,500 recipes each, expect to pay about $5 per book.

Using a print shop, professionally typeset books will cost the most, about $5.50 for 2,000 copies of a 400-page tome. The least expensive way to publish a family cookbook would be to type or computer-input the recipes, then photocopy the pages, and do some in home binding at a cost of about $2 each for 150 recipes.

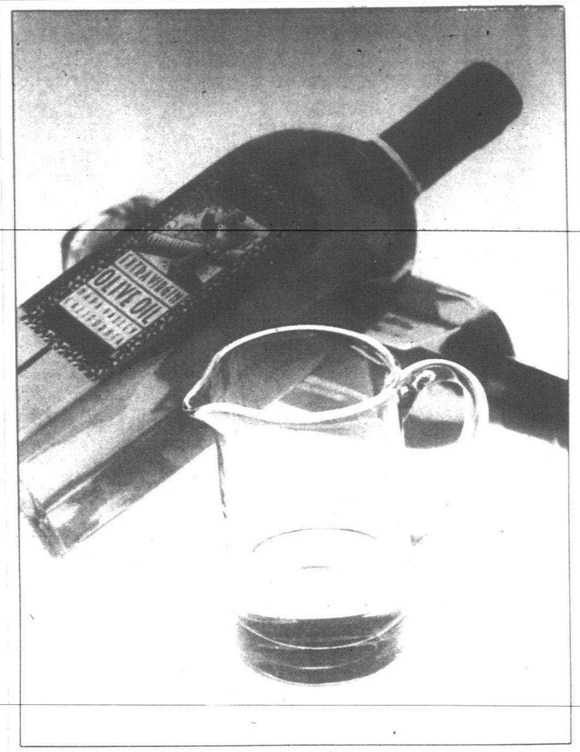
Granted, there aren't a lot of people out there with 1,000 family members who would be willing to plop down a five spot for a family cookbook. If I could only find the time, it would be nothing to distribute a few hundred copies of the Momma Janes' Classics. After contacting a few professional cookbook publishers about data for this story, they all seemed to echo the same phrase: Delegate tasks. Appoint different people to review recipes, test, taste, proofread, illustrate, type and distribute.

The Berry family from Mesa included just about all immediate family members in the project and after an initial order of 300 (plus an additional 50 from a press overrun) sold out within 2 weeks. It wasn't long before friends, neighbors and even the Mesa Public Library gift shop began placing orders and now in its third printing, the book has surpassed 3,000 copies sold.

Of course, you needn't have to go through a professional publisher to write a family cookbook. Search out a copy of "The Family Heirloom Cookbook," G.P. Putnam, New York, copyright, 1990 about $18 which is really a loose-leaf notebook with how to sections, dividers, forms, anecdotes and filler pages of kitchen hints. A rainy day and a good fountain pen, along with this book, is all that's keeping you from creating your own family heirloom.

STRIKING IT RICH AND TASTY WITH OLIVE OIL

By Geri Rinschler
special writer



THERE'S HARDLY a day that goes by when I'm not cooking with olive oil. Whether it's sauteeing vegetables in a pure olive oil for a summer frittata or mixing an extra virgin olive oil with vinegar and herbs for my very best salad dressing. Olive oil is the most precious commodity in my kitchen.

Why refer to an olive oil as a commodity? Although an everyday, pure olive oil such as Berio, Plagninol or Sasso is relatively moderately priced at $8, or $9 for 1.5 liters, an elite, extra virgin olive oil such as Badia a Coltibuono costs about $20 for a ½ liter bottle. Twenty dollars for a ½ liter bottle may be considered extravagant. Is it worth it? Well, that's a matter of taste!

WITH THE new awareness of healthy food preparation, there has been a proliferation of olive oils in the grocery store and gourmet markets. Choosing an olive oil has been elevated to an art much like that of appreciating fine wine. No doubt, choosing the right one has probably already begun to bewilder your mind, as well as your palate. Understanding how olive oil is processed, and the criteria for labeling, will help you to select the oils which best suit your needs.

Olive trees thrive mostly in Mediterranean countries. About 95 percent of the world crop comes from the Mediterranean. A small percentage comes from California. And although Italy may be synonymous with olive oil to most of us, Spain actually leads in world production. Yet, to most gourmets and food professionals, Italian olive oil is the finest on earth, and I can't disagree.

THERE ARE over 60 varieties of olive trees. The flavor of each of them varies upon the specific soil content and climate. Generally, the oils from Northern Italy are full-bodied, velvety smooth with a strong olive flavor which is often peppery. Olive oils from the south of France are golden in color, lighter in weight than the northern Italian oils, and often taste fruity. They're ideal when blended with a raspberry vinegar for a salad, and especially nice when used for a mayonnaise or mayonnaise-based sauce. Spanish oils are generally full-bodied, or heavier than the Italian oils with an earthy flavor which is often described as coarse. One exception is L'Estronell, an extra-virgin oil from Lerida, in northern Spain. It's smooth, has a good olive flavor, and retails for about $7 a ½ liter.

Olive oils not only differ in flavor, quality, color and price, but also in their use. The super premium, estate bottle oils are handmade from the harvesting to the grinding of the olives between stones for extraction of the oil. These are extra-virgin oil with up to 1 percent acidity, they're sometimes found in grocery stores, but more often in gourmet food shops like the Merchant of Vino (Birmingham, Troy and Southfield), Williams-Sonoma (Somerset Mall, Troy and Laurel Park Mall, Livonia) J. Hirt and Rocky Peanut Co. (Eastern Market, Detroit).

THESE AND other extra virgin olive oils should be reserved for salads, or drizzled over a brushetta appetizer of toasted, crunchy bread, fresh sliced tomatoes and fresh basil leaves or tossed with garlic into a pot of hot linguine and grated Parmesan cheese. High heat destroys the delicate flavor of extra-virgin oils to say the least.

Marc Joanna, manager of Birmingham's Merchant of Vino is always on the lookout for the newest in top quality olive oils. For everyday sauteeing and pan frying, Joanna suggests cooking with pure olive oil such as Berio or Colavita.

"Since most extra-virgin oils have a low smoking point, around 300 degrees, using an expensive oil for cooking is a waste of money as well as of a fine oil," he said. "Although, I do recommend using extra-virgin oil with some delicate foods which burn easily, like garlic." Pure olive oils like peanut oil have a smoking range just over 400 degrees up to 460 degrees.

An extra virgin oil legally can not be extracted with the use of heat or chemicals, those designated extra virgin can only be pressed once either by hand or mechanically. Some are filtered for clarity and some are not dependent upon the philosophy of the bottler.

Pure olive oil, on the other hand, is an oil which consists of a blend of refined olive oil and virgin olive oil. The process of refining the oil can be either a chemical or a physical process.

Premium-estate bottled extra-virgin olive oils like this one are often found in gourmet shops. Olive oils courtesy of Williams Sonoma, Laurel Park Place, Livonia.

TWO TYPES OF OIL

Dividing olive oils into two categories for cooking/sauteeing and eating may be oversimplifying the subject for many connoisseurs but it can be a helpful tool at the market. Here's a list of favorite olive oils available in the Detroit Metro area.

Pure Olive Oils:
(Cooking-baking-grilling)
Philippo Berio, Italy - Moderately priced
Plagniol, France - Expensive

Extra Virgin Oils:
(Uncooked sauces-tosses-salad dressings and dips)
Ranieri, Italy - Moderately priced
L'Estronell, Spain - Moderately priced
Premium-Estate Bottled Extra-Virgin Oils:
Badia a Coltibuono, Italy - Expensive
Mancianti, Italy - Expensive
Villa Nicola, Italy - Expensive

HELPFUL TIPS:

- Light is harmful to olive oil, so store it in a cool dark cupboard.
- Most oils should last six months when stored properly.
- Oils kept in green glass bottles with screw-top caps will last longer than those in clear bottles or cork or plastic stoppers.
- It's better to purchase small bottles if you're using the oil sparingly.
- If the oil has turned rancid, it will smell and taste very bitter.
- When outdoor temperatures reach above 85 degrees you may want to store the oil in the refrigerator if you don't have a wine cellar.

Pepino's: Garlic by any other name

DISHING IT OUT

Ahhh, garlic. Surely there can be no greater measure of a good Italian restaurant than the depth of its involvement with that heavenly plant. Ahhh, garlic. Ahhh, Pepino's.

Pepino's Restaurant, at the corner of Pontiac Trail and Walled Lake Drive in Walled Lake, is a good, family-style Italian eatery. While its popularity is currently keeping customers lined up on Friday and Saturday nights, the meal is still well worth the wait.

THE DECOR of the small, dimly lit restaurant speaks volumes. Plastic tablecloths and plastic flowers let diners know that the restaurant is interested in a casual and comfortable clientele. The smallish restaurant has three rooms, one with cozy booths — usually reserved as the nonsmoking section — and the other two with varying size tables.

The restaurant is noisy, and at times it can be a chore to hear from one end of a table of six to the other. The bar, where many of the waiting diners while away their time, stretches across the main room, making it unfeasible as an "intimate" dining spot.

But diners come to Pepino's for its friendly atmosphere — and the food. And here they are not disappointed.

Dinner starts with a heaping basket of typical garlic bread and breadsticks, and the not-so-typical excellent cold northern bean salad. Appetizers range from $2.95 to $6.50. The sauteed mushrooms with Madeira, with accompanying garlic of course, was very good. The angel hair pasta with pesto had good flavor and texture.

ENTREES RANGE from $15.95 to $19.95 and include six specials. On a recent Saturday, those ranged from baked scrod with casino butter and charbroiled prawns with jambalaya rice, to pan fried liver, onions and bacon, baked chicken with rosemary and garlic, roast prime rib of beef au jus and charbroiled smoked pork chops with sauerkraut.

Specials and menu entrees come with soup or salad. The dinner salads are the all-too-typical iceberg lettuce and tomato wedge. The soups, on the other hand, are truly a labor of love. The black bean, available year round, is thick and flavorful. The minestrone is a flavorful blend of fresh vegetables in a good thick stock.

Pepino's best known entree is the extremely popular pan fried boneless rainbow trout. Restaurant owner/chef Joe Bernardi said the Walled Lake eatery sells more trout than any other restaurant in Michigan. The recipe for the delicate coating on the light fish is "my own". Bernardi said, keeping mum about details other than to say it was "developed over the years".

THE RESTAURANT has a good selection of fish, including fresh Lake Superior whitefish; fresh Norwegian salmon charbrolled with casino butter; and lemon sole Vernique sauteed with wine, lemon and white grapes.

Veal lovers will not be disappointed. A recent evening found the popular Veal Pepino's, sauteed with green peppers, mushrooms and onions — tender and flavorful.

Mayonnaise makes summer fare sparkle

Looking for an easy way to add that gourmet touch to meals? For creative inspiration, start with America's favorite condiment — mayonnaise.

By combining mayonnaise with just a few simple ingredients, you can prepare fabulous accompaniments for sandwiches and grilled meats, poultry, seafood and vegetables. Flavored mayonnaises make summertime meals sparkle they're new, easy, quick and delicious.

'Old-World chardonnay'

Napa Valley vinyard offers estate-bottled wine

focus on wine
Eleanor and Ray Heald

Sequoia Grove Vineyards is just north of Robert Mondavi Vineyards and Cakebread Cellars along Highway 29 in Napa Valley.

Until the 1987 crush, the winery was housed in a remodeled, century-old barn, nestled among a small stand of towering sequoia trees.

In the early 1970s, owner Jim Allen had been looking for a place to grow grapes and make wine.

He considered Virginia and participated in a grape growing feasibility study in New Mexico. Making wine in New Mexico became a reality, but with grapes shipped from California.

For four years, the winery functioned in the Allen family kitchen, where Allen produced California cabernet sauvignon, chardonnay and zinfandel.

FINALLY, ALLEN and his wife, Barbara, decided to be practical and move to California to continue winemaking near a reliable grape source.

Sequoia Grove grows 25 acres of grapes (chardonnay, cabernet sauvignon, merlot and cabernet franc) in the vineyard surrounding the winery. Wines from this parcel are estate bottled.

Other grapes used to make the wines that have attracted an enthusiastic following are bought. The chardonnay is sourced from the Carneros region and the cabernet from Napa Valley.

Sequoia Grove estate-bottled chardonnays are made in a Montrachet style from 35-year-old vines. They are complex, layered and structured with oak nuances.

"I want a classic, old-world chardonnay," Allen said. "It's important to me that the Sequoia Grove style showcase regional charm.

"I also want the wines to age well. Consequently, malolactic fermentation is avoided."

SEQUOIA GROVE'S Carneros appellation designated chardonnays are intentionally crisper and fruitier with earlier approachability.

Acids are higher due to the Carneros climatic influence, and the wine as a whole is tight-knit with upfront fruit and a crisp finish — a perfect accompaniment to shellfish.

"Monstrous wines are not my favorites."

TO AVOID a big, tannic style, Allen applies his winemaking tools to the Napa-designated cabernet sauvignons to keep them immediately supple and simultaneously complex. They finish with delicacy and depth.

"Estate wines, deserving a separate bottling should be unique."

Sequoia Grove Estate Cabernet Sauvignon is consciously made as a Bordeaux blend (90 percent cabernet sauvignon blended with 10 percent cabernet franc, merlot and petit verdot).

A 21-day extended maceration has given the wine complexity with a delicate finish.

"AGING CABERNET in small oak cooperage allows the wine to extract wood tannins that make the finish hard.

"Following fermentation, all Sequoia Grove cabernet spends the first six to eight months in large, neutral oak upright tanks.

WINE SELECTIONS OF THE WEEK

Sequoia Grove Vineyards specializes in only two varietals, chardonnay and cabernet sauvignon. These super-premium wines are either estate bottled or appellation designated, and reflect the hand-crafting of winemaker/owner Jim Allen. The following are current releases available in this market: 1988 Carneros Chardonnay, ($19); 1988 Estate-Bottled Chardonnay, ($22); 1987 Napa Cabernet Sauvignon, ($20); and 1987 Estate-Bottled Cabernet Sauvignon, ($27).

"After this, the wine is aged further in small cooperage of which only 10 percent is new oak."

SINCE ALLEN was wearing the hats of winemaker, CEO and marketing director at Sequoia Grove, it became necessary to search for a wine marketing company.

"Our efforts led us to Kobrand, a respected group of professionals, which had been looking for an investment opportunity in California for 10 years.

"Now, they not only market Sequoia Grove wines, but have become limited partners in the winery."

In hindsight, it may now be said that Kobrand found an established winery with an outstanding product, but one that lacked the finances needed to market it.

The infusion of Kobrand's capital allowed the Allens to build a new winery behind the century-old barn — the first in Napa Valley to have a below-ground barrel-aging cellar.

Grilled steak makes 2 healthy meals

Fire up the grill! A backyard barbecue makes healthy eating delicious, fun and easy.

Grilling requires no additional fat (such as butter or oil), so it's a heartwise way to prepare your favorite foods. Even the most popular summer pick-grilled steak — can be part of a low-fat diet.

Health experts recommend choosing lean beef cuts such as top sirloin, tenderloin or top round. Be sure to trim all visible fat before cooking, and remember that a serving is three ounces of cooked meat — not a half pound steak!

For a simple grillside accompaniment, pair fresh vegetables and herbs with cholesterol-free noodles. Tender and fluffy, they make a low-fat base for side dishes and salads, creating a healthful alternative to mayonnaise and sour cream-laden cole slaw and potato salad.

For two heart-healthy meals in one, fix Double Batch Sesame Sirloin for your family. Serve part of the juicy steak for dinner, and use the remaining steak and reserved marinade for Sesame Steak Salad the next day. Since the meat and dressing are already prepared, the salad takes just minutes to toss together. Steak strips, squash, mushrooms, pea pods and onions combine with cholesterol-free noodles and the reserved marinade for a cool summer salad delight.

DOUBLE BATCH SESAME SIRLOIN

¼ cup reduced-sodium soy sauce
¼ cup rice vinegar or white wine vinegar
2 tablespoons Oriental sesame oil
4 teaspoons sugar
2 teaspoons grated fresh ginger
2 garlic cloves, crushed
2 pounds boneless sirloin steak, cut 1-inch thick, well-trimmed
½ package (6 ounces) cholesterol-free noodles

Combine soy sauce, vinegar, oil, sugar, ginger and garlic. Place sirloin steak in plastic bag; add half of soy sauce marinade; reserve remaining marinade for salad. Close bag and marinate in refrigerator up to 6 hours; turning occasionally. Remove steak from marinade; discard marinade. Place steak on grill over medium coals. Grill 16 to 20 minutes, turning once for rare to medium. Meanwhile, cook No Yolks according to package directions without salt. Drain noodles. Remove steak from grill; reserve half of steak for salad. Slice remaining steak and serve with noodles.

Note: If desired, steak may be broiled. Place steak on rack in broiler pan, 3 to 4 inches from heat. Broil 14 to 18 minutes for rare to medium.

Fresh vegetables, lean sirloin steak and cholesterol-free noodles make Seasame Steak Salad healthy and delicious.

SESAME STEAK SALAD

½ package (6 ounces) cholesterol-free noodles
1 pound reserved Sesame Sirloin (see recipe above)
Reserved soy sauce marinade (see recipe above)
1 cup thinly sliced yellow squash
1 cup sliced mushrooms
1 cup blanched pea pods
½ cup sliced green onions
1 teaspoon toasted sesame seeds

Cook noodles according to package directions without salt. Meanwhile, cut steak into 2x1x¼-inch strips. Drain noodles. Toss with reserved marinade, steak strips, squash, mushrooms, pea pods, onions and sesame seeds. Chill before serving. Makes 6 (1-½ cup) servings.

Paula pounds out quips

By Bob Sadler
special writer

In what will probably be the most bizarre comedy double bill of the summer, Paula Poundstone comes to Pine Knob this week as an opener for Alan King.

Alan King? Well, he's a funny guy and all, but we're talking two different audiences here — "sixtysomething" vs. "thirtysomething."

"Well, I've thought of the same thing," Poundstone said with a laugh during an interview last week from her house in Los Angeles. "It might be a problem, but I hope not. I try to think of every possible disaster that can cross my mind."

She had absolutely no idea how the pairing was arranged, she said. It's only a two-night deal, with the Pine Knob show being repeated the next day in Chicago.

It could be an interesting couple of days for Poundstone. But if anybody can handle it, she can.

Her ability to adapt to audiences and perform a different show each night has earned her respect and accolades from her peers, critics and audiences alike. Poundstone was the 1989 American Comedy Award winner for Best Female Stand-Up and has made countless network and cable television appearances.

"I'VE BEEN at this quite a while, and I have a lot of material. It's not like I never repeat anything. It has a lot to do with the audience on a given night. Just out of sheer boredom, you have to rotate your material, you know."

Poundstone also had some opinions about playing a larger outdoor venue, vs. the more intimate comedy club.

"I think everybody's act works better (in a small club). If you could see Bruce Springsteen in a small place, I'm sure you'd do it. But I just did an outdoor thing in Cincinnati last week. It can be done."

HER ACT can be straight observational quips about life in the '90s, or sometimes she can go completely warped.

Body language is a key element in Poundstone's delivery. She has been known to perform her material draped over stools, wrapped in the microphone cord or just plain flat on her back.

The news is always ripe pickings for material, and Poundstone likes to inject her opinions into what's happening.

"I feel that when you have someone's attention, it's probably a good idea to say something somewhat worthwhile."

George Bush is one of her favorite topics lately, and she is definitely not among his fans. Poundstone jokingly alluded to thinking about running for president next year, since none of the Democrats seem to be mounting a significant challenge.

"PAT PAULSEN (the comedian who has run a mock presidential campaign in seemingly the last dozen leap years) and I were thinking about running together."

Talk about an alliterated ticket.

Poundstone thinks she has figured out what prompts the American public to vote the way it has for the last three elections (she's not much of a Reagan fan, either).

"People think that someone who is not devious cannot deal in world politics. I think people are comforted by the fact that they lie."

DESPITE HER disdain for Bush, she did conclude her political musings on a more hopeful note.

"Now that Pee-wee Herman is a threat to every man, woman and child in America, the heck with Bush — it's this guy we have to worry about now."

Paula Poundstone performs with Alan King 8 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 7, at Pine Knob Music Theatre in Clarkston. Tickets are available at the Pine Knob and Palace box offices, all Ticketmaster outlets or charge by phone at 645-6666.

Comedian Paula Poundstone's endless stream of material makes her act a natural for large outdoor venues.

RUDY WHITWORTH

A find like the figurehead on the bow of a Great Lakes' shipwreck is good reason for David Trotter of Undersea Research Associates to smile.

By Pat Schutte
special writer

The vast waters of the Great Lakes offer many things for many people. From recreation to industry, we all benefit in one way or another from the world's largest fresh water reserve.

To several area residents, the Great Lakes represent much more than just a haven for sportsmen. To them, the waters hold historic tales of daring and adventurous people who, challenged the sometimes deadly waters.

Undersea Research Associates, based in Caton Township, is a non-profit organization that researches, locates and documents Great Lakes shipwrecks. The group is led by David Trotter. An employee of the Ford Motor Co. during the week, come summer, his weekends are spent on the waters of Lakes Huron and Erie in a neverending search for missing shipwrecks.

"It's been a progressive effect on my diving," said Trotter who's been diving for 25 years, the last 15 of which have been devoted to Great Lakes shipwrecks. "The interest in descending on something that no one has ever seen before is tremendous."

Trotter and his associates have found more than 40 "virgin" (they are the first to discover them) shipwrecks and have dove down to 20 of them.

UTILIZING WHAT is known as a side scan sonar, the research team painstakingly charts the bottom of the lake, looking for abnormalities that may or may not turn out to be a sunken ship.

But even before they hit the water, a lot of research has been done in libraries, piecing together information to get a general idea where the vessel went down.

"We begin with library research on the wreck," said Dr. Werner H. Wahl of Bloomfield Hills, affectionately known as Doc within the group. "Utilizing all kinds of books, maritime records and even old newspaper articles, we try to find out who was on it, where it was going and what it was carrying."

And one very important aspect of the team to note right off the bat is that they are not a salvage team — what's on the bottom is left on the bottom.

"Removing artifacts has never been an interest of mine," said Trotter, speaking for the whole group. "We feel this is right for maritime history. An artifact removed from a ship is out of place somewhere else."

During the building of many Midwestern cities, there were as many as 4,000 ships on the Great Lakes, hauling everything from commodities, packaged goods and building materials to the people who did the work.

ACCORDING TO Trotter, the wrecks that went down in shallow water back then were salvaged, the deep water ones were let go. All of the ships then were made of wood planking, so with the freezing and thawing of the Great Lakes, the ships in shallow water were ripped apart.

As a result, it's the deep water wrecks that Trotter and his men look for.

"Unlike the old salt water wrecks, fresh water wrecks lie in a remarkable state of preservation," he said. "They're phenomenal time capsules."

The most interesting wreck the research team has explored is that of the Hunter Savidge. Without warning, a Lake Huron whirlwind squall struck the masted schooner at 4 p.m. Aug. 20, 1899.

"In a terrifying 10 seconds, the ship was spun around and capsized, trapping the captain's wife and the wife and daughter of the owner in the cabin of the ship as she went down," Trotter said.

What made the wreck just a bit more interesting to the men who found it on Nov. 8, 1988, was discovering that some of the descendants of the captain and the owner were still living in the Sebewaing area. As a result, they put together a special presentation for the families.

While the team hasn't come across something like a sea monster, they have come across some pretty startling things in the murky depths of the lakes.

"ON THE WRECK of the 25-foot steamer Kamloops (that went down in 1927 in the icy waters near Isle Royale in Lake Superior) we were diving on the ship and I entered the engine room," Trotter said. "There I found that the engineer was still on duty."

"David and I go down 130 feet, sometimes over 200, along a line and into complete darkness," said Wahl, who has a doctoral degree in nuclear chemistry. "The line is grappled into something and until you reach the bottom, you really have no idea what you're tied into."

Once on the wreck, in which the diver sometimes have only 18-20 inches of visibility, they begin to take pictures. Not of each other next to the anchor or something, but they creep along the hull taking what amounts to a mosaic of photographs.

"Due to limited visibility, because of silt, a wide-angle lens can be blurry," said Rudy Whitworth of Westland, an engineer with Ford whose been with Trotter and Wahl since 1978. "We utilized macro photography due to the sharpness of definition it has when photographing something many times from as little as 20 inches or less away."

The photographs are then given to Great Lakes marine artist Robert McGreevy.

"I try to make some sense of it," said McGreevy. "The wreck looks like a lumber yard on the bottom. It becomes a real detective story."

McGREEVY STARTS with a pencil sketch, then uses lays (transparent film over the original) to apply more information. The finished product, which takes six months to complete, is done with pen and ink.

When something made of wood has been underwater, sometimes for close to 100 years, some of the information important to the drawing can be missing. McGreevy avoids filling in those blanks.

"I scrupulously avoid ad-libbing," he said. "If we can't find it, we leave it blank until we find it. And sometimes, by looking at old photographs or paintings, it can give the guys an idea of what should be there and they'll look for it and eventually find it."

From the research to the hunt to the discovery and final drawing, all that's left is to present the findings to the public. Trotter puts together what he calls "multi-media" programs, slide shows set to music and narrated by himself.

He's done hundreds of the shows, mostly for libraries and historical societies.

DAVID TROTTER

Rudy Whitworth explores the carvings on the bow of a shipwreck discovered by Undersea Research Associates.

By Pat Schutte
special writer

The crew of Undersea Research Associates spends thousands of hours on the waters of Lakes Huron and Erie in search of missing shipwrecks.

The most important feature on board their 28-foot boat is the Klein side-scan sonar. With this piece of equipment, they can get an accurate picture of the lake's bottom.

Nicknamed the "Fish," the unit sends out sonar waves that bounce off the bottom as it is actually dragged 600 feet behind the boat. The incoming information is delivered via a cable to another unit that records the topography of the lake bottom.

And once the dry land research as to the whereabouts of a wreck is done, the tedious and seemingly neverending search is on.

"It's like plowing a field," said Dr. Werner H. Wahl whose library research lends itself to developing a grid-like pattern for the boat to follow. "Back and forth and back and forth."

The team leaves port from Port Sanilac with 36 hours of fuel. If the weather is right, they'll search for 24 hours straight.

"We've covered as much as 50 square miles and as little as one square mile," said David Trotter.

Then, like a lightning bolt, it hits.

"All of a sudden somebody yells bingo and everybody drops what they're doing and runs to the sonar screen," said Wahl. "In the intrigue of the search, we spend a lot of time and frustration for a couple of minutes of ecstasy."

Once they confirm that the item on the screen may be a shipwreck, the team gets into their diving gear and heads down a grappling line into the dark waters of the lake.

"In 170 feet of water, you sometimes can't see three feet," said Trotter. "On good days, you can see 10 feet."

This is where the danger comes into play for these adventurers. Sometimes, Trotter and his colleagues have to dive close to 200 feet, occasionally deeper, in order to reach a wreck.

"We have gone down as deep as 230 feet which is risky," Trotter said. "At depths like that, there is a very thin edge between disaster and safety."

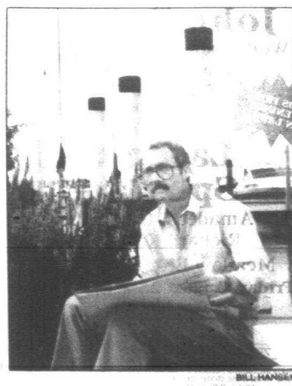
One thing that has an adverse effect on the divers at those depths is what's known as nitrogen narcosis or "Martini's Law."

"The pressure at depths over the port diving level (130 feet max) creates mental impairment," Trotter said. "And the deeper you go, the worse it gets."

One hundred feet is equal to having one martini and every 33 feet thereafter is equal to one more. So at 230 feet, the diver has five martinis' worth of impairment to deal with.

"That doesn't mean that we're looking out for trouble," Trotter said. "You just have to understand the risks the deeper you go."

Artist's touch give shipwrecks a new life



BILL HANSEN

Robert McGreevy has parlayed his love of the big ships and talent for art into being one of the premiere Great Lakes marine artists.

By Pat Schutte
special writer

Of all the members of Undersea Research Associates, Great Lakes marine artist Robert McGreevy's background in ships may date back the farthest.

Born in Belfast, Northern Ireland, McGreevy grew up in the shadows of the Harland & Wolffs Shipyard. Many of the homes in his neighborhood were built from scraps from the shipyard and his father, grandfather and uncle literally worked their fingers to the bone in the shipyard.

"When my grandfather retired, I don't think that he had a complete finger on either hand," said the Grosse Pointe Woods resident.

It was at Harland and Wolffs that members of the McGreevy family worked on the first of two classic maritime disasters — the Titantic. If it hadn't sunk, McGreevy said, "it would still be the most beautiful ship ever built." His latest work of art is on the Titantic. It debuted Aug. 1.

When McGreevy immigrated to the United States, his father and uncle were recruited to work for the Great Lakes Engineering Works in River Rouge. Ironically, they came over to work on a new Great Lakes super freighter, the Edmund Fitzgerald. His uncle sailed on the "Big Fitz" for a number of years.

"I guess it was just fate that they were involved with two of the greatest shipwrecks of all time," said McGreevy. "Luck of the Irish, I don't know. I guess I've never been able to come up with a snappy answer."

McGREEVY'S WATER color print of the Edmund Fitzgerald remains as one of his most popular.

McGreevy has worked with Undersea Research Associates for about 10 years. When he's not re-creating what things look like on the bottom of a lake, he's designing stuff for Chysler Corp. As an industrial sculpture, one of McGreevy's creations was the ram's head for the hood of Dodge trucks.

Much of the painting and drawing he does is in a setting that definitely lends itself to what he's putting on the canvas. His studio is in a home that sits on top of a 100-foot bluff overlooking the Thumb Shipwreck Preserve on Lake Huron.

"On an especially rough day, I can picture the ships, taking waves over the pilot house and get a real feeling for why so many ships sunk in this area," he said.

When he was doing his artwork in his Grosse Pointe Woods home, McGreevy couldn't get a feel for what the ships had to go through in rough waters. Now, with his second home and studio just north of Port Sanilac, the dangers of the Great Lakes are reflected in his work.

WORKING WITH David Trotter to create a picture of something underneath the water is a bit different than painting ships while they're sailing. Like Trotter, McGreevy does his homework before the divers bring back the photographs.

"Say, if they've found an 1800s steamer, I'll do as much research as possible on that class of ship so I can give the divers an idea of what to look for," he said. "I'll make a rough drawing ahead of time on what's supposed to be there — certain things that have to be in certain places.

"And sometimes I even go out on the boat and interview the divers when they come up from the wreck."

McGreevy's next big adventure in painting is a ship called the Atlantic, a steamer that carried immigrants between Buffalo and Detroit. If the name of the ship sounds familiar, that's because it's the same boat that a California salvage company found in the Canadian waters of Lake Ontario.

The painting, in which McGreevy took an old painting (there are no known photographs of the Atlantic) and actually turned the ship, will feature the Atlantic passing in front of Detroit's Michigan Central Railroad docks.

From a boy growing up in the shadows of a shipyard, McGreevy has parlayed his love of the big ships and his talent for art into being one of the premiere Great Lakes marine artists.

"It is doing something that you feel has some sort of historical impact," he said. "By doing it accurately, we clear up a lot of misconceptions about a wreck and set the record straight for future historians."

Cat's on the prowl

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Forget disoriented felines. Confuse a Cat can leave the human head in perpetual vertigo as well.

The band, aptly named after a skit from "Monty Python's Flying Circus," plays a skittering blend of folk rock, tempered in new music sensibilities.

Lush harmonies waft above plaintive guitar strumming serve to make Confuse a Cat's music somewhat spasmodic yet quaintly seductive. Each number on the band's five-song demo tape is a sealed consciousness.

Quite clear in this, though, is the anti-pretentious, anti-entertainment platform from which they work. For this, Confuse a Cat will gladly display their flaws if it bears the fruit of a good, original song.

There's more than a ring of authenticity when bassist Jenny Gabel says, "We don't write songs to impress people. We don't try to please them. We just come up with what we come up with and hopefully they'll like it."

Gabel sums up things, puts the lug nuts on the wheel of moving thought whereas singer-guitarist Jim Miller's mind is constantly spinning.

The 1987 Livonia Franklin graduate sits with his legs prop up, carefully sipping his coffee and cautiously gauging his responses in the Looney Baker doughnut shop. He's P.C. (perpetually courteous).

"I like cats," Miller said. "I'm allergic to them. They're attracted to me, though, for some reason."

FOR THE record, none of the four members of Confuse a Cat has a feline. Here's the rest of the story.

Confuse a Cat can be traced back to an ad in the Metro Times through which Cathy Connell met Miller in 1988. Together, they wrote songs and added Jenny Gabel. The band worked under the original name of Magpie. The name only lasted for a couple of weeks.

Miller, Connell and Gabel, another 1987 graduate of Livonia Franklin, continued to write songs and performed acoustically on the streets of Ann Arbor before they found a drummer. David Byrd of Rochester Hills joined on and Confuse a Cat went on the prowl.

Confuse a Cat, named after a skit from "Monty Python's Flying Circus," includes Jenny Gabel, Jim Miller, Cathy Connell and David Byrd.

'We don't write songs to impress people. We don't try to please them. We just come up with what we come up with and hopefully they'll like it.'
— Jenny Gabel

So far, the band has primarily gigged as an opening act at such clubs as 3-D, Hamtramck Pub and Cross Street Station.

The neophyte outfit even put in an appearance at the vaunted Old Miami, known as a meeting place of Vietnam veterans where one refrains from mentioning Jane Fonda's name.

In all, Confuse a Cat's approaches everything as a learning experience.

"Right now, we're just stumbling around," said Miller, who attends Wayne State University. "We're a young band, trying to find our identity."

EVER SO careful not to betray their influences, Confuse a Cat doesn't leave an accessible trail. Miller mentions he likes the words of Bob Dylan, Elvis Costello, Bono of U2 along with the kinetic distortion of Sonic Youth.

Gabel also teams with Connell occasionally to write the lyrics such as on the rather mesmerizing guitar fractured number, "Ten Green Signs." Miller comes up with a majority of the words, some of which might be described as searching the outer limits of the soul.

On "Shake," one of five songs on the band's demo tape, Miller screeches "shake, shake your pretty thing" while Connell counters with "Fill my mouth up with sand/Stick a pin up my spine/Bring me down one more time."

"I don't try to analyze his writing too much," said Connell, a 1987 graduate of Troy High School.

Miller illustrates the typical new music connoisseur. Weaned on AOR radio fare, he was converted on a camping trip. A friend brought along a batch of tapes of non-WRIF or WLLZ bands, such as the Ramones, and they echoed through the woods.

Gabel comes from a classical music background, proficient in the violin, cello and accordion. "She's Our Brian Jones," Miller said.

BUT IT was Gabel's brother who handed her bass and an amp with the firm instructions to join a rock'n'roll band. From a creative aspect, she couldn't have made a better choice.

Confuse a Cat spends as much time crafting songs as playing them live. One of the better forums for their disjointed folk-inspired musings turned out to be on the streets of Ann Arbor.

"As far as honing us, it forced us to listen to one another and it pointed out one thing: We needed a drummer," Miller said. "We were all over the place musically."

And now?

"You can really see a change in the music since we first started," Gabel said. "It's more polished."

'Angel' captures Frame's inspiration

By John Monaghan
special writer

tickets please
John Monaghan

Classmates affectionately call her "Fuzzy." They persuade her to do something, anything with the mop of red hair that crowns her head like a frizzy halo.

But they have no luck. Nor can they force her to "mix" with the rest of the world. Her terminal shyness causes people to label her not just anti-social but schizophrenic.

"An Angel at My Table," the story of New Zealand author Janet Frame, didn't easily translate to the screen. Jane Campion, who directed the critically acclaimed "Sweetie" in 1988, cleverly weaves her way into the mental workings of a creative and intelligent introvert.

Frame, still alive and working today, is played by three different actresses in three separate sections. In "To the Is-land," we meet her as a child — one of five children of a working class family during the Depression.

She sleeps huddled together in a big bed with three older sisters. Though she spends a fair amount of time standing in the corner at school, she picks up the writing bug early.

We meet the various influences in her life, from her hard-working parents to her teachers, who range from empty authoritarians to truly inspired educators.

WHEN IT comes time for Frame to enter the world of teaching, she freezes. "Just pretend I'm not here," says the gruff inspector who arrives to sit in on her class. She stares at the blackboard and chalk in her meticulously prepared classroom and can't utter a sound.

A handsome professor, who Frame has a crush on, advises her to enter a hospital for observation. Over the next eight years, Frame undergoes more than 200 jolts of shock therapy. She would have died there if not for her writing, which actually gets published while she suffers in the hospital.

The final section, "The Envoy From Mirror City," finds Frame still shy, still nervous, embarking on a writing trip to England and Spain, sponsored by a literary grant. She reluctantly enters the Bohemian world of affected English-speaking writers who reside there.

Kerry Fox, in her feature film debut, plays the adult Frame with quiet power and intensity. Though the film does employ voice-over narration, the filmmakers rely on the woman's pained and expressive face.

Director Campion opens the film with a shot from high above, craning down into the lives of the Frame family. She bathes these early sequences in darkened, slightly off-key colors, like a faded family photograph.

YET, THIS is not showy filmmaking. Where the bizarre "Sweetie" was favorably compared to the works of David Lynch, "Angel at My Table" resembles "My Left Foot" for the earthy quality of its storytelling. Campion says she wanted to capture the calculated simplicity of her subject's writing and succeeds brilliantly Subtle moments stick with you. When the rest of the girls are ecstatic over the atomic bomb blast and the end of World War II, Frame looks on in horror and pain. You catch her gazing longingly at the happy classmates and family members who so easily socialize and find love.

"My only romance is in poetry and literature," she confesses.

Playing for a second weekend at the Detroit Film Theatre, "An Angel at My Table" is the story of any talented, insecure person who doesn't readily fit into society. The story of her inspiration, suffering, and eventual triumph result in the year's most stirring film.
