Returns after week in 'wilds'

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Amanda, a Siamese cat, surprised her owners in Canton when she made her way back home after a week of being lost.

"You hear about stories like this, but you can't believe it when it happens," said Amanda's owner, Theresa Fliss.

"She's never been away before. And I'm still amazed she made it home."

THE WILD ESCAPADE began when Jerry Fliss and his son, Jeff, 14, took Amanda to Canton Center Animal Hospital, north of Ford Road on Canton Center Aug. 15. Amanda apparently wasn't pleased about the distemper shot she got during her visit.

Jerry put the 9-year-old cat in the car and by the time he walked around to the driver's side, Amanda had begun her adventure.

"Just in a flash she was gone," Fliss said.

Meanwhile, Jerry, Theresa and Jeff, searched the wooded area near the veterinarian's at all hours looking for Amanda. All they came up with was two raccoons, a skunk and six cats living near a fast food restaurant.

"We thought eventually she would be going up there to visit those cats," Fliss said.

SHE ADDED that they were especially worried, because Amanda had been declawed and she would be at a disadvantage in squabbles with wildlife.

One week after she ran away, Aug. 22, Amanda meandered up to her owners' house 2½ miles away in Windsor Park subdivision. Amazingly enough Amanda had to cross Sheldon and Warren roads.

"She made all the right turns," Fliss said. "To this day, I can't believe it."

When she came "she was sitting on the front porch, like she always does," she said. "She's back to being her same ornery self."

Fliss' son had some words of advice for the tired, beleaguered cat after she returned: "Next time take the ride."

While cataloging a Plymouth Township World War II veteran's souvenirs, a local auctioneer made an eerie discovery.

Among other war souvenirs, the vet — apparently one of the first Allied troops to enter German concentration camps — had kept a jar with teeth and other small bones of concentration camp victims.

JOE CARLI, who runs J.C. Auctioneers of Plymouth Township, said other veterans he's talked to say it wasn't unusual for war vets to keep such souvenirs.

"They said you had to be there to fully understand that," Carli said.

Carli said an uncle contacted the Holocaust Memorial Center in West Bloomfield about the find and is awaiting a response.

The bones were kept in a brown jar similar to a Mason jar, Carli said. Along with other war souvenirs, it was kept in a hatbox-sized box in the basement of the man's home. The veteran — his family

Townships say yes to airport JOA in time

By Diane Gale
staff writer

In a last minute agreement Wednesday, Canton and Plymouth townships hammered out a heavily restrictive Joint Operating Agreement for Mettetal Airport in Canton.

It was a surprise to most observers that Canton officials, who have long opposed Plymouth Township's and Plymouth's proposed public ownership of the airport, announced they were joining hands.

"If they tore down the Berlin wall, why should we build one here?" said Plymouth Township Trustee Abe Munfakh referring to the ever growing rift between the communities.

HOWEVER, CANTON imposed strict provisions about how the land would be used. For instance, the agreement requires approval of both township boards before any property purchase involving the airport.

And at the end of 10 years after the start-up, Canton will have exclusive option to terminate the JOA, terminate the operation of the airport and cause the sale of the airport.

Canton Supervisor Tom Yack predicted during a press conference at Mettetal Wednesday that the JOA would be a great example of how the townships could continue to work on joint programs.

The announcement came just hours before the Plymouth Township board was to vote on accepting a federal grant to pay for the airport. That vote was seen as an important step toward turning the airport into a public facility.

But the agreement between the townships specified that Plymouth Township would stop pursuing the grant. The grant deadline is Aug. 31.

To eventually buy the airport, the two communities must apply for another grant. When they'll do that, and when the state and federal governments might award the needed grants, was unclear on Wednesday.

AS PART OF THE TRUCE, Canton agreed to drop lawsuits fighting the public purchase of the airport.

Plymouth Township Supervisor Gerald Law said he wants the JOA to be symbolic of how Canton and Plymouth townships will agree to work together "rather than fight each other and spend public money on lawsuits."

Canton Clerk Loren Bennett was credited with making the last minute agreement come together.

But while officials from both communities were talking about cooperation, pilots and airport supporters were skeptical.

"The intent was great, but what they did was kill the airport," said Carol Herrick, Canton resident and pilot.

She questioned whether the grant would be available if and when the JOA requests that money. Herrick added that she wouldn't be surprised if Mettetal owners, the Klochko family, decided to put the airport up for sale, leaving it open to developers.

Herrick also asked why Plymouth Township wouldn't go ahead and accept the grant and allow the townships to work out the agreement later.

When asked how the airport purchase would be financed if the feder-

Goss wins walkover; to work on tax relief

It's official.

Northville Township Supervisor Georgina Goss is now the new 36th District State Representative.

Goss, a Republican, was unopposed in Tuesday's general election. She won the Aug. 6 Republican Primary, outdistancing Deborah Whyman of Canton and Jerry Vorva of Plymouth. There were no Democrats in the race.

The 36th district includes the city of Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Northville Township and portions of the city of Northville and Canton Township.

Goss takes over for Gerald Law, who resigned from the House to become Plymouth Township Supervisor.

Also running unopposed in Tuesday's general election was Maurice Breen, who was elected to the Wayne County commission. The district includes Plymouth, Northville and Livonia.

Youth will give back prize money to help build Vietnam memorial

By Diane Gale
staff writer

John Sheehy, a junior at Plymouth-Canton High School, drew the winning design for the Canton veterans memorial and the young man is thinking about donating the $100 prize money to help pay for its construction.

"The way it looks right now, I plan on donating it back," Sheehy said.

THE FINAL design also incorporates elements from Barry Burton, Canton landscape architect, and W.T. Mannion, who will each receive $25 awards.

"The basic design is John's," said Tim LaGrow of the Canton Veteran's Memorial Association.

Sheehy of Canton said the idea for the design and actually entering the contest was a joint effort. His mother told him about the contest and one night he sat down with his dad, John Sheehy, at the kitchen table and threw out some ideas.

"And we came up with this design," said the younger Sheehy who would like to have a career in architectural drafting.

"When I came home from band camp, my father told me I won," Sheehy said. "I was shocked."

Sheehy's father had been commissioned to go to Vietnam, the young man said. "His ship was going over to Vietnam and it caught fire and he came back."

Sheehy also had words of gratitude for his teachers, Pat Barry and Carl Whymann. Barry helped him learn to communicate better with adults.

"He set up a foundation on how to talk with an adult and how to present myself well," Sheehy said.

THAT CAME in handy when he approached John Spencer, Canton finance director, of the veteran's memorial association to ask about the contest specifications.

And Whymann accommodated Sheehy with drawing boards to design his winning idea.

Sheehy will be presented the award at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 11, in the township administration building.

LaGrow stressed a desperate need for volunteers to help kick-off fund-raisers for the monument, which is expected to cost between $50,000 and $60,000.

The memorial is dedicated to those who served in the armed forces during war and peace time. It will be constructed on the south end of the administration building.

The committee is in the process of getting its non-profit status, however, anyone who is interested in donating to the construction fund is invited to send checks to the Canton Memorial Fund, Canton Administration Building, 1150 S. Canton Center Road, Canton 48188, in care of: John Spencer.

Cruising

With the start of school this week, officials say cruising in downtown Plymouth should lessen, as it has in past years. Assistant city manager Paul Sincock, acting police chief Robert Scoggins and Sgt. Ed Ochal surveyed the situation at 10:20 p.m. Friday on Main Street, as the nightly cruise wound down.

al grant was withdrawn altogether, Law said, he would take a wait and see approach.

Canton residents, who fought Plymouth Township and Plymouth owning the airport, were surprised by the press conference.

"I'm pleased with the agreement," said Mark Merlanti, a Canton resident who encouraged the board to file a lawsuit against Plymouth Township's proposals to buy Mettetal.

Merlanti added that many of the people who were opposed to Plymouth Township buying the airport were against another community having control over Canton land. And they were also against a possible airport expansion. The JOA prevents both moves.

OTHER ELEMENTS of the JOA include:

- Mettetal will be acquired jointly by the townships using 90 percent federal money and 10 percent state money;
- A board will be established in which Canton will have 50 percent of the board members;
- The airport will be self-efficient. There will be no contribution by the townships;
- The townships shall contact the City of Plymouth to determine their interest in continuing to participate in the JOA.

Prosecutor rules airport board didn't violate Open Meetings Act

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

The Mettetal Airport board did not violate the state Open Meetings Act on May 29, as some airport opponents had alleged.

That's the word from the Wayne County prosecutor's office, in an Aug. 22 letter to the Plymouth Observer.

THE OBSERVER HAD asked the prosecuting attorney's office to rule on whether the state act had been violated, after several airport opponents alleged it had.

"Our office has concluded that the actions of the members of the Mettetal Airport board did not violate the requirements of the Open Meetings Act," states the letter.

It was signed by assistant prosecuting attorney Frank Bernacki, prosecuting attorney John O'Hair, and chief of special operations Andrea Solak.

"The board was not convened, formally or informally, and the board members were not gathered for the purpose of deliberating toward or rendering a decision on a public policy," the letter continued.

"Our office is concerned that all meetings of public bodies comply with the Open Meetings Act, and this concern has been communicated with the Mettetal Airport Board."

Airport board chairman Tom Kennedy was unavailable for comment Tuesday on the finding.

William McAninch, who is among those leading opposition to the Plymouth Township-city of Plymouth effort to own and operate the Canton airport, expressed disappointment with the finding.

"I STILL FEEL that the meeting held in the office of the township supervisor with four members of the airport board, the township supervisor and a Realtor was an improper meeting, the ruling by the Wayne County prosecutor notwithstanding," McAninch said.

The meeting was convened because Plymouth Township Supervisor Gerald Law, who assumed that post May 1, wanted to be brought up to date on the airport, some board members said.

Airport board members were invited to help answer questions that could come up. All four attended.

By state law, the intent of open meetings law "is to strengthen the right of all Michigan citizens to know what goes on in government by requiring public bodies to conduct nearly all business at open meetings."

Further, "For special and irregular meetings, public bodies must post a notice indicating the date, time and place at least 18 hours before the meetings," the law states.

Goss wins walkover

The elections were sparked by the resignation earlier this year of Susan Heintz from the county commission. She took a job with Gov. John Engler and Breen was appointed to the seat. He was supervisor of Plymouth Township.

Goss said a date has yet to be set for her swearing in.

"It'll probably be the first week in September," she said.

"I plan on leaping in with both feet," she said, adding that she'll seek assignments to committees on education, townships and the environment.

"I plan on commuting most of the time," Goss said, adding she would also seek to work on tax relief proposals.

Goss received 3,194 votes, according to preliminary results. In Canton she received 747 votes; 1,044 in Plymouth Township; 464 in Plymouth; 123 in Northville; and 816 in Northville Township.

Farrand principal Ann Kuhn helps kindergartners board the bus to Tanger.

Starting school

Kids, adults excited about classes

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

As dawn gave way to morning Tuesday, rays of sunlight slanted through the trees lining Robinwood, Lakeland Court and Greenbriar Lane. Dew glistened on manicured lawns, and all was peaceful in Lakepointe.

INSIDE HOMES in the Plymouth Township subdivision, parents and children prepared for the first day of school. Students dressed in new clothes and shoes soon filled the sidewalks, making their way to Farrand Elementary, their just-bought colorful backpacks in tow.

Kindergarteners boarded buses; some excitedly, others with terror and tears on their faces. Misty-eyed moms and proud papas recorded the event on video-cams, running late for work but not caring. After all, Tuesday wasn't just any day.

Were kids ready to start school on this 90-degree day in August?

"Yeah, kind of. Sometimes in the summer, there's nothing to do," said Richard Stankov, 10, after crossing guard Homer Pope helped him across Schoolcraft.

Pope — a stop sign in one hand, pocket watch in the other — wasn't complaining, either. "If it's better for the school system to start the 27th of August, it's all right with me," said the GM retiree with a West Virginia accent.

Matthew Nolan, 8, Nick Potochick, 9, and Brian Brocious, 7, walked to school together.

"It feels great," said Matthew of his first day back.

"It's OK," said Nick.

Just OK?

"HOMEWORK," HE SAID, with a look that made his meaning clear.

"It's OK," echoed Brian.

Walking down Robinwood together were Laura Grabill, 10, her sister Michelle, 8, and Nichole Sobecki, 9.

"I'm new to this school, so I'm sort of excited to meet new people," said Laura.

"I'm very nervous and excited," said Nichole. "And I want to meet new friends. I hope I do."

"I'm very nervous because I'm new to this school," said Michelle.

First-graders Meghan Hamlin and Paul Patocki walked to school with some older students and a couple parents. Meghan said she was ready for school; Paul needed just a word to sum up his feelings: "No."

Kate Szubeczak's first day began with crossing guard duty. She was glad to be back.

"I missed school," she said. "It's fine. I don't mind it, as long as it's not too hot. If it's real hot, I'll want to go home."

At Farrand, a harried principal tried to make sure all was going smoothly as students and parents arrived by the hundreds.

Linda Kelly was videotaping her son, Stephen, as he walked to school for the first day of first grade. "He's real excited about it," said Stephen's mom, 3-year-old Bryan Kelly at her side. "He put his papers and pens in his backpack yesterday. And he made sure to pack his snack."

GOING TO SCHOOL didn't bother Stephen.

"I like it," he said.

It was an eventful day for the Crandalls, too. Christopher Crandall was starting first grade. Sending him off were his brother, Brian, 4; mom, Gabriella; and dad, Paul. An addition to the family was expected that very day.

In the driveway at Farrand, kindergartners climbed aboard buses for the ride to Tanger.

As moms said good-bye to Lauren, Shane and Sharon, cries could be heard coming from the bus. It was Devin McGraw.

"He cried at kindergarten round-up," said his mom, Erin. "He was excited about coming, but he doesn't want to say good-bye. I think he'll be fine.

"Some kids are more emotional and more sentimental than others; I just have emotional kids," she said. "My second-grader is crying too."

In the office, principal Ann Kuhn had some trouble-shooting to do and a string of phone calls to take.

First she was told the bus had left Farrand early, stranding 15 students.

A mom announced she'd found two of her neighbor's children. "They're from Maryland. I'm not sure if the kids are registered or not," she told Kuhn.

Next a teacher walked in with a student, saying he'd reported to the wrong class. "What grade are you in?" the student was asked. The little boy couldn't answer.

IT WASN'T YET 9:15 a.m., and beads of sweat were visible on Kuhn's forehead. But the principal was taking it all in stride.

"We're looking forward to a good year," she said. "We have good spirit and good parents; wonderful parents."

This week's question:

If you could change one thing in Canton, what would it be?

We asked this question in front of the Canton Post Office.

'Probably the way they're planning the growth. It doesn't seem to be any planning. It seems to be here and there and everywhere.'

'Less mini malls, I guess. I like Canton on the west where it's nice and open.'

'It's too late. The whole planning. The fast food strips. They made all these mistakes and then said, "Now what can we do to make it better?" '

Carli's auctioneer business often buys estate property.

"We had bought the estate, we were over there over the weekend," he said, removing boxes and taking them back to his Plymouth Township business.

The box of war souvenirs was among several unopened boxes.

After opening the box, Carli said he found that several items were wrapped in tissue paper and each wrapped with a ribbon. One of the first things he unwrapped was a hand grenade, which gave him a start.

"I didn't quite know how to handle a hand grenade," he said. Carli said he asked for the help of his father, who determined the hand grenade was unarmed.

"WE FOUND A DAGGER, a bayonet, a little box full of German medals and photographs of a concentration camp," he added.

Upon finding the jar, also wrapped and sealed in tape, "My dad shook it and thought it was probably full of bullets."

But upon unwrapping it, "He said, 'My God, this looks like it was all full of body parts.'

"It was late at night — It was really eerie."

Rabbi Charles Rosenzveig of the Holocaust Memorial Center in West Bloomfield, said, "We would like to examine it and see if it's authentic."

"We don't know who they are from — whether they are from victims of the Holocaust or war victims," he said.

Gun pointed at Canton man; no shots are fired

A Canton man was walking his dog Sunday on Risa Lane in Autumn Ridge Apartments, at Lotz and Cherry Hill, when he said a man pointed a gun at him.

He said he saw a truck pass by and a few minutes later two people walked out of the apartments and got into the vehicle, police reported. He told police that a man pointed a gun at him and pretended to shoot.

Police later learned that one of the men who got into the vehicle was visiting his girlfriend and had gotten in a fight with her.

MOTEL THEFT: More than $600 worth of goods were reported stolen Sunday from Country Hearth Inn on Michigan Avenue.

A clerk walked into a room that had the door ajar when it was discovered that a $400 television and two lamps, valued together at $250, were reported missing, police reported.

The person who rented the room was gone.

CAR BREAK-IN: Fifty-five cassette tapes, records and albums, along with clothing, were reported stolen Friday from a 1989 Pontiac Firebird on Porteridge Lane.

The value of the goods reported stolen was listed in police reports at more than $1,200.

MAILBOX CAPER: Four mailboxes on Denton were damaged by someone sticking an item out a window and hitting the boxes about 11 p.m. Sunday.

Engler tax cut express has some empty seats

By Tim Richard
staff writer

One key Republican senator wasn't aboard the Engler train as it launched a drive for a 30-percent school property tax cut.

"It's overly complex and confusing," said Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville. "The Legislature might more easily reduce assessments to 45 percent or some figure less than 50 percent of true market value.

Gov. John Engler proposes to pay for his proposed property tax cut by using half the annual growth in state revenue to reimburse local school districts for property taxes they would lose if voters in 1992 approve Engler's plan.

"I'm not entirely confident there will be enough growth in state revenues to compensate school districts for lost revenue," said Geake, a fifth-term senator.

BUT SEN. MAT Dunaskiss of Lake Orion said he was "happy to be a co-chair" of the drive. "He invited the entire Senate Republican caucus to be co-chairs."

Engler's prescription is "just what the doctor ordered," Dunaskiss said in his Lansing office. "We keep our commitment for property tax relief. We guarantee money for education. And we put a 3-percent cap on future assessment increases — solid relief."

Dunaskiss, a former representative serving his first Senate term, said a rival House Democratic plan would raise business taxes to pay for homeowner-only tax relief — "definitely a job loss for Michigan."

Sen. George Z. Hart, D-Dearborn, whose district stretches to Garden City, said through an aide he endorses the Democratic plan but "am not closing my mind on any plan," including Engler's.

Other area senators could not be reached for comment. Dave Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, is out of the country; Michael Bouchard, R-Birmingham, Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, and William Faust, D-Westland, were out of town.

Even before Engler made his own mid-Tuesday announcement at the Michigan State Fair, Democratic state chairman Gary Corbin had issued a statement denouncing the governor's plan for "giving 36 percent of all tax cut dollars to business."

Corbin supports the Democrats' homeowners-only plan, to be paid for by raising the single business tax.

ENGLER TOLD a State Fair audience he dropped his plan for a 20-percent cut in school operating property taxes over three years because "a 20-percent cut isn't enough."

He signed a petition drive to put on the ballot a constitutional amendment cutting school operating taxes 30 percent over five years.

The Republican governor's plan is likely, however, to mean a continuing series of cuts in other parts of state government. He would pay the $500 million 1993 cost of school tax cuts by dedicating half the growth in state revenue for property tax relief.

But there are problems:

● "Historically," said Engler, "the state budget has risen by 4.5 to 5 percent each year." Dedicating half to property tax relief would leave state government 2.25 to 2.5 percent growth.

Break-ins investigated

Canton police are working with other area departments on break-ins where the thieves get into adjoining stores in malls by breaking through the roofs.

Store owners in Harvard Square and Golden Gate malls in Canton recently reported that type of break-in.

Other communities that have been struck by the acrobatic thieves include South Lyon, Van Buren, Westland, Garden City and Ypsilanti.

"Detectives from area departments got together to share information and put together a game plan, said Pat Nemecek, Canton police information officer.

"And we've gone out there to the Chamber of Commerce and door-to-door to make sure that their place is secured," he added.

Anyone with information or tips should call Canton police, at 397-5344.

S'craft fun fest is birthday gift to community

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

It's a birthday where the party is the present.

The Schoolcraft College Family Fun Festival, celebrating the 30th anniversary of its founding, is a gift to the communities that have supported Schoolcraft for the past three decades, organizers said.

The free event will be held noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 15, on the community college's main campus, 18600 Haggerty, Livonia.

"We've tried to plan events for all members of the family — youngsters, seniors, adults and students," event organizer Carolyne Brown said. "We want the community to come and see what we're all about."

Youngsters can win prizes by competing in numerous games of skill, including a gunny sack race, ring toss, three-legged race, relay races and bowling, kick ball and gum blowing contests, or by picking a plastic duck out of the water.

"EVERYBODY SHOULD be able to win something," said Sherry Springer, who is coordinating youth events.

Highlights for adults and older children will include a tennis clinic and social and a display of classic Jaguar automobiles.

Tennis enthusiasts will be able to play or attend clinics on Schoolcraft courts, Brown said. A special program, "Say Yes to Tennis, No to Drugs," will be directed at young players. The program runs noon to 1:15 p.m.

Prizes will be offered in the fast serve contest, noon to 3 p.m. The walk-in tennis tournament will be held noon to 4 p.m.

A Family Fun Run and Walk will begin at noon. Participants in the 3.1-mile run or 1-mile walk will receive a commemorative T-shirt and are eligible for prizes.

Tennis and fun run/walk prizes will be provided by Racquets Unlimited, Livonia. All fun run/walk participants will receive a $10 gift certificate from the store. There will also be a drawing for running shoes, sports bags and other prizes.

Registration is $10, or $7 if filed before Sept. 1. Racquets Unlimited will pay the entry fee of anyone buying new running shoes before the day of the event.

Participants can register by calling 462-4448.

Up to 15 of the classic British automobiles will be on display at the People's Choice Jaguar Show, according to show organizer Gary Hershoren.

"THIS IS a personal interest of mine," the Schoolcraft counselor said.

In addition to owning an antique 1960 XK-150, Hershoren is a member of a statewide Jaguar owners group.

That organization, Jaguar Affiliates of Michigan, will also conduct a Sept. 7 show at the Edsel Ford Estate, Grosse Pointe.

Livonia Police Sgt. Bob Stevenson, co-owner of a 1969 roadster, will be among those putting their prize autos on display.

"This is the first time we've shown it in a couple of years," he said.

A Health Fair, sponsored by the Metro Medical Group, will be conducted throughout the festival.

Free blood pressure readings, diabetes tests and vision and glaucoma screenings will be offered, as will body fat and cholesterol tests.

"We're hoping that seniors will take advantage of this," said Brown, a coordinator for the college's continuing education services department.

Keeping with the 1960s spirit, refreshments at the Schoolcraft celebration will be at 1961 prices.

Hot dogs will be 50 cents, said Springer, who is doubling as refreshment chairwoman. Drinks will be a quarter, while a bag of popcorn will sell for a dime.

"We're basically doing this at cost," the student activities specialist said. "As it works out, that will bring it to the 'good old days' prices."

Entertainment will include magician Bill Heiney, a Schoolcraft graduate, who has appeared with master magician Harry Blackstone Jr. Schoolcraft alumni also make up the Blind Dog Blues Band, one of several musical acts scheduled to perform throughout the festival.

Other entertainers will include a glass blower, caricature artist and the Schoolcraft College SWEAT Band, specializing in popular music and show tunes.

Breen win is a breeze

His election was a foregone conclusion, but 10th District Wayne County Commissioner Maurice Breen nonetheless pulled 2,859 votes running unopposed in Tuesday's special commission election.

Breen, R-Plymouth Township, also represents Plymouth, Northville, Northville Township and Livonia on the commission.

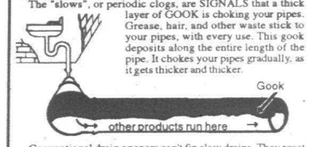
Drains Run Slow?

You'll never have a slow running, or clogged drain again! The secret? Clean drains don't run slow.

The "slows", or periodic clogs, are SIGNALS that a thick layer of GOOK is choking your pipes. Grease, hair, and other waste stick to your pipes, with every use. This gook deposits along the entire length of the pipe. It chokes your pipes gradually, as it gets thicker and thicker.



Conventional drain openers can't fix slow drains. They react chemically on the surface of the gook. To be effective, they must remain in contact with the waste. Even a small tunnel through the gook lets them flow out to the sewer, leaving the gook behind.

In the past, the only way to remove this build-up was to root-

Independent laboratory studies show Plumb Clean® more effectively breaks down organic waste than all other products tested. So, if your drains have the "slows", act now. Get safe, guaranteed Plumb Clean® today!

IN BRIEF

Ballet auditions

The Plymouth Canton Ballet Company is looking for dancers. Open auditions are scheduled for Saturday, Sept. 7, at Joanne's Dance Extension, 9282 General Drive, Suite 180-190, Plymouth.

Audition times are grouped according to age: 9-12 at 1 p.m.; 13 and older, 2-3:30 p.m.

Female and male dancers are needed. There is a $5 audition fee. The company requests that all dancers bring a resume and photo to the audition.

All female dancers must wear a black leotard and pink tights. Hair should be in a bun or french braid; no ponytails. Males should wear appropriate dance attire.

The ballet company is scheduled to dance three performances of "The Nutcracker" with the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra, under conductor Russell Reed, Dec. 13-15, in the Plymouth Salem High School Auditorium.

Call the ballet company at 455-4330.

Attention volunteers

The Canton Community Foundation is circulating volunteer registration cards for anyone who is interested in doing volunteer work in Canton.

The program, dubbed Canton Volunteer Clearing House, is launched by the foundation, which is contacting new homeowners and "letting them know it's available to them in the community," said Bill Joyner, executive director.

A story about organizations that need volunteers included the wrong number for the foundation. The correct number is 454-5427.

Therapy group

A womens therapy group for adult children of alcoholic and dysfunctional families is forming at Growth Works in Plymouth.

Some spaces are still available. For more information, call 455-4902.

Fitness classes

Fall fitness classes start Sept. 9 at the First Presbyterian Church in Plymouth. Aerobics classes are Monday, Tuesday and Thursday evenings and Tuesday, Friday and Saturday mornings.

Step aerobics and wellness classes are also offered. Registration is done by the month. Co-ed classes and childcare is available.

Eldercise for the Young at Heart will be Tuesday and Friday mornings for $1 per class. Call 459-9485 for more information or to register.

Amphitheater to be finished by December

Construction crews are making headway behind the Canton administration building.

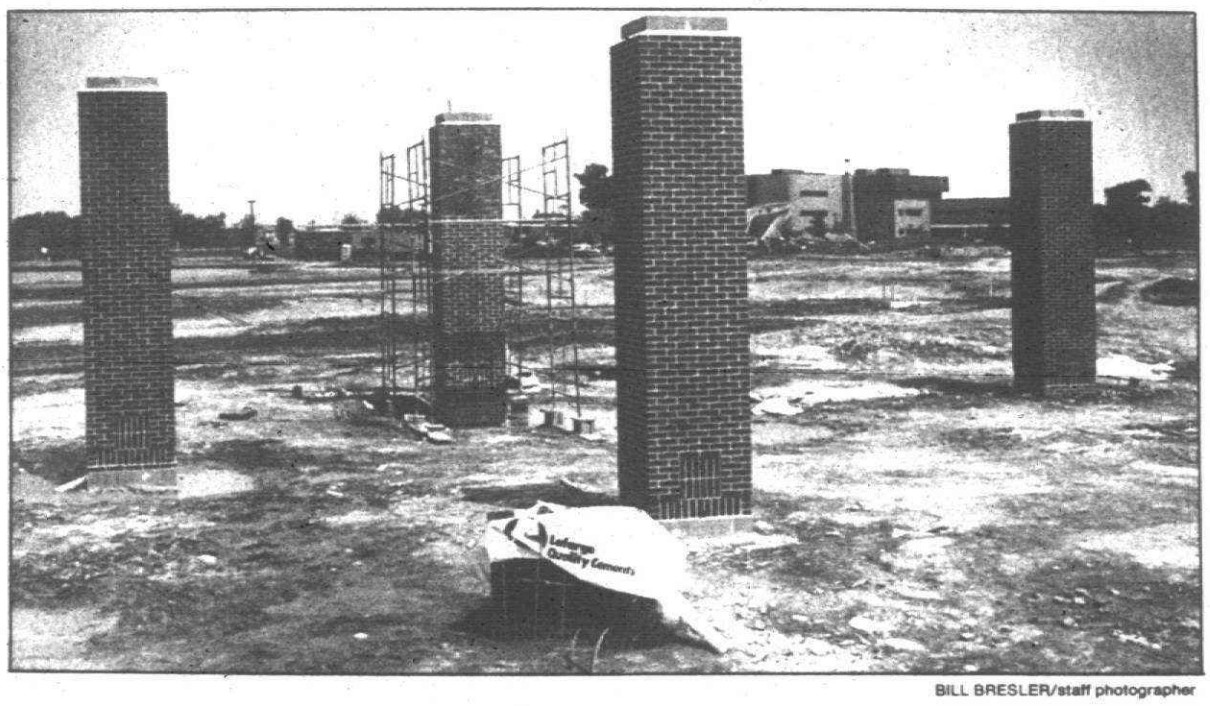
And by the end of November an amphitheater with a capacity to seat 2,000 people is expected to be complete. Visitors however, won't be invited until early summer 1992 to give the grass time to grow, according to Mike Gouin, recreation director.

The amphitheater will become the future home of Canton concerts, cultural activities, dramatic presentations and other performing arts.

Ponds, restrooms, picnic shelters, play equipment, asphalt walkways, plantings and new parking areas are some of the other new additions behind the administration building.

The grand opening will likely be tied into another community event next year, like the Canton Soccer Tournament or Challenge Festival, Gouin said.

Anyone with ideas about various uses for the amphitheater should call the Canton recreation department, 397-5356.



BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Pillars were erected behind the adminstration building and became the first vestiges of the ampitheater.

Award-winning dancers leap at Japan trip

The winning students are from Livonia, Garden City, Westland, Plymouth, and Canton Township.

Jennifer Rickard, Encore's owner and director, has been invited to prepare a dance program to present throughout Japan.

Besides performing, her students will take lessons in Japanese dancing, tour Japan and learn about the country's culture while living with local families.

The invitation was due to the outstanding performances of both her junior and senior dance companies, Rickard said.

At the national convention, the "Pretty in Pink," a number danced by Encore's Junior Dance Company, Katie O'Connell, Angela Cuplar, Alana McQueen, Stephanie Mead, Becky Murray, Holly Ontko, Kendra Phillips, Laura Pollock, Jada Ronning, Rachele Wahl, Nicole Warnick and Katie Yates, took the highest honor Dance Educators can give a group by winning the Presidential Challenge Cup. They will retain the cup for one year. For winning first place overall, this group recieved $750 which they will share.

Tim Smola won the "Mr. D.E.A. Las Vegas" while Katie O'Connell was crowned Miss Small Fry Las Vegas in addition to winning the national title, which carried a $200 price, crown and banner.

IN THE Vegas event, the pair won over strong competition, Rickard said. Each received $75.

"Clowning Around," danced by Jennifer Baroni, Darcy Bemis, Holly Bowling, Jackie Oxford, Karrie Ontko, Kendra Phillips, Jeanette Runion and Brianne Wilde, won the second place overall in the teen division, losing first place by only one point. They still won $500.

"Shake," a duet danced by Tim Smola and Larry Herr, won the overall in the open division. "My Sister, My Friend," danced by Katie O'Conell and Brianne Wilde, won the overall honors in the junior division. Both duets received $500.

"Georgia on My Mind," danced by Tim Smola, won the overall in the open solo division. "Thy Word," danced by Brianne Wilde, won the overall in the teen division. "First Communion," danced by Katie O'Connell, won the overall in the small fry division. Each received $200.

"Black Cat," performed by the school's Senior Dance Company of Jennifer Baroni, Gina Cruz, Kelly Gudeth, Karri Ontko, Jackie Oxford, Jeannette Runion, Christina Rice, Candice Sheremet, Tim Smola, Kendra Thomas, Kiki Turrentine and Brianne Wilde, won a gold medal.

SOLOIST JENNIFER Baroni danced to the "Theme from Mahogany," winning a gold medal.

Jackie Oxford, Karri Ontko and Kiki Tirrentine won silver medals for their solos while Jeanette Runion and Gina Cruz won bronze medals. Kelly Gudeh captured a gold medal for fashion modeling while Christine Djordjevic came away with a silver medal in vocal.

Other winners from Encores Junior were Angela Cuplar, second runner-up for Miss Small Fry, winning $25; Joshua Honkanen and Kendra Phillips, gold medal winner for their duet, "Forever Friends"; and Angela Djordjevic, recipient of a gold medal in vocal.

"Chorus Line," performed by Angela Cuplar, Joshua Honkanen, Stephanie mead, Kendra Phillips, Alana McQueen, Jada Ronning, Nicole Warnick and Katie Yates, received a silver medal.

Junior soloists Angela Cupler, Becky Murray and Nicole Warnick won silver medals while Alana McQueen won a bronze medal.

SEVERAL ENCORE students also went to Atlantic City to compete in the Starpower National Convention.

Encore's Minis (5 and 6 year olds) Ashlee Baracy, Tracie Borowiak, Davie Campbell, Shana Carpenter, Katy Kowalski, Staci Razor, Summar Ronning and Jamie Snider, danced to "Brides"and won first place.

The "My Sister, My Friend" group continued its winning streak by winning first overall and $500. In a field of 300 competitors in the 12-and-under field, Katie O'Connell, 8, took third overall and another $100.

Rickard is a member of Dance Masters and Dance Educators of America. She has had 20 years of dance education and continues to take master classes at dance conventions each year. This will be her 11th year as a teacher. She opened Encore Dance Acadamy four years ago and has had an overall national winner for the last three years.

Rickard hopes they will be able to take advantage of this opportunity to travel to Japan.

Although this trip would be subsidized by Japanese businesses, the cost per student would be about $2,000, which would include plane fare and room and board.

Anyone interested in making donations to help the students make the trip may send checks to Encore Dance Acadeemy, (Japan), 5963 N. Wayne Road, Westland 48185. They may also contact the studio at 595-1414.

Bill targets jury duty restrictions

Workers would not have to use vacation time for jury duty if a bill passed by the state House of Represenatives becomes law.

Without debate, the House last week gave the bill 91-0 approval and sent it to the Senate.

House Bill 4250 also prohibits employer from charging workers personal leave or sick time for jury duty.

An employer violating the act would be guilty of a civil violation and could be fined up to $2,000. Sponsor is Rep. Lynn Jondahl, D-Okemos.

The House Judiciary Committee reported out the bill after hearing testimony from one private citizen who was requird to use annual leave time for serving on a jury.

If passed by the Senate and signed by the governor, the bill would take effect 90 days after the end of the legislative session, allowing the state to publicize the measure to small employers.

Pet program seeks volunteers

Volunteers willing to spend an hour each month visiting senior citizens at area nursing homes are needed by the Pet-A-Pet program sponsored by the Animal Welfare Society.

Pet-A-Pet is an animal visitation program whose volunteers and their pets pay regular group visits to nursing homes in the metro area.

Animal visitation programs have proven to be beneficial in the health care of the elderly who especially enjoy the unconditional love a pet can offer, said coordinator Ruth Curry.

"The response, the smiles and communication that occurs between the residents is marvelous," said Dr. Kathy Morris, a Redford veterinarian associated with the Animal Welfare Society.

"It's very heart-warming to think about people who are lying in bed and may not be able to hear or see but who can still feel these warm puppies and kittens."

Volunteers may bring their own pets if they are friendly, in good health, and have current vaccination records. The visits are scheduled one day per month and last about one hour.

In addition to nursing homes, the program also visits disabled children in the Old Village School in Northville.

Anyone interested in joining the Pet-A-Pet group for a specific location should call the coordinator listed:

- Middlebelt Nursing Center in Livonia, Cambridge West in Redford, Roney Manor in Dearborn Heights, McAuley Center in Farmington Hills, call Ruth Curry at 535-0410.
- Farmington Nursing Home, Estelle Biesiadecki at 464-9005.

- American House in Livonia, Joann Gresens, 464-8944.
- Old Village School in Northville, Laurie Allen, 355-1823.

Anyone who wants to volunteer but not for a specific location, or anyone wanting more information, can call Curry at 535-0410.

Sign-ups set for MHS Mutt March

Registrations are being accepted for the Michigan Humane Society "Mutt March" Saturday, Sept. 14, in Hines Park.

Participants obtain pledges from friends and family for each mile they walk of the five mile course — a $1 per mile minimum is suggested.

While walkers are encouraged to bring their dogs, pets must show proof of inoculations to participate. Pets must be leashed at all times.

Walkers will gather 10 a.m. at Nankin Mills Station, Hines Drive and Ann Arbor Trail.

MHS T-shirts will be awarded to walkers who raise at least $100 in pledges. Those raising $200 will receive an MHS mug. Walkers raising $300 in pledges will receive their choice of an MHS sweat shirt or neon two-sided T-shirt. MHS "paw print" sweat shirts will go to walker raising $400.

The walker bringing in the most pledges will receive a 25-inch color television.

Pledges benefit MHS animal care services. To register, or for additional information, call the Westland Kindness Center, 721-7300.

Mettetal

New direction applauded

THE 180-DEGREE turn that Canton Township took Wednesday on Mettetal Airport has us and other members of the Plymouth-Canton community scratching our collective heads.

Canton was aiming another lawsuit at the proposed purchase of the airport by the city of Plymouth and Plymouth Township. The federal suit sought to stop the search for a federal grant to buy the airport.

Then within hours after talking about a suit, Tom Yack, Canton supervisor, and other township officials announced that they would join with the pro-airport group and with the Joint Operating Agreement that would run a public airport.

But while we applaud Canton's move, we're left wondering about the motives behind it. And we, along with others, are looking for a better explanation from Yack as to why he and others in Canton changed their minds.

YACK CITED "a long history of cooperation" between Canton and Plymouth Township as one reason. That's normally the kind of reason heard at press conferences.

We've heard a couple of different scenarios about the change in tune. One is cynical, the other is the high road.

But first the cynical. Although Canton officials say they will join in the airport ball game, they've put down a tough list of demands. One school of thought says that Canton is trying to kill the purchase with the demands and is just trying to play nice guy.

Then there's the high road. That's the school of thought that says get into the ball game so your demands can be listened to. At least you're at the same table and somebody may listen.

We hope that's the route Canton is taking. Only time will tell.

The market

Better site needed in Canton

THE KIDS are back in school and Labor Day is upon us.

But while we feel the stirrings of autumn, we still have a chance to sample summer's bounty. And possibly the best way is at the Farmers' Market at the Kmart parking lot on Ford and Sheldon.

The market offers more than produce to Canton. It's a way for the community to hold on to its agricultural heritage.

That heritage may be going the way of the hay rake because of Canton Township's shabby treatment of the market. A parking lot at a store just doesn't make it as a site.

The farmers who use the site have complained that people selling cars have overwhelmed the location.

That has put the market on the endangered species list.

Canton Township needs a site for the Farmers' Market that is similar to The Gathering in Plymouth, where another farmers' market is located on Saturdays.

To us, the area behind the Canton Township Hall would make a good location for such a market. We think it's time for Canton to get on the ball and do something about it.

Anyway, while there's still a chance, the Canton Farmers' Market is open from noon to 7 p.m. Wednesdays and from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturdays. The last day is Saturday, Oct. 26.

We hope Canton residents make it to the market before it becomes a memory.

New stadium

Don't plan on private funding

THE AMERICAN tradition embodied in baseball has challenged us all in our deliberation over the future of the present Tiger Stadium and financing of an alternative stadium.

In these days of tenuous economics, sentiment is a faulty gauge by which to measure the future. This newspaper staff, like many fans who have enjoyed the special atmosphere of Tiger Stadium over the decades, has struggled with the issue.

BUT SOUND thinking dictates several obvious conclusions.

- A proposed 5-percent tax on hotels is unjust to an industry that is struggling to survive. At present many hotels aren't renting enough rooms and face bankruptcy. We need hotel rooms to attract convention revenue. An extra tax does nothing to fulfill the need.

- The Tiger organization's favored Briggs site would be too expensive to acquire and would just destroy another neighborhood in a city with too few viable neighborhoods.

- Maintaining the Detroit Tigers within the city limits has a value, but the value does have a ceiling. We believe the ceiling is lower than our emotions would otherwise allow us to admit.

- Finally, public financing is out of the question. Few industries really benefit from the Tigers presence. We have passed the golden decades when governmental bodies could afford to throw fiscal responsibility to the wind to subsidize a sports franchise to the detriment of the taxpayers.

IN TRUTH, the Silverdome did nothing to revive Pontiac, and a new Tiger Stadium within Detroit city limits would do little to help that municipality.

Pizza magnate and Tiger owner Tom Monaghan is living the American dream. He has prospered after building one of the largest pizza franchises in America. He has millions of dollars at his disposal to obtain credit to build a new stadium if he pleases.

It can be done. The new Robbie Stadium in Miami was built with private money. So can the new Tiger Stadium.

He also has the right to build the stadium where he believes he can gain the most profit. Detroit very well may not be that place. Only market research can determine whether it would be best for the stadium to be in Detroit, western Wayne County, Washtenaw County or in Tampa, Fla.

We all will miss the famous old ball yard. It has provided us with decades of great entertainment.

But the possibility of new life is being breathed into the old stadium. A local businessman is negotiating to bring a football team to play for the Canadian Football League into Tiger Stadium.

May sound crazy. But just imagine, an alternative to the Detroit Lions and their losing ways really does exist.

America lives out promise of our 'old parchments'

AMERICA WAS the first nation in history founded on the basis of rights we believed we shared with human beings everywhere.

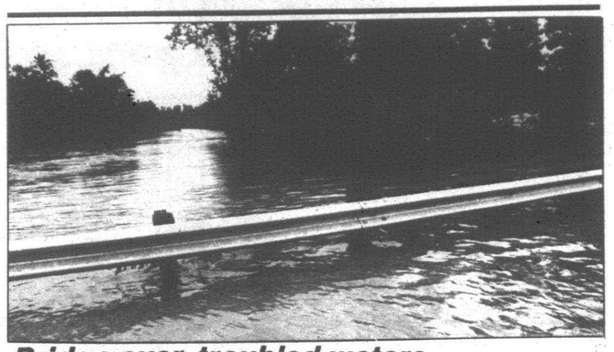
For more than 200 years, Americans have been constantly learning about individual rights and the challenges of sustaining them. We have learned, not just by studying the "old parchments," but by living out their promise. While many nations are based upon a common religion or ethnic heritage, or upon natural geographic frontiers, Americans have made rights the foundation of our national identity.

Even our failures as a nation have been measured by the rights to which we aspire. Throughout our history, we have not always been successful in balancing the interests of the minority with the wishes of the majority. For example, the promise of the new land was not extended to Native Americans who were here first or to African-Americans brought here against their will.

Time and again, however, the wrong has been righted; as Martin Luther King Jr. exhorted it to do, the nation has risen up "to live out the true meaning of its creed."

Together with the subsequent amendments and those rights contained in the original Constitution, the Bill of Rights articulates the fundamental ideas of liberty, justice and equality.

This is another in a continuing series of articles marking the anniversary of the Bill of Rights.



Bridge over troubled waters

A drainage ditch turned into a raging river on both sides of Eight Mile during recent rains, leaving home and apartment owners wringing their hands over continuing problems with flooding. Areas affected include newer subdivisions in Livonia, and Farmington Hills alone has spent $6 million on flooding abatement measures.

Lessons are learned in light of economy

Steve Barnaby

WHILE MICHIGAN'S old guard, politicians and business tycoons alike, has been patching up an economic system that is in need of major surgery, some entrepreneurial spirits have been taking action.

A recent report on the growth of Michigan's publicly held companies reveals that the non-auto-dependent manufacturing sector is prospering. Unfortunately most of the power brokers in this state have been reluctant to admit we need a major supplement to the auto industry in order to regain our economic stamina.

For decades, the auto industry has been good for us. But times are changing, and other opportunities exist.

The report, authored by the Durocher and Co. public relations firm and BDO Seidman, uncovers some hopeful stories in an otherwise bleak economic scenario.

'In the past, aside from a few well-established science-based, high-tech companies, most seemed to be little more than gallons of potential swimming in quarts of red ink, but at least now their revenue rates demonstrate that there may be markets for their inventions.'

— Donald Durocher president Durocher & Co.

SOME NAMES are familiar. One of the biggest success stories continues to be Inacomp Computer Centers of Troy, which ranked 10th among the 10 fastest-growing companies. Based on five-year compound annual rates of revenue growth through 1990, Inacomp checked in at 29.27 percent.

But other success stories abound under banners that are far less recognizable to the general public.

The big headline goes to Wixom-based Secom General, which experienced a whopping five-year compound annual rate of revenue growth of 110.02 percent. The precision tool manufacturer recorded $87,000 in 1986 and managed to build that kitty up to $9.3 million in 1990.

Nearly 70 percent of its business is non-auto related.

Rising stars include OIS Optical Imaging Systems of Troy, which made the top 10 with a 39.35-percent growth rate. Other local firms include MLX of Troy at 36.17 percent and Buffalo Don's Artesian Wells of Plymouth at 32.71 percent.

Four of this year's 10 fastest-growing companies in revenue also ranked among the 10 fastest-growing in net income rates through 1990. These include: Randers Group of Muskegon Heights, 49.65 percent; International Controls of Kalamazoo, 36.59 percent; MEDSTAT Systems of Ann Arbor, at 20.35 percent; and Inacomp, 47.88 percent.

"THE LONG-AWAITED maturing of the state's young scientific and medical high-tech publicly traded companies seems to be arriving," according to Donald Durocher, Michigan Growth 100 study co-author and president of Durocher & Co.

"In the past, aside from a few well-established science-based, high-tech companies, most seemed to be little more than gallons of potential swimming in quarts of red ink, but at least now their revenue rates demonstrate that there may be markets for their inventions," he says.

Lessons are to be learned from these hopeful glimmers of light in an otherwise-bleak economic scene. New industry means new jobs and more revenue to pay for badly needed services.

The challenge for every Michigan resident is to work on our leaders to help them see the light.

Painting was not censored

To the editor:

Plymouth's 11th annual "Art in the Park" is over, but literary, philosophical, historical, critical and emotional reactions linger on. Over a month has passed since Dianne Quinn's very successful art show ended, but computers are still humming as editors, staff writers and citizens continue to react to the allegations of censorship by Livonia artist Judy Gibbs. Her painting entitled "Mourning Moslems" has provoked discussions on everything from the pros and cons of the war in the Gulf to asking Plymouth residents to " . . . look at the world with both eyes open," and stating that " . . . even here, in the liberal mecca of Plymouth, censorship lives in a dark cobwebbed corner, waiting for a new victim."

In short, a brief dialogue between show officials and the artist has been dissected, interpreted and spit out from many different perspectives. Simply put, as one of the employees charged with running the show, my job dictated that I tell Ms. Gibbs what was being said. The conversation included informing her that comments had been made that her painting was emotional and that it caused folks to feel sad and depressed. I further suggested that she might sell more (her other work was floral and scenic in nature) and increase the traffic within her booth if she moved the painting to an inside location.

After all, as an exhibitor at "Art in the Park," she had paid for her booth. It can certainly be assumed that she wished to achieve a return on her investment. There is no doubt on the 13th and 14th of July 1991, the primary agenda was to earn money and gain public recognition.

IT IS disturbing that "passing comments from a few people" can provoke written responses that level complaints against an entire community. Why is it that each newspaper article written presents a specific viewpoint and then instructs readers to re-evaluate their thinking? Doesn't America provide an arena for each of us to hold pro and con positions? Isn't it OK for someone to say they don't like something? Was the artist removed as an exhibitor? No! Was the artist ordered to move her painting? No! Did censorship occur? No! Was the artist's painting loved by all? Probably not, most things aren't.

Why didn't she maintain the courage of her convictions, exercise her rights as an American and leave the painting on the front wall of her booth?

Because of Ms. Quinn's "Art in the Park," over 287 talented individuals from across the United States and Canada displayed their works and sold their creations. It is estimated that over 70,000 individuals attended this two-day yearly event. Plymouth merchants, taxpayers and residents alike derived social, economic and cultural benefits.

The 20th Century brings new and exciting challenges. Like our ancestors before us, we are all doing the best that we can. It isn't difficult to understand the unrest in the world when one looks at the amount of controversy generated over this one conversation between two human beings. We cordially invite all 1991 exhibitors to return in 1992. Plymouth is a great community and "Art in the Park" is a great art show which has enhanced freedom of expression for the past 11 years. I am proud to be a part of this dynamic organization.

James Miller,
Plymouth

Sports hurting but not teachers

Judith Doner Berne

BACK TO SCHOOL this year in well-to-do Rochester and Rochester Hills, has middle and high school students paying a fee to play sports and participate in some extracurricular activities.

They are the only students in Oakland County who must pay to play. Last year, students at John Glenn High School in the Wayne-Westland district in Wayne County also paid to play. Voters eventually passed a millage there — and it's back to sports as usual.

Yes, Rochester Community Schools and other so-called "wealthy" Oakland County districts are hurting.

Yes, the state has robbed those rich school districts to help the poor — for lack of a more equitable tax plan.

Yes, houses with for sale signs are standing longer and longer despite it being a buyer's market.

Yes, area business from the largest corporations to the store on the corner have had to cut costs.

BUT, NO MATTER, Rochester district teachers will be guaranteed 6 percent more money for each of the next three years if a current tentative agreement is ratified.

Rochester and West Bloomfield both settled Friday. Their school boards could represent their constituencies and insist that teachers be paid what the economy can bear. And then the strike drums would roll.

But no way. West Bloomfield won't announce its settlement until the tentative agreement has been signed. That district has money, after going to the voters twice to narrowly win combined renewal and replacement money.

In Rochester, the situation is more awkward. The board boxed itself in, by scheduling two school bond votes for construction and renovation of buildings Sept. 23. Chance of passage certainly would be diminished if teachers are marching up and down in front of school buildings and children are on extended summer vacation.

THESE DAYS TEACHERS are more than fairly paid for the nine months of the year they work. For example, two years ago, in 1989-90, the average teacher in Rochester earned $37,000. That will translate to more than $41,000 for the coming year if the tentative agreement goes through. Meanwhile, nationwide, scores even on the Scholastic Aptitude Test decline.

Henry Adams said: "A teacher affects eternity; he can never tell where his influence stops."

Bernard Shaw said: "He who can, does. He who cannot, teaches."

And, in Rochester schools, we're about to pay both types of teachers at least 6 percent more for each of the next three years in an uncertain, if not failing economy.

Wichita war won't halt free choice

Jack Gladden

"WILL YOU STOP being so controversial?"

A co-worker hurled the challenge at me as she joined me for a cigarette in the three-sided smokers' lounge outside the building. It was more a tease than a challenge.

"What do you mean?" I asked.

"That abortion stuff," she said. "You keep getting people stirred up."

"I haven't written about that in a while," I said. "You mean the letters to the editor?"

"Yes. They just keep coming."

Yeah, I guess they do. Never mind that the Soviet Union is going through the biggest upheaval since the Bolshevik Revolution. It's the War in Wichita that has people talking.

"I don't know," my friend said. "I personally don't believe in abortion. I could never have one myself. But I don't think the government has the right to tell a woman whether she can have one or not."

"Or anybody else." That was another co-worker — a woman a bit older than colleague No. 1 — who had joined us.

"Right. Or anybody else. Can you believe those people down in Wichita?"

"You better believe 'em," I said. "They're serious."

"I know, but I just don't see how people can tell other people how to run their own lives."

"SO," I SAID, "are you pro-life or pro-choice?"

She looked puzzled.

"Well, I don't know. I've never really thought about it. I'm against abortion, but I believe women should be allowed to make their own decisions about it."

"So, are you pro-choice or pro-life?"

"Well . . ." She thought for a minute. "I guess I'm sort of in between."

"You're pro-choice." It was co-worker No. 2.

"Huh?"

"That's right," I said. "If you think a woman has the right to make her own choice — whether it's to have an abortion or not to have one — you're pro-choice. That's what it's all about. Pro-choice does not mean pro-abortion. It's perfectly possible to be against abortion and for choice at the same time."

Co-worker No. 2 nodded in agreement.

No. 1 thought about it a bit longer, then announced (to herself as much as anyone else), "Hey, you're right. I'm pro-choice. I'm PRO-CHOICE"

HER DILEMMA, which she summed up herself, was that she had "never really thought about it." That results in the kind of statements that drive the feminist up the wall.

"I'm pro-life," the caller tells the talk radio host, "but I think women should be allowed to make their own decisions about abortion."

"Then you're pro-choice," the feminist yells at the caller. "You don't even understand what pro-choice means."

And that's a problem many people seem to have. If the pro-life movement wants to keep women from having abortions, then the pro-choice movement must want to force them to have abortions. Ridiculous as it sounds, some people actually seem to believe that.

That's why I'm glad my co-worker thought about it and realized that choice means just what it says: the freedom to choose.

And maybe that's why the War in Wichita should generate as much interest as the Soviet upheaval. Given a taste of freedom, the Soviets weren't about to give it back. They faced up to tanks to keep it.

While in Wichita, in the heartland of America, the demonstrators were doing their best to take some of it away.

If this is being controversial, tough.

John Telford

HAVE YOU EVER wanted to rebel against the system?

When I was a public schools administrator, one of the things I enjoyed most about my jobs was the ability they gave me to subvert the entrenched bureaucracy from the top when such intervention benefited children.

While my recent multicultural initiatives as assistant principal in Rochester were undoutedly my more famous such "subversions," another far less publicized case in point comes to mind. As executive director of secondary education in Plymouth Canton schools a decade ago, I overruled the judgment of a principal, a school psychologist, a counselor and a teacher who wanted to retain a ninth grade girl — the product of a broken home — at that grade level for a second time.

Against their vigorous opposition, I stipulated that if she enrolled and demonstrated appropriate scholarship in summer high school courses in algebra and French, she would enter the 10th grade in the fall. She got an A and a B, graduated with honors three years later and entered the University of Michigan. Now she works for a congressman in Washington, D.C., instead of waitressing — the option she had been considering if she had dropped out in the ninth grade.

AS A MERE teacher, I had experienced notably less success in bucking the educational establishment, but it was not for any lack of trying. I recall one particularly narrow edict of Detroit's central administration in 1962 which proclaimed that new teachers starting their careers in mostly white schools on the city's periphery must be transferred to inner-city schools after three years.

While this rule was noble and understandable because it forced all young teachers to undertake an experience in a tough school, it made no alternative provision for a rookie teacher who had been initially assigned to an inner city school and wished to stay there — where I was and which I wished. I was coaching track at Southeastern High, and I had a quarter-miler returning the next season who had been the fastest sophomore in the country.

They transferred me out anyway over the protest of my principal, and it took me two years to get myself moved back to another high school in the inner city.

The Detroit school system became somewhat less bureacratic when I became an administrator. Despite a rule that said administrators were't allowed to coach, they let me lead my Pershing High team to one last unbeaten season even though I had been promoted and was an administrator in a junor high school during that season. I understand that now Detroit makes no exceptions.

RECENTLY Winfield Henry, the Detroit Central High School athletic director who had been an outstanding basketball coach (and player), was denied permission to continue coaching because of his administrative position.

Another similar case has unfolded in Cassopolis in southwestern Michigan. That school district put its high school football coach, Scott Bojanich, in the unenviable spot of having to choose between remaining a principal in the district and returning to coach his Lakeland Conference co-champion team this fall. Due to his career plans and the well-being of his family, he understandably decided to stay in the principalship.

Now his team will need him but he won't be there. This is most regrettable, because if an exceptional individual case had judicious merit, the exception should invariably prove the rule in any institution run by logical, level-headed leaders.

Exceptions like the girl ? promoted — and like Henry and Bojanich — must forever be fairly made if the source of energy that drives educational systems is to be channeled as a matter of course to fulfill students' needs. Those needs must unfailingly come first, and the often arbitrary rules of the bureaucratic hierarchies and contract-conscious teacher unions must come last.

It is necessary that we constantly remind all educational bureaucrats, and the bigwigs within any other public insitution as well, that they are here to serve us — not vice-versa.

John Telford, a Rochester Hills resident, most recently was assistant superintendent in the Rochester School District. He previously was executive director for secondary education in the Plymouth Canton district.

Area businesses honored for child care programs

A Southfield office building and Plymouth industrial park were among facilities to be honored as trend-setters in providing child-care benefits to employees.

Prudential Town Center, Southfield, and the DeMattia Metro West Industrial Park, in Plymouth, both of which this year added child care benefits, were honored as "New Kids on the Block" by the state House Republican Task Force on Child Care.

Gantos, Inc., a Grand Rapids-based women's clothing retailer with outlets in the metro area, also was among the first-time honorees.

More than 200 Michigan companies have been recognized for child care programs since 1989, said Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, committee chairwoman.

A task force survey found 23 percent of Michigan companies polled said the chief benefit of child care centers is in retaining skilled employees. Another 23 percent credit child care centers with improving company morale, loyalty and productivity. An additional 14 percent said improved employer/employee relations were the chief benefit.

The GOP honor is designed to highlight voluntary programs, begun at the employer's discretion.

Other area award winners included Eastern Michigan University, Ypsilanti; Michigan Consoldiated Gas Co., Detroit and Parke-Davis, Ann Arbor, honored as "Best on the Block" for unique child care programs.

Botsford Hospital, Farmington Hills, Blue Cross and Blue Shield, Detroit and Catherine McAuley Health Systems, Ann Arbor were among the companies honored as child care pioneers.

St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Pontiac, was honored among employers who provide financial aid to employees or subsidies for child care centers.

Family Works, Troy and the University of Michigan Family Care Resource Program, Ann Arbor, were honored as child care innovators.

Program judges included Jack Kirksey, community education program director for the Livonia Schools.

The awards program was sponsored by the Olin Corp., a national chemical company with a plant in Livonia.

Haggerty, I-696 get federal aid

Twenty-seven state highway projects are eligible for $36.7 million in federal aid after being approved by a seven-county regional planning agency.

The executive committee of the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments also identified two corridors of the I-94 freeway in Wayne and Macomb counties as deficient.

State and local governments will provide another $6 million in matching money, making the projects worth $42.7 million in two fiscal years.

APPROVED projects and sources of money are:

- I-96 at Milford Road — interchange reconstruction; $7.4 million federal, $824,000 state.
- I-94 at Merriman and Middlebelt interchanges, Romulus, near Metropolitan Airport, right of way puchase; $10.4 million federal, $1.2 million state. Also preliminary engineering for landscaping of reconstructed interchange, $63,000 federal, $7,000 state.
- I-696 in Farmington Hills — a half-mile earth berm on the south wide, west of Inkster Road; $536,000 federal, $62,000 state.
- Haggerty — two miles from I-96 to north of 12 Mile, preliminary engineering, and new signs; $67,000 federal, $8,000 state.
- I-96 business loop from Howell east to I-96, resurfacing, widening and bituminous shoulders; $680,000 federal, $230,000 state.

SMART, the suburban public transit agency, was approved for a $148,000 jobs program, said Anita Ashford, chairwoman of SEMCOG's Transportation Advisory Council.

SMART will provide 10 passenger vans to bring qualified unemployed Detroit residents to suburban jobs.

JETS (Jobs Employment Transportation Services Inc.) and McDonald's Corp. will match with $110,000.

'91 grid season heads toward kickoff

Spartans organize huge line

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

There's a lot for Toby Heaton and Jeff Graham to live up to. But all that's needed is one glance and you know they have more than enough to fill the bill.

We're talking bulk here. Big guys. Monsters.

Or in common, everyday parlance, offensive linemen.

Heaton, a redshirt junior from Plymouth (Redford Catholic Central HS), will start at guard for Michigan State this fall. Graham, also a redshirt junior, hails from Westland (John Glenn HS); he's challenging for the starting position at center.

And, even though it always seems their "buddies" from Ann Arbor get most of the sizable press — guys like Greg Skrepenak, Michigan's 6-foot-8, 320-pound behemoth of a tackle — there's no overlooking MSU's offensive line.

That would be impossible.

PUT IT this way: Heaton is 6-6, 290; Graham stands 6-5, 283. If both started, they would be the midgets on MSU's tackle-to-tackle line.

So eat your guts out, U-M — MSU could average more than 300 pounds per player on its line. You Wolverines have some catchin' up to do.

As Graham said with his seemingly ever-present grin: "I'd be the lightest one on the line."

OK, OK, before all the coaches in Salem outlook is encouraging

The numbers alone would appear to be working in favor of the Plymouth Salem football team.

With 61 varsity players — the most Salem has ever had — 27 lettermen, 11 returning starters and one of the best running backs in the state, the Rocks are hopeful those numbers will equal a successful season.

Salem was 6-3 last year and in contention for a playoff berth entering the final week of the season.

Boasting the kind of experience reflected in the above numbers, the Rocks would like to think 1991 is the year they not merely contend for the Lakes Division crown but break the hold Westland John Glenn has held on the title.

"I think we have to be rated with Glenn and North (Farmington), but we don't have to be rated any better than them," Salem coach Tom Moshimer said.

"IT'S HARD to say after two weeks of practice, but this team has a legitimate chance to do real good. Our goal is to win the Lakes and have a chance to play for the championship."

Heading the list of veteran players is senior halfback Leon Hister (5-9, 182), who rushed for 987 yards, scored 18 touchdowns and made the All-Observer first team.

Salem has traditionally employed the wishbone attack but again will run from the I-formation with Hister at tailback. Moshimer calls it wishbone football out of the I.

"Leon is one of the finest backs I've ever had, probably the best pure running back," he said, adding Hister is a bonafide all-state candidate.

Other returning starters on offense are tackle Scott Johnson (5-10, 195), tight end John Flynn (6-2, 180), wingback Matt Kuzawinski (5-9, 160) and the fullback combination of Rob Shepley (5-11, 190) and Dan Burke (6-0, 195). All are seniors except Shepley, a sophomore.

In addition, seniors Pat Vesnaugh and Pete Zantop started on defense at tackle and strong safety, respectively, but move to offense this year. Vesnaugh (5-10, 200) will play guard and Zantop (5-11, 170) assumes the quarterback duties.

ZANTOP IS suited for the role of option quarterback, but the Rocks also will be a better passing team, according to Moshimer.

"He's confident in himself and that's the first step," Moshimer said. "He executes the offense well and is going to get better as the season goes along."

In addition to Shepley (38-152) and Burke (38-162), senior Rich Araquil (5-10, 235) also can play fullback, and senior Jeff Thursby (5-9, 160) will get playing time at halfback.

Chargers defeat Salem in clash of state powers

By Neal Zipser

girls basketball

Rankings are often ignored early in the season, but release of the first statewide girls basketball poll this week gave added meaning Tuesday to the Flint Powers-Plymouth Salem contest.

The matchup between the No. 2 team (Powers) and No. 13 (Salem) created a level of interest in a season opener that is usually reserved for tournament games in November.

The visiting Chargers, considered the preseason favorite in Class B, defeated the host Rocks 49-36 behind 27 points and 15 rebounds from senior Lisa Negri, touted as one of the top players in the state.

The 6-foot-2 Negri led a furious second-quarter rally, which saw Powers outscore the Rocks 14-2. The Chargers, 23-2 last year, made 21 of 32 free throws, and Negri was the leader, converting 13 of 16 attempts.

The Rocks, coming off a 22-4 season highlighted by a trip to the Class A semifinals, took an 8-4 lead after two layups and a jumper by senior Darcie Miller, one of three returning starters. Junior Cyndi Platter's two baskets helped keep the Rocks on top, 10-8.

PLATTER SCORED a team-high 10 points and collected six steals, and Miller, who was in foul trouble most of the game, added eight points.

"In the beginning, we looked awful but we weren't really playing bad," Powers coach Kathy McGee said. "You have to attribute some of that to Salem's defense."

The Chargers used their height and speed for a 12-0 run to begin the second quarter. After making five free throws — four by Negri — senior Noelle Beaudry hit a layup to make it 17-10. After a three-point play by Negri, Melanie Shooskey stole a Salem pass, drove the length of the court and made the score 20-10.

"Our strategy, when we play a talent like Negri, is to play her as hard as we can for as long as we can," Salem coach Fred Thomann said. "I thought Emily Giuliani did a good job on her, and Darcie won't be playing against her every game."

The Rocks ended their drought with 49 seconds left in the half on a jumper by Giuliani. Salem committed nine turnovers in the quarter, and Miller spent most of the quarter on the bench.

"We had a little lull in the second quarter and couldn't score," Thomann said. "Darcie was in foul trouble and her not being in the game hurt us offensively. But we turned the ball over a few times, and we had a couple shots but couldn't make them."

"WE CAME out in the second quarter and put more pressure on the ball, but we didn't change much else," McGee said.

Salem made a comeback attempt midway in the third quarter. After Powers opened up a 26-16 lead, a Platter jumper and two Giuliani free throws cut the margin to six. But the Chargers held off Salem and took a 30-23 lead into the final quarter.

Powers took control of the game with an 8-2 run and hit nine free throws down the stretch to put the game out of reach, but Thomann was pleased with the play of his team in its first game.

"It was a great way to start the season," he said. "We played a great team, had a great crowd and played a great game. I told the team that we're not going to hang our heads; we're just going to come out and practice hard tomorrow."

Although fans of both teams were talking about the rankings, coaches and players viewed the subject differently.

Yack, McNamara to lead Canton

By Ray Setlock

boys cross country

After 15 seasons as coach of the Plymouth Canton boys cross country team, Jim Hayes isn't concerned about rebuilding seasons.

With just one senior on this year's squad, he knows things may be slow to develop.

"It will be nice to see the young guys progress during the season," Hayes said. "That is really something fun to watch."

The Chiefs finished third in the Western Lakes Activities Association with a 6-1 record and were 21st in the state meet a year ago.

But graduation will force the Chiefs to do without Mike Ream, Jason Crain, Jason Napolitano and Jim Carnes.

Leading the 1991 team will be All-Western Division runner Dave Yack. He and fellow junior Shawn McNamara will be the co-captains.

"I'LL BE looking for a lot of leadership out of those guys," Hayes said. "Both of them are in good shape and should have successful seasons."

Juniors Mike Boland, Justin Sarrach, Justin McClain, Dave Stroscheim and John Bell will also figure heavily in the Canton plans. Bell is a newcomer to the team.

"There will be a lot of close races this season," Hayes said. "With a young team, it will be real difficult to assume anything."

Other runners expected to contribute include senior Dave Washenko, sophomore Jeff Keith and sophomore Tim Washenko.

"All of these kids seemed to work real hard over the summer and reported to the team in excellent shape," Hayes said. "It will be an exciting campaign. Maybe we can suprise a few people.

"Right now the guys are working real hard and appear ready to go."

The Chiefs begin the season Thursday, Sept. 5, in the Early Bird Invitational at Ypsilanti and then clash with rival Plymouth Salem in a dual meet Tuesday, Sept. 10.

Rocks, Glenn favored

By Brad Emons
and Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Does the "early bird catch the worm?"

For Westland John Glenn and Plymouth Salem, the phrase applies for the 1991 football season.

Both schools are taking advantage of the Michigan High School Athletic Association's optional early starting date.

But their reasons for opting for a two-week break between the first and second games are somewhat different.

Salem coach Tom Moshimer is taking advantage of the rule so his team can have two weeks preparation for perennial state Class BB contender and defending Western Lakes Activities Association champ Farmington Harrison (Sept. 14 at Harrison.)

Glenn coach Chuck Gordon, meanwhile, says "four weeks practice without a game is a tough way to go.

"We're anxious to play," he said. "Two weeks off during the season could help us because we're a young team. But it's important to get off to a good start. It will be a long two weeks if we open with a loss."

Speaking of wins and losses, defending grid prediction champion Dan O'Meara (105-27 last year) may not have the four-leaf clover factor this fall ("No trips to Ireland planned," says the Dublin darling.)

His opponent, still smarting from last year's one-game deficit (Brad Emons went 104-28), vows revenge.

Here are this week's picks (notice nobody is sticking their neck out this week):

FRIDAY'S GAMES
(both 7:30 p.m. starts)

Trenton at Ply. Salem: The Rocks whipped Trenton last year, starting the Trojans on their way to an 0-9 season. Salem finished a respectable 6-3 with a young team. The Rocks have their largest team ever with 61 players, which includes 26 lettermen, and anticipate another successful season if not a banner year. Trenton, on the other hand, is not expected to be much improved over last season despite a new coach. PICK: Trenton can't stop Salem tailback Leon Hister and the Rocks from starting the season with a win.

Highland Park at Westland Glenn: Glenn has won every meeting between the two teams with the exception of 1984. The Polar Bears aren't to be taken lightly, having finished 6-3 a year ago with a victory over Mr. Tyrone Wheatley and Dearborn Heights Robichaud, the Class B champs. Ed Moten, an assistant last year, takes over as head coach.

"They have great athletes and a lot of speed," Gordon said.

Glenn's backfield of Tad Quattlander and John Ward should make the difference. PICK: Glenn gets off to a winning start, both prognosticators agree.

Marlins debut with win; victory escapes Raiders

girls basketball

Farmington Hills Mercy began the 1991 girls basketball season with a victory Tuesday, but the public school teams were not so fortunate in their season debuts.

The Marlins scored an impressive victory over Walled Lake Central, a veteran team expected to contend for the title in the competitive Western Lakes Activities Association, 52-48.

In other games: visiting North Farmington let a lead slip away and lost to West Bloomfield 52-44 in overtime, host Farmington Hills Harrison was beaten by Brighton 60-53 and cold shooting resulted in Farmington losing 49-22 to Warren Lincoln in the first round of the Troy Athens tournament.

MERCY 52, W.L. CENTRAL 48: As expected to be the case this year, the senior duo of center Laure DeMattia and guard Kathleen Berrigan paced the Marlins with 16 and 14 points, respectively.

DeMattia and Berrigan, who also had seven assists, are returning starters from a team that was 17-6 and won a district championship.

The Marlins led 29-20 at halftime and extended their advantage to 45-31 after three quarters.

Central was 10 points better in the final period when it sank nine of 14 free throws but never held the lead. Senior Jenny Czach scored 14 points to lead the Vikings.

W. BLOOMFIELD 52, NORTH 44: The Raiders were on the verge of a big win over a program, which has been one of the best in the suburbs in recent years, leading 42-36 with a minute left in regulation time.

But North missed two one-and-one free throw opportunities and a layup to leave the door open for a Lakers comeback. The Raiders also lost starters Carey Perkins and Becky Macek to fouls in the fourth quarter, leaving North with only five players.

West Bloomfield's Erin Lucas made four free throws and Kelly Conover, who led the Lakers with 12 points, sent the game into overtime tied at 42 when she sank a layup with 13 seconds remaining. The Lakers outscored North 10-2 in the overtime.

"It was a grand opportunity for us to win the game, but the missed layup and free throws came back to haunt us," North coach Lance Davis said. "It hurt because it was our game to win."

North was down 18-6 early in the game but rallied to lead 34-27 after three periods. Perkins scored nine points and freshman Alisha Gordon eight in the middle quarters, and Karen Seremet and Macek added five apiece in the third.

Perkins, a sophomore center, led the Raiders with 15 points, Gordon finished with 12 and Seremet added seven in addition to playing a great floor game, Davis said. Perkins and Gordon also had six rebounds each.

BRIGHTON 60, HARRISON 53: Junior center Heather Hopkins scored 17 points and grabbed 12 rebounds to lead the Hawks, who led 22-21 at halftime but were outscored 39-31 in the second half.

Sophomore Amanda Ault scored 14 points for Harrison, and freshman Krista Snow added eight points and six rebounds.

"We didn't take care of the ball enough (in the second half), and the defensive transition killed us," Harrison coach Pete Mantyla said. "They played three guards and ran a lot, and we didn't adjust well to that.

"We came up short against a good team. I think we're moving in the right direction, but we need to clean it up."

LINCOLN 49, FARMINGTON 22: The Falcons found themselves down 24-8 at halftime after making one of 22 field goals and shooting 4 percent in the first half.

Farmington, which had 34 turnovers and was blanked 16-0 in the first quarter, played better in the second half but couldn't catch the Railsplitters, who were led by 6-foot center Jennifer Brezinski, who scored a game-high 20 points.

"We couldn't play them man-to-man because of the big girl," Farmington coach Brian Swinehart said. "So we played a zone but their girls were hitting from outside."

"We can't go anywhere but up, so hopefully the girls will come back ready to work hard," Swinehart said.

Chargers deal loss to Salem

"The rankings didn't matter," said the 6-1 Beaudry, who added 10 points and five rebounds and also is rated one of the top players in the state. "Some of us came out with some butterflies in our stomachs, including myself, because it was our first game of the year. But the rankings never really mattered."

MCGEE SAID that maintaining the high ranking was not a concern.

"The players take pride in that they are respected throughout the state, but I don't think that will ever make them cocky or complacent," she said.

"We have some fine basketball players, but they weren't born that way. They have worked hard and that work has gotten them where they are right now."

Canton golfers hopeful

By Ray Setlock
staff writer

If the Plymouth Canton boys golf team has one thing going for it this year, it's experience.

The Chiefs, who finished 7-5 a year ago, boast seven seniors and one junior.

"I think we can improve over last season," Canton coach Fred Libbing said. "We have a strong and experienced team."

The Chiefs are led by seniors Jon Paupore, Mike Ross, Jeff Woodruff and Brian Gabbaert. They, along with junior Brad Paskievitch and sophomore Andy Uthoff, will compose the starting lineup.

In the team's opening tri-meet with Plymouth Salem and Trenton at Hilltop Golf Club, Uthoff and Paskievitch were medal winners with 39.

"If we can shoot like that the rest of the season, we'll be in good shape," Libbing said. "I was kind of surprised by those scores."

In addition to its starters, Canton has plenty of promising newcomers, led by sophomore Matt Paupore.

"Matt shows us a lot of potential," Libbing said. "He should be a contributer for us this year."

Other newcomers expected to help the Chiefs include senior Brian Tiell, sophomore Derek Baer, sophomore Adam Gilles, senior Todd Blakeney, senior Jason Braidwood and senior Justin Patterson.

Weight Loss Surprises Researchers

WASHINGTON—A nutrition organization was hopeful that a nutritionally complete "hi-tech" food tablet would help erase world hunger problems, until a study revealed that one of the ingredients could cause significant weight loss.

Researchers in Europe found that an ingredient in the aptly named produce Food Source One actually caused people to lose weight, even though specifically instructed not to alter normal eating patterns, according to one study published in the prestigious British Journal of Nutrition. Researchers in an earlier study had speculated that the weight loss was due to a decrease in intestinal absorption of calories.

While the development of Food Source One, a project of National Dietary Research, would not be used to successfully fulfill its original goal, the discovery has been a windfall for overweight people. A Daytona Beach, Florida woman fighting a weight battle for 12 years used the product on the recommendation of her physician and lost 30 pounds. She stated, "Not only have I lost 30 pounds, but my cholesterol has dropped from 232 to 143. I have two closets full of clothes which have not fit me in two years that I can now wear." In a separate report, a telephone interview revealed that a Wilmington, North Carolina pharmacist lost 14 pounds in 15 days on the product and was never hungry.

Food Source One is available through physicians and pharmacies without a perscription because it is not a drug and contains only natural ingredients already known to be safe. Copies of the referenced style are available free from National Dietary Research, Suite 553, 1377 K St., Washington, DC 20005, however, please include 82 Postage & Handling for each request.

"We'll be balanced; we've got good backs," Moshimer said. "Leon isn't the only one we've got. We might have a different back every week who is a standout player."

Kuzawinski might be an unsung player at wingback but is a good all-purpose back who fills a vital role in the Salem scheme, Moshimer said.

"He's one of our best blockers, which we dearly need to make the offense go, and he takes pride in it," he said. "He's the kind of player you have to have."

THE OTHER linemen will be the senior trio of center Joe Hayes (6-2, 210) and tackles Patrick Stanton (6-2, 210) and Bob Smith (6-2, 209). Johnson moves to guard this year, and Smith might be needed on defense.

"We have decent high school size," Moshimer said. "We're not big but we're not small. In time I think it will be a good line. It's the hardest position to play on the football team, I think."

Seniors Eric Wachlarz (6-1, 165) and Mark Cirella (5-11, 160) will rotate at wide receiver.

With such a large roster, which includes 40 seniors, Salem will be strictly a two-platoon team.

"You won't always have the best 11 players on the field but in the fourth quarter you will," Mosfimer said. "Actually, you gain momentum because the other team is going to fall off because of fatigue, theoretically. Your players improve much faster because they're getting more work."

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Pete Zantop will quarterback the option-oriented Salem offense.

The defensive veterans are seniors Allen August (6-3, 195) and Tim Galda (6-4, 226) at ends and senior Ed Gundry (6-0, 180) at cornerback. August had four quarterback sacks and an interception, and Galda was one of the leading tacklers with 27.

SENIOR HUGH Blake-Thomas (6-1, 235) and either Smith, senior Agron Ujkaj (5-11, 184) or Araquil will play the tackle positions in Salem's 4-3 defense. Ujkaj and Araquil can also play end.

Senior Boyd Rudy (5-9, 180) is the middle linebacker with senior Al Hysko (5-10, 180) and junior Andy Szydlowski (6-0, 181) at the outside positions. Shepley and Burke can play in the middle, too, while Flynn, Kuzawinski, senior Tim Vladu (6-1, 160) and junior Ben Sovereign (5-10, 175) provide depth on the outside.

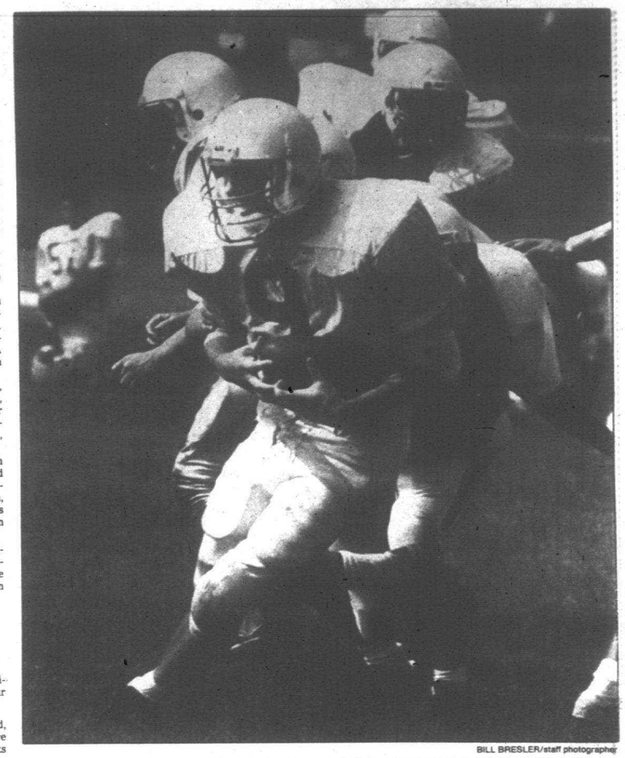
"I have no concerns about our defense," Moshimer said. "We put emphasis on defense and it's going to be one of the best we've had."

Gundry, who made 20 solo tackles and led the team with six interceptions, heads the defensive secondary. His home run in the state championship helped Salem win the Class A baseball title in June, and he was an All-Observer player in that sport.

Senior Pat Martinez (5-9, 150), who played wide receiver last year, will be the other cornerback, junior Todd Forbes (5-10, 165) the free safety and senior Chip Wadowski (5-11, 185) the strong safety.

The Rocks open Friday night with a home game against Trenton and then have two weeks off before playing at Farmington Hills Harrison, three-time defending Western Lakes Activities Association champ, on Saturday, Sept. 14.

"We hope (the week off) is an advantage," Moshimer said. "Obviously, it gives us more time to prepare for what could be the best team in the state."



BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Ed Gundry, intercepting a pass in practice this week, is a returning starter in the Salem defensive secondary.

Heaton, Graham bolster MSU line

the audience start calling — it's true. Size does not necessarily make might in football.

However, it's also true that the Spartans possessed both last year.

Tico Duckett and Hyland Hickson combined for nearly 2,500 yards rushing in 1990. Both surpassed the 1,000-yard mark.

The yards didn't come easily, particularly when Courtney Hawkins, the Spartans' main receiving threat, missed five games in the middle of the season with a broken collarbone. That all but shut down the passing game.

IT WAS a direct challenge to the offensive linemen. "We were a running team," said Heaton. "Everyone knew we were. So they would stick eight or nine guys up on the line of scrimmage and dare you to run the ball."

The Spartans did anyway, and did it successfully. "By the second half, we were starting to wear people down," said Heaton, who took pride in the line's work. "As an offensive line, that's an indication of the job you're doing."

Unfortunately, three of those offensive linemen have graduated. Only Heaton — who started at left tackle last season before breaking his leg in the eighth game — and all-America candidate Jim Johnson, the right tackle, return.

Heaton recovered from his broken leg in time to play in the John Hancock Bowl win over Southern California. He admitted he wasn't really physically ready, after missing seven weeks. And he certainly wasn't prepared to switch to guard, but he did.

"But we had two guards go down (in the game)," Heaton said. "I hadn't stepped in at the guard position in over a year."

AS A SOPHOMORE, Heaton appeared in all 12 games at guard. He switched to tackle prior to last season to replace Bob Kula, who graduated. With both starting guards from last year's team gone, Heaton is changing again.

"It's not really that difficult," he said. "I played guard my first two years here. And to know your position, you have to know what your teammates are doing.

"I like playing guard," he said, adding with a smile, "You do more pulling, and then you get open shots at people."

Like Heaton, Graham has had to adjust to new positions on the line. He came to MSU as a tight end, but as a 250-pound freshman, he didn't stay there long. "I put on a few pounds after the high school season," he said. "I went from tight end to tackle real quick."

GRAHAM PLAYED at tackle for a season before switching to center. He was in the hunt for the starting spot until he broke his right hand after a week of practice last spring, which dropped him to second-string on the depth chart behind senior Chris Piwowarczyk.

Still, MSU coach George Perles noted that Graham was "pushing hard" for playing time. Graham's superior size (Piwowarczyk is 6-3, 265) may give him an edge.

Glenn won off-field battle

By Brad Emons

The off-season battle waged by the Westland John Glenn football squad may ultimately seem greater than what lies ahead for the 1991 fall campaign.

Not that the Rockets won't have any competition to contend with in the tough Western Lakes Activities Association, but it was only months ago that coach Chuck Gordon and his staff wondered if they, indeed, would be able to field a football team.

Because of repeated millage election failures, all sports were on chopping block, including Gordon's program, which has produced a 52-11 record over the past six years to go along with five state playoff appearances.

Finally, in June, Wayne-Westland voters approved a 7.75-mill tax increase, saving all extracurricular activities.

"Our players did an outstanding job in the off-season continuing to prepare during the millage problems," said Gordon, who fields a 59-member varsity team. "They showed a lot of character. It was one of the toughest things I've had to go through in coaching. Trying to motivate was very tough knowing we might not have a program. This group has been through a lot. I think it helped bring us closer together."

THE ROCKETS finished 8-2 a year ago, losing only to Farmington Harrison in the WLAA championship game and Plymouth Canton in the first-round of Class AA playoffs.

Several key performers were lost to graduation, including quarterback Lawrence Scheffer, center Tony Prey (first-team All-Area) and linebacker Jason Gould (first-team All-Area).

But the cupboard is far from empty, as Glenn boasts one of the top returning backfields in the Detroit metro area.

John Ward, a 6-foot-1, 188-pound senior, and Tad Quattlander, a 5-7, 171-pound senior, combined for 1,531 yards.

Ward, an inside runner, gained 904 last year, while Quattalander, a speedster who likes to turn the corner, added 627.

"The unique thing about those two are that they're tremendous team players," Gordon said. "They pull for one another and that's the only way to go for our team.

"Both are much improved. They're both bigger and stronger."

Quattlander also doubles as a dangerous return man, while Ward will start on defense at free safety.

THE FULLBACKS include senior Ed Jeannin (5-9, 182), who saw considerable action last year, and senior Gary Chmiel (5-8, 172).

"Both have good speed," said the Glenn coach. "They key is how well they block."

Scheffer's successor at quarterback is lanky senior Terry Hewer (6-2, 179), the No. 2 man a year ago.

"He has good feet and can move around," Gordon said. "I think his arm is vastly improved. He's performed well during doubles (sessions). We think he's solid.

Steve Fuller graduated at wide receiver, but Hewer has three capable targets in seniors Rick Bennett (5-10, 154), Jon Schuster (5-11, 156) and Lance Shockley (5-1, 146).

"A lot of people know about Ward and Quattlander, but we could be a good passing team," Gordon said.

At tight end, senior Derek Webb (6-2, 210) is coming off a knee injury and will probably miss Friday's home opener against Highland Park, leaving the job open for sophomore Mike Bint (6-3, 196).

The offensive line is anchored by returning starter Jason Hagelthorne, a 6-3, 236-pound senior. The other tackle will be senior Ron Warra (5-10, 248).

Junior Matt Dimitrievski (5-9, 201) and senior Rob Smith (5-11, 195) will open at guard, while senior Carl Brooks (6-1, 208) replaces Prey at center.

"OFFENSIVELY, the key is how quickly our line comes around," Gordon said. "We have the veteran backs and a lot of confidence in our quarterback. We have a chance to become a good team if the line comes around."

Glenn's kicking game will be bolstered by the return of senior Chris Bandy, who made 13 of 15 extra points last season and three of four field goals.

"He has a strong leg with the potential to be in the 50-yard range," Gordon said.

The punter, meanwhile, will be Hewer.

Glenn's 5-2 defensive front will be manned by senior nose guard Kerry Young (5-6, 200); juniors Ron Adams (5-9, 195) and Billy Glass (5-9, 203) at the tackles; and Brooks, Jeannin and senior Kevin McKenna (6-0, 168) at the ends.

The linebacking corps is led by returning starter Jamie Henry, a 6-foot, 190-pound senior; and Hagelthorne.

"Henry is very smart, he understands the defense," said the Glenn coach, "and Hagelthorne moves well for a big guy.

"Overall our defense runs well and has good strength. We don't have tremendous size, so we'll rely on quickness to the ball."

The secondary will consist of Bennett, Ward, Schuster and Chmiel.

Hospitals Care About Your Vital Signs.

Shouldn't You Care About Theirs?

Nobody likes to ask for money. But the fact is, without your support, it's becoming increasingly difficult for hospitals to upgrade their equipment, services and innovative programs. And, sadly, that means that some much-needed medical care may never reach the people who need it most. So do your part, and take care of your hospital. After all, they do the same for you.

What happens when his son asks him to read the story again?

You see, he cannot read. So he's making up a story to go along with the pictures. And his little one loves the story. But when the time comes when he crawls up into his father's lap with his book and asks for the story about the rabbit again, will his dad remember it?

Or later, when his son begins to read, what will happen to their relationship?

There are 20 million Americans who cannot read. They are denied the pleasures of reading books to their children and enjoying everything from novels to newspapers.

How can you help?

Concert band is entertaining

By Keely Wygonik
staff writer

IF SOMEONE asked him what his theme song was, Steven Woloson of Troy, who conducts the Heritage Concert Band, might whistle "Let me Entertain You."

"We are there to entertain," said Woloson. "The TV is offering such an entertainment challenge. To compete, we have to offer something. We're more than stuffed shirts playing concert band music."

From 3-5 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 1, the band will play in Hamtramck at the Labor Day Festival. The concert will be at the Hamtramck Senior Citizens' Plaza, 2620 Holbrook, at Jos. Campau.

Concerts begin with the audience singing "Star Spangled Banner" accompanied by the 52-piece band. During "Take Me out to the Ballgame," they yell then it's "One, two, three strikes you're out at the old ballgame."

FOR "HI Neighbor," some of the musicians put down their instruments and sing When the song ends, everyone stands up, tips their caps and greets the audience with an enthusiastic "hi."

During a "Testimonial to Liberty," a band member reads excepts from the Declaration of Independence and the Gettysburg Address, while the band plays patriotic songs.

Ballroom dancers Belle Kukurka and Ron Sherman of Dearborn Heights add another dimension to concerts, dancing the samba to a Latin American tune.

"We've been dancing together for eight years," said Belle of her partner Ron. "We met Steve, and he asked us if we would dance at the concerts. We said sure. We've won lots of ballroom dancing contests throughout the metropolitan Detroit area. We enjoy it."

WOLOSON'S DAUGHTERS, Maria, Gloria, and Susana play in the band, and his wife, Ines is the music librarian.

The youngest member is drum soloist, 7-year-old Thaddeus Dixon of Detroit. The oldest is 88-year-old Tony Mastrantonio of Clarkston who plays clarinet.

Dixon isn't the first young musician to play in the band. Dennis Carter of Hamtramck, who plays flute, joined when he was in seventh grade. Last year, he won first place in WQRS "Classics in the Making" competition. In June he graduated from Hamtramck High School, and will be attending college this fall.

"The band has people from all walks of life," said Frank Lozano of Livonia. "All the people have this energy. It's a tremendous outlet, it helps you stay healthy."

Most of the musicians played in high school and college bands and orchestras. About 35 are professional musicians, and eight including Lozano have their own bands or small combos.

Recently retired as a principal with the Detroit School System, Lozano has been a band member for about eight years.

"I REALLY like working with the group. It's a community effort. We get a chance to unwind, and are able to help other musicians. I've always been an educator, I like to help educate people. We do that by helping each other, and by playing a variety of music at our concerts."

The band's repertoire spans the world — Polish, Italian, German, Ukrainian, Irish and Spanish.

Founded in 1955 as the B Sharp Music Club, the band was reorganized in May 1984 by Woloson and 14 musicians into the Hamtramck Concert Band.

"Then we were asked to play at the Italian American Festival at Hart Plaza," said Woloson.

On Sept. 19, 1987, the band played for Pope John Paul II when he visited Hamtramck.

"Frank Lozano, one of our members was the principal of Webster Elementary School in a Hispanic neighborhood of Detroit and wanted us to play a concert at his school. We added some Spanish numbers."

Because of the diversity, the band started being known as the Hamtramck Heritage Concert Band.

"Then, we got down to only two band members living in Hamtramck, so we we evolved into the Heritage Concert Band," said Woloson.

"We're making a big effort to be an 'all-type' band." "We play all kinds of music, ethnic, pop, jazz."

This year they performed at the Troy Community Center, Livonia City Hall Plaza, Wyandotte Riverfront Park, the Italian Riverfront Festival in Detroit, Livonia Mall, and the Troy Historical Museum.

They've been playing a lot of Italian music to prepare for a Columbus Quincententary Concert, 6:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 27, at the Italian American Cultural Center in Warren.

"I really enjoy it, because the people are so nice," said Hanna Lahti of Southfield, a professional musician who has played with a number of different groups.

Area residents who are members of the Heritage Concert Band include: Maria Woloson Yar of Bloomfield Hills; Burt Bronson of Birmingham; Laurie Efimoff and Gloria Woloson Zec of Farmington Hills; Elmer Janes, Ken Grabowski, Al Hansler, Frank Lozano, and David Noble of Livonia; Bea Schwedler, Joe Katz, Herman Kushner, and Hanna Lahti of Southfield; Henry Knight and James Macleod of Westland; John Gajec and Mel Yert, Redford.

Steven Woloson conducts the 52-member Heritage Concert Band as they play "Take Me Out to the Ballgame" at the Livonia City Hall Plaza.

Thaddeus Dixon plays his solo, accompanied by the Heritage Concert Band, July 28 at Livonia Mall.

By Keely Wygonik
staff writer

During the concert at Livonia Mall, Thaddeus Dixon squirms in his seat and fidgets just like any 7-year-old who would rather be outside playing on a sunny Sunday afternoon.

But when Heritage Concert Band conductor Steven Woloson turns to the audience and says, "and now I'd like you to meet our guest soloist . . . ." Thaddeus snaps to attention.

He walks to his drum set, nods to Woloson and steals the show as he plays the percussion solo, "High Hat" by Paul Yoder, accompanied by the 52-member band.

"The thing that's really puzzling," said his father, Gus, "is he doesn't seem ready, but when the time comes to play, he takes care of business."

DIXON IS extraordinary. In Novi, he beat drummers age 16 and younger, to win the 1990-91 regional in a contest sponsored by the American Guild of Music. Then he won the 1991 national competition in Chicago.

He takes his music seriously and already has the makings of a pro. During a recent performance at the Troy Historical Museum, Thaddeus dropped a drum stick. He didn't miss a beat and continued tapping with one stick while reaching for another he kept close at hand.

"I don't know where he learned that," said his former teacher, Nick Dombrowski. Dombrowski plays clarinet in the Heritage Concert Band. "A lot of kids would have quit and started crying."

Thaddeus has a knack for music. His parents noticed it when he was 2.

"His grandmother found a beat-up bongo drum at a garage sale. He never put it down," said Gus. "It fell to pieces.

"THEN WE went to Toys 'R' Us and bought him a drum set. He kept playing it. We thought he was serious and bought him a professional drum set. By then his toy set was held together with tape."

When he turned 5, Thaddeus started taking lessons at the Center for Creative Studies in Detroit.

"I like jazz," said Dixon. "Rock 'n' roll is too loud, too bodacious."

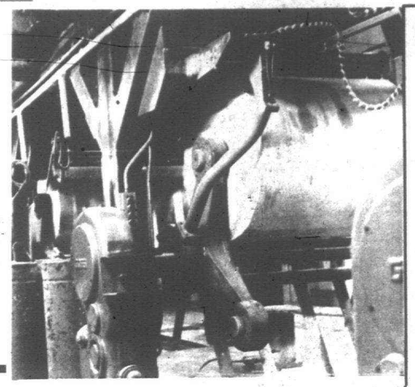
WE'RE ON A BIG ROLL



To be part of the solution, not part of the problem.

Times change. There was once a time when we thought that providing the very best community news coverage was enough.

Today it's not. Today we have a responsibility not only to our readers and advertisers, but also to our environment.

That's why 30% of the newsprint we put on our press has been recycled. This will increase when our other suppliers bring recycled newsprint on line later this year.

Our communities and the entire State of Michigan face a solid waste crisis.

There used to be 624 Type II landfills in Michigan*. The trash from your home, your neighbor's homes and the businesses in your town goes into a Type II landfill. As you read this, there are only 71 of them still open and licensed to do business. That's 71 in all of Michigan's 83 counties. Estimates say one-third of these will be out of business in less than five years.

So what can a business like ours do to be part of the solution and not part of the problem?

We're buying and printing your newspaper on recycled newsprint. We're looking for other recycled products to use in our business. We're recycling all of our newsprint and office paper. We're working to increase public awareness and participation. We're encouraging our readers to recycle.

How can you help? Why not begin with this newspaper; recycle it along with others you may have collected. Then start buying recycled products. Spread the word about those landfills and recycle this page by sharing it with a friend.

And if you are already recycling—thank you.

WE DON'T COVER WORLD NEWS, BUT WE CARE ABOUT THE WORLD

Animals heading south as fall approaches

Timothy Nowicki

As fall approaches there is excited anticipation among those interested in nature because migration, a biannual event, occurs during this season. During summer we get a chance to experience animals we have not seen since last summer and watch the regeneration of our local residents.

But in spring and fall, transients of the north pass through during a small window of the year. Those who cannot travel north to see these animals on their breeding grounds, anxiously await the opportunity to see those long distance travelers.

Migration is a phenomenon that has peaked the interest of man for many years. For some it is a time to add food to the table, for others it is a time to marvel at the abilities of those migrating creatures. How do they do it? Why do they migrate? Why did they start migrating thousands of years ago?

Why animals, like birds, started migrating is still a matter of conjecture. Why they migrate is often attributed to the basic necessity of food.

Why animals, like birds, started migrating is still a matter of conjecture. Why they migrate is often attributed to the basic necessity of food. How they migrate is the most documented area of migration research. Birds use the stars, the sun, geographical landmarks, a biological clock, and the earth's magnetic field to help them orientate over long distances.

Birds and monarch butterflies seen migrating through Pt. Pelle, Ontario, Canada this fall will both use similar orientation techniques. In the month of September, monarch butterflies funnel down the point and wait for a north wind to help them fly across Lake Erie, on their way to the mountains of Mexico.

At Lake Erie Metro Park hawk watchers await the large numbers of migrating broad-winged hawks. These medium sized hawks leave their northern Canada nesting grounds and fly to South America for the winter. Last year hawk watchers counted 48,906 broad-winged hawks on Sept. 17.

Turkey vultures pass through around the first of October, and 19 golden eagles were seen at Lake Erie Metro Park on Nov. 6, 1991.

Migration is not limited to just birds, bats, ladybird beetles, salmon, and whales also migrate. Visiting common stopover locations provides an opportunity to see seldom seen animals.

Tim Nowicki is a naturalist at Independence Oaks County Park in Oakland County. He lives in Livonia.

tem, but we have not created a new system," he said.

Aganbegyan, admittedly "sad and shocked" by events at home and appearing subdued, was greeted with a welcoming sign of joint friendship and teamwork written in Russian by Kroger employees in Garden City.

Nearly all goods sold by Kroger are supplied by Foodland from the firm's Livonia warehouse which contains 1 million square feet and the state's largest food freezer. Kroger also carries some of its own products.

The Kroger store in Garden City was selected as part of Aganbegyan's tour because it is considered a state-of-the-art supermarket, according to manager Scott Dobie. Built less than two years ago, "We have all the specialty departments."

Aganbegyan observed produce "coming from the truck, to the processing room, out to the floor," Dobie said.

Soviet economist drops in for food distribution study

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

Based on recent world events, a new day is dawning in the Soviet Union and a Livonia-based company have been cast to play a small role in the unfolding drama of economic reform.

Foodland Distributors, a food wholesaler serving some 160 supermarket and grocery stores in a 250-mile radius, Tuesday hosted Dr. Abel Aganbegyan, chairman of the Soviet Union's Economic Council of Ministers and a leading advocate of a market economy in his country.

Aganbegyan's visit is part of a two-week tour of the United States, studying and evaluating American systems for food distribution. He visited Foodland's offices and warehouse on Middlebelt and two retail supermarkets serviced by Foodland, including Kroger in Garden City.

Greg Gallus of Farmington Hills, president of Foodland Distributors, is expected to address members of the Soviet economic council in November, according to Mark Markarian, an international marketing consultant who arranged Tuesday's tour because "Foodland is a singularly outstanding firm."

Gallus welcomes a continuing relationship. "Why re-invent the wheel? If we can share ideas (with Soviet economists) about what we do efficiently, we're conserving energy and resources."

AGANBEGYAN, A CLOSE personal friend of Soviet president Mikhail Gorbachev, said Soviet harvests of such commodities as potatoes and wheat are the largest in the world but "our problem is distribution."

Potatoes rot in the fields because, he said, the means of delivery — storage and transportation — are "state property and nobody profits. We must destroy state distribtion and open the way to private ownership.

"We have the wrong economic system. It is impossible to organize the economy in a modern society without a market. We've tried. We must return to the way of old civilization, a return to the market," Aganbegyan said.

"We must learn from the best Western experience," he said.

In 1989, Aganbegyan authored "Inside Perestroika: The Future of the Soviet Economy." He advocated radical reform, stimulating the economy by imposing market forces and financial credits, in unison with increased democracy and self-administration.

The process turned out to be slower, more difficult and more painful than anticipated primarily due to three mistakes in an economic plan of 1988, he wrote. Goszakaz or state purchase of goods is little more than business as usual, ministries charged with reform are not up to the task and benefits to the working class are unsatisfactory.

RECENT EVENTS in the Soviet Union have affected Aganbegyan's tour.

While the economic council which he represents is nonpolitical and information he gathers is expected to influence future economic decisions, time has assumed new importance, he said.

"I don't think it (current political turmoil) is finished yet. I hope this is the turning point and will push economic reform.

"As soon as possible we must move to a market economy, but it is most difficult now. A free market demands free pricing but (removing state controls to) increase prices (now) is socially dangerous. But we do not have time to wait.

"It is a very dangerous situation. We face a crisis, economic as well as social. We have destroyed our sys-

Private colleges refocus on corporate donors

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

There was a time in the not so distant past when corporate America generously provided grants — no strings attached — to private colleges and universities.

That trend has gone the way of the horse-drawn wagon, thanks in part to the recession and a desire by corporations to target funds for a specific cause.

Enter William Liebold, new president of the Michigan Colleges Foundation, a non-profit corporation providing financial support to 15 of Michigan's private, independent four-year liberal arts colleges.

"The national trend is moving away from corporate giving. Gifts are harder to obtain. How to grab what is out there — that is the $64,000 question," said Liebold, who assumed the job on Aug. 1.

As president, Liebold is responsible for the day-to-day operation of the foundation, founded in 1949. Since its inception, donors have invested nearly $40 million in its member colleges.

Commuting from East Lansing to Southfield daily, Liebold has started to schedule dinner meetings with presidents of each college the foundation represents — from Adrian College to Spring Arbor.

"I want to get familiar with the product so that when I meet with a corporation, I can say Albion has this or Olivet has that," he said.

"The trendy cause now is (supporting) K-12 education. Corporations are putting their resources there. But our colleges train the teachers who teach the students in K-12," Liebold said.

AS COMPANIES have shifted their attention to school reform, money that once went to colleges and the arts is being used to foot the bill. More frequently, corporations are demanding that non-profits demonstrate how the companies will benefit from making charitable contributions. Often they move away from giving to small liberal arts colleges to giving to larger, research oriented institutions.

But Liebold is not deterred.

"We're blessed in Michigan with a corporate consciousness which is very socially responsible," he said.

Liebold began his public-service career in 1968 as a VISTA volunteer teaching reading and math to young adults in rural Kentucky. Later he joined the faculty of the Detroit Business Institute as an English instructor. For seven years, he served as a special assistant in the Michigan and Washington, D.C., offices of then U.S. Rep. James Blanchard. When tapped for his current post, Liebold was in private consulting at Lansing Community College.

"When approached I wasn't familiar with the organization, and I consider myself fairly well informed," he said.

Attacking that as part of the problem, Liebold hopes to achieve a higher visibility for the foundation. And he says he'll accomplish that the old-fashioned way, by making phone calls to businesses.

"I want to boost contributions. That is my commitment," he said. "We're certainly in a holding action in Michigan. Hopefully we'll find a way to give (colleges) an infusion of new money."

MICHIGAN IS ONE of 37 states that have a college sponsorship program. At a recent seminar in Colorado Springs, Liebold learned that shifting corporate giving patterns is part of a national trend.

"The good news is that many associations like ours have adjusted to the new reality, approaching with new arguments and receiving corporate support as a result," he said.

One tack Liebold will use is to visit a potential sponsor, identify the challenges the company faces, then offer to hook up the company with a college that can provide solutions.

"Both the college and the sponsor will get a direct benefit."

Housed in a small basement office in a large Northwestern Highway office building, the Michigan College Foundation has a staff of four — including its president. Together the staff processes almost $2 million in contributions annually, filtering the money to the colleges. Undesignated money is divided 60 percent equally, 40 percent in proportion to student enrollment.

The 60-member board of directors, chaired by Jacobson Stores president Mark Rosenfeld, is comprised 75 percent of corporate members and 25 percent of college presidents.

Top shareholders, or contributors, include Chrysler Corp., NBD Bancorp, the Skillman Foundation, Ameritech, Kellogg Co., Michigan Bell and Upjohn. Investors come from Michigan communities ranging from Allegan to Zeeland. Contributions range considerably. Chrysler Corp., giving more than $100,000 annually, sponsors a minority scholarship program.

In addition to visiting with existing givers and asking for their continued support, Liebold hopes to "do a little missionary work and get some new converts."

"It's nice to have a role where you honestly feel you are making a difference," he said. "There's nowhere else I'd want to be."

Some insurers, like banks, founder in troubled waters

This is the first in a series regarding the state of health of insurance industry.

Life insurance has always been a powerful business in our society, faithfully paying out retirement, current income and death benefits down through the generations.

Americans have always believed that their policies were founded in a bedrock of sound investments. That's why the recent financial woes of several giant insurance companies have sent shock waves through the financial services industry.

Understandably, concern is being expressed in the wake of several runs by policyholders and state takeovers of insurance companies. The present patchwork of state regulations regarding the insurance industry has left some policyholders protected and others holding the bag.

Since January of this year, 12 insurance companies have been declared insolvent. Some of these are high-profile insurance companies, including Executive Life, First Capital Life, Fidelity Bankers Life, Monarch Life and Mutual Benefit Life.

But state regulators have not shut the doors at all of these companies. When an insurance company is bankrupt, what happens to its policyholders depends on the company's resources. For instance:

- Mutual Security Life stopped honoring claims in October after seizure by the state of Indiana. Annuity checks soon flowed again, but death benefits were not paid for six months.
- At Monarch Life, nothing changed. Massachusetts put the company into receivership last May, but it has functioned normally and is paying all claims.
- Executive Life is paying all death claims. But savings are frozen. Annuities are being paid at 70 percent of the original benefit.
- Mutual Benefit is covering both death claims and annuity payments. But no cash withdrawals are allowed.
- Equitable Life Assurance Society, bruised by poor real estate and junk bond investments and losses on its guaranteed investment contract business, is doing OK after a $1 billion cash infusion by the French insurer Groupe Axa S.A.

THE INSURANCE industry does maintain guaranteed funds, but they operate by rules far different than those controlling the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. Here are the key rules:

- State rules govern the insurance-finance guaranty funds. These rules vary considerably from one state to another. Only 20 state insurance funds cover guaranteed insurance contracts, or GICs.
- To collect, your insurance must be in liquidation. For instance, you can't collect from Mutural Benefit because it is in default, not in liquidation.
- In general, you are protected for up to $100,000 in annuities and insurance cash values, $300,000 in death benefits and $300,000 for all claims combined.

But there is a bright spot on the horizon. Most companies in trouble do make exceptions for the hardship cases, such as medical emergencies and imminent homelessness. But it is not automatic, and a given case can be subject to different interpretations.

For instance, since April 1991, Executive Life has had 288 hardship requests. Money has been paid out in 90 cases, 102 requests have been rejected, 82 have been returned for more information and 14 are still under consideration.

Next week, insurance ratings will be discussed.

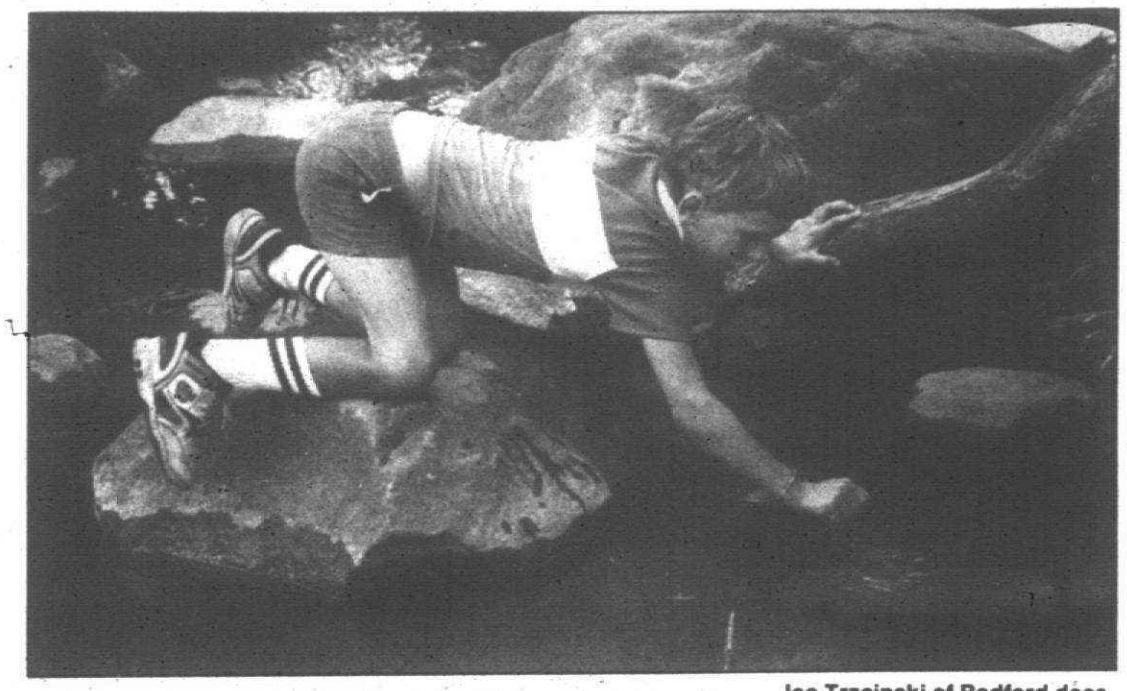
Kids say start of school has its pluses



Joe Trzcinski of Redford does some exploring in the creek at Plymouth Township Park.

BACK TO school time has arrived in the Plymouth-Canton community, and some children don't think that's necessarily all bad.

The youngsters have certainly cherished the freedom that goes with the lazy days of summer vacation. At the same time, they're enjoying seeing friends and learning new things at school.

"I'm kind of glad because summer's boring," said John Rivard, 10, a fifth grader at Eriksson Elementary School in Canton. "Nobody's home and they're all on vacation. I'm kind of glad school's starting."

He has a lot of friends in his class this year. Math is John's best subject, and he also likes science, spelling, language and gym.

"And history because I like Abraham Lincoln and Henry Ford and Thomas Edison, Benjamin Franklin," he said.

JOHN WAS out last Thursday riding his bicycle in Canton, enjoying one of the last days of summer break. His friend Frank Palfalvi, 10, was out riding on his skateboard.

"I'm glad because in summer there's nothing to do," said Frank, also a fifth grader at Eriksson.

The boys have enjoyed many activities this summer, including swimming, a trip to Cedar Point, a visit to a Detroit Tigers game and others.

"Summer felt like it was very short," said Frank, who considers reading his favorite subject.

HEATHER BUCHANAN, 10, also found that summer didn't seem to last forever.

"It was a really short summer," said Heather, a fifth grader at Bird Elementary School in Plymouth Township. "It went by really fast."

Heather and others in her family took some time to go to Plymouth Township Park last Thursday to play. She has enjoyed such activities as a family trip to Camp Dearborn this summer.

John Rivard, a fifth grader at Eriksson Elementary School in Canton, rides his bike.

"My friend, she has a built-in swimming pool and I got to go swimming a lot," said Heather, who wouldn't particularly mind having "at least a week" of additional summer vacation.

She's confident this will be a good school year and agreed that school days aren't all bad.

Joe Trzcinski, 8, a third grader at Jane Addams Elementary School in Redford, was out playing last Thursday at Plymouth Township Park.

"I THINK it's going to be fun," Joe said of the upcoming school year. "I finally have something to do. My most favorite thing is math."

His friend Greg Mischel, who's 8 going on 9, has mixed feelings about the arrival of another school year.

"I kind of like it and I kind of don't," said Greg, a third grader at Jane Addams. "Kind of both."

He likes science class and also gives seeing his friends high marks. "Most of the work we have to do" is lower on Greg's list.

THE BOYS came to Plymouth Township Park after a visit to the Yankee Air Force Museum in Ypsilanti last week.

Karen Trzcinski of Redford brought her two sons and two neighborhood children she cares for to the park. The boys have grandparents in the Plymouth area and visit frequently, she said.

Help in finding child care: It's just a phone call away

By Sue Mason
staff writer

For parents in a quandary about child care, help is as close as the Bentley Center in Livonia.

Tucked away in a few rooms in the former high school, the Child Care Coordinating Council/Detroit Wayne County Inc. stands ready to help parents in the quest for quality child care and to help child-care providers over the pitfalls.

And 4C, as it has come to be known, may be one of Wayne County's better kept secrets, much to the dismay of Eartha DeYampert.

"It's all about educating yourself and what's important for you and your kids," said DeYampert, 4C family day-care specialist/coordinator. "It's about priority and the priority is your kids."

The 4C got its start in 1968 after local communities were challenged by the then U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare to organize and coordinate resources to meet the needs of parents and families, especially in the area of child care.

Eleven individuals, representing human services agencies, formed the coordinating council, which until 1972, functioned as an unfunded volunteer organization.

Today, 4C is funded through a variety of sources. It has a board of directors, an executive director — Carole Quarterman — a staff of 16 and offices in Detroit, Livonia and Romulus and a staffer who works in three GM plants doing child-care referrals.

'It's all about educating yourself and what's important for you and your kids. It's about priority and the priority is your kids.'

Eartha DeYampert

ITS MISSION is to plan, coordinate and work for quality programs for children, youth and families throughout Wayne County.

Parents can call 4C for a list of more than 1,000 registered child-care providers and licensed child-care centers. The 4C provides information and referrals, but shuns making recommendations, one reason why parents need to be knowledgeable or "good child-care consumers," as DeYampert describes them.

And if parents have their children in child care and have a question about policies, 4C staffers are available for consultations, even over the phone.

"Especially, first timers may have questions about policies and don't know who to ask," she said. "A lot of parents don't even know the ratios of providers to children. They don't know that for in-home care it's one provider to six children.

"Parents need to know so they can intelligently discuss what's good for their children rather than leave it in the hands of someone else."

The 4C can provide resource information on child development, parent management, childhood health and nutrition, age-appropriate toys, at-home parent-child activities and agencies providing in-home care.

BUT ITS focus goes beyond child care for infants, toddlers and preschoolers.

The 4C maintains a day camp directory for school-aged children, has a toy lending library for child-care providers, a job bank for employers looking for workers and vice versa, workshops on such topics as child abuse and AIDS and a men and children's program, conducted by DeYampert's husband, John.

A former child-care provider, John conducts monthly get-togethers that focus on activities to do with children for fathers, men who work with children or any man interested in working with children.

There also is training, some carrying college credit through local community colleges, for family day-care providers. Staffers will also go into day-care centers to do on-site training.

"We have information on all kinds of topics, if only people knew where to call and that it's free," DeYampert said. "We've been around for a long time, but it's surprising people still don't know about us."

For parents getting onto the child-care merry-go-round, DeYampert has a few suggestions. The first and foremost is not to make a hasty decision about a home or center.

Parents should know what goes on in the home or center setting, what their children would be doing and how the employees interact with their children.

And the final decision shouldn't be based on cost. What goes on in a center may go on in a home setting on a smaller scale but still be of the same quality.

"Parents in haste will place their child with the first thing that comes along," she said. "You need to visit three, four homes or centers, then make an intelligent decision . . . And don't let cost be the determining factor."

Trip across the ocean's an eye-opener

Summer provides opportunity to learn

By Julie Brown
staff writer

Paul Sass will head home soon with great memories of this summer — everything from eating his first Coney Island hot dog to making some lifelong friends.

Sass, a 20-year-old Englishman, is working this summer at the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth. He's a theology student at the University of Wales in Bangor, and has found his time on this side of the Atlantic both educational and enjoyable.

"I've got a lot of love and fellowship out of the summer," Sass said. "I think those friendships will last a long time."

He's learned a great deal about pastoral ministry through his work at the church. At school, Sass is a counselor for the telephone and drop-in listening service. His work this summer will help him with that.

IT'S NOT every day that students from the United Kingdom come to work at churches in the United States. Sass found out about the opportunity through relatives of the Rev. John Grenfell Jr., senior pastor at the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth.

Grenfell's relatives had come to visit the United States. Sass, who sings in a church choir with those people, heard about the opportunity to come to Plymouth.

"Here I am." He arrived in the United States in early July and will head home Sept. 12. Sass hadn't previously visited the states.

He was born in Manchester and his family now lives in Reading, west of London. He's working on his bachelor of divinity degree and plans to graduate in 1993.

After that, he'll either do postgraduate work, teach or go into the ministry.

He was christened in the Methodist church in England and confirmed in the Church of England. His church at home in Reading is Anglican.

Sass has handled a variety of duties this summer at the First United Methodist Church, on North Territorial in Plymouth Township.

"I've been particularly involved with the youth ministry." He went on a trip to Cedar Point in Ohio with young people from the church shortly after his arrival.

SASS WAS involved in the recent vacation Bible school at the church. He and others from the congregation went to Appalachia this summer as part of a service project.

"I was very pleased to be a participant in that." He was one of nine people, both teens and adults, who worked with volunteers from other churches on a home repair/construction project for low-income families in West Virginia.

He's also assisted with worship services and has been involved in pastoral care, visiting people at home and in the hospital.

Sass hasn't really been homesick, although he's looking forward to seeing his family and friends in September.

"There's not really been that much of a culture shock for me."

The heat did take some getting used to, and Sass is accustomed to more rain at home.

Sass has been able to drive in the United States, and hasn't found it all that difficult to stay on the right side of the road.

The size of the mountains in Appalachia wasn't a surprise to Sass, who's used to seeing hills and mountains in England and Wales. He was surprised at how large things are and how great distances can be in the states, and noticed that southern Michigan is relatively flat.

HE'S SEEN some differences when it comes to worship. His church at home is smaller than the Plymouth congregation, the church building in England is also considerably older. Services he's seen in the states tend to be less formal.

"It's nice to get a change as well."

He's found Americans tend to be more extroverted and outgoing than their counterparts in Great Britain. Americans aren't more or less generous, however, he's found.

Sass has met other college students at the church. He's not accustomed to hearing talk about grade levels, so that took some getting used to as well. All in all, the students aren't that much different.

"Not really, no. I think they've still got the same concerns and same problems. I've found that they're great fun to be with."

Sass hasn't watched a great deal of TV in the United States other than the news, but has noticed the variety of channels. "Oh yes, I'm used to four channels."

He traveled through Ohio and West Virginia during the recent mission trip. Sass hopes to visit parts of Canada before going home. He'd like to return to the states at some point.

When he gets home, he'll have about one week off before resuming his studies. His coursework includes study of Hebrew and Greek.

The program provides vocational training for church work and isn't limited to those who plan to enter the ministry. Sass may instead teach either at the university level or at the comprehensive level, the United Kingdom equivalent of high school.

If he goes into the ministry, Sass isn't sure he'd be ordained in the Anglican church. The United Kingdom includes a number of Methodist congregations, he said.

Sass appreciates the warm welcome he's received at the church. "I enjoy it very much. I've had some good experiences while I've been here."

Rev. Robert Schaden

Little boys and frogs have gone together for almost as long as hot dogs and mustard. Though I remember the excitement of holding those little green jumping machines, a recent experience has caused me to reconsider this one-way love affair.

I was reading on the edge of a lake in the quiet of the north when a family deposited their children on the sand. Quicker than a frog can jump, three frogs found themselves to be inhabiting a soup can.

A little sister of one of the proud owners of the reluctant pet frogs shrieked, "Oh goody, what are we going to name them?" The response was quite emphatic: "You can't name them, 'cuz they're my frogs. I own them."

The child had it right, at least in part; naming anyone or anything implies ownership.

But how does one own something as free as a frog? Alas, the frogs were not only named, they were entered in a race to determine whether the one whose leg was broken in the process could jump as rapidly as the other two.

AT THIS point enter the parents with video camera in focus. It was time to record the winners and the losers for vacation 91. The children cheered the frogs, the parents cheered the children and the show went on.

As the frogs continued to provide entertainment, I wondered just what these children were learning.

Certainly they were learning something about the relationship of humankind to the rest of creation. What were they learning about the relationship between bigger creatures and smaller creatures? What sense of animal rights did they take home with them? Perhaps they learned that we can own what we choose, if we are powerful enough.

There is really no one to blame for what was learned on this Sunday afternoon. These were not delinquent little boys. Their parents appeared to be good people who certainly were not there to teach bad messages. The little sisters were simply being their shrieking selves. These were good people.

But blaming is not the issue. The issue is awareness. The issue is how willing any of us are to redefine our relationship to the rest of creation. Many of us, and I am included, have done our part to put things where they are. How willing are we to put them back where they belong?

WE HAVE all had a share in the taking, the owning and the naming. Like the family who can now show frog races on their VCR, we are good people, but life continues to challenge us to new awareness.

Such awareness may be uncomfortable at times, since it indeed does call for discarding previously accepted behaviors.

But if we can bring ourselves to accept the challenge to put things back where they should be, then perhaps more than a handful of frogs will benefit. The video camera can always be focused on something else.

The Rev. Robert Schaden is with the Newman House campus ministries at Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

Antique show will benefit symphony

By Linda Ann Chomin
special writer

Untold hours of volunteer work on behalf of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra comes to fruition Thursday-Saturday, Sept. 5-7, when the Plymouth Symphony League presents an antique show and preview reception at the Plymouth Cultural Center, 525 Farmer.

A preview reception 7:30-10 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 5, offers antique lovers the chance to buy treasures from the 19th century before the 29th annual show opens Friday morning.

"It's a reception celebration with all proceeds going to benefit the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra," said Judy Lore, event co-chairwoman.

The Plymouth Symphony League's show will host 25 antique dealers from throughout Michigan and Ohio. The dealers will exhibit American and European antiques, prints, folk art, estate jewelry and silver, linens, English brass and copper, quilts, rugs, lamps, and primitives as well as Victorian, classic, Early American and English country.

"The Plymouth show is the first one of the fall season and the dealers have been looking for unusual and special items all summer as they traveled throughout this country and Europe," said Peggy Blaisdell, show co-chairwoman.

AN ANTIQUE dealer with husband John, Blaisdell's booth will offer oak, mahogany and walnut country furniture. Antique kitchen items such as cookie cutters, Blue Willow ware, china platters, yellow ware, baskets, and old advertising tins also will be available.

At last year's preview reception, Blaisdell sold a German chocolate mold in the shape of a bunny before 8 p.m.

"I'm going to have a hunter green iron bed, Victorian wicker chairs, an 1800s English mahogany dresser, and an oak dresser from the turn of the century," Blaisdell said.

Antique fishing lures and handcarved decoys, small wooden boxes, old dolls, and Staffordshire dogs and figures will fill Blaisdell's space.

Blaisdell Antiques has existed as a business for six years, but Peggy and John Blaisdell have been collecting antiques for more than 15 years.

When walking into the Blaisdell's Plymouth home, it's as if you had walked into a home from the late 18th to mid 19th century. Antique pastel portraits of John's family decorate the foyer wall. A cherry, Eastern Pennsylvania 16-pane corner cupboard from 1790 greets visitors to the formal living room.

AS PART of the 36th annual Plymouth Fall Festival, the antique show and preview reception, in keeping with the festival theme, will focus on an "American Small Town Fair." Centerpieces for the evening and flowers in the courtyard will be the type of flowers found in county-fair floral arrangement competition. Flowers cut fresh from the garden, chrysanthemums, mums, pumpkins and gourds will color the show with yellow, gold, orange and turqouise.

This year's preview reception will be simple but elegant and exciting. "We're going back to what we had a couple of years ago, a wonderful party reception," Blaisdell said.

Hors d'oeuvres, desserts and wine will accompany the antiques on preview night. Tickets for the preview reception are $15 and include admission for three days. Tickets can be purchased at the door.

The preview reception and two-day show each fall hosted by the League raises money for the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra. The fall event, an antique show in January and a home tour in May provide part of the operating budget for the orchestra.

"If we didn't have this and the home tour, there wouldn't be a Plymouth Symphony," Blaisdell said.

Arts and crafts attract spotlight at Fall Festival

By Linda Ann Chomin
special writer

GOLDEN AUTUMN brings Plymouth's Fall Festival and with it the 20th annual Plymouth Community Arts Council's Artists and Craftsmen Show Saturday-Sunday, Sept. 7-8, at Central Middle School, Church and Main.

The show features work by 102 artists and craftsmen from Michigan and Ohio. Watercolors, oil and acrylic paintings, pottery, jewelry, wood, toys and country items will fill the juried exhibitor's booths with variety.

"We're always looking for something new that is high quality," said Carolyn Simons, arts council past president. "We have to see every item visually. We don't look at slides. The artists bring their pieces in for us to see."

"This is our largest fund-raiser of the year," Simons said. "Our goal for the show is fine quality so that people will come back year after year."

Landscape and floral paintings of Canton artist Cornelius VanSpronsen reflect that quality, as well as an optimistic outlook on life.

Two weeks ago, VanSpronsen was laid off from his job as graphic designer for a Livonia advertising agency. Instead of seeing the glass as half empty, he chose to see the glass as half full.

"This is a dream of every artist," VanSpronsen said. "Now I have time to paint."

VanSPRONSEN'S MOST recent works favor watercolor but past paintings have included acrylic and oil media as well. Born in Holland, VanSpronsen moved to the United States with his family in 1959. "I'm just another Dutch painter in love with painting," VanSpronsen said.

VanSpronsen began painting at 14 after receiving a painter's kit for a present. Shortly after high school, he became an illustrator's apprentice, working in the graphic design field for a Texas advertising agency. It was there he learned the task of drawing — there, he learned perspective.

"You can't really paint the abstract or non-objective pieces without the knowledge, the basics of knowing how to draw," he said. "Drawing is essential to being an artist."

Cornelius VanSpronsen works on a watercolor landscape, "Irish Meadows," in preparation for the Plymouth Community Arts Council's Artists and Craftsmen Show. Painted from imagination, the watercolor is priced at $275.

Some of VanSpronsen's watercolors are translucent, while others are dense, opaque. "Magnolias" is opaque. A dark charcoal background heavily contrasts the delicacy of the white and gray magnolia blossoms, tinged with yellow and flushed with pink.

"I have to work at getting that contrast. If you put the darkest of charcoals down, when it dries it's three shades lighter," VanSpronsen said. "You have to add more overlays to get more contrast."

THE WORD magnolia, spelled out in type at the bottom of the piece, appears as if airbrushed as it fades from dark fuschia to near white.

In a few pieces, VanSpronsen leaves realism behind. Instead, he chooses to use multiple images, integrating the composition with several ideas and symbolic images.

"The multiple image takes greater preliminary thought," he said. "You can't just sit down and start painting."

VanSpronsen hopes to do more multiple-image paintings in both watercolor and acrylic. "I want to develop, incorporating a combination of images not as photo-realistic into my work, using several images tied together," he said.

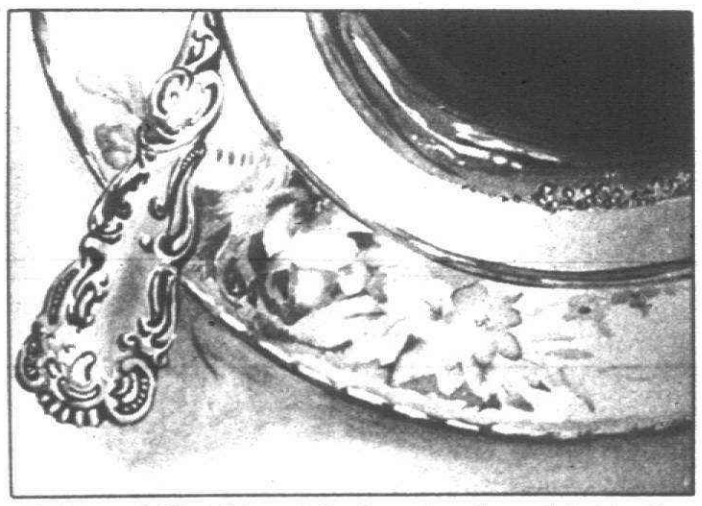
VanSpronsen is doing freelance work to supplement what he receives in workers' compensation. On the drawing board are plans for a house addition he has been hired to draft. He works 4-5 hours a day on design projects. The rest of his time is spent painting.

VanSpronsen prefers to work in uninterrupted blocks of time. "Once I start, I get involved and time just stops. If I stop, I lose the spontaneity," VanSpronsen said.

IT'S OBVIOUS in his choice of color he's an admirer of Andrew Wyeth, but VanGogh remains his favorite painter. "VanGogh's paintings are the most emotional painting I know."

VanSpronsen said once painting becomes as a formula for him, he will stop painting. "I need the challenge. It has to be continual growth for me."

Admission to the Artists and Craftsmen Show is $2, seniors $1, free for kids younger than 12 if accompanied by an adult. Hours are 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.



"China and Silver" is a delicate watercolor painted by Cornelius VanSpronsen.

Right: "Kaffir Lily," a watercolor, is part of a floral series artist Cornelius VanSpronsen is working on. The painting is priced at $400.

Bob Sklar

ARTSBEAT NUGGETS:

● She's always on the go.

"I've never grown bored or tired of it. I'm constantly off to a new place, to see new things and meet new people," said Livonia ceramicist Barb Gibson, talking about her 35 stops a year on the national art show circuit.

Next up is an art show Sept. 7-8 in Norfolk, Conn. Then it's on to Atlanta, Houston, Baton Rouge and Florida, her winter home.

A contemporary artist with bachelor's and master's degrees in fine arts from the University of Michigan, Gibson shows her sculptures in 55 galleries in nine states. She works with son Alan and daughter-in-law Lori, a former clay student of hers at Schoolcraft College, in their family business, Clay by Gibson.

I caught up with her Aug. 11 at the Castle Farms Art Festival in Charlevoix. The 149-booth show is on a 1,500-acre estate built in 1918 as a dairy and horse farm. The picturesque grounds resemble those of a medieval castle. New owners have a major cultural arts center in mind.

The second annual art festival coincides with the more-exclusive Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair, now in its 33rd year.

"I've tried to get into the Charlevoix fair for years," said Gibson, a ceramicist for 24 years. "But it seems to lock into the same people."

Like me, she thinks Castle Farms will become a formidable art show: "The quality of the art is high, and the festival setting is very pleasant."

Gibson's work ranges in price from $24 to $1,500. She's so busy crisscrossing the country that she turns down custom orders.

The travel also forced her to leave her post at Schoolcraft College, where she taught clay for the past eight years.

She now channels any spare time into developing new designs. As she sees it, hot new colors this year include lilac, teal, peach and seafoam green.

Gibson's abstract designs often boast rail-like tracks. This influence is rooted in the railroad tracks she grew up near in Ecorse.

"No matter where I went, I crossed or walked along the tracks. They were an incredible influence — the straight edge, the steel. They've always stayed an important element in my work."

So has the concept of structure.

"I like a lot of structure, a lot of movement. I like the structure of a building before they put the skin on it. I reverse it and put it on the outside.

"The skeleton — that's the most gorgeous part. That's evident in new malls, where some builders have left the sub-structure gridwork exposed in the ceiling sections of the corridors, not covering it all up. Builders are realizing it's aesthetically more pleasing."

Gibson winters in Clewiston, Fla. But far from a retirement home, it serves as a southern base for Clay by Gibson. "God I love it — the travel stays exciting and intriguing. We stretch it to the limit."

● They're well on the way to meeting the challenge.

The Livonia Symphony is within a few hundred dollars of raising the $3,000 needed to win a $3,000 matching grant from the Livonia Arts Commission. The deadline is Sept. 1. About $1,600 was raised at a recent free concert at Madonna University.

The $6,000 (6 percent of the LSO's $100,000 budget) will offset a $4,600 loss in state support as part of Gov. John Engler's 1991-92 arts cuts.

"If we can just stay where we are in terms of funding, we'd be happy," said Francesco DiBlasi, conductor since the orchestra's founding 18 years ago.

Make no mistake: The challenge grant reflects the city's commitment to the symphony. DiBlasi reminds: "The arts commission grant means money coming directly from the city. That shows the city itself wants a good orchestra."

This year, DiBlasi hopes to match last year's 12-concert season.

The challenge grant, though smaller than last year, reinforces the arts commission's understanding that the cultural arts extend beyond the painter's brush.

As arts commissioner Dorothy Wilshaw put it, "It's nice to have a symphony. A lot of cities our size don't."

Free-speech struggle dramatically captured

Make No Law, The Sullivan Case and the First Amendment, Anthony Lewis, Random House, 1991, 355 pgs.

books

Steve Barnaby

New York Times columnist Anthony Lewis has written a thriller.

But unlike other popular authors who pen fictional accounts of Soviet/American or Arab/Israeli conflict, Lewis has authored a volume revolving around the U.S. Supreme Court's historic decision, New York Times v. Sullivan.

It's spellbinding and better yet the true tale of how a common thread of Constitutional thought has been weaved together throughout the decades to arrive at one of the most important free-speech decisions in American history.

The Sullivan decision, which for the first time brought libel under the jurisdiction of the First Amendment, began in March 1960 when the New York Times ran a full-page advertisement defending Martin Luther King Jr. and the civil rights movement — and attacking "Southern violators of the Constitution."

Montgomery, Ala., city commissioner L.B. Sullivan, in charge of the police, fire, cemetery and scales departments, took exception to the advertisement. He maintained it libeled him, even though he wasn't mentioned.

The advertisement criticized the action of Montgomery police for their handling of civil rights protesters on the state capitol steps.

THE CASE traveled through the Alabama court system, with the New York Times losing at every turn. Traditionally, libel law had fallen under the jurisdiction of the state governments.

The Times, although its Alabama circulation numbered only in the hundreds, was concerned that if Sullivan was successful, a chilling effect would inhibit newspapers from informing readers of the civil rights movement in the South.

So concerned was the newspaper community that both the Chicago Tribune and the Washington Post filed briefs as friends of the court, urging the U.S. Supreme Court reverse the Alabama judgment.

The Alabama court decisions amounted to $3 million in penalties. The Times was not only sued by Sullivan but also other state government officials, including the governor. Also named in the Sullivan suit were four black Alabama ministers whose names appeared on the advertisement.

Lewis regales the reader with fascinating background material, essential to the understanding of the Sullivan decision. He recalls the Sedition Act of 1798, which made it a crime to criticize the government, and shows how its spirit was revived during World War I to threaten free speech.

THE MORE exciting and dramatic chapters deal with how the dissenting opinions of Justices Holmes and Brandeis, two disparate personalities, survived to become the law.

You'll struggle along with Herbert Wechsler, who fashioned the Times' winning strategy and who took his responsibility in an "intensely private way."

And you'll sit on the edge of your chair as Justice William Brennan scurries about the hallowed chambers seeking a majority, only coming up with a unanimous decision after writing eight different drafts.

Lewis' book is important because it shows how public debate is relevant to everyone in America, not just the media.

As Brennan concludes, "debate on public issues should be unihibited, robust and wide-open and that it may well include vehement, caustic and sometimes unpleasantly sharp attacks on government and public officials."

LEWIS CONCLUDES his book by noting some of the developments since Sullivan, which disturb the process of free speech.

"The modern way to silence criticism is to price it out of existence with protracted libel litigation," said Philadelphia Inquirer editor Eugene Roberts.

This is a book that will make you think about America's past and its future, something important for everyone who values democracy.

Monte Nagler

Many good pictures you see aren't the result of a fortunate accident or chance. Most often, they have been planned and created by the photographer.

How do you create strong pictures? Begin by learning good techniques of composition, which include choosing an effective center of interest for your shot.

For example, have you ever composed a photograph in the viewfinder only to realize that something just isn't right? There's an element missing that if included will give your shot special impact.

Perhaps it's the sunset-over-the-lake picture that just doesn't make it until you include the silhouette of the lighthouse in the viewfinder. Or maybe it's the landscape that lacks impact until you adjust and put the dramatic mountain peak in view.

You see, including a center of interest can make a weak composition into one that's strong in viewer interest.

AVOID PLACING your center of interest in the center of the picture. In the center, your shot may look static and uninteresting. Use the "rule of thirds." When you divide your scene into thirds both vertically and horizontally, the dividing lines intersect in four places. Any of these intersections provides a pleasing position for your center of interest.

"Framing" techniques and "lead-in lines" that I've discussed in past columns also help to add special impact to your main subject.

ON A recent trip to Greece, I discovered this attractive scene of steps, doorway and courtyard in the remote mountain village of Papingo. Yet something was missing. I needed a strong center of interest.

My prayers were answered when a delightful Greek woman came by and willingly posed for my camera.

Notice in the photograph how she becomes the center of interest with all other elements in the composition being secondary.

I placed her in the lower right "third" and made sure I used a small aperture to render everything from front to back sharp and in focus. What resulted is a captivating picture of a charming Greek woman in her natural environment.

Using a strong center of interest can improve your photographs dramatically.

Monte Nagler is a professional photographer based in Farmington Hills.

Suburbs back Symphony Showplace

There will be a lot of suburban participation, including from Livonia, in Symphony Showplace '91 scheduled Oct. 5-20 in the River Place Apartments of Detroit.

Interior designers from Oakland and Wayne counties make up more than half of those participating in this major benefit for the Detroit Symphony Orchestra under chairwoman Barbara Zobl of Bloomfield Hills.

ASID designers participating include Laura Kaminsky, Laura Kaminsky Interiors, Livonia.

The event is sponsored by the orchestra's Volunteer Council, the Michigan Chapter of the American Society of Interior Designers and Stroh River Place.

The year's event, different from the previous ones held in new, single residences, will feature a variety of apartments that are examples of historic restoration.

IN ADDITION to the tours of the lavishly decorated apartments, Symphony Showplace '91 will feature a series of special events — cooking demonstrations and luncheons by Chef Jimmy Schmidt, box lunch and fall color tours aboard the Detroiter boat, how-to interior design seminars, sporting events at River Place Athletic and Croquet Club, music, art exhibits and special overnight packages at the River Place Inn.

Stroh River Place is a 30-acre, $250-million redevelopment project on Detroit's east riverfront, which includes the Stroh Brewery Co. headquarters, 600,000 square feet of general office space, 75,000 square feet of retail space, 301 apartments, an athletic club and a 107-room hotel.

The apartments, with occupancy beginning in January 1990, have high beamed ceilings, interior brick walls, massive windows, private entrances, landscaped courtyards and private terraces. Now under construction are 54 penthouse apartments atop the six-story parking structure.

The Volunteer Council of Detroit Symphony Orchestra Hall is a 600-member group that works to assist the orchestra by sponsoring a variety of fund-raising events, acting as docents in the educational outreach program and acting as hosts for visiting artists.

A BLUE and white antique quilt from Burton Gallery Antiques on Penniman will be given away in a drawing to benefit the Plymouth Symphony. The quilt, an original design, is hand-stitched, pieced and appliqued. Valued at $350, the quilt was made in the late 1920s or early 1930s.

Tickets for the drawing will be available at the door for $1 apiece, or six tickets for $5.

Last year's preview was a financial success in spite of a tornado sighting and torrential rainstorm, which left the parking lot flooded with ankle-deep water. The League raised $8,100 for the Plymouth Symphony that memorable night and the next two days.

"Our goal this year projects our profits to be over last year's total," Blaisdell said.

Bette Lynn Nowka of Northville, a dealer in the show for four years, will have Early American country antiques, small accessories and collectibles.

"It certainly is a wonderful show," Nowka said. "We are really fortunate to have this show in our community. It's really a tradition in Plymouth. The show gives people the chance to learn about antiques, as well as buy quality antiques."

"It's a smaller show that enables people to talk to the dealer. There's the opportunity for a personal exchange with the person who's selling it, the person who knows its history," Nowka said.

MORE IMPORTANTLY, the show supports the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra, which is about to begin its 46th season.

"In light of the economic situation, the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra needs community support. The antique show and preview support the arts in the community," Nowka said.

General admission to the antique show on Friday and Saturday is $3. Prices of antiques in the show range from $5 to $2,000.

There will be a mini deli on Friday and Saturday serving sandwiches, salads and desserts from the Penniman Deli. Coffee and soft drinks will be available.

Other area dealers taking part in the show include Ann Cook, Northville, country; Rosalie Alexander, Orchard Lake, prints; Pauline and Jackie Work, Farmington Hills, jewelry; Esther Spurlock, Bloomfield Hills, English and American pine; Kathleen Batzold, Troy, Early American country; Roberta Hosper, Royal Oak, fold art and country; Cindy Brautigan, Plymouth, homegrown herbs and wreaths, and Linda Clark, Plymouth, crafts and antiques.

Show hours are 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday, Sept. 6, and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 7. For preview night reservations, call Judy Lore at 453-5181.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

Real estate seen as financial plan ingredient

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

Have money, will invest?

At least one local real estate company wants potential investors to consider real estate, in addition to the more common stocks, bonds and mutual funds.

"We're not financial planners, but we'd like to get inserted as a member of an investment team," said Toby Wagner, executive vice president of Jack Christenson Realtors in Troy.

A real estate-based investment plan that offers consumers the opportunity to plan in real estate futures the same way they now plan for retirement and their kid' college educations is available through Christenson.

"Most financial planners don't push real estate because they don't know the product," Wagner said. "But real estate for most people represents the majority of equity they have."

Those interested in formulating a real estate plan need not be in the market for a new home, according to Wagner. The system covers topics such as renting versus buying, moving up, setting real estate goals, increasing net worth, enhancing home value and discovering personal real estate purchasing power.

The system covers topics such as renting versus buying, moving up, setting real estate goals, increasing net worth, enhancing home value and discovering your personal real estate purchasing power.

THE MODEL WAS developed by East Coast real estate consultants Allan Dalton and Joseph J. Murphy, and is being touted on both the East and West Coasts. Dalton is traveling the country now conducting workshops for real estate salespeople.

Forty-five Christenson agents from offices in Troy, Shelby, Clarkston and Lake Orion have been trained thus far.

"It's really a self-help guide," Wagner said. "We give you the pages, you fill in the numbers in the privacy of your own home. It gives you a better idea of the financial position as it stands."

The type of investment recommendations made depends on the client.

"(The guide) covers the whole gamut from renter to first-time home buyer. It could involve people who want to move up, or empty nesters who want to move down and use their one-time tax exclusion."

The workbook carries a note urging consumers with specific concerns to seek the advice of an attorney, accountant or certified financial planner. Wagner is quick to point out that real estate agents aren't financial planners.

The worksheets set out to analyze value of the current home, a tax analysis, move-up analysis, determining net worth, and reviewing real estate options. It breaks everything down item by item and provides a forum for detailed questions.

There's a checklist of 10 things homeowners can do to add value to the home, whether a move is being considered or not. The model includes definitions of various real estate options, such as purchasing rental property, undeveloped land, syndication, limited partnerships, real estate investment trusts and equity sharing.

WAGNER SAYS the model is not meant to be a high-pressure sales tool.

"There's no pressure at all," Wagner said. "We hope to enlighten people about how much their property is worth. This isn't a shotgun approach. We want to cultivate clients for life."

Real estate is not as popular an investment as it was during the overpriced 1980s, according to Stan Rosenfeld, president of Financial Planning Group of Farmington Hills.

"I think the reason financial planners don't push real estate today is because of so many problems in the past. There used to be very favorable tax laws, but that's all changed under the new tax law. Today real estate has to stand on its own two feet.

"I suppose this concept is fine as long as the real estate is sold strictly as an investment and not a tax shelter."

Bylaws should be amended regarding fee collection

Our homeowners association is having difficulty collecting assessments from its members. There is no obligation in the association bylaws to impose a lien for non-payment. Is there any other basis by which we could pursue members for collection?

Assuming that there is a contractual obligation on the part of the homeowners to contribute to the assessments, the association can only start a suit in district court for money damages with respect to the back assessments.

To the extent that the bylaws allow for the association's recoupment of costs and attorney fees in the action, it may also be able to collect its costs and attorney fees. While placing a lien on the unit of a member puts the rest of the world on notice of the obligation to pay assessments and could result in the foreclosure of the home, assuming the associaton has the authority to do so, ultimately, legal proceedings must be commenced unless the co-owner satisfies the lien.

I would pursue the delinquent co-owners by way of a money judgment suit and seek to amend your bylaws to enhance the authority of the associaton in collecting assessments.

Why has it taken so long for developers in this state to be compelled to provide more than a one-year warranty on units? We all know that these units should be required to last for more than one year. Sometimes it takes many years before one can determine the kinds of defects found when buying a condominium or co-op. Shouldn't developers offer a better warranty?

condo queries
Robert M. Meisner

The Department of Licensing and Regulation expects that developers will be responsible for their work for at least 18 months. But, short of legislation, there is no specific obligation on the part of developers to provide any specific warranty other than that mandated by the licensing and regulation department.

It would have to be a matter of legislation for developers similar to auto companies providing greater warranties to customers. I would suggest that to the extent that you feel strongly about this that you write your legislator expressing your views.

When we bought our home from the seller there was a provision in the contract that we were buying it "as is." We believe the seller concealed or misinterpreted certain aspects of the condition of the roofs. Can we successfully sue for fraud or misrepresentation?

Yes. In a recent Michigan Court of Appeals decision, the court held that even though the plaintiffs bought a home "as is," they may still sue for fraud or misrepresentation if they can plead sufficient facts to support a fraudulent concealment claim — that is, that the sellers knowingly concealed the defects from the purchaser.

HOW TO DO A LITTLE BUSINESS ON YOUR OWN...

Holding a garage sale is a fun way to do a little business on your own . . . but it takes a bit of planning.

Like you'll want to decide what to sell and how much to charge for each item . . . and then you'll need price tags so other people will know what you're charging.

And you'll have to be able to make change for all your customers . . . so that means you should have lots of one dollar bills and an assortment of coins.

Then you'll want to advertise your sale to attract that crowd. You can do it with a sign or signs in your neighborhood . . . but you'll want a bigger crowd than that . . . so you'll run an ad in Classified which tells the time and place of your sale to a host of potential buyers.

Have fun with your little business adventure!

Pick up your free Garage Sale folder in our office when you place your ad! (Contains two signs, two arrows, a handy ledger, 14 tips for a successful sale and nine tips for a successful ad).

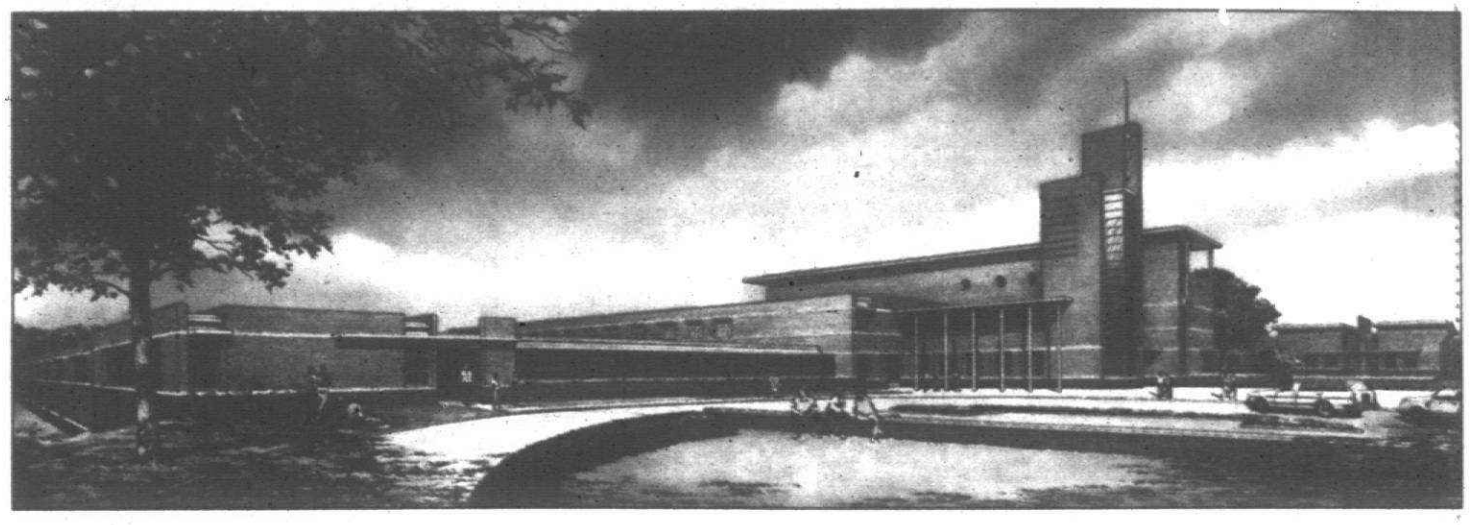
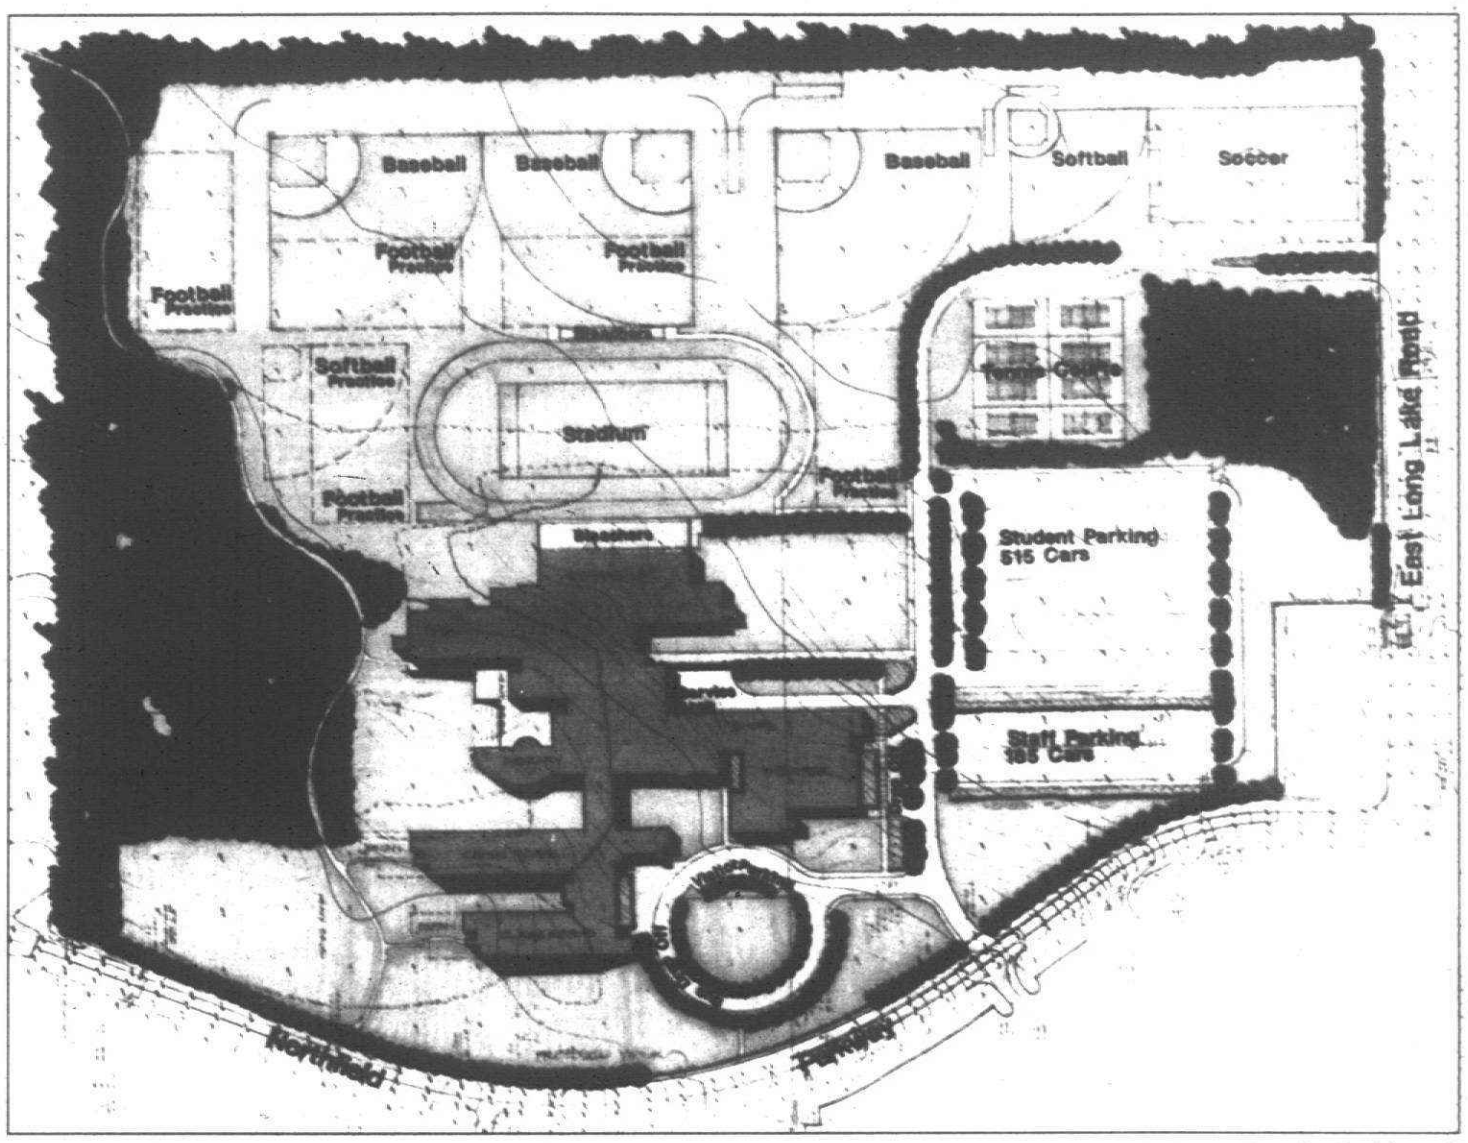
School design: academic, my dear architect





An artist's rendering depicts the tower and main entrance with administrative offices at the new Troy High School. The site plan, with the school shaded in red, shows the physical layout of all facilities on the 72-acre property.

By Doug Funke
staff writer

Coming up with a plan for a house to satisfy just one family can provide enough challenges for an architect.

So consider what's involved in trying to design a building to accommodate some 1,800 high school students, 160 teachers and support staff, and the community at large, which also will use the facilities and foot the bill.

Architects like C. William Brubaker, a partner at Perkins & Will in Chicago, know what it's all about. His firm designed the new Troy High School now under construction at Long Lake Road and Northfield Parkway.

"You analyze the site and the neighborhood and you also analyze the educational needs — those two things are the primary form generators," he said.

"We met with dozens and dozens of teachers, community groups, board of education, students and administrators to find out what is going to be taught and how it's going to be taught," Brubaker said. "That determines space needs."

"Community input is very important," added Lowell Crandall, executive director of auxiliary services for the Troy schools. "Recognizing from the outset it's a community building, we wanted to hear what they had to say."

PLANS ADVANCED from schematic design to design development, working drawings, construction bidding and now the work itself.

The highlights:

- Two academic wings, one of three stories, the other two stories nearest a residential area graded so that they appear not as high.
- Sectionalization so that gyms, pools and locker rooms are clustered at the opposite end of the building from the academic wings, fine arts classrooms are placed near the auditorium, and the library and cafeterias are centrally located and easily accessible from all points.
- A spire at the main entrance pinpointing administrative and counseling offices.
- An integrated audio/visual communications system.
- A curved library wall to get away from a box look and a series of outdoor steps built off the library to produce an amphitheater.
- Three kinds of exterior brick treatment to give the building a less massive appearance.
- Air conditioning in classrooms.

BUT THAT'S not all.

There's lighted parking for nearly 750 cars.

The athletic facilities — a football stadium/track, three practice football fields, three baseball diamonds, three softball diamonds, a practice soccer field and eight tennis courts — will be placed on the 72-acre site well west of existing residential subdivisions.

The school is scheduled to open in the fall of 1992. Construction costs are estimated at $35.5 million.

Jim DeLage is an assistant superintendent on the building site for Barton Malow, construction manager.

"The first view of the building as you approach is unique — it's not a typical box design," he said. "They have some curvature, some design. They have three kinds of brick. That's eye appealing and impressive right off the bat. That carries right through the building. There's a lot of openness.

"My personal thought is what a nice atmosphere to learn in," DeLage continued. "I think there's a little something here for everyone. It's more a college atmosphere than high school."

BRUBAKER SAID his firm has designed a half dozen high schools in the last few years.

"I think the (Troy) building has more the spirit of a college and less the feel of an old high school," he said. "We're trying to make this a good academic environment.

"Noise of the gym is away from the library. You cluster art and music around a big auditorium. Shops also are in the arts wing with acoustical separation. The dining area opens onto a beautiful terrace.

"Troy High School is going to have a nice entrance tower," Brubaker said. "At a lot of schools, you don't know where the main entrance is. You get dozens of visitors every day."

A naturally sloped amphitheater off the library probably will become a noon time gathering place and may prove attractive for an occasional class or low-key artistic performance, Brubaker projected.

And why only 800 auditorium seats in a school that will service some 1,800 students? "It makes for a much nicer theater," he said. "And it's more economical."

Assemblies can be held in the main gym, which will seat 3,000.

Windows — large and expansive in the library and cafeteria, moderate in the academic wings, quite small in the gym to non-existent in the auditorium — are more decorative nowadays than necessary for light, Brubaker said.

THE INTRA-BUILDING communications system for the new Troy High goes way beyond a PA system between central office and individual classrooms.

"A teacher can come into the library and say, 'Tomorrow at 10 a.m. show the tape on birds.' At 10 a.m., she can hit a button on the panel and the film starts showing (in the classroom)," he said.

Educators and architects apparently have made an interesting discovery in recent years.

"Schools aren't just schools anymore, they're community centers," Brubaker said. "You have to be more sensitive to adult needs. You need better night lighting, better security, a better relationship between building and parking.

"Schools are concrete, brick and steel beams. The way you assemble them is where good design comes in. You can design well or in an ordinary manner. It (construction) will cost the same," he said.

'90s decor: paring down to mirror economic weakness

(AP) — Nancy Novogrod gives her readers more than a window on the design world. As the editor-in-chief of HG magazine, she opens the doors to some of the world's most interesting residences.

The slick, chic magazine, whose 40-something readers have a median income of $90,000, is billed as "the authority on design, decoration and style."

"We aren't driven by those reader statistics," Novogrod said. "We have many readers in their 20s and 30s as well as in their 50s and 60s. They're sophisticated and interested in design."

Current trends go under the magnifying glass in HG, much like a museum curator examines his specimens. But Novogrod readily admits the magazine does more than report and record trends.

BY CHOOSING which designers and houses to feature, the editors make the magazine a trend-setter with the ability to change the way decorators, and the Americans who hire them, think.

Novogrod brings it all into focus, matter of factly, by saying the '90s will be characterized by a scaling or paring down and pulling back in decor, mirroring the tight economic times.

"My house has to function as a family home, with some formal aspects but with places where we can be comfortable, too," Novogrod said.

"Knickknacks and crowded tablescapes are disappearing. The number of furnishings in a room will be sparer, too, to create a more open feeling. Fed up with crowding, we want to spread out again.

"Every piece will hold its own, rather than being a generic upholstered sofa or chair. Gilded chairs or mirrors will be more important than ever for accent pieces because they'll stand out more when there are fewer things around them," Novogrod concluded.

The move away from very crowded, chintz-covered rooms and expensive window treatments with elaborately draped fabrics and dangling tassels, as well as sofas nearly concealed by assorted throw pillows, is a natural response to the excesses of the 1980s.

"The Marie Antoinette approach just doesn't work," Novogrod said. The same movement means the fading of the English country look, according to the editor-in-chief, who acknowledges that although she is tired of it, it still works on the East Coast.

NOVOGROD, WHO attained her editorial post three years ago this month, has had a sharp design focus for substantially more than a decade, first as executive editor at Clarkson Potter (where she was responsible for their highly successful series of illustrated design-lifestyle books), and then as HG senior editor developing feature ideas and overseeing the decorating and gardening departments of the magazine.

She's in a position to see new fabrics, textures and furnishings every day. But she avoids the temptation to change her surroundings with every trend that comes along. "I'm not a perpetual fixer-upper.

"One of the problems I've seen in decorating is that I see so many things I like. I know, however, that before I would have time to incorporate them, they'd be cliches. Besides, change is disorienting when the whole idea is to be comfortable in your surroundings."

She admits she lived with "a lot of red paisley and chintz, with yellow and red walls" and lots of clutter for nearly 15 years before she tired of it and followed her own vision of the future.

TODAY, SHE AND her attorney husband and two children (ages 8 and 11) live in an apartment decorated in soft creams and beiges. There are simple blue silk curtains and a few interesting pieces like a French Directoire desk, neo-classical chairs covered with leopard-patterned silk velvet and an ottoman with gilded ball-and-claw feet. Of the more open look, she says, "What I love is that I can look more closely at the things I do have."

She's almost as likely to find those interesting accents at flea markets as she is by using the services of a decorator.

"I love to go to flea markets because it's satisfying to find things that have value for the way they look, rather than for their expensive price tags."

But don't flea-market acquisitions add to clutter?

"No," said the admitted collector of everything from English 18th- and 19th-century porcelain to 20th-century ceramics and silver. "People are simply more careful and selective about what they buy and display," she said.

She schools readers in selecting furnishings that will last at least five years, preferably 10. "Buy wisely; start with a color scheme, a great fabric, a rug or a great piece of classical furniture and go from there."

'Remember that styles do change. Pick something because of its comfort and because it appeals to your own tastes. A home that is conceived to meet the needs of people who live there, with some elegance and some comfort, will age well.'

— Nancy Novogrod

SHE REVIEWS design decades as quickly as a person can pull down a shade.

"Extremes of any style, like whale bones and bustles of early fashion, don't age well. The 1970s minimalist look was something of a straitjacket that isn't easy to live with. The 1980s version of English country house is a very decorative look that has been overdone. Today, Regency and Victorian decorative looks will be the next to be overdone. When a look is too identifiable, it doesn't age well, either.

"When choosing your furnishings, remember that styles do change. Pick something because of its comfort and because it appeals to your own tastes. A home that is conceived to meet the needs of people who live there, with some elegance and some comfort, will age well."

Adding a few easily identifiable antiques or quality reproductions will add interest, but avoid recreating a particular historical period. "Unless you have the help of a decorator or a great sense of the era, this is a good way to get into trouble," Novogrod said.

Mixing periods isn't without its pitfalls, either. An American country table in a Louis XIV room would clash.

Although it's possible to redecorate successfully without the help of a professional, about two-thirds of the homes featured in HG have been professionally decorated. In some cases, the decorator is the architect who designed the home.

"SELECT A decorator on the basis of referrals. If you visit a friend's home and learn that he or she employed a decorator, ask for the decorator's name. Look at magazines to find designers' work you like. Ask to see pictures or scrapbooks of homes they've done and speak to two or three before making your choice. Consider personalities, too, because redecorating can turn out to be a very trying collaboration," Novogrod said.

No matter whether you hire help or opt to go it alone, keep in mind that the end goal is making your home more comfortable. It doesn't have to drain your wallet, either. Novogrod named a number of tactics that don't require a big budget:

"Simply by taking some things off the tables you can clean out a lot of the crowding. Lighting should be good, because poorly lit rooms aren't inviting.

"A new carpet or rug, some simple new curtains or a different color paint on the walls can give a room a new look.

"Make sure the traffic flow is good, because you want to be able to go from the living room to the dining room without tripping over a bench.

"The seating area should accommodate you and your family or guests. Any seating should be comfortable. No one should need to clear piles of pillows before sitting down."

Here's where to find it

If you're having a new house built or are in the market for one, it's a good idea to know the structural terms. Here's a list from HomeMaster, a national home inspection company.

1. Ceiling joist: one of a series of parallel beams used to support ceiling loads.
2. Rafter: one of a series of structural members designed to support roof loads.
3. Flooring: the interior horizontal surface of the house. May be plywood if carpeting is used.
4. Fascia: a flat, horizontal member of cornice placed in a vertical position.
5. Header: a framing member across the top of an opening to distribute the load.
6. Roof sheathing: flat boards that are nailed to the rafters to which is fastened the covering.
7. Roof covering: the outer surface of the roof designed to withstand the elements.
8. Window casing: the framing members containing and supporting the windows fo the hours.
9. Gutter: an open channel installed along the eave of a roof to take away rain water.
10. Door jamb: an upright surface that lines an opening for a door.
11. Siding: the exposed surface of exterior walls of frame buildings.
12. Wall sheathing: a sub-surface material nailed to exterior studs to back the siding.
13. Parge coat: a coating of a foundation wall to retard the passage of water.
14. Drain tile: an underground drainage system used to carry off excess water at foundation footings.
15. Slab: concrete floor placed directly on earth or grave base and supported on the footings.
16. Chimney flashing: a shield used at junction of chimney and roof to prevent leaks.
17. Floor joist: one of a series of framing members that rests on outer foundation walls and interior girders.
18. Sub-flooring: a wood or fibrous material that is nailed to the floor joists and that receives the finished flooring.
19. Footing: a concrete horizontal base on which the house foundation rests.
20. Main girder: the main support that ususally runs between foundation walls to carry the weight of a floor.
21. Foundation: construction below or partly below grade that provides support for the house.
22. Sill plate: one of a series of horizontal framing members resting on top of the foundation wall.
23. Bracing: technique used stiffen the building. Its used has diminished with the advent of plywood sheathing.
24. Soffit: the visible horizontal underside of the eave or overhang of a house.
25. Stud: the vertical members of the house framing to which horizontal sheets are nailed.
26. Wall board: an interior wall surface of plasterboard or material other than plaster.

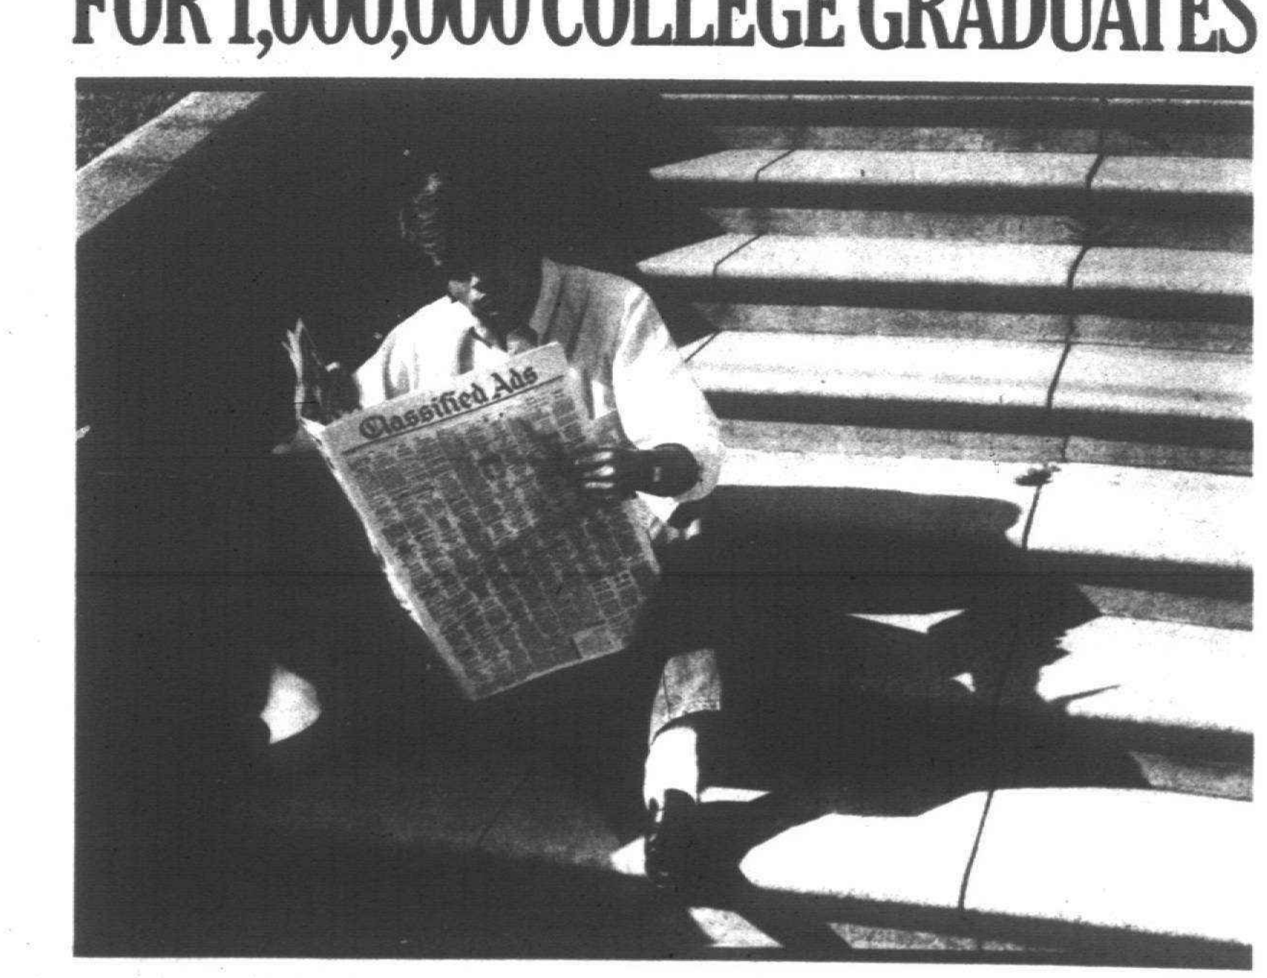
THIS YEAR'S REQUIRED READING FOR 1,000,000 COLLEGE GRADUATES



Welcome to Real World 101.

You'd be surprised how many college students go from highlighting textbooks to highlighting the classifieds. The fact is; a staggering number of graduates are unable to secure a career in their field of study.

That's why there's a nationwide program for college students called Cooperative Education. It allows students to alternate studies at the college of their choice with paid, practical work experience in the career of their choice. So Co-op Education students graduate with more than a degree. They have practical knowledge. And a competitive advantage in a crowded job market.

If you're a student, you should seriously consider the Co-op Education Program.

Because after years of studying in college, the last thing you need is another reading assignment.

Co-op Education

You earn a future when you earn a degree.

Shades of stripes shout "anything goes" this fall. Short double-knit, cotton cardigan jacket in native American-inspired, four-color-pattern layers over a ribbed turtleneck tunic in a coordinated stripe over black cotton leggings. Sally's Designs, West Bloomfield.

Fashions

For fall – economy, ecology, eccentricity

By Denise Lucas
special writer

THE BEVY of designers who "suggest" to us what we put in our closets and on our bodies each season are definitely inspired and influenced by the signs of the times.

Look back in history and notice the garments of each century or decade. The modus operandi reveals the lifestyles, attitudes and morals of each epoch. From the sophisticated Egyptians, to the baroque Renaissance period to the hippie movement of this century . . . fashion exposes all.

The en-vogue echos of autumn 1991 is no different. This season, designers were influenced by the economy, the environment and our need for individual expression with a smattering of eccentricity.

● ECONOMY

Entering yet another season of a recession, Americans have tightened their purse strings and the runway rags reflected the crunch.

There has become a trend toward casual, wearable clothes with the emphasis away from the "Dynasty/Nancy" era to a focus on "real life."

Making the dollar stretch means stretching our wardrobe. The importance of investing in quality clothes for day focuses our attention on "suit dressing". . . power pieces that can be changed around for greater versatility. Watch for suits in optimistic brights, lively tartans and playful plaids.

The big news in fashion was the emergence of lower-priced designer lines. Anne Klein came out with its affordable "A Line," Ellen Tracy introduced "Company" and Escada acquainted us with "Apriori." A well-received awareness.

Washable silks, opaque tights with everything this fall (they last much longer than sheer hosiery) and a de-emphasis on jewelry all reflect our need to conserve.

With the ornamentation of whimsical buttons (how about hot and cold faucet handles found on a spirited plaid suit at Claire Pearone, Troy), metallic studded dresses and leather jackets (at Guys N Gals, West Bloomfield) and the use of bold zippers on everything, the pounds of jewels of former seasons will be kept tucked away.

Yes, even the rich and famous are affected. "Big night out" dresses and designer ball gowns have moved away from elaborate, long, sequin numbers to short, shorter, shortest in flirty, full dance skirts, slim slip silhouettes and bubble hemlines. A conservation of fabrics . . . with satin, taffeta chiffon and silks the front-running fabrics for evening.

● ECOLOGY

The "save the earth" consciousness explains the rugged, earthy fashion saga this season. Designers looked toward the environment or perhaps it was the Pacific Northwest woodsman from "Twin Peaks" and Kevin Costner's "Dances with Wolves" that put quilted fabrics on little slip dresses (spotted at Edward Dorion, Birmingham) and Eddie Bauer plaids and tartans on everything.

Sueded western garb, over-the-knee boots and haute couture fake furs represent our reverence for world wildlife and the back-to-nature revolution.

● ECCENTRICITY

Fall's fashion rebellion reflects our desire to "break all the rules." We don't want to be told what to wear!

You may wonder what bright spring and summer's color palette is doing in the traditionally earth tones season of autumn, it's because we want them . . . hot pink, chinese yellow, fuchsia, turquoise, blue, hunters orange and key lime are making the greatest color explosion since the neons.

Fashion has emerged from our fitness and athletic lifestyle. The skinny silhouettes of ski pants and biker pants have transcended into active, weekend and evening wear. Scuba dresses and Scuba jackets inspired by California wave riders have become city chic.

More rebellious renderings for fall will include aerobic-influenced body and cat suits, black leather biker jackets, harlequin prints, black patent handbags, belts and shoes (another season irreverence), modern art motif prints on classic silk blouses and blazers (discovered at Saks Fifth Avenue), Karl Lagerfeld's "nouveau rapper" (long vinyl coats over short skirts, fishnet hose, pounds of gold and funky caps), exaggerated mixing of patterns, prints, casual with glamour, hard with soft (leathers over chiffon), and an explosion of clear sequins on plaids (shown at Episode, Troy). An absence of rules . . . the "have it your way" attitude.

● EXPRESSIONS

In brief, the voice of fashion will explode with enthusiasm and emotion . . . watch for these top 10 tempting trends for fall '91:

— Electric colors . . . vivid brights and jewel tones from head to toe . . . hats, gloves, hose, shoes and everywhere in between.

— Zippers . . . whether functional or decorative . . . there on everything . . . bold center seams, shoes, boots, blazers, coats.

— Plaids . . . in season brights, sequin tartans and textured tweeds.

— Skinny pant silhouettes . . . under big tops.

— Legs . . . opaque hose in bright hues, bold patterns, classic black.

— Body suits, cat suits under swing coats and chiffon dresses.

— Nouveau rapper . . . caps, gold jewelry, vinyl trench, fishnets.

— Short pleated skirts . . . from tartans to chiffon under long slim jackets.

— Slim straight skirt . . . at any length . . . short to long (with slit, of course).

— Leather . . . rebellious James Dean jackets.

AUTUMN EXPRESSIONS

Denise Lucas

Tracking the trends.

That's the spirit of this special fall fashion section, appearing today in all editions of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

To those who helped assemble this preview of what's perking on the fall fashion scene, we offer a hardy thank you.

ABOUT THE COVER:

Summer brights transcend autumn. Expect the unexpected ... yellow for fall. Long over short. Chanel-influenced, double-breasted, two-piece suit. Important touches ... cross-your-heart purse, black head band, yellow hose, black leather pump. From Claire Pearone, Somerset Collection, Troy.

Staff photographer Jim Jagdfeld took the picture at Cranbrook Educational Community in Bloomfield Hills. We offer special thanks to Cranbrook representative Katie Kelly, who helped plan our day. Thanks also goes out to these hairstylists and makeup artists from Salon Kennice Bashar in Farmington Hills for their creative talents and cooperation: Todd Skog, Hollie Nelson and Sherry Robertson.

Fashion writer Denise Lucas and O&E special sections editor Bob Sklar coordinated this section. O&E graphics editor Randy Borst designed the section, including the cover.

Staff photographers Jim Jagdfeld and Sharon LeMieux took some of the pictures. Local stores also submitted pictures. Copley News Service provided some of the written material.

Advertising coordinators were Jill Hayes in Oakland County and Vel Ellis-Perryman in Wayne County.

Direct queries about the section to Bob Sklar, 953-2113, or Denise Lucas, 442-2339.

Antique jewelry back in vogue

WHETHER ASPIRING to be a fashion maven or a maverick, nothing serves your purpose better than distinctive jewelry.

Shopping antique and retrowear shops will assure that you won't be imitated.

Deco Bakelite, metal and tortoise shell pieces have modern flair and can be more ornately crafted than department store jewelry. Likewise, look at pearl, diamond and rhinestone combinations from the first half of the century.

"What goes around comes around," reports Myra Citrin, co-owner of Thing-a-majigs, a tiny shop filled with one-of-a-kind treasures for home and body in Applegate Square, Southfield.

"There's a definite trend toward '30s and '50s costume jewelry, both old and reproductions. We've just returned from New York and saw lots of it there, too."

ALTHOUGH YOU don't need special insight to know what you like, you might want to get what you pay for. In the case of more costly antique jewelry, you should either shop at reputable stores or have the jewelry appraised.

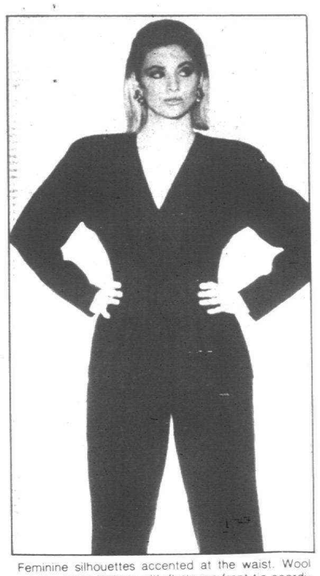
Books like "Jewelry 7,000 Years: An International History and Illustrated Survey from the Collection of the British Museum," "All That Glitters: The Glory of Costume Jewelry" and "Jewelry — How to Create Your Image" will familiarize you with different styles.

Combining period jewelry with clothing takes panache since you won't be following mainstream commandments. Analyze the people whose accessorizing you admire. Or ask shop clerks for advice.

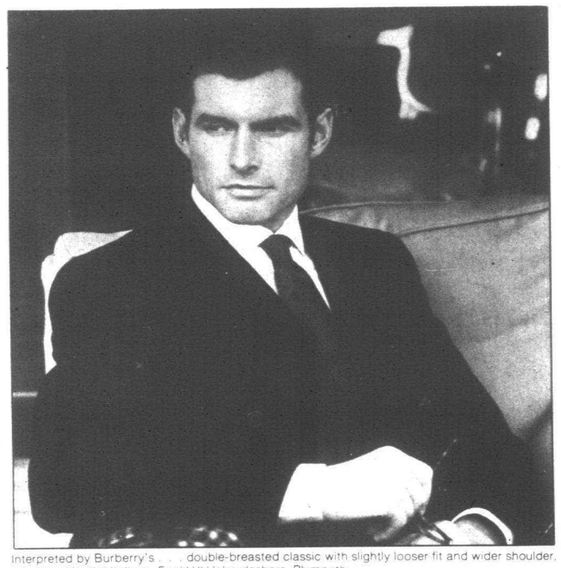
"VINTAGE JEWELRY is hard to find," reports Ceci Orman-Stone of Ceci's, on the Boardwalk in West Bloomfield.

"We exclusively carry a line of one-of-a-kind pieces designed by Chas. Chas takes antique findings and creates beautiful antique reconstructions and retro-reproductions. He will also create and design custom pins and necklaces by appointment, using the customers' very own family pieces."

Jewelry should be almost alive in its movement, sensation and symbolism. The images, weight, materials, color and shape combine to impart a mood and a message about you.



Feminine silhouettes accented at the waist. Wool crepe v-neck jackets with flattering front tie coordinates with pant or skirt, offering versatility and comfort. In navy or eggplant. Edward Dorion, Birmingham.



Interpreted by Burberry's . . . double-breasted classic with slightly looser fit and wider shoulder, influenced by the Italians. Fred Hill Haberdashers, Plymouth.

Simple elegance. Sandstone gabardine coat with single-button closure ($350) and matching gabardine pant ($190). Scott Gregory, Applegate Square and Northland Center, Southfield.

The pant suit makes a strong comeback with a '90s flair. All-wool crepe cropped jacket ($228) with coordinating pant ($138). Sandwashed silk blouse with detachable tie ($128). Episode, Somerset Collection, Troy.

Walking made easy

CONSIDER THESE your walking papers — the shoe and boot line for fall.

"The big noise in men's footwear is the comfort ingredient. Almost every manufacturer has revamped their collections to introduce comfort with shoes that are easier on the feet," said Sam Elder, Jacobson's vice president.

Since function follows form (and the form is rugged, rustic), naturally the footwear look this fall is gutsy outdoors.

Expect textured suede finishes and thick soles in colors or rich tobaccos, browns, oils, taupes, olive and rust.

Both shoes and boots come in rich leathers and nubuck.

The ever-popular suede and red-rubber-soled buck is still a key fall shoe, but also look for black and brown nubuck instead of tan suede.

Code West is pushing the country feeling further with cowboy boots sporting silver tips on the heel and toe, and a buckle and chain detail.

Alan Bishop, president of Southfield-based Mr. Alan's Shoes, reports: "I'm seeing a trend toward soft leathers, shoes are not as shiny. Colors are extremely important, from olive to mustard."

Think creatively in accessorizing

IF A SENSE of humor and experimentation aren't your cup of tea — that is, if the absence of rules in fall fashion keeps you off the sartorial playing field — remember to accessorize with creativity.

"Men today are more receptive to change, wearing wider ties, bolder patterns, pocket squares and socks with patterns, accessorizing their business clothing to make a personal statement," said Stuart Silbert, artistic director of Kosins Clothes in Lathrup Village.

An embellished vest can glimmer beneath a traditional suit. Special buttons, textural trims and unique pocket treatments can give jackets and pants extra oomph.

Try fancy necklines as odd alternatives to ties. In addition, colorful ties, socks, belts, watches and glasses offer a hint of the rebel.

Chris Morrisroe of Hudson's reports, "Ties in conversational patterns such as world wildlife and abstract brights will be important for fall '91. Also in the continuing boxer trend, the fabric to watch for is silk."

Finally, coats, hats, gloves and scarves can embellish an otherwise desultory fashion sense.
