Sports equipment

Looking for a used pair of ice skates? If so, the Canton Parks and Recreation Services has a deal for you, a used sports equipment sale.

The sale will be held from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m. on Saturday, Dec. 7, at Coventry Commons Shopping Center at Joy and Morton Taylor roads.

Sellers can bring their equipment to the shopping center on Thursday, Dec. 5, between 6 p.m. and 9 p.m. to be priced and tagged. Sellers set the price and receive the money, less 15 percent which is kept by the recreation department.

Volunteers are staffing the sale, so sellers need not be present at the event.

For more information, contact Canton Township at 397-5110.

Well drilled

The Fred Hill Haberdashers Briefcase Drill Team is well-known in the Plymouth-Canton Community, but its fame doesn't end here.

Team members again marched in this year's Detroit Thanksgiving Parade. WDIV-TV's Mort Crim told parade co-host Carmen Harlan that he considered the drill team to be his all-time favorite among all the parade participants.

Before the parade, Channel 4's Chuck Gaidica tried his hand at performing with the team, borrowing a briefcase and trying a few moves.

Gaidica didn't have much luck, and drill team leader Fred Hill suggested that the TV weatherman drop and do some push-ups.

School site

The location of one of the Plymouth-Canton schools' new elementaries is decided, but the second is still up in the air. The district owns a site in the new Sunflower subdivision on the south side of Warren between Canton Center and Beck.

School officials are still negotiating the purchase of a second site. Recently, the school board went into executive session to discuss a land deal, but tabled the motion.

Students recognized

Four Centennial Educational Park students were recognized by the College Board for exceptional achievement on the college-level Advanced Placement (AP) Examinations.

They are: Patricia Meyer, Raymond Adamski, Esther Kim and Kaichun Sung.

The College Board recognizes three levels of achievements — the AP Scholar with Distinction, the AP Scholar with Honor, and the AP Scholar.

Meyer qualified for the AP Scholar with Honor Award by earning grades of 3 or above on four or more on the exams, with an average exam grade of at least 3.25.

Adamski, Kim and Sung qualified as AP scholars with grades of three or higher.

Poster contest

Jason Alandt, 3, of Canton was the winner of the Dinnertime Chime poster contest sponsored by the Dearborn office of Family Service of Detroit and Wayne County.

The theme of posters drawn by children was "My Family at Dinner." The winner's family received gift certificates for a dinner.

Court reverses murder conviction

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

The Michigan Supreme Court reversed the conviction of Dr. Charles Fisher, currently serving a life sentence for suffocating his wife with duct tape in 1984 in their Canton Township home.

In an order issued last week, the justices ruled that the case be returned to Detroit Recorder's Court for a new trial. Dissenting were Justices Patricia Boyle and Dorothy Comstock Riley.

The court agreed that the diary of Ella Maria Mercado Fisher, 30, should not have been admitted as evidence because it constituted hearsay. Entries in the diary indicated Mercado Fisher was unhappy and wanted a divorce.

"We have concluded that the defendant-appellant was denied a fair trial by the admission of hearsay evidence regarding the victim's state of mind," the justices wrote.

STEVEN WHALEN, Fisher's attorney, said, the diary contained "inflammatory material that would be unfairly prejudicial to Dr. Fisher in the sense that although the judge admitted the diaries supposedly to show the victim's state of mind, what it in fact tended to show was the defendant's character.

"There was some pretty lurid stuff in that diary, and most of that came into evidence. In the diaries, she made references to things a lot of other people had said, making it multiple hearsay.

"For example, there were a number of entries about an alleged affair that Dr. Fisher had had with a maid when they lived on the island of Dominica. It didn't have anything to do with whether he was guilty of the crime.

"It tended to portray him as not a very nice person. Whether that was true or not wasn't the issue," he said.

Citing the People vs. White, the court said that in a homicide case, the victim's state of mind generally is not relevant. It can be relevant if self-defense is asserted as justification for the killing, but "here, the defense theory was he simply didn't do it," said Whalen.

Whalen didn't represent Fisher when he was first tried or during a second trial in 1988. Fisher's first conviction was overturned when Wayne County Circuit Judge Claudia House Morcom set aside the verdict, citing misconduct by the prosecution, and in particular, improper argument to the jury.

Wayne Circuit Judge Thomas Foley presided over Fisher's second trial in 1988, when a jury again found Fisher guilty. Whalen went Murder victim's parents are shocked

Manuel and Clara Evelyn Mercado were shaken by the news that their son-in-law's murder conviction has been overturned by the Michigan Supreme Court.

"It's a horrible surprise," said Clara Mercado, sobbing during a phone interview from Cape Coral, Florida.

Ella Maria Mercado Fisher was found gagged with duct tape July 20, 1984 in the Canton Township home she shared with her microbiologist husband, Dr. Charles Fisher. She died five days later.

The couple was living in the Detroit area so that Mercado Fisher could study transcultural nursing at Wayne State University. Her husband worked at Ann Arbor's V.A. Hospital.

Doctor's lust is blamed on head injury

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Dr. Charles Fisher, 51, who is serving life for the murder of his wife, says a closed head injury made him pursue another woman after Ella Maria Mercado Fisher suffocated in 1984.

Fisher, a former Fulbright professor and a microbiologist, has been in prison since 1987 after being convicted of gagging his wife, then 30, with duct tape in their Canton Township home on Thornwood near Warren and Napier.

He claimed in an interview from Riverside Correctional Facility in Ionia that he was suffering the effects of a blow to the head sustained when intruders broke into the couple's home, knocked them unconscious and bound them with rope and duct tape.

LESS THAN A month after his wife's death, Fisher took out a lonely hearts ad in a newspaper, promising prospective mates "smiles, happiness . . . fantastic sex and devotion. I am faithful, don't smoke, drink, fight or hurt," the ad said.

A Detroit woman answered the advertisement, and Fisher soon was making marriage plans from the West Indies, where he'd returned to a teaching position on the island of St. Kitts.

Santa Claus arrives

By Cheryl Vatcher
staff writer

Riding on a fire engine with flashing lights, Santa Claus made a grand entrance at the Canton Cinema on Friday.

Hundreds of children lined up along side the Cinema waving and smiling as Santa arrived. When Santa jumped off the fire engine, he was surrounded by four elves.

An elf Martine Payment, 9, explained: "I help Santa by giving out candy bags and candy canes to all the kids who come to see Santa."

Some of the children waiting in line were there for a little while.

"I came here about 8:30 this morning to see Santa," said Elizabeth Rogala of Canton.

"I came to see Santa and ask him for a chemistry kit, and a set of building blocks. Then I want to see the Jetsons' movie," said Paul Russette, Elizabeth's brother.

"I am excited about seeing Santa Claus, I saw him last year. I am going to ask him for a Barbie Doll," said Casey Caram, 6, of Canton.

Santa's entrance on a fire engine was a first this year.

psychologists see quite often," he said. "They made a tremendous story and allegations about me becoming involved with another lady a month after my wife's death. I guess it hurt me as much as it looked bad. I felt very, very bad"

"and suffered from a chemical and emotional dependency.

"After my wife's death, they tried to make a big deal about me fleeing the country, which was totally absurd," added Fisher. "Because of my vision and thought process problems, I couldn't remember or function intellectually."

That was the reason Fisher gave up his job at the VA Hospital in Ann Arbor and returned to Ross University on St. Kitts, he said.

"I guess it was the wrong thing to do. At that time, what I was thinking was I'd try to go on and not show the difficulty I was having and make do. I should have gotten medical treatment, but again, when you're in a psychological state like that, you try to make yourself believe you aren't injured.

"ROSS UNIVERSITY, when they found out about what had happened, asked me if I would come back there." Fisher accepted because "I knew I was not functioning properly at work. In that position, you can't make a mistake and be fuzzy in your thinking. I was terrified I was going to make a mistake or cause someone else to make a mistake. So I went back to the teaching position I had, and I couldn't even do that."

He said his former attorney's refusal to allow him to speak with police "or anyone from the time the investigation started has led to a number of false assumptions and false information that just snowballed into something that has presented a very unfair picture of the happenings and everything."

He said the reversal of his conviction by the Michigan Supreme Court "is kind of late in coming. I guess I'm just thankful. Hopefully some of this will be resolved and my name will be cleared.

"It can't bring my wife back, and it can't restore my life or my career," said the Missouri native. "The only outcome can be a resolution of justice or something."

The Supreme Court granted his attorney's request for a new trial, ruling that Mercado Fisher's diary should not have been admitted as evidence.

"I felt like the issues were very clear. I feel like the Supreme Court has correctly interpreted the law," said Fisher.

"If the courts had ruled appropriately and if evidence had been looked at fairly, I would never have been convicted. It's been terribly distressing to me. I can understand my late wife's parents' grief, and I feel the same grief."

FISHER, WHO HAS been teaching computer classes to inmates while in prison, said he had never received so much as a traffic ticket before his wife's murder.

"When I went into this, I had no idea of the workings of the court system. I went into it like a sheep to slaughter. I guess you'd say it's been a very, very costly education."

Fisher said he understands the desire of prosecutors, police and the Mercados for justice to be served.

"You want to see someone punished, but convicting an innocent person doesn't do that," he said.

Fisher said he has no idea who might have broken into his home and killed his wife. "There were a number of break-ins in the area that were very similar and everything, except no one woke up. If someone had woken up, something might have happened."

Fisher said that when he went to prison, he was still suffering from his closed head injury.

"I made a very conscious effort to try to use computers and to try to read all I possibly could to get my mind back up to its full functioning. I was having a vision problem as well, but I think most of those problems have healed themselves. The doctors said it would probably take four or five years for me to recover, and it did."

Court overturns murder conviction to the Supreme Court after Fisher was denied an appeal by the Michigan Court of Appeals.

"In the transcripts, just reading the material is pretty chilling," said Whalen. "His wife had a real flair for writing, and the diary itself was very compelling reading. Not only were those diaries admitted into evidence, but her father read them on the stand. I can imagine the oral interpretation Mr. Mercado imparted to it."

Whalen expects Fisher's third trial to be scheduled some time in 1992. It's too soon to say whether it will be a jury trial, he said.

"Both of us feel very vindicated. I don't think he got a fair trial on this."

"I ALSO SPOKE with his parents in Missouri. They're very happy. They've been very supportive of him throughout the whole thing," Whalen said.

Fisher, a former Fulbright professor, said he found his wife bound and unconscious in the couple's Canton Township home July 20, 1984. He said intruders knocked him unconscious and bound him to his bed with rope and duct tape.

Fisher testified that after he regained consciousness, he freed himself and found his wife, lying face down on the kitchen floor. Fisher says there'd been a string of break-ins in his Canton neighborhood, but that he has no idea who killed his wife.

Fisher married Ella Maria Mercado after the two met in Virginia, where he was teaching and she was studying. They moved to the Detroit area so Mercado Fisher could study transcultural nursing at Wayne State University. It was the second marriage for Fisher and the third for Mercado Fisher.

Victim's parents shocked by decision

"I am very disappointed that the Supreme Court decided on a single issue of the diary," said Navy man Manuel Mercado. "I think the diary was only part of the evidence that indicated that Fisher was of course the killer of my daughter. I hope that since this is the case, the State of Michigan will take the case through the proper procedures until Fisher is found guilty of murder in the first degree, and I think he will be."

Fisher claims "a group of derelicts attacked his house, attacked him and just killed Maria, and not him." There's no way his story can be confirmed.

MRS. MERCADO said it's not fair the family has to go through this again. "that's the bad thing, that we have to go through this all again. It's not fair that our grandson will have to go through this again and have his life shattered."

Mercado Fisher had a son, Sean Paul by her first marriage who is now 18.

"He has had a tough time, but he's pulled through. He's a straight A student in college now," said Mrs. Mercado.

The Mercados have been active with a Florida support group of parents of murdered children.

"It seems like the victim's family has to take the short end of justice," said Mrs. Mercado. "And all he has to do is sit in prison on his behind and work through the court system.

"But what about the victim? People who've committed these murders and even been proven guilty still get all this help from the legal system," she said. "It seems to be geared towards the culprit."

The Mercados said they can't understand "how the system could let him have a third chance."

"I wonder how much pain he's had to bear, not having to worry about a job or anything else," said Mrs. Mercado. "He's had his bread and board furnished to him by the state."

Area kids anticipate Santa's local arrival

"I really liked seeing Santa ride in on a fire engine. Last year Santa flew in on a helicopter. I am going to ask Santa for a Baby Alive doll," said Katie Schmidt, 7, of Canton.

TWO CHILDREN had seen Santa Claus before on a fire engine.

"I am from Texas, and Santa always came on a fire engine. I thought he might arrive on a sled," said Jackie Barnes, 8, of Canton.

"I am going to ask Santa for some hockey things, like ice skates and a sled," said Johnathan, Jackie's brother.

The annual event was put together by the Canton Chamber of Commerce with a new executive director, Linda Shapona.

"Santa Claus has been coming to Canton for many years, and this year we wanted it to be different, so that's why Santa came here on the fire engine," she said.

"There are door prizes for everyone, both children and adults. Each person receives a raffle ticket for this," said Shapona.

"We have food that is provided by many area businesses, and two of them are McDonald's and Dunkin' Donuts," she said.

"We chose the Canton theater because they were willing to open up the whole theater to us. They also took care of coordinating this program, and providing the movie the Jetsons' for the children," she said.

Local vets remember Pearl Harbor tragedy

By Kevin Brown

First came the bombs — then the blown-off arms, heads, torsos and other human body parts amidst the black oil filling Pearl Harbor.

"I tell my kids 'I'm going to heaven when I die because I already spent my day in hell,'" said Robert Coopersmith of Plymouth Township.

The Japanese pilots "had their heads out of the airplanes, laughing," recalled Phillip Martin of Plymouth Township.

"NOBODY IN OUR outfit got hit," Martin added, as he was 1-1½ miles from where the bombs were striking U.S. battleships.

The date was Dec. 7, 1941, 50 years ago Saturday. Both used the same words to describe their feelings at the time — "pissed off."

Robert Coopersmith survived Pearl Harbor and is going back for the 50th anniversary of the Japanese attack.

And their feelings toward Japan haven't changed much.

"My feelings are now pretty negative," Martin said. "Anybody that buys a Toyota should have been there that day," Coopersmith added.

Both are scheduled to receive congressional medals for surviving the attack, in ceremonies at 4 p.m. today at the Mayflower-Lt. Gamble VFW Post 6695.

Martin, a Tennessee native, said, "I was an 18-year-old country hillbilly boy," when he entered Army basic training in Hawaii.

He was eating breakfast in a mess hall when the bombs started falling. "We stood there and watched them, you could see them (bombs) dropping out of planes."

Coopersmith, then 20, joined the Navy that March, as his uncle had served in the Navy.

"I was working at Ford's making 75 cents an hour, that was before the union came in. The boss would follow you right to the bathroom door — It was a tough show," Coopersmith said.

After joining the Navy, he was assigned to a submarine. When the attack opened, he was standing on the quarterdeck of a ship with a dozen or so other sailors. "We saw a big formation of planes (more than 300) — we were tied up about a block and a half from battleship row."

When the bombs started falling, someone exclaimed, "We're being attacked — It's real," he remembered.

Nearly 4,000 were killed in just over two hours. "There were bodies, blood, heads and torsos in the bay, the harbor was full of thick oil and smoke. We were really pissed off — We were just glad to be alive," Coopersmith said.

SOME JAPANESE fighter planes swooped as low as 25-50 feet from the ground, Coopersmith said. "You could see their gold teeth," he said.

"The only thing to do when somebody walks up and smacks you, you smack 'em back," said Martin, a sergeant with a mess crew.

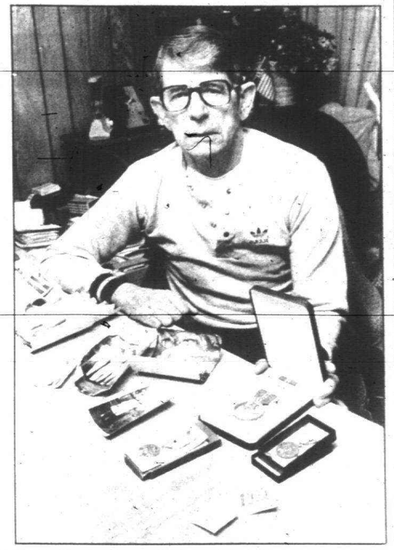

Coopersmith served on two U.S. submarines during the war, the Tautog and the Tambor. "We sank 20 ships," he said, on each submarine.

Asked what effect the incident had on his life, Martin said, "Maybe it made me grow up. I was a young man, and I had a man's job to do."

"I was just so damn glad to be alive," Coopersmith said.

He served as a Detroit policeman after the war.

After the war, Martin worked for General Motors, A&P, ran a muffler shop and retired from Goodyear after serving 16 years as a service manager.

Old headlines tell story on the home front

By Kevin Brown
staff writer.

The surprise attack on Pearl Harbor 50 years ago drew strong reaction back home in Plymouth.

In the Dec. 12, 1941, Plymouth Mail, the Plymouth Observer's predecessor, most front page stories were devoted to local reaction to the attack by Japan just five days earlier.

While several Plymouth soldiers were members of the Pacific fleet, "The fact that no advices have been received indicates that all are probably safe," one story said.

THE HEADLINE FOR that day's top story read, "Plymouth Residents Decide to Buy Plymouth-Made Machine Guns for Our Boys in Service."

The story continued, "We are going to feel as though every penny, every dollar that we turn over to Uncle Sam when we buy a defense stamp or defense bond is going to be used for the purchase of (locally-made) Kelsey-Hayes machine guns for our boys who have been called to the front," according to the executive chairman of the Plymouth Defense Savings Committee.

Another headline read, "Plymouth Citizens Rally One Hundred Percent to Nations All-Out Aid to Win War."

Plymouth citizens, the story continued, "swung into step Monday with Uncle Sam's army of men, women and children out to win the war that has been forced upon this nation."

In other stories, members of the American Legion "called together a group of citizens to prepare for the civil defense of the community."

The paper reported that sales of defense stamps were up, and the Wayne County Defense Council and the Plymouth Defense Council called meetings.

Cub scout den contributes to Christmas Cheer Club

A Cub Scout den is among the most recent contributors to our Christmas Cheer Club.

Den 3 of Cub Scout Pack 1532 of Plymouth brought in three cases of canned goods on Wednesday. Other recent contributors are Anne Burgess of Canton; Christine and Douglas Mirth of Plymouth; Steve and Jamie Tucci and their kids Mark, Katy and Jack; Frank LaSota of Plymouth; and Lisa Vogt of Plymouth.

We also received a donation from a woman who didn't want to be named, who said she'd received a toy from the Salvation Army as a child.

And we're still waiting for your contribution.

The idea behind the club is that no child should be without a gift on Christmas, and no family should go hungry.

Joining this club is easy. Membership is open to anyone who can take the time to stop by our office and drop off a canned good or new, unwrapped toy for a needy child.

Sure, the economy is down and many out there may not have a heap of extra money lying around to spend on presents this Christmas.

But if you can afford a simple toy or canned good or two, our friends at the Salvation Army will find a child or family who would appreciate your gift.

We're collecting the items until right before Christmas, when they'll be turned over to the Salvation Army for distribution to the needy in our area.

So come by our office at 744 Wing, just a few blocks south of Kellogg Park. When you come in, we'd like to take your name and list it in the Observer with others who give to the Christmas Cheer Club.

We're hoping readers will enthusiastically support the Christmas Cheer Club this year. We'd like to make it an annual tradition.

If you have questions, ask for Kevin Brown or Jeff Counts at 459-2700, during business hours.

Hunters share success stories

We, at the Canton Observer have revived an old northern Michigan tradition, the community buck pole.

In northern towns, hunters annually bring their buck or doe to town to hang them on a pole for all to see.

We're asking hunters to bring their deer to our office so we can take a picture or to call us with your hunting success.

Here's our most recent list of successful hunters:

Larry Harper, 34, of Canton killed an 8 point buck near Chelsea on Nov. 17. It was his first buck.

Gary Dziedzic, 47, of Canton killed a 4 point buck Nov. 18 near Blaney Park in the Upper Peninsula.

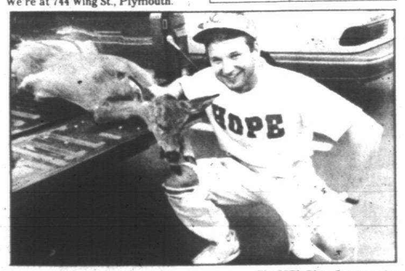

Nils Peterson, 52, of Plymouth Township killed one antelope on Nov. 1 while hunting near Sundance, Wyo. He also killed a 9 point buck in Wyoming. He was accompanied on the trip by Walt Trapp, 59, of Plymouth, who killed an antelope on Oct. 29.

Ronald Ryan, 21, of Plymouth shot a 9-point buck at 7 a.m. Nov. 15 in Mayville, near Lapeer.

For more information, call Jeff Counts, the editor, or Kevin Brown at 459-2700, between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. Also, we'll take pictures of you and your deer during office hours. We're at 744 Wing St., Plymouth.

Unemployment benefits extended

Jobless workers can qualify for up to 20 weeks of additional unemployment benefits, the Michigan Employment Security Commission reports.

To qualify for the new Emergency Unemployment Compensation program, workers must be unemployed and have exhausted all rights to regular or extended unemployment benefits on or after March 1, 1991.

The program will pay benefits for weeks of unemployment between Nov. 17, 1991 and July 4, 1992.

For workers to get the benefits they must maintain a written record of their job search and accept any offer of suitable work.

"Those who believe they qualify for EUC but have not heard from MESC can contact their local MESC offices for an EUC application," said MESC Director F. Robert Edwards.

Questions can be placed to the MESC customer service office at 1-800-638-3995.

'Pilgrims' reap Plymouth harvest

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Jose Marcus is part of a native American group called Blue Lake Drums.

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

Plymouth's public celebration of Thanksgiving opened Friday under a faint drizzle, but folks still flocked to Kellogg Park to view the festivities.

The highlight was a re-enactment of the first Thanksgiving, complete with native Americans, folks dressed as Pilgrims and platters heaped with appropriate Thanksgiving fare — turkey, corn, squash and apples.

Plymouth Thanksgiving organizers Fred Hill and Sharon Pugh and others in Pilgrim dress joined high school drama students dressed as native Americans around a table top set on hay bales in the west end of Kellogg Park.

In brief opening remarks, Hill told a few hundred onlookers, "Thanksgiving changes but it endures."

"A century ago, a turkey shoot replaced football as Thanksgivings most celebrated sporting activity," he continued.

About the only thing not included in the second annual "A Plymouth Thanksgiving" was a Detroit Lions game.

HILL ALSO recounted the story of Squanto, who taught the Pilgrims to plant corn and squash, and offered advice on hunting. Hill said that by historic accounts no bread was served at the first Thanksgiving, as the Pilgrims had depleted stores of flour and had yet to cultivate wheat.

Molasses wasn't available to sweeten pumpkin pie, but boiled pumpkin was served instead.

"I think it's very good," said one onlooker, Dorothy Saltalamachia of Taylor. She was pleased they were celebrating Thanksgiving in a traditional way "instead of commercializing it."

"It's pretty authentic seeing what they ate, from the harvest," said another onlooker, Marlene Davis of Romulus.

Hill founded the event last year as a response to the commercialization of Christmas, marked by Christmas displays in stores even before Halloween.

AFTER THE Thanksgiving re-enactment an Indian dance club demonstrated native dances.

Dressed in fringed outfits decorated with colored feathers, the dancers moved to the pulsing sound of a drum. Parents directed their children to the front of a crowd of about 300 watching the demonstration in The Gathering.

Next came an hour-long storytelling session in the Masonic Temple right off The Gathering, opened by touring storyteller Debra Cristian.

She told a story of the legend of Sleeping Bear dune, and recounted the sound a mother bear made to her cubs as she swam Lake Michigan to the west Michigan shore.

"If you listen very closely, you can still hear this sound, OOOOOO-ooooo," she said. Other storytellers were Linda Day and Ron Lowe.

'Thanksgiving changes but it endures. A century ago, a turkey shoot replaced football as Thanksgiving's most celebrated sporting activity.'

Sheriff helping raise awareness of autism

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Families of Wayne County's autistic children have enlisted a sheriff in their cause.

Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano pledged Friday to do what he could in spreading the word about autism in kicking off Michgian's first-ever Austism Awareness Week during ceremonies in Detroit.

Ficano said his involvement with state and county societies for autistic children and their families is a natural.

The sheriff's wife, Rosemarie, teaches at Burger Center, a special school for autistic children in Garden City.

"I KNOW people think I have a difficult job, but there are days when she comes home a lot more tired than I do," Ficano said.

Rosemarie Ficano said parents of autistic children are the true heroes.

"They deal with this 24 hours a day, seven days a week," she said.

Autism is a severe, if mysterious, neurological disorder that affects 15 children in every 10,000. There are an estimated 400-500 autistic children in Wayne County alone.

Autistic children generally exhibit unusually withdrawn or boisterous behavior and a severe lack of communication skills.

While autism isn't new — it has been identified as a distinct disorder for more than 15 years — much information is still lacking.

At present, it remains unknown why certain children are affected while their brothers and sisters are not.

Recent research has centered on Fragile X syndrome, a chromosome deficiency linked to other developmental disabilities.

There are also conflicting proposals on how best to serve autistic children.

Burger Center was the focus of a recent controversy between a group of parents who wanted the building maintained and renovated and another group who sought to have autistic children "mainstreamed" into school buildings within their home districts.

At present, Burger Center remains open for more than 200 autistic children while mainstreaming continues for others.

"In Wayne County, there are a variety of options and that's good," Rosemarie Ficano said. "We want our options to be centered around the person, not around a program."

Autism research continues. Children's Hospital of Michigan seeks funding for auditory training equipment. Research has indicated some autistic individuals are highly sensitive to certain sounds. Making them less sensitive to those sounds, researchers believe, will help modify autistic behavior.

"WE WANT to be able to do this here, not send parents to Oregon or Montreal," said Cindy Wilson of the hospital communication disorders department. Children's Hospital is sponsoring a Janurary fund-raiser to help finance the equipment.

Research also continues into facilitated communication, a technique that allows autistic children to write or type their thoughts with help from a parent or teacher.

The practice has been deemed controversial. Skeptics have questioned whether the thoughts expressed are the child's or those of the parent or teacher.

But Livonia resident Kristine Copeland is a believer.

"It's probably natural to be skeptical until you see it in action," said Copeland, whose son attends a mainstreaming program at Roosevelt Elementary School, Livonia. "But I've seen what it can do for Matt."

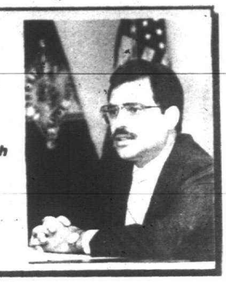

While the facilitated communication can involve a hand help keyboard — about the size of a Sony Walkman — it can also involve pen and paper.

"We want people to know this doesn't have to be expensive, it can cost as little as two cents," said Copeland, president of the Wayne County Society for Autistic Citizens. "The important thing is this allows the child to express himself and there's no more basic civil right than that."

Despite that, it is understanding that autistic children and their families seek most.

"We want people to see that autistic children are capable of learning," she said. "We want people to learn what autism is all about."

Sheriff Robert Ficano has pledged to raise public awareness of autism. His wife, Rosemarie, works with autistic children at Burger Center in Garden City.

The Children's Hospital fund-raiser is scheduled for 4 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 12, at the Soup Kitchen Saloon, 1585 Franklin, Detroit. An evening of comedy and music will be featured. tickets are $10 and can be ordered by calling 882-9135.

For more information on autism and related issues, call the Wayne County society for Autistic citizens, 427-2136 or the Northwest Communities Association for Retarded Citizens, 937-2360.

Teen drinkers wouldn't drive under Senate bill

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Michigan would use drivers' license suspensions as a tool against both adult drug dealers and minors who drink under bills passed by the state Senate.

All go to the House, where they face an uncertain future.

The Senate approved, 29-6, a pair of bills to require a 30-day drivers license suspension for anyone committing drug-related offenses. Some 80,000 licenses a year could be affected.

SEN. JACK Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, was the only area member voting no. He protested that the state "would be impeding their opportunities at both securing legitimate employment and functioning within our community. I think it is counterproductive. It would only further compound the problems of their being re-incarcerated for driving without a license."

Sen. Virgil Smith, D-Detroit, said the bills amount to "mixing apples and oranges," because the drug offenses may not be driving related.

The bills would mandate the suspensions for 90 days for the second offense and six months for subsequent offenses. Sponsor was Jack Welborn, R-Kalamazoo.

THE SENATE approved 30-4 even tougher bills affecting minors, sponsored by Robert Geake, R-Northville.

A minor would have his license suspended for six months for a first offense or until age 18 for a list of offenses.

The list includes drunk driving, impaired driving, transporting alcohol, consuming alcohol, and using or dealing drugs. An estimated 13,300 youngsters per year could be affected.

All area senators voted yes except Faust, who was absent.

"It's going to be a gimmick," said Sen. Don Koivisto, D-Ironwood, who voted no. "Everyone wants to show how tough they are on drunk driving and how tough they are on drugs because MADD (Mothers Against Drunk Driving) has gotten so powerful.

"Put sometimes you go overboard. This is a case where you are saying if your teenager gets caught with a beer, they lose their license, their insurances goes up another couple thousand dollars, and they are unable to drive," Koivisto said.

The Senate also approved a pair of bills to require a 30-day drivers license suspension for anyone committing drug-related offenses.

Senate approves teachers' right to 'reasonable force'

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Teachers would be allowed to use "reasonable force" to maintain discipline under a bill that has passed the state Senate and gone to the House.

Senate Bill 338 won 33-1, with all area senators voting yes except William Faust, D-Westland, who was excused.

But it brought a lengthy and bitter protest from Lana Pollack, D-Ann Arbor, author of a 1988 law that prohibited corporal punishment in public schools.

"IT TAKES a step backward," said Pollack. "There's nothing wrong with the current law, but current law has been misinterpreted — I suggest purposefully so — by the Michigan Education Association, which has sent out inaccurate and inflammatory memos to teachers. Teachers receiving such explanations of the current law...would be spooked.

"The evidence was overwhelming (in 1988 hearings) that corporal punishment was used inappropriately.

"The MEA is a poor loser," Pollack said, charging the teachers union which represents most suburbs told teachers they couldn't restrain unruly students.

She called MEA "an 800-pound gorilla that wants to make sure that they maintain veto power over this Legislature as a whole."

SPONSOR JOHN Schwarz, R-Battle Creek, chair of the Senate Education Committee, hailed the "strong bipartisan support" given the measure, which he said clarifies the definition of corporal punishment.

"Now we'll have some clear guidelines that define specific situations where physical intervention would be permissible," Schwarz said. Those situations are:

- To remove a disruptive pupil from a classroom, school bus or school premises.
- To quell a disturbance.
- To prevent a pupil from inflicting harm on himself.
- To maintain order in a school-related setting.

Old Village Christmas walk returns

The annual Old Village Christmas Walk is back.

Last year, "We couldn't get everybody to cooperate," explained Old Village Association vice president Kelly Schacht.

But new association officers are trying to continue some traditional Old Village events, both for fun and to promote Old Village.

The Christmas Walk is scheduled for Dec. 6-8. On Friday, Dec. 6, participating stores will stay open until 9 p.m. and refreshments will be served.

Then at 10 a.m. Saturday, kids are invited to join Santa at the Station 885 restaurant for hot chocolate and cookies. After, Mayor Robert Jones will present Santa with the key to the city.

Santa will then tour Old Village in a buggy, and kids are invited to follow along.

Also, rides on an authentic Amish buggy will be available, and kids can have their pictures taken with Santa.

A Christmas treasure hunt will take place on Saturday and Sunday. "Each store has a clue, they send you on to the next store," Schacht said, for more clues.

Santa will also be in Old Village Sunday from noon to5 p.m. at Friendly Persuasions on North Mill, for pictures with kids.

Christmas carolers will wander Old Village, helping to create a holiday atmosphere.

"We're just trying to get people to come in and see what Old Village is about," Schacht said.

'Slim' teaches good health

IT WAS Broadway, vaudeville and an anatomy lesson all wrapped into one as New York's "Slim Goodbody" took the stage at Fiegel Elementary in Plymouth Township last week, teaching students about good health.

Dressed in leotards and tights outlining the body's circulatory, digestive, muscular and skeletal systems, red socks and sneakers, Goodbody entertained kindergarten through 5th grade students with rap songs, taped music and conversations with his toy robot.

"You need your bones and I'll tell you why," sang Goodbody. "Bones are great. They keep you straight. They protect your body and support your weight."

Goodbody taught the children sing-along tunes about the heart, intestines, brain and muscles.

Goodbody is a widely recognized advocate of health education who teaches children about the importance of exercise, diet, hygiene and not smoking. Goodbody's videos, including "The Inside Story with Slim Goodbody," and "Well, Well, Well with Slim Goodbody," have aired on national television.

Madonna students help Detroit housing project

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Parts of Detroit's Jeffries Housing Projects are a step closer to re-opening, thanks in part to a group of Madonna University students.

The students began working at the stark, red brick complex, just west of the Lodge Expressway near Martin Luther King Boulevard, before Thanksgiving and are scheduled to spent several coming Saturdays finishing the job.

"We've been stripping off paint and doing cleanup work," said Joanne Hinds of Northville, one of six Madonna students who have been working at the site.

"What we're doing is prepping for the major work to come," added student adviser Kim Gyuran, who has joined the students.

Students have been working in conjunction with Habitat for Humanity, the national volunteer home building organization that lists former President Jimmy Carter among its members.

"We're trying to renovate two buildings," Habitat for Humanity spokeswoman Elizabeth Pierce said. "There are about 72 units we hope to have open for low income families, elderly people and singles."

Workers hope the buildings will be ready for occupancy by Dec. 15, Pierce said. Those moving in are expected to include people who were recently deleted from state welfare rolls.

The Madonna students are among five groups assisting in the project.

In addition to scraping paint, the Madonna volunteers have also been clearing away dust and debris and moving out old, abandoned furniture, among other tasks.

The work can get messy, Gyuran said.

"I REMEMBER peeling paint off one wall and ending up peeling off pretty much the whole wall," she said. "I said, 'That's enough for here.'"

But she said it's also satisfying.

"I know we've had a lot of other people volunteer since we began working," Gyuran said. Volunteers need not be affiliated with Madonna, she added.

The Madonna group also includes Todd Martin and Keri Northway of Redford, Tim Nadon of Farmington Hills, Dina Besh of Northville and Suzette Beauchamp of South Lyon. Volunteers represent three student organizations, including the college social work club.

Group members plan at least two more visits to the site, spending as many as seven hours a day on the job. As far they know, it's the first time Madonna students have been involved in a project of this type.

Once the Madonna group completes its work, others will add new plumbing, heating and wiring, to make the site livable once again.

Those interested in helping out at the Jeffries Projects or other Habitat for Humanity work sites can call 521-8691 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. weekdays.

Senate moves to ban zoning against local music teachers

The state Senate has moved to stop local governments from zoning day-care centers and home music teachers out of residential areas. All go to the House.

Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, was sponsor of the bill to allow licensed family day-care homes (up to six children) and group day-care homes (up to 12) in residential zones in cities. (Similar laws affecting villages and townships were enacted last year.)

Senate Bill 486 was adopted on a 32-3 vote, with all area senators voting yes except William Faust, D-Westland, who had an excused absence.

Sen. Gil DiNello, D-East Detroit, voted yes but protested that "its takes the right away of a local unit of government to govern locally. What you have is automobiles and vans coming and going, picking up children in the neighborhood."

Local units could still inspect the homes and restrict operating times to 16 hours a day.

The Senate gave 30-5 approval to bills protecting the right of music teachers to give lessons in their homes or the homes of pupils. All area senators voted yes except Faust, who was excused.

The bills were sponsored by Sens. David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, and Faxon after a nationally publicized battle involving a West Bloomfield pianist. SB 532-34 amend laws governing municipalities, townships and counties respectively.

UM-D events spotlight '40s and '50s

The '40s and '50s — that's 1940s and 1850s — will be spotlighted during separate programs at Greenfield Village and Henry Ford Museum, Dearborn.

Fabulous '40s Evenings begin Sunday, Dec. 15 and feature hors d'oeuvres, dinner and dancing to a big band. Lovett Hall will be turned into a 1940s-era nightclub. The floor show pays tribute to such '40s stars as Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, Judy Garland and Carmen Miranda.

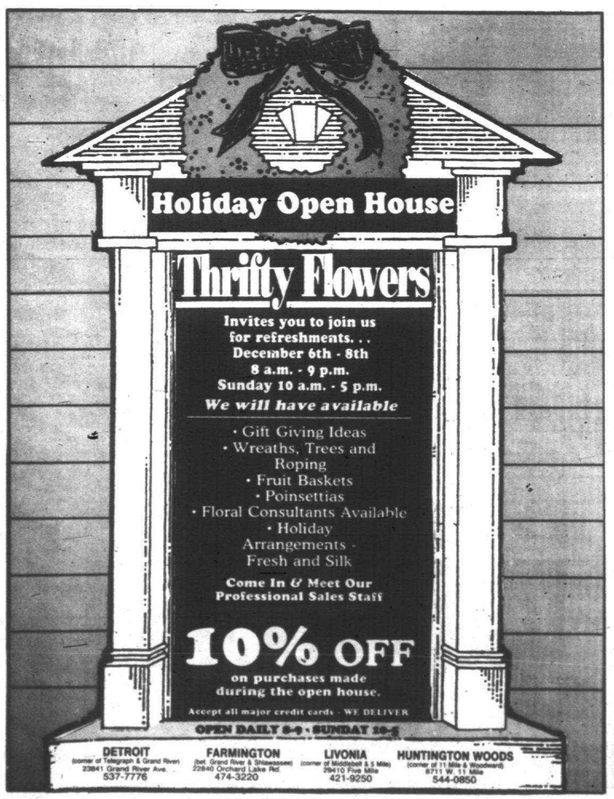

The program is repeated Dec. 19, 27 and 28. Tickets are $58 per person, including tax and gratuity. Black tie or period dress is encouraged, though business attire is also appropriate.

The 19th century is celebrated during 1850s Holiday Evenings at Eagle Tavern. The tavern, on the Greenfield Village grounds, offers a robust meal, song and merriment. Tickets are $35 per person, including tax and gratuity.

Reservations and additional information is available by calling 1-800-343-1929.

Greenfield Village and Henry Ford Museum is at Oakwood Boulevard and Village Road, west of the Southfield Freeway and south of Michigan Avenue.

Writer turns kid's mistake into book

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

It started when Zachary Korte, then 4, mistook a key lime pie for a "green pickle pie."

"I laughed about it, I talked to people about it," said his dad Gene Korte, a professional writer.

Now 2½ years later, Korte is promoting his first-ever book, "Green Pickle Pie," for kids.

Zachary, Korte recalled, "was grossed out and it provided me a springboard to other potential bizarre foods a child might imagine in a store."

IN THE BOOK, a boy goes on a shopping spree and finds a crazy assortment of things to eat — chocolate chili, peanut butter pizza, garlic gum, olive oatmeal and a sauerkraut sundae.

'I am not Fred Rogers. I'm interested in things that strike me as amusing, and would strike other people as amusing.'

— Gene Korte, author

But what he really wants is a great big squishy green pickle pie.

"What I did was I took foods and rhymed them with other words, and used alliteration like 'cauliflower cookies.'"

The book has a clever ending, which we won't give away.

"Green Pickle Pie" has just been made available, so it's too early to report on the critics' response.

But after several readings, a reporter's daughter, 7, proclaimed with enthusiasm, "This is a very good book."

Korte, 41, of Plymouth Township, writes promotional materials and other materials for the Society of Manufacturing Engineers, and has written occassional magazine articles for Good Housekeeping and The Saturday Evening Post.

He'd thought about writing a book someday, but not necessarily a kid's book.

"Green Pickle Pie" is illustrated by Gary Webb. "He's a friend of my brother's," Korte said, adding he'd seen samples of Webb's work.

When the two got together to work on the book, "I told him things in my head, and he had ideas of his own.

The publisher, Winston-Derek, "were very happy with the illustrations," Korte said.

The book should be available from local book stores, Korte said, adding, "If they don't have it, it can be ordered."

Korte said he has ideas for more books, for kids and adults. The adventures of his dog Roscoe — everybody in the neighborhood knew him — could spark one kids book, he suggests.

Does Korte plan to stick with wholesome tales of home and family? "I am not Fred Rogers," he said, laughing.

"I'm interested in things that strike me as amusing, and would strike other people as amusing."

Gene Korte's book "Green Pickle Pie," inspired by his son Zachary, has just been published.

Tour of Greenmead renews holiday spirit

A chance to renew your holiday spirit lies as close as Eight Mile and Newburgh roads at Greenmead Historical Village in Livonia.

Decorating in this year's theme of "A Musical White Christmas," the Greenmead Christmas committee has been making a display of sheet music, fashioning historic white ornaments, and creating a new display for the village store window.

Open four Sundays in December, the Hill Houses and the village offer a chance to step back in time and experience holiday celebrations of long ago.

Tours are from 1-4 p.m. Dec. 8, 15, 22. Admission is $2 for adults and $1 for senior citizens. Children are admitted free.

Every Sunday in December there will be a special program in Newburg Church at Greenmead. Concerts will be given beginning at 3 p.m. with admission being free.

On Sunday, Dec. 8, the Livonia Civic Chorus will perform and on Sunday, Dec. 15, Miss Redford Township Stacey Heisler will entertain.

Beginning at 2 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 22, story teller Florence "Dinghy" Sharp will relate the beginning of Christmas traditions with a surprise to be revealed.

On Saturday, Dec. 7, Friends of Greenmead will hold its annual Christmas Walk from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. with Hill House at Greenmead being one of the starting points. The charge is $5 and proceeds will benefit the Blue House. For further information, call 477-7375.

"If you haven't visited our city's wonderful efforts to preserve the past for our children, the holiday season is a great time to see what has been done," said Jane Soltesz. "You will want to return again and again."

Christmas cards will be on sale at Greenmead at $8 for 25 cards.

ROTATOR CUFF TEAR
The term 'rotator cuff tear' is another instance where a difficult sounding medical term translates into a reasonable explanation.
A number of conditions can cause shoulder pain and limit movement of the arm. Rotator cuff tear is one; others include adhesive capsulitis, supraspinatus tendinitis, and osteoarthritis.
The word rotator refers to the action of the group of muscles that anchor to the top of the shoulder. The movement possible by the coordination of these muscles is a combination of elevation, extension and flexion termed rotation. The muscles form a circle around the shoulder, hence the description "cuff." The cause of the shoulder pain and impairment is a break in one more of the cuff muscles where its tendon anchors into the bone, therefore the designation 'tear.' In most instances the reason for the tear is past injury or inflammation coupled with incomplete healing.
Thus 'rotator cuff tear' is an accurate explanation of one cause for shoulder pain.
It is important that your doctor identifies this cause. At the least, you should know so you can allay fears of a crippling arthritis. Furthermore, as treatment for this condition is distinct from other shoulder ailments, an accurate diagnosis will expedite resolution and do so at a reasonable cost.

New telephone taxes gain Senate approval

Some counties will be able to tax telephone bills 4 percent to pay for emergency service under a bill that has passed the state Senate.

County boards would be able to levy the tax to pay for 911 emergency systems. Voters could raise the an additional 10 percent.

Senate Bill 617 won 24-10 approval and was sent to the House. All area senators voted yes except Mat Dunaskiss, R-Oxford.

"This adds a substantial amount of tax to telephone bills, which are already high," said opponent Vern Ehlers, R-Grand Rapids, "and may endanger the ability of some to have a telephone in their home.

"Another issue that has not been addressed here is that most central dispatch centers are operated by cities, not counties. There is no discussion in this bill of how those funds would be allocated from counties to cities. Nothig is said about insuring fairness of distribution," said Ehlers.

"It's a sneaky way of putting a tax on the people," added Jim Berryman, D-Adrian.

Sayde Harwick Power, welfare activist

Memorial services for Sayde Harwick Power were held Friday at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church in Ann Arbor.

Mrs. Power, of Barton Hills, Ann Arbor, was a community activist whose leadership in family welfare, education and cultural affairs is respected internationally. She died Tuesday after a long illness.

Mrs. Power held a bachelor of arts and master of science degrees from the University of Michigan where she later initiated the first psychological counselling service for students. She later served as clinical consultant to Kingswood School in Bloomfield Hills.

She married Eugene Power in 1929 and joined him later in the founding of the family business, University Microfilms Inc. in Ann Arbor.

After her husband's election in 1955 as regent of the University of Michigan, Mrs. Power was active in a broad range of educational, humanitarian and artistic affairs. Her interest in theater was a driving force in creation of the Power Center for the Performing Arts. It opened in 1971.

In 1989, the Power Foundation funded the Sadye H. Power Program for Children and Families Under Stress, a combined clinical and research program at the University of Michigan. She was a national board member of the Planned Parenthood Federation of America.

She is survived by her husband, Eugene B. Power; a son, Philip Harwick Power, a University of Michigan regent who is owner and chairman of Suburban Communications Corp., publisher of Observer & Eccentric Newspapers and community and specialty newspapers in Michigan and Ohio; and a grandson, Nathan E. Power.

Memorial contributions may be made to Planned Parenthood of Mid-Michigan, P.O. Box 3673, Ann Arbor, Mich. 48106 or the Sayde H. Power Program for Children and Families Under Stress, c/o the University of Michigan.

Non-smokers to get more 'dining room'

Non-smoking areas in restaurants would be expanded slightly under a bill that has passed the state Senate and gone to the House.

Any restaurant seating more than 30 would have to provide a no-smoking section. Currently only restaurants with more than 50 seats are affected.

Sponsored by Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, Senate Bill 179 says 50 percent of the space would be allocated to non-smokers. That could be adjusted as demand changes, but no less than 15 percent of the space must be non-smoking.

Faxon's original bill required an absolute minimum of 25 percent smoke-free space, but it was amended downward on the Senate floor. Opposing the amendment were Faxon and Robert Geake, R-Northville.

The vote was 28-4. All area senators voted yes except William Faust, D-Westland, who had an excused absence.

Traffic ticket surcharge is approved

Speeders and other ticketed drivers would pay an extra $5 surcharge to the state to pay for road patrols.

Senate Bill 592 won 31-3 approval and was sent to the House. It affects moving violations, not parking tickets. The surcharge expires after two years.

All area senators voted yes except Mat Dunaskiss, R-Oxford, who missed the vote, and William Faust, D-Westland, who had an excused absence.

"It's yet another tax increase," protested Nick Smith, R-Addison, who voted no. He said it gave departments an incentive to issue speeding tickets "to put more law enforcement officers on the road and pay for the gas for cars. We're simply adding another tax to replace what traditionally the state has done."

UM-D to hold dinner dance

"Building Upon Tradition", the fourth annual University of Michigan-Dearborn dinner dance, is scheduled for Saturday, April 11, at the Ritz-Carlton, Dearborn.

Proceeds from the black-tie benefit aid restoration projects at Henry Ford Estate-Fair Lane, the National Historic Landmark that was home to the Ford family for more than 30 years.

Projects currently underway include restoration of the estate greenhouse and powerhouse.

The estate is owned and operated by UM-D and open for public tours.

Edsel B. Ford II and his wife, Cynthia, are honorary chairman and chairwoman for the 1992 event. Ford is great-grandson of Henry Ford.

Patron tickets are $200 per person. Guest tickets are $150 per person.

To order tickets, or for additional information, call the estate, 593-5590.

Consider these doctors' accomplishments, and you will understand why they've earned women's trust.
Sinai physicians are known around the world for pioneering gynecological laser procedures for endometriosis and other menstrual disorders. Here, surgeries using lasers and tiny scopes mean less pain and shorter recovery times for women.
In our Mothers and Infants' Center, our doctors make sure that an obstetrician, an OB anesthesiologist and a neonatologist are on-site 24 hours a day. And our physicians' skills are reflected in a Cesarean section rate that's 15 percent below the national average.
From delivering quintuplets to providing breast imaging to tailoring oncology and psychiatry just for women, these physicians — and all our doctors — emphasize the utmost in quality and comprehensive care.
And for women, that's something you can really place your trust in. Call 1-800-248-3627 for referral to a Sinai physician.

Chiefs win regional with good defense

SHERRIE BUZBY/staff photographer

Canton players (from left) Kelly Holmes, Britta Anderson and Stephanie Gray celebrate after the Chiefs won their second regional basketball title in three years, beating Wyandotte 45-34.

By Dan O'Meara

Coaches like to say basketball is exactly that — a matter of putting the ball in the basket.

But sometimes it's just as important, if not more important than scoring, to stop the other team from doing that.

The Plymouth Canton girls proved the value of good defense Wednesday night when they defeated Wyandotte 45-34 to win the regional championship at Plymouth Salem.

The Chiefs (20-4) advance to the Class A quarterfinals for the second time in three years and will play Grand Ledge (19-6) at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Lansing Eastern Fieldhouse.

Struggling to generate offense and frustrated by the shot-blocking ability of Wyandotte's 6-foot-3 Kim Bailey, Canton countered with an outstanding effort on defense, particularly in regards to rebounding.

"WE PLAYED A solid basketball game at the defensive end," Canton coach Bob Blohm said, "and that's where this team has improved the most.

"We weren't in sync offensively, but defensive rebounding saved us. There are going to be nights when the offense is not real sweet, and some other things have to help you. For 32 minutes, we did a real good job rebounding the ball."

With 6-foot junior Stephanie Gray leading the way, Canton managed to keep the Bears away from their offensive board and hold Wyandotte to one shot time after time.

As an example, the Chiefs shot 25 percent and the Bears 20 in the first quarter, but Canton had twice as many opportunities, making five of 20 field goals compared to two of 10 by Wolverine A Conference champ Wyandotte (23-2).

Overall, the Bears shot better than Canton, 33 percent to 28. But the Chiefs had 20 more chances, taking 65 shots and making 18.

"I think the rebounding helped us a lot," said Gray, who still scored a game-high 20 points despite having her shot altered by Bailey's presence in the middle. "Because it was so frustrating on offense, the defensive rebounding gave us a lot more opportunities to do what we needed to do and to score."

"WE KNEW CANTON was an excellent rebounding team, and that probably has been our weakest spot all year," said Wyandotte coach Ann Gapa-Robb, the wife of former Plymouth High star Steve Robb, now the football coach at Milan High School.

Furthermore, the Chiefs didn't allow any Wyandotte player to reach double figures. Lisa Overholt had nine points, Bailey eight, Mary Martin seven and 5-11 Sara Bailey six.

Canton produced enough offense to win the game. Gray, who made all six of her free throws, was around her average, and 5-10 junior Kelly Holmes had a big game, scoring a welcome 12 points with Gray facing increased defensive pressure.

"We got a little discouraged when they blocked a few," Blohm said, "but we got key baskets when we needed them and key stops when we needed them."

"The team had to pass the ball around to get it to the open player," Holmes said. "(Bailey) was guarding Stephanie, so when I got the ball I tried to go around her to the basket. But I think it was all a team effort because of the passing."

Kim Bailey drew an early foul, but Gapa-Robb's worst fear didn't materialize as Bailey remained in the game to present an imposing obstacle.

"I WAS VERY worried about Gray going to the hole and getting Kim in foul trouble," Gapa-Robb said. "But she blocked a couple shots and Gray started changing her shot inside."

"It was frustrating, because it seemed wherever you went she was there," Gray said. Canton's success had "a lot to do with rotating the ball so we could get a better seal on her.

"Our team has pulled together so well. We wouldn't have gotten through it if we didn't help each other."

Gray had eight first-quarter points to propel Canton to a 12-4 lead, which declined by only a point at halftime, 20-13. The Chiefs hustled back on defense to stop the Wyandotte break and also caused the Bears to make 17 of their 27 turnovers in the first half.

Kim Bailey made her presence felt in the third quarter, intimidating the Canton shooters. Wyandotte trimmed the Canton lead to 24-22 be-

Is the MHSAA seeking total control?

C.J. Risak

WHAT PERFECT timing.

The holiday entertainment rush is here, so why not toss in a nice, juicy political power play to add some spice to the season?

Particularly now that the George Perles vs. John DiBiaggio debacle has subsided, at least for now. The ground is fertile, waiting only for the seed of controversy to be planted.

And now it has been. The Michigan High School Athletic Association is attempting to absorb more power over the athletic well-being of the state's youth by dictating what sports they can play, and when.

The issue: A special committee was appointed by the MHSAA to study students' involvement in non-school sports, and the use of school athletic facilities by organizations not affiliated with the school's athletic program.

Their proposal, quoting an MHSAA report: "Any student who participates on an interscholastic team for their school may not represent any other organization or compete in any outside competition in that sport during the school year, except that an individual may participate in a maximum of four individual sports meets or contests in that sport out of season during the school year."

PREP COACHES across the state are up in arms. Indeed, paranoia is running rampant; a meeting of the MHSAA's representative council scheduled for Wednesday, one of three annually, was interpreted by many as the meeting at which the issue would be decided.

Let's clear that up, first of all. "It will not come up until May," assured Eric Federico, Trenton High School's athletic director and a member of the MHSAA's special committee. "There are a lot of people panicking right now.

"The representative council will vote on this in May. It is not on the agenda (for Wednesday), but there probably will be some discussion on it."

There's already a groundswell of discussion on it. Coaches claim certain high school sports could be ruined if such a rule were adopted; swimming, for one, is a sport requiring singular focus.

Other sports that figure to be affected are gymnastics, soccer, basketball, hockey, volleyball, tennis . . . well, you get the picture.

IF THIS sounds like needless worry — I mean, who would support such a ridiculous proposal? — consider this: In a survey taken by the MHSAA, a vast majority of the high school athletic directors polled (120 out of 155) favored it. On a local level, one source said most of the Western Lakes Activities Association ADs supported it.

If adopted, a student-athlete — a soccer player, for example — could not compete for any other team during the nine-month school year. If he did, he could be ruled ineligible for the next high school season.

Why is the MHSAA pushing this? "Our concern was making kids too one-dimensional," said Federico. "For example, a kid who plays soccer in the fall won't go out for basketball in the winter because he's playing indoor soccer."

So the MHSAA has decided to take it upon itself to remedy the situation by forcibly bringing back the three-sport athlete.

"It's ridiculous," said Mike Lane, coach of Bloomfield Hills Andover's boys swim team. "I don't think they have any right to do this at all. I think they'd be tied up in court for so long, it could never happen.

"I FEEL we're in an age of specialization. If kids truly want to be outstanding, they have to train for that one sport. The day of the three-sport athlete is history."

Walt Barrett, coach of Livonia Stevenson's state champion boys soccer team, claimed people around the state "are absolutely shocked by it." And, like other coaches opposing the proposal, Barrett figures the MHSAA's intentions may be good but its logic is misplaced.

As Lane noted, a decision regarding a high school student's choices in athletics should be made by the student and his parents, not by the MHSAA.

"They're trying to become parents," said Tom Teeters, Livonia Ladywood's volleyball coach. "(The MHSAA is) making decisions parents should make.

"This will give them more control. They want more control in areas they don't belong."

The accusations are pouring forth, unrestrained and unrestricted. Ah, but good politicians always leave an escape route, right?

Federico firmly noted he had not made up his mind on the proposal.

"I'm waiting to see what my constituency wants," he said. Indeed, the recent surge of criticism is just what he had hoped for, he said; any proposal should be scrutinized publicly before adoption.

"We're not here as lords and masters," said Federico.

CC edged in AA final

By Steve Kowalski

Marvin Wright and Howard Foster are cousins, so it's no wonder they relate to each other so well.

Wright plays quarterback and Foster tailback and they were two of the reasons Saginaw Arthur Hill upset Redford Catholic Central, 13-12, in Saturday's Class AA football championship game at the Pontiac Silverdome.

"He's my cousin so I believe in him," Wright said. "I know I can pitch the ball to him and he can get the job done. It must run in the blood."

Arthur Hill's option offense confused CC most of the afternoon, especially in the fourth quarter, when the Lumberjacks drove 73 yards in 12 plays for the winning touchdown. Wright capped the scoring drive with a 2-yard run with 1:43 left.

Wright, who completed passes of 9 and 15 yards on the drive, didn't think twice about keeping the ball on third down and goal from the CC 2.

"I figured they were going to bite on the fake and the outside was going to be open," Wright said. "I just punched it in."

After the ensuing kickoff, CC reached Arthur Hill's 40 on a 17-yard pass from quarterback Chris Barbara to wide receiver Mario Vassallo, but Foster intercepted a CC pass intended for Frank Yoakam in the final minute at Arthur Hill's 37 to finish off the Shamrocks. The loss ended CC's hope of winning two straight Class AA titles and finished the Shamrocks' season at 11-2 overall.

CC WON 11 games by an average margin of 19.9 points, but its two losses came by a total of two points.

"Our ultimate goal from August on was to win the state championship," CC fullback Dan Gusoff said. "I'm sick of one-point losses."

Kerry Zavagnin, who kicked a 27-yard field goal in overtime to beat Detroit Martin Luther King, 10-7, in a Class AA semifinal, didn't have a memorable championship game. Zavagnin missed field goals of 23 and 47 yards, and he never got a chance to kick an extra point because of a bad snap after the Shamrocks' first TD in the first quarter.

"It's one of those things," Mach said. "The opportunities were there. The one was a long field goal that most high school kickers wouldn't make but we thought he might be able to make that one."

Problems with the kicking game helped doom the Shamrocks, but the real nemesis was Arthur Hill's option attack, triggered by Wright. Arthur Hill gained 212 yards net rushing to CC's 191 and fullback Taj Mustapha was the leading ground gainer with 104 yards on 19 carries.

Wright finished with 23 yards on 11 carries, while Foster scored on a 12-yard run and had 68 yards on seven carries.

"King ran a similar offense but nobody ran the option against us like Arthur Hill," Mach said. "You have to defend the whole field, but if you come up for the run, they can hit you with the dump pass. I'd like to congratulate Saginaw Arthur Hill for a great game. They did a great job on the final drive. To go 80 yards (actually 73) is pretty hard to do in a big game."

ARTHUR HILL, which was 3-2 at one point in the regular season, capped its first state championship year with an 11-2 record. Arthur Hill was undefeated and unscored upon during the 1973 season, but there were no playoffs then, so the Lumberjacks were considered only mythical state champions.

"I've got goosebumps — and that sums up the feeling right now. It was a tremendous effort by both teams," Arthur Hill coach Jim Eurick said. "We felt very fortunate we have our quarterback playing his best ball. He was able to read the option and we were able to run traps with the fullback (Mustapha) and that gave us momentum."

It looked as if CC might win after Jason Krueger recovered an Arthur Hill fumble near the end of the third quarter at midfield and the Shamrocks drove 50 yards for a TD and a 12-7 lead with 7:35 remaining. Gusoff, who finished with 42 yards on 10 carries, ended the drive with a 1-yard plunge, but the Shamrocks weren't able to make the two-point conversion.

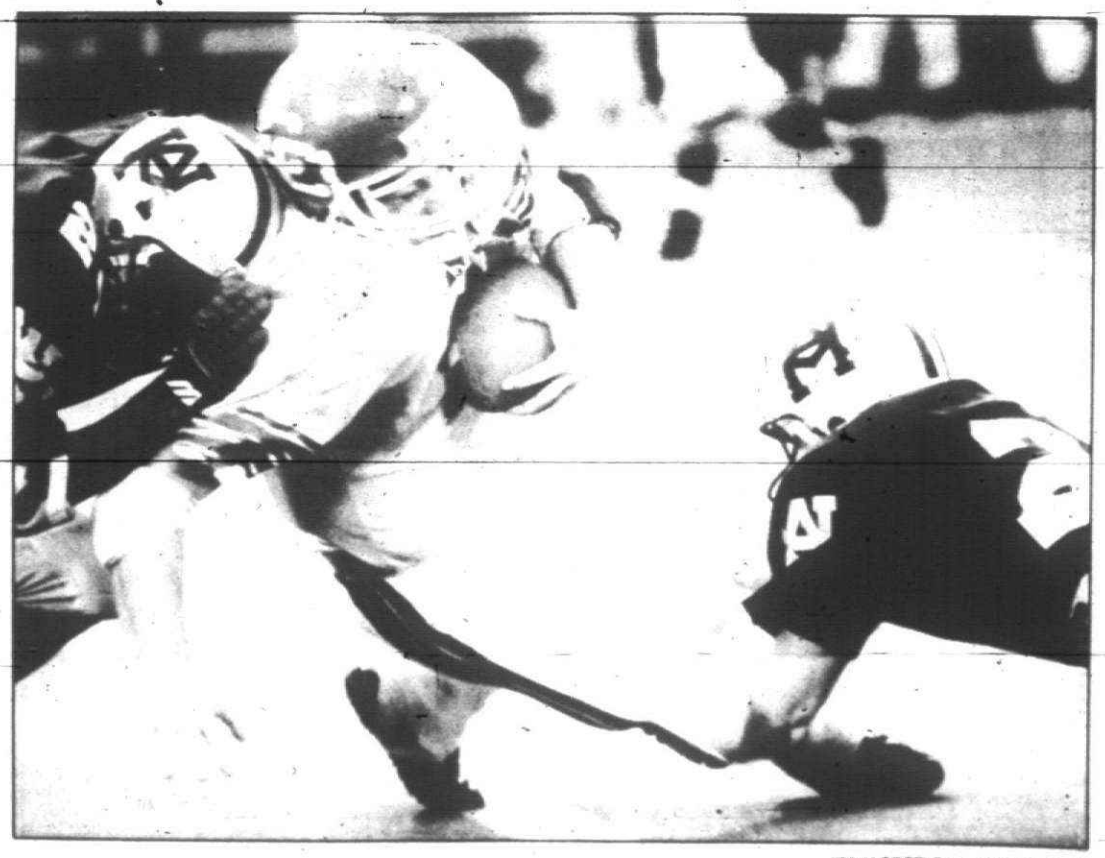

"There was still a lot of time left but I thought our defense would step up," said Gusoff, who doubles as a defensive tackle.

CC's defense set up the first score of the game — a quarterback sneak by Barbara with 7:02 left in the first quarter. Ken Rys intercepted Wright's pass intended for Trevor Eimers and returned the ball to Arthur Hill's 36.

Senior tailback Jeff Tibaldi, who led CC with 78 yards on 21 carries, gained 15 yards to bring the ball to Arthur Hill's 16 and Barbara scored four plays later.

Zavagnin wasn't able to convert the PAT, however, because the snap from center bounced before it got to holder Matt Pinard. Foster capped a seven-play, 80-yard scoring drive and Wright kicked the PAT to give Arthur Hill a 7-6 lead with 2:55 left in the first quarter.

The Shamrocks had a chance to regain the lead in the second quarter, but Zavagnin's 23-yard field goal kick from the far left hash mark was just wide and he was short on a 47-yard attempt late in the half.

Quarterfinal foe poses challenge for Canton team

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Plymouth Canton will need another good defensive effort Wednesday if the Chiefs are to continue their season in the Class A girls basketball tournament, according to coach Bob Blohm.

The Chiefs (20-4) face a formidable Grand Ledge opponent (19-6) at 7:30 p.m. in a quarterfinal contest at Lansing Eastern High. The winner advances to the Final Four in Battle Creek Friday.

"They have good athletic ability and quickness and they seem to be playing with a lot of confidence now," Blohm said.

"They're an excellent rebounding team and a good ball-handling team. They don't make many mistakes. They get the ball out and go on you."

The Comets are a balanced team as evidenced by their scoring Wednesday when they toppled state-ranked and favored Benton Harbor 66-60 in a regional final.

FIVE-FOOT-7 JUNIOR guard Jill Hetherington, 5-6 senior wing Robin Bessette and 6-0 senior center Sarah Brandt scored 16 points apiece. Grand Ledge also made 16 of 23 free throws in that game.

Brandt can score with either hand, turn and score from either side, according to Blohm. She is the leading scorer, but an equally important player is 5-6 junior point guard Kirstin Frederickson.

"Benton Harbor couldn't press her," Blohm said. "She is their press offense. Give her the ball and get out of her way.

"She's an excellent passer, and she can penetrate and score. She and Brandt are the two key players, and the others complement them real well."

The teams match up in terms of height, but the Comets are a pressure team and Blohm is concerned about their quickness.

"We'll have to be at our best defensively," he said. "I don't see them doing anything spectacular, but I see them doing a lot of things well."

CANTON HAS been playing well in the defensive phase of the game. Two regional opponents averaged just 32 points against the Chiefs. Whereas teams were scoring 60 and 70 on Canton early in the year, the opposing scores have come down to more reasonable numbers, according to Blohm.

"Two things that concerned me early in the year were defense and rebounding, and those things have solidified themselves now," he said.

"With the exception of the Wyandotte game, our ball handling and movement on offense have been pretty good. So we've balanced our game out a lot, too."

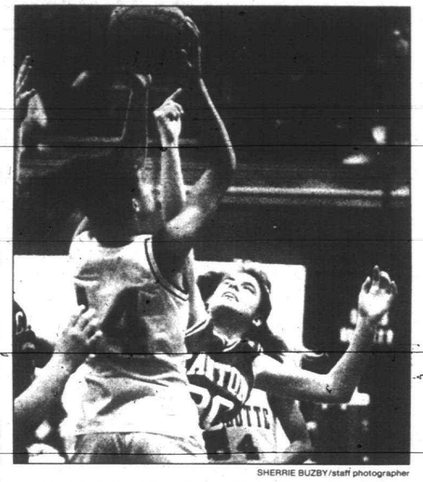

Canton has improved and reached this point in the tournament without one of its best defenders, senior Julie Nicastri, who broke a bone in her foot early in the season.

"We had to deal with a real setback when Julie Nicastri went down, because I think Julie is the outstanding defensive player in the state of Michigan," Blohm said. "That's how I feel about her. But the kids have hung in there.

"We didn't have her on the court, but we still have her. She has provided us with great leadership and direction, and that's helped the other kids."

Canton will counter offensively with 6-foot junior center Stephanie Gray, who leads the team with 18 points and nine rebounds per game.

Chiefs top Bears, win regional title

fore Gray hit a layup at the buzzer.

"We had some good scoring opportunities and didn't score," Blohm said. "We didn't; they did — and now we have a ballgame."

HOLMES AND Gray scored eight points each in the fourth quarter to help Canton secure the win, but sophomore guard Alyson Nounes might have scored the biggest basket of the game.

With the Chiefs leading 32-26 and the game still in doubt, Nounes sank a three-point shot to give Canton a nine-point advantage with 3:47 remaining in the game.

"We worked and worked and then we had a little letdown," Gapa-Robb said. "What broke our back was little No. 3's three-pointer."

"That took a lot of pressure off," Blohm said.

Gapa-Robb said fatigue became a factor with Kim Bailey, who nonetheless played as hard as she had in any game.

The Chiefs, playing their fourth tournament game in seven days, also had to deal with fatigue, Blohm said.

"When you get to the regional final, there's a little more pressure, both teams are going hard and the game might not be as pretty as you want it to be. Right now we're a little tired. But we maintained our (defensive) position and pressure for the most part."

Mercy will play top-rated Pilots

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

The last time Farmington Hills Mercy played Detroit Murray-Wright in girls basketball, the Marlins won by a point when Annette Ruggiero hit a buzzer shot in a 1984 regional final.

Mercy will gladly take another one-point victory Wednesday when it plays the top-ranked Pilots in a Class A quarterfinal game at Southfield High. Tipoff is at 7:30 p.m. The winner advances to the semifinals Friday in Battle Creek.

But the Marlins (16-8), who won their first regional championship since 1986, face a Murray-Wright team as formidable as the one they beat seven years ago.

The Pilots (18-1) won the Public School League title over defending state champ Martin Luther King, and playing Murray-Wright it like preparing for an all-star team, Mercy coach Larry Baker said.

Murray-Wright, which lost to King in the Class A final last year, has been helped by three transfer players.

CENTER KISA Bradley (6-4) and point guard Ayanna Winston (5-4) previously played at other PSL schools, and forward Eugenia Warren (5-8), who scored 35 points against Dearborn Fordson last week, is an import from Flint. Guard Tia Kemp (5-5) and forward Keisha Taylor (5-8) are the other starters.

"They're a real run-and-gun outfit," Baker said. "They apply tenacious full-court pressure and thrive on turnovers. With the exception of Bradley, they are small but extremely quick, and they have sudden moves to the basket."

Baker said he was encouraged by the fact Livonia Franklin stayed in the game with the Pilots last week as all-stater Dawn Warner scored a career-high 47 points.

"Murray-Wright doesn't put quite the premium on defense that we do," Baker said, "but those kind of athletes are interested in getting as many possessions as they can."

Baker believes the difficult schedule Mercy played has prepared it for such a challenge and the Marlins won't be intimidated because of those experiences.

"I've got a confident crew," Baker said. "They believe in the team concept, and it's been a joy to watch them jell together."

MERCY HAS been a rejuvenated team in post-season play, and the performance of senior point guard Kathleen Berrigan and a restructured lineup have figured prominently.

Berrigan, who averaged 8½ points and 7½ assists in the regular season, has taken her game up a level in four tournament games, scoring an average of 13½ points and still increasing her assists to 8¾ per game.

"I think I finally realized I'm a senior," Berrigan said after scoring 20 points to help the Marlins beat rival Birmingham Marian 57-45 in a regional final last week. "(Baker) tells me to take charge, and part of taking charge is scoring."

After the team struggled in the Catholic League playoffs, Baker decided something had to be done to generate more scoring. His first move was to coax Berrigan to be more assertive offensively. Her driving layups did big damage to to Marian.

She has been a very dominant floor leader for us and has prevented us from entering any of the offensive slumps that were affecting us earlier in the season," Baker said. "It seems when the other team makes a run at us, Kathleen has been able to come up with a big play or find another hot player on the court."

Baker also put together a new starting five, partly by design but also out of necessity. In addition to senior regulars Laure DeMatia, Mary Bieniewicz and Berrigan, senior wing Natalie Cichonski and freshman post Julie Angell have helped Mercy to start faster offensively.

WHEN DANA Wade and Valire Jones went down with sprained ankles, Baker was forced to use the 6-foot Angell sooner than he planned. When senior Katie Heffernan got the flu late in the season, Cichonski stepped forward. Wade, Jones and Heffernan have recovered, and all contributed to Mercy winning the regional.

"Injury and illness were as much a factor in juggling people around," Baker said. "It was not initially a matter of strategy only. Fate and circumstances had a hand to play in that, too."

After Angell scored 19 points and had six rebounds against Marian, Baker said he was "awful glad I went with a freshman. I knew we would need scoring and she certainly gave us that."

Osterland quits as coach

By Brad Emons
staff writer

The search is on for a new varsity football coach at Livonia Churchill High.

Herb Osterland, 26-46 in his eight seasons as coach, submitted his resignation last week to principal Rodney Hosman, along with athletic director Don Albertson.

"Mr. Hosman and myself have had several discussions, but we're not feeling any pressure to fill the position right away," said Albertson, in his first year as A.D. "We have four very fine young coaches (Osterland's assistants) in the program and we're still talking right now."

During Osterland's final two seasons, the Chargers went 0-18. He was 26-28 during his first six years, including back-to-back 6-3 campaigns in 1985-86.

Osterland, a physical education teacher at the school, plans to remain as the school's varsity baseball coach.

"It was just not one thing," Osterland said. "As a head coach you have so many different responsibilities, and in my case you had two sports between football and baseball. And by the time one (sport) ends, the other starts almost immediately. It was a time commitment thing, but not winning a game in two years — yes — was a factor."

OSTERLAND, a longtime assistant under Ken Kaestner, took over the Churchill program in 1984.

"I weighed many of the same factors that Kenny did when he got out of coaching," Osterland said. "My life is geared to other things than just coaching sports. I like boating, fishing and hunting. It's a good time to pass on the challenge to somebody else."

The job may go to one of Osterland's four assistants — John Bringstood, Bryan Masi, Steve Archibald or Steve Freier — all employed as teachers in the Livonia Public Schools.

"There are some others, but those four on the staff are very good people," Osterland said. "It's not like I'm turning it over to people who are going to be there one year and out the next. We have some young people in the coaching staff who know where we are in the program. They've all coached and played football themselves, and if they all work together, I think they can do something."

Osterland did not rule out coaching football in another capacity.

"He's offered to stay at lower level," Albertson said. "He's not done with the sport at all."

ADDED OSTERLAND: "I had tremendous fun back when I was at Holmes (middle school), where you had to teach the fundamentals. But being a head varsity coach at a high school is almost a 12-month a year job now. And with a wife and my kids nearly grown up, I decided to step away from that kind of time commitment and do some other things that I haven't had the opportunity to do."

(Osterland's son Brian, an All-Western Lakes offensive guard, will graduate next spring from for Livonia Stevenson.)

"The main thing is that he wanted to have more of a time commitment to his family," Albertson said. "It was not a negative thing as far as being tired of the (losing) records. He wants to do some other things."

COACHES NOTE: Russ McKenzie, who was named interim head football coach at Livonia Clarenceville during mid-season, will become the Trojans' permanent head coach, according to school sources.

McKenzie, 1-4 over the Trojans' final five games, replaced Mark Ladd, who resigned unexpectedly after going 5-8 in 1½ seasons.

SC finishes strong at tourney

By C.J. Risak
staff writer

It was a sublime victory for Schoolcraft College's volleyball team, at least according to coach Tom Teeters' standards.

The Lady Gcelots ended up tied for fifth at the NJCAA Tournament last week in Miami. It wasn't their best finish, to be sure; they won the NJCAA championship in 1988.

But titles aren't the best indicator of a team's performance. Improvement is, in Teeters' estimation. And SC led the 16-team field in that category.

"We improved upon last year, and we moved up the furthest according to the seeding," he said. "Our play improved all the way through the tournament."

So what more can a coach ask?

The Ocelots started play seeded ninth — which, translated, meant they weren't expected to survive pool play. But they did, taking all three games against eighth-seeded Kankakee (Ill.) College and three more against Rochester (N.Y.) College, then winning one-of-three against top-ranked Miami-Dade Wolfson.

SC'S 7-2 record in pool-play games (three games against each of three opponents) earned the Ocelots a second place in their pool, behind Wolfson and put them into the quarterfinal round.

Play in the quarterfinals consisted of best-of-three games matches in a double-elimination format. SC won its opener, upending Texas Southmost 5-15, 15-6, 15-11. But that was as far as the Ocelots could advance, as they lost to the eventual tournament champion, Eastern Arizona, 15-6, 15-8, in their next match.

In its first loser's bracket match, SC fell to Barton County College (Kansas) 15-11, 15-11. That left the Ocelots tied with Eastern Wyoming for fifth, their final season record was 42-13.

"All of us were really on throughout the tournament," said Teeters, who voiced no disappointment in his team's finish. One thing he was particularly pleased with: "We were able to make adjustments to other teams, like Texas Southmost. And the team made the adjustments with confidence."

THE WIN over Southmost rivaled SC's victory over Kankakee. The Ocelots got caught in a poor rotation in the opening game, as Southmost's Laura Salinas — "easily the best server in the tournament," according to Teeters — jump-served her team to eight consecutive points.

SC adjusted for the next game, however. Top hitter Kari Van Deusen, who never rotated out of the back row in the first game and did not register a kill, got six kills in the second. Renea Bonser was equally effective, scoring seven kills in SC's second-game win. Keli Haeger, who was SC's single setter throughout the tourney, had nine assists-to-kills in the game.

The third game — which took 45 minutes to play — was tight all the way, with neither team leading by more than two points. In the end, SC's power won out. Van Deusen and Bonser combined for 10 kills. Bonser finished with 13 kills (a .323 average) and Van Deusen had 12 (.500) in the match.

SC had problems matching up with Eastern Arizona, and it showed. Van Deusen was limited to seven kills in the match, Bonser had five. Their only weakness was they had a middle blocker who was 6-2 or 6-3, but she was a bit awkward," said Teeters. "We tried to take advantage of that."

BUT THE Ocelots could not do it consistently. And they were hurt by Eastern Arizona's Dolores Allen, a 5-foot-4, 204-pound Samoan who was chosen tournament MVP. "She was just unbelievable," Teeters said. A setter and outside hitter, Allen pounded a shot off Stephanie Jandasek's head and left a welt on Van Deusen's arm after a block attempt.

SC's final match, against Barton, came at a bad time — right after the Ocelots' loss to Eastern Arizona. "We weren't down," said Teeters. "But the fatigue factor was in Barton's favor."

Brusseau stars in goal as CC blanks Spartans

By Ray Setlock
staff writer

Redford Catholic Central goalie Mike Brusseau paced the hallway outside the locker room Wednesday after the Shamrocks beat Livonia Stevenson 4-0 in a prep hockey non-league game played at Eddie Edgar Arena.

After a couple of minutes, Brusseau found what he was looking for — a drinking fountain.

The sophomore netminder deserved the drink after turning away all 30 of Stevenson's shots in a matchup of two of the state's top teams.

"The puck was just falling right into me," Brusseau said. "The defense played well. They did a good job of back-checking.

"I really think this is a good way to start the season. This game will give us some enthusiasm."

THE SHAMROCKS, who were outshot 30-25, killed off five Stevenson power plays.

"We pretty much followed the style that we play here at Catholic Central," CC coach John Gumbleton said. "We didn't do bad for our first game."

Junior forward Bill Baaki led the offensive attack for CC, tallying two goals and one assist.

"Bill played well," Gumbleton said. "In fact, his entire line played well."

Baaki started the CC scoring just 2:31 into the game when he skated toward the Stevenson net and tucked the puck behind sprawling goalie Mike Williams.

THE SHAMROCKS added a power play goal with just nine seconds left in the opening period to lead 2-0. Blaznek punched in a loose puck, with Baaki and Denton assisting.

Junior forward Mike Giordano scored for CC with 5:45 remaining in the second period. Junior defenseman Mike Kasper assisted.

Baaki tallied the final Shamrock goal midway through the third period as Blaznek and Kasper drew assists.

"We were just scrambling around all night long," Stevenson coach Paul Ferguson said. "But give their goalie (Brusseau) credit, he made some nice saves on us."

Ferguson said his players might have been tired after playing two games in two nights. The Spartans defeated Grosse Pointe South 4-3 in their season-opener Tuesday.

"Last night's game was real physical," Ferguson said. "I'm sure our guys are tired."

Rocked from another planet

Band seeks outer limits on stage

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Maybe it's the hats or the exaggerated dance steps. One might wonder if Brothers from Another Planet maybe, in fact, from another planet.

But lead singer James Page is no alien when it comes to the music scene here.

"I'm going to give you my opinion of Detroit music," said Page, taking a break from a rehearsal in a Royal Oak basement. "You can get four bands in Detroit and you'll have 60. They imitate other bands 15 times over.

"Club owners and radio go for that (stuff) and I don't know why."

Tell us about it Page.

Instead of grousing about the duplicity permeating this musical galaxy of ours, Brothers from Another Planet have sought to rectify the situation.

Theirs is a splashy, noisy and boisterous journey through hard rock and reggae with a smidgen of funk. The band is in its third incarnation, featuring a veteran core of area musicians.

Scott Schroen of Royal Oak on guitar, Gordon Spencer of Oak Park on bass and Bob Dotto of Troy on drums are led by Page, who doffs a multitude of zany chapeaus and outfits on stage.

Spencer and Page were formerly of Enemy Squad while Dotto was drummer for Ayn Rand protees Figure 4. Schoen was a guitarist with a number of outfits, including one who had an Elvis impersonator singing Van Halen tunes. Combined, there is considerable musical aptitude.

A friend of his makes the head gear, but Page furnishes the unbridled energy spinning underneath such garish outfits.

"We don't think about anything we do," Page said. "When I used to go to clubs, one of my biggest problems was that the band was boring. We're just to express the music we play.

The music? Brothers from Another Planet go full throttle with a hard rock beat and indelible groove. Immediately, some are quick to label the group as the second coming of Living Colour only because two members are black. Before such comparisons were endless when all four members were black, Page said.

"You get so tired of the stereotypes," said Spencer, shaking his head.

Certainly, there is a groove in Brothers from Another Planet's music but funk is not the dominate element. The band does dominate the stage.

"We shock people into listening to us," Dotto said. "We're a hard band to ignore."

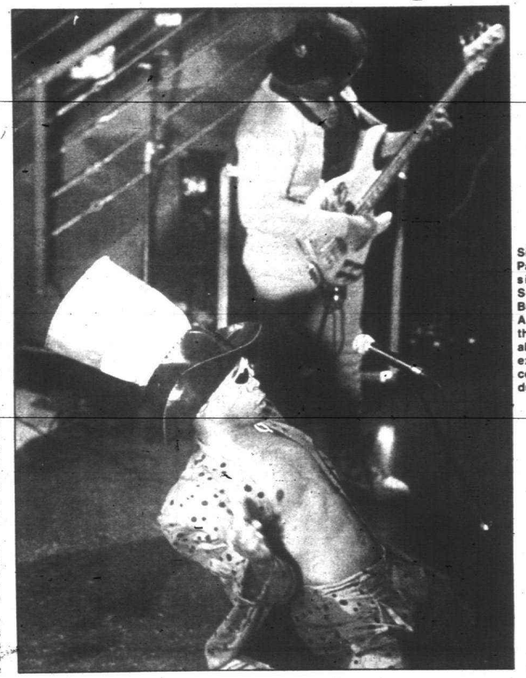

Brothers from Another Planet was formed with artistic freedom in mind. More important, though, was the need to have a good time.

Band members say they're not immune from inner-strife affecting other groups of their ilk. Too much energy, perhaps. No hard feelings spill over into the live shows, which are a visual explosion burning from beginning to end.

All of them have been around the block, enough to make them wise if not a little bit jaded. One thing they have learned is to keep the music simple but entertaining.

"The ear is real stupid when it comes to music," James said. "It only remembers simple melodies."

Brothers from Another Planet will perform as part of The Black Coalition of Rock showcase Friday, Dec. 6, at the Majestic Theatre, Woodward Avenue, north Alexandrine, Detroit. For information, call 833-9700.

Singer James Page and bassist Gordon Spencer lead Brothers from Another Planet through a visual and musical explosion recently at Industry.

WELD

— Neil Young & Crazy Horse

For the most part, live albums are the fillers for the artist, record labels and in your collection. Sure there are exceptions. Bob Seger's "Live Bullet" and the Rolling Stones' "Get Yer Ya-Ya's Out!" quickly come to mind.

And, yes, Neil Young & Crazy Horse's 1980 release "Live Rust," an album wrought with symbolic poetry bludgeoned home with snarling, buzzsaw guitar and an uncompromising stance.

So why has Young and Crazy Horse sought to duplicate that very effort 10 years later with "Weld"? Good question.

NUMBERS LIKE "Hey Hey, My My (into the Black)" and "Cinnamon Girl" sound the same as they did on "Live Rust." But that's hardly the point.

Rather the remarkable nature of this LP stems to the juxtaposition of his more recent material off of "Freedom" and "Ragged Glory" with those standards and how socially relevant they are today.

And in these times when rock 'n' roll has sadly become synonymous with the inconsequential utterings of Axl Rose and Jon Bon Jovi's hair, we need this hippie to reaffirm our belief in the genre.

"Crime in the City" is a six-minute plus epic, painting the fine line between crime fighter and law breaker. "Love to Burn" is nine minutes of pure ache as it explores the bitter realities of relationships. Both guitar grinding numbers touch on contemporary themes and slide right into the fray, bearing out Young's continual belief in the sanctity of the power chord and the truth through contradiction.

"Imagine: John Lennon" (USA - 1988). 8 p.m. Dec. 3. The ex-Beatle is revisited in an unusually honest documentary, culled from almost 240 hours of film footage. While glorifying his brilliance as a musician, it also shows Lennon's human side and often violent temper.

MAPLE THEATRE, 4135 W. Maple, Bloomfield. Call 855-9090 for showtimes. ($6; $3.50 twi-light).

"Prospero's Books" (USA - 1991). Peter Greenaway, the controversial director of "The Cook, The Thief, His Wife, and Here Lover," reworks Shakespeare's "The Tempest" with John Gielgud interpreting most of the parts. Visually, it's supposed to be a stunner, with its marriage of high-definition television images and the Quantel Paintbox on 35mm film.

"Black Robe" (USA - 1991). A true story based on the adventures of Father LaFourgue and his apprentice as they struggle for survival in the first clash between Europeans and Native Americans in 1634. From Bruce Beresford, the director of "Driving Miss Daisy" and "Breaker Morant."

"The Man in the Moon" (USA - 1991). The relationship between two sisters is severely tested when they fall in love with the same boy. Starring San Waterston and Tess Harper. Directed by Robert Mulligan.

'Addams Family' recycles old jokes

John Monaghan

After all, part of the charm of the bizarre series was its good-natured rehash of the same material week after week.

Same old characters. Same old gags. Is "The Addams Family" feature really an update or has Ted Turner simply gotten ahold of the vintage series and colorized it for rerelease?

Not that anyone was expecting something radically different. After all, part of the charm of the bizarre series was its good- natured rehash of the same material week after week. More than a cutesie monster comedy like "The Munsters," however, this was one of the few successful examples of truly dark comedy ever to succeed on TV.

For what it's worth, the new film does capture physically the creepy atmosphere of the old Charles Addams' drawings, which for years graced the pages of "The New Yorker Magazine." Perhaps the most well-known of the cartoons — the Family atop the house unloading a boiling cauldron on an unsuspecting group of Christmas carolers — is acted out in the first few minutes of the film.

For me, what really worked in the old show were the reactions on the faces of "normal" people upon entering the Addams household. It still has bear rugs that can take a bite out of your leg, but the victims here aren't Mr. and Mrs. Middle America. They're run-of-the-mill villains out to get hold of the Addams family fortune.

TO ACHIEVE this, they call upon a man who has a strong resemblance to Uncle Fester. According to the film, he and brother Gomez Addams had a falling out several years ago. Fester left, but was recently found floating in The Bermuda Triangle. The explanation satisfies — for awhile.

Christopher Lloyd, the whacked-out scientist in the "Back to the Future" movies, plays the regenerated Fester and he's really quite funny. He serves as straight man for the usual assortment of weird goings on.

You've seen the best bits in the movie ads. Pugsley and Wednesday, the Addams children, play with meat cleavers, electric chairs and guillotines. When someone tries to sell them girl scout cookies, they naturally want to know if they're made from real girl scouts.

One of the best gags occurs at a school pageant, where they shock the parent audience with a graphic swordfight. Blood spurts from severed limbs and covers the first four rows. It's the only scene that works for modern shock value.

Gomez and Morticia, meanwhile, are up to the same old slobbering whenever Tish speaks French. Gomez, in his playroom, sends toy trains roaring toward each other at top speed and engages in dramatic swordfights at the drop of a hat.

And again, the performances are really splendid. Anjelica Huston — long, spidery and oddly attractive — works well with Raul Julia, who was born to play Gomez with wild popping eyes and hot Latin blood.

The disembodied hand called Thing also returns, this time through the aid of modern special effects. He's no longer forced to hang out in a box. Now he scitters across the floor and becomes a more integral part of the dopey plot.

There's little point getting hypercritical about The Addams Family. It's not worth the trouble. With "Beauty and the Beast" and "Cape Fear" sharing time on area screens, this shouldn't be high on your list of holiday viewing.

Charm, romance found in 'The Shop'

LeAnne Rogers

The couple that banters and bickers their way into a realization of their mutual attraction is a familiar plot in movies. Few have ever handled the developing romance with more charm and style better than writer-director Ernst Lubitsch's 1939 film "The Shop Around the Corner."

Shop manager James Stewart and sales clerk Margaret Sullavan don't get along very well as they go about their duties at Matuschek and Company in pre-war Budapest.

Neither knows that Stewart has responded to Sullavan's newspaper advertisment seeking a gentleman to anonymously "correspond on culturral topics" — sort of a singles ad in a slower paced, more genteel era.

It's fun to watch Stewart and Sullavan speak glowingly to their friends at the shop about their high minded and unbelievably perfect correspondents, known only as "Dear Friend." They even use the stellar qualities of their unknown soulmate to insult each other by comparision.

Exchanging missives anonymously at a postal box is a device but a naturally flowing one for looking at how some relationships evolve. Most people can identify with Stewart when he confesses he has put off meeting his pen pal for fear of disappointing her or being disappointed himself.

THERE'S ALSO that fantasy about meeting the one person who is perfect for you and even though looks aren't supposed to matter, it sure would be simpler if you are physically attracted too.

This is one of my favorite films with Stewart and I'm always surprised at how few people have seen it. His character can be earnest and winning, slyly humorous, angry and hurt when he is unjustly treated.

Stewart is very good in the scene when he meets Sullavan at a restaurant, he knows they are pen pals but she doesn't. With her distinctive voice and face, Sullavan is his match. She doesn't look or act like many of the leading ladies of the era. There is an intelligence in her eyes and witty style that make her unique.

The film creates a living place with the shop, although I don't know that it seems particularly European. The shop owner; well played by Frank Morgan, and all the clerks are like a family. They all have their foibles and idiosyncracies, sometimes they get on each others' nerves. In the end, they have a basic respect and affection for each other.

Morgan's blustery Mr. Matuschek is the kind of guy who always tells his employees "I want your honest opinion" although nothing could be further from the truth.

THERE IS a bittersweet quality about his character, who seems to be having some marital problems and has suddenly lost faith in Stewart, his oldest employee.

Joseph Schildkraut, who began his career in silent films and went on to play Anne Frank's dignified father, is a dandified smarmy sales clerk. William Tracy is very funny as the wisecracking delivery boy looking for an opportunity to move up.

Although the film is a romantic comedy, it has a more realistic foundation than many similar films of the era. The disappointments, hurts and miscommunications between the characters are genuine.

It's a lovely film and a very good alternative for some old holiday viewing stand-bys.

'Tis the season for holiday happenings

It's beginning to feel a lot like Christmas.

The First Annual Battle Creek International Festival of Lights will light up the sky through Dec. 31. More than 500,000 lights and family entertainment will be featured. For more information call (616) 968-1515.

In the mood to pick and cut down your own Christmas tree? Visit Ottawa County (Holland, Grand Haven and Zeeland) for the Michigan Christmas Tree Festival through Dec. 22. Call (616) 396-4221 or write Holland Area Convention & Visitors Bureau, 150 W. 8th., Holland, Mich. 49423.

The City Opera House in downtown Traverse City presents a Festival of Trees through Dec. 8. Live entertainment, storytellers and craft demonstrators provide the holiday spirit. Call (616) 922-8562 or (616) 947-0180.

A free guide to Detroit area holiday events can be obtained from the Metropolitan Detroit Convention & Visitors Bureau, Two E. Jefferson Ave., Detroit, 48226 or by calling toll-free (800) DETROIT.

Highlights include "A Christmas Carol" at Meadowbrook Hall in Rochester, "The Nutcracker" at the Birmingham Theatre and "The Jack Frost Follies" presented by the Detroit Youtheatre.

Going south? There's a Madrigal Dinner Dec. 7-8 in Bloomington, Ind.; the Nashville Country Holiday Dec. 6-8 in Nashville, Tenn.; the Columbus, Ind. Festival of Lights Dec. 6-8; and New Year's Eve with the Oak Ridge Boys Dec. 30 to Jan. 1 in Merrillville, Ill.

Fort Wayne, Ind. hosts six weeks of festivities including the Festival of Trees and Christmas at the Zoo. Call Fort Wayne Visitor Information Center toll-free (800) 767-7752.

Ice sculptures, camel rides and animated animals highlight Cincinnati's Zoo Festival of Lights through Jan. 5 (closed Christmas Eve, Christmas Day and New Year's Eve). Call (513) 281-4700.

The Ohio Historical Society celebrates the season with sleigh rides, candlelight tours, mummer's plays and Victorian feasts throughout December. Highlights include A Poet's Christmas at the Dunbar House in Dayton, Christmas Under the Western Stars in Norwich, and Christmas Dinner at Spiegel Grove in Fremont. Call toll-free (800) 686-1544.

Yes, there really is a Santa Claus. On Dec. 14 and 15 residents of Santa Claus, Ind. celebrate the Festival of Lights with a Santa's Workshop, herds of sheep and electronic lighting displays. Call toll-free (800) 488-0890.

Ride a train or visit Santa on Dec. 7 in Monticello, Ill. at the Wabash Depot. Contact the Chamber of Commerce at (217) 762-7921.

A live nativity scene is featured at the Festival of Lights in New Albany, Ind. through Dec. 31. Call (812) 944-6448 for details.

From Dec. 7-22, music, reindeer and dolphin shows transform the Indianapolis Zoo into a Winter Wonderland. Call (317) 630-2030.

A Smoky Mountain Christmas at Dollywood, Pigeon Forge, Tenn., will feature live musical shows and traditional crafts. Call toll-free (800) DOLLYWOOD for dates and reservations.

Going north? Toronto winter events include Santa — The Real Thing, a display of oil paintings; a holiday show titled "The Christmas Star"; and the One-of-a-Kind Christmas Canadian Craft Show & Sale. For information contact the Metro Toronto Convention & Visitors Association toll-free (800) 363-1990.

And if that won't satisfy your exotic seasonal urges:

Torch-bearing skiers will lead a Christmas Eve procession down the slopes of Winter Park Resort in Colorado. Fireworks and church services complete the annual holiday tradition. Call (303) 726-5514.

Christmas in Finland packages offer a snowmobile safari to a reindeer farm, lessons in reindeer driving and traditional Finnish saunas. Contact the Finnair Tour Desk toll-free (800) 950-5000 or the Finnish Tourist Board, 655 Third Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017.

Grandma goes to Space Camp

READER Report by JACKIE DALTON of Plymouth

I arrived in Huntsville, Ala., armed with curiosity and a feeble conviction that continued personal growth is the key to happy retirement. Most Space Camp trainees at the U.S. Space and Rocket Center are young people but Adult Space Camp is open to anyone over age 19. Our group of 24 participants averaged age 40, with only two of us on the downhill side of 60.

Could we keep up?

I enrolled in the easiest of the adult programs, a weekend program that combined classroom instruction with hands-on activities. I will never again see a shuttle launch without recalling how I felt during those simulated space missions.

The course emphasized teamwork, decision making and leadership. Each participant was assigned to a team. No one goes into space alone.

My first challenge came when I was confronted with the sleeping arrangements: six bunks, most of them uppers. My second challenge was a test to ascertain my knowledge about space. I barely understood the questions, let alone the answers.

The test paper included 44 acronyms, little groups of letters like ELSS and MECO which stand for Environmental Life Support System and Main Engine Cut Off; stuff you'd really like to know when you're zooming through space.

We divided into three categories for our two simulated space missions, depending on test scores and preferences. Mission control trainees stayed on the ground during a mission. Cockpit members operated the shuttle in space. Science specialists performed experiments in space.

I was in ground control on one mission, in the cockpit for the second mission.

After touring the facility we tackled the simulators. The Multi-Axis training simulator spins not on one axis, but three! Watching is scary. Riding is not. We tumbled too fast to think about what our bodies were doing.

There was no pressure to try an activity. We could say "no thank you" to our team counselor. Staff members, well-trained young people the age of my grandchildren, participated in all phases of the training. They knew my fears before I did.

Other simulators let us feel motion without gravity and to practice walking on the moon. We each tried to dock the shuttle at a space station.

On the third try I finally got the orbiter lined up, but the approach was a tad swift. Chalk one up for seat belts. Vehicles handle differently without gravity. Landing on the runway is also tricky for the first-time pilot.

Next step in the program was training, learning required tasks at our assigned stations. Each two-hour mission had a script detailing every order, action and response, with each position highlighted.

Sunday, day 3, was mission day. One two-hour flight followed by a 30 minute debriefing in the morning, early lunch and back aboard for the second trip. The simulations were very realistic. The engines powered up with a roar. The orbiter trembled as it lifted away from earth.

Missions are designed to teach decision-making. The simulation director sat in the control room, gleefully flipping switches, causing crisis after crisis for the crew.

The meteor shower hit us while yours truly, temporary scientist, was crawling through a skinny metal tube leading from the laboratory back to the cockpit. Being pummeled by meteors is noisy and bumpy, a potentially bruising experience.

Despite damage and inclement weather, we landed safely. During debriefing we learned that crew error had accidentally trashed south Florida. Miami was obliterated, and it didn't even make the national news!

The price for Adult Space Academy Level I is $450, which includes housing Friday and Saturday nights plus meals, lunch Friday through lunch Sunday.

For information about this program and other U.S. Space Camp programs call toll-free (800) 63 SPACE or write to Space Camp, One Tranquility Base, Huntsville, Ala. 35807.

Jackie Dalton of Plymouth "trains" for space at Adult Space Camp in Huntsville, Ala.

So you want to go to Space Camp

By Iris Sanderson Jones
special writer

Jonathan Finnegan of Canton went to Space Camp with his friends Aaron Worpell and Andy Middlestead, students at the Lowell Middle School in Livonia. The boys are part of Boy Scout Troop 898.

His favorite part was riding the weightless simulator. "It's like a ride. You're just hanging there, floating around," he said.

Jonathan is one of thousands of young people and adults who have attended Space Camp, one of the 6 million people who have visited the U.S. Space and Rocket Center since it opened in 1970 in Huntsville, Ala.

German-born scientist Werner von Braun developed the first U.S. ballistic missile at the Redstone Arsenal in Huntsville in the 1950s. He lobbied for a non-profit space science museum called the Space and Rocket Center, opened by the state of Alabama in 1970, and later inspired Space Camp, which encourages young people to have fun while learning about science, technology and aerospace.

The U.S. Space Camp offers five-day programs for students grades four through six. Space Academy Level 1 is a five-day program for students in grades seven through nine. Space Academy Level 11 offers eight-day programs for high school sophomores, juniors and seniors. Costs range from $425 to $675.

Adult Space Camp in Huntsville offers three-day $450 sessions for adults 19 years and over and a five-day Teacher Space Orientation for $750. A second U.S. Space Camp in Titusville, Fla., has programs for kids in grades four through seven.

Students must have a teacher's recommendation and parent's permission to attend, but there are no course prerequisites or grade requirements.

"I went on two space missions," Jonathan said. "On the Endeavor, I was part of the crew that went out into space to repair the satellite. On the Atlantis, I was part of the ground crew, making sure the engines worked.

"If I go again I'll wait until 10th grade so I can be part of Space Academy Level 11. I might get to fix a space ship under water."

Hawk eyed

Illustration by TIM NOWICKI

Hawks don't wait in line for seeds at backyard bird feeders. The big predator birds are generally too busy feeding on other, smaller birds. Two types of hawk common to southeastern Michgian are the Sharp-shinned Hawk and the Cooper's Hawk. For birds watchers, it takes the eyes of a hawk to separate the two. The closely related varieties of hawk are almost indistinguishable from a distance to the casual observer. At close range, the birds are slightly less difficult to distinguish. Sharp-shinned hawks measure 10-14 inches, while Cooper's measure 14-20 inches. Females are usually the larger birds.

Timothy Nowicki

Those who have been feeding birds for several years have probably had a bird feeder at their bird feeder. If you have not had a bird feeder at your bird feeder you probably will.

What are bird feeders at your bird feeder? In our area they are typically the Sharp-shinned Hawk and the Cooper's Hawk. They are kissing cousins to each other and can be difficult to separate in the field.

Both species are in the subcatagory of hawks known as the Accipiters. Accipiters have a long tail and rounded wings used for flying between and around trees in a forest. They use these features to overcome woodland birds which they feed upon.

Sharp-shinned Hawks measure 10-14 inches from tip of the bill to tip of the tail, Cooper's measure 14-20". Females are larger, that is why there is such a range in size. As you can see too, a large Sharp-shinned is as long as a small Cooper's.

Coloration in the two species is similar also. Adults have a blue-gray back with underparts of red bars on a white background. Juveniles are brown on the back with loose brown stripes running down the front from head to tail. Their body form is narrow compared to the large hawks seen on the side of the highway.

Separating the two species takes practice. In the short time people see a hawk dash in and take a bird from their feeder, they will not be able to identify it to species in most cases. If it looks very big it's likely a Cooper's, if it looks very small it's likely a Sharp-shinned.

If one of these species does frequent your feeder do not be alarmed. They will probably take a couple birds and then leave to new feeding areas where the birds are not as wary. Its possible they will return in a few weeks or days, but consider it an opportunity to observe a phenomenon that few people get a chance to see, even though we know it happens all the time.

As a consequence of people enjoying birds at feeders, we are also concentrating birds for the bird feeders and providing little buffets for them. According to Detroit Audubon Christmas Count data, from 1945-1974 only three Sharp-shinned Hawks were identified; from 1975-1990 there were 19 Sharp-shinned Hawks identified. Feeding stations may alter the need to migrate for many individuals because of these numerous buffets. This fact also illustrates why a good feeding station needs to include adequate cover so birds can escape danger.

Start your ovens for fruitcake

It's getting close to Christmas and good holiday cooks know that now is the time to start making fruitcakes so that they have enough time to age and mellow before Christmas.

Janes Gang fruitcakes were always more highly regarded than what is normally accepted about this sweet, fruit ladened confection.

FRUITCAKES WERE always baked in a loaf pan and I never knew bakers used other pans until Aunt Edna came up from Florida one year with what looked like a burnt Frisbie. That fruitcake tasted like what television ads portray as fruitcakes. In all honesty, though, Aunt Edna was never much of a baker.

The beginner fruitcaker should know that fruitcakes can be baked in all sizes and shapes. Whatever pan or mold is used, it should be greased, lined with parchment or brown paper and greased again. Momma spends one entire morning just preparing her pans. A basic 8½ by ½ by 2¾ inch loaf pan will hold about 4 cups of batter and this will take about 2 hours to bake. A three quart tube or bundt pan, however, using about 2 quarts of batter will take about 2½ hours.

A favorite of mine is a soup can. These make great "individual" fruitcakes that can easily be sliced for appetizers or finger-food desserts and are great for a buffet table. Figure on a small soup can holding about ½ cup of batter and baking for about 45-50 minutes.

WHEN SHOPPING for ingredients for any fruitcake, it's a good idea to know about bulk equivalents. No one needs 6 extra cups of dried fruit laying around. For starters, a pound of raisins, dried apricots, prunes, dried peaches, dried pears or figs will measure 3-3½ cups. A pound of fresh dates or cut up candied fruits and peels will measure 2 cups. A pound of dried apples will yield about 5 cups while a pound of shelled almonds or brazil nuts will yield three cups and a pound of shelled walnuts will yield 4 cups.

One of the big secrets successful fruitcake bakers use is to remember to always grease your pans well. Make sure to grease the parchment paper lining also. If you don't have parchment, a heavy, unlabled brown paper bag will do as well as heavy waxed paper. Fill the pans only ⅔ full and bake in a preheated 275 or 300 degree oven.

For the best fruiteakes, place a pan of water in the bottom of the oven for added humdity. This little trick-of-the-trade almost eliminates a "peaking" center that usually cracks and makes for an unappetizing cake. You can tell if your cakes are cooked throughout by using the old tried and true test by inserting a toothpick or cake tester in the center and when it comes out clean, it's done. You can decorate the tops of the cakes with cherries, almonds and fruit pressed into them before baking begins. They will not darken and will stay on the cakes and you will not have to decorate them after they are cooled.

THE REASON momma's fruitcakes are so treasured during the holidays must be her soaking with rum and brandy. Momma doesn't believe in pastry brushes so she uses a clean dish towel to add rum and brandy slowly over the top of each one precisely when they emerge from the oven. In 15 minutes, invert, remove the baking paper and add more rum and brandy. This must be done gradually, but remember that the warm cake absorbs the liquid better than a cold one. When cooled, wrap and place in airtight containers.

If fruitcakes are your fancy, start now so that you'll have some time to enjoy the holidays a little more.

Scotch holiday hassles

Wrap up easy to make shortbread

By Geri Rinschler
special writer

IT'S HOLIDAY time again, and as usual, you're trying to do it all! If you're like me, the holiday season is just not the same without home baked cookies to give to family and friends.

Page through any cookie cookbook and you'll find page after page of colorful trees, stars and snowmen which all add up to four to five hours of mixing, rolling, cutting and frosting.

AN AN alternative, Betty Kneen of Bloomfield Hills, simply mixes an old-fashioned Scottish shortbread recipe and wraps them in cellophane and Satin ribbons for gift giving.

Having lived in Beaumaris, Australia for nearly five years, Kneen enjoyed the shortbread which was often served at tea time during the holidays. Her neighbor Olwyne McQueen in Beaumaris, a suburb of Melbourne, often made shortbread and shared her recipe with Kneen.

The ingredients are few, butter, flour, rice flour and castor sugar. "At first I had some difficulty making shortbread when I returned back to states. Castor sugar is different than the sugar here, but superfine sugar works well as a substitute."

THE DOUGH was mixed by hand and then fit into the spongecake pan. As with all traditional Scottish shortbread the surface was pricked all over with the tines of a fork and then scored into wedges with a knife.

"My neighbor Olwyne always said that the purpose of scoring the dough before baking made it easier to break into wedges later because it's considered unlucky to cut it with a knife," said Kneen.

In Scotland, no holiday season is complete without shortbread. The Ackroyd family, owners of Ackroyd's Scotch Bakery in Redford and the Scottish Bakehouse in Birmingham, have been making shortbread for 40 years.

Their shortbread is based on a very simple recipe with three ingredients, butter, flour and sugar. "When my dad started the business, he kept experimenting to get the best flavor when baking in large quantities," said Ackroyd. After the ingredients are blended together, the dough is fit into large, heavy baking pans.

DAN DEAN/staff photographer

Betty Kneen wraps up shortbread, an easy to make holiday gift.

The Ackroyd's use a large Scottish board to imprint the all-over design which is similar to pricking with the tines of a fork.

SEARCHING FOR that one original recipe is futile. Or as Ackroyd so succinctly said, "there are probably as many shortbread recipes as there are families in Scotland." Some use rice flour in combination with all-purpose flour, others will add cornstarch. There are recipes using brown sugar, castor sugar, superfine sugar, or confectioner's sugar. The only ingredient of which there is an agreement is that shortbread must contain butter.

As with an recipe steeped in tradition, there are a number of variations on the basic theme. Some recipes are flavored with lemon or orange zest, almond flavoring or ground almonds and even an English cook's solution to dispensing of leftover mincemeat.

Shortbread is easy to make, but needs some special care when the dough is blended together. Since butter is the only shortening agent and source of moisture, it's imperative to use the freshest, top quality butter available. Keep it properly stored and away from other refrigerated foods because it will easily take on other flavors.

WHEN SOFTENING the butter, be careful not to allow the butter to get too warm and melt. When butter melts, the fat separates and will result in a more coarse textured shortbread.

All purists strongly recommended creaming the butter together with the sugar by hand or with a wooden spoon. A simple rubbed dough of flour, sugar and water will produce the most tender shortbread.

When using a mixer to blend the ingredients, keep a watchful eye to avoid over-mixing.

Fire up parties with nachos

By Betsy Brethen

family tested winner dinner
Betsy Brethen

Can you believe that December is back — already? Regardless of your religious preference, the season of light is upon us. It's time to "fire up" for the festivities that go hand in hand with this busy time of year.

And, speaking of fire, this week's Winner Dinner, submitted by Judd Hart of Troy, features a main dish that was one of his specialities in his former life as a fireman for the city of Birmingham.

HART'S WIFE, Alicia, collaborated with him on the menu, and came up with a meal that is ideally suited for casual holiday get-togethers with family and friends.

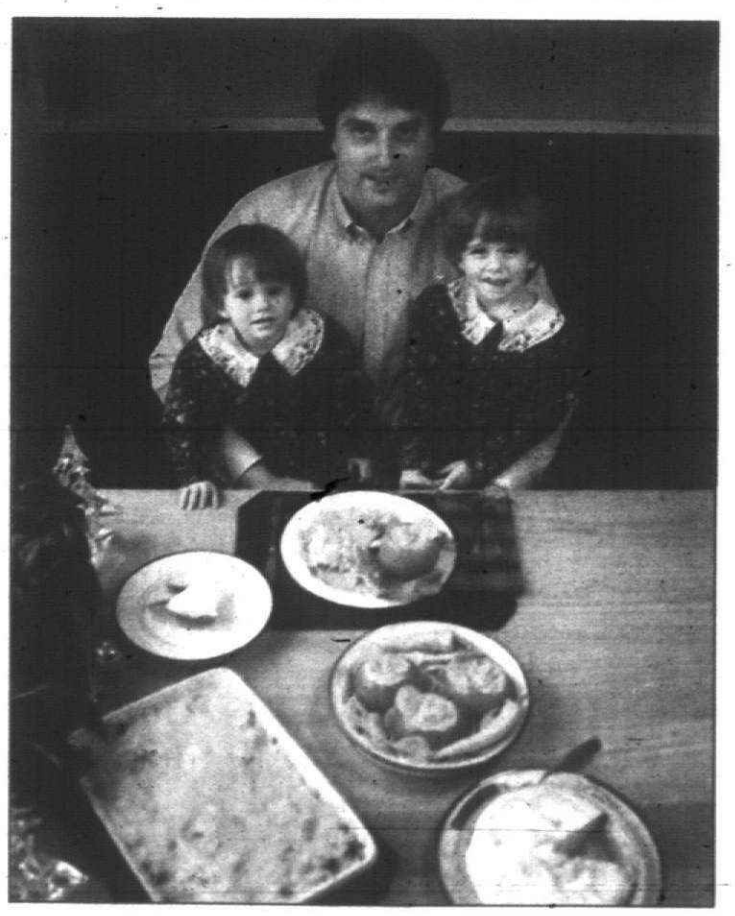

Featuring recipes for Firehouse Nacho Casserole, Guacamole Stuffed Tomatoes and North of the Border Margarita Pie, it is easy to understand why this tasty meal was always a hit at the firehouse. It is sure to get the bells ringing at your house as well.

Hart and his wife live in Troy with their two young daughters. They are eagerly anticipating the arrival of baby number three.

Hart no longer works for the Birmingham Fire Department because the tree business he started in the early '70s has blossomed into more than a full-time career.

His company, J.H. Hart Urban Forestry, specializes in all aspects of tree and shrub care, except spraying, as well as snow removal and firewood delivery. Not surprisingly, his company is one of the largest non-franchised tree services in the state.

HART SERVES the city of Troy as a volunteer fireman and continues to enjoy his reputation as "King of the Kitchen," crediting always his mentors at both the Adams Road and Chesterfield fire stations for teaching him all he knows.

JIM RIDER/staff photographer

Judd Hart of Troy and his daughters, Meghan, 3, and Ashley, 18 months, present a family favorite — Firehouse Nacho Casserole.

We salute you, Judd Hart, and thank you for sharing your delicious recipes with us. All the best to you and your family, and thanks too, for all you do to prevent the home fires from burning.

It's easy to submit recipes to be considered for publication in the Winner Dinner column. Submit a recipe for your family's favorite dinner entree, dessert and salad. We're looking for hearty soup and casserole recipes, low fat and ethnic dishes.

Submit recipes to: Winner Dinner, P.O. Box 3503, Birmingham, MI 48012.

FIREHOUSE NACHO CASSEROLE

Always a favorite at the firehouse, this quick and easy recipe can be made early in the day and then heated just prior to serving. This recipe serves 6-8.

1 bag cheese-flavored (or plain) tortilla chips
1 cup Monterey Jack cheese, shredded
2 pounds ground beef or ground turkey
2 packages taco seasoning mix
1 red onion, chopped
3-4 green onions, chopped, including green ends
1 medium-sized green pepper, chopped
1 small red pepper, chopped
Jalapena peppers to taste, chopped (optional)
1 can pitted black olives, sliced, 6 ounce size
2 medium-sized tomatoes, chopped
1 cup Swiss cheese, shredded
1 cup sharp cheddar cheese, shredded

Brown the meat and drain off the fat. Mix in the two packages of taco seasoning mix and cook according to the directions on the package.

Spray a 9 x 13 Pyrex baking dish with a non-stick spray and layer the ingredients in the order as listed above. Bake at 300 degrees for 20-30 minutes or until the cheese is melted and bubbly. Serve with salsa and sour cream or Ranch dressing.

GUACAMOLE STUFFED TOMATOES

1 cup mashed avocado (2 avocados)
1 can diced green chiles, 4 ounce can
1 tablespoon lime juice
1 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons chopped green onions, including some of the green ends
8 medium-sized tomatoes
1 cup crumbled Doritos or real bacon bits (optional)

Combine the first five ingredients. Slice tops off of tomatoes, hollow them out and add chopped pulp to the guacamole mixture. Fill the tomatoes with the guacamole and add to with the crumbled chips or bacon bits. Place them in a shallow casserole and bake in a 350 degree oven for 20 minutes. They are also delicious served cold as a salad. This recipe serves 8 but may be cut in half to make four.

NORTH-OF-THE-BORDER MARGARITA PIE

Use a ready-made graham cracker pie crust or make your own, using the following recipe:

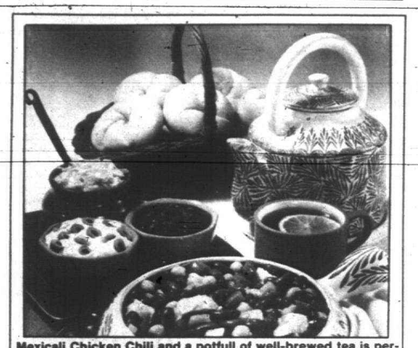

1½ cups graham cracker crumbs
3 tablespoons sugar
⅓ cup margarine, melted

Combine the crumbs, sugar and melted margarine until thoroughly blended and pack firmly into a 9-inch pie pan, pressing the mixture firmly to the bottom and sides of the pie dish. Bake in a 350 degree oven for 8 minutes and chill before filling.

FILLING

Grated rind and juice from 1 lime, about ⅓ cup juice
⅔ cup margarita mix, with or without Tequila or Triple Sec (lemon or lime juice may be substituted for the margarita mix)
4 egg yolks
1 can condensed milk
1 stiffly beaten egg white

Mix the first four ingredients and fold into egg white. Set aside. Beat three egg whites until almost stiff and gradually add 6 tablespoons sugar and ½ teaspoon cream of tartar. Pour the margarita mixture into the graham cracker pie shell and pile on the meringue. Bake until golden brown at 350 degrees for about 15 minutes. Serve cold and garnish with lime slices.

Mexicali Chicken Chili and a potfull of well-brewed tea is perfect for cool weather dining

Hot dish perfect for chilly weather

As the weather turns cooler, and in some areas positively frigid, most people are apt to change their eating habits. Heartier fare takes the place of light salads, and hot dishes tend to be favored over cold.

Mexican Chicken Chili is ideal for cool weather dining. This spicy, satisfying dish is a nutritious meal-in-one, and by utilizing chicken instead of meat, cuts down on the fat content. Served with an array of condiments, the only other food item you might like to add is a basket of sour dough rolls. Also, should you desire, the chili can be made in advance and frozen, proving to be a valuable time saver when time is of the utmost.

MEXICALI CHICKEN CHILI
(Makes 8 servings)

To cook chicken:
2½ pounds chicken pieces
1½ cups water
1 beef bouillon cube
1 small bay leaf
2 teaspoons instant minced onion
1 teaspoon parsley flakes
1 teaspoon vegetable flakes
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon celery seed
¼ teaspoon pepper

In large saucepan, bring all ingredients to a boil. Reduce heat; cover and simmer gently until chicken is fork-tender about 30 minutes. Remove from heat; let chicken cool in broth. Discard skin and bones. Cut chicken in bite-size pieces. Cover and refrigerate. Freeze broth for later use.

To prepare chili:
2 tablespoons olive or salad oil
1 medium onion, chopped
1 garlic clove, minced
1 green pepper, diced
1 to 2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon crushed red pepper
¼ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
¼ teaspoon sugar
3 teaspoons Mexican chili powder
2 teaspoons paprika
½ teaspoon ground cumin
1 16-ounce can tomatoes, halved
1 8-ounce can tomato sauce (half tomato sauce can water)
2 16-ounce cans red kidney beans
1 15-ounce can chick peas

Heat oil in large saucepan. Saute onion, garlic and green pepper until onion is yellow. Stir in spices and cook over low heat 2 to 3 minutes to blend flavors. Add tomatoes, tomato sauce and water; cover and simmer 20 minutes. Rinse beans and chick peas in running cold water; drain well. Add to tomato mixture; simmer 10 minutes more. Add the chicken; stir and heat through. Serve with a selection of condiments — chopped onions, sour cream, shredded lettuce, grated Monterey Jack cheese, sliced olives, diced avocado sprinkled with lime, and different heats of salsa.

See Larry Janes' taste buds column on Taste front.

Moma's fruitcake, soaked to perfect moistness with cheap brandy, proved a favorite of the adult holiday revelers. Aunt Phyllis' minimal fruit, but overly nutty holiday cakes, were more highly regarded by the younger set.

THE BEST FRUITCAKE
1 pound blanched almonds
½ pound pecans
¼ pound walnuts
½ pound lemon peel
½ pound shredded citron
½ pound orange peel
1 cup candied pineapple
1 pound candied cherries
2 pounds seedless raisins
1 pound dried figs
1 pound pitted dates
1 pound currants
1 shot glass brandy
1 shot glass jam
4 teaspoons cinnamon
½ teaspoon allspice
2 teaspoons nutmeg
1 teaspoon ground cloves
1 pound butter
1 cup molasses
12 eggs
1 pound flour (3½ cups)
2 teaspoons salt

Chop nuts and fruits. Add brandy, jam, spices, mix well. Cream butter, add sugar, molasses and beaten eggs. Mix thoroughly. Add flour and salt and mix to batter consistency. Pour over fruit mixture and combine the two. A little more flour may be needed or a little more brandy. What dough there is should be stiff, not runny.

Grease pans, line with paper, regrease and bake at 275 degrees for 2-3 hours or until a toothpick in the center comes out clean.

AUNT PHYLLIS'S NUTTY FRUITCAKE
4 cups flour
1½ cups pecans or hickory nuts, chopped
1 cup blanched, slivered almonds
½ cup chopped filberts or hazelnuts
1½ cups chopped dried fruit
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup butter
2 cups sugar
5 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Prepare pans. Set aside. Mix ½ cup of the flour with fruit and nuts. Toss to coat. Combine remaining flour with baking powder and salt and sift. Set aside. Cream butter with the sugar. Beat in eggs, one at a time, then add vanilla. Stir the flour mixture into the egg mixture. Continue beating until thoroughly mixed. Fold in floured nuts and fruits. Bake for 1 hour at 350 degrees.

Assessing 1988 Bordeaux vintage

Eleanor and Ray Heald

In practical terms, Bordeaux is a generic expression for the wines from the geographical areas known as the Medoc, Graves, St. Emilion and Pomerol. The Bordeaux region has 60,000 inhabitants, many of whom work the nearly 193,000 vineyard acres producing Appellation Controles (ADC) wines.

If they are not vineyard workers, Bordeaux residents live or work in one of the 7,000 chateaux, or produce wine in one of the 60 cooperatives. Many others work for one of the 300 wine negociants (shippers) located in the region.

ANNUALLY, ABOUT 500 million bottles of wine are produced in Bordeaux. A stock capacity equivalent to 1.7 billion bottles is available. Slightly more than 75 percent is red wine and slightly less than 25 percent is white wine. All totaled, the region accounts for ½ of the exports of French ADC wines, but only three percent of this production is classified Grands Crus — the most talked about wines in the world.

Recently, Jim Lutfy of Cloverleaf Market, Michigan's largest wine retailer, conducted a tasting of 35 Bordeaux wines from the 1988 vintage principally. After tasting through all the wines, the following is our assessment.

With respect to quality, you get what you pay for in the 1988 vintage. Modestly priced wines (below $15) from lesser-known chateaux have pleasing, but average flavors. Two of the most flavorful examples are Chateau Canon de Brem and Chateau Hortevie. Both have a solid fruit impression on the palate and in the finish.

A STEP up to the $20 to $25 range, reveals wines with a bigger, fuller expression and cellaring potential. The best wine in this category is the 1988 Chateau Phelan Segur. One of the largest in the Medoc region, this property as it is known today, was established in the early 19th century by Frank Phelan, who came from Ireland to settle permanently in Saint-Estephe.

Today, Thierry Gardinier is an owner of Chateau Phelan Segur. "The 1988 Phelan Segur is a classic Saint-Estephe wine with ample fruit and tannins," Gardinier remarked. "It will start to drink well in 1994 and has a 15-20 year cellaring potential."

We found the wine generous with well-balanced fruit, soft tannins and a lengthy aftertaste. It is a blend of classic Bordeaux varietals: 60 percent cabernet sauvignon, 30 percent merlot and 10 percent cabernet franc.

The 1988 Chateau Bahans Haut Brion ($23) also competed well with higher-priced offerings. Nathaniel Johnston, owner of one of the oldest negociant houses in Bordeaux, exclusively represents this property. In the 1870s, Thomas Jefferson bought some of his wines through this negociant firm. "Bahans Haut Brion, the second label for the renowned Chateau Haut Brion, has the special cabernet sauvignon taste always attributed to Haut Brion," Johnson maintains.

IN THE upper price brackets and the better-known chateaux, the following are stellar examples: Latour ($58), Cos D'Estournel ($37), Figeac ($39), Leoville Las Cases ($47) and Palmer ($50).

An outstanding Sauternes bottling must be mentioned. The 1987 Chateau Raymond Lafon ($60.50) is ultimate opulence. This property is adjacent to the prestigious Chateau Yquem. "Each vine produces only one glass of our wine," explains Lafon owner Jean-Pierre Meslier. "The vineyard is selectively picked four to six times each vintage to insure the best fruit. If you produce three or four glasses per vine, it's not the same quality."

In case you missed last week's "Bulletin Board," we're repeating that you have the opportunity to personally assess 40 Bordeaux wines from the 1989 vintage with wine critic Robert Parker at The Rattlesnake Club, Saturday, December 7. The 6 p.m. tasting is $70 person. The tasting followed by dinner which includes a vertical of Chateau Palmer wines is $137. Reservations 567-4843 secured by check only.

WINES SELECTIONS OF THE WEEK

A preview of wines from the 1989 Bordeaux vintage revealed the following values.

To avid wine drinkers, red wines are synonymous with Bordeaux. The 1989 Dourthe Numero 1 Blanc ($9.50) is a white Bordeaux blend of 70 percent sauvignon blanc and 30 percent semillon with charm and personality. It's a good value for holiday entertaining as an aperitif wine or an accompaniment to fish courses.

Wrap up easy to make shortbread

Olwyne McQueen baked her shortbread in a spongecake tin which measured about 6½ inches across. It can also be baked on a cookie sheet or cut into shapes using a cookie cutter.

Ackroyd's at 25566 Five Mile Road in Redford, and 300 Hamilton Row in Birmingham, have freshly baked shortbread year round. For a different taste, try Boterkoek, a Dutch shortbread with an apricot filling by Chella's Dutch Delicacies of Lake Oswego, Oregon. It can be found at Jacobson's in Dearborn and Birmingham.

See related story on Taste front.

OLWYNE MCQUEEN'S SHORTBREAD
8 tablespoons sweet butter, softened
¼ cup superfine sugar
¼ cup rice flour (available in health food and Oriental food shops)
pinch of salt

Cream together the butter and sugar. Mix together flour, salt and rice flour, the gradually blend into creamed butter mixture.

Gather dough and shape into a circle. Wrap the wax paper and refrigerate, 2 hours.

Pat dough into a 6 inch cake pan, allowing dough to remain ½ inch thick. Pinch or crimp the edges then prick the dough using the tines of a fork. Score the dough with a knife into even wedges, ¼ inch deep.

Bake the shortbread in a preheated 300-325 degree oven for 20-30 minutes until the shortbread is fawn in color.

Allow to cool on a rack. To serve, break into wedges. Makes one shortbread.

MY FAVORITE SHORTBREAD

An adapted version of Shortbread Hearts from "The Silver Palate Cookbook," Rosso & Lukins, 1979, Workman Publishing.

1 cup confectioners' sugar
3 cups flour
pinch of salt
1 teaspoon orange blossom water (available in Middle East food shops, and all Crabtree & Evelyn shops) or ½ teaspoon vanilla)

Cream the butter and confectioners' sugar together by hand or with an electric mixer. Mix togewther flour and salt and blend into creamed butter. Add orange blossom water and blend thoroughly.

Gather dough and shape into a circle or oval. Wrap in wax paper and chill 2-4 hours.

Roll out dough on a lightly floured board, ½ inch thick. Cut out cookies with a metal cookie cutter or fit into individual buttered mini-quiche or tart pans with removable bottoms. Refrigerate 30-45 minutes before baking in a preheated 325 oven.

Bake for 20-25 minutes until very lightly browned. Cool on a rack. Makes 20 cookies or eight 4-inch x 1¼ inch circles.

Mailing tips for homemade goodies

"Now is the time to start preparing, packing, and mailing homemade goodies," said Sylvia Treitman, home economist for the Oakland County Cooperative Extension service.

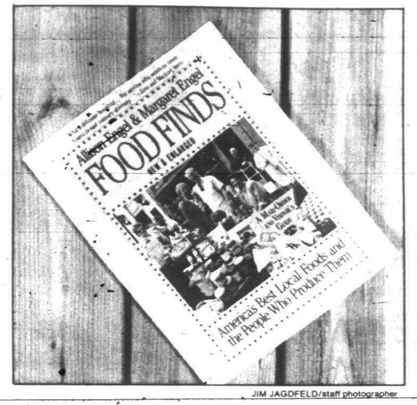

Most bar cookies and quick breads travel well, said Treitman. Select foods that do not require refrigeration. Package cookies quickly after baking and thorough cooking. Wrap two cookies back to back in plastic wrap or foil wrap foods in plastic wrap before putting in a box.

Bake breads and cakes in foil pans, remove while cooling, slip back in pan for mailing. Use air popped pop corn, dry cereal or marshmallows as a filler to avoid breakage — cushion outer areas with tissue or newspaper.

If you're looking for mustards made in Michigan, check out "Food Finds" a catalog of regional food favorites produced by small and mid-sized food processors for a limited geographic area.

Book catalogs regional foods

For a Detroiter no other ginger ale compares to Vernor's. Those pale, lifeless drinks that others call ginger ale are unworthy of the name.

Noted conservative writer and peanut butter connoisseur William Buckley is convinced that the very best peanut butter is something called Red Wing made in Fredonia, N.Y., and distributed in the East. His pal Charlton Heston agrees.

In Illinois three canned chili companies vie for the allegiance of devoted fire eaters.

America is rich in such regional food favorites, turned out by small and mid-sized food processors for a limited geographic area. "Food Finds" by Alison and Margaret Engel (HarperPerennial, $16 large form trade paperback) is a bounty of information on such distinctive foods and a useful catalog for ordering everything from American grown tea to distinctive deli meats. It is also a tribute to the much vaunted American entrepreneurial spirit. It seems that where there's a taste, there's an eager producer eager to satisfy it.

THE ENGELS, twin sisters and accomplished journalists, have compiled a book that is rich in anecdotes, peculiar facts, tempting recipes and regional flavor, in both senses of the word.

The book was originally issued in 1984 and has been expanded to include 150 companies not covered in the first edition with completely updated information. The book includes directions for those who might like to visit Ev and Kathryn Palmer, makers of Palmer Maple Syrup, or Snelgrove's Ice Cream store in Salt Lake to sample a Snellee or any of the other businesses and their friendly owners. Phone numbers and addresses are also provided for mail ordering.

The range is wide, from America's first soft drink Moxie to Vermont Common Crackers to Chick-O-Sticks to Hell and Damnation Relish. Many Michigan products are included in addition to Vernor's including Sander's chocolate sauce, American Spoon Preserves, Red Pelican Mustard (which includes a little plug for preserving Tiger Stadium) and the Pierogi Place.

The book is well illustrated with photographs, labels and avertising displays. The Engels capture the spirit of the independent food processors who are justly proud of their products and offer a vital alternative to the watered down national brands.

In the spirit of the catalog itself, "Food Finds" can be ordered by phone from the publisher, toll free (1-800-331-3761) during business hours. Book Call, a New Cannan, Conn. firm will take orders 24 hours a day (1-800-255-2665).

For impressive results, roast lamb

AP — The holiday season calls for festive foods, but most of us don't have the time to prepare labor-intensive recipes. Roasting is one answer. It is a simple cooking method, and the results are impressive.

Curried Rack of Lamb is elegant and easy. A curry-garlic paste is spread on the lamb rib roasts prior to roasting for extra flavor.

To roast:

— Place lamb roasts on a rack in an open pan; do not cover or add water.

— Insert meat thermometer in the thickest part of the lamb, not touching bone or fat.

— Roast in a 375-degree F oven to 5 degrees below desired doneness temperature. Allow roasts to stand about 15 minutes before serving, the temperature will rise about 5 degrees during this time.

Curried Rack Of Lamb
Two 6-rib lamb rib roasts (1½ to 1¾ pounds each)
2 cloves garlic, minced
1½ teaspoons minced fresh ginger
⅛ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons curry powder
1 teaspoon grated lemon peel
1 teaspoon olive oil
⅛ teaspoon ground red pepper

Trim exterior fat on each lamb rib roast to ¼ inch. Smash garlic, ginger and salt with back of knife to form paste. Add curry, lemon peel, oil and pepper; mix well. Spread mixture evenly over fat side of each roast.

Place roasts, fat side up, on rack in open roasting pan. Insert meat thermometer so bulb is centered in thickest part, not resting in fat or on bone. Do not add water. Do not cover. Roast in a 375-degrees F (moderate) oven to desired degree of doneness.

Allow approximately 30 to 45 minutes per pound. (Calculate time based on weight of one roast.) Remove roasts when meat thermometer registers 135 degrees F for rare, 155 degrees F for medium, 165 degrees F for well done.

Allow roasts to stand 15 minutes in a warm place before carving. Roasts continue to rise about 5 degrees F in temperature to reach 140 degrees F for rare; 160 degrees F for medium; 170 degrees F for well done.

tidbits
Keely Wygonik

Now that Thanksgiving is past, we are officially into the holiday season. Don't you think the holidays got off to an earlier than usual start?

What's happened to all the seasonal rules we grew up with like — Don't wear white until after Memorial Day, don't put up Christmas decorations until after Thanksgiving.

Life was less confusing when Monday was wash day, Tuesday was ironing day, Wednesday was baking day, Thursday was sewing day, Friday was payday and shopping day, Saturday was cleaning day, and Sunday was family day.

How are we supposed to get back on schedule when the stores are putting up Christmas decorations before Halloween? Even my mother-in-law, Nancy Wygonik, who is usually pretty good at keeping our family on schedule, got caught up in the mad holiday rush.

Two weeks ago, she and my father-in-law, Albin, started wrapping garland around the porch and stringing lights. "Why are you doing that now?" I asked. "Because the weather's nice. Better to do it now than in December when the weather is bad," they said.

Before you know it, we'll be getting ready to celebrate Valentine's Day the week before Christmas.

At least one thing is still on schedule — holiday baking. Everyone is getting out their tins, dusting off the cookie cutters, and calling friends for treasured, but lost recipes.

Sharon Beshke of Bloomfield Township was looking for a chocolate chip cookie recipe that had oatmeal and coconut in the batter. I looked, but couldn't find one, so I put Beshek's request in Tidbits.

Joyce Torby of Farmington Hills has a recipe. She calls it "Everything Cookies" because it has everything she likes in the batter — chocolate chips, raisins and oatmeal.

"I got this recipe from my girlfriend Jane Kahan of West Bloomfield, who got it from another girlfriend," said Torby. "It has recently become a family favorite."

Torby said the cookies tend to be pretty sweet. She's never tried them with coconut, but doesn't see why you couldn't add it to the batter. If you add coconut, Torby said she'd reduce the amount of brown and white sugar from 1 cup to ¾ cup.

EVERYTHING COOKIES
2 cups all purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup margarine or butter
1 cup sugar
1 cup brown sugar
2 eggs,
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 12 oz. package chocolate chips
1 cup raisins
2 cups quick oatmeal
½ cup coconut (optional)

Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

In one bowl sift together the flour, baking soda, baking powder and salt. Set aside.

In another bowl, cream margarine, sugar, brown sugar, eggs, and vanilla.

Gradually add flour mixture to creamed mixture. Blend well.

Add chocolate chips, raisins, oats and coconut.

Drop by heaping teaspoons, about 2 inches apart on an ungreased cookie sheet. Bake about 10 minutes.

On Jan. 13 we will be celebrating our 100th Winner Dinner. What's your favorite Winner Dinner? The column, begun on Oct. 16, 1989, is very popular with readers. I want to reprint some of the most popular Winner Dinner Recipes on Jan. 13 but I need your help to pick them out.

Call, 953-2105, or write, Keely Wygonik, Taste editor, the Observer & Eccentric, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, MI 48150.

Cooking tip of the week from Betty Crocker. Before grating orange peel, gently scrub the peel with a brush and water to remove any wax that may be there. Dry peel with cloth before grating.

How interested are you in selling your home?

Interested enough to spend a few moments and discover the best place to advertise the fact that your home is for sale?

Good. We knew you were intelligent.

In fact, more than 40% of our readers have college degrees or better.*

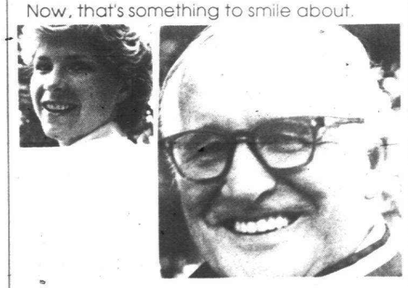

And if knowlege is power, let's look at a few powerful facts: this newspaper, the one you're reading right now, reaches some of the most affluent households in Wayne and Oakland counties:

That's a median household income of more than $50,000—$10,000 more than the income of the people who don't read our newspapers. So when you advertise in your Observer & Eccentric newspapers, you not only reach thousands of smart people, you reach people with substantial incomes.

Now, that's something to smile about.

Our circulation area has 90% home ownership and look at the value of our reader's homes:

FACT: When you advertise with us you will reach 9 out of 10 adults in the Observer & Eccentric market area who have read weekly classified advertising.*

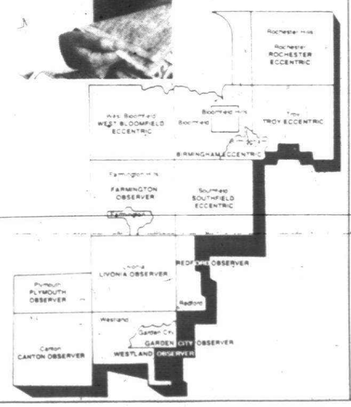

FACT: 91% of the adults in our market area who had read classified advertising in the past seven days had read it in the Observer & Eccentric*.

So, we can offer you one quarter of a million adult readers and a very rich market, what else do we have for you? How about an award-winning newspaper— a newspaper that people trust and look forward to reading? One that reaches 25 communities with important local news that's not available anywhere else.

That's us.

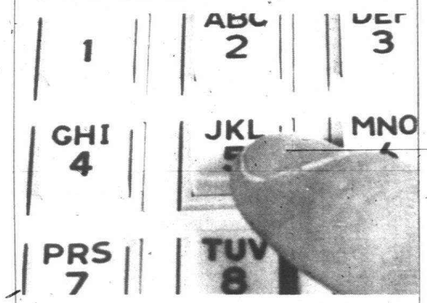

By the way, did you know that all those little ads in the back of this newspaper— the ones placed by people like you—are published in all 12 newspapers? Therefore, when you advertise anything from a horn to a home, you will automatically reach this huge, interested reading audience.

What else can we say? We've had years of experience in publishing newspapers and are proud of our record for successfully putting home buyers in touch with home sellers.

In fact, we've just introduced HOMELINE,* a great new way to find out about open houses simply by using your touchtone telephone.

Be sure to mention it to your Realtor® so that when it comes time to show your home, it will be described on HOMELINE.

THERE'S NO place like Homearama for the holidays.

From Dec. 6-22, the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan (BASM) will spotlight 13 individually designed new homes — all decorated for the holidays — in Riverbridge subdivision in Novi.

The fully furnished and landscaped homes are priced at approximately $200,000 to $250,000.

Top southeast Michigan architects, builders, designers and landscapers have incorporated the latest features in style, convenience, construction and energy efficiency in these homes — new ideas that visitors can include in their own home construction and remodeling plans.

The subdivision — east of Novi Road, south of Nine Mile — is being developed by Herbert Lawson of West Bloomfield.

BASM is sponsoring Homearama Holiday 1991 in cooperation with co-sponsors Detroit Edison, Standard Federal Bank and Consumers Power.

THIS NINTH annual showcase of new homes allows "the public to see the latest concepts in architectural design and interior decoration, all in one place," said James Bonadeo, president of BASM and Bonadeo Builders in Plymouth. "We think having it during the holiday season provides another delightful incentive to attend."

"In addition to installing holiday decorations, each builder has worked with an architect, an interior designer and a landscaper to beautifully accent every home," said Dennis Dickstein, Homearama Holiday 1991 chairman and president of Ralph Manuel Realtors, Birmingham and Farmington Hills.

"Each home is distinctive and each contains exclusive features that provide great ideas in lifestyle, design, construction materials and techniques, and energy conservation," he added.

Adding to the festivities, Homearama will feature holiday transportation from parking areas to the homes.

Two 30-foot-long red buses, decorated inside and out, will shuttle visitors in heated comfort. Dubbed Holly Trolley and Jolly Trolley, the buses will travel up and down the subdivision streets, picking up people near their cars and taking them to the box office. After touring the homes, visitors can ride back to their cars.

Weekday parking will be on nearby streets to avoid concern about muddy areas. On weekends, parking also will be available in the paved lots of businesses near the subdivision.

TO ADD more color to the setting, 1,300 strings of holiday lights will glow throughout the area. The lights were donated by the Detroit Zoological Society, which will have a booth exhibit on display at Homearama.

Standard Federal Bank provided construction funds for the 13 model homes.

"With home mortgage interest rates at a 13-year low, this is a great time for families to shop for a new home," said

Ice sculpture helps add wintertime spirit to tour

By Susan Buck

READY FOR a break in the Homearama tour?

Walk over to the holiday ice sculpture display across from the concession stand, midway along the Homearama tour route.

That's where Doug Cecil and Mark Garmo made their wintertime visions into Homearama reality.

Cecil, who owns Classic Outdoor Development, Madison Heights, and his associate, Garmo, owner of Artistic Land Sculptors, Southfield, have designed the ice sculpture display with landscaping.

This is a first-of-a-kind project for Homearama.

"This year's Homearama is centered around a holiday theme," Cecil said. "Our intentions are to get people into the holiday spirit and show them that the winter months can be just as beautiful as spring."

Homearama Holiday 1991 is the first Homearama held around the holiday season. "This left the door open to new ideas and a refreshing change," Cecil said. "Our display took hard work, patience and the dedication of our combined companies."

THE MEN have more than 15 years' experience working together in the trade. Cecil used to run trade shows and has worked at five other Homearamas.

Added Garmo: "It's difficult to find a good reputable company."

From the onset, Cecil and Garmo set out to keep some of the details of the display a surprise. "We want to keep part a mystery," Cecil said.

"We'll have evergreens and deciduous (plants)," Garmo said. "I'll help with installation of the interlocking paving stones."

WHY MOVE, improve."

For years that was the motto of Fairway Custom Homes in Southfield, which held the patent on the dormer for 17 years, said Adam Helfman, vice president.

Now Helfman, a recent Michigan State University graduate in the building and construction program, wants to see the family name of the four-generation business back in the limelight as a new home builder.

The company, founded in 1926, began building new homes after World War II. Remodeling was later added. "I'm the youngest builder with the oldest company (in Homearama)," said Helfman, 23.

Unhappy homeowners, seeking home improvement, have continually aired their gripes to Fairway Custom Homes. The houses these homeowners bought just never seemed to have the desired look. So they sought solutions from Fairway.

After years of listening to what's wrong or lacking in houses, Helfman decided to build two new model homes for this year's Homearama where specifications are just what the customer ordered.

"We've learned what customers want," Helfman said. "We're showing what complete construction we can do. Why not make a statement?"

The Belleyista, a Cape Cod model by Fairway priced at $249,900-$279,900, is already sold. The great room features a see-through fireplace, a large French door and a circle-top window. The master bedroom is on the first floor.

"The Landon" by Fairway is priced at $209,900-$239,900, and is for sale. The laundry room is on the upstairs level, a request his company has increasingly heard from some homeowners, Helfman said.

HELFMAN, AS well as Lawrence Cohen of Cohen Associates Inc., West Bloomfield, and Tom Schroder of Cornerstone Building Inc., Novi, all are displaying two homes in this year's Homearama.

Cohen, a West Bloomfield resident, participated in Homearama in West Bloomfield two years ago. He has 24 lots available in Riverbridge. "I've watched that area for so many years," Cohen said.

He's impressed with the Novi school system and that the subdivision is "not more than a walk to downtown Northville. "It's a delightful area," said Cohen, who often browses in downtown Northville.

Cohen's two Homearama homes are Aspen II, a Tudor, priced at $195,000 to $234,000, and Collingwood II, a traditional country home, priced at $200,000-$234,000.

The Collingwood II's master bedroom and adjoining master bedroom make a separate, private "home within a home" suite. The master bathroom offers a separate shower with two wall seats for togetherness, and a built-in tub.

Cohen has built in the Woods of Novi subdivision, at 13 Mile and Decker, where pricier homes are found.

"The market is a pyramid," Cohen said. "It's very important to stay in the $180,000-$190,000 area to reach a much broader spectrum of people. Our economy has been struggling since Operation Desert Shield."

Elevations people favor were studied when Cohen planned the Aspen II, a Tudor home that features a spacious family room with oak flooring that extends from the kitchen through the foyer, hall and powder room.

"We've done custom homes up to $1 million," Cohen said. "We all get tired doing the same home. These (Homearama homes) are move-up homes, not starter homes."

Homearama homes are completely decorated. Cohen's homes will even have shoes in the closet. Lots in Riverbridge subdivision are basically 70 feet wide with some as deep as 200 feet, Cohen said.

TOM SCHRODER of Cornerstone Building, Inc., Novi, presents The Carrington, a colonial, priced at $236,000-$256,900, and The Wellington, a contemporary ranch, priced at $209,000-$216,900. Both are already sold.

Among many features, The Carrington has a first-floor library with a fireplace. The spacious upstairs bedroom opens to a walk-out "Juliette" balcony.

Dryvit, which covers The Carrington's exterior, has an additional R-10 insulation value and needs no maintenance. The material has been used commercially and in the southern residential market, Schroder said.

Schroder takes great pride in his custom homebuilding, which includes lakefront homes.

His Homearama homes were planned before building. "We're not a mass producer," Schroder said. "We spend more personal time with customers. We rarely build the same house twice. Our homes are very, very different."

Thomas Ricketts, chairman and president.

"These beautiful homes will feature the latest in natural gas technology and energy conservation measures, including natural gas heat, appliances and other conveniences that prospective homeowners often want as part of their purchase," said Tim Warner, Consumers Power Metro Region marketing and sales manager.

A plan book highlighting each home is included in the admission to Homearama Holiday 1991.

Builders showcase their newest ideas

AFFORDABLE HOUSING. Move-up housing.

Just a couple of terms Homearama builders are using this year to describe their model homes in Novi's Riverbridge subdivision, south of Nine Mile, east of Novi Road. The homes are in the $200,000-$280,000 price range.

Stephen Taglione, president of the BBC Group Inc., Farmington Hills, is making his first-time entry into Homearama with The Premier, a traditional home priced at $229,000-$254,000.

"The theme this time is affordable housing," Taglione said. "The entries are priced at $250,000 and below. It's more in step with our largest market of $200,000 and below. Our market has not been as difficult as others to sell in. Novi is one of the strongest areas to sell in."

Taglione stressed that The Premier's price reflects the total cost, including landscaping.

This model has a California theme, decorated with teal, salmon and coral colors with bleached/pickled oak. The model is being reproduced in Canton Township, Sterling Heights, Riverview, Woodhaven and Pittsfield.

Features include a two-story foyer with open staircase and a step-up master bedroom. "Buyers want a good family home with amenities in the home making it a pleasurable place for family and entertaining," Taglione said.

Today's home shopper values a large kitchen and family room but still wants a formal area for entertaining, Taglione said.

DAN BARTON, who lives and works in Canton, serves as project manager of D & J Property Development Co., Canton.

He's making his debut as a Homearama builder at the invitation of developer Herbert Lawson. "At first I laughed," Barton said. "I didn't consider myself that caliber of builder."

Builders share ideas

Barton was humbled by Lawson's invitation and a 100 percent "go for it" response by his family, coworkers, colleagues and mentors.

Barton's Homearama home, Victorian Rose, is a Victorian ranch priced at $250,000-$280,000. His homes have ranged from $60,000 to $500,000.

"The whole house is a paradox of Victorian and modern," Barton said.

Just as Victorian-era builders left their own distinctive thumbprint in homes they completed, Barton did the same with an inlaid rose design in the oak floor of the Victorian Rose's octagonal-shaped parlor.

He wants this rose to be his trademark in future homes. "Wherever you stand and look in the house, in any direction, it looks like the petals are spread," Barton said.

This home features a Victorian-style, pull-chain water closet, pedestal sink and claw-foot bathtub.

Barton's wife, Jan, is in charge of the interior decorating. Lots are negotiable in Riverbridge for reproducing Victorian Rose, billed as highly energy and maintenance efficient, Barton said.

Late next summer, Barton plans to build in a Canton subdivision located south of Hanford, west of Canton Center Road.

ENTERTAINING IS a snap with plenty of elbow room to spare in The Northshore by Kevin Biondo of Biondo Designers and Builders, Northville. The home is priced at $240,000-$250,000.

The Northsore features an open floor plan with a wet bar in the great room, which also has a fireplace.

The master suite has a double opening, see-through gas fireplace, open to both the bedroom and the Jacuzzi in the master bath.

Biondo has converted a third bedroom into a study with a view of the angled stone fireplace in the great room.

Among Homearama builders this year, Biondo started out most recently — four years ago, said Nancy Rosen of Stone, August, Baker Communications Companies, Troy.

But in that span, he has built in Livonia, Northville, Birmingham, South Lyon, Grosse Ile and Farmington Hills.

CRAIG CORBELL of Michigan Custom Homebuildegs Group, Inc., Livonia, features, Morgan II, a colonial priced at $220,000-$250,000.

The home features covered and uncovered decks, a side-entry garage, a "walk-out" lower level, and a hip roof with cedar shake-style shingles.

The great room includes a two-story fireplace with raised hearth and a full wall of glass overlooking a ravine.

"This home was done on spec," said Corbell, a first-time Homearama participant. "It incorporates all features people wanted in this price range with a traditional interior that is timeless. It's definitely a move-up house."

The home can be duplicated with three, four or five bedrooms.

Corbell, who builds to suit, is willing to build anywhere. He's had new home construction in Clarkston, Commerce, Novi, Plymouth, Northville and Dearborn.

LEO SOAVE of Leo Soave Building Co., Inc., Livonia, combines practicality with luxury. His Cape Cod home, The Villager, priced at $225,000, features convenient traffic patterns.

A first-floor laundry is just steps away from the kitchen, which is steps away from the great room. The master bathroom features an oversize separate shower with a seat and a whirlpool bath.

"There's a lot of living space in a Cape Cod," said Maria Soave, the builder's wife, who handled the interior design. "Parents want a whole retreat area."

The Villager has a video monitoring system, a stereo system throughout the house and a central vacuum system.

The Soaves live in one of two homes Leo built for the 1987 Homearama in Livonia's Deer Creek subdivision.

Her husband still maintains contact with people he built homes for years ago in the Seven Mile-Middlebelt area, Maria said.

"He doesn't do whole subdivisions," she said.

THE BAYBROOKE, by Bob Halso, president of Pulte Homes of Michigan, Royal Oak, is priced at $190,000-$220,000. Halso is in charge of the company's national headquarters in Michigan. The company now operates in 17 states.

"This is the first time Pulte has been involved in a Homearama," said Deen Hyde, Pulte's marketing director. "We're usually under the (Homearama) price ranges."

The Baybrooke features a "live-in" type kitchen with enough space for a love seat so "you can enjoy what's happening," Hyde said.

The master bathroom has a vaulted ceiling, a gas fireplace with marble surround and a large closet. The laundry room is upstairs.

Pulte is also building homes in Canton, Rochester Hills, Lake Orion and Northville. "We're not spot builders," Hyde said.

Paul Dyhdalo of Dailer Corp., Warren, presents The Riviera, priced at $189,000-$209,000.

supplying the ice sculptor, Cecil said.

"The ice is 18 feet in length," Cecil said. "It will be put in a glass-sided trailer."

The sculpture, featuring Santa Claus, his sled, six reindeer and pine trees, forms the backdrop of the display. Brick paving stones form the perimeter, with a sculpted candy cane hedge lining one side.

"THE THING we are doing has never been done before," Cecil said. "The sculpture will be done on site either by student or professional ice carvers."

HOROSCOPE

By C.C. Havens

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21)
Partnership matters, especially those involving a spouse or fiance(e), will take precedence. Listen carefully and read between the lines.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19)
Work is an important priority for you, as it should be. At the same time, don't shrug off responsibilities to loved ones; they need your attention.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)
Something you say may surprise an authority figure. Communication plays a big role in all aspects of your life. Don't make empty promises.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20)
A problem you thought to be minimal may escalate. Handle all financial dealings with great care, as your future will depend on it.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)
At times it will seem the entire world is trying to pick a fight with you. Resist the temptation to strike back and good things will come your way.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)
Family members may try to pressure you into a decision you are not quite ready to handle. You are capable of doing what is right for you.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)
You'll surprise those around you by taking a no-nonsense approach to your work. Your responsibilities will increase over the next few weeks.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)
Whether single or married, you may find yourself in a romantic dilemma. Speak your mind in matters that are close to your heart.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22)
An unusual set of circumstances may strain your pocketbook. Be strong in your commitment to set things straight with family and co-workers.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22)
You may be working very hard but wondering why your life is so stressful. Set your personal goals and single out what makes you most happy.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)
Avoid getting caught up in gossip about friends and co-workers. It's best to put yourself above all that and do more productive things with your life.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21)
You are likely to be in the right place at the right time. An opportunity to expand your horizons will also help you economically.

Jessica Tandy shines in otherwise tepid 'Story Lady'

Some good moments, but mawkish approach misfires

By Steven Alan McGaw

Watching TV during Christmas and the holiday season inevitably reminds us of the best and worst of which television is capable. On the one hand, there are great, inspiring specials, like PBS' yearly "Festival of Carols," or an encore of the moving "The Homecoming." Even Christmas episodes of regular series can be memorable, such as last holiday's "Murphy Brown" installment.

On the other hand, too many programmers apparently feel the season gives them license to air shamelessly manipulative fare having little to do with genuine emotion and everything to do with cheap sentiment. Who among us has not wearied of programs promising to illuminate "the true meaning of Christmas"?

That brings us to "The Story Lady," a new made-for-Christmas-TV movie airing on NBC on Monday, Dec. 9. Multiple-award-winner Jessica Tandy stars as Grace McQueen, a New Jersey widow who comes to live with her daughter and son-in-law (Tandy Cronyn and Richard Masur). Frustrated in her attempts to find volunteer work, it occurs to McQueen that her lifelong skill at storytelling could be the basis for a pleasant local-access TV show. Reading selections by the Brothers Grimm and Hans Christian Andersen, the "Story Lady" quickly nabs a devoted viewership, largely among latch-key children home alone in the afternoons.

One of those children is Alex Pollard (Lisa Jakub), the daughter of ambitious advertising executive and single mom Julie Pollard (Stephanie Zimbalist). Told that Alex and all her friends are devout "Story Lady" fans, Pollard has an idea: Perhaps McQueen could be transformed into Granny Goodheart, the storytelling mascot for a large toy company and one of the agency's major accounts. Pollard pitches the idea to her boss (played cartoonishly by Ed Begley Jr.) and co-workers, who embrace the idea, especially since "the old lady won't want too much money."

Keeping their cynicism to themselves, the advertising folks woo McQueen with promises of entertaining millions of children and the novelty of not having to pay for her weekly broadcasts. McQueen signs a contract, then reveals her decision to her amazed family. "Are you strong enough to do this, Mother?" asks McQueen's daughter. "Of course," comes the reply.

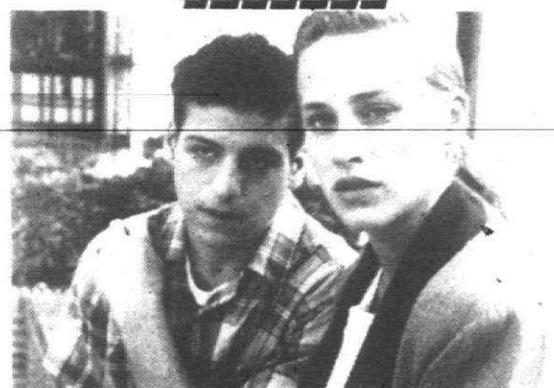

McQueen's confidence, however, doesn't prepare her for what is in store when she submits herself to the fast-paced machinery of big-time advertising. An impatient acting coach barks instructions at her ("Brighter, brighter!"), totally ignoring the warmth in McQueen's low-key delivery. The day of the first taping, New Jersey's former "Story Lady" emerges from her dressing room an over-the-top confection of puffed sleeves, petticoats, rouged cheeks and white hair. McQueen gamely tries to go on, but realizes the jaded child actors gathered around her are not her audience.

Eventually, the pilot episode is completed and sold, that's when McQueen's troubles really begin, especially as Begley bullies her endlessly. She draws the line, however, when ordered to get false teeth. "They'll look better," she's told. Without a pause, McQueen counters, "The Good Lord gave me these teeth!" At length, she knows the project must be ended, for she sees how far she has strayed from her original intent.

Tandy gives a fine, endearing performance, creating in Grace McQueen a vivid figure of dignity and charm. At the film's end, we'd like to know more of her. The same, unfortunately, cannot be said of Stephanie Zimbalist's by-the-book, harried-working-mom bit, or the contrived machinations of the plot.

Christopher Gartin is quite winning as McQueen's original producer at the cable company. Charles Durning exerts considerable appeal in the film's last quarter as a crusty New York judge (don't ask how he figures in the story), but it's too little, too late.

SOAP TALK

Goldin's schedule tests his mettle

By Candace Havens

Busy.

If you were trying to find one word to describe Ricky Paull Goldin (who plays Dean Frame on Another World), that would be it. Of course, good-looking, charming and a few other adjectives come to mind. In a recent week, Goldin taped a new song for the series, moved to a new apartment, made appearances in Utah and New York, cut a song on an album done by soap stars for charity, did a photo shoot in Los Angeles, worked four 12-hour days on the set and spent a few nights rehearsing with the band Raschal (he and the band are going on the road in March).

"I wouldn't be happy here if I was a player and my story didn't matter," says Goldin. "If I'm going to be here, I'm gonna work it, work it, work it — otherwise I'll leave and go somewhere else and work really hard.

"You don't get anywhere without a lot of hard work and I'm not afraid of hard work. But right now everything seems to be happening at once."

Goldin covets time for the lady in his life, Yasmine Bleeth (who portrays Lee Ann on One Life to Live). "She's as pretty on the inside as the outside," he says. He also feels lucky to be a part of the Another World family. "We all work together so closely and you can't help but be a part of each other's life. You all know each other's business. It's almost like being brother and sisters."

Goldin is used to being part of a show business family. He is the son of British actress P.J. Goldin and actor/director Paul Goldin.

Being a child actor can cause big ego problems, but Goldin says his mom kept him straight. "When I was sixteen I was on Broadway doing On Golden Pond. I was starting to get a big head then, but my mom slapped my face and said 'be glad that you have a job. Yes you have a talent, just be a real person.'"

When not working, Goldin likes to go fishing. He also loves music and is a classically trained musician. He feels his classical background has actually helped with his success in rock 'n' roll because he had all the basics down first.

Goldin may be busy, but he definitely has his feet on the ground, and it's a good thing — his career is taking off like a shooting star.

TRIVIA, ETC.

When did Clouseau take his first bow?

By Steven Alan McGaw

Questions:

1. Name the film in which Inspector Clouseau made his first screen appearance.
2. Peter Weir's moving Gallipoli is set in the midst of what war?
3. First, the hit play The Philadelphia Story was made into a movie. (Who starred in the screen version?) Then, the play became a musical and, soon after, a musical film. (What was the title and who played the leads in that one?)
4. Name the 1973 film in which Ryan O'Neal played a Bible salesman.
5. What was Grace Kelly's last film?
6. In the TV-movie version of Blind Ambition, who played John Dean?
7. At what hospital was Dr. Kildare employed?
8. The liberation of Paris in 1944 was dramatized in what 1965 film?

Meryl Streep, Carrie Fisher reunite post-'Postcards'

Carrie Fisher and Meryl Streep, who worked together on last year's Postcards From the Edge, are collaborating on a new film titled The Other Woman. Streep will star, and Fisher will direct the story about a married actor and actress and their careers.

You Bet Your Life, a new syndicated game show featuring Bill Cosby as host, has been picked up by CBS affiliates in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and Miami. The show is slated to air next fall.

The inimitable Groucho Marx served as host of the original You Bet Your Life, which began on radio in 1947, until its cancellation in 1961.

First lady Barbara Bush, Sesame Street's Big Bird and anchorman Jim Lehrer were on hand in Dallas on Oct. 30 for a reception and dinner honoring Ralph Rogers, the founder of Public Broadcasting Service (PBS). Rogers was chairman and president of Dallas public television station KERA when he formed PBS in 1970. Two years later, he defended his creation from Nixon administration efforts to dismantle it. Now 81, Rogers is being honored with a children's programming fund in his name at KERA.

NBC picked up three Media Access Awards for its portrayals of people with disabilities. A Different World won for its "If I Should Die Before I Wake" episode, which dealt with AIDS, and for "A Word in Edgewise," which featured members of the National Theater of the Deaf. Today was honored for "Friends Who Care," focusing on an Illinois elementary school that helps children become more aware and accepting of the disabled, and for "Beep Baseball," a segment about volunteers who install beeping mechanisms in softballs that enable the blind to play the game.

Memories, parodies fill small screen

By Dan Rice

Last words from the most famous pea picker of them all: Dinah Shore: A Special Conversation with Tennessee Ernie Ford airs Wednesday, Dec. 4, on TNN. In the final interview given before his death this year, singer Ford recalls his early days in radio and television broadcasting.

The sky was no limit for the trailblazers who made our extraterrestrial dreams come true. On Tuesday, Dec. 3, A&E's Biography investigates the lives of Men in Space: From Goddard to Armstrong.

The glory of space travel was sometimes paid for in lives. Relive the heartbreaking explosions that claimed the spaceshuttle Challenger and Apollo 13 crews on Moments of Courage: Crises in Space, first showing Wednesday on The Discovery Channel.

It's been half a century since the "date which will live in infamy," and ironically, the Japanese have come closer to conquering America with VCRs and compact cars than the sneak attack on Hawaii. In commemoration and examination, The Discovery Channel offers a three-day programming event, Pearl Harbor: 50 Years Later, starting Friday, Dec. 6.

Thicke, Trudeau win Minnesota hearts

By Taylor Michaels

Alan Thicke

Q: Do you have an address where we may write the cast of* Growing Pains*? We also enjoy* Doonesbury *by Garry Trudeau and would appreciate his address as well. —Harkins Family, Farmington, Minn.

A: Write the cast of Growing Pains c/o ABC, 2040 Avenue of the Stars, Century City, Calif., 90067. As with all nationally syndicated cartoonists and columnists, you can write Trudeau in care of your local newspaper and they will forward your letter.

Q: Please put game shows back on television. We especially like* Concentration and To Tell the Truth. *I taped them daily so we could enjoy them each evening. —Anna Hillis, McMinniville, Tenn.

A: As I have said before, I cannot put any show on or take any show off of television. If you are unhappy with the shows you are seeing or are not seeing, write the television station and/or the network. But here's good news: Concentration is still on NBC. Check your local listings.

Q: I would be thankful if you could tell me where and when Kevin Costner was born and also where I can write to him. He is my favorite actor. —Milica Zec, Saddle Brook, N.J.

A: Costner was born in Compton, Calif., on Jan. 18, 1955. You can write him c/o CAA, 9830 Wilshire Blvd., Beverly Hills, Calif., 90212.

Q: Is the program* Houston Knights *still on the air? —Vi Yates, White, S.D.

A: The show, which starred Michael Pare, aired on CBS from March 12, 1987, to June 6, 1988. Co-star Nancy Everhard now appears in NBC's Reasonable Doubts.

Q: In reference to the request about* Bambi vs. Godzilla, I know of a tape called Hardware Wars *that includes this and other shorts. I think it came out around 1983. I would have written sooner, but you don't always print your address. —Bill Whiteslooz, Prescott, Ariz.

A: Thanks for the information.

Q: Boy, are you in trouble if you're looking at TV shows to pattern your life after. Those writers and actors have been married many times ... some are homosexuals and lesbians. Most single mothers I know of are on welfare. At least the shows years ago were decent so you could watch with your family. —S. Overberk, Delavan, Wis.

A: I've received many negative letters about that response. I never said I patterned my life after television. I don't like shows that glorify violence, criminals or drug abuse. All I'm saying is programs showing the world as a carefree, harmless place are misleading. I didn't mean to offend anyone, but I stand by what I say.

Q: Please send me the address of Richard Dean Anderson, who stars in ABC's* MacGyver *series. My son is crazy over him. Is it possible for me to have his telephone number also? —Kamaral Hosein, St. Croix, Virgin Islands.

A: You can write Anderson c/o MacGyver, Paramount Television, 5555 Melrose Ave., Los Angeles, Calif., 90038.

As for the telephone number, even Hollywood stars need their privacy, and it's too easy to invade that privacy by phone. Your call might not be a nuisance, but hundreds of others might be. So, even if I had a phone number, I wouldn't give it out. When you write, you can ask Anderson for the number, and if the answer is still no, then I would respect his right to a little peace and quiet.

STAR NOTES

Right now, Corin Nemec just can't lose

By Steven Alan McGaw

"Parker Lewis is about how people would like to go through high school," says 19-year-old Corin Nemec, the star of Fox's Parker Lewis Can't Lose.

For the past few years, Nemec's career has been one most young actors would die for. His first prominent role in a feature film came with 1988's Tucker: The Man and His Dream, directed by Francis Ford Coppola.

"It was, wow, a real pleasure to work with him," says Nemec of the experience, which also put him alongside Jeff Bridges, Fredric Forrest and Christian Slater.

Nemec grabbed the attention of critics and audiences alike with his moving performance in 1989's I Know My First Name is Steven. The real-life Steven Staynor was kidnapped at the age of 7 by a twisted loner. Nemec's performance made the boy's private pain palpable and brought him an Emmy nomination.

Other notable credits on Nemec's resume include the Eddie Murphy-produced comedy special What's Alan Watching? Most of Nemec's time, of course, is spent working on Parker Lewis, in which he plays a irrepressible high schooler, sort of a latter-day Dobie Gillis.

Nemec lives in Los Angeles with his mother and sister. He says he has little free time, but does enjoy cartooning and going to clubs. Anything else?

HBO reviews history of sports on TV

By Steve Paschal

More than anything else, television is responsible for the phenomenal popularity of sports in America. That's why the HBO special Play by Play: A History of Sports Television is an important contribution to the field of sports sociology.

The two-part documentary, airing Tuesday, Dec. 3, and Tuesday, Dec. 10, was seven years in the making and involved an unprecedented joint effort by ABC, CBS, NBC and the cable industry. The programs are broken into six segments, each examining a different genre of sports broadcasting.

Broadcasting greats such as Roone Arledge, Mel Allen, Harry Coyle, Lindsey Nelson and Red Barber were interviewed, and 500-plus hours of film viewed in preparation for this retrospective of the first 52 years of sports television.

Six of television's most widely recognized sports announcers — Bob Costas, Curt Gowdy, Jim Lampley, Jim McKay, Brent Musberger and Pat Summerall — serve as hosts for the special. The segments featuring Gowdy and McKay should be particularly interesting. Gowdy, one of the truly great voices in broadcasting, has seen just about everything possible in his 40-year career. McKay was the voice of ABC's Wide World of Sports for more than 25 years and has covered virtually every major sporting event.

FAMILY FARE

Sensible advice on raising kids

By Chris Carpenter

Trying to tell someone how to be a good parent could be likened to describing the hues of a spectacular sunset to someone who has never been able to see. Sometimes even the most detailed explanations are muddled in their interpretations.

Lifetime's weekday parenting program, Your Baby and Child With Penelope Leach, debuting Monday, Dec. 2, abandons the notion that babies should come with instructions and preaches instead the virtue of taking it as it comes. Dr. Leach, a best-selling author on child rearing, stresses "kids don't need perfect parents, they just need the parents they've got." Her soothing advice is grounded more in common sense than computer analysis.

The program's format is as informal as the set, where the studio audience's questions are answered simply and directly and punctuated by an occasional outburst from the toddlers enjoying a pile of toys beneath Leach's stool. Though the audience members pose their inquiries in an obviously prepared manner, it is Leach we want to hear, after all.

The good doctor spends a majority of the first episode denouncing early childhood testing.
