Bailing Santa out

Business people came through for those in need last week when they showed up with money and gifts for Gene "Santa" Reaves, who makes jolly visits to the Bryant School for the Retarded, the Dorsey Street Community Center, the Foster Grandparents Association, respite centers and area group homes. When this area's popular Santa reported that he was running short on funds and was dipping into his own savings, the Canton Chamber of Commerce stepped in. The chamber turned its annual holiday luncheon into a giving party. Everyone who attended was asked to turn the tables and give something to Santa, who showed up at the luncheon in suit and tie.

Township ups workers' pay 5% in January

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Canton Township non-union employees will receive a 5 percent pay hike on Jan. 1.

The Board of Trustees voted unanimously at Tuesday's meeting to give those employees the pay raise. Treasurer Gerald Brown is on disability leave.

The last increase was 5 percent in 1991 and it was granted last spring retroactive to the beginning of this year.

Canton's non-union employees received a 5 percent raise in 1990, 1989 and 1988; 4 percent in 1987 and 1986; 6 percent in 1985; 5.6 percent in 1984; 5.8 percent in 1983 and 5 percent in 1982.

The 5 percent increase that kicks in next year will cost the township almost $59,000.

The Canton Merit Commission recommended the raise to the board and broke tradition by taking action before the first of the year. Commissioners conducted a survey of salaries paid to people in similar positions in other communities before making the recommendation.

"While they're only six months away from their previous recommendation, they're previous recommendation was six months late," said Dan Durack, Canton administrative services director.

A merit pay program, where employees are compensated for work performed, is expected to begin next year.

Canton's non-union employees received a 5 percent raise in 1990, 1989 and 1988; 4 percent in 1987 and 1986; 6 percent in 1985; 5.6 percent in 1984; 5.8 percent in 1983 and 5 percent in 1982.

"We wish to reiterate our position that we generally do not favor across-the-board salary increases," commissioners wrote in a note to the board.

THE SALARY rates are as follows:

- Public safety director, $57,129 and increases to $59,985.
- Municipal services director, $56,300 and increases to $59,115.
- Administrative services director, $56,300 and increases to $59,115.
- Chief financial officer, $51,100 and increases to $53,655.
- Township engineer, $48,600 and increases to $51,030.
- Building official, parks and recreation superintendent, resource development manager and financial services manager, the rate is $46,700 and increases to $49,035.

Holidays of bygone era recalled

By Kevin Brown

Hey kids! Did you know that 100 years ago Plymouth kids were happy to get just a single toy for Christmas?

Shhh — Don't tell mom or dad!

Don't believe it? Then you better read on. Here are two accounts of young Plymouth girls' memories of Christmas, both from the late 1800s.

THE FIRST IS from Mickie Beyer, daughter of Peter Gayde who came from Germany to Plymouth in 1854:

"We didn't know him as Santa Claus," Beyer wrote. "To us, he was always pictured as the Christ child.

"One Christmas when I was four years old, the Christ child left me a seven-inch china doll — not dressed.

"My father was very sick and mother had to work in the store with brother Will to help. So mother explained that later, when she had time, she would make a dress, which she did.

"For four years I wished for a larger doll, before I received one. Ever hopeful, my next wish was for a bicycle. On Christmas Eve I heard a door close. I just knew it had come, but I was to get my first big disappointment. No bike.

"We looked forward to Christmas eve in the little Lutheran church where a tree was provided for the children and because we always had a piece to speak. Brother Ed was an awfully bashful little boy, but because his father insisted, he had not only to pump the organ in sight of everyone, but also speak a piece. It embarrassed him terribly.

"Our neighbors, the Starkweather children, always received story books for Christmas. We were invited in to see them and allowed to take some home where father read them to us."

In her rememberence written for the Plymouth Historical Museum, Mrs. Maude Cooper wrote, "I do not recall that Christmas trees were ever used as part of home decorations when I was young, but the memory of my first Christmas tree still lingers.

"I WENT WITH my parents to the little white frame M.E. church. The kerosene lights were dim, the air filled with the spicy fragrance of pine and the din of childish voices. All eyes were focused on the platform where stood the tree in all its splendor.

"Aglow with little twinkling were candles fastened to the branches with tin clips and festooned with long strings of popcorn and cranberries. Stockings made of a coarse netting sewed with bright colored yarns and filled with nuts, hard candy and steam raisins were made by the Ladies Aid society.

"My gaze was centered on a doll with a wax head and dressed in bright pink, all ruffles, tied to the topmost branch. I at once accepted her as my own and settled back to enjoy the festivities.

"After the usual long preliminaries, Santa Claus bounced around distributing the gifts. At last the doll was handed down. The name called was not mine. Oh, the tragedy of childhood!

"I darted down the aisle screaming, 'That's mine That's MINE!' Someone hastily thrust my favorite doll, Old Punch, into my arms. The fact that she wore a new dress and was holding a baby doll comforted me a lot and averted what might have been mayhem on the other child.

"I was about seven when Santa brought me a doll with a bisque head and a white kid body with jointed arms and legs. I have her yet — but I never gave her the love I bestowed on Old Punch with a rubber head."

Christmas in the 19th century had a different feeling, one reflected in this display at the Canton Historical Museum.

'The kerosene lights were dim, the air filled with the spicy fragrance of pine and the din of childish voices. All eyes were focused on the platform where stood the tree in all its splendor.'

Trustees receive pay hike in '92

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Canton trustees will receive 100 percent more in pay in 1993 than they did in 1979.

A random survey conducted by the Observer showed that some communities pay considerably less and others pay a lot more.

In 1979 each of the four Canton trustees earned $75 per meeting and the rate stayed the same until 1984 when it increased to $100 per meeting.

And then in 1988 the rate rose dramatically to $6,000 annually.

Most recently, the board has earmarked money in the 1991 budget to increase the pay to $7,000 in 1992. And more money has been set aside in the 1992 budget to increase the rate to $7,500 in 1993. Trustees don't receive health, insurance or pension benefits.

Trustees, who meet 40-45 times a year, voted unanimously in favor of the increases at the Tuesday meeting. Treasurer Gerald Brown is on disability leave.

The other three trustees, supervisor, clerk and treasurer receive annual salaries for their full-time positions. All seven board members are up for re-election in November 1992.

THIS IS how Canton trustees compare with other communities:

- Redford Township, with about 55,000 residents, pays council members $8,262 annually. They meet twice monthly with a number of other special meetings called regularly.

Council members also get a $50,000 life insurance and health insurance policies.

- Novi, with 32,998 residents, pays council people $15 per meeting. The mayor receives $20 per meeting.

Council members don't receive life or health insurance benefits.

- West Bloomfield, with 54,500 residents, pays trustees $75 per meeting and the board usually meets twice monthly.

Cheer Club gives truckload of food, toys

The Christmas Cheer Club deadline was noon Wednesday, just hours before the Salvation Army truck came and carted away your donations of food and toys.

Their timing was pretty good, as your donations had just about filled the Plymouth and Canton Observer office here on Wing Street in Plymouth.

What it means is some needy kids and families are going to have a merrier Christmas, thanks to your generosity.

Look for our Monday edition, when we'll include the names of all Cheer Club donors.

What it means is some needy kids and families are going to have a merrier Christmas, thanks to your generosity.

BY PRESS TIME Tuesday, most recent contributors included several anonymous donors from both Plymouth and Canton; Joanne Persico, Plymouth Township; Greg Myers, Plymouth; the John Paul family, Plymouth Township; Annette Horn, Plymouth Township; Fred and Lottie Hiles, Plymouth Township; Pat Murphy, Plymouth Township; Mr. and Mrs. C.G. Ash, Plymouth; Plymouth Township Fire Department full-time employees and volunteers; Phillip and Renee Wendland, Plymouth Township; Betty Marie Hill, Plymouth Township; Janice Pizii, Plymouth Township; the Vigliotti family, Plymouth Township; Pat Fry, Plymouth Township; Kristin Gahide, Canton; Michael, Patrick and Kelsy Zemanski, Canton; Joe and Fran Murawa, Plymouth; Scott and Joanne Ickles, Plymouth Township; Sarah and Andrew Cassidy, Canton; John Guettler, Ann Arbor; Caitlin and Ryan Flaherty; William Thumm, Plymouth; Brian and Nancy Pickard, Plymouth; Michael and Belinda Szmytke, Plymouth; John Levitte, Plymouth; Marion Pearson, Plymouth; and Aaron and Joseph Hess.

DOUGH STOLEN: Money was reported stolen from a Pizza Hut on Ford Road earlier this week.

Two employees who entered the building in the morning discovered the store safe open and the money missing.

It didn't appear that there had been a forced entry into the business, police said.

UNEMPLOYMENT WOES: A Canton woman called police earlier this week to report that her husband had left home last week after becoming upset about losing his job.

He told his wife he was afraid that his unemployment benefits were about to run out. He packed his clothes, toiletries and some blankets and left home. The man said he couldn't take the pressure any longer and at one point he struck his head several times against a wall.

He left with $20 and a bank card.

STAND UP COMIC: A man, described as 6-foot-2-inches tall and 170 pounds, entered a Super 8 Motel on Lotz Road earlier this week with a paper bag on his head.

The man had his right hand in his pocket, as if he were hiding a gun, and walked to the front counter.

The clerk said he couldn't remember exactly what the man said, however, it sounded like: "I have a gun. I want all the money."

When the clerk asked if the man was serious the man said he pulls this stunt often and "he does this sometimes for kicks."

With that he took the bag off his head and walked out the door.

The clerk didn't think to call police immediately. Police however are investigating.

crime watch

MENTAL COMMITMENT: The ex-wife of a 40-year-old Canton man called police to report that she had received a call from her ex-husband threatening that he was going to commit suicide with firearms in the house.

When police arrived they heard loud music and an officer spotted a hand gun next to the victim who refused to open the door for police.

The man waved at police to go away. He later came outside through the garage door. The man was restrained and taken to a psychiatric facility.

Police found a note addressed to his kids apologizing for past actions and for taking his life.

Skaters will attend national competition

Westland's Steven and Danielle Hartsell members of the Garden City Figure Skating Club, will be attending the National competition for Figure Skating. The competition will be Jan. 4-12 in Orlando, Fla.

Steve, 13, is a student at Westland's Marshall Junior High and is in the eighth grade. Danielle, 11, attends Westland's Hamilton Elementary and is in the fifth grade. This year they are skating at the novice level and when they attend nationals they will be hoping for a repeat of last year when they skated at the intermediate level and became U.S. champions for that level for 1991.

"As a novice pairs team they skate against other pairs teams that could be as much as 5 or 10 years older than them, they just continue to work hard," a club spokesperson said.

This young pairs team accomplished being able to go to the national competition by first competing at the regional competition, where they took first overall after final round standings.

Then on to the midwestern sectional competition recently in Ohio, where again they were first overall after final round standings.

"They will be working hard until nationals, refining their skills and perfecting their routine," the club spokesperson said.

This year they are skating at the novice level and when they attend nationals they will be hoping for a repeat of last year when they skated at the intermediate level and became U.S. champions for that level for 1991.

Trustees will receive pay hike in '92

Trustees do not receive life or health insurance benefits.

- Garden City, with 38,000 residents, pays council members $240 monthly. Council members are docked pay if they miss more than four meetings annually. They also receive a $10,000 life insurance policy, but they do not receive health or pension insurance benefits.
- Westland has 84,724 residents and pays its council president $11,051 annually; president pro-tem receives $10,551 annually and council members are paid $10,051 annually. They receive retirement benefits but no health insurance.
- Livonia, with 100,000 residents, will pay council members $13,600 and the council president will make $14,600 effective Jan. 1, 1992.

Council members are offered all health, pension and life insurance benefits that other city employees make. However, some council members decline those perks.

Faulty air vent system caused teacher to faint

A malfunctioning air vent system apparently caused the recent evacuation of a Clarenceville School District classroom and the brief hospitalization of an elementary teacher after she fainted in the classroom.

Both students, and teacher returned to the kindergarten classroom at Botsford Elementary Monday after repairs were made to the fan system, said David Kamish, superintendent of the district which includes northeast Livonia, northwest Redford, and southeast Farmington Hills.

"Everything is fine," Kamish said Tuesday. "An environmental team checked the room after the first class met and things appear to be much better."

The kindergarten room has been repeatedly tested since Dec. 2, when teacher Cindy Berkaw fainted in her classroom. Students were immediately removed from the room.

Before Berkaw fainted, the district had the classroom tested on Nov. 29 for formaldehyde, gas fumes and carbon monoxide. Berkaw and others had complained to principal Jesse Baker that they became very sleepy after being in the room two hours.

Tests indicated all three were within safe limits.

After Berkaw fainted on Dec. 2, the building was checked for gas leaks. No leaks were found.

Water tests and tests for carbon monoxide also showed safe levels.

The room was then tested for carbon dioxide.

"We think the carbon dioxide level was too high," Kamish said. "The fan system that brings in fresh air and heat was not functioning properly."

An inspection of the heating and cooling system showed that the classroom was receiving only recirculated air because of an air flow differential problem.

Dampers now open properly and 20 percent fresh air flows into the classroom, Kamish said.

Pen pals get together to write letters to Santa

IN HIS LETTER to Santa, Miller Elementary second grader Chris asked for "a new fernise for the basement," for his dad.

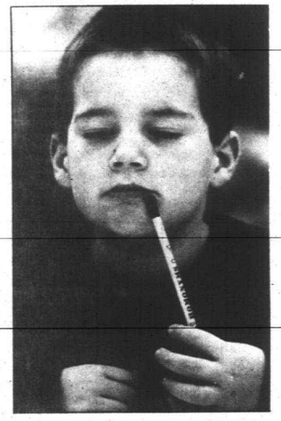
"I would like to star in a movie," wrote a second grade girl, who added, "Could I ride in your sleigh?"

"Are your reindeer feeling good?" asked Myles. "My sister would like a hot pink bike with no training wheels," he continued.

"I always wanted to see you come down the chimney," wrote Jamie, another Miller second grader.

"I always got the reindeer's names wrong so could you write me a list of the reindeer's names?"

THE WRITING OF letters to Santa was part of a program Tuesday at Pioneer Middle School in Plymouth Township. Miller second graders and Pioneer sixth graders, paired as pen pals in September, met each other for the first time Tuesday.



Todd Krumwiede ponders what he'll ask Santa for Christmas in a letters to Santa session. He and other second graders met their sixth grade pen pals for the first time Tuesday.

Carole Brooks, a Pioneer English teacher, started the program several years ago.

"It makes the older child and the younger child feel good about themselves and what they're able to accomplish," Brooks said, as she took a moment from directing four groups of 220 kids among activities during Tuesday's program.

The pen pals took turns making crafts, having refreshments, and having pictures taken with each other, besides writing letters to Santa.

Brooks said middle school students with poor self-worth "just blossom" when united with their pen pals. "They're communicating with someone who looks up to them," she explained.

And middle school boys who are getting into being tough guys "just soften" when paired with the younger students, she said.

The kids also get a chance to boost their written communication skills.

Students write each other every seek or so, and some even call each other on the telephone, Brooks said. She tries to pair up kids with similar interests, adding boys and girls are sometimes paired together.

Before the school year is up, the pen pals will meet again at Miller school, and in the spring they'll get together again at the township park.

Arson unlikley in Cygnet explosion

It could be weeks before the cause of the explosion Friday at Cygnet Automated Cleaning in Plymouth Township is determined.

"It's going to go on for quite sometime yet," township Fire Chief Larry Groth said on Monday. The investigation will include interviews with employees of the paint storage container cleaning facility.

"WE DO NOT FEEL it's arson," Groth stressed. He also rejected one theory that a natural gas leak could have caused the explosion at about 9:20 a.m. "It's definitely not natural gas," he said.

One of the firm's 11 employees was released Saturday from St. Joseph hospital in Ypsilanti. Four employees were treated at the hospital after the explosion, two for chest pains and two for minor injuries. The other three were released Friday.

The blast blew out two side walls at the building on Mast Street, causing the roof to fall on stacked storage bins, allowing employees to escape more serious injury.

Forty employees of Caremark, just east of Cygnet, sought hospital treatment for throat or sinus irritation after the explosion. All were treated and released from area hospitals.

"The damage to the building is estimated at $1.4 million and the content loss is estimated at $1 million," Groth said.

The township fire department is being assisted in the investigation by the Michigan State Police fire marshal's division.

Four cars and a pickup truck parked just east of the building were destoyed by flying debris from the blast.

Plymouth Township firefighters examine the roof which collapsed after an explosion Friday morning at Cygnet Automated Cleaning on Mast Street. An investigation will take weeks, Fire Chief Larry Groth said.

Police find bogus bomb after threat

Shortly after a caller made a bomb threat at Plymouth Salem High School Thursday morning, police found a small homemade apparatus in a locker.

The Michigan State Police Bomb Squad removed the box-shaped object and found it to be non-explosive, according to school officials.

The school was not evacuated, but Michigan State Police and Canton and Plymouth Township public safety officers cleared the area surrounding the lockers.

"Students were sent home at their regular time, with the area continuing to be kept clear so police could continue their investigation," said Dick Egli, community relations director for Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

"Students handled the situation well. They were calm and orderly," said Salem principal Gerald Ostoin. "Staff responded well in helping to supervise students who were forced out of their normal routines by the incident."

Cookie factory opens

The Cookie Factory Bakery is now open and operating at Laurel Park Place mall, Six Mile at Newburgh in Livonia.

Strudel, fruit turnovers and cinnamon rolls are baked daily and served fresh, but muffins and cookies are the bakery's specialities, said store manager Jennifer Potoczak. The bakery sells special decorated cookies eight to 16 inches as gift items.

The Cookie Factory Bakery also serves a varied sandwich menu which includes turkey, chicken salad, ham salad and BLTs.

The bakery also provides a catering service for parties or business meetings. A 25 percent discount is offered on call catering orders.

Critics say benefits bill denies college loans to those in need

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

College loans are available to everyone but those who need it most, say critics of a loan provision attached to Congress' newly extended unemployment benefits package.

In extending benefits for laid off workers, Congress added a credit check for students 21 and older who seek a guaranteed student loan.

Those with negative credit ratings must find a co-signer before gaining a loan. Similar provisions apply to middle income parents who seek federal aid for dependent children.

While supporters say the credit rating check will help underwrite the extended benefits, critics charge the provision will wipe out loans for almost all unemployed workers.

"WHAT CONGRESS did is to place these loans beyond the reach of the people they're designed to help," said Andrew Vignone, an official of Michigan Skills 2000, an organization of business leaders and educators formed to improve career education programs in the state.

"It stands to reason that if you've lost your job, you're credit rating probably isn't going to be too good," Vignone said.

Michigan Skills 2000 has been working with the Washington-based Career College Association to lobby legislators into eliminating the restrictions.

Their congressional allies include Sen. Paul Simon, D-Illinois, who has introduced a bill that would end the credit checks, and U.S. Rep. William Ford, D-Taylor, chairman of the House Committe on Education and Labor.

"The administration has exacted a very heavy price in educational opportunities for American students in return for a desperately needed benefits package for the unemployed," Ford said. "This is a classic case of legislative extortion."

Staff member Tom Wolanin said Ford, whose district includes Garden City, Westland, Canton Township and part of Livonia, will likely support a House version of Simon's bill.

"We don't have anything before us yet, but I would imagine he would support it," said Wolanin, staff director for the subcommittee on post-secondary education.

Federal student loans have generally been reserved for those rejected by other sources.

"IF MOST students could qualify for a regular, low-interest loan from a bank, we wouldn't need the guaranteed student loan program," College Career Association president Stephen Blair said.

Career schools enroll roughly 1 million students in programs ranging from truck driving to office work.

Madonna offers hospice training

Madonna University will offer three courses on hospice care as part of its winter term continuing education program.

Madonna also offers a bachelor's degree in hospice care.

The courses can be taken for academic credit or continuing education units. Continuing education is a systematic approach to meeting the lifelong learning needs of area adults and a college degree is not necessary for enrollment.

Introduction to Hospice Care Concepts (HSP 221) deals with the history of the hospice movement and the philosophy of care inherent to it. The course emphasizes the therapeutic community and the hospice team. It stresses hospice as a concept of care not as an institution. The course meets 9 a.m. to noon Tuesdays, Jan. 7 through April 21.

Psychosocial Components of Hospice Care (HSP/PSY 348) explores the psychosocial aspects of the terminally ill and bereaved. It focuses on the importance of communication skills and guides the caregiver on how to approach the discussion of death and dying with dying persons and bereaved family and friends. The class meets 4-7 p.m. Thursdays, Jan. 9 through April 23.

Spiritual and Ethical Consideration in Hospice Care (HSP/RST 350) presents the ethical principles involved in problem-solving of moral issues for clients, families and caregivers. The course studies death and dying issues and gives an overview of major world religions, identifying their tenets and practices related to meeting the spiritual needs of the terminally ill and their families.

Also offered are examples of how interdisciplinary hospice care teams can facilitate spiritual comfort in their clients and their families. The class is offered at two times: 1-4 p.m. Mondays, Jan. 6 through April 20 and 4-7 p.m. Thursdays, Jan. 9 through April 23.

All hospice courses may be taken for three hours of academic credit at a cost of $399, or for 4.5 continuing education units for $215. For more information, or to register by phone with credit card, call 591-5188.

County exec plans prayer breakfast

Rev. William Augustus Jones of Bethany Baptist Church, Brooklyn, N.Y., will be guest speaker at Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara's sixth annual prayer breakfast, 8 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 11.

Held in the Cobo Convention Center's Riverview Ballroom, the event brings together political leaders and representatives of numerous county church groups.

Rev. Jones is former president of the Progressive National Baptist Convention and founder of the National Black Pastors' Conference. He is also a general counsel member of the Baptist World Alliance.

He has preached throughout the world and has been listed as one of Ebony Magazine's "One Hundred Most Influential Americans."

Prayer breakfast tickets are $15 per person and can be ordered by calling 224-0261 by Friday, Dec. 20.

SEMCOG tries to cool 'urban sprawl' study ire

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Leaders of SEMCOG, the regional planning agency, are trying to soothe the feathers of suburban members ruffled by an "urban sprawl" study.

Responding to Oakland County's complaints, the executive committee of the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments said Friday "it is unlikely that any conclusions will be reached by March 15."

Oakland County commissioners Thursday voted 15-10 to demand SEMCOG "fully and completely halt and cease" work on the Regional Development Initiative until March 15. The RDI is a draft document that calls urban sprawl unacceptable.

Many suburban members were offended at the RDI's conclusion that racial bias has been "the dominant social factor" in the region's development and a recommendation that property tax base sharing be given "special consideration."

SEMCOG'S executive committee shelved Oakland's suggestion to halt work on the RDI for three months. But it heard Oakland's message, promising to move slowly and even referring elements of the RDI to county boards for study.

And SEMCOG deleted the suggestion that tax base sharing get "special consideration."

The Oakland board also dumped five of the county's six SEMCOG delegates, leaving only County Executive Dan Murphy.

Among those replaced were Commissioners Marilynn Gosling, R-Bloomfield Hills, a co-chair of the RDI study, and Donald Jensen, R-Birmingham, chair of a key SEMCOG transportation committee.

"The ironic thing," said Jensen, "is we did everything they asked us to."

NOVI COUNCILMAN Tim Pope was among those urging SEMCOG to drop the tax base sharing like a hot potato.

Many suburban members were offended at the Regional Development Initiative's conclusion that racial bias has been "the dominant social factor" in the region's development and a recommendation that property tax base sharing be given "special consideration."

"It is dividing suburbia from the rest of the region. That's not good policy," Pope said.

Others agreed, noting two circuit courts already have blocked a school tax base sharing plan enacted by the Michigan Legislature.

Instead, said SEMCOG Executive Director John Amberger, committes will concentrate on "over-reliance on the property tax," an issue on which most politicos agree.

A THIRD RDI suggestion that aroused suspicion among SEMCOG's dues-paying members was that state and federal aid should be used to support redevelopment of older communities rather than new growth.

"That was the most controversial one," said Amberger.

But without debate, the SEMCOG executive committee routinely referred the suggestion to its Economic Development Council, Transportation Advisory Council and Environmental Council.

"It makes a great deal of sense," U.S. Rep. John Dingell, D-Trenton, SEMCOG's guest speaker, said later. "On principle, it's a very sound statement."

THE RDI EMERGED after more than a year of work stimulated by a controversy over an East Coast developer's plan to build a two-million square foot "mega mall" in Auburn Hills, east of Pontiac.

Although the "Auburn Mills" project since has been scaled down, it sent shock waves through SEMCOG because one city of 20,000 was able to approve a project with immense impact on the roads, traffic, drains and downtowns of an entire region.

Among the RDI's recommended proposals is mandatory regional review of such large projects. Some politicos see that as interference in home rule.

"It's not intended to take away local powers," said Amberger.

SEMCOG CHAIR Gerald McCaffrey, of the Macomb Intermediate Board of Education, sought to cool members' ire with a show of humor.

"The good news was that it clearly stimulated a lot of discussion. We got a few pats on the back — and some a little lower.

"We've received a heck of a lot of criticism, most of it premature," said McCaffrey.

Food drive under way

Hudson's and Christians United in Business Endeavors are collecting donations for disadvantaged adults and children this holiday season.

Non-perishable food is being collected at Hudson's stores throughout the metro region, including Oakland Mall, Twelve Oaks and Westland Center stores.

Donations can be brought to package pick-up locations during normal store hours. Food will be accepted through Dec. 31.

Term limitation plan may be on '92 ballot

Michigan voters may see a proposal to "limit politicians terms" on the 1992 ballot.

Signatures of 402,337 Michigan voters supporting a state constitutional amendment were filed Monday with the state Bureau of Elections in Lansing — nearly 60 percent more than the required 256,517.

Political groups usually try to have 30 percent more signatures than they need to allow for invalidations by the state Board of Canvassers.

Glenn Steil, Grand Rapids business and civic leader who chairs the campaign's committee, said southeastern Michigan provided many of the signatures from its Royal Oak headquarters.

Area vice chair is Bruce Elder of Rochester Hills.

If approved, the amendment would limit:

- State representatives to three two-year terms and state senators to two four-year terms.
- State executive branch officers (governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state and attorney general) to two four-year terms.
- U.S. representatives to three two-year terms in a 12-year period, and U.S. senators to two six-year terms in a 24-year period.

The Michigan proposal has a "grandfather" clause — affected officeholders will be treated as first-term officeholders on Jan. 1, 1993.

Colorado, Oklahoma and California passed term limitation amendments in 1990, and the California proposal was recently upheld by the state's Supreme Court.

Eighteen states currently have term limitation drives for the 1992 ballot, including Washington state, which lost in its first attempt last month.

New school chief pledges support for Engler agenda

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Robert E. Schiller, 44, was the surprise and unanimous choice of the state Board of Education to be Michigan's new Superintendent of Public Instruction.

The board made its decision Tuesday night and ratified it in open session Wednesday morning, said president Dorothy Beardmore, R-Rochester.

Schiller is currently deputy superintendent of public instruction in Delaware.

"Michigan is poised to become a national leader in education," said Schiller.

"I believe in the governor's agenda," he added.

He was with Gov. John Engler at 9 a.m. Wednesday when his wife, Lucille, received a call from Beardmore that he was the board's choice.

His selection was on a voice vote and took about 30 seconds at the board's open meeting.

Schiller has been a deputy superintendent in two states — Delaware and Louisiana — and superintendent of three school districts in New Jersey.

"I come from New Jersey which is very much identical to Michigan," said Schiller when asked about Michigan's strong home rule tradition and distrust of state burreaucracy.

"New Jersey has 700 school districts. Michigan has 560. I respect it (local control). You can't remove local control by the state, but the state should work as a partner," said Schiller.

The new state school chief holds a master's in English literature from the University of Mississippi, a master's in education from the University of Pennsylvania and an educational doctorate from University of Pennsylvania.

His wife, Lucille, has been a teacher for 18 years. He will take over in February and will be paid $88,300.

The superintendent runs a department that helps the elected board set policy, administers the school aid act, certifies teachers and administrators, inspects proprietary schools, manages schools for the blind and deaf and directs statewide MEAP (educational achievement) testing.

In naming Schiller, the board passed over two Michigan candidates, Thomas McLennan, 57, a former Dearborn School superintendent, who has been executive director since 1989 of the Metropolitan Detroit Bureau of School Studies, and James Agee, 51, who has been superintendent of Muskegon schools since 1983 after 12 years as high school principal there.

The new chief replaces Donald L. Bemis, who resigned early this year after Gov. James Blanchard's re-election bid failed.

Bemis, former Utica superintendent, was close to Blanchard and had received critical review comments when Republicans this year took control of the board.

Assistant Superintendent Gary Hawks, who was not a candidate for the top post, ran the department for most of 1992.

SEMCOG backs racetrack grants

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Give Livonia, Northville and Hazel Park a break, the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments told state lawmakers.

SEMCOG Friday opposed a legislative bill which would premanently strip cities with major horse racetracks of the $800,000 apiece they have received from state racing revenue.

SEMCOG's executive committee acted unanimously and without debate Friday.

Gov. John Engler wants the track cities to get nothing. He vetoed the annual appropriation they get to reimburse the costs of police, fire and other public services.

THE 1980 state racing law grants 27.5 percent of all racing license fees to host cities, capping that amount at $800,000, said Gail Kaess, Grosse Pointe Farms councilmember and chair of SEMCOG's economic development council.

Jackson, Saginaw, Swartz Creek and communities around Mount Pleasant and Muskegon get smaller amounts for their harness tracks.

A day earlier, Attorney General Frank Kelley ruled Engler's veto could not shift the money to the general fund because it is in a restricted fund.

Engler was due to meet with track city mayors this week to resolve the crunch.

IN OTHER action, SEMCOG's executive committee endorsed an increase in the state's 15-cents-a-gallon fuel tax for roads.

That effort is being led in Lansing by the County Road Association, Michigan Municipal League, Michigan Public Transit Association and Michigan Road Builders Association.

Learn to speak Japanese at Madonna

Madonna University will offer four courses in Japanese during the winter term as part of its continuing education program.

Beginning Japanese Language and Culture I and II (JPN 101/102) will introduce the rudiments of spoken and written Japanese, including the hiranga and katkana syllabic writing systems. It will also emphasize the geographical, historical, social and cultural background of Japan from antiquity to the 30th century.

Beginning Language and Culture I (JPN 101) will be offered 4-7 p.m. Wednesdays, Jan. 8 through April 22. Japanese Language and Culture II (JPN 102) will be held in two sections: 4-7 p.m. Thursdays, Jan. 8-April 23, on the Madonna campus, and 6-9 p.m. Mondays, Jan. 6-April 20, on the Birmingham Groves High School campus, 13 Mile and Evergreen roads.

Intermediate Japanese Language and Culture II (JPN 224) is a continuation of the development of Japanese language skills. Prerequisite for the course is the completion of JPN 223 or instructor permission. It will be held 4-7 p.m. Tuesdays, Jan. 7-April 21.

Japanese Oral and Written Composition emphasizes developing skill in employing natural, everyday expressions in speaking and writing correct, idiomatic Japanese. The prerequisite is JPN 323 or permission of the instructor.

Each class may be taken for four academic credits. Cost is $532 or four 4.5 continuing education units for $260.

Senate economists say state budget crisis persists

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Michigan still faces a budget deficit of $67 million this year and $172 million next year, state Senate economists say.

"Your outlook is very somber," said Sen. Doug Carl, R-Utica, when the economic outlook was presented to the tax-writing Finance Committee. "Will it change if we get a capital gains tax cut?"

Jay Wortley, senior economist for the Senate Fiscal Agency (SFA), shook his head. "Our main concern is consumer confidence. We've lowered our projections" compared to the House Fiscal Agency, he replied.

"Consumer confidence took a nosedive in August of 1990 because of the (pending Kuwaiti) war. It rose at war's end and then fell," Wortley said last week.

Wortley had no explanation for the second fall.

ALTHOUGH DIM, the SFA's outlook is parallel to one offered by University of Michigan economists a month earlier — no "double-dip" recession, but a "relatively modest" recovery in 1992,despite many good economic signs.

SFA analysts are likely to be similar to Gov. John Engler's administration views because the staff is much the same as wehn Engler was Senate Republican leader a year ago.

Engler isn't due to present his fiscal 1993 budget message until Feb. 7, 1992. It's likely he will present little in the way of either new spending or restoration of programs already cut by some $770 million this year. Currently state spending is about $7.5 billion.

For the current fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1992, SFA projects a deficit of $67 million. It's due largely to a 1.6 percent decline in state revenues.

For fiscal '92 (beginning next Oct. 1), SFA sees revenues growing by 4.4 percent but a budget imbalance of $172 million because of built-in spending increases.

In contrast, state revenues rose by 4.6 percent in fiscal 1984, 6.2 percent in FY '85, 4.7 percent in '86, 4.7 percent in FY '87, 6.4 percent in FY '88 and 9.2 percent in FY '89.

SFA'S ECONOMIC outlook said the agency has "revised downward its revenue estimates for FY 1991-2 based on its revised projection that economic activity will not be as strong as projected earlier this year," Wortley said.

Key elements:

- Auto sales will rise only to 9.0 million in 1992 compared to 9.5 to 10.6 million in 1988-90. Current year's estimate is 8.4 million.
- Employment in Michigan will be 3.9 million next year, about the same as 1989 and a bit ahead of 1989-90.
- Unemployment will stay at a stubbornly high 9.1 percent in the state, compared to the current 9.7 percent and well ahead of the 7.1 to 7.6 percent rates of the mid-1980s. Even by 1993, the jobless rate is expected to drop only to 8.2 percent, SFA said.
- "A gradual pickup in growth" will begin in the second quarter of 1992 — which is the third quarter of the fiscal year and accounts for some of the gloominess in the state FY '92 outlook.

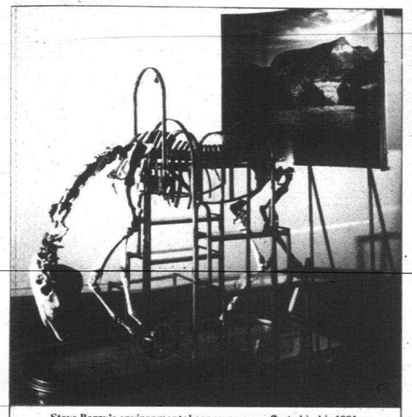
ON THE MORE positive side, SFA is looking for the regional consumer price inflation to hover at only 2.8 percent next year and 3.2 percent in FY '93.

Better yet, long-term interest rates are dropping even more — good for housing.

U.S. economists generally see the nation's economic recovery as having started last June or July. But the recovery has been so slow that much of the public apparently doesn't believe it's even happening.

Meanwhile, Manufacturers Bank reported an improving picture for October. The bank's Michigan business activity index rose five points to 133 compared to 128 in September. Economist David L. Littmann credited "greater motor vehicle output, auto sales and the volume of financial activity" for the improvement.



Steve Barry's environmental concerns are reflected in his 1991 sculpture Conservator (The Fifth Horse), complete with moving parts.

EVERYTHING FOR SKIERS – AT ALL PRICE LEVELS

IN BRIEF

Chamber auction

The Canton Chamber of Commerce is adding an item to your 1992 calendar. The chamber is planning its fourth dinner/auction and celebrating its 20th anniversary.

The dinner/auction is at 6 p.m., Saturday, Jan. 25, at Fellows Creek Golf Club. The chamber is looking for donations of merchandise, gift certificates or cash.

Each donation will be acknowledged on publicity posters on site and individual donor placards will be on display next to each.

Cash donations and gift certificates worth more than $200 will qualify as a sponsorship qualifying for the following:

- Two dinner/auction tickets, valued at $35 per ticket;
- Two silent auction tickets, valued at $5 per ticket;
- Special listing in the auction program;
- An entry in the chamber's sponsors-only drawing with a chance to win a mystery prize valued at more than $200.

If you would like to attend or make a donation call the chamber at 453-4040.

Hall of fame

The Canton Board of Trustees will formally dedicate the Canton Hall of Fame at the Jan. 14 meeting.

The wall display in the first floor meeting room will honor Hall of Fame inductees, as well as, community achievers who will be chosen annually on a one-year basis. A Hall of Fame committee of seven residents has been chosen to select future Hall of Fame Inductees and Community Achievers.

Internships for students

Students participating in Close-Up, the high school government education program, will be given a chance to earn credit through unpaid internships with Canton Township.

The students' duties will be coordinated through their instructors, Mike McAuley, Staci Champagne and Bill Gretzinger, at Centennial Education Park.

One of the first projects for Close Up students will be coordination and condensation of data and comments from a recent township survey of Carriage Hills subdivision.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Bill Bishop, president of Family Services in Detroit and Wayne County, and Pat Heron, administrator of Catholic Social Services of Wayne County, took a tour Wednesday of their new offices, which will provide United Way-sponsored counseling services in Canton. The men were introduced at the Canton Economic Club luncheon Wednesday.

Coupon clippers:

Canton Economic Club gets quick class on coupon-omics

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Valassis Inserts prints money and sends it to your house.

To some, the avalanche of coupon inserts the company prints that ultimately tumble from your weekend newspaper is a chance to cash in. To others its just another nuisance, one more piece of junk to put in the trash.

"You have an ability to take advantage of what you're interested in," said David Brandon, Valassis president and chief executive officer, who spoke at the Canton Economic Club luncheon Wednesday.

IF YOU use all your coupons, you could earn about $4,000 annually. A lot of people would do better to stay home and clip the money saving offers in the comfort of their home than to go to work, Brandon said.

And the more shoppers that cut coupons, the more business Valassis gets.

In a year of recession and doom and gloom business pictures, Valassis reached $675 million in sales. Next year the complex printing company projects a 15 percent increase in sales.

Despite the boom business, the company fights a name recognition problem. Brandon said that often times, people think he's a pickle magnate.

While the company might be confused with Vlasic pickles it's not for lack of market penetration. Valassis Inserts goes into 55 percent of all U.S. households, but since the name isn't plastered all over the product, most people don't know where or who generated it.

Currently the company, with locations in Kansas and North Carolina, employs 1,200 people and 65 live in Canton and Plymouth.

WHILE VALASSIS offers scissors snippers a chance to save money on their grocery bills, have a go at a million dollar sweepstakes and sample a new product it also gives marketers a door to reaching millions of new customers or bring back old ones.

The coupon, Brandon said, is more effective than other advertising means that are generally a lot more expensive.

"TV is getting less and less efficient and more and more expensive," said Brandon placing the loss in effect on remote controls and video cassettes recorders that give viewers a means to flip past commercials.

"There's no brand loyalty anymore, because there's a lot of good stuff out there and we all know it," he said. "So, we're looking for a deal."

And according to retailer surveys, Brandon said, the number of coupon snippers is rising.

Blood drive scheduled

Century 21 Realtors will conduct its third annual blood drive from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday, Dec. 23.

Donors can report to the Livonia office at 33607 Seven Mile three blocks west of Farmington Road in the Stamford Plaza.

"Collections are traditionally down during Christmas week and we take on that challenge during this gift-giving holiday season," said office co-manager Debbie Shamma.

"Since Christmas falls on Wednesday this year, we need to collect blood on Monday so that all of the blood's components can be used. For example, blood platlets need to be processed within a short time after the blood is collected.

"We feel very strongly about giving the gift of life — giving someone another Christmas and another year of life."

For information or to schedule an appointment, call 477-1800 and ask for Debbie or Mary Lou.

First Night plans moving briskly

☐ See related column, opinion page.

By Greg Kowalski
staff writer

Plans for the First Night/Birmingham arts celebration are moving as briskly as the typical New Year's Eve weather, said Zina Kramer, program executive director.

More than 40 performing acts are scheduled to appear at sites across the city between 4 p.m. and midnight New Year's Eve.

New this year will be a special arts presentation in store windows on Maple between Woodward and Bates.

The artworks are being created especially for First Night, and a percentage of profits from works sold will be donated to First Night.

"Part of the whole theme of First Night is to support the arts," said Kramer. The works will be on display the week between Christmas and New Year's.

FIRST NIGHT treasurer Bruce Arensmeier said sales of the buttons that allow entrance to the various events are way up over last year.

More than 300 of the $5 ($7 on New Year's Eve) buttons have been sold so far. Last year at this time, about 100 buttons had been sold.

Buttons are on sale at Crowley's, Fidelity Bank branches, Michigan National Bank branches, Deli Unique, Morel's, The Community House, Tavern on 13 and Kroger's stores in the Birmingham-Bloomfield area.

"Things are going better than last year. Sales aren't overwhelming, but they're going well," Arensmeier said.

"This year people know what it will be like," he added.

Some locations this year will donate a dollar to charity for every button redeemed, he added.

Although plans are progressing well, there has been at least one glitch, Kramer said.

THE WOODWARD Square mall building will not be used as a site, as originally planned. The building's new owners recently hired a new development firm, which backed out of the event.

"It's strictly a liability situation, no other reason intended or implied," said Alan Hayman, secretary-treasurer of the Hayman Co., the new developers.

Kramer said that the acts planned for the building will be rescheduled at other sites.

"We'll have an insert in the programs that night showing the new locations," Kramer said. First Night also needs volunteers to work four-hour shifts that evening and volunteers should call 540-6683.

First Night was conceived as an alcohol-free, "family-oriented celebration of the arts" for New Year's. Various singers, comedians, musical acts, puppet shows, theater presentations and other performers will take the stage at more than a dozen locations throughout Birmingham.

Faxon only vote vs. nude dancing ban

Sen. Jack Faxon went down swinging as the Michigan Senate approved three bills allowing communities to ban nude dancing.

Citing "such major award-winning productions as 'Equus,' 'Hair,' 'O Calcutta' and such major dance companies as Paloupolus," Faxon, D-Farmington Hills said they would be "seriously compromised" by the bills, which would "put Michigan into the equivalent of a dry state."

"These efforts on the part of local units of government to somehow protect the innocence of their adult members of their community strikes at the very core of the fundamental freedom of self-expression inherent in our constitutional liberties," Faxon said as he finished on the short end of 31-1 and 32-1 votes.

All area senators voted yes.

THE THREE bills — now on their way to Gov. John Engler for signing — would allow cities, villages and townships to adopt ordinances to control or stop nude dancing in commercial establishments within their boundaries.

Currently, Michigan's liquor license law prohibits drinking establishments from featuring bottomless dancers. But some clubs, such as the Deja Vu chain, are able to get around that by not serving alcoholic beverages.

"The only real rationale for this legislation is these bottomless entertainment centers are beacons for urban blight," said Sen. David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield. "I only grudgingly and reluctantly support this legislation myself."

Honigman's Local Government Committee reported out the bills.

Sen. Lana Pollack, D-Ann Arbor, said she is a proud member of the American Civil Liberties Union, but she fully supported the bill.

"I'm also a woman. It means that as a class, as a member of a class of people, I'm more likely to be victimized by sexual violence; I'm more likely to be demeaned by sexually exploitive language," Pollack said.

FAXON ARGUED that local units already have the power to regulate business locations and that the prohibitions would simply force entertainment seekers across the border to Windsor.

Replying to Pollack, he said nude dancing "does not promote more sexually aggressive crimes. Indeed it probably does quite the opposite, and it does not in fact degrade anybody's condition.

"In the movies you see much more, it's much worse. There are very graphic closeup shots which you do not see live unless you're holding a pair of binoculars.

"If you don't like it, don't go to it. It's very simple."

Sen. James Berryman, D-Adrian, said that choice should be given to communities as well. "If the communities don't like it, give them the right to prohibit bottomless dancing," said Berryman, a former mayor.

The bills allow local units to ban "public nudity," defined as "displaying in a public place" for payment "any individual's genitals or anus with less than a fully opaque covering."

Liberty Fest

An improvement for the best

THERE'S SOMETHING new in Canton. Well, not quite new, but revived. It's the Liberty Fest, and we'll be watching with keen interest to see how things go.

Most communities have some sort of summer event that help define the town. And Canton is no different. The only trouble is Canton continues to change.

First it was the Canton Country Festival with its cow chip fling, then it was the Challenge Festival, with an emphasis on soccer and other physical activities.

That identity has been scrapped in favor of the Liberty Fest. We hope it's for the best.

The new fest will be held June 26-28 at the township's new amphitheater behind township hall and will feature entertainment. That sounds like an improvement.

The Challenge Fest suffered from having the various events spread out at numerous locations in the township. Putting the action in one place will be less complicated for spectators.

There will also be more food booths at the festival site. That's another change for the better.

We'll be looking forward to Liberty Fest. It sounds like an improvement for the best.

However, we still think the organizers should bring back the cow chip tossing contest. It's one way for the community to retain some of its rural flavor.

United Way

Counseling services in Canton

THE UNITED WAY has come through for Canton Township.

Last fall Canton officials complained that the township didn't have a United Way program even though residents donated money to it.

Plymouth United Way refused to handle Canton cases, and residents were referred to Southeastern Michigan United Way agencies in Livonia and Dearborn.

There was nothing local. And the folks who most need such programs usually have transportation problems.

But now two United Way organizations, Catholic Social Services of Wayne County and Family Service Detroit and Wayne County are setting up counseling services in Canton at the offices of the Canton Community Foundation.

THE PROGRAM will be available beginning Jan. 15 to Canton individuals and families in a crisis situation. All residents are eligible and charges are determined on a sliding scale based on income, said Bill Joyner, community foundation executive director.

The counseling services come at a time of year when people often are the most depressed and they come at a low economic period when more people will probably be forced to depend on public help.

But while we applaud the action of the United Way and the two agencies for setting up shop in Canton, the situation is far from solved. We believe there should be a United Way for Plymouth and Canton. Such an organization could solicit donations in a larger area and help fund local agencies that function in the Canton-Plymouth area.

Stability

Keep regional transit on a roll

When local officials consider mass transit, they shouldn't think of the current system, marred by shaky financing and erratic service, but envision a streamlined, demand-driven system that could benefit city and suburbs alike.

WHEN THEY consider mass transit, local officials shouldn't let past failures cloud their vision.

The Suburban Mobility Authority for Regional Transportation says its Wayne, Oakland and Macomb bus lines will cease operating by mid-1992, unless it can merge with the Detroit Department of Transportation.

D-DOT stands to receive most of SMART's federal and state revenue should the suburban system fold. That means it needs to be convinced the merger is necessary.

That is why SMART officials want to enlist local officials. They say they'll soon be asking local cities and townships this question: "What kind of mass transit system would you like to see?"

THOUGH SMART officials aren't yet talking money, there's no disguising the fact that a new system means a new financial commitment from metro suburbs.

It's hard to seek money for anything these days — let alone for a mass transit system that has yet to prove viable despite two decades of effort.

But it's a Catch-22. One of the reasons mass transit has yet to make an impact is the lack of stable local financing.

For too long, the local system has been too heavily dependent upon state and federal financing. That made local bus service an iffy proposition even in the best of times, and now both outside sources are drying up.

Still, mass transit remains a vital tool in bringing together our too-divided region.

DEPENDABLE BUS service would not only bring more suburbanites downtown, but could also improve the traffic flow from suburb-to-suburb.

A Livonia couple could save hundreds of dollars in gasoline each year if they could take the bus to his job in Farmington and hers in Southfield.

Likewise, Troy and Rochester may have little use for SMART today but could need it desperately in just a few years when the giant Oakland Technology Park is fully occupied.

Let's not kid ourselves, either. If SMART closes, if it sells off all its buses, it's going to be almost impossible to get a suburban system going again — especially since mass transit is no longer a key priority in Washington or Lansing.

When local officials consider mass transit, they shouldn't think of the current system, marred by shaky financing and erratic service, but envision a streamlined, demand-driven system that could benefit city and suburbs alike.

AS IT STANDS, SMART can take passengers into Detroit or bring them out of the city. But it can't take them from place to place inside the city, leading to a severe duplication of routes. For that reason alone, the merger could provide massive savings.

There's no reason to stop there, either. The new system need not duplicate the old.

SMART currently spends $50 million a year on bus service for an estimated 30,000 daily riders — and at that it will run nearly $7.7 million in debt this year. Clearly, more budget-cutting needs to occur.

Unprofitable routes, such as dial-a-ride services, could be turned over to local government, while the regional system concentrates on major routes.

A REGIONAL transportation tax might be necessary, but there's no reason it should be massive.

It could be a two-step process with a low regional tax for all communities and an additional local tax for connector routes, dial-a-ride, and expanded regional service.

That way, the balance of support would come from those communities whose residents most frequently ride the buses.

Communities would then be free to provide as much, or as little, local service as they see fit. At the same time, it leaves open the possibility for expansion.

There is a price to be paid for having mass transit. But our region is already paying a price for not having an effective system — unless you haven't noticed central city decay and suburban gridlock.

Presenting: a new way to ring in the New Year

Judith Doner Berne

FIVE YEARS AGO in Hong Kong I experienced how the Chinese celebrate their New Year's Eve — by purchasing flowers. And at midnight, as the bells rang out, they carried them into the public squares as families, as couples and as singles — gathering together to welcome the next year.

Last year, I experienced that same spirit on New Year's Eve in downtown Birmingham.

In the clear, cold of the winter's night, 8,000 people moved from church to library, from small storefronts to The Community House, from enclosed malls to the Village Players — buoyed by the performances of live artists.

At midnight, we gathered in the city square — Shain Park — dancing and singing in the New Year.

We were part of the first-ever First Night/Birmingham — a nonalcoholic festival of the arts which started 15 years ago in Boston and has spread to more than 50 communities throughout the United States and Canada — each community providing its own special touch.

Eight thousand people took a chance on a first-time, unknown event — at least in these parts — and many had one of the best New Year's Eves of their lives.

about whether someone in our party is going to drink too much and spoil the evening for everyone.

But more than that we know how to spend New Year's Eve in a way which is uplifting and imbues us with the spirit of family and community.

This year, youngsters can see puppets and jugglers and story tellers and teens have their own entertainment tent at the "Y" featuring New Kids of Troy. And for everyone: the warm, humorous Chenille Sisters, the avant-garde sounds of Prism Quartet, contemporary dance by A Company of Dancers, a family folk concert by Lady of the Lake, classical music by the Detroit Woodwind Quartet and the Michigan Opera Theater's performance of "Little Red Riding Hood" — to name a few.

This year, in light of the devastation to our arts community, the ability to put on a bigger and better First Night/Birmingham is important in itself. First Night is not a benefit, although the cost is either $5 (in advance) or $7 (day of) per person — which covers all performances. All artists, picked by audition to perform at First Night, are paid — as they should be.

FIRST NIGHT does not just happen. It take a year of planning, financial contributions from individuals and companies, and a tremendous number of volunteers — both through the year and on the night.

Last year, my early shift as a volunteer to usher people in to see the story teller at the Birmingham Bookstore was as enjoyable as the rest of the evening in which I was the entertained.

It was exciting to see young families spending New Year's Eve together. It was neat to see those 11- and 12-year-old kids making the rounds of the superb entertainment and to know that teens were having fun without the peer pressure of having to drink.

I was most struck by the older people. Several came up to say it was the first time they felt comfortable celebrating New Year's Eve alone.

I'll never forget State Sen. Mike Bouchard telling me what a wonderful time his mom, a widow, and a group of her friends had.

They were particularly grateful for a New Year's Eve alternative — an evening so compelling that it's on its way to becoming the traditional way of celebrating New Year's Eve for us all.

Shame on Plymouth

To the editor:

The rejection of the Methodist Church's plan to house some homeless people overnight for a period of one week is certainly not something township officals can be proud of. It looks like another case of lawyers bending the law in a direction which accomplishes a designated purpose.

It is not uncommon for churches to house young people overnight for conferences or performing tours. Is that a violation of zoning laws? What is the difference between one or two nights and seven?

Friends thanked

To the editor:

We would like to thank all of our friends and relatives for your warmth and support following the death on November 29 of Jean Marie Jabara, a devoted wife and mother. Your condolences for her passing and your joyful memories of her life have been invaluable for our family during this most difficult time. In addition, we appreciate your generous contributions to the National Multiple Sclerosis Society (Michigan Chapter, 26111 Evergreen, Suite 100, Southfield, MI 48076-4448) and the Scleroderma Research Foundation (P.O. Box 200, Columbus, NJ 08022).

We are going to miss her.

Don't take the wonder out of life

To the editor:

Jeff Counts dealt a low blow to those of us who cherish the movie, "It's a Wonderful Life." I admit the movie isn't deathless prose and that its maudlin sentimentality may cause one's skin to creep at times. Yet the movie does capture some values that are appropriate at Christmas time, and the year round, for that matter, i.e., family unity, neighborliness, community spirit, love, kindness, generosity, self-respect, etc.

The movie isn't about an S&L scandal, as Jeff Counts proposes. It's about people and how they relate to one another during trying times. In some circles, that may be considered "corn-ball." But what makes Dickens', "A Christmas Carol," so compelling? Isn't it about the relationship between Scrooge and his nephew, Bob Cratchet? Introducing ghosts was a poetic contrivance to get Scrooge to analyze the meaning of his life, just as Jimmy Stewart's angel forced him to see what life would have been like had he not been born.

So please, Jeff, leave well enough alone. A simple message at holiday time can restore one's faith in humanity.

Holidays spotlight cultural diversity

Jack Gladden

I LOVE GETTING Christmas cards from the Steinbergs. It reminds me that "culturally diverse" doesn't have to mean "culturally divisive."

OK, so maybe technically it wasn't a "Christmas" card. It showed bundled-up kids skating on a frozen mill pond and the greeting read: "Wishing you a special holiday season and a bright and happy New Year!"

But it was the thought that counted. Friends sending greetings to friends at a time of year that is supposed to emphasize good will, no matter what your cultural or religious background.

And in a country that does contain people from so many different backgrounds, there is much to share. It's too bad we can't emphasize that instead of one group trying to pretend that another does not exist.

When the third grader's school had its "International Day" last year, it was a marvelous display of "cultural diversity." Kids dressed in the fashions of their particular ethnic or cultural background operated booths selling foods from India, Japan, The Philippines, the Middle East, China, Germany, Ireland — you name it.

IT WAS A celebration of all the rich traditions that had come together in just that one small school. And everyone who attended had a great time sharing their cultural traditions with people from different backgrounds.

That's a much better approach than what has become an annual rite this time of year — public officials bowing to pressure from divisive elements and refusing to allow a Christmas tree or a menorah anywhere close to a public building.

In New York City this year several people pointed out that the Christmas cadets that had graced Rockefeller Center for the past three years appeared to be all white and all male. Instead of creating a ruckus, center officials took a second look and agreed.

The corps of six cadets now includes an Asian drummer girl, a blonde drummerette, a Hispanic man and an African drummer. That's much more representative of American society today, but it also doesn't pretend that Christmas is not a part of that society.

IN EAST LANSING a few years ago, our family and our next door neighbors, the Steins, established our own edible gift exchange. They would bring over a plate of potato latkes from their Hanukkah dinner and we'd deliver a platter of Christmas fruitcake to them. I think we got the better deal.

Some other friends in that liberal community displayed an advent calendar alongside the menorah on their mantel — not because they had been proselytized but because both items were symbolic of what is truly a culturally diverse holiday season in America.

And for Christmas one year, someone gave my son a dreidel, along with a book explaining its history and significance.

In the country like this, with so many rich traditions from which we can learn, it's a shame to focus on separating our differences instead of sharing them. That's why I like getting Christmas cards from the Steinbergs.

Teachers mold our future leaders

John Telford

YOU'VE HEARD THE saying: "Those who can do; those who can't teach." This fallacious saying should truly be: "Those who can't teach can still do almost anything else, because teaching is the world's most challenging job."

Oakland County teacher of the year Carol Cote of Birmingham magically untaps her students' sense of discovery. Greg Clevenger of Rochester teaches innovative and nationally acclaimed government courses. Lynn Telford, my beleaguered wife, faithfully checks her Warren Consolidated Schools fifth-graders' papers until 9 p.m. every night. When I think of them and thousands of other teachers like them, I'm proud to be part of the profession whose mission is to better prepare our future leaders.

Another saying advises: "If you can't teach, become an administrator." Given my background, I want to believe this one's wrong too. But for the sake of any truth it might hold, I'll extend its advice yet further: If you can't administrate, be a professor of education. If you can't profess, consult. If no one hires you, run for public office. If you lose, seek political appointment. If you have insufficient cash or connections to get appointed, run for office again.

AND AGAIN and again. If you're a deal-cutter or fence-sitter with a convenient memory, or the scion of a prominent family, or you've dabbled in demagoguery, or you've been a show business personality, or you're vapidly handsome with a slickly packaged image and — above all — you lack relevant qualifications, chances are excellent you'll get elected sooner or later.

(Consider the careers of Richard Nixon, Spiro Agnew, Ted Kennedy, Coleman Young recently, Ronald Reagan, David Duke, David Jaye and Dan Quayle. To knock Quayle is to belabor the obvious, but he's a prime specimen of a candidate chosen to run for the wrong reasons. George Bush should name him a deputy assistant undersecretary of something or other so he doesn't have to run with him again.)

Once elected, you can appoint people less qualified or less ethical than you to high positions in your administration. (As precedent, note famous appointees Ken Weiner, John Mitchell, James Watt, Ed Meese, Clarence Thomas and Robert Gates.) Finally, after leaving office you can enter the ranks of those patriotic souls, the lobbyists.

SOMETIMES I'M tempted to nominate my smart and highly moral cat Samantha for the presidency. If elected, she would do as much good as some recent incumbents, and far less harm (except to the over-fed mice in the Capitol's corridors). Also her nomination would strike a blow for feminism and who knows? She might meow the Senate right out of existence and scratch in term limitations for some of our other perennial public servants.

I often think that anyone who covets an office enough to campaign for it should be disqualified on the spot. Maybe we ought to actually draft governmental leaders. But even if we did, they still wouldn't be much good if they were insufficiently educated.

Thus my initial premise: Preparing better leaders is crucially challenging. Greater Detroit and Michigan and all the rest of America must strive much harder to help teachers meet that challenge, because in the coming century our schools' success or failure is going to determine the fate of the free world.

John Telford, a Rochester Hills resident, recently was assistant superintendent in the Rochester School District. He previously was executive director for secondary education in the Plymouth Canton district.

Government fails to 'cure' poverty

Tim Richard

"I THOUGHT of you when I saw this," said U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell over coffee the other day.

Pursell, R-Plymouth, gave me a report by the House Wednesday Group, 35 Republicans who join by invitation. Pursell is a member as was his predecessor, Marv Esch. So are two rising members of the Michigan delegation, Paul Henry of Grand Rapids and Fred Upton of St. Joseph.

What made Pursell think of me was my continuing columns starting in late 1982 on the relationship between the growing welfare rolls and the growing proportion of out-of-wedlock births.

In 1986, when Gov. James Blanchard was trumpeting about 600,000 new jobs, I crunched the numbers and made an astounding discovery: About half of those jobs were filled by the officially unemployed, but there was hardly a dent in the number on AFDC or general assistance.

The inescapable conclusion was that the welfare rolls have a life of their own and aren't reduced by prosperity.

FINALLY HOUSE Republicans in Washington are catching up.

"Choices made by individuals — especially regarding marriage and work — are a major contributing factor to poverty rates. . ." said a key conclusion.

In other words, governmental programs and the economy have little to do with it.

Governmental programs failed to cure the problem because: "Between 1980 and 1991, spending in this category increased from $562 to $692 billion in constant 1990 dollars, an increase of $130 billion or nearly 25 percent in 11 years."

And all the while, some folks were saying Reagan cut those programs. My, my.

THE CONNECTION between poverty and out-of-wedlock births is more stunning than even I had imagined, said the Wednesday Group.

"The poverty rate for female-headed families with children has averaged around 44 percent since 1970. By contrast, the poverty rate for married-couple families has hovered around 6 or 7 percent in most years.

"So the risk of being poor is increased by a factor of at least six for persons living in female-headed families. It follows that if relatively more families are headed by females, the poverty rate will increase."

Female-headed families occur when there is (1) divorce and (2) out-of-wedlock births. The latter category is the bigger factor.

Out-of-wedlock birth rates are growing, soaring — for whites, 5.7 percent in 1970, 17.7 percent in 1988; for blacks, 37.6 percent in 1970, 63.5 percent in 1988.

The Wednesday Group is considering a revolutionary policy idea: "Place statutory limits on the length of time a welfare family may receive full benefits."

The costs are greater than just welfare. The Wednesday Group cites some Princeton research:

"On almost every outcome studied so far — delinquency and crime, school achievement, and college attendance — children raised without fathers are worse off than children raised with both parents."

THE RESEARCH on adults' decisions not to work is thicker and heavier going.

It takes various age groups of men in the population, shows how many were either working, going to school or in the military in 1940, then compares that to 1980's returns.

In a nutshell, more men are choosing not to work.

Government programs aren't the answer.

"The timeless injunctions of parents to their children turn out to be the keys to economic success: Stay out of trouble, don't have a baby before marriage, finish high school, get some training or education beyond high school, get married and stay married, and get a job and keep it."

Tim Richard reports regularly on the local implications of state and regional events.

Salem battles Spartans 'til end, finishes in 2nd

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Despite getting disqualified from a race it appeared to have won, Livonia Stevenson captured first place in Saturday's Western Lakes Activities Association boys swimming relays at Plymouth Salem.

Stevenson rallied to win two of the last three relays and finish with 228 points, five ahead of second-place Salem. Plymouth Canton took third with 213 points, followed in fourth place by Farmington (188) and a fifth place tie between Northville and North Farmington (178 each).

See statistical summary for the rest of the team standings.

The championship had to be satisfying for Stevenson coach Doug Buckler, who earlier in the meet watched Aaron Rieder, Rich Bennetts, Ryan Freeborn and Mike Gravina get disqualified from the 200-yard backstroke for making an illegal turn.

THE FOURSOME appeared to have set a new relays meet 200 backstroke record with a time of 1:46.37, but the disqualification cost the Spartans a possible 32 points as well as the new record. Buckler didn't agree with the disqualification.

"I felt possibly the official got confused with a different lane, because (looking at the tape of the meet) it wasn't our lane in which it happened," Buckler said. "They really swam a great swim, and all I could think was 'Oh, what a record.' "

Livonia Churchill finished eighth in the team standings but was awarded the 200 backstroke (1:55.57) title behind Zach Kasprzak, John Carlson, Ty Terhune and Dan Mooradian.

swimming

Stevenson didn't let the disqualification hurt its chances, responding later with wins in the 500-yard crescendo and the 200 medley. Jeff Buckler, Eric Peterson, Rieder and Bryan Morrison won the 500 crescendo in 4:26.15 and Freeborn, Alex Goecke, Greg Priede and Jeff Berens took the 200 medley in 1:47.41.

With those wins secured, all the Spartans had to do in the final race — the 200 freestyle — was finish ahead of or right behind Salem to secure the championship.

NORTH FARMINGTON'S foursome of Mike Drelles, Keith Lee, Adam Kammer and Jonathan Kershaw won the 200 freestyle in 1:33.52 and Stevenson took third in 1:42.78, right in front of fourth-place Salem (1:43.14).

Stevenson finished only third in last year's relays and ended up winning the WLAA meet.

"What the relays do is give you four or five teams that can win the league meet," Buckler said. "You've got to stay healthy, continue to work hard and have to have breaks. Plymouth Canton is real good, has a lot of depth and could be the team to beat in the league meet. North Farming-

Canton survives late rally

Dearborn High got the shot it wanted but not the results.

Junior guard Nick Haratsaris missed an uncontested, 2-foot shot at the buzzer Tuesday night, allowing host Plymouth Canton to escape with a 44-42 non-league boys basketball win.

Dearborn, which rallied from an 11-point halftime deficit, forced a Canton turnover in the final minute to gain the game's final possession. After working the ball around the perimeter for about 45 seconds, Dearborn point guard Ken Swider drove the baseline and spotted Haratsaris all alone in the paint.

But Haratsaris missed the easy chance, enabling the Chiefs to walk off the floor with a 2-1 overall record.

Dearborn, also 2-1 overall, missed several other easy shots and was only 18-of-58 from the floor (31 percent). Because of his team's poor shooting, Dearborn coach Dan McCathney was satisfied to even have a chance to win at the end.

"They're gutty kids and work unbelievably hard," McCathney said of his players. "A number of times they could have let the lead go up to 20 but they kept coming back. Against a good team like Plymouth Canton, when you can go into their building and have a good shot at the end to tie it, you've got to be happy.

"WE DID EVERYTHING we needed to win a basketball game, we just missed some bunnies (layups) — and not just at the end."

Young, Strahan enable host Chiefs to take 3rd

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Co-captains George Young and Andy Strahan helped host Plymouth Canton to a third-place finish in its own 11-team wrestling tournament last Saturday.

Adrian and South Lyon finished one-two with 264 and 228 points, respectively. Canton edged Livonia Franklin for third place in the team standings, 178-177. (Holt did not return to defend its title.) See statistical summary.

"It was a real close tourney and a tough fight for third place," Canton coach Jim Eddy said. "We're very pleased. I attribute our success to our early-morning conditioning program. We had several third place matches that we won by a point. The early morning effort is starting to pay off and I hope it continues."

Young, a senior in the 171-pound class, scored three consecutive pins en route to the individual title. Adrian's Mark Martinez was pinned in 1:51 by Young in the championship match.

Strahan, a senior in the 103-pound division, also went home a winner. He pinned Wayne Memorial's Ray Lefler in 1:22 for the title.

THE CHIEFS did not have any second place finishers, but wound up with six thirds.

Among the third place finishers for Canton: Mark Armstrong (125), Nick Spano (130), Jerry Flynn (135), Bill Buslepp (145), Joe Hunter (152) and Chris Christesen (160).

Two consolation finals featured Canton varsity and JV grapplers.

Spano pinned JV entry Nathan Ballou at 130, while Buslepp pinned varsity competitor Ryan Conner at 145.

"In those matches you just tend to sit back and say, 'Go Canton,'" Eddy said. "I was pleased that our 'B' team was close to the 'A' squad in a lot of those classes.

"It gives our varsity kids a big push. Buslepp and Conner are both juniors in a weight class with a lot of competition."

Two-time state Class A district champ Franklin boasted a pair of individual champions in Fred Vargas (140) and Ben Leece (160). The Patriots' second-place finishers included Dave Rowland (119), Jesse Shakarian (145) and Eric Holmes (152).

CHURCHILL, fifth in the team standings, had one individual champion in Craig Shepley (130). Teammate Mike Shanlikian (160) was second.

Wayne heavyweight Mike Ramsey reached the final before losing to South Lyon's Pat Moll.

The tournament MVP was Brian McAnally of Adrian (125). He was one of five individual champs for the Maples.

Salem gains experience on road

The Plymouth Salem wrestling team found it worthwhile to travel to Cleveland St. Edward's for a quad meet with three established programs.

Performing with 11 wrestlers instead of the normal 13 because of injuries and illnesses, Salem held its own against each team except St. Edward's, a nationally ranked squad.

"It was a real good experience," Salem coach Ron Krueger said. "The kids saw what it's like being in that competition and hopefully they'll use that to build themselves to a higher level. Our real good wrestlers found out what it's like to wrestle the best."

wrestling

Dan Bonnett (125) was the only Rock to go undefeated in three matches. Matt Killian (103), Scott Martin (119) and Jeff Shumate (240) were 2-1 each, while John Moran (112) and Jamie Breithaupt (heavyweight) each finished 1-2.

The Rocks host an eight team invitational beginning at 9 a.m. Saturday.

Nettie enjoys stellar season

By Brad Emone
staff writer

"You could call it a bittersweet football season for Central Michigan University defensive tackle Mike Nettie.

The 6-foot-4, 270-pound senior from Livonia Stevenson High, with one season of eligibility left, was recently named to the All-Mid-American Conference first team after leading the Chippewas last fall with nine sacks.

There was also the euphoria from a 20-3 victory over Michigan State.

But Central missed making the California Raisin Bowl after being the MAC representative in 1990. There was also the dubious distinction of settling for four ties. CMU finished the year with a 6-1-4 record.

"The tie with Ohio (opening game) was disappointing in light of the fact that we had beaten them 52-7 in our final game last season (1990)," said Nettie, CMU's third leading tackler this season. "The 17-17 tie (with Ohio) made us think, but then we said to ourselves, 'let's get ready to play the next three games.' "

The Chippewas then rode what Nettie called "a wave," scoring wins over Southwest Louisana (27-24), MSU and Akron (31-29).

"Then we kind of slowed down," Nettie said. "When you lose only one game, you like to think you've had a great year, but when you throw in four ties, it kind of puts a damper on things."

NETTIE SAID said a pattern developed in CMU's season of deadlocks.

"It seemed in the first half we get a slow start and end up getting behind," he said. "Then we'd play good enough football to win and just run out time. The effort was there. We were just a day late and a dollar short."

'The experience, the confidence you get from starting the game was the difference between this season and last year.'
— Mike Nettie all-MAC tackle

Despite the roller coaster season, Nettie played consistently throughout.

He was MAC Player of the Week for his 11-tackle, four-sack effort in a 10-3 victory Oct. 26 against Ball State.

"The experience, the confidence you get from starting the game was the difference between this season and last year," Nettie said. "I played a sufficient more amount than the previous year. I averaged 35 plays per game last year, but I was around 65 to 70 this season. And once you get into a groove, your momentum and confidence get going.

"It's not necessarily who is the biggest, strongest or fastest, but you have to know what your opponent can do and hope that gives me an extra edge."

Nettie understood his job completely, holding his own against several opponents 300 pounds or better. That's part of the reason why he was selected as the team's defensive line MVP.

"The role of the front people in the 50-defense is to keep the offensive line off your linebackers," Nettie said. "Our defense is designed for our inside linebackers to make the plays. They rely on the 'front three' heavily for pass rush."

NETTIE'S NICKNAME is the "Rhino," a moniker that stuck with his teammates after his parents sent him an article featuring second cousin Mike Current, who played 14 years in the NFL with stints in Miami, Denver and Tampa Bay.

"He (Current) was called Rhino and some of the players found out and gave me that name," Nettie said. "He was from Lima, Ohio and played for Ohio State."

Nettie, the youngest of three brothers, is majoring in criminal justice. He plans to graduate in 1993, using his fifth and final year of eligibility.

"I'd like to get into some part of the government, maybe start out in a big city police department," he said. "After I put in my time there, I'd like to work for the DEA (Drug Enforcement Agency) or the ATF (Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Division). My dad (Norm) has been a reserve (officer) in Livonia."

Coming out of high school, where Nettie helped the Spartans to consecutive 7-2 seasons, he made visits to three schools — CMU, Toledo and Wisconsin.

"I had gone to football camp there for three years and I knew coach (Herb) Deromdei pretty well," Nettie said. "And when I made my visit, I saw a lot of the guys who I played in the All-Star Game (High School Coaches Association) with. On my visit we had Chris Scheffer (Westland John Glenn), Gary Rakan (Traverse City), Eric Rayford (Detroit Cass Tech), Oscar Ford (Detroit Lutheran West) and James Cooper (Warren DeLaSalle). We all kind of decided right there that we would stay together and go to Central."

THE MOVE HAS turned out to be a wise one for Nettie, who was surprised he made All-MAC.

"I was hoping to get something, but to be selected first team was another great surprise," he said. "I was surprised to get it as a junior."

Nettie will be one of CMU's leaders next season.

"We're losing a lot of great players," said the tackle. "We've got some younger players who were able to get their feet wet. We play Michigan State and Kentucky right off the bat, and that will be tough. It's going to be a slow start, but that's all right. We hope to get things going by league play."

Another bowl trip and a win over another major school is something the Chippewas and Nettie will shoot for again next season.

"Beating Michigan State and playing in the Cal Bowl are two moments I'll never forget," he said. "To go out and beat 'State' was an unreal day. Going against guys like Jim Johnson, a preseason All-America, Tico Duckett and Courtney Hawkins was something else. And to go out and beat them gave credibility to the MAC.

"And the whole hype about being in a bowl game and the nationwide publicity it gets, is really great."

Maybe Nettie's season and career has been more sweet than bitter afterall.

Lady Ocelots get tourney split

The trip Schoolcraft College's women's basketball team took to the Glen Oaks CC Tournament last weekend was a thriller.

The Lady Ocelots ended up with a split, but they easily could have been 2-0 — or 0-2. On Friday, SC battled host Glen Oaks evenly until the very end before fouls and free throws did them in in a 74-69 defeat.

On Saturday, the Ocelots got a game-winning basket in the final second from Dana Hudson to stop Lake Michigan CC 62-61.

Said SC coach Jack Grenan of Saturday's game: "We kiddingly came in and said if we can hold them to under 30 free throws, we have a chance."

That line wouldn't have been too funny Friday against Glen Oaks. Glen Oaks went to the line 42 times, making 23; SC was 11-of-17. Three Ocelots fouled out: Jen Audet, Katie Balogh and Hudson.

basketball

With 12 minutes left in the first half, the Ocelots trailed 28-12. "We switched defenses, to a half-court press," said Grenan.

THE CHANGE in strategy worked. SC ran off 17-consecutive points to take the lead. Glen Oaks recovered enough to hold a 37-34 advantage with four seconds left in the half, but Donna Galli sank a 30-foot three-pointer at the buzzer to tie it.

The second half was close until the final two minutes. "We didn't convert in the final two or three minutes," said Grenan. "We didn't hit the shot or get to the line. They did."

Galli's 18 points led the Ocelots. Nicole Daprich had 16, Sis Guth 15 and Audet 10.

Against Lake Michigan, SC had a 60-59 lead and possession of the ball with 20 seconds left, but the Indians got a steal and were fouled. They hit both free throws, going up 61-60 with 14 seconds remaining.

SC ran the clock for a final shot, and Audet made it work by finding Hudson open underneath. Hudson hit the left-handed layup and was fouled, then purposely missed the free throw to run the clock out.

Galli, who along with Guth was named to the all-tournament team, had 18 points. Hudson had 17 and Guth 16. Guth also grabbed 15 rebounds, made four steals and blocked three shots.

The split leaves SC at 9-5.

Observer-area stars give Hornets a lift

Here was a school which — in the age of yuppies — would have been held in esteem.

Kalamazoo College produces future doctors and lawyers; however, athletic success had been limited to the tennis courts, where the Hornets were (and still are) NCAA Division III powers.

Basketball, football, soccer — these and the college's other sports teams were rarely successful . . . in the past.

Not so anymore. It may surprise some to find K-College is a mere four points out of first place in the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association all-sports trophy race.

The reason: soccer and volleyball, to a great degree. The Hornets were MIAA champs in both women's soccer and volleyball, and they shared the men's soccer title with Calvin College.

THE WOMEN'S soccer team and the volleyball squad both qualified for NCAA III tournaments. The soccer team was led by sophomore sensation Jennifer Russell, a Plymouth Canton HS graduate. Russell shattered every MIAA single-season scoring record, netting 35 goals and 10 assists for 85 points in 18 games.

Russell's season earned her MIAA player of the year honors.

She had lots of help, though, in K-College's 15-2-1 campaign (the Hornets lost to California Lutheran 3-0 in a first-round NCAA III Tournament match). Junior midfielder Karen Carney, a Livonia Stevenson grad, was the team's second-leading scorer with 17 goals and 16 assists for 50 points. She, too, was a first team all-MIAA choice.

Junior midfielder Candi Jones, also from Plymouth Canton, was selected to the MIAA's second team. She and freshman defender Francesca Priebe, from Livonia Churchill, led a defense that surrendered just 10 goals all season. Priebe was honorable mention all-MIAA.

K-COLLEGE'S volleyball team enjoyed similar success. The Hornets established new school records for consecutive wins (34) and wins in a season (36, against four losses) as they captured their second-straight MIAA title. They lost to Wisconsin-Oshkosh in the opening round of the NCAA III tourney.

Senior setter Rocky Cibor was one reason for their success. Named to the all-MIAA team for the second-consecutive season, Cibor, from Stevenson, established a new school record for assists, averaging more than 10 a game.

Freshman outside hitter Christina Garry was another reason. The Livonia Churchill grad averaged two kills per game, third best on the team, and had 41 service aces, which was fourth best.

K-College's men's soccer team failed to earn a berth in the NCAA III Tournament, but the Hornets were close. They finished 13-3 with an 11-1 MIAA mark, and they did it with 13 freshmen on the roster.

Dana Orsucci was one of them. The Livonia native and Redford Catholic Central grad, Orsucci, a forward, was named to the all-MIAA first team; he scored three goals and six assists (12 points).

Senior defender Rob Orsucci, Dana's brother, was honorable mention all-MIAA. Also a CC grad, Rob collected four goals and eight points.

The success of these teams has made K-College an NCAA III contender in sports other than tennis. And Observer-area athletes have made these teams successful.

Dave Bogataj has been coaching Schoolcraft College's men's basketball team for four-plus years, and in that time he had never been able to beat his closest — in proximity — rival: Oakland CC.

Until Saturday.

OCC's fortunes continued to slide as the Ocelots started hitting their three-pointers — four in a row at one point — to battle back and beat the Raiders 106-101 in overtime at SC.

The Ocelots connected on 11-of-19 threes (58 percent) in the game; OCC made 9-of-20 (45 percent).

"Our season average is like four (three-pointers) for a game," said Bogataj.

SC needed the long-distance shooting this time, and they got it. Trailing 90-86 with :57 remaining in regulation, Rahim Woodson sank a triple that pulled the Ocelots to within one.

RASHE REVIERE drove through the lane for an OCC basket, putting the Raiders up by three, but Tony Rumple hit another three for SC, tying the game at 92-92 with :14 left. Reviere got off another shot for OCC, but missed, forcing overtime.

The Ocelots kept hitting in OT, from everywhere. Rumple started by making another three, and Mitch Fyke kept the Ocelots going with their fourth-consecutive triple after an OCC miss. They would never surrender the lead, thanks to some dead-eye shooting from the free throw line: Fyke, Jarvis Murray, Scott Meredith and Woodson each went 2-for-2 in OT.

"Schoolcraft is pretty good," conceded OCC coach Lynn Reed. "I was impressed with them. They shot very well. And they hit their free throws, and we didn't."

Poor free throw shooting has plagued the Raiders all season. Reed estimated the team is making less than 60 percent from the line; against SC, OCC was 10-of-18 (56 percent), while the Ocelots made 25-of-35 (71 percent).

OCC did make it close in OT. A three-pointer and a basket by Reviere pulled the Raiders to within 98-97 — but SC's free throws put it away.

"WE'VE BEEN there," said Reed after his team lost its second-straight Eastern Conference game, both defeats coming in OT. OCC is 0-2 in the conference, 3-8 overall. "We could have won a lot of those.

"We have not been playing poorly. We just haven't executed when we needed to. And we've missed our free throws."

The Raiders showed their durability against SC by bouncing back from a 12-point deficit in the first half to gain a 50-49 halftime lead. Dale Kraft's 15 points and Rod Hall's 12 ignited OCC.

But SC's inside game was too much. "That's our strength," said Bogataj, noting SC's 12 blocked shots — eight by Murray. "Because we went inside, it opened up our threes.

"We played very well. I'll take 19 or 20 more games like that."

As for finally posting a 'W' against OCC, Bogataj said, "We were getting closer and closer (to beating them). I'm just glad to get over the hump."

Fyke propelled the Ocelots over that hump, scoring a career-high 36 points. The Plymouth Canton grad was 12-of-18 from the floor, including 5-of-8 on threes.

Murray added 23 points and 10 rebounds, with Meredith totalling 14 points, 15 boards, four assists and three blocks. Woodson finished with 14 points and nine assists, and Rumple scored 13.

OCC was led by Reviere's 23 points. Hall had 21, Kraft 17, Kevin Woodmore and Myron Banks 14 each, and Bill Knight 10.

Mott sinks lifeless SC

Dave Bogataj was at a loss.

"We're going to put out a want-ad tomorrow to see if we can find our missing team," he said after his Schoolcraft College men's basketball team folded against visiting Mott CC, losing 78-66 Tuesday.

"It was absolutely horrendous," said Bogataj. "Mott did some nice things, I won't take that away from them. They were aggressive and we weren't.

"They just beat us all over the court. They played good defense and helped each other out a lot. It was just silly — we didn't play, we didn't come to play."

What's worse, SC managed to retrieve just 25 rebounds, and only 12 of those were defensive. And this was against a much smaller team; the Bears' post player, Kenyatta Payne, is only 6-foot-5.

Scott Meredith led SC with 22 points and nine rebounds. Jarvis Murray had 15 points but just five boards; no other Ocelot reached double figures in scoring. Mitch Fyke, averaging 16 points a game and coming off a 36-point performance against OCC, scored just six.

Canton takes 3rd place at WLAA swim relays ton has the best frontline five or six swimmers and Chuck Olson (Salem's coach) did just a fabulous job, taking second place."

Canton coach Hooker Wellman said Stevenson's ability to overcome the disqualification proved the Spartans' superiority.

"I don't think we can beat Stevenson in a dual and if they don't win the league meet then they blew it," Wellman said. "I don't know if Plymouth Salem and Canton could combine their teams and still beat Stevenson."

SALEM WON ONLY the 400 individual medley (with Joe Ervin, Brian McMullen, Chris Lynn and Brett Petroskey recording 4:16.38), but the Rocks secured two second places and one third to remain in contention.

"A few of our guys were disappointed but when you step back and look at it, we wanted to compete and get as many in the meet as we could, so I was pleased," Olson said. "I think Stevenson is the team to beat in the league and this did nothing to change my mind. Doug (Buckler) did a great job motivating them."

North won two other relay races to go with its 200-yard freestyle win. Kershaw, Itai Zohar, Drelles and Chris Knoche combined to win the 400 medley (3:48.89) and Kämmer, Zohar, Drew Sopha and Knoche won the 200 breaststroke (2:00.88).

Farmington won the diving relay with 411.65 points behind the performance of Brandon Richardson and Chris Martin. Falcons coach Ross Bandy was pleased with his team's performance, which included a pair of second-place finishes.

"I thought North Farmington and Northville would nip us, but it was a good finish," Bandy said. "There are some good divers out there. Hooker Wellman is an outstanding diving coach and always has his kids polished at the end of the year, but I think Brandon will be right there, too."

CC wins 6th straight

A pair of first-period goals were just enough for Redford Catholic Central, the state's fourth-ranked hockey team in Class A, to post a 2-1 triumph over Class B-C-D's No. 1-ranked Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook Saturday at Redford Ice Arena. It was the Shamrocks' sixth consecutive victory without a loss.

Bill Baaki scored CC's opening goal, just 1:42 into the game on assists from Joe Blaznek and Tom Denton.

At 10:14, Mike Kasper scored on a slapshot from the point after Marc Lorelli won the face-off as the Shamrocks dominated the first period.

Things evened up in the second period as Cranbrook's Peter Pirsch cut the deficit to 2-1 at 2:00.

In the final period, both teams were served untimely penalties, but CC held on as sophomore Mike Brusseau made 22 saves on the night.

STEVENSON 9, MILFORD 4: Chris Rennie's hat trick powered No. 6-ranked Livonia Stevenson (4-1) to the non-league victory over the host Redskins in a game played Saturday at Lakeland Arena.

Anthony Flevaris, Kit Masterberto, Aaron Moorehouse and Kevin Bush each contributed a goal and two assists. Ryan Gusick had a goal and one assist, while Doug Gulau and Mike Schmidt also scored for the Spartans, while Scott Johnson chipped in with two assists.

Stevenson led 6-4 after two periods before Stevenson scored three unanswered goals in the final 15 minutes, two by Rennie and one by Schmidt.

"The kids started slowly and they saw a need to get going after being up 2-1 after the first period," Stevenson coach Paul Ferguson said. "We were able to turn it up a notch in the second period, although we gave up too many three-on-two breaks. Despite that, offensively we played well."

Bob LaFontaine started in goal for Stevenson and worked the first two periods before giving way to Mike Williams, who kept Milford off the board in the third.

CHURCHILL 8, HOWELL 1: On Saturday, visiting Livonia Churchill (5-2) romped to the non-league victory against the host Highlanders at Grand Oaks Arena.

Senior center Jamie Allen scored four times for the victorious Chargers, who led 5-0 after two periods before cruising home.

Larry Allen also had a four-point night with a goal and three assists.

Mike Johnson, Dan Imperati and Brian Jakowinicz also scored goals for Churchill.

Johnson, Corey Swider and Shawn Thomas each contributed two assists.

Jeremy Niemiec started in goal for Churchill.

Canton outduels John Glenn on wrestling mat

PLYMOUTH CANTON and Westland John Glenn made Monday's meeting at the Romulus triangular a very competitive one.

Canton prevailed over Glenn, 30-29.

Winning for Glenn was: Tom Pace (103), 6-4 over Andy Strahan; Mike Mancini (119), 21-6 technical fall over Mike Borich; Shane Hall (145), pin in 1:12 over Ryan Connor; Mike Reeves (152) pinned Justin Serrach in 1:03.

Canton winners included: Mark Armstrong (125) defeated Jaime Murphy, 7-5; Nick Spano (130) defeated Matt Graca, 10-4; Jerry Flynn (135) won 11-4 (opponent not available); Kevin Pavlov (140) pinned Jerry Simoneau at 5:03; Chris Christesen (160) defeated Brian Bogszewski, 7-3; George Young (171) pinned Ken Renaud, 2:57; Mark Meszaros (189) pinned Billy Glass, 5:43.

Canton tied Romulus, 36-36, and John Glenn beat Romulus, 45-25.

Canton's winners against Romulus included: Strahan, 13-12 over Tim Kilgore; Pat Adams (112) on disqualification; Flynn (135), 11-10 over Jay Drouillard; Christesen pinned Darrell Waller, 1:01; Young pinned Rob Graham, 2:45; Meszaros pinned John Sylvester, :44.

Heard's block sparks Chiefs' cage victory

39-28 after three quarters before allowing the Pioneers back in the game. Canton senior center Tony Coshatt scored all nine of his points in the first quarter, but picked up his third foul before halftime and played most of the second half with four fouls.

Canton made 12-23 field goals in the first half but was only 5-19 in the second half. The Chiefs were strong on the boards, outrebounding Dearborn, 39-18, but committed 26 turnovers.

Steve Harworth, Dearborn's 6-6 senior center, took advantage of Coshatt's absence, scoring a game-high 17 points.

"I thought we played real smart and team-oriented in the first half," Canton coach Daye VanWagoner said. "But our ability to break pressure has been our Achilles heel all year. We should have buried them when we were up 13 in the first half, we have to develop that killer instinct."

Canton's senior guard Jon Paupore had 10 points, including three three-point shots, to tie senior teammate Derrick McDonald for team-high scoring honors. Senior forward Hal Heard added seven points, a team-high 11 rebounds and made the defensive play of the game midway through the fourth quarter.

With Canton ahead, 39-36, Heard pinned a layup by Dearborn's Fadi Bazzi against the glass. The Chiefs got the rebound and Paupore buried a three-point shot at the other end of the court to make the lead to 42-36.

"I DIDN'T REALLY think about the play, I just blocked it," Heard said. "My scoring was off, so I had to go to my next best thing (rebounding and blocking shots)."

McCathney thought Heard should have been called for goaltending on the block, but didn't blame the outcome of the game on an official's call.

"That hurt us, but it's a call they made," McCathney said. "I thought it was goaltending but the refs had a better angle and that didn't cost us the game. The refs called a good game."

Heard's strong rebounding was just another sign of his progress in Canton's program. A year ago, Heard hardly saw any action on Canton's varsity.

"He's our most improved player," VanWagoner said.

WHITMORE LAKE 84, PLY. CHRISTIAN 56: Plymouth Christian fell to 6-2 overall Tuesday night at Whitmore Lake.

Despite the lopsided score, junior forward Jason Neil had impressive numbers, leading Christian with 25 points and nine rebounds. Freshman Nathan Ledbetter had 10 points and senior center Jeff Hess had nine rebounds and six assists.

Falcons equal win mark

By Neal Zipser
staff writer

For the Farmington boys basketball team, it was a chance to equal its win total from last year. For the Falcons' rookie coach, Dennis Mikel, it was a chance to meet a well-respected peer.

So one could say there was plenty of rhyme and reason to Tuesday's 63-53 non-league win over visiting Waterford Mott.

"I went up to him after the game, shook his hand, and then asked for his autograph," said Mikel, referring to Waterford Mott coach Ralph Grubb. "He's in the coaches Hall of Fame."

Mikel enjoyed meeting Grubb and was just as pleased watching the Falcons move to 2-1 overall, which already ties last season's win total when they were a dismal 2-19 overall. Grubb, who spent the past three decades as a successful coach at Pontiac Central, is winless in three games as a first-year coach at Mott.

Mikel and Farmington senior Brian Afflerbaugh agreed the players seem comfortable playing together.

"THE KIDS KNOW that they won't be taken out of the game every time they make a mistake and that may be the reason they're more comfortable," Mikel said. "We should be 3-0. We lost at Redford Union (50-47 Thursday) in overtime after they hit a three pointer at the end of regulation. We're playing well."

"We are more confident and there is more team unity," Afflerbaugh said. "The difference from last season is a combination of things."

The Falcons, who won't play again until Jan. 7 when they travel to Birmingham Seaholm, made sure they'd enjoy their break with an 11-0 run early in the fourth quarter to extend a 47-43 lead to 58-43.

The rally started with three consecutive baskets by senior Matt Fitzpatrick and ended with a driving layup by Afflerbaugh. Mott scored the next five points but junior Brian Farr put the game out of reach with a layup and three free throws.

"We didn't change anything in the fourth quarter," Mikel said. "But we executed our half-court offense well when they went to the man-to-man offense."

Farmington opened up a 16-9 lead after the first quarter by making seven of its first 11 shots. For the game, the Falcons converted 24-50 (48 percent) field goals, compared to Mott's 20-53 (37 percent) shooting.

THE FALCONS extended their lead to 23-11 after a long jumper and three pointer by senior forward Steve Gallagher. But Mott went on a 15-2 run to take the lead, 26-25.

The Corsairs made three triples in the run and held Farmington to one field goal in 4:28. The Falcons came back to lead 31-28 at halftime.

"We didn't want them to get the ball inside on us so we packed the defense in and the outside shot was there," Mikel said.

The score seesawed in the third quarter, and Mott found itself in a familiar situation — at the short end of a close game. The Corsairs entered the game after a one-point loss to Watrerford Kettering and a two-point loss at Milford.

Trailing 35-33, Mott got a break when Gallagher was whistled for a technical foul. As Gallagher took his 21.5 points per game average to the bench, the Corsairs tied the game with two Scott Goddard free throws.

Afflerbaugh took over by ripping down three rebounds and collecting six points on strong drives to the basket.

"I've been working on those in practice and tonight was the first time I've been able to use the moves," Afflerbaugh said.

Gallagher finished with 11 points, 10 rebounds and three block shots, but only scored two points in the second half.

"Everybody expects Steve to do all the scoring but they put a box-and-one on him and it may have frustrated him," Mikel said. "I told the team that the rest of them would have to pick up the slack and they did. This was a good victory because everybody contributed."

"WE SHUT (Gallagher) down, but they had good balance," Grubb said.

Afflerbaugh led the Falcons' balanced scoring attack with 15 points. Farr and Fitzpatrick finished with 11 and eight points, respectively.

The Corsairs were led by Mike Wargel's 14 points. Goddard and Pat Nadeau had 10 points each.

Grubb felt the difference was Farmington's edge on the boards and his team's poor shot selection.

"We missed the shots at the wrong time," Grubb said. "They hurt us on the boards and got too many second shots. We're not a great shooting team, but we shot below what we usually shoot.

"We were impatient on offense. The key was open the entire game but we took more perimeter shots tonight than we did in our first two games."

Said Mikel: "We stressed defense tonight and rebounding was our top priority. We wanted to make sure we got a hand in the shooter's face."

Clarenceville earns 2nd straight win

Livonia Clarenceville cranked up the defense Tuesday, putting on a furious rally in the final quarter to earn its second boys basketball victory of the young season, a 67-60 win over visiting South Lyon.

The Class C Trojans outscored the Class A Lions 24-14 in the decisive fourth period to run their season record to 2-0.

Mark Kalaj paced the victors with 22 points and 12 rebounds.

Other Clarenceville players scoring in double figures included Dan Nunnery, who finished with 16 before fouling out with three minutes to play. John Kalaj and Mario Ivezaj contributed 14 and 11, respectively. The two combined for 15 fourth-quarter points.

Bronson Clayton led South Lyon (0-3) with 22. Teammate Andy Duncan added 12.

JOHN GLENN 60, WYANDOTTE 41: Micah Orr's 21-point performance carried Westland John Glenn (1-1) to the non-league triumph against the host Bears.

The senior guard, who had eight points each in the second and fourth quarters, connected on 10 of 12 field goal attempts.

Ken Taylor, a 6-foot-5 junior center, added 10 points and seven rebounds for the victorious Rockets, who outscored Wyandotte 19-6 in the fifhal quarter.

"I was pleased with the fourth-quarter effort," Glenn coach Pat Bennett said. "We were able to create turnovers off our full-court pressure, and in our half-court zone, we also executed. We did all the little things right to extend the lead and get the victory."

Swingman Keith Lukasik paced Wyandotte with nine points.

FRANKLIN 63, TRENTON 24: Eleven players scored Tuesday as host Livonia Franklin (1-1) rolled to the non-league victory over the visiting Trojans (1-2).

Thanks to a full-court pressure defense, the Patriots jumped out to a 31-13 halftime lead and never looked back.

Senior point-guard Keith Roberts, in limited action, led the winners with 13 points and four steals.

Sophomore guard Clemente Herrera added 12 points, while junior center Jason Facione chipped in with 10. The two combined for eight rebounds.

Corey Fields netted 10 points for Trenton.

WAYNE 71, GARDEN CITY 56: Rick Barnes scored 22 points and grabbed 11 rebounds Tuesday, propelling host Wayne Memorial (2-1) to the non-league win over the visiting Cougars (1-2).

Barnes, a senior forward, tallied six in the third quarter as Wayne opened up 60-38 advantage.

Junior guard Dontez Prewitt and senior forward Greg Hartman contributed 12 and 11 points, respectively, for the Zebras.

Jeff Williams, a 5-9 senior, paced GC with 19. Teammate Scott Latham added 13.

LUTH. WESTLAND 55, INTER-CITY 51: Junior forward Rich Mobley tallied 17 and junior guard Phil Spoljarick notched 14 Tuesday, lifting host Lutheran High Westland to its first victory in three starts.

The Warriors (1-2) trailed 21-20 at the half, but turned things around with a 16-7 scoring surge in the third period before holding on.

Spoljarick was a perfect 6-of-6 from the free throw stripe.

Guard Brian Keith paced Allen Park Inter-City Baptist (1-1) with a game-high 31 points, including 23 in the second half (on four 3-pointers).

FORDSON 71, CHURCHILL 58: On Tuesday, host Dearborn Fordson (2-2) gained the victory against Livonia Churchill (1-1) behind senior guard Abadi Haisam's game-high 15 points.

Senior center Keith Gulian and senior forward Brian Johnson each tallied 13 points for Churchill.

The Tractors jumped out to a 19-12 opening-period lead and never looked back.

North Farmington on Tuesday jumped out to a 20-12 lead after one quarter over Redford Union and used the advantage to win the non-league boys basketball game, 73-65, at home.

Senior guard Dean Pennala led the winners with 18 points, while senior guard Mark Temple and senior forward Jon Sturtz contributed 16 and 13, respectively. The Raiders made 20-of-27 free throws compared to 9-14 by RU.

North improved to 1-1 overall and RU fell to 1-2. RU, which never got closer than five points after the first quarter, was led by senior guard Bill Malecki's game-high 19 points. Paul Nowak added 13 and Mike Ernst scored nine.

North enjoyed a 40-30 halftime lead and the lead stayed at 10, 56-46, after three quarters.

"They missed shots and turned the ball over in the first half," North coach Tom Negoshian said. "They made a nice run in the fourth quarter but we hung on. That's two games in a row that we've executed well."

RU coach Tip Smathers also credited North's rebounding.

"Their offensive rebounding hurt us," Smathers said. "They were real tenacious on the boards."

HARRISON 67, KETTERING 39: Senior forward Paul Gilvydis needed only 11 minutes Tuesday to score a game-high 21 points on 8-of-8 shooting (including two three-point shots) and three free throws.

The win at Waterford Kettering not only improved Harrison to 3-0 overall, but satisfied coach Mike Teachman in other ways as well.

All 13 Hawks played.

Drains Run Slow?
You'll never have a slow running, or clogged drain again! The secret? Clean drains don't run slow.
The "slows", or periodic clogs, are SIGNALS that a thick layer of GOOK is choking your pipes. Grease, hair, and other waste stick to your pipes, with every use. This gook deposits along the entire length of the pipe. It chokes your pipes gradually, as it gets thicker and thicker.
Gook
other products run here →
Conventional drain openers can't fix slow drains. They react chemically on the surface of the gook. To be effective, they must remain in contact with the waste. Even a small tunnel through the gook lets them flow out to the sewer, leaving the gook behind.
In the past, the only way to remove this build-up was to root-er your pipes. An expensive, temporary measure.
Now, with just a few minutes each month, you can easily clean out your pipes... and KEEP them clean with Pimm Clean®. It clings, and penetrates deep into the gook. No other product has the Pimm Clean® formula. That is what allows it to liquefy even years of build-up. Pimm Clean® will clean the entire length of your pipes. It will make your drains run like new, when used as directed. This penetrating action is so revolutionary, we stand behind Pimm Clean® with a money-back guarantee! Don't be confused. Pimm Clean® is the brand with the money-back guarantee right on the label.
Saves Money. A 1 lb. jar of Pimm Clean® holds up to 41 drain treatments. Even if drain openers could fix slow drains, it would take over 10 quart bottles to get the same number of treatments. Pimm Clean® costs about 35¢ per treatment. We don't know of anything that cleans drains for less.
Independent laboratory studies show Pimm Clean® more effectively breaks down organic waste than all other products tested. So, if your drains have the "slows", act now. Get safe, guaranteed Pimm Clean® today! Available only at: $2191

Last chance is here to land a buck

Bill Parker

THE SEASON is dwindling down. Muzzleloading deer season ends this weekend and the second archery season ends Jan. 1. If you haven't bagged your buck, time is running out.

Success reports continue to trickle in from area readers.

● The 1991 firearm season was a great one for Westland's Greg Galvan. On Nov. 17, Galvan shot a 142-pound, 6-point while hunting from a blind on the edge of hardwoods and a grass field in Washtenaw County. Four days later, Galvan shot the biggest buck he has taken in 24 years. Hunting from the same blind in a fallen tree, Galvan shot a 194-pound, 10-point. The rack has an unofficial green score of 156.2.

"The archery season continues and so do I," Galvan said. "I did not receive a doe permit so muzzleloading is out. Even if I don't fill my last tag it's going to be great to be in the outdoors hunting in the snow and scouting for next year."

● Garden City's Paul Biegalski took his third deer in five years and his first buck ever at 9:20 a.m. on the opening day of the firearms season. Hunting in an area of mixed hardwoods and pines on the edge of a large cedar swamp in Mackinaw County, Biegalski dropped a spike horn that dressed out at 150 pounds.

● Dan Biegalski, also of Garden City, shot an 8-point buck that dressed out at 175 pounds at 3:30 on Nov. 21. Biegalski was hunting a ridge between a cedar swamp and a river bottom in Mackinaw County.

● Bill Kammerer took a pair of bucks this year. Hunting a rubline alone in a fencerow in north Oakland County, Kammerer dropped a 145-pound, 5-point at 7 p.m. on Oct. 4, with his bow and arrow. On opening day of the firearms season, Kammerer shot a 140-pound spike horn.

● Steve Bucy, of Pontiac, took his first buck in 13 years of hunting on Oct. 16. Hunting a patch of hardwoods in Rochester, Bucy arrowed a nice 6-point.

The Michigan elk season ended Tuesday. I haven't heard from any of the 10 area hunters who received an elk permit, but I'm eagerly awaiting a few calls.

(Hunters are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information to: Outdoors, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, Mi., 48009. Hunters should include their name, hometown, date and county of kill, weight, number of points and the type of habitat from which the deer was taken.)

Westland's Greg Galvan and his 10-point whitetail, shot Nov. 22 in Washtenaw County.

TAKE DRUGS AND LOSE ALL YOUR FRIENDS.
If you think drugs cost a lot now, wait 'til addiction begins. They cost you your career. Last year alone, America's businesses lost more than $60 billion to drugs. So this year, most of the Fortune 500 will be administering drug tests. Failing the test means you won't be considered for employment. And that's one hell of a price to pay.
WE'RE PUTTING DRUGS OUT OF BUSINESS.

First Night rings in 1992 with musical fun

FIRST NIGHT/Birmingham promises to be wonderfully self-referential: a new beginning, a reckoning, a chance to celebrate enduring human values. And who better to perform than The Chenille Sisters, a trio of sparkling singers known for spiritual energy, quirky humor and frolicking multipart harmonies.

Prism Quartet and Jimmy "Spoon Man" Krews will also headline the celebration on Tuesday, Dec. 31.

Formed in Boston in the late '70s as a means of deepening cultural interest in the performing arts in a no-alcohol, non-profit setting, First Night was introduced to Birmingham last year. Funded by businesses, organizations and municipalities, performances can be enjoyed in accessible locations from mid-afternoon to midnight for $5.

Formed in Boston in the late '70s as a means of deepening cultural interest in the performing arts in a no-alcohol, non-profit setting, First Night was introduced to Birmingham last year.

First Night/Birmingham will take place in Birmingham's downtown area. Shain Park will be the central location with satellite sites being the Community House, City Hall, Baldwin Library, Village Players Theater and St. James Church. Entrance to all First Night performances, including a New Year's celebration in Shain Park, are accessed with a First Night button.

Prism Quartet performs at St. James Episcopal Church at 9, 10 and 11 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 31, during the First Night celebration in Birmingham.

The Chenille Sisters, Connie Huber (left), Cheryl Dawdy and Grace Morand, a nationally known folk trio, will perform at Birmingham Seaholm High School as part of the First Night celebration at 8:30, 9:30 and 10:30 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 31.

LAST YEAR'S event offered 37 Michigan artists in 114 performances before a crowd of 6,000. First Night is proving to be both a life-affirming way to ring in the new year and a venue for artistic expression in a year that has seen vicious budget cuts decimate Michigan's varied arts.

The-Chenille Sisters have released several records nationally, winning audiences throughout the country, a career highpoint would also include a performance on Garrison Keillor's [illegible] Home Companion radio broadcast.

Their musical emphasis is on folk craftsmanship as much as it is on artistry, but the focus eventually narrows to one of old time, yet not anachronistic, entertainment. In short, a great time made to look easy. The group will be performing in the Auditorium of Seaholm High School, 2436 W. Lincoln at 8:30 p.m., 9:30 p.m. and 10:30 p.m.

THE PRISM Quartet is an avant garde chamber group, they use saxophones and electronic pitch controllers to update classical arrangements for contemporary audiences. Prism is comparable to the better known Kronos Quartet, a West Coast chamber ensemble that is just as inclined to interpret a Jimi Hendrix song as Bartok.

Spoon Man Krews uses comedy and traditional music to create a captivating performance. Prism Quartet will be performing at St. James Episcopal Church, 355 W. Maple, at 9 p.m., 10 p.m. and 11 p.m.

The Chenille Sisters and Prism Quartet are just the headliners. Dance, mini musicals and playlets will also be part of the festivities. Musical performances will embrace nearly every style: jazz, blues, bluegrass, gospel, folk and country.

Shuttle buses are provided on routes between The Community House, Seaholm High School, City Hall and the YMCA. There will be free parking in city-owned garages from 3:30 p.m. to 12:30 a.m.

Buttons are on sale now for $5 at The Community House in Birmingham, Birmingham and Bloomfield Kroger stores, Birmingham locations of Fidelity Bank and Michigan National Bank, Crowley's Tavern on 13, Deli Unique and Morels, both on Telegraph Road. Buttons are $7 if purchased News Year's Eve. For more information, call 540-6688.

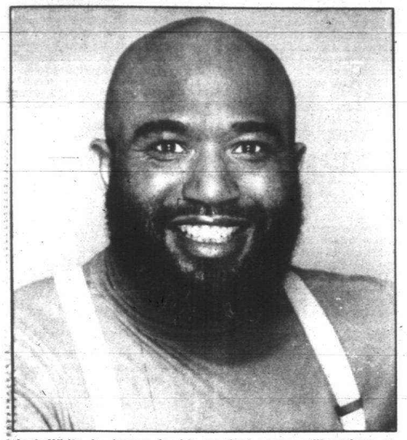
Weekend boasts children's shows



Josh White Jr., known for his magical songs, will perform at Schoolcraft College in Livonia on Saturday.

You could, of course, spend this Saturday shopping for Christmas presents. You could also spend it wrapping Christmas presents, baking Christmas cookies and signing Christmas cards.

But if you'd like to enjoy a little bit of Christmas and not simply get ready for it, you could take your children (or bring along someone else's) to one of three very enjoyable children's shows scheduled for this weekend.

At 10 a.m. Saturday, folk and blues singer Josh White Jr. will perform for children in the Waterman Center at Schoolcraft College, Haggerty and Seven Mile, in Livonia. The concert, presented by the college's Athletic Department, will help raise money for athletic scholarships. The concert will last an hour and a half.

White, well-known for his magical songs and warm, humourous manner, will perform selections from his new children's album, "My Favorite Toy." Produced in collaboration with his friend Ron Coden, the album combines upbeat stories and music.

Tickets are $6 for children and $10 for adults. For reservations, call 462-4417.

WHITE IS also playing at The Ark in Ann Arbor in January. He will perform at 8 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 4, and at 2 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 5 (in a children's concert). For information, call 761-1451.

Also performing this Saturday are the Song Sisters, who will present a holiday concert at 11 a.m. at Meadow Brook Theatre. Chris Barton and Julie Austin, who make up the Song Sisters, perform children's music on a variety of folk instruments including guitar, banjo, hammered dulcimer, autoharp, recorders, flute and homemade rhythm toys.

The performance will last about an hour and is not recommended for children under three. Doors will open at 10:30 a.m.; seating is reserved.

For ticket information, call the box office at 377-3300. Meadow Brook Theatre is on the campus of Oakland University in Rochester Hills.

THE DIA YOUTHEATRE will mark the holidays with "The Jack Frost Follies" slated for performances at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m this Saturday. "Little Red Rocket Hood," "The Three Little Pigs," "The Twelve Days of Christmas" and "Babes in Toyland" are all part of the show.

The show is part of the Youtheatre's Wiggle Club, designed for children three and older. Tickets are $6 for adults and children; for information, call 833-2323 from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily.

We're proud to announce the opening of our new Mountain Jack's in Livonia.
Where you can enjoy the best prime rib in town. We start with only tender USDA Choice Midwestern cornfed beef, seal in the juices with a special herb crust, and then slow-roast over six hours for even more tenderness.
You'll also enjoy choices from our unique Signature Steak Collection, like Whiskey Peppercorn Filet or Sizzling Mushroom Top Sirloin. Plus, our fresh fish and seafood entrees.
Every entree is served as a complete meal with a cup of homemade soup, our unique lazy-Susan style salad bar at your table, fresh baked bread and your choice of potatoes, baked Parmesan tomatoes or rice pilaf.
Whether you join us for lunch or dinner, you'll enjoy Mountain Jack's inviting, comfortable atmosphere and personalized service.
You'll also find that we're the perfect place for receptions, banquets and other special occasions, with plenty of room to accommodate large parties. So what are you waiting for? Make your reservations tonight at our new Mountain Jack's. And then enjoy the best prime rib in town, right here in Livonia.

Teens get in the act in 'First is Supper'

Jaimie Newman (left) as Rosey, and Daniel Kahn as Solly, in the Jewish Ensemble Theatre production of "First is Supper."

"First is Supper" runs through Dec. 29 at the Jewish Community Center, 6600 W. Maple Road, West Bloomfield. Call 788-2900 for ticket information. To charge tickets, call 645-6666.

By Barbara Michals
special writer

"This is one of the saddest plays — we all cry every time we go through it, but for every sad thing there's lots of comic relief," said 13-year-old Jaime Newman, describing the Jewish Ensemble Theatre's upcoming production of "First Is Supper." in which she plays a retarded girl.

"I DON'T cry. I consider this play a comedy; a comedy is anything that makes me laugh," said 13-year-old Daniel Kahn, who plays Newman's brother in the show.

"You don't cry because you're a boy! Trust me, you'll be in tears," Newman confided confidently.

"First is Supper" marks the second professional acting appearance for both teens, who also both made their professional debuts in the Jewish Ensemble Theatre's "A Rosen by Any Other Name" last season.

Newman and Kahn are Farmington Hills residents and eighth-graders at their respective schools, Hillel Day School and Roeper City and Country School.

"First Is Supper," a first play by actor/comedian Shelley Berman, is a bittersweet family drama that explores the strengths, foibles, and resilience of an immigrant family in Chicago in 1919. While the play is not autobiographical, it is loosely modeled on the author's maternal grandparents.

"THIS FAMILY'S not ready for what's in store for them," Newman said. "The father has three children but has always concentrated on me, his little baby. He doesn't know how to face his problems. He's just realizing that I'm not normal and that he also has to start dealing with the problems of others."

Newman's role is much larger and challenging than the supporting part she had last year. "It's difficult playing someone retarded," she said.

"Other actors respond to each other's lines. My character doesn't know what's going on and so responds in inappropriate ways. I have to ignore what's going on and remember that my character doesn't understand. I sit up in bed at night and wonder how I can make her sound more real."

"My character, Solly, is pushed around a lot," Kahn added. "He's never happy because his dad never pays attention to him. I play a neglected, obedient child."

KAHN SAID he has always liked acting, perhaps in part due to his mother's involvement with community theater. At five he played the Wizard of Oz in preschool, and has appeared in other school plays.

Kahn has studied at Cranbrook's summer theater school and intends to return there next summer or perhaps attend Interlochen. He said he might continue with his acting in high school but would not consider it as a career. "Too risky," he said. "I want to be a lawyer."

NEWMAN ON the other hand, is determined to pursue acting as a career. "My dream is Hollywood," she said. "I want to go to UCLA or Northwestern and major in film. I want television and movie work more than theater."

Her interest in acting began just two years ago while watching the Academy Awards. "I loved it so much I decided I wanted to be part of it," she said. The next summer she studied at Actors Alliance Conservatory, then attended Interlochen last summer, where she plans to return. "I have a lot more to learn, especially considering how good the other people are in this play," she added.

Newman stressed that while her parents are supportive of her acting ambitions, "they are not stage parents at all. They told me from the start. 'There are two people in this family who have a job, and you're not one of them.' I have to find my own jobs, my own rides. They want me to still have a normal childhood; they don't want me skipping from 13 to 25.

"They believe education comes first, but if you have a dream, then go for it." Looking confidently to the future, Newman continued, "If I want it badly enough, I go out and get it. Even if I have to struggle for a while, I'm still going to make it."

Barbara Michals is a retired Southfield English teacher. A theater critic for the last 17 years, she is an inveterate playgoer who regularly catches up on all the New York productions.

Sen. Riegle says preventive medicine saves money

U.S. Sen. Donald Riegle thinks that prevention is the best medicine when it comes to health care and expectant mothers.

To make the point, he visited the Wayne County Health Department center on Merriman near Michigan Avenue Monday morning to get a personal look at the children's immunization program.

"For every dollar spent on immunization, there is a savings of $14.14 in longtime health care costs," Riegle was told by Dr. Donald Lawrenchuk, the county health department's medical director.

The senator said that his visit to the clinic which serves most western Wayne County communities, is important because of the recent cutbacks in state health care programs.

The Michigan Democrat has proposed legislation to assure all children receive immunizaion shots for preventable diseases, such as measles, mumps, tentanus and whooping cough.

Riegle said that immunizations against numerous diseases are particularly important for children between 15 months and 5 years of age, a period when those youngsters are vulnerable to diseases.

He said the problem of health program cutbacks is nationwide but more critical in Michigan with the recession and state budget cutbacks.

The budget cuts at the state level are putting pressures on the county clinic, which now has a six-week wait for expectant mothers seeking prenatal care services.

Ideally, those women should be seen at the clinic within two weeks, he said.

CYNTHIA TAUEG, county health department director, added that the women who bring their children to the clinic for free shots are poor and usually on the state Medicaid program.

"We're the clinic of last resort because the women can't get their children into hospitals for lack of (medical) insurance," she said.

Taueg added that the county's program for high-risk expectant mothers and mothers of small children may be eliminated because of budget cutbacks. At present, the county is avoiding layoffs by not filling vacant positions.

Lawrenchuk added that the infant mortality rate in some Wayne County cities is higher than that in Third World countries.

The medical director stressed that the free medical services at the clinic "is the best kept secret," in that the services usually cost from $40 to $90 if received at a doctor's office.

The free or low-cost services include dental care, family planning, pediatrics, pregnancy testing, prenatal care, tuberculosis control, sexually transmitted disease control and the women and infant children's food program.

The clinic is part of the Westland Health Center, behind the Annapolis Hospital clinic, former Wayne County General Hospital.

Sun chasers: Area movie makers achieve dream

"Camus' Shoes" is showing through Dec. 22 at the Michigan Theatre, where the half-hour film will precede full-length movies. At 6:30 p.m. tonight, Dec. 19, it will be shown prior to "Cyrano De Bergerac" starring Gerard Depardieu. "Camus' Shoes" will be seen at 6:30 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 21 before "Rosencrantz & Guildenstern Are Dead," starring Richard Dreyfuss.

It will also be shown at 5:30 p.m., Sunday, Dec. 22 before "Prospero's Books" at 6 p.m., and "Hamlet" starring Mel Gibson and Glenn Close at 8:30 p.m. Showings are planned for early January at the Magic Bag Theatre in fashionable Ferndale. Call the Magic Bag at 544-3030 for details.

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Fairy tales can come true, it can happen to you, especially if you're Larry Carroll, or in some way connected with his Farmington Hills-based company, Sundog Productions Inc.

Massachusetts-born Carroll and two of his high school buddies dreamed about making a movie together someday. The director, actor, and writer are pushing 40, but they're young at heart, and they did it.

Their 30-minute feature film, "Camus' Shoes," premiered Saturday night at the historic Michigan Theatre in Ann Arbor before a cocktail-sipping, hors d'oeuvre-munching crowd resplendent in tuxedos, gowns and jewels.

Among those having the most fun were the film's co-executive producers, Carroll's partners Ed Krajewski and Mike Janz, and the actors, including Scanlon Gail, a former Detroiter now residing in Los Angeles.

Gail, who's appeared in movies including "The Rocketeer," "Tough Guys," and "Fright Night II," plays Fred Titlebaum, a desperate and uptight Yuppie realtor suffering a midlife crisis in the Sundog Film production.

Central in the "comedy noire" is Kevin Yon, a native of Pittsfield, Mass. now living in Rockford, a suburb of Grand Rapids. Yon — whose credits include roles in the movies "Sweet Charity, "Blindfaith," and "Man of La Mancha" — plays Albert Camus, maintaining his existential roots with a twist of 90s awareness.

Boston-native Judith Roberts, who starred in the cult classic "Eraserhead," plays Fatima, "Psychic to the Celebrities."

In Carroll's estimation, Roberts' performance is one of the film's bright spots. The highlights in Fatima's eyes as she gives Fred a $60 ectoplasmic encounter "are the size of basketballs," says the director, who with his family recently moved from Hartland to Venice, Calif. where Carroll is opening Sundog's West Coast office.

The screenplay is the work of respected New York writer Michael Clary. Clary says the inspiration for "Camus' Shoes" was the 20th anniversary of Woodstock — a happening that struck like a knife at the heart of Fred Titlebaum.

In the film, shot in five nights on location in Ann Arbor, Fred confesses to Camus that he wasn't even at Woodstock. Not only that, he knows all the words to the Carpenters' songs — further proof his life is an utter failure.

FAILURE IS a word foreign to Sundog, headquartered in a spacious, fieldstone-and-gingerbread centennial farmhouse on Twelve Mile Road just west of Farmington Road. It's been seven years since Carroll left a highly successful position as vice president of Detroit's J. Walter Thompson to found Sundog and pursue his first love — directing.

With a winning team that includes directors Werner Hlinka and Barry Meier (who served as "Camus' Shoes'" director of photography), Sundog has acquired an impressive array of clients.

Among them are Oldsmobile, Cadillac, Chrysler, Dodge, Ford, Chevrolet, Jeep/Eagle, Pontiac, GMC Truck, Delco Electronics, the Partnership for Drug-Free America, and Michigan National Bank.

Filmed in Detroit-area sound stages and on location in California, Oregon, Washington, Montana, Utah, Arizona and Colorado, Sundog commercials have captured Telly, Mobius, Cannes and Clio awards. Industry leaders and trade publications such as "Screen," "Zooming In" and "Spotlight" have recognized Carroll as the preeminent director of automotive commercials.

So why risk big bucks in a costly feature production?

Not just to pursue a dream, Krajewski says, but "to show people we are film makers. When you think of the film business, you think of Hollywood. But that doesn't mean it's not done anywhere else. This movie will have people perceiving us a little differently.

"Detroit suffers a bad rap for a lot of reasons," added Krajewski, Sundog's marketing chief. "A lot of work is generated out of this city, even in these tough economic times."

"Michigan has produced a lot of talented people, and some of them still live here," agreed Janz, Sundog Productions' treasurer and a friend of Carroll's since college days.

Many members of Sundog's regular film crew assisted on the project. "I hate to use the saying, 'give something back,' but it's what we did," Krajewski said.

"This film will tell everyone, 'Here's this little company in Farmington Hills that actually went out and did a film,' said Janz, a Plymouth resident. 'They're serious about what they're doing.' It will get a lot of heads turning."

Proving to the industry that you're a versatile film company can only help in the current economy, especially in light of the fierce and ever-growing competition among directors from around the globe, added Janz.

'No comment' speaks volumes

By R.J. King
special writer

When corporations traditionally came under fire from the media for faulty equipment or accidental chemical spills, the typical response was to cut off all lines of communication.

But now something new seems to be going on. Corporations are being held accountable for their actions by consumers, shareholders and activists.

Did Exxon Corp. do enough to clean up the Valdez oil spill? Are the Detroit Tigers planning to build a new stadium in western Wayne County? Are the Big Three holding back when it comes to increasing fuel economy?

In previous years, such issues were either left unaddressed or handled by a federal regulatory commission. Now they are landing on company doorsteps, said Steve Friedman, senior vice president of Anthony M. Franco, a public relations firm owned by the Ross Roy Group of Bloomfield Hills.

'Corporations are finding out that what they say can affect everything from stock prices to recruiting.'

— Steve Friedman of Anthony M. Franco

"There's no question advances in audio and video technology have given the public and the media much more access to a company than ever before," said Friedman. "Corporations are finding out that what they say can affect everything from stock prices to recruiting.

"If a management team tries to isolate themselves from the media, a vacuum will form temporarily, and then someone — often someone hostile to the company's interest — fills it. Some managers naively believe if they don't grant an interview, there won't be a story. That's a big mistake."

Using the Alaskan oil spill as an example, Friedman said Exxon initially set up press conferences in hard-to-reach sites in Alaska and denied that problems existed instead of helping to solve them.

The result? Exxon's public image dropped off the scale, the company's stock tumbled and the U.S. government threatened legal action against Exxon's management team if they continued to stonewall federal investigators.

Closer to home, as the Detroit Tigers, Wayne County and the City of Detroit try to hash out a new stadium site, Friedman said the Tigers' management team has made several crucial errors in dealing with media inquiries.

"What people want most is honesty, and with the Tiger stadium issue, I'm not sure they're getting it. Are the negotiations going well or poorly? I think the Tigers are used to dealing with sports writers, but not the general media.

"Too often, the Tigers don't present facts to support their claims, and they wind up bullying the public and the media. It's when such issues aren't addressed properly that people get confused and angry. It then makes it a lot tougher for the Tigers to find voter support for public financing."

If a management team doesn't deal with demands effectively, said Rein Nomm, president of Rein Nomm & Associates, a public affairs and investor relations firm in Plymouth, someone will probably do it for them with onerous and lasting results.

"Perhaps someone accuses a company of spilling chemicals deliberately, and as president of that company, you have conclusive proof that it was accidental," said Nomm. "If you take on an adversarial role during the press conference, you'll wind up losing every time.

"For one, the media always has the last word. And two, the press conference is the only chance you have to present your side of the story. My advice in a situation like that is to be as forthright as possible and offer to investigate all inquiries to the best of your ability."

Sandy Hermanoff, president of Hermanoff & Associates, a public relations and marketing firm in Farmington Hills, concurred, adding that in most instances where the media is banging at a company's front door for answers, to say "no comment" is an error of monumental proportions.

"Unless there are legal issues which could jeopardize a client's position in court, we are very unhappy with the client that says, 'No comment,' " she said.

"A reporter has the job of writing a story, and if one side only offers two words, the other side is going to receive much greater play.

"The key to working with the media effectively is to do your homework beforehand. Develop a crisis management plan where all potential problems are presented along with the proper response and action for each. If you are strong internally, then you will be strong externally."

Hermanoff added she often advises clients to designate one or two media spokespersons to handle inquiries, whether it be the company president or a veteran of the media industry itself.

"It's much easier to write a story with one or two sources instead of tracking down 12 different people,' she said.

Spending wants now can squeeze long-term needs

Local financial planning experts reviewed the data of the family profiled here and made general recommendations based on the participants' resources and goals. Many families ask, "Why is there so much month left at the end of the money?" This month's couple, Steve and Joyce Wells of Plymouth are fortunate not to be asking that question.

Steve, 41, is a plumber for a local contractor. Joyce, 34, is at home with their daughters, ages 3 and 2. Steve also has two children from his first marriage, a son, 14, who lives with him, and a daughter, 16, who lives with her mother. He pays $80 per week in child support for her.

Steve and Joyce have a good start toward effective financial planning. Their current home, valued at $70,000, is paid for. One of their financial strengths is that they have no other debt, so there is money available at the end of each month to invest in a savings plan for future goals. Steve and Joyce also have an adequate emergency reserve of funds in the event something unexpected were to happen to them.

THE WELLSES' primary short-term goals include purchasing a new car for $10,000 in early 1992, and a new boat next summer for $12,000. Their long-term goals include saving a sufficient amount for college costs for their children and providing satisfactory retirement assets for themselves.

The purchase of the boat and car will deplete their available cash and leave them with inadequate emergency reserves. Steve and Joyce can finance the purchases because there are excess funds at the end of each month after paying the bills, but this will reduce their ability to save for their long-term goals.

If they decided to buy both items, they should carefully look for the best financing terms, but they also need to carefully review their priorities and determine whether their short-term wants are squeezing them out of their long-term necessities. They may find that deferring the boat purchase is a prudent decision.

Steve and Joyce are currently setting aside about $350 per month in savings, $200 of which is going into a money market fund. We have discussed the "magic" of compound interest in past articles and learned that amounts regularly invested can grow to sizable sums over time. For example, this $350 per month compounded at a conservative 7 percent will be worth $182,000 in 20 years.

"We tend to invest in interest-bearing accounts, but is this the right strategy to follow?" they ask. By staying in interest-bearing accounts they minimize short-term fluctuations of principal. But this also subjects them to the whims of the economy and the rate of interest available at any given time.

THE WELLSES might want to consider diversifying their investments and putting a portion of their savings in good quality equity mutual funds. This could help them to maximize the overall potential return in their portfolio.

They obviously need to maintain some liquidity because education funds will be necessary in only four years when Steve's son is ready for college.

College costs will have to come from a combination of student work and savings, potential contributions and, hopefully, financial aid. Steve and Joyce should refer to our previous columns on financial aid for additional direction. It is important to get started as soon as possible in their planning for future education costs, as procrastinating will only make the problem worse.

Because they have no debt, they have the money to work with when prioritizing and allocating for their most important goals. Besides providing college assistance, they are concerned about gaining financial security and retirement. A step in the right direction was made when Steve deferred 5 percent of his income, about $150 per month, to his company's 401(k) plan. This could be a primary retirement savings vehicle for them. We would suggest raising this contribution to 10 percent to maximize the savings and reduce their income tax as contributions are tax deductible. They could then allocate their additional income to more immediate goals.

The Bottom Line

STRENGTHS

- Adequate emergency reserve.
- No debt.
- Has begun saving through payroll deduction.
- Steve's company has pension plan.
- Good auto, homeowners and medical insurances.
- Own house outright.

WEAKNESSES

- No college savings.
- Steve has only outdated simple will; Joyce has none.
- Inadequate life insurance on Steve.
- No disability coverage in place.

Family FINANCES

IN ANALYZING the various insurance coverages that Steve and Joyce have, we find that a cause for concern is that Steve has only $66,000 in life insurance through a group term policy through his company. This could be a major problem. Joyce has skills as a legal secretary, but she could not replace Steve's income. Additonal insurance is needed to protect against this contingency.

Steve also has no disability insurance. He does have a group policy available to him through his union association. He should make the purchase of this policy a high priority.

Steve and Joyce have talked about updating their estate plan. Steve has an old will prepared in 1982 before his second marriage and before the birth of his last two children. If Steve were to die, Joyce is entitled to elect against this old will under Michigan probate law, but would receive only the first $60,000 of the estate and half of the remaining property. Jointly owned property and benefits passing by a beneficiary designation could go to Joyce without being subject to the probate process. But a portion of Steve's assets may go to somebody other than Joyce and create financial hardships for her. Joyce has no will or estate plan.

We would strongly suggest that they execute wills to provide for an orderly distribution of the property at their respective deaths and to name guardians for their minor children in the event that both were to die. Because two of the children are so young, they may want to consider implementing a revocable living trust with provisions designed to protect their children and any assets left to them.

Joyce and Steve have a number of financial strengths and enough time and discretionary money available to minimize their financial weaknesses. If they plan properly, they can ensure that there will never be "too much month left at the end of the money."

Exhibit tells story of war's local impact

By Julie Brown
staff writer

Half a century has passed, but memories of World War II remain strong for many. Those who served in the U.S. armed forces remember the war's impact, as do those who were on the home front.

Their stories are told in a new exhibit at the Plymouth Historical Museum. The "For the Duration" exhibit opened the weekend of Dec. 7-8, and was timed to coincide with the 50th anniversary of the Pearl Harbor bombing.

Wartime posters emphasizing patriotism are included in the exhibit.

Jeeps from the war era are in the exhibit, along with a number of other items used by those in the military.

"We anticipated it was going to be big," said Beth Stewart, museum director. She and others at the museum began to think about such an exhibit about a year and a half ago.

In the past, they've had a Christmas exhibit through the holidays, and were able to incorporate some Christmas items into this year's exhibit, which will continue at least through late January.

INFORMATION, ARTIFACTS and materials for the exhibit weren't at all difficult to find. Many of the exhibit items are on loan from local people and organizations rather than from the museum's collection.

"We had some uniforms, mostly from members who had already given them," she said. Exhibit organizers were dependent on the community for help in finding items, and were pleased with the response. A questionnaire was distributed and was helpful in gathering information on the war's impact.

"The interesting thing was to make it as local as possible," said Stewart, a Plymouth Township resident.

"It did affect everybody's life in some way or another."

Many items in the exhibit came from those who served in the military. Uniforms, weapons, jeeps and other items tell the story of those who served in the armed forces during the 1940s.

"We've got a number of things on the local heroes." One such hero, Wesley Hoffman, served in the Army Air Corps and died during the war. Others came home to tell their stories.

Cameras and equipment used by combat photographer Art Emanuele are included in the exhibit, along with some of Emanuele's wartime photos. He is now a staff photographer for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

THOSE ON THE home front did their share to contribute to the war effort, and their stories are told in the exhibit as well. Many local people worked at the Willow Run bomber plant and other area defense plants.

Rationing of everything from food to shoes to gasoline was a reality those at home faced. The limit on buying shoes, only two pairs per year per person, was a fact of life for local families during the war.

Some exhibit items reveal the strong anti-Japanese feelings prevalent in the United States at that time. Patriotism is reflected in many of the items.

The exhibit has only been open a short time, but the response has been positive. Classes from local schools have visited to learn about World War II, and Stewart has found many children want to know more about the war's impact.

"They were so interested. I couldn't believe it." Many of the children have grandfathers who served in the military during the war.

Combat photographer Art Emanuele used this equipment.

Stewart showed the students censored mail from World War II. The fear of spies and sabotage was strong at that time, and censorship of mail was generally accepted.

Young adults also benefit from learning more about the war, said Stewart, 35. Many who were born in the 1950s didn't learn much about the war in school or at home when they were growing up.

"I think this generation of children is going to know more about it than we do." Many of those who had lived through the war wanted to put it behind them and didn't talk about their wartime experiences. The 50th anniversary of U.S. entry into the war has renewed interest in that era.

"After 1945, the world really changed a lot."

Returning servicemen had a great impact on the course of history. Women who had worked in defense plants and handled other non-traditional roles also had new ideas and expectations.

"It just wasn't going to be the same anymore," she said.

The Plymouth Historical Museum, operated by the Plymouth Historical Society, is at 155 S. Main in Plymouth. Hours are 1-4 p.m. Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday, 2-5 p.m. Sunday. Admission price is $1.50 for adults, 50 cents for students ages 5-17, free for children under 5. Family rate is $4. For more information, call 455-8940.

Wartime music served as a morale booster

By Julie Brown
staff writer

The World War II years were grim ones in many ways, but the era's music helped to cheer people up and boost morale.

"Music carried people through the war, of course," said Dr. Weldon Petz, who toured with bands during the 1940s and 1950s.

The tradition of music helping people cope with war's harsh realities goes back through the Civil War and earlier, Petz said during a recent lecture at the Plymouth Historical Museum. Melodies to sing and dance to cheered many up during difficult times.

The era leading up to and including World War II produced a number of musical notables, such as Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey, Kay Kyser, Harry James, Glenn Miller, Sammy Kaye and others. Petz, a retired educator who lives in West Bloomfield, fondly remembers the music of those days.

"All of these bands had to start some way." The Big Band sound had roots that went back many years, he said.

FOLK SINGERS of the early 1900s were the predecessors of the Big Band musicians. Later on in the 1920s, jug bands began to make recordings. Those bands included musicians who played such instruments as the kazoo, washboard and mandolin.

Bands in the South, in such cities as New Orleans, played dirges for funerals. Coming back after a funeral, those musicians would play more cheerful music, which came to be known as tailgate-style trombone playing.

Most of the early Dixieland musicians couldn't read music, but nevertheless were quite influential, Petz said during his Sunday, Dec. 8, lecture. Many of the Southern musicians traveled north on riverboats, including a number who settled in Chicago. Some went to New York and played at such places as the Cotton Club in Harlem.

"Not all the musicians went to New York," Petz said. Some came to Detroit, and played for enthusiastic crowds at such ballrooms as the Graystone.

White musicians began to pick up the style of the black performers. The jazz of the 1930s began to take on a swing sound.

The Dorsey brothers, who came from Pennsylvania, contributed much to the music of those days, said Petz, who played for Jimmy Dorsey.

"The two brothers certainly added a great deal to all of our lives." Petz, who plays the trombone, still considers Tommy Dorsey his idol.

DURING HIS lecture, Petz played a number of original recordings, such as Glenn Miller's "In the Mood" and Artie Shaw's "Begin the Beguine." He discussed the technological advances which meant that music could be recorded for future generations to enjoy.

"We're very, very fortunate to have lived when we have lived." Earlier generations didn't have the benefit of such recordings, but the inventions of Thomas A. Edison and others made it possible to preserve such music for all time.

The growth of radio certainly helped to make the Big Band sound popular. Young people in the 1940s listened to their radios, helping to make such musicians as Benny Goodman household names.

Petz's knowledge of music doesn't just come from books, but also from his own experiences. He grew up in Detroit, graduating from Mackenzie High School in 1940.

"We who were in high school had to have our band." He and some other students formed a band and played popular music of that era at school dances and other functions.

Petz played his own early recording of the song "Marie" during his lecture, noting that it wasn't nearly as polished as those of more well-known and experienced musicians.

PETZ EARNED a bachelor's degree in education from Wayne State University, along with a master's degree in musicology and an education specialist degree in school administration from Wayne State. He earned a doctorate in history from Lincoln Memorial University in Tennessee, and is well-known for the lectures he gives on Abraham Lincoln and other subjects.

He worked as a professional musician, doing radio, theater and recording work throughout the country. He returned to Detroit in the late 1940s and began to teach instrumental music in public schools.

His background includes having contributed to the music for an Abbott and Costello film. During the war, he and other musicians toured the United States, playing at many military bases.

"Usually, we'd play in hangars and so on," said Petz, who showed slides of the musicians performing for service personnel.

When he returned to Detroit, Petz formed the Tommy Weldon Band. Band members traveled to play at college proms and J-hops until the group broke up in 1952.

The Big Band era was coming to a close by that point, he said, although much of the music remains popular to this day. He remembered that it wasn't all work for the traveling musicians.

"We always played baseball games together as bands." He has a photo of Harry James playing baseball.

Petz was a teacher and school administrator for some 40 years, in Detroit and later in the Farmington Public Schools. He dedicated his remarks at the Plymouth Historical Museum to the 50-piece U.S.S. Arizona band.

Those military musicians had taken second place in a Dec. 6, 1941, "Battle of the Bands" competition. They were allowed to sleep in the next morning, the day of the surprise Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor in Hawaii.

"Not one person of that band survived," Petz said.

Sharing season's sounds

... something singers savor

By Julie Brown
staff writer

LIKE MOST people, musicians at Our Lady of Good Counsel Catholic Church are busy this time of year. Even so, they enjoy getting together to perform songs of the season.

"Oh, they put this right in the front of their schedules," said Michele Johns, director of music at the Plymouth parish. "They're proud of the work they do and they want it to sound good."

This is the sixth year musicians from the church have presented a "Festival of Lessons and Carols" during the Christmas season. The Thursday, Dec. 12, concert began with a candlelight procession.

"This is our thank you to the community," Johns said. The annual concert also builds the parish's spirit and strengthens the abilities of the musicians.

SUCH FAMILIAR carols as "It Came Upon a Midnight Clear," "Hark the Herald Angels Sing" and "Angels We Have Heard on High" were featured. Many concert-goers joined in, singing those songs with the choirs.

This year's concert featured nearly 200 musicians, the largest number ever to participate. A new group, a choir of boys and men from the church, sang "The Little Drummer Boy."

weddings and engagements

Mathews-Scollon

Stacey Lee Scollon of Laingsburg, Mich., and Alan Ronald Mathews of Plymouth were married June 1 at St. Paul's Catholic Church in Owosso, Mich. The Rev. Robert Kolenski of St. Paul's Church performed the ceremony, and was assisted by the Rev. Philip Rodgers Magee of the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth.

Parents of the couple are Bernard and Isabel Scollon of Laingsburg and Dwight and Carole Mathews of Plymouth.

The bride is a graduate of Michigan Technological University, where she earned a bachelor of science degree in environmental engineering. She is employed with Eder Associates Consulting Engineers in Ann Arbor.

Her husband is a graduate of Michigan Technological University, where he earned a bachelor of science degree in geological engineering. He is a graduate of Texas A & M University, where he earned a master of science degree in petroleum engineering, and is employed with Marathon Oil Co. in Mosherville, Mich.

Sister of the bride Cynthia Williams was the matron of honor. Bridesmaids were sister of the bride Erin Scollon, sister of the bridegroom Lynne Mathews and Gabrielle Huffman.

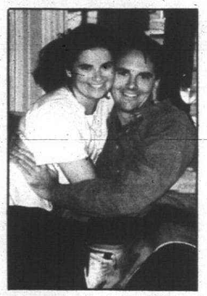
Brother of the bridegroom Eric Mathews was the best man. The groomsmen were brother of the bride Edward Scollon, John Galka and Patrick Hinks. Dustin Scott was the ring bearer.

For her wedding, the bride wore a full-length white satin gown with long sleeves and a long train. The gown was decorated with lace and pearls. She carried a bouquet of roses.

A reception was held at Moore's Family Circle Hall in Owosso.

Following a wedding trip to Calgary and Banff in Alberta, Canada, the newlyweds are making their home in Manchester, Mich.

Downey-Hocking



William and Jean Downey of Winnetka, Ill., announce the engagement of their daughter, Jeanie Downey of San Francisco, Calif., to Jeffrey C. Hocking of San Francisco. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Flo Hocking of Canton.

The bride-elect is a cum laude graduate of Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Texas. She is employed as manager of Hobbitt Travel.

Her fiance is a graduate of Michigan State University, where he earned a bachelor's degree and a master's degree in labor/industrial relations. He is employed as a human resources specialist with DHL Airways.

A mid-July 1992 wedding is planned in Lake Tahoe, Nev.

Seery-Ryan

Mr. and Mrs. Francis X. Seery of Canton announce the engagement of their daughter, Ellen Frances, to Patrick Michael Ryan of Kensington, Md., son of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Ryan of Kensington.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Plymouth Salem High School and of St. Joseph's University in Philadelphia, Pa. She is in her final year as a student at the George Washington University Law School.

Her fiance is a graduate of Gonzaga College High School in Washington, D.C., and of St. Joseph's University in Philadelphia. He is employed as a programmer-analyst with HUGHES-STX at the Goddard Space Center in Maryland.

Dobler-Messana

Rocco and Nina Messana of Canton announce the engagement of their son, Michael Richard Messana, to Kristin Marie Dobler of Midland, daughter of Gordon and Janis Dobler of Portage.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Portage Central High School and of Michigan State University, where she earned a bachelor of science degree in mechanical engineering. She is employed as a project engineer with Dow Chemical Co. in Midland.

Her fiance is a graduate of Plymouth Salem High School and of Michigan State University, where he earned a bachelor of science degree in mechanical engineering. He is a graduate of Georgia Tech University, where he earned a master of science degree in mechanical engineering and had received an academic scholarship. He is seeking a position in the research engineering field.

A mid-September 1992 wedding is planned in Kalamazoo.

Jarvis-Doyle

Jayne Ann Doyle of Englewood, Colo., and Robert Charles Jarvis of Englewood were married Oct. 5 in Golden, Colo. The Rev. Bonnie Benda performed the ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Timothy Doyle of Plymouth, Laura Lawrence of Canton, and Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Jarvis of Brighton.

The bride is a graduate of Plymouth Canton High School and of the University of Michigan, where she earned a bachelor of science degree in physical therapy. She is employed as a physical therapist with Spalding Rehabilitation Hospital in Denver, Colo.

Her husband is a graduate of Plymouth Salem High School and of the University of Michigan, where he earned a bachelor of general studies degree. He is employed as an editor with Hart Publications in Denver.

Dana Harter was the maid of honor. Susan Jarvis was the bridesmaid and Phyllis Quinn the honor attendant.

Scott Hovarter was the best man. Eric Heidt was the groomsman and Jack Quinn the honor attendant.

For her wedding, the bride wore a gown of white lace over taffeta with seed pearls and sequins. The tea-length gown had a chapel train. She carried a bouquet of sonia and white roses with stephanotis, irises and lilies of the valley.

A reception was held at The Crystal Rose in Golden, Colo.

Murphy-Gehret

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Murphy of Canton announce the engagement of their daughter, Katherine Susann, to Steven James Gehret of Elizabeth City, N.C., son of Mr. and Mrs. James Gehret of Montoursville, Pa.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Plymouth Canton High School and attended Schoolcraft College. She is employed with GMAC in Southfield.

Her fiance is a graduate of Montoursville Area High School and attended Pennsylvania State University. He is serving with the U.S. Coast Guard and is stationed at Elizabeth City, N.C., as a C130 Loadmaster and Aviation Electrician.

An early August 1992 wedding is planned at St. Theodore's Catholic Church in Westland.

ple of months. The concert featured performances by a number of bell choirs, the guitar group and the adult parish choir. The Singsations children's choir performed, as did other ensembles, vocal soloists and instrumentalists.

Music was interwoven with lessons during the evening concert. Parish staffers and members representing different church groups and the OLGC School read a series of lessons.

Johns, who's in her seventh year as director of music at the church, has found the annual concert helps to enrich enjoyment of the season for musicians and listeners. Many church members of all ages look forward to the concert, as do others from the community who attend.

"It's the vehicle to transmit the spirit. It adds another whole dimension," said Johns, who earned a doctorate in music from the University of Michigan and serves on the U-M music faculty, where she teaches organ and church music.

PARISH CHOIR members will have another opportunity to demonstrate their talents next summer. About 50 musicians from Our Lady of Good Counsel will travel to central Europe in June 1992 for a 10-day concert tour.

"Everything we're singing over there, we're singing at our church services during the year," Johns said. Choir members will perform in major cultural centers in Germany, Austria and France.

They've been invited to sing during Sunday High Mass at both the Salzburg Cathedral and the Strasbourg Cathedral. The musicians will present some other concerts that will be a little lighter. They'll sing in French, German, Latin and English during the European tour.

Johns is impressed with the commitment level and enthusiasm of all the musicians at Our Lady of Good Counsel. Concerts such as the "Festival of Lessons and Carols" depend on the contributions of many volunteers who give of their time and talents.

Auditions for choir spots aren't held at the church, and all who are interested are encouraged to participate. "If you want to be in the choir, you can be in the choir," Johns said.

Award applications available

Applications for the Invitational Scholarship Awards dinner sponsored by the Woman's Club of Plymouth are available at the counseling offices of local high schools. Application forms are also available at the Observer Newspapers office, 744 Wing in Plymouth, during weekday business hours.

The annual event honors outstanding high school seniors from the Plymouth-Canton community. This year's program will be Thursday, April 9, at The Plymouth Manor.

Completed applications must be received by Feb. 15 and may be mailed to the Woman's Club of Plymouth, P.O. Box 670, Plymouth, Mich. 48170. The program is for graduating seniors who live in the Plymouth-Canton community or whose parents own a business in the community.

Students must be planning to attend a college or university in the fall and must have a minimum 3.35 grade point average. Service to school, community and place of worship are also considered. Financial need is not a requirement.

For information, call K.C. Mueller, 455-0075 or 453-0012.

Cultural differences depicted in creches

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

When they started, they had 40 pieces. Four years later, the number has swelled to 350.

Gail Duhl of Livonia and her nephew, Devin Isler of Southfield, study one of the nativity scenes at the exhibit.

Some are made of pottery, some of paper. Some are large, ornately detailed figurines. Others are thumbnail-sized, small enough to hide under a ceramic pyramid or bird. Even Charlie Brown, Snoopy and the rest of the Peanuts gang turn up in one manger setting.

All share in depicting the birth of Jesus Christ.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Livonia hosted an exhibit Dec. 12-14 of nativity scenes from around the world. An estimated 500 people visited the display, which is in its fourth year.

"It's sort of contagious," said Kathy Facione of Livonia, a creche collector who co-chaired the event with fellow parishioner Leslie Snow. "It's fun to see how other cultures view the birth of Christ. We all have in our mind what the nativity looks like. You're always out on the look for a different view of Christ's birth."

CERTAINLY, EACH creche is distinct. Materials used, craftsmanship and perception of God can easily reveal its origin.

For instance, nativity exhibits from Peru tend to feature hats. Ones from Scandinavian countries such as Denmark and Finland — known for their furniture craftsmanship — are immaculately carved from wood.

Closer to home, creches from the Southwest part of the United States feature Native Americans presenting pottery and corn, instead of gold, as gifts.

One nativity scene from Hawaii is constructed from koa wood, island nuts and coconut fiber.

Some art works of Christ's birth are not easily explained. One from Peru made of colored burlap depicts animals such as a bull and a llama in the manger. But one could only offer a vague interpretation of why a vulture is in the scene.

Several visitors take some time to admire one of the creches. The group includes (from left) Kerry Redigan of Redford, Alice Berry, Michelle Berry and Melissa Berry, all of Livonia.

Collectors search year-round for creches. Many can be found in gift shops, some at craft boutiques. Facione is an avid creche collector, amassing more than 100 so far.

"Before I started doing this, Christmas was more Santa Claus, presents and parties," Facione said. "When I started collecting, it put the focus back into Christmas. Our family focuses on the birth of Christ at Christmas."

The exhibit at the Livonia-based Mormon ward continues to grow. Next year, organizers anticipate attendance to jump to 1,000.

Similar displays of creches take place annually at Mormon churches in Ann Arbor and in Bloomfield Hills. The one in Bloomfield Hills will take place at The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, 425 Woodward, Bloomfield Hills, 6-10 p.m. Thursday, Dec. 19, 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Friday, Dec. 20, and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 21.

"The reason why we do this is that we want to share the creches that we love," Facione said. "We have this exhibit so that people know Mormons believe in Christ. This is our Christmas gift to our community."

Emily and Margaret Graves of Plymouth like what they see at the exhibit.

Hostages deserve praise for words of forgiveness

Rev. Robert Schaden

Even released hostages can be a disappointment. At least Terry Anderson was disappointing to some who voiced their concern on radio talk shows and in other newspaper columns. Mr. Anderson's fault in the minds of some was that he did not come out of the darkness of captivity with a quest for vengeance dripping from his lips. Rather, his words were of forgiveness.

This is not a popular concept in a world of getting even. It can be talked about from pulpits as long as it is not concretely applied to anything that matters, but where the tire hits the road the notion of forgiveness should be left out of the vocabulary. This is for wimps and those who do not understand that getting even is what life is all about.

On the one hand, we often find it difficult to forgive those who have wronged us. On the other hand, we cannot easily accept forgiveness, because that requires an admission that we did something wrong.

A POLITICAL brand of morality emphatically made this point around the recent commemoration of the bombing of Pearl Harbor. More than once in the course of those remembrances I heard the words "We will never forgive!"

As for the carnage on the other end of that bloody time in the 1940s — Nagasaki and Hiroshima — some of our leaders suggested that we never need apologize.

One young college student remarked to me in the wake of the Dec. 7 speeches "How can anyone expect my generation to deal with Saddam Hussein when your generation has not yet learned to come to grips with Hirohito?"

Medical people tell us that holding on to bitterness does more damage to the health of the bitter one than to the one toward whom it is directed. Any of us who have felt bitterness know the truth of this finding if we simply listen to our own bodies when bitterness is almost literally flowing through our veins.

Certainly there is a place for anger in life, but there is also a time for dealing with the anger, letting go and moving on. Burying it alive is not healthy from a physical, emotional or even spiritual standpoint. However, dragging the corpse along the road of life has no redeeming value for anyone.

It has been said that we are in need of heroes, and indeed we are. Perhaps we would do well to turn to the likes of Terry Anderson. (Joseph Cicippio said much the same thing.)

I DO NOT refer to the fact that they were abducted. They did not choose that dreadful fate. Nor did they choose the imprisonment or the torture. Over all of this they had little or no say.

Their heroics are to be found in their response to an experience that is beyond the imagination of most of us. When asked by an incredulous newsperson how he could forgive having had six and a half years of life taken, totally wasted, Mr. Anderson responded by insisting that they had not been wasted. On the contrary, he said that he had learned a great deal in those years.

Of course, he would rather have learned his lessons in another way. But again, the way was not his choice. His response was his choice.

Perhaps the need to have these hostages feel bitter and scream and shout is in part a need to justify our own petty grudges for experiences that do not even deserve to be mentioned in the same category as what these gentlemen went through.

Hopefully, there are ways other than being taken hostage to learn the kind of lessons that came to Terry Anderson in such a brutal way.

The Rev. Robert Schaden is with the Newman House campus ministries at Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

Vulnerable.

What could be more vulnerable than a baby? But that's how God came. He did not arrive on Earth in "unbreakable packaging." He came like us, fragile, exposed — vulnerable. You can believe Him when He says, "I understand...I care."
If the joyfulness of this season stands out in sharp contrast to the uncertainties of your life, there are answers in the wonderful story of the One whose coming the whole world celebrates at this time of year.
Because He cares, we care. Join us, and we'll celebrate His birth together.

Help us make steps in the fight against SIDS

If you knew a healthy, happy baby had died suddenly without reason, you'd want to help. There are over 7,000 babies who die from a cruel, mysterious killer. It's called SIDS: Sudden Infant Death Syndrome.
Perhaps you've heard SIDS referred to as "Crib Death." But maybe you didn't hear that SIDS is the number one cause of death in infants from one week to one year.
babies of all races and religions. And it's not hereditary.
Donations of your time and dollars will make a difference. And we can make bigger steps to fighting SIDS.

The snow may be flying in Michigan but organizers are in the thick of plans for the 1992 Ann Arbor Street Art Fair July 22-25.

The 33rd annual fair will open at 9 a.m. Wednesday, July 22 and close at 5 p.m. Saturday, July 25.

Artist applications will go in the mail as most people are posting their holiday greeting cards.

Artists interested in applying for the fair should request an application by writing to the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair at P.O. Box 1352, Ann Arbor 48106. Call 994-5260.

Artist applications for the fair must be postmarked by Feb. 15.

The Ann Arbor Street Art Fair is the original juried fair of three concurrent art fairs all happening in downtown Ann Arbor July 22-25. Nearly 1,000 visual artists from 35 states present their work.

The fairs feature artist demonstrations, musical performances, wandering street musicians, children's art activity areas — even free long-distance phone calls!

Portraits (of people and animals,) landscapes (from Livonia's Greenmead to Charlevoix's sunsets) and still lifes (including worn boots, cat's eyes, lit candles and crystal).

Those themes are part of Livonia artist Barb Demgen's exhibition at Atrium Gallery, 113 N. Center, in downtown Northville, through Jan. 18. Her oils, watercolors and acrylics range in price from $75 to $500.

A reception with the artist will be held 1-4 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 5.

Variety is the spice of Demgen's creative life. "I prefer change for my sanity," says the Livonia Churchill High School visual arts instructor.

Demgen's show at Atrium Gallery opened Sunday.

Although a blanket of snow hides the beauty of last summer's garden, a barrage of gardening catalogs will make their way to Michigan mailboxes over the next month.

Westland artist Saundra Weed, who teaches drawing and painting four nights a week at Schoolcraft College in Livonia, has sensible advice for planning the planting of your garden this spring:

"I was having trouble coordinating the flowers and plants in my garden when one day my daughter said to me, 'Mom, don't think of it as a gardener, think of it as a painter.' "

Since heeding that advice, Weed's garden has become an interconnected series of landscapes on soil, similar to her landscapes on canvas.

"My yard is planted the way I paint a painting," she said. "Each little section of my yard is a painting."

Teacher finds joy in students, art

By Mary Klemic
staff writer

For some of her art, Sister Mary Ignatius Denay has fashioned hundreds of pieces of glass into a mosaic — a one-of-a-kind, joyous work that celebrates its theme in shining bursts of color. Such work graces churches in Livonia and Westland.

For her masterpieces, her students at Mercy High School and Mercy Center in Farmington Hills, Denay has fashioned each into a one-of-a-kind, glowing individual who celebrates his or her talent in a special way.

"Teaching to me is one of the greatest professions," Denay said. "You're molding children. They're clay in your hands and you can do such wonderful things for them and I've seen so many change right before my eyes.

"As you work with them you watch how they grow . . . and you know you're making a difference in their lives."

DENAY HAS combined love of teaching and love of art to inspire many students at Mercy, where she taught in the art department for 30 years, 1949-79.

She was honored at a tribute dinner Dec. 8 at the high school. "My life has been full of such joyful experiences," Denay said.

At 84, Denay's smile is warm and her handshake is firm. Her conversation is seasoned with "dear" and "honey," and she takes a visitor's arm in a friendly manner as they walk at Mercy Center.

She has a smile and greetings for everyone they pass — a student, a guest there for a seminar. A postal carrier who just got off work stops by to say hello.

During the walk, Denay points out different works that are arranged on the walls. The paintings, in a variety of media, were donated by her students. She tells who the young artist was and what that person is doing now.

MANY OF Denay's art students went on to careers in or related to the field — becoming teachers, artists, engineers, architects. One student who won a scholarship to the Parsons School of Design in New York now works at Merrill-Lynch on Wall Street.

In 1978, Denay was honored by Scholastic Magazines Inc. of New York for being the only teacher in the United States whose students had won Blue Ribbon and Hallmark awards for 35 consecutive years. She was given the Farmington Hills Artist of the Year award that same year.

What were Denay's standards? "Excel-

WHEN HAROLD Hoyt retired from his job as battalion chief for the Livonia Fire Department in 1984 after 31 years of service, he probably had no idea that nearly eight years later, he would still be busier than ever.

Together with his wife Betty, Harold has parlayed his interest in antiques and his woodworking skills into a popular line of country crafts and antique reproductions. Instead of taking time to relax following Harold's retirement, the Hoyts' lives seemed to get even busier.

"We sometimes work all day," said Betty, who paints and stencils

Panel revived to lift Canton's appreciation of the arts

Bob Sklar

YOU GOTTA have art.

So Canton Community Foundation is committed to resurrecting its arts council, formed three years ago to boost awareness of and support for the arts.

"We're looking for citizens with creative ideas," says Bill Joiner, CCF's upbeat executive director.

Arts council terms expired in June. Joiner welcomes nominations to fill seven open two-year terms. Non-residents also may apply.

The nonprofit foundation is independent of township government. Its mission: to pool community resources, culturally and financially.

CCF raises money year-round for the arts, student scholarships, local organizations, outreach and human service. Corporate, retail and individual contributions make up its $90,000 budget.

This year, CCF has ticketed $10,000 for the arts. "We're determining now how to allocate the money," Joiner said.

NOTHING'S CAST in stone, but Joiner says, "Arts-wise, we're moving closer to funding, for example, a local theater group that might want to do scenes from the 'Wizard of Oz' in the schools, artists who might want to do a photo collection of Canton seasons or artists who might want to do portraits of each township supervisor."

CCF is best known within the arts world for commissioning nationally renowned Canton sculptor Joe DeLauro to create "The Storyteller." The 26-inch-high sculpture is dedicated to the spirit and vision of the American Indian.

Before it's moved to a permanent home in the Canton Public Library next February, "The Storyteller" is touring Plymouth-Canton elementary schools with DeLauro in tow when invited by teachers.

"The Storyteller' will sit in the library's quiet reading lounge by the fireplace, an area that sports a Southwest feel.

After its unveiling this fall, library director Jean Tabor told me, "The sculpture is significant in that storytelling is what we're about here. It should be a real inspiration for adults and children alike."

"The Storyteller" will complement the library's growing collection of books on Native Americans.

WITHIN THE last year, the arts council also sent 300 elementary students to a University of Michigan touring opera production, hosted a 50-piece art show for 30 artists at township hall, sponsored a play-a-thon so two Canton piano teachers could showcase their students' skills and helped Canton songwriter Larry Kneeshaw promote his tribute to Desert Storm, "Desert Strength."

Beyond that, it donated $600 to the Plymouth Community Arts Council for a series of color postcards of Canton scenes by Canton photographer Sondra Farmer. The cards, which cost 10 cents each, typically are used to promote activities in Canton.

"We haven't done nearly enough," Joiner said. "There's a lot more to do. We're merely trying to scratch some ground here."

Scratch they have — make no mistake about that.

"We want to make big strides into arts support," Joiner said.

"Maybe we'll have a competition for a poet laureate or a philosopher in residence. Or maybe we'll help showcase the work of local artists through $1,000 or $2,000 grants.

"We want to encourage everybody."

The arts council and its efforts to widen awareness of the creative arts is vital to Canton's development as a culturally rich community. Take it from DeLauro, one of the township's most endearing artists:

"Artists must have some place in the community to express their ideas and ideals. The expression of ideas and images is important to a community. Dance, music, poetry, writing, sculpture, architecture, painting, even city planning — all these things are part of a community. Without them, I don't know what you'd have."

Joiner understands that everyday involvement with artists is key to stimulating community creativity and interest in the arts.

As he put it, "Cultural influences that come to bear on our community come not only from young people being aware of the arts but also from adults applying the arts in everyday life.

"We can't do anything to define quality of life until we accept cultural influences borne upon us by the art world. Art touches us every single day. We must not only accept that influence but, by necessity, encourage it."

Sister Mary Ignatius Denay stands near one of her glorious glass mosaics that now decorate the Mercy Center in Farmington Hills.

JIM JAGDFELD/staff photographer

This glass mosaic at St. Aidan's Catholic Church in Livonia is the work of Sister Mary Ignatius Denay.

lence, dear, nothing less," she replied.

"Creative excellence. We always stressed creativity, bringing out their own talent and their own gifts."

DENAY'S OWN artwork can be found around the country. In this area, she has made art for many churches and public places, including AAA headquarters in Dearborn (she made the large logo), St. Raymond's Church in Westland, St. Coleman's Church in Farmington, St. Aidan's Church in Livonia and St. Clare's Church in Farmington Hills.

Also in Michigan, her artwork is in Battle Creek, St. Mary's Hospital in Grand Rapids, Mount Clemens and Muskegon.

She has made a series of mosaics based on the eight beatitudes. Her works can be found throughout the Mercy Center, including a mosaic featuring a sculptured head of Christ.

NOT ALL of Denay's work has a religious theme. One mosaic shows a downtown scene in red, black, gray and white of downtown; another, a city reflected in a river. She has featured trees and sailboats.

She made one mosaic on the top of an old table. (The student who brought in the table top had told her father, "You don't throw anything out, you bring it to Sister Ignatius.")

Denay uses Venetian glass in her mosaics, gluing the pieces on wood instead of using the traditional method of embedding them in wet plaster. No grout is visible.

Denay also does sculpture, painting and calligraphy — every kind of art, she said. Her favorite is probably calligraphy.

"You feel you can spread good (with it). My whole thought in life is to make the world a better place because I came into it. God gives each of us a job to do."

DENAY HAS been a Sister of Mercy for 69 years, which she calls the greatest joy of her life. A native of the Bay City, Mich., area, she grew up on a farm. She was the fifth in a family of seven children. One brother became a priest, one sister a nun.

"The only thing I ever wanted for Christmas was a box of paints. I always was drawing."

Denay studied at the Art Institute of Chicago, Michigan State University and the University of Notre Dame. Under the Foreign Study League for High School Students, she took students to museums in Rome, Florence, Paris, Geneva, London and Madrid in 1968 and 1970.

Denay taught Mercy-sponsored elementary school students for the first 18 years of her teaching career. She came to Mercy High School in 1949, four years after it opened in Detroit, and expanded the school's art program.

"We offer everything. We have a wonderful art department now.

"The whole situation is so lovely. They teach under such happy circumstances. The students who come there really want to learn."

Denay made greeting cards from 1960 to 1970. At Mercy Center, she taught day and evening art classes to adults. Now she works at mosaics.

DENAY'S CLASSES were lively. A dead sunflower she passed around inspired glorious flowers in her students' drawings. Another time she had the students draw a plant from the viewpoint of looking straight down at it.

"We had such fun."

Denay encouraged her students to discover their own talents.

"God gives gifts to everybody," she would tell them. "When he made you, he put in something of Mom and something of Dad and something of himself. There will never be a repeated person.

"We have to look for whatever God gave us. Sometimes we find we like doing one thing better than another."

Today, her former students still keep in touch with Denay. Framed photos of their weddings, spouses and children are arranged in the art room Denay calls her home.

"It's just a joy to hear from them. It makes you feel that everything you did was just worthwhile."

Couple teams up to fashion country crafts

the finished pieces. "Harold's out in his workshop from morning until supper. Sometimes he's back out there until 11 o'clock at night."

Harold and Betty, who have lived in Livonia since 1933, first took up crafting in the early 1980s when Harold began creating his own stained glass.

Yet it was while displaying Harold's glass work at local craft shows that the Hoyts were inspired to develop their skills in a different area.

"THERE WASN'T a lot of woodworking at the craft shows when we first got involved," Harold said. "Country-syle decorations were just getting popular — and we liked that — so I started doing woodworking instead of stained glass."

"The first (wood) things we took to the shows were doorstops in the shape of cats and chickens," Betty said.

"In the beginning, our stuff was a little crude," Harold said. "But it sold."

Today, more than 10 years later, not only has the quality of the Hoyts' crafts improved, their product selection has mushroomed.

Items currently available include birdhouses, building blocks, wooden animals and figures, Christmas ornaments, small chairs for dolls, clocks, lids for pots and all kinds of furniture.

Almost all of their pieces of furniture are antique reproductions such as pie safes, coffee bins, bucket benches, spice racks, spool cabinets and chimney cupboards.

"Today, we probably make somewhere between 250 and 300 different items," Harold said.

WHEN THEY first began crafting in earnest, the Hoyts would participate in several craft shows a year. As their work became better known, they have since reduced their commitment to only two shows a year: the Americana Craft Show at Greenmead in Livonia and the Farmington/Farmington Founders Festival.

A basket of wooden candy canes — just one of the Hoyts' fanciful creations.

"Most of our stuff is now going to the Country Cupboard in Livonia," Harold said.

"We've been friends with Harold and Betty for a long time," said Sharon Eccles, who opened the Country Cupboard along with Susan Delfgauw in 1981.

"We first met them about 12 years ago at a craft show. When we opened the store, we started having them make things for us — things that we couldn't get through big companies. They are the only supplier that we buy from locally."

With prices ranging from under $5 for Christmas ornaments to over $200 for a piece of furniture, the Hoyts have worked hard to appeal to a variety of people, all the while continuing to make every item by hand themselves.

"They are very talented people," Delfgauw said. "And they are always willing to try something new."

"ONE OF the more popular items that we sell is their coffee bin," Eccles said. "It's stenciled and the customers can have it in any color they want or they can have it stained. A lot of companies will not do that. That's what we like about doing business with Harold and Betty."

Around four years ago, the Hoyts also began supplying unfinished wood to Which-Craft, an arts & crafts store in Livonia that offers classes for aspiring crafters.

"They do woodworking for us that our students then paint and finish," said owner Dorothy Johnson. "Harold's my only custom wood supplier."

In addition to painting Harold's woodworking, Betty does tole painting and stenciling on pottery. Yet despite the variety of items they offer, the Hoyts' antique reproductions are probably their biggest source of pride.

"If you want antiques, you go to an antique store," Betty said. "If you want antique reproductions, you come to us."

Country Cupboard is at 15970 Middlebelt in Livonia. Call 425-1990.

Promotion brings authors together at bookstore

Victoria Diaz

Thriller novelist S.K. Wolf was there. Also mystery writer William X. Kienzle. And crime writer Rob Kantner. And romance novelists Linda Bartell, Allison Knight (Martha Krieger), Ruth Ryan Langan, Elizabeth Turner (Gail Oust), Jill Gregory (Jan Greenberg) and Shelly Thacker.

Fantasy fiction writer Julie Dean Smith was in attendance, too, along with general fiction writers Julia Grice and Lucy Taylor.

No, it wasn't a Detroit-area writers convention. It was an informal book-signing and get-together, complete with Christmas cake and cookies, between readers and some of their favorite authors, held recently at the Livonia and Southfield branches of Books Connection.

It was the second such event at the small bookstores in about three years.

The first, according to Books Connection owner Pat Franks featured appearances by a handful of romance writers. But this time around, Franks opted to bring in other fiction writers and, in the process, appeal to an even wider range of readers.

Obviously, the event was appealing. Business appeared to be bustling as holiday shoppers rubbed elbows with area writers.

A SAMPLING of the goings-on:

Shelly Thacker, herself a longtime customer at Books Connection, was enjoying her turnaround role as book-signing novelist. Her debut novel, "Falcon on the Wind," came out in January.

"I know this sounds cliched," she said. "But it really is a treat to meet readers and to hear what they have to say. As a writer, you spend so much time alone, and it takes so long to get feedback. It's simply great to have a chance to interact directly."

S.K. Wolf, thrilled to learn the store's entire supply of her thriller, "MacKinnon's Machine," had been sold out before noon, was also excited that "Machine" has been recently bought by Recorded Books for recording in its entirety. Should be out "probably next fall," she said.

Ruth Ryan Langan ("Highland Heart") shared the good news that the movie script she co-wrote with Marianne Willman and Jan Greenberg looks like it's headed for production soon. Producer Nancy Kelly is now scouting locations in Russia, said Langan, (who, dressed in black velvet and shiny sequins, added a touch of glitter to the bookstore occasion). The three Detroit-area writers have contracted to write two other film scripts.

ROB KANTNER ("The Thousand Yard Stare") brought along his wife and kids to join in the fun and said he'd recently signed on with the same agent who represents best-selling crime writer Sue Grafton.

Franks joked during the afternoon about her motives for gathering so many writers together at her stores. "I enjoy meeting writers myself," she confessed. "I find them absolutely fascinating."

The idea for the literary extravaganza began to take shape in October, she said, when she and her husband, Cass (in charge of publicity at the stores), attended the Great Lakes Booksellers Association Convention in Lansing and sat in on a session on how to organize in-store book signings and author appearances.

"Later, we met with out employees about the idea. We knew there were a great many area writers. We thought it would be a good way to promote the store during the holidays, when people were out shopping. So we decided — why not do it?"

In addition to door prizes, Frank offered, as part of the event, a 2 percent minimum discount on all new books at the stores.

THE ORIGINAL Books Connection opened in Shelby Township in 1980, as a used bookstore, offering books not for sale, but for rent.

"We started out largely as a romance store," Franks said. "But we soon discovered that a lot of our customers were espionage fans, too, and also were interested in general fiction."

Franks since has taken on a partner at the tiny Shelby Township store and opened the larger stores in Livonia and Southfield. At each of the larger stores, about half the 40,000 titles are new.

"We still rent a few books," she said. "Although it's now a limited program."

Victoria Diaz of Livonia tracks the books industry.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

Analyze refinancing on more than just interest rates

With interest rates at their lowest level in more than a decade, there has been a surge in refinancing.

In reality, refinancing a mortgage is simply taking out a new mortgage. You will encounter many of the same procedures — and the same types of costs — the second time around.

Refinancing can be worthwhile, but it does not make good financial sense for everyone, according to Ellen Lapidus of the Mortgage Bankers Association.

A general rule of thumb is that refinancing becomes worth your while if the current interest rate on your mortgage is at least 2 percentage points higher than the prevailing market rate. This figure is generally accepted as the safe margin when balancing the costs of refinancing a mortgage against the savings.

There are other considerations such as how long you plan to stay in the house. Most industry sources say that it takes at least three years to realize fully the savings from a lower interest rate, given the costs of refinancing.

REFINANCING can be a good idea for homeowners who:

- Want to get out of a high interest rate loan to take advantage of lower rates. This is a good idea only if you intend to stay in the house long enough to make the additional fees worthwhile.
- Have an adjustable rate mortgage (ARM) and want a fixed-rate loan to have the certainty of knowing exactly what the mortgage payment will be for the life of the loan.
- Want to convert to an ARM with a lower interest rate or more protective features (such as a better rate and payment caps) than the ARM you have.
- Want to build up equity more quickly by converting to a loan with a shorter term.
- Want to draw on the equity built up in the house to get cash for a major purchase or for children's education.

If you decide that refinancing is not worth the costs, ask your lender whether you may be able to obtain all or some of the new terms you want by agreeing to a modification of your existing loan instead of a refinancing.

In deciding whether to refinance an ARM you should consider these questions:

- Is the next interest rate adjustment on your existing loan likely to increase your monthly payments substantially? Will the new interest rate be two or three percentage points higher than the prevailing rates being offered for either fixed-rate loans or other ARMs?
- If the current mortgage sets a cap on your monthly payments, are those payments large enough to pay off your loan by the end of the original term? Will refinancing a new ARM or a fixed-rate loan enable you to pay your loan in full by the end of the term?

THE FEES DESCRIBED here are the charges that you most likely will encounter in a refinancing.

- Application fees. This charge imposed by your lender covers the initial costs of processing your loan request and checking your credit report.
- Title search and title insurance. This covers the cost of examining the public record to confirm ownership of the real estate. It also covers the cost of a policy, usually issued by a title insurance company, that insures the policy holder for a specific amount for any loss caused by discrepancies in the title to the property.

Be sure to ask the company carrying the present policy if it can reissue your policy at a re-issue rate. You could save up to 70 percent of what it would cost you for a new policy.

- Loan origination fees and discount points. The origination fee is charged for the lender's work in evaluating and preparing your mortgage loan. Discount points are prepaid finance charges imposed by the lender at closing to increase the lender's yield beyond the stated interest rate on the mortgage note. One point equals 1 percent of the loan amount. For example, one point on a $75,000 loan would be $750. In some cases, the points you pay can be financed by adding them to the loan amount. The total number of points a lender charges will depend on market conditions and the interest rate to be charged.
- Appraisal fee. This fee pays for an appraisal that is a supportable and defensible estimate or opinion of the value of the property.
- Prepayment penalty. A prepayment penalty on your present mortgage could be the greatest deterrent to refinancing. The practice of charging money for an early pay-off of the existing mortgage loan varies by state, type of lender and type of loan. Prepayment penalties are forbidden on various loans including loans from federally chartered credit unions, FHA and VA loans, an some other home-purchase loans. The mortgage documents for your existing loan will state if there is a penalty for prepayment. In some loans, you may be charged interest for the full month in which you prepay your loan.
- Miscellaneous. Depending on the type of loan you have and other factors, another major expense you might face is the fee for a VA loan guarantee, FHA mortgage insurance or private mortgage insurance. There are a few other closing costs in addition to these.

A homeowner should plan on paying an average of 3-6 percent of the outstanding principal in refinancing costs, plus any prepayment penalties and the cost of paying off any second mortgages that may exist.

One way of saving on some of these costs is to check first with the lender who holds your current mortgage. The lender may be willing to waive some of them, especially if the work relating to the mortgage closing is still current. This could include the fees for the title search, surveys and inspections.

If you are planning to refinance, seek out mortgage lenders, real estate agents, attorneys and other advisers to give you information about lending practices, mortgage instruments and your own interests before you commit to any specific loan.

Homeowner dishes up controversy; board unwilling to act

Our association has a deed restriction precluding the installation of satellite dishes. The township ordinance also prohibits them. Recently a homeowner erected a satellite dish that is buried behind some vegetation and refuses to do anything about it. The board of directors of the homeowners association is concerned but is wondering what to do. Your reaction, please.

If you are confident that the township prohibits this activity, I would notify the township, requesting on behalf of the homeowner association that it enforce the ordinance. I would also write a letter to the homeowner in behalf of the board of directors advising the homeowner of the violation and warning the homeowner of the various remedies that the association has should it wish to resort to enforcement procedures.

Hopefully, the township will resolve your problem, but if it does not, you should be prepared to resort to legal redress against the defaulting homeowner.

I read your recent column concerning co-ops in which I understood you to say that co-ops do not have the same responsibilities given to the board of directors as condominium boards. Would the co-op board be obligated to present a yearly budget and to have open board of directors' meetings? What is the difference between their responsibilities?

I believe that you may have misunderstood the response that was provided regarding the difference between co-ops and condos. The column answer differentiated between the concept of owning a co-op as opposed to a condo and the potential problems regarding the financing of co-ops as opposed to condos. But the responsibilities of the directors of co-ops and condos are similar as would be the case with the responsibilities of the directors of any other corporation — that is, to operate in a fiduciary capacity in behalf of its members and to manage and maintain the association in a businesslike and proper fashion in accordance with the enabling documents of the condo or co-op.

More than a name is shared between nearby Cranbrook and Cranbrook Chase, the luxury condominium community being built in a 10-acre wooded enclave setting on Telegraph between Maple and Quarton in Bloomfield Hills.

"The whole concept of Cranbrook was that a group of artists would work together under one roof for the . . . good of all," said interior designer Brian Killian of Birmingham, interior merchandiser for the project.

Cranbrook Chase is the project of Holtzman & Silverman and the Fisher Group real estate investment firm.

"It was designed (so it would look as though) it could be built in the '30s or the '90s," said Gilbert "Buzz" Silverman, co-chairman of Holtzman & Silverman Co. of Farmington Hills.

INDEED, Cranbrook Chase's modern interior furnishings and the timeless, classic feeling of its exterior merge comfortably.

And this team effort has scored big, resulting in an award for best interior merchandising.

The National Association of Home Builders recently named Cranbrook Chase a winner of the organization's national MIRM Award, the building industry's "Oscar."

Wherever possible throughout the interior, Killian used original paintings, pottery and sculpture from the Center for Creative Studies. CCS graduate Bruce Campbell of Clawson created all the custom cabinetry.

The 42 residences are in two styles — ranch and two-story and range in size from 2,000 to 3,000 square feet. Prices start at $279,990.

ELIEL SAARINEN'S famed architecture at Cranbrook inspired the Cranbrook Chase conceptual design by the Dallas firm of Riseman Associates Architects Inc. It was the winning firm among five that competed for the project. Project architect was Coponen Architects of Northville.

Copper eaves troughs and lanterns, and a hand-split, cedar roof add nostalgic touches to the outside of the residences, which are brick with limestone accents.

Killian wanted something new, to have overall appeal to as many residents as possible.

THE RANCH style unit is a smooth blend of the classic and the contemporary. The living room features natural colors and textures of off-white, beige and a subtle green that matches the limestone.

"It's fun to come up with some new colors," Killian said. "The green is a kind of new sherbet, chartreuse kind of color."

The contemporary feeling is carried through with recessed lighting, and glass-topped tables and mirrors. In the living room, a mirror extends on either side of the fireplace, and behind it as far up as the tall windows in the room. In the dining room, a large mirror is angled from the wall behind the buffet.

This buffet also hangs from the Victorian Rose tops in Homearama voting

Victorian Rose, a ranch-style home built by D&J Property Development of Canton, barely edged the Baybrooke model, a stone and brick colonial constructed by Pulte Homes of Michigan, Royal Oak, as the Peoples Choice Award winner at Homearama.

Only nine votes among several hundred cast separated the two models in the informal popularity poll. Visitors who attended the showcase of idea homes in Novi voted during the opening weekend.

Homearama continues through Sunday. Some builders and designers will sell furniture and decorative objects from their models on that date. Buyers are asked to check on availablity with representatives in specific models.

Highlights of the Victorian Rose include an octagonal-shaped parlor with an inlaid rose design in an oak floor; a skylight over the work island and cherrywood custom cupboards in the kitchen; and a Victorian-style claw foot tub, pull chain toilet and pedestal sink in the main bath.

Visitors who liked the Victorian Rose mentioned its homeyness, woodwork and kitchen, reported the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan, the show sponsor.

THE HOUSE of nearly 2,000 square feet with extras like brass fixtures and the cherrywood cabinets and including lot and landscaping carries a price of $279,500.

"We're just walking on cloud nine after winning People's Choice the first time out," said Dan Barton, co-owner of D&J Property Development.

"We've blended modern and traditional all the way through this house," he added. "We tried to show our company can build either end and still do a good job."

The contrasts include a whirlpool tub in the master suite with the claw foot tub in the second bathroom.

"One thing that really helped captivate the crowd was the the furniture that complements the house," Barton said. "Grandma's Loft, with stores in Rochester, Fenton and Flint, provided it.

"She (Morgan Cates, owner) does a lot of duplication, reproduction antiques," Barton said. "The Amish of Pennsylvania make it in solid oak."

Barton's wife and partner, Jan, designed the kitchen cabinetry with lattice work, he said.

THE BAYBROOKE features a dining room with two walls of windows, a gas fireplace in the master bedroom and a step-down family room with a brick fireplace.

The four-bedroom, 2½-bath model of 2,500 square feet with extras like alarm system, upgraded floors and speaker system is priced at $249,000.

This year's Homearama also is the first for Pulte's participation.

"People feel at home in the model," said Deen Hyde, marketing director. "People stand there and say, 'I could just move in.'

"One of the strongest points of the home is the relationship of the rooms," she added. "We think the whole house works together — the design, decor. People comment on that. We expanded the family room, made it bigger and made the dining room bigger."

wall, and features doors that each have a cluster of small open squares in one corner, to be used instead of a handle.

WITH THE two-story residence, the architect and designer went for more drama.

Examples can be seen in the sweeping stairway, with a railing treated to look like old copper; a large, single faux marble square in a bathroom floor; bold black and white tiles in another bathroom floor; and a multi-angled bedroom ceiling upstairs that reminds one of an origami, folded-paper work.

Furnishings can be whimsical — such as a table that resembles flat wooden sticks — or bold — such as the end tables with iron legs in the living room. Again, the colors are natural.

Downstairs, the kitchen is large enough for entertaining. Off the kitchen is an arrangement of table, chairs and accessories that makes a small family room.

THE UNITS contain such basic elements as a first floor laundry, and a large, open lower level suitable for entertaining or converting into an exercise room.

Space is important in the design. Residents have room for what they have accumulated, from a workshop to a favorite easy chair to a parent's buffet.

At Cranbrook Chase, "1991" can be seen on some furniture and throw pillows, like an artist's signature. Some art you live with. This is "art" you can live in.

John Grissim & Associates of Farmington Hills was the landscape designer.
