Puppy heaven: Carol and Heather Dillon's 20-pound cocker spaniel delivered a surprise recently — 11 of them, as a matter of fact.

Spaniel births 10 pups

By the time Carol Dillon's 2-year-old cocker spaniel was ready to give birth, the Canton family knew it. "Meghan was really dragging along," says Dillon's daughter, Heather, 20. Meghan, however, had a surprise in store for her masters.

A longtime dog owner, Dillon (no relation to the writer) knew what to expect when her cream-colored, 20-pound spaniel started having her first litter April 24.

At 7:30 a.m. in a box in the family room, Meghan went into labor and gave birth to Max, Little Ricky, Abby, Penny, and Jack. The newborns kept coming. There was Barney, and Fred, and Dylan, Bonnie. A 10th pup was stillborn. Butch brought up the rear at 2:30 p.m.

"I love cockers and wanted to breed Meghan because she is so pretty. We've had puppies before, so I knew what to do. But I never thought there would be that many," Dillon said, adding that a normal litter for cocker spaniels is five or six. "They just kept coming out. It was rough. I imagine it wasn't a picnic for her."

Dillon said the 10th puppy was in the birth canal too long. "I gave him mouth-to-mouth, but it just didn't work, poor little guy."

All the puppies are healthy, and it appeared the sibling who didn't survive would have been also. "He was the biggest one," said Dillon, who helped the new mom break the sacs and made sure the puppies were breathing. The family has sold five of the puppies to families from Rochester Hills, Mt. Clemens, Livonia and Dearborn, but the sales "aren't going as quickly as I would like," she said.

Meghan, who comes from a four-generation lineage of champions, was bred with the puppies' father, "Cash," of Maribu Kennels in Farmington Hills.

Cash is whiter than Meghan, and the puppies all are buff-colored with white spots on their noses. Now eight weeks old, their weights range from two to nearly four pounds.

Heather has grown attached to the pups, but says she'll be happy when they're sold. "Ten was a handful," she said. "It's like taking care of 10 babies.

"They just got their puppy shots. We spent a long time in the vet's office," she said. "In the morning, they just start crying. You know when they're awake. They get up with the sun. We clean their pen a lot. It takes a lot of work and time."

Carol, who with her husband Bill has three sons and two daughters, said her son Jim "bought a playpen

Review clears WTUA

A Plymouth-Canton sewer project has been under fire for alleged cronyism and overspending. A review of the project says the charges are untrue. However, one critic called it a 'whitewash.'

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

There's no evidence to suggest that the Western Townships Utilities Authority's dealings with firms hired to perform work has been unethical.

And money spent on bonding and contracts — some of which weren't bid — has not been excessive.

That's the finding of a outside review of WTUA's operations released to the public Wednesday.

WTUA officials say the review should lift any charges of cronyism related to the project. But Robert Zaetta, active in the Plymouth Township Concerned Citizens group, called the review "a whitewash."

"Even though they say there were no illegalities, it sure gives the appearance of cronyism and nepotism," Zaetta charged.

The review included study of work done for WTUA and fees paid to some with family or other ties to the WTUA board, which has sparked charges of cronyism from political opponents.

"There is no prohibited conflict of interest in regard to the authority's contractual arrangements with attorney John E. Breen; Ayres, Lewis, Norris & May or the law firm of Law, Hemming, Essad & Polaczyk."

That was the finding of a legal review conducted by law firm Dickinson, Wright, Moon, Van Dusen and Freeman. That review was included in a operational review conducted by Plante & Moran. Both firms routinely perform legal reviews and audits for several municipalities in Michigan.

Some have charged cronyism, as John Breen is former WTUA board member Maurice Breen's brother; Plymouth Township trustee Abe Munfakh is a vice president with engineering firm Ayres and Lewis; and township supervisor Gerald Law's brother Robert Law is a partner in Law and Hemming.

Plante & Moran found it "reasonable that township officials, in their dual role as WTUA commissioners, would prefer to negotiate contracts with firms experienced in the legal, technical and financial issues of the participating communities, as opposed to utilizing a

This '69 Camaro has real attitude

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

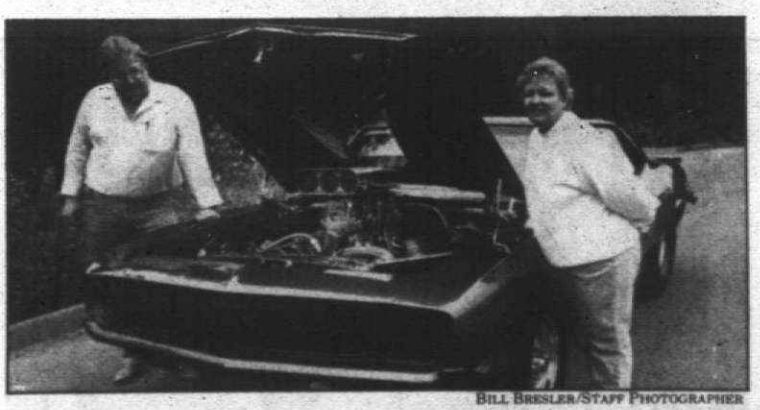

If the Dodge Viper and Ford Mustang GT are "muscle cars," then Terry Driscoll's trick '69 Camaro is a missile car.

"My youngest daughter won't even ride in it," Terry's wife Jeanne said. "She says it scares her to death!"

A brief spin in this heavily-modified, chrome-laden, gas-guzzling, heart-stopping piece of General Motors engineering is enough to see what little Jackie Driscoll means. One gets the impression that her dad could outrun a bullet, if necessary.

With a two-speed, drag-racing transmission mated to a 454-cubic-inch V-8 mill with two four-barrel Holley carburetors and a tunnel ram air scoop poking up through the hood, this Fuji blue Camaro RS-SS is capable of

Leave the light on

Now we know why they leave the light on for you.

Tom and Jackie Yenser, managers of the Motel 6 on Ford Road, wrote a thank-you note to the Canton police.

"With our low rates we get a lot of problem people and shady characters. We just wanted to thank you for responding quickly to all of our calls, even the minor ones," the letter says.

How do you suppose Tom Bodett will work that one into his next radio commercial?

Broken bus

Canton seniors inconvenienced by the engine failure of the township's old bus, used to shuttle various groups around, will be pleased to know that $6,000 of their taxes will be used to fix the dang thing.

CANTON CONNECTION

Township engineer Tom Casari told the board of trustees recently that taxpayers will be better off having the 1977 MCI coach repaired than they'd be if the township junked or sold the behemoth.

Trustee John Burdziak asked Casari, "Aside from the engine, is it basically sound?" Supervisor Tom Yack replied, "Good question." Clerk Loren Bennett said, "Is there any part of the original bus left?"

Bill Laimbeer

Canton hoop fan Roger Schlee, who won a free trip to an NBA Finals game from the Detroit Pistons, reports that the Portland and Chicago fans let him live.

Schlee and his wife, Cheryle, attended game four of the series in Portland, Ore., sitting three rows from the top of the arena.

"I was sitting in the middle of all these Portland and Chicago fans with my Hug Bill Laimbeer T-shirt and my Pistons jacket," he said. "I was trying to get myself on (TV)."

Traffic light

Since Wayne County officials have refused to install a traffic signal at Lilley and Saltz roads, Canton officials have voted to pay 100 percent of the signal's cost with your money.

Municipal services director Aaron Machnik told the township board that "we have had many requests that a signal be installed at this location." Township engineer Tom Casari estimated that the signal will be up and running sometime in September and cost $30,000 to $35,000.

that's saved my life. Now we have one playpen for our six-month-old granddaughter, and another one for the dogs."

As she spoke, the puppies were in the playpen, but clearly not happy about it. Saucer-like brown eyes followed Meghan's every move, and the pups didn't tire of crying.

There's one Dillon who's rather blase about the whole thing — Bear Dillon, a "Heinz 57" mutt who used to reign in the household on an acre of wooded land off Cherry Hill Road.

"Bear just ignores them," said Dillon. "He stays right away from them. Meghan was very protective. He was just passing by, and she almost bit his ear off." Since then, Bear has kept his distance, thank you.

Dillon isn't ruling out another litter for Meghan. "They're beautiful, pretty dogs, and they're usually pretty good-natured. They make a good pet," she said.

But Dillon tempered her remarks. If another family is in Meghan's future, "I hope she doesn't have this many."

"We're just trying to find good homes for them," said Heather.

competitive bid process for awarding service contracts."

"Our costs are extremely competitive with anybody else doing business out there," said Gerald Law, after release of the operations and legal review.

Saying that both firms conducting the review have good reputations throughout Michigan, Law said, "I don't know who else we can hire."

"These people aren't going to put their name down on something and lie," he continued.

The review was sparked "because of all the unfounded allegations," Law said, adding it will cost Plymouth, Canton and Northville townships — WTUA members — about $30,000.

Law — who joined the WTUA board years after his brother's law firm was hired to do legal work for the authority — said the public should know the project is good for residents.

The WTUA board in recent months has established policies to seek competitive bids for all services.

outrunning anything on the road, including police cars. And it is street legal.

However, considering the gas mileage it gets, you wouldn't be well advised to try running away from a cop. Jeanne Driscoll said her husband can burn two gallons of high-octane gas in a short scoot down Executive Drive and back to their office, a distance of not more than two miles. "You've really got to watch the fuel when you drive it," she said.

The Driscolls live in Canton with their two daughters, Shanna, 14, and Jackie, 8, and run a business called Central Floor Covering just across the Canton line in Westland.

For five years, culminating last February, Terry and his friends worked most evenings and many weekends on his Camaro. "I couldn't even begin to imagine (how many hours we put in)," Terry said. "It's in the thousands. It's definitely in the thousands."

Terry and his buddies probably spent more time in on this car than Kroger strikers spent on the picket line.

The only remembrance left of the original car is the body, and even that has been modified. Terry removed the door handles and filled in the resulting holes to the extent that it seems as if they were never there. You open the doors by holding a small magnet up to a switch mounted just inside the rear window.

There's no real trunk any longer, considering how much space the 22½-inch-wide Mickey Thompson racing tires consume. Two standard auto batteries also occupy the trunk space, providing the minimum required power, more or less, to crank the big high-compression mill.

The engine itself seems to be built with at least 50 percent chrome parts. It's cooled by three fans and a four-core radiator. The hydraulic lines for the disc brakes are made of stainless steel.

The drive shaft and rear springs are chrome. A feature called "line lock" allows the driver to lock the front brakes and spin the mains in anticipation of a jackrabbit start. There's no back seat left. The custom front seats come with two-inch-wide harnesses in lieu of seat belts. The dashboard is custom-design fiberglass with gauges for everything. Two kill switches, a gas-line valve and a hidden key-ignition slot make the RS-SS almost impossible to steal.

Terry said he spent $25,000 on the car and recently had it appraised at $28,000. And it is for sale. "If he could get what we've got into it, yeah, he'd probably sell it," Jeanne said.

Terry got interested in Camaros basically because his wife was interested in Camaros. Jeanne's father, Jess Austin, used to race stock cars and currently owns J & D Auto Parts (a junkyard) in Wayne. "I've been around cars all my life," Jeanne said.

Her dad bought Jeanne her first car, a 1967 Camaro SS, when she was 16, but she had to sell it some years later when she and Terry got married and wished to buy a house. "I was devastated when that car left," Jeanne said.

But she got another Camaro SS 11 years ago, tricked it out, and subsequently won nine first-place awards in car shows all over the midwest. Jeanne's Camaro reached the pinnacle of show cars last year when it was named "international winner" by the International Show Car Association. Terry's car won first place recently at the Autorama in the pro/street class.

But Terry's real love is the Ford Mustang; the Driscolls' company cars are all Ford Escorts; the family car is a 1992 Ford Thunderbird; and Jeanne's dream is to own a 1932 Ford three-window coupe.

Book sales less than Magic

By M.B. Dillon
Staff Writer

Former Los Angeles Laker Earvin "Magic" Johnson wants to help prevent young people from contracting the HIV virus, and so he has written a book.

But Kmart, which has stores in Plymouth Township and Canton, wants no part of it. The retailer is banning "What You Can Do to Avoid AIDS," published by Times Books, from its shelves. Walgreen drug stores also are boycotting the book.

"Kmart's main stores carry a limited number of books, and most are geared toward young children, said Kmart spokeswoman Mary McGeachy from the company's Troy headquarters.

"We're not a bookstore. The book is very informative, but it's also very graphic. It should be available to teenagers, (but not) to a 3-year-old while their mother is buying a lawnmower," she said.

Slow sales

Kmart subsidiary Waldenbooks is carrying the book.

So are Little Professor on the Park in Plymouth and Metro News Center in Canton.

"The Little Professor franchise has an anti-censorship policy. We don't censor any of our materials, which is why we carry this book," said supervisor Mary Ann LaPointe. Sales of Magic's book have been sluggish, she said.

"We've carried books that fly out of here. We've sold only two copies of Magic's book, and we've had it four weeks. It's not a big subject here in Plymouth."

Nonetheless, says LaPointe, "we feel we should have it on our shelf. We can't be ignorant to the subject. If it will help save lives, then it is worth it."

Joan Bolling, manager of Metro News Center in Canton, also is carrying Magic's book. It's displayed directly above "Once Upon a Potty" and alongside "Teenage Fathers."

Little controversy

The decision proved to be anything but controversial, she said.

"We've had the book for four weeks, and have absolutely zero response to it — none. We have it in the diet and health section and also in the young adult health section. We have had no reaction at all. I may have sold one or two copies."

Bolling recently returned from an American Booksellers conference in Anaheim, Calif., where the Michigan-born Magic appeared as a celebrity guest promoting his soon-to-be-published biography.

"I didn't meet anyone who went (to see Magic)" at the reception, held off-site. "I'm not saying people didn't go, but there was no overwhelming response among the people I met."

Bolling said she and her parent company, Detroit-based Ludington News Co., "believe very strongly in non-censorship. We definitely support banned book week and always have a display."

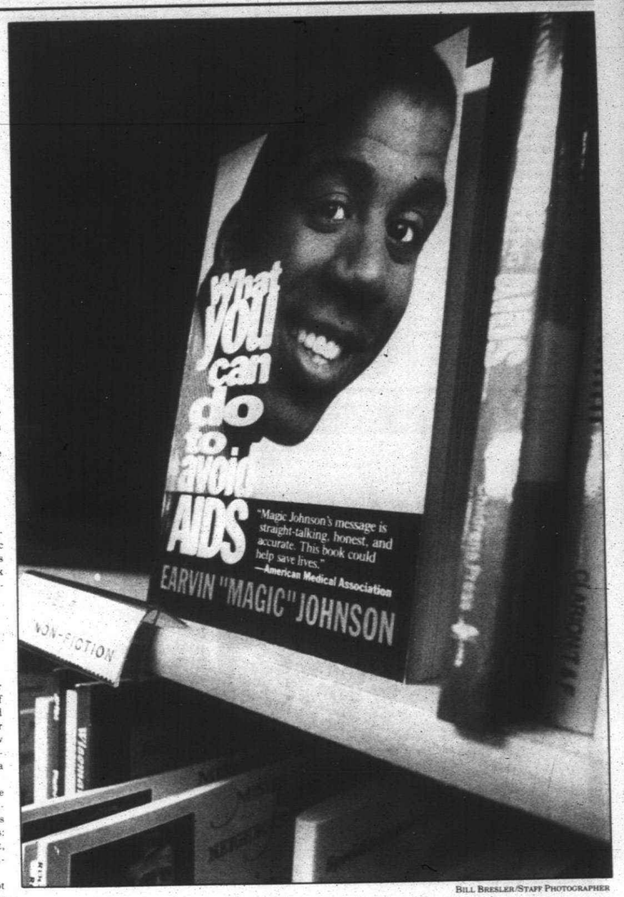

Susan Arnold is a spokeswoman for Connecticut-based Waldenbooks, which has 34 stores in Michigan.

"We took a strong stand on the book; we placed a heavy buy and it's selling very well," she said. "Dear Abby mentioned it in her column, and we've noticed a sales increase since then.

"We definitely aren't censored," added Arnold. "We are pro-First Amendment rights."

Book endorsed

The book is endorsed by the American Medical Association; the Children's Defense Fund; the Pediatric AIDS Foundation; the National Network of Runaways and Youth Services; Planned Parenthood of New York City; Gay Men's Health Crisis; and the National Community AIDS Partnership.

Magic's message hits the target

By M.B. Dillon
Staff Writer

"Many people have called me a hero because of my decision to dedicate the rest of my life to educating people, especially teenagers, about HIV and how to protect themselves from it," writes Earvin "Magic" Johnson in "What You Can Do to Avoid AIDS."

"But let me be clear about one thing: I am not a hero because I got HIV, and I didn't get HIV because I was a bad person, or a dirty one, or someone who deserved it for whatever reason. No one deserves to get HIV. I got HIV because I had unprotected sex. I got HIV because I thought it could never happen to someone like me. Obviously, if I could turn the clock back, I would have acted differently. But I can't. I can only go forward with love and support from my family and friends. I'm going to fight this illness as best I can and pass on to you the lessons I've learned the hard way."

The American Medical Association says of Magic's book, "Everybody, especially teenagers and parents," should read this. Magic Johnson's message is straight talk, honest and accurate. This book could help save lives."

Magic's books is broken into chapters entitled, "A Message to Parents," "What Are HIV and AIDS," "How to be Sexually Responsible," "How to Have Safer Sex," "How to Protect Yourself from Other Sexually-Transmitted Diseases," "If You Do Drugs or Drink," "If Someone You Know Has HIV," and "If You're a Runaway or Homeless." There's also a state directory of resources.

Marian Wright Edelman of the Children's Defense Fund has endorsed the book. "Magic Johnson's straight talk to teens will save lives: 'If you can wait, wait. If you can't, be safe every time,' " said Edelman.

"He speaks the blunt truth, not only to the young, but to everybody about steps to prevent and a killer disease and compassionate ways to ease its toll."

Stolen items recovered

Responding to an emergency call from an 18-year-old woman who saw two or three men break into her car, Canton police recovered an eclectic jumble of stolen goods, but were unable to catch the thieves.

The woman called police at 3:32 a.m. Thursday after seeing thieves rumaging around in her 1988 Mercury Tracer, which was parked outside her abode in the 40300 block of Winfield.

One of the alleged criminals, according to the police report, was 17-18 years old, white, 5-feet, 9-inches tall with brown, shoulder-length hair. He wore jeans, a blue tank top and a ball cap.

A police officer spotted the suspects walking on Lotz Road. The suspects took off running into a nearby forest and the cop followed on foot. But he lost the suspects in the trees.

However, the suspects dropped a bunch of stuff, including a Beastie Boys cassette that the Tracer owner said was taken from her car.

They also dropped: Seven empty beer bottles worth 70 cents, a cassette book called "The Psychology of Achievement," a cassette seminar called "Born to Win Volume II," a jar of Panama Jack tanning oil, some Brut cologne, a creme-colored dress in a cloth cover, a flat-head screwdrive , a leather notebook with mathematic equations written inside, a hand-held movie camera, a makeup container, a sweat shirt and two Ford stereo speakers.

Driveway egged

A 45-year-old Canton woman whose home is on Orleans Court told police someone smashed raw eggs on her driveway and sidewalk.

The woman said she suspects her future daughter-in-law of the crime because she's in the process of having the daughter-in-law legally barred from her property. "There's trouble in the family," the police report said.

Stolen vehicles

On June 15 a 1991 Ford Explorer was reported stolen from a Canton Township location. A 1986 Honda Spree moped was reported stolen last Wednesday.

Mother Nature gets nasty

It was the worst storm so far this season, officials say.

There was no tornado touchdown in Plymouth or Canton, as there was in Plymouth Township in April.

■ 'To start with, we had tremendous wind gusts go through before the storm hit.'
Scott Simons
Detroit Edison spokesman

But a line of thunderstorms swept into the area at about 4 p.m. Wednesday, and left downed limbs and power outages in their wake.

Detroit Edison spokesman Scott Simons said that in the western Wayne County-Monroe County region served by the power company, 50,000 homes and businesses lost power for varying periods.

"To start with, we had tremendous wind gusts go through before the storm hit," Simons said. When the storm was over, there were numerous reports of outages caused by limbs blowing against lines or falling on lines. There were no injuries in greater Plymouth or Canton.

By 2 p.m. Friday, 3,000 customers — including some downtown Plymouth businesses — still had no power. Simons said he expected all power to be restored by later that day.

Simons said the storm Wednesday was only about one-fourth as severe as a major storm July 7 last year.

Suburban lawmakers say water bill will die in committee

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

■ Suburbia's case is that Detroit overcharges its customers, by loading its own general government costs into water rates; fails to collect from its own retail customers, shifting more costs to the suburbs and generally mismanages the system . . .

They're putting up an optimistic front, but suburban politicos still are dismayed at what has happened to their bill to regionalize the Detroit water system.

House Speaker Lewis Dodak, D-Birch Run, sent the Senate-passed bill to the Housing and Urban Affairs Committee, where it has a strong chance of dying. Four of the 10 members, including chair Nelson Saunders, are from Detroit.

"I was shocked," said the bill's sponsor, Sen. David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield.

"I'm very concerned. I was left with strong assurances" it would be sent to the House Towns and Counties Committee. That panel is led by Roland Niederstadt, a Democrat whose district is in the suburbs of Saginaw. Most of the seven members are from townships and small cities. None is from Detroit.

"I spoke to Niederstadt by telephone, and Dodak was there with him. I've been trying to call Lew," said Honigman.

"Maybe it can still come out of committee," Honigman added.

Oakland County Drain Commissioner George Kuhn and his deputy, Bob Fredericks, also were unhappy.

"It was sent to Housing and Urban Affairs. But it's not a housing bill, and it's not urban affairs," said Fredericks. "It didn't seem to us to be appropriate."

"We haven't canvassed that committee and the chair. It's likely there won't be any action until after the Aug. 4 primary.

"We're very pleased it got through the Senate. The bill deserves a (House) hearing. We had several people contacting Dodak."

Both suspected that Detroit Mayor Coleman Young influenced Dodak to send the bill to a hostile, Detroit-dominated committee.

Young has been vehement in his opposition to regional control of the water and sewerage system that serves more than 100 neighboring communities as far north as Flint.

Kuhn has been fighting the battle for more than a dozen years. Rep. John Bennett, D-Redford, Sen. Gilbert DiNello, D-Clinton Township, and Sen. Richard Fessler, R-Commerce, all took cracks at sponsorship.

Honigman's bill was the first to get through one chamber of the Legislature. If it doesn't get through the House, it dies at the end of the year. And it can't get through the House until it gets through Saunders' committee.

Suburbia's case is that Detroit overcharges its customers, by loading its own general government costs into water rates; fails to collect from its own retail customers, shifting more costs to the suburbs; and generally mismanages the system, by giving contracts to political favorites rather than through competitive bidding and by stonewalling requests for information.

Detroit contends that its leadership and bonding ability made the system possible; its willingness to deal made suburban growth possible since the 1950s; and its rates are the lowest big-city rates in the country.

Detroit contends it owns the system and would have to be paid billions for it. Suburbia contends federal aid and customer charges paid for the system, not Detroit's tax money, and that Detroit's "investment" is almost nil.

Honigman expects a House panel to hold hearings this summer on his revision of a bill regulating wetlands.

Senate Bill 522 is in the House Conservation, Recreation and Environment Committee chaired by Rep. Tom Alley, D-West Branch.

That's the bill designed by Sen. Paul Wartner, R-Portage, to prevent local units from regulating wetlands at all. Wartner developed the bill in his Senate Natural Resources and Environmental Affairs Committee.

In an unusual move, the full Senate last winter sent the bill to Honigman's Local Government Committee where the lakes area senator fashioned a compromise: state control over larger wetlands, local control under identical rules over smaller wetlands, time limits and simplified procedures.

All interest groups agreed to the compromise, but the acceptance by the environmentalist coalition, Clean Water Action, was begruding.

The so-called "piano teachers" bills are likely to get action after the primary.

Sponsored by Honigman, the bills prohibit cities, townships and counties from prohibiting music lessons and other tutoring in private residences.

Blazing Oregon's trail

Summer sunshine brightens Portland's outlook

BY THOMAS J. MEYER
NEW YORK TIMES SYNDICATE

"Doesn't it rain all the time?" is the first thing visitors usually ask about Portland, Ore.

In response residents are accustomed to proffering statistics proving that, in fact, one is likely to find considerably more precipitation elsewhere: say, New York or London or — using the proper set of calculations — Los Angeles.

From now through September, in any case, the outlook is good: mostly balmy days and cool nights, with only the occasional gloomy afternoon. The end of the winter and spring rains brings a feeling of relief combined with celebration.

The city's leafy neighborhoods overflow with residents out walking dogs, playing catch or sipping cappuccino at the growing number of sidewalk espresso bars.

Only one Portland phenomenon is capable of transforming the city's mood and outlook as much as the annual arrival of sunshine: the National Basketball Association playoffs.

For the third year in a row the Trail Blazers, who play at Memorial Coliseum, have been contenders for the title and seemingly the topic of every conversation.

The conventional wisdom used to be that the Blazers' huge popularity resulted from a dearth of other night life.

Now, however, the city boasts a thriving theater community, a fine range of restaurants, an explosion of musical venues and an array of brew pubs, which serve beer and ale brewed on the premises.

Details on most of these places and events are available from the Portland/Oregon Visitors Association, at 26 Southwest Salmon St., Portland, Ore. 97204. For more information call (503) 222-2223.

Events

On June 28, more than 6,000 participants will take part in the 15-kilometer (9.3-mile) Cascade Runoff. The course starts just east of the Burnside Bridge, turns south on Southwest Broadway and makes its way up into the West Hills on Southwest Terwilliger Boulevard, affording participants (and onlookers) sweeping views of the city and the Willamette Valley beyond, and finishes on Front Street.

Cityscapes: Portland's stunning skyline is a good indication of how much the city prides itself on progressive urban planning and forward-looking architecture.

Memorial Coliseum will be host to the Tournament of the Americas, a basketball competition running from June 27 to July 5 in which men's teams from North, Central and South America will seek slots in the Summer Olympics in Barcelona.

The United States team, including Michael Jordan, Charles Barkley and Patrick Ewing, is heavily favored. Tickets, sold in packages of four, for $50, $75 and $100, are scarce, especially for games involving the United States team. For more information call (800) 347-8722.

Fair summer evenings in Portland offer good opportunities to hear music. Hundreds of people bring picnic dinners to a grassy hillside at the Metro Washington Park Zoo for Your Zoo and All that Jazz (Wednesdays) and the Rhythm and Zoo Concerts (Thursdays). Admission is $5.

This year performers include the Persuasions, Livingston Taylor, Pancho Sanchez and Kenny Rankin. The zoo is at 4001 Southwest Canyon Road. For more information call (503) 226-1561.

The Chamber Music Northwest series offers concerts five nights a week from June 22 to July 25 at Reed College and the Catlin Gabel School. Tickets are $9 to $22. For more information call (503) 223-3202.

Every weekend from March through September the Saturday Market — open Sunday too — runs an open-air craft-and-food fair under the west end of the Burnside Bridge, at First Street. More than 300 booths feature works of local weavers, potters and photographers and a variety of ethnic foods. There's also a strong contingent of wandering jugglers and magicians.

Art galleries are proliferating in the city, many of them in the Pearl District, a neighborhood of warehouse lofts just northwest of downtown.

On the first Thursday of each month nearly every gallery in the city extends its hours until 9 p.m. The event has become a sort of wandering, open-air cocktail party.

Good starting points for a round of gallery hopping are the Butters Gallery, at 312 Northwest 10th Ave., or the Jamison/Thomas Gallery, at 1313 Northwest Glisan St. For more information on the galleries call (503) 248-9378 or (503) 222-0063, respectively.

Rail adventure: Seeing Europe by train

BY EVERETT POTTER
SPECIAL WRITER

Shopping Around

It's no secret that the best way to get around Europe is by train.

From remote Swiss mountain villages to the Gare du Nord in Paris, from Sicily to the shores of the Norwegian arctic, the train system that connects Europe still astonishes many American visitors.

On a continent where gasoline can cost $5 a gallon, road tolls can be exorbitant and air travel between countries is often more expensive than a trans-Atlantic flight, train travel is still the most economical means of getting around.

For those who plan to visit a number of European countries on their vacation, a Eurailpass remains the best value for rail travel.

It must be bought in the United States before departure and allows unlimited first-class rail travel for a specified number of days on the railway systems of 17 member countries — Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Ireland, Italy, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden and Switzerland.

A 15-day Eurailpass costs $430 and a 21-day pass is $550. A Eurail Flexipass, which allows five days of travel within 15 days, is $280 and a pass allowing nine days of travel within 21 days is $450.

The basic Eurail Youthpass, for those under age 26, is $470 for one month of second-class travel. There is also a Youth Flexipass at $420 for 15 days of travel within two months.

But the travel patterns of Americans in Europe are changing, according to Andy Lazarus, a spokesman for both Eurailpass and Rail Europe, which represents the rail networks of 23 European countries.

"The days of the kids with their backpacks trying to hit all 17 countries are largely gone," said Lazarus. "Americans who went as youths now return as more sophisticated travelers. They concentrate on one or two countries rather that trying to see it all at once."

For those travelers, it makes little sense to buy a Eurailpass. A more economical choice is to buy a rail pass in the country or countries where they intend to travel.

In the past, these rail passes have been available only through a country's tourist board, the U.S. office of the country's rail company or through a designated tour operator.

But trying to find out who sold what was time-consuming for consumers and travel agents.

So Rail Europe was created in January 1991, yet another aspect of the transformation of European industries as part of the move toward a Common Market.

While it is by no means complete — countries such as Ireland and Italy that are members of Eurail are not members or Rail Europe — it does offer "one-stop shopping" for rail passes for member countries.

It also allows travelers to choose between first- and second-class travel, which the Eurailpass does not.

While the "Chunnel" linking Britain and France will not be finished until late 1993 at the earliest, Rail Europe is anticipating its completion by offering the BritFrance Railpass.

For more information write to Rail Europe and Eurailpass at 230 Westchester Ave., White Plains, N.Y. 10604 or call (800) 4-EURAIL.

Keith says Senate tinkering waters down truck riding bill

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

An angry Rep. William Keith, D-Garden City, denounced the way the state Senate gutted his bill to restrict people from riding in the open bed of a truck.

"This (Senate version) would not have prevented the tragic accident which occurred in Grand Ledge last year," Keith said Thursday. He referred to the triple-fatality in which three high school students were killed in July when they were thrown from the bed of truck which hit a tree.

The Senate Tuesday amended his House Bill 5044 to apply only in cities, villages or townships with 30,000 or more population. The triple-fatality occurred on a rural Clinton County road.

Keith also objected to the Senate's narrowing the bill to "pickup" trucks, without defining them. His original bill applied to all open bed trucks.

At Keith's insistence, the House voted 93-8 to reject the Senate amendment. All area representatives voted to reject.

That sent the bill to a conference committee of three senators and three representatives to work out a possible compromise.

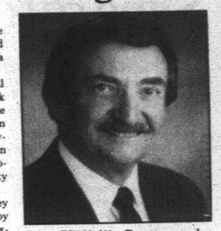

Keith, who said he had personal reasons for his interest in truck passenger safety, introduced the bill in response to the Clinton crash. He intended to make it a civil infraction for a person to ride in the open bed of a truck unless properly seated and wearing a safety belt.

"I made all the exemptions they wanted," said Keith. As passed by the House, the bill would have exempted riders in parades, the military, emergency vehicles, workers on farm equipment, hunters and hunting dog trainers.

The amendment to exclude local units of government with less than 30,000 population was offered two days earlier by Senate majority leader Dick Posthumus, R-Alto, and adopted.

The Senate passed its versioni 23-11. Voting yes were Michael Bouchard, R-Birmingham, Mat Dunaskiss, R-Lake Orion, William Faust, D-Westland, Robert Geake, R-Northville, George Hart, D-Dearborn, and David Honigman, R-Westland.

Voting no was Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills.

MORE ON STRESS & ARTHRITIS

Certain patients with incapacitating pain labeled as arthritis go from doctor to doctor.

The person accumulates xrays, CT scans, repeated blood tests, numerous hospitalizations, months of physical therapy and pain clinic visits, and multiple medications. All fail to give relief or a diagnosis.

What has occurred is not an obscure aberration of muscle or bone but a problem in the mind.

Certain individuals will undergo a profound experience: an unexpected catastrophe that could have killed, maimed or severely injured them. Somehow the person escaped, but not emotionally. The event sets off an internal preoccupation that shows as crippling muscle and joint aches.

Physicians, seeing such patients, either are unsure that no physical ailment explains the problem, make a wrong diagnosis, or tell the patient something just to move the person on.

When a physician explains what has occurred, more problems result. The patient considers a diagnosis of emotional disorder as one more mistake in a chain of errors. Or, the person becomes alarmed at the prospect of returning with such a conclusion to friends and relatives.

In addition, this disorder is not readily treated by present psychological therapy. Thus the person has the past hope of recovery removed, with no expection of resolution in place.

Separate but equal on abortion, says state court

Maybe you, too, are frustrated at how broadcasters and the metropolitan papers handle major court decisions like last week's case upholding the end of state-paid abortions. They get reactions from Right to Life, the American Civil Liberties Union, Planned Parenthood, dissenters, outspoken legislators — but we never find out what the Michigan Supreme Court actually said. Well, here, without comment, are excerpts from Justice Robert Griffin's 30-page majority opinion that is the law of this state.

This case does not concern a woman's right under the federal constitution to choose to terminate her pregnancy (Roe v. Wade). Rather, this case concerns whether Sec. 109a (approved by voters in 1988) exceeds the limits of equal protection established by our state constitution. We conclude that it does not.

After federal funding for Medicaid abortions was withdrawn (1976, Hyde amendment), Michigan provided 100 percent of the funds required until Sec. 109a became effective.

Jane Doe, then 15, had become pregnant when she was raped in January 1989. Nancy Doe requested medical assistance for a first trimester abortion to protect her daughter's physiological and psychological health.

Plaintiffs complain that Sec. 109a accords unequal treatment between two classes of Medicaid-qualified, pregnant women — those who choose childbirth and those who choose abortion. It is well established that even if a law treats groups of people differently, it will not necessarily violate the guarantee of equal protection. (Here the court cites classifications based on race as intolerable.)

TIM RICHARD

The U.S. Supreme Court has held that the Hyde amendment and state statutes which restrict Medicaid funding of abortions do not violate the equal protection guarantee of the federal constitution.

Private schools, though constitutionally permitted, have never been entitled to support from the state under the equal protection clause.

Just because a pregnant woman may have the right to choose an abortion does not mean that she has a right to have the government pay for it.

To support its conclusion that Sec. 109a is invalid, the (state) Court of Appeals panel claims that the equal protection guarantee in our state constitution provides greater protection than the corresponding guarantee in the federal constitution. (The appeals panel emphasized the "equal benefit" phrase in the Michigan Constitution.)

However, a review of the jurisprudence and constitutional history of this state suggests the opposite — that our Equal Protection Clause was intended to duplicate the federal clause. A careful examination of the record of the debates of the (1963 state) Constitutional Convention confirms this view.

The basis of (the appeals court) conclusion is an assumption that Medicaid-qualified women have an entitlement to funds for an abortion. Even where the state has previously funded the exercise of a right, it is not required to continue such funding.

For public policy reasons, the state may choose to eliminate benefits that it previously offered.

As with the decision to fund public schools, the state may have made childbirth a more attractive option by paying for it, but it has imposed no restriction on obtaining an abortion that was not already there.

(Signed by Robert Griffin, Michael Cavanagh, Dorothy Comstock Riley, Charles Levin and James Brickley.)

Touring state's back country could help suburbs

It never fails to amaze me that out of all the thousands of miles of shoreline in Michigan, folks end up shoulder to shoulder in Traverse City when summer comes.

It's not that Traverse City isn't a nice place, it's just that there are too many frozen yogurt stands, art galleries and gift shops. That suburban stuff. It's Oakland County in the pines and one Oakland County is enough of a blight on the the state's landscape.

But back to the yuppie glop. If the sight of fat people fooling themselves by eating yogurt on a street corner has become too much, here's a list of other places to visit in Michigan.

- Seney. It's off the beaten track in the Upper Peninsula on M-28. There isn't much to the town. The IGA store is owned by born-again Christians, so they don't carry beer. However, Andy's Seney Bar, a cinder block affair, is across the street. It's a serious place, and on most evenings, there's no trouble getting the pool table. Most folks are at the bar. Don't order any fancy drinks. As the barmaid said: "We've got your canned beer and bottled beer."

Nearby is the Seney Wildlife Refuge, for bird watchers and the Fox River for trout.

While the town may seem a bit down on its heels, it has a rich literary history. Ernest Hemingway visited the town once and later wrote "The Big Two Hearted River." He was really writing about the Fox River, the Two Hearted is farther north. Literature teachers heavy into symbolism try to read meaning into the river's name. I've always suspected Hemingway didn't mean to make the river's name symbolic. Like any cagey trout fisherman, he didn't want to give away a good fishing spot. Academic folk often make things more complicated than need be.

It's fun to take a copy of the story along, Hemingway's 70-year-old description still fits the landscape.

- Spike's Keg O'Nails in Grayling is the farthest you can get from yogurt. On the menu here are cheeseburgers, Strohs, Bob Seger and bikers. And across U.S. 27 is the AuSable River, a canoe livery and The Fly Factory, all of which deserve a visit.
- For the movie history buff there's Big Bay in the Huron Mountains northwest of Marquette. The Big Bay Hotel was built by Henry Ford and later used as a setting for the film "Anatomy of a Murder." Nearby are Lake Superior and the Yellow Dog River which flows out of the Huron Mountains. It's the closest thing Michigan has to a Rocky Mountain type trout stream.
- But when it comes to Lake Superior watching, the Dunes Saloon in Grand Marais is perfect. The bar is a shot and a beer away from the bay. There's a fish fry put on Wednesday night by one of the locals.
- A night in Paradise. Perhaps the best bar fight I've ever witnessed occurred in that Upper Peninsula town. It wasn't the bloodiest. The ubiquitous pool cues and long neck beer bottles weren't involved. The dispute seemed to revolve around which of two men had spent more time in the Michigan prison. The decision went to the man who slapped the other several times in the face. It was at the Yukon Inn; the cheeseburgers were good, too.
- Pine Stump Junction. It has fallen off the map over the years, but the bar-gas station is still there. It's on the county road between Newberry and Deer Park in the Upper Peninsula's Luce County. It's worth the stop just to say you've been there.
- McKinley. It's another town that's no longer on the state maps. It's east of Mio in Oscoda County. There's a collection of houses and of course a log cabin bar within walking distance of the AuSable River. Much of the land along the river here is owned by Consumers Power, which in a sense means it's public, if you know where to go.

The planning commissions of all Oakland County communities should be subjected to such an itinerary. If they were, they would perhaps add ordinances banning frozen yogurt stands and Ralph Lauren stores. We can only hope.

1991 U.S. House payroll up 9 percent

BY RANDY WYNN
SPECIAL WRITER

While many paychecks back home shrank or disappeared during the tough recession year of 1991, the House of Representatives staff payroll hit record levels.

A survey of public records by Roll Call Report Syndicate shows that House members' staff salaries totaled over $211 million during 1991, up nine percent from the $192.1 million spent a year earlier and 14 percent above the 1989 figure of $183.9 million.

House members are allotted up to $515,760 annually for personal staff payroll and can raise that cap to $590,760 by transferring funds from their general expense allowance.

A member's unspent payroll allocation usually is shifted to other House accounts.

Survey results

The survey revealed that no House member spent his or her full salary allotment, although several approached the cap.

Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., had the highest payroll at $574,824, and Rep. William H. Natcher, D - Ky., the lowest at $208,681.

Following Waxman were Democrats Tim Johnson of South Dakota ($567,390), Barbara Boxer of California ($559,057), Patricia Schroeder of Colorado ($558,211) and Marty Russo of Illinois ($555,923), and Republican James H. Quillen of Tennessee ($553,887).

Following Natcher were Republicans Dick Nichols of Kansas ($354,149) and Larry J. Hopkins of Kentucky ($355,365), Democrat Jamie L. Whitten of Mississippi ($377,840), and Republicans Dave Camp of Michigan ($380,333) and Toby Roth of Wisconsin ($388,504).

Lawmakers defend their payroll regardless of the level.

"I have a good staff, I pay well, and I think that they deserve it," said Quillen. "Some of them go to work at six o'clock in the morning and work until real late in the night. . .

"We do a lot of constituent service. We've been known for that for the past 30 years, and I'm proud of it."

Johnson noted his congressional district, covering all of South Dakota, is the nation's largest in both population and territory.

Michigan's Camp, a freshman, said of his low payroll, "I take very seriously that these are public funds and I try to spend them very carefully."

The House payroll allotment of $515,760 has been in place since May 1991 when a $40,760 increase was quietly put into effect. A similar increase was rejected months earlier when opponents forced a record vote on the House floor.

Also in May 1991, the amount members can transfer from office expenses to payroll was hiked from $50,000 to $75,000.

Payrolls increase

Largely because of those increases, most staff payrolls rose significantly as the year progressed. For example, a look at payrolls of the top six members listed above shows the following increases between first and fourth quarter expenditures; Waxman 30 percent, Johnson 29 percent, Boxer 12 percent, Schroeder 21 percent, Russo 17 percent and Quillen two percent.

The Roll Call Report Syndicate survey did not cover Senate staffs or House committee staffing, or examine what individuals are paid.

Each House member can hire up to 18 full-time and four part-time staffers, with $105,000 the maximum salary. The typical lawmaker has 15 to 20 aides.

The House employs more than 7,500 aides on personal staffs, and the Senate more than 4,000. Altogether, the legislative branch has about 38,000 employees.

Lawmakers who hold leadership positions or chair committees and subcommittees preside over many more employees. The Appropriations Committee, for example, had 203 staffers at the end of 1991.

Natcher has five committee aides as a result of chairing an appropriations subcommittee. This supplements a personal staff of nine that may be the smallest in the House. "I don't have an administrative assistant, a press aide, a legislative assistant or an office manager," he said. "I don't need them."

Criticizing the congressional payroll is a tried and true way to make Congress look bloated and out of touch. But whether or not lawmakers have too much help depends on who's counting.

"We don't have room for them. We pack them in and treat them like cattle," said Rep. John Boehner, an Ohio Republican who advocates staff cuts.

"Because work expands to meet available resources, more staff means more laws, regulations and programs without regard to social needs," said Marlo Lewis Jr. of Citizens Against Government Waste.

"Idle hands have to be kept busy, so they make work for the executive branch. More executive branch staff is needed to handle congressional requests for reports few legislators ever read."

But lawmakers are quick to note that Capitol Hill staffing is tiny compared to the executive branch that Congress must oversee. The Department of Agriculture alone employs nearly 130,000.

While much staff time is spent on public business, the line between official and political activity can be easily blurred. Congressional challengers like to complain that incumbents legislate perks such as large staffs and unlimited free mailing to keep themselves in power.

The figures below, from Clerk of the House reports, show the sums House members spent on personal staff salaries in 1991. The typical House member nationwide employs 15 to 20 aides.

WHAT EVERY MAN SHOULD KNOW ABOUT IMPOTENCE.
IT'S TREATABLE.
The real tragedy of impotence is letting it go untreated even one more day. Stop denying yourself and your sexual partner an important part of your life. Impotence can be treated in almost every case.
The STAR® program developed by Grace Hospital provides complete diagnosis and treatment of male impotence. This confidential program is directed first at determining the cause of the problem. Diseases such as diabetes, cancer, multiple sclerosis and problems with prostate, heart and high blood pressure are common causes. There are many others. Injuries to the spinal cord, and low hormone levels can also cause erection failure. So, too, can fatigue, alcohol, drugs, smoking, stress and depression. Medicines used to treat such things as depression, high blood pressure and ulcers can be part of the problem. Age alone is not a cause of impotence. And, yes, some impotence problems are psychologically based; even organic impotence has an important psychological component that requires identification and treatment. An accurate diagnosis is the key to effective treatment. Sometimes, only a change in medication is needed. More serious problems may require surgery. But help is available. Complete, confidential and supportive. Call today and talk to one of our professionals.

TASTE BUDS

CHEF LARRY JANES

Amazing black beans becoming user friendly

When it comes to cooking dried beans, there is one that the Janes Gang prefers that is second to none in taste and versatility.

Check out my pantry and you're sure to find the rudimentary bag of navy beans that make for a hearty soup, the pintos that always end up in a home-cooked refried state but by far, the most widely used and adored are those tiny black "turtle" beans that end up in everything from a spicy Cuban black bean soup to an equally satisfying black bean pizza.

Dried beans

The demand for convenience foods made from dried beans has increased steadily while the use of fresh, unprocessed beans has declined, mainly because many homeowners work and have limited time for the preparation of meals at home.

In addition, money can be saved by buying dried beans. Not only do they store almost indefinitely, but each cup of dried beans will yield three times as much cooked beans.

Beans are becoming more "user friendly," especially since the introduction of a major anti-gas remedy called "Bean-O," which literally neutralizes the enzymes that produce flatulence.

Cooking methods

Dried beans have never been a major influence in creating culinary trends, probably because of the time involved for cooking.

There are, however, a few tricks that can be used in the kitchen to drastically reduce the cooking time involved for dried beans.

With the introduction of "safe" pressure cookers that are unlike the ones of old, beans can be pressure cooked in a matter of minutes.

I can vividly remember the day momma's old pressure cooker finally blew it's top, spewing beef stew farther than an active volcano. From that day forward, the Janes Gang dried beans were always soaked overnight. To us kids, it was an amazing sight to see that the dried beans had swollen to the top of the pot while we slept.

Of course, with the onset of hot summer weather, soaking might be preferred, but if you're in a hurry, there are alternatives.

My new pressure cooker will cook a pound of dried beans in less than 30 minutes. The precooking process for soups only takes less than 10 minutes.

Prior to my purchase of a pressure cooker, other than the overnight soak, when I wanted beans, I remember momma's other secret, dubiously dubbed the "one-hour hot soak."

When the pantry was bare and there were no cans of kidney beans for the typical Thursday night chili, momma frequently used the one-hour hot soak method which required her to place the beans in a large pot and cover with what seemed to be a half gallon of water.

When the water began to boil, momma watched the second hand tick away for no more than two minutes. The burner was diffused and a tight-fitting lid was placed on the pot for an hour. Dinner might have been 45 minutes later that night, but the beans were as tender as ever.

Winning recipe

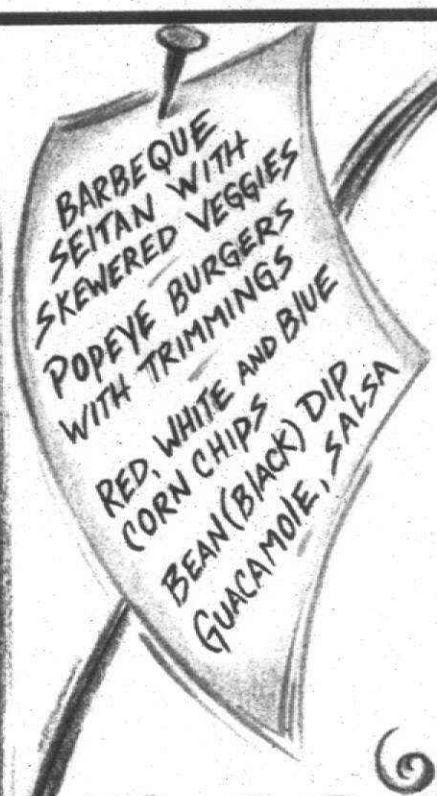

In addition to a hearty, stick-to-your-ribs black bean soup that is as out of place on a 90-degree day as an ice cream cone on Christmas, the Janes Gang has picked up another winning recipe for using black beans.

This is literally a "winning" recipe that was created by Dave Schmitt of Phoenix, Ariz., and which won him $10,000 in the 1992 Pillsbury Bake-Off. In Dave's winning recipe, a refrigerated pizza dough is baked with a pizza-type top resplendent with black beans, fresh cilantro, plenty of vegetables and cheese.

Dubbed as "vegetarian" because Dave "wanted a recipe that would appeal to people who are health-conscious" this black bean pizza would feel right at home with the addition of pepperoni.

If you want to taste the original, you might find yourself tempted to "switch" the bean variety because as Dave says: "the black beans are unusual and you get a unique flavor that piques people's interest." The recipe piqued Dave's interest too, by $10,000. I've tasted winning recipes before but trust me on this one, folks, you won't be disappointed.

Veggie-cookout

■ Several times over the summer, Juliana Harrison and her friends get together for a vegetarian cookout. The meals are festive and delicious.

BY KEELY WYGONIK
STAFF WRITER

When Juliana Harrison and her friends get together for a cookout, the menu is nutritious, colorful and meatless.

"We've won people over," said Harrison who planned a festive Fourth of July Vegetarian Cookout with her friend Sarah Penberthy of Rochester Hills.

Both are vegans, that is vegetarians who eat no animal products. They don't eat meat, fish, dairy products, or white sugar. What is there left to eat you might ask. Plenty I found out.

Harrison invited me to her home in Plymouth to try some of the recipes she and Sarah created, and to meet some of their friends who are also vegetarians. At one time, all of them were meat eaters. Some stopped eating meat for health reasons like Jeanne Poulet of Livonia. Others, like Harrison, Penberthy, and Mike Chiado of Plymouth, became vegetarians for ethical and environmental reasons.

"We have compassion for animals, and are making a large contribution to the environment," said Penberthy.

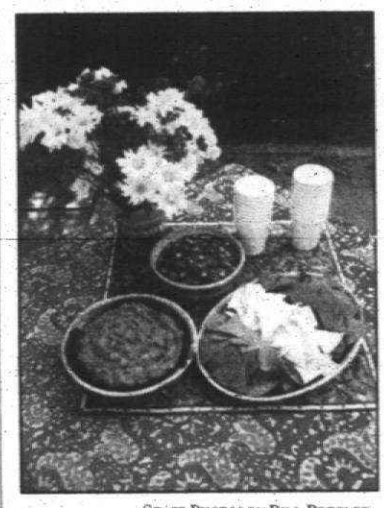

According to organizers of the recently launched "Beyond Beef Campaign," cattle and other livestock consume more than one-third of the world's grain and are a major cause of deforestation. If this grain were fed to people, it would reduce the amount of malnutrition in the world.

The menu of red, white and blue corn chips, black bean dip, guacamole with salsa, Popeye Burgers, Barbecued Seitan with skewed vegetables, potato salad, colorful tossed salad, love crispies, rainbow crisp and cranraz kanten, was delicious, and satisfying.

Popeye Burgers, invented by Keith Zimmer of Milan, recently won high honors for low-fat burgers in a contest sponsored by Vegetarian Voice Magazine. Made out of spinach, chopped potatoes, and spices, these burgers are busting with flavor. They're served on buns, just like hamburgers, and dressed up with sprouts, lettuce, tomatoes, mustard or barbecue sauce.

A vegetarian for two years, Zimmer said he did it in stages. First he eliminated fast foods, then beef, chicken, fish, eggs, milk and dairy products. "I enjoy cooking," he said.

Seitan, also called "wheat meat" looks, and tastes like meat. "It has a nice chew to it," said Harrison. It's one of the convenience foods that makes being a vegetarian easier. You can buy it in health food stores, for about $4.23 for 12 ounces. This will serve four.

STAFF PHOTOS BY BILL BRESLER

"I've discovered how delicious natural foods are," said Penberthy who enjoys creating her own recipes. "You get a taste of what food is really supposed to taste like. It's pleasing to the eye and palate."

French version of pizza worth the effort to make

WINNER DINNER

BETSY BRETHEN

There are those people for whom the process of cooking is a real joy and an integral part of their life.

For Mary Breen, this week's Winner Dinner Winner, cooking is a passion. Originally from Buffalo, N.Y., Breen has lived in Birmingham for 11 years. The mother of four grown children, she is enjoying having more time to pursue the other passion in her life, art. Breen has been taking classes at the Birmingham-Bloomfield Art Association. She was recently invited to enter the Celebrate Life art show at Congregational Church of Birmingham.

Having grown up with a mother who is a noted cook, it was only natural that Breen should follow suit. She has enriched her knowledge and cooking expertise by taking classes throughout the years, including many sessions at the Birmingham Community House. This past spring, she attended a five-day cooking school at the Greenbrier in West Virginia, sponsored by the world-renowned French cooking school, La Varenne. The recipe for this week's Winner Dinner, is Pissaladiere, a Provencal version of pizza. She recommends serving the pissaladiere with a salad of mixed greens for a luncheon or light supper. The dessert should be a simple dish of fresh fruit.

Many thanks to all of you who have so thoughtfully shared your family's favorite summer menus.

Submit your recipes, to be considered for publication in this column or elsewhere to Winner Dinner, P.O. Box 3503, Birmingham, MI 48012. All submission become the property of the publisher. Each week's winner receives an apron with the words Winner Dinner Winner on it.

PISSALADIERE BREAD DOUGH

- 2 teaspoons or ¼ ounce package dry yeast
- ½ cup lukewarm milk
- 2 ½ cups flour, more if needed
- 2 eggs
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon sugar
- ⅓ cup butter, softened
- cornmeal (to coat baking dish)

In a small bowl, crumble or sprinkle the yeast over 3-4 tablespoons of milk. Mix in enough of the flour to make a soft, sticky dough and let this starter rise in a warm place for 15-20 minutes. Sift the remaining flour on a board or marble slab and make a large well in the center. Add the yeast starter, eggs, salt, sugar and the remaining milk. Briefly mix the center ingredients, then gradually draw in the flour to form a dough. Knead the dough into a ball; it should be soft but not sticky, so add more flour if necessary.

Knead the dough by lifting it up and slapping it on the work surface for 5-10 minutes until very smooth and elastic. Pound the butter to soften it, then work it into the dough. Knead the dough again to incorporate the butter thoroughly. Transfer the dough to an oiled bowl, cover it with a damp cloth and leave in a warm place to rise until doubled in bulk, about 1 hour. The dough will be easier to shape when chilled, and it can be left to rise overnight in the refrigerator.

Knead the dough lightly to knock out the air. Lightly flour the work surface, roll out the dough to a 14 inch circle. Roll the dough around the rolling pin and drape it over the buttered quiche pan or buttered cookie sheet which have been lightly coated with cornmeal. If using a quiche pan, gently lift the edges of dough with one hand and press it well into the bottom of the pan, pressing down to cut off excess dough. Press the dough evenly up the sides from the bottom to increase the height of the rim. If using a cookie sheet, pinch up the dough to form a collar all the way around the edge to hold the filling.

PISSALADIERE FILLING

- ½ cup olive oil
- 8 medium onions, sliced
- 3 tomatoes, sliced
- 8 ounce package mushrooms, chopped finely
- 3 cloves garlic, chopped finely
- 5 sprigs each parsley, thyme and rosemary, chopped

Heat ¼ of the oil in a frying pan, add the onions with salt and pepper to taste and press a piece of buttered foil on top. Cover and cook until very soft, 15-20 minutes. Take off the lid and continue cooking, stirring until golden brown. In another frying pan, saute the chopped mushrooms, garlic, herbs and salt and pepper to taste in ¼ cup of olive oil until tender. Spread onions on bottom of dough, then arrange tomato slices on top. Sprinkle herbed mushroom mixture on top. Let the pissaladiere rise in a warm place until puffed, 20-30 minutes. Heat oven to 400 degrees. Sprinkle tomatoes with salt, pepper. Bake 25-35 minutes.

POPEYE BURGER

1 10 oz. package frozen chopped spinach (thawed and drained)
1 small finely chopped onion
½ cup bread crumbs
½ cup cornmeal
1 ½ tablespoons onion flakes
½ tablespoon garlic powder
¼ cup walnut pieces
1 tablespoon olive oil
½ tablespoon tamari (soy sauce)
1 ½ tablespoon Dijon mustard
¼ tablespoon tarragon
½ tablespoon basil
½ tablespoon parsley
1 teaspoon egg replacer powder
¼ teaspoon smoke flavoring
1 medium potato, baked (or microwaved if desired) and chopped

Mix all ingredients in a mixing bowl and form into bun-sized patties. Thin patties cook best. May be fried in a pan, baked in the oven (350 degrees for 20 minutes) or cooked on the grill. Makes four to six patties.Submitted by Keith Zimmer.

BLACK BEAN DIP

1 medium onion, chopped
1 tablespoon olive oil
2 cloves of garlic, minced
1 ¼ teaspoon cumin (whole cumin freshly ground in a spice grinder is a nice touch)
¼ teaspoon cayenne pepper
2 15 oz. cans organic black beans, found in natural food stores and some supermarkets and specialty shops sea salt to taste
1 ripe tomato, chopped
optional: red, yellow and/or green pepper (hot or sweet), chopped garnish with a round slice of sweet red pepper

Saute onion in oil until translucent. Add garlic, cumin and cayenne and saute 1 minute. Add beans and heat on medium or medium low until beans are heated through and some of the moisture is absorbed. Use a spatula to keep beans from sticking. (If the beans you are using are dry you may have to add a little water.) While cooking add salt to taste and adjust seasonings. Remove from heat. Add chopped tomato and optional peppers. Place in a bowl and garnish with sweet red pepper.

Note: If serving individually add a ring of red pepper to each bowl. This dip is fun to serve with colorful corn chips such as the yellow, red, white and blue varieties. submitted by Sarah Penberthy

SEITAN BARBEQUE

1 package Seitan, marinated in the following ingredients:
½ cup catsup
2½ tablespoons molasses
3 tablespoons red wine vinegar
¼ cup safflower or canola oil
1 tablespoon stone ground mustard
1 teaspoon tamari

Marinate for at least two hours, one package of Seitan (found in the natural food store's refrigerated section) in the ingredients listed above. Thread marinated Seitan and the vegetables alternately on skewers. Some suggestions are, red pepper pieces, mushrooms, whole cherry tomatoes and green pepper pieces, onion wedges.

Rotate skewers over coals and brush often with remaining sauce. "Doneness" will depend upon the heat of the coals, but the Seitan will be perfect when the vegetables are browned to your desire, as Seitan is precooked. Serves four. Submitted by Juliana Harrison.

LOVE CRISPIES

4½ cups organic crispy brown rice cereal (barley malt sweetened)
⅔ cup rice syrup (lightly oil the measuring cup for easy pouring)
½ cup natural peanut butter
1 teaspoon pure vanilla
½ cup gourmet chocolate chips that are grain sweetened and non dairy
1 cup roasted pecans broken into small pieces (optional), or your favorite roasted nut

Place cereal, ¼ cup chocolate chips and nuts in a large bowl. Place rice syrup, peanut butter, vanilla and remaining chips in a small sauce pan or double boiler. Heat slowly on low (higher heat may be used if using a double boiler) stirring to prevent burning. As the mixture heats, it should become runnier, and the chips should melt.

Remove from heat and quickly pour hot mixture over cereal. Mix gently so as not to crush the cereal, but firmly enough to mix it all together. Place in a suitably sized pan (11 inch x 7 inch x 1½ inch works well). The size of the pan will determine the thickness of the crispies. The crispies will firm up as they cool. Do not refrigerate, they will firm up too much. When firm, cut into squares and enjoy.

Note: All the ingredients are found in most natural food stores and some supermarkets and specialty shops. Rice syrup is one of my favorite natural sweeteners — I enjoy its taste and subtle sweetness. This recipe is also delicious without the chocolate chips. Just add one to two cups of your favorite roasted nut. I prefer the taste and quality of the ingredients listed, but feel free to experiment with the ingredients of your choice. Submitted by Sarah Penberthy.

RAINBOW CRISP

3 large delicious apples, sliced (peeled, if desired)
1 cup blueberries and raspberries, mixed
3 tablespoons lemon juice
⅔ cup and 2 tablespoons maple syrup
¼ teaspoon ginger
1 ½ teaspoons cinnamon
3 cups rolled oats
¼ teaspoons sea salt
¾-1 cup chopped pecans and almonds or your favorite nut
⅓ cup safflower oil
½ teaspoon vanilla
juice of 1 sweet orange

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Place apples, blueberries and raspberries in a 9 inch by 14 inch size baking dish or desired pan. Add lemon juice and mix together. Place 2 tablespoons maple syrup, ginger and ½ teaspoon cinnamon in a small bowl and whisk. Drizzle over apple mixture, then mix together.

In a large bowl mix oats, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, salt and nuts together. Whisk ⅔ cups maple syrup, oil, vanilla and juice of a sweet orange together. Add to oat mixture and mix. Place oat mixture evenly on top of the fruit and bake 25 to 35 minutes. It will begin to brown when done. Enjoy. Submitted by Sarah Penberthy.

CRANRAZ KANTEN

4 cups cranberry, raspberry juice blend
4 tablespoons agar flakes, (available in health stores, natural gelatin)
2 cups blueberries and raspberries mixed whole raspberries and kiwi fruit
½ teaspoon freshly grated ginger juice (optional)

Place berries in heat resistent dish that will hold 4 cups of liquid. Place juice and agar in a sauce pan and bring to a boil. Simmer over medium heat without stirring. Once simmering, reduce heat to low and simmer 3-5 minutes to dissolve flakes. Stir a couple of times during this step. Pour juice over fruit and let sit at either room temperature or in the refrigerator. (Add ginger juice when you pour juice over fruit). Garnish with whole raspberries and kiwi fruit. Submitted by Sarah Penberthy.

Where to find ingredients for vegetarian dishes

You can find egg replacer, rice syrup and other ingredients to make vegetarian dishes at natural food stores like, Good Food Company, West, 33521 Eight Mile, Livonia, 477-7440, or 74 Maple Road, Troy, 362-0886, Healthways, 44427 Ann Arbor Road, Plymouth, 455-1440, Natural Alternatives, 14 Mile at Haggerty, Walled Lake, 960-9740.

Here are some natural food substitutions to try. For baking, use egg replacer instead of eggs. Another option is 1 tablespoon cornstarch or arrow root, 1 tablespoon safflower oil, and ¼ cup oil. Instead of white sugar, use rice syrup, maple syrup, sorghum or molasses.

Soy milk can be substituted for milk. You can also buy soy powder, and mix it with water to make soy milk.

Strawberries make colorful desserts

STRAWBERRY SAUCE

1 pint strawberries, cleaned and hulled
⅓ cup sugar, or to taste
1 ½ tablespoons freshly squeezed lemon juice, or to taste

Combine all ingredients in a food processor or blender; puree. Taste and add additional sugar or lemon juice as needed. Strain if desired. Use immediately, or cover and refrigerate up to two days. Serve on ice cream, pound cake, layer cake, or sliced fruit. Makes 1 cup sauce.

STRAWBERRY-RHUBARB PIE

1 ½ cups sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 ½ cups fresh strawberries, washed, hulled and sliced
2½ cups fresh rhubarb, diced
Pie pastry (for top and bottom crusts)
1 tablespoon butter

Combine sugar, salt, tapioca, nutmeg and lemon juice in a large bowl. Add strawberries and rhubarb. Mix well to coat fruit. Let stand 15 to 20 minutes.

Preheat oven to 375 degrees F. Place fruit mixture into prepared bottom crust. Dot with butter. Add top crust, crimp edges and cut several holes to vent steam. Bake in a 375-degree F oven for 40 to 50 minutes, until golden brown. Makes one 9-inch pie.

STRAWBERRY PECAN SHORTCAKE

For the shortcake:
2½ cups all-purpose flour
1 ½ teaspoons salt
1 ½ tablespoons baking powder
1 ½ tablespoons sugar
¾ cup toasted, finely ground pecans
½ cup unsalted butter
1 ½ cups heavy cream
For the filling:
3 pints fresh strawberries, washed, hulled and sliced
6 tablespoons sugar
1 ⅓ cups heavy cream, whipped

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. In a large bowl, sift together the flour, salt, baking powder and sugar. Add ground pecans and butter; incorporate with a pastry blender. Fold in cream. On a lightly floured surface, divide dough into six pieces and pat into rounds 1-inch thick. Bake on an ungreased baking sheet in a 350-degree F oven until golden brown, 30 to 35 minutes. Cool.

To make the filling, combine the sliced strawberries and the sugar. Split shortcakes and place bottom halves on dessert plates. Divide fruit among shortcakes. Replace tops and serve with whipped cream. Makes 6 servings.

ONE OF THE GREATEST TOOLS FOR SAVING THE ENVIRONMENT.

Take a long piece of string. Wrap it around a small stack of newspapers. Then take it to a recycling center or leave it out for collection on recycling day.

You'll be helping U.S. newspapers in their drive to encourage recycling. More than a third of our country's newsprint was recycled last year. But without your help, we won't have the material to make recycling work.

So tie a string around your finger. It'll help you remember to recycle.

Read. Then recycle.

Golden Mushroom co-owner honored

KEELY WYGONIK

Certified Master Chef Milos Cihelka, co-owner of the Golden Mushroom Restaurant in Southfield, has been honored by the chef's profession as the American Culinary Federation central regional chef of the year. He will represent the central region of the United States as its nominee for the national chef of the year award.

"I've won many awards in competitions, but winning this award is very special," said Cihelka. "Being selected as the regional chef of the year means your peers recognize your efforts and appreciate the time and energy given to the future of our industry."

Cihelka won double gold medals at the "Culinary Olympics" in 1972, and was the first Certified Master Chef in America. Today fewer than 50 chefs can boast the distinction of Certified Master Chef. It is an honor, and measure of knowledge of the chef's profession. To earn the title, one must document a long history of success in the kitchen and thorough education before becoming eligible to take the 10-day exam that leads to this achievement.

If you're looking for a way to add some zip, to your summer meals, try flavored vinegars.

"Everybody is fat conscious, and trying to reduce their intake of fats and oils," said John Jonna, merchandise manager, product development, Merchant of Vino. "Oil adds flavor, if you cut oil, you kill flavor, what I'm recommending is use less oil, add water and flavored vinegars."

Jonna gave me a quick lesson in flavored vinegars at the Merchant of Vino at 4050 Rochester Road in Troy. Three of the best known flavored vinegars are the French Orleans, Italian balsamic, and Spanish sherry.

French Orleans adds a brisk, sharp flavor to salad dressings. It is also absorbs the flavor of herbs.

"Balsamic means to improve your health in Italian," said Jonna. For nearly 1,000 years, balsamic vinegar has been made in Modena, Italy from the Trebbiano grape. "It has an amazing flavor," said Jonna. He sprinkles balsamic vinegar on vegetables, pasta, fresh fruit, and salads..

Sherry vinegar tastes like sherry, and has a nutty flavor, and natural sweetness.

One of Jonna's favorite marinades for beef and lamb is garlic, sesame seed-oil, olive oil, balsamic vinegar, and a little lemon juice.

Make a Mexican black bean pizza

See Larry Janes's Taste Buds column on Taste front.

This recipe submitted by Dave Schmitt of Phoenix, Ariz., was a $10,000 winner in the 1992 Pillsbury Bake-Off.

BLACK BEAN MEXICAN PIZZA

1 can (10 oz.) Pillsbury refrigerated all-ready pizza crust
1 can (15 oz.) black beans, drained and rinsed
3 tablespoons olive oil or vegetable oil
2 tablespoons chopped fresh cilantro
1 teaspoon cumin
1 teaspoon hot red pepper sauce
½ teaspoon minced garlic
4 ounces (1 cup) shredded Monterey Jack cheese
4 ounces (1 cup) shredded Cheddar Cheese
1 can (2 ¼ oz.) sliced ripe olives, drained
½ cup sliced red bell pepper
¼ cup sliced green onions
½ cup dairy sour cream
¼ cup green or red taco sauce
1 cup thick and chunky salsa

Preheat oven to 425 degrees. Lightly grease a 12-inch pizza pan. Unroll dough and place in the greased pan.

(Chef's Note: You can make your own pizza dough, if desired, or use one of those new Boboli shells!)

Bake the dough at 425 degrees until light golden brown, 7-10 minutes.

In a food processor with a metal blade, combine beans, oil, cilantro, cumin, hot red pepper sauce and garlic; process until smooth, frequently scraping down the sides of the bowl. (Bean mixture can be mashed by hand but will not be as smooth)

Spread bean mixture evenly over partially baked crust.

Sprinkle with cheeses, olives, bell pepper and onions. Bake at 425 degrees until crust is deep golden brown and cheese is melted, about 10-12 minutes. In a small bowl, combine sour cream and taco sauce. Blend well. Serve pizza with sour cream mixture and salsa. Serves 6-8.

Cook beans fast in microwave oven

Sure, you can bake beans all day long in a hot oven. Or, you can cook them in your microwave oven in less than 30 minutes. What's even better is the cleanup. You cook, mix, heat and serve all in the same casserole. Now, that's easy summertime cooking.

SAVORY THREE-BEAN BAKE

6 slices bacon
2 medium onions, sliced and separated into rings
One 16-ounce can baked beans
One 16-ounce can butter beans, drained
One 8 1¼-ounce can lima beans, drained
1 ½ cup packed brown sugar
1 ½ cup chili sauce
3 tablespoons vinegar
1 tablespoon prepared mustard

In a 2-quart microwave-safe casserole arrange bacon. Cover with microwave-safe paper towels to prevent spattering. Cook on 100 percent power (high) for 4 to 7 minutes or until crisp. Remove bacon from the dish, reserving 1 tablespoon of the drippings. Drain on paper towels. Crumble and set aside.

Add onion rings to reserved drippings in casserole. Cook, covered, on high for 3 to 5 minutes or until onion is tender, stirring once. Drain well.

In the same casserole combine bacon, onion rings, undrained baked beans, drained butter beans, drained lima beans, brown sugar, chili sauce, vinegar and mustard. Cook, uncovered, on high for 11 to 13 minutes or until heated through, stirring once. Makes 6 servings.

Music makers: Creating the sound for Those Who Dream are vocalist Gary Hancock, drummer and keyboardist Michael Holden, bass guitarist and flutist Brooke Ann Ratliff and guitarist Jeff Jolly.

Bit of this, that makes Dreams

Take a few guitars. Blend in some drums, a little keyboard, drum pads and flute. Mix well . . . It may sound like a recipe and it is, a recipe for the sound of Those Who Dream, an alternative pop group that maintains that their unique style gives them a cleaner sound then the competition.

BY KRISTEN KNUDSEN
SPECIAL WRITER

Sitting amidst guitars, drums and bass guitars, three men and a woman try to create their special music. Sounds pretty normal, right?

But throw in some flutes. Or some drum pads with keyboard effects. Add some more sound effects off of tapes from the local library and you have the music of Those Who Dream.

Drummer and keyboardist Michael Holden, 24, of Royal Oak, has a simple explanation for this band's novel approach.

"After playing for so long, I was bored; I wanted to expand and I now have access to many different sounds which I couldn't get before," explained Holden, who works days in a shipping and receiving department at a Royal Oak company and gives private music lessons.

One such sound is wind blowing at the end of the song, "Stirling."

"I'd get bored, too," admits Brooke Ann Ratliff, 22, of Auburn Hills, the group's bass guitarist and flutist. "I really missed all the studio equipment I used to have when I would go to school."

Ratliff attended the Baldwin-Wallis Conservatory for three years and now works as a bookkeeper in Auburn Hills.

"I'd get tapes of sound effects and I'd just feed them from a tape recorder into a 4-track, just like that Beatles album, 'Sergeant Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band,'" she said.

That doesn't mean, however, that Those Who Dream sound like the Beatles. Ratliff describes their sound as "alternative pop rock," and the rest of the band agrees. They are a cross between Toad the Wet Sprocket and King Crimson — with traces of The Cure.

"We try to do things differently," said Ratliff of their music. "We have a cleaner sound than most alternative bands.

"Jeff (Jolly, the band's guitarist) uses a lot of effects. He's got some rack mount effects that he uses constantly and then the reverb and the echo effect that he uses give us kind of a wide, open sound."

Jolly, 30, of Royal Oak is a graduate of Michigan State University and an operations manager at a print shop in Royal Oak.

"I get a lot of space in our music," Ratliff said. "It's got like a larger, cleaner sound than your average, grungy bar band."

The special sound no doubt contributed to the band's victory at the 1991 Battle of the Bands at The Ritz in Roseville.

"We are four people that approach one song idea from four different points of view," said Holden. "Instead of conforming to each other, we just play what we want to play, and that's how it comes out."

Their special sound results from a drummer with influences in jazz, Latin and classical music, a guitarist influenced by the '60s, a bassist who likes Disco House music and a singer who claims no special influence at all.

"I let the music take its course and sort of just fit the lyrics in where they go," said vocalist Gary Hancock, 28, of Royal Oak.

By day Hancock sells advertising for a Royal Oak company. He also attends Oakland Community College, where he is studying computer applications.

But even with such unbridled energy, sometimes it's hard for a band to achieve recognition.

"The whole Detroit scene is based on the techno-rave dance parties every weekend," said Holden, who studied music at Wayne State University. "You go out and all the dance clubs are packed — guaranteed — every weekend, where the bars are always empty."

Those Who Dream aren't giving up, though. They enjoy playing and their special brand of music knows how to entertain. It seems that a challenge is what this band likes best.

"Musically, I like to challenge myself with every song," said Holden. "My most recent song, I play 12-string guitar on it, which is just something different."

"I also have a trumpet," he said, much to his bandmates' chagrin. "Surprise."

Those Who Dream will perform with Neophyte Nation Thursday, June 25, at Griff's Grill, 49 Saginaw, Pontiac, and a semi-acoustic set 8 p.m. to midnight Saturday, June 27, at Gayle's Chocolates in Royal Oak.

It's Cat, Ash Can and compilations

LARRY O'CONNOR

Their intentions are wholesome, but Birmingham-based Confuse a Cat make some deviously construed music on their cassette "Ankles."

Vocals and guitars swerve, skitter and scrape the pavement, but somehow manage to avoid their predestined crash. Confuse a Cat wear the seat belts of musical restraint.

At the same time, though, the band willingly sheds the shackles of type or structure. Melody is a dirty word around this bunch, which appears to be trying to craft its own beatnik beat borne out of suburban boredom.

In their creative nadir they can whip out a swirling dervish number such as "Latin Libra." Cathy Connell's piercing guitar lines and Jim Miller's murmuring vocal persuasions make this a highlight. In "Empty" Connell's speculative guitar work is aptly showcased amid the scratchy strafe of Dave Byrd's drumming and Jenny Gabel's pulsating bass lines.

Confuse a Cat is still in the formulation stage with their sound, inciting a whole range of possible comparisons from the natty Violent Femmes to the orchestral dementia put forth by Universal Congress Of to the distorted guitars employed by Sonic Youth.

Dressed up as "Latin Libra" is with a violin or stripped down to the core as "TV Boy" is with Miller's detached vocals, Confuse a Cat succeed mainly due to their earnestness.

At their worst, they at least present a shell of a number that's worthy of further exploration.

(360 Records, 288 E. Maple, Suite No. 130, Birmingham 48009)

"Out of the Ash Can," J.C. Whitelaw — The former member of Ash Can VanGogh and Birmingham resident dealt with the breakup from his longtime girlfriend and his band the only way he knew how — he locked himself in the studio and made an album.

The pain and emotional tumult from those events are revealed in the lyrics, ironically, through 12 folk rock-tinged numbers that are brimming with life musically and, indeed, spiritually uplifting.

Listeners are initially more likely be enamored with J.C. Whitelaw's musical adroitness. There's a lot to like.

His uncanny ability to putting forth, seemingly effortlessly, a jaunty, indelible folk rock number such "The Thread" to using his acoustic guitar as a paint brush as he does in the riveting instrumental "Rosolo" is commendable.

Though it has been framed and hung on the wall with impeccable musicianship and flawless harmonies, the pain in Whitelaw's album is real and something of an evolving grief process.

He rejoices in the fruits of love in "Don't Wake Me" and speaks to the disorientation once it's suddenly gone in "Without It" and even allows himself to indulge in the bitterness. Sings Whitelaw amid the pounding rock beat in "Troubled Times:" "I don't know if I'll forgive you/You left me high and dry/left my world a shambles and I don't know why/You take my best years and toss them aside."

On the last cut, "Rainbows (Telegram Song)" Whitelaw reconciles himself to the finality and to the hope encased in an upbeat pop-rock number. The number, as does the album, symbolizes a personal and musical triumph.

(Meridan Productions, 31125 Froom, Birmingham 48025)

"Dostoevsky Lose Its Flavour on the Bedpost Overnight?" various artists — This compilation is of interest locally due to the contribution from this area's Icehead whose "Goddess of Love" is a sonic breaker in a sea of aural sensations.

Side one contains some of the most brooding and cavernous musical exploration heard this side of the Atlantic from nondescript artists such as Speed of Pleasure ("Can't Sleep") and Les Boulevardiers ("Hourglass") not to mention the brilliant trance-like folk number by Sean McDermott and Hugh O'Carroll "Wouldsheboldmetightenerifshelovedme."

Side two stays more with convention, albeit damn fine sounding. An Irish ska band? "Limbo Police" by Freres Jackman deftly captures a bit of the blue beat spirit while Feargal is the Applejack's "Talking to Yourself" is sugary pop gloriously doused with arsenic. "Goddess of Knew how — he locked himself in the studio and made an album.

The pain and emotional tumult from those events are revealed in the lyrics, ironically, through 12 folk rock-tinged numbers that are brimming with life musically and, indeed, spiritually uplifting.

Listeners are initially more likely be enamored with J.C. Whitelaw's musical adroitness. There's a lot to like.

Book probes heavy metal genre

AP — Heavy metal records consistently sell well, but the musical genre is much maligned and misunderstood.

Bands like Metallica, Skid Row, Guns N' Roses and Def Leppard have had albums make their debut at No. 1 on the Billboard charts in the last two years. Still, heavy metal draws the fire of such disparate detractors as the Parents Music Resource Center, the Parent-Teacher Association, fundamentalist religions and critic Lester Bangs.

And while Bangs and others note how the music is associated with violence, aggression, suicide, sexual perversion, alcohol and drug abuse and Satanism, heavy metal counts legions of fans.

In her book, "Heavy Metal: A Cultural Sociology," sociologist Deena Weinstein attempts to unravel the myths, misconceptions and truths about metal.

A professor at DePaul University in Chicago, Weinstein said she tried hard to maintain her objectivity. But as she pointed out: "What would objective be — saying that it's half devil worship and half not? There's no real middle ground to take any mealy-mouthed center on."

The book takes a detailed look at heavy metal — its history, fans, dress code, the artists and themes prevalent in the lyrics. It discusses metal's detractors on the left and the right, the metal media and the phenomenon of the metal concert.

While writing the book, she would test her theories on fans, bands and record-industry people to make sure her interpretations were on track.

"I really wanted to write a scholarly book, not a fan's book," she said. "I'm into postmodernism theoretically, and one of its major tenets is that people don't have the same reading (of things). So I tried to get what a fan's reading would be and what the industry(s) and the artists' (reading would be)."

The term "heavy metal" has various origins. Bangs popularized the term in his writings for Creem and Rolling Stone in the 1970s, but the term was also used in William S. Burroughs' story "The Heavy Metal Kid" and in Steppenwolf's song "Born to Be Wild."

Weinstein credits two British bands, Led Zeppelin and Black Sabbath, for being the pioneers of metal and calls England its birthplace.

Heavy metal music, Weinstein said, has three dimensions — sonic, verbal, and visual — and its lyrics fall into two categories — Dionysian themes and themes of chaos.

Metal bands can also be categorized into "lite" metal (Poison, Def Leppard), "classic" metal (Judas Priest, Iron Maiden) and "thrash-death" metal (Metallica, Slayer).

Dionysian lyrics deal with romance and sexual pleasure and the gratification found in intoxication and in the music itself, topics most beloved by the "lite" groups.

Lyrics dealing with chaos are more prevalent in thrash and classic metal and deal with "the absence or destruction of relationships, which can run from confusion, through various forms of anomaly, conflict, and violence, to death."

The typical heavy metal fan is a young, white, blue-collar male.

Even though he's commonly known as a "burnout" in school, he's an astute critic of the music and often highly knowledgeable about a band's history — no different, she said, than what "a very elite classical music audience" member is able to do.

Metal and its fans will never be hip or cool, according to Weinstein. The working class has never been hip, nor do people see them as hip. They are "retreatists from the political scene and that's not hip either," she said.

So music, particularly heavy metal, gives these people an area in which they can show their expertise and get esteem from other people, Weinstein said.

"They (metal fans) don't have any faith in school, or their parents, or the mass media, or religion to give them wisdom, and so all of the major institutions of society seem not to have anything to say to them," she said.

"They see metal as a place where wisdom and goodness, where true beauty and power, all come together."

That fan profile, Weinstein believes, is the basis behind the criticism leveled at metal.

"If heavy metal was beloved by people with college degrees who are good, upstanding members of the community with small children, then I think it would have a very different kind of criticism," she said. "Partly by damning metal, what they're doing is damning the kids."

"Heavy Metal: A Cultural Sociology," published Lexington Books, an imprint of Macmillan Inc., has a suggested retail price of $24.95.

PASS THE POPCORN

LeANNE ROGERS

A pornographic movie producer gets the tar beaten out of him by the irate father of a teenage "actress" in the opening scenes of the thriller "Defenseless." The battered man and his assailant both disappear, serving as red herrings as the plot unwinds.

Barbara Hershey is an attorney representing the wealthy businessman who is being sued over the production of the pornographic movies. Smarmily played by J.T. Walsh, the businessman owns the building where the movies were made though he denies any connection or knowledge of what his tenants were doing.

The attorney, who clearly doesn't have her act together on a personal level, is having an affair with her client, which certainly raises some questions about her professional conduct as well. He's "married in name only." Sure, and the check is in the mail.

To further complicate matters, Hershey runs into her best pal from college, played by Mary Beth Hurt, who happens to be married to Walsh. That leads to an incredibly awkward dinner with the couple and their teenage daughter in their gleaming white house.

Breaking off her relationship with Walsh, Hershey stops by his office after hours the next evening. When she discovers he has also lied to her about his involvement with the pornographic movies, she explodes and wails on him.

After she realizes she ran off without her keys, Hershey returns to find the businessman has been murdered.

The irate father is a good suspect but the dead man's wife turns out to be an even better suspect. Hershey, a material witness to the murder, is able to overcome that conflict by means the audience never sees and ends up representing Hurt on murder charges.

From there, the movie goes into a plot reminiscent of "Jagged Edge." I won't reveal who murdered the businessman but by this point it's pretty obvious.

Just about everyone in this picture is screwed up in some manner. I've never seen a film with so many characters whose lives are in shambles. Hershey sort of sums her character up with a comment that she often does things without thinking. That's kind of an understatement and lands her in some deep trouble. I have to give the movie credit for showing Hershey as a competent, if not somewhat gullible attorney. She even dresses like a working attorney, no skintight leather suits.

The most interesting character in the movie, although none are really examined to much depth, is a detective played by Sam Shepard. This guy is sly, he is always watching and digging, piecing things together. He uses a certain amount of personal bonding in trying to get what he wants, which is the truth about the murder.

You, and Hershey, can't be sure if he's taking a personal or professional interest in the lawyer. Watch for the scene when the two talk in a car after she has gotten a few licks in while cross examining him. There's a lot of stuff going on.

I've seen better suspense films than "Defenseless" but I've also seen a whole lot worse. If you can overlook some of its clumsier plot devices, it's enjoyable.

"Denfenseless" is available on video cassette at your local video store.

"The Birds" (USA — 1963). June 24-29 (call for show times). Alfred Hitchcock takes a rare journey into pure horror as birds battle a sheltered New England coastal town. Tippi Hedren and Rod Taylor star.

"Abbott and Costello Meet Frankenstein" (USA — 1948), June 24-29. The boys team up against all of the famous Universal movie monsters. Bela Lugosi and Lon Chaney Jr. reprise their Dracula and werewolf roles while Glen Strange takes a turn at Frankenstein's monster. A rare chance to see this Sunday morning television staple on the big screen.

Pfeiffer steals the show as Catwoman

JOHN MONAGHAN

The controversy has ended. Whether or not Michael Keaton is qualified to play the Caped Crusader hardly matters. "Batman Returns," after all, belongs to Michelle Pfeiffer's Catwoman.

The feline femme fatale slinks her way across the screen in shiny black vinyl held together by roughly sewn stitches. She downs villains with a swipe of her cat claws, then chides the victims for foolishly waiting for a man, a Batman, to save them.

Catwoman aside, "Batman Returns" falls into the same deadly traps as the 1989 mega hit. Much like its portrayal of the comic book hero, the movie is impressively massive, stylized, and outfitted with expensive toys. It also spends way too much time developing a plot that no one cares much about.

Christopher Walken, sporting the same vague European accent he used in "The Comfort of Strangers," does another villainous turn as Max Schreck, a wealthy industrialist who tries to convince Gotham City that they need more power. Actually, he plans to suck and store energy and eventually hold the city hostage.

Meanwhile, a mysterious penguin-man has been spotted in Gotham's sewers. When he finally surfaces, the Penguin (Danny DeVito) has his own scheme to get revenge on the parents who abandoned him as a child.

"I was son number one," he says, "but they treated me like number two."

Tim Burton returns as director on this second "Batman," but his style has become too recognizable. The blue-tinged cinematography and obvious use of miniatures that distinguished his previous pictures grows almost precious here.

He has reached for something different with his set designers, who may still be the true stars of the movie. The first "Batman's" Gothic influence makes way for a touch of Germany between the wars, with variations on such New York City landmarks as Rockefeller Center and Central Park.

The German influence is felt elsewhere. Film buffs will recall that the villain's name, Max Schreck, is borrowed from the actor who played Dracula in the 1922 classic "Nosferatu."

The biggest problems with "Batman Returns" can be found in the script by Daniel Waters ("Hudson Hawk"), which relies on the hackneyed premise that the Penguin runs for Mayor. Most scenes last less than a minute, yet the movie still gets bogged down in mundane detail.

Danny DeVito's Penguin, meanwhile, is too stuffed full of pillows to be all that menacing. He borrows The Joker's thick pancake makeup as well as his devil clown henchmen.

Catwoman is the real villain to contend with. Julie Newmar's Catwoman was ultra-sexy in the 1960s' TV series, but her evil side turned to mush for her unrequited love with the ever-stiff Batman. Pfeiffer's feminist version has a deleterious hatred for the Caped Crusader and his macho flexing.

Definitely join the lines to see "Batman Returns" this summer. Enjoy the look and the rousing

Meeee-Wow: Michelle Pfeiffer steals the show as Catwoman in "Batman Returns."

Danny Elfman score. But if you're anticipating the ultimate adaptation of the comic book, look to the next installment.

Best wishes extended to ex-prep soccer star

I'm sure the entire Observer readership joins me in extending best wishes for a speedy and full recovery to Jenny Emmett of Plymouth.

Jenny, who graduated from Salem High School earlier this month, underwent a bone-marrow transplant Friday at Harper Hospital in Detroit.

Emmett was twice an all-state goalkeeper while playing for the Rocks. She had a blood disease called myelodiplastic syndrome, an early form of leukemia which necessitated the transplant.

The procedure went well and there were no complications, but doctors will have to wait several days before they'll know how well the transplant worked, Jenny's mother, Linda Emmett, said Friday night.

Mackenzie Emmett, Jenny's younger sister, was the donor. Despite being weak and tired herself after giving the marrow, Mackenzie was able to be with Jenny as she received the donation.

"They said 'I love you' and held hands for awhile," Linda Emmett said.

The actual transplant was anti-climactic since Jenny had to undergo 10 days of chemotherapy treatment prior to it, according to her mother.

Jenny will be hospitalized for nearly a month and will be homebound, with her activity severely limited, for about a year while she receives outpatient treatment several times a week.

"The procedure is really rough; it's difficult on the body," Linda Emmett said. "It's rough but she's doing well."

To help the Emmett family with expenses, McDonald's on Ann Arbor Road in Plymouth, where Jenny formerly worked, will have a special Jenny Emmett Day on Saturday, June 27.

McDonald's plans to donate 25 cents from the sale of every large sandwich from lunchtime through the end of the day to the Emmetts.

Anyone wishing to send Jenny a card or letter can write to her at the following address: Jenny Emmett, Harper Hospital, Room 419 Green, 3990 John R, Detroit, MI 48201.

Holmes outstanding pitcher?

While covering the Final Four in girls softball a week ago in Battle Creek, I found it puzzling how Canton's Kelly Holmes could, in the eyes of the opposition, be considered an average pitcher one day and a great pitcher the next.

Curiously, it seemed to depend on who won and lost.

After the Chiefs defeated Flint Kearsley 5-1 in the semifinals, some players on the losing team grudgingly offered minimal praise for Holmes, who hurled a three-hitter, fanned seven and walked none. There were other pitchers in their league as good as her, they said.

Following the championship game, which Canton lost 1-0 in nine innings, the Jenison players were overflowing with kudos for Holmes, who gave up six hits, struck out 10 and walked one.

"She's the best pitcher we've seen all year," Becky Droog said. "We haven't seen that kind of pitching in a long time," said Toni Carter.

Jenison's Stephanie Baker asked Holmes if she was a senior. Kelly said no, she was a junior. "I pity the poor underclassmen," Baker said.

And well she should.

Holmes, who has 635 career strikeouts and a 53-9 record, is well known among college coaches and is on everybody's recruiting list. She should be able to name her school next year, being that she is a straight-A student, too.

Turning point in season

Canton softball coach Jim Arnold made an interesting comment after the Chiefs won a regional championship June 6.

He said his players had taught him a lot about coaching this year. Assuming it's usually the coach who teaches the players, what did he mean?

Apparently, the team and Arnold did some soul searching after losing a second time to Northville during the regular season. It seems the girls made a renewed commitment and, by mutual agreement, helped to make their coach a mellow fellow in the process.

"I said some things I should not have," Arnold said. "I knew we were a better ball team" but the team wasn't showing it. "We made a commitment as coaches and players, and it was a big turning point in our season.

"At the beginning of the season, I was a yeller and a screamer. After our meeting, I quit yelling so much and let the team play.

"This team has been the closest thing to being a family. It's by far the best softball team that has come through Canton, and I personally believe I will never have another team like this."

Errors doom East stars

West was best Thursday in the ninth-annual Michigan High School Baseball Coaches Association All-Star Game at Tiger Stadium. The East, featuring local stars Scott Kapla, Mark Temple and Ed Gundry, lost 17-10.

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

Rochester Adams' John Guerrieri was one of four coaches guiding the East team in Thursday's Michigan High School Baseball Coaches Association All-Star Game at Tiger Stadium.

It's a good thing they had that many coaches.

The East made seven pitching changes during a 17-10 loss to the West and one coach would have gotten worn out making that many trips to the pitcher's mound.

"We each took our turns," Guerrieri said. "I didn't bring my walking shoes."

The East pitching staff, which included North Farmington's ace right-hander Mark Temple, allowed eight hits but eight errors led to most of the West's scoring. The West also committed eight errors but they weren't quite as costly.

It was a struggle most of the day for the all-stars, even for West shortstop Derek Jeter (Portage Central), who was drafted in the first round (sixth overall) in the recent Major League draft by the New York Yankees. Jeter committed two errors and had no hits in four at-bats.

The best play of the game might have come from East coach Bob Gilling (Washington Eisenhower), who bare-handed a sharply-hit ground ball in the third base coach's box.

Redford Catholic Central ace Scott Kapla did not pitch because of a sore arm but played most of the way at third base. It also hurt that all-state left-hander Charles Winters, from Detroit St. Martin DePorres, never showed up to Wednesday's banquet or the game.

"Our pitching got thin for some reason," said Garden City coach Bob Dropp, an assistant with the East team. "We had no one to dominate."

The East led 1-0 after the first inning but the West scored three in the third, three in the fifth and nine in the seventh to open up a commanding 15-1 lead. The nine runs in the seventh were unearned as the East committed five errors and three wild pitches.

Kapla started at third base alongside shortstop Ed Gundry, of Plymouth Salem. Gundry failed to get a hit but Kapla was instrumental in two of the East's scoring rallies.

Kapla was hit by a pitched ball in the first to load the bases and the next batter, Scott Brewer (Wyandotte Roosevelt) collected an RBI after Jeter misplayed his ground ball.

Kapla also delivered a single down the third-base line in the seventh that scored the East's Most Valuable Player Shawen Penzak (Fraser) with the team's second run.

Kapla's other memorable moments came in the field. In the first inning he ranged far to his left to spear a grounder hit by Jeter and threw to first for the out; in the second inning, Kapla fielded a grounder to third, slipped on the ground, then tagged out a runner at third base before throwing to second base for a double play.

"I got the ball in fair territory, slipped, and when I slipped I knew I didn't have a chance to get the runner at first," Kapla said. "So I dived at the runner at first and got him out, then one of my teammates yelled, 'Two,' and I threw it over there."

Temple played one inning at third base in place of Kapla and also pitched in relief in the sixth and seventh innings. He came on with the bases loaded and two outs in the sixth and was able to get Jeter to pop out for the third out.

Temple, suffering from a cold, wasn't able to get any of the four batters he faced out in the seventh, however, as the West went on its nine-run onslaught. An error by the East first baseman on the leadoff batter in the seventh didn't help Temple's cause.

Concealed gains final in tourney

BY STEVE KOWALSKI

After starting the season in a slump, the Concealed Security Systems Connie Mack baseball team got on a roll last weekend at the Chief Pontiac National Invitational in Waterford.

Concealed Security won all four of its games played Thursday and Friday at J.C. Park in Pontiac to advance to Sunday's championship round. Coach Lou Pirronello's team improved to 5-4 overall after starting the season at 1-4.

"We feel good about getting this far after starting out horribly," Pirronello said. "The last two years we lost three games in our league (Little Caesars) total and this year we're already 1-3. Everybody was just shaking their heads, wondering how this is happening."

On Thursday, fans at J.C. Park were shaking their heads over the hitting of Concealed Security's Jeff Keathley, who is considering attending Madonna University in the fall. Keathley hit a home run his first three trips to the plate as Concealed Security mercied Bloomington, Ill. 13-0.

Dan Scutchfield was the winning pitcher, allowing two hits and striking out eight over five innings. Each of Keathley's homers was worth two runs. Craig Peterson (Milford and Madonna University) went 3-for-4 with three RBI.

Keathley continued his hot hitting in Thursday's second game — a 9-7 win over Royal Oak. Keathley hit one homer in two trips to the plate for two RBI and began to be the "talk of the tournament," according to Pirronello.

"He was just crushing the ball and the next two games (Friday) teams were pitching very carefully to him," Pirronello said.

Peterson was 2-for-3 with a double and an RBI and he also earned the save in two innings of relief for starting pitcher Dwight Trammer. Trammer lasted four innings, allowing only one hit and seven runs, one earned.

Cuba Gregory also contributed to the victory with two hits and three RBI.

Each team committed five errors.

Concealed Security won a pair of games Friday.

Dan Gusoff (Redford Catholic Central) was the winning pitcher in a 9-7 win over Greensboro, N.C. Gusoff allowed eight hits, four walks and struck out three in five innings of work. The save went to Derek Fox (Birmingham Brother Rice), who allowed no runs and one hit in two innings.

Mark D'Antonio (Dearborn Divine Child) hit a solo homer in the sixth inning to break a 7-7 tie. D'Antonio also had an RBI single in the fifth to score Scutchfield. Gregory was 2-3 with three stolen bases and two runs scored.

Concealed beat Pittsburgh, Pa., 7-3, to start the day Friday. D'Antonio was the winning pitcher, allowing nine hits, fanning seven and walking five. Scott Niemec (Plymouth Salem, University of Michigan) had a two-run double and Peterson hit a three-run double during a six-run third inning rally.

S'craft has good players, just not enough

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

In summing up the recruiting for Schoolcraft College's women's soccer team, the quality is there but not the quantity.

So what else is new?

Every year, it seems, the Lady Ocelots — NJCAA champions in 1987 — come up a player or two short in their hunt for another national title. Lady Ocelot coach Nick O'Shea usually gets a fine nucleus to build around, but numbers are lacking. In each of the last two seasons, there weren't enough able bodies for him to field a full team at the NJCAA Tournament.

Still, it should be noted that, even if they were short-handed, the Ocelots managed to finish third in the country in 1990 and fourth in 1991.

Of last year's players, four completed their eligibility; five others decided not to return, including stopper Lori Place, who will attend Michigan State in the fall.

"That's going to leave a big hole in our team," said O'Shea. "And it's going to be hard to fill."

Others not returning include Carol Pietila, who injured her knee last fall and had reconstructive surgery. She is still rehabilitating it. Three others — Beth Hebestreit, Colleen O'Connor and Becky Dinverno — were only expected to play one year.

The losses to graduation are heavy. Gone are Nikki Johnson, Sarah Hayes, Shannon Meath and Jennifer Whitfield. Together with Place and returnees Kim Owczarzak and Amy Krajewski, they formed the heart of last season's squad.

At least Owczarzak, the Ocelots' keeper, and Krajewski, the sweeper, give O'Shea something to construct his defense around. "With Amy in the back and Kim a proven goalie, it should help get the team going," said O'Shea.

And he has some solid players coming in. But there are only eight for certain, which means there are positions to fill.

Offense, it appears, will be the team's strength. Five of the newcomers were top-notch forwards in high school.

"They were goal-scorers in their leagues," noted O'Shea. "The question is, can they come in and do it at this level?"

Among the "newcomers" is a player who isn't so new — Jennifer Flowers, a Livonia Churchill graduate who played for O'Shea's '87 NJCAA title team. Flowers hasn't played collegiately since, and has decided to return for her final season of eligibility.

She is a proven scorer. "She's scored a lot of goals at this level," the SC coach said.

What about midfielders?

Other forwards signed by O'Shea are Kelly Greaves, from Milford Lakeland; Dee Lorenz, from Milford; Nikki Cross, from Northville; and Shelly Archibald, a 1991 Class B-C-D all-stater from St. Clair Shores Lakeview.

The rest of the recruits includes defenders Becca Raymor, a standout from Plymouth Canton, and Cindy Wolstead, from Northville. O'Shea is particularly impressed with Raymor: "She was a solid defender at Canton and she'll be a solid defender at this level."

He's also signed another keeper, Julie Brake from Dearborn Fordson.

Now the obvious question — there are keepers, defenders and forwards, but who's going to play midfield?

O'Shea hasn't an answer yet, except that he's still busy recruiting. "I'm sending out letters to first team, second team and honorable mention all-state players to see if they're interested in playing," he said. "Hopefully, we can pick up a couple of midfielders."

A strong midfield is essential to a team's success. But O'Shea remains encouraged by the players he's signed so far. "The thing I like about this team is, these girls want to play," he said. "Last year, I was calling people and begging them to come and play.

"All of (the recruits) are solid players. Not superstars, but good players."

Still, unless he finds a few more of the same caliber to patrol the midfield, it will be another short-handed year for the Ocelots.

Dairy King endures early setbacks

Canton-Plymouth Dairy King is 1-6-1 in the Mickey Mantle division of the Little Caesars Baseball Federation.

The lone victory came in the second game of a doubleheader with Livonia Chryson on June 6 but didn't count in the league standings. Robbie Caron was the winning pitcher in the 6-0 shutout.

The season opener resulted in a suspended game June 2 and will be concluded tonight. The game was halted after seven innings because of darkness with Dairy King and Westland I tied 3-3.

Mike Applegate hit a two-run single and Mark Biro drew a bases-loaded walk to account for the Canton runs. Scott Valimont is working on a complete game and returns to the mound with six strikeouts and three walks.

Other games and the Dairy King highlights:

• Valimont pitched seven innings in the latest game Tuesday, but Canton lost a 12-8 slugfest to host North Farmington-West Bloomfield.

Ryan Ostach had a three-run double to lead Dairy King. Alex Wright had an RBI single and scored on an error. Applegate also knocked in a run, and Joe Niemenski drew an RBI walk. Eric Arnold and Jeremy Hill scored on wild pitches.

• Hill had three hits in a 9-4 loss to visiting Dearborn Heights on June 13. Sam Brannock, Brian Lemke and Hill had RBI singles. Arnold drove in a run with a sacrifice fly. Wright was the losing pitcher.

• Applegate and Niemenski had two hits each, but Dairy King couldn't generate enough offense to overcome host Westland I, which posted an 11-3 victory on June 11.

Applegate had two RBI, Niemenski scored two runs and Kovach had an RBI double. Valimont suffered the loss.

• Dairy King lost the first half of its doubleheader with Livonia 8-0 at Ford Field on June 6. Canton batters had only two hits and struck out 12 times.

• Kevin Kovachevich, Arnold and Niemenski had RBI singles during a 5-3 loss to Southfield at Canton on June 5. Ostach had two hits, stole two bases and scored a run.

Arnold started and pitched four innings, but the loss went to Chris Agius, who gave up four runs over the next three innings.

• Ostach also had two hits and scored a run the previous day in a 7-3 loss to visiting Southgate.

Biro doubled to send in one run, and Arnold and Ostach had RBI singles. Caron was the starter and loser, going four innings and giving up four runs. Arnold pitched one inning of relief and Wright two.

The Canton-Horton Plumbing Connie Mack team is 1-2 in the LCBF, winning 3-2 over Westland II and losing 1-0 to Salem and 2-0 to Westland I. Canton and Salem are the only in-house teams in the LCBF Mantle and Mack divisions.

Doing the pitching for Horton Plumbing are Brad Paskievitch, Craig Benedict, Matt Paupore, Dan Conrad, Matt Horn, Dean Rovinelli and Mike Stafford.

The roster includes catchers Todd Pniewski and Chris Johnson, infielders Neil Dixon, Adam Gilles and Eric Marcotte; outfielders Ryan Fordham, Mark Schankowski, Mike Stepp and Sam Brannock, who was moved up from the Mantle team.

All home games are played at the Canton High School field.

Minor leagues nothing to Bragg about

By Steve Kowalski
Staff Writer

Greg Haeger has spent the last two summers playing minor league baseball for the Fayetteville Tigers near Fort Bragg, N.C., and he still hasn't found anything to brag about.

Haeger isn't satisfied with the way he's pitched for Class A Fayetteville, nor is he thrilled about living in Fort Bragg — a place known for military types and not much else.

"If you want to see guys with crew cuts, come on down," said Haeger, a Livonia resident who graduated in 1987 from Redford Catholic Central. "There's thousands of military guys."

Haeger, who lives in an apartment which he equates to low-income housing, has struggled in his third year with the Tigers'. At midweek, the left-handed relief pitcher was 2-1 with one save, 32 strikeouts and a 4.60 earned run average.

Haeger has struggled with control, however, walking 27 batters in 29⅓ innings. The low point came last month when he walked eight batters in 2⅔ innings during an 11-4 win over Asheville, N.C. Haeger was assigned to Fayetteville on the last day of spring training after working out with Lakeland, the Tigers' top Class A club. He was 4-10 last year as a starter with Fayetteville.

"The day we broke camp (at spring training), they sent me to Fayetteville because they wanted to make sure I got my innings to pitch," said Haeger, who played from 1988 through '90 at the University of Michigan. "Last year I was just learning and this year I've done nothing but walk people. I've been pitching behind people, not getting my fastball over some days, some days not getting my curve over.

"I better start doing something impressive or I won't be playing ball much longer. The opportunity is there to succeed and open doors to the next level. If not, it's time to get out of the game and finish school."

Haeger doesn't want to consider giving up baseball because teams are always looking for pitching help from left-handers who can throw strikes with velocity. His fastball has been clocked at 87 miles per hour. Haeger was impressive in his last outing, setting the side down in order without walking anyone in one inning of relief during Thursday's 2-0 win over Macon, Ga..

"You don't ever want to quit because too many things happen, this is such a weird game," he said. "As a left-hander, you never know, maybe I'll find the plate."

Caesars topples Delwal

By Ray Setlock
Staff Writer

Little Caesars coach John Moraitis said he used to be mellow when it came to removing pitchers.

"I'd leave guys in there forever," he said. "I'd let the pitchers bail themselves out."

Recently Moraitis developed a new attitude, similar to that of Detroit Tigers' skipper Sparky Anderson (also dubbed "Captain Hook").

Moraitis pulled starter Jim Solak in the fifth inning Wednesday, but not before he allowed seven runs.

Dave Roman, a product of Livonia Franklin High and a sophomore-to-be at Henry Ford Community College, came on and blanked first-place Delwal over the final 2⅓ innings, preserving a 9-7 Livonia Collegiate Baseball win at Ford Field.

BASEBALL

"It used to be that I'd go with that guy forever," Moraitis said. "But now I have no problem pulling a guy late in the game."

Solak cruised through the first four innings, blanking Delwal. But four hits and a pair of errors in the fifth proved costly.

The big blow in the fifth was a two-run triple from Delwal outfielder Noah Bremen.

"Everything was going fine and then they started hitting singles," Moraitis said. "Then we threw some balls away. It dosen't make you happy when you almost blow a 9-0 lead."

Solak isn't entirely to blame, considering just three of the seven Delwal runs were earned.

Local bowler seeks spot on Team USA

10-PIN ALLEY
AL HARRISON

It's a long way from Troy to San Diego, but that's the road to be traveled by three winning bowlers, who will be among 25 men and 16 women from around the state competing for spots on Team USA.

The state eliminations for the final spots will be held June 27-28 at Bowl One Lanes in Troy.

The bowlers competing are the winners of the Team USA qualifying rounds held at their own local bowling centers.

Among the competitors will be Farmingon Hills standout Tamika Glenn, who is competing as a junior but is trying to fill the lone spot open for women. Glenn will face stiff competition from Cora Fiebig, a Hall-of-Famer from Bowl One Lanes.

Larry Franz of Redford will be going for one of the two spots open for men. He will be challenged by Kelly Bennett (Auburn Hills), Dave Bernhardt, Bob Goike, Nick Wissinger, Jr., Rick McCardy and Mark Robey.

Another female, Karen Terry, who moved to Southfield from California, will attempt to make the squad. If all goes well, she'll be heading back from where she came.

The opening ceremonies will take place at 11:45 a.m. June 27. Competition will begin at 12:15 p.m. The bowling on June 28 will begin at 9:45 a.m.

• For bowlers who would like some competitive events, there are several smaller scale tournaments happening right in the home area.

One such event is the Eliminator singles tournament, which is held each Monday during the summer at Fiesta Lanes in Westland.

The $15 entry fee includes prize money, jackpots and high qualifiers. First Place is worth $100, based on 16 bowlers. Use the 1990-91 average or if 10 pins higher, use the 1991-92 figure. For more information call 722-1450.

• Each year, the top area bowler is honored as king of the male bowlers. This year's king is Paul Grauzer of Westland. The honor is based on points amassed in seasons competition, averages and honor scores. Grauzer had 75 points to lead all male bowlers.

'Twin Peaks' with a sense of humor

Lynch-Frost comedy lights up Saturday night

There hasn't been a really good reason to stay home and watch television on Saturday night since the mid-'70s, when "All in the Family," "Mary Tyler Moore" and "Bob Newhart" reigned on CBS. The NBC lineup has been strong in recent years, but without a must-see hit. In recessionary times, a comedy with cachet could bring a chic sheen to the necessity of staying home on date night.

Enter "On the Air," the first comedy from David Lynch and Mark Frost, who were probably laughing AT us in "Twin Peaks" and have decided to let us in on the jokes. "On the Air" debuted June 20 on ABC with one of the funniest pilots in recent memory.

Set in 1957 New York on the soundstage of a live, weekly variety show, "On the Air" sounds rather like a knock-off of Richard Benjamin's "My Favorite Year," which starred Peter O'Toole and Mark Linn-Baker, but it quickly develops a personality of its own. "On the Air" pokes fun at television's so-called Golden Age by showing how little has changed in 35 years: Audiences still watch most anything that moves, sponsors still have undue influence and it's anybody's guess what makes a hit.

The ensemble cast features Ian Buchanan ("Twin Peaks") as fading matinee idol Lester Guy, the intended star of the Zoblotnick Broadcasting Corporation's "Lester Guy Show"; Miguel Ferrer as ZBC executive Bud Budwaller; David L. Lander (remember Squiggy?) as German-born director Vladja Gochktch (pronounced just like it looks!), and Nancye Ferguson as Ruth Trueworthy, Gochktch's smiling translator and spin doctor.

Also starring are Tracey Walter (Joker's assistant Bob in "Batman") as visually challenged sound technician Blinky Watts; longtime character actor Marvin Kaplan ("Top Cat," "Alice") as Dwight McGonigle, a hand-wringing nebish and the show's nominal producer; and newcomer Marla Jeanette Rubinoff as Guy's hopelessly dumb blonde co-star, Betty Hudson, whose fragile innocence makes her America's TV sweetheart. And yes, there's a dwarf: Irwin Keyes plays stagehand Shorty.

Once or twice in each episode, there are glimpses of "Lester Guy" viewers, happily transfixed in their bathrobes, curlers and muscle T-shirts, enjoying the show no matter what. The apparent prisoners of dreary, meaningless lives, they leave one to wonder whether Lynch, Frost, et al. would want to claim any viewer who would willingly watch their show.

Among the pitfalls of any TV-industry spoof is the tendency for the jokes to become too inside. With a combination of physical comedy and insanity-by-any-standard, Lynch and Frost avoid this trap. Angelo Badalamenti, who scored "Twin Peaks," has composed a dreamy theme for "On the Air" that defies the bebop cliche and transports the viewer to a time and place that probably never existed. Though the comedic payoff of the pilot is not matched in subsequent episodes, this is a summer series to win the heart.

LET'S TALK

'True Colors' dad dead?; Pauly has a buhh-dy

By Taylor Michaels

Q: What happened to the first husband on Fox's True Colors*? Did he die? Cleavon Little took his place. I'm so concerned. —Inis Jones, Gary, Ind.*

A: No, actor Frankie Faison, who played patriarch Ron Freeman, hasn't died. The show's press contact offers little in the way of explanation for Faison's departure, which is generally the case in situations like this, other than to say "Mr. Faison has gone on to other endeavors."

Q: I was wondering if you could give me the address of David Lascher, who plays Ted on Nickelodeon's Hey Dude. —Jennifer Compton, Walnut Ridge, Ark.

A: You may write to Lascher in care of Hey Dude, Nickelodeon, 1515 Broadway, New York, N.Y., 10036.

Q: At least 15 years ago, I watched a TV show on a Sunday evening — I don't know if it was movie or a documentary. It was about the first Olympic Games in which a United States team participated. The athletes traveled by boat, were late and were not expected to win in any events but ended up winning several. I enjoyed it very much and would like to see it again.

Can you shed any light on the name of the program and if it is available on video? No one else I've talked to seems to have seen it, and I am beginning to wonder if it does exist. —Carol Demert, Janesville, Minn.

A: First, the bad news: The movie you mention, The First Olympics: Athens, 1896, is not available on home video.

The good news is that, if you or someone you know subscribes to The Disney Channel, you will be able to catch the 1984 miniseries in the channel's two-part showing on the evenings of Wednesday, July 22, and Thursday, July 23. The movie, starring Angela Lansbury and Louis Jourdan, is guaranteed to whet the appetites of all the red-blooded, flag-waving sports patriots across the country, who, like yourself, can't wait for this year's Barcelona Games to begin a few days later. Set your VCR.

Q: I am a Totally Pauly fan, and I love Pauly Shore! Please send any information about him; it would be very much appreciated. —Mandy Place, Tualatin, Ore.

True Colors' Cleavon Little and Stephanie Faracy

A: Pauly Shore is the offbeat offspring of mother Mitzi Shore, who owns and operates Comedy Store nightclubs in San Diego, Las Vegas and Hollywood; and father Sammy Shore, a comedian who often was Elvis Presley's opening act. It's no wonder, with his detailed exposure to stand-up, that Pauly refers to himself as a "comedy sponge."

Other than hosting MTV's Totally Pauly series, Shore has a deal to put together four comedy albums and is co-starring in the summer movie Encino Man. You may write him in care of MTV, 1515 Broadway, New York, N.Y., 10036.

Q: Would you please print the "Viewer Mail" address for Late Night With David Letterman*? —Margaret Vigiard, Adams, Mass.*

A: Send your Viewer Mail in care of Late Night, Viewer Mail, 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, N.Y., 10112.

Q: I am a big fan of Jane Badler from the series V*, but I have been unlucky in finding her in a movie. Please give me some info on her film career. —Jeremy Monlux, Portland, Ore.*

A: Catch Badler in these two movies: 1989's Easy Kill and a direct-to-video release titled Fine Gold.

Send your questions to Let's Talk, Features Dept., P.O. Box 961009, Fort Worth, Texas, 76161-1009. Please do not send return envelopes; questions will be answered within this column.

CABLE NEWS

From Genesis to 'The Crypt'

By Dan Rice

Bless the beasts and the media. Late night on Wednesday, June 24, The Discovery Channel airs the Sixth Annual Genesis Awards, recognizing outstanding work in movies, television and print that has increased public awareness of animal issues. Loretta Swit and William Shatner are hosts of the one-hour special, and award recipients include ABC's Dinosaurs for TV Family Series; TBS' Captain Planet and the Planeteers for TV Animated Series; and City Slickers for Comedy Feature Film.

The Crypt creaks open. On Saturday, June 27, HBO's horror anthology Tales From the Crypt kicks off its fourth season with a trilogy of stories designed to get your heart racing. Tom Hanks makes his directorial debut with the segment "None But the Lonely Heart," starring Treat Williams, Frances Sternhagen, Henry Gibson and boxer Sugar Ray Leonard. "This'll Kill Ya" stars Cleavon Little, Sonia Braga, and Dylan McDermott, and "On a Dead Man's Chest," directed by William Friedkin (The Exorcist), features Yul Vasquez, Paul Hipp, Sherrie Rose, Tia Carrere, rocker Greg Allman and rapper Heavy D.

Still shining brightly, a screen star from Hollywood's old school is honored this week when The Disney Channel begins its tribute to Katharine Hepburn with Stage Door on Monday, June 22.

BITS AND PIECES

New markets for stuffed bears, stuffed shirts

Still cuddly after all these years, former Mouseketeer and beach movie girl-next-door Annette Funicello launches her own line of collectible teddy bears this Saturday, June 27, on the shop-at-home QVC Network. The stuffed toys are being designed by a group of award-winning American bear artists.

"I first fell in love with teddy bears," Funicello explains, "when my family was relocating from Utica, N.Y., to Hollywood for my dad's business. I had chicken pox and couldn't go into any restaurants to eat with my family. That's when my parents bought me a cuddly little brown bear to keep me company. I've loved and collected them ever since."

Annette Funicello

Though not quite as cuddly, Muhammad Ali is also entering the merchandising ring. The three-time world heavyweight champion boxer has signed a long-term agreement with ABC Sports and Nutmeg Mills to create a line of sportswear featuring Ali's likeness and familiar quotes such as "I Am the Greatest." The collection of shirts, caps, sweaters and jackets will be hitting the stores this fall.

ABC Sports veep Robert Apter says "At a time when the world seems in short supply of heroes, Ali stands out as a figure respected by sports fans."

Charles, Prince of Wales, will see his best-selling children's story, The Old Man of Lochnagar adapted for an ABC Weekend Special to air next spring. Prince Charles himself will appear in live-action wraparounds for the animated production, which is being made in English, Gaelic and Welsh versions.

The story of a cave-dwelling Scotsman who encounters flower-making Gorms was originally told by the prince to amuse his younger brothers. Royalties earned from sales of the book go to his Charities Trust, which supports a variety of children's causes.

Clarinda Barney discusses the plight of her hometown in Friday's episode of States of Mind on PBS.

Michael Uribe and Jessica Montalvo are featured in The Learning Channel's Mad Math on Saturdays.

FAMILY FARE

'Mad Math' doesn't compute

By Suzanne Gill

Here's a quick story problem: If an educational show has a cast of three, how many fashion outlets are necessary to provide them with one costume per episode? If your answer is one, you're a smart shopper. If you say three, you cherish individualism. But if the answer is 12, you have your priorities confused.

Fashion overkill (the credits list a dozen providers) is just one of the problems with Mad Math, a series airing Saturday mornings on The Learning Channel. In a rumpus-room setting, its three young characters, all alarmingly stereotyped, gather to eat and watch TV — a practice child experts discourage.

Geeky, bespectacled Geraldo, who obviously reads his lines from cue cards, uses his remote control to punch up video math lessons for dumb jock Mike, while Geraldo's big sister Bianca flirts with their guest. (It doesn't take a feminist to disapprove of Bianca's role as bimbo-in-the-making.)

The video segments, often introduced with a rude "Now get this!," are technically plain, but often confusing in their arrangement. Rather than teaching concepts, Mad Math offers problem-solving tricks that will only perpetuate the crippling syndrome of knowing it for the test and forgetting it a week later.

For a truly educational and lively math series, try Square One TV on PBS.

Wednesday on Lifetime, Harry Hamlin serves as co-host of the documentary Dangerous Propositions.

SOAP TALK

Riley ill; Sheila's in L.A.

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: What happened to Larry Riley, who plays Frank on Knots Landing? Several of us at work have been discussing how bad he had looked in the last several episodes this season. He has lost a lot of weight and really looks ill. Can you fill us in? —Valerie Sumter, Pryor, Oklahoma.

Dear Reader: It has been reported that Riley suffered from kidney failure resulting from high blood pressure that was complicated by a liquid diet.

Dear Candace: I am so glad to see that Sheila is off of The Young and the Restless. I thought the actress that played her did a great job, but I really got tired of the story line. I don't understand why writers always drag the stories out. Don't they know they lose viewers from boredom?

What is the actress who played Sheila going to do now? Will she be back as another character on Y&R?. —D.P., Ariz.

Dear Reader: Kimberlin Brown's character has crossed over to The Bold and the Beautiful (she's the first in the history of the two soaps to do so). Sheila is now involved with the Forrester clan in Los Angeles. She is very interested in wealthy Eric Forrester and his baby son, Eric Jr.

Bill Bell, creator of both soaps, had originally decided to let Brown go because there was no way to turn the character around. But in the end he moved Sheila to B&B to let her wreak havoc on the Forresters for a while.

Several of you have sent letters concerning the departure of All My Children's Scott Thompson Baker. He has definitely left the show and is heading to Los Angeles to look for work there. He was surprised by his hasty dismissal from AMC and says he was told there was nothing more the writers could do with the character.

You may have noticed that Ridge looks a little different; that is because Lane Davies (who played Mason on Santa Barbara) is filling in for Ron Moss while Moss is in Italy shooting the miniseries The Baron.

Blake on Guiding Light may look a little different, too. Sherry Stringfield left the show to pursue other projects, and Liz Keifer has taken over the role. Kimberly Simms is also leaving the show, but for personal reasons. The role is to be recast at a later date.

STAIR NOTES

'Raven' star Meek talks to birds

By Dan Rice

Jeffrey Meek, formerly The Exile on CBS' late-night lineup, is hoping to carve out a niche in prime time with Raven, a new action-drama series on CBS which previews on Wednesday, June 24. Meek plays the martial-arts master Jonathan Raven, who made eternal enemies when he took revenge against the group of assassins who murdered his parents. With the help of his sidekick Ski (Lee Majors), Raven searches for his long-lost son, who is also marked for death.

Meek, a student of tae kwon do and aikido who does his own stunts and speaks in an almost presidential stream of consciousness, says his character is "reaching out, like all of us are. (He's been) wallowing in this dark mire, and he chooses to throw all of that away to completely cleanse himself by reaching out and trying to find that little boy in all of us."

The actor, who's building a Japanese garden in his backyard, says of his time off, "I've been working out, trying to stay in shape and enjoying my solitude."

Meeks tells how he once communicated with an injured raven in his yard, telling it how to escape from his dog. Subsequently, a raven would appear before Meek heard of each of his series' time-slot changes.

"I've given good karma to the corvine race of birds," Meek relates. "You've got to pay attention to that kind of stuff."

PBS' 'Lost Language' speaks with grace

Author Leavitt pleased with uncompromising film

By Steven Alan McGaw

When David Leavitt's first novel, The Lost Language of Cranes, was published in 1986, the book received the kind of praise writers dream about. One critic stated, "Leavitt possesses a direct line to the heart."

Now, Great Performances brings Leavitt's compelling story to the screen, debuting Wednesday, June 24, on most PBS stations.

The story concerns Philip, a young Londoner who has long concealed the fact that he is gay from his conservative parents, Rose and Owen. When he confronts them with the truth, his mother is upset and concerned about her son's future.

His father's reaction, however, is far more intense, for it makes inevitable the very thing he has so long sought to avoid: the admission of his own homosexuality.

Brian Cox (Manhunter, A&E's recent Acting in Tragedy) is moving as Owen, a middle-aged man facing himself for the first time. Eileen Atkins is equally effective as Rose, whose entire world seems in flux. Angus McFadyen is engaging, if a bit mild, as Philip.

The strong supporting cast includes Corey Parker (thirtysomething) as Elliot, the rich American with whom Philip is involved, and film director John Schlesinger (Midnight Cowboy) as Derek, an eccentric children's author. Rene Auberjonois plays Geoffrey, Derek's companion.

Leavitt says he's "quite happy" with the film and scriptwriter Sean Mathias' adaptation, which relocates the action from New York to London. "The spirit of the book is there," Leavitt adds.

Director Nigel Finch has taken an unflinching approach to the subject matter, and some viewers may be put off by this. That's fine with Leavitt, who says he creates his sensitive, densely woven stories for an open-minded audience.

"I write — and read," Leavitt says, "on the assumption that other people's lives are very interesting ... especially lives different from mine."
