State GOP panel raps Kosteva

The election year is off to a running start in Canton, with Republicans taking shots at incumbent State Rep. James Kosteva for his stance on education financing. However, Kosteva is striking back.

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

State Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton, has been criticized by the Michigan Republican State Committee for a campaign brochure the committee says is misleading.

"Jim Kosteva is fast emerging as this campaign's master of disinformation," said David Doyle, Republican state chairman. "Kosteva's brochure claims he will 'stop further damage' to our educational system and 'work for true reform.' But what Kosteva fails to mention is that he voted for the tax base sharing plan in September of 1991."

Kosteva responded to the criticism by saying "This is just a start of what's going to be a very intensive and obviously a very partisan campaign."

On last year's so-called "Robin Hood" legislation that granted in-formula districts half the tax revenue from industrial and commercial growth in out-of-formula districts, Kosteva said "I have no problem with my vote" in favor of the law. "I did the right thing and I'm willing to defend it in any arena."

In general, in-formula districts have smaller tax bases and therefore less money to spend on students than out-of-formula districts, so in-formula districts get more state aid.

In the last couple of years, the state has "recaptured" a portion of the aid to out-of-formula school districts and transferred it to in-formula districts.

Kosteva acknowledges that he's in somewhat of a tight spot because he represents voters in two in-formula districts (Wayne-Westland and Van Buren), plus an out-of-formula district (Plymouth-Canton).

MRSC spokesman Bryan Flood said Tuesday that Kosteva has voted in favor of four school aid bills since 1989 that benefited in-formula districts at the expense of out-of-formula districts. "(Kosteva) clearly tries to ignore his record," Flood said. "He's trying to sneak around his record."

Flood added that the MRSC is "going to watch every piece of mail that we get our hands on" and bring Democratic candidates to account for alleged misrepresentations in campaign literature.

Kosteva argues that he must balance the good of school districts statewide with that of districts he represents when deciding how to vote on school-aid bills.

In fact, Kosteva said his "principal motivation" as a representative is school finance reform.

"The over-dependence on the property tax causes Michigan to produce rich and poor districts with have and have-not kids," he said. "In the absence of full reform, tax base sharing is a valid effort in making the existing system work a little better. Tax base sharing could also lead to a uniform property tax rate for business that would stimulate economic development and end the abatement blackmail game."

1st Liberty Fest rings success bell

Several months of planning on the part of the parks and recreation department apparently paid off big last weekend as Canton's first annual Liberty Fest drew sizable crowds and ran almost flawlessly.

"Everything was beyond our expectations," said Liberty Fest committee chairman Bob Dates.

RATINGS

The classic car show, for instance, drew more cars than expected. "We almost circled three-quarters of the pond back there (with cars)," Dates said. "(The car owners) liked the setting. That's one of the best sites they go to."

Dates estimated that 10,000 people visited Heritage Park on Saturday, the Liberty Fest's second day, and between 10,000 and 15,000 took in that evening's fireworks.

Even the paddle boats for rent on the pond were in demand. "They were one of the biggest hits of both days," Dates said.

Township Supervisor Tom Yack, who spent all but one hour Saturday at the park, was also impressed. "I think we learned a lot," he said. "And we got a lot of positive comments regarding the park."

Apparently, there were also enough trash cans at the Liberty Fest, because Yack doesn't recall seeing a mess anywhere. "One thing I was amazed at was there was very little trash on the ground," he said.

And what about next year? Yack and Dates agree that, unlike this year, the festival's name won't be changed, and most of the major events will be back.

"I'm sure there will be some changes," Dates said. "We want to improve on what we've done, but we'll probably keep the major components."

Vet memorial fund inches toward goal

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

The store of money saved to build a veterans memorial at the Canton Township administration center is growing slowly.

John Spencer, a member of the Canton Veterans Memorial Association and township finance director, said Tuesday that the association so far has raised about $10,000 of the $50,000 needed for the memorial.

Earlier this year, the association began selling the right to have your name carved in one of the memorial's bricks. Spencer reports that seven were sold for Father's Day, three at the Liberty Fest and 40 in all. Most of them sold for $100 each.

The association also made money because caterer Mitch Howard contributed 75 cents for every chicken dinner sold and half the profit of each soda sold at the Liberty Fest. Spencer estimated that Howard sold nearly 200 chicken dinners.

The granite for the memorial will likely come from Simpson Granite in Redford and cost $30,000. The association already has some money on deposit with Simpson, Spencer said, and hopes to get the rest of the deposit to the company soon.

The association also has a display set up in the Canton Public Library to show what the memorial will look like. Recepticals for donations are set up in 20 businesses around Canton.

Among the memorial contributors are: realtor Joe Van Esley, who contributed $1,000 and Lt. Bill Grady, a Canton firefighter, who contributed $500 for a flag pole. The other two flag poles have been paid for by the Canton Community Foundation and the Michigan Flag Company of Canton, also $500 each.

The memorial would be built on the grass island between the township administration building and the library. For more information on contributing, call Spencer at 397-5421.

City's biggest July 4 parade to be on radio

This July 4 parade will be Plymouth's biggest ever.

That's what parade organizers, the Plymouth-Canton Jaycees, say on the eve of the parade scheduled to begin at 1 p.m. Saturday.

The parade will feature a Civil War era marching band and scores of local politicians. It also features U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth, as grand marshal.

HOLIDAY

The parade will begin at the corner of Main and Theodore and continue south to Hartsough, then east to East Middle School.

Also scheduled to appear is Plymouth's own Fred Hill Briefcase Drill Team and the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps.

For the first time, the parade will be broadcast live on school station WSDP, 88.1 FM, and parade goers are urged to bring portable radios to listen in.

"Last year we had 55 entries, this year it's probably closer to 70 or 72," said Scott Kappler of the Jaycees.

One reason for such a large parade lineup is the Plymouth Township primary election Aug. 4. Nearly all candidates have signed up to march in the parade, to be seen by voters.

The Jaycees also sponsor the fireworks celebration at dusk above Massey Field at Plymouth and Haggerty Roads.

It's goodbye for good to local Chatham store

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Area residents can say ciao to Chatham, for good. There's no chance the grocery store that once operated in a third of the Kmart building on Ann Arbor Road west of I-275 will re-open under new ownership, or otherwise.

As residents remember, the ailing store was mothballed for years while the business struggled financially.

The store closed for good in 1987 when Chatham went bankrupt, and its space is occupied by Kmart's new pasta and pizza station.

Shelving and fixtures at the store were auctioned by receivers McTevia and Associates the same year.

The last nail was hammered into Chatham's coffin with the recent sentencing of Chatham chairman Alex Dandy in U.S. District Court in Bay City.

COURT CASE

A jury found Dandy guilty on 10 felony counts; three counts of tax evasion, three of filing a false return, two of mail fraud, one of bankruptcy fraud and one of obstructing an IRS investigation.

During Chatham's dying days, Dandy was paid $50,000 a month. In a year, he netted $7 million in supplier kickbacks; phony stock-option transfers; and the sale of land, buildings and equipment that didn't belong to him.

Dandy, who also operated the bankrupt Hamady Brothers food chain in Flint, was sentenced by Judge Robert Cleland to 23 years in prison and assessed fines totalling nearly $6 million.

Some former shoppers say they miss Chatham, which once operated about 50 stores in metropolitan Detroit and employed 1,000 people.

"They closed, much to our dismay," said Plymouth Township Clerk Esther Hulsing. "We thought they were pretty good."

Marilyn Massengill, the clerk's administrative assistant and a longtime area resident, followed the travails of Chatham dating to its opening.

See STORE, 2A

"At one time, it was a good-sized store," she said. "They opened in 1969 and were open for a good while and then they closed. They were closed for a while and then opened up again. I don't think their business was all that great."

In years past, there was heavy competition for Chatham from Farmer Jack, Wrigley's and Kroger. But other stores weren't necessarily the reason shoppers stayed away, said Massengill.

"For some reason, I didn't care about going there. I assume it must have been the same for a lot of people. There are some stores you like to shop at, and others you don't. I don't think they did a whole lot of business."

Before his sentencing, Dandy, 64, asked the judge for leniency.

"I spent many many hours reviewing and reflecting on my conduct, and the impact of that conduct on others and the pain I've caused. Those hours of reflection have been the most difficult of my life. If I've caused pain for others, I am truly sorry. I want to turn my life around and I believe I have the capacity to do so."

Cleland said before pronouncing sentence, "This case is a parable of deceit and greed and lying and stealing and cheating.

"It is doubtful any man, however armed, could have done any more damage than has Mr. Dandy to his community. Thousands of ordinary laborers sit distressed at the ill health of their pension funds; laborers who became unemployed long ago because of Mr. Dandy. Many of those who have been harmed by Mr. Dandy are not only out of work, they are out of time."

Dandy asked to remain out of jail on bond pending an appeal. Cleland denied the request, saying he was afraid Dandy would flee the country.

3 school officials bid district farewell

By Darrell Clem
Staff Writer

Amid hugs, smiles, tears and applause, two highly controversial Wayne-Westland school board members and a longtime administrator parted ceremoniously Monday from a wounded district bound for new leadership.

The departure of veteran board members Kathleen Chorbagian and Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek and Deputy Superintendent Thomas Svitkovich signaled a crossroads in a district struggling through an era of dramatic change.

They will officially leave their positions at month's end, but Monday marked their last school board meeting. Chorbagian didn't seek re-election, and Kozorosky-Wiacek lost her bid for a new term June 8.

Svitkovich, who rose from the teaching ranks to assume the district's top post, has accepted a new job in Flint.

"I've been battered and bruised a lot, but I really feel that I have done an ethical job," Chorbagian said in her farewell address Monday.

A 10-year board member, she had come under heavy fire for supporting teacher salary increases amid a budget crunch that had threatened deep cuts in school programs for students. But she recently survived a botched recall campaign by her political foes and decided on her own to step down.

"I'm just glad that I got to make the decision," she said.

Kozorosky-Wiacek, a seven-year board member, easily fought off a similar recall effort, but her re-election bid crumbled.

"The vote tally says I am a loser, but I don't feel like one," she said Monday. "I at least had the courage of my convictions and put my name on the ballot for the voters to accept or reject."

Kozorosky-Wiacek marveled over a path that led her from a small Pennsylvania town to Wayne-Westland, where she became school board president of a 16,000-student district. In what she called "the single biggest highlight" of her board tenure, she recently addressed the graduating classes of the district's two high schools.

"It was hard for me to imagine that a girl from a small town in the hills of Pennsylvania, whose graduating class was 25 people, could have the honor of addressing thousands of people at the Crisler Arena" in Ann Arbor, she said.

Svitkovich, a 28½-year district employee, said Wayne-Westland "has always been a class act," but he said "it's time to move on."

Svitkovich assumed the duties of ousted Superihtendent Dennis O'Neill in November. But he will begin his Flint job next Thursday and be replaced by Superintendent-elect Larry Thomas.

Chorbagian commended Svitkovich and said he "has been doing the work of three or four people."

Chorbagian and Kozorosky-Wiacek also drew praise from their colleagues.

Calling Chorbagian "a friend," board member Andrew Spisak commended her for "an excellent job" and described her as "the epitome of a board member."

Police apprehend man with shotgun

Canton police arrested a 38-year-old man from the 48000 block of Cherry Hill on Saturday, June 26, who imagined that another man was out to kill him, the police report says.

After a call came in from a witness at 10:17 p.m. who said the man was pointing a gun at him, four police officers surrounded the house. Meanwhile, police dispatchers continued talking to the witness on the phone, attempting to convince him and the armed man to leave the house, the report says.

The witness came outside via the front door and told police the story while the suspect remained inside.

He said, according to the police report, that the suspect had been watching TV upstairs, then suddenly ran downstairs with a shotgun yelling that a third man, whom he named, was in the house.

The police report says that the armed man "apparently" once testified in a trial against the third man.

The witness told police that the armed man fired the shotgun into a bedroom wall thinking he was shooting at the third man, the report says.

While police had the house surrounded, the armed man ran outside yelling, "Help me, he has a gun. He's going to kill me. The fox hole on your left. He's in the fox hole. Fire on the house. Fire on the house," the report says.

Police arrested the man, ticketed him for unlawful discharge of a firearm, and took him to the Psychiatric Intervention Center in Westland for psychiatric evaluation, the report says.

Break-in Canton police responded at 12:13 a.m. Monday to an alleged break-in at Las Vegas Golf on Ford Road.

A front window was found broken and a rock discovered inside the business, the police report says.

An employee of nearby restaurant told police she heard an alarm sound, then ran outside and saw a 6-foot-tall man running with a long unknown object, the report says. The witness added that the suspect got in a car a drove east on Ford.

The store's manager arrived and told police he wasn't sure if anything had been stolen.

Shoplifting

Canton police arrested a 38-year-old Garden City man Saturday afternoon after he allegedly stole two pair of Futuro dress socks worth $27 from Richardson's Super Drugs on Ford Road, the police report says.

A Richardson's employee told police he saw the Garden City man put the socks in his pockets and leave the store without paying, the report says.

Police found the Garden City man hiding under a stairwell at the McCauley Health Center across the street from the drug store, the report says. The allegedly stolen socks were in the Garden City man's pockets, the report says.

Reckless driving

Canton police requested that a reckless driving arrest warrant be issued for a 19-year-old Westland man after he allegedly drove at high speed through the Sherwood mobile home park Saturday night, the police report says.

A witness told police that he saw the Westland man drive a 1981 Pontiac car into the mobile home park, drive at a speed in excess of 45 miles per hour and do several "donuts" at the end of various streets, the report says.

A police officer found the Westland man still in the park with a flat front tire, the report says. A witness told police the tire blew while the Westland man spun his car around in a circular pattern.

Pair killed in car crash

A Livonia driver and his passenger were killed early Moday when their car hit a tree in a rural section of Milford Township, police said.

Karl Burghoffer, 47, was dead on arrival at Huron Valley Hospital from multiple injuries suffered in the crash.

Also killed in the one-car accident was Michael Devine, 37, of Milford.

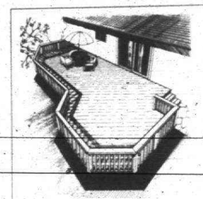

A Milford police dispatcher said Burghoffer was driving 80 mph when he lost control of his car on westbound Commerce Road, near Garner at 2 a.m.

Police Tuesday said their investigation, including blood alcohol tests, was incomplete.

Berghoffer worked the afternoon shift at the General Motors proving grounds in Milford.

Community band concerts are a summer staple

The concert series has been offered each summer since 1960. This year's free series began Thursday, and will continue at 8 p.m. each Thursday through July 30 in Kellogg Park, Main and Ann Arbor Trail in downtown Plymouth.

"It brings out a lot of people," said Carl Battishill of Plymouth, band director. "The price is right. Families can bring their children, regardless of what age."

Parents don't have to worry about children keeping quiet during the outdoor concerts. Concert-goers appreciate being able to chat during performances, he said.

"So the informality of it is very nice." The park's picturesque setting adds to the appeal.

Concert attendance averages 400 to 550 per week. Battishill said many people come back year after year. Many find time to turn off the TV set, come to the park and listen to a live performance.

"I think that's why we are particularly successful in the summertime. People want to be outside," said Battishill, who is also band director for West Bloomfield High School. The concerts remind many of an earlier era, and they like to "reach back and see that again."

Musicians, some of whom have been with the band since its beginning more than 30 years ago, also enjoy the weekly concerts. At the Tuesday rehearsal for last week's performance, musicians were eager to get started.

"We had a lot more than we usually do and people were excited about getting back into it." Many plan their vacations around the concert series so they're able to participate, Battishill said.

Most of the performers played musical instruments in high school and many did in college. Some teach music, and all take a great deal of pride in their performances.

"Everybody has developed their skills to the best of their ability," Battishill said. Some are newcomers to the community and the band group members range in age from 15 on up to 78 or so.

He does his best to entertain the audience, although developing players' skills comes first. Musicians present a different program each week during the summer, and will perform 75 to 80 pieces this summer.

"That's a lot of music to cover." Band members also perform during the school year, although the pace of rehearsing and performing is faster in the summer, Battishill said.

Donations to the Plymouth Community Band are tax-deductible and always welcome. The band's address is P.O. Box 700745, Plymouth 48170.

Those who can't make it to the Thursday evening concerts don't have to miss out on the musical fun in Kellogg Park. The Plymouth Community Arts Council also sponsors a weekly concert series, with remaining performances scheduled for noon to 1 p.m. Wednesdays, through Aug. 19. A different performer or musical group is featured each week.

DNR analyst criticizes pace of cleanup at AMOCO site

By M.B. Dillon
Staff Writer

■ 'I realize this is a matter of frustration for the public. It is for us, too.'
Benjamin Mathews, DNR analyst

Amoco Oil Co. — which owns property in downtown Plymouth that's been on a DNR list of contaminated sites since 1979 — has yet to propose an acceptable cleanup plan to the DNR, said Benjamin Mathews, environmental quality analyst with the DNR's environmental response division.

"Amoco is behind on this site. They should have sent us a revised corrective action plan, and have not done so," Mathews said.

"I realize this is a matter of frustration for the public. It is for us, too. We would like to see more action on sites like this. They haven't notified us of their progress on that site. It's something we are going to follow through on."

Amoco is potentially liable for fines in the amount of $10,000 a day for each day they're in non-compliance with state law.

Amoco spokesman Howard Miller said no one directly involved with the cleanup was available for comment. Miller said an Amoco attorney who has dealt with the site told him Amoco "is working hard on getting permits out of the way so we could do work there. He's unclear himself as to what progress has been made."

The closed gas station is on the southeast corner of Main Street and Ann Arbor Trail.

The Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce and the Downtown Development Authority are among those who would like to see some progress at the site. The cleanup is projected to take two to five years and cost $500,000.

More than a year ago, Fran Tobey, executive director of the chamber, wrote Amoco asking whether the station's restrooms could be used by the public during events like the Fall Festival.

"We also asked whether it might be possible to turn the property or the building over to the chamber to help make up for the problems and the losses Amoco has caused. It would be a community-minded idea on their part."

Toney said the chamber has gotten nowhere with the idea, due apparently to environmental and legal concerns. "I was told the request had been turned over to someone in the local region. Because they are doing work there, it made it impossible to facilitate."

Chamber President Pat Pulkownik contacted Amoco last April "asking if they couldn't tidy it up and make it more presentable. We have received nothing, not even acknowledgment of her letter," Toney said.

DDA ideas

The DDA has looked at future uses for the site. A desirable, but unlikely plan calls for a modern, mixed-use development that would be built on the Amoco property and adjoining property. With atriums and several levels, such a development could provide a downtown anchor important to rejuvenating the downtown business climate.

David Pugh, former Plymouth mayor and a DDA member, said for sentimental reasons, "it would still be nice to have a gas station in town." He said a gas station is something that's sorely needed.

"Realistically, what we're looking at is outside cafes and higher-use-type things related to eating and entertainment. Wouldn't it be an ideal place for an outside cafe for the Box Bar? Longer term, what makes sense for the whole quadrant is anyone's speculation. There's very little you can do with that little piece of land," he said.

Lee Harrison, DDA chairman, said he envisions something "real practical fitting in with a convenience district. Something with day-to-day use like a gas station would fit that."

DNR requirements

Mathews says the DNR has given approval to an interim cleanup plan submitted by Amoco. "The interim plan is designed to limit the extent of contamination. Our requirements for interim plans are much less stringent with the understanding that it's just that — an interim report."

What Amoco still hasn't obtained from the county is a water discharge permit that allows the discharge of treated water into a storm sewer, and eventually into a stream or river, Mathews said.

Amoco is using the former service bay of the station to house a vapor extraction system and an enhanced vacuum recovery system.

The corrective action plan the DNR is awaiting will "document the entire procedure as it relates to the total extent of contamination. We want to know how they are going to operate and maintain it, and what permits they've received."

The plan also will address "feasibility and whether this actually will work when it's done."

The DNR sets three cleanup standards, A, B and C. "A" means a site is completely pollution free. "B," the standard to which Amoco is being held, means "the pollution remaining is by the best judgment of our toxicologists is not a health hazard in any way, shape or form." "C" means the contaminated area has been contained. "That would be quite difficult for Amoco to do, because the contamination has gone off site and would require some severe restrictions on neighboring properties," Mathews said.

School officials dread passage of state aid bill

By Ralph R. Echtinaw
Staff Writer

The Plymouth-Canton school district will lose about $1.7 million if the governor signs a school aid bill approved Tuesday by the state house.

"I personally looked at this bill as a 'gotcha bill,' " said Raymond Hoedel, associate superintendent for business and operations for the Plymouth Canton schools.

"I don't believe there are any winners in this thing. I don't think it's fair," he said.

State Rep. Jim Kosteva, D-Canton, voted against the school aid bill.

"It will undermine the credibility of the state with local school districts and the public," he said. It creates new inequities."

State Rep. Georgina Goss, R-Northville, who represents Plymouth, voted against the bill, calling it "a disaster for the area."

"Local school districts just aren't going to survive," she said.

If the bill is signed by Gov. John Engler, Hoedel expects the school district's fund balance to drop from a projected $2.8 million at the end of the next school year to $1.1 million.

That's a dangerously low fund balance, Hoedel said, considering that the school district's average expenses total $6.1 million a month, or about $1.4 million a week.

A good comparison, Hoedel said, is a hypothetical homeowner with less money in the bank than he earns in a week.

Engler spokesman John Truscott said Tuesday he was uncertain if the governor would sign the bill.

The legislation would limit per-student aid, state Social Security contributions and tax-base sharing credits, and alter the formula for adult education grants.

Rep. James Kosteva, D-Canton, voted against the legislation Tuesday along with Rep. Georgina Goss, R-Northville.

State Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, voted against the bill when it was in the Senate. "It's murder for out-of-formula school districts," he said. "I think it's a very bad bill. You've created havoc with Plymouth-Canton (schools)."

Other school districts, however, are expected to benefit from the legislation. The legislation was designed to help in-formula school districts increase their per-student spending. The Wayne-Westland and Van Buren districts, for instance, are in-formula and are expected to gain additional money through the legislation should Engler sign it into law.

Race heats up in new House district

By Kevin Brown
Staff Writer

If challenger Jerry Vorva succeeds in defeating incumbent state Rep. Georgina Goss, Gov. John Engler could be advised to buy a few extra desk pads.

That's because Vorva claims he'll "stand on Engler's desk" to get what's coming to the district.

The race to represent Plymouth in the state House 20th District pits Goss, 55, against Plymouth city commissioner Vorva, 40, and newcomer Ronald Ambrose, 25.

The three were recently interviewed in separate sessions by Observer staff. Robert Bernard, another candidate running in the Republican primary Aug. 4, did not respond to attempts to contact him for a candidate interview.

No Democrats filed in the heavily Republican district, which includes greater Plymouth, greater Northville and west Livonia. That means the primary winner will likely be unopposed in the November general election.

Goss, a former Northville Township supervisor, took her seat last September after narrowly defeating Vorva in a special election. Finishing third was Deborah Whyman.

District redrawn

Since then, the district has been re-drawn, cutting out Canton where Whyman had much support and adding west Livonia.

"I've been in the Legislature 10 months," said Goss, adding she's worked hard for the district. Of voters, she said, "I believe they've known me enough years, they will vote for me."

Ambrose, 25, of Livonia and a recent graduate of Wayne State University's law school, said he's geared his education "at being the community's representative because public service is my goal."

Vorva touts himself as a fiscal conservative who does what he says. He points to his campaign literature distributed before his 1989 election to Plymouth's city commission.

The flier states Vorva will cut taxes. And as a city commissioner, he did, as the city's millage rate was reduced by cutting spending.

"I'm a doer," he said. "I have never seen a government that wasn't fat and inefficient," Vorva continued, adding government should be downsized.

"I don't mean cut social programs," he said, but added those programs should be evaluated for effectiveness.

Since joining the state legislature, Goss has introduced legislation to give townships more control over oil well drilling. She said the most pressing items the Legislature should consider include equity in school funding, but adds, "Tax-base sharing has got to go."

She said the reason recent school millage increases have been rejected by voters is due to proposals to share money raised locally with other districts. "The state of Michigan is going to have to contribute from its general fund," she said.

To raise money, voters can consider a sales tax increase, she said, adding other ways to boost the state budget could come from privatizing prisons and the mental health system and cutting the single business tax "until the state gets economically healthy."

WTUA project

Goss said the Western Townships Utilities Authority project — she is a former treasurer — "was a good project when it started, and it still is a good project.

Monday is last day to register for primary

Unregistered voters interested in voting in the Aug. 4 primary must register by Monday, July 6.

Registration is continuing at all Secretary of State branch offices as well as at city, county and township clerks' offices.

Though most government offices will be closed Friday, July 3, they will be open July 6.

Those currently age 17 are eligible to vote if they will turn 18 before the Aug. 4 primary date.

Currently, there are nearly 5.8 million registered voters in Michigan, roughly 85 percent of the eligible voting population.

Sponsor withdraws bill to raid state boat fund

A controversial plan to raid a boat registration money to bail out the state general fund died last week without a whimper.

"The votes are not there to pass it," Chairman Harry Gast, R-St. Joseph, announced at the opening of the Senate Appropriations Committee meeting. "So why burn up a lot of energy and frustration on it?"

With that, Gast removed his Senate Bill 1033 from the agenda.

Waiting to denounce the "raid" and question the Legislature's integrity was Tom Washington, executive director of the 130,000-member Michigan United Conservation Clubs.

His prepared speech said, "If this dedicated fund is raided, how safe is the fish and game fund, the nongame fund, the natural resources trust fund, or any other fund used to operate recreation and resource programs?"

In 1988, said Washington, the Legislature set aside one-third of boat registration fees in a fund for harbor development. In three years, $9 million had accumulated.

High-tech aerial show

Stealth, A-10 join lineup at Willow Run

Special visit: The U.S. Air Force F-117 Stealth Fighter will make a rare appearance at the AirMichigan Air Show this weekend at Willow Run. The Stealth will do a fly-by both days of the show.

The high-tech Stealth F-117A fighter and the A-10 Thunderbolt II, which became a workhorse of the Operation Desert Storm, will headline the military solo demonstration lineup at the Wayne County Air Show Saturday and Sunday at Willow Run.

Gates open at 9 a.m. both days. Show starts at 12:30 p.m. at the airport on I-94 at Belleville Road (Exit 190). In advance tickets are $9 for adults and $6 for children ages 6-11. At the gate, tickets are $12 for adults and $9 for children. Children under 5 are admitted free. Reserved seats are $15.

Tickets are available through July 3 at the air show office and all Ticketmaster outlets.

The Stealth comes to Willow Run Airport from the 49th Fighter Wing at Holloman Air Force Base in New Mexico. The project to develop the radical-looking fighter was top secret until the Air Force admitted in November 1989 that is existed and had been operational for five years.

Since then, it has been demonstrated on a "fly-by" basis to the public at air shows and will make its first appearance in the Detroit area for this show.

During Desert Storm, the Stealth flew 1,270 combat sorties in the Middle East, flew more than 6,900 combat hours and dropped more than 2,000 tons of ordnance.

The A-10 comes to this weekend's show from the 355th Fighter Wing of the 12th Air Force at Davis-Monthan Air Force Base in Tucson, Arizona, flown by Capt. Scott Purdie.

The A-10 was used in close air support roles throughout Operation Desert Storm.

The air show also will feature Frecce Tricolori, the Italian National Aerobatic Team and Team America, the three-ship precision formation that will fly 50 maneuvers in a 15-minute routine. The maneuvers include a high-speed head-on pass, bomb bursts, precision loops and the team's roll-back cross.

Other air show attractions include world aerobatic competitor Gene Soucy and his huge "Showcat" biplane; Teresa Stokes, the acclaimed aviation artist who has taken up a second career as a wingwalker, and Chelsea's Jim Mynning, who will perform a solo aerobatic demonstration.

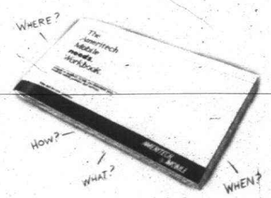

Soucy brings a highly-modified Grumman AgCat to Willow Run for a solo routine, then Stokes joins him for a performance of the art of wingwalking from the barnstorming era of aviation.

Mynning, a veteran aircraft builder and air show announcer, got his stat in aerobatics in the early '50s. His performance will include landing a Piper Super Cub on a speeding pickup truck.

The air show is sponsored by Wings Over Wayne, a not-for-profit corporation.

Abortion issue gets hotter after ruling

BY WAYNE PEAL
STAFF WRITER

For Renee Chelian of Northland Family Planning Clinics, Monday's U.S. Supreme Court abortion ruling boils down to a single issue.

"We're concerned about the ruling, but we want to get the word out that abortion is still legal," said Chelian of the Southfield-based clinics.

The 5-4 ruling generally upheld abortion restrictions currently in effect in Pennsylvania — keeping abortion legal but paving the way for similar restrictions here.

"It's confusing, probably more confusing than if they'd overturned abortion altogether," said longtime pro-choice advocate Susan Rogin of Southfield. "If anything, I'm fearful for my daughters."

The ruling didn't surprise activists on either side, but local reaction was strong with neither side overly pleased.

"Distressed is a mild word for the way we feel," said Barbara Fanger, a founder of Republicans for Choice, a Birmingham-based coalition that formed in anticipation of new abortion restrictions.

"I'm very disappointed they left Roe V. Wade stand," said pro-life activist Lynn Mills of Livonia, referring to the court's 1973 decision legalizing abortion nationwide.

Other pro-life advocates praised the ruling, but stopped short of claiming victory.

"It is cause for hope and encouragement, but it's not the end of abortion," said Barabara Listing, executive director of Right to Life of Michigan. "If that were the case the court would have explicitly said so."

Right to Life is campaigning for a proposed Michigan law based on the Pennsylvania statute, including doctor counseling of women who seek abortions and a 24-hour waiting period.

"We'd like to see action on informed consent," Listing said. "There should also be a shift to real alternatives such as adoption and crisis pregnancy counseling."

The high court also upheld Pennsylvania's parental consent statute as well as detailed record-keeping requirements for doctors who perform abortions. It struck down a statute requiring notification of married women's husbands.

The ruling injects the abortion issue into "almost every election race," said Carol King of the pro-choice Michigan Abortion Rights Action League.

"We're going to be very active," King said. "What we need in Michigan is a pro-choice Legislature and, especially, a pro-choice governor."

Forty-three of the 100 state representiatives are clearly identified as pro-choice, King said. The same can be said of a mere eight of 38 state senators, she added.

The National Abortion Rights Action League listed Michigan as one of the 13 most restrictive states in providing abortion access.

Fanger praised Justice Sandra Day O'Connor's majority opinion to "define the liberty of all, not to mandate our own moral code."

"That's what we've been saying all along," Fanger said. "It's not scientific but our phone banking showed us that 76 percent of the registered votes we contacted felt the same way."

For Mills, the ruling opens the way for further Michigan restrictions.

"I'm not in favor of abortion, but we can make it as safe a procedure as possible," she said. "With (pro-life) Gov. John Engler I expect we'll see new legislation toward that end."

Schools brace for big aid cut

Despite heavy opposition from Observer-area legislators, a controversial school aid bill passed the state House on Monday, a move expected to cost many area schools millions of dollars.

The measure limits state Social Security contributions, tax base sharing credits and changes the formula for adult education grants.

The state Senate narrowly approved the measures last week.

The House initially rejected the measures but approved them, 56-49 in a second vote.

The measure passed without the votes of any area representatives. All voted no including: Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia; Justine Barns, D-Westland; John Bennett, D-Redford; William Keith, D-Garden City; James Kosteva, D-Canton. Keith is chairman of the House education committee. Richard Young, D-Dearborn Heights, who seeks to replace the retiring Bennett as Redford's representative, also voted no.

Out-of-formula districts — those that receive state aid only for specific programs are considered the biggest losers. They include Clarenceville, Livonia, Plymouth-Canton and South Redford.

Major changes include:

• Per-student aid — 18-20 year-olds with high school diplomas would no longer be counted, cutting aid to districts with aggressive adult education programs.

• Adult education — In an additional change, certain classes — known as "slot funded" — would no longer be automatically financed. Instead, money for these programs would be placed in a new, competitive grant programs with payment capped at $25 million.

OU gets no new aid, that's the good news

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

The new kid in town was happy her university got a 0.0 state aid increase.

"I'm very appreciate there were no cuts," said Dr. Sandra Packard, president of Oakland University for the last two weeks. "We recognize how difficult it has been.

"I came from Tennessee where we had significant cuts — 13.6 percent last year. This year they're reinstating some of that."

Packard Wednesday got her first glimpse of a legislative conference committee on higher education appropriations in the Capitol's ornate Senate Appropriations Committee room, once the chamber of the Michigan Supreme Court.

Packard would have liked some capital but recognized "it's a time of fiscal restraint. Our first priority is a building for science and technology. That may become a possibility" in a future year.

OU trustees voted an 8.38-percent tuition increase for the fall semester, which former acting president John DiCarlo called "among the lowest in the state." OU's general fund operating budget will be $65 million, with $36.3 million come from the state treasury.

The conference committee Wednesday reported out a total state aid budget bill for 15 state universities of $1.2 billion, less than a half-percent higher than the current year's appropriation.

Gov. John Engler still must sign the bill.

Economy blamed

Michigan State University, the state's largest in enrollment, also settled for a zero increase at $232 million. MSU trustees there have voted a 9-percent tuition increase for the fall semester and 3 percent more for next winter.

The University of Michigan's Ann Arbor Campus, with its concentration of graduate programs, will get $274 million, up 0.1 percent. U-M regents will set tuition rates July 16-17.

Keith Molin, U-M's point man in the Capitol, was happy to come up with a new $271,000 in undergraduate research opportunities grants. "We have a series of initiatives to retain undergraduate students in projects as assistants. If not, we'd have to find the money someplace else or drop the projects. It's a kind of academic support," he said.

"The Presidents' Council (all state university presidents), in its annual financial recommendation, had called for 5-percent (more state aid) over inflation over a period of time — which is catch-up," Molin said. "If we're disappointed, it's with the economy, not the committee."

U-M Dearborn stayed flat at $18.5 million, and Eastern Michigan University was voted a 1.2-percent increase to $64.8 million.

Wayne State University was raised 0.2-percent to $190 million.

Rays of light

Sen. John Schwarz, R-Battle Creek, was pleased at one development — an extra $3 million that turned up near the end of the budgeting process. No one university got it.

"We were ready to go until three weeks ago when the target was raised $3 million," said Schwarz, the chairman. "In a year with very little money, we're doing the right thing by putting that money in student financial aids."

Educational opportunity grants absorbed $646,000; competitive scholarships, $646,000; Indian tuition, $335,000; and the tuition incentive program (TIP) for welfare recipients, $1.2 million.

Other changes in the higher education budget:

• The total for student grants and financial aids was raised from the current $96 million to $102 million.

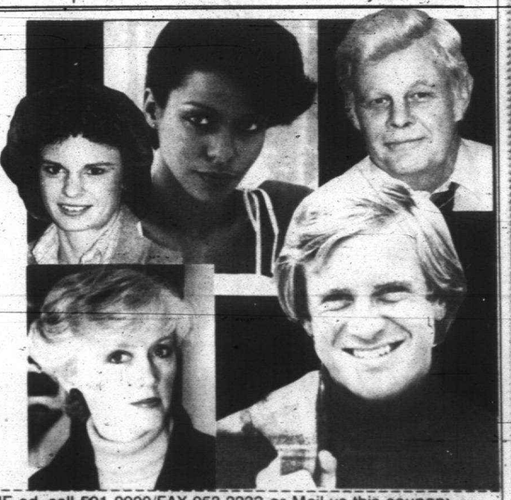

• The Olympic training center at Northern Michigan University, Marquette, had $300,000 restored.

• Grand Valley State University, Allendale, the state's lowest funded, was boosted over the $3,000 per student mark to $3,048.

• The Grand Rapids Applied Technology Center, a collaboration of Ferris State University and Grand Rapids Community College, was zeroed out entirely. Its current year legislative appropriation of $590,000 was vetoed by Gov. Engler, and the Legislature decided against restoring it in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

EMU raises tuition rates

The Eastern Michigan University Board of Regents approved tuition rate increases averaging 9.1 percent for undergraduates and 9.6 percent for graduate students.

For resident undergraduate students, the increases will be 8.86 percent for 100- to 200-level courses, from the current $70 to $76.50 per credit hour; and 9.34 percent for 300- and 400-level courses, from $74.25 to $81.50 per credit hour.

These increases will result in a cost increase for full-time resident undergraduates ranging from $205 to $227 per year in the 1992-93 academic year, with tuition ranging from $2,513 to $2,668 per year.

At the graduate level, resident tuition will increase 9.6 percent, from $100 to $110 per credit hour, resulting in a cost increase of $242 for a full-time student. Full-time tuition costs at the master's level will be $2,768 per year, while full-time doctoral students will pay $2,314.

Full-time students are defined as those taking 31 credit hours per year at the undergraduate level, 24 credits at the master's level and 16 at the doctoral level.

Non-resident undergraduate tuition will increase 9.92 percent for lower-level undergraduate courses, rising from $178 to $196 per credit hour; and 9.98 percent for upper-level courses, from $187 to $206 per credit hour.

Non-resident graduate students will pay 9.61 percent more next year, with that tuition increasing from $235 to $258 per credit hour.

Based upon a planned enrollment of 560,040 student credit hours, tuition revenues will total $51,993,848 with the increases, including continuing education tuition revenue. When compared to the revenue calculated at current tuition rates, the increase will generate an additional $4.05 million, an 8.5 percent revenue increase.

Those revenues will fund approximately 43 percent of EMU's 1992-93 operating budget, an increase from 40.5 percent in 1991-92.

In addition to the tuition increases, the board approved that a surcharge for doctoral students be maintained at its current 25 percent of the credit hour charge, and that registration fees be maintained at $40 each for the fall and winter semesters and $30 each for spring and summer.

School budget

Unlike their counterparts in Lansing, Plymouth-Canton school officials can say they have a balanced budget for next year. The school board finalized cuts and trimmed spending in a $76 million budget approved Monday night.

The budget includes local revenue of $69.8 million; state revenue of $1.8 million and $2 million in federal funds.

Added to that is a rainy day fund of $2.4 million.

Expenditures are projected to be $51.7 million for instruction; $18.8 million for support services, and $2.7 for federal projects.

The Plymouth-Canton Board of Education honored outgoing school board member E.J. McClendon in a big way this week. They've decided to name the administration building at 454 S. Harvey after him. A Native American, McClendon is a professor emeritus of public health at the University of Michigan. His tenure on the Plymouth-Canton board spanned more than two decades.

Errol Goldman, executive director for employee relations, has been promoted. He's now assistant superintendent for employee relations. Goldman is an attorney who joined the district after his predecessor, Norm Kee, retired a few years ago.

Traffic signal

The Canton Township board approved a new traffic light for the corner of Morton Taylor and Warren at its June 23 meeting.

Technically, it's Wayne County's responsibility to pay for the light if it's needed, but county officials said the amount of traffic at that intersection doesn't warrant a signal.

So township officials decided to pay for the light with Canton funds. Township engineer Tom Casari expects the light to cost $25,000 to $30,000 and be installed in September or October.

Band jamboree

Margaret Schmidt will demonstrate nose flutes, kazoos, spoons and a variety of old-time instruments from 2 to 2:45 p.m. Tuesday, July 14, in the Canton Public Library. Registration begins Tuesday, July 7 after 9:30 a.m. by phone or in person.

Longtime voc ed chief retires

Harold Gaertner, Plymouth-Canton director of vocational education, is retiring, much to the disappointment of students, parents, teachers and administrators who've gotten to know him during his 22 years with the district.

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

In an effort to save money, Plymouth-Canton administrators and school board members offered employees an early retirement package. One of the two dozen who signed up was Harold Gaertner, director of vocational education.

"The most I'd planned on staying was a year or two, anyway," said Gaertner, whose wife also is retiring from her job as a vocational education teacher with West Bloomfield schools.

"There comes a time when you say it's time to do it."

The likeable, affable Gaertner isn't making the move without mixed emotions.

He's been treated in recent months to a string of parties, luncheons and banquets honoring him. "It just seemed to go on and on. It's been overwhelming," Gaertner said. "This staff is just unbelievable. They're just super people."

The feeling is mutual. Those who worked with Gaertner credit him for fine leadership skills and a keen ability to relate to at-risk kids.

"He's made a great difference in the lives of dozens of students," said Dorothy Sincock, the department's special needs coordinator. "Harold knew what was important to him, and what he intended to accomplish. He cared about quality, and he shared his expertise. The basic foundation of all the vocational programs is service to others, and they were developed under Harold's leadership."

Building from scratch

When Gaertner started with the district, the high school was housed at what is now Central Middle School. Voc ed offerings included machine shop, electronics and auto mechanics.

Under Gaertner, the program was greatly expanded at Centennial Educational Park, then under construction.

"Canton and Salem were just being built, so I had the opportunity to help establish the program and get them started," said Gaertner. "We've had an increase in staff of 30 people." Programming has grown to include everything from child care to graphic arts. The district's financial woes have unfortunately meant cutbacks and the dismantling of parts of the department.

Among the most gratifying aspects of Gaertner's job has been the chance to work with at-risk students, he said.

"Very often, voc ed is the key to turning kids around," he said. "Very often, these kids for the first time will find something they can relate to and identify with, and they're finally turned on to school." Frequently, the cooperative program that places students in part-time jobs "gives them some real experience, and it's enough to do it."

Gaertner says nothing is more rewarding than to travel half way across the world and bump into former students holding management positions.

A love of water

Before moving to a lake in Highland 14 years ago, Gaertner, his wife Kay and children Gretel, Brian and Denise lived in Plymouth Township. The Gaertners plan to see more of the water in retirement.

"We'd like to do some boating," said Gaertner, who with his wife plans to catch up with some friends in Puerto Rico this fall who are on an extended cruise of the Caribbean.

Aside from that, the Gaertners plan to do some work around the house and get it ready to sell.

With their children out of state — Gretel, 26, attending podiatry school, Brian, 31, an aeronautical engineer, and Denise, 30, in court reporting school — "there's really no reason to stay. We're looking at some other areas."

Adventure is nothing new for the Toledo-born Gaertner. Before he came to Plymouth, Gaertner, then working for the East Detroit district, spent summers with his family in Oscoda.

They roughed it, putting up a tent on their lake property at the beginning of summer and leaving it up all summer long. Gaertner eventually moved to Oscoda after landing a teaching job there.

The family lived in two tents for six weeks while he built a house.

Their time there was short-lived. "It was a great place to teach, and they treated me beautifully, but after a few months there, I realized I wasn't ready to step out of the world yet," he said. "They were about 15 years behind what was going on down here."

Early training

Summers were eventful in other ways. Gaerner was chosen as a student in the University of Michgian's selective Leadership Development Program, designed to train administrators in vocational education.

Gaertner leaving: Gaertner' co-workers praise him as someone who's gentle and sincere, but very involved. He worked hard to find the kinds of opportunities that would benefit kids the most.

ROLL CALL REPORT

Local reps hold party line on extending jobless aid

Here's how Observer & Eccentric-area members of Congress voted on major roll call votes in the week ending June 12.

■ HOUSE

Yes to extending jobless benefits: By a vote of 261 for and 150 against, a bill (HR 5260) extends until early next year the law providing additional unemployment checks to those who have used up their initial 26 weeks or so of state-federal benefits. The bill also permanently changes the law to make it easier in future recessions for the long term jobless to automatically receive additional checks.

To pay its estimated $5.8 billion cost through 1997, the bill sharply increases unemployment taxes on employers, limits to $1 million the corporate deduction for an executive's salary and limits the personal exemption for wealthy taxpayers.

The bill was touted by its Democratic authors as an economic lifeline but denounced as fiscally irresponsible by a majority of Republicans and the White House.

A yes vote supported the additional unemployment benefits. Area representatives voting yes were: Dennis Hertel, D-Harper Woods, William Ford, D-Taylor, Sander Levin, D-Southfield. Voting no were Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth and William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

■

Yes on defense budget: By a vote of 198 for and 168 against, the House sent the Senate a $270 billion defense budget for fiscal 1993. Foes were mostly conservatives who saw the post-Cold War military plan as too dovish.

The bill (HR 5006) continues the B-2 bomber and Strategic Defense Initiative (SDI) at Pentagon-approved funding levels and begins a conversion of defense-dependent jobs and companies to a peacetime economy.

It cuts at least $3.5 billion from the cost of defending countries that are allies but also economic rivals, and sets the stage for withdrawing up to 60 percent of the 400,000 U.S. troops abroad within a few years. The bill sets a one-year moratorium on U.S. nuclear testing if Soviet republics continue to ban nuclear explosions.

Supporter Earl Hutto, D-Fla., said "the American people want a strong national defense, but reality dictates that is be a leaner . . . force" than in recent decades.

Opponent Joel Hefley, R-Colo., said "it's just too bad that Congress does not want to dismantle the deficit as much as it wants to dismantle the Defense Department."

A yes vote supported the bill. Area representatives voting yes were William Ford, Sander Levin. Not voting: Pursell, Hertel, Broomfield.

■

Yes to provide abortions for overseas military: By a vote of 216 for 193 against, the House adopted an amendment to the 1993 defense budget (above) permitting women in the armed services and dependents to receive privately financed abortions at military health facilities abroad.

Supporter Marilyn Lloyd, D-Tenn., said "I have never condoned abortion" but that women deserve "the best reproductive health care services available" if it is their decision to have one.

Opponent Henry Hyde, R-Ill., said the amendment goes beyond Roe vs. Wade with a "mandate that every military hospital . . . provide abortions on demand."

A yes vote was to enable the military to provide abortions at overseas facilities. Area representatives voting yes were: William Ford, Sander Levin. Voting no were Pursell, Hertel, Broomfield.

■ SENATE

Yes to health services reorganization: By a vote of 86 for and eight against, the Senate approved a bill (S 1306) that includes the Alcohol, Drug Abuse and Mental Health Administration in the National Institutes of Health.

The bill is designed to upgrade research into mental illness and substance abuse, and use federal dollars more effectively to prevent and treat those conditions. But it drew controversy with a new formula for granting about $1.5 billion for substance abuse and nearly $445 million for mental health annually to the states. Less urbanized states would get more generous block grants than in the past at the expense of states with many large cities such as Florida and California. Michigan Sens. Carl Levin, D, and Donald Riegle, D, voted yes.

Striker replacement bill shelved: By a vote of 55 for and 41 against, the Senate fell short of the three-fifths majority needed to silence a filibuster against "striker replacement" legislation advocated by organized labor.

This shelved the bill (S 55) making it illegal for employers to permanently replace workers striking over economic issues, as happened, for example, in the Eastern Airlines and International Paper strikes of recent years. Nor could employers under the bill give preference after the strike to "crossover" workers who returned to work while the job action was in progress.

A yes vote was to move toward passage of the bill. Carl Levin and Riegle voted yes.

GMI grads land good jobs in tough market

About 85 percent of GMI Engineering & Management Institute graduates will land well-paying jobs in a labor market labeled the toughest in two decades.

The remainder will either enter graduate studies or employment by summer's end, said GMI President James E.A. John.

Calling itself "the West Point of industry," the Flint school operates a five-year, fully cooperative plan of education.

Students alternate 12 weeks of intensive classroom and laboratory study with 12 weeks of progressively responsible work assignments at some 750 business and industrial locations.

While there is no obligation, the majority of graduates are hired by the same employers for whom they have worked during college, John said.

"GMI graduates have a distinct advantage at a time when the job openings for '92 college and university graduates decreased by 10 percent from last year after two earlier downward trends; entry level positions have been eliminated by almost one-third since 1989, and today's graduates of conventional schools of higher education are competing with thousands of unemployed professionals.

"GMI students average about $60,000 in total earnings during their college years," John said. The range is $40,000 to $80,000. Freshmen earn an average of $8,400; seniors, $19,000.

Average starting salary for GMI graduates is $35,000. The range is $28,000 to $43,000.

GMI has an undergraduate student enrollment of 2,400. Founded in 1919, it was part of General Motors Corp. until 1982, when it became independent.

The college offers bachelor of science degrees in mechanical, industrial, electrical and manufacturing systems engineering, management, and applied mathematics. Master's degrees are offered in engineering and manufacturing management.

Peace Corps

Canton woman shares goals

The world has changed from the early 1960s when President Kennedy started the Peace Corps. But one thing that hasn't changed is the dedication of young people. That's still there. The evidence is Bridget Lynch, 23, of Canton.

Lynch and others in the Canton and Plymouth areas can still see that dream set forth by Kennedy nearby in Ann Arbor those many years ago. That vision is of healthy, smart, idealistic young Americans taking their knowledge to Third World countries plagued by ignorance and bad government.

Others from the area are Tom Davis, who is going to Kenya in September to teach math, and Kerri Flynn who is working as a volunteer in Micronesia.

These young men and women set an example in foreign countries.

But unlike in the 1960s, Peace Corps volunteers have more to combat than ignorance and hunger. These days AIDS is on the disease list along with dysentery, malaria, typhoid and hepatitis.

And that's what Lynch is facing when she spends the next two years in the African country of Guinea-Bissau.

"It doesn't scare me," she said. "A lot of people keep saying it's a long time. I don't view it as a long time. High school was four years and college five years, so I don't really see it as being a terribly long thing. It will be a unique learning experience in addition to school."

That's a wonderful attitude for a young woman who will probably be the only Peace Corps volunteer in her village.

Lynch has long been interested in the goals of the Peace Corps. But she started on the trail to Africa long before by working as a tutor for a literacy program and as a Girl Scout working to set up a day care center.

In a sense, Lynch's trek to Africa started right in the Canton community by working with such groups.

The foundation for her goals was local. That's the way it usually is and should be.

The Canton community can be proud of Bridget Lynch.

Lynch's address is Corpo da Paz, Apartado 497, 1045 Bissau Codex, Bissau, Guinea-Bissau, West Africa. She needs vegetable seeds, school supplies and money.

Gamesmanship hurts education

■ Voters ought to take the state Legislature to task and hold Gov. John Engler responsible for showing such a lack of leadership.

Shame on state legislators for waiting until the zero hour to act on the state education act. Educators never have been satisfied that they were getting their full share of the general budget, but at least in years past they knew what to expect far enough in advance to settle their own finances.

That wasn't the case this year. Like it or not, the state Senate acted promptly in April to come up with something which school districts could use in budget deliberations, and on which staff layoffs were based. However, action on the education bill stalled until the Tuesday House vote, when legislators could only vote the conference committee action up or down.

Insiders say the delay was designed to ram provisions of the bill through without thoughtful discussions by those we've elected to represent us. One wonders why legislators seem so willing to put up with those political games.

The delay also may have been an attempt to help balance the state's budget by delaying state aid payments until October, forcing districts to borrow money to begin the school year.

"We'll be perpetually behind and borrowing to stay afloat," explained Redford Union Superintendent Ken Erickson.

That's no way to run a school district; it's also no way to run the state. And voters ought to take the state Legislature to task and hold Gov. John Engler responsible for showing such a lack of leadership.

Maybe the wait would be understandable if the Legislature had come up with a really creative way to end the inequities in Michigan's educational system. But that hasn't happened.

"We are quickly reaching equity. No one has anything," Garden City Superintendent Michael Wilmot quipped in a March interview.

Indeed, legislators representing rich out-of-formula and poor-in-formula districts from throughout Observer & Eccentric communities opposed the proposal. That ought to tell people that something wrong happened during the machinations of the joint House/Senate conference committee.

The bill, which was approved to the dismay of most suburban school districts, will limit aid for adult education programs, base Social Security payments on enrollment and suspend tax base sharing payments.

"It does not look good for us," said Rochester Schools Superintendent John Schultz. Rochester expects to lose $3.1 million. Other Oakland County losers include Farmington with a wrenching $7.6 million, Birmingham at $5.4 million and Troy at $4.8 million.

In Wayne County, Livonia and Plymouth Canton Schools are expected to be big losers — Livonia to the tune of $3.9 million. Poorer districts, like Garden City and Westland, may gain some under the bill.

The shame of it all is that a good educational program could help take the chill off of the hard economic times Michigan has been in. It's going to be up to the voting public to educate their state legislators about that.

Clean motel

I wrote a letter thanking the Canton police force for responding to our calls at Motel 6. The letter was not to run down Motel 6 or to be put into print. We have a very nice, clean motel and I was thanking the police for helping us keep the motel that way. The remarks about the radio commercial and leaving the light on for you were unnecessary. The guests we have in our motel are 95 percent decent people, like other motels.

Article appeared in Canton Observer Monday, June 22, 1992. The article should have been telling people how professional the Canton police are, not about Motel 6.

Tom Yenger, Canton

Good job Ray

I write in honor of Mr. Ray Buckman, who at age 84 has resigned as a volunteer legislative liaison to the Plymouth Canton community School District.

An asset to the community, Mr. Buckman has distinguished himself as an extraordinary intermediary to the Plymouth Canton School Board and state Legislators and is well deserving of the highest recognition.

Hardworking and energetic, Mr. Buckman has lent his time and talents to the school district in a variety of ways. He has organized meetings for school board members and legislators in an effort to inform us of their concerns with state proposals. His efforts have not gone unnoticed. Recently, both the House and Senate defeated the Governor's proposal to force school districts to pay FICA and retirement costs.

Mr. Buckman has touched many lives, both spiritually and educationally. He considers himself "grandpa" to the first graders at Bird and Field Elementary Schools and tutored a troubled second-grader in math and English. This young student recently passed into the fourth grade with honors.

The Plymouth-Canton Community will miss Mr. Buckman as he retires as legislative liaison. We wish him the best in his retirement.

State protections affirmed

TIM RICHARD

Michigan's Constitution protects us better than the Bill of Rights in the U.S. Constitution.

Greater scholars than I have commented on this phenomenon. It's a point not just of scholarship but of practical government — as we saw June 17.

The Michigan Supreme Court struck down our savage drug lifer law, under which we sent 30 drug "mules," mostly young, to the slammer for life-without-parole for possessing 23 ounces of cocaine.

Chief Justice Michael Cavanagh noted that the Michigan Constitution says "cruel or unusual punishments shall not be inflicted," while the Bill of Rights bars "cruel and unusual punishment." He called the difference important and deliberate on the part of the state constitution's framers.

Michigan case law calls for testing (1) the gravity of the offense with the harshness of the penalty, (2) the sentence imposed for cocaine possession compared to the septences for other crimes and (3) a comparison to sentences in other jurisdictions, he said, concluding:

"The penalty in this case is so unduly disproportionate as to be cruel or unusal . . . comparable only to the penalty for first-degree murder . . . no other state imposes a penalty even remotely as severe."

It was a 4-3 decision, liberals Cavanagh and Charles Levin, moderate James Brickley and conservative Robert Griffin forming the majority. And so a law was struck down for violating Michigan's Constitution, although it had passed muster for not violating the U.S. Constitution.

Dissenting were Dorothy Comstock Riley, Patricia Boyle and Conrad Mallett Jr. Note: Riley and Boyle also dissented in the Milbourn case two years ago when the court sent back down a dozen harsh sentences that violated sentencing guidelines. Women really do seem to be tougher on crime. Further note: Riley and Mallett are up for re-election this year.

(Incidentally, in all the prosecutorial breast-beating over the drug decision, the law-and-order types neglected to notice that the court unanimously reinstated the convictions based on automobile searches. This is not a namby-pamby court.)

The high court, upholding the ban on state-funded abortions, read the Michigan Constitution again but decided the "equal benefit" phrase didn't apply to that service. Yet it's noteworthy the Court of Appeals favored state-funded abortions for state constitutional reasons.

Michigan's Declaration of Rights also protects student speech and writing, guards our right to keep and bear arms for self-defense, and limits governmental aid to churches far more clearly than the U.S. Constitution.

But more on those topics another time.

Teed off at Stewart

I have, in the past, stayed out of political issues in Plymouth Township and it is my desire to stay out of political issues in the future. Today, however, I must set the record straight.

I read with wonderment the recent political sheet put out by Mr. John Stewart. Mr. Stewart indicates that on Friday, May 15, he met with me to discuss ways to improve services to Township residents.

While it is true Mr. Stewart came for this visit, his first one in the four years of his being a trustee, the purpose was not to negotiate fees or to improve the facility or to promote tournaments.

It is strange that after four years of service to the community as a trustee the golf course is suddenly of importance to his campaign. This one visit does not make a big impression when four years of indifference to the golf course rings loud and clear.

Mr. Stewart had absolutely nothing to do with the promotion of Hilltop for any future golf tournaments such as the USGA Championship. All of the things we discussed were already in the works and were not in any way credited to Mr. Stewart. I feel he was strictly seeking information that was passed out in that flier that was mailed to the Township residents.

As for the rates at Hilltop Golf Course, Mr. Stewart never negotiated any rates with me. The Board of Trustees as a whole unanimously approved the rates back in March; My attorney, Ronald Burke, and I spoke with Mr. Stewart but stated flatly that he could not use my name or my involvement with Hilltop for his political campaign. I didn't want political involvement of any kind.

Why should I write a letter at this time? Many businessmen will understand — you can work with an individual that has a position that is different from yours, but you cannot work with an individual who attempts to alter the facts.

John Jawor,
Hilltop Golf Course Proprietor

Flap at golf course

Please know that the people of Plymouth Township own the Hilltop Golf Course and that the time period for the contract with Mr. Jawor has expired (as stated at a board of trustees meeting) and is up for renewal.

Further, Mr. Jawor knows that I agreed not to use his name with any "quote" from the meeting on May 15. I didn't agree not to publish the fact that four people (including Mr. Jawor's attorney) sat in the main room of the clubhouse at Hilltop for an hour and a half on May 15 and talked about publicly known facts regarding the Township Golf Course.

Most everyone in Plymouth Township can probably guess who might have assisted (if someone did) Mr. Jawor with his "Letter to the Editor." They or he may also have supported him in seeing to it that his letter was included in the township packets for the trustee meeting of Tuesday, June 23.

I have received many telephone calls about the golf course. Mr. Jawor should not be surprised that fees are an issue this year. Township residents know there will be a new supervisor this year and that it will be that person's responsibility to establish township policy at the golf course.

Many Township residents — e.g. senior citizens — golf at Livonia's Municipal Course because the fees are lower? Since the city of Taylor and Canton Township have cleared a substantial net profit on their municipal golf courses, each municipality is now planning for a second course.

In previous years, the township supervisors have had the administrative responsibility to negotiate fees and the golf course operating contract. The next supervisor has the responsibility to review these arrangements. As a candidate for supervisor, people have urged me to do this, and I intend to do so.

Also, I intend to work hard with all interested parties to secure a Women's USGA tournament at Hilltop. From what information I have, Plymouth Township can achieve this if all "interest groups" cooperate. In my discussion, Mr. Jawor raised the idea. As supervisor, I would gladly work hard to make this a reality.

The "proprietor" of Hilltop, Mr. Jawor, can characterize his version of our meeting. I met with him, along with Mr. Chuck Childs, for the purpose of obtaining information. The "proprietor" may not accept that I or any other people are entitled to this information.

I am sure the "proprietor" of Hilltop did not want to hear that the residents want lower fees. But that is what I communicated to him. I will continue to represent the citizens and communicate with them about our Golf Course.

John C. Stewart, Plymouth

Agrees with column

I read with pleasure your article on the ". . . skills of our fathers" in Tuesday, June 15, Observer. It really hit home to me and I share your view that hand-me-down skills are an important part of the glue that holds families together.

It was a great article and much appreciated. "Attaboy," Mr. Counts.

Russian hoax

I was deeply concerned about the recent announcement by the Bush Administration that the U.S. plans to massively reduce its remaining nuclear capability by a whopping two thirds of what is left after previous cuts. I believe such massive cuts are unjustified and in fact put the very liberty of every U.S. citizen at the mercy of the word of a nation which has never kept a major treaty in 50 years, but now claims to have changed. I believe this whole "change" in the U.S.S.R. is a hoax to get the tens of billions we are now pouring on them. Occasionally a story slips through our pro soviet news media, indicating that the KGB is still calling the shots over there. After our nation and the west has been bled dry, a quick staged "coup" will put the "bad guys" back in power. Our government can then explain the wasted billions as a "mistake" as was done for the billions wasted in Vietnam, on a no win war.

I urge your readers to inform their representatives in Washington that further cuts in our military capability, including the latest cut of two thirds of our present nuclear arsenal, is endangering our very liberty. This may bode well for the new world order, but not for the citizens of the U.S.

Gerald N. Wiggins, Northville

Not your money

In response to Rep. Kosteva's June 18 letter defending his pet legislation of school "tax base sharing" (or "TBS," as he now affectionately calls it; the Robin Hood Law to us common folks), a few points:

Mr. Kosteva protests that it is not your money that is being heisted because only half the growth in commercial and industrial tax base is "shared." What difference does it make? It's all legal tender to Plymouth-Canton Schools, and when our school district has to come to the voters for a millage increase to make up the loss, it's the homeowners who are faced with the choice of higher taxes or pink-slipped teachers.

Furthermore, I have found few people this campaign season who share Mr. Kosteva's belief that a healthy commercial and industrial base in one community is unfair to other communities. Communities like Canton and Plymouth work very hard to attract new business and industry, largely because of the good it does for the local school system.

Our achievements in this area are apparently too much for Mr. Kosteva and his Democratic colleagues to bear, as they undermine the Democrats' unachievable quest to make everyone equal with everyone else.

As sensible people know, the only way to make that happen is the "TBS" approach Mr. Kosteva supports — "Turning Back Success."

I am in receipt of your correspondence concerning Dare Officer Leonard Schemanske and the DARE graduation at Gallimore School. Thank you for taking the time to write such a complimentary letter.

This office is also very proud of the DARE program and the work officer Schemanske is doing in the Plymouth Canton Community schools.

Once again, thank you for your kind words. Your "thank you" has been brought to the attention of Officer Schemanske, and a copy of your letter will be placed in his personnel file.

State's child population loss spells tough economic future

The number of children in Michigan fell significantly between 1980 and 1990, according to an analysis of Census data by the Kids Count in Michigan project.

The decline of 10.7 percent was surpassed only in three other states.

Michigan registered 2,751,986 children under the age of 18 in 1980. The youth population dipped to 2,458,765 by 1990.

"Only three other states experienced such significant declines in their child populations," said Bettie Landauer Menchik, a Kids Count researcher from the Institute for Public Policy and Social Research at Michigan State University.

"Sixty six of Michigan's 83 counties experienced some loss in their child population, and many of the most significant losses were found in the rural counties of Michigan's Upper Peninsula."

"The decline in the state's child population is startling and has significant public policy implications," said Pat Sorenson, project coordinator for Kids Count in Michigan.

"While Michigan's overall population has remained fairly constant, the youth population has dropped precipitously. Michigan's economic future and the well being of its aging residents will be in hands of a shrinking workforce, and their preparation for the responsibilities of adulthood will become more critical."

■ 'Michigan's economic future and the well being of its aging residents will be in hands of a shrinking workforce, and their preparation for the responsibilities of adulthood will become more critical.'

Pat Sorenson
project coordinator

33 states lose

Nationally, 33 states experienced a loss in the number of children residing within their borders. The greatest losses were in West Virginia, Iowa and Kentucky, followed by Michigan and a host of Midwestern and Northeastern rust belt states where the loss of manufacturing and other higher paying jobs presumably resulted in population losses. Declining birth rates have also been a factor.

"For economic and other reasons, Michigan women in most counties are having fewer children than a decade ago," Sorenson said. "In fact, births to women ages 15 to 44 fell over the decade in 69 of the state's 83 counties."

The Kids Count analysis showed that 23 counties experienced a decline in their child population of 15 percent or more over the decade. Ontonagon County, located in the state's Upper Peninsula, experienced the greatest decline, losing 866 children for a 29 percent reduction. The areas of the state experiencing the greatest declines include the Upper Peninsula, the Saginaw Bay and Thumb areas, and portions of southeastern and northeastern lower Michigan. The 17 counties that experienced growth in their child populations are located primarily in the northern and western sections of the lower peninsula.

Wayne County lost nearly 10 percent over the decade, from 2,337,891 children in 1980 to 2,111,687 in 1990.

Oakland County gained just over 7 percent during the 80s, from 1,011,793 children in 1980 to 1,083,592 in 1990.

The Kids Count analysis of the new census data also shows that during the last decade Michigan's adult population grew by 3.5 percent, resulting in a modest increase in the overall population. Children, however, are becoming an increasingly smaller portion of the total population.

"In 1980, children under age 18 represented nearly 30 percent of the state's total population. By 1990, only 26.5 percent of the state's residents were children," Landauer-Menchik noted.

Hister in all-star game

Former Plymouth Salem running back Leon Hister will be among five Observerland players in the annual Michigan High School Football Coaches Association All-Star Game at 1:30 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 1, in East Lansing.

Leon Hister

Hister, who helped the Rocks qualify for the Class AA playoffs and finish with a 7-3 record last November, rushed for 1,507 yards and 19 touchdowns on 239 carries. He was Salem's leading scorer with 122 points.

The 5-foot-9, 185-pound tailback, a two-time All-Observer selection, accumulated 2,494 rushing yards and 37 touchdowns in the last years.

Also playing for the East squad will be Redford St. Agatha tailback Cardell Davis, Redford Bishop Borgess lineman Justin Gugala, Westland John Glenn linebacker Jason Hagelthorne and Farmington Hills Harrison tailback Roy Granger, who led the Hawks to the Class BB championship.

Wolves win soccer title

The Michigan Wolves under-13 boys soccer team won the Father's Day Tournament in Avon Lake, Ohio. The Wolves went through the preliminary round without a loss and won the championship game 1-0 in overtime. David Kerby scored the goal with an assist from Aaron See.

Wildcats in pursuit of AAU hoop crown

The Western Wayne Wildcats were still in the running at mid-week for a possible national championship at the AAU girls basketball finals in New Mexico.

The Western Wayne Wildcats 18-Under AAU girls basketball team advanced to the quarterfinal round of the national championship at Eastern New Mexico University.

The Wildcats, coached by Gary Schwann, played top-rated North Carolina in Wednesday's quarterfinal. (Results of that game and any further games played by the Wildcats will appear in Monday's editions of the Observer).

Schwann acknowledged North Carolina's strong team but gave the Wildcats a good chance of winning the national title because the tournament is double elimination after pool play. The Wildcats can lose to North Carolina and still be alive.

"Of the eight teams left, seven or eight have a legitimate chance to win, including us," Schwann said. "This is really a special team. All our players have been key figures, contributing. We play real fast — you can see by our scores."

The Wildcats have averaged 96.5 points per game. After four games (including three in pool play), Livonia Franklin's Dawn Warner leads the Wildcats in scoring with 20.5 points per game.

The tournament began with 37 teams and the Wildcats were one of 18 who advanced out of pool play. The Wildcats finished in second place in their pool behind first place Ohio with a 2-1 record.

The Wildcats, who have Warner, Darcie Miller (Plymouth Salem), Julie Nicastri (Plymouth Canton) and Laure DeMattia (Farmington Hills Mercy) on their roster, beat Missouri (78-73), West Virginia (113-63) and lost to Ohio (96-88) in pool play.

The loss to Ohio was disappointing, Schwann said, because the Wildcats led 50-34 at halftime and 72-60 in the second half. Ohio outscored Michigan 20-2 late in the second half and held on to win the game and the pool.

The Wildcats on Tuesday ambushed Massachusettes, 107-54, to advance to the quarterfinal round.

Regardless of what happens, Schwann said the national tournament will be quite a memory for the players and coaching staff. Schwann is assisted by Fred Thomann, the head coach of Plymouth Salem. Thomann took the '89 Wildcats, who included Plymouth Salem's Jill Estey and Plymouth Canton's Michelle Fortier, to the semifinals of the national tournament before bowing out.

"This is a very competitive tournament, everyone here is a state champion," Schwann said. "We had a goaltending call out here by a 6-foot-7 girl. There's three referees, 20 minute halves, 30-second shot clock. It's exciting."

Schwann busy schedule continues when he heads to Salt Lake City, Utah, Saturday to coach the Western-Wayne Wildcats 11-Under team, which is playing in another national tournament.

Youth soccer teams seek Wolverine tourney titles

The Ford-Wolverine XIII Soccer Tournament will be held Saturday through Monday at Bicentennial Park and Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

The tournament will attract 144 teams from states throughout the midwest, New York and Canada, according to Irene Saucedo-Smith, president of the Michigan State Youth Soccer Association and chairman of the Ford-Wolverine.

Games will be played from 8 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday at both Bicentennial and Schoolcraft. The championship games will be played from 8 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Monday at Schoolcraft. There is free admission at each site each day. Concession sales will go to help pay for Schoolcraft College athletic scholarships.

As in past years, the majority of teams playing for division championships will come from the select or premier level. But this year, divisions for boys and girls recreation players have been added, Saucedo-Smith said. Recreation teams for boys Under 10, U-12 and U-14 have been entered, as well as recreation teams for girls U-10.

"Throughout the state, the recreation players are the ones that make up the bulk of our membership so we're constantly trying to do things for the recreation player," Saucedo-Smith said. "We're hoping it grows."

Champions for premier and select teams will be crowned in the following boys age categories: Under-11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17 and 19. There will be four separate divisions for girls select and premier teams: Under-12, 14, 16 and 19.

■ 'Throughout the state, the recreation players are the ones that make up the bulk of our membership so we're constantly trying to do things for the recreation player.'

Irene Saucedo-Smith
MSYSA president

Last year's Ford-Wolverine was highlighted by the appearance of Rick Davis, former captain of the U.S. National Team who signed autographs working for Chiquita Challenge. Saucedo-Smith said there were no guest appearances lined up for this year's tournament.

The Ford-Wolverine is the only tournament in the state run by the MSYSA, according to Sal Malek, the vice-chairman of the MSYSA.

"It's a very nice tournament," said Malek, who owns Soccer Locker in Farmington. "It's been getting better and better each year. Irene and the committee do a nice job with a lot of cooperation from Schoolcraft College and Livonia Parks and Recreation. It's a nice little touch for the area to have a first-class tournament. People almost make a vacation out of it."

Mustangs 3rd in Canton NIT

The Mid-America Mustangs settled for third place Sunday in the National Invitational Tournament at Canton Softball Center, winning their first two games but losing the next two.

The 16-and-under Mustangs are 9-4 in tournament play, 7-6 in the women's Class C League at CSC and 16-10 overall.

Mid-America opened with an 8-2 win Saturday over the Southgate All-Stars, supporting pitcher Stacy Sinke with 16 hits.

Katy Duncan (Westland) and Leslee Dickerson (Belleville) had three hits apiece to lead Mid-America. Jennifer Jacek (Livonia), Sue Huber (Canton) and Sue Wutke (Garden City) two each.

One of Wutke's hits was a two-run triple, and the others chipped in one RBI and scored one run apiece.

The Mustangs moved to 2-0 when they defeated the South Farmington Fury 13-6 later Saturday. Amy Geary (Farmington Hills) was the winning pitcher.

Dickerson was among the hitting leaders again, going 4-for-4 and scoring three runs. Geary helped her cause with a 3-for-3 performance and scored twice.

Julie Jones (Belleville), Wukte, Heidi Wahl (Southfield), Patricia Kesner (Garden City), Duncan and Amy Yocum (Belleville) had two hits each. Jones also had two sacrifices and four RBI, Duncan two RBI and Wukte, Wahl and Kesner single RBI.

The Mustangs dropped into the losers bracket Sunday when they lost 8-2 to the Cincinnati Strokers, who won the championship 19-7 over the Fury.

Dickerson keyed the offense once more with three hits. Sinke, the losing pitcher, and Jones had two hits each. Huber added a single and a sacrifice fly.

The Mustangs were eliminated in a 16-12 loss to the Fury. Mid-American outhit South Farmington 20-19 as Geary was tagged with the loss. Sinke is 6-3 in tournament games and Geary 3-1.

Huber was 3-for-3 and Duncan 3-for-4, Yocum two hit, Sinke a two-run triple and Lisa Rozum (Canton) a single, two sacrifice flies and two RBI. Huber, Duncan and Yocum added one RBI and scored one run apiece.

The Mid-America Hawks won the NIT 18-and-under title, and the Mid-America Motion was runner-up to All-Of-Us in the 12-and-under division.

The Mustangs were 14th out of 22 teams at a tournament in Tennessee June 19-21.

Hines Park wins 2 games; Walter's moves toward top

Walter's Home Appliance edged its way closer to first place Sunday with a doubleheader sweep over the Tecumseh Green Giants in a Livonia Collegiate game at Ford Field.

Walter's won the opener 8-0 and the nightcap 5-1, giving it a 10-6 record and placing it just one game behind first-place Little Caesars. Tecumseh remains in last place with a 3-12 mark.

In the first game, Dave Wood was solid on the mound for Walter's, going the distance and striking out five.

Walter's tallied 10 hits, including two from Craig Overaltis (Livonia Franklin).

Paul Pirronello (Redford Catholic Central) hit an RBI double to spark a three-run sixth inning for Walter's.

Kevin Young (Farmington) also had an RBI triple to help the cause, and Jeff Schaffer (Franklin) contributed a two-run double in the second inning.

In the second game, Walter's once again received solid pitching, this time from Louie McKaig, who tossed a three-hitter and fanned four.

Walter's had eight hits. Pirronello paced the attack with two, including a double, and two RBI. Jay Gabel added a two-run single in the third.

Caesars, Delwal split

Little Caesars split a doubleheader with Delwal Sunday, winning the opener 11-6 but dropping the second game 10-4 at Novi High School.

In the first game, Caesars benefited from five Delwal errors, which led to seven unearned runs. Delwal also stranded 13 runners on base.

John Spoyler started for Caesars and went the first three innings. Dave Roman came on with the bases loaded in the fourth and fanned the side.

Caesars belted nine hits, including two from Mark VanAmedeys, Jim Solak and J.R. Taylor. Aaron Mach had a two-run homer and VanAmedeys a two-run double.

Delwal (9-7) had eight hits, including two apiece from Noah Bremen and Bill McCaig. Bremen also drove in three runs.

In the nightcap, Todd Boike turned in a solid pitching performance for Delwal, scattering nine hits and allowing just one earned run. Delwal committed two errors.

Delwal tallied 10 hits. McCaig and Tom Kretschmer each blasted two-run homers. Bremen, Mike Schwartzenberger and Billy Hardy chipped in two hits each.

Hines Park wins 2 of 3

Hines Park split a doubleheader with Ann Arbor Wendy's Sunday, winning the first game 4-3 and losing the second 10-3.

In the first game, Geoff Allen (Plymouth Canton) was the winning pitcher and Adam Morano suffered the loss in the nightcap.

On Friday, Hines Park tallied nine hits en route to a 3-2 win over Delwal at Ford Field.

Scott Rodgers (Plymouth Salem) won the pitching dual with Mark Temple (North Farmington). Delwal took a 2-0 lead into the final inning, but Hines Park rallied for three runs.

Ed Gundry (Plymouth Salem) led off with a triple, Jason Riggs walked, a wild pitch scored Gundry and a double by T.J. Raptis (Madonna University) tied the score. Raptis scored the winning run on a single by Mike White.

Horton whips Mack foe

BASEBALL

Horton Plumbing-Canton thumped North Farmington-West Bloomfield II in a Little Caesars Connie Mack baseball game Tuesday, 19-1.

The win improved its season record to 5-4.

Brad Paskievitch pitched four innings to earn the victory, and Scott Valimont worked two innings of relief before the game was called because of darkness after six.

Matt Paupore, Eric Marcotte, Chris Johnson and Ryan Fordham were the hitting stars for Horton, which expanded a 10-1 lead when NFWB pitching walked nine in one inning.

Horton rebounded from a disappointing, 2-0 loss Monday to a good Trenton team. Eight of the nine Trenton starters have played a year of college ball, according to Canton coach Mark LaPointe.

Craig Benedict pitched a complete game for Horton, allowing just four hits, striking out four and issuing no walks.

"He pitched as well as I've ever seen him pitch," LaPointe said.

The difference in the four games Horton has lost is eight runs, all of them unearned.

"This team very easily could be 9-0," LaPointe said. "If we could have gotten four timely hits — one in each game — we could be 9-0.

"But the kids are playing hard and playing much better than they did in the spring. We have to be the youngest team in the league, and we're playing against college ballplayers."

While the Connie Mack league is for players 18 and under, 15 of the 16 on the Horton roster were either sophomores or juniors during the last school year.

Catcher Todd Pniewski is the only senior and the team leader, a distinction which has earned him the nickname "Long Ranger" from LaPointe.

Concealed downs Dearborn Heights

Concealed Security Systems whipped Dearborn Heights Stitt 12-2 in a Little Caesars Connie Mack baseball game Tuesday at Capital Park in Redford.

Concealed had only three hits; two by Craig Peterson, who also had an RBI. Three Stitt pitchers combined to issue 14 walks, however.

Dan Scutchfield pitched a one-hit complete game for Concealed, striking out 11 and, walking five. Rob Valentino was the losing pitcher, giving up just one hit.

Concealed, 2-3 in the league and 10-8 overall, was 2-4 in the Mayors Invitational A Bracket last weekend in Battle Creek.

Canton lanes has new owners

10-PIN ALLEY

AL HARRISON

Good things happen to good people. That's exactly the case regarding the sale of a local bowling establishment to Mark and Diane Voight of Troy.

Mark and Diane recently purchased Super Bowl Lanes in Canton Township. The Voight's have earned the respect of the bowling community as owners of Satellite Bowl in Dearborn Heights and Century Lanes in Waterford. Mark also serves as secretary of the Bowling Centers Association of Southeast Michigan.

Mark and Diane are very active owners. They are both involved in the daily operation of the business and anyone who knows them knows how they go out of their way to see that bowlers enjoy the game.

By purchasing Super Bowl, the Voights have obtained another 60 lane beds. They also have establishments in Charlevoix and Fort Wayne, Ind.

Mark and Diane have been successful in bringing the Ladies Pro Bowlers Tour to this area. Now we can look forward to them bringing more events to town.

Good things will soon be happening at Super Bowl.

- Summer league scores are soaring at Town and Country Lanes in Westland, including a 300 registered by Tony Sivako. Yves Szmansky came close with a 298. Brian Smith tallied a 300 a few weeks earlier.
- Jim Lhamon of Farmington was the recipient of the Howard McCullough Memorial award from the Youth America Bowling Alliance at its recent awards banquet.

This annual award is presented for the dedication and contributions to junior bowling. Jim is the assistant director of the Sunday Youth Classic Traveling League. He is also a member of the GDBA Board of Directors.

- Larry Walker, a Garden City bowler, will be one of the U.S. competitors in the Africa Cup, to be held July 11-20 in South Africa. Several other nations will also be participating.

As a member of this year's Team USA, Walker gets to pile up some frequent flier miles while taking part in his favorite sport.

This will be the first-ever international 10-pin competition held in South Africa. It's also part of the ongoing effort to include bowling as a medal sport in the Olympics.

- Plum Hollow Lanes is running a Thursday special during the summer months: $1 per game and $1 show rental all day.

Bob Bowen had one goal and three assists, Darrel Schimmelpfenneg (Canton) one goal and one assist to lead the Falcons.

Joe Burton (Garden City) had a big game Sunday, scoring four goals and getting four assists, to pace the Wolves in their 11-4 rout of the Bulldogs.

Canton man named to EMU post

John W. Obermesik, wage and salary administrator at Central Michigan University, was appointed compensation program analyst in Eastern Michigan University's compensation office by the EMU Board of Regents at a special meeting.

Obermesik, 32, also worked as a personnel analyst in the CMU Community Mental Health Services in 1990-91 and was a personnel intern in that department in 1990. He also worked at Merchandise Outlet as a personnel industry consultant in 1990.

Obermesik holds an associate's degree earned in 1986 from St. Clair County Community College in Port Huron and received a 1989 bachelor's degree in psychology from Evangel College in Springfield, Mo. He earned a master's degree in industrial/organizational psychology from CMU in 1991.

A Port Huron native, Obermesik lives in Canton.

As compensation program analyst, he will provide administrative and analytical assistance in support of the maintenance and regulation of the University's compensation and classification systems.

His appointment is effective immediately.

Geake pushes legislation on sex offenders

State Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, has introduced legislation that amends the Mental Health Code and creates a mechanism to protect citizens from sexually violent habitual offenders.

"Our No. 1 priority is to protect our citizens from these severely disturbed and dangerous individuals," said Geake. "Unless we take immediate stern action, no one will be safe from the Leslie Williamses of the world. The people of Michigan need to be assured that violent sexual offenders are not allowed to roam our streets."

The legislation will allow a prosecuting attorney to petition the court to determine if a person is a habitually violent sexual offender when:

- The sentence of a person who has been convicted of a sexually violent offense is about to expire, or has expired;
- The person charged with a sexually violent crime has been determined to be incompetent to stand trial, is about to be or has been released;
- The person charged with a sexually violent crime has been found not guilty by reason of insanity and is about to be or has been released; and
- The term of incarceration for a person who has committed sexually violent crimes as a juvenile is about to expire or has expired.

If it is determined beyond a reasonable doubt that the person is a sexually violent habitual offender, that person would be committed to a secured facility for control, care and treatment until such a time as the person is no longer a threat to the public.

Geake represents the Plymouth and Canton areas.

Sen. Robert Geake

Metropolitan Musicafe features pasta

BY KEELY WYGONIK
STAFF WRITER

Everywhere there's a view, not a bad seat in the house. No, we're not talking about a nightclub, although Metropolitan Musicafe at 34555 12 Mile, Farmington Hills is known as one of the area's hottest rock and roll bars. With a fresh, yet simple approach to food, it's also a great place to eat out.

"I don't want to be known as just a bar," said Nino Cutraro of Bloomfield Township. He also owns the Metropolitan Musicafe in Royal Oak, and the Ultimate Sports Bar in Pontiac.

Steve Wren of Rochester, a graduate of the Culinary Institute in Hyde Park, New York is in charge of the kitchen. Wren worked at the Royal Oak Metropolitan Musicafe for two years, and moved to the Farmington Hills restaurant when it opened on Feb. 28. Pasta dishes are one of his specialties, and now is a great time to try them.

"Summer Pastabilities for Two," features dinner for two with choice of Seafood Ravioli, Grilled Chicken Tortellini, Shrimp Marinara Linguine, Shrimp and Crab Fettucini Verde, or Southwest Linguine, choice of Antipasto or Caesar salad, and glass of Chardonnay, Cabernet or White Zinfadel wine for $13.95, through July 31.

Eat inside, or outside on a balcony overlooking a beautifully landscaped courtyard with waterfall. No matter where you sit, there's something interesting and fun to look at. Cutraro collects rock and roll memorabilia, the walls are filled with guitars, gold records and photos. Some unusual items include unused tickets from Woodstock, Michael Jackson's pants, and a guitar smashed by Ted Nuggent.

A reggae band plays in the courtyard, 5-9 p.m. Fridays, and 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Sundays. After work drink specials and hors d'oeuvres are featured 5-7 p.m. Monday through Friday. Tuesday 9 p.m. to 1 a.m., is jazz night. Norma Jean Bell will be performing on Tuesdays in July.

Metropolitan Musicafe is open 11 a.m. to 2 a.m. seven days a week. Lunch is served 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., dinner, 4-10 p.m., and sit down Sunday brunch, 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Luncheon items include soup of the day, $1.95 cup, $2.75 bowl, French onion soup au gratin, $2.50 cup, $3.95 bowl, and award-winning Metropolitan chili, $1.95 cup, $3.75 bowl, a variety of salads like seafood salad, a mixture of crab and shrimp in a seasoned mayonnaise, served over lettuce with a tomato and cucumber for $5.95 and pasta salad with tri-colored rotini and ziti tossed with vegetables and dressing, garnished with ham, salami and tomato wedges for $4.95.

For heartier appetites, there are daily specials, stir-fry — chicken $5.95, shrimp, $6.95 or pork, $5.95, lake perch or whitefish, $6.95, a few pasta dishes, burgers and sandwiches ranging in price from $4.95 to $5.95.

The dinner menu is similar to lunch, and includes daily specials, roast pork served with roasted redskin potatoes and vegetables du jour for $7.95 or $13.95 for two, a 12 oz. center cut sirloin steak for $12.95, broiled or blackened Cajun-style swordfish, $8.95 or chicken pasta — tender strips of chicken breast sauteed with artichoke hearts, tomatoes and scallions in a light white wine sauce with linguine, $8.95.

South Oakland Concert Band entertains

AVIGDOR ZAROMP

The Cultural Arts Division of the Southfield Parks and Recreation Department is a municipal department whose long title represents sincere and consistent dedication to cultural and artistic pursuit. It has something to offer to art and music lovers from all backgrounds and ages. During the main season it offers major events by the Southfield Symphony and chamber events by accomplished artists at various locations.

During the summer season, when most series take a well deserved break, this department offers a pleasant and entertaining series to fill the gap. The Southfield Summer Concert Series presented its first event this season in a concert featuring the South Oakland Concert Band. It was the first of the Gazebo Concerts presented outdoors near Civic Center Drive and Berg.

Combined with the cool weather for this season, this concert proved to be an entertaining event even for someone with a decided preference for heavy classical material like myself.

Nostalgic selections from the 1920s from musicals and marching band selections evoked an enthusiastic response from those attending.

The South Oakland Concert Band consists of amateur musicians, and as such, has its limitations when compared to the more seasoned and professional groups. But the sincere devotion and dedication of its members and leader make up for much of this gap.

Among the highlights of this event was a virtuosic coronet performance of the "Carnival in Venice," by veteran coronet artist Cleaveland Autrie. It concluded with a vigorous "Stars and Stripes Forever," with its favorite piccolo acrobatics credibly performed.

Another attractive feature of this series is the fact that it is free to the public.

There are two series involved: the Gazebo series, where this aforementioned event took place and the Sun Bowl Concerts in the Prudential Town Center "Sun Bowl" off Civic Center Drive between Northwestern Highway and Evergreen Road.

The Gazebo Concerts are 7 p.m. Wednesdays through Aug. 26. Sun Bowl Concerts are 7 p.m. Sundays through Aug. 23. The Gazebo series also features a children's show, and picnic menu at reasonable prices.

Upcoming concerts include Dodworth Sax Horn Reserve Band, 7 p.m. Wednesday, July 8, Spirit of America Band, 7 p.m. Wednesday, July 15, The Red Garter Band, 7 p.m. Sunday, July 12, New Greystone Jazz Orchestra, 7 p.m. Sunday, July 19.

Bring your own lawn chairs for these concerts. For more information, call 354-4717.

Avigdor Zaromp, born in Poland, educated in Israel and the United States, has a Ph.D. in math and has studied piano, music theory and history.

Folk trio kicks off series

By Sandy Merritt
Special Writer

No it's not golf. It's the first annual biweekly Summer Concerts on the Green series sponsored by the Troy Public Library 7 p.m. Wednesdays through Aug. 26.

The Felicity Strings Trio, consisting of two hammered dulcimers and one bass player, kicked off the first in the series of five outdoor concerts at the Troy Public Library 510 W. Big Beaver Road in Troy's Civic Center Complex.

Pat Tait of Redford played one of the two hammered dulcimers accompanied by her husband Jim on bass. Pat Mallis of Livonia played the second hammered dulcimer.

For anyone unfamiliar with a hammered dulcimer, it's a trapezoid-shaped stringed instrument that originated in the Middle East over 2,000 years ago. Wooden hammers strike piano type strings creating sounds reminiscent of a harp.

Some people came to the concert because they were familiar with dulcimer music, others came to introduce their children to music. Like Diane Ives of Troy who brought her 2 and 5-year-old sons. She claimed she has no musical talent, but wants to expose her sons to music.

"I like dancing really pretty," said 4-year-old Sarah Rocheleau of Troy. Her parents, Tim and Vickie Rocheleau, discovered the concert when exiting the library. Tim said he would come back after seeing how much his daughter enjoyed dancing to the melodic tunes.

When Pat Tait, a University of Michigan music graduate sang and played "Have I Told You Lately That I Love You," on the dulcimer, the crowd joined in singing along with her. Pretty soon someone yelled out a request for "Danny Boy." The group cooperated playing it on the harp and dulcimer. The concert ended with a rousing medley saluting veterans of all the armed forces with songs like "Stars and Stripes Forever," and "Anchors Away."

Linda Morrow, the new assistant director of the Troy library, said she wants the biweekly series of folk an ethnic music concerts to represent the diverse culture of Troy. the series is funded by a grant from the Oakland County Cultural Council and the Michigan Council for the Arts and Cultural Affairs.

"I bring the kids and it's free, and they're exposed to music," said Ives. "If they get restless and want to leave, I don't feel bad about leaving."

The concert lasted a little over an hour which was when Ives' 2-year-old began crawling away requiring Ives to crawl after him. But she said her 5-year-old could have stayed all night listening to the beautiful music.

For the over 100 attendees the weather cooperated by not raining. Most of the crowd sat on picnic tables or brought blankets or folding chairs to sit on. Many of the small children attending danced and kept time to the music. One ethusiastic 2-year-old even kept time to the music on her old brother's head until the mother stopped her.

The next scheduled concert 7 p.m. Wednesday, July 8, will feature Golden Rain Percussion, African and Mexican folk music with snare drums, mallets, timpani and traps.

Concerts are free, bring a chair or blanket to sit on. If it rains the concert will be held inside the library. For information, call 524-3438.

Mitzi Gaynor, charming, enthusiastic and busy performing

MARY JANE DOERR

"Come on, Yolanda, I know it's you," said the caller on the other line. Little did the caller know that the laughing voice at the end of his wrong number was stage and screen star Mitzi Gaynor.

Chuckling, Gaynor returned to our telephone conversation from her Los Angles home as naturally as Nellie Forbush handled her colonel in "South Pacific." At 61, the bright eyed dancer/singer has lost none of the enthusiastic charm that has kept her in front of the lights since she first danced for Cole Porter when she was 16 years old.'

"I hadn't had enough experience to be scared," said Gaynor who auditioned for Porter at his Mockingbird home in L.A. "What did I know about silver framed pictures of the King of England. All I wanted was a Coke with two cherries and a chance to sing 'You're the top'."

When the star starts asking the questions, you know their friendliness is real. I am not Bing Crosby, Gene Kelly, Joshua Logan or Richard Rodgers or any of the famous stars with whom Gaynor has worked, but during our conversation, Gaynor found out almost as much about life in Michigan as I did about touring with super duper Las Vegas stage shows.

On June 30, the audience at Northland Theatre, on J.L. Hudson Drive near the Plaza (former Sheraton) Hotel in Southfield, had the opportunity to ask Gaynor questions when she introduced the 1955 movie classic "Guys and Dolls" for Continental Cablevision and American Movie Classics as the spokeswoman for the American Movie Classics channel.

As Nellie Forbush in 1955, then 25 year old Gaynor made her name in musical theater history. When that career in the movies tapered off after "For Love or Money" in 1963, she began her Las Vegas shows, and has been on the road at least six months a year ever since, including several appearances at the Fox Theatre in Detroit. She is booked through 1993.

"I never saw the Fox when it wasn't bright and shiny," said Gaynor who grew up near Wayne State University between Second and Merrick in the 1930s. Going to the movies at the Fox, visiting the Detroit Institute of Arts, and making clay pots at Pewabic Pottery was what she did for entertainment.

"Then I moved to California and majored in boys and a suntan. I always had a great tan," said Gaynor. The other phone rings again. "Jack says 'hi'."

Jack Ban, Gaynor's husband of 37 years, is the talent scout she married in 1954 who rejuvenated her career at Paramount and other studios resulting in leads in films such as "Anything Goes" with Bing Crosby, "Les Girls" with Gene Kelly, "Surprise Package," with Yul Brynner, and "We're not Married," with Eddie Bracken and "The Joker is Wild" with Frank Sinatra.

Auto media feels advertiser wrath

AUTO TALK

DAN McCOSH

GM canceled advertising in Automobile Magazine's after editor David E. Davis delivered a scathing speech critical of GM management at the Washington Automotive Press Association's annual awards dinner.

Well, sort of. As an award recipient at that dinner, the consequences of which were recently reported in the New York Times, I find myself in an uncomfortable position for a working journalist — reading an account in the general media of some event you actually participated in. Neither the incident nor the aftermath seems to have much to do with the stories about it. Unfortunately, an accurate account tends to confirm the worst opinions held by the general public about how the media really operate.

First, Davis was in rare form that night. He opened bragging about the $1 million he had just received as a bonus for successfully launching Automobile magazine, then sort of drifted into a meandering diatribe, mainly about incompetent management at General Motors. More than incompetence — he questioned the breeding and social class of GM executives, "products of land-grant universities,' and finally admitted what some folks had suspected all along — that Mr. Davis thought the folks that bought domestic cars were sort of lower class as well.

'Wow,' I was thinking, here is the Washington Post, the New York Times, the Wall Street Journal — all taking this in. Unfortunately, not taking notes. The big guns were all at the WAPA dinner because auto executives at most of the major manufacturers had paid for it. In the end, this is what pushed GM corporate types attending the dinner over the edge — being singled out in the midst of a meeting of their corporate peers as the butt of Mr. Davis tirade.

They went home and canceled Automobile advertising. They deny it, but they did.

To the best of my knowledge, nobody wrote a word about the speech itself. Unfortunately, including me. I took my award and went home. Subaru paid for my dinner. Canceling advertising, however, steps on the toes of the publishing industry, and it's first amendment time. Hence the column in the New York Times about GM's assault on Automobile's ad revenue, which followed stories in Advertising Age and Automotive News.

I can hardly condone using an economic bludgeon to curry favor in the press. But to some in the business, this is getting a bit old. Toyota in particular has canceled advertising at Car and Driver, Motor Trend and Road and Track when mildly critical articles appear — or even when they don't get mentioned when they think they should.

This is, in fact the second time in recent years that Mr. Davis has had his ads canceled by GM after giving a speech. As an admirer of both Mr. Davis editing style and Don Quixote types in general, I would like to be able to credit him with editorial guts, but he told the Times that Automobile gets about 90 percent of its ad revenue from import car companies anyway, so GM is actually his cheapest shot.

And in the back of my mind is the response I got from a Toyota executive about the ethics of canceling ads when magazines are critical: 'I keep telling our management that it's unethical. But the problem is that it works.'

"Growing up as a youngster in Hawaii, I always felt that someday I wanted to have my own business. I sold newspapers when I was young. I always had a dream," Tsuha said.

"At GM, we had an electronics start-up group in the early '70s. Rockwell had an auto electronics start-up group and TRW had a start-up group. After TRW, I said the next one will be my own," he said. Tsuha was a manager in transportation electronics at TRW before starting his own company.

Saturn initially was capitalized by an enterprise fund sponsored by GM, the Michigan Strategic Fund, personal investment and a bank loan, Tsuha said.

Growth will come from new products, internal cost savings and acquisitions where they fit into the company's mold, he said. He projects revenue this year of $25 and $70 million by 1995.

Tsuha, who lives in Rochester Hills, has a daughter, Jennifer, and son, Christopher. Tsuha enjoys golf, but acknowledges that he's spent a lot of hours on the business since its founding.

"Three hundred families depend on the management team and myself. We want to make sure we do a good job so everyone has a livelihood. I really have a deep appreciation for the efforts of our employees. They're all important."

■ 'Our original plan was to be a full-service electronics supplier, to take an idea, develop it into a concept, build a prototype, put it into production and deliver it to the customer. Today, that turns out to be the right strategy.'

Saturn's founder reaches for stars

■ Wally Tsuha's dream of developing a full-service electronics supply firm has become reality. His entrepreneurial style includes team-building among employees and diversification of product line.

JIM RIDER/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Quality check: Wally Tsuha, president of Saturn Electronics & Engineering, visits with Wanessa Wight in the production assembly area.

Wally Tsuha, owner of Saturn Electronics & Engineering in Rochester Hills, has enjoyed tremendous success since founding his company in 1985.

Last year, Saturn doubled sales to $15 million and boosted employment at its plant here by nearly two dozen to 115. Tsuha acquired instant production capacity in Mississippi and Mexico, low-cost labor locales, by purchasing Beta Manufacturing.

Saturn, a major automotive supplier, has taken steps to diversify into the military and commercial subcontracting arenas.

Those were a few of the reasons that Tsuha was selected Master Entrepreneur of the Year by a panel looking for excellence in financial performance, innovation and personal commitment to business and community. The program was sponsored by Ernst & Young, a professional services firm; Inc. Magazine; Merrill Lynch; Comerica; WJR Radio; and Crain's Detroit Business.

"We have a good base of customers, very supportive, giving us an opportunity to work on products and prove ourselves," Tsuha said.

GM, Chrysler and Ford account for about 75 percent of his company's business now, Tsuha said. "By 1995, we hope other areas will grow faster than automotive so automotive will be about 50 percent," he said.

Saturn currently is working on tank components with General Dynamics Land Systems and with IBM and Masco on commercial applications, Tsuha said.

"Our original plan was to be a full-service electronics supplier, to take an idea, develop it into a concept, build a prototype, put it into production and deliver it to the customer," he said. "Today, that turns out to be the right strategy.

"We believe we have some of the best people in Michigan working on our team," Tsuha said. "We try to stress team spirit, team effort. People are very responsive to that. We empower them to make decisions, come up with ideas. Because we're a young company, we can establish that culture."

Tsuha, 48, was selected Minority Entrepreneur of the Year last year in the same program. Judges this year included William Parfet, president of Upjohn Co.; Rick Inatome, president of InaCom Corp.; Florine Mark, president of the W.W. Group; and David Brophy, associate professor at the University of Michigan.

"We're pretty agressive trying to be a success," Tsuha said. "I devote a lot of time to projects. We're very team-oriented. We try to spread the entrepreneurial spirit all the way down the team.

"We look for improvement in all areas of operation, not just production, but finance and accounting," he said. "We set quantifiable goals, what things are, where we're headed."

Saturn has posted a profit every year since its inception, Tsuha said. Last year's amounted to some $750,000, he said.

Dynamic duo says goodbyes

ART EMANUELE/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Long service: Leo Roddy and Marilyn Wells, colleagues at a wallpaper and paint store for some 20 years, retired last weekend on the same day.

Leo Roddy doesn't work there anymore. For that matter, neither does Marilyn Wells.

Both retired last weekend from Model Wallpaper & Paint in Livonia. Roddy, the manager, had 51 years of service with the family-owned company. Wells, a sales rep hired by Roddy, had 20.

"When I was 14, my father sent me to the store to buy a roll of drywall tape," recalled Roddy, now 65. "When I went into the store, the gentleman (owner Carl Schramm) said, 'Do you want a job?' "

Roddy went back the next day and, except for a two-year stint in the Army, has worked for Schramm ever since. Roddy was paid $5 a week for helping out after school and on Saturdays.

He has managed the Livonia store the past 27 years and has watched the industry evolve — at a considerable increase in pay.

"There's a lot more wallpaper sold," Roddy said. "It dresses up a room a lot more than a coat of paint. It lasts a long time. It gives you beauty, gives you a good feeling looking at wallpaper rather than a blank wall.

"Paints (today) hide better, cover better," he said. "They go on easier. Latex paint now cleans up easier. There's no odor to them."

Wells sought a job after her children were grown.

"I've probably helped decorate half of Livonia," she said. "We have some pretty nice customers. We know them personally. We were invited out to a lady's house the other day to see the results of our decorating. That happens frequently."

Wallpaper customers today seem to prefer contemporary design, Wells said, but traditional has a strong following.

"I don't think we'll ever lose the country look because people are so into antiques," she added.

Both Roddy and Wells kept up to date by talking with manufacturers reps. "I've always been good with color," Wells said. "When you like something, you learn."

Customer service is what the smaller independents use to compete against large department and specialty stores, Wells and Roddy agreed. "It's personal help," Roddy said. "They (customers) will tell us what they've got and we'll help them.

Roddy is stepping down now because he figures he's of retirement age and tax laws will take a big bite of his Social Security earnings if he continues to work. He plans to spend time finishing a second home in Kalkaska.

Wells, who plans to divide time between Michigan and Florida, said she's no longer physically up to the rigors of lifting heavy wallpaper sample books and paint cans.

Roddy said he never really thought about getting into another line of work or working for someone else.

"It's nice being able to work by yourself and with your helpers and not having anyone to tell you what to do because you've been left in charge of the whole operation," he said.

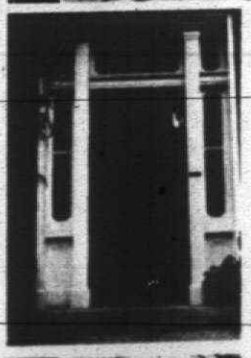

Schramm, retired for 15 years, remembers Roddy well.

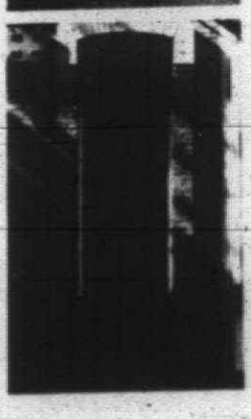

"I worked at the bomber plant (in the early 1940s) and the three of us, my wife, and him, kind of carried on during the war. It was a small store, a tiny hole in the wall, not much really.

"He was a loyal employee. He was on a level with my children. They all joined the business as they grew up," Schramm said.

"He's an honest and honorable man. I think he will be in and out. He's not just wiped out. If we need him, we'll call on him. He lives the business like I did," Schramm said.

TV 'filler' is a winner for GV students

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Florida's beaches may be the typical spring break destination for many college students, but for E. Todd Rollenhagen, a trip to Hollywood was in order.

Rollenhagen, a senior at Grand Valley State University, was honored by the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences in the 1991 National College Television Awards competition.

Students traveled to California for the awards ceremony, which was held at the Beverly Hills Hilton in mid-March. The black-tie event was covered by "Entertainment Tonight," and students enjoyed viewing clips from the top winners in six categories.

■ The documentary features four artists with ties to western Michigan, including filmmaker Paul Schrader, known for his work on "Taxi Driver" and "American Gigolo."

Rollenhagen and DeVries received second place honors in the news/public affairs division. The Academy of Television Arts and Sciences is known for its annual Emmy Awards for national prime-time programming.

The two students worked on their documentary for about three months, "from conceptualization to having it air on public TV, on PBS," he said.

The documentary was broadcast on WGVU/Channel 35 in western Michigan, and was picked up by some channels off satellite and shown in other parts of the country, Rollenhagen said.

Small start

Initially, station officials had asked the students to do a filler-type item for the Fourth of July. Other students have done salutes to independence, but Rollenhagen and DeVries wanted to focus on freedom of expression and the importance of the arts.

That's particularly timely, given recent cuts in public funding for arts, he said.

"It's always been something that has been pushed aside." In some cases, students don't fit into the reading, writing and arithmetic mold, but find their niche in an artistic field.

The documentary features four artists with ties to western Michigan, including filmmaker Paul Schrader, known for his work on "Taxi Driver" and "American Gigolo." They went to New York to interview Schrader.

Another artist featured is Paul Collins, known for his paintings, including portraits of former President Gerald Ford and others. Grand Rapids-born actress Elizabeth Wilson, who played Uncle Fester's mother in "The Addams Family" movie, is featured, as is Jerry Berta, a sculptor and diner owner from Rockford, Mich.

One of Berta's diners was used for the Bounty paper towel commercials featuring Rosie the waitress, Rollenhagen said. Berta also creates model sculptures of diners.

Change of plans

Rollenhagen, 22, didn't start college intending to become a filmmaker. He'd planned to earn a degree in physical therapy, but disliked the level of competition in that program.

"It was a hobby of mine and kind of a dream to be a filmmaker," said Rollenhagen, who will graduate next spring with a bachelor's degree in communication with a film and video emphasis. He's always looking for new ideas for documentaries.

"Everything's wide open."

His plans following graduation include staying in Michigan awhile and trying to make it as an independent filmmaker, producing and distributing feature-length films. He started a company, ETRP Productions, earlier this year and has done commercials that have been aired locally, along with documentaries and industrial videos.

Rollenhagen and DeVries are partners in that endeavor, and their work has included a documentary on learning disabled students.

Competitive field

Filmmaking is a competitive field, and Rollenhagen knows it won't be easy. "It's very difficult, especially right now with the economy." People aren't spending as much on entertainment as they did in the past.

He also knows films don't necessarily have to be made on the West Coast. Often, those films are made according to a formula, he said.

"People come to accept that that's the only way they're done."

He and other Grand Valley State students recently completed work on a film, "Seizure." That class project tells the fictitious story of a police officer who has epilepsy, but doesn't realize it until he gets into a situation involving great trauma.

"So it's kind of a suspense thriller." That film will be shown at festivals and student competitions.

Stylin' — the Hines Park way

■ What the Pacific Ocean is to surfers, Hines Park is to sun worshippers. On any given sunny day, you can find the devoted on top of cars, sprawled on the grass or participating in games as they soak up the rays. And like the beach, half of being there is what you wear.

BY REBECCA HAYNES

From suits to G-strings, it's anything goes in apparel at Hines Park. But if you're planning on hanging out, make sure your stomach doesn't do the same.

"If you've had a lot of pizza during the week, you keep your shirt on," said Russ Andrews of Garden City. The 22-year-old was burning calories in a volleyball game with a group of friends after work.

Physical fitness is vogue for many parkgoers, and articles of clothing are chosen for comfort in activity, such as cycling, rollerblading, playing volleyball, Frisbee throwing and playing backysack and baseball.

Bike shorts and loose cotton shorts were spotted most on males, some wearing T-shirts and others working on tans. And denim shorts and stretch bike shorts seemed to have the most popularity among females, most of whom wore bikini tops instead of shirts.

Baring it all

When Glenn Rzepecki of Livonia was asked what he sees people wearing while enjoying the great outdoors, "as little as necessary," was his answer.

Rzepecki, 26, says he frequents Hines Park several times a week, either to bike, rollerblade or sunbathe, squeezing it in between classes at Eastern Michigan University and work at Dearborn's Ritz-Carlton Hotel. He points to his well-weathered lawnchair and says it's a two-season veteran.

"Usually, after Memorial Day only about half as many people are here because they go to Heath Beach," he said. "I'll come and work on my tan, and when it cools off in the evening I'll come back and ride my bike or rollerblade."

Nineteen-year-old Kristen Barnstable of Livonia also comes to the park several times a week. The Ladbroke DRC employee said she always carries a towel in the back of her car for impromptu sunbathing stops after work. Wearing biking shorts over her one-piece bathing suit, she said she often sees a rather large girl who enjoys sunning herself in her G-string bikini.

"She has to wear shorts over it (the bikini)," Barnstable said, grinning. "When I come down here with my girlfriend we keep track of the 'owwws' and 'oooh baby's' we get."

Rzepecki nodded, saying the bikers who ride by "usually slow down in reverance to the female flesh."

Feet first

He added that although going barefoot would be his preference while enjoying the outdoors, the broken glass and bottle caps found strewn throughout the park make that too risky.

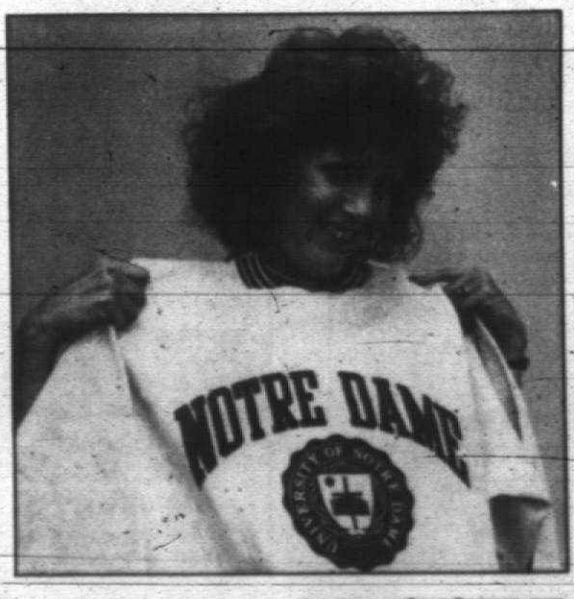

High tops were the most frequently spotted footwear, but brands varied.

Chamber director learns 'business'

June's the time of year when most students get out of school, but it was back-to-school time for Linda Shapona.

Shapona, Canton Chamber of Commerce executive director, attended a study program at the Institute for Organization Management at the University of Notre Dame.

"It was really intense," she said of the June 8-12 program in South Bend, Ind. "It was wonderful to be able to learn so much about chambers from top-notch professionals. It will be wonderful to have them as a support network too."

The Notre Dame program is one of seven held at universities around the country for managers of non-profit organizations, including chambers of commerce and trade/professional associations. Shapona was awarded a $400 scholarship by the board of the R.L. Van Ausdall Scholarship Fund to attend.

Participants study a variety of subjects, including finances and budgeting, development and management of members/volunteers, law, management philosophy, government relations and others.

"It's important to remember that we need to professionalize," said Shapona, an 11-year Canton resident who became chamber director one year ago. The knowledge she gained will help her in working with representatives of large and small businesses, retailers, government officials and others.

"We need to run it like a business. There's a lot involved. It's important to be able to move with the changes."

Keeping up with change is particularly important in a community such as Canton that is growing residentially and commercially, she said. Membership in the Canton Chamber of Commerce is up nearly 25 percent from one year ago, with approximately 285 members.

3 scouts get gold awards

Michelle Clemens

Allison Partain

Jennifer Weir

Plymouth-Canton Girl Scouts were among those who earned the Gold Award this spring from the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council.

The award, the highest honor in Girl Scouting, is given for outstanding accomplishments in leadership, community service, career planning and personal development. Awards were given during a mid-May ceremony at the Ann Arbor Women's City Club.

Local honorees are Jennifer Weir, daughter of Barbara and Robert Weir of Canton, Michelle Clemens, daughter of Judi and Bill Clemens of Plymouth, and Allison Partain, daughter of Phyllis and John Partain of Plymouth.

To earn the award, the Girl Scout creates her own plan for fulfilling requirements. The plan is carried out through close cooperation between the student and leader.

A service project incorporated into the plan is designed to provide a significant contribution to the community.

Weir created an audio-visual slide presentation for the 80th anniversary of Girl Scouting, which she presented in March at an anniversary celebration for all Plymouth-Canton Girl Scouts.

For her project, she took pictures of Scouts of all ages and recorded conversations with them on what impact they believed Girl Scouting had had on their lives.

She traveled to California for two weeks to participate in the "California Dreaming" Girl Scout event. Weir, a member of Senior Troop No. 501, plans to attend either Albion College or Central Michigan University.

Clemens served as student chairwoman on the planning committee for the "Senior Fest 91," a weekend event for more than 200 Senior Girl Scouts. She was responsible for setting up subcommittees, planning evening events and creating a money system for participants to use.

The project helped Clemens use leadership and organizational skills while also strengthening her skills in delegation and management. In high school, she was active in drama and received awards for her performances. Clemens is currently studying drama at Michigan State University.

Partain made weekly visits to the Our Lady of Providence home for mentally impaired girls. Each week, she brought with her other girls from her troop. Partain, who also brought the two family dogs along on visits, arranged for girls to play bingo, sing songs and spend time with the animals.

Her high school activities have included involvement in the National Honor Society, golf team, Centennial Educational Park yearbook staff and student radio station WSDP.

In addition to a certificate of recognition from the Huron Valley Council, the young women received framed tributes from the Michigan Legislature, presented by State Rep. Susan Grimes Munsell. They also received letters of congratulations from Gov. John Engler and President George Bush.

Cetnar was playing hackysack with friend Ron Ewald, 25, also of Detroit. Both were wearing long, loose cotton shorts, high tops and were shirtless but wearing the shades necessary for a sunny day.

Flourescent, brightly colored shorts are what they notice people wearing the most, and Cetnar said they try to spend time in the park every day, weather permitting.

George Camaj of Farmington Hills and Luigi Kalaj of Canton were hanging out at the park after work, sitting on the back of their parked car. One wore cotton shorts and a T-shirt and the other a tank top and jogging pants made of windbreaker-type material.

Camaj was wearing his baseball cap with brim forward. "If my hair's real messed up I wear it backwards," he said.

Bring sunscreen

Madrene McNally was part of the volleyball game being played in the Haggerty Field area of the park. She rode her bike to the park with roommate Barnstable and was decked out in shades, bikini top and biking shorts.

"You always wear a bathing suit and sunscreen," she said when asked about her favorite park wear. "And whether or not I wear bike shorts depends on the day of the week, because sometimes I drive down after work."

James Haushaw of Garden City said he prefers his water walkers to his sneakers when spending time in the park. The 22-year old said that way he's prepared to go in the water, and added they're good for playing sand volleyball.

Haushaw and Fred Schmittou, 23, also of Garden City, both were wearing their baseball caps backwards.

"It's easier this way," Haushaw said. "You can pull it down all the way and it doesn't hit your ears."

"And people can't tell you didn't do your hair," said Schmittou.

A special reverence for a comfortable bridge partner

The Bridge Crowd By Woody Boyd

I am grateful for the circumstances that gave me the opportunity to rub hubs with a handful of men who are a part of my gallery of great people.

A few of them have in time become close friends. The rest I hold in special reverence, even though I can't say that the events of my life allowed me more than a passing chance at enjoying their pleasures and personalities.

One was Jack Dreyfus, a man in many respects I hardly knew, yet a person in whose company I felt very comfortable. Jack was a very good bridge player and a favorite partner of many, for he handled his cards and the union proficiently.

Silence was probably his only chastisement — I never heard a word from him but praise. In the two years we played, I can't remember a sensitive moment, even though that goes with the game. Sometimes two people just mesh well together, and that was our good fortune.

Jack has been accused of being "the best American player of gin rummy in history," and the Encyclopedia of Bridge supports that contention in print, even though I'm not sure whether he has dealt a hand in many years. I sometimes wonder what it might be like to skirmish with him at this favorite amateur pastime of mine, but then reality brings me back to my senses and I gladly pass on such a utopian hope.

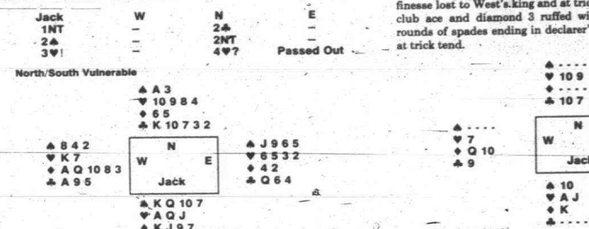

It is unfortunate that the duplicate bridge world has never known this champion, for he would certainly capture a case full of match points fast. His natural ability, table presence and personality are well suited for this wonderful intellectual challenge, but stake play is his game, and away from the table his foremost love, medical research, comes first.

Jack established the Dreyfus Medical Foundation some 30 years ago because of an extraordinary series of events in his life which had a profound effect upon his health. Since then he has unselfishly given immeasurable energy and funding to this cause, yet much is still to be accomplished, and this takes a great deal of his time.

If today's hand from my scrapbook of well-played melodies was introduced at duplicate, approximately 50 percent of the field would be playing two no trump after a Stayman search was made for a major suit playing two no trump after a Stayman search was made for a major suit fit. Some wouldn't even get that far, and a few might go further. Pending the brilliance of declarer's play, eight tricks are there while difficult to find, but game in no trump has absolutely no play. Note with homage how Jack handled this hand one sunny afternoon at New York's celebrated Cavendish Club.

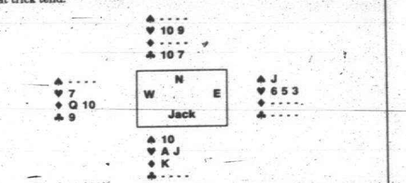

Jack	W	N	E
1NT	–	2♣	–
2♣	–	2NT	–
3♥!	–	4♥?	Passed Out

North/South Vulnerable

Jack's third call was audacious, but he knew his partner held four hearts and some quantity of high cards and his 17-plus exceptional middle card texture was monumental. North's final call displayed arrested development, but he obviously was spurred by declarer's reputation for performing miracles and bid the game with no comprehension that his partner would be playing a Moysean fit opposite his subminimal holding.

When the dummy was introduced, Jack quietly scolded himself for not passing two no trump. Appreciate that this was as good a stake game as one could play in, and it was being contested for the love of a lot of money. Nevertheless, declarer concluded the contract was remotely possible if he could hold his losses to a trump, a club and one diamond. He won the opening lead in his hand and immediately played a club, West ducking smoothly, and won by dummy's king. The heart finesse lost to West's king and at trick 4, 5 and 6, the diamond ace, the club ace and diamond 3 ruffed with dummy's heart 8. Now three rounds of spades ending in declarer's hand, and this was the position at trick tend.

You can see the space and diamond are now ruffed in dummy and dummy's two clubs are ruffed in the closed hand, limiting the defense to the three losers Jack had consciously contemplated.

Writer wants to separate from past, have new challenges

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

LORENE GREEN

Dear Lorene,

I am right handed and I am 56 years old last March. I am extremely interested in learning all about handwriting analysis, as I would like to take up a class to learn to do so. Could you send me more details on how I can accomplish this? I would be very grateful. And thank you so much.

B.M., West Bloomfield

As I study today's handwriting, I can't help wondering if something has happened to our writer recently. It seems that she would like to separate herself from some of her past and reach out for new challenges.

Some of her past experiences have taught her not to show her feelings freely and to limit her responses. Some self-pity is also suggested.

Ostensibly, she is experiencing ambivalent feelings in several areas and may be making it difficult for her to make decisions.

Her need for security often seems in conflict with her need to be independent and separate herself from a traditional background.

Our writer is caring and emotional. Even if she tries to conceal her feelings, her body language gives her away. She has mood swings and they can happen without too much provocation.

Sometimes, she is vulnerable to criticism. Other times, she hides it.

Wide word spacing tells us she needs her time and space. She tends to put distance between herself and others and may feel lonely at times. This suggests some lack of trust in people.

Self-discipline is not a strong trait here. She starts out on a project with optimism, but may begin to have second thoughts about her ability to handle it. Then her initial enthusiasm wanes and a certain amount of her energy and/or determination to complete the project is also lost. This creates inner tension.

Her philosophic outlook is somewhat narrow. A tendency to argue cannot be missed in this handwriting. Once her mind is made up, she can be rather firmly based.

She has been blessed with a sense of humor which can lend perspective to her life. A tad of tact is here and can be an effective way of dealing with people. When used in combination with the humor, it can ingratiate her to others. Humor is a very valuable trait in any relationship!

And now to answer your questions. First, let me say I am happy to learn of your interest in graphology. Classes are offered at Oakland Community College. Most complete bookstores, such as Borders, carry a selection of graphology books. Also check your public library for books on the subject.

If you would like your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and full signature are helpful. And objective feedback is always welcome.

Shapona met representatives of larger chambers of commerce at Notre Dame. The Canton chamber has two full-time staffers, Shapona and an office manager, and she found it useful to learn about specialized areas from others who work in larger organizations.

"It was interesting, because there was a wide variety. It was really good timing." Some sessions were taught by Notre Dame faculty members and other experts.

The program is produced by the Center for Leadership Development, an educational foundation of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. Sessions are held one week a year for six years, and Shapona plans to attend during the next five years. Academic credit is offered for those who complete the program.

She earned a bachelor's degree in business administration from Youngstown State University in Ohio in 1971.

WHO KILLED GOLIATH IN YOUR BIBLE?
Most modern Bible versions deny that David killed Goliath! That's right, see 2 Samuel 21:19 to prove the above. But we want to help you identify which Bible version is the true Word of God. On Tuesday evening, July 5 1992 at the Comfort Inn our church is offering a free Seminar in the Scriptures to study this important issue. This is YOUR invitation.

Church travels on freeway of growth

By Sue Mason
Staff Writer

If you look to the west as you drive along Farmington Road north of Five Mile, you might wonder where the new church came from that sits at the edge of Ford Field.

But Christ Our Savior Lutheran Church isn't a newcomer to the religious community in Livonia. It's been around since the late 1970s. What has brought it to the forefront, so to speak, is its third building program that includes the construction of a new church.

It's quite a change for the church that has seen its membership double in size in the last five years.

"When I came here, it was principally a neighborhood church," said Pastor Luther Werth. "Our asset is being near a freeway exit (Farmington Road). Now our growth is coming from far away."

The dedication was the third for Christ Our Savior. The first came in 1979 when the first church, with seating for 300, two classrooms and offices was completed. The second was in 1984 with the addition of a gymnasium, three classrooms and an office wing.

The current addition includes an 800-seat church, with the capability of seating another 150 worshippers in the balcony, a big change from the school gymnasium where services have been held since May 1991.

The design of the new church was dictated by the original church and the 19th century altar and reredos (the ornamental screen behind the altar), given to Christ Our Savior in 1978 following the closing of Gethsemane Lutheran Church in Detroit.

Creativity was the password for the $2.2 million project. The floor plan of the new church resembles a Greek cross with the altar area and balcony forming the east-west arm and the nave where the congregation gathers for worship forming the north-south arm.

Jim Jagdfeld/Staff Photographer

Old and new: Tall, glass widows provide natural lighting for the reredos, the ornamental screen behind the altar, one of several religious artifacts given to Christ Our Savior Church in 1978 following the closing of Gethsemane Lutheran Church in Detroit.

Old and new

"We tried to combine the old and the new which dictated the design of the church," Werth said. "The congregation men built a base for the upper portion of the reredos; it's an exact copy of the one in Trinity Lutheran Church in St. Louis, Mo., the first congregation of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod."

Other artifacts from Gesthemane Church have been used. The baptismal font sits to the left of the altar on an inlaid marble floor, depicting the dove, the symbol of the Holy Spirit. The pulpit, placed on its original pedestal, is to the right of the altar.

A stained glass widow, depicting Christ at Gesthemane, is the focal point of the small Gesthemane chapel built in the original church as part of the construction.

"The women of the church are making all the paraments (vestments) for the ministers and the altar," Werth said. "We'll have clothing and cloths embellished with crewel, needlepoint and cross stitch."

Modern technology has been included in the design. An elevator has been installed to service the balcony and in a small room off the nave is the audio-video control room. Four video cameras have been installed in strategic spots in the church proper to allow for recording services.

"We want to establish a video ministry," Werth said. "We have an audio ministry for shut-ins and those in nursing homes, but especially with special services, we can take the video and they can have the feel of being in church."

Church members are being trained to operate the equipment from a small, glass booth on the northside of the nave.

The Advent narthex

The original church has been incoporated into the design. The front portion serves as the Advent narthex (lobby), so named for two sets of stained glass windows depicting Christ's coming and Judgment Day that had to be moved due to the construction.

The narthex includes a welcome center for visitors and new members, a nursery suite, cloak room and parent's room for services. There also is a smaller mother's room with lavatory for nursing mothers.

A second floor was added to the rear portion of the original church, creating a rehearsal room for the choirs. It is connected to the new church by a cat walk, which has an enlarged ledge, ideal for performances by the hand bell choir, Werth said.

If that isn't enough expansion to keep the congregation in awe, there also is the pastor's sacristy on the northside of the church, built with windows that can be replaced with doors to accommodate the next phase of construction — three large classrooms.

There also is talk of a fifth phase — eight classrooms on two floors — on the west side of the gymnasium. Christ Our Savior currently offers an educational program for preschoolers and kindergartners.

And there's more. The old church offices will be converted to a youth center with a lounge. The new offices, along with a church library, are across a courtyard from the new church. The library sports another set of stained glass windows, depicting the creation, the commandments and the writings of the prophets.

The new construction has been a costly endeavor for the congregation, which is in the third year of a three-year $600,000 pledge drive. The remainder of the cost, some $1.6 million, had to be borrowed.

But a price can't be placed on the work of church members, according to Werth.

"They've been fantastic," he said.

Gang's all here:

Church meeting: Venice, Fla., was the place, and Feb. 11 was the date when current and former members of Aldersgate United Methodist Church in Redford met to celebrate their relationship with the church and each other. On hand were Bill and Margaret Rodgers, who hosted the gathering, Fran Donigan, Jim and Lenoir Weigle, Gene and Clara Elwell, Max and Dorothy Millerd, Kay Hearn, Bob and Elaine Mortimer, Fran Johnson, Chester and Theo Beadle, Flora Ebert, Doug and Pat Darling, Ralph and Shirley Butterfield, Bill and Onalee Tracheel and Aldersagte Pastor Clem Parr and wife Barb.

Pompon fund-raiser will be fashionable

Fund-raising committee co-chairman Carole Socall, a Canton resident, said the 26-member squad needs $5,000 to buy the uniforms.

The show is scheduled for 2 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 23, at the Karas House in Redford Township, following a 1 p.m. luncheon. The squad members, who will train in modeling techniques at The Dress Barn, are expected to model clothes provided by The Dress Barn and perform one of their routines afterwards.

Door prizes valued at more than $3,000, including two round-trip tickets on Northwest Airlines, will be available to guests.

The cost of attending is $20, which must be paid in advance. To make reservations, call Linda at 455-9420.

The pompon squad will also perform in Plymouth's Fourth of July parade Saturday. In February the squad placed second in a statewide competition.

Pink-slipped band director honored

Paul Reeves, East Middle School band director, was honored with a Plymouth-Canton Community Schools Extra Miler award Monday night.

Reeves, who was pink-slipped during the budget cuts, was recently recalled.

Reeves directs the school's sixth grade Beginning Band, the seventh grade Concert Band, the eighth grade Symphonic Band, the Marching Band and the Jazz Band.

Staff and parents nominated Reeves, describing him as a dedicated professional and a positive role model.

Reeves' seventh and eighth grade bands captured top ratings at the Michigan Schools Band and Orchestra Association District Band Festival last March. East's band program is the only middle school program in Michigan to have two bands receive the first division award three consecutive years.

Reeves holds a bachelor of music degree from Wayne State University and a master of arts degree in educational leadership from Eastern Michigan University.

Restoration planned in tribute to Quakers

Talk about keeping a long-term commitment! Eleven years after moving it to Greenmead Historical Village, the Livonia Historical Commission is about to restore the Friends Meeting House, once home to the Religious Society of Friends, better known as the Quakers.

The 146-year-old building is the oldest Friends Meeting House in Michigan. Legend theorizes an existing building was put over a fieldstone foundation on land owned by David Lapham, a Quaker.

With the Geer Bungalow at Greenmead now restored to 1910-1925 vintage, commissioners have turned their sights to restoring the Friends Meeting House to 1850s vintage.

The plan is to again use the one-story, white-clapboard house for meetings. Small weddings and concerts also are envisioned.

The city plans to complete the $180,000 restoration over three years. Local Questers have chipped in $1,000. "We plan to at least do architectural drawings this year," said Sue Daniel, commission chairwoman.

Some windows and the floor are original, historians have found.

Hand-hewn oak beams provide the building frame. Bark remains visible on some.

The joists are 10-inch logs of black walnut and maple. The rafters consist of rough log poles.

The ridge pole — a hand-hewn, pentagon-shaped timber — runs the length of the building. The rafters are wood-pegged to the ridge.

Initial work will bring a new foundation, new wood shingles and basement improvements.

The hand-hewn oak posts and beams that provide structural support to the house also must be improved.

New York roots

George Fox, who preached brotherly love and reaching God through an "inner light," founded the Religious Society of Friends in England during the 1600s.

During the early 1800s, many Quakers from New York settled in the Livonia-Farmington area. In 1827, the more liberal Hicksite sect ("that of God in everyone") formed.

About 1834 in western Wayne County, Hicksites formed the Livonia Monthly Meeting, part of the Michigan Quarterly Meeting and the Genessee, N.Y., Yearly Meeting.

The Livonia group's first meeting place: a log-frame house built in 1838 near Farmington Road and Seven Mile.

When their new meeting house went up in 1846, Livonia Quakers hosted a Michigan Quarterly Meeting of Hicksites.

By 1853, changes at the yearly meeting level of Hicksites in Genessee, N.Y., led to the end of monthly meetings in Michigan.

The Congregational Friends and the Friends of Human Progress, who were avid abolitionists, later formed in Michigan but faded after the Civil War.

The Friends Meeting House has an unusual stone cellar entered by a trap door. It may have been used as a hiding place on the underground railroad, Ruth Knight relates in her 1984 pamphlet, "The Meeting House."

House becomes home

In 1860, David Lapham sold the Friends Meeting House to Quakers Sarah and William Roberts, who converted it to a farmhouse.

The Roberts lived there until 1880. Other families — the Kahrls, Dietrichs and Gullens — followed. Ceilings were dropped, a staircase was built and partitions were added. Fireplaces replaced chimneys and stoves. "Heating, plumbing and electricity were necessary modern conveniences," according to Knight's account.

Livonia Historical Society member Joanne Potter has a special interest in the restoration. Her mother, Lillian Skaggs, was born in the house in 1912. Potter's grandmother, Martha Peck, was the youngest of six girls born to Frederick and Fredica Dietrich.

"I'm disappointed it won't be taken back to a farmhouse, but at least it's being restored," Potter said. "We're going to throw a big family reunion at the dedication."

China, silver and family pictures are among the heirlooms Dietrich descendants will donate for display in the house, Potter said.

The city acquired the Friends Meeting House in 1962.

From 1975 to 1977, the house, by then called Quaker Acres, served as a historical museum and a meeting place for historians. Potter was a tour guide.

Until Greenmead opened in 1976, the Quaker Acres grounds provided a gathering spot for historic buildings the city was acquiring.

Turn a small space into a garden oasis

BY ARLENE FUNKE
SPECIAL WRITER

Carol Wedge of Birmingham enjoys listening to the gurgle of her back-yard fountain. "It's so peaceful," she said.

Along with her fountain, Wedge has small cement statues of wildlife, blended to create an inviting scene. "There are little and discreet pieces," she added. "They are so beautiful and natural."

Joan Hintzke has filled the garden of her west Dearborn home with Oriental statuary. "It's serenity and peace," Hintzke said. "I like graceful things."

Statuary available for every budget and taste, said Linda LaMaumauiex of Cliff Green Sales, a Livonia statuary company.

"Even with a tight economy, people can take a small fraction of the money they would spend for a vacation and create a back-yard retreat," said LaMaumauiex, formerly of Redford Township and now living in Livonia.

Statues range in cost from a few dollars to several hundred dollars. An elaborate fountain may cost up to $1,500.

If you enjoy a wildlife look, there are little cement statues of raccoons, turtles, foxes, frogs and deer.

Birdbaths are perennial favorites.

In Oakland County, the contemporary look is very popular, said Dean Darin, spokesman for English Gardens Nursery, with several stores, including a West Bloomfield location. "It's all square blocks, or rounds," he said.

Fountains, which start at under $100, also are available in a variety of themes. "They all have re-circulating pumps, so you don't waste water," Darin said.

Selecting painted or unpainted statuary is a personal choice. With care, the pieces will last for many years. Darin suggests spraying a clear lacquer on the statue to preserve it from the weather.

Art camp instills creativity, confidence

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

The dog days of July are lurking around the corner for vacationing school children — and moms.

If you're a parent who'd like to turn some of those free hours into a creative learning experience, a summer art camp run by D & M Art Studio and Gallery in Plymouth has the answer: a week full of art activities.

"I'm really excited about all the things we're going to do," said Sharon Dillenbeck, D & M Art Studio owner and producer of Art Camp Mania.

"I'm looking forward to Monday. It's clay day. It's a real creative way for children to express their feelings in an open environment, a fertile way for them to use their imagination."

D & M's art camp is structured for three age groups: preschool, ages 3-6; student, 6-10; and teens, 10-16.

Local artists, including Dillenbeck, Bladen McClellan, Susan Argiroff, Sandy Banks and Janie Tucci, as well as visiting artists will teach a variety of media at the weeklong camps, running through Aug. 7. Children will explore drawing, painting, pastel, print making, paper mache, clay, cartooning, marbling, design, calligraphy, gold rubbings and more.

"Everyone will get to do a gold rubbing. Gold rubbings are similar to brass rubbings. It's a very old art form. Brass rubbings have been popular since the age of Queen Victoria," Dillenbeck said.

Daily sessions include printmaking with vegetables, creating paper mache puppet heads and field trips into Old Village.

"There will always be two adults and a student aide, Kerry Iconelli, on hand at all times," Dillenbeck said. "We keep the classes small enough (no more than 10 per instructor) that the kids receive one-on-one instruction."

The D & M summer camp provides all art materials. Upon registering, stu-

Mayor honors Livonia Civic Ballet

SPECIAL WRITER

Mayor Robert Bennett has designated the Livonia Civic Ballet Company the city's official ballet company.

City Clerk Joan McCotter presented the ballet company's artistic director, Jean Gloria Newell, with Bennett's proclamation at the final performance of the company's spring production, "An Evening of Ballet Divertisements," at Stevenson High School.

The non-profit, professionally oriented company was founded more than 25 years ago by Miss Jean, as she is affectionately known. The ballet company has 24 members ranging in age from 8 to 27.

Dancers hail not only from Livonia, but also Farmington Hills, Novi, Redford, Madison Heights, Sterling Heights, Detroit, Dearborn and Ann Arbor.

The Livonia Civic Ballet Company has performed at the Power Center for the Performing Arts on the University of Michigan campus in Ann Arbor, Madonna University in Livonia and with the Oakway Symphony, now the Livonia Symphony.

Jean Newell established the second ballet school in Livonia 30 years ago. She has danced professionally since age 10, studying ballet in New York where she became a member of the Joey Harris Ballet Company.

She danced two years on Broadway in productions such as "Oklahoma" and "High Button shoes." She also danced with national touring companies and on the straw-hat circuit.

Miss Jean is one of the foremost authorities on teaching the Cecchetti method of ballet as well as the Russian method. A past president of the Cecchetti Council of America, she travels throughout the country as a permanent examiner.

Besides teaching ballet and jazz at Miss Jean's School of Dance in Livonia, she has choreographed musicals for Stevenson High School, Players Guild of Dearborn and Wyandotte Community Players.

■ SAVE HOUGH

In disrepair and open to vandals, the little red schoolhouse stands forlornly at Old Haggerty and Warren Road, along an old stagecoach trail, in Canton Township.

The recently formed Committee to Save Hough School hopes to build public support for saving and finding adaptive re-use for the historic landmark, now privately owned.

Livonia developer Mel Belovicz has no immediate plans for the 10-acre site he bought in 1987 and rezoned to office use four years later. He said he'll cooperate with the committee to save the school from the wrecker's ball.

The building dates back to the 1890s. It served as a public school until 1956. It later housed a nursery school.

Hough is one of five one-room schoolhouses gracing the Canton countryside.

Virginia Parker and Diane Neihengen are heading the preservation committee. To help, send your name, address and phone number to: Committee to Save Hough School, c/o Canton Historical Society, P.O. 87362, Canton, MI 48187.

■ CZECH ART

Madonna University in Livonia will display a Czechoslovakian collection of folkloric and embroidery art dating as far back as the 17th century.

The collection includes antique embroidered costumes, aprons and headpieces that depict the various villages' cultures in Czechoslovakia as well as bobbin-lace, framed items.

The art collection is in the Exhibit Gallery in the library wing at Madonna, I-96 and Levan. Hours are: 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday-Thursday, 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Friday, 1-5 p.m. Saturday.

Let's talk about your dream home.

Have you been dreaming of buying a new home? Something with high beams and comfort written all over it—something like this one? Or perhaps you prefer an uncluttered condo? Or a stately old Victorian?

At this very moment you're holding hundreds of wonderful homes right in your hands. Our Creative Living and Building Scene pages are filled with them.

Why are our Real Estate sections such a wonderful marketplace for you, whether you're looking for your dream home or dreaming of quickly selling your present home?

There are a number of reasons.

First, The Observer & Eccentric reaches some of the most affluent households in Oakland County. In fact, our readers have a median household income of $61,000. Belden Associates, of Dallas, Texas, has just completed a study of our prime market area for us and their figures show that this income is $10,000 higher than that of people who don't read our newspapers.

Second, our newspapers are trusted. That may not sound like much, but when it comes to selling homes, people come to us for just that reason—they want to list their home in a reputable publication. They come to a place where they've clipped coupons for years, advertised their garage sales, enjoyed stories of their neighbors and friends and learned what's happening in their community government and on the high school football field. They choose their hometown newspaper because they know they are choosing a respected newspaper that has been around for more than a century. They come to a friend.

Third, we have extremely high home ownership in our circulation area. Belden research also revealed that 90% of our readers own their own homes!

And here's one other nice thing to know if you're planning to sell your present home— your listing will reach more than a quarter million adult readers in our total circulation area! With exposure like that, the chances of closing quickly go way, way up.

So, when you're ready to sell, make sure your Realtor® lists your home in The Observer & Eccentric. And if you're shopping for that dream home, look no further than the newspaper you hold in your hands.

Donations of artwork — the uglier the better — are being solicited for the fifth annual Ugly Art Show and Auction July 15 at Historic Trinity Church on Gratiot in Brewery Park, downtown Detroit.

Last year, the event raised $12,000 to carry on the work of this central city catalyst church, under pastor David Eberhard.

"It's an ugly affair but every time we try to cancel it, there's an uproar from those who love to come and the number keeps growing every year," Eberhard said.

Those wishing to donate art objects — from paintings to sculpture, lamps, pottery, weaving, whatever — may call Edie Miller at 567-3100 or drop off the art at Eberhard's office at Historic Trinity.

The event is a kind of comic relief for people bombarded all year with demands from serious auctions and fund-raisers. "It's a chance to let your hair down and have some fun in the middle of summer, and we do have some good stuff here, too," Miller said.

Because some people insist on donating decent and worthwhile art, the event can now be called "The good, the bad and the ugly" in art.

The theme this year: "Made in Michigan."

A special committee, headed by honorary chairwoman Shirley Eder is soliciting auction items from celebrities either from the state or who had their start here. It already has a tie from Gerald Ford and an autographed duffel bag from Wayne Fontes.

Children's novel result of writer's bold move

BOOK BREAK

VICTORIA DIAZ

David Skinner, 29, doesn't believe in giving up easily.

About three years ago, Skinner, then living in Livonia and working at Borders Book Shop in Novi, got an idea for a children's book that he wanted to write.

David Skinner

At the time, although the University of Michigan graduate had put together dozens of stories and a number of novellas already, he'd never actually received anything from publishers except the standard rejection slips.

There was something definitely different about this story, though, Skinner believed.

As he began to write, he realized he'd never come across anything quite like it — not in the books he'd read as a boy growing up in Michigan and Ohio nor in any of the children's literature he saw each day on the shelves at Borders.

Over the following nine months, Skinner worked entirely on his own, squeezing in daily writing sessions between his working hours at Borders. He belonged to no writers' groups and nobody read the work as he went along except himself, he says.

"One friend saw the manuscript," he recalls. "But he didn't critique it."

After finishing the first draft, Skinner read the manuscript through and decided it needed radical "re-building," a procedure that required several more months of work.

Then, finally satisfied he'd done the best he could by the story, he packed it up and sent it off to a publisher.

He didn't have to wait long for an answer. It came back in the form of yet another rejection letter to add to his already sizable collection.

But the rejection, instead of discouraging the aspiring writer, seems to have acted as a kind of shot in the arm for Skinner. Determined more than ever to find a "home" for his rather unconventional story, he decided to try a rather unconventional route.

"I'm not really one who usually makes bold moves but I was trying to think of a way to circumvent all those readers at a publishing house," he recalls. "And mostly I wanted to find out if the story was really any good."

He packed up the manuscript again and sent it, along with a letter, not to another publisher, but to an award-winning children's author whose work he much admired. (Skinner, when being interviewed for this column, declined to reveal the name of the author; he worried she'd be deluged with other such pleas from aspiring writers if he did so.)

In the letter, he asked the writer to read his manuscript, and then kindly let him know if she felt it was worthy of publication.

Not only did the author read the book but she liked it very much. In fact, she liked it so much, she recommended it to her editor at Simon & Schuster. And the editor, on reading "You Must Kiss A Whale," liked it enough to provide David Skinner with his first letter of acceptance — not to mention a welcome check plus a request to see more of his work.

"After the editor called me, I just went around the house, saying, 'Yes! Yes!' for the rest of the day," Skinner says. "She didn't even request any significant revisions."

"You Must Kiss A Whale," brought out last month by Simon & Schuster, is a many-layered, story-within-a-story, brimming over with symbolism and flavored with a peculiar, dream-like quality.

It is also flavored with a touch of fantasy (perhaps reflective of Skinner's admiration for the work of author Roald Dahl?).

The story is told mostly from the point of view of an adolescent girl named Evelyn, who one day discovers in an old chest a mysterious tale written by her father, a man who has earlier walked out on Evelyn, her mother, and her baby brother, Zack.

As Evelyn seeks to decipher her father's words (especially the cryptic message, "You must kiss a whale"), she makes some important discoveries. A huge, strange storm bears down on the house of "broken rooms" she shares with Zack and her strangely remote mother.

Now that Skinner has sold "You Must Kiss A Whale," he's already at work on his next children's book. (He's since left Borders and moved from Livonia to North Branch, near Lapeer, where he helps out at the family apple orchard-cider mill-country store when he's not writing.)

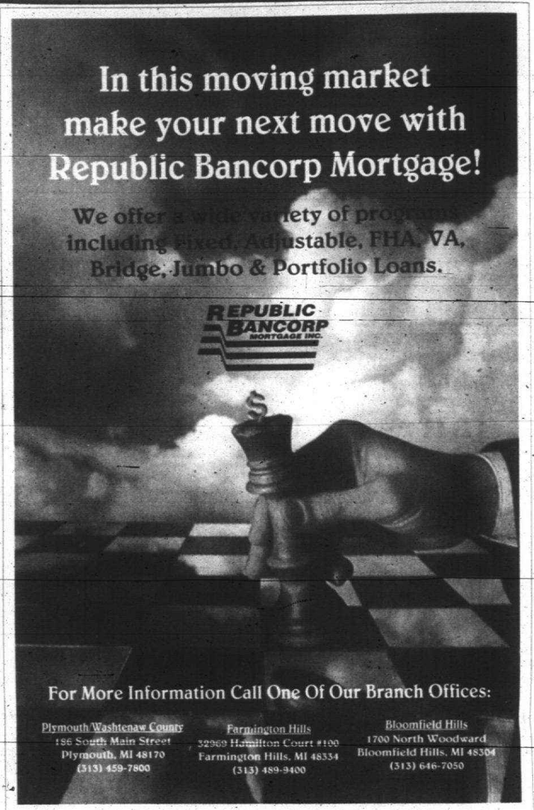

"At this point, I really don't want to say much about the (new) story," he replies, when asked to comment on the work-in-progress.

"I'm not trying to be coy about it. It's just that I don't know, really, until I'm done, exactly what a story is going to be. I will say, though, that this time around, it's told from a boy's point of view. And it will be written for approximately the same (adolescent) age group."

To celebrate the former employee's publishing success, Borders Novi will hold an open reception at 7 p.m. Saturday, July 11.

This summer, the camp's theme is "Medieval Madness," with the focus on dragons and damsels the first half of the weekly camps. The second half, beginning July 20, centers on knights of the roundtable.

At the end of the summer, a children's art show hosted by the Plymouth Cultural Center will showcase the summer's creative works. At an open house Aug. 18, awards will be given to the artists who participated in the show and attended the camp or art classes at D & M in the last year.

Lynn Massucci of Canton Township is sending her youngest daughter, Jennifer, to the summer art camp. She believes the camp and art show at summer's end will increase Jennifer's creativity and self-confidence.

"I usually encourage any activity that keeps them busy, especially in the summer," Massucci said. "Jennifer has always been creative. She's been taking art lessons with Sharon since she was 3 or 4."

A student at Fiegel Elementary, Jennifer, 9, and her older sister, Stephanie, 13, have studied art during the regular school year at D & M.

"Each of them has a particular interest in drawing and creativity," Massucci said. "I think children can benefit from the programs regardless of their artistic level, and they're reasonably priced."

Mary Jean Lankes of Farmington Hills has two children, John, 11, and Lauren, 9, enrolled in art camp this summer. The Lankes children enjoyed the camp so much last year, they attended two different sessions, one early in the camp, one later.

"I was looking for something for them to do last summer. I read about it in the Observer. I can't say enough about the art camp. I thought they had wonderful kinds of activities," Lankes said. "It's just been wonderful. They were treated nicely. This was a fun thing. They always came home happy."

John and Lauren, both students at Hillside Elementary, have also attended art classes and workshops held at D & M during the rest of the year.

"They have always shown an interest in drawing. They worked with clay sculptures when they were younger. They're geared towards that. Last year, they had a wonderful learning experience because they saw art in the real world," Lankes said.

"At the end, they had a show where they were able to display their art. It was kind of fun to walk around and see what'd been done at the camps. It was not a competition. Everybody felt good about themselves."

Established in 1985, the objective of D & M is to further art awareness in the community by providing: art instruction for adults, seniors and children; commissioned artwork; studio space; and a gallery for local artists to exhibit work.

A graduate of the Art Institute of Pittsburgh, Dillenbeck is an art instructor for Plymouth-Canton Community Schools adult education, Our Lady of Victory in Northville, Canton Parks and Recreation, Plymouth Cultural Center, and D & M Art Studio, 710 N. Mill Street, Plymouth.

Her teaching philosophy and main objective "is to supply masses of art materials in a lively and creative atmosphere, to show the techniques of the medium and to step back and let the child create."

"They're so receptive. They're like sponges. We give them enough creative space and teach them how to use watercolor and brush stroking, things they never learn in school. Then we turn it over to them to create their own unique pieces of artwork," Dillenbeck said.

"There are no mistakes. The feeling we want at the end of the camp is that they can do anything they want. We want to instill that confidence."

The weeklong art camps are priced between $50 to $90. For information or to register, call D & M Art Studio: 453-3710.

"Fads come and go," said LaMaumauiex of the many styles available.

Hintzke has purchased several Oriental statues from Cliff Green Sales. Her pieces include a Buddha and a delicate female figure.

"I need things to make me feel pleased," said Hintzke, who enjoys dining while looking out into her rose garden.

Wedge favors unpainted pieces, placed throughout her yard. She has even purchased some statues and pedestals to accent the interior of her home.

The Southwest look — cactus and burros — appeal to many customers, LaMaumauiex said.

So-called "fashion geese" are becoming popular, according to LaMaumauiex. These are statues of geese, which can be dressed up in clothing.

These geese figures cost around $30 unpainted and $40 painted. Clothes, which cost extra, are available in a variety of themes.

The company, started by LaMaumauiex's father in 1953, is located in a house.

During the outdoor season, the front yard is chock-full of statues. There are cherubs, swans, Oriental pagodas, boy-kissing-girl statues and animals of all sort.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

For a cool million, here's what's on the market

Those in the real estate field report that there are more than a million more millionaires today than in 1992. And the nation's real estate stock is keeping pace with the increase in affluence.

For example, there are more than 70 houses currently in the market in Lake Forest, Ill., listed for $1 million or more. There are more than 100 such listings in the Los Gatos/Saratoga area of California.

Century 21 Real Estate Corp. surveyed brokers nationwide to see what $1 million will buy in different parts of the country. They range from a 12,000-square-foot, six-bedroom house with five fireplaces, pool and wine cellar in Atlanta to a three-bedroom, three-bath ocean-view house with 2,600 square feet of living space in Maui.

Closer to home, the magic million was enough to buy a 4,650-square-foot home in Orchard Lake with lake views, four bedrooms, three full and two half baths, two California driftwood fireplaces, marble foyer, window walls, large decks and 590 feet of private beach shared with three other houses.

In almost all areas surveyed, Century 21 brokers agreed that good location topped the list of things wanted by affluent buyers. And the better the view, the higher the price tag.

In the Seattle area, large newer properties with panoramic views of Lake Washington or Puget Sound can sell for $1 million.

In areas where housing costs are higher than the national norm, a $1 million house can seem shockingly limited in size and amenities.

On the island of Maui in Hawaii, where prices are among the highest not only in the U.S. but the world, $1 million will buy a condo with ocean frontage or a single-family house with 2,500 to 3,000 square feet of living space and an ocean view.

New owner responsible for past unpaid maintenance fees

CONDO QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

My husband and I recently bought a condominium from a private owner. Shortly thereafter, we were notified by the management company that a substantial balance is owed in back maintenance fees. The prior owner evidently did not pay the fees but has promised us that he will send the money to the management company promptly. Can we be held responsible if he does not pay the debt?

Yes. A purchaser or grantee of a condominium unit in Michigan can be held liable for any unpaid assessments (such as maintenance fees) against the condominium unit, together with any interest, costs and attorney fees incurred in collecting the delinquent assessments. The condominium association can sue you for money damages and foreclose its lien against your condominium.

The Michigan Condominium Act only protects those buyers who obtain a written statement from the condominium association at least five days before the sale setting forth the amount of unpaid assessments. Any assessments owing in excess of that stated amount may not be collected from the new buyer. You may wish to consider paying the delinquent assessment balance to prevent a foreclosure action from being instigated against you, and then consider suing the seller for reimbursement unless your purchase documents somehow insulate the seller from any such liability.

I am planning to develop a commercial condominium, which will be established as professional offices and sold to accountants, lawyers and the like. I heard that a new law was passed that requires specific handicapped accommodations. Would this new law apply to my proposed development?

Yes. Title III of the American Disabilities Act requires that any commercial facilities, such as your proposed development, which are being designed and constructed for first occupancy after Jan. 26, must be made fully accessible to and usable by persons with disabilities in line with specific technical ADA requirements to the extent it is not structurally impracticable due to unique characteristics of terrain that would prevent the incorporation of the accessibility features.

Your development would be considered new construction subject to the requirements of the act if the last application for a building permit or permit extension is filed after Jan. 2, 1992, and the first certificate of occupancy is issued after Jan. 26, 1993. The technical requirements encompass, without limitation, accessible parking, curb ramps, stairs, elevators, platform lifts, drinking fountains, bathrooms, assembly areas with fixed seating, storage facilities, alarms, signage, public telephones and possibly other elements. You should consult with your legal adviser for more details.

Robert M. Meisner is a Birmingham attorney concentrating his practice in the areas of condominiums, real estate and corporate law. You are invited to submit topics you would like to see discussed in this column by writing Robert M. Meisner at 30200 Telegraph Road, Suite 467, Bingham Farms 48025. This column provides general information and should not be construed as legal opinion.

Home prices, sales fall

(AP) — Sales of previously owned homes fell 1.7 percent in May, the second consecutive monthly decline.

Sales totaled a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3.43 million units, down from 3.49 million in April, the National Association of Realtors said.

The report also showed the 0.6 percent decline in April was even larger than the 0.3 percent initially estimated last month. It had been the first drop in three months.

Analysts said the slow sales pace was due to continued lack of job and income growth.

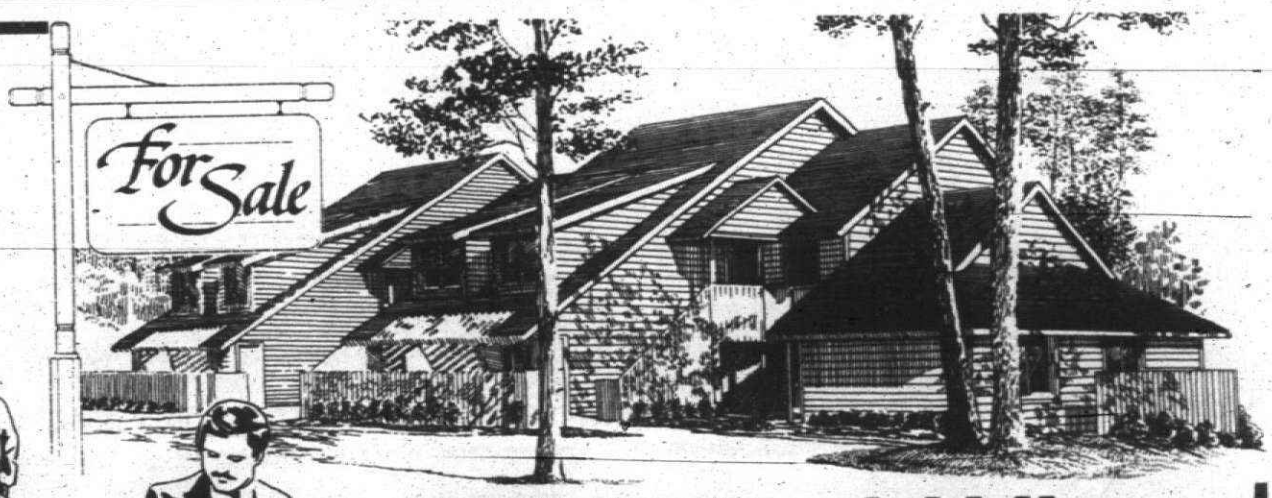

Sales fell 3.1 percent, to a 1.23 million annual rate, in the South and 2.2 percent, to 900,000, in the Midwest. They were unchanged at a 790,000 rate in the West. But in the Northeast, sales were up 3.9 percent, to a 530,000 rate.

Nationally, sales were off 1.4 percent from the 3.48 million rate in May 1991.

Tuccillo said the second straight decline in the median price of a used home suggested that people are buying lower priced homes, which usually indicates active first-time buyers.

The median price means half of the homes cost more and half cost less. It was $100,900 in May, down 2.3 percent from April and 0.4 percent from a year ago.

Rightsizing: Fewer offices, more cublicles and a small budget for office art are some of the signs of the times as corporations change their buildings to match management styles.

Interiors reflect state of business

Modest budgets for interior design are resulting in modest furnishings and the placing of more employees in less space. Even companies that are doing well are reluctant to flaunt their success with pricey art and luxury furnishings.

STAFF WRITER

Management efforts to streamline corporations are having an effect on the streamlining of offices too.

While no one is suggesting new interior designs incorporate wood planks, milk crates and cardboard, interior designers will continue to incorporate smaller offices, more work stations and less ostentation into their work as clients continue to hold the line on costs.

"Even though we see signs that the economy is starting to rebound, our clients are still very sensitive not only to the bottom line but also to the market they're doing business in," said Thomas Ernst, president and CEO of Ford & Earl Associates, a Troy commercial interior design firm, which had revenues of $3 million last year.

Within the commercial interior design industry, the use of more work stations and other space-saving devices is known as rightsizing, a catch-all term that refers not only to workforce reductions but also the consolidation of facilities and operations.

From a fact sheet provided by Ford & Earl, rightsizing has led to several trends in how designers plan the office spaces of tomorrow. The movement includes a reduction of private office space, more work stations, smaller-scale furniture and greater attention to ergonomic furnishings and space design.

"For a client planning a move, every department may ask for their own conference room, but only one might be approved. And for a client of ours in the health-care industry, which is doing very well, while they might have the budget for the expensive, they've been extremely conscious of practicality."

Chrysler Corp., which completed its 3.3-million-square-foot technology center in Auburn Hills, purposely kept individual offices to a minimum in favor of wide open spaces pocketed by work stations.

Costs, creativity concerns

The reason was two-fold: to promote the free flow of ideas and to cut down on costs. As a general rule, work stations are a much more efficient use of space, taking up a third of the room an office might occupy. Because of this, their use has soared in recent years, not only for secretaries and bookkeepers, but also account executives, entry-level professionals, even managers.

"The advent of the personal computer really spurred sales of the work station, because as companies continued to update their equipment, they couldn't very well continue to afford knocking down walls, getting permits and hiring contractors," said Jim Sturdy, commercial sales manager for ROP Business Interiors Inc. in Livonia.

Peter Jeff, a spokesman for Grand Rapids-based Steelcase, one of the world's largest office furniture makers, said sales of the company's Avenir product line, a mid-priced system of office furniture, have more than doubled since 1990. Steelcase operates a design studio in Southfield.

Other interior designers of office space have cited the same trends. Fewer clients are ordering mahogany desks and leather chairs. Even once large art budgets are being curtailed in favor of less expensive creative offerings.

Practically speaking

The movement toward practicality is expected to continue well into the current economic recovery, said Ernst. No firm wants to take a chance on ordering rosewood furniture only to have the economy sputter and stall. The same goes for expensive frescos and portraits.

For a client that recently moved to Auburn Hills, Ernst said his firm created small squares, circles and triangles from different colors of plexiglass to highlight interior halls in place of works by Degas or Warhol. Still, clients have not lost sight of quality.

"As far as selection goes, quality still rules," said Ernst. "Clients continue to favor natural wood doors as they wear better than paints and laminates.

"And for lobby floors, they might choose granite because it lasts much

Builders, architects contend with anti-discrimination act

BY R.J. KING
SPECIAL WRITER

The second phase of what has been called the most sweeping anti-discrimination law since the Civil Rights Act of 1964 goes into effect July 26, requiring small businesses to join their larger brethren in giving equal access to the disabled.

For area merchants, retailers and restaurant owners with 25 or fewer employees and annual revenues of more than $1 million, the law, the Americans with Disabilities Act, means more than merely providing adequate parking spaces or ramps for the handicapped.

In restaurants, braille or large-type menus must be provided for the blind or visually impaired, or waiters may read the menus aloud; grocery stores have to provide lower display cases for the disabled; and movie theaters have to provide space for customers in wheelchairs.

While the act may prove costly to those who must comply, it does offer opportunities for area builders, contractors and architects by providing additional work orders at a time when the construction industry is showing signs of a rebound from a five-year lull in business.

"Anytime something is mandated by federal or state law, there will be a cost impact," said Tom Landry, president of the A.J. Etkin Construction Co. in Farmington Hills.

"We're just now seeing some of the provisions take effect. Under the law, new buildings (and those undergoing major renovations) must be completely accessible to those with physical handicaps. In some cases, that means wider doors, making curb cuts in sidewalks and entrances, and installing flashing alarm lights."

Broad provisions

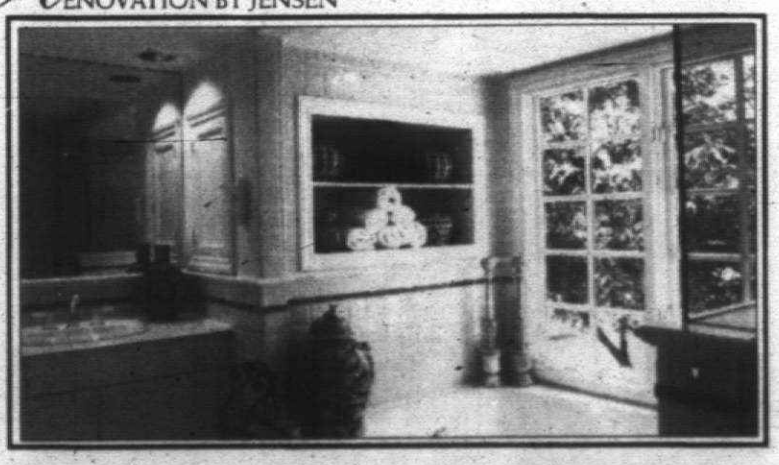

While it is up to architects and attorneys to interpret the law, some provisions are written so broadly that businesses are flocking to legal seminars armed with a checklist of items that include proper parking spaces, restroom and elevator accessibility, and the state of high pile, low density carpeting (it must be removed).

"You have to be very careful about what you build under the new law. We go over the drawings with a fine-tooth comb to make sure everything is in order," said Gene Belttari, president and co-owner of Carpentry By Mastercraft and Euro-Tile of Michigan, both based in Livonia.

"Already some of our commercial clients are calling to inquire about work they may need done to come in compliance with the act. And in the past, we've been very careful to see that such things as ramps are installed properly and with a gentle enough slope to accommodate wheelchairs and walkers."

The first provisions of the act went into effect Jan. 26 and required existing buildings and businesses with 25 or more employees to make good-faith efforts to remove barriers to the disabled.

Businesses adjust

Rick Halberg, co-owner of R.I.K.'s, a restaurant in West Bloomfield, said when the establishment was remodeled three years ago, a ramp was installed from the main dining room to the rear dining room to accommodate wheelchairs. And designers worked around the ramp when the restaurant was redecorated in the spring.

The ramp was one thing we did. We also made the bathrooms large enough so people in wheelchairs could turn around easily. Our waiting staff has also been trained to treat everyone the same, but if someone with a walker needs special assistance, we'll do whatever we can to help them."

In conjunction with the public accommodation section of the law, an employment provision also takes effect on July 26. Under this section, employers may not discriminate against qualified disabled individuals in hiring, advancement, compensation or training.

Employers must also adapt the workplace for people with handicaps if necessary, for instance, by providing more accessible furniture for workers in wheelchairs who operate computers. Those companies with fewer than 15 employees are exempt.

"If in the hiring process, an employer routinely provides a written test, a person with dyslexia should be given an opportunity to take the test orally," said Jennifer Sweeney Buckley, a partner with Clark, Klein & Beaumont, a law firm with offices in Bloomfield Hills and downtown Detroit.

Tax incentives

"People should also know there are tax credits available to help businesses comply with the law. Some businesses may also be exempt from portions of the law if compliance would cause undue hardship. Someone who is almost blind and works in a night club and needs bright light to work would more than likely be an undue hardship."

Under guidelines set out by the Internal Revenue Service, small companies can get a $5,000 tax credit and large ones can qualify for a $15,000 tax deduction to help defray the costs of bringing their businesses into compliance. The tax break can be applied to the cost of structural changes, consultant's fees, staff training or changes in business practices.

Maintenance a must for asphalt drives

AP — An asphalt driveway needs regular maintenance to protect and preserve it. Cracks invariably develop and must be filled. The entire surface should be sealed every year or two.

Before you patch cracks or holes, it's important to remove loose gravel and bits of asphalt. Clear weeds and dirt from the area with a wire brush or trowel, followed by a shop vacuum or leaf blower. To remove dust, hose down the area. Then let it dry.

You can fill wide cracks and potholes with blacktop patch, a prepared asphalt sold in 60-pound bags. Fill the prepared hole about halfway with blacktop patch and compact it before filling it the rest of the way.

Mound the material slightly, then flatten it down hard with a tamper. You can make your own tamper by fastening a scrap piece of plywood or particleboard to a length of two-by-two.

Use a flat shovel to cut away excess so the patch will be level with the surrounding surface. Freshly filled spots shouldn't cure for about 90 days before they are sealed. You can patch in the spring and seal in late summer.

As an asphalt driveway ages, narrow cracks develop along the edges. To repair these cracks, clean them with a wire brush and vacuum the loose material. Then fill them with an asphalt crack filler that pours from a bottle. This leaves a patch resembling tar strips on an old highway. However, you can subdue the effect by brooming a small amount of fine sand into the filler.

There are three types of sealer for a blacktop driveway.

An asphalt base sealer, the most expensive, should be used only on new asphalt or on a surface that has been previously sealed with the same material.

Tar emulsion sealers are the least expensive and probably the most popular because they seal against gasoline, oil spills and drips.

A third kind is a tar base sealer which contains fine black aggregate to give it extra body. This is used to fill large areas of cracking and to provide traction on steep drives. A five-gallon can of sealer will cover about 350 square feet.

You can mix fine sand with standard tar base sealer to give it body. However, the surface will take on a salt-and-pepper appearance as the sealer wears.

The outside temperature should be about 60 degrees Fahrenheit when you apply sealer. The driveway must also be prepared before application. Cut away grass that grows over the edges so the sealer can cover them. Sweep the driveway clean, concentrating on dished areas where rainwater and dirt collect. Then hose down the driveway.

Look for water beads on the surface that indicate oil or gasoline. Remove softened material from these spots and replace it with blacktop patch. You can work around the patch when you apply sealer to give the spots time to cure. If there is no softening, use strong detergent or trisodium phosphate and hot water to scrub away oil.

longer than tile or carpeting, but it all depends on economic factors and the length of time a firm plans to stay."

And design firms themselves are not immune.

"When we moved here (six months ago), we, like most companies operating in a recession, didn't have a great deal of money in our art budget, so we improvised," said David Elston, chief operating officer and general manager.

"I suppose in a best-case scenario, we would like to have spent $10,000 on a work of art, but we didn't have it in our budget. We simply had an artist recreate one of our recent floor plans on canvas. I think the entire work costs us $300."

A house for all reasons

With only two bedrooms and a bathroom upstairs, the American Rose is a medium-sized house that can accommodate a growing family, one with older children, or empty nesters who wish to have space to entertain guests without feeling cramped.

Built over a full basement, it has the possibility for expanding living and storage spaces.

Stepping into the high vaulted entryway, the first impression is one of vastness. This area, and the formal living room are both vaulted to the second floor. The landing at the top of the curving stairway overlooks the living room.

The kitchen, with both a garden window and a bay window has a bright, airy feeling. Cooks can work together without bumping elbows. The upper of the double ovens has microwave features, and there are plenty of cupboards in addition to the pantry.

This design makes excellent use of oddly shaped spaces. A hutch is tucked into an angle in the dining room, a fireplace in another in the family room, and small angled half bath is close by.

The master suite has an oversized tub and a shower that is brightened by a skylight and glass block. A sliding door provides privacy, and steam containment for the shower and toilet. Double sinks are outside this area, close to the walk-in closet.

For the many people who find they are doing at least some of their work at home, this design includes an office close to the master suite.

The utility room has all the amenities: laundry sink; appliances, fold-down ironing board and a window-lit shelf that looks out to the front porch. The two-car garage includes extra space for a workbench or storage space.

For a study plan of the American Rose (330-99), send $7.50 to Landmark Designs, P.O. Box 2307, Eugene, Ore. 97402. Include plan name and number when ordering.
