School election spending down

The 1992 Plymouth-Canton school board election was one of the most economical races ever. Unlike the 1990 election, most candidates spent less than $1,000.

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

The 1990 Plymouth-Canton school board election was among the costliest in the school district's history, as candidates spent upwards of $5,000 in their efforts to win a board of education seat. A review of the 1992 campaign statements — due 30 days after the June 8 election — reveals this was one of the most economical in district history.

Successful candidates Barbara Graham, an incumbent, and Jack Farrow as well as unsuccessful incumbent Dr. E.J. McClendon; former Plymouth-Canton school board member Marilyn Schwinn; and challengers James Mills and Carol Bollman all claimed expenditures of under $1,000.

That contrasts with 1990 when Carl Battishill's gross receipts showed total contributions of $5,353. K.C. Mueller, also a 1990 candidate, raised $3,780. Citizens for Better Education candidate Robert Anderson raised $3,074. Anderson raised $5,458 in his unsuccessful 1989 school board race. Les Walker, who with Battishill won that election — raised $2,897.

Why the downturn in fund-raising this year? In part, it was a consensus among the candidates not to use lawn signs. In addition, Citizens for Better Education, a fundamentalist group, ran a low-key campaign in support of Graham. CBE opted not to run another candidate this year.

"I spent about $825, virtually all of it on printing," said Farrow, who ran off 20,000 fliers on newsprint.

Chances are members of the Plymouth High School class of 1967 wouldn't recognize their classmate Robert Kaiser Hershberger if they could see him now.

Now known as the Rev. Robert Kaiser Hershberger, the former Plymouth resident last week cruised through town on his classic 1977 BMW, equipped with a 1949 Russian military sidecar, visiting relatives and parishioners on a U.S. tour.

The leather-clad clergyman, who could be mistaken for a relative of Leon Russell, says the purpose of his ride is five-fold: "First of all there is the challenge of riding over 10,000 miles on a motorcycle that is almost 15 years old and having the expertise and courage to meet that challenge," said Hershberger, fitted with an artificial leg after being hit by a drunk driver.

"Secondly, having the will and determination to overcome the handicaps of the total loss of my lower right leg, the loss of the use of my left leg, and a very disabling head injury, and thirdly, being able to overcome all this and accomplish all that I have in my life, without the use of drugs."

Hershberger, part-owner of the Sundance leather shop in Daytona, Fla., where he now lives, says he "hopes to show that bikers can be very much a positive part of society and fifthly, that we have a lot of old-fashioned American qualities to contribute to that same society."

Hershberger, whose business card identifies him as director and founding pastor of Mission Church of Bikers International, says he hopes to set a positive example for today's youth.

"I want to give them some personal goals to aim for, and the will and determination to achieve them, such as I did. I hope to help them realize that they are in charge of their own destiny and that they too can do anything they want to do without drugs once they set their minds to it."

Shortly after graduating from high school, Hershberger landed a job as an inspector with Ford Motor Co., but got fired for not cutting his hair and beard.

"I'm very thankful to Ford and the UAW for firing me. I would never have seen the rest of the world."

He said a co-worker encouraged him to buy a bike and see the world.

"He was ready to retire after working all his life. He told me, 'When I retire, they will give me a $20 watch and say, see ya later.'"

Hershberger, who says he studied under Bishop William Jackson of Bristol, Conn., and was ordained in the Church of the Universal Brotherhood, has well over 10,000 parishioners — among them "doctors, lawyers, Indian chiefs, politicians, policemen and clergy" on four continents. He's conducted weddings, memorial services, dedications and "too many" funerals in North America, Europe, Australia, and South Africa.

His chapel is the highway. Having a church building isn't important, he said.

Residents fight to preserve wetland

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW

Residents of two Canton subdivisions have taken up petitions to stop a developer from filling in four wetlands areas totaling less than half an acre.

A new 100-lot subdivision, called Parkview Estates, is slated to be built near the north bank of the Rouge River just east of Sheldon and south of Applewood.

Parkview, a project of the M.V. Building Company of West Bloomfield, received site plan approval from the township board in February.

The company now seeks Department of Natural Resources approval to fill in four wetlands areas totaling .41 acre. More than 900 cubic yards of fill dirt would be used.

The petitions ask that the DNR hold

Hearing begins in stabbing death

■ 'There was a considerable amount of blackness, charring and body damage done by the fire.'

Robert Perry
Westland fire marshal

In a nearly packed courtroom, a hearing began Friday to determine if a Westland woman should stand trial on charges of murdering her 42-year-old boyfriend and setting his house afire to cover up the crime.

Testimony continued throughout the day as Kylleen Hargrave-Thomas, 40, appeared in 18th District Court for a preliminary examination that will decide whether she should stand trial for the stabbing death of Manuel "Joe" Bernal Jr., 42, of Westland.

The unusually long hearing before Judge Gail McKnight is scheduled to continue on July 20.

Westland police arrested Hargrave-Thomas on June 29 and charged her with first-degree murder and arson, culminating a nine-month investigation into the killing of Bernal, a railroad track maintenance worker for Ford Motor Co.

The defendant remains jailed. McKnight has denied bond.

Westland firefighters found Bernal, stabbed in the chest in his second-story bedroom at 625 Lansdowne, when they responded the morning of Oct. 11 to a reported fire. A neighbor saw flames in the upstairs of Bernal's home, north of Cherry Hill Road between Newburgh and Wayne.

"I looked out my kitchen window, and I saw that the bedroom was ablaze, afire," neighbor Elizabeth Kelly testified Friday.

Kelly went to Bernal's house, banged on a door wall with her fists and called his name, but got no response, she said.

Kelly's husband telephoned firefighters, who found Bernal's body after they forced their way into his three-bedroom home in a quiet, upscale neighborhood near John Glenn High School.

Firefighter Martin Reddy testified that smoke had filled Bernal's bedroom and that visibility was impossible when he entered the room about 7:30 a.m. Friday, Oct. 11.

After a window was opened and the smoke had cleared somewhat, Reddy found Bernal's body lying face down on his bed. Reddy pulled him from the room into a hallway, where authorities first noticed the stab wound to Bernal's chest.

Westland police have said they believe Hargrave-Thomas killed Bernal and then set his house ablaze in an attempt to cover up the murder. But her attorney, Rene Albert Cooper, has said that the defendant "maintains very strongly her innocence in this case."

a public hearing to listen to residents' concerns.

Rodger Rahhal, 38, a resident of Canton Country Acres since 1978, wrote a letter to the DNR opposing the wetlands destruction.

"It is obvious to me that the DNR works with developers in declassifying wetlands to facilitate the housing business," he wrote. "The DNR would be better named the Department of Land Development."

In an interview, Rahhal said the .41 acre is a significant part of the whole wetlands area, rather than the insignificant portion it appears to be.

"What you'd have left (if it's filled in) would be like a couple of lots full of trees," he said. "To take (.41 acre) out would be destroying (the whole thing)."

However, the developer sees it differently. In its response to the DNR application, M.V. Building promises to build buffer zones to help keep people out of the wetlands and reduce sedimentation flow into the wetlands.

Also, to comply with state law, M.V. Building proposes to replace the filled in wetlands by adding about .62 acre of wetlands to the main wetlands.

Furthermore, M.V. contends that one of the small wetlands areas proposed for filling contains "lawn clippings, yard wastes and miscellaneous debris" allegedly dumped by nearby residents.

Forest Brook subdivision resident Rose Lebbon said that's probably true. "I think (the dumpers) have been doing worse than that," she said. "They've been putting tires in there. Who knows (what else)."

Lebbon added that she doesn't necessarily oppose the new subdivision, but wants to be assured that M.V. Building is a reputable company. She's also concerned about additional traffic on Applewood Road.

Township engineer Tom Casari said he doesn't think M.V. Building has ever done a project in Canton before.

M.V. Building and DNR officials could not be reached for comment.

Carnival arrives

Rides, junk food top attractions at fest

The Ford Motor Co. Sheldon Road parking lot was taken over by a Plymouth Family Carnival Wednesday through Saturday.

The Pugh Shows carnival, sponsored by the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce and Straight, Inc., created an old-time carnival feel.

The event featured a Ferris wheel, merry-go-round, tilt-a-wheel, cotton candy, Italian sausage, vinegar french fries, elephant ears and more.

"It was just another one of our fund-raisers to keep our dues low," said chamber executive director Fran Toney, adding "The money will be going back into the community."

The chamber shared proceeds with Straight, Inc.

Toney said the carnival "is clean and well organized, we're really proud to bring it to Plymouth."

Spisak resigns abruptly from board of education

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

■ 'In short, I would become a divisive legislator that, combined with the negativity of some present board members, would or could doom this district or, at the very least, the new superintendent and new administration to failure.'

Andrew Spisak
Wayne-Westland school board member

Fearing his anger over political changes could make him a divisive force, Wayne-Westland school board member Andrew Spisak resigned abruptly Monday, ending his term a year early.

Spisak, a seven-year board member, said he remains bitter over the forced retirement of former superintendent Dennis O'Neill, who stepped down in October under pressure from a board majority.

Spisak's resignation came Monday as new Superintendent Larry Thomas and two new board members, elected in June, were sworn in during a special session. His departure marks a complete sweep of the seven-member board in two years, except for board member Leonard Posey.

Saying the new guard deserves a chance to get the district "back on track," Spisak indicated he couldn't remain an effective legislator.

"I believe if I were to remain on the board, I would become what I now despise — a negative person," he said, reading from a prepared statement. "I would more than likely compare the new with the old.

"In short, I would become a divisive legislator that, combined with the negativity of some present board members, would or could doom this district or, at the very least, the new superintendent and new administration to failure," Spisak said.

A staunch O'Neill supporter, Spisak has repeatedly chastised the board majority that ousted the superintendent who had headed the district for 7½-year. O'Neill angrily stepped down amid pressure from board members Vicki Welty, Laurel Raisanen, Fred Warmbier and former member Sylvia Kozorosky-Wiacek, who lost her re-election bid in June.

On Monday, Spisak renewed accusations that the four board members met secretly to plot O'Neill's professional demise — a charge they have strongly denied.

"As you have probably guessed, I am unable — or at the very least unwilling — to forget the fact that some of my colleagues met in secret and decided to fire, in my opinion, one of the best superintendents this district ever had," Spisak said.

Spisak also raised concerns that the board, "under the guise of saving taxpayers money," has spent too much money on hiring consultants and attorneys in its quest for changes that included new leadership.

Spisak left the meeting after making his statement. Board member Posey, calling Spisak "a friend," later referred to Spisak's actions as "a little shocking."

During the O'Neill era, Spisak had been part of a pro-O'Neill board majority that came under increasing attack for controversies over teacher salaries, tax increases and other issues.

In resigning, Spisak suggested that the board appoint former board member Mathew McCusker — also an O'Neill supporter — to fill the board vacancy. McCusker, ousted by voters last year, placed third in an attempted comeback in the June 8 school board race, narrowly missing his bid for one of two seats at stake.

"It is apparent he has the backing of the electorate, and we all know he is a qualified, strong supporter of children and the public educational system," Spisak said.

Board members didn't react immediately to Spisak's recommendation. They have decided, however, to accept applications from potential board members until July 20. Afterward, Spisak's successor will be chosen in a special session.

Superintendent Thomas said he won't recommend a successor because, "I don't think a superintendent should ever get involved in the politics of the district."

Applicants, who qualifications must include being a district resident and a registered voter, should submit a letter and resume to the district office on Marquette, between Newburgh and Wayne roads.

St. Mary gets grant for clinic

St. Mary Hospital, Livonia, is one of 21 hospitals nationwide chosen for a Preferred Provider Hospital Grant from the United Service Association for Health Care Foundation.

The grant of $7,500 awarded to St. Mary Hospital will sponsor a monthly Breast Care Clinic offering education, a clinical examination and a mammogram for women who are at least 50 years of age or older, who have never had a mammogram, who have a family history of cancer and who have either inadequate coverage for mammograms or none at all.

"This grant will help the hospital provide a lifesaving service," said Donald Horkey, director of the St. Mary Hospital Foundation, noting statistics which show that one-third of women over age 40 have never had a mammogram.

veyed the candidates and suggested they not put up lawn signs — an idea all of them agreed to with the exception of Dr. E.J. McClendon. Due to an oversight, McClendon wasn't contacted until after he'd had signs printed.

"Lawn signs cost $3 or $4 apiece, and a lot of the candidates don't feel they do that much good anyway," said Farrow. "It's kind of like pennants at a football game; they don't really change anyone's mind, and that's really what you're trying to do."

Farrow received $600 from a Plymouth-Canton union representing teachers, bus drivers, custodial and cafeteria workers.

That was money "I would have spent out of my own pocket anyway; I was already committed for it," said Farrow, who like other candidates opted not to do mailings.

Farrow said about 100 friends, teachers, government students, a few I CARE Committee members and volunteers distributed 14-15,000 of his fliers.

Graham spending

More than one candidate was surprised Graham didn't receive more money from CBE.

"They came through with the votes, and that's what counts," said Farrow.

CBE member William Buswinka, who manned the polls for nearly 13 hours ,election day in support of Graham, said the emphasis this year was on working behind the scenes, not on fund-raising.

■ 'I'd be inclined to criticize anyone who does (spend more than $1,000). I feel it's inappropriate.'

Dr. E.J. McClendon
primary loser

"We tried to keep undercover, which is one of the reasons we came out pretty nice," he said, adding that CBE raised about $300 for Graham. "We didn't put out any signs, and that kept it down, but I don't know that there was any great push (to raise money). "We probably had a good number of people calling voters, and that does it."

Graham was unavailable for comment.

McClendon spending

McClendon said he decided to spend under $1,000 on his re-election campaign, even before his campaign committee discussed the issue.

"I'd be inclined to criticize anyone who does (spend more than $1,000). I feel it's inappropriate," said McClendon. "It makes it look like you have some type of ulterior motive. The stipend you get hardly pays your mileage."

McClendon, who raised about $680, said "we spent more than half our miserable little budget on (small lawn) signs. We sure didn't blanket the community; I'm sure they disappeared in a puff of smoke."

McClendon said he'd like to pressure future elections to "stick under $1,000." There's something wrong when candidates spend huge amounts in school elections — Schoolcraft College would-be trustees with $10,000 war chests for example — and still lose, he said.

Schwinn spending

Schwinn spent about $300. Most funds were donated in $10 and $20 increments from friends, teachers, neighbors, and people who supported her when she previously served on the school board.

Schwinn said she was surprised candidates didn't raise more, but thinks it's an encouraging trend.

"Quite frankly, I thought some of the information that went out would cost more than that. I'd really like to see it (low spending) continue. I don't believe people should be able to buy offices by investing a great deal of their own money or money from groups supporting them."

Bollman campaign

Bollman of Canton said she spent no money, aside from what it cost her for gas and meals at election-related functions.

"I feel anyone should be able to run for an office and not have it be a situation where this is an enormous expense, particularly in a school board election. The bottom line should be going out and talking to people, going to meetings, becoming known and getting your views known," she said.

"I think Mr. Farrow spent more money than he says he did," added Bollman. "I don't see how he had that much material printed for that amount of money."

Mills spending

Mills, also a Canton resident, spent about $600, mostly his own money.

"I was kind of new to how everything works; I didn't have any organizations backing me, saying here's the money if you want to spend it." Mills spent his money on brochures and printing. Not printing lawn signs was fine with Mills, "because those are expensive." Also, not spending over $1,000 means candidates are eligible for waivers, which saves a lot of paperwork, he said.

McClendon agreed about the value of printing large signs. "Anytime I buy a $50 sign, I must be running for heaven," he said.

Husband does job at wife's workplace

By Tedd Schneider
Staff Writer

The fertilizer hit the fan last week at a Livonia landscape company when a jilted husband went on a two-day rampage seeking vengeance for his wife's alleged indiscretions.

Nobody was injured in the incidents and the man, a 42-year-old Redford Township resident, was arrested Wednesday.

Witnesses told police the man came to his wife's office at Lakewood Landscaping, 33306 Glendale, three times during a 32-hour period and did more than $8,000 in property damage.

No charges had been filed as of Friday, a court official said.

Witnesses told police the man first appeared around noon Tuesday, demanding to see the company owner.

When told the owner wasn't in, he picked up a computer printer and threw it against the wall, witnesses reported.

He then ran into the owner's office, broke the arms and legs off a chair and tipped over a cabinet housing a television, VCR and cassette deck before leaving.

Employees told police they believe the man came back to the business late Tuesday or early Wednesday, when the office was closed.

A window screen was cut, but nobody apparently entered the building, police said.

The man returned to the office about 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, again demanding to see the again absent owner.

Yelling "he stood me up," the enraged man again charged into the owner's office and tipped over the cabinet, witnesses told police.

On his way out, he picked up several walkie-talkies off a desk and tossed them through office windows, leaving a trail of shattered glass.

Minutes later, patrol officers alerted to the incident spotted the man's 1986 Chevrolet pick-up near Farmington and Schoolcraft and placed him under arrest.

Fund-raiser tonight

A special fund-raiser for cystic fibrosis will be held tonight at Stoyan's restaurant at 36071 Plymouth Road, Livonia.

The festivities will begin at 6 p.m.

Entertainment includes a belly dancer, live band, dancing, an auction, and prizes. There is no admission and the fundraising event is open to the general public.

Hearing

Westland fire marshal Robert Perry testified Friday that when authorities examined Bernal's body on the scene, "There was a considerable amount of blackness, charring and body damage done by the fire."

The fire was limited to the bedroom — and more specifically to the bed and the area immediately surrounding it, Perry said.

Perry said the knife that was apparently used to kill Bernal was found on the floor, near the bed.

On Friday, Hargrave-Thomas, wearing a white dress with black polka-dots, showed little emotion as she came into the courtroom. Family members and friends of both Hargrave-Thomas and Bernal watched the hearing.

Bernal's father, Manuel, took the stand briefly Friday, but only to testify that he had identified his son's body.

Westland police arrested Hargrave-Thomas on the morning of June 29, a Monday, as she was driving from her Westland residence to work in Livonia. During an arraignment that afternoon, she stood mute and a plea of not guilty was entered on her behalf.

If tried and convicted, she could face life in prison without parole for first-degree murder and a maximum of 20 years for arson.

Police said she and Bernal had been romantically involved about six months prior to his death.

Sheriff's battle lines drawn

Charges fly as Ficano takes on Kelley, department unions

By Wayne Peal
Staff Writer

Down and dirty, with charges and countercharges flying, the Wayne County Sheriff's primary is a throwback to the county's bare knuckles political past.

But it's also about the future.

The central figure is incumbent Robert Ficano. The central issue: whether the 39-year-old Livonia resident is the last link to the Wayne County's crony-driven past — as foes charge — or whether he's the forward-looking leader he claims to be.

Ficano faces two candidates, most notably county commissioner Kevin Kelley, in an Aug. 4 Democratic primary considered tantamount to election.

The race, though, is less against Kelley than against his own department.

Though he's shed his image as Wayne County's "boy sheriff," Ficano has never been able to convince police professionals he's one of their own.

Chiefs of police have scoffed at Ficano's previous post — deputy county clerk — and the strong hand of county clerk James Killeen in his appointment. Citing Ficano's 1986 run for county executive, they also question his long term commitment to law enforcement.

But Ficano, a licensed attorney, said the dispute really centers on his broader view of police protection.

"If you ask officers what it means, it's arresting people and locking them up," Ficano said. "But there's more to it than that."

No one is calling Ficano camera-shy. The sheriff has promoted highly-publicized efforts to fight drugs, reduce county car jackings and tackle drunken driving.

Frequent appearances on local television news programs have made smooth, telegenic Ficano a familiar face to metro residents.

But it has also left Ficano vulnerable the the charge he's more concerned about public relations than police policy.

Breaking from precedent, both major department unions have backed Kelley.

"In this job, you have to balance politics with police work, we know this," said Don Cox, president of Deputies Local 502. "But with Bob Ficano, every year you get an increasing emphasis on politics."

Kelly's campaign has picked up that message. In hard-hitting radio spot, an actor performing an unflattering Ficano impersonation raves that he's just crazy about attending a parade. The implication is clear.

It's not the only example of mud-slinging.

Racial, sexual and union politics are also at issue. And it isn't pretty.

Ficano, for instance, is promoting the department's relatively-new 50/50 black-and-white mix as a major accomplishment.

"This is about the old boy network reasserting itself," Ficano said.

Bunk, says Cox, who argues that oral testing and training fees — deemed as key elements in keeping women and minorities out of the department — were waived at the union's urging not Ficano's.

Kelley's literature, meanwhile, charges Ficano with continuing to hand out key assignments to white, male officers.

Ficano counters, however, that choice Metro Airport posts — almost entirely filled by whites — are the result of collective bargaining, not sheriff's assignment.

As far as female appointments, Ficano charges the union's opposition the newly appointed chief of staff Nancy Mouradian is based on her sex, not qualifications.

"When we had a similarly qualified man there a few years ago, there was no protest," Ficano said.

Cox, however, says he told former chief of staff Dale Jurcisin as long as two years ago "we would be coming after his job".

Mouradian, like Ficano, has never been a police officer, a major issue for the deputies union.

"We have women in our own department well qualified for that job," Cox said. "Why appoint his former press secretary?"

A jail deputy's death in a struggle with an armed inmate has also been a sore point between the sheriff and union.

Union officials have said the death could be avoided if deputies had been equipped with proper walkie-talkies, blaming Ficano for holding up the equipment's order.

Ficano's though has produced paperwork indicating he had already authorized the new radios.

Lately, Ficano has taken the offensive.

The real reason department unions are after him, he charges, is that he's disciplined three union activists — one for drug use, two for driving accidents, including one in which a woman was killed by a drunken department member, another in which a woman was paralyzed after being struck by an AWOL department member.

Robert Ficano
Wayne County sheriff

Challenger says he's making campaign his own

By Wayne Peal
Staff Writer

If police officers were the only ones who voted, Kevin Kelley would likely be Wayne County's next sheriff.

The Redford resident has not only locked up endorsements from both sheriff's department unions, as well as the Police Officers Association of Michigan, Tri-County Sheriffs Association, Detroit Police Officers Association and Wayne Police command Officers, among other groups.

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara is also boosting Kelley and it's more than a rumor that McNamara's experienced campaign staff is behind Kelley's attractive, aggressive campaign brochures.

There's another Democrat, Charles Nemeth of Dearborn, in the Aug. 4 party primary. the winner will meet Republican Dennis-Malin of Dearborn and Tisch party candidate Daniel Tackett of Taylor in the fall. None are considered likely winners.

But what of the 33-year-old Kelley? Did he step into a pre-formed campaign or is campaign strategy against incumbent Robert Ficano truly his own?

The Redford resident said the campaign's tone is his choice.

"We put it together and I stand by it," Kelley said of campaign claims. "Negative campaigning is difficult, but I am trying to beat an incumbent. You can't do that without pointing out flaws in his record."

Though chairman of the county commission's public safety and judiciary committee, Kelley's background — like Ficano's — is in public administration, not law enforcement.

"Ideally, we would like to see the job go to someone from the ranks," deputy's union president Don Cox said. "But this is a political job. You need someone who's sensitive to police issues, but who can get the votes."

Kelley, they believe can do just that.

For his part, Kelley said he wants a department that "works efficiently as a team".

He's criticized Ficano's high-profile management style as well as past department deficits.

"I don't believe he's been an effective head of the department," Kelley said.

Like the union, Kelley also criticizes Ficano for filling staff vacancies with people from outside the department.

"Why not take someone with 16

BACK ARTHRITIS
"Pain in the wrist, shoulder and knee is treated with anti-inflammatory drugs, injections, and when applicable, with splints. Why not treat arthritis of the back the same way?
There are two reasons why the same treatment does not apply. First, the back is different. The shoulder, wrist, and knee are meant to move you, but the joints of the back are designed to hold you up. Thus the back joints have more bone, different cartilage, and less joint space than the joints in front. The chemical and structural nature of the back often renders joint medications ineffective.
Second, much of back pain designated "arthritis" really presents the x-ray findings of aging. No medicine can reverse such change. Furthermore, pain labeled as the result of arthritis often comes from muscle and ligament strain, conditions the anti-inflammatory drugs do not handle well.
Specific arthritis of the back exists and includes ankylosing spondylitis, osteoporosis, and infectious arthritis. However, these entities have characteristics that allow physicians to differentiate them from "back arthritis."
Treatment for most back pain consists of heat, judicious use of rest and activity, and reassurance that you are not hiding a cancer or developing a crippling condition. Resolution of such pain depends more on time and nature than medication.

Concert series begins with patriotic splash

By Lincoln Naumoff
Special Writer

The annual concert in the Park Series in Redford Township opened with a bang Tuesday evening as an aftermath of Holiday fireworks from neighboring communities.

As predicted, the Redford Civic Symphony Orchestra was a big hit with their favorite audience at Capitol Park, Hemingway at Capitol.

Band directed by Ernest Matchulat will be featured at Capitol Park.

This group has performed for many enthusiastic audiences including Detroit's Hart Plaza, the BobLo Boat cruise, and festivals in major shopping malls.

Earlier in the summer Neal Ross, Redford's director of parks, remarked: "The Redford Symphony Orchestra will set the tone for the entire Concert in the Park Series for the 1992 season." And Tuesday night Ross and the audience agreed this was true.

From the opening chord of the "Star Spangled Banner," conductor John Gajec and the colorful array of professional musicians of the Redford Symphony Orchestra held the audience spellbound with diversified arrangements and exciting renditions of familiar selections.

A moving and sonorous version of "America The Beautiful" put the audience in a receptive mood for the fast moving and uninterrupted concert program.

Ian Polster's arrangement of "That's Entertainment" really sent the crowd jumping with the easy to recognize strains of some of their old favorite tunes. French horn soloist Nielson Dalley surprised the Senior Citizen group in attendance with Leroy Anderson's "The First Day of Spring."

Not to be out done Dr. Annetta Kelly, trumpet soloist, chose Leroy Anderson's "A Trumpeter's Lullaby" as her trumpet solo. She played with the finesse and articulation of a Raphael Mendez. The orchestral symphonic impressions of Meredith Willson's Broadway hit show, "The Music Man," brought back the excitement of River City to Redford with the bombastic bellowings of the familiar strains of "176 Trombones." The audience responded to the many changes of mood and rhythm patterns of the entire Willson score.

Lori Bowman held the audience in the palm of her hand with her superb handling of the smallest instrument in the orchestra, the piccolo. Her rendition of "The Skylark, Polka de Concert" by J.S. Cox was a fitting choice for the Redford audience of young adults and senior citizens. Her fingers glided through the most technical passages of the solo with the ease and precision of James Galaway, the master of the flute, piccolo, and tin whistle.

A change of tempo brought our Latin American neighbor's style to the concert with the playing of composer Don Gillis' creation, "Tango Lullaby." The soft and sensitive sounds of the string section brought forth an exotic Latin flavor to haunting strains of the lullaby.

A Cole Porter score of "Begin the Beguine" mesmerized the audience with the lilting trumpet tones of Benny Moon and the lavish French horn sound of Nielson Dalley.

The highlight of the evening was an inspiring rendition of a Rodgers and Hammerstein musical, "The Sound of Music." Each section of the orchestra demonstrated its ability to transcend time and space to a remote little villa on the outskirts of Salzburg. That brought back memories of the love and romance that once was prevalant in Mozart's Austria.

The finale was truly a timely and approriate march to help celebrate the Declaration of Independence holiday. Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever" depicted the freedoms our forefathers left as their legacy to be cherished by Americans forever.

The closing segment of "God Bless America" by Berlin was an invitation for all of the audience to join the orchestra to put the final touches to a fine concert, the first in Redford's Concert in the Park Series of 1992.

Literacy program given $20,00 grant

By Mary Rodrique
Staff Writer

The drive to establish workplace literacy in Livonia is under way.

Executives from Olin Chemical Corp. presented a $20,000 grant to the Livonia Chamber of Commerce Foundation Thursday to help establish a workplace literacy and education center.

The funds will be used to offset the salary of a full-time project coordinator to launch and administer the program and for the purchase of computers, work stations, printers and software.

The concept of a workplace literacy center was created by the Business/Education Partnership, a consortium of business and education professionals seeking ways to strengthen ties between the industrial and education sectors in Livonia.

"If business and education don't act as a team with common problems to be shared and tempered, then they've missed a classic opportunity," said Jack Kirksey, director of community education for Livonia Public Schools.

"For years we've been trying to find ways for business and education to cooperate. We've received some national recognition for a program in place with GM Delco.

"Employees are receiving education in the plant with instructors provided by community education. That model at Delco in Livonia is used nationally by GM.

"All this helped lay the groundwork for the partnerships we have going now."

At the Gel Corp., Livonia high school business students have been involved in company audits and other internal operations.

Home sales suit former nurse

By Taylor Lincoln
Staff Writer

Most people wouldn't equate real estate sales too closely with the nursing profession but Joanne Scott, a former nurse who founded and runs Century 21-J. Scott Realty, has found a common link in the two fields.

"We work with people who've had a husband who's deceased; I'm working right now with a woman who has cancer. You really have to have compassion in this field, and that's where the nursing comes in," said Scott, a nurse at Garden City Hospital and Westland Convalescent Center for 25 years.

When Scott became burned out from the long hours and high stress of the hospital, she decided to pursue her interest in real estate and property restoration.

She and her husband, Jerry, had restored a few houses and Scott decided to expand her hobby into a career. She began selling real estate.

In 1986, after a year-and-a-half of working for another company, she invested in J. Scott Realty. Three years later, she became partners with Pam King, who had worked as a saleswoman almost from the company's inception.

Scott and King have been successful in their endeavor of real estate sales with a heart.

The original J. Scott office has grown from three to 28 employees, and now holds 16 percent of the market share in Garden City. In January of this year, the agency opened a second office in Canton, which now has 10 employees.

Scott and King credit their concern for the community with their success.

"We're providing a service for people. When you keep the lines of communication open it comes back to help you," said King.

J. Scott Realty backs up its rhetoric with community involvement.

The company plants American flags in the front lawns of every Garden City resident before Memorial Day. During the Gulf War, the company tied yellow ribbons around street lamps.

And last September, the company was active in the first annual Chamber Games, which were meant to bring together members of Garden City's business community and city employees.

A distance run, basketball, horse shoes, and a tug-o-war were among the activities at last year's festivities.

"It's when all the businesses and the city get an opportunity to put teams together, and have some fun at the City Park," King said. Proceeds from the event, generated from entry fees, went to the Chamber of Commerce.

Currently, J. Scott is raising money from area business to purchase equipment for the recreation room of the new police department.

can't deny," Ficano said.

Cox acknowledges the department fought each suspension brought by the sheriff, but says that was common union practice.

"We want to see our people receive due process, but we don't stand for any dirty officers," he said.

Ficano has also taken the union and Kelley to task for criticizing his record on drug seizures and felony warrant enforcement.

Though Kelley's literature claims drug seizures have fallen in each of the past three years, Ficano said that isn't the case.

"Seizures haven't fallen, forfejtures have," he said "That's because drug dealers are getting smarter, they're not putting everything in their own names anymore."

As for the charge he's letting 5,900 felons roam free, Ficano said more than 5,000 of Wayne County's outstanding felons stem from Detroit cases, not those assigned to the sheriff's department.

By Ficano's figuring, there were 4,000 outstanding warrants when he took office, compared with 900 today.

Ficano is pointing far less attention to the fact that he's perhaps the only sheriff in the U.S. to lose authority over his own jail.

In a 1989 ruling, chief Wayne County Circuit Judge Richard Kaufman ordered jail control over to a newly created director of jail operations — who reports to both the sheriff and Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara, temporarily ending a long-running dispute between Ficano and McNamara over the jail budget.

Recently, however, jail monitor Vincent Nathan took control over jail food service away from the executive's office. Nathan is monitoring jail operations under a 1971 inmate lawsuit.

Though he has detractors, including Kaufman who was less-than-complimentary in the jail operations ruling, Ficano is not without supporters.

While not publically endorsing any candidate, Canton Public Safety director John Santomauro gave Ficano high marks for helping settle a dispute about sheriff's road patrol operations.

In addition to his UAW support, Ficano also has the backing of leaders of five county Democrtic party organizations, including Westland/Livonia area chairman Richard McKnight and Dearborn Heights/Redford-area chairman Daniel Paletko.

or 17 years' experience," he said.

On the county commission, Kelley generally supported McNamara, though his low-key style earned respect from urban as well as suburban peers.

The son of Detroit councilman "Black Jack" Kelley, the Redford resident was hailed as one of the commission's new generation when he took office.

That group, including David Cavanagh, son of former Detroit mayor Jerome Cavanagh, and Susan Hubbard, granddaughter of former Detroit mayor Orville Hubbard, was expected to turn around the often fractious county commission.

Cavanagh, though, is leaving to run for clerk, while Hubbard faces a tough re-election battle.

Though Kelley's name has surfaced in connection with other offices, most notably the state Legislature, he said the sheriff's department is where he wants to be.

And deputies union leaders would like to put him there.

Metro Airport cuts parking rate

Summer travel from Detroit Metropolitan Wayne County Airport will be a little easier on the pocketbook, thanks to a special discount offer announced by Wayne County.

Now through Labor Day, Sept. 7, daily parking rates will be reduced in parking decks and yellow Lot, (just past the traffic light on Rogell Drive).

"Because of the strong response to the many special fares offered by the major airlines recently, we are enjoying a busy summer at the airport," said deputy airport director Lester Robinson.

"This special discount program is just our way of saying thank you to our customers who have made plans to travel out of Metropolitan Airport."

The airport's summer parking special reduces close-in deck parking from the normal $9 per day rate to $6 per day — just one dollar more than the airport's green (long-term) parking lot rate. In addition, the daily parking rate for the airport's yellow lot has been reduced from $6 to $5. Rates in all other airport lots remain the same. As always, free shuttle service to and from the terminals is provided from all on-site airport lots.

Travelers with parking questions can call the airport's recently installed airport parking hotline at 1-800-642-1978. This new number serves all of Michigan, northern Ohio and the Windsor, Ontario area.

Recruits to get benefits

■ 'Though the Army is getting smaller each day, the soldiers leaving are at the mid-management and higher levels. There is still a need to fill entry-level positions. The bottom line is that the Army is still hiring, and we offer money for college to those individuals who qualify.'

Capt. Alan Farrier

More than $1.8 million for college expenses are guaranteed to young people from the suburban Detroit who joined the U.S. Army and Army Reserve during the 1991-92 school year.

The Dearborn Recruiting Company reports that 126 high school seniors from communities west and south of Detroit have made the decision to join the Army and Army Reserve. Collectively they have qualified for $1,879,540 to use for college expenses after they complete their enlistment terms.

The new enlistees are all scheduled to depart for Basic Training within 12 months after their graduation.

Twenty-five of the enlistees qualified for the top guarantee of $25,200 which is available with a four-year enlistment in selected Army jobs. The guaranteed college monies include $14,400 from the Army College Fund (ACF) and $10,800 from the Montgomery GI Bill. The average per-student guarantee for the 126 area enlistees is $14,917 each for college.

Roosevelt High School has six graduates, five males and one female, who collectively qualified for $174,000 in college benefits. Other area schools which had high levels of guaranteed college monies for their students included: Truman High School with 13 students qualifying for $167,2; John F. Kennedy has eight qualified for $134,400; Wayne Memorial with eight guaranteed $133,400; Plymouth Salem with six getting $123,760; John Glenn has six totaling $113,600; Woodhaven has six at $96,000; Romulus has five sharing $92,000; Taylor Center has four getting $73,400 and Melvindale with three guaranteed $59,200.

Both of the soldiers from Belleville High School qualified for the maximum, totaling $50,400 in college benefits for the two male enlistees.

On the average for the 55 area high schools, the Army is guaranteeing more than $34,100 per school in scholarship-type benefits to recent graduates.

"Though the Army is getting smaller each day, the soldiers leaving are at the mid-management and higher levels," said Capt. Alan Farrier, commander of the Dearborn Company. "There is still a need to fill entry-level positions. The bottom line is that the Army is still hiring, and we offer money for college to those individuals who qualify.

"In addition to guaranteed money for college," said Farrier, "many of these enlistees have already applied through their recruiter for admission to local colleges, such as Eastern Michigan University, under the Concurrent Admissions program. As veterans these young people will return to Michigan and invest their college funds in a quality education in their home state.

"This is a win-win situation for everyone. The Army gets a highly motivated, intelligent young person to fill entry level positions, the soldier gets money for college and the local colleges and economy get a boost when that college money is spent on a quality education," said Farrier.

The southwest Michigan seniors enlisting for three years qualified for up to $22,800 each, and two-year enlistees $17,000 in college funds from the ACF and GI Bill. Soldiers qualifying for Army College Fund monies contribute $1,200 of their own funds during the first year of their enlistment. "Only those who have at least a high school diploma and score in the upper half of the aptitude tests, can qualify for the Army College Fund," said Farrier.

All Active Army enlistees qualify for the basic $10,800 GI Bill benefits and Reserve soldiers qualify for $6,120 in college benefits.

Plymouth Canton High School was guaranteed $45,920 for four male and one female graduates qualifying for the Army College Fund.

Plymouth Salem High School was guaranteed $123,760 for six graduates qualifying for the Army College Fund.

For more information call Farrier at (313) 562-3999.

'Dreamcoat' to show locally

A group of teenagers will be narrating the story of a young man with a multi-colored coat when "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" opens at St. Paul Presbyterian Church in Livonia on Thursday.

The Broadway show, written by Andrew Lloyd Webber and Tim Rice, will run Thursday, Friday and Saturday, July 16-18.

This cast of "Joseph" is unusual because it is composed of students ranging in age from 15-19 from seven schools.

The students received a letter from Churchill and St. Paul director Pat Hutchison saying that she was interested in producing "Joseph" with a group of present and past students and their friends, who were ready for a month of acting and singing experience.

The students responded, paid $250 to offset costume expenses, and as a result, 28 young people take the stage this week.

"Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" first appeared as a 20-minute children's cantata. However, a few years later, in 1973, a full-length musical appeared on the London stage. Webber and Rice soon found their production moving to Broadway, back to London, and just this summer, on to Toronto.

The story of Joseph and his many colored coat comes from Biblical times, but has been tempered by great doses of sarcastic humor, an updated look and sound and a "happily ever after" ending.

In the Livonia version, Anne Hutchison, a freshman in the Wayne State theater program is the show's narrator, while Stevenson graduate Steve Geary portrays Joseph.

Churchill junior Kevin Barton plays Pharoah, an Elvis-type ruler of Egypt. Other students include: Tom Sweder, Notre Dame; Jeff Dutton, Michigan State; Dawn Barsy, John Glenn; Don Keller, Plymouth Salem.

Stevenson High dramatists are Jeff Goldman, Rob Kane, Chris Swanson, Doug Ware, Susan Greenman, Carolyn Klein, Martha Ware and Carley Wellman. Churchill actors and actresses include Chris Ayotte, Michael Deming, Jeremy Leland, Chris Vitarelli, Judy Evans, Laureen Feeny, Kathryn Grammatico, Kelly Komlen, Maureen Lewis, and student directors Annette Olszewski and Kristen Barton.

Besides Hutchison, who directs the Churchill Choralation group, the students are assisted by Stevenson teacher Richard Lenz as well as Davison teacher Shaelyn Boos, Geoff Hutchison, David Chaundy, Mark Adams and several of part-time helpers.

The church is at 27475 Five Mile Road. Tickets may be bought at the church office, from a student, or at the door. Tickets are $4 for adults and $3 for students.

"The cast has high hopes that his kind of production can succeed," said Hutchison, "so that more students may be touched by this community project."

POINTS OF VIEW

Outlawing panhandlers must be made indelible

Heading for the suburbs from the Freedom Festival fireworks, a man offered to wipe off our windshield for a tip.

We were standing in traffic between Fort and Lafayette, waiting for our turn to get onto the Lodge, when he and a companion approached us.

Over my husband's objections, I handed him a $1 bill out the window and told him it wasn't necessary to wash the window.

"I want to do the work," the man protested, as the traffic opened up and we inched away. As I looked back through the rear window, I saw him pick up a bottle. I fervently hoped it was filled with water for his window washing, or with something for his thirst — something that wasn't alcoholic.

My husband reminded me of the signs we saw posted in certain areas of downtown Seattle on a recent visit requesting that people not give money to panhandlers because it most often was used to buy alcohol and drugs.

As if they had overheard us, last week the city of Detroit began a campaign with the same theme.

The Central Business District Association, with the support of police and the mayor's office, is distributing fliers that discourage gifts to beggars.

Business owners say panhandlers create a nuisance and make their customers feel uncomfortable and/or scared.

The fliers say beggars can meet their basic needs through soup kitchens, homeless shelters and social service programs. They explain that the money most often goes to buy alcohol and illegal drugs, which in the long run hurts rather than helps them.

Those who run the shelters say that's not completely true. There are other needs — cigarettes, a can of pop, a candy bar.

But statistically, the majority of panhandlers have a substance abuse problem.

JUDITH DONER BERNE

■ As I looked back through the rear window, I saw him pick up a bottle. I fervently hoped it was filled with water for his window washing, or with something for his thirst — something that wasn't alcoholic.

This new campaign gives us written permission to say no to panhandlers. Somehow that makes us more comfortable. The panhandlers know we know the rules. So we have less guilt. That's important on several counts:

- Detroit's business community stands on the brink. A new office tower, One Detroit Center, and a new hotel, The Atheneum, risen from a former warehouse on the edge of Greektown, are important steps toward sparking a Detroit comeback.

So is the possibility of the pizza king, Mike Ilitch, who gives to Detroit, buying the Tigers from the pizza king, Tom Monaghan, who takes from Detroit.

- Panhandlers who use the money to feed alcohol and/or drug dependencies may slide closer to their personal bottoms without it and seek help at substance abuse treatment centers.
- As more people seek treatment, more shelter services can be freed up for those who are homeless and jobless for reasons other than their chemical dependencies.

But the written permission to say no must be more indelible than a flier.

The Central Business District should have permanent signs installed in various locations throughout the city, such as we saw in Seattle.

Although area residents — including the panhandlers — are now aware, anyone who comes to the city for business or pleasure needs to know that information.

It's important for Detroit and for our suburbs, which are dependent on Detroit's viability, that this campaign isn't fly-by-night.

Huck Finn, a symbol for boys, can humor adults

So now Huckleberry Finn is black. That's what the so-called scholars say. Mark Twain met some 10-year-old black kid for about 15 minutes and modeled old Huck after him.

This isn't a joke. Honest. It was in the New York Times. And they're no folks to trifle with.

The upshot here is that Mark Twain wasn't a racist as new age fat heads had previously thought. Now that we've discovered that Huck was really black, according to his speech patterns, it's somehow OK for kids to read the book in school.

Unfortunately, the New York Times' story didn't mention Jim, a character in the book who was black. The trouble here was that he wasn't called black or Afro-American. He was called what people in the South called black people in the 19th century. And we all know the word.

That word made "Huckleberry Finn" a racist book. But now that old Huck was black, it's all OK.

It's beyond sense. And all it really goes to show is that some English professor can prove anything for any reason given enough of a doctoral thesis with which to make an idiot of him or herself.

The point of "Huckleberry Finn" was that 10- to 15-year-old boys are funny creatures. They're full of childhood superstitions, willing to try anything and pretty much oblivious to most social conventions. They would rather fish, kill frogs or get wet in any body of water that comes their way than do any kind of work.

JEFF COUNTS

■ The upshot here is that Mark Twain wasn't a racist as new age fat heads had previously thought.

And that is probably at the core of any controversy over Huck Finn. The book is basically a boy's communist manifesto. It's a blueprint for avoiding social responsibility. And that bugs parents.

High MEAP scores and a trip to the Harvard School of Business envisioned by most parents is a dreaded vision for a kid infected by Huck Finn and who is dreaming of drifting down the Rouge River with some socially unacceptable companion.

And any book that preaches such nonsense is certainly subversive, and by the way it uses "that word" for black people.

The thing here is that boys are pretty magical, no matter what race. They help us see the world fresh as a place of new wonders and adventure unencumbered by old attitudes either racial or scientific. They bring humor to our dour adult ways.

Wouldn't most of us adults like to see the world that way every day? I sure would.

Dublin pleasure

Portraits of the Artists

Dublin: An ancient city rooted in culture

Occasionally in recent years, stately Dublin, in trying to retain its Georgian-Victorian respectability while attracting new summer visitors, has risked acquiring the reputation of a James Joyce theme park.

The life-sized 1990 bronze statue of Joyce on North Earl Street where it intersects with O'Connell Street looks toward the General Post Office, the focus of the 1916 Easter Rising.

Higher up O'Connell Street, out in the center mall, is the 1988 statue of Anna Livia Plurabelle, a slender woman sitting in a running stream of water. Joyce honored her in "Finnegan's Wake" as the spirit of life, the spirit of the River Liffey.

Of course Joyce is integral now to the soul of the city, and Joyce adepts who finished observing Bloom's Day on June 16 will be back next year retracing the events in "Ulysses."

But this year in Dublin it is possible to sample both Dublins, Joyce's and Trinity College's, as they intersect everywhere and cross other literary and historical lines.

Events

The quatercentenary events at Trinity, which Joyce called "dull stone set in the ring of the city's ignorance," are anything but dull. In the Old Library's stunning, high, arched Long Room, the Book of Kells' adorned New Testament texts are better lighted and explicated than they were until a few months ago.

In the same building is the Treasures of the Mind exhibit, running to Dec. 31, with the times and life and works of the people Trinity is most proud of, including Wolfe Tone, the revolutionary; Edmund Burke, the great talker; and such literati as Oscar Wilde, John Millington Synage and Samuel Beckett.

On display: The Dublin Writers Museum displays manuscripts, portraits, first editions and mementos of the careers of such famous Irish authors as James Joyce.

There is no Joyce, as he didn't attend; but, perhaps curiously, scant mention of Oliver St. John Gogarty, who did graduate, and who was a poet, essayist, bicycle racer, champion swimmer, surgeon and model for Buck Mulligan in "Ulysses."

There is in the nearby Arts building a film, "The Dublin Experience," a colorful 40-minute story of how Dublin started as a Viking settlement 1,000 years ago. The film and the Old Library exhibits cost $8.40, the library alone $4.20.

The Abbey Theater, on Lower Abbey Street, will have "Drama At Inish," an Irish classic by Lenhox Robinson, until July 25. "Conversations on a Homecoming," by Tom Murphy, about disillusionment of an immigrant returning from America, opens Aug. 3. Tickets range between $13.40 and $21.80.

The Abbey's more experimental adjunct, The Peacock, will have "Bold Girls," by Rona Munro, until July 18; a selection of amateur plays between July 20 to July 24; "Away Alone," by Janet Noble, from July 30 to Aug. 4; and the annual Yeats festival, from Aug. 17. Tickets are $13.40. For more information call 787222.

"Dancing at Lughnasa," acclaimed on Broadway, is to open at the Abbey Aug. 20, and another Brian Friel work at the Gate Theater, at 1 Cavendish Row, an adaptation of Turgenev's "A Month in the Country," will be performed from July 30 to Sept. 26. Tickets are about $20. Until July 25 the Gate will have Noel Coward's "Private Lives." For more information on performances at the Gate Theater call 744045.

At the annual Kerrygold Horse Show, July 14 to 18 at the Royal Dublin Society, in the Ballsbridge section, 2,000 horses deemed to be Ireland's best will compete. For more information call 680645.

Making the most of going solo

BY EVERETT POTTER
SPECIAL WRITER

Going solo is often the most difficult — and expensive way to travel. For the privilege of having a single cabin, most solo travelers are charged anywhere from 150 percent to 300 percent of a cruise line's per-person double-occupancy rate.

And hotels aren't much better when it comes to the high rates they charge singles.

"The travel industry is Neanderthal when it comes to solo travelers," said Jane Doerfer, publisher of "Going Solo," a newsletter devoted to solo travel.

Doerfer scours the globe looking for hotels and vacations that are hospitable to adventurers going it alone.

"I call it 'solo' travel rather than 'single' because many of my readers are married," she said. "If you say 'single,' people automatically assume you're looking for romance and, frankly, that couldn't be further from the truth."

Recent articles in "Going Solo" have dealt with affordable alternatives in London and Paris, life at a Club Med village, group bicycling trips or a new trend — taking a volunteer vacation to help clean up the environment or work with inner-city youths.

Each issue features a report written by a reader on a topic such as seeing Prague in winter, traveling by train through Australia or visiting the Hawaiian island of Kauai.

"When you travel solo, without the buffer of a companion or a group, things happen to you," said Doerfer. "In fact, I've had my nicest experiences as a solo traveler. But it's important to set up situations where you're likely to meet people."

Doerfer notes that dinnertime is when most people enjoy companionship.

For that she prefers English country-house hotels where guests can dine together at a communal table. Or in the States, considering the ongoing rage for grilled food, Doerfer encourages people to seek out restaurants with communal seating around the grill.

"But when those options aren't available and I'm dining alone, my technique is to call up the restaurant and say, 'I understand you have good food. I'll be eating dinner alone tonight. What's the best time to come?'"

"You'd be amazed at how flattered they are and how good the service can be. And I always tip for two, 20 percent in most cases."

Doerfer has several important tips for would-be solo travelers.

"You should condition yourself to a point where you realize you're going to feel lonely at some point on the trip. It's baloney to pretend otherwise. It's also important to travel with some sort of agenda because it helps to focus the day."

When it comes to dealing with hotels, she encourages solo travelers to negotiate for their hotel room.

S'craft aims at new students with weekend college classes

Schoolcraft College Radcliff-Garden City will begin weekend college in September to give more students an opportunity to complete an education.

Courses in business, liberal arts, computer science, allied health and math will be among the 35 courses offered between Friday after 4:30 p.m. through late Sunday afternoon.

"At Radcliff we have many working students. We're hoping to attract people who are too busy for school during the week," said Mary Armstrong, coordinator of college centers services.

"Students can get anything they need for resident programs."

Associate degrees are offered in allied health, corrections, criminal justice, medical records technician, medical transcription, occupational therapy assistant and quality management.

The Radcliff campus has one third the total enrollment of Schoolcraft College, which is headquartered in Livonia and serves approximately 10,000 students.

"We're growing by leaps and bounds," Armstrong said. "I think we are moving in response to needs identified in the area. We decided to pilot (weekend college) here. It's been in the works for awhile."

Saturday classes have been successful, she noted.

Weekend college will begin Sept. 4, one week after the traditional fall schedule begins. Classes will run 15 weeks - not 16 - but courses will run 55 minutes instead of 50 to make up the difference.

"We've advertised for additional part-time staff," Armstrong said. "It's not for everyone but some professionals might prefer to teach on the weekend.

"We're piloting this to see how successful it will be. It will take time to evolve into a full blown program. We'll expand as necessary."

The Radcliff campus is between Radcliffe and Wildwood south of Ford Road. For more information on the weekend college, call 462-4770.

Madonna outlines plans to expand 2nd elderhostel

Building on last year's successful Elderhostel program, Madonna University will host learning sessions for seniors this October, with an added twist.

"Since Madonna has the communication resources necessary, we have added a second week of classes for deaf and hearing impaired persons which is original to Elderhostel," said Anita Herman, Elderhostel program coordinator at Madonna.

Elderhostel is a nonprofit, educational program for adults 60 and over who want to develop new interests.

Sessions are short term academic courses hosted by educational institutions around the world. No credit is granted and no homework or testing is involved.

This year's sessions at Madonna will be held from Oct. 3-9 for hearing adults and from Oct. 11-17 for deaf or hearing impaired adults who use American Sign Language to communicate.

Each session will offer three college level liberal arts courses centered around the history and culture of Detroit:

- "Work, Wages and Wheels: Detroit's Impact on the American Dream" Discover through lectures and field trips how the labor movement in Detroit's automotive industry changed the American workplace and study the lasting impact of assembly lines and labor unions on our economy.
- "The Detroit Connection: Underground Route to Freedom" Study life in hiding and visit important stops in Detroit and Amherstburg, Ontario while retracing the movement of slaves from the South to freedom.

For more information on this limited enrollment program, call 591-5096, TTY 591-1203, or fax 591-0156.

CHEF LARRY JANES

Any way you spell it tomatoes are versatile

You say tomato and I say tomatoe. Vice President Dan Quayle says tomato, but would probably spell tomatoe. However you say it or spell it, the tomato is coming into season in many household gardens. There are about as many ways to cook this versatile fruit as there are fruits on the vine.

The tomato, also dubbed as a "love apple" has long been known to have aphrodisiac properties. That's probably one of the reasons it is a garden favorite.

Those of us accustomed to having the highest court in the land pronounce upon paramount issues of our national life will not be surprised to learn that as long ago as 1893 the justices resoundingly declared the tomato a vegetable, not a fruit. Either way, it ranks with lemons as a perennial favorite for a true culinary uplift.

When using fresh tomatoes in cooking, their juiciness is seldom an asset. To avoid watery results when cooking with tomatoes, professionals rely on removing as much of the juice and seeds as possible before cooking. This is easily accomplished by removing the stem, then holding your palm upside down over a bowl, squeeze the tomato to eject excess juice and seeds.

Hothouse tomatoes

In many sections of the country, fresh field grown tomatoes are not available during colder months, being supplanted by hydroponic or hothouse grown varieties.

Momma likened hothouse tomatoes to rubbery tennis balls and instead, opted for a trip to an Italian market in search for a more meaty, pear shaped tomato dubbed an Italian tomato, which she claims is sweeter and more tender than the typical American tomatoes. I'm sure you'll agree, however, that a fresh picked tomato right from the garden rivals anything for versatility and tastiness.

Tomatoes used to be reserved as a garnish for salads. Occasionally they might end up sliced on a layer of cold cuts and sandwiched between mustard slathered bread. The old standby was to spend a rainy day "putting up' or home canning everything from tomato sauce to tomato relish.

Good cooks know that a fresh picked garden tomato has the ability to end up on everything from a platter sprinkled with fresh basil and drizzled with a vinaigrette or cored and popped under a broiler after being sprinkled with dill and a little Parmesan cheese. Trendy cooks appreciate the virtues of the tomato in chunky salsas, fajitas and in delicate hot or chilled soups dolloped with sour cream and sprinkled with chives.

Green tomatoes

Adventuresome cooks can appreciate even the green tomato, realizing that even in its immature state, the green tomato can be coated with seasoned breadcrumbs and panfried or even chopped and made into a green tomato salsa with flavors all their own.

There are a few suggestions on handling and storing tomatoes that are little known but helpful. Ripe tomatoes last only 5 to 7 days. For optimum results, they should be stored in the crisper section of the refrigerator, uncovered. Contrary to popular belief, green tomatoes ripened on a sunny windowsill tend to lack the flavor and definitely the nutritive value of a tomato picked right from the vine.

Immature and smaller green tomatoes, by the way, have a harder time ripening than their full-figured relatives. Tomatoes as a whole do not lend well to freezing but I have successfully frozen skinned and seeded chunks for wintertime use in sauces and salsas.

Skinning tomatoes

Garden fresh tomatoes should have a tender skin unlike their hothouse counterparts. Cooks who use tomatoes as a whole in cooking will appreciate a skinned tomato lest they find chunks of skin floating among their chili or soup. Skinning a tomato is relatively easy. The core can be removed and the tomato skewered onto a long handled fork and then immersed for about a minute in rapidly boiling water. Another quick favorite method for skinning calls for charring the tomato skin with a propane torch (doesn't every kitchen have one?) and peeling lightly to remove the skin. Either method is acceptable.

Remember, it's not how you spell it, it's how you make it. And in case Dan Quayle is reading, the "e" is added only when pluralized.

Cheap but classy cuisine

Little touches add elegance

■ Prepare elegant, wholesome meals without spending a fortune. Caterer Nancy Steinbrecher offers tips for stretching the gourmet food dollar.

BY GERI RINSCHLER
SPECIAL WRITER

Cooking gourmet food doesn't have to be expensive. Stretching the "gourmet" food dollar has been overlooked until recently in Jacques Pepin's "Cuisine Economique."

Pepin's 11th published cookbook, (William Morrow and Company, June 1992, $22) is a collection of recipes organized into seasonal menus that employ affordable ingredients.

When asked why he decided to concentrate on cooking economically, Pepin pointed out that cooking well, in fact, means cooking economically.

"As I travel around the country and work with young chefs, I am always most impressed with those who produce well-cooked food with speed, organization and economy than those who created complicated 'food art' at the expense of thrift."

Caterers like Nancy Steinbrecher of Troy, and chefs who prepare wholesome, elegant meals with style are constantly stretching the gourmet dollar.

"A dinner designed around a whole roasted chicken seasoned with herbs and served with roasted potatoes and vegetables can be served elegantly and only cost you about $6," said Steinbrecher who has been catering for over five years. Cooking for a large family with seven children who now range in age from 15 to 32 gave her the expertise to go on and prepare dinner parties which serve up to 600 people.

"After you've cooked for 50 people on a regular basis as I have done for family get-togethers, it's easy to serve dinner to 100, 200 or more. The key is organization. The number of people you cook for certainly affects the cost, the savings come when you shop in quantity."

Steinbrecher uses a set of 5- by 8-inch cards to organize and plan every catering event. She recommends establishing a budget, and then deciding whether the party is to be a formal, sit-down dinner, or casual buffet.

No matter the style of the event, Steinbrecher usually offers chicken or beef entrees and avoids the higher priced items such as seafood. "When serving beef, you can stretch your dollar even further by providing many side dish options, then balance the menu with color and texture to add elegance," she said.

For instance, serve an unusual salad of mixed greens, water chestnuts, mandarin oranges and walnuts. When the budget permits, toss in a few mini corn on the cobs to add yet another dimension. Instead of buying expensive feta cheese, toss one to two tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese into a salad.

"Your party will surely be a success if you add an elegant dessert at the end of the meal," said Steinbrecher because dessert is usually important to most guests. One of her favorite desserts is a chocolate raspberry torte. "It's rich, can be made ahead, and is affordable."

To make the torte she splits a nine-inch chocolate layer cake into six layers, fills the layers with raspberries which have been thickened with jam and covers it with whipped cream. When sliced, the torte will serve 15 people.

Just before serving, she dresses the torte with extra raspberry sauce and chocolate shavings or chocolate sprinkles. "Presentation of each dish is just as important in serving the meal as the organization is in planning the event," she said.

Chef Peter Kotsogiannis has been serving customers gourmet food on shoestring budget for the past nine years at Peter's K, a small unadorned coffee shop at 25920 Greenfield in Oak Park. His menu tells it all, dinner selections range in price from $8.95 to $11.95. The restaurant is open 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Saturday. He strives to serve fresh, classic cuisine such as Veal Picante, Steak au Poivre and grilled whitefish with garlic-lemon sauce.

WINNER DINNER

BETSY BRETHEN

Recently, a copy of the Southfield Senior Arts League cookbook appeared in the Winner Dinner mailbag. Edited and illustrated by Bill Mandt, and compiled as a fund-raiser for the organization, many of the recipes were submitted by Southfield senior citizens.

Leafing throughit, the temptation of putting together a super summer supper couldn't be resisted. Mixing and matching recipes, I came up with this week's Winner Dinner menu which is an easy, make-ahead meal, perfect for casual, al fresco dining. Featuring Southfield city councilman Peter Cristiano's recipe for pesto sauce, Cynde Friday's tomato and red onion salad, and Jack Cole's lemon squares, this light supper promises to help you keep your cool in the kitchen.

The Senior Arts League was formed for the promotion of, and involvement in, the performing and visual arts. Each year it sponsors two juried art shows for seniors, and along with the city of Southfield, co-sponsors SRO (Standing Room Only) Productions, a civic theater group whose plays are about seniors or are of special interest to them. The Senior Arts League has also sponsored the restoration of a building constructed in 1854, in Southfield's historic park the Burgh.

If you are interested in learning more about the senior arts league, call 354-9362. Cookbooks are available for $5 in the Southfield Senior Adult Center in the Southfield Civic Center, 24350 Civic Center Drive, Southfield, 48034, or $6 by mail. All proceeds go toward continuing support and sponsorship of this non-profit organization.

Until July 27, all the best, and in the interest of trimmer waistlines, please keep those slimmer Winner Dinners coming!

Submit your recipes to be considered for publication in this column or elsewhere, to Winner Dinner, P.O. Box 3503, Birmingham, MI 48012. All submissions become the property of the publisher. Each week's Winner reciepves an apron with the words Winner Dinner Winner on it.

Clean and hull the berries. Cut 12 of the berries into thin slices, about 1¼ cups and mix with 2 tablespoons of the sugar. Set aside.

Place the bread in the bowl of a food procesor and process a few seconds to make coarse bread crumbs to make 2 cups. Set aside.

Place the whole berries, the jam and remaining sugar in processor bowl and process until smooth. Transfer to a bowl and lightly fold in bread crumbs. Divide the pudding into six, 1 cup containers. Refrigerate for 2-3 hours.

To serve, spoon the reserved berry slices onto 6 dessert dishes. Unmold the puddings on top of the berries and serve with the sour cream. Serves 6.

MACARONI BEAUCAIRE

1 pound elbow macaroni
¼ cup olive oil
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
¼ cup minced chives
½ cup canola oil
2 eggplants about 1½ pounds, cut lengthwise into 12 slices ½ inch thick
½ teaspoon salt
3 ripe tomatoes cut into ½ inch slices
1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese

Bring 3 quarts water to a boil. Cook macaroni until just tender 15-20 minutes. Remove ¼ cup of the cooking liquid, and place in a serving bowl large enough to hold macaroni. Drain elbows. Add olive oil, grated cheese, salt and pepper to the reserved cooking liquid in the bowl. Mix well and add the drained elbows and chives. Mix well. Set aside.

For vegetable garnish: Heat the canola oil in a large skillet. When hot, add the eggplant slices in one layer, sprinkle them with the salt and saute them for 2½ to 3 minutes on each side until nicely browned. Remove and drain on paper towels.

Reserve the 6 nicest slices of eggplant and half of the tomato slices and arrange the remainder of these vegetables in a 14 inch by 10 inch gratin dish to completely cover the bottom of the dish. Distribute elbows evenly on top and arrange the reserved eggplant and tomato slices alternating over the elbows. Sprinkle with shredded cheese.

Place the gratin in a preheated 400 degree oven for 20 minutes until cheese has melted and is heated through. Serves 6.

Zesty tomato salsa, sauce summertime treats

See Larry Janes' column on Taste front.

GREEN TOMATO SALSA

1 pound green tomatoes, skinned
½ cup loosely packed chopped cilantro
1 large clove garlic
2 tablespoons chopped white onion
½ teaspoon (or to taste) sea salt

Place the tomatoes in a pan and barely cover with water and bring to a simmer. Continue to cook until tomatos turn a lighter, faded green and are just soft but not fallig apart (about 5 minutes). Set aside to cool. Place ½ cup of the cooking water into a blender or processor and add the cilantro, garlic, onion and salt, and blend until almost smooth. Drain the tomatoes and place in the blender and chop being sure not to overblend. The sauce should have a rough texture. Makes 2¼ cups.

Chef's secret: I added a few strips of Jalapeno for a kick!

To make a cooked sauce, add 1½ tablespoons of oil to a saucepan and heat. Add sauce and cook, uncovered over high heat until thickened and reduced, about 8 minutes. Add more salt to taste, if needed.

FRESH TABLE SAUCE

1 medium tomato, skin left on
½ medium onion
6 sprigs coriander, leaves only
3 chile serranos or any small hot green chile
½ teaspoon salt or to taste
½ cup cold water

Chop the tomato with the onion and place in a glass bowl. Add remaining ingredients and allow to stand for 30 minutes before serving. Makes a little more than ½ cup.

Tomatoes stuffed with pasta quick dinner

AP — Tomatoes Stuffed with Shells and Corn is a quick-fixin dinner.

TOMATOES STUFFED WITH SHELLS AND CORN

½ pound small shells, such as ditallini, rotini, or orzo
4 large ripe tomatoes
1 tablespoon butter
1 medium onion, chopped
1½ cups frozen corn or 3 ears fresh corn
1 cup tomato sauce
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
1 teaspoon fresh thyme, or ¼ teaspoon dried thyme
1 teaspoon chopped fresh basil, or ¼ teaspoon dried basil
1 teaspoon chopped fresh mint, or ¼ teaspoon dried mint
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese

Preheat oven to 425 degrees F. Cook pasta according to package directions; drain. While the pasta cooks, cut off tops of tomatoes and scoop out seeds. Trim away the pulp and reserve. Be careful not to cut through the tomatoes. Salt the inside of the tomatoes, turn upside down, and drain on paper towels.

In a large skillet over medium heat, melt butter. Add onion and frozen corn. If using fresh corn, scrape corn off cob into the pan with a sharp paring knife. Saute until tender, about 5 minutes. Add reserved tomato pulp and tomato sauce; season with salt, pepper and remaining herbs. Simmer for 5 minutes. Remove from heat, toss in pasta and Parmesan cheese.

Stuff tomatoes with pasta mixture. Place gently in a greased baking dish. Place excess pasta in separate baking dish; cover with foil to keep warm. Bake tomatoes in a 425-degree F oven for 15 to 20 minutes or until softened. Place remaining pasta in oven; heat during last 5 minutes of cooking time. Make a bed of the extra pasta; center tomatoes in pasta. Makes 4 servings.

Edible flowers make salads, desserts special

AP — Edible flowers add a summery flourish to company-special salads and desserts. While your garden is in full bloom, bring a bouquet of edible blossoms into your kitchen to experiment.

Choose from the flowers listed here or make sure the flowers you're using are not poisonous (you can call your local extension office to check). Your best option is to use garden-grown flowers or those commercially raised especially for eating. Store them in a little cold water for one to two days. When you're ready to use the flowers, just dry them with paper towels.

Bachelor's Buttons: Bland-tasting blue blossoms with fuzzy silver-gray leaves.

Carnations: Pink, yellow, white, or red flowers with a bland and somewhat bitter flavor.

Make a habit of eating breakfast

Cereal toppers: Peach Melba and Strawberry Fascination are delicious cereal toppers that make breakfast nutritious and calorie-wise.

For those on a diet or simply watching their weight, the temptation to skip breakfast is great. But take heed. Studies confirm that breakfast is an important meal for everyone, especially those counting calories.

Choosing a breakfast that's filling, not fattening and, at the same time, offers a lot of variety can start the day right.

Eating breakfast has clear health benefits ranging from improved productivity, a more positive attitude and better overall nutrition. It also plays a role in controlling hunger all day long.

Dr. C. Wayne Callaway, an endocrinologist at George Washington University in Washington, D.C., confirms that breakfast helps regulate hunger and facilitates a steady burning of calories throughout the day. His research reveals that people who by-pass breakfast have metabolic rates that are 4 percent to 5 percent below normal. Calories burn at a higher rate when spread out over the day.

Skip a meal, or eat just one large meal, and you'll burn fewer calories than if you eat sensibly throughout the day, beginning with breakfast.

A breakfast built around a bowl of cereal is a quick, easy and nutritious way to get back into the habit of eating a morning meal. And cereals are a good source of complex carbohydrates that can boost your energy level and sustain it until lunch.

All cereals, however, are not created equal. Many contain added sugar, salt and even fat. So label reading is important. Quarter Puffed Wheat and Puffed Rice, for example, are sugar-free, sodium-free, fat-free and preservative-free. A one-cup serving contains only 50 calories.

Using fresh summer fruits and on-hand ingredients like non-fat yogurt, the Quaker Kitchens have created a number of quick and easy cereal combos. Peach Melba, for example, features cool and creamy raspberry yogurt, sliced peaches and raspberries spooned over Puffed Wheat or Puffed Rice. Strawberry Fascination starts with the cereal and is topped with plain nonfat yogurt, sliced strawberries and a sprinkling of brown sugar.

Puffed cereal breakfast toppers: Pour 1 cup Puffed Wheat or Puffed Rice into bowl. Top with one of the following toppings. If desired, stir just before serving.

Peach melba: Top with ½ cup nonfat raspberry yogurt and ½ cup sliced fresh, frozen or canned peaches. If desired, garnish with fresh raspberries. Calories 190, Fat 0g, Sodium 55 mg.

Strawberry Fascination: Top with ½ cup sliced fresh or frozen strawberries, ½ cup plain nonfat yogurt and 2 teaspoons firmly packed brown sugar. Calories 155, Fat 1g, Sodium 60mg.

Tropical Fruit: Top with ½ cup nonfat vanilla yogurt, ¼ cup orange sections (about ½ medium orange) and ¼ cup peeled, sliced kiwi fruit. Calories 200, Fat 0g, Sodium 80mg.

Mocha Almond: Top with ½ cup low-fat coffee yogurt and 1 tablespoon toasted, slivered almonds. To toast almonds, heat in microwave at HIGH about 1 minute. Calories 165, Fat 5g, Sodium 50mg.

Area u-pick farms offering raspberries

KEELY WYGONIK

Strawberry picking season is nearly over, and raspberry is about to start. They started picking this week at Driver's Berry Farm in South Lyon and Langdon's in Fowlerville. The picking started Saturday at Middleton Berry Farm in Lake Orion. At Blakes Orchard and Cider Mill in Armada they expect to start picking sometime around July 15.

The farmers say the berries are late this year, but the recent rain storms helped. If the weather stays cool, the berries should last two to three weeks. Middleton Berry Farm still has u-pick strawberries, peas, pea pods and broccoli.

Here are some places to pick raspberries, remember to call ahead before you go.

Driver's U-Pick Berry Farm, open 8 a.m. to 8 p.m., take I-96 west to New Hudson exit (exit 155). Go south on Milford Road to 10 Mile Road. Turn right, go through South Lyon to end of 10 Mile Road. Follow the signs, (313) 437-1606 or 437-8461.

Langdon's Kern Road Farms, open 9 a.m. to dark. Take I-96 to Fowlerville exit. South on Fowlerville Road, five miles, left on Mason Road, one mile, right on Kern Road, one mile, (517) 223-8457.

Middleton Berry Farm, 2120 Stoney Creek, open 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. weekends 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. Lake Orion, 2½ miles east of Lake Orion; from Rochester, six miles north on Rochester road to Stoney Creek, 2½ miles west. (313) 693-6018 or (313)693-6124.

Blake's Orchard & Cider Mill, 17985 Center Road, Armada, three miles north and four miles east of Romeo. Open 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., (313) 784-5343.

The Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service is offering a refresher course on canning. The two-day, hands-on canning workshop "Lite and Easy Food Preservation," will be offered 9 a.m. to noon, Thursday, July 16 and Friday, July 17 in the Kitchen Classroom of the North Building, 1200 N. Telegraph, Pontiac. The cost is $7.50 for one session, or $15 for both. For information, and registration form, call 858-0904.

Chef Darren Thompson of Laffrey's John's Steaks On-The-Hearth in Detroit called to clarify Larry Janes' article about oysters. At one point Blue Pointes were not harvested because of ecological factors, that has since changed, and Blue Pointes are now available.

Microwave saves time in the kitchen

AP — Once you get used to a microwave oven that cooks, reheats, crisps, defrosts and melts ingredients, is easy to clean and releases little heat into the kitchen, it's hard to imagine living without one.

Here are some hints and tips to help you get the most out of this useful appliance:

● For best results, use the directions that come with your microwave as a guide for cooking times. The times in most cookbooks and magazines are for an average 600- to 700-watt microwave. To produce the desired result, a compact 400-watt microwave will take more time, and a large 1,000-watt one will take less. Also, the various power levels such as high or medium are not standardized.

● To find the hot and cold spots in your microwave, spread a layer of trimmed white bread slices edge-to-edge over the microwave floor. Set the oven on high and watch the browning process through the glass door.

● To get full cooking power, wipe out the oven regularly — especially around the door seal — with a mild detergent or a baking soda solution.

● Soften stubborn soil with steam by boiling a cup of water in the oven. Then clean with a plastic (not steel wool) scrubbing pad. Or, cover a spill with a damp paper towel and turn the oven on high for 10 seconds. When the oven is cool, wipe it clean.

● To get rid of lingering food odors or stale smell, place a thick slice of lemon on a paper towel and microwave it on high for 1 to 1½ minutes; let it stand overnight.

● Avoid using brown paper bags and overcooking popcorn. And keep an eye on dishes with lots of sugar. All are common causes of flareups.

● Sparks or flashes in a microwave indicate a dish containing metal, which shouldn't be used for microwave cooking. Remove the dish and transfer the food to a microwave-safe container.

● If a fire develops in a microwave, keep the door closed and unplug the unit. Let the fire extinguish itself before opening the door.

● Don't rush out to buy special microwave cookware. Most ceramic and glass casserole and baking dishes are microwave-safe.

● If you do buy special microwave cookware, select plastic cookware that can also be used for freezer storage. Then precooked portions can go directly from the freezer to the microwave.

● Save the sturdy microwave-safe plastic containers in which some frozen foods come. They're great for heating individual portions of any food in the microwave, and you can put them in the dishwasher.

● Some surprising things can be used as microwave cookware. Try warming leftovers on a paper plate, cooking bacon on paper towels and heating rolls wrapped in a napkin in a straw basket.

● Be sure any cookware is tall enough to accommodate boiling foods.

● Not sure if a dish is suitable for a microwave? Put the empty dish and a glass measuring cup half-filled with water in the oven and set it on full power for 1 minute. Then gingerly touch the dish and the water. If the water is hot and the dish cool, the dish is OK to use.

● Center food in the oven and have the thicker, denser parts facing outward toward the oven walls.

Mystery behind his music

Joe Henry goes exploring without compass

Joe Henry, a 1978 graduate of Rochester Adams High School, returns to Michigan to perform his hearty blend of country/folk character sketches at The Ark in Ann Arbor.

BY LARRY O'CONNOR
STAFF WRITER

Joe Henry admits living in self-imposed obscurity. His musical fortunes have always been sought on the periphery.

All of which would serve to contribute to the mysteriousness of the singer/songwriter, who is a 1978 graduate of Rochester Adams. His music would seem to be as remote.

It's not.

Henry's new album, "Short Man's Room," is a forthright hearty blend of country/folk musings, singular and vivid in their detail. Most are character sketches, the result of their writer lost in his own insular exploration without a compass.

"The more detached I get from myself, the easier it is to write," said Henry, who performs Sunday, July 19, at The Ark in Ann Arbor. "Flannery O'Connor once said the more she wrote, the more mysterious writing became to her. I find myself feeling the same way. You can get so lost in it. Sometimes you feel you're at the wheel of a runaway car."

Sometimes in this internal search, Henry will turn up a number such as the title track, "Short Man's Room." The languid, somewhat sad folk narrative is a portrayal of an old man living out his final years alone.

Amid a lamenting violin in the background, Henry sings: "This is a short man's room, better you watch your head/I still got my one good eye. I keep it next to my bed/I keep my money down here, I dress it to look like a shoe/I'm saving up for a pair, Then I'll have more money than you."

Ironically, Henry says surreptitiously he found the sketch in his mind while trying to write another number. "It was like finding someone else's song," he said.

Though anchored in rich detail, "Short Man's Room" mirrors the stateless being many of Henry's numbers find themselves in. They are, perhaps, synonymous with an artist who has never felt grounded to any particular place or scene.

Henry's life has been transient, listing addresses in North Carolina, Georgia, Ohio, Michigan and New York. His family moved to Rochester while he was in high school. He later moved to Ann Arbor, graduating with a bachelor's degree in English from the University of Michigan.

Henry then went onto Brooklyn, N.Y., and currently calls Los Angeles home though he's been staying in Minneapolis to rehearse this upcoming tour with the Jayhawks.

In those areas, Henry established a recording career that has included four LP's starting in 1986 with "Talk of Heaven" on Profile Records. His next two, "Murder of Crows" (1989) and "Shuffletown" (1990) were released on A&M.

"As far as the disadvantages (of being in obscurity), you feel like you're beating your head against the wall if you're trying to take a song outside of your living room," he said. "The advantages are you're not beholden to anyone."

While living in Rochester, Henry perhaps established the closest thing to be called his roots. He met and later married Melanie Ciccone, sister of pop icon Madonna. Musically, those times were formative as well.

"In high school, looking back, I was going through my purest period," Henry said. "I wasn't listening to anything but Woody Guthrie and country and blues artists such as John Hurt, Leadbelly and Lightnin' Hopkins. It was so stripped bare. It was like a burning light.

". . . I think everyone else was listening to Boz Scaggs."

Joe Henry will perform with the Jayhawks Sunday, July 19, at The Ark, 637½ S. Main, Ann Arbor. For information, call 761-1451.

Therapists differ on homosexuality

BARBARA SCHIFF

Dear Barbara:

I read with great interest the article in the April 20th issue. There is a member of my family who has recently disclosed to us that he thinks he may be homosexual. His feelings regarding this problem are identical to those expressed by the young man in your article. He desperately wants to be helped and — as he terms it — be part of the "main stream society." He wants to have a family and children and be a family man just like all his friends.

He is a brilliant young man and a professional. He, too, feels that the gay community is too quick to accept their sexual preference without trying to tackle this problem vith a therapist. He is scared and unhappy and is willing to give it "his all" in order to be helped.

I would greatly appreciate your giving us some names and address. Also we would like the address of the psychotherapint, Charles Soccardies, which you mentioned In your article.

Thank you

Dear Readers:

The column on April 20 that today's writer is referring to was from a young man who fears he is gay and wants psychotherapy to help him live a heterosexual life. He asked about the causes of homosexuality and about the chances of finding the kind of help he desires.

In my reply to him and in a follow-up column, I discussed the various outlooks taken by the mental health field. The answer to today's letter is designed to amplify those replies.

The doctors' names and addresses this writer requests were mailed to her home.

Dear 'Thank You':

Thank you for giving me the opportunity to discuss this topic again. Homosexuality has always been hotly debated by mental health professionals. At present, the argument focuses on the desirability and feasibility of giving gay men any hope that they can change.

There are those who believe sexual orientation is unchangeable. With this as their philosophical position, they then believe that trying to re-orient to a heterosexual position in a sickness in itself. They feel it is cruel and inhumane to give any credence to the possibility of being straight if you are gay, and insist that gay men must accept this as their destiny if they are to be healthy.

There are other mental health professionals who strongly disagree with this. They understand the enormous complexity of the issue and that there are often many factors which contribute to its determination. At the 1990 fall meeting of the American Psychoanalytic Association, there was a well-attended discussion group titled "The Sexual Deviations — Theory and Therapy: A Successful Treatment of an Overt Homosexual Patient." It was "well-attended" because many therapists understand the pain homosexuality can cause and are eager to find ways to help decrease the suffering. They do not want to take any moral position on homosexuality and they also don't want to deny the possibility of help to those in pain who deeply want to change.

Readers eager to tell their favorite things

JILL HAMILTON

The other day, after waking up at the usual none-too-bright and early hour of 11 a.m., I was sitting in the kitchen reading the newspaper when the sound of a loud lawn mower roared past the open door.

As I got up to shut the door, I glanced at the gruff-looking, burly dude mowing the lawn. He was wearing ear plugs and whistling a tune. It was that "These Are a Few of My Favorite Things" song from "Sound Of Music."

It made my day.

A column ago, I asked readers to send in a list of their favorite things, or if they were feeling grouchy, a list of bothersome things. Here are the results:

Matt Rogers of Westland sent a letter handsomely decorated by his young son with a blue highlighter pen. For this creativity (mistaken, I believe) as well as promptness and fine penmanship, Rogers should get a copy of a Stevie Ray Vaughn video, "Live at the El Mocambo," as a prize. Unfortunately, he won't.

Writes Rogers: "I agree with a lot of your choices, especially singing loudly in the car or old couples holding hands. Great!

"What about . . . steamy windows at the drive-in, birthday cakes, nature walks, Stevie Ray Vaughn, holding a cold beer on a real hot day, the smell of freshly cut wood, the forum section of Penthouse, new shoes and the Red Wings at Joe Louis Arena.

"Comedians George Carlin, George Wallace and the late Sam Kinison, Rhythm Corps, banging on my drum kit, homemade pizza, three-wheeling up north, J.R.R. Tolkien, carnivals, the Star Wars trilogy, missed camcorder moments that will never be duplicated, seeing kids having fun and bubble baths.

"Flashlights that work, Rolling Stone magazine, well upholstered furniture, PBJ sandwiches, a good haircut, actors James Olmos and Cheech Marin, actresses Michelle Pfieffer and Anne Archer, freshly picked apples and action movies ('007,' 'Die Hard,' 'Robin Hood'), people who make you laugh, that first cup of coffee in the morning, and people who believe and believe in themselves."

Lynda Harris of Southfield responded to both questions. As for her favorite things, a good "Dear Abby," Henry Hook, knowing that my checking and savings accounts are as full as they can be, having something new to wear, Damon Wayons doing "Men On . . . ," Tom Cruise in the casino scenes in "Rainman," garage sales with a lot of stuff, winning at Euchre, "Northern Exposure" and "Rescue 911."

Not to forget: Axl Rose on the cover of "Rolling Stone," laughing hard, being right, being lost in profoundly deep thought, good dreams, tuna fish sandwiches that are all mayonnaise, diet caffeine-free Coke, getting everything done, a little plant that

'Cool World' sounds good but leaves audiences cold

TICKETS PLEASE

JOHN MONAGHAN

"Cool World" probably looked great on paper: a real-life comic book artist trips into the whacked-out world he created. Even from the previews, it had all the markings of an alternative and way-hip "Roger Rabbit."

Instead, "Cool World," playing on area screens, only proves how spectacularly uninspired its creator Ralph Bakshi has become. The animator hasn't matured much as an artist or as an adult since he made cartoon history with "Fritz the Cat" and "Heavy Traffic" 20 years ago.

The movie takes to extremes the idea that the world's sexiest woman exists in cartoon form. The theme originated in the 1940s with Tex Avery, whose "Red Hot Riding Hood" cartoons led servicemen to paint Red's image on their fighter planes.

Jessica, Roger Rabbit's main squeeze in the 1988 Disney hit, revamped the character with the inspiration and voice of Kathleen Turner.

Here it's Kim Basinger's turn to be 'tooned as "Cool World's" resident femme fatale Holli Wood. Drawn with thick lips and impossibly round breasts, the scantily clad Holli gyrates through every scene in her quest to have everything she wants, just like idol Marilyn Monroe.

She finds her ticket into the real world through cartoonist Jack Deebs (Gabriel Byrne), who discovers that he can physically travel into the world he created on paper.

As in Bakshi's other films, the Cool World is not a happy place, but one that blends real-life perversity with the cartoon violence served up by Bugs and Daffy. Cartoon characters wield huge axes and flatten each other with anvils, which seem to fall like rain from a multi-colored sky.

Look closely and you'll recognize familiar faces from cartoons past. Ignatz Mouse skitters through a scene, nameless barnyard animals from early Warner Brothers cartoons pop up, while the street-smart wolves from "Red Hot Riding Hood" lear with eyeballs and tongues protruding just like they did 50 years ago.

Despite all the color and mayhem, "Cool World" remains a snoozer partly because it doesn't play straight with the audience. Bakshi seems to make up the story (and the rules) for the Cool World as he goes along while his animation is only a step above standard Saturday morning fare.

You could sit through the film several times before catching all the hyperactive detail, but you wouldn't really want to.

The real-life actors, all who have done much better work, only make matters worse. Brad Pitt (he played a young stud in "Thelma and Louise") exists in the Cool World as a James Dean-style police detective. Only he knows the devastating consequences that a real-life Holli can have on the delicate balance between fantasy and reality.

Indeed, Holli's sexual encounter with the cartoonist makes her human in the film's second half, introducing Kim Bassinger in the flesh and leading to a potentially entertaining premise as she joins Jack in the real world.

You only feel embarassed for her, dressed in a horrible see-through number that would look out-of-place even at the Academy Awards. This wasn't the only opportunity to feel uncomfortable during "Cool World," which much of the time gives you the impression that you're peeping into an adolescent boy's over-sexed fantasy.

This bold, visionary film doesn't always work, but it has at least a half hour of brilliantly conceived ideas and images to make it well worth the effort.

grows into a giant, a sunny day after weeks of winter clouds and a video recommendation that is good.

And the bothersome things: Having to make a decision on something when either way is going to be bad, clothes that used to fit and don't anymore, people that scream through my quiet neighborhood expressway, having to go somewhere I don't want to go to, losing things, computer problems, stupid commercials, stupid people and stupid anything.

Brenda Good of West Bloomfield was succinct with preferences. Favorites: A sunny day at the beach and getting a tan, singing as loud as I can in my car when a good song comes on the radio, parties, frozen yogurt, a good workout and shopping.

Bothersome stuff: Violence, homelessness, people who don't take care of the environment and crooked politicians.

Paul Lloyd of West Bloomfield copped his list from a scene in "Wings of Desire" where a man is dying after an auto accident and an angel listens to his final thoughts.

Writes Lloyd: "For best effect, read it slowly, allowing time for an image to appear for each thought — Albert Camus, the morning light, the child's eyes, the swim in the waterfall, the stains from the first raindrops, the son, the bread and wine, hopping, Easter, the veins of the leaves, the blowing grass, the color of stones, the pebbles on the stream's bed, the white tablecloth outdoors, the dream of the house inside the house, the loved one asleep in the next room, the peaceful Sunday, the horizon, the light from the room shining in the garden, the night flight, riding a bicycle with no hands, the beautiful stranger, my father, my mother, my wife, my child."

Free show: The Exception, a nine-piece SKA band, will perform a free show with Black Planet Saturday, July 18, on the roof of Trapper's Alley as part of the Alley Series at 7:30 p.m.

Band revives SKA sound

By Kristen Knudsen
Staff Writer

In the 1960s, there was a small-scale musical explosion in Jamaica resulting in a new sound called SKA. After a brief stint in England in the early 1980s, SKA moved to America — and died.

In 1988, SKA was born again. According to Ryan Reeves, 21, guitarist of the nine-piece SKA band, The Exceptions, this rebirth has been largely centered in Detroit.

"In the past two years, especially in Detroit, it (the SKA scene) has really grown a lot," said Reeves, who frequently used to encounter the question "Who's Scott?" when he tried to describe his music.

Now that we have the name straight, confusion is still understandable. What, exactly, is SKA?

"Most people can swallow it as fast Reggae," said 19-year-old Joel Peterson, the band's bass player.

To be more specific, SKA is "reggae, jazz, American R&B, and Motown stuff with a fast tempo," said Reeves, who lives in Warren and formed The Exceptions in 1990 with friends scattered throughout Detroit, Hamtramck, Monroe, Harper Woods, and Northville.

Despite the excitement of SKA, nine young men aged 19-22, who go to school and work along with promoting their band, it's difficult to look at music as a full-time career.

Reeves, who is studying pre-med at Wayne State University, remains realistic about his future, and claims that even if a major record label offered his band a contract with all the trimmings, he would only postpone his medical career for five years because, as he sees it, "It would take about that long for everyone to get sick of us."

At Wayne State, Reeves is joined by bandmates Peterson, who is studying music composition; singer Rich Reuther, who is studying social work; Vox organ player John Steed, who is undecided; and trumpet player Todd Bolton, a jazz major.

Trombone player Jim Hofer is studying architecture at the University of Detroit, tenor sax player Geno Corwin is in environmental science at the University of Michigan-Dearborn, and Alto Fugitive, the band's alto saxophone player is studying engineering at Lawrence Technological University.

With such variation of interests within the band, its members admit that their lyrics are sometimes whimsical, to borrow a term from bassist Peterson.

Mike LaTulippe, the 21-year-old drummer and communications major at Oakland Community College, agrees: "I think that our lyrics are like, half of them are silly, foolishness; the other half of our songs are serious, with a message."

Serious topics like racism have their place within The Exceptions' music, but a more typical song for them would be something like "Coney Dog City," which explores one of Detroit's most profound mysteries: "Everywhere you go," said Reeves of The Motor City, "It's like this abyss. Everything is dead, rundown, boarded up; but there's these thriving Coney Islands everywhere."

They also have a song called "Ridges," expounding on the well-known fact that guys prefer potato chips over peanuts.

The Exceptions have recorded 11 songs and have a single coming out this month on Royal Oak's Icon Records that will be available throughout the U.S., Canada, and England. The song is "Flowering Scrunch," — about girls with big hair — with the flip side "Exceptionally Horny," an all-instrumental pun referring to the band's brass section.

The Exceptions have maintained their sense of humor — and their day jobs, but with exceptional music like this, they may not need them for long.

The Exceptions will perform a free show with Black Planet Saturday, July 18, on the roof of Trapper's Alley as part of the Alley Series at 7:30 p.m.

FAMILY READING CHALLENGE 1992

Calling All Reading Challengers!

YOU'RE THE CHEF!

Pretend you're in charge of your family's dinner for one night this week, but you are only allowed to prepare foods that you find in grocery advertisements. Use as many ads as you need to plan your family meal.

Write your menu on a piece of paper, then make a shopping list of all the foods you will need to buy, along with the price of each item. Now add all the prices so that you'll know how much money you'll need for your trip to the grocery store.

Show your parent or guardian the meal that you've planned.

(Note to adults: This is the fifth in a series of activities in the Family Reading Challenge 1992 Contest. Use this page to share some educational summer fun with your child.)

Canton player an all-star

Sarah Schimmelpfenneg, a member of Plymouth Canton's state runner-up softball team and a June graduate, will play in the Senior All-Star game Saturday, July 25, at Ranney Field in Lansing.

Schimmelpfenneg and Farmington Hills Mercy's Kathleen Berrigan will play in the Michigan High School Softball Coaches Association Class A game at 4 p.m. There also will be games in classes C-D and B at 11:30 a.m. and 1:45 p.m.

Schimmelpfenneg played center field for the Chiefs, who finished second to Jenison in the state tournament, and was named to the All-Western Lakes Activities Association, All-Observer, all-district and all-region teams. She batted .357 with 28 hits, had 28 RBI and scored 37 runs.

Berrigan, who also played center field for the Marlins for four years, was named the Female Athlete of the Year in the Catholic League.

She was a three-time member of the All-Observer team and was a first-team Class A all-stater the last two years. Berrigan hit .593, stole 44 bases, scored 47 runs, had a .712 on-base percentage and 19 RBI.

Cubs post unbeaten season

The Cubs completed an unbeaten regular season in the Plymouth-Canton Junior Baseball League Wednesday, defeating the Giants 6-4 and posting a 14-0 record.

The team of 11-year-olds entered World Series play Friday night against the American League champion Yankees. The Cubs averaged 10 runs per game and allowed one, holding 11 opponents to two or less.

Olympic Development soccer

Several area girls made the cut recently at the U.S. Olympic Development regional's four-day soccer camp, held in Kenosha, Wis.

In the under-18 division, Stevenson graduate Ragen Coyne was selected along with Kara Nance of Rochester and Natalie Neaton of Brighton. (Plymouth's Kris Goff made the regional pool.)

Coyne will also play for the national team which will meet Norway later this month.

In the under-16 age bracket, Aimee Cousino of Livonia and Kathryn Sombrero of Bloomfield Hills were chosen as regional alternates, while Plymouth's Kelly Lukasik and Troy's Jessica Limauro made the regional pool.

In the under-14 girls, regional selections included Laura Fedrigo of Livonia; Jennifer Bazzarelli and Mari Hoff, both of Canton; Tara Bilovus, Troy; Tamara Strong, Rochester Hillls; and Jessica Glazer, Birmingham. Alternates included Elizabeth Szkrybalo of Livonia and Laura Montecillo of Troy. Birmingham's Amanda Vogler made the regional pool.

Schoolcraft College women's coach Nick O'Shea also participated in the camp.

Wildcats .500 in tourney

While a national championship was the goal, being among the top eight 18-and-under AAU women's basketball teams in the country was not a bad consolation for the Western Wayne Wildcats.

"Anytime you can get to a national tournament, you have to be proud of your team, and doing as well as we did in the state was awesome," Wildcats coach Fred Thomann said.

The Wildcats finished with a 3-3 record. They won their pool with a 2-1 record and their first game in tournament play, reaching the Round of Eight at which point they were eliminated in consecutive losses.

"We lost a tough game to North Carolina in the afternoon and had to come back and play South Carolina at night," Thomann said. "It was disappointing to get beat by North Carolina (the 16-under champ last year). We played them exceptionally well. For 38 minutes, we were in the hunt and lost it."

The Wildcats were ahead late in the game with South Carolina but couldn't sustain the lead and lost 78-74.

"We definitely were in an elite group of teams out there," Thomann said. "We had a great team in terms of talent, and our level of play in the tournament was excellent."

Dawn Warner (Livonia Franklin) averaged 20 points per game to lead the Wildcats followed by Tannisha Stevens (Mount Clemens) and Jennifer Brzezinski (Warren Lincoln) with 18 and 16, respectively.

Darcie Miller (Plymouth Salem), Julie Nicastri (Plymouth Canton), Laure DeMattia (Farmington Hills Mercy) and Lori Young (Rochester Adams) also were on the team, which included Lisa Negri, Sarah Willyerd and Noelle Beaudry from Class B champion Flint Powers, Allegra Stoetzel (Jackson County Western), Janet Hughes (New Boston Huron) and Julie Oxley (Tecumseh).

Area duo released by Tigers

Doug Martin and Steve Waite, a pair of former Observerland baseball stars, had to put their professional goals on hold after being released by the Detroit Tigers.

BY RAY SETLOCK
STAFF WRITER

Lots of kids grow up wanting to play big league baseball, but few get the chance and even fewer play for more than two seasons.

A recent study done at Eastern Michigan University shows that only five percent of minor league players ever play in a big league game. Of those who make the majors, only three percent have careers lasting more than two full seasons.

A pair of local players, Doug Martin and Steve Waite, found these alarming statistics out the hard way.

Martin, who led Redford Catholic Central to a state championship in 1987 and pitched for Eastern Michigan, was released by the Detroit Tigers last week after a one-year stint with the ballclub.

Selected in the 44th round of the 1991 draft, Martin posted a 3-1 record in 19 appearances last season with Niagara Falls of the Class A New York-Penn League.

This season, Martin struggled at Niagara Falls, allowing nine runs in just five innings. He had a pair of saves and no decisions.

Waite, a hard throwing righthander from Plymouth Canton and Eastern Michigan, was also released by the Tigers last week — after just three months.

Waite was signed by the Tigers as a free agent in the off-season. Following spring training, he was assigned to Class A affiliate Fayetteville. With the Generals, Waite had a 1-0 record and 5.70 earned run average.

Both players say they'll give it another shot, but until that opportunity comes, they'll continue playing in the Pontiac Summer League.

"Things just didn't work out," Martin said. "I really wasn't sure of my role.

"I was part of the extended spring training and I thought that when it ended, I'd get to go either to Lakeland or Fayetteville (the Tigers top Class A teams). But instead they sent me to Niagara Falls and told me that I would be the closer (short relief). I thought that would be fine with me."

Martin says that things were working out, but Niagara Falls manager Larry Parrish (former Texas Ranger outfielder) started using Martin in different roles.

"I did well in my first couple of short-relief opportunities," Martin said. "But before I knew it, I was pitching in long relief situations.

Hines Park keeps LCBL pace

Little Caesars and Hines Park Lincoln-Mercury stayed atop the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League standings by winning games Wednesday night at Ford Field.

Caesars and Hines Park were tied with 14-7 records heading into Friday night's action.

Caesars collected 14 hits to beat the Tecumseh Green Giants 7-3 in Wednesday's nightcap. Andrew Margoulick had a pair of RBI with a double and single.

Dave Roman (Livonia Franklin and Henry Ford Community College) was 3-for-3 and Andy Gagne was 2-for-4 with an RBI.

John Spoyler was the winning pitcher in five innings of work. Spoyler struck out five before being replaced. Brandon Endicott pitched the sixth inning and Roman pitched the seventh to assure victory.

The Green Giants fell to 3-16.

Hines Park beat Walter's 3-2 in a pitcher's duel played early Wednesday. Ed Gundry (Plymouth Salem), who was 2-for-3 at the plate, stroked an RBI triple in the fifth inning to drive in the winning run off losing pitcher Bryan Pfeifer.

Pfeifer, who went the distance, allowed five hits, five walks and one strikeout.

Chris Newton was the winning pitcher, scattering four hits, three strikeouts and one walk over seven innings.

Dave Wood went 3-for-3 for Walter's, which fell to 11-8-1 and dropped out of a second-place tie with Delwal.

Delwal keeps pace

Bill McKaig gained his first pitching win of the season on Wednesday as Delwal beat Wendy's of Ann Arbor 4-1 at Eastern Michigan University.

Delwal improved to 12-7-1 overall. Wendy's fell to 6-15.

McKaig, who left after five innings in favor of Mark Temple (North Farmington), allowed five hits, struck out two and walked four. Temple allowed one hit, struck out two and walked none.

Mike Schwartzenberger had a two-out double in the first inning to score Chris Munson and Billy Hardy.

Temple scored on a passed ball in the fourth inning and Hardy singled home Jason Valente in the seventh inning for the fourth run.

Madonna recruits satisfy softball needs

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

It wasn't supposed to be like this.

Madonna University softball coach Dave Racer didn't think he'd have much to replace for next season, if anything at all. Everyone on his 22-18 team had eligibility remaining; all that need be done during the off-season was a bit of fine tuning.

Then came the hammer. His team's top freshman, catcher Kim Supron from Livonia Ladywood, hurt her shoulder and underwent surgery after the season. She will miss next season.

Then both pitchers, Tracy Vachon and Kristen Wasil, told Racer they probably would not return. Suddenly, a team that might have been good enough to contend for the NAIA District 23 title had gaping holes to fill.

Two months after his season concluded, the holes gape no more. Racer has completed a significant recruiting campaign, one that has made Madonna a far better team in nearly every aspect.

The key to any team is pitching, and although Vachon — just a freshman — showed considerable promise, Racer believes the two players he's signed "are better than what we had."

First, there's Dawn Terrasi, a 1990 Monroe High School graduate who played as a freshman at Wayne State. Terrasi, who throws in the mid-60 mph range, was 17-5 at WSU, allowing 110 hits and 32 walks in 154⅓ innings while compiling a 1.04 earned run average.

Pitching first

As a senior at Monroe, she was 16-2 with a 0.48 ERA, striking out a school-record 133 in 131 innings.

Terrasi decided to leave WSU because "I got burned out there." Clashes with the coaching staff didn't help, either, but after a year away from the college game and some time spent playing for the Monroe Merchants, a fast-pitch summer team, she "decided to get back at it. I'm having fun again."

Several of her Merchants' teammates play at Madonna — Kay Lee Davis, Hughana Wilkie and Holly Jondro. So does new recruit Jennifer Pinter, a catcher from New Boston Huron.

That helped convince Terrasi to come to Madonna. As for Pinter, she was an accidental discovery. Racer was scouting a game between Monroe St. Mary's Catholic Central and Pinter's New Boston Huron squad. He was interested in St. Mary's catcher, Teresa Lucio, but she wanted to major in pharmaceuticals, so she enrolled at Ferris State.

Pinter, though, caught Racer's eye. Although her team struggled through a 7-16 season, Pinter shined; she led the Chiefs in batting (.456), runs batted in (28) and runs scored (31). She had planned on majoring in physical therapy and attending Grand Valley State, but changed her major to nursing and her school to Madonna.

A better battery

Now, she could be the team's starting catcher. "I'm glad I might be able to start right away and not sit on the bench," said Pinter, who was all-Huron League and all-Region. Racer now thinks Pinter might be better than St. Mary's Lucio.

His second pitching recruit is also from the down-river area: Lynda Weichel, a 1991 Gibralter Carlson graduate who attended Monroe Community College for a year. She was 15-5 as a senior at Carlson, and will have four years of eligibility at Madonna. Like Terrasi, Weichel throws in the 60s.

"You get a girl throwing in the mid-60s, and she's bringing it," said Racer.

Those three — Terrasi, Weichel and Pinter — are the backbone of Racer's recruiting class because they play key positions that needed filling. "We definitely had to find a catcher" after Supron's loss, said Racer. His other objective was developing his team's depth so that injuries won't decimate the team — which is what happened last season.

Classic Seven beats odds in Mile

By C.J. Risak
Staff Writer

Everything considered, it was a typical Michigan Mile — the favorites flopped, and a longshot prevailed.

The 44th running of the Mile — the grandest thoroughbred race in the state, with a $250,000 total purse — was like so many others in the series: Only nine favorites have finished first. So no one in the crowd of 10,921 should have been too surprised by Saturday's race at Ladbroke DRC in Livonia.

The heavy favorite, Chief Honcho — ridden by Hall of Fame jockey Pat Day, this year's Kentucky Derby winner aboard Lil E. Tee — was never a factor. He fell to 11th at the start and ended up finishing there.

Those expected to be Honcho's chief competitors fared no better. Cozzene's Prince was sixth, Discover took seventh, Alyten ended up ninth and Michelle Can Pass was 10th.

Which left the way open for 35-to-1 shot Classic Seven, with a young phenom of a jockey in the saddle, Fabio Arguello Jr. In a race that truly was "Classic," Seven did not follow form; usually a front-runner, instead he bided his time on the rail until the final half-mile, then outraced Sunny Prince down the stretch to win by ¾ of a length in 1:43.3.

HORSE RACING

■ 'I knew I had plenty of horse. Before the race, I really liked this horse . . . you can bet I want to stay aboard him.'

Fabio Arguello Jr.

"This is our greatest day, by far," said part-owner Tom Cairns. "He just outgamed (Sunny Prince). The other horse is bigger, but (Seven) is a tough little son-of-a-gun."

So, too, is Arguello. Just half the age of Day, the 19-year-old Arguello tied him for most wins this spring at the Churchill Downs meet and has quickly developed into a rider of national stature.

Arguello piloted Seven into the lead after surviving an early bumping, keeping him on the rail a length behind Perfectly Proud in a race that was closely bunched until the final stretch. At the ¾-mile mark, Arguello pushed Seven past Perfectly Proud into first.

But he didn't stay there. Sunny Prince, with Carlos Silva aboard, came after him and entering the final one-eighth of a mile Prince was ahead. Seven fought back, however, and at the finish was pulling away.

Even though the book on Seven was that he liked to take the lead early and keep it, and this race didn't follow that scenario, Arguello wasn't concerned — even after Prince passed him briefly. "I knew I had plenty of horse," Arguello said. "Before the race, I really liked this horse . . . you can bet I want to stay aboard him."

As for Chief Honcho, Day could give no reasons. His horse had finished in the money in six of his previous seven races, and he won his last start, June 18 at Belmont Park in New York.

"There's not much to say," said Day. "He was never in the race. He broke OK, and I tried to encourage him to maintain his position early on, but that's the best he could do. Chief Honcho just was never in it."

Seven was, and he never faltered. The longshot — only two others in Mile history were longer — made a few bettors happy, paying $79 on a $2 to win ticket.

Madonna

He went far beyond that. Three of his five recruits could get starts in the outfield, or cause a lineup shuffle that might force a pair of veterans to switch positions.

Change in the wind

Racer is considering changing Jenny Marquette, a two-year starter at shortstop, to center field to better utilize her speed. That would necessitate moving all-district centerfielder Megan Armstrong to right field.

And who would fill Marquette's void at short? One of two freshmen: Michelle Birchmeier, from Redford Thurston, or Geralyn Kepshire, from Redford and Ladywood.

Birchmeier, who signed with Madonna in March, finished her final season at Thurston filling in for injured pitcher Sue Drotar. She still excelled, batting .455 with eight doubles, seven triples, two homers and 33 RBI. She was 7-5 on the mound with a 1.40 earned run average.

She said she was hoping to get a shot in the outfield, too, but she may have to wait her turn.

First, back to short and Kepshire, who played third base and was a part-time catcher at Ladywood. Racer believes she could play short; Jill Burt is entrenched at third for the Crusaders.

Kepshire, who batted .349 with four doubles, two triples, a homer and 19 RBI, decided to attend Madonna partially "for an opportunity to play softball." That may convince her to try short.

Whatever happens in the infield, the outfield will be, in Racer's words, "very competitive." Joining Armstrong and leftfielder Jondro — and perhaps Marquette — in the search for a starting spot are Carolyn Nagel, also from Thurston, and Kelly Allor, a first-team all-stater from Birmingham Marian.

A competitive situation

Allor, a centerfielder who lives in Farmington Hills, posted some impressive numbers: .484 average, nine doubles, seven triples, six homers and 42 RBI. She had been contacted by University of Detroit Mercy and Hillsdale, but chose Madonna because it was closer to home.

Nagel had also been contacted by someone else — Schoolcraft College women's basketball coach Jack Grenan. Nagel at first committed to SC, but later changed her mind.

Her initial feeling was she would be better at basketball, but after receiving honorable mention all-state following her softball season at Thurston, she thought differently. She batted .411 for the Eagles.

Birchmeier, her closest friend, had much to do with her change in heart. But the chance to go to a four-year school in pursuit of a degree was the pivotal factor.

Madonna's most valuable player last season was Davis, the team's first baseman, and the Crusaders made a move to back her up with another potent bat by signing Sheri McLaughlin, from Monroe Jefferson. An all-Huron League selection, McLaughlin batted .420 last season and drove in 29 runs.

In all, the additions paint an interesting picture for the Crusaders. "Last year, some of the girls didn't like it when the new girls came in and battled them for their spots," said Racer. "But the pressure's only going to make them better."

There's bound to be plenty of that.

Tennis tourney in July

It's going to be hard to top, but Don Brown is going to give it his best passing shot.

The fifth annual Novice Tennis Tournament is slated for later this month at the Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook Tennis Courts.

A record 148 competitors participated in last year's tournament. Brown is hoping to exceed that number this summer.

"This type of tournament is certainly catching on," said Brown, the tournament director. "Everyone is welcome."

The annual Novice Tennis Tournament, co-sponsored by The Eccentric Newspapers and the Cranbrook Tennis Club, will be held July 20-21. The rain date is set for July 22.

The tournament is for boys and girls ages 16 and under who are not ranked by any sanctioned tennis organization. The idea is to keep the competition at the most novice level possible.

Players then will be grouped into four different divisions — 16-under, 14-under, 12-under and 10-under. They are guaranteed a minimum of two matches against people of similar ability.

Brown noted the younger players (10-under) can serve underhanded if they wish.

"I think the kids were fantastic last year," said Brown. ""I feel the self-confidence the kids get in this type of tournament is very important.

"The key is they have the opportunity to participate and enjoy playing tennis against people of their own caliber," he said. "To see their smiles and watch them grow is fantastic."

Players also receive pro-tips before their matches, plus T-shirts.

"The instructions before the matches are for both parents and players," said Brown. "I really like to talk to the parents too."

Brady handles Open pressure like pro

By Dan O'Meara
Staff Writer

Steve Brady of Farmington Hills was cool under pressure last week in winning his second straight AAA Michigan Open championship on The Bear near Traverse City.

The 33-year-old Brady rallied to tie Jeff Roth on the final two holes and win a sudden-death playoff July 2. The victory netted Brady a first-place prize of $13,400 — an increase of $600 over last year.

"There was a little extra pressure on me this year because I was the defending champ," Brady said. "You want to do as well as you can, if not win. So, yeah, there was a little extra heat."

If being the defending champ raised the temperature for Brady, he was on the hot seat late in the final round, but there was no way of telling based on his solid finish.

Brady saw victory slipping away when Roth forced a tie for the third-round lead at 211.

Roth, who lives in Flint but graduated from Plymouth Salem in 1973 and helped that school win a state golf championship, held a two-stroke lead with two holes left in the final round, which was played under difficult, windy conditions.

But Brady parred the last two holes while Roth made bogey each time, and both finished the day at 4-over-par 76 and 287 for the tournament. Brady made par again and Roth bogey on the first playoff hole.

"Any time you have a tournament at The Bear, it's usually tough," Brady said of the weather conditions. "Whoever was going to hang on and make the least amount of mistakes on that last day was going to win.

"It was more or less a survival test. That's pretty much what I did — hang on, make solid shots and let the other guys make the mistakes."

Brady, who will become a first-time father any day now — his wife, Judi, was due to deliver July 4 — displayed a cool under pressure unlike the stereotypical expectant father in the final round.

"That was probably the most important aspect of it," Brady said, "because once you reach a certain level in any sport your mental approach is the most important thing. You can't get too excited about the birdies or too depressed about the bogeys.

"I was happy to snake through there and pull it out. I told my caddy 'We have two holes to play; let's hang in there.' "

Brady, formerly the pro at Detroit Golf Club, is playing the Ben Hogan and TC Jordan tours full time this year. He also signed an endorsement contract with Star-Pics Inc., a trading card company based in Farmington Hills.

His victory in the Open again qualified him for the Michigan Bell Showdown, a skins game to be played on The Bear in late August. The total purse will be $27,000 for 18 holes.

Brady also will play in the first Tournament of Champions at Boyne Mountain July 20-22. Nearly 200 select Michigan golfers will compete for $100,000 in prize money, including a $25,000 payday for the winner.

Baseball

"I guess my getting released was a mutual thing. It just wasn't working out and that's not to take anything away from the Tigers. After all, they gave me the chance."

Parrish could not be reached regarding Martin's release, but sources in the Tiger farm system said player personnel moves are made by a number of people, not just the manager.

Martin said he will await an opportunity to try out with one of the expansion teams, either the Florida Marlins or Colorado Rockies.

Waite was just as frustrated as Martin, but isn't ready to say that things weren't working out.

"I thought I was doing well," Waite said. "I was pitching well in Fayetteville, but my coaches called me into the office and told me I was going down to Niagara Falls to get some additional innings.

"When I got to Niagara Falls, I had a rough outing in an exhibition game and they released me."

Although Waite was let go by Niagara Falls, he said his release papers came from Fayetteville. Front office personnel at Fayetteville say they know nothing about Waite's release.

Both players agree that minor league baseball consists of hungry players chasing mouth-watering dreams that in most cases never come true.

"Every guy in the minor leagues thinks that he is going to make the big club," Martin said. "But we hear it every day on the corner. People tell us constantly that the odds are stacked against us.

"We know that the odds are not in our favor, but we have to go and try our best everyday. We have to believe we are good enough and you cannot think otherwise."

Waite said minor league baseball was fun, but he wasn't there to just play in the minors.

"I wanted to get to the majors," Waite said. "There would be 50 or so of us players stretching and the coaches would say, 'You know only about two or three of you guys are going to make the big leagues.'

"We knew that, but that didn't stop any of us from believing we were going to be one of those to make it."

Looking for someone special?

A bowling partner, a travel companion or someone to share your life?

Every Monday and Thursday your Observer & Eccentric Newspapers will publish a PERSONAL SCENE directory—listings of people who are looking for people.

PERSONAL SCENE has five classifications—men seeking women, women seeking men, people who want to share sports interests, seniors who need companionship and people who need someone with whom to travel.

PERSONAL SCENE also takes advantage of our electronic age. When you've composed your five-line listing, which will run free for eight issues, call 591-0900 and our ad takers will be happy to help you record your message so that it can be heard by people who are interested in what you've said in your ad. You will never receive unwanted calls at your home; all responses will be recorded and left in your electronic PERSONAL SCENE message center. Note: It will cost $1.49 per minute to check the responses to your listing.

Readers who wish to respond to a listing in our PERSONAL SCENE directory, may use a touch-tone telephone to call 1-900-454-8088 and the special number which will appear in each ad. The cost to do this is also $1.49 per minute.

To place your own PERSONAL SCENE ad, call 591-0900 or send us this coupon:

'Pinocchio' re-released, butchered on HBO

By Chris Carpenter

From the bait-and-switch school of programming comes a show designed to hoodwink subscription television's younger set. The bait is Pinocchio, the little Italian puppet boy, who returns to theaters this summer. But that's the Disney version.

The switch is another Pinocchio, a 52-episode animated series HBO has scheduled to air weekdays following Bubar in the HBO For Kids morning block, beginning in July.

HBO's Pinocchio is the product of Japanese animator Tatsuo Yoshida, whose wildly uneven characters' only common trait is a penchant for ridiculing Pinocchio in howling fits of laughter.

The dialogue is erratic at best, and it's used for little else than explaining what the animation fails to show. "Cricket," who is apparently the cable version of Jiminy Cricket, is featured in an opening sequence, then reappears midway through the first episode to remind Pinocchio, "I am the ghost of the cricket who used to live with you!" Without this dopey line, the viewer wouldn't have known that the insect had died.

HBO publicity promises a Pinocchio with "cherished" moral themes. But in the first two episodes he's beaten into submission by a drunken puppeteer, repeatedly mocked and largely responsible for the drowning death of a schoolmate.

Noses are growing.

STAR NOTES

Ducommun uncommon Canadian, businessman

By Suzanne Gill

Jokester Rick Ducommun is certainly more brash than the usual run of Canadians, those orderly, law-abiding souls at the top of the continent. Perhaps that's what drove him south at the age of 15. As to his routines, he's willing to say whatever the audience will bear — from cleaned-up Tonight Show fare to the scatalogical stuff of an HBO special.

Ducommun's nonchalance is owing in part to the fact that he hasn't given up his day job, which finds him at the head of a skateboard manufacturing firm. His repartee with customers led several friends to encourage him to step out on stage. That experience led to parts in movies from The 'burbs to Encino Man. His second HBO special, Rick Ducommun: Hit and Run, debuts Saturday, July 18.

A collector of vintage autos, Ducommun emerges from a wrecked sedan at the beginning of the show. Though it looks like the car was deliberately wrecked for the occasion, Ducommun insists it's just a salvage-yard heap with a shiny new paint job.

Once on his feet, the comedian takes on subject matter from the sex lives of presidents to the deranged mind of serial killer Jeffrey Dahmer.

No time on his hands: John Tesh keeps busy

Music, 'E.T.,' the Olympics and... he's a newlywed

By Steven Alan McGaw

"In this world, a lot of people think that you can't do more than one thing," says John Tesh, in a rare moment of relative inactivity. "I do a lot of things 'kinda good,'" he laughs, "so I do 'em all."

A lot of folks would scoff at Tesh's low-key appraisal of his work. The producers of the syndicated "Entertainment Tonight," which Tesh co-anchors, would surely praise Tesh's charm and easy wit before the camera. Thousands of music lovers and sports fans gave their support by purchasing the composer's stirring soundtrack for TV coverage of the 1987 Tour de France bicycle race. NBC Sports has given Tesh a double vote of confidence by hiring him to provide on-air commentary for events like gymnastics, synchronized swimming and cycling in the network's coverage of the 1992 Olympics in Barcelona, Spain, as well as to compose several musical pieces to accompany footage of the Games. Since 1983, the Academy of Television Arts & Sciences has recognized Tesh with an armload of Emmy Awards.

Tesh regularly maintains a tight schedule, balancing the daily taping schedule of "E.T." with afternoons and evenings spent composing, recording or simply practicing the piano, a habit dating back to his childhood in Garden City, N.Y.

"I don't get a lot of sleep, ordinarily," he admits, and says his schedule has only intensified with his dual Olympic duties. Still, Tesh meets his career's demands with equal parts eagerness and philosophy: "I like the chaos. I let my life go in the direction it wants to."

While attending North Carolina State University, Tesh had dual majors in music and communications ("My dad said to study something so I could make some money") and landed a job as a local news anchor before he graduated. Subsequent jobs took Tesh to Florida, Tennessee and New York, and an Associated Press award for investigative reporting seemed to confirm his career as a newsman. Then came the call from CBS Sports.

"I took what I felt was a big chance and it changed my life," Tesh says of his move into network sports. Besides increased exposure (and income), Tesh saw another opportunity. "I tried to use television to expose my music," he admits, and the gamble paid off, first in 1983, with his theme for the Pan American Games, and then with the Tour de France.

Following cutbacks at CBS, Tesh accepted an offer from "Entertainment Tonight" and was readily accepted by co-workers and audiences alike. Simultaneously, his musical career was growing, with works like the theme for Fox's animated "Bobby's World," some film soundtracks and appearances with several symphony orchestras. On television, Tesh was rewarded with his own daytime interview show on NBC, "One on One."

The fall of 1991 brought a grand offer from NBC Sports to both cover and score the '92 Olympics. "I realize this could be a once-in-a-lifetime chance for me," Tesh says. Never claiming to be a sports expert, Tesh feels, "It's all about knowing how to do the homework. The athletes are the real stories."

Tesh also says that his twin Olympic responsibilities, reporting and composing, have a vital cross-pollinating effect. "Sports are very passionate. So is music. The translation is easy."

The music for the Olympics is collected on an album titled "The Games," available on Tesh's GTS label. The work contains nine tracks, including two arrangements of "Concetta," written for Tesh's wife, actress Connie Selleca, whom he wed last April. In December, Tesh is releasing an album of Christmas music. "Stuff you could decorate the tree to," he says. And after that?

"A little sleep, maybe."

On Monday, July 13, The Discovery Channel revisits the Last of America's Classic Ballparks. This program takes a retrospective look at the early days of the sport with a profile of 19th-century major league ballparks still standing. Over on ESPN, a same-day tape of the Upper Deck Old-Timers Game is followed by live coverage of Major League Baseball's 1992 All-Star Gala, with Chris Berman as host of the festivities on the eve of the All-Star Game. And HBO debuts When It Was a Game II, the sequel to its acclaimed tribute to baseball's golden age. In addition to rare footage and interviews with Hall of Famers, celebrities such as Jason Robards contribute readings.

Tuesday, July 14, is the big day, however. First journey through baseball's illustrious past on The Discovery Channel with The Glory of Their Times. Written, produced and directed by Bud Greenspan, the official filmmaker of the Olympics, this documentary of America's pastime between the years of 1896 and 1916 recalls the heyday of diamond heroes such as Ty Cobb, Honus Wagner, Jim Thorpe and Babe Ruth. Immediately following on CBS is the All-Star Game, live from San Diego, Calif.

BITS AND PIECES

Comedy Challenge from 'Tonight'; 'Today' goes to Africa

Calling all comedians. NBC is ready to launch the Tonight Show With Jay Leno Comedy Challenge, a competition created exclusively for the network's 208 affiliates that is the first national TV promotion with no national sponsor. According to network executive Alan Cohen, "It's a great way to establish a mutually beneficial relationship with a local sponsor and create an added awareness for the station in its market."

Each affiliate will hold its own comedy contest and send a tape of the winning performance to The Tonight Show by the end of the year. The grand prize winner gets (what else?) a guest-shot on The Tonight Show and will join the ranks of such comedians as Jerry Seinfeld, Roseanne Arnold and Jay Leno himself who got their first big break on the late-night venue.

Jay Leno

Casting its bread upon the waters, the Corporation for Public Broadcasting has announced its support of eight major productions in the general program and drama categories. The projects in development include Reverse Angle, a one-hour program on racial fear in America; In the Mix, a weekly news and information series for teens; and Strike, a series based on the 1988 strike of the New York Daily News.

Morning will begin in another time zone for watchers of NBC's Today in November. The morning news staple is set for six live broadcasts from Africa beginning Friday, Nov. 13. From three locations in Zimbabwe, Today will report on the people, politics and problems of the entire continent. To minimize some of the complex logistical difficulties, anchor Bryant Gumbel will go to Africa ahead of time (during Today's pre-emption by the Olympics) with five crews to tape portions of the footage to be used in November.

Friday on CBS, Maury Povich talks with some of America's richest citizens in Forbes 400.

Defending champion Ian Baker-Finch will compete in the British Open, Saturday on ABC.

CABLE NEWS

Sandra throws a party; baseball's past recalled

By Dan Rice

Things could really heat up when the sun goes down on Friday, July 17, that's the debut date for Sandra After Dark on HBO. Loosely modeled after Hugh Hefner's old Playboy After Dark, this adults-only hour of comedy, talk and music has the controversial actress-comedian Sandra Bernhard as party wrangler for a lineup of Hollysweird guests including Rip Taylor, Timothy Leary, Tom Jones, and, of course, Roseanne and Tom Arnold.

Want another spoof? Here's one on variety shows. Martin Mull: Talent Takes a Holiday, premiering Saturday, July 18, on Showtime, Mull, who spoofed talk shows in Fernwood 2-Night, welcomes a parade of acts including Penn & Teller.

No diamonds in the rough, these are the Last of America's Classic Ballparks. Airing Monday, July 13, on The Discovery Channel, this tribute to the remaining major league parks built in the 19th century features archival footage and interviews reliving the glory of Chicago's Wrigley Field and Comiskey Park, Tiger Stadium in Detroit, and Boston's Fenway Park. TDC stays with the sport on Tuesday, July 14, with an airing of Bud Greenspan's documentary The Glory of Their Times. This award-winning profile of baseball between 1896 and 1916 recalls the heyday of Ty Cobb, Honus Wagner, Jim Thorpe and Babe Ruth.

Albert Dieudonne plays the title role in Abel Gance's 1927 silent epic, Napoleon, airing Tuesday on Bravo.

SOAP TALK

'Y&R' fan tired of stale plots

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: What has happened to The Young and the Restless? It has been my favorite soap for so many years. I used to plan my day around it, in fact. My mother, who lives in Minnesota, and I used to call each other long distance and talk about the interesting and exciting things that happened on the soap, but Ma Bell is losing money on us this year.

It has become so boring, so inane, so lacking in story line, that I'm very close to giving it up altogether. The only story that was vaguely interesting was the one involving Sheila, but that dragged on forever.

In the past, there have always been at least a couple of interesting stories going on simultaneously. The stories would be fun to watch and would certainly get your attention. Did all the writers die? Please help save our show! —Sheila Propheter, San Rafael, Calif.

Dear Reader: I assure you the writers did not die, though I see how you might think that. Take heart; this summer will be full of surprises. Some story lines that are heating up include: the Victor and Nikki reconciliation (we knew these two couldn't stay apart for long); Olivia's pregnancy and the complication of having cancer; Dru will be involved in some crazy things; Paul, Lauren and Scott will have some funny and not-so-funny times in the near future; and the Victoria/Ryan/Nina love triangle could prove interesting.

Dear Candace: I enjoy The Bold and the Beautiful. Please give me information on the actress who portrays Felicia Forrester, the cutting-edge fashion designer. —Timothy Way, Earle, Ark.

Dear Reader: Colleen Dion was born in upstate New York and grew up in Chicago. Her first role was in the daytime drama Search for Tomorrow, after which she appeared on Loving for 18 months. She had parts in the feature films Fatal Charm and Lucas, and was cast in the role of Felicia Forrester on B&B in December 1989. Dion and her husband, whom she married after dating for only a couple of weeks, live in Los Angeles.

Send your comments to Candace Havens, Soap Talk, P.O. Box 961009, Fort Worth, Texas, 76161-1009.

LET'S TALK

Who's Dinky's fella?; music with a 'Mission'

By Taylor Michaels

Q: I'm a big fan of Winona Ryder, and I just saw Welcome Home, Roxy Carmichael. I was wondering, who is the guy who falls in love with her in this movie? Where can I write to him and her? —Kelly Windham, Gary, Texas.

A: Thomas Wilson Brown, who played wigged-out surfer dude Gerald Howells to Winona's Dinky Bossetti, can be reached in care of Century Artists, Ltd., 9744 Wilshire Blvd. Suite 308, Beverly Hills, Calif., 90212. Write to Ryder just up the road in care of CAA, 9830 Wilshire Blvd., Beverly Hills, Calif., 90212.

Winona Ryder

Q: This goes back a few years, but I would like to know the title of the spirited and moving theme music of the movie The Mission — the melody that is chanted by a mixed chorale as the opening title and credits are rolling. It sounds as if it could be from an old classical piece or opera, but I can't place it. Where can I get the the soundtrack of this movie? —Noma Paige, Deer Lodge, Mont.

A: The title of the specific opening piece of which you write is "On Earth As It Is in Heaven," from the original musical score by Ennio Morricone.

For an obvious music buff like yourself, this name should ring some bells. Morricone became famous for his highly original and influential scores for director Sergio Leone's famed "spaghetti westerns," most of which starred the young Clint Eastwood. Morricone's compositions included the haunting music for The Good, the Bad and the Ugly. His brilliant musical touch has been in demand ever since.

The very first record store I called had it on tape, so I'm sure you can easily find it.

Q: Many years ago there was a sitcom starring Ida Lupino and Howard Duff. Could you tell me the name of the show? —C.E.P., Ironwood, Mich.

A: That show was Mr. Adams and Eve, a situation comedy that ran from Jan. 4, 1957, to Sept. 23, 1958. Duff and Lupino played wedded movie stars whose private life was a three-ring circus. Many of the domestic squabblings were written directly from reality, as Lupino and Duff were actually married during the show's short run.

Q: I once watched a movie about two preteen girls living in New York. I'm hoping you can tell me the name of the movie and whether or not it's available on video or if it's being shown on TV. I'm pretty sure that Peter Sellers was one of the actors in it. He played a concert pianist, and one of the girls developed a crush on him. I'd like very much to see this movie again. —Sherma Ramsey, Burley, Idaho.

A: The movie of which you write is The World of Henry Orient, released in 1964. It's an absolutely winning film, as you mentioned, about two young girls (played by Tippy Walker and Merrie Spaeth) who follow pianist Sellers everywhere. Tom Bosley and Angela Lansbury lend fine support. The film is available on videotape, and any well-stocked video store should have a copy.

Q: If possible, I would like the Chicago Bulls' fan-mail address. —LaKisha White, Brooksville, Miss.

A: Da address for Da Bulls is an increasingly hot topic among Let's Talk readers, including Amy Johnson of Paynesville, W. Va., the self-proclaimed "biggest fan" of No. 33, Scottie Pippen. (Sorry, Michael.) You may write the team members in care of Chicago Bulls, One Magnificent Mile, 960 N. Michigan Ave., Suite 1600, Chicago, Ill., 60611.

Send your questions to Let's Talk, Features Dept., P.O. Box 961009, Fort Worth, Texas, 76161-1009. Please send no return envelopes; questions can be answered only within this column.
