Canton eyes own arts council

Canton Township wants to start an arts council that will plan activities for children and adults. But at the same time, the township wants to make sure it doesn't step on the toes of the Plymouth Arts Council.

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

If you're interested in the arts and the township's cultural health, you might be just what's needed for Canton.

"Our intent is to start out small and build a good grassroots effort," said Elaine Kirchgatter, township treasurer, who is spearheading the creation of a new cultural committee called Project Arts.

The effort is not intended to duplicate or overlap services offered by the Plymouth Community Arts Council. "I happen to think there's enough room in the greater Canton community for more than one group to enrich our lives," said Tom Yack, township supervisor.

Kirchgatter said she met with the Plymouth arts group and informed it of the newest effort. "I wanted them to know what our plans are in general. I want it to be a cooperative venture with them. We will try to avoid duplication and complement each other," she said.

What Kirchgatter and Yack have in mind is six to eight residents, or even non-residents who work in Canton, who would meet — with a $5,000 budget — and develop cultural arts programs for residents "from toddlers through seniors."

In the short term, programs would be planned for Heritage Park's am-

Opponents vow battle over airport

BY KEVIN BROWN

Mettetal Airport opponents say they're determined to keep fighting the state's plan to buy the airport on the Plymouth-Canton limit.

"How much louder does the public have to speak on this?" asked Bob Zaetta, a leader of the Plymouth Township Concerned Citizens group formed two years ago to fight the airport purchase.

He and other airport opponents expressed frustration at the state's continued effort to have government run the airport — an effort that in the past two years generated significant opposition in greater Plymouth.

But one prominent airport opponent conceded that pro-airport forces may have finally won the battle, which airport foes appeared to have

If you get a kick out of going to the library, you'll soon get an even bigger — and much easier — kick when the Canton Public Library's new computer is up and running.

"Immediately, patrons will notice color terminals," said library director Jean Tabor.

The stand-alone, self-automated system called Innovative Interfaces or INNOVAC, replaces the former system, GEAC, that Canton shared with 67 members of the Wayne-Oakland Library Federation, an inter-library system.

Edison will bury wires along Warren Road

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Some northwest Canton residents were wondering what was going on when they noticed identification flags and were contacted by Detroit Edison representatives.

That's when township Supervisor Tom Yack contacted the utility for answers. "If they do the program as they describe it, Ridge Road will remain a beautiful road," Yack said.

Construction of new lines is what's in store for northwest Canton. Specifically, an existing line along the north side of Warren Road would be moved south into a road easement. When the line gets to the intersection of Ridge and Warren roads, Detroit Edison will be faced with a choice.

The first option would place the line along the east side of Ridge Road. The second would place it along the west side of Ridge to Cheshire Lane, where the line would join the existing deep right of way line on the west. The line from Ridge and Warren would get new conductors and a third wire.

"We encouraged them to go on the west side of the (Ridge) road," Yack said. "They claim this will meet their needs and avoid a canopied roadway."

According to Jim Connelly, manager of Detroit Edison's Wayne-Monroe division, the construction, which is still in the planning stages, is a reliability project. "We're trying to improve the level of service," he said, referring to the Joy and Warren roads area along Ridge.

The planned construction is part of Detroit Edison's $200 million program to improve service in Wayne and Oakland counties, Connelly said.

Following a meeting with Detroit Edison representatives, Yack sent a letter to homeowners in the northwest area. "We were assured that this plan was developed by Edison so as not to disturb the natural tree canopy along Ridge Road. We were also told that this improvement would deliver enough new capacity to the area that no new improvement would be necessary for many years," he wrote.

Because township officials were not contacted about the planned improvements, Yack said he dusted off the township's franchise agreement. "Before they (Edison) do any work, we can have the board review it. We can just raise issues and questions."

Cops find fleeing driver in woods

COP CALLS

An unidentified man was charged with fleeing and eluding after he was stopped by Canton police for driving without lights on Michigan Avenue on Feb. 14, according to a police report.

When police noticed the car, the officer turned on his lights and the car stopped on Michigan west of Sheldon Road near a wooded area. The man jumped out of his car and ran north into the woods.

Despite commands from the officer to stop, the man continued to run. The officer followed the man's tracks and finally caught up with him and found him lying on the ground north of the nearby Shell gas station. The man, who ran through the wooded area in his stocking feet, complained to police that his feet hurt.

Larcenies reported

The following larcenies were reported to the Canton police:

Cooper wire valued at $520 was reported stolen from a construction site on Ford Road, Feb. 8.

A VCR, receiver, CD player, portable phone, tuner, and camera, lens and flash valued at more than $2,900 were reported stolen from a house on Deer Trail Drive, Feb. 13.

Fishing gear valued at $1,884 was reported stolen from a garage on Brunswick, Feb. 11.

A golf bag and equipment valued at more than $900 was reported stolen from a garage on Weathersfield Way, Feb. 11.

Thirty-six boxes of Tylenol valued at $128.64 were reported stolen off a shelf at Hop-In, 45230 Michigan Ave., Feb. 13.

Deputy shoots suspect

A man suspected in an attempted theft from a Salem Township tire business was in stable condition Tuesday after being shot by a Washtenaw County sheriff's deputy.

Events leading to the shooting opened at 11:43 p.m. Monday when the sheriff's department was called by an employee of the Midwest Tire Co. on Chubb Road, according to the department.

The caller told authorities he saw a vehicle pull around the back of the business and he heard people walking around. The caller said he suspected that they intended to steal tires.

A sheriff's department unit responded to the call and arrived at 12:06 a.m. Tuesday. "Events unfolded rapidly and gunfire occurred," according to the sheriff's department.

While one suspect was shot, "two others fled the scene," the department reported.

The suspect shot in the theft is a white man in his early 20s, said sheriff's department Commander Mark Ptaszek. The suspect is in custody at St. Joseph Hospital.

"The Michigan State Police, at the request of the sheriff department, is conducting an investigation into the shooting portion of the incident," according to the sheriff's department.

Ptaszek said his department had no further details on the incident, as details were being compiled by the state police.

State police are investigating the incident.

Meanwhile, State Rep. Jerry Vorva, R-Plymouth — generally supported in his November election bid by airport opponents — said state aeronautics officials should convene a public hearing to hear from the public.

That's part of the message Vorva delivered to state Bureau of Aeronautics officials on Friday.

Former U.S. Congressman Carl Pursell of Plymouth suggests the same, and he's recommending that a five- to nine-member task force from the community "review all options regarding Mettetal Airport" and prepare a final report.

Pursell said his fact finding shows that the Michigan Aeronautics Commission has "clearly stated they will not expand the airport."

But several members of the Plymouth Township Concerned Citizens — the group formed two years ago to fight a government purchase of the airport — say they fear expansion sometime in the future.

Airport opponents say they also fear that local residents could be socked with higher taxes to support the airport, and say local residents could pay more in taxes to settle lawsuits brought against local communities over airport mishaps.

State officials favoring the airport purchase reject these allegations.

"The citizens of Plymouth and Canton believe public ownership of this recreational airport is wrong from a business, financial, environmental and political point of view," according to a letter to Gov. Engler from the Concerned Citizens of Canton and Plymouth.

"This adventure has already cost two Plymouth mayors and two Plymouth Township supervisors their positions," the group maintains. The letter is signed by Plymouth city commissioner William McAninch, Zaetta, and Joseph Aninos of Canton.

"Over 5,600 voters in Canton, Plymouth and Plymouth Township have signed petitions opposing government ownership of Mettetal Airport," the letter continued.

Zaetta said the opponents of the effort to have government own the airport will seek to influence state officials before it's too late.

"What we're trying to do is convince the governor and other political operatives that this is not in the public interest," Zaetta said.

"We are deeply, deeply disappointed by their attempt to slip this thing through with no foreknowledge to the communities. We are encouraging people to write letters and call the governor and state representatives," Zaetta said.

Last fall, Plymouth Township and Canton dropped a joint effort to buy the airport with a federal grant then operate it jointly, after the two communities demanded certain stipulations to accepting the grant — including no expansion.

"When the FAA would not agree to the stipulations that Canton and Plymouth (Township) that could mean expansion," Vorva said.

will make life easier for Canton library patrons, but it will in effect disconnect the library from the WOLF system.

Canton is among seven libraries — Farmington, Rochester, Southfield, Birmingham, Bloomfield and Independence Township — that want to leave WOLF and form their own organization, Metro Net.

The library will boast 44 new terminals, plus four dial-in lines, on which you can communicate with INNOVAC from your home if you have a personal computer, said Claire McLaughlin, director of technical services.

"You can't do that with GEAC," McLaughlin said.

INNOVAC's features

INNOVAC will feature all of the Canton library's holdings. On the GEAC system, patrons could punch the keys and find the book they wanted but then find it was in another library.

For patrons, INNOVAC will speed up the process of looking for materials. More often than not, GEAC — which searched a 60-library system — was slow and the terminal screens complicated. "This system is so user friendly that they really don't need our help," Tabor said.

INNOVAC will show an accurate status of materials that GEAC did not. "It will show when a book will be back. Holds will be faster and people can get their books faster," Tabor said.

Patrons also will be able to make suggestions to librarians over the system. "We will come and answer them," Tabor said.

INNOVAC is expected to make life easier for library patrons. When searching for materials, the system will tell the patron the correct word search and will give you options when you can recall only part of a book title, McLaughlin said.

For library officials, INNOVAC will come in handy to provide statistical information. "It keeps track of continuous activity and does graphs of it," Tabor said.

WOLF vs Metro Net

No doubt INNOVAC is a step toward Canton's independence of WOLF and membership with Metro Net. Officials with the Metro Net libraries believe WOLF is no longer serving their needs. Key issues in wanting to leave WOLF center on the seven libraries' ability to stand on their own thanks to the individual computer systems, as well as strong financial support from local taxes.

The seven Net libraries are getting a fight over their intended break away from the federation. In November, 1992, WOLF board members voted to dispute the move and asked Library of Michigan officials to step in.

State library officials will try to negotiate a solution by late April before the issue reaches the legislative council of the state Legislature, which makes a final decision.

"They can't stop us from leaving WOLF," Tabor said.

Also key in the dispute is the distribution of state aid and the fact that the larger libraries, with their greater financing to WOLF, have no more voice in the federation than do the smaller libraries.

If Metro Net is formed, WOLF will lose $350,000 in state aid. If Metro Net is not formed, but the seven libraries stand alone, WOLF will lose $150,000 in aid.

Indian music: Brad Schopieray of Central Middle School tries playing the tabla, a traditional Indian instrument.

Enlightening

Indian music expands kids' horizons

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Central Middle School social studies teachers Gail McMahon, Joe Borg and Julia Herman did more than show the movie "Gandhi" and read from textbooks while enlightening their social studies students about India this week.

It took some doing, but they located Rajan Sachdeva, one of just a handful of individuals in the United States who play the sitar, a sleek, Indian instrument fashioned from a hollowed gourd, rosewood and mother-of-pearl. The 22-string instrument originated 3,000 years ago.

Students were treated Monday to a performance by Sachdeva, who hails from the Jammu and Kashmir State of India, and his friend and student, Samir Shah. Shah, a 10th-grader at Bloomfield Hills Andover High School, plays the tabla. The two met at Sachdeva at the Bhartiya Temple in Troy.

The tabla is a hand-held drum, handmade with wood and metal. Tablas have been played in India for 600 years.

Teachers and students alike were thoroughly entertained as the musicians sat shoeless and cross-legged atop a teacher's desk and played classical native tunes. Sachdeva took off one of his socks before playing the sitar, the base of which rests on the foot when played. With a sock on, the instrument tends to slide off the player's foot.

Borg was impressed with Sachdeva's skill. "It took him seven years of practicing seven or eight hours a day to learn to play," said Borg, adding that Sachdeva earned a doctoral degree in the sitar while living in his homeland.

Sachdeva said Indian and Western music use the same scale. But because a sitar's frets, unlike a guitar's, are curved, you can play quarter-tones and up to five notes on a single fret. The sitar is played without using chords.

New pastor believes church should be fun

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

He eats hamburgers and sloppy joes. He sings, he laughs and he loves to talk. He's just a regular guy.

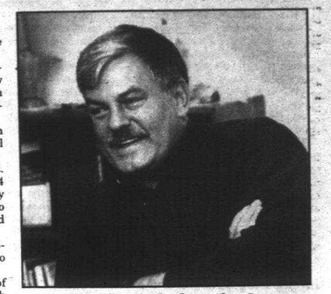
"I'm going to have people laughing and joking before Mass," said the Rev. C. Richard Kelly, the new pastor at St. Thomas a Becket Catholic Church on Lilley Road in Canton. "You've got to relate to people before you can lead them to the Lord."

And that's just what Kelly plans to do. "When people come to church on the weekends, they will have fun. They will leave with a smile."

The 48-year-old priest comes to Canton from St. Francis Xavier Parish in Ecorse where he spent 14 years. Actually, between Ecorse and Canton, Kelly went on a one-year sabbatical where he traveled to El Salvador, Mexico, Hawaii, the Philippines and California.

"Actually, today I report to work," he said Thursday. "I gave up four months of my sabbatical to come here."

A pastoral installation when a representative of Detroit Archbishop Adam Maida visits the church is expected to make Kelly's arrival in Canton all the more official. Kelly is replacing the Rev. Ernest Porcari, who went to Northville.



BILL BRESLER/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

The Rev. C. Richard Kelly: "You've got to relate to people before you can lead them to the Lord."

Home from Desert Storm

And for the record, he prefers to be called Kelly. The C. in his name stands for Charles, which he shares with his father. And he's spent a lifetime struggling with the various nicknames for his other name, Richard.

Believe it or not, Kelly — like in any other profession — applied for the pastorship of St. Thomas a Becket. His good racket ball playing friend, the Rev. George Charnley, is at St. John Neumann Catholic Church on Warren Road.

"I always told him, 'if the other place in Canton opens up, let me know,' " Kelly recalled. "Part of my family — a niece and sister — is moving out this way."

He expects to be in Canton at least six years. He can then renew his post for another six years. That is of course if there isn't another war. That's right. In the early 1980s, a friend talked Kelly into joining the Michigan National Guard. "He came to me and said, 'I need help,' "

Kelly figured he used to like the outdoors, so why not join. "He promised me I would never have to leave Michigan. He lied," Kelly said.

He lied all right. Kelly was the only Catholic reserve chaplain from Michigan in Desert Storm. His unit, the 210 Military Police, had the job of patrolling and securing highways during the short war against Iraq.

Maybe you saw him on local television. He was interviewed before he went and nine months later when he returned. On the weekends he celebrated 11 masses for the soldiers — nine on Sundays, two on Saturdays. And he had plenty of counseling appointments.

"They want to make it right before God before a SCUD hits them in the head," Kelly said. "I was glad to be a chaplain. I found out how important it was to be a chaplain in the army."

For a couple weeks each summer, you won't see Kelly. He'll be up in Grayling for the annual two weeks training. But other than that, Kelly plans to be a constant presence in Canton, especially in his chosen church.

Humor is his style

"My style is humor. I'm Irish. I like to sing. And I'm really not shy," said the priest whose first parish assignment was at St. Mary's of Redford, followed by three years at St. Thomas Aquinas, Detroit.

Westland building fire probed

An arsonist set fire to a Westland industrial building, causing extensive damage and resulting in minor injuries to two firefighters, fire officials said.

The fire was at the Howard Ternes Packing Corp., in an industrial park south and east of Cherry Hill and Newburgh.

The fire marshal's office is investigating the blaze which was in an area in which cardboard boxes were stored, said George Riley, battalion chief/public education division.

He said the blaze started Wednesday night, Feb. 10, forcing the evacuation of the building. It was also closed the next day for the company's 250 employees, Riley said.

There was a lot of smoke which caused extensive damage to the building, he added.

The building's sprinkler system helped control the damage, which was extensive, Riley said.

"The sprinkler system held the fire in check until the fire department arrived," he pointed out.

Riley added that the heavy amount of smoke "was a real problem" for firefighters.

Book luncheon helps libraries

An Ann Arbor writer of a novel set in Northern Ireland, James Hynes, will speak at a book and author luncheon on Tuesday, March 9, at the Novi Civic Center.

The seventh annual luncheon is sponsored by the Friends of the Northville, Novi, Plymouth and Canton Libraries for the benefit of the libraries.

Hynes' book, "The Wild Colonial Boy," revolves around a Detroit college student who inadvertently is caught up in a splinter group of the Irish Republican Army.

A Michigan native, Hynes is an assistant professor in the English Department of the University of Michigan and a member of the Society of Fellows. An alumnus of Michigan with a bachelor's degree in philosophy, Hynes went on to attend the Writers' Workshop at the University of Iowa, where he received a master of fine arts degree in 1989.

Hynes has received a number of honors, including a Hopwood Award from U-M, a grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts, a Michener Fellowship from the Iowa Writers' Workshop, and the Adult Literature Prize from the Friends of American Literature.

"The Wild Colonial Boy" was praised by The Washington Post, New York Times, Chicago Tribune, Los Angeles Times and The New Yorker when it was published in 1990. It's available at local libraries and book stores. Hynes has a novel-in-progress set on Easter Island, tentatively titled "The Center of the World."

In addition to fiction, Hynes writes book reviews for The Washington Post and In These Times, and television criticism for Mother Jones, the Utne Reader, In These Times and the Michigan Voice.

The noon luncheon will be catered by Home Sweet Home, with seating available from 11:30 a.m.

Tickets are $12 apiece. Tables for eight may be reserved by buying tickets together at any of the four libraries. Checks are to be made out to Friends of the Northville Public Library, Inc. No tickets will be sold after Wednesday, March 3, nor will they be sold at the door.

The Novi Civic Center is located at 45175 W. 10 Mile Road. For additional information, call 349-7502 or 348-6543.

Innocent teacher wants to return to classroom

By M.B. Dillon
Staff Writer

Now that veteran Plymouth-Canton teacher Bob Gale has been found not guilty of hitting a third grader, he says he hopes to return to his classroom at Farrand Elementary.

Whether he will remains uncertain.

A six-person jury found Gale not guilty of charges of karate chopping an 8-year-old student after he tattled on a fellow student Oct. 1.

Gale, who is on medical leave, was reassigned as a substitute teacher after the incident. The teachers' union grieved the involuntary transfer, and the matter is pending.

"I kind of hope I go back to my old classroom," said Gale, who passed a lie detector test after Alexander Parsons and his mother, Jeanne Parsons, filed a police report Oct. 11 claiming Gale hit Alex.

"What could be greater exoneration than for them to say, 'We have all the confidence in the world in you, and you have a perfect record with us?'"

Errol Goldman, the district's executive director for employee relations, said Gale hasn't told the district he'd like his position back, and that whether Gale will return to Farrand is undetermined.

But, Goldman said, "the educational impact and what's best for students and Mr. Gale" will have to be considered before any decision is made.

"That doesn't make any sense to me. What is educational impact?" asked Maryann Ligato-Freydl, who represents Plymouth-Canton teachers as executive director of the Michigan Education Association.

"We have a kid who makes something up about a teacher. Does that mean it's going to impact negatively so we have to take a teacher out of that building? That makes absolutely no sense to me."

Gale hasn't yet told the union he wants his position back. But if he does, "he's absolutely entitled to it," she said.

"There is no provision in the contract for (removing him)."

Ligato-Freydl couldn't believe Gale's case went to court in the first place.

"It's appalling to me the way Plymouth Township handled this. I have never seen one of these things go this far," she said.

"It is my understanding that in cases like this, the prosecutor isn't going to jump on the bandwagon. It just boggles my mind that anyone could believe Bob Gale would give a kid a karate chop, knock him to the floor and knock the breath out of him and no one would talk about it until two weeks later. That I can't buy.

"Bob passed a lie detector test. Why wouldn't the prosecutor just drop it given the results? That's done all the time."

Teachers in the district are scared it could happen to them.

Chuck Portelli, president of the Plymouth-Canton Education Association, said the district's policy apparently is that a teacher is guilty until proven innocent.

"We have to prove they are innocent. Administration didn't even know the trial was today. No one called him," Portelli said the day of Gale's trial. What happened to a second teacher recently is further evidence that teachers "just don't get the support of the district," he added. In December, a laid-off teacher substituting at the high school struck a student after the student hit him.

"They wouldn't allow him to work during the time they were investigating," said Portelli. Canton police dismissed charges against the teacher, who also coached.

Kelly admits he loved his parish in Ecorse. But there came a time to leave and Desert Storm made it a bit easier. "I felt like I had done all I could do. Things were getting too easy," he said about his former parish.

Kelly has his goals lined up for the new parish. "I want to find out what this community is all about and how I can serve what they need and shape our idea of church." Kelly's ideas about what church is are pretty simple: "God's people doing the gospel the best way they know how; doing it together; living life; and realizing that Jesus is the center of that life. It's also knowing, belonging and becoming the family of God you're called to be."

His plans

One of the ways he plans to communicate with his parishioners is through his dog. He doesn't have one yet. But he's going to get one. While in Ecorse, he wrote a column for the church newsletter under his dog's name, Rugby. That made it easier to say some of the things he thought needed to be said.

"It's a lot like Charlie McCarthy," Kelly said, adding that Rugby is no longer with us. He did get a dog after Desert Storm, which he named Scud. But some friends fell in love with Scud and Kelly gave him up.

Before too long — this past weekend at his first masses to be exact — Kelly plans to have parishioners laughing, singing and joking.

phitheater and gazebo. Such programming would supplement those programs offered by the township recreation department, Yack said.

In the long term, sights would be set on programming for the proposed community center.

"I could see going to the community for money for specific projects in the future," Kirchgatter said.

Craft activities, puppet shows in the gazebo, and barber-shop quartets are some of the possible activities. An artist-in-residence program, art in the park and concerts by the Plymouth Community Band also are possibilities.

"My hope is they will be emphasizing volunteer groups," Yack said, suggesting Canton host its own jazz festival.

For the upcoming summer, Kirchgatter said she expects perhaps one or two programs for the amphitheater and three or four for the gazebo.

"We just want to advance the arts," Yack said, adding that Canton is coming into its own and that it's time for an arts council.

"I have a feeling we're going to touch a population and get interested individuals in Canton who wouldn't have contacted the Plymouth (arts) council," Yack said.

She plans to talk with the community center's architect — to be hired at the township board's regular Feb. 23 meeting — to incorporate a sculpture into the design of the building.

Residents with an interest in advancing cultural arts in Canton are asked to call Kirchgatter at 397-5571, or write to her at 1150 S. Canton Center Road, by the third week of March.

Engler urges suburban schools to cut labor costs

By Tim Richard
Staff Writer

Suburban school districts should stop giving double-digit pay increases and learn to control costs, says Gov. John Engler.

The first-term governor is under fire — especially in suburban districts — for pushing a bill to cut school property taxes 20 percent with no mechanism in place for state reimbursement. Engler's plan was bitterly assailed in the Senate Taxation Committee by suburban superintendents, some of whom fear losing a quarter of their budgets.

High-price education isn't necessarily better education, Engler said. He doesn't accept the notion that southeastern Michigan's price level has to be higher than the rest of the state's.

Here is the text of this newspaper's exclusive interview.

Q. Your name is being taken in vain among a lot of out-of-formula school districts and school boards, Republican-voting areas like Bloomfield Hills, Birmingham and Livonia, on your proposed 20 percent property tax cut. They're up in arms. If you were a school board member in an out-of-formula district facing a 20 percent cut in revenue, what would you do?

Engler: "I would stop giving double-digit pay increases over a period of two or three years.

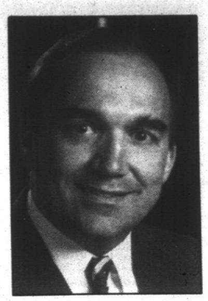
"And I would, in some cases, look at the state (average) millage, which is now 36 mills, and conclude that if my mills were at 24, as one of those districts mentioned is (Bloomfield Hills), it might be fair to go back to the voters and ask them for more mills."

Q. That defeats the purpose of cutting the property tax (to lower costs and make the state economically competitive).

Engler: "It achieves one important purpose. It lets the voters, the taxpayers, make the decision rather than the tax assessor.

"Today the critical friend of the school budget is the assessor, and often the most irrelevant person is the taxpayer. We'd like to reverse those priorities.

"Also a question that needs to be looked at is how much money — what ultimately would be the per-student expenditure when some schools' cost per student is approaching what it would cost in the finest private schools? Are we getting close to the point — is $8,000 enough? Will $10,000 per student —



Gov. John Engler control your costs

"We know that when we assess performance, there's no correlation between what we spend per student and the result in the classroom."

Q. Their argument would be that in southeast Michigan you have a cost structure that's 22 percent higher than the rest of the state. Construction is that much higher. Hospitalization costs are 18-percent higher. (Teacher) salaries are 22 percent higher. The whole cost structure is higher than the rest of the state.

Engler: "That is an excuse, not an answer. And it certainly isn't an explanation.

"They've negotiated the contracts that they're now having difficulty affording. They may well have to go back and review their practices. Many of them administratively are two and three times the cost of comparably-sized schools. That all has to be examined.

"Every business in one of those school districts paying taxes has had to re-examine practices with an eye toward managing money better. Virtually every homeowner has had to examine the family budget with an eye toward managing the money.

"Michigan education has been protected in the budgets I have proposed. As a result we have moved up dramatically in national ranking in education, but we never reach adequacy, to hear some schools talk.

"I support quality education, and I support the maximum accountability for our schools. That's one of the reasons I announced there will be a governor's report card on all schools in the state — so that every parent, regardless of where he or she lives, can compare their own school to any other school and judge for themselves the results and measure the return on investment."

Q. A group of 14 state representatives from both parties is pushing a reform plan to get schools off the property tax — reduce it by half — and shift to an income tax, with allowance for the voters to replace the income tax later with a sales tax increase. What's your feeling about that movement?

Engler: "First of all, there has to be a choice made: Is it to eliminate the property tax and replace it with an income tax, or to replace the property tax with the sales tax? I mean, I don't see one as being an intermediary step along the road to the other. They'll have to make a choice.

"I'm willing to look at that proposal as possibly meritorious for a spot on the ballot and give the public a choice. I've always believed there's nothing wrong with giving people options. We did that with Proposal C. That was rejected. Many other proposals have met a similar fate. But I'm an optimist. I'm willing to keep on trying."

Driver education registration set

Registration for the Plymouth-Canton Community School District's summer driver education program will be 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, March 27, in the Canton High School cafeteria.

Registration is scheduled based on the student's birth date. Students whose birth dates fall between Aug. 11, 1975, and April 1, 1978, may register for driver education this summer. March 27 will be the only registration day for driver education.

Students cannot register before their scheduled time period. The following is a schedule of registration times according to student birth dates:

- 8 a.m. — Aug. 11, 1975, to April 30, 1977;
- 9 a.m. — May 1, 1977, to July 31, 1977;
- 10 a.m. — Aug. 1, 1977, to Oct. 31, 1977;
- 11 a.m. — Nov. 1, 1977, to Dec. 31, 1977;
- noon — Jan. 1, 1978, to March 31, 1978;
- 1 p.m. — April 1, 1978, to July 19, 1978.

Students should pick up a registration form in the general office of Canton or Salem high schools. Forms must be returned when registering on March 27.

There is no charge for the program. Students are required to purchase a workbook for the course at a cost of $14. This fee is payable at the time of registration.

Session one of driver education will be held June 21 to July 16. Session two will be held July 19 to Aug. 12.

For more information on driver education, call 451-6600 Ext. 347

Backers say school plan is real tax reform, no gimmicks

BY SUSAN ROSIEK
STAFF WRITER

A package of 10 bills introduced last week in the state House will cut property taxes and still pay for public schools, according to supporters of the plan, which includes state Rep. William Keith, D-Garden City.

The legislation, drafted by "Team 14," a bipartisan group of House lawmakers, proposes to cut local school operating taxes by 50 percent, saving homeowners and farmers $300 million statewide.

To do that, lawmakers would raise the state income tax from 4.6 percent to 6 percent but cushion that by raising the personal exemption from $2,100 to $3,000.

Taxing options

The legislative package also includes a resolution authorizing an initiative to give voters in November 1994 the option of increasing the state sales tax from 4 percent to 6 percent.

That would allow the state to roll back the income tax to 4.6 percent or totally eliminate school operating property taxes on homes and farms, backers say.

Rep. Susan Grimes Munsell, R-Howell and a Team 14 member, said the plan particularly would help ease the property tax burden on retirees living on fixed incomes.

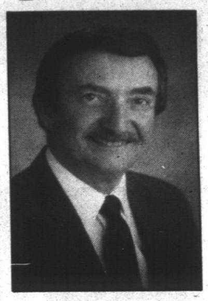
"Michigan's reliance on the antiquated property tax system has been especially hard on our elderly," Munsell said.

The new plan offers no tax cut to businesses. Lawmakers said an earlier version would have cut taxes on commercial property, but required an increase in the state's single business tax to offset that cut, which businesses fiercely opposed.

"They (business) said 'leave us alone, you've done enough to us already,'" said Keith, who is co-chair of the House education committee.

Key elements

A key provision of the tax/finance reform package would make residential and agricultural property exempt from local school operating millages, which would drop to 17 mills in 1993 and 1994 and to 16 mills in 1995.



■ 'It's (Team 14) the only proposal that addresses the issue of a property tax cut and school finance reform.'

Rep. Bill Keith
D-Garden City

Those taxes would be levied by an "education financing authority," which supporters said would give school districts flat state grants of roughly $4,700 per pupil, leaving them with more time to concentrate on course development.

Communities wanting to spend more on their schools still would have the option of asking voters to create or increase a local income tax. But districts who ended up spending more than twice the state's per-pupil average would be penalized through a cut in their basic grant.

The financing authority would be subject to the current law calculation for Headlee rollbacks for local property taxes, but there would be no voter overrides.

"Out of formula" or so-called wealthier districts would have two years to adjust their financial picture before the state would intervene under the new plan.

The House package rivals Gov. John Engler's plan to cut school operating property taxes by 20 percent over three years. Engler's bill was approved by a near party-line vote 19-17 last Wednesday despite bitter opposition from educators. It is currently in the House.

Local reaction

Many school officials expressed reservations about the Team 14 legislation. Schools officials in the Redford Union, Livonia and Garden City districts are behind the O/K plan named for former Detroit School Board member David Olmstead and University of Michigan Professor C. Philip Kearney.

The O/K plan calls for limiting school operating taxes to 30 mills and forces the state to reimburse any lost revenue. It does not, however, outline a method to pay for the reimbursement.

Garden City Schools Superintendent Michael Wilmot says the Team 14 plan "doesn't hurt us, but doesn't help us either."

Wilmot said the O/K plan does a better job at "securing the district future."

He called the Team 14 plan an "honest effort to provide a solution to the problem."

Keith, however, said that when school officials realize that there are only two games in town — the Team 14 plan and Gov. Engler's proposal — he believes that some of the support now behind O/K will end up behind the Team 14 plan.

"It's (Team 14) the only proposal that addresses the issue of a property tax cut and school finance reform," said Keith.

Basic grant

Under the Team 14 legislation, the state would guarantee a basic grant amount (if the system were in place today, that basic grant amount would be $4,700).

Area leaders discuss rebuilding government

The system our grandfathers built to eradicate government run by "bosses" has worked so well that it's now choking us, said Philip Power, the owner of Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

"Today we regard that system as fundamentally flawed and not cost effective," Power said, calling government "the largest and clumsiest area in which money is expended for no particular purpose."

■ 'Any time you want to change the nature of government it's amazing to see the forces that are marshaled against you.'

Michael Duggan
Wayne County deputy executive

Power's comments were part of a panel discussion based on the book "Reinventing Government: How The Entrepreneurial Spirit is Transforming the Public Sector From Schoolhouse to Statehouse, City Hall to the Pentagon" by David Osborne and Ted Gaebler. The book suggests that the method of operation of government at all levels should be changed because the taxpayers are not currently well-served by their governments.

Power moderated the discussion, held recently in conjunction with the Observer & Eccentric's annual Journalist of the Year award presentation at the Bentley Center in Livonia. Other panelists included: Oakland University president Sandra Packard, Wayne County deputy executive Michael Duggan and West Bloomfield developer Robert Jones, whose company is currently building houses in Bloomfield Township, Rochester Hills and Plymouth Township.

Duggan, who is the right-hand man of Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara, said he is "a great believer in the principles of this book" and often has to fight the bureaucracy to get good things done.

"Any time you want to change the nature of government it's amazing to see the forces that are marshaled against you," he said.

Duggan included newspapers in that category and said they often put negative spins on essentially good stories and consequently make it harder to get the good things done.

Duggan also talked about the importance to supervisors of setting goals for other workers to aspire to, but Packard said it's harder to do that in a university.

"Historically, tradition has driven mission," she said. "That's no longer true."

Even figuring out who the university's "customers" are isn't easy, Packard said. Is it the students? The property owners? The taxpayers? Or perhaps just an amorphous vision of the future?

Jones, on the other hand, finds it easy to identify his customers in the house-building business. Even his sales staff is authorized to turn potential customers down because "there are certain people that we know we just can't satisfy," Jones said. "We don't want to sell everybody a house."

As for setting goals, it's easy for Jones but not so easy at Oakland University, Packard said, because there are so many different factions in a university and each has its own idea of what the goals should be. "There are a variety of possible outcomes that we could chose to fill," Packard said.

The OU president also said that newspapers sometimes focus too much on the way things get done at the expense of what the results are.

Regarding a current controversy whereby the OU board of trustees has declined to conduct its committee meetings in public, Packard said that newspapers haven't "asked the question of what is the quality of the board's decisions," but rather zero in on technicalities of how public bodies are supposed to conduct themselves.

Republicans bash state board of ed at convention

By Tim Richard

DETROIT — Michigan Republicans endorsed the dumping of the State Board of Education, casting a suspicious eye at sex education and "New Age" religion in the schools.

Delegates to last weekend's state convention in Detroit also asked reform of the teacher tenure law, opposed giving marriage rights to homosexual unions, and elected state and district officers for the next two years.

The attack on the State Board of Education, in place since 1909 and strengthened in the 1963 Michigan Constitution, was a clear victory for state Sen. Gilbert DiNello, R-Macomb County, Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, and the old Pat Robertson wing of the party.

Geake spoke in strong support of DiNello's resolution, which also attacks the Michigan Model for Comprehensive Health Education. DiNello's report accuses the state Department of Education of conducting "an organized campaign to discredit parents" and asked state and federal attorneys general to investigate it. The resolution said public schools violate church-state boundaries by teaching eastern New Age religion and warned against the teaching of "calm breathing."

That resolution received 1,203 to 273 support from delegates gathered in Detroit's Cobo Center Saturday.

By a vote of 1,422 to 78, Republicans backed Gov. John Engler's plan to reform the teacher tenure law by doubling the probationary period and streamlining the teacher appeals process.

And by a vote of 1,389 to 92, the GOP said it will oppose "any redefinition of marriage to include homosexual unions" or giving legal status to "domestic partnerships."

In economic policy matters, GOP delegates:

■ Supported the elimination of all local property tax abatements to industry, tax increment financing districts and taxes on hotels and rental cars to fund local projects. The vote was 936 to 572.

■ Called for the Department of Natural Resources to compensate property owners when it designates private property to be wetlands unsuitable for development. That vote was 1,218 to 278.

8th District

James Kallman, retired Ingham County judge from Okemos, is the new chair of the 8th Congressional District organization, replacing Scott Schultz, who conceded. The district includes Livingston County. Congressman is Democrat Bob Carr.

Vice chair is Carolyn Russell of Whitmore Lake; secretary, Carla Hills of Ingham County; treasurer, Dan Rust of Fenton.

Besides Kallman, delegates to the Republican State Committee will include Joe Cruzon of Brighton, Cathy Perkins of Howell, Mike Kelly of Flint, Cynthia Pine of Washtenaw County and Maureen Voyer of Ingham County.

11th District

Can an anti-tax policy wonk feel happy and fulfilled running a nuts-and-bolts political organization? Yes, said Patrick Anderson, insurance company economist and newly elected chair of the 11th Congressional District organization.

"Having great ideas is important. Selling ideas is important. Getting those ideas into place is just as important," said Anderson, who won a 116 to 60 secret ballot victory of Judy Riedlinger of Bloomfield Township.

Anderson's previous experience was chairing the Farmington Area Republican Club. He started his campaign last September, worked on it during the holidays and put in "full time since Jan. 5."

It was something of an upset because Riedlinger had chaired the predecessor 18th District organization. She was elected to the Republican State Committee as a consolation.

The 11th includes Livonia and Redford in Wayne County, the Birmingham-Bloomfield area, Farmington area, West Bloomfield and Southfield areas in Oakland County. U.S. Rep. Joe Knollenberg kept hands off the race, although Riedlinger had been his vice chair in past party posts.

Working for Anderson was Paul Welday, Knollenberg's chief of staff and leader of the 1988 Jack Kemp for president forces. "The old 18th was moderate, but it was Jack Kemp's best district in the state," Welday said. "Pat's coalition was pretty good. This contest was more personality driven than ideological."

Vice chair is Diana Azzorpardi of Redford; secretary is Laurie Kepes, a Young Republican member from Southfield; treasurer is John Bowler of Bloomfield Hills.

Besides Anderson and Riedlinger, state committee members will be Elaine Donnelly of Livonia; Lori Packer of Southfield, chief of staff of the state Senate Republicans; Harry Greenleaf, Schoolcraft College trustee from Livonia, and Novi councilman Tim Pope.

13th District

Sean Cox, a Livonia attorney and officer in the old 2nd District organization, was elected chair unanimously of the new 13th Congressional District organization.

Senate OKs cut in unemployment comp

STAFF WRITER

State Senate Republicans had less than a united front as they passed a bill cutting $1 billion from unemployment compensation benefits.

"Wham, slam, bang . . . I feel like I stood in front of a train and got run over," said Sen. Fred Dillingham, R-Fowlerville, who cast the only dissenting vote among Republicans. "But the train may come back."

"It's critical to cost competitiveness," replied Sen. Joanne Emmons, R-Big Rapids, sponsor of Senate Bill 2. "As a grandma, I'm sick and tired of saying goodbye to my son and daughter as they go to jobs in other states."

To 19 Republicans, cutting unemployment comp costs is a key to making Michigan competitive for business expansion against Indiana and the South. "It's a tax on job creation," said Sen. David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield.

To Dillingham and 16 Democrats, however, it amounts to putting the burden "on the backs of chronically unemployed people." Added Sen. George Z. Hart, D-Dearborn: "It was railroaded under the pretense of reform. It cuts benefits for the unemployed. We're not addressing the needs of the unemployed."

The bill, passed Thursday, goes this week to an evenly-split House of Representatives where it is likely to be modified.

Small tax cut

Dillingham's chief complaint was that only $170 million of the cut would go back to employers, large and small. The other $800 million-plus will still be collected and go into a trust fund.

"It takes that money out of the economy," said Dillingham. Although the Livingston County portion of his district is insulated from the economic downturns, he said Shiawassee County residents, many of whom used to work in Flint, are hard hit.

"Michigan would go from sixth in the nation (in benefit levels) to eighth," said Honigman. "That's still very high."

Two outstate Republicans — Jon Cisky of Saginaw and John Pridnia of Hubbard Lake — crossed lines to help Dillingham and Democratic floor leader John Cherry of Clio on some amendments.

The bill doesn't cut the maximum 26 weeks of unemployment benefits, but it does restore the "waiting week" to receive the first payment, a provision knocked out in the 1970s.

Bill changed

The Senate adopted amendments to:

■ Retain the lower federal minimum wage as the base for eligibility. Emmons had sought to raise it to the state minimum wage, which would have cut out some low-wage workers. Sen. William Faust, D-Westland, said the amendment would "help the majority up north where the jobs are seasonal." The amendment passed 19-15, with Republicans Dillingham, Pridnia and Vern Ehlers of Grand Rapids joining 16 Democrats in support.

■ Cut unemployment comp taxes on 53,000 small employers who, said Dillingham, "are not part of the unemployment problem in this state." Action came on a unanimous voice vote.

■ Retain an alternative eligibility method for such seasonal workers as Great Lakes sailors and Upper Peninsula construction trades workers. That amendment passed 19-17 with Republicans Dillingham, Cisky and John Schwarz of Battle Creek joining Democrats in support.

GOP line holds

But senators rejected amendments to:

■ Require only 20 weeks of work for eligibility. Emmons' bill raises it to 30 weeks, cutting out short-time workers. The amendment lost on a 17-17 tie vote.

■ Raise the wage base to which

The district includes Northville and northwestern Wayne County and much of Washtenaw County. Congressman is Democrat William D. For of Ypsilanti.

Vice chair is Karen Valvo of Ypsilanti; secretary, Elaine Kirchgatter, Canton Township trustee; and treasurer, Abe Funfakh, former Plymouth Township trustee.

Besides Cox, Republican State Committee members include Ercel Prather of Westland, Canton Clerk Loren Bennett, Plymouth Townshp trustee Kay Arnold, Marlene Choatley of Ypsilanti and Virginia Johanssen of Ann Arbor.

BUILDING, BUYING OR REFINANCING...
Standard Federal has a money-saving mortgage that's right for you.

Last year, we helped over 46,000 customers with a variety of mortgages. Take a look at what we can offer you. You'll see why we're Michigan's leading mortgage lender.

If you're interested in lowering your house payments, you really owe it to yourself to talk to our mortgage specialists about our adjustable-rate mortgage. If you're refinancing, you may be able to save thousands of dollars over the life of your mortgage. You can build equity faster, or even pay off your home more quickly. And you have the option to convert to a fixed-rate mortgage at any time.

ADJUSTABLE-RATE MORTGAGES 4.50% Annual Interest Rate 6.60% Annual Percentage Rate

As for home buyers, your Realtor or Builder can show you how the current low rates can make your dollar go even further.

Our 5- and 7-year mortgages are great money-saving options because rates are even lower than they are for longer term loans.

5/25 MORTGAGES 6.125% Annual Interest Rate 6.858% Annual Percentage Rate

7/23 MORTGAGES 6.625% Annual Interest Rate 7.198% Annual Percentage Rate

Or, if you prefer, we offer a very competitive rate on our longer-term fixed-rate mortgages.

But no matter which mortgage you choose, it will have our unique Rate Lock feature which guarantees that while your Rate Lock is in effect, your loan will be closed at the rate that was available when you applied for the loan or, if lower, the rate in effect at the time of closing.

15-YEAR FIXED-RATE MORTGAGES 7.125% Annual Interest Rate 7.627% Annual Percentage Rate

30-YEAR FIXED-RATE MORTGAGES 7.625% Annual Interest Rate 7.948% Annual Percentage Rate

Call or visit your neighborhood Standard Federal Banking Center about any of our money-saving mortgage products. With rates this low, there's no better time to trim your operating expenses.

The APRs shown above are based on an $80,000 loan with a 20% down payment, a 2% loan discount fee, a $250 non-refundable application fee, a $350 closing fee and 15 days of prepaid interest. The initial monthly principal and interest payments for the loans shown in this example would be $405.35 for the adjustable-rate loan, $486.09 for the 5/25 balloon loan, $512.25 for the 7/23 balloon loan, $724.66 for the 15-year loan and $566.23 for the 30-year loan. The estimated APR for the adjustable-rate loan is based on an index which is subject to change. The APR and the payments for the adjustable-rate loan are also subject to change on an annual basis after the loan is closed. The initial interest rate will be in effect for the first year and is not based on the formula set forth in the loan contract. The 5- and 7-year loans are balloon payment loans based on a 30-year amortization. Except under certain conditions, the Bank is under no obligation to refinance the 5- and 7-year loans at the time of maturity. Assessment time

Canton property owners should remember that property tax assessment notices will be mailed beginning Friday, Feb. 19.

Residential assessments will increase an average 9.7 percent. Commercial property and what is called developmental property will increase 7.53 percent. Industrial and agricultural property assessments didn't increase. The assessment increases will take effect for the July tax bill, which is for half of the school taxes.

Despite the assessment increases, homeowners are likely to pay an average 4.5 percent increases in taxes, according to George McEachran, Wayne County equalization director. That's because assessments are increasing more than the 3 percent inflation rate, which means the tax rate will be rolled back under the 1978 Headlee Tax Limitation Amendment.

An average assessment increase doesn't mean every property owner will get hit with an increase. It's possible some neighborhoods didn't increase in value, according to assessor John McLenaghan of the Wayne County Appraisal Co.

If you disagree with your property assessment, the three-member board of review is scheduled to meet March 2, 8 and 9. On Tuesday, March 2, the board will meet from 10 a.m. until noon and from 1-5 p.m. On Monday, March 8, the hours are from 1-4 p.m. and from 5-9 p.m. On Tuesday, March 9, the board will meet from 9 a.m. until noon and from 1-5 p.m.

Property owners also have until June 30 to file a written appeal of the local board of review's decision with the Michigan Tax Tribunal. The address is: P.O. Box 30232, Lansing, 48909. Telephone: 517-334-6521.

Dinner dance set

The "Canton is Family" dinner dance celebrating Canton is scheduled for Saturday, March 27. Invitations are now going out. The event is sponsored by the Canton Community Foundation in cooperation with First of America. Canton Hall of Famers and Community Achievers will be honored at that time.

Officials go slow on shared services

Elected officials from the city of Plymouth and Canton and Plymouth townships got together for a roundtable discussion of the problems facing the three communities. The talk ranged from shared services to the closing of two massage parlors.

BY JEFF COUNTS
STAFF WRITER

Shared services was on the menu at the Canton Economic Club meeting on Wednesday, but the public officials discussing the issue were apparently on a diet.

"We're four to six months away from even coming up with a plan," Tom Yack, Canton Township supervisor, told the crowd of about 150.

Yack was responding to a question about specific details about talks between the city of Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Canton Township and Northville about sharing police and fire services as a way to cut taxes.

"We're handcuffed when it comes to some police union contracts," said Yack.

Bob Jones, Plymouth mayor, likened getting shared services going to eating an elephant. "You have to do it one bite at a time."

Kathleen Keen McCarthy, Plymouth Township supervisor, said that the city of Plymouth and the township are making progress on merging the two fire departments.

"We've talked to the unions and we're looking at closing two fire stations in the city," she said.

The comments of the three came during a roundtable discussion during which the three elected officials discussed common problems faced by the Plymouth-Canton community and what lays in the future.

The three said they plan to continue meeting and holding talks on sharing services.

The hot topic was state and federal aid and property taxes.

During questioning, Jones said the city of Plymouth should plan for a time when there will be no federal or state tax dollars flowing into the community.

He said the city should look to making its operation more efficient as a way to deal with the eventual cut off of state and federal money.

Yack acknowledged the trend, saying that the federal and state governments are shifting the burden of paying for local services to the local level, but isn't coming up with the money to pay for them.

McCarthy was critical of the state for "manipulate the property tax system."

However, the three elected officials were more cheerful when it came to noting what they want to accomplish.

Yack said: "We've been working on building a community. Our community developed so fast that it was difficult to feel a part of it. But we're making progress."

He pointed to the creation of the Canton Community Foundation and a proposed arts council as ways of providing the support needed.

For the more established Plymouth Township, McCarthy said: "We're planning on building on our strengths, on our identity."

To do that, she pointed to her work with the city of Plymouth. "It's the downtown and we need to work with that."

She also said he plans to try encouraging more volunteerism in the township.

On a humorous not, Jones pointed to the lowering of taxes by the city and the closing of two massage parlors. "The massage parlors attracted more attention," quipped Jones.

■ 'We're four to six months away from even coming up with a plan.'

Canton Township supervisor

But on a more serious note, Jones said the city must face the possible bankruptcy of two large taxpayers, the Mayflower Hotel and Highland Appliance, which is headquartered in the city.

He said the city will face more financial problems if either goes out of business.

Westland man to stand trial in store robbery

■ 'I do not believe that Mr. Crill poses any threat to the community . . . I beg the court to reduce bond to a manageable level.'
Anthony Seaman
defense attorney

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

A Westland father of three has been ordered to stand trial amid charges he robbed the Westland Meijer store at gunpoint.

Statements made Thursday in 18th District Court indicated that Gary Michael Crill, 27, had a crack cocaine problem when the Meijer store at Warren and Newburgh roads was robbed at 4:52 a.m. Jan. 30.

The case prompted 18th District Judge Gail McKnight to comment during Crill's preliminary examination Thursday that drugs "are tearing at the guts of the community."

McKnight ordered Crill to stand trial in Detroit Recorder's Court for armed robbery and a felony firearms charge after a Meijer cashier testified Thursday that Crill robbed her at gunpoint while she was working.

Cashier Lisa Christine Deman testified that Crill bought a pack of chewing gum before he pulled a gun, robbed her and escaped with money that police said totaled $374.

"He had a gun out, and he put it to my ribs," Deman testified. Crill told her, "Give me all your money," she said.

Crill's family members sat in the courtroom Thursday, and his mother wept during much of the hearing.

"For the family, this is a very tragic situation and a very heartrending situation," McKnight said from the bench.

After Crill was ordered to stand trial, his mother began sobbing loudly as she left the courtroom, though others tried to comfort her.

Crill could face a maximum sentence of life in prison if convicted of armed robbery. He will face a mandatory two-year term if found guilty on the felony firearms charge.

After the Meijer store was robbed, the gunman drove off. Crill was arrested a half-hour later when Livonia police stopped a car matching the description of the getaway car on the Jeffries Freeway at Middlebelt.

Livonia police turned Crill over to the Westland police, who found $374 and a .25-caliber automatic pistol in the car, Westland Detective Sgt. Marc Stobbe has said.

In court Thursday, Crill's attorney, Anthony Seaman, asked Judge McKnight to reduce a $100,000 bond that has kept Crill in jail since his arrest.

"I do not believe that Mr. Crill poses any threat to the community," Seaman told McKnight. "I beg the court to reduce bond to a manageable level."

But assistant Wayne County prosecutor Charles Grant told McKnight he would vehemently oppose any bond reduction because the robber had placed Meijer customers and employees "at risk."

McKnight sided with Grant, saying she feared Crill might flee if she lowered his bond.

"The probability is overwhelming that he will be sent to prison for this matter," McKnight said. Crill would have "a strong incentive not to reappear" in court, she added.

McKnight also sent a strong message that armed robberies will be dealt with harshly because "the heartland of this community is its stores."

Westland's commercial stores draw thousands of shoppers from many neighboring communities as well as from Westland.

Crill has been scheduled to appear in Recorder's Court for a Feb. 25 arraignment. A trial date has not been set.

Cop praises drunken driving sentence

BY TEDD SCHNEIDER
STAFF WRITER

A Northville man's stiff prison sentence for a double traffic fatality in July sends the right message about drinking and driving, a Livonia police officer said Monday.

Philip Decou West was sentenced Feb. 1 by Wayne Circuit Judge John A. Murphy to 7-15 years in prison on two counts of second-degree murder for the July 14 accident on Schoolcraft near Eckles.

"I would hope this gets the point across. That's a long time to spend away for a couple of drinks," said officer Arthur Cheney of the Livonia Police Traffic Bureau.

West, 36, pleaded no contest to the charges, which carried a maximum life sentence.

A charge of felonious driving was dropped as part of a plea agreement with the Wayne County prosecutor.

West was severely intoxicated and fleeing at high speed from minor accidents in Livonia and Plymouth Township when his 1988 Oldsmobile collided head-on with a 1985 Buick driven by a Northville woman.

Killed in the crash were Keith Leja, 20, of Livonia and Kevin Payne, 23, of Farmington Hills, both passengers in the Buick.

A third passenger and both drivers were also injured.

West had a blood alcohol level of .31, three times the legal limit, at the time of the crash, police said.

His Oldsmobile was heading west on Five Mile about 8:30 p.m. when it sideswiped one car and then rear-ended a pickup truck at Haggerty and Schoolcraft in Plymouth Township a few moments later.

Nobody was injured in those accidents.

West then made a left turn onto the wrong side of Schoolcraft and hit the Buick at about 70 mph, according to police reports.

Cheney said the sentence was the toughest for a Livonia fatality in several years.

But the large families of the two victims and dozens of other relatives and friends have had their lives permanently altered by the incident, he said.

The Livonia officer praised Murphy and assistant prosecutor Kevin Simowski for their handling of the case.

Mettetal Airport

State buy out good for area

The state purchase of Mettetal Airport will benefit Canton and Plymouth, despite claims to the contrary by local nay sayers.

The state will buy the airport in three to four months. No purchase price was released, but it's estimated the property is worth $3-$4 million.

If the state Bureau of Aeronautics doesn't buy Mettetal, it will eventually be turned into an industrial park or strip mall.

Let's face it, a small airport isn't a money-maker and the owners want to sell the land. With the lull in the economy, chances are there aren't many takers, but the slow business times probably mean the state can obtain the land at a better price. It's the time to buy.

An airport makes Canton and Plymouth more attractive. Airplane buffs have an airport for their craft and residents benefit by having a parcel of land dedicated to a low-use activity.

Critics claim it is dangerous. It's hot air. A shopping center or industrial park would put more traffic on the roads, causing more accidents and endangering more lives than a few small airplanes.

Also, development of the parcel would cost taxpayers money. More traffic on Joy Road would certainly create calls for its widening.

The negative reaction should be expected. A cadre of Plymouth malcontents shot down plans by the city of Plymouth and Plymouth Township to buy and operate the airport.

The opposition was out of proportion to the project, it was just too strong. The complaints focused on keeping the city and township out of the airport business. City voters even approved a ballot resolution to ground airport ownership.

That criticism wasn't aimed at state ownership. It's perplexing that airport foes are still against public purchase, especially since local tax money won't be used. The money will come from taxes on air travel.

We find opposition curious. There are questions to be asked. Are the local opponents tied to a developer who has an eye on the property? Are any in a position to gain financially by development of the parcel?

State Rep. Jerry Vorva, R-Plymouth, questioned why the state isn't looking to "privatize" the airport. It's a Republican buzz word for turning what could be a public asset over to a private business.

If Republicans had their way, the Grand Canyon would be "privatized."

As we all know, that shouldn't happen, it would be a treasure lost. And the same is true of Mettetal Airport.

Reform real tax inequities

If we want our children to get a decent education, we must be willing to pay the bill.

The so called "property tax reform" debate has been going on for 20 years, and little has ever been done to alter the system. Replacing one tax with another, shifting the responsibility so someone else has to pay, misses the mark as an action that could even remotely be considered reform.

In the most recent round of political wrangling, the state Senate fumbled an attempt to place a 1-percent sales tax increase on the ballot, the passage of which would reduce property taxes by 30 percent. Instead GOP Gov. John Engler won the day by seeing his 20-percent reduction passed in the Senate.

Senators followed form by attaching a meaningless amendment that promises to replace the lost revenue in some yet-to-be-determined manner.

The property tax system, properly administered, is just as equitable, if not more so, than additional taxes in the form of income or sales taxes.

Certainly, the property tax system could stand a large dose of reformation. But forcing someone who earns $25,000 a year to pay the same amount of sales tax on a purchased item as a person who earns $150,000-plus is unjust. And while imposing a sales tax is an addiction that we are unable to break, increasing it solves nothing and puts an even-larger burden on those who are financially encumbered already.

The property tax never will be abolished as a main source of money for education. By imposing an additional sales or income tax, we would have two rather than one form of school taxation over which to complain.

To reform the property tax system, we must provide for the real inequities within the system, not the perceived inequity that we have to pay at all.

We must ensure that no one will lose a home because of the inability to pay property taxes. This is especially true for retirees who experience a dramatic decrease in their income. This could also be applied to those who experience a devastating injury that prohibits them from going back to work.

We must also look to the needs of first-time homebuyers who should be able to experience some kind of property tax relief until they are able to get an economic footing.

Michigan's leadership and many residents have been unwilling to deal with these realities.

On one side we see "let them eat cake" Gov. Engler who carries the slash-and-burn tax philosophy to an absurd extreme. On the other, we have a spineless Legislature that develops unworkable, unacceptable tax financing plans, which are generated almost solely to cover their political behinds and which go down to defeat at every turn.

In the middle we have a sniveling, self-absorbed propertied class that spends more time trying to figure out how to get out of its financial obligations rather than how to provide their children with an education that will serve them well in the future.

The casualties in this war are, of course, the children, whose welfare takes up less and less of the debate as time passes.

Good schools

I found your city a fantastic place to get an education. What I am trying to say, that I live in Wayne, Mich. and come to Plymouth to one of the best schools that money can buy. The school is called Starkweather Center. I like to say that the staff is one of the best in Michigan, and all the teachers and the tutor is out of this world, and that is a fact. It is a school you like to tell your friend about. How do I know so much about Starkweather? Because I am proud to say that I go to that school. Let me just say that I am an adult that could not read or write. Now I can pick up my head and say I can do it. It is a school that will understand any problem you have so I think that the city of Plymouth should put a day on the calendar and call it teachers day. Let's not forget how all the teachers and the tutor work so hard for us. So I say to the city of Plymouth give them that special day, please.

Help appreciated

On Monday morning, Feb. 8, our golden retriever, Chelsea, was struck and killed on Beck Road. From the motorist who stopped to report the accident, Township officials involved, to the township officer who notified my wife and assisted her with Chelsea, the entire situation was handled with caring and compassion. To all of you our heartfelt thanks for your kindness at a time of great sadness for us. It was greatly appreciated and is an element that makes this community so special to us.

Weather question

I just finished seeing my children to the bus and off to school. As I stood watching the neighborhood children slipping and sliding their way to my house (the bus stop), I found myself seriously questioning the wisdom of not closing our schools for an additional day or even two if necessary.

Knowing that most of our roads are clear enough to drive on doesn't make it one bit easier to walk on a sidewalk completely covered with ice. And, while most people are able to do a pretty good job of clearing away snow from their sidewalks, and children do a pretty good job of plowing through any snow that isn't cleared away, the mess we end up with after a freezing rain is a whole different story.

Shouldn't some consideration be given, when determining whether conditions warrant a school closing, not only to the conditions of our roadways, but also to the conditions our children who must walk to school will face? Even children who ride the bus to school must first deal with the sidewalks, on foot, in order to get to the bus stop.

Extreme weather conditions sometimes merit extreme caution when considering the safety and well-being of our children.

Test crash criticism

In response to Dan McCosh's poorly researched article on GM's animal testing: GM has killed 20,000 animals in crash-related experiments since 1981. One test involves ramming the chest of a pig suspended in a sling with a pneumatic device. In another test, the tops of ferret's skulls are removed and the brain subjected to impact. The skull top is put back on, and the ferrets observed, should they regain consciousness.

Dan suggests these deaths are necessary to improve auto safety. If this were so, then GM would not have one of the worst safety records in the industry:

The national Highway Traffic Safety Administration's (NHTSA) 35 mph crash test determines if life-threatening brain injuries resulted on 1993 model cars. Of the 15 worst cars in the test, eight were GMs.

The "Highest Death Rate" list published by the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety (IIHS) in 1991 shows seven of the worst 13 to be GM products. The Chevrolet Corvette Coupe, Sprint 4-door, Sprint 2-door and Camaro are four of the least safest cars on the road.

The 1990 "new car Assessment Program" report by the U.S. Department of Transportation claims the Chevrolet G-20 van as the vehicle to cause the worst injury to the driver.

Dan's assertion that GM's concern for public safety is not a politically correct view is with justification. GM had intentionally delayed the air bag introduction during the mid-70s. One estimate is that air bag introduction would have prevented 150,000 deaths and 1,500,000 brain injuries.

GM delayed introduction of the air bag since it became market ready in the early '70s. The IIHSs 1984 report cites GM as being partially responsible for the bag's delayed introduction. For the 1974-75 model year, GM produced only 10,000 cars with air bags instead of the one million promised. In 1978, the Wall Street Journal documented GMs practice of discouraging the sales of luxury cars with air bags. Also, in 1978, Robert McLean told the NHTSA that he was released from his position at GM as project manager of air cushion systems development because he pushed too hard for air bag implementation. GM canceled plans to put air bags in 1982 models, and in 1983 cancelled the whole air bag project.

Dan states that biomedical engineers can either run down real people, hit pregnant women in the stomach, or "maybe (sic) kill a few pigs." Come on, Dan, get real. There are obviously other choices, including cadaver studies from actual crashed automobiles, simulations with computer models and test dummies.

Lastly, Dan's suggestion of anti-science motivation of GM's critics is also off base. Instead, it is an issue of bad science. Neurosurgeon Roy Selby has said he has serious doubts that GMs ferret model findings have any clinical relevance to human injury. Emergency medical specialist Dr. Askin-Edgar says that the GM ferret and pig studies completely fail to provide any relevant information to the solution of medical problems. Neurologist Dr. Richard Sax agrees that the work does not provide any new knowledge regarding head trauma.

POINTS OF VIEW

Lone (GOP) Ranger protests party politics

This column was born in my mind two weeks ago. I observed some heavy-handed, fast-track machinations by Republicans in the state Senate.

It wasn't like the GOP. They had long complained of the heavy-handed tactics of Democrats who had run the House for 24 years.

John Engler, as Senate majority leader (1984-90), Dick Posthumus, his successor, and House Speaker Paul Hillegonds all had deplored Democratic delay-and-ramrod tactics and had vowed more orderly and timely work on bills.

So here were Senate Republicans, in February 1993, staring politely as suburban school officials protested a contemplated double-decimation (20 percent cut) of their budgets and ramming the bill through in a single day; and staring politely at labor groups and ramming through a $1 billion cut in unemployment benefits in another day — both without amendments and on party line votes.

It looked bad. As a citizen, I found it distasteful. But Sen. Fred Dillingham beat me to the punch by going public with his criticisms.

Dillingham, a second-term Republican from Fowlerville, denounced the promised reimbursement of lost school aid as "without any meat to it." He said it was "laid out to meet a political end and not a policy end."

He added: "Politicians, in order to operate, need three bones: a wishbone, a jawbone and a backbone," implying his caucus leaders lacked backbone. And he cast the lone dissenting Republican vote as the Senate adopted 19 to 17 a bill that promised to pay back lost school revenue but had no money in it.

Now, several other suburban Republican senators have school districts that will be hard hit: David Honigman of West Bloomfield, Robert Geake of Northville and the already-embattled

TIM RICHARD

Michael Bouchard of Birmingham. Dillingham alone said aloud what the others must have been thinking.

Next day it was the unemployment bill. Dillingham warned "my Republican caucus — which I try to be part of from time to time" — that the proposed cut would be "on the backs of chronically unemployed people." Again he was the lone Republican to vote no.

A small town funeral director and merchant by background, Dillingham is best known as Right to Life's point man in the Senate — restricting abortion, going after Jack (Dr. Death) Kevorkian. He has had little recognition as a man who seeks bipartisan solutions rather than political points against the opposition.

Dillingham was extremely unhappy with Engler's tenure as Senate leader because Dillingham thought work the Senate should have been doing was being sacrificed to Engler's gubernatorial ambitions. Now Dillingham is just as unhappy with Posthumus. After two years as No. 2 in the GOP leadership, Dillingham stepped out in December.

"They jerk the chain hard," Dillingham said when our paths crossed in the Capitol ground floor. "It's all politics."

A Democratic senator walked by and said, "Nice job on the unemployment bill, Fred."

"Thanks. Wish you were in my district," Dillingham replied.

"Come on over to ours," said the Democrat, waving a beckoning arm.

Dillingham chuckled. I asked if he were considering a party switch, and he shook his head.

"I'm not a Democrat," he said. Then he chatted awhile and added, "I'm not a political Republican."

He let on that another member of his caucus is very unhappy at having his chain jerked by the leadership. He likened the caucus situation to wooden soldiers being marched blindly off the edge of a cliff.

As we parted, Dillingham smiled and said, "I dunno, maybe they should jerk my chain."

As if they could.

New sports complex dedicated to memorable son

I was mad. It was August, and the tennis club I had played at for 15 years was closing. I was forced to scout out another place to play in time for the fall season.

There had been some warning. Two years ago, a Whirleyball operation had taken over two courts of the Centaur Racquet Club at Drake and Walnut Lake roads in West Bloomfield. Last summer, volleyball pits had been dug where four outdoor courts once stood.

Now the remaining six tennis courts were being uprooted for some future addition to Whirleyball rumored to include rollerblading.

Now, six months later, I was skeptical as I drove over to see for myself just what this new U.S. Blades sports complex — the first of its kind in this country — was all about.

As my eyes adjusted to the darkened interior, I saw lots of neon, a giant video screen and two disc jockeys perched in a booth one story up. Then I took in the giant in-line skating rink, a still-under-construction miniature golf course, and a '50s style diner. It's a "Big Chill" like the one in downtown Birmingham, with fare ranging from pizza to cashew chicken salad to their ice cream and yogurt.

As I ventured tentatively toward the rink, an older woman sailed past, her roller blades decorated all over with emblems. Wow, where'd you get those blades, asked a boy who looked to be about 11. "I decorated them myself," the woman called back, over her shoulder.

Helen Fawkes, from Southfield, was watching her son, Sebastian, 8, circle the rink, which also includes a tunnel, adorned with florescent grafitti. "We came over the weekend and we're back," she said. She was content to watch.

The Fawkes were among the 6,500 people who, co-owner Judy Stillman said, lined up to try out the new facility for free Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Mailings were sent to residents of nearby communities, including Birmingham, the Bloomfields, the Farmingtons, Troy and Livonia.

Stillman, a Bloomfield Township resident, is part of a partnership backing the sports "megaplex" where the rules are clearly marked: No smoking, no gum, no alcohol, no shorts if you're skating.

"We encourage protective equipment" — helmets, elbow and knee pads, Stillman says. "We're trying to make it more macho to wear protective equipment than not to wear it."

Staff members, mostly young, wearing referee-style pin-stripes are abundant and easily seen. "We want the community to feel safe," Stillman says, talking and joking with them as we make the rounds.

The staff is aware that the complex is dedicated to the memory of Stillman's son, David, an Andover High School graduate, who was killed in a freak skiing accident in Switzerland the summer of '91, following his graduation from the University of Michigan Law School.

A hockey player, he had rollerbladed long before it became popular. And he had loved it.

A plaque will be placed on a wall by the front desk. It reads: "Dedicated in memory of David I. Stillman, J.D., Jan. 8, 1965-Aug. 5, 1991, who loved in-line skating, had a zest for life and although short, lived his life to the fullest."

"He knew we wanted to do this (open the rink)," Stillman says. "I tried to make it what he would have loved."

What she hopes it will be is a place people go for good clean fun — ages 3 to 90.

"We knew that the youngsters in the community needed it — and the adults, too."

One week night will be earmarked for young people in ther 20s; another for the 30-somethings. If enough adults who can come weekday mornings show interest, they'll open up for them.

"I have a big concern for the people my daughter's age (25) who are running to the bars on Thursday night," says Stillman. "They can come here — and play video games if they're not athletic."

Younger people need a fun, fast-paced place to go where they can be together in an environment which is safe but isn't preachy. Schools and non-profit organizations have tried to come up with these, but except for special occasions (such as the all-night graduation parties), they have generally failed.

Stillman and partners have tackled this head on — both out of commitment and because it has the potential to be profitable.

I applaud their ingenuity. Rollerblading, anyone?

Dems ignore a chance to forge new coalition

In case you hadn't noticed, both Michigan Republicans and Democrats have held their state conventions.

The GOP gathering was largely predictable. Gov. John Engler pushed something he calls a "taxpayers agenda," a code phrase for slashing both property taxes and state government functions. David Doyle, re-elected party chairman, blamed Democrats for the House Fiscal Agency scandal.

And a bunch of senatorial wannabees twirled and pirouetted in search of what is looking less and less like a fun nomination to run against U.S. Sen. Don Riegle.

The Democratic convention was much more interesting, mainly because of what wasn't said.

There were obligatory praises for President Clinton, salutes to organized labor, bows to women and minorities — in short, the usual Democratic coalition. But nothing — no thing — was said about broadening the coalition in Michigan in the way that got Bill Clinton elected president.

And just now there are two sizable constituencies in Michigan plenty sore at Gov. Engler and ripe for Democratic wooing.

1. Big, rich, largely suburban, out-of-formula school districts.

Engler has persistently attempted to cut local school property taxes without appearing to care about how these districts are going to make up the revenue shortfall.

"A killer of local school districts" was the most charitable, printable description of the plan that would cut $4 million to $6 million from many local school budgets in the first year.

But suburbanites, even rich ones, vote often. Lots of them voted for Clinton last November. If Democrats tried to speak to their concerns, they might get into the habit.

2. A complex mixture of park users, fishermen, hunters and outdoor lovers often clumped together as the "moose and goose" lobby.

This group, most visibly led by the Michigan United Conservation Clubs, is unhappy at Gov.

PHILIP POWER

Engler's treatment of things wild over the last two years.

First he tried unilaterally to reorganize the Department of Natural Resources. Next he tried to kill of a bunch of citizen advisory panels, drawing this comment from MUCC executive director Tom Washington: "Perhaps boards and commissions are not the simplest, most efficient vehicle to make policy decisions. That same statement also can be made about democracy."

In 1980 the state paid 70 percent of the operating cost of Michigan's widely admired park system. Since then, the state has shifted the burden to user fees, now accounting for 80 percent of the budget. Staff for parks has been cut by one-third over the past 10 years, and Engler has been heard to wonder about selling some public parks to private companies.

But are state Democrats trying to make points with Michigan's millions of grumpy sportsmen and women? Not so you'd notice.

Last time I looked, Republicans controlled the governorship, the state Senate and half the state House.

Michigan Democrats had a happy convention. They celebrated their victory last November. But they didn't try much to reproduce a wining national strategy at home.

Other issues muddy debate on property tax reform

STAFF WRITER

The 1993 version of the property tax debate is more than a battle over which medicine to use. It's a battle over which disease to fight.

"The issue is the economy . . . the unemployment rate," said Dr. Doug Roberts, state treasurer and Gov. John Engler's advocate of a 20 percent school property tax cut.

"We're saying you can do them together — tax reform and school finance reform," said Rep. Barbara Dobb, R-Union Lake.

Dobb is vice-chair of the House Taxation Committee weighing the merits of Engler's Senate-passed plan versus a bipartisan plan she supports.

The panel listened all Wednesday morning to Roberts and Richard Headlee, chairman of Alexander Hamilton Life Insurance Co. of Farmington Hills, head of Taxpayers United, and foe of government spending.

Next it will hear an outline of the plan supported by the Group of 14: Republicans Dobb and Susan Munsell of Howell, Democrats Bill Keith of Garden City and David Gubow of Huntington Woods, among them.

Their plan calls for cutting school tax rates (now an average of $34 per $1,000 of valuation) to $17, raising the personal income tax and allowing voters to substitute a 2-cents sales tax hike in 1994. It would have the effect of evening out the resources per pupil at about $4,700. It would not affect business taxes.

Roberts praised the group's effort to solve the school funding problem but said, "It has the problem of not addressing the first issue (the economy).

"Under it, the vast majority of renters will end up paying more taxes. Small families will pay more. Families with two parents and two kids will pay less — but they're not typical families any more.

"The single biggest winner," Roberts went on, "will be non-residents — people who have lakeshore homes in Michigan but live in Chicago. They'll get a property tax cut but pay no more income tax."

Roberts said Engler would accept the Senate amendment requiring the state to reimburse out-of-formula (wealthy) school districts for their revenue losses under his plan, but aded, "I'm not convinced we couldn't spend less and still have quality education."

"The property tax is unfair," said Dobb, whose lakes area district in western Oakland has seen some of the state's biggest jumps in assessments.

S'craft board meets Saturday

The Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees will hold a special meeting 9 a.m. Saturday in the executive board room of the Livonia Holiday Inn.

The board agenda include:

- An update on the planning for construction of a college services building.
- A review of the principles of effective trusteeship (mostly for the benefit of new trustees Winifred Fraser and John Walsh).
- Open discussion.

The Holiday Inn is located at 17123 Laurel Park Drive North.

S'craft seeks candidates

Nominating petitions for the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees are available from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays in the president's office on the campus, 18600 Haggerty Road.

One four-year and two six-year terms on the seven-member board will be filled at the election June 14.

Candidates must be residents of the college district and registered voters. The Schoolcraft College voting area includes the school districts of Livonia, Plymouth-Canton, Northville, Clarenceville and Garden City.

Signatures of not less than 50 and no more than 200 qualified voters are required for nomination. There is no charge for filing and trustees receive no compensation.

Petitions must be returned no later than 4 p.m. Monday, April 12.

For more information, call 462-4460.

the tax is applied from $9,500 to $10,000. Dillingham argued that high-wage jobs at General Motors and Ford were being taxed insufficiently. Replied Emmons: "This is another tax hike business can't afford." The Dillingham amendment lost 16-18.

- Retain benefits for new claimants at 70 percent instead of cutting them to 65 percent, as Emmons proposed. The amendment failed 16-18, with Dillingham and Pridnia joining Democrats in support.
- Allow benefits to be paid to women who leave a job because of sexual harassment. Offered by Lana Pollack, D-Ann Arbor, the amendment fell one vote short. Emmons and Senate majority leader Dick Posthumus, R-Alto, argued that departmental rules made a statutory change unnecessary.

Holmes wins scholarship

Kelly Holmes, a senior at Plymouth Canton High School, has won the Michigan High School Athletic Association Scholar-Athlete Award in the sport of softball.

The MHSAA and Farm Bureau Insurance give a $1,000 college scholarship to an athlete in every sport the MHSAA sponsors a state tournament.

Kelly Holmes

Holmes and the other spring sports winners will be honored at halftime of the Class B boys basketball final Saturday, March 27, at the Palace of Auburn Hills.

Holmes, who earned three varsity letters in basketball and will earn a fourth this year in softball, has a 4.055 grade point and is a two-year member of the National Honor Society. She also is active in the German Club and tutors elementary students in reading.

Holmes, an all-state pitcher, will attend the University of Michigan next year on a softball scholarship.

She has compiled a 53-9 record and 635 strikeouts during her high school career. She led the Chiefs to a runner-up finish in the Class A tournament last year.

"Sports have enhanced many parts of my life, most importantly my school work," Holmes said, adding that balancing the two has helped her with time management.

"I know I will have at least two hours of practice or a game that night, so I always sit down and do my homework right away. By forming these good study habits . . . I have been able to schedule time for everything and be successful in school."

Eagles win hoop contest

Plymouth Christian rallied from a 31-23 half-time deficit Tuesday and beat host Southfield Christian 61-58 in a Michigan Independent Athletic Conference boys basketball game.

The win improved the Eagles to 5-13 overall, 4-7 in the MIAC. Southfield Christian fell to 6-10 overall, 3-6 in the MIAC.

Rocks rally again to defeat Chiefs

OK now, enough. This is getting to be a habit.

More specifically: a good habit for the Plymouth Salem boys basketball teams and a bad habit for the Plymouth Canton crew.

For the third consecutive game, the Rocks came from behind in the fourth quarter to win Tuesday, although they needed overtime to overcome host Canton 67-61.

The loss marked the second straight game in which the Chiefs let a lead at the end of three quarters slip away in the finale.

"Early in the year, we were trying to win a game any way we could," Canton interim coach Charlie Paye said. "Now it's winning a close game. Hopefully, when we do, that will put us over the hump.

"I thought we played well enough to win. Salem seems to know how to win the close games, and I don't know if we're there yet."

Salem is 8-2 in the Western Lakes Activities Association and 14-2 overall, Canton 5-5 and 6-10.

The Chiefs shot better and played with more energy for most of three quarters, and Canton led 31-23 when Salem coach Bob Brodie pulled his starters with 3:06 left in the third period.

Brodie has often substituted for his regulars in the third quarter but in piecemeal fashion instead of a five-for-five exchange.

"It was a combination of things," he said. "We weren't playing with too much intensity. I told the kids at halftime 'You have to play with more intensity or I'll find someone who will.'

"We had players who were either sick or hurt (previously), and we couldn't make wholesale substitutions. Tonight everybody was healthy and we took advantage of it."

The subs (Harold Shanks, Jim Lamb, Ed Webb, Joe Measel, Chris Bagozzi and Sanjeev Seth) rallied briefly to within 34-29, but the Chiefs led 37-29 at the end and 43-34 when Brodie brought back his top five (Mike and Brandon Slone, James Head, Brian Jensen and Todd Forbes) with 5:03 remaining in the game.

"When you coach for so many years, you go with your gut feeling," Brodie said. "I was going to come back to them. They're only kids and you have to continue to let them play. They got their second opportunity."

The regular Rocks closed to 49-47, but Canton's Brad Paskievitch, who had 18 of his game-high 22 points in the second half, answered on successive trips to keep the Chiefs in front.

But Head sank a three-point shot with 44 seconds left and, following a pair of free throws by Canton's Owen Crosby, Brandon Slone's triple tied the score 56-56 with 10 seconds left in regulation.

Canton inbounded the ball with :07 on the clock but lost control in the forecourt and failed to get another shot.

"They're experienced kids who want the ball at crunch time," said Brodie of his starters. "They know what has to be done and they responded well. It's tough to blow us out with these type of players."

Brandon Slone broke a 59-59 tie midway in overtime, and the Rocks went to a delay game after Canton missed a one-and-one.

Salem gymnasts capture 4th invite championship

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth Salem proved once again Saturday it deserves the No. 1 state ranking in girls gymnastics by winning the Freeland Invitational.

The Rocks have won all four invitationals they've entered and outscored defending state champion Muskegon Mona Shores in two, including the latest one.

Salem posted a 144.9 score, the Sailors 143.55, Freeland 138.2, Plymouth Canton 135.5, Traverse City 133.55 and Ann Arbor Pioneer 131.55.

"We were down two girls and still pulled it out by a point and a half," Salem coach Johanna Anderson said. "We have to get healthy and strong again to win the state meet.

"We know it all comes down to that meet. It doesn't matter how many times we've beaten (Mona Shores). We have to beat them March 12. That's the one that counts."

The Rocks were minus Alysia Sofios, who injured a knee last week, and without Melissa Hopson after she got hurt during the second event, floor exercise.

Neither injury was considered serious, and both are expected to take part in the major meets at the end of the season.

Salem still had three of the top Division I all-arounders: Kim Miller was second (37.2), Courtney Gonyea fourth (36.75) and Sarah Makins 10th (34.6).

Becky Swelnis of Mona Shores edged Miller for first place with a 37.5, and Canton's Kim Rennolds was fifth (35.8).

Miller performed one of her best routines on the uneven bars, according to Anderson, and finished first in that event with a 9.5. She also was second on vault (9.3).

Rennolds set a school record with a winning score of 9.5 on floor exercise, and Gonyea had the best finish by a Salem/Canton gymnast on balance beam, scoring 9.3 and placing second.

Hopson competed on bars and floor but not vault and beam. She usually has the second-best vault score, so that brought down Salem's team vault score, Anderson said.

"We have a few minor injuries and we're trying to nurse those. We're improving our routines and getting prepared for the league and regional meets.

"We got marked down for some of our routines, and we're going to try and fix those for our upcoming meets."

Canton's Jenny Tedesco was second (34.65) and Kim Lewke sixth (33.75) among Division II all-arounders.

Canton trims N'ville netters

Plymouth Canton rallied to win the fourth and fifth games by 15-8 scores Monday and defeat host Northville in volleyball.

The Chiefs won the second game 15-2 but had lost the first and third, 10-15 and 11-15.

"We didn't play badly in the first game; we just didn't have it all together," Canton coach Jacqueline Getz said.

"We played well in the second and missed a lot of critical serves in the third. In the last two, we were real aggressive at the net and attacked the ball."

The Chiefs are 4-5 in the Western Lakes Activities Association and finished 3-2 in the Western Division. Canton was 19-11-7 overall prior to another match Wednesday against North Farmington.

"We struggled at mid-season, and I think we're finally beginning to put all the pieces together," Getz said. "This is the time to do it and maintain that level of play."

Tina Schafer played well around the court, according to Getz, and led the Chiefs with 16 kills. Michelle Metzger had 12 and Karrie Drinkhahn 10. Erin Olenech had half of her eight kills in the fifth game.

■ 'We played well in the second and missed a lot of critical serves in the third.'

Jacqueline Getz
Canton coach

Angela Fountain was the defensive leader with 15 digs, and she also did most of the setting and had 28 assists. Schafer recorded 14 digs, Laura Ciantar 11 and Olenech eight.

Drinkhahn served seven consecutive points in the second game and five in the third. Metzger had three solo blocks and Ndu Okwumabua two.

■ PLYMOUTH SALEM

The Rocks swept visiting Farmington in three games Monday (10-9-12) and boosted their league record to 8-1. Salem finished 4-1 in the Lakes Division and was 28-9-4 overall before a Wednesday match.

Caryn Tatterton had 32 of the team's 37 kill assists and was a leader in the back row on defense.

"She made some incredible digs and played a great match today," Salem coach Allie Suffety said.

Cyndi Platter had 10 kills, four blocks and three aces. Jenna Stanton and Jenny Garvey added six kills apiece, Jamie Viau and Paula Dombrowski five each. Stanton also had two blocks and Viau five aces.

"We played with enthusiasm and had a good rhythm going," Suffety said. "We kept attacking them and forced them to make perfect passes or send some free balls over.

"They made us work for our points. There are some teams stepping up to play us, and the question is: Are we ready for that? Tonight was a good indication we're going to play at our pace and not others'."

Michigan-Dearborn tops Madonna again

By Steve Kowalski
Staff Writer

The Madonna University women's basketball team on Saturday lost for the second time this season to the University of Michigan-Dearborn, 72-49.

Madonna outrebounded U-M Dearborn 39-37 but shot only 31 percent from the field (18 for 59), including hitting just two of 14 from three-point range.

U-M Dearborn, which broke a four-game losing streak, had three players in double figures, led by senior center Tricia Lukas' 18 points. U-M Dearborn led 35-22 at halftime.

"We came out with no intensity, no drive. We stunk up the place," Potter said. "I don't think we wanted to play today. Maybe we thought the game was at 6 (instead of 1 p.m.).

"We have a hard time matching up down low with them. They have two excellent big players (Towery and Lukas)."

The Wolves won despite having only seven healthy players. Freshman forward Faith Takala (Redford Thurston) is still recovering from a minor car accident and key reserves Renee Vashow and Rhoda Esler were sidelined by the flu.

Wolves' senior Teri King, a 1989 graduate of Plymouth Salem, scored nine points and grabbed nine rebounds in her final home game. King said she wanted to prove an earlier 79-70 win over the Crusaders was no fluke.

"Coach Potter said we were lucky to win by nine, well, 23 is not luck," King said. "We wanted to go out and beat them real bad. It hasn't really hit yet (that it was her final home game). I think it'll sink in next year."

"Teri King is just a flat-out tremendous athlete and works 100 percent all the time," said Wolves' coach Sandy Clark, who took over in December after Bill St. John was fired.

Stephanie Crelley was the only Crusader to score in double figures; she had 14 points and grabbed a game-high 14 rebounds. Stephanie Niebauer scored seven points on only three-of-13 shooting and Mary Bieniewicz (Farmington Hills Harrison) also scored seven points, on three-of-10 shooting.

"Mary (Bieniewicz) took the ball to the basket and was the only one who was aggressive," Potter said. "We didn't do anything to make them play defense."

Crusaders earn berth in NAIA hoop playoffs

COLLEGES

Madonna University garnered the fourth and final playoff spot in the NAIA District 23 women's basketball playoffs with an 87-78 victory Tuesday over visiting Grand Rapids Baptist.

Madonna will open the playoffs Feb. 27 on the road against the top seed, yet to be determined between Spring Arbor and Aquinas. (Tri-State of Indiana clinched the third seed.)

Junior guard Jill Burt poured in a game-high 28 points and grabbed nine rebounds to lead the Lady Crusaders, now 13-16 overall and 7-7 in district action.

Dana Sevcech, a junior guard, contributed 17 points, while sophomore forward Stephanie Crelley and senior forward Stephanie Niebauer each chipped in with 15 points and seven rebounds.

Madonna shot 76.5 percent from the free throw line (26 of 34) and 45.2 percent from the field (28 of 62).

Jandi Hillaker and Marcy Bell each scored 23 points for Grand Rapids Baptist, which fell out of contention for a playoff berth. The Comets are now 16-11 overall and 5-9 in District 23.

Grand Rapids Baptist made 24 of 32 free throws (75 percent), but only 24 of 61 from the field (39 percent).

S'craft men battle but lose

Schoolcraft College's "Iron Seven" stayed close until the eight-minute mark of the second half before first place Macomb CC reeled off 10 unanswered points en route to a 92-74 Eastern Conference men's basketball victory Saturday.

The visiting Ocelots, who dressed only seven players, pulled within six points before the roof caved in. They are now 2-12 in the conference and 6-19 overall.

"Macomb played tough defense," SC coach Dave Bogataj said. "We made some turnovers and didn't really get any good shots off during that stretch. They capitalized off of it and the game was over."

Kent Carlos was one of five Monarchs to score in double figures with 19. Bernie Burnett contributed 13. Macomb is now 11-3 in the Eastern half of the Michigan Community College Athletic Association.

Jarvis Murray, a 6-foot-6 sophomore from Detroit Cody, led Schoocraft 22 points and eight rebounds. Vince Turner (Detroit Renaissance) finished with 13, while and Mohammed Abdrabboh (Dearborn) and Steve Whitlow (Redford Catholic Central) each added 12. Shawn Branum had 11.

Schoolcraft was down 40-29 at intermission after making only five of 10 free throws. The Ocelots shot 65 percent on the night (17 of 26).

■ ALPENA 91, S'CRAFT 86: Foul trouble did the Ocelots in Wednesday against the host Lumberjacks.

Two starters were lost to fouls for the game's final 5½ minutes.

Four Ocelots reached double-figures in scoring: Abdrabboh (21), Steve Whitlow (20), Murray (19) and LaMonte Fondren (14). Murray grabbed 12 rebounds, Whitlow collected nine boards and five assists, with Fondren pulling in nine rebounds.

Travis Smith's 17 points paced Alpena. George Blanchard scored 16 and Aaron Covin had 15.

Alpena is 8-15 overall, 4-10 in the conference.

The turning point, according to SC coach Dave Bogataj, came in the final four minutes of the first half when both Murray and Fondren — the Ocelots' best inside threats — picked up their third fouls. That left the rebounding load against a bigger team to Whitlow and Abdrabboh, and it became a factor late in the game.

"It took the legs out of the kids," said Bogataj.

Mike Slone scored off a rebound with 20 seconds left (63-59), and Brandon Slone and Head sank two free throws each to give Salem some cushion.

"We're upset because we didn't win, but Salem is a team in the upper echelon of the league and we played with them and made them scrap to win," Paye said.

"I told the kids 'You can expect this game to go into the fourth quarter.' Our goal was to have a shot at winning it in the fourth and we definitely did."

Head scored 12 of 17 points in the second half, Brandon Slone 11 of 16 and Mike Slone 10 of 14. Jensen added seven. Crosby scored 10 of his 16 points in the first half to pace Canton, and Bryan Whittle tossed in 12.

The Chiefs also led 12-8 after one quarter and 22-16 at halftime. Canton made 15 turnovers in the first half but had good movement in the low post, led by Crosby's aggressive play on offense and defensive effort while guarding Mike Slone.

Salem was hurt by poor shooting and 14 turnovers. The Rocks were 2-of-14 from the floor in the second period and 5-of-23 for the half.

Canton made 11 of 23 first-half shots. The Rocks finished 21-of-52 and the Chiefs 24-of-55. Salem made 24 of 37 free throws, Canton 10 of 16.

"Canton had some great defensive intensity, and I think they caught our players by surprise," Brodie said. "I'm not happy with the way we came prepared for the game, but I was pleased with the way we came back.

"The teams we're playing are quality teams, and they take their level of play up a notch when they play us. We're not getting prepared mentally for that when we step on the floor.

"But, if you're going to be a good team, you have to win the close ones, and we're doing it without playing real well."

Churchill clobbers crosstown rival

Eleven players scored Tuesday as host Livonia Churchill cruised to a 66-42 boys basketball victory over city rival Stevenson.

Churchill is now 3-12 overall and 2-8 in the Western Lakes Activities Association. Stevenson drops to 5-10 and 2-8.

Senior forward Bill Morris paced a balanced Churchill scoring attack with 13 points. Senior forward Drew Jurcisin and senior guard Jason Baranowski contributed 12 and eight, respectively.

Junior center Jeff Barry also made his presence known with four blocked shots.

The Spartans, who couldn't handle Churchill's full-court pressure from the start, got 13 points from senior center Adam Roy and eight from junior forward Brad Morgan.

■ N'VILLE 72, GLENN 65: On Tuesday, the host Mustangs outscored Westland John Glenn 24-10 in the second period en route to the WLAA victory.

John Farrar and Mike Maschek tallied 18 and 14, respectively, for Northville, now 10-6 overall and 5-5 in the conference.

John Miller, a senior forward, scored 20 to lead the Rockets (11-4, 7-3), who lost for the third straight time. Seniors Ken Taylor and Aaron Scheffer chipped in with 17 and 11, respectively.

■ CENTRAL 79, FRANKLIN 47: State-ranked and WLAA leader Walled Lake Central (16-0, 10-0) jumped out to a 48-18 halftime lead Tuesday on its way to an easy victory against host Livonia Franklin (5-10, 2-8).

Eric Leaf was one of four Vikings scoring in double figures with 19 points. Central had a total nine 3-pointers.

Junior forward Mark Baluk led the Patriots with 12 points.

Salem boasts 3 league champs

By Bill Parker
Staff Writer

WRESTLING

The dual meet wrestling season in the Western Lakes Activities Association was a "Battle Royal" this year.

Three teams — Westland John Glenn, Plymouth Salem and Livonia Stevenson — fought to a three-way tie in the Lakes Division as each team finished the season at 4-1 in the division.

Walled Lake Western won the Western Division with a 5-0 record, while Northville placed second with a 4-1 record after dropping a 39-27 contest to the Warriors.

So it came as no surprise that Saturday's WLAA tournament at Walled Lake Central was a dogfight to the end.

Entering the finals, the team standings were deadlocked, with Glenn and Northville at the top of the chart with 139.5 points each. Salem was third with 124, and Stevenson was fourth with 108.

But when the final match was over late Saturday evening it was Northville standing alone at the top. The Mustangs won the tournament with 156.5 points, edging John Glenn, which finished second with 153.5. Salem finished third with 146 points, followed by Stevenson with 126 and Western with 124.

"I really didn't know if we could do it," said Northville coach Bob Boshoven, whose team placed 10th in the same tournament a year ago. "I'm real proud of the way the kids responded. Up and down the lineup, this is an incredible group of overachievers.

"We only have two seniors on the team; the rest are underclassmen. We came here with 12 wrestlers and we placed 10 of them. I can't ask for anything more."

The Rockets also placed 10 wrestlers, led by three-time league champion Mike Reeves, who breezed through the 160-pound bracket.

"It was a pretty mediocre day for us," said Glenn coach Dave Hill, whose team sports an 8-1 dual meet record. "We've had better days."

For Reeves, the defending state champion and two-time WLAA champ at 152 pounds, the day couldn't have been much better. Reeves won his first two matches by pin (0:35 and 3:13) then earned an easy 16-3 major decision over North Farmington's Jared Lawrence — the defending league champ at 160 — in the finals. Reeves is 28-0 on the season.

"We really have a fine team," said Reeves. "We only have four seniors on the team and the rest are underclassmen. Everyone came together as a team and the sophomores are really coming on strong."

The Rockets also received strong performances from second-place finishers Mike Henry (125 pounds) and Matt Grace (140) and third-place finishers Anthony Underwood (112) and Gerry Simoneau (152).

Plymouth Salem finished the day with nine wrestlers placing in the top six, including three champions. John Svec won the league crown at 152 with a 3-2 decision over Northville's Adam Lynch. Wade Langdon won the crown at 171 with a 5-3 decision over Franklin's Jesse Shakarian, and Salem heavyweight Ryan Giuliani won his first league title with a 3-2 decision over Stevenson's Dave Ross.

"We wrestled well, but there were a couple bad situations," said Salem coach Ron Krueger. "I don't like to cry, but the officiating here today . . . Well, we saw some kids get hurt."

Krueger was especially pleased with the progress of Langdon, the only senior on the team.

"I'm real happy for Langdon," Krueger said. "He sat out last season with a shoulder separation, but he came back this year and went through the league and won it. I'm real proud of him."

Scott Goldman and Craig Martin led the Spartans by winning championships in their respective weight classes. Goldman earned an 18-8 major decision over Glenn's Matt Grace in the title match at 140 while Martin stuck Harrison's Dave Gloetzner in 3:18 at 189.

Western finished with three league champions. Rob Fritz earned an 11-2 major decision over Northville's Mike Steiner in the championship match at 103 pounds. Andy Fritz improved to 30-0 when he clipped Central's Lee Southard 7-4 in the title match at 112. Travis Ilacqua won the 145-pound division when he earned an injury default over Stevenson's Chris Mullett. Ilacqua is 33-0.

North featured a league champ in 125-pounder Dave Orow, who earned a 9-1 major decision over Glenn's Mike Henry.

Canton's Nick Spano, the defending WLAA champ at 130, won the 135-pound championship with a 7-6 decision over Central's Frank Lovio.

The other league champions were Northville's Jason Tarrow at 119 and Matt Allison at 130.

Lewke won the vault competition with a 9.1 and had the best Canton/Salem finish on beam and floor, placing third (8.85) and fourth (8.8), respectively. Tedesco fared the best on bars and finished second (8.75).

Canton coach John Cunningham had hoped the fifth-ranked Chiefs could overtake No. 3 Freeland but admitted the host school was a bit stronger that day.

"We started on beam and, if you wanted to choose where to start your meet, it would not be on beam," he said. "That's the most difficult thing to walk into a gym, do your warm-ups and jump up on beam."

■ 'We started on beam and, if you wanted to choose where to start your meet, it would not be on beam. That's the most difficult thing: to walk into a gym, do your warm-ups and jump up on beam.'
John Cunningham
Canton coach

Cunningham added the individual Canton routines were fine but was not happy with some of the scores his gymnasts received.

"I told the kids 'You have to look past the judges and ask 'How well did I do?' and they did very well," he said. "The most important thing is that we see improvement across the board.

"I'm going for third place in the state, and we have to see improvement. We only have three weeks left. I am seeing it and it's going to make the difference at the end."

In the annual Centennial Educational Park dual meet Monday, the Rocks defeated Canton, 143.1 to 135.2. Salem is 8-0 and the Chiefs 8-2.

"It was a very relaxed meet; there was no doubt about the outcome," Cunningham said, adding the Salem "potential for scoring cannot be minimized. We had to get the kids to concentrate and have a good meet, which we did."

Miller was tops in all-around scoring (36.8) followed by Gonyea (36.15), Makins (35.1), Rennolds (35.0) and Lewke (33.25). Tedesco averaged 9.0 but did only three events.

Gonyea and Miller tied for first in vaulting (9.2), and Miller was alone at the top on bars (9.45). Gonyea had the best score on beam (9.3) and Rennolds on floor (9.35).

"Kim Miller was really on tonight," Anderson said. "She threw her hand-front vault, which was really impressive. All of her routines were great."

Canton's Kim Nowak (third) and Tedesco (fourth) had personal bests of 9.2 and 9.1 on floor exercise, respectively.

Salem and Canton will have a B meet tonight for gymnasts who need qualifying scores and those who don't usually get to compete. Canton's makeup meet with Farmington will be Tuesday, Feb. 23.

Sportsmanship rules in WLAA

By Bill Parker
Staff Writer

WRESTLING

It's easy to preach about good sportsmanship, but it's another thing to practice what you preach.

Last week was designated Good Sportsmanship Week in the Western Lakes Activities Association and Livonia Stevenson wrestling coach Don Berg capped off the week with a true act of sportsmanship at the WLAA wrestling tournament at Walled Lake Central.

Stevenson sophomore Chris Mullett was seeded second at 145 pounds and advanced to the championship where he met top-seeded and undefeated senior Travis Ilacqua (33-0) of Walled Lake Western.

Ilacqua picked Mullett off his feet at the start of the match and brought the Spartan wrestler to the mat with a body slam. Mullet was injured on the move and couldn't continue wrestling. Since Ilacqua was penalized a point for the body slam he would have lost the match by forfeit if Mullett couldn't continue.

"When he tried to get up he couldn't, he was kind of wobbly," said Berg. "I said right then he wouldn't continue, but we didn't want to win the match like that."

Instead, Mullett shook off the injury as best as he could and returned to the mat. As soon the referee blew the whistle to restart the match, Mullett retired, giving the match to Ilacqua. Since the match was restarted after the injury it was ruled a loss to Mullett by injury default rather than a loss by forfeit to Ilacqua.

"The same thing happened to one of my wrestlers many years ago, and he would have been a state qualifier," Berg said. "I said at the time I would never do that to a kid. Mr. Ilacqua dislocated his hip last year and couldn't go to state. He is a class wrestler, and I know he wasn't deliberately trying to hurt (Mullett).

"The loss hurt my wrestler more than the injury, but he's only a sophomore, he'll bounce back," said Berg. "He's a class kid."

Ladywood survives scare from Mercy

By Brad Emons
Staff Writer

Monday was President's Day, but two longtime Catholic League volleyball rivals couldn't take the day off.

Livonia Ladywood, the pre-tourney favorite, was nearly impeached from the A-B Division playoffs, but the host Blazers rallied in the second and third games to edge rival Farmington Hills Mercy, 15-9, 10-15, 15-12.

Ladywood (26-6-2 overall) tangles with Dearborn Divine Child beginning at 7:30 tonight at Madonna University for the A-B title.

Redford St. Agatha and Center Line St. Clement will square off in the first game of the doubleheader at 5:30 for the C-D Division championship.

Ladywood is now 4-0 in the season series against the Marlins, but it was by far Mercy's most inspired performance of the four encounters.

The Blazers were able to overcome a 10-8 deficit in the second game to even the match at one apiece thanks to the timely hitting of senior Liz Gunn and the clutch back-row play of junior Tara Overaitis.

But in the third game, Mercy jumped out to leads of 6-0 and 10-5 before the Blazers came charging back. The run was capped by Andrea Putti's kill to clinch the victory.

"This was definitely the toughest of the four matches we've had with Mercy," Ladywood coach Tom Teeters said. "There were three key factors in our victory.

"First, Lyndi Paling came in off the bench and had two big kills. Heather Zupec then had a rundown at a dig, and came up with another. And Mary Jo Kelly was able to mix things up and make their left-front people cover more ground."

Kelly, who had difficulty hitting over and through Mercy's block at the net, resorted to dumps and dink shots to keep the Marlins off balance.

The 5-foot-8 senior finished with a team-high 16 kills along with Gunn.

"Give her credit, Mary Jo adjusted to the circumstances and it worked," Teeters said. "But you don't want to live and die on it."

Mercy, meanwhile, relied on the potent hitting of 6-foot senior Angela Assad, who has been terror of late. She had 21 kills for the evening.

But after Mercy had exhausted its substitutes on rotation in the decisive third game, Assad was forced to the bench.

"When she couldn't come back that pumped up our hitters," Teeters said.

But it was a struggle for the Blazers, even with Assad out of the lineup.

"Every single time we've been a little closer against Ladywood," said Mercy first-year coach Peggy Spengler. "I thought we had them a couple of times tonight, but Ladywood is a great team. Even when they get themselves in a hole, they seem to work themselves out."

The Marlins, however, are beginning to see signs of improvement after a slow start this season.

Senior outside-hitter Kristina Kudelko played a strong all-around game. She led Mercy with 23 digs, while 5-9 junior Jill Higgins added 18.

"This team has come so far," Spengler said. "The idea of our whole season is to peak at the end of the year, and we certainly are.

"We try and use everybody. We also just brought up four good players from JV team, two sophomores and two freshmen. Our goal the next two weeks, before the state tournament starts, is to work our players around more."

Ladywood, meanwhile, received strong contributions from middle-blockers Val Adzima (22 digs) and Tara Overaitis (21). Junior Kristy Walker added 14 digs and 18 receptions.

Ladywood reached the semifinal Monday with a 15-7, 15-9 win over Madison Heights Bishop Foley, while Mercy ousted Allen Park Cabrini in the other quarterfinal, 15-8, 15-11.

CC skaters overcome Norsemen, travel woes

It was a long ride home for the Redford Catholic Central hockey team following Tuesday's Michigan Metro High School Hockey League game at Grosse Pointe North.

But the Shamrocks didn't mind the wait following a 5-4 triumph over the host Norsemen as Jon Heady led the way with three goals and one assist. He now has 18 goals and 21 assists on the season.

"The bus overheated and we had about a one-hour and 30-minute wait on the expressway," said CC coach Gumbleton, whose team is 12-5-3 overall and 6-4-2 in the Metro. "We kind of froze while waiting for another bus. It was cold, but it all worked out well."

Mike Kasper added a goal and two assists. Mike Giordano also chipped in with a goal.

Brian Ronayne collected three assists, while Justin Ronayne had two.

Jamie Ronayne was the winning goaltender.

On Saturday, CC skated to a 10-1 Metro victory over visiting Ann Arbor Huron in a game played at the Redford Ice Arena.

Heady and Brian Ronayne each collected hat tricks.

'Plaza Suite' good cast, funny

■ Two veteran performers star in Meadow Brook Theatre's presentation of Neil Simon's comedy "Plaza Suite." The show is a collection of three playlets.

Neil Simon's "Plaza Suite" continues through March 7 at the Meadow Brook Theatre on the campus of Oakland University in Rochester Hills. For ticket information, call 377-3300.

BY HUGH GALLAGHER
STAFF WRITER

"Plaza Suite" is an actor's romp and Mary Pat Gleason and Wil Love are having a wonderful time at Meadow Brook Theatre.

These two outstanding actors each play three parts in Neil Simon's collection of three playlets all set in the same suite in New York's classic hotel at the entrance to Central Park. Director Terence Kilburn finds the proper balance between Simon's humor and his bittersweet observations on human nature.

These plays are Simon before he became introspective and nostalgic. This is the Simon of zingy one liners and sure-fire comic situations. But the serious Simon was there, it was just more generalized and less personal.

Gleason and Love are veteran performers who get the most out of every funny line while never reducing Simon's richly human characters to comics. They find the poignancy beneath the humor.

In the first play, Gleason is a long-married wife eager to celebrate her anniversary with her successful businessman husband. He has other things on his mind.

This is the most serious of the three plays and the one requiring the widest range of emotions. The jokes are here, especially in Gleason's running commentary on her exasperations, but it is the sadness that seems most real. Love captures a special weariness in his distraction and obtuseness.

The second play is the flimsiest of the three. Love plays a successful producer who comes back to seduce an old girlfriend. Here Simon makes a joke of his own celebrity and the way people treat so-called celebrities. The humor is in the broad characterizations and the silly name dropping (updated for currency).

The last play is the funniest as a frantic mother and father try to talk their daughter out of the bathroom on her wedding day.

Love takes center stage here as the ranting, raving, tyrannical father with a heart of marshmallow. He storms, he roars, he pounds and he has a good time doing it, and we have a good time watching him. Gleason keeps up very well through all the mayhem and does wonders with a run in her stocking.

Special note has to made of Peter Hicks' attractive suite and New York City streetscape.

Neil Simon is America's most popular playwright, and it was easy, funny but not trivial works like "Plaza Suite" that won him that title. He has since gone on to enrich us with a fuller and darker comedy while never forgetting to make us laugh.

Production company moves to Livonia

West End Repertory of Livonia will debut with Neil Simon's "The Gingerbread Lady," 8 p.m. Friday, Feb. 26, weekends through March 7 at the Livonia Civic Center Library, 32777 Five Mile Road, Livonia. Sunday shows are at 2 p.m., tickets $8 to $7, call 544-4079.

Started by Sally Dubats, who also writes theater reviews for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, and Francine Hachem, West End has been producing shows for eight years. Now in Livonia, they will will open in cooperation with the Livonia Arts Commission.

West End has produced shows in Detroit and Dearborn, and won awards for directing and acting. Favorite shows include — "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf," "Extremities," "Twigs," "The Perfect Party," "Beyond Therapy," and "The Road to Mecca."

"We work on all realms of theater, sets, props, publicity, technical and especially artistic," said Hachem. "We have a longer rehearsal period than most companies to make sure everything is flawless."

The name "West End" was agreed upon because Dubats thought it sounded elite — West End is the theater district of London. And Hachem felt it sounded rough — reminiscent of the gangs of New York City's west side. West End is comprised of both concepts.

"We prefer mind-provoking or off-Broadway type contemporary works, shows which aren't otherwise performed in community theaters," said Hachem. "If the play is a comedy, it usually also serves as a social comment as well."

Their current production, Neil Simon's "The Gingerbread Lady," is a comedy, but it also has a dark side, said Dubats.

"Simon's humor is finely honed in this play, but the social comment is the tragedy of alcoholism."

Dubats and Hachem also teach theater in the area, and have worked with teens to use drama against drugs. One play, "Juvie," with an all-teen cast, depicted the horrors of drug use.

Non-stop fun continues in 'Nunsense' sequel

BARBARA MICHALS

With veils flying, the zany Little Sisters of Hoboken are up their outrageous antics again in "Nunsense II," subtitled "The Second Coming." Dan Goggin's new musical is having its world premiere at the Birmingham Theatre.

The non-stop fun continues, even if this time around the humor doesn't seem as fresh, as spontaneous, or as clever. Sequels to successful shows have built-in problems — it's hard for the second one not to seem like an obvious imitation of the first; and audience expectations can run so high that it's nearly impossible to to live up to them.

Will "Nunsense II" raise your spirits and make you laugh? Absolutely. Will audiences find it so hilarious that they want to return again as they did with the original show? Probably not.

The format is the same this time — a variety show that allows the five nuns to showcase their individual talents. While the original began with an absurdly funny premise — to raise money to bury the "blue nuns" stored in the freezer — the new show runs on the weak notion of giving a thank-you show for those who attended the previous fund-raiser.

This time the nuns have been bitten by the "theater flea" and are unabashedly eager to show-off. There's also a running concern about whether or not the Franciscan order will claim Sister Mary Amnesia (Nancy E. Carroll) as one of their own, not an inately funny situation.

"Nunsense II" opens strongly with the sisters out mixing with the audience to stir up a big welcome for Mother Superior (Kathy Robinson as Sister Mary Regina). She in turn admonishes audience late-comers.

There's also a wonderful conclusion when Mother Superior lets it all hang out with a hand-clapping gospel number called "There's Only One Way to End Your Prayers."

In betweeen there's some topical jibes at Zoe Baird, Ross Perot, and Marilyn Quayle; Catholic humor ranging from pleasantly silly (an autographed picture of St. Anthony, a pasta Madonna made from 40 kinds of noodles — some assembly required) to terribly forced, and wild anachronisms like the sisters doing the can-can and one "holy roller" on skates.

The cast is not as uniformly excellent as past companies of "Nunsense." Robinson is outstanding as Mother Superior.

Christine Anderson is perfect as Sister Robert Anne, the street-tough Brooklynite full of wisecracks. Anderson created the role in the original production, and it's hard to imagine anyone else improving on it.

Lyn Vaux is still likable as the frustrated ballerina, Sister Mary Leo, a role she played in the Birmingham production two years ago.

Carroll has good vocal skills but isn't at all funny as Sister Mary Amnesia, in part because this dopey character isn't nearly as endearing when her memory returns.

Donna M. Ryan is disappointing as Sister Mary Hubert despite a fine voice. Her grimacing and grumbling at Mother Superior never reaches the comic level of previous Huberts.

Playwright Goggin directs this production with the same quick pacing as the original, and there's still lots of audience interaction, though with varying degrees of success.

Barbara Michals is a retired Southfield English teacher. A theater critic for the last 19 years, she is an inveterate playgoer who regularly catches up on all the New York productions.

Outstanding violinist to perform with symphony

Violinist Melody Wootton of Troy, alumnus of the Livonia Youth Philharmonic, will perform with the Scandinavian Symphony Orchestra at 8 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 27 at Churchill High School, 8900 Newburgh, Livonia.

Tickets are $7 ($15 family), and can be purchased at the door.

Wootton studied with Paul Kantor at the Cleveland Institute of Music, and Donald Weilerstein, first violinist with the Cleveland Symphony.

Wootton, 22, performs with the Windsor, Ann Arbor and Flint symphonies, and is pursuing her master's degree at the University of Michigan.

On the program will be the overture to "The Thieving Magpie" by Rossini, "The Scottish Fantasy" by Bruck, and Dvorak's Symphony Number 8.

Founded in 1929, the Scandinavian Symphony dedicated itself to performing music by Scandinavian composers. Today, the symphony's expanded international repertoire and richly multi-cultural performing artists reflect their broader audience.

The Scandinavian Symphony Society offers membership which brings season mailings, special event invitations, and volunteer opportunities. For information, call 532-3720.

Series to feature magician

The Plymouth Community Arts Council presents magician Bill Heiney for an entertaining morning of mystery, 10:30 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 20, at the Penn Theater, 760 Penniman Avenue, Plymouth.

'Fiddler on the Roof' lively, entertaining

Performances of "Fiddler on the Roof" at the George Burns Theatre for the Performing Arts in Livonia continue through Feb. 21. For ticket information, call (900) 589-8000 or Ticketmaster, 645-6666. There is a $5 charge for parking. Valet parking is $8. Saturday, Feb. 20, evening and matinee performances, and Sunday, Feb. 21, matinee are sold out.

MARY JANE DOERR

The fiddler comes down off the roof in the touring production of "Fiddler on the Roof" at the George Burns Theatre for the Performing Arts and meanders around Anatevka with Tevye on his milk route. It is just one way director/choreographer Sammy Dallas Bayes has broken away from the show's stylized versions to make this production fun.

No longer do we feel sorry for Tevye and company. The show is filled with knee-kicking dancing, a vibrant men's chorus, and a funny approach to the lines. Bayes stages the wedding scene clearly to understand how Jewish traditions are broken when Perchik crosses the line between men and women, and adds horror to the disturbance by continuing it off stage as the others watch.

John Preece's Tevye is still philosophical and loud but gentle-hearted and loving with a humor that mimics the others, always drawing a laugh. Gisele Carpenter is a softer Golde, perhaps because she has a nice voice.

Laura Stark, Natalie Collins, and Shorey Walker are not humble or meek as the three daughters, Tzeitel, Hodel, and Chava. Dressed in shades of peasant browns and each with long beautiful hair, they are outspoken teenagers able to take on the political unrest in pre-Revolutionary Russia and sing about it vividly in "Matchmaker, Matchmaker."

No cardboard voices in this show, Dallas has musical talent to work with — a lovely baritone in John Preece, a resonant tone with Gisele Carpenter in her solo "Sunrise, Sunset," and a cast deep with a solid sound.

In the pit, eight musicians follow up with the real fiddler, an electronic keyboard, a computer, and a phone carrying conductor for the 1993 version of the orchestra.

Dancing to that "Hava Nagela" beat in front of the painted backdrops, and movable scenery to the many musical numbers, Dallas' show has energy and more happiness than sorrow. The barroom brawl is filled with excitement as Lazar Wolf, Scott Davidson, a carbon copy of Preece, banters with Tevye humorously as the men dance wildly - a wonderful scene.

Clubs sponsor combo audition and AIDS benefit

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

The Woodward corridor near the State Theatre will be jamming the night of Thursday, Feb. 18.

From 8 p.m. to 2 a.m. the State Theatre is sponsoring the "Woodward Jam" — a massive audition for radio station 89X and its weekly dance night at the theater, Club X.

The State Theatre is at 2115 Woodward Ave. next to the Fox Theatre. Those 18 years and older will be admitted. For more information, call 961-5450.

Jon Witz, responsible for booking local acts into the venue, said the "Woodward Jam" is the response to the deluge of requests by area bands to play Club X.

"Between all of our venues (the State and the adjacent Twenty-36), we've had a lot of bands call who want to play," Witz said. "This will give them all a chance to audition."

Originally planned as a Club X audition night, it quickly snowballed into an AIDS benefit and a chance for local bands to be heard by 89X executives.

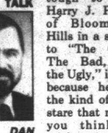
GM's rebuttal reveals design safety

AUTO TALK



DAN McCOSH

It wouldn't be tough to cast Harry J. Pearce of Bloomfield Hills in a sequel to "The Good, The Bad, and the Ugly," if only because he has the kind of level stare that makes you think he might ruin Clint Eastwood's day.

Pearce actually once was a judge in Bismarck, N.D., although his official biography at General Motors, where he is now executive vice president and general counsel, does not mention whether he was of the hanging variety.

The folks at NBC's Dateline have no doubt of that, however, after being subjected to Pearce's excruciating public dismemberment of the television magazine show's portrayal of GM's older pickup trucks as rolling safety hazards.

The courtroom-style performance Pearce conducted on the ground floor of GM's corporate headquarters a few weeks ago left no doubt about the nearly unbelievable sloppiness and lack of ethics on the part of the Dateline crew, who had allowed a consultant working for the plaintiff's side in a product-liability case against GM to wire up the truck with remote-controlled rocket motors to ensure the gas tank would go off on cue.

In fact, Dateline's position was so indefensible, it was no big achievement to discredit the show.

What was more remarkable was Pearce's controlled, but visibly angry, presentation — a methodical examination of every detail of how and why the gas tank burst into flames on camera.

Pearce's tour de force of technical investigation was likely the first time any auto company executive had managed an impassioned, credible, statement that went beyond defending its products, and began to counter the most damning impression left in the wake of most product liability suits — that the company involved is callous, sloppy, and uncaring about public safety.

Along with uncovering the subterfuge undertaken by the news show, the methodical detail revealed about the design of the fuel system in GM pickups had to impress anyone watching that considerable care, testing and research has been done over the years, contrasting mightily with the junk science favored by the self-proclaimed safety experts.

Exactly why this hasn't happened before is still good for a long evening of debate.

Most engineers called in for an on-camera rebuttal seem to clam up in front of the camera, or wander off into irrelevant detail, when asked to explain why they designed a car the way they did.

The specifics of a personal injury are countered with dry, impersonal statistics. Numerous executives wave off a rebuttal with the statement "No comment, it's in court," or even "It was the driver's fault."

There have been precious few times when the public gets a peek at how thorough a major auto company normally is when it is designing cars.

Pearce managed more than a peek — he gave a lot of people a long, hard look.

two years. Usually speculators are not well diversified and they make frequent changes in their portfolio in any given year.

An investment approach applies both diversification and a long-term time horizon. The expectation is to achieve returns that meet or slightly exceed the broad market averages. For example, over the last 65 years, the stock market has produced about a 10 percent compound rate of return. This return has occurred despite recessions, depressions, wars, presidential assassinations and many other difficulties and uncertainties.

In our experience, the average investor is far better off with the investment approach. This approach gives a smoother ride than the all-or-nothing approach of the speculator.

Consider two investors, each of whom has $10,000 to invest. The first investor achieves a 7-percent rate of return for each of four years; the second achieves a 15-percent rate of return the first three years, but then loses 15 percent in the fourth year. Most investors would feel pretty good about being right three out of four years. But the first investor would have outperformed the second, with an ending balance of $13,107 vs. $12,927. (See chart.)

Thus, dampening portfolio volatility is a primary goal of good investment management. This can be accomplished through proper asset allocation.

Liquidity factor

When designing a portfolio, liquidity (accessibility of your money) is always a factor to consider. Generally, a price is paid for liquidity. Liquid assets are typically fully taxable or they may produce lower rates of return. The amount of liquidity in a portfolio should be closely matched to the goals for which the money is allocated. For example, emergency funds should be highly liquid. We categorize assets into four segments or tiers:

■ Tier I: Immediate liquidity and stability for emergency reserves and short-term savings goals. This category includes secondary reserves that may have a minor cost to liquidate. Examples: savings, money markets, short-term CDs.

■ Tier II: Growth and liquidity for longer-term goals, in which there is variability of yearly returns but no penalty for withdrawals. Examples: stocks, bonds, mutual funds.

■ Tier III: Semi-liquid, tax-favored investment vehicles, primarily oriented toward future retirement income. Examples: IRAs, 401(k) plans, tax-sheltered annuities.

■ Tier IV: Illiquid investments for diversification, asset growth, and often favorable tax treatment. Examples: private business, limited partnerships, real estate.

The objective is to keep adequate liquidity for future needs, but no more. Tier II assets such as stocks and bonds generally provide higher long-term returns than Tier I assets. But enough assets should be kept in Tier I to meet monthly expenses and minor emergencies. There should be a cushion so that stocks or bonds are not forcibly sold at an inopportune time.

Similarly, Tier II assets generally should be oriented toward retirement and not used earlier unless an emergency occurs. Tier IV assets are always optional in a portfolio; illiquid investments should only be made where the asset can be tied up indefinitely and if there is an unusual opportunity.

Time horizon

The goal for which any money is saved may have a significant impact on choosing an appropriate asset allocation model. A short-term goal may limit the investment choices. For example, funds needed for a child's college costs in two years should be invested differently than money invested for retirement in 20 years. Assets that have greater volatility can be used for longer-term goals since temporary setbacks will likely be offset by the more frequent times when the asset is growing in value.

Next week: Structuring an asset allocation model.

ways carried a lot of fine wines and had knowledgeable customers, and I felt I was doing them a disservice because they knew more about the business than I did."

So Lutfy immersed himself in the wine culture, reading the masters and tasting as many different wines as possible.

"I never took any formal training," he said. "I just taught myself by studying the masters."

Lutfy now makes it a point of traveling to both France and California twice a year to keep up on his business. He also conducts about 25 wine tastings a year for various restaurants and provides wines for a number of charitable events.

So passionate has he become about his business that it has crept into his family life.

"Those are my two daughters," he says, pointing to a picture placed among a scattering of wine orders and his signature corkscrews. "The oldest is Remy (now 4), who is named after my favorite cognac, Remy Martin, and the youngest is Margaux (now 2) who's named after the French wine."

No room for stuffiness

Despite his high-profile status in the industry, Jim Lutfy bristles at the formality and stuffiness that many associate with drinking fine wines.

"Wine should be fun and considered a beverage, not something to be intimidated by in a restaurant," he said. "We try to provide the best service we can to our customers and make them feel comfortable about their purchases."

As for his personal taste, Lutfy said he loves all kinds of wine, but finds particular pleasure in very old vintages.

"When you drink a very old bottle, it's like reliving a part of history," he said. "A fine wine has a life of its own, and it's exciting to watch that life change in the bottle over the years."

Asked if he envisioned the day when his business would become separate from the rest of the Cloverleaf operation, Lutfy hesitated for just a moment before saying: "Things have worked out pretty well for me and my family over the years. I think we'll keep things just the way they are."

There's no arguing with success.

Operation of wine business flourishes like a fine bouquet

■ Self-educated on the subject of wine, Jim Lufty has seen his studiousness pay off in sales and faithful customers.

BY JOE BAUMAN
STAFF WRITER

When Anthony "Tony" Lutfy moved his grocery business from Detroit to Southfield more than 30 years ago, little did he know his market would become known internationally for its wine business.

Cloverleaf Market, located at 12 Mile and Telegraph in Southfield since 1960, continues as a family operation, offering customers gourmet imported foods, choice meats and deli products, and fresh produce still selected by Tony Lutfy in daily pilgrimages to Detroit's Eastern Market.

But it is the wine business that has made the market, and Lutfy's 32-year-old son, Jim, famous.

Jim Lutfy's wine business might best be described as controlled chaos. Squirreled away in a corner office of a second-story storage area crammed from floor to ceiling with more than 2,000 cases of wine, Lutfy decides what some of the country's most influential people stock in their private wine cellars.

Lutfy's wine operation is attached to the back of the otherwise modest looking building, although he now keeps a 4,500-square-foot warehouse in Novi to handle his overflow stock.

'Just regular' customers

While he declines to name any of his 5,000 faithful customers — a full 35 percent from across the border in Canada — who routinely spend $10,000 and much more a year on the finest French Bordeaux and Burgundy wines, he says his client base varies from captains of industry to entertainers and "just regular people" with a lot of discretionary income.

"We concentrate on the high end of wines, but we sell a lot of everyday wines as well," Lutfy said during a recent interview in his cramped office. "We're known for being able to get the best wines available whether they be new vintages or special older wines."

Jim Lutfy and the market he now co-owns is recognized as one of the country's largest sellers of fine Burgundy wine and one of the top 10 Bordeaux merchants nationally. For his efforts, he was recognized in September by the Market Watch trade magazine as an industry leader in the wine market.

While Jim Lutfy watches over the multi-million dollar wine business, the rest of his family pitches in to run the rest of the family concern.

In addition to his father, brother Paul assists the seven-person wine staff and is in charge of the other beverages sold at the store; sister Nancy "handles the money" from the front end of the store as office manager; and sister Lisa is in charge of whipping up the market's famous deli sandwiches.

Family business ethic

Paul Lutfy, 28, said Cloverleaf is probably similar to many other family businesses: lots of work and long hours, but with one huge difference.

"Jimmy and his knowledge of wine has made this store special," he said. "I know about wine because I'm learning from Jimmy. Ask anyone and they'll tell you he's the master."

Jim Lutfy's start in the wine business was anything but a planned event.

"In 1980, my father became seriously ill and I had to take over running the store," he said. "My dad al-

Diversification, risk, liquidity determine investment course

First of three parts

BY DANIEL BOYCE
and ALAN FERRARA
SPECIAL WRITERS

"Great estates may venture more; smaller ships should stay near shore."

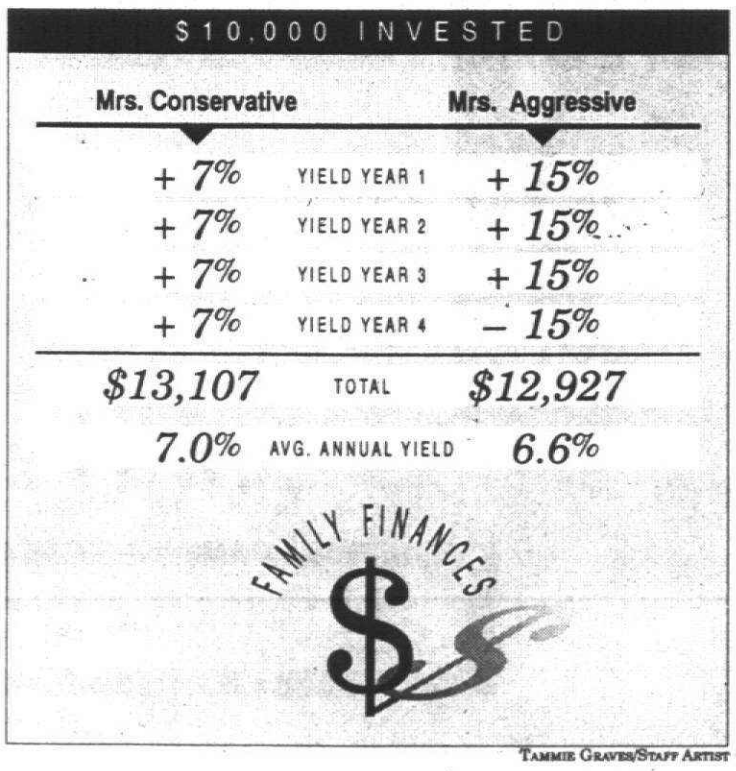
Investments are governed by the size of one's portfolio, the goal for which the money will be used, and the time frame before the investment will be liquidated. Our article focuses on developing and maintaining the best mix of investments.

Most people purchase investments for the wrong reasons. In a typical scenario, money is sitting in their bank account; they know it should be working harder for them. They may hear a tip from a friend or a stockbroker, or they read a magazine article presenting an "outstanding investment opportunity." Deciding that the idea sounds a lot better than keeping the money in the bank at 3 percent, they make the investment. Over time, additional investments are made in this manner with purchases of a "little of this and a little of that."

Without clearly formulated guidelines, this well-intentioned attempt at diversification results in a hodgepodge of assets; some of which are successful while others are not. Burdened by an increase in paperwork or disappointed at the first significant setback, many people will become discouraged, sell their investment at the wrong time, and then run back to the bank.

How do we overcome this self-defeating cycle? Even if this hit-and-miss approach has been relatively successful, how can we improve the efficiency or reduce the risk level of an investment portfolio?

The answer is to develop a long-term strategy that will prosper in a wide variety of economic conditions. Specific percentage guidelines for different investment categories are developed and maintained over time. Targets periodically reviewed and minor alterations may be made to remain within the established guidelines. Professionals call these targets and guidelines an "investment policy statement." The overall strategy is one that can be useful to all investors: asset allocation.



TAMMIE GRAVES/STAFF ARTIST

Myths: diversification

First, we need to explore a couple of investment myths. One myth relates to the term "diversification," which is a basic tenet of good financial planning. Many people think of diversification as simply having many different assets. If so, having a portfolio equally divided among GM, Ford, Chrysler, Volkswagen, Audi, Toyota, Nissan and other auto manufacturers would be a "diversified" portfolio. Less extreme, but still not truly diversified, would be an investment portfolio spread among quality stocks in many different industries; but in which all the investments are still in stocks.

To be truly diversified, a portfolio should contain assets in a number of different investment categories, such as bonds, money markets, real estate, guaranteed assets, tangible assets and stocks. Within each of these categories, there should also be a broad range of individual assets. This type of diversification produces the desired effect: reducing the risk level (or volatility) of the investment portfolio by not having too many eggs in any one basket.

Speculating vs. investing

A second myth is that placing money into assets that fluctuate in value is "speculative." For example, we frequently hear the phrase, "the stock market is always a gamble." This view is misleading at best and dead wrong at worst. We make clear distinction between investing and speculating.

The speculative approach to stocks (or any investment) typically seeks unusually high rates of return over a relatively short period of time — typically under

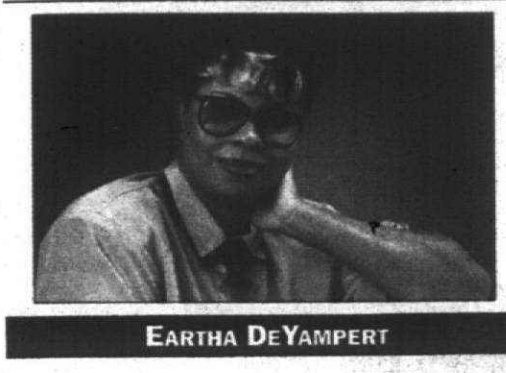
FAMILY LIFE



EARTHA DEYAMPERT

Should you open door to day care?

Does your home appear to be the place for children?

Do young children seem to assemble themselves right on your front lawn?

How about school-aged children just stopping by for that after-school snack with your child while they wait for their parents to come home?

Is your backyard a magnet for playground activity — the kids' choice spot for romping, climbing, ball playing, unplanned picnics, swinging, games and host of big time fun?

What about those little people who fearlessly press their noses against your clear glass front door, leaving those miniature and not so miniature fingerprints, hoping to be invited in for some special treat fresh from the oven you just might have cooling off?

If this sounds like your house, you might consider opening your doors to family day care . . . a child care business right in your home.

Providing care for children and operating a reputable business in your home requires a great deal of planning and serious consideration. It's not easy as ABC, but the opportunity to have a positive impact on youngsters' lives as well as implement some wonderful creative ideas as an entrepreneur makes it all worth the sometimes not-so-easy process.

If you are seriously pondering opening an in-home family day care business, do make note of the following five key points. When rearranging space in your home, consider:

(1) Safety first — Child proof each room. Remove things that are dangerous or harmful to children. Keep medicine out of reach of children and place safety caps on electrical outlets. Little children love to put things in those outlets.

Tape down long extension cords to avoid tripping and have safety gates for crawling infants and toddlers. Also have playpens and walkers to keep children from venturing into unsupervised areas.

Vacuum or sweep floors to remove debris and do a safety check every night or early morning. Check all equipment to ensure that there are no rough, pointed edges. And store toys on shelves at the reach of children so they can't fall on top of them.

(2) Age appropriate — When things are accessible, it helps to develop independence, so use things like child-sized coat hangers, stepping stools for hand washing and bathroom needs and child table and chairs.

Beware that toys kept too high result in a child becoming frustrated and climbing on a convenient object, which could result in injuries. And consider equipment that can be easily moved for rearrangement because of various activities.

(3) Room decor — Make sure your rooms are conducive to learning, that they're colorful, bright and comfortable, that they have wall and ceiling hangings that stimulate learning (like ABC boards, colors, numbers and familiar scenes), rocking chairs and bulletin boards (for messages and menus).

Also consider an aquarium with fish, turtles or other aquarium paraphernalia and a caged bird (which promotes curiosity of learning about other life forms).

Plan quiet, soft music to play for naptimes, especially for infants. Music has a positive effect on children as well as parents. Play it at arrival and pick-up times. Music can help set the tone of the environment.

Keep in mind that the room decor shouldn't be overstimulating, rather one that encourages learning and says "This is a different home." Children need to visualize a difference between home and the family day care home. Room arrangement should encourage curiosity and problem-solving skills in children. To a child, room decor should say, "This is my special place, a lot like home, but not home."

(4) Storage and space — Allow adequate storage space for day care and for your own family's things. Well-designed storage helps reduce clutter and increase space. You can use linen closets, shelf space, cardboard boxes, stacking baskets, crates and cabinets for needed storage.

Rotate toys; put away those the children aren't using then take them out later to give the children a feeling they're playing with something new and different.

Also be sure to allow for office/business space where you can have a filing cabinet or large box for keeping records and desk (or table).

(5) Your own family — Allow adequate space for your family. It's OK to have certain areas or rooms that are "off limits" and use a sign to iden-

Setting the stage for learning

From black folk tale characters like Rawhead and Bloody Bones to the antics of a Robin Williams-Heywood Banks hybrid by the name of O.J. Anderson, students are learning that learning can be fun and entertaining.

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

Question: What do you get when you mix the witty repartee of Robin Williams with the silly songs and anecdotes of Heywood Banks?

Answer: Education.

Education? You bet. That's what O.J. Anderson does when he takes his one-man show, "I Am Wonderful," to schools like Cooper Elementary School at Whittier in Westland.

Anderson is part of a troupe of professional actors and actresses, better known as Crossroads Productions Ltd., that makes its living "educating through entertainment."

"That's always been out goal," said Donald Calamia, director of the Redford-based theatrical troupe, "that learning doesn't have to be a boring stuffy lecture. It can be entertaining."

And entertaining it was for youngsters last week at Cooper School. Their howls of laughter attested to Anderson's ability to make them laugh and learn at the same time.

"He's a very active man and very, very funny," said principal Lorna Durand. "He had their attention the entire time."

About 300 kindergarten-sixth grades students were treated to Anderson's 45-minute presentation. The show was selected by a teacher committee because it fit in with the school's goal of working on self-esteem. It was paid for from money allocated by the Cooper PTA.

Little help: Physical education teacher Marc Hage gets help with his makeup from O.J. Anderson after being selected the "best mime in the city" by the entertainer.

An enrichment

"This is an enrichment to our curriculum," Durand said. "His issue was self-esteem and that part of the school's goals. He gave the children the message that they are special and that they can do things they think they can't do."

Anderson's program was so well received by the children that some have asked Durand if he will be back again this year or even next year.

The experience was a different one for youngsters at Stiles Elemenatry School in Rochester Hills, where the Crossroads troupe premiered its play for Black History Month, "Rawhead and Bloody Bones." Written specifically for Crossroads by Lea Charisse Woods, the play was a series of skits that looks at slavery through the eyes of the slaves.

The title is taken from several black folk tales that featured the characters Rawhead and Bloody Bones. The characters were used by the slaves to discipline their children rather than have them face the master.

The play was well received by the 150 second through fifth graders at Stiles, according to principal Maurice Anderson.

"They thought it was very good," he said. "We picked this because of its theme. Hopes are that it gets everybody motivated and interested and that that carries over into the classroom."

Like Durand at Cooper, Anderson also looks on the plays as enrichment "and an extension of the classroom."

Crossroads is in its 14th year of staging plays for students in kindergarten through the 12th grades. It got its start in 1979, doing productions aimed at elementary school children. A main stay of its early years, "Tarradiddle Tales," four authentic folk tales from around the world, is a still popular production.

Broadening focus

But the focus expanded in 1983, when the group was approached by the Oakland County Probate Court's Youth Assistance Program to develop a program using live theater to address the issue of substance abuse.

One thing led to another and before long Crossroads was developing a play on the subject of divorce for the Greater Detroit Section of the National Council for Jewish Women.

"Divorce Is Not the End of the World" utilizes live theater and discussion to help young people better understand divorce and how it affects each member of the family. It is being presented exclusively by Crossroads and SPACE for Changing Families.

"Most of our shows are original programs," said Calamia. "When we started out most of the scripts we rented from an agent. Now we have local writers like me develop plays for us. Crossroads retains the rights and the playwrights get a royalty for every performance."

Crossroads also is working with other organizations to produce is-

Author finds there's life after kids

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

Susan Skramstad now knows that there is life after having children. All she need do is look at her first published book.

The author of "Singing Teacher," Skramstad open the annual winter luncheon series sponsored by Schoolcraft College's Women's Resource Center. The assistant to the dean of the University of Michigan-Dearborn, she entertained the sold-out crowd with her tales of how and why she put words to paper and became an author at the age of 50.

"It wasn't easy, but it was a lot of fun,"Skramstad said of the two years spent writing the book. "When a manuscript leaves your hands, it's like sending a kid off to college."

Published by the literary publishing house, Algonquin Press, "Singing Teacher is a first person narrative about a family as seen through the eyes of a mother. The tone is humorous, but the subject is serious, offering the first time novelist a challenge.

"It was extremely difficult to write because there's a fine line between comedy and drama and an even finer line between being funny and silly," Skramstad said.

The book was originally titled "There's Always Something Coming," but that was changed by the publisher when Skramstad couldn't come up with an acceptable alternative that played up the musical theme that weaves through the novel.

She offered titles like "Background Music," "High Notes," "Low Notes" and even gathered her friends together at her Dearborn home with the express purpose of coming up with a different title for the book.

"We came up with 40 and I faxed them to the publisher; they hated them all," Skramstad said. "Then they came back with 'Singing Teacher.' I have to tell you I hate it."

Getting started

Skramstad has always enjoyed writing but put her literary life on hold until after the family moved to Evanston, Ill. Once her children were in school, she joined a writer's group and penned a short story that won a prize in the state. But there was a hitch. In order to receive the prize, she had to read it aloud, something she had difficulty doing.

"It was an incredibly sad story and I'd start crying half way through it," she said. "My husband taught me how to read it without hearing the words. It was a way of doing it without tearing the reader and me apart."

Her husband pops up often in her conversation. The director of Henry Ford Museum/Greenfield Village, he helped make her dream come true after they had moved from Illinois to Michigan.

Skramstad did volunteer work and dabbled in writing before eventually taking a position as assistant to the chancellor at the University of Michigan-Dearborn. But she realized she wanted more. She wanted to write; she wanted her degree and contact with other writers.

Writer knows that a good laugh can be good medicine

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

LORENE GREEN

Greetings,

Graphology has always interested me. It really undresses you and you stand in all your nakedness revealing all your warts and wrinkles and I hope some charms.

Be honest and tell me all my shortcomings, blemishes and vices. I'm aware of some but perhaps a few have escaped me. My wife and three daughters would be happy to see an improvement in me. At 77, my golden years might shine with more glitter.

J.S., Farmington Hills

I enjoyed your letter so much that I want to share it with my readers. Your sense of humor is alive and well both in your handwriting and in your words. Obviously, you are a man who has learned that a good laugh can be good medicine with no negative side effects.

Your handwriting strongly suggests a man who is personally mature and well-rounded. Your scope of interest is wide and includes the spiritual, social and physical areas of life and living. Yours is a well balanced sense of values.

Good old fashioned virtues were firmly rooted in your early training.

Emotions run deep. Whatever you are experiencing — happiness, sadness, enthusiasm, duty, excitement, etc. — you cannot hide it from others. Your feelings will show in your body language.

When you feel you have been wronged, it is not easy for you to forgive and forget. A little resentment will surface. Criticism of your personal appearance can be a sensitive area.

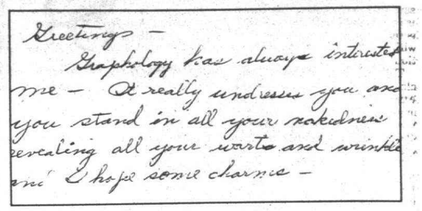
Your sense of pride has you caring how others perceive you. You continue to challenge yourself with goals. Daily routine is organized and effective. Determination is strong, you are not a quitter!

Thinking and problem solving are done methodically and logically. You are open-minded, but not gullible. You have not lost interest in learning about new things and find practical uses for the information.

In interpersonal relationships, you are friendly, interesting and interested in others. You tend to wear your heart on your sleeve often. Bet you're really an old softie where your wife and daughters are concerned! You are also ready to extend the hand of friendship to others along your path. Like most of us, you occasionally feel a need to be reassured that you are loved and needed.

The sarcastic barbs I see in your handwriting can be like the warts you referred to. Seemingly, you feel the best defense is an offense. Have you considered that words you have to eat are often hard to digest. Perhaps this is where the tension in your handwriting originates.

Your personality at home and away blend, telling us you are the same nice guy in private as in public! I think your last name says it all!



If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and full signature are all helpful. Objective feedback is always welcome. Time does not allow Lorene Green to mail out personal replies.

tify for parents and visitors where the day care boundaries end and your family's space begins.

Allow your own children to decide if they want to share a particular toy with the day care children. Try not to allow day care children in your children's bed or in a special place your own children use.

Discuss that day care activities and children with your family. Encourgae them to help you make decisions pertaining to the effectiveness of the operation and support of other families. Also respect and listen to the needs of your own family; remember you need their support.

If you're interested in taking classes related to starting a family day care business, licensing process, program management, health, safety, nutrition, developmentally appropriate child care practices, discipline, positive family relations and more, call Schoolcraft College's continuing education program at 462-4448, the Child Care Coordinating Council Detroit/Wayne County at 422-9210 (Livonia) or 259-4411 (Detroit) or Direct-Link Consulting Inc. at 782-2816.

"I really didn't know what to read," she said. "I wrote all my life. As a child, I wrote a letter to my mother from my teacher, telling her how wonderful I was. I wrote plays for the neighborhood. But when I got married and had children, everything stopped."

She enrolled in a two-year doctoral program and while she worked and studied her husband ran the household. "He started doing everything, the laundry, the cooking, the cleaning. I couldn't have written the book without him."

Degree in hand, Skramstad decided to shift the focus of her free time. Instead of going home after work and tackling her doctoral studies, she worked on her novel.

"When I was younger, I thought writers were geniuses," she said. "That might be true for some, but for others, the work is very hard. You write a draft and then you have to bring the characters to life.

"Part of being a writer is going right into the story until the real world falls away."

Creative stays

Several times Skramstad went to the Virginia Center for Creative Arts, staying three weeks to a month. The retreat offered time to work on her book uninterrupted except for dinner. The evenings were spent with the other writers and artists, talking about what they had done during the day.

"It was very wonderful to be with people as strange as you," Skramstad said.

Algonquin Press wasn't the first publisher to read Skramstad's novel. She first sent it to Doubleday. A friend had a friend who was an editor at the publishing house and gave it to her to read. The editor offered some good advice and "suggested I notch it down."

Skramstad did just that, but when she was ready for a second reading, the editor had left Doubleday. So a friend of her husband sent the manuscript to Algonquin Press where it received a polite rejection, infuriating the friend.

"He wrote a scathing letter," she said. "I was asked to send it again and after I did, I got an overnight letter saying it was first rate from beginning to end."

Since her first brush with publishing, Skramstad has employed a literary agent. She has also written a second book and is starting a third one.

Self-defense classes available at YWCA

Women can learn the art of self-defense in classes taught at the YWCA of Western Wayne County 1-2 p.m. Saturdays, beginning March 6.

The four-session classes will be conducted by Carl Tate Jr., a sixth-degree black belt in Tae Kwon Do and a senior master instructor.

The fee is $25 YWCA members, $35 for non-members, including annual basic membership. The second series will begin April 3.

The classes will be held at the YWCA, 26279 Michigan Ave., west of Telegraph Road. For more information, call 561-4110.

Crossroads

issue-oriented theater. "My Name Is Pam Rogers and I Have AIDS" is the result of a cooperative effort with the Midwest AIDS Prevention Project.

The performers are professionals, working at such venues as the Attic and Meadow Brook theaters or performing in industrial films. A bulk of the fees for the shows — $299 to $625 — helps pay their wages.

"We've tried to get a core group together to offer them work so they can stay in town and make a living," Calamia said. "So many have had to leave to earn a living. "But we try to cut costs where ever we can. We realize that the schools are under financial crunches so we try to keep the programs as affordable as we can."

One way is by being a part of the Touring Arts Grants Program, run by Midland Center for the Arts and funded by the Michigan Council for the Arts and Cultural Affairs. Grants are available to any non-profit school group to pay for up to 35 percent of the the cost of a Crossroads program.

"It helps schools with very active PTAs stretch their budgets and schools with small budgets add diversity to their programs," Calamia said.

The shows are designed to be done under the worst possible conditions. Some have a minimal amount of scenery, some with only a backdrop or some with fake blocks and boulders.

"We're more interested in the message — how it's given and what we say — not in how we say it," Calamia said. "Some people get wrapped up in the sets and miss the meaning of the program."

Their social dramas are always followed by discussions. Issues are never resolved in the shows, that's done afterwards with the help of a trained facilitator. Common Ground works with troupe when it performs its show about substance abuse, "Running on High." SPACE representatives are there for divorce program; and MAPP provides facilitators for the AIDS program.

Labor of love

For Calamia, Crossroads is a labor of love. One of the founding members, he works full-time as a manager for Michigan Bell, then puts in another 10-40 hours a week for theatrical troupe, "depending on what's going on."

His title may be director, but he leaves the actual producing chores to a staff "who are much better at it than I am." He handles the sales, promotions and payroll.

"I spot check shows to see if we're maintaining the quality of the production," Calamia said. "But I don't go to rehearsals; I don't want to scare the performers."

Crossroads tends to focus on schools in the 10 counties in southeastern Michigan. It's main market area tends to be school districts in Western Wayne County (Wayne-Westland, Livonia and Plymouth-Canton) and Oakland County (Troy, Rochester and Farmington are busy areas for the troupe).

But name a small outstate community and chances are Crossroads has been through there, according to Calamia.

For now, Calamia is hoping schools will sign up for "Divorce Is Not the End of the World." The DeRoy Testamentary Foundation and the Greater Detroit Section of the National Council of Jewish Women have provided grants to present the program free of charge.

"I think," he added, "we're a modern version of the medieval roving troupes."

Do you know what being born again is all about? Jesus said, "That which is born of the flesh is flesh; and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit" (John 3:6). Being born again or born of the Spirit is the work of God in the heart of a person whereby that person is given spiritual life and understanding for the things of God. If you are hungry to learn more about the new birth, come study the Bible with us on Sunday.

Nursery care for toddlers will be provided. Temple Baptist is at 29475 W. Six Mile, Livonia. For more information, call Rev. H.L. Petty at 525-3664 or 261-9276.

■ NEW SCHEDULE
The Garden City Presbyterian Church at 1841 Middlebelt, Garden City, will have a new schedule for Sunday morning activities during Lent, beginning Feb. 28. The schedule will focus on involving families and persons of all ages in the entire church program, including both study and worship.

Worship will be at 10 a.m. and will include a new Focus on Children as an addition to the traditional worship service. It will include a children's sermon, special music or drama and participation of all age groups. Children will adjourn to their regular church school classes after the children's time, while adults will remain to complete their worship experience.

An enrichment/study hour will begin at 11:15 a.m. and include innovative offerings for all ages. The children's activities will be presented in a learning center format, while the adult study options will include a new member class with participants being received into membership on Easter Sunday.

For more information, call 421-7620.

■ MARRIAGE ENCOUNTER
Couples with strong marriages can improve and deepen their relationship through a marriage encounter weekend. World Wide Marriage Encounter will have a marriage encounter weekend Friday through Sunday, Feb. 26-28. For more information, call 349-8195.

■ FISH FRY
St. Sabina Parish will have a Lenten fish fry 4-7 p.m. Fridays, beginning Feb. 26. Fish dinners will cost $5 for adults, $4.50 for senior citizens (over age 62) and $3 for children under age 12. Shrimp dinners will be priced at $5.50, while pierogis will be $4.50 for adults and $3 for children under 12. The church is at 25605 Ann Arbor Trail, Dearborn Heights.

■ ST. PATRICK'S PARTY
Celebrate St. Patrick's Day early at O'Edith's Pub, better known as St. Edith's Parish Hall, Saturday, Feb. 27. The party will be 7 p.m. to midnight and feature the music of "Pat's People." Cost is $20 per person and includes an open bar. For more information, call 464-2027. St. Edith's is at 15089 Newburgh, south of Five Mile, Livonia.

■ GREAT ADVENTURE
The Plymouth Church of the Nazarene will present "The Great Adventure," a concert featuring Gordon Jensen and Brothers Three, at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 27, at the church, 45801 Ann Arbor Road, west of I-275, Plymouth. The concert will feature contemporary southern gospel music, designed for the whole family. Nursery and babysitting will be available and refreshments will be served. Seating will be on a first come-first served basis.

■ FRIENDSHIP CELEBRATION
Christ Our Savior Lutheran Church will hold a Friendship Celebration at the 8:30 and 11 a.m. services Sunday, Feb. 28. People dealing with hurtful and unloving relatives, friends or coworkers are invited to attend the services. Breakfast will be served 9:30-11 a.m. and a coffee hour will follow the 11 a.m. service. Christ Our Savior is at 14175 Farmington Road, Livonia. For more information, call 522-6830.

■ MARDI GRAS DANCE
A Mardi Gras dance will be held 1-5 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 28, at St. Michael Orthodox Church Hall, 26355 W. Chicago Road, Redford. Cost is $8 for adults and $3 for children 5-12 years of age. There will be hors d'oeuvres, refreshments and door prizes. Music will be by the Joe Tricoff Orchestra. Reservations are necessary and can be made by calling 937-2120.

■ MUSIC AND DRAMA
The Valparaiso University Kantorei and chancel drama troupe, Soul Purpose, will present a program of music, drama and evening prayer at 7 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 28, at Faith Lutheran Church, 30000 Five Mile, west of Middlebelt, Livonia.

The Kantorei will sing anthems and motets with congregational participation appropriate to the Lenten season in the context of an evening vesper service.

Soul Purpose will present the drama, "The First Witness," based on the story of Jesus and the Woman of Samaria in which he calls a woman to active faith.

The suggested donation is $5 for adults and $2 for students. For more information, call Margaret Kohn at 464-8433.

BY DIANE HANSON
SPECIAL WRITER

It wasn't so long ago when different religious denominations pretty much kept to themselves. Visiting another church was not encouraged and praying together was simply unheard of. Well, the times they are a changin'.

On Valentine's Day, that day of love and togetherness, more than 300 members from at least five different denominations gathered together at St. John Neumann Catholic Church in Canton. The early evening ecumenical service marked the 10th year the annual event has taken place.

"I think that the Lord Jesus calls people from all backgrounds and all denominations to Himself," said the Rev. William Moore, pastor of Trinity Presbyterian Church in Plymouth. "Folks from all different Christian denominations have much more in common than they do in difference.

"This in a wonderful opportunity to show the unity that we have in Christ."

The Rev. Drex Morton, pastor at St. Michael Lutheran Church in Canton quoted from Galatians: "Let us not become conceited, competing against one another, envying one another," in his homily, espousing Christian unity in an increasingly secular world. "We can't afford the luxury of separatism or competition."

Morton will be leaving this week for a two-week stint with the Louisiana National Guard. He will serve as one of two chaplains in Guatemala where troops are rebuilding schools and hospitals, among other humanitarian services to help the residents there.

Brothers and sisters

"In that context," he explained, "denominationalism doesn't mean anything. We are all brothers and sisters in the faith."

The Rev. Matthew Ellis, associate pastor at St. John Neumann, believes the prayer services are a great start to drawing the faithful of the community together.

"We live in a day now where we are not guilty of what happened hundreds of years ago to divide the church," Ellis said. "We are not responsible for what happened back then. We're not the ones who started the arguments that caused all the friction. We are the ones who can heal it, though. As we work at this, who knows what can happen."

Morton agrees and believes "so much more unites us than separates us."

"I'm really excited about all the things we have in common," he said. "Through the commonality of the faith, so many of the theological differences in times past have been ironed out. I think you'll see a greater cooperation among particularly the Roman Catholic and the Lutheran branches of the church. And that's our prayer for all the denominational groupings."

The Rev. Richard Perfetto, pastor of Resurrection Catholic Church, currently forming in Canton, hopes that members of the Christian community "have a greater understanding, not only understanding but maybe cooperation on joint efforts of the community." He believes the prayer service can facilitate breaking down barriers between denominations especially when working on joint community projects.

The Rev. George Charnley, host pastor at St. John Neumann, noted that the challenge that Morton gave in his talk was that "we are to be active with the Lord and not just to be passive as Christians in the world today."

Realize oneness

"We really have to be that sign to the world that there is hope, that there is faith, that we can bring peace to the world," he said. "His words were really a challenge to all of us. I hope that all of us realize our unity, our oneness in the Lord and that whole potential that, as Christians, we could certainly call each other to be holy people."

The ecumenical spirit has been at work in the area for quite a number of years. Area clergy have met on a regular basis for more than 10 years. The Canton-Plymouth Clergy Group meets once a month to collaborate on what is going on in the area and identify any common causes.

"All denominations are invited," said Charnley. In addition, the clergy group has set up an emergency "on call" rotation to minister to the patients and families at Oakwood Hospital-Canton Center.

Other pastors participating in the Valentine's evening service were the Rev. Randy Whitcomb of Cherry Hill Methodist Church, the Rev. Harvey Heneveld of Christ Community Church and the Rev. David Woodby of St. Michael Lutheran Church in Canton.

The annual prayer service rotates each year to the church whose pastor delivered the homily the previous year. Next year's service will be hosted by St. Michael Lutheran Church.

The multi-denominational choir drew those gathered into the spirit of unity with inspiring songs and summed up the prevailing sentiment with the first and last line of the closing hymn.

"Help us accept each other as Christ accepted us . . . Renew us with your Spirit, Lord. Free us, make us one."

We can't continue to be indifferent

MORAL PERSPECTIVES

REV. DAVID STRONG

A physician tells the story of an evening in an emergency room of a hospital. A young man of about 20 years of age came in for stitches because of a knife wound above his eye. While the physician sewed up the wound, the young man said, "The guy who did this to me is going to be here in about an hour with worse than this. You will get a chance to sew him up."

This incident stuck in the physician's mind. It expressed the kind of violence that is growing in our time. I remember a student in my high school who sat two seats in front of me. He showed us the hand gun he had carried to school. The incident spoke to me of recklessness. It also gave him a male status in the school. That was in the early 1950s. That unusual incident years ago has mushroomed into a common occurrence today.

The causes of violence in our society are many. The consequences of violence are ever more frightening. The forces which would address the growing problem seem frozen and ineffective. Religious people must become involved.

I recommend an excellent statement of the problem and the effective steps with which we must solve the issue. The book is "Deadly Consequences" by a physician, Deborah Prothrow-Stith. This book should become a best seller. It must be studied and discussed by religious people. What is at stake is that seemingly good people seem indifferent to the terrible violence in our society.

Violence is a complex tragedy in America. From the policies of the president of the United States down to television and movie violence, to the collapse of communities and families, to the increased availability of guns, to the lack of nonviolent role models, these and thousands of other forces push us ever toward more violence.

For years, our international policy of sending in the Marines with overwhelming firepower has reflected our domestic policy of making sure that cops get tough on young males. Now we even have police killing suspects.

This week a social worker told me that our nation has abandoned the plight of children. There are more children in poverty in Detroit than any other city in the country. What results from these things is the growth of more violence.

Our schools have had to address violence. A few other peace-oriented groups have tried to focus attention and action upon this problem. In contrast, our churches and synagogues are largely unwilling to effectively address the issues of violence.

It is precisely religion which should respond to how we hurt and kill one another in America. Religious institutions are familiar with the need to confront moral issues. We must step further into the arena of the common good.

"Love your enemy" must not wind up being a catch phrase. We must teach people how to resolve conflict. We must support those institutions in our communities and around the world which counteract violence. We must also learn to carry out this work ourselves.

Dr. Prothrow-Stith's book contains one short paragraph about the church. She is married to a minister, yet she fails to see the significant role that religious groups must be challenged to play in conflict resolution. Her studies may well reflect the fact that we talk about love and peace but seldom get involved in society with specific programs.

We must openly support educators, public health leaders, social agencies, police and community organizers who work to counteract violence. We need to identify national leaders who will model this non-violent approach to conflict.

Our president needs to make this a message of his bully pulpit. Every major of every city needs to become schooled in non-violent conflict resolution. Spiritual leaders must be on the forefront on this issue.

We need to prevent violence by addressing the deeper causes. The book, "Deadly Consequences" is a book that is worth reading and pondering until we are all launched into action.

New Beginnings offers spring series

New Beginnings, a community service held year round at St. Matthew's United Methodist Church in Livonia, will offer a spring speaker series, starting Thursday, Feb. 25.

New Beginnings is for people suffering as the result of the death of a loved one. Recognizing that people grieve differently but have a similar need for support of each other, the program has been offered here for more than eight years with more than 400 people having attended.

Knowledgeable professional people have offered their skills for the program. When participants share their stories, they find they are not crazy. They learn that others have experienced the same thing.

That is why sharing their stories and recalling memories is an important part of getting well. It's the beginning of the road back.

A special series will be 7-9 p.m. Thursdays, Feb. 25 to April 1, followed by continuing support group sessions every Thursday evening.

The series will start off with the Rev. Kearney Kirkby discussing "The Grief Process" on Feb. 25. He also will present "Personalizing the Process" on March 4.

Dr. Tom Roe will discuss "The Physical Effects of Grief" on March 11, while the Rev. Phil Seymour will address "Dreams and Deeper Aspects of Grief" on March 18, with Warren Gilbert on "Managing Memories" March 25 and Ellen Bogard on "Family Support for Kids in Grief" on April 1.

There are no fees. Free resources are available and related books may be purchased at cost. Anyone may attend any or all sessions as they feel the need.

For more information, call Rev. David Stiles at 537-5373, Marilyn Wilkinson at 473-0399 or call the church at 422-6038. St. Matthew's United Methodist Church is at 30900 W. Six Mile Road, east of Merriman, Livonia.

Book tells all about state's frogs, toads

TIMOTHY NOWICKI

Michigan does not have the diversity of amphibians and reptiles like some southern states, but the variety of species that are found in Michigan have been expertly compiled into three books.

All three volumes are published through the state Cooperative Extension Service. The newest book is entitled "Michigan Frogs, Toads and Salamanders." It outlines all 14 species of frogs and toads in the state. With this handy guide you will be able to identify more than just leopard frogs and "baby" leopard frogs.

"Michigan Turtles and Lizards" outlines the 10 species of turtles found in Michigan and the two species of lizards. Life history information about each species is stated accurately and concisely. Range maps in each volume provide information on the extent of their distribution throughout the Upper and Lower Peninsulas. For instance, the spotted turtle is found only in the southern half of the Lower Peninsula. Michigan is on the northern fringe of its continental distribution.

Several species of amphibians and reptiles outlined in these three books are found in very low numbers. Spotted turtles are on the special concern list for the state of Michigan. If their numbers get even lower they will be classified as threatened. It is hoped that they will never be classified as endangered like the northern copperbelly snake. In "Michigan Snakes" we find that the northern copperbelly is found in only 11 counties in the southwestern part of the state. Northern copperbelly snakes were probably never very common, because a small part of Michigan encompasses an isolated pocket of their northern extension in the United States.

Beautiful color photographs complement the text and enable the reader to identify each species. So the next time you see a "baby" frog you can look it up in the book and determine if it is a springpeeper, a chorus frog, wood frog, cricket frog or tree frog.

These three books are available at your county extension service office, or at some of the book stores in the area. They are inexpensive, but they are very valuable to anyone developing a natural history library for Michigan animals.

Tim Nowicki is a naturalist at Independence Oaks County Park in Oakland County. He lives in Livonia. You can reach him by Touch-Tone phone at 953-2047, Ext. 1874.

Artists finds a home to show their artwork

The Livonia City Hall lobby suits Artifacts Art Club members just fine as a place to exhibit their artwork.

"It's a personal thrill to see your work up there on the display panels — no question about it," says Livonia artist Sherry Eid, club president. "For some of us, it's the only chance we get to show our work to someone other than our friends."

At the invitation of the Livonia Arts Commission, Artifacts will host its second annual exhibition of membership work March 1-31. Selected members will jury the 60-piece event.

The exhibition provides an outlet for members who don't have enough quality work to showcase on their own. The versatile membership ranges from commercial to wildlife artists.

Club founder David Messing, a professional fine artist and sculptor, says the exhibition lets budding artists "break the ice and get something hung up.

"That inspires more excitement," he said, "and hopefully gives them the energy to enter other juried shows."

"We're very grateful the city and the arts commission lets us show our work at city hall," Eid said. "It's the only show we do as a club. As a small club, we don't have money to buy display easels and set up elsewhere."

Artifacts members work in sculpture, clay, colored pencil, watercolor, oil, acrylic, ceramics, photography, pastel, pen and ink, calligraphy, scratchboard and mixed media.

The show again will feature the People's Choice Award. "That was fun," said Eid, who finished runner-up in last year's voting for her colored pencil portrait of a Cuna Indian. Livonia artist Rhonda Hargrave took first for her realistic colored pencil of a squirrel eating birdseed inside a red wagon.

In the vote among participating artists for top show honors, the outcome was reversed: Eid first, Hargrave second.

"When I won first place, it was an exhilaration," Eid said. "I was walking on air for about two months afterwards.

"It was really nice we're both colored pencil artists," she added. "Colored pencil isn't always in the people's consideration as fine art. It's often a stepsister. It was a good feeling when we won."

Eid hopes this year's show reflects the visual continuity in color, design and subject that Northville artist Marsha Weigand achieved when installing the 1992 exhibition.

Eid took up colored pencil about seven years ago when she enrolled in a class at Messing's Art Store and More in Livonia. She had always liked to doodle and her son now was entering middle school, giving her more time.

"Colored pencil doesn't scare you," said the Colored Pencil Society of America member. "It's more user friendly. Regardless of your background, everyone is used to working at least a little bit with pencils.

"Besides, working with colored pencil is less expensive than working with oil or watercolor. All you need is a box of colored pencils and paper."

Artifacts Art Club was formed in 1986 around a nucleus of art students from Art Store and More. Today, the club meets monthly in the Livonia Civic Center Library. Dues is $20 a year.

The club offers camaraderie with artists of varying experience, disciplines and skills. "Beginners are welcome with open arms," Eid said.

For Eid, art's a sense of wonder. "I look at a finished piece on the wall and wonder if I can do it again. I'm able to do something, look at it, then enjoy it afterwards again and again."

Club meetings offer guest speakers, field trips to art shows and critiques.

At one group critique, Eid picked up the fine points of drawing the anatomy from Messing and the in's and out's of abstract composition from Farmington Hills artist Sue Warner.

Among the local professional artists who've talked about composition, colors and cropping at formal critiques are Edee Joppich, Audrey DiMarco and Linda Mendelson.

"The critiques help everybody learn," Eid said. "And they're encouragement, too. Everybody wants everyone to do well."

In one upcoming club workshop at the library, Joppich, a Farmington Hills artist, will lead a two-part seminar on composition March 17 and 24.

"We're student oriented so even people who've just started to draw, for example, should feel very comfortable," Messing said.

The club discourages working only in one media. The accent's on instruction.

"People who've had a few successful watercolors," Messing said, "actually may be afraid to try anything else because there's a chance they won't be successful.

"So we have artists come in and demonstrate different media and talk about what they do in hopes of encouraging our members to try something new, to not be afraid."

Quilter teaches inventive stitching

■ Carol Ann Matthews of Canton enjoys the creative element of quilting. She also enjoys the needle art.

SPECIAL WRITER

Award-winning quilt artist Carol Ann Matthews passes on the skills necessary for creating traditional as well as contemporary art quilts in classes throughout Observerland.

Classes are offered through Schoolcraft College in Livonia, Dian's quilting supply in Plymouth and Wayne-Westland Community Schools Adult Education.

"Quilting is a truly traditional art or craft," the Canton resident said. "It's from the very beginner learning to sew to the art major who is using the quilting as their medium."

Traditional and contemporary abstract art quilts decorate the walls of her home. A Baltimore Album quilt created in turkey reds and hunter greens on a white background won the viewer's choice award at the Greater Ann Arbor Quilt Guild Show last summer.

"For some people, quilting will be therapy," Matthews said. "For some people, it will consume them."

Matthews will cover all phases of quilting in her February and March classes, from making a sampler to creating an art quilt. The Basics of Quilting includes instruction on traditional and conventional methods.

"I'll be teaching techniques in all my classes. The basics include hand-piecing and hand-quilting. I'll also show them how to take hand-piecing and then how to do it on a machine," Matthews said.

"I pack all my classes with a lot of information. Students learn about the whole quilting industry, the latest things that come out on everything from a regular pieced block to making their own art quilt."

While students begin four projects in the basics class, they more than likely will finish them after the six- to eight-week classes have ended due to the shortness of time.

"The greatest thrill for me is to see my students get excited about quilting. They take that excitement from class and take it from there on their own," Matthews said.

Jewel-colored geometric shapes dance on the 100-percent cotton canvas of an abstract art quilt decorating the den wall.

"It's more creative than time-consuming. People ask me how many hours I have in it. I have no idea, I enjoy doing it so much," Matthews said.

"Why does an artist paint? I used to paint. I quit and now the fabric is my palette. I like the creating. I get more ideas running around in my head than I have time to do."

The Art of Quilting class is new this semester at Schoolcraft. Students will learn how to coordinate colors, combine fabric patterns to form a color palette and applique pieces to create a wallhanging.

"We'll cover how to design a quilt and then make it yourself," Matthews said.

Making a Sampler Quilt will focus on making a 55- by 70-inch quilt from beginning to end. Basic

African artifacts in spotlight

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

In honor of Black History Month, the Livonia Arts Commission is exhibiting African artifacts from the turn of the century.

The exhibition is in the circular showcases on the second floor of the Livonia Civic Center Library, Farmington Road and Five Mile.

Thought to be tribal objects of the Ovimbundu people of Angola, the handcarved figures, fetish, mask, drum, thumb piano and woven baskets reveal a culture where the arts played an everyday role. There were no distinctions as to whether it was a fine, decorative or craft type of art.

"We're very, very proud of the collection," said Betty Newton, arts commission chairwoman. "According to an appraisal of the collection, they're thought to be rare or even unknown to exist at the time."

A female image holding a child is thought to have been a fetish, more than likely a fertility image. Throughout time, many cultures have and continue to use fetishes for their powers. The carvings often consist of human and animal shapes.

Fetishes are believed to possess magical powers and be capable of granting the owner's wishes. Some of them exist as a home to a spirit or supernatural power. Fetishes dating back thousands of years have been found in archaeological dig sites around the world.

■ SPOTLIGHT ON ART

A mixed-media show by artist Lena Massara of Farmington Hills continues through Saturday, Feb. 20, in the Art Gallery of the Livonia Civic Center Library, Farmington Road and Five Mile.

The 30-piece exhibition, hosted by the Livonia Arts Commission, includes acrylic, watercolor, pastel, collage and assemblage. Hours are 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. today and to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

■ NAGLER IN FOCUS

Framed works by Observer & Eccentric photo columnist Monte Nagler are on display through February at Borders Book Shop in Novi Town Center, off Novi Road, south of I-96.

The showing features pictures from the Farmington Hills resident's first hardcover monograph, "Statements of Light," recently published by Suburban Communications, O&E's parent company.

Nagler specializes in fine-art photography. His award-winning works are in many private and public collections and he often travels to galleries across the country.

"Statements of Light" contains 76 black and white pictures taken by Nagler during his travels plus a technical appendix. Its forward is written by Detroit photographer Tony Spina. Listed at $65, the book is available at Borders for $58.50. Nagler offers a limited deluxe edition, which comes with an original photograph, for $350.

■ CRAFTY OUTLOOK

Apply now for Schoolcraft College's juried craft show 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday, March 13, in the Physical Education Building on the Livonia campus.

Booth spaces range in price from $35 to $60. Crafters must supply tables. Electricity is extra. To apply, call 462-4417.

Adjustable Rate Mortgage

3.95% Rate | 6.35%* APR

Our Adjustable Rate Mortgage allows you to enjoy this excellent mortgage rate for the first year of the loan. After the first year, your interest rate can only increase by 2% a year or by 6% over the life of the loan. And you have the option to convert to a fixed rate mortgage under certain conditions.

Typical APR (annual percentage rate) includes interest on loan and other fees, and is based on a $100,000 loan with an 80% loan-to-value ratio. The APR may increase after closing. Loan must be for construction or acquisition of borrower's single family owner-occupied primary residence. Interest rates and terms are subject to change at any time without notice. *Based on a 30-year loan. For 15-year loan, APR is 6.319%.

Fertility fetish: A sculptured wood female image holding a child, on display in the Livonia Civic Center Library second-floor showcases, is thought to be a fetish used by Ovimbundu. Fetishes are believed to host a spirit and possess magical powers.

"If people have an interest in this type of art, we want to give them a more genuine interest," Newton said. "They don't have to go downtown to a museum to see important, valuable pieces of art."

A handcarved mask of a fine featured face is thought to have gone with an elaborate headdress worn by a witch doctor. The mask is thought to be a ghost. The mask has blackened facial features and a raffia role at the back, bound and laced to the mask like a helmet bumper.

Hollowed from a tree stump, a tribal drum with pyro-engraved (incised) patterns has a four-legged animal crawling up the side. The animal and drum were both carved from this single piece of wood.

Woven baskets in the exhibit are of traditional weaves like over-under, and coil. An aged ivory-colored tag says the basket is woven from the ribs of palm leaves and made for selling to white people.

Exhibit hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday-Thursday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday-Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

quilting or experience is required; bordering, mitering, binding, figuring yardage requirements and shortcut methods of piecing will be taught.

"The sampler quilt has 12 blocks with different techniques in all of the blocks," Matthews said.

Matthews began quilting in 1978 after a cousin's enthusiasm for the needle art hooked her. It took three years to complete the queen size, handstitched quilt she chose to tackle for her first project.

Matthews has more than 45 years' sewing experience. Basically self-taught in the art of quilting, she has taken seminars in design and applique with nationally known instructors Francoise Barnes, Ann Boyce, Jenny Beyer and Ellie Sienkiewicz.

For the last five years, Matthews has entered the Hoffman Challenge, sponsored by the Hoffman Fabric Co. Each of her entries was chosen to tour the country for one year. Hoffman has published a book that includes her first two entries.

In 1992, one of Matthews' quilts was chosen to be included in the American International Quilt Association's calendar.

Matthews attended Columbia Bible College in South Carolina and Baker Business College in Flint. After teaching elementary school art for one year, she quit to raise her family, now grown with families of their own. For the last seven years, she has taught quilting to adults in classes held throughout the area.

"Quilts go all the way back to China, then to Europe. Quilting was one of the aristocratic arts. Applique was the first type of quilts and were made with Persian fabrics," Matthews said.

"In America, quilting was taken West by the pioneers and used as a social gathering. It was a time to socialize, to get to meet other young people.

"To the pioneers, quilts were a luxury. It cost more to buy the materials for a quilt than a blanket. Most of the time, fabric was purchased for quilts because there was no scraps left from making clothes. Clothing back then was cut on the square with nothing left over."

Quilting began a resurgence in the U.S. after a 1971 exhibition, "Abstract Design in American Quilts," was held at the Whitney Museum of American Art in New York City.

The bicentennial increased interest and activity in this colonial craft. By the early 1980s, international quilt shows were taking place in Houston and San Diego.

For information on quilting classes, call Schoolcraft Continuing Education Services at 462-4448, Dian's at 459-3630 or Wayne-Westland Community Schools at 595-2000.

Stab at mystery writing falls short in execution

BOOK BREAK

VICTORIA DIAZ

"Mystical," by Dalmatian (165 pp., $16.95, Ridgeway Press).

In this trio of mystery tales, Lauren Thames is a Detroit psychiatrist and "paranormal investigator." Her sidekick, Shannon Asher, is an assistant curator at the Detroit Institute of Arts and the fictional chronicler of these events. The two women reside in a grand old mansion in Detroit's Boston-Edison District, with their dog, Max, Lauren's son, Timothy, and their faithful servant, Bonafet.

Combining razor-sharp logic with "the sound and sensible wisdom of a woman's intuition," Lauren has a reputation for solving mysteries that are just too much for everybody else: A young man vanishes after becoming involved in a rather bizarre rite of passage. A Rembrandt masterpiece seems to disappear in broad daylight from the DIA. A phantom train runs amok across the countryside.

Picture this analytical adventurer as a kind of 1990s feminine version of the Green Hornet/Batman/Sherlock Holmes.

Sound like fun?

It isn't.

On the face of things, the ideas behind "Mystical" may sound promising, especially to those of us who enjoy a good mystery now and then. Weird, maybe. Unlikely, maybe. But isn't that what they're all about, anyway?

Too bad that in the case of "Mystical," when it came to executing these ideas, the writer, the editor and the publisher have come up way short.

How else to explain the following unfortunate passage, which typifies much of what you'll find in these pages:

"Not that I am a model of conventionality myself, for my years studying the lifestyles and peculiarities of artists, had made me rather more lax to eccentricities than befits a normal person, but there is a limit to my tolerance when brief and welcome moments of silence are followed by blood, curdling screams such as an Indian might cry out before charging headlong into battle."

Why is this book absolutely riddled with misused words (e.g., "a . . . vile . . . of . . . cocaine"; "the din of clinging forks"; "his chin warbling")?

Why is it marked with countless basic errors in English grammar? Why is the writing shot through with deadening — and deadly — repetition?

Why has the editor indulged the author such tedious phrasing as "a little more further" and "above . . . sat perched"? Or ignored such awkwardness as "I saw her ear bend to the west"?

Why the odd case of the man who "wore a royal blue suit . . . and black pants," and "appeared in the doorway . . . at the entrance" to a room?

Why do so many of these present-day Detroit-area characters go around talking as if they belonged somewhere in London in some long ago, pre-Jack the Ripper era?

Why, why, why?

This book is a mystery all right, but not in the way you'd expect. Although it contains a few imaginative spots and its Motor City backdrop is fairly vivid, its basic, square-one flaws deal it an efficient, deadly blow.

(Dalmatian is the pen name of Bloomfield Hills writer R.J. King.)

Last words: Throughout February, the Elizabeth Stone Gallery in Birmingham will feature a special exhibit of original artwork inspired by Lewis Carroll's 'Alice" stories. The exhibit is in conjunction with the premiere of Susan Botti's new opera, "Wonderglass," set for 3 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 21 in Kingswood Auditorium, Lone Pine and Cranbrook Road, Bloomfield Hills. The Stone Gallery, 580 N. Woodward, Birmingham, showcases the art of internationally known children's book illustrators. Call 647-7040.

Milford's critically acclaimed poet Thomas Lynch, ("Skating With Heather Grace") will read from his work Thursday, March 11, in Rackham Amphitheatre, in Ann Arbor. The 5 p.m. event is part of the Visiting Writers Series, cosponsored by the University of Michigan and Borders Book Shop. For more information, call 1-313-764-6296. Admission is free.

Victoria Diaz of Livonia tracks the books and literary industry. You can leave a message for her on a touch-tone phone by dialing 953-2047, then 1854.

Register for ballet classes

Dina McDermott of Lake Orion, recently appointed to the dance faculty at the Center for Creative Studies, will instruct in ballet for intermediate level youth and adults at the Evergreen Center, 30800 Evergreen in Southfield.

The class will meet 9:30-11 a.m. Saturdays.

The course, open to dancers age 12 to adults, will combine traditional barre exercises with variations, jumps and turns, leading to longer, classical movement patterns.

Tuition for the semester is $180. Late registration is open until Monday, March 1. For information, call the admissions office at 872-3118, Ext. 607. Financial aid is available.

McDermott received a bachelor of fine arts degree from the Juilliard School, and a master of fine arts degree from Arizona State University. She has danced professionally in New York, and has been on the dance faculties of Kansas State University, the University of Oklahoma and Oakland University. She joined the CCS faculty in September.

CCS is at 201 E. Kirby in Detroit, with suburban branches in Southfield, Grosse Pointe and Novi. A faculty of more than 300 artist/instructors provides quality visual and performing arts training to more than 2,000 students annually.

Original furniture displayed

A showing of original, one-of-a-kind "New Baroque" furniture created by students in the furniture design program at the Center for Creative Studies will be at Zeising Associates Inc. at the Michigan Design Center in Troy Feb. 25 through March 27.

An opening preview reception for invited guests, industry professionals and media representatives will take place 5:30-7:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 25.

The MDC is at 1700 Stutz Drive. Zeising Associates is just inside the north entrance. For more information, call 872-3118, Ext. 284.

Zeising Associates, in direct response to requests and inquiries from professionals who saw last year's show, again invited William House's CCS students to showcase their work at the MDC, said House, chairman of the industrial design department.

In addition to furniture designs, maquettes and interior design models, this year's show is expanding to include fine arts, crafts, photography and music by CCS students, House said.

Detroit-based CCS serves as an anchor for arts education in southeastern Michigan and a focal point nationally and internationally for excellence in the applied, performing and fine arts.

The accredited CCS-College of Art and Design is one of the nation's leading private, degree-granting visual arts schools. More than 800 students are currently involved in programs in industrial design, graphic communication, fine arts, photography and crafts.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

Loan processing moves into real estate offices

By Mary Rodrique
Staff Writer

Thanks to computers and a recent change in federal law, home buyers may be able to shop for a mortgage at the same place they shop for a new house — the real estate office.

Tower Financial Inc. of West Bloomfield is set to take advantage of a recent revision to the Real Estate Settlement and Procedures Act (RESPA). Before RESPA was revised, any fee paid to Realtors by the mortgage firms could have been considered a kickback. The new law allows mortgage firms to work with Realtors to generate computerized loan originations.

Tower Financial has created what it calls the Patriot System, which will allow computer systems to be installed in each participating Realtor's office for the purpose of taking computerized loan originations. Realtors who will offer the service include Help You Sell, Champion & Baer, and Century 21 East in Clinton Township. Realtors from those offices were contacted but not available for comment.

Participating Realtors will receive a fee of about 1 percent of the loan, according to a spokesman for Tower Financial.

Because Tower Financial has implemented the use of computer technology in the mortgage industry, it is the first on line for the new program.

"We've been using CLO (computerized loan origination) systems internally since our inception," said Tower spokesman Mark Sendo. "They made the entire mortgage process easier and less time consuming for our customers."

When the RESPA law changed last Dec. 2, Sendo began developing the Patriot System, which is basically software that allows a participating realty office to handle the loan application for financing a home directly from their office. The customer doesn't have to look for financing.

To participate, a Realtor signs on with Tower Financial and within 48 hours they are on line to Tower's office. Tower provides the software, hardware and training for anyone in the office who will be involved with the system.

"It takes six months to get such a system up and running," said Sendo. "Any other mortgage lender will need at least that much time to develop what we already offer."

For the homebuyer, Sendo says the advantage is that they can continue working with their Realtor and can close their loans within 14 days of application.

"We will be phasing out our loan officers and will no longer originate mortgages in-house as more Realtors come on-line with our Patriot System," said Sherry Krug, Tower Financial human resources director.

Krug says that because Tower will not be paying loan officers, it will be able to offer homebuyers a rate between one-eighth and one-fourth of a point below the lowest rates on the market.

Not everyone is in favor of the change.

"I guess at this point, Standard Federal sees this service being offered as adding a layer of cost to the consumer," said Michael Lubig, vice president of mortgages for Standard Federal, the state's largest mortgage lender.

"It's not consumer friendly. Someone somewhere is going to pay for this service. Undoubtedly, it will be the consumer. It's too soon to tell how severely."

Lubig believes "it's just as expedient to go to the primary lender. These (Tower) people won't do the work for free.

"It's hard to say how popular this system will become. Frankly, a lot will depend on the government. And there's talk of revising RESPA again."

The change in the law does not allow banks to participate in this program.

Bill Deacon, president of the Western Wayne Oakland Board of Realtors, said his organization is not ready to take a stand yet.

Management of site condo carries same responsibilities

CONDO QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

We are a site condominium with limited common element areas. We are trying to find a management company to assist us but are having difficulty doing so. Do you have any suggestions?

There are management companies who specialize in site condominiums with limited common areas recognizing that the association still has the administrative responsibilities of every other condominium association. These include the letting of contracts to maintain those areas of the condominium that are within the association's responsibility.

I would attempt to contact a number of management companies, asking whether they are interested in a site condominium and, if so, what kind of services they they can provide. Obviously, to the extent that you can get a referral from either your lawyer or other personnel at the association regarding good management that would be advisable.

As a followup to a question that recently appeared in the column, we would like to know whether our restrictions in our subdivision that prohibit business use of homes involving employment of persons who do not reside in the home are enforceable.

In a recent case in California, the court upheld the constitutionality of a zoning ordinance prohibiting business use of homes that involves persons who do not reside in the home. The court held that because the ordinance did not seek to regulate any aspect of the co-owner's private life and did not dictate with whom she worked, resided or associated, it did not violate her constitutionally protected rights of privacy but rather basically set forth criteria for prohibiting such conduct as typing, answering phones or filing, if it involved someone coming to the unit who did not reside there for compensation.

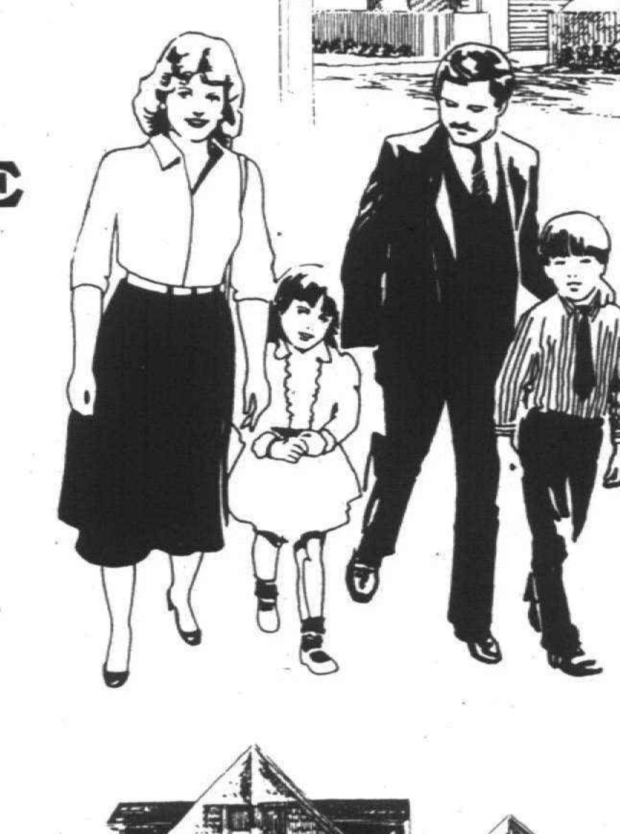
MAKE THE MOVE NOW!!

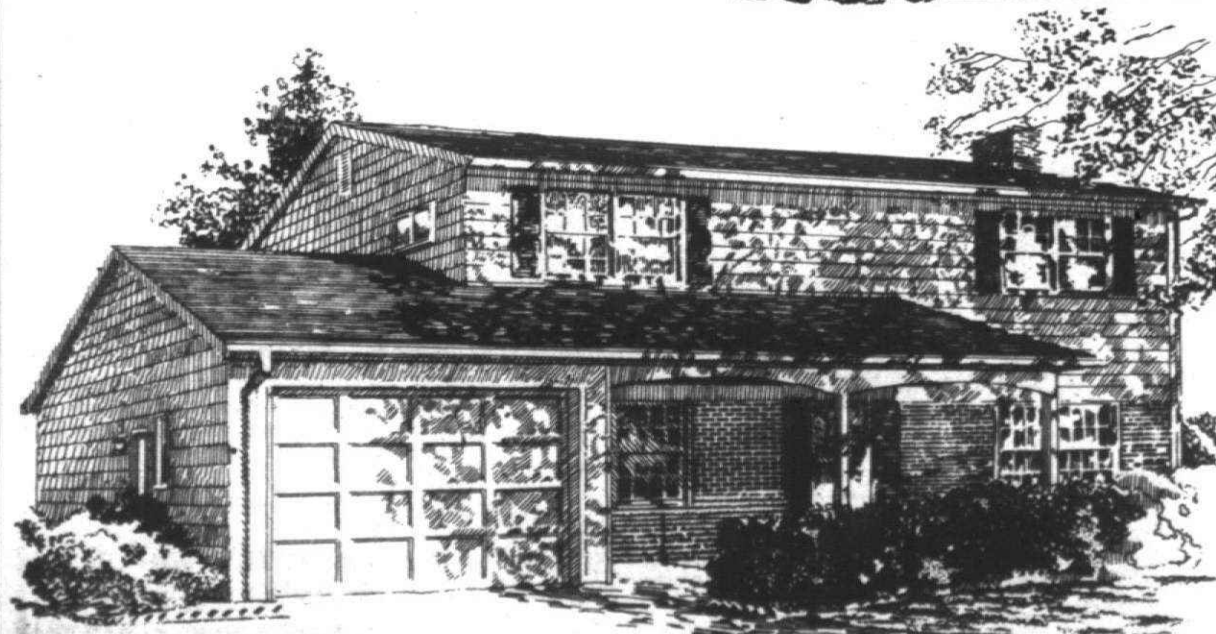


THERE'S NO BETTER TIME TO BUY

If you've been thinking about moving from your current residence to the house of your dreams or from an apartment to a starter home, this is the time to do it.

- The selection is excellent.
- Low interest rates are available.
- There are many financing options available.

Go ahead, make the move. Now is the right time to buy a home.



NOW is the right time to Buy a Home!

Purchasing a home has always been a wise decision, but current market conditions are making it even more attractive to buy now.

EXCELLENT FINANCING IS AVAILABLE NOW

Interest rates are lower, and mortgage lenders are offering a wide variety of financing options. Low interest rates mean you can get more for your money.

- 30-year fixed mortgages are still available as well as many other financing alternatives.
- First time buyers are encouraged to purchase now through financing packages offering small down payments.

YOUR HOME IS YOUR BEST INVESTMENT

Purchasing a home is the best way to build a solid financial foundation. A home not only provides you with warmth and comfort, it also serves as a secure investment.

- Today, homes in the area continue to be a wise investment.
- Equity in your home can be used as collateral, thus providing you with additional financial security.
- Home ownership provides you with a sizable tax advantage because interest paid on mortgages is fully deductible. Property taxes can also be deducted.

Brick is top choice but cost limits use

■ Among exterior treatments, brick remains the top choice, but its rising cost coupled with larger houses has limited its use.

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

Tract subdivision houses that sprouted like dandelions in the suburbs a couple of generations ago featured brick from foundation to chimney. Brick was seen as solid, enduring.

Nowadays, it's hard to find new, all-brick residences except at the very high end of the pricing spectrum.

Part of it has to do with costs, part with changing tastes.

Those starter homes of the 1950s and '60s were considerably smaller than the models going up now. And some first-time buyers today would rather put their money in living space rather than exterior treatments.

"As baby boomers' houses got bigger and bigger, they couldn't afford (brick) material," said Bill Frizzell, a Keego Harbor builder and designer. "They want bigger now and are willing to sacrifice the norm on a particular quality value."

And often that's brick, especially on a first new house, he said.

Brick was used in 36 percent of the houses built around the country in 1972 but only 19 percent in 1991, said Gopal Ahluwalia, research director for the National Association of Home Builders.

Wood was the exterior covering of choice on 38 percent of new houses built in 1991; a broad category consisting of vinyl, stone and cinder block 24 percent; and stucco 15 percent, Ahluwalia said.

"What people love to have is brick," he said. "They can't afford it. Brick looks good, it's maintenance free, lasts long and people think it gives a feeling of warmth."

Frizzell estimated his cost for fieldstone at $18 per square foot; Dryvit, expanded polystyrene covered by plastic, $7.50-$10 per square foot; brick, $6.50-$8.50; horizontal wood cedar, $3; vinyl siding, $1.50; and vertical plywood T-111, $1.25.

That includes bottom-line material — "there are quality differences and price differences" — and installation, he said.

Material, labor costs

Bricks that cost $30 per 1,000 in the early 1950s now cost $250 per 1,000, said James Bonadeo, a Plymouth builder. Labor costs also have soared, he said.

SHARON LEMIEUX/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Brick job: Robert Buford, owner of Worldwide Construction, plies his trade on a house going up in Novi.

But cost of an exterior treatment isn't the only factor considered in designing a house, and on a grander scale, a subdivision's look.

"We're doing a townhouse in Royal Oak. In that job, it's all brick because we wanted a Georgetown look," said Bernard Glieberman, president of Crosswinds Communities of West Bloomfield. "In Oakland Township, we're again using brick. We're doing it as a European Village.

"In (Westland's) Millpointe Subdivision . . . stone with exterior siding gives a unique look," he said. "Millpointe was tied into (historic) Nankin Mill which had wood on top and a stone foundation."

But cost does figure into the equation. Houses in Millpointe, which make use of vinyl siding, are priced at less than $100,000.

"Our experience is that most people still have a preference for brick work as much as possible," said John Shekerjian, president of John Richards, a Birmingham building company. "Most people think brick is more substantial, better quality."

Dryvit is becoming more popular in custom designed houses, Shekerjian added.

"We don't do any vinyl," he said. "When we do wood, we do nice cedar."

Maintenance concerns

Robert Bryce, a West Bloomfield architect, said he's constantly asked to provide as much brick as possible in his residential designs.

"We're being asked to get away from anything requiring maintenance, repainting, restaining," Bryce said. "Woods have a lot of problems with shrinkage, cracking, splitting and warping.

"Vinyl siding makes the most sense from a maintenance point of view, but it has a bad image problem. It's not perceived as a valued product," Bryce said.

Kevin Akey, a Birminham designer, notices that clients have different expectations along the price spectrum.

"From $100,000 to $200,000, it's mostly wood with accents of brick maybe around the entrance," he said.

"From what I know talking with developers, they might do a brick wainscot three feet up in front, a couple accents around the front door and then a horizontal wood up the rest of the front and vinyl on the other three sides. The most cost efficient builders would do that.

"In houses $350,000 and up, there's a lot of brick, a lot of brick detail. Generally, they try to max out the house in brick, do it everywhere."

Price is often a factor, but at the high end of the spectrum, personal choice has a bigger impact, said David Jensen, a Birmingham designer and builder of upper end custom houses.

"The issue is what is one's view of the world," he said. "The real view of the world is becoming far more informal. Cottages are never made of brick. Why?

"Most clients I deal with harken back to a more romantic, picturesque view. That gets you away from tract homes in subdivisions," Jensen said. And brick.

Office occupancy picture improves

STAFF WRITER

Some owners and managers of office buildings here are starting to enjoy better economic times.

That's the observation, anyway, of several leaders of the Society of Industrial and Office Realtors.

So why should it matter one way or another to people not directly involved in the business — folks like Betty Birmingham or Larry Livonia?

"I think it's an advance indicator of things to come," said Paul S. Hoge, an associate broker with Signature Associates of Southfield and treasurer of the Michigan SIOR chapter. "The local economy is starting to firm up.

"People may feel a little more secure, maybe go out and buy that new car, get into the stock market," Hoge said. "This is just one of many advance indicators someone can look at so they can plan their life with a little more rosy future."

See related story, 3F

"If people are confident, they go out and buy more goods and services," said John R. Boyd, executive vice president at Signature and Michigan SIOR president.

"It's one piece of the whole economy," said David N. McNabnay, owner of a Bloomfield Hills commercial real estate firm and Michigan SIOR vice president. "An improving economy — it means jobs, it means tax base."

All three real estate professionals see that proverbial light at the end of the tunnel.

"I think we've definitely turned the corner," McNabnay said. "We've seen occupancies improve in the high-end growth area.

"Class A occupancy has improved tremendously. Class B renovations also are filling up. Occupancy in buildings not going through renovations and Class C are losing," McNabnay said.

"Concessions are not as large as they have been," Boyd said. "Free rent has diminished and you don't see unlimited build-outs (owner-paid lease improvements).

McNabnay also reported some slight rent increases in submarkets around the metro area.

"Novi, Bloomfield, probably Rochester Hills-Auburn," he said. "It's in your premier growth areas you're going to see that first. Southfield and Troy, you're going to see that (rent increase) slower. There's much more available space."

"The biggest trend in office space is tenants aren't moving. They're staying put," Boyd said.

Not everyone has suffered with the glut of available space in recent years.

"Major users of space today are taking advantage of softness and purchasing buildings at good prices in Troy and Southfield," Boyd said. He specifically cited Kelly Services' buy of the Kimberly Scott Building.

Oakland Towne Square, a 480,000-square-foot tower, is the only new building to be completed in the suburbs during the last year.

"It's approximately 20 percent leased," Boyd said. "I think that's a tremendous accomplishment in this economy."

"The middle market is where the action is — 5,000 to 30,000 square feet," McNabnay said. "When the auto market improves, so will potential acceleration for demand, maybe for suppliers."

Automakers here have directed their divisions to move into company-owned facilities wherever possible to cut costs, Hoge said.

SIOR's national report painted a bleak narrative of the suburban office market in recent years.

"Since the onset of the recession, approximately 50 office buildings have been repossessed in suburban Detroit; as of year-end 1992, only six had been resold," wrote Jerome L. Reiss, SIOR office surveyor for suburban Detroit.

"Prospects for growth are poor," Reiss forecast. "The lingering effects of several years of weak car sales have drastically cut profits, and in turn limited plans for long-term investment."

Boyd said anecdotal observations by local commercial agents have occurred after data was collected and analyzed last fall for SIOR's national report.

The oversupply of office space here won't end overnight, even with stepped up economic activity, Reiss projected.

"If Mr. Clinton can turn the economy around in '93, we won't feel it in the marketplace until '94 or '95," Reiss said. "It takes that long to run through the pipeline."

SIOR reported Detroit's office vacancy rate at 16 percent as of mid November. The 10 office markets nationally with the highest vacancies ranged from St. Louis at 28.6 to southern New Jersey at 24.4percent, according to SIOR.

Jackson, Mississippi, had the lowest office vacancy rate at 6.7 percent.

Country exterior, contemporary flair

The 2,412-square-foot Henderson, with its wrap-around porch, has the stylish appeal of a stately country home. But the interior of this 1½-story house is pure contemporary.

Just inside the front door and to the left, French doors open into the living room. Three walls of multi-paned windows flood the area with soft light. To the right is the centrally located stairway leading upstairs, which can be accessed either from the entry or from the kitchen area. There is also access to the basement.

The kitchen, family room and dining room run together, separated only by an eating bar long enough for the family to sit down together for meals. Plenty of light flows in through the dining room windows, and French doors open from the family room onto a spacious deck for outdoor meals and relaxing in the hot tub.

A utility room with space for a freezer and a bathroom are nestled between the kitchen and the double garage. The master suite, snug in its own corner of the house, has a large private bathroom and plenty of closet space.

The two upstairs bedrooms share a good-sized bathroom open to a landing that gives a birds-eye view of the action below.

For a study plan of the Henderson (401-30), send $7.50 to Landmark Designs, including plan name and number, to Landmark Designs, P.O. Box 2307, Eugene, Ore. 97402.

Intangibles worth owner's consideration

When you're searching for the perfect spot for your new home, Building Ideas magazine says there are a number of things you need to consider:

■ The neighborhood. A neighborhood not only affects the market value of your home, it shapes the way you live. Where will your children go to school? How long will it take you to get to work? The neighborhood affects dozens of other everyday matters. It may ultimately make more difference to your family than the design of your new home.

When you're evaluating neighborhoods, check the distance to the nearest police station and fire department. You'll also want easy access to shopping, restaurants and public transportation.

If you have children, the quality of the schools is important. The local school district can provide figures on class size, achievement test scores and dollars spent per student. If you don't have children, you may prefer a community where education is not a big budget item. The resale value of your house may grow more slowly than in other areas, but the tax savings may be worth more to you now.

Check with the local tax assessor for a tax assessment on the home you'd like to build. If you'll be living in a new development, expect property taxes to climb.

■ Investment value. By comparing your home with others in its immediate vicinity, you can estimate what most homes in the area are worth. If your home would be the grandest in the neighborhood, you can expect its value to appreciate more slowly. On the other hand, a smaller, well-designed home — especially one that offers room for expansion — may command a good price in years to come.

It's also important to know how stringently building regulations are enforced. If exceptions are easily granted and your neighbor is allowed to build close to your lot line, it could affect your home's value.

Check to find out where schools are planned. Until a school is actually approved, there is a possibility that something else could be built on that site.

■ Site characteristics. Once you've selected a neighborhood, cast a critical eye on the sites available. Revisit a lot at different times of the day to see when it's in bright sunlight and when it's in shade. If you are planning a deck off the back or side, what time of day will you use it most? Will it be in the cool of the shade or the heat of the sun at that time?

After a rain, does the property drain well? Call the city planning department to see if the lot is in a 100-year or 500-year flood zone.

Are water, utility, telephone, and sewer connections available? Will you have to install a well or a septic tank? These items could cost thousands of dollars you weren't expecting to spend. If you're a television fan, is cable hookup available?

■ Zoning. Most local ordinances specify the minimum size home you can construct on a particular lot. They also specify how close you can build to the street and adjacent property lines.

Office market's health depends on community

STAFF WRITER

Pounded by a continuing recession, 1992 was a mixed bag for the suburban office market. And recovery is flat and tenuous, according to a number of year-end real estate analyses.

"I believe we're starting to see the first signs (the worst) is over," said Joel Feldman, author of the Noble/Advantage Report, a comprehensive review of office market activity on a city by city basis.

"Various communities are experiencing some net absorption of office space and increases in leasing. But the opposite is occurring in other communities," Feldman said.

"We have, overall, probably bottomed out. Nevertheless, the market remains weak. The bottom line is we have a very large and diverse office market in metropolitan Detroit. It's hard to generalize. Certain communities are on the road to recovery; others are still very troubled."

Last year across the suburban landscape, landlords scrambled to retain tenants and searched for ways to attract new ones. A number of buildings went into foreclosure. Vacancies in just about every market still abound.

"We anticipate a flat year, no worse or better than '92," said William M. Pankhurst, a spokesman for Grubb & Ellis, which released its fourth-quarter office market report this week.

"Some of the changes we're dealing with in the '90s is businesses don't need as much office space due to the shrinking size of office equipment, and many more employees are working from a home setting," Pankhurst said.

Feldman, currently senior vice president of Noble Realty in Southfield, concludes this economic downturn is much deeper and more severe than previous ones. Thus the approaches used in previous recessionary cycles will not do the job this time around.

"The key to the solution is a decrease in the current oversupply of office space in tandem with the expansion of existing tenants and attracting new business to our area on a massive scale," he said.

"The downtown Detroit core business area has deteriorated so bad that government intervention and support is mandatory to salvage it."

Although Detroit's status is vastly different from suburban market activity, Feldman says its depressed image could hurt in attracting new business on a national scale.

Here's a closer look at suburban office activity garnered from the Noble Report:

■ Southfield — On the up side, Michigan's largest office community leased out 880,000 square feet of speculative general office space. Some facilities that were experiencing problems turned the corner, office buildings in the central and southern parts realized significant leasing activity once renovations were complete.

On the down side, there was no gain with respect to reducing the amount of vacant space in the market, a number of buildings were lost to foreclosure, with others on the brink, and large blocks of vacant space remain unleased. Virtually every building on the southern boundary along Eight Mile Road between Greenfield and Southfield is out of business or experiencing extraordinarily severe leasing problems.

■ Troy — This city appears on the road to recovery, with leasing activity up sharply from 1991 and occupancy up. Significant absorption by new tenants occurred. But foreclosures occurred on a regular basis and overall the office market is still soft and sluggish. Traffic congestion is still having an adverse affect, especially along Big Beaver.

■ Birmingham — Experienced a slow, lacklustre 1992, the amount of square footage leased at its lowest level since 1988. Overall occupancy fell to its lowest level in at least six years to 78.97 percent. Downtown Birmingham today is in a state of transition.

■ Bloomfield Hills — Rebounded strongly due to refurbishment of existing buildings and the lack of the introduction of new office space and the renewal of current leases. The tightening of the market should continue during 1993 provided no new speculative office development takes place.

Housing becomes more affordable

(AP) — The ability of a typical American family to buy a home rose in the fourth quarter to its highest level in 18½ years, boosted by rising incomes and falling mortgage rates.

The National Association of Realtors said its Housing Affordability Index was 129.6 in the October-December period, up from 120.2 a year earlier and the highest since it measured 127.8 in the April-June quarter of 1974.

The index measures the ability of a family earning the median income to purchase a median-priced previously owned home. The median means that half of the incomes are more and half are less, or that half of the homes cost more and half less.

When the index measures 100, the median family income equals the amount needed to purchase a median-priced home using conventional financing and a 20 percent down payment. The median income in the fourth quarter was $36,837.

ARE YOU LOOKING FOR A CHANGE?
I love my new job. My old job was never like this. The work is fast paced and challenging. I work between 42 and 46 hours in a well displayed showroom. I enjoy people and get great personal satisfaction from helping them. I now earn more than $3000/mo. and I'm not the highest paid salesperson in my company. I also have a full benefits package including major medical and dental, paid vacations and even profit sharing.

Is this sounds like you, we should talk.

Time Never Runs Out!

NOW...
You can place an Observer & Eccentric classified ad 24 hours a day!

Here's how it works:
First, you must have a touch-tone telephone.
Then, all you do is call us – remember, it doesn't make any difference if we're not here – to place an ad, cancel one or change something on one you've placed earlier.
Let's say it's eight o'clock at night and you've just realized that the cupid on the clock you're selling plays a tin whistle. It's a good selling point, so you punch up our classified number and wait for the operator to guide you through the steps for changing your ad. Have in mind the exact information you want to give us, speak clearly and a bit slower than you usually do. And that's it.
If it's after 5:00 p.m. on Tuesday, your changes will be made for the next Monday paper. Or, if it's after 5:00 p.m. on a Friday or the weekend, your changes will hit the Thursday papers.
Pretty neat, huh?
Of course, our Classified Ad Takers are here every Monday throught Friday from 8:00 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. But now, if you miss them, you can still do something about your ad – at your convenience.

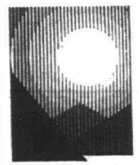
A Better Way To Settle Conflict

There is a better way to settle a divorce dispute than a costly courtroom battle. You can control the decisions that affect your family with a mediator. A mediator is an impartial person who helps people in conflict make practical, informed decisions when tension is high.



DIVORCE MEDIATION

- is typically less costly than litigation,
- benefits children and others by reducing conflict,
- is a voluntary settlement process around financial and child visitation issues.

Wedding Planner

Created With The Groom In Mind

There are many important duties for the groom to remember as the big day approaches. The best man, ushers and groom's parents can also make many contributions. Keep this guide for reference, and you'll be sure to remember every little detail!

Groom:

- Buy an engagement ring.
- Choose your best man, groomsmen and ushers for the wedding.
- Have a list of people you want to invite to the wedding. Your family should make out their list as well.
- Choose a wedding present for the bride.
- Go with your fiancée to a formal wear shop to select outfits for you and the men in the wedding party.
- Select the wedding ring with your fiancée and allow time for sizing and engraving.
- Apply for a marriage license.
- If you're planning a traditional wedding, plan on paying for the bride's bouquet, going-away corsage, corsages for both mothers and other close female relatives on either side, and boutonnieres for yourself, groomsmen and ushers.
- Make insurance changes for yourself and your new spouse. Considerations should include life, personal property, household, medical and fire insurance.
- Be certain you and your fiancée have all necessary papers, blood tests, birth certificates, etc.
- Give the clergyman's fee to the best man the day of the wedding. He will then give it to the clergyman following the ceremony.
- Notify your attendants of the time and place of the wedding rehearsal.
- Plan your bachelor dinner several days before the wedding. The best man and ushers often prefer to host this.
- Be sure both you and your new spouse sign the wedding certificate before leaving on the honeymoon.
- Send a thank-you note or telegram to the bride's parents the day after the wedding.

Notes:_____

Best Man:

- Inform the ushers of any special seating arrangements during the rehearsal.
- Get the wedding ring the day of the ceremony.
- Check tickets, reservations, etc., for the honeymoon and be sure the groom has tickets when he leaves.
- Have marriage license and fee of clergyman ready the day of the wedding.
- Help the groom prepare for the ceremony. Make sure his bags are packed and his going-away clothes are ready.
- Accompany the groom to the wedding. Make sure you are there at least 15 minutes before the ceremony.
- Be timekeeper and toastmaster at the reception. Help the couple make their getaway at the appropriate time.

Notes:_____

Ushers:

- Be at the site of the wedding one hour before the start of the ceremony. The groom should have boutonnieres ready for you.
- Have a typed list of guests occupying reserved pews. Stand at the door and ask each arriving female guest if she is a friend of the bride or groom. Offer your right arm to the woman and escort her to her seat.
- Head usher escorts groom's mother to the front right-hand pew.
- Ushers escort all women in the front pews to the door. The bride's mother is first, then the mother of the groom, etc.

Notes:_____

Groom's Parents:

- Give your guest list to the bride so she can coordinate the list with hers.
- Give a rehearsal dinner for the bride if the bride's family is willing for you to do so.
- Call on the bride's family before the engagement is officially announced.
- Send the bride's mother a note expressing happiness about the couple's engagement.

Today's Trends

Wedding Gowns

No matter what people say, a wedding is really for the bride.

A groom's participation in a wedding is essential, and attendants, family, flowers and food also play an important role. But on the day of the wedding, all eyes will be on the bride.

The bride's gown is the centerpiece of the wedding. The style, color and look of the wedding all stem from her gown.

So it's no surprise that some brides begin shopping for their gown at least a year before their wedding. Many hope to find the dress of their dreams.

Throughout the market there is a variety of styles for every taste. The current trend in dresses is a clean and neat look. The simple elegance of dresses of the '60s are influencing many styles today. However, some brides still prefer lace and ruffles.

Off-the-shoulder, portrait necklines and strapless gowns have grown in popularity. In addition, the headpieces are simpler than ever before.

But even as the average age of a first time bride gets older, brides of every age want to wear a magical gown.
