Pastor aims at Artley, Hoben

A Canton Township pastor says he will run against David Artley for school board unless Superintendent John Hoben retires and the school administration works hard to promote a school millage increase on the June 14 ballot.

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

The June 14 Plymouth-Canton school election could see two friends challenge each other for the single open board of education seat unless Superintendent John Hoben announces his retirement and the administration begins promoting the proposed millage increase.

Rev. William Myers of Canton has taken out election petitions, as has longtime school board member David Artley.

Myers, who describes himself as a reluctant candidate, has served on Artley's re-election committees. He says he'll file the petitions by the April 12 deadline if current leadership isn't jolted into action.

"How many indicators does the board need before they know that it is time to make a change at the top?" asked Myers, who served as pastor of Canton's Faith Community Moravian Church from 1986-1992. The congregation has since been dissolved by the Moravian Church of America, which commended Myers for his exceptional service.

Door is closed on rib house

David Khoury isn't giving up, but his Damon's Ribs restaurant won't be opening soon in Canton Township.

"On a Monday morning I was ready to come down to Detroit and sign a lease with Kroger," said the Kalamazoo resident.

Khoury was to open the 11,500-square-foot ribs and chicken restaurant in the partially vacant former Great Scott! supermarket in the Canton Corners shopping center, when the deal went awry.

With a Class C liquor license approved by Canton Township trustees, Khoury was ready to get down to business with Kroger, which bought out the Great Scott! chain.

Little did Khoury know, however, that permission from shopping center owner Joe Kosick Jr. of JFK Co., Waterford, was required when a restaurant of 10,000 square feet or more wants to lease space in the center, which boasts the popular Outback Steakhouse at Lilley and Ford.

Rape suspect charged in Pontiac slaying

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

A 36-year-old drifter — awaiting trial for the 1988-89 rape of two women in Canton — faces murder charges in connection with the 1990 death of a Pontiac woman.

Buhnerkemper

David Buhnerkemper, a onetime Canton resident, was charged Feb. 19 with one count of first-degree murder, one count of felony murder and one count of criminal sexual conduct in the death of Carol Birrell, whose nude body was found in a Holly Township field near I-75.

"The woman had bite marks on her," said Detective Sgt. David Haire of the Michigan State Police Pontiac post.

Women who say they had been assaulted by Buhnerkemper, two of whom had been taken to Knollwood Cemetery in Canton, "remarked about his unusual teeth," Haire said. "That piqued my interest."

He checked data on the police law enforcement information system about prostitutes being beaten, raped, and kept against their will, following Birrell's murder in late summer-early fall 1991. Then in September 1991, a Pontiac woman was abducted and taken to Washtenaw County.

When Buhnerkemper was arrested in Ypsilanti in 1992 on criminal sexual conduct charges, "we had a name and a place," Haire said. The Pontiac woman who was abducted later identified Buhnerkemper in a lineup as her abductor.

A plea of not guilty was entered for Buhnerkemper at his arraignment Feb. 19 in 52nd-2 District Court in Clarkston. He remains in the Oakland County Jail without bond. A preliminary exam on the charges is scheduled for 10 a.m. Friday, Feb. 26, in 52nd-2 District Court, a court spokeswoman said. Conviction on the murder charges carries a maximum penalty of life in prison.

Because the women who had been assaulted talked of being bitten and of their attackers' unusual teeth, the state police got a court order to take imprints of Buhnerkemper's bite. The imprint matched the marks found on Birrell's back, neck and chest, Haire said.

Buhnerkemper was convicted on criminal sexual assault charges in Washtenaw County and has been in jail since February 1992. Two criminal sexual conduct cases against Buhnerkemper stemming from Canton Township are pending in Wayne County.

Clinton tax plan gets angry response

THE PRESIDENT'S PLAN
Hitting home

BY CASEY HANS
STAFF WRITER

Everybody's preparing to take a hit, but nobody knows exactly how much the recent tax increase proposals from the White House will eventually affect their families.

While most residents are concerned, some are downright angry.

The U.S. Congress is expected to move ahead in implementing President Bill Clinton's plan, which calls for tax increases for couples who have a taxable income of more $140,000 per year and singles more than $115,000, plus other tax impacts on taxpayers who make as low as $30,000.

Clinton made the proposals during his economic State of the Union address to Congress Feb. 17. He offered a four-year proposal to cut the deficit by about $500 billion and included plans for both new taxes and spending cuts.

Kirk Najarian, owner of Najarian Electronics in Redford, said he worries about the future of small businesses that may have to shoulder additional taxes and costs, including the cost of a nationalized health care plan.

"He's punishing achievement, and that's not right," said Najarian, a Redford resident who was recently married and who is a former township trustee. He said he earns in the $30,000 to $60,000 range.

"All the speech was, was class warfare — beat up on the rich. Those people with that expendable income . . . are floating the economy and helping businesses like mine. If we put more of a burden on them, they aren't going to have the money to spend."

Najarian said he was also concerned Clinton's plan would "ruin the economy" and that increased taxes won't be applied to reduce the deficit. Other residents in the Observer & Eccentric area echoed his concerns.

Farmington resident and local salesman David Merrill expects a new gas tax to hit his one-income family hard, and said any increase would also eat into disposable income.

"I'm looking for three-four times a month I can't take my wife out — that's what it will mean to me," he said. Merrill, who voted for George Bush, said Clinton "has all good intentions, but he's way off in left field."

Contractor suffers burns on job site

A 32-year-old electrical contractor was burned while working on a box or switch at a Canton manufacturing firm Tuesday afternoon.

"One theory is that he may have slipped and hit a wire. But it is still being investigated," said Canton police information officer Tammie Colling.

The contractor was working on a 480-volt switch or box at Greenfield Die Manufacturing, 8301 Ronda, when it appeared to short out. A flash followed and the man received second- and third-degree burns on his arms, hands, chest, neck and face, Colling said.

Canton firefighters stabilized the man and he was transported by helicopter to the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor, Colling said.

When Canton dispatchers received the call at 2:30 p.m., they were told some type of electrical explosion occurred. But when firefighters and police arrived, they discovered there had been an electrical accident, which is being investigated by the Canton fire prevention unit.

Coach's lawsuit to return to court

By Kevin Brown
Staff Writer

A racial discrimination lawsuit filed against the Salem Township board of trustees is scheduled to return to court on Wednesday.

Raymond Givens has alleged in a suit against the township that because he is black, the board chose a white candidate to fill the chief's position in 1991.

Givens, a former Salem Township firefighter, also serves as the Plymouth Canton High School wrestling coach.

On Wednesday, the township's law firm — Bodman, Longley and Dahling — is returning to Washtenaw County Circuit Court, seeking to have the case dismissed.

"There has not been any discrimination against Mr. Givens," said attorney Harvey Berman, representing the Salem Township board in the suit. "I think the case is weak to say the least."

Besides alleging racial discrimination, Givens maintains deliberations by the township's five elected officers on the fire chief selection were made at closed meetings, in violation of the state Open Meetings Act.

Only two of the five board members serving in 1991 remain on the current board.

According to court documents filed on behalf of Givens by his attorney Jean King, "trustee Ferman Rohraff made a comment to the effect that Raymond L. Givens would not be selected as chief because he is the wrong color."

The complaint maintains that the trustee made the comment while talking with employees of the South Lyon schools.

Rohraff said he made no such comment, according to the motion to dismiss Givens' suit.

Givens was a member of the township fire department for more than 13 years, and had taken "extensive training in fire fighting, fire prevention, law, first aid" and more, according to his court complaint.

When long time fire chief Bill Hirth announced in early 1991 he was going to leave the position, Givens was among a handful of candidates who applied. The field was eventually narrowed to Givens and Mark Hamilton, a township farmer.

Givens maintains that two early April 1991 meetings in which the Salem Township board reviewed the two finalists were not posted as required by law, and that no minutes were published.

At the May 7 board meeting in which Hamilton was chosen over Givens, there was a "total lack of discussion of the credentials of the candidates," the complaint alleges, "further evidence that the board had made a decision about which person to employ as fire chief in a closed meeting."

Givens is asking the court to invalidate the board action to appoint Hamilton and require the township board to open all interviews for fire chief in open meetings.

According to Berman's motion to dismiss the Givens suit, the Salem Township board members "state that racial considerations were never discussed at any of the board meetings and none of the board members took racial factors into consideration."

The motion to dismiss further states that Givens "falsified his employment application for the fire chief's position as to both duration of his prior service with the Livingston County Sheriff's Department and the circumstances of his departure." The motion alleges that "evidence of Givens' lack of truthfulness disqualified him."

Some trustees said they favored Hamilton as the candidate because he "was the only person interviewed who stated that the first thing he would do when he arrived at a fire scene was to determine if anyone was in the burning structure and get them out," according to the motion to dismiss.

Givens and his attorney were unavailable for comment Tuesday.

district, the one person who has set high standards of educational excellence during the recent years of unprecedented growth of the district.

"I think he deserves all the respect for what he has done in the past, but it is slipping. The best indicator of that is the board's last evaluation," he said. Hoben scored lowest in the student achievement category — "the most important one. We don't have a school district for the express purpose of having a budget. We have a school district to educate our children."

Myers says he has never entertained political aspirations, but could no longer remain on the sidelines after what happened to Robert Gale, a Farrand Elementary teacher who recently in a jury trial was found not guilty of striking a student. Myers said throughout the ordeal, which began when a police report was filed by a parent last October, Gale was not supported by administration, even though an investigation by his principal found no evidence of wrongdoing. Gale was reassigned as a substitute against his will immediately after the allegation was made.

"That teacher was left hanging out to dry. That's misfeasance and malfeasance," Myers said. "Teachers aren't being taken care of, and education is suffering. I can see morale is down.

"My sense is they (administration and the board) are focusing on minutiae at the expense of the big picture," added Myers. "This millage has to be taken before the electorate."

Myers said it's disturbing that there has been no push on the part of the administration or board of education regarding the dire need for a millage increase.

"If we don't get this renewal and increase, Plymouth-Canton Community Schools will cease to exist as we've known it," he said. District projections call for as many as 250 teachers to be pink-slipped.

A graduate of Cherry Hill schools, where his father served on the board of education, Myers has a bachelor's degree from Eastern Michigan University in accounting. He put himself through school while working in management positions with the trucking industry, and has worked as a substitute teacher. Myers also holds a master of divinity degree from Moravian Theological Seminary in Bethlehem, Penn.

He received clinical training in four hospitals. He served as Protestant chaplain at two hospitals in Wisconsin, and as pastor at parishes in Wisconsin and Ohio before returning to Michigan in 1986.

Myers, 46, and his wife, Beth, have two children who attend Plymouth-Canton Community Schools: Robert, 16, and Sarah, 15.

With Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, Myers has served on the I Care and Reproductive Health committees; hospice boards; and the marching band boosters board of directors.

He is a board member of the Community Foundation, which he served as president from 1991-92. Myers currently serves as youth pastoral adviser for the Moravian Church of America's mid-states region. He was chosen for that post by Moravian youth of Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and Ohio.

Paczki time

Italian-style pastry packs 'em in

They were pushing out the paczki Italian style at Joe's Italian Bakery on Ann Arbor Road on Tuesday.

And by the time Fat Tuesday wound down, Joe Mainella, the owner, and his workers had pushed out more than 2,000 dozen of the filling-ladened pastries.

"That's a lot for an Italian bakery," said Mainella.

The paczki were shipped to local churches, schools and the rest were sold over the counter in stores in Plymouth and Livonia.

Fat Tuesday, the day prior to the start of Lent, marks the last day Catholics can enjoy themselves before giving up sweets and other things they like for the Easter season.

The tradition kept Mainella moving for 30 hours straight, starting at 4 a.m. on Monday. And it was truly a family affair, with his wife Anita and his parents, Luigi and Filomena Mainella, helping to keep the jelly rolling.

Mainella opened his Livonia bakery in 1984, and on the first Fat Tuesday of that year, people came in asking "Where's da' paczki?"

"I had never heard of them," Mainella said.

But that didn't last long. A Polish woman who worked for him provided an authentic recipe, and they produced 100 dozen the first day.

And the jelly has been rolling ever since on Fat Tuesday.

Meetings probe ways to change education

By M.B. Dillon
Staff Writer

Students are graduating from Plymouth-Canton Community Schools with an education that prepares them for life in the 20th century, not the 21st century, say high school administrators and staff.

The need to restructure the high schools to prepare graduates to live "meaningful, responsible and productive lives in the 21st century" has prompted a series of "town meetings" at Centennial Educational Park to discuss how education should change.

Plymouth Canton High School Principal Tom MacKenzie and others from CEP presented an overview on restructuring to the school board.

The intent is "to move ourselves into the 21st century, recognizing the social and economic realities," said Peg Bozyk of CEP.

"The world has changed, and we need to look at things differently," said MacKenzie. "There is a need to change how and what we teach in a global society. More than half our young people leave school without the skills they need in the job market."

Vision for change

At meetings in January, administrators, teachers, students and parents talked about the reasons for change, and their visions for change.

Questions for the February meetings included: What does it mean to be educated? How do we know if education has occurred? How do we want students to behave? What is the body of knowledge, skills and values that should be common to all students? Can we design a curriculum for quality and equity without creating de facto tracking?"

Currently, learning at the park is "fragmented by the clock, disciplines and certification. There are no connections between such classes as math, science and philosophy," said MacKenzie. Also hampering the learning process is the fact that on the sprawling, two-school campus, CEP's 4,400 students spend 50 minutes in class, and then 10 minutes walking to their next class. On average, each teacher has a total of 150-180 students. Missing for many is a sense of belonging and connectedness.

"Our past has been characterized by restructuring initiatives that have not been sustained, in part, because we have not presented the faculty with a unified plan and commitment for change. This mistake will not be repeated," MacKenzie said.

Themes for change include "looking at the person as well as what we are teaching; knowing the whole child; humanitarianism; quality of life; academic achievement; and legal and moral mandates," he said, adding that the involvement and support of the board and the community are needed.

School board treasurer Dean Swartzwelter asked why restructuring is being studied when "two years ago, we got input from 150 citizens (from volunteers who served on the Vision 2010 Committee) on how they thought we should change the district. This sounds like we're starting from scratch."

Swartzwelter added that he was anxious to implement Vision 2010 changes right away, "but you guys all said we had to wait."

Pilot program

Tom Tattan, executive director for secondary education, answered that the restructuring effort actually is tackling the first section of the 2010 report. He said it's hoped that a pilot program will be in place by 1994.

Superintendent John Hoben said it's essential that the district restructure, and soon.

"That's what we are hearing from the business community," Hoben said. We will lose public education to individuals who claim they can do it better and cheaper if we aren't willing to change, he added.

"The public out there is not particularly sensitive to coughing up more millage. This idea of doing more with less is here to stay," added Hoben.

Trustee Jack Farrow asked whether societal attitudes are being addressed. "One of my favorite quotes is that the most important change needs to be in the living room," he said.

Trustee Carl Battishill, a teacher with West Bloomfield schools, commended the restructuring committee for achieving precedent-setting cooperation. "I'm tremendously pleased and impressed with what you've done.

United Way reports fake boxes

By James Radebaugh
Staff Writer

It might be the sugar rush or it might be a charitable impulse, but whatever compels you to plop a few coins into a United Way box and take a piece of candy be forewarned: Your money really isn't going to United Way.

Someone has placed candy-filled collection boxes bearing United Way's open-palm logo in restaurants in Plymouth, Canton and Washtenaw County. But that someone is in no way connected with the charitable organization, said Marie Morrow, executive director of United Way of Plymouth.

"This has nothing to do with United Way," Morrow said.

United Way's only fund-raising consists of its annual September-December solicitation drive, she added. United Way raises money to support a wide range of non-profit organizations locally and nationwide.

Morrow said she will report the fraudulent boxes to Plymouth and Canton police.

Ex-cellmate: Man talked of killing

By Darrell Clem
Staff Writer

A man who once shared a jail cell with Frederick Morris claims that the Canton Township man talked about killing his former boss, Charles W. Piper of Westland, a prosecutor said Wednesday.

Bradley Topham is prepared to testify today as the murder trial of Morris, 34, enters its fourth day, said assistant Wayne County prosecutor Michael Reynolds. Topham told his story in a pre-trial hearing at which Recorder's Court Judge David Kerwin ruled Topham could testify as a witness for the prosecution, Reynolds said.

Morris is accused of killing Piper, 53, on the evening of Jan. 5, 1992, at Piper's business, Chuck's Cycle Service, in Wayne. Piper, shot in the face and at the base of his skull, was found lying face up on his shop floor about 5:30 p.m.

Following an investigation, Wayne police arrested Morris and charged him with first-degree murder, felony murder, armed robbery and a felony firearms violation. He is accused of killing Piper and stealing a cash box containing about $3,000.

Morris has pleaded not guilty. His trial began Monday before Kerwin.

Topham and Morris shared a cell in Ottawa County after Piper's killing, where Morris was jailed in a case unrelated to Piper's death, Reynolds said.

But defense attorney Donald Johnson said Wednesday he will try to refute Topham's claims by suggesting that he is testifying against Morris to benefit himself. Topham, a habitual offender for such crimes as armed robbery, has already succeeded in getting some charges against him either reduced or dropped, Johnson said.

Morris could face life without a chance for parole in prison if convicted.

Morris and Piper had argued frequently, and one worker at Chuck's Cycle Service told prosecutors that he overheard Piper fire Morris during the summer of 1991, Reynolds said.

That differed from testimony on Tuesday in which Morris' girlfriend, Sharon Broughton, said Morris quit his job because he had been offered a better one.

Reynolds also suggested that Morris needed money and that he was upset over a lawsuit that Broughton had filed against him and Piper. In the still-pending suit, Broughton claims that her 12-year-old son, Frank, suffered burns on his face and body three years ago when he accompanied Morris to Chuck's Cycle Service. Broughton claims that flames burst from a motorcycle carburetor and burned her son.

On Wednesday, Reynolds suggested that Morris had been upset with Piper for refusing to settle the case out of court.

Piper's body was found after he failed to come home from work, and Wayne police were contacted by his fiancee, Sharon Piper. The two had the same last name but were not yet married.

Testimony has indicated that Morris got a pistol from an acquaintance, Robert Sikes.

Authorities are trying to link the bullets from Piper's body with other bullets that Sikes fired from the gun into a pile of brush at his Sumpter Township home. In court Monday, forensic expert John Stanton of the Michigan State Police post in Northville indicated that the same gun "could" have fired the bullets.

However, Johnson said the bullets fired at Sikes' residence were badly disfigured because of the brush they struck — and that prosecutors can't prove they were fired from the same gun that killed Piper.

On Monday, Reynolds said Morris told conflicting stories about leaving town on the same day Piper was killed. Morris told some people he was going to northern Michigan, but told others he planned a trip to Kentucky.

Poet/priest gives work to the pope

By Tim Smith
Staff Writer

■ 'I studied him and afterward I wrote the poem. I was inspired by him.'
the Rev. Walter Ziemba

The pope likes poetry.

So does the Rev. Walter Ziemba of Orchard Lake St. Mary's Preparatory School, the author of "Ellipses," a recently published book of poems he's amassed over the last 40 years.

That's why it was a natural to present the pontiff with an inscribed copy on Jan. 21, when they were together in Rome for a private lunch meeting of the John Paul II Foundation's administrative council. Ziemba is a member of the council, and the pope was on hand at the meeting to address it.

Ziemba, known on St. Mary's campus as "Father Wally," greeted the pope during a reception line at the start of the function and gave him the 68-page book, one of 500 copies printed in 1992 to give to family and friends.

"I told him there were three poems about him in the book," Ziemba said last week, recalling the latest of visits with the worldwide religious leader, which date back to 1968. "He immediately opened the book and said 'Where?' "

That particular moment was captured in a color photograph Father Wally brought home with him to St. Mary's. "I like the expression on his face because it's one of pleasure," said Ziemba, looking at the photo.

Continuing to recall the visit, Ziemba said he spoke briefly in Polish with Pope John Paul II while the pontiff took a moment to flip through some of the book's pages.

But Ziemba said he wasn't provided with an immediate reaction from the pope, described as being in good health and spirits.

"Because the pope writes poetry himself, he probably took a closer look at it up in his room," Ziemba said.

Ziemba said he wrote his first poem about Pope John Paul II in 1988, after his first meeting as a member of the administrative council. "I studied him and afterward I wrote the poem. I was inspired by him."

The poem details how the pope entered the room: "He enters . . . white marblesque figure cuts through invisible air . . . hard heels hammer against hard wooden floor."

Asked about his longtime penchant for poetry, Ziemba said he has no particular formula, other than putting his life's experiences down on paper.

Rib house

"We were working with Damon's Ribs, and we were advised by the landlord (Kosick) that another restaurant of 10,000 square feet or larger can't go in there," said Ron Spurlock, Kroger Co. vice president of merchandising.

But Khoury said the deal with Kroger came undone because Outback Steakhouse officials were concerned about competition so close to their restaurant. "Outback Steakhouse was shaking in their boots," Khoury said.

Khoury also maintains that Outback Steakhouse wasn't 10,000 square feet in size until Kosick leased the chain restaurant more space in another part of the shopping center. Kosick did not return the Observer's inquiries. Gary Harchelroad, Outback Steakhouse manager, was unavailable for comment Tuesday.

"They did this to keep me out," Khoury said.

Kid Kingdom, an indoor play park, which moved into part of the former Great Scott! space in January, also has a small restaurant that serves pizza, hot dogs, popcorn and beverages.

But Kroger's Spurlock said that doesn't count. "The restaurant in Kid Kingdom was leased prior to Outback Steakhouse becoming 10,000 square feet."

Khoury said he was willing to sit down and talk with Outback Steakhouse owners. "We would have complemented each other, not hurt each other," he said.

After working on the restaurant deal for four months, Khoury said he's disappointed. "Kroger didn't want to go to court over this, so they didn't pursue it. If they had been more diligent in signing leases, I would have been in there with no problems," Khoury said.

Damon's Ribs would have featured Trivial Pursuit games at patrons' tables with the help of a big television screen. Damon's Ribs is a franchise out of Columbus, Ohio. The restaurant's specialty is ribs, but chicken, fish and beef also were on the full lunch and dinner menu. The restaurant was to be divided into three major areas, some with television screens for sports events.

But goodbye, Canton — at least for now. "I consider Canton to be an excellent place to do business. I'm not going to do Canton right now. But I'll be back," Khoury said.

gress that has not addressed the deficit issue.

Canton resident and self-employed businessman Richard Reome spends a lot of time on the road.

"It's going to increase my cost of doing business," he said. "This doesn't seem to be the way to increase the business climate and revitalize things."

Reome, who is in the office products industry, said he sees the effects of a down economy when he calls on businesses. "I'm hearing mostly negative reactions," he added. "I'm seeing a lot of businesses just plain closed up."

Financial counselors said it's tough to determine individual impact until Clinton's plan goes through Congress.

The median income is $44,035 in suburban Wayne County — well above Clinton's $30,000 line of impact. Experts agreed everyone is expected to feel the proposed energy tax if it becomes a reality. Not only would consumers pay at the gas tank and in heating bills, but also in consumer goods because the increased cost of energy to manufacturers may be passed on in price increases.

"My clients are telling me they don't want to pay more taxes unless it goes for deficit reduction," said Tom Hogan, a Livonia financial planner, most of whose clients earn in the $50,000 to $100,000 range, although some earn less. He believes the tax increases will hit those making under $50,000 the hardest.

"The federal government is like your own family budget — the only way to get out of debt is to stop spending," he added. "I think what we should do is not raise taxes, but cut the budget across the board with no sacred cows."

Opinion in the 13th Congressional district is apparently leaning in the same direction. Mike Russell, press secretary to Congressman William D. Ford, D-Ypsilanti Township, said his office received 110 calls on the day after the address, with 70 speaking against the Clinton plan and 40 for it. The district represents residents of Washtenaw and Wayne counties and includes Garden City, Westland, Plymouth, Canton and part of Livonia.

But Russell said the response was not particularly strong. "We didn't have very many calls, considering the magnitude of the issue," he added. "We've had a much larger response on other issues.

Richard Parker of Garden City is one who is concerned. He and his wife live on his $21,000-per-year retirement benefit from Ford Motor and get along fine. He wants to know why government officials can't do with less.

Livonia woman calls plan 'shell game'

By Casey Hans
Staff Writer

There is some spirited talk around the Buech dinner table in Livonia these days.

Much of it surrounds President Bill Clinton's economic proposals and the future of the country. Represented are the staunch conservative views of Joan Buech, tempered by a more moderate view from her husband, Fred. Joan's mother, Ruth Huse, arrived for a visit the day of Clinton's address, so also has added her opinion to the family forum.

Joan Buech, called Clinton's plan a "shell game."

"The government little by little takes away our freedoms. To say that taxation is contribution — that's putting it mildly," she said. "I'm angry, I'm incensed about it. Until he tells me what these cuts mean, it means nothing. It means diddly squat."

Unlike some Wayne County residents who might support Clinton but oppose his plan, or others who want to give his ideas a chance, both Buech and Huse are vehemently opposed to Clinton and what he stands for and they make no apologies for it.

"It was hard for me to believe in him — you had heard him so many times before," said Huse, a senior who lives in Illinois, about 50 miles south of Chicago with her retired husband. "What bothers me the most is to think that daily living will cost more."

She said a straight tax on everybody would be the fairest way to approach the federal deficit. "They shouldn't pit one group against another," she added. "To me, if they've had the incentive to get ahead, I don't think they should pay more for it."

The Bueches live in the Six Mile/Levan area with their 17-year-old daughter Linda and 14-year-old son Patrick, and survive solely on Fred's salary from Ford Motor Credit. Linda will be going to college next year, and Joan Buech said she is already planning on a family austerity program in light of the recent proposal.

"We will definitely have to cut down the thermostat more," she said. "There will be less going to the store — because this will also impact buying consumer goods too. I've told them we're going to be penny pinching."

Joan and her mother have always stayed involved with politics, calling their elected representatives and voicing their opinions. This time was no exception. "It seems more and more people have become involved in politics lately," Buech added. "If nothing else happens in this mess, maybe it's getting people involved.

Madonna University plans dinner auction

Going once, going twice . . .

A long list of vacation trips, cruises, jewelry and other items will be sold to the highest bidders at the Madonna University "Around the World Scholarship Dinner Auction" Saturday, April 17, in Livonia's Laurel Manor.

Northwest Airlines, which for the fourth year is sponsoring the event, has donated six sets of round trip tickets to a variety of destinations. Up for bid will be airfare to London, Anchorage, Los Angeles, Minneapolis, New Orleans and Honolulu.

The evening features a live and silent auction of more than 700 items, open bar and waited dinner. Cost is $60 per person. A special guest appearance wig be made by Terri Sue Liford, Miss Michigan 1992.

Additional gifts include autographed sports items, getaway weekends, tickets to sporting and theater events, art, crystal and more.

A variety of jewelry will be highlighted, including a Berndt Munsteiner fantasy cut stone courtesy of another auction sponsor, DuQuet Jewelers.

One lucky winner will drive away in a 1993 Don Massey Cadillac Sedan DeVille — only 600 tickets being sold at a cost of $200 each will be sold.

Schools offer program on life and work

■ 'The workshop continues to grow each year. Last year, more than 500 students and parents participated, and we expect even more this year.'

June Swartz
Salem counselor

The Centennial Educational Park counseling department will present "Preparing to Live and Work in the 21st Century," a program for high school juniors and their parents, at 7 p.m. Thursday, March 18, at Canton High School.

The program is sponsored by the CEP counseling department in conjunction with Eastern Michigan University, Schoolcraft College, the University of Michigan and local employers.

"The junior year is when most students become motivated to start planning for post-secondary opportunities," said June Swartz, a counselor at Salem High School. "The workshop continues to grow each year. Last year, more than 500 students and parents participated, and we expect even more this year."

The program will begin in the Canton High School cafeteria with introductions and an explanation of the timeline of events that take place for students now through their senior year. The program offers valuable information to help students plan their senior year and to begin planning their futures, according to Salem High School counselor Jan Kavulich.

Following the introductory remarks, Bob Schieders, an educational consultant from EDFI, and Bernadette Larkin of Manufacturers National Bank, will present "What Employers Look For in the Future."

Three small group sessions will be held. Catherine Philbin, a senior admissions counselor at the University of Michigan, will discuss "Finding the Appropriate College." Carina Gainer of Schoolcraft College will present "The Community College Experience." Dr. J. Michael Erwin, director of career services at Eastern Michigan University, will discuss "The Job Market in the Year 2000: Where Should You Be?"

The program is free and open to all juniors and their parents. For more information, contact June Swartz or Jan Kavulich at 451-6600.

Three win math competition

Three students from Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem High Schools placed among the top 100 students from across the country in the 36th annual Michigan Mathematics Prize Competition.

More than 16,000 students competed in the 36th annual Michigan Mathematics Prize Competition, which is sponsored by the Michigan Section of the Mathematical Association of America.

Winners in the competition are Plymouth Canton senior Bryant Wu of Plymouth, Plymouth Canton junior Piyush Bharti of Plymouth, and Plymouth Salem senior Robert McLain of Canton.

The students will be honored at an awards banquet at Lawrence Technological University on Saturday, Feb. 27. College scholarships totaling more than $29,000 will be awarded to the top scorers in the competition. The top winners will be announced at the awards banquet.

The banquet will include mathematical discussions by Dr. William Cook of Bell Communications Research and Dr. Ellit Tanis of Hope College.

Arts council names contest winners

■ Chairwoman Beth Lurtz explained that the purpose of the competition is to give students in various artistic fields an opportunity to enhance performance skills, to reward their dedication and hard work, and to encourage them to continue to pursue artistic excellence.

Plymouth Community Arts Council has announced the winners of the 1993 Damaris Student Fine Arts Awards.

Thirty-one students participated in the 15th annual competition for Plymouth and Canton area middle school students. Chairwoman Beth Lurtz explained that the purpose of the competition is to give students in various artistic fields an opportunity to enhance performance skills, to reward their dedication and hard work, and to encourage them to continue to pursue artistic excellence. The competition was held Feb. 18 and 19 at the Canton Little Theater. The winners will receive cash prizes.

PCAC acknowledged the judges who participated in the event: dance, Pam Anderson and Barbara Raschke; instrumental music, Judy Plester; piano, Dr. Peter Collins and Andrew Heisey; visual art, Dee Schulte and Marilyn Barrick; vocal music, Mary Clevelan and Laura Wiener.

Winners of the Damaris Student Fine Arts Awards — 1993 are:

AGA to open by July

Construction of the $8-million AGA Gas facility in Canton is under way, and the four-building center should be open by July, according to Ken Voyles, spokesman for Canton Township.

The Cleveland-based firm is building a cylinder gas filling and distribution center in the Canton Industrial Center at Michigan Avenue and DeWitt. The 40,000-square-foot center will employ about 55 people (25 new and 30 transfers). The new Canton facility sits on 7.5 acres and is designed to serve all of Michigan. It will replace the company's westside Detroit center.

AGA Gas is the U.S. subsidiary of Stockholm, Sweden-based AGA AB, an industrial gas and welding-products supplier with worldwide sales of more than $2 billion.

Area cable companies criticize Ameritech's plan

BY BARBARA WILSON
STAFF WRITER

The Baby Bells are clawing their way into the 21st century by offering the Federal Communications Commission a deal they hope cannot be refused. Local cable companies, however, are hoping the FCC will pass over the proposal.

In an attempt to pursue business in all realms of telecommunications, Ameritech executives announced Monday a plan to reorganize their corporate structure and a proposal which would call for full competition in the telecommunications industry.

Ameritech's chairman and chief executive officer William L. Weiss announced that they will open Ameritech's local telephone network to competition in return for the freedom to compete in both its existing and currently prohibited services and the lifting of ceilings on telephone company earnings.

Weiss made the announcement from the Chicago headquarters for Ameritech and the press conference was simultaneously heard by reporters in the Detroit headquarters of Michigan Bell, part of Ameritech.

Ameritech's top executives will submit their proposal to the FCC early next month asking for regulatory reforms that include removing the long-distance restriction on local service providers and the cable TV/telephone cross ownership rules which restrict Ameritech from participating in these markets.

More competition

"We view this proposal as a breakthrough solution for our region that would mark an end to turf battles that have stifled the communications industry, hampered economic expansion and limited the growth of consumer options and services," Weiss said.

"The result would be a fully competitive marketplace wherein the consumer would be the ultimate beneficiary because companies would have to keep prices competitive and quality high in order to succeed."

If regulators find an "even playing field," cable companies may be willing to play ball. If the telephone companies are not required to meet some of the same qualifications as cable companies, then there will be a brawl, local cable operators say.

"The FCC has never been able to come up with a plan that places the same restrictions we face on the telephone companies interested in providing cable service," said Lisa Boland, general manager of Omnicom which services Canton and Plymouth.

Cable concerns

Cable companies are required to operate as franchises and must have studio space. Cable companies also pay a fee for use of telephone poles, a fee phone companies would probably not be assessing themselves.

"The phone companies, like Ameritech, are also much larger and could offset losses in the cable portion of their operations with profits from phone services," Boland said. "Even if this practice were restricted, there would be no way of policing it."

Boland is certain that FCC regulators won't fall for a plan that would be too one-sided.

"It isn't really fair that we would have to compete with the phone companies," said Carol Gibson, general manager of MetroVision in Livonia. "They already have all the equipment in place while we had to start from the very beginning and we continue to pay a fee for having our equipment on telephone poles."

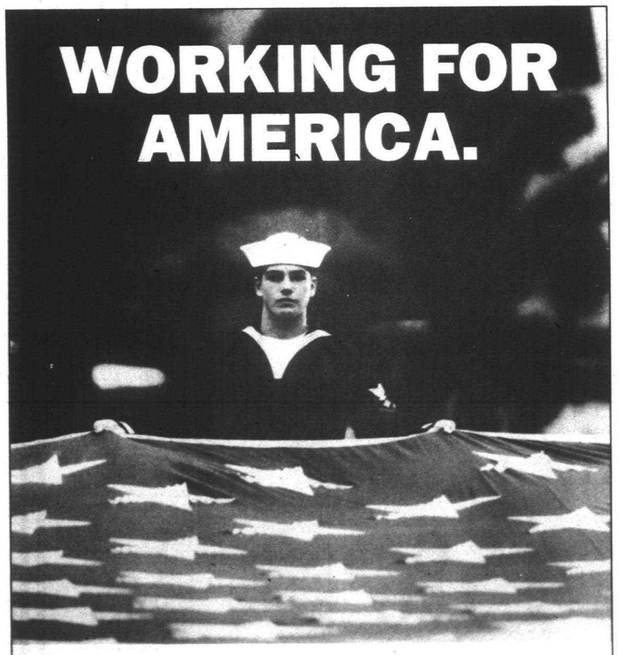
WORKING FOR AMERICA.



A pilot with the skill to land a jet on a rolling deck. A computer specialist who can a fix a complex navigational system while hundreds of miles at sea. A cook who can prepare a delicious meal for 500 hungry sailors. These people aren't just good, they're the best. And it means more to them because they're doing it for their country. They're Navy people, working hard for America. And that makes us proud.

Navy.

'World-class' government

BY SUSAN ROSIEK
STAFF WRITER

A year of innovation and taking chances. That's how Wayne County Executive Edward H. McNamara described 1993 as he outlined an ambitious agenda for change Wednesday in his state of the county address.

The executive, said Wayne County's world-class problems — crime, poverty, a poor tax and business climate — call for some world-class solutions.

"The way I see see it, we have two options. Take action or abandon ship," said McNamara.

The solutions include Metro airport expansion, reforming the county's welfare system by asking the state for control, offering health care to all residents, attacking the crime problem, simplifying the tax structure, reasonable environmental regulations, a rational liability system and a business-friendly climate for employers.

"In the 1990s, skyways will be as important as highways and Wayne County will be ready," said McNamara.

Edward McNamara

"We are ready to begin a $750 million bond sale — the largest public works project in Michigan history — to finance the construction of a new international terminal and two new runways.

"I believe you will see Metro become a major destination for the manufacturers of the world; an asset to manufacturers here; and a source of thousands of new jobs."

McNamara said he intends to seek support from Gov. John Engler and state legislative leaders and will ask them to "cut us some slack and allow us the freedom to experiment."

He was referring in part to his plans for welfare and health care reform, wetlands protection and getting rid of property taxes and replacing them with a sales, or income tax.

McNamara also outlined plans to revitalize the county parks system and step up road repairs.

A new bike path that will stretch from Northville to Dearborn will open this year. This summer more than 60 miles of roads in 42 of 43 communities will be paved, repaved or improved.

Deputy County Executive Michael Duggan said after the speech a new managed health care program for 150,000 of Wayne County's "working poor" will be unveiled in the next few weeks.

Suburban commissioners and suburban government leaders who listened to the speech downtown generally praised McNamara's proposals.

"It's a comprehensive, common-sense approach to problems," said Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, whose district includes Plymouth.

However McCotter and commissioners Bryan Amann, D-Wayne, and Michelle Plawecki, D-Dearborn Heights, said their suburban constituents are more interested in the "nuts and bolts issues" like roads.

Sheriff Robert Ficano of Livonia liked McNamara's "overall positive tone." He also liked the executive's emphasis on safety.

"We have to make sure the crime problem is resolved or else people won't bring their business to Wayne County," said Ficano.

Plymouth City Commissioner Dennis Shrewsbury said he liked McNamara's emphasis on health reform and education.

"I wish everyone in the suburbs understood the concept of paying now or paying later," said Shrewsbury, who called the speech "very gubernatorial."

Petitions needed to file for S'craft board election

"There is a lot of speculation in the industry about what will happen next," said Gibson. "It's generally a politically safe issue that affects everyone in the congressional district."

Gibson explained that while cable affects most everyone it does not "affect gender, race or religion and therefore does not require an offensive position by government leaders."

Gibson expects the cable lobby to fight the Ameritech proposal.

Details needed

Neither U.S. Rep. William D. Ford nor U.S. Rep. Joe Knollenberg had seen the Ameritech proposal and declined to comment.

Ford, a Democrat, represents Garden City, Westland, Plymouth, Canton and part of Livonia. Knollenberg is a Republican who represents Redford Township, part of Livonia and many communities in southern and north Oakland County.

"The government generally wants to see competition in the industry so we are optimistic," said Robert Hurst, president of Michigan Bell.

Weiss maintains that by opening the opportunities in the area of telecommunications, the consumer will benefit with services once considered science fiction.

Advanced Universal Access, a name given to Ameritech's vision for the telecommunications industry, could result in a transformation of the nation's education and health care system providing greater access to information through the telephone wires, as well as providing greater opportunities for people to work at home saving fuel, reducing pollution and traffic congestion and opening opportunities for the disabled, single parents and people living in remote areas, Weiss said.

This opening of the market would also allow Ameritech to enter into the business of providing entertainment and distributing news.

The technology to provide these services is complicated, but could be readily available.

"We could provide the services our customers want," Weiss said.

Impact on print

Richard Aginian, president of Suburban Communications Corp., the parent company of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, said the Ameritech proposal is just part of the changing world of technology.

Aginian, however, agreed that "We must have a level-playing field."

The O&E, which publishes 12 suburban newspapers in western Wayne and Oakland counties, is experimenting with Voice Information and On-Line computer systems.

"The way we receive communication is all changing. It's dramatic and significant and this is just a small part of it. This (Ameritech) organization recognizes that the market is changing," said Aginian.

If the FCC goes along with the plan or if an agreement can be negotiated which would include opening the local phone network to competition, the system would operate similarly to the current long-distance services. Competing communications companies could establish their own switching center and connect directly to the Ameritech distribution network. The competing company can then provide a dial tone, issue telephone numbers and set rates for local customers choosing that service.

Ameritech provides telecommunications services to about 12 million customers in the Midwest. Its 1992 revenues were $11.2 billion and assets exceed $22 billion.

How Bell plan affects consumers

The reorganization of the Midwest's largest telecommunications corporation will probably have little effect on the everyday consumer.

The most noticeable change will probably be the phasing out of the Michigan Bell name in lieu of the corporate name — Ameritech.

The restructuring of Ameritech and a proposal which would allow the expansion of the company into all aspects of telecommunications was announced Monday at a teleconference at the Michigan Bell offices in Detroit.

There will be no layoffs or job losses as a result of the restructuring, according to Robert Hurst, president of Michigan Bell.

Ameritech will be reorganized into 12 business units — 11 focusing on specific groups of customers using Ameritech services and one unit that will operate the company's network in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin.

Variety marks SC schedule

Grant received

Canton Township resident Mary Rita Allen has received a $250 grant funded by the Detroit Edison Foundation for a classroom project that will increase her St. Charles School students' knowledge about energy and the environment.

The award was presented Feb. 4 by James DuBay, director of sales and service for Edison's Wayne-Monroe division, Dr. June Hopkins of the Monroe County Intermediate School District and James Connelly, manager of Edison's Wayne-Monroe division.

Allen was among 14 Monroe County teachers who received grants totaling more than $3,200 through the foundation-sponsored program.

Crime package sponsored

Republican state Rep. Deborah Whyman of Canton has joined Gov. John Engler in sponsoring a comprehensive crime package.

Whyman introduced legislation that would increase prison time and fines for those who deal in large quantities of marijuana.

"This drug-related legislation is part of an intense effort to crack down on crime," Whyman said. "The challenges of the '90s are more difficult because of the drug problems that were so prevalent in the '80s, but we must persevere. Our laws need to be tightened in an attempt to deter drug offenders, and to take those who continue to ignore the law off the streets."

Stiffer penalties would include imprisonment for up to five years or a fine of $500-$20,000 for possession of less than 4.5 kilograms or 50 marijuana plants; prison terms of up to 10 years and fines reaching $250,000 for possession of 4.5-45 kilograms, and 50-100 plants; a maximum 20 years in prison and $5 million fine for possession of more than 45 kilograms or 100 plants.

Possession of 56 grams or more of marijuana would be considered evidence of intent to deliver under the legislation.

Other bills in the package would broaden the definition of a "drug free zone" to include parks and recreation areas, and add "designer drugs" as an illegal activity in these areas. It also would allow wiretaps for certain offenses involving controlled substances and allow certain monitoring of prisoners' phone conversations.

Mettetal pilots praise airport

■ Pilots and others who use Mettetal Airport gathered this week to show the public how important the facility is to the community. The gathering came after a storm of criticism arose when the state announced plans to buy the airport.

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Mettetal Airport is a source of wonder to kids and an asset to Plymouth-Canton, the airport's most active pilots stressed in a presentation Monday.

"I know what it means to bring in 500, 600 people for a pancake breakfast on a Sunday, what it means to give scholarships," said Doug Shumard, vice president of the Mettetal chapter of the international Experimental Aircraft Association.

Pilot Bill Kern, who has flown handicapped kids and Boy Scouts for their merit badge program, said getting kids involved at the airport doesn't automatically lead them to aviation.

"But it shows an interesting life awaits if you rise to challenges," Kern said. "There's challenge in the world for them to enjoy."

They were among a half-dozen pilots speaking to a group of about 50 who filled the airport terminal at Joy and Lilley roads, in a presentation to tout the good things about having a small community airport.

The presentation followed news earlier this month that the state would seek to buy the now private airport, with the federal government providing 90 percent of the cost.

That news sparked outrage from opponents of government operating the airport, as they say federal involvement will lead to expansion.

Some airport opponents also showed for the presentation, telling pilots they didn't want to see runway expansion. They said they also fear that the federal government will condemn surrounding property for clear approaches or expansion.

Airplane talk: John Vergona and other aviation enthusiasts detailed the community benefits of maintaining Mettetal Airport to Plymouth Township trustee K.C. Mueller (right) and others at a presentation Monday.

The pilots said they don't want the airport to expand. "When you're flying a little plane, this is the place to be," said John Bomello of Canton, an airline captain.

He and other pilots stressed that Metettal was special to them because it did not serve bigger, jet-powered aircraft. They maintained there would never be enough room to expand to serve such larger planes.

"We lose sight of some of the positive things about the airport," said Dan Malone, who runs a flight school and other business operations out of Mettetal.

Kern said two dozen such small airports around metro Detroit have closed "in as many years," adding officials have decided "it's time for this stuff (closings) to stop."

"These airports are the foundation of the aerospace industry," he said, as they get people interested in aviation. For example, they said metro Detroit's best known pilot is WJR traffic reporter Dennis Neubacher, who learned to fly at Mettetal Airport.

Bomello recalled when he used to ride his bike from Redford down the Jeffries freeway before it was finished to Mettetal, for flying lessons.

He recalled the time he noticed a father and son in a car parked at a gas station across from Mettetal watching planes land and take off.

'I was watching them, finally I couldn't stand it any more," Bomello said. "I told them, 'You can come on over; there's picnic tables outside.' They said, 'We thought it was private.' "

Business flights account for roughly 25 percent of Mettetal's activity, some pilots estimated.

Hospital sets seminar about breast cancer

Breast cancer is the most common form of cancer in American women, with one out of every 10 women developing breast cancer in her lifetime. Early detection provides the best opportunity for successful treatment.

St. Mary Hospital in Livonia will offer a Breast and Skin Clinic from 4-6 p.m. on Wednesdays, March 10 and 24, in the Marian Women's Center, Suite 212 in the Marian Pavilion, 14555 Levan.

A physician will perform a complete breast examination and provide instructions on how to perform a breast self-examination. A general surgeon will also be available to provide skin screenings to both men and women.

During the breast screening, a mammogram will be done if indicated. The American Cancer Society recommends a mammogram for women older than 35 besides monthly breast self-examination for all women older than 20.

■ During the breast screening, a mammogram will be done if indicated. The American Cancer Society recommends a mammogram for women older than 35 besides monthly breast self-examination for all women older than 20.

Cost for the physical exam is $10, and the extra charge for a mammogram is usually covered by insurance. Registration is required as there will be a limited number of appointments available.

For more information or to register, call St. Mary Hospital at 464-4800, ext. 2469.

Arts Council

Canton sets goals for group

■ Let's hope Canton achieves its goal of having a local arts council that serves the community. If there are plenty of volunteers to serve on it, and leaders keep their minds open when it comes to the arts, it should be a sure bet.

The creation of an arts council in Canton is further evidence that the community is maturing and developing a better image for itself.

Formation of the Canton Arts Council was announced last week by local officials who say the township will get the group up and running with $5,000.

Also, six to eight residents are being sought to serve on the council, which will develop arts programs for residents, from children through oldsters.

For years Canton has looked to the Plymouth Community Arts Council to provide cultural activities. But Canton has grown to a community of about 60,000 residents, more than twice the size of Plymouth. The growth has been in younger families, just the type of residents who are looking toward having arts in their community.

Supervisor Tom Yack said he wants the Canton group to get in touch with a portion of the population that doesn't come into contact with the Plymouth group. It's a worthy goal.

Too often arts councils end up as social clubs for a few well-heeled folks, leaving the remainder of the population watching television. That's unfortunate.

To fully attain Yack's goal, the township will need to appoint a group of diverse people to the council. As they say: One man's trash is another man's treasure.

Yack is hot for a jazz festival. It's a good idea. But there is more out there, and the make up of the arts council will determine what ideas are discussed.

We'd suggest that one member be a student, either high school or college. Canton is a young community and an arts council would do well listening to what younger people seek when the word arts is used.

One high note of the Canton arts movement is that it's not looking to compete or duplicate what the Plymouth group is doing. Tom Yack, township supervisor, wants the Canton group to focus on events that could be conducted in an amphitheater and gazebo being constructed in Heritage Park, located behind Canton Township Hall.

Let's hope Canton achieves its goal of having a local arts council that serves the community. If there are plenty of volunteers to serve on it, and leaders keep their minds open when it comes to the arts, it should be a sure bet.

To volunteer for the arts council, call Elaine Kirchgatter, township treasurer, at 397-5371.

Make park assets a priority

■ In 1980 the state paid 70 percent of their operating cost. Since then, the state has shifted the burden to user fees, now a hefty 80 percent of the budget. The state puts up only $5.6 million of the parks' $28 million budget.

Michigan's state parks system, once second to none, is slipping. Unless steps are taken soon, some of the state's most beautiful areas — and perhaps its most precious resource — could be unalterably damaged.

The system includes developed parks and rustic recreation areas. In 1980 the state paid 70 percent of their operating cost. Since then, the state has shifted the burden to user fees, now a hefty 80 percent of the budget. The state puts up only $5.6 million of the parks' $28 million budget.

Daily vehicle entrance fees have gone from $2 in 1980 to $3.50; annual permit fees, from $7 to $18; and camping fees, from $2-$6 to $6-$14. Both Republicans and Democrats in the Legislature and the executive office are to blame.

As fees soar, however, visitors get less for their money. The parks division has lost nearly a third of its staff, 25 rustic campsites face closure as they are neglected into oblivion, and many park roads are blocked to winter use because there is no staff to plow them.

There are no statistics, but any visitor can see damage by erosion, off-road vehicles, poachers and vandals.

There is talk of "privatizing" some state parks. Private campgrounds and theme parks are part of the state's recreation picture, but businesses must turn a dollar at every opportunity. Business can't replace government as protector of a natural resource.

Although parks aren't primarily an economic resource, they do generate $100 million to nearby grocers, gas stations, restaurants and tourist attractions.

A Citizens Committee on Parks, spearheaded by Michigan United Conservation Clubs, is offering a ballot proposal: a one-cent increase in the sales tax for one year. The $700 million revenue would be invested to produce $15 million income annually for the parks. That would be a steep, long-term increase in the parks budget and could restore them to their former glory.

But let us be politically realistic. Other important state obligations — schools come to mind — also are looking at ballot proposals. It's poor policy to earmark special taxes for special funds. It would be far better if our legislators and the governor faced their obligation to protect the natural resources that our state parks embody from the general fund budget.

In 1872 the National Parks Service was created and opened Yellowstone National Park in Wyoming. But land-hungry developers didn't go away. And in 1916 the parks service served notice that its policy would be "to conserve scenery and the national and historic objects and wildlife therein and to provide for the enjoyment of the same in such manner and by such means as will leave them unimpaired for future generations."

Michigan should do as much for its future generations.

Mayflower support

One of the principal attractions to living in the Plymouth Community is the character of its downtown business section, including Kellogg Park. The primary contributor to the downtown character is the very well-maintained, attractive Mayflower Hotel complex.

For over 20 years, I have been selling Plymouth land to housing developers. When I have done so, I have always made it a point to take them to the Mayflower for lunch so that they could get a sense of just what it is that makes the Plymouth area such a nice place to live.

However, a major threat to all of the foregoing now exists. Picture downtown Plymouth with lumber all over the windows and doors of the Mayflower Hotel. We already have an ugly eyesore caused by the closing of the Amoco Station at the same intersection. How then do you hype the Fall Festival? The Ice Festival? The Art in the Park affair? Or any other downtown community event?

I personally feel an obligation to somehow help the Mayflower facility stay alive. Strangely, I believe that it is in the best interest of all Plymouth-area people to help the Mayflower survive. This concern should also be at the top of the agenda for all meetings of the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce and the Downtown Development Authority.

I suggest that each of us that uses either a restaurant, hotel, motel, or meeting facility, now and then, should make every effort during this present crisis to make that facility the Mayflower.

Should the Mayflower fail, the quality of life for all of us will go down at least a notch. Let's not let that happen. Use the Mayflower facilities now.

Gregory Donovan, Plymouth

No sense

President Clinton has asked that we sacrifice (pay higher taxes) to reduce the national debt. Governor Engler has pledged to downsize state government and privatize Michigan institutions.

So how can there be any justification for the expenditure of $3-4 million, using state and federal funds, for the state's purchase of Mettetal, a small unprofitable private airport located in an area where a public airport is not wanted?

If, as its proponents insist, this airport is to be maintained at its present small size with accommodations for only a few, it is a shocking misuse of taxpayer's money.

If it is to be expanded, the agencies involved should be honest enough to inform those whose property values will be affected.

There have been enough decisions made in secret regarding Mettetal Airport.

Marian L. Gotshall, Plymouth

Overly hysterical

Thank you for the positive opinion in the Mettetal Airport "State Buy Out Good for Area" column in the Feb. 18 issue.

I am sick to death of reading articles voicing the concerns of the airport opponents. Not only are these concerns unfounded; they also appear to be generated by a few hysterical, overly concerned citizens that have attempted to obtain community backing by spreading rumors of airport expansion and tax hikes.

It amazes me that anyone would move into a community and then attempt to alter it to suit themselves or their special interests.

I have one word for the Concerned Citizens of Plymouth — move.

Julie Traskos, Canton

'A' for effort

This letter is of a bittersweet nature. I have just finished reading "Teacher not guilty of hitting student."

I have followed your reporting of the pretrial hearing and the actual trial. This trial has far-reaching ramifications. I am sure that is why so many teachers were in attendance at the pretrial when another student of Mr. Gale's alleged that he struck him last year.

Unfortunately the allegation was not pursued and the judge (James Garber) refused to allow this testimony to establish "past acts."

So much for my bitterness. Now the sweet.

In these days of police with questionable integrity, we have found not only an officer who is sensitive and cares about the people who make up a township but also a prosecuting attorney who understands what 10-year children are about. I mean to laud two fine gentlemen who ferreted out the facts and were left at the mercy of confused children and an opportunistic defense lawyer who left little people wondering what their names were (his job). Please give Officer Mayernik and Mr. Tim Cronin an "A" for effort and sensitivity in a losing cause.

Denis J. Endlein, Plymouth

Support gay rights

The recent clamor of gays in the military is quite revealing and of course disturbing.

Apparently, a very large percentage of our society is unwilling to judge those by the content of their character.

Clearly homosexuals have civil rights, human rights et. al., yet the attack on their existence is uncivilized. In these perilous times, courage and integrity is the universal standard of the day.

Therefore, without further delay, I declare without any reservation my total and complete support and recognition of the inalienable human, civil, personal, sexual et. al. rights of homosexuals here and wherever!

POINTS OF VIEW

Tax plans ignore state's varying economies

Here is a central fact about Michigan's economy that advocates of school tax plans have failed to grasp:

The price level in the tri-county area of southeastern Michigan is 22 percent higher than the rest of the state.

If you fail to understand that fact, you can do suburban schools a lot of harm in the name of "reform."

A hospital association put together a study of 16 costs a few years ago that showed:

- Home construction in the tri-county area costs 22 percent more than outstate. These costs drive our property tax assessments.
- Public education: 22 percent more.
- Hospital care: 18 percent more.
- Dental care: 19 percent more.
- Residential rent: 44 percent more.

What are the chief costs of public school districts? Salaries and health care.

In addition, we pay 55 percent more for home insurance, 44 percent more for trash collection, 34 percent more for auto repairs, 32 percent more for auto insurance — and so on. The only break we get is to pay 6 percent less for gasoline.

Teachers here must pay those costs, too. Understandably, they want comparable wages.

Most politicians don't grasp that.

Gov. John Engler is pushing a plan to reduce school property taxes 20 percent. The state would reimburse poorer districts, through the school aid formula. But suburban districts in the metropolitan area — mainly out-of-formula — would take the loss on the chin.

I asked Engler about this region's 22 percent cost differential, and the man from Mount Pleasant replied: "That is an excuse, not an answer. And it certainly isn't an explanation. They (suburban school districts) have negotiated the contracts that they're now having difficulty affording."

TIM RICHARD

Engler's advice to these districts: "Stop giving double-digit pay increases over a period of two or three years."

A snappy answer, but unrealistic. Are we going to tell teachers in (say) Farmington who pay 34 percent more for auto repairs and 44 percent more for rent that they should be content with the wages of Saginaw or Engadine?

I floated the same question past a member of Team 14, the bipartisan group of legislators proposing a $4,700 per pupil "equity" in school resources. She said she had heard the same kind of argument from Detroiters, who want all sorts of compensatory money because of their problems. Again, a snappy answer that failed to address economic reality.

Michigan has two economies. If both Sturgis and Livonia schools have $4,700 cash per pupil, Livonia has only $3,852 in "real" terms, to use Adam Smith's phrase, because of the price differential.

Novi, Northville, Plymouth-Canton, West Bloomfield, South Redford, Bloomfield Hills, Southfield, Troy, Rochester and a few I've skipped will get a royal shaft — the shaft of economic ignorance — under these plans.

We come to the Michigan Education Association plan. You might guess a reform plan espoused by a teachers union would be self-serving, and you would be right.

MEA would consolidate 562 school districts into 14 duchies called "financial districts." But there is a dirty trick here. What happens to the most expensive tri-county area? Wayne County winds up in a district with Monroe, Oakland with Lapeer and Genesee, and Macomb with the farmlands of the Thumb.

Thus, MEA would try to use justifiably higher wage levels in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb to increase wages in the outstate economy. It's the backwards version of Engler's idea of evening out costs.

To be fair, any tax cut and school reform plan must take account of economic reality. Everybody has to pay more for nearly everything in southeastern Michigan. Our school boards must have leeway and tax tools to deal with that reality, not be forced into artificial molds.

Tim Richard reports on the local implications of state and regional events. His office phone is (313) 349-1050.

Parents will balk over MEAP test design in '97

QUESTION: When I reviewed our MEAP test scores this year, I concluded our school district is going backward. For years our math and reading scores were in the 89 to 94 percent range on the MEAP test. Now our MEAP math and reading scores are in the 30 and 40 percent range. Some of the poorer school districts in Michigan have scores of 15 and 20 percent on the MEAP. One poor district had a score of 10 percent in math. My neighbor is desperate. Her son, a "C-plus" student, did not pass the MEAP and may not get a state endorsed diploma. How can a C-plus student not pass a basic skills test? Is it true that failure to pass the test after '97 means a student won't even get a diploma?

ANSWER: The easy out, for me, is to tell you the new MEAP is different than the old MEAP basic skills test. It is no longer a test of basic skills but an essential skills test that measures students' higher level thinking and problem solving skills.

At this point I should drop the subject, because if I attack the test, it will sound like the same old teacher/educator syndrome, making excuses for poor student achievement. But I won't drop the subject because there is something irrational going on!

One school district in this readership area in which I was a central office administrator had MEAP scores in or above the 95 percent range prior to the new MEAP.

Now in 1992-93, their MEAP scores are in the 40 to 50 percent range. That means only 40 to 50 percent passed the 10th grade "essential" math and reading skills sections on the new MEAP.

Yet that same district has about 75 percent of its graduating class accepted each year for college and university admission, and most of their students are in college/universities that require high SAT (Scholastic Aptitude Test) scores.

Quality district

This doesn't add up. How can 75 percent of a quality school district's student population score high enough on a tough college entrance test and yet not pass a 10th grade basic skills (essential skills) test? Something is wrong!

DOC DOYLE

The new MEAP is a product of the leadership in The National Council of Teachers of Math, the National Reading Association (and their state affiliates), college professors and some Michigan teachers. These are professionals who made a tremendous leap of faith that says all kids in a country that advocates a mandatory education system will be higher level thinkers. It's not going to happen.

Sometimes I think these leaders have been in the ivory tower too long, or have been teaching advanced math classes at the high school level too long to remember who shows up for the remedial, slow learner classes.

It is common knowledge that the once nationally respected Department of Research and Evaluation and Testing in the Department of Education has been dismantled. What was left are curriculum people (as I was) who dream of the ideal.

Item difficulty

Someone in Lansing should help those in charge of the MEAP grasp the basic test construction concept of Item Difficulty. That is, if 70 percent of a normal student population misses a specific question, the question is suspect — and needs to be studied and revised.

Has any predictive validity been made? I heard not, so I'll make my prediction.

Prediction: If MEAP scores don't go up, watch for a major change of heart among our legislators who supported the test as a vehicle to mandate a state curriculum.

Picture Representative Jones in a quality, college-bound student school district in Oakland or Wayne County. It is going into 1997 when those students who don't pass the MEAP don't get a diploma. Say that only 50 percent of the student population in one of his quality districts passes the MEAP, meaning 50 percent don't get a diploma.

Parents will tear their legislator's eyeballs out and it's a feeding frenzy for lawyers.

The new MEAP was developed with all the right intentions. Many school districts are setting up highly intensified afterschool experiences for those who haven't mastered the MEAP.

But 60 to 70 percent of a quality high school population not receiving some type of a diploma in 1997 is insanity.

'Bubble' mentality lacks real world knowledge

While I jog in the evenings, I like to listen to National Public Radio's evening news show, "All Things Considered." It stimulates the mind while the running pumps up the heart.

A while back I listened to a story about a woman who was appointed head of the welfare department in New York City. First thing she did was go out and pretend to be a person in need of welfare. She went to the various offices, filled out all the different forms, got abused and ignored by the assorted bureaucrats.

She learned a lot about what it feels like to need welfare. And she is now changing — big time — the policies and practices of the welfare department she was appointed to run.

The story got me thinking.

First, it demonstrates perfectly why most of the people who run the government and make the laws are badly out of touch with the realities of ordinary folk. They are much too much "in the bubble," all of them. And this fact accounts for much of the disconnect between political and governmental elites and ordinary folks that plagues our politics so badly.

Second, it seems to be that much of the mainstream news media, too, are in the bubble. Often, the only people reporters and editors regard as legitimate news sources are heads of governmental departments, legislators or other "news makers."

Only rarely do reporters — especially ones in Washington or Lansing — ever talk with ordinary people who are on the receiving end of governmental indignities and inefficiencies.

These two factors are important in the rise of talk shows and so forth, "real media" as distinguished from elite media.

They should also be important to community newspapers like this one. If we are doing our job as good community newspapers, we can never allow ourselves to get trapped, by habit or choice, in the bubble.

We ought to be talking with ordinary people in the communities we serve, finding out from them what it's like out there. Were the streets on the west side really plowed after the snowstorm last weekend? What's it really like to be a business owner in search of a building permit? Go into real classrooms and see what real teachers do with real kids.

PHILIP POWER

That's real community journalism. Sometimes we do it, and sometimes we don't. But we must realize why it's so important to do better.

Remember the famous legend of the good emperor of China? Recognizing that he was irredeemably trapped in the bubble by his mandarinate's bureaucracy, he regularly donned a disguise and went out into his country. In taverns and inns, by the side of streets and in hovels, he discovered what his government was doing to his subjects and what they felt about it.

Whether true or not, this legend has persisted in China for more than a thousand years, testimony to the power of the myth and the analysis.

There are a lot of office holders and elected officials (not to mention folks who work for this newspaper) who could learn a lot from this story.

Years ago, when Bill Milliken was governor of Michigan, he had a rule for all his top appointees: Get out of Lansing at least one day a week. He learned. And he was a fine governor for our state because of it.

Most in local poll say: 'Cut more, don't raise taxes'

Observer readers offered some strong opinions on President's Bill Clinton's economic plan. Thirty-five callers responded earlier this week on our reader hotline.

Some believe Clinton is moving in the right direction and should be given a chance. However, most callers want to see more spending cuts before any new tax increases are passed.

Here are some of your comments:

■ "I think Bill Clinton's plans are great," said a Livonia woman. "We have to do something get this country back together to help our children and grandchildren in the future. And, if we have to sacrifice then we have to do it."

■ "He's right on target," said a Livonia resident.

"Someone's got to get us out of this mess because we can't continue on the same course we're going."

■ I'm very much against Clinton's plan," said a Livonia man who is retired and living on a fixed income.

"I'm going to pay over $1,500 more (in taxes). President Bush found if you tax people more they don't have money to buy more cars and clothing. It's a bad, bad plan."

■ "Clinton's plan is ridiculous," said a Plymouth woman.

■ "The plan will cost me more money but it's for the good of the country," said a Canton Township man.

"It's the right start in the right direction."

■ "I don't like the idea he'll increase our taxes," said a Livonia woman. "I do like his planned spending cuts. But he should do the spending cuts first before he decides to raise taxes."

■ "Bill Clinton's plan stinks," said a Livonia man.

"I don't believe they'll cut spending. What they should do is cut for two years and then see if they need to raise taxes. I just don't trust those people in Washington."

■ :"I'm against Clinton's plan - it's another example of the Democrats tax and spend policy," said a Redford Township man. "Democrats are the problem because they've controlled Congress for so long.

"The plan's a recipe for economic disaster."

■ "With all the lies Mr. Clinton has engendered I'm not ready to sacrifice until I see some valid cuts in government waste and abuse," said one Plymouth retiree.

■ "I believe in Clinton's plan," said a Redford Township woman.

"The Republicans had 12 years to figure it out.'

■ "I'm excited and I'm ready to sacrifice because our nation needs to put itself back on a sound economic basis," said a Redford Township homeowner.

■ " Taxpayers shouldn't have to pay for the mistakes of government," said a Livonia man.

■ "I agree wholeheartedly with Clinton's plan. It sounds better than any of the garbage I've heard in 12 years," said a Garden City woman, who said she likes the plan's focus on providing for future generation.

■ "Before taxes are increased our government must prove it can work together," said one Livonia woman. "They need to cut spending and waste and work together instead of pursuing their own economic interests."

■ A Livonia woman called for a spending freeze.

"Government is too big and spends too much money. Where will it end? Do they want 60 percent of my pay?"

■ Another Livonia woman said she's not ready to go along with Clinton because "it's the same old tax and spend."

"Freeze spending," she said, adding "in my situation he's going to tax us into being a two-income family."

■ A Redford Township woman said "the BTU tax is a clever way to disguise the tax hike because it will show up in all consumer goods. How dare they ask us to sacrifice."

■ "The plan is flawed," said a Plymouth Township man. "How about 10 percent in spending cuts across the board."

■ "Freeze or cut more before raising taxes," said a Redford Township woman.

■ A Livonia man who previously worked for the state of Michigan said "Clinton's stimulus package will actually create very few jobs."

■ A Garden City man said Clinton's plan to cut Medicare "is a farce."

■ "I don't think it's a credible plan - he's mislead us," said a Livonia man who lives on Brentwood.

WLAA to crown champs

It's that championship season in the Western Lakes Activities Association, which will crown champions in three sports this week.

The parade begins at 6 tonight with the finals in girls gymnastics at Westland John Glenn High School.

Plymouth Salem, the No. 1-ranked team in the state, will attempt to win its fourth consecutive title.

Livonia Stevenson (boys swimming) and Livonia Churchill (volleyball) hope to win their third straight WLAA championships.

The swim competition concludes Friday with the finals at 6 p.m. in the Salem pool. The No. 7 Spartans will be challenged by No. 8 Salem and No. 9 Northville.

Churchill will attempt to defend its volleyball crown Saturday on its home court. The one-day tournament begins at 9 a.m. The final is expected to start in the early evening.

The WLAA basketball playoffs begin Friday, too. Walled Lake Central is the defending champ. Salem, Glenn, Canton, Farmington Harrison and North Farmington are among the contenders.

Ruete wins MIAA honor

Sophomore guard Sarah Ruete of Adrian College was named the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association Player of the Week in women's basketball.

Ruete, a Canton resident and former standout at Plymouth Salem, scored a career-high 25 points Saturday as Adrian claimed a 76-64 victory over Alma.

Sarah Ruete

The win clinched second place for the Lady Bulldogs, who finished 10-2 in the MIAA, and marked Adrian's second win over the Scots this season.

Ruete, who scored 21 points in the second half, made eight of 13 field goals, which included 3-of-4 shooting from three-point range, and six of six free throws.

She also led the team with seven rebounds. In a 75-74 overtime win over Albion early last week, Ruete had eight points, five assists and two steals.

The Lady Bulldogs trailed 68-62 against Alma with 3½ minutes to play. Ruete made a three-pointer, Dawn Brooks hit a short jumper and Ruete sank a layup after stealing a pass to give Adrian a 69-68 lead.

After exchanging three-point baskets, Karen Baird (Northville) and Ruete sank two free throws each in the final seconds to secure the win.

Soccer coaches clinic

There will be something for everybody who likes soccer at the 1993 Coaches Symposium.

The clinic will consist of three Saturday sessions on March 6 and 20 and April 3 at Schoolcraft College from 1-3 p.m. each day. There is no fee or charge for admission.

The symposium is aimed primarily at assisting soccer coaches at all levels, but parents of soccer players and fans are welcome, too.

Clinic participants will have 18 topics (three per session) from which to choose and will best suit their needs.

Some of the clinic speakers will be Schoolcraft College women's and Churchill High School girls coach Nick O'Shea, Detroit Rockers player Lars Richters, Schoolcraft men's coach Van Dimitriou and Oakland University men's coach Gary Parsons.

O'Shea added the purpose is not to tell coaches how to coach but to make them "more knowledgeable about the game."

For more information, call The Soccer Store and More at 313-421-7523.

Regional next for select wrestlers

Plymouth Canton senior Nick Spano won a district championship at 135 pounds and remained unbeaten Saturday at the Class A wrestling tournament at Walled Lake Western.

BY BILL PARKER
STAFF WRITER

Observerland will be well represented this weekend at the Class A individual regional wrestling tournament at South Lyon.

No less than 20 area wrestlers qualified for the regional by placing in the top four of their respective weight classes at Saturday's district tournament at Walled Lake Western.

Westland John Glenn's Mike Reeves kept his unbeaten record intact as he stormed through the 160-pound bracket. Reeves, 34-0 and the defending state champ at 152, outclassed South Lyons' Jason Brown (29-6) with a 13-4 decision in the championship match.

Reeves held a 4-2 lead entering the third period, then used a series of takedowns and back points to secure the win. He earned pins in his first two matches and recorded a 10-2 decision in the semifinals.

Reeves has his eyes set on a repeat performance at the state meet March 12-13 at Battle Creek.

"I'm a year older now and the experience helps," said Reeves, who has been wrestling since he was in seventh grade. "I've been there once and I know what it takes to get there again.

"The guys seem a lot stronger at 160 than they were at 152, but I like to eat so I just try to out-technique them. I do what I have to do to win. It's a job."

Reeves leads a group of four regional qualifiers from Glenn. Anthony Underwood placed third at 112, Gerry Simoneau was fourth at 152 and Brian Kolb was fourth at 171.

Garden City's Jason Peterson rolled through the heavyweight division with a pair of pins and a 9-2 decision.

Peterson, a district and regional champion last year, wasted little time defending his district crown. Peterson took down Plymouth Salem's Ryan Giuliani (26-14) at the opening whistle and pinned the Rocks wrestler just 32 seconds into the match.

Peterson opened the tournament with a pin over Glenn's Shaun Arbogast in 25 seconds and earned a 9-2 decision over Howell's Kevin Matie in the semifinals. Peterson hopes his experience will help in his quest for a state crown.

"Last year I was coming from out of nowhere. I was extremely overwhelmed at state," said Peterson, who stands 37-2 on the year. "I've been there now and I know what it's all about. I've put in a whole lot of work."

Peterson will be joined at the regional meet by teammate Mike Bullard, who placed fourth at 145.

North Farmington senior Dave Orow won the first district championship of his career when he earned a 7-4 decision over Howell's Matt Schroeder (22-9) in the championship match at 125 pounds.

CEP squads finish with dual victories

GYMNASTICS

The Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton teams spent the dual meet part of the gymnastics schedule preparing for major meets late in the season.

And both should be more than ready, based on their dual results. Both finished with victories in their final meets earlier this week.

Top-rated Salem completed an undefeated campaign (9-0) by defeating Trenton at home Monday, 137.25 to 116.10.

The No. 5-ranked Chiefs also had a fine record (10-2) and ended Tuesday with a win over visiting Farmington, 136.95 to 116.7.

"We have the three biggest meets left, and we're trying to stay focused on that," Salem coach Johanna Anderson said.

The Rocks enter tonight's Western Lakes Activities Association meet as three-time defending champs and later hope to add regional and state titles. The odds are heavily in favor of Salem winning again.

"We're going to throw all our big tricks and use it as a warmup for regional and state," Anderson said. "Hopefully, we can end the season with three more wins."

Salem had two all-arounders against Trenton: Sarah Makins (34.70) and Zoe Yockey (32.35), who finished first and second.

Courtney Gonyea had the top scores on vault (8.85) and floor exercise (8.95). She was third on the uneven bars (8.65), too.

Alysia Sofios was first on bars (8.85), and Melissa Hopson was first on the balance beam (9.2). Sofios also got third on beam (8.6) and Hopson fourth on bars (8.55).

Makins had a consistent meet, placing second on vault (8.4), bars (8.8) and beam (8.75). She was fourth on floor (8.7).

Salem's Zoe Yockey and Stefanie Angulio placed in two events each. Yockey was second on floor (8.85) and third on vault (7.8), Angulio third on floor (8.8) and fourth on beam (7.95).

PLYMOUTH CANTON

Kim Rennolds had the best scores on vault (8.6), beam (9.15) and floor (9.3) in the Farmington dual. She was second on bars (8.65).

The Canton senior compiled the highest all-around total at 35.7. Kim Lewke was second (33.9), Adrienne Brenner fourth (30.25) and Kari Jackson fifth (30.00).

Rocks prepared for WLAA tournament

VOLLEYBALL

Plymouth Salem finished regular-season play Monday and locked up the No. 3 tournament seed in Western Lakes Activities Association volleyball with a win (0-11-7) over visiting Walled Lake Western.

The Rocks compiled a 9-2 record in league dual meets and tied Walled Lake Central for second place in the final standings. Salem lost the tie-breaker with the Vikings, however.

"We talked about some things that are necessary for us to do to compete in the league tournament and district," Salem coach Allie Suffety said.

"One was to play with enthusiasm and enjoy it, and we did that Monday. We didn't have as many mental lapses, and a lot of good came out of it."

The Rocks (29-11-4) will be in pool play with Farmington Harrison, Livonia Franklin and Westland John Glenn during the WLAA tournament Saturday at Livonia Churchill.

"If we can carry over the enthusiasm and intensity we had (Monday), we're going to be ready to do something," Suffety said. "If the players decide they're not going to, we'll have trouble in pool play."

Senior setter Caryn Tatterton continued to play well against Western and served six aces.

"The last four matches Caryn has been outstanding," Suffety said. "She's doing some things only a really great high school athlete can do."

Senior hitter Cyndi Platter led the team with 11 kills and also had two blocks and five aces.

The Rocks spread the offense around, with Jenny Garvey, Jamie Viau and Shellye Sills getting four kills each. Jenna Stanton, Paula Dombrowski and Tatterton added three apiece.

"It was a nice way to see the seniors go out," Suffety said. "Caryn has been our setter for four years, and she's going to be a much-missed player.

"Garvey, Platter, Stanton and Tatterton all had good matches and can be proud of the way they played."

With a two-game lead, Salem experimented in the third game, moving Platter to outside hitter and playing Sills and Dombrowski in the middle. The Rocks had a much taller lineup with that combination and might rely on it again.

Wayne wins 11th in row over Glenn

By Neal Zipser
Staff Writer

The year was 1983. Ronald Reagan was president. The Philadelphia 76ers were the NBA champions. M*A*S*H was the most watched television program. And Westland John Glenn beat Wayne Memorial in boys basketball.

Wayne's 51-48 lackluster victory over the host Rockets Tuesday marked the 11th-consecutive year the Zebras have beaten their intra-district rivals.

Perhaps it's Wayne's dominance over Glenn that took away some of the excitement of the game, but more likely, both teams were looking forward to their "bigger" games later in the week.

The Zebras, who are 15-2 overall, play at Dearborn Fordson tonight with their defense of the Wolverine A Conference championship on the line. Wayne is tied for first place with Belleville.

Glenn (11-6) opens the Western Lakes Activities Association playoffs Friday when it hosts Northville.

Both coaches, however, continued to reiterate the importance of the rivalry after the game.

"This game is important anytime," said Wayne coach Chuck Henry. "Anytime you get two schools in the same district playing each other, it's going to be big. But I didn't make this game a pie in the sky. We need to beat Fordson Thursday."

"It's good for the school district and the kids to have a good, healthy rivalry like we have," said Glenn coach Mike Schuette, who coached Wayne's junior varsity team for two years — one year under Henry.

The Zebras used strong free-throw shooting and rebounding to pull away from the Rockets after entering the fourth quarter tied 33-33. Wayne converted seven-of-eight free throws and outrebounded the taller Glenn squad 10-5.

Still, Wayne had to fend off senior guard Kevin Claypool who erupted for 16 of his game-high 18 points in the second half and kept the Rockets within striking range with several spectacular driving layups.

"Basketball has a way of creating heroes, and he was doing a good job with his dribble penetration," Henry said.

"Kevin is playing better and better each game and is showing good poise," Schuette said.

After a Claypool foul shot gave Glenn a 40-38 lead with 5:14 left, Wayne went ahead for good when Antonio Dodd nailed a triple and Courtney Howard scored on a break-away layup. A baseline jumper by Jason Overton gave Wayne a 45-40 lead.

A Claypool banker cut the lead to three, but Andre Graves' two free throws extended Wayne's lead back to five. Claypool narrowed the margin again with a layup, but Overton countered with a layup to put the game out of reach with :27 remaining.

Two free throws by Bill Romej gave Wayne a 51-44 lead. The Rockets scored two quick baskets in the final 10 seconds for the final points.

Romej led a balanced Wayne attack with 12 points. Ten of 11 Zebras who played scored. John Miller and Ken Taylor added 11 and nine points, respectively, for Glenn.

Glenn held Wayne scoreless for the game's first five minutes but could only build a 4-0 lead. After Henry inserted five new players into the game, the Rockets took the lead behind consecutive three-pointers by Romej.

The second and third quarters saw both teams sharing the lead. In the two quarters alone, there were nine ties and seven lead changes.

The Zebras were able to pull out the win despite shooting only 29 percent from the field (18-of-62). Glenn converted 42 percent of its shots from the floor (21-of-49) and from the foul line (three-of-seven).

"We shot seven-of-34 in the first half and not too much better in the second half," Henry said. "When you shoot that poorly, you force your defense to play well. We'll have to work on our offensive execution for Thursday."

Graves, a junior guard, returned to the Zebras' lineup after missing Friday's 76-67 loss to Belleville when he suffered a hip injury in a car accident the day before. Graves was in obvious pain after the game.

"It hurt out there but I was able to play through it," Graves said. "The game means a lot. It means the city championship."

Glenn's leading scorer, junior forward Tony Goins, also played somewhat hampered, as the forward is recovering from a week-long virus. Goins was held to four points.

"We were close in every category but were outrebounded (36-31)," Schuette said. "They are well-coached and always had five people going after the ball. I thought both teams were patient on offense, and it was nice to see the score low."

Farewell Dana: Dana Hudson (15) played her final game for Schoolcraft Monday night. She scored 17 points in the Ocelots' 72-56 loss at Highland Park. Hudson averaged 18.9 points per game this year, which should rank her among the nation's top 20.

Quick playoff exit ends Lady Ocelots' rollercoaster ride

In a way, it was a fitting ending for the Schoolcraft women's basketball season — a season that put Murphy's Law to the test.

"We should have known we were in for trouble right from the start," said Coach Jack Grenan, after his team's season concluded Monday with a 72-56 loss at Highland Park in the first round of the state tournament.

Grenan and his team showed up at Highland Park Community College only to find a sign that read: "Game moved to high school."

When they got to Highland Park High School, they found all the doors to the gymnasium locked.

"So I go to the receiving door and ring the bell about 10 times," Grenan said. "Finally a guy comes to the door and says, 'Didn't you see the door I left open with a screw driver?'"

There were two more surprises. One, the two teams had to share a locker room. Two, sophomore Michelle Ernst became ill and spent half of the game vomiting.

"Basically, we played them with six and a half players," Grenan said.

And the Ocelots played Highland Park tough, trailing by just six with 1:30 left in the game.

"I thought we played an outstanding game," Grenan said. "Their front line goes 6-1, 6-1 and 6-0 and about 170 pounds. We go 5-11, 5-9, 5-5. But we really hung in."

Sophomore Dana Hudson closed her career with a 17-point effort. She averaged 18.9 points per game and should gain a spot among the NCJAA's top 20 scoring leaders.

Angie Cerne added 11, Becky Piotruchowski and Lori Murphy each scored 10.

Tamika Broomfield scored 17 and Latrice Scott 15 for Highland Park (17-6).

Schoolcraft ended the regular season at home last Saturday with a 75-68 loss to Delta. Hudson scored 23 in that game.

The Ocelots finish 4-10, tied for fifth in the Eastern Conference with Oakland Community College, and 11-13 overall.

"It was a rollercoaster season," Grenan said. "We started out 4-0 and looking for a national ranking. Then we lost our point guard and center to knee injuries and won just one of our first nine league games. But we came on at the end and won three of our last four to make the playoffs.

"I just couldn't ask for any more from seven players. In that respect, the season was satisfying, more than satisfying."

OCC men stay alive

Oakland Community College had better luck at the start of the men's basketball state playoffs Monday than it had at the end of the regular season.

The Raiders, who lost three close games (two in overtime) before winning the finale, held off visiting St. Clair Community College 104-94.

"We lost some close games, but we lost to good teams," OCC coach Lynn Reed said. "So we were not totally disappointed with our play. We just didn't get much luck in some situations."

The Raiders (15-12) boosted a 46-38 halftime lead to 16 points in the second half Monday before Reed emptied his bench and let everyone play.

St. Clair closed the gap to five points with 1½ minutes left, but OCC held on. The Raiders played at Macomb Community College in the second round Wednesday.

OCC put six players in double figures, led by Troy Coleman's 20 points. Mark Galbraith and Willie Payne scored 14 apiece, Bill Knight and Craig Martin 12 each, Ray Moreland 11.

The 6-foot-7 Knight (center), Payne (6-3 forward) and Galbraith (6-5 forward) shot high percentages and effectively controlled the boards.

Knight was 5-of-6 from the floor, Payne 5-of-7 and Galbraith 4-of-6. Payne also led the Raiders with 11 rebounds, and Knight grabbed six.

Kevin Woodmore led with eight assists and chipped in seven points. Martin added five assists.

Jon Shafer scored a game-high 29 points for St. Clair.

Delta dusts S'craft men

The Schoolcraft College men's basketball team ended the regular season Saturday with a 118-102 defeat at Delta College.

The Ocelots finished 6-21 overall and 2-14 in the Eastern Conference. They are idle until next Wednesday when they play in the Region 12 national tournament at Macomb Community College.

SC didn't have much of a chance against Delta — a playoff qualifier from the Eastern Conference — trailing 65-44 at halftime.

"It could have been real ugly (in the second half) but the kids fought real hard," Schoolcraft College coach Dave Bogataj said.

Sophomore forward Mohammed Abdrabboh helped the Ocelots stay competitive, scoring 28 of his game-high 42 points in the second half. Abdrabboh was 14-for-23 from the field with four three-pointers.

"We had some nice things happen," Canton coach John Cunningham said. "Jenny Tedesco threw her first giant in competition on bars." She was first with an 8.8 despite losing three 10ths of a point for a stop. "It would have been in the nines if she had connected it.

"Rennolds did her series (combination of tricks) on balance beam, and three girls scored nines on floor. If we can keep that up, we have a shot when we get to state."

Lewke tied with Jackson for second on vault (8.1) and was second on beam (8.95), third on bars (8.15) and fourth on floor (8.7). Tedesco scored 8.55 on beam (third) and 9.1 on floor (second).

Canton's Kim Nowak placed third, floor (9.0); and fourth, beam (8.2) and bars (8.0). Adrienne Brenner was fifth on vault (7.6) and beam (7.75) and sixth on floor (7.9).

Jackson and Jammie Sidley had a pair of sixths on beam (7.7) and vault (7.5), respectively.

The Chiefs finished 5-1 in WLAA duals, losing only to Salem. Cunningham was confident of Canton's place in the league meet.

"Nobody can beat us but Salem, so we can practice things because it doesn't hurt us," he said. "When we get to state, it comes down to: Are we confident enough of our position to do tricks like that?"

The Chiefs also defeated host and No. 8 Traverse City in a dual Saturday, 137.2 to 133.1.

Rennolds had her best all-around score of the season (36.6). Tedesco was second (34.95), Lewke fourth (32.4) and Nowak fifth (31.85).

Canton scores on vault were: 1. Tedesco, 8.95; 2. Rennolds, 8.9; 3. Lewke, 8.85; 5. Nowak, 8.3; beam: 1. Rennolds, 9.3; 3. Brenner, 8.8 (personal best); 5. Tedesco, 8.2; 6. Lewke, 8.1; bars: 2. Rennolds, 9.05; 3. Tedesco, 8.9; 5. Nowak, 7.3; floor: 1. Rennolds, 9.35; 2. Tedesco, 8.9; 3. Nowak, 8.8;5; 4. Lewke, 8.7.

"When the lowest score you count on floor is an 8.7, you know you're having a good day," Cunningham said. "Kim and Jenny did nice bars, and we looked good on floor and beam."

Rennolds' 9.35 on floor was low compared to other meets and considering her routine, according to Cunningham. "It would have been a school record with the right judges," he said. Heather Murphy still has the record, the only one not belonging to Rennolds, of 9.45.

With the match tied 4-4 after two periods, Orow took control in the final two minutes and scored an escape and a takedown to secure the win.

Orow (32-4) earned a technical fall over Novi's Tim O'Sullivan in the semifinals.

"I lost in the districts last year so this really feels great," Orow said. "Last year I didn't motivate myself enough.

"This year I'm not letting anything stop me. I trained real hard over the summer. I'm not psyching myself out any more."

North teammate Jared Lawrence will join Orow at the regional meet after finishing third at 160.

Plymouth Canton's Nick Spano was the only other Observerland wrestler to capture a district championship.

Spano opened the tournament with a pin over Garden City's Tim Sayn (4:43), then stuck Livonia Stevenson's Jeff Kosola (1:45). He earned a default victory over South Lyon's Mike Muccino in the semifinals and edged Walled Lake Central's Frank Lovio (32-4) in the final, 6-5.

Livonia Stevenson and Plymouth Salem will each send three wrestlers to the regional.

Stevenson's Chris Mullett was second at 145, Scott Goldman placed third at 140 and Craig Martin suffered his first loss of the season when he dropped an 8-3 decision to Howell's Jason Steinacker in the championship match at 189.

"I've come a long way since finishing third at the league meet last year," said the Stevenson sophomore, who sports a 30-1 record. "I owe it all to our assistant coach Jim Carlin. He works with me himself and he brings people in to work with me. I owe it all to him."

Stevenson coach Don Berg was pleased with the success of his wrestlers.

"We've got three qualifiers; they're all sophomores and they're all captains," he said.

Salem heavyweight Ryan Giuliani placed second, Scott Hughes third at 103 and Phil Mitchell fourth at 130.

Other Observerland regional qualifiers include Livonia Churchill's Scott Doer and Ali Ramlawi, third at 145 and fourth at 171, respectively; Harrison's Brian Atkinson and David Gloetzner, fourth at 103 and 189, respectively; and Franklin's Adam Hill, third at 130.

CC sends 7 wrestlers to regional

By Jim Toth

WRESTLING

Thanks to some gutty performances, the dream of winning a state championship is very much alive for a number of area wrestlers.

A total of 23 area wrestlers, including seven champions, moved a step closer to that coveted goal Saturday in District 7 competition at Troy High. The host Colts led the way with nine regional qualifiers and Redford Catholic Central followed with seven.

CC's Phil Bache won the 135-pound weight class with an 11-10 win over Troy's Carl Barnes in one of the more physical matches of the day.

"I beat him here (in the district) 7-3 last year, so I knew he would be out for revenge," said Bache, who improved to 15-3 after missing part of the season with a knee injury. "The knee slowed me for a while, but it's coming along fine. I still have my No. 1 goal of getting to state."

In addition to Bache's heroics, CC had two others emerge as champions, Bill Lamb moved his season mark to 27-3 with a 10-2 decision over Jerrid Schalk of Ferndale in the finals at 103, and Jason Krueger blanked Lance Sanders of Kimball, 13-0, at 171.

Other CC wrestlers qualifying for Saturday's individual regional tournament at Hazel Park included: Steve Borke (third at 130), Mike Madden (third at 140), Dan Krueger (third at 160) and David Gardner (fourth at 125).

Shamrocks tie rival

Redford Catholic Central and Birmingham Brother Rice played to a 1-1 tie Saturday in a Michigan Metro Hockey League game at Redford Ice Arena.

The Shamrocks, who are 12-5-4 overall and 6-4-3 in the Michigan Metro Hockey League, had 24 shots on goal to Rice's 16. The game was unlike the first matchup between the two teams, Feb. 5, when CC beat Rice 3-0 despite being outshot 38-13.

After a scoreless first period, CC took a 1-0 lead at 5:38 of the second period on a goal by Jeff Lachapelle, assisted by Jason Ballinger. Rice tied the score at 10:31 with a power play goal by Tim Karrumi, with assists to Josh Fryer and Matt Riker.

The Shamrocks tried to break the tie in the second period but Chris Gonzalez hit the goal post on a breakaway and Jon Heady hit the side of the net on a good opportunity, according to coach Jack Gumbleton.

The third period didn't feature much offense with CC taking only five shots on goal and Rice two.

Ladywood whips Cass

The Livonia Ladywood volleyball team won the Operation Friendship championship Monday, 15-9, 15-7 over Detroit Cass Tech at Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher.

The Blazers, who won the Catholic League crown four days earlier with a victory over Dearborn Divine Child, improved to 28-6-2 overall. Cass Tech was the Detroit Public School League champion.

Liz Gunn led Ladywood with eight kills. Anne Poglits had six kills, Mary Jo Kelly five and Andrea Putti and Tara Overaitis had four each.

Kristy Walker led the Blazers with four serving aces and Val Adzima added three. Erin LeSage had a pair of digs.

Eagles lose cage contest

Oakland Christian remained unbeaten in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference with a 91-42 basketball victory Tuesday over visiting Plymouth Christian.

Mike and Damon Carter threw in 20 and 13 points for the winners, respectively. Jason Neil led the Eagles with 14.

Oakland Christian is 10-0 in the league and 16-1 overall, Plymouth Christian 4-8 and 5-14.

OUTDOOR INSIGHTS

BILL PARKER

The faces were different, but the responses were the same: "Nope. Nothing. Haven't caught a fish all day. It's pretty slow out there."

Four different groups of anglers leaving the ice near the Selfridge Air National Guard Base on Anchor Bay last week gave the same response as we questioned their morning activity.

"Don't worry. We'll get some fish," Auburn Hills resident Larry Axsom assured me. "I always catch fish out here."

Now I knew we were in trouble. He just guaranteed we'd catch fish.

We headed northwest of the base and walked a mile or more into a blistering winter wind before Axsom decided we should open a couple holes and see if we could locate some fish.

"Here? But everyone else is over there," I said, pointing to more than 25 anglers strung out in a line some 250 yards away. "Why not go over near them? They must be catching something. Look at all the people," I stammered.

"Trust me," answered Axsom. (He's always been a man of few words).

Five minutes later, I was seated comfortably on my bucket with my back to the wind and my spike-tipped chartreuse tear drop dangling a few inches off the bottom of the lake. We were fishing in 12 feet of water.

I diddled for several minutes, varying my depth between the bottom and three feet off the bottom. Nothing. Then I heard a faint call . . . "Bill."

I glanced over my shoulder just in time to watch Axsom reel in a dandy 8-inch yellow perch.

Seconds later, there was another low-toned call and Axsom hoisted up another keeper. The scene repeated itself six times over the next couple minutes and each time Axsom pulled a keeper out of his hole.

Just when I started questioning my technique I felt an ever-so-slight tug on the end of my 2-pound test line. I quickly set the hook and pulled up my first perch of the day. Three more fish accepted my offering in the next two minutes. Then, just as quickly as the action had started, it ended. For the next 20 minutes we fished feverishly, but to no avail.

"Time to move," Axsom said.

"But we just got here," I complained, pondering the thought of spudding another hole through eight inches of ice.

"There's no use fishing a hole when there aren't any fish," he explained. "The secret is, you have to move around to find the fish. There aren't enough fish in the bay yet to sit on one hole all day. You have to move around."

"You move," I said. "I'll stay here just in case they come back."

Axsom moved about 50 yards to my left and broke another hole through the ice. I watched him catch five more perch in less than 10 minutes then decided to swallow my pride and take his advice. I moved. I caught nothing. I moved again. I caught fish.

The same series of events took place several times over the next five hours before we decided to head for home with a nice catch of fresh Great Lakes perch. We landed 34 keepers ranging from seven to 10 inches in length.

"It'll get better, but for now you have to keep moving to find the fish," concluded Axsom.

You don't have to tell me twice.

Items for the Sports Roundup should be submitted by 5 p.m. Tuesday (for Thursday issue) and 5 p.m.-Friday (for Monday issue).*

■ CORKTOWN RACES

Serious runners and fun-loving walkers can demonstrate how well they've stayed in shape during the winter at the 11th Annual Corktown Races Sunday, March 14.

The races begin at 12:30 p.m. at Tiger Stadium. The annual St. Patrick's Parade will follow at 2 p.m.

The main race is a four-mile run through Detroit's historic Corktown community. Other events are 1½-mile walk and a quarter-mile walk/run for children 12 and under.

The early entry deadline is Friday, March 5, for a $10 fee. The late registration fee is $14. Final registration will take place from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. on race day at the starting line.

The quarter-mile kids run begins at 12:30. Parents may run with their children at no additional cost. The four-mile and 1½-mile runs start at 1.

The races are conducted by the Motor City Striders and sponsored by the Fraternal Order of United Irishmen. Proceeds will be used to aid the food programs at St. Patrick's Church in the Cass Corridor.

Entry forms can be obtained by writing to the race director at 10144 Lincoln, Huntington Woods, MI 48070. For information call 544-9099.

■ CANTON BOWLING

The First Canton Bowling Invitational will be Sunday, March 7, at the Superbowl, 45100 Ford Road. The tournament is open to all local businesses and organizations.

The fee is $56 per team and includes three games, shoe rental, all-you-can-eat pizza and pop from 4:30 to 5:45 p.m., mystery game and awards. Teams will consist of two females and two males.

Only one member needs to be affiliated with the organization being represented. More than one entry per organization is permitted. Register at Canton Parks and Recreation Services. Call 397-5110.

■ INDOOR SOCCER

The Canton Soccerdome is accepting registrations for its third session, which begins Sunday, March 7. The six-game session lasts three weeks. The team fee is $525. Limited openings are available. Call 483-5624, Ext. 102.

■ SOFTBALL MEETINGS

Softball informational meetings for teams in the Canton Parks and Recreation leagues will be Saturday, Feb. 27, in the township administration building.

The men's teams will meet at 10 a.m., women's at 10:30 a.m. and coed at 11 a.m. Topics to be discussed are entry fees, registration dates and times and contract/roster and residency requirements. For information call 397-5110.

■ SOFTBALL NEWS

Canton Softball Center will begin its 1993 first season Sunday, April 18. The 14-game spring season entry fee is $495 per team, with no game fees this year.

Men, women and coed teams are welcome. For information, call the CSC message line at 483-2913 or office line 4-9 p.m. Monday through Friday or 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekends at 483-5600, Ext. 102.

Registration for league play and tournaments begins Monday, March 1.

EXERCISING OPTIONS

MYRNA PARTRICH

My daughter is going through puberty. She is 13 years old. Her weight is terrible — at least 20 pounds overweight. She takes no interest in athletics and is failing gym class. She does seem to be coordinated and loves to dance. She is frustrated and very self-conscious. I'm very worried about her self-image. Her marks in school are going downhill. I need a strong suggestion. Please help.

This is probably the most common teenage exercise question. Your daughter is going through her awkward stage right now; be supportive and patient.

She probably doesn't show interest in sports or gym class now because of her weight problem. A lot of overweight girls feel silly in athletic clothes, especially shorts.

Being that she loves to dance, I would normally recommend a dance class after school, but the dress code wouldn't work for her overweight situation. Since she loves music and seems coordinated, a great solution might be an exercise class after school.

Music is a great motivator for teenagers. She may also wear comfortable sweats that she likes. Make sure she starts at a beginner level so as not to become intimidated and quit. Exercise classes, properly instructed, can be extremely beneficial in teenage years.

At this time of tremendous physical and psychological growth, cultivating the habits and awareness of physical fitness often lay the foundation for one's physical well-being for life.

I find teens understand the harmony between mind and body. They enjoy the challenge of fitness. It's no longer a boys' world. Girls are strong, too.

(Myrna Partrich, co-owner of The Workout Company in Bloomfield Hills and an appointee to the President's Council on Physical Fitness and to the Governor's Council on Physical Fitness, is happy to answer any questions readers may have regarding exercise. Please send your questions to: Sports Department, Myrna Partrich, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham 48009.)

'Quilters' pieces patches of life

■ Stories about timeless themes such as childbirth, marriage and schooling unfold in "Quilters" which opens Friday at Trinity House Theatre in Livonia.

Performances of the Trinity House Theatre production of "Quilters" begin 8 p.m. Friday, Feb. 26, and continue through April 3 at Trinity House, 38840 West Six Mile, Livonia. For ticket information, call 464-6302.

Colorful patches of cloth, stitched together with tender, loving care, brought pioneer women together and offered them comfort on the lonely plains of America.

Trinity House Theatre offers a glimpse of what it must have been like to live on the frontier during their presentation of "Quilters," by Barbara Damashek and Molly Newman.

"Quilting was one shared experience that joined the lives of many of our ancestors who settled the plains and hills of the frontier," said Sarah Hedeen, artistic director of Trinity House Theatre.

It is the focal point of "Quilters." Stories in the play unfold around 16 blocks of a legacy quilt being stitched by a mother, Sarah, for her seven daughters.

Michael Flores of Bloomfield Hills quilted all the quilt blocks used in the play, and the legacy quilt that the play is built around.

Hedeen portrays Dana, one of Sarah's daughters. As each block in the quilt unfolds, the audience experiences through drama, the lives of hundreds of characters, mostly women.

"One block is a story about a fire that destroys someone's log cabin," said Hedeen. "Each story is built around a traditional quilt block. For example, the Double Wedding Ring quilt pattern is the story of a young woman's quest to find a husband."

Music and dance are woven throughout the dramatic and often comedic stories that tie us to our American heritage.

Such themes as childbirth, baptism, marriage, parenting and schooling are addressed. Using both narrative and interactive scene work, the play touches many aspects of the lifestyle of the pioneers.

"One of the most interesting stories is Secret Drawer. It's the story of a woman who learns she's pregnant for the 14th time, and goes to her doctor for help," said Hedeen. "Some of the stories are very funny. Several blocks show what childhood on the prairie was like."

"Quilters" is directed by Laura Gumina, with musical direction by Dianne Lord. Hedeen said she figured the show will be a hit with women, since there are many stories that mothers and daughters can relate to, but what surprised her was the number of men who saw the show during rehearsal and said they really enjoyed it.

In the spirit of the show, there will a display of quilts, fashioned from traditional designs, in the theater for the audience to enjoy, and a silent auction of the legacy quilt used in the play.

Tickets are $9 and $10. There will be two performances, April 2 and 3, at the Livonia Civic Center Library auditorium.

LSO presents enjoyable, upbeat concert

The LSO's concert Series B and C continues March 26-27 with the Michigan Ballet Company and "Peter and the Wolf" at the Livonia Civic Center Library Auditorium. For ticket information, call the LSO office noon to 4 p.m. Mondays and Wednesdays at 421-1111 or the 24-hour hot line, 458-6575.

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

The second Series B chamber style concert this season by the Livionia Symphony Orchestra featuring guest guitarist James Lentini on Feb. 19, was an enjoyable intimate evening of music with an upbeat theme.

The scaled-down orchestra under conductor/music director Francesco DiBlasi opened with the Overture to Beethoven's only ballet, "Die Geschopfe des Prometheus" (The Creatures of Prometheus). A definite plus to this series is the addition of DiBlasi's informative commentary between selections.

Gracefulness and charm filled the LSO's second selection, the first movement of Schubert's "Symphony No. 5 in B flat major."

Kristen Williams, oboe; Colin Lord, clarinet; James Poe, bassoon and Carl Karoup, horn were featured in the nearly flawless "Symphony Concertante" by Mozart. Beforehand, DiBlasi kidded the audience that this was his arrangement of the work, and as such had very few repetitions.

The piece was light and airy. If you closed your eyes you might have imagined you were listening to a European band concert.

After intermission, Lentini took center stage for the premier professional performance of his "Concerto for Guitar and Strings (1981)." The contemporary piece in three movements had an underlying classical flavor which showcased Lentini's proficient guitar work — his hands flying across the fret work. The guitar and violin strings sang dark and sweet in the second movement.

Assistant professor of composition, and director of the electronic studio at Wayne State University in Detroit, Lentini evidenced that he has performed extensively as a recitalist and soloist.

He completed the concerto while studying at Wayne State University. It was performed as a work-in-progress in 1981, and then set aside until 1992 when he made minor revisions to the orchestrations.

Lentini holds degrees from Wayne State University and Michigan State University, and a doctorate in composition from the University of Southern California. His compositions include works written for orchestra, chamber ensembles, voices, electronic and solo instruments. He won first prize in the Atwater-Kent Composition Contest for his "Music for Brass" in 1985, and the McHugh Composition Prize for "A Distant Place" in 1988.

After a toe-tapping rendition of Joplin's "Cascades" featuring orchestra members Williams, Lord, Poe, Karoub and flutist, Teri Sankovich, Lentini returned to the stage for solo performances of "Here's That Rainy Day" by Van Hensen, and a soulful Gershwin's "A Foggy Day."

The concert ended on a rousing note with dramatic music from Rossini's "Guillaume Tell," (William Tell) ballet.

Concert, plays focus on children

Folklorist and children's recording artist Ella Jenkins will appear as part of the "Saturday Fun for Kids" series 11 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 27, at Oakland University's Meadow Brook Theatre in Rochester Hills.

Seating is reserved. Tickets are $6 each and available by calling 377-3300. The concert will last about one hour, and is not recommended for children under the age of 3. Doors open 10:30 a.m.

A regular guest on "Mister Rogers' Neighborhood," Jenkins has been praised throughout her 35 years as a performer for her emphasis on active participation and multi-cultural education. She knows songs, chants, rhythms, games and dances from many lands, and encourages audience participation at her concerts.

She has performed for children on all seven continents, including Antarctica. In 1988, she traveled to Hong Kong and the People's Republic of China as part of an exchange program of the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts.

In 1989, she traveled to the Soviet Union and performed for the children of Moscow and Kiev.

Jenkins spends as much as 200 days a year on the road. Only half that time is spent performing; the other half is spent holding workshops at universities and children's agencies.

To each performance she carries a bag of small portable instruments, including maracas, clave sticks, castenets and harmonicas.

"Saturday Fun for Kids" series also includes an April 3 presentation of "Hansel and Gretel" by the International Puppet Place.

Here are some other children's events in the area.

The Jewish Community Center with Tedd E. Bear Productions (subsidiary company of Nancy Gurwin Productions) presents the Lee Ahlin and Philip Hall musical "Beauty and the Beast," 12:30 p.m. kosher luncheon, 2 p.m. show, Sunday, Feb. 28 at the Jewish Community Center, 6600 W. Maple Road, West Bloomfield, and 2 p.m. Sunday, March 14 at the Jewish Community Center, Jimmy Morris Building, 15110 W. 10 Mile, Oak Park.

Laura Buono of Rochester portrays Beauty. The cost is $12.50 for lunch and show. Call 661-1000, Ticketmaster, 645-6666 or Nancy Gurwin, 354-0545 for reservations.

The Cotton Candy Kids of Northville's Historic Marquis Theatre will be presenting "Pooh Visits Storyland," 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. Saturdays, Feb. 27 and March 6 and 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 28. Tickets are $5. Call 349-8110 for information. The theater is at 135 E. Main Street, Northville.

The Youth Theatre of the Bloomfield Players will present J.R.R. Tolkien's "The Hobbit" 8 p.m. Friday, March 5 and March 12, Saturday, March 6 and March 13, and 2 p.m. Sunday, March 7 and March 14 at the Andover High School theater, 4200 Andover Road, Bloomfield Hills. Adult tickets, $7, students and seniors $6. Tickets available at the door. For information, call 433-0885.

Fun concert: Folklorist Ella Jenkins will perform at Meadow Brook Theatre's "Saturday Fun For Kids Series" on Feb. 27.

Talented cast in opera 'Wonderglass'

Donald Baker, principal oboist with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, will be the soloist at the next American Artists Series concert, 3 p.m. Sunday, March 28, at Kingswood Auditorium, Cranbrook campus, 500 Lone Pine, Bloomfield Hills. Tickets $12.50. For information, call 851-5044.

BY ISABELLE JOHNSTON SMITH
SPECIAL WRITER

A near-capacity audience of over 350 hardy souls braved snow, sleet and cold Sunday, Feb. 21, to witness the American Artists Series world premier production of singer, composer, librettist Susan Botti's work-in-progress chamber opera, "Wonderglass," at Kingswood Auditorium on the Cranbrook campus in Bloomfield Hills.

"Wonderglass" is-based on the whimsical improvised stories gentle Oxford Don Charles Dodgson (Lewis Carroll) related to the three children of his Dean (among them his favorite, Alice) to while away their lazy weekend afternoons picnicking on the banks of the Thames River in the 1860s. However, Botti's 20th century evocations of the "Queen of Hearts," the "Mad Hatter," "March Hare," "Mock Turtle," the "Ugly Duchess" and Cook ter! And bravos! This was, in fact, a "brillig" afternoon.

Isabelle Johnston Smith of Birmingham, a former professional singer, serves on the Detroit Symphony Orchestra Hall Volunteer Council Board of directors, and on the boards of other area arts organizations.

strong, dramatic shifts in scale, dynamics and tempi, this is a sophisticated, but fairly melodic-wonderland, indeed.

When 9-year-old Carly Baruh's "Alice" asks — "would you tell me please where I ought to go from here? and the Chesire Cat answers — "that depends a good deal on where you want to get," Botti is summing up her concept for "Wonderglass" — a concept which explores the boundaries of the 20th century imagination using Lewis' 19th century characters and dialogue as vehicles.

What results is a work full of irony, wit, humor and (sometimes) tenderness. Notable among the songs are: "Which Way?," "How I Love to Play Croquet," "Soup, Beautiful Soup," "The Mad Duchess' Aria," "Off with their Heads," "The Jabberwock," and the folk tune-like conclusion "The Old Man at the Gate." Albeit most of these are not immediately "hummable."

The two short films of Dodgson's (Carroll's) 19th century photos by California filmmaker Phil Denslow, which were used as a prologue and near the end, also added immeasurably to the production.

As the narrator intoned at the conclusion — "Mark this day with a white stone!" and a red letter! And bravos! This was, in fact, a "brillig" afternoon.

VITALITY. YOU CAN FEEL IT IN YOUR BONES.
What you can't feel, however, is osteoporosis – the bone-thinning disease that affects about 25 million Americans, causing bones to weaken and break.
When hip, spine or wrist fractures occur, osteoporosis can rob you of your independence by making even the most routine activities virtually impossible.
As many as one out of every two women past menopause – and one out of every five men – will develop fractures because of osteoporosis. While osteoporosis can't be cured, it can be prevented.

IMPORTANT

No doubt you're aware of just how important the United Way is to this community. You're aware of the vital services provided by the 145 charities supported by the United Way. But you're probably not aware that we need $5 million more to meet our needs this year. 1.8 million people in Southeastern Michigan are counting on you, and they simply can't afford to go without. That's why we're asking you,

PLEASE join us in an unprecedented effort to raise the needed funds. If you've already given, thank you. But during this difficult time, please consider giving a little more. If you haven't pledged yet, please

CALL our toll-free hotline. Unless we raise the necessary funds, many of the charities that we support will be forced to cut back their efforts that help the elderly, the abused, the homeless and the handicapped. So please call

Call today. Only you can make the difference. With your help, we've already raised $56 million, but that's $5 million less than we raised last year. And more people need our help now than ever before. So please call 1-800-456-3729

TODAY.

"You might see six, eight, 10 resurfacing jobs in the metro area, some bridgework done on a central program.

"The whole program is a little sketchy," he added.

Curt Hacias, president of the Construction Association of Michigan, agreed that he doesn't know yet exactly what to expect.

"Our membership is poised and ready to go on a moment's notice," he said. "There won't be a lack of bidders for work. It's a bright light, no question about it. Any time there's an infusion of dollars, private dollars or federal dollars, it certainly will help."

Thomas H. Landry, president of A.J. Etkin in Farmington Hills, believes that road specialists rather than building contractors like himself stand to benefit most in the short term.

Environmentally friendly?

Ed Cicero, vice president for operations at Millgard Environmental in Livonia, said his pollution remediation firm probably won't get an immediate boost from a federal spending stimulus. But he found reason for hope in the tone of Clinton's address.

"If he means what he said in his speech, I think environmental might pick up and big," Cicero said.

"There will be cuts in payments to providers: doctors, hospitals and labs as a way of controlling health care costs. These cuts are only a stop-gap until we reform the whole health care system."

Michael Killian, director of marketing and public affairs for Beaumont Hospitals, was waiting to get a handle on specific numbers from finance personnel before gauging an impact.

But he had a preliminary thought.

"Cutting payments to providers in order to save money certainly is a strategy, but it will work only if the demand for services is likewise controlled," Killian said. "As long as we address reducing payments without addressing demand, it will only lead to more escalation."

Wayne George, chief financial officer for St. Mary Hospital in Livonia, figures that the impact can only be bad for health-care institutions.

"I'm not ready to say what the ramifications are until I see specifics. It won't be positive," he said.

"As we restructure American military forces to meet the new threats of the post-Cold War world, we can responsibly reduce our defense budget."

Defense spending cuts probably will go beyond military personnel and include equipment and supplies, defense contractors here suspect.

LOC Performance in Plymouth currently employs about 130 who make parts for tanks and trucks. Ninety-five percent of its business is defense-related, said Rodger Vojcek, vice president.

The firm already has reduced its work force by nearly two dozen the last eight months due to previous defense cuts, and Vojcek isn't optimistic about what he hears through the grapevine about more potential cuts.

"We're bracing for the worst. That way, you have less surprises," Vojcek said. "Truth to tell, we just don't know what it's going to turn into."

The automotive division of Rockwell International, with headquarters and a technical center in Troy, currently employs 900. Some 40 active contracts are now in effect with that division, a Defense Department spokesman reported. A dollar figure wasn't available.

Neither Michael Pennington, a local Rockwell spokesman, nor Joy Sabol, a spokeswoman at the corporate level, would speculate on how Clinton's plan would impact their company.

"There's no more talk (here) than at any other business what the president might do," Pennington said.

The automotive division accounted for 22 percent of all corporate business with sales of $2.2 billion during the last budget year, Sabol said. Corporate-wide Department of Defense work produced revenue of $2.9 billion.

money to run their business — they make commercial or consumer loans at higher interest rates.

By contrast, "equity assets" imply ownership of an asset. One can own many things that can increase in value: real estate, pieces of companies (stocks), a personal business, gold. The hope and expectation are that the asset will go up in value, but it may also go down. With equity investments, there are no guarantees.

The distinction is important. In general, the equity assets provide significantly greater long-term rates of return but at the expense of short-term stability. The debt-based assets are more stable but at the expense of average returns.

Table I shows the long-term rates of return of specific debt-based and equity-based assets. The difference between the two categories is substantial. For example, over a 15-year-period, the 5-percent bond rate would double your money; the 10-percent rate provided historically by stocks would result in a quadrupling of your money. The difference becomes even more dramatic over longer time periods.

Everybody should have assets in both categories; some in the debt-based area and some in the equity-based assets. The single most important question in asset allocation is the balance between the two.

Generally, conservative investors such as retirees should have a greater proportion of assets in the debt-based area for greater stability. But they should still retain some equity assets to provide for growth and inflation protection.

Those who are accumulating money for a number of years to achieve a long-term goal should have the majority of their money is equity assets. But even the most aggressive investor should have an emergency reserve and some other debt-based assets to balance the portfolio.

The percentage of assets in these two areas will shift over time. For example, a couple in their 30s and 40s may have 70 percent of their assets in the equity-based area for more rapid growth. As they move through their 50s, they might choose a good time to liquidate some of the equity assets to lock in past profits. By the time they reach 60, they might have perhaps one-half of their assets in the debt-based and one-half in equity-based assets. As they move toward retirement at 65, they might further reduce their equity exposure by shifting 70 percent of their total portfolio into the debt-based assets, while keeping 30 percent in stocks, real estate and other equity-based assets. (See Table II)

Business braces for Clinton's specifics

■ It's apprehension on the part of some, anticipation on the part of other business owners and managers as they gauge their economic future.

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

Some businesses would appear to fare better than others when it comes to applying President Bill Clinton's proposed economic recovery plan.

Apparent winners include building contractors and community colleges. Potential losers include defense contractors and hospitals.

But appearances can sometimes be deceiving. Expectations can be buoyed or dashed depending on how the details eventually shake out, business leaders said. They responded to the following Clinton excerpts:

"We must create a new unified worker training system, so that workers receive training regardless of why they lost their jobs," Clinton said in his economic address. "We will offer people on welfare the education, training . . . they need to get back on their feet."

That was good news to Gordon May, executive director of Oakland Community College Pontiac Center, and Bruce Sweet, director of business and industrial services at Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

Both are involved in job training and retraining programs.

Building boost: Mason Kevin Buford is hoping President Bill Clinton's call for increased spending in construction will materialize in added jobs for his company.

THE PRESIDENT'S PLAN

Impact on business

"We train people who are laid off or economically disadvantaged," May said. "Our programs were basically filled. We have a waiting list, but it isn't a big list."

The Pontiac Center trains about 250 people annually in such areas as heating and cooling technology, machine tool technology and business information systems.

"We now try to do training to specific employers," Sweet said. "We're canvassing all employers in our district with more than 25 employees to see what their needs are over the next five years.

"We have two job developers and their job is to meet with businesses to see what kinds of jobs they have available," May said. "We train them, then it's incumbent on the employer to employ them."

"To create jobs and guarantee a strong recovery, I call on Congress to enact an immediate jobs package of over $30 billion. We will put people to work right now and create half a million jobs, jobs that will rebuild our highways and airports, renovate housing . . ."

There's a wide-range of opinion on what this proposal will mean locally.

Drop in the bucket?

"I don't see the proposals the president made will make a tremendous impact on the building trades," said Fred Capaldi, a Rochester residential builder and president of the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan.

His reasoning — if it cost upwards of $20 million just to put in water and sewer lines for the redeveloped Victoria Park Subdivision in Detroit, how far will the money go?

"The amount of money needed to be spent in the inner cities would be a tremendous amount," Capaldi said. "I don't know if the federal government is up to that."

Joe Malloure, president of C.A. Hull, a Walled Lake contractor and president of the Michigan Road Builders Association, projects that Michigan will receive only $76 million under Clinton's plan.

"You're not going to see the state all torn up over $76 million," he said.

Balance key in asset allocation

Second of three parts

BY DANIEL BOYCE
and ALAN FERRARA
SPECIAL WRITERS

Last week we discussed the importance of maintaining adequate liquidity (accessibility) and diversifying investments into several different categories. Before we proceed with the discussion of asset allocation, it is important to define the categories among which investments can be allocated.

A broad distinction must first be made between interest-bearing assets (debt-based assets) and ownership assets (equity assets). Within the two broad categories, there are several sub-categories. The debt-based assets contain three sub-categories: cash equivalents, guaranteed contracts and bonds. Equity-based assets include the sub-categories of stocks, real estate, tangibles and other. Some definitions of each:

■ Cash equivalents: Interest-bearing assets with ready accessibility. They include savings accounts, money market funds, Treasury bills, short-term savings goals, and for defensive investing when nothing else looks attractive.

■ Guaranteed contracts: Higher interest rates, but with some restriction on accessibility. They include retirement plan and 401(k) plan guaranteed accounts, deferred annuities, and long-term certificates of deposit. These assets provide moderate rates of return and provide an anchor to any portfolio. They never decline in value. Frequently, tax deferral is an added benefit of investments in this category.

■ Bonds: A fixed interest rate is locked in for a long period of time. They include assets such as municipal bonds, treasury notes and bonds, and bond mutual funds. They primarily are held for steady income. Bonds may be liquidated prior to maturity by selling the bonds to another investor, but the sale price may be higher or lower than the original purchase price (prices will tend to vary with interest rate moves).

■ Stocks: Represents ownership in companies. They include stock options, stock mutual funds and foreign stocks. These offer growth and liquidity but will have significantly greater fluctuations in value in the short term. As a result, the investment time horizon should ideally be five years or longer, though they may be sold sooner if conditions change.

■ Investment real estate: includes investment property, partnerships, real estate investment trusts but does not include personal residence. Real estate is an illiquid asset that typically provides some income along with potential appreciation (growth).

■ Tangibles: These assets tend to do well in inflationary times, but they can be highly volatile. They include precious metals and collectibles (coins, stamps, oriental carpets, artwork). They tend to increase in value when bonds and stocks are not performing well and can therefore help stabilize a portfolio.

■ Other: Includes private businesses and exotic investments. This is a catch-all category and is always optional in a portfolio.

Next we'll examine a useful framework for our asset allocation model. It is helpful to divide a portfolio into the debt-based assets and the equity assets. Interest bearing assets are debt-based because the money is in effect being loaned to various organizations — the bank (savings or CDs), the U.S. government (Treasury bills or bonds), a corporation (corporate bonds) or other entity. The borrowing organization then uses this money to maintain a business or other equity asset.

For example, when you open a savings account, you are lending your money to the bank. In return, the bank agrees to pay you a specified rate of interest for the use of your money. They use your

FAMILY LIFE

EARTHA DEYAMPERT

What you do keeps parents coming back

What keeps parents coming?

That's a subject I addressed in an article published by the National Association for the Education of Young Children in May 1992. And what was said then is still applicable today.

The first thing that keeps parents coming back is being reliable. Parents need a provider who is dependable. This means you should:

(1) Do what you say you're going to do;

(2) Do it when you say you will;

(3) Do what it takes to organize before it's time to open your doors to the families.

But there's more. You also have to be credible. Quality is worth paying for if parents have peace of mined knowing you provide a viable, productive and safe program in a peaceful, loving environment.

Parents and children can sense sincerity and readily draw conclusions about you as a professional person and your business program. When parents chose to use your services, it is most likely that they are choosing you the person rather than your big slide, although the equipment is very important.

A feeling of trust and confidentiality is important. Such is the nature of credibility.

A new start?

Family programs gladly 'heed' the call

The call to action was issued in President Bill Clinton's State of the Union address. Programs like Head Start and Women, Infants and Children are on his list for increased funding, much to the delight of those who administer the programs.

BY DOUG FUNKE and CASEY HANS
STAFF WRITERS

President Clinton's call for expanding the Women, Infants and Children's (WIC) nutrition program and reaching more children in the Head Start preschool program drew praise from caregivers involved at the local level.

While they weren't sure of exactly what direction the "improvements" would take, they see a need for more involvement.

Some 7,100 WIC clients are currently served in Wayne County communities outside of Detroit, said Carrie Nelms, county WIC coordinator. Pregnant and nursing women plus children under 5 years of age at medical or nutritional risk now receive food coupons to supplement their diets.

THE PRESIDENT'S PLAN
Impact on families

"We think we could serve another 1,000 people — but that would mean an additional allocation of federal money," Nelms said. "We are overallocated now, 500 over.

"We're taking them, but growth is much smaller than if we had additional money. We never turn anyone away, but it may take time to get an appointment."

The food coupons, exchanged at area markets, average about $50 monthly per person who qualifies and are administered through the county health departments.

Even communities perceived as affluent are touched.

"I'm not surprised," Nelms said of the WIC needs in wealthy Wayne communities like Plymouth Township, Canton and Livonia. "Health needs of people span the whole geographic area."

Specific numbers weren't available by community.

Nelms, a 15-year veteran of WIC, notes the program's results.

"We've seen babies born to moms on the WIC program with (appropriate) birth weight increases, and we've seen children with iron deficiency anemia decline."

The out-Wayne County Head Start program currently serves about 2,800 children outside of the city of Detroit, said Patricia Horne-McGee, associate director. Head Start includes education, immunization and nutrition services for children in underprivileged families.

Sometimes, there is a waiting list at the beginning of the school year, but children on that list usually eventually are admitted due to family moves and other dropouts, she said.

Programs in all areas

"We tell people we have participants in Dearborn and Livonia, and people around the state say, 'Not really?' Yes, there are pockets of poor within all of our cities."

Horne-McGee and her staff are in the process of assessing needs to possibly expand Head Start to several school districts that don't have it currently — Crestwood, Southgate and Allen Park — and measuring whether those that do are fully covered.

"Head Start impacts on the family. It changes direction on self-sufficiency and moving toward self-sufficiency," Horne-McGee said.

Expanding the program will carry a higher cost to local communities that are expected to provide 20 percent of the budget, Horne-McGee said. Most provide in-kind services like classroom space, she said.

Tax help

In another area mentioned by the president, the working poor would stand to benefit from Clinton's call to expand the earned income tax credit. The figure being bandied about — raising the ceiling from the current $22,370 to $30,000.

"Definitely more people would be eligible and I'm going to make an assumption dollars would increase as well," said Elcy Maccani, public affairs specialist in the Detroit IRS office.

Growth Works mends families' fractured lives

■ 'Kids are really like on an island more than at any time in the history of man.'

Jim Young
Youth Assistance mentor

BY JAMES RADEBAUGH
STAFF WRITER

Fractured families, materialism and a hectic pace of life are taking a toll on the young people.

So say several adults who were honored this month by Growth Works Inc. for their efforts on behalf of troubled teens.

"I think the pressures are getting worse, I don't know why," said Rita Lowenstein, who volunteers as a mentor for teens involved with Growth Works.

Lowenstein and her husband Glenn got involved with Growth Works five years ago when their son got into trouble with drugs and alcohol. Though she's completing requirements for a law degree and Glenn is a top-level business executive, they've found time to give back to an organization that helped when their family was in crisis.

Each week, Lowenstein meets for an hour with a young person enrolled in Growth Work's Youth Assistance program. She's there to listen, to bolster self-esteem and to guide the young person toward more responsible behavior. The program is for first-time offenders who are sent to Growth Works as an alternative to the courts. Some, but not all, are chemically dependent.

Lowenstein believes the pressures of early sex, drug use, the need to wear the right clothes and old-fashioned pressures such as school work have combined to make being a teen tougher today than ever.

Jim Young, who, like the Lowensteins, is a Canton resident, also is a Youth Assistance mentor. He says too much comes too easily to young people today, while at the same time kids have less and less contact with adults.

"Kids are really like on an island more than at any time in the history of man," he said.

Nic Cooper, a counselor in the Plymouth-Canton Schools, blames advertising for bombarding kids with the message that drinking provides all the things adolescents want: friends, good times, acceptance. He said that use of alcohol and marijuana are as strong as ever among teens and that use of inhalants is growing.

Like others, Cooper thinks the Just Say No push of the past 12 years has been largely ineffective in steering young people away from drugs.

Cooper said that while the Just Say No message is as fine as far as it goes, it is a simplistic solution to a complex problem. What's needed, he said, are programs that identify and treat young people with chemical dependencies.

Cooper, in conjunction with Growth Works, ran such a program from 1977-87 for the Plymouth-Canton Schools. The program, Learning Options, was discontinued in a cost-cutting effort.

"That's the kind of thing that was lost during the Reagan years," he said.

"We find ourselves with fewer options, and that's kind of sad."

Growth Works, located in Plymouth, provides children and adults with a variety of services ranging from drug counseling to job placement. The non-profit organization was founded in 1971 and now employs seven full-time staff members and nearly 50 volunteers. It receives funding from United Way, local governments and its own fundraisers.

Cooper, Young and the Lowensteins were honored earlier this month at Growth Works' annual award dinner. Carol Haas and Madelon Hudson were also honored. Haas is a nurse in the Wayne-Westland Schools and a two-year Growth Works volunteer. Hudson, a Plymouth resident, serves one day a week as a volunteer secretary.

Club observes milestone with a century of service

BY JAMES RADEBAUGH
STAFF WRITER

One way of tracking some of the not-necessarily-quaint developments in American history is to take a look at the Woman's Club of Plymouth.

The club, which celebrates its 100th anniversary March 4, has been through some of the thick of it. Club members aided the push for Prohibition and for women's suffrage, they helped out during two world wars, and, on a local note, they helped build the Plymouth Library and develop Kellogg Park.

Writer's restless nature requires a variety of activities

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

LORENE GREEN

Dear Ms. Green,

I will be 48 years old tomorrow. I am left handed. I wonder if left-handed people write any differently than right-handers, I mean does their handwriting, differ in appearance. We all know lefties write upside-down. It certainly is true of me! In many ways my handwriting has changed over the years — is that typical?

I will be interested in reading what you have to say about my personality after seeing my handwriting. I guess we all are interested in what others think of us, but it will be interesting to see if what you perceive is what I think I am like!

Thanks for reading this for me.

Plymouth

One of the most common differences between left and right handers is that left handers usually cross their T's from right to left. Most mature adults change their handwriting as they mature and develop personality changes.

Today's writer is a gregarious woman who enjoys people from all walks of life. Her restless nature requires constant variety in her activities. Her interests are often short and fleeting. She is not above a little social climbing to mix with people who have special appeal for her.

This is an independent person, one to whom freedom is paramount. A routine existence holds little attraction for her.

When she wrote this letter to me she was very busy. She has so many irons in the fire that her energies are being scattered. She might find it helpful to sort out her priorities and extricate herself from some of this involvement.

This is a person of intelligence and refinement. Seemingly she thinks of herself as being somewhat different, possibly marching to a different drummer. At times she may also feel that she is in possession of special insights.

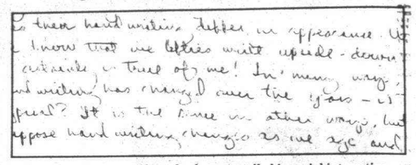
She comprehends quickly and can take a direct route to problem solving. She is able to cut away unnecessary steps and move right to the heart of a problem. Creativity is freely expressed. A good memory is another asset.

Heavy pressure suggests her purposeful drive. However, her fleeting interest in so many things may interfere with her concentration on a prolonged endeavor. On the job, she wants good equipment to facilitate her work.

She is not reluctant to take a risk to get what she wants from life. Material interests are strong. I doubt if we'll ever hear her say, "but this is the way we have always done things."

Sensitivity rides on the loops of her small T's and D's. Often she anticipates criticism when none is intended. She enjoys praise.

Her inflated lower loops suggest many things . . . fantasy and vivid imagination are among them. Other interpretations are incorporated throughout the analysis. She tends to distort what she sees and hears without realizing it. This prevents her from basing her judgments solely on facts.



She is somewhat self-involved. Currently something is causing her to entertain negative thoughts that verge on depression. Without samples of handwriting done at other times, I cannot be certain if this is temporary or not. With her love of nature, physical exercise out in the beauty of nature could go a long way toward lifting her spirits.

Although emotional by nature, she keeps her feelings somewhat controlled in social interaction.

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and full signature are all helpful. Objective feedback is always welcome. Time does not allow Lorene Green to mail out personal replies.

"We rarely track proposals," Maccani added. "This is Bill Clinton talking. It's still going through Ways and Means and Senate Finance (committees). It's subject to the normal battering."

The maximum credit this year is $2,151 for one child, $2,211 for two or more.

A credit is better than a deduction because it's a direct offset of tax due.

Some 359,000 families in Michigan received earned income benefits totalling $273.4 million in the 1991 filing year, Maccani said.

"We estimate in the state of Michigan, that 50,000 more families could be eligible (now) for the credit, but they're not aware of it or don't file for it.

"The credit is available to anyone filing joint, head of household or single as long as you had a job and earned income and had a child live with you at least half a year," Maccani said.

"It's aimed at lower-income families with children. It's designed to help them out and put more money in their pockets.

"I don't think we've ever seen a profile. I believe there would be a lot of single parents and a lot of families. This is just a personal opinion, with the large number of single families in the country now."

Other potential beneficiaries — senior citizens raising their grandchildren.

Family issues from page 1C

You also need to be attractive. Appearance may be deceiving, but many times people draw a lot of conclusions about you and the quality of services that will be offered on the basis of what they see. Anything the parents and children can see, feel, touch, hear and even smell concerning the physical environment can shape opinions.

Put your best foot forward and make a special effort to present a first class image — not only in the physical environment but yourself as well. It's not at frivolous expense, it's an investment. What can you lose? Hopefully not a potential customer.

As a provider you also have to be responsive. To be responsive is to be accessible, available to the children as well as to the parents. Take care of minor concerns or complaints before they get out of hand. Be available at designated times to discuss various issues with parents. Don't be too busy to listen or be "tuned in" to certain situations.

To be responsive also means having the ability to know when to and how to act upon a certain issue in a timely manner.

Be empathetic. Everyone wants to feel special. Each family has its own unique personality and needs. That's what makes a family day care home truly wonderful. Why? Because each family represents a branch on your family day care business tree.

So be patient with the families and empathetic. Treat each family as a special part of the tree. Help accommodate their various needs as much as possible. Try to put yourself in their shoes and experience their points of view.

After all be happy. You chose them . . . they chose you.

If you have a question or comment for Eartha De'Vampert, call her at 953-2047, mail box number 1883, on a Touch-Tone phone, or write her at The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

Classes available for lupus patients

The Michigan Lupus Foundation will offer a five-week patient education series about the disease, beginning Thursday, March 4.

The workshops are designed for lupus patients, their families and friends. It will be at 7:30-9:15 p.m. Thursdays at St. Alfred Parish, 9500 Banner, Taylor.

Dr. Luis Torregrosa, a rheumatologist will be the physician speaker. He will discuss diagnostic tests, treatment, variables of lupus and self-monitoring.

Other speakers will be Virginia Ladd, discussing what lupus is, and Peg O'Flynn, who will lead discussions on the emotional reactions to chronic illness, with suggestions on how the patient and family can cope.

All material will be presented in easy-to-understand terms.

Lupus is a chronic, inflammatory autoimmune disease in which the body's defense system that is meant to protect malfunctions produces antibodies directed at the body. The cause and cure are currently not known.

The symptoms include joint pain, low-grade fever, chest pain, unusual swelling and sometimes a sun-sensitive rash.

Advance registration is required and can be completed by contacting the Michigan Lupus Foundation at 26202 Harper Ave., St. Clair Shores 48081, or by calling 775-8330.

Family gathering: When Estelle Tucker, 94, of Livonia gathered with her family for the holidays, it was a celebration of note. On hand was her son, Richard C. Tucker, 68, of Westland, her granddaughter Carol Heldt, 45, of Grand Rapids, her great-grandson Lawrence Brennan, 27, of Omaha, Neb., and her great, great-granddaughter Micalah, age four months.

Kast and Hodak star at Northville Town Hall series

Tickets are still available for the remaining two lectures of the Northville Town Hall Series, now in its 32nd season.

The series is held at the Holiday Inn-West, 17123 N. Laurel Park Drive, Livonia. The Monday, March 8, guest speaker will be ABC News correspondent Shielah Kast, while local TV notable Jerry Hodak will be the Monday, April 12, guest speaker.

Kast has covered a wide range of beats for ABC News, moving to Congressional beat in 1989 after a four-year White House stint.

A former financial reporter with the Washington Star, she authored a book, "Cut Your Own Taxes," a how-to-book covering the 1981 and '82 tax law changes. A native of Indianapolis, Ind., she is a graduate of the Catholic University of America and attended the Catholic University Law School.

Hodak is a veteran reporter and weathercaster. A local Emmy winner, he received the Michigan Non-Profit Homes Association Award for his series on Medicare costs, a special mention award for his medical story on a cancer pump and a 1983 public service award from the Michigan Cancer Foundation.

A graduate of Wayne State University, he got his start at WDET-FM on campus. He joined WXYZ-TV in 1977 and moved to WJBK-TV in 1992.

Proceeds from the series benefits charities in Northville, Novi, Plymouth, Livonia and South Lyons through the organization's Board of Awards.

The 1993-94 Town Hall series lineup will be announced and tickets will go on sale at the April gathering. In addition to the Town Hall lectures, there are luncheons at noon at the Holiday Inn available for season ticket-holders.

For more information on the Town Hall program, call Carmen Kuckenbecker at 349-7227 or write to Northville Town Hall, P.O. Box 93, Northville 48167.

Not bad for an organization that started out as the Plymouth Ladies Literary Society.

"The camaraderie is wonderful," explained current president Grace Rix. "For me it's been nice, busy but nice."

One of the more noteworthy of the club's recent projects has been a scholarship program that in the past 10 years has helped fund the education of more than 150 young men and women. The club holds two or three fund-raisers a year and usually gives about $2,500 each year to local service organizations, Rix said.

The club currently has about 140 members, of whom 40 have been members for more than 40 years. But, Rix cautioned, she doesn't want people to get the idea that the Woman's Club of Plymouth is an artifact of the past. New members are always joining, she said.

SHERRIE BUZBY

Looking back: The Woman's Club of Plymouth will celebrate its 100th anniversary March 4. At a luncheon in October, club members Grace Rix, Mary Childs, Dorothy Lent and Betty Koch dressed in 1893 costume.

Detroit is a "city of suburbs."

As the graph shows, suburbanites comprise more than 72% of Detroit's metro population.

In fact, the suburbs account for 85% of metro Detroit's

Effective Buying Income (EBI).

And, in Detroit's suburbs, the leading newspapers are not The Detroit News or Free Press—

The leading suburban newspaper medium is SPRING, the network of suburban newspapers.

SPRING delivers more than twice the audited suburban circulation (707,214) of the daily Detroit News (274,510) or Free Press (348,698).

And the 1991 Belden newspaper survey proves that suburbanites read their SPRING newspapers.

SPRING delivers more total suburban readers (927,400) than the daily edition of The News (743,000) or Free Press (856,000).

SPRING delivers more suburban buyers of women's fashions, men's fashions, new cars & trucks, boats, jewelry, and airline tickets.

Do you realize that most Christians do not understand John 3:16. Most assume that the word "world" in this verse necessarily means "the entire human race." However, the Bible often uses the word "world" to refer to a specific group of men within the human race. Note these verses: Luke 2:1; John 12:19; John 15:19. The "world" of men that God loved were those that God chose and gave to Christ for salvation (Eph 1:3-5; John 6:39)

Come Sense The Freshness

Ministry offers wives of non-Christians 'promise'

By Sue Mason
Staff Writer

Eleanore Oosterveen can remember when she "felt lonesome in the crowd." A born-again Christian, she wanted to participate in church activities but found herself feeling "left out" because activities were geared for families, senior citizens or youth.

She had a family, but hers was different. She practiced her faith without her husband, a non-Christian.

That was then. Now she doesn't feel so alone. She has Wives of Promise, a ministry for women married to non-Christian men or men belonging to different religious denominations.

Oosterveen is the founder of Wives of Promise. She started in 1980 after a lot of prayer and arguing with God.

"I wanted to be a part of church activities; I wanted to feel like I belonged," she said. "I prayed about it for a long time and felt that God talked to me, telling me to do something. I argued with God for three months before I decided to do something."

Wives of Promise got its start at the Zion Evangelist Temple in Clawson and the group met there for 12 years. Two years ago, "when the Lord spoke to us," Wives of Promise incorporated as a non-profit group.

The change is an indication, according to Oosterveen, that the group isn't a ministry of a particular church.

Word of mouth

By word of mouth and small blurbs on the radio and in newspapers, the ministry has slowly grown in size. Women come from throughout the tri-county area; Livonia, Farmington and St. Clair Shores are among the cities represented. They also come from as far away as Flint to participate.

There isn't an official membership, although 94 women showed up for Wives of Promise's Christmas lunch. Other meetings may have 16-30 women in attendance; more tend to turn out when there's a lunch, Oosterveen said.

"Because of the nature of the ministry, husbands may object," she said. "There's such a need. When I'm in church, I see how many women are there and they're there alone. I understand their need to share their faith."

Those attending have discovered that Wives of Promise is more than a social event. The meetings include a service with songs of praise and worship, as well as a guest speaker and fellowship.

"I feel it's important for women to get to know one another," Oosterveen said. "This isn't a place to come and have a pity party; it's a place to come to bond."

Wives of Promise meets twice a month — at 9:30 a.m. the first Monday of the month and 7 p.m. the third Monday. Meetings generally run three hours, sometimes longer because "the women want to stay and talk." There is a different topic and different speaker at each meeting and offerings are accepted to support the ministry.

"This is strictly supported by people who share one vision," Oosterveen said. "We're dedicated to have the marriage restored and the marriage held together."

Hard adjustment

Oosterveen's husband was an agnostic at the time she founded Wives of Promise. While he has yet to commit himself to God, she knows he now believes there's a God and that one day he will join in her faith. She has also encountered women married to Islamic men, as well as Buddhists or Shintoists. The differences are a hard adjustment, she said.

"So often we look at ourselves and see we're with Christ and understand God, so why can't they be with Christ and understand God," she said. "We try to have the women see the men's point of view.

"Quite often women don't understand where men are coming from; it's because she has changed and given herself to God. He wants to know what's happened to his fun partner."

Members are encouraged not to get angry with their husbands when they don't understand, rather consider where their husbands are at. The Lord, she tells the women, "wants us to live in peace."

"We want them to understand and reach out and take the grace God gives us to have the best marriage we can have," she said. "We have to trust totally in God and his wisdom and his understanding of our situation."

Wives of Promise continues to meet at Zion Evangelistic Temple, 700 Elmwood, between 14 Mile and 15 Mile, west of Rochester Road, but Oosterveen has dreams of establishing chapters throughout the metro area and beyond, making Wives of Promise an international ministry.

"The need is so great for these women to find peace, joy and fellowship," she said.

Positive labels can shape person's sense of self-worth

MORAL PERSPECTIVES

REV. KATE THORESEN

The kids bounced through the doors of the room where the inner city youth club met. They had just gotten their report cards. Proudly, several of the fourth and fifth graders told the teachers all about their good grades.

But one fourth grader silently stormed into the excited setting. His gray woolen hat was pulled over his forehead almost to his eyebrows. His lower lip stuck out as his chin was set in anger. He kept his coat on and sat with a thud at the tables. He was mad.

One of the helpers sat next to him. Fortunately, he was still young enough that he would accept a hug and let the helper sit close to him. Pretty soon the bottom lip started to quiver and tears welled up.

"You wanna tell me what's happening?" the helper gently asked. He nodded. Then the words tumbled out.

"Everybody ALWAYs gets better grades than me! Sometimes they even call me a dummy."

The teacher let the impact of his hurt feelings and bruised ego affect her. She tried to imagine how she would feel in such a situation and remembered the positive effect of encouraging and comforting words that others shared with her in similar circumstances. Then a thought occurred and she said to her young friend, "Hey, in God's sight you are ALWAYS A-plus."

The issue here is not to question our grading system. It is important. We need to have measures of excellence and to recognize achievement in education. Most of us would agree on that. The question here has to do with the budding self-concept of children.

How can we intentionally foster positive feelings of self-worth in a variety of settings? This is a crucial moral issue because of the relationship between violent actions and low regard of the worth of oneself or of others. Would teenagers kill another kid just for a $400 jacket if they carried within themselves positive, affirming images of their own unique importance — and the unique importance of other individuals?

Human life has become cheap in the minds of many discouraged youth and adults.

Consider the worth of every human being. For a while scientists stated that if you extracted all the chemical elements of the human body and sold them, they would bring around 98 cents on the market.

But new discoveries have taken place. Scientist have found that the body contains rare elements like the wonder drug interferon which is worth several thousands of dollars an ounce. They have also estimated that there is enough atomic power in every pound of our body to create 11 million kilowatts of energy! The average person, therefore, really has the chemical and atomic worth of some $58 billion — give or take our current market!

When you look in the mirror in the morning, do you see this incredible $58 billion wonder? Most of us don't. But what would happen if we did start to view ourselves with this kind of intrinsic worth? And what would our attitudes be toward other human beings, if we saw them as unique one-of-a-kind billion dollar designs?

And, if the human body is worth this much, how much more is the treasure housed in the body — that the human soul and spirit that is ALWAYS A-plus in God's sight?

It is imperative for the health of the children in metropolitan Detroit that caring adults guard their dignity and basic sense of self-worth. They can do this through one-on-one interaction, positive reinforcement, avoiding demeaning labels.

Teach children to value themselves and others for their own unique abilities. Share affirmations for excellence achieved, but also encouragement for good solid efforts that may not measure up to others. Foster a sense of self-acceptance. One does not have to be gifted in all areas, nor interested or involved in all activities in order to be a person worthy of respect.

It is a good preventive medicine and a safeguard for the growing well-being of a city. This basic foundation that shapes a person's sense of self-worth may deter acts of violence and aggression and inhumane treatment of others later on in life.

Some labels can harm. But positive labels can heal and encourage us to soar to new heights and to care for the well being of others. After all, we are $58 billion works of art by a Creator who shapes our spirits for a unique destiny here and now!

■ This is a crucial moral issue because of the relationship between violent actions and low regard of the worth of oneself or of others.

Prayer the '90s way means the rosary on cassette tape

The ancient Catholic tradition of praying the rosary has met the age of consumer technology.

A foursome of Michigan Catholics has produced a cassette tape that mixes recitations of the rosary with traditional and contemporary music.

"The Joyful Mysteries in Meditation and Song" is meant to help Catholics keep their place while repeating the prayers, said Bill Gildenstern, one of the producers. It also offers opportunities to meditate during moments of inspirational music.

Gildenstern, a lay minister, came up with the idea while commuting between Detroit and his home in Saginaw, he said in a press release. He took comfort in saying the rosary during the long drive but found that he kept getting lost (in the prayers, not on the road).

"I thought, wouldn't it be neat if I had a tape to keep me on track," he said.

The cassette includes renditions of the traditional pieces "Ave Maria" and "The Nativity" and original compositions by Gildenstern and his partner, John Giaier. Their aim is to appeal to the young Def Leppard fan as much as to the 75-year-old Sinatra fan.

How well they succeeded is a matter of taste, although the quality of the recording and the musicianship is more than respectable.

Gildenstern, formerly an owner of an advertising agency, and Giaier, a Troy resident who writes advertising jingles for auto dealerships, were joined in the project by their respective wives, Kelly and Debra.

To order a cassette, send $11.85 to: The Rosary Tapes/ Joyful Mysteries, P.O. Box 6037, Saginaw, MI 48608-6037.

Raccoons venture out in search of extra food

NATURE TRAILS

TIMOTHY NOWICKI

Winter is hard on animals. This is particularly true if animals have not properly prepared themselves for winter during autumn. If the winter is severe, the animal most likely won't survive.

During the last couple weeks there has been a young raccoon at the bird feeders of the Independence Oaks Nature Center where I work. Raccoons, skunks and opossum do not hibernate like some winter residents, but they do remain dormant during most of the winter. When temperatures rise and the sun shines, it's not unusual to see one of these animals roaming the neighborhood in search of food.

Last fall, the animals ate extra amounts of food to add fat, which is what they use as a source of energy during their winter dormancy. If the animal has a chance during warm winter days to add to that fall fat reserve, they will take the opportunity. As the winter progresses the fat reserve is depleted and any opportunity to supplement that dwindling reserve is welcomed.

In the case of the young raccoon coming to the feeders, I suspect it never really developed an adequate fall fat reserve. This raccoon was probably orphaned last summer when its mother died of distemper. Oakland County has seen a high incidence of this disease during the last two years.

When the mother died, the young were left to fend for themselves. Those young that learned to avoid the fox and stray dog survived, if they knew what to eat and could find enough of it. I suspect that this young raccoon did not find enough food to put on a good fat reserve, but it should feel lucky to be alive.

It's possible the young raccoon did put on an average amount of fat to see it through winter, but because the mother died and other litter mates died, it would not have had any companions to huddle with in a tree hollow. Without any companions to share body heat, the young raccoon lost more heat and thus had to use more fat energy to stay alive.

Depleting the fat supply before spring can cause the animal to search for food during winter when other hungry predators are also searching for food. Hibernating animals that do not have enough fat may not survive either.

Tim Nowicki is a naturalist at Independence Oaks County Park in Oakland County. He lives in Livonia. You can reach him by Touch-Tone phone at 953-2047, Ext. 1874.

You May Not Be Getting Any Younger.

But It's Easy To Feel Like You Are.

With regular exercise, you can strengthen your heart and lungs, feel better—maybe even live longer. You can maintain the active, independent lifestyle that means so much to you. And best of all, it doesn't matter if you've never been very active before—as long as you start now! Check with your doctor first. Then, just choose an activity you enjoy. Stick with it. And start feeling like you haven't felt in ages.

Livonia Artists Club to show member work

Their show is judged, not juried.

"We don't eliminate anyone," said Livonia artist Yvette Goldberg, co-chairing Livonia Artists Club's spring fine art show and sale in April at the Livonia Civic Center Library. "Our club is a little more relaxed than some of the others. What our judge does is award prizes."

The 32nd annual event will run 1-5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, April 3-4, in the Atrium of the library, Farmington Road and Five Mile. The mixed media show averages 125 framed pieces plus some unframed works.

The 47-member club will showcase the best of its membership. Framed artwork will be done in oil, watercolor, pastel, acrylic, collage, monoprint, pencil, and pen and ink. Prices will range from $100 to $600. The club keeps 10 percent of each sale.

Unframed works, some selling for less than $100, will be set up in the Michigan Room just off the Atrium. Free refreshments will be served in that room.

"There's no dominant theme," said Farmington Hills artist Lorraine Whitacre, club president. "You'll find portraits, landscapes, florals, still life and abstracts at the show. We've got a nice variety of artistic styles."

The judge, Oak Park artist Rhea Schaefer, will award Best of Show, first, second and third place and a few honorable mentions. Cash prizes will range from $10 for honorable mention to $50 for Best of Show.

Schaefer also will present the Grumbacher Award for best use of color. The winner earns an engraved award.

Schaefer, a Chicago Academy of Fine Arts graduate, teaches drawing and watercolor. She works in a variety of media, including egg tempera on canvas. She does portrait commissions, graphic design and photography.

Varied skill levels

Livonia Artists Club members range from professional to beginner. They come from around Observerland. Many belong to the Visual Arts Association of Livonia or the Farmington Artists Club. Camaraderie, inspiration, reinforcement and criticism make up their collective palette.

The club meets at 7:30 p.m. the third Monday of each month in the Livonia Civic Center Library. Dues are $15 a year.

Meetings typically include a group critique, a guest demonstrator or an instructional video. The informal sessions are a great way to overcome insecurity or uncertainty. Credentials aren't what's important; desire is.

"We're a real friendly group," Whitacre said. "We learn from each other — discussing ideas, sharing experiences. We talk about new paints, new colors, new techniques and new classes in an atmosphere of mutual support and mutual criticism."

"The contacts you make with other artists you just can't make when working in your studio alone," said Redford Township artist Ruthann Platt, co-chairing the show with Goldberg. "It's just good to get together to mingle and talk over what we do and where to show."

'Real dedication to art'

Livonia artist Al Weber brushes abstract elements into his realistic watercolors of classic cars, live models, flowers, landscapes and animals. His work has appeared in shows or galleries internationally as well as locally. Five Weber watercolors are on exhibit in the IRS Data Center in Detroit.

A Livonia Artists Club group critique leader, Weber says "we stay in this club and keep it going because it's a small group. It's less formal, less concerned about rules, yet the quality of the work is pretty good. Some members exhibit nationally. We have a good interchange of ideas. There's a real dedication to art."

Whitacre also creates abstract art but "right now," she said, "I'm on a kick of modern realistic tropical flowers. My son lives in Hawaii and he sends me flowers, so I paint them."

Goldberg works in collage and watercolor. For her, the club provides an escape. "I get to be with artist friends, which gives another dimension to my life. We're always learning from and encouraging one another. I work full-time and can't take formal art classes."

Platt paints floral gardens in watercolor. "I do drawings based on actual flowers, then pull a garden setting from my imagination."

One painting she'll have in the spring show is a large (18- by 23-inch) closeup of a rose she's doing as part of a three-piece commission. "A large closeup is kind of unusual for me. I usually do a garden scene with many flowers. So this is a departure."

For Platt, art is something she feels she has to do. "It's a mental thing. Just the act of mixing paint, applying it to water and seeing what happens on paper is always a surprise. Watercolor runs and drips on its own. It's never the same twice. It's kind of an adventure."

Quilter sews up crafter's award

The handiwork of Livonia's Kathleen Mayo made the pages of "Blue Ribbon Quilt" magazine and earned an honorable mention in a nationwide quilting contest. For Mayo, the challenge is creating the design.

By Janice Tigar-Kramer
Special Writer

Few people outside Kathleen Mayo's family ever got a look at her handmade quilts — until recently. Her latest one, a Victorian design of children's silhouettes, can be seen in the current issue of "Blue Ribbon Quilt," an annual magazine that announces the winners of Quilter's Challenge.

More comfortable quilting than talking about her work, Mayo of Livonia says, "I'm thrilled the judges liked my design," which earned $200, an honorable mention and a five-page spread in the magazine.

"This entry was different because of the silhouette design," said Sandra Hatch, editor of "Blue Ribbon Quilts" and a contest judge. "Sometimes, we find new designers through the contest and often the people we recognize are encouraged enough to send us more of their work. But the fun of the competition is recognizing people whose work sometimes isn't seen by others."

This year, more than 300 crafters entered Quilter's Challenge, which is sponsored by three quilt magazines. The contest's theme was optional, but quilters were required to submit an original design using at least two fabrics contained in the contest kit and no more than two of their own choice. Points were awarded for design, workmanship and use of fabric.

From start to finish, Mayo spent about 200 hours designing her winning pattern, deciding how to use the contest fabrics with her own choices and making the 30- by 33-inch appliqued block, which required hand and machine stitching.

Her entry, called "Sharing Victoria Elizabeth," shows the full silhouettes of two girls in ruffled dresses sharing a doll. From the kit, Mayo used a green print and mauve stripe for background, a black floral print for ribbon garland and a peach check for bows. Her own fabric choices included a small black print for the girls, solid pink for background and rose backing. She finished the piece with a black self-made binding and flowers embroidered with gold metallic thread.

"I've never used black before, so when I opened the contest kit I thought, 'What'll I do?' " said Mayo.

Stone Age cave paintings 'early cinema'

By Linda Ann Chomin
Special Writer

Artist/filmmaker Charles Aimone captures the romance of France's Lascaux cave art in an exhibition of work patterned after the prehistoric paintings.

The show continues through Feb. 28 at Atrium Gallery, 109 N. Center at Main, Northville.

Through his acrylics on canvas, Aimone strives to prove the Old Stone Age paintings primarily of animals have been incorrectly theorized as possessing magical and religious connotations.

"This was early cinema," he said in an interview at his Plymouth studio. "They invented cinema with the paintings coming alive in candlelight. The paintings were showing the way of life and what it meant to become an adult. This was (where) a group of children were brought in. We know this because we can see the footprints.

"They were meant to be an uplift, very positive and supporting, giving confidence to a new generation. With the glaciers, there was a challenge to gather food when their whole world was freezing over. With everything gray, they brought the colors to the walls and they brought that positive message to the walls."

Aimone rendered near-exact reproductions from photographs, slides and film. To produce the effect that they have been painted on stone walls, he builds up the color and texture in layers.

"You have to have a feel for this particular time in history," he said. "The ground is an abstract made to give the texture of a cave wall. By studying the techniques of the cave

■ AT THE LIBRARY

Livonia resident Jane Soltesz brings her Noah's Ark collection to four showcases on the first floor of the Livonia Civic Center Library, Farmington Road and Five Mile, through Sunday, Feb. 28.

Soltesz started collecting the pewter, ceramic, wood and plastic pieces 20 years ago. Many were children's toys.

"Back in Victorian times, children were not able to play with toys on Sunday except for Noah's Ark," she said. "It's kind of fascinating. They're still searching for the ark. It's buried in ice and snow. 5,000 years is a long time."

In the library's first-floor window display area, Observerland artists Susan Argiroff, Sharon Lee Dillenbeck, Julie Giordano, Carol Lynn McCreedy and Norma McQueen are showing watercolors, acrylics, oils, charcoals and marbling through Sunday as part of their "Women of Artistry" exhibit.

Library hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday-Thursday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday-Saturday and 1-4 p.m. Sunday.

■ HOSPITAL BENEFIT

Hawthorn Center, a children's psychiatric hospital in Northville, will benefit from a juried craft show 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 27, in the Northville Community Center, 303 W. Main, one block west of Center (Sheldon) Road.

Hawthorn Center Association, a nonprofit group of past and present employees, will host the third annual show to aid emotionally impaired children and their families. Dealers will come from Michigan, Ohio and Canada.

Admission is $1.50 (seniors $1, children younger than 12 free). Proceeds will go into the association's general fund to support educational scholarships for needy children and educational programs in the area of child welfare and to help cover general hospital expenses.

paintings, I found there's a commonality. They had to look at the wall and get a feel for it, to fit over that texture.

"This is man looking at his landscape, learning about the animal," he added. "It meant whether he would eat and live. It's a composite like Mark Rothko paintings. He built up sheets of paints."

Chinese brushwork outlines Aimone's "Horse," painted after the Lascaux "Chinese Horse." Reddish brown washes fill in the body, providing strong contrast to the calligraphy-like lines.

Aimone studied art with Clifton McChesny at Michigan State University. He pursued graduate studies at the University of Michigan with Guy Palazzola and postgraduate studies at the University of Saskatchewan with Otto Rogers.

Currently an instructor in the film department at Center for Creative Studies in Detroit, Aimone created the paintings for use in his film "Changing of the Gods," a work in progress.

"The film's about the Shaman, who's painted these to give a story a visual," Aimone said. "The paintings were trying to show the meaning of life. They were a way to demystify, not mystify it."

■ 'The paintings were trying to show the meaning of life. They were a way to demystify, not mystify it.'

Charles Aimone
artist/filmmaker

Discovered in 1940, the cave of Lascaux houses thousands of abstract paintings and engravings of bulls, cows, horses, ibexes, deer and even a wooly mammoth. Carbon-14 analysis of charcoal found in lamps, and bone in the strata of the paintings, places the art around 13,000 B.C.

"The bull represented both the man and woman, trying to show the inner relationship between men and women and show that it extends out into the animal kingdom," Aimone said.

"The bull can be traced back to very early pottery. The bull symbolized the turbulent nature between men and women."

Pigments found at Lascaux include ochre, haematite, black and gray magnetite, raw sienna and raw umber. As the wall paintings cover areas 10-13 feet above floor level, it is thought the artists employed a type of scaffolding to execute the work.

In April 1963, France's Ministry of Culture closed the cave after the discovery of a green and white disease proliferating on the artwork.

Studies revealed the infestation of green algae was due to visitors carrying it into the area on their feet. The white disease on the decorative art was a development of calcite crystals formed from the carbon dioxide and increased humidity and temperatures created by visitors.

Exhibition hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday-Saturday and noon to 4 p.m. Sunday.

business. She started quilting 10 years ago after a neighbor showed her some simple quilting done by Livonia kindergartners. "It sounds silly but I thought I'd like to try that," said Mayo, already an accomplished sewer.

■ 'I love watching the finished design come together.'

Kathleen Mayo

In 1989, Mayo's daughter-in-law urged her, at age 60, to enter her quilts in magazine-sponsored competitions. Since then, she has picked up a first or second place or honorable mention in almost every one.

Besides this year's Quilter's Challenge award, Mayo won Fairfield Processing Co.'s 1992 contest for her traditional quilt block, "Star Gazing Silhouette." The block (about 12 inches square) was sewn together with 19 other winning squares to make a full-size quilt now on loan to quilt shows and fabric stores around the country.

From the start, this self-taught quilter (whose first project was a king-sized bedspread) has used her own designs. She prefers appliques over hand or machine stitching. "I love watching the finished design come together."

Mayo begins every quilt (block size or spreads) with a sketch. Creating the design may take longer if a contest requires the use of specific colors. After fabric pieces are cut, she lays out the design like a puzzle and begins to applique, tie and sew. She uses a sheet for the quilt's backing and finishes each one with a hand-stitched border. Without a quilting frame, Mayo has to spread out big projects on the floor to remove puckers and do finishing work.

Quilting is relaxing for Mayo so she'll often spend weekends working on a single project. Since her workroom is stocked with scraps from other crafts, she rarely needs supplies.

But when she needs inspiration or a technique to solve a quilting problem, Mayo remembers the valuable advice of her father, now 95: "What you need to get along in this world is a good imagination."

A winner: "Sharing Victoria Elizabeth," a Victorian silhouette quilt block, earned an honorable mention in Quilter's Challenge.

The Cranbrook Academy of Art and Museum Women's Committee will host a Conservation and Appraisal Day 10 a.m. to noon and 1-4 p.m. Saturday, March 13, at the museum, 1221 N. Woodward, Bloomfield Hills.

Conservators from the Intermuseum Conservation Association in Oberlin, Ohio, and auctioneers and appraisers Frank Boos and Jonathan Boos of the Frank Boos Gallery in Bloomfield Hills will offer verbal condition reports and verbal appraisals of value for art and antiques in collections. Conservators and appraisers are donating their services; all proceeds will benefit the museum.

Reservations must be made, using a form, no later than March 1. For more information, call museum secretary Kristine Kohls at 645-3323.

Examinations for condition reports will last about 15 minutes for each object, and cost $25 each for the general public and $20 each for museum members. Conservators won't be able to remove frames or unframe works of art or artifacts on paper.

Monetary appraisals will last about five minutes and cost $12 for each object for the general public and $10 for each object for museum members. Participants may ask that the appraisals reflect either the object's replacement cost/insurance value or resale/auction value.

FOCUS ON PHOTOGRAPHY

MONTE NAGLER

How has your picture taking been lately? Are you improving or do you need a little encouragement because your pictures just aren't what you want? Perhaps you're just getting started and need some instruction.

Well, a camera club could be just what you need: a place to learn, exchange ideas and socialize with other club members. Club dues are minimal and the benefits are maximum.

Some clubs are small, some large, and they meet often enough that you're bound to find one that fits your schedule. Clubs are found all over the metropolitan area, from Grosse Pointe to Milford, from Utica to Wyandotte.

Getting in is easy and you are welcome to visit many clubs until you decide on the one that's best for you. The local newspapers run weekly announcements on camera club happenings, and you can call Skip Moody, Greater Detroit Camera Club Council president, at 548-9087 for information.

The primary function of a camera club is to promote a common love and interest of photography. And nowhere will you find more camaraderie and a willingness to help others and share knowledge than in a camera club.

■ The primary function of a camera club is to promote a common love and interest of photography. And nowhere will you find more camaraderie and a willingness to help others and share knowledge than in a camera club.

Some of the things that happen regularly in camera clubs are photo competitions, slide programs, modeling sessions, guest speakers, even field trips.

Whether your interests are in black and white, color slides or color prints, you'll find numerous creative outlets at camera clubs.

■ LIVONIA CITY HALL
Continuing — A one-man show by Royal Oak artist Greg Aylesworth hosted by the Livonia Arts Commission continues through Feb. 26 in the lobby of Livonia City Hall. An instructor in the graphic design department at Center for Creative Studies in Detroit since 1988, Aylesworth works in pastel, watercolor and oil. Hours: 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday-Friday. Farmington Road and Five Mile.

■ ATRIUM GALLERY
Continuing — Royal Oak artists Tammy and Robert Crenshaw with their witty and pop-sophisticated furniture. Also: Northville artist Michael Oden exhibits clay jewelry, pottery and planters with unusual glazes. 109 N. Center, Northville. Hours: 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday-Saturday, noon to 4 p.m. Sunday.

■ PEWABIC POTTERY
To Feb. 27 — A group exhibition of work by James Tanner of Minnesota and Jerome Ferretti and John Murphy of Detroit, and a solo exhibition by Peggy Steinway of Connecticut. Hours: 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday, 10125 E. Jefferson, Detroit, 822-0954.

■ CAROL HOOBERMAN GALLERY
To Feb. 27 — "English Crafts." Featured are handcrafted ceramics, blown glass and turned wooden bowls by British craftspeople Mary Rose Young, Jane Willingdale, Karen Atherly, Robyn Wilkinson, Mike Levy, Victoria Glass and Anthony Bryant. Hours: 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday-Wednesday, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Thursday-Saturday, 124 S. Woodward, Suite 12, Birmingham, 647-3666.

■ O.K. HARRIS/DAVID KLEIN GALLERY
To Feb. 27 — New laser-cut steel sculpture by famous pop artist Tom Wesselmann, including nudes, still lifes and landscapes. Hours: 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday, 430 N. Woodward, Birmingham, 433-3700.

■ BIRMINGHAM BLOOMFIELD ART ASSOCIATION
To Feb. 27 — "Masterpieces in Miniature II." The show of miniatures as an art form is co-sponsored by the BBAA and Miniature Makers' Workshop, 4515 N. Woodward, Royal Oak. The exhibit features miniature room settings, homes, silver, porcelain, paintings, fabrics, glass and other decorative accessories on loan from invited international artisans and private collectors; six handcrafted clock cases from a traveling show on loan from the International Guild of Miniature Artisans; and an educational display illustrating tools and processes used in creating fine miniatures. Hours: 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday-Saturday, 1516 S. Cranbrook Road, Birmingham, 644-0866.

■ HABATAT GALLERIES
To Feb. 27 — "Games," an installation by Emily Brock, and the architectonic glass sculpture of Cissy McCaa. The gallery is in the Triatria Building at 32255 Northwestern Highway in Farmington Hills. Call 851-9090.

■ HABATAT/SHAW GALLERY
To Feb. 27 — Two one-person exhibits highlighting the work of Tom Phardiel and Brian Fiorentino. Phardel chairs ceramics in the College of Art and Design at the Center for Creative Studies. He combines materials such as bronze, copper, steel, glass and stone with clay to form his sculpture. Fiorentino received a master of fine arts degree from the Cranbrook Academy of Art. His meticulously crafted sculpture combines seemingly random-placed disparate shapes, both hard- and soft-edged, into highly ordered and complex compositions. Hours: 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday, 32255 Northwestern Highway, Farmington Hills, 851-8767.

■ ATRIUM GALLERY
To Feb. 28 — Jeanne Ozment of Farmington exhibits 18 new realistic and abstract watercolor, acrylic, collage, and mixed media artworks. Northville artist Charles Aimone's 36-by 48-inch acrylics on canvas offer an exciting representation of the prehistoric drawings from the Lascaux caves. Hours: 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday-Saturday and noon to 4 p.m. Sunday. 109 N. Center at Main, Northville.

■ MESA ARTS
To Feb. 28 — "Pottery of Culture," an exhibit of ancient and contemporary American Indian and Southwestern pottery, of the Pueblo Indians of New Mexico and Arizona. The Acoma, Hopi and Santa Clara tribes have developed highly refined motifs and techniques. Some are finely textured, others are burnished to a glassy shine. Historic and contemporary designs are incorporated, honed and elaborated upon by contemporary artists. Each piece evokes the spirit of the Southwest. Hours: 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday-Friday, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, 32800 Franklin Road, Franklin, 851-9949.

■ ARTSPACE
To Feb. 28 — Paintings and drawings by Charles Culver are exhibited. 534 N. Woodward, Birmingham, 258-1540.

■ THE ARTISTS' GALLERY
To Feb. 28 — The work of Andrea Tama of Farmington Hills, designer of the new gallery, will be featured. The gallery is a co-op featuring the work of artists from local communities, including Birmingham, West Bloomfield, Franklin, Southfield, Bloomfield Hills, Farmington, Farmington Hills, Royal Oak and Livonia. Orchard Place Mall at 30905 Orchard Lake Road in Farmington Hills. Hours: 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday-Wednesday and Friday-Saturday, 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Thursday, noon to 4 p.m. Sunday. 855-8832.

■ ELIZABETH STONE GALLERY

Computer programs organize, compare properties

By Gerald Frawley
Staff Writer

"It's definitely a plus," according to Diane Howard, assistant manager at Real Estate One in Plymouth. "I've gone on listings where I've had competition and won because of it.

"A lot of the advantage in it is how the information is put together," she said. "It is very professional looking, and the more professional you look, the better off you're going to be."

"It" is Real Estate One's new computer software designed to assist sellers, buyers and real estate agents.

Called MarketPower, the new service consists of three computer programs aimed at making the job of selling and buying a home easier, said senior vice president Stuart Elsea.

"This system is designed to help organize and compare properties."

The first component, Elsea said, is Sellmore."What we wanted to do is simplify (the process) and make it easier to understand," Elsea said.

One of the first responsibilities of the real estate agent is to establish an asking price for a home, he said, which begins with an analysis of similar properties and what they sold for.

"If you've ever looked at a multiple listing form (a main tool of real estate agent), you'll know what I'm talking about," he said.

Sellmore produces a comparative property'analysis in minutes, he said. "Instead of two hours, it's only 15 minutes for these."

In addition to simple price relations, the comparable market analysis includes graphs, selling and listing prices of similar sold properties, maps, examples of unsold properties, and a graph on the expected days a house is likely to be on the market.

Other features include an analysis on price per square foot, a sales estimate of proceeds and costs, information on the importance of intelligent pricing and tips the real estate agent and seller can use to improve a house's chance for sale.

Selling a home is only half the job; someone has to buy it, Elsea said.

Anyone who's ever bought a home knows it can be overwhelming, he said.

ShowPro, the second component of MarketPower, helps the buyer to organize, he said.

ShowPro begins with a property request profile filled out by the buyer listing basic wants, key amenities, financial profile and any financing comments, he said.

The profile is used to develop a property list with an agent rating, a tour map, individual property analysis, and property analysis worksheets, Elsea said.

Many features included in Sellmore are in ShowPro.

Finally, there is Easy Flyer, Elsea said. Easy Flyer is a computer program that generates sales fliers used by real estate agents so lookers have something they can take after a home tour.

"Some agents pay printers hundreds of dollars for fliers," he said. "This program lets them do it themselves."

Fliers, which include information like amenities, price, the real estate agent's name and other pertinent information, can be generated with formats provided by the program, or they can be done freehand.

Carol Yost, of Real Estate One in Troy, said MarketPower is a tremendous time saver. "I've been in this business for 20 years and I've never been more excited about a new program."

"With this, the consumer knows from day one the real facts he's dealing with," Yost said.

The computer program also gives much more detail than a typical agent is likely to, she said. "I typically include a cost per square foot analysis," she said, "but a lot of other Realtors don't. This does it automatically."

Condominum maintenance translates to quicker sales

CONDO QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

I have read recently about difficulty in sellling condominiums in many locations. I believe that a good part of this is because many board members are not willing to spend the necessary funds to maintain the condominium project or to otherwise operate the condominium association. How do I get my board to see the light?

There are many in the condominium industry that share your view. The penuriousness on the part of association boards has created a situation where condominiums are not as saleable as single family homes. Much of this stems form the notion that directors are to save money at all costs as opposed to hiring the quality of personnel necessary to assist the board of directors in operating the affairs of the condominium.

Penny pinching in regard to the retention of first class professional management, competent and experienced lawyers, accountants and insurance consultants, it is argued, contributes to this malaise. Show this article to the board of directors and point out to them they are not doing their members or themselves a service by penny pinching.

Our condominium documents were drafted in the mid-'50s. They gave little latitude in regard to terminating the membership of a co-op member when he is in default. The cooperative has been reluctant to spend the money to make the changes. Any suggestions?

I can tell you from experience that it becomes inordinately more expensive for a cooperative to terminate the membership of a tenant member when he or she has violated the cooperative documents if the bylaws and proprietary lease are not explicit on the rights of the cooperatsave association vis a vis the tenant. It would be much less expensive for the cooperative to have the remedies available in the documents than it would be to have to resort to extended litigation to resolve a problem. Urge your cooperative board members to retain counsel to come up with an up-to-date set of cooperative documents.

PARTY THERE | LIVE HERE

Let's face it; some places just seem to attract a certain type of tenant. You know the ones - loud, energetic, popular party animals. Which is fine...unless you have to live next door. At Pilgrim Village, you can enjoy the peace and quiet of our beautiful, spacious apartments with carport and washer and dryer included free, or take a pleasant stroll around our award-winning landscaped grounds. But if your idea of a party is more than cake and candles, please have it over at that other place. Because our residents actually like to sleep at two in the morning.
One bedroom from $585.

BUILDING SCENE'S
NAMES & PLACES

Bonadeo honored

Bonadeo

Professional Builder & Remodeler magazine has named James Bonadeo winner of one of seven professional achievement awards for his involvement in setting Detroit as a Homearama site. It was the first showcase of homes to take place in a major city.

With the opening of Victoria Park on the near east side in June, Detroit saw its first new subdivision developed in some 30 years. The project quickly sold out. When completed, it will have 157 houses ranging in price from $80,000 to $145,000.

Bondaeo is president emeritus of the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan, Homearama's main sponsor, and president of the Plymouth building company that bears his name. He was chairman of the Detroit Homearama.

The magazine cited Standard Federal Bank, based in Troy, as another organization key to Victoria Park's success for making construction loans and assuming the end mortgages.

Theater development

Mike Ilitch Jr. will discuss the theater district development plan when he addresses ESD's Construction Activities Committee luncheon beginning at 11:30 a.m. Tuesday, March 9, at the Rackham Memorial Building, Detroit.

Ilitch oversees the human resource center and works on special projects for Little Caesars.

Tickets are $22 for members, $25 for non-members. For information, call 832-5400.

ESD's construction committee was established to foster improvements in the construction industry. Members include design professionals, owners/users, contractors, suppliers and support service providers.

Landscape show

The sixth annual convention of the Metropolitan Detroit Landscape Association will take place March 17 and 18 at the Novi Expo Center, Novi Road at I-96.

It will feature management programs, technical seminars, classroom instruction and pesticide applicator recertification preparation and testing. All education programs except testing are included in the admission price.

Hours are 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. March 17 and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. March 18. Pre-registration is $10 for members, $15 for non-members. For on-site registration, add $5. For information, call 646-4992.

Expansion by DeMattia

A July completion date is scheduled for the 92,000-square-foot expansion of Shuert Industries by R.A. DeMattia, Plymouth.

Shuert is a thermal-former manufacturer of plastics in Sterling Heights. DeMattia is an architecture/engineering, design/build construction and development company.

Argos groundbreaking

The Argos Group/Barton Malow saw ground broken for the 44,000-square-foot addition to a Federal Mogul manufacturing facility in South Carolina.

The Argos Group is a design/build subsidiary of Barton Malow, Southfield.

Masonry seminar

The Masonry Institute of Michigan will sponsor its ninth masonry certification seminar at daylong sessions April 23 and 24 at its offices, 32080 Schoolcraft, Livonia.

The seminar exposes candidates to five areas of instruction: clay and concrete masonry units, mortar, grout, engineering and workmanship. Participants are required to score 70 percent on a test at the end of the seminar to become MIM certified.

The course is aimed toward design professionals, engineers and architects, mason contractors, bricklayers, building officials, inspectors and supplier representatives.

Building code published

A joint effort of the American Concrete Institute, the American Society of Civil Engineers and the Masonry Society has resulted in the publication of building code requirements for masonry structures.

Subjects covered include permits and drawings, quality assurance, materials, placing embedded items, analysis and design, strength and serviceability, flexural and axial loads, shear, details and development of reinforcement, walls, columns, pilasters, beams and lintels, and an empirical design method applicable to buildings meeting specific location and construction criteria.

Copies can be purchased from the American Concrete Institute by calling 532-2600.

Happy housewarming

The Michigan Association of Home Builders has relocated its headquarters to 1627 S. Creyts, Lansing. The toll-free number is 1-800-748-0432.

Information for inclusion in this column should be sent to Marilyn Fitchett, 36251 Schoolcrafat, Livonia 48150.

Housing for older suburbs

■ Builders face new challenges when they look back to older, developed communities for building sites.

BY GERALD FRAWLEY
STAFF WRITER

If society is going to stop paving cornfields for housing development, developers are going to have to turn to established communities and consider redevelopment.

Bernard Glieberman, president of Crosswinds Communities in West Bloomfield, is doing just that with Main Street Square in Royal Oak.

This isn't Glieberman's first encounter with redevelopment; he was part of Victoria Park, last year's Homearama in Detroit. He's also done remodeling projects. Long known for his ability to develop and build top-notch, affordable housing in communities like West Bloomfield, Westland, Ypsilanti and Oakland Township, Glieberman is tackling a new frontier — redevelopment.

This is the most significant redevelopment project he's been involved with.

So far, reaction has been extremely positive, he said. "I can honestly say we have had more interest in this development than anything I can remember.

"The challenge in a redevelopment project is you go into an area that is on its way down and you help turn it around — that's satisfying."

Main Street Square includes 124 units in 12 buildings designed in traditional-style Georgetown architecture.

Located between Main and Washington to the west and east, and Kenilworth and Allenworth to the north and south, the 3.7-acre project is expected to have a base price of between $80,000 and $100,000 per condominium.

Redevelopment is not without its obstacles. For example, land costs are extremely high. You have to be creative (to make it pay off).

Most communities object to high density projects, which make redevelopment more difficult. "(But) I think when you're talking Royal Oak, it fits in well."

Another hurdle in redevelopment, he said, is working within the constraints of an existing community. Site size, he said, is limited and therefore on-site storage is virtually non-existent.

"That makes scheduling difficult — we'll have to have materials delivered almost on a need basis."

Building within an existing neighborhood will also pose a challenge for the developer who is used to building in an open area. "We're going to have to be good neighbors, no doubt about that.

"(Delivery) trucks will have to be careful not to disturb the people who are already there."

Architect Tom Barton, president of Barton and Associates in Philadelphia, said his goal was to design a development that would fit into an already established community.

"We wanted it to be on a pedestrian scale," he said, explaining that much of Royal Oak was laid out with people in mind. Housing is dense; it is inviting rather than imposing from the street, and sidewalks encourage walking.

"Basically, cute homes in a nice neighborhood," he said. "We wanted to develop a project with a little more of an urban character."

Townhomes like one might find in Philadelphia or Boston were chosen because they maintain an urban feel and density-levels.

Density, Barton said, is not always bad. "High density does not necessarily mean a three-story walk-up apartment."

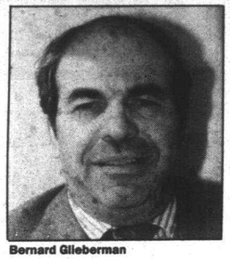
Garages were moved to the back and townhomes were pushed toward the street to eliminate the impression of "a parking deck that you often get in high density projects."

As people walk by and around the finished development, it should seem as though they are walking through part of the project, not isolated from it. "It should be nice from street level."

At the same time, with proper placement of buildings, use of landscape, and project elevations, Main Street Square achieves a strong sense of public and private space.

An interior courtyard for townhome owners is separated from the outside, and green spaces at the fronts of the townhomes are slightly elevated above the sidewalk level. "There will be an obvious separation — if someone is where they aren't supposed to be you won't have any problem identifying it."

Project manager Terry Stamper said Main Street Square is to be the first part of the much-heralded Royal



Bernard Gileberman

Oak multi-use redevelopment northeast of the I-696 and Woodward Avenue interchange.

The overall project resulted from construction of I-696. During the 1980s, Royal Oak seized the chance and began to purchase and, through condemnation, assemble small parcels into a single large tract.

"That was the hard part," he said. If redevelopment is to succeed, land assembly will have to be done by municipalities who then sell the property to developers.

After years of struggling to amass the necessary land and counter community objections, the economy soured and the project has been on hold.

Now that the economy is picking up again, the project is beginning to pick up as well.

Burton Katzman Development Co. of Birmingham is the lead developer for the entire redevelopment project that will eventually incorporate hotel, office, commercial and residential space.

Burton Katzman executive vice president Laurence Goss said the area has always been planned for residential use — it just needed the right developer.

"This is obviously an integral ingredient in the overall development," he said. "We hope this (Main Street Square) will be a catalyst for the rest of the project."

"We're very excited about this — we think it's a home run," Goss added.

Main Street Square is going to act as a buffer for the project; separating the existing neighborhoods from the office, hotel components to the south. "That's good, sound planning."

The project would not have been possible without the patience and foresight of Royal Oak, Goss added. By assembling the property, the city was making an investment in its future.

If further redevelopment is to succeed, other communities will have to take Royal Oak's lead, he said.

Stamper of Crosswinds Communities said judging by the number of phone calls received from interested buyers, it's possible the entire project could be sold out within a year.

Stamper said a sales office will be open in March, construction should begin in April and the first townhouses could be ready as soon late July.

"This is the perfect project for this area," he said. Royal Oak is centrally located for young professionals who work north in Birmingham, west in Novi, or east in St. Clair Shores.

■ A typical homeowner's policy doesn't cover theft from an unoccupied building, so check with your agent if you plan to be away during construction. A few days' stay in a hotel shouldn't affect your coverage, but an extended stay might. Be prepared for the worst case.

Insurance key ingredient before remodeling begins

So you've hired a contractor, picked out paint and carpet, and set the date for your remodeling work to begin. Remodeling Ideas magazine suggests adding one more item to your "to do" list: Give your insurance agent a call to make sure your homeowner's policy will keep up with your remodeling improvements.

"Contact your agent when you begin to do anything to your home that's going to add value," advises Bill Anderson, a certified property and casualty underwriter and vice president of education for the Independent Insurance Agents of America. By checking your needs before the work begins, you can be sure your project will be insured during construction, as well as after.

Here are some questions to ask your insurance professional, along with a discussion of coverage under a typical homeowner's policy. Check the specifics of your own policy with your agent or insurance company:

■ Do I need to increase my coverage?

If you're making major improvements, the answer to that question is probably "yes." Typical homeowner's insurance is based on the cost of replacing your home if it's destroyed. When you add space, upgrade to luxury finishes, or convert an unfinished area to living space, you make your home more costly to rebuild. As a result, you need to increase the value of your policy.

On the other hand, you may not require increased coverage for changes that are basically cosmetic — freshening up the kitchen with new countertops, flooring, and appliances, for example. To the insurance company, the cost of replacing laminate countertops is the same whether they are brand new or a holdover from the 1950s.

"If there's any question, contact your agent," says Anderson. "It's important that the agent have the opportunity to say either, 'we don't have to worry about that,' or, 'we do.'" You want to be certain that your home remains insured for at least 80 percent of its replacement value, including the value of the improvements. Below that threshold, most policies will not reimburse you for the full replacement cost of your home should it be damaged or destroyed.

■ I'm planning a major renovation that will take months to complete. Do I have to pay for increased coverage from the first day of construction?

Ask your agent if you can buy what's called an "endorsement for a dwelling under construction." This type of policy increases the value of your homeowner's policy from the start of construction, but gives you a credit for a portion of the premium once the work is complete.

■ I'm going to have a lot of building materials stacked out in my yard. Are they covered?

With a typical policy, materials intended for use in your remodeling and stored on your property are covered for the same perils as the rest of your home. Again, check with your agent to be sure.

■ Am I covered for the special extras I'm putting in my home?

Maybe you've commissioned a stained-glass window for the master bath or purchased an antique English brass chandelier for the breakfast room. To protect your investment, purchase separate insurance for such out-of-the-ordinary materials.

The advantage of insuring such items individually is that you, not the insurance company, specify their value. "If they are lost or damaged, the policy says exactly what they are worth, and that's what you are paid," says Anderson. "If you leave them under the homeowner's policy, you are at the mercy of the people adjusting the insurance claim."

The value of antiques and fine arts is especially subject to dispute.

■ I'm moving out during construction. Does my coverage stay put?

A typical homeowner's policy doesn't cover theft from an unoccupied building, so check with your agent if you plan to be away during construction. A few days' stay in a hotel shouldn't affect your coverage, but an extended stay might. Be prepared for the worst case.

In addition to protecting your improvements, you also need to insure yourself against another type of risk — the damage to people or property as a result of your remodeling.

Formal, informal a lucky blend

Carriage lights on the front facade of the three-car garage give a country estate flavor to the Shamrock, while the wrap-around porch gives it a comfortable, welcoming look. The varied textures of stucco, brick, lap siding and cedar shakes add to the street appeal.

The interior of this 1½-story house offers the same mix of formality and relaxed informality.

An office and a parlor are to the right and left of the vaulted foyer. An office door could be installed to provide direct access from the porch. The bay-windowed parlor is large and richly glassed, but light is muted by the covered porch.

A spacious, skylit family room is at the heart of the home. A second-floor balcony overlooks this vaulted space and the foyer. Stairs can be accessed from both the foyer and the family room.

Utilities, a freezer and pull-down ironing board hide behind pocket doors, adjacent to the nook. The pass-through kitchen has plenty of counter space, a trash compactor, a microwave, double ovens and a cooktop. A skylit dining room is at one end, the nook at the other. The entire space is open to a large family room with a two-sided fireplace and French doors that open onto a deck with an optional hot tub.

The deck and hot tub can also be reached through a set of French doors in the owners' suite. The suite features a private garden tub, nestled into a bay window stacked high with glass block. Other features include an oversized shower, twin vanities, an enclosed toilet, and a large, walk-in closet.

For a study plan of the Shamrock (332-240), send $7.50, including plan name and number, to Landmark Designs, P.O. Box 2307, Eugene, OR 97402.

At The Villas...

BE A PART OF THE EXTRAORDINARY

Inside, the floor plans are free flowing with open rooms, vaulted ceilings, extensive use of glass, entertainment areas, lofts and more. Quality and attention to detail is evident at every turn.

Outside, the style is European design with a Mediterranean blend of brick and cedar. A central waterscape with lighted fountains and walking course complements the impeccable landscaping. For those who prefer the privacy and elegance of a single family home with the maintenance-free advantage of condominium living, The Villas are an ideal choice.

Located near the I-275/Eight Mile Corridor, the best of Northville, Novi, Farmington Hills and Livonia are moments away from fine shops to restaurants and entertainment. Break away from the ordinary and visit today.
