Teachers seek talks on finances

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Teachers union officials say an early retirement package could pay for the 3-percent raise scheduled to take effect this fall. School officials say they are willing to talk.

Plymouth-Canton teachers are tired of hearing residents and school officials say they should give back their 3-percent raise in the wake of the millage defeat and the cancellation of extracurricular activities for the coming school year. Some teachers say they are willing to give back their raise — if they receive something in return.

The teachers union has proposed an early retirement or severance package that it says would pay for the raise.

Such an offer has been made by the teachers' union three different times, but the district hasn't been receptive, said Dick Portelli, president of the Plymouth-Canton Education Association.

Both the district and the teachers' union consider the 3-percent raise a fair one, in line with the inflation rate, said Maryann Ligato-Freydi, executive director of the Michigan Education Association.

"What the teachers offered instead was an early retirement incentive that by the board's own figures last year would save the district more than the increase in cost. They chose not to do that," she said. "We would still agree to do that if they offered."

"We offered a way to help pay for the raise, and for whatever reason, they chose not to accept that," Portelli said.

Teachers were told that last year's early retirement incentive "was a one-time offer," said Portelli. The union hasn't received a response to its most recent early severance proposal, he added.

"Give teachers a guarantee that staff would be called back," suggested a high school teacher, adding that administrators haven't offered to return any portion of their 5-percent raise or

Kmart is just ducky

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

At first glance, John McAuliffe thought the duck was amazingly realistic.

"At first I thought she was a lawn ornament," said the Canton resident. "I thought, 'The ornaments are so realistic. It looks exactly like a duck.'"

Then the duck suddenly opened its beak. Thinking it would be a great joke, he ran for his wife, Roda, to show her the ornament at the Kmart garden shop on Sheldon and Ford roads.

She was astounded by the realism. "Boy, it doesn't look like plastic, does it?" Roda told her husband. She too, found out otherwise.

The duck now has a name, Henrietta. And by the way, Henrietta — who is believed to be a mallard — honestly is real, and she's taken up residence at Kmart.

About 2-2½ weeks ago, like clockwork, Henrietta began flying into the garden center in the morning and leaving at night. It made sense because she's not too far away her comrades who frequent and cross Sheldon Road, north of Ford Road.

Then last week, Henrietta stayed — to hatch her ducklings.

There's no doubt she's got good taste in accommodations. All the materials she needed to make a nest were within reach. Some bark chips and plants and voila!

"She's completely ripped apart our bedding plants. I think she likes petunias," said Roger Whitehill, Kmart merchandising manager. "She's made it home. It's really cute. She's become our pet."

Everyone seems certain Henrietta is sitting on at least 10 eggs. To prepare for their new family, Kmart staff have set up a wading pool so Henrietta can teach her ducklings how to be ducks.

A spokesman for the Howell Nature Center said it takes about 30 days for ducklings to hatch. And because Henrietta is a migratory bird, she and her ducklings are a protected species.

"Ideally, it is best to leave the nest and the duck where it is," the spokesman said.

Township digs up ways to ease farm taxes

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Canton officials say they want to help those who want to farm their land.

"We'll start with the planning department," said Supervisor Tom Yack. "We'll look at options for people who wish to farm by changing the master (land use) plan classification so the assessor can look at them in a different light."

Assessors Glenn Shaw and John McLenaghan of the Wayne County Appraisal Co. met with about 15 farmers a week ago to explain why property tax assessments increased in the three-digit range in western Canton this year. "I suggest the market value we have on these properties is extremely conservative," Shaw said. He referred to one farmer who sold property for $8,700 an acre.

Partnership director Betty Bloch welcomes involvement from other community businesses. If a business is interested in helping young people understand the world of work and how to best use their high school education, call Bloch at 451-6276.

The assessors and Canton trustees spoke of changes about three years ago in the township's master land use plan. That's when agricultural as a single designation was removed from the map in place of residential.

According to Shaw, that's when sales picked up in western Canton. Before the master plan changes, about six sales of what was once referred to as farmland were recorded. Since the master plan changes, more than 30 sales have been recorded.

"We assume it's a reaction to the master plan, WTUA (Western Townships Utilities Authority) and water lines being put in," Shaw said.

In other words, the land has become attractive to developers and speculators. "We didn't just raise that property without some information," Shaw said, adding sales and information from appraisers and county records are used.

Yack, however, believes the change in the master plan and an increase in sales are coincidental. "Look at where development has been occurring. It's pushing left (west)."

Shaw acknowledged that those who truly wish to farm could not sell the acreage to another farmer for such high prices. But the land can be and has been sold to speculators for high prices.

"They want a low tax, but when they are ready to sell, they want to sell high," Shaw said. "I think they should be paying what the market has established."

Of all the so-called farmland in Canton, Shaw maintains only 500 acres is being farmed. He also maintains that of all that land, 80 percent to 90 percent is not owned by the farmers.

"Why do we have to pay these high taxes because someone thinks they can look into a crystal ball?" asked Roger Bordine, referring to assessments based on the value of land to a developer or speculator.

Shaw responded: "We don't look into the future. We're looking at history."

Ned Monroe, an attorney who works with the assessors, told farmers that the master plan doesn't show the land continuing as farmland. If it did, sales — on which assessments are based — would be different. "It would hold down the market or even reverse the market."

To give a break to those who own farmland would be giving a break to speculators who want the land, Shaw said. He suggested an ordinance that would commit farmers to farming land for 10 years or so. "Now I can say that's farmland." Then assessors can compare that to farmland in other communities to arrive at an assessment, Shaw said.

The assessor also suggested that farmers enter into a contract under state public act 116, under which they are committed to farming and receive a tax credit.

Many of the farmers who appealed to the Canton Board of Review received assessment reductions. Those who remained unhappy with their assessments had until June 30 to appeal to the Michigan Tax Tribunal. Shaw said he is aware of only about seven farmers who appealed to the state.

The assessor said he too is in a bad position. Shaw gave an example that if the county or state says he must have $100 of assessed value in the township and he only has $90, where will the remaining $10 come from?

"If I continue to ignore what's happening on the west side of the township, the people in the subdivisions will make up the $10," Shaw said. "Everyone should be increased according to what's going on in their marketplace."

Trash and recycling pickup will be the topic of the Canton Board of Trustees meeting at a study session at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the board meeting room, 1150 S. Canton Center Road.

The board will review proposals from companies that bid on the township's largest contract. Companies include Laidlaw, Waste Management, Canton Waste Recycling, American Waste, City Environmental and Browning-Ferris Industries. The township currently uses Canton Waste Recycling.

Trustees do not expect to take any action at the meeting.

What's left: This is the patrol car driven by Canton police officer Leonard Wolons, 30, after an accident at Ford and Haggerty roads early June 27. He was driving eastbound on Ford, just west of Haggerty, when a 25-year-old Canton resident in a Ford Explorer, which was traveling west on Ford, made a turn from the right lane onto southbound Haggerty. The impact drove the patrol car into a nearby pole. The Jaws of Life were used to extricate the officer. The other driver was thrown from the Explorer. Wolons was released from St. Joseph Hospital, Ypsilanti, Wednesday. He suffered a fractured pelvis, leg sprains and compressed vertebrae. The other driver remains in critical condition at the University of Michigan Hospital, where he was airlifted following the accident. The Michigan State Police are investigating the accident. It's believed they requested, through a search warrant, a blood alcohol test on the driver of the Explorer. The investigation is continuing.

Musician of note to pitch in at concert

Neil Woodward, a musician, singer, songwriter and folk historian, will perform at noon on Wednesday at the Music in the Park concert at Plymouth's Kellogg Park at Main and Ann Arbor Trail.

The performance is sponsored by Plymouth Community Federal Credit Union.

Featuring traditional North American folk instruments, Woodward's performance reflects America's history — from centuries-old ballads and dance music to 1800s lumberjack, blues and train songs, to his own compositions.

He performs on the six- and 12-string guitar, steel guitar, harmonica, mandolin, fiddle, banjo, autoharp, dulcimer, penny whistle, ukelele and other strings.

The Music in the Park program is presented by the Plymouth Community Arts Council for 10 Wednesdays throughout the summer.

The arts council is a nonprofit organization which promotes appreciation and accessibility of the arts for the benefit of all citizens in Plymouth-Canton.

Family farmers plant roots with vegetable stand

Female farmer: Mary Hauk-Churilla of the longtime Canton farming family is believed to be the one of the few female farmers in the area.

Family business: Andy and Mary Hauk-Churilla and their children (from left) Rachel, Andrew and Mary, rest on the green and yellow wagon that has served the family well as a vegetable stand at Ford and Napier roads. The family will have a permanent stand at Ford and Beck roads this summer.

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

If you're one of those roadside stand connoisseurs waiting on Andy and Mary's well-known green and yellow vegetable wagon to set up in July, it won't. But don't fret.

Andy Churilla and Mary Hauk-Churilla — who have operated the stand at Ford and Napier roads for the last three summers — are moving to the corner of Ford and Beck roads.

"We wanted to get into Canton and we needed some protection from the elements," said Mary, daughter of longtime Canton farmer Ross Hauk, and one of the few female farmers in the area.

Instead of the green and yellow wagon, the Churillas are building a permanent, but seasonal, vegetable and fruit stand on their five acres at the corner. You'll recognize it when you see the sign: Andy & Mary's Farm Market — Family Farming in Canton Since 1919.

When the corn comes up in mid-July, the stand will open daily from 9 a.m.-7 p.m., until the kids go back to school in September. Corn, squash, melons, carrots, beans and green onions — to name a few — will fill the stand. When Michigan fruits come into season, they'll offer peaches, pears, nectarines and plums.

"I like to sell Michigan products because people enjoy them. They have a good taste. As long as you give people good quality products from Michigan, they don't mind paying a fair price," said Andy, who works in General Motors' materials department.

And don't think this is just a hobby for the Churillas. This involves their livelihood and their lives.

"Dad taught me to drive a tractor when I was seven years old," Mary said. "I love it. It's what I know. I do taxes and accounting in the winter. But as soon as spring rolls around, I'm out the door."

Andy may have married into the longtime Hauk farming family, but he knows the produce business in his own right. He was in the fruit market business as a kid. Then he had a wholesale route of his own.

In fact, Eastern Market, where Mary sold wholesale with her father, was the setting for a budding romance. "I was selling and Andy was buying," Mary said.

Andy went to work for General Motors but the produce business was a part of his life. "Every time I got laid off by GM I would go back into produce," Andy said.

When he got laid off in 1986 that was it. Andy told Mary: "We're going to try and do our own thing."

It was apparently a smart decision. "The people have been happy to have us down there. They are happy to meet the local farmers," Andy said.

Andy and Mary will tell you this is no easy business. Work begins at the crack of dawn and continues until it gets done. When the stand opens, Mary and Andy will have a couple of employees to man the outdoor store. Andy will be at GM during the day, and Mary will be farming. And both will continue working when the usual business hours are over.

"It is every single day. Vegetable plants yield constantly," Mary said.

If the stand is running low, out to the fields they go. Excluding sweet corn, the Churillas have about 30 acres of growing for the stand.

In addition to their own business, Mary works with her father in the family farming business. "I've got a responsibility to my family that takes a forefront," she said.

A sense of history pervades their business. The Churillas live in Mary's grandparents' home on Ridge Road. Her parents, Ross and Lillian, live next door. Her brothers and sister are not far and working right along with the family.

Already Andy and Mary's children — Mary, 6, Andrew, 4½, and Rachel, 3½ — are helping in the business. "If they want it (when they grow up), it's here for them," Andy said.

Man refuses help after screwdriver stabbing

A 22-year-old man refused medical treatment after he was apparently stabbed in the neck with a screwdriver Wednesday by an unidentified man at Canton Commons Apartments, according to a Canton police report.

Police were dispatched to Lilley Road, south of Ann Arbor Road, to meet with Plymouth officers who had the man in their vehicle, following a reported assault and battery at the McDonald's in Plymouth.

The man was drinking with a group of people at Canton Commons when he and the unidentified man began staring at each other. The man apparently thought there might be a fight. Finally, the unidentified man asked him to go around the corner. As he complied, the man tried to grab him in the neck. As he blocked the assault, he was stabbed on the left side of his neck with a screwdriver. As he fell to his knees, his assailant fled.

The injured man went looking for the man who assaulted him, finding him at the Plymouth McDonald's restaurant. He hit the man in the head with his fist. The unidentified man fled again. Canton police drove the injured man, who continued to refuse medical attention, back to Canton Commons to unsuccessfully locate his assailant. He is described as white, about 26 years old, 5-foot-7 and 190 pounds. He has black hair and a mustache and was wearing black when last seen.

Squirt-gun assault

A homeowner waved down police on Beck south of Ford after he had been assaulted with a powerful squirt gun Tuesday, June 29, according to a police report.

The man was cutting his lawn when a blue pickup pulled up. The passenger leaned out and squirted the homeowner in his face. The homeowner got into his car and followed the pickup. When he tried to confront those in the pickup, he was squirted again. The pickup driver also squealed the tires, spraying rocks and gravel at the homeowner.

Suspected arson

Arson is suspected in the fire at an abandoned house in the 7500 block of North Lilley Road Tuesday, June 29, according to Tam-mie Colling, Canton police community relations officer.

Dispatchers received the fire call at about 12:15 a.m. The house was in flames when firefighters arrived. The fire was contained to the family room. Damage was not yet estimated, but there was no property in the house, said Colling, a member of the fire investigation team.

"It was all boarded up except for a few windows," Colling said. "Evidence was collected for analysis."

An initial investigation showed that the fire was deliberately set, she added.

Fingerprinting success

Canton reserve officers fingerprinted 400 children during the Liberty Fest, June 25-27, according to Colling.

The program is designed to help identify children who become lost or abducted. Last year, reserves fingerprinted 535 children. Altogether, 1,800 children have been fingerprinted in the community at various events and local businesses. Homeowners associations can sponsor a fingerprinting program in their neighborhoods.

Great skate!

S'craft goes 'skatecraft' with new class

BY ANNE SULLIVAN STAFF WRITER

It's the Ninja Turtles of recreational sports. In-line skating, developed in 1980 by two brothers in Minnesota looking for an economical way to play hockey in the summer, has soared in popularity. The sport is the newest way to get into shape and has grown into an international recreation.

Keying in on the popularity of in-line skating, and recognizing a need for training and safety habits in the sport, Schoolcraft College is offering a four-week instructional course through continuing education from 6-9 p.m. Wednesdays beginning July 14. The fee is $45 per person.

The class is open to everyone. "I've had people age 2 to age 80 on skates; no one is too young, no one is too old to learn," said Chris Johnson, instructor. "I'd encourage anybody who has the slightest desire to learn in-line skating to try it. You're going to have a good time."

Richard Daley, Joanna M. David, Renee C. DeDecker, Eric M. Dupuis, Daniel G. Durack, John J. Eichner, Emma Fletcher, Jason D. Frank, Paula Fuchs, Wendy Gallier, Anthony Gutowski Jr., Ellen Gyorko, Greg Hofmann, Patricia L. Helka, Mary Hoffman, Colby W. Hull, Daniel J. Huyck, Clinton D. Jones, Rodney G. Kilheffer, Kelly P. John Pump, work with skaters at all levels, teaching in-line techniques to experienced skaters, and starting from the beginning with novice skaters.

For those who have never skated, Johnson starts them walking on the grass, getting used to the feel of the skates and the protective gear, then moves on to teaching the skating motion. He doesn't guarantee skaters will be graceful when the class is over, but they will have the necessary skills to skate, and he says it takes practice.

The novice as well as the experienced skater may have a fall or two, and that's why Johnson stresses the importance of always wearing safety equipment. Skates and protective gear — helmet, knee, elbow and wrist guards — are provided in the class.

When Johnson first approached the college about teaching the course, Marv Gans, assistant dean of continuing education, was eager for a class in the area. "Most people buy the skates and don't get instruction," said Gans. "I live in Northville and see kids and adults skating in town not wearing any protective gear."

In-line skater: Mary Perva of Canton Township said she took the Schoolcraft class because the sport "looked like more fun than walking or jogging."

"I feel a lot more confident," said Behrendsen, who skates on the street in his subdivision and in a park after work. "There is no toe pick to stop you," said Johnson. Depending on how fast a skater students often ask Johnson suggests finding a flat surface, with little or no traffic. Hines Park is closed to motorized traffic on Saturdays now through September. Where to skate is a question better to fall on grass rather than cement. Skate on the right of a path, pass on the left and always yield to pedestrians. Johnson warns that in-line skating is not like roller skating or ice skating. "There is no toe pick to stop you," said Johnson. Depending on how fast a skater is traveling, it can take up to 40 feet to stop. "Of course it doesn't take that long if you're skating slow."

Board to revisit school budget

At a workshop set for 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, July 7, the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education will discuss what to restore if the 4-million, two-year request re-appearing on the ballot Aug. 17 is approved by voters.

The board also will discuss how to proceed given how much the district receives or doesn't receive in state aid in 1993-94, said board president Roland Thomas.

THE PROPER PILLOW Excellent advice on proper pillows comes from antiquity: Genesis 28:11, "and Jacob lighted upon the place, and tarried there all night, and he took one of the stones of the place and put it under his head, and lay down to sleep. And he dreamed..." The story identifies the qualities for a good pillow. First, it must be firm, rock firm is not an extreme statement. Second, the pillow should be flat, again like many a stone.

LINDA BACHRACK

Plant some art in your garden

With some apprehension, I approached my towering delphinium last week and snipped their blue and lavender stalks. Though beautiful to behold through my dining room window, I longed to have them fill my glass cobalt pitcher and grace the center of the table. I worried that they wouldn't generate new stalks, but I can see tiny buds already.

Summer gardens are such pleasures. They provide fragrant outdoor living rooms as well as an abundance of fresh bouquets to brighten our interiors. Now that the garden is alive with impatiens, petunias, geraniums and snapdragons, you might want to consider embellishing nature with some garden sculpture or other ornamentation.

Area galleries and boutiques offer numerous examples of one-of-a-kind outdoor art. The bunny pictured ($12) peeks through the phlox in one of my beds. He is one of a large selection of "Made in Michigan" statuary available at Folkways Trading Co., 838 Penniman in Plymouth.

Proprietor Diane Joppa has a long list of clientele who seek out her natural-look forest animals, cherubs, religious figures, planters, benches and birdbaths. "They are not only aesthetically pleasing," she says, "but they are meticulously finished so that there is no pitting in the cement." Joining the garden bunny in the picture is a whimsical insect which sits on a metal stake. Ariana Gallery, 386 E. Maple in Birmingham, includes this critter in its "Art for the Garden" collection. Look for grasshoppers, hummingbirds and dragonflies, all in a verdigris finish with copper eyes and tentacles ($44). Sure to put a buzz in your flowerpot.

Sculpture celebrations

To inject your outdoor space with a fun-loving spirit, add one of Fred Myers' steel creations to the landscape. Myers' studio recreates ancient Indian petroglyphs and pictographs in ironwork sculptures. The delightful designs include occasional tables and freestanding figures, as well as murals and benches. "Hands Up" is a joyful interpretation of a cave dweller ($1500). "Mimbras Quail" is the artist's perception of the southwest New Mexico bird that provided a food source to the Indians ($600), and the "Zuni Flute Player" is a recognizable Indian kachina ($750). My favorite is the intricately carved table that tells a story through the shapes and drawings of past civilizations ($2600). See them all at Ariana Gallery.

Objects of Art, 6243 Orchard Lake Road, West Bloomfield, in Sugar Tree Square, displays selected works of local and out-of-state artists. This month the gallery is filled with outdoor creations. Scott Brazas of Birmingham exhibits his abstract metal furniture. He uses found objects, including twigs, pitchforks and tractor seats in his imaginative designs.

Wildlife surprises

Washington sculptor Tom Torrens fashions contemporary fountains and birdfeeders from simple industrial materials, especially copper. The multi-shaped birdfeeder dominates the gallery's front window and is an eye-catching work of art ($800).

Other notable originals at Objects of Art include Craig Easter's freestanding fish ponds and bowls ($86-$300) and aluminum Wind Petals, stylized butterflies, feathers, bugs and fish that animate your garden as they rock and pivot, changing shape with the slightest breeze.

Delight in all of these works at a sidewalk sale July 8-10. Finally, what's a garden without a birdhouse? This architect-designed "diner" is but one of the unique feathered friend abodes at the Carol Hooberman Gallery, 124 S. Woodward, Birmingham, one of the "Shops at the Top" of the stairs. The enamel finished wood will provide your favorite songsters with years of fine dining. All that's missing is the neon.

And now all your garden needs is you. Sit back, relax and enjoy.

Fall forecast: Veronique Vienne of Express says: long skirts are here to stay! Look for ruffles, they act like reflectors around the face! and hand-painted skirts. Not too much color this season, textures are the key.

Stores prosper with Euro-looks

Sales of European-inspired clothing are skyrocketing as women discover the comfort of tunics and men slip on bold patterned vests. The best example of this marketing phenomenon is found at local Express and Structure stores where business is booming.

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO
STAFF WRITER

Just what is French chic? Italian chic? And why do we love it so? The movies, the magazines, the malls and the mainstreets are all selling "the European look" this summer and consumers are gobbling it up. We adore Provence table settings, Country French bed linens, dresses collared with Belgium lace and shoes of Italian leather.

Veronique Vienne, a spokeswoman for the Express clothing stores, retailing the European look exclusively, offered this theory: "Americans like European clothing because Europeans have a greater understanding of seduction, elegance and charm," she explained. "Their clothing feels better. It moves. Europeans understand that the human body in motion is always elegant.

"Americans dress too prissy, fussy," she continued. "They are obsessed with everything looking pretty as a picture. But what is a picture? Static. Frozen in time. The French have words for their chic — dash, elan, joie de vivre. It's youthful spirit and age doesn't matter." Wow! We'll buy that. And when it's priced for the working gal and guy, we'll buy it by the shopping bagful. And that is exactly what's happening.

European look

Both Structure stores for men (established in 1987) and Express for women (established in 1982) are divisions of The Limited Inc. They have made a splash the size of a tidal wave selling clothing styled and retailed the European way. Annual sales of more than $1.6 billion are expected this year, that's $300 million more than last year.

There are 675 Express stops throughout the United States, with 21 in Michigan malls and main streets. From headquarters in Columbus, Ohio, The Express team visits Paris, St. Tropez, Milan and London to spot "enduring trends" and bring them home priced for the pocketbook of the working gal and guy "usually within six weeks," according to their spokesman.

Debi Gould of Northville, a flight attendant, and mother of two teen daughters, shops Express with three generations.

"I love the clothes, my mother loves the clothes, and my daughters love the clothes," she said. "They're upbeat, fun to wear, youthful looking and very comfortable. There is good value for the price. The clothes hold up."

Gould winked and added that as a woman in her 40s working with women in their 20s she must stay current.

"Express clothing helps me do that," she said. "I just bought a tunic and short set that I know will be very comfortable yet stylish and sassy."

Ginny Zibell of Novi was shopping at Express last week with her daughter Anne, 12, and Anne's friend, Jill Backman, 12. The girls were back they said, because they liked previous purchases from Express and were stopping in to see what's new.

Twist on denim

Express has had its tremendous success selling garments with a twist on traditional denim items, and tricot knitwear that moves with and is easy to care for by active women. The best-selling item is the European tunic, sold in various weights and with different sleeve lengths, to be worn over long skirts. "The new silhouette" insists Vienne.

Movies inspire the games of summer

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO
STAFF WRITER

Tired of Candyland, Trivial Pursuit and Monopoly?

Well, let the summer games of 1993 begin!

New board games available at your favorite toy store might be just the ticket to liven up the second month of summer. Finishing in First Place with a "9" on the Fun Meter is "Cheers" ($22.99). This game immortalizes America's favorite neighborhood tavern with trivia questions to test your memory of the show's former plot lines.

The game was created by Classic. Here's a sample of the fun you could be having:

"What did Norm and Cliff do when Diane told everyone she was going to Europe and was waiting for a kiss?"

a. Ran out of the bar.
b. Gave her a Hershey's kiss.
c. They kissed each other.

If you guessed "c," you're going to love this game.

The little ones will enjoy two new games from Milton Bradley that give them the chance to relive two Disney adventures.

"Beauty and The Beast" ($10.99) is a 3-D boardgame where players "try and be the first to transform the beast into a prince."

The best part about "Aladdin" ($12.99) is the chance to "spin, glide and float the magic carpet around the globe."

Hey Mr. Wilson! Pressman has just released a "Dennis the Menace" game ($10.99). In D the M, players race around Dennis' neighborhood and nab Switchblade Sam to win. Kids who like the antics of other mischievous kids will also enjoy playing "Home Alone 2: Lost in New York" ($12.99).

There's no escaping the blockbuster movie games "Last Action Hero" ($10.99 from Mattel) and "Jurassic Park" ($19.99 from Milton Bradley).

Vienne, who grew up in southern France, points out that both denim and tricot are native to France. Denim taking its name from cloth manufactured in Nimes, France, and tricot popularized for activewear by CoCo Chanel during World War I when traditional fabric was scarce.

Men are digging the European beat as well, with sales at Michigan's 13 Structure stores "growing steadily."

"Our best-selling items have been our original six-button knit polos, our linen collection, and our authentic silk ties," said Jeffrey Moran, Structure spokesman. "New for fall at Structure are vests with bold stripes, plaids and patterned sweaters, — all done in our generous, relaxed fit signature styling."

In addition to Structure and Express (aka Compagnie Internationale Express), other divisions of the Limited Inc. include Lerner New York, Lane Bryant, Victoria's Secret, Limited Too, Abercrombie & Fitch, Henri Bendel, Cacique, Bath & Body Works, and Penhaligon's.

Sales records are most impressive, the company reports, from the shops selling "clothing with a distinctly European point-of-view."

"In these stores we want our customers to feel as if they'd just stepped into a boutique along Paris' Left Bank," said former Express president Michael Weiss, recently promoted to vice president of the Limited Inc. "Faux Fragonard and mock Magritte murals cover the walls, and Express' own Musique D'Express tape of French pop music plays adding to the uplifting and very French shopping experience."

Two books on the subject of dressing European, both authored by fashion journalist Susan Sommers, are selling like crepes suzettes. "Italian Chic" published in the fall, is being marketed direct through ads in all the Conde Nast fashion magazines this month. Toll-free number operator 7Rose," said sales are "great."

"Italian Chic" has led readers to seek out "French Chic," published in 1988 also by Villard Books, New York.

"Stroll through the streets of Paris and almost every woman you see has put herself together in a smart, alluring, original way with a special touch that sets her apart," Sommers writes. "French women have something special. They're feminine, sure of themselves, and seem to delight in breaking all fashion rules, yet making it all work."

In "Italian Chic" Sommers writes "Italian women know that chic means more than just a pretty dress. It's a pulled together look that makes people remember the woman, not just the clothes."

Both books contain photographs, tips, ideas and interviews with European women who have mastered certain looks. Annette King of Detroit, recently returned from a trip to Paris and discussed her impressions of the European mystique while shopping for shoes at Twelve Oaks Mall.

"The women all looked so good," she said. "Even those begging in the streets were what seemed to me, designer clothing. There is truly something to admire about the way French women turn out."

Games from page 6A

"The Last Action Hero board game plays just like the movie," according to the box cover. "Players travel from the real world to the movie world, complete three scenes, and return to Danny's house."

In "Jurassic Park" (play if you dare) you "race to escape their jaws and claws." Players move across the game board in a contest to reach the Visitor Center first. Danger comes through the dino-dice where if you throw a Raptor, you're dinner.

Teens looking for something to help pass away their idle hours this summer, will want to get their gang together to play the "Beverly Hills 90210 Survey Game" ($14.99 from Milton Bradley). Players must guess how other kids voted on actual 90210 situations! Lots of food for teenage thought here.

T.V. teens will also enjoy playing "Saved By The Bell" ($12.99 from Pressman) where players "spend an outrageous day with the gang from Saved By The Bell."

Marvel Superhero fans of all ages will appreciate the opportunity to build a fighting team of X-Men ready to nab super villains in "The Uncanny X-Men Alert" ($19.99 from Pressman). Each game creates a different adventure and the purchase price includes a limited edition comic book and 18 collectible X-Men figures inside the box.

Who says you have to visit the Grand Canyon for thrills and adventure this summer?

More than ever black, white and 'red' all over

The rules of the journalism profession are not black and white. It is a profession where shades of gray are the rule and not the exception.

Whom to interview, what stories to cover, which story line to take, and where that story should run are all judgment calls which most try to make as fairly as they can.

JUDITH DONER BERNE

to learn the skills to become the Woodwards and Bernsteins of the future. Not so today.

Journalism was embarrassed when NBC News faked the explosion of a General Motors pickup truck; when USA Today forced Arthur Ashe to acknowledge he had AIDS; most recently by the erroneous New York Post story about singer Whitney Houston's supposed drug overdose.

And that is black and white. We who are lucky enough to be part of the journalism profession have a responsibility to those who will come after us to get back to our basics.

Cultural diversity forms suburban traffic patterns

During a recent conversation, a poet lamented that the world was breaking down into tribes. That's how he explained the mess with the Serbs and the Croats. It's cultural diversity in overdrive.

can't tell a Croat from a Serb or for that matter a Greek. I can tell a Birmingham resident from one who parks his mini van in Canton at night.

JEFF COUNTS

Then there's the Lite beer and wine line. It's rarely crossed by any in the suburbs, which allows the natives in northern Michigan to identify a tourist on the spot.

My own tribe of Livonia residents can be identified by their mini vans. I have trouble finding my own during visits to the happy hunting ground at Builders' Square.

And the Serbs and Croats: We don't kill each other with any regularity. There's no militia in my Livonia neighborhood prepared to halt the invasion of birkenstock wearing, Volvo driving Farmington residents.

TASTE BUDS

CHEF LARRY JANES

Children learn a lot helping you in kitchen

I'm a self-professed cookbook freak. I have books on Russian cooking, South African cuisine, ice cream, holiday cooking, creative appetizers and a whole slew of children's cookbooks. When it comes to cooking alongside children, I have come to realize that the old Betty Crocker cookbook that taught us how to turn French toast into smiley faces with blueberries and bananas just doesn't cut mustard. Have you ever watched a child paging through a cookbook to find the perfect accompaniment to fish sticks?

Learning by doing

Children learn by doing, and even though you might not think they're learning anything by opening a can of spaghetti, they are. They learn how to choose right pot to fit the burner, kitchen and fire safety, how to use utensils, and recycle by cooking just one little can of spaghetti.

Children learn a lot of helping in the kitchen. You might not realize it, but you incorporate math into cooking every time you count eggs for a cake. Too simple, you say? How about a lesson in fractions every time you mix one-quarter cup of sugar into three-quarters of a cup of flour?

Science lessons

The simple art of making bread can be a lesson in doubling (in bulk, as the dough rises). Speaking of dough, there's a lesson to be learned about how yeast interacts with flour and warm liquids to create a gas that causes the dough to rise.

A microwave oven and bag of popcorn can be the impetus to a whole lesson on how microwave energy works. Energy can be explored by explaining the difference between gas and electric stoves, microwave ovens and even incorporating propane grills and gas-fired camp stoves.

A personal favorite of mine is exploring the geographical aspects of cooking. What foods grow best where and why? Can anyone explain why the French call it a crepe, the Poles call it a polichinka, the Chinese call it an egg roll wrapper and the Greeks call it phyllo?

It might be a little thicker or thinner, and they all start with flour and a liquid and all end up getting rolled around some sort of food. They all, in essence, do the same thing and come from the same source.

My kids don't realize it, but they also learn a very important lesson in sanitation and food safety when they cook. This goes far beyond a simple hand washing.

The Janes Gang have found bugs in flour and seen the results of what happens when a little sugar is inadvertently spilled on the kitchen floor. What treasures lurk behind the stove or refrigerator and why is it necessary to pull them out every now and then to do a basic cleaning? Have you ever thought about what happens to a soggy dish when you leave it in the sink after an overnight excursion to Cedar Point?

Grocery shopping

These are just a few of the things that my kids learn when they're home during the summer helping me cook. I would bet that if you ask any parent who has ever taken a kid to the grocery store if the trip was educational, they would laugh in your face. Between the questions of "can I have?" and the "I want," I send the children off searching for frozen grape juice and refried beans all the while knowing that I'm teaching them reading skills.

My soon-to-be-a-fourth-grader adores the game we play about finding out costs and comparison shopping between brands. She thinks it's fun; I think it's great that I'm saving money. My second-grader reads coupons and makes up the shopping lists. Even if "bred" is spelled without an "a," he's learning something.

Most important, I think my kids are getting some sort of understanding about just how much money it costs to go grocery shopping these days and why I get upset when the peanut butter is left uncovered or when the milk is left out of the refrigerator.

I think my outlook on getting kids involved in the kitchen is a little different than that of Betty Crocker. Anyone who has ever seen my kids knows that they love to eat as much as I do but instead of making smiley faces on French toast to make it fun to eat, my kids are learning those little lessons in life that will allow them to be self-sufficient as the years go by.

What they all bring down to folks is that if you get kids involved in the cooking process as a whole, they will learn to try different things simply because they're involved in the process.

My kids get as excited when they make a batch of tacos as they did when they learned how to tie their shoes. My only wish is that if you have kids, you will instill in them the importance of food and cooking. Bon Appetit!

SMART SNACKERS MUNCH ON NUTRITIOUS nibbles

■ Kick the junk food habit and develop a plan to snack smart. Substitute dried and fresh fruit, pretzels, popcorn and juice for candy, chips and pop.

BY KEELY WYGONIK
STAFF WRITER

There's nothing wrong with snacking. What's wrong are our choices — candy, cookies and ice cream. According to research conducted by Quaker Oats Co., Americans spend more than $31 billion on snack food compared to just over $16 billion on fruit. Candy takes the largest share of the snack food market (25.4 percent) with cookies and crackers coming in second (23.6 percent).

Snacks account for 18 percent of the day's total calories and 16 percent of the day's total fat intake for children. For active, growing teens, snacks can account for up to one-fourth of the day's total calories.

Don't let your kids take a summer vacation from good nutrition, take advantage of the bounty of fresh fruits and vegetables to develop a snack smart plan.

Lisa Kay Allen noticed a big difference in her son, Andrew, 6½, a student at Oakland Steiner School in Bloomfield Township, when she substituted dried fruits and fruit juice for candy and pop. "He's a calmer, happier boy," she said. "Give him a candy bar and he'll get real hyper."

Making the switch to more natural foods wasn't hard. "More grocery stores have healthy food sections," she said. "I find everything I need at the L & L Spartan Store at Adams and Wattles in Rochester Hills," she said.

CHEF'S SECRETS

Down-to-earth chef likes food that's real

BY KEELY WYGONIK
STAFF WRITER

You won't find any bottles of lemon juice or cans of apples on the shelves in the kitchen at Bonnie's Patisserie, 29229 Northwestern Highway, Southfield. Owner Bonnie Fishman is appalled by processed foods.

"I'm just really down to earth. I have old-fashioned values. I like food that's real. I've not cut any corners in 13 years. We bone our own turkeys, make our own stock, juice lemons, peel our own apples and garlic," Fishman said. "We buy direct and use the freshest, finest ingredients."

Trained at Cordon Bleu Cookery School in London, England, Fishman, who studied anthropology in college, has developed a successful business doing what she likes best: cooking and teaching others how to cook.

She packs a lot into her oasis on busy Northwestern Highway. It's not a big place. There are 16 seats inside and 12 outside, but the atmosphere is friendly and relaxing. Bonnie's borders a tree-lined, natural spring-fed brook. You can hear the stream babbling over the din of cars.

Customers come for the fresh, homemade soups, salads and sandwiches plus daily specials like Chicken Orange Salad, Szechwan Beef and Wild Rice and Turkey Salad, pastries, tarts, cookies and cakes.

Fishman offers custom-catering and teaches cooking classes from mid-September to mid-May. "We do an amazing variety in a small place, and we have high standards," she said.

There's a mirror above the kitchen window so students in her cooking classes can see exactly what she's doing. "I've been teaching for 15 years," she said. "I learn from my students and my students learn from me. The nicest compliment I ever received was, 'You inspired me to cook again.'"

Her classes are informal and there's something for everyone. One class might be on low-fat cooking, another on chicken. "I test all my recipes," she said. "I get ideas usually when I'm driving. I'm like a chemist. I know what will work and what won't."

Who taught you how to cook?

"My mom. She was an excellent cook; she was really before her time. Carolyn Haskin (former executive chef of the Townsend Hotel in Birmingham) was a great source of inspiration. She's a remarkable talent. She's not a snob. I met her at the Money Tree (in Detroit)."

Family.

Fishman lives in West Bloomfield. She is married to Robert Ketai and they have two children, Ben, 11, and Hanna, 6. Like her mother, Fishman said she involves her children in cooking. "Ben can cook any breakfast. My daughter has helped me since she was 2. Young children can scrub vegetables and shuck corn."

When did you decide to open your own business?

"I cooked in high school, but everyone went to college so I did too. I studied anthropology because I liked it and worked at food places. After my junior year, I went to London and loved it. In the fall of my senior year, I went to Cordon Bleu. On the plane on the way home from Europe, I wrote in my journal, 'small pastry shop like in France.' I wanted to cater too." Fishman worked at a variety of restaurants and was general manager of the Money Tree in Detroit. She moved to the Bay area of California to sharpen her baking skills and moved back to the Detroit area after a year and a half. She was 27 when she opened Bonnie's.

Bonnie's will be closed Monday-Tuesday, July 5-6, for summer vacation. She will reopen Wednesday, July 7. Call 357-4540.

SMOOTHIE

- 1 frozen banana
- 1/2 cup blueberries
- 1/2 cup frozen cherries
- 1 1/2 teaspoons real vanilla extract
- 1/2 cup milk or plain yogurt
- 2 cups orange juice, grape or mixed berry juice

Put ingredients into a blender and blend. Sheffield said the frozen banana gives it a thick, icy flavor. Kids love it. For a different flavor, eliminate the milk or yogurt for a fruitier drink. Try different combinations of fruit, kiwi fruit and strawberries, peaches and blueberries. Put leftovers in an ice cube tray for later. Insert a toothpick for an icy treat, or just put the cubes in a cup and let them thaw a little.

This recipe is from "Snack Savy — Tips for Smart Snacking," a brochure published by the Quaker Oats Company. For a free copy, send your name and complete address to: Snack Savy, CA 323-93, P.O. Box 3391, Maple Plain, MN 55592.

Oakland Steiner School learn a lot about nutrition. "People are what they eat. It affects learning," said Nancy Sheffield of Bloomfield Hills, whose daughter, Laura, 7, attends the school.

"We constantly serve unsalted, unsalted popcorn. We try to serve foods that are as close to their natural state as possible. We make a lot of muffins and add seeds, nuts and dried fruits. Kids love them."

Smoothies — a blended mixture of fruits, yogurt or milk — and juice are a year-round favorite at the Sheffield house. Leftovers are poured into ice cube trays. Insert a toothpick and you've got a refreshing snack. Or just put the frozen smoothie cubes into a cup and wait for them to thaw a little. Sheffield cautions parents to read labels. "Make sure you buy real fruit juice. Juice cocktails contain a little juice and a lot of sugar."

When Laura's hungry for a crunchy snack, she'll reach for the carrots and celery sticks her mom keeps in the refrigerator. Pea pods are another favorite.

"I buy unsalted sunflower seeds, dried fruits and nuts in bulk and mix them together. It's a nutritionally complete snack," Sheffield said. "Unsalted pretzels and tortilla chips, and string cheese, are good snacks too."

Learning how to prepare snacks is part of the learning that goes on at the Oakland Steiner School, named after Rudolf Steiner who founded the Waldorf School movement in Europe. Waldorf schools like Oakland Steiner, stress self-discovery. Children learn about food by preparing it. Part of the morning routine at Oakland Steiner is preparing a snack.

"Children as young as 3 can help wash and scrub vegetables," said Kathy Knoebel, who teaches kindergarten. "Children ages 6 and 7 can peel, slice and chop fruits and vegetables with supervision. They love to do that."

Knoebel encourages parents to develop a rhythm and routine with their children. Serve snacks at the same time every day. Introduce them to unusual fruits like kiwi.

Grains are not just for cereals and side dishes, they make great snacks too. A favorite snack at the school is cooked barley with cut up fruit mixed with a little honey or milk.

Preparing snacks helps children develop small motor skills like cutting. They learn how to share equipment and to socialize. While making Muesli, a mixture of chopped oats, fruits, nuts and soy milk, Raffi Schaffa, 6 1/2, his sister Deborah, 4, Lauren Hooten, 6, and Andrew Allen, 6 1/2, grated nuts, sliced strawberries and stirred the mixture with a wooden spoon.

"Put the food processor away and let the children grate. Give them something real that they can do. It gives them a sense of completion. They start with raw ingredients and see the finished product. It helps them have a vision of how things operate. They say, 'Look what I can do with my hands,'" said Judy Wachler, who teaches first grade.

Florence Steinberg, who teaches at Gibson School in Redford, also serves healthy snacks to her three children ranging in age from 5 to 14. She just discovered "Guiltless Gourmet," no oil tortilla chips which her kids love.

"If I clean and cut strawberries and carrots, the kids will eat them," she said. "Mom has to do the work. They also love hummus (a paste of mashed chickpeas and sesame seed oil served as an appetizer) and Baba Gannough (eggplant appetizer dip)."

Registered dietitian Wendy Schwartz of Birmingham, has two children ranging in age from 2 to 4. She serves rice cakes for snacks, string cheese, which is lower in fat than regular cheese, dried fruits, Popsicles and Fudgicles. Her kids love Dannon's new yogurt with sprinkles.

'Rhône rangers' chart success in California wineries

California wineries have experienced success with production of wines from grape varieties indigenous to France's Rhône Valley. About 10 years ago, the lead was taken by "Rhône Ranger" Bonny Deon Vineyard's creative winemaker Randall Graham. Today, in California, from northern Sonoma County south to Santa Barbara, winemakers have charted success on the course of Rhône varietal production and the Rhône Rangers are legion.

FOCUS ON WINE

ELEANOR & RAY HEALD

He returned to the U.S. in 1987 to work harvest at Saintsbury winery in California's Carneros region. In 1988, Jade Mountain winery needed a winemaker and Danielak was hired. In the last five years, he has engineered conversion of the winery's Cloverdale vineyards from riesling, sauvignon blanc and cabernet sauvignon to 31 acres of the Rhône varieties syrah, marsanne and a small percentage of mourvedre.

Jade Mountain's first release of a Rhône-style wine was 1988, a varietal mourvedre made from purchased grapes. Today, Jade Mountain's wine portfolio includes a varietal mourvedre and syrah, two proprietary wines, La Provencale (a blend of Southern Rhône varieties and Les Jumeaux (a blend of cabernet sauvignon and mourvedre sourced from 60-year-old vines). If your French isn't as strong as Danielak's, we'll explain that Les Jumeaux is translated as "the twins."

This innovation puts Jade Mountain in the annals of California wine history and gives California red blends a new definition. Danielak explains the twinning. "When California cabernet sauvignon is picked at prime ripeness, it's lush, delicious and chocolatey," he says. "In Les Jumeaux, I try to express full cabernet sauvignon flavors with mourvedre softening the tannic impression." It works, because this wine is absolutely delicious.

Two versions of the 1990 Mourvedre (814) are available. One was filtered and the other was not. The label indicates the difference and they are slightly dissimilar when tasted. Our preference is the unfiltered, which seems to showcase each characteristic of the 60 to 120-year-old vines more intensely. 1990 Syrah ($22.50) is a big wine not intended for the faint hearted. Complex and concentrated, it ranks at the very top of California-produced Rhône-styled wines. "It holds the structure and

Wine Selections of the Week: ■ 1991 Quivira Zinfandel, Dry Creek Valley ($13.25). A delicious rendition of an all-American wine with harmonized ripe berries, pepper, and fragrant oak. ■ 1991 Merryvale Reserve Chardonnay ($25). Lobster, smoked trout and grilled salmon are the suggested accompaniments for this Burgundy-like chardonnay boasting solid fruit, oak and buttery elements. ■ 1990 Pine Ridge Selected Cuvee Merlot (15). A mixed grill of fish, eggplant, roasted peppers, lamb and game would nicely complement this power-packed merlot. ■ 1990 Pine Ridge Rutherford Cuvee Cabernet Sauvignon (15) carries an earthy component with blackberry, black currant and great fruit extraction in an ageable style. ■ Three Monticello wines impressed us with their flavor and value. The 1991 Monticello Chardonnay, Napa Valley ($15) shows exuberant pear, apple and mango fruit in a wine where the barrel fermentation character complements rather than hides the fruit expression. For those who prefer toasty, vanilla-oak and a touch of butter along with fruit, the 1990 Monticello Corley Reserve Chardonnay ($17.50) is the correct selection. 1989 Monticello Cabernet Sauvignon, Napa Valley ($14) is highlighted by blackberry, bright cherry, spice, and oak with a fair amount of tannin.

promise of cabernet sauvignon, but shows fruit nuances found only in pinot noir," Danielak said.

Apple-citrus compote adds flavor to pancakes, yogurt

AP — Apple-citrus compote is easy to make and can be stored in the refrigerator for up to one week. Serve in a bowl, garnished with a sprig of mint, over plain yogurt topped with granola, or with wafaffles, pancakes, or French toast. ■ APPLE-CITRUS COMPOTE 2 cups peeled and sliced tart apples (about 2 medium) 1 1/2 cups pitted prunes 1 1/2 cups orange juice

2 tablespoons honey 1 tablespoon lemon juice 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon 2 navel oranges, peeled and cut into segments 2 pink grapefruit, peeled and cut into segments

In a 2- to 3-quart saucepan, combine the apples, prunes and orange juice. Bring to a boil, reduce heat and simmer until apples are tender but not soft, about 10 minutes. Remove from heat, stir in honey, juice and cinnamon. Cool, cover and chill. Stir in oranges and grapefruit. To serve, spoon fruits with their liquid into serving dishes; garnish with mint sprigs. Makes 4 servings.

Strawberries ripe at Long's

It's not too late to pick strawberries.

The berries are red, juicy, and sweet, and you don't have to wait until the weekend to pick them.

Rob Long, owner of Long Family Orchard and Farm on Bogie Lake Road, 1/2 mile north of Wise Road in Commerce Township, is open daily 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Wednesdays and Thursdays until 8 p.m. for after work pickers.

Call the hotline 360-3774 before heading out to the farm. "The berries are ripening nicely. Some of them are as big as golf balls," said Long.

"Because the berry season started late this year it should last until mid July."

Long will have u-pick tart cherries beginning in mid-July, call the hotline for details.

Bean and noodle toss easy, make ahead dish

AP — When many of us are trying to eat healthier and spend less time in the kitchen, getting a well-balanced meal on the table can be a challenge.

To add nutrition and convenience to summer menus, expand your repertoire of lower-fat side dish salads — ones that can be made ahead to pair with hot weather favorites like grilled foods and sandwiches.

Chilled Honey Vinaigrette Bean and Noodle Toss starts with No Yolks cholesterol-free noodles combined with kidney beans, garbanzo beans, peas, baby corn, red bell pepper and onion. The flavorful honey-Dijon mustard dressing calls for a minimal amount of oil. And, best of all, this healthy and zesty version of the picnic classic is quick to prepare and actually tastes better when it's made ahead so the flavors have time to develop and blend.

Potato pancakes, tacos Janes Gang favorites

See Chef Larry Janes' Taste Buds column on Taste front.

The following recipes are personal favorites of the Janes Gang kids and will surely be a favorite in your house, too.

POTATO PANCAKES

2 cups fresh grated potatoes (about 4 medium)

1 1/2 tablespoons all-purpose flour

1 1/4 teaspoon salt

2 carrots, grated

1 small onion, grated

4 tablespoons oil

In a medium bowl, combine potatoes with flour, salt, grated carrots and onion. Mix well. In a large skillet, heat oil until hot. Using a spoon, drop about 1/4 cup of potato mixture into a mound in the skillet. Repeat with remaining mixture.

Lower heat to medium and with the back of a spatula, flatten the potato pancakes. Cook, over medium heat for 3 minutes. Flip and continue cooking for 4 minutes. Cover and reduce heat to a simmer. Cook for 5 minutes.

Serve with apple sauce, if desired. Makes about 4 good sized pancakes.

Most kids think that taco's are made by mixing a seasoning packet with a pound of hamburger. Try this recipe the next time the kids request taco's.

HOMEMADE TACOS

1 small onion, finely chopped

2 tablespoons butter

1/2 cup tomato sauce

3 peeled and minced green chilies (not jalapeno's)

1 cup cooked chicken or pork sausage or ground turkey meat

1/2 teaspoon thyme

1/4 teaspoon garlic powder

1/4 teaspoon cumin

1/2 teaspoon salt

In a saucepan, cook onion in butter till golden. Combine remaining ingredients and lower heat to a simmer and cook for 5 minutes.

Heat taco shells or tortillas in the oven for 3 minutes. Stuff with meat mixture and top with cheese and lettuce, if desired.

Chef's secret: My kids aren't big onion lovers so I put the onion and green chilies in a blender or processor and process until smooth and then proceed with the cooking so that they never even see those bits and pieces in there!

She's groovin'

Dawn Hulme turned last winter's Guatemala vacation into opportunity. While taking in the sights, the 26-year-old harvested the best native art for her new store, Groove Gallery & Boutique in Royal Oak.

Dawn's sporting a lively colored cotton hat ($50) and matching tote ($65) hand-woven by native crafters. (It's also sold in Robert Redford's Sundance catalog).

The gallery also sells Guatemalan-made rugs, blankets, clothes and jewelry as well as wares by local artists. The denim shorts come from a Chicago designer.

Picket fences

Gardening fans can create drama at home with indoor planters from Sorried's new Picket Fence collection. Since unpredictable weather is the norm around the Detroit metropolitan area, why not bring summer flora inside?

The roomy Picket Fence planter ($79) comes in a white washed finish. There's also a matching cocktail table, end table and pedestal. Sold at Scott Shuptrine Furniture of Troy, Bloomfield Hills and Novi.

Dinosaur Jr., Primus join Lollapalooza

You won't find Dinosaur Jr. watching "Jurassic Park." This group has more important things to do. And ditto for Primus. The two bands are among the groups that are traversing the country with the Lollapalooza Festival.

By CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Dinosaur Jr. guitarist Murph never paid much attention to the Lollapalooza Festival.

This year his band is one of the "it" bands of the festival, which comes to the Milan Dragway in Milan Friday.

It was one of those things that MTV advertised and I never take MTV very seriously," Murph said during a Lollapalooza stop in San Francisco.

Only a few gigs into the tour, it hasn't really hit him that he's playing something he never much cared for in the past.

"I'm not really aware that I'm playing Lollapalooza. I don't hang out in the village or anything," he said. "I'm more aware of playing in the summer, in the daylight, of only having 45 minutes. It's really easy."

It's easy compared to the two-month headlining tour the group did earlier this year to promote its fifth album "Where You Been" (The Dinosaur Jr.'s April 7 show at Detroit's St. Andrew's Hall sold out in a few days.) The promotion also got tiring—especially the recent Spin magazine cover which declared lead singer J Mascis "God."

"I thought it was really lame," he said. "I also think it's not our doing. It's a sign of the times and the media. I'm down on the whole MTV and media thing. That just reinforced it."

"But if people are lame enough to believe it... If they think it's God, then they're totally lost."

Although he's a "pretty unaffected" guy about this whole music thing," Murph admits to liking a few Lollapalooza bands.

"I like to watch a few. They (Rage Against the Machine, Primus, and the Babes in Toyland) are pretty good."

As for Primus, he gets a kick out of the behavior of that band's devout fans.

"It's been insane everywhere. I'm into that kind of stuff."

"Every year that it's happened I thought that would be cool to be on it." Lalonde said from his Berkeley, Calif., home prior to the tour's start.

Primus is touring with Lollapalooza to promote its latest release "Pork Soda," which once again incorporates Les Claypool's off-the-wall vocals and unorthodox bass playing.

"It's just a record of a bunch of noise," explained Lalonde who, like the rest of the band, is obsessed with fishing.

Ironically, in the band's formative years, it almost went without Claypool. He auditioned for Metallica.

"Kirk (Hammett, Metallica's guitarist) was a friend of his from high school. They auditioned tons of people. His (Claypool's) hair was about an inch long and it was orange. I don't think he was anything near what they were looking for."

But despite Claypool's reputation, Lalonde doesn't see a lot of strangeness in his bandmate.

"Les? Nah, he's a normal guy... to me he is."

Aside from the mainstage acts — which also include Rage Against the Machine, Babes in Toyland, Front 242, Arrested Development, and Alice in Chains — the music will also include bands on the side stage. Camping and carry-ins (bottles, cans, coolers or food) will not be permitted.

Eight main stage bands will be featured this year. The lineup, in order of appearance, is Rage Against the Machine, Babes in Toyland, Front 242, Arrested Development, Fishbone, Dinosaur Jr., Alice in Chains and Primus.

The second stage will feature Tool, Unrest, Royal Trux and Paul K and the Weathermen.

The all-day festival also offers concert-goers the chance to experience a wide variety of interactive art and music, and sample an array of ethnic food, including Cajun, Jamaican and Greek cuisine.

Participants can also have their fortunes told by a bones reader, witness adult puppet shows, and watch original Hopi silverware being made.

The Spoken Word tent will feature video performances by William Burroughs, Henry Rollins, Nick Cave, Ice T, Dave Pirner of Soul Asylum, Jim Carroll, Tom Waits, Michael Franti (of Disposable Heroes of Hiphoprisy), Robyn Hitchcock and Perry Farrell.

"We get to play the main stage and side stage," said drummer Danny Carey.

The band will play the main stage when Babes in Toyland drops off the tour on July 15. That opportunity was enough to convince the band, which also includes guitarist Adam Jones of Scottyville, to turn down tours with Depeche Mode, Def Leppard and Guns 'N Roses.

"We want to be true to our fans," said Carey, a veteran of Green Jelly and Carole King's band. "We thought it would be a slap in the face to those who move in the underground scene. We thought, 'Why prostitute yourself?'"

For the most part, the band is pleased with Lollapalooza. "It totally feels justified. It's perfect for our band."

'Speed Racer Show' races into the Magic Bag Theater

By JOHN MONAGHAN
SPECIAL WRITER

He's more than just a badly animated memory from the late '60s. "Speed Racer's" cult status, most alive in TV-aholics age 25-35, roars into the Magic Bag Theater on July 9-10 with three original half-hour episodes compiled by "Speed" freak Jerry Beck.

The brainchild of comic book artist Tatsuo Yoshida, Speed and his Mach 5 debuted on Japanese television in April 1967. The 52 episodes, syndicated stateside by Trans-Lux Productions, went underground in the late '70s when stricter standards for children's programming objected to the show's violence.

Beck, who distributes vintage and current Japanimation through California-based Streamline Pictures, tracked down the original 35mm negatives for "The Speed Racer Show." He notes that "it's still the same animation that you see on TV, but it's really crisp and clear and looks like it was shot yesterday."

MOVIES

"The Car Hater" and the two-part "Race Against the Mammoth Car" made it into this compilation because, according to Beck, "we showed episodes to groups in L.A. and 'Car Hater' got the best audience response. It also has an explanation of all the gimmicks of the Mach 5."

Special buttons on the steering wheel enable Speed to leap over obstacles (with the help of "auto-jacks") or to engage special "belt tires" to grip steep terrain at top speeds. Rotating sawblades unfold to cut down heavy off-road brush and trees while a watertight transparent canopy protects him from bullets.

"Mammoth Car," perhaps the best-remembered of the original episodes, features mysterious Racer X, the black-clad rival driver who helps Speed out of sticky situations. TV viewers know that he is really Red Racer, Speed's brother, who left home years ago after arguing with their dad, Pops.

The program also unearths "The Treacherous Pirate," a Colonel Bleep short from 1966. The cartoons, produced in Miami, Fla., were the first made for television in color.

"It's an obscure cartoon show that I really love," says Beck. "So does the creator of 'Ren and Stimpy,' John K, who says it's one of his major influences in terms of style. It's an offbeat story about a space character with that '50s future look that's so cool and gamp now." Vintage kid commercials appear between cartoons. Rocky and Bullwinkle peddle a long-lost cereal called Sugar Jets. Casper the Ghost lectures about traffic safety in an odd concept according to Beck, because "basically you have this dead kid telling you how to cross the street."

What keeps the "Speed" cartoons so popular?

"I can't quite figure it out," says Beck. "I think because it was off the air for such a long time that a lot of kids from that time have fond memories of it today."

Cult status: Comic book artist Tatsuo Yoshida was responsible for creating "The Speed Racer Show" that went from TV cartoon fare to cult status when U.S. initiated stricter standards for children's programming in the '70s.

'Year of Comet:' As good as fine wine

By LEANNE ROGERS
STAFF WRITER

You don't need to be a connoisseur of fine wines to appreciate the romantic comedy "Year of the Comet" which ostentatiously is about efforts to keep hold of a $1 million bottle of wine.

Penelope Ann Miller plays a young woman who knows a great deal about wine, a subject that excites her tremendously. She dreams of working with collections of rare vintages but instead is stuck with pouring and cleaning up at wine tastings for her father's London wine business.

After a bit of struggle with her father and lumpy half-brother, Miller is sent off on the relatively simple task of cataloging the wine cellar at a Scottish estate. The job gets a bit more complicated, however, after she finds the rare bottle in the dirty cellar.

Naturally, the kindly looking landlady listens in on Miller's call home and finds out about the wine. The old lady sends her bug son to take the wine with her eye on a comfortable retirement.

Then there is the bunch who are holed up inside the supposedly empty mansion. Veteran French actor Louis Jourdan answers the door in a butler's rig but that's only an interruption from his main focus — torturing a former associate to find out where some secret formula has been hidden.

A man Miller met at the wine tasting and remembered for his intentional lowbrow behavior, played by Timothy Daly, has been dispatched to Scotland to retrieve the bottle of wine for his multi-millionaire boss.

After the initial bump start, Miller and Daly find romance while trying to keep or retrieve the wine. The chase really gets ignited after they find the hapless torturer victim stuffed in the wine cellar.

Miller and Daly make a very good romantic couple. Their early relationship doesn't get into the mean-spirited posturing some films rely on before getting their couple together. Both are characters you'd like to know, smart and funny.

There is a lot of humor in the film, some of unexpected bits like one of Jourdan's cronies trying to convince the couple he's a Scottish police inspector but speaking with a bad Swedish accent.

A rival bad guy, in the process of stealing the wine, pauses to flirt with Miller before boarding, his get-away plane. And Daly can't hear Miller yelling for help because the French chiropractor treating him has country music blaring.

Veteran director Peter Yates and writer William Goldman know how to keep the story moving with a light comedic touch. A rather good-natured quite enjoyable picture.

"Year of the Comet" is available on tape at local video stores. If you have a question or comment, call Leanne Rogers at 953-2103 or write her at The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

Prejudice blocks anti-depressant drug treatment

STREET SENSE

BARBARA SCHIFF

Message from Voice Mail:
Barbara,
Hello! I would rather not say my name. I would appreciate it if you could address an issue that's been bothering me. It is anti-depressants and chemical depression.

I am a 28-year-old who has spent my entire life depressed and finally consented to give Zoloft a try. I am also a recovering alcoholic. This is the first time in my life I have experienced any type of happiness, or energy, and it's only after intensive five-year therapy that I came to this conclusion to try anti-depressive medication.

People's perceptions of anti-depressants as happy pills, people's fears of chemical imbalance and depression really are issues that need to be addressed. The prejudice that they don't know because they're afraid of it.

This is something that has probably saved my life and feel very strongly. I would appreciate it if you could address this issue. Please sign me.

No Longer Depressed
Dear Caller,
It is wonderful that you feel better. Clearly and forcefully, you report one of the problems surrounding psychopharmacology. It is true that, often, because of a lack of knowledge on this subject, people are prejudiced against it. Sometimes that prejudice interferes with their healing or with the healing of someone close to them.

Your message educates, thereby fostering tolerance and understanding. This combination of anti-depressant medication and psychotherapy which has worked for you also has been effective in treating many depressions.

For readers who may not be familiar with the medication: Zoloft is a derivative of Prozac, both of which are anti-depressant medications. Since 1987, when Prozac was approved by the Food and Drug Administration, it has been prescribed to at least four million people worldwide.

A recent book on this subject, presenting the controversy surrounding the use of medication for psychological disorders, fairly and rationally, is "Listening to Prozac," by Dr. Peter Kramer.

Thank you for taking the time to give others hope.

The Vardar III Under-16 boys soccer team won last month's Region II soccer championship in Springfield, Mo., with a 1-0 win over Ohio South in the final. Vardar scored the only goal in the second half despite playing short a man due to two yellow-card infractions.

Jim Weber's goal off a corner kick with 20 minutes remaining was the lone score. Goalkeeper Alex Garn made a key save in the second half on a penalty shot.

Defenders Brian Collier, Jason Howard and Justin Marshall helped preserve the shutout. Garn was the MVP for the championship game.

Vardar III advanced to the final after beating Pegasus, the Illinois state champion, 2-0, as Dan Savich and Jeff Fliss were credited with the goals. Vardar III also beat a team from Kansas (4-1), Ohio North (3-2) and Iowa (2-1) in qualifying rounds.

Budget cuts eliminate school's soul

C. J. RISAK

The surgeons will survive.

Those skilled with a scalpel will be there to slice up society — the doctors, lawyers, accountants, etc.

But who will guide them?

From where will the judgment come? Who will tell them where to cut, and when?

More importantly, who will tell them not to?

When school boards decide science and math are more important than developing social skills, they are misguided. But it will forever be that way; no one will argue to keep the marching band instead of chemistry. Even those who back the band wouldn't.

They want both, not one over the other.

When backed into a corner and forced to choose, academics always wins. But when you sever a school's extracurricular activities, you cut away its heart, its soul. The fiber that bonds a school goes with any such amputation.

The classes that teach kids the composition of a cell and the capital of Bangladesh and how to determine square roots will be intact. But the places where a kid can learn how to use those skills will be missing.

At Monday's Plymouth-Canton school board meeting at Salem HS, University of Michigan football coach Gary Moeller put it in terms everyone can identify.

"We have the greatest anti-drug tool around," he told a crowd estimated at well over 2,000. "If the federal government invested all those millions and millions of dollars in extracurricular activities..."

The Plymouth-Canton district is one of many facing major budget cuts. It is one of many searching for a solution.

What will happen?

While the problem — no money — is the same in many districts, the possible solutions are numerous. In the Observerland area, the Farmington and Garden City districts are intact, for now. Garden City ensured that prep sports will be around in the fall by passing its millage last month.

But its position remains tenuous.

"Hopefully, we'll have all of our sports and everything will be the same as last year," said Garden City HS athletic director Bob Dropp. "Hopefully, it bought us a little time to allow the state to come up with a formula."

The state. Since Proposal A fell in the last election, school districts have been scrambling to find short-term funding. A year's worth, that's all, they say.

The Redford district has just such a solution in place. Forced to reduce the budget by $3.5 million, the extracurricular activities funds were trimmed.

But the programs were not lost. A combination of fund-raising efforts, pay-to-participate and budget cuts has saved them. Students will pay $50 to participate in as many activities as they wish, with a maximum of $100 per family for each school.

You can hear the questions already:

Why don't they do that every year?

The answer, courtesy of RU's athletic director, Jim Gibbons: "There's no way. It's really hard... we could do this for two years, maybe. And the (fund-raising) well's going to dry up sometime because everyone's doing it. 'Something's got to give. We've got to start putting the kids first.'"

Uncertain status

Like Plymouth-Canton, the Livonia and Wayne-Westland districts don't know their futures. Plymouth-Canton did agree to another millage proposal August 17; if it fails, say goodbye to extracurricular activities. No pay-to-participate plan is currently in the works.

In Wayne-Westland, a task force is being formed by the school board to study several plans, one of which includes complete funding by outside sources of school sports in the future. With two new board members just taking office, nothing is moving quickly. Another millage proposal is almost certain, but it may not come

It was another benchmark year for Observerland baseball teams.

The 1993 campaign marked the final season for Garden City coach Bob Dropp, who retired after 28 seasons. Dropp compiled an overall record of 406-227. His 1993 team reached the 20-win plateau for the first time in his career.

Westland John Glenn finished 27-5 overall, reaching the state Class A semifinals for the second consecutive year, the third appearance for coach Norm Hoenes. The Rockets also won the Lakes Division title in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

Other area league champions included Plymouth Canton (WLAA playoff and Western Division), Redford Catholic Central (Central Division/Catholic League), Redford Thurston (Tri-River) and Redford Union (Northwest Suburban).

District champions included John Glenn, CC, Plymouth Salem, RU, Thurston (Class B) and Livonia Clarenceville (Class C).

Last year's All-American Amateur Baseball Association runnerup and LCBL playoff champs got off the deck Wednesday, sweeping a double-header at Livonia's Ford Field.

The Panthers finished 20-15 overall before losing to Class A semifinalist Rochester Adams, 1-0, in the regional.

The future looks bright for RU, which returns 13 of 18 players, including its top three pitchers.

Berryman credits his staff, which also includes wife June and Barrie Lincourt.

"She (June) is the team's statistician, scorekeeper, batting coach and bench disciplinarian and self-proclaimed Mother Theresa," said Rick Berryman, who played baseball at Eastern Michigan under Ron Oestrike from 1966-69. "The four work well together as a team. We couldn't do it without them."

Berryman, a 22-year employee of the RU school district, teaches in self-contained learning disabilities. McGowan, a University of Michigan and Birmingham Brother Rice High product, has been the school's head football coach and physical education/computer teacher for four years.

Introducing the 1993 All-Area Baseball team as selected by the Observer sports staff:

FIRST TEAM

Aaron Scheffer, pitcher/infielder, Westland Glenn: The senior, who is reportedly leaning toward Henry Ford Community College, is the only repeat performer on this year's first-team. He won a total of 20 games for the Rockets in three years.

The right-handed pitcher went 8-2 this season with a 1.29 earned run average. He struck out 79 and walked only 14 in 73 innings, allowing just 13 earned runs.

When the all-Western Lakes Activities Association pick wasn't pitching, he played the infield (first or second base).

Scheffer batted .495 (51 for 103) with eight doubles and 25 RBI. He scored 30 runs.

"Aaron could play a lot of places and is an excellent fielder with a good feel for the game," Glenn coach Norm Hoenes said. "He pitched in all the tough games. We're really going to miss him."

Mark Rutherford, pitcher/infielder, Liv. Churchill: The senior right-hander, headed for Eastern Michigan University, was voted East Team MVP in the Michigan High School Baseball Coaches Association All-Star Game at Tiger Stadium.

Rutherford started all four years for the Chargers, winning 13 games with 149 career strikeouts.

This season, Rutherford finished 6-2 with an ERA of 0.79. He struck out 63 in 53 innings and walked only 13.

Offensively, the All-WLAA pick batted .350 (21 for 60) with 18 runs scored. He struck out only two times.

Rutherford also showed his versatility by playing all four infield positions as well as center field.

"Mark is so solid all the way around," Churchill coach Herb Osterlan said. "He can do so many things. He bunts and runs, even hits left-handed. He's very easy to coach. I can't say enough good things about him."

Brian Paluk, pitcher/outfielder, Redford CC: The 6-foot-5 senior right-hander became the ace of Catholic Central's staff.

Paluk, drafted by the Kansas City Royals in the 51st round, finished 10-3 his senior year with an ERA of 1.30. He struck out 109 in 80 1/3 innings, giving up only 15 earned runs and 29 walks.

The first-team All-Catholic pick also played the outfield, batting .275 in the fifth spot.

"It's a surprise for somebody his size to be that well-coordinated," CC coach John Salter said.

Paluk will play basketball and baseball at Saginaw Valley State.

"Brian's a good athlete, and he'll do well in college," Salter said. "He came on his senior year, and I'm pleased with his season. He's a good two-sport athlete who will do well in college."

"He's very coachable, listens and wants to learn."

Mike Stafford, infielder/pitcher, Ply. Canton: The senior switch-hitting first baseman, bound for Ohio State, hit .489 (37 for 76) with four homers and 27 RBI.

Fox's 'Danger Theatre' not for all tastes... and proud of it

By Carl Spinks

James Thurber once wrote a story about his favorite party pastime, a word game called Ghosts. His wife, however, did not share Thurber's giddy enthusiasm for the game, he noted, and "wished it were in hell with Knock, Knock, Who's There?"

It's hard to find a clear consensus on anything. From traditionally taboo topics such as politics and religion to unexpected hornets' nests like fantasy Super Bowls and "Well, I wouldn't call that green in a million years," only one bet is safe: people will disagree.

Television is no exception. Even though producers do costly research to find the lowest common denominators and safest (i.e., blandest) on-camera personalities, likes and dislikes on television are hotly debated. Want to polarize a party? Lament the passing of "Twin Peaks." Longing to irritate a newsound? Opine that venerable David Brinkley doesn't know Bosnia from Bosco, then stand back and let the games begin.

Now careening into the fray is Fox's new "Danger Theatre," premiering Sunday, July 11, and this one's sure to register high on the argument meter.

Some will see it as a vigorous spoof of bygone cop/adventure/dogooder shows such as "Knight Rider" and "Hawaii Five-O," programs filled with square-jawed heroes, beady-eyed villains and deathless dialogue such as "Not so fast, pal!" and "Book him!" Detractors, however, will quickly peg the series as just another dumb sitcom, indistinguishable from, or even worse than the shows it aims to parody.

Robert Vaughn ("The Man From U.N.C.L.E.," "Superman III") brings his usual stolid, gray-at-the-temple authority to his duties as host of the series. Each week, Vaughn babbles ominously about the mean streets of contemporary America, the hooded gunmen lurking at every door and the helpless plight of peace-loving citizens scared to death by the may hem they see around them. He also makes periodic gaffes, such as solemnly intoning "crimes of fashion" for "crimes of passion" (a cue-card error), or eagerly inquiring about the post-show party when the episode is only half over.

Vaughn's gloomy pronouncements serve as introductions for each week's installments of two miniature series: First up is "The Searcher," starring Dietrich Bader as the leather-clad, motorcycle-riding title character. Endowed with an impossibly deep, gravelly voice and a clumsiness normally reserved for animated characters, our hero stumbles through his macho paces, more or less saving the day but never getting the girl.

"Tropical Punch," the second of the show's recurring story lines, stars Adam West ("Batman") as stumbling, stout-hearted Mike Morgan, a captain on the police force of a crime-ridden Hawaiian city. Aided by his assistants, Detective Tom McCormick (sort of a blow-dried Barney Fife, played by Billy Morrisette), and rotund Al Hamoki (Peter Navy Tuiaosopo), Morgan blusters his way through solving crimes, relentlessly drawing his gun and spouting an endless litany of tough-guy nonsense. These guys make "Police Squad" look like Interpol.

"Danger Theatre" is the brainchild of director Penelope Spheeris ("Wayne's World," the upcoming "Beverly Hillbillies") and Robert Wolterstorff of "Quantum Leap." Besides her duties as executive producer, Spheeris also directs several episodes.

So what's the verdict on "Danger Theater?" Is it a keen-eyed, on-target spoof of by-the-numbers action shows, or a numbing half-hour of real stupidity, a no-brainer that makes "Mannix" seem like "Masterpiece Theatre?"

Here's the rub: it's both. For fans of "Airplane" and the "Hot Shots" movies the show will likely be a pallid but pleasing imitation. But viewers more inclined to PBS than "Police Squad" will find themselves quickly scurrying to another channel.

NBC hits the beach for AVP volleyball tour
BY MICHAEL SCOGIN

Can't make it to the beach this summer? It may be little consolation, but NBC brings the sights and sounds of the surf and the sand into living rooms across the nation when it presents coverage of the Association of Volleyball Professionals Pro Beach Volleyball tour on Sunday, July 4.

The tour stops in Manhattan Beach, Calif., for the Killer Loop tourney. Former U.S. Olympians Chris Marlowe and Paul Sunderland handle the play-by-play and color analysis for NBC.

NBC's coverage is part of this year's expanded schedule of AVP telecasts. NBC will travel to Hermosa Beach, Calif., for the U.S. Championships on Saturday, Aug. 28, and Sunday, Aug. 29, and then it's on to Cincinnati for the Tournament of Champions on Saturday, Sept. 4.

NBC will break new ground on Saturday, July 31, from Milwaukee, Wis., when it presents the first live network coverage of a women's pro beach volleyball event.

"Everything about the AVP is growing," says Jon Miller, NBC Sports' vice president of program planning and development. "Interest among spectators, advertisers and participants is at an all-time high. Our interest in the fastest-growing sport in America is increasing, and that is reflected in NBC's commitment to the sport."

SOAP WORLD

A year of success for Linda Dano

BY CANDACE HAVENS

It has been a busy year for Linda Dano. She turned 50, had a front-burner story line as Felicia on "Another World," launched her new accessory line and question-and-answer segment on cable shopping network QVC, and stopped along the way to pick up the Emmy for Outstanding Lead Actress.

Dano is not one to rest on her laurels and accolades, actually, she is not one to rest at all. She is perpetually busy and lives by the popular motto "Just Do It."

"I think if I stopped long enough to think about everything I'm doing, I'd only worry, and then I wouldn't get anything accomplished," says Dano. "I remember when I was a kid and my mom would say, 'If you want something done, give it to someone who is busy.' If you have a million things to do you find a way, but if you only have one thing to do you drag your feet."

Dano has spent the last 11 years portraying the writer/talk show host Felicia, and she is the first to give her co-workers the credit for helping her to make the character such a success.

"You know, it's a funny thing," Dano says, "actors always get a bad rap. People say they are jealous, competitive and unfriendly, and on our set that couldn't be further from the truth. We are like a family, sometimes competitive, but also very supportive."

Dano also feels lucky to have a good support system at home. She and husband Frank Attardi have been together for 17 years and married for 11 years. "Frank is such a dear, wonderful man," says Dano lovingly. "Whenever I come home, no matter what time it is, he doesn't glare at me and ask where have I been. He puts his arms around me and says 'Hi honey, are you tired?'" Dano reciprocates the caring attitude by leaving special gifts under his pillow and arranging for candlelight dinners whenever possible.

Attardi and Dano share a passion for their early 18th-century home in Connecticut. "When we really want to relax we go antiquing," says the actress. "We love to take long drives and stop at little antique stores along the way. It is so much fun for us."
