Hoben seeks 17 teacher recalls

A $2-million-plus bonus school aid package for the Plymouth Canton schools will probably be used to rehire 17 teachers and support workers, and also buy supplies. The teachers' union had hoped that 25 to 30 teachers would be rehired.

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

With the $2-million-plus Plymouth-Canton Community Schools is receiving from the state, many teachers and parents hoped 25-30 teachers could be hired to help bring down class size, particularly at the elementary level, where classes have as many as 36 children.

It appears likely that 17 K-12 teachers will be hired.

Despite the pleas of teachers union president Chuck Portelli and Class-size Action Partnership co-chairman Sue Feiten, the Plymouth-Canton school board's finance committee is going along with Superintendent John Hoben's recommendation that a total of 17 teachers be hired.

School board members and finance committee members Dave Artley, Jack Farrow and Dean Swartzwelter met Monday night and reviewed Hoben's plan.

Hoben is suggesting the state aid be spent as follows:

- $720,000 for 17 certified teachers.
- $150,000 for five maintenance employees.
- $168,000 to rehire the auditorium manager, technology aide, computer technician, and fleet manager.
- $132,000 for equipment and computer repair and replacement.
- $100,000 for textbooks.
- $85,000 for student assessment.
- $42,000 for block grants for building supplies.
- $58,000 for part-time secretaries in special education, maintenance, security and data entry.
- $35,000 for the Talented and Gifted shuttle and schedule adjustments.
- $100,000 for staff development
- $324,000 in fund balance money.

Model planes take off this weekend

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Watching the yellow miniature Piper Cub on the runway ready for takeoff can't be much different than watching its real counterpart taking off from an airport such as Mettetal.

The machine is gassed up. The propeller begins spinning and the sounds — a little softer — are the same as with an actual aircraft. With remote control in hand, Canton resident Bert Brian, president of the Flying Pilgrims Model Airplane Club, guides the 13-pound, quarter-scale J3 Cub into the air.

"You can see it bouncing," Brian said, as his plane shifted through the winds Monday afternoon at the club's field at Van Born and Lilley roads. "The ideal day is a little wind."

The field will be the site of an end-of-the-season demonstration of model airplanes 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Saturday and Sunday this weekend. The public is invited.

Officially called the "Fall Fly for Fun Phase Out," the Flying Pilgrims will present the International Miniature Aircraft Association Chapter 31 demonstration. And it's all for fun.

"It can do loops and rolls," said member Jim Smith of Canton. One of his eight or nine planes is a Sukhoi ,a Russian acrobatic plan.

"The control functions are the same," said Smith, a former DC-6 pilot. "In a model plane, you've got to visualize yourself sitting in the airplane."

As Smith explains it, model airplanes are a hobby for some people who would love to fly but can't afford it. And for others it's an extension of flying actual aircraft.

The weekend event will draw an expected 50-60 pilots with about 80 model planes to the field. You have to turn north off Van Born — behind Valley Towing — to a gated entrance to the field, which the Flying Pilgrims lease from Canton Township for $1 annually.

Like the real thing: Bert Brian, president of the Flying Pilgrims Model Airplane Club, demonstrates his quarter-scale Piper J3 Cub at the club's field. The club presents the International Model Airplane Association Chapter 31 fall demonstration this Saturday and Sunday.

"This will be strictly demonstration," said Brian, certified as a single-engine pilot. "We allow four (planes) in the air at a time. Everyone takes a turn and everyone has a good time."

Members of the Flying Pilgrims can have any size of miniature plane. The international organization, of which many Flying Pilgrims members are also members, is a special interest group for giant model aircraft. That means planes with a minimum wing span of 80 inches or quarter-scale or larger. Bi-plane models, however, can have wing spans of less than 80 inches.

In addition to having a good time, the clubs are meeting this weekend to encourage the public and anyone else interested in model planes, to take a peek. The Flying Pilgrims is designed, Brian said, to promote the hobby.

Admission to the event is $3 a carload. That money will go right back to the club, which uses it for maintenance and upkeep of the field that boasts runways.

"People will be on hand to talk about the sport," Brian said.

Area congressmen react to health plan

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

PRESCRIPTION FOR REFORM
HEALING OUR HEALTH CARE SYSTEM

The president proposes, the Congress disposes.

Keep that in mind as President Bill Clinton's national healthcare reform plan wends its way through the legislative process.

What you heard last night is only a starting point, members of Congress emphasize, a focus to begin a great debate on an issue that touches every American.What you see now isn't necessarily what you get in the end.

"I think it's going to be a longtime," said Joe Knollenberg, R-Bloomfield Hills, whose district includes Redford, most of Livonia and Southfield, Farmington, Birmingham and Bloomfield.

"I expect nothing in '93 at all,perhaps something very limited in '94. There's just too many sides on this," he said.

At least five other bills addressing health care have been proposed in Congress, Knollenberg said.

"I think what that says is nobody is really happy with what they see coming down from the administration and want to offer alternatives," he said.

The health care task force chaired by Hillary Rodham Clinton set two broad goals - to make basic health care services available to every American and to get a handle on spiraling medical costs.

"No president ever sends anything to Congress and has it sail through," said William D. Ford,D-Ypsilanti, whose district includes Canton, Plymouth, Westland, Garden City and part of Livonia.

As was the case in the president's deficit reduction/economic recovery plan, the devil will be in the details.

Ford said he's noticed a change in attitude among constituents in recent years. "They want us to do something about it (now)," he said.

The big change in thinking resulted from a loss of manufacturing jobs in the auto, steel and rubber industries, a more recent loss of white collar management jobs and a corresponding loss of health coverage.

He anticipates much more bipartisan political consensus on this issue than Clinton's economic proposals.

"Republicans have stopped saying we don't need a health insurance program," Ford said."Now, we've reached critical mass points ...where the argument has shifted from do we need a program to how's the best way to do it."

Ford expects to be right in the middle of the fray as chairman of the Education and Labor Committee.

Gas maker plans new plant, seeks abatement

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Fifty-one new jobs will accompany a new $9 million cylinder gas filling and distribution center in Canton.

If the state approves, AGA Gas Inc. will receive a 50-percent tax break on personal property over 12 years. But that is anybody's guess with what state legislators are doing with school property taxes.

"There will be no need for tax abatement. Legislators are already dealing with it," said Township Supervisor Tom Yack, referring to the removal of property taxes as a means of financing public education.

In 1992, Canton Township had 46 tax abatements out — some companies have more than one — in the Plymouth-Canton and Van Buren school districts, amounting to $760,714.38, according to Township Treasurer Elaine Kirchgatter.

House Bill 5013 would phase out industrial facilities exemptions (tax abatements). The issue is still in committee and no hearing has yet been set, Republican state Rep. Deborah Whyman of Canton confirmed.

■ 'There will be no need for tax abatement. Legislators are already dealing with it.'

While 50 percent will be abated, if approved by the state, the remaining 50 percent is taxable. Also taxable are any additional improvements, new investment and equipment.

The jobs the company — which is moving from Detroit — will bring would pay an average $14 an hour. "We are trying to hire locally," said Jonathan Hoy, AGA Gas director of tax and internal control, adding it is a union shop.

The new facility will serve the company's operations in Michigan as well as northern Ohio. AGA Gas, at 5001 Dewitt Road in the South Central Canton Industrial Development District off Michigan Ave., will manufacture and distributes industrial and medical gases. It will manufacture acetylene gas and also perform high-pressure cylinder filling for other industrial gases.

Primary products that will be used at the facility are oxygen, nitrogen, carbon dioxide, argon, propane and acetylene. It will also have a cylinder maintenance facility for testing, cleaning, repairing, and painting cylinders. A vehicle maintenance building will be built with a small warehouse to store welding equipment.

"Our facilities are really the state of the art. The biggest concern in our industry is safety," Hoy said.

He told township officials that right now the facility's processes are being tested and full production is expected by the end of the year.

Woman reports pit bull attack on fenced-in calf

A member of a local family called police Sept. 19 when she discovered that a pit bull dog was biting one of their calves, according to a Canton police report.

The woman told police she heard the calf crying. When she checked on it she found a white- or cream-colored pit bull biting the calf's neck and trying to pull it through a fence.

Police found cuts on the calf's neck. It's believed the dog belongs to a nearby resident.

B&E arrest

An unidentified man was arrested Sept. 20 in connection with the breaking of a residence on Corbett, according to a Canton police report.

A 25-year-old resident was awakened by a noise as he slept on a downstairs couch at about 2:40 a.m. The man went upstairs and found a man with a flashlight going through a closet.

The resident yelled at the man and grabbed him. The unidentified man turned around and hit the resident in the mouth and face. The man then ran out through a garage, breaking the door leading from the house to the garage.

■ COP CALLS

The resident chased the man northbound on Corbett to Pepperwood, where he lost him. The resident was transported to St. Mary Hospital in Livonia.

Police continued looking for the man, and a suspect was later apprehended between two houses on Ryegate. A television, taken from the residence, was found north of the house. A ring believed taken from the resident's bedroom was later found on the man who was arrested.

Dangerous weapon

A 16-year-old Canton High School student was ticketed for possession of a dangerous weapon Sept. 17, according to a Canton police report.

Police met with high school administrator Ken Jacobs after the student was found in possession of a knife with a blade longer than 3 inches. The knife was confiscated from the student.

2 face charges in shooting incident

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Two men face a preliminary examination before 35th District Judge Charles Kaufman at 9 a.m. tomorrow in connection with a shooting incident in Plymouth Sept. 15. No one was hurt in the altercation, which stemmed from a dispute over a girl.

It was not gang-related, according to police.

The men pleaded not guilty at their arraignments Friday before District Judge James Garber.

Charged with felonious assault in the commission of a felony is Christopher Weycker, 18, of Canton. The offense is punishable by four years in prison.

Johnathon Bartush, 18, of Plymouth is charged with attempted felonious assault, punishable by two years in prison.

Weycker was released on $4,000 bond, and Bartush was released on personal bond.

The shooting occurred outside the Harvey Street Home of a 17-year-old Plymouth youth.

Police allege that Weycker and Bartush are friends of a Dearborn man who was upset that his girlfriend was being pursued by the Plymouth youth. The girlfriend, also from Plymouth, is a juvenile.

A confrontation occurred over a situation at Fall Festival and it erupted again at about 10:30 p.m. last Wednesday when Weycker, Bartush and the Dearborn man went to the Plymouth youth's home.

The youth told police the three came to his home to give him a hard time over his involvement with the Dearborn man's girlfriend. An argument between the Dearborn man and the youth ensued.

Weycker and Bartush remained outside on the sidewalk. During the argument the Plymouth youth heard the gunshot, saw a muzzle flash, then dove into his house. The group got into their car and left.

Police later talked to the girlfriend's father, who told officers she was out with the Dearborn man, but would be home soon.

When the group arrived at the girl's home, police identified them and confiscated two pistols, a .22-caliber pistol and .32-caliber, from the trunk of a Ford Thunderbird they were driving.

The subjects were taken to the police station, where they were interviewed.

Weycker told police firing the gun was an accident and that he aimed at trees, not the youth's house.

The club also provides instructors at no charge for novice model airplane enthusiasts. The club's initiation fee is $50 with a $30 annual dues.

Club members either design their own planes or build them from a kit. "You couldn't take a finger and punch through that fabric," Brian said, touching the wing of his Piper Cub. "It would have to be a sharp object."

Brian's Piper Cub is made of balsa wood, spruce and aircraft plywood. The skeleton is covered with an iron-on fabric.

Smith admits it can be an expensive sport. The engine on his plane costs about $350, the radio (or remote control system) $300, and the plane itself about $450. That's not mention maintenance on the models as well as gasoline or methanol — depending on the plane — every time you want to fly.

"There's a learning curve here. It's actually a bit harder to fly than it looks," Smith said.

Public invited to discuss growth

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

How Canton Township should develop and grow will be the focus of a special Canton Township Board of Trustees meeting 8:30 a.m. to noon, Saturday, in Ypsilanti.

The public is invited to the meeting that will feature planning consultant Dick Carlisle of Carlisle & Associates of Ann Arbor, at the Radisson Corporate Training Center, 1275 S. Huron, Ypsilanti.

"His (Carlisle) job will be to focus the board in on what is their philosophies in general (their goals for the community). We won't talk specifics," said Aaron Machnik, township municipal services director.

He said the meeting is at the Ypsilanti training center because he wanted a more formal setting — than the township board room, for example, — for the meeting.

"We don't have a facility in Canton Township that provides an atmosphere where you can conduct business for 25-30 people," he said.

Machnik said he is hoping to have a similar meeting with planning commissioners the following weekend.

The meeting's objective is to define the major issues as township officials and planners prepare goals and strategies for land use. The meeting is a preliminary step toward revamping the township's development and growth policies and its master land use plan.

"Right now, we've got a written document that doesn't say a whole lot," said Jeff Goulet, township planner, referring to the master plan. "We really just have a map but no guiding principles. It's a point in time for evaluating ourselves. How does one thing — transportation, utilities, land use — impact the other."

The last narrative drafted to accompany the land use plan was completed in 1986. "It has real broad goals," Goulet added.

At Saturday's meeting, board members are expected to give planning officials some idea of the direction they see for Canton as it continues growing.

Many times when planning commissioners are trying to make a decision on a developer's land use request, all they have is the master plan map. "It's real difficult sometimes to make an educated decision," Goulet said.

Before revising the township's land use map, planners want to know in which direction Canton should travel in its development. The master land use plan should provide guidance to township officials, Goulet added.

The first step on the road to revising the master land use plan is to define issues that confront the township and its growth, followed by evaluating the issues, developing alternatives and finally revising the map.

Talks begin with Omnicom on new cable franchise

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Negotiations with Omnicom for a new cable television franchise agreement have begun.

"I think the first couple days, the talks went fine," said Canton Township Trustee Phil LaJoy, a member of the Intergovernmental Cable TV Committee.

Omnicom representatives and members of the four-community consortium — Canton and Plymouth townships and the cities of Plymouth and Northville — met for two days Sept. 15-16 to get the ball rolling on the long-awaited negotiations for new franchises between the cable company and the individual communities.

Canton's existing 15-year-agreement expires in 1995 while the city of Plymouth's, for example, expires in 1994.

Officials on both sides want to get under way. "We want to get moving on this. If we can get new things for the community and get it all moving, that will be good," LaJoy said.

■ 'We want to get moving on this. If we can get new things for the community and get it all moving, that will be good.'

Phil LaJoy
cable panelist

Officials on both sides will not specify exactly what each is looking for in a new franchise. The consortium has a cable television consultant, Larry Monroe, working with them. Lisa Boland, Omnicom general manager, said the cable company does not have a consultant working on negotiations.

"It was very productive," Boland said, referring to the two days of negotiations. "We walked away with issues that both sides need to discuss with their respective sides."

Omnicom will negotiate separate franchises for each of the communities. "There may be some minor differences among them," Boland said.

And both sides of negotiations are trying to wade through the pile of rules and regulations in the federal 1992 Cable Act. "We're trying to keep up to speed as best as we can. These things are changing. We constantly need to keep on top of it," LaJoy said.

Boland said she hopes federal officials will leave the regulations alone for awhile. "It's caused confusion in the minds of cable people as well as customers," she said, adding the federal government changed some of the rules after the act became effective.

Meanwhile, Omnicom is negotiating with the Detroit area's broadcast channels WJBK-2, WDIV-4, WXYZ-7 and WKBD-50.

Under the new federal regulations, those channels can charge cable companies for their programming on Omnicom, Oct. 6 is the deadline for agreements, Boland said.

"We hope there is no disruption. We believe this would be a win-win situation (for broadcast and cable)," Boland said. "We are diligently negotiating. The fax machines are busy. Negotiations are continuing."

If there is no settlement between cable and broadcast, antennas will have to be hooked up for those cable customers who want the broadcast channels.

LaJoy said the cable consortium is not taking a position either way on the cable-broadcast negotiations. "I would imagine they will get that worked out," he added.

As of Sept. 1, Omnicom adjusted cable rates for its customers. The new rates mean reduced bills for some customers. The shift in rates was due to the cable act's mandate that cable companies' charges reflect the actual cost of a service. Before the act, companies could keep the price of basic service artificially low by shifting its cost onto additional services, such as remote controls.

Highland's old building is new Fretter headquarters

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Goodbye Highland, hello Fretter.

The Fretter Appliance chain plans to move its company headquarters to the building on Sheldon Road once occupied by Highland Appliance, a Fretter spokesman said Tuesday.

And should Fretter move in on schedule, the city or schools will lose no portion of the roughly $500,000 in taxes the property generates annually.

Highland Superstores Inc. vacated the site after going out of business in March.

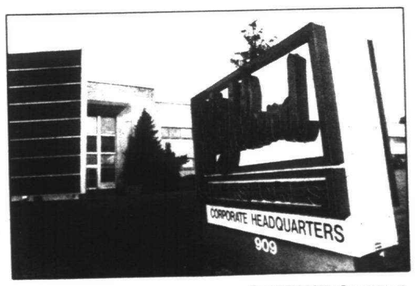
City of Plymouth officials said then the property would likely draw interest from other companies. "I knew there were several organizations out there that were interested in the property," said city finance director Bill Graham.

The site at 909 N. Sheldon provides 35 acres and 530,000 square feet of warehouse and office space.

"It has rail access, access to major north and south expressways — that's a heck of a deal," Graham said. "It would be extremely expensive to replace that building as it currently exists.

"Essentially we're really most pleased that something of a positive nature is happening over there," Graham said.

Terry Bixler, a city planning commissioner and sales associate for Signature Associates which is brokering the sale, said Fretter's $1.1 million offer to buy the property has been accepted by the bankruptcy court.



BILL BRESLER/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Changing hands: A Fretter Co. spokesman said the appliance chain plans to move metro Detroit office, warehouse and service operations to the former Highland building in Plymouth by the end of the year.

"We're hoping to finalize the purchase by the end of October," Bixler said.

Stuart Garson, legal counsel for Fretter, said the company was seeking to buy the property "because it's cost effective to centralize operations."

He said operations at two Livonia warehouses, a Redford service facility and offices in Southfield will be moved to Plymouth "before the end of the year.

There are no changes planned for the building or grounds. "Some of the areas need to be cleaned up," Garson said, but no major changes are planned.

While some neighbors of the Highland facility complained about noise from occasional car audio system shows, Garson said that won't be a problem.

"We probably would not have any there," he said.

"We pride ourselves on being a good neighbor in whatever context," Garson added.

Fretter, which has 101 stores in nine states, recently merged with the Silo appliance chain with 182 stores in 15 states.

Their combined sales are $1.4 billion annually.

Memorial location creates dispute

By Kevin Brown
Staff Writer

It wasn't exactly a battle.

But some veterans and supporters of an effort to move the town's civil war memorial from Riverside Cemetery to a side area of Kellogg Park made their case before the city commission on Monday.

And opponents of the move, including other veterans, made their case that it should remain at the cemetery.

While the views clashed, points raised on both sides of the potentially emotional issue were presented in a mannered way on Monday. But arguments are likely to get a second airing when city commissioners review the issue at their meeting Monday, Oct. 4.

That's when an overall policy of how to review requests for memorials in Kellogg Park is scheduled for consideration.

Henry Giles of Plymouth-Canton VFW Post 528 brought the issue before the commission, reading a letter from John Pappas, a Vietnam veteran heading a Plymouth Civil War Association. Pappas couldn't make it Monday due to work considerations.

In his letter, Pappas called for bringing the statue, known as "The Lady," "back to her place of honor in Kellogg Park, back as a reminder of that terrible conquest known as the War Between the States."

"We feel it was a great shameful injustice to remove it from the eye of the people," Pappas continued.

Veterans say that moving the statue next to the Vietnam memorial in the triangular area near the Wilcox house would allow vets to go to just one place to conduct ceremonies on Memorial Day and Veteran's Day.

Built in 1917, the statue was moved from the park in 1969. Pappas wrote that the commission should approve the move — to be paid for by donations raised by the Civil War committee — "because it is the right thing to do."

Most of the 100 men of Company C of the 24th Michigan Infantry that left Plymouth to fight in the Battle of Gettysburg were Plymouth residents.

"Eighty percent were lost in the first hour or hour and a half of fighting," said Bob Zaetta, a teacher and committee member from Plymouth Township.

To bring the monument back would remind "future generations of what Plymouth contributed to that great struggle," Zaetta said.

But Niles Beaugrand, chairman of the city cemetery board, said, "That statue is overlooking our veterans in the cemetery. It's our consensus it should not be moved."

Zaetta responded, "I don't think any one cemetery is more representative than another," adding Civil War veterans are also buried at other local cemeteries.

Attorney Jim Ryan, speaking for Janet Richwine whose husband Perry as mayor helped move the statue to the cemetery, said, "She believes the statue is in its rightful place, in a cemetery."

Myrilla Schrader of the Plymouth Branch of the National Farm and Garden Club said the club headed the effort to move the statue in 1969.

"The object of the Garden Club was to make Kellogg Park an open park of just flowers, trees, green grass and park benches for all to enjoy, and we might add, had wonderful support of the entire city in doing so."

Schrader said the city should also be wary about bringing the statue back because kids who like to climb it could fall, sparking lawsuits.

The move of the statue is backed by two local vets groups, the Plymouth Canton VFW branch 528 and the American Legion Mayflower post, veterans at the meeting said.

Monuments galore: Saying they're concerned with a growing number of monuments in Kellogg Park, city commissioners on Oct. 4 are scheduled to discuss a policy by which to accept such monuments.

Mountain Jack's open

Judith Herndon has been named general manager of the new Mountain Jack's steakhouse restaurant on Haggerty Road, just south of Ford Road, in Canton.

The new restaurant, in the former Ponderosa steakhouse building, opened to the public Wednesday.

Herndon is a 15-year veteran of the restaurant industry and has worked nine years with Paragon Steakhouse Restaurants, parent company of the national steakhouse chain, which operates Carvers, Hungry Hunter and Mountain Jack's. Before her appointment as general manager, Herndon was the restaurant manager at Mountain Jack's in Ann Arbor.

She is a graduate of Eastern Michigan University and the Culinary Arts/Hotel and Restaurant Management School at Oakland Community College. She is a member of the National Restaurant Association, West Stadium Business Association and a contributor to the Ann Arbor Art Association.

The Canton restaurant will join 13 other Mountain Jack's restaurants in the Detroit area. It is open for lunch 11:30 a.m.-2 p.m. for lunch Monday-Friday. Dinner is served 5 p.m.-10 p.m., Monday-Friday; and 4 p.m.-11 p.m., Saturday, and noon -9 p.m., Sunday. For more information call 981-9522.

Tot sent to Disney World

Nikki, a 3-year-old Dundee resident, will be sent on a dream vacation to Walt Disney World in Orlando thanks to a donation made by the new Mountain Jack's steakhouse in Canton.

"As a company, we are strongly committed to the neighborhoods where we do business and it is our philosophy to give something back to those communities," said Steven Wittert, president of Paragon Steakhouse Restaurants Inc., the parent company of the national chain that operates Mountain Jack's restaurants.

The new Mountain Jack's opened to the public Wednesday at 2100 N. Haggerty Road, just south of Ford Road.

"We are honored to help make Nikki's wish come true through this donation to the local chapter of the Make-A-Wish Foundation," Wittert added.

Nikki will make a special appearance at the VIP ribbon-cutting ceremony Tuesday, Sept. 28. Nikki, her family, and a Make-A-Wish Foundation representative will be present to receive the donation from the new restaurant.

Schools agency hires new chief

The Wayne County Regional Educational Service Agency's governing board has named Farmington Public Schools superintendent Michael Flanagan as the new RESA superintendent.

Flanagan will replace William Simmons, who retired Aug. 31. Simmons, 73, had been in charge of RESA since 1972.

Formerly known as Wayne County Intermediate School District, RESA links Wayne County's 34 school districts to the state department of education. RESA offers consulting, technical assistance and training to 37,500 school employees responsible for the 363,000 public school students in Wayne County.

In addition to helping districts develop their own programs, RESA directly operates special education programs for more than 500 students, ages 3 to 26 with severe mental and physical impairments and a program for 190 students ages 5 to 18 with severe emotional impairments. RESA also runs Head Start programs for more than 3,500 kids. The RESA superintendent oversees an agency with more than 900 employees and a budget of $125 million in federal, state and local money.

Flanagan was unanimously selected to replace Simmons as RESA's superintendent by a 5-0 vote of the board at a special meeting Sept. 15. His official starting date and terms of his contract are yet to be determined.

In announcing the board's decision, President Mary Blackmon said, "The RESA board believes that Mike Flanagan has the experience, ability and character to lead Wayne County RESA into the next century. Mike is a man of great vision who will complement the organization while helping us stretch. We are confident that he will recognize and maximize the staff talent, serve our constituents well and positively impact education throughout the state. Mike Flanagan is one of the nation's outstanding educators and leaders. We are fortunate to have found a person with these exceptional qualities. We look forward to working with him."

Flanagan worked in the private financial sector from 1971 to 1973. His career in education began in 1973 when he served as a teaching assistant at Eastern Michigan University. In 1974 he joined Farmington schools as director of student services. From 1977 to 1985 Flanagan served as assistant superintendent of the Huron Valley Schools. He then returned to Farmington schools as assistant superintendent (1985-86), then as deputy superintendent (1986-89). Flanagan has been head superintendent of Farmington schools since 1989.

"I look forward to this career change," Flanagan said. "It will provide me the opportunity to make a larger contribution. In Farmington, I've been able to influence the education of thousands of students. Through RESA the potential is much greater. Wayne County is a microcosm of the whole nation. If we can make changes here, we've created a national model. That potential is exciting."

Flanagan, 44, earned a bachelor's degree in finance and economics from the University of Notre Dame in 1971 and a master's degree in educational leadership from Eastern Michigan University in 1974.

Flanagan is the chairman of the state board of education's administrator waiver commission, vice chairman of the national superintendency institute, a member of the state superintendent's school finance advisory committee and a member of the Michigan Association of School Administrators Council.

Originally from Brooklyn, N.Y., Flanagan and his wife, Anna, have three children, Mike, 15, Brian, 13, and Christa, 10.

New Chief: Farmington Public Schools Superintendent Michael Flanagan has been chosen to take over the reigns of the Wayne County Regional Educational Service Agency, which serves Wayne County's 34 school districts.

Hiring 17 teachers would raise the number of total staff to 745. Enrollment is just shy of 15,000, reflecting zero growth over last year.

Hoben emphasized the governor has not yet signed the state aid bill, and that the exact amount of revenue the district is receiving won't be known until then.

"Teachers gave $1.1 million and to bring back 30 jobs," said Portelli. "The same day, we came into $2.7 million. We would like to see you match the $1.1 million with $1.1 million."

Portelli said short of that, he'd like to see the board at least spend $420,000 more to bring back 13 additional teachers. "We'd see a significant decrease in class size across the board." While the district did recall 30 certified staff after teachers agreed to defer their 3-percent raise, the action didn't decrease class size, as many of the recalled employees were counselors, social workers, media specialists and the like.

Farrow said he favors bolstering the fund balance to avoid being hit with an unexpected expense the district can't cover. Farrow also favored restoring support staff.

"Theoretically, we could reduce class size to 23 or 24. But if we eliminate support staff, teachers can't do their jobs as effectively."

Feiten said three first grades at Bird have 32 students, and that at Miller Elementary, third- and fourth-grade classes have 34, 35 and 36 students.

"Originally, you were going to operate with a smaller fund balance," she said, adding that she hasn't suggested removing support staff.

Ray Hoedel, associate superintendent for business, said, "It would be nice if the district had some fund balance when you have no idea what's coming."

■ 'It would be nice if the district had some fund balance when you have no idea what's coming.'
Ray Hoedel
associate superintendent

"Agreed, but we have a dire need in the classroom," said Feiten. "Based on restorations happening mostly at the middle schools and at the park, I would like to see more equity at elementary." Feiten suggested cutting costs by perhaps having counselors teach a class or two, or by hiring nurse interns instead of recalling a full-time nurse at the high school.

Swartzwelter and Artley said they'd like to get Hoben's plan ready to implement. "If the governor signs this on Friday and we have the cannons loaded and the fuses ready, we can approve this on Monday and be ready to go," Swartzwelter said.

"I agree with Dean," said Artley. "We have to be ready to act on the 27th. I'd like to see the recommendations included in the budget process."

Upon noticing a reporter enter the room at the outset of the meeting, which was not publicized, chairman Artley directed Errol Goldman, executive director for employee relations, to beware of disclosing "items that are proprietary in nature."

Romanian woman excels at S'craft

By Ralph R. Echtinaw
Staff Writer

Garden City resident Marie Zaharie knows a little something about adversity.

Currently a Schoolcraft College student at Radcliff Center, Zaharie walked a long way to get to that institution of higher education.

Her walk began in Cujmir, Romania. It was 1988, she was 32 years old and Communist dictator Nicolae Ceausescu still lorded it over the country of 23 million people.

Zaharie's husband, John, had already escaped to Italy, and now it was her turn to flee.

With her two sons, 5 and 7 years old, Zaharie and four others walked throughout the night, 60 kilometers across the border into Yugoslavia.

"I escaped," she said. "It was very difficult."

But the trip wasn't over. Zaharie and her sons rode a train to Belgrade, the former capital of Yugoslavia, then on to the western side of the country. From there she walked a few miles into Italy, officially passing out from under the Iron Curtain.

Reunited with her husband in Italy, Zaharie waited an additional 15 months before getting permission to come to the United States in December 1989, sponsored by a Romanian family in Detroit. "We didn't know them, but they want to help us," Zaharie said. "They advised us to live in Detroit because it's more cheaper."

A year or so ago, Zaharie got a job with Garden City's John Santeiu and Son Funeral Home as a cleaning woman, recommended by a fellow member of Sts. Peter & Paul Romanian Orthodox Church in Dearborn Heights.

Lynda Bancroft, a secretary at the funeral home, called Zaharie a "hard worker, a smart lady and an excellent cook." As it would happen, Zaharie occasionally brings elaborate homemade pastries to share with everyone.

■ 'I escaped. It was very difficult.'
Marie Zaharie
Ex Romania resident

So perhaps it's no surprise that Zaharie wants to be a professional cook. Such is her aim at Schoolcraft, where she is currently enrolled in her sixth and seventh classes.

"I like (school) very much, but it's difficult for me," Zaharie said. "I'm studying hard to have a good grade. When I came here I didn't know one word of English."

Helen Dembicki was Zaharie's English teacher at Schoolcraft. "She worked 10 times harder than anyone else in class," Dembicki said. "Her work was precise. It was done. She always had the answers."

As a teacher, Dembicki said, dealing with students from Communist Bloc countries is not all bad. "What's nice about Eastern European people is that they respect the teacher," she said.

Respect, yes. But sometimes fear, too.

Zaharie was apprehensive when contacted for this story, said her employer, John Santeiu III, who is also of Romanian heritage. In Communist Romania, Santeiu said, the only person who wanted to "interview" you was someone with the government. And no one welcomed the news that an interview was sought.

"At first she thought, 'Oh no, I came here to get away from this and now it's starting again,'" Santeiu said.

Madonna University begins movie series

Madonna University is showing four foreign movies as part of its Humanities Film Series. All are dubbed in English.

Each movie will be shown at 1:30 and 7:30 p.m. in Kresge Hall. Admission is free. Everyone is welcome.

Following is the film schedule:

■ Oct. 5: "Ay Carmela!" A Spanish movie about a captured cabaret troupe surviving the brutality of the Spanish Civil War through fancy-footed stagework and earthy humor.

■ Nov. 11: "Cries and Whispers" A Swedish flick about three sisters and a servant. One sister is dying and the other two are unhappily married and have forgotten how to love. Only the servant knows how to love.

■ Feb. 3: "Black Orpheus" A Portuguese movie about a streetcar conductor who falls for a country girl running from a man she thinks will kill her.

■ March 15: "Rashomon" A Japanese movie that won an Academy Award for best foreign film in 1950. The movie is a series of flashbacks from four different points of view telling the tale of a husband and wife who are victims of crime.

For more information, call 591-5197 or 591-5185.

Lock up your boss for charity

The March of Dimes will hold its annual Jail and Bail fund-raiser, where someone is "arrested" and must raise bail money for a charity.

The March of Dimes charges a $25 fee to make the arrest. Prisoners will be taken to a mock jail where they phone people for one hour, asking them to contribute. Arrests will occur 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Oct. 19-22. Mock jails will be set up in Arborland Mall in Ann Arbor, Renaissance Center in Detroit, Tel-12 Mall in Southfield and Wonderland Mall in Livonia.

To arrange to have someone "arrested," call 423-3200.

County dedicates water basin

Wayne County's new $5.7 million underground water retention facility was dedicated Wednesday, Sept. 15, in Livonia.

The 2.2 million gallon retention basin, located near Inkster and Five Mile roads, is expected to ease basement flooding and keep sewage from flowing into Bell Creek and the Rouge River.

It is expected that the basin will be used 10-12 times a year, for periods of up to three days, to handle storm waste water overflow. The basin will service about 75 percent of Livonia.

SC women's center makes award

The Women's Resource Center of Schoolcraft College has given the 1993 "Partners In Change" award to Madeline Daoust, owner of American Sign Shops of Ann Arbor.

The award was given for exceptional work in promoting job skills and opportunities for displaced homemakers and mature women. Displaced homemakers are women who because of divorce, widowhood or other circumstances must become self-supporting.

The Schoolcraft Women's Resource Center, established in 1985, has served more than 250 women. Immediately after completion of the program, more than 150 were employed.

Thought sought on school reform

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Three months after the Michigan Legislature repealed local property taxes as a source of funding public schools, the issue of reforming education is coming to a head.

■ Next Monday, House Democrats will conduct 13 simultaneous public hearings from 7-10 p.m. around the state. Closest to this area: Wayne Memorial High School, Glenwood east of Wayne Road in Wayne; Dearborn City Hall, Michigan Avenue east of Schaefer; and Mott High School in Warren.

■ Gov. John Engler will address a joint session of the Legislature at 2 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 5, on his tax and reform proposals.

Engler is expected to ask for "schools of choice" within public schools, competitive bidding on school district health insurance, speedier teacher tenure hearings, and a tax program to replace some of the $6 billion in lost property tax revenues.

Whether Engler will agree to an income tax as partial replacement is unknown. So far the governor has said he won't.

Ever since the Legislature in July suddenly repealed the source of 35 percent of public schools' funding — "we cut the Gordian knot," in Engler's words — leaders of both parties have been floating tax and reform ideas.

Everyone's goal: "a world-class education."

Rep. William Keith, D-Garden City, said parents in particular will be heard at the Democrats' hearings. "Over the last several weeks, the task force has traveled around the state hearing from educators, business people and school administrators. Now we want parents to tell us what is on their minds," said the veteran chair of the House Education Committee.

"The U.S. education system is miles behind foreign countries," Albert Shanker, president of the American Federation of Teachers, told Keith's task force recently.

Shanker called for better paid and better trained teachers, higher standards, a more defined curriculum, more relevant textbooks and better methods of assessing students.

Rep. Lyn Jondahl, D-Okemos, listed revenues from 14 existing taxes that might be increased to make up the $6 billion loss in local property tax revenue. Jondahl, an announced gubernatorial candidate, had voted against the property tax cut, arguing that the state constitution permitted only a $3.8 billion increase in state replacement taxes. On his list:

■ Sales and use tax — $927 million per 1 percent; voters would have to amend the constitution. The rate has been 4 percent since the 1960s.

■ Personal income tax — $1.18 billion per 1 percent. It's now 4.4 percent.

■ Single business tax — $806 million per 1 percent. It's now 2.35 percent.

■ Cigarette tax — $8 million per penny.

■ Liquor tax — $5 milion per 1 percent.

Meanwhile, Sen. Jack Welborn, R-Kalamazoo, applauded a state insurance commissioner's investigation into the activities of the Michigan Education Special Services Association (MESSA), an arm of the MEA which acts as a third-party administrator of health insurance.

MEA union contracts designate that school districts must deal with MESSA. Engler's program likely will call for mandatory competitive bidding rather than direct dealings with MESSA.

"I am concerned about possible collusion, violation of insurance laws, anti-trust laws, and conflict of interest," Welborn said last May when he called for the investigation of MESSA. He argued that school districts pay $1,000 more per employee to buy through MESSA than if they bought identical coverage from Blue Cross/ Blue Shield.

Proposed law would benefit city managers

City councils would be able to give their hired managers longer-term contracts under a bill before the state House of Representatives.

Sponsored by Sen. David Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, the bill already has passed the upper chamber. It received a 7-0 recommendation Tuesday from the House Local Government Committee.

"Currently one council can't bind another," Hongiman told the panel — that is, a council can't give the city manager a contract beyond the council's term of office. Nor can the contract specify the manager's severance pay if a new council wants to fire him.

Honigman's SB 325 would amend the Home Rule Act governing cities. It says a council "may enter into an employment contract with the chief administrative officer extending beyond the terms of the members of the legislative body unless such an employment contract is prohibited by the city charter."

Later it says, "If the chief administrative officer serves at the pleasure of the legislative body, the contract shall so state and my provide for severance pay or other benefits" if the manager is fired.

Honigman said he introduced the bill at the request of the Michigan Municipal League and the city managers' organization. "You probably know how insecure the jobs of city managers are," he said.

Whyman's first bill toughens penalties on food stamp fraud

By Tim Richard
Staff Writer

■ Rep. Deborah Whyman's bill passed 105-0 with five absent. All local lawmakers voted yes except Justine Barns, D-Westland, who missed the vote.

For passing Rep. Deborah Whyman's food stamp bill, state representatives will get — food stamps.

"They're just spoofs," said Whyman, a freshman Republican from Canton. Her "stamp" is a coupon, with her picture, that her 109 fellow members may turn in to her for cookies and milk.

The gift is a House tradition. When a new lawmaker's first bill is passed, he or she is expected to treat other members to a gift, preferably some food product.

"Rep. Whyman should understand the Legislature runs on its stomach. That's food, not food stamps," quipped House Democratic floor leader Pat Gagliardi of Drummond Island.

Serious bill

If Tuesday's debate closed with jokes, however, Whyman's House Bill 4985 is serious. It tightens penalties and raises sentences for people who traffic in food stamps issued to the low-income people by the state Department of Social Services.

Her bill passed 105-0 with five absent. All local lawmakers voted yes except Justine Barns, D-Westland, who missed the vote.

There was a floor battle, however, over the penalties in Whyman's bill. "The penalties are too harsh," said Rep. David Gubow, D-Huntington Woods. "Judges won't impose full sentences if the penalties are out of whack, though politically we look good."

Whyman said the current top penalty is $10,000. Her bill raises that to $250,000.

The House defeated Gubow's amendment to ease penalties on a vote of 33 yes to 70 no. Among area lawmakers, only Gubow and Maxine Berman, D-Southfield, voted yes, and Barns missed the vote. All others voted yes.

Losses unknown

Some 800,000 Michiganians receive food stamps — 8.5 percent of the population. DSS, the agency which handles welfare, issues $846 million in food stamps each year.

It's unknown how many are sold by welfare recipients to "traffickers," according to a House staff analysis. But if 1 percent are illegally sold, the loss is $8.46 million.

"Runners" usually buy the stamps for 50 cents per $1 of face value, then trade them in at stores for 75 to 80 cents per $1. Welfare recipients rarely are charged — just "runners" and store employees, the staff analysis said. Store owners usually say the employee made the trade without their knowledge and fire the employee.

Food stamps are believed to be circulated as money for gambling and drug sales, the report said.

If passed by the Senate and signed into law, Whyman's bill would:

■ Lower the legal threshhold for illegal trafficking from $1,000 to $100. The staff report said runners frequently deal in amounts less than $1,000 to avoid being charged under current law.

■ Raise the jail sentence for amounts between $100 and $5,000 from 90 days to one year, and raise the fine from $700 to $1,000.

■ Require subsequent offenders to be jailed for a minimum of three months.

■ Allow prison sentences up to 20 years and fines of up to $250,000 for trafficking in $5,000 or more of food stamps.

■ Allow prosecutors to "accumulate" a number of small offenses during a year and charge the offender for trafficking in the total.

Madonna workshop promotes higher ed

Madonna University is hosting the Academic Enhancement Program for the 1993-1994 school year.

AEP is a workshop designed to encourage young students to pursue higher education.

A $400 donation from Hudson's Westland will enable the university to host 500 students from Livonia, Westland, Wayne, Detroit and Inkster. Participants will visit Madonna University for a day. They will attend 50-minute sessions in sign language, TV production, creative writing and physical and biological science.

"The key to this program is to stimulate these students so that they will want to come back every year," said Sister Mary Martinez, director of Madonna University's Office of Multicultural Affairs.

"By attending AEP, students develop academic interests, nurture values for learning and come to the realization that higher education is attainable."

For more information, call Sister Martinez at 591-5170.

OU plans big celebration

Oakland University is having a three-day homecoming celebration and alumni reunion Oct. 7-9.

Events include:

■ a concert by Martha Reeves and the Vandellas 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 9, in the Oakland Center.

■ a three-on-three hoop tournament for alumni, students and staff at the Lepley Sports Center.

Events begin Thursday, Oct. 7, with a career information day, a universitywide "Meet Me in the Oakland Center" dinner for everyone, and an evening performance by a comedian.

Also occurring will be soccer games as OU's team hosts a four-team tournament. The school's swim team will take on a team of alumni swimmers.

For additional data, call 370-2158.

Cranbrook hosts apple fest

The Cranbrook Institute of Science's Honey & Apples Festival will occur 1-4:30 p.m. on two consecutive weekends, Sept. 25-26 and Oct. 2-3.

Admission is $5 for people aged 18 to 64 years, $4 for people aged 3 to 17 and 65 and up. For additional data, call 645-3230.

Instructors will reveal how beekeepers engineer honey production by manipulating bees in a controlled environment and answer questions about producing unique blends of apple cider.

Activities include:

■ observing thousands of bees building honeycombs inside manmade hives.

■ operating an antique apple press to make cider the old-fashioned way.

■ walking on the institute's nature trails to see leaves changing color.

■ tasting pure, freshly harvested honey and apple cider.

Bullet ballots

Officials debate ways to speed up voting

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Michigan voters could begin trooping to the polls 13 days prior to election day if Secretary of State Richard Austin has his way.

But some lawmakers — like Rep. Penny Crissman, R-Rochester, on the House Local Government Committee — fear Austin's plan "will put a strain on local clerks." They prefer expanding the right of absentee voting.

Whichever side prevails, voters would be able to avoid long lineups at polling places, particularly during presidential and gubernatorial elections. Many waited 30 minutes to two hours in 1992, Austin said.

"We've gone far in increasing voter registration," Austin told the panel Tuesday. "Now let's make it easier for them to cast ballots."

How it works

In his 19th year as Michigan's top election official, Austin endorsed House Bill 4964, sponsored by Rep. Agnes Dobronski, D-Dearborn. It would:

- Allow any voter to show up at the city or township clerk's office prior to the election and ask to vote "as soon as the ballots are ready — usually 13 days before an election.
- Vote the ballot right there or take it home and mail it back.

The voter could not ask for the ballot by telephone or mail. He or she would have to appear in person with identification in the local clerk's office.

Reason, said Austin, is that the federal "motor-voter" act, which takes effect in 1995, would allow mail registration. At some point, the voter should appear in person, he said, adding, "People who register by mail have never appeared before a clerk."

Texas and Colorado use the system successfully, Austin said.

Absentee different

Currently, Michigan has an absentee voter system for the elderly, the ailing, persons who expect to be out of town on election day, and prisoners awaiting arraignment or trial.

The voter may either visit the clerk in person or apply in writing for an absentee ballot. And the voter must cite a reason for voting absentee.

Austin said his early voting plan is different from absentee voting (AV). "Any elector could do it by visiting the clerk's office. Absentee voting is restricted to certain classes of voters," he said.

About 15 percent of Michigan voters use the AV method, said state elections director Christopher Thomas. "I expect 25 to 30 percent would vote early," he said.

In affluent areas, the absentee vote is 30 percent, leading officials to speculate privately that some voters are fibbing about "being out of town" election day.

Local burden?

Austin and Thomas said the early voter system should place no additional burden on local clerks. Whatever costs they encountered through early voting, they would save by having fewer precincts and less equipment.

But Crissman, a freshman lawmaker and former mayor of Rochester, disliked what she called "a two-tiered system" of early voting and absentee voting.

Crissman also saw security problems with early ballots, particularly in rural areas where township clerks work in their homes.

Other lawmakers wondered how clerks would handle the problem of electing political party precinct delegates in the August primaries of even-numbered years. A different ballot would be required in every precinct — 110 in Dobronski's home town of Dearborn.

Thomas said that could be handled by using a separate paper ballot for precinct delegates.

Refer to House Bill 4964 when writing to your lawmaker in the State Capitol, Lansing 48913. The bill is assigned to the House Local Government Committee.

Canton holds line on '94 budget

Canton Township officials are expected to adopt the proposed 1994 budgets Tuesday. Except for salary increases, the proposed budgets offer little change over last year. But officials are keeping on eye on what 1995 might bring.

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Township Clerk Loren Bennett says he can't recall ever seeing as many zeroes — no change — in a budget in all his years in Canton.

"There's been little discussion (about the proposed 1994 budget) because there isn't much change — except wages, which we don't have a lot of control over," Bennett said, following a study session on the proposed budget Tuesday night.

The proposed budget, which is expected to be adopted by the township board Tuesday, Sept. 28, boasts increased overall general fund revenues of 6.6 percent over 1993. Of that increase, tax revenues have climbed 12.4 percent, said John Spencer, township chief financial officer.

The proposed general fund budget — which covers everything but police and fire services — reaches $8.97 million in 1994, compared to $8.94 million in 1993. The police budget is proposed at $5.8 million compared to $5.3 million in 1993. The fire budget at $3.2 million, compared to $3 million the year before.

Township officials have balanced the budgets wit for 1993. Because of increased property values, however, taxpayers will pay slightly more in local taxes in the coming year.

Take the average $114,000 house (assessed at $57,000). The tax rates in 1992 cost that homeowner: $63.27 for general operations; $167.58 for fire services; and $282.72 for police services.

In the coming year — if township officials adopt the current tax rates — general operations will cost that same taxpayer $68.02; fire services, $180.15; and police services $303.92. The taxpayer would pay a total $38.52 more in the coming year.

The proposed budget also shows a 3 percent increase in expenditures. "Expenditures have been climbing faster than revenues. We are trying to bring expenditures in line with revenues," said Township Supervisor Tom Yack.

State shared revenues, a percentage of state money such as sales taxes that the township receives, increased 1.2 percent, Spencer said.

But no one seems to hold out much hope for the future of those revenues. "I wouldn't be surprised if there's going to be a cut in shared revenues," said Susan Kopinski, township financial services manager.

Officials balanced the budget by cutting out certain requests from department directors, as well as holding the line on new hirings. Only one new staff member is proposed (in the general fund budget) and that is in the planning department. The request was based on plans to revise the township's master plans, such as land use, said Aaron Machnik, municipal services director.

Two new police officers are planned for hire and to be financed in the police budget. "We do not project hiring until mid-year," said John Santomauro, public safety director.

He told trustees that the public safety department budgets offer little change. "I truly believe we have done what we can to reduce costs," Santomauro said. "I really don't know, short of affecting the level of service, how we can operate with less police officers."

Unlike the general fund which has an estimated fund balance (savings) of $3.3 million, the police fund will not have one in 1994 and the fire fund is down to about $188,000.

"They are taking out of the fund balance to balance this year," Yack said, of the police fund. "Police will be a big problem for Canton Township in 1995."

Township officials made it clear that increased costs in the proposed budgets are due primarily to wage increases, beginning with an arbitration settlement for firefighters. Other employees' increased in part were based on some of the items in that arbitration.

"It's tough. And it's going to be tougher next year," Bennett said, adding rules for binding arbitration have not changed as many officials had hoped.

Capital outlays, such as big purchases, in each department are based on a schedule. "Whatever it takes to get the bottomline to zero," Spencer said. "We try to reflect reality. We try to be conservative."

Yack explained the process: "Generally speaking, we cut capital across the board.

AROUND CANTON

Watch t he mail

For the first time ever, the Canton Community Foundation will be taking to the mail in its annual fund-raising effort.

More than 10,000 residents will receive the foundation brochure in the mail, asking them to participate and contribute to foundation activities. The mailing was prepared by the Close Up students on the first day of school. Ten students volunteered to put mailing labels on the brochures.

"In the formation of the foundation we relied on the industrial and development communities to provide the lion's share of our funding," said Mitch Howard, foundation president. "This year we are taking our requests to the next level, that of the residents that directly benefit from the programs we run."

In the second annual attempt to put all fundraising in one effort, foundation officials are shooting for double of what was raised this year. This year's goal of $200,000 is hoped to be accomplished by 100 people raising the amount in 100 days, Sept. 1 to Nov. 1.

VIN etching

Canton Township police in conjunction with Meijer will offer free vehicle identification number etching for your vehicles 10 a.m.-4 p.m., Friday, Sept. 24, at the store at Canton Center and Ford roads.

Etching helps reduce the risk of car theft and helps police track stolen auto parts, said Tammie Colling, Canton police community relations officer.

Some insurance companies also will reduce rates if your VIN is etched, Colling added.

Orchid show

Keller & Stein Florist and Greenhouse is hosting their annual fall orchid show Oct. 1-3.

The show and sale will feature two orchid suppliers, Ann Arbor Orchids and Taylor Orchids that will double the selection of plants in blossom. Orchids, supplies and potting mix will be available for purchase. Free handouts on orchid care will be available.

Liquor license applicants to pay more

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Anyone who wants to apply for a license from Canton Township will have to pay what it costs to process the request.

That boils down to $1,200 and will be charged for each Class C license, as well as for any addition to the license, such as a dance and entertainment permit.

Until township officials approved the new fees — called for in a revised liquor licenses ordinance — Canton charged $50 to $100. The former ordinance allowed the township to only collect what it cost to notify the public of an impending license.

"Certainly, the process is more involved than that," said township clerk Loren Bennett, adding the increased fees allow the township to recover what it actually costs to process the applications.

"We feel this would be a far more appropriate fee. We feel it was not justifiable as it was before," Bennett said.

With the new fee schedule, Bennett continued, the applicant — rather than taxpayers — will pay actual processing costs. "The user pays," added Township Supervisor Tom Yack.

The $1,200 fee includes: $700 for approximately 40 hours of wages and benefits for a secretary to administer each license application and remain current on rules and procedures; $200 for the clerk's time and cost of a meeting with township administrators; $100 for the cost of publication and notification to affected property owners; $200 for overhead (which includes the public safety department's fingerprinting charge and background check).

According to the clerk's department, the township has 10 Class C licenses left for the remainder of the decade. A couple of applications are in the works, such as for Damon's Ribs, a restaurant that previously tried to locate in the Canton Corners shopping center. The applicant, however, had to look elsewhere because of the center's lease agreements with Outback Steakhouse.

Some liquor licenses are pending for Mountain Jack's, T.C. Gators, Rosie's and Himalya restaurants.

New plan saves Santa's shop in Kellogg Park

A plan to get a new house ready for Santa at Kellogg Park this Christmas season has been worked out by the downtown development authority and the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce.

"We've found someone to design the house and someone to build it," DDA director Steve Guile reported Tuesday.

To pay an estimated $3,000-$5,000 for the construction, the DDA and the chamber will ask service clubs and the public for donations.

Anyone interested in contributing can call the DDA office at 455-1453, or make checks payable to the downtown development authority at 819 Penniman, Plymouth, 48170.

Band marches to 4th-place finish in 1st competition

PCEP Marching Band traveled to the first competition of its season, the Lake Park Lancer Joust.

The 187 band members performed a new program based on the rock opera "Jesus Christ Superstar." Competing with 17 other bands from Illinois, the band placed fourth in finals competition.

The current competition show can be seen at half-time during the Canton and Salem High School varsity football games every Friday evening. New music and drill are perfected throughout the season, and incorporated into the performance. The band competes every Saturday through the second weekend of November. Next Saturday the band heads to Linden, Mich., to compete with Michigan bands.

Vorva hails return of money as victory for local control

Restoration of tax-base sharing money restricted by the state and held in escrow the past two years is a victory for proponents of local school control, state Rep. Jerry Vorva said this week.

"We are pleased to see a major portion of the Robin Hood money coming back where it belongs," said the Plymouth Republican. "As an advocate of the need for proper school funding in the past and as an opponent of unnecessary school millage, I have worked hard to get these funds returned, and hope local schools will invest the money into smaller class sizes."

■ 'As an advocate of the need for proper school funding in the past and as an opponent of unnecessary school millage, I have worked hard to get these funds returned, and hope local schools will invest the money into smaller class sizes.'
Jerry Vorva
state representative

Under a provision of Public Act 108 of 1991, better known as tax-base sharing or Robin Hood, 50 percent of tax revenue growth from commercial and industrial expansion was to be shared with in-formula districts.

The Macomb County Taxpayers Association obtained a restraining order to prevent the funds from being distributed, and the money has been held in escrow by the Oakland and Wayne county school districts pending resolution of a suit before the Michigan Supreme Court.

Plymouth Canton Public Schools have withheld $737,888 and expect to receive $368,944 back. Northville Public Schools have withheld $54,948 in the past two years and Livonia has set aside $704,054.

"With the elimination of property taxes as a base for school funding, the tax-base sharing provision isn't even relevant," Vorva said. "This year's school aid funding bill includes a repeal of the Robin Hood laws."

Funds will be returned to the districts that have contributed to the escrow account as soon as legislation is passed to release them. Because the school aid act is an appropriations bill, the Attorney General's Office has ruled the repeal language is not adequate to free the money.

"I hope the money will be used by the school directly for the classroom either for teaching materials or to limit class size," Vorva said.

HEALING OUR HEALTH CARE SYSTEM

The Plan:

President's Clinton's health care proposal will mean sweeping changes in how health care is delivered and financed in the United States. Here is a summary of the major points

- Universal coverage includes all U.S. citizens and longtime alien residents.
- Everyone will receive a health security card.
- Guaranteed health care benefit package. A minimum requirement for health services covering hospitalization, surgery, immunizations, regularly scheduled physical examinations, ambulance service, hospice care, mental health coverage, vision services, child dental service.
- Regional and corporate health alliances will be formed to purchase health care plans. Corporations with more than 5,000 employees will be allowed to form their own alliance.
- Regional and corporate alliances would choose from available health care providers including HMOs, PPOs and traditional. States would be responsible for establishing alliances or submit a plan of health care reform. States may opt for a single payer system.
- Alliances must be established by Jan. 1, 1997.
- Mandatory employer contribution of 80 percent of premium, employees will pay 20 percent. Small businesses would be eligible for subsidies. Major employers would receive a break on retirement health benefits.
- Self employed and unemployed would be responsible for family and employer share unless they are eligible for assistance based on income
- Creation of National Health Board which would oversee requirements for state plans, interpret and update guaranteed benefits, issue regulations concerning implementation of national budget for health care spending, establish performance based system of quality management and improvement.
- National Quality Management program would develop quality information and accountability program.
- Encourages move away from medical specialization to primary care and internal medicine, including a student loan forgiveness program.

Business leery of government

By Doug Funke
Staff Writer

Who pays?: The high cost of drugs such as these, advanced medical technology, highly skilled medical personnel and hospitalization have forced a crisis in medical care. But business leaders wonder whether the Clinton proposal addresses the question of who will pay.

For business, it boils down to a question of trust. Can government overhaul the health care system to meet the needs of both employers and employees?

Frank Zuccaro, owner of Aerodata, a computer services consulting business in Plymouth, has his doubts. Zuccaro employs his wife, Gloria, and two other persons, all three of whom are covered by their spouses' health plans.

"I don't object to there being a national health care plan in spirit," Zuccaro said. "I just don't think government can pull it off. I don't think he (Clinton) can cure a system in five years that has taken a lifetime to be as screwed up as it is."

Zuccaro said he employs so few that if he had to pay part of their health care premiums it wouldn't make much difference one way or another.

But he couldn't afford to pay the entire premium for all employees as he did several years ago.

"It just wouldn't be affordable," Zuccaro said. "It's gone up tremendously. It's been in a runaway mode. A family of four will run you $600 a month."

At the other end of the spectrum is the Ford Motor Co. The automotive giant spent $1.35 billion last year on health care for its employees and retirees, said David Caplan, a company spokesman.

Ford currently employs about 150,000 and has a climate control plant in Plymouth, a parts distribution center in Redford and a transmission and chassis plant in Livonia.

"In general, we do support national health care reform," Caplan said Monday.

"We look forward to the release of the president's plan. Despite some of our cost containment programs, the company's health care costs have risen to the point where they jeopardize our ability to compete on a global basis," Caplan said.

Ford would insist on five elements in government-mandated reform: universal coverage, quality assurance, administrative simplicity, cost containment and equitable financing, Caplan said.

"I think we are hopeful a national health care program will reduce costs," he said. "But in the end, it may reduce only the rate of growth.

"Contractual business aside (who pays what in a labor agreement with the UAW), health care costs have been rising 8 percent each of the last five years, the consumer price index, 4 percent," Caplan said. "That's intolerable."

Kmart, one of the nation's largest general retailers with headquarters in Troy and stores throughout the metro area, declined comment earlier this week on specifics about Clinton's plan.

"We're very much monitoring legislation, very much involved in discussion," said Shawn Kahle, Kmart spokeswoman.

The company, which employs 250,000 in the United States and Canada, currently has a self-insurance medical coverage plan in partnership with a Blue Cross-Blue Shield-type provider, Kahle said.

"Kmart always has had the sort of health-care structure where some of the costs are carried by the worker and some are carried by the company," she said. "Kmart has discovered a niche in the discount area. Cost control is an inherent part of business."

Only full-time employees, or about half of the total, are eligible for medical care coverage, she said.

Kahle declined to comment on what percentage the company now pays compared with the 80/20 ratio for employers/employees in large companies proposed by Clinton.

Regardless of where an individual works or in what capacity, any new health care plan likely will be measured — and accepted — by changes in existing costs and coverages.

Ron Brown, executive assistant to the president of Local 876 of the United Food & Commercial Workers Union, makes that point very clear. His union represents some 20,000 workers at major food stores like A&P, Farmer Jack and Kroger.

"Members certainly want to maintain the level of benefits they have now," Brown said, adding that employers currently pay all health premium costs.

"Members feel the cost of health care, with employers saying they only have X amount of dollars to spend with X amount to wages and X amount to fringes is part of a total compensation package," he said.

How health care would change under Clinton

Dr. Gerald F. Robbins: A neurologist with a practice in Garden City and president of the Michigan Association of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons.

Alliances.

Know that term — and how it is defined by the Clinton Administration task force — and you have a pretty solid understanding of how the health-care system would change under the plan unveiled Wednesday.

Regional health-care "alliances" would be responsible for virtually every aspect of health care — from determining who's eligible for which services, to how fees are set.

The move would presumably create a market-driven health-care system more responsive to competition than the current, insurance-driven industry.

Here's a look at the way some things will change in southeastern Michigan:

COST TO USERS

■ Current system: Employees with employer-provided insurance pay a portion or often nothing toward their premiums but deductibles and co-pays are often required for services rendered. Employees in low-paying jobs and the unemployed have no health insurance and rely on Medicaid to pay for services.

■ Clinton plan: All employees have insurance. Most small- and medium-sized employers will be responsible for 80 percent of premiums with employees paying about 20 percent (as low as $60 per year for singles, as high as $1,140 for families). Small businesses will be eligible for subsidies. Large employers may create their own alliance. Senior citizens still covered under Medicare, which has a separate budget.

DOCTORS' FEES

■ Current system: Dr. Gerald F. Robbins, a neurologist with a practice in Garden City and president of the Michigan Association of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons, said overhead costs (staff, insurance, rent, etc.) and community economics are factors.

"There are certain regulations (anti-trust laws), which have really been enforced the last couple of years, where doctors can't sit down and discuss fees," he said.

"Frequently, we look at what our rates are and, if insurance is paying that, we might raise 5 percent (annually) so we can keep up with inflation."

■ Clinton plan: A national health care budget — determined through an average of premiums for the guaranteed standard benefits package — ensures that costs rise at the rate of inflation or less. Alliances can negotiate with providers but fees are set within those paramaters. Savings to providers come from administrative simplification and increased negotiating power through the alliances.

WHAT ABOUT PRESCRIPTION DRUGS?

■ Current system: Insurance companies are the middle-people, said Gilbert C. Gerhard, vice president of finance and administration for Arbor Drugs, headquartered in Troy.

"In any contract with a third-party insurer, what we usually have is an arrangement that they pay us a certain amount for a prescription which is pretty much based on our cost — what we pay the manufacturer.

"And they (insurers) give us a dispensing fee (which averages $3 per perscription) for the work of professional services.

"Usually there's a co-pay of some sort collected from the customer depending on what the contract is with the carrier.

Profits are generated by the number of prescriptions sold, not by the cost of the medication, he said.

■ Clinton plan: Presciptions are part of the basic benefits package. Alliances become the middle-people in the supplier-retailer equation.

Insurance terms:

Traditional: Medical insurance that includes some type of major medical coverage, covers emergencies and includes more doctors and hospitals. This type usually does not cover office visits and many preventive tests or physicals. It also often requires a deductible.

PPO: Preferred provider organizations, such as Blue Preferred or Select Care. A PPO network usually includes subscribing doctors and health providers at specified hospitals and clinics. This type offers full benefits as long as participating doctors and hospitals are used. It pays a portion of the insurance if a doctor or service not in the plan is used.

HMO: Health maintenance organization - Blue Care Network and Health Alliance Plan are examples. This covers 100 percent of health costs, including doctor's office visits, physicals, major medical and emergency, second opinions, and aftercare. But it is limited to a certain group of doctors, hospitals and other facilities and does not reimburse at all if a patient goes outside the network, except in emergency situations.

Single-payer system works in Canada

Editor's note:In the debate over health care alternatives, many liberal Democrats favor a single-payer system, similar to that in Canada. Reporter Mary Rodrique has lived in Canada for many years and is familiar with both the Canadian system and the current U.S. Health insurance system.

■ Canadians are certainly taxed to the hilt. But it is a myriad of social programs supported by a tiny middle class that is the real culprit.

By Mary Rodrique
Staff Writer

As an American who has spent the last dozen years residing in Ontario, I've experienced health care Canadian style.

A lot of the complaints I hear about OHIP (Ontario Health Insurance Plan) from Americans aren't true or are at least exaggerated.

Granted the system isn't perfect — what is? But I believe it is far better than the mishmash that passes for health care in the United States, with employees paying an ever increasing share of their paycheck for less coverage and more than 35 million Americans with no health care insurance whatsoever.

At least in Ontario, everyone is covered by the plan. All pregnant women have access to prenatal care. Young children can receive immunizations and regular checkups. No one need fear putting off a trip to the doctor for financial reasons. Almost as gratifying as not having to bring your wallet to a doctor's appointment is not having to deal with insurance companies.

One of the complaints I've heard is that OHIP is fine for treating mild illnesses, like bronchitis or a sinus infection, but anyone with a life threatening problem is put on an interminable waiting list for treatment.

I know of two Canadian women who have been diagnosed with breast cancer within the past three years. Both received timely treatment. Both are doing fine.

When my gynecologist discovered a small lump two years ago, I had an appointment with a surgeon within a week. A breast biopsy, thankfully, turned out negative.

Another complaint I've heard is that patients overuse the system because it's free. How many people do you know who enjoy going to a doctor? I don't think I have ever overused the system.

There is also a common belief that treatment is second rate — less than state of the art. When I was pregnant with my first child 10 years ago, my American obstetrician encouraged me to deliver the baby here, implying the care I would receive would be better than in Canada. Because I was working full time in Livonia with job related health insurance, I heeded his warning. Everything went off without a hitch. I would rate my prenatal care and hospital delivery as first rate.

Two and a half years later, I had a second child. Working part time with no American health care coverage, daughter number two was born in Windsor. I would also rate my pre and post natal care by my obstetrician (a graduate of Wayne State University Medical School) as first class all the way.

Another complaint I've heard — to get an appointment with a specialist requires a very long wait. Again, that hasn't been my experience.

I know that OHIP is experiencing problems — some doctors are leaving to practice their specialties in the more lucrative American market. But Canadian doctors are certainly living a comfortable lifestyle.

Hospitals are downsizing, money is getting tight. But overall I think OHIP is a great system.

The other complaint I hear is that Canadians are taxed to death to support the health care system. I'll agree with the first part of that. Canadians are certainly taxed to the hilt. But it is a myriad of social programs supported by a tiny middle class that is the real culprit.

Canadians will take a lot from their government. But I truly believe they would never stand for anyone tampering with their health care system.

Woman's 1st rate care costly, mired in forms

Costly care: Al and Mary EllenLehikoinen catalogue her daily medication while Mary Ellen's mother, Ida, watches from the kitchen.

Mary Ellen Lehikoinen is an example of most of what's right and much of what's wrong with U.S. health care.

The 31-year-old Northville Township woman — whose fight against diabetes and related illnesses goes back to her childhood — has no complaints about doctors, treatments or hospital stays.

Medical care she has received has been "fist-rate," she said.

The downside: sky-high costs and horrible bureaucracies that dominate the health-care provider and insurance systems.

Lehikoinen's experience will likely make her an early beneficiary of the health-care reform proposal outlined Wednesday by President Bill Clinton.

Had the Clinton plan been in place three years ago, Lehikoinen might still be working as a receptionist at a Southfield psychiatric clinic.

"I loved working there," she said. "But because I was under so much strain, quitting was the best thing for me to do at the time."

Had health-care reform been around in February 1992, Lehikoinen's $53,000 pancreas and kidney transplant surgery would have been been covered under federally mandated insurance.

Instead, the bill was added to a $400,000 pile of medical expenses — many still outstanding — that has robbed the Lehikoinen family of its life savings.

More important though, said Urho "Al" Lehikoinen, is the time and energy lost to endless, usually unproductive phone calls and letters to insurance companies, not spent with his ailing daughter.

Diagnosed as a diabetic at 4, Lehikoinen began taking insulin and suffered few complications until her senior year at Temple Christian High School in Redford Township.

"I noticed my vision was getting worse and then during a check-up my doctor asked if I knew I had experienced a renal failure."

She embarked on an odyssey of lengthy, on-and-off hospitalization and daily dialysis treatments for her failed kidneys, still managing to graduate high school (a year behind her class) and eventually earning a degree from the Detroit College of Business.

Dialysis and extended hospitalizations have been eliminated with the transplant surgery.

However Lehikoinen still takes 30-40 prescription medications daily and is constantly sending blood and urine samples to the lab for evaluation.

When coverage on her parents' insurance policies ended in her mid-20s, the Lehikoinens used Social Security and Medicare benefits to help defray medical costs.

The kidney/pancreas transplant, done at the University of Minnesota Hospital — slipped through the cracks in their coverage, according to Al Lehikoinen.

The operation, which would have been covered by Medicare, was done after Mary Ellen's 90-day hospital benefit and reserve coverage had expired.

Blue Care Network refused payment, calling it "experimental surgery." "It's unbelievably frustrating. We have all this insurance and I'm still falling through the cracks," Mary Ellen Lehikoinen said.

Health administrators skeptical on financing

By Bill Coutant
Staff Writer

Worries about cost: John Labriola, vice president and CEO at Troy Beaumont Hospital, says everyone is for universal health care but that costs have gotten out of hand.

Most hospital administrators will tell you the idea of universal health care is not only one they endorse but one that could end up saving the health care system in the long run.

The same administrators will tell you that the Clinton health plan's mechanism for paying is either "scary" or so much "smoke and mirrors."

"The intention is good," said John Labriola, vice president and CEO at Troy Beaumont Hospital. "Coverage for the uninsured is something we all want. But the administrative costs of health care are already totally out of control."

Hospitals and the health care system are already regulated by the government. But the idea of a stepped up role strikes several administrators, doctors and other health care professionals as the wrong direction.

Gerald Lo Duca, Crittenton Hospital's director of patient accounts, said the Rochester hospital's billing is already simplified, with most patients using one of two forms. Part of the high cost of billing, clerical and other costs comes from the number of insurers. But going to a one payer system, such as Canada's, would make the system even slower.

"It takes 4-6 months for repayment in that monster," he said. "In our system, the maximum amount of time is 75 days."

Lo Duca, who supervises 64, said President Lyndon Johnson had said the Medicare system would cost $9 billion by 1990. It now costs $90 billion, he said.

"They're talking about savings," he said. "But nothing the government does is going to save money."

And speaking of Medicare, that's what has led many health care professionals to mistrust the Clinton proposal, which earmarks cuts in the growth of Medicare and Medicaid as one part of the means of financing.

"They've been cutting Medicaid for years," said David Marcellino, chief financial officer at Botsford Hospital in Farmington Hills. "You can only go to the well so often."

Hospitals reimbursements from Medicare and Medicaid have not matched what it costs hospitals to provide them in many cases. That leaves patients with other forms of insurance to pick up a bigger tab. But with the prospect of regional health networks or alliances called for in the plan, hospitals will have a harder time making up the difference, said Wayne George, CFO at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia.

"It's going to limit hospitals from recouping from their other payers," he said.

George said the proposal relies on government projections, which have always been inaccurate.

"I have no confidence in their figures," George said.

Donald Potter, president of Southeast Michigan Hospital Council of the Michigan Hospital Association in Southfield, said bringing the 37 million or so uninsured Americans into the system would alleviate the inefficiencies of using emergency rooms for the uninsured, which is expensive and often forces the patient to wait until a condition becomes serious before treatment is sought.

And hospitals combining services could also save the system money. But the conflict between the Department of Justice — which comes down against such combinations as anti-trust violations — and the Department of Health — which encourages the idea of sharing technology, staff and facilities to save money — is another conflict indicative of the problems the government will face.

Add the time it will take for any proposal (the Republicans, conservative Democrats and others planned) to make it through the gauntlet of regulations, enabling legislation and state departments of health, social services and insurance regulators, and it could take six to 10 years for a plan to be in force.

"If 85 percent say they like the insurance they're getting and they realize that they will have to pay so that everyone is insured, does everyone believe we have a health care crisis.?"

With small businesses picking up 80 percent of an employee's health insurance tab and employees having copays for care and prescriptions, the plan faces opposition, he said.

Potter said the recent agreement between Ford and the UAW did not address a fundamental change in health care delivery or payment.

"They couldn't even pull it off at that level," Potter said.

Doctors welcome malpractice reform

By Bill Coutant
Staff Writer

Dr. Richard Beaumont: vice president and medical director of Troy Beaumont Hospital.

Although the Clinton health care plan offers some relief to the present system, it presents problems for the people who provide health care.

Dr. Max McKinney, an osteopath in private practice in Farmington Hills, said the plan has some features he hopes will fly, but as a primary care physician and a small businessman, he also has concerns.

"It offers some malpractice reform," he said. "If we as physicians did not have to worry about malpractice, there are a lot of tests we would not do and that would save the system a lot of money."

McKinney, who employs another doctor and 10 other employees, also sees the continuation of a fee for service approach as an important issue.

But as a small businessman, McKinney, who now pays about $15,000 in health insurance premiums for employees, said the new higher burden on small businesses will also hit him. And the emphasis on primary care physicians will make them the "gate keepers" for health care at a time most doctors opt for a specialty.

Like McKinney, Dr. Gerald Robbins, a neurologist who practices in Garden City and is president of the Michigan Association of Osteopathic Physicians and Surgeons, headquartered in Farmington Hills, says providing access to the system for an additional 37 million patients is a tall order.

"We believe universal access to health care is something every American is entitled to," Robbins said. "We want to keep up the quality of our work as in the past and keep improving.

"Probably one way to reduce costs is paperwork. I spend probably two hours in every 10-12 hour work day on paperwork. It takes away patient care to do that."

Dr. Susan Hershberg Adelman, a pediatric surgeon and member of a health professional review group appointed to critique the work of the 500-member Clinton/Ira Magaziner health care task force said fears that universal health care, one of the plan's main goals, won't be an easy task.

"My greatest hope is we finally get universal coverage," said the Bingham Farmns resident. "My greatest fear is we'll make a mess of it and still not get universal coverage. The whole system will change and we still won't get it because we don't have a way to pay for it."

Dr. Paul LaCasse, medical director at Botsford General Hospital in Farmington Hills, said although the plan puts big demands on primary care physicians, it also emphasizes the training of more primary care physicians.

"One of its strengths is that it encourages patients to choose alliances with primary care physicians," LaCasse said.

Because medical students often go into debt to complete school and specialists can command bigger fees, doctors have been reluctant to go into primary care, he said.

LaCasse said malpractice reform could also make it easier for obstetricians to practice in Michigan.

Dr. Richard Herbert, medical director at Troy's Beaumont Hospital, said paying for universal health care and keeping choices available are going to be tough to juggle under the plan.

"Universal health care is a great idea," he said. "But how we are going to do it is the question. The American public is going to continue to expect a high level of health care."

Carol Zenas, acting dean of nursing at Oakland University, said she is concerned that the plan may not provide adequate access to the uninsured, especially women and young children.

And although nurses are the largest group of health care providers, the plan leaves doctors in control, while will leave nurses and nurse practitioners under used.

The plan will also get some resistance over concerns about managed care, which limits the choices of doctors for patients.

"They (patients) know their own doctor, but how do they know their own doctor is any good?" she said.

Ed Hodges, Botsford's chairman of the board, said the plan is a good start, but a lot of people are afraid of change.

"It's not as complicated as it seems," he said. "Some complications will be eliminated by the plan. There are just a lot of groups with their own biases.

"We're all going to take some hits," he said. "But on balance, it's a good plan."

Health advisers see benefits, flaws in Clinton plan

By Hugh Gallagher
Staff Writer

Two Plymouth companies that work regularly with the current health care system are expecting major changes if the Clinton health proposal becomes law.

Health Decisions Inc. headquartered on Plymouth Road is a management consultant firm specializing in advising on health care packages and helping companies on claim recovery.

The Michigan Peer Review Organization, with offices on Ann Arbor Road, is a non-profit, physician-sponsored company that reviews health care programs. It has contracts with the federal government to review Medicare and with the state government to review Medicaid.

Company president Si Nahra said he expects the changes will be positive for his company. But he has doubts about the proposal.

"Basically he's dodged the issue. It's a political response to a financial and economic issue," Nahra said.

Nahra said a political compromise will probably be reached. He said a Republican proposal by Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I. might be used to define a middle ground.

"The true impact of health care reform will be at the state level," Nahra said. He said states have already taken a lead in this area and two proposals are already being considered in the Michigan Legislature.

Gary Horvat, MPRO's chief executive officer, said his organization had reviewed the Clinton health proposal that was leaked to the press last week. He said his initial reaction is that the proposal is ambitious and will have a major effect on how health care is distributed.

"In general we support what the president is doing," Horvat said. "There will be a coalition formed about managed competition. One concern we have is that a lot of consumer protection items are fragmented throughout the report."

Walking for homeless pets

Walkers raised $40,454 that will benefit homeless and injured animals sheltered by the Michigan Humane Society. The western Wayne County walk attracted 276 pledge walkers and lots of dogs, according to Ron Blauet, director of education for MHS. "There must have been 600 people and lots of dogs because every (two-legged) marcher brought one or two friends along," said Blauet.*

Guv signs 'potty parity' bill

"Potty parity" will become Michigan law Jan. 1.

Gov. John Engler signed Rep. Jan Dolan's bill to increase the number of women's toilet facilities in theaters, exhibition halls, libraries, sports arenas, recreation centers, passenger terminals, outdoor assemblies and larger restaurants.

"The need for more toilet facilities for women is obvious to anyone who has seen the unacceptably long lines outside women's restrooms in buildings which host large crowds," said Engler of the bill that took eight years to become law.

"It recognizes that women, especialy those with children, need more toilet facilities, especially where large numbers of peole gather. Thankfully, the excruciatingly long liens for toilets at women's restrooms will be a thig of the past."

Dolan, R-Farmington Hills, won legislative passage of House Bill 4120 to amend the State Construction Code to require a 3-2 ratio of women's to men's toilets in public assembly places.

The bill grew from a 1985 series of articles in the Observer & Eccentric by freelancer Penny Steele. The law applies only to new construction and major renovations.

Fisher's art to benefit AIDS awareness campaign

BY MARY KLEMIC
STAFF WRITER

Many people know Mary Fisher for the stirring words she has spoken on AIDS and AIDS research.

But Fisher also expresses herself strongly in another medium: handmade paper works, an exhibit of which is at the O.K. Harris/David Klein Gallery in Birmingham through Oct. 2. Some of the proceeds from sales of the one-person show will go to her foundation, Family AIDS Network. Fisher visited the gallery at 430 N. Woodward for a reception Tuesday evening.

The large, colorful pieces consist of floral arrangements. The artist was pleased to hear that they generate a warm feeling.

"I feel that way about my work," said Fisher, who lives in the Washington, D.C., area.

"I love flowers. They're living, they're part of life. I feel that when I work, I'm glad that it translates."

"They're very optimistic," gallery president David Klein said of the works.

"I enjoy (the art) very much. It fills a niche in the gallery that we didn't have — still lifes, works on paper."

Call for compassion

In 1991, Fisher's former husband told her he was HIV positive. After testing, she learned she was infected with the HIV virus, which often is a precursor of AIDS. She went public with this in February 1992.

Since then Fisher founded the Family AIDS Network and told her story nationally and internationally, calling for thoughtful policies and AIDS awareness and compassion.

Taking responsibility is a big part of her message.

"I find that people believe it will not happen to them," she said.

The Family AIDS Network addresses three areas: increasing community awareness of HIV/AIDS, caregiver support and pioneer research grants.

"I get a tremendous amount of mail and calls."

Fisher has heard many moving stories firsthand. One was from a young woman whose father died of AIDS. The woman was having difficulty accepting not just his death but the hidden part of his life. An older woman lost her son to AIDS and never told anyone for five years, unable to grieve in front of others or ask for help.

Speaking out

Fisher spoke about AIDS at the 1992 Republican National Convention in Houston.

"It was an incredible experience, just being there with so many people."

The buildup during the week of the convention made her nervous, but Fisher believed "I was doing the right thing." She says the same thing in her speeches today that she did at the convention.

"It wasn't different words, it was a different audience."

Last week on the Miss America Pageant, Fisher gave a televised message to the 1992 Miss America, who had pushed for further AIDS education during her reign.

"That was quite an honor. I feel inspired by her."

The two women became friends a year ago, Fisher said.

Art interest

Fisher, now 45, attended Cranbrook schools, the University of Michigan, Wayne State University and Oakland Community College. She received honorary doctorate degrees from the University of Detroit Mercy and Trinity College.

In 1969 she went to work for Channel 56, where she helped produce the first of the station's annual auctions. She moved to Washington, D.C., five years later and worked in the White House for then President Gerald Ford.

Fisher has been interested in art for a long time. She opened a specialty gift business in 1983, and had a one-person show of her handmade paper art at the Linda Hayman Gallery in Farmington Hills a couple of years ago. Art is still important to her.

"In many respects it's more important. It's very much . . . part of me.

"My spirits are great. I think it's really my children.

"I think that living every day to the fullest is an important axiom. I think that my children help me take pleasure in moments."

Personal touch

Fisher has two sons, ages 5 and 3.

"Their concept of time is distorted at that age. We talk about compassion for others. They wear their AIDS pins and come to walks with me. I don't think they really connect it to them."

The titles of Fisher's pieces come from her children. The names in the show include "Sunshine Heals," "The Sun Will Shine" and "Larger Than Life."

"I'll ask them, 'All right, what do you think?' "

Fisher's flowers are big, bold and welcoming. Centers and stems may spray like fireworks. Blossoms and petals are rich with color in light-filled settings. Windows are often featured in the scenes.

"I find inspiration from music, from my children, from meditation."

Madonna offers food service sanitation class

A Madonna University class on food service sanitation will occur 7-9:30 p.m. Tuesdays, Oct. 5 to Nov. 9.

The cost is $95 for 1.5 continuing education units, or $157 for one academic credit. Call 591-5188.

The seminar will have data on the cause and control of foodborne illness, the specifics of Michigan's food service sanitation law, the interpretation of the inspection report forms and the resources available for training and motivating employees toward compliance with regulations.

Board plan is short on teachers

The Plymouth Canton Board of Education on Monday will forge ahead and make a decision to pork up the local administration rather than do something for the 15,000 students in the district.

Board members, headed by David Artley, sided with school administrators who are pushing a plan to spend $2.6 million in "extra" state school aid on what basically amounts to administration and fluff.

The school administration backed plan calls for rehiring 17 teachers, while the teacher union plan called for rehiring 28.

We agree with the teachers' union. The Plymouth Canton school district has 28 fewer teachers than it did two years ago, even though the number of students has remained about the same.

Fewer teachers translates into larger class sizes, less learning and in some cases more discipline problems.

Also, because of a union contract, classrooms with more than 32 students must have a teacher's aide. There are now 175 aides, compared to 135 two years ago when the district had more teachers.

The decision made by Artley and his cohorts reveals much about the mindset of the Plymouth Canton school board which is to feather the beds of administrators and short the classroom.

There is something the public can do. The final decision will be made at 7:30 p.m. Monday when the school board meets. Residents can attend that meeting in the board chamber at 454 S. Harvey St. and voice their concerns before the final vote.

Here's what the school administration wants to do with the money: Put $324,000 in a fund balance; rehire five maintenance workers; call back administrators; repair equipment; purchase text books; allocate $35,000 for busing talented and gifted students ; $58,000 for secretaries and spend $100,000 for staff development.

The administration plan for "educational spending" will do nothing to help the average student in the Plymouth Canton schools.

It's no wonder education spending puts local legislators such as State Rep. Jerry Vorva, R-Plymouth, in a tailspin. They work to come up with money for education, and all that happens is more administration,

Just take a look at the administration's proposed spending. There's $168,000 to rehire what the district now calls support staff. They called them administrators when they laid them off. That's enough money to hire back two possibly three classroom teachers.

Then there's $58,000 for secretarial work. At the cost of another teaching position, a couple of administrators won't have to type their own letters.

The big item is the $324,000 for the fund balance, which is really a savings account, a rainy day fund that can be used to replace a boiler in a school if it blows up. It's the same thing most folks would do, if they had the money; save for a new furnace.

It's time for the Plymouth Canton schools to invest in children, not in a bank account or in paper shuffling.

Attend the board meeting on Monday and speak out.

Ax falls heavily on DNR

Michigan's state government may be a fatted calf.

But Gov. John Engler's bull-in-a-china-shop approach to trimming government causes far more harm than good.

The latest example of the governor's heavy-handed actions involves eliminating a series of state Department of Natural Resources boards and commissions.

With a stroke of the pen, the governor will delete 19 of 27 DNR panels. And a recent, unanimous state Supreme Court decision ensures him that right.

We agree that state government needs trimming. Still, there is a big difference between downsizing government to make it more responsive and less costly, and hamstringing it altogether.

Given this governor's shredding of the state mental health care system — not to mention the sacking of public school financing — we see this latest action continuing a dangerous trend.

Make no mistake, finding the proper role of government is the central political issue of the 1990s.

Experience has shown us we can't depend on government to solve all society's ills, as was hoped by the 1960s.

But by now we should realize the anti-government approach of the 1980s isn't working either.

Engler's wholesale restructuring of the DNR worries us for several reasons.

For starters, he never mentioned it in the 1990 campaign. Second, he never consulted with the heads of the abolished panels before making his cuts.

Their duties, covering everything from air pollution control to plastics recycling to hazardous waste management now pass to the already-overworked DNR itself.

■ Engler's action . . . is based more on short-term political expediency than genuine desire to make the DNR more responsive.

Several of these boards, including the Act 61 Oil and Gas Advisory Board, staffed by industry types, were born of special interest group lobbying. To them, we say good riddance. But others, like the Marine Safety Education Commission, have a legitimate role yet to serve.

Clearly, Engler's action doesn't make this critical distinction. As such, it is more based on short-term political expediency than of any genuine desire to make the DNR more responsive to the public it serves.

In his re-election campaign, the governor can boast of taking action to trim governemnt.

It's action, all right. But it's action without regard for consequences.

There does appear to be an alternative. The national governmental restructuring plan currently being touted by President Clinton and Vice President Gore is broad-based and far-reaching — something that cannot be said of Engler's trash-a-department-at-a-time antics. It also appear to be gaining bi-partisan support.

It's this kind of leadership we need from our next governor, whoever he or she might be. And it's that bi-partisan spirit we need from our thus far too divided and cowardly Legislature.

Scrap developmental

I wholeheartedly agree with M.B. Dillon's article in scrapping the developmental curriculum. I hope to read more informative articles like this in the future.

What stinks right now in our school district? Teachers? No. students and parents? No. Board? Well . . . Curriculum? Yes. So if it's the curriculum that is so bad, it's the curriculum directors and planners that should be fired.

I recall the science and math advisor saying that students don't need to learn long division because they have calculators.

If citizens want an excellent school district, these positions should be filled by a voluntary panel of parents (not chosen by the school). Scope and sequences are available for free from many of the textbook publishers. I have three of them myself from different publishers to plan my homeschool curriculum. Parents, get on the ball and call some textbook publishers immediately so you can have new curriculum next fall. If parents wait for the schools to respond with curriculum, they will never get the desired results.

Imagine what would happen in Canton if people found out the parents actually chose the curriculum. People would be rushing to Canton to build new $250,000 homes. The community would flourish without having to raise tax rates.

Second, once OBE, or developmental, is scrapped, elementary students would not need to each see the school psychologist. One or two counselors for the district would suffice if we had an academic curriculum as opposed to a personality development curriculum. Special ed labels would magically disappear.

"Learning disabled" normal youngsters would become normal again, especially when supplied with a curriculum designed to be taught, and not "facilitated" or "remediated," as the mastery learning approach necessitates. This would be a cost savings at a time of tight economics.

Third, parents, get a candidate for the board for this fall. Prepare campaign strategies and set up your organization now. Get your own PAC, with fundraisers and coffees. If you work hard, your candidate will win. Local control will only happen if parents get involved in curriculum planning and the school board instead of fundraisers and popcorn days.

Taking aim

When you purchase a house in an area that used to belong to the animals, you should not be surprised that some animals still reside there, nor should your only goal in life be to shoot the animals.

After reading "Woman takes aim at animal pests (September 9)," I was appalled by the attitude of Kathleen Sneider-Bronk and the undue attention that the Observer chose to give it.

I grew up in a rural area with groundhogs, skunks, raccoons, and other small animals. They are not a threat to small children as long as you teach your children to stay away from them. When one moves out of the city to find the "good life," one should not be surprised at animals already living there.

Fighting back

I think it's time for the public to fight back on the war between cable and broadcast television. Broadcast television gets its money from advertisers. They could care less how the ads they pay for get to the consumer as long as they get there.

If the broadcast stations demand payment for the right to rebroadcast these programs, then the cable companies should get paid half the money the advertisers pay to have these adds on their cable networks. The price we pay for cable will go up to cover the added cost to the cable companies so why shouldn't they receive payment in return for their services?

An alternative might be for consumers to boycott the companies that advertise on broadcast TV because we are spending our money just to watch TV and don't have extra to buy their products.

This would probably put an end to broadcast TV and the cable stations could take over the advertisements and bring the price back to where it should be. An interesting idea I think. I might even be an organizer of such a boycott since greedy networks want to force higher rates on the people who keep them in business.

Teacher sacrifice

As the parent of children in the Plymouth-Canton Public Schools, I would like to thank two groups for their part in restoring teachers and programs.

First, I would like to thank Jim Vassello and all the parent coalition members for their long hours and hard work in putting together the proposal that made the restoration of programs possible. I'm sure it's impossible to imagine how much time went into this effort.

Secondly, I would like to commend all the members of the Plymouth-Canton Education Association. Voting to defer a scheduled wage increase had to be difficult. "Teacher-bashing" seems to be "politically correct" right now. People claim that teachers don't care about kids.

The Plymouth Canton teachers literally put their money where their mouth is and proved to us that kids and education come first. I extend a heart-felt thank-you.

Health plan or abortion?

Be aware and beware — Mrs. Clinton's health care plan has some tricky wording to cover paying for abortions. Consider this from the Detroit Free Press Sept. 13, 1993:

"The basic package of benefits that all employers will be required to offer if Congress approves the plan does not mention the word abortion. Instead the president's proposal will refer to pregnancy-related services. . . ."

The door is wide open.

Mrs. Clinton makes a grave mistake here and endangers the entire plan by attempting to use health care reform legislation as a vehicle for expanding access to abortion.

Pact offers pride without fear for Palestinian

On Sept. 13, I was among the 3,000 guests invited to witness the historic peace signing agreement between Yasser Arafat and Yitzhak Rabin. When Arafat extended his hand in friendship to Rabin, all the years of pain and anguish seemed to evaporate.

As a Palestinian growing up in Israeli-occupied territory, we became accustomed to the sounds of gunfire, bombs and the blaring of soldiers ordering us to obey their curfew.

At the age of 12, my most intense memory is of six soldiers breaking into our home and dragging my father from the breakfast table to beat him unconscious, while my mother, brothers and sisters watched in terror. My father's only crime was the fact that he is a Palestinian.

Images like these have continued to haunt my memory to this day, 20 years after leaving the occupied territory for the safety of the United States.

We have been accused of being terrorist and terrorist sympathizers simply because we are Palestinians. Our grief was cheered and death was applauded by those who support the state of Israel.

With the signing of this historic agreement between the PLO and the state of Israel . . . for the first time in my life, I feel I am able to display my pride of being a native Palestinian without fear of repercussions.

Before the formal ceremony began, Arabs and Jews shared their hopes and aspirations for peace. For the first time, I finally realized that Israelis, too, have suffered and, just like me, they aspire to live a normal life without guns and fear.

Like it or not, the Palestinians and Israelis are inextricably linked. Yet, because of our claim over the same piece of land and because of historical injustice, we never connected and refused to see each other as human beings.

GUEST COLUMNIST

TERRY AHWAL

All that was accomplished was the death of thousands of innocent people and increased hatred toward each other.

With the symbolic handshake and the signing of the peace agreement, the world witnessed the beginning of hope, reconciliation and cooperation, transferring negotiations from the battlefield to the diplomatic field. However, the world must realize that peace has not yet been achieved, but rather just begun.

For Palestinians, many issues about their destiny have yet to be resolved, such as the refugee status, the implementation of U.N. Resolution 338, 242, which orders the return of the land to the Palestinians, which they lost in 1967 and the questions of the status of Jerusalem.

Also, the Palestinians are deeply concerned about the status of the 13,000 Palestinian prisoners in Israeli jails and the future treatment of Palestinians under occupation outside Jericho and Gaza who will remain during the negotiations.

Despite these concerns, we are optimistic about the success of this initiative. The enemies of peace are many. Therefore, we must all work together to bring an end to the bloodshed and slaughter.

This excerpt taken from the Declaration of Principles on Interim Self-Government Arrangement sums up the hope that all people yearn for: "It is time to put an end to decades of confrontation and conflict, recognize their mutual legitimate and political rights and strive to live in peaceful coexistence and mutual dignity and security and achieve a just, lasting and comprehensive peace settlement and historical and reconciliation through the agreed political process."

This agreement brings forth the hope that the children of that region will be allowed to be children, instead of ammunition experts as they have been for the last four decades.

Terry Ahwal, a Livonia resident, is president of the local chapter of the American Arab Anti-Discrimination Committee. She works as Wayne County executive assistant.

Other Mideast countries now hold key to peace

As this was written, Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and PLO Chairman Yassar Arafat were arriving at the White House for the historic signing ceremony. I never expected that I would witness such an event in my lifetime, and my heart is filled with heightened and conflicting emotions.

Clearly, this is a momentous breakthrough, one that may bring an end to the violence directed at Israelis and Palestinians for so many years. It may enable them to live together as neighbors, at peace with one another. It may even usher in a period of regional cooperation, involving economic linkages and scientific and cultural exchange.

Mideast peace will further envelope the region if Syria, Lebanon and Jordan conclude separate peace agreements with Israel. While the Palestinian issue has attracted the most attention in recent years, there are other significant disputes between Israel and its neighbors that must be resolved in order to proclaim a true and lasting peace in the Mideast.

That true and lasting peace is possible only if other Mideast counties, particularly the Gulf states, support the peace process with both words and action. They can play crucial roles by providing economic development aid to the West Bank and Gaza and by abandoning their economic boycott of Israel.

Therefore, American Jews, Arab Americans and other Mideast peace advocates must now launch a campaign to rally U.S. and international economic support for the West Bank and Gaza. Funds will be desperately needed for targeted projects to build the economic infrastructure in those areas.

GUEST COLUMNIST

DAVID GAD-HARF

Over time, the Mideast nations will be able to reduce their military expenditures, geared to the next war, and replace them with investments in education and human welfare. Israel would be able to reduce its reliance upon the United States for arms and aircraft, and would be able to channel its citizenry into productive purposes.

These objectives would be difficult enough to accomplish in their own right. But, added to the equation are extremist groups that will use every weapon at their disposal to undermine these steps toward peace. Israel, its neighboring countries and the PLO must be unified in their determination to discredit and marginalize those who want to disrupt the peace process.

Extremism feeds on feelings of hopelessness, insecurity and rootlessness. As Arabs and Israelis focus on the attainment of their basic needs for security and well-being, we can all hope that war, violence and hatred will be a thing of the past.

Hopefully, Monday's ceremony will provide the spark of hope that will mean the birth of an era of peace in the Mideast, making it a source of inspiration for the entire world.

Dismal findings in reading match national averages

People in my line of work get a lot of press releases — we call 'em "handouts" — and I'm no exception. I've never seen as many handouts as now, all announcing hearings on what's to happen with Michigan's kindergarten through 12th grade school system.

The State Board of Education is holding hearings. So is the state Senate Republican caucus. Sen. Debbie Stabenow, a Democratic candidate for governor, is holding hearings. Democrats in the state House are holding hearings. The MEA, Michigan's largest teachers union, isn't holding hearings, but it's testifying like crazy.

This is all to the good, although grumpy folks like me can't help suspecting that all this frenzy for public input is just window dressing for what will be entirely insider power plays when the deals finally get cut about how to fund and structure Michigan's schools.

For readers interested in attending hearings and keeping their heads clear in the blizzard of emotion and hype, claim and counterclaim, here are a few facts and conclusions to keep in mind:

- According to a recent national study, "Reading Report Card for the Nation and the States," 41 percent of Michigan's fourth graders cannot read at a basic level. Despite that dismal finding, Michigan's scores ranked just above the national average. Our schools are failing; so, too, are schools throughout America.
- Another national survey recently concluded that just a little more than half of America's workers were "workforce illiterate" — that is, could not read instructions, understand blueprints, operate tools and machinery and make simple job-related computations. Surprise! Poor schools produce poor workers.
- Harold Stevenson, a professor at the University of Michigan, has been studying the differences between American and Asian schools for 14 years. Comparing fourth grade math achievement between 30 Chicago-area schools and 30 in Japan, he found only one American school attained a score as high as the lowest score charted in Japan. No wonder the Japanese are beating us in international economic competition.
- Over the past 15 years in Michigan, inflation-adjusted spending on schools increased by about 25 percent while the number of children in schools dropped by about a quarter, and test scores declined somewhat. Throwing money at the schools doesn't help.

Despite that dismal finding, Michigan's scores ranked just above the national average. Our schools are failing; so, too, are schools throughout America.

While you're listening to the testimony, you might also want to remember that some important steps already have been taken in Michigan to improve school performance.

The state now gives MEAP (Michigan Educational Assessment Program) tests annually to kids in various grades. This newspaper publishes results for local schools, building by building. Thousands of parents are learning just how their local schools are stacking up and, where necessary, demanding improvement.

Beginning with the class of 1994, state-endorsed diplomas will be given only to graduates who measure up on assessment tests. At a time when jobs are scarce, this may have real impact. I don't know many employers interested in hiring kids with inferior diplomas.

These are good steps, only now beginning to show some results. You might want to remind the various holders of hearings that throwing out the baby with the bathwater is a mistake, too.

Gourmet sampling benefits SC students

The scholarship coffers at Schoolcraft College are $38,000 richer thanks to 1,000 hungry patrons who spent Sunday afternoon sampling the wares of some of metro Detroit's finest restaurants.

"Outstanding," "delicious," "great" were some of the comments heard in between bites from guests who paid $35 each to sample ribs from the Caucus Club, gourmet coffee from The Coffee Beanery at Laurel Park Place, wines from Showerman's Party Store and jambalaya prepared by chefs at Union Street.

The 60 food, dessert and beverage stations were arranged on two floors in the Waterman Campus Center on the Livonia campus.

This year's event was the second annual. Co-chairs were Betty Jean Awrey of Plymouth Township and of Awrey Bakery Inc. in Livonia and Jean Shapero of Northville. The honorary chairman was Joe Muer owner of the Detroit landmark Joe Muer's Restaurant.

Saundra Florek, Schoolcraft College spokeswoman, said plans are under way for a third "Culinary Extravaganza" and Muer will again serve as honorary chairman.

Other metro area restaurants and beverage vendors who participated in the fall fund-raiser included: Arriva Italian Ristorante, Boodles, The Breadwinner Bakery, Cafe Cortina, Central Distributors of Beer, DaVinci's Market at the Novi Hilton, The Dearborn Inn-Early American Room, Good Time Party Store-General Wine & Liquor Co., Gratzi, Heavenly Bakery & Gourmet Shop, Jacques Demers, LeMetro, Les Saisons and Lorrie's Confectionately Yours.

Also, MacKinnon's, Malibu Restaurant, Mid Town Cafe, Old Woodward Grill, Orchard Lake Country Club, Pike Street/Chimayo/Acadia, Pricly Pear Cafe, Rocky's of Northville, Westin Hotel-Renaissance Center and Wooly Bullys of Northville and Cafe Bon Homme of Plymouth.

Others were American Harvest, Canteen Corp.-GM Office Center, Charley's Crab, Chez Pierre, Courthouse Brasserie, DePalma's, Diamond Jim Brady's, Edwards Caterer, Elite Sweets, Fox & Hounds, Golden Mushroom, Good Time Party Store-Veritas Wine Distributors, Inc., Hiram Walker & Sons, Inc., Kathy's Cakes and Livonia Marriott.

Also, Marco's Dining & Cocktails, Morels: A Michigan Bistro, One23, The Restaurant at the Ritz-Carlton, Sebastian's Grill, Station 885, Tom's Oyster Bar, Too Chez, 2 Unique Caterers and The Whitney.

Chiefs rebound with rout of Falcons

Soccer action: Salem's Mike Kley does a high-flying maneuver in front of North Farmington's Darrell Bruckseiler to get a foot on the ball Monday.

■ Plymouth Canton had an easier time than Plymouth Salem, but both were winners in Western Lakes Activities Association boys soccer Monday.

Plymouth Canton cut short a three-game losing streak Monday, scoring six second-half goals to rout visiting Farmington 7-0 in boys soccer.

The Chiefs, who had lost close games to No. 2-ranked Troy Athens, Redford Catholic Central and No. 1 Troy by a combined 4-0 score, are 2-0 in the Western Lakes Activities Association and 4-3 overall.

"They're a pretty good team; we just did a really good job," Canton coach Don Smith said. "I think we were hungry for the net tonight.

"After we lost three in a row, we were getting a little upset with ourselves, and we took it out on them. We hope to keep the momentum going."

Evan Sabourin scored two goals for the Chiefs, who outshot Farmington 27-4. Canton goalkeeper Shaun Conway got credit for the shutout.

Jeff Fliss and Chad Dale had one goal and two assists apiece. James Bossieux, Anthony Riemma and Jeff Knysz had one goal each, and Brian Kaminski added one assist.

"It was a nice solid team effort," Smith said. "We scored from a lot of different angles, which we hadn't been getting the last few games."

■ SALEM 4, NORTH 2: There aren't anymore pushovers in WLAA boys soccer, according to Salem coach Ken Johnson after the Rocks edged host North Farmington Monday.

"They're very improved," said Johnson of the Raiders. "The whole league is improved. It wasn't easy. But it's best for the kids to keep them playing hard all the time."

Salem, which won 9-0 last year over North, got first-half goals from Mark MacInnis, Jason Oberhelman, Ronny Mashni and Scot Buczek to lead 4-1.

Assisting on the Salem (3-4-1) goals were Buczek, Doug Herriman, Mike Kley and MacInnis. The Rocks outshot the Raiders 20-6.

Salem golfers now 8-0

Plymouth Salem won the showdown between unbeaten golf teams Tuesday, 207-223 over Plymouth Canton at Hilltop Golf Course.

The Rocks (8-0) were led by Mark Wesner, who shot 39 and has broken 40 in the last four dual meets. Ryan Andrzejewski finished at 41, Brian Covington and Mike Hjelmstad 42, Jeremy Fox and Bryan Proctor 43.

"Two-o-seven is our best score there, and our average has been steadily going down," Salem coach Rick Wilson said, adding the Rocks shot 201 at Fox Creek recently. "We have really improved from week to week.

"But we've only had two away matches, so the test will be how well we play away from home."

Matt Paupore shot 41 for Canton (6-1), Andy Uhtoff and Adam Gilles 44, Derek Baer and Brian Carlson 47.

"It was the typical Canton-Salem thing," Wilson said. "It doesn't matter if it's basketball, football or golf. There's a lot of excitement when you're playing each other."

Chiefs win 3rd invite

Plymouth Canton won its third straight invitational in girls cross country Saturday, scoring 71 points to finish ahead of Troy (101) and Brighton (104) at the Holly Invitational. Plymouth Salem was sixth (170).

The Chiefs had won the West Bloomfield and Ypsilanti Early-Bird meets in the previous week.

"We wanted to continue our momentum, and I was happy with the way the kids raced," Canton coach George Przygodski said. "We were extremely strong over the last quarter mile of the race."

Canton was led by senior Lana Boroditsch, who placed sixth with a 19:35 time. Kathleen Landelius was eighth (19:54), Laura McWilliams ninth (19:58), Becky Wolfrom 22nd (20:27), Beth Knight 26th (20:47), Tracey Cavin 56th (21:56) and Meghan Barresi 70th (22:21).

"It was gratifying to see three of our kids run in the 19s and all five under 21," Przygodski said.

The Chiefs will try to win their fourth in a row Saturday at the Monroe Jefferson Invitational.

Kicks win 5th tourney

The 1981 Plymouth Kicks under-13 boys premier soccer team won its fifth consecutive tournament last weekend, finishing first in the Capital Area Classic in Lansing.

The Kicks won their last four games by shutout, including a 4-0 win over the Livonia Meteors in the final.

Plymouth opened with a 3-1 victory over the Midland Magic and then defeated the Royal Oak Rallye 7-0, the Okemos Storm 2-0 and the Waterford Warriors 2-0.

The Kicks have won their last 27 games (21 by shutout) and outscored their opponents 94-7.

The players are Jacob Gray, Patrick Griffin, Jeremy Hornak, Andrew Kogut, Chris Longpre, Alan Lyskawa, Aaron MacDonald, Matt Maier, Jason Mayol, Aaron Rypkowski, Ed Scheffler, Michael Slack, Brett Stinar, Nick Szczechowski, Ken Szydlowski, Dan Wielechowski and Brian Wozniak.

The Kicks are coached by Paul Kogut and Dan Kogut.

St. Francis dominates clock to beat CC

FOOTBALL

The Toledo St. Francis football team scored on a long drive in the first quarter and dominated time of possession in the second half Saturday night to upset Redford Catholic Central 7-0 at Pontiac's Wisner Stadium.

The loss ended CC's 15-game winning streak that dated back to the first game of the 1992 season. The defending Class AA champion Shamrocks, 2-1 overall, were held to 85 yards total offense.

St. Francis marched 64 yards in 13 plays and scored on quarterback Bill Lanzinger's four-yard pass to flanker Mike Augustiniak on third down and goal with 4:51 left in the first quarter. The extra point split the uprights to give St. Francis a 7-0 lead.

The Shamrocks only chance to score came in the fourth quarter when they reached St. Francis 27. But on fourth down and two, CC was called for offsides and with the ball moved back five yards the Shamrocks were unable to convert the first down.

St. Francis had a pair of long drives in the second half that didn't result in points but took substantial time off the clock. Its first drive took 15 plays and ended on a 31-yard missed field goal. St. Francis also had a 17-play drive that was stopped on downs at CC's 26.

Tate Dobbs, a senior linebacker, led CC with 20 tackles, including seven solo efforts. Joe Walsh had one solo and 11 total and Andy Short was in on nine stops.

Senior tailback Freddie Taylor, who gained 318 yards and scored six touchdowns in the first two games, was limited to 40 yards on 14 carries.

The Shamrocks open their Catholic League Central Division schedule at 7:30 p.m. Saturday against Warren DeLaSalle at Livonia Clarenceville.

Veteran duo plays key role on Salem girls tennis team

STAFF WRITER

Question of the day: What do Jenny Clack and Deepa Sreenivasan have in common?

Give up? These two are the only players returning to their spots on the Plymouth Salem tennis team, which has begun the year 2-2 entering a matchup Friday against rival Plymouth Canton.

The uncertainty about the rest of the lineup after Clack and Sreenivasan, the returning Nos. 1 and 2 singles players, wasn't the only question facing coach Judy Braun.

After going through the summer not knowing if there would be a season due to lack of funds, the Rocks were supposed to have newly resurfaced courts by Aug. 31, but they won't be ready until spring.

Braun also had to decide how to replace several players from a year ago, including Kelly Kirkpatrick (No. 3 singles) and two of her top doubles players in Natale Graves and Ann Bartalucci.

Salem placed fifth in the Western Lakes Activities Association but finished second at the regional and qualified for the state tournament.

"This is somewhat of a rebuilding year," Braun said. "We'd like to make it to regionals and qualify for the state, but I can't really say right now what we're capable of doing.

"When we met last spring to get the team together, I thought we could be as good as last year. But at that time I didn't know we'd go through so many dramatic things like the millage.

"First, we had a team, then we didn't, then we did. Then our courts were ripped out and we didn't know where we would practice. It has been hard to get a cohesive group of girls together."

Braun solved her biggest problem — where to practice and play home matches — when the Huron Valley Tennis Club agreed to lend its courts. The club is on the corner of Cherry Hill and Plymouth roads near Ann Arbor and will be the site of the Canton match at 3:30 p.m.

Clack, a junior, returns for her third year at the No. 1 spot and was runner-up in the WLAA tournament last year. She is 3-1 this year.

"She has improved each year," Braun said. "She is more consistent and has been working on her aggression and strategy. Deepa is good at keeping the ball in play. She's a fighter who will make comebacks and never give up."

After the top two spots, the rest of the lineup might change. Senior Cindy Wierzbicki is a good bet to hold down the No. 3 singles job. Junior Christy Moyer has been in the No. 4 slot in the past couple of matches.

The doubles teams look a little more solid. Senior Melissa Kowalis and freshman Katie Anderson make an impressive No. 1 duo.

"Katie was a singles player and has been training for singles. But by her staying in doubles, that gives us a solid doubles team," Braun said. "Melissa likes Katie's style and wanted to be partners with her. That's a nice complement when a senior requests to be with a freshman."

The No. 2 doubles team is seniors Julie Coyle and Katie Sullivan who have similar styles. The third team is junior Sara Stanley and sophomore Jessica Engle.

Seniors Bridgette Bak, Melissa DeLong, junior Mika Kobayoshi and freshman Suzanne Theodore have rotated as members of the No. 4 doubles combination.

Brooks accepting no short cuts

By Brad Emons
Staff Writer

Sampson's hair made him a force in bibical times.

Sideburns, the tape-measure kind, give Ferris State inside linebacker Mike Brooks a feeling of power when he takes on opposing ball carriers, blockers and receivers in the Midwest Intercollegiate Football Conference.

Mike Brooks

Though only 5-feet, 11 inches, 209 pounds, the 1991 Livonia Churchill grad has become the strength of the Bulldogs' tenacious defense.

His presence was no more evident than in Saturday night's MIFC tussle at Hillsdale College where two of the NCAA Division II's top teams squared off before a record crowd.

Brooks made team-high 19 tackles (seven solos and 12 assists) as the Bulldogs and Chargers battled to a 13-all draw.

Revenge motive big

"This game is something special because they (Hillsdale) really waxed us last year," Brooks said. "They had us down 36-0 at halftime. They just embarrassed us (36-14 final score)."

Brooks' sideburns and the Bulldogs' confidence began to grow after they rebounded from the 1992 Hillsdale defeat. A 1-2 start was quickly erased after Ferris downed Wayne State.

The Bulldogs proceeded to go on a nine-game winning streak, clinching a share of the MIFC title and earning a post-season playoff spot where they eventually lost 35-13 to New Haven (Conn.) in the NCAA Division II quarterfinals.

Good luck charm

"My teammates dared me to grow them," Brooks said of his sideburns. "Once we started winning, they didn't come off until after the season was over. I knew they'd grow back anyway."

Brooks made his mark last season at outside linebacker during his first year as a starter. The freshman was in on 75 tackles, ranking sixth on the team.

When All-American Monty Brown, the team's leading tackler, graduated and moved on to the Buffalo Bills, Brooks was more than willing and able to step in and take his place.

"Both inside linebackers graduated," Brooks said. "All I wanted was the chance. A lot of people said I was undersized and doubted I could fill his (Brown's) shoes. I don't like anyone saying that until they see me play."

Proves critics wrong

After a summer of devoted running and weightlifting, Brooks erased all the Doubting Thomases.

"Last year there was not as much pressure," he said. "But I was confident and they (the coaching staff) let me know I could do it.

"I like to be in the thick of things anyway. It seemed when I played on the outside the play was always running away from me."

In the season opener Sept. 4 at Edinboro State (Pa.), Brooks picked off two passes and returned one for a touchdown in a 23-9 victory.

"One of my goals this year was to have a couple of 'picks,' " Brooks said. "But to score a touchdown was just an incredible feeling."

Bulldogs' leading hitter

Brooks is now the team's leading tackler (18 solos and 22 assists) heading into Saturday's home game with Wayne State.

"He has good instincts, a nose for the football and he's a tough kid," Ferris head coach Keith Otwein said. "He's like an extra defensive back out there with good mobility and strength. He's stepping it up and getting it done.

"He may have a small body, but he's got a big heart. A lot of people said the same thing about Chris Spielman when he came out of Ohio State. They said he was too small, but he made All-Pro."

Brooks, an all-around athlete, was selected first-team All-Observer his senior year as a tailback/linebacker at Churchill, even though the Chargers went winless in 1990.

Opportunity knocks

"During my freshman year they gave me a chance and I had a good spring," said Brooks, who red-shirted his first fall at Ferris. "I was just about smaller than everybody, but I was hoping I could play outside linebacker. I was not into playing DB (defensive back)."

Brooks got his break early in the '92 season when one of the Ferris starters got hurt. He hasn't relinquished starting spot since, and doesn't appear to be giving it up anytime soon unless somebody named Delilah shows up.

"This is my job and it's tough," said the biology education major. "I get paid to play football."

Last summer, Brooks ran every morning for an hour at Churchill before coming home to lift weights. And when he wasn't at home lifting weights, he was working out at a local gym.

"I didn't have a summer job, my parents support me so I don't have to work," Brooks said.

Hillsdale back tough

Brooks held his own Saturday night against Hillsdale's Scott Schulte, one of the nation's top Division II runners. Schulte had to earn just about every inch of turf. He finished with a hard-earned 114 yards in 28 carries.

But even the satisfaction of stopping the Hillsdale star left Brooks and his defensive mates feeling a bit empty.

"A tie feels as bad as a loss," he said. "We like to win. A tie doesn't take us out of the race. They (Hillsdale) already have a loss, but we can still control our own destiny."

In the meantime, Brooks' sideburns will remain long and mean. The barbers in Big Rapids may have to wait awhile.

Crusaders beat Saginaw Valley

By C.J. Risak
Staff Writer

Blame it on the time of year.
Or the weather. Yeah, that's what it was — the weather.
A heavy school load is always good, especially for a college student. Sure, that would work.
How about a death in the family? Nah, haven't used that one since high school, sophomore year, and it didn't work then.
Well, what about . . .

To be honest, no excuses are necessary. Really. Tuesday night's volleyball match, between Madonna University and visiting Saginaw Valley State, was non-league. Nothing was at stake.

Winning would be nice. Losing wouldn't matter.

Madonna won, but it took four sets against a mediocre member of the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference: 12-15, 15-12, 16-14, 19-17.

It was as close as the scores indicate. Madonna, ranked in the top 20 in the NAIA, shouldn't have had so much trouble.

But that's easier said than done. Telling yourself to be ready mentally, don't take the opponent for granted, give it your all — well, it may be right, but it's rarely that simple.

Madonna coach Jerry Abraham knows his team is better than it showed. But it's nice to know his Lady Crusaders can win without their best performance.

"That was a good Saginaw Valley team," he said after his team improved to 19-2. "We got off to a slow start, but we played smart when it counted."

Madonna trailed in every game, rarely displaying any dominance. The first game went by with the Crusaders holding the lead just once, and that was at 4-3.

In the second game, the Cardinals led 12-9 before Madonna rallied; in the third, the visitors had a 14-12 advantage before bowing. The final set was more of the same: Saginaw Valley was up 13-9 and 14-13.

But if the Crusaders showed anything, it was determination.

VOLLEYBALL

Freshman middle hitter Julie Martin, from Livonia Stevenson, was a prime example: Sure, she missed some shots she should have converted, but she made some when it counted, too. Martin finished with 15 kills and 10 blocks.

Junior outside hitter Mo Paulin (Livonia/Farmington Hills Mercy) was equally effective, with 15 kills. Senior setter Mazie Pilut (Redford Bishop Borgess) had 50 assists to kills, senior middle hitter Kari Van Deusen (Schoolcraft College) collected 10 kills and junior outside hitter Julie Wood (SC) had 22 digs.

It wasn't pretty. But it was a win, and perhaps a lesson.

Last weekend may serve as an example. The Crusaders reached the finals of the St. Francis College Tournament in Fort Wayne, Ind., Saturday against NAIA District 23 foe Spring Arbor College — and were upset, 15-6, 1-15, 15-7.

It was the same Spring Arbor team that Madonna had beaten 15-6, 15-10 in pool play earlier in the day. Indeed, the Crusaders had not lost a game in the tournament until the final.

On Friday, they defeated Defiance (Ohio) 15-2, 15-9, and Purdue-Calumet 15-3, 15-6, in pool play. They advanced to the final with pool-play wins Saturday over first Spring Arbor and then Grace College 15-6, 15-7. In the semifinals, they whipped host St. Francis 15-8, 15-7.

Madonna started slowly in the final against Spring Arbor, but rallied to easily win the second game. A strong server put the Crusaders into an 8-0 hole in the third set, a hole they never climbed out of.

Paulin paced Madonna with 34 kills in the tournament (.390 kill average). Martin had 33 (.325), Van Deusen totaled 27 (.356) and Wood had 25 (.293). Pilut finished with 136 assists (10.4 per game); Paulin had 49 digs, Van Deusen 36 and Wood 34.

Ocelots tie nationally ranked Forest Park

SOCCER

It could have been worse for Schoolcraft College's men's soccer team Sunday.

But it also could have been better.

The outcome of Sunday's nonregion match against visiting Forest Park (St. Louis) was a 1-1 deadlock. But it would be incorrect to assume nothing was decided.

The Ocelots didn't win the game, but they had chances to. And the tie — which left them at 6-0-1 overall — gave them something else, something important: confidence.

SC met two nationally ranked teams in a one-week span and came away with a win and a tie.

"We played with two of the top-20 teams in the nation and played them well," said SC coach Van Dimitriou. "We're in a situation where I think we can play with teams of this caliber and do well."

The importance of this match, and the win over DuPage the previous Sunday, can't be discounted. Both are teams the Ocelots will have to beat if they are to advance past the NJCAA's inter-regional tournament to the NJCAA Tournament.

It's unlikely SC will meet another team as good as either Forest Park or DuPage until the inter-regional. The Ocelots appear far better than any of their Region 12 competitors — which concerns Dimitriou.

"I absolutely believe we'd be a better team if we played competition like this regularly," he said.

If the Ocelots came out against their foes like they did against Forest Park, they might never lose. SC pressured from the opening kick, and it quickly paid off when Vince Troiani — inserted into the starting lineup because, said Dimitriou, "He's been playing so well off the bench, why wait 20 minutes for something to happen?" — forced a turnover and bent a shot into the right corner.

SC had a 1-0 lead after just two minutes.

But the tide slowly altered. In the 26th minute, Forest Park tied it on a corner kick was headed into the net by Peter White. The score remained that way, through the second half and two 15-minute overtimes.

SC had chances, the best by Troiani with five minutes left in the second OT, when he lined a hard shot at the net — only to be stopped. Forest Park, too, had a chance on a breakaway, but shot over the net.

"It just wasn't the way it was meant to be as far as finishing," said Dimitriou.

Henry Ford upsets Schoolcraft

It would be too easy to blame Tuesday's loss on the absence of one player, no matter how valuable she is.

Schoolcraft College's volleyball team has survived similar situations many times before. On Tuesday, the Lady Ocelots did not — they lost 15-7, 8-15, 15-8, 15-12 to Henry Ford CC, at SC.

The effect of the defeat? Consider this: The Ocelots have lost just one other Eastern Conference regular-season match in coach Tom Teeters' tenure.

That covers eight years.

The reason for the defeat was simple enough, according to Teeters: "We didn't play too well. The only players who played up to par were Kristin Barnes, Janine Sproul and Julie Campau."

The missing player was outside hitter and defensive specialist Shannon Capstick, who suffered an apparent pinched nerve that caused numbness in her arm. She will be sidelined at least this week.

Capstick's loss forced Teeters to juggle his lineup. He inserted Sproul into Capstick's left-side hitter spot, and although Sproul performed well enough, it did cause problems.

Others failed to pick up the slack.

Grid contest could shift this week

By Brad Emons
Staff Writer

It may be a Vegas kind of week-end for high school football action.

Your friendly prep prognosticators may have to roll the dice, play a little roulette or even deal some blackjack to determine which teams they'll roll and draw.

The standings remained the same after Week No. 3, but the odds could quickly change once we enter Week No. 4.

Yours truly and the enemy (Dan O'Meara) each correctly picked 11 of 14 games. Emons maintains his four-game lead with a season total of 36-9. O'Meara, looking for some Irish luck, is 32-13 overall.

League action begins this week in the Catholic League, while the remaining area teams try to separate the men from the boys in second-week conference play.

Here's what's on the board:

GRID PICKS

FRIDAY'S GAMES
(all 7:30 p.m. unless noted)

Liv. Franklin at Farm. Harrison (3:30 p.m.): Franklin, 3-0 winner last year over the mighty Hawks, have lost three tough games by an average margin of 7.3 points. Quarterback Greg Maple is averaging 187 yards passing (per game), but the Pats' defense is soft. Harrison (2-1), meanwhile is riding high after toppling a good Northville team. Quarterback Joe Pesci and fullback Nick Williams are starting to come around. PICKS: Harrison is the heavy favorite.

Liv. Stevenson at N. Farmington (4 p.m.): Stevenson (3-0) is living right, having won its last two on the final play of the game. The Spartans, led by quarterback Kevin Szczembara and receiver Brad Morgan, are much improved. North (1-2), meanwhile, earned a hard-fought win over Farmington, 14-7. PICKS: Stevenson makes it four straight.

Cranbrook at Clarenceville (4:30 p.m.): The Cranbrook Cranes (2-1) looked anything but lchabod after dispensing of Class D state-ranked Detroit Lutheran West last week, 20-6. The Trojans (1-2), led by breakaway artists Mark Kalaj and Mark Juncaj, earned their first win by pouncing on Lutheran Westland last week, 26-8. PICKS: The Cranes stay in first place in the Metro's West Division.

Northville at Liv. Churchill: The Mustangs (2-1) were corralled last week by Harrison's defense, but still rate high in the Western Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association. Churchill's defense has been outstanding, but the Chargers (0-3) resemble the Pontiac Pussycats on offense, having gone scoreless in three games. PICKS: Northville pins loss No. 31 in a row on the Chargers.

Farmington at Westland Glenn: It appeared the state-ranked Rockets (3-0) would miss defensive back/return specialist Matt Howton, who is out for the season after suffering a collarbone injury vs. Harrison. But Glenn punished previously unbeaten Walled Lake Central last week, 31-0. Farmington (0-3) has been in three close games, but coach Laun Niskanen will have to wait another week to try for his first win. PICKS: Glenn has too much firepower.

W.L. Western at Ply. Canton: Western (2-1) has won two straight after losing to Novi in the season opener, 7-0. The Warriors, however, may be without running back Alex Gillert (ankle injury). Canton (2-1) was shaky on offense last week against Churchill, needing a turnover to beat the Chargers. PICKS: Canton has the edge.

Ply. Salem at W.L. Central: The Rocks (1-2) were hit hard by their last-second loss to Stevenson. Fullback Rob Shepley (thigh bruise) was not at full-strength last week, but could be the difference this time around. Central (2-1) is still smarting from last week's pounding administered by John Glenn. Quarterback Ken Shiller was badly shaken up. PICKS: Salem gets back on the winning track.

Dearborn at Garden City: Dearborn (3-0), led by sophomore quarterback Kevin Kreger, has outscored its opponents 58-6, but the three opponents are nothing to write home about. GC (2-1) boasts Jason "the Workhorse" Workman, who is coming off a 216-yard rushing performance against Southgate. PICKS: Emons says the Cougars' tougher schedule pays off, while O'Meara rides with the Pioneers in the Mega-White Division encounter.

Redford Union at Taylor Kennedy: Both teams are 0-3. So what can we expect out of this Mega-White Division tussle? Wide receiver Greg Knight is RU's big-play threat, while Dana Mitchell is the man to stop for JFK. PICKS: RU breaks through, according to Emons, but O'Meara flies with the Eagles.

Red. Thurston at Dbn. Hts. Crestwood: Thurston (2-1) is playing an old Tri-River League opponent, so that's the good news. The Eagles, led by do-it-all receiver Jeff Lance (193 yards in receptions), drilled Gibraltar Carlson last week, 48-13. Crestwood (1-2), coached by Floyd Carter, is hoping to rebound from losses to Garden City, 7-3, and Allen Park, 22-6. The Chargers' only win is a 6-0 triumph over Carlson. PICKS: Thurston quenches its thirst.

Wayne Memorial at Monroe: The Zebras (2-1) were supposedly inexperienced coming into the 1993 season, but have outscored their last two opponents, 56-2. Monroe (2-1) gave Mega-White favorite Fordson a tussle last week before losing 6-0. The Trojans own victories over Plymouth Canton (12-6 in overtime) and Woodhaven (16-14). PICKS: Emons says Monroe by shade, but O'Meara earns his stripes with the Zebras.

SATURDAY'S GAMES

Lutheran Westland at Detroit Lutheran West (noon): West (2-1) is no longer best in the Metro Conference West Division after losing to Cranbrook last week. The Leopards, however, have the advantage in speed led by Robert Walker. Lutheran Westland (1-2) has a fine tight end in Jeff Lichtner and a fine linebacker in Troy Smith, but coach Dennis Tuomi, who coached by years at West before moving out to Cowan Road, feels a little like Wayne Fontes these days. Where's the offense? PICKS: The Leopards are too fast and elusive for the Warriors.

Bishop Borgess vs. Orchard Lake St. Mary's (1:30 p.m. at Garden City Junior High): The Spartans are 0-3, but at least they went down fighting in last week's 7-0 loss to Hamtramck St. Florian. Meanwhile, St. Mary's (3-0) is No. 1 in Class CC and loaded with talent. Defensive end Cameron Binion, a 6-foot-4, 225-pound senior, is Big 10 material. PICKS: St. Mary's is the safe pick of the day.

Redford CC vs. Warren DeLaSalle (7:30 p.m. at Clarenceville): The defending state Class AA champion Shamrocks had their 15-game winning streak snapped by St. Francis of Toledo, gaining only 85 yards in total offense. Several players got banged up in the process. DeLaSalle (3-0) is still an underdog even with wins over Lake Orion (40-7), Jackson (35-14) and Benton Harbor (20-7). But word has it that Sterling Heights Stevenson grounded the Pilots badly in a preseason scrimmage. PICKS: CC rider all the way in the this Central Division opener.

SUNDAY'S GAME

St. Agatha vs. A.A. Gabriel Richard (2 p.m. at Ann Arbor Pioneer): Both teams are 2-1 and possess two-game winning streaks. Richard's Matt Stroresipiled a career-high 245 yards, including a pair of 53-yard TD runs, in a 35-14 romp last against Allen Park Cabrini. Agatha is coming off a 21-0 win over Marine City Cardinal Mooney. PICKS: The Aggies come up short.

Chiefs romp over Monroe in swimming

Jill Mellis set a pool record in the individual medley Tuesday and also won the butterfly as host Plymouth Canton (2-0) whipped Monroe 111-75 in girls swimming.

Mellis swam 2:15.38 in the IM and 1:01.82 in the butterfly. She also joined with Jill Barnes, Sara Larson and Beth Berger to win the medley relay (2:02.44).

Barnes won the backstroke (1:09.36) and Larson the breaststroke (1:15.49). Canton's Brie Wall had a personal best of 216.85 points in diving, and Susan Pritchard was first in the 100 freestyle (59.21).

"We're looking better," Canton coach Hooker Wellman said. "They had me concerned for awhile. I wasn't sure if we were training hard or not. We'll tell better what shape we're in Thursday."

The Chiefs will be host to Livonia Churchill tonight.

Canton also had good swims from Pritchard and Katie McWhirter in the 200 and 500 freestyles and Jenny Warnke in the backstroke and 100 freestyle, Wellman said.

Regina gives Canton its 1st loss in OT

BASKETBALL

Plymouth Canton went to overtime Saturday with host Harper Woods Regina before falling 53-49 in girls basketball.

"Our kids made a good comeback and run at the them, but we couldn't close them out," Canton coach Bob Blohm said.

"I was disappointed we didn't win it, but I was pleased we got back in it and had a chance to win it."

The Chiefs (6-1) trailed 12-5 after one quarter but outscored Regina 34-22 in the next two periods. Canton was still behind 25-22 at halftime but moved in front with a 17-9 third quarter.

The Saddlelites (5-1) rallied with a 13-8 margin in the last quarter to tie 47-47, but Tamika Bates missed a free throw with one second left that would have won the game.

Bates, who finished with a game-high 20 points, scored all six for Regina in the overtime as the Saddlelites outscored Canton 6-2.

The Chiefs went through an adjustment period early in the game with a new starting lineup, according to Blohm. Freshman Kristi Fiorenzi started at center in place of senior Lisa Nicastri, who hurt a knee Thursday in the Plymouth Salem game.

"We didn't play badly early; we just had a hard time scoring," Blohm said. "Once we got into a flow, we scored 34 points. (Regina) got some good putbacks and that carried them down the stretch."

Britta Anderson scored 18 points to lead Canton. Alyson Noune made four of the team's six three-point field goals and finished with 14 points.

Erica Anderson added eight points and seven rebounds and Amicie Crayton seven and eight, respectively.

Lisa Pertile tossed in nine points for the Saddelites and Nicole Adams eight.

■ POWERS 48, SALEM 40: The Rocks led at halftime (20-16) Saturday but were outscored in the second half by visiting Flin. Powers 32-20.

The Chargers enjoyed a huge free-throw advantage, making 26 of 42 shots as compared to Salem's 11 of 20. The Rocks had 29 fouls called on them and Powers 17.

Powers was 9-of-11 at the line in the third quarter when it outscored the Rocks 17-10 to take a 33-30 lead and 11-of-18 in the fourth.

Kelly Lukasik scored 11 points for Salem, Shellye Sills contributed eight and led the Rocks with 10 rebounds and Lisa Craven added six. Katie Cushman and Pam Owens scored 11 points apiece to lead the Chargers.

"It was a game we played well enough to be in contention to win," Salem coach Fred Thomann said. "We're not quite mature enough as a team to win these close games."

The Rocks (1-4) gave then-unbeaten Canton a battle Thursday during a 40-33 loss.

"We played an outstanding week of basketball without anything to show for it in the win column," Thomann said, "but a lot to show for it in personal and team improvement."

■ FAIRLANE 35, PLY. CHRISTIAN 34: For the fourth time this season, Plymouth Christian Academy lost a heartbreaking game in the final seconds as Dearborn Fairlain Christian squeaked by the Eagles.

The game was decided at the free throw line. With the score knotted at 33, Lindsay Teno (16 points) sank two free throws. She converted six of eight in the fourth quarter and 10 of 14 for the game.

PCA's Nancy Kobernik was fouled as time expired. She made the first free throw, but the second one rimmed out to give the Lions the win.

The Eagles, who were led by junior guard Karin Reed's 16 points, fell to 1-5 overall and 0-2 in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference. Fairlaine is 4-1 and 1-0.

"It's a tough way to lose," PCA coach Rod Windle said. "We're having a tough time winning at the end of games."

ST. AGATHA 47, AGAPE 15: Junior forward Kelly Vandermarliere had 14 points and 12 rebounds for the Aggies (3-3), and senior guard Amanda Barna added 10 points.

Plymouth Agape (3-1) got six points from Lesaina Vogen. Agape fell behind 18-2 after one quarter and 30-6 at halftime.

GOLF

Plymouth Canton boys golf coach Fred Libbing thought about retiring when it appeared a millage failure would eliminate the entire sports program.

When the school and community worked together to find a solution to keep sports, Libbing didn't mind coming back to coach.

"I'm glad for the kids that we pulled this off," he said. "That's the only thing that keeps me going, is to see the kids come out and be enthusiastic. They keep me fired up."

The Canton players are glad to have the opportunity, because it's been quite a season for them so far. The Chiefs started 6-0 in dual meets before losing their first Tuesday to unbeaten Plymouth Salem.

Senior Andy Uthoff has been the overall leader, finishing as team medalist in the first six matches. Libbing believes Uthoff has big-time potential.

"He's won some tournaments and I look for him to go to state like (Brad) Paskievitch did," he said. "I'm going to recommend him to the golf program at Ferris State.

"He's been on the team four years and has really developed. He's definitely a college level player. He'll be a club pro or touring pro someday, or doing something connected with golf."

The other varsity golfers include seniors Derek Baer, Todd Blakeney, Matt Paupore and Adam Gilles and sophomore Brian Carlson. The seniors are steady and consistent golfers who have plenty of experience.

"We count on them to score in the low 40s and keep the team going," Libbing said. "They'll always be real good players. They show up every day and are interested in improving their skills and helping the team."

■ '(Andy Uthoff has) won some tournaments and I look for him to go to state like (Brad) Paskievitch did. I'm going to recommend him to the golf program at Ferris State . . . He'll be a club pro or touring pro someday, or doing something connected with golf.'

Carlson is already a varsity player and will be a key part of the team for several years. In his case, it's a matter of age and maturity, not of ability, Libbing said.

Other young players are sophomores Chuck Newsome, Chris Wilson and Albert Hamood and freshman Matt Ammons.

The Chiefs opened the season with wins over Westland John Glenn (240-252), Farmington Harrison (216-244), Farmington (211-231), Walled Lake Western (213-223), Livonia Franklin (207-237) and Livonia Churchill (211-220). In the latter match Monday, Uthoff shot 36, Gilles 42, Baer 43, Paupore and Carlson 45 apiece and Blakeney 48.

The Western Lakes Activities Association meet will be Tuesday, Oct. 5, at Brae Burn Golf Course on Five Mile and Napier roads in Plymouth Township. The Chiefs expect to be in contention despite the loss to Salem.

Items for the Sports Roundup should be submitted by 5 p.m. Tuesday (for Thursday edition) and 5 p.m. Friday (for Monday edition).

■ BASKETBALL SIGN-UP

The Plymouth-Canton Junior Basketball Association will register players 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 25, and 6-8 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 29, in the Phase III lobby of Canton High School.

All students in the Plymouth-Canton School District and those living in Canton Township are eligible.

Due to limited gym space, there will be limited registration. Anyone registering after the cutoff date will be put on a waiting list.

Tryouts will be conducted before teams are organized to make the teams equal. Everybody will play part of every game and not the complete game.

There will be a AA League for boys in grades 9-12 (fee $80), AA for girls 9-12 (fee $75), A for boys and girls 7-8 (fee $70), B for boys and girls 5-6 (fee $65) and C for boys and girls 3-4 (fee $60).

The program is in need of adults coaches and students in grades 9-12 to be paid referees. Those interested should attend one of the registration periods.

■ SKATING LESSONS

Canton Parks and Recreation is sponsoring in-line and standard roller skating lessons on Saturdays beginning Oct. 9 at the Skatin Station in Canton.

The fee is $32 for either class (includes skates for standard roller skating only). Children 6 and older are welcome. The lessons continue for eight weeks. There are no residency rules. Call 397-5110.

■ INDOOR SOCCER

The Canton Soccerdome is accepting applications for youth and adult teams in its first and second sessions. The fee is $695 per team. The first session begins Saturday, Oct. 30, and the second Monday, Jan. 3. Each consists of eight games. Practice time is available. Call 483-5624. Adult men and women looking for team placement should call the same number.

■ SOFTBALL TRYOUTS

Tryouts for the Compuware girls fast-pitch softball teams will be Saturday, Oct. 2, at Shell Park in Waterford off Dixie Highway. For times and other information, call general manager John Pierce (752-7454). A clinic is scheduled for Saturday, also at Shell Park.

■ SOFTBALL TOURNEYS

Canton Softball Center has tournaments scheduled for the following dates: Sept. 25-26, Last-Swing, three-game guarantee, open to all teams, fee $95 plus umps; Oct. 2-3, USSSA coed NIT, recreational and competitive; Oct. 9-10, Wait 'Til Next Year, fee $95 plus umpires, round robin. Call 483-5600, Ext. 103.

■ PUNT, PASS, KICK

Canton Parks and Recreation Services will have its annual Punt, Pass and Kick competition at 10 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 25, at Griffin Community Park (Sheldon Road site). There is no fee. Registration will start at 9:15 a.m.

The top finisher in each age group advances to the regional level, and the top two receive awards. The age limits are 8 and 15. New age levels this year include 14-15. No cleats of any kind are permitted (gym shoes only). Call 397-5110 for details.

■ CHEERLEADING CLASS

A beginners cheerleading class is offered to girls age 5-12 by Canton Parks and Recreation Services starting Wednesday, Sept. 22. The fee is $25 per person. There is a limit of 30 per age group.

The class meets once a week at the Canton Recreation Center, corner of Michigan Avenue and Sheldon. Students will learn pompon and dance routines, basic cheers and jumps.

Register at Canton Parks and Recreation, 1150 S. Canton Center.

■ WORLD CUP HELP

The World Cup is on the horizon, and the Michigan Host Committee is searching for help.

Volunteers are needed to help stage the four opening-round matches, which will be June 18, 22, 24 and 28 at the Pontiac Silverdome. An estimated 2,000 people will be asked to help in several ways, such as language services, protocol/hospitality, press operations, transportation, accreditation, and office and clerical needs.

Those interested should call Julie Ilacqua, World Cup USA 1994-Detroit venue volunteer manager, at 456-1994, Ext. 207.

North girls 3-peat in city meet

By Dan O'Meara
Staff Writer

North Farmington's third straight championship in the annual girls city cross country meet was impressive in itself.

What was even more impressive was how the Raiders did it, competing without two of their top runners.

North still managed to capture the top three places, scoring 23 points followed by Farmington (39) and Harrison (66).

Jamie Brenner set the North freshman record on the Oakland Community College course with a first-place finish (21:00). Keegan Keefover (21:11) was a second better than her previous best time, and Amanda Hough was third (21:21).

"Going 1-2-3 was a surprise," North coach Bill Pinnell said. "I figured we would have three of the top five places, but I was not expecting to go 1-2-3."

That put the Raiders on solid course for another title. Becky Naglik was eighth (22:06) and Elaine Wolff ninth (22:16).

North ran without Alicia Crossland, who had shin splints, and Kerrie Simpson, who tore a hip flexer muscle in gym class. Simpson set the freshman record of 22:03 last year.

"I told the team we weren't going to run Alicia and everybody was going to have to step up a notch to fill in for her," Pinnell said.

"We have a lot more depth this year than I expected. We had a lot of young runners at the beginning of the year, and all the girls have been stepping up."

Pinnell, also citing the performances of Naglik and Wolff, said the Raiders have been running very consistently.

"Right now we're at a plateau in our training and racing, and I'm pleased with where we are at this point in the season," he said. "We've dropped our times and are waiting for the breakthrough to the next plateau."

Farmington had the Nos. 4-6 runners in Aimee Cameron, Ann Grimaldi and Dana Goba. But the Falcons are dealing with a rash of injuries, too.

Goba ran despite suffering a sprained ankle last week. Pam Buha developed an achilles problem in the third mile and was unable to finish, and Katie Clinard also is sidelined with an achilles injury.

"I'm happy with the results, considering everything we've been through," Farmington coach Liz Zynda said. "The girls are really trying to work through the injuries and get healthy again."

Harrison was led by Allison Noe, who was seventh but the only one from her team in the top 10. The Hawks also were missing two of their top runners — Erin Schwartz (illness) and Sheri Stolnack (injury).

Harrison coach Mark Babcock was impressed by the performances of the Raiders and Falcons.

"We ran better than we did last year (and finished second), so that ought to tell you a lot about the quality of these two teams," he said. "We're better than we were last year, so North and Farmington are better, too."

Falcons capture boys championship

By Dan O'Meara
Staff Writer

Farmington had the individual winner and five of the top 10 runners Tuesday to win the boys title in the annual city cross country meet.

Kevin Afflerbaugh finished first in 17:03 at Oakland Community College, two seconds ahead of North Farmington's Tom Stamboulian.

The Raiders had the next three runners after Afflerbaugh, but Farmington claimed the victory with Jason Jackson (sixth), Mike Langdon (eighth), Tom May (ninth) and Mark Kurzer (10th) rounding out its top five.

The Falcons nipped North 34-35 in the city meet and 27-29 in the Lakes Division dual. Harrison was third with 53 points.

"Just before the two-mile mark when I saw we had a bunch in there, I felt pretty good because I knew we had six guys inside of their five," Farmington coach Chip Bridges said. "Usually, when you have that, good things will happen."

Afflerbaugh was well ahead of his closest teammate Tuesday, but the Falcons have a balanced team, according to Bridges.

"I think, one through eight, we've got a nice group," he said. "Kevin has been our leader, but May, Jackson and Langdon are not far behind.

"A key for us was to have our Nos. 4-7 guys (including Brett Kotrba and Tripp Adams) improve as the season goes on, and they did today."

Afflerbaugh had prepared well for the season and deserved the victory, Bridges said, and May competed despite being ill Tuesday.

"He ran hard all summer and came into the fall wanting to do some things," he said of Afflerbaugh. "Hopefully, this is the first step in a real nice season for him.

Harrison gridder gets extra semester to play

By Dan O'Meara

■ FOOTBALL

Farmington Hills Harrison football player Scott Gurke has been granted an extra semester of eligibility by the Michigan High School Athletic Association.

Scott Gurke

Gurke, who was entering his senior year, and the school petitioned the MHSAA after he suffered a season-ending knee injury during a preseason scrimmage.

The 6-foot, 197-pound running back underwent reconstructive surgery Wednesday at the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor.

Harrison coach John Herrington was pleased by the decision, "but he's got a long way to go," he said. "He'll be off his feet for five weeks, and it will take six months of rehabilitation."

Gurke will drop out of school for the fall semester and re-enter in January. He started school at age 4, is only 16 and won't turn 17 until Oct. 17. The MHSAA rule states a player can't be 19 before Sept. 1 of his senior year.

"We don't want to get into redshirting, but in special situations the rule is good," Herrington said.

Gurke rushed for 600 yards as a junior and was anticipating a big senior year. Herrington considered him his No. 1 player.

He also won the 100-meter dash at the Western Lakes Activities Association track finals last year and was a member of Harrison's sprint relay teams.

"He definitely has a chance at a college scholarship if he can rehabilitate and come back," Herrington said. "He has the size and speed.

"We're just glad he has a chance, and we haven't thought much beyond that. We're concentrating on this year."

Lions JV wins 18-12

William Wanniger returned the opening kickoff 72 yards for a touchdown, and the Canton Lions JV went on to an 18-12 victory over the Ypsilanti Braves Saturday.

The Braves took the lead at 12-6, but the Lions tied it in the second quarter when Shawn Reynolds connected with Andrew Sieber for TD pass. Reynolds scored the winning touchdown on a quarterback sneak.

Mike Klimek and Brandon Evans blocked Ypsilanti extra-point attempts. Tom Mazur and Shawn Reynolds recorded five tackles each and Reynolds three.

Brandon Evans rushed for 90 yards and picked up five first downs.

■ Casey Philo threw a TD pass to Joshua Reeser for the Lions varsity's only points in a 20-6 loss to the Braves.

Brett Burleson was a standout on defense with 11 tackles, a blocked extra point and a quarterback sack assist along with Jason Brafford. Brafford had seven tackles, Chris Eckert six and Teano Wilson five. Matt Biddinger had an interception.

■ The Braves shutout the Lions freshmen 18-0. Bredon Wheeler recovered a fumble on the opening kickoff. Brandon Ellis recorded seven tackles and an interception while Chris Trott had seven tackles, recovered a fumble and blocked an extra point. Andrew Murphy and Jason Evans added four tackles each.

Anthony Cosenza played the whole game in goal for the Rocks in place of Paul Dood, who suffered a bruised knee Saturday during a 1-0 loss to Troy Athens.

Senior defender Brad Jaskolski, who missed the fist part of the season with a bruised kidney, played 10 minutes of each half Monday.

Tetsuya Umemoto and Joe Zima scored goals for North Farmington (3-2).

Athens scored with only 10 minutes left Saturday after MacInnis had hit the opposing crossbar for Salem.

"We gave them a good game; we just couldn't score," Johnson said.

■ REDFORD CC 2, RICE 2: Chris Hatzenbeler scored with 20 minutes remaining Tuesday to give host Birmingham Brother Rice (4-1-2 overall) the Catholic League Central Division tie.

Jamie Heitert scored two goals for Redford Catholic Central. Matt Kopmeyer assisted on both. The Shamrocks now stand 3-1-2 overall and 1-0-2 in the Central.

Tim Crawford tallied the other Rice goal.

"We played pretty well. We had some opportunities, but we just didn't capitalize on them," CC coach Phil LaJoy said. "It was just one of those days. We just couldn't finish."

Elk, bear hunters get early start

BILL PARKER

Small game season opened last week signalling the official start of the 1993 fall hunting seasons. But a couple O&E readers got a head start on the rest of us by participating in Michigan's early bear and elk hunting seasons.

Troy's Mike Wills took a husky 305-pound black bear on Sept. 18 while hunting behind hounds in the Upper Peninsula's Alger County.

Hunting with Frank Rallo, of Utica, and Mike MacEachron of Mac's Guiding Service in Grand Rapids, Wills set out behind the dogs at 7:15 a.m. The hunt ended at 9 a.m. following a single shot from Wills' Tompson-Center Scout 50 caliber muzzleloader.

"I had never hunted bear behind dogs before and it was a real rush," Wills explained. "I hunted over bait the day before and saw a sow and her cub. The next day I had an opportunity to hunt with the dogs so I did. With the dogs it's a different kind of hunt, but it's very exciting. I really enjoyed it. I'd do it again in a minute."

The green-score on the skull appears to be enough to earn Wills recognition in the muzzleloading division for bear in the Commemorative Bucks of Michigan annual record book.

Daddy bags bull

What a week for Chris Dunlap. What an understanding wife.

The Northville hunter hit the jackpot earlier this year when he received a hunter's choice permit for the first September Michigan elk hunt, which started Wednesday, Sept. 8. The only hitch in Dunlap's plan was that Sept. 8 was also his wife Linda's due-date for their second child.

Elk hunters are required by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources to attend an orientation class the day before the start of each hunt. The class was scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. Tuesday, Sept. 7, so Dunlap and his father had planned to leave home about 5 a.m. to make the four-hour trip to Gaylord for the class.

"Frankly I thought I was going to miss out on it," explained Dunlap. "My wife's water broke an hour before I was going to get up and leave. Her labor started and we went to the hospital.

"About 11 (a.m.) I realized the baby wasn't going to be born for a while so I called up there (Gaylord) and spoke with Glen Mathews of the DNR and explained my situation. He was very accommodating. They'll really cut me some slack."

Mathews agreed to meet with Dunlap early the next morning and give him a one-on-one orientation.

Annmarie Dunlap was born at at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 7. Her father left for Gaylord a few hours later after making sure his wife and new born daughter were healthy and resting comfortably.

"My wife is pretty understanding," Dunlap said. "She was great about the whole thing."

On Friday, Sept. 10, Dunlap capped an exciting four days when he shot a 5x5 bull which dressed-out at 525 pounds.

"It was pretty funny once I got up there," aded Dunlap. "It was the talk of the town. Everyone heard about my daughter and kept telling me I should call her 'Elkie,' but I had to draw the line somewhere."

Application deadline

Tomorrow is the deadline to apply for a 1993 anterless deer permit. All applications must be postmarked by Sept. 24. Antlerless deer permits allow a hunter to take an antlerless deer or a deer with antlers extending less than three inches from the skull, within the specific area designated on the permit.

Antlerless deer permits are valid during the Nov 15-30 firearm deer season, the Dec 3-12 or Dec 10-19 muzzleloading deer seasons and the Dec. 1-Jan. 1 archery deer season.

(Hunters and anglers are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information by mail to Outdoors, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI. 48009, fax information to 644-1314, or call Bill Parker 6-10 p.m. Monday evening at 901-2573.)

COLLEGE SPORTS

■ SPARKLING START

For first games, this one would be hard to top.

Actually, it would be hard beat anytime.

Eric Stover got his first start at quarterback for Grand Valley State Saturday, and the Westland John Glenn responded. And then some.

Stover tossed four touchdown passes, hitting 17-of-24 for 286 yards, in leading the Lakers to a 35-0 triumph over Northwood University. A junior who played two years at Grand Rapids Junior College, Stover's TD tosses covered 38, 6, 9 and 20 yards — three of them going to Youssef Sareini.

It's safe to assume Stover will start again this Saturday, when Grand Valley hosts Indianapolis.

■ TOP FINISHER

Michelle Gayney, a senior at Western Michigan from Redford Bishop Borgess, was the top Bronco finisher at the Redbird Cross Country Classic in Normal, Ill., Saturday. Gayney was eighth overall, covering the 5,000-meter course in 18:27.

WMU was fourth in the team standings with 80 points, finishing behind Iowa (31), Wisconsin (60) and Illinois State (61).

■ GREAT BEGINNINGS

If the rest of his cross country career at Erskine College (Due West, S.C.) is this successful, Dave Clinard will have a superb run.

A freshman from Farmington, Clinard finished first in a field of 44 runners at the Lander University Invitational Sept. 11 in Greenwood, S.C. He completed the 8,000-meter course in 26:49.

It was Clinard's first collegiate race.

■ GETTING BETTER

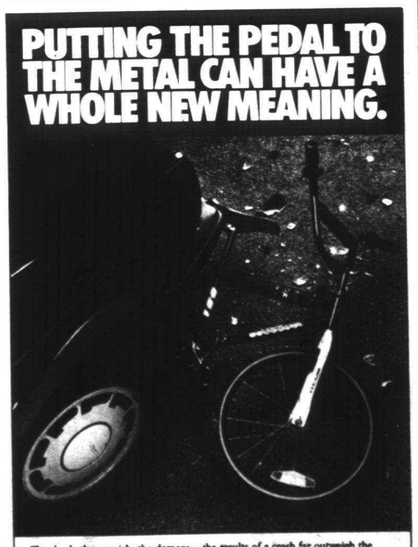
A year ago, University of Michigan placekicker Peter Elezovic suffered through a season Wolverine supporters felt was sub-par.

But, as the saying goes, that was last year.

Elezovic has been near-perfect this season. The senior from Redford Catholic Central has connected on 2-of-3 field goals and all seven of his extra-point attempts. He is third on the team in scoring with 13 points.

A year ago, Elezovic was 7-of-12 on field goals and 52-of-55 in his extra-point placements, scoring 73 points.



The shock, the anguish, the damage — the results of a crash far outweigh the time you save by driving fast. It's a fact that your chances of hitting someone or something increase as you exceed the speed limit. A crash like this can happen in a heartbeat. And when it does, it will change your life forever.

SPEEDING. GETS YOU NOWHERE. FAST.

Marriott's loss is Gentile's gain

■ SOCCER

By C.J. Risak
Staff Writer

Ask the inevitable question, knowing the answer is buried under years of frustration, and what do you get?

A laugh?

That's how Oakland University soccer coach Gary Parsons replied when asked about his annual journey of disappointment — otherwise known as the Marriott Soccer Classic. Each year for the past decade, OU has hosted some of the best soccer talent in the NCAA Division II; each year for the past decade, the Pioneers have failed to win their own tournament.

The caliber of the talent has made Parsons almost immune to his team's failure to win the Marriott, year after year. Therein lies the reason for his laugh.

But it wasn't the only reason. There was much that happened over the weekend that pleased Parsons — even in the 2-1 overtime loss to Florida Institute of Technology Sunday.

"They played hard," was how Parsons evaluated his team after the defeat. "You have to give them credit for that. Today, we played well in spots. We've got some guys playing on sore legs."

What made Parsons happy was the return of senior center midfielder John Gentile from a torn groin muscle. Gentile was a major contributor to the happiest part of OU's weekend — a 2-0 win over Central Region rival Lock Haven Saturday.

Making his first appearance of the season, Gentile powered a shot from more than 20 yards out into the net for OU's first goal Saturday. Eli Tiomkin converted a pass from Mali Walton 12 minutes later to increase the Pioneers' lead to 2-0 by halftime.

"We had a very good game yesterday, and it was a big game," said Parsons after the loss to Florida Tech. It was more important than Sunday's game; the win will boost OU over Lock Haven in the region standings, helping solidfy the Pioneers' playoff berth.

Parsons wasn't the only one smiling Sunday, although the others were somewhat forced. Gentile, still far from full-strength, smiled weakly; he looked worn out after the Tech match. He had played almost all of both games, even though by his estimate he was only "eighty percent."

And then there were the far-from-jubilant Panthers of Florida Tech, the No. 1-ranked team in the NCAA II. They had lost their All-American striker, senior Richard Sharpe, to an Achilles tendon injury Saturday. He did not play against OU.

It was only part of their troubles. Sunday's match was their fourth in six days. When they straggled off the field with the win, they had to be prodded to appreciate it.

"We won, boys," defender Paul Robertson said. "We can be (bleeping) proud now." The celebration that followed was muffled, to say the least.

Coach Rick Stottler knew his team was physically spent. "They're tired and happy," he said.

Although the Pioneers had dominated at the start, they couldn't score. Tech turned it around in the last 20 minutes of the opening half, getting the game's first score from All-American forward Eddie Enders, who converted a through pass from Jeremy Wall at 31:06.

With just 3:36 left in regulation, OU knotted it when Mike Thornton slipped behind the Tech defense, taking a pass from David Ankori. He beat one defender to the inside and lined a shot that hit the crossbar and bounced in.

Tech got the game-winner late in the second OT, taking advantage of freshman defender Paul Doroh. Kieran England's corner kick slid through to an unguarded Kirk Mackey at the far post, and he headed it in with 2:03 left in OT.

The loss was OU's second in six matches. Tech is 5-0. Earlier Sunday, Lock Haven defeated Grand Canyon (Tech beat Grand Canyon Saturday).

Migration time: October is the month when cormorants like the one pictured above fly south to open water along the ocean coasts. A good place to see them around our area would be along the Lake Erie shore.

TIMOTHY NOWICKI

As I traveled north not long ago on Telegraph Road between Long Lake and Lone Pine roads, I saw a sea crow or shag, or as it is now called, a double-crested cormorant.

I was surprised to see it at such a small wetland area, but not too surprised to see it at all. Several people lately have asked about cormorants and told me of their sightings.

Double-crested cormorants are relatives of the pelican. They have a small patch of skin under the throat reminiscent of the large gular pouch of the pelican. Their feet are also like those of a pelican. Intead of webbing between three toes, like ducks, they have webbing between all four toes. This webbing helps them swim through the water, catching fish.

In some Asian countries, fishermen actually use cormorants to catch their fish. They tie ropes around their necks so they cannot swallow the fish, but they can still capture them. What is even more amazing is that each fisherman may have several cormorants on strings, and though they may be swimming in all directions to capture fish, they seldom get tangled.

Fish have resulted in fluctuating populations of cormorants in the State of Michigan.

When my grandfather, who is now 95, first came to Michigan, he would not have seen a cormorant. It was not until the 1930s when they were recorded as nesting on some of the Lake Erie islands. From the 1930s to the 1950s, their populations grew and expanded to the Upper Peninsula.

Then during the height of the DDT era, their numbers dropped to zero. DDT concentrated in the adults, from fish they ate, caused total reproductive failure in some colonies and ultimately they disappeared from Michigan waters.

After an absence of several years, their numbers are starting to recover. Unfortunately, chemicals in the Great Lakes may cause their population to fluctuate again. Some birds have been discovered with crossed mandibles. These birds would be unable to catch food and would eventually die. Just recently, four bald eagles were found with crossed mandibles. They too eat fish from the Great Lakes.

Mexico isn't much of a threat

AUTO TALK

DAN McCOSH

Bandits rode in and took the payroll at Ford's Hermosilla, Mexico plant a couple of years ago, something Ford rarely has to contend with in Livonia.

It doesn't take too long listening to manufacturing types gripe about the problems of doing business in Mexico to get the picture. As one friend who makes fuel filters in plants in Detroit suburbs — the kind of part that could just as easily be made in Pakistan — put it: Mexican wages are cheap, labor is expensive.

All this is not to belittle the number of jobs that have, in fact, gone south of the border in the last decade or so. Seat belt manufacturing, which got its start in Troy, is mainly done in Mexico today. So-called cut-and-sew operations, done mainly by women, by hand, were among the first to go, despite the fact that they were mainly minimum wage jobs in rural areas to begin with.

Some major assembly as well, including the aforementioned Mexican operation where Ford builds Tracers, sold by Lincoln Mercury and engineered in Japan. It's tough to say exactly what wages are in Mexico, since the constantly fluctuating currency distorts it at best. But a couple of bucks an hour, in a land where a U.S.-built car is about $30,000, is the ballpark.

There is a small but growing middle class, consisting of managerial types, as well as some of the wealthiest people on earth. These are the ones who buy cars, including the ubiquitous Volkswagen Beetle, still the mainstay of Mexican transportation.

It's not often that an international policy debate comes quite so close to home, but auto manufacturing and Mexico are linked closely today, and the debate over the North American Free Trade Agreement will, in fact, have an impact on the local industrial parks.

Oddly, the debate has centered on the loss of jobs, something that has been building for a couple of decades, since the Mexican government offers not only cheap labor, but numerous tax and financing incentives to any plant willing to relocate. What is bizarre is that on the surface, NAFTA is the first serious attempt to open the Mexican border to U.S.-made goods, services and investment.

As it turns out, the Mexicans are hungry for a telephone system that works. Exactly why this is a threat to the U.S. auto industry is something of a mystery — but organized labor has brought together some strange bedfellows to argue just that.

The actual terms of NAFTA may not, in fact, open Mexico to U.S. goods — and that's worth careful examination. It's tough to imagine any concession that makes it more attractive to build a plant down there than it already is.

After all, wages are cheap, trucking is expensive, utilities are virtually non-existent, the telephones don't work very well, and machine repair and supplies are several thousand miles away. Not to mention the bandits.

Mexico shouldn't be much of a threat to manufacturing in Michigan. Then again, if things get much worse around here, it might be in the near future.

emitting presumably dangerous levels of VLF or ELF electromagnetic radiation.

Craig said while there has been no concrete evidence to suggest ELF and VLF electromagnetic radiation is harmful, there is a growing body of evidence that suggests there is a connection.

"When scientists measure populations, they have a fixed number of incidence of diseases and conditions like cancer and tumors. When you put ELF and VLF (electromagnetic radiation) into the loop, the numbers go up."

Further complicating the issue is the fact there are few standards for what is harmful, Craig said.

In the United States there are no standards.

In Europe, where workplace health concerns have been an issue longer, standards — generally referred to as MPR II — set by the Swedish National Board for Measurement and Testing have been generally accepted.

Many computer monitor manufacturers have accepted these standards, so when these companies advertise a low-emission monitor, they are stating its emmissions fall below 3.5 milligauss.

There are hand-held testers, but these devices cannot meet the requirements of an MPR II standards test, Craig said.

MPR II standards requires the monitor be tested at three levels from a distance of 50 centimeters. Readings are taken in a circle around the monitor at 22 degree intervals.

All told, a MPR II standard test includes 101 readings, Craig said.

Origins

Craig said the idea for Magnagard Laboratories began when he and his partner, a computer engineer, were discussing the then-little-known issue of ELF and VLF electromagnetic radiation over lunch in February 1992.

Craig, who has been involved in computer industry for almost 30 years, and his partner struck upon the idea that a mobile workstation that could test computer monitors could be an extremely useful tool and began developing such a workstation.

They brought Dr. Casper Sun, a noted radiation physicist at the Brookhaven Institute in New York, on board as director of the company. Then they contacted a certified public accountant and attorney to begin drawing up the necessary documents of incorporation.

Raising startup and operating capital was done primarily through nine stockholders, many of them friends and family members of the principle players, and including personal investments from company officers.

A third company officer, Steven Barkley, will join the company before the end of the year. Barkley, a marketing executive with IBM in Texas, is retiring to take on the marketing duties of Magnagard Laboratories.

Future looks positive

Magnagard Laboratories could really take off, said Eric George, a marketing director with Ergonomics Inc., a Pennsylvannia-based distributor of scientific measuring devices.

Growing concern about the issue could propel Magnagard into the forefront of monitor testing, said George. In addition to being an Ergonomics distributor, George has also spoken in forums on the subject of ELF and VLF electromagnetic radiation and has contributed to study on the subject.

"Labs (that do testing) have been around for some time now, but the key to their success is the portability and flexibility (of their mobile workstation).

"I think they have an interesting idea," he said. "As long as they market themselves correctly, they can be very profitable."

Granted, George said, there aren't many companies interested in testing computer monitors for emissions, but that number is growing.

When companies do decide to undertake testing, it is unlikely they will do it inhouse because the equipment is expensive and most would prefer an outside, candid appraisal of equipment. "And the employees may demand it (an outside tester)."

The federal government has already appropriated millions of dollars to conduct a multi-agency study headed up by the U.S. Department of Energy. That study will help in formulating policy on computer monitor emission standards, he said.

"This could very likely lead to some legislation," George said.

Check up: Robert Craig, president of Magnagard Laboratories in Livonia, believes growing health concerns will prompt increased monitoring of the radiation levels in the work place.

Selling piece of mind computes

BY GERALD FRAWLEY
STAFF WRITER

Odds are, if you're in an office, there is one right next to you.

We're talking computers, or more specifically, computer monitors. And although there is no hard evidence, there are growing concerns that monitors may be ticking time bombs.

Fact: All monitors give off some degree of electromagnetic radiation.

Fact: Electromagnetic radiation has been linked to cancer, miscarriages in pregnant women and other medical ailments.

Fact: There are an estimated 75 million computer monitors perched on office desks, in homes and in schools.

Supposition: We may have a problem here.

Robert Craig, president of Magnagard Laboratories in Livonia, has — if not all the answers — part of a solution and a little peace of mind.

"There are millions of monitors that are a potential health hazard," Craig said. "What we do is test them to make certain they meet certain standards — and if they don't, we can shield them.

"When we first started this company, I would make calls and people didn't want to talk about (ELF and VLF electromagnetic radiation). Now when I call, I may not sign a contract, but people want to talk.

"I think in the future — the near future — people will want to test."

Going mobile

Magnagard Laboratories has introduced a mobile work station that enables technicians to quickly and accurately test monitors for very low frequency (VLF) and extremely low frequency (ELF) electromagnetic radiation on site — meaning at the office.

Prior to this innovation, companies interested in testing monitors would have to pack up and ship the monitors to a testing center, wait for testing, and then have them shipped back.

In addition to testing monitors, Magnagard Laboratories also can add shielding to those monitors that are

Customer focus as a goal escapes survey respondents

Is it genuinely improved service or just lip service?

Becoming more responsive to customer needs has become the goal for many companies, but a survey done by the Corporate Calling Center of Detroit seems to indicate that business is not making a concerted effort in that area.

"Michigan customers do not feel that their opinions have a significant impact on the quality of service provided by the businesses on which they rely," according to the CCC.

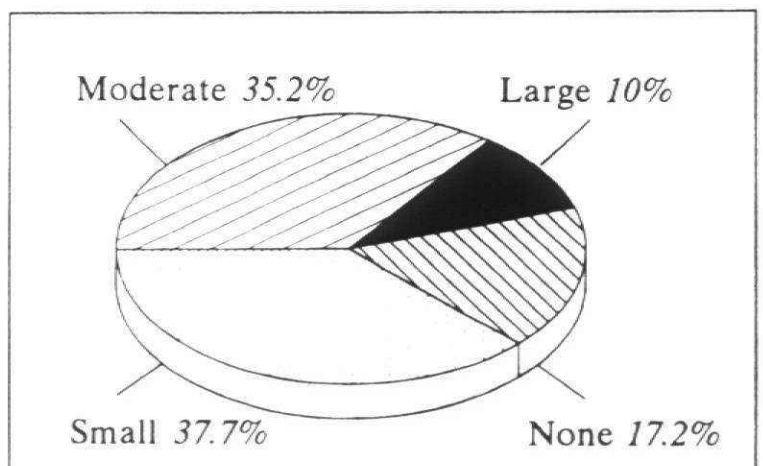
"Specifically, 17.2 percent of respondents said that their opinions have no impact, 37.7 percent said their opinions have only a small impact, and 35.2 percent said that their opinions have a moderate impact on improving customer service. Only 10 percent of respondents feel that their opinions have a large impact."

Survey respondents believed businesses choose not to solicit their opinions. Fourteen percent indicated that all or most of the businesses they patronize ask for feedback while 66 percent say only some or a few seek their opinions. More than 19 percent said that none of the businesses they patronize ask their opinions.

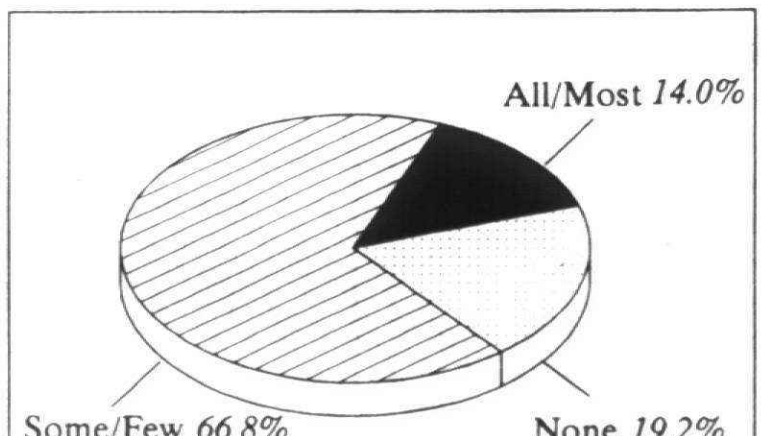
A cross-tabulation of the two questions showed that, of the customers who say that all or most of the businesses they frequent ask for their opinions, more than two-thirds believe their opinions have a large or moderate impact on service quality.

Conversely, of those who said that none of the businesses they buy from ask for their opinions, less than one-third believe their opinions have large or moderate impact.

The CCC survey was based on interviews with 490 Michigan residents during June, using random digit dialing to select respondents. Margin of error is plus 3 percent.



"How much impact do you think your opinions have on the quality of customer service you receive from the businesses on which you rely?"



"How many of the businesses you frequent or buy from ask your opinion of their service?"

■ Customers do not feel that their opinions have a significant impact on the quality of service provided by the businesses on which they rely.

EARTHA DEYAMPERT

Career ideas can be found in caregiving

Thinking about a career in early childhood education? What are the options? Are there plenty of good positions available? What about salary range and decent benefits? Can you climb the ladder and advance in the field? Are there identifiable paths you can follow to get to a desired goal or position/job?

The field of early childhood education is a great one. Early childhood educators recognize that the future of our children rest on building good foundations and strong beginnings. An according to the National Association for the Education of Young Children, working with young children is an investment in the future.

Many educators can relate to the phrase, "put a little in, get a little out . . . put a lot in, get a lot out." Such is true when investing in children and promoting "whole child" development.

Children from birth through the age of eight are growing, changing and learning at a remarkably rapid rate. The teachers and parents who guide these young children are responsible for providing rich experiences that will influence them all their lives.

Teaching is a challenging responsibility, but the personal and professional rewards are many. The profession is also demanding, both intellectually and physically, because children are curious and active. Competent and loving child care contributes to the total development of children and the well-being of families.

Early childhood educators provide planned educational experiences for groups of young children and/or services to their families.

Children's mental, physical, emotional and social growth is stimulated through activities designed to promote learning and the joy of life. As such, selecting appropriate activities for children is difficult and requires knowledge about how children learn and think as they develop.

Under the guidance of a loving and knowledgeable teacher, children become more competent in their use of language, learn to deal more effectively with others while understanding themselves, and develop their imagination, curiosity and concepts about the world through play and concrete experiences.

Early childhood educators recognize that caring for children in groups requires special expertise. They have skills in setting up a safe, healthy and stimulating environment, emphasizing good nutrition and providing opportunities for active play, quiet play and rest.

Observing children's behaviors is an important way in which to learn more about the young children in your care so you can guide them in their growth. A teacher's interactions with children, parents and colleagues should serve as a positive model of interpersonal relationships.

Most careers in early childhood education involve either working directly with children, or working with students, families or other adults in the profession.

Many names are used to describe programs for young children - nursery school, child care, Head Start, kindergarten, family day care, primary school, school-age day care. These programs are found in a variety of settings with many different funding arrangement.

Good programs, regardless of sponsorship, all have one goal - to provide for the needs of young children in a professional and loving manner. Job titles that reflect work with children include early childhood teacher, elementary teacher, family day care provider, kindergarten teacher or hospital child-life worker.

Many careers in the field involve work with adults as well as, or instead of with young children. Job responsibilities vary greatly. Many professionals supply information or support families in parenting skills. Others supervise adults who work with, or for, young children.

Some prepare future teachers or seek more knowledge about how children grow and learn. Careers working with adults generally require additional professional education and/or previous experience in working with children. Job titles which indicate work primarily with adults include early childhood program director, social worker, nutritionist, child development researcher, licensing specialist, recreation planner and therapist.

So how do you prepare for a career in early childhood education?

Talk with your guidance counselor, if you're in school. Or volunteer to work with a child or small group of children. You can also take courses in areas such as child development, health, family living, sociology or psychology or enroll in a college or university program in early childhood education or child development.

WINGS fights discrimination

For two women, the Anita Hill-Clarence Thomas hearings were a wake-up call. The victims of sexual discrimination on the job, they formed an organization that offers support to women experiencing the same treatment.

BY ETHEL SIMMONS
STAFF WRITER

Two Oakland County women, Mary Lou Butcher of Bloomfield Hills and Susan Temere of Lake Orion, both say they have experienced sexual discrimination on the job.

A few years back, Butcher, then a journalist, filed and won a class-action suit against the Detroit News where she worked. She has gone on to develop a successful career as a businesswoman in the communications field. Temere, a security guard at General Motors in Pontiac, is still fighting against her employer of 18 years, whom she is suing.

Despite their own struggles, the two women joined forces last fall to help form support groups for metropolitan-Detroit women facing sexual discrimination and/or sexual harassment in the workplace. The organization is called WINGS, an acronym for Women Involved in Giving Support.

"This fall we received our grants and funding from the Nokomis Foundation of Grand Rapids," said Butcher, who is president of WINGS. Nokomis provided funding for the printing and distribution of brochures offered by WINGS enabling women to identify discrimination in the workplace and learn what steps to take to stop such discrimination.

Although WINGS encourages women to try alternative methods before considering a lawsuit, the brochures also outline how to to find an attorney and how to prepare for legal action.

Until now, there have been five WINGS support groups - in Detroit, Downriver (in Taylor), Howell, Lansing and Rockwood. Some Oakland County women have traveled to Detroit or Howell, the closest support groups, for meetings. But the WINGS board has just announced that an Oakland County support group will meet 7-8:30 p.m. every third Monday, beginning Sept. 20, at the Baldwin Public Library in Birmingham.

Information about WINGS is available by calling the group's hotline at 693-0840. Temere, who is executive director of WINGS, said women can call anytime to leave a message. For an immediate personal response, "I'm always there seven days a week mornings to talk to them."

Recalling the start-up of WINGS, "The planning and organizing stages tooks several years. It predated Anita Hill," Butcher said. But with the Anita Hill-Clarence Thomas hearings, "It was like a wakeup call. It gave women the courage to come forward and say this was happening to me, and to take positive action. It taught women that these acts were illegal too," she said.

Although many employers are more enlightened today than in the past about sexual discrimination, Butcher pointed out, "There is still the problem of the 'glass ceiling,' keeping women at low level with the corporation."

WINGS hopes to establish support groups in all the main cities throughout Michigan.

Susan Temere, executive director of WINGS, said that at General Motors she has been sexually harassed and propositioned by hiring superintendents. She said that during her 18 years with the company, she has been denied 100 job openings.

"It's living a nightmare that you don't feel you're ever going to get out of," she declared. "It has serious effects economically, the quality of my work."

Referring to her start at GM, Temere said the corporation recruited her from Michigan State University, where she graduated from the law enforcement program with honors. She received a master's degree in organizational communication from Wayne State University.

Butcher, in talking about her legal battle against the Detroit News, said, "I initiated that lawsuit that became a class action. It took eight years to resolve. We figured we won. We settled it with a $330,000 settlement on behalf of a class of 90 women. Even more than a dollar amount, we felt we won on behalf of women. It forced the News to go out and hire women and give them good assignments in the newsroom." She said one of the women, hired as a result of this, later won a Pulitzer Prize.

Butcher and her husband Jack Casey currently run a small consulting communications company, Casey Butcher Ventures.

Further information also is available by writing WINGS, P.O. Box 4793, Troy 48099.

Town Halls handle their 30s in style

Town Hall: Guest Dr. Julius Segal will discuss "Winning Life's Toughest Battles."*

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

One commercial touted that "You're not getting older, you're getting better," and such can be said for two Town Hall programs. From the movie business to the fact and fiction surrounding the Lincoln years, Livonia Town Hall is serving up variety for its 30th season.

The queen of the soaps, Washington's leading hostess and baseball's last 30-game winner will be among those sharing the podium for the Northville Town Hall series' 33rd season.

Livonia Town Hall kicks off Wednesday, Oct. 20, with film critic Susan Stark, with Dr. Julius Segal, an internationally recognized authority on stress and coping, on Nov. 17, Lincoln historian Dr. Weldon Petz on Jan. 19 and piano virtuoso Peter Howard on March 16.

"This is a real landmark (year)," said Town Hall president Lois Gibbons. "Some of the gals who started it are pleased to see that what they started 30 years ago is still around. The very first town hall was in Grosse Pointe and it closed its doors two years ago."

A committee helped select the speakers for the Livonia Town Hall, looking at those available from different agencies that fit into group's budget. A nonprofit organization, proceeds from the annual series benefit for abused children and battered women.

As in previous year, Town Hall will be at Burton Manor on Schoolcraft between Middlebelt and Inkster roads. The lectures will be at 10:30 a.m., followed by a luncheon.

Eileen Fulton of the CBS award-winning drama "As the World Turns," leads off the Northville Town Hall on Oct. 11. The series, held at the Holiday Inn-West in Livonia, also will feature Dr. Paul McCracken, one-time member of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, on Nov. 8, Allison Laland, a leading hostess in the nation's capital, on March 14 and former Detroit Tiger and talk show host Denny McLain on April 11.

The lectures are at 11 a.m., with the luncheon following at noon. Norhville Town Hall divides its proceeds between its sponsor, Our Lady of Victory in Northville, and charities in Northville, Nov, Plymouth, Farmington, Livonia and South Lyon.

Livonia Town Hall

Stark, who began her career as a film critic in 1968 with The Detroit Free Press, switching to the Detroit News in 1979, has reviewed more than 6,200 movies. Her lecture will look at how "American Movies Grew Up."

"We've been trying to get her for some time," Gibbons said. "We hope she give us some gossip about the stars."

Segal, a pyschologist, writer and lecturer has authored six books and more than 150 articles. His topic will be "Winning LIfe's Toughest Battles," also the title of his latest book, which will show town hallers how to unlock their undreamed of powers of healing and growth.

Petz came highly recommended by the Questors, a group interested in history and historical artifacts. He has spent years researching Abraham Lincoln and his wife, Mary Todd Lincoln, work with the likes of Carl Sandburg. As a result of his work with the noted author, Petz received the Lincoln Diploma of Honor. Petz will dispell the myths surrounding the 16th president of the United States.

Writer's efficiency, determination make fine partnership

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

LORENE GREEN

Dear Mrs. Green,

Here is a spontaneous writing sample. I am curious about what my handwriting may or may not reveal about me.

I know of your expert reputation and longtime association with The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. I have read a smattering of information on the subject; please see the attached article.

I know my cursive seems rather rigid, but I also recognize that the writing stops and picks up again, mid-word.

I look forward to your response. Thank you.

S.M.,
Ann Arbor

I couldn't resist analyzing such a flattering letter!

Even an untrained eye can recognize the fine spacing of today's handwriting. This carries a positive connotation and points up a spirit of orderliness.

She is well organized and conscientious. Her efficiency and determination make an excellent partnership. Her memory is retentive and she pays assidious attention to all details. She likes to work with good equipment.

This young woman is self-disciplined and aware of time. Being a punctual person she appreciates the trait in others. She is clearly able to see and act on the essentials.

In many areas this is an independent person. She can deal with new concepts and step aside from conventional ideas. The ability to stand alone and rely on herself and her inner convictions cannot be missed.

Outwardly, she is a picture of poise and control. She is not prone to show her feelings. Before committing herself emotionally she wishes to get all the facts. She refrains from impulsive actions and will usually consider how the situation or decision will affect her personally.

Culture and high intelligence are quickly discerned in this handwriting sample. Her thought processes are fluent. She expresses herself well both in words and ideas. Literary aptitude is a strong possibility. Often her mind is working ahead, finding new and viable ways of handling tasks and solving problems.

Intuition is also pervasive in this handwriting. It can be an asset in assessing people and/or situations. She probably does well at solving puzzles and unraveling mysteries.

Seemingly, she has a good feeling for language and sound. Music will be important in her life.

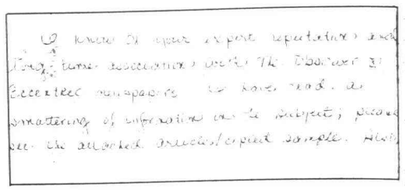
An innate sense of aesthetics can also be seen here. Her home and/or office would be interestingly arranged. Tastes would lean more toward the plain or original than the ornate.

Beauty often calls out to her. She can become delighted at the sight of nature's grandeur.

A desire for recognition and love is inherent in all of us to a degree. This young woman appears to have quite a strong need for it at this time, especially from the opposite sex. Some early life deprivation is hinted at here.

Our writer is caring and helpful. Great empathy for others is seen. Her generosity, however, can be carefully calculated at times. There are some things to which she clings tenaciously.

Emotional confrontation is distasteful and she tries to avoid it wherever possible. She has a likable personality and wants to relate to others in a harmonious way. She also enjoys time to be alone to pursue her own varied interests.



Her sense of humor should be ingratiating to those around her. It can also help put things in perspective for her when the going gets rough.

Although this versatile young woman has many commendable traits the writing suggests her self-esteem may need a little reinforcement. Seemingly, she wants to appear more sophisticated than she may inwardly feel.

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and signature are all helpful and objective feedback is always welcomed.

Each state sets its own requirements for adults working with groups of young children or serving in other capacities in the field. Primary considerations are previous experience and/or training. Contac state education department or child care licensing division about qualifications for specific careers. Caregiving opportunities do exist for people who do not qualify for teacher certification.

The nationally recognized, competency-based child development associate credential is available to caregivers who can demonstrate skills in working with young children. Many communities offer training opportunities for people applying for this credential.

Membership in a professional association, such as NAEYC with its journal, "Young Children," and national conference can help you stay informed about the latest developments in the field.

Although salaries vary in different areas of the country, people who work with young children usually earn relatively low salaries considering their responsibilities and for many their high level of education and training. The need for child care workers is projected to reflect the number of families in which all adults are employed. Similarly, many careers in early childhood education are related to trends in the national economy, government priorities for children and families and public demand for services.

Howard's creativity runs the gamut of the musical scale. Considered one of the premier arrangers and composers, he also is impressive on the keyboard, performing at Carngeie Hall, on radio and television. He also has worked with Julie Andrews, Lauren Bacall, Carol Channing, Ginger Roagers and Barbara Striesand, to name a few.

His visit to town hall will include stories about the world of show business, interspersed with his keyboard vituosity.

Gibbons believes the committee has come up with a good lineup for the 1993-94 season, but laments that the organization has difficulty attracting a younger crowd.

"We can't get a particular age group because women go to work when they're not with the kids," Gibbons said. "A product of Livonia Town Hall is not only that it fosters friendship in the community, but brings in people from other communities like Milford and West Bloomfield."

Season lecture tickets are $32, while patron tickets, which includes your name in the program, are $40. They are available by sending a check, payable to Livonia Town Hall, and stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dee Dee Dittmar, 18420 Laurel, Livonia 48152. Individual lecture tickets cost $10 and are available at the door.

Luncheon tickets must be ordered separately and in advance by Oct. 12. They cost $40 for the season. Checks, also payable to Town Hall, and stamped, self-addressed envelopes should be sent to Gerry Dahler, 32284 Allen, Livonia 48152.

For more information about the Livonia series, call Dahler at 425-4554.

Fulton is famous for her role as television original shrew, Lisa Coleman-McCall, in "As the World Turns." One of the first daytime TV stars to be recognized as a world-class celebrity, she is a dramatic actress, show-biz songstress and comedienne with formidable roots in Broadway and Off-Broadway. She has performed in "The Fantasticks," "Many Loves" and "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?"

Her dedication to the performing arts is only matched by her steadfast concern for the welfare of children. She has been involved with the Metropolitan Committee for UNICEF, co-host for telethons for Cerebral Palsy, the national spokesperson for The March of Dimes and hostess of the 1981 March of Dimes Telethon and volunteer education spokesperson.

McCracken has been a member of the School of Business Administration faculty at the University of Michigan since 1948. He took a leave in 1956-58 to serve as a economic adviser and returned to serve as its chairman for another three years in 1969. He also was a member of President Ronald Reagan's Economic Policy Advisory Board.

In addition to involvement with different business organizations, he also has been director of Dow Chemical Co., Johnson Controls,K mart, Lincoln National Corp., Sara Lee and Texas Instruments. He has authored articles for The Wall Street Journal, lectured and traveled throughout the world.

Laland may have one of the most sought after invitations in Washington, D.C., eagerly awaited by ambassadors, Cainet members, White House officials and members of Congress. A frequent guest on radio and TV, she has been described as an eminent "social hostess." In addition, she has a successful Real Estate career with Solheby's International Realty.

Her inside story on White House parties reveals some surprising aspects of the people who have headed our governement and how presidents and their ladies have used their parties to accomplish political goals.

McLain was well-known in the Detroit area before taking to the airwaves with his weekday morning talk show on WXYT. He pitched for the Detroit Tigers in the 1960s, helping to land them the 1968 world championship with his phenomenal 31-game winning season. No major league pitcher has matched that record since.

More than a sports hero, he is a pilot, musician, author and voracious reader who uses his diversified experiences to relate to his radio audience on a myriad of topics.

Season lecture tickets for Northville Town Hall are $35. Gold PAtron ($100) and silver patron ($50) also are available by sending a check, payable to Northville Town Hall, and stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ticket Chairman Shirlee Marshall, Northville Town Hall, P.O. Box 93, Northville 48167.

Luncheon tickets are $12 each, including tax and gratuity, or $48 for the season and available to only season lecture ticket holders. They can be ordered by sending a check, also payable to Northville Town Hall, to Mary Louise Cutler, P.O. Box 93, Northville 48167. Checks must be received no later than a week before each lecture.

For more information about the Northville series, call Carmen Kuckenbecker at 349-7227, Shirlee Marshall at 349-9026 or Sue Korte at 349-2032.

Benefit 'lights up' for Angela Hospice

Angela Hospice Home Care, the Italian American Club of Livonia and Jacobson's are putting the finishing touches on the sixth annual "Light Up a Life" benefit and fashion show.

This year's gala will be Tuesday, Nov. 9, at the Jacobson's Laurel Park store in Livonia and promises to be an evening of holiday shopping, food and fun.

Doors will open to ticket holders only at 6:30 p.m.

WJBK-TV anchor Rich Fisher will be honorary chair for the benefit. Fisher, an Emmy-winning news anchor, began his broadcasting career in 1968 at WATZ AM-FM in Alpena. He also worked at WJRT-TV in Flint and WXYZ-TV in Detroit before joining WJBK.

He has worked for numerous charities, including the Muscular Dystrophy Association, American Lung Association and American Cancer Society. He is former general chairman for the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation of Genesee County and has been involved with St. Jude's Children's Hospital since 1988.

WKQI radio personality Colleen Bumar, WDIV-TV meteorologist Paul Gross, Detroit Tiger announcer Rick Rizza, WDIV-TV personality Sara Barr and other local celebrities will model a selection of holiday fashions available at Jacobson's while more than 20 of the area's favorite restaurants will provide food for the tasting.

Special jewelry, crystal and accessory presentations are also planned for the evening along with a raffle, featuring such prizes as dinner for two with Mr. and Mrs. Mort Crim at Stewart's Restaurant, two round-trip continental United States airline tickets donated by Northwest Airlines and a $500 Jacobson's gift certificate, to name just a few.

Angela Hospice Home Care has been serving the communities of Southeastern Michigan since 1985 and is sponsored and operated by the Felician Sisters. Proceeds from the event will benefit the new Angela Hospice Care Center, a 34,000-square foot inpatient facility that will provide a home-like environment for people who suffer from a terminal illness when they have no one to care for them or nowhere to go.

"We are overjoyed by the support we have received and the 'Light Up a Life' benefit and fashion show is just one way of showing the people who suffer from an incurable illness that they are part of a caring community and will never be alone," said hospice president and founder, Sister Mary Giovanni.

Tickets for the event are $30 and can be purchased by calling Loretta at 473-9464 or Dorothy at Anchor: Rich Fisher chairs benefit.

Angela Hospice at 464-7810.

The $1 raffle tickets can be obtained by calling Kathy at 462-3312 or Dorothy at Angela Hospice.

ANNIVERSARIES

James and Mary Bengle

James and Mary Bengle of Garden City were the guests of honor at a dinner with friends and relatives at Mountain Jack's Restaurant.

The Bengles were celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary. They exchanged vows on Sept. 11, 1943, at St. Elizabeth Catholic Church in Detroit. She is the former Mary Wesserling. They had their marriage blessed again by the Rev. Richard Garry at St. Bernadine Catholic Church in Westland as part of the celebration.

The Bengles have liv d in Garden City for six years. They have two sons — James Jr. of South

Lyon and Michael of Redford. They also have five grandchildren — Matthew, Erin, Wayne, Christopher and Jason — and one great-grandchild, Christina.

He is a retiree of the Ford Motor Co. and with his wife is active in the 50 Plus Pinochle Club at St. Bernadine's.

Burton and Marian Rich

Burton and Marian Rich of Plymouth recently celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary.

Formerly of Salem Township, the couple exchanged vows on Sept. 22, 1933, in Holly. She is the former Marian Hadley.

The couple has three children — Mary Bagnasco of Plymouth, Elaine McIntyre of Pinckney and Kenneth, the fifth generation to live on the family's sesquecentinnial farm in Salem Township. They also have 11 grandchildren including one, John, who plans to build on the farm, and 13 great-grandchildren.

Her sister, Margery Williams of California and brother Richard of Texas along with his brother Fred and wife June joined in a family dinner to honor the couple.

He is a 1969 retiree of General Motors' Detroit Diesel Division. She was a bookkeeper and art show director.

Vito and Corinne Minni

A trip to Hawaii this winter is in the offing for Vito (Larry) and Corinne Minni of Plymouth, who are celebrating their 25th wedding anniversary.

The Minnis exchanged vows on Sept. 28, 1968, at St. Barbara's Church in Dearborn. She is the former Corinne Gallucci.

Both are graduates of Fordson High School and he went on to earn a master of business administration degree from the University of Michigan. He is a 28-year employee of the Ford Motor Co.

Members of St. Collette's Church in Livonia, the Minnis have a son, John Eric.

Many people say they hate grammar. But it is very important as I hope to show you. "Whosoever BELIEVETH that Jesus is the Christ IS BORN of God" (1 John 5:1). The verb "believeth" is present tense showing what is taking place now. The verb "is born" is perfect tense, pointing out action which was completed in the past, before the person believed. Thank God He gives life by new birth so we can believe!

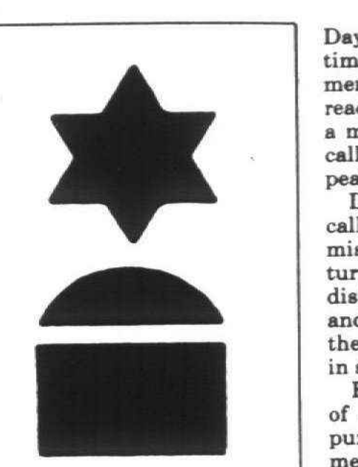
Holy time

Jews celebrate start of New Year



This year, Jews all over the world, with a mixture of solemnity and festivity, are marking the beginning of the year 5754.

Based on a lunar calendar and on a tradition that year one was the year of Creation, the Jewish High Holy Days spans three weeks and started with with Selichot, the special services held the Saturday night (Sept. 11) preceding the New Year. The penitential prayers signal the approach of the High Holy Days, according to the Jewish Community Council of Metropolitan Detroit.

Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur are the two most sacred holy days in the Jewish faith and are referred to as the "High Holy Days." Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year, begins the 10 Days of Penitence, which conclude with Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement.

Following the 10 Days of Penitence, other holidays usher in the New Year. Sukkot is the Jewish Festival of Thanksgiving on the occasion of the final gathering of the harvest.

After the seventh day following the beginning of Sukkot, Shemini Atzeret, the Eighth Day of Assembly, is celebrated as the concluding festival of the season.

The next day is Simchat Torah, Rejoicing in the Torah (Scrolls containing the Pentateuch, the first five Books of the Bible), which officially begins the new cycle of Torah reading.

'Head of Year'

Rosh Hashanah literally means "Head of the Year" in Hebrew. It coincides each year with the first day of Tishri, the first month of the year on the Hebrew calendar. This year the 10 days began at sundown on Sept. 15.

During the 10 Days of Penitence, "mankind passes in judgment before the heavenly throne." The "Book of Life" is opened by God on Rosh Hashanah and closed on Yom Kippur, beginning at sundown on Friday, Sept. 24. In this book, tradition holds, it is inscribed who will live, who will die, who will be born and who will prosper or suffer during the coming year.

Jews observe a period of deep reflection, pondering their deeds and spiritual behavior over the past 12 months. On Yom Kippur, prayers are recited asking God to release persons from vows undertaken but not fulfilled.

In spite of the solemn nature of Rosh Hashanah observances, the New Year is a time for joy and warm sharing between families. A festive meal is held before sundown of the evening beginning the Holy Day. At the meal, it is customary to dip a piece of apple or bread into honey symbolizing hopes for a sweet New Year.

Relatives and friends are greeted with "L'Shana Tova Tikatevu" — "May you be inscribed in the Book of Life for a good year."

One of the most important symbols of the Rosh Hashanah observance is the shofar, or ram's horn, which is sounded in synagogues as a call to worship on New Year and on each of the 10 Days of Penitence. In ancient times, the shofar was as instrument of communication used to reach the entire nation of Israel in a matter of moments with shofar calls from a row of mountain peaks.

During the services, Jews are called upon to repent for their misdeeds of the past year, to return to God in humility and to distinguish between the trivial and the important in life, so that the next 12 months may be richer in service to God and man.

Before the sun sets on the Eve of Atonement (eve of Yom Kippur), families gather for a festive meal when candles are lit and all ask forgiveness for the wrongs they have committed against one another and God. It begins 24 hours of prayer and fasting.

Fasting is the symbol of man's ability to conquer his physical appetites — a demonstration to God that the individual is able to deny the natural cravings for food and drink and will also try to control all of his selfish desires.

Traditional chant

Synagogue services on the Eve of Yom Kippur open with the traditional Kol Nidre chant led by the congregation's cantor. It is a prayer for absolution for the breaking of vows made to God. Prayers during the services are recited in terms of "we" and not "I" because collective responsibility is taken for the shortcomings of mankind.

Sukkot is the Festival of Tabernacles, which begins five days after Yom Kippur (the 15th day of Tishri on the Hebrew calendar). It will begin at sundown on Sept. 29 continue for seven days. It is a reminder of the celebration in ancient Israel when the crops had been gathered and the rainy season was approaching.

A booth or hut (sukkah) is erected near synagogues and at many homes. This is usually an improvised structure of boards with a roof of leaves and branches. The building of the sukkah is described in the Bible as an eternal reminder of the temporary dwellings used by the Israelites during their 40 years of wandering through the desert after captivity in Egypt.

Also marking the Festival of Thanksgiving are the citron, or esrog, related to the lemon, and the lulav, a palm branch tied with myrtle and willows. Both symbolize man's dependence on the soil and obligation to God who causes the earth to be bountiful.

Special services are held on the first two days of Sukkot and on the last day which is Hoshana Rabbah. Traditional blessings are recited and congregants march in a processional circle, bearing the palm branch and the citron.

Shemini Atzeret (beginning at sundown on Oct. 7) and Simchat Torah (beginning at sundown on Oct. 8), following Sukkot, are dedicated to the glorification of the Torah. Simchat Torah is the gayest day of the year, symbolizing the everlasting continuity of Judaism.

Memorial services to honor and remember the dead are held on Shemini Atzeret. On Simchat Torah, worshipers read from the Torah the last chapters of the Book of Deuteronomy and immediately afterwards the first chapters of Genesis. This ritual declares that the Torah is eternal, having no real beginning and no real end.

The evening service is elaborate with the Torah scrolls being carried in a processional through the congregation. Children carry banners, kiss the Torah scrolls and receive candies and other sweets. During the morning services, the ceremony is repeated.

From Simchat Torah of one year until Simchat Torah of the following year, the entire Torah will be read in the synagogue.

Royal Rangers observe anniversary

The Tri-City Assembly of God Royal Rangers is ready for a new decade. A program for boys, Royal Rangers Outpost 5 will celebrate its 30th anniversary Friday, Oct. 1.

The program was started by the National Assemblies of God in 1963. It was designed by the late Johnny Barnes who served as national commander from its founding in 1962 to his death in 1989. Ken Hunt is the current national commander.

The program has more than 5,300 groups in the United States with more than 128,000 members involved weekly, and now is in 43 countries worldwide.

The Royal Rangers continue to minister to boys by reaching them with the gospel of Jesus Christ, teaching them practical steps to adulthood and spiritual truths, and keeping them on the right path toward a responsible Christian life.

Outpost 5, its Senior Commander Manfred Heck and Tri-City Assembly of God will host the 7 p.m. celebration at the church's new Outreach Center at 39390 Michigan Ave., Wayne. A dinner and a special program, featuring slides and testimonials about the Royal Ranger Outpost 5 are planned. Key people will be recognized for their past contributions to the Outpost.

Outpost 5 has operated for 31 years; the first year was unchartered within the Michigan District. The group, however, was the first operating Royal Ranger Outpost in the State of Michigan, receiving their first charter in 1963.

Outpost 5 has kept up their charter most of the 30 years they have operated. The Rev. David Pace, the first senior commander, and Rev. E. W. Raimer were responsible for starting Outpost 5 at Wayne Assembly of God in Wayne. Pace also was the first Deputy Michigan District Commander.

Still a member of Tri-City Assembly of God, he is the retired District Home Missions Director for the Michigan District Assemblies of God. Very active in the Royal Ranger ministry, Pace will be the guest speaker at the 7 p.m. anniversary banquet.

Other leaders during the Outpost's early years were Gerald Bovia, Joe Docusen, Hubert Lovvorn, Fred Waits, Don Davis, Tony Music, Harold Parrott and Ray Clayton.

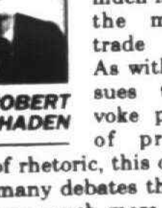
Outpost 5 was instrumental in establishing the Southeastern Section of the Michigan District and started the first District Training program. It also participated in the first District Pow-Wow at Fa-Ho-La Bible Camp at Grass Lake in 1963. The first Sectional Pow-Wow was held at Nankin Mills in Westland and was also attended by Outpost 5.

Outpost 5 to this day is one of the best organized, staffed and best attended Outposts in the entire Michigan District.

Tickets are $2.50 per person or $10 per family and are available at the church information desks or by calling the church office at 326-0330.

It's a long walk from 'me' to 'we'

MORAL PERSPECTIVES



REV. ROBERT SCHADEN

■ If Somalia is teaching us nothing else, it certainly demonstrates that what transpires in one corner of the globe transcends to the other corners as well.

The national discussion for and against the North American Free Trade Agreement has raised an issue much larger than the matter of trade practices. As with most issues that provoke paragraphs of prose and reams of rhetoric, this one is only one of many debates that ride on a highway much more far reaching than the issue itself.

In a recent discussion of the proposed agreement, I was told that NAFTA was "something about us and the Mexicans." Therein lies the clue as to what really matters regardless of the issue on the table. "Us and the Mexicans" betrays a mind set, the likes of which has influenced our approach to far too many of life's issues. "Us and the Mexicans" characterizes an Us-Them mentality that ignores the we reality of living on this planet.

Least I be at all misleading in this space, my intention is not to assess the wisdom of NAFTA, but rather to suggest that a mentality which sets us into artificial groupings on a shrinking planet is simply not workable.

Quite sometime ago John Naisbitt ("Megatrends") pointed out that the concept of a national economies is an illusion. The world is indeed too small for that. What happens on Wall Street is reflected in Tokyo, in Bonn and in London. What happens in those places influences what happens here. The job market in one place has an effect in another place, be it immediate or down the road. We are all members of a world economy.

The restrictive mentality of us and them is not relegated to economic matters. Whenever we flex our military muscle, we hear talk of American lives, when in fact, the issue is one of human lives. If Somalia is teaching us nothing else, it certainly demonstrates that what transpires in one corner of the globe transcends to the other corners as well.

Regardless of our subgroup affiliation, we are human beings one and all. If we could begin to see ourselves in terms of a collective we rather than the me and you, us and them mode which captivates us, we might stand a chance at the better world we only dream about.

As long as we remain Americans and Mexicans, Arabs and Jews, blacks and whites, straights and gays, city dwellers and suburbanites, men and women, etc., etc., etc., there will always be the likelihood that a versus will find its way between us.

Even on an individual basis the reality holds. Marriages defined by me and her or me and him are never as life-giving as those in which the concern has moved to a we mentality. It is a long walk from me to we. It is perhaps an even longer walk from us and them to we. But the walk must begin. Be it between husband and wife, Mexican and American worker, city and suburban resident or whatever other grouping has been devised to keep us at one another instead of with one another, the walk to a center where we can discover the we is imperative.

Such a walk always exacts a cost. Perhaps this is why we shy away from it. However, the energy required to maintain a we is life-giving, while the energy required to maintain the edge of us over them is not only life draining, it is fraught with mistrust, the kind of which keeps an entire world on guard. No wonder we get tired! No wonder we learn to live in a protective mode!

In the long run, however, the cost of moving to we is never as exorbitant as the one we continue to pay when our mode of living is "Us and the Mexicans" or us and anybody else at all.

Rev. Robert Schaden is with Newman House on the campus of Schoolcraft College in Livonia. If you have a question or comment, call him at 953-3047, mail box number 1876, on a touch-tone phone.

Westland native shines in 'Evita'

KEELY WYGONIK

Like the woman it portrays, "Evita," Andrew Lloyd Webber's and Tim Rice's documentary put to music, is captivating and full of surprise.

Westland native Dan Cooney, a graduate of John Glenn High School, as the revolutionary Che Guevera, helps piece together the story of Eva Peron who married Juan Peron, president of Argentina in the 1940s and became one of the most powerful women in the world. She died of cancer at age 33 but her legend survives.

Cooney's fine tenor voice and energy help keep the show moving. He's all over the stage, running and changing roles like a chameleon. One minute he's the narrator, the next an observer, a waiter, even a reporter. During Act II, he's dragged from the crowd by soldiers, a victim of the Peronist regime.

Cooney is handsome and likable as Che. Dressed in army fatigues with a beard, he looks the part of a revolutionary.

"Evita" opens in a Bunenos Aires cinema. The movie, on a suspended screen in the middle of the stage, is stopped to announce Eva Peron's death. Images of actors on stage are superimposed on screen with film of Eva Peron's funeral.

Throughout "Evita," flashes of film showing the Perons in power blend into the theatrical landscape. You forgot the screen is there and the film helps you visualize the woman and her time.

Through Che, the audience witnesses Eva's ascent to power. Using men to advance herself, Eva Duarte, a poor village girl, becomes a model, broadcaster and film actress.

Eva and Juan Peron, played by David Brummel, meet at a charity concert. She evicts his mistress and moves in determined that Peron become president.

Donna Marie Asbury as Eva is strong and believable. She has a powerful voice and stage presence. David Brummel is believable as Col. Juan Peron, one of several military leaders close the the president. He'd like to be president, but hesitates; Eva pushes him.

Unconventional devices like combining film and live performance, creative choreography and Larry Fuller's direction make this presentation of "Evita" special.

The soldiers are all wearing sunglasses. The aristocracy, all seven of them, dressed in black and white, move together across stage humorously connected as if they are one.

Peron and the colonels play "musical chairs." They rock in rocking chairs and the music stops when they reach the end of a refrain in "The Art of the Possible." They get up, a chair is removed, the song continues. When the music stops, they sit down; the loser leaves stage. This continues until only Peron and one colonel remain on stage. Peron, of course, gets the chair.

During Act II, the audience witnesses "A New Argentina," with the Perons in power. We see Che's growing disgust with the Peron's abuse of power.

Eva's final broadcast, shortly before her death, is moving. Asbury is convincingly frail and in pain. Quite a few people left in tears even after the performers received their deserved applause.

Delightful cast saves 'God's Favorite'

THEATER REVIEW

VICTORIA DIAZ

The Plymouth Theater Guild's current production of "God's Favorite," directed by Nancy Harrower, succeeds despite some heavy odds against it.

Neil Simon has said that he regards this comedy-drama as his most personal play. Created shortly after the death of his first wife, this story of a modern-day Job served, he says, as a kind of therapy when he underwent a personal crisis of faith at that time.

One is glad for Simon that he had access to such a lucrative form of therapy, of course. Maybe it worked well for him. Whether his therapy works successfully as a play is another matter entirely, of course. Perhaps it is no accident that "God's Favorite" is one of Simon's lesser-known plays.

"GOD'S FAVORITE"
Theater: Plymouth Theater Guild, Water Tower Theatre, 41001 West Seven Mile Road, Northville.
Curtain time: 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays through Oct. 2
Tickets: Adults $8, seniors, youth, $7. Purchase tickets in advance and get $1 off. Advance tickets available at Sir Speedy Printing, 485 S. Main, Plymouth and Heavenly Bakery, 43053 W. 7 Mile, Northville. Call 349-7110.

A major problem lies with its large number of stale and tiresome characters.

Here, played by Gail Mesner, is the Gracie-Allen-warmed-over, comically naive wife, Rose. You know, the one who almost never gets the point her deeper-thinking spouse is trying to make. Jeremy Wright plays Ben Benjamin, the big, oafish son who bumbles around like the proverbial bull in a china shop. Nicole Beaudoin is his hyper adolescent sister. She comes complete with plush toys in tow, and enough silliness to last a lifetime. Jon Nettie is the older brother, David, the wisecracking drunk.

The obligatory servants, played by Shannon Klouse and Ford Sutherland, dispense tidbits of down-to-earth wisdom, speak in "funny" accents (here, it's Southern, I believe), and shake their weary heads at the antics of their well-to-do employers.

Each player does as well as could be expected with these old stereotypes. But, really, how far can they be expected to go? Some of them are doubly handicapped in that their characters are often simply unlikable.

Fortunately, lead character Joe Benjamin, played by Jerry Salas, and God's messenger from Jackson Heights, Sidney Lipton (Salathiel Baldwin), provide delightful relief.

Though the beleaguered Joe does tend to speechify occasionally, Simon has drawn him more fully than the cardboard family over which he presides. He appears to have brain cells that function, for instance, and, in his misery, is ultimately a likable, sympathetic guy. Salas, with a kind of wiry, simmering energy, makes his character a pleasure to watch.

And speaking of pleasure, you'll get lots of it via Salathiel Baldwin as God's definitely offbeat messenger, Sydney Lipton. Dressed in what has to be the costume of the year (bring your sunglasses!) Baldwin's Sydney moves around the stage like a neon sprite. Dispensing movie trivia and other delightful bits of information, she will win you over from the time she's first discovered hiding behind that sofa in the Benjamin's fancy-schmancy Long Island mansion.

Costumes by Jan Paver and Mary Lynn Kuna, are a definite plus. Sets, designed by John Jordan and Nancy Harrower, and constructed by Jordan's crew, help to make the production look first-rate.

Angelic face masks evil heart in 'The Good Son'

Henry Evans (Macaulay Culkin) is a boy with secrets in "The Good Son," opening Friday at suburban movie theaters.

On the surface a bright child who is loving to his parents, protective of his sister and loyal to his friends, Henry has a deadly sense of play, which would horrify those around him if they knew the thoughts he keeps hidden behind that angelic face.

But what an adult cannot — or will not — see is often visible to another child. When Mark Evans (Elijah Wood), Henry's cousin, comes to live with his relatives following the death of his mother, Mark quickly comes to learn that evil has many faces. But will anyone believe him?

Twentieth Centry Fox presents "The Good Son," a Joseph Ruben Film starring Macaulay Culkin and Elijah Wood. The film is directed by Joseph Ruben, produced by Mary Anne Page and Joseph Ruben, and written by Ian McEwan.

"The Good Son" also stars Wendy Crewson, David Morse and Jacqueline Brookes. It is rated R (Restricted Under 18 requires accompanying parent or guardian).

PREVIEW

"The movie is about two kids — one good, one bad," said director Joseph Ruben, previously responsible for such hit thrillers as "Sleeping With the Enemy" and "The Stepfather."

"But at its core, it's about evil, pure unexplainable evil. It's about evil in an unexpected place — inside a beautiful, charming 12-year-old boy. I think the story is almost primal in that it's saying there's not necessarily any cause for this evil. Despite having great parents, Henry, at his very core, is truly bad."

In "The Good Son," Mark knows what Henry is up to, but no one will listen because what he's acusing Henry of is impossible to believe.

Susan Evans (Wendy Crewson) portrays Henry's mother and the one person Mark views as a kindred spirit in the Evans house. But Susan silently carries a huge burden of guilt, believing the accidental drowning of her youngest child was her fault.

"The Good Son" also stars Daniel Hugh Kelly as Wallace Evans, Henry's father, who struggles to understand and protect his family from Mark's seemingly bizarre behavior.

David Morse portrays Jack Evans, Mark's father, who with great reluctance leaves his only son in the care of his brother's family shortly after the death of his wife.

"Elijah (Mark) has such as wonderful face and such a winning way about him," said director Joseph Ruben.

"I thought this movie was going to be a kind of nightmare, directing two 12-year-olds, but both Mack and Elijah are actors. They concentrate, they stay focused; they're not like kids in that respect."

To let us know what you think of "The Good Son" or any other newly released movie, call Keely Wygonik, Entertainment editor, 953-2105. Fax comments to 591-7279 or write: Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, Inc., 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, MI 48150.

'Into the West': It's likable though unbelievable

JOHN MONAGHAN

Like wide-eyed kids huddled around the campfire of an old Irish storyteller, we're all suckers for a well-spun yarn.

Take "Into the West," the story of two boys and a mystical horse that works a rare kind of magic once you're willing to check your disbelief at the door.

On the outskirts of Dublin, a majestic white horse appears out of nowhere and follows home an old gypsy tinker. The animal immediately takes a shine to the man's grandsons, who try to board the horse in their apartment.

When the police impound the horse and sell it to a wealthy businessman, the boys find him and gallop away. Fancying themselves cowboys from American movies, they head west with a posse in hot pursuit.

The idea that the whole country takes such an interest in a single horse is one of the smaller pills you have to swallow in "Into the West." The movie doesn't work so much on logic as on heart, a specific brand of Irish heart seen most recently in "Hear My Song," "The Playboys" and even "The Commitments."

Jim Sheridan, who wrote "My Left Foot," provides the screenplay, a road movie with some genuinely charming moments. When the boys, Ossie and Tito, tire of sleeping outdoors, they sneak into a movie theater after hours and gorge themselves on popcorn and fruit punch. So does the horse.

REVIEW

Director Mike Newell pulls in the reins on overtly precious moments, something he was unable to do in his gooey and overrated "Enchanted April."

Sometimes, the shaggy horse story does get away from him, especially in relation to Papa Riley (Gabriel Byrne), who loves the kids but has been unable to do right by them since their mother died. We hear what a fearless man he once was but never feel we know him, even when he finds redemption at film's end.

Ellen Barkin co-stars as a red-haired tinker woman, but her brogue is so bad that she only has a handful of lines. When she picks up a hunk of coal at a buried campsite and announces that the boys have been gone for six hours, we can't help but snicker.

The boys, played by Rory Conroy and David Kelly, lack any such Hollywood pretensions. They're cute all right, but in a grimy urchin sort of way. They look truly pathetic when singing for shillings or in the dreary confines of The Tower, the Dublin housing project where they live instead of the open road.

"Into the West" pays tribute to the romance of tinkers, whose caravans still dot the Irish countryside. "We all have a bit of the traveler in us," Papa Riley announces, "but we never find what we're looking for."

The movie is about that endless search, the child-like faith, that something better lies just around the next bend. For the boys, the horse symbolizes the protective, free-spirited mother that died during Ossie's birth.

Stunning shots of the Irish landscape contrast with the abandoned cars and burning garbage cans of the city. Waterfalls, ancient ruins on emerald green fields and the crashing coastal waves tempt us all back to a life on the road.

Call it the luck of the Irish that "Into the West" got made at all and a minor miracle that it has received wide distribution. While well-crafted and inherently likable, the offbeat approach and thick Irish accents can't help but disappoint family audiences expecting a four-legged cousin to "Free Willy."

"Into the West" is now playing at these suburban movie theaters: AMC Americana West, AMC Southfield City, Showcase Auburn Hills, Showcase Dearborn, Showcase Westland, Star Winchester, GCC Canton Cinema, Showcase Pontiac, Star John R, United Artists 12 Oaks.

Studio captures 'The Age of Innocence'

Using scenes from the new Columnia Pictures movie "The Age of Innocence" as its inspiration, Studio 330 has created a window display that depicts a lifestyle of beauty and elegance from a different time.

Studio 330, a gift gallery, is in the Bloomfield Plaza, 6566 Telegraph at Maple, in Bloomfield Township. Owner Randy Forester and window designer Barbara Mandell captured the elegance and style depicted in Columbia Pictures' new film. Hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Thursday.

"Age of Innocence," now showing on two screens at the AMC Maple in Bloomfield Township, brings to life the elegance of fashionable New York society in the 1870s. The film is based on the Pulitzer Prize-winning novel by Edith Wharton.

As the film opens, Newland Archer (Daniel Day-Lewis) is engaged to May Welland (Winona Ryder) and is urging her to hurry the date of their wedding. Their match embodies the character of New York with its tyranny of family lineage and social standing.

Ellen Olenska (Michelle Pfeiffer), May's cousin, has just returned from Europe. Newland is captivated by Ellen. Her honest nature and mysterious authority of her beauty point up the constraints of his own society and inexperience of his fiancee. He finds a kindred soul in Ellen, and they fall passionately in love.

Now Newland must choose between May and the world he knows and Ellen the world he dreams of having.

The story takes place among the privileged of old New York, an insular, highly structured world concerned mainly with keeping up appearances and maintaining strict social order.

As Wharton, who grew up in this "privileged" society describes, it was "a hieroglyphic world where the real thing was never said, or done, or even thought."

Catch Players Guild of Dearborn's 'Bus Stop'

The Players Guild of Dearborn opens its 1993-94 season with the comedy/drama "Bus Stop."

Directed by Ray Alcodray and produced by Don Andres of Livonia, "Bus Stop" will be presented 8 p.m. Friday, Sept. 24, and Saturday, Sept. 25, and 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 26, at the Players Guild of Dearborn, 21730 Madison, near Monroe and Outer Drive in Dearborn.

Tickets are $7 in advance or $8 at the door, MasterCard and Visa are welcomed.

A special $5 ticket price is offered to students under the age of 18 (with proper ID). These tickets are available for the Sunday performance only and may be purchased at the box office 45 minutes prior to curtain on the day of the performance. Call the Guild ticket line (561-TKTS) before the performance to determine ticket availability.

Local cast members include Stacy Stoltz of Garden City as Elma, a young studious waitress and Patty Ebbitt of Garden City as Grace, the warm-hearted owner of the diner.

Written by William Inge, "Bus Stop" is the story of a group of people who, with their driver, are stranded in a snowstorm overnight in a roadside Kansas diner in 1955.

Murder mystery on menu at Home Sweet Home

Entertaining People Productions of Livonia is presenting comedy/murder mysteries at Home Sweet Home in Novi on Wednesday evenings beginning Sept. 29.

The cost is $29.95 per person and includes dinner, show, tax and tip. Dinner seating begins 6:30 p.m., show 7:15 p.m. For reservations, call 347-0095. Home Sweet Home is at 43180 Nine Mile Road, Novi.

The season opens with "... and many happy returns, Charlie," an early 1940s look at detectives, greed and glamorous women.

Charlie Barnes (David Price of Plymouth) and Jake Lomax (Steve Katz of Livonia) are principals in the private detective firm of Barnes and Lomax. It's Charlie's birthday and his secretary, Dottie Delaney (Linda Bastien of Northville), has arranged a surprise birthday party for him.

Everyone's invited — Jake, Dottie's cousin, Jimmy, (Jim Linton of Plymouth) even the partnership's most recent client Kathryn Merrick (Nancy Schuster of Livonia) plans to attend. Dottie's got this fortune teller lady coming too, a Madam Estelle Kaljavsky (Bobbie Judd of Plymouth), to read palms and make predictions.

Mingling with the audience, cast members call upon their individual acting and improvisational skills to weave tales of suspense, intrigue and craziness.

You're invited too. Be a part of it. Come in costume, if you like. There will be prizes for best detective costumes.

Wine tasting benefits MDA

To survive, symphony must stay multifaceted

Second of two parts.

Challenges are as varied as the crescendos in a work by Beethoven as the Livonia Symphony strives to broaden its audience.

Facing fewer government grants and more entertainment competition, the Livonia Symphony Society this year wisely adopted a multifaceted plan to diversify during this 20th anniversary season.

Spicing concerts with rousing selections of contemporary music is one tack the finely tuned community orchestra and volunteer-driven board of directors have taken. Another is variety: chamber concerts, children's concerts, holiday concerts, music under the stars, fund-raising events, even a bookstore performance.

Versatility is the keynote of the musicians whose concert fare includes classical, jazz and pops. The orchestra also has accompanied ballets, operas and chorales.

"Programming should not seem stale, repetitive or predictable," warns the symphony board in its five-year strategic plan.

But the board is well aware too much pop could scare off "quality musicians . . . attracted to symphonies because they perform a challenging repertoire in the traditional setting."

Board checklist

From my perch as an arts booster, the board would do well to forge ahead in 1) seeking revenue-producing sponsors and an impressionistic audience for winter young artist competition, and 2) offering Symphony in the Schools programs to counter budget cuts that affect Livonia Public Schools elementary-level music. Such competition and programs are invaluable tools for attracting young talent and new concert goers.

The board also must invigorate its marketing approach to stem the national decline in philanthropic contributions to symphonies and extend its audience base to neighboring towns and young families.

Other pursuits should include improving grant applications, hosting more concert afterglows, tightening budget controls, increasing corporate support, creating an endowment fund, boosting season ticket sales, and sharing unsold tickets with seniors and other potential patrons. Subscription concerts typically draw 425 patrons to an auditorium seating 900.

The LSO has endured a triple financial whammy over the past five years in its dogged bid to maintain quality: more concerts, higher musician salaries and higher-than-expected fees for guest artists. Concerts cost upwards of $7,500, but even $25 to $50 donations mount up.

Whatever marketing strategies are decided, the symphony can't stand pat.

Says board president Ken Kelsey: "According to the American Symphony League, the American orchestra as we know it today has to market itself differently to pull in new people. It has to rid itself of that stuffy look on stage and make going to the symphony a more casual kind of thing.

"We came up with the same conclusions as part of our strategic planning. We've got to market ourselves to a new generation of potential music lovers. And we can't take our time doing it."

With no general admission ticket more than $12, the LSO offers an affordable way to bring younger people closer to the classics. And it's a godsend for amateur musicians with full-time jobs.

Music director and conductor Francesco DiBlasi founded Oakway Symphony in 1973 to serve parts of Wayne and Oakland counties. But lack of identity with one community hurt attendance so Oakway Symphony became the Livonia Symphony in 1988.

"Today, the orchestra's much, much better," said DiBlasi, a former Detroit Symphony assistant first trumpet who has guest conducted symphonies from New York to San Diego as well as the St. Cecilia Orchestra of Rome after training at the renowned Julliard School in New York.

"I truly believe the people of Livonia want an orchestra here. Having an opportunity to hear good music helps make it a nice place to live. It certainly adds to culture within the city."

"One of the reasons we've survived," says Livonia Mayor Bob Bennett, a 15-year board member, "is that we ultimately became identified with one community as opposed to our former status as

French country fills Plymouth home

LOOKS FOR LIVING

■ Mixing but not always matching — that's what this Looks for Living feature story and Creative Choices, our home furnishings supplement inside today's editions, are all about.

Charlotte Kennedy likes Frank Lloyd Wright's philosophy: "Invest wisely in beauty and it will follow you all the days of your life."

That partly explains why she and husband, Karl, sold their new house in Plymouth three years ago to renovate a forgotten 1927 brick colonial located in a neighborhood of similar homes on the city's south side.

"When we walked in the door, I knew this was the house. It could be beautiful," said Charlotte Kennedy, an interior designer whose forte is turning sow's ears into silk purses. "The foyer, the French doors and the openness, it was all here. If a house has bones, that's all you need."

Well, bones and a husband like a mechanical contractor, Karl Kennedy. He owns Livonia-based Moore Furnace and, like Charlotte, gets the renovating bug every few years. This is their fourth such project in the Plymouth-Farmington area.

Fine art to accentuate Laurel Park Place

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

Watercolor, oil, acrylic, monotype, mixed media and pastel paintings will draw the spotlight as Laurel Park Place Mall presents the third annual Livonia Artists Club fine art exhibition and sale Saturday-Sunday, Sept. 25-26.

The Livonia mall is at Six Mile and Newburgh. Show hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Eighteen of the club's more than 40 members will focus on subjects that include floral, still life, figurative, abstract and landscape.

"I'd like everybody to come and see the work. It's very good work and it's such a nice setting," said Marge Masek of Livonia, event co-chair with Lorraine Whitacre of Farmington Hills.

Masek, an artist for 24 years, will exhbit watercolors and painted ornaments in time for the holidays.

As an added attraction, four of the club's members from Livonia will demonstrate their individual medium.

On Saturday from 10 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Eileen Bibby will show visitors a variety of techniques in watercolor. From 2-4:30 p.m., Marge Masek will use acrylics to paint glass ornaments.

On Sunday, watercolor demonstrations will be given noon to 2:30 p.m. by Audrey Harkins and 2:30-5 p.m. by Al Weber.

"They'll find out there's a lot of talented artists in the area. It's a good cross-section of artists," said Harkins, a club member exhibiting in the show.

Harkins, who has a lifelong love affair with watercolor, will exhibit florals and landscapes. Much of the inspiration for her floral paintings comes from her garden.

"I paint petunias a lot. I like paint-

■ CRAFTY DISPLAYS

Craft Gallery's country folk art and Victorian craft show takes place 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 26, at Hawthorne Valley Country Club, 7300 Merriman, just north of Warren, in Westland.

Observerland exhibiters in the 65-dealer juried show will include:

. . . From Garden City — Barbara Bridges (handwoven country baskets and Victorian and country soft sculpture) and Joyce Paavola (seasonal and country ceramics).

. . . From Redford — Kay Vincent (country and Victorian cross stitch).

. . . From Canton — Rita Miller (porcelain dolls), Val Davis and Debbie Jordan (wood).

. . . From Livonia — Susan Haitchcock (country tole on wood), Debi Keeling (painted wood miniatures and country accents), Laverne Motter (handpainted wearable art), Diane Malaznik (country wood).

Admission is $2. Hawthorne Gardens Restaurant is on the lower level.

No strollers or cameras are permitted.

■ HANDICRAFT SAMPLER

An educational series introducing a variety of needle arts and wreath making skills will be presented through October at the Livonia Civic Center Library, Farmington Road and Five Mile.

Are you curious about cross stitch? Like to learn how to use a needle to create embroidery? Lectures by experts in these fields will include demonstrations as well as a question and answer period. The free programs begin at 7 p.m.

Speakers include: Nancy Harbin of the Smocking Guild, embroidery and cross stitch, Sept. 27; a representative of English Gardens, wreath design, Oct. 4; and Kathi Gordon of the Livonia Embroidery Guild, a sampling of embroidery techniques and a word about club activities, Oct. 25.

Call for reservations: 421-7238.

During DiBlasi's tenure, the orchestra's board of directors has grown from 20 to 45 members. "We've got a wonderful board and things are going quite well," DiBlasi said, "but we need more help from individual board members to make calls and work in the office."

Conductor's keynotes

DiBlasi's career keynotes include the 1971 Oakway Symphony concert when 200 high school singers from Birmingham, Southfield, Farmington and Livonia joined with the 50-voice Kenneth Jewell Chorale to perform Verdi's Requiem. "It's something I'll always remember," DiBlasi said.

Flutist Alexander Zonjic's tantalizing performance with the LSO last year is another high note. "The audience just ate it up. He's such a fine musician," DiBlasi said.

The success of top winners in the winter young artists competition holds a special place in DiBlasi's heart.

Contestants come from diverse musical backgrounds: Oberlin, Grinnell, Curtis, Juilliard, Cleveland, Peabody, Wayne State, MSU.

Past winners have gone on to the Chicago Symphony, New York Philharmonic, Kansas City Philharmonic and Chicago Lyric Opera Company as well as to overseas performances.

■ 'I truly believe the people of Livonia want an orchestra here. Having an opportunity to hear good music helps make it a nice place to live.'

Francesco DiBlasi
conductor

Even the winners who didn't make it big in music landed major positions within their chosen careers, DiBlasi said.

Bennett has seen the orchestra grow from 45 to 75 musicians and the season from three to seven major concerts. "I've also seen the orchestra mature in its ability to perform complicated pieces but interesting music," he said.

Classical music seems to enjoy a local following. "But so many of us have so many diversions in the way of entertainment and things we can do," Bennett said, "that this kind of music too often comes up on the short end.

"There's support out there, we're sure of that. We just have to continue to work hard at securing it."

Good camera bag keeps you focused

FOCUS ON PHOTOGRAPHY

MONTE NAGLER

In the bag: A well-packed, organized camera bag made it easy for Monte Nagler's wife, Mickey, to quickly get the right equipment to produce this exciting shot of Arizona's famed White House Ruins.

When your camera equipment consists only of a camera and a couple of rolls of film, carrying them around presents no problem.

But as soon as you begin to acquire extra lenses, a flash unit, filters and other accessories, a good camera bag becomes a necessity. A camera bag not only gives you adequete protection for all your photo equipment, but it makes it easy to locate a particular item in a hurry.

Camera bags come in two types: soft bags and rigid cases. Soft bags are by far the most popular. They're more portable and therefore easier to move around and travel with. Rigid cases are more often used by the professional photographer who works mostly out of a studio.

The range and quality of camera bags on the market are immense. Here are some tips on what to look for:

To start with, keep in mind the wise saying, "You get what you pay for." So don't waste your time looking for a cheap bag. After all, you've probably invested wisely in a good camera system, so why house it in a flimsy bag?

Look for something with quality. Check out the material. It should be a durable nylon weave with good stitching. It should be fairly weatherproof and have adequate protection on the bottom. A rigid bottom protects your equipment if you should put your bag down sharply on a hard surface.

All sides along with the top should be padded and the strap also padded for comfort while carrying your bag.

Many bags today have adjustable partitions on the inside that attach by means of a Velcro fastener. This means you can compartmentalize each piece of equipment to assure a tight and secure fit. You can "personalize" your camera bag for you and your gear.

Don't buy a camera bag that will just exactly house your existing equipment. Plan for the future. Buy one that's a little larger to allow for that extra lens or second camera body you've been thinking about obtaining.

If you're a backpacker, check out some of the new bags that easily convert into backpacks. For comfort on a long hike, it's the only way to go.

One further hint: Always carry your camera bag with you when traveling by air. Never include it with your check-through luggage.

So take your camera-equipment and bag it . . . in a good camera bag that will serve you well.

Learn fine points of group fund-raising

The deadline to reserve space for your arts or cultural organization in an Oct. 9 workshop conducted by the Accounting Aid Society of Detroit has been extended to Sept. 29.

Sponsored by the Livonia Arts Commission, "Effective Fund-Raising: The Basics" is aimed at arts and cultural groups.

Chuck Kleber of Charles F. Kleber and Co. and Jeanne Vogt, AAS president, will present information on fund-raising for projects, programs and organizational needs.

The workshop will run 8:30 a.m. to noon Saturday, Oct. 9, in the Heritage Room of the Livonia Senior Center, Farmington Road and Five Mile. Cost is $10 per person for up to two people per organization.

For an agenda and questionnaire, call the Livonia City Hall Community Resources Office: 421-2000, ext. 221.

AAS has a record of assisting non-profit groups in improving administration and addressing financial concern.

Holiday scenes: Besides exhibiting watercolors, Marge Masek will demonstrate painting on glass ornaments. She will have about 50 of the bulbs decorated for holiday dreaming.

STAFF PHOTOS BY JIM JAGDFELD

Inherited treasures: Livonia painter Marge Masek painted "Blue and Gold Things," a watercolor still life from a setup of objects that once belonged to her mother.

ing any kind of flowers. I love flowers," said Harkins, who has a one-person show of florals running through the end of September at the Farmington Community Library in downtown Farmington.

"There's no messages in my paintings. I paint because I love to paint," said Harkins. "I hope the viewer sees the beauty that I see in what I paint. I hope they feel that beauty."

Harkins, with four solo exhibitions to her credit, has been juried into group shows presented by the Michigan Watercolor Society, Farmington Artists Club, Visual Arts Association of Livonia and The Scarab Club in Detroit.

After 12 years of seriously painting with watercolors, Harkins continues to study the medium and attend workshops, like the weeklong one given every summer by Farmington Hills artist and gallery owner Edee Joppich at Lake Leelanau.

"With watercolor, you have to let the color and the paper and the water work together," said the LAC past president. "Watercolor is one of the most thrilling, exciting and satisfying media to work in. It's a compulsion, an addiction."

Weber concurs: "I get frustrated if I go very long without painting."

Since his retirement from Ford Motor Co. as a clay modeler in 1982, watercolor has been Weber's paint of choice. "Oil was too slow for me," said the painter with an enthusiasm for capturing old cars, animals, horses, and historic buildings of England.

Design is a key element in "Grandmother's Quilt," painted from a live model in a creative workshop run by Christine Unwin in Farmington Hills. For background, Weber weaves a blue and red quilt.

"I invented the colors in the quilt to work off the colors in the model. In watercolor, you want to be accurate with the drawing and derive your excitement from the color," Weber said. "I want people to get involved with the excitement of the painting. I'd like to stir up a little more nostalgia about quilts."

Weber studied industrial design at Art Center College of Design in Pasadena and also at Purdue and Indiana University. He has taken workshops with Robert Wilbert, Nita Engle, Bill Borden, Christopher Schink, Electra Stamelos and Frederich Wong, to name only a few.

Solo exhibitions by Weber have colored The Scarab Club, Southfield Cultural Center and Dearborn Chamber of Commerce. He will exhibit figure, floral and landscape at Laurel Park Place.

Founded in 1960 by Olive Herrington, who was looking to network with other artists in the Livonia area, the club initially met in members' homes. When the Carl Sandburg Library opened, it enabled the LAC to accept a larger membership.

"We have a program each time that's very helpful to the artists," Masek said.

Exciting medium: Livonia watercolorist Audrey Harkins enjoys being able to transpose what she sees to the paper such as the beauty found in "More Petunias."

Electronic theater

Home in on a stylish entertainment center

BY HELEN DIANE VINCENT
SPECIAL WRITER

Going country;: Bob Timberlake's three-piece unit, with space for three speakers in slightly distressed cherry, includes many options in door fronts and shelving capable of accommodating up to a 60-inch TV. $4,999. At Scott Shuptrine, Troy, Novi, Bloomfield Hills, Grosse Pointe.

Stylish home theater: This Ethan Allen Concept Six unit accommodates a large-screen television with the sensation of theater-quality sound. Components for the American Impressions and Country French styles are $5,000; the Georgian Court style is $5,300. At Ethan Allen.

Home is where the heart is. It's also the place for great entertainment and information coming to us by way of the electronic industry.

Americans already own a lot of electronic equipment. By this time, nearly everybody has one color TV (97 percent) and most have VCRs (up to 80 percent) — and this doesn't include other equipment and personal computers.

It was inevitable the marriage between electronics and furniture would take place, especially prodded by growing interest in home theater.

Prospects of this happening has generated a lot of excitement at local home furnishings retail stores.

Scott Shuptrine is adding Bob Timberlake's Home Theater that accommodates up to a 60-inch television. Newton Furniture in Livonia and Novi is going with Berhardt's entertainment centers in various styles that hold up to 35-inch televisions. Classic Interiors in Livonia has expanded its popular Pennsylvania House line for a unit for 52-inch televisions.

Meanwhile, Ethan Allen already has introduced its Concept Six, designed to accommodate most 35-inch televisions, laser discs and surround sound components.

These video, audio and speaker cabinet units are being offered in a range of options and are designed to coordinate with the styles of major furniture lines: The American Impressions, Georgian Court and the Country French Collection.

Concept Six goes well beyond the typical armoir or bookshelf that had provided space for a household's TV and stereo.

Richard Howard, founder and driving force behind The Gramophone in Birmingham since 1976, has been among the first to sell and install total audio and video systems as well as intercoms, paging and alarm devices. For the past 10 years, he has pioneered home theater, using high-quality components for custom installations. Howard logically can be credited with contributing to the growing popularity of home theater except, in this instance, the units are inconspicuously built-in, allowing one to experience sight and sound, uncomplicated by furnishings.

For those who require portability and flexibility in their viewing and who enjoy TV images projected up to 100 inches (over eight feet), then the Sharp XV-12OZUA LCD (liquid crystal) projector is the answer. This compact video projector (which requires a VCR to use it) is available at Hawthorne Home Appliance & Electronics in Birmingham. Prices range from $1,900 to $7,000 for the maximum size.

Another version of projection television recently has been offered by Mitsubishi Electronics in the form of the VS-4571 Table Top Big Screen, which features a 45-inch screen, weighs only 130 pounds and fits on the same size shelf as a 27-inch, direct-view television. Legitimate claims are made that this new Table Top is the big screen design of the future because, among other reasons, it is ideal for spacesaving apartment dwellers yet provides high-quality images.

The new Kallista Collection from Thomasville includes a canopy bed with an optional leather backrest and a built-in rack for a small television hidden under the canopy, along with all the necessary wiring. For those who like viewing TV in bed, this Thomasville item can be found at Classic Interiors in Livonia among other select retailers.

The only thing new about having a television in the kitchen is that it's become part of an overall media and communications center and can be built to custom specifications. The Madison Design Group in the Michigan Design Center in Troy, for example, will adapt its Heritage kitchen cabinets to any size television, intercoms, radio and tape players. Siematic, also in MDC, is finding one out of four of its custom-built kitchens is being specified to include a personal computer.

Perhaps the last word about electronics and the home belongs to Mark Stockwell, a 1993 graduate of Cranbrook Educational Community in Bloomfield Hills. He created an entirely new way of viewing television, influenced by traditional Japanese interior design that defined space through minimal but strategic use of furnishings.

Stockwell's Media Blanket — embedded with a LCD television screen, speakers and reading lights — is clearly intended for the viewer who wishes the ultimate cocooning experience as well as an environment to be shared with friends.

The Media Blanket, through counterbalancing devices anchored to the floor, can be held in an upright position or wrapped around the viewer. The remote control is built into one of the small pillows offering back support.

Stockwell's Media Blanket was recently featured as Best in Student Design by the 39th annual design review of ID (International Design) magazine.

We'll have to wait and see whether the built-ins, structural furnishings or wrap-around blanket will be the wave of the future. For now, consumers seem to have plenty of options.

In just six months, they finished this restoration, which included new plumbing, upgraded electrical, central air, wet plaster repairs, two new bathrooms and a new kitchen. They hired a contractor to sand oak floors throughout the 2,400-square-foot house only because "it involves too much dust."

Charlotte thoroughly redecorated in the French country style she has recently embraced and expertly placed colonial furnishings used in their previous houses.

The two also tended to the overgrown yard and removed a partially downed fence that blocked views of their pretty corner lot.

Even the couple's real estate agent (who had the house on the market for a year) was stunned when she toured the finished house last spring during the Plymouth Symphony League Home Tour, Charlotte said.

For starters, Karl gutted the neglected kitchen, which included an "ugly shower stall" and drop ceiling that concealed tell-tale signs of do-it-yourself plumbing: leaky pipes from the upstairs bath wrapped in plastic.

The couple replaced the kitchen's original metal cabinets with light oak and used hunter green counter tops with oak trim. Charlotte combined green check wall covering in the kitchen with burnt orange floral paper in the adjoining eating area. There, she has a rooster chandelier (once candle lit) over a white parson's table and four Chinese Chippendale chairs; seats are covered in casual gray and white check cotton.

"For some reason, the house needed lots of green, so I added it wherever I could," Charlotte said.

Since Charlotte disliked the location of the powder room (between the kitchen and family room), she searched for ways to tie the three areas together. For the half-bath, she selected pale pink Chantilly lace wallpaper and a double floral border.

She likes adding beautiful touches, like the gold-tone turn-of-the-century faucet and antique gilt mirror that are visible from connecting rooms. Karl installed ceramic flooring for the first time in both baths.

Charlotte waited two years for the arrival of a colorful needlepoint rug with a fruit and vegetable motif designed by Nina Williams, editor of Country Living magazine. It fills the sunny family room and blends with colorful balloon valances and a sage green Chinese needlepoint rug in the adjoining living room.

Throughout, the designer blends styles, such as a favorite Oriental tea table in glossy black and brass with a Shaker-style pie chest. Other collectibles include a dove base lamp with a dark green paper shade, vintage perfume bottles, antique pitchers and P. Buckley Moss prints collected before the artist was well known.

"Mixing makes a room interesting. I used to be very country. Now I love the French look. It's more sophisticated, but all beautiful things you enjoy living with blend together," Charlotte said.

Around the living room fireplace, the couple chose hand-painted Italian tiles in white and bottle green with a vegetable motif. The room also includes a pair of rose slipcovered chairs, an over-stuffed floral print chair (bought half-price at a warehouse sale) and a pair of twig chairs from Harbor Springs. The family will soon select birds for a newly acquired French-style bird cage.

The dining room tiger maple table is one of Charlotte's early finds. Matching chairs were recently covered with gaily colored floral slipcovers. For floor covering, Charlotte's sister painted a canvas cloth with a floral border and Monet wash in the center.

By far, a favorite part of the house is the grand foyer. Northville artist Julie Albanese painstakingly applied a faux marble finish to the hard wood in rose tones with a bottle green border. Visitors often examine it on hands and knees to make sure it's not the real McCoy, Charlotte said. French doors open to the living area.

Upstairs, the decorator applied six-color stenciling in the master bedroom, which includes light pine furniture and heirloom linens. Charlotte used youthful Victorian paper in daughter Lindsay's room; matching pink and green canopies cover the windows. Lindsay's own framed artwork decorates the room.

The couple often picks up antique fixtures and linens at a Saline market and while vacationing around the state. Charlotte has a garage full of antique windows and doors that she plans to use some day.

The decorator also shops furniture clearance sales. She found a large reproduction Victorian fixture for the second floor at Builder's Square.

Though the Kennedy's are considering another renovation or new construction, Charlotte clearly favors this project: "I love the house. I love what's going on in every room."

■ LIVONIA CIVIC CENTER LIBRARY SHOWCASES
Continuing — Livonia Arts Commission presents pottery by artist Debbie Liberman of Southfield to Sept. 29 in the cylindrical display cases on the second floor of the library, Farmington Road and Five Mile. The Schoolcraft College pottery student uses various techniques on both handbuilt and thrown pottery, using different clay bodies such as stoneware and porcelain. Some of her pieces are Raku fired. Hours: 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday-Thursday, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

■ LIVONIA CITY HALL
Continuing — Michigan landscapes in watercolor by Ruth Cullum Luce of Green Oak Township and George DeAngelis of South Lyon. To Sept. 30. In the city hall lobby, Farmington Road and Five Mile. Hours: 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

■ MADONNA UNIVERSITY
Continuing — Japanese wood block print exhibit from collection of Dr. Sheldon and Heather Siegel. In the Library Wing Exhibit Gallery. To Sept. 30. Hours: 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. weekdays and 1-4 p.m. weekends. The campus is at I-96 and Levan.

■ BUNTING GALLERY
Thursday, Sept. 23 — Etchings and drawings by Ladislav Hanka are displayed through Oct. 23. Opening reception, featuring readings from the artist's poems, 6-9 p.m. Thursday. Hanka draws primarily from lived experience of the landscape and wildlife of Michigan. He has recently been artist in residence on Isle Royale National Park, and spent many seasons walking the Keweenaw peninsula, Pictured Rocks and Porcupine Mountains, and generally becoming familiar with the Lake Superior area. Hours: 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday, 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Wednesday, 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday-Friday, 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday, 514 S. Washington, Royal Oak, 545-4820.

■ GALERIE INTERNATIONALE
Friday, Sept. 24 — "Chris Melikian — Realist Landscapes," featuring original oil paintings, watercolors and drawings, will be presented through Oct. 30. Opening reception to meet the artist 6-9 p.m. Friday. Melikian, who teaches at Wayne State University, describes his work as basically an expression of interest in the commonplace or the unspectacular landscape. Hours: 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday-Saturday, noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, 4066 Telegraph, Bloomfield Hills, 644-5870.

■ PAINT CREEK CENTER FOR THE ARTS
To Sept. 24 — The seventh annual Celebrate Michigan Artists exhibit in the Main Gallery, and "Southern Comfort," a solo exhibition of color photography by Carla Anderson, in Artspace. George N'Namdi, owner of the G.R. N'Namdi Gallery in Birmingham, was juror for the Celebrate Michigan Artists show. Hours: 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday, 407 Pine, Rochester, 651-4110.

■ THE PRINT GALLERY
To Sept. 24 — An exhibit of kinetic art and abstract sculpture by Indiana artist Jeff Johnson. His intriguing use of colors and geometric designs gives him the ability to incorporate all of these multiple views that are a central part of kinetic art. Hours: 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday-Saturday, to 9 p.m. Thursday, 29203 Northwestern Highway, Southfield, 356-5454.

■ BIRMINGHAM BLOOMFIELD ART ASSOCIATION
Saturday, Sept. 25 — The 1993 Birmingham Society of Women Painters exhibit, "Environments," will run to Oct. 15. Opening reception 6-8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 1. Art historian and lecturer Hope Palmer is juror. This year the show will include a separate, non-juried section entitled "For Love of the BBAA," for which each member of the BSWP donated a small painting, with all proceeds to benefit the BBAA building expansion. Hours: 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday-Saturday, 1516 S. Cranbrook Road, Birmingham, 644-0866.

■ MICHIGAN GALLERY
To Sept. 25 — "The Man-A-Kin Series," artists Connie Christy and Brian Holewinski explore use of various photographic techniques and processes, each using their own mannequin as their constant subject. Hours: 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Thursday to Saturday. Lower Level, 2661 Michigan Ave., Detroit.

■ ST. MARY'S COLLEGE GALLERIA
To Sept. 26 — "Canadian Rockies and the West," a photography exhibit by Dolores Kellam, at the Orchard Lake campus. Hours: by appointment Monday-Saturday, noon to 4:30 p.m. Sunday. Call 683-0345.

■ CRANBROOK ACADEMY OF ART MUSEUM
To Sept. 26 — "Fish Out of Water: Trophies, Models and Plaques." The exhibit illustrates the art of carved and painted fish, from the mid-1800s to the present day, by leading British, Norwegian and North American artists of the craft. Also to Oct. 31, $2 for children, senior citizens and full-time students, free for children under age 7 and museum members.

■ CRANBROOK ACADEMY OF ART MUSEUM
Tuesday, Sept. 28 — "Glimpse: Work by Yoko Ono at Cranbrook" will be on view Sept. 29 through Oct. 31. Members' reception to meet the artist Tuesday. The exhibit celebrates Ono's return with a survey of the work she has created since her retrospective at Cranbrook in 1989, including a large version of "Play It By Trust," 1991; "Family Album (Blood Objects)," 1993; "Endangered Species: 2319-2322," 1992; "Weight Pieces," 1990; and "Bastet," 1989-90. Hours: 1-5 p.m. Wednesday-Sunday, 1221 N. Woodward, Bloomfield Hills, 645-3312. Admission is $3 for adults, $2 for seniors and full-time students, free to children under age 7 and museum members. Guided tours available to groups of 10 or more; call 645-3323 for information or reservations.

■ DETROIT FOCUS
To Sept. 30 — "Detroit Focus Studio Picks," 11 emerging artists showcase their work at Dearborn Community Arts Council and City Gallery (9 a.m.

Register for OU writers seminar

One of the most prestigious writers conferences in the nation will take place Friday-Saturday, Oct. 15-16, at Oakland University in Rochester Hills.

The annual writers' conference, co-sponsored by Detroit Women Writers and OU, will celebrate its 32nd year. It will offer an array of subjects for the novice and aspiring writer as well as the experienced writer. A detailed brochure describing all facets of the event is available by calling OU at 370-3120.

Registration is open. Early registration is encouraged to guarantee personal choices of workshops offered. The conference will take place in the Oakland Center on campus.

Friday, Oct. 15, hands-on writing workshops in such subjects as fiction, non-fiction, screenplays, mysteries, short stories and writing for children and teens are on the agenda. Participants will have an opportunity to read their work and receive critiques from professional writers/workshop leaders.

An afternoon session on individual manuscript critiques is also offered, where professional writers read the manuscripts and prepare a written critique. Poets are offered a special workshop where they submit poetry for critiquing.

All three sessions will take place 1-5 p.m. in the Oakland Center. Deadline for manuscript submission is Friday, Oct. 1.

Saturday, Oct. 16, the conference begins 8:30 a.m. with registration, followed by a day packed with learning oppportunities. Five sessions are offered with eight separate workshops in each session, addressing interests in every genre.

The Agent's Role, Mystery Writing, Investigative Reporting, Writing a Column, Plotting, Playwriting and Writing a Romance Novel are subjects included along with Writing for Children, Poetry Writing, Marketing Your Fiction, Historical Romance and Selling to Magazines. These are just a few of the 40 workshops offered on the Saturday schedule.

Keynote speaker at the Saturday luncheon is accomplished author Tom Kakonis. His talk, "Writing As a Career: Chasing Your Dreams, Assessing the Costs," will provide food for thought to the audience of writers.

The popular and successful author will focus largely on the "costs" of writing as a career, a sober but not discouraging look at some of the significant factors involved in a writing career. Most of the information Kakonis will present will be taken from his own experience, much of it anecdotal.

In addition to the keynoter, a number of prominent editors/agents will be at the conference to share their expertise, including Zebra senior editor Tracy Bernstein, Bantam Books editor Linda Gross, Atheneum Books for Children senior editor Marcia Marshall, editor Barbara Norville and New York agent William Thompson. Numerous published writers will be present to head various workshops, sharing their tried and true experiences as authors.

Sharpen your artistic talents via class study

SPECIAL WRITER

Drawing, oil painting and photography need not remain unattainable skills. As September's school bells ring, resolve to draw on your inner talents. Learn or hone an art or craft.

Classes in media ranging from the fine art of painting to crafts like counted cross stitch are beginning throughout Observerland the next few weeks.

With the holidays around the corner, why not make a quilt for a special family member or friend?

Along with weekly classes offered by area arts organizations, studios, stores, high school/college continuing education programs, parks and recreation departments and art clubs, workshops allow students to try their hand at something new with a minimum of expenses.

Visual Arts Association of Livonia offers a range of classes by professional artists like Edee Joppich of Farmington Hills. Her "Creative Approach to Watercolor" is a popular class for not only instruction but demonstrations in innovative techniques, color and composition, and critiques. The seven-week session is geared to serious beginners as well as advanced painters.

Other popular VAAL classes are "Still Life in Watercolor" with Ann Loveland and V. Janus Benda's use of watermedia and collage to "Free Up With Abstracts."

Workshops running one to three days offer students the opportunity to experiment or specialize in several areas, including "Design, Design and More Design" with Donna Vogelheim, "The Night Scene" with Marge Chellstorp and, just in time for the holidays, "Making Your Own Greeting Cards" with Benda and "Paint Glass Ornaments" with Marge Masek.

"VAAL offers a variety of classes amd workshops so students learn about different media and techniques. They seem to enjoy it, too," Masek said.

The Livonia painter will demonstrate at the one-day workshop focusing on use of acrylic to paint barn scenes, sleighs and horses, toy shops and fireplaces on the glass ornaments.

"I'll give them tips on how to do them," said Masek, who has painted 24 years. "Practically anybody can do them."

Livonia watercolorist Audrey Harkins took the class last fall and highly recommends it. Her Currier & Ives scene was a smash with her daughter who received the ornament as a present for Christmas.

This fall finds Harkins returning to Loveland's and Vogelheim's classes.

"Even though I've taken them before, you always learn something new. I think learning is a lifelong experience," Harkins said.

D & M Art Studio in Plymouth offers an array of classes ranging from preschool art to cartooning for teens and oil painting for senior citizens. Locations include the art studio, Plymouth Cultural Center, Canton Parks and Recreation and the Westland Bailey Center.

Free-lance artist Pam Grossman teaches drawing classes to students from age 16 to senior citizens at D & M and the Plymouth Cultural Center. Grossman, who has taught for 10 years, will lead her students from pencil to other drawing-based media such as colored pencil, pen and ink, scratch board, pastel and watercolor.

For the first time, Madonna University in conjunction with Academy Neon in Taylor, will offer courses in glassworking, including "Introduction to Stained Glass," "Lampworking 1" and "Introduction to Neon" along with "Airbrushing."

All classes are taught at Academy Neon by appointment. Madonna University also offers "Modern Art: Late 19th Century and 20th," a detailed study of art movements, artists and new media found in Europe and America at that time.

Challenge yourself this fall.

For information on classes, call VAAL, 422-6630, or Masek at 464-6772; D & M Art Studio, 453-3710; Canton Parks and Recreation, 397-5110; Canton Senior Center, 397-2434; Plymouth Community Arts Council, 455-5260; Plymouth Cultural Center, 455-6623; Westland Bailey Center,722-7620; The Art Store, 981-9600; Bentley Center, 523-9290, Wayne-Westland Community Schools Adult/Community Education Center, 728-0102; Art Store and More, 522-3575 and Schoolcraft College Continuing Education Services, 462-4400.

Well-lit kitchen serves 2 masters

Reading recipes and searching cabinets for beans and beaters are a few kitchen tasks made easier when illuminated properly. But your ability to see well as you work isn't the only benefit: Careful design and decorating decisions profit under the glow of good lighting as well. The appearance of colors and surfaces remains vivid, and your kitchen's cheerful countenance doesn't disappear just because the sun outside does.

With those incentives in mind, follow Country Kitchen Ideas magazine guidelines to create a sound kitchen lighting plan. You'll learn to successfully blend the three types of illumination: general or ambient lighting, task lighting and mood or accent lighting. Here are some tips that will benefit you during your kitchen's use and when you go to sell.

■ Your first challenge is to place fixtures that cast general or ambient illumination around the room. The number and location of fixtures depends on the size and layout of your kitchen. Ceiling-mounted and recessed fixtures make good choices. In a medium-size kitchen (under 120 square feet), you could center one ceiling-mounted fixture (two or more for larger kitchens) and add recessed spotlights around the perimeter of the space.

When selecting a ceiling-mounted light, look for models that hang flush with or very close to the ceiling. The fixture should cast light through the sides of a translucent shade, not just downward.

For recessed downlights, use care in positioning them near cabinetry. "Choose downlights with a widespread beam," says Michael Janicek, an architectural lighting designer from Washington, D.C.

Dr. Mary Pickett, who teaches interior and lighting design to Iowa State University students, points out another plus of perimeter downlighting — especially in smaller kitchen quarters: "I love lighting around the perimeter of a space because it can psychologically push that space back and make it look larger," she said.

■ To place task lighting, consider what chores and activities you and your family perform in the kitchen — and where. Then, make sure each work area has its own bright, directed light source.

Every countertop needs light over it. under-cabinet lighting works well for counters with cabinets above. When selecting under-cabinet lighting, make sure the manufacturer lists this application as suitable for the fixture you select. Place shallow under-cabinet fixtures, strips of low-voltage mini lights, or fluorescent channels as close to the front edge of cabinets as possible. Run the lengths of light into corners to eliminate shadows.

For countertops with no cabinets above, install a long wall-mounted fixture about 2 feet above the counter. Choose a shielded model that casts light downward and across the work surface.

■ To keep from dining in the dark, locate lighting over your eating area. Chandeliers should hang over the center of your table and about 30 inches above the surface. So it's not a head-bumper, buy a fixture that's at least 6 inches narrower than the table. Augment this central light source with recessed fixtures. Your buffet or sideboard could benefit from a few well-placed recessed downlights.

Enlightened geography. Evenly space directional track-light fixtures; a group of pendants that shed light downward; or adjustable recessed spotlights.

Station brighteners. Your sink and range require their own light source, too. Over each work station, center two 75-watt reflector flood track lights. You can also use two recessed downlights spaced about 18 inches apart.

Shining dining. To keep from dining in the dark, locate lighting over your eating area. Chandeliers should hang over the center of your table and about 30 inches above the surface. So it's not a head-bumper, buy a fixture that's at least 6 inches narrower than the table. Augment this central light source with recessed fixtures. Your buffet or sideboard could benefit from a few well-placed recessed downlights as well.

■ Now comes the more artful side to kitchen illumination, called accent or mood lighting. Several approaches and a choice of fixtures let you direct intense beams of light on a prized collectible, a special surface material or a notable architectural feature.

Put accent fixtures above and inside cabinets. Even the cabinet toe space can twinkle with tiny lights. Or, simply shut off ceiling fixtures and let your under-cabinet lights cast a moody glow.

"Light really is a design medium," stresses Pickett. "It literally can make an environment a delight to be in."

CONDO QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Can you give me some advantages that you perceive in regard to doing a site condominium over complying with the Plat Act?

Generally, doing a site condominium is quicker and perhaps cheaper than complying with the legal rigors of the Plat Act. In addition, the several advantages of a site condominium include:

■ the ability to establish common elements.

■ the time required to obtain approval of a plat is longer, and there is extensive review by state agencies, whereas in a condominium, it is merely the recording of the documents with the Register of Deeds. The exception is the Department of Health when public water and sewer are not available.

■ the avoidance of some public scrutiny that is part of the plat approval under the Subdivision Control Act.

■ site condominiums are easier to expand, contract or make other modifications to, whereas the amendment of a plat requires 100 percent approval of all lot owners or a circuit court order. A condominium developer needs no permission of the co-owners if the master deed has been properly drafted to amend the change.

■ There is greater flexibility, particularly with respect to commercial and industrial applications such as less stringent setback, open spaces or other local requirements.

■ A condominium facilitates cluster development for residential applications.

■ General common and limited common elements can be designated and regulated in ways that would be impossible under the Subdivision Control Act.

■ Flexibility to amend and expand a site condominium makes financing easier; you need only to finance a small portion at a time, for example.

How interested are you in selling your home?

Interested enough to spend a few moments and discover the best place to advertise the fact that your home is for sale?

Good. We knew you were intelligent.

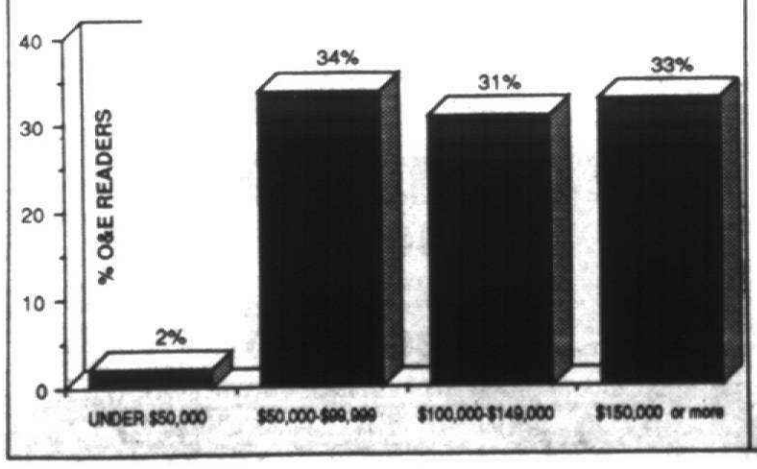
In fact, more than 40% of our readers have college degrees or better.*

And if knowlege is power, let's look at a few powerful facts: this newspaper, the one you're reading right now, reaches some of the most affluent households in Wayne and Oakland counties:

That's a median household income of more than $50,000—$10,000 more than the income of the people who don't read our newspapers.So when you advertise in your Observer & Eccentric newspapers, you not only reach thousands of smart people, you reach people with substantial incomes.

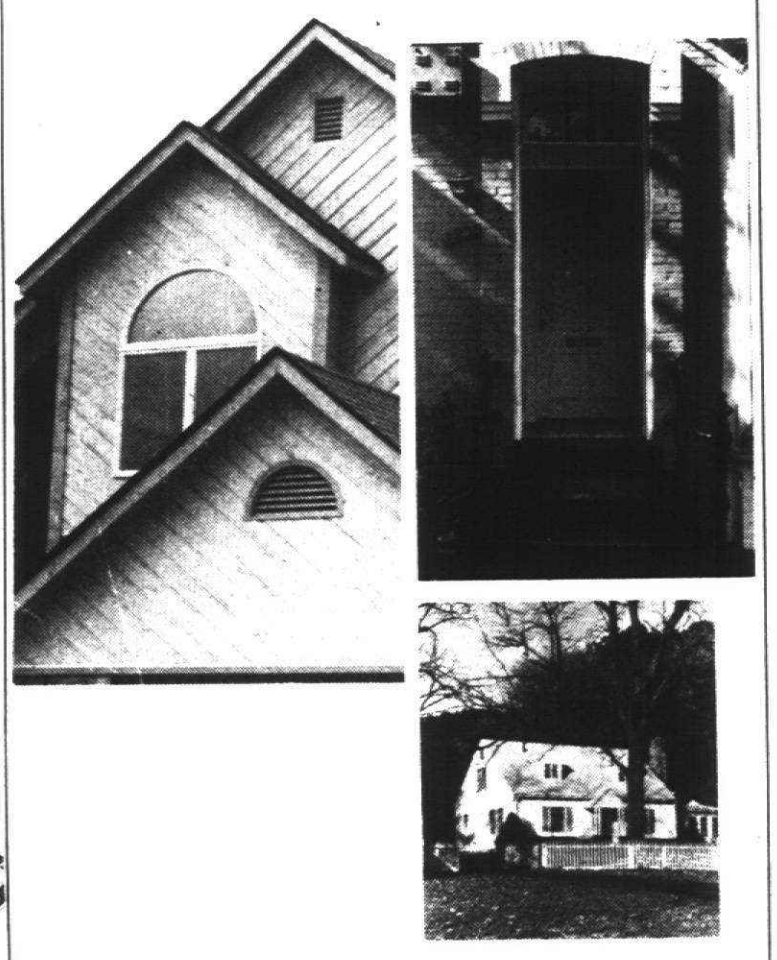
Now, that's something to smile about.

Our circulation area has 90% home ownership and look at the value of our reader's homes:



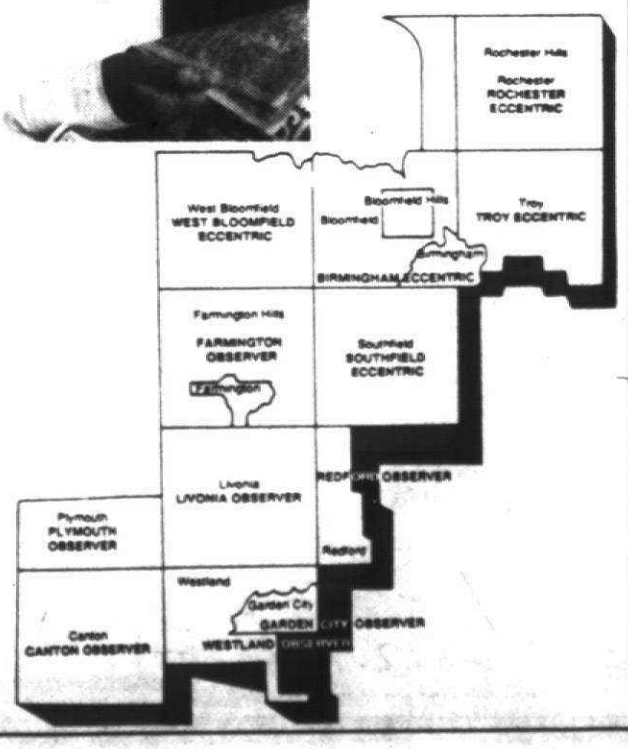
FACT: When you advertise with us you will reach 9 out of 10 adults in the Observer & Eccentric market area who have read weekly classified advertising.*

FACT: 91% of the adults in our market area who had read classified advertising in the past seven days had read it in the Observer & Eccentric*.



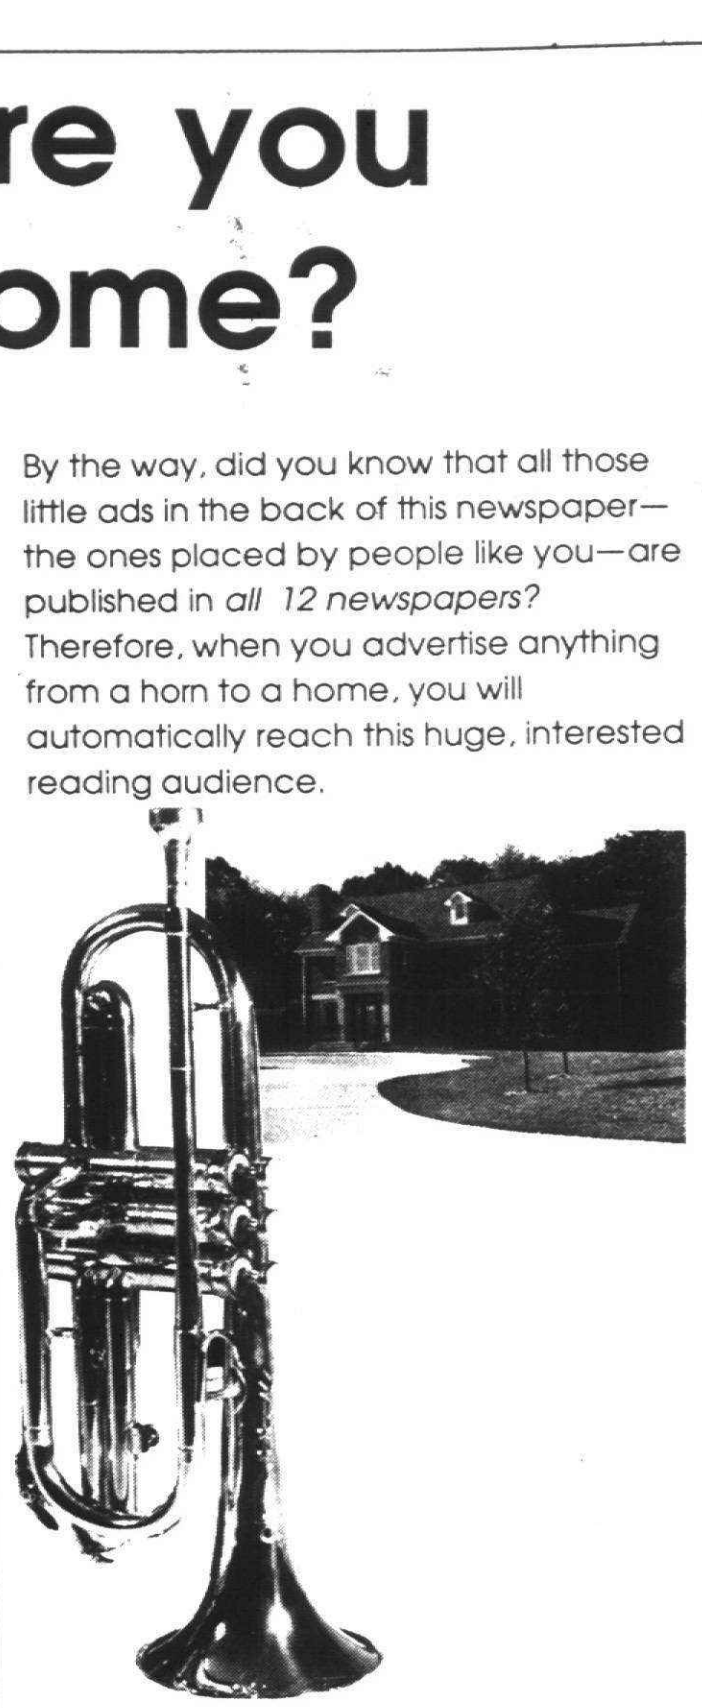
So, we can offer you one quarter of a million adult readers and a very rich market, what else do we have for you? How about an award-winning newspaper— a newspaper that people trust and look forward to reading? One that reaches 25 communities with important local news that's not available anywhere else.

That's us.



By the way, did you know that all those little ads in the back of this newspaper—the ones placed by people like you—are published in all 12 newspapers?

Therefore, when you advertise anything from a horn to a home, you will automatically reach this huge, interested reading audience.



What else can we say? We've had years of experience in publishing newspapers and are proud of our record for successfully putting home buyers in touch with home sellers.

In fact, we've just introduced HOMELINE,* a great new way to find out about open houses simply by using your touchtone telephone.

Be sure to mention it to your Realtor® so that when it comes time to show your home, it will be described on HOMELINE.

BUILDING SCENE'S NAMES & PLACES

Dial M for masonry

The Livonia-based Masonry Institute of Michigan will celebrate M-Day with a rostrum of speakers and a product exposition Thursday, Oct. 14, at the Sheraton Oaks, Novi.

M-Day speakers are:

■ Lynn R. Lauersdorf, chief of the bureau of architecture, architectural services section, state of Wisconsin. The topic will be "Preventative and Corrective Maintenance of Masontry Systems."

■ Lucas E. Pfeiffenberger, consultant to the concrete masonry and lightweight aggregate industry in Alpena. He will speak on "Quality Control Checks in Manufacturing Concrete Masonry Units."

■ Elizabeth Rhine Baird, architect and director of quality control for O'Neal Construction, Ann Arbor. She will address "The Total Quality Approach to Masonry Construction."

■ Jacob W. Ribar, senior principal masonry evaluation engineer, structural engineering department for Construction Technology Laboratories, Skokie, Ill., speaking on "Everything You Wanted to Know About Mortar and Grout."

Registration starts at 7:30 a.m., followed by the first seminar at 8:30 a.m. The program ends at 4:15 p.m. followed by reception.

Registration and exhibitor information can be obtained by calling the Masonry Institute, 458-8544.

Kitchen duty

"Creating a Kitchen that Reflects Your Home's Decor," a kitchen design seminar, will be be held 3-4:30 p.m. at the Livonia Ethan Allen store, 15700 Middlebelt. Call 261-7780 for reservations.

Homes of steel

Information on steel products and their applications in residential construction will be the topic of a meeting of the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan 6-8:30 p.m. Wednesday. Call 737-4477.

Operation condo

Wayne State University's College of Lifelong Learning will offer a class on the introduction to successful condominium association operation taught by Robert Meisner, attorney and Observer & Eccentric columnist. Offered at two sites, the class at Groves High School, Birmingham, will be held for five Thursdays beginning Oct. 14. The class at Heritage Junior High in Sterling Heights begins Nov. 11.

Meisner's topics include: legal and fiduciary responsibilities of directors and officers; potential liability incurred by directors and officers and state statutes governing condominiums. Guest speakers will supplement the lectures.

Fee is $150 for a board member or representative, $100 for an additional person from the same organization and senior citizens. To register, call 577-4665.

Builders craft mansions to last

■ Builders of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra showcase house combined old world craftsmanship with new world features. Some 30,000 people will view the house, and most likely there won't be a buyer among them.

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

Joe Gurka and Vlasta Siler, Bloomfield Township builders, specialize in large chateaus, villas and Tudors that carry seven-figure price tags.

That's fairly unusual in and of itself. What's even rarer is that the husband-and-wife team always has a spec model in process.

Gurka and Siler's most recent mansion nearing completion and waiting for a buyer, Villa Baronna, contains some 13,000 square feet of living space on 3½ acres overlooking Lower Long Lake in Bloomfield Township.

Under construction for three years, the model contains five bedrooms with their own baths, a four-room master suite, nine fireplaces, a great room, family room/solarium, a library, music/reception room, formal dining room, billiards room, game room, media room, plus a pair of attached two-car garages.

It can all be yours for $2.9 million.

"The house is so unique, we offer so much value," said Siler, a design specialist. "It's a lot of money, but still a good deal for the person who buys it.

"They're designed to look like they have been standing a long time and (still) have all the modern conveniences," she said. "We like to strive for permanency, stay around and be enjoyed for a long time, centuries."

Gurka tends to the construction details.

"I build so someone walks in and says, 'This is one of a kind. I've never seen anything like this,' " he said. "My second goal is preservation of arts and crafts, to bring European culture for those who can afford it here."

Fine touches — plaster, tile treatments, moldings and doors — can be found throughout. Smooth-cut limestone blocks on the facade give the villa a stately appearance.

Originally from Czechoslovakia, Gurka and Siler have developed an appreciation for and specialty in large, baronial French and British-style mansions. They've finished about a dozen since moving to Michigan from California eight years ago.

The least expensive sold for $1.4 million.

Several other spec houses sold fairly quickly at completion, Gurka said. "Houses don't sell during construction. People want to see."

Potential buyers who qualify financially and who might be interested in that lifestyle somehow seem to gravitate to them by word of mouth, Gurka said.

"We build them and they (buyers) come along. We don't market. A corporate owner can afford it, maybe a bank president, famous sports personality, doctors."

Neither Gurka nor Siler believe they go out on a limb when they build

Home theater sound suffers

AP — Sophisticated video equipment available is capable of bringing theater-like quality into a consumer's home. But no aspect of setting up a home theater is more misunderstood than the sound portion of the performance.

While surround-sound has the power to produce a theater-like environment, it is often defeated by the user, according to Video Magazine.

First of all, the speakers don't have to cost a lot of money. Their location is what's most important. While the performance of the highest-priced speakers can be ruined by improper location, a moderately-priced group of speakers placed properly can produce excellent sound.

The Dolby Pro-Logic surround-sound system divides the sound into four separate channels — left, right, center and rear. Location of the speakers carrying the left, right and center channels usually isn't a problem because the sound carried by these channels is supposed to be highly directional.

For example, the voice of someone speaking in the center of the screen will be carried by the center channel. Something happening to the left, will be handled by the left speaker, etc.

Location of the speakers carrying the rear channel is where the problems start. The rear speakers should not be located directly behind the listener and pointed directly at the listener.

The job of the rear speakers in a surround-sound system is to produce broad dispersion of sound. Ideally, the sound carried by rear speakers should seem to come from all directions, but no single direction. Speakers placed behind or directly to the side of the listener and pointed directly at the listener will produce sound that seems to come from these locations — and these are not sound moves.

Instead, the speakers carrying the rear channel can be mounted high on the side walls, and aimed at the back wall. Or they can be placed a bit lower on the side walls and aimed at the ceiling. Or they can be positioned high on the back wall and aimed at the side walls.

such large, expensive houses on speculation.

"We trust our judgment," he said. "From design and culture, we believe exactly what a client should want. We haven't missed yet."

There are people who cannot visualize what they want," Siler added. "The whole process is very painful. There's no visualization. These people are happy to walk into a home that's glamorous, ready to move in. They don't have to go through a brain exercise to design."

Gurka said he's seen many arguments among family members who can't agree on exactly what they want in a luxury house.

"Better to walk in, both will love it," he said of building to his specs. "They'll say, 'This is it. Let's move in.' "

Gurka said he knew for years that this model probably would be used as a fund-raising showcase for the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. While he's pleased to show off his work, Gurka maintains that it does nothing to secure a buyer.

"I'm opening the door and revealing all my secrets," he said. "Thirty thousand people come by ... and none is my customer."

Gurka and Siler found the acreage for Villa Baronna after conceiving of its design. A smaller house was demolished on the site before the villa arose.

It's difficult to get bank financing for spec jobs, Gurka said.

"I cannot approach them at the beginning," he said. "We have to get at least under the roof, then they are willing to listen and supply some short-term financing."

■ Under construction for three years, the model contains five bedrooms with their own baths, a four-room master suite, nine fireplaces, a great room, family room/solarium, a library, music/reception room, formal dining room, billiards room, game room, media room, plus a pair of attached two-car garages.

Typically, Gurka said he and partners finance 60-65 percent of construction costs on speculative jobs.

Gurka declined to reveal construction costs or margins on their most recent effort. "Our profit is probably a tenth of what people think," he said.

Villa Baronna, showcasing the efforts of 24 interior designers, will be open to the public Oct. 2-24. Proceeds will benefit the Detroit Symphony Orchestra Hall Volunteer Council. Tickets, $10 in advance, $12 at the door, are available by phoning DSOH at 962-1000.

Choose a spa tailored to your needs

Choosing a spa begins with deciding on how you want to use it. For many, a spa conjures up visions of our own private getaway — an oasis from the hustle and bustle of demanding jobs. Most people are content with a cozy spa for two, but if entertaining is a priority, it's best to find a spa that can accommodate at least four.

Manufactured spa shells made of acrylic or thermoplastic are molded at the factory to fit the body contours and come in a variety of shapes and sizes. They typically use separate equipment systems, require professional installation and are permanent once installed. Prices range from $5,000 to $8,000, including installation.

Portable manufactured spas are popular because they can be used practically the day they are delivered. Everything — pump, heater, filter — is included in the spa cabinet. All you typically need is a dedicated electrical outlet and a nearby garden hose. Prices range from about $3,000 to $8,000.

Spas can also be custom-built to suit one's special needs. Most are formed of gunite — a sprayed concrete — and steel reinforcing bars. These in-ground spas may be further enhanced with such features as rocks, fountains or waterfalls. Costs vary depending on whether the spa is combined with a pool or it stands alone.

Hot tubs are usually round and built of wood. Today, redwood is the most popular choice, though teak, cedar, oak, cypress and mahogany can also be used. Hot tubs use separate equipment systems and require professional installation. Costs range from $5,000 to $8,000.

One couple narrowed their list of potential purchases to four. Outfitted with swimsuits and thick, terry towels, our next step was to soak in each spa.

Standing in dry street clothes on showroom floors, we were impressed with such features as built in ice chests and bubbler systems. When soaking in the 104-degree water, they gained a different perspective.

They became more concerned with the depth of the water, the seating capacity and the action of the jets. They asked themselves the following questions: Are some seats deep enough to cover our shoulders and others high enough to let us cool down? Could we comfortably exercise?

The spa's most obvious feature is its shell. The two most common types are acrylic over fiberglass and weather-resistant thermoplastics. Ask your sales associate to describe the advantages and disadvantages of both. Look at the skirting — most are vertical-grain redwood.

How is the spa insulated? Spas are insulated in one of two ways: total insulation between the shell and the sides or the 'thermo-pane'' effect of using air space as an insulator. Ask for literature supporting the efficiency of each design.

Is the cover included in the cost of the spa? Does it meet the American Society of Testing Materials safety standards? Is it tapered from the middle to allow water to run off if the spa is outdoors? Can it be locked for added safety?

The pump, the heater and the filter are the heart of the system. Many configurations are on the market, and all systems are designed to heat and filter the water. is the filter large enough so you only have to clean it once a month? Make sure the spa and equipment meet all applicable codes and standards.

Get a copy of the warranty before you sign the contract. How long are you covered 100 percent with no pro-rations, deductibles and trip fees? Does the warranty include parts and labor? Will you incur out-of-pocket expenses if the spa has to be replaced under warranty?

Diversity

Shoppers influencing interior design trends

HELEN DIANE VINCENT

■ Many suburban retailers have kept pace with changes by expanding assortments and adding consumer-friendly seminars, in-store videos and interior design services.

A quiet revolution has been taking place in the American home. People are moving away from following trends set by experts to demanding products and services reflecting their preferred style of living. It turns out these preferences themselves are diverse and changing.

Many suburban retailers have kept pace with changes by expanding assortments and adding consumer-friendly seminars, in-store videos and interior design services. This also is prompted by an environment of relentless competition.

Gary Van, president of Scott Shuptrine's furniture stores in Bloomfield Hills, Novi, Troy and Grosse Pointe Farms, has focused on lifestyle merchandising as "idea starters" intended to show customers some of the available possibilities.

Scott Shuptrine's wide style and price assortment has been expanded to cater to increased consumer demands for more casual comfort at affordable prices.

Two lines in particular meet this criteria: the new Mitch Gold upholstered pieces that make the most out of slipcovers as a style feature and versatile additions to Lineage's line, American Tapestry. Its design inspiration comes from eclectic treasures one finds by scouring antique shops and flea markets.

Jeffrey B. Roberts of Gorman's Drexel-Heritage Galleries in Troy has added two completely contrasting lines to appeal to different consumer lifestyles.

For those seeking the upscale, sumptuous look, they can select from the extensive Biltmore Estate Collection made up of replicas of fine 17th-, 18th- and 19th-century European furniture gathered for the North Carolina Vanderbilt mansion, built in the 1890s.

Others who prefer low-keyed, plain-spoken styles derived from either rural America or England, France or Scandinavia, may choose pieces from the American or European Themes collections.

Both collections employ natural wood and painted finishes, allowing for cross-coordination.

Bernie Moray, of Gorman's Gallery of Fine Furniture in Southfield, who has spearheaded the retailing of contemporary furniture for 28 years, has added Della Robbia of California to his distinguished roster of resources.

Three of this new company's upholstered lines — Barga, Cassino and Trivoli — make it possible for Moray to bring close interpretations of well-known contemporary classics to a larger public at lower prices one usually expects to pay for these styles. The Della Robbia lines also include an array of European upholstery patterns typically associated with very high-end furniture.

Andrew H. Fisher, president and CEO of Arkitektura/In-Situ in Birmingham, is dedicated to high-style modernism, an international design movement that defines what "cutting edge" should be.

Fisher takes a strong position on protecting the intellectual or creative property of the designers whose furniture he retails. Perhaps this has made his showroom a mecca for architects and consumers who relish the challenges laid down by these innovative designers.

Donna Stevens, director of the Interior Design Studios at Hudson's, underscores the necessity of having interior designers accessible to the public. With the proliferation of styles making interior design decisions all the more difficult, the responsibility has fallen on the skilled designer to bring cohesiveness to customer selections.

Hudson's has even re-initiated interior design seminars taught by some of their 37 designers. These types of seminars are being offered more frequently by our top retailers to an ever more interested public.

Bob Gamble, sales representative for Milling Road, a division of Baker, Knapp & Tubbs, is confident Milling Road's 22-piece West Indies Collection will find a receptive consumer — if for no other reason than its distinctive style. Milling Road's adaptations, just now being introduced locally, follow the example set by 18th and 19th century Caribbean furniture makers in balancing the best of American Federal, European Neo-Classical and Colonial Anglo-Indian styles. So far, this style has been available mostly through the antique markets.

Choices: growing home furnishings trend

Key players in home furnishings all say, "There are no clear-cut trends any longer. Consumers are buying all kinds of styles and colors." Yet everyone we talked to spoke of certain significant elements influencing merchandising decisions. Here's a quick review of major directions consumers should see in suburban stores or through their favorite decorators.

■ EXPANDING COUNTRY

The already popular country furnishings are moving into new territory after conquering the Southwest and Northeast — the Florida Keys. See the "Little Palm Island" collection by Thomasville. For Scandinavian country, look to Drexel-Heritage's European themes.

■ GLOBAL BAZAAR

Credit Hudson's for recognizing growing international influence on the home. Joel Kaplan, Home Trend director, says, "A global bazaar of patterns inspired by African, South American, Native American, Mexican and Eastern European cultures will be highlighted in Hudson stores."

The nationally renowned Mike Bell has undoubtedly sparked an interest in Anglo-Indian furniture with his successful Raj Collection and Brighton Group. Pearson and John Widdicomb have contrasting introductions with same themes. Milling Road takes still a different tack with the West Indies Collection. Expect to see a lot more.

■ CONTEMPORARY DESIGN

A new spirit infuses contemporary derived from the 1980s postmodernism in France and Italy. For the 1990s, it brings us a sensuousness in Thaver Coogin's new group, "Light Wave," and dramatic elegance in Carson's "Infinity Collection." Europe is still influential, but contemporary is now a global movement.

Thanks to Zeising Associates in the Michigan Design Center in Troy and Scott Shuptrine, which help showcase student work from the Center for Creative Studies in Detroit, talent such as Paul Martin is recognized. His first-place submission is being considered for Swaim's production.

■ PURPLE POWER

A local company, Mercury Paint, is finding upsurge in use of purple as well as brighter colors for interiors. Gold is making a comeback and so is a brown red-orange we used to call rust. Marilyn White of PPG Industries calls it russet.

Two types of greens prevail: the khaki type that Gary Van notes in casual furnishings and variations on hunter noted by Joel Kaplan, who sees greens as the color of the '90s. But he's also watching for a "strong return to blues and reds that are more brown-cast."

Lots of pink is in the latest mansion that Mark Morganroth of Sherwood Studios in West Bloomfield has done for a local luminary.

■ NEW ATTITUDES

Watch for furniture styles that go well beyond the requirements of comfort or casualness. It involves unpressed slipcovers, unmatched colors, patterns and uncoordinated styles. All of this coexists with ultra-refined opulence, also sought out by certain consumers.

■ ELECTRONIC WIZARDRY

Aside from home theater, larger TV and better sound systems, more home offices with personal computers and fax machines will proliferate.

■ MATERIALS THE MESSAGE

At no time have so many materials been brought into use: wicker, endless variety of wood finishes, glass in molten and hard-edged styles, metals of all kinds, mirror, ceramic, textiles of every description, including JAB (Stroheim and Romann in the Michigan Design Center) silver-printed silks, which stand in stark contrast to denim as a cover, whether painted or not.

Michael McCoy of Cranbrook Educational Community in Bloomfield Hills says it's part of an overall trend toward softening technology and the industrial object.

■ EXPECT UNEXPECTED

First-place winner of Ghiordes Knot Annual Student Design Competition, Sarah Murdoch, drapes an Oriental rug from the ceiling as if it were a textile. It looks terrific.

Expect to see more celebrity designers vying for the number-one position Ralph Lauren holds in the U.S. with his billion-dollar sales.

CREATIVE·CHOICES

More than ever, consumers are influencing home furnishings trends, no longer just reacting to what's on the showroom floor. Furniture makers, interior designers and store owners alike are poised for this change.

The suburban angle to this furnishings revolution provides the backdrop for Creative Choices, a special supplement to the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. The supplement, together with today's Creative Living section of the newspaper, spotlights folks on the leading edge of designer styles, including designers, retailers and homeowners. Our stories are as eclectic as the themes they explore. New attitudes indeed are prevailing on the home furnishings front.

—Bob Sklar

ABOUT THE COVER: O&E staff photographer Stephen Cantrell photographed our cover in Birmingham. The interior design for this living room has evolved using heirlooms from the homeowner and furnishings from Gorman's Drexel-Heritage Galleries in Troy with the help of Becky Spier, ASID, one of Gorman's nine designers. The sofas and slipper chairs are Drexel-Heritage; the coffee table is Henredon; the lamps are by Remington; the draperies are by Designs Designs Limited; the blue and rose handblown vases on the mantle are from Carlton-James, Michigan Design Center; and the painting is by area artist by Eileen Aboulafia.

CREDITS: Bob Sklar, O&E assistant managing editor for special sections, supervised "Creative Choices." Helen Diane Vincent was the home furnishings writer and consultant. O&E Graphics Editor Randy Borst designed the cover. O&E sales representatives Michele Lyon and Joan Hines coordinated advertising. Direct queries to Bob Sklar: 953-2113.

Major 'value' outlets help set retail pace

By Helen Diane Vincent
Special Writer

One of the facts of retail life is the presence of national chains and large licensed operations. For generations of many Americans, they've been the only assured place to shop for value.

What happens in this arena, often aided by catalog shopping, influences the level of price competitiveness and style momentum felt throughout all of home furnishings.

Part of Sears' recent revamping of its retail empire has resulted in maintaining 809 stores and establishing 80 upscale Homelife furniture departments — either freestanding or as in-store departments. Locally, there are six of these "superstores" and they're outsold by only one competitor, Art Van.

As part of an overall merchandise policy, Sears increased assortments and put more emphasis on authentic styling. Now one can shop for high-quality Queen Anne, Country French and Shaker dining and bedroom sets; upholstered pieces in the lodge style; and unmatched furniture intended to create an eclectic, personal look typically associated with specialty and department stores.

J.C. Penney, with 1,400 stores nationwide, initiated plans to attract a more discriminating consumer early in the 1970s. For Penney's, authenticity in design went hand-in-hand with color-coordinating lines across the home furnishings spectrum.

Penney's strength was to become number-one in the nation for soft goods such as bedding ensembles and drapery.

When Kmart, a place where 50 percent of Americans shop every month in one of its 2,000 stores, decided to style up its home-furnishings soft goods, it did so in 1989 with the help of the entrepreneurial editor and lifestyle consultant Martha Stewart.

Stewart's patterns for bed, bath and tabletop, usually of clean-cut florals and coordinated plaids, are intended to harmonize with casual, contemporary or formal settings. Her lines share the limelight with large manufacturers such as J.P. Stevens, Cannon and Remy.

Through these efforts, Kmart shoppers have access to a select range of familiar patterns all coordinated with popularly accepted solid colors.

Nowhere can mass marketing of popular styles in bedding, bath and housewares be seen more clearly than at Bed, Bath & Beyond in Troy and Farmington Hills.

to their Plymouth store. Not long ago, this severe style was favored by only a few collectors. Now it's enjoying popularity in our local scene.

Mike Nichols of Classic Interiors in Livonia sees a continued upswing in Bob Timberlake's eclectic furniture by Lexington Industries. Its appeal lies in a nostalgia for the homespun and simple country life of our imagination.

William Wolfe, manager of the four Newton Furniture stores in the metro area, is staying in tune with a very casual lifestyle by introducing Bernhardt's prewashed, denim-covered upholstered furniture. This style bypasses status for self-expression, which seems to be the name of the home furnishings game.

Designers track emerging lines for clients

By Helen Diane Vincent
Special Writer

Michigan Design Center, for all its understated glamour, is a serious place of business for many of the design professionals who shop the 40 Troy showrooms for their clients.

Here's a brief look at some of the furnishings lines that have drawn the attention of these designers, perhaps giving us a hint as to what style directions are unfolding.

Stroheim and Romann has an admirer in Steven L. Teich, ASID, of Teich and Davis Interiors. Teich refers to Marquesa as "one of the most spectacular fabrics he has seen in a long time."

His reasons for responding to this exciting cotton print is that "it combines the design motifs of paisley, leopard skin and tassels while balancing an equally unusual harmony of azures, purples, greens, golden brown and yellows." Further, Teich envisions many uses for this beautifully detailed fabric.

The significance of this bold selection lies in its sophisticated rendition. The motifs are not presented as a conventional flat pattern. Instead each motif is shown as draped, folded or languidly looped.

Opulence from California: The Bau line, exclusive to the design trade, is new to the Michigan Design Center. It includes Louis XV triple curio with burl doors ($10,500), Devonshire dropleaf table ($1,150) and Devonshire cocktail table with black marble insert ($2,830). Also shown are a chair ($1,400), ottoman ($750) and seven-foot-long sofa (standard fill $2,390, down fill at additional charge).

Swirling: A glass and acrylic Tulip Spiral Eclipse chandelier from Lighting Concepts Studio in the Michigan Design Center. Made to order; brass or chrome frames. $1,725.

Perhaps there's something more to this fabric than just technique. It appears that many products are being "softened" in their execution, even glass and crystal chandeliers. The Tulip Spiral Eclipse from Lighting Concepts Studio is a case in point. Its glass and lucite strips create a swirl, ending with an upward movement reminiscent of a flower's petal. The design provides an entire new dimension to chandelier concepts.

Needlepoint rugs, all the rage in the 1980s, now are sharing the limelight with other types of rugs becoming popular with interior designers.

At Ghiordes Knot, one-of-a-kind antique and semi-antique rugs as well as flat-woven Turkish kilims are more frequently purchased for clients. Meanwhile, at Stark, designers are adding finely detailed tapestries as borders for rugs of low-loop wool or sisal. It's been a hit with designers because it gives them greater control over the extent of pattern and color.

When designers look for premier quality in furniture evoking great historic legacies and design virtuosity, then Baker, Knapp & Tubbs and Carleton-James rank high in places to shop. For the first time in recent memory, designers are finding three distinct intepretations of the Anglo-Indian and Caribbean styles by major manufacturers. The most formal is the British India line at Carleton-James while Milling Road offers a masterful version at Baker with its West Indies Collection. A casual version of this style, the Viceroy Collection by Pierson, is at Bill Perlmutter's showroom.

In seeking an individualistic look for clients, Cynthia S. Ohanian, ASID, turns to Campbell Lewis/Beacon Hill for its Maitland Smith cocktail tables made to look as if they were stacks of leatherbound books.

When Audrey Weinberg was looking for a unique coffee table to harmonize with her client's paintings in rainbow hues, she found an acrylic and glass Catamaran table in exactly such rainbow colors at Zeising, a showroom specializing in innovative contemporary furnishings.

Savvy to designers and their clients more interested in carefree self-expression than status, Norman Lacoff is adding a Bernhardt "Ready-For-Wear" shopping boutique within his existing showroom. Lacoff will feature handpainted original designs on denim selectively designated for these boutiques. These designs also will be reproduced in exclusive prints.

Pulling the rug out from under plain beige

By Helen Diane Vincent
Special Writer

There's ample evidence Americans are tiring of plain beige carpeting. Many have had it on their floors for almost 20 years while style and color variations in textiles and wallcoverings have expanded and become commonly accepted.

Given the general acceptance of mixing patterns that goes along with the more comfortable attitude toward self-expression with furnishings, the growing interest in floor patterning was inevitable.

Some local rug and carpet retailers, like Edgar Hagopian of Hagopian World of Rugs in Birmingham and Oak Park, have helped shape consumer preferences by introducing them to rugs once regarded as exotic and inaccessible: Turkish tribal and village rugs.

Long before they were understood and bought for their charm and character, Hagopian persisted in displaying folkloric gems acquired with the help of his daughter Susan on her buying trips to the Middle East and other locations.

Hormuz and Azar Alizadeh, owners of Azar's Gallery of Oriental Rugs in Birmingham also pay tribute to folk traditions but, in this instance, with contemporary handmade Azeri rugs from Woven Legends, an operation of 37 workshops in eastern Anatolia, Turkey. Each rug draws inspiration from ancient motifs but are playfully interpreted. These rugs bridge the gap between old and new and, like the older tribal rugs at Hagopian, are adaptable to almost any interior setting.

Nigosian's Oriental Rug Co., in the same Birmingham neighborhood, is finding the thirty-something customer more interested in traditional Bijars, carved Chinese and kilims.

Together, these four rug retailers have created an important destination point for serious shoppers of handmade Oriental rugs.

Greg McQueen of McQueen's Carpets & Rugs in Bloomfield Hills has carved a special niche with the EGE art

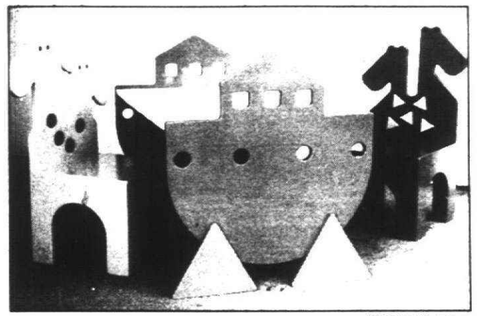
Mix and match in kids' rooms

By Debbie Wallis Landau
Special Writer



William Hansen

Downsized: Ultra contemporary design merges with timeless favorites in this table/chair set by Small Potatoes. At Bellini Juvenile Furniture, Birmingham.

Parents know their children are that most fickle of creatures. The adolescent son who hung NBA posters on his wall last week may be clearing space for stereo equipment tomorrow.

It's no wonder that in the juvenile to teen home furnishings market, eclectic as a decorating scheme has taken over from carefully contrived period bedrooms.

Not only is mix and match the trend, but increasing deference to the style of children is being seen by interior decorators and furniture sales personnel.

"I see a lot more negotiating between parent and child," said Donna Stevens, design director at Hudson's.

"I've also noticed our clients aren't afraid to mix materials. For example, iron has become more popular in bed styles. Whether painted or textured, it comes in various styles, such as a day bed or Palladian style."

Whether a family mixes it with laminate, wood or wicker, she said, the personality of the room comes more from the hobbies and style of the child — not one manufacturer.

"Memorabilia such as posters or dolls or other collectibles often define the tone," Stevens said. "The essentials in a growing child's room are a bed (preferably allowing a sleepover such as a trundle or bunk bed), a desk and a storage unit."

"One of the most popular pieces we're selling right now is the armoire," said Dave Kirk, sales representative for Baby 'N Kids Bedrooms (Novi and Rochester Hills). "Most of the designs we sell include a couple of drawers, a hanger pole and shelves. The armoires by Morigeau and Berg sell phenomenally well and all start in the $500 range."

Morigeau offers birch pieces with stains in cherry, natural, whitewashed or champagne. Or customers can choose a white, gray or almond painted finish. Berg's armoires are featured in a white or light oak laminate.

One of the benefits of an armoire is that it can hide a multitude of sins — clutter — or storage. It also can double as an entertainment center with a small television or stereo ensemble contained behind doors.

The second trend noted by Donna Stevens is that color has become adventurous and more available. Children's rooms today are not just pastels or primaries, but draw from roughly four categories of color themes predominant in today's home furnishings.

"First, you have the intense harvest tones — oranges, yellows and jewel tones. Second is the global bazaar — evident not only in interior design but in apparel," Stevens said. "These international influences include western, Native American, primitive and Oriental looks."

"The sun-moon-stars combination of the celestial category is also everywhere," Stevens said. "Cobalt blue is one of the rich colors and it's showing up in comforters and other room accents for kids, too."

The last category is the world of cartoon characters popularized by Disney and Warner Brothers.

Bed Bath & Beyond (Farmington Hills and Troy) has a huge juvenile linen department devoted to the universally popular motifs of movie and cartoon figures.

"Mickey & Friends At Home, "Minnie and Me," "Aladdin" and "Snow White" comforters, shams and sheet sets by Wamsutta Home Products share shelf space with more rugged designs like "NFL" by Royaltown Linens. That company also produces sets with the currently popular "Thomas the Tank Engine and Friends" for the younger set.

Bellini Juvenile Furniture (Birmingham and Ann Arbor) does a brisk business not only with its furniture pieces but whimsical personalized accent pieces.

"The Top Tots handpainted furniture from Haiti is very popular with our customers. Children enjoy the tables, chairs and small chests with exotic animal patterns," said Gert Glazer, store manager.

Also perennially popular at Bellini are the pencil clothes trees and lamps, and beautifully decorated, handpainted pieces from White Wicker Co.

line of rugs that moves some of the most daring contemporary painters' artistry from their canvases down to the floor.

McQueen and his energetic staff are knowledgeable about interior design so they're able to coordinate these machine-made artworks, along with many other styles of rugs, with other customer furnishings.

At Reimer Floors in Bloomfield Hills, 300 local builders share a showroom-of-choice. They use Reimer as a resource for fine, machine-made rugs, broadloom carpeting and hard-surface flooring.

Reimer's large showroom includes a Karastan Gallery showcasing the Original Karastan Collection of 17 Oriental rug patterns. These rugs have become the worldwide standard for power-loomed rugs since they were first introduced in 1928 and have made available patterns and styles that typically cost more in their handmade versions.

In retailers' and manufacturers' quest to satisfy consumer needs, a wide range of styles, price points and techniques are utilized while retaining quality — backed up, at times, by warranties. Printed carpet represents such a development in that it involves a high level of cooperation between the fiber producer and the mill, technicians, market researchers and stylists.

The Milliken print carpeting at A.R. Kramer Flooring in Livonia represents the best one can find in this category since it offers patterned broadloom coordinated with an area rug and a solid-colored broadloom. This allows for flexibility in interior design, giving consumers options they don't have with most other carpet resources.

For those who prefer to focus on an upscale look that blends color and style sophistication with a handcrafted quality at budget prices, any one of the 40 Crate & Barrel stores should be shopped. It achieves this crafted look by utilizing handmade imports as well as smaller American companies that specialize in making both modern and folk furnishings. A Crate & Barrel is at The Somerset Collection in Troy.

Pier I Imports was selling inexpensive wicker and rattan furniture and accessories long before they became the fashionable material-of-choice for high-priced manufacturers and celebrity designers such as Ralph Lauren. Now this retail specialist proves the staying power of their company and product lines by adding 30 more stores this year to the 650 nationwide and overseas. Pier I has 13 stores in the metro area and has expanded to include upholstered sleep sofas, wrought-iron and butcher-block tables, all at the usual tight-budget prices.

Ethan Allen Home Interiors, with 275 nationwide retail locations as well as in Canada and abroad, has 20 U.S. manufacturing facilities. It pioneered lifestyle merchandising more than 60 years ago and continues to update its approach periodically. Along with recent renovation of the Livonia store has come a wider range of furnishing Concept Six Home Theater and a Custom Plus Kitchen Program.

If having it your way in an informal, undecorated but very chic style counts more than anything else, Expressions Custom Furniture is the place to go. The Birmingham store is one of the 53 in the U.S. that provides 150 upholstery frames and 700 fabrics to choose from, beginning at prices under $800. Expressions has been one of the earliest major players in home furnishings promoting color and pattern mix, whimsical accessorizing and the unpressed slipcover.

For those who have no time for shopping yet need to furnish their homes, Decorating Den can come to your rescue. With a phone call, one of the local franchisers will bring a van to your door filled with carpet, wallcovering and drapery samples in addition to furniture catalogs. It seems a lot of people have been doing just that because Decorating Den has seen rising sales right through the recession and reports 1992 nationwide sales of $60 million derived from 1,200 highly trained franchisers.

■ MEET MADAME

Browsers and glass aficionados alike will get a glimpse of Jean-Claude Lalique with her 1993 line of collectible art glass 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 21, in the Neiman Marcus gift gallery at The Somerset Collection, Troy.

She'll sign purchases of $250 or more, including pieces bought after Sept. 20.

The Lalique tradition began with the artist's grandfather, Rene Lalique, a pioneer of the Art Nouveau movement.

■ GO GLOBAL

If you like pattern mixing, consider Ralph Lauren's globally inspired fall offerings that mix with some of last season's tone-on-tone linens.

"The common denominator is coloration," says Jack Pistor, home store manager and creative director at The Polo Store in Birmingham. "Sometimes it takes courage to mix colors you haven't tried before."

Call Ralph Lauren's latest designs sophisticated and worldly: a Russian-inspired group, an Irish cottage look and an African-inspired collection include a stylized paisley, muted floral and shirt stripe.

Comforters are $100 to $500; fabric starts at $35 per yard.

■ BATHROOM NOVELTY

Lions and tigers and bears — not. The latest bathroom accessories are cats, dinosaurs, cows and fish in the form of tumblers, soap dishes and other novelty accents.

You can do the trendy look (including three or four accessories, towels and shower curtain) for $125 to $150, says Bill Mayer, Hudson's senior buyer.

"This whimsical look is a major trend," Mayer says. "When the economy is difficult, I think people look for relief. In this case, it's a lighthearted look in home decor."

■ REAL MCCOY

If the matching bedroom set looks dreary, break it up with an iron bed, headboard or bedside table. Iron blends with all sorts of furniture styles and adds interest to an all wood room.

Beds sold at Brass & Iron Beds of Plymouth are handmade the way they were in the 1800s and guaranteed for two generations.

Besides hand-polished brass and iron beds and tables, the store carries marbleized and painted finishes.

■ CONVERSATIONAL PIECES

Looking for a piece of furniture to add pizazz to a room?

Pulaski Furniture's "Country Reunion" group includes a black-lacquered gateleg table ($625) featuring a large hand-painted country scene that the company calls "conversational art." It mixes with most decors and looks like an expensive collectible. The collection is available at Charles Furniture Warehouse in Royal Oak.

■ LIGHTEN UP

Today's lighting customer wants good workmanship and a back-to-basics look.

"People are interested in authenticity and craftsmanship," says Shirley Wald for Orchard Lighting Center, Farmington Hills. " We're done with the plastic look of the '90s. People want something lasting."

Popular lighting materials are iron, handcarved wood, alabaster, marble, lead crystal and Etruscan glass. Many iron lamps and chandeliers are finished in a three-paint process that adds texture. There's still demand for verdigris.

Some shades are fashioned from rawhide and craft paper that resembles a paper bag.

For now, contemporary lighting takes a backseat to eclectic and neoclassic styles, Wald says.

■ SHE'S VISUAL

Decorating doesn't have to mean major investment. Donola Gilliam, a Southfield-based visual coordinator, recycles what you already have.

Going room to room, she'll place furnishings, rearrange pillows, plants and accessories and come up with new wall arrangements. She moves furniture from one room to another and even harvests treasures from the attic.

Gilliam will create a new traffic pattern, not an alley, and add visual interest to rooms that need pizazz. She'll even meet the moving van and have the house arranged when you return from work.

She gives free consultations and charges $250 or more per room. Move-ins are $1,200 to $2,000. For information, call 443-2418.
