Ford Road troubles weighed

Canton Township has a new task force that will take on the development issues facing Ford Road, which is the township's major business artery.

By any other name, Ford Road is the heart of Canton.

"Ford Road, like it or not, is our main street. We need to pay attention to it to be sure it stays attractive and vital," said Township Supervisor Tom Yack.

He is organizing a task force of township staff and, later, community members to study not only traffic problems on the corridor, but also its appearance and mix of retail business. The group's ultimate goal is to provide a series of recommendations designed to improve the high-traffic commercial corridor.

Engineering, planning and communications staff met Wednesday to organize the task force, establish a mission, and determine tasks to be accomplished.

"The second task will be to identify the groups and individuals to serve. And it will be opened to the public," Yack said.

Problems Yack sees with Ford Road are the lack of design consistency among the buildings, including landscaping and signs; entrances and exits from the strip malls; problems at intersections; and concerns about aesthetics, including utilities.

The mix of retail businesses is also of concern. "We have some deficiencies. We need to identify what the needs are in the community. Once we have established the needs, we can market to those who can satisfy the needs," Yack said.

He also pointed to the lack of continuous sidewalks along the corridor as well as the need for improved stacking lanes for turning cars. The strip malls also are not linked together to provide traffic flow from one to another, and many of the centers have only one access point.

Many current ordinances can't force developers to put in more than one access from a center or to provide consistency along the corridor. "There are some limitations," Yack said.

But the township engineering department will soon have a new computerized tool to help determine what impact development will have on surrounding areas. "Then there will be greater ability to say 'no'," Yack said.

The plan is to create subcommittees to handle the various aspects, such as traffic, in the Ford Road study. Each of the subcommittees will receive help from township staff. Yack said he expects letters will be sent to existing businesses on Ford Road, asking for their participation.

"We will share information with everybody," Yack said.

Some of the information to be shared before work begins include progress of the downtown development authority, as well as zoning and planning, vacant parcels and the strengths and weaknesses of the existing corridor.

Driver apologizes for killing young man

■ According to witness accounts in Canton police reports, Spears gunned the car engine — he was testing the car after installing a rebuilt carburetor — as he traveled down Beck Road. With tears in his eyes and a trembling voice, Dennis Spears of Canton apologized for killing a 22-year-old Plymouth rollerblader with his car on Beck Road in August 1993.

"I'm sorry. I don't know what else to say," said Spears, who was crying as he stood before Detroit Recorder's Court Judge Leonard Townsend for sentencing Tuesday morning on one count of negligent homicide.

Spears, who worked at Gil-Mar Manufacturing for almost five years, pleaded no contest to the charge in connection with the death of David Kavalhuna as he skated on southbound Beck Road, shortly after 9 p.m. on Aug. 23, 1993.

According to witness accounts in Canton police reports, Spears gunned the car engine — he was testing the car after installing a rebuilt carburetor — as he traveled down Beck Road. It is believed he likely reached up to 70 mph, if not at least 100 mph, before he hit Kavalhuna with his 1969 Chevrolet Chevelle.

Townsend sentenced Spears, 24, to one year in Wayne County Jail, allowing participation in a work-release program if available, as well as five years probation and suspension of driving privileges for three years.

"It's easy to sentence an habitual criminal. This gentleman isn't," Townsend said, as he sentenced Spears, who pleaded no contest to the charge Dec. 17. A civil suit cannot be filed when someone pleads no contest. John Stewart, the Kavalhunas' attorney, confirmed there will be no civil suit for damages.

According to witnesses who saw the young man on Beck Road, Kavalhuna was not wearing reflective items and was difficult to see. Another witness said she saw Spears brake the car to avoid hitting Kavalhuna, who was decapitated.

Despite a plea from Spears' attorney, William Montgomery of Plymouth, to reduce the sentence, Townsend refused. "This is an extreme case," Townsend said, adding that any less of a sentence would send the wrong message.

The victim's father, Sergio Kavalhuna, told the court that he and his family forgive Spears. He also spoke of his son's achievements, in-

School cuts create parental unhappiness

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

A controversy is brewing as Plymouth-Canton Community Schools begin budgeting for next year in the wake of the state's restructuring of school finances.

Whether voters approve the ballot plan to increase the sales tax and lower the income tax, or the statutory plan to increase the income tax takes effect, Plymouth-Canton school officials project a deficit of at least $1.5 million.

Getting a clear view of the financial picture has been difficult, even for Ray Hoedel, associate superintendent for business. "We've been struggling the last few weeks trying to determine what our revenue base is for next year," he said. "We do know we will be short of cash on hand."

Superintendent John Hoben is recommending $2.3 million in cuts to cover expenses and restore the district's rainy day fund. He's suggesting that the board of education close Lowell Middle School, Gallimore Elementary, and Tanger and Starkweather, former elementaries that house special programs. Also recommended is the opening of Tonda and Bentley, newly-constructed elementaries boarded up after the last millage request failed, and relocating the Talented and Gifted program.

Public hearings to discuss his proposals are set for upcoming Mondays.

The first will be at 7 p.m. Monday, Jan. 31, at the Canton Little Theater at Plymouth-Canton Educational Park.

Next will be a 7 p.m. public hearing Monday, Feb. 7, at Lowell Middle School to discuss middle school reconfiguration. The Monday, Feb. 14, meeting is canceled.

At 7 p.m. Monday, Feb. 21, a public hearing on the elementary school reconfiguration will take place at Pioneer Middle School. A budget workshop is scheduled for 8 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 26, in the board meeting room, 454 S. Harvey in the downtown Plymouth administration building.

The board is slated to vote on a preliminary budget at its 7:30 p.m. Monday, Feb. 28 meeting.

On Wednesday, Feb. 2, at 454 S. Harvey, a public hearing will be held on the superintendent search.

The board's finance subcommittee, with input from invited members of the public, brainstormed on ways to save money. Among their ideas: closing Lowell, Tanger and Starkweather; not opening the new elementaries; computerizing accounting; offering early retirement; reducing the number of bus stops; making co-curricular activities self-sustaining; privatizing printing, warehousing, building operations, purchasing and maintenance; combining school elections with gov-

Police defend handling of marijuana stop case

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

A police call on a possible break-in apparently helped save a local judge from the embarrassment of a possession of marijuana charge.

That's what's suggested in written reports filed by two Plymouth Township police officers on the Jan. 15 traffic stop of Wayne County Circuit Judge Richard C. Kaufman.

At about 6:30 p.m., patrol Officer David Hayes was responding to a breaking and entering alarm when he spotted the driver of a car who appeared to be smoking a "joint."

After pulling the driver over on Ann Arbor Trail just east of Sheldon, the driver identified himself as Judge Kaufman.

Hayes wrote that upon approaching the car Kaufman was driving — the judge, his wife and two friends were on their way to Ernesto's for dinner — Hayes noticed "a strong odor of what appeared to be burning marijuana emitting from the vehicle."

Soon after, "Mr. Kaufman looked to the ground and said, 'You got me, I made a mistake,'" Hayes continued in his report.

"I asked him if he had any more dope in his vehicle, he stated, "No, that was all we had,'" the report continued.

Sgt. James Jarvis, driving a second patrol vehicle which responded to the scene, also wrote a report on the incident. After arriving at the scene, Jarvis wrote that he asked Kaufman, "How would this look?"

"Mr. Kaufman's reply was, 'I don't know what to say.'"

The Wayne County prosecutor's office and the Michigan State Police are investigating the traffic stop, sparked by a telephone call about the incident placed to the prosecutor's office.

Kaufman lives in Plymouth Township.

Kaufman declined to comment, as he did not return calls placed to his office by the Observer on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Merger

Shared services group working on details

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Police and fire chiefs and finance officers representing local governments in Plymouth, Canton and Northville are continuing a study on merging police and fire dispatch, records and jail operations.

The fire and police chiefs are part of a subcommittee, reporting to a larger committee on shared government services.

That larger committee is made up of the elected leaders of Canton, Plymouth Township, Plymouth, Northville Township and Northville.

Plymouth Township Supervisor Kathleen Keen-McCarthy said, "The subcommittee is working out details at how this would work."

Among factors they're trying to determine is the cost to each community to continue operating fire and police dispatch, records and jail as they do currently. Each community could then compare that cost figure to the costs toward a joint operation.

"They're looking at what the organizational structure would look like, how many people they'd need," said McCarthy, spokeswoman for the intergovernment subcommittee.

"Then they can go back to the finance people and get ideas on equitable cost sharing, and they can cast out a five-year budget for combined operations," McCarthy said.

She said the fire and police chiefs are putting together a list of pros and cons for making joint operations happen.

The intergovernment committee, after receiving a report from a consulting firm on how to tackle the merging of police and fire services, decided to study for now only merging records, dispatch and jail services.

"They agreed it made better sense to do the smaller project first, to see if it would work before trying to go further," McCarthy said.

The intergovernment committee is trying to see if costs to run these operations could be reduced by sharing services, or if service could be increased at the same cost.

In one example where combining operations could save money, McCarthy said an average of 17 prisoners are locked up each day in jails in all five communities. The communities could possibly save staff costs by using just the Canton jail, where dispatch employees are able to observe locked-up prisoners from their dispatch post.

To get ideas, the committee is looking at other communities that have initiated some joint operations, including Midland.

On Monday, the subcommittee "discussed the minimum we would need for radio communication equipment," McCarthy said.

The committee is scheduled to meet again the second week in February.

Ice festival appears to have broken even

This year's Plymouth International Ice Sculpture Spectacular wasn't a moneymaker, but it appears that the 12th annual event broke even.

"Until all the money's promised and the bills are in, it'll be too early to tell where we are financially, but I believe we're able to cover all our expenses," said Mike Watts of Watts-Up, inc., festival organizer.

"I think we're OK, despite the temperature. Even though in this case it was too cold, it's better than having it too warm."

Crowds, expected to reach the half-million mark, were down due to the arctic blast that sent temperatures plummeting to record lows.

"We estimated about 300,000 people were here," said Watts. "It's tough to guesstimate. A lot of people came through in their cars who maybe didn't walk around. Still, there were a lot of people who came through during the week. We spoke with retailers and were told business Wednesday and Thursday was up over the usual. People knew the cold weather was coming."

Call of wild takes producer up to Alaska

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

The Alaska John Zimmerle has come to know and love isn't like anything you'd see on TV's "Northern Exposure."

"I did get a chance to spend an incredible 40 days and 40 nights in Alaska," said Zimmerle, a Petoskey resident who owns the Wolverine Outdoor Education Center in northern Michigan. He traveled with filmmaker Steve Kroschel, a Minnesota resident, to Alaska in the spring of 1993 to work on a film project.

Zimmerle, who spent part of his growing-up years in the Plymouth area, attending local schools for kindergarten through ninth grade, was executive producer for the project. Kroschel was director/producer of the film, which they named "One Paw."

Zimmerle discussed the joys and frustrations of working on the project during a Thursday, Jan. 20, session at the Plymouth District Library. The Focus program was sponsored by the Friends of the Library.

"It was carefully planned so that you would be in the mood for Alaska," Jackie Troutman, Friends program chairwoman, said of the week's bone-chilling weather.

Small crew

Zimmerle and Kroschel worked with a small film crew, doing their filming in the wilderness outside of Anchorage. The crew worked with two live wolverines, Skippy and One Paw, and a stuffed wolverine, used during dangerous scenes.

The film, which has not yet been released, tells the story of a boy's relationship with One Paw. The boy starts out rather bratty, but learns valuable lessons from the wolverine.

"We hope that it's test-marketed," Zimmerle said of the film, which is approximately 98 minutes long. "We'll certainly try to keep you posted.

"It's a buyer's market for the distributor right now. You may never see it, believe it or not," he said of the $2.3 million project.

Zimmerle's not sure how well it will do in theaters, but knows there will be a video. This was the first film done by Kroschel, a Hinkley, Minn., resident in his early 30s.

Zimmerle showed "Behind the Scenes of One Paw" to his audience of approximately 50 people at the library in downtown Plymouth. Zimmerle answered many questions about Alaska, wolverines and filmmaking.

The video included scenes of avalanches being set off for the production. The movie also includes a plane crash; it was difficult for the crew, working on a tight budget, to watch the expensive plane crash.

The movie called for different backgrounds, some with snow and some in warmer weather without much snow. The crew simply moved to different altitudes, depending on what was needed.

Alaska has a population of only about 500,000, centered in the Anchorage area, he said. He was in Alaska during the time of year when it's still light out at midnight. "You just never seem to get tired."

Zimmerle prepared for his trip north by reading such books as James Michener's "Alaska" and Charles Brower's "50 Years Below Zero."

"After reading those two books, I was really eager to get to Alaska," said Zimmerle, who did research on the film industry and did the fund-raising for the movie.

Family film

He and others are hoping the film will get a PG rating, and will be seen by a number of families. Its name could be changed to "White Paw" or something else.

"People want to be able to go to the movies and not have all this other stuff that's going on," he said of the family film market.

Zimmerle has plenty of experience working with children. He and his wife own the outdoor education center in Wolverine, Mich., which is visited by a number of students each year, including those from such Plymouth schools as Our Lady of Good Counsel and St. Peter's Lutheran.

"Nellie Bird was my principal," Zimmerle said of his own childhood. "Ruth Eriksson could tell stories, what a storyteller." Many believed it was a shame when the educator left the classroom to become a principal, he told his audience. Both women had Plymouth-Canton elementary schools named for them.

Zimmerle moved to Howell as a teenager. These days, he and his wife, who have three grown children, live in Petoskey. They're planning a move to Wolverine, to be closer to the education center, where students learn about the great outdoors.

The outdoor education camp is directed by Plymouth native Don Pocklington, whose mother, Helen Hopkins, is a Friends of the Library member. The Friends group offered a film program in the past, and it was well-received, said Troutman, the program chairwoman.

"We try to aim at different groups of the community," she said.

Freeze-thaw cycle of winter makes for one bumpy ride

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

The frigid weather last week, coupled with the recent thaw, is creating more potholes and other bumpy road conditions than usual, motorists and road maintenance crews are discovering.

"When the pavement was bitter cold, 20 below, you didn't see many potholes," said Earl Ollila, road maintenance engineer with Wayne County.

"But now you're seeing moisture. It's the freeze-thaw cycle," Ollila said, that contributes to potholes and other bumpy road conditions.

"The pavements are moving. You've got frozen moisture in a crack in the pavement, it expands and breaks it up, when the frozen water turns to a liquid it releases pressure. A car drives over it and chunks get thrown out, and that's called a pothole," Ollila said.

"We have not had a real nasty pothole problem so far," Ollila said, but added that when the frost that penetrated deeper into the soil during frigid cold begins to thaw, more moisture and pressure than usual will be released.

This could cause problems, especially on gravel roads. "There is a deeper penetration of frost especially on a flexible-based road. If there's not concrete in it, that road will move," he said.

"Say the frost penetrates down to 36 inches. On a gravel road, the frost starts coming out and it just becomes a quagmire. The possibility exists that the gravel roads are going to be a real problem because of the cold," Ollila said.

Yet, gravel roads in Plymouth and north Canton likely won't be as bad as gravel roads in the southeast section of the county, where there is much clay, he said.

"In the north section of the county, you have hard gravel and a lot of sand. There's good vertical drainage, those gravel roads don't fall apart as readily," he said.

Ollila said county crews are working to cold patch holes that have popped up.

"You put cold mix in the pothole and try to compact it with the tire of the truck or at least hit it with a shovel. The traffic will beat it down from that point," he said, so the patch will stay.

Paul Sincock, city of Plymouth department of public works director, said the freeze-thaw has created several potholes around the city.

"You want to try to fill these up as quickly as possible, you don't want more water in there," he said.

In the spring, Sincock said the city DPW plans to do roadway joint sealing and crack sealing to repair and head off damage.

Confidentiality concerns Wayne-Westland trustee

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

A Wayne-Westland school board member suggested Monday that some of her colleagues may have violated the confidentiality of closed-door discussions.

"There appears to be an assumption by certain members of the board that there are no secrets in this district and that closed-session confidentiality will be broken," board member Laurel Raisanen said in an open session Monday night.

"If closed-session confidentiality is broken, then the law is broken," she said.

Raisanen didn't single out specific board members or say what confidences may have been breached. But, noting that some employee union contracts will be expiring soon, she hinted that her concerns stem from the negotiation process.

Raisanen said board members "shouldn't tolerate" the belief that their closed-door discussions will be leaked to the public.

She went even further to suggest that the board needs a special study session on the state Open Meetings Act so that members have a clear understanding of what is to be discussed in open and closed sessions.

"I believe on occasion we have not always been in compliance," she said.

With recent elections, the board is newly revamped and will be negotiating contracts for the first time, she said.

"Confidentiality must be preserved, or we're breaking the law," she said later.

Board vice president Mathew McCusker indicated that an expert could be provided by the Michigan Association of School Boards to lead a study session on the Open Meetings Act. The district serves students in a small part of southern Canton.

Raisanen agreed and also suggested that a representative from the Observer could be helpful during the session by providing a journalist's perspective.

During an informal poll Monday, most board members appeared willing to plan a session on the Open Meetings Act. Patricia Brown, a former Associated Newspapers news editor, was the only member who said she didn't believe she needed a session on the act.

"I don't think it's necessary," she said.

No date has been scheduled for the possible study session.

cluding acceptance as a graduate student in film studies at New York University.

"In my heart, I can't believe that Dennis Spears intended to hurt anyone. But, according to the police report, apparently Mr. Spears was driving too fast shortly before impact. Mr. Spears' statement to the police was that he knew his headlights pointed down and he couldn't see more than three or four feet ahead of the car," Kavalhuna said, reading from a prepared statement.

Attorney Montgomery asked Townsend not to give Spears jail time. "There's absolutely no intention here on anybody's part for what occurred. I think we have to look at that," Montgomery said.

With the birth of two twin boys to Spears and his live-in girlfriend since the accident, jail time would only create yet another tragedy, Montgomery said. "He's had quite a bit of difficulty," he continued, adding that Spears has been in counseling.

Spears' girlfriend, Jennifer Green, also spoke. "I just had two babies and I need him to be home to help me," she said. "He's a good kid. He never did anything wrong."

But Wayne County Assistant Prosecutor Kevin Simowaki asked for jail time. "He's using a public road as a drag strip," he said. "We're urging a period of incarceration and suspension of driving privileges for as long as you can do it."

Kavalhuna didn't ask for a specific sentence. "Unfortunately, there is nothing the court can do to remove the grief felt by Mr. Spears and his family. There is nothing that the court can do to lift the feeling of loss from David Kavalhuna's family and friends. Nothing can reverse the effects of this accident, but something can be done to address the cause.

"Judge Townsend, the sentence you pronounce will be a signal to other people who have cars which are used primarily to go faster than someone else's car," Kavalhuna said.

ernmental elections; increasing community fees; and streamlining the curriculum.

In an impassioned plea to the board applauded by the audience, longtime school supporter and PTO president Peggy Kalis Monday criticized officials for seeking a "quick fix" at children's expense.

She found fault with the administration and the subcommittee for not seeking input from staff.

In his report to Plymouth Township police Chief Carl Berry, Hayes said that while he has been involved in several drug investigations leading to convictions, "I was dispatched to a B&E (breaking and entering) of a residence which could have led to the arrest of a felon, and the recovery of personal property."

"I feel very comfortable with my decision regarding this incident. I was not influenced by the fact that Mr. Kaufman is a judge. Due to the small quantity of marijuana, I felt a warning was warranted in this case," Hayes continued.

Berry said that while the car could have been searched, officers used their discretion, and that the judge was not given special treatment.

Hayes has been a police officer for seven years, and has served as a detective for the last two years.

"Anybody involved in a traffic stop is treated like any other citizen," Berry said.

"We do not have a policy," he said, on such stops to require a routine search when an odor of marijuana is detected.

"We do have training techniques and officers are allowed to use some discretion on the road — And I'm not about to second-guess my officers on the street," Berry said.

Richard Padzieski, chief of operations of the Wayne County prosecutor's office, said his office was made aware of the incident when "an assistant got a phone call on it."

"There have been allegations and we're conducting an investigation," Padzieski said, adding it should be completed "probably next week."

Asked if his office would contact Kaufman on the matter, Padzieski said, "That's going to be up to him but he has an attorney."

Kaufman, 42, recently ended an eight-year stint as chief judge of the Wayne County Circuit Court.

He was in the national news last fall, after handing down a ruling favorable to suicide doctor Jack Kevorkian.

Over the weekend, Berry compiled a report on the incident and submitted it Monday to the prosecutor's office.

"I think this whole thing is getting far more attention than it deserves," he added, as metro Detroit TV, newspapers and radio stations are also reporting the incident.

"There are many crime issues deserving far more attention," Berry said.

Ford's departure breaks open 13th District race

■ Democrats eyeing the seat are county commissioner Bryan Amann, state Rep. Kirk Profit, D-Ypsilanti and Tom Watkins of WSU. Republicans include John Schall, who announced his candidacy in September; Cynthia Hudgins Wilbanks, former aide to Pursell, Schoolcraft College Board President Steve Ragan and Susie Heintz, former Wayne County commissioner.

STAFF WRITER

Candidates from both major parties are lining up to test the political waters in the wake of U.S. Rep. Bill Ford's announcement Tuesday that he will not seek re-election later this year.

Ford, a Democrat, whose district includes Garden City, Westland, Plymouth, Plymouth Township, part of Livonia and eastern Washtenaw County, has been in the U.S. House of Representatives for 30 years.

Democrats reportedly eyeing the seat include Wayne County Commissioner and former Ford staffer Bryan Amann and state Rep. Kirk Profit, D-Ypsilanti.

Northville resident Tom Watkins, special assistant to Wayne State University President David Adamany, has also been mentioned as a possible Democratic contender.

State Sen. Lana Pollack, D-Ann Arbor, has reportedly stated that she's staying in the race for U.S. Senate. However, several Democratic leaders contacted said Pollack would be the front runner if she jumped into this race.

Former Livonian, John Schall, a Republican who now lives in Ann Arbor, announced his candidacy in September. Schall served on the White House staff for 2½ years as deputy of the Domestic Policy Council under President George Bush. He was also chief of staff to the U.S. Department of Labor from 1991 to 1993.

"Representative Ford's retirement really doesn't change the race that much. I've been running as a new voice for the people of the 13th district. This campaign is about the future — about getting the economy moving and creating jobs. I'll be talking about the issues that matter for the future: crime, health care, education and jobs," Schall stated in a press release late Tuesday.

Cynthia Hudgins Wilbanks, former aide to Pursell who now heads Michigan's Children, a private non-profit multi-advocacy group, said she "is in the process of talking to people" close to her about running.

Wilbanks holds a degree in political science from the University of Michigan. She worked for Congressman Marvin Esch for four years then ran U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell's three district offices for 16 years.

Wilbanks had considered a run in the district two years ago but backed away when State Sen. Robert Geake, a Northville Republican, announced. She has been active in the Ann Arbor Chamber of Commerce, Ann Arbor Rotary and served as government relations chair of the Michigan Technology Council. She lives in Ypsilanti and grew up in Detroit.

"This will be a dynamic race on both sides," said Wilbanks.

Other Republicans mentioned as possible candidates are Schoolcraft College Board President Steve Ragan and Susie Heintz, former Wayne County commissioner and currently head of Gov. John Engler's southeast Michigan office.

Geake, who ran against Ford in 1992, said he decided "months ago that I would run for my seat." He said Schall has an excellent chance, but he is not supporting him at his time.

Geake said there are others who have helped him on past campaigns who may get into the race but he declined to elaborate.

Ragan, who works in fund-raising for Eastern Michigan University, didn't rule out the possibility but added that he's happy working for EMU and being president of the Schoolcraft board.

Amann, a graduate of John Glenn High School, the University of Michigan and the University of Detroit Law School, worked as an intern in Ford's Washington office in the summer of 1978. He's worked as a deputy county clerk and assistant county executive in the Ed McNamara Administration.

Amann praised Ford saying that "every educational institution in this state has benefited from having Bill Ford in Congress."

Profit, Democratic chairman of the House Higher Education Committee and vice chair of the judiciary committee, said he'll make his decision with the state Democratic team.

"Absolutely. I'm very interested," said Profit, who is serving his third term in the state House. He grew up and now lives in Ypsilanti. Before being elected to the state House he worked as executive assistant to Democratic House Speaker Gary Owen.

Profit is a graduate of EMU and worked as a Washtenaw County deputy. After graduating from the University of Detroit Law School he worked as an attorney in private practice and later became undersheriff of Washtenaw County.

"Bill Ford has served the Ypsilanti area very well. I really didn't expect this. It's a terrific challenge," said Profit.

Labor launches campaign to defeat Proposal A

Big Labor is opposing Proposal A, the March 15 ballot plan on school finance reform.

Both the General Board of the Michigan State AFL-CIO and the Executive committee of the United Auto Workers community action program called for votes against Proposal A, whose key feature is a 2-cent increase in the state sale tax.

"The statutory plan was best for the men and women we represent," said Michigan State AFL-CIO President Frank Garrison. The statutory plan, which features a 1.4 percent hike in the income tax rate, will go into effect if voters reject the sales tax plan.

"The board decided to oppose the ballot proposal because its impact on middle- and low-income families, senior citizens and renters would be worse than that of the statutory back-up plan," said Garrison.

"Generally, the state AFL-CIO has opposed increases in the sales tax (as the ballot plan would do) because middle- and low-income persons spend a higher percentage of their incomes on items subject to the sales tax than do high-income persons."

While the statutory plan increases the state income rate from 4.6 to 6 percent, the plan also increases the personal exemption from $2,100 to $3,000 (and up to $3,900 for senior citizens), lessening the impact on low- and middle-income individuals and families.

UAW-CAP said Proposal A would place an unfair burden on senior citizens living on a fixed income.

"The ballot plan would raise a projected $425 million from the real estate transfer tax. But the highly cyclical nature of the real estate market makes such a tax an unstable source of funding for Michigan's schools," said UAW vice president Ernest Lofton.

Both labor groups objected that Proposal A would send $300 million or more to the federal government because the sales tax isn't deductible from taxable income under the federal income tax.

'A' affects more than sales tax

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Q. Gov. Engler keeps talking about the March 15 ballot proposal as if only increasing the sales tax were involved. What else are we voting on?

A. Lots — Proposal A has more than 900 words and affects six sections of the Michigan Constitution.

Even if you read all the fine print, you won't see many changes because they are in laws "tied barred" to passage of Proposal A.

Proposal A will:

- Raise the sales tax rate from 4 percent, where it has been since the 1960s, to 6 percent.
- Constitutionally earmark the extra 2 cents for the school aid fund. The statutory plan earmarks an income tax increase for the school aid fund, but Engler will argue that a future Legislature could tamper with that. If Proposal A is passed, only voters may change the earmarking.
- Cap property assessment increases at the rate of inflation or 5 percent, whichever is less.
- Raise the real estate transfer tax to $2.11 per $1,000 of valuation. The Legislature passed a law raising it to $1.11 from the current 11 cents.
- Nullify a law raising the income tax rate to 6 percent from the current 4.6 percent, and lower that rate to 4.4 percent.
- Nullify the law raising the personal exemption to $3,000 and keep it at $2,100.
- Nullify a law raising the single business tax rate to 2.75 percent and keep it at 2.35 percent.
- Roll down property taxes on homesteads from 12 mills under the statutory plan to 6 mills. Businesses and second homes would pay 24 mills under either plan. Under Proposal A, it takes a three-fourths vote of all legislators to alter those rates.

Q. I live in one of those so-called "rich" school districts that spends far more than $6,500 per pupil. The state would reimburse us only to $6,500. To get the rest, we'd have to vote a "hold harmless" millage. Would Proposal A affect us?

A. Yes, quite a bit. Under the statutory plan, you could levy a supplemental property tax on both business and homestead property.

Proposal A would limit your district to a supplemental tax only on homestead property — until you reached 18 mills. After that point, the local tax would apply to both kinds of property.

Q. When do all these tax changes take effect?

A. Most tax changes, under both the statutory and ballot plans, take effect May 1. Exception: the real estate transfer tax would take effect next Jan. 1, 1995.

Q. I'm going to be in Florida March 15. When can I get an absentee ballot?

A. Right now, according to Secretary of State Richard Austin.

You may obtain an absentee ballot from your city or township clerk if you plan to be out of town on election day, if you are age 60 or older, or if you're unable to vote without assistance.

If you're not registered, deadline for registering is Monday, Feb. 14.

Q. I'd like to talk to Gov. John Engler about some tax ideas I have. How do I get to him?

A. You need an appointment. Engler boasts his "open door" policy has drawn 700 people.

For a form to schedule a visit, write to: "Open Door," Governor's Office, PO Box 300013, Lansing 48909.

This newspaper will try to answer every question of general interest on the school tax reform plan. By touch-tone, call (313) 953-2047, Ext. 1881.

AROUND CANTON

Skate night rescheduled

Canton Parks and Recreation has rescheduled its second annual Family Skate Night to 7-9 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 3, on the ponds behind township hall, 1150 S. Canton Center Road.

The skate night was canceled Jan. 20 because of record-setting cold weather.

Hot refreshments will be served and the ponds will be lighted for night skating. For more information, contact the parks and recreation division at 397-5110.

Residents needed

Residents who are interested in filling one of four positions on the township tax board of review should send letters of interest to Township Supervisor Tom Yack. Letters should include why you are interested in serving as well as the strengths you can bring to the position.

Township officials plan to create a second three-member board of review this year to improve the process for residents appealing their property tax assessments. In addition, longtime member Dick Palmer has resigned from the original board.

Board members are paid approximately $9.50 per hour. Board members must be available on some days in March. The board usually hears petitions over several days in March. Two days, March 14 and 15, are mandatory under state law. Other review dates have not been scheduled.

Send letters of interest to Yack at 1150 S. Canton Center Road, Canton 48188.

State of township

The Canton Chamber of Commerce is hosting the annual state of the township address by Canton Township Supervisor Tom Yack at 7:30 a.m. Wednesday, Feb. 2, at Fellows Creek Golf Club, 2936 Lotz Road.

The breakfast is $12 per person. Reservations can be made by calling the chamber at 453-4040.

Store in Canton smokes the competition

■ A local merchant, himself a non-smoker, operates a Smoker's Express store in Canton to cater to smokers. Smoking, however, isn't allowed in the store.

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Smokers, you know how it feels: isolation, stares, "no smoking" signs everywhere, and of course that feeling that you just don't count anymore.

But take heart. Now there's a place in Canton where you can feel a bit more at home. "We cater to the smoker. We are smoker-friendly. We won't hassle you," said Chuck Bross, co-owner of the Smoker's Express store on Ford Road, just east of Canton Center Road.

The Canton store is one of three in the metropolitan area that caters expressly to the needs and habits of smokers, including cigarettes, cigars and pipes.

The store opened on Ford Road in August but has been in Canton since February 1993 at another location. "There's definitely a niche for these type of stores," Bross said. "What we are is a promotion store."

That means Bross, who operates on volume, can pass along manufacturers' promotions - reduced prices - to smokers. "A lot of manufacturers are giving gifts. It's very competitive today because smokers are a minority," Bross said.

BILL BRESLER/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Smoking store: Chuck Bross is bucking the trend toward non-smoking by operating a smokers-only store in Canton. He says there are plenty of customers.

Smoker's Express offers smokers not only a place where they aren't the only ones asking for cigarettes, but a variety of domestic and foreign brands, as well as novelty cigarettes, some called "Go to Hell." That's not mentioning the chocolate cigars to be given when a baby is born.

Bross is in the process of installing walk-in humidors for cigars. The store also offers all foreign and domestic cigarettes as well as smoking paraphernalia, including chewing tobaccos.

"American-made cigarettes are the most popular," Bross said. "They say Phillip Morris has 50 percent of the market."

But if there are cigarettes that someone wants and Bross doesn't have, he'll find them. Selection is the one thing Bross is determined to offer. "We've got the selection. Salem makes five different kinds. Most stores don't carry all of them."

Believe it or not, Michigan is one of the top states for the number of residents who smoke, followed by southern states where tobacco is grown. "A lot of people come in here and say they really enjoy cigarette smoking," Bross said.

Winners

Close Up class receives $5,000

Close Up students at Plymouth-Canton Educational Park received $5,000 Monday, compliments of the Canton Community Foundation. Close Up is a government class that emphasizes hands-on learning. Plymouth-Canton's Close Up program is the largest in the country.

Foundation executive director Bill Joyner presented a check to Close Up teacher Bill Gretzinger at Monday night's board of education meeting, bringing the foundation's contributions to a total of $21,000 over the last three years. Also, 20 scholarship winners will receive $500 each, which raises the foundation's scholarship commitment to $75,000, Joyner said. "We hope this is a long-term relationship," he added.

The public has benefited in turn by Close Up students donating 1,600 hours to community service.

Gretzinger, who with other government teachers takes hundreds of students to Washington, D.C., each year, thanked Joyner and the foundation "for helping us make possible one of our prime goals. This gives students a good sense of civics and government education."

Close Up students have volunteered at city and township festivals and special events, with the literacy council, symphony, Salvation Army and other local organizations.

Gardens discussed

A free workshop, "The Indoor Gardener," will be held 10 a.m. Saturday, Feb. 5, at the Plymouth District Library, 223 S. Main. The workshop is being conducted by Wesley Berry Flowers.

This workshop will cover many aspects of indoor home gardening. A question and answer session will be conducted. A free gift will be given to those who attend.

Because of limited seating, reservations are recommended. For reservations, call Lynn Lanstra at 1-800-628-9371.

Smokers

Retail business isn't anything new for Bross. "It was an opportunity that came along. It made sense. It was a niche no one had done."

The idea of an outlet store for smokers began in Florida. Bross' Canton store is now the oldest in the area, followed by one in Utica and Clinton Township. Canton was chosen because of the growing population. "Our success is that we offer the customer a good price," Bross said.

But Bross is also looking at the state effort to increase cigarette taxes to help finance education. It definitely will have an effect on smokers and the cigarette business. A luxury habit is what smoking will become.

"The smoker is tired of being picked on. Why should they pay for it?" said Bross, a non-smoker.

Bross says some of his customers say they will quit smoking. Others — no matter what the price — will continue. "If taxes go in effect, you'll see a lot of stores go out of business. If they aren't selling on volume, they are sitting on expensive goods. The tobacco companies are powerful. But I think it will become very expensive to smoke."

Bross is convinced that with all the anti-smoking sentiments, including increased taxes, smokers need to get organized. "The smoking population needs to form some kind of group where have a voice," Gross said.

He is certain that today's younger smokers are more courteous than the older generation. "I find that people who smoke are nice people," he said.

Though smoker-friendly, Smoker's Express will not allow anyone under 18 years of age — the state's legal smoking age — into the store. "We don't want a reputation that we sell to minors. We card everyone who looks like they could be younger," Bross said.

And by the way, despite Bross' personal feelings, you can't smoke in his store — fire marshal's orders.

Boosters eye ways to expand funding for state parks

By Tim Richard
Staff Writer

Politically, fans of the state parks have their team together.

Financially, they have yet to map out how to build a $700 million endowment fund that will free state parks from depending on the legislative budget process.

"I am heartened that our Legislature is providing the necessary leadership in this state parks initiative," Joey M. Spano, a member of the state Natural Resources Commission, said at a State Capitol news conference recently.

Spano, the West Bloomfield Township parks and recreation director, has been on the NRC for two years as an appointee of Gov. John Engler.

2 groups push it

Michigan United Conservation Clubs started the push in January 1993 for better financial underpinning for the 100 state parks.

MUCC's plan: a penny bike in the sales tax for one year to set up an endowment fund whose interest earnings would replace tax money from the general fund.

Spano said MUCC and Michigan Recreation and Parks Association, of which she is a member, "raised awareness of the fact that our state parks were deteriorating. But we were not going to be able to do this on our own."

MUCC's plan would have produced $15 million a year in interest revenue, more than double the general fund support of state parks.

MUCC's idea was shoved aside in Engler's and the Legislature's preoccupation with school funding and property taxes. With the Dec. 24 agreement on school taxes, lawmakers are free to take on — and take over — the parks initiative.

It's a crucial year because 1994 is the 75th anniversary of the founding of the State Parks Commission. It is also an election year. MUCC has been harshly critical of Engler on parks funding and reorganization of the Natural Resources Commission.

Plan unveiled

Lawmakers unveiled a 12-part legislative package to improve state parks.

The key measure is taking $40 million from sale of the Accident Fund, a state-owned workers compensation insurance business for 80 years. Engler won a bruising battle last year to sell it. His 1995 budget message in December proposed that $40 million would be the first step toward the $700 million endowment fund. House Bill 5064, sponsored by Alley, would do that.

Next would be a constitutional amendment to stop a $20 million "diversion" of Michigan Land Trust revenues into the Michigan Strategic Fund. Voters approved the land trust in the 1980s, sending revenues from oil and gas leases on state land.

Former Gov. James Blanchard budgeted part of the land trust money for water pollution projects under the strategic fund, his pet economic development plan. Senate Joint Resolution E, sponsored by Paul Wartner, R-Portage, would end that "diversion."

If approved by voters next November, SJR E would send $10 million back to the land trust, put $5 million into the endowment fund and send $5 million into the parks budget for repairs and infrastructure improvements.

Speakers at the news conference were unclear how the endowment goal of $700 million would be reached after the first $45 million shot.

Other bills would:

- Create a State Parks Foundation for parks projects (SB 952 — Ehlers). It would be similar to college foundations and the Oakland Parks Foundation.
- Allow income taxpayers to use part of their refunds to buy annual state park vehicle entry permits (SB 951 — Ehlers).
- Start an adopt a park program in which businesses and civic groups could volunteer to work on projects at parks they select (no bill number yet). It would be similar to the Transportation Department's adopt a highway program.
- Provide liability protection for volunteers (no number yet).

Deterioration

A handful of libertarians say state parks should be funded only by user fees or sold off.

Alley stated the prevailing view in Lansing — state parks have been financially and physically neglected.

Nevertheless, parks attendance has been on an up trend from 20 million to 25 million over the past 18 years, with some variation due to weather.

Examples of deterioration:

- Park staffing is down from 700 in 1975 to a bit more than 500 currently. Some managers have been assigned two or more parks.
- The Legislature has increased user fees faster than inflation. Daily vehicle permits have gone from $2 in 1980 to $3.50 last year and $4 this year. Annual permits have gone from $7 to $18. Camping permits have gone from $2 to $6 a night to $6 to $14.
- Last year, DNR officially shut down 23 state forest (rustic) campgrounds, many of which had been unused because they were so weed grown. The campgrounds had contaminated wells or needed new outhouses, access roads, bridges or camper pads.

Honoring Ford

Praise pours in for retiring representative

By Ralph R. Echtinaw
Staff Writer

Area officials and residents are reminded of a lot of good things that U.S. Rep. William Ford, D-Ypsilanti Township, has done in the last 30 years.

Ford, who is chairman of the powerful Committee on Education and Labor, announced his retirement from Congress Tuesday on the House floor.

"To my colleagues, thank you for your friendship, your support and the opportunity to realize the goal of my freshman year: chairmanship of the committee I love."

Jim Plakas served on Ford's staff in 1966 and later worked with Ford as the Garden City mayor. "I say this real respectfully. He's a true liberal," Plakas said. "He has always fought hard for the working man. I disagreed with him on some issues, but overall he has done a good job. Whether you agreed with him or not, Bill always did his homework."

Ford has served in Congress since 1965, working his way up to the chairmanships of the Committee on Post Office and Civil Service (1981-91) and the Committee on Education and Labor (1991 to present).

"I began my congressional career with the presidency of Lyndon Johnson, and I am proud to have been here during the enactment of many ambitious Great Society programs. I will leave during the presidency of Bill Clinton, whose proposals renew the Johnson legacy. Truly, I have seen the pendulum swing," Ford said.

Ford's 13th Congressional District includes the Observer communities of Canton and Plymouth townships, Plymouth, Westland, Garden City and the southeast quadrant of Livonia.

In announcing his retirement, Ford said: "Time has snuck up on me. As I approach my 67th birthday, it is time for me to focus on my remaining years. I want to spend more time doing the things I enjoy and concentrating on my family, whose sacrifices, because of my career, have been immense and often painful."

Always a friend of the United Auto Workers union, Ford drew praise from UAW President Owen Bieber, who issued a press release saying: "On all the tough issues over the years, ordinary working people could count on Bill Ford fighting on their side, no matter what the odds. His commitment, perseverance, and effective leadership will definitely be missed in the U.S. House next year."

Michigan State AFL-CIO President Frank Garrison said: "Billy Ford's retirement is sad news for Michigan workers. He is the best congressman that workers in this state have ever had."

Bill Joyner, director of the Canton Community Foundation, former county commissioner and Democratic party activist in Plymouth Township, said Ford has sacrificed a lot to serve his constituents and should be honored for the great job he's done.

"I'm going to miss Congressman Bill Ford, and I think we should take a look at the success of anyone who has been able to survive the political wars, and we should be grateful for the support (that Ford) has given this district. Whether you agreed or disagreed with him, you knew where he stood."

U.S. Sen. Carl Levin called Ford's retirement "a stunning loss for the state of Michigan. The people of Michigan and the nation have lost a great leader in the fight to give workers a fair shake in the labor market and improve education. He was a tough negotiator who wouldn't sacrifice principles for short-term gains."

Gary Corbin, Michigan chairman of the Democratic party, said Ford's retirement "is a loss that will be experienced in very real terms by every resident of Michigan's 13th Congressional District, the state of Michigan and, indeed, the entire country. Perhaps no one in the Congress better understands the challenges and hardships experienced by ordinary people."

Press releases honoring Ford also came in from U.S. Department of Health and Human Services Secretary Donna Shalala and Department of Labor Secretary Robert Reich.

Said Shalala: "Billy Ford is a remarkable public servant and gifted legislator. This past year alone he has been instrumental in bringing to fruition many of President Bill Clinton's key accomplishments, from the new national service program to the Family and Medical Leave Act."

Said Reich: "(Ford) has dedicated his career to protecting the people who often get overlooked in our society. His never-ending advocacy on their behalf will not easily be replicated."

Before Ford entered the Congress in 1965, he was Taylor Township justice of the peace from 1955 to 1957, Melvindale city attorney from 1957 to 1959, Taylor Township attorney from 1957 to 1963, and state senator from 1963 to 1965. Ford was also a delegate to the 1960 Michigan constitutional convention.

In Congress, Ford is currently the chief House sponsor of the Comprehensive OSHA Reform Act.

COLO-RECTAL POLYP, CANCER SEQUENCE
Colo-rectal cancer is the second leading cause of cancer death in the United States. It is believed that more than 95% of colo-rectal cancer arises from benign adenomatous polyps, and among patients with a positive fecal occult blood test, 38% have such a polyp in the colon. The prevalence of polyps increases with age and is generally higher in men than in women.
In average risk people there is 24-40% chance of having a polyp present in the colon even without any complaints. First degree relatives of the patient with colon cancer are at 2 to 4 fold increased risk for development of polyps or cancer. The colo-rectal cancer risk is associated with high intake of animal fat, red meat and total calories, and a low intake of cereal, fruits and fresh vegetables. Detection and removal of precancerous polyps will drastically diminish the cancer attack rate.

The cold you feel right now is how thousands of families feel 24 hours a day.
This year, thousands of men, women and children will be cold due to a financial hardship. For them, the thought of snow only brings doubt and fear. Whether they are physically or mentally disabled, unexpectedly unemployed or the working poor, these people will endure the chill of winter without the protection of a warm home. That is until The Heat And Warmth (THAW) Fund.

OPINION

Ford Road
Improvements needed on artery

Canton Township is finally turning its attention to Ford Road, which for better or worse is the heart of Canton. And it's better late than never.

On the positive side, Ford Road offers some of the best shopping and entertainment spots in the area.

But on the down side, business growth has clogged the artery with traffic and created a density of development that many consider unsightly.

To take on the problems of Ford Road, Canton Township is creating a task force of public officials and residents. That group will address the lack of design consistency among the buildings, landscaping, signs, entrances and exits from strip malls, intersections and aesthetics.

We wish the group success, but wonder if the members will really be able to accomplish anything at this point. Changing entrances and exits, routing traffic and even control of Ford Road not only cost big bucks, but in some cases are out of Canton's control.

First of all, with Canton's status as a township, it has no control over Ford Road, which is a state highway. That means the state must agree to and pay for any changes made to the road.

Just for that reason alone, Canton should look into cityhood at some point. The state is never going to be totally aware or sensitive to issues relating to Ford Road.

But on to suggestions for the Ford Road task force. One of the prime frustrations of patrons of Ford Road businesses is access. A driver can see a restaurant or store next to the establishment he or she is at, but because the driveway doesn't go through, he or she must go back on to Ford Road.

Such situations could be easily fixed with a little asphalt and planning. The idea here would be to allow drivers to pass from business to business along Ford Road without having to travel on Ford Road.

Such changes would require not only government planning, but cooperation from local businesses and developers.

Here are other suggestions for the task force:

- A map or listing of where businesses are located on Ford Road could be provided to residents. Such a map could be done by the Canton Chamber of Commerce and mailed to residents in the township newsletter.
- Better promotions by businesses to make the shopping area function as a retailing unit.
- Sign improvements. It's tough finding certain businesses because of the clutter of signs, their size and location.
- The naming of strip malls. Too many sound the same. There are Canton Corners and Canton Commons. Thought should be given to finding names to better distinguish such strip malls.
- Sidewalks should be built. The lack of sidewalks along Ford Road doesn't allow foot traffic between the various businesses. It also prevents residents from walking to stores.
- Stronger ordinances. Developers can't be forced to put in more than one access from a center or to provide consistency along the corridor. Canton should work on ordinances that would give the township more clout in dealing with developers.

Ford Road defines Canton. It's the corridor that provides most of the shopping and is usually an outsider's first introduction to the township. It's important for Canton to seek ways to improve it.

A task force is a good first step.

School can alter attitudes

They say education is the answer.

So why, at Cranbrook-Kingswood — a nationally renowned private school in Bloomfield Hills that prides itself on its college preparatory program in literature, science and the arts — were four black students subjected to snowballs and racial epithets?

Why? Because racism begins at home and the seeds of prejudice are sown long before children go off to school — Cranbrook-Kingswood or elsewhere.

Cranbrook prides itself on being multicultural and ethnically diverse. Racism isn't tolerated, officials say, and the black co-president of the senior class agrees: "(Racism) is probably less prevalent here than anywhere."

But Cranbrook is an insular, secluded community, despite including students from 20 countries, other states and many of our suburban communities, and despite the fact that it has an exemplary, longstanding minority scholarship program — Horizons Upward Bound.

And maybe that is where it is making its mistake. Racism can and does occur everywhere — in the suburbs and in the city. Despite its excellent intentions, Cranbrook is no exception.

Why? Because racism begins at home.

In a letter sent to parents Jan. 17, a school official talked of disappointment and "a strong desire to want to have everything return to normal."

Cranbrook officials, as well as parents and students, must ask what normal means to them. We hope it doesn't mean they are willing to tolerate underground hurtful, harmful attitudes for the sake of a false sense of peace.

■ Cranbrook — unzip your cocoon. Let your students — perhaps led by their existing African-American Awareness Association — work with those commissions.

That's why the announced disciplining of students involved in the incident — a week's suspension, probation and counseling — doesn't go far enough.

These students should also perform community service in a situation where they are able to put aside the myths and stereotypes they learned, yes, at home.

In addition, student leaders should now work with administrators to produce the fundamental, even if slow, changes needed in suburban attitudes.

Multicultural commissions have formed in Farmington, Birmingham, Livonia and Southfield.

Cranbrook — unzip your cocoon. Let your students — perhaps led by their existing African-American Awareness Association — work with those commissions.

It is a privilege to attend a school like Cranbrook that has turned out graduates who have contributed to the leadership of this region, and in some cases the wider world.

Students who attend schools like this have a duty to contribute to the betterment of society. And schools like this have a duty to show them how.

Because education is the answer.

LETTERS

Tough teaching

One of my family's favorite sayings is from Benjamin Franklin: "Criticism is a form of autobiography."

Last week I was fortunate to review a recent survey of Michigan high school students, conducted by the Michigan Department of Education with Dr. James Phelps, deputy superintendent of the education department.

The purpose of my letter is to ask everyone who possibly thinks that "teaching is easy" to consider the following survey results:

- Almost 45 percent of the students questioned admitted to riding in a car when they knew the driver was alcohol-impaired during the previous month.
- 23 percent said they had carried a gun, knife or club to school in the preceding 30 days.
- 29 percent claimed they have seriously considered suicide in the past year.
- 38.5 percent reported having five or more consecutive drinks of alcohol in the previous month, including 29.3 percent of ninth graders and 53.3 percent of high-school seniors.
- 63.3 percent of students surveyed have had sex, including 45.8 percent of ninth graders and 81 percent of high-school seniors. Twenty-six percent of the students have had sex with four or more partners in their lifetime.

The next time we hear someone criticize public education or teachers, let's remember the results of this survey.

Complaint questioned

I had to write to you to express my utter disbelief of the complaint lodged against the Canton Police department because of their response to the two 17-year-old boys that voluntarily left home.

The parents' criticism of the police — for treating their sons as adults (which by law they are) — is an example of blaming others for the actions of their kids.

They should be angry, but their anger should focus on the people that were truly responsible for their kids disappearing — and that was the direct and sole responsibility of the two young men.

I have yet to read in any of the published stories in your paper and other accounts that the parents are holding their kids responsible for putting their families, friends, classmates and the community as a whole through a terrible ordeal.

I've yet to see that the kids have expressed any remorse or acknowledged the fact that many people donated time and energy to look for them because those people were worried and concerned for their safety.

What I do see is parents teaching their kids that they don't have to be responsible for their choices as long as you can find other people to blame it on, no matter how ridiculous it may seem.

The parents are saying, "don't look at your own choices or even consider the effect of your choices on others. Just do what you want to do and if it doesn't work out, find someone to blame." The ironic thing about this situation, in particular, is that if the police had found the boys and they had taken steps to bring them home or told their parents where they were, the police department would've been blamed for infringing on the boys' rights to privacy, since they are adults.

What this whole episode demonstrates is a sad phenomenon which is becoming more and more prevalent — parents not teaching their children to be responsible for their own actions.

Many parents blame teachers, police, other children, ex-spouses or any one they can find for their children's choices. As parents, our job is to teach our children how to make healthy choices as they go through life. How will we teach them to make those choices if there are no consequences or responsibility attached to those choices?

Brenda A. Plecha, Canton

Prison no answer

In the Detroit News/Free Press Sunday edition, January 16, a front page article caught my attention. The article was titled "Engler: End parole for most violent criminals."

The article began by stating more money would be needed to build and run prisons. To paraphrase, crime, serious crime, is out of control, and in order to correct this ill of our society, Gov. John Engler and perhaps the state legislature has decided to really punish habitual and serious criminals.

It would seem to me that Engler would realize that the $23,000 dollars we spend now on each inmate, a year, in our state penal system might be enough. During Engler's tenure as governor, the state of Michigan has built six new prisons. Six new prisons have not deterred people from being unkind. Why does the governor think building some more prisons will work?

Just maybe, Engler, there is another way. A way that is good over the long term. Perhaps money could be designated to communities to establish programs that address the issues of crime, conflict and violence in a preventative manner. President Bill Clinton is attempting to establish economic empowerment zones in the country. Why not peacekeeping zones? Teach a community about peacekeeping, especially our children. Give our children the tools they need to be kind and thoughtful human beings. Teach them about conflict, and ways to solve it peacefully.

Before you make more prisons, Gov. Engler, think of children. Think of the future, not just the next election. Help children become peacemakers, not with more prisons, but with money and programs that will help to rid our world of crime.

More prisons hasn't worked yet. Maybe it's time to try something else.

P.S. If anyone is interested in discussing the concept of Peacekeeping Zones, let me know. It can be a lot more productive and satisfying than just complaining about how violent our world has become.

Economic realities add up to hold women back

Like lots of folks stuck home with the flu, I was seduced by daytime television. Yes, I admit it, I fell victim to Oprah, Sally, Vicki, Joan, Phil, Montel, even Paula Poundstone.

Forgetting talk show sensationalism for a minute, and the fact that some of the guests might be actors or impostors, I tuned into a Montel Williams segment — the day's controversial subject: female exotic dancers. I was hooked!

The cast of characters was colorful indeed: one topless exotic dancer, kind of a Heidi Fleiss look-alike; one peep show performer, complete with mask; the club owner, a suave-looking grandfatherly type and proud sponsor of the young ladies in their "careers." Then there were two 50-some year-old ladies, who represented the moral right and who harshly judged the entertainers and labeled the club owner a "pimp."

And to provide insight, the requisite psychologist, who viewed the dancers as victims of circumstances and empathized. Montel, hip guy that he is, saw nothing wrong with the career choices of the entertainers. The masked lady was merely trying to eke out a living and put herself through law school. The exotic dancer was married but had an understanding husband who did not mind her job one bit. Both women claimed to "enjoy" their work and felt that it was harmless. H-m-m-m . . .

There was no resolution, of course, as per TV talk shows. But lots of emotion and anger were roused and the two older ladies were adamantly ticked off and called prudes by some of the more enlightened folks. The word "moral" was thrown around a lot.

Being an engaged and critical viewer, I felt a major hidden point was missed while the guests pointed fingers and preached about morality. It's really an economic battle, not a moral one. And fear, precisely fear of abandonment, both economic and emotional, are the real reasons the older women were expressing moral outrage.

What people do not realize is that porn upholds the patriarchal structure. Where does morality go when a woman is poor or economically deprived? Out the window. Statistics tell us that about 90 percent of women today are in dead-end jobs. So, "career" is a misnomer, whether you are a secretary or an exotic dancer.

Guest Columnist

Pat McNamara

Lots of women are in servile jobs where a man is telling them what to do and gets a cut of her pay and/or makes 20 times what she does. Does that make most women prostitutes in some form? Maybe. Women are kept economically deprived and that inevitably keeps the porn industry going. If women were paid a living wage, the porn/exotic dancer/prostitution industry might wane.

Another reason for fear of these entertainers is that voyeurism is frightening to women. A man can be "sexual" and yet avoid romance and intimacy with a woman whose job it is to be an object. He doesn't have to keep her protected and in his heart, or know her intimately. Take a ride down Eight Mile and look at the proliferation of topless bars in the Detroit area — a guy doesn't need a wife. He can eat fast food and have a sexual outlet at a topless joint and avoid the financial commitment and intimacy altogether.

Sadly, there are even shuttles to transport men from club to club. Naturally, any dependent woman, young or old, fears losing her man to this form of temptation and does not want it available for him to be exposed to.

The year 2000 is both the turn of the century and a new millennium. Same as when we moved to the industrial age in 1900, there is much turmoil and warring between the sexes. Obsessive violent behavior is rampant. Men and women are failing to connect. Crazy stories abound: The saga of the Bobbits; the young woman mutilated and in a wheelchair because her boyfriend ran her down with his van.

And look at the personal ads these days — there's more men seeking women and what they want is a fantasy that is perpetuated by media and porn images, not what nature has to offer. There is a refusal to accept what women's lives are about.

Women are afraid. There is a perception of grave danger. Take a look at what's happening: Gun sales to women are booming. A company in San Francisco is doing a brisk business selling sexual aids to women. There is even a female version of a blow up doll — except this one is in the form of a male that rides alongside a woman in her car so she appears not to be alone.

Pull it all together and what does it mean? Could there be an undeclared war against women, as Susan Faludi suggests? Have women made progress, or is there a backlash? Read Moll Flanders sometime and figure if anything has changed drastically from 18th century London.

Women are fending for themselves for a reason. Many are unprotected, underpaid, used, unloved, in no one's heart. What else would you call a group of people behaving in this paranoid way? War refugees? Victims, maybe?

Nuisance suits make unnecessary work for courts

Before the anti-government lobby screams for an across-the-board tax cut, I have five words of advice:

Tell it to the courts.

Gov. John Engler boasts he has squeezed $2 billion out of state spending — turning a $1.8 billion deficit into a $300 million surplus. He pared or hacked at natural resources, commerce, labor, the ombudsman, social services, state police, regulators of professions . . .

Everything but the courts.

We're getting more judges this year on the Court of Appeals, allegedly the most overworked body of its type in the republic.

Consider three true stories:

Ray and Chris set fire one night to a neighbor's barn. There was evidence they intended to rescue the horses inside to look like heroes, but numerous horses were destroyed.

Ray's parents sued Auto-Owners and Chris' parents sued Pioneer State Mutual, their respective homeowners' insurers, for defense costs. You and I might laugh the case out of court, but not the lawyers.

The policies had similar language that excludes liability for injury or damage "expected or intended" by the insured. The lawyers hassled over whether the boys expected to hurt any livestock inside the barn.

Tuscola Circuit Judge Patrick Reed Joslyn and appellate Judges John Shepherd, Gary McDonald and Janet Neff all arrived at "the only reasonable conclusion . . . both also must have expected that whatever was inside of the barn would be burned."

The courts ruled in favor of the insurance companies.

The losers are the taxpayers who pay for the courts. (Mallak v. Auto-Owners CA 141596 and 142824 decided in October 1993).

Inez drove her pickup truck to a coin-operated self-serve car wash in Harrison. Walking to the change machine for coins, she slipped and fell on a patch of ice and was injured.

Her State Farm auto policy says the insurer is liable for bodily injury arising out of "ownership, operation, maintenance or use of a motor vehicle" (italics added).

Clare Circuit Judge Kurt Hansen and appellate Judges John Shepherd and Donald Holbrook Jr. agreed the term "maintenance" was to be liberally construed and that Inez was entitled to no-fault personal injury benefits because she was injured while attempting to wash her vehicle. (Gendron v. State Farm, CA 152060, decided October 1993)

Joe pleaded guilty to a drug delivery charge. For pleading guilty, he got a year in jail, five years on probation and an order to pay restitution of $20 which the undercover cop spent on Joe's drugs. Get that: The guy pleaded guilty.

So Joe appeals with the argument that "government does not qualify as a victim to whom restitution may be ordered to be paid" under the Crime Victims Rights Act.

Appellate Judges Janet Neff, Gary McDonald and William Murphy upheld Berrien Circuit Judge Casper Grathwohl's order of restitution, saying he "had broad discretion in imposing appropriate conditions (of probation) under the particular circumstances of this case." (People v. Thompson, CA 151815, decided October 1993)

Losers: state taxpayers who have to pay the appellate judges and Berrien County taxpayers, whose prosecutor had to research and submit a 35-page brief.

These cases drive home the otherwise humdrum press release of the Professional Insurance Agents of Michigan. "Legal expenses are driving up the cost of auto insurance" and, I would add, homeowners insurance and appellate costs for prosecutors.

Even with reforms (cuts) in the auto insurance law due to take effect in April, I doubt we'll see a dent in the taxpayers' court costs.

Or in our overall taxes.

Anxious legislators muddle state diploma requirements

This year's MEAP test scores are causing a big stir.

Why? This time around, they count for something.

Starting with the class of 1994, students must achieve specific levels on the Michigan Educational Assessment Program test in order to receive a state-endorsed diploma when they leave high school. Up to now, the only specific content that could be validated by a graduation certificate was that a student was docile enough to have stuck it out in school for 12 years.

But beginning this year, employers can distinguish between ordinary (meaningless) diplomas and state-endorsed ones. Originally, to qualify for a state-endorsed diploma, students had to score at least 60 on the math test, at least 300 on one of two passages in the reading test, and at least reach 16 specific objectives on the 11th grade science test.

That seems tough, but fair enough, if one takes into consideration that the law offers kids multiple chances to pass the test and requires their teachers to identify deficiencies and offer additional help.

But our legislative leaders, ever anxious not to offend, have watered down even those minimal standards in a little-noticed law signed by Gov. John Engler in September.

Graduates in 1994, 1995 and 1996 who are unable to meet state requirements on all three test subjects will receive, instead of a state sticker on the diploma, one ribbon for each area of achievement. So if a student fails the MEAP standard in math but passes in reading and science, the graduate gets two ribbons attached to the state medallion sticker. Under the previous rules, the same student would not have received any diploma endorsement from the state.

Of course, our masters in Lansing can't even water down education standards without causing bureaucratic confusion.

Schools now must keep lists of each student's accomplishments in each area tested by MEAP to order the stickers and ribbons from the company selected by the state to supply such things.

And after 1997, the basis for the diploma endorsements will not be the MEAP (which has been around since 1970) but an entirely new test now being developed by the state Department of Education. Instead of all multiple-choice questions, the test will involve questions requiring written responses.

So the graduates of 1997 can look forward to showing prospective employers their diplomas, complete with one state endorsement medallion and up to four — count 'em, four — ribbons, one each for math, science, reading and writing.

I suppose now the big question being debated in Lansing is how to make the sticker and the ribbons so they can't be counterfeited. But these days, even that counts as progress.

Livonia Boxing Club: Is it down for the count?

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

The Livonia Boxing Club, long a staple in the area for amateur and professional fighters, is about to be left out in the cold.

Mounting financial burdens may put the LBC's newly renovated 5,000-square-foot gym, located off Middlebelt just north of Plymouth Road, down for the count.

LBC director Paul Soucy is hoping local businesses or a "George Steinbrenner-type donor" can step into the ring and help erase nearly $11,000 owed in back-rent and utility bills.

"Our back is to the ropes," Soucy said. "And I'm just sick over it because I've spent countless hours taking kids to shows and tournaments all over the country. We've been in existence 15 years and we've put so much work into the program that it would be a shame if this thing doesn't stay open."

According to Soucy, R.D. Management of New York, which leases the back side of the building (formerly Duff's Cafeteria) to the LBC, is threatening to proceed with an eviction notice by the end of the month.

"We're classified a 501(c) nonprofit organization, but it may be too far gone to renegotiate our lease," Soucy said. "Our lease runs about $2,300 per month. Then there are the utilities like electricity ($450 per month), gas ($500 per month), liability insurance ($500) and the phone bill from Michigan Bell ($56-60 per month).

Bingo not enough

To keep the facility afloat, the LBC and Soucy derive expenses from a weekly bingo night, which runs 6:30-10:30 p.m. each Tuesday at the GLA Hall, at Merriman and Cherry Hill in Westland.

Other income to help defray costs comes from amateur boxing or kick-boxing shows Soucy stages periodically at the LBC.

"Our take-in from the bingo is down from last year," Soucy said. "It was $31,000 last year, but now it's around $26,000."

Soucy began the LBC program with the help of the city of Livonia.

The LBC initially rooted at the Jackson and Jefferson community centers. The city of Livonia then offered Soucy the opportunity to relocate his gym in the basement of Fire Station House No. 5, on Middlebelt just south of Seven Mile.

Not purely local

"It was a city building, so it was rent-free and we had no liability," Soucy said. "The problem was that we had to have 60 percent residents to constitute it as a community program."

After a cool reception from firefighters, due to traffic by boxers in and out Station House No. 5, Soucy decided to start his own gym.

"We've moved four times and I was hoping this would be the last move," he said. "The program is open to anyone and anybody in the community. We take people from all over the metro area.

"I believe we took a lot of kids off the street. Boxing builds self-confidence. We sent three kids to the Olympic Trials. And we've had one surgeon, two dentists and a couple of attorneys come through our program."

Soucy's program produced Olympic Trials competitors Mike Dardini and Craig Payne, along with the late Kermit Fitzpatrick, the state trooper who was gunned down in the line of duty in 1991.

Last summer, Soucy realized his personal dream by moving into the new facility at Middlebelt and Plymouth.

Nearly $20,000 in renovations were made through volunteer work and independent contracts paid out by Soucy.

"We painted, rewired and installed new lights. We did the cement work for the floor and put in new carpeting. We put in doors and windows. The place didn't have a bathroom. We'd also like to finish off the locker rooms some day."

Steve Bond, 24, of Westland is a regular at Soucy's gym.

"If this wasn't around, I'd have a lot more time on my hands," Bond said. "I'd rather be in the gym instead of being in front of a TV. It keeps you in shape and keeps you out of trouble.

"I've put a lot of time and hard work into this gym. We hit the streets for months getting money to start this place. I was here when we poured the concrete."

Open to public

The LBC is open to the public 6:30-9:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, as well as 9 a.m. to noon on Saturdays. (The gym is closed on Sundays.)

Membership dues for youngsters ages 10-16 are $10 (monthly), $50 (semi-annually) and $90 (annually). Adults pay $15 per month, $80 semi-annually or $150 per year. Non-member professional boxers can work out for $5 daily.

"It's a very reasonable fee for a gym," said Chuck Fecay, an ex-boxer and trainer, who now judges amateur and professional fights. "I've been to Kronk Gym in the city many times, and I've been to Jackie Kallen's gym in Redford. But those gyms have only a couple of heavy bags, but this place has several. The equipment they have here is outstanding."

His son, Donald Fecay, 33, drives in weekly with his three sons and twin brother all the way from New Boston to work out at the LBC. His twin brother, Randy, is also a regular.

"It's been a long time since I've been in the ring," said Fecay, who as a Marine once fought Pernell "Sweet Pea" Whitaker for the 1982 state amateur championship in Virginia. "I just started working out again, but I can tell you this place has a lot of equipment for boxing. It's better than any gym I've been around.

"I bring my three boys in because it's good for confidence. It keeps you in shape and hopefully it gives you the discipline to always work out. There are just too many 'couch potatoes' out there."

JIM JAGDFELD/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Well-equipped: Randall Fecay works out on a bag at the Livonia Boxing Club.

Fecay, who works for a small door company in Southgate, believes it's time for local businesses to step up and be counted.

"Places like McDonald's, any small business in the area, could become a sponsor," Fecay said. "They could buy a spot on the wall and advertise their business.

"I think it would be smart. This program takes kids off the streets. If you don't want kids to break into your business, you need to support this."

Last Thursday, Soucy had more than 20 fighters sparring and training in the gym.

"We had 30 to 40 Wednesday night of all different ages. We've been pretty full lately. When it gets colder for some reason, we get a lot more interest."

But if the program shuts down, boxers like Bond, who works as a warehouseman, will feel a huge void.

"Being here is better than being in front of a TV. I know everybody here and everybody knows me. To go somewhere else would be like starting all over."

CANTON SPORTS SCENE

Salem shines

Their team score was far from their best — in fact, it was the lowest recorded by the Plymouth Salem Rocks this season (130.6 points). But they won easily enough Friday in a non-league gymnastics meet at Brighton, and they did it with a revamped lineup.

Zoe Yockey won the all-around for Salem, totaling 34.35. Kristen Kosik was second (33.8).

Yockey won the balance beam (8.45), was second in the vault (8.3) and uneven parallel bars (8.6), and third in the floor exercise (9.25). Kosik captured the vault (8.85) and tied Melissa Hopson for first in the floor exercise (9.3). Hopson was also third in the bars (8.3).

Sarah Makins was the Rocks' other winner, in the bars (8.75). She finished fourth in the floor (9.15).

Hockey Association

The Plymouth-Canton Hockey Association will have election of officers at 7 p.m. Monday, Feb. 14, at the Plymouth Cultural Center, 525 Farmer. Association members are invited to attend. For information, call president Gordon Bowman at 454-9979.

Recreation news

Time's running out on the Canton Parks and Recreation Department's learn to ski program. The final two-week session begins Jan. 31, with juniors (8-15 years) at 5 p.m. and adults (over 16) at 7 p.m. at Riverview Highlands. The $49 per person fee includes four lessons, four lift tickets and four equipment rentals ($39 if you supply your own equipment).

There is no residency requirement. For more information, call 397-5110.

Skating resumes

Family skating will resume 7-9 p.m. next Thursday, Feb. 3, at the Heritage Park Ponds, located behind Canton Township Hall. There is no charge, ponds will be lit and refreshments will be provided.

Rocks rip Hawks in showdown

The choices had been made in preseason, by those who should know. Most who knew Western Lakes Activities Association volleyball figured Farmington Harrison to be the team to beat. Among the challengers was Plymouth Salem.

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

At least Farmington Harrison made a statement.

The Hawks didn't win Wednesday night's volleyball showdown at Plymouth Salem. But they at least dammed the swelling tide that was threatening to flood, swallowing everything in its path.

That's how good Salem had been playing. Since being upset in the final of the Plymouth Festival Tournament Jan. 15, the Rocks had not lost. And we're not talking matches here; we mean games.

When they swept past Harrison in Wednesday's first two games (15-3, 15-4 were the scores), it ran their consecutive-game win streak to 20.

They had the chance to keep it going. The Hawks were playing much tougher in the third game, but Salem had used a five-point serve from Erin Koch to pull out to a 9-5 lead. The Rocks eventually built that to a 13-8 advantage.

Then Harrison's co-captain, Amanda Ault, stepped up to serve. Seven-straight points followed, including a couple of aces and some Ault kills, and the Hawks had won a game, 15-13.

It didn't make a difference in the victory. Salem reassumed its dominant mode in the fourth game, with newcomer Kelly Johnston — a junior transfer from Livonia Ladywood — serving the final eight points in a 15-4 triumph that gave the Rocks a three-games-to-one Western Lakes Activities Association victory.

Harrison had been the choice to win the WLAA prior to the season. No more. It was the Hawks' second-straight loss to Salem; last Saturday the Rocks played what their coach, Brian Gilles, called "the best match a Salem team's ever played" in routing Harrison 15-2, 15-2 in the Plymouth Varsity Tournament semifinals.

Wednesday's victory improved the Rocks' record to 21-4-2 overall and to 3-0 in the WLAA. Harrison is 21-3-4 overall, 2-1 in the WLAA.

"These are the best we've seen in the Western Lakes," said Harrison coach Ron Shortt of a Salem team that played without its best big player, Paula Dombrowski, who was out with the flu. "Then there are four of us in a group right behind them."

Asked what led to their downfall, Shortt was blunt: "I think our kids were kind of intimidated. They're not used to seeing the quick attack (Salem uses).

"We weren't moving to their hits very well, and if you stand and wait against them, they'll mash you."

Although Ault is considered their top player, her effectiveness was neutralized most of the match. "We didn't get the ball to Amanda the way we want to," admitted Shortt. "But it was because of what they were doing. They wouldn't let us."

What Salem was doing started with some very formidable serving. "We have tough servers," said Gilles. "And they don't only serve it hard, but they'll serve it into the short middle, for example. They're smart."

It certainly made a difference. The Rocks had 17 service aces in the match and did not make a service error in the first two games.

Jamey Viau, the team's captain and only senior, led with 10 kills. Karen Gundry and Shellye Sills had nine each, with Gundry leading with seven ace serves. Johnston had seven kills and Kim Sheldon contributed four aces. Koch had 26 assists to kills.

"This was a big victory for us," said Gilles. Asked if his team is playing as well as he had hoped, he answered, "I think it's better. We're hitting better than I thought we would."

With preseason predictions crumbling, Gilles faced another — perhaps more difficult — question: Can Salem do what it has never done before? Can the Rocks win the WLAA, tournament and all?

The answer would have to be yes, for now. But there are a lot of teams gunning for you, aren't they Brian? "I think they are," he answered, relishing the thought a bit.

Canton can't stop Rockets

BY NEAL ZIPSER
STAFF WRITER

BASKETBALL

Tony Goins scored eight of Westland John Glenn's final 12 points Tuesday, lifting the host Rockets to a 66-56 boys basketball win.

Goins' outburst in the final three minutes broke open a 54-52 game and helped Glenn stay tied with Plymouth Salem atop the Western Lakes Activities Association with a 4-0 record.

The Rockets are 8-1 overall.

Goins, a 6-foot-4 senior forward, spent most of the night concentrating on shutting down Canton forward Matt Paupore. His offense suffered as a result, but came alive in the game's deciding moments.

"I knew my game would eventually come around," he said. "Coach (Mike Schuette) wanted me to keep Paupore down, and that's what I planned to do."

Goins held Paupore to 12 points — nine under his average — as Paupore made five of his 15 shots. Goins finished with a game-high 20 points, nine rebounds and five blocked shots.

"Tony did a nice job tonight," Schuette said. "His focus all week was on shutting down Matt, and he held him in check."

The Chiefs (5-5 overall and 2-2 in the WLAA) weren't pushovers, however, as they rallied from an 11-point, second-quarter deficit to take the lead in the third quarter.

Trailing 32-25 entering the third, Canton opened the half on a 10-2 tear and took a 37-34 advantage behind consecutive baskets from Ron Hunter. The sophomore finished with a team-high 16 points off the bench.

"We wanted to come out in the third and pick up our defense and take better shots," said senior guard Ted Docks, who finished with 15 points and had four steals in the third.

The key to the turn of events was Canton's swarming full-court pressure, which resulted in seven Glenn turnovers.

"Our full-court pressure defense really bothered them and turned the game in our favor for a while," said Canton coach Dave Van Wagoner.

Another factor to Canton's comeback was the Chiefs' work on the boards. After being outrebounded 14-6 in the first half, Canton held a 17-16 advantage in the second half.

"I don't think there was much difference in the way we were playing in the third, as much as Canton coming out and forcing us into mistakes," Schuette said. "I knew they would be tough and scrappy, and they were hustling everywhere. They also started doing a good job boxing out and doing a better job on the boards."

Leading 40-37 with 42 seconds remaining in the third, the Chiefs got sloppy and committed three consecutive turnovers, which allowed the Rockets to tie the game at 40-40 heading into the final quarter.

Glenn took control early in the fourth and took a 52-46 lead after tip-ins by Guy Rucker and Savon Hubbard. Two short jumpers by Hunter closed the margin to 52-50.

The lead was extended to four after two Tariq Horne free throws. The Rockets converted eight of 10 free throws in the fourth and 15 of 24 for the game. The Chiefs were six of 11 at the line.

After Canton narrowed the gap to 54-52 with 3:11 left, Goins came alive.

First, Goins tipped in a missed shot, then scored on a breakaway slam. The senior forward then stole a Canton pass and fed Hubbard, who scored on an uncontested layup to give Glenn a 60-52 lead with 2:02 remaining.

Goins added a basket in between two Paupore driving layups and later finished the scoring on a monster slam.

Rucker added 15 points and 13 rebounds for Glenn, which also got 12 points from Hubbard and 11 from Brent Washington.

Rocks record 8th-consecutive win

For the second-straight game, Plymouth Salem turned in a less-than-spectacular performance.

But the Rocks keep winning, running their streak to eight-straight with Tuesday's 66-61 homecourt basketball victory over Livonia Franklin. The win pushed their record to 8-1 overall, 4-0 in the Western Lakes Activities Association; Franklin is 4-4 overall, 2-2 in the WLAA.

"We didn't have anybody who could match up with (James) Head," said Patriot coach Larry Jackson. "But the kids played hard."

That they did. With under a minute left, it was a one-point game. But the Pats missed a layup and turned the ball over down the stretch, and that doomed them.

Salem did its part to keep Franklin in the game, converting just 11-of-23 free throws (48 percent). The Pats were 17-of-23 from the line (74 percent).

The second quarter was the difference for the Rocks. They trailed 22-20 after one period, but an 18-8 second-quarter surge put them ahead 38-30 at the half. They were still up by eight (51-43) entering the last quarter.

Head scored his points — he had 26 — when needed most, getting nine in the first quarter and nine in the fourth. Adam Hammons added 11.

Four Pats reached double-figures: Jason Mashke and Mark Baluk (14 apiece), Paul Kruschka (13) and Greg Maple (10). Matt Bauman and Mashke each grabbed 10 rebounds.

■ OAKLAND CHRIST. 78, PCA 63: Plymouth Christian Academy could not recover from a 19-6 first-quarter splurge by visiting Auburn Hills Oakland Christian Tuesday.

The Eagles trailed 37-24 at the half and 58-39 after three quarters. Oakland Christian, which improved to 4-0 in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference and to 7-2 overall, helped its cause by making 25-of-27 free throws (93 percent); PCA (2-3 in the MIAC, 6-5 overall) was 6-of-12 (50 percent) at the line.

Aaron Jones' 18 points paced the Eagles. Mike Roose had 10. Dan House chipped in with six rebounds and six steals, and Ryan Thomason dished out nine assists.

Bannon hurt, lost

■ MADONNA

After a couple of weeks of good news, of wins and the ever-growing belief that more were on their way, the anvil fell on Madonna University's women's basketball team last week.

It started in Thursday's game at Concordia College. The Lady Crusaders were on their way to a 73-58 triumph, but en route they lost their best player and leading scorer — point guard Shawn Bannon, who injured her knee late in the first half.

On Monday, Bannon underwent arthroscopic surgery to determine the severity of the injury. Madonna coach Bill Potter learned late Monday that Bannon would miss the remainder of the season.

Her loss will require some major adjustments by the Crusaders, adjustments they clearly were unable to make Saturday in a 54-44 loss to Grand Rapids Baptist at Madonna. Their defense in the first half was exceptional; they held the Comets to just 19 points.

Unfortunately, they failed to take advantage of it, scoring just 20 themselves. And while Baptist upgraded its offense in the second half — after shooting 28 percent (7-of-25) over the first 20 minutes, it improved to 40 percent (12-of-30) in the second half — Madonna did not.

The Crusaders were 10-of-27 in the first half (37 percent) and 9-of-24 in the second (37.5 percent). They also made just 6-of-12 free throws (50 percent) to Baptist's 15-of-24 (62.5 percent), were outrebounded 41-37, and committed 27 turnovers to 20 for the Comets.

"We really missed her leadership," said Potter.

Stephanie Crelley led Madonna with 26 points on 10-of-16 floor shooting. She also made three steals. No one else reached double figures in scoring for the Crusaders; next highest was Rachel Emery with six (she also had four steals).

Baptist got 22 points from Marcy Bell and 12 from Laura Donker.

The loss ended Madonna's three-game winning streak, which had evened its record at 8-8. The Crusaders are now 8-9.

■ G.R. BAPTIST 144, MADONNA (MEN) 114: One needn't tell the Fighting Crusaders it's been a difficult year. Just getting in a position to win can be a chore.

Often, to reach such a position you must command respect. With Madonna laboring under a 2-20 record, respect is lacking. It showed Saturday at Grand Rapids Baptist.

What coach Bill Sharpe must now teach his young team (all but two are freshmen) is to play over such disrespect. They couldn't do it against Baptist — officials took control of the game, and Madonna could not adapt.

The result was 42 free throws by the Comets (they made 31, 74 percent) to 28 by Madonna (23 converted, 82 percent).

"I think our kids made (the officials) a part of the game," said Sharpe. "They called an extremely close game on the fouls, and that hurt us. It took us out of our game."

It also put some Crusaders on the bench. Center Sam Kuehn and forward Kurt Carlos, both starters, fouled out, and two other starters, J. Dimes and Mike Slone, had four fouls apiece. In fact, all but two of the 10 Crusaders who played had at least three fouls.

"I think our kids got discouraged," said Sharpe.

Baptist didn't. The Comets roared out to a 64-46 halftime lead and kept pulling away. They dominated the boards (65-30).

Ocelot comeback ends too early

■ SC SPORTS

The winning streak didn't last very long.

Two games, to be exact. Not that Schoolcraft College's men's basketball team didn't have the opportunity to extend it another game. But the Ocelots surrendered down the stretch, scoring just 10 points — while giving up 25 — in the final 7½ minutes to lose 93-73 to St. Clair CC Saturday at SC.

The loss left SC at 7-12 overall, 1-8 in the Eastern Conference. St. Clair is 7-11 overall, 4-5 in the conference.

"We couldn't score, we couldn't rebound — I called time out to see if everyone had their shorts on right," said SC coach Dave Bogataj of the game-ending cold streak.

Intensity was lacking, he added. "We lost by 20 after being down by five? I don't like that."

The intensity deficit was evident in the rebounding. The Skippers had a 20-rebound edge overall and an 18-7 advantage on the offensive boards.

Still, the Ocelots did rally after falling behind 51-37 at the half. It didn't help that they were without sophomore forward Steve Whitlow, the team's second-leading scorer and rebounder, who missed his second-straight game due to illness.

His absence was noticeable in the scoring stats: Todd McNeil had 29 points (and 11 rebounds), but the only other Ocelot in double figures was Dan Perttula, with 13.

In contrast, St. Clair had four in double figures: Kip Jones (25), Clair Volker (19), Chris Clark (18) and Jamie Schafer (12, on four three-pointers).

■ ST. CLAIR 87, SC (WOMEN) 57: The Lady Ocelots were faced with playing the Eastern Conference's best team on its home court Saturday. They knew to win they'd need their best performance.

They didn't get it.

What they turned in was "the worst half we've had this year," according to coach Jack Grenan. "We couldn't do anything right, and they couldn't do anything wrong."

The end result: a lopsided loss that left SC at 3-5 in the conference, 7-7 overall. St. Clair is 8-0 in conference play.

Two Ocelots reached double figures in scoring: Tricia Kazyaka and Cindy Muha, each with 12 points.

The game was really decided early: By halftime, the Lady Skippers had a 47-19 lead, thanks in great part to SC's 15 first-half turnovers.

After that, it came down to free throws. St. Clair converted 26-of-38 (68 percent) to SC's 7-of-11 (63 percent).

Canton's Clark continues to sparkle

■ SWIMMING

No one can accuse Plymouth Canton's swim team of dodging the big boys.

Two of the top teams in the state were in the seven-team lineup Saturday at the Monroe Invitational, which partially explains the Chiefs' fifth-place finish.

Birmingham Brother Rice, ranked first in Class A, won the meet. Milan, No. 2 in Class B, was second, followed by Monroe, Erie-Mason, Canton, Adrian and Dearborn Edsel Ford.

Jeff Clark continued to excel in the sprint freestyle events for the Chiefs. Clark won the 50-yard free (22.41) and the 100 free (49.92). Mike Orvis placed second in the 200 free (1:48.76) and Jason Fowler was second in diving (228.65 points). The 200 free relay team of Clark, Fowler, Jason Sterling and Orris was fourth (1:35.70).

"(Clark) has a good shot at being a state champ, and an All-American," said Canton coach Hooker Wellman. He was also pleased with Orris' swimming, although he has not been as dominant as Clark. "He's going as fast now as he was last year at the conference meet, and faster," said Wellman.

"He's not real comfortable with himself right now. I have to keep reminding him that last year at this time, he wasn't even with us."

Orris missed part of last season with mononucleosis, but he returned in time to finish in the top 10 at state meet in the 200 and 500 free events.

Canton hosts Walled Lake at Salem's pool at 7 p.m. Thursday.

■ SALEM 128, BRIGHTON 57: A revamped lineup in a meter, rather than yards, pool did not handicap Plymouth Salem Tuesday.

The Rocks won 10 of 12 events to capture their third dual-meet win in four attempts this season at Brighton.

Salem's depth was once again evident. There was only one double-winner in individual events: Rodolfo Palma, who was first in the 200-meter individual medley (2:29.43) and in the 100 breaststroke (1:19.29).

Other individual winners for Salem were Eric Seidelman in the 200 freestyle (2:10.25); Woodie Thomas in diving (242.43 points); Marc Levitt in the 50 free (27.98); Fred Locke in the 100 free (56.89); and Aaron Berlin in the 500 free (5:41.31).

John McLenaghan, Palma, Berlin and Pat Morgan combined to win the 200 medley relay (2:03.34); Levitt, Morgan, Seidelman and Locke teamed for a first in the 200 free relay (1:47.55); and Seidelman, Berlin, Ryan Petroskey and Locke were the winners in the 400 free relay (3:59.03).

"With no meet in two weeks, we were a little rusty and showed it in spots," said Salem coach Chuck Olson. "We have a couple of good meets coming up. We need to be focused."

The Rocks face Dearborn Tuesday and North Farmington next Thursday. Both meets are at Salem.

NOTE: The Plymouth Canton-vs.-Plymouth Salem dual meet, scheduled for last Thursday, was canceled due to the weather. It has not yet been rescheduled.

Rocks struggle, but still keep improving

■ WRESTLING

With nearly half the team missing, Plymouth Salem wrestling coach Ron Krueger didn't expect all that much Saturday at the Romulus Invitational.

What he got were some pretty solid performances. "All seven (of the Salem wrestlers at the invitational) won at least one match," said Krueger.

Bay City Western finished first with 210 points, followed by Pontiac Central with 171½. Rounding out the top six in the 16-team tournament were East Detroit (121), Belleville (113½), Pontiac Northern (108) and Flint Northern (95). Salem finished ninth with 68 points.

John Svech, a senior, was Salem's best finisher. Wrestling up a weight class at 171, Svech won his first three matches — the last two on pins — to reach the final. There he was pinned by Jeremy Amrhein of Belleville in 1:38. Svech was 3-1 for the tournament.

Several Rocks were missing because of injury, and younger team members were sent to the Temperance-Bedford freshman and junior varsity tournament to gain experience.

"We've still got a whole lot of growing up to do, and not a lot of time to do it," said Krueger. "I think some of our objectives may not be reached until next year."

Scott Hughes, wrestling at 119, had the best record for the day among the Rocks. Hughes went 4-1; he won his first match but lost his second before winning his next three to finish fifth.

Steve Hughes, at 152, was 3-1 and finished third, beating Anthony Adamo of East Detroit on an injury default in his last match. Sophomore Jeremy Breithaupt was also impressive, placing sixth at 145. Breithaupt also won his first match before losing his second; after winning his next two, he was pinned while leading the match to decide fifth by East Detroit's Mark Perrone.

Aaron Lapinski (130), also moving up a weight, won his first match but lost his second. After pinning his third foe, he lost his fourth match to finish 2-2 for the day.

David Craig (140) and Jeff Richard (160) each won a match and lost two for Salem.

Salem maintains focus, which keeps wins coming

■ VOLLEYBALL

Maybe that loss 12 days ago in the final of the Plymouth Festival Tournament wasn't without merit for Plymouth Salem's volleyball team.

The Rocks have certainly been a different team since. Through Monday, they hadn't lost — not even a game. Going into Wednesday's match with Farmington Harrison, that made it a string of 18-straight games.

On Monday, Salem collected its second-consecutive Western Lakes Activities Association triumph with a 15-3, 15-6, 15-4 win at North Farmington.

"I think they carried things over from the weekend," said co-coach Allie Suffety. It seemed so; last weekend, Salem won its 12-team Plymouth Varsity Invitational without losing a single game in three best-of-three matches and three pool-play two-game sets.

There certainly was no lack of concentration against North. The Rocks had just one serving error as a team in the match.

Sophomore Shellye Sills led Salem with 10 kills and two blocks. Junior Karen Gundry had seven kills and eight digs; senior Jamey Viau had six kills, 13 digs and three service aces; junior Paula Dombrowski had five kills; junior Erin Koch had 17 assists to kills and seven digs; and Kim Sheldon, a sophomore, and Wendy Graves, a junior, had 12 and 11 digs respectively.

"The scores don't indicate how well our team played," said North coach Sandy Lubienicki, whose team slipped to 3-10-5 overall, 1-3 in the WLAA. "Salem's just an outstanding team."

Ali Lord led North with six kills; she and Becky Thursam each had eight digs.

At Saturday's invitational, Salem topped Livonia Franklin 15-8, 15-5 in the final. But the biggest match for the Rocks may have come in the semis, when they took on Farmington Harrison — the team most felt would beat Salem for the WLAA title.

The Hawks may yet, but they didn't look up to the challenge Saturday. Sophomore Jeremy Breithaupt was also impressive, placing sixth at 145. Breithaupt also won his first match before losing his second; after winning his next two, he was pinned while leading the match to decide fifth by East Detroit's Mark Perrone.

Aaron Lapinski (130), also moving up a weight, won his first match but lost his second. After pinning his third foe, he lost his fourth match to finish 2-2 for the day.

David Craig (140) and Jeff Richard (160) each won a match and lost two for Salem.

Plymouth Canton

Canton's youth was displayed on Monday's trip to Farmington, which ended in a three-straight Falcon sweep, 15-7, 15-8, 15-7. The defeat dropped the Chiefs to 1-2 in WLAA dual matches.

"Our kids just didn't play well at all," said Canton coach Melinda Cain. "Our serve reception hurt us — it kind of fell apart on us. We couldn't return their serves.

"And our youth hurt us again. Mentally, I don't think we showed up."

There were few bright spots. Janet Zabivnik led the Chiefs with eight kills; Ndo Okumabua had seven. And Amy Price came off the bench for the second and third games and "did real well for us. Her passing's come along tremendously in the past two weeks."

Concerts offer notable introduction to classics

This is a good weekend to introduce your children to the classics. Area symphonies — Livonia, Plymouth and Detroit — are hosting concerts with children in mind. The Farmington Area Philharmonic, also known as Group du Jour, and Rochester Symphony Orchestra are busy rehearsing for their family-oriented concerts on Feb. 6.

The Livonia Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of assistant conductor Karl Karoub begins its chamber concert series 8 p.m. Friday, Jan. 28, and the children's concert series 2 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 29, at the Livonia Civic Center Library Auditorium, 32777 Five Mile Road, east of Farmington Road. Tickets are $12 adults, seniors 62 and older, $8; students 12 and older, $6; and children under 12, $3. Call 421-1111 or 464-2741.

"At the children's concert we introduce the different instruments, and explain how to listen to music," said Karoub. "We show children how to appreciate all kinds of music to broaden their horizons."

Young Artist Competition winners will be featured in concerts to be presented by the Plymouth and Rochester symphonies.

Violinist Christian Hebel, 18 of Plymouth, the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra's second-place Youth Artist Competition winner, will perform at two concerts — 8 p.m. Friday, Jan. 28 at Novi Civic Center, 45175 10 Mile Road, west of Novi Road, and 8 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 29, at First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth, 701 W. Church Street. Tickets are $6 adults, $5 seniors, and $3 students in K-12. Call 451-2112.

The Detroit Symphony will present a live production of the award-winning HBO special and Classic Kid's recording "Beethoven Lives Upstairs" 11:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 29 at Orchestra Hall in Detroit. The production is a combination of music, history and dramatic storytelling using two actors whose anecdotes and observations are based on true incidents from Beethoven's life. More than 25 examples of Beethoven's music will be featured. Tickets range from $7 to $21. Call 833-3700 or Ticketmaster, 645-6666. The next concert in the series "Cinderella" will be on April 30.

The Rochester Symphony Orchestra family concert 2 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 6 at Varner Hall on the campus of Oakland University in Rochester, has

Classic comedy has timeless appeal

■ "Our American Cousin" is unforgettable because of its hilarious script, and the fatal shooting that occurred at a performance in 1865.

British and American customs clash with comic results in "Our American Cousin," the 19th century classic that opens Friday, Jan. 28, at Henry Ford Museum Theatre in Dearborn.

A favorite among theatrical audiences for more than a century, this 1858 comedy by Tom Taylor was the first professional play performed at Henry Ford Museum Theatre in 1964. Its last revival by the Greenfield Village Theatre Company was in 1983.

The cast of the current production includes Dan C. Bar of Plymouth and Stephanie Nicols of Troy. Elaine Kaiser of Livonia is assistant producer, and costumer is Bernadine Vida of Redford Township.

In "Our American Cousin," the title "cousin" is Asa Trenchard, an American backwoodsman whose character and colorful speech were inspired by Davy Crockett. As heir to a family fortune, Asa travels to England to meet his very proper but eccentric relatives.

ON STAGE

"Our American Cousin"

★Theater: Henry Ford Museum Theatre, inside Henry Ford Museum at Oakwood Boulevard and Village Road in Dearborn, west of the Southfield Freeway, south of Michigan Ave.

★Curtain time: 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays, Jan. 28 through March 5; 4:30 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 13.

★Tickets: $9 for theater only, $27 for dinner/theater. Call (313) 271-1620 ask for the Reservation Center.

PREVIEW

The British Trenchards welcome their rustic relation with mixed emotions. They are overwhelmed by his manners, clothes and way with words, but eager to win his good will because of the inheritance.

Among the historic fans of Asa Trenchard was President Abraham Lincoln, who was watching the play at Ford's Theatre on April 14, 1865, when he was shot by John Wilkes Booth.

But long before its link with the assassination, "Our American Cousin" was significant for being the first major American play produced by a woman — actress and theatrical manager Laura Keene. She also starred in the production.

The Ford's Theatre production, which starred Keene, had opened on April 3. Lincoln and his wife had received invitations to attend two different plays that evening, but decided to accept theater owner John Ford's offer to view the actress' closing show.

Stagehands created a special box for the presidential party. The president had not arrived at the theater at curtain time, but the show proceeded. When Lincoln's party arrived at 8:30 p.m., the action on stage paused while the audience greeted the president and the orchestra played "Hail to the Chief."

The play was nearly finished when Booth, a well-known actor, slipped into the presidential box and fired the fatal shot. The next offering at Henry Ford Museum Theatre will be "Purlie Victorious," a 1961 comedy by Ossie Davis. Performances are March 25 to April 30.

Families get into the act for 'Music Man'

Living in harmony is not just an act for two local families who have provided six of the cast members in Village Players of Birmingham's production of "The Music Man," which opens Jan. 28.

Patrick Lynch, who plays Prof. Harold Hill, is joined by his daughter Caitlin, 13, who plays Pick-a-Little Lady, and his son, Patrick Jr., 10, who plays a Boy's Band member.

Celia Keenan-Bolger, 16, is playing Zaneeta, while her sister Maggie, 10, plays Amaryllis, and brother, Andrew, 8, plays Wintrop.

A veteran Village Player, Patrick Lynch is combining two of his great loves — family and music for a great personal experience.

"I was so thrilled when Village Players decided to do this show," he said. "I've had this role before, but neither of the children where the right age to play a part. This is something I'll treasure probably more than the children will."

Celia Keenan-Bolger is "the leader" for her younger sister and brother. "It's fun acting together," Andrew said. "We get along well, but sometimes we argue about who gets the parts."

The three Keenan-Bolgers have performed together before in "Peter Pan," "The Wizard of Oz" and "Sunny Side Up." They are members of the Screen Actors Guild as a result of acting in commercials.

Another cast member, Diedrich Stelljes, 13, performed on Broadway for eight months in "The Secret Garden," as Collin. "It was a tough show to do because there were eight shows per week, and I had to go to school, too," Diedrich recalled. He is also a member of the Screen Actors Guild and is performing through the courtesy of the Actor's Equity Association.

"The children in this show have been remarkably well behaved," Patrick Lynch said. "They know their lines and their music, and they've known for a long time. These are very bright kids. I'm sure they do very well in school."

ON STAGE

"The Music Man"

★Theater: The Village Players of Birmingham, 752 Chestnut Street, corner of Hunter Boulevard, south of Maple.

★Curtain time: 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays, Jan. 28-29, shows through Feb. 12, 2 p.m. matinee, Sundays, Jan. 30 and Feb. 6.

★Tickets: Adults, $12, students, $10. Tickets available at the door, but reservations are recommended. Call 644-2075 anytime.

Area restaurants present special dinners

By Keely Wygonik

By the time February rolls around, most of us are sick of winter. It's nice to escape to Florida or the Caribbean, but if time and finances don't allow it, you can get away, at least for the evening, by attending a special dinner, or picking one up. Here are some suggestions.

■ Morton's of Chicago, The Steakhouse, in Southfield's Oakland Towne Square Building, just off Northwestern Highway between Civic Center and Lahser, presents an evening of wine and a five course dinner featuring Jeffrey Friedman of Caymus Winery in California's Napa Valley, 7 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 3. The cost is $70 per person (all inclusive). Seating is limited, call (810) 354-6006 by Jan. 28, a deposit is required.

■ Hunan Palace, 38259 W. 10 Mile, Farmington, is celebrating Chinese New Year, 5 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 6; 6 p.m. Monday, Feb. 7 through Thursday, Feb. 10. Call 473-3939 for information, reservations.

■ Oceania Inn of Rochester Hills, 68 N. Adams Road, is celebrating the Music series features Classical Bells

Nardin Park United Methodist Church in Farmington Hills is featuring the acclaimed Classical Bells at its Music Series 3 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 6.

There is no admission charge nor offering. A reception will follow the program in the church's Fellowship Hall. Nardin Park is at 29887 W. 11 Mile, just west of Middlebelt.

Composed of handbell directors and accomplished ringers from the Detroit metropolitan area, Classical Bells has entertained since 1983.

Ringing more than 65 English handbells, the equivalent of a five-and-a-half octave keyboard, plus four octaves of choir chimes, this self-directed ensemble presents all types of music.

Classical Bells has been featured in the Detroit Aglow program at the Fox Theater, "Brunch with the Classics" at the Somerset Collection in Troy and appeared as part of the Lyric Chamber Ensemble's annual Christmas concert.

The group's recordings have been heard over WQRS, and the choir recently appeared in the series Global Connection, broadcast by WTVS-TV, channel 56.

Youth symphony presents concert

The sounds of the Metropolitan Youth Symphony will fill historic Orchestra Hall in Detroit with both classical and contemporary sounds 4:30 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 13. Divided into three levels of accomplishment, MYS numbers nearly 300 students, grades 5-12, representing 45 metropolitan Detroit communities.

Concert tickets will be available at the Orchestra Hall Box Office, 3711 Woodward, Detroit. Tickets are $16 for box seats and dress circle, $11 and $9 for Main Floor and Balcony.

At the podium of the award-winning MYS Symphony Orchestra will be Alan McNair, concertmaster and assistant conductor of the Rochester Symphony Orchestra and orchestra director of the Troy High School Orchestra.

McNair will lead the symphony orchestra in a performance of Rimsky-Korsakov's well-known and loved "Scheherazade Suite."

Conducting the MYS Concert Orchestra will be Richard Piippo. An avid promoter and performer of chamber music, Piippo also serves as artistic director and conductor of the Dearborn Summer Music Festival and adjunct cellist with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

In a departure from the usual, the concert orchestra will perform a contemporary composition by John Downey, composer-in-residence at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

Entitled "Declamations," the work was first performed in 1985 in New York. Not only will the students play the work, they will have the rare opportunity of working with the composer in two rehearsals.

Downey will also attend the Feb. 13 concert.

Arrangements have been made for another major Rimsky-Korsakov work: The "Russian Easter Overture" will be performed by the MYS String Orchestra, conducted by Jackqueline Coleman.

Coleman is department head and director of the middle school music program at Detroit Country Day School.

Theater searching for young talent

Marquis Theatre will present a "Talent Search" 1-8 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 12, at the theater, 135 E. Main, Northville.

They are looking for children ages 6 to 16 who can act, sing and dance. To make a reservation, and for more information, call (313) 349-8110 to request an application for entry — no later than noon Feb. 10.

Each participant will be asked to make a three-minute presentation. An accompanist will be provided.

"Talent Search" will be videotaped, and the information will be shared with other professional theaters and talent agencies.

The event is open to the public. Tickets are $4 per person.

GOING TO THE MOVIES

Tale of love weaves mystery, intrigue, revenge

As a young brash agent fresh out of law school in 1952, FBI agent Kevin Walker (Matt Dillon) along with his partner Ron Pirelli (Bruno Kirby), is assigned to Chinatown to ferret out suspected subversives during the height of America's communist witchhut. At Broadway Nathan's, a local hangout, Walker meets Cynthia (Teri Polo), a tall striking blond, who poses a simple question to the young agent — does he believe in law or justice? This question resonates throughout the rest of his life in "Golden Gate," opening Friday at metro Detroit movie theaters.

The agents ensnare a local laundryman Chen Jung Song (Tzi Ma), who has organized an innocent campaign to forward money to the community's impoverished families in "Red" China. Walker frames Song, who is prosecuted and sentenced to 10 years in prison.

Upon his release from prison, Song is once again investigated, now with reservation, by Agent Walker, which forces the alredy broken man over the edge. Song invokes a curse on Walker — that he "become a Chinaman," and inherit all the pain and suffering his naive actions have inflicted.

Song's daughter Marilyn (Joan Chen), a child during her father's ordeal, now attends a local law school. She has no true memory of her father or the real circumstances that led to his misfortune.

Kevin, in an attempt to assuaage his guilt, befriends Marilyn. She has no notion of Kevin's complicity in destroying her father. Kevin introduces himself as a public defender who knew her father during his period of incarceration. In time, they fall in love. Kevin's moment of bliss ends abruptly when Marilyn discovers his true identity.

PREVIEW

Promising revenge, she invokes the name of the goddess Fa Mu Lan, the Woman Warrior, "the one who takes her father's place in battle." Marilyn's avowed desire for revenge and Kevin's quest for redemption climax poignantly against the backdrop of the Bay Area's civil disobedience of 1968.

The Samuel Goldwyn Company presents "Golden Gate" in association with American Playhouse Theatrical Films. It is directed by John Madden from an original screenplay by David Henry Hwang. The film is produced by Michael Brandman.

David Henry Hwang came upon the inspiration for "Golden Gate" in a New York City bar in conversation with a friend from New York's Chinese community. The friend recounted the story of the false prosecution of Chinese-Americans in the early 1950s for sending money home to their impoverished families.

Hwang's penchant for taking historical footnotes and turning them into multi-layered dramas is not limited to "Golden Gate" and his smash Broadway hit "M. Butterfly." His first award-winning play, produced exclusively for the New York stage, "The Dance and the Railroad," is, according to Hwang, "a story about people who are shut out of the mainstream cultures and how they manage to create their own rites."

"America," Hwang continues, "at least in principal, subscribes to the notion that whoever takes residence on these shores may call it home. This is a relatively new concept in the history of ideas, and I think people of color grapple with it in a particularly vital fashion. One of the particular burdens of my minority is that we are never completely accepted as Americans."

Lolita Davidovich bright light in 'Intersection'

AP — Mark Rydell's last movie, "For the Boys," was a critical bomb that never really grabbed a significant audience. With "Intersection," now playing at metro Detroit movie theaters, it looks like Rydell — who distinguished himself with such movies as "On Golden Pond," "The River" and "The Rose" — is on a downward spiral.

Rydell can't take all the blame for "Intersection." The movie has an excellent concept — a successful but emotionally crippled man who's unable to make a commitment — but gets bogged down by a trite screenplay and inferior performances by Sharon Stone and Richard Gere.

Gere certainly was miscast as Vincent Eastman, an award-winning architect married to his business partner, Sally (Stone). The carefree, sexy spark that leaves some marriages early on has fizzled. Sally has become a workaholic whose ambitions and enthusiasm are more tied to the firm than to her marriage. Bored and confused, Vincent leaves Sally and their daughter, Meghan (Jenny Morrison), for a vivacious and sexy magazine writer Olivia (Lolita Davidovich).

But Vincent is incapable of making a commitment to Olivia. Part of him is still attached to Sally. Almost as a symbol of his indecision, he leaves his car parked at his wife's home and must go there in order to drive. It also doesn't help that Sally is in the office with him. And when it comes to company social events, he excludes Olivia.

REVIEW

Caught in the middle of course is the 13-year-old Meghan, who nevertheless manages to balance Daddy's girlfriend and Mommy's natural hostilities.

It all comes to a head for Vincent when Olivia, heady on too much wine, crashes the opening of a new museum that the firm has designed. Sally is there. The two women meet, and Vincent erupts in fury at Olivia. After dropping her off in the rain, he drives around for the rest of the night, winding up sleeping in his car outside a diner.

He's written Olivia a goodbye letter and is about to mail it when he meets a little girl who has the same flashing red hair as Olivia. He tucks the letter into his jacket (it would have been prudent to simply rip it up and throw it away) and leave the message on Olivia's answering machine to meet him at a romantic country hotel. He gushes excitedly that he loves her and wants to marry her.

Exhilarated by his decision and in a rush to meet Olivia, Vincent speeds along the mountainous two-lane road and breaks too late when he sees a stalled van. He does a 360 just as a tractor-trailer roars into view in the other lane.

This is how the movie opens — with the accident. Even if you fall asleep during this movie, which is pretty easy to do, you still know how it's going to end.

And little things, such as the letter and the telephone message, are indeed telescoped.

If "Intersection" has one bright hope, it's Davidovich. She's a joy and a natural; and when she's on screen, you realize just how thin the acting abilities of Stone and Gere really are.

Gere comes across more so as a cad than a tortured man at a crossroads in his life. He offers little emotional confusion; the inner frustration is complicated but eludes Gere in his one-note performance.

Martin Landau doesn't have much to do, but manages to put in an able supporting performance as Neal, a close family friend and partner in the architectural firm. Morrison is fine as the daughter.

But Stone fans are in for a disappointment: She doesn't take off her clothes. There are no hot moments here. Instead, Stone is required to — emote.

The screenplay was written by David Rayfiel and Marshall Brickman. Bud Yorkin produced with Rydell, Frederic Golchan was executive producer. And Ray Hartwick co-producer.

The Paramount Pictures release is rated R (Restricted. Under 17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian) for adult situations and partial nudity.

Musician regains sight in thriller

Emma Brody (Madeleine Stowe) was blinded as a child.

Now, a corneal transplant has returned the gift of sight to the musician, and once again, Emma can see. She can finally see her best friend Candice (Laurie Metcalf). She can see her fellow band members. She can see all the beautiful sights that her hometown of Chicago has to offer.

And she can see the face of the man who murdered her neighbor in "Blink," a mystery-thriller now playing at metro Detroit movie theaters.

Due to an unusual effect of her surgery, Emma suffers from a disorder known as "retroactive vision." As a result, when Emma looks at something, sometimes her mind doesn't register those images until a day later.

Did Emma really see the face of a killer, or was this a hallucination?

Detective John Hallstrom (Aidan Quinn) thinks she did see the killer. Despite the odd circumstances of Emma's condition, Hallstrom senses the woman is his best chance to crack this case. His partner, Thomas Ridgely (James Remar), is a bit more skeptical, however, and feels that perhaps Hallstrom may be blinded by his desire to catch the murderer, and by the beauty of his only witness.

As the investigation progresses, Emma and Hallstrom grow more and more convinced that she has seen the killer. What becomes frightenly apparent is that the killer has also seen her, and if they don't catch him soon, Emma may be his next victim.

Co-starring with Stowe and Quinn are James Remar, Peter Friedman, Bruce A. Young and Laurie Metcalf. The film was produced by David Blocker and directed by Michael Apted from an original screenplay by Dana Stevens.

JOYCE RUDOLPH-NEW LINE CINEMA

PREVIEW

For the character's musical prowess, Stowe came to the production with the benefit of having studied classical piano as an adolescent. To learn the fiddle for her place as a fictional member of the real-life group The Drovers, the actress first met with Los Angeles violin instructor Cait Reid, who is versed in Celtic violin. On location in Chicago, Stow got additional tips from The Drover's founder Sean Cleland.

"Madeleine is much better than she gives herself credit for," said Cleland of Stowe's eight weeks of fiddle training. "In a few group rehearsals, she actually played the pieces. She mastered all the different things that go into playing the violin — the bowing, the fingering, the rhythm, trying to make it look natural while at the same time trying to make it look like she's blind."

Reader applauds 'Philadelphia'

Debra Greka of Redford Township highly recommends "Philadelphia," a drama about a rising young lawyer (Tom Hanks) who, fired when he develops AIDS, hires a personal injury attorney (Denzel Washington) to help him win redress. "It's a wonderful film, very sensitive" said Greka. "I can see some Oscar nominations for Denzel Washington and Tom Hanks."

Great sums: Tots can do mathematics

Toddlers explore their environment with such vitality - touching, smelling and even tasting. Toddlers are probably the best "taste testers" you can find, if you're fortunate enough to have a playful toddler at home or in day care.

Since toddlers are hands-on exploring type of folks, parents and caregivers can respond to their hands-on nature by offering activities which can help foster mathematical thinking.

Mathematical concepts should and can be introduced to toddlers - before numbers. Matching, sorting, patterning, classifying and estimating are all concepts parents and caregivers can introduce age-appropriately - interestingly enough to keep busy toddlers on their toes.

Adults can offer activities to toddlers informally, being sensitive to toddlers' limited attention spans and need to "keep it moving." The same and different concept is a beginning to teaching toddlers mathematics. Different words to compare, contrast and show similarities between objects help toddlers focus on characteristics of objects, label and develop an awareness of their environment.

You might say, "Let's feel the soil or dirt in the plant aquarium. It feels wet, sticky. But the plants really feel smooth and dry." Or you can say, "Rhonda has a big ball with stripes; Jean has a small one with circles."

Most toddlers are not quite ready to sort objects into categories, but they sure can generalize. For example, "Let's put away the toys in the toy box. Put all the dolls in this basket." These types of activities encourage children to think in terms of groups and sets of objects.

Toddlers can understand the basic concept of "twoness." To foster this concept, point out many things in pairs - two shoes, two feet, two arms or two eyes. Then informally you can say, "I see two cups the same color . . . two plates on the table."

Begin to mention when you see two of anything at home or while walking in the neighborhood or riding in the car to grandma and grandpa's house. Tots will soon pick up the concept and start pointing to and/or telling you about things they see in twos.

There's early estimating - "Andrea, do you think your hand can fit into your mittens? Do you think daddy's hand will? Walter, do you think I can fit in the baby crib? Do you think I can fit in the big bed?" Making comparisons and simple predictions helps toddlers make deductions about size and shape.

Through these and similar activities, adults can help toddlers build on nature and master their understanding of basic mathematical concepts.

Society holds 99-cent sale

It takes the sale of approximately 200 coats to send a child to summer camp or the sale of 10 coats to feed a family of four for a day. It may not be a full-course meal or a London Fog coat, but it still provides warmth and hope to meet the challenges of the coming day.

During the past year, people have donated more than 28,000 winter coats to the Society of St. Vincent de Paul. Those coats will go on sale Feb. 1-4 at 16 outlets and at the main warehouse on Gratiot in Detroit.

Proceeds from the sale go to fund St. Vincent de Paul's summer camps on Lake Huron, the organization's Food Depot and employment placement program.

The sale is the first of five 99-cent sales the nonprofit agency has scheduled for 1994. Sweat shirts and sweaters will be sold two for 99 cents Feb. 8-12, shirts and blouses two for 99 cents Feb. 15-19 and pants and slacks two for 99 cents Feb. 22-26. Bicycles also will be sold, starting at 99 cents, March 1-5.

There will also be three specialty sales. Its fur, leather and overcoat sale will be Feb. 5 at its main warehouse, 2950 Gratiot, and at 15725 Grand River, both in Detroit, 1337 24th, Port Huron, and 28417 Telegraph, Flat Rock. Golf

Gladiators talk fitness with fans

To fans they're known as Tower and Lazer, "American Gladiators" who use their strength to slow down competitors on the popular TV show. But in their spare time, they're teaching kids about the importance of physical fitness.

BY SUE BUCK
STAFF WRITER

Some wanted to be just like them. Others wanted fitness information. Whatever their reasons, 12 kids got a treat recently - lunch with two American Gladiators, Jim Starr and Steve Henneberry.

The youngsters were the winners of a contest, sponsored by Livonia Mall, in which they were invited to write in with their reasons why they wanted to dine with the duo, known on the internationally syndicated television show as Lazer (Starr) and Tower (Henneberry). Members of the Livonia Mall Merchants Association selected the winners.

The chance to lunch with the two Gladiators was a thrill for Jeremy Conenwett, who with brother Dale, was among the lucky winners. The Redford resident wrote that he wanted to meet Lazer "because he is good at sports and so am I."

Matthew Norred, who lives in Livonia, wanted to use the get-together to find out "how much weight they work out with." He had a good reason for asking; he's working on his Cub Scout fitness badge.

Those of the female persuasion had different reasons for wanting to meet the Gladiators. Winner Sarah Davis of Livonia wanted "to learn more about how to keep healthy," while Nicole McGahan, also of Livonia, was interested because she wants to "be like you guys," when she grows up.

Also joining the Gladiators for lunch were Brian, Lisa and Andrea Waldo, Garrett and Brett Mette, Brett Wanamaker and Richard Stoddart.

Role models

Starr and Henneberry were a big hit with the kids and they both admit they value their celebrity status as well as their positions as role models for kids.

During the show's hiatus, the two men devote a lot of their spare time to teaching children and adolescents the importance of physical fitness. They have developed a program, "Ultimate Challenge," that offers a learning experience and physical activity for children.

Close friends, they take pride in their interaction with fans who range in age from five to 65 - "We don't do bars or nightclubs," Starr said.

The Gladiators also have "four affirmations" they stress to their fans: be a leader not a follower, just say no (to drugs); speak up and speak out (against sexual abuse), and respect yourself.

"American Gladiators" pits contestants against each other and a troupe of body-building men and women whose aim is to slow them down during a variety of timed physical challenges. In its fifth year, it's seen in more than 50 countries.

"We've been in the Detroit area two years," Henneberry said. Named Mr. America in 1989, Henneberry earned his nickname through his body-building career.

"Muscle magazines called me the 'Tower of Power,'" said Henneberry, who weighs 275 pounds and stands 6 feet, 4 inches tall.

With Arnold Schwarzenegger as his inspiration, the Wisconsin native set out in 1979 to become body building's Mr. America in 10 years' time. On the way there, he won Junior Mr. Milwaukee, Mr. Wisconsin, Mr. Mid-Eastern America and in 1989, Mr. America.

He also embarked on an acting career and landed several national and international commercials and appearances on popular TV shows before being tapped as a Gladiator in 1991.

Fast and strong

Starr's fans often misspelled his nickname so he ended up adopting the spelling which he considers more forceful, anyway.

"A lazer is fast, strong and extremely hard to beat, just like me," said Starr, who weighs 225 pounds and is 6 feet, 1 inch tall.

An all-American football player from Montana State University, his professional career included playing for NFL's Kansas City Chiefs and Los Angeles Rams and with the Canadian Football League's Toronto Argonauts.

His football career was cut short by a severe back injury and after a stint doing commercials, he was selected in 1989 to be a member of the "American Gladiators."

The dynamic duo also is looking forward to starting a line of athletic line and a talk show for kids as well as publishing a drug awareness book for children ages 5-7 to cover life situations they will need to overcome.

Think you're good at American history? Here's a little test:

Which president's young son, upset with the lack of snow in the nation's capital, used calling cards he found in the attic of the White House as snow on the stairs so he could try out his new sled?

President Harry S. Truman's ancestors were among those who helped fire bricks for a church reconstructed on the site of the grave and cabin of the grandfather of this president.

Which president got cold feet on his wedding day, leaving his bride-to-be, the guests and minister waiting at the church, only to be reconciled with his true love and married a year later?

You'll find the answer - it's the same for all three questions - in books, but not quite history books . . . a biography, yes; a history book, nah. They're bits of the family history Dr. Weldon Petz has researched and collected about our 16th president, Abraham Lincoln.

Petz highlighted the third installment of the 1993-94 Livonia Town Hall series that attracted a smaller than usual crowd because of the bone-chilling winter weather. A fourth-generation Detroiter, Petz has been interested in Lincoln since he was a child, crediting a book his parents gave him and his great Uncle Will. His personal Lincoln collection includes 5,000 books and more than 40,000 artifacts, including his great uncle's horn.

"Uncle Will was with the Fifth New York Battery Band; it was one of four that played for the Gettysburg address," Petz explained. "He always told me he stood right in front of Lincoln and the bell of his horn reflected his face. I've researched it and found out it was true."

Lincoln's life

Petz chose the Town Hall gathering to take a look at the Lincoln family tree and brought along a few of his artifacts as well as a wealth of information about a man once believed to have risen above poverty to become president of the United States.

"There was very little information on his background when he died, so the writers had to invent a background," Petz said. "It wasn't until the 1930s when the WPA (Work Projects Administration) was going through records that his real life came out."

For 1½ hours, Petz entertained his audience with tidbits about Lincoln and his ancestors, but it was his artifacts that attracted a lot of attention.

■ 20TH ANNIVERSARY
Bethel Baptist Temple of Livonia will celebrate its 20th anniversary with a special service at 11 a.m. Sunday, Feb. 6. Started on Jan. 23, 1964, in the Detroit home of the Rev. H.L. Petty, the church rented space from another church in Detroit and from a school in Redford before moving to its current site at 29475 W. Six Mile, Livonia, in September 1974.

The church bought from a catering company. Major improvements have been made to the building since then, including an addition in 1989 that provided much-needed space and a new facade. Petty has remained its pastor throughout its 20-year history.

Bethel Baptist has an active congregation and through the years has provided free transportation and youth club called AWANA and sponsored camps and picnics. The church also has supported worldwide mission efforts, giving more than $750,000.

The celebration will feature The Templetons, a quartet from Temple Baptist Church in Redford. For more information, call 525-3664.

■ MARRIAGE ENCOUNTER
Marriage Encounter United Methodist will be held in the Detroit area Feb. 11-13. The encounter offers couples an opportunity to look deeply into their own relationship. It is open to couples regardless of faith, race, age, education or financial status. Is it now 'The 10 Suggestions'?

MORAL PERSPECTIVES

RABBI IRWIN GRONER

With the announcement that the Reader's Digest has condensed the Bible to 60 percent of its original length, one wit said that he was eager to see which four commandments we don't have to worry about anymore.

In our time, we should worry about all of the Ten Commandments more than ever before. The contemporary moral attitude does not strongly support the observance of these time-hallowed precepts.

Up until modern times, there was little controversy about the validity of the Divine commands. True, there were those who rejected God's dictates, but they were prepared to accept the consequences. Because the Almighty was regarded as the Absolute Authority, He had the right to command that we abide by His moral code.

Then the mood of modern man changed this traditional conception. Sophisticated and educated, people questioned whether God or anyone, for that matter, could issue commands without our veto. They preferred to replace the Ten Commandments with 10 suggestions. Let the individual decide for himself if he wants to follow the biblical code, or any code for that matter.

These modernists brought up their children in the same atmosphere of relativism. They would not command them to do anything. They would only employ gentle persuasion at best. These elders remembered only too well that when they were told that God commanded, or when their parents imposed prescribed behavior, they resented the restrictions and promised themselves they would do nothing more than suggest without being authoritative. They would want their children to enjoy freedom and latitude in making up their own minds on moral issues. This, they believed, is how true respect is gained.

Unfortunately, the results have not been altogether encouraging. Those who grow up without clearly defined rules and respect for authority encounter great difficulty. Some become delinquent, others do not internalize standards of right and wrong. Many are confused, lacking clearly defined goals and a sense of discipline.

Meanwhile, the statistics on crime and violence continue to mount in all the countries of the free world. The streets of our major cities are no longer considered safe as night falls. Fear has become a way of life for those who live in the deteriorating sections of America's urban centers.

In recent months, I have found myself nonplussed as I listen to friends and neighbors talk animatedly about the comparative merits of various alarm systems, particularly when the speaker climaxes his conversation by ruefully telling how he was raiding his refrigerator when the police raided his house. He had forgotten to turn off a motion detector device before he came downstairs.

To live in constant dread of authority and its demand can cripple the mind and stunt the spirit. By the same token, to live without fear of external authority, to ignore the consequences of disobedience and normlessness, to establish oneself and one's desires as the sole arbiter for right and wrong can be equally destructive.

I offer a parable of our times:

It seems that in the year 2100, the world was still in a state of war, violence in the streets, increased crime and widespread social upheaval. The greatest scientists of the world met at the United Nations. They were enthralled with a new computer recently created that could answer any question submitted to it, even questions relating to complex human problems.

These scientists were summoned to request an answer from this giant computer on how to find a solution for peace, for a decrease of violence, for the elimination of corruption, stealing and murder.

After days of assembling the proper material to feed the computer, the moment had come to receive an answer which would bring stability to the world. Scientists carefully programmed the information into the computer and waited for the answer.

The vast machine began to sputter and smoke and the tape gradually emerged. All the scientists gathered around and began to read the print-out message to the assembled world leaders: "I am the Lord your God who brought you out of the Land of Egypt. . . Thou shalt not murder . . . Thou shalt not steal . . . Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor."

The book will feature pull tab selections — "Kids like apparatus things," Henneberry said.

Henneberry especially enjoys working with the Make-A-Wish Foundation, a group which strives to grant the wishes of terminally ill children.

His most touching memory is of a six-year-old North Carolina boy named Chase, who had liver cancer. His last wish was to meet an "American Gladiator."

"He died the afternoon I left," Henneberry said. The boy's mother dressed him in the T-shirt Henneberry gave him. Henneberry's photo was close by.

"There should be no quota on granting children wishes," Henneberry said.

The men will also be on board the Lazer and Tower Cruise sponsored by Carnival Cruises and the Ronald McDonald House in August.

"Without the kids and the fans, we wouldn't have a job." Henneberry said.

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

LORENE GREEN

Dear Mrs. Green,

I have recently become interested in graphology when I had to do a report on it. But it seems hard for me to analyze my own handwriting. I see your column in the Observer & Eccentric and am impressed by how much information you can give about someone with the little writing you receive. I'm 15, almost 16 years old and am right-handed.

Thanks.

Almost 16
in West Bloomfield

From my experience, I know it is indeed difficult to analyze one's own handwriting. I might also mention that I often have more handwriting to study than the amount I have space to show in the paper.

When we first learn to write in school, we write as we are taught. However, those people who have a need to express their creativity soon develop a handwriting style of their own. Today's writer is one of these people.

Rarely do I select the handwriting of 15-year-olds for this column as their handwriting often makes many changes during the teen years before it settles into a set pattern. However, this is such a sophisticated 15-year-old that I felt I would like to share the handwriting with you.

Pervasive in her handwriting are signs of very high intelligence. She is not a stranger to culture and may also be quite a gifted young woman. Some indications of this are (1) good spacing, (2) many I dots connected to the next letter, (3) elimination of beginning and ending strokes, (4) printed capital letters in cursive handwriting, and (5) fluent T bars that flow into the following letter.

Her mind is resourceful and geared toward efficiency. She can discard the extraneous and get right down to the essentials.

She visualizes herself as an independent person who needs freedom and wants to do things in her own way. She also sees herself as a doer who brings about new changes. She is objective and lacks pretense.

In interpersonal relationships, she is often quite direct. Protocol may not be her first priority. Augmenting this is a tendency to have the last word in matters of importance to her. This might be difficult for her young friends to handle.

It seems quite possible that very early in life she had a need to break away from traditional norms and do her own thing. In her quest for independence, she probably became somewhat rebellious. She can also be impulsive at times.

When things do not happen as she might like them to, she engages in a little rationalizing. She is probably talented at coming up with all sorts of reasons why things did not work out.

With all the positives in her handwriting I am a little concerned that her goals are not always commensurate with her capabilities.

Seemingly, music provides enjoyment for her. The beauties of nature may also furnish pleasure.

impressed by how much information you can give about someone with the handwriting you receive. I'm fifteen almost sixteen years old and am right-handed. Thanks for your analysis!

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and signature are all helpful and objective feedback is always welcome.

Lincoln

Prominent among them were were copies of casts made of the president's face and hands by sculptor Leonard Bolk in early 1860. The copies were one of 11 sets made of the original molds in 1929. The originals, kept at the Smithsonian, were then broken, Petz said.

As the story goes, Bolk, at his wife's behest, did sketches of Stephen Douglas for a sculpture that now stands before the State Capitol in Springfield, Ill. He also did sketches of Lincoln, but had trouble with the president's angular features and asked if he could make a plaster cast of his face.

Lincoln agreed although later said it was "most disagreeable." Petz placed pieces of quills in Lincoln's nose so he could breath and placed cotton on his eyes before encasing his face back to his ears in plaster.

"He had to sit there for one hour and when the time was up Bolk asked the president to gently remove the mold," Petz said. "It was said the president had tears in his eyes when he took it off. It had taken the hair off his right temple."

Bolk also got the president to agreed to casts of his large hands, asking that he would hold something in his one hand to show grip of the maul he used to split wood. The president used a portion of his wife Mary's broom.

"The knuckles on his right hand were swollen," Petz said. "He had received representatives of the Republican Party Committee the day before who had come to tell him he was the Republican nomination for president. The townspeople were proud of that fact and that night 800 came to his home.

"The house wasn't big enough to receive them, so they filed through the front door and out the back and Lincoln shook hands with all of them."

Gifts to cherish

Petz acquired the copies from his mentor, Thomas Starr, who had worked on the telephone exhibit at Greenfield Village. He was given the set by Henry Ford in appreciation for his work. Ford had order two copies of the masks and had them shipped separately to avoid the risk of both sets being damaged. Both arrived in Detroit intact.

Petz also showed off two pictures of Lincoln taken within a five-year time span. The first was a copy of an original ambrotype, a form of photography in which a glass negative was backed by a dark surface to make it appear to be a positive.

The photo is a one of a kind, the original ambrotype, much small than the reproduction, is locked away in a bank vault. It was given to Petz by the son of Henry Leland of the Lincoln Car Co. fame. The older Leland had known Petz's great-grandfather.

The photo was taken when the then clean-shaven Lincoln was 51, prior to his becoming president. The second photograph was one of six copies of an original print taken four days before he was assassinated. The photo shows a bearded Lincoln with a slight smile. It was the last photo taken of him.

"He looked 30 years older when there only was 5½ years difference between the photos," Petz said.

A close friend of Carl Sandberg, Petz also showed off one book of a six-volume work the author had done on Lincoln. Sandberg had given him the volume covering the war years and while he thought it odd, he discovered leafing through it that only the first 28 pages contained type. The remainder of the pages were blank.

"I couldn't figure out why he gave an unfinished book; what he gave me was the original printer's dummy for the work," Petz explained. "And I cherish it."

Another of his treasures is a biography of Lincoln that is less than an inch in size. The book is fully bound, with gilt edges. The letters are one-sixty-fourth of an inch high and each page contains 90 words. Only 25 copies of the book were made.

"The printer cast all the letters in metal, cut them apart and put them in a frame and printed the book page by page," Petz explained.

The book isn't the smallest in the world. One even smaller was done and sold for $6,000. Petz didn't get it for his collection "because my wife likes things like washers and dryers."

At 72, Petz has begun deciding what will be done with his massive collection. He told the Town Hall crowd he is working on the sale of his collection. Some of his treasures will stay with the family, but the rest "should be used by young people."

"Kids today don't even know when Lincoln or Washington's birthdays are," Petz lamented, "because now we have President's Day so stores can have sales."

Question time: Connie Beresford of Livonia poses a question about Lincoln to Dr. Weldon Petz.

A few Lincoln facts

To say Abraham Lincoln was the 16th president of the United States doesn't quite say enough about the family. Here are a few things you might not have known about "honest Abe" and his relatives.

■ Lincoln's genealogy has been traced back 10 generations to Hingham, England, a small town northeast of London. It was Samuel Lincoln who brought the name to the United States, arriving as an indentured servant in Hingham, Mass. Abraham Lincoln's side of the family was prosperous by pioneer standards with doctors, lawyers, inventors, statesmen and generals.

■ Lincoln's grandmother, named Bethsheba, was "an old pioneer woman when Washington became president" who lived almost long enough to see her grandson become the 16th president. She was 109 when she died.

■ Lincoln's stepmother, Sarah Bush Johnson, whom he called his other mother, saw him for the last time when he was on his way to Washington for his inauguration. She predicted that that would be their last visit because "he would die in office."

■ It was during his campaign for the presidency that he grew his beard because of the suggestion of 11½-year-old Grace Bedell. The youngster wrote Lincoln, suggesting he grow whiskers after seeing a campaign photograph. He wrote back, saying the people might think it a "silly affectation" if he grew a beard, but when his train to Washington stopped in her hometown, he had a chance to ask her how she liked the whiskers.

■ Lincoln was asked to speak at Gettysburg just three weeks before the the consecretion of the battlefield.

One wisely said, "God is His own interpreter." Yes, and God tells us how we should study His Word. Rule 1: COMPARE SCRIPTURE WITH SCRIPTURE. "Knowing this FIRST, that NO prophecy of the scripture is of any PRIVATE INTERPRETATION." (2 Peter 1:20). It takes WORK to HONESTLY COMPARE all the Bible says on any subject, but the result is knowing the TRUTH.

County parks officials, friends group win honors

The Wayne County Park System, headed by Hurley J. Coleman Jr., has been singled out for three special awards at the Michigan Recreation and Parks Association statewide meeting next month.

Wayne County Park System director Coleman and the Friends of Wayne County Parks are the recipients of top state awards, while recreation manager Anastasia "Tessie" Pitses has been named to the MRPA board.

Coleman will be honored with a fellowship award from the Michigan Recreation and Park Association.

The award is presented to an active member of MRPA for significant, longstanding contributions toward the betterment of parks, forestry and recreation.

It is considered the highest honor for recreation and parks professionals in Michigan.

The Friends of Wayne County Parks will receive the MRPA's community service award.

The honor is given to organizations that have made outstanding contributions to the community.

Pitses will serve on the board for the 1994-1995 term. She served as a deputy director of MRPA before joining the Wayne County Park System.

Coleman will receive his award at the group's banquet Monday, Feb. 7 in Traverse City.

"Hurley has done a remarkable job with our parks system and deserves this level of recognition," said Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara.

"When we hired him in 1988, families used to be afraid to come to places like Hines Park. This year we had more than 200,000 people use that park just to see the Festival of Lights display.

"He has brought a new professionalism to Wayne County's parks and given them back to the families," McNamara said.

Coleman was named Wayne County parks director in 1989.

The friends group will be honored at a celebrity luncheon on Tuesday, Feb. 8.

Accepting the award on behalf of the organization will be the group's executive director, Kathleen Lewand.

Winner: Wayne County Parks director Hurley J. Coleman Jr. won a fellowship award from the Michigan Recreation and Park Association.

SC announces CLEP class

A Schoolcraft College workshop on the College-Level Examination Program will be held 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 5. Fee is $55.

The CLEP is a series of exams designed to test knowledge in a variety of subjects. It can be used to get college credits for courses not taken. The next CLEP will be administered Saturday, Feb. 12.

Madonna University offers the CLEP exams on the Thursday before the third Saturday of every month. Fee is $40 for Madonna students, $47 for others. For more information, call 591-5174.

Nursing data available at SC

Schoolcraft College hosts "Nursing Job Opportunities Day" from noon to 3 p.m. Friday, Feb. 4, in the Physical Education Building.

Representatives from more than 30 hospitals and health care organizations will be present. For additional data, call 462-4400, Ext. 5150.

Scholarship offered

A $600 scholarship is being awarded by the University of Michigan Northville Alumni Club to a Schoolcraft College student who is transferring to U-M.

Applicants must have a minimum grade point average of 3.0. Applications are available at Schoolcraft's counseling office. Deadline is April 1.

ST. MARY HOSPITAL

For many women control during childbirth is very important. Of course, some things are out of your control, but many of the options surrounding childbirth don't have to be. At St. Mary Hospital we encourage you to make choices. To ask questions. To learn. To be in control.

More real choices

To control your position during labor. You're in charge of the electronic controls on our state-of-the-art birthing beds. So you can select the position that's most comfortable for you. Or, you can sit in your rocker and admire the view from your birthing room window.

To control when family and friends are with you. During and after the birth. On your schedule, not ours.

To control when your baby is with you. Twenty-four hours a day is fine. Less often if you wish. We bring services to you, so your baby only goes to the nursery when you decide.

To control what you need to learn. Our nurses can teach you everything from giving your baby a bath to understanding your baby's special ways of communicating. We'll ask what's tops on your list.

It's your baby

At St. Mary Hospital, we understand that it's your baby. So if control is important to you, give us a call. We're here to help you.

IN THE PROBATE COURT FOR THE COUNTY OF WAYNE

JOHN M. CHASE, JR., as Personal Representative of the Estate of ELVIS SMITH ALFORD, a/k/a E. S. ALFORD, and ELVIS S. ALFORD, Deceased,
Plaintiff. File No. 88-819-751-SE
-vs-
EVA ROUSE, GLYNDOLYN L. PIKE, ROBERT L. ELDRIDGE and ALICE M. WINKFIELD, Defendants.

ORDER TO ANSWER

At a session of said Court held in the City-County Building in the City of Detroit, Wayne County, Michigan on December 22, 1993
PRESENT: Honorable David J. Szymanski
Probate Judge

On or about the 31st day of May, 1991, an action was filed by John M. Chase, Jr. as Personal Representative of the Estate of Elvis Smith Alford a k a E. S. Alford and Elvis S. Alford, Deceased, Plaintiff, against Eva Rouse, Gwendolyn L. Pike, Robert L. Eldridge and Alice M. Winkfield, Defendants, in this Court to Quiet Title to Real Property located in Canton Township, Wayne County, Michigan.

Upon hearing and consideration of the verified Petition or Plaintiff for Authority to Publish Notice to Defendants Pursuant to MCR 2.106, attesting to the fact that whereabouts of the above named defendants are unknown, as well as there being potential Defendants whose identity is not known and being potential unknown claimants, unknown owners, or unknown heirs, devisees, or assignees of a named Defendant, that therefore service upon Defendants whose identity and whereabouts is unknown of the Summons a copy of the Complaint in this action cannot be otherwise effectuated, and it appearing to the Court that the potential Defendants whose identity is unknown, being unknown claimants, unknown owners, or unknown heirs, devisees, or assignees of a named Defendant and whereabouts is unknown can best be apprised of the pendency of this action by publication of this Order in a newspaper.

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the Defendants, Eva Rouse, Gwendolyn Pike, Robert L. Eldridge and Alice M. Firing of BB gun prompts expulsion of ninth-grader

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

A Stevenson Junior High School student has been expelled for bringing to school a loaded BB gun that was fired in the lunchroom, officials said. No injuries were reported.

Ninth-grader Michael Pearce was permanently kicked out of the Wayne-Westland district Monday night during a 7-0 school board vote that followed a closed-door expulsion hearing. The district serves a small part of southern Canton.

The decision stirred little discussion and reinforced an earlier warning that district officials won't tolerate weapons being brought to school. Several guns have been confiscated from students in recent years.

The BB gun was brought to school on Dec. 2. Another student who handled it also faces possible expulsion, though the school board hasn't yet decided his fate, said Greg Baracy, assistant superintendent for general administration.

In December, school officials said the boy who brought the gun to school gave it to another student who waved it around.

On Monday, Baracy confirmed that the gun was pointed at some students, but he said it didn't appear anyone was singled out for any threats.

The gun was discharged in the school lunchroom; fortunately, the BB only hit a hamburger, Baracy said.

"But the potential for bodily injury is there with any weapon," he told reporters after Monday's meeting.

The incident resulted in a due process hearing in December, after which a hearing officer recommended that Pearce be expelled from the district. The boy's parents appealed the decision, but the school board upheld it Monday.

Board member Laurel Raisanen indicated that expulsions are among the most regrettable decisions she makes, but she commended her colleagues for their "get-tough approach" toward weapons in schools.

Pupils each year are given copies of the Student Code of Conduct that outlines unacceptable behavior, Raisanen said.

"I hope that they read that thoroughly and that they understand it," she said Monday.

Before Monday's expulsion, the Stevenson student had been on suspension since the incident.

In other developments to combat weapons, officials used walk-through metal detectors for patrons entering the Jan. 18 basketball game between John Glenn High School and Wayne Memorial High School. No guns were found, Baracy said.

The district also has received some of the hand-held detectors, or wands, that are to be used to detect possible weapons in secondary schools. Officials have said the wands will be used to search students only if there's a strong suspicion of weapons.

The latest measures come as officials continue to grapple with increasing incidents of weapons in schools. An armed police officer has been placed at Wayne Memorial, and officials also are moving to beef up security at John Glenn.

Dads, daughters set to dance

Participants will celebrate Valentine's Day during the Knights of Columbus third annual Daddy-Daughter Valentine's Dance, Feb. 11-12 at St. Thomas A' Becket Family Life Center, 555 Lilley, Canton.

The dance is scheduled 7-9 p.m. both nights. The special event will feature dance music, a flower corsage, refreshments and a unique gift. If a dad has more than one date, an older brother, uncle, grandfather or neighbor is welcome so each girl has a partner.

Dads are encouraged to bring their daughters ages 3-13 to celebrate. Tickets are available after all Masses at St. Thomas A' Becket Catholic Church, or by calling Ralph DiFazio of the Knights of Columbus at 344-1956 or Marv at 397-1359. Tickets are $10 per couple or $13 for dad and two dates. Space is limited.

Seed-eating birds survive cold winters

TIMOTHY NOWICKI

Many birds that are summer residents in southeastern Michigan migrate south for the winter. Those that migrate do so because they are unable to find food or they cannot tolerate the cold temperatures.

Generally, robins, bluebirds, warblers, catbirds, loons, towhees and others are not seen here during winter. But in any large population there are going to be individuals that do not follow the norm.

During the Detroit Audubon Society Christmas Bird Count this past December, some of those nonmigratory migrants were found. Common loons, for example, typically migrate to the Atlantic Ocean and the East Coast. Salt water does not freeze thus enabling birds to capture fish.

At the time of the count, some of the bigger lakes in northwestern Oakland County were not completely frozen. In one of those areas two common loons were identified. Undoubtedly when the lakes did freeze over, these two birds flew south to the next available area of open water.

Those birds that rely on insects as their main diet are most likely to migrate — since insects are very rare in winter. But this year a carolina wren was seen. Though other wrens and insect eaters migrate, carolina wrens have readily adapted to our suet feeders. Historically, carolina wrens were more common in winter, but severe winters in the mid-1970s reduced their populations in the state. The recent record low temperature probably took its toll on this species and others.

Though most robins and bluebirds migrate, a small number are typically seen during most winters. They subsist on berries from dogwood trees and other bushes. Several bluebirds will often rest together in the hollow of a tree at night to conserve heat. Bent tail feathers are a tall "tail" sign of this behavior.

Seed eating birds have a better chance of surviving Michigan winters, but even many of them migrate. Rufous-sided towhees are a good example. Though a fairly common bird in summer, they have only been seen during 10 counts. During any one of those years only a handful (maximum 6) were seen.

It's difficult to determine why some of these birds stay around when food is scarce. One possible reason could be that if they survive until spring, they will have first choice of the prime breeding areas. But surviving is the critical part.

Tim Nowicki is a naturalist at Independence Oaks County Park in Oakland County. He lives in Livonia. You can leave him a message using a Touch-Tone phone at 953-2047, mailbox 1874.

Exchange group offers discounts for students

Area representatives of Nacel Cultural Exchanges are offering a $50 discount to teens who sign up for a European vacation before Jan. 31.

The four-week "homestays" are available in France, the Ivory Coast, Spain, Mexico and Germany during the summer. Participants will live with families in their chosen countries.

"I feel I learned more during those weeks abroad about France's language and culture than (in) all of my school classes combined," said Rebecca Vollenweider. "I had a lot of fun and am looking forward to going back."

The cost for these homestays range from $1,125 for Mexico to $2,110 for the Ivory Coast, which includes airline tickets and insurance. Spending money is the only additional expense. Meals will be provided by host families.

For additional data, call Evelyn Prince at (810) 626-6641, or the Nacel national office at (800) 622-3553.

Hit the heights with our sunflower contest

Sunflowers! They make tall exclamation points in gardens and add a ray of sunshine even on cloudy days. There are many varieties of these flowers, some with the traditional yellow rays, while others have been bred for color — banded gold, orange, burgundy, bronze and white.

Many varieties of annual sunflowers are suitable for our gardens. This year, the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers are having a contest to see who can grow the tallest sunflower plant from seed. So get out your catalogs and peruse the seed packets in the stores so that you can join in the fun.

Background

Sunflowers originated in South America and the American Southwest. The Incas used them extensively and put their likeness on their art. They were used by American Indians as food, as dye plants and in poultices. Colonists learned from the Indians and also found other uses for this plant — food for cattle, a coffee substitute and "tobacco." The oil was used in cooking, soap and candlemaking.

Today, sunflower oil is used as a cooking oil and in industry. The seeds are eaten raw or roasted by humans, and used in birdseed and poultry mixtures. Some cultures still use them as our forefathers did.

As Europeans came to America, they took the seeds back to their countries where they were cultivated with much success. As a result, many new cultivars were developed. Plants originally from America were hybridized so well in the Soviet Union that even today, these same cultivars are grown here for commercial purposes.

There was a sort of one-upmanship about growing sunflowers in Europe. Gerard reported growing one 14 feet tall. It was reported that one in the Royal Garden in Madrid reached 24 feet. The Italians boasted that one in Padua topped out at 40 feet. So our contest can be a little continuation of something that happened long ago.

Sunflowers are in the Compositae family (includes daisy, chamomile, dandelion), and the best-known genus is Helianthus (from the Greek helios for sun, and anthos for flower), which contains 150 species. Some of the annual species that can range from five to 15 feet in height are Mammoth Russian, Full Sun, Giant Grey Stripe, Sunbeam, Mammoth, Russian Giant, Inca Jewels, Evening Star and Evening Sun.

Although the rays provide the beauty to these flowers, the achenes (the parts in the center) contain the little seeds that are so loved. The entire flower is called the head.

Westland artist to teach pastel portraiture

By Linda Ann Chomin
Special Writer

Learn the finer points of rendering a portrait of your favorite sports celebrity in a series of workshops on dry media at The Art Gallery, 30116 Ford Road, Garden City.

Known for her drawings of star athletes, award-winning artist Laurel Raisanen of Westland will teach the pastel portraiture sessions for six weeks beginning Feb. 3. Cost is $8 per week. Classes are scheduled Thursdays 10 a.m. to noon, 2-4 p.m. and 6-8 p.m.

"I would encourage people to give it a try because they could create something very beautiful. It's very relaxing, drawing and painting, and you learn to take a look and see things, to study them," said Norma McQueen, gallery director.

During the pastel classes, Raisanen will cover construction of the face, how to apply pastel to the basic sketch and add detail to the eyes, nose and mouth.

"The goal is to help them develop their eye to break the face down with space relationships and to get a good likeness to learn how to draw faces," Raisanen said.

Students should bring any pastels and paper they may already have to the first class. At that time, Raisanen will talk about paper and supplies, offering them at cost to any who wish to buy them.

"We'll start with five or six basic colors to keep costs down because pastels can run $50 to $60 a set," she said.

Steve Yzerman, Cecil Fielder, Secretariat, Seattle Slew— Raisanen sees all these star athletes as challenges; that's why she spends hundreds of hours drawing them. "They're all winners because of all the years they put in practicing and striving to be the best they can be," she said.

Raisanen's love of horses shows in her portraits of the thoroughbred racing dynamos. The time she spent working as a groom at the Detroit Race Course in Livonia, coupled with intense studies, gave Raisanen the knowledge to portray the beautiful animals' muscle and bone structure. It's not getting the musculature right so much as getting down the correct proportions, she says.

Following Raisanen's pastel portraiture classes at The Art Gallery, six weeks of oil and watercolor painting will be taught by well-known area art instructor Sharon Dillenbeck of Canton Township. The wet media workshops take place March 17 to April 21. Cost is $10 a session. They run Thursdays 1-3 p.m. and 7-9 p.m.

To register for classes, call McQueen at 261-0379 or stop by The Art Gallery during business hours noon to 5 p.m. Thursday to Saturday.

■ WHOPPING SUCCESS

Contemporary folk artist Kathy Jakobsen's painting, "Ice Sculpture Festival," proved a big hit during the 12th annual Plymouth International Ice Sculpture Spectacular.

On Jan. 15, she spent four hours at Creative Framing in downtown Plymouth signing 19- by 22-inch posters made from the original oil.

"People were lined up all the way around the corner in the cold to buy a poster and have it signed by the artist," said Chris Burke, owner of Creative Framing, 853 W. Ann Arbor Trail.

"They were three deep inside the store and our store isn't that big. The day was just super. We hope to have Kathy back if she can fit us in her schedule. She's a real neat lady. We were just amazed at the turnout and so was she."

Burke has sold more than 1,200 posters at $20.

Splashes of whimsy, family and memories color Jakobsen's artistic interpretation of Plymouth's famous winter fest. The spirit of Americana inspires her. Her detailed outdoor scenes span the seasons and evoke the energy of everyday life.

The Dearborn Heights native now lives in rural Connecticut. She also writes and illustrates children's books.

Creative Framing also stocks a 12- by 14-inch poster of Jakobsen's painting of historic Nankin Mills in Westland. It sells for $12.

■ WOMEN IN SPOTLIGHT

It's time to enter the Women Artists Juried Art Show celebrating Henry Ford Community College's 20th annual Women's Recognition Week March 7-12. The art show will run March 7-30 in Eshleman Library on campus, 5101 Evergreen, Dearborn. Call 845-9629.

Two-dimensional works created and signed only by women artists will be accepted. The $15 entry fee covers the maximum three entries.

Artist Leslie Masters, an instructor for the Ann Arbor and Birmingham/Bloomfield art association, will judge the artwork.

Research has found (and is continuing) that sunflowers are allelopathic — they produce a substance that inhibits the growth of other plants, therefore helping to control weeds. If sunflower debris has been left in a bed from one season to the next, a toxicity may develop that may inhibit the growth of subsequent sunflowers.

Growing glory

Two of our readers had interesting experiences with their plants last year. Both had tall sunflowers after the second year of sowing seed.

B.F. Landuyt of Beverly Hills found three volunteer sunflowers where some had grown the year before. One had reached the lofty height of 6½ feet, another was catching up, while the third was cut down, probably by a squirrel. Landuyt had planted "just the common one" and fertilized them with water-soluble Rapid Gro (23-19-17) when he fed his other plants.

Alexandra Ravitsky of West Bloomfield also had sown seeds two years ago that produced "just regular-sized plants." Last spring, two seedlings came up and when they were about two inches tall, she transplanted them to another area of the garden, where they developed huge leaves and grew more than 10 feet tall. She planted the seedlings where she had applied topsoil but used no fertilizer.

Both Landuyt and Ravitsky have saved seeds — so the race is on!

Plans for planting

Seeds can be sown outside up to two weeks before the last frost date — generally April 25 in this area. They like a well-drained soil, rich in nutrients with neutral pH (6.0-7.5), lots of sun and extra water especially during dry spells.

We want many of our Observer & Eccentric readers to participate in this contest and ask that you keep us posted about your successes.

See the related story for contest rules.

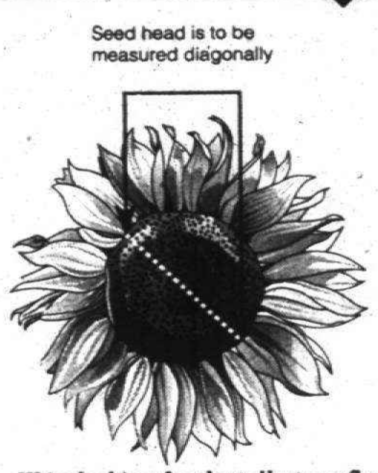
Bonsai Club sets meeting

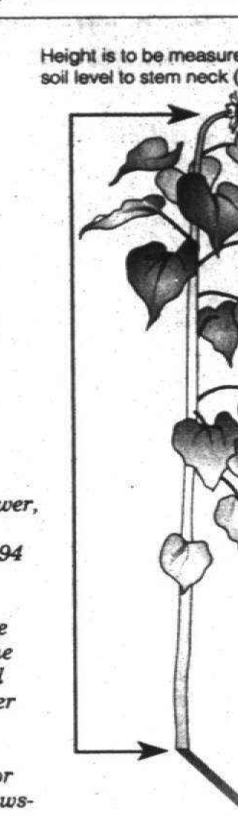
The Four Seasons Bonsai Club of Michigan presents a free public lecture on growing indoor bonsai trees by Jack Wikle, noted regional bonsai master of Tecumseh, 2-4:30 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 30, at Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, 814 N. Campbell, Royal Oak.

Light refreshments will be served. The church is one mile west of I-75. Enter on the porch facing Campbell. For more information, call Marge Clayton at 810-667-0185 or Rosalind Evanoff at 810-354-6119.

New officers elected for 1994 are Rick Mikulak of Dearborn, president; Mark Makahon of Sterling Heights, vice president; Marge Clayton of Lapeer, secretary/newsletter; Olga Mirakiou of Oakland, treasurer; and Elves Malfonte of Farmington Hills, Audrey Donner of Farmington Hills and Vance Hanna of Bloomfield Hills, directors. Appointed were Nina Michalik of West Bloomfield, library, and Rosalind Evanoff of Southfield, publicity.

High Hopes Contest





We're looking for the tallest sunflower, and for the sunflower with the largest seed head, grown in the 1994 season through July 28. The sunflower's height is to be measured from the soil level to the base of the head where the stem attaches to the flower. The head is to be measured diagonally. If you're raising a super sunflower, let us know. Call 313-953-2047, Ext. 1859, or 810-901-2569; fax 810-644-1314; or write the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham 48009. Deadline is 5 p.m. July 29.

Here's how to enter

These are the rules for the High Hopes Sunflower Contest:

1. Winner will be the person who grows the tallest sunflower in the 1994 season through July 28. First, second and third prizes will be awarded.
2. Measurement must be taken from soil level to the base of the head where the stem attaches to the flower (see drawing).
3. Participants must notify the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers by 5 p.m. Friday, July 29. Call 313-953-2047, Ext. 1859, or 810-901-2569; fax 810-644-1314; or write 805 E. Maple, Birmingham 48009 (postmarked 5 p.m. July 29). Judges will contact finalists to verify height.
4. A prize of honorable mention will be given for the sunflower with the largest seed head. Measurement must be taken diagonally (see drawing).
5. Winners will be announced Aug. 11 in the Garden Spot column.
6. Employees and families of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers are not eligible.
7. Decisions of the judges are final.
8. Entrants must live in Wayne County or Oakland County to be eligible.

Jim Taylor began collecting 35 years ago. He became a dealer 25 years go, after running out of places to store his priceless pieces of history. He and wife DeDe have sold their wares for nearly a decade in the 18-dealer antique mall, Troy Corners. Housed in the oldest (1840) church in Troy, the space provides plenty of atmosphere, right down to the original stained glass vindows.

■ 'Having things of the past around us takes us back to better times. Antiques warm, they give a personality to a home. You can express yourself through collectibles.'

Peggy Blaisdell

The Taylors, who specialize in decorative accessories and primarily early American country furniture, buy their antiques "in Maine and out East," said Jim Taylor, a teacher at Seaholm High School in Birmingham. "We buy from 'pickers,' who go knocking door to door, the farmhouses, searching for antiques that may have been in families for generations."

The Taylors' booth will include a collection of inkwells, spool cabinets used in country stores to hold thread, an 1850 step-back pine cupboard from Maine, a turn-of-the-century bride's trunk, end tables, one-drawer stands, deacon's benches, blanket chests, silver, jars and perfumes, tea sets, Oriental porcelain, including Tmari, Rose Medallion and Canton, Flow-Blue china, early American country furniture, brass, copper, small wooden boxes, lamps, candlesticks. and accessories.

"We'll have a lot of 'smalls,' a lot of 'tabletops,' " said Taylor.

There are many advantages to buying antiques, the least of which is owning a piece of history like a rocking chair that made it through the Civil War era.

"Antiques are a good investment, something you can enjoy. No two are alike," said Jim Taylor.

Besides those reasons, DeDe Taylor added, "antiques tell a story, a history."

And along with that, it's becoming trendy, she said: "It's not just people who decorate their homes in antiques buying from them. A lot of people who decorate with contemporary are buying brass and copper accents now."

Blaisdell, who with husband John owns Blaisdell Antiques, has her own set of reasons for loving antiques. "Having things of the past around us takes us back to better times. Antiques warm, they give a personality to a home. You can express yourself through collectibles."

The Blaisdells are surrounded with the past in their contemporary colonial home in Plymouth.

Blaisdell's booth will offer a collection of pitchers; an oak dresser and commode, assorte,d furniture in a mixture of woods, a turn-of-the-century child's desk, plant stands, a late 1800s bowl and pitcher set, an ironstone Tea Leaf, Staffordshire, glass, lamps, and shades in country plaids and designs. If people want to order custom shades, Blaisdell reminds them to bring their swatches.

Blaisdell finds that of late, she's been buying more and more glass and china. When asked what trends she sees in other's antique purchases right now, Blaisdell says, "The country look is still in but people are getting away from the primitives, the things that look beat up, and moving toward Victorian and pretty things."

The Taylors have done the Plymouth show at least a dozen years.

"The Plymouth show is a good show with a nice mix of antiques," said Jim Taylor. "It has a variety, with something for everyone, from young couples to advanced collectors and it's for a good cause, the Plymouth Symphony."

Don't freeze at photography in winter

FOCUS ON PHOTOGRAPHY

MONTE NAGLER

For those of you who live in cold climates or for those who live in the South but travel to snow country, winter photography can reward you with fabulous shots for your photo album.

But cold weather photography can present you with some problems that make shooting more difficult than during fair weather.

While photographers who live in a very cold climate are accustomed to such conditions, anyone used to more temperate weather can get caught unprepared.

Before setting off to take photographs in very cold conditions, you should spend some time preparing your equipment and your own clothing. Almost any camera can be operated normally to about zero degrees, but at temperatures lower than this, difficulties may start to occur.

Why do cameras function less efficiently in the cold? The most common reason is loss of battery power. Batteries not only operate the metering system, but also operate the shutter on most newer cameras. Batteries work by chemical reactions that always proceed more slowly at lower temperatures. Solution: Keep the battery in your pocket until just ready to shoot. Take your shots, then place the battery back in your pocket to keep it warm.

There are precautions you should take, too, for photographing in very cold weather. Dress warmly, in layers, and make sure your clothing allows easy access to cameras and lenses. Wear two pairs of gloves — a heavy outer pair and a thin inner pair. Remove the outer gloves when you're ready to shoot. The thin pair will keep your hands warm yet will enable you to work all camera controls.

In cold weather, you must take special care with your film. Because it can become brittle, advance it carefully and slowly as you run through the roll (turn off your power winder) and rewind it carefully, too.

Besides the physical problems of working in low temperatures, there are other considerations.

A major one is exposure. Snow-covered scenery is quite different from the average scene and the meter can be fooled. Remember that all meters are programmed to read average gray, so with snow scenes, be sure to overexpose a stop or two in order to produce a good negative.

When you come in out of the cold, pay special attention to your camera. Water vapor in a heated room condenses on cold metal and glass surfaces and your camera will become covered with moisture. No damage will be done, just be sure to wipe off your camera.

There you have it. During the next cold snap, get out and snap some prize-winning shots.

It's a snap: The temperature was below zero, but by keeping himself and his equipment warm, Monte Nagler was able to bring home this exciting shot of Michigan's Taquamenon Falls.

Short shot

Monte Nagler's exhibit, "Statements of Light," continues through Feb. 3 at the Janice Charach Epstein Museum/Gallery in the Jewish Community Center, 6600 W. Maple in West Bloomfield. This is a major exhibit for Nagler and is featuring for the first time in the Detroit area his series of nude figure studies. For gallery hours and more information, call 661-7641.

Monte Nagler is a fine art photographer based in Farmington Hills. You can leave him a message by dialing 953-2047 on a touch-tone phone, then his mailbox number, 1873. His fax number is 644-1314.

Lecture to explore design

Michigan Design Center in Troy welcomes the public to its ongoing ViewPoint lecture series Thursday, Feb. 3, to introduce the book "Showcase of Interior Design, Midwest Edition II."

This exquisitely prepared, full-color book highlights Michigan and metro area designers' backgrounds, design projects and photos of their work. All attendees will receive a copy of the book, a $35 value.

For reservations, call 649-4770 by Friday, Jan. 28. Cost is $35. The event will begin at 6:30 p.m. with refreshments. The lecture will take place at 7 p.m., followed by a book signing.

MDC, the resource market for the interior design trade, is north off Maple (15 Mile), between Coolidge and Crooks.

The keynote speaker Feb. 3 will be Elaine Markoutsas.

Boost value

Improving your home can yield tax saving

■ When making your improvements, consider home prices in your neighborhood. If you want to recover your costs when you sell your home, don't undertake projects that elevate your property value above the neighborhood norm.

Undertaking home remodeling projects may offer you more than just personal satisfaction. Some home improvement projects also may be bring tax advantages, according to the Farmington Hills-based Michigan Association of CPAs.

Tax implication

Capital improvements, such as replacing a roof, landscaping a yard and updating a bathroom, can be added to the basis of your home and decrease your taxable project when you sell it.

Be aware that some home projects are merely repairs that do not add to the basis of your residence. A capital improvement must add to your home's value, prolong its life or adapt part of your home to a new use.

When deciding which home improvement to make, also look at the trends in home sales and consider the features most important to home buyers in your area. For example, adding an outside deck may give you a better return on your investment than installing oak trim and handrails throughout your house.

When making your improvements, consider home prices in your neighborhood. If you want to recover your costs when you sell your home, don't undertake projects that elevate your property value above the neighborhood norm.

How will you pay?

Try not to borrow money for small projects — $3,000 or less. Instead, pay with cash. If your home improvement is larger in scope, there are a number of financing alternatives to consider.

If you've lived in your home for a while and have built up equity in it, you may be able to obtain a home-equity line of credit. The benefit of using home-equity loans is that, unlike consumer interest, home-equity interest is fully deductible, except for certain high-income individuals who are subject to an overall reduction in itemized deductions.

Home-equity debt may not exceed the home's value or $100,000 ($50,000 in the case of a married individual filing separately).

You also may finance a large remodeling project by refinancing your home at a lower interest rate. This may enable you to keep your monthly payments about the same, even if you take out a larger mortgage to finance a home improvement.

Another financing alternative is a home-improvement loan. Although you may be able to obtain the funding you need in a matter of weeks, the terms of the loan can be expensive. Home improvement loans generally have short repayment terms.

In most cases, it's wise to aovid financing a home improvement through credit cards. The interst rate on these cards is likely to be higher than on the loans mentioned above and the interest also in nondeductible.

Be wary about allowing a contractor or remodeling company to provide the financing. Since there has been a great deal of fraud in this area, it's wise to check out the company's reputation with regulatory authorities before making a commitment.

Selecting a contractor

Once you've decided on a project and have determined how it will be financed, look for a contractor. Obtain recommendations from people who have hired individuals for similar projects and be sure to obtain three bids.

Also, remember to check the references of the contractors you interview and be sure the contractor is licensed and bonded. You also may want someone who is accredited in remodeling. The National Associaiton of Home Builders (1-800-368-5242) may help you find a contractor with the appropriate remodeling experience.

CPAs urge you to keep receipts and records that can substantiate your home improvement expenses. Establish a home improvement file for cancelled checks, credit card bills, signed contracts and loan agreements, and contractor invoices.

CONDO QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Is there any authority in the condominium statute giving a developer the right to maintain an office in a model or unit or other facilities on the condominium premises. Our developer, we believe, is abusing his privileges in this regard.

The Michigan Condominium Act of 1978 provides the developer and duly authorized agents, representatives and employees may maintain offices, model units and other facilities on the property, which is subject to the condominium regime.

It may include provisions in the condominium documents relative to the facilities as may reasonably facilitate development and sale of the project. However, the statute requires the developer to pay all costs related to the condominium units or common elements while owned by the developer and to restore the facilities to habitable status upon termination of its use.

To the extent you have any problems with the developer, you should obviously attempt to seek a resolution of them, after having been advised of your legal rights as it relates to the developer's maintenance of these facilities.

Robert M. Meisner is a Birmingham attorney concentrating his practice in the areas of condominiums, real estate and corporate law. You are invited to submit questions by writing Robert M. Meisner at 30200 Telegraph Road, Suite 467, Bingham Farms 48025. This column provides general information and should not be construed as legal opinion. Real Estate Matters

By Richard Halmekangas G.R.I.

PICTURE YOUR HOME FOR SALE

Real estate professionals make much of the fact that "curb appeal" plays a primary role in drawing the interest of perspective buyers. A home that looks crisp and inviting as one drives by (or up to) is likely to make a good first impression that is sustaining. Thus, it behooves a seller to make the repairs and engage in the necessary maintenance that upgrades the appearance of his or her home. Beyond that, a seller is advised to capitalize on the home's curb appeal by capturing it fully in any photographs used to advertise the house. Some prospective buyers get their first look at homes from the pictures they see in multiple listing books. They then may make a decision to visit homes based on how well they appear in photographs.

Selling a home is serious business. ONE WAY REALTY LTD. has built a wonderful reputation by satisfying even our most discriminating clients. We will be happy to prepare a market analysis for you, with no obligation on your part. Of course, we will also give you suggestions for things you can do both inside and outside to make your home show better. When you list with us, we will be here every step of the way right through to the closing details. Drop by and talk with one of us at 34441 Eight Mile Road. "We'll Help You Stop Losing Interest." We are available 6 days a week. Please call us at 473-5500.

Dream Street: Keating's Home Town includes nine full-sized modular houses inside a 93,000-square-foot warehouse in Farmington Hills.

STAFF PHOTOS BY SHARON LEMIEUX

Modular homes sold from 'town square'

Prospects sometimes have only a couple of models to walk through at a building site or they have to resort to pictures, renderings and floor plans at a construction trailer. Now comes a new way of marketing homes in Farmington Hills.

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

Howard T. Keating III is an expeditor now, not a builder. But he has built an unusual new home sales concept in Farmington Hills.

The Troy resident matches buyers of modular homes - units constructed to traditional code in factories, then transported to lots in sections for reassembly - with licensed builders who can put things together on site.

Keating, 45, can show prospective buyers nine models, not renderings or photographs, but actual houses they can walk through. He can help find a lot to place the model, arrange a mortgage and, if necessary, find a second job to pay for everything.

All of this under one roof in a 93,000-square-foot warehouse off Halsted, between Nine Mile and Grand River, which he calls Keating's Home Town.

"This is Dream Street," he said pointing to seven models arranged in a square. And with the house lights dimmed amid the sights and sounds of a babbling fountain and artificial landscaping, it actually looks like a piece of small-town America.

"Isn't this wonderful?" he said. "Remember, it's freezing outside, guys."

Keating

Keating said he came up with the idea to expand after enjoying tremendous success with three modular models at a builder's show about six years ago.

"We were astonished at how many people came just to see our houses," he said. "There was a 20-minute wait just to get into the first home. We walked out with 1,306 appointments and 8,000 written inquiries.

"The past president of Frank's Nursery said, 'Howard, too bad you can't do this year around,' " Keating said.

Shortly, thereafter, Keating said he was caught up in financing problems with a failed savings and loan. He stopped building and began to massage the model-within-

Suburban contractors upbeat about Archer

STAFF WRITER

Suburban contractors may have received the signal they were looking for last week when Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer spoke to their professional association about doing business in the big city.

Members of the Detroit chapter Associated General Contractors of America agree that the potential for work in Detroit is great. Several expressed their thoughts on what it will take to get the redevelopment ball rolling.

"We would hope the atmosphere, the energy Archer seems to exert will renew confidence so developers will invest and put money in the city," said Richard Millgard, executive vice president of the Millgard Corp. in Livonia.

"Instead of building walls, I think Archer will work to enhance building," Millgard said.

Part of that may involve relaxing or rethinking existing work crew requirements established by previous mayoral order, especially as they concern residency, Millgard suggested.

Landry

"I don't think it will happen overnight, but, again, it goes to immediate confidence," he added.

Larry Dailey, chairman of Perini Building Central U.S. Division in Southfield, said he believes that Archer will be a breath of fresh air.

"I think Coleman (Young) tried to do a job, but became kind of one-dimensional," Dailey said. "Dennis seems to want to work with (Wayne County Executive Edward) McNamara and (Oakland County Executive L. Brooks) Patterson.

"He (Archer) looks at it not just as a Detroit issues, but a metro issue," Dailey said. "Developers are going to have to have attractive economic packages, the permit process must become easier, funding must become available, which means banks must become involved, clients must be attracted."

"The challenge is so big, you just have to work area by area," he continued. "One of the biggest things you can do is get enterprise zones, grants and tax breaks by the federal government. That can start growth."

Thomas H. Landry, president of A.J. Etkin Construction in Farmington Hills, also is president of the Detroit chapter. "One person being positive and focusing on a vision can create a spirit and vitality," Landry said. "To achieve a dream, you have to have a dream."

Archer can help developers by cutting through red tape and promoting enterprise zones, Landry suggested. Contractors can help by looking at their costs of doing business and pro-

Teamwork with suburbs a must: new mayor

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

It was almost a love-in when Mayor Dennis Archer told a group of predominantly suburban contractors what he would try to do for them and what they could do for Detroit and their own cause.

"Let's talk about what it is that we perhaps can do together," the mayor said, outling both long-term and immediate action plans.

"I will name two task forces," Archer said. "I want them to look at all the documents gathering dust called master plans.

"What should we do about the world's greatest undeveloped waterfront? Where should we have a new industrial park? Where should we have a mall? The east side or west side? Strip centers - we need them all.

"Detroit is an ideal lab for growth and development," Archer continued. "Ninety percent of the vacant land in the city is free of environmental problems. We have enough land in this city to accomplish anything."

The mayor, who drew two standing ovations from some 230 contractors and their guests, mentioned a couple other goals.

"I think you will find our pension fund will be involved in new projects in the city of Detroit," Archer said.

"We're going to cut red tape. If you want inspections, you'll get them. And we'll pay our bills on time."

Archer

The mayor also asked for the contractors' help.

"In April, my wife, sons and I are going to lead a beautification clean-up of our city," Archer said. "If you've got big trucks or dumpsters you can let us use . . . that would be a big help to us.

The mayor suggested that contractors hire school kids at minimum wage a few hours per week to teach work values and provide some spending money.

"Show them what to do, to be at work on time, to be dressed properly, the importance of good manners," the mayor said. "When we do that, we give our children opportunity to see hope.

"The days of the designated developer are gone," Archer continued. "Let me suggest that those of you with the capacity go from contractor to developer. If you have a good idea, bring it to the table yourself.

"Let's come together so we can make opportunities for everyone to be successful," he said. "There's going to be a lot for everyone to do. It's in everybody's interest for Detroit to become healthy again.

"Detroit isn't competiting with Auburn Hills, Novi and Livonia. Our competition is the Cleveland region, the Boston region, the Philadelphia region. Everyone suffers from the negative image we've had in the past."

He joined the company in 1962 as manager-management information systems and also has been plant manager, sales manager and director of sales. Randal T. Murphy of Farmington Hills becomes vice president and general manager of Chrysler/BMW operations. He joined Lear in 1965 as a product engineer and became vice president-product engineering. Arthur H. Vartanian of Farmington Hills was promoted from director of GM operations to vice president and general manager of Ford operations. He joined the company as a product engineer in 1981 and has held several engineering posts.

Suzanne C. Dream, a native of Farmington Hills, was named associate director of community relations at Havenwyck Hospital, Auburn Hills. Dream, now of Lake Orion, is a limited license psychologist and a licensed counselor, with nearly 10 years of experience in public schools and community agencies. She's chairperson of the Oakland County Substance Abuse Advisory Council and has a private practice in Lake Orion.

Michael E. Quarton of Birmingham, who purchased an interest in TRM Group, Inc., an Auburn Hills telecommunications firm, was named company president. Tim Mackin of Royal Oak will continue as chief executive officer. Both Quarton and Mackin spent several years at AT&T, where Quarton was branch manager and marketing director of high tech products. Mackin worked in AT&T's engineering and sales divisions. TRM, an Ameritech distributor, specializes in designing telecommunication systems for business.

Michelle D. Caron of Canton was named marketing services representative at Smith-Winchester, a Southfield advertising agency. She previously was director of marketing resources at Creative House Advertising, Farmington Hills.

Pamela Light of Canton has joined First International Financial Corp., Livonia, as the loan officer. She previously worked for Home Protection One Corp., Farmington Hills.

Art Nalli, a former Redford Township resident, has joined 7UP Detroit as sales promotion manager for independent retailers. He previously was a regional sales manager for Pepsi Cola. Curtis Paul Gropman of Bloomfield Hills has joined the firm as sales promotion manager in charge of drugstores and mobile market customers. He'll develop joint advertising promotions between retailers and 7UP Detroit, an operation owned by Brooks Beverage Management, Inc.

Ross Roy Communications, based in Bloomfield Hills, has hired five account administrators from Observer & Eccentric communities: Joanne Schettler of Plymouth is responsible for the account administrative functions for the Chrysler Plymouth merchandising account. Robert Gibb of Bloomfield Hills joins the Chrysler International account, tracking the status of projects in production and managing the communication between account groups and support staff. Todd Morton of Birmingham will work on the Jeep Eagle merchandising account team. Julie Sayyae of Royal Oak will track the status of the Chrysler Educational Services jobs in production. Darrin Dimitry of Orchard Lake joins the Sports Authority and National Bank of Detroit account teams.

Pamela S. Ritter of Royal Oak, previously a law clerk at the law firm of Strobl and Manoogian in Bloomfield Hills, has joined the firm as an associate in the commercial litigation division.

Kevin Leeser has joined Unique Film & Video in Farmington Hills as head of the graphics department. The Hazel Park resident previously worked for Amway Corp., where he developed the multimedia lab. He's also designed multimedia special effects for live music performances throughout the Midwest.

Stephen A. Krawczyk of Rochester Hills was named product manager for garage doors at Stanley Door Systems, Troy. He's responsible for pricing, promotion, packaging and product development of Stanley Door Systems' steel garage door products.

Emma J. Brooks was appointed marketing administration manager at J.R. Thompson Co., a Farmington Hills marketing and communications firm. She's responsible for managing program administration services, including marketing and communications support and research services. The Holly resident previously was supervisor of customer service and advertising/marketing at Tractech/Dyneer Corp., Warren.

a-warehouse concept. He eventually found a half-dozen investors.

They leased a large warehouse in Farmington Hills — "the ceiling height, it's 27½ feet, and it's a good location for us" — and spent about three months setting up. The official grand opening was Jan. 15.

When completely finished, Keating's Home Town will feature a child-care room, a nature center, and a vending/eating area where suppliers like Carrier, Honeywell and Detroit Edison can exhibit their goods and conduct demonstrations, Keating said.

There is no admission charge and visitors will be taken on guided tours through the models.

"Our mission is to educate people," Keating said. "People who want $200,000 can go find for themselves. People who want to buy for $75,000, $80,000 need help.

"We have special financing. We have employment agencies here for people who need supplemental income. We have credit counselors here if people need help with that.

"We are not builders here, we're coordinators," he emphasized.

While Keating designs the models, the units actually are built in Indiana or Marlette, Mich., and purchased by individual buyers through the builders who reassemble the units on lots.

The nine models ranging from a 1,093-square-foot ranch to a 2,104-square-foot, two-story country home all are priced at less than $100,000, even with upgraded options.

The models can be constructed over a basement or crawl space. Garages are standard on some models, extra on others.

Keating expects two models to be especially popular.

Expressions, a ranch of 1,203 square feet, has an option of three bedrooms or two bedrooms and a study. The base price with basement is $73,600, crawl space $70,200.

"People love it when kids can be on one side of the house, parents on the other," he said.

Then there's the Freedom, a 1,093-square-foot, barrier-free ranch priced at $80,200 with basement, $75,400 with crawl space.

"Look at the large thermostat, (electrical) plugs are off the floor, wide hallways, space for a wheelchair under the kitchen sink, a wheel-in shower," Keating said.

Lots cost extra.

Buyers of the models can arrange their own financing and find their own building site or use the services provided by Michigan Lot Exchange, a Keating subsidiary, or Nationwide Mortgage at Home Town.

Modular homes have the same building codes as stick-built, site construction, Keating said. His prices include a 15-year warranty and one-year layoff insurance policy to pay the mortgage, utilities and medical insurance and child care as part of the base price.

Gordon Blake is spokesman for the major investors of Home Town.

"My confidence in this concept, the people involved and the opportunity to get a return on my investment — and to give back to society — prompted my involvement," he said.

Raymond Anderson is an area builder who will link up with Keating.

"I think it's nice you can show people what their house is going to look like," Anderson said. "People are amazed. The quality of the houses is fine. There's nothing wrong with that at all."

Joe Slavik, owner of a Farmington Hills building company, serves as an advisor to Keating.

"The key in this is you market housing like you market automobiles," Slavik said. "You have a big showroom with all the models and styles where people can come and have all their questions answered."

Keating figures he can get customers into a house within 90 days if there's no hold-up on municipally issued building permits.

"Really, this is the least risky of all (marketing strategies)," Keating said. "I have six markets under one roof. In a subdivision, you only have one market and if you're wrong, you're in trouble.

"This is a fun experience and a learning experience. This will attract the public."

viding employment opportunities for city residents.

The crime problem has been addressed in areas of the city that have experienced a renaissance — Harbortown, Victoria Place and Riverfront, Landry said. He's also impressed with Archer's commitment to education. "Quality of life is a concern of everybody, obviously," Landry said. "You need a trickle before it can pour. That's what's happening."

Art Shmina, chairman of A.Z. Shmina in Livonia, is a past president of the Detroit chapter. "The new mayor is non-confrontational," Shmina said. "He has a spirit of cooperation. He's of the type who invites people in. Very definitely he can make a difference.

"I don't think Archer should be looked upon as an entity of Detroit. He's quality all the way and sets a tone for the area. At that point, there must be encouragement of private enterprise through laws about anything that restricts our activity.

"Taxes, I think, have got to be lowered," Shmina added.

Bill McCarthy, president of McCarthy & Smith in Redford Township, sees a need to attract new business and then better efforts to expedite the construction process once it starts.

"You've got to go out looking for industry to locate in the area," McCarthy said. "It won't be automotive. They won't spend in the city."

And about the paperwork process?

"The whole attitude here was very poor," McCarthy recalled. "It was tough to get permits. Inspections? Impossible. You're probably going to have to do something about taxes in the city, too. Income and property taxes are out of touch."

"It's going to take time and patience. Don't get your expectations so high you'll be disappointed. It takes year to cultivate an environment. Investors perceive hospitality, a good investment.

"A city has to be safe, clean, well managed. If he can get the garbage picked up, buses run on time, crime is better, education — that's what it's going to take," Smith said. "Can one man make a difference? You better believe it."

Frank Smith, president of the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce, said: "We have 11,200 companies as members, only 25 percent in the city. We're regional. Our whole perspective is this marketplace.

Cut to core when window shopping

Windows are not just windows anymore. Energy-saving inert gas fills the gap between panes, special coatings let in light but not heat, and window blinds can operate between the panes to keep clear of dust and damage.

"If energy savings are important, don't stop with how a window looks," says Paul Martin, territory sales manager, Pella Window and Door Co., Livonia. "The decision should include the frame material.

"Because most window performance characteristics depend on the frame to work properly, it's a critical place to start. The greatest difference in windows is still the product it's made of — solid wood, vinyl plastic or hollow metal."

Wood and vinyl frames have a stronghold on the window market, in large part due to the energy-efficiency problems of aluminum frames. Wood, a natural insulator, has more than 1,500 items the thermal resistance of metal.

■ BASELINE NEWS

Four new mayors, including Arnold Campbell of Farmington and Lawrence Lichtman of Farmington Hills, have joined the Eight Mile Boulevard Association board of directors.

At a November meeting, the board decided that businesses, community groups and individuals may join the association as associate members. Associate members will receive a quarterly newsletter and annual report and will pay discounted fees for the annual meeting and other events the organization may sponsor.

Early this year, a membership invitation will be sent to more than 600 names on the association's mailing list. The group also will use direct mail to recruit some 3,000 businesses along Eight Mile from Farmington Hills to Harper Woods.

Dues are $8 for individuals, $18 for nonprofit organizations and $28 for businesses. For an advance membership application, call 810-559-8633.

■ AHHH, SUN ROOFS

Representatives from Auto Sunroof and Accessories of Troy, a sales and service center for ASC Inc. sunroofs, visited ASC's 112,000-square-foot plant in Columbus, Ohio.

The new facility has the capacity to produce 500,000 sunroofs annually. ASC manufactures power, venting and sliding sunroofs and factory models for the Honda Accord EX and Chrysler LH models at the Ohio facility.

■ SPEED VIDEO MESSAGES

Fiber optic cabling has been installed at MVP Communications on-site studio in Troy, creating a faster, less expensive way to send video messages.

The fiber connection links MVP with the Ameritech switching center in downtown Detroit. From there, the video signal can be routed to its destination by fiber optic cables or to a satellite uplink station for transmission.

In the past, MVP needed one to two days to set up a portable uplink outside of their studio. With the fiber optic link, the cost to transmit a video signal will be reduced by one-half to two-thirds the cost of the portable uplink, the company said.

■ AIR BAG VENTURE

Southfield-based AlliedSignal Automotive, Sequa's Atlantic Research Corp. and BPD Defesa e Spazio (Gilardini) of Italy have formed a three-way venture to supply advanced air bag inflators to European automakers.

The group, named BAG S.p.A., will design, produce and sell hybrid inflators for driver and passenger-side air bags. It will be the first company to produce hybrid inflators for driver-side bags. The inflators provide a cost-efficient way to inflate air bags, using compressed argon gas that operates on the principle that heated gas expands.

AlliedSignal has also signed an agreement to acquire the seat belt business of Gilardini. Terms of the agreement were not announced, but the agreement is expected to be final by Jan. 31.

■ NEW CLIENT

Goldfarb & Co., Southfield, will handle advertising, marketing and public relations for Zaske, Sarafa and Associates, a Bloomfield Hills investment firm.

■ SCORE OFFICE

Service Corps of Retired Executives (SCORE) opened a new office in the Buell Management Building at Lawrence Technological University, Southfield, Jan. 4.

SCORE helps people start their own business and assists people already in business, says Jack Caminker, SCORE's coordinating counselor at Lawrence Tech.

SCORE counselors typically have 20-45 years of experience in various areas of business, including personnel, marketing, advertising, accounting, engineering, sales and taxes. Advisors can help prospective business owners prepare a business plan and marketing strategy, says Caminker, whose background includes 40 years in real estate management.

Counseling is free and business seminars are $15 to $30.

For an appointment, call 810-356-0200, ext. 3053, 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays. Counseling is scheduled Tuesday and Friday mornings.

■ EXECUTIVE AGENCY

Continental Search Associates, a Bloomfield Hills executive placement agency, has opened Continental Interim Executives, providing temporary senior level executives, superintendents and managers for a range of industries.

"The new company offers our clients more flexibility in the staffing process," said William R. Dewey, Continental Search president. "Our clients have gone through great changes during the last recession, and we have widened our spectrum of services to meet the growing demand for alternative hiring arrangements. Professional temporaries are increasingly used by corporations as part of their business plan."

The Continental Group is at 1100 N. Woodward, Suite 224. The telephone number is 810-644-4506.

■ TOP DEALER

Richard A. Mealey, president of Birmingham Chrysler-Plymouth, Birmingham, is among 17 dealers in the U.S. and Canada to receive the Dealer Education Award from Northwood University, Midland, in San Francisco this month.

Dr. David E. Fry, Northwood president, said Mealey's up-to-date employee training has produced sales and service achievement and frequent recognition from manufacturers. The dealer was also singled out for supporting programs at Michigan Technological University, Houghton, and Oakland University, Rochester Hills.

■ ENVIRONMENTAL MANAGER

Compliance Engineering, a firm specializing in hazardous and industrial waste management, regulatory report preparation, environmental plans for facilities and safety and environmental training for employees, has opened at 320 E. Maple, Suite 182, Birmingham.

Training includes Occupational Safety and Health Administration "Right to Know," Confined Space Procedures and Training, and Emergency Spill Response Training.

For information, call Steven Kurth, environmental engineer, at 810-642-6045.

■ TOP ACCOUNT

Anderson Paint Co., with stores in Farmington and Ann Arbor, was named Maxum UltiMAX account of the year by Premier Coatings, manufacturer of Maxum coatings and paints, Elk Grove Village, Ill.

In 1993, Anderson sold more UltiMAX than any other account in North American and Europe. Anderson was also commended for educating the public on proper painting procedures, product selection and problem solving.

■ DEDICATE LAB

SmithKline Beecham Clinical Laboratories, Farmington Hills, will dedicate its new 35,000-square-foot facility at 38700 Country Club on Jan. 28. The firm's staff of more than 100 moved to the new location in November.

SmithKline, based in Collegeville, Penn., does medical testing for physicians, hospital and employers throughout Michigan and northwest Ohio.

■ SELECT AGENCY

Autoworks, an automotive parts retailer based in Rochester, N.Y., has selected Stone, August, Baker Communications, Troy, to handle advertising and marketing activity. Autoworks' billing for 1994 is projected at $5 million.

Autoworks has 58 locations in Michigan.

■ MEMBERSHIP ANNIVERSARY

Plante & Moran, based in Southfield, marks its 15th year of membership in the Private Companies Practice Section of the American Institute of CPAs. Plante & Moran was one of the founding members of this voluntary association, whose membership now exceeds more than 6,500 CPA firms.

■ MARKET RESORTS

Golf Marketing Services of Bloomfield Hills will handle marketing activity for Dunmaglas Golf Club and High Pointe Golf Club, both located in northern Michigan.

In 1992, Golf Digest selected Dunmaglas as one of the five best new resort courses. In 1990, Golf Digest picked High Pointe as one of the 75 best public courses in the United States.

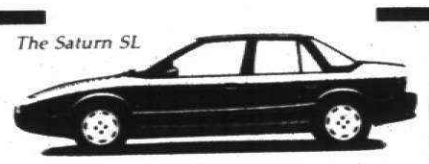
Simple, honest, straightforward. How else would you expect to lease a Saturn?

By now, you've probably heard about the Saturn buying experience. No hassles, no pressure, no fuss, just common courtesy, along with a pretty great car.

Well, the way we see it, your experience shouldn't be any different if you want to lease a Saturn. After all, what could we possibly gain by making things any less straightforward than they have to be?

The Saturn SL



($190/Month $561/Down 36/Months)

SmartLease payments based on 1994 Saturn SL Sedan, 5 speed, AC, MSPR $11,210 excluding taxes, title, license fee and insurance. First month's lease payment of $189.56 plus $225.00 refundable security deposit and down payment of $561.00 for a total of $975.56 due at lease signing. Option to purchase at lease end for $6,277.60. Payments total $6,824.16.

GMAC must approve lease. Mileage charge of $0.10 per mile over 45,000 miles. Your payments may be higher or lower. Lessee pays for excessive wear and use.
