School chief interviews to start

Seven school superintendent hopefuls will be interviewed by the Plymouth-Canton school board starting Tuesday. There are no local educators up for the job.

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

There's an excellent chance Plymouth-Canton Community Schools' next superintendent will be from out of state.

Two of seven finalists to be interviewed this week are from Michigan. All are earning at least $79,000.

Candidates to be interviewed are Gene Denisar, of Missouri's North Kansas City school district; Ronald Jandura of Minnesota's St. Cloud public schools; New York's Charles Little of Hamburg public schools; Massachusetts' Robert Monson of Westwood public schools; and Minnesota's Reginald Nolin, with Duluth public schools.

Michigan candidates are Louis Giannunzio of Marshall schools and Gary Hughes of Durand schools. Tom Tattan, executive director for instruction, didn't make the final cut.

The board will meet at 7:30 p.m. tonight at the board office, 454 S. Harvey, April 4, to decide who will be interviewed when, and what questions will be asked.

District spokesman Richard Egli said the board plans to announce its decision May 16. "What the board is looking to do is narrow the field down to three the week of April 18."

The seven candidates will be interviewed at 4 p.m. and 7 p.m. Tuesday, April 5, Wednesday, April 6, and Thursday, April 7. The last candidate will be interviewed at either 9:30 a.m. or 1:30 p.m. Saturday, April 9.

All interviews will be done in the board meeting room at the E.J. McClendon Center, 454 S. Harvey, Plymouth.

Following that series of interviews, the board will interview up to three finalists at dinner meetings beginning the week of April 18.

Going fishing makes for exciting vacation

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI

When Ed Sheline went fishing in the Florida Keys about two years ago, he came back empty-handed. Not this time.

"It's so exciting. The captain is up on the flying bridge. He'll shout to the mate: permit at 3 o'clock," said the Canton resident in describing the Atlantic fish.

Sheline and his parents, Harry and Joy, returned after a daylong trip — about 11 miles out to sea — with seven amberjack, permits and two barracuda.

"They aren't very good eating. So we released them," said Sheline, who works for a Southfield architectural firm.

One of the amberjacks caught by Sheline's father weighed in at 73 pounds. "It took him 23 minutes to bring him in," Sheline said.

At 7 a.m., Sheline and his parents boarded the "Dee Cee," out of Holiday Isle Marina at Islamorada in the Keys. "My father has always bragged about this captain (Chuck Schimmelman) and mate (Bill Harbaugh) being the best," Sheline said.

The trip was more than just dropping a pole into the ocean. Sheline and his father were armed with captains' chairs on the deck and fishing gear tucked neatly into rod holders.

The Shelines used live bait, caught early in the morning by the captain and mate. "To catch the permits we used blue crabs, which are an unusual fish," Sheline said.

After the catch, the mate cleans the fish for visitors before they leave. "We fixed it on the barbecue. It was delicious," Sheline said.

A daylong trip on the 42-foot sport boat costs $600 and $400 for a half-day. "I would recommend people doing this and I'd recommend this captain and mate. It was just great fun," Sheline added.

Big catch: Those on the boat were (from left) Ed Sheline and Bill Harbaugh, holding a 73-pound amberjack; Chuck Schimmelman, with a permit; and Sheline's parents, Joy and Harry.

Map's a first for Canton

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI

Thanks to the Canton Chamber of Commerce, the first-ever official map of Canton will soon go to press.

"It will have a two-year shelf life," said Linda Shapona, Canton Chamber of Commerce executive director.

A chamber committee is developing the professionally produced fold-up publication that will feature a Canton street map with an index and legend, as well as points of interest, such as the Summit on the Park community center and golf courses. On the back of the map will be a business locator map that will correspond by number to advertisements purchased by chamber businesses.

"It will also show Canton in relation to all the southeastern Michigan freeways," Shapona said.

Five thousand copies of the map will be printed in the initial effort. It will be printed in the chamber's black and burgundy colors, and be available to all residents, real estate agents, gas stations, hotels and chamber members in May.

"Everyone will get one free. Any more than one we'll have to charge," Shapona said.

The effort represents the first time anyone has produced a map of the township. Until now, the only map that has been available is a building map from the township, Shapona said.

"Ever since I got this job, I've thought: This is a chamber of commerce and we don't have a map. So we got information from other chambers. And the township has been super cooperative," Shapona said.

Chamber officials are considering designating industrial parks on the map, which will show subdivision streets — but not subdivisions by name — as well as apartments and mobile home parks (by name only).

"This will help economic development," Shapona said. "We will also have information about Canton and the chamber on the map."

Chamber officials are asking those members interested in advertising in the map to place their order by April 8.

Kids learn about conservation

Third-graders in Plymouth-Canton schools will again get a treat, thanks to the Canton Beautification Committee.

The third-graders will receive the committee's popular "Let's Color Canton," community awareness books that through a series of activities teach about conservation, recycling, beautification and landscaping. The books, which feature the Flower Family, take children through games, anecdotes and puzzles to drive home lessons about responsibility.

"It's never to late to begin. We want to get the kids while they're young," said Pam Swiderek, committee secretary-historian.

Swiderek, who with the committee's help and backing, developed the activity books designed to teach kids alternatives, such as recycling.

"We want to help kids learn to beautify, care and respect their communities. We want to give them an awareness of taking care of their community," Swiderek said.

This year, the committee will include a survey with the booklets to be used by teachers. "The surveys should be used before and after to see if what the kids know and don't know changes," Swiderek said. "We believe these books serve a good function, and we want to show that."

The committee also has printed similar books about vandalism and Canton's history.

Preceding the 7-10 p.m. dinners set for Monday, April 18, Wednesday, April 20, and Monday, April 25, will be public receptions 4-5:30 p.m. at the board office meeting room, Egli said.

"The public receptions will be held on each of the days just prior to the dinner interview from 4-5:30 p.m." Punch and cookies will be served.

The new superintendent will take the helm July 1.

Superintendent John Hoben's last day will be June 30. He's entertaining several offers to do consulting work in areas including outcome-based education, construction, and technology in the classroom.

Commission plans 2 public hearings

Two public hearings are scheduled before the Canton Planning Commission at 7 p.m. tonight in the board meeting room of township hall, 1150 S. Canton Center Road.

The first public hearing will consider zoning ordinance changes for condominiums. The second will address zoning ordinance amendments for non-conforming uses.

Planning commissioners will consider approval of a site plan for Wethersfield Condominiums and a tentative preliminary plat approval for Admiral Industrial Park subdivision.

Eager readers show their stuff

BY JILL HALPIN
SPECIAL WRITER

Jonelle Brown of Plymouth loves to read. In fact, the third-grade student at Plymouth Township's Fiegel Elementary spent the past six weeks reading 56 books.

Not only did she have a good time, her hard work paid off when she led her team to victory March 29 in the school's Caldecott Challenge.

"I like reading a lot. I spent most of my free time at the library. It was worth it," Jonelle said. She wasn't the only one spending most of her free time reading: Classmate Scott Lytle read 37 books, Erin Baum read 30 books and Alex Popescu read 10. All are students in third-grade teacher Gerry Dugan's class.

Sponsored by the Fiegel School media center, the Caldecott Challenge is a reading enrichment program designed to introduce third-grade students to Caldecott Award-winning books. Named for English illustrator Randolph Caldecott, the award has honored quality illustrations in picture books since 1938.

"We try to expose the students to a variety of good literature. We're encouraging them to begin to notice the different types of illustrations in books and the way the pictures relate to the story," said Dorothy Eden, library media specialist at Fiegel.

Students were asked to read as many Caldecott books as possible over the six-week period, testing their own comprehension by completing crossword puzzles after finishing each book, Eden said. At the end of six weeks, the top Caldecott readers from each class formed teams and faced off against each other, answering questions based on the books.

The activity was a success, according to Dugan, whose class took final honors in the challenge. "Everyone did a nice job. All of the students read some of the books, and they understand why the award is given," said Dugan.

For Scott Lytle, the reason for competing went beyond the challenge. "Reading takes me on an adventure. Once I get started I can't stop," he said.

The contest was not without excitement. Students on Dugan's team were tied with those from Lorna Nitz's class, and a tie-breaking question was needed.

Airport authority's impact on Mettetal up in the air

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

If a proposal to create a southeastern Michigan airport authority becomes a reality, its effect on the Canton-Plymouth Mettetal Airport Advisory Board and local control is uncertain.

"That's a good question," said Bill Gehman, Michigan Aeronautics Commission director. "I'm not sure how it would work, quite honestly. The bill doesn't address that."

The proposal to create a regional aviation authority comes from the Michigan General Aviation Committee and is expected to be submitted to the Michigan Aeronautics Commission. The proposal would have to go to the state Legislature for final approval.

The proposal — covering Wayne, Oakland, Washtenaw, Monroe, Macomb and St. Clair counties – would form an authority to plan, promote, acquire, preserve, construct, improve, enlarge, own, maintain and operate general-aviation airports.

Under the proposal, member counties would contribute no more than one-tenth of a mill in taxes for the authority's purposes, such as operating the landing, navigational and building facilities of general-aviation airports.

The authority also would have the ability to issue bonds for buying, constructing, improving, enlarging or repairing general-aviation airports. If a referendum is requested, an election may be held asking voters to allow bonds to be issued and showing how much might be owed by particular municipalities.

"This body, if formed, would have broad powers," said Mike Stankov, a member of the Canton-Plymouth Mettetal Airport Advisory Board, who learned of the proposal at a state aeronautics meeting. "Would this supersede the state's contract with Canton Township? This opens a can of worms."

If the state would like to take control out of local hands, such as Canton Township, Stankov said, "this would answer all their questions."

When the state bought Mettetal in 1993 for more than $4 million, it agreed with Canton Township on certain restrictions and on the creation of an advisory board of Plymouth Township, Plymouth and Canton Township residents.

The agreement that accompanied the state's purchase included restrictions such as no expansion of the runway beyond its existing 2,556 feet without written permission from Canton Township; a limit on the number of aircraft hangars and tie-downs; and control of aircraft size and weight.

Gehman said it is uncertain how the proposal would affect Mettetal and the advisory board.

The authority has been discussed for at least a year and was suggested by an international organization, the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association.

"These people thought an authority trying to help struggling airports would be a good idea," Gehman said. He's certain the proposal will not go to the state Legislature this year. "It will probably be brought up in the next session."

Bill to divert money to aviation prompts questions, concerns

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Canton-Plymouth Mettetal Airport Advisory Board member Mike Stankov has some questions about a state House bill that diverts sales tax money to aviation.

"I thought this money was earmarked for education," said Stankov. "Why is it being siphoned off? I'm concerned about the precedent this will set."

Bill No. 4581, which was introduced April 1, 1993, in the state House and passed this month, would take 25 percent of the general sales taxes on fuels for aircraft and the sale of new and used aircraft, and put it into the state aeronautics fund instead of the state's general fund.

According to the bill, the money would be used for safety, environmental preservation, infrastructure, economic development and operation and maintenance of the Civil Air Patrol.

State Rep. Deborah Whyman of Canton, who voted in favor of the measure, said the effort has nothing to do with the increased sales tax and earmarking money for education.

"It has to do with the way the aeronautics fuel fund was earmarked," she said. "Instead of going to the general fund it will now go to aeronautics."

Michigan Aeronautics Commission director Bill Gehman said the bill doesn't affect education dollars. "This is not part of the March (Proposal A) election. The bill will just address 25 percent of the original 4 percent on sales tax."

State Rep. Jerry Vorva of Plymouth opposed the measure. "I felt this was taking education dollars. There is already a large cluster of money in the federal aviation budget that isn't spent yet."

Such legislation, Vorva said, only diminishes the amount in the pot for education.

Gehman said the earmarked money would be used to improve airports around the state and to add to revenue used for matching federal grants. The measure wouldn't necessarily be a big boon to the Canton-Plymouth Mettetal Airport. "The dollar amount for Mettetal compared to needs around the state is small."

The measure would generate an additional $2 million for the aeronautics fund, which represents a loss to the state general fund. The aeronautics fund receives no general fund support, according to a state House analysis.

Attorneys vie for judicial seat

By Kevin Brown
Staff Writer

Are there any local attorneys not running for this judgeship?

The 35th District Court judgeship up for grabs in November is the hottest race in town, judging by the number of local attorneys showing interest in running.

Six candidates have formally announced they're running. But Judge James Garber, who is giving up his seat on the 35th District bench in January, said 14-17 attorneys have expressed to him their intention to run.

Candidates must file petitions with the state by a May 10 deadline. An Aug. 2 primary will narrow the field to two candidates. The winner is elected on Nov. 8 and would take the seat on the bench Jan. 1.

While the salary may be an incentive for some — it's now at $98,500 annually — Garber said many attorneys already make that much, and the desire to be a judge may be a more powerful lure.

"Almost without exception when one goes to law school one sits there and thinks about the day they will assume the bench. There is a certain element of prestige," he said.

So far announcing they'll run are Michael Gerou, Carol Levitte, Ron Lowe, Maria Petito, Dennis Shrewsbury and Karen Dunne Woodside.

Another reason for the high number of potential candidates, Garber said, is, "There's a bunch of lawyers out here," as the Plymouth area attracts generally more upscale homeowners than some areas of the county.

But also, "Our court has a pretty good reputation, it's a very pleasant court to work in," Garber said, adding that because of this judges in the 35th District Court tend to stay put and not seek higher judicial positions with county courts.

Whatever the call, the potential list of candidates could double the number vying for the bench in the most hotly contested judicial race in recent years — 1978 when Garber first sought and won election to the bench.

That year, Garber recalled, seven candidates ran in the primary.

As time has passed, the cost of running a successful campaign has soared. "When Judge (Dunbar) Davis first ran in '68 he spent something less than $500, 16 years ago I spent less than $7,000. I know from public records that $30,000-$35,000 was spent by two of the candidates seven years ago," Garber said.

In a recent district judge election in Farmington Hills, one candidate spent nearly $70,000, Garber said, adding a successful candidate could spend nearly that much this year in the 35th District.

The court serves Plymouth, Canton and Northville, and candidates must live in the communities to run.

Marion Belding, 35th District Court administrator, said that while she's remaining neutral, when she's out and about in the community, "They're asking who should I vote for, I have to say I'd really rather not take sides."

"I think it is difficult for the voting public when there's so many candidates and they don't know enough about them to decide," Belding said.

Garber said it's also important for him and the other 35th District judges, John MacDonald and Charles Kaufman, to stay neutral.

"We say that whoever wants to come in to chat, we'll be glad to chat. We have talked probably with a half a dozen.

"We say we will appear at none of their campaign functions. That's the way it should be. They sometimes ask for advice on how to go about running a campaign, what do you think the costs are going to be, how many votes it might take to get nominated," Garber said.

Of the job, "I've enjoyed probably every minute of it," Garber said.

"It is a job that is frustrating, it is not as all powerful as it looks certainly. There are aspects that make you grind your teeth and say, 'I wish I could do something.'"

The most important attribute for a new judge is "patience, patience, patience," Garber said.

Third judgeship chances look slim

While 35th District Court officials said they hope the state this spring will finally approve their request for a third full-time judge, the chances that will happen could be slipping away.

"I've talked to several people in the state Legislature and the state court administrator's office, for all intents and purposes that looks to be dead," 35th District Judge James Garber said Thursday.

But state Rep. Jerry Vorva, R-Plymouth, said he's still lobbying the state Senate Judiciary Committee in hopes of winning approval for a third full-time judge.

Vorva said he told Sen. Bill Van Regenmorter, R-Jenison, of the committee "that we have a visiting judge here, but he's not elected by the people."

"The district has done a great job in terms of cost efficiency; I view it as punishment that we are efficient," Vorva said.

Court officials have sought a third full-time judge as the caseload has risen sharply in recent years.

Vorva said he suggested to Van Regenmorter that certain areas of Wayne County that have lost population "should lose a judgeship, and Plymouth should gain a judgeship."

"That may seem like a tough political decision, but that's our job," Vorva said.

A state House committee last month approved the creation of a third full-time judgeship for the 35th District Court, serving Plymouth, Canton and Northville.

Auction rakes in $80,000

By Ralph R. Echtinaw
Staff Writer

New Morning School's 18th annual fund-raising auction March 26 drew 500 guests and raised $80,000 on the sale of about 500 items.

Located in Plymouth Township, New Morning is a non-profit cooperative school for kids in preschool through the eighth grade. Parental involvement is encouraged, and most New Morning parents volunteer their time.

Indeed, auction chairwoman Leslie Stolaruk of Plymouth Township reports that a core team of 10 parents worked extensively in planning the auction, while 80 others volunteered to a lesser extent. "The parents do all of the work," Stolaruk said. "We try to keep the staff out of the auction." Stolaruk's co-chairwomen were Ellen Arble of Plymouth and Jane Fry of Plymouth Township.

Auctioneer Dan Stall has been doing the New Morning auction for 10 years now. "The core of volunteers they've assembled is phenomenal," he said. "Everybody pitches in and just gives 100 percent. They're a blueprint of what dedication and commitment can result in."

The top selling item at the auction, held at Livonia's Laurel Manor, was a 1979 Catalina yacht. West Bloomfield Township residents Racquel Casey and Mary Weber bid $6,500 for it.

A painting called "Best of Friends" was purchased for $500 by Marti and Paul Chamberlain of Canton Township, but not until after Stolaruk and husband Jeff bid the price up to $300. "I wanted it really bad," Stolaruk said.

Not to worry, though, because Stolaruk later was top bidder ($400) for a day on the set of "Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman," a TV show. However, she and Jeff must pay their own airfare and lodging. "We might have been better off spending $500 on the painting, because the trip is going to cost us a lot more," Stolaruk said.

In other bidding, Kevin Felts of Plymouth Jewelry and Gifts was happy to hear that the 14-karat bracelet with sapphires he donated was auctioned for its appraised value of $1,000.

Maureen Alexander of Plymouth Township was the winning bidder of a dessert a month for a year, to be prepared by New Morning parent Linda Stoecklin of Northville.

"Stoecklin brought samples of her special desserts and the bidding was keen," wrote New Morning development director Donna Williams in a press release.

Tom Vurean and Debbie Ettington of Plymouth were the winning bidders for the grandfather clock. They paid $2,200.

All of the auctioned items were donated to New Morning, or paid for by donations.

Even the centerpieces on 60 tables, handmade by volunteer Ann Barr of Livonia, sold for $15 each when the evening ended.

New Morning School alumni from as far away as Kansas came to help celebrate the event.

CHRISTINA FUOCO

The "father of gangsta rap" Schooly D has few words for activists who give his trade a bad rap. He does, however, have a lot to say about his recent appearance on Geraldo Rivera's CNBC show with fellow rappers Luther Campbell and Freddie Foxxx.

During the hourlong impassioned segment, the trio along with MTV's Dr. Dre and Ed Lover traded harsh words with Rivera and anti-gangsta rap black activists. On the air, Rivera desperately tried to end the bickering but during commercial breaks, he did little to ease the tension instead encouraging it, Schooly D said.

"All of my valid points, they didn't want to hear. They wanted to keep the tension flowin'," he said.

It was clear what the activists' motives were, he explained, when one of them shouted that he wasn't going to be "interrupted by the likes of you." I knew exactly where he stood. It's no wonder he didn't want to be in the same room. He probably would have gotten hit."

Anyway, he said, he doesn't classify his new album "Welcome to America" as gangsta rap. He looks at it as more reality based. Lyrics like, "'I killed 40 people in 30 seconds and I still got away.' That's the kind of stuff that's entertainment. What I do is reality," Schooly D said during a phone conversation from his Philadelphia-area home.

On his album, he touches on violent feelings someone has toward the person who gave them the HIV virus, the inability of politicians to understand the problems of black men, and, ironically, the obscurity of talk show hosts.

"It's a very dark record. I don't think I should have watched CNN, or read the newspapers every day."

He and his seven-piece band will play St. Andrew's Hall, 431 E. Congress, Detroit, Wednesday, April 6. For more information, call (313) 961-MELT.

Possum Dixon doesn't hold back on its self-titled debut album. "I hate work. I'm a mailroom clerk. I need you to stop me from making mistakes, but you nerve me" singer/bassist Rob Zabrecky sings on the first track "Nerve." It's those angst-ridden twentysomething lyrics that have brought his band the attention that they've been striving for. However, sometimes Possum Dixon is lumped in with rockabilly bands — a sound that doesn't come close to describing Possum Dixon.

"Don't do the shoes, we are so unrockabilly. Never have been, never will be," he said.

He attributes the misconception to two reasons: First, "Possum Dixon" makes them sound like a southern band; second, Zabrecky sometimes plays a standup bass.

The sound of Possum Dixon, which got its name from a criminal they saw on "America's Most Wanted," instead infuses abrasive guitars with mosh-friendly rhythms and Zabrecky's rough-yet-polished, sing-songy vocals.

"Honest" is still the best way to describe the band. The jovial Zabrecky is even blunt in discussing his feelings about the band's headlining tour which was sparsely attended.

"What we were doing was playing to no people so there were no nerves to wrack; nobody knew who we were." Since then, tour dates with the Dead Milkmen and X have created a buzz for the band.

"It beats stampin' mail."

Tick Weasel: A musical army

■ There's one member who's shown up for gigs dressed in a white fur coat, bridal veil and diaper. A trombonist who aims for the ceiling to keep from stabbing his bandmates. Crazy? No, just Tick Weasel.

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Collision insurance is one thing that Tick Weasel probably should invest in. After all, when they cram their 10 band members on the tiny wooden stage at Finney's Pub in Detroit, an accident is bound to happen.

They practice safe musicianship, however. Trombonist and Livonia Symphony member John Kachnowski plays his instrument pointing straight up to avoid stabbing vocalist/guitarist Alex Porbe or lead guitarist Terry Trout. Percussionist Ron Wright is tucked so far behind Porbe, Trout, bassist Dave Smith and keyboardist Rob Troxler that he's barely noticeable.

However, none of this tames a Tick Weasel show, Trout said.

"It probably makes it look funnier. We collide once in awhile, but accidents happen," he said with a laugh.

Despite increasing the energy level on the stage and in the audience, there aren't too many negatives to having a band that resembles a musical army. For one, Tick Weasel's horn and percussionists can make the band sound fuller.

"Well, it's really nice soundwise. There's a million things you can do. It's not always easy to fit everyone someplace, or get everyone at the same place at the same time," Trout said.

Having a line-up that you can't trust on is mentally relaxing for the band, too, he said.

"All these people have never all been there at the same time. . . . It keeps it fresh. You never know who's gonna be there," Trout said.

"Predictable" isn't one word that can be associated with any aspect of

Tick Weasel. Besides the schizophrenic funky music style, something that changes frequently is the stage appearance of the band. At a recent Finney's Pub show, Trout donned a white fur coat, diaper, and bridal veil. Last week at Paycheck's he wore a glistening gold number. Bassist Smith, a Livonia resident, looked straight out of a Green Jelly video in his big red Dr. Seuss hat and sunglasses at Finney's. At a later show, he chose a polka-dotted sundress. If it sounds funny, Tick Weasel has accomplished one of its goals.

"We want people to laugh at us when they come to a Weasel show," Trout said. "We hope that people stand around and point at (us)."

"The costumes are a way to relieve boredom. If the music was the same, and if I was wearing the same brown suede jacket with fringe, it would get boring," said lead singer Porbe, whose band opened for the Counting Crows at St. Andrew's Hall last year.

It may be all laughs to the band, but their musicianship is serious. Trombonist Kachnowski is a six-year member of the Livonia Symphony Orchestra, while trumpeter Todd Bolton and saxophonists Marty Motgomery and Joe Cunninghan are studying music at the prestigious Wayne State University School of Music.

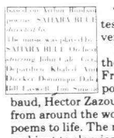
"It's not all a joke obviously if you listen to the music. The music is very serious in an unserious way," Porbe said.

"A silly kind of seri. us," said keyboardist Troxler.

Tick Weasel will perform Saturday, April 9, at Alvin's, 5756 Cass, Detroit. Must be 21 to enter. For more information, call (313) 832-2355. For more information about upcoming shows, contact Tick Weasel at 1535 Sixth St., 3rd Floor, Detroit, MI 48226. or call (313) 963-4569.

STREET SOUNDS

Sahara Blue — Hector Zazou



"Sahara Blue" testifies to the universality of art.

Beginning with the poems of France's best-known poet, Arthur Rimbaud, Hector Zazou brought in artists from around the world to bring the poems to life. The music ranges from ambient to slow jazz to the house remix of the first single, "I'll Strangle You." Rimbaud's poems are spoken, chanted and sung in English, French, Spanish, Japanese, Arabic and Hebrew. The effect is a hauntingly beautiful collaboration between some of the best artists in the world.

Among the artists Zazou brought in are John Cale, a founding member of the Velvet Underground; Tim Simenon, the U.K. house pioneer known as Bomb the Bass; Gerard Depardieu, France's foremost actor; Ryuichi Sakamoto, best known for his work scoring films; and Bill Laswell, who co-wrote and produced the song "Rockit" for Herbie Hancock.

"Hunger" features John Cale's spoken word over a jazz backing track which recalls the best of the Beat Generation. "Sahara Blue (Brussels)" has the same disturbing quality as the music in "Twin Peaks."

"Sahara Blue" brings out the beauty of Rimbaud's symbolism and takes the listener to a level of feeling that is both frightening and comforting. The CD is available on Tristar Music.

13 Above the Night — My Life With the Thrill Kill Kult

"Join the children of hell . . . " invites My Life With the Thrill Kill Kult on its latest release, even though all you would be doing is joining the party.

"13 Above the Night" is the second release by Interscope for the band which prefers to have it on the go. Nevertheless, this release does not cover any new ground.

The 13 tracks predominately comprises a glossy dance album full of sampling and techno feedback with its pulse rambling from guitar-based "Velvet Edge" to computer-activated "Badlife." Each track focuses on the beat of the music leaving the lyrics a bit disguised even though it seems as if it all should be taken seriously.

With poetry such as "Kiss the mirrors that sing the blues/Heels so high, go Scorpio groove/City siren, watch her move/as she rides the spirit of taboo/ Callin' Daddy Daddy Bad-Bad, Callin' Daddy Bad-Bad" From "Disko Fleshpot" the Thrill Kill Kult is taking stabs at social dilemmas with a ghostly vengeance, but is taking the blows itself.

If nothing else, "13 Above the Night" is a fun, mindless mass of mayhem inner-woven with funked-up rhythms. Once heard you might as well join in, what the hell.

— Kyle Green

'House of the Spirits' topples despite strong cast

BY JOHN MONAGHAN
SPECIAL WRITER

The stellar cast includes Jeremy Irons, Meryl Streep, Winona Ryder, Glenn Close and Vanessa Redgrave. The director is often compared to Bergman. So where does "House of the Spirits" go so horribly wrong?

Just about everywhere.

Bille August's angst-filled melodrama about a powerful family in South America from the late 1920s through the early '70s is the height of art house pretentiousness. And while the movie has already snowed some local critics, to me it came off an embarrassment.

Irons heads the cast as Esteban Trueba, a driven man who takes a run-down plantation and, through the sweat of local peasants, makes it among the most powerful in the country. Anxious from the constant threat of unionization, he enters politics and becomes an even bigger creep.

Now don't get me wrong. I have no problem watching unsympathetic characters on screen, but Irons, for one of the few times in his career, comes off horribly flat.

■ MOVIES

Chances are "Spirits" won't bring Streep any closer to the prominence she enjoyed in 1980s. She plays Esteban's wife, Clara, who has clairvoyant powers and, after a first-hand example of her husband's abuse, refuses to speak to him directly. She uses servants to converse with him, a bizarre version of post office usually played for comedy.

But there's nothing at all humorous intended in this movie. Even Ingmar Bergman, who Bille August tries so hard to emulate as director, got a lighter touch in later years. He took a similarly sprawling family saga like "Fanny and Alexander" and gave it warmth and humanity amidst a background of tragedy.

This isn't August's first offense. The success of the bleak but moving "Pelle the Conquerer" was followed by the stiff, Bergman-scripted "The Best Intentions." If the torch really has been passed on from the legendary Swedish filmmaker, it grows dimmer with each successive August film.

Watching Glenn Close as Esteban's sister and housekeeper, I couldn't help but think of Cloris Leachman in those haggy pants she's often forced to play. The script attempts to deal with lesbian longings for Clara, but the stiff, Victorian approach again comes off comically.

Like most of the actors in the movie, Close ages some 40 years in the span of two hours. I felt I only aged half as much while watching.

Winona Ryder plays the rebellious daughter who falls for handsome peasant rabble rouser Antonio Banderas. Their scenes take place amidst a political coup in the early '70s, when she is dragged away by the military and suffers at the hands of her lecherous half-brother, her father's bastard son.

You can get away with sappy scripting, overacting, even a bombastic musical score in melodrama. Emotion, after all, is the key. But here, in "House of the Spirits," I kept wondering if the actors weren't secretly suppressing laughter as much as I was.

"Fiorile" (Italy - 1992). 7, 9:30 p.m. Apr. 8-9; 4, 7 p.m. Apr. 10. On a car trip from Paris to Tuscany, two children learn the story of the 18th-century curse that shaped not only the fates of their ancestors but also that of the grandfather they are on their way to meet. From the creators of the poetic "Padre Padrone" and "Night of the Shooting Stars."

"Fitzcarraldo" (Germany - 1982). 9 p.m. Apr. 9-10. In what may be Werner Herzog's most eccentric (and at 157 minutes, longest) undertaking, Klaus Kinski must lug a 320-ton ship over a mountain in the Amazon. Sure, the premise sounds great, but it's the story behind the making of the film (chronicled in the documentary "Burden of Dreams") that proves far more interesting.

■ MAGIC BAG THEATRE
22918 Woodward, Ferndale. Call 544-3030 for information. ($4)

"Sid and Nancy" (Britain - 1986). 8 p.m. Apr. 7. Gary Oldman and Chloe Webb star as punk rock's penultimate couple in this depressing and insightful look at the rise of the Sex Pistols and fall of Sid Vicious. Alex Cox directs.

"Four Weddings and a Funeral" (Britain - 1994). From Mike Newell, the director of "Enchanted April," an engaging story about a confirmed bachelor who runs across the same woman at the numerous weddings he attends. Hugh Grant and Andie MacDowell star.

"The Hudsucker Proxy" (USA - 1994). The camera is the real star in this wacky account of a business graduate's rise from mail room to president's office in 1958. His invention, the Hula Hoop, becomes a Baby Boom phenomenon. Capra meets surrealism in this latest from Joel and Ethan Coen ("Raising Arizona" and "Barton Fink"), co-scripted by former Detroiter Sam Raimi.

"Schindler's List" (USA - 1993). Steven Spielberg swept the Academy Awards with this story of Oskar Schindler (Liam Neeson), a war profiteer and Nazi crony who saved the lives of over 1,000 Jews during the Holocaust.

"Fritz the Cat" (USA - 1972). 9 p.m. Apr. 4. The once- controversial X-rated cartoon is now a dated, but still funny, take on lifestyles of the '60s and early '70s. Conceived by Ralph Bakshi and based loosely on Robert Crumb comic characters.

'Fire in Sky' — unexpectedly good

BY LEANNE ROGERS
STAFF WRITER

An apparent visit to Arizona by aliens — the extraterrestrial kind as opposed to ones from Mexico — has a tremendous impact on a couple best friends in the 1993 film "Fire in the Sky."

The generally understated film seems to have been directed to the wrong audience. It's not a paranoid sci-fi thriller or action-adventure film. While it's certainly about UFOs and aliens, it's more importantly about the human toll a traumatic experience takes a couple working stiffs.

Based on a true story, the film opens with riders in a pickup truck, careening out of the mountains in terror. The men were part of a logging crew but when they return to town they are one person short. Led by their crew leader, played by Robert Patrick, the men agree to stick by their story. They are obviously aware that reporting their co-worker taken by a spaceship is going to be greeted with skepticism by the authorities.

The always reliable D.B. Sweeney plays Travis Walton on whose book the film is based. Walton makes the bad choice of getting out of the truck to take a closer look at the flashing lights that leads to a nasty close encounter with aliens.

The film does a nice job of showing the relationship between the two men, the single Walton being more of a dreamer, just the kind of guy who would walk up to the UFO see what's going on.

James Garner is the veteran state police investigator who is called in to help with the case after the local sheriff hears the story. Garner's cop has seen it all and doesn't believe in the alien abduction for a minute. He figures one of them must have killed the missing man. When Walton turns up five days later, naked, dehydrated, emotionally and physically traumatized, Garner figures it's a scam to make money selling his phony abduction story.

The performances are all very good in the film. Patrick is especially good as a man whose financial and family problems are serious before his friend disappears. Being suspected of killing his best friend by people he has known all his life and pursued by the media and UFO fanatics push him to the point of cracking.

The special effects of Walton in the spaceship are interesting and well done, but it's only a small part of the film. It's a very good film, directed by Robert Lieberman, that is compelling and rather unexpected.

"Fire in the Sky" is available on tape at local video stores. If you have a question or comment, call LeAnne Rogers at (313) 953-2103 or write her at The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

Possum Dixon will play St. Andrew's Hall in Detroit, on Saturday, April 16, with the Rev. Horton Heat. Call (313) 961-MELT for more information.

Members of the local roots rock quartet The Volebeats got bored with trendy sounds and turned toward their acoustic guitars upon forming the band in the 1980s. What they didn't realize was that the dreaded "A" (alternative) and "C" (country) words were going to be the driving forces behind the Detroit-based group.

"It has just taken an identity of its own," said guitarist Matthew Smith during an interview at the Beat Hotel record store in Berkley. As a result, the former street corner musicians have become bigger fans of "real" country music produced by the likes of Johnny Cash.

"We still don't have anything in common with ("Young Country" bands). . . . Those country bands all sound like New Kids on the Block," he added.

Later this month The Volebeats will release the CD "Up North," its debut for the New Hampshire-based Safe House Records which also works with the Lunachicks and Half-Japanese. "Up North" follows the 1992 release of their Icon Records single "Knowing Me, Knowing You," the reworking of Abba's hit single.

The Volebeats — which also includes vocalist Jeff Oakes, guitarist Bob McCreedy, bassist Russ Ledford, and drummer Keir McDonald — will celebrate the upcoming release with a Friday, April 8, party at the Magic Bag Theatre Cafe, Woodward Avenue north of Nine Mile Road, Ferndale. The Demolition Dollroids open the 18 and older show which begins at 9 p.m. For more information, call (810) 544-3030. For more information about the release of "Up North," write Safe House Records, P.O. Box 5349, W. Lebanon, NY 03784-5349.

The theme song from the sitcom "Charles in Charge" doesn't seem like it would be high on the list of songs that rock bands would like to cover. But Lemonheads lead singer Evan Dando said he was crushed when his new favorite band Smudge beat him to the punch and recorded it on their latest album. Nevertheless, it was one of 11 songs that Dando did at Ann Arbor's Tower Records during an in-store performance that also included "It's About Time," "Confetti," "Into Your Arms"and "Being Around."

During the performance, which was broadcast live on Ann Arbor pop rock radio station WIQB, Dando was accompanied only by his "Doogie Howser guitar," a brown wood Gibson model. The wide-eyed Dando, who recently shaved off his trademark long brown locks, couldn't really explain why he called it such.

"I don't know; it just looks kind of rudimentary."

After his show he travelled to East Lansing to join his band for a show at the MSU Auditorium. The band will return to the area on Saturday, June 11, to open for Lenny Kravitz at Pine Knob Music Theatre. Call (810) 377-8200 for more information.

POINTS OF VIEW

Treatment's not equal when it comes to traffic tickets

OK, it's time to drop the pretense about equal treatment for men and women when it comes to traffic tickets.

Let's face it, women don't get tickets as often as men. It's unequal treatment, an injustice to all men. But then being men we don't complain about it.

On a recent day a co-worker, a female, was telling a story about being pulled over on I-275 while doing 90 miles an hour. The cop didn't give her a ticket.

"He told me he was looking for somebody to talk to, so I talked to him for a while."

Meanwhile, a male co-worker was sitting at his desk looking at a ticket he received for going about five miles over the speed limit on Hines Drive. For him it was a $65 mistake, for her it was a minor delay.

About that time a woman pulled into our office parking lot being trailed by a Plymouth police officer. She was doing 45 in a 25 mile an hour zone. And did she get a ticket? No, just a warning.

I'm not being sexist about this. Even the women I've quizzed about the subject tend to agree. One female co-worker contends that even if you're a little bit blonde, you can get out of traffic tickets.

One blonde asked about the subject said she has been let off four times. Meanwhile, her husband has more points than a swamp buck and is in danger of losing his license.

The reason for all this is obvious. Since most cops tend to be male, they let the better looking women off and dump on the men to make their traffic ticket quotas.

JEFF COUNTS

One female co-worker contends that even if you're a little bit blonde, you can get out of traffic tickets.

The remedy for all this is simple. Hire more female police officers. As one blonde said: "Women are mean to each other, they would give each other tickets."

I can agree with that one.

On another subject, in a recent column I asked readers to share how they got though the winter. I heard from Duane "Gus" Honsowetz temporarily of Redford. "I spent the winter staring at my broken leg."

Honsowetz is an old newspaper friend who now lives in Grand Marais in the Upper Peninsula and was walking out of one of my favorites, the Dunes Saloon, on Dec. 9 and fell. No, Gus doesn't drink. Anyway, he broke the leg in the fall and wintered in Toledo and Detroit with his children.

For Gus, a winter in Detroit is a breeze compared to the 10-foot snow drifts along Lake Superior. Gus plans to be back in Grand Marais by April 10.

"We'll still get a snow storm or two after that," he said.

I'm thankful to Gus for reminding me how wimpy we suburban Detroiters can be when it comes to winter.

Jeff Counts is the editor of the Plymouth and Canton Observer Newspapers. He averages about two traffic tickets a year. He can be reached at 459-2700.

Parents, educators must heed different learning styles

GUEST COLUMNIST

THOMAS HERBST

Puzzled parents frequently ask me why their children are so different. Brothers and sisters raised by the same parents in the same house should have more in common, the parents reason. I can only lend a sympathetic ear and tell them that teachers see the same phenomenon. In fact, siblings can be so different, we educators wonder how they could possibly be from the same family.

I can't totally explain the differences. But it is a fact that children mature at different rates. It is the responsibility of parents and educators to acknowledge these differences in the children, yet keep them on course in the classroom.

With this in mind, I encourage parents to take a critical look at the education that each child receives. Some children flourish in a traditional classroom, while others process information in a much different manner.

The best teachers know this. They know that students have a variety of learning styles. Accordingly, they present lessons utilizing an abundance of materials and using a variety of teaching strategies to accommodate the differences. This approach takes careful preparation on the part of the teacher and commitment on the part of the school. Flexibility is essential.

Currently, we emphasize two kinds of abilities in school: Linguistic and logical-math. Educational research, however, is identifying a number of other kinds of intelligence.

For instance, Harvard psychologist Howard Gardner claims there are seven different kinds of intelligence. Experts like author and educator Thomas Armstrong theorize that if educators could broaden their methods of teaching, they could reach more students.

In a recent study — based on research in 1,000 classrooms across the country and interviews with 27,000 students, teachers and parents — John Goodlad, former dean of the school of education at the University of California, found that students are often bored with the traditional teaching methods. In his book based on this study, Goodlad paints the picture of schools as "dull wastelands." Disenchanted students, the study found, lose interest over the years. By the time they reach high school, only 27 percent are still engaged by their lessons.

What can we do? I suggest that we not force our children into molds, but understand that each is going to learn in his or her own way. Schools need to be honest about their mission and their methods. It must be understood that not every child will respond to the same educational environment. Parents must search and match each child's needs with an appropriate school setting. With this in mind, school choice (and, by extension, school variety) takes on a compelling new view.

Thomas Herbst is headmaster of Kensington Academy, an independent coed, Catholic day school for students pre-kindergarten through eighth grade. It is located in Bloomfield Hills.

Vested interests make the outfit

If you've been window shopping for spring and summer fashions, you've noticed the proliferation of vests. They're everywhere. And instead of being part of a three-piece suit, they're today's essential accessory.

No longer does a vest have to match an outfit in fabric or in silhouette. A vest is a layer that adds texture, pattern, color and proportion to just about anything you choose to pair it with.

Wear short vests over long tunics, long vests over longer dresses, sheer over fitted, silk over denim, crochet over linen. You name it. The vest adds a certain dimension to a look. It changes the attitude from structured to soft and fluid.

Why not update your wardrobe with one of spring's best vests? The options are limitless.

Celia Block of Farmington Hills will exhibit her handpainted silk vests at the Temple Israel Art Fair, 5725 Walnut Lake Road, April 16-18. Block paints with silk dyes on charmeuse, raw silk and crepe de chine, creating accessories that are wearable works-of-art ($80-$192). Pictured is "Leopard in the Garden," an intricate painting that juxtaposes the animal print with Monet-like flora and fauna. Other patterns include the vibrant Kaleidocolor and Shadowbox, and a painterly Floral Batik. "I love color, can you tell?" asks Block, pointing to her electric blue and hot pink designs.

Vest styles include belted backs, tunic or fingertip lengths and the ankle-grazing coat vest. All are sized to fit small, medium, large and extra-sized (18 and up) women. To see Block's vests and other painted silk designs or to custom order, call for an appointment at 489-7165.

Lengths will vary

At a recent fashion show, Hudson's strutted a myriad of vest styles down the runway. Included in the collection were a long basil vest by Sunny Leigh worn over a longer ivory crinkle tunic and a wide-leg basil crinkle pant. Also seen, a cropped knit vest that added pattern and texture to a ribbed top, knit cardigan and linen pant.

The audience was treated to such unusual silhouettes as a short black and khaki vest layered over a partially buttoned tunic, over a blouse and flowing sheer pants; and a black lace-up tank vest over a white tee and long floral wrap skirt by Streetwear. Mix and match pieces from your entire wardrobe and your outfit will be model perfect. Anything goes.

The Somerset Collection in Troy's spring fashion show also featured vests with everything from linen suits to chiffon dresses. The new Joan Vass Store showed a black tie-front vest with matching tunic and pants, while Episode and Mondi showcased banana-hued print dresses topped with vests in contrasting colors. Ann Taylor's take on the vest was a blue cross-stitch pattern worn over full pants and Steilmann went native with a jungle print vest accenting a coordinating sarong skirt.

For the guys, Barneys New York shows a stripe vest worn alone under a light olive jacket or a knit vest over a long linen shirt with shorts and pants. The look imparts a casual elegance with a contemporary flair. Hudson's pairs an antique map print three-button vest with a silk shirt and a more traditional striped vest over a band-collar black linen shirt for updated menswear styling.

MORE THAN YOU BARGAINED FOR

Rand McNally clerk puts shop on the map

This is the debut of a monthly Malls & Mainstreets feature — a testimonial to excellent customer service. Shoppers can win a canvas bag for themselves and their favorite salesperson by submitting short stories about positive shopping experiences.

Dearborn resident Sandy Boulton walked into the Rand McNally store at The Somerset Collection in Troy, curious about the merchandise and "just browsing."

"I wondered how the map company keeps up with the turbulent, changing geographic borders. How do they manage to stay current and reliable?" she said. "Within a few minutes, Evelyn Schneider, a sales associate, approached and asked if I needed some help."

Boulton said Schneider agreed that it is a challenge for Rand McNally to stay accurate, but the map company continually makes updates, improvements and changes to its inventory.

Schneider pulled out a book with several samples of different types of world maps and went on to explain the unique features and prices of each. She pointed out that some maps are printed on paper while others are made of fibrous paper, almost like cloth, that defies tearing. She even offered the opinions of other shoppers about what kind of world maps they preferred and why.

"I asked to see a city map of Atlanta, Georgia, that showed streets, attractions and points of interest," Boulton said.

"Evelyn said she didn't have an Atlanta map with all the features I wanted, but she showed me other city maps that Rand McNally made which were similar — foldouts of more famous destinations like New York City, Chicago and Washington, D.C. These maps were great.

"To make a long story short, I ended up buying a map of the world to frame for my office because Evelyn sold it so well. She was very learned. She knew her product, yet she didn't push the sale," Boulton added. "I'm very pleased with my map because I love to travel, love maps, and looking at them inspires me. I'll keep Rand McNally in mind before I leave on my next venture and I will recommend the store to friends."

A final note: When hearing of Evelyn Schneider's recognition by Malls & Mainstreets, the Rand McNally company decided to present her with a map-covered duffel bag worth $85 that her manager said she's been eyeing. Congratulations!

2 furniture stores hold liquidation sales

Stewart-Glenn Furniture in Bloomfield Hills and Ray Interiors in downtown Farmington will close their doors following liquidation sales now in progress.

The closing of these neighborhood home furnishing stores, plus Jacobson's recent elimination of its furniture division, leaves shoppers with fewer places to go for loveseats and bedroom sets. But Stewart-Glenn owner James Oakley of Troy said other avenues have opened.

"The furniture business isn't what it used to be 77 years ago when my grandfather, John Stewart, founded the company," he said. "Nowadays, people go down south for big furniture purchases and those that don't, shop in the furniture chain stores where they get bigger discounts than the small, independent dealer can offer. Price-driven shoppers, factory-direct buying and the recession figured in my decision to close the store."

Oakley sold his 14,400-square-foot building on Woodward, south of Square Lake to Philip Seaver of the Seaver Title Co., next door. He promised Seaver the building would be vacant by June.

Seaver said he plans to use half the space to expand his business offices. The other half of the building will be used for a retail or business development.

Stewart-Glenn merchandise is marked 30 to 65 percent off regular price while it lasts. The lines include Pennsylvania House, Harden, Conover, Hammary, Sligh, Stiffel, Hitchcock and more.

Time to go

Ray Interiors, Inc. owner Bill Ray said he just wants to retire after 56 years and many long hours in the retail business. The Ray Interiors showroom is on Farmington Road south of Grand River. It was Michigan's first Drexel Heritage store.

The 14,000-square-foot building is owned by Kelly Brothers Enterprises, Inc. of Farmington. The Kellys are looking at various options for the building once Ray Interiors has gone, including leasing the building to the post office.

Ray has been liquidating his merchandise at 50-percent off for the past month. He said his sales staff is willing to negotiate prices for the remaining stock.

Jacobson's spokeswoman Janice Hayes said the department store had no regrets about leaving the "home dec market."

Moutain Bike Patrol: Twelve Oaks Mall security officer Carl Dowell gets plenty of exercise and fresh air while patrolling the shopping center parking lot on his new mountain bike.

Bicycle built for blue patrols Twelve Oaks lot

Twelve Oaks Mall has added bicycle patrol to its shopping center security force.

The 18-speed, black mountain bike is part of the Novi shopping center's new Bike Patrol Unit composed of eight security officers who will rotate riding duty with other security patrols.

While on the bike, they'll monitor the center's parking lots and assist shoppers with everything from directions to dead batteries.

It will operate during all daylight hours, according to Phil Morosco, Twelve Oaks general manager.

"The young shoppers are fascinated with the idea of a security officer on a bike," he said. "Our merchants love it, too, because it brings a very personal touch to the entire center."

The Twelve Oaks Bike Patrol dresses for success in custom uniforms, navy blue polo shirts and shorts, a sturdy biking helmet, black gym shoes and standard duty belts with radios.

As officers pedal through the parking lot, they'll check cars in handicapped parking places for permits, keep fire lanes clear, help shoppers who have locked themselves out of their cars or who can't locate their vehicles. They'll also give directions and perform a variety of other security functions.

"Being out there on a bike where people can easily talk to us gives us a wonderful opportunity to get closer to our customers," said Terry McCauley, Twelve Oaks security director. "It increases our visibility in a way that everyone enjoys, and it's much less intimidating than an officer in an enclosed patrol car."

Besides making officers more accessible to shoppers, the Bike Patrol Unit is better able to monitor areas inaccessible to cars.

Twelve Oaks Mall, at Twelve Mile and Novi Road, features 180 shops and services along with Hudson's, Lord & Taylor, JC Penney and Sears.

"Now we can focus on being a fashion store, our core business," she said. "The home furnishings industry as a whole is changing anyway. People are shopping in the Carolinas directly and ordering pieces from design studios. Furniture showrooms take an enormous amount of space. At a studio, you just need fabric samples and a few frame designs. We're putting our energies into bridal services and expanding our childrens' department."

Jim and Martha Gavulic of Troy are considering buying a few pieces of furniture direct from the mills in North Carolina.

"All you need is the stock number and you can order a $5,000 bedroom set for $3,000 or $2,500 because the middle man is eliminated," Gavulic pointed out. "I know neighbors who have bought their carpeting and drapery fabric directly from the Carolina mills as well. You get the product at cost, then you just pay the freight charge."

Mary Champine of Livonia said she knew all about buying direct from southern factories but would miss Ray Interiors for the service and large showroom. "I just loved browsing through that store, getting the feel of different pieces, taking home decorating ideas," she said. "They had a lot of unique items."

Playful restaurants cater to kids, parents

Is it just our imagination or have there been epidemic openings of restaurants that cater to kids?

Ask Jessica Janes, the eldest of the Janes Gang who, at age 10, has experienced such noted eateries as the Discovery Zone (DZ), Kid Kingdom, Chuck E. Cheese, Major Magic's and recently, the Table Tavern. Canton already has two – Chuck E Cheese's and Kid Kingdom – within two miles of each other.

Prior to her recent experience at the Table Tavern in Sterling Heights, a new venture by the formidable Matt Prentice of Sebastians/Morels/Bruschetta et al fame, Jessica Janes had experienced the pizza at Chuck E. Cheese's with mixed emotions.

When you couple it with the fact that she won two hairbands, four bracelets, three pencils and an eraser shaped like a giant rat, she would tell you that her experience was "great." Visiting Chuck E. Cheese's set the Janes Gang back about $30 with tokens and all.

Table Tavern

When the Janes Gang walked into Prentice's Table Tavern in Sterling Heights, Jessica immediately noticed that this place wasn't even close to being equal to those other pizza playgrounds.

After seating mom and dad, and presenting them with a beeper to keep track of the Janes Gang kids, Jessica and her brother Jeff were escorted "upstairs" to an exciting playroom made just for kids. The walls were airbrushed with castle, jungle and dinosaur scenes. The playroom was packed with jump ropes, Hula Hoops (remember those?) Nintendo, giant stuffed animals, an outdoor basketball court, videos and assorted games for everyone from the age of 3 to 13.

Best of all, the kids were fed and entertained upstairs while their parents enjoyed the quieter lower area and feasted on such delicacies as baby back ribs, Caesar salad and chicken fajitas.

Video monitors are positioned around the room so parents can keep an eye on their brood. There are also pool tables, darts and a big screen television should the family wish to play together in a more adult atmosphere. The attendants were nice and helpful, played with the kids, and kept the rotation even on Nintendo sets.

Kids pay $2.99 to go "upstairs," and that includes dinner. Mom and dad's dinner tab totaled just under $18. It was quite a steal, and a lot quieter than having pizza with a giant rat. The Table Tavern is in a league all its own and worth the drive out I-696.

Major Magic's

For those looking for a little higher energy level, we just couldn't resist an invitation to the newly opened Major Magic's All Star Pizza Review in Livonia.

This was a veritable feast of the senses the likes of which we have never seen – anywhere. There's a show-stopping house band featuring a madcap menagerie of players including a rockin' and a rollin' gorilla, a pair of country pickin' bears and a crazy combo of musical instruments that play themselves. The game room is jam packed with the latest and greatest money-eating amusements, but what really beckoned the Janes Gang kids was Fort Magic, a fun-filled indoor playground.

The menu at Major Magic's features roast beef and submarine sandwiches, hot dogs, salad bar, nachos and, of course, pizza. It's certainly not the place to bring momma for a quiet Sunday afternoon meal with the family, but the kids, as usual, went ballistic over Major Magic's. The cost? $41.50 for a little over two hours.

Ask any second grader in Jeffrey Janes' class at Cleveland School in Livonia what his favorite spot is and you'll probably get a resounding "DZ!" throughout the classroom.

We also visited the Discovery Zone in Westland. A special room is set aside for parents, and the place is just what our kids love – loud and active with tons of things to do and play.

The food was typically "fast," and it soon became evident that "DZ" was a place to see, be seen, and play rather than eat. My kids complained of a headache from the noise level. We left after an hour and a half.

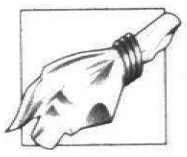
TASTY PURSUIT

Chinese cook wins prize with authentic dish



At his son-in-law's suggestion, Wayne Hu, a retired engineer, entered the Pillsbury Bake-Off and was selected as a finalist. He enjoys recreating rich dishes of his native China. Cooking is his hobby, and he finds it relaxing.

BY SANDRA DALKA-PRYSBY
SPECIAL WRITER

Forty years ago Wayne Hu of West Bloomfield started cooking because he had no other choice. If he wanted to enjoy the rich tastes of his native China, he had to make them.

Now he cooks because he enjoys it. And this enjoyment led Hu to the recent Pillsbury Bake-Off Contest and a $2,000 prize for his Chinese Roast Pork Buns.

"My son-in-law suggested that I enter the contest because I'm always cooking," the retired engineer said. "I think he meant it as a joke, but I decided it might be fun. I was really surprised that I was selected as a finalist from the tens of thousands of recipes entered in the Bake-Off."

According to a spokesperson for the 36th Bake-Off Cooking and Baking Contest, Hu was one of only eight men in the 100 finalists and, at age 77, he was the oldest.

He came to the United States on the last boat to leave China before the Pearl Harbor attack. "I came to work on a master's degree in structural engineering at the University of Michigan. I lived in a co-op and was required to work three hours a week. I volunteered to cook Chinese food."

He explained that even after he married his wife, Lillian, years ago (they are the parents of three grown children and have four grandchildren), he continued to handle the Chinese cooking.

"Although my wife is Chinese, she was born in America, and she doesn't really know how to cook authentic Chinese dishes. Besides, cooking is my hobby. I find it very creative and relaxing."

According to Hu, he was honored to be named finalist and was thrilled with the opportunity to take part in the Bake-Off, held at the Hotel del Coronado in San Diego.

"There were 100 cooking stations set up in the auditorium of the hotel. All the ingredients I needed for my recipe were provided at my assigned work station. I had up to six hours to prepare and cook

FOCUS ON WINE

ELEANOR & RAY HEALD

You can afford to drink Bordeaux wines more often! While the top chateaux wines from the best years remain expensive, there's a lot of good drinking from Bordeaux satellite appellations, second labels of top chateaux and Crus Bourgeois classifications.

The true connoisseur, not obsessed with luxury names and prestigious appellations, will find a bevy of bargain drinking in the satellite districts of Bordeaux, such as Cotes de Blaye, Cotes de Bourg, Fronsac, Canon Fronsac and Cotes de Castillon. These districts account for more than half the production of Bordeaux reds. The best are usually marketed under a chateau label and provide good drinking for five to six years from the vintage.

The vast majority of Bordeaux reds are principally blends of cabernet sauvignon, merlot and cabernet franc. In the satellite appellations, merlot tends to dominate the blend and gives the wine a soft, lush palate impression. Excellent chateau names to look for from the Bordeaux satellite regions are: Chateau La Tonnelle, Cotes

Fudgy bonbons win the prize

"Chocolate is my passion," said Mary Anne Tyndall of Whiteville, N.C. whose Fudgy Bonbons earned her $50,000 at the 36th annual Pillsbury Bake-Off Contest. She also won a $10,000 Sears Kenmore Appliance Kitchen Makeover.

Here's the winning recipe.

FUDGY BONBONS

1 (12-ounce) package (2 cups) semi-sweet chocolate chips
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 (14 ounce) can sweetened condensed milk (not evaporated)
2 cups Pillsbury Best All Purpose or unbleached flour
½ cup finely chopped nuts, if desired
1 teaspoon vanilla
60 milk chocolate candy kisses or white and chocolate-striped candy kisses, unwrapped
2 ounces white baking bar or vanilla-flavored candy coating
1 teaspoon shortening or oil

Heat oven to 350 degrees F. In medium saucepan, combine chocolate chips and butter; cook and stir over very low heat until chips are melted and smooth. Add sweetened condensed milk; mix well.

Lightly spoon flour into measuring cup; level off. In medium bowl, combine flour, nuts, chocolate mixture and vanilla; mix well. Shape 1 tablespoonful (use measuring spoon) of dough around each candykiss, covering completely. Place 1 inch apart on ungreased cookie sheets.

Bake at 350 degrees F. for 6 to 8 minutes. Cookies will be soft and appear shiny but become firm as they cool. Do not overbake. Remove from cookie sheets; cool.

In small saucepan, combine white baking bar and shortening; cook and stir over low heat until melted and smooth. Drizzle over cookies. Store in tightly covered container. Yield 5 dozen cookies.

my recipe."

Hu said that his finished buns, which he jokingly calls "Chinese hamburgers," were taken to the judges for judging and the results were announced the last day of the four-day competition.

"I couldn't believe it when it was announced that I was one of the money winners."

While Hu was making his now-famous Chinese Roast Pork Buns at range number 32, another local cook was preparing her Chicken Suiza Corn Bread Bake at Range number 77.

"I couldn't believe I was assigned number 77. I graduated from high school in 1977, and here I was wearing a 77 on my back again," said finalist Lori Ann Nelson of Rochester Hills.

Also, a first-time entrant, Nelson said she took a family-favorite side dish, did a little alteration and made it into a main dish with Mexican flavor.

According to Nelson, who paints, designs jewlry, decorates clothing and makes a variety of other handicrafts, her husband Jeffry really likes the dish. "He can eat the whole thing himself," she said.

Nelson said that participating in the contest was a fantastic experience. "I met such wonderful people from all over the United States." Finalists represented 32 states and Puerto Rico.

Although Nelson did not win a cash prize, she nonetheless considers herself a winner.

"Before I was named a finalist, I began a diet and have done well. I had the opportunity to taste all the entries, but I didn't. My diet is too important to me. I'm winner because I'm getting healthy and fit."

• Like Hu, Nelson had such a positive experience in the cooking contest that she plans to enter the 37th Bake-Off in 1996. In the meantime, both have invited you to enjoy their winning recipes.

dc Blave ($8), Chateau _ Pitray, Cotes de Castillon ($12), Chateau Canon de Brem, Canon Fronsac ($16).

White Bordeaux wines account for less than half of the region's wines. Yet, Bordeaux is the largest appellation for still white appellation controlee (A.O.C.) wines of France. These wines are blends of sauvignon blanc and semillon and make perfect aperitifs as well as good matches with seafood and chicken dishes. You can find many for $10 and under.

Investigate second labels of the top-ranked chateaux. The best wine is called the Grand Vin and carries the chateau name. The second label has a name of its own, sometimes it's related to the name of the Grand Vin, sometimes it's not. These wines may require a search, but once found they provide a wealth of great drinking at bargain prices.

■ The true connoisseur, not obsessed with luxury names and prestigious appellations, will find a bevy of bargain drinking in the satellite districts of Bordeaux, such as Cotes de Blaye, Cotes de Bourg, Fronsac, Canon Fronsac and Cotes de Castillon.

If your retailer knows you're interested they should be willing to help your search.

Eric Miailhe, proprietor of the Haut Medoc Cru Bourgeois Chateau Coufran said it best. "The object of a Cru Bourgeois is to be drinkable when released, yet ageable five to six years.

"Wine should be drunk. Bordeaux wines may be aged five to 15 years before drinking. After that, wine becomes art, not beverage. Our goal is to have people drink Chateau Coufran without regard to vintage because they have confidence that it is a consistently good product. Two major differences between the classified growths and Bourgeois Growths are selection and oak."

Classified growths employ a stricter barrel selection and use a greater percentage of new oak for their Grand Vin than do the Bourgeois Growths. For example, the top Bordeaux chateaux age their wines in 100 percent new oak while Cru Bourgeois use approximately 20 percent new oak.

Look for the following Cru Bourgeois chateaux: Coufran, Greysac, Les Ormes de Pez, Magnol, Marbuzet, Meyney, Phelan Segur, Pibran, Soudars and Verdignan.

What's the price? For the 10 recommended Cru Bourgeois, the answer is $10 to $20.

Biscuit dough is wrapped around barbecue filling to make a Chinese treat known as Bau Buns.

CHINESE ROAST PORK BUNS

ROAST PORK
¼ cup firmly packed brown sugar
¼ cup ketchup
2 tablespoons soy sauce
2 tablespoons hoisin sauce
1 tablespoon dry sherry
1 garlic clove, minced
1½ pound pork steaks (½ inch thick)
SAUCE
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 tablespoon dry sherry
1 tablespoon peanut oil or oil
½ cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped water chestnuts
1 tablespoon soy sauce
1 tablespoon hoisin sauce
½ cup chicken broth
BISCUITS
1 (17.3-ounce) can Pillsbury Grands! Refrigerated Buttermilk Biscuits
GLAZE
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon water
1 egg white

Heat oven to 375 degrees F. Line broiler pan with foil. In blender container or food processor bowl with metal blade, combine all roast pork ingredients except pork; blend until smooth. Generously brush both sides of the pork steaks, reserving remaining basting sauce. Place pork steaks on foil-lined broiler pan.

Bake at 375 degrees F. for 30 minutes. Remove pork from oven. Brush both sides of steaks with remaining basting sauce. Bake an additional 10 to 20 minutes or until tender. Remove from oven; cool. Remove meat from bone; finely chop. Set aside.

In small bowl, combine cornstarch and 1 tablespoon sherry; blend well. Heat oil in wok or large skillet over high heat. Add onion and water chestnuts; cook and stir 2 to 3 minutes or until onion begins to brown. Add 1 tablespoon soy sauce and 1 tablespoon hoisin sauce; stir to coat. Add chicken broth. Stir in cornstarch mixture; cook and stir until mixture begins to thicken. Remove from heat; stir in pork.

Separate dough into 8 biscuits. On lightly floured surface, press or roll each biscuit into 5-inch circle. Place about ⅓ cup pork mixture in center of each biscuit. Gathering up edges, twist and pinch to seal. Place, seam side down, on ungreased cookie sheet. In small bowl, beat glaze ingredients until well blended; brush over buns.

Bake at 375 degrees F. for 14 to 18 minutes or until golden brown. 8 sandwiches.

Poultry: fragile handle with care

Here are some tips for handling and storing poultry safely from the Oakland County Cooperative Extension Service.

■ Store raw poultry in the refrigerator for no more than 1 to 2 days before cooking or freezing. Store whole birds in the freezer up to 1 year; parts up to 9 months.

■ Before cooking poultry, throw away packaging and rinse product under cool running water. Cut on a nonporous cutting board.

■ Wash board, utensils and counter with detergent and hot water immediately.

■ Set oven temperature no lower than 325 degrees F. For doneness, cook breasts to an internal temperature of 170 degrees F. and dark meat or whole birds to 180 degrees F., or until juices run clear and flesh is tender.

■ Refrigerate leftovers within 2 hours after cooking.

BETA LATE THAN NEVER

Alongside vitamins C and E, beta-carotene stacks up as the lesser-known anti-oxidant. This precursor to vitamin A blocks the process by which the by-products of oxidation (free radicals) seek to combine with molecules in the body to cause damage and serious illness. In this role as an anti-oxidant, beta-carotene is associated with a lower risk of stroke and heart disease. According to the Physicians' Health Study at Harvard University, men who entered the study with signs of heart disease and took a 50-mg. supplement of beta-carotene every other day experienced half as many heart attacks, strokes and sudden deaths as those who did not take the supplement. Once ingested, beta-carotene converts into as much vitamin A as needed, making it impossible to take too much.

The facts are in – taking beta-carotene can do you nothing but good! At the GOOD FOOD CO., we offer a superb selection of quality natural foods, as well as an extensive selection of vitamins and supplements. We are Michigan's largest discount natural food supermarket. As such, we present this information in the interests of our community. Feel free to ask us questions about any of the products that we sell. For more information, please call us at 981-8100. We are located at 42615 Ford Rd. and are open Monday through Saturday from 9:00 to 9:00, and Sundays from 10:00 to 6:00. Remember, food can be good for you and also taste great!

P.S. Other studies have linked beta-carotene supplementation with a decreased risk of lung, colon, prostate, cervical and breast cancer.

This vegetable rigatoni replaces elaborate counterparts

With more than 28 million dual-income families in this country, it's not surprising that elaborate home-cooked meals are being replaced with less time-consuming alternatives.

To meet the demands of working families, family meals have become joint productions where dad and the children share responsibilities with mom. Involving children in dinner and snack preparation teaches responsibility and instills independence and confidence.

Today, two-thirds of children under the age of 13 are preparing one or more meals per week without supervision.

The following recipe, developed by the Canned Food Information Council, are perfect for families on the go.

BAKED RIGATONI WITH VEGETABLES

1 ounce dried shiitake Mushrooms
Hot water
Vegetable cooking spray
8 ounces canned ham, cut into ½-inch cubes
½ medium onion, chopped
2 cloves garlic, minced
2 teaspoons dried basil leaves
1 teaspoon dried oregano leaves
1 can (8 ounces) peas, drained
1 can (7 ounces) sliced carrots, drained
1 can (4 ounces) sliced mushrooms, drained
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
6 ounces rigatoni, cooked (4 cups)
Bleu Cheese Sauce (recipe follows)

Place shiitake mushrooms in small bowl; pour hot water over to cover. Let stand until soft, about 15 minutes. Drain well; slice, discarding tough centers.

Spray large skillet with cooking spray; heat over medium heat until hot. Saute ham, onion and garlic until onion is tender, about 5 minutes. Stir in herbs; cook 1 minute. Stir in peas, carrots and mushrooms; cook over medium heat until hot through. Stir in nutmeg, salt and pepper. Stir mixture into rigatoni in serving bowl. Serve with Bleu Cheese Sauce. Makes 6 servings.

Note: Dried shiitake mushrooms are available in the Oriental sections of large supermarkets.

BLUE CHEESE SAUCE

1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 tablespoon flour
2 cups skim milk
2 tablespoons crumbled blue cheese
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
¼ teaspoon pepper

Combine cornstarch and flour in medium saucepan; stir in milk. Heat to boiling; boil until thickened, stirring constantly, about 1 minute. Remove from heat; add blue cheese, nutmeg and pepper, stirring until cheese is melted. Makes about 2½ cups.

Per Serving: Calories: 281, Fat: 6.1 grams, Sodium: 1011 milligrams, Cholesterol: 51.8 milligrams.

Quick meal: Baked Rigatoni with Vegetables is perfect for families on the go who still want the flavor and nutrition of home cooked meals.

Snack foods have become a staple in the American diet

Almost eight out of 10 people snack each and every day. The National Food Consumption Survey conducted by the United States Department of Agriculture showed that people who snack have more nutritious diets than those who do not snack. In addition, the American Dietetic Association reported that preschoolers get nearly one third of their energy from snacks. Just as important, planned snacking can prevent overeating.

If you are having trouble deciding what to eat when you're having a snack attack, turn toward your freezer, recommends Peggy Smith-Barbaro of the National Food Association to find healthy snacks throughout the day.

Plain and simple frozen facts about snacks makefrozen foods the perfect snack food for today's health-conscious lifestyles.

■ Fruit shakes — One great low-fat way to increase your family's fruit intake is with frozen fruit shakes. For each individual shake place the following into a blender: 1 cup of your favorite frozen fruit, still frozen; two ice cubes; ½ cup lowfat milk and ¼ cup frozen juice concentrate. Berries, sliced strawberries and melon work particularly well. If the frozen fruit is unsweetened, you may want to add 2 teaspoons of sugar or equivalent low calorie sweetener. Blend at medium speed for 30 seconds. Remove ice cubes. Pour and serve. For a real treat, top with one tablespoon low fat frozen whipped topping.

■ Vegetable snacks — Frozen vegetables also provide a tasty snack alternative. Use frozen vegetables such as chopped spinach, chopped broccoli or mixed vegetables to make a tangy vegetable dip by blending ½ cup defrosted, but not heated, frozen vegetables with ¼ cup picante sauce and ½ cup low-fat cottage cheese. Blend until smooth. Serve chilled with vegetables as a dip. Or serve as a spread on top of thawed and toasted bagels or bread from the freezer that has been baked to golden brown.

Bacteria can be avoided with precautions

Ground meat is more perishable than most foods. Since you can't see, smell or taste bacteria, keep ground beef cold recommends the Food Marketing Institute and American Meat Institute.

Here are some safe handling tips.

■ Choose ground meat packages that are cold and tightly wrapped. The meat surface exposed to air will be red; interior of fresh meat will be dark.

■ Put refrigerated and frozen foods in your grocery cart last and make the grocery store your last stop before home.

■ Pack perishables in an ice chest if it will take you more than an hour to get home.

■ Place ground meat in the refrigerator or freezer immediately.

■ Defrost ground meat in the refrigerator, never at room temperature. If microwave defrosting, cook immediately.

■ Keep uncooked ground meat in the refrigerator. Cook or freeze within one to two days.

■ Use or freeze cooked ground meat stored in the refrigerator within three to four days.

■ For best quality, store frozen raw ground meats no longer than three to four months; cooked meats, 2 to 3 months.

'Fat facts' sometimes clouded by outdated myths

Interest in low-fat eating is booming, but along with that interest, myths about dietary fat also abound. Some are based on information that has been outdated by more current research, while others are simply misinterpretations of newly-published findings. Karen Collins, a registered dietitian for the American Institute for Cancer Research, separates fact from fiction.

Myth: As long as I use margarine instead of butter, the amount doesn't matter.

This myth is based on outdated knowledge about polyunsaturated fats and cholesterol. Margarine, especially tub types, is made mostly with polyunsaturated instead of saturated fat, so it is less likely to raise blood cholesterol. However, margarines do contain fats that can raise cancer risk the same as butter fat. And unless the margarine is actually a "spread," containing less fat and more water, the calories in margarine and butter are the same.

Myth: I use very liule addedfat in cooking or at the table, so I must have a low-fat diet.

Not necessarily. Each of us gets our fat from different sources, but the average American gets most fat from "hidden fat" in fatty meats and meat products, high-fat dairy products, and fat-laden snacks. For a healthy low-fat diet, eat such foods only occasionally.

Myth 3: The most important step to lower high blood cholesterol is to limit cholesterol in the diet.

Lowering cholesterol in the diet can help to some extent, but it is not the most important step. Cholesterol in our blood does not come only from cholesterol we eat, but is also made within our own bodies. Limiting fats, particularly saturated fat, is the most important step for lowering blood cholesterol, because they prompt our bodies to create more cholesterol. To limit saturated fat, choose lean meats and non-fat (or low-fat) dairy products, and limit portions.

Myth 4: When it comes to fat, the lower the better.

The average American now gets about 37 percent of calories from fat, considerably above recommendations of organizations like the American Institute for Cancer Research that we get no more than 30 percent of calories from fat. However, don't aim to cut out all fat; some is necessary for producing important body substances, and also makes a diet more satisfying. Rather than aiming so low you can't stand to continue, it is far more important to gradually work toward a low-fat diet (from 20 to 30 percent) that you can live with long-term.

This puree plays many roles with nutritious reviews

Vegetable purees add a touch of style, color and nutrition to any plate. With their smooth texture, they seem to provide a more intense vegetable flavor, while serving up a good portion of sound vegetable nutrition. The versatile puree can play many roles in a meal — as a side dish, an omelet filling, a soup, an appetizer, a stuffing for other vegetables or even a sauce for pasta.

To be pureed, green vegetables such as spinach, asparagus, and broccoli should be steamed until tender so they retain as much as possible of their nutrients, color and fresh taste. Root vegetables can be boiled or steamed, but need more cooking time to soften and tame their strong flavors. Some vegetables, such as eggplant or bell peppers, are baked or broiled before they are pureed.

When a vegetable can be pierced very easily with the tip of a sharp knife, it is soft enough to puree — more tender than for serving whole and not at all crunchy. Be sure, however, not to cook it beyond this point or its flavor, color and nutritional content could be diminished.

A food processor can puree all kinds of foods at high speed and with great efficiency. Blenders are also good for making purees, but the vegetables should be processed in small batches with a few tablespoons of cooking liquid.

Once processed, many vegetable purees are heated until the excess water evaporates. This not only thickens the puree, but intensifies the flavor. If a puree is to be tossed with pasta, thin it with a little stock so that it coats the pasta well; use a thick puree for stuffing vegetables and a medium puree to serve as a side dish.

Purees provide a nutritious base for appetizers — for example, mushroom caps can be stuffed with fresh tomato or spinach puree. They are also a good foundation for soups, such as a cream of spinachsoup that combines pursed spinach and low-fat evaporated milk. As a side dish, other nutritious everyday vegetables take a refreshingly different form as purees, including carrots, broccoli, cauliflower, green peppers, beans, tumips, and sweet potatoes.

Another use for purses is as low-fat dips, where a puree can be seasoned with lemon juice and herbs, or combined with a bit of nonfat plain yogurt, non-fat cream cheese, or part-skim ricotta cheese.

Asparagus Guacamole, a recipe from the American Institute for Cancer Research, is a great alternative to high-fat avocado guacamole, and features the season's fresh asparagus in a smooth, well-seasoned dip.

ASPARAGUS GUACAMOLE

¾ pound of fresh or 10½-ounce package frozen asparagus, cut into 1-inch pieces
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
2 teaspoons lime juice (lemon juice may be substituted)
2 tablespoons canned green chili peppers, drained and chopped
1 tablespoon onion, chopped
2 teaspoons tomato paste
⅛ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon ground cumin
⅛ teaspoon white pepper

Steam the asparagus pieces over boiling water for approximately 10-12 minutes, until easily pierced with a fork. Drain them well, pat dry with a paper towel, and place them in a blender. Add the remaining ingredients. Blend until smooth. (Note: the dip will become less thick upon standing and will need to be stirred.)

Serve with baked tortilla chips, low-fat melba crackers, or toasted pita-bread triangles. Makes 1½ cups.

Each 2-tablespoon serving has 8 calories and no fat.

To receive a free brochure of delicious and healthful vegetable and fruit recipes, send a stamped (52 cents postage), self-addressed envelope to AICR, Dept. AP, Washington, DC 20069.

Calendar locates Easter according to moon phase

SKY WATCH

RAYMOND E. BULLOCK

April is the first full month of spring. In addition, it heralds the start of daylight time, Easter, the most distant new moon, and closest full moon of the year.

The moon was visible in the south before dawn on April 1. The star below and to the right of the moon on that morning was Antares (an TAR ees), the "heart" of Scorpius the scorpion. Twenty-eight days from now the moon will be located near this same area of the sky.

On the morning of the 2nd, the moon was found directly above the "lid" of the "teapot" of Sagittarius. (Sagittarius makes a much better looking teapot than archer!) The moon was at last quarter phase at 9:55 p.m. that evening, although it was not visible in the evening sky. It was seen on the morning of the 3rd, to the left of the "handle" of the teapot.

Two events occurred on April 3 this year: the start of daylight time and Easter. The former is due to our fussing with the clocks, the latter is due to the phase of the moon.

Daylight Saving Time began at 2 a.m. April 3.

Daylight time, when we set our clocks forward one hour, always begins on the first Sunday in April. We do not alter the speed of Earth's rotation or the length of the day, we merely alter the device by which time is measured.

The country had no standardized time zones 111 years ago. Everyone kept "local" time. "Noontime" was when the sun was due south and the shadow cast by a stick was at its shortest. Of course, local noon in Detroit was different from noon in Plymouth, which was different from Lansing, and so on across the state. At one time Michigan had 27 local time zones.

Railroads were having an impossible time scheduling their arrivals and departures, so on Nov. 18, 1883, the railroad barons divided the country into four main time zones and implemented "railroad time." The creation of these "standard" time zones was viewed by the public as yet another example of the railroads' meddling with humanity and nature. Many people followed the advice of the U. S. Attorney General and ignored "railroad" time, choosing to maintain their own "local" time. However, over the course of many years, and countless missed trains, the public acquiesced and standard time became the norm.

It wasn't until 35 years after railroad time had been implemented that Congress, acting in its usual hasty manner, made the standard time zones the law of the land.

Michigan was originally in the Central Time Zone, because we are geographically closer to the Central Time longitude line in Chicago, than we are to the Eastern Time line in Philadelphia. A vote of the people of Michigan placed our state in the Eastern zone so it would share the same time with businesses on the east coast.

Some stubbornness persists even into the 1990s; most of Indiana refuses to meddle with nature, and daylight time is ignored. This results in Indiana having "Illinois" time for seven months of the year, and "Michigan" time for the other five months. Making a confusing situation even more bizarre: Fort Wayne, Indiana, is geographically closer to the east than Grand Rapids, while Houghton is father west than Chicago and Milwaukee!

If Michigan stayed on Eastern Standard Time, sunrise at the end of this month would be at 5:30 a.m. and sunset would occur at 7:35 p.m. On Eastern Daylight Time sunrise is at 6:30 a.m. and sunset is at 8:35 p.m. (Either way you look at it, it adds up to 14 hours and 5 minutes of sunshine.) We gain our later sunset and an extra hour of daylight in the evening at the expense of a later sunrise and an extra hour of darkness in the morning.

Coincidentally, Easter Sunday was on April 3 this year, but next year it will fall on April 16. Determining the date of this very erratic holiday is not as difficult as you may think. All you need to know is the phase of the moon and a few rules.

The ground rules for determining Easter were set up in the year 325 A.D. when the Emperor Constantine called for a Council at Nicea for the purpose of calendar reform. Based on the advice of his Christian council, he decreed that Easter would be observed on the first Sunday following the first full moon that occurred after the vernal equinox (the start of spring). The reason for choosing the full moon, rather than the new moon, was so persons making a pilgrimage to the Holy Land could travel at night by the light of the moon. Since the start of spring occurs on March 20 or 21, the earliest date that can be Easter is March 22.

But now we have to consider the inevitable exceptions to the rule.

If the first full moon to occur after the start of spring falls on a Sunday, then the following Sunday is Easter. If the full moon happens to be on the same day as the vernal equinox, then the April full moon is used. If the April full moon falls on a Sunday, the following Sunday is Easter UNLESS that date is later than April 25, which is the latest date Easter is permitted to fall. If that Sunday does fall after the 25th, then the previous Sunday, the one with the full moon, must be used.

So all things considered, Easter can come as early as March 22, which it last did in the year 1818 and will again in 2285, or it may come as late as April 25, which it did in 1943 and will again in 2038. This year Easter Sunday is April 3, which is 7 days after the full moon that occurred on March 27.

Now, wasn't that simple?

Follow the moon through the sky on the mornings of the 4th through 9th. The moon will be "waning" (the crescent will be getting thinner). The star below and to the right of the moon on the morning of the 7th will be Saturn, the planet with the beautiful ring system. The moon will be 14 degrees (about 28 full moon diameters) to the left of Saturn and five degrees above Mars on the 8th. Unfortunately, Mars will be barely above the horizon and won't be visible. Mars will be better placed for observing later in the year.

Coming up in the next Skywatch: new moon at apogee, full moon at perigee and a meteor shower.

Raymond Bullock, formerly associated with the Cranbrook Institute of Science, is now an officer of a company that works with lasers.

CANTON SPORTS SCENE

Better days for Brodie

Plymouth Salem coach Bob Brodie would probably just as soon forget the 1994 basketball season. With his son Joe recovering from serious neck injuries incurred in a skiing accident and his team getting upset in the Western Lakes tournament and later losing in the regional semifinals, Brodie endured an emotionally draining couple of months.

But things have improved greatly in the past week. First and foremost, after 37 days in the hospital, Joe Brodie came home on Friday.

"It's just great to have him home," Bob said. "He's improving. He'll have to go to therapy every day, but he is out of the danger zone. Now he just has to heal."

And earlier last week, the Basketball Coaches Association of Michigan named Brodie the Class A Region 1 Coach of the Year.

"That's nice," he said. "To be coaching for 17 years and finally get the nod, it's a great honor. Especially coming from your peers. I owe it to the players, and the coaches I've worked with over the years."

James Eaddy of Grand Rapids Ottawa Hills (Class A), Greg Esler of St. Clair Shores Lakeshore (Class B), Craig Brueck of Centreville (Class C) and former Detroit Piston Harvey Marlatt of Atlanta (Class D) were all-state coaches of the year.

Berres is No. 1 again

Katey Gilles is not the only individual state gymnastics champion at Plymouth Canton high school.

Junior Kim Berres, for the second year in a row, won the all-around title at the Level 10 State (Club) Gymnastics Championships at the University of Michigan's Keen Arena. Gilles was the state Class A high school all-around champ.

Among the many tricks in Berres' impressive bag is a full twisting layout Tsukara on the vault, a trick made famous by Mary Lou Retton. She is the only gymnast in the state doing that vault in competition and she nailed it, 9.575, first place.

She also scored 9.0 on bars, 9.525 on balance beam and 9.4 on floor exercise for an all-around score of 37.4.

She will compete at the regionals April 17 in Lansing against the best from Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Illinois and Kentucky. The top 14 will advance to the nationals in Seattle, May 14-15.

Berres is coached by Claudia and Ed Kretschmer, Jack Evanoff and Darren Dorset out of Gym America.

Thompson on a tear

Plymouth Canton graduate and former two-sport All-Area standout Stacey Thompson continues to impress on the Ivy League softball diamonds. Thompson, a senior catcher at the University of Pennsylvania, was batting .421 after 17 games. She's knocked in five runs and had a .605 slugging percentage.

Thompson, a basketball and baseball standout at Canton, joined the Quakers' softball team in 1992 and won honorable mention Ivy League honors despite playing in only 15 games. Last season she hit .286 with 10 RBI.

"She's a natural athlete," said Coach Linda Carothers. "She's just a rock behind the plate."

The Quakers were 7-10.

Niemiec ripping, too

Speaking of former All-Area catchers, Plymouth Salem grad Scott Niemiec is hitting .341 for the University of Michigan. The junior has started 11 of the Wolverines first 18 games. He had four doubles, four RBI and had stolen two bases.

All-State spikers

The Michigan Interscholastic Volleyball Coaches Association recently announced its 1993-94 All-State teams.

In Class A, Farmington Hills Harrison's Amanda Ault, a senior setter/outside hitter bound for Central Michigan University, made second-team honors. Honorable mention honors went to Livonia Stevenson setter Angie Piippo, who will play next fall for Northwood Institute; and Garden City middle hitter Yvette Sixbey, who will attend Oklahoma.

In Class B, two Redford Thurston players, juniors Jean Herron and Jennifer McEwen, made honorable mention.

In Class C, Livonia Clarenceville junior middle-outside hitter Tracy Sledz made the first team. Teammate Jaime Zemke, a senior middle-outside hitter bound for Henry Ford Community College, was voted to the third team.

Vardar wins title

Vardar Soccer Club's under-14 team, led by MVP goalie Shawn Alexander, took third place with a win over the Syracuse, N.Y., Blitz Wizards in the National Indoor tournament, March 11-13, in Atlanta, Ga.

Members of the under-14 team, coached by Matt Paukovits, include Marco Cracchiola, Joe Gallagher, Brian Garstecki, Nicholas Grandchamp, Drew Harris, Steve Howson, Luaiy Leon, Perry Richard, Sammy Pirsine, Michael Riemma, Donald Sigler, Patrick Stranahan, Shawn Wilson and Paul Yeskey.

New era dawns for CEP softball

They say spring is the season for rebirth and that couldn't be more true in the case of the two CEP softball teams. Plymouth Canton lost nine of its 10 starters, Salem lost eight of 10.

BY CHRIS MCCOSKY
STAFF WRITER

You're going to need a scorecard to tell who's who on the CEP softball diamonds this spring. There won't be too many familiar faces.

"We're rebuilding, let's face it," said Plymouth Salem coach Al Campbell.

"We are brand new," said Canton's Jim Arnold.

Gone are nine of the 10 starters who took Canton on a 31-6 ride last year, including All-Area pitcher Kelly Holmes, All-Area shortstop Dani Mortiere and All-Area infielder Kate Strahan.

Gone are eight starters from Salem's 18-13 team, including All-Area outfielder Amanda Tubaugh, Jenny Garvey and Dawn Marrocco.

What returns are two teams stocked with unproven but potentially talented players, two teams that plan to start freshmen at shortstop, two teams that will long for its graduated pitchers — two teams that inevitably will take some lumps this spring but will dish out more than their share in future seasons.

"I don't like to say we are rebuilding," Arnold said. "Let's just say this will be a learning year."

Plymouth Canton

Arnold likes the chemistry of his team, its pride, work ethic and the swiftness with which it learns. He just wishes he knew if it had enough hits and runs to go with all those intangibles.

"We have a long ways to go," he said. "We don't hit well, but we will continue to work on it."

Arnold, in his fourth year at Canton, is counting on his two most experienced players to lead the hitting: senior Heather Schaeffer, who hit .286 last year, and senior Heather LaGrow, .270. The two will switch off between center field and third base.

Junior first baseman Amy Price has also shown some pop.

But keep an eye on freshman shortstop Nicole Kovachevich.

"She has a lot of all-around talent," Arnold said. "She has a good glove, good arm, good range and she hits with authority."

Rounding out the infield will be junior catcher Laura Logdson and sophomore second baseman Amanda Welton, both solid defensive players.

Freshman catcher Amy LaGrow and junior first baseman Kelly Nelson will also contribute.

In the outfield, junior speedster Kari Jackson and senior Heather Reeber will start along with either Schaeffer or Heather LaGrow.

The pitching will be shared by senior Jamie Sikora and junior Jackie Nicastri.

"They both have good control," Arnold said. "They don't have blazing speed, but hopefully that will come as

How do you like your baseball? Close games, extra-inning games full of clutch pitching and key home runs? Games that are decided by the last at-bat?

Do you like great defensive plays: run-downs, deft double plays, diving catches, outfielders throwing runners out at the plate? How about arguments with umpires, complete with coaches getting tossed out of the game?

If that sounds like your brand of ball, you should have been out at Madonna Park Thursday and Friday. The Crusaders took two out of three from defending NAIA champion College of St. Francis (Illinois), which was ranked No. 1 entering the season and is coached by Gordie Gillespie, the winningest coach in college baseball.

Madonna won 7-6 on Thursday, scoring the winning run with one out in the bottom of the ninth. On Friday, St. Francis won the opener of a double header 3-2 on a ninth-inning home run by Brian Mazurek.

In the second game, Madonna rallied from a 6-2 deficit with three runs in the sixth and two more in the seventh to win 7-6.

"Pretty exciting baseball, huh?" said Madonna coach Mike George, whose team is now 15-6 on the season.

MADONNA

Exciting to say the least. Ironically, the two teams played three one-run games in Illinois last year with St. Francis winning two of three.

"This will be a big boost for us," said senior shortstop Jeff Miller, whose line drive single drove home the winning run in game two Friday.

George, who watched game two from the bullpen after he was ejected in the first inning for arguing a call, agreed: "Losing a doubleheader at home is not what we do here. I thought the guys really showed some guts.

"In fact, this ought to get us ranked (nationally). We've now taken two out of three from the No. 15 team (Ohio Dominican) and now two out of three from the preseason No. 1. What else do we need to do?"

Gillespie votes in favor of Madonna.

"They did all the things they needed to do today," said the St. Francis coach who has more than 1,300 victories. "These are quality people, and I would be glad for any success that comes their way."

Gillespie's team was on the verge of sweeping Madonna Friday. The Saints jumped on Madonna starter Louie McKaig for six runs in the first

ALL-AREA BOYS' BASKETBALL

CC's Holowicki goes out in style

By Brad Emons
Staff Writer

Observerland Coach of the Year Bernie Holowicki is leaving Redford Catholic Central High with no regrets.

The state's third winningest coach with 612 career victories, including a state Class A championship (1976), Holowicki has enjoyed some glorious moments both on Outer Drive and Breakfast Drive.

His final team will be remembered as a club of overachievers.

When second-team All-Area point guard Damien Baskerville transferred before the season to Cass Tech, nobody gave Catholic Central much of a chance to win anything in 1993-94.

But Holowicki guided the Shamrocks to an overall record of 17-6, including the Catholic League championship and a Class A district title (his 15th at CC).

"I'm walking away with my head held high," said Holowicki, a longtime elementary school physical education teacher for the South Redford Schools. "I think I did my best and utmost."

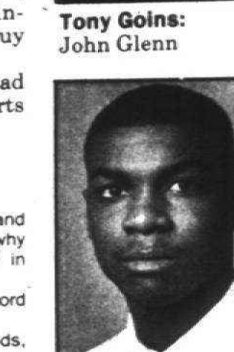
Holowicki should be applauded for his efforts along with the rest of the All-Area basketball squad, led by Westland John Glenn's inside duo of Tony Goins and Guy Rucker.

Presenting the All-Area squad as selected by the Observer sports staff.

Tony Goins: John Glenn

Guy Rucker: John Glenn

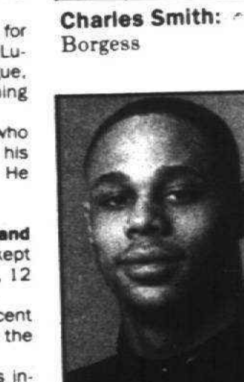
James Head: Salem



Charles Smith: Borgess

Matt Paupore: Canton

Andy Slankster: Redford CC



Calvin Pruitt: Harrison

Bernie Holowicki: Coach of the Year

FIRST TEAM

Tony Goins, 6-foot-5 senior, Westland John Glenn: One of the big reasons why Glenn enjoyed its best season ever in boys basketball.

Goins led Glenn to a 20-5 overall record and its first Class A regional title.

He averaged 22 points, 8.2 rebounds, two blocks and four assists per game.

Headed for Division II power Wayne State, Goins hit 42 percent from the field, but 46 percent from three-point range. He made 72 percent of his free throws.

"Tony had a lot of things going for him," Glenn assistant coach Todd DeLuca said. "Nobody, at least in our league, had a better season. He did everything we asked of him.

"He's a quiet leader, somebody who leads by example. He stepped up his leadership during the tournament. He knew when he had to take control."

Guy Rucker, 6-10½ junior, Westland John Glenn: One of the state's best kept secrets, Rucker averaged 16.5 points, 12 rebounds and seven blocks per game.

He shot an eye-popping 67 percent from the field and 75 percent from the free throw line.

"Just his presence in the lane was intimidating to opponents," DeLuca said. "He changed people's shots. He was also a great rebounder, a force to be reckoned with.

"Guy also has a jump shot. A real nice touch. He's a good passer and he can dribble and take the ball the length of the floor if he has to.

"You couldn't concentrate on one (Goins) without the other (Rucker) being there. Guy has a lot of things going for him."

Charles Smith, 6-3 senior, Redford Bishop Borgess: An early signee with Ball State, Smith enjoyed a productive senior year.

He scored a total of 477 points in 22 games for a 21.7 scoring average. Smith also averaged 9.3 rebounds per game.

In his final high school game, Smith scored 44 in a two-point loss to Detroit Benedictine.

"I'm prejudiced, but I think Charles is one of the best players in the state," Borgess coach Glen Donahue said. "He's a complete player who excels in all aspects. He's a rebounder, a passer, plays good defense and can hit the three-point shot. He came to the top at the end of the season.

"He'll be very successful in college."

Smith was also voted first-team Class C All-State by the coaches association.

James Head, 6-7 senior, Plymouth Salem: An early signee with the University of Iowa, Head led the Rocks to a 19-4 overall record and a Class A district championship.

As a senior, the Salem center averaged 18 points, 12 rebounds, four assists and two blocks per game.

He played four years on the varsity.

"He became a real leader for us," Salem coach Bob Brodie said. "He knew his role. He knew he had to carry the team. And I think he was very successful. He had a great career.

"We won games solely by himself."

Head is Salem's third all-time leading scorer. His sister Dena was an All-Stater at Salem and later starred at the University of Tennessee.

Head will play in the Derby All-Star Festival later this month in Louisville, Ky.

Matt Paupore, 6-3 senior, Plymouth Canton: Also headed for Wayne State, the Canton guard averaged 22 points, seven rebounds and three assists per game.

He set a Canton single season record for total points with 484.

Paupore was one of the big reasons why the Chiefs finished 15-7 and captured the Western Lakes Activities Association playoffs.

"Matt did everything we asked of him," Canton coach Dave Van Wagoner said. "He was a great leader.

"He is a great offensive player, everybody knows that. But he improved his defense and all-around game. He was a pleasure to coach.

"Matt had NBA range as a shooter. He also improved his ability to move and score off the dribble. He was not a one-dimensional player."

Andy Slankster, 6-3 senior, Redford Catholic Central: Bounced back strong from a mid-season hip injury that kept him out of the lineup for two weeks.

As a senior, Slankster's hustling style resulted in 17.5 scoring average. He also averaged 5.2 assists and seven rebounds per game. He was also the team's top three-point shooter.

"Andy always played well in the pressure games," CC coach Bernie Holowicki said. "He made major improvements this year.

"He became our go-to guy. He was a very confident and coachable player."

Slankster, a shortstop on the CC baseball team, is considering Kalamazoo College.

Calvin Pruitt, 6-5 senior, Farmington Hills Harrison: Was the area's top rebounder with 287 total caroms on the season for a 13.6 average.

On the offensive side, the Harrison center averaged 12.4 points, while shooting 51 percent from the floor. He also averaged 1.3 blocks and 1.7 assists per game.

"We always knew what kind of player he was — exciting, real intense, plays hard in practice," Harrison coach Mike Teachman said. "But in this day of trash-talking, Calvin is the epitome of playing hard and being a good sport.

"Opposing coaches changed Calvin's first name to 'Double Him.' First of all, he was getting bumped by one guy and now they throw a second at him, and he just kept playing hard. When he got knocked down, he got up and patted the guy on the back.

"His example of playing hard and being a good sport really stood out. We're talking about something deeper than facts. That's character."

Rocks cruise in opener

Nice way to start a season, and a high school career.

Freshman midfielder Jodie Coyle scored two goals last Wednesday to help the Plymouth Salem soccer team score a 6-0 victory in its season-opener at Grand Blanc.

"She's real tough," said Coach Ken Johnson. "She's just a little dynamo, running all over the field. You really need those kinds of players."

Sophomore Leah Retherford also tallied a pair of goals. Senior tri-captains Alexis Marinos (one goal, three assists), Susy Parrish (one goal) and Jodie Wilsher (two assists) also made key contributions. Sophomore Heather Bucanan added an assist.

Sophomore goalie Julie Buczek made 12 saves to earn the shutout.

"It was an up and down game," Johnson said. "I know the score doesn't indicate that, but it was. The difference was, whenever we shot we scored."

■ TROY 4, CANTON 0: Plymouth Canton thumped Troy to kick off last season, and on Wednesday, the Colts came back to exact their revenge.

"They came to beat us bad," said Canton coach Don Smith, "and they did. They played like they were in midseason form. They were really fired up."

The visiting Colts got a pair of goals from both Jessica Limaura and Shannon Poole. Canton managed just two shots on goalie Catherine Kobylak.

"I'm making no alibis. They just beat us all over the field," Smith said. "I still feel like we are a good team. But, either Troy is a super team or we aren't as good as I thought. We'll see."

Softball

the season progresses. I think they will keep us in the game. It's just a matter of whether or not we will get some hits."

But don't think Arnold, whose team opens the season at home April 12 against Farmington, is conceding victory.

"I think we are going to be decent," he said. "Everybody knows we lost our whole team from last year and maybe they won't be expecting much. I think we will surprise some people."

Plymouth Salem

Campbell's problems are the reverse of Canton's: He's got capable hitters, but maybe not enough pitching.

"We will be able to hit it and field it," said the third-year coach. "But can we get people out? I'm not sure."

The person with the first opportunity to answer that question will be junior Denise Krolczyk. Next in line will be sophomores Jenny Criss and Kelly Knight.

The Rocks most experienced player, and offensive catalyst, will be outfielder Jenny Viau (pronounced View). She showed good power in limited playing time last year.

"If she would have played a full season, she would have made all-conference," said assistant coach Chuck Drewitz.

The rest of the outfield will include juniors Christina Nutt (center field) and Michelle Gibson, plus senior first-year player Heidi Richardson.

The infield was dealt a blow when sophomore third baseman Nicole Sitek ripped a muscle in her leg. She may miss the entire season.

Junior Jennifer Gibson (Michelle's twin sister), Criss and sophomore Amanda Alex will rotate between second and third base. Junior Stacy Sinke will play first base. Senior Lisa Girardin and junior Lynn MacLeod will handle the catching.

At shortstop will be Carah Best, a slick-fielding, strong-armed freshman, who is deaf.

"She's quite an athlete," Campbell said.

The Rocks open the season April 12 at Walled Lake Western.

"Our pitching is suspect," Campbell said. "But we will be competitive."

Madonna

two innings. George was already thumbed, having argued too vehemently that a first-inning single actually caromed off the foot of a Saints baserunner.

"It was a culmination of things," George said of his ejection. "McKaig has been struggling. He is one of our aces and he's 0-4. We misplayed a fly ball and then I was certain that ground ball hit their runner."

At that point, the Crusaders needed something to settle them down, and the tonic turned out to be senior reliever T.C. Raptis (3-0). He hushed the Saints' bats, scattering six hits over the next 5⅔ innings.

The turning point came in the top of the sixth inning. St. Francis had runners on first and third with nobody out. Third baseman Jeff Pendell fielded a sharply hit grounder and threw home, trapping the lead runner. Catcher Chris Gajewski ran the runner back to third, but instead of applying the tag, he noticed that the other runner was breaking toward third and tagged him out first.

Confused, the lead runner again broke toward home. He, too, was tagged out. Double play. The batter advanced to second.

The next batter singled to right field. Madonna's Jim Solak fielded the hit and fired a strike to the plate to nail the runner.

"Those plays brought us to life," said Miller. "If they score a couple there, the game is over."

In the bottom of the sixth, Scott Anderson ripped a two-run homer and Solak followed with a solo homer to make it 6-5.

In the bottom of the seventh, Madonna took advantage of two hit batsmen, a walk and an error to tie the game. Then, with two out and the bases loaded, Miller rammed the game-winning single down the left field line.

"I had struggled all day, and the team had been struggling to get hits in key situations (17 men left on base in the doubleheader)," Miller said. "I just wanted to hit it hard."

Freshman Kurt Wilczynski and Anderson each rapped three hits for Madonna.

"It seems like we need to get backed into a corner before we respond," George said. "Maybe that's a sign of a veteran, confident ballclub."

In the 7-6 win Thursday, Miller and Gajewski both homered and Raptis contributed a two-run double. Madonna blew a three-run lead in the top of the ninth, wasting a solid effort from starter Ryan Grabetz (8 innings, three runs, five strikeouts).

The Crusaders salvaged the victory on Steve Zann's bases-loaded walk in the bottom of the ninth.

St. Francis falls to 10-11.

SEARS TIRE AND AUTO CENTER

Boot your PC onto our Information Superhighway.

If you can talk RAM, modems, database, and downloading with the best of them, you're ready for OnLine! , the best BBS* deal in town.

But first, before you read further, you'll need a PC and a modem.

Got 'em. Good.

Now, about OnLine! —it's loaded with cool stuff. It lets you access Internet E-Mail (that's the global one with more than four million people all over the world), get updated stock quotes, and the West Coast Movie Review Guide.

Newspapers are another super feature—from the one you're reading right now to USA Today and the Associated Press. In fact, OnLine! lets you interact with us. Let's say you pull up the electronic version of this paper. You read an editorial. You have an opinion. A few keystrokes and mouse clicks and you've let us know where you stand on the local issues we write about. And we'll write back.

Or maybe you want to tell Rush Limbaugh what you think. There are hundreds of discussion areas to choose from, and his is just another one of them.

How about games? Or an indexed PC catalog? Or, get this, the Metropolitan Film Guide that lets you check on cult films, second-run features, children's films, educational and travel features, silent classics and first-run movies.

OnLine! subscribers get all of this and more.

You're probably thinking that OnLine! is going to cost the price of a PC, right? Wrong. What if we told you that you could cruise our info superhighway with access to internet E-Mail and newsgroups four hours a day for just $4.95 a month? That's only $59.40 a year. We've also put together a couple of smaller packages: six months/2 hours a day/$35.70 and three months/ 2 hours a day/ $20.85.

If you're ready to order OnLine! and since you're used to electronic communication, we've set up a voice mail deal. Assuming you have a touch tone phone, just decide which package you want, have your Visa or Mastercard card handy and be ready to tell us your diskette format—3.5 or 5.25—then call Simple, honest, straightforward. How else would you expect to lease a Saturn?

By now, you've probably heard about the Saturn buying experience. No hassles, no pressure, no fuss, just common courtesy, along with a pretty great car.

Well, the way we see it, your experience shouldn't be any different if you want to lease a Saturn. After all, what could we possibly gain by making things any less straightforward than they have to be?

HOROSCOPE

By C. C. Clark

Aries (March 21 - April 20)

A payment or recognition you were expecting could be delayed. If you think someone is taking advantage of you, say something about it.

Taurus (April 21 - May 20)

You will finally be free from some of your money troubles. That long sought after security you have been waiting for is on the way.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20)

It is important that you make the right move and do not let someone else's opinion steer you in the wrong direction. Resist temptation.

Cancer (June 21 - July 20)

A new love interest could be on the way for you. If you are bored with your present lifestyle, make some small but significant changes.

Leo (July 21 - Aug. 21)

Someone close may be trying to unload some unwanted burdens on you. Stand firm and tell this person exactly what you think.

Virgo (Aug. 22 - Sept. 22)

Things may not be going as you expected, but you should continue trying. Find alternate ways to accomplish a difficult task.

Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)

A relationship or marriage may be under some heavy stress. It would be best to take stock of everything before making a major decision.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 22)

You may need to take someone into your confidence. Talking about your troubles may prove to be just what you need.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 - Dec. 20)

There is a major life change in store for you, perhaps a career change. There is also a good chance you will hear news of a birth or pregnancy.

Capricorn (Dec. 21 - Jan. 19)

Discuss your concerns with a loved one, and then get over it. Your inner voice will tell you what is best, but you will have to listen carefully.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)

You may experience a terrible feeling that someone has let you down. Try not to worry so much about that which you cannot control.

Pisces (Feb. 19 - March 20)

You are headed in the right direction, but make certain you know what is going on around you. You will be well blessed.

It's still early for Greg Kinnear's 'Later'

BY SUZANNE GILL

Greg Kinnear isn't just funny, he appears to be one very smart cookie as well. On Monday, Feb. 28, he stepped into Bob Costas' shoes as host of NBC's weeknight talk show "Later" without becoming the focus of laser-like attention. In fact to most network viewers he is a complete unknown.

As host of the daily clip show "Talk Soup" on cable's E! Entertainment Television, Kinnear has been available in a mere 22 million living rooms for the past two years. In 1991, he was the creator and host of the unsung summer replacement series "Best of the Worst" on Fox.

"Talk Soup" has been a great vehicle for me," Kinnear says, "in the sense that we do a little bit of everything in there. I've had the opportunity to interact with people, to do man-on-the-street, to kind of do commentary, to act, to do comedy."

"Later" has been remade to serve Kinnear's strengths. After six seasons of one-on-one interviews by Costas, the show has moved its production base from New York City to Burbank, Calif. A small studio audience has been added, comedy segments turn up regularly, and the 30-year-old host, writer and executive producer is trying to make the transition look as effortless as possible. He speaks of his predecessor with respect but not awe.

"Bob Costas has done an excellent job at this and has really created a great niche with this show. The job is to fill the shoes of Bob, and hopefully keep the ball rolling.

"I guess one thing that I like about (Costas' version was) that sort of eclectic element that they (had) with regard to the guests. One night you might see Barry Goldwater, and the next night you'd see Steve Martin. That sort of unpredictability is something that I'd like to keep in the show."

Unlike recent mantle inheritors Jay Leno and Conan O'Brien, Kinnear is getting comfortable in his late-night seat without drawing the scrutiny of a hundred critic vivisectionists. He may even have time to settle into the job before anyone pays much heed.

More experienced than the jumpy and angular O'Brien, whose show precedes "Later" each weeknight, Kinnear is comfortable in front of a camera and can ad lib without breaking a sweat. But his true genius may lie in lying low.

Not since Bob Woodward's nocturnal meetings with White House snitch Deep Throat during the Watergate era has anyone moved from obscurity to obscurity with more visibility than Kinnear. In a recent USA Today poll rating the popularity of talk show hosts, he somehow came in second only to the ubiquitous Howard Stern. Before signing with NBC, Kinnear was courted by both CBS (for a slot following David Letterman's "Late Show") and Fox (to replace late-night dud Chevy Chase). He picked the network post that offered a chance to improve and grow at his own pace with minimal ratings pressure - and hung onto his day job at E!, too.

Where Costas showed special interests in sports and rock 'n' roll, Kinnear claims to be passionate about "politics, comedy, actors.

"I'm somewhat of a new junkie," he says. "I grew up overseas. My father was with the American Embassy in Lebanon and after that Athens. And it just kind of opened my eyes to a whole other - the bigger picture in a lot of ways."

LET'S TALK

Sellecca may get no 'Second Chances' on CBS; pigeons come home to roost

BY TAYLOR MICHAELS

Q: I am going crazy. Every Thursday night I wait for my favorite show, "Second Chances," and it's never on. What have they done with this show? I've watched it since the first time it aired. I want to know if and when it's coming back. Either way, could you give me some information about the show's star, Connie Sellecca? What else has she been in? Could you please give me an address where I can write to her? –L.B., New Ross, Ind.

A: You're not going crazy, L.B. According to my sources at CBS, "Second Chances" is on indefinite hiatus.

The program's production center was destroyed in the earthquake and aftershocks that tore much of Los Angeles apart earlier this year. At the time, the show's future was uncertain and now it may be even more so.

Sellecca was born in the Bronx and raised in Pomona, N.Y. She became involved in acting through high-school theater productions and, at the encouragement of a speech teacher, went on to pursue an acting career in New York City.

Her first screen test led to a starring role in the made-for-television movie, "The Bermuda Depths."

Sellecca made her series debut in "Flying High," and went on to star in "Beyond Westworld" and "The Greatest American Hero."

But it was her portrayal of a manager in the series "Hotel" that won her praise from critics, a loyal following and a Golden Globe nomination for best actress in a dramatic series.

Sellecca's made-for-TV movie credits include "She's Dressed to Kill," "The Last Fling," "Downpayment on Murder," "Turn Back the Clock," "Brotherhood of the Rose," "Passport to Murder" and "House of Secrets and Lies," which she also produced.

Connie is now in her eighth year as national spokeswoman for Mothers Against Drunk Driving. She lives in Los Angeles with her husband, John Tesh, and her 12-year-old son, Gib.

Try writing her C/O "Second Chances" at CBS Media Relations, Television City, 7800 Beverly Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif. 90036.

Connie Sellecca

Q: How can I get in touch with Gordon M. Scallion, a seer featured on NBC's recent special "Ancient Prophecies." –Ann Burt, Lenoir, N.C.

A: Try writing to the show C/O NBC Media Relations, 3000 W. Alameda Ave., Suite 350, Burbank, Calif. 91523.

Q: In a recent column, you answered a question from a reader in Cecil, Pa. The reader wanted to know the title of a movie starring Art Carney as a grandfather who raised pigeons with his grandson.

I believe the actual title of the movie is "Where Pigeons Go to Die," a Michael Landon made-for-TV movie. Hope I'm correct. –Pat, Peru, N.Y.

A: You are right. You'll notice that in the column, I couched my answer by saying that the movie "sounded like" it could be "The Undergrads." As always, I am grateful for the clarification. It's readers like you that make this column what it is.

Q: Could you please print an address where I can write to Oprah Winfrey? I have been trying to find the address for two years. I am looking to get tickets to her show. –C.W., West Plains, Mo.

A: Write to Oprah C/O Harpo Productions, 110 N. Carpenter, Chicago, Ill. 60607. For ticket information, please specify "tickets" on the envelope.

Send questions to Let's Talk, Features Dept., TV Data Technologies, Northway Plaza, Queensbury, N.Y. 12804. Because of the volume of mail received, personal replies cannot be sent.

SOAP WORLD

'B&B' fan unhappy with Brooke, Sheila

BY CANDACE HAVENS

Dear Candace: "The Bold and the Beautiful" has finally broken my habit of watching the soaps. I don't enjoy watching it anymore, mainly because of two characters, Brooke and Sheila.

I would like to know why Brooke is so consumed with Ridge. Is he really the father of her daughter? If she is so anxious to have a father for her children, why didn't she stay with Eric?

Sheila is a real trip. She has done so much evil, and she continues on her merry way. If nothing else, the character should have to pay for how she treated her own mother.

I would like to see a happy couple on a soap, just once. I don't understand why one couple could not resist the temptation to cheat on one another. It is really a sad state of affairs.

I might tune in again in the summer to see what is going on, but I have a feeling it is going to deteriorate even more. It gets more unbelievable each week. –H.D. Fisher, Jim Thorpe, Pa.

Dear Reader: There is a long history between Ridge and Brooke. There has always been something that kept them apart, but Brooke has wanted Ridge from day one. Brooke married Eric and had a child with him because she didn't think she would ever be with Ridge again.

While Sheila is an evil character, she is also a popular one among the viewing audience. There is a good chance she will get her comeuppance someday, but she will most likely be back with a vengeance.

Dear Candace: My wife and I have some comments about "Days of Our Lives." We would really like to see Austin and Carrie get together. Whiny old Roman needs to wise up and come to his senses. We do not want to see Peter ruin sweet Jennifer's life. She has had enough trouble. We can't wait for Kristen to find out about Stefano. We want Vivian to get the goods on Kate, and it would be great if John could work things out for himself and be happy for once. It is time for poor John to be happy. –Fred Way, Orangeburg, S.C.
