Playscape plans create dispute

A Canton group is in the game, the playscape game. It wants a play structure for Canton much to the dismay of another group in Plymouth that is working on a similar project.

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Organizers of a proposed volunteer-built wooden play structure in Canton are swinging ahead despite a request from a Plymouth group — working on a similar project — to delay the effort.

"They said they didn't feel the community could support two being built at the same time," said Christine Donaldson, who is spearheading the Canton effort.

But the Plymouth group's request isn't going to stop Canton residents who are forming a committee to get the volunteer-designed and built playground off the ground.

"We would really like to work with you guys," said Greg Yanik, whose wife, Marybeth, is one of the organizers of the Plymouth playscape targeted for Plymouth Township Park (McClumpha Park).

Yanik told Donaldson and other residents that the Plymouth group doesn't want to detract from either project. The Plymouth effort, Yanik said, already involves a lot of Canton volunteers. The project is months ahead of Canton's fledgling effort.

But Canton residents said they believe they can nonetheless raise money and recruit volunteers for the playscape in Heritage Park. Some Canton organizers said Plymouth Township Park doesn't cater to Canton residents. The Plymouth project is about a year ahead of Canton's effort.

At the Canton group's kickoff meeting Wednesday, support in one form or another was pledged from a number of sources, including Township Supervisor Tom Yack and staff members. Construction help from unionized carpenters was promised by Scott Lowes, representative organizer for Carpenter's District Council of Detroit and Southeastern Michigan.

Bosnian conflict focus of studies

BY M.B. DILLON

Timur Taljanovic is only 4, but he's already well-acquainted with war.

Timur accompanied his father, Husein Taljanovic, to Canton High School, where Husein spoke Wednesday to Close Up government students about life in war-ravaged Bosnia.

Timur and his 9-year-old brother, Nedzad, saw their grandfather killed during shelling that's become an everyday occurrence. In their own apartment, they saw the head of a neighbor woman blown off. "Such sad stories. I have such sad stories," said Taljanovic.

It took a year of trying, but the Taljanovics succeeded in escaping Sarajevo in December.

"We first tried to escape by plane, but it was impossible," said Taljanovic, an electrical engineer whose wife is a radiologist at University of Michigan Hospital.

"We took a bus for four days and four nights. It's a trip which is usually four hours. On that trip there were so many check points. At every one, we expected to be chosen to go out. We didn't see executions in front of the bus, but we don't know what happened to the people taken off," he said.

Taljanovic, who is Muslim and nearly fluent in English, said that before the war began in the former Yugoslavia, "Muslims, Catholics and Orthodox lived together in Bosnia. It was a happy family.

"After Tito's death, there was economic breakdown. First Slovenia declared independence, then Croatia, then Bosnia. The Serbs couldn't look at this. It was a loss of all their privileges and power. They want to create a greater Serbia."

Taljanovic spoke of ethnic cleansing.

"Because we don't have weapons, there is shooting with no resistance. They force people out of their homes and separate people. On one side are the women and children. On another side are men able to fight, and on another, young girls and women. The first group is almost killed, because what can they do with old people? The boys ready to fight are taken to concentration camps. They are castrated there so they can't have kids.

"The young girls, moms and daughters are sent to prostitution houses. They are raped until they get pregnant. They keep them until they can't have abortions. They want to destroy their identity. They bear Serbian kids who will grow to hate Croats and Muslims."

For two years, the Taljanovics couldn't buy food. They grew what they could on their balcony in pots. "There is no electricity, or gas. The water supply system was destroyed by Serbs. People wait for hours, going miles to get a gallon of water to drink and prepare food. We were happy when it rained or snowed. It was a chance to splash the toilet and take a shower."

Taljanovic said what he craved most was "a shower and Coca-Cola. Maybe Coca-Cola can use that," he said with a laugh.

Food was supplied by the United Nations, he said. For a family of four, four potatoes and a pound of cookies vacuum-packed in the U.S.

Whyman to face challenger in November

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

One-term Republican state Rep. Deborah Whyman is seeking re-election. But Van Buren Township trustee Donna Clark is jumping in on the Democratic side of the race.

Voters will not face a primary election Aug. 2 in the race for the 21st District seat.

"I'm looking forward to a campaign based on issues," said Whyman, 35, of Canton.

Education and taxation remain concerns for Whyman, as does health care. Clark, a compensatory education kindergarten paraprofessional for Van Buren Schools, is concerned about education, crime and drugs, and employment in Michigan.

Whyman said the issues in this race are different than 1½-years ago when she was first elected. "Then property taxes were too high. People were losing their homes. There were gross inadequacies in per pupil spending across the state. We made a significant step in correcting those problems. We're by no means done."

Clark said she believes her work in education provides her with insight into the needs of children and how to meet rapid changes in technology that require curriculum changes.

"I can provide the vital leadership our district needs," said Clark, 53, of Van Buren. "I recognize that this is a position of public service and my professional standards focus on the belief that government should be, 'by the people and for the people.' "

Whyman believes access to health care is an important issue for this election. "I don't believe our problems in health care are addressed by the federal government. Each state has unique problems," she said.

Whyman is on the Republican health care task force, which is working on changes to the COBRA laws, such as extending coverage.

Of concern to Clark are crime and drug abuse. "They are problems of enormous proportion and we need strong measures now to combat them," she said. Clark is equally concerned with securing employment for Michigan residents.

Whyman remains concerned about education. "I am interested in continuing to work in education so all children grades K-12 have the necessary competency skills to enter college or the work force."

Whyman is the vice chair of the House K-12 education committee, as

The Canton Chamber of Commerce monthly Business to Business will be 5-7 p.m. Tuesday, May 17, at Rose's Grill and Bar, 201 N. Canton Center Road. The event will be sponsored by KB Products Inc., an industrial and residential shelving supplier and office supplies and furniture company.

The monthly events are designed to help business people to meet chamber members and to feature a particular business each month.

Refreshments will be served. Admission is $6 for chamber members, $12 for non-members. Make reservations by calling the chamber, 453-4040.

Rock 'N Bowl

The Canton Public Safety Department invites kids ages 9-15 to participate in the "For Kids Only — Rock 'N Bowl" 7-10 p.m. Friday, May 20, at Super Bowl, 45100 Ford.

The program, which will continue each Friday night throughout the summer, is designed to curb gang activity. As part of the program, Super Bowl will offer unlimited bowling, rental shoes and a live disc jockey for dancing.

For more information, call officer Tammie Colling, 397-5344.

Police seek information on gas station robbery

Listed below are some of the Canton police incidents, fire calls and court cases reported during the past week:

■ ARMED ROBBERY
Canton police are looking for a man in his 20s who was reported to have robbed an Amoco gas station employee at gunpoint Thursday evening.

The man walked into the gas station on the southwest corner of Lilley and Warren at 8:30 p.m., walked around the store, went into the bathroom, looked around again and finally asked the employee for a carton of cigarettes, said Tammie Colling, Canton police community relations officer.

When the employee opened the security shield around the cash register area, the man pointed a snub-nose revolver at the employee and demanded cash, which he was given, according to police. The man fled on foot.

The employee was not injured. No customers were in the station at the time of the robbery, Colling said.

The white man is described at 6 feet, 3 inches tall, 160 pounds, with brown curly hair and a brown mustache. He has a crescent-shaped scar on the left side of his lower face. When last seen, he was wearing a pink jacket and blue jeans.

Anyone with information about the man or the incident should call police at 397-3000.

■ PARKING ORDINANCE
Residents are reminded that they cannot advertise vehicles they are selling by putting them on view on private commercial property.

"We will ticket them for using commercial property to sell their vehicles," Colling said.

Anyone who parks their "for sale" vehicle on private commercial property is in violation of the township's private parking ordinance. Violations are civil infractions punishable with a fine.

Residents may put their "for sale" vehicles on show on their own property.

■ SUSPECTED ARSON
The arson team was called in to investigate a car fire by an unfinished basement of a house under construction on Stratford, May 10.

Flames were seen coming from the basement. When Canton police and fire personnel arrived at the scene, they found a car on fire at the back of the basement where a wall had not yet been built.

Police noticed tracks believed to have been made by the car when it was pushed down a hill toward the basement.

Witnesses told police they saw two men in their 20s run from the basement and get into a red sports car and head toward Gyde Road. Witnesses said they didn't see the two men set the fire.

The burned car, registered to a Farmington Hills owner, was reported stolen from Oakland Community College in Farmington Hills.

■ VANDALISM
A homeowner on Applewood reported graffiti, a large picture drawn in chalk, on the road in front of the house, May 10.

A homeowner found gang-related graffiti on a stop sign at Collingham Court and Saltz, May 9. Three pitchforks were spray painted on the sign.

■ BOMB THREAT
An unidentified caller told Plymouth Salem High School principal Gerald Ostoin that a bomb was in the high school, May 11. The call was received after students had already left the building. Security staff searched the building and found nothing.

■ LARCENIES
At least four cars were damaged on Lotz Road May 11-12 when, according to a witness, two unidentified men smashed car windows with a baseball bat. The car driven by the two men was described as an older car, perhaps an Oldsmobile Cutlass with a white vinyl top. Radar detectors or radios were taken from the damaged cars.

Approximately $1,300 in cash and jewelry were reported stolen from an apartment on Canton Court, May 10.

A cash register valued at $300 and cash were reported stolen from Canton Center Cleaners, 44170 Warren, May 11. Damage to the building was estimated at $100.

Announcement expected soon on new school superintendent

Charles Little is expected to be named the next Plymouth-Canton school superintendent.

Little heads the Frontier Central Schools in Hamburg near Buffalo, N.Y.

Board members visited Hamburg last week to speak with Little's associates and liked what they heard.

"The site visit took place May 10-11 and was, as directed by the full board of education, a trip of affirmation with the purpose of reviewing and confirming the background and leadership profile of Dr. Little," said trustee David Artley.

The board and its consultant met with Frontier staff, area journalists, local government and business officials, students, parents, parochial school representatives, and others.

"The trip was very positive. We were able to establish that the perceptions formed by the Plymouth-Canton community about Dr. Little during his interviews were extremely accurate," said Artley.

"It is the intention of the board search committee to present a formal report to the full board Monday, May 16 to recommend that a contract be extended to Dr. Little to become the superintendent of the Plymouth-Canton Community School District effective with the 1994-95 school year."

Superintendent John Hoben will retire June 30 after 39 years in the district, 23 of them as superintendent.

New bank office opens in area

Old Kent Bank-East opened its newest full-service banking office on Monday, May 2. The new office is located at 26222 Novi Road, Novi, Mich. by the Novi Towne Center.

"The new location is part of Old Kent Bank-East's planned expansion into Oakland County and reflects our growing presence along the 196/696/275 corridor, " said James W. Giffin, president of Old Kent Bank-East.

This full-service remodeled branch includes a commercial loan service area, a mortgage closing room, drive-through teller lanes, and an ATM machine for 24-hour banking convenience.

"The branch offers an extensive line of personal and business financial services including checking, savings and IRA accounts, certificates of deposit, personal, commercial and mortgage loan financing," said branch manager, Lynne Leece.

Residents of the community are welcome to come in and meet the Old Kent staff, enter to win the grand prize drawing, and receive savings coupons worth $50 in discounts on Old Kent products and services, along with special offers on accounts opened.

Old Kent Bank-East has 14 branch offices serving Livingston, Oakland, Washtenaw, and Wayne counties. Old Ken Bank-East is an affiliate of Old Kent Financial Corporation, a bank-holding company located in Grand Rapids with 211 banking offices throughout Michigan and Illinois. On March 31, Old Kent Financial Corporation had assets of $10.1 billion.

Township audit reveals depleted police savings

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Despite a clean bill of financial health for Canton Township, the police department's savings account could use some help.

"That's low. It is something we should be looking at," said Bruce Berend, of accounting firm Plante Moran, who presented the township's 1993 audit Tuesday night.

In 1993, the police department's savings account, or fund balance, decreased to $80,000, compared to $863,000 in 1992 and $1.1 million in 1991.

An arbitration settlement with police officers, including increased township contributions to pensions, as well as insurance payments for lawsuits, led to the significant drop in savings, said Susan Kopinski, township financial manager.

"It was a settlement imposed upon on us through a state agency," said Clerk Loren Bennett. "The hit was substantially more than we anticipated."

Approximately $350,000 from the police fund was used to pay the Michigan Municipal Risk Management Authority - a self-insurance group formed with other communities - because of lawsuits attributable to the police department.

"We had several years running a negative balance in that fund. We had not been forced to pay it. Last year we were forced to pay it," Kopinski said.

Berend recommended that the savings account should represent 25 percent of the police budget, or about $2 million.

"I think it would be irresponsible for us to try to reach that 25 percent in one year," Bennett said, adding township officials are working to build up the fund.

The fire department's savings is in similar shape. Savings decreased to $72,000 in 1993 from $426,000 in 1992 and $441,000 in 1991. Again, the decrease was due to personnel and pension costs, which were the result of an arbitration under Public Act 312.

Despite the decreased police and fire savings, Berend said the township's overall financial picture is good. "When you look at your total financial picture, you are in good shape," he said. "Your accounting records are in great shape."

Savings in the general fund, which covers township general operations, is in good shape despite a $175,000 decrease each year since 1991. The general fund savings stood at $3.1 million in 1993. The general fund budget in 1993 stood at $7 million.

"We don't think it is a real concern," Berend said. "This is a very healthy fund for a fund balance."

Revenues in the general fund were comprised of 47 percent in state shared revenues, 15 percent in local property taxes, and the remaining amount from license and permit fees.

Berend told trustees that 15 percent in local property taxes is considered low compared to other communities, whose revenues from property taxes average 30 percent and go as high as 50 percent.

■ An arbitration settlement with police officers, including increased township contributions to pensions, as well as insurance payments for lawsuits, led to the significant drop in savings.

Comments sought on speed monitor

Canton police are asking for comments about the use of a speed monitoring device used on township roads in the past week.

"We just want some citizen feedback," said Capt. Alex Wilson.\

Canton police have been testing the device - which tells motorists in lighted digital numbers the speed at which they are traveling - since May 9.

Over the weekend, police placed the device in a number of subdivisions. It will continue to be used for part of the coming week. Today, the device will be placed on Morton Taylor, between Warren and Joy roads. On Tuesday, the device will be back in subdivisions, Wilson said.

Canton police are considering buying the device, which helps drivers monitor their speeds. The device helps police because drivers clearly see their speed without the department having to put a patrol car out to do the same thing.

Anyone who would like to comment on the usefulness of the device is asked to call Wilson at 397-5466.

Cherry Hill pastor discovers congregation has a 'good mix'

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

The Rev. Marjorie Munger's business card describes her church, Cherry Hill United Methodist, as a place for "Space for Your Spirit To Seek God." Ever since her arrival as pastor at the Canton congregation in June 1993, she's viewed the church in that way.

"It's an interesting congregation because it has a good mix. It's a mixing of two kinds of communities." The church, established in 1834, includes some longtime Canton residents who are farmers or others with ties to the Cherry Hill village area. There's an equal number from the "new Canton," more recent arrivals who live in subdivisions, and Munger doesn't sense any conflict between the two.

"We have a lot of space here," she said of the church building on Ridge south of Cherry Hill, which was constructed in the 1880s. "You come to Cherry Hill Church and we have open space and lots of sky." Residents who live in subdivisions and commute to Detroit or Ann Arbor appreciate that feeling; they're able to grow spiritually.

"Here there's a space to do that. They're needed and they know it. We want to nurture people along in that."

Munger, 47, previously served at two small churches in Flint. She and the former pastor at Cherry Hill, the Rev. Randy Whitcomb, switched places, with Whitcomb and his wife, the Rev. Michelle Gentile, going to Flint. Munger, an 11-year Ann Arbor resident, appreciates being closer to home.

"That was difficult," she said of her assignment in Flint, where she stayed part of the week. "This has been very good. I like it here."

She's been ordained for about three years, having earned her master of divinity degree in 1991 from United Theological Seminary in Dayton, Ohio. Munger also did some commuting there, dividing her time between her studies in Ohio and her family responsibilities in Michigan.

"I have a terrific husband," she said of Dennis Munger, an accountant with Great Lakes Bancorp. "He became the primary parent figure for the kids." The couple's two children - a 15-year-old son who's a Pioneer High School student interested in theater and a 19-year-old daughter who's a sophomore chemical engineering student at the University of Michigan - also developed self-sufficiency skills.

Marjorie Munger earned a bachelor of science degree in zoology from U-M in 1969 and worked for about six years in clinical diagnostic microbiology. She stayed home full time to care for her children when they were small, and is glad she was able to do so.

She did some volunteer work during those years, and worked for pay for a citizens action group. Munger began her theological studies at the now-closed St. John's Seminary in Plymouth Township, taking courses in Scripture and Greek. Her student years at the seminary in Dayton included assignments to work with the Wesley Foundation at U-M in Ann Arbor and at Detroit's Central United Methodist Church.

Canton man remains missing

Canton police continue to investigate the disappearance of a 73-year-old man with Alzheimer's disease who wandered away from his home May 4. But police have discontinued an active search.

"Right now we've exhausted all the means we have. We just don't know where to look," said Canton Detective Richard Pomorski.

Police have used all-terrain vehicles, foot patrols, canine units, mounted police units and helicopters to search for Richard Edwin Huntley, who left his Crossings Apartments near I-275 and Joy Road the morning of May 4.

Though police have received information from citizens, the reported sightings of Huntley have been inconsistent, Pomorski said.

Foul play is not suspected in Huntley's disappearance. "There's nothing impossible. Right now we are not leaning toward that," Pomorski said. Huntley's family has not heard from him since he left, Pomorski added.

Huntley — who is in good health other than the Alzheimer's disease — had been talking about returning to New Jersey, where he previously lived, said Tammie Colling, Canton police community relations officer.

Huntley left his home without money or identification. He is hard of hearing and his speech is slurred. He takes medication for Alzheimer's, Colling said.

He is a white male, 6-foot-4, 155 pounds, with gray hair and brown eyes. When last seen, Huntley was wearing a blue down jacket, possibly over a tan jacket, tan pants and tan shoes.

Anyone who has information about Huntley or may have seen him is asked to call Pomorski at 397-5339. Residents outside of Canton should call their local police with information.

Play time: *Christine Donaldson of Canton is leading an effort to build a wooden playground in Heritage Park with donations and volunteer help. "We have a good base. But we still need a few people," Donaldson said of the new committee. She's looking for someone interested in helping with the group's public relations and to head a children's committee. Anyone who would like to join the effort should call Donaldson, 397-5909.

The committee has pretty much decided to hire a consultant with the Leathers company, which has produced more than 1,000 similar playscapes around the country. And it looks like Heritage Park will be the site.

"It creates a spirit of community and a spirit of accomplishment," Donaldson said about the playscape effort, which is similar to a traditional American barn-raising.

Once the committee is under way, they will work on what is called design day. That's where parents and kids get together, as well as a consultant from Leathers, to design their wooden playscape of towers, tires, ramps and unique shapes.

Fund-raising plays a big role in the playscape that can run 10,000-20,000 square feet and cost $65,000-$85,000.

"You'll have a lot of input in the final product," Donaldson told volunteers. "If you have ideas in mind, I suggest you get involved. Your ideas will become a reality."

Mike Gouin, Canton Township parks and recreation superintendent, said the playscape project is considerably less expensive than hiring a company to build one. An adventure playground in Heritage Park has already cost about $60,000.

"We have a beautiful setting for it right now," Gouin said, referring to the nearby Summit on the Park community center and Pheasant Run Golf Course, which are under construction.

Credit union breaks ground for new Canton branch office

Community Federal Credit Union broke ground Wednesday, May 11, on a new Canton branch office. The credit union is creating a new facility at the corner of Hanford and Canton Center roads.

Targeted for completion late in the fall of this year, the new office will be larger and offer more services to meet the financial needs of Community Federal members. The new facility will replace the Canton office Community Federal now operates in the New Towne Plaza.

Located at 6355 N. Canton Center Road, just a few miles from its current facility, the building will be a full service branch office with savings services and a complete loan department. For the first time, the new Canton office will offer members drive-through service. Two drive-in lanes will be installed during construction, with a possibility of adding a third lane if needed. Members will also have access to their credit union funds any time, day or night, with a drive-up automated teller machine. Teller stations will increase, too, from four to six windows.

"While improved customer service is one of the reasons for moving, the move to the new, larger facility reflects our commitment to the community of Canton," said James Cantrell, president of Community Federal Credit Union. "Canton is an outstanding community and Community Federal would like to be a part of its continued growth and prosperity."

■ 'While improved customer service is one of the reasons for moving, the move to the new, larger facility reflects our commitment to the community of Canton.'

Community Federal Credit Union membership is open to anyone living or working in Plymouth, Canton, Northville or the northern Michigan counties of Montmorency or Otsego. Founded in 1952, Community Federal Credit Union is a nonprofit financial cooperative owned and governed by its members. Dedicated to its original mission to serve all members with competitively priced, efficiently delivered financial services, the credit union has grown to seven offices with some 23,000 members and $100 million in assets.

Community Federal branch office locations include: Plymouth, 453-1200; Canton, 455-0400; Northville, (810) 348-2920; Gaylord; Atlanta; Hillman; and Lewiston.

For a time, Taljanovic's job was to protect a hospital as a security guard. "Many times I helped wounded people without legs or hands from the car into the emergency room. I would keep one hand on a part of the body to stop the bleeding. One young man who drove up was crying, saying his mom was badly wounded. He was with his mother, and in the next car was his dead wife."

Student selected for scholarship

Sangita M. Baxi, a senior at Plymouth Salem High School in Canton, has been chosen to receive a four-year $4,000 scholarship from the Coca-Cola Scholars Foundation to study at any accredited college or university in the United States.

On April 14-17 she joined 149 other high school seniors at the Coca-Cola Scholars National Competition in Atlanta for interviews with leaders in education, business, government and law.

Coca-Cola Scholars are evaluated on the basis of leadership in school and community, academic achievements, and motivation to succeed.

"Coca-Cola Scholars are more than academic achievers; they have a proven commitment to unselfish community service," said Crawford T. Johnson III, chairman of the board and president of the Coca-Cola Scholars Foundation. "They are also a diverse group, reflecting our commitment to make the program accessible to students who represent a wonderful cross-section of our society."

Each year, the Coca-Cola Scholars Foundation awards 50 four-year, $20,000 scholarships and 100 four-year, $4,000 scholarships to high school seniors nationwide. The 1994 Coca-Cola Scholars were chosen from nearly 110,000 applicants across the country. The foundation now supports more than 600 students with annual scholarship outlays of $1.4 million.

Most of the skaters are participants in skills classes run by the city of Plymouth recreation department. The skaters have practiced for six weeks preparing for the show.

Tickets are available at the Cultural Center office or pro shop, 525 Farmer in Plymouth. Tickets are $3 for adults and $2 for seniors and kids under 12.

Shows will be 7:30 p.m. Thursday and Friday, 1 p.m. Saturday and 3 p.m. Sunday.

Jaycees elect board and receive awards

The Plymouth Canton Jaycees have elected new board of director members.

They are: Kristin Rowe, president; Eric Bernhardt, management vice president; Mike Fill, community development vice president; Pat Norval, membership vice president; and Chris Dupuis, individual development vice president. Directors are Chuck Mallast III, Fred Comai III, Jennifer Stuscavage, Dawn Cater, Gloria Stachura, David Bertus and Carol Whited.

At its recent District Meeting held May 9 at the Plymouth Landing, the Plymouth Canton Jaycees received the following awards: Kathy Pumphrey, membership development vice president of the year 1993-94; Brian Wagner, management development vice president of the year 1993-94; outgoing president Don McDurmon won president of the quarter (fourth quarter) and president of the year 1993-94. The District H2 Jaycees, which cover 7 chapters in Wayne County, also elected Don McDurmon to District H2 Director, 1994-95. This is a Michigan Jaycees position.

Students develop photography skills

The Canton Kmart store at 5725 Sheldon Road has joined with Miller Elementary School in a program to teach second-graders about photography and the environment using a program developed by Kmart and Kodak.

The second grade at the school received an "It's a Snap! Using Cameras in the Curriculum" package which contains instructional manuals, a Kodak Fun Time Single-Use camera for every student in the class, a photo display unit, and a supplemental educational videotape.

The manual highlights environmental and photographic lessons that encourage students to look at the world around them and think about the impact they can have on it. Lessons like "Identifying My Beautiful World," "Reuse and Recycle" and "How Nature Recycles — Adopt a Tree" promote creativity and teach children to be more aware of environmental issues like recycling.

The students' first photo assignment will be to photograph six beautiful elements of their world and six aspects that need improvement. Upon completion of the project, every camera will be returned to Kmart for free developing, courtesy of Kmart's photo processors.

Students will enter their favorite photo into a contest to be judged by local officials and Kmart personnel. The classrooms also will assemble and decorate a special photo display unit to exhibit their photos at their local Kmart the week of May 15. Grand-prize, second- and third-place winners will be selected and entered into a contest of local Kmart partner school winners nationwide to be judged by photographer Linda Solomon. The grand-prize winner will receive a Kodak Photo FX camera kit, and every student will receive a certificate of achievement.

Officers to serve

Newly elected officers for Plymouth/Canton Chapter 528, Vietnam Veterans of America, are as follows:

Greg Hüddas, president; Bob Lamoureux, first vice president; Don Dignan, second vice president; Rich Whipple, secretary; and John Fleming, treasurer.

These officers and the other elected board of directors members will lead this veterans service organization for the upcoming year.

This growing Vietnam-era veterans chapter already has over 102 members. The color guard has participated in parades and ceremonies in the Plymouth/Canton area as well as in other communities. The chapter plans to participate in the Memorial Day and Fourth of July parades in Plymouth again in 1994, and it will again have a booth during the Plymouth Fall Festival.

One of the major goals of VVA is to provide service to help the veterans and their families. The chapter also plans to be involved in community events during the year.

DIG
— Dig

Just when you thought the L.A. scene had had its last big quake, Dig has released an album that packs such a punch that even the Midwest feels the shake. "Dig," their self-titled album, released by Wasteland Records, is the follow-up to their January '93 debut EP, "Runt," which soared to the top of the alternative college charts.

Like the squishy head cover of their CD jacket, Dig's latest effort is one juicy, rich and creamy piece. The quintet, whose average age is 24.5, has an unusual three-guitar (Scott Hackwith, Jon Morris, Johnny Comwell) approach that creates a dense but moody atmosphere for the listener. It would seem that having producer Dave Jerden (Alice in Chains, Jane's Addiction) on board ensured a successful full-length effort.

Not quite as angular rhythmically as Jane's Addiction, two-year-old Dig relies on more of a choral mode. Smoothing syntax of verbal catchiness are their forte.

Tracks, such as "Believe" and "I'll Stay High," that confront the challenges of adulthood best exemplify their sound. In fact, this enables the band to be more accessible than some of its predecessors.

Track one requires parental discretion where one song evolved from a humorous story about singer/guitarist Hackwith's girlfriend complaining that he never wrote a song about her. Well, she got her wish. "Layla" it ain't, but intense and honest it is.

As a whole, Dig's latest is a worthy effort. Complete with samples of beer-cap tosses and children's laughter, Dig brings you into an intimate living room party.

I guess you could say that Dig doesn't sacrifice song structure for momentary melodrama. Their spontaneous explosions within their songs are akin to high-speed chases where cars crash and magically regenerate.

If a receptive ear is related to one's perception, then one things for certain, you either dig Dig or you don't.

— Mark Killian Simich

"Trace"
—Died Pretty

Less than 10 years after the group's inception in 1983, the Australian quintet Died Pretty very nearly saw its name become a self-fulfilling prophecy.

International touring and critical acclaim throughout the mid-late '80s brought the band to the brink of mass popularity, only to have distribution problems in 1991 all but pull the plug on its popularity. But Died Pretty persevered, signing with Columbia Records and releasing its latest effort, "Trace," in 1993.

"Trace" is a collection of power-pop and brooding ballads that brings to mind a melancholy Rhythm Corps with more personal concerns than political opinions. The group is capable of social commentary, however, as demonstrated in the song "The Rivers" and the ethereal "Dreamaway," featuring a delightfully dissonant piano reminiscent of Bowie's "Alladin Sane."

"Trace" suffers a bit of repetition. Some of the songs are so similar as to be nearly indistinguishable, and "Til We Get It Right" is practically one continuous chorus.

Standouts on the disk include the aforementioned "The Rivers" and "Dreamaway" as well as a mature ballad called "A State of Graceful Mourning."

Died Pretty is good at what it seeks to do, and "Trace" is a well produced and arranged disk. The question is: Will this sound be as marketable in the '90s as it was in the '80s now that rock is looking forward to the post- Grunge Age?

"California Dreaming"
— various artists

Dance music.

Just when you thought you heard it all — disco, techno, hip-hop, house, acid — a simple California record company releases a taste of the state's best beats, steps, dips and grinds.

"California Dreaming" (Full Frequency Range Recording, 1993) is a leap into dream land taking the idea of dance music a step beyond getting funky to a more musically expressive experience.

The 10-track compilation is packed with glossy tracks not normally mentioned on conventional dance releases. Granted the only binding substance each artist has is the fact that each is based in the only state where dreams seem to become reality, but this time with a twist of synthetic impulses.

But who cares.

"Dreaming" bills itself as a documentation of "vibrant kaleidoscope of dance music" and (are you ready for this) "the ultimate cyber-hippy ex-

Diversity key to duo's success

■ "In your face" and "bluesy" aptly describe the band Urban Voodoo Juice. "Prolific" describes John R. Selenis and M.E. Jonson, the driving force behind the group, who write such diverse songs that they had to start two other bands.

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Urban Voodoo Juice has been placed in a myriad of genres including "blues," "rhythm and blues" as well as "alternative."

To members of the band that's not as disturbing as being written off as just another band with a "pretty woman singer."

"We're not about pretty music . . . or the cute girl thing," said vocalist M.E. Jonson, who shaved her head and died her hair blonde in retaliation to those comments. "We really don't want to write music that suggests any inherent gender weakness in that there's a lot of rules for women in the music industry of which I don't adhere to any," she added.

"Conventional" isn't a word that can easily be equated with Urban Voodoo Juice. Instead, Jonson and guitarist John R. Selenis describe the band as having a "schizophrenic" personality.

"I think we're schizophrenic . . . we have some serious mental instabilities (musically)," Jonson said.

During their "plugged-in" shows Urban Voodoo Juice is loud and in your face. Acoustic shows show the bluesier, more roots rock side of the band.

"It feeds and fosters a more aggressive energy that I don't get to experience acoustically," she said about her electric sets.

"It is a dual personality type of thing. However, what makes our acoustic show really important is it has a lot of energy. It's really different than your typical acoustic show with two folkies with an acoustic guitar."

The array of influences that the four members bring into Urban Voodoo Juice, which was a multi-award winner at the 1993 Detroit Music Awards, is attributed, in part, to their personality disorder. Jonson's experience is with country, gospel and bluegrass swing bands. Bassist Paul Randolph is an established jazz musician who has played with Josh White Jr., Robert Penn and Parliament-Funkadelic. Drummer Mike Racette performed within the Los Angeles jazz circuit. A veteran of trash metal bands, soft-spoken guitarist Selenis also performed with the Afro-Music Society. The stint with the society proved to be educational in its own right.

"It was a real eye-opener after doing some of those prison shows. It really gave me (a lesson in) cultural awareness. . . . We saw people really starving for music."

A constant in the band is Jonson and Selenis' dedication to writing lyrics that mean something and are accessible to most socio-economic classes. For example, in the drum-heavy "Peacemaker," Jonson tackles urban violence. "I don't believe in violence. I won't live my life in fear. I'm going to die young in the corridor, stranded way down here.

"People like to hear songs that at least make an attempt to say something," Jonson explained. "(It's part of) our addiction to music. . . . People are always trying to save the world. You can't save the world, but you can save pieces of it," she said.

Sometimes the songs that the duo write don't fit in with the format of Urban Voodoo Juice, however. With that in mind, the duo, who pen and debut their songs under the name Applebutter Music, started an off-shoot of Urban Voodoo Juice called Rootbox.

"A lot of it is that M.E. does so much writing and some of it doesn't fit in with UVJ," Selenis said.

"We debut all our material (as) Applebutter Music before it goes to any band. A lot of things get chucked that way," Jonson added with a laugh. "That's our best tool though."

After it receives the stamp of approval from the audience, the duo decides if it would fit best with Rootbox, Urban Voodoo Juice or with the acoustic Applebutter Music.

While Urban Voodoo Juice is rock-inspired funk, Jonson dubs the four-week-old Rootbox "chicken-fried funk" because it has elements of traditional country mixed in with funk. (In this band, Selenis plays guitar and sings vocals, while Jonson takes on a rhythm guitar and vocal duties. The line-up is rounded out with drummer Matt Stahl, harmonica player Eugene Clark, percussionist Saul Moore, and former Asian Love Pimp member Paul Lamb on bass.)

"Rootbox is a little more song-oriented. It's fun and funkier," Selenis said.

"It's a much simpler thing. It's easier for people to feel into it. It's great songs with really strong melodies. It's a more song-oriented project. You actually hear the songs and the words," Jonson said.

Rootbox performs with Tearjerk, the Jolly Ranchers and Bicycle on Thursday, May 19, at Alvin's, 5756 Cass Ave., Detroit, during a benefit for the Wayne State University student chapter of Amnesty International. Call (313) 832-2355 or (313) 577-3453 for more information.

'Crooklyn' shows a gentler Spike Lee

BY JOHN MONAGHAN
SPECIAL WRITER

Spike Lee, who proved himself more than capable of bringing the explosive Malcolm X to the screen, kicks back with a comparatively simple bit of nostalgia called "Crooklyn." After a decade of in-your-face filmmaking, this kinder, gentler Spike is a welcome sight indeed.

The Carmichael family is a close but struggling family living in Brooklyn in the early 1970s. Mom teaches school while dad tries to get people to listen to "his" music. The five kids — four boys and a girl — spend most of their free time in front of the TV set, playing games in front of the stoop, and fighting with each other.

The action centers on 10-year-old daughter Troy, who tries to make sense of her eccentric family and neighborhood. It all looks fairly sane compared to the suburbs, where she spends part of the summer with her religious aunt and uncle in the South. The sounds of chirping crickets, unheard in the city, keep her awake.

Lee, along with siblings Joie and Cinque, based the screenplay loosely on their own family. Dad Bill Lee really was an idealistic jazz artist in the '70s. The kids, who pile in front of the television, know every word of the Partridge Family songs and stuff their faces full of Lemonheads and Bazooka bubble gum.

Spike, who obviously has fond memories of his childhood in the Bedford-Stuyvesant section of Brooklyn, calls it "a time when young African-American children were motivated primarily by two things: television and sugar."

Die-hard Lee fans might find this pretty tame stuff from the controversial director of "Do the Right Thing," which makes the non-threatening almost controversial. The project was originally conceived for television, but it's in no way a commercial sellout. A movie as low-key as "Crooklyn" won't be an easy sell.

Key to the film are strong performances by Alfre Woodard ("Passion Fish") and Delroy Lindo (West Indian Archie in "Malcolm X"), who play parents with different styles of disciplining the kids. While she insists that they stay away from TV on a school night and clean up the kitchen after dinner, he's more likely to let them run wild.

Perhaps most miraculous is the performance by Zelda Harris as Troy. It's her performance of pre-adolescent naivete that really carries the film.

Despite its strengths, "Crooklyn" is far from perfect. At one point, Spike seems keen on testing the patience of his audience with a crazy camera lens that distorts the action like a fun house mirror. Everything looks long and thin. The effect, used in all the scenes when Troy is down South, is appropriately offputting and claustrophobic, but also pretty tedious.

You also won't find Spike cutting any slack with his white characters, who are either seen as extremely neurotic (the geek next door who keeps 25 smelly dogs in his apartment) or cold and authoritarian, like police and utility workers who exist only to harass the family.

No complaints with the soundtrack, which mixes an original jazz score by Terence Blanchard with popular music of the time. Among the gems: Smokey Robinson's "Tears of a Clown," The Staple Singers' "I'll Take You There," and the Stylistics' "People Make the World Go Round," which backs the tone-setting opening montage.

Fortunately, "Crooklyn" is more than simple nostalgia. A message (in some ways Lee's most clearest) comes across about the power of family to stick together during difficult times.

■ DETROIT FILM THEATRE
Detroit Institute of Arts, 5200 Woodward, Detroit. Call 833-2323 for information. ($5)

"Sunday's Children" (Sweden - 1993). 7, 9:30 p.m. May 20-21; 4, 7 p.m. May 22. Ingmar Bergman stopped directing almost a decade ago, but he penned this autobiographical account of his early childhood. His own son Daniel, in his debut feature, now sits in the director's chair.

"Mandabi" (Africa - 1968). 2 p.m. May 22. The deceptively simple story finds a man receiving a money order only to go through a barrage of bureaucracy trying to cash it. Kicking off an ambitious weeklong tribute to Africa's most celebrated director, Ousmane Sembene, who will discuss this and his other films after the screening. ($10 admission this film only)

■ MAGIC BAG THEATRE
22918 Woodward Ave., Ferndale. Call 544-3030 for information. ($4)

"The Hudsucker Proxy" (USA - 1994). 8 p.m. May 18-19. Tim Robbins ("The Player") plays Norville Barnes, a young Indiana business college graduate who goes from mail room to president's chair at a major corporation. Joel and Ethan Coen ("Raising Arizona," "Barton Fink") direct from a script co-written by former Detroiter Sam Raimi.

■ MAIN ART THEATRE
118 N. Main St. (at 11 Mile), Royal Oak. Films play through at least Thursday. Call 542-0180 for information and show times. ($6.50; $4 students; $3 twilight/matinee)

"Thirty Two Short Films About Glenn Gould" (Canada - 1993). Stratford actor Colm Feore creates a believable Gould, the real-life concert pianist. The short vignettes by director Francois Girard present him as eccentric, inspired, and thoroughly unpredictable.

"Back Beat" (Britain - 1994). Stu Sutcliffe used to be just a bit of Beatles trivia: the fifth band member who decided to leave the group before they became famous. He gets his due in this new film about the early, early years of the band, highlighted by a rocking soundtrack.

"Four Weddings and a Funeral" (Britain - 1994). From Mike Newell, the director of "Enchanted April," an engaging story about a confirmed bachelor who runs across the same woman at the numerous weddings he attends. Hugh Grant and Andie MacDowell star.

■ MICHIGAN THEATRE
603 E. Liberty, Ann Arbor. Call 668-8397 for information. ($5; $4 students/seniors)

"The Scent of Green Papaya" (Vietnam - 1993). Through May 26 (call for show times). A young girl in pre-war Vietnam finds surprising tranquility as a servant for a wealthy family.

"Thirty Two Short Films About Glenn Gould" (Canada - 1993). Through May 29 (see Main Art Theatre listing above.)

"The Grapes of Wrath" (USA - 1940). 7 p.m. May 18. John Steinbeck's American classic about Depression-era families who head to California in search of a better life. Henry Fonda stars; John Ford directs.

"Dazed and Confused" (USA - 1993). 11:30 p.m. May 20-21. It's the last day of high school in 1976 as teenagers in a small Texas town ponder the bigger issues of life, namely sex, drugs, and rock and roll. Richard Linklater ("Slacker") directed this cult classic, an "American Graffiti" for the 1970s, featuring music by Foghat, Aerosmith, and Alice Cooper.

■ STATE THEATRE
2115 Woodward Ave., Detroit. Call 961-5450. ($1)

"True Romance" (USA - 1993). 9 p.m. May 16. After killing a Detroit pimp, Christian Slater flees both cops and robbers in this violent action thriller scripted by Quentin Tarantino ("Reservoir Dogs"). Some scenes, including bits with Dennis Hopper as Slater's security guard father, were filmed in the Motor City.

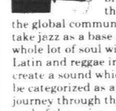
"Jazz in the Present Tense" — The Solsonics



With "Jazz in the Present Tense," The Solsonics do just that — bring jazz into the realm of the global community. They take jazz as a base and add in a whole lot of soul with some Latin and reggae influences to create a sound which can only be categorized as an incredible journey through the musical soul of the universe. Each song has a unique feel, but The Solsonics never lose sight of the groove.

Rising out of the Los Angeles club scene two years ago, bassist Jez Colin and percussionist Willie McNeil took their loves of different types of music and respective instruments and began playing their groove-heavy jazz in clubs throughout the Los Angeles area. "Jazz in the Present Tense," their Chrysalis debut, reflects their musical backgrounds as well as those of the rest of the musicians in the band.

Most of the album was recorded live during in-studio jam sessions, resulting in songs with the energy of club music and the intensity of good jazz. The tracks show both a diversity of backgrounds and a wealth of talent.

"Jazz in the Present Tense" could appeal to everyone on a different level. Whether it is for the soulful grooves or the Latin and reggae influences, update your soul with The Solsonics.

The Solsonics will also open for Queen Latifah at the State Theatre, 2115 Woodward Ave., Detroit, in Friday, May 27. Call (313) 961-5451 or (810) 645-6666 for more information.

perience" which blends old and new with a glimpse of the musical future.

Like its other national and international musical counterparts, "Dreaming" artists offer voice and music sampling interwoven with heavy bass and computer-activated drums. Nevertheless, each track also offers a spice of musical orchestration and imagination which other more commercially noted artists lack.

Tranquility Bass kicks off the release with the soothing "Cantamilla" which eventually flows into the breezy sounds of Hawke's "3 Nudes (Having Sax on Acid)." The release progresses into the heavy technical sounds of "Young American Primitive" by The Reality of Nature and clear glossy beats of the "Theme from Daisy Glow" by Daisy Glow.

"Dreaming" provides a view of musical life beyond glitter balls and colored lights. This is the music you would expect from a state which sleeps with its eyes open.

Stores blooming with sunflowers!

Nothing says summer quite like a wicker basket filled with sunflowers.

But how can you capture the fragrance, texture and beauty of the fresh-picked flowers year round? Floral designer and artist Jan Busse of Farmington Hills exhibits her love for all botanicals in vibrant dioramas that preserve fruits and flowers in their natural environment.

Each element in Busse's arrangements is freeze-dried, a lengthy process by which nature's bounty is preserved to retain the look, feel and smell of the original. Her cottage industry, Busse's Nature Preserve, produces and supplies the freeze-dried arrangements to area businesses and creates custom designs for individual clients.

"I strive for a natural, wild look that is still fresh and unique," says Busse.

She remembers gardening with her grandmother, gathering flowers as they walked through her extensive perennial beds. Her gathering basket overflowed with bachelor buttons as well as tomatoes and herbs from the kitchen garden. This is the essence of her creations. The flowers look as though you picked up a basket and walked through the woods, plucking your favorite blooms to arrange together for a beautiful keepsake. The basket pictured contains a pungent mix of sunflowers, lemons, strawberries, kiwi and sprigs of dried wildflowers.

Some of her other arrangements include broccoli, eggplant, brussel sprouts — almost any fruit or vegetable you can imagine. And the stars of the freeze-dry process are the roses. They retain their delicate shapes and colors, and nestle invitingly among Busses' other fresh-from-nature elements. All the creations are embellished with yards of silk ribbons.

Look for Busses' works-of-art at area Nature Nook Florists, Lee's Specialty at the Somerset Collection in Troy, and M.T. Hunter, 1000 S. Woodward in Birmingham ($10-$160), or call 855-4721.

Summer favorites

For more sunflower designs, check out Folkways Trading Co., 838 Penniman in Plymouth, where sunflowers bloom in a rustic metal flower box in the window ($95). Grouped next to the box are framed sunflower prints in various sizes. For the gardener in your family, hand-painted gloves sprout bright yellow sunflowers ($7.95), and whimsical sunflower stakes stand tall among the annuals ($42 and $52).

Perk up a collar or lapel with a pewter pin shaped in a gardening motif — pots of sunflowers, watering cans, wheelbarrows or birdbaths ($10.95).

The shops at Tel-Twelve Mall in Southfield are ablaze with vibrant sunflowers, and you can delight in their selections for less than $20. We picture a jaunty straw hat adorned with an oversized sunflower, from Winkelman's ($19) and a T-shirt that blooms before your very eyes, from Crowley's ($18). Also check out the sunny tee at Monograms Today ($18.95).

The Giving Tree features long-stemmed silk sunflowers ($8.29), sunflower sachets wrapped in burlap ($5.95), stained glass sun catchers ($9.95) and darling chef's aprons with deep "flower pot" pockets.

The silk hair bow and leather barrette are from Claire's ($5.99-$7.99), and Fionna Hill's gorgeous coffee table read, "Country Flowers Book," is available at B. Dalton's Booksellers ($17.99).

The Print Gallery, 29203 Northwestern in Southfield, lets you recreate a Van Gogh landscape in your own backyard with "The Sunflower Collection," an assortment of sunflower seed packets. The kit, inspired by Van Gogh's "Twelve Sunflowers in a Vase," also includes note cards and planting instructions ($25).

35 years of success for jeweler

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO
STAFF WRITER

After 35 years in the jewelry design and manufacturing business, you'd think he'd seen it all.

But Austrian-born Erwin Pearl (what a great name for a jeweler) is still excited about new collections and still coming up with unique inspirations.

BEHIND THE LABEL

He talked about The Wrought Iron Collection on a recent visit to Neiman Marcus in the Somerset Collection in Troy where a retrospective of his finest pieces were on display.

"Nature remains a great source of ideas for a keen observer," he said. "The flowers, trees, wildlife — all can be interpreted beautifully in jewelry and that's what I've always tried to do. The same for architecture. Noticing the iron gates that surround cities in Austria, it dawned on me that they would make great jewelry if I could find a way to interpret them."

Pearl and his wife, residents of New York City, have four daughters and eight grandchildren. Presiding over a $30-million international jewelry business with a staff of 400, finds Pearl globe hopping frequently to visit retailers and factories from Czechoslovakia to Paris. The manufacturing headquarters is in Providence, R.I.

Kids push for mall at events

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO

They came. They sang. They danced.

Hundreds of area children answered the call last month and auditioned for a spot as a Discovery Kid for Summit Place.

"Boy, did we see a lot of talent," said marketing director LuAnn Slawinski. "We had to double the audition times and double the number of kids we selected for the program. I think we hit on something quite wonderful here."

Twenty-two local kids, ages 7-12, were chosen to be Discovery Kids, representing the shopping center by modeling fashions during promotions, acting as hosts during special events, and performing in mall-sponsored stage productions. The Discovery Kids receive special outfits, mall discounts, and work with professional choreographers and models. The mall plans to select new Discovery Kids each year.

Other malls use select shoppers in mall promotions, but it's usually adult women in the programs like the Fashion Groups at Twelve Oaks in Novi and Laurel Park Place in Livonia.

The Discovery Kids' first performance came on Mother's Day, on stage in center court when the kids were introduced as stars of the mall's Kid's Place Club.

Summit Place started a Kid's Place Club in the summer of 1993 following a marketing study that revealed the majority of Summit Place shoppers had 2-3 children. Kid's Place Club membership topped 2,000 last week as children and parents passed the word about how much fun it is.

"There is free, valet parking for parents of Kid's Place Club members," Slawinski said. "Members get gifts and tickets to area family events. They are specially invited to events like a cookie decorating party at Christmas, an Easter sing-a-long and a Pink Panther show."

Information about the complimentary Kid's Place Club is available through the center's Information Desk.

The new Discovery Kids include: Sarah Henning, 8; Jacinta Sitto, 10; Sarah Staples, 11; Gabrielle Szymanski, 11 — all of Bloomfield Hills; Talitha Trout, 10; Steven Saraquse, 11; Kristen Gregory, 12 — all of South-and between shops to set the stage for the freestanding interactive displays, exhibits, booths, guest speakers, robotic life-size dinosaurs, contests, musical revues and recycling centers scheduled for the month.

The colorful murals explore such topics as Dinosaurs, Wildlife, Marine Life, Space, the History of Flight, Rainforests, Weather, and Endangered Species. The Summit Place merchants are participating with nature-oriented storefronts and display cases. The Food Court is supplying refreshments like Rainforest Crunch Yogurt and Jupiter Juice.

"The Summit Place Mall is a family-oriented shopping center," said Joe Tyree, mall manager. "When we sat down to brainstorm a mallwide promotion we naturally focused on our families. They shop here and support us, so we wanted to do something to support them. Everyone cares about education, science, the environment. This Discovery Program gives something back to the community. That's the relationship a shopping center needs to have."

"The Discovery Program debuts with a weekend-long series of activities May 20-22. Afterward, the murals and exhibits will remain in place through the fall for future special events.

On each mural, shoppers will find questions that stimulate learning. The mall will provide different answers each week via Expo Guides, information pamphlets available at the Customer Service Desk. A complete schedule of Discovery events will be listed in the guide. Periodically, a new series of questions and answers will be set forth.

Tyree gives all the credit for the program to marketing director LuAnn Slawinski of West Bloomfield.

"The Discovery Program started small and just snowballed," Slawinski explained enthusiastically. "The murals were painted and researched by Pontiac artists Paul Madden and Elaine Perry. As the artists worked, environmental and educational groups saw them and contacted us to become part of the program. Science teachers called to see how they could involve their students. We plan some friendly competitions between schools. The mall walkers are anxious to get the answers to our mural questions."

Esther Green of Waterford, a mall walker, confirmed the murals' intrigue as she stood before the painting of dolphins, whales and sharks diving through waves, shaking her head.

LuAnn Slawinski
marketing director

"Hey, when are we going to get the answers?" she asked. "I think these paintings are fabulous and my curiosity is peaked. They are so colorful and very interesting to all ages."

Some of the participants in the Discovery Expo weekend include: The Michigan Department of Transportation, For-Mar Nature Nature Preserve, Detroit Zoological Society, Michigan Nature Association, Global Relief of Michigan, EarthWatch, BFI Waste Systems, Michigan Department of Natural Resources, Stoney Creek Nature Center, and the Oakland County Parks and Recreation.

ting and dealing at the early age of 18. He won the prestigious Diamond International Award for five years straight, but grew impatient to express some new ideas.

"However, the fine jewelry design business is a conservative one and in the '50s and '60s there was no place for my designs. In 1975, I decided to cross over to costume jewelry to reach a larger audience and expand my creativity. It turned out to be a good thing."

Pearl's designs, from scatter pins to necklaces and earrings, have lasting beauty because he intends them to be passed down from mother to daughter. They were created to have fluidity and tell a story. The insect wings bend and dragon bodies curve beneath gold-plated scales and diamond-like jewels. The flowers are classic renditions of the best nature has to offer.

Pearl said his jewelry, priced $35-$250, is a good value, made of quality materials and high standards for the price. He said it's a challenge not to compromise his standards because retailers consistently push for lower price points.

"But you have to be true to your goals," he said. "The most important quality for success is resiliency. A career is not instant coffee. It requires long, tedious, work and determination. You've got to believe in yourself and discipline the way you work. Like a fighter, when you get knocked down, get up, wipe your face, and start fighting all over again."

During the bad times, during retail slumps, Pearl said merchants have to bite the bullet, accept what comes and have courage.

"I just got back from Europe where they are saying, 'Oh, no! Things are bad,' " he said. "Well I answered, 'OK, what can we do to make it better?' Look at your own business and do what's necessary to keep going on."

Pearl keeps going on, introducing new collections like his multi-colored crystal and glass beads, Reflections Pins with accompanying Romance Cards and the Wrought Iron Collection. He still gets a kick out of seeing his pieces worn in public.

"It's like you have a child out there," he mused. "One wish I have is to set the standard for this company that will continue in years to come after I'm gone. A standard that young people will follow. Erwin Pearl jewelry is all about making people happy and enjoying what we do."

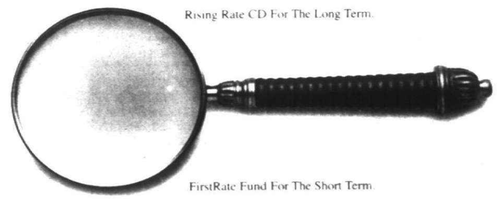
The Long And Short Of Making More On Your Money, Whatever Your Economic Outlook.

Rising Rate CD For The Long Term.



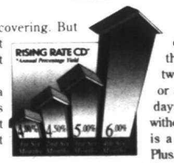
FirstRate Fund For The Short Term.

The economy is recovering. But even the experts can't agree on what interest rates will do.

So First of America has two shrewd ways for you to earn a great rate. No matter what your strategy.

The long view.

If you think rates will drop or stay flat, you should go with a longer-term deposit and get a rate guaranteed to rise every six months over the next two years. The Rising Rate CD.℠



It starts at 4.00% APY. And you'll end up earning 6.00% APY for the final term.* During the initial two-year term, you can withdraw part or all of your money in the first ten days after every six-month interval without penalty. All it takes to get started is a $1000 deposit.

Plus, you can get a no service charge personal checking account.

The short view.

If you predict rates will keep going up this year, deposit short term in the FirstRate Fund. "The interest rate on balances of $10,000 or more is based on the 91-day Treasury Bill. So if the T-Bill goes up quickly, you'll continue to benefit from it.

FirstRate Fund Account Balances	Annual Percentage Yield
$10,000 or more	4.41%
Under $10,000	1.66%

An opening deposit of $10,000 is required.

It's a respectable rate of return plus liquidity in these uncertain times. Plus you can get a no service charge personal checking account.

Of course, your deposits are FDIC insured up to $100,000 per depositor. Call 1-800-443-5465 or visit any of the 150 offices in Southeast Michigan. Because no matter what your point of view, you can't go wrong banking with us.

FIRST OF AMERICA
A bank for life.℠

*Offers available for a limited time at First of America-Southeast Michigan and Security only. New deposits limited to $100,000 per customer. The APYs shown above are accurate as of 5/16/94 and reflect the yields for each six-month period separately and are not cumulative yields. A penalty will be imposed for early withdrawal other than to the periods shown above. Annual percentage yields (APYs) accurate as of 5/11/94 and subject to change weekly after account opening. POINTS OF VIEW

Our health care needs revision, not reinvention

GUEST COLUMNIST

U.S. REP. JOSEPH KNOLLENBERG

■ Clearly, there are problems that need to be fixed in American's health care delivery system. However, we must acknowledge that the United States still has the finest health care in the world.

In a recent letter to the editor ("Think again, Joe," April 21) one of your readers misdiagnosed the remedies to the problems in America's health-care delivery system and made a false claim with regard to my participation in the health insurance plan offered to members of Congress. I believe it is important to set the record straight.

Creating the notion that American's health care system was in "crisis" seemed to be the central point of the letter. Evidently, the author believes that by simply calling something a crisis enough times he can justify a massive government-run, Big Brother solution to the problems in our health-care system. I take strong issue with this all-intrusive approach to health-care reform.

Clearly, there are problems that need to be fixed in American's health care delivery system. However, we must acknowledge that the United States still has the finest health care in the world. More than 90 percent of Michigan's citizens are covered by private, employer-based health-care plans. For those who are uninsured, we must focus our efforts to provide adequate coverage to meet their health-care needs.

However, providing necessary coverage to the uninsured should in no way compel us to re-invent our current system by entrusting every aspect of America's health care to the federal government. I believe we must target our approach to fix what is wrong with health care, while maintaining and strengthening what is right with the system.

As a former small-business owner, I understand all too well the state of our nation's health care delivery system. Day-in and day-out, I had the opportunity to help my employees and clients deal with the crush of burdensome paperwork, interpreting confusing policy language and making sure that their health dollars weren't wasted. Now as a member of Congress who has fought for meaningful health-care reform, I am still wrestling with these and other equally difficult health issues. I believe in the foundations of our health-care delivery system, and I believe that no one person deserves better quality of care than another.

The writer suggests that it is easy for me to take a "no crisis" position because the taxpayer is funding my benefits. Contrary to the writer's assertions, I pay for my coverage through a private plan, and do not participate in the Congressional Health Plan.

We have problems in our health-care system that can be solved. I believe Americans deserve health-care reform that includes the following:

■ Portability of coverage — No one should lose their health-care coverage because of changes in their employment status.

■ Costs of coverage must come down — Rates should accurately reflect costs associated for that individual rather than a region or age group.

■ An end to the pre-existing conditions exclusion — No one should be denied coverage merely on the basis of whether or not they have had a specific illness or disability.

■ Techology needs to be introduced to help reduce needless paperwork — The industry has been studying electronic conversion for several years, and with mounting health care costs, now is the time to enact this change.

■ The self-insured need a tax deduction — By and large, the self-insured are small-business people who are providing as much insurance as they can afford. Is another tax the proper way to reward these people?

■ And finally, significant steps must be taken to ease burdensome and expensive litigation brought on by malpractice suits.

These challenges posed by the health-care debate revolve around self-determination vs. government-run bureaucracy. I believe in the individual and the spirit of free-market competition. And it is this I am taking to Capitol Hill in a debate we will ultimately win, guaranteeing quality care for all Americans.

U.S. Rep. Joe Knollenberg is a first-term congressman from the 11th District, which includes Redford Township, part of Livonia, Farmington and Farmington Hills. Before his election, he owned an insurance agency with his sons.

LETTERS

Column incomplete

Imagine my surprise to find that your paper published an alleged quote from me in Tim Richard's May 5 column. I wonder why neither Tim Richard nor anyone else from the Observer believed that it was important enough to verify the comment attributed to me. I certainly would not bother the Observer or Mr. Richard with the truth of the matter now. I don't often read that particular page of the Observer, and now I know why.

Isn't it interesting that according to Mr. Richard he only interviewed Republican Vorva, Republican Geake, Republican Bouchard, Republican Binsfeld, and Republican Pero? That kind of interview will certainly not give anyone a well-rounded, complete picture of what occurred.

Mr. Geake refused to discuss with me or any other of his constituents House Bill 5128 the day before the actual vote. He had previously written and stated to many of his constituents that "my general position has been to oppose legislation which would interfere with local control of schools and the collective bargaining process." Mr. Geake only stated that there would be hearings and amendments to the bill, neither of which happened, thanks to his votes opposing hearings and amendments.

I sent three messages to Mr. Geake asking him to please come and talk to me on the day he voted for HB 5128. I sent additional messages to Mr. Geake and his office, asking to meet with him another time.

He never even gave me the courtesy of a reply. Finally, in the Capitol, outside the Senate chamber, I called Mr. Geake on a cellular phone. His office at first refused to let me talk to him, saying that Mr. Geake was busy in session. I protested that he was only engaged in reading a newspaper on the floor, nothing more, and was, finally, put through to him.

I have at least six witnesses as to what I said to Mr. Geake. I have learned that it is necessary to have witnesses when speaking to the "right honorable gentleman." Earlier, when one female teacher tried to explain to Mr. Geake the predominance of women in the teaching profession, and the negative impact HB 5128 would have on women, Mr. Geake replied that it was not his fault that the female teacher "hated men." Everyone who heard thought that comment was weird, cruel and without justification.

If Bob Geake wishes to see and meet with educational employees, Bob Geake knows where to reach us. He could always find us before, particularly when he wanted money.

While it appears that Mr. Geake told something other than the total truth, Mr. Vorva was just plain insulting, as usual. Mr. Vorva told teachers that they were the new "minority" and that teachers had better accept their "minority" status. Now isn't that a fine example of a Middle Age feudal lord?

Educational employees no doubt lost their tempers. Legislators lost their tempers and refused to communicate. Reputations may have been tarnished, including those of educational employees, legislators, the Observer, and Tim Richard. But don't you think it is about time for the temporary victors to stop whining that the temporary victims are fighting back?

I suggest a new rule for your columns: "No whining."

Commissioner strives to keep his name off signs

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

Wayne County commissioner Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, has taken an unusual step to see that his name will not be printed on county signs in his district.

McCotter, who also represents Plymouth and Plymouth Township, objects to a proposed ordinance that basically says, "If Executive Edward McNamara's name is on a sign, then the county commissioner's name must be on the sign, too."

The new sign ordinance, introduced by commissioner Michelle Plawecki, D-Dearborn Heights, who also represents Redford Township and part of Livonia, says that county signs with McNamara's name on them will also have McNamara's phone number and the name and phone number of the commissioner in whose district the sign is erected.

"I don't want the county to expropriate my name and place it on a sign in my district," McCotter said.

If you'd like to comment on this issue, you may reach Plawecki at 224-0930, McCotter at 462-6152, commissioner Bryan Amann, D-Wayne, who also represents Canton Township, at 224-0944 and commission vice chair Kay Beard, D-Westland, who also represents Garden City, at 224-0902. (Amann opposes the ordinance.)

Just one county resident showed up at the public hearing last week to comment on Plawecki's ordinance. Lou Kramer of Dearborn Heights said that the ordinance is "totally political in nature." The county might as well put "every other politician's name" on county signs, Kramer said.

These signs, according to the ordinance, may only be put up at county construction and operation sites when the activity is "likely to generate an inconvenience to residents and businesses in the neighborhood."

Plawecki says that this lets citizens know who their county commissioners are.

Area officials pleasantly shocked by Focus:HOPE tour

Schoolcraft College and Livonia officials were surprised at what they saw recently on a tour of Focus:HOPE in Detroit.

The western Wayne County contingent agreed it revealed a great deal more than they thought was there.

Conway Jeffress, Schoolcraft's vice president for instruction, hadn't expected to find a master's degree program for engineers at Focus:HOPE, which is more widely known for its charitable and civil rights work.

Along with Focus:HOPE's 13-year-old machinist training program, the new engineering program will give students a tremendous amount of hands-on experience in real factories and machine shops, making real parts for real companies. The engineering departments of six universities are involved and will issue the degrees.

"I never knew it was this elaborate and went this far," Jeffress said.

Focus:HOPE owns and operates four companies on 35 acres near Linwood and Oakman in the heart of Detroit.

High Quality Manufacturing Inc. supplies engine hoses to Detroit Diesel and emission control harnesses to Ford. F&H Manufacturing Co. produces balance and cam shaft thrust plates for Ford and machine castings for Detroit Diesel. Tec Express Inc. receives, sorts and distributes General Motors transmissions and converters to GM's re-manufacturing centers. Tec Machining Inc., the nascent production arm of the Center for Advanced Technologies, is in the old Massey-Ferguson plant on Oakwood.

"We're here to develop human beings to recreate the economic engine of southeast Michigan," said Kenneth Kudek, Focus:HOPE assistant director.

In that spirit, Focus:HOPE plans to contact the 18- to 24-year-old unemployed people in the Detroit area, including those in Observer communities, and sign them up for re-training. "We're going after all of them," Kudek said.

In the F&H machine shop, Fernon Feenstra, a Livonia city councilman and Schoolcraft's associate dean for technology and natural sciences, wandered away from the tour group and talked with the folks who weren't necessarily part of the tour.

He walked away impressed. "They had six students with one instructor," he said, "which is phenomenal as far as one-on-one (training is concerned)."

Robert Bishop, Livonia city treasurer and retired Ford engineer, said that manufacturers ought to use the Focus:HOPE companies as subcontractors, then hire the graduates. "Industry should jump on these kinds of things."

Feenstra said he's interested in signing an articulation agreement with Focus:HOPE so that Schoolcraft students might take advantage of the programs. "I'm going to talk to this fellow (from Focus:HOPE) and see what we can do to hook on," he said. "This is the top end. This is the way top end. A year or two in this program, that's pretty powerful stuff."

Pleased to have been invited on the tour, Bishop theorized that a new attitude of cooperation between Detroit and the suburbs settled over the area when Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer was elected.

"Now that's spreading, and it's contagious," he said. "We've got to find ways to work together and support one another. In a lot of ways our futures are linked."

Best hamburger

B

CHEF LARRY JANES

For best burgers use quality meat, hot grill

Because hamburgers symbolize the essence of American cooking, how to cook them is a matter of loving dispute based on minute distinctions. Should the perfect hamburger be fried, sauteed, broiled or grilled? The grand masters of cooking offer different points of view.

M.F.K. Fisher, Julia Child, Craig Claiborne and James Beard, with whisks and knives of talent far beyond those of this writer, wrote considerably about it in their tomes on food and cooking. They all agree the meat should be of good quality, the skillet should be very hot, and the flavor of the raw meat should be enhanced by a little something extra.

How they accomplished this "little something extra" is what makes friends of the Janes Gang usually request seconds when burgers are the entree of choice.

Expert opinions

M.F.K. Fisher's hamburger in her book "An Alphabet for Gourmets" is the most candidly personal, as it is the most outrageously French. She opts for a hamburger made from the best sirloin, "a la Mode de Moi-meme," seared (avoiding fried or sauteed) in a very hot skillet and sauced in red wine, butter, chopped fresh herbs and oyster sauce along with the pan juices.

Julia Child, whom I shared an engaging lunch with in San Francisco, serves up her hamburgers "a la Francaise" in which the hamburgers are more like large meatballs moistened with suet and marrow, seasoned with minced onion and herbs, held together by an egg and sauteed in butter and oil. She then would sauce them in red wine, beef stock, and a bone marrow sauce called Bordelaise. With all due respect to the Grand Dame, this sounds more like my meatloaf than hamburger.

Ever the internationalist, Claiborne, in his first New York Times Cookbook, gives us hamburgers "au Poivre" and burgers with dill, seared in a skillet and finished off with butter, Tabasco sauce, Worcestershire sauce and lemon juice. In his book the "Theory and Practice of Good Cooking," James Beard comes right out of the closet with "Sauteed Hamburgers," preferring them sauteed rather than broiled because they stay juicier longer. He preferred ground top round or ground chuck with 25 percent fat rather than sirloin, and sauteed in peanut oil rather than butter and/or oil.

Sticking with the other notables, Beard enjoyed saucing his burgers with pan juices ripened with red wine, cognac, pine nuts and pepper.

Survey

Since I can't seem to remember the last time I deglazed my Farberware fry pan with $40 cognac after frying burgers, the Janes Gang conducted an unofficial survey on Mother's Day when all the great female cooks of the clan gathered to swap stories of the hard winter and gossip about cousins and relatives not in attendance.

The rules were simple. Burgers were fried and grilled. The ground beef was a choice of a pinkish blend for 99 cents per pound, $1.39 per pound ground chuck, and $2.99 per pound ground sirloin from the best meat market in town. Each blend of burger was served simply doused with salt and pepper or extravagantly decorated ala Julia Child with onions, herbs, eggs, suet and marrow. All burgers were cooked as the Janes women unamiously preferred: "with no signs of blood."

The runaway winners were those suggested by Julia that were laden with extra additives. The meat of choice was ground chuck. The cheap hamburger was dubbed "too greasy," while the expensive ground sirloin was labeled "too dry."

What was surprising, however, was the panel's choice for best cooking procedure. Again with a vote of 8 out of 10, the method of choice was grilling. The secret? Allow the grill to get real hot before you start cooking. As per all great cook suggestions, the meat is almost seared immediately with a firm, almost crusty coating and a juicy, tender, tasty inside. The burgers were never "smashed" as most of us do to encourage fast cooking. The burgers were cooked with the lid "on" to encourage a good grilled flavor.

Lastly, but probably the most important, with all those matrons milling around, how could the burgers not come out great, especially on Mother's Day?

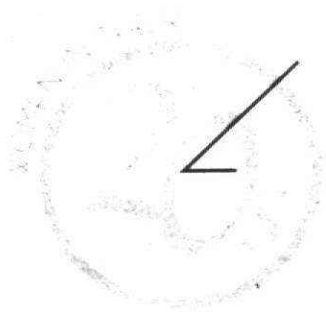
LOOKING AHEAD

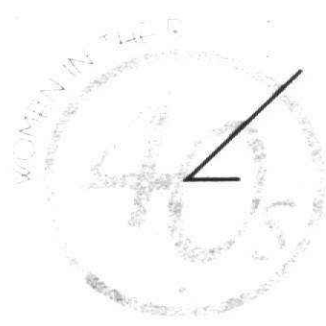
What to watch for in Taste next week:

- Fire up the grill! Grillmasters share recipes.
- Laura Letobar cuts the fat in a fruity yogurt pie.

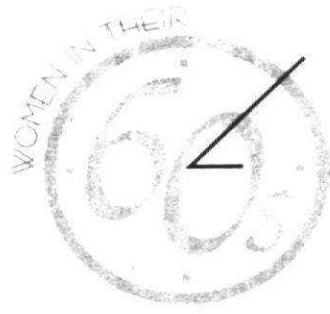
Growing Healthfully



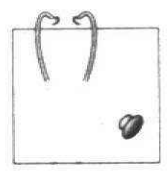
- The child-bearing years are a special time for women. There is so much to think about and to do in preparation for the new baby. What you eat and how much weight you gain can be important to both you and your baby.
- Drink decaffeinated and caffeine-free beverages.
- Avoid alcohol consumption both before conception and during pregnancy.
- Eating an extra 300 calories each day during your second and third trimesters will provide you with enough energy.
- Smaller meals and more frequent nutritious snacks may be better tolerated as the pregnancy advances.
- Head off osteoporosis by eating calcium-rich foods to lay down the largest amount of bone mass possible.



- It seems as if most women are protected against coronary heart disease by estrogen which is plentiful from puberty to menopause. After menopause the heart disease incidence rises. One in three women have it by age 65 compared with 1 in 17 before age 60.
- Get your blood cholesterol level checked by your physician. It's a good indicator of coronary heart disease risk in women as it is in men.
- Start a sensible exercise program to strengthen your cardiovascular system and keep your weight in check.
- Eat the appropriate number of calories and follow an eating pattern that is low in total fat, saturated fat, and cholesterol and adequate in vitamins, minerals, fiber and protein.



- Women over 65 are more likely than men to suffer a crippling or fatal heart attack. Adjust diet, exercise and other health habits to correspond with your own identified risk factors for diseases.
- Women in their 30s generally have a one in 5,900 chance of developing breast cancer, while those in their 60s have a risk of one in 420. Obesity may increase breast cancer risk only after menopause. Consuming foods rich in vitamin A or beta carotene, such as carrots, squash and spinach, may help reduce breast cancer risk.
- One quarter of women 35 to 64 are at least 30 percent heavier than they should be. Obesity in women is also associated with increased risk of heart disease, high blood pressure, diabetes, and gall bladder disease.



Recent studies are showing that nutrition and lifestyle can play a major role in reducing a woman's risk of heart disease and osteoporosis. A low-fat diet that includes whole grains, vegetables and fruits will help you and your family stay healthy.

SPECIAL WRITER

There is no secret formula or magic pill for staying healthy. Good nutrition is the key, followed by a program of regular exercise.

Women need to eat well, especially at certain times of their lives such as during pregnancy, to lessen the effects of premenstrual syndrome, to avoid heart disease and osteoporosis.

"A healthy diet includes lots of vegetables, low-fat meats and dairy products, some fruits, whole grains such as bread, cereal and pasta," said Kathleen Kinney, a registered dietitian who works at Henry Ford Hospital's West Bloomfield Center.

A nutritious diet with added milk or dairy products is extremely important for women during pregnancy, said Gale Cox, a registered dietitian and Health Program Coordinator for Botsford General Hospital in Farmington Hills. "The ideal diet for pregnant women should include iron from lean meats, dark green vegetables and whole grains.

"On the average, a woman should only gain 25 to 30 pounds during pregnancy," she said. "If a woman is overweight or underweight when she becomes pregnant, she should check with her doctor on recommended weight gain."

Pregnant women, and those who suffer from premenstrual syndrome should avoid caffeine and alcohol.

PMS is a complex set of symptoms, that includes nervous tension, irritability, headache, fatigue, depression, fluid retention, and food cravings that occur 10 to 14 days prior to menstruation and disappears when menstruation begins.

Limiting sugar and salt intake can also provide relief from PMS symptoms.

"In many cases symptoms can also be lessened by eating small, frequent meals, that include fiber and protein, instead of eating three large meals a day," said Linda DeVore, a registered dietitian at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia.

Too much stress can also affect your health. Stress is our body's reaction to change, said DeVore. Every time we experience stress our bodies produce adrenaline to give us extra energy. Stress depletes nutrients which is why a nutritious diet is of the utmost importance.

Limiting caffeine and alcohol, eating vitamin C rich foods including fruits and vegetables, especially citrus fruits, will give you fuel to cope better with stress. Make sure your diet also includes protein and complex carboyhdrates which are found in lean meats, beans, whole grain breads, cereals and pasta. Your body uses more of these nutrients when it's under stress.

Exercise, as well as diet, is instrumental in the prevention and treatment of heart disease which, according to the American Heart Association, is the number one killer of women in the United States.

Women can reduce their risk of heart disease by eating a high fiber, low-fat diet, said Roxolana Karanec, registered dietitian at Henry Ford Hospital's Livonia Center.

A good diet, plus added calcium and vitamin D that is found in dairy products, is recommended for women throughout their lives to help them avoid osteoporosis when they are older. Of the 25 million Americans currently suffering from osteoporosis, most are women.

"Women achieve 80 to 90 percent of their bone mass between their teenage year and their early 30s," said Dr. Henry G. Bone, of Henry Ford Hospital's Bone and Mineral Division. "This is the reason that good nutrition is so important for women during these years. In fact, women of all ages need calcium and vitamin D to insure that they build and maintain strong bones.

"Without good nutrition, women can deplete their bone mass, which can lead to osteoporosis."

Instead of pop, Dr. Bone recommends that teenagers and young women drink milk. "Some studies have shown that the phosphorus in carbonated products such as pop, help deplete the body's bone mass," he said.

The message to all women, said Susan Calvert Finn, past president of the American Dietetic Association, is that diseases "are more preventable than most women may believe, and existing research shows that nutrition and lifestyle can play a major role in their prevention."

Turning 50 motivates mom to change lifestyle

BY SANDRA DALKA-PRYSBY
SPECIAL WRITER

In November, I'll celebrate my 50th birthday with my husband Tom, and children, Andy, 15, Libby, 13, and Emily, 11. By then I'll be well on my way to achieving a healthier lifestyle with the help of "Family Circle" magazine.

Approaching the big "50" was scary because I was 150 pounds overweight, smoking two packs of cigarettes a day, and not exercising. I was afraid I wasn't going to live to see my children grow up.

I shared my concerns with "Family Circle" and they are helping me achieve my goal. I've given up smoking, changed the way I eat, and started a regular exercise program.

The magazine has provided me the services of a nutritionist, Muriel Wagner of Southfield, who has developed a low-fat, high carbohydrate food plan for me of approximately 1,800 calories.

My exercise needs are met daily thanks to the Beverly Hills Racquet Club. The club has provided me with a trainer and the use of all its facilities. I'm walking two miles a day, and work out three times a week on the weight machines.

I've lost over 30 pounds, and have decreased my body fat and cholesterol. It hasn't been easy. Having pneumonia set me back a little, but I got back on my plan in January. I know I have a distance to go, but I am going to succeed.

I'll keep you posted on my progress.

Editor's note: Sandy Dalka-Prysby lives in Birmingham. She recently appeared on the Maury Povich Show to explain why she is determined to lose weight, and will be featured in the June 7 issue of "Family Circle" magazine.

Quality is traditional at Champagne Deutz

FOCUS ON WINE

ELEANOR & RAY HEALD

"Deutz is well aware of its lagging brand image," contends Champagne Deutz National Director of Sales and Marketing Marc Laderriere. "If a business person wants to impress clients at a dinner or if a young person is attempting to make an impression with a date, what will they order? Chances are, money is no object in such cases and Moet & Chandon's Dom Perignon will be the champagne of choice."

Laderriere is not deriding the competition nor questioning the quality of Dom Perignon, he's out to show the American public that the small, family-owned Champagne Deutz produces wines of equivalent quality to the more prestigious and well-known bubblies of Moet & Chandon and other renowned champagne houses. In all honesty, we had not tasted Champagne Deutz in some time, but we walked away impressed from a recent tasting with Laderriere. Indeed, there's a new breath of life at Champagne Deutz!

In a capsule, Deutz is a very small house annually producing only 85,000 cases of high quality champagne. It's not a recognized brand, yet it's sold in every Michelin-starred restaurant in France. It will provide a new avenue into champagne for you.

What ensures Deutz quality? Deutz has a history and tradition of quality extending back to its founding in 1838 by William Deutz and Pierre Geldermann. Since 1972, it has been under the managing direction of Andre Callier, a man dedicated to the production of quality champagne who personally supervises every step of the winemaking process from grape selection to creation of the cuvee (blend).

"I aim to increase the specialization of Deutz wines toward that segment of the public searching for real quality in a world that is increasingly mundane," Lallier said. "In order for champagne to uphold and regain its position in the world market, the Grands Marques houses must continue to adhere to ever-increasing measures of quality."

At Deutz, only the free-run juice and a small portion of the first pressing are used, vintage wines are strictly made from the first pressing. Traditionally, a Champagne Deutz cuvee is blended from 30 to 35 base wines including small lots and some older reserve wines originating from 90 acres of house-owned vineyards. Wines

Dietitians share healthy recipes

Well-balanced diet includes variety of foods

See related story on Taste front. Information for the Growing Old Healthfully graph on the front of Taste came from a variety of sources including — the International Food Information Council, the American Heart Association, the American Dietetic Association, "Nutrition Update" sponsored by Harvest Crisp Crackers, and the United Dairy Industry of Michigan.

"Exercise, combined with a diet low in fats and excess sugar, can help prevent and control diabetes, which results when the pancreas does not produce enough insulin to work properly," said Mary Heiser, a registered dietitian, and certified diabetes educator who works with the Diabetes Outpatient Program at Garden City Hospital.

"Persons who are over 40 years of age with a family history of diabetes, and who are overweight, are at great risk," said Heiser. "That's why everyone in this group should eat regular, healthy and balanced meals, maintain a reasonable body weight and exercise regularly."

Here are some more nutrition recommendations from the American Dietetic Association.

■ Eat a variety of food each day from the major food groups — 3 to 4 servings of low-fat dairy foods, 2 servings of lean meat or meat alternatives, 4 servings of vegetables/fruits, and 4 servings of whole grain breads or cereals.

■ Limit total fat intake to no more than one-third of daily calories and select from a variety of foods containing saturated, polyunsaturated, and monounsaturated fatty acids.

■ Obtain at least one-half of daily calories from carbohydrates, particularly complex carbohydrates such as beans, peas, vegetables, nuts and seeds.

■ Eat a variety of fiber-rich foods including fresh fruit with skins, vegetables, and whole grains — for example oatmeal and brown rice.

■ Include 3 to 4 daily servings of calcium-rich foods such as low-fat milk, yogurt, cheese, broccoli, and canned salmon with bones. Increase the use of milk in cooking.

■ Consume plenty of iron-rich foods such as lean meats, prunes, pino and kidney beans; spinach and enriched and whole grain breads and cereals.

■ Limit intake of salt and sodium-containing foods.

Chocolate Mint Frozen Yogurt Pie

1¼ cups graham cracker crumbs (8 rectangles)
1½ teaspoons sugar
2 tablespoons soft tub margarine
1 quart (32 ounces) chocolate low-fat frozen yogurt
1 teaspoon mint extract

Preheat oven to 375 degrees. Using blender or food processor, crush graham crackers into fine crumbs. Combine sugar and crumbs in mixing bowl. Melt margarine and combine with crumb mixture.

Press crumbs into 9-inch pie plate to form a crust. Bake 8 minutes, until lightly brown or microwave on high, 100 percent power, 2 to 2½ minutes, turning halfway through (be sure to use a microwave safe pie plate). Cool on rack.

Place yogurt into medium-sized bowl. With mixer, cream mint extract into yogurt. Scoop yogurt mixture into cooled pie crust. Place pie in freezer for 30 to 60 minutes, or until frozen. Yield 8 servings.

Orange Banana Smoothie

8 ounces vanilla low-fat yogurt
½ cup orange juice
1 medium banana, scant 1 cup sliced

Combine all ingredients in a blender. Mix until smooth. Yield 2¾ cup servings. This drink is high in vitamin C and calcium.

Calories per serving, 160. Recipe from Gale Cox, registered dietitian, Botsford General Hospital.

Pasta Primavera

2 cups pea pods
1 cup broccoli tips
1 cup asparagus cuts
1 cup diced zucchini
1 cup seeded, diced cucumber
4 cups cooked spinach fettuccini, rinsed in cold water and drained
1 cup oil-free Italian salad dressing
2 ounces grated Parmesan cheese
½ cup fresh chopped parsley, 1 tablespoon dried
2 tablespoons fresh oregano, ½ teaspoon dried
1 to 2 tablespoons white wine vinegar
Salt and pepper to taste

Steam pea pods, broccoli and asparagus very lightly until bright green and still crisp; drain. Rinse under cold water. Toss cooked vegetables with ¼ cup salad dress; set aside.

Combine zucchini and cucumbers in a separate bowl; toss with ¼ cup salad dressing and set aside. Place cooked pasta in a large bowl; toss with vegetables and remaining ingredients. Serve cold. Serves 8.

Calories per, ½ cup serving 130. Recipe from "Holiday Happenings," a cookbook published by the Michigan Organization of Diabetes Educators. Submitted by Mary Heiser, registered dietitian, Garden City Hospital.

Cream of Potato Soup

8 cups peeled, cubed potatoes (approximately 2½ pounds)
4 cups skim milk
6 cups water
3 cups thinly sliced celery
3 cups thinly sliced onion
4 tablespoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
1 tablespoon dill
1 tablespoon parsley
2 teaspoons Mrs. Dash lemon-and-herb seasoning
1 teaspoon freshly ground pepper
2 cups diced carrots or broccoli, if desired
Dried or fresh parsley

Recipe can be made ahead and reheated. The longer it sits, the thicker it becomes. Freezes well.

In six quart stock pot, sautee onion and celery in oil. Do not brown.

Meanwhile, peel and cube potatoes. In 6-cup measuring cup, blend together milk and cornstarch. Add to onion mixture, along with potatoes and remaining ingredients. Stirring occasionally, simmer partially covered for 1 hour or until potatoes are soft. Mash potatoes slightly while in pot with a potato masher. Garnish with fresh or dried parsley if desired. Serve or store.

Tasting Notes

- 1988 Blanc de Blancs ($45) is the perfect aperitif made from 100 percent chardonnay. Drink it without food in the true French style. It's delicate with a citrusy elegance.
- Deutz Brut Classic ($25) showcases the traditional champagne grape varietals in a blend of 25 percent chardonnay, 45 percent pinot noir and 30 percent pinot meunier.
- 1988 Vintage Brut ($35), a blend of 25 percent chardonnay, 60 percent pinot noir and 15 percent pinot meunier is a wine that will live forever. It matches perfectly with venison for meat lovers, and if you want to try aging champagne as the Brits do, this is the one.
- Cuvee Marie-Damarisse ($25) is a Brut with color even though it doesn't say Rose on the label. At 80 percent pinot noir, it is a sensational match with poached salmon in champagne or buerre blanc sauce and represents a true value. Don't serve it too cold or you'll miss the terrific cherry aromas.
- The Deutz crown jewel is Cuvee William Deutz ($75), and the current vintage is 1985. It spent six years on the yeast and was disgorged in December 1993. The toasty nose is followed by a solid fruit and mid palate that's full and rich while retaining a lengthy, crisp finish. Serve it with lobster or duck. The duck sauce should not have pronounced berry flavors.

Appetizer complements champagne

See related wine column

Baked goat cheese is a tasty complement to Deutz Brut Classic Champagne. Because the Deutz Brut Champagne has a natural citrus quality, this appetizer is a natural. The wine also pairs well with fresh oysters on the half shell.

Baked Goat Cheese

One small loaf goat cheese
Olive oil, small quantity to make cheese spreadable
Garlic, a few cloves finely minced
Grated orange zest
Toast rounds

Mix cheese, olive oil, garlic and pepper. Spread on bread and bake on cookie sheet in 350 degree oven until cheese is warmed. Remove from oven and top with small amount of grated orange zest.

Burgers, meatloaf are family favorites

See Larry Janes' Taste Buds column on Taste front.

Best Hamburgers

2 pounds fresh ground chuck
½ teaspoon fresh ground pepper
4 anchovies mashed, or 1 tablespoon anchovy paste
1 teaspoon dried tarragon or 2 tablespoons fresh
½ teaspoon chervil
4 tablespoons butter or margarine, softened

Mix the pepper, anchovies and herbs into the softened butter or margarine until well mixed. Mix the butter mixture into the ground beef with your fingers to the meat stays light rather than packed.

Shape the meat gently into 4 patties about ½ pound each. If cooking in a fry pan, heat 2 tablespoons of oil in a fry pan until hot but not smoking. Sear the patties quickly and cook for 4-5 minutes on each side or until desired doneness is reached. If cooking on a grill, preheat grill and sear patties over hot coals or high heat. Cover and continue cooking for 3-5 minutes. Flip burgers over and cook for 3-5 minutes or until desired doneness is reached. Makes 4 half pound burgers.

As we talked about the best burgers, I would be remiss not to print momma's favorite meatloaf recipe.

Momma's Meatloaf

2 pounds fresh ground chuck
½ pound fresh ground pork
½ pound fresh ground veal
½ cup seasoned bread crumbs
3 tablespoons Parmesan cheese
1 medium onion, chopped fine
2 eggs, lightly beaten
2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
¼ teaspoon nutmeg
Salt and fresh ground pepper to taste
1 cup peeled plum or Roma tomatoes

Combine the ground beef with the ground pork and ground veal. Mix well. Combine remaining ingredients except tomatoes into the ground beef mixture. Mix well. Shape and place into a loaf pan.

Blend or puree the tomatoes until smooth. Pour this tomato puree over the meatloaf. Cook uncovered for 1 hour at 350 degrees. Remove from the oven. Drain or siphon off any noticeable fat and allow to stand for 5 minutes before turning upside down on a plate or platter. Serves 6-8.

Go easy on high fat spreads to slap together a healthy sandwich

LOIS THIELEKE

Sandwiches are a perfect choice when you need food fast. The Earl of Sandwich invented sandwiches in the 1780's so he didn't have to leave the gaming table to eat. The Earl should go down in history for inventing the first fast food. Little did he know that sandwiches would catch on and the art of making healthy sandwiches is now the "in" thing to do for something to eat fast.

Don't skimp on the bread! It's an excellent source of carbohydrates. Contrary to popular myth, bread is not fattening. It's what you put on the bread or sandwich that adds excess calories. Look for whole wheat, multigrain, rye or pumpernickel as they are a good source of fiber.

Fatty spreads

Watch out for high-fat spreads such as mayonnaise, margarine, butter or cream cheese, instead try the lower-fat substitutes.

A tasty low-fat sandwich dressing can be made with plain low-fat yogurt or blend equal parts of low-fat cottage cheese and buttermilk. Flavor with herbs and spices, mustard powder, horseradish, lemon juice, garlic or ground ginger. This dressing is sure to take the dullness out of plain mayonnaise or a plain sandwich. The best part is that it has just nine calories per tablespoon and just a trace of fat.

Sodium and fat are likely to be high in some of the traditional sandwich spreads. You can buy low-sodium mustard and Worcestershire sauce and "lite" versions of mayonnaise and ketchup. Less-familiar condiments such as chutney, horseradish, and salsa are flavorful alternatives with few nutritional drawbacks. Some brands may contain large amounts of salt.

Mayonnaise is a high-fat condiment. It is an emulsion of oil, egg yolk and vinegar. The regular version is almost 100 percent fat. However, since it is made with liquid vegetable oil (usually soybean), mayo is not particularly high in saturated fat. Despite the egg yolks, it contains just a small amount of cholesterol, about 5 milligrams par tablespoon. Products labeled "salad dressing" as well as "light," "diet" or "imitation" mayonnaise may contain one-half to two-thirds the calories of real mayo and less than half the fat. In these versions, water and starch or another thickener replace some of the oil.

If you simply must have real mayonnaise, use a teaspoonful rather than a tablespoonful, or blend the mayo with plain low fat yogurt. Flavor the yogurt with a little mustard, lemon juice and pepper for dressing in chicken or tuna salad. Tartar sauce and the "secret sauce" used on fast-food hamburgers are both mayonnaise-based. Substitute a light mayo or plain low-fat yogurt with a little chopped pickle mixed in.

Sauces

Ketchup is mainly tomatoes, but the average ketchup is 20 percent sweeter than tomatoes and contains up to 180 milligrams of sodium per tablespoon. Some brands of bottled salsa and taco sauce contain slightly less sodium than regular ketchup, as do Worcestershire sauce and pickle relish. Most chili sauces, steak sauces, barbecue sauces and cocktail sauces have even more sodium than ketchup. The best option may be to make your own Mexican style salsa by combining chopped tomatoes, chives, onions, lemon or lime juice and spices.

Mustard's natural pungency somewhat limits the amount you use, as even a tablespoonful of prepared mustard packs a major taste wallop. If you need to watch your sodium intake, buy a no-salt-added mustard; or "cut the mustard" with some plain low-fat yogurt; or mix your own from dry mustard powder. Vary the strength, texture and flavor by using water, vinegar or milk as the liquid.

Horseradish is fairly low in sodium but used far less than mustard or ketchup. You may wish to combine it with mustard for a sandwich spread or with plain low-fat yogurt to make a less biting sauce or dressing. Chutney is a spicy-sweet relish of fruits or vegetables with added sugar, vinegar and spices. A tablespoon contains about 30+ calories (depending on the recipe), no fat and a small amount of sodium.

Watch the mayo, margarine, butter and cream cheese: All contain fat. Go easy on condiments high in sodium such as ketchup, mustard, chili sauce and relish. Make good choices for topping off a sandwich, don't make a healthy low-fat sandwich and blow-it with a high-fat, high-sodium spread.

Health-conscious cooks tool around the kitchen

The foods you buy and how you prepare them are the keys to healthy eating, but the tools you use for cooking can add a lot to the nutritional value of your meals. According to the American Institute for Cancer Research the health-conscious cook needs only a few basics.

A steamer helps safeguard the nutritional value of food by cooking gently but quickly. Nutrient losses are kept to a minimum because the food never comes in contact with the heating liquids, and steam cooking requires no added oils or butter.

Steamers come in all shapes and sizes, including fold-out baskets that fit into your pans, and electric models as well.

A wok or Oriental frying pan is a versatile, nutrition-oriented device. It's great for cooking foods fast so that a minimum of vitamins is lost.

A juicer allows you to make healthful beverages from all sorts of fresh fruits and vegetables. And, a grater lets you grate cheese that you can use sparingly to enhance the taste of recipes withoutadding unnecessary fat.

A pressure cooker also saves nutrients by cooking quickly and trapping nutrients in the sealed pot. It can greatly reduce the time needed to prepare wholesome dried beans, making them much more convenient to use.

A microwave oven is made for healthy cooking. A microwave allows you to cook vegetables in minutes, or poach fish instead of sauteeing it in butter. Foods are cooked so quickly that most nutrients are retained in the process.

A food processor slices or shreds pounds of fruit or vegetables in minutes, processes

Delicate dessert: Nectarine Creme is pretty to look at, and nutritious. Serve as is, or top with pureed fresh or frozen strawberries or blueberries.

LOW-FAT

meat or fish into pats without adding eggs or cream, and makes smooth soups and sauces.

The blender has not lost its place to the processor. Blenders are the best for pureeing vegetables, whipping chilled skim milk into lowfat whipped cream or making an instant milkshake from a glass of lowfat frozen yogurt and fresh fruit.

Either a blender or a processor can be used to make Nectarine Creme, a delicate, nutritious dessert with an attractive pale orange color. Serve as is, or top with pursed fresh or frozen strawberries or blueberries.

NECTARINE CREME

3 nectarines, sliced (unpeeled)
1 cup plain low-fat yogurt
Few drops almond extract
1 Tablespoon honey or sugar
1 envelope unflavored gelatin
2 Tablespoons water
Extra nectarines, strawberries, or blueberries for garnish (optional)

Combine the three sliced nectarines, the yogurt and almond extract in a blender or food processor; whirl until smooth. Add honey or sugar to taste. Combine the gelatin and water in a small saucepan over low heat (or microwave for about 5 seconds). Stir until dissolved.

Add the dissolved gelatin to the mixture in the blender. Whirl 10 seconds to blend. Spoon into stemmed glasses or a mold and chill until set. Garnish with additional nectarine slices or berries if desired.

Each of the four ½-cup servings contains 1 gram of fat and 100 to 130 calories (depending on use of additional fruit).

Celebrate Michigan Week

From waffles to late-night snacks, food producers have Michigan "covered." Our state's food producers will be honored during Michigan Week, May 21-28.

According to Gordon Guyer, director of the Michigan Department of Agriculture, Michigan produces over 70 commercial agricultural crops, second in diversity to California.

Here are some recipes to try.

RHUBARB PIE

1¼ cups sugar
¼ cup cornstarch
¼ teaspoon salt
5 cups chopped rhubarb
2 teaspoons grated orange or lemon peel
⅓ cup orange juice
2 tablespoons butter

Mix sugar, cornstarch and salt. Add rhubarb, orange/lemon peel, orange juice and butter. Pour into uncooked double crust pie shell. Bake at 400 degrees for 50 to 60 minutes or until the bubbles don't break.

Recipe from "Let's Cook," Michigan Department of Agriculture, Debbie Holton.

HONEY BAKED CHICKEN

3 chicken breasts, cut in half or (one 3-pound chicken cut)
½ cup flour
½ teaspoon pepper
4 tablespoons butter
¼ cup Michigan honey
1 tablespoon soy sauce

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Wash and drain chicken. Combine flour and pepper in a paper bag, then add chicken pieces. Shake to coat well.

In a small saucepan, melt butter. Pour half of it into a 9 by 13-inch shallow baking dish. Place chicken in dish, turning to coat with butter, leaving skin side down. Bake, uncovered for 30 minutes.

To the butter remaining in the saucepan, add rest of ingredients. Warm, blending wtih a whisk.

At the end of 30 minutes, turn chicken and pour honey mixture over top. Bake another 30 minutes, basting several times with sauce. Serves 4.

Fruity desserts herald spring

AP — Ambrosia mold is a simple-to-make side dish filled with canned crushed pineapple and mandarin orange segments. It can be served with ham, leg of lamb or roast chicken.

For dessert, serve lemon berry pie. The pie is made with a layer of cream cheese and fresh strawberry halves and a layer of vanilla-or lemon-flavor pudding combined with nondairy whipped topping.

■ Ambrosia mold is a simple-to-make side dish filled with canned crushed pineapple and mandarin orange segments. It can be served with ham, leg of lamb or roast chicken.

AMBROSIA MOLD

8-ounce can crushed pineapple in juice, undrained
2 cups boiling water
8-serving size package or two 4-serving size packages orange-flavor gelatin
1¾ cups frozen nondairy whipped topping, thawed
11-ounce can mandarin orange segments, drained
1½ cups miniature marshmallows
½ cup flaked coconut (optional)

Drain pineapple, reserving juice. Add cold water to juice to measure 1 cup.

Stir boiling water into gelatin in a large bowl 2 minutes or until completely dissolved. Stir in measured liquid. Refrigerate 1¼ hours or until slightly thickened (consistency of unbeaten egg whites).

Stir in whipped topping with wire whisk until smooth. Refrigerate 10 minutes or until mixture will mound. Stir in pineapple, oranges, marshmallows and coconut. Spoon into a 6-cup mold.

Refrigerate 3 hours or until firm. Unmold. Garnish with additional mandarin orange segments and fresh mint leaves, if desired. Makes 10 servings.

To unmold:

Dip mold in hot water for about 15 seconds. Gently pull gelatin from around edges with moist fingers. Place moistened serving plate on top of mold. Invert mold and plate; holding mold and plate together, shake slightly to loosen. Gently remove mold and center gelatin on plate.

Formula for wins: Abraham has one that's certified

It's not like success is something foreign to Jerry Abraham.

He's had his share. Plenty of it, actually. League titles, Final Four stuff, national acclaim . . . he's done well at every level of coaching. And it doesn't take him a long time to prove it, either — be it in volleyball or softball.

So what he's done with Madonna University's softball team should come as no surprise. Abraham has proven it, time and again — his formula works.

And just what is this magic he creates? Some sort of spell he casts that mysteriously transforms losers into winners?

Abraham

Afraid not. His coaching philosophy is really rather generic. As Abraham explained: "I coach (both sports) the same way, really. I gather kids who want to win, push them as hard as they can go, give them some discipline . . . and make them believe."

That's it? There's nothing else to fielding a winning team? "Besides getting the talent, I teach them to play as a team," Abraham answered.

Oh. Well, that clarifies it. Thanks.

Perhaps we need understand what Abraham's done before conducting a search for any "secret formula."

OK then. Abraham has never been a loser. He started Madonna's volleyball program from scratch seven years ago. The Lady Crusaders have never had a losing season, going 282-94; they finished their '93 campaign in the NAIA Tournament quarterfinals with a 46-8 season mark.

And before that? Abraham coached volleyball at Redford Bishop Borgess — his alma mater (class of '70) — for nine years. The totals: 270-70 record, runners-up in Class A in '86, runners-up in Class B in '88, three Catholic League championships, five district titles, three regional crowns.

And in softball? He coached two years at Borgess, winning the Catholic League title in '83, his first year; he's been at Taylor Center since, with a 132-49 record going into this season.

Did we mention coach of the year? Well, here's something worth noting: Abraham might be the only NAIA district coach of the year in two sports in the same year.

This year.

He downplays it, of course. Credits his players. But the paths he's traveled with his two Madonna teams are far different, which serves as a testament to his coaching ability.

Although his volleyball team was a success, come tournament time it seemed to fall frustratingly a bit short — until last season.

The softball team came close to extinction. When Dave Racer abruptly resigned as coach last year, the program nearly went with him. It wasn't until December that Abraham was cajoled and finally convinced by Madonna athletic director Ray Summers to take over.

Abraham was reluctant: "I knew we could make this into a good team, but I was worried about coaching two college sports."

Unlike his volleyball team, which had to be constructed from the ground up, the softball team had a nucleus to build around. But how would they react to a new coach, particularly when the former coach left so abruptly?

There were few recruits, and no fall season to iron things out. Practice didn't begin until four weeks prior to the opener.

Despite all the odds stacked against them, the Crusaders succeeded. They won the regular-season district title, came back to win the district playoff, then beat Shawnee State in the Bi-Districts to advance to the same goal — the NAIA Tournament — it took the volleyball team seven years to reach.

"Right off the bat, they worked hard," said Abraham of his troops. "They were hungry. They believed everything I was saying. They knew I had been coaching softball.

"As soon as we started playing games, I knew they would be a good team. They were serious about winning."

They proved it again in the Bi-District final Friday. It took some backs-to-the-wall stuff to pull it off, just like in the district tournament. A run in the bottom of the seventh to tie it, then a two-out hit in the eighth to win it and send Madonna to the NAIA Softball World Series.

Abraham likes to say winning isn't the reason he coaches. It's the relationships with the athletes, watching them succeed on and off the playing field that keeps him in it.

Break it all down and know what it adds up to? A formula that produces winners.

Madonna rules Bi-District

■ The dream continues . . . and so does Madonna University's softball season, after a pair of two-out rallies and the outstanding pitching of Dawn Terrasi carried the Lady Crusaders to a 4-3, eight-inning win over Shawnee State in the Bi-District final Friday at Plymouth's Massey Field.

By C.J. Risak
Staff Writer

It's all a matter of communication, really. Just listening — and believing.

■ Bases loaded, one out, sixth inning. Game tied, 2-2. Madonna University softball coach Jerry Abraham calls time and trudges out to the mound. The only pitcher he's used in the previous 19⅓ innings of this Bi-District — Dawn Terrasi — is in trouble. Abraham faces a difficult decision: Should he switch?

He asks Terrasi the obvious question. Her answer: "She said she just wanted the ball."

Abraham listens. "Lynda's (Lynda Weichel) tough, but I just wanted to stay with her," he said. Terrasi survives, giving up a sacrifice fly that scores the go-ahead run, then striking out the next batter.

■ Bottom of the eighth, game tied 3-3. Madonna's first batter, Mo Paulin (from Livonia/Farmington Hills Mercy), is summoned by Abraham. "She wasn't hitting (Shawnee State pitcher Kim) White at all. I told her to hold her bat out, let the third baseman charge and then push (the ball) past her."

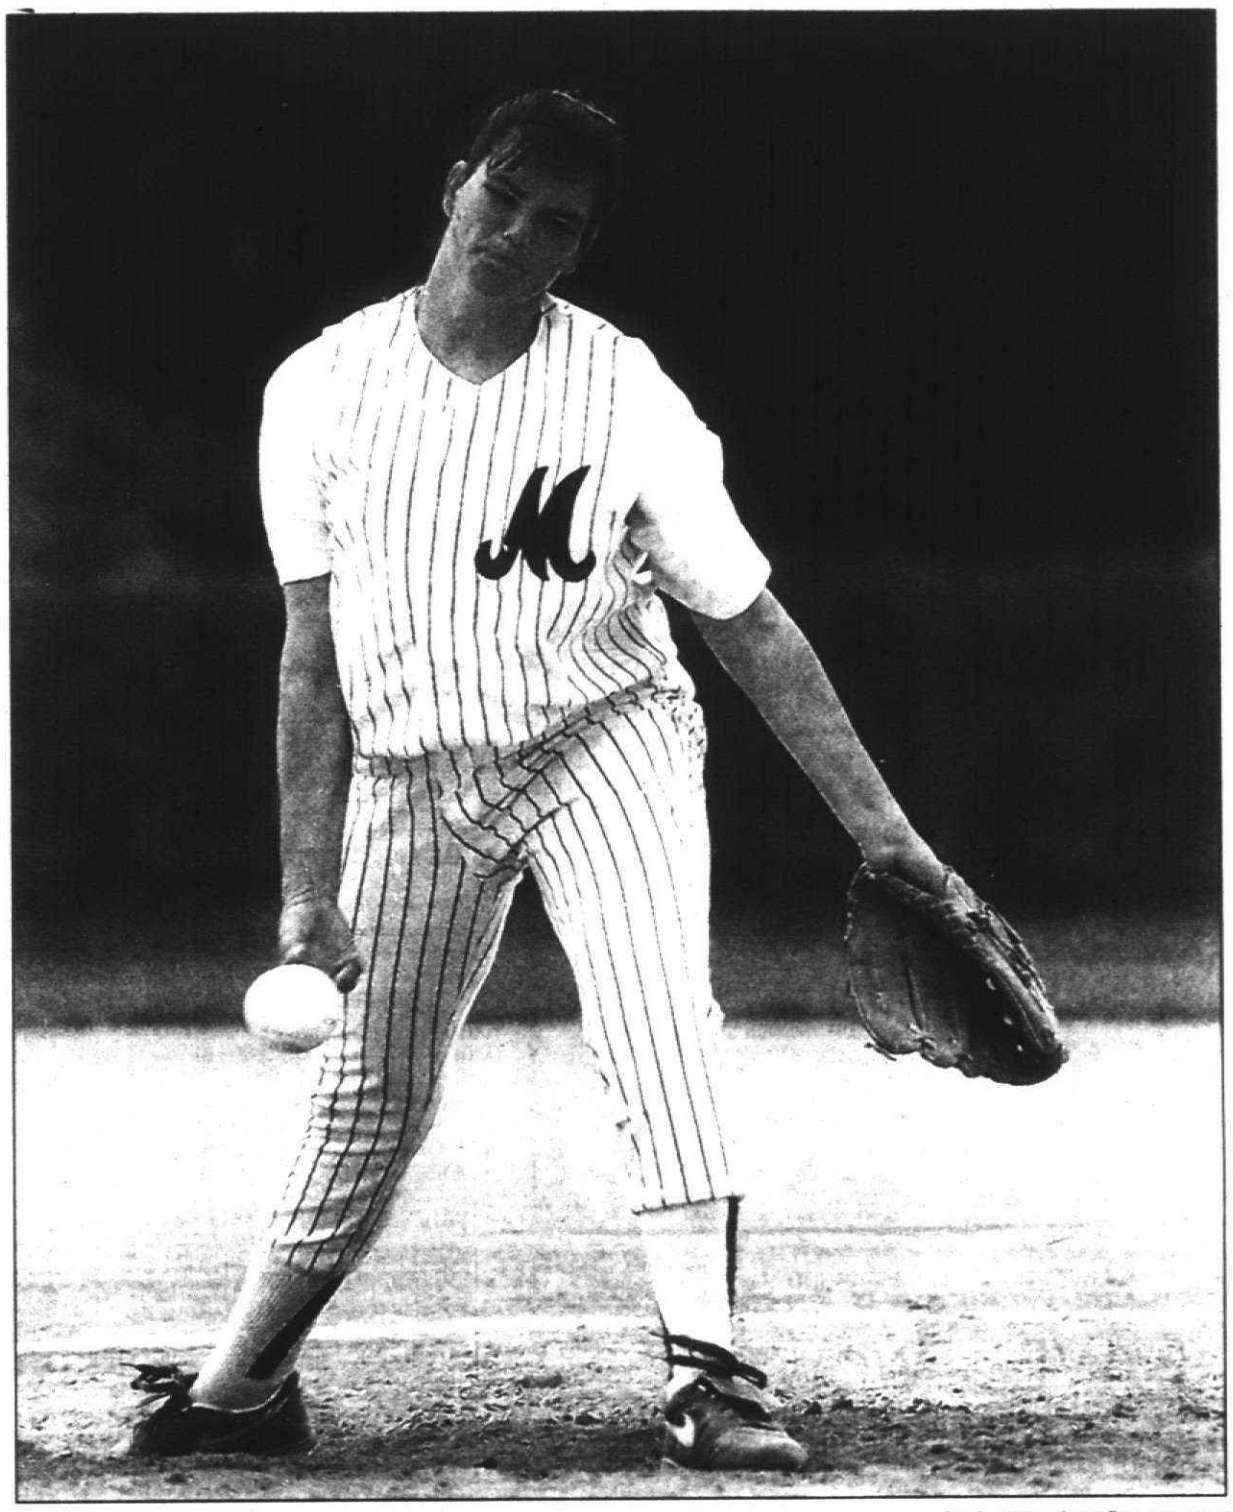
Never mind that Paulin had never before attempted anything like this in college softball. She listens — and it works. Paulin's bunt glances off the glove of Bear third baseman Missy Lawson. She's on base with a hit — her first in three games — representing the game-winning run.

■ Bottom of the eighth, two out, game still tied 3-3. Paulin reaches third on a ground out and a wild pitch; Michelle Birchmeier (Redford Thurston) is at the plate.

Her thoughts, as she glances down the third-base line at Paulin, knowing Madonna's berth in the NAIA Softball World Series was just that far away: "I kept saying to myself, 'Please God, please God, please God . . . If ever there was a time, it's now.'"

He listens, apparently. Hitless in her three previous at-bats and 0-for-6 against White in the tournament, the sophomore shortstop connects solidly, sending a long fly to left-center field, beyond the pursuing outfielders. It's the hardest-hit ball Madonna has against White in two games.

It's also a game-winner, clinching the best-of-three Bi-District series.



Jim Jagdfeld/Staff Photographer

The delivery: Dawn Terrasi did deliver for Madonna University last week, winning two of three games in the Bi-District playoff. She gave up just four earned runs in 22 innings.

A drama-filled playoff

There could be no better way to end it. It was everything Abraham had predicted — a pitchers' duel in every game, with clutch hitting making the difference. Shawnee State won the first game 2-0 Thursday, with White handcuffing the Lady Crusaders on three hits.

Madonna bounced back to win Thursday's second game 2-0, thanks to Terrasi's four-hit shutout.

Which meant somebody was going to be disappointed Friday. The Crusaders looked sharper at the plate against the left-handed White — she

Canton's still in division title hunt

■ BOYS TRACK

One win.

That's all Plymouth Canton needs to claim the boys track Western Division crown of the Western Lakes Activities Association. With a victory against Farmington Hills Harrison Tuesday, the title will be Canton's.

The scenario is a result of Thursday's 94½-42½ victory at Livonia Franklin, after the Chiefs successfully put Tuesday's embarassing 91-37 loss to rival Plymouth Salem behind them.

Canton improved to 4-2 overall and 3-1 in the division. The Patriots fell to 0-5 overall and 0-4 in the division.

Ben Greanya, John Martin and Mike Gruchak all figured in three first place finishes for Canton.

Martin claimed first in the 110-meter hurdles (17.6), the 100 dash (11.7) and teamed with Gruchak, Dave Koshizawa and Justin Semion to win the 400 relay (47.5).

Greanya took the long jump (17-feet) and was on the 800 relay with Gruchak, Koshizawa and Rob LeMasters (1:38.5) and the 1,600 relay with Brian Crocket, Mike Erickson and Dave Gay (3:45.4), which both won. Gruchak's other win was in the 200 dash (24.7).

The Chiefs completed a sweep in the relays with a win in the 3,200 relay, with the team of Sanjay Sharwa, Casey Moothart, Colin Astley and Brian Crocket (3:45.4).

Other Canton wins were Gay in the 400 (54.5); Ian Bedford in the 1,600 (4:48.1); Jeff Keith in the 3,200 (10:08.1); Jon Gallinger in the shot put (44-½); and Ben Nelson in the high jump (5-3).

Plymouth Salem kept its perfect season going Thursday — and got some revenge at the same time — by defeating visiting Farmington 80-57.

The Rocks are 6-0 overall and 4-0 in the Lakes Division. It was the Falcons first loss in the division after three wins.

Last season, Farmington ruined Salem's hopes of winning the Lakes Division. With Thursday's win, the

Salem's Locke signs up with the Spartans

By C.J. Risak
Staff Writer

In the last four years, there has been no doubt Fred Locke has made a name for himself in the swimming world.

Fred Locke

The Plymouth Salem senior proved that by winning the Class A 50-yard freestyle title last March. He also finished third in the 100 free, immediately elevating his status to the elite and increasing his scholarship offers.

Locke, though, had his mind made up. He visited one school — Michigan State — and his decision was made. This fall, he'll begin a second four-year swimming stint.

As a Spartan.

"I'm pretty excited about it," Locke said. "I took a visit up there, liked the guys on the team, liked the coach, liked everything about it, basically."

Sounds like sound reasons to base a decision on. Of course, it was important that MSU offered the field of study Locke was interested in: engineering.

The question is, how good can Locke be? Salem coach Chuck Olson provided this insight: "He's a fairly unknown quantity. He's only been swimming (competitively) since he was a freshman. He's gotten faster every year."

Furthermore, Locke hardly trained in the summers, swimming only local outdoor summer league meets. He did not compete in a U.S.S.-level meet until last summer, and he was unattached when he did it. He's since joined the Michigan Stingrays in an effort to bolster himself for the grinding challenge of collegiate swimming.

"I'm swimming right now," said Locke, who said he will remain a sprinter as a Spartan. "I have to swim a lot harder this summer, just to get into shape."

As for where he may end up four years from now, Locke is making no predictions. "I don't know. I try not to look too far ahead. I just look for improvement."

Which is what he found under Olson's tutelage. "He took me from nothing and made me into something. Now I'm ready for the next step, the next level."

It won't be an easy climb, but Locke's talent seems far from tapped out.

Pitching woes end Crusaders' district title hopes

By C.J. Risak
Staff Writer

Unlike the Madonna University softball team, the baseball squad came up short in the one commodity necessary to win a four-team double-elimination tournament.

Pitching.

The Fighting Crusaders opened the NAIA District 23 Tournament Thursday in Grand Rapids well enough, getting a decent mound performance from Louie McKaig in an 11-6 victory over Siena Heights.

But things fell apart after that. Ryan Grabetz started Madonna's second game Thursday against

■ MADONNA

No. 1-seed Aquinas College and got shelled; so did Jeff Kugelman (from Plymouth Canton), who relieved him. The end result: an 18-4 thrashing.

Which left coach Mike George facing a serious problem. The Crusaders would have to beat Siena Heights again Friday, then would need to defeat Aquinas Friday and Saturday to win the title.

George gambled on Mike Grahl against Siena Heights. "He had beaten them once this year," the Madonna coach explained. If he could do it again, George would have his two best pitchers — freshman Craig Benedict (Plymouth Canton) and T.C. Raptis — still available for the two games with Aquinas.

But Grahl came up short, and so did Madonna, losing to Siena Heights 10-4.

The Crusaders end their season with a 42-20 record. Siena Heights took a 31-32 record into its game against Aquinas, which was 50-9.

"We just felt if we were going to beat Aquinas, they were going to have to do it," George said of saving Benedict and Raptis, who combined to win 11 games this season. "It was a calculated risk on our part — it just didn't work. We didn't get any runs for Mike (Grahl) and he didn't pitch all that well, either."

Home runs ruined Madonna. From the second inning on, Siena Heights led. Mike Giacomantonio did a lot of the damage, slugging a solo home run in the second and adding a two-run shot in the sixth after the Crusaders had cut the deficit to 4-2.

Grahl lasted 5⅓ innings, surrendering six earned runs. Eric Butler relieved and gave up three earned runs. Dave Wood got the win for Siena Heights.

Aaron Jones had three of Madonna's eight hits. Raptis had a hit and two runs batted in.

In the 18-4 loss to Aquinas Thursday, Grabetz was rocked for nine runs (eight earned) in three innings. Kugelman fared no better; in four innings he allowed nine earned runs. Tom Vos took the win for Aquinas.

Scott Anderson had two of Madonna's six hits.

McKaig improved his record to 6-4 by stopping Siena Heights in Madonna's district playoff opener Thursday. He gave up 15 hits, but just four earned runs in nine innings. Tom Dombkowski absorbed the loss.

The Crusaders had a 4-3 lead entering the seventh, then took control by scoring four in the seventh and three more in the eighth. Anderson had three hits, including a solo homer in the sixth, and Jeff Pendell (Livonia Churchill) added a two-run homer in the sixth. Raptis had three hits and two RBI and Craig Overaitis (Livonia Franklin) had two hits and an RBI.

"I wasn't real happy with the way we had been playing the last two weeks," said George. "But the kids played their butts off, that's for sure."

The pitching, however — 34 runs in three games — proved well-short of adequate.

Madonna

was the first southpaw they faced this season — but through three innings they had not put a runner on base.

Mandi Armstrong led off Madonna's fourth with a walk (White's first base-on-balls in the tournament). Two force outs later Birchmeier was on second and Holly Jondro was at the plate. Jondro sent a shallow fly to right field that dropped in, Madonna's first hit of the game. Birchmeier rounded the bases and scored, and Jondro went to second.

Jenny Czach lined White's next pitch to center, driving in Jondro. But the 2-0 lead didn't last; with two out and two on in the fifth, Brandi Rose lined a shot down the third-base line that Madonna's Jill Burt got a glove on, but couldn't catch. Both runners scored, tying the game.

Errors on consecutive plays and a walk loaded the bases with one out in the Shawnee State sixth. Leah Fickell's sacrifice fly put the Bears ahead, 3-2.

In the seventh, Judy Shupert singled with two out for Shawnee and White followed with a double to left. But Birchmeier's relay to Jennifer Pinter nailed Shupert at the plate and kept the deficit at one.

Czach started Madonna's seventh with a base hit to right that Rose misplayed, allowing Czach to reach third. Jill Burt's ground out tied it again, 3-3 — setting up the Crusaders' climactic finish.

Tireless Terrasi

The difference, according to Shawnee State coach Ralph Cole, was pitching. "You play three games and score five runs, you're not going to win many," he said. "There's no disgrace. Our ball club came back after being down two runs. They held together well for a young team."

The way White pitched in the tournament opener — no runs, three hits, no walks, five strikeouts — most figured Cole would put her back on the mound for the second game. But Shawnee State (28-10) had two 10-game winners entering the Bi-District and, as Cole explained, "It's not my style, it's not our style, to double-up."

So freshman Heather Birmingham started Thursday's second game. The Crusaders got to her in the fourth, collecting four singles — with Pinter's scoring two runs. Which is all Terrasi would need; after allowing two runs on 10 hits and no walks, striking out 10, in the first game, she came back to blank the Bears on four hits and one walk, with three strikeouts in the second.

She had to be tired going into game No. 3 Friday. "No, I was not tired," Terrasi insisted after going all eight innings, giving up two earned runs on six hits and one walk, with three strikeouts. "I told myself I wasn't, that I was fine.

"I told myself we deserved to win, because we were thrown together . . . that somehow, someway we'll do it. We'll find a way."

She listened, too. And it worked again. Madonna (now 38-9) did find a way — to the 16-team, double-elimination NAIA Softball World Series, hosted by Columbia College in Columbia, Mo. Play begins Wednesday.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

■ ALL-DISTRICT PICKS

Five members of Madonna University's baseball team were selected to the NAIA All-District 23 squad.

Two of the choices were seniors: outfielder/designated hitter Craig Overaitis (from Livonia Franklin) and catcher Chris Gajewski. Also chosen were junior outfielders Jim Solak (Redford/Dearborn Divine Child) and Scott Anderson, and freshman shortstop Dan Taylor.

Each had outstanding seasons. Overaitis was named NAIA national player of the week after a six-homer stretch; for the season he had a .337 batting average with 10 doubles, two triples, 11 home runs and a team-best 50 runs batted in prior to the district tournament.

Gajewski was the key to a successful season in Madonna coach Mike George's pre-season estimation. Gajewski wasn't dominant, but he was solid behind the plate and not bad at it: a .244 batting average, with 15 RBI.

Taylor filled in nicely at short and hit .376, with 10 doubles, a triple and 24 RBI.

Madonna finished with a 42-20 overall record and ended up second in the district during regular-season play.

■ TROY TOPS SALEM

Three first-half goals was enough to boost Troy to a 4-0 blanking of Plymouth Salem in a non-league girls soccer match Wednesday at Troy.

The loss evened the Rocks' record at 5-5-3. Troy, ranked first in the state in Class A, improved to 12-0-1.

■ ROCKS COME CLOSE

Farmington Hills Mercy stayed unbeaten, barely staving off a challenge from Plymouth Salem to win 223-225 in a non-league girls golf match Friday at Brae Burn Golf Course.

The win was Mercy's 13th — on Friday the 13th, yet — without a loss. Salem is 4-2.

Everyone knows someone with diabetes.

Fourteen million Americans are living with diabetes. Unfortunately, more than half do not know they have it because diabetes can strike silently. Many will first learn about diabetes when they are treated for one of its complications – kidney disease, blindness, amputation, heart disease or stroke. Know the early warning signs of frequent urination, unusual thirst, extreme hunger, frequent infections or blurred vision. While there is no cure for diabetes, every day research brings hope. The American Diabetes Association is the nation's leader in the fight against diabetes – funding research, education and patient services.

Canton assault sinks Harrison

Matt Paupore proved he had the long-distance range in the basketball season. On Friday, he proved he can throw some smoke, too.

The senior right-hander baffled visiting Farmington Harrison with a combination of fastballs and off-speed pitches in Canton's 10-0 baseball victory over the Hawks.

Paupore (3-1) surrendered only three hits to Harrison while striking out four and walking none.

"By far, this was Matt's best pitching performance of the season," Canton coach Ed Turek said. "We've held him back a little because of some arm problems, but today he threw harder than I've ever seen him throw. He had the fastball and the curveball working."

The Chiefs, who improved to 13-7 overall and 5-2 in the Western Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association, will play at Livonia Franklin today for sole possession of first place in the division.

Canton won its third game in a row with two big innings. The Chiefs scored four in the second, five in the fifth, and added a solo run in the sixth to end the game on the mercy rule.

Mark Biro paced the nine-hit Chiefs attack with three singles. Brian Lemkie added two hits, and Eric Murcotte ripped a two-run single in Canton's big fifth inning.

Harrison fell to 5-10 overall and 1-7 in the division.

■ SALEM 12, FARMINGTON 10: It seemed like a leisurely stroll in the park for visiting Plymouth Salem Friday, as the Rocks led 7-1 in the fourth inning.

But the Lakes Division-leading Rocks needed a five-run seventh just to hold off the never-say-die Falcons.

The trouble began for Salem when starting pitcher Mike Marsella's shoulder began to stiffen in the fifth. Up to that point, Marsella had struck out five and walked none.

Farmington scored a single run off Marsella in the fourth and added three more in the fifth. Nirav Kher relieved Marsella and escaped further trouble — until the seventh.

The Rocks scored five in their seventh to take what looked like a comfortable 12-5 lead. The runs proved important when the Falcons scored five in their final at-bat.

With the win, Salem improved to 16-4 overall and 8-0 in the division. Farmington is 8-12 overall and 4-4 in the division.

"We survived today," Salem coach John Gravlin said. "Whatever could go wrong, did. (Marsella's shoulder) is obviously a concern, but he's capable of coming back."

Kazuki Kuriso was the offensive hero, going 4-for-4 with two doubles, two RBI and two runs scored. Bill Styles added two hits and one RBI.

Dave Knight had a big two-run, two-out single in the fourth for Salem, and Dan Quaine drove in two in the fifth with a single.

Mike Williams, who lasted the first four innings for Farmington, recorded the loss. Ron Salomonson was 3-for-4 with four RBI for the Falcons.

On Wednesday, host Salem shutout Livonia Churchill in a 10-0 five-inning (mercy rule) victory.

Justin Marcis (4-0), Quaine and Eric Kida combined on the six-hitter. Styles was 2-for-2 for the Rocks.

Salem streaks to win over Farmington

Farmington controlled a few events, it's true — the Falcons won three-of-four in the field and both sprints. But virtually everything else went to Plymouth Salem, which used a sweep in the relays (among other things) to post an 84-44 girls track triumph Thursday at Farmington.

The win kept Salem perfect in Western Lakes Activities Association Lakes Division meets. The Rocks are 4-0 in the Lakes, 5-1 overall. Farmington fell to 2-3 overall, 1-3 in the Lakes.

Nicole Van Hees was Salem's only double-winner in individual events. She was first in the high jump (5-feet 2-inches) and in the 300-meter hurdles (50.9).

The relay victories went to Kim Sheldon, Brooke Kilby, Marcia Parker and Melissa Hopson in the 400 (52.8); Tanya Zgraggen, Courtney Sheldon, Parker and Hopson in the 800 (1:51.7); Nicole Bolton, Jessica Moyer, Emily Moyer and Parker in the 1,600 (4:26.7); and Stacy Moore, Meran Miles, Miranda Wade and Meradith Davis in the 3,200 (10:50.5).

Individual winners for Salem were Courtney Sheldon in the 400 (1:03.7); Kelly Stankov in the 800 (2:28.5); Karen Boudreau in the 1,600 (5:35.1); and Kathy Jost in the 3,200 (12:40.1).

■ GIRLS TRACK

Plymouth Canton

Both Plymouth Canton and Livonia Franklin kept their records perfect with Thursday's dual meet at Canton.

The Chiefs remained unbeaten. The Patriots stayed winless.

Canton's 108-20 triumph pushed its overall record to 6-0; the Chiefs are 4-0 in the WLAA's Western Division. Franklin is 0-5 overall, 0-4 in the Western.

Canton swept the track events, starting with Lisa Soash in the 100-meter hurdles (16.5) and Amy Sonanstine in the 300 hurdles (51.3). Other firsts went to Becky Bockstanz in the 100 (13.2), Nancy Hoffman in the 200 (27.9), Tracey Cavin in the 400 (1:02.6), Brooke Larson in the 800 (2:40.0), Laura McWilliams in the 1,600 (5:48.4) and Becky Wolfrom in the 3,200 (12:27.5).

Becky Baigrie was first in the discus (96-5) and Ndu Okwumabua won the high jump (5-2).

Brandi Bernard, Angkana Roy, Danielle Guignard and Cavin were first in the 800 relay (1:59.6); Bockstanz, Soash, Becky Uryga and Cavin won the 1,600 (4:33.1); and Wolfram, Kate Palmer, Jenna McWilliams and Larson combined for a win in the 3,200 (11:14.9).

Rocks clinched a portion of the division title and could win it outright tomorrow when they host North Farmington.

Farmington proved to be tough competition for the Rocks, who had to battle against fatigue, according to Salem coach Geoff Baker.

"You could tell that they had tired legs today, but they overcame it and did what they had to do to win," Baker said.

Salem's only win in the field events was Rocky Johnson's throw of 138 feet, 8 inches in the discus.

Salem got a first from Dan Miller in the 110-meter hurdles (15.4) and in the 300 hurdles (41.6); Jason Barylski in the 400 (53.3); Josh Stickney in the 800 (2:01.0); Jared Binieckl in the 1,600 (4:36.2); and Scott Pengelly in the 3,200 (10:26.6).

The Rocks won three relays: the 800, with the team of Marcus Zevalkink, Jay Casey, Andy Coburn and Adam Bakowski (1:34.7); the 1,600, with Russ Polcyn, Cory Kingalien, Barylski and Bakowski (3:42.6); and the 3,200, with Polcyn, Dave Karmann, Barylski and Stickney (8:59.1).

610 Card of Thanks

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT Holy Spirit, You make me see everything and show me the way to reach my ideals. You give me the Divine Gift to forgive and forget the wrongs that are done to me and You are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue, want to thank You for everything and confirm once more that I never want to be separated from You no matter how great the material desire may be. I want to be with You, my loved One, in your Perpetual Glory. Amen. Persons must pray this prayer 3 consecutive days without asking your wish. After 3 days your wish will be granted, no matter how difficult it may be. Then, promise to publish this dialogue as soon as the favor has been granted. Thanks, St. Jude, for favors received.

ST. JUDE NOVENA -- May the Sacred Heart of Jesus be adored, glorified, loved & preserved throughout the world, now and forever. Sacred Heart of Jesus, pray for us. St. Jude, worker of miracles, pray for us. St. Jude, helper of the hopeless, pray for us. Say prayer 9 times a day for 9 days, then publish. Your request will be granted.

GARAGE GARAGE GARAGE GARAGE

Sale

Now is the time to clear out those closets, attics, basements and garages and make some quick cash in the process.

How do you plan a garage sale?

It's easy!

Just follow these simple guidelines:

1. Gather together the items you have for sale. Sort them into appropriate categories and price them fairly.

2. Place a classified advertisement in The Observer & Eccentric by calling one of the numbers below.

3. Hang signs throughout your neighborhood alerting residents to the upcoming sale.

4. Decide what to do with all the money you'll have after your sale!

Or, if you love to bargain-hunt and would rather shop then sell, be sure to look for our special garage sale listings every Monday and Thursday in your hometown newspaper. Observer & Eccentric classifieds make it easy to earn money and save money. Discover for yourself, today!

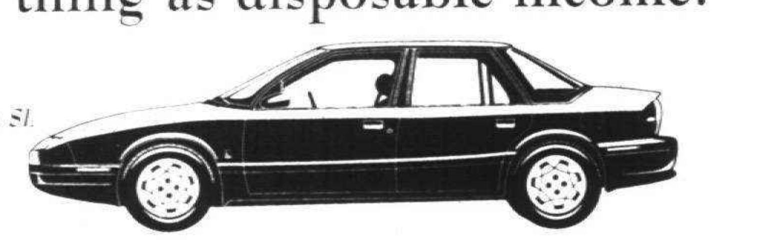
$9,995. Because there's no such thing as disposable income.



The Saturn SL

No matter what income bracket they're in, it's hard to believe that anyone would consider any of their money disposable. Which may explain why we all want to buy things that are actually worth what they cost. Like the Saturn SL. It has the kind of technology you'd find on a more expensive car, like a steel spaceframe with crumple zones, flexible paint and panels that resist chipping, and even a stainless steel exhaust system. Because if there's one thing that's not disposable, it's money.

M.S.R.P. of the 1994 SL is $9995 including dealer preparation. Tax, license, transportation and options additional.

"We also have a fine selection of previously pampered Saturns!"

Pick and choose from facts in CBS' Menendez movie

BY JEFF PLASS

"What do we need fiction for when we have real murders?"

Straight from the lips of erstwhile screen-writing wanna-be Erik Menendez to the ears of the great gods of entertainment comes this quote from CBS' "Menendez: A Killing in Beverly Hills." The film airs in two parts beginning Sunday, May 22, and concluding Tuesday, May 24.

CBS' telling of the merry Menendez mess comes roughly on the heels of Fox's "Honor Thy Father and Mother: The True Story of the Menendez Murders," and offers a kinder, gentler version of the California court case that kept America captivated from August 1989 to January 1994.

For the edification of cave-dwellers who haven't been privy to the whys' and wherefores' of the whole sordid situation, Beverly Hills, Calif., brothers Erik and Lyle Menendez killed their very wealthy parents, Jose and Kitty Menendez, in August 1989.

This much is fact: The two confessed to the homicide months ago.

Here's where things get sticky.

The brothers' defense (masterfully executed by Erik's attorney, Leslie Abramson) claimed that the boys acted out of fear for their own lives: fear generated by the power of a father who placed rigorous demands on his two sons.

Among these demands, the defense claimed, were countless acts of incestuous, and sometimes violent, sexual intercourse.

The juries were polarized over whether the boys were cold-blooded murderers or long-suffering victims of abuse.

Both cases ended in mistrials.

Although the extended format of "A Killing in Beverly Hills" offers the more insight to the personalities of Jose, Erik and Lyle Menendez than the two-hour Fox version, the CBS film makes no mention whatsoever of the prolonged sexual abuse Erik and Lyle allegedly endured at the hands of their father.

More so, the movie stops dead at the boys' arraignment, giving the viewer no opportunity to see Abramson's courtroom expertise in action.

In the film's defense (no pun intended), it showcases some fine dramatic performances, particularly Travis Fine's hysterical, maniacal representationi of Erik and Edward James Olmos' forthright portrayal of Jose Menendez.

It may be just a byproduct of the writers trying to avoid mention of the alleged sexual abuse or maybe it's as simple as a decision Olmos made himself, but in his portrayal of Jose, viewers see a stern authoritarian, immensely proud of his own accomplishments.

This Jose is not the touchy-feely, overbearing monster that James Farentino's interpretation made him out to be in "Honor Thy Father."

For better or worse, the differences are refreshing.

Damian Chapa presents a competent Lyle Menendez, but without most of the malevolence or smoldering disgust at mediocrity that made the character interesting the Fox film.

Last, and least, is the practically cameo appearance of Kitty Menendez, played by Beverly D'Angelo.

At least with the Fox version, viewers could enjoy a few stifled snickers watching Kitty's wretched state of affairs, as she staggered around in an alcoholic daze, alternately bemoaning her pathetic place in life and belittling her children like some sick, twisted Donna Reed on acid.

Which all comes back to the initial question, "What do we need fiction for when we have real murders?"

Frankly, because anyone who subscribes to the notion that either of the Menendez movies are any less fictitious than a "Perry Mason" or "Murder, She Wrote" episode are in serious need of a reality check.

And even if a movie's plot is based on fact, the only sure way to make it palatable for mass consumption is to fictionalize it with half-truths and omissions, a la the two Menendez movies.

HOROSCOPE

By C. C. Clark

Aries (March 21 - April 20)
It is important that you control your emotions and jealousy. This is not the time to try to force issues; it could do more harm than good.

Taurus (April 21 - May 20)
The right person could help you finish a difficult project and bring great success. There could be a big change in the way you do business.

Gemini (May 21 - June 20)
There could be a severe break in a relationship, but all will be well in the end. There is a good chance you will be traveling soon.

Cancer (June 21 - July 20)
You have a strong character and can weather most any adversity. You must get away from a situation to see it more clearly.

Leo (July 21 - Aug. 21)
You may attain some material success, but you will feel as though you are alone. Keep on top of all financial matters.

Virgo (Aug. 22 - Sept. 22)
It is important that you clear your mind and use your intuition. Keep your thoughts to yourself at this time, but be yourself in all situations.

Libra (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22)
Competition with a loved one is not a good idea. Do not be afraid to tell the truth in order to get the cooperation you so desperately need.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 - Nov. 22)
Stop expecting the worst to happen. You have the ability to change your situation for the better, but you may have to take a good look at yourself.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 - Dec. 20)
Good foundations are going to bring some wonderful and exciting results. You could receive an important letter or document.

Capricorn (Dec. 21 - Jan. 19)
Discuss your problems and don't brood about your troubles. You must listen to your inner voice and follow through with your plans.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18)
It is important that you investigate all aspects of a project before becoming involved. A disagreement could affect a close relationship.

Pisces (Feb. 19 - March 20)
The situation will improve, but you need to give yourself some time. Get away and renew your energies, both physical and mental.

YOU COULD LEARN A LOT FROM A DUMMY.

Fans' thirsts quenched by 'Sports on Tap'

BY JEFF PLASS

Sports fans who are chagrined by the relatively easy level of difficulty given to questions in the sports category on "Jeopardy!" now have a new outlet for their brand of arcane knowledge.

Each weekday, ESPN presents "Sports on Tap," a game show devoted to the armchair quarterbacks and bar stool sages of the world.

"Well, it's almost like a takeoff of a game show," the program's host, Tom Green explains, "in the fact that we set it in a theoretical sports bar. We try to make it as though we're just a bunch of guys sitting around talking about sports, playing sports trivia in the bar, except we keep score and give out cash."

Green, who works as a weekend sports anchor for a Denver TV station, had worked with ESPN in the network's fledgling days.

So when the producers of "Sports on Tap" approached him about the host role "through a friend-of-a-friend kind of thing," Green couldn't turn it down.

"Basically, the show has a natural feel to it for me," Green relates. "One of the most difficult things to do on TV is to just be natural.

"But for me, we're talking about sports trivia, which I know a bit about; we're in kind of a relaxed, sports bar setting, which I've been in once or twice; and it's based on fun. It's not an uptight show."

Batter (and bubbles) up Monday on Fox as Tom Selleck goes to Japan as "Mr. Baseball."

STAR NOTES

Why Powers isn't a figure skater

BY TED KUSIO

Playing Tonya Harding in NBC's recent "Tonya and Nancy: The Inside Story" gave Alexandra Powers a reason to hit the ice.

"I had to learn how to ice skate," she says. "I really hadn't skated very much before (this role). I danced a lot when I was younger, so I guess that helped because balance is important."

Powers also plays lawyer Jane Halliday on "L.A. Law," which ends its eight-year run Thursday on NBC. Learning to skate led Powers to a monumental realization.

"Ice skating's hard!" she exclaims. "I was getting up every morning at 5:30 or 6 and skating for four or five hours until we started shooting. ... It hurts! Your feet blister and you get cuts from the boots."

But she endured the pain for the movie. In fact, Powers sees more opportunity and variety in television than in theatrical films, although she has had roles in films such as "Rising Sun" and "Dead Poets Society."

Before she became an actress Powers had dreams of becoming an ice skater, along with desires to be a fire fighter or model. Acting obviously won as her career choice when she realized that it would let her do it all.

And there was another reason why she didn't pursue figure skating.

"I think the reason I didn't is because my mom told me that they have really big thighs!" she laughs.

A Disney 'Beauty'; Doherty stars on USA

BY JOHN CROOK

Tabloid princess Shannen Doherty stars as a woman who turns to a therapist (Judd Nelson – oh, good IDEA, Shannen!) for advice on how to spice up relations with her husband (Michael Woods) in "Blindfold: Acts of Obsession," premiering Friday, May 20, on USA.

Forest Whitaker stars as a jazz musician stricken with a brain tumor, and Jeff Goldblum plays his pal, a saxophonist whose compulsive infidelities are straining relations with his wife (Kathy Baker of "Picket Fences"), in "Lush Life," a moody but melodic Showtime original movie premiering Friday.

Alan Alda and Peter Gallagher star in "White Mile," an HBO original movie about a white-water rafting trip that ends in tragedy. It premieres Saturday, May 21.

VCR alert: "Fate Is the Hunter," the oft-requested Glenn Ford-Rod Taylor drama that never has been released on video, airs Friday on American Movie Classics.

"Vodka Dons" examines the roots of the Russian Mafia in the United States. The hour-long special premieres Saturday on The Discovery Channel.

Will wedding bells ring for Billy (Andrew Shue) Wednesday on Fox's "Melrose Place"? Hmm ...

Emmy nomination surprises Edson

BY CANDACE HAVENS

On the day the Daytime Emmy nominations were announced, Hilary Edson, who plays Eve on "Guiding Light," was doing everything but watching "Good Morning America," the show on which the nominations were read.

"The producers called everyone and said we should watch 'GMA' to see if we were nominated," says Edson. "I didn't watch because I didn't think I had a chance in hell. A producer called me that morning and asked me what I thought about being nominated. I didn't know what he was talking about. He said I was nominated for best supporting actress. I said, 'Swear to God,' and he did. I just couldn't believe it."

Edson says that as surprised as she was, it was also very gratifying. "It is nice to know that when you do some work you think is pretty decent that it doesn't go unnoticed. I still don't think I have a chance of winning, but it really is fun."

One of Edson's co-stars was nominated in the same category: Maureen Garrett (Holly). "I really like working with Maureen. It really is funny that we were both nominated, and we play enemies on the show. In real life we like each other, so it was easy to joke about it," says Edson.

Edson asked Garrett to send a clip to the award show's judges that included the both of them. "I asked Maureen if she would please put a scene in that had the two of us in it that was really, really good. I said, 'Couldn't you just do me that favor, Maureen?' She said, 'Oh yeah, sure.'

"Another woman who is nominated is a friend of mine, Sharon Wyatt (Tiffany, 'General Hospital'). My first daytime role (Tania) was on 'GH,' and I have always really liked Sharon. We have also done a play together. So really, I'll be happy, whoever wins. My mother already told me I wasn't going to get it, so that I wouldn't be disappointed when I lost." But in the next breath, Edson said her mom wanted to know what she should wear to the ceremony.

Daytime viewers may also recognize Edson from her role as Stacey Winthrop on "Another World."

The actress is married to stockbroker Lyon Polk. They reside in New York.

LET'S TALK

Don't believe the hype: Sweetin A-OK; Young, restless actress not really blind

BY TAYLOR MICHAELS

Q: I heard that Jodie Sweetin, who plays Stephanie on "Full House," had been killed in a car accident. Would you tell me if this is true? I sure hope it isn't. –Michelle Whelchel, Blacksbury, S.C.

A: Rest assured, Sweetin is alive and well. Apparently, rumors like this one start up rather regularly.

Q: I have been a big fan of Dolly Parton ever since I saw her movie "Straight Talk." Can you give me an address where I can write to her? –B. Miller, Lebanon, Ind.

A: Try writing to Parton at Creative Arts Agency, Inc., 9830 Wilshire Blvd., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Q: Is the actress who plays Hope on "The Young and the Restless" really blind?

The reason I ask is that I am sure I saw her in an episode of "Viper" recently and she could see quite well.

Is this the same actress? –J.S., Wisconsin Rapids, Wis.

A: Signey Coleman, who plays Hope on "Y&R" is not blind and she is indeed the same actress who appeared on "Viper" recently.

Q: What is the name of the young actor who plays Amos' son on "Burke's Law"? He used to play a doctor on "The Young and the Restless." Who is he and where can I write to him? –Vivian Johnson, Chanute, Kan.

A: Peter Barton, who formerly played Dr. Scott Granger on "Y&R," plays Amos' son, Peter, on "Burke's Law." You can write to him C/O the show at Spelling Television Inc., 5700 Wilshire Blvd., Suite 575, Los Angeles, Calif. 90036.

Q: Can you please help me come up with the name of a movie? It starred Kim Novak, Efrem Zimbalist Jr. and, I believe, Audrey Hepburn.

Zimbalist was a boarder in Hepburn's (?) home. She was having marital problems and wound up in a mental hospital over it. Eventually she wound up with Zimbalist.

Is the title of this film "Home Before Dark"? I loved this movie and want to know if it is available on home video. –B. Horne, Washington, Pa.

A: I believe the movie you're thinking of is indeed "Home Before Dark," but it starred Jean Simmons in the "Hepburn" role, and Kim Novak appeared nowhere in the film.

Unfortunately, it is not available on home video.

Q: Could you please provide me with the addresses of the following actors: Erin Davis and Willie Norwood of "The Sinbad Show," and Kim Fields, Kim Coles and Queen Latifah of "Living Single"? –Monique Horne, Lompac, Calif.

A: Write to all of the aforementioned stars C/O their respective programs at Fox Broadcasting Co., 10201 W. Pico Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif. 90035.

Q: Could you please tell me the name of the character Dale Robertson played on "Tales of Wells Fargo"? –Name withheld, Great Bend, Kan.

A: Robertson played Jim Hardie on the Western series.

• Barry Grauman of Long Branch, N.J., writes in to answer a question that appeared in a recent column.

The reader wanted to know how many episodes of "Gilligan's Island" were filmed in black and white and how many were in color.

Grauman says that according to Sherwood Schwartz's 1988 book "Inside Gilligan's Island," the show's entire first season (1965-66) was filmed in black and white, totaling 36 episodes.

The second and third seasons' episodes were filmed in color and there were 62 of them in all.

HIGHLIGHTS

Tom Selleck stars as a big leaguer at the twilight of his career in the network television debut of "Mr. Baseball" Monday, May 16, on Fox.

When Jack Elliot (Selleck) is released from his pro baseball team in favor of a hotshot rookie, his rights are picked up by a Japanese team.

Shifting to Japan proves to be a task for the rebellious, rambunctious "gaijin" (foreigner). Jack meets his match in his new team manager and struggles to find his niche in a country where the ideal game ends in a tie.
