Complex gets state grant help

Canton Township has received a $37,040 state grant with which to fight crime problems at a public housing complex. But there's more to it than just "police problems" at the facility.

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Government can't do everything. But a state grant will help Canton police help residents in the Canton Commons area help themselves.

"We recognize that we can't address issues with any degree of success by making it just a police problem," said Canton Public Safety Director John Santomauro. "Our focus has been that government can't do everything but with assistance residents can make living conditions better than they have been in previous years."

The $37,040 grant through the Michigan Office of Drug Control Policy will be used to continue to reduce crime, such as teen- and gang-related incidents, at the subsidized housing complex on Haggerty Road.

The township will offer a match of $24,600 to pay for a liaison officer who will not only police the area but will coordinate efforts and resources.

The efforts to improve life and reduce crime and the fear of crime have been under way — through the work of two task forces — since spring-summer 1993 when Canton Commons residents contacted police about problems at the complex.

"Although complaints still exist, many of the complaints are internal or resident against another resident," said Tammie Colling, Canton community relations officer. "The voice of the people is that it is much quieter. There are concerns but they aren't the same."

The grant and matching township money will pay the salary and fringe benefits for an officer who will be assigned to Canton Commons. The officer also will coordinate activities with

'Bugs on Wheels' comes to library

Bradley Clemons thought the tarantula was "cool." Thomas Pascoe couldn't believe how big some of the bugs were.

"It feels like a telephone cord," said Clemons, 7½, as he stroked Millie the millipede with 100-200 feet.

Pascoe admitted he wasn't too thrilled with bugs of any kind, but thought his favorite might be one of the giant beetles shown by Gary Dunn of the Young Entomologists Society, Lansing.

Participants in the Canton Public Library's Summer Reading Club had the distinction of learning about insects and spiders thanks to Dunn and the "Bugs On Wheels" program.

This summer the library had its greatest participation in the reading program with 1,552 children in two sessions: one for preschool children who are read to and older children who are asked to read their own books.

"This is almost 200 more than last year," said Judy Teachworth, librarian in charge of the youth department. "The community is growing. People are concerned and are encouraging their children to read."

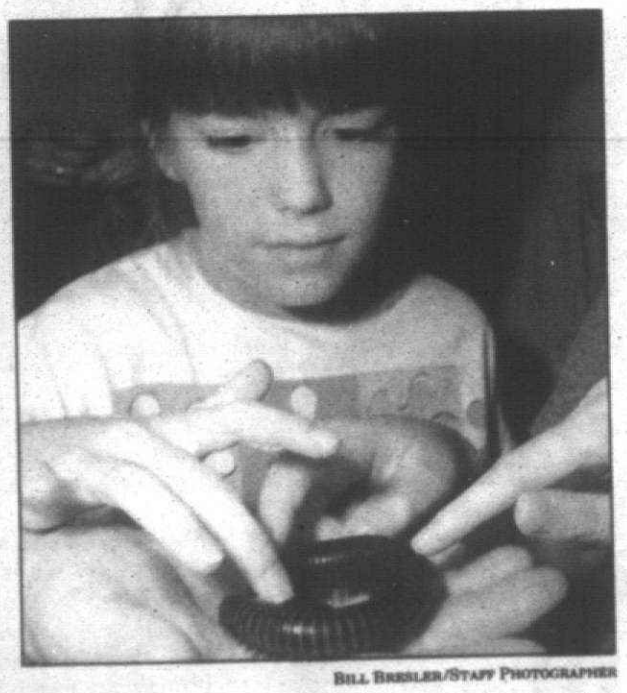

The final program offered in the reading club this summer is a performance by "Gemini," popular folk singers. At that time, the winners of the reading program's lottery will be announced. The 150-200 winners will receive free books.

The program has offered children gift certificates to McDonald's and Super Bowl for specific number of books read. The younger children have received stickers for each book read to them, Teachworth said.

"I really love it. It gives him something to do for the summer," said Debra Pascoe, Thomas' mother. She was just as amazed at "The Bugs on Wheels" program as were the kids crowding around specimens.

Canton police officers promote safety belt use

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Canton police are asking you to be on your best behavior when it comes to using your safety belts — for your own sake.

Canton Township is one of 10 communities plus the Wayne County Sheriff's Department to receive a federal highway safety grant through the Office of Highway Safety Planning to promote the use of safety belts for adults and children and to enforce the safety restraint laws.

Canton received $2,855.69 out of a total $30,000 grant money. "When they split up the money Canton got the fourth highest amount," said Canton Sgt. Ed Tanner, who is in charge of the department's selective traffic enforcement unit.

That's because Ford Road and Michigan Avenue were among the four major thoroughfares with the greatest number of traffic crashes with the most injuries. Telegraph and Eight Mile were the other thoroughfares.

Statistics show that Wayne County drivers aren't doing a good job of using their safety belts. In June 1993, surveys were conducted on the four major thoroughfares. It was determined that safety restraint use was 56.2 — 20 percent less than the 77.8 percent reported in 1991 when Wayne County was listed as having the lowest usage of all Michigan counties.

If motorists use their safety belts properly lives could be saved and the number and severity of injuries reduced, Tanner said.

"Enforcement we are already doing," he continued, referring to the grant program. "Enforcement is part of the education. As we stop people we give out handouts. It's an awareness program."

Officers are patrolling Ford and Michigan during the hours of 2:30-6:30 p.m. in police cars designated by signs that say: Safety Belt Enforcement Unit.

"They are not a complaint car. They are not a patrol car. This will be their primary function," Tanner said. "The grant money is what will pay officers. It is not coming out of the police fund or the township budget."

Canton's safety belt effort will include enforcement and education, including informing motorists mounted in glass cases — Dunn presented an explanation of the bug world using large rubber specimens.

"Insects keep the world cleaned up," Dunn said. "Insects are recyclers. Without them there would be no fruits and vegetables to eat. There would be no flowering plants."

Consider, he said, there are 20,000 types of insects in Michigan and 30 million in the world.

"Did you know insects were the first animals who figured out how to fly?" Dunn asked.

To show the kids, ranging from first to seventh grade, just how big bugs can really be Dunn displayed a picture of the heaviest insect — a four-ounce Goliath beetle. Of course, there was also the 15-inch walking stick from Thailand. And that's not to mention the tarantula, the 2,000-member termite colony and a Madagascar hissing cockroach.

Foundation names new director

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Joan Noricks always hoped, but was never certain she would be named the new executive director of the Canton Community Foundation.

"I was hopeful. I was up against very qualified people," said Noricks, who has served as the foundation's acting director since June 6 when former director Bill Joyner's contract expired.

Noricks was selected as the new director from a field of more than 50 applicants. The director's post has been changed from a contracted position to one of a regular employee. Noricks' performance will be reviewed within six months and then on an annual basis. The position pays between $15,000 and $18,000.

"What brought us to Joan was her obvious commitment to Canton. No doubt she will be here this year and next year and after," said Canton Supervisor Tom Yack, a foundation board member who served on the selection committee. "Her past experience shows she is dedicated to the community."

The foundation's former director was a Plymouth Township resident.

Newly elected foundation president Bob Paciocco was unavailable to comment on Noricks' appointment.

Before being tapped as acting director, Noricks volunteered at the foundation as a bookkeeper and was hired by Canton Family Services, an agency affiliated with the foundation.

"I love what the foundation does for the Canton community," said Noricks, a 14-year resident of the township. "I'm really a big supporter of Canton. I want to promote the whole sense of community."

The selection of Noricks coincides with the foundation board's new strategy to place 50 percent of revenue into an endowment fund with the remaining portion used for operations.

Volunteerism will be a focus of the foundation's direction, as will making grants to community groups and individuals who can accomplish the foundation's goals.

"The organization is designed to pool resources for the betterment of Canton," Noricks said.

The foundation offers scholarships, educational grants, supports local organizations, as well as coordinate the Canton Family Services, Canton Economic Club and Celebrate Canton Dinner Dance.

Noricks' first task will be making plans for the Economic Club and the Team 100 fund raiser (the foundation's largest) both of which begin in September.

While foundation officials will work with Noricks on fund-raising matters, Yack said her reputation in the community will benefit those efforts. Noricks association with the foundation will add to individuals' confidence in their efforts, he said.

Canton man, 63, killed in crash

A 63-year-old Canton man was pronounced dead at Oakwood Hospital after the car he was driving went off the road and hit a fire hydrant on Lotz Road Tuesday afternoon.

The car, driven by Andrew Lawrence Barlow, went off the road on the east side of Lotz, south of Warren, as he was making a turn. An initial investigation by the Canton Accident Investigation unit suggests that Barlow may have suffered from a medical condition that caused his death and the accident, according to Tammie Colling, Canton police community relations officer.

Barlow's car sustained minimal damage. He was properly restrained in the car. The accident appeared to be low impact and there were no visible signs of injury, Colling said.

The exact cause of death will be determined by the Wayne County Medical Examiner.

Two women face prostitution charges

Two Korean women face prostitution charges after Canton police executed a search warrant on the Ocean Brite Tanning Salon on Michigan Avenue Tuesday night.

The search stemmed from a 4½-month investigation that gave detectives evidence needed to request a warrant on the business in the 43000 block of Michigan Avenue and of the residence of the owner-manager in Novi, according to Tammie Colling, Canton police community relations officer.

The search resulted in the confiscation of evidence, including U.S. currency. The women were expected to be arraigned Wednesday in 35th District Court.

Say hello

Salvation Army commanders feel welcome

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Lt. Randall and Lt. Karen VanLandingham are pleased to be in the Plymouth-Canton community. "Wonderful, wonderful," he said. "A great community. The people are fantastic. Caring people is what we've noticed."

The two, both 33, are the new commanding officers of the Plymouth Salvation Army Corps, which serves the greater Plymouth-Canton-Northville community. They started work June 29, shortly after their graduation from the Salvation Army College for Officer Training in Chicago, Ill.

"We pastored in the Church of the Nazarene for seven years before that" in southwestern Indiana, he said. Prior to that, they were envoys in the Salvation Army's Ft. Wayne-Belmont outpost in Ft. Wayne, Ind. "We commanded the outpost. It now is a corps, a full-fledged corps."

Prior to that, they attended Asbury College in Wilmore, Ky., where they met. Karen VanLandingham studied the Bible and earned a bachelor's degree. Her husband studied history, and has about 40 hours to go on his degree.

They're getting settled in in Canton, where they're living with their three children, Heather, 9, Randall III, 6, and David, 5. The children will attend Miller Elementary School in Canton and have already made some friends. "They love it," their mother said of the family's move.

Randall VanLandingham's originally from Alabama, and his wife is from Indiana. His father's a United Methodist minister, and her parents are Salvation Army officers.

The couple's new duties in Plymouth include working on a capital campaign to increase the size of the Salvation Army's facility on Main, just south of Ann Arbor Road. The campaign goal is $600,000, and organizers hope to have the work under way by the spring of 1995 and completed by that fall.

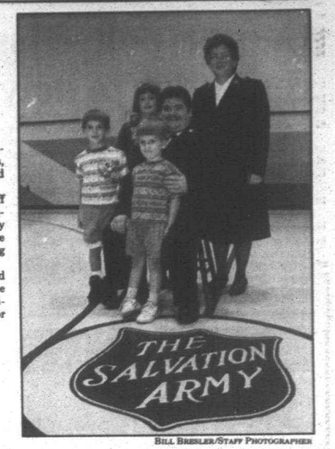

So far, they've received $208,000 in pledges and funds. A total of $450,000 is needed for work to start, he said. "We really are trying to do everything we can to get this campaign flying."

That work includes weekly committee meetings with the advisory board and presentations to service clubs. Other duties are keeping them busy as well.

"Our community center program is blossoming this summer," he said. A total of 177 kids are involved. There are also Sunday worship services, Wednesday night meetings for kids and adults and other activities.

The VanLandinghams, who are replacing Lt. Jeff and Lt. Aleta Beachum who went to the Minneapolis, Minn., area, are musically inclined. Both play the piano and other musical instruments, and hope to expand the music ministry "and get a lot of young people involved," he said.

Both like to read. She enjoys working in the yard and playing basketball when she gets a chance. He enjoys hunting, fishing, golfing and swimming. Randall VanLandingham's an amateur rock collector and a spelunker (cave explorer).

Schools try to recoup money

BY JILL HALPIN
STAFF WRITER

The Plymouth-Canton Community School District may recoup over $9 million from Michigan dairies and school bus distributors following allegations of price-fixing by the companies.

At the July 25 school board meeting, board members passed a motion by trustee Mark Horvath to join 55 other Michigan school districts in further investigation of possible litigation regarding antitrust violations of both school bus distributors and certain state dairies.

"The case allegedly involves a collusion to set prices among the school bus distributors," said Richard Egli, associate director for community relations. Egli said that attorneys handling the class-action will definitely file charges against the school bus companies. The attorneys, Thrun, Mastach and Nordberg of Lansing, are still investigating charges against the milk companies.

Schools Superintendent Charles Little said that board's action indicates a strong commitment to watching school expenditures. "The public ought to realize we are interested in how our money is being spent. They should know that if there is a violation of our trust as buyers, we will go after them," Little said.

The estimated cost of the lawsuits to the school district will be between $1,000 and $5,000 for both based on the number of school districts joining the suit.

Attorney Tim Winship said that although 55 districts have joined the suit so far, he anticipates 200 districts will join the litigation. Attorneys for the case are representing both cases on a contingency basis. If funds are recovered, the attorneys will retain one third of the gross recovery.

Attorneys are also waiting for more districts to join the suit to determine the class of the suit, Egli said.

Both cases involves purchases made by the district over the past 10 years. District transportation officials are currently working to determine the number of buses purchased during those years. Damages triple in class action suits and could be between $300 to $3,000 per bus.

The district purchased $984,000 half-pints of milk last year. Milk companies may have overcharged between one and two cents per half pint, Egli said, for a projected 9 million dollar recovery for the district.

Egli said that if recovered, he expects the funds will go back into the school's general fund.

Hariri top spender in judge race

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Victoria Hariri and Ron Lowe are the top two spenders so far in the hotly contested 35th District judge race, according to campaign spending information filed with the state and made available Monday.

Available campaign expense reports showed Hariri had spent $27,731 by the pre-election period ending July 17. Hariri contributed $30,635 to her campaign and raised $78.87 in outside contributions. Her primary expense was $17,400 for outdoor signs.

Second was Lowe, who spent $23,292 by the July 17 deadline while raising the most — $35,397.

Lowe's biggest campaign contributor was his wife Jeanine, who contributed $9,000. Lowe also received contributions from private donors, including $100 each from Plymouth City Commissioner John Vos, former Plymouth mayor Dennis Bila, and opponent Stephen Boak. Expenses included rent for a campaign headquarters, postal costs for campaign mailings and signs.

The filing deadline for candidates' campaign expense reports was Friday, and by noon Monday reports had not been received for candidates Jacqueline George and Dennis Shrewsbury, according to the buresu of state elections.

Candidates Carol Levitte and Michael Gerou filed reports on time, but those reports had yet to be organized for filing by state staff and were unavailable for viewing Monday morning, a bureau of state elections clerk said.

By available information, the third top spender was Karen Woodside, spending $21,565 while collecting $21,687. Among her expenses were $1,486 for 950 yard signs and $1,000 for a banner and campaign consultant. Woodside and her husband were her biggest campaign supporters, contributing $11,833.

Stephen Boak spent $11,024 while raising $11,905. Biggest contributors were he and his wife Suzanne, putting $4,800 in the campaign pot. Other campaign contributors included Vos and former Plymouth Township supervisor Maurice Breen; both contributed $100. Among Boak's campaign expenses was $480 for an airplane to trail a campaign banner.

Maria Petito spent $5,267 while raising $8,262. Biggest campaign contributors were Michael Petito of Old Greenwich, Conn., $5,000 and the candidate, who contributed $923. Expenses included $1,191 for campaign advertising.

Ed Zelmanski spent $1,642 on campaign mailings among other expenses while raising $5,266. His largest campaign contributors were a friend and former legal client James Birnie of Farmington Hills, $1,301 and his father Ed Zelmanski Sr., $700.

8TH DISTRICT STATE SENATE RACE

Two Democrats are competing for the 8th District Senate nomination in the Aug. 2 primary. The winner will face Republican Loren Bennett in the the Nov. 8 general election for a four-year term. Bennett wasn't interviewed for the primary because he is unopposed.

CANDIDATE: Charles "Trav" Griffin
AGE: 54
EMPLOYMENT: Universe director, Michigan Education Association
FAMILY: Married to Margaret Sue with three adult sons
EDUCATION: Eastern Michigan University, bachelor's degree in government and business administration and master's degree in social science and administration
Community service: Westland mayor 1986-89; Westland City Council member 1976-85 and Jan. 1, 1994, to present; served two terms as council president; Wayne-Westland school board member 1972-75; former vice president of Wayne-Westland Area Council PTA; former chair, Conference of Western Wayne; past president, League of Westland Democratic Voters; past chairman of Zoning Board of Appeals; former council representative to Nankin Transit Commission; former Cady PTA president; past Westland Jaycees member; Westland Goodfellows; among others.

CANDIDATE: David Jacokes
AGE: 49
EMPLOYMENT: Van Buren Township supervisor
FAMILY: Married to Jeanette with two daughters
EDUCATION: Attended the Air Force University, University of Maryland, Commercial Trades Institute and Northwood University
Community service: Chairman of Wayne County Chapter, Michigan Township Association; Wayne County Supervisor's Association; board of directors, Conference of Western Wayne; substance abuse task force for Belleville and Van Buren and Sumpter townships; Michigan Assessor's Association; Van Buren Economic Development Corp.; Van Buren Downtown Development Authority; Belleville Area Chamber of Commerce; Vietnam Veterans of America; Disabled American Veterans; St. Anthony's Church; among others.

Why should voters choose you for the state Senate seat?	Griffin stressed his background in education and his years in public office. "I think I understand government and how it works. I also have a record out there in the community. He also noted that he formerly chaired the Conference of Western Wayne and was instrumental in developing a 911 emergency response in the area. He said he has a stronger stance than his opponent on environmental issues.	"Because I'm the most experienced of the candidates, and I have a proven record of performance." He noted that he served his country in the U.S. Air Force and has worked 16 years in local government, holding elective office for six years.
What are the top issues that you're focusing on during your campaign?	"The No. 1 problem is fear of crime and how we deal with it, within the money confines that we have." He suggested privately built and operated prisons for criminals who commit lesser offenses. Those offenders would have to pay if they wanted to be in the private prisons. Violent offenders would remain in public facilities. Griffin said the criminal code should be strengthened. He cited jobs as a second priority and education as a third.	"Crime and criminal justice reform, including the juvenile justice system, to ensure penalties for the crimes committed." As a second priority, Jacokes cited the economic welfare of Michigan residents, saying that existing jobs must be preserved and new jobs must be found. "The new jobs have to be jobs with decent wages." A third priority is education. Proposal A "won't provide enough funding for the quality of education that we need."
What is your strategy for creating new jobs in Michigan?	"We've got to be fair with our taxation of small business in particular. We can't tax these people out of business." He said he hopes national health care reform will help small businesses provide employees with health care. That would stabilize the small business workforce and perhaps allow businesses to grow. He emphasized that in Westland, the Tax Increment Finance Authority has helped to create many new jobs in a targeted district.	"Create a sound economic climate for business development." He said a "fertile ground must be provided for educational opportunities to acquire skills for better-paying jobs." Government incentives such as tax abatements need to be continued, to some extent, to allow Michigan to compete with other states for new business. Referring to the "right-to-work" movement that is seen by many as union-busting, Jacokes said, "I totally oppose that."
Is the Michigan tax structure fair? If not, what would you change?	"We're pretty fair now in terms of our tax structure, especially with the sales tax." But he said he worries that Proposal A, which reduced school taxes, will cause a potential billion-dollar shortage at the state level. "We may be faced with cutting services or raising taxes or a combination of both."	"I would do meaningful tax reform. Proposal A took care of school finance reform, but it doesn't address the plight of persons on fixed incomes", who he said are hurt by rising assessments. He suggested a 1.5-percent annual cap on assessment increases, instead of 5 percent or the inflation rate.
What can be done to reduce crime in the district that you're seeking to represent?	"Increase the police forces, especially with state police (on major interstates and freeways), and provide more money to local governments to help them maintain their current forces. Pass laws that will help prosecutors and police officers take criminals off the streets." He suggested changing statutes to make it easier to apprehend criminals, but said the laws shouldn't infringe on constitutional rights.	"We have to inject the certainty of punishment for crimes committed," he said, adding later, "The juvenile justice system, as we know it, is a joke. Unaddressed first offenses lead to greater crimes and more severe crimes." He suggested that offenders should be tried as adults at age 15, instead of 17. He also suggested alternative sentencing, such as boot camp, for lesser crimes and said adults could pay a fee to perform community service.
What is your stance on abortion? Are you pro-choice or pro-life?	"I am opposed to abortion personally, but I am satisfied with the current law. I am not going to tell anybody what to do with their body."	"I don't agree completely with either side. I oppose abortion for birth control, but pro-lifers don't make any allowances for rape, incest and (life-threatening pregnancies)." Jacokes opposes public funding of abortions except in those areas.

Dear Dr. Beitman:

I would like to commend you and your staff on a job well done. I am very pleased with my experiences with you and your staff. Being a Manager of a Customer Support Department, I expect the best from my employees when it comes to providing good customer service. I also expect excellent service whenever I am the customer. I felt that the service received at your office exceeded my expectations.

Starting with my initial phone call requesting a consultation, my experiences were very pleasant. After watching the video, reading the various pieces of literature and talking with Peggy and yourself, I felt very comfortable with my decision to have RK performed at your office. Julie, Carla, Nat and Sue just made the experience even more pleasant. (I hope I remembered all their names correctly.) The personalities of these individuals actually made the experience fun (it's hard to believe that going to a doctor's office can be fun). During the tests and examinations, your staff was professional and personable. The conversations and joking that we had made the testing process go very quickly.

The actual surgery itself was painless and much quicker than I had imagined. I am definitely a "big chicken" when it comes to having anyone (including me) near my eyes. I was amazed that I made it through the surgery on my first eye, and still had the desire to have my second eye done. In the back of my mind, I thought for sure that I might not have enough nerve to return to have my other eye done. Considering I actually was looking forward to my second surgery, you and your staff must have done a good job.

It has really been fantastic to be able to do whatever I want without wearing glasses. I am still not used to going through the day without them. I find myself trying to adjust my glasses, even though I am not wearing them. Hopefully, I will be able to break this habit soon. Having people watch me reaching for glasses that don't exist is getting very embarrassing.

I would be happy to talk to any of your future clients regarding you, your staff and RK. Feel free to give them my number.

Sincerely, Joseph K. Chriss

Canton police issue reminder to drivers

In case you've forgotten, here's a glimpse of what's expected of motorists and passengers when it comes to safety belts:

- Infants less than 1 year old: must be in a car seat in the front and back seats.
- Children ages 1-4: must be in a child car seat in the front and a child car seat or safety belt in the back seat.
- Children 4-16: must wear a safety belt in the front and back seats. The driver can receive a citation for allowing otherwise.
- Anyone 16 years and older: must wear a safety belt in the front seat. There is no requirement for usage in the back seat. If a safety belt is not worn in the front seat, each violator may receive a citation.

Keep in mind that violations of the child restraint laws carry a penalty of $65. Violators of the safety belt law will be receive a $45 ticket.

of the need for safety belts when police stop them. The educational effort will continue in programs such as Safety Town and driver's education classes. Public service announcements are expected on cable television. And tokens such as balloons and stickers will be handed out as positive reinforcement when motorists are stopped.

"We're not doing a quota system with the stops. We want the contacts. We want to be able to talk to people," Tanner said. "We can't make a stop for someone just not wearing their seat belt."

That doesn't mean tickets won't be issued. Motorists on Ford and Michigan will be stopped under the safety belt program when they are found to be traveling at 6 mph over the speed limit.

The grant actually was awarded to member communities of the Down River Mutual Aid Task Force. "It was opened up to Wayne County departments that border on certain roads where crash data shows a need," Tanner said.

In 1992, 132 crashes were reported on Canton's part of Michigan Avenue. Of that total, two were fatalities, 39 injury accidents and the remaining property damage accidents. The total was less than the 149 in 1991 and 172 in 1990. In 1991 three people died on Michigan Avenue and two died in 1990.

social services, schools, businesses and parks and recreation — resources that will help improve residents' quality of life and reduce crime, Santomauro said.

The effort will be the latest in the goal of using the community policing concept, which involves assigning an officer to a specific area as part of the officer's regular beat. "What we have learned down there (Canton Commons) can be taken to other areas of the community," Santomauro said.

When complaints and incidents about teen problems and gang-related incidents at the complex surfaced in 1993, police created a task force that included Plymouth and Plymouth Township police and social service agencies to address problems at Canton Commons.

Also created was Commons Awareness, which included police and administrators of Field Elementary and East Middle schools, as well as Canton Commons management and residents. Through the group, improvements were made at the complex to improve safety — such as lighting and weed control — and to provide activities for children, Colling said.

"Each area has a unique problem. If we maximize our resources in one area, that frees up resources in another area," Santomauro said. "We can apply this to other areas. That task force is a mobile task force."

NEW DEVELOPMENTS

Editor's note: Listed below are some of the construction projects, including residential and commercial developments, as well as road projects that may interest Canton residents. This column will be published intermittently to keep residents abreast of development in the community.

- Industrial area: Several new developments are proposed for the Haggerty-Koppernick area. A 52,383-square-foot building for Beckgen Specialty was approved on July 14 for a 4.1-acre parcel east of Haggerty, south of Koppernick. Meer Dental is proposing a warehouse expansion for their building on Haggerty, south of Koppernick. The Durcon Company, south of Joy, east of Ronda Drive, has proposed a second 13,000-square-foot building on their 2.25-acre site. Conceptual site plan meetings for both Meer and Durcon were scheduled for July 27. All industrial site plans are submitted to planning services, which handles and approves the projects administratively.
- Construction updates: A new storm sewer and water line are being installed along the north side of Palmer. A sanitary sewer is being installed along the south side and Palmer Road will be paved from Lotz to Hannan, including replacement of the bridge. Restoration work is scheduled for spring 1995.
- Construction route: Heavy construction traffic is now using a specific route to the new Sunflower number 11 subdivision. The route uses a temporary access road north off Maben and Canton Center. Heavy construction traffic will not be allowed to travel on Maben Road between the temporary road and Beck. The route also prohibits some turns for large trucks to avoid any problems in the Ford Road-Canton Center-Maben intersection area. Building in the subdivision is scheduled to be done by the end of the year.
- Temporary plant: A temporary concrete batch plant is open and operated by Tony Angelo Cement Construction in the area of Palmer and Canton Center roads. This is a central site used to mix and provide concrete for roads for several Canton subdivision under development. The contractor has received a permit to operate from June 29 to Sept.1.

Congress candidates scramble for undecided votes

Candidates in the 13th Congressional District are working hard these last few days before the election to convince the largest voting block - the undecideds - to choose them on Aug. 2.

"It appears that most people have not made up their minds," said one campaign manager who asked not to be identified.

The 13th District is an open seat. U.S. Rep. William D. Ford is retiring when his term ends Dec. 31.

In the Democratic primary, the candidates are Fulton Eaglin, David W. Geiss, and Lynn Rivers.

Voters in the Republican primary will select from Dennis G. Fassett, Glen Kassel, John Schall, and Cynthia Wilbanks.

Fulton Eaglin

"When elected, it will not be politics as usual," said Eaglin, a lawyer with offices in Ann Arbor who calls himself a progressive community activist with local, state and national administrative experience.

"I will effectively promote all the diverse constituencies of the 13th District in Washington."

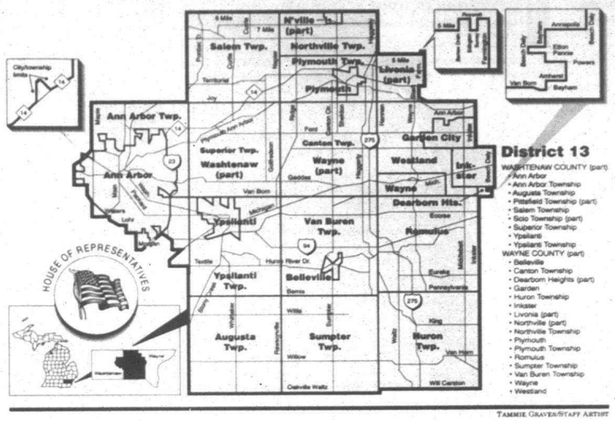

Though he has held only one elected position (Washtenaw Community College trustee in 1975), he has a broad background in business, labor, education, military and community service.

Born in Ann Arbor, raised in Ypsilanti and a graduate of Eastern Michigan University and Harvard Law School, Eaglin, 52, is the son of retired U.S. Postmaster Simon Eaglin.

David W. Geiss

Geiss, 52, has worked for Congressman Ford for the last 12 years. Formerly a tool and die maker for the Michigan Rivet Corp., Geiss became active in his union, UAW Local 189, and was elected bargaining committee chairman in 1969. He served as a city councilman in Taylor and was elected to the Wayne County Charter Commission in 1980.

Crime, health care reform, education, creating high-paying jobs, increased opportunity for working families, holding the line on taxes and controlling government spending are the issues that Geiss has targeted in the campaign.

TAMMIE GRAVER/STAFF ARTIST

On health care, Geiss supports universal coverage, portability and "weeding out abuse" from the system.

"Reforms must be undertaken without compromising choice or quality," he said.

Geiss also calls for full funding of Head Start, vocational retraining programs and education financial aid for the middle class.

"I'm a blue-collar Democrat, not a tax and spend liberal," Geiss said.

"I'm not for giving away anything."

Lynn Rivers

Democrat Rivers currently represents the 53rd District in the state House. Married the day after her high school graduation, Rivers and her husband had two children by the time they were 21.

While raising a family, Rivers earned a bachelor's degree from the University of Michigan and a law degree from Wayne State University in 1992.

"I know first hand what it is like to do without adequate child care and health insurance and to forgo purchasing a home because of a lack of affordable housing," said Rivers.

Rivers was elected to the Ann Arbor School Board in 1984. She served on the board for eight years, three of them as president.

"Government must work for people — not against them," she said.

Ethics and integrity have been two issue that Rivers has championed in the Democratic primary.

Rivers has challenged Geiss on the issues of residency and community involvement, salaries, perks and privileges of public office/employment and use of taxpayers' dollars for office expenses, mailing, travel and meals.

Geiss owns a home in Washington, D.C., and has only lived in the 13th District since 1992. Geiss, who took a leave of absence from Ford's staff three months ago, was paid $111,000. His travel expenses while working for Ford were the subject of a detailed account in The Detroit Free Press. The report noted that in six years, ending in 1993, Geiss flew back to Ford's district 192 times and claimed $14,000 in expenses for 50,000 miles on his car.

Rivers said she does not claim in-district travel expenses as a state representative, does not keep an office expense fund and voted against the pay raise for state lawmakers.

To reduce the federal deficit, Rivers would cut spending and revise budget priorities to emphasize job creation, education and health care.

To deal with crime Rivers supports truth in sentencing and enhanced penalties for crimes committed with guns. She favors community policing, drug use prevention, job development and adequate mental health programs.

On health care, she said the system must be 100 percent affordable, 100 percent accessible and include services for rural and urban residents. She advocates strengthening educational and preventative health programs and supports coverage of reproductive service in any national health plan.

CANDIDATES FOR THE 35TH DISTRICT COURT

Voters in the Aug. 2 primary will choose one of 11 candidates for judge in the 35th District, which serves , Canton, greater Plymouth and Northville. The two finalists vie in November for one four-year term on the bench.

	Who was the best judge you ever practiced in front of and why, and what did you learn from this judge?	What civic, church or political activities are you involved in?
 CANDIDATE: Stephen Boak RESIDENCE: Plymouth CURRENT PRACTICE AND BACKGROUND: Partner in private law firm since 1980, former chief of operations, Wayne County prosecutor's office AGE: 52	Blair Moody, now deceased. It was just the way he handled the courtroom, he was always a gentleman, he never lost his patience, always had a smile for everyone, was always able to move his docket. He gave everyone a fair day in court, but he could be a very tough sentencer. He truly wanted justice to be done.	I'm in a lot of veterans groups, the Vietnam Veterans, American Legion, I'm a former Kiwanian, I've coached recreational soccer, I'm a retired lieutenant colonel in the Army Reserve, I'm involved in the Plymouth Republican Club.
 CANDIDATE: Jacqueline George RESIDENCE: Plymouth Township CURRENT PRACTICE AND BACKGROUND: Partner in private law firm, court-appointed public defender, ran for 35th District Court in 1984 but lost to Judge John MacDonald. AGE: 49	Right or wrong, I respect a judge that makes a decision. Judge Michael Talbot of circuit court and Judge Leonard Townsend of Recorder's Court, they make decisions, follow the law and in cases involving nasty felonies they give plenty of time. They're enthusiastic, they're committed to their feelings. I like a judge who's confident. I would be a working judge. I don't appreciate nastiness to defendants.	I'm a housewife, I go to work, I come home, I take care of my family. I'm enrolled as a hospice volunteer, I've been in the VFW ladies auxiliary in Northville, I'm a photographer, I take babies' clothes to the women's shelter to young mothers who decide to keep their children, I'm a AA (Alcoholics Anonymous) 12-step service person volunteer.
 CANDIDATE: Michael Gerou RESIDENCE: Plymouth Township CURRENT PRACTICE AND BACKGROUND: Began private practice in 1987, former legal defender AGE: 39	William Leo Callahan. He lets people understand what the legal system is prepared to handle and what it's not prepared to handle. He's intelligent, and has the ability to be reasonable and the ability to draw fine distinctions.	I'm very active in the Canton Chamber of Commerce on several committees. I helped promote the Liberty Fest, I'm a member of the Plymouth chamber. I donate one morning a month to Wayne County Neighborhood Legal services, a volunteer at the University of Detroit law school, an instructor at Plymouth-Canton high school continuing education on various legal topics. I've coached Plymouth Canton students doing mock trials. I'm a softball sponsor, active in St. Kenneth's Church, the Plymouth Elks and Eagles.
 CANDIDATE: Victoria Harris RESIDENCE: Northville Township CURRENT PRACTICE AND BACKGROUND: In private practice, often working as an arbitrator and mediator. AGE: 46	I believe Judge Torres, 36th District Court. I rate him as the best because he was extremely fair and made sure that he was able to hear both sides of the case. He was straight to the point and didn't waste time.	I do volunteer work for the better business bureau, public service lectures on avoiding consumer disputes and pro bono consumer arbitrations.
 CANDIDATE: Carol Levitte RESIDENCE: Plymouth CURRENT PRACTICE AND BACKGROUND: In private practice, state hearing officer since 1983 for the Office of Racing Commissioner and serves as utility hearing officer for the Public Service Commission. AGE: 48	Judge Richard Kaufman comes prepared to the hearings that we have, he reads all the materials we submitted to him, he's well read, well prepared. He gives all the parties an opportunity to supplement. I like his preparedness and fairness.	I serve on the board of trustees at Stepping Stone School, I'm a consultant to the Plymouth Symphony, member of the arts council. I work with local homeowners a lot, I work with young kids on the summer cruising tickets pro bono, I've served on the parking committee for the city. I'm active in the fall festival.
 CANDIDATE: Ron Lowe RESIDENCE: Plymouth CURRENT PRACTICE AND BACKGROUND: Partner in private law firm, Plymouth city attorney since 1985. AGE: 38	I'm biased toward Judge Dunbar Davis (former Plymouth district judge.) I think it says a lot to his ability as a judge when they named the courthouse after him. He was my Sunday school teacher and motivating factor in my decision to go to law school. I was his court officer when I was in high school, he would talk about cases I observed and teach me the law in these cases. I knew from Dunbar Davis I wanted to be a judge.	First Methodist Church; the Rotary Jaycees; I volunteer for three historical societies - Plymouth, Northville and Canton; the National Storytelling Association in the sense I'm out telling stories and I tend to perform storytelling for other groups; Kiwanis; the literary council; Friends of the Dunning-Hough Library; the Fred Hill Briefcase Drill Team, and there's more.
 CANDIDATE: Maria Petitto RESIDENCE: Northville CURRENT PRACTICE AND BACKGROUND: Wayne County assistant prosecuting attorney since 1984, former probation officer. AGE: 42	There's a number I've practiced in front of that have given me insight as to what a good judge should be. There are judges with really great temperaments and others who get their buttons pushed. Judge (George) Crockett is able to maintain the dignity of the courtroom and keep it calm, and handle other attorneys. I think the most important thing is to give an honest decision.	I used to be involved in business and professional women's groups, but the attorney general said we (assistant prosecutors) can't get involved in any kinds of boards. I am involved in the Gang Task Force. I have a young family, and I'm usually up until midnight preparing cases.
 CANDIDATE: Dennis Shrewsbury RESIDENCE: Plymouth CURRENT PRACTICE AND BACKGROUND: Public defender, Plymouth city commissioner. AGE: 53	I'd start with Judge Paul Teranes, he's truly the impartial dispenser of justice. He listens to what's being said, he's really sharp. I think what I've learned from him is listen to what's being said, don't be swayed by how they look or their attitude, look at the facts.	I'm on the Hospice of Western Wayne County foundation, I'm a legal adviser to the Plymouth Symphony, I'm a supporter of many community activities, the Canton Community Foundation, the Plymouth Canton Marching Band, I'm a city commissioner, a member of the Vietnam Veterans, the Plymouth chamber of commerce, Canton chamber, literacy council, I'm on the YMCA board of directors.
 CANDIDATE: Kevin Simowski RESIDENCE: Plymouth CURRENT PRACTICE AND BACKGROUND: Wayne County assistant prosecuting attorney since 1982, prosecuted the DeLisle children drowning case in Wyandotte. AGE: 37	I tried the DeLisle case before Judge Robert Columbo Jr. in Wayne County circuit court. That courtroom was run like a courtroom should be run. If he said we start at 9, we'd start at 9. He's extremely orderly, courteous, he'd read the material and make an informed decision. And Judge Leonard Townsend at Recorder's Court for his ability to cut to the chase, he has a great sense of humor, he can direct attorneys, some guys go on and on.	I'm with the U of M alumni association, U of M club of Plymouth, the Prosecuting Attorney's Association of Michigan. It's a teaching vehicle for all the prosecutors in the state. My kids are very important, I'm not involved with service groups because there's an appearance of conflict of interest.
 CANDIDATE: Karen Woodside RESIDENCE: Northville Township. CURRENT PRACTICE AND BACKGROUND: Wayne County assistant prosecuting attorney in the appellate division, formerly in private practice. AGE: Declined to give it.	Judge Mies in Livonia, he was very fair, he knew the law and was able to apply it very well. I also admire Judge George Crockett, he knows the law and has done a very good job in cases I've had before him. I respect Geraldine Ford, Roman Gribbs, Mora Corrigan - these people are able to apply the law fairly as it is written.	I've been vice chairman of the Northville Township planning commission, I chaired the committee on a planned unit development ordinance, I was on the township manager selection committee, an assistant girls softball coach, I speak on the law as a career choice and drug awareness. I've been active in parent-teacher organizations and service projects. I teach eighth grade religious education at Our Lady of Victory Church.
 CANDIDATE: Ed Zelmanski RESIDENCE: Canton. CURRENT PRACTICE AND BACKGROUND: Managing attorney at UAW-GM-Ford Legal Services with offices in Livonia and Novi, has worked in private practice. AGE: 41	Frederick E. Byrd of the 36th District Court. I tried my first jury trial in front of him in law school. One thing I noticed right away was where the power came from - the court's power came from the people. He believed in people and the inate power of the people. Wayne County Circuit Judge Cynthia Stevens; I admire her courage, she was challenged as a newcomer. She has a natural grace, intelligence and wit to handle cases under difficult circumstances. Judge Newblatt (Flint district court) has a laser-like view of legal issues, he also understood the human element of the case in front of him.	The focal point of activity outside of work is my family. I'm a Hoben school PTO volunteer for their activities, I've served as counsel for them, I'm a Cub Scout leader, scouting is good because it is interactive. At St. Thomas A'Becket I do provide counsel to our pastor on issues in church, I've done the same thing for the VFW and I've done some junior basketball league coaching.

Dennis Fassett

In the Republican primary, Fassett is a former managing editor of the Associated Newspapers in Wayne. In 1980 he worked as regional manager of Omnicom Cablevision of Plymouth. In 1981 he left to form Multi-Vision Cable Systems of Westland. In 1983, he sold that company and formed Cable Management Associates.

Fassett said he's running for Congress because "as a self-employed local businessman, I have experienced first hand the difficulties associated with the creation of jobs."

Fassett describes himself as a fiscal conservative who will "work to eliminate the waste of national financial resources and to redirect our focus on the critical issues facing the district and nation, such as crime, welfare reform and high taxes."

He supports term limits, a balanced budget, a line-item veto for the president, reduced taxes, welfare reform, tougher crime legislation and an "end to governmental waste and mismanagement."

"Congress now needs fresh people, fresh ideas and a new direction emphasizing our founders' ideals of individual opportunity and individual responsibility.

"Unlike my opponents, I am not just seeking a new job or career. I am seeking meaningful change and reform in Congress," said Fassett.

Fassett opposes any increase in taxes as long as waste and mismanagement continue at the national level. If elected, he has pledged to initiate congressional hearings on bureaucratic waste and "will work to reform the system."

Glen Kassel

Kassel, 68, a real estate and insurance agent who lives in Westland, has sought the GOP nomination from the district (formerly the 15th) at least four other times.

The Republican candidate points with pride to his involvement in civic and charitable activities. A member of the American Legion and Knights of Columbus, Kassel is an Army veteran. He's a longtime Republican activist in the district.

Kassel supports a line-item veto and a constitutional amendment to balance the federal budget. He opposes abortion on demand and opposes any programs that "pay for or encourages abortions."

He favors health care for everyone, but opposes a Canadian-style system.

Kassel said spending is his highest priority.

"We can't spend more than what we're getting."

John Schall

Schall, 33, began his government career during the Reagan Administration in the White House Office of Management and Budget, handling health and social services programs from July 1984 to July 1987.

In August 1991 he was named chief of staff of the U.S. Department of Labor. At age 30, Schall was the youngest chief of staff of a cabinet department in the government.

Schall grew up in Livonia and attended St. Michael's Catholic School and Bishop Borgess High School. He went on to graduate from the University of Michigan and later received a master's degree in public policy from Harvard University's Kennedy School of Government.

He entered the race for Congress against Ford in September 1993.

Schall signed the Taxpayers Protection Pledge saying he would "fight against higher federal taxes."

He has been campaigning on the message of less taxes, less spending, less government, more freedom.

"Federal taxes are too high at a time when the hard-working men and women of this district already aren't getting their money's worth from government. Government is too big and spending into too many aspects of our lives where it doesn't belong," said Schall.

In an interview with this newspaper in February, Schall described himself as a fiscal conservative but social moderate.

Cynthia Wilbanks

Rounding out the GOP slate is Wilbanks, 43, of Ypsilanti Township.

"Wayne and Washtenaw counties deserve leadership in step with the concerns of area residents," said Wilbanks. "We live in a rapidly changing world which demands that our elected representatives in Washington employ new ideas and seek innovative solutions. Yesterday's tired approaches to today's fast-paced problems simply no longer work," she said.

On health care, Wilbanks believes in the right to choose one's own doctor. She said reform measures that should be addressed include prescription drugs, the lack of affordable long-term care, insurance reform, portability between jobs and elimination of prohibitions on pre-existing conditions.

Wilbanks believes lower trade barriers and increased international trade will provide new markets for American products and jobs for workers.

She supports a balanced budget amendment and says that welfare reform should reduce existing fraud and encourage successful state programs which require job training coupled with child and health care and time-limited benefits.

A graduate of Redford High School, Wilbanks holds a bachelor's degree from the University of Michigan.

Candidate proposes taking lawyers from McNamara

By Ralph R. Echtinaw
Staff Writer

■ 'I'm trying to seize the moment and demonstrate that I have the capacity to serve.'
Bruce Patterson
County commission candidate

Wayne County Commission candidate Bruce Patterson hasn't been elected, but he's proposing legislation already.

"I'm trying to seize the moment and demonstrate that I have the capacity to serve," he said.

Patterson, who hopes to replace Bryan Amann as 11th District commissioner representing Canton Township, has produced a proposed ballot question and accompanying resolution to amend the Wayne County Charter.

Patterson seeks to transfer administrative control of the Department of Corporation Counsel from the county executive to the county prosecutor.

In other words, the attorneys who are now hired and fired by Executive Edward McNamara would be taken away from him and given to Prosecutor John O'Hair.

Although the county charter says that the corporation counsel works for all sections of county government, there have been complaints that the corporation counsel does what McNamara tells it to do.

Former corporation counsel Saul Green, now the Detroit area U.S. district attorney, was criticized more than once for legal opinions that supported McNamara.

For example, Green's opinion on the meaning of a 1988 ballot proposal teed off many commissioners in 1993. The ballot proposal said that one-tenth of a 1-mill tax levy would be used to "build and operate a juvenile offender work/training institution."

McNamara wanted to use the 0.1 mill to fund juvenile offender programs, not put up a building. Commissioners objected and Green's opinion was sought. The written result concluded that a "program" is the same thing as an "institution."

When defending Green's legal opinion on the 0.1-mill proposal to the Conference of Western Wayne in February 1993, McNamara said of Green, "I appointed this guy, and I sign his paychecks."

McNamara's health and community services director, Bernard Kilpatrick, at the same meeting told the assembled mayors and supervisors, "The letter of the law will break all of us."

Patterson likened the situation of corporation counsel to that of a man faced with fulfilling a brother's request and his wife's request. Of course, Patterson said, the man will take care of his wife first.

Prosecutor John O'Hair, who served a dual role as corporation counsel and prosecutor for four years in the 1980s, said he likes Patterson's idea. "I thought (in the '80s) that there was good reason for consolidation of the functions," he said.

Commissioners Amann and Kay Beard, D-Westland, who also represents Garden City, oppose the resolution.

"It would be like telling the chief executive of Ford that you can run the place, but the lawyers won't report to you," Amann said.

"There are times when there are certainly conflicts (over the allegiance of corporation counsel)," Beard said. "But I certainly wouldn't want to see it go back in the prosecutor's office."

McNamara opposes the plan, too. "I think it's stupid," he said. "That (resolution) is being done by people who don't understand the system."

Commissioner Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, who also represents Plymouth and Plymouth Township, said he has seen no evidence that McNamara has improperly influenced corporation counsel. However, McCotter said, "I support any proposal that promotes the independence of the corporation counsel from the perception of political pressure."

Commissioner Michelle Plawecki, D-Dearborn Heights, who also represents Redford Township, could not be reached by press time.

Premier Living sports new look

Beginning with the August issue of Premier Living, Specialty Communications, a Farmington Hills-based subsidiary of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, is launching a new look, new features and a new approach to distributing the magazine.

Premier Living is a local publication that provides "a fresh look at life" for readers over 50.

"We are especially excited about the new features written by area residents who are nationally recognized in their fields," said Lenelle Smith, editor.

These new features include:

■ Generation to Generation, a column by Dr. Alice McCarthy, a Birmingham resident and nationally-known parent educator and writer. Dr. McCarthy is a parent to five young professionals, three of whom are married, and grandparent to six, ages 10 to under a year.

■ Coverage of financial issues by Sid Mittra, Ph.D. Mittra is a professor of finance at Oakland University and owner of Mittra & Associates.

■ Health improvement columns by Barry Franklin, Ph.D., director of Cardiac Rehabilitation and Exercise Laboratories at William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak. Franklin is the author of a book on fitness, "Making Healthy Tomorrows."

Premier Living has changed its distribution system so that it can cover most of north Oakland County.

The magazine now can be obtained free of charge at a variety of convenient locations such as major grocery and drugstores as well as bookstores, health food centers, community and senior centers, local libraries and popular restaurants in the following communities: Plymouth, Canton, Livonia, Farmington, Westland, Birmingham, Bloomfield Township, Royal Oak and West Bloomfield.

If you cannot find Premier Living at a location in your neighborhood after Aug. 15, call (810) 478-5160 to find the nearest location.

Family homeless shelter management switched

Operation of the Wayne County Family Center homeless shelter was turned over to Lutheran Social Services of Michigan by the Wayne County government.

LSSM is now responsible for the $612,000 annual budget and getting additional money through grants and contracts from federal, state and local sources, including private charitable contributions.

Three years ago the agency ran a successful homeless shelter in its senior center in northeast Detroit. LSSM also operates Heartline in Detroit, a residence for homeless women and women getting out of prison.

Wayne County will retain ownership of the family center, located in Westland, and provide monitoring and oversight of the operation.

The family center provides transitional housing for up to 24 families with minor children up to a maximum of 108 individuals. In 1993, the center served more than 200 families.

In 1991, about $1 million was spent to renovate the second floor of what was the commissary building for the Eloise center into the transitional housing unit. Much of the money was donated by cities and townships through their Community Development Block Grant funds.

Families in the shelter share a common kitchen, bath, dining/recreation area and laundry rooms and have individual sleeping quarters. The length of stay averages four months.

During their stay, families are provided a variety of support services.

Recently the county opened a Head Start program next door in D Building which serves up to 35 children from homeless shelters.

Quiz quest

Catholic Central team is second in nation

The varsity academic quiz bowl team of Catholic Central High School won second place in a national competition June 21 at St. Louis University.

The team consisted of Doug Connolly of Northville, Adam Borchert of Livonia, Andy Koziol of Redford Township, Clint McDonell of Garden City, Jason Harris of Detroit, Jeff Proctor and Hernan Munoz of Canton Township. The boys are coached by teacher Howard Weinberg.

In the preliminary rounds of the tournament the team posted three victories to advance to the trophy rounds. The team then won three more games before losing 245-220 in the championship game to Winnebago High School of Winnebago, Ill.

At one point during the championship round, Catholic Central was ahead by 50 points. St. Charles Prep of Columbus, Ohio, finished third.

Proctor said he was disappointed initially after finishing second, but "the next morning I realized there were a lot of teams around that wouldn't mind being where we were."

Borchert called the second-place finish "really kind of a thrill, (because) we really didn't know what to expect. We were very pleased with our finish."

In Quiz Bowl competition the four-person teams are asked questions ranging from mathematics to music to history to TV shows.

Weinberg, who teaches economics and American government at Catholic Central, said his team practiced for three hours a day, seven days a week for three weeks leading up to the national competition.

"It takes a team functioning on all four cylinders to make it," he said.

Proctor said a great deal of individual studying went into CC's success, too. "I probably had a thousand pages of stuff to study," he said.

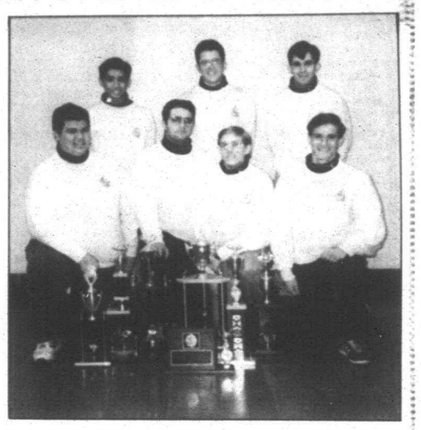

Weinberg stressed the importance of "motivation and hard work" in fielding a successful team.

Proctor said one of Weinberg's pet aphorisms is "I will is more important than I Q."

"All the extra effort you can put in studying on the side is the difference between a so-so player and a great player," Koziol said.

The second-place finish in St. Louis marked the third time CC's quiz bowl team has won a national trophy. The team finished fifth in the nation in 1990 and third in 1991, also under Weinberg's tutelage.

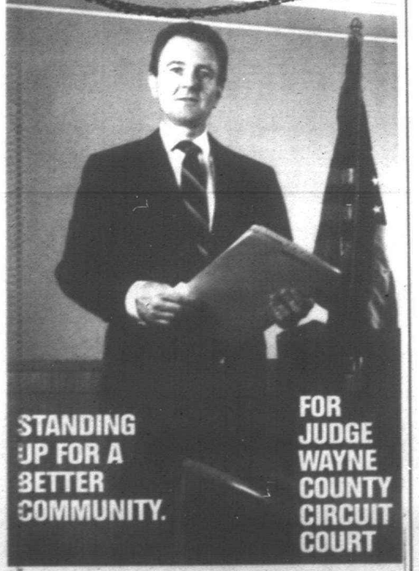

Catholic Central is a private, all-male college preparatory high school in Redford Township. Over the last 10 years CC has had 98 National Merit Scholarship semi-finalists, more than any other parochial high school in Michigan.

INTRODUCING
The New Life Center at Providence Park
Where families are born...close to home

A COMFORTABLE ATMOSPHERE
Imagine giving birth in a comfortable, home-like atmosphere where you make many of the decisions about your birth experience. And then, think about being able to go home within 24 hours after your baby is born. Well, the New Life Center at Providence Park in Novi offers all that, and it's just minutes from home.
A UNIQUE APPROACH
It's a new beginning. A new way of thinking. And an alternative to traditional hospital births*. The New Life Center at Providence Park was born from the success of the New Life Center at Providence Hospital, where for generations, thousands of women have had wonderful, nurturing, family-centered birth experiences.
THE CHOICES ARE MANY
From the moment you choose to have your baby with us, many decisions are yours. You may choose to go natural or to have an epidural. You may also prefer to share the event with your loved ones. But the best part is giving birth in a relaxed, home-like atmosphere and having your baby by your side. What's more, a nurse will come to your home for private, follow-up visits. Because that's the kind of extra care, attention and education people expect from Providence.
COME SEE FOR YOURSELF But don't take our word for it. Call 1-800-806-BABY for an appointment to see what the New Life Center at Providence Park has to offer expectant families.

We Sell & Service These Fine Lennox Products

The Lennox G26...high efficiency comfort at an economical price!
Designed to produce more heat per energy dollar, the Lennox G26 gas furnace brings a new level of economical heating to your home. With a minimum efficiency rating of 90%, you'll increase your comfort without increasing your cost of living. And because it's easily serviced, the G26 will save you money for years to come.

A Breath of Fresh Air
Now homeowners can breathe a whole lot easier because the Lennox EAC12 whole house electronic air cleaner is up to 10 times more efficient than other types of air filters. And it costs just pennies a day to operate!
The EAC12 removes up to 98% of unwanted pollutants in the air—like pollen, dust and bacteria and up to 75% of cigarette and cooking smoke. The result is cleaner, fresher, healthier air in your home.

Humidispray® Revitalizes Indoor Air Automatically
When indoor air is warmed, its relative humidity goes down. Often it gets dryer than even desert air. Its low relative humidity gives it a noticeably hard, uncomfortable edge, and you may feel cooler than you should.
A Lennox Humidispray humidifier takes the harshness out by automatically evaporating up to 18 gallons of air-softening moisture each day and distributes it to every room of your home through your ducted heating system.
The watertight cabinet with built-in drain won't rust or corrode, and a large service panel makes cleaning easy. Operating and maintenance instructions are permanently molded on the inside for easy reference.

Cranbrook tours available

The Cranbrook campus in Bloomfield Hills is open for guided tours every Friday through Aug. 26.

Situated on the north side of Lone Pine Road west of Telegraph, Cranbrook features the United States of America's largest collection of outdoor sculptures by Swedish master Carl Milles as well as several buildings designed by Eliel Saarinen and Albert Kahn.

Visitors can learn about Cranbrook's history and see many spaces not usually open to public during the 90-minute walking tour.

The fee is $6, which includes admission to the art museum. Tours depart from the Academy of Art parking lot at 1221 N. Woodward Ave. For more information, call (810) 645-3145.

College info program offered

The Schoolcraft College Women's Resource Center offers a program for people thinking about attending college 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 3, in the Liberal Arts Building, room 200.

Topics include academic programs, financial aid and support services. Teachers from the business, liberal arts, computer science, health care, child care, technical, fine arts and academic options departments will attend.

A campus tour will take place. The fee is $5. Call 462-4443.

Science center has film

The Detroit Science Center will show a 40-minute movie called "The Discoverers" through Jan. 16.

The film gives the audience a fresh view of science in action. Navigate the sea in Tierra del Fuego with Ferdinand Magellan, then skim over the surface of Venus on the Magellan spacecraft. Witness Maria Sanz de Sautuola's discovery of cave paintings, then swim with the dolphins as a doctor examines human intelligence in relation to other species. Participate in experiments with Isaac Newton. See the Aurora Borealis in Alaska.

The movie is shown daily. The center is open 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Admission is free for people up to 3 years old, $4.50 for people 4-12 years old, $6.50 for people 13-54 years old and $4.50 for people 55 and older.

The location of the science center is 5020 John R at Warren behind the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Young swimmers take to the water

■Local youngsters have an opportunity to learn how to swim in Plymouth-Canton Community Education swimming lessons. More than 1,000 will go through the program this summer.

BY JILL HALPIN
STAFF WRITER

If you live in Michigan, chances are good that at some point in your life you're going to come in contact with water. And in that case, you'd better know what to do. So says Jean Pritchard, head of Plymouth-Canton Community Education's swimming lessons.

"Living here, you've got access to water everywhere. Everyone should know basic water safety," she said. Pritchard, who has been running the program for the past three years, is doing her best to make sure that people do.

This summer, more than 1,000 youngsters will go through Pritchard's Red Cross swimming program. From learning how to put your face in the water to doing a proper three-step approach dive, students ages 4 through their teens will learn a wide range of swimming skills.

"These are skills that will last a lifetime. The students are learning a lifelong recreational activity and a great form of exercise that will last them right up to the end," said Pritchard.

In addition to learning how to swim, the classes offer students a chance for Red Cross certification. Swimming lessons are designed in a seven-level system according to Red Cross guidelines. Students progress through each level as they demonstrate proficiency in each skills area, Pritchard said.

Classes, which are offered during two three week summer sessions, last one half hour for the beginners and to full hour for advanced levels. At level one, swimmers age 4 and up learn basic water exploration and elements of a beginning stroke. Personal safety and entering and exiting a pool area are also stressed. At level two, swimmers learn primary skills such as the front crawl and basic diving. To obtain level seven certification, swimmers must complete a 500-yard swim (20 laps) using the front crawl, the back crawl, the breast stroke, the side stroke and the butterfly. Although the requirements are rigid, students are able to complete them.

"We tend to be a little stingy in handing these out, but we do have students who reach this level," said Prichard. She said that the Red Cross changed the program a year ago to encourage competitive swimming among young people and with it, the requirements for certification.

In her years as swimming coach at Central Middle school and as coach of the Plymouth-Canton Cruisers swim team, she has seen a surge in the popularity of swimming among young people. "Kids are going into this at an early age. It is really picking up," she said.

Pritchard said swimming is popular among kids and parents because of the personal benefits it offers. The program is a self-esteem booster because the students can realize their achievements. She also cites the low teacher-to-pupil ratio as helpful to students.

"I've heard from many parents and elementary teachers that swimming is a good developmental activity for kids because it helps with coordination," she said.

Although Courtney Edgar of Canton did not reach level seven, the Canton second-grader did reach level two — and went off the diving board for the first time.

"I wasn't scared. I liked it a lot," Courtney said of her experience with the diving board.

Her mother, Kim Edgar, was also pleased with the swimming lessons. "I am really happy with the lessons. Courtney went from being somewhat afraid of the water to being a total fish, she just loves the water," Edgar said.

OPINION

County commission

Straub best in Democratic primary race

Voters in Canton's 11th District Democratic primary for Wayne County Commissioner should pull the lever for Len Straub, a Huron Township business owner.

Straub is pitted against Ken Warfield, mayor of the city of Wayne, with the winner facing Bruce Patterson of Canton in the November general election. Patterson has no opposition in the primary.

The 11th District includes Canton, Huron, Sumpter and Van Buren townships, and the cities of Belleville, Romulus and Wayne.

Straub would be an advocate for the district, which he contends has been underrepresented on the county commission. He said: "Everything north of Joy Road is sugar-coated. They have good roads," while south of Joy has been forgotten and has more than its share of landfills, noise from Metro Airport and bad roads.

Another top issue is I-275. Straub contends that an experimental construction process was used when it was built and that it hasn't worked out. He said it's now time to fix it.

Straub also has brought up the issue of chemical contamination in Belleville Lake in Van Buren Township. He has contacted the Environmental Protection Agency about the issue.

Democrats in Canton looking for a candidate unafraid to raise issues and be a vigorous voice for the 11th County Commission District should vote for Staub on Aug. 2.

Griffin best in Senate primary

The southern portion of Canton will have a new 8th District state senator on Jan. 1 due to the retirement of Sen. William Faust.

The best choice for Democratic voters in the Aug. 2 primary is Westland City Councilman Charles "Trav" Griffin, who has compiled an enviable record during 24 years as a board of education trustee, city councilman, mayor, and chairman of the Conference of Western Wayne, a group formed nearly 20 years ago by elected officials of cities, townships and villages to discuss and propose solutions to regional problems.

Griffin is running against Van Buren Township Supervisor David Jacokes in the Aug. 2 primary, with the winner facing a tough general election against Republican Canton Township Clerk Loren Bennett, who is unopposed in the GOP primary.

Griffin is a former Westland mayor and a council member who has dealt with problems from both the administrative and legislative perspectives.

There is a down side. Griffin is a staff member of the Michigan Education Association and we have reservations about such ties. However, he would resign that job, if elected to the senate.

While education is a major issue for Griffin, he isn't a one trick pony. He has clearly thought through a number of other major state problems, such as crime, job creation, and reducing the state tax burden on small businesses.

The bottom line is that Canton and the balance of the district need someone in the state Senate who can identify problems that concern people, develop solutions, and work with other lawmakers in getting important legislation enacted. We believe Griffin can do the job.

Boak, Lowe are good choices

Voters in Canton and Plymouth will decide Aug. 2 on which two candidates will face off in November for the 35th District Court judgeship.

The race to succeed retiring Judge James Garber has attracted 11 candidates from the Plymouth, Canton and Northville areas. The judgeship pays $100,000 annually.

Stephen Boak of Plymouth is the best candidate, with a strong background in public and private law. Also, he has a temperament well-suited for the district court judgeship.

Voters should also consider Ron Lowe who has a similar background and temperament.

Boak has worked as a prosecutor with the Wayne County Prosecutor's office and as a private attorney. Also, he has other experiences from which he can draw. He served in the U.S. Army Reserves and has been active in local politics.

Also, Boak knows the role a district court should play in the community. He's aware that most district court cases are the result of human problems.

Lowe understands the role played by a district court judge. He has been active in community affairs, donating his time to Rotary Club projects and is active as a performer at storytelling events.

Lowe is in private practice and also serves as the part-time attorney for the city of Plymouth. In that capacity, he has been a solid performer, a tough task given the often highly political nature of the job.

Boak is the best candidate for 35th District Court, with the skills and abilities to do the job and is capable of being a community leader.

The primary is Tuesday, Aug. 2. Remember to vote.

Wilbanks, Geiss best in 13th

Voters in the 13th Congressional District, which includes Canton, have a good selection of candidates in the Democratic and Republican primary contests.

The best of the pack are Cynthia Wilbanks in the Republican primary and David Geiss in the Democratic race.

Wilbanks, 43, is a former aide to U.S. Rep. Carl Pursell and has governmental experience, proven leadership ability and a real working knowledge of the 13th District.

Geiss, 52, is a former aide to U.S. Rep. William Ford who sparked the race when he announced his retirement after 30 years in office.

A self-described blue-collar Democrat, Geiss is pragmatic and knows the issues.

The primary is key to both parties. Election day is Tuesday, Aug. 2.

Election signs

Judge race: Signs used by Ron Lowe in his race for 35th District Court judge have raised questions. Critics contend the term "criminals beware" isn't proper. The signs are being used in Plymouth and Canton, communities served by the court. There are 11 candidates in the race.

Letters

Voters beware

I am a lawyer who lives and practices in Ann Arbor. While driving through Plymouth, I saw lawn signs of numerous candidates for the 35th District Court judge.

One candidate's signs struck me as being irregular, Ronald Lowe's signs proclaiming "Criminals Beware." Over my 18 years of practice, I have seen different signs by numerous candidates for judicial office, but I have never seen a sign even remotely resembling Mr. Lowe's "tough on criminals" stance. My immediate reaction was that his sign must violate the Michigan Judicial Canons of Ethics.

I assume that Mr. Lowe means to convey that "criminals" in his court had better watch out because he is going to be a harsh sentencer. This would seem to be a smart ploy in view of the opinion polls showing crime to be the number one concern of the public. However, there are two problems with Mr. Lowe's strategy.

First, Mr. Lowe's signs violate the Michigan Judicial Canons of Ethics. The State Bar of Michigan's Professional and Judicial Ethics Committee issued a formal opinion in 1980 making clear inappropriateness of Mr. Lowe's tactics:

A candidate for judicial office is prohibited under Canon 7 of the Michigan Code of Judicial Conduct from employing the phrase "strict sentencing philosophy." A candidate may discuss his sentencing philosophy so long as he takes care not to suggest a predisposition toward strict or lenient sentencing.

I fail to see a distinction between the phrase "strict sentencing philosophy," and "Criminals Beware." A citizen reading Mr. Lowe's signs can only conclude that he is promising that if he is elected, he will be tough on criminals. If Mr. Lowe were running for Wayne County Prosecutor, I could understand his stance. However, a judge is neither a prosecutor nor defense attorney. He or she is supposed to be a neutral arbiter who must be fair to both sides in cases. In fact, a judge often sits as the finder of fact (like a jury) in district court non-jury trials.

Second, a district judge does not preside over trials and does not sentence "dangerous criminals." A district judge does not handle felony trials (murders, robberies, serious assaults, rapes, burglaries, etc.) or felony sentences. The only criminal trials and sentences that a district judge handles are misdemeanors, which are crimes generally having a maximum penalty of 90 days in jail. The typical criminal defendant in District Court is the typical citizen of Plymouth, Northville and Canton Township who is accused of a driving offense, an ordinance violation, or shoplifting.

The voters for the 35th District Court judges should beware of Mr. Lowe's signs and tactics.

Don Ferris, Ann Arbor

Judicial experience

I wish to correct the statement in the July 21 endorsement article that none of the judicial candidates has served as a judge. I have served in a judicial capacity for the administrative agencies of the Office of Racing Commissioner and Public Service Commission and as a panalist for the Attorney Discipline Board.

This information was presented to the Observer prior to my interview with Kevin Brown and Jeff Counts.

Thank you for noting the mistake.

Carol Levitte, Plymouth

Judge race

When I look at a candidate for a judgeship, there are several criteria which I consider.

A person's community involvement is extremely important. It is a measure of one's commitment to fellow citizens, regard for the community, and desire to give freely of time to help to improve our neighborhoods.

I look at the individual's professional standing and integrity; how the person is rated by peers within their profession. Is the individual willing to stand up for their beliefs?

I look at character. Does the person treat others with respect, fairness, and kindness? Can the individual be counted on to study and become informed on a particular problem; and then to formulate a just, fair, and ethical decision without regard for personal, financial, or partisan interests?

In my opinion, these are the important qualities in evaluating a judicial candidate.

I am proud to be a member of the Plymouth Republican Club and applaud its effort to inform voters, through its Judicial Forum, on the commitment and character of all candidates in the non-partisan race for Judge of the 35th District Court.

Endorsed

When I was active in the Plymouth-Northville area in the Republican Party for over 38 years, I always tried to campaign and work for candidates I felt were most qualified for the positions. If I were still living there, I know I would be backing both Cynthia Wilbanks for U.S. Congress, and Gerald Law for State Representative.

I send greetings to all the friends and acquaintances in Plymouth, we are enjoying the rural life near Paw Paw, Mich. We do treasure all the friendships we made through the years and urge everyone to vote in the primary election on Aug. 2 and especially to vote for Wilbanks and Law.

Points of View

Ford responds

In January 1995, I will complete 40 years of public service, 30 of them as a member of Congress.

My name has been on the ballot in 36 primary and general elections during those years, so the tactics of last-minute election mudslinging, coming as it usually does, within days of the primary election and leaving the person who is the victim of it with no chance to respond, is not new or surprising.

That, however, does not temper the feelings of indignation that I experienced when this recently occurred. And, while I am not a candidate in the Democratic primary, the mud was flung at Mr. David Geiss, who is one of several Democrats running to fill my office when I leave. Unfortunately, a story that appeared in the Detroit Free Press on Thursday, July 21, 1994, smeared me as well.

At the center of this story is the belief in the mind of the Free Press reporter that the car that was rented on my behalf by employees of mine was rented for my personal — not official — use. The reporter reached that conclusion despite my attempt to show him clearly documented facts indicating otherwise.

When I was in the district on official business, one of the events I participated in was the Sumpter Township Countryfest Parade at noon. I was also scheduled for a second parade in Livonia with the U.S. Army 70th Division Training. Appearing in a parade is considered by the rules of the House of Representatives to be an official action by a member of Congress.

On July 15, 1993, an employee of my Wayne office spoke with a person at Discount Auto and Truck Rental (Discount) at Detroit Metropolitan Airport where I and employees on my staff on official business had been renting cars. Apparently following the instruction of the local office of the agency, my employee was told that a credit card number was necessary to reserve a car. I now find that this generally happened on most occasions.

I had rented cars from this rental outlet many times before and, indeed, continued renting from them many times thereafter.

When I am in Michigan, a car is generally picked up by one of my employees, who meets me at the airport. The car is then used to drive me to scheduled appointments and events of an official nature.

The fact that this trip was official cannot be questioned. Prior to this weekend, and before the car was even rented, a news advisory was sent to 38 newspapers, radio and television stations that cover the 13th District outlining the events I would be attending in an official capacity. This advisory included information on each event — the purpose of my participation in an official capacity representing the 13th District, the events' locations, times, and the name of a local contact person for further information.

After the Sumpter parade, we discovered that it was too late to participate in the Livonia event. I was taken directly to Metro Airport to return to Washington. By telephone, we notified parade organizers in Livonia that I would have to return to Washington to participate in budget meetings that were going on at that time. The rental car was used to take me to the airport and then my administrative assistant, Mr. Geiss, went on my behalf to a meeting with a representative of the University of Michigan-Dearborn to discuss hiring students as interns in my office — another official function.

While meeting with this person the car was at the Ramada Heritage Center. Despite being locked and attended, the car was stolen sometime after 9 p.m.

The theft was reported immediately to the Southgate Police Department. Early Sunday morning, Mr. Geiss reported the theft to Discount. Later that morning, Mr. Geiss dropped the off the keys to the car at Discount on his way to the airport to return to Washington.

We then notified the U.S. House of Representatives House Administration Committee and the Military Traffic Management Command (MTMC) of the theft. The MTMC took over the matter, advising me that they would contact Discount and explain their contract with that agency.

On Oct. 1, the office of the Staff Judge Advocate advised my office in writing that Discount Car and Truck Rentals had requested that it be reimbursed for the loss of the car rental. The Judge Advocate cited the rental agreement with car companies, including this one, and the terms of the MTMC/Discount agreement which govern official rentals.

On the basis of this communication, we had every reason to believe that this unfortunate matter was closed, and that it had been settled between Discount and MTMC. This was confirmed by a copy forwarded to me of a Oct. 14 letter from the Judge Advocate to Michael S. Cafferty, an attorney apparently representing Discount Car and Truck Rental, repeating the information they had given to me. It was reiterated that there was a contractual obligation of Discount.

On Nov. 16, I received a copy of another letter from the Department of the Army to Deborah A. Pecherski, vice president of Discount, advising her of all of the above. I believed that this disposed of the matter and heard no more about it from either the people at Discount or the Army or anyone else until my staff told me last week that a Detroit Free Press reporter was calling them asking questions about the incident. On Monday, July 18, 1994, the reporter faxed a letter to my staff threatening to run a story alleging that I had changed stories about the purpose of the car unless we responded to him immediately.

I called the newspaper editor which resulted in a phone call from the reporter to me the morning of Wednesday, July 20. During the conversation, I told the reporter that he had made a number of errors and if he would send me the questions he wanted answered, I would be more than happy answer them.

The reporter sent me a faxed list of questions that afternoon. There was no opportunity for me to even see the questions until 8 p.m. that evening in light of the business of the Congress. Shortly after reading the questions for the first time, I learned that the Free Press story had been published that evening for the next day's edition, I was further shocked to see the article claiming that I had refused to cooperate in its writing.

But for the fact that this story ran when it did — in close proximity to the primary where Democratic candidates are running to succeed me in Congress — there would be no story.

I feel badly that the operators of the Romulus car agency lost money as a result of this theft. But, the fact is that the car was very clearly rented for official business and under the terms of the agreement that Discount negotiated with the Federal government, they are liable for its theft. It should be noted that the master contract between the Federal government and car rental agencies specifically prohibits me or my employees from taking out car insurance.

That is the story of the mysterious car — plain vanilla and simple.

I have spent most of my adult life in public service. I will not be leaving my children money, but I will be leaving them my good name. I refuse to allow this kind of politically motivated mudslinging to scar an otherwise perfect record.

William D. Ford, member of Congress

Sign wars

Imagine a quiet afternoon in Plymouth. You are working in the garden and your husband is mowing the lawn. Suddenly, a man begins shouting from the left turn lane on Sheldon Road. Your husband turns off the mower so that he can hear what the man is saying, thinking that perhaps it is a stranger needing directions. But it is not. The man screams that you have a political sign on public property. Your husband explains that he will take care of it. The man responds that if he does not remove it immediately he is calling the police.

The police arrive in about two minutes telling my husband and myself that a complaint has been called in about a political sign. Call me silly, but I though the police were here to protect us from rapists, muggers and murderers, but it seems as if in our town the police are at the beck and call of the small-minded and petty.

Imagine my shock and surprise when I learned that this complaint was lodged by a city commissioner, Bill McAninch. This is a man supposedly dedicated to serving the city of Plymouth and its citizens. I found that he lives only two doors down from us. We have lived here 10 years and never once has he spoken to us. In a mean-spirited and small display of power, he forced a Plymouth policeman to be dispatched to an essentially serene non-crime scene to prove a point.

One has to wonder how Mr. McAninch represents our city once one has seen him in action on a quiet Saturday afternoon. One must also wonder how he treats anyone who opposes him in political disagreements if he is this vindictive toward someone that he doesn't even know. Needless to say, the three voters in our house will be looking for someone a little calmer than Mr. McAninch to support in the next city election.

Carla Barrett, Plymouth

Misrepresented

Recently Dennis Shrewsbury, a candidate for the 35th District Court Judge, mailed a piece of campaign literature that fundamentally misrepresents his support and qualifications for this office.

Dennis has twice included my photograph in his campaign literature and indicated within the caption that I am a Schoolcraft College Trustee. The photograph was taken in early December at a community activity in Kellogg Park. My participation had nothing to do with my role at Schoolcraft College and there was no suggestion that this photograph would be used in campaign literature. Further, Mr. Shrewsbury never asked my permission or informed me that he would be using my photograph in his literature.

Even more disturbing, Shrewsbury was well aware that I am supporting Ron Lowe for the 35th District Court Judge. Ron is not only well-qualified for this position, but he is my friend and one of the most principled and ethical people I know. My support for Lowe is enthusiastic and it disappoints me that Shrewsbury would repeatedly use my photograph, and those of other community leaders and elected officials, although I am clearly supporting another candidate.

Another example of Dennis' distortions is an even more clear ethical lapse that should cause anyone considering voting for Shrewsbury to rethink their position.

In the same campaign brochure, Dennis touts his recent "well qualified" rating by the Detroit Bar Association and claims he has received the "highest rating in this race for the 35th District Court judge."

Shrewsbury then lists the DBA ratings of six other candidates whose ratings are lower than his own. While it might appear that he is thoughtfully allowing us to compare ratings of all of the candidates, in fact, he has left out three candidates who received ratings equal to his own — Steve Boak, Carol Levitte, and Ron Lowe.

Shrewsbury's pattern of misrepresentation in this campaign should not be condoned from a candidate for judicial or other elective office. It is equally disturbing because Dennis has established a fine reputation as a city commissioner who cares deeply about the Plymouth-Canton community. Dennis can do better and we can do better in our choice for judge.

Philip Power

Next Tuesday is voting day in Michigan's most crowded primary election since 1978.

The Democratic field to select a challenger for incumbent Gov. John Engler is crowded: Lynn Jondahl, Larry Owen, Debbie Stabenow and Howard Wolpe.

And no less than eight candidates are running for the U.S. Senate seat to be vacated by Don Riegle! On the Democratic side we have Bill Brodhead, Bob Carr, Joel Ferguson, John Kelly, Carl Marlinga and Lana Pollack, while the GOP race is between Spencer Abraham and Ronna Romney.

My mind goes back to 1978 in part because of the crowded Democratic field to challenge incumbent U.S. Sen. Bob Griffin — six in all — and in part because I was one of the candidates. Although I wound up losing — I ran second to Carl Levin, now in his third Senate term — the race was a remarkable experience that I will cherish for the rest of my life.

As you think about how best to cast your vote next Tuesday, I urge you to pause for a moment to reflect on what these 13 candidates are going through just now.

First, running for statewide office is hard physical work.

You're up before dawn to campaign at a plant gate, then walking door-to-door in a nearby neighborhood. Then off to a radio station for an interview before a speech at a fund-raising lunch. Then on the road to get to a parade, followed by a couple of hours on the phone trying to raise more money. Then two or three more speeches interspersed with more plant gates, and finally a meeting with your staff, followed by bed well after midnight.

Then you do the same thing the next day. And the next. And the next, until election day.

The process is not only physically tough, it's emotionally grinding. You are out there, warts and all, in theory asking folks to judge your candidacy as a politician but in practice exposing yourself to ultimate evaluation as a person. You have to be "on" each time you enter a room, give a speech, knock on somebody's door. There's not much room for a mistake.

Some days, I felt that literally the only place I could get some support and collect myself for the next encounter was in the campaign station wagon, driving in blessed privacy to the next event.

The process of campaigning, however, goes beyond the educational. It is transforming in a way that changes forever part of the personality of every candidate I have ever talked to about the process.

When you go door-to-door or give a speech to try to raise money, you butt up against another living citizen with his or her own needs and fears, priorities and angers. Repeat the experience countless times across the entire state, and you wind up with an internalized sense of what is on the minds of the people of Michigan that is so immediate it is practically physical.

I remember deciding to campaign for 24 hours straight in Detroit. I went to churches and feeding centers. I shook hands at plant gates and in pool halls. I talked to winos in the Cass Corridor and people standing in line at the MESC, waiting for their unemployment checks.

By the time dawn broke the next day, I was near exhaustion. Leaving one last near-deserted park and responding to the mixture of desolation and every-day divinity I had experienced in a deteriorating city, I broke into tears. I never regarded Detroit and its struggles in the same way again.

So as you wade through the political bombast and media clutter over the coming days, try to fight off the natural instinct to cynicism and indifference. What you are seeing is the messy power of democracy at work, affecting most powerfully the hearts and souls of the candidates themselves as they transform themselves from ambitious politicians to representatives of the people.

Scholarships available for prospective teachers

Madonna University has more than $100,000 to use for scholarships for students in the Science Teacher Education Program.

By participating in Project STEP, students can get bachelor's degrees and certificates in elementary education.

The STEP curriculum includes biology, astronomy, physics, chemistry, oceanography and earth science. Each student will be assigned a mentor and receive first-hand classroom experience. The mentors are all elementary science teachers in area school districts.

The program, now in its fifth year, provides instruction in the latest knowledge, skills and activities to be used in elementary classrooms.

Fall classes will begin on Tuesday, Sept. 6. Transfer students are welcome, and day and evening classes are available.

For more information about the program, or to apply for a scholarship, call the college of science and mathematics at 591-5021.

All-star gridder

No, it won't be quite as impressive playing the annual high school all-star football game at Lansing Sexton High School instead of at Spartan Stadium, which is being remodeled.

But 88 of the best prep players in the state are still gathered together in Lansing for the game, including Rob Shepley of Plymouth Salem.

The 6-foot-2, 235-pound linebacker/defensive lineman brings impressive credentials with him into the game. First and foremost, he's the only four-year letter winner in Salem history, which in itself is impressive.

In his senior season at Salem, he was injured but still played — at linebacker and defensive line (41 tackles, two sacks, one interception) on defense and at fullback on offense (577 yards rushing, seven touchdowns).

Shepley

Shepley will play defensive line for the East team Saturday. Pre-game announcements and introductions begin at 1:20 p.m., with kickoff scheduled for 1:35 p.m.

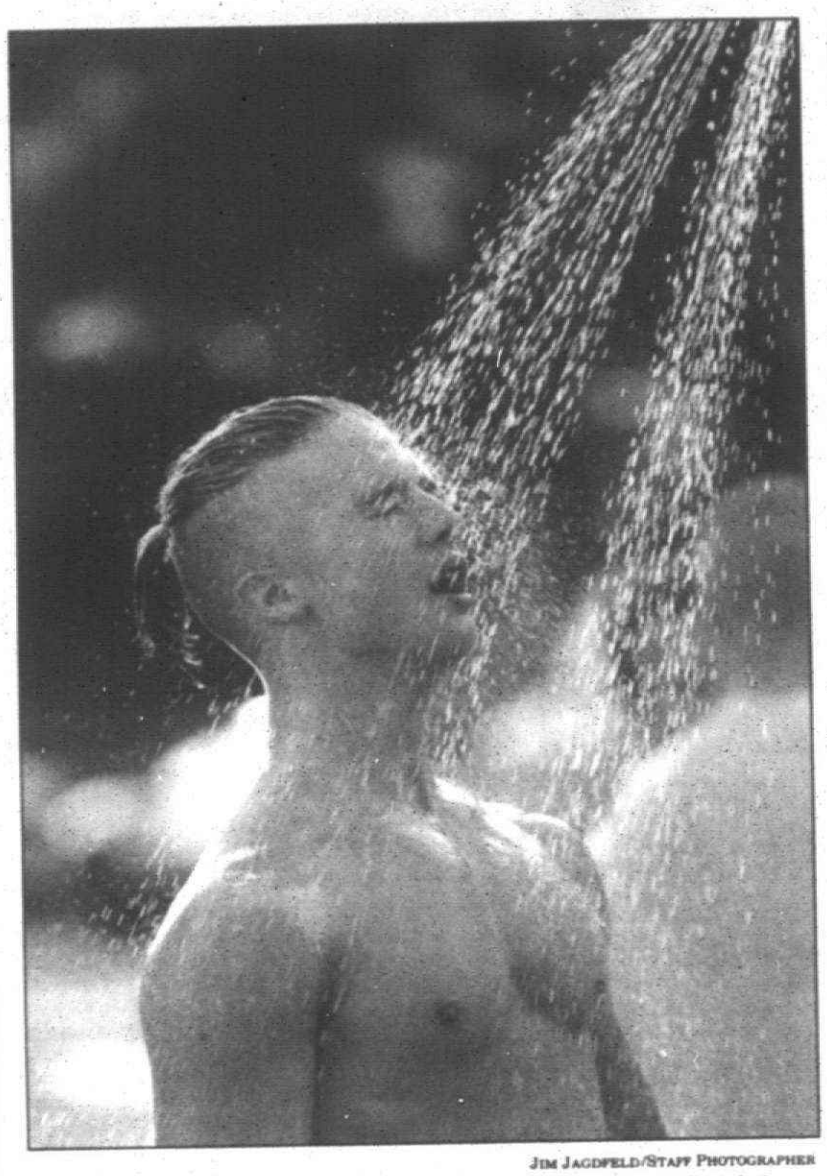

The game is hosted by the Michigan High School Football Coaches Association and features only those players who have already graduated from high school. In addition, a school may be represented by no more than one player.

This will be the 14th annual all-star game. The East has won seven times, including last year's contest by a 29-0 margin.

Other Observer-area players competing are defensive back Nick Burgess of Farmington Harrison; wide receiver Mark Kalaj of Livonia Clarenceville; center Brandon Smith of Walled Lake Central; linebacker Mike Bint from Westland John Glenn; defensive lineman Doug Brzezinski of Redford Catholic Central; wide receiver Brad Morgan of Livonia Stevenson; and kicker John Gibson of Walled Lake Western. All are on the East squad.

Aufdemberge top Roadrunner

Jim Jagdfeld/Staff Photographer

July shower: Anthony Kozadinos cools off after a hot finish in the Roadrunner Classic, one of Michigan's largest road races. The event drew more than 1,200 participants.

Some of the area's top racers converged on the streets of Northville Saturday night for the 11th annual Roadrunner Classic. Paul Aufdemberge, an Olympic Trials hopeful, was the overall champion in the 8-kilometer event.

By Brad Emons
Staff Writer

Paul Aufdemberge proved to be the class of the field Saturday night in the 11th annual Roadrunner Classic, held throughout the streets of Northville.

The 4.98-mile race, co-sponsored by the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, drew over 1,200 participants for the one-mile fun run, race walk and 8K event.

Aufdemberge, 29, of Ann Arbor, won his fifth road race of 1994. With average pace of 4 minutes, 55 seconds per mile, the store manager of Running Fit in Novi covered the course in 24:28. He was 27 seconds ahead of second-place finisher Rich Stark of Saline.

John Cress finished third in 25:18, while defending champion Rick Brauer was fourth in 25:28.

"No one up at the front apparently felt that good," Aufdemberge said. "My plan was to lay back. Maybe some of the other guys were tired from other races. I was surprised nobody pushed it early, but maybe it was because of the warm weather."

Aufdemberge, a graduate of Hillsdale College, had added incentive after finishing second in his previous race, the Ohio-Michigan 10K in Toledo.

"I was a little disappointed with my last race, so it was nice to win," he said. "It was a nice course. It was scenic and challenging, with a few hills. It also had quite a few turns.

"I ran this race a few years ago when it was in Livonia. Since our store (Running Fit) was one of the sponsors, this was one of my 'must dos.'" Aufdemberge plans to keep training, at least through the U.S. Olympic Trials in 1996.

"I still think I have some personal bests and that keeps me going," Aufdemberge said. "This year I've done some 30-minute 10Ks. Back in April I did a 28:41 on the track at the Penn Relays."

Another Ann Arbor runner, 31-year-old Laurel Park, won the women's division. She was 21st overall in 27:40 (5:35 per mile pace).

Karen Harvey, 21, of Ann Arbor, finished second in 28:26. Former Michigan State runner Sue Tatigian, 27, of Livonia, was third in 29:44.

Closing flourish saves Huskies

The Huskies earned their second win of the Metro Summer Hockey League season in a wild 13-11 shoot-out with the Lakers Sunday at Plymouth Ice Arena.

The victory upped the Huskies' record to 2-7; the Lakers slipped to 2-5-2.

Consecutive goals by Phil Saunders, Dave Smith, David Lambeth and Saunders again pushed the Lakers into a 10-7 lead with 2:52 left in the second period. But the Huskies rallied, scoring six-straight goals to take command.

Joe Sellers (from Plymouth/Ohio State) netted the game-tying goal with 11:29 remaining in the third period, then assisted on goals by Chris Smith and Josh Wiegand. Sellers finished with two goals and three assists; Smith had a goal and four assists, and Wiegand contributed two goals and three assists.

Dominic Catanzarite (Livonia Franklin) led the Huskies with three goals; he added one assist. Rich Kelly chipped in two goals and an assist, Jake Wiegand had a goal and two assists, and Damon Whitten and James Wheaton each scored goals.

The Lakers got three-goal hattricks from Saunders and David Scott; Scott added two assists. Smith totaled two goals and four assists, Lambeth had a goal and three assists, Chuck Vockler contributed a goal and two assists, Carl Schumacher finished with a goal and an assist, and Jason Weber picked up two assists.

Kris Kubalak was in goal for the Huskies; Kevin Brady and David Mitchell divided netminder duties for the Lakers.

■ BRONCOS 12, BULLDOGS 3: The Broncos maintained their unbeaten — and first place in the Eagle Conference — status by routing the Bulldogs in a one-sided battle between conference leaders Sunday at Plymouth.

Mark Pietila led the Broncos to their eighth win in nine games (with one tie) by scoring four goals and assisting on another. Ron Pietila added two goals and four assists, Eric Laho scored twice and had an assist, Steve Bartshe had two goals, Jim Pietila got a goal and two assists, and Keith Pietila had a goal and an assist.

Brad Cook contributed three assists and Kurt Pietila had two. Dave Roach and Jim Sexsmith split time in goal for the Broncos.

The Bulldogs slipped to 5-3-1 and out of first place in the Bakes Conference. Marc Chiappelli scored two of their three goals; Patrick Hultman got the other. Dustin Sventy assisted on two scores.

Brian Guillery and Shawn Greene shared time in goal.

■ WOLVERINES 18, SPARTANS 7: The high-scoring Wolverines got it going early against the Spartans and never let up Sunday at Plymouth.

Eric Bilyeu led the assault with four goals and an assist. Jesse Hubenschmidt and Scott Lock each scored three times, with Hubenschmidt adding four assists and Lock three.

Mike Kneiding, Tony Guzzo and Jim Hubenschmidt each collected two goals, with Kneiding getting five assists and Guzzo and Jim Hubenschmidt three apiece. Krikor Arman pitched in with a goal and four assists, Paul Schloss had a goal and two assists, and Justin Young and Adrian Straka added two assists each.

For the Spartans, Dave Bavol had two goals and three assists, Paul Fassbender scored twice and Bob Nagy had a goal and two assists. Kris Kane and Tim McConnell also scored goals.

Gary Rye was in goal for the Spartans; Thomas Best played goal for the Wolverines (6-3-1).

A REFRESHER COURSE IN HOME ECONOMICS.

We'd like to take this opportunity to see if your home is energy efficient as possible. Reach for a pencil. How many of your windows have storm windows? Are your walls insulated? Is your attic? Your basement? Your crawl space? Is your roof adequately insulated? Does your roof have skylights?

Now, grab a flashlight. Do you turn them off when you exit a room? Is your house excessively lit during the day? Next, check your thermostat. Odds are, it could be adjusting. And finally, see if there's draft coming from your windows and doors. If there is, you're getting valuable energy the right outside.

Now for the answers. By installing timers on your lights and television, they're simple to use, and inexpensive. Turn your thermostat up or down a few degrees. If you get cold, grab a sweater or a blanket. If you're hot, wear fewer clothes.

As for your windows and doors, a couple packages of $3.00 weather stripping should do the trick.

Each of these things will help save natural resources for the years to come. And if we can do that, we all deserve high marks.

Roadrunner from page 1B

"The last three or four races I've felt good," said Park, who this Saturday is marrying Rich Stark (second overall in the men's race). "I'm pretty excited because the last couple of races I've taken it up to another level."

Park most recently won the Ohio-Michigan 10K Run in 34:08.

"I've been working with Bill Stewart (out of Ann Arbor) and I feel like I'm getting stronger and still improving," Park said. "I did like the course. It was a pretty course. It was not quite as tough, as far as the hills, as I thought it would be. I've run in Northville, and there are some hills, like the one down by Northville Downs, that wasn't on the route. I did love the twists and turns. It keeps you sharp and doesn't let you daydream."

Park, who works as a student services assistant in the University of Michigan's undergraduate math department, has renewed her commitment to running.

"A few years ago I decided to make it a priority," said Park, a native of South Lyon who ran her junior and senior years at Michigan. "I've set some long-term goals. I've become more serious and consistent in my training, but it's not so drastic that I have to quit my day job.

"I'd like to qualify for the Olympic Trials in the 10,000 meters."

In other races, Greg Taylor took the 40-and-over men's masters division (27:05). Carol Poenisch was the women's masters champ (30:39).

Wildcats (6-4-0) scored three times in the last 10 minutes to ice their victory over the Spartans (4-5-1) Monday at Plymouth.

Tim McConnell tied it at 5-5 for the Spartans with his third goal of the game, coming with 11:15 left to play. But it took the Wildcats just 1:24 to recapture the lead, on Ian Crockford's goal; Kevin Berger made it 7-5 with 5:55 to go.

The Spartans closed to within one a minute later on a goal by Kris Peters, but they could not get the equalizer. Ben Blackwood's goal iced it for the Wildcats with 55 seconds left.

Other scorers for the winners were Jeff Mitchell, Rick Lance, Bobby Davis, Todd Kesler and James Mitchell. Crockford also had four assists, while Davis and James Mitchell each contributed three.

For the Spartans, Steve Nelson had a goal and two assists, Vic Decina had a goal and an assist, and Matthew Surowiec had two assists.

Gators chew up Niners; Stingers sweep Lancers

FAST-PITCH

The Livonia Gators on Tuesday swept a doubleheader against the host Northville Niners, the first-place team in the American Division of the Incredible Girls Fast Pitch League.

The Gators finished in second place in the American Division at 11-3. The Niners took first with a 12-4 record.

The Gators won the first game 5-3 behind the six-hit pitching of Alicia December, who also struck out four batters and walked six. Anne Roulo had an RBI double. Playing solid defense were Terry Spaw and Danielle Sockolosky.

The Gators won the second game 6-4, outhitting the opposition by the same count.

Jessie Jenkins was the winning pitcher, fanning two and walking one.

Jenelle Mazaris and December had consecutive singles to start a six-run fourth inning.

■ STINGERS 8-14, LANCERS 3-4: Becky Cannon (Lutheran Westland) went 5-for-6 with a double, leading the Garden City Stingers to a doubleheader sweep Tuesday against the Lancers at Stevenson High School.

The Stingers evened their record at 8-8.

Jeni Wilson scattered seven hits in the first game, an 8-3 win. Wilson struck out three.

Julie Caico (Plymouth Salem) went 2-for-3, including a double.

In the nightcap, a 14-4 victory, the Stingers had 11 hits to support the four-hit pitching of Mindie Chapman (Garden City).

Chapman also helped her cause in the second game, going 2-2 with five RBI. Kelly Stone (Garden City) and Becky Smith (Garden City) each stole home once.

■ ASTROS 10, COMETS 9: The Astros earned a double-header sweep Tuesday over the Clarenceville Comets, 10-9 and 16-1.

Jocelyn Sendelet had a bases-loaded double with two outs in the fifth inning to put the Astros up to stay, 10-8. Julie Buie won the first game on the mound and also went 2-2 with two RBI.

Chrissy Harkless was the winning pitcher in the second game and also had a two-run double. Kelly Kirk, Buie and Sendelet had two hits each. Buie drove in two runs.

The Astros are 10-6.

■ HORNETS 13, BOMBERS 1: The Farmington Hornets swept an Incredible Girls Fast Pitch League double-header Tuesday against the West Bloomfield Bombers, winning the first game by forfeit and the nightcap, 13-1.

The Hornets are 11-5.

Kristen Koziara, who pitched three innings, and Lindsey Tapp combined on a no-hitter in Game 2. Koziara also scored twice.

Corrine Gante and Amy Geary had two hits each. Geary drove in three runs and scored two runs and Gante also crossed the plate twice.

Jenny Myslinski was 1-for-3 with two RBI.

■ FANTASTICS 9, LASERS 7: The Farmington Fantastics swept a double-header Tuesday against the Livonia Lasers, starting with a 9-7 win in the opener.

The second game was a forfeit victory.

Dina Aon began the first game with a home run on the first pitch. Maureen Carolan, Alana Heikkinen and Melissa McDonald had one hit each. Alana Heikkinen pitched a three hitter for the Fantastics, 8-6 overall.

Garden City clinches 2nd place

Garden City Collegiate finished the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League regular season in championship form.

The first-year team, which was banned from the LCBL post-season playoffs for player eligibility violations, clinched second place with a 7-2 win over Westland Federation in the second game of a doubleheader Sunday at Westland John Glenn.

Westland won the first game 2-0 but Garden City's victory in the nightcap gave it 37 points and an 18-11-1 record. Westland finished the season in third place with 34 points (17-13).

Westland is headed to the four-team playoffs as the second seed behind first-place Hines Park Lincoln-Mercury. The third seed is Delwal (15-15, 30 points), followed by fourth-seed Little Caesars (14-16, 28 points).

The playoffs are held Friday through Sunday and Monday, if necessary, at Livonia's Ford Field.

See playoff schedule.

If Garden City won an appeal Wednesday afternoon with the LCBL, then Little Caesars, which finished fifth in the actual standings, likely would be the team out of the playoffs.

Garden City coach Fred Holton said regardless of how the appeal turns out, he's proud of the way his players finished out the regular season. Holton said he gave them the opportunity to turn in their uniforms when the ruling came down in the last week.

Garden City beat Westland two of three games over the weekend, starting with a 7-4 victory Friday.

"We had a vote, and I said, 'You tell me what we're going to do,' " he said. " 'Do we finish the season or walk away and say the hell with it?' They got real indignant and said we're going to play. The thing they can't do is take our 18-11-1 record from us."

After a 3-9 start, Garden City went 15-2-1 in its last 18 games.

Garden City's Dan Pydyn (Madonna University) was the winning pitcher in Sunday's final game, tossing a five-hitter with five strikeouts and no walks. Pydyn finished the season with a 5-1 record.

Doug Gaughan led Garden City with four hits in four at-bats and three RBI. Mark Rutherford (Livonia Churchill/Eastern Michigan) was 1-for-3 with a two-run home run.

Mark D'Antonio suffered the loss for Westland, scattering seven hits. He struck out five and walked six, allowing Garden City to jump to a 4-0 lead after two innings.

Westland won the first game behind the five-hit pitching of Brian Morrison (Westland John Glenn), who has given the Westland pitching staff a boost.

Morrison struck out five and walked one.

Westland scored single runs in the first and fourth innings against losing pitcher Justin Black (Garden City/Siena Heights). Andy Reynolds had an RBI single to score Peavey, who doubled, in the first.

Jeromey Cosby (John Glenn) reached base on a single in the fourth and later came home on a single by Rose.

Rutherford led Garden City's attack with two hits. Black experienced tough luck, scattering eight hits while striking out four and walking one.

On Friday, Rutherford threw a four-hitter with nine strikeouts and four walks to improve to 4-2 on the mound.

The Westland runs came on homers. D'Antonio crushed a three-run homer in the fourth and Lee Gardner added a solo shot in the sixth.

Brian Hicks (Redford Catholic Central) had a two-run homer for Garden City and finished with three RBI. Gaughan and Jason Holton (Garden City/Siena Heights) each went 2-4. Holton contributed an RBI.

■ DELWAL 6, WALTER'S 4: Delwal clinched third place, winning Monday's makeup game against Walter's Appliance on Matt Green's two-out two-run homer in the top of the seventh inning.

The teams had to wait through three rain delays, that lasted a combined 1 hour, 15 minutes, to finish the game.

Delwal finished the regular season with 30 points at 15-15, two points ahead of Little Caesars (14-16, 28 points).

Tim Holland was the losing pitcher for Walter's, which finished in sixth place at 12-17-1, 25 points.

Holland pitched only ⅔ of an inning, coming on in relief of starter Ed Valdez, who scattered seven hits and allowed four runs over 6⅓ innings.

Green's homer on a zero-and-two pitch went over the right-field fence at Ford Field and followed a double by Jeff Cielo.

Mike Pearl (Farmington Hills Harrison) earned the pitching victory, coming on in relief of Delwal starter John VanDenBrink.

Tom Gilbert had two singles for the winners. Pearl went 2-for-2 with an RBI. Terry Hayden had an RBI single in the sixth and Cielo had an RBI single in the fifth to score Dave Tykoski, who had tripled.

Walter's, which is missing the LCBL playoffs for the second-straight year after winning the playoff championship in 1992, swept Little Caesars twice on Sunday at Ford Field, 2-1 and 2-1.

Mike Zielinski was the winning pitcher in the first game and Jamie Oliver picked up the win in the second game.

Aaron Jones' two-run double sparked the first-game victory. Shawn Ponzak finished 2-for-4 at the plate.

Craig Peterson (Madonna) and Jeff Schaffer (Livonia Franklin/Wayne State) had RBI in the second game. Jones, Ponzak and Schaffer each went 2-4.

Walter's won three of its last four games.

"Once we learned we were out of the race everyone played real well," Walter's coach Harvey Weingarden said.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

■ PREMIER INDEED

The Plymouth Kicks premier under-14 boys soccer team made its trip to the Jeff Wyler Cincinnati Soccer Classic last weekend a worthwhile one by winning all five of its matches by shutout.

The Kicks won their tournament opener against the Queen City Magic (from Cincinnati) by a 10-0 margin. The Kopling (Ohio) Chaos were next; the Kicks prevailed, 2-0. After that was the Middletown (Ohio) Magic, who fell 4-0.

In the semifinal, the Kicks blanked the Xenia (Ohio) Bucks 3-0, setting up a rematch against the Magic in the championship match. The Kicks won, 7-0.

In their last three tournaments, the Kicks have posted 14-straight shutouts.

Team members are Jacob Gray, Patrick Griffin, Joe Hart, Andrew Kogut, Chris Longpre, Alan Lyskawa, Aaron MacDonald, Matt Maier, Jason Mayol, Andy Meyers, Aaron Rypkowski, Michael Slack, Brett Stinar, Nick Szczechowski, Dan Wielechowksi and Brian Wozniak. The team is coached by Paul Kogut, assisted by Dan Kogut and managed by Barb Kogut.

■ KOUFAX CHAMPS

The Plymouth-Canton 13-year-old Sandy Koufax baseball team ended up second in the Washtenaw Amateur Baseball Association with a 17-3 record — and an average of 17 runs scored a game, while allowing just four. The team also was third at the Grand Blanc Round-Robin Tournament last weekend, having beaten first-place Flushing and runner-up Grand Blanc.

■ HONORABLE MENTION

Plymouth Salem standout Xinning Li was honorable mention all-state in Class A tennis, which was selected by the board of directors of the Michigan High School Tennis Coaches Association at its semi-annual meeting July 9-10 in Cadillac.

A total of 17 players were named to the all-Class A team in singles, including Livonia Stevenson's Henrik Ellstrom and Northville's Matt Schwagle. Five more, including Li, were named honorable mention all-state in singles.

■ SPECIAL OLYMPIANS

More than 750 softball players and 22 golfers are expected to converge on the Canton Softball Center this weekend for the 1994 Michigan Special Olympics Summer Sports Classic.

This marks the sixth time the softball tournament, which has been held annually since 1982, has been in Canton. Play begins at 6 p.m. Friday, then resumes at 8:30 a.m. Saturday with closing ceremonies scheduled for 3:15 p.m.

A total of 51 teams are entered in the softball competition, which is part of the Michigan Special Olympics year-round program of sports training and competition for children and adults with mental impairments. The Wayne Civitan Club will serve as tournament host.

■ JUNIOR OPEN TENNIS

The Junior Open Tennis Tournament will be Aug. 5-6 at the Plymouth Canton HS tennis courts. There will be three age divisions for both boys and girls: 10-12, 13-15 and 16-18.

Entry fee is $10, which includes a T-shirt. Each entrant must supply a new can of USTA-approved tennis balls.

Tourney format is single elimination, best two-out-of-three sets. Registration deadline is 5 p.m. Wednesday; call 397-5110 for details.

Tatigian plans title defense at Heart run

By Charles McEwen
Special Writer
STAFF WRITER

Susan Tatigian usually does her best running in long distance races such as 10-milers, 20K's, half marathons and marathons. However, at last year's Heart of the Hills Run, the 27-year-old Livonia resident turned in one of her better performances in a shorter race, the 10K (6.2 miles).

Tatigian not only won the 10K, she also set a course record finishing in 38:10.

On Saturday, Tatigian plans to return to the Heart of the Hills Run, which begins at 8 a.m. at Bloomfield Hills Andover High School, to defend her title.

Endurance specialists like Tatigian usually do well in this race because the course features several substantial hills.

"(This race) probably has the most challenging 10K course in metro Detroit," said Tatigian. "It also has one of the prettiest courses in all of Michigan."

Tatigian wasn't the only runner to set a record last year. Rob Wood, 27, of Battle Creek, shattered the men's 10K record with a winning time of 31:50.

This year, the Heart of the Hills Run will again provide plenty of incentive for competitors to run fast and set records. The top male and female finishers will receive a $200 savings bond. If they set a course record they will take home an additional $100 savings bond. The second-place finishers win a $100 bond and third-place finishers win a $50 bond.

In the 5K, the winners receive a $100 bond and an additional $100 bond for setting a course record. Second place finishers win a $75 bond and third place finishers win a $50 bond.

Last year the eighth annual race not only featured its most competitive field, but its largest field as well with 959 runners competing, better than 200 more than its previous high.

Race day registration will be held 6:45-7:30 a.m. and costs $15. Andover High School is located on Long Lake Road just west of Telegraph. The run raises money for community youth assistance. Call 354-1177 for more information.

Rare hairy woodpecker visits feeder

NATURE TRAILS

TIMOTHY NOWICKI

We have a hairy woodpecker coming to our feeding station in the back yard. There has been one coming for several years actually, but only for short periods of time. Most of the time we have downy woodpeckers at the feeders.

When the hairy woodpecker visited I was reminded how similar it is to the downy woodpecker. I also remember how confusing it is for beginning birders to separate the two species. Though they are basically white below and black and white above, there are some features to help distinguish one species from the other.

Downy woodpeckers are definitely more common than the hairy woodpecker. In fact, according to Detroit Audubon Society Christmas Count data, seven downy woodpeckers are seen for every hairy woodpecker.

When the hairy woodpecker comes to our feeder we notice the difference in size compared with the more common downy woodpecker. The first thing we notice is the longer bill. Hairy woodpeckers have a bill that is almost as long as the head is wide. Downy woodpeckers have a shorter bill that would require about two bill lengths to measure one head width.

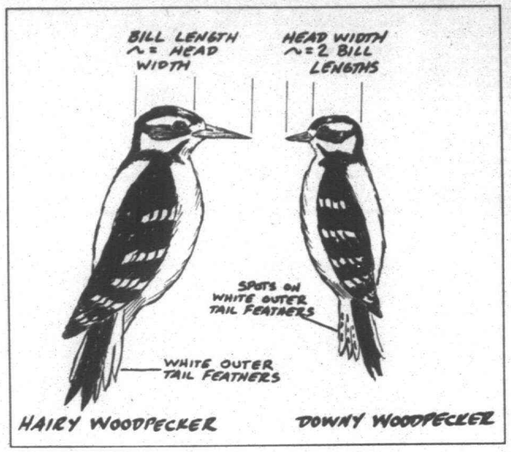

Body size is another feature to help distinguish between these two similarly colored birds. Downy woodpeckers are only about 6-inches long, while hairy woodpeckers are about 9-inches long.

Size and bill length are difficult to compare if both kinds of birds are not present, so look at the outer tail feathers for another distinguishing characteristic. The white outer tail feathers of the downy woodpecker have black spots on them. Hairy woodpeckers have all white outer tail feathers.

Their voices are different too. The larger hairy woodpecker has a deeper voice compared to the smaller downy woodpecker. If you become very familiar with the sound of the more common downy woodpecker you will be able to notice a difference when the hairy woodpecker arrives.

These two woodpeckers are just a couple of the "twins" of the bird world. House finch and purple finch, sharp-shinned hawk and Cooper's hawk, eastern meadowlark and western meadowlark are just some of the species that look very similiar to each other. Though they may look superficially similiar some searching should show something singular.

Tim Nowicki is a naturalist at Independence Oaks County Park in Oakland County. He lives in Livonia. You can leave him a message at 953-2047, Ext. 1874.

Rare bird: According to Detroit Audubon Society Christmas Count data, seven downy woodpeckers are seen for every hairy woodpecker. The hairy woodpecker is bigger than the downy woodpecker and comes with a longer bill

THE AGONY OF CONSTIPATION
Constipation is symptom that are often subject to individual interpretation by the physician or the patient. In practice its generally accepted that less than three bowel movements each week constitutes significant constipation. Causes of constipation can be related to dietary influence such as inadequate fiber intake or could be related to medications the patient takes such as pain medication, anti-depresents, or anti-hypertensive medications to name a few. Medical illness or physical alternation, hormonal, metabolic and neurological conditions are to be ruled out. Finally a digestive tract disorder particularly the colon is to be considered. Thorough investigation of the constipation should be pursued and the extent of the evaluation should be rested on the physicians decision. Management obviously would be aimed towards the removal of the cause of the constipation. Short term treatment with either dietary manipulation or pharmacological therapy might be needed but the long term objective is to restore a regular bowel motion pattern.

Elected to board

New trustee: David Brandon of Plymouth, president and CEO of Valassis Communications Inc., a Fortune 500 company in Livonia, has been elected to the St. Mary Hospital Board of Trustees. Brandon also serves on the Central Michigan University board of trustees and is president of the Brandon Foundation, a Michigan charitable organization.

Madonna University offers program

The daily operations of private practice and quality health care service often place increased demands upon physicians and dentists to know more than just how to diagnose and treat patients. "Medical professionals need to understand, control and manage their practice," said Charles Stahl, accounting and finance chairman and professor, Madonna University School of Business.

This specific business knowledge can be acquired through Madonna University's Medical and Dental Practice Executive Fellows Program, which will begin in September.

The only one of its kind in the United States to focus exclusively on private practice leadership, the program is conducted over a 20-month period. Participants will earn 30 semester hours in credits and upon completion will receive a master of science in business administration (MSBA) degree.

"Our first class to graduate from this program this past May consisted of 22 medical professionals," Stahl said. "This was a 100 percent retention and graduation rate. Based on the comments we received from assessment questionnaires, the participants were especially pleased with the applicability of the course content to their office practice."

Dr. Babu Paidipaty, director of Special Care Units and Respiratory Therapy at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia and a graduate of the first Executive Fellows Program, said that the course is an excellent one for any physician or dentist and better prepares them for changing health care in America.

"This is a comprehensive course on practice management. Medical schools, dental schools and residency programs do not touch on anything about management skills, leadership training, interpersonal relationships and patient satisfaction," said Paidipaty.

With a focus on the entrepreneurial aspect of private practice, seminars cover a wide range of business-related areas including economics and U.S. health care policies, computer applications, accounting and taxation, the legal and risk aspects of business, and the ethics of managing the practice.

To learn more about Madonna University's Medical and Dental Practice Executive Fellows Program, contact the School of Business, (313) 591-5117.

Playscape '94 showcases new works

Experience the creative process first-hand at Playscape '94, a festival featuring original works by local playwrights at the Hillberry Studio Theatre in Detroit. You won't want to miss these new works to be presented over three weekends.

STAFF WRITER

■ PREVIEW

Heartlande Theatre Company is presenting Playscape '94 its first festival of original works by local playwrights at Hillberry Studio Theatre in Detroit, Hancock at Cass in Detroit, July 28 to Aug. 14.

The festival will feature an evening of one-acts, three staged readings of full length plays, and three short theatrical pieces presented in repertory. Twenty performances of nine original works, written by six local playwrights, will grace the Studio's stage over the three weekend period. (See schedule below).

Tickets can be ordered by phone by calling (810) 433-1233. Tickets range in price from $12 for one acts, seniors and students $10; to a suggested $5 donation for staged readings. Discounts are available for parties of 20 or more.

"The magic found in theater that captivates us, the audience, begins with the art of the playwright," said HTC producer Kim Arnaut. "Playscape '94 will provide an opportunity for audiences to witness art in the making. Heartlande has long been involved in the development of original plays by local authors through its series of informal, public and stage readings. Playscape will serve as a culmination of a year-long development process on new works written primarily by local playwrights."

A company of 14 Michigan actors has been chosen to play the 34 roles represented in the nine theatrical works to be presented.

The one-acts will be directed by Divina Cook, a founding member of the Attic Theatre in Detroit who now lives in New York.

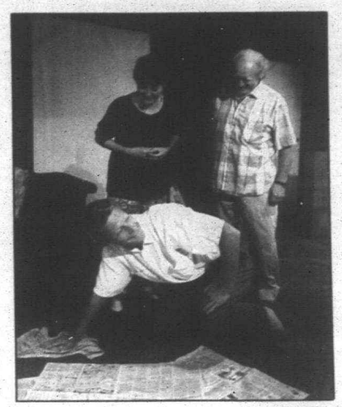

Kim T. Sharp who served as set designer for HTC's award-winning production of "A Piece of My Heart," last summer will again serve as set designer for the festival and will direct four of the readings.

Gail Susan Mack, HTC company member, will direct the remaining two staged readings.

Local participating playwrights include Elaine Kaiser of Livonia. Her full length play "Defect of Discretion" and one-act play, "Rosemary for Remembrance" will both be presented during the festival. Kaiser is a founding member of HTC and has been a part of its parent organization, Detroit Actors Studio, since 1987.

Jan Radcliff of Birmingham is a founding member of Heartlande Theatre Company and its parent organization Detroit Actors Studio, and has worked as both a film and stage actor in Detroit since 980. Her "Song of the Shaman" will receive its first public reading during Playscape '94.

Radcliff is being considered for an individual artist grant in playwrighting from the Michigan Council for the Arts. She served as producer of HTC's production of "A Piece of My Heart" by Shirley Lauro.

Theater festival spans three weekends

Here's a schedule, and description of the works to be presented by Heartlande Theatre Company during Playscape '94 at the Hilberry Studio Theatre in Detroit.

■ Thursday, July 28, 8 p.m. — Staged reading of "Song of Shaman," written by Jan Radcliff. "Song of Shaman" is about a mother and her daughter who redefine their relationship as they confront long-hidden family secrets.

■ Friday, July 29, 8 p.m. — One act plays, which include "Big Wheel Broken," "No Wine Before Its Time," and "Rosemary for Remembrance."

Big Wheel Broken," by Dennis E. North is about a painter who searches for new ways to connect with his friends, his family and his art after suffering a significant loss. "No Wine Before It's Time," by Sandra Morris, tells the story of a woman who examines her expectations and hopes as she's faced with the prospect of a new relationship. "Rosemary for Remembrance," by Elaine Kaiser, is about a family that finds that their love and commitment to each other sustains them through a life-transforming experience.

■ Saturday, July 30 — 5 p.m. staged reading of "Crimes of Omission," by Donald Cook, directed by Kim T. Sharp. In "Crimes of Omission" during a battle of wills between a psychiatrist and his patient, some closet doors are opened and deadly secrets spill out. At 8 p.m. one-act plays will be presented.

■ Sunday, July 31 — 4 p.m. staged reading of "Defect of Discretion," by Elaine Kaiser, directed by Gail Susan Mack. In this play a woman faces her past and her spirituality when her ex-husband re-enters her life requesting a surprising favor. At 7 p.m. one-act plays will be presented.

■ Wednesday, Aug. 3, 8 p.m. — staged reading of "Visiting Hours" and "The Barter," written and directed by Kim Sharp, these two plays, presented together, take the audience on a journey of self-discovery.

■ Thursday, Aug. 4, 8 p.m. — "Crimes of Omission."

■ Friday, Aug. 5, 8 p.m. — One-acts

■ Saturday, Aug. 6, — 5 p.m. "Defect of Discretion;" 8 p.m. One-acts.

■ Sunday, Aug. 7 — 4 p.m. "Song of Shaman;" 7 p.m. one-acts.

■ Wednesday, Aug. 10, 8 p.m. — "Visiting Hours," and "The Barter."

■ Thursday, Aug. 11, 8 p.m. — "Defect of Discretion."

■ Friday, Aug. 12, 8 p.m. — One-acts.

■ Saturday, Aug. 13, — 5 p.m. "Song of the Shaman;" 8 p.m. one-acts.

■ Sunday, Aug. 14, — 4 p.m. "Crimes of Omission;" 7 p.m. One-acts.

The other participating Michigan playwrights are Sandra Morris of Brigton, Dennis E. North of St. Clair Shores, and Donald Cook of Oak Park.

Gail Susan Mack of Livonia is the Theatre Director of the Creative and Performing Arts program (CAPA) at Churchill High School in Livonia, and has long been involved with the Livonia Theatre Guild as a free-lance director. She is a member of Heartlande Theatre Company and was involved in both lighting and sound for HTC's production of "A Piece of My Heart."

Kim T. Sharp has worked on new scripts for the last 10 years. Locally, he directed a reading of Birmingham playwright Kitty Dubin's script "Time's Up." In New York he worked with new scripts at the WPA theatre, New Dramatists, NYU, the Open Eye: New Stagings Theatre, The Directors Company and the former New Theatre of Brooklyn.

Divina Cook returns to Detroit to direct the one-acts for Heartlande's Playscape '94. Her last local directorial venture was the well-received "The Adventures of Stanley Tomorrow," at Detroit Repertory Theatre. Having recently worked at the Dallas Theatre Center, she returned to New York where she lives most of the year to concentrate on acting and writing. She has also appeared with Paul Sorvino, Dan Florek and Chris Noth on the television series "Law & Order." Al Pacino and Chris O'Donnell in the Academy-Award winning "Scent of a Woman," and appears in Ron Howard's film "The Paper."

■ Mitch Housey's, which specializes in prime rib, is celebrating it's 30th anniversary this week. The restaurant is at 28500 Schoolcraft, Livonia (313) 425-5520. Two of three original owners — Beverly Feuer and Mitchell G. Housey continue to operate the restaurant. Mitchell R. Housey, Mitch's dad passed away in 1989. "We try our best to provide good service, and a quality product," said Feuer. "We recently remodeled, everything is brand new."

■ Bebop to Birmingham this weekend for Jazzfest '94 starting 7:30 p.m. Thursday, July 28, with a concert featuring Alexander Zonjic in Shane Park, downtown Birmingham. The festival showcases some of metro Detroit's finest jazz musicians. Festival highlights include a Tribute to Stan Kenton by Johnny Trudell's Orchestra, 7:30 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. at the Community House, in downtown Birmingham. Tickets are $25.

Blues vocalist Joe Williams, and Straight Ahead, will present a concert 8 p.m. Saturday, July 30 at the Birmingham Theatre. Tickets are $30 and $25.

Concert tickets are on sale now at Ticketmaster locations, and the Community House, 380 South Bates Street. For information about Jazzfest '94 events, call the hotline, (810) 433-FEST.

Free concerts will be presented at Shain Park Saturday, July 30 and Sunday, July 31 starting at 11 a.m.

Festivities on Sunday, July 31 begin at 10 a.m. with a pancake breakfast at the Community House. The cost is $5 per person. At 11 a.m. Ortheia Barnes, the James Tatum Trio, and International Youth Gospel Choir will present a concert in Shain Park. Don't miss it.

■ Plymouth is hosting a music celebration that begins 5 p.m. Friday, July 29 with a Taste of Plymouth, downtown in the gathering, and continues to Sunday, July 31. While you're sampling foods from some of the city's finest restaurants that will be offered for sale, listen to the free blues concert in Kellogg Park. Festivities continue on Saturday with "Family Fun Day" starting at noon.

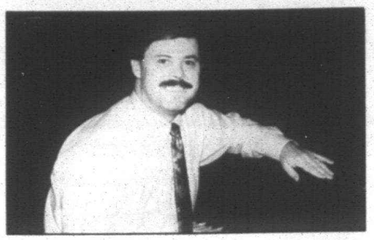

Keely Wygonik is editor of the Taste and Entertainment sections of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. She welcomes your calls and comments, (313) 953-2105, fax (313) 591-7279, or write: Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, Inc. 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, MI 48150.

Church hosts carillon concert

Christ Church Cranbrook Carillonneur Beverly Buchanan will perform her own compositions and arrangements for carillon, 4 p.m. Sunday, July 24 at Christ Church Cranbrook.

The recitals, which are free and open to the public, feature renowned carillonneurs from across the United States through Labor Day weekend.

Christ Church is on the corner of Cranbrook and Lone Pine Roads in Bloomfield Hills. Call (810) 644-5210 for information.

New director: Jim Whitten has been named director of the Livonia Civic Chorus and welcomes singers to the fall session.

Livonia Civic Chorus schedules fall rehearsal

The Livonia Civic Chorus will begin rehearsals for its fall season 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 13 at Frost Middle School on Stark Road in Livonia. All singers are welcome — no audition necessary. The Livonia Civic Chorus is sponsored in part by the Livonia Parks and Recreation department. For more information, call Jim Bumford at (313) 421-0527.

James A. Whitten has been named director of the Livonia Civic Chorus. Whitten was the founding father of the Farmington Community Chorus in 1980 and led that group until 1988.

He has participated in local musical theater both as a performer and director. He graduated from Western Michigan University with a bachelor's degree in music and is the choir director at Trinity Episcopal Church in Farmington Hills.

Whitten is not a stranger to the Livonia Civic Chorus, which is celebrating its 30th season this year. Whitten was a participating director for "Recreation Sings" during the 1980s in which community choruses from Farmington, Dearborn, Novi and Livonia, sponsored by their local parks and recreation departments, joined together for combined choral concerts.

Drum, bugle corps to compete

Eight drum and bugle corps will face the music during the Ypsilanti Summer Music Games, 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 2 in Eastern Michigan University's Rynearson Stadium.

Tickets are on sale now for $10 and can be bought at the Ypsilanti Area Visitors and Convention Bureau, 301 W. Michigan Aven, Suite 101 or by calling (313) 483-4444. The event will conclude with a fireworks display. Corps will perform from 7:30 to 9:36 p.m.

The festivities also include a free high school clinic, conducted by Walt Disney World Resort and the Magic of Orlando, for high school band members and directors at Ypsilanti High School's Shadford Field, 1885 Packard Road, 3:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 2.

For more information, call (313) 483-4444. Registration is required.

A free "standstill" performance where a corps stands in formation and performs its music will be held at noon, Aug. 2 in downtown Ann Arbor on Main Street between William and Washington.

The performance will feature the 12th Command from Taylor and Northern Aurora from Saginaw. Other participating corps include the Troopers, Casper, Wyo.; Magic of Orlando, Orlando Fla; Bluecoats, Canton, Ohio; Glassmen, Toledo, Ohio, Phanton Regiment, Rockford/Loves Park, Ill. and the 1994 world champions, Cadets of Bergen County, Bergen County, N.J.

Local participants include Catherine Konovaliv and Michelle Langley of Plymouth, who are members of the Bluecoats, and Jonathan Miler of Canton, a member of the Glassmen.

Corps consist of a maximum of 128 members who perform precision maneuvers and artistic choreography while playing music arranged especially for drum and bugle corps competition. In addition, each group includes a flag corps, which uses dance, visual props and flags to interpret the music.

Drum and bugle corps are made up of young men and women between the ages of 14 and 21 who dedicate a summer touring the United States performing in competitions sanctioned by Drum Corps International, a non-profit organization based in Illinois that governs drum corps competitions worldwide.

Ypsilanti's competition is one of many DCI competitions being held across the country as corps vie for a slot in the 1994 World Championships to be held Aug. 15-20 in Boston.

The thousands of youths participating will have traveled over 15,000 miles by the end of the summer, slept on many gymnasium floors at local schools, and performed before thousands of appreciative fans.

Some of the participants in the Ypsilanti competition will be staying at John Glenn High School in Westland, and Plymouth Salem High School. If you live near one of these schools, you'll probably hear the groups practicing on the football field.

What makes a drum corps different from a marching band is its instrumentation. Drum corps perform with drums and bugles, which come in eight different sizes and are pitched in the key of G.

Musical games: The Bluecoats of Canton, Ohio will perform during the Ypsilanti Summer Music Games on Aug. 2.

'Black Beauty' gallops into metro movie theaters

■ PREVIEW

It is the late 19th century. In a lantern-lit stable on Fanner Grey's estate in the heartland of England, a new life begins. Two tiny hooves appear in the semi-darkness, promptly followed by a gleaming white star set into the middle of the foal's forehead.

Black Beauty is born.

And the next two decades will thrust the horse on a personal odyssey taking him through good times and ill, good owners and bad, trusted friends and callous enemies, disasters both natural and man-made. For the rest of his life, the newcomer must depend almost entirely on humans. Trusting them, losing that trust — and getting it back again. From the beautiful lush green English countryside, to the tawdry, cobblestoned streets of London, Black Beauty will experience the best and worst of human nature, all the while seeking a safe place where he will be loved and treated with kindness.

Warner Bros.' "Black Beauty" opening Friday at metro Detroit movie theaters, is a sweeping adventure based on Anna Sewell's classic family novel. It was filmed entirely on location in Great Britain under the direction of Caroline Thompson, who also wrote the screenplay.

Although "Black Beauty" represents Thompson's debut as a director, she has already proven herself to be one of America's most celebrated and formidable screenwriters, with such acclaimed and successful motion pictures to her credits as "Edward Scissorhands," "The Addams Family," "Homeward Bound: The Incredible Journey," "The Secret Garden" and "Tim Burton's The Nightmare Before Christmas."

Since its publication in 1877, "Black Beauty" has gone on to delight each succeeding generation, losing nothing in the passage of time. Previous film versions have chosen to focus more on the human characters, with Black Beauty fading into the background.

Thompson returns to the book's roots in her adaptation. "Black Beauty" is not a rebel horse," she said. "He's an incredibly generous and patient spirit. I've always had enormous amounts of sympathy and empathy for animals. They can't really communicate with us, but on the other hand, they have no choice but to be with us. And that's Black Beauty's dilemma in the story."

"Black Beauty" is rated G, all ages admitted.

Lottery changes lives in romantic comedy

■ PREVIEW

All Charlie Lang (Nicolas Cage) wants out of life are a few simple things: To be a good cop and a helpful neighbor; to love his wife and start a family. Muriel Lang (Rosie Perez) has different aspirations, however, all of them having to do with money. A brassy hairdresser with ambitions and pretensions galore, she wants out of Queens and into Manhattan; in short, she wants out of her life with Charlie. Then there's Yvonne Biasi (Bridget Fonda), a good-hearted waitress at a small TriBeCa coffee shop who's been driven into bankruptcy by her estranged husband.

The very day the court declares her bust, along comes Charlie looking for nothing more than lunch. Given his nature, Charlie can't help but notice that Yvonne's unhappy and tries to cheer her up. He's interrupted by police business, however, and as he gets ready to pay the check, he realizes he doesn't have enough cash for a tip. Waving the lottery ticket he just bought for his wife, he promises Yvonne that if he wins, he'll split the pot with her 50-50, and if he doesn't win, he'll still come back and leave her a tip.

Astonishingly, Charlie does win — to the tune of $4 million. Even more astonishingly, he keeps his promise to Yvonne. His wife is furious, but the New York press is delighted and shines the media spotlight on this white knight cop and damsel-in-distress waitress in "It Could Happen to You," opening Friday at metro Detroit movie theaters.

They've won big, but Charlie, Yvonne and Muriel find that instant wealth and fame change their lives in ways they could never have anticipated.

Nicolas Cage, Bridget Fonda and Rosie Perez star in the romantic comedy "It Could Happen to You," a TriStar Pictures presentation of an Adelson/Baumgarten and Lobell/Bergman production directed by Andrew Bergman.

Sudden wealth: Yvonne Biasi, a working-class waitress (Bridget Fonda) Charlie Lang (center), a New York City cop, and Charlie's ambitious wife, Muriel (Rosie Perez), share a $4 million lottery prize in "It Could Happen To You."

Written by Emmy and Writers Guild Award winner Jane Anderson, the film "is not so much about, 'Would I give away that amount of money?' " says director Andrew Bergman. "It's, 'Would I keep my word, no matter what the outcome?' And if you don't keep your word, how do you feel about yourself?"

Part satiric, part inspirational, part flat-out funny, "It Could Happen To You" tackles those questions through the character of Charlie, who, in spite of the cynicism of contemporary society, really believes in old-fashioned phrases like "A promise is a promise" and "I gave my word."

Library features classics

Movies are shown at 1 p.m. and 7 p.m. every Tuesday in the Southfield Public Library during July and August in the Marcotte Room of the library. There is no admission.

More on 'Anna of Green Tarp'

The story so far . . .

Anna, my lifelong, wild streak friend and her family pitched a tent near Traverse City in the Yogi Bear park. We joined up with them after battling lunch bugs, a colossal traffic snarl and rampant pessimism.

Between the tents, in the trees, Anna had strung up a little green tarp. I thought, "That's funny." Next, I pulled toddler Joe from a wading pool as he floated in it face down. Somewhat later (3:30 a.m.), I conducted a partial evacuation of our tent because of Carmen's S'mores overdose. At dawn, in the van with Carmen, as it began to pour, I pondered the logistics of making a camp breakfast in the rain. Later, I fried bacon and poured several glasses of orange juice in the shelter of that funny little green tarp.

And now we pick up the story as 11 campers finish eating under the tarp.

While Anna's husband, Tim, herded the children to the camp lodge to stay dry, my husband, Ron, Anna and I began dish cleaning. The rain persisted . . . actually, it intensified. The top of Anna's tent sagged miserably with the weight of the rain. She would duck out of the tarp every so often to run to her tent, push up its ceiling to get the water off, then return to rinse dishes.

After our dish rinsing water turned murky and was tossed, we invented a new system, using the resource without end - rain. It was coming down hard and the little green tarp needed flood control just like Anna's tent. So while Ron would do the water push thing, Anna would have a soapy dish at tarp's edge. Then, swoosh, a rinsed dish. We did notice little black pine cone specks in the cups and pans, but . . . oh, well.

Throughout the washing of breakfast dishes, I persisted with my optimistic weather reports. "It's definitely clearing up," I would say. Then Anna would run to her tent again and push the rain water off. It was during her fifth push that she discovered a leak in the roof of her tent. And there was lots of water coming in, getting the sleeping bags all wet. I told her it would dry out in a little bit once that sun starts breaking through those thinning clouds right up there. Can't you see them yet? She couldn't.

We finished the dishes and dumped the wash water in the leaves. And the rain was definitely letting up. Really, it was. And so we piled into our vans and drove into the city where the Cherry Festival midway was set up. I knew right where it was; I had seen it during the traffic jam the day before.

Gravitron spirit

Anna saw the Gravitron ride first and ran to get in line. Now this was the Anna I remembered. We each grabbed a couple of our kids and climbed aboard. The ride started up and we were flying to the moon with a tremendous G-force that held our bodies against the wall even when the floor fell away. We screamed; we laughed; we strained our neck muscles. It was great.

Then it started to pour again. But we still had fudge to buy and cherries, too. What would be the sense to come all that way and not get Doug Murdick's fudge and some fresh-picked cherries? We piled into the van and set out on our mission. The fudge was easy; we bought that in town. But the cherries - we had to hunt for them. We finally found them, just picked and washed by the rain itself, and piled high at a stand shaped like a cherry in the middle of a field overlooking the bay. And that was perfect.

And the sun came out!

Later that afternoon when we were preparing supper back at the camp, Yogi Bear and Boo Boo stopped by in their golf cart. The children, especially the younger ones, were delighted to see the giant fuzzy creatures. One of the older ones, though, made some comment about Yogi's big butt. Yogi and Boo Boo cut their visit short, hopped back in the golf cart, and drove to the next camp site.

Stormy weather

We ate out hot dogs and hamburgers with all the fixins' under a partly sunny sky. By the time we started to clean up, though, it was a barely sunny sky. Ron and baby Jack took off for the laundry room, nestled somewhere in the woods to check on Carme's sleeping bag and pillow case which, it turns out, desperately needed laundering. Anna and I stayed to clean dishes with real rinse water and talk about O.J. Simpson. Now there was a guy with REAL TROUBLES. And I don't think sunny days or a washing machine will help him.

Just as we were drying the last pan, thunder began rolling and rolling through the forest. I was sure it was just heat thunder or something. Anna yelled to Tim to start breaking camp because that tent of theirs just wouldn't do in the

Miniatures turn grief into artistry

■ Janet Cavanaugh lost interest in life when her son was killed in an automobile accident, but with the help of her husband, Joseph, she discovered a hobby that let her channel her grief into creative energy.

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

You could call this a love story. When Janet Cavanaugh first picked up a needle and embroidery thread to craft one of her miniature Oriental rugs, it was to help heal a broken heart.

A lot of tears went into the rugs, which have won a drawer full of blue ribbons at the Wayne County and Michigan State fairs. The 8½-by-11-inch Tabriz, valued at $3,200, took nine months and 200,000 stitches to complete.

But the story doesn't begin with the rugs, it begins with a loving husband . . . and a doll house.

Joseph Cavanaugh had become deeply concerned about his wife of nearly 50 years after their 32-year-old son Michael died in an automobile accident in 1980. Janet had all but given up eating and sleeping.

While on vacation the couple, who have two grown daughters, Linda and Laurie, visited a toy store in search of a little something to take back to the grandchildren. Instead, the Cavanaughs returned to the Redford home they've shared since 1946 with a large scale doll house for Janet.

"I didn't take it (her son's death) too well; I went to bed every night crying. He survived 3½ years in Vietnam only to come home and be killed," said the 69-year-old grandmother of five. "The doll house was kind of a therapy."

As Joseph began the construction work, Janet hand crafted the Oriental rugs with intricate designs under a lighted magnifying glass to warm the doll house.

"Right away I got started making the needle punch Oriental rugs for the 'Orphan Annie' mansion. It's done with embroidery thread, using one thread at a time to make the loops. Once that's done, you cut the loops and shave it down until you get that nap Oriental rugs are known for," said Janet.

"She sat night after night making those tiny rugs. Even the experts told her she did an excellent job," said Joseph.

The Cavanaughs immediately began collecting furnishings for the doll house. Janet, and an array of artists from around the country, hand made most of the miniature paintings, chest of drawers, driftwood coffee table, cedar chest and full set of dominoes neatly stacked side by side in a box.

Tiny task: While her husband did the construction, Janet Cavanaugh worked on the furnishings for her "Orphan Annie" mansion dollhouse.

Valued collection

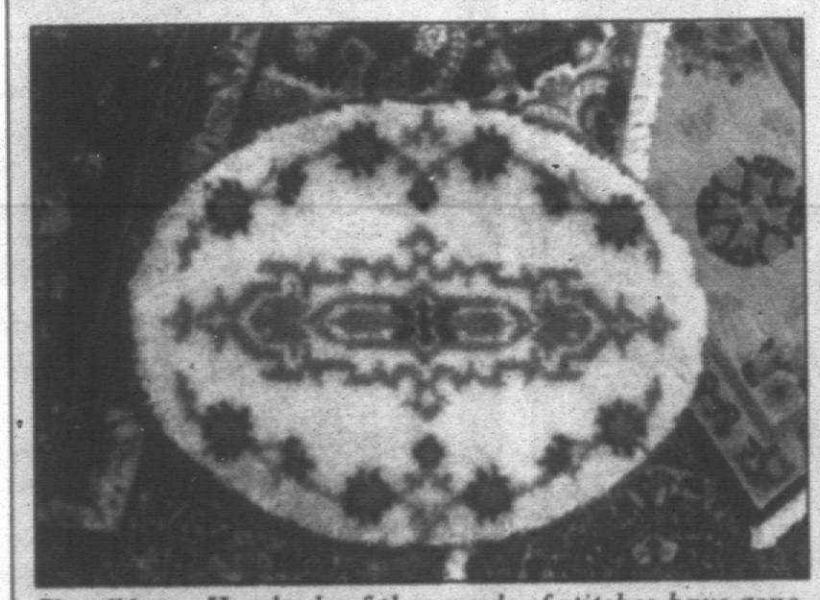

The remaining Lilliputian accessories like clay flower pots and yard tools were purchased at major craft outlets in the area. They estimate the current value of the house, complete with a bronze after Remington's famous "End of the Trail" American Indian slumped in defeat on horseback, at nearly $5,800.

"With miniatures you're constantly collecting. It's a fascinating hobby ranking third in the U.S. only after stamps and coins," said Janet. "Ninty-five percent of the miniature is hand crafted. Many were bought at shows from artisans from as far away as California to as close as Judy Shellhass in Plymouth."

"You should go to the shows held twice a year at the Holiday Inn at I-275 and 6 Mile," added Joseph. "What they do will really amaze you."

Bell pulls, Home Sweet Home wall hangings and a Victorian fire screen were all done in petit point by Cavanaugh for the doll house. From there it was a hop, skip and a jump for Cavanaugh to take up a variety of therapeutic needle arts, including the Japanese bunka em

Volunteers get ready for fair's opening day

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

The smell of popcorn, cotton candy and barn animals is in the air, so grab the kids and hop in the car. It's time for the 48th annual Wayne County Fair.

From 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. Aug. 9-13 dozens of carnival rides, competitions and grandstand events will descend on the 40-acre fair grounds at I-94 (exit 190) and Belleville Road.

"It's a typical country fair that they can see the animals, enjoy the rides and the entertainment, and it's all family oriented. It's all geared to the kids," said publicity person Karen Slebodnik of Wayne.

Admission is $3 for adults until 5 p.m., after 5 p.m. it's $5. Children ages 6-14 are $1, with those under six admitted free.

Two special days have been set aside this year. On Aug. 9, senior citizens will be admitted for free until 5 p.m. Children ages 6-14 will be admitted free on Aug. 11.

"This year we have a complete change of entertainment as far as our grandstand events," said Slebodnik. "On Tuesday we'll have

AIDS law center aims at justice for all

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

Don't look for the red cape of a super hero hanging from Aaron Pennington's shoulders even though he's been there to help people in need.

Pennington is the staff attorney for the Wayne County Neighborhood Legal Services' AIDS Law Center, a project aimed at providing compassionate legal services to AIDS/HIV positive residents, their partners and families.

The idea for the project came from WCNLS volunteer Damian Blansjaar. A native of Amsterdam, the Netherlands, he lobbied WCNLS executive director Linda Bernard that there was a legitimate need for legal services where AIDS patients could go where the attorney would not be afraid of them or discriminate against them.

Bernard saw the point Blansjaar was trying to make.

"The minute a person tests positive for HIV, they need to get their legal rights straightened out," Bernard said. "Moreover, since the HIV positive client has the ability to hand out a death sentence and possibly be criminally prosecuted, they must be adequately counseled to be legally responsible for their actions.

"Legally, ethically and morally, it is not right for those with the ability to pay to have their needs looked after while the indigent cannot. Both will die, so both should receive equal legal services as well."

Pennighton also can relate to what Blansjaar wanted.

"I know AIDS is a problem with some attorneys," he said. "When I tell them what I do, some attorneys ask if I'm not afraid. So I know there's a need because there are still attorneys out there who are afraid of AIDS."

Funded by grants from the city of Detroit and the federal government, ALC hung out its shingle in August 1993, offering free legal services to residents affected by AIDS in seven southeastern Michigan counties - Wayne (including the city of Detroit), Oakland, Macomb, Monroe, Lapeer, Livingston and St. Clair counties.

An advisory council guides the work of the center and among its members are Randall Pope, chief of the HIV/AIDS Section of the State Department of Public Health; Dr. Ali Nqvi, director of the AIDS research and education program at Wayne State University; Joan Fields, AIDS coordinator for the Detroit Health Department, and Dr. Lawrence Crane, medical director of the HIV/AIDS program at the Detroit Medical Center.

Pennington didn't have to wait very long for his first client.

"As soon as we hung out the sign, they were knocking down the door," said Pennington. "The initial grant was to provide legal services to 30

Perfection may never come

MORAL PERSPECTIVES

REV. DAVID STRONG

Our souls desire a perfect world. The story of Adam and Eve in which they are ejected out of a state of perfection is the story for us all. We dream of a life that is perfect.

I remember a woman telling me that when she moved into a new house she believed that she could make the interior look perfect. She never achieved her goal. She learned something as a result of the difficulties of this task. I remember a friend who had bought a new car. It was to all appearances perfect. Then there was that day of the first bump. He was very disturbed. His perception of perfection had ended.

Within this dream of perfection is the kernel of something wonderful. The good core is ultimately a desire for God. St. Augustine said it this way: "We are restless until we rest in Thee O God." We are restless for perfection. Beauty gives clue. Art attempts to represent something like the perfect insight into life. Sometimes our feeling of love is a taste of this perfection. Yet, soon the perfect moment has fled and we are again in a quandary.

True religion has this eschatological dimension. This simply means that we have already tasted the perfect reality given to us by God, but we have not yet experienced it fully. Now I see in part, then I shall see in full, even as God sees me perfectly.

We are designed to seek after perfection and yet never to reach it in this life. This is good, but it can also be frustrating.

Recently a colleague pointed out to me that my greatest strengths were also my greatest weaknesses. For example, I have a pretty good intellectual capacity. Yet, some would say that I am too intellectual, which to them appears that I am aloof. I have realized some tendencies in my life need to be balanced by other aspects of my being. This is an ongoing challenge.

We can seek wholeness but perfection will never come in this life. We are fortunate that perfection is impossible. Our souls grow through reflection upon our imperfection. Our souls thrive by the dialogue we do within us about our own imperfections in relation to God's perfection.

If we recognize sin, we will also be able to recognize God's healing. Without this knowledge of sin, we would otherwise have to call these painful things evil. Without sin, we would have to say that other people, and even we ourselves at times, are evil. This would be the ultimate curse for, if this were true, there would be no hope. Evil would never go away.

There is the story of the pastor who preached on the subject, "You Are Accepted." After the sermon, a man walked up to the pastor and asked if the pastor accepted him, even if he had done terrible things. The man recited a list of awful things he had done. The pastor, with some hesitation, said "Yes, I accept you because God accepts you." Then the man said, "Well, actually though you cannot see my true identity because of plastic surgery, I am Adolf Hitler. Do you still accept me?"

There is a kind of sin that is larger than the individual. We may call this a corporate power of evil. Within an individual, imperfection can be very terrible, yet there is still an image of God in this person. When we call this imperfection "sin," we imply that God's healing is potentially available to transform this life. There is always cause for hope.

Sin is tragedy, pain and brokenness. Yet we know that when we call this condition sin, it can be healed. We know healing is possible, if we have reflected upon life within our souls. We know sin can be healed by the forgiving presence of God.

The Rev. David Strong is pastor of Central United Methodist Church in Detroit. If you have a question or comment, call him at 953-2047, mailbox number 1878, on a Touch-Tone phone.

Writer does everything with passion

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

LORENE GREEN

Dear Lorene,

I often read your column and am finally writing in hopes of having my handwriting analyzed. I've been told by many that they either like my handwriting or that it is a bit different. With continued comments, such as these my curiosity continues to grow. So, I'm writing to find out what exactly my writing reveals about my personality.

I'm 33 years old and right handed. I do believe that an individual's handwriting is as unique as they are and am very anxious to learn a little bit more about myself.

I'm in the process of a career change and am having difficulty deciding what to do. Perhaps your input will give me better insight.

Thank you for your time!

K.P.,
Livonia

The picture of an intense young woman quickly comes into focus as I peruse this handwriting sample. Everything she does is with a passion!

Experiences remain with her for a long time. Forgiving and forgetting does not come easily. She remembers slights and hurts that have occurred in the past and is on the defensive to prevent anyone from taking advantage of her. I recall an interesting bit of advice I received once, and it seems appropriate here: "Think of yesterday as a canceled check; today as cash, and tomorrow as a promissory note."

This woman is busy and active. A routine existence or long periods of inactivity would certainly meet with low tolerance, better insight.

Speaking of tolerances, I see some impatience in this handwriting. It is directed outward, possibly toward those who are not as mentally sharp as she.

Here is a hard working, enthusiastic go-getter with extreme vitality. Perhaps nervous energy would be more accurate. Augmenting this is her built-in need to win and work for top place.

Her intelligence is well above average and promotes efficiency and maturity. She is a solid, practical thinker with no showy mental gymnastics. A unique facility for coupling logical reasoning with intuitive insight is also hers. Her mind sees things in new and unusual ways. Large issues hold more appeal than small ones.

The ability to stand alone if necessary and rely on her own inner convictions can be seen. She can also initiate and act on her own ideas. When a new solution to an old problem is needed she is probably the one to find it.

The originality of this writing indicates her talents are multifaceted. She can create unusual things or situations.

I often read your column and am finally writing in hopes of having my handwriting analyzed. I've been told by many that they either like my handwriting, or that it is Her strong right-ward slant is goal oriented. The consistency shows sustained pursuit of a goal.

Very early in life this woman had a need for independence. To gain this, she may have been rebellious and she did not view the parental figures as united in their nurturing. She may still be struggling with this.

An inordinate amount of rigidity in this handwriting also permeates her personality. Her manner is often inflexible. No deviation of schedule is welcomed.

A signature is the image the writer wishes to convey to other people. So one has to wonder why her first name is illegible. Does she want to be an enigma to others?

The caution inherent in many word endings is a contradiction to an otherwise rapid operator. However, it can serve as a protection from hasty actions.

Seemingly, our writer places great importance on her role in day-to-day activities and social relationships. She needs praise and acceptance to fill her ego needs and compensate for feelings of inadequacy she appears to harbor. Inwardly, she may not be as self-confident as she would like the world to believe.

I can see music and physical activities as sources of relaxation for this dynamo.

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Signature, handedness and age are all helpful. And objective feedback is always welcomed.

Seminar focus is AIDS awareness

Tammy Boccomino lives with HIV; her young son Michael has AIDS. Boccomino's second husband and her oldest son are free of HIV. The family lives every hour of every day not knowing how much time they have left together.

Boccomin could have just continued on with what remains of her life, but she chose to make a difference. She has a mission to educate the public. She wants to save lives.

Hospice Services of Western Wayne County will feature Tammy Boccomino at a free AIDS awareness seminar at 6:30 p.m. Monday, Aug. 8, in the Harrison School Auditorium, 6701 Harrison St., south of Warren and east of Middlebelt, Garden City.

The program is open to people all ages, but it is of particular interest to teens and young adults. The highest risk category for HIV is the ages 15-25.

Boccomino contracted HIV from her drug-addicted first husband who died from AIDS more than two years ago. Unaware, that she had the virus, Boccomino passed the disease to her son Michael during her pregnancy.

She now spends tireless hours working to educate the community on HIV and AIDS. She has made appearances on Sally Jesse Raphael's television talk show, local radio talk shows and "Kelly & Company." She is an active speaker at the State of Michigan Subcommittee on AIDS, has talked to President Bill Clinton about AIDS, and is active in HIV support groups.

"AIDS is a devastating killer disease which does not discriminate against its victims; it seems as if AIDS has affected everyone," said Maureen Butrico, executive director for Hospice Services. "We are seeing more AIDS patients in our Hospice program, and based upon our mission to educate the community on health matters, we offer this free.

"Perhaps the information presented will help save lives."

broidery for which she has also won awards at the fairs.

"It takes precision to do Japanese bunka. It's very big in Canada. I got into that so the miniatures took a back seat for a while," said Janet, who works three days a week for Kelly Services.

Since those painful days 14 years ago, Joseph's loving purchase has gone from providing therapy to become a pleasurable pastime. Four years ago the Cavanaughs bought an additional doll house, half the size of the "Orphan Annie" mansion.

"It's more moveable to cart and carry. You pick it up and move it into the next room and you're able to watch television while you're working," said Janet.

A craft missed

As far as the Oriental rugs, Cavanaugh has missed making them of late. It seems a few years back Fran and Don Neehan's New Jersey company, which made the patterns and kits, went out of business.

"If I wanted to make any more of the rugs, I can't. The stencils for the regular sized rugs are too big. Maybe someone knows if there's something out there as far as a replacement. I'd be glad to hear about it."

The big doll house sits in temporary disarray now. It's in the middle of renovations. All of the miniature furnishings have been carefully placed in boxes and stored under the couple's bed.

Joseph is in the process of wiring the Victorian style mansion for lights after tearing out the wallpaper. Lighting was primitive when he bought the doll house, designed after the Illinois home belonging to the originator of the "Orphan Annie" comic strip, for Janet.

"I enjoy the constructing, working with my hands," said Joseph.

Two years ago a series of setbacks besieged the Cavanaughs, slowing down completion of the project. Janet broke both wrists while roller skating, and Joseph had to undergo bypass surgery. But one day soon, Janet hopes to retrieve the house's tiny trappings from under the bed.

"I'm trying to get the "Orphan Annie" together again. No, the pain of losing my son hasn't gone away, but the doll house and miniatures helped."

And that was all that Joseph ever wanted.

pony pulling; Wednesday Figure 8 car racing with Sonny Hall; Thursday the Laradoes, a '50s-'60s group, Friday the Pirates of the Mississippi, a country western band, and Young Country will be out there doing live remote radio.

"Closing out the fair on Saturday will be the Wagon Wheel Professional Rodeo."

Artists and crafters will compete for ribbons in first to sixth place, and minimal cash prizes for first through third place in a variety of categories, including pencil drawing, sculpture, watercolor, pastel, photography, ceramics, china painting, counted cross stitch, quilting, knitting, crocheting, weaving, clothing, jewelry, baskets, stained glass, dolls and furniture.

"Every year our art area is building up; we had 50 artworks last year," said Slebodnik. "There's a special section set aside where the disabled compete within their own section, and another area where kids can enter without a fee in the Youth Building."

You'll be able to watch as amateur and professional gardeners compete for the largest tomato, pumpkin, and rose, or stop by and smell the cakes and candy made by competitors in the baking section, or the sweet pickles put up by competitors.

Take The Next Step
At Wayne State University...

If you are ready to take that next step toward earning your four-year degree, we are ready for you.

Last year approximately 5,000 students transferred to WSU from some 500 community colleges and four-year schools across the country. They are taking classes at our main campus in the University Cultural Center in Detroit or on one of our satellite campuses while others go to our University Center at Macomb Community College.

Some of the reasons students come to Wayne State:

- Strength of our academic programs — international reputation
- Cost — the only Michigan public university with a negative increase in tuition costs over the past decade based on inflation
- Financial aid — During 1991-92 WSU awarded $50 million in aid to students

So go ahead and take the next step. Simply clip and mail the attached coupon and we will send you more information about transferring to Wayne State.

people; by the end of this month (June) we'll have helped 190."

What helped was cooperative relationships developed with organizations like the AIDS Care Connection, AIDS Consortium, Michigan Protection and Advocacy, Project Simon and Survival House. These days a majority of the referrals come to the center by way of those groups.

The center provides a comprehensive range of free legal services, including:

- Probate law — wills, powers of attorney, designations of patient advocates (living wills), guardianships and probate of estates.
- Consumer law — bankruptcy, collection actions and utility shut-offs.
- Income maintenance law — social security disability and supplemental security incomes.
- Housing law — housing discrimination, lockouts and evictions.
- Individual rights law — health status disclosure and discrimination in employment, housing, insurance or health care.

In addition, the ALC staff also does a series of legal rights seminars for AIDS patients and their families.

Some of the center's work has included successfully stopping a collection agency from using harassing techniques to collect a student loan from an AIDS patient who had become disabled and intervening on behalf of an AIDS patient whose confidentiality had been breached by the staff of a homeless shelter where he was receiving services.

Pennington also has found that a lot of the questions can be answered with a half-hour phone call. Some of the work involves referrals and advice. At present he is able to make referrals within the agency, but knows at some point he will have to utilize the private attorney involvement program, but not before the attorneys receive some training.

"Attorneys need to sensitive to the issues," he said. "When you have a client who is terminally ill you can't sit on anything. He could be gone in three weeks.

"I know clients who would not reveal their HIV status to just any Jo Schmoe who might release this information."

The Carson City, Mich., native has always wanted to use the law to help the underdog and to help make the world a better place. He did his undergraduate work at the University of Michigan and taught for one year before deciding to go to law school at Wayne State University.

After graduating from there in 1991, Pennington signed on as a public defender, specializing in consumer law. It was a good training ground for his current position. His clients were also poor and in need of help.

"It's really amazing what people go through," he said. "They get sick and their life falls apart. And the number of problems people face blows my mind. Many just need someone to talk to.

"A lot of it is guiding them through some really tough times. I tell them to focus on staying healthy and I'll take care of as much as I can."

With a highly successful first year, the center has landed grants for a second year, including money from the State Bar of Michigan's Interest on Lawyers Trust Account Fund. With any luck, the center will be able to add a second attorney to help, freeing up time to do research, Pennington said. He's well aware of the potential for burnout. He knows he could "get consumed by this stuff."

"This virus is not going to go away; I think it's going to be around for years and years," he said. "People may live longer, but it's still going to affect their lives, so some people's attitudes are going to have to change."

"I believe we have to do everything in our power to ensure that HIV positive individuals are treated with dignity and respect not only in terms of medical treatment and prevention, but also in terms of a 'legal care crisis' of universal proportions," Bernard added. "It is inappropriate to treat HIV positive persons as a statistic, as if they don't count anymore.

"What will we tell our children we did to solve the AIDS crisis? My answer will be that we used every legal means at our disposal to ensure that our clients could live as full a life as they are able."

The Wayne County Neighbors Legal Services' AIDS Law Center is at 3802 Cadillac Tower, Detroit. Hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday for walk-in and telephone intake. For more information, call 962-0466.

storm that was coming what with that leak in it and all. Anna, where is your sense of adventure? That fly to the moon spirit? The Gravitron gumption? Gone, it seemed.

And so, with a tremendous flurry of activity, their campsite was cleared. Just as she and Tim were loading the last cooler in the van, Ron and baby Jack returned from the laundry room under a storm-blackened sky and relentless thunder. A snap decisions was made. We, too, would be leaving. Abandoning ship as it were. High-tailing it out of there.

Organization went clean out the window. Bushel Basket 1 had Bushel Basket 2 items crammed in it willy nilly. The leftover watermelon was crushed under the lantern. The wet towels were thrown on top of Doug Murdick's fudge. The tent billowed and wouldn't fold because in our haste we hadn't opened the windows before pulling up the stakes. So it was shoved in, billows and all.

Lightning was splitting the air all around us and trees, too, from the sound of it. Some of our children screamed, while others wailed. And then the first tremendous drop of rain fell just as we slammed closed the back doors of the van. The skies opened up and the trees danced a wild dance and the lightning flashed and cracked everywhere. Anna screamed through her open window, imploring us to stay at her house in Grand Rapids for that night and not attempt going all the way back to Plymouth in the storm. So we did.

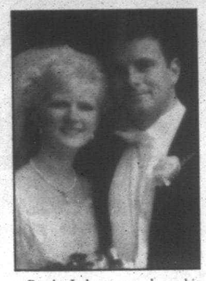

We drove through lightning storm after lightning storm, torrential rains, thunder so loud we couldn't hear each other talk, a tornado near Cadillac. Before the stroke of midnight on that wild Fourth of July, we were at last safe in Anna's house.

Safe. Anna. Two words that had never seemed to go together before. But there she stood now — the practical one, the sensible, down-to-earth one, the one with the green tarp.

Art walks on the wild side

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
STAFF WRITER

It's official. The Plymouth art community has announced it will hold a gallery walk Friday through Sunday. Sept. 30 to Oct. 2.

Two of the galleries, the Animation Station and Native West, are featured in this week's Creative Living section. Other stops along the route tied together by a sidewalk chalk line include Chameleon Gallery, Penniman Showcase, Wild Wings, Sipapu, Country Charm, Creative Framing, Folkways, Frameworks, Georgia's Gallery, Michigan Art Exchange and Little Professor.

Planned to be a visual arts extravaganza, Plymouth is Artrageous will offer up guest artists, creative displays, and a silent auction with proceeds in part to benefit the Plymouth Community Arts Council. At each stop along the way a taste of local restaurants will refresh visitors and restore their energy to continue the art jaunt.

"Over the past two years, Plymouth has added many new galleries and shops and is fast becoming its own art community with over 12 galleries, each one having a unique theme and atmosphere," said Annette Horn, event chairwoman.

The walk was first proposed back in January at an arts council board meeting. Back then the idea was to host a spring gallery crawl, but plans fizzled when no one volunteered to coordinate the event. That's when Horn stepped in.

"The arts council is always excited about anything in Plymouth to expose the arts and to get people interested. We have so many galleries, especially new galleries," said arts council executive director, Randy Lee.

The walk may include a stop at the new home of the arts council tentatively scheduled to open Sept. 1.

"We're in the development stage right now. We want to keep the walk downtown but will have either a reception or participate in some way," said Lee.

The grandfather of Plymouth art galleries, the Penniman Showcase will lead the way with an array of works including glass, ceramics, baskets, and hand carved mirrors.

"Being the first gallery to open, I've seen a lot of growth as far as galleries. It's a mixed media event that will be a positive portrayal of Plymouth. We have a lot here for families and children," said owner, Scott Smith.

Denni Englehart, co-owner of Chameleon Gallery, agrees everyone will benefit from the walk including the contemporary Chameleon which prides itself on being a year round stationary Ann Arbor Art Fair.

"The concept is terrific. It pulls everyone together. Each gallery involved is totally unique. There's everything from animation to contemporary. The diversity is incredible in one town."

Wild Wings Gallery has scheduled an appearance by nature artist, Cathy McClung of Hamburg. The Water Club Bar and Grill will furnish refreshments.

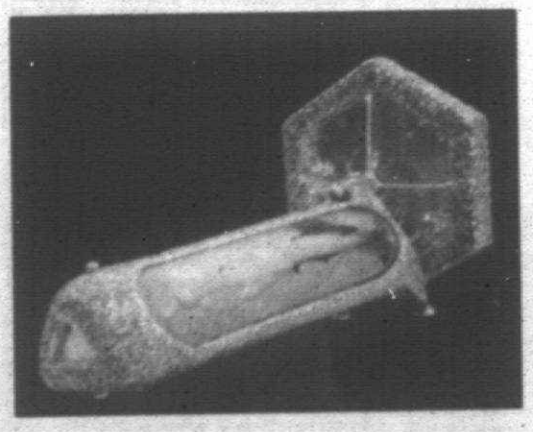

"It's a once a year opportunity, that is assuming and hoping this becomes an annual event, for people to visit several galleries that are each featuring an artist. People like meeting the artist," said Kal Jabara, Wild Wings owner.

In addition to each gallery's art, work by students from Plymouth Salem and Canton high schools will be exhibited.

"We will have National Art Honor Society students assisting with the gallery walk to answer visitors' questions and guide them to the next gallery. We need to have the students have the exposure to the galleries but also for people to see the work of our students. We have some exceptionally talented students," said Salem art teacher Kris Darby who's coordinating the CEP Park art department students.

The sidewalk chalk line and murals tying all of the Plymouth stops together will be drawn by artists from the recently- opened cooperative gallery, the Michigan Art Exchange.

Hours for Plymouth is Artrageous will run 7-10 p.m. Friday Sept. 30, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 1 and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 2. For more information, call Native West co-owner Annette Horn at (313) 455-8838.

Gallery spotlights art of animation

■ What do Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck and Bugs Bunny have in common? They're all at the Animation Station in Plymouth.

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
STAFF WRITER

It's an animation art collector's paradise, and now it's expanding. By Sept. 1 Mickey and Minnie Mouse, Tweety Bird, Sylvester and 101 Dalmations will have a new home with twice the space at the Animation Station, 550 Forest Ave., Plymouth.

The recently announced expansion is proof that the art of animation is growing in popularity not only with collectors, but cartoon lovers of all ages.

Animated art of the film industry is currently one of the most sought after mediums by collectors. Vern Mitchell and Charles Eveleth Sr., owners of The Animation Station, became aware of the cartoon-related trend several years ago. Originally, the two sold a smattering of animated art in a kiosk at the Livonia Mall. Now at the station, they offer animation art from start to finish including handpainted original production cels, backgrounds, pencil drawings, model sheets and storyboards as well as ever increasing in value limited-edition cels.

"It makes you laugh and smile, and keeps you young. It's part of your childhood. Anyone who carries a Mickey Mouse key chain is a collector. They carry it because it makes them feel good," said Eveleth of West Bloomfield.

The cel (short for celluloid) is a clear sheet of plastic containing the image. Each cel is placed over a background which is photographed in succession to form the action of the

The black outline of a character is hand-inked or photocopied onto the front of a cel. The color is handpainted, primarily with acrylic watercolor, onto the back.

The Animation Station carries between 700 to 1,000 cels from all of the major animation studios in stock. Prices run up to $5,000 with an average price of $147.

As values continue to escalate for the fine art of the animated film industry, it's important to learn about the medium as well as the market. Collectors in general became interested in animated art only about 10 years ago. Proof of its ever increasing popularity, said Eveleth, is that an original production cel recently sold for $280,000 at Sotheby's auction house.

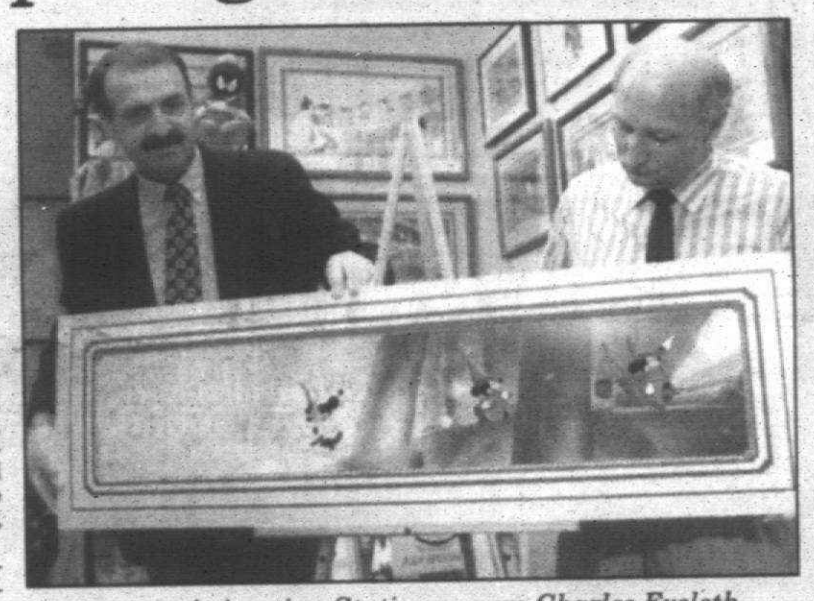

"It shouldn't be an impulse purchase. We encourage people to shop the quality of the image. Education is important when it comes to animation. The animation was never meant to be preserved. They were meant to be used and thrown away so their condition can be very fragile,' said Mitchell.

"In 1937, Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs was the first full length animated film. A major advancement in 1961 was going from hand-inked to Xerox in "101 Dalmation"s - parts of "Beauty and the Beast" were computer generated. From "Aladdin" there on there are no production cels, but there are pencil drawings."

With the advent of computer generated art, prices will continue to rise. So know what you're buying.

"We don't know what the future holds for animation. Seventy percent of the people we sell to buy it because they enjoy it. About 10 to

Gallery recreates romance of the Old West

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN

Three modern day artists intent on keeping the art of the American Indian from fading into history exhibit their work through July 31 at Native West Gallery in Plymouth.

"We're always an indoor art festival, but this time we've brought pottery done in the traditional manner that was around hundreds of years ago, beadwork and Indian dolls, and watercolors that capture the Old West,' said Annette Horn, gallery co-owner with husband, Ken.

Odawa Indian potter, Frank Ettawageshik handcrafts his work after functional pots made between seventh century B.C. and mid- 17th century A.D. by Woodland Indians of the Great Lakes. A member of the Little Traverse Bay Band, Ettawageshik by studying tribal history, captures not only the forms but techniques of the past. He pinches and coils the clay dug by hand from deposits found around his Northern Michigan home then fires it in an open pit subject to the changing temperatures of the winds. He loses about 30 percent of the pots during the firing.

"I've revived the making of Woodland Indian pottery. My family has made things with their hands and sold it for years. In Michigan it's been about 150 years since people have made traditional pottery. I set out to make the pottery my ancestors had made to revive the art of making pottery in Michigan,' said Ettawageshik in an interview at the gallery.

"I've been told by archaeologists that there is virtually no difference between mine and the old pottery. The color comes entirely from reaction from the fire. Colors range from beige and light browns to black. It's traditional unpainted pottery. The pots actually are functional. I've made maple sugar in my yard and cooked in my pots.'

Ettawageshik's work has won numerous awards including ones at the annual Santa Fe Indian Market in 1993, and the Judges Choice Award for traditional pottery at the Colorado Indian Market last January. By teaching his two children traditional pottery mak

■ Lighthouses Spotlighted
Livonia artist, Tom Igel will exhibit striking watercolor portraits of lighthouses along with florals, birds and a series of Baltimore clipper ships which helped the U.S. Navy early in our American history Aug. 1-31 at the Henry Ford Medical Center on Maple Road between Drake and Halstead in West Bloomfield.

Igel, who also creates birds, butterflies, dragonflies and flowers on note cards priced at $16 for a set of 8, started painting last fall after suffering several strokes. He found the medium very soothing and therapeutic.

A member of the Michigan Watercolor Society, and the American Society of Marine Artists, Igel first exhibited his watercolor/pen and ink drawings as part of the Art As Gift show held at Nelson's Gallery in Livonia last November.

■ Calling All Artists
The Visual Arts Committee of First Presbyterian Church of Northville is looking for artists to display work in its second annual juried fine art exhibition featuring multi-media by Michigan artists Oct. 8-15.

The nonprofit community event will be juried by artist, James Nawara Awards range from $50 to $250. Deadline for entry is Sept. 23.

For entry form information, call (810) 349-0911 or write to the Visual Arts Committee, 200 E. Main St., Northville, Mich. 48167.

■ Call for Volunteers
Gallery service volunteers are needed tp greet and assist visitors at the Detroit Institute of Arts, 5200 Woodward, Detroit.

No special qualifications or background are required.

A training session will be held 10 a.m. to noon Saturday, Aug. 6 at the DIA. For more information, call (313) 833- 0247, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday-Friday.

ing, he hopes the art will survive.

"I'm trying to revive pottery making in the Indian community so that it's going to continue beyond my work. I make my living as a potter. For traditional arts to continue, people have to support them."

Watercolorist, Ronald H. Weaver paints the last buffalo with sensitivity and sadness. During the depression years, Weaver's uncles were ranch hands and cowboys. As a young boy he heard their stories and met some of the old buffalo hunters, but his meticulous attention to detail after thoroughly researching Western and Indian history creates authenticity for the era of the mid- to late 1800s. From portraits of Geronimo to Texas Ranger John Hughes, Weaver literally carves the harshness of living in the Old West in their faces.

"I was lucky enough to meet these old Indians. That was real exciting because I was shaking hands with history,' said Weaver who's been a commercial illustrator for agencies such as J. Walter Thompson, Campbell-Ewald, BBD&O and Young & Rubicam since 1949.

His early influences included the art of Frederick Remington, Charles Russell and N.C. Wyeth. He has exhibited work at the Detroit and in 1990 was juried into the annual Michigan Watercolor Society show exhibited at the Kresge Museum in Lansing.

His original paintings can be found at the Cowboy Traders in Birmingham.

"There's a lot of history with these. I studied the old cattle drives. When I did the buffalo I was thinking, this is the last one, old and worn out."

Gwen Jones' beadwork inundates dolls in authentic dress of the Sioux and Crowe among other American Indian tribes. She refers to these creations as a miniature hands-on museum.

"It's the roots and culture that was on this continent before we came here. You can tell which tribes they belong to by the colors and style,' said Jones.

"Most of my work is early reservation when they were screaming in the night they didn't want to lose their arts and culture.'

A parade horse is dressed in his finest next to Jones' dolls.

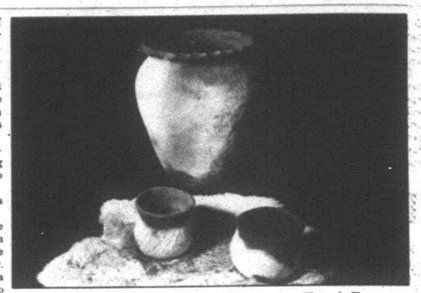

"By the turn of the century the parade horse was only used on special occasions unlike before when they were used to go to war. They had this finery to add a magical or mystical quality to surprise their enemies."

While Jones was attending Eastern Michigan University she did beadwork for the costumes of dancers performing at local Pow Wows. After attending seminars across the country on the material culture of the Plains Indians and studying several museum collections, she began to specialize in plains Indian beadwork through the recreation of early reservation dolls. Made with muslin bodies and beaded facial features, the dolls have been meticulously researched for authenticity.

"It's a lost culture that shaped a lot of what this country is," said Jones. However, she is encouraged by the work being done by Sioux and Plains Indians today.

"There was a lost generation where they tried to be as white as they could. Before contact with the white man they had used dyed porcupine quills. I notice they're returning to quill work again, and using larger beads and brighter colors."

Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Wednesday and Saturday, 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Thursday and Friday, and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. Call (313) 455-8838.

Animation

15 percent buy strictly as an investment. The key to collecting is to have fun. Put it on your wall and have fun," said Mitchell.

The Animation Station is a full service, gallery offering framing, cel repairs, authentication, appraisals and searches. But they also carry lots more besides art. Plushes of characters, ranging from the Tasmanian Devil to the Lion King, clocks, coffee mugs, hats, books and stamps are also on hand.

"This is one type of store that's the only one like it. We wanted to offer a one stop shop offering collectibles with a Disney or Warner Brothers theme," said Eveleth.

"It's not you're typical stodgy gallery,' added Mitchell. "We'd like people to come down and look at it and visit with their past. If they have questions all they have to do is ask. We'll explain the difference and give them a basic understanding of the process. Animation art freezes a moment in time. It reminds you of a piece of, your childhood. People say you can never go back, but you can."

Located in Westchester Square Mall, the Animation Station is open 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday-Friday, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. For more information call (313) 455-0190.

Talk set on modern furniture design

He's debonair, he's avant garde, he's a fashion trend-setter in the furniture design industry . . . he's Giorgio. And he's going to be at two area Scott Shuptrine furniture stores Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 13 and 14.

Giorgio will meet with consumers, introduce his new collection and discuss his unusual design philosophy in a presentation entitled "Contemporary Furniture Design: Evolution or Revolution."

He will be on hand at Scott Shuptrine's Troy store, 977 E. 14 Mile, just east of John R, Saturday, Aug. 13, and at its Novi store, 43606 W. Oaks Drive, across from Twelve Oaks Mall, Sunday, Aug. 14. Both days he will be on hand noon to 5 p.m. to meet with consumers and will conduct a presentation to discuss his design philosophy 2 p.m.

To make a reservation for Giorgio's presentation, call Scott Shuptrine Furniture at (810) 585-3300.

Giorgio is principal designer of the Giorgio Collection line of home furnishings. His pieces, which are handcrafted in Milan, Italy, are architecturally interesting and exude a tactile, vivid presence.

"Furniture should be a vehicle for emotion, an expression of personal taste," he said. "It's what you demand of yourself and your surroundings."

Scott Shuptrine Furniture is the exclusive area provider of the Giorgio Collection.

Consider shade trees a key selling point

Trees help houses sell.

That's the conclusion of a recent survey of 1,350 real estate professionals around the country, including more than 100 in Michigan by Arbor National Mortgage.

The presence or absence of trees play a role in determining property value and can affect a home's sell ability, agents indicated in the sampling.

"The survey results are not only enlightening from a business standpoint, they also point to a heightened interest in the environment," said Robin Cileno, regional vice president for Arbor.

Highlights of the Michigan survey:

■ 75 percent of the Realtors felt that the presence of healthy shade trees strongly impact a potential buyer's impression of a block or neighborhood.

■ 73 percent of the Realtors felt that healthy shade trees impact the curb appeal or first impression of a home.

■ 71 percent of the Realtors felt that the presence of healthy shade trees strongly impacts a home's sell-ability.

Participants were asked to rate the impact trees have on property value for homes ranging from $60,000 to more than $300,000.

In every category, the largest percentage of respondents agreed that trees have a strong impact as opposed to moderate or no impact on property value, the survey indicated.

"Interestingly, the trees took on increased levels of importance in the higher price ranges," Cileno said.

"In response to one survey question that presented a scenario in which two homes were identical except for the presence of trees on the property, over 34 percent of the Realtors felt the home with trees would be 20 percent more sellable," Cileno said.

When asked what contributions trees make to properties, the largest percentage of Realtors chose aesthetics and privacy, followed by enhanced monetary value, environmental and energy savings, Arbor Mortgage reported.

A canopy of trees, especially during the fall color change or budding in spring, can invite would-be buyers to take a closer look.

"I think the main reason for trees is privacy, the feeling you're not looking into your neighbor's back doorwall, the feeling of having your own space," said K.C. Mueller, a Realtor with Remerica Hometown in Plymouth.

"By far, a majority of homeowners would prefer to have houses with some mature trees," she said.

"We used to have a joke in real estate that on a treed lot, the value went up $1,000 per tree," Mueller said. "That's true in the minds of purchasers as well as sellers, as long as it's not overdone.

"Some people will pay a $15,000, $20,000, $30,000 premium for a lot with mature trees," she said.

Phil Anderlie, an associate with Clark & Fron Realtors in Livonia, knows the value of trees having previously owned a tree business.

Do trees add value?

"I find that to be absolutely true," he said. "If there are more mature trees, when I write a listing report, I will put that in the remark section.

"Generally, I think it adds to a house to see a large tree as you drive up," Anderlie added. "People will say, 'Whoa, this is great.' "

There are other benefits, too.

"I have a maple in front of my house and would hate to lose it," he said. "It shades the house, keeps it cooler, makes air conditioning not work as hard."

Time-share with great care; board may limit videotaping

CONDO QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q. I am a potential condominium purchaser and am thinking about buying a time share. Do you have suggestions?

A. It appears that time shares being bought in blocks of four weeks are becoming more popular, as opposed to the single week time share.

With additional incentives in regard to marketing of the time share units by way of interchanging the "weeks" for a stay in other facilities around the world, time sharing can be beneficial.

However, you have to review the economics of each situation, recognizing that your "investment" may not be later marketable or that you may well not obtain any additional monies upon your attempts to sell your investment.

You probably should compare the costs that you incur in vacationing with the benefits obtained by buying the time share, with particular emphasis on whether you plan to use the time share that you have purchased, as opposed to trading in the weeks for a stay at another location and always look at the underlying property and condominium association vitality that you are buying, particularly if you are buying an interest in a condominium project with time-sharing features.

Q. Our board is thinking about videotaping our meetings, but it does not want to make them available to the co-owners. Do they have to?

A. While there is not a specific ruling in Michigan, an out-of-state court has held that the board of directors has the inherent power to adopt rules governing the conduct of meetings.

Among those is the right to prohibit videotaping. The court in that case upheld the right to have the board prohibit access to the videotaping in spite of the claim by the co-owner that he had a right to review the books and records of the association, which is similar to the Michigan statute.

I believe you should obtain an opinion from counsel, but you may well be authorized to partake in the action you have discussed.

Office building expense guide offered

A comprehensive Detroit and suburban office building expense guide, compiled by Building Owners and Managers Association (BOMA), is now available.

The 1994 Experience Exchange Report, "Operating a Cost Effective Office Building, Your Guide to Income and Expense Data" is $135 for BOMA members and $265 for non-members.

For the first time, the guide reports the average square-foot responsibility per maintenance employee. BOMA says the average maintenance employee in the private sector has more square-foot responsibility than his counterpart in the government sector.

The report includes income and expense data for 4,500 office buildings in North America: 3,764 U.S. private sector properties, 248 government office buildings in the U.S., 183 privately-held Canadian properties and 453 government buildings in Canada.

For a copy, call BOMA at (313) 965-BOMA.

Way Out Front

#1 by far in the sale of homes.

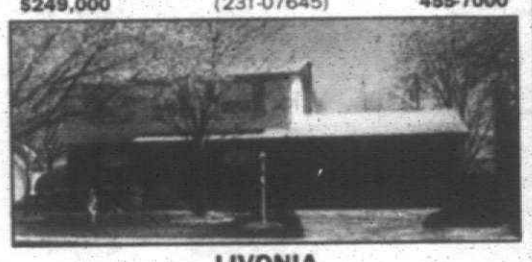

Real Estate One is Michigan's leading company in home sales because we have more neighborhood offices with sales associates that know the true value of each home in the neighborhood.

This, coupled with these Michigan-company exclusives,

- ✔ Largest office network
- ✔ Largest sales staff
- ✔ Largest advertising budget
- ✔ National and international affiliations
- ✔ Separate company devoted exclusively to the purchase and sale of transferred executive homes has made Real Estate One the state's leading real estate company every single year for more than 40 years.

To sell your home quickly and at the best price, call your neighborhood Real Estate One office or call 1-800-521-0508 to be referred to the expert who can best appreciate your home and market it to your satisfaction.

Quality stressed at Pheasant Creek

Two builders who have worked together at the upper end of the pricing spectrum have scaled back in size and cost with a project they've started in Canton. They have floor plans for three colonials, each with several different possible exterior appearances. Many options are available.

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

David Gerish and Ron Cook, who collaborated on a residential subdivision in Ann Arbor a couple years ago, are joining forces to build Pheasant Creek, 42 single-family homes on 17 acres in Canton.

There's a big difference this time around.

Tangelwood in Ann Arbor was upper end housing with models starting at $300,000. Buyers in Pheasant Creek, off Haggerty just south of Cherry Hill, can acquire a three-bedroom colonial from $143,900 and a four-bedroom model from $149,900.

But the watchword is quality, Cook said. "We use the same trades who built the larger houses on the smaller ones."

Gerish and Cook will build on a rotation basis.

Two models are nearly finished.

The Hampshire, four bedrooms, 2½ baths, with nearly 2,100 square feet, is priced at $156,900. The Ashbury, three bedrooms with 2½ baths and a more open floor plan with 1,700 square feet, goes for $145,900.

Standard features in each include range, dishwasher and garbage disposal in the kitchen, two-story foyers and studio or cathedral ceiling in family rooms.

Other basic amenities common to all floor plans include first floor laundry, two-car attached garage and basement.

Upgrades include fireplace ($2,000), air conditioning ($2,000), whirlpool tub in the master suite ($2,500) - a shower is standard - and skylights ($750 apiece).

"We screw and glue floors," Cook said. "Some builders just nail them down. We energy seal houses. We feel that's a real plus."

Hoteling office work space saves money through sharing

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

Not everyone in an office setting needs a desk, phone and computer all the time.

As managers scrutinize expenses affecting the bottom line, some architects and interior designers have developed an expertise on effective use of space.

One trend is toward hoteling - making the same space available to different employees on a rotating, sharing basis. The concept, spawned by large accounting firms, is especially applicable to outside sales work and people in consulting jobs like auditing and troubleshooting.

Robert A. Huth, president of Edward Schulak, HobbsRBlack, an architectural firm in Birmingham, and John Anderson, president of Gorman's Business Interiors in Southfield, have collaborated on several projects.

Following are edited excerpts from a recent interview with the pair.

What exactly is office space hoteling?

Huth: I consider it to be a time/space management system where work space and task areas are shared by multiple people, not at the same time. It's actively scheduled like a hotel room is scheduled. It's primarily used within a corporation.

Anderson: It's simply a company that's taking 50,000 square feet that normally accommodates . . .

Huth: Maybe 250 . . .

Anderson: Having the flexibility to accommodate . . .

Huth: A third more.

I would think that some jobs would be better suited to sharing work space than others.

Huth: There really is a criteria for who really qualifies. People whose patterns and work schedule take them out of the office daily or multiple-day periods in a week. You have to be out a minimum of a half day.

Some aren't candidates. Receptionists, secretaries, people in office administration.

See the newest award-winning communities by America's Best Builder.

Winning the National Association of Home Builders' highest honor certainly puts The Herman Frankel Organization in a class by itself.

But the true winners are the thousands of people who purchased homes in Herman Frankel's signature communities over the past 43 years.

They're the ones who have long enjoyed the real value of our extraordinary designs, attention to detail and unmatched commitment to excellence and integrity.

Now, you be the judge...

Custom-quality homes in an extraordinarily beautiful setting that places your family close to every imaginable convenience. Single-family homes from the mid $300,000's.

Sharing space

People who typically get out would be audit people, consultants, non-accountant sales, the sales end of the computer business.

Anderson. It makes sense for sales partners in law firms.

Wait a minute now. I would think that the big shots would want the luxury and pampering of their own suites.

Anderson. The best way to help people adjust is set up a corporate culture. Realistically, it's going to have to come from the top down. It can't be just workers, but everyone. Otherwise, it's perceived as doing something to us. You can't just take something away.

What do workers get in return for sharing work space?

Anderson. Some companies plow savings into making the facility nicer — lighting, sound, furniture quality. Public areas tend to get richer, nicer.

Huth. Work and task areas are improved.

Anderson. Mentally, that affects everyone.

Huth. To have saving on space, you will have expenditures integrating appropriate technology to have the concept work. Programmable phones, computer networks.

Spending more to upgrade the office functionally and aesthetically would seem to fly in the face of sharing space to cut costs.

Huth. In my opinion, if there's immediate savings, long-term it's worth it to pursue it. There are different ways of measuring. One client might say, "If we can recover the cost in two years, go ahead."

We've had 7,000 square feet give up 2,000, 3,000. We've had 350,000 give up 77,000.

The cost of fixtures and furnishings is a one-time cost. Space (saving) is realized every year in operations.

Is the savings with office hoteling a significant amount?

Huth: Ernst & Young (consulting firm) had an excess of two million square feet. That's a substantial quantity that could be recaptured and disposed of.

They realized about half of that in a year and a half in the course of renegotiated leases, downsizing, renewals and subleasing.

The cost of office space nationwide averages about $20 (per square foot). At that magnitude, cost saving is phenomenal.

How do you pull all of this together?

Huth: We would get involved very early with a marketing contact or reference. We would initiate a space evaluation, pre-design, how they use space, efficiencies, personnel counts. We analyze different business unit groups within a company, work patterns, challenge the way they're currently using space, use of existing furniture. Eventually, we make a recommendation.

For cost estimates and budget, we'll pull in John.

We're the ones who determine what furnishings need to be included in the design. John does the actual design ordering and fulfillment.

Isn't it really difficult for workers to give up space, their own private little corners of the corporate landscape, to make this work?

Anderson: It's probably one of those things we're going to have to work with the individual person and see what their needs and wants are.

Some will say it's great. It helps the company become successful and comes back to my pocket. Everyone's not going to react that way. For some people, it's going to be a demotivator. They need a little more personal attention.

It needs to be handled intelligently. Ask employees what their needs are and help them through change.

What's the potential for hoteling?

Anderson: Imagine an Embassy Suites today where the front is an office and in back is a bedroom. Someone comes in from out of town and uses that facility.

Huth: For consultants, it's as easy to serve clients from across the country . . . as the world gets smaller due to transportation.

'The best way to help people adjust is set up a corporate culture. Realistically, it's going to have to come from the top down. It can't be just workers, but everyone.'

from page 1F

"We're trying to keep the price down for people to get in here," Gerish said. "They can always upgrade. We're giving a lot with the foyer, open space, closets, pantry."

"It's probably the lowest price for the square footage they can buy in Canton with the Plymouth-Canton schools," Cook said.

The Hampshire offers more traditional boxing of space on the main floor — the living room/dining room, family room and kitchen/nook.

The Ashbury is more open and angular with a bridge overlooking the foyer and the kitchen nestled among the nook, dining room and family room.

"This house has a lot of pizazz for 1,700 square feet," Cook said.

The exteriors are brick, vinyl siding and wood trim. The subdivision is serviced by city water and sewers and sidewalks.

"This will be a family development with a lot of people coming in from apartments," Cook said. "We've got a lot of action from the cities to the east of us, Westland and Garden City. They're selling for $100,000 and use that money as a second step up and first brand new house."

The property tax rate for township, county and school services is about $31 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value. That means the owner of a $150,000 house in Pheasant Creek would face an annual tax bill of about $2,325.

Chris and Sue Elder are building a four-bedroom Hampshire for their family of three.

"It's at the end of a cul-de-sac," Chris said. "It's real private back there. I have a nice yard. The school (Field Elementary) is right next door. Dollar for dollar, after shopping through Canton, I think this was the best buy.

"I like the way they executed the floor plan," Elder continued. "There's no wasted space. The family room adjoins the kitchen. I like the dramatic entrance. I think resale value will be outstanding."

The Elders selected several options including fireplace, whirlpool tub and air conditioning.

Duane and Shawna Stothers have purchased a three-bedroom Hampshire for their family of three.

"For the price, square footage and area, we thought this was the place to go," Duane said. "We're real close to a school. Highways are right there. We like Canton."

They also like the house.

"I loved the elevation," he said. "It made it look like a much richer house. The layout was nice. There's a nice, open space in the foyer when you go in."

The Stothers also upgraded with a whirlpool tub, fireplace and air conditioning.

The sales model (397-5956) at Pheasant Creek is open noon-6 p.m. daily, closed Thursdays.

MARKETPLACE

■ TENNYSON DONATES
Tennyson Chevrolet of Livonia has helped fuel the fire to rescue injured and homeless animals by providing 500 gallons of gasoline for emergency vehicles of the Michigan Humane Society Rescue Division.

"We are a family dealership and understand the importance of a family pet," said owner Kit Tennyson. "We want to provide assistance to the Michigan Humane Society in their efforts to rescue not only pets who have become lost or injured, but the many abandoned animals who need families."

Tennyson, who adopted his own family's cat from the MHS Westland Shelter 15 years ago, donated gasoline for every vehicle purchased during the month of May at the dealership.

MHS operates 365 days a year from 8 a.m.-9 p.m., assisting more than 7,000 animals annually.

■ ELSIE TO VISIT
Bob's of Canton will host Elsie, Borden's spokescow, along with her baby, Beau, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday Aug. 5 at the store on Lilley just south of Joy. Visitors will receive a special Juice Stix giveaway.

The purpose of the promotion is to increase the sale of Borden's Ice Cream in this area. Elsie has been spokescow for Borden products since the 1930s.

■ DEA AWARD
DEA, a manufacturer of coordinate measuring systems in Livonia, has received a Chrysler Quality Excellence Award for demonstrated commitment to supply excellence in quality, delivery, price and customer support/technology.

This is the second year in a row that DEA has been recognized with a Chrysler QE Award.

DEA, a business unit of DEA S.p.a. of Turin, Italy, employs about 65 in Livonia.

GARAGE GARAGE GARAGE GARAGE Sale

Now is the time to clear out those closets, attics, basements and garages and make some quick cash in the process.

How do you plan a garage sale?

It's easy!

Just follow these simple guidelines:

1. Gather together the items you have for sale. Sort them into appropriate categories and price them fairly.
2. Place a classified advertisement in The Observer & Eccentric by calling one of the numbers below.
3. Hang signs throughout your neighborhood alerting residents to the upcoming sale.
4. Decide what to do with all the money you'll have after your sale!

Or, if you love to bargain-hunt and would rather shop then sell, be sure to look for our special garage sale listings every Monday and Thursday in your hometown newspaper. Observer & Eccentric classifieds make it easy to earn money and save money. Discover for yourself, today!

WRITE IT AND REAP!

Writing a classified ad that gets results—whether it be for real estate, employment, the personals, transportation, or merchandise— is easy if you follow the guidelines below.

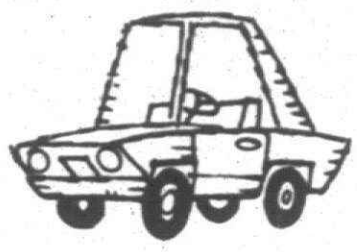

1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!

2. Include the price. Don't waste your time or a potential buyer's time. If you advertise the price of the item or service you offer, the people who respond to your ad will be those who are genuinely interested. Surveys show that readers are more interested in those items and services they know are within their price range.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as EIK (eat-in kitchen) or WSW (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.

4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a sale!

5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it! Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.
