Crash survivors out of hospital

Three survivors of a small plane crash on Saturday in Plymouth Township have been released from the hospital. Meanwhile, plans are being made to honor a Detroit man who helped rescue them from the plane.

Three people who survived a small plane crash Saturday in Plymouth Township have been released from the hospital.

Patty Gillelan, 52, of Plymouth Township and Delores Cochran, 58, of Ypsilanti, were released Monday from St. Mary Hospital in Livonia.

Lloyd Cochran, 61, of Ypsilanti, was taken by helicopter Saturday to the University of Michigan Medical Center and released from the center on Sunday.

The crash killed pilot Lawrence Gillelan, 58, of Plymouth Township. He had taken off from Mettetal Airport in Canton on Joy and Lilley roads, and was trying to land it in a small field due to engine trouble when the crash happened.

Plymouth Township Police Chief Carl Berry said one of the passengers reported that the plane's engine had cut out and the pilot was trying to glide the airplane to the field, where it crashed.

"Everybody here is sort of flabbergasted," said Bill Brown, head of the Plymouth-Canton Aviation Association, who was at the airport on Tuesday. "They're all in shock."

"I've been here since 1964 and can't remember anyone being seriously hurt," Brown said. "He was a well-liked guy, he was very enthusiastic about any new piece of equipment coming out."

Plymouth Township Fire Chief Larry Groth said officials plan to recognize the effort of Darrell Perry, 34, of Detroit, who helped drag the survivors from the burning airplane following the crash.

Wood beam home's more than a dream

BY JEFF COUNTS

For 17 years Larry and Sharon Waliagora of Canton dreamed of building a timber frame home in a rural area of Canton Township.

Then last week that dream came true. The trucks filled with oak 8-by-12s and 12-by-12s arrived and a crane and workmen put the beams in place. It is the only all-wood timber frame home in Canton Township, according to officials.

"You'll be able to see all the wood beams from the inside of the house," said Sharon, as she took time out from watching the house go up.

The highlight on a recent day was the hammering in of the first wooden pegs that connect the wood timbers. But Larry and Sharon took turns hammering pegs.

Beam construction is an age-old form of building and has been used for centuries in Europe and America, said Larry Waliagora. It's the type of construction most associated with barns in the American countryside, he said.

"We both fell in love with the looks about 17 years ago when we went to a builder's show and we've always wanted a house made that way," he said, adding that the structure is "probably

Woman pleads guilty

By Jill Halpin
Staff Writer

A Novi woman arrested in connection with running a prostitution operation in Canton pleaded guilty to reduced charges of accosting and soliciting.

Ki Yon Martin, 48, appeared in 35th District Court on Thursday before Judge James Garber and didn't contest charges stemming from her July 26 arrest at the Ocean Brite Tanning Salon in the 43000 block of Michigan Avenue. Sentencing is set for Sept. 20.

Martin and Chae Sim O'Keefe, 43, of Chicago, Ill., were arrested in a police raid on the tanning salon following a more than four-month police investigation by the Canton Township Police Department. Police had received solicitation complaints about the business.

O'Keefe pleaded guilty on Sept. 2 to reduced charges of attempted accosting and soliciting and was fined $260.

Prosecutors are also awaiting word on a motion to close down the business. Larry Roberts, a Wayne County prosecutor, said that a civil padlock case has been filed in Wayne County Circuit Court. Roberts said that ruling will be part of the final settlement of the case.

"We did not seek to incarcerate these people. The goal of the township police was to close the prostitution business down and send a message to the public that this is serious and will be dealt with at a certain level," Roberts said.

over built."

He said that a similar house in the South recently survived a hurricane, while other nearby homes were demolished.

The oak timbers not only provide support for the 3,000-square-foot home, but also will be exposed on the inside of the home, providing different aesthetics to the inside. Most homes, even though they are built of wood, are constructed with 2-by-4s and are covered with drywall on the inside.

Some of the inside exposed beams in the Waliagora home have carved designs on them that will be visible. Also, the beams for the floor support of the second story will be ceiling beams in the main areas of the home on the first floor.

The home was pre-cut at a plant in Toledo and shipped via truck to the Canton Township site off of Sheldon Center Road.

Crash victims buried as investigation continues

A Westland couple was buried Tuesday as authorities continued investigating the Aug. 31 auto accident in Canton in which the couple died.

Services for Samir and Nadia Ansara, ages 44 and 36 respectively, were held at St. Mary's Orthodox Church in Livonia. Interment was at Parkview Memorial Cemetery, Livonia.

The Ansaras are survived by their daughters Tina, 16, and Lisa, 12, who were riding in the back seat when the family's Cadillac Seville struck a Canton Fire Department ambulance about midnight.

According to police, witnesses said the driver, Samir Ansara, disregarded a red blinking light at the intersection of Canton Center and Warren roads where the accident occurred.

After impact, the Cadillac traveled 300 feet over a landscaped berm and landed in the Oakwood Medical Center parking lot.

Samir Ansara and his wife were pronounced dead at the scene by a physician from Oakwood Medical Center.

Tina, flown by MedFlite to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Superior Township, suffered closed head and back injuries; a dislocated hip; damage to her right eye; a chipped tooth; and multiple lacerations. An extrication tool called the Jaws of Life was used to remove her from the car.

Lisa was able to get out of the car unassisted. She also was transported to St. Joseph Mercy, where she was being tested for internal injuries, said Lt. Charles Schumacher of the Michigan State Police. The State Police investigate accidents involving township fire and police personnel.

In the ambulance were firefighters Thomas Lutkenhoff, the driver, and Mark Price, the passenger.

Lutkenhoff, 30, suffered a closed head injury when he struck the windshield. He received seven stitches to the top of the head at St. Joseph Mercy, said Schumacher. Lutkenhoff was stable, conscious and alert after the accident, but has no recollection of what happened. Price, 33, was treated for leg injuries and released.

"Witnesses indicated there was no type of stop," said Schumacher. "The car went through the intersection. The emergency vehicle was within its rights in traveling northbound on Canton Center Road" when the Ansaras were struck broadside.

It's not yet known how fast the vehicles were traveling, nor what the drivers' blood alcohol levels were, said Schumacher.

Canton Police Officer Tammie Colling said police and firefighters in Canton "are feeling quite badly. Any time you're going to render assistance for one individual and something happens with such tragic consequences, it's only normal that we would feel deeply affected and hurt by the incidents."

The ambulance was on its way to Lincolnshire Apartments, responding to a request for medical help in a domestic dispute, said Canton Fire Chief Mike Rorabacher.

Responding to the scene were units from Plymouth Township, Westland and Livonia.

'94 Fall Festival offers fun for all

By Kevin Brown
Staff Writer

This year's Plymouth Fall Festival is big on tradition, but there are a few changes for the annual event Friday through Sunday.

"We have some new rides and entertainment for kids," said festival manager John Bida.

The festival traditionally provides a range of activities in the area around Kellogg Park. Food booths and food events provide area service clubs a chance to raise money to pay for activities that benefit the community. The traditional highlight of food events is the Rotary chicken barbecue on Sunday.

Festival opening ceremonies are scheduled for 6-6:30 p.m. Friday at the festival stage off of Kellogg Park.

In some other changes this year, a part of Main Street between Penniman and Fralick, usually blocked off during the three-day festival, will only be blocked off on Sunday.

And this year, some festival activities will happen on Ann Arbor Trail between Union and Forest, causing that section of street to be closed to traffic.

"There's going to be art in a bottle, an Orbitron gyroscope you get into, a Velcro wall, kiddie rides, and some new musical entertainment this year," Bida said.

Opening ceremonies are followed by bingo sponsored by the Plymouth Business and Professional Women at The Gathering.

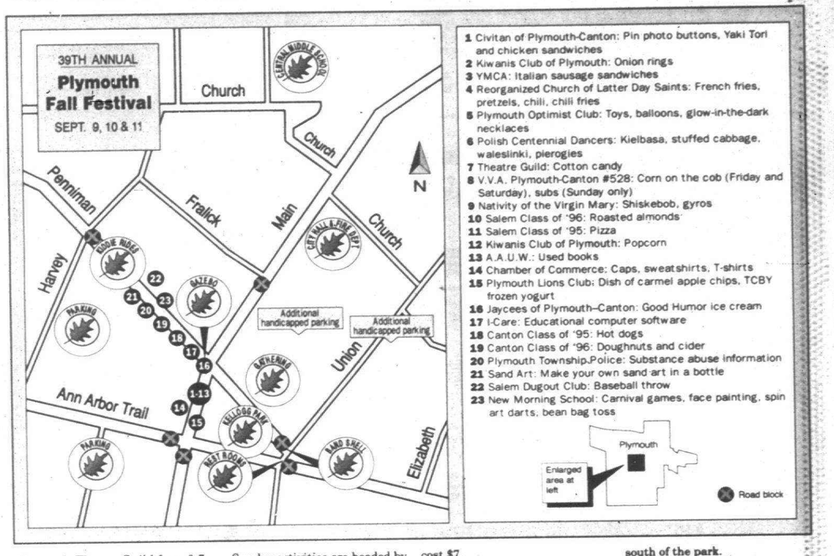
From 6:30-7:30 p.m. at the festival stage the Canton Senior Citizens Kitchen Band performs. The Plymouth Community Band follows, from 7:30-8:30 p.m.

Saturday morning activities open with the Kiwanis pancake breakfast; cost is $5.

At the festival stage Saturday, the Plymouth Optimist Club Pet Show is scheduled from 9-11:30 a.m. Prize ribbons are available in separate contests for dogs, cats, best-dressed and most unusual pets.

The Friends of the Dunning-Hough Library feature stories from 11:30 to noon, the Detroit Edison Enviro-Magic Show follows from noon to 12:30 p.m. and the Polish Centennial Dancers perform from 12:30-1:30 p.m.

The Dancing Dinosaurs perform 1:30-2:15 p.m. followed by juggler and ventriloquist Tim Salisbury from 2:15-2:45 p.m., the Mask Puppet Theater from 2:45-3:45 p.m., Plymouth Youth Chorale from 3:45-4:15 p.m., Sixth Gate Cloggers from 4:15-5 p.m., Ambiance Trio from 5-6 p.m., Plymouth Theater Guild from 6-7 p.m., and karaoke — a top festival attraction the last two years — returns from 7-9:30 p.m.



Sunday activities are headed by the Rotary chicken barbecue from noon to 6 p.m. Advance tickets are $6, and tickets sold on Sunday cost $7.

Also Sunday, an antique car show featuring 100 classic cars happens on Ann Arbor Trail just south of the park.

There will be free kids' rides all three days, and the fire safety house will also be open.

Mettetal Advisory Board overseen by new chairman

By Jill Halpin
Staff Writer

When the Canton Plymouth Mettetal Airport Advisory Board was formed over a year ago, state and township officials were hopeful it would serve as a community forum for residents with concerns about the airport.

After a chaotic year dealing with issues ranging from airport traffic counts, the hiring of a new airport manager and the dismissal of another, the hopes are still there. And newly-elected board chairman Mark Merlanti intends to keep it that way.

"I want to keep the board the place that the public can go to find information about airport issues," Merlanti said.

The Canton resident was appointed to the board last year by Canton Township Supervisor Tom Yack, and will replace former chairman Ed Wendover, who will remain a board member.

Wendover, of Plymouth, was appointed to board by the state. Appointments to the seven-member board were made last fall following an agreement between the township and the state to form a citizens committee prior to the state's $4 million purchase of the airport.

The township was allowed to make two appointments, the city of Plymouth made one appointment and the state made the remaining four appointments.

Merlanti said that his election and the election of board member Barb Bergenty as vice chairman won't represent any major change of board policy.

"This board has been very productive under Ed's leadership. I am hopeful that pilots, citizens and the state representatives will continue to attend meetings," Merlanti said.

Merlanti said that future goals for the airport include the development of airport rules and regulations.

Tougher penalties awaiting young people who drink, smoke

By M.B. Dillon
Staff Writer

Michigan young people and their parents are facing stiffer penalties for drinking and driving, smoking, and allowing and partaking in alcohol consumption on private property.

Beginning Nov. 1, those under 21 apprehended for drinking and driving risk losing their driver's license for 90 days and being fined $250. They may also be ordered to perform community service. Repeat offenders face a one-year license suspension and a $500 fine.

The law lowers the illegal blood alcohol level for minors from .10 to .02 percent.

Even a trace of alcohol in the bloodstream can result in a .02 reading.

"The rationale behind the law," said Susan Davis, director of community services for the Plymouth human services agency Growth Works, "is that substance abuse among young people has increased dramatically in the last 20 years."

On June 1, a law went into effect prohibiting homeowners from "knowingly allowing a minor to consume or possess alcoholic beverages at social gatherings" on private premises.

A first offense is a misdemeanor punishable by imprisonment for up to 30 days; a maximum fine of $1,000, or both. A second offense is punishable by imprisonment for up to 90 days and a fine of up to $1,000.

Under a law that became effective last September, minors caught smoking can be charged with a violation of the public health code. The misdemeanor is punishable by a fine of $50.

Area law enforcement officers, who have a zero-tolerance policy, welcome the legislation.

"It gives us a little better handle on the enforcement end of it," said Plymouth Township's Carl Berry, "It used to be that if we did something, the revolving door policy went into effect. The offender would either get slapped on the hand, or get a call (from Wayne County probate court) saying, 'Don't bother coming down, but don't do it again.'

"Under this, they're going to have to do something with these young people coming in," he said.

While law enforcement agencies "aren't going to change much, it will definitely have an impact on sentencing," Berry said. "It should leave an impression so they don't do what they're doing wrong again. It's a wake-up call to these kids. Once they find out there is a penalty connected with it, most will quit doing what is perceived to be illegal."

Mike Gillespie, clinical director at Growth Works, also welcomes the laws.

"Parents get carried away with their jobs and their own addictions to work, food, sex and drugs. They get preoccupied and caught up with their own egos, and they're unaware that their kids are addicted," he said. "The American Dream is to have three or four cars, a $150,000 house, a cottage and all those other fantasy things. They think success and wellness is providing material things."

Davis agrees the legislation is needed.

"A survey done in our area recently showed our kids are using at a rate higher than the national average. That should say something; that our kids are using more. We should be concerned, and I don't know that we are."

"We'll probably have some sort of ceremony," Groth said, adding that it has yet to be scheduled.

Mark Merlanti, chairman of the Canton Plymouth Mettetal Advisory Board, said he expects a bigger than average turnout for the board's next public meeting Oct. 6.

The airport had generated controversy in recent years among members of the public opposed to the effort to have the state of Michigan buy the airport with the help of a federal grant.

Merlanti said Tuesday, "This accident had nothing to do with public ownership of the airport," adding pilots at Mettetal heard the engine of the aircraft making unusual noises.

Typically, the federal Air Transportation Safety Board, which investigates such mishaps including this one, doesn't report findings until months after a crash.

"As a board we won't know very much more by the next meeting," Merlanti said. "How detailed of a report we can give within a month remains to be seen," he said, adding the board doesn't have the resources to conduct its own investigation.

"I think the engine is going to the manufacturer for analysis," Merlanti said, adding that at the next public meeting, "What we want to do is have a person from the state be there," to answer questions from the public.

He said representatives from the board were already scheduled to make an annual report before both the Canton and Plymouth Township boards of trustees Sept. 27, adding the subject of the crash would likely arise.

The Oct. 6 airport board meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. at the airport.

Physics night features force fields

The Ann Arbor Hands-On Museum has scheduled several activities for kids in the coming school year.

Family Physics Night is planned 6:30-9 p.m. Monday, Sept. 26. Families with children age 5 and older will explore electricity, magnetism, force fields, trick bikes and shattering bananas. The fee is $15 per family.

A program called Football Physics will continue throughout September. See football practice film footage and learn a few center-of-mass tricks. Demonstrations are set at 1 and 3 p.m. every Saturday, 2 and 4 p.m. every Sunday.

Thunderstorm Detectives is an interactive exhibition documenting how a team of scientists, mathematicians, engineers and policy-makers worked together to create a system that detects and warns aircraft pilots of dangerous weather conditions.

A video loop shows airport microburst footage and an animated graphic representation of how aircraft may be affected.

Thunderstorm Detectives also highlights programs designed to train air traffic controllers, aviation meteorologists and pilots.

Thurderstorm Detectives will be at the museum Sept. 27 to Nov. 7. The exhibition was developed by the National Center for Atmospheric Research with a grant from the National Science Foundation and additional support from the Federal Aviation Administration.

The museum is located in the renovated historic firehouse on East Huron Street at North Fifth Avenue in Ann Arbor.

There are 250 participatory exhibits that invite visitors to learn about science, art and cultures.

Interactive exhibits interrelate concepts of physics, mathematics, biology, physiology, botany and geology with art, history and technology.

The museum also offers classes and workshops, weekend demonstrations, special events and other informal educational programs.

Hours of operation are 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and 1-5 p.m. Sunday.

Admission is $4. Call (313) 995-5437.

Youth Living Centers aims to help children

Youth Living Centers has many other programs besides the newly created Safe Stay program.

Founded in 1975 as the Counterpoint Runaway Shelter, YLC today has 10 programs offering residential, prevention and community-based services for individuals from birth through age 21 and their families.

Based in Inkster, YLC serves all of southeastern Michigan.

The agency gets 93 percent of its money from state, county and federal governments. Its annual budget for fiscal year 1994 is $3.5 million.

More than 600 children a year are served in YLC's residential programs. More than 5,000 children and family members are reached through crisis calls, drop-in counseling, school presentations on drug prevention and other community programs.

A summary of YLC's programs follows:

■ The Counterpoint Shelter and Crisis Center offers a 10-bed shelter where runaway teens can stay for up to two weeks. In addition to daily individual, group and family counseling, Counterpoint offers 24-hour crisis phone counseling, information and referrals. Call Counterpoint at 563-5005..

■ The Youth Assistance Program aims to prevent seriously at-risk youth from entering the formal juvenile justice system. Last year, 93 individuals participated in the program. Educational services to families include parenting, stress reduction and adolescent development classes. Tutoring, mentoring and recreation are made available for kids. Call 728-3400.

■ The YLC Drug Abuse Prevention Program annually counsels about 400 individuals ages 11-21. The program works with individuals who are currently runaway or homeless, or who have been runaway or homeless for at least 24 hours within the past year.

■ The Operation Rebound program helps homeless men from Detroit find jobs and housing. Homeless individuals ages 16-21 may be placed in boarder homes, apartments, or with family. Employment counselors work with the participants, helping them schedule interviews and arrange transportation.

■ The Future Works program, scheduled to begin in October, will put formerly homeless men to work renovating three abandoned, dilapidated houses in Inkster. Upon completion of renovation work, the houses will be used as transitional housing for a minimum of 20 individuals.

■ The Supervised Independent Living program helps homeless individuals ages 16-19, who are wards of the state, to make successful transitions to adulthood. Participants take classes in personal budgeting, health and hygiene, cooking and shopping, job skills, legal rights and interpersonal relationships.

■ Youth Living Centers is also one of several agencies the county government contracts with to provide adoption services for children taken away from their parents.

Volunteers needed

YLC has a paid staff of more than 70, but depends heavily on volunteers.

The following types of volunteers are needed: mentors, special events assistants, youth sponsors, maintenance workers, painters, clerical workers, tutors, foster grandparents, furniture repairmen, public speakers, art directors, graphic artists, writers, calligraphers, typesetters, computer operators and receptionists.

Also, YLC is always on the lookout for donations of cash and goods. Some of the goods needed are diapers, baby clothing, baby furniture, disposable cameras, tickets to events for children, children's books, children's art supplies, birthday cards, personal care/hygiene kits, toiletries for men and women, household goods, new or lightly used furniture, non-perishable food items, Christmas gifts for teens, new computers, typewriters and adding machines.

For more information, call 728-3400.

New YLC program focuses on prevention

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

The Youth Living Centers social service agency will add a new program aimed at preventing the formation of dysfunctional families.

"Safe Stay Crisis Nursery and Family Respite Care Center" begins Sept. 15. Under the program, YLC expects to house up to 16 children — from infants to 9-year-olds — for as long as 30 days each in two houses in Westland, near Newburgh and Palmer.

A full-time staff of 19 and numerous volunteers will care for the children of families in crisis, plus drug-affected infants, medically fragile infants, and abandoned babies.

The idea is to give folks a place to put their children while they sort out their problems.

"The parents need the kids to be in a safe place while they take care of that crisis," said Melinda Clynes, assistant development director.

The aim is to stop the development of dysfunctional families before parents start neglecting or beating their kids.

Established in 1975, YLC focuses most of its effort in the area of treatment. Prevention is not so easy to get funding for, said Ouida Cash, executive director of YLC.

"It's a little like pulling almost-drowned children and families out of a river for years, then deciding to go upstream and keep them from falling in," she said.

Many people who get into treatment programs, Cash said, are "practically unsavable," so prevention programs make sense. The treatment system, she said, "is a wonderful system if you need it, but it's very tough to get out of."

The program is funded for a period of two years by a grant of $666,000 from the Skillman Foundation and $964,000 from Detroit-Wayne County Community Mental Health.

YLC plans to keep the Safe Stay houses open 24 hours per day and to serve at least 200 children per year.

The children will receive physical, developmental, psychological and behavioral assessments, medical exams and health care.

Families will receive support services, including 24-hour crisis intervention, counseling services, parenting classes, and psychological evaluations.

Drive-through flu shots offered

American Family Care in Livonia and the Royal Oak Medical Center are offering drive-thru flu shots 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturdays, Sept. 10 and 17.

"Flu season is just around the corner, and we wanted to encourage people to protect themselves against the illness," said Dr. M. George, director for both centers, in a press release.

George began offering the shots in 1992. One patient who took advantage of the drive-thru immunization was Troy resident Teryl Watch.

"I was grocery shopping at the Meijer behind the Royal Oak Medical Center and saw the sign," said Watch. "Even though I seem to get the flu every year, I never before took the time to be immunized. Since I was right there, and it was so convenient, I decided to get the shot," she said.

Who should get the flu shot? George said flu immunization is recommended for people, like Watch, who are prone to flu and for those with chronic illness like diabetes, asthma, hypertension, emphysema or bronchitis and for the elderly.

Flu shots cost $15 for individuals 17 and younger, $20 for individuals 18-59 and $15 for individuals 60 and older.

The Royal Oak Medical Center is located at 5130 Coolidge at Meijer Drive.

American Family Care is located at 19900 Haggerty Road, south of 8 Mile near Target.

For more information, call (810) 288-9500, or (313) 462-1990.

Teams of five bowlers each will generate donations enabling Junior Achievement to provide program materials to local schools.

Prizes will be awarded for participation.

Call Cora Masseth at (313) 255-3900 for more information.

Tomato contest pays big money

Somewhere in one of America's 29 million back yard gardens, a $100,000 tomato may lurk.

Gordon Graham, the current world champion tomato grower, found his 7-pound, 12-ounce gargantuan in August 1987 under the leaves of his cantaloupe patch.

Anyone who grows a tomato bigger than Graham's will be given $100,000 by Miracle-Gro, a fertilizer company.

The biggest documented tomato in the country so far this summer is a 4.35-pound monster grown by Minnie Zaccaria of New Jersey.

FAMILY ROOM

KAREN MEIER

Laughter eases anyone's soul

I'd been busy that afternoon. I mowed the lawn, bathed the baby, ironed great heaps of my husband's shirts, scrubbed the floor (washerwoman style), tended a knee boo-boo, swept grass clippings, laundered, folded, and put away underwear and socks, iced a bloody nose, concocted a spaghetti dinner for the children and, finally, ushered in the babysitter. I, though, was not ready, I was late. I'm always late. Late, late, late. Late Karen Meier. Hmmm, that sounds rather obituary-like. Well, so be it. I was about to die of embarrassment anyway. I was heading out to be the after-dinner speaker for the Plymouth Business and Professional Women's Club.

Once I'd arrived (late), I kept hoping a chicken bone would find its way into my plate of food and lodge in my throat and I would have to be carted away. Lots of drama AND I could save face, too, even if I passed on in the process. Anything would have been better than what I was facing.

A few weeks earlier, Mary Brooks, Plymouth Township's treasurer, had spoken on the phone with me. She'd read my columns and enjoyed them and so was inviting me to be the speaker at this dinner meeting. And, as I so often do, I

Edna: Canton's own L'il Angel

Edna McLaughlin's volunteer work at the Canton Seniors Center began in bits and pieces. Since then her work has made her known by just about everyone.

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Everybody seems to know Edna.

She's the voice you're likely to hear when you call the Canton Seniors Center. She's the one who answers questions, gets to know just about everyone, orders food for worthy causes, and even colors.

"Right now I'm making blue eyes," said Edna McLaughlin as she colored the eyes on a stack of drawings of teddy bears at the senior center, at the corner of Sheldon and Michigan Avenue.

McLaughlin didn't stop with the blue eyes. She added a red heart and red string bow - 250 of them, to be exact - to the drawings, which are sold for $1 to raise money for the Canton Goodfellows.

"I do have some little angels who help me out," McLaughlin said of the seniors at the center. "They (Goodfellows contributors) can hang the teddy bears in the center or take them home, whatever they want to do.

"Every year it's a different thing. Last year I did angels," continued McLaughlin - who, by the way, also decorates sweatshirts to raffle for the Goodfellows.

McLaughlin is the No. 1 volunteer at the senior center. She's not there every day, but she's there enough to make quite a difference for the seniors - and for Diane Neihengen and Pat Tanski, who run the center and its myriad of programs.

McLaughlin belonged to the Zesters seniors group since 1986. A former supervisor at Michigan Bell, the 10-year Canton resident retired to care for her ailing mother. When her mom died, McLaughlin felt lost.

"I missed the people contact," she said, adding that she offered to volunteer if Neihengen and Tanski needed help. "I told Diane that I was so lonesome and that if they needed help, I would help." Her volunteer career was born.

"The only thing I don't have to do is scrub floors," she said. "I don't consider myself old, but I'm right up there with the seniors."

Her volunteering at the center began in bits and pieces. "Little by little, something just happened," McLaughlin said. "I can handle the office now when they (Neihengen and Tanski) aren't here."

In addition to answering phones and questions, McLaughlin sets up appointments for the seniors for flu shots and tax help. She's also the one who makes name tags for events such as the center's St. Patrick's Day party and helps with the various clubs and groups within the senior center's programming. She also orders about 50 boxes of food for the monthly Focus: Hope food pickup. Actually, McLaughlin does whatever needs doing. And she likes that.

"I love the people here. I love the contact. It has helped me," said

McLaughlin, whose daughter and sister also live in Canton. "When you volunteer, it makes you feel good."

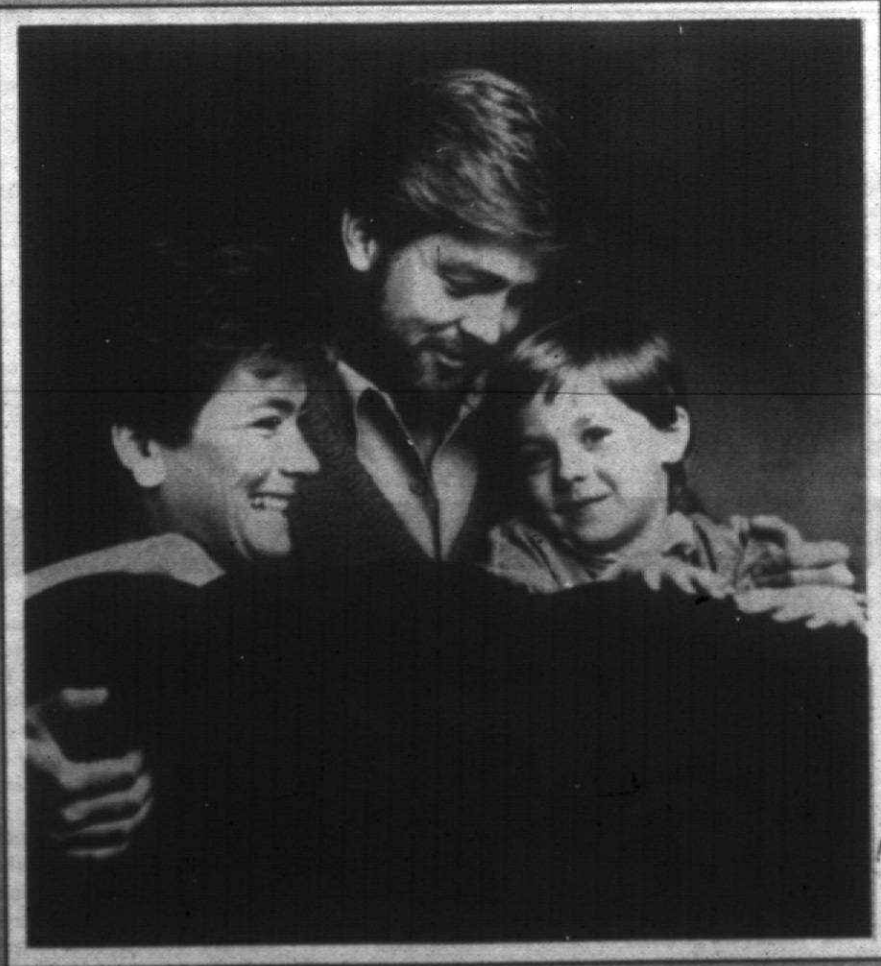
Family Matters.



If you're ready for a new branch on the family tree, chances are your anticipation is growing as quickly as your baby.

And you're not the only one. Having babies is a family affair, and everyone else involved is also wondering what to expect from the new arrival. That's why St. Mary Hospital offers classes designed to give a well-rounded, family-oriented view of childbirth.

Whether you expect to be a new parent or plan on enlarging your family, you can learn a great deal from our nurses and other staff who are also family people. And you'll have the chance to be with a group of soon-to-be parents who have many of the same concerns and questions that you do.

If these kinds of family matters matter to you, talk with your doctor about St. Mary Hospital. Or call us at (313) 464-WELL. We will answer all your questions and help you find a physician if you need one. Because when it comes to family-centered childbirth . . . we deliver.

Jacob-Jarzembowski

John and Mildred Jacob of Livonia announce the engagement of their daughter, Julia, to Stephen Jarzembowski, son of Raymond and Patricia Jarzembowski of Livonia.

The bride-to-be is a graduate of the University of Michigan with a bachelor of science degree in industrial engineering. She is pursuing a master of science in industrial engineering. She is employed by Auto Alliance International of Flat Rock.

Her fiance is a graduate of the University of Michigan with a master of science civil engineering degree, and a bachelor of science in civil engineering. He is employed by Stante Excavating of Canton.

An October wedding is planned in St. Priscilla's of Livonia.

ANNIVERSARIES

Bunk

Congratulations are in store for former Livonia residents John and Jeanette Bunk, who are celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary Aug. 31.

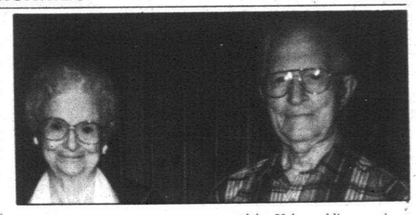
He is the former Livonia fire chief, while she spent many years helping out as a "lunchroom mom" in the Livonia Public Schools.

Home for the Bunks is Elk Rapids — and Elk Lake specifically — north of Traverse City. They also winter in Florida with many of their Livonia friends and colleagues.

He is still an avid fisherman, and is out at dawn on Lake Michigan in hopes of hooking yet another big one.

They have fond memories of the years spent in their home on Ann Arbor Trail with their daughter Michelle, now of Roseville, and son Michael of Boston, Mass.

Gateman



Fifty-seven guests joined with Wilbur and Velma Gateman recently at the Botsford Inn in Farmington Hills to celebrate the couple's 60th wedding anniversary.

The Gatemans — he is age 89 and she is age 83 — have lived in Redford for 42½ years.

Michigan Bell. But she'll tell you the truth. Volunteering is better. "If I don't feel good, I don't have to worry." Truth is that in summer you probably won't find her there every day. But come fall she's there every day except Fridays. "I only ever had two sick days in 25 years," she said of her Michigan Bell career.

McLaughlin believes that telephone company training paid off in more ways than one. She learned how to talk to and help people; she learned to listen and be patient — something of a lost art these days. "I know what to say to people."

Word around the center is that another one of McLaughlin's talents includes cooking and baking. In fact, someone mentioned something about the most delicious chocolate chip cookies they've ever eaten.

But there's no doubt it's the people McLaughlin works with and encounters that keep her coming back for more. "They are wonderful people. We've lost so many nice people, but we have a lot of nice new ones," she said. "To me, you're never lonely when you volunteer. You just get a warm, good feeling."

Life for Down man on upswing

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Steven Kloc was born 29 years ago with Down syndrome. Even so, his parents always dreamed that he would lead an independent life. When he turned 16, his parents believed that meant putting him in a group home.

"Our dream has been that he would not spend his whole life living with us. We wanted him to have the opportunity to leave home and lead a life like his brother and sister. The only (question) was how we wanted that to happen. When he was 16, we thought a group home would be a place to go," said his mother, Sylvia Kloc, who is an advocate with ARC, an organization that works with mentally handicapped children.

As he grew older, Steven Kloc, who communicates through sign language, and his family realized that group homes and institutions wouldn't be best for him.

"Five or six years ago I realized that living in a group home isn't exactly what most people do," said Sylvia Kloc said. "Living in a group home is like going off to college and living in a dormitory. People do that for a time but that's not how you spend your whole life."

So together they made a decision that would seem unfathomable to most people.

They let him get his own apartment near the family's home in Livonia. He got to choose where and with whom he lived. He was even able to help choose his staff.

That was two years ago and Kloc has seen remarkable progress.

"He seems to be much more of a person. He's very opinionated about what he will wear, as opposed to when he lived at home and mom laid out all his clothes. Turning on the stove was a frightening thing for me to see him do. (Now) he's doing that, doing the laundry, doing a lot more with the shopping and stuff."

The Klocs, the Mental Health Association and Wayne Community Living Services feel that this is an appropriate living arrangement. To prove this to other parents, the Mental Health Association is filming a documentary about alternative living arrangements that are available for people with developmental disabilities or mental illness. For the project they enlisted the help of "Life Goes On" star Chris Burke, who was also born with Down syndrome. The production team along with Burke filmed a segment at Kloc's Livonia apartment last week on the suggestion of Allen Gruenke of WCLS.

An advocate for people with Down syndrome, Burke was overjoyed that project coordinator Scott Walker asked him to participate.

"Scott got me involved with this. I think it's really great," Burke said as Walker patted him on the back. "Filmmaking is my career. I'd love to do behind the scenes work."

The goal, Walker said, is to make the videotape available to community organizations so that caregivers won't have to go to large organizations, which can often be intimidating, to seek information. Sylvia Kloc said it will also show two sides of Down syndrome.

"When people in Michigan think of people living in independent living programs, they think of someone like Chris Burke who's articulate and appears to be very competent. They don't think of Steven who is nonverbal and appears to be not able to do very much but who really does.

"I really think that this is how most people with mental retardation should be able to live," Kloc added.

spoke way before I thought. I was so flattered, you see, so star struck, that I said, "Of course, I'll do it!"

Once I got off the phone I scooped 2-year-old Joe up in my arms and charged around the family room yelling, "I'm gonna do!" Then I stopped, dead, plunked Joe down, threw my arms straight out in front of me and screamed hysterically, "How'm I gonna do that?"

From that moment on, I couldn't bear thinking about this commitment I'd made. Now it's not that I'm a shrinking violet or wallflower or any other type of scared flora, it's just that this was too horrifying. This group consisted of professional and business women who wear pantyhose and pumps on a daily basis. And have initials — CEO, MBA, Ph.D., J.D., VIP; I would need CPR.

Granted, I've been in front of crowds before. I acted in plays in high school and college. But there you hide behind the words written in the script and you are a character, not yourself. You dress in a costume and wear thick glop on your face. And they spell your name wrong in the program. And as a teacher for several years teaching both high school and college classes, my lectures focused on the subject matter. Shakespeare and Hemingway and grammatical errors and onomatopoeia.

Oh why, oh why, did I ever lose my marbles like that on the phone and accept?

But accept I did. And one thing I'm not, and that's a quitter. If I said I'll do it, I'll do it. Unless a chicken bone in my throat does me in first.

That night, before I spoke, everyone there introduced themselves by way of giving their name and their business. I figured since I was the guest and not a member I would be excluded from this. But, oh no. The woman next to me stood, introduced herself, sat down, and nudged me. What was I going to say? What would you say? Remember you're surrounded by women who have been in their offices all day, answering phones, going to meetings, writing memos, hiring people, doing lunch, preparing briefs. And there you are, all day washing briefs.

I did introduce myself and I did speak. I also perspired as I've never perspired before. I was the Mother of Perspiration. I felt like the deer in the wild who accidentally bounds across the road and the lights of a car freeze it and its eyes roll back in its head. That was me.

I stood at the podium (me, standing at a podium, with a microphone attached no less, what a thing) and they laughed. The jury is still out on whether they were laughing with me or at me. But the point is, they laughed. And that's good. I hear it heals all things, except maybe a chicken bone in the throat.

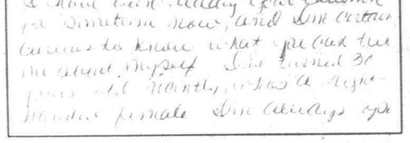
Writer has strong interest in social life

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

LORENE GREEN



Lorene,

I have been reading your column for sometime now, and I'm certainly curious to know what you can tell me about myself. I've turned 30 years old recently, who's a right-handed female. I'm always open to different forms of self-analysis, which has, and always will be a part of my life. I'm looking forward to your response.

A.P.,
Plymouth

Today's sample is written large, with most of the movement in the middle zone. So, at this time, we see a young woman with a strong interest in social life and herself. Mundane events of daily living are all-encompassing. She may make large issues of trivial matters. Seemingly, she needs room for the expression of her personality and knows how to get it. Boredom may also be present.

She has a natural desire to relate to other people. However, she is often quite reticent, not willing to divulge information of a personal nature. Protection of her own interests is a priority item.

This is a peace-loving person. Her dislike of unpleasantness and her need to get along smoothly with others may go back a long way.

To promote a peaceful atmosphere and gain approval from others she has learned to please and appease them.

Other people may not always understand our writer. Often she can be friendly and talkative, but other times quiet and possibly moody. This behavior can be confusing and also makes it difficult for her to develop close friendships.

When relationships or situations do not progress as she might like them to, she can become defensive and come up with a quick retort. At this point, sarcasm may be used to drive her point home.

Our writer appears to be a bit of a rebel. She wants to be independent and does not wish to be held back, by either past roots or traditional norms. Seemingly, some emotional deprivation from the formative years has not been completely resolved.

Many signs in this handwriting suggest feelings of insecurity just beneath the surface. She often feels threatened. She wants to mature and move on with her life. Being open to different forms of self analysis should be most helpful in this pursuit. An open mind is always a positive asset.

Long-range planning is not her forte. She may be setting goals that she is comfortable with, but not challenging enough. I'm reminded of a cliche that might be worth considering: "Aim for the moon; if you miss, you'll still fall among the stars."

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to: Lorene G. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft Road, Livonia, MI 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and signature are all helpful. Objective feedback is always welcome.

Ice time

Arena would improve Canton

Canton Township should look seriously at adding an ice arena to its civic center to serve the recreational needs of its residents.

Last week, more than 90 people lined up over night to sign up their children to play hockey at the Plymouth Cultural Center. But not all were able to play because of the scarcity of ice time at the facility.

Canton is a young and growing community, where the role of local government has been to provide recreational facilities.

The township has built one golf course, Fellows Creek, and is in the process of building another. Also, the township is building Summit on the Park, a $13 million recreation facility with swimming pools, work-out rooms and meeting rooms.

Adding an ice arena to the project would be a fine idea, and would enhance the quality of life for Canton residents who either skate want to participate in hockey.

There's an ample market for youth hockey, as is evident from the recent Plymouth Cultural Center hockey registration.

Supervisor Tom Yack contends that hockey and figure skating are cyclical and that there may not be a market for a second arena in the area.

We think that Yack is jumping to a conclusion too quickly. Canton is close to the communities of Ann Arbor, Ypsilanti and Van Buren Townships. Before Canton says no to an ice area, it would make sense to determine the demand for ice time.

However, there's another hockey issue that was rightly identified by parents. The Plymouth-Canton schools don't have hockey teams or clubs. The nearby community of Livonia has a thriving high school hockey league.

It should be acknowledged that the schools haven't exactly been rolling in money in recent years and hockey is an expensive sport. However, the issue of why the schools encourage certain sports to the exclusion of others should be addressed by the school board and interested parents.

If there were high school hockey teams, chances are there would be a built-in demand for ice time. Also, there would be an outlet for youths who play the sport.

College hockey scholarships are just as available as those for football, baseball, basketball or band members.

It's time for Canton Township to look at serving the entire community when it comes to recreation and not just those who play golf or use a fitness facility. Also, it's time for the school district to take a look at offering hockey teams, even if it's done on a club, rather than varsity sport, basis.

Keep local music, theater alive

The Observer's new section, Let's Go!, is a reminder to area residents that live music and theater are an integral part of what makes our communities so special. While putting the new section together, editors and reporters talked to many local residents involved in the operation of and fund-raising for the Livonia, Redford and Plymouth symphony orchestras, the Farmington Philharmonic, and many community theater groups.

The list of local groups is impressive, but it also sends a message that in order to maintain the number and quality of the groups, the community must support them. The "arts" have struggled the last few years in the wake of budget cuts at the state and federal levels.

Community orchestras - like those in Livonia, Farmington, Plymouth and Redford - have varied degrees of experience in terms of musicians and in terms of history. They play music with individual flair and emotion and they appeal to different audiences.

What area community orchestras all seem to have in common, however, is that financial support is difficult to come by.

Community theaters also require a wide range of talents to produce their shows. The lights, sound, scenery and performances you see on stage are only the tip of the iceberg.

There are ads to place and tickets to sell, programs to write, posters to design, newsletters to mail, buildings to maintain, insurance to obtain and costumes to sew. All of this work is done by volunteers.

You can help in many ways. The music and theater groups need an audience, so buy a ticket and enjoy yourself. A season schedule appears on page 2B of the new section, Let's Go! You're sure to find a concert or play to suit your taste.

Also, stay tuned for information on fund-raisers for local groups. The orchestras sponsor at least one major fund-raising activity a year.

The LSO Sympony Society presents "Sunday, Songs and Symphony" on Oct. 2 in Laurel Park Place Mall. Tickets at $20 in advance and $25 at the door feature food from area restaurants and bakeries, music, prizes, and a silent auction. Proceeds help support the orchestra.

Support these local groups and make sure we keep the music alive and the stage lights shining.

Ice time needed

I am writing this letter in response to the article about the lack of ice that is available to Plymouth/Canton children. There are a lot of disappointed young hockey players in the Plymouth-Canton Township area this year.

The reason or their disappointment is the lack of ice time available at the Plymouth Cultural Center.

The lack of available ice time has caused the reduction of teams in the Plymouth/Canton Hockey Association.

The way that Canton and Plymouth Townships are growing should indicate that the number of children who live in this area will increase.

As the number of kids increase so will the need for more recreation services, and for the most part, Canton Township and Plymouth Township recreation department have met the need, with one exception ice arenas.

In the city of Detroit, a new ice arena was built called "City Sports Arena."

This ice rink was built for Detroit by one of Detroit's new trash/waste contractors.

It would be nice if Envotech, the owner/operator of Canton's large landfill's, would take such a interest in our children's need for a Canton Ice Arena.

Education weakened

I'd like to respond to "Governor strikes out at outcome based education" (Observer Sept. 1, 1994.)

As an educational philosopher, I too agree that public education should not be in the "value" or "belief" business - that is, requiring that students value or believe something. This has been my belief for the 22 years I have been in the classroom.

Public school is, however, in the 'knowledge," "skill," and "larger understanding" business and we can and do demand of our students that they demonstrate these. For example, I would not require that my students believe in the laws of gravity and motion (even though few critics would get in a sweat over it if I did).

I would, though, require that they demonstrate knowledge of the laws of gravity and motion and understanding of the basis for our belief in them. Further, I would require that students demonstrate they have the skills to test out why we have that belief. This is the essence of the best education found in the best schools and universities whether they are public or private.

"Outcome," in current educational jargon, is simply another word for that "demonstration" that tells us whether or not students have learned.

This latest outcry, as I see it, has little to do with "outcome based" education, but as always with whose special interest agenda will prevail in the public arena and schools. The critics of outcome based education do not really fear "outcomes"; they fear that an education that teaches questioning and reasoning might weaken their own dogma.

The casualty in this ongoing selfish debate is the best education. The education found, for the most part, in recent State Public Acts gives young people the knowledge and skills needed to talk about and test reality (whether it be the laws of gravity or the world's great religions) and develop their own successful world view.

If special interest groups continue to weaken public education what they fear losing they probably will - to some "Psychic Friend" or other peddler of fantasies and nonsense.

Help sought

I am trying to get in contact with any relatives or descendants of Edward Thomas Miller who died in Plymouth in 1962 at the age of 91. His death certificate states that he had a son, Edward T. Miller, Jr., and a grandson, Peter Miller, both of whom lived in Plymouth at that time. The elder Miller was buried in Delaware, Ohio.

If any of your readers can give me information concerning members of this family I would be most appreciative.

They may call me collect on weekdays after 5:30 p.m. EDT at (919) 859-6248, about anytime on weekends, or they can write me at the address below. Thank you for any help you can provide.

Buffoons?

Back to school shopping is no time to clown around

Guest Columnist

Dorothy Matsu

Bust out those kilts, it's back to school time. I wonder if after the past 20 years of chiseling away at dress codes anyone really whips themselves into a frenzy about what to wear.

Perhaps we've come full circle with the recent revival of grungy Hee-Haw clothes. Considering the extremes, I'm sure parents would rather see their kids skulk off to school looking like Jethro and Elly May than Little Richard and Madonna.

I envied my parochial school friends for their convenient uniforms, but I know that I was pretty much alone in such thought. I understand how oppressed their sense of individuality might have been.

Now we have criminal prisoners who are not even required to wear uniforms. God forbid we interfere with their self-expression. When I think of some of the outfits I sported, I'm compelled to draw a comic book.

It took just about all of elementary school to figure out that the first weeks of school were the last days of summer. Who could concentrate when wearing a jumper, sweater and knee socks ensemble of some torturous woolen/mohair blend as the mercury hit 86 degrees that first day?

I wised up a tad in the seventh grade, yet wore the silliest dress of my young life. Imagine the most dreadful fashions of the late 1960s. It was sheer and sleeveless, a red and beige maniacal op-art houndstooth; tent-shaped with a zillion little pleats.

I accessorized awfully with red fishnet stockings and my sister's red leather flats that were too big for me, causing a sound not unlike Ronald McDonald in a rush.

The wind had picked up considerably when it came time for the long obstacle course home. Great gusts threatened to turn my ballooning frock inside out like an umbrella.

Bristling with books, barefoot, carrying my clown shoes, clutching at my pleated hem like a fleeing accordionist, and hoping to pass the gang of goons who lurked under the dark train underpass without slipping and doing a split on some wet leaves.

The next year I saved babysitting money to acquire a desperately typical disguise to shop the local off-price department store, where the tag "seconds" meant anything from a missing buttonhole to an extra pant leg. Hoping to be comfortably anonymous with something of my own, as opposed to my sibs too sophisticated cast-offs, I learned another ironic lesson when two other girls appeared in the exact same get-up.

Sure, I can laugh now. But I'll never forget the energy and emotions wasted on costuming for the weirdest years of our lives. All the anxiety and fear of adolescence seemed to manifest themselves physically when, like a puff adder or any scared creature, I shot up to my full height at age 13.

However, I now see that size probably was to my advantage when it came to the old "get you after school" threats. Miniskirts scared the schools into letting girls wear pants — but no dungarees.

The awful shrieking sound from legions of corduroys and fear of hideous "hot pants" would lead to accepting a uniform of jeans and denim shirts. Ultimately, in our attempts to be non-conformists we ended up looking strangely like chairman Mao's Young Republicans.

Diversity group invites community involvement

■ GUEST COLUMN

PLAID (People of Livonia Addressing Issues of Diversity) is a group of people concerned with fostering respect, understanding, and diversity. This Livonia grass-roots organization, founded in June 1992, has members of various cultural, religious and racial groups.

PLAID is reaching out to other people in the area who share an interest in coming together to address issues of diversity in our community. We recognize that because we live in a society with pervasive biases, it is our responsibility to foster anti-bias development. If we do nothing to counteract these biases, then we silently support them by virtue of our inactivity.

Biases can be very subtle. They can be based on differences in religion, language, style of dress, social class, disability, color, sex, size, shape, ethnicity, or anything that makes someone appear to be different than you. In other words, these biases are based on one's appearance, not on one's character or personality.

The goal of PLAID is to assist others as well as ourselves to learn to understand and appreciate our similarities as well as our differences . . . to learn to judge others by who they are and not what they look like.

As our city and neighboring communities become more diverse, we owe it to ourselves and to our children to become more aware of our attitudes toward others.

One way to manage diversity is to learn about other cultures and to encourage constructive communication about similarities and differences. In the Jan. 6, 1994 Observer, the editors argued that "Now is the time to act. We should not deny ourselves the opportunity to change by placing all hope in the future generation. Each individual can examine his or her attitudes, knowledge and reactions and alter undesirable behavior and thought."

■ Biases can be very subtle. In other words, these biases are based on one's appearance, not on one's character or personality.

We herald the Observer's words; and we invite the community to an opportunity to learn about another culture.

On Thursday, Oct. 20, at 7:30 pm, PLAID and the Madonna University Department of Multicultural Affairs are co-sponsoring a forum on "Dispelling Myths about Arab-Americans in our Community." The event will be held in Kresge Hall at Madonna University, and the guest speaker is Terry Ahwal, executive assistant for Wayne County and a Livonia resident.

Another opportunity for awareness is the TRUTH (Together in Racial Unity, Trust and Honesty) workshop series beginning on Monday, Sept. 19. TRUTH combines elements of the "Dialogue Racism" program developed by the Institute for Healing Racism of Houston, Texas, with the concept of racial "pairing" to share discussion.

PLAID meets on the third Thursday of every month at 7 p.m. in Room E-19 (east wing) of the Bentley Center. Everyone is welcome. For more information on Plaid or TRUTH, please call Donna Pomerson at 523-9356 or Ronaele Bowman at 467-7904.

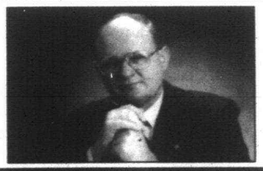
Keep power lines tense in home rule struggles



Tim Richard

■ Local governments are creatures of the state and have only the powers the state gives them. Across the U.S. in the 19th century, however, state legislators had abused their control. Cities demanded home rule so they could experiment with new forms of governance.

Fred Warner, a former Farmington village president, was governor of Michigan in 1908-09, when the state adopted one of the great reforms of the 20th century — municipal home rule.

Local governments are creatures of the state and have only the powers the state gives them. Across the U.S. in the 19th century, however, state legislators had abused their control. Cities demanded home rule so they could experiment with new forms of governance, such as city managers, at-large councils, nonpartisan elections, appointed clerks and treasurers, higher taxing and bonding authority, and so on.

Yet the tension between state and cities continues. Covering the school reform action of 1993-94, I had to bypass a few good stories about home rule. Let's catch up:

DAY CARE — The Senate passed SB 162, sponsored by Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, which limits cities' abilities to zone out day-care centers. The Michigan Municipal League, composed of cities and villages, is battling it because "In its present form, the bill amends the City and Village Zoning Act to allow a day care facility with up to six children to locate in any residential zone."

Snob zoning is a fairly familiar abuse of home rule powers, particularly in newer suburbs. At MML's request. Rep. Jan Dolan, R-Farmington Hills, a former mayor, will offer an amendment exempting "a city or village whose zoning ordinance makes a good faith inclusionary provision for family day care homes and group day care homes in all residential zones."

Many lawmakers distrust the vagueness of the Dolan amendment. What is "good faith"? We should see a dandy floor fight during the House's fall session.

RESIDENCY — Senate Bill 579 would prohibit cities from requiring that police and fire personnel live within their boundaries. It is sponsored by Sen. David Honigman of West Bloomfield.

Honigman's purpose is not "Detroit bashing." He sees the restrictions as out of date, disrupting the homes of married couples who both work but in different jurisdictions. He plans to report the bill out of the Labor Committee this fall.

MML promises "to vigorously oppose the bill." It will be a fight. Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Redford, has introduced an identical measure, HB 4650, in the House, and it has gone nowhere.

POWER LINES — Senate Bills 814-821 would allow the state Public Service Commission to designate when a high-voltage power line is a public necessity. PSC would issue a "certificate of public convenience and necessity."

MML objects: "This certificate renders all local zoning ordinances along the proposed power line unenforceable."

Sen. John Schwarz, R-Battle Creek, sponsored the bills after Consumers Power Co. lost a court battle to extend power lines into Indiana. The utility said a single township stymied the project by objecting to a small portion of the entire line passing through its jurisdiction.

Michigan runs into such problems constantly. Should a single local unit be able to stymie a power line? a landfill? a boat launch? a hiking trail? a prison?

These local-state struggles are constant, and they are necessary — just like the struggles between police powers and defendants' rights, between labor unions and management, between individuals and the collective will.

If this newspaper is still publishing 100 years from now, my successor will be writing about these tensions. That is good. If one side ever entirely wins, the other may explode.

Welcome our newest addition to the paper

Let's Go! We're off and running with our first new section devoted to suburban entertainment. You'll find news here that you won't find anywhere else — community theater reviews, previews of upcoming local orchestra concerts, suggestions for family trips, and features about new and improved restaurants in your community.

We'll be writing about your friends and neighbors, people you pass on the way to work and see in the grocery store. Your input is what makes this new section so special.

In August we asked you take us on vacation and snap a photograph of your family holding the newspaper in a scenic spot for our new "Wish You Were Here" feature. The response has been tremendous!

Betty Liss of Westland sent us a picture of herself and three friends at the Houghton Lake Canoe Livery.

You'll find the "Wish You Were Here" feature on Page 6. Please keep sending us your photos. We'll return them after they've appeared in the paper.

We now know that our readers love to travel to places near and far.

Community Overtures

Orchestras strike a chord with growing audience

BY BARBARA WILSON
SPECIAL WRITER

Music plays a powerful role in our lives. It sets the mood at mealtime. It makes the rush-hour commute bearable and it calms us after a strenuous day on the job.

But none of these individual experiences with music played on a stereo or radio can compare with the heart-pounding emotional impact of being a part of an audience at a live orchestra performance.

Community orchestras — like those in Livonia, Farmington, Plymouth and Redford — don't fit a mold. They have varied degrees of experience in terms of musicians and in terms of history. They play music with individual flair and emotion and they appeal to different audiences.

What area community orchestras all seem to have in common is that attendance at concerts is climbing and although financial support is difficult to come by, they work arduously to maintain quality and develop concert programs that will excite and entertain.

As the 1994-95 concert season is being planned, rehearsed and marketed, local community orchestra boosters are hoping for a boom from more than their percussion sections. Even larger audiences and a more ardent base of community supporters are what they are after.

The season

As the more established orchestras of Plymouth, Redford and Livonia prepare for their seasons, they have looked to past schedules that have been crowd-pleasers and then added on some challenging new works and exciting new soloists. The Farmington Philharmonic, just three seasons old, set their schedule on marketable themes that would appeal to a wide age group with diverse musical preferences.

Marking its 49th year, the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Russell Reed will present two showings of their incredibly popular family concert. The performance will feature 8-year-old violinist Ai Takeuchi and an orchestra safari to Prokofiev's Peter and the Wolf in which youngsters in the audience can walk among the musicians as they perform.

Reed said his musicians will be challenged this season by the Prokofiev's Piano Concerto No. 3 with soloist Pauline Martin in the first concert of the season and by the collection of English compositions being performed at the November concert.

The Livonia Symphony marking its 22nd year has dotted its season with "special effects" to draw a more diverse audience. Conductor Francesco DiBlasi has compiled to music to complement a light show at their "Family Affair" concert in February. The concert will feature exciting, classical tunes that are recognizable to young people and narrator Paul Russell will present Britten's "Young Person's Guide to the Orchestra."

The Farmington Philharmonic Orchestra has struck a real balance between marketability and exposing audiences to fine music by providing three themed concerts during their season. Buckaroo Holidays is an event for families with audience in jeans and cowboy shirts and bails of hay and red-and-white-checked cloths decorating the multi-purpose room where the concert is staged. Karen Nixon, music director for the group, said the themed concerts really bring the families out for a fun evening. Rhapsody in Red, White and Blue will feature some rousing ragtime music and "America Ballads," a piece composed by Morton Gould for the Bicentennial, Nixon said.

Theater groups get the show on the road

BY BOB WEIBEL
SPECIAL WRITER

The upcoming 1994-95 playbill for Observerland community theaters has the ingredients to satisfy a wide range of tastes. Take a classic comedy or two, stir in contemporary drama, blend with a spell-binding thriller, sprinkle generously with music and spice with some original work — and viola! — you have a playgoer's gourmet delight.

Community theaters require a wide range of talents to produce their shows. The lights, sound, scenery and performances you see on stage are only the tip of the iceberg.

There are ads to place, and tickets to sell, programs to write, posters to design, newsletters to mail, buildings to maintain, insurance to obtain and costumes to sew. All of this work is done by volunteers. Two groups, the Theatre Guild, and Plymouth Theatre Guild pay their show directors.

Many members never appear on stage. "More than half of our 120 members don't appear on stage," said Jack Grunkle of the Farmington Players. "They work backstage or in the business end of the operation."

Membership in these groups is mostly confined to adults. Trinity House and Plymouth Theatre Guild, however, often use students, and the Theatre Guild sponsors a complete production by the Creative and Performing Arts students at Churchill High School in Livonia.

"The phone is already ringing off the hook with parents asking about our production of 'The King and I,' " said Karen Groves of the Plymouth Theatre Guild. "With all the children's roles, we hope to have lots of tryouts."

Members come from wide-ranging occupations, theater backgrounds, and interests. They range from professionals to blue collar workers — from young adults to retirees. Some are new to theater, others have lots of experience.

Some of the people who started the Farmington Players in 1950 are still active today. Until recently, Plymouth Theatre Guild's oldest member was Dr. Ford Suherland, 76. He retired to Florida and passed the mantle on to Richard Brown who has been with the guild since 1962. Brown is one of those members who seldom appears on stage. He operates an accounting firm and has been taking care of the books for many years. Finances are a critical part of a community theater's success, even though they are non-profit organizations.

Plymouth Theatre Guild, for example, has budgeted over $35,000 just to produce its four shows. Money is especially important to the Farmington Players, Theatre Guild and Trinity House because they own their own theaters. The Theatre Guild budgets $10,000 to $15,000 a year to operate their 100-seat theater.

All of the groups use "open casting" which means that anyone can audition for a role.

the concert, the quality of the presentations rests on the musicians and the musical directors who make up these community orchestras.

Most of the community orchestras combine professional, paid musicians with volunteer music lovers who make a living doing something else.

From the professional realm, orchestras pull in members from as far away as Toledo and the far east side of Detroit. Many of the musicians come from Ann Arbor and still others come right from the community served.

Like William Hulsker, a bassoonist from Detroit playing with the Plymouth orchestra, most of them come from other music-related fields. Hulsker is the music librarian at Wayne State University. Brian Moon, a trumpet player from Birmingham who plays with the Livonia and Farmington group, also teaches private lessons.

Moon's father Benny is also a guest conductor with the Redford Symphony Orchestra.

The Farmington Philharmonic (the name was chosen because it means "Lovers of music," according to Nixon) draws musicians from the Detroit Symphony as well as the Michigan Opera Theatre orchestra.

While these are fine musicians who propel these orchestras to great musical heights, credit must certainly be given to the engineers, dentists, magistrates and doctors who fill in the gaps and prove that involvement in music doesn't end when you outgrow the high school orchestra.

Dr. Joseph Lewis, a heart surgeon at Henry Ford Hospital, finds time to guest conduct the Redford symphony and Magistrate Winston Churchill has been playing with the Redford group for about 30 years.

■ None of these individual experiences with music played on a stereo or radio can compare with the heart-pounding emotional impact of being a part of an audience at a live orchestra performance.

"We don't turn people away," said Conductor John Gajec. "We are known for re-stimulating people's interest in their music. It is generally a really good experience for them."

The audience

The old questions goes, "If a tree falls in the forest and no one is there to hear it, does it make a sound."

If the question is asked about community orchestra, the answer is a hearty "yes." Whether the audience is a dozen people or 800, the show goes on and the musicians give their best. Local musical directors, however, are pleased to report that their audiences are growing.

Nixon reports that in the three years since the Farmington Philharmonic organized, the audience has tripled and with even more of their popular themed events this year, they expect the numbers to soar.

The Plymouth symphony has had to turn people away for some of their more popular season concerts.

Livonia, Plymouth and Farmington report audiences of between 500 and 800 people on a regular basis, while Redford has a slightly smaller following.

Younger families are coming to concert events which pleases all involved.

All area orchestras are learning that it is a combination of pop and classical concerts that will secure community support.

The Birmingham-Bloomfield Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Felix Resnick, divides their season between the two genres of music. This season they are even incorporating the art of quilt-making into their concerts with antique quilts.

"Music is an expression of the time and the originator just as quilts are," said ticket chairman for the orchestra, Carla Lampshere. The Birmingham-Bloomfield Symphony marks their 20th season this year. Their first concert is Oct. 23 at Temple Beth El. Call (810) 645-BBSO for information.

The Rochester Symphony Orchestra also mixes pop concerts into their season, but the Southfield Symphony will maintain a purely classical tone.

Rochester Symphony Orchestra opens its season on Oct. 14 at Varner Hall on the Oakland University campus, call (810) 651-4181. Southfield Symphony's first concert of the 1994-95 season is on Sunday, Nov. 6 at St. Hugo of the Hills in Bloomfield Hills. Call (810) 354-4854 for ticket information.

Guild, the Theatre Guild (Livonia-Redford) and Trinity House (Livonia) all have script reading committees which analyze and recommend the season of shows. Over the last few months, the four groups have read over 200 scripts.

Farmington Players opens its 44th season with the classic comedy "The Man Who Came to Dinner" on Oct. 28. This Moss Hart/George S. Kaufman favorite about the irascible Sheridan Whiteside who arrives as a visitor — then becomes an invalid and takes over a household is already in rehearsal.

Farmington performs in a 173-seat playhouse on 12 Mile road, ½ mile west of Orchard Lake Road.

Plymouth Theatre Guild performs at the Water Tower Theatre on the campus of the Northville State Hospital at 41001 West Seven Mile. Guild president Karen Groves reports that the Guild has spent about $3,000 to improve the sound system and eliminate auditorium echoes.

Plymouth opens its 48th season with an original musical revue, "Spirit of Broadway." Written and directed by guild member Francine Hachem. The show opening Sept. 23, presents samplers of songs and dance numbers from many classic Broadway shows including "West Side Story," "Gypsy," "Chorus Line," "Miss Saigon," and "Annie."

The Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford continues its tradition of performing thoughtful fare with A.R. Guerney's "What I Did Last Summer." Auditions are 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 25 and Tuesday, Sept. 27 at the Guild's playhouse on Beech Daly just south of Five Mile. The show opens Nov. 4.

Trinity House Theatre on Six Mile, just west of I-275 in Livonia, occupies a special niche in local theater that they only perform plays which emphasize ethical or moral values.

Their fall season begins Sept. 8 with Timothy Campos performing his original comedy, "Trapped in the Rubber Room."

LET'S GO! DINING

'Hot' new Indian restaurant works to please customers

Dining

BY RENEE SKOGLUND
SPECIAL WRITER

The area melting pot has been stirred, and some rather distinctive ethnic restaurants are beginning to surface to the top. The Himalaya, near the intersection of Warren Road and Sheldon Road in Canton, is certainly one of them.

Canton, Mich. 48187

Entrees: $5.95 - $10.95

Hours: 11:30 a.m. - 2:30 p.m. and 5 - 10 p.m. daily. Closed Tuesdays.

Since its opening in December of 1993, its Indian-South African cuisine has spiced up the adventurous diner's choices of interesting eateries. Owner Jeff Nadasen, 31, boasts using over forty different spices in his kitchen, which prepares an exotic assortment of vegetarian, seafood, chicken and lamb dishes.

"Our most popular dishes are the vegetarian, along with Lamb Curry, Chicken Curry, and Peri Peri Chicken," said Nadasen. Peri Peri, which simply means "hot, hot" (and that's exactly what you say when you taste it!), is a sauce of fresh green peppers, tomatoes, onions and green onions. It represents the South African influence in the Himalaya's Indian cuisine and is part of the house specialties. In consideration of both Western and Eastern palates, all menu items, including the Peri Peri's, are prepared mild, medium, hot or extra hot.

The Himalaya also offers a small, but inclusive, selection of western dishes, some of which Nadasen learned how to prepare when he worked at the Steak and Ale. Of that experience he said, "I worked in the kitchen, dining room, everywhere I could be. I know how to make a very good New York strip steak."

He's also aware of today's health-conscious diners, and his chefs use very little oil in their food preparation. "The oil is not for the vegetables, but to cook the spices, which are fresh," he said.

Nadasen, who came to the United States from South Africa with his parents and two sisters in 1972, has lived in Canton with his family since 1982. Choosing a Canton site for his restaurant was quite natural for him. "I like Canton because it is a growing community. I knew this area and I felt comfortable here. I knew it was going to grow." Most of his staff come from the immediate area.

Nadasen's family is doing everything it can to make sure his restaurant takes root and flourishes. His mother, Yanum, greets customers or works behind the handcrafted white-oak bar. His father, Aruna, takes care of the books. Nadasen himself renovated the interior, which housed a former auto parts store. "I built everything, the walls, the kitchen, the floor, the bar," he said. The bar took three weeks to finish.

This family approach to running the restaurant extends to the staff. When asked how he trains his waitstaff, Nadasen said, "Not only do they taste the food, they comment on it. They have a certain amount of leeway. This is their food."

Tell us about your favorite new or improved restaurant. Call Keely Wygonik, Taste/Entertainment editor, (313) 953-2105 to recommend restaurants to be featured in Entertainment.

Mom faces moral dilemma in 'Trial by Jury'

Movies

■ PREVIEW

Valerie Alston (Joanne Whalley-Kilmer) is a young divorced mother, raising a seven-year-old son and running her own business in New York City. She's successful, yet still an idealist.

Her convictions are put to the test when she is selected to serve as a juror in the trial of a notorious New York mob boss in "Trial By Jury," opening Friday at metro Detroit movie theaters.

When jury duty calls, Valerie rearranges her schedule to comply.

Mob boss Rusty Pirone (Armand Assante) is on trial for a host of crimes, including the murders of 11 people. Public opinion against him is overwhelming, yet he exudes charm, confidence and the unmistakable swagger of a man in control.

Pirone and his men murder the star witness in his prosecution on the eve of his trial. Now U.S. Attorney Daniel Graham (Gabriel Byrne), obsessed with convicting his nemesis, will try the case on little more than circumstantial evidence. Nevertheless, Pirone knows every member of the jury will believe he is guilty.

When Rusty Pirone's eyes meet Valerie Alston's across the crowded courtroom he formulates a new plan to win his freedom. And for Valerie, his plan is the start of her imprisonment.

Ex-cop Tommy Vesey (William Hurt), now on Pirone's payroll, uses the tools of his trade) intimidation and threats — to coerce Valerie into voting for Pirone's acquittal, and even more, into swaying the beliefs of the other jurors.

With no option but to cooperate, Valerie soon learns to lie and manipulate, and she gets a taste of the power that comes with it. And she can never go back to the life she once knew.

"Trial By Jury," from Morgan Creek Productions, is distributed Warner Bros. It is directed by Heywood Gould and written by Jordan Katz and Gould.

The moral dilemma of the story plays itself out on a courtroom stage. "The justice system is essentially a struggle between two opposing teams — armies, if you will," said Gould. "It's supposed to be a system that serves us all impartially and it doesn't. It's used and manipulated by all parties — in this case by both the prosecutor, Graham, and the criminal Pirone."

"There's a real rivalry between Pirone and Graham," explains Armand Assante, who portrays Pirone. "They grew up in the same neighborhood; it's just that their life paths, for whatever reason, took two different directions. One became a criminal and the other became a lawyer, but their approach to the job is exactly the same: do whatever it takes to succeed."

'Fresh' offers another view of ghetto life

JOHN MONAGHAN

■ REVIEW

"Fresh" has arrived with a lot going for it: a high-profile premiere at the Detroit Film Theatre, some strong reviews, and the distributing muscle of Miramax, which has opened it on [illegible] screens.

But if the audience I saw it with is any indication of the movie's word-of-mouth success, then "Fresh" should look to a very short run. The low-key story of a 12-year-old boy on the mean streets of Brooklyn doesn't look much like other movies about the 'hood, which is both its salvation and downfall.

There's no booming rap music, no quick-cut bursts of violence, and nothing at all to cheer about. It's hero, known as Fresh by the dealers who use him for drug deliveries, shows absolutely no emotion. Whether it's because of the inexperience of actor Sean Nelson or the toll the streets have taken on his character is left up to the individual viewer.

You see pretty early on the duality in this boy's life. Backpack slung over his shoulder, Fresh conducts his early-morning pick-ups of drug packages, but he worries about being late for school a second time that week.

He hangs out with buddies, who spend most of their time bragging about things they obviously don't have. For one, it's a father. For Chuckie, a chunky Latino kid and Fresh's best friend, it's a job in the drug trade.

Fresh is smart enough to keep his mouth shut. Although the dealers know that he has the guts to demand what he's owed, they don't know how intelligent he really is. After a tragic shooting on a neighborhood basketball court, Fresh realizes that the world doesn't always reward you for your talents.

The boy's estranged father, who spends his days playing chess in the park, teaches valuable lessons through the game. The resourceful Fresh uses these strategies to pit his boss against rival dealers.

Unlike the chess board, there is no clear distinction here between black and white. The charismatic dealer Esteban treats Fresh like a member of the family, trusts him implicitly ("you're my stand-up little G"), and pays well for his loyalty. But the boss also has a creepy fixation on the kid's older sister and uses drugs to keep her pliable.

The performances here run the gamut, highlighted by Giancarlo Esposito's flamboyant Esteban and Samuel L. Jackson's understated father. Most of the other performers (including star Nelson) make their acting debuts and it shows, especially when you're trying to decipher the slang.

Writer/director Boaz Yakin (the penned the Clint Eastwood/Charlie Sheen actioner "The Rookie") isn't immune to cliches. His slow pacing even translates to the music, with cool jazz sax blasts reminiscent of the quieter moments in Spike Lee's movies.

One or two moments hit you with their cleverness, such as an opening sequence that shows a street devoid even of buildings. Tenements pop up one by one, then street lights, mailboxes, and finally the trash and graffiti. This could be the ghetto in any American city.

Ultimately, however, the fresh ideas in "Fresh" just don't stand up. I left the movie scratching my head the same way I did after the aggravating "Straight Out of Brooklyn," which this movie resembles in far too many ways.

Vacation was wild

P.F. Grossman of Southfield is the winner of our "Wagons East!" contest.

Grossman told us about a wild vacation adventure to win four tickets to "Wagons East!" a comedy about a group of settlers who do the unthinkable — they form a wagon train and head back east.

Our winner, and runners-up, also received a "Wagons East!" T-shirt.

Here's the winning entry:

"My husband was fishing in the Little Pigeon River in Tennessee when I saw him running rapidly toward the car I was reading in. A big brown bear was galloping behind him. He dropped his fishing pole and and we took off in the car leaving all our fishing equipment for a safe escape.

"We realized the bear was very territorial about the fishing water."

Climb aboard historic trains for a rail adventure

Travel

BY VICTORIA DIAZ
SPECIAL WRITER

The days of the Wabash Cannonball, the Orange Blossom Special, and the Chattanooga Choo-Choo may be over. But if you're a railroad buff — or just interested in old-fashioned fun, combined with a bit of American history — there are still plenty of memorable train rides waiting out there.

For starters, here are on-track trips that can take you and your family over the river and through the woods, as summer changes into the blaze of autumn, and autumn into the jewel-like glitter of winter.

Climb aboard any of them either within Michigan or not far from its borders.

Board the Star Clipper Dinner Train in Walled Lake and enjoy a delicious, three-hour excursion that includes a five-course gourmet meal, plus Broadway revue or murder mystery play (you solve the crime). You'll travel round-trip through southeast Michigan. The Star Clipper operates year-round, with two-hour lunch excursions also available at selected times through early October. Coach cars, circa 1917, once carried passengers on the Erie Lackawanna line.

On a similar tour, the Murder Mystery Express — also a dinner train — embarks from the Blissfield Station on Saturday and Sunday evenings year-round. The train crosses the River Raisin, then chugs through Lenawee County farm land to Lenawee Junction, where the world's only full-sized Lionel locomotive is turned around for the return trip.

You might want to set aside several hours to explore Blissfield (take U.S. 23 to Exit 5) and its many antiques and crafts shops before your departure.

In the mood for nostalgia? Hop aboard the Ohio Central's Sugarcreek Service, and explore the state's Amish countryside.

As the big steam locomotive (built more than 80 years ago) pulls out of the village of Sugarcreek, the whistle blows, and a uniformed conductor begins his stroll through the vintage passenger coaches to punch all tickets. Before long, you're traveling past pristine Amish farms and homes. The one-hour trek through this colorful area known as "The Switzerland of Ohio" is 12 miles round trip.

Travelers can enhance their visit back in time by exploring the charming streets and shops of Sugarcreek afterward.

Round up kids of all ages and, via the Huckleberry Railroad out of Flint's popular Crossroads Village, soak up some Michigan color. The train, powered by a historic Baldwin locomotive, carries up to 500 passengers on the 35-minute excursions, and is made up of refurbished open-and-closed-platform coaches, many of which transported passengers throughout Mexico in bygone days. Huckleberry Railroad is Michigan's only narrow-gauge line.

The Bluewater Chapter of the National Railway Historical Society, based in Royal Oak, can bring it all back for you, in style. Echoing the days when passenger trains regularly transported thousands of resorters to points north, the Society annually sets up several rail trips as "living history demonstrations." And you don't have to be a member of the non-profit organization to join in the fun.

On September 23, The Resorter will depart Battle Creek and other stations, and travel the meandering rail route to the Little Traverse Bay area and Petoskey's former Pennsylvania Railroad Station. Return trip is September 25.

If you're crazy for color tours, you might prefer the Society's Autumn Leaf Circle tour which departs from the Royal Oak, Birmingham, and Pontiac stations for one-day trips, October 1 and 2.

Agaway Canyon Tours,, headed north into the vast Canadian Wilderness are waiting just for you at the Algoma Central Station, 129 Bay St. in Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario.

This is one of the most magnificent train tours in North America, especially in fall and winter, and generous picture windows on recently-renovated coaches afford panoramic views for all.

On the day-long excursions, you travel to the floor of the Agawa Canyon where you'll have plenty of time to get out and acquaint yourself up-close with the spectacular terrain.

The highly-popular Snow Train tours embark Saturdays and Sundays, January through March

Don't forget about the always popular, regularly-scheduled Amtrak tours to Toronto and Chicago. Contact your travel agent for the dozens of packages available on these.

Courtney Love meets her fans

Hole lead singer Courtney Love started out her Sept. 2 Pine Knob show by saying that her band and Detroiters probably won't get along. But the usually reclusive widow of Nirvana's late lead singer Kurt Cobain came out into the audience anyway to greet her fans during headliners Nine Inch Nails' encore.

Appearing shaky, Love kept her head down while signing a handful of autographs before batting her way through the crowd to the backstage entrance way. Love looked a long way from the photos of her looking embattled after the deaths of her husband and her bassist Kristen Pfaff.

Hiding herself in a mid-thigh-length black winter coat, Love looked healthy and actually sort of glamorous — contrary to recent reports that she has shown up on stage drunk and topless.

Ethereal, keyboard-based alternapopsters Stereolab was taken aback during their recent stint on the Lollapalooza tour. Angel-voiced lead singer Laetitia (pronounced Latissia) Sadier said playing in front of 20,000-30,000 new people everyday was kind of scary.

"It just made me think loads of things," she said in her strong French accent. "Like, 'God, there's so many of us (bands) and who's pulling the strings?' It made me think more deeply into what people think and why this is happening."

Stereolab will have a much more intimate affair at St. Andrew's Hall, 431 E. Congress, Detroit, on Sunday, Sept. 11, in support of their second album "Mars Audiac Quintet." Call (313) 961-MELT for more information.

The music of the Detroit-based band Crossed Wire will make its big-screen debut Sept. 10 when the film "Sleep With Me" opens in Toronto.

According to lead singer Chris Moore, the film's editor was looking for a "roots/alternative sort of sounding band."

"We thought it was a good opportunity to get our music to where no one's ever heard it." Even if the film doesn't do well, "it's a lot better than nothing," Moore said.

Crossed Wire's next show is an acoustic set Thursday, Sept. 15, at P.J. Records in Ann Arbor.

If you have a question or a comment for Christina Fuoco, call her at (313) 953-2047, mailbox No. 2130 on a touch-tone phone, or write her at The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

- Jeff Hupp: drummer
- Zach Shipps: bassist
- Dave Roof: guitarist

Release:
Six-song EP "White Knuckle Days"

Formed in 1992, the acoustic-driven alternapop band has made a name for itself opening for the likes of local favorites The Verve Pipe and Spank.

Although happy with "White Knuckle Days" the Oakland County-based band is trying to lessen the pop influences.

"I'm leaning toward more of an overall mellow (sound) but heavy when it needs to be," vonBernthal said. "Subtle when it needs to be and heavy when it needs to be, like (Sub Pop band) Sunny Day Real Estate. They know when to just really chill and it make the more energetic parts that much more energetic."

Catch the band Thursday, Sept. 8, at Cross Street Station, 511 Cross St., Ypsilanti, (313) 485-5050; and Saturday, Sept. 17, at the Blind Pig, 206-208 S. First St., Ann Arbor, (313) 996-8555. For more information about the band, write them at P.O. Box 4009, Ann Arbor, MI 48106-4009.

Insults, opulence return to clubs

■ Martinis and living "fabulously" aren't the usual fare at St. Andrew's Hall. But thanks to bands like Love Jones and Combustible Edison, it's all the rage. Raise your glass to the latest trend — lounge music.

By Christina Fuoco
Staff Writer

Music

Die-hard alternative rock fans who thought it was cheesy to see the cast of "Beverly Hills 90210" wearing flannel, upper-class department stores selling Doc Martens, and album rock stations playing punk music haven't seen anything yet.

Matching polyester suits, martinis and finger-snappin' beats are slowly edging their way into clubs as "lounge music" becomes the rage of fashionable hipsters.

At a recent Love Jones show at the Burns Room in St. Andrew's Hall, women in little black dresses slinked around the room as men in polyester snapped their fingers to the beat. A yuppie-looking couple did "the swim" through the hazy, muggy air. Even guys who looked like they belonged at a sports bar — presumably closet lounge fans — were getting into the groove.

Love Jones crooner Jonathan Palmer said it's all about having fun. He started Love Jones because he was tired of hearing down-trodden grungy musicians who are "preoccupied with discussing their personal problems and their mental illnesses." (They even poke fun of grunge in the beginning of the song "Paid for Loving" on their Zoo Records release "Here's to the Losers.")

"It really is to the point where 'entertainer' is a dirty word," he said. "We wanted to do something more focused. We wanted to entertain people without making them feel guilty about it."

Palmer and guitarist Chris Hawpe down play the "lounge" label describing their music as more along the lines of Style Council with a little funky bass, lush harmonies and Everything But the Girl thrown in.

Between songs

Nonetheless, "entertaining" live is what Love Jones does best. In between songs, Palmer and co-crooner/percussionist Ben Daughtrey take turns insulting the audience and themselves. What once started out as a way to pad out their show has now become Love Jones' trademark.

The bongo-playing Daughtrey, a former member of the Lemonheads, even has the goofy jokes down pat. During Love Jones' set, he advised the audience on the dangers of drinking and driving: "If you must drink and drive, please use a coaster." (Enter obligatory rim-shot drum tap here.)

"We didn't have enough material to play an entire set, so we'd pad it out by talking a lot," Palmer said about the band's antics. "Then it grew into a musical tribute to Don Rickles. We have perfected the art of insulting the audience and everything in sight."

Combustible Edison's "The Millionaire" scoffs at bands like Love Jones. The Boston-based band is the real thing. They live the opulent, sophisticated cocktail lifestyle complete with polyester clothing, he said.

"Being fabulous is a lot more than just dressing up," he said via telephone from his Boston-area home. "It really has to do with your attitude, sort of having the nerve to be yourself, which in itself is a very nervewracking decision . . . to do it in an extravagant and hyperbolic way with no apologies."

Not camp or retro

He warns that Combustible Edison's " 'Metropical' sound is not camp, not kitsch, not retro nor revivalist."

"The implication is that it's just sort of like you put oh your Halloween masks for one night a year. It's more than just a novelty. I don't think there's anything retro about well-written, well-played music."

Musically, Combustible Edison uses less vocals and more hypnotic instruments. Double basses, extravagant piano, harpsichords, vibraphones, trap drums and various other percussion fill their Sub Pop CD "I, Swinger."

"Chanteuse" Miss Lily Banquette makes a few appearances on "I, Swinger." She sums up her band's attitude best in "Millionaire's Holiday:" "If your pad is a wax museum, be a swinger if you dare. Join the ranks of the young and exotic following a Millionare. A glass and a shaker, our host is a real scene maker. The Millionaire's holiday."

The Millionaire can talk all he wants, Love Jones' Palmer said, but even though his band doesn't live the "cocktail" lifestyle, there's one part of it that Love Jones strictly adheres to.

"Talk about being a part of the cocktail nation. We could drink them under the table. They seem to be more concerned about how to mix the drink than drinking it," he said with a look of disgust on his face.

Combustible Edison performs at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 13, in the Burns Room at St. Andrew's Hall, 431 E. Congress, Detroit. Tickets are $9. Call (313) 961-MELT for more information.

BILL HANSEN

Concocting an Edison

Yes, there's even a drink called a Combustible Edison!

After spending "many sleepless hours researching and practicing" Combustible Edison's The Millionaire came up with this:

In a shaker full of cracked ice, combine 1 ounce Campari and 1 ounce fresh lemon juice. Shake and strain into a chilled cocktail glass. Heat 2 ounces brandy in a chafing dish. When warm, ignite the brandy and pour in a flaming stream into the cocktail glass.

If the brandy is chilled and shaken rather than ignited, the drink is known as "The Edisonian." However, that takes away from The Millionaire's original idea.

"From the name, it had to have something flaming in it."

Slot: A band in a depth all of its own

By Christina Fuoco
Staff Writer

Bassist/singer Sue Lott came to a stark realization recently about her 3-year-old band Slot.

"We just decided two weeks ago that we are definitely not make out music," Lott said with a giggle.

Even so, passion is definitely a part of the Ferndale-based band Slot. The smooth combination of Billy Rivkin's and Jimmy MacMillan's seductive guitar work along with Lott's entrancing bass lines and Eddie Alterman's backbeat is mesmerizing. The ethereal Lott and aggressive MacMillan (who has since left the group) share vocal duties giving the band more depth than any body of water.

Rare appearance: The Ferndale-based band Slot will play the Blind Pig in Ann Arbor on Friday, Sept. 9, with Outrageous Cherry.

That sound, personified on their brilliant debut domestic EP "Fiver" (Third Gear Records), has earned them notoriety throughout the United States. Alternative Press named them one of the bands to watch in 1994. Meanwhile Raygun and College Music Journal have given them rave reviews. But in their hometown, the only people hip to them are music industry insiders.

"Detroit is really hard on its own, as far as bands go," Lott said.

One thing that Slot refuses to do is get attention by playing countless shows in the Detroit area.

"We like playing Detroit just fine," Lott said. "It's just real easy to play Harpo's every weekend. It's real easy to saturate."

Instead they play gigs that mean something. When an injury to Screaming Trees' vocalist Mark Lanegan made the band unable to open for Alice in Chains at St. Andrew's Hall, Slot stepped in. They've also shared a stage with the Afghan Whigs, Tar, L7, the Cows, Tool, and the Rollins Band. During their last East Coast tour, they were invited to perform on Lollapalooza's second stage.

Besides the fact that it's cool to play with bands like that, Slot knows the headlining band's crowd will like them — not that they're trying to take away anyone's fans.

"We try to cross reference, not necessarily steal, their crowd."

Slot and Outrageous Cherry perform Friday, Sept. 9, at the Blind Pig, 206-208 S. First St., Ann Arbor. Doors open at 9:30 p.m. For more information, call (313) 996-8555. "Fiver" is available at most local independent record stores.

Long running

Tom Taylor of Plymouth proved his mettle simply by completing the Leadville Trail run. And he proved even more by finishing among the top 10.

The Leadville Trail run started at 4 a.m. Aug. 20 in Leadville, Colo. It ended 100 miles later. Of the 315 runners who started, only 156 managed to finish the race, which wound through country varying in altitude from 10,000 to 13,000 feet, in the 30-hour time limit.

Tayler finished eighth overall in 20 hours, 51 minutes. He was the only Michigan male to complete the course, and he was the second among Americans.

Nation's best

Eight girls from the metro Detroit area were selected to the Olympic Development Program's under-20 national soccer team pool at a camp held in San Diego last month.

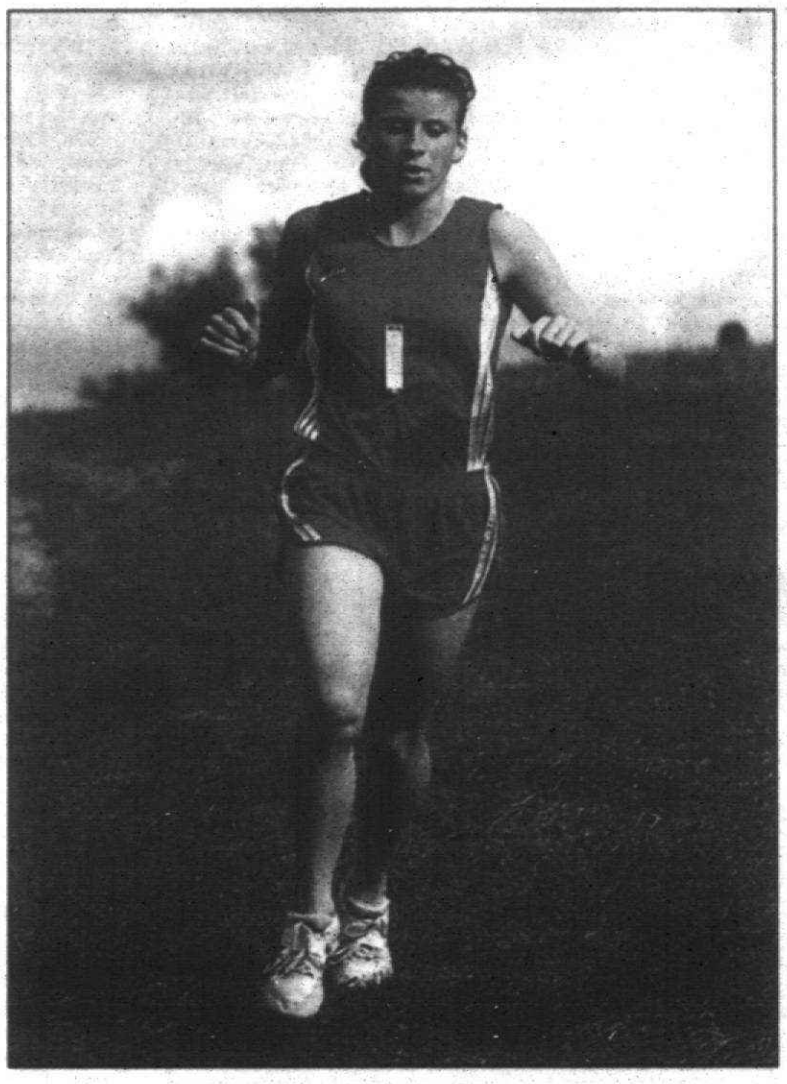
Local players named to the team are Ragen Coyne (from Livonia Stevenson/University of Notre Dame); Mari Hoff (Plymouth Salem); Kara Nance (Troy/Boston College); Natalie Neaton (Detroit Country Day/William and Mary); Kate Sobrero (Country Day/Notre Dame); Shannon Poole (Troy); Julie Johnson (Ann Arbor Huron/University of Wisconsin-Madison); and Amber Berendowski (Brighton).

Players from the 32-member national team pool will be selected to represent the U.S. in various national and international tournaments.

Another national team tryout will be conducted the week of Thanksgiving in Boca Raton, Fla. Three teams from Region II (which Michigan is part of) will compete: under-16, under-17 and under-19. Among those on the under-17 team are Hoff, Poole, Berendowski, Marie Spaccarotella (Livonia Churchill) and Laura Fedrigo (Livonia Stevenson).

Those wishing to submit material for the Plymouth and Canton Sports Scene should send it to sports editor C.J. Risak, 36251 Levan, Livonia, Mich. 48150, or fax items to (313) 591-7279.

Canton runners rule Early Bird



Guy Warren/Staff Photographer

Way out front: Canton's Becky Wolfrom took the lead.

It wasn't a big-time meet, nor was it designed to be. But the first-ever Early Bird Invitational, co-sponsored by Canton and Salem, accomplished what it was meant to for the cross country teams involved.

By C.J. Risak
Staff Writer

For those of you who savor, indeed live for, those showdowns between Canton and Salem, those once-a-season head-to-head meetings in each and every sport that put bragging rights and everything else at stake, well — there's a bit of bad news.

There won't be any dual meet in cross country between the neighboring rivals this year.

Don't be alarmed, however. The news isn't really bad at all. The annual dual meet between the two schools was replaced by the Early Bird Invitational, which was Wednesday at Cass Benton and featured not only Canton's and Salem's boys and girls teams but also both Belleville teams and Birmingham Marian's girls squad.

And there was something else coaches liked, too — no team scoring was kept, only individual results. The top 30 in each race received medals.

"It's a nice way to start a season," said Canton girls coach George Przygodski. "Without the pressure of a team race."

Or, as Salem girls coach Mike Krafchak put it, "This is just what they need at this time of year."

The race also supplied the coaches with another thing they wanted — a chance to see what they've got competing in a big-meet format. And it appeared both Canton teams had the most.

Runners from the two defending Western Lakes Activities Association championship teams dominated their respective races. Nineteen of the top 30 finishers in the boys race were Chiefs; the girls put eight among the first 16, and winner Becky Wolfrom finished nearly 1½ minutes ahead of second-place Tammy Pietrowski from Belleville.

In the boys race, Salem was without two of its top four runners, Dave Karmann and Jared Biniecki, who were bothered by injuries. "But Scott (Pengelly) and Andy (McDonald) both ran well," said coach Geoff Baker. "And Canton ran well . . . I was impressed."

Belleville's Brian Mockeridge won the boys race in 17:00.6, with Pengelly second (17:04.9). Canton runners took the next four spots: Brian Crocket (17:11.1), Casey Moothart (17:20.8), Ian Bedford (17:35.6) and Sanjay Sharma (18:14.8). Salem's McDonald was eighth (18:27.9), followed by Canton's Ryan Portrey, ninth (18:42.6) and Evan Crocket, 10th (18:46.5).

Salem's top five was rounded out by Dan Hodge, 19th (19:57.9); Marcus Sarkesian, 20th (20:05.4); and Ben Rosenberg, 23rd (20:33.6).

The Rocks' girls team did get strong runs from Meran Miles, who was third (22:17.3), and Stacy Moore, who took fourth (22:29.1). Courtney Sheldon placed 15th (24:24.4) and Evelyn Rahhal ended up 18th (24:51.3).

Those placing among the top 10 for Canton, after Wolfrom: Beth Knight, seventh (22:47.1); Megan Barresi, eighth (23:03.1); and Jamie Vergari, ninth (23:07.2). Rachel Burt took 11th (23:40.6), Jenny Bieda was 13th (24:17.1) and Casey Swanson placed 14th (24:19.8).

Madonna is building

SOCCER

By C.J. Risak
Staff Writer

The odds could not be stacked much higher against Madonna University's soccer team.

But the optimism of the team's assistant coaches is every bit as elevated.

Consider:

- The program is in its first year;
- No coaches were hired until last December, severely handicapping any recruiting efforts;
- The head coach, Robert Mazur, is a Polish emigre who has lived here for just two years and who is hardly fluent in English;
- The team's home field was supposed to be Livonia Ladywood's — but it is still under construction, so all but one of the Fighting Crusaders' matches will be on the road.

The situation seemed nearly impossible as Madonna headed to the Grand Rapids Tournament last weekend, meeting NAIA District 23 champion Aquinas College in its first game ever.

The tournament results were predictable — two losses. But it wasn't all negative; the Crusaders fell 3-1 to Aquinas Friday and 2-0 to Cornerstone College (formerly Grand Rapids Baptist) Saturday.

"I think we're a pretty good team," said assistant coach Pete Alexander. "And we're only three players away from being a really good team.

"I'm very optimistic for the upcoming years. I may be going out on a limb, but we'll be disappointed if we're not .500 (this year)."

Lofty aspirations for a team with not much going for it.

Mazur's limited English has left the media to Alexander and Dave Hebestreit, his other assistant, to handle. Both are Livonia Churchill graduates, Alexander in '87 and Hebestreit in '89.

A knee injury ended Alexander's playing career before it started at Central Michigan; he graduated from CMU earlier this year. Last fall, he was an assistant coach for University of Michigan's women's club team, which finished fourth in the nation.

Hebestreit played two years at Schoolcraft College before entering Aquinas. He got his degree last December, then spent the next few months playing for a pro club team, the San Francisco Bay All-Blacks.

Both have solid backgrounds in soccer in this area, which should aid future recruiting efforts. "We're concentrating right in this area," said Alexander. "It would be foolish to go anywhere else."

Of course, that doesn't help much this year.

And surviving a 14-game schedule with a 15-player roster that includes three keepers won't be easy — which is why Alexander was quick to add to his earlier disappointed-if-not-.500 statement: "If we stay healthy."

Players who stood out at the season-opening tournament were two sophomores — Nate Stovall, a Schoolcraft veteran, and Christian Emert, a Walled Lake Central graduate and member of Madonna's basketball team.

Both center midfielders, they were named to the all-tournament team.

The two assistants were also pleased with the play of sophomore keeper Dan McEvilly (from Churchill), freshmen sweepers John Courval (Redford Thurston) and Scott Barnes, and stopper Brock Barker.

"We have a strong middle of the field," said Hebestreit.

Krueger the choice as swim coach

By C.J. Risak
Staff Writer

Ron Krueger called it "an adventure."

That could very well be the best way to describe Krueger's being hired to succeed Hooker Wellman as Plymouth Canton swim coach.

Krueger is Plymouth Salem's longtime wrestling coach. With no previous coaching experience in swimming, choosing him would seem inappropriate.

Krueger wouldn't agree, although he admitted, "I'm finding it's a lot different than what I'm used to," he said.

But: "I've taught swimming for 23 years at the high school," Krueger said. "I don't profess to know everything there is to know about swimming, but I have two good assistants in Ron Hurley and Jim Davis. Between them they know a lot about it."

Athletic director Paul Cummings was convinced Krueger was the right choice. "I think there's more to coaching than that," he said. "There are certain organizational skills when it comes to coaching in this world, and Ron has proven he has that.

"At this particular time, he seemed the most appropriate choice."

Although the two sports seem to be opposites, Krueger has found similarities. "A lot is different but a lot is alike," he said. "They're both individual sports, they're both sports you have to train for individually, and they're both sports in which you have to be strong in technique."

So far, Krueger has used his first month on the job as a learning experience. "I'm trying to learn," he said. "If this is something I want to do, I'll keep doing it."

Krueger said he has been assured by the administration he can have the job as long as he wants it, but he said he wouldn't stay if he thought the kids were suffering.

Also, Krueger said he would only coach Canton's girls team, which competes in the fall. He plans to return to coach Salem's wrestlers in the winter semester.

So Cummings still must find a boys swim coach to replace Wellman, who coached both teams for 13 years before resigning last spring to move to Ludington.

Madonna takes 2nd at Mesa

■ VOLLEYBALL

There were some harrowing moments in Madonna University's trip to Grand Junction, Colo., for the Mesa State Coca Cola Classic last week — and it had nothing to do with volleyball.

When the pilot of your 19-passenger turbo-prop plane announces there's some trouble with one of the two engines, the importance of a season-opening tournament can be quickly forgotten.

The Lady Crusaders survived this turmoil and managed to win three of its four matches at Mesa State, a tournament which featured six teams (out of eight) from the NCAA Division II.

Including host Mesa State — which handed Madonna its only loss, 16-14, 15-5, 15-9 last Friday, en route to claiming the tourney title Saturday.

The Crusaders rebounded to post wins over Black Hills State (from Spearfish, S.D.) 15-9, 15-9, 15-9, and Montana State (Billings) 15-2, 15-4, 15-1, both on Saturday.

Madonna opened its tournament by beating the only other NAIA team in the field, Fort Hays State (Hays, Kan.) 15-9, 15-11, 15-13 Friday.

"I was happy with the first weekend," said Crusader coach Jerry Abraham, whose team finished fifth in the NAIA last year and were ranked fourth in preseason polls. "But there's room for improvement.

"We need to pick up our speed. We have to get a little more speed on defense and on our transition from defense to offense. But for our first weekend, I was very pleased. It was a good start, a positive start."

Kelly McCausland, a sophomore from Redford (Union), led the Crusaders' second-place finish by being named to the six-member all-tournament team. After a somewhat slow start — eight kills against Fort Hays, four against Mesa State — she came on to post team highs in kills against Black Hills (nine) and Montana State (11, in 13 attempts, with no errors).

Sophomore Julie Martin (Livonia Stevenson) turned in a strong performance against Fort Hays with 19 kills. She had eight more against Mesa, and six in both the Black Hills and Montana State matches.

Sophomore Laura Fisher (Wayne Memorial), who filled the void left by the graduation of setter Mazie Pilut, had a strong performance. Fisher had 41 assists-to-kills against Fort Hays, 18 against Mesa, 28 against Black Hills and 23 vs. Montana State — an average of 9.2 per game.

Senior Mo Paulin (Livonia/Farmington Hills Mercy) paced the defense with a total of 50 digs.

The Crusaders go back on the road this weekend for the Indiana University-Purdue University-Indianapolis Tournament, which will feature 10 NAIA teams.

Schoolcraft College

The season-opening match for Schoolcraft College's volleyball team brought into light something the Lady Ocelots need to improve upon if they are to challenge once again for the NJCAA Region 12 title.

Defense down the middle.

"It was their strength and our weakness," said SC coach Tom Teeters after Concordia College, a four-year school that plays in the NAIA, topped the Ocelots 15-8, 7-15, 15-11, 11-15, 15-12 Tuesday at SC. "We just did not get a solid block on them all night."

What SC did get were solid performances from Vicki Rohraff (Wayne Memorial), who both served and passed well; Julie Campau (Livonia Churchill), who tied for the team lead in kills with 17, digs with 17 and service aces with three; Janet Zabivnik (Plymouth Canton), whose 28 assists to kills topped the team; and Shannon Gottschalk, who tied Campau with 17 kills and had 23 assists and 10 digs.

The Ocelots are at the Lake Michigan CC Tournament this weekend.

Ocelots' opener is erratic

■ SC SOCCER

The numbers problem facing Schoolcraft College's women's soccer team has already escalated.

The Lady Ocelots entered the season facing a formidable schedule with a new coach — former SC and Livonia Churchill standout Nikki Johnson, who was an NAIA All-American at Siena Heights last year — and with few players.

There were only 13 on the roster to start the season, and now one of them — Kim Nelson — suffered a knee injury at last weekend's Monroe CC (Rochester, N.Y.) Tournament that could end her season.

"It's frustrating," said Johnson of her first weekend of collegiate coaching, during which her team lost and tied.

The Ocelots recovered from a weak first half in their opener Saturday against Monroe to turn in an impressive second half, but it wasn't enough to save them from a 2-1 loss.

"In the first half, we played very individually," said Johnson. "In the second half, we played much better, more as a team."

Trailing 1-0 at the half, SC tied the match on a goal by Colleen Connell (Plymouth Canton), who headed in a restart from Kelly Noles. But Monroe netted the game-winner midway through the second half.

In Sunday's match against Niagara County CC, the Ocelots "were really drained," said Johnson. The result: In a match they should have won, they ended up with a 2-2 tie.

SC led 1-0 on a goal by Holly Kimble (Livonia Stevenson), off a Connell cross. Niagara tied it, but the Ocelots regained the lead on a Connell goal, off a corner kick by Maggie Frump (Farmington). Niagara gained its 2-2 tie with a goal in the second half.

Although they surrendered four goals, Johnson was impressed by keeper Jenny Mansfield's (Redford Union) performance. "She played an incredible game (against Monroe)," said Johnson. "She kept our team alive."

they (Churchill).

With a schedule of almost all road games — the team's only current home match will be played on its practice field, next to the residence hall, Oct. 6 against Lawrence Institute of Technology — success could be difficult to come by. Which could sink the team into a depression.

And that would make victories even harder to achieve. So, although both Alexander and Hebestreit have their goals, their ultimate objective is, as Alexander described it, "to make this a team. We want to get the team going."

Bass masters: Anglers prove themselves

OUTDOOR INSIGHTS

BILL PARKER

You watch them on cable TV each week and wonder what it would be like to be in their shoes — the shoes of a professional angler. You dream of fishing side-by-side with one of the nation's best. ..of catching a lunker bass under the watchful eye of a Bassmaster.

Then the show ends, reality sets in and in 15 minutes you find yourself in the back yard mowing the lawn. The dream fades with the setting sun.

For Bloomfield Hills resident Kyle Greene the sun is just beginning to rise. The local professional bass angler saw his dream turn to reality recently on the waters of Lake St. Clair.

Greene had the opportunity to hook up with some of the nation's best bass pros and made the best of a golden opportunity.

Greene was one of 108 competitors in the four-day Bassmaster Top 100 pro-am, Aug. 24-27 on Lake St. Clair. He joined 10 other O&E area anglers in the amateur competition.

Pros had to qualify for the tournament and paid a $1,500 entry fee. Amateurs were selected through a random draw and paid a $400 entry fee.

Over the course of the four-day tournament, Greene outfished his pro partners twice en route to winning the amateur division championship with a total of 16 fish that tipped the scale at 33-pounds, 2-oz. He won a fully rigged Ranger Bass Boat, valued at $19,000.

Howell's Kim Stricker won the pro division with 19 bass that totaled 61-pounds, 15-oz.

"It was kind of a dream come true for me," said Greene. "You watch it on TV and then it really happens. It was definitely a great experience. I didn't think I had a chance going in, but I had good partners."

A worthy competitor

Actually, Greene had a decent chance of placing in the tournament. He's an accomplished bass angler. He placed in the top 12 of the Michigan B.A.S.S Federation circuit in 1992 and third in the Northern Divisional. Greene is currently in second place in the point standings in the Michigan Division of the Red Man Tournament Trail.

Entering the final day of the Bassmaster Top 100, Greene was in second place, 3-lbs, 4-oz behind leader Dennis Warner of Hudsonville. Greene was paired with Mickey Bruce of Buford, Georgia for the final day of competition. Fishing light colored Gitzits (tube jigs) in the main lake, Greene knew he was in good shape after just an hour on the lake.

"Mickey said he had a spot that we should both do pretty good at if we could just find the fish," explained Greene. "It took the first cast of the day to find them. I felt pretty comfortable when we both had a limit early in the morning. Then I started to get excited."

All the fish are kept alive and released back into the lake after they are weighed. The daily possession limit on bass in Michigan is five fish. When an angler has his limit and a bigger fish than those already in the live well is caught, the angler must release one of the smaller fish so he doesn't exceed the daily possession limit.

Greene's final day limit weighed 12-lbs, 6-oz.

While Greene was catching a limit, Warner didn't weigh a fish on the final day and slipped to seventh. Greene turned back a late charge by Belleville's Todd Stamper, who had a fourth-day stringer of five bass weighing 14-lbs 3-oz. Stamper finished second with a four-day total of 31-lbs. 14-oz.

A different perspective

All the amateurs weren't as successful as Greene.

Livonia's Duane Ray placed 93rd with two fish that totaled 5-lbs. 14-oz.

"My objective was to go out there and learn something," explained Ray. "The pros were very good to me. They explained what they were fishing and why they were fishing. They treated me very well."

Ray fished with Jim Bitter, of Fruitland Park Fla. on the second day.

"Bitter pulled in 15 fish the first day and his partner caught a limit," explained Ray. "On the second day there was a lot of wind and he didn't like the wind so we had a tough time. I just caught some off days.

"Overall my expectations weren't really high so I wasn't that disappointed. I learned a couple techniques and it really opened my eyes to what these guys go through. It seems glorified, but it's actually a lot of hard work."

Livonian John "Randy" Sparkman caught three fish that totaled five pounds even. He wound up in 99th place. Sparkman was a bit disappointed with the lack of preparation by some of the pros he was teamed with.

"Overall I had a good time, but my expectations were higher," Sparkman said. "The four guys I fished with didn't do any pre-fishing other than the two days before the tournament. They didn't do their homework. I caught three fish and the pros I fished with caught a total of six. We just weren't on the fish like I thought we would be.

"All-in-all it was a good experience and I got to-hobnob with the big guys. I didn't catch a lot of fish but I had a good time."

Anglers and hunters are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information to Outdoors, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, Mi. 48009. Fax information to (810) 644-1314 or call Bill Parker Monday evenings at (810) 901-2573.

Shamrocks open up with a rout

FOOTBALL

Redford Catholic Central opened the 1993 football season with a 39-14 victory over London, Ont. Catholic Central in Saturday's Kickoff Classic at the Pontiac Silverdome.

The Shamrocks outgained London CC, 317-176, in total yardage and finished with 20 first downs compared to the opponent's nine. CC led 16-0 after one quarter and pushed the lead to 25-0 at half time. Each team scored two TDs in the second half.

Senior fullback John Spolsky led Redford CC with 78 yards on 16 carries and scored two touchdowns, each from 1 yard out. Senior running back Paul Tibaldi scored on a 1-yard run and Craig Wasen and Chuck O'Connor each had TD runs of 3 yards.

Senior quarterback Gary Galvin made an impressive debut, completing five of seven passes for 78 yards and no interceptions.

Sophomore running back Milam Brooks had 75 yards on 12 carries, all in the second half.

CC's defense also contributed to the scoring with a pair of safeties in the first half. The first safety came after a London CC snap on a punt sailed out of the end zone; the second safety was earned because of an intentional grounding penalty on London CC in its own end zone.

Defensive back Jeff Gajewski returned an interception in the first quarter 29 yards to the London CC 14. Three plays later, Spolsky scored the first of his two TDs.

Jay Listerman also had an interception for the Shamrocks.

London CC scored twice in the second half on drives of 72 and 75 yards, respectively, against the Redford CC second and third-string defenses.

Senior punter/placekicker Ron Bialobrzeski made all five of his extra point attempts and two of his kickoffs reached the end zone for touchbacks. He also punted twice for a 35.5 yard average.

Blazers jolt Northwestern

Even though Lisa McPhee has been coaching Livonia Ladywood basketball for just two games, there was little question in her mind that Tuesday's 41-36 win at state-ranked Flint Northwestern was something special in her brief Ladywood career.

"I'd have to say it was the biggest so far," said the first-year coach. "This was a very good win for us."

With the win, the Blazers improved to 2-0 and avenged a 67-63 setback at home to the Wildcats (1-2 overall) last season. Northwestern is the defending Class A state champion.

After falling behind 11-4 at the end of the first quarter, Northwestern came back to take a 20-17 lead. Ladywood held the Wildcats to just four points in the third quarter and took a 28-24 lead entering the final quarter.

The score remained close throughout but the Blazers held on for the win despite making only nine of their 27 free-throw attempts.

Salem hosts Northville; Canton heads up North

By Brad Emons
Staff Writer

It's the second week of the high school football season, time to get all the mistakes out of your system.

Penalty flags should be flying less this weekend as area teams work the kinks out.

As for the prediction battle, it's dead even heading into week No. 2.

Last year's champion (yours truly) correctly picked 12 of 16 games, but so did my counterpart (Dan O'Meara, the lucky leprechaun).

Not a bad start considering we had a slew of non-league games.

Most of the games this weekend are non-league, except in the Metro Conference and Mega Conference White Division.

Here is a closer look at this weekend's action.

FRIDAY GAMES
(all 7:30 p.m. unless noted)

Taylor Truman at Redford Union (7 p.m.): Both teams are 0-1. RU's offense was totally stymied last week by Livonia Stevenson in a 34-0 loss. Truman, 2-7 in 1993, lost its opener to Romulus, 31-8. The Cougars are playing a freshman at running back, Randall Knight, who scored on an 8-yard run. PICKS: Harry S. says RU can't stand the heat. It's time for the Panthers to leave the kitchen.

Lv. Churchill at W.L. Central: Central pounded on a weak Milford team last week, 32-14, as Matt Koschke finished with 115 yards rushing and two TDs. The Vikings are expected to be strong up front. Churchill couldn't capitalize on its chances last week in a 21-0 loss to Dearborn. The Chargers need a spark on offense. PICKS: Grand Central Station is alive and well.

Lv. Franklin at Lv. Stevenson: Kevin Szczembara's last-second heroics saved Stevenson last year in a wild 35-33 victory. He's long gone, now at Adrian College. The Spartans (1-0) are the heavy favorites this year after pounding RU last week, 34-0. Franklin (0-1) opened with a tough opponent in Sterling Heights Stevenson, falling 31-0. The Patriots gave up 17 points on turnovers. PICKS: The Spartans should have this well in hand. No need for any last-minute heroics.

Farm. Harrison at Westland Glenn: When do you recall these two teams at 0-1 at the same time? Harrison, despite a 28-21 season-opening loss to Brother Rice last week, is a heavy favorite to win this one. The Hawks have speed to burn in Jason Granger and Kevin Bryant. Glenn, meanwhile, took a rare thumping from Howell in its '94 season debut, 32-0. PICKS: USA Today dropped Harrison like a hot potato, but Observerland says the Hawks are still No. 1.

Northville at Ply. Salem: Both teams opened with tough opponents last weekend and lost. Salem had state-ranked Belleville reeling until the fourth quarter before falling 26-14. Northville, led by junior tailback Aniel Kersey, fell to a formidable South Lyon team, 15-7. PICKS: Salem Rocks and Rolls.

Dbn. Edsel Ford at Garden City: The Thunderbirds (0-1), a playoff team a year ago, couldn't get by Temperance Bedford in its opener, going down 30-10. Kevin Stone is a threat to catch the ball. GC, meanwhile, was shut out by Dearborn Heights Crestwood in its opener, 17-0. PICKS: Edsel is no lemon this time around.

Wayne at Taylor Kennedy: The Zebras (1-0) have an explosive offensive attack, led by tailback Stan Stevenson, who gained 250 yards in 18 carries (in a wild 32-24 victory last week over Adrian). The Eagles, a 14-0 winner last week over Taylor Center, are picked third in the Mega White. They are led by fullback Butch Pilgrim. PICKS: Wayne shows True Grit.

B.H. Cranbrook at Clarenceville: Clarenceville, despite a 31-0 loss last week to Redford St. Agatha, played decent ball for a half. Cranbrook, the Metro Conference favorite, trounced Harper Woods last week, 33-6, as quarterback Jason Eddleston completed eight of 12 passes for 161 yards and two TDs. He also rushed for 90 yards. PICKS: Cranbrook takes Clarenceville for a long hike in the woods.

St. Agatha at Camden-Frontier: A pair of 1-0 teams are going at it in a rare Friday night affair for the Aggies, who boast a quality back in Bill Matti. Frontier, a Class D school like Agatha, opened with a 22-13 victory over Deerfield. Agatha is coming off a 31-0 triumph against Clarenceville. PICKS: Forget the covered wagons, Frontier is history.

SATURDAY GAMES
(all 1 p.m. unless noted)

Ply. Canton at N. Farmington: The Raiders (1-0) have three potent skill players in QB Russel White, Nigel Whitt and Jeff Kong. They squirmed by West Bloomfield last week, 14-7. Canton, meanwhile, lost a heartbreaker in its season opener to Monroe. PICKS: Emons says it's a Hall of Fame type effort for Canton. O'Meara plays homer, goes with North.

W.L. Western at Farmington: The Falcons are flying high after whipping Waterford Mott in their season opener, 24-14, as junior Jake Siskosky rambled for 221 yards. Western, a 20-7 loser last week to Novi, gave up 291 yards on the ground. Farmington looks like it has a chance to go 2-0. PICKS: It's like an old Western rerun, Emons says. O'Meara likes travelling up and down Shiawassee, takes Farmington.

Trenton at Red. Thurston: Trenton whipped Wyandotte last week, 30-14, behind Steve Lewandowski's 162 yards rushing. Ryan Szoloka added 101. Thurston, which might have had a better chance playing against Chris Webber and the Country Day basketball team instead of Gerald Conoway and the football team last week (a 41-0 loser), couldn't beat Trenton with a good 6-3 club a year ago. PICKS: Thurston is no match, even though this Trenton team is nothing compared to the vintage Jack Castignola days.

GARDEN SPOT

MARTY FIGLEY

Now is the time to transplant perennials

Several years ago I was given the rhizome of a Blackberry Lily (Belamcanda chinensis), also called Leopard Flower because the bright orange blossoms are sprinkled (with red spots) like the spots of a leopard. I was new at this gardening vocation so gave it to my neighbor to plant. If it could talk, it would have a story to tell!

When the flower bloomed in early August, we were both pleased with the delicate-looking blossoms. Several years later, after the plant had increased, they were inadvertently dug into the soil. We thought they were gone, but much to our surprise, one appeared the following spring, which attests to its will to survive.

That one little plant was then transferred to my garden where it has again multiplied and is blooming splendidly, where it is treasured. The planting is given no special care other than the occasional fertilizer I give when feeding that section of the garden.

Blackberry Lilies grow from 24 inches to four feet tall and like full sun or light shade and well-drained soil. They are members of the iris family so have the same spikey foliage. Soon seed pods will form, then split open to reveal shiny black seeds, which are pretty in dried arrangements.

Plants can be started from seeds (sown in warm, moist conditions) or they can be propagated by division. My neighbor, Ginny, will soon have another Blackberry Lily to enjoy.

Take a look at your perennials to see if some will benefit with a new location in the garden. Many can be transplanted and divided now and will have enough time to develop strong roots if you don't wait too long.

At this time of year the soil is more easily worked and is still warm from the summer heat. They will also have a head start when spring arrives. A general rule to follow is to divide the early flowering plants now and the later blooming ones in early spring. A good book will give instructions for specific plants.

Place to visit

Many groups are planning programs for the coming year and I am often asked about speakers, gardens to visit, etc.

The Garden Park of Holly is ready for visitors to see the first of many gardens planned for this 77.7-acre site. It is 100 by 75 feet in size and consists of four quadrants intersected with wide walkways, planted with colorful annuals and perennials.

A statue centers each garden and paths allow visitors a closeup view. A fountain is a focal point at one end, while the other leads to the portico of the conference center, constructed to look as though it has been there for many years. Three sides of the garden are enclosed and covered to provide shade and a place to eat while enjoying the garden.

The building contains a library, large entrance hall, brides room and conference room suitable for study and meetings.

Owner Jim Hilty will escort visitors and point out sites of proposed gardens - herb, maze, follies, butterfly dome, moss, Japanese and more.

A catered box lunch is offered, prepared by the Holly hotel; a nominal entrance fee will be charged. Hilty has set aside Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturday mornings for visitors. He can be reached at 1 (810) 634-9300.

TIMELY GARDEN TIPS

- 1994 is the Year of the American Liberty Elm, available only through the Elm Research Institute, Harrisville, N.H. 03450 (Attention: J.P. Hansel, Executive Director). This tree is most like its native parent tree.
- Apply a winter fertilizer to your lawn.
- Set out new transplants of broccoli, cauliflower and cabbage.
- Witch hazel blooms in February or March and will add an early spot of color in the landscape.
- Start a compost pile if you haven't done so.
- When your vegetable or annual flower gardens are bare for the season, plant a cover crop such as rye grass, alfalfa or clover. Till into the soil about a month before planting in the spring.

Marty Figley is an advanced master gardener based in Birmingham. You can leave her a message by dialing (313) 953-2047 on a touch-tone phone, then her mailbox number, 1859.

Artist paints storybook scenes

Livonia crafter Debbie Malek has turned her home into a storybook cottage. Her whimsical creations raise crafting to the level of art. Her work will be displayed at Laurel Manor on Sept. 18.

Entering the purple door of Debbie Malek's Livonia home is like walking into a cottage from a storybook. Whimsical characters such as roosters, giraffes, cats and witches along with walls sprouting painted pink roses bring smiles to the sternest of faces.

Malek is a crafter who has taken paint to a higher plain of art. Like a wand, she waves her brush to create furniture, floor canvases, bird houses, soft sculpture dolls including little people dressed in chenille, and pots made of broken tea cups.

Homespun Traditions hosts Malek and her magical artwork in its crafts marketplace 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 18, at Laurel Manor, 39000 Schoolcraft west of Newburgh in Livonia.

Admission to the show produced by Livonia resident, Bonnie Jurcisin is $2.

"It's nice to do something you love and make a living at it," said Malek. "Most of my artwork leans toward whimsy. I try to take life as light-hearted as possible, look at it through a child's eye."

Scattered around the workshop/garage where Debbie, husband Ken and his brother, Mike Malek do all the woodworking is furniture in various stages of completion. A baby's crib and chest of drawers leans against waiting projects like stiff unpainted soldiers.

In an adjoining room where paint turns wood to dreams, tall blue angels hover protectively around the entrances of large bird houses while helping hands and loving hearts guard other residences for feathered friends.

"I always like doing different things. I'm a night owl. I get some of my best ideas in the middle of the night. It's kind of hard for me to tell someone what I'm going to do next because I don'tknow till I start."

Up until today, the Malek's 23 year marriage has withstood Debbie's jewelry making, pottery, and painted clothing. What began as a hobby 20 years ago, now occu

Dollmaker to visit Plymouth gallery

Internationally known doll artist Yolanda Bello makes a special appearance to introduce two of her latest creations 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 10, at Georgia's Gift Gallery, 575 Forest in Plymouth.

Her arrival is part of an eight-week tour to meet doll collectors and sign dolls at stops in 23 different cities in the U.S. and Canada. Sponsored by Ashton-Drake Galleries, a division of the Bradford Exchange, the second annual "Yolanda's World of Love Doll Tour" will introduce "Ming" and "Mei-Mei," brother and sister dolls dressed in Oriental costumes celebrating the boy's first birthday.

"There's a series of 11 of them, affordable but high quality dolls. The molds are broken. People buying them are collectors, gift givers, and those using them as an accent piece," said Michelle Suttle, gallery co-owner with brother Michael McCarty.

ANTIQUE TOY SHOW
Westland collector Dave Hudson and Livonia exhibitors Tom Hill, Tim Janson, Ken Peters and George Oakes display their wares in the third annual Dearborn Michigan Antique Toy Show 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 10, at the Dearborn Civic Center 15801 Michigan Ave. west of Greenfield.

Admission is $4 for adults. Children under 12, free. Tables for dealers will be available until 9 a.m. the day of the show.

More than 150 exhibitors featuring toys from the 1800s to 1970 will offer wind-up and battery operated toys, promo cars, penny toys, Barbie dolls, GI Joe's, Disney, pedal cars, Star Wars items and memorabilia associated with antique toys including buttons, pins and posters.

"If you played with it as a kid, it'll be there," said show producer, Kevin Hauser of Hauser Antiques in Royal Oak. Hauser will exhibit turn-of-the century penny toys from France and Germany.

"If anyone has any old toys to sell, they should bring them and let the dealers look at them. Toy's are becoming big to decorate homes and businesses. From 1970 to 1980 toys went up 400 percent in value according to Richard O'Brien's book, "Collecting Toys No. 6."

Four antique toy shows are planned for 1995 at the Dearborn Civic Center. For more information on this weekend's show contact Hauser or co-producer, Eric Olbrich at (810) 399-3491.

WINNING ARTISTS
Observerland artists keep winning-awards for their work. Plymouth watercolorist, Toni Stevens most recently was honored in an exhibition at the Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association. The show featuring more than 50 pieces by members of the Palette and Brush Club continues through Sept. 15. Hours are 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday to Saturday. Media includes watercolor, pastel, oil and sculpture.

Institute celebrates Arab-American art

By Linda Ann Chomin
Staff Writer

The Detroit Institute of Arts, the Arab Community Center for Economic and Social Services (ACCESS) and the Arab American Arts Council will present Fann Wa Tarab, a celebration of Arab American art, music and poetry beginning Saturday, Sept. 10, at the DIA, 5200 Woodward.

"It's bringing people from all different Arab American communities together and helps expose their music and art forms to a broader audience," said DIA department of education spokesperson, Michele Koch of Rochester Hills. Fann Wa Tarab, "art and sublime music" festivities open with a 6 p.m. reception in the DIA's Prentis Court and the debut of an exhibition continuing through Sept. 25. Curated by Elsie Peck, department of Ancient Art, and MaryAnn Wilkinson, department of 20th century art, the exhibit features the work of artists Hashim Al-Tawil, Lila Kadaj, Sari Khoury, Kathleen Rashid and Athir Shatoya. The paintings, according to ACCESS cultural arts director Sally Howell, "reflect the seemingly distant worlds of classical Islamic traditions and European-based modernism."

The reception will be followed at 8 p.m. with a reading by poet David Williams, and a concert featuring Simon Shaheen, oud (lute) virtuoso and National Heritage Award recipient, and singer Ghada Ghannem with the Dearborn Traditional Arabic Ensemble. Tickets for the Sept. 10 events are $25 per person, with a select number of patron seats at $50 each. For tickets and additional information call the ACCESS Cultural Arts Program at (313) 842-7010 or the DIA at (313) 833-2323.

On Sunday, Sept. 11, Dr. Ann Rasmussen will present a lecture entitled "Music and Community in Arab America: The History and Contemporary Life of a Musical Subculture." Rasmussen, a leading authority on musical traditions of the Middle East and professor of music and ethnomusicology at the College of William and Mary, will talk about the Arab American musical subculture and explore the dynamic role music plays in the creation of new ethnic identities.

Tour showcases historic homes

The 22nd annual Ann Arbor Old West Side Homes Tour featuring seven, late 19th century homes takes place noon to 6 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 18.

Presented by the Old West Side Association, it is the nonprofit organization's primary fund-raiser.

Tickets are $4 in advance, $5 the day of tour and available at Anderson's Design Studio, Border's Book Store, Crown House of Gifts (Traver Village), Little Professor Book Company, Peaceable Kingdom, Partners in Wine (S. Main and Kerrytown Markets), Washtenaw Milk and Ice Cream (The "Dairy"), and the West Side Book Shop.

Entertainment by the Division Street Blue Grass Band, and refreshments will be on hand at Waterworks Park on Eighth Street. No children under age 12 allowed on the tour. Child care, at $2 per child, will be available at tour headquarters, the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, 520 W. Jefferson. A free shuttle bus will run between the homes.

"It's a self guided tour. You go in whatever order you want," said OWSA spokesperson, Grace Shackman.

"One of the gems is a home built in 1888 by German contractor, C. John Walz for himself and his family. So it's a dream home with stained glass windows, marble fireplaces, and Lincrusta-Walton wallcovering, a cross between wallpaper and linoleum."

The home is on the tour for a third time because of it's popularity with tour goers. It also includes a set of back stairs for servants. Three generations of Walz's owned the home before it was purchased by it's present owners.

Originally settled by German immigrants, the Old West Side is a historic neighborhood of architecture, streetscape, history, and environment characteristic of 19th century mid-western America. Contributing to its special ambiance are front-gabled roofs, open porches, and intricate wood detailing, all in a pleasant setting of tree lined streets. Inside the houses on this year's tour, you will see how Old West Side residents gracefully fit their older homes to the demands of modern times.

"The homes on the tour are all very nice," said Shackman. "There's a very nice home with a clever addition on the back that made it bigger. There also will be people available to answer any questions about the homes."

Founded in 1967, the Old West Side Association promotes neighborhood conservation. Through it's efforts, the Old West Side Historic District was listed on the National Register of Historic Places in 1972. The following year, the OWSA sponsored its first Homes Tour to demonstrate the desirability of living in and preserving an older neighborhood.

pies her full time. Not even a bout with thyroid cancer five years ago could slow this lady down. On a recent family vacation to New England Malek took along her dyed purple garden gloves to stitch on such wisdoms as "I never promised you a rose garden" along the way.

"It started out as a craft, painting clothing and taking classes. Now it's evolved into a full time business selling to stores and by word of mouth," said the 40 year old mother of Jennifer-Suzanne, 18 and Bree, 9, an artist in her own right as evidenced by the framed painting in the family's kitchen.

"I do very few shows. It's usually people who want a wall painted or a piece of furniture who contact me. One thing I've learned about my artwork is the people who like it have children, or are teachers or relate to children in some way."

People just seem to flock to Malek for painting. They stop their cars in the middle of Joy Road to watch her brush roses onto plain brown wood turning so-so surfaces into a rainbow of wonders. Once a customer even left their furniture in her driveway with a name and note attached that read, "when you get around to it."

In the past Malek has exhibited her hand painted furniture, and mail boxes customized to represent customer's dogs at groomingtails in West Bloomfield. From Toronto to Sideways Gifts in Plymouth people find Malek's footstools, chairs, tables, mirrors, flower pots, and floor canvasses as well as seasonal whimsies for Halloween and the Christmas holidays, irresistible.

"Debbie's so original. You give her an idea and she goes with it. She will work with customers on color. She's a very creative person," said Sideways' manager, Barbara Jeffries.

"Most everything we've put in here of hers sells out."

The porcelain pair are the 1994 issues in Yolanda's World of Love series available exclusively from Ashton-Drake dealers including Georgia's Gift Gallery, winner of the Ashton-Drake Doll Dealer of the Year Award for a second consecutive year.

The two doll set comes with several accessories associated with a traditional first birthday ceremony in Oriental families. According to legend, the child's future is determined by the item he or she selects from a group of objects symbolizing different professions.

"Through my dolls, I try to visually communicate my belief that all children, the world over, are unique, each one sharing their own message of love," said Bello.

For information on the dolls or guest appearance by Yolanda Bello call Georgia's Gift Gallery at (313) 453-8312.

Art classes stimulate imagination

By Linda Ann Chomin
Staff Writer

Part one of a series.

Fall arts and crafts classes begin Sept. 15 in Observerland. In addition to the regular painting and drawing classes offered, an exciting array of other topics including the art of the carousel will bring out the creativity in you.

Learn a variety of wood carving techniques while crafting a carousel animal in a six-week class taught by Judith Shellhass at the Michigan Art Exchange in Plymouth. Although she creates three dimensional stained glass sculpture now, Shellhass is best known for her miniatures. Between 1974 and 1987 she turned them into a business that sold over 4,500 pieces of limited edition fine scale furniture.

Cost for the carousel class is $54.

From amateur to advanced carvers, students will create their choice of animals: a horse, rooster or ostrich. There is an additional charge for the kits priced at $22-30. Included in the kit is a precut blank or block of wood, complete set of instructions, and a color photograph of the finished animal, the largest of which is six inches high by seven inches long. The kits are from a series of 21 animals. Each is designed to teach a different wood carving skill.

"Wood carving is a technique that anyone can do. Everyone can be taught. The animals are a vehicle for learning to rough-cut, shape and accomplish fine detailed surface work at the end. All you really need is a sharp pencil, a ruler, and an X-acto knife and blade," said Shellhass of Plymouth.

"In a separate four-hour class, students will be encouraged to paint their finished animal. So if a mistake is made the paint will cover it. There isn't anything we can't fix or cover up with paint."

In addition to the wood carving class with Shellhass, a variety of subjects from painting to clothing embellishment and Oshabana, a framed pressed flower art will be taught by artist members of the Michigan Art Exchange. Prices range from $36 to $72. To register call (313) 459-1906.

Create a late summer, garden painting in workshops with Marge Chellstorp at the Visual Arts Association of Livonia in the Jefferson Center. The first watercolor workshop 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Sept. 16-17 by the Farmington Hills artist costs $45 for members, $50 for non-members. Membership is $20 a year. To register call (313) 464-6772.

"Sometimes students have paintings in progress. Sometimes they paint from set-ups. I work with them on composition and technique. I will demonstrate or bring in a painting in progress and show them how to solve the problems," said Chellstorp, whose studies include the Chicago Art Institute and earning a master of fine arts degree from the University of Iowa.

VAAL offers classes and workshops by professional artists Edee Joppich, V. Janus Benda, Donna Vogelheim, Ann Loveland, Else Pedersen and Lily Dudgeon. A second two-day workshop with Chellstorp takes place during the same hours on consecutive Fridays, Oct. 7 and 14. Resolving those summer landscapes explores scenes, changing light directions, and creating morning and night themes.

"We'll be working from paintings they've done this summer. I like to encourage them to take a different time of day, change the light source and shadows. With a landscape, it's important to know where you're light source is coming from," said Chellstorp, an associate professor for the last 11 years at Madonna University in Livonia.

Chellstorp will begin a two-credit-hour class in watercolor at the university in October. For more information call (313) 591-5052.

■ SCHOLARSHIPS AWARDED

The South Oakland County Board of Realtors awarded scholarships to 46 students from 20 high schools within the board's jurisdiction at a ceremony sponsored by Troy based Standard Federal Bank.

SOCBOR's scholarship fund trustees also awarded seven students from four Michigan universities.

This year's winners, selected from 122 applicants, achieved a 3.7 or higher GPA. Ten students with a 4.0 GPA were class valedictorians, reports the board's newsletter, Outlook.

■ DISCOVER WHO'S WHO

In the market for a high volume real estate agent?

A new book, "Who's Who in Residential Real Estate in North America," lists more than 3,200 real estate agents from 38 U.S. and Canada whose annual sales volume exceeds $3 million or who close at least 30 residential units per year, says Real Trends, the publisher and real estate industry researcher.

The 485-page book lists sales people alphabetically and includes geographic and company indexes. Next year's edition will include top producing agents from Mexico.

Real Trends says the book is for home buyers and sellers who are looking for results-oriented sales people; corporate relocation departments that use out-of-state agents, and real estate people looking for referral agents.

"Who's Who in Residential Real Estate in North America" is available in many public libraries.

For more information, write Real Trends, P.O. Box 260010, Highlands Ranch, CO 80126, or FAX (303) 791-7388.

Peers single out Realtors of the year

BY JANICE TIGAR-KRAMER
SPECIAL WRITER

Becoming Realtor of the Year means more to Observer & Eccentric area Realtors than a plaque and dinner at the Westin Hotel in downtown Detroit.

Unlike other real estate industry awards, this one is particularly special because it's not based on an agent's sales volume. Instead, voters in all but one Realtor board look at a candidate's involvement with the Michigan Association of Realtors (MAR) and National Association of Realtors (NAR), public recognition and ethical standing in the community, community service, and continuing education.

The Rochester Area Association of Realtors names its president as Realtor of the Year and its American Home Week chairperson as Realtor Associate of the Year.

"I was flabbergasted, it's a tremendous honor to be recognized by peers," said Douglas Whitehouse, broker/owner of Hannett, Wilson & Whitehouse in Bloomfield Hills, and the Birmingham Bloomfield Board of Realtors' Realtor of the Year.

"It's a humbling experience to have a group of people you like recognize you. I'm at a loss for words and that usually doesn't happen," he said.

The Lathrup Village resident entered the real estate business in 1980, after working in manufacturing for a Dearborn food processor for 16 years. He has a business administration degree from the University of Michigan and has earned several real estate designations, including certified residential specialist (CRS) and certified real estate brokerage manager (CRB).

The South Oakland County Board of Realtors' top vote-getter is Jane Griffin of Chamberlain Realtors in Royal Oak.

"Realtor of the Year was a real surprise because I tend to think of many board members who do more. I was pleased," said the Berkley resident, who's also board president.

Griffin, a former Detroit-area elementary teacher and mother of three, has been a Realtor since 1980 and a broker since 1985. She's also a delegate to the state and national Realtor boards and a director for PAS, the firm that manages three Oakland County Realtor boards.

Former Avon Township trustee Gladys Corbin is the Rochester Area Association of Realtors' Realtor of the Year. Bill Bonsky is Realtor Associate of the Year.

"You don't receive commendations every day, so I'm thrilled," said Corbin of Weir, Manuel, Snyder & Ranke in Rochester.

The Rochester Hills resident, a mother of five and a former Rochester-area teacher, has been in real estate and property management since 1972. She's the association president, a PAS director, a MAR delegate and a director of Rochester Hills' Economic Development Corp.

Corbin has a political science degree from the University of Michigan and is a past president of the League of Women Voters.

"It's a prestigious award and I'm honored," said Bonsky of Century 21-East, Inc., Rochester Hills.

The Shelby Township resident was director of non-institutional services for L'Anse Creuse Public Schools in the Mt. Clemens area before starting his real estate career more than seven years ago.

He's chairman of American Home Week activities, which includes the "Draw Your Own Home" art contest for Rochester-area students. Bonsky has served on MAR's education committee and equal opportunity in housing committee.

Winners of this coveted award will pick up a plaque at MAR's annual conference/dinner at the Westin in October. Winners statewide will compete for the State Realtor of the Year award.

Windows galore: The Evergreen at Hunters Pointe has a bright, open appearance, thanks to a liberal placement of windows on the model. This is the view from the back.

Price is right in Hunters Pointe

A Farmington Hills builder who used to focus on custom-design houses a few years ago has gone back to the more affordable end of the pricing spectrum with a subdivision, Hunters Pointe, in Livonia.

BY DOUG FUNKE

Judging from buyers' responses, Hunters Pointe off Plymouth Road west of Newburgh is the right residential subdivision in the right place at the right time at the right price for a bunch of people.

Five months after the models opened in March, 25 of the 42 single-family building sites had been snapped up, said Craig S. Corbell, president of Hunter Homes in Farmington Hills, developer/builder.

Prices range from $136,900 for a 1,430-square-foot ranch with three bedrooms and two baths to $145,500 for a 2,050-square-foot colonial with four bedrooms and 2½ baths.

"They get the most house for their money here. It's that simple," Corbell said.

"The second major factor besides price is Livonia. We have people moving from Northville, Plymouth, Westland, Garden City and other parts of Livonia due to the (Livonia) school system and Livonia municipal services," he said.

The typical buyer at Hunters Pointe is a family with children under 10 years of age acquiring a first brand-new house, Corbell said. They're going with the basics and choosing few upgraded options such as air conditioning and ceramic tiling.

"The important thing is they don't want to be house poor," Corbell said. "Everyone we're dealing with is buying at a ratio where they can afford 15-20 percent more house. They try to get as much house as they can for the money, but not maxing out."

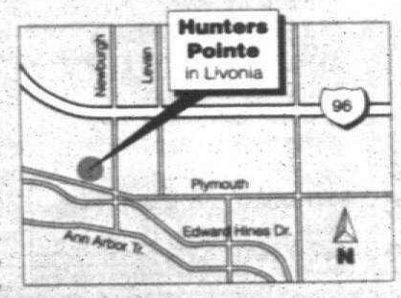
A second kind of buyer, much to his surprise, also is turning up at Hunters Pointe, Corbell added.

"It's the person five to 10 years away from retirement," he said. "They're looking for a house they can be comfortable in until the day they die. They want a yard. They don't want a condo. Also, they want something manageable for size and maintenance."

About half of the buyers so far have chosen a colonial, half a ranch, Corbell said.

The Evergreen model on site, a colonial with 2,050 square feet, offers four bedrooms and two baths upstairs. The main level features a living room, dining room, kitchen/eating nook, family room with fireplace, laundry and powder room.

The house has a certain brightness to it, Corbell said, and for good reason.



"We put in a larger dining room window. In the living room, we put in an extra side window to give it more light. Same thing in the family room. All three secondary bedrooms have large windows that really brighten them up. It really makes a big difference in the feel of a room."

Other standard touches pointed out by Corbell include linen closets in both upstairs baths as well as in the hallway, coat closets at both

Recruiters: Don't change job just for larger salary

Slightly more than one out of three hiring executives polled in the north central states, including Michigan, plan to add middle managers and professionals to their staffs by the end of the year.

That's an increase of 2.6 percentage points from the first of the year, according to a survey conducted by Management Recruiters International.

Of 2,088 hiring executives surveyed nationally, 37.5 percent indicated plans to increase staff. Here, it was 37.6 percent.

Not since late 1989 have companies planned to add such large numbers to their workforces, Management Recruiters reported.

Fred Bawulski, owner of a franchise in Bingham Farms, and Mark R. Angott, a franchise owner in Rochester, said business is booming.

Following are edited excerpts from a recent interview with the pair.

What should people do who have lost their jobs in corporate downsizings?

Angott: I would network everywhere. You have no confidentiality problem. Call associates. Call recruiting firms. I'd make sure I'm calling a lot of them and make it a full time job.

Network as much as possible. Not just potential hirers but friends and associates who may know someone else.

Years ago, this (economic layoffs) used to be a big stigma. In this age of mergers and corporate downsizings, it's not a stigma.

Bawulski: You'll find out who your true friends are. Contact them. Don't be embarrassed. Make a list of all your strong points. Write it down.

Go to a good recruting firm while you're making rounds. We have good access (to potential employers).

What about if you're currently employed but looking for a job change?

Bawulski: Don't tell anyone. It's got to be very confidential. If companies hear that John's thinking of leaving, they'll say, 'We've got to protect ourselves.' They'll start looking for your replacement

You go to a good recruiting firm. They won't mail out 50 or 60 resumes. They'll make phone calls.

Angott: You may selectively respond to ads in newspapers or try to find the right search firm that might be able to help with expertise in the field.

If you're employed, what are good reasons to look around and maybe not good reasons to move?

Bawulski: Don't change for just money. That's third or fourth in line. What you change for it's a better position, it's a better company, you can enhance your career.

If you're grossly underpaid, you can tell an employer that. Tell that's one reason you're looking. But you have to be very careful about money.

If an employer thinks you're changing for money, he'll think the next person who comes along and proffers $5 more, you'll be gone.

Angott: I think we're in a day and age where middle management has to look out for itself more than 10 or 15 years ago. Corporate loyalty has changed dramatically.

People felt secure when they joined a company. Now, they've got to look out for themselves. People now listen when we call.

Bawulski: It's always a compliment to them.

Who can you help in the job market?

Bawulski: We deal with people who have an engineering degree and two or three years minimum experience. Financial people, same prerequisites. And also in the health care field. There's never a fee to the candidate.

The client always pays the recruting charge. That's usually 30 percent of total first-year earnings.

Why wouldn't companies do their own searches?

Angott: Small companies don't have the resources. Some might not even have a trained human resources person. Larger companies may have specific needs they can't find on their own.

How are things going locally?

Angott: I think a lot of companies sat on the sidelines hiring new managers even though they knew times were better than two or three years ago and they were making money.

It was put on hold, put on hold. They will admit they waited too long. They just wanted to make sure they were out of the recession, then it exploded.

The question is, 'What am I going to spend time on?' I have 10 openings. What two or three am I going to spend time on today?'

How are things different now than before the last recession?

Bawulski: When things slowed down, companies used that as an excuse to get rid of people. Now, they've got people who produce. They're getting back to where they were (in terms of numbers). There's a difference in hiring. People had better cut it.

Angott: I don't think we'll ever see companies fat, stacked with overhead again.

How is this area perceived nationally in terms of a desirable place to work?

Angott: We recruit outside. If they've travelled through, have relatives or friends here, it's not tough at all.

Bawulski: Once they see the suburbs, see all the advantages of a major city, it's not a hard sell. Once you get 'em here.

the front and rear entry, pantry in the kitchen and tub in the laundry.

The most popular ranch model, the Mallard, features three bedrooms, a formal dining room, kitchen/eating nook and family room.

All floor plans at Hunters Pointe include attached two-car garage, basement and fireplace. A dishwasher and range are included as standard items.

Brady and Shelly Mangas, along with children Brian, Bradley and Shelby, were the first to move into the subdivision. They relocated from another part of Livonia and made several changes to the basic floor plan of a four-bedroom colonial.

"We wanted something with a big yard and a three-car, side-entry garage," Shelly said. "They worked with us really nice.

"For the price for a new home in Livonia, I think it's really reasonable. I've been told it's mostly couples our age with young kids moving in. We're real happy," she said.

Michael and Barbara Brooks purchased a ranch.

"The price attracted me," Michael said. "The reason we preferred a ranch was only two of us are living there and it came with a large country kitchen look and nook all in one."

Brooks said his concerns about a meat processing plant upwind just west of Hunters Pointe were put to rest by plans to install berms, trees and a privacy fence.

"The positive feedback is it's an excellent price in Livonia," said Ray Lee, sales associate for Re/Max Great Lakes Realty. "I'm not even sure we have competition in that price range.

"They (prospects) like the nice, open floor plans and the fact we're giving such a variety — three colonials, all have a fourth-bedroom option, and three ranches," Lee said.

The property tax rate for a house in Livonia serviced by the Livonia Public Schools is about $32 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value.

That means the owner of a house in Hunters Pointe worth $140,000 would pay about $2,240 annually for municipal, school and county taxes.

The sales model at Hunters Pointe, (313) 462-4246, is open 1-6 p.m. daily, closed Thursdays.

Unemployment rates low

Michigan's unemployment rate showed little change in August, edging up by three-tenths of a percent to a seasonally adjusted 6.3 percent, F. Robert Edwards, director of the Michigan Employment Security Commission, reported.

"Although our unemployment rate rose slightly last month, it remained below the August 1993 level of 6.7 percent. While auto industry employment remains strong, our monthly survey of employer payrolls revealed some employment losses in construction and in the finance, insurance and real estate industry," he said.

Also employment gains occurred in the retail trade and among other service producing industries. According to estimates prepared by the federal Bureau of Labor Statistics, the number of unemployed Michigan workers rose by 14,000 to 297,000 in August but was down from 316,000 a year ago.

In July 283,000 were jobless, accounting for 6.0 percent of the workforce. Across the state, employment dropped by 15,000 in August to 4,447,000, while the labor force showed little change, dropping by 1,000 to 4,744,000.

A positive sign for the state's workforce in August was a 21-year low in the volume of unemployment claims. "The number of claims for state unemployment benefits fell to 71,000 in August, which is the lowest level since 62,000 claims were registered in November 1973," Edwards said.

In addition to the drop in jobless claims, MESC reported earlier in the week a 10.3 percent increase in the number of job openings filled by the agency for its recently ended program year. "Our Job Service filled 108,558 job openings for the 12 months ending in June," Edwards reported.

For the three months ending in August, Michigan's jobless rate averaged 5.9 percent, down from 6.0 percent for the March to May period and down by more than a percentage point from the June to August 1993 average of 7.0 percent.

Among the nation's 11 largest states, California had the highest August rate at 8.9 percent, followed by New York (6.9 percent), Texas (6.6 percent) and Michigan. North Carolina had the lowest rate at 5.2 percent.

Nationally, the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate remained unchanged from July to August at 6.1 percent.

O&E ONLINE

EMORY DANIELS

■ Correction: There is no "from" line in pine. E-mail messages automatically print the name of the sender and the sender's e-mail address on the top of the message and so a "from" line is superfluous. By the way, users can add a "signature line" to their e-mail by going to the file manager area and choosing that option.

Before moving on to our next area of exploration, I'd like to take time out from "how to" to respond to inquiries and share ideas from PC users who regularly access O&E Online.

Alan B. wonders why when printing a message from Pine he gets a blank page added. Pine automatically places a form feed at the end of each message. I have the same thing happen to me offline when my software will add an unwanted form feed and unwanted blank sheets occur. I just recycle the blank sheets back through my printer, as I'm sure Alan does too.

Ken. K. suggests using one column as an exercise that will take readers through all the steps of finding information, accessing it, retrieving, saving and printing using Veronica, Gopher, FTP or Telnet. That's a great idea that I'm working on for a column in the very near future.

Joe S. has a son living in Ohio who now has a commercial online service but is paying too much and has to pay for e-mail. Joe asked whether his son could use a freenet to send e-mail to him, and vice versa. The answer is yes. There's a Cleveland Freenet and a Dayton Freenet. I checked on Dayton and found a post office site that allows a user to send and receive e-mail. Joe's son merely needs to contact the system operator and apply for an e-mail address and he's in business. Joe's message sent through O&E Online is free and very likely the call his son places through the Freenet also will be free, except for maybe a unit call charge.

Janice C. was kind enough to point out an error I missed. When writing about our Pine mail delivery system, I referred to filling out the "from" line. As Janice knows, and the rest of you discovered, there is no "from" line. E-mail messages automatically print the name of the sender and the sender's e-mail address on the top of the message and so a "from" line is superfluous. By the way, users can add a "signature line" to their e-mail by going to the file manager area and choosing that option.

Mike M. asked if there was a printed user guide for O&E Online. There is an O&E Online Guide that's available as one of the nine choices when users first arrive onboard. The Internet Dummies Guide also is available at that site. On the main menu, under "files," there also are some text files on the Internet and how to use it, some more complicated than others.

Some users sign in only to be greeted by unreadable gibberish. The cause, almost every time, is that the wrong terminal emulation is being used. The best terminal emulation to use is VT100. Not all communications software supports VT100, though, and so our system has chosen ANSI as the default choice. 'Here's your choices: 1. If you communications software has chosen VT100 then type VT100 at the terminal (TERM) prompt; 2. Go through the option choices of your communications software and select VT100 if offered; or 3. If VT is not offered, than accept the ANSI default by hitting RETURN — do not type in VT100.

When downloading software or files, the best protocol to select is Zmodem. If you access us through a Merit number (a non-Livonia or non-Birmingham number), however, the downloading and uploading protocol to use is Kermit.

Although we have added several phone lines at our Livonia and Birmingham sites, there still are busy signals during prime time (8-11 p.m.). We are conducting an ongoing study of busy signals to monitor the problem. There is a solution, though. You likely will have better luck calling us through a Merit number (such as Dearborn, Detroit, Southfield).

The Merit access points, however, use the 7E1 parity setting rather than the 8N1, which Livonia and Birmingham use. If that setting is not entered on your dialing directory for those numbers, then change the settings before you dial. Otherwise there will be a screen full of garbage.

When connecting with Merit, you will be asked for the terminal type. Choose VT100 (even if you are using ANSI). When you arrive at O&E Online, you then can choose ANSI if that's your option. Dialing in through Merit is the best way to gain access during prime time.

If ANSI is your only choice, than dial in and download one of the communications software we offer on the first menu. Each terminal program we offer supports VT100. You will get far better performance with e-mail, chat, and while out on the Net with VT100 emulation. Errors occur when using ANSI for these functions.

You can direct questions to Emory Daniels by e-mail with emory@oeonline.com, at voice mail at 953-2047 then dial 1910, or fax number 591-7279. To sign up for O&E On-Line, dial (313)591-0903, at "log-in" prompt type "new" and at "Access:" prompt type GL6NY2.

Fest offers fun for young, old

By Julie Brown
Staff Writer

This year's Plymouth Fall Festival, set for Sept. 9-11 in downtown Plymouth, promises to be better than ever.

What started several decades ago as a community picnic for the Plymouth Rotary Club has grown into something bigger. There will be the Sunday afternoon chicken barbecue sponsored by the Plymouth Rotary Club, along with the Kiwanis pancake breakfast Saturday morning.

"Of course, you have the pet show on Saturday which is always a big thing for the kids," festival manager John Bida said of the Saturday morning event, sponsored by the Optimist Club.

There will also be plenty of entertainment, including the Canton Senior Citizens Kitchen Band Friday, the Plymouth Community Band Friday, and karaoke Saturday night.

Sunday will include an antique car show along Main Street. More than 100 cars are expected.

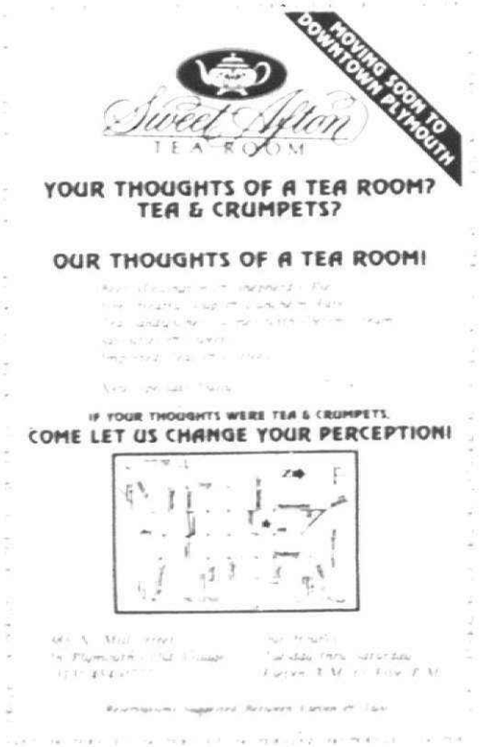
"Everybody really loved it," said Bida, a Plymouth resident, referring to last year's show. "It should be pretty nice. We're just looking for good weather."

Sunday's car show will last throughout the day. Sunday will also feature local firefighters with demonstrations.

"You have the stuff that we have every year," Bida said. Firefighters will display a Safety House throughout the festival. There will be a number of booths in the Main Street/Kellogg Park area, offering something for everyone.

Bida's taken over as festival manager for his dad, Joe. The younger Bida appreciates the help of many volunteers who assist him, including Charlie Heid, assistant manager.

"I couldn't do it without him. And of course Paul Sincock is always a big help," he said, referring to Plymouth's assistant city manager.



Streets closed

The 39th annual Fall Festival will force the closing of several streets in downtown Plymouth during the festival weekend, starting at noon on Thursday and running through Sunday, according to Paul Sincock, assistant city manager.

The closings will allow the festival electricians time to set up the necessary power for the event and for crews to set up the tent.

The following streets will be closed:

- Main Street, between the Mayflower Hotel and Fralick.
- Ann Arbor Trail, between Forest and Union.
- Penniman, between Harvey and Union.
- Main Street, Sunday only, between Church and the Mayflower.

Detour signs will be erected prior to the event.

Artists gather

By Julie Brown
Staff Writer

The Plymouth Community Arts Council will again sponsor its annual Artists and Craftsmen Show during the Plymouth Fall Festival.

"It's just a very high quality yearly show," said Carolyn Simons of Plymouth Township, show chairwoman.

This year's show, the 23rd such annual event, will feature more than 100 artists and crafters offering watercolors, acrylics, fabric items, clay, creative wood pieces, furniture, jewelry and more.

The show will be 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 10, and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 11, at Central Middle School, 650 Church, at Main in downtown Plymouth. Admission is a $2 donation, $1 for seniors and students, free for children under age 12 accompanied by an adult.

Many volunteers put in many hours to make the show a success. "It's one of our major fund-raisers," Simons said. The annual show helps promote the arts in the community for children and adults.

Fest started as a benefit

The annual Plymouth Community Fall Festival was started by the Plymouth Rotary Club in 1956.

Nearly 40 years ago, the Rotary Club had the idea to host a community picnic at a neighborhood park to raise money for playground equipment for that park. The Rotarians banded together and served 500 chicken dinners at Hamilton Park, now Jaycee Park at Wing and Harding streets.

While the Plymouth Rotary chicken dinner has grown in size over the years, the one-day community picnic has grown into a full-blown three-day event. The Plymouth Community Fall Festival now serves the needs of many of the Plymouth community's nonprofit organizations.

This year, the Plymouth Rotarians are planning on serving some 12,000 chicken dinners on Rotary Chicken Sunday — Sept. 11.

The event is focused in downtown Plymouth and it is anticipated that 75,000 visitors will come into Kellogg Park area for festival activities.

Pet show planned

In order to handle all of the pets and their owners who come to the Fall Festival, the pet show has been expanded. This year the Optimists will sponsor the pet show 9-11:30 a.m. Saturday at the Festival entertainment stage on Penniman at Union.

There will be several categories for judging, including the smallest and biggest dog and cat, the dog who has the longest tail, the longest ears and the best dressed animal.

If your pet is somewhat unusual, you can win a prize. The Optimists are looking for the most colorful, the biggest and unusual pets in town.

We propose these truths. . .

All diamond engagement rings are not created equal. The cut is extremely important. So is the setting. We'll be happy to point out the things you should look for to make the right decision. Promise.

Events offer fun

The booths located along Main Street and Penniman will be the heart of the action at the Fall Festival. The booths will furnish a wide variety of food and other services.

New location

Ann Arbor Trail near Main Street will be the featured location for the Northville-Plymouth Community Fire Safety House. Area firefighters will man the instructional safety house. Children of all ages and the young at heart can all learn what to do in case of a fire. Just look for the fire safety house at 9-1-1 Ann Arbor Trail. In addition to the live-in house demonstrations, there will be a display of fire equipment and instructional videos.

The Fall Festival board is sponsoring two new fun things to do on Ann Arbor Trail. You can get stuck on the velcro wall or take a spin in the orbitron. Both attractions are sponsored by the Festival board and proceeds help offset expenses for the event.

Kiddie rides

They're back. Kiddie rides, a festival favorite attraction, will be located on Penniman near the Plymouth post office. Ride tickets will be available at the ticket booths located near the rides.

Disabled get help

A survey conducted by the city of Plymouth indicated there is a need for handicapped parking during events in the downtown area.

To deal with that need, the city has designated several more parking spaces in the East Central Parking Lot, behind The Gathering, as handicapped parking only. Also, there will be additional handicapped parking along Union between Penniman and Roe.

Persons parking in handicapped parking spaces must display their handicapped parking pass and it must be clearly visible to police who will be checking these spaces.

Visitors to the festival should also be aware of several "No Parking Police Order" signs that will be placed throughout the festival area. These signs are designed to allow police, fire and emergency vehicles access to the festival site.

Changes in store for festival

Plymouth's annual Fall Festival is a traditional event, with a focus on the Rotary Club chicken barbecue on Sunday, but there are some changes in the event that kicks off on Friday and runs through Sunday.

A part of Main Street between Penniman and Fralick, usually blocked off during the three-day festival, will only be blocked off on Sunday.

And this year, some festival activities will happen on Ann Arbor Trail between Union and Forest, causing that section of street to be closed to traffic.

"We have some new rides and entertainment for kids," said festival manager John Bida.

"There's going to be art in a bottle, an Orbitron gyroscope you get into, a Velcro wall, kiddie rides, and some new musical entertainment this year," Bida said.

The festival traditionally provides a range of activities in the area around Kellogg Park. Food booths and food events provide area service clubs a chance to raise money to pay for activities that benefit the community.

Festival opening ceremonies are scheduled for 6-6:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 9, at the festival stage off of Kellogg Park.

The ceremonies are followed by bingo sponsored by the Plymouth Business and Professional Women at The Gathering.

From 6:30-7:30 p.m. at the stage the Canton Senior Citizens Kitchen Band performs. The Plymouth Community Band follows, from 7:30-8:30 p.m.

Saturday morning activities open with the Kiwanis pancake breakfast; cost is $5.

At the festival stage Saturday, the Plymouth Optimist Club Pet Show is scheduled from 9-11:30 a.m. Prize ribbons are available in separate contests for dogs, cats and most unusual pets.

The Friends of the Dunning-Hough Library feature stories from 11:30-11:45 a.m., and the Polish Centennial Dancers perform from 12:30-1:30 p.m.

The Plymouth Theater Guild performs from 6-7 p.m., and karaoke — a top festival attraction the last two years — returns from 7-9:30 p.m.

Sunday activities are headed by the Rotary chicken barbecue from noon to 6 p.m. Advance tickets are $6, and tickets sold on Sunday cost $7.

Rides offered

Parking is always a problem during the Fall Festival. But this year things will be a bit easier, thanks to help from merchants in Plymouth's Old Village area.

Festival goers will be able to park anywhere in the Old Village area and take a trolley to the festival site at Kellogg Park in downtown Plymouth. The trolley will leave from near the railroad tracks on Division Street.

"We rented the trolley for Saturday," said Susan Fitzmaurice, of The Curious Child, an Old Village store. "It will run every half-hour."

The trolley will run from 1 p.m. on Saturday until 9:30 p.m., with the last run from Kellogg Park at 10 p.m. The trolley seats 32 people.

"We're doing this because the festival committee asked us to get involved, but we're really too far away to do too much. This was the best contribution we could think of," said Fitzmaurice. "Parking is always a problem at the festival."

Many businesses in Old Village will remain open until 10 p.m. on Saturday as part of the effort to get involved in the festival.

Cars featured

The antique car show was a big success at the 1993 Fall Festival and it is returning bigger and better for 1994. Local car enthusiasts have put together a fun display of antiques and power automobiles.

The show will be Sunday and will take place in the area along Main Street from Church south to Penniman in front of City Hall.

The Fall Festival event layout had to be changed this year to accommodate the expanded car show.

Art show is on

The Plymouth Community Arts Council has long been known for extending the creative side of the community. This year the arts council will sponsor the Artist and Craftsman Show at the Central Middle School. The event will be 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

This show is a juried show and has some of the finest work available in Michigan.

Steamed corn: The annual Plymouth Community Fall Festival traces its roots back to 1956 when the Plymouth Rotary Club hosted a picnic to raise money for playground equipment. That day more than 500 chicken dinners were served. During that era, club members used a steam tractor to produce the steam to cook the corn.

Sommers, Schwartz, Silver & Schwartz, P.C. believes that your protection before lengthy and costly litigation is as important as the more traditional representation during such litigation should it occur. Perhaps that is why we are the regional home for many of Michigan's finest businesses – who are also the most active firms in the legal community handling large

Our experience in litigation and litigation includes the areas of:

- Taxes
- Corporate law
- Business law
- Environmental law
- Banking
- Real estate
- Municipal law
- Professional malpractice

Our complicated litigation is well aggressively represented – whether the litigation requires it.

But we also help people avoid litigation equally as aggressively – so that such situations may be prevented.

Northville plans Victorian Festival

Northville's sixth annual Victorian Festival will be Sept. 16-18.

The Victorian Festival, sponsored by the Northville Community Chamber of Commerce, celebrates the town's heritage. Northville, founded in the early 1800s, came of age during the Victorian period. The community retains much of the flavor of that period today. Historic homes and a renovated downtown welcome visitors and festival-goers.

The festival begins with a kickoff parade 6:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 16. For the next two days, the streets will be closed to automobile traffic as townspeople, artists and business owners turn back the clock and transform the community into a turn-of-the-century festival complete with period costumes, free horse and carriage rides, storytellers, medicine man shows, strolling musicians and more.

Visitors can enjoy shopping, old-fashioned games and food booths. Activities and events take place 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday.

An Art Market, sponsored by the Northville Arts Commission, features more than 50 fine artists. Historic Mill Race Village, nestled between a town green and Mill Race Pond, will be open for tours during the festival. All festival events are free and open to the public except for Saturday evening's costume Victorian Ball and the Sunday afternoon Victorian Tea. Reservations for these events can be made by calling the Chamber of Commerce office, (810) 349-7640.

The festival has grown in popularity each year. More than 10,000 people attended last year's festival and the same turnout is expected this year.
