Pilots worried about condos

Pilots at Canton-Plymouth Mettetal Airport are worried that a condominium project proposed for the area will cause safety problems.

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Canton-Plymouth Mettetal Airport pilots are concerned about condominiums planned for immediately south of the airport that in some cases will have only a 125-foot clearance of landing planes.

"In our opinion, locating nearly 150 new residences directly beneath the approach and departure path of a thriving airport represents, at best, a failure of common sense. At worst, it could be termed irresponsible," Brian Bragg, vice president of the Canton-Plymouth Mettetal Aviation Association, told Canton trustees Tuesday.

The Canton Board of Trustees and planning commission approved the planned Coves of Canton in June. The development of 148 condominiums — some buildings will be two stories — will be on 32 acres at Lilley and Warren. The airport is immediately north of the site.

"They are doing the engineering for it now," said Jeff Goulet, Canton planner, adding that two-story buildings comply with township height restrictions.

The condominiums will be directly beneath the airport's approach and departure path. "The edge of the property is only about 1,200 feet from the Mettetal runway threshold, as measured in a direct line with the runway center line," Bragg said.

"There was no consideration to that when these condominiums were proposed," said Bill Brown, aviation association president.

He referred township officials to the new Sellers Disclosure Act of 1993, which requires informing residents of airport proximity.

The act does not define proximity, but the Michigan Aeronautics Commission suggests that disclosure should be made when property is within two miles of an airport, such as Mettetal.

"We will see to it that we're supposed to do what we're supposed to do," Supervisor Thomas Yack said.

Compromise sought on road extension

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

A subdivision representative is expected to meet with Canton officials and the developer of the planned Rolling Ridge condominium project to compromise on a proposed street extension.

"We're going to sit down with them Tuesday and see what we can do," said Aaron Machnik, Canton municipal services director.

Despite concerns from Hampton Court West residents, the township board approved the final site plan for the nine-acre development on the north side of Warren Road, between Canton Center and Sheldon roads. Residents had also unsuccessfully urged planning commissioners to deny the plan Sept. 19.

Subdivision residents oppose the development that includes connecting Charrington Drive in the subdivision through the condominium complex to Warren Road. The complex will be immediately south of Hampton Court West. Streets in the condominium complex would be private and not governed by Wayne County.

The project by Ron Cook and Art Gerrish meets township ordinances and trustees said they had no choice but to approve the plan. Trustees asked Machnik to quickly review the ordinance. Machnik urged trustees not to violate the ordinance by delaying approval.

Canton restaurant cited for labor law violation

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

One of Canton's longtime restaurants has been fined for allegedly violating federal child labor laws.

The U.S. Department of Labor has fined the Roman Forum, 41601 Ford Road, $14,850 for allowing 33 employees under the age of 16 to work hours beyond those allowed by federal law.

Restaurant owner Greg Gatto said his attorney has sent a letter appealing the reported violations and the fine.

"We are trying to fight this to reduce it (fine). We know we made a mistake. We didn't do it knowingly," Gatto said. "We had a 15-year-old boy who stayed beyond 7 p.m. Sometimes we are busy or we forget. A lot of times when you are working you just don't realize it."

Gatto said he has tried to get details of the violations from the labor department. "They won't give us any details. They won't give us a thing. We aren't trying to go against the government. When you're in business, you're bound to make a mistake or two," Gatto added.

Brad Mitchell of the labor department said the appeal letter was received. The matter could be referred to an administrative law judge for resolution. "We will try to reach an understanding. It is possible it will be negotiated."

According to federal law, 14- and 15-year-old employees may not be employed during school hours, before 7 a.m. or after 7 p.m. except June 1 through Labor Day, or for more than three hours a day or 18 hours a week on school days. During non-school weeks minor employees may not work more than 40 hours or more than eight hours a day.

Gatto said he believes the violation was issued based on a particular incident and doesn't understand why the labor department refers to 33 employees who worked longer-than-allowed hours.

Mitchell would not specify what led the labor department to issue violations against the restaurant. "We conduct investigations as a result of complaints and from regularly scheduled compliance investigations."

Candidates forum

"We would like to encourage homeowners and businesses to attend this," said Linda Shapona, chamber executive director.

Staffer to oversee Summit on the Park center

Canton has selected the recreation supervisor from Ypsilanti Township to head its new Summit on the Park community center.

Debra Bilbrey-Honsowetz begins her new duties with Canton Township on Oct. 3. She will oversee all operations for the $3,000-square-foot facility currently under construction in Heritage Park southwest of the Canton municipal offices. It is anticipated that the building will open in the fall of 1995.

"She will be an asset to the Canton staff and to this community," said Canton Recreation Superintendent Michael Gouin. "Her leadership skills will help us prepare for the Summit opening and the operation of this world-class center. We're pleased to have her on board."

Bilbrey-Honsowetz said she is looking forward to the challenge. "I am coming to Canton because of the progressiveness of this community," she said. "I think they're presenting a lot of opportunities."

Prior to the facility's opening, Bilbrey-Honsowetz will begin the process of organizing, promoting and preparing the center's operation, which will also include the hiring of staff. The manager will also coordinate with the food service vendor selected to operate the Summit kitchen.

Half of the new $13 million center in Canton will host a full-service banquet facility, training and meeting rooms, craft rooms, a senior center, a cable studio, and a child care room for those families using the facility. In the other half will be recreation facilities, including a fitness training room, walk-jog track, gymnasium, racquetball courts and an aquatic area featuring a 120-foot water slide and a lap pool. Canton's Parks and Recreation Services staff will also be housed at the center.

Ground was broken for the facility last May, and progress can be observed from the south parking lot of Heritage Park.

Prior to accepting the position in Canton, Bilbrey-Honsowetz supervised all Community Center operations in Ypsilanti Township for 11 years, including all programming and special events, promoting programs, hiring and training of employees and also served as department liaison to the Ypsilanti Township Park Commission. She is a member of the Michigan Recreation and Park Association, and the south-west Metropolitan Recreation Executive Group.

Bilbrey-Honsowetz also worked in the City of Romulus Recreation Department for six years. She holds a bachelor of science degree from Eastern Michigan University, with a major in recreation and a minor in physical education. She became involved in the recreation area because she enjoyed it and started working in municipal recreation at a young age.

"I just kind of fell into it," she added.

Canton's Summit on the Park project was designed by the architectural team of Neumann Smith and Associates of Southfield and Barker, Rinker, Sessat and Partners of Denver, Colo., which specializes in the design of community center facilities throughout the country. Construction is being funded through state and federal grants and money earmarked from local landfill tipping fees.

Bilbrey-Honsowetz is married and lives in Belleville. In her free time, she enjoys working out, golfing, ballroom-dancing, crafts and reading.

Participants kicked off the program with a recent overnight retreat at Weber's Inn in Ann Arbor, designed to give them insight into leadership styles and the nature of leadership, said Linda Shapona, chamber executive director.

The program is expected to cultivate participation in the Canton community. Each month's day-long session will explore facets of leadership as well as specific topics, such as education and human service needs. October's topic will be "Canton's Growing Pains."

Participants also have been divided into four groups to work on community projects that will be completed or through the planning stages by the time they graduate in June 1995.

"They are diversified and neat projects," Shapona said.

The projects include: organizing a business education day in which business leaders and Plymouth-Canton teachers will determine the factors that foster a quality of life through the use of surveys; developing a brochure designed to draw people into Canton; and helping the Friends of the Canton Public Library to organize its first golf outing.

While planning the program, the chamber hired Cleary College, which is providing instructors. College president Tom Sullivan worked with the chamber and Canton Township to organize the program. "They have been invaluable - the expertise they have offered," Shapona said. "This community chipped in like no community I have ever seen."

A steering committee organized the program and designed each monthly program. They include: Tom Yack, Canton supervisor; Tom Adamusik, chamber president; Gary Stevers, Metaltec Steel Abrasives president; Marty Shendel, Metaltec Steel Abrasives; Laura Lavoie, Cleary College student recruitment director; Tom Sullivan, Cleary College president; Charlie Mahoney, Detroit Edison gov-

Water and sewer rates increase

Water and sewer use will cost more in Canton as of Oct. 1. The Canton Board of Trustees approved the new rates Sept. 27. The rates will increase by 10 cents per thousand gallons for water and 15 cents per thousand gallons for sewer, for a total 25 cents per thousand gallons.

The current combined water and sewer rate of $3.18 per thousand gallons will increase to $3.43. That represents a 7.8 percent increase in the cost to users.

In prior years, Canton has not increased local water and sewer rates when the city of Detroit and Wayne County increased the wholesale water and sewer treatment rates, said John Spencer, Canton chief financial officer.

That means the township's water and sewer fund experienced operating losses covered by interest income and developer connection fees, he said.

"Costs have been offset in the past by interest in the surplus fund. The WTUA system has severely impacted our ability to finance projects. We need to gradually increase rates to catch up to what our actual costs are of operating the system. Wholesale rates seem to be eating up most of our increases," Spencer said.

The goal, Spencer said, is to achieve a breakeven point by 1996, spreading the required increase in smaller increments over several years and lessening the immediate impact on users.

Contest focuses on fire safety

The Canton Fire Department and Canton Chamber of Commerce are on their 16th year of sponsoring the annual fire safety poster contest for elementary school students.

The October contest recognizes National Fire Safety Month, designed to educate children on the importance of fire safety. The week of Oct. 9-15 has been designated fire safety week in Canton by the Canton Township Board of Trustees.

"Our aim is to reach the parents through teaching the children the importance of fire safety and planning," said Fire Marshal Art Winkel.

Children who wish to participate in the contest are asked to submit their posters to their classroom teachers by Oct. 17. Chamber officials expect more than 800 entries from students who are asked to illustrate this year's theme: "Test Your Detector For Life." Tony Kwilow serves as the fire safety chairman.

Chamber members sponsor $50 savings bonds that will be awarded to winners in two grade categories: K-3 and 4-5. Members also sponsor prizes and refreshments for the Oct. 31 awards ceremony.

Serving as sponsors are McMurray State Farm Insurance Agency, Draw-Tite, First of America, dentist James Gliniski, Kmart Distribution, Modern Insurance, McDonald's, Livona Screen Printing, and The Art Store.

Canton fire officials urge families to install smoke detectors. They can be bought at Target, Meijer and Kmart at prices ranging $7.99-$20.97.

Canton is considered unique among surrounding communities because the fire department has a fire safety house, which demonstrates the use of detectors and planning escape routes in homes.

"We've had over 7,000 people experience this fire-like situation," Winkel said.

The fire safety house is available to groups 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. daily. For an appointment, contact the fire department, 981-1113. For information about the poster contest, call the chamber, 453-4040.

Parent lauded for her efforts

Former Field Elementary School parent and current middle school parent Linda Morgan was honored at the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education meeting on Monday, Sept. 26, for her volunteer services at Field Elementary School.

The "I Care" committee and the Board of Education established the "Extra Mile Volunteers in Public (VIPS) Award" in 1991 to recognize outstanding volunteers in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools District.

"Linda is always bright and cheerful and willing to help in any way she can; she is a person you can call at the last minute and she'll be there," said LeeAnne Young, former Field PTO president. "Linda has the welfare of all students at heart."

Morgan's many volunteer activities include serving as PTO vice president in 1992-93 and PTO treasurer in 1993-94, as Library Book Fair coordinator, working on the French Back to Back program and helping in the classroom. She also has worked on the playground committee, the sign for the front of the school and has helped in the classroom and has worked on popcorn sales.

"Several times a week Linda was in our building helping in numerous ways," said Marion Heath, Field media specialist. Morgan believes that it is important to be a part of her children's school. "I feel if I'm involved at school that it shows my children that education is very important."

To honor her volunteer services, Morgan was presented with a framed resolution passed by the Board of Education, a volunteer pin and a dinner gift certificate donated by the Canton Mountain Jack's restaurant and tickets to a production of the Plymouth-Canton Educational Park Players on behalf of the "I Care" Committee.

Dental office blast yields investigation

Canton police and fire personnel are investigating an explosion that led to a fire in a dental office on Canton Center Road early Thursday morning.

Emergency personnel responded to the office in the 8500 block of Canton Center Road at 7:34 a.m. Heavy smoke was visible from the office. The fire was brought under control and extinguished quickly, said fire Chief Mike Rorabacher.

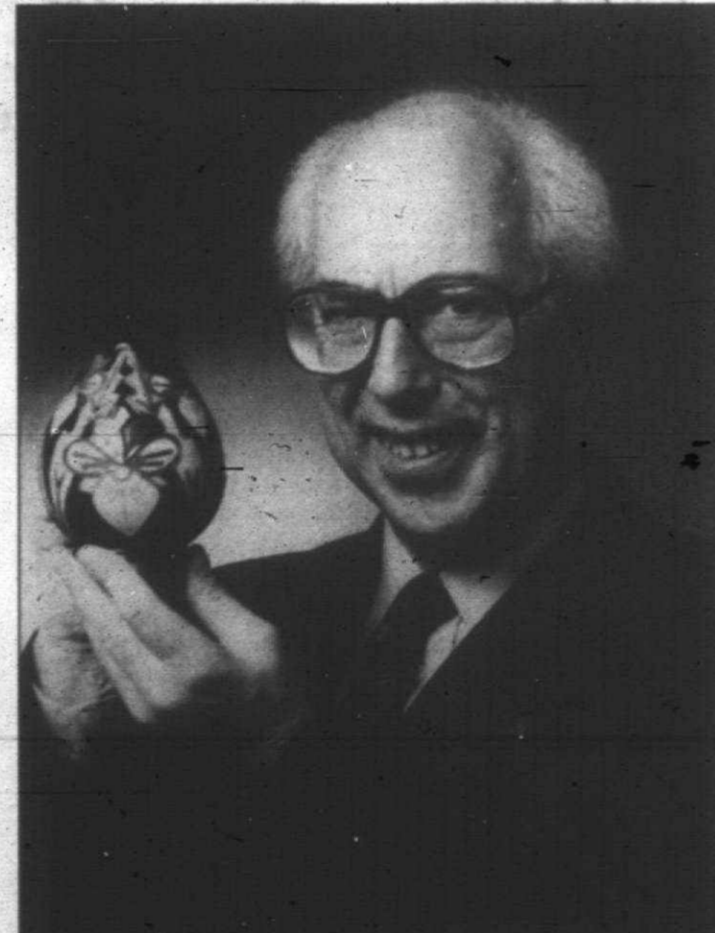

According to fire officials, an employee said she was turning on an oxygen tank in the office — which she does every morning — and a malfunction appears to have caused the explosion and the fire.

The employee received minor injuries. A co-worker took the employee to McAuley Clinic in Plymouth for treatment after she initially refused to be transported by the fire department.

Damage estimates weren't available but there was extensive flame damage to the office.

The fire and explosion are under investigation but it is believed the incident was accidental, Rorabacher said.

School's in session, leadership is the subject

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI STAFF WRITER

School is in session for 22 residents and business leaders who are participating in the Canton Chamber of Commerce Leadership Canton program.

The Canton chamber is the only one among western Wayne County chambers to provide the nine-month program with the help of Cleary College.

Participants kicked off the program with a recent overnight retreat at Weber's Inn in Ann Arbor, designed to give them insight into leadership styles and the nature of leadership, said Linda Shapona, chamber executive director.

Governor comes to Canton to make his pitch

BY KEVIN BROWN STAFF WRITER

Gov. John Engler's appearance before the Plymouth Rotary Club on Friday was intended to be non-political, said Rotarian Tom Kennedy who helped organize it.

If that seemed like an unlikely premise to the 200 people who turned out for the event, Engler - a Republican candidate for re-election - agreed.

"It's sort of like asking Congressman (Howard) Wolpe not to raise taxes," he joked, referring to his Democratic opponent for the governorship.

Following the speech, Engler visited Gil-Mar Manufacturing in Canton.

During his speech, a group of 25 teachers picketed the appearance at the Mayflower Meeting House, with several holding red, white and blue "Wolpe" signs.

"We are out here to show our displeasure with Gov. Engler," said Plymouth-Canton schools teacher Debbie Maloni. "He needs to realize educators are displeased with what he's done."

Plymouth-Canton teachers union president Chuck Portelli said he was also displeased that the president of the school board, David Artley, was introducing Engler at the event.

"I'm introducing him as a member of the Rotary Club," Artley responded.

Engler opened his remarks on a non-political note, noting that his wife, Michelle, had originally been scheduled to speak before the Rotary but couldn't as she's expecting triplets.

"I won't tell her she was missed today, I'll tell her she was preferred," Engler said. "Everything's going great, she's in her 29th week. It's getting crowded in there folks. Our goal is to get to Thanksgiving, Engler said, as that is his wife's due date.

"I won't tell her she was missed today, I'll tell her she was preferred," Engler said. "Everything's going great, she's in her 29th week. It's getting crowded in there folks. Our goal is to get to Thanksgiving, Engler said, as that is his wife's due date.

The candidate sought to address where the state is today "and what I see ahead."

Engler said that when he took office, he discussed goals. "Michigan to move ahead had to get competitive again," he said, adding, "The success is nothing short of remarkable."

To underline that success, he raised the recent strike at the Buick City plant in Flint, as workers are asking the company to hire more employees to ease the work load. Four years ago, Engler said, "Who would have thought too much overtime would be a problem?"

In Engler's address in Plymouth, scheduled before a visit to Gil-Mar Manufacturing in Canton, he said, "I've visited countless manufacturing job providers. It's evident there's a real different attitude, a real commitment to maintaining cutting edge technology."

Engler was welcomed by Gil-Mar owners William Martin and Gil Ruicki, as well as Canton officials. "We heard the governor would be in town. We asked him to tour our plant," Martin said. The plant, which moved its headquarters from Farmington Hills, opened its doors about three to four days before Engler's visit.

"What we've tried to do in Lansing is create an environment for change," Engler said. During his tenure, Engler said the state's $1.8 billion deficit had been eliminated and a budget surplus of more than $400 million created. "That has allowed us to have tax cuts," he said.

"Are we where we have to be? Not yet," Engler said. "We need to cut more taxes."

He said the real issue in education is not wages and salaries, but getting more students the skills to go to work upon leaving high school.

He also touted efforts to get people on welfare back to work or in school. "If we have to send you the check, we can insist something be done in return," Engler said.

From the audience, Frank Palmer asked about eliminating the single business tax. Engler said it was created 20 years ago as a model for other states to follow. "Zero is the number of states following our lead," he said. "We will take a comprehensive look at the single business tax."

Ron Schram asked why Michigan was accepting solid waste from other states and Ontario. Engler said court decisions had made that possible, adding the state boundaries should be closed to out-of-state waste haulers.

Area Catholic parents pushing for elementary classroom space

BY M.B. DILLON STAFF WRITER

The long list of families waiting for spots in Catholic elementary schools in western Wayne County will be a little shorter this fall if the Action Committee for Catholic Educational School Systems is successful.

More than 100 people attended last week's meeting of ACCESS, a grass-roots group of parents from Plymouth-Canton, Northville, Novi and Livonia interested in expanding capacity at existing schools and/or starting a new elementary school.

Space in existing buildings is so tight "that it doesn't matter how much you could bribe the priest with," said Kathryn Kristoff. "The point is moot. If you had $10,000 you couldn't get your kid into a Catholic school. What matters is the number of years you've been in the parish."

Our Lady of Good Counsel has the only Catholic elementary school serving Plymouth-Canton. OLCG's average class size is 36 and the waiting list is long.

"Eighty-two people signed a petition to be sent to area pastors "supporting the idea of Catholic education. We feel very strongly," the petition says, "about providing our children with a Catholic school education and hope that you and the archdiocese will work with us to build schools or look at alternative solutions so that every child who wants a Catholic school education has access to it."

The Catholic Archdiocese of Detroit is supportive. It has appointed a consultant, David Ramey, to work with ACCESS. While the archdiocese isn't in a position to fund the effort, "Mr. Ramey has been hired as a consultant to develop a strategic plan for all elementary schools in the Archdiocese of Detroit," said Richard Laakos, archdiocesan spokesman. "The process is just in the beginning stages. Last year, he developed a strategic plan for high schools in the archdiocese."

Parents have been asking why the archdiocese can't provide financial support.

"If anything happens, it's going to be us," Kristoff said. "The archdiocese sees this as an area of great need. It also sees us as able to support ourselves. We're not asking them for money. We're saying let's start making some plans and take it from there."

ACCESS is studying the expansion of existing facilities, new construction, and conversion of vacant sites, including the former Radisson Hotel on Northville Road.

"If the decision making tonight is going to turn on Aaron's interpretation — I'm uncomfortable with that," Supervisor Tom Yack said, adding that denial or postponement was not suggested.

Yack later said the township board doesn't have an attorney regularly at meetings to address questions because there's been little need. "The reasons we don't have somebody is because we don't have a lot of occasion where we need spontaneous legal advice," Yack said.

Trustees urged compromise between Cook and subdivision residents. "It seems to me that there's got to be a way all parties can win," trustee Phil LaJoy said. "I don't think these people should walk away tonight and say this is it."

Cook agreed to try a compromise but said he wanted no liability if a gate or berm was put where the condominium and subdivision streets would meet.

Residents asked if, as suggested by fire department officials, grass pavers, a locked gate, or berm could be used to stop cutting through traffic, while providing emergency vehicle access. "We would like proof that our children aren't going to be run over, maimed or whatever," said resident Jan Novak, who said the proposed extension is an example of poor planning.

Residents said they are concerned about the proposed extension because of increased traffic, using the road as a bypass and increased traffic speeds. The width of Charrington and the several bus stops on the road aren't conducive to an extension, residents argued.

They also questioned why traffic and wetlands studies were not conducted. "Residents in Hampton Court West feel their opinions aren't being given due consideration," said resident Dan Boileau.

A traffic study wasn't done because it was believed the connection would have little effect on traffic. "There was generally not a reason for people to be rerouted through the Hampton subdivision or Charrington," Machnik said.

Yack told residents that the street connection is driven by public safety concerns, particularly access for emergency vehicles.

Yack also told residents that it was too late in the process to ask Cook to redraw his plans. "I realize the developer is vested in this project. But we are vested in our homes. This is our community," Boileau said.

referring to the disclosure act. "We will find out what role we have in it."

Goulet said the airport's proximity should be evident to potential buyers. "We can ask developers to disclose."

Goulet said the township didn't receive complaints from Mettetal regarding the development. A couple residents earlier in the year expressed concern to planning commissioners about the airport's proximity earlier in the year. "As far as I know, Mettetal was never contacted," Brown said.

The property was rezoned in July 1992 from light industrial to residential. A sign was posted on the property about the proposed rezoning, said Judy Bocklage, Canton associate planner. Property owners within 300 feet of a proposed rezoning are notified by mail. The airport is more than 300 feet away.

Bragg and Brown asked for township help. But Yack told them there's nothing to be done, considering the project has been approved and the development meets township ordinances.

"It would be easy to say we'd take it under advisement, but in reality the property will be used according to the zoning that's been in place," Yack said. "There isn't anything this board can do. There isn't anything the state of

Police catch driver following chase on foot

After making a traffic stop Friday morning on a car with stolen license plates, a Plymouth Township police officer had to chase the driver on foot after he got out of the car and started running. Officer Dennis Wilson caught the man after a short chase, while Officer Todd Scipenko detained a woman passenger, according to police. The stop was made at 8:49 a.m., on Amehigh Street near Eccles and Schoolcraft roads.

In the car, officers found a TV, VCR and cameras with a name on the items, belonging to a Plymouth Township resident whose house on Cherry Lane had been broken into shortly before the traffic stop.

On Friday the two suspects, a woman, 48, and a man, 33, both of Detroit, were lodged in the township jail on charges of breaking and entering and receiving and concealing stolen property worth more than $100.

Police said they'd seek to arrest the two in court on charges Saturday.

Candidates clash

Schall, Rivers star, spar in Canton debate

Continuing their fight for the right to replace U.S. Rep. William Ford in Congress, John Schall and Lynn Rivers took their campaigns to the Canton Economic Club luncheon Friday.

The candidates are vying to represent the 13th Congressional District, which includes Canton and Plymouth townships, Plymouth, Westland, Garden City and the southeast quadrant of Livonia.

Schall, 33, grew up in Livonia, attended the University of Michigan and received a scholarship to Harvard University. He got involved in Republican politics at age 15 and later worked in the administrations of former presidents Ronald Reagan and George Bush.

Rivers, 37, was elected state representative for Ann Arbor and Pittsfield Township two years ago. Before that she was on the Ann Arbor Board of Education for more than eight years. Married the day after she graduated from high school, Rivers attended the University of Michigan while raising her two daughters. She has a law degree from Wayne State University. Her husband, Joe, is a blue-collar worker for the Ford Motor Co.

The audience of about 100 seemed evenly divided between

Next battle at Washtenaw CC

For those who missed meeting the 13th Congressional District candidates Lynn Rivers and John Schall at the Canton Economic Club debate Friday, there's another event planned Tuesday, Oct. 18.

Rivers and Schall are expected to appear 7:30 p.m.

at that day at Washtenaw Community College in Room JS 101 of the Morris Lawrence Building.

Washtenaw Community College is located in Ann Arbor.

the interests of people in my district," said Rivers. Schall continually stressed his experience as domestic policy adviser to former President George Bush and his tenure as chief of staff in the U.S. Department of Labor "managing an agency of 18,500 people."

While in Washington, he said, "I saw it up close and personal, too many areas where the government intrudes into our lives where it just doesn't belong. Government is too big and it spends too much."

Schall said he favors a balanced budget amendment, a line-item veto for the president and term limits for elected officials.

Rivers swiped at Schall's Harvard training by saying "I did not go to Harvard to learn about government. I want to build relationships here rather than in Washington."

The candidates sparred briefly over who has the most endorsements from police associations. Schall said that area police support him. Rivers said Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano and the deputies union support her. Schall said, "Police officers local, state and national have endorsed me."

Voters will decide the race on Tuesday, Nov. 8. The last day to register to vote in the November election is Tuesday, Oct. 11.

Feeling Depressed?

Common symptoms of Depression are sadness, loss of interest or pleasure, insomnia, poor appetite and weight loss, feeling tired, worthless or guilty, and difficulty thinking or concentrating. Some people also have suicidal thoughts, which can be a major risk if their Depression is left untreated.

Depression is among the most common psychiatric conditions. Approximately 6% of adults have at least one significant episode of Depression during their lifetimes. Women are affected twice as often as men. In spite of how common Depression is, it is treated adequately only 50% of the time.

Depression can occur in episodes, with normal times in between, or be continuous and persistent. Occasionally people who suffer from Depression have high or manic episodes as well.

There are several psychological theories regarding the cause of Depression. Biological factors, including possible deficiencies of adrenaline-like neurotransmitter chemicals in the brain, are also potential causes. It is known that Depression tends to run in families, and evidence supports hereditary or genetic factors.

Several new antidepressant medications have recently been introduced. The incidence of side effects are lower with these newer medications, but some people still experience side effects such as agitation and sexual dysfunction. Also, antidepressants currently available must be taken over a period of weeks before they begin to work. Research is underway to develop additional antidepressants that will work faster, for more people, and have even fewer side effects.

The Mood Disorder Institute, 36105 Orchard Lake Rd., Ste. 301, Farmington Hills, is one of approximately 12 locations nationwide studying these new antidepressants. For additional information, or to see if you qualify for this FREE out-patient study, you may call 1-800-683-MOOD.

State seeks cleanup effort at Colony Car Wash

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

The state attorney general, Michigan State Police and the Department of Natural Resources are seeking a court order to force the Colony Car Wash and Mobil gas station at 302 Ann Arbor Road in Plymouth to remove leaking underground storage tanks and clean up contamination at the site.

Attorney General Frank Kelley is asking the court to order the defendants to "comply with previous orders from the state fire marshal to remove five currently unused tanks and to investigate and remedy contamination that resulted from previous spills or releases of petroleum products into area soils."

Being sued in Wayne County Circuit Court are Colony Car Wash, named as owner and operator of the facility and portions of the storage tank system; Robert Townsley, president of Colony Car Wash; and Amoco Oil, named as owner and operator of portions of the underground storage tank system.

The complaint alleges that spills in the area of 8,000-gallon tanks and one 3,000-gallon tank were reported to the DNR by Amoco in 1989 and 1992. High concentrations of hazardous substances including benzene, toluene, ethylbenzene and xylene were found by Amoco contractors doing groundwater sampling. More than an inch of gasoline was discovered in a monitoring well at the facility.

In 1992, the Hazardous Materials Section of the Fire Marshal's Division of the Michigan State Police informed the defendants that they must conduct closure and remediation of certain tanks. They have not been removed and remedial action has not been completed," said Chris DeWitt, spokesperson for the attorney general.

Townsley declined comment. His attorney, Grant Trigger, said the message is the fault of Amoco truck drivers who overfilled tanks, causing the contamination. "We expect Amoco to step to the plate and take responsibility," he said.

Money raised for Nankin Mill restoration

History talks: Westland City Council president Thomas Brown and wife Dee, dressed in 19th-century outfits, chat with municipal finance director Michael Gorman at Thursday's wine and cheese reception at Nankin Mill.

History buffs raised just over $1,000 Thursday to help renovate and improve the historic Nankin Mill. The money was generated by the Friends of the Mill which held its sixth annual wine and cheese reception in the 131-year-old structure on Ann Arbor Trail, just east of Farmington Road.

As in past years, several members of the private fund-raising organization were dressed in late 19th-century clothing to create an old-time atmosphere for the guests. The mill was used by area farmers in the mid- and late-1800s before Henry Ford bought it in the 1920s as a manufacturing facility.

Wayne County acquired the building in 1948, using it as a recreational facility and a naturalist center. It currently houses the county recreation department's offices. A major addition is nearly complete which will allow the naturalist activities for area residents to be held in the front section of the building. The department's administrative offices and other functions will move into the addition, expected to be open by late November.

If your home doesn't measure up...

Sometimes when we take a hard look around we decide that some things have gotten a little... well, not exactly shabby, but they could use a little help. Perhaps a coat of paint, maybe a new flower bed where those weeds love to grow. Or maybe a bit of new wallpaper here or a spot of carpet there. Little things that will spruce up the place and lift your spirits as well. Or maybe you have a full-scale renovation in mind.

Artwork focus of journey to Chicago

Plymouth-Canton Educational Park students who are studying Spanish have the opportunity to travel to Chicago to view two international touring art exhibits and an exhibit of ancient America's art at The Chicago Institute of Art. The trip, which is offered by the Spanish department, not only will provide "hands-on" learning but an opportunity to hear the spoken language. The two exhibits, which will not be coming to the Detroit Institute of Arts, include "Goya: Truth and Fantasy" and "Calaveras Pa' Todos - Day of the Dead 1994." The trip is open to all third-year, fourth-year and advanced placement students who are studying Spanish. Graduates and students' families are also invited to be a part of this learning experience. The total student price is $159.90 and the adult/parent price is $190. These prices include the train ride, hotel and bus transportation, one breakfast, lunch and dinner, museum fees, tips and taxes. For more information, call teacher Kathy Huyck at 416-2800.

Bone marrow's the gift of life for many

In March 1994 Ken Otto of Redford received a lifesaving bone marrow transplant in an effort to cure his leukemia. Today, Otto is leading a normal life. Thanks to the generosity of this stranger, he now has a second chance. Unfortunately there are thousands of others in need of a transplant who have not been so lucky. Even though there are more than a million bone marrow donors in the U.S., many cancer patients still are unable to find a perfectly matched donor because the odds of finding this match can be higher than one in a million. At this time there are people in Redford, Livonia, Trenton and Northville who all have been unable to find a matched donor. My Friends Care Bone Marrow Transplant Fund, and the friends and family of Ken Otto, will be holding a bone marrow donor drive to help meet this need from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 9, at Thurston High, 26255 Schoolcraft east of Inkster Road in Redford. Anyone age 18-55 in good health may stay by and be tested as a potential donor. Potential donors will be asked to donate about two tablespoons of blood for testing with the results being automatically entered in the National Bone Marrow Registry. There is no charge for the test. For information or for a reservation call 313-534-2903.

The open house, called "transition night," will be 6-8 p.m. Parents of special needs children will receive referral information on community programs available. Transition services involves such things as employment, vocational, residential, recreational and medical services available to special needs students. Last year, more than 100 persons attended, including personnel from 20 community resources. For more information, call 425-0100.

MEAP plays major role in curriculum decisions

QUESTION: As a teacher it seems we go through this same thing at the beginning of every school year. We are reminded that our Michigan Educational Assessment Program scores need to improve. Raising MEAP scores of some of the children we work with today is next to impossible. I think there is too much emphasis on the MEAP. Do you agree?

ANSWER: Whether or not educators think there is too much emphasis on the MEAP test is now an academic question; it's not a relevant issue. The MEAP is now an integral part of a state mandated curriculum. Like it or not successful passage of the MEAP test is now tied into an endorsed high school diploma. The MEAP now drives a school district's instructional program. It plays a, if not the, major role in curriculum decisions. Like it or not.

It is now the report card for school districts, for "boards," central office staffs, principals and teachers. The question is no longer how many graded this year but how many or what percent of the student body received endorsed diplomas. Meaning how many students went through 13 years of education and were able to pass an essential skills test. And if the MEAP scores don't go up, Engler's argument for supporting charter schools, privatization (and the like) will gain momentum that will shake even the most ardent status quo educator including the MEA leadership.

The 10th grade MEAP test assesses skills found in textbooks through the ninth grade. What come back will educators have if, in a district, 25 to 50 percent of those graduating from high school (12th graders) don't master a test that is really a measure of what was supposed to have been learned through the ninth grade.

It's not my purpose to point fingers at teachers or administrators but to point out, in my opinion, too many districts don't have a formal plan or model to see that children pass the MEAP. A plan that maximally involves teachers in the design. You say raising test scores of students is next to impossible. I disagree.

Every district I served in saw significant gains in MEAP test scores. In one district we dissected old MEAP tests, developed similar type questions, did a pre-assessment in early September and gave teachers print outs with children grouped by skills they had not mastered. Skills consistently found on old MEAP tests. The teacher had this information on their desk the next day. Use of the information allowed teachers the opportunity to focus on the specific MEAP skills each child had not mastered.

Math and language arts teachers worked during the summer to develop simulated practice modules. Special summer classes were organized to help low scoring children. We furnished school buses to get them to the school. We convinced our best teachers to work during this summer program.

We developed parent reports and worksheets for parents to help at home. The summer school event was not the typical textbook review... but a clear focus on MEAP type questions. This is not dishonest... old MEAP tests are open to the public... called part of the public domain in education.

Raising MEAP test scores can be accomplished; it should be achieved... but without a plan every teacher is left to their own format (which could be excellent teaching) but not a clear enough focus on what the State of Michigan Department of Education has included on the MEAP test... which includes, for example, the National Council of Teachers of Math higher level thinking and problem solving type questions.

I developed a "Raising Test Scores" model for Tudor Publishing of San Diego. The program was implemented in Alabama last year. In an impoverished, rural school district we raised the standardized test scores in the fourth grade from a 5 percentile to over 50 percentile. Meaning that the Alabama children at 5 percent had 95 percent of the students in the country at their grade level scoring better than they were. After a two year program, the children were scoring at 55 percent or better than 54 percent of the children in the country at their grade level. It was the lead story on their major TV news stations in Birmingham and started, "Do you believe in miracles

Raising MEAP scores can be accomplished but there has to be a plan, has to be maximum teacher involvement in the planning and a model over and above the typical letter to parents telling them to see their child gets a good night sleep the night before the test and has a good breakfast on test day.

The major problem in many districts, from my experience in consulting on this issue throughout the country is that everyone gets excited in September just before the MEAP test. After the test, its business as usual.

To raise test scores take a plan implemented throughout the school year, in a program with a clear focus.

Put it this way, if a tennis coach were going into a major match and knew that the opponents are going to constantly hit to their players backhand... there would be plenty of backhand practice. Conversely, if a district knows which skills their children consistently missed last year on the MEAP shouldn't those skills be the focus for future mastery. Old MEAP test scores can be analyzed by any district. Item analysis can be made, simulated work sheets can be developed by committed teachers and drill and practice on skills not mastered infused into the lesson plans... including modules for higher level thinking and problem solving skills.

If children in a rural, poverty stricken small Alabama town can see their test scores raised from 5 percent to over 55 percent... it certainly can be accomplished in the metropolitan suburban area of Detroit.

But... if a district doesn't have a plan... don't blame the teachers... develop a focused yearlong plan (with the teachers) and follow it. Then a district can work any new theory the next educational guru comes up with. Let's move theory into students successfully achieving the essential skill necessary for success in life. The MEAP is a ninth grade test... surely we get 12th grade graduates past a ninth grade test.

O'Hair backs Prop. B

Proposal B on this November's ballot will eliminate a needless expense in the operation of the Court of Appeals that most taxpayers who aren't lawyers don't even know they're paying for.

Thirty-five percent of the court's cases are automatic appeals by criminal defendants who have voluntarily pleaded guilty in the trial court.

You heard right. When the trial judge asked, "How do you plead?" They, in so many words, said, "I'm the guy who did it. But since taxpayers will pay for a free appeal, sure, give me a lawyer and let's appeal."

More than 4,000 automatic guilty-plea appeals are filed each year. Only 15/100 of 1 percent get reversed, but they so backlog the Court of Appeals, other cases are subjected to intolerable delay.

Moreover, automatic guilty-plea appeals help fuel the constant drumbeat to enlarge the court by creating permanent new judgeships.

Before 1989, there were 18 appellate judges. In the last 5 1/2 years, the Court has had 24 judges, yet has fallen further behind.

Last year the Legislature authorized the four more permanent appellate judgeships; the new judges will take office in January. This was a disappointment to the Supreme Court, which asked for a dozen new appellate judgeships.

The Michigan courts' practice of allowing an automatic appeal of guilty-plea-based convictions is a horrific violation of common sense. It is not how the majority of other states handle this kind of case, yet it has been going on in Michigan for 25 years.

It is time to end this spectacle by passing Proposal B. The appellate rights of defendants who plead not guilty, defend against the charge, but are found guilty by a judge or jury would not be affected by the passage of Proposal B in any way, shape or form. Proposal B affects only those who admit they are guilty. Automatic appeals of guilty pleas are not needed to assure that innocent people are not convicted or that illegal sentences are not imposed.

Very, very rarely do people voluntarily plead guilty when they are not. It is also a rare occurrence that a trial judge imposes a sentence that is not authorized by law or impermissible under sentencing guidelines.

However, if the very rare does occur, Proposal B makes a perfectly fair and constitutional alternative remedy available to the aggrieved defendant.

In every case, the defendant can still file a petition with the Court of Appeals for leave to appeal.

In this petition, defendants can describe why they were mistaken when they confessed guilt, or why their sentences are illegal.

If they are right, the Court of Appeals can grant them relief.

But it is inefficient and foolhardy for 4,000 automatic appeals to be filed because a tiny fraction may need review.

The Prosecuting Attorneys Association of Michigan and a majority of the Court of Appeals judges themselves have supported the Senate Joint Resolution that put Proposal B on the ballot, and you should, too.

If indeed her window displays are works of art, they're "disposable works of art at best," according to Green. "They are just meant to be moments in time. To be enjoyed by someone dashing by late for work, or someone who lingers appreciating the composition, lighting and the message."

In addition to designing 12-13 different window displays each year for some seven separate showcases, Green personally makes most of the backdrops and props. She shops everywhere for unique and interesting items to use in her displays, even collecting treasures along the beach on weekends up north.

Another facet of Green's work for Tiffany's is the "tableau" on the second floor that changes every six to eight weeks. The tableau is actually a mini stage set that tells a story and shows off Tiffany's products. Green works with the store's staff to coordinate seasonal table settings and arrange merchandise displays in the vitrines and wall cases.

She credits her parent's for her artistic eye which she says she inherited from her father, a writer, and her mother, a creative, "people person."

"I went to art school, studied psychology at Wayne State University, but most of my knowledge and ability is just me, the way I look at things... the sum of my experiences," she explained. "I'm a freelance display person. I worked for Wright Kay and Charles Warren. I guess when Tiffany's opened, former associates put in a few good words for me. I got this wonderful job that I can see myself doing for a very long time."

Aside from the creative release that display designing offers Green, she enjoys Tiffany's support of the Michigan Opera Theater, the Michigan Humane Society, the Cranbrook Education Community and the Troy Schools, to name just a few. It's Green's energy and imagination that is tapped when the company is asked to create a table setting or window display to raise funds for a community project.

"I designed the T-shirt for this year's Humane Society fundraiser, Bark in The Dark, Friday night, Oct. 7, at the Townsend Hotel in Birmingham," she said. "One of the things I liked best last year was working with Hamilton Elementary School in Troy to incorporate students' portraits of their mothers in a Mother's Day display for Tiffany's."

For the Michigan Opera Theater, Green came up with the tableau currently on display on Tiffany's second floor. Shoppers can get an up-close view of costumes worn by some of the opera greats who came to town recently.

The sophistication of Green's window art is evidenced in the Salute to Elsa Peretti which runs through mid-October. Green in a rare assignment by Tiffany's, was asked to capture the essence of designer Peretti on her 20th anniversary of designing for Tiffany's. Peretti's designs will be showcased by Tiffany's artists in their October windows throughout the country.

Does Green ever worry that she'll run out of ideas and themes for her window displays?

"Oh my gosh, no way," Green laughed. "There are millions of things I still want to do... so many things I enjoy. Ideas come from everywhere. I still have lots of surprises up my sleeve."

plained. "I opened up a turtleneck to find a piece of tissue paper inside that the manufacturer was obviously using as a guide so each shirt could be folded along the same dimensions. I dashed home to pull a cutting board out from under my sink to use as my own guide for folding." Fraser said it worked so well she decided to create a sturdy, portable folding guide and market it. Surely others who travel or run businesses would buy it.

Her patent is pending. She's sold several through the mail after a story appeared in the Palm Beach Post about Pro Fold. And California Closets is test-marketing it in three states.

Fraser may not get rich with her "invention" but she's sure to win the appreciation of travelers and shop keepers looking for a way to keep things straight.

next door at Gerald's," said Julie Packey of Bloomfield Hills. "There is something for everyone here. It's warmly decorated. As a mom, I found teacher's gifts, personalized items, and holiday decorations that I couldn't find anywhere else. When I changed salons, I was no where near the Village Barn and I noticed my hair days weren't as much fun anymore."

Christine Murphy of Birmingham said she buys the cotton throws — one for each holiday through the year. Jennifer Polk of Birmingham comes in to study the themed Christmas trees on the second floor.

Sandy Barr runs the shop alone now, but her staff knows the merchandise just as well, and are ever-ready to offer suggestions and take special orders.

Several local artists got their commercial start at The Village Barn — Nan Mautz, Mickey Martlock, Cynthia Holt Cummings and Michelle Marshall, creator of Mucky Duck Mustard.

Cummings' inspirational books on Christmas ($8) are best-sellers at The Village Barn, each one comes autographed by the local writer who spends the day after Thanksgiving at the Barn, meeting collectors and penning inscriptions.

"Most of the Village Barn's merchandise I buy at the gift market in Atlanta each year," Barr explained. "But we especially enjoy highlighting local talent and many items are made by area crafters."

Each year thousands of Michigan quilters arrive for the Village Barn Quilt Show which doubles as a blanket-raiser for the Salvation Army. At this time of year, cider mill visitors crowd the shop aisles finishing off their day with a few early holiday purchases.

The Village Barn expanded its second floor of Christmas items this summer when the office next door closed. Pillows, hand-painted Christmas chess sets, personalized ornaments, garland, mini trees, toys by Silvestri and Midwest Common Folks are just some of the top floor treasures.

Downstairs, paper goods, greeting cards, seasonal gift items and art line the walls. Shoppers comment on each other's selections and swap party suggestions.

The Village Barn is located on Franklin Road north of 14 Mile Road. For more information call (810) 851-7877.

TASTE BUDS

CHEF LARRY JANES

Easy preserves capture fresh flavors of summer

Photographs can evoke images of summers gone by, but cooks have their own ways of capturing seasonal delights. Succulent blueberries, the sensuous charm of warm field-ripened tomatoes and wafty scents of basil are gastronomic memories we can resuscitate, even in the dredges of winter. A pantry lined with rows of jars and bottles capturing summer's kaleidoscopic bounty may be the cook's only brush with mortality since most of their products (even masterpieces) are consumed within minutes of creation. One of the most gratifying aspects of cookery - preserving - allows you to have something to crow about for months instead of minutes. Even if you don't garden, farmer's markets are bursting with the flavors of a glorious Michigan summer. But who wants to spend a beautiful fall day slaving over a canning pot and contemplating the perfect seal on a jar of tomatoes?

Saving basil

Drying is the most common way of preserving herbs, and this method has certainly withstood the test of time. However, the bunches of basil I fastidiously hung in front of the basement window to dry has simply evaporated the flavor of what still grows gangbusters in my garden. I found an old Farmer's Almanac that suggested an alternative to drying bunches of basil. They said to rinse it, parboil for 5 seconds, plunge in cold water and grind it into a pulp with 1 cup of olive oil and a heaping teaspoon of coarse salt. The bright green color of basil remains appetizing, and the herb, when packed into small jars and tightly sealed, has found a place in the fruit cellar.

With still an abundant crop of basil growing heartily in the garden, I plan to make herb wine next week by simply packing any freshly picked herb into a scrupulously clean jar and topping it off with a pleasant, inexpensive dry red or white wine that has been heated to almost boiling. The bottles will be stored in a dark cupboard and will be used in the dead of winter to highlight a spaghetti sauce.

The most difficult aspect of preparing this is making sure the bottles and/or jars with their lids were first simmered to near death in a large soup kettle of water. For safety's sake, they were lifted from the sanitary bath with tongs and placed on a clean towel to drain. The jars were filled while still hot to the touch, sealed and allowed to cool before they were placed in the pantry or refrigerator.

Last winter I picked up a box of elegant old bottles and hid them away in the basement for next week's culinary job. I plan to stir up a quick simple syrup with sugar and water to pour over freshly picked fruit from the market (I hope to find blueberries and raspberries). Then I'll top off the fruity mixture with a quart of domestic cheap vodka that will in turn, remake itself into a countrified version of framboise or blueberry eau-de-vie for sipping in front of the fireplace on a snowy winter's day. If nothing else, I'll be sure to have an ample supply of homemade host and hostess gifts for holiday gift giving.

Saving tomatoes

Having experimented with the preparation of drying tomatoes in a food dehydrator (with outstanding results, I might add) but not relishing the 14 hours it took to accomplish, I will finish harvesting my tomatoes soon and convert them into an elegant tomato coulis or sauce that will end up being ladled into freezer bags for a long winter storage.

Any kind of tomato sauce, puree or pulp can be easily frozen in freezer bags and, when left to freeze in 10-inch cake pans, will stack conveniently in the rear of the freezer. Lovers of apples can make up a batch of sauce and conveniently store it this way also. The old almanac even suggested that anyone could freeze their finely chopped herbs in water in ice cube trays for later winter use.

Any leftover berries that don't make their way into cordials or preserves will be frozen on a parchment-lined baking sheet and then be packed away in freezer bags for a short sleep, only to find their way into fresh muffins (without defrosting, I might add) in January or February.

CARVE OUT SOMETIME for pumpkins

TAMMIE GRAVES/STAFF ARTIST

Get ready for Halloween, plan to attend the Pumpkinfest Oct. 7-9 in South Lyon.

BY JOAN BORAM
SPECIAL WRITER

We may outgrow "trick-or-treating," but we're never too old to enjoy carving a "punkin" to guide the way for little beggars with big pillow cases.

In South Lyon, they're serious about enjoying pumpkins. The 10th annual South Lyon Area Pumpkinfest will take place Oct. 7-9.

Last year, 25,000 people flocked to South Lyon to watch or participate in a pumpkin pie-eating contest, a scarecrow contest and free cider, doughnuts and pumpkin painting contest for kids under 12.

The festivities begin 9 a.m. Friday, Oct. 7, when the Farmer's Market opens downtown. It ends 3 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 9, with the Jaycees diaper derby (for crawlers only). The highlight of the weekend is the parade, which starts 10 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 8.

For information and a complete listing of events, call the Pumpkinfest Hotline at (810) 437-5046.

Carving a grotesque smile with crooked teeth and squinty eyes, or an old-fashioned grin with pyramid eyes and nose, transforms us into instant eight year olds.

If you recognize yourself, be glad you live in Michigan, where, in 1992, 2,500 acres of vines produced 40 million pounds of the golden globes. That's a lot of jack-o'-lanterns!

But 1994 was a dicey year for Michigan pumpkin growers. Plymouth grower Okie Hamblin and his son, John, of Fenton, planted over 50 acres of pumpkins.

"Our crop is down by 20 percent this year because we lost so many bees in the late frost in April," said Hamblin. "Pumpkins need bees or other insects to pollinate them, and the bees just weren't there."

"Next year, though, I'll plant more acreage in pumpkins, and I'll be back in the u-pick business," he said.

The good news, Hamblin adds, is that the size of pumpkins is good, because of favorable growing conditions this summer. "If an uncut pumpkin is kept in the shade where it's cool, it will take care of itself for three or four weeks. Look at the shape when buying a pumpkin, and be sure the stem is green or black. A pumpkin will last about 10 days after it's cut, if it's kept cool," he said.

At Driver's Berry Farm, in South Lyon, they imported bees and bought more from a retiring beekeeper.

"We harvested about 700 pounds of honey this year, which we sell at our stand, along with the pumpkins," says co-owner Joanne Williams.

As an experiment, Williams grew an acre of "Lumina" pumpkins, which are white with a traditional gold interior.

"The seed is outrageously expensive," she said. "That's why we started with just an acre. The Lumina weigh about 15 pounds, and the white and gold should make a really striking jack o'lantern. We also grow a few huge, 100-pound pumpkins. And the tiny, orange 'jack-be-littles' and white 'baby boots.'"

Tasty wines from southern France are affordable

BY ELEANOR AND RAY HEALD
SPECIAL WRITERS

Languedoc-Roussillon - a southern France region spanning a vast arc along the Mediterranean from the Rhone River to the Spanish border is awash in sun and vineyards. A few years ago the region was rejected in a serious French wine discussion. This is no longer true. If you're looking to expand your wine tasting experiences, there are new grape varieties to learn for new taste sensations at very affordable prices.

In Corbieres, grapegrowing dates to Roman times, but the area has emerged as a serious competitor in the production of high quality wines. Cotes du Roussillon, promising for soft, round red wines reminiscent of Chateaufort-du-Pape. From Cotes du Roussillon, set in the Pyrenees foothills and bordering the Mediterranean, there are pours with refinement and elegance.

A broad spectrum of wines carry the Minervois appellation, from early-thinking examples to

Wine Selections of the Week

The people spoke at "The Great Wine Shootout" sponsored by Dennis Walsh, proprietor of Ye Olde Wine Shoppe in Rochester Hills. The two most popular red wines were the 1991 Pine Ridge Cabernet Sauvignon, Stags Leap District ($28) and 1991 Willamette Valley Vineyard Pinot Noir "OV" ($23).

The most popular whites were 1991 Ferrari-Carano Chardonnay Reserve ($33) and 1993 Jade Mountain Marsanne-Viognier ($14).

The 1989 Roederer Estate Brut l'Ermitage ($40) was the most popular sparkling wine.

The people's choices were excellent. New releases from Pine Ridge, Ferrari-Carano and Jade Mountain have been selected by us as wine selections of the week on several occasions. Willamette Valley Vineyard is a new and welcomed entry into our market.

In addition, we liked the 1992 Pride Mountain Merlot ($20), 1991 Ridge Merlot "York Creek" ($22), 1991 Renwood Syrah ($19) and 1992 Havens Merlot ($17).

which are really gourds, are ever-popular as decorating accents.

Smaller "pie" pumpkins are the best for eating; they have a deep, rich flavor and meaty texture.

Try baking pumpkin with butter and spices. Puree or mash the cooked pumpkin, add a sprinkling of orange zest and dab of butter for extra flavor. Add diced or cubed pumpkin to soups or hearty fall pastas for a seasonal taste treat.

Reserve larger ones for decorative uses or serving containers. Winter squash (including pumpkins) are low in sodium and are an excellent source of vitamin A. Their calorie count ranges from 90 to 130 calories per cup, cooked.

some of the longest-lived reds in southern France. Banyuls and Collioure are tucked into the most southern corner of France along the Mediterranean and a stone's throw from the Spanish border. Powerfully aromatic and flavorful grenache-based sweet wines of Banyuls have been produced for centuries. Collioure wines are simply delicious.

Chateau de Cabriac (88) from Corbières is an example of a red wine blend of syrah, mourvedre, carignan and grenache in a wine that has soft tannins and staying power. It is not oak aged, but is aged 18 months in tank. "The wine has sufficient tannin," remarked owner Jean de Cibies. "Barrel aging would remove the fruity character."

At Domaine du Mas Cremant in Cotes du Roussillon, the proprietors are Catherine Mongard, daughter of famous estate Burgundy producer Jean Mongard of Domaine Mongard-Mugneret in the Cote d'Or, and her husband, Jean-Marc Jeannin. No chemicals or herbicides are used in the vineyards and Jeannin's winemaking experience, honed in Burgundy's Vosne-Romanee, is creating exciting wines.

The Cotes du Roussillon Blanc from Mas Cremant (89) is a 50/50 blend of macabeu and grenache blanc with flowery aromas and fresh, acid-edged, appetizing flavor, exceptionally complementary to seafood. Macabeu produces a powerfully aromatic wine with nippy acidity which is characteristic of the white wines from the region.

The estate's Cotes du Roussillon Rouge (89) is a syrah, grenache and mourvedre blend. The 1993 is a stellar example of a red wine from the region shadowing a Chateaufort-du-Pape, but with early drinking potential. This peppery, spicy, solidly red fruit wine with good length and finish

This unusual jam can be made with any plum, peach, pear or apple.

RED PLUM AND WALNUT CONSERVE

2 pounds large red plums
2 cups walnuts
2 cups sugar
3 tablespoons good port wine

Rinse, quarter and pit the fruit. Place the walnuts in a small, heavy skillet and toast over low heat for 5 minutes or until fragrant.

Cool and coarsely chop the walnuts. In a large, non-aluminum saucepan, simmer the fruit with the sugar, mashing and stirring frequently, until the mixture is thick and jam like, about 30 minutes. Stir in the walnuts and port. Transfer the conserve into four sterilized 1/2 pint jars and cover tightly.

If desired, you can strain the cordial through a paper coffee filter into a decanter or a bottle, then cork or cover tightly. Makes about 1 quart.

RASPBERRY VODKA CORDIAL

2 cups ripe raspberries
1/4 cup sugar
1 cup water
1 quart domestic vodka

Pick over the berries without washing; set them aside in a tall, 1/2 gallon jar. In a medium saucepan, combine the sugar with 1 cup water and stir over low heat until the sugar dissolves. Increase heat and bring the mixture to a boil, then set aside and allow to cool.

Mix the cooled sugar syrup with the vodka and pour over the raspberries. Cover tightly and place the jar in a cool, dark cupboard for 1 week. Shake the jar gently and return it to the cupboard for 1 month, inverting the jar once a week or so.

If desired, you can strain the cordial through a paper coffee filter into a decanter or a bottle, then cork or cover tightly. Makes about 1 quart.

MIXED VEGETABLE ATJAR

2 carrots, peeled and cut into 1/4-inch rounds
1 cup cauliflower florets
20 green beans
1/4 cup salt
2 cups peanut oil
1 tablespoon black mustard seeds (yellow is OK too)
1 tablespoon ground cumin
1 tablespoon curry powder
1 tablespoon coriander seeds, crushed
3 whole cloves
1 finger sized piece of fresh ginger, sliced into dime size rounds
1 red onion, peeled, quartered and separated into sections

Fill your largest stock pot with water and bring it to a boil. Fill another pot or bucket with ice water. Blanch the carrots, cauliflower and green beans in the boiling water for 1 minute each. Immediately dunk them in the ice water. When cool and allow to stand for 1 hour.

Rinse very well under running water, pat dry.

Place the peanut oil in a very large saucepan and heat over high heat until it just begins to simmer. As soon as the oil begins to simmer, turn off the heat and allow to cool for 10 minutes, then add the mustard seeds, cumin, coriander and cloves and allow to cool for 10 more minutes.

Combine the dried vegetables, ginger, onions and mix well. Pack the mixture into jars and pour the hot spiced oil into the jars to fill completely. This will keep in the refrigerator, covered, almost indefinitely and you can replace the vegetables in the same oil. Makes about 4 pints.

Right sauce can save healthy meal

A good sauce can turn an ordinary meal into a tasty treat. But many sauces add extra fat, turning wholesome food into a nutritional disaster. Fortunately, you can prepare delicious low-fat sauces that can be part of a healthy diet.

Oil and vinegar mixtures, or vinaigrettes, taste great on meat as well as on a salad. Use them for entrees such as a lean steak, roast chicken or grilled fish. Keep the oil down in your recipe by substituting chicken stock or some defatted juice from a roast for the oil.

For fish, try an Oriental vinaigrette that combines 2 cloves minced garlic, 1 tablespoon minced fresh ginger, 2 minced scallions, 1/4 cup chicken stock, 2 tablespoons rice vinegar and 1 tablespoon soy sauce, well blended.

Low-fat versions of cream sauces use low-fat milk, non-fat yogurt and evaporated skim milk to replace sour cream and cream. Homestead sauce great with beef or seafood — is made by stirring 1 tablespoon white horseradish, 1 minced garlic clove, 1 tablespoon minced fresh chives, 1 teaspoon Dijon-style mustard and 1 teaspoon fresh lemon juice into 2 cups of low-fat yogurt.

For low-fat, homemade barbecue sauce, combine in a saucepan 1 cup tomato juice, 1/4 cup water, 1/4 cup vinegar, 1/4 cup ketchup, 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce, 2 tablespoons brown sugar, 1 tablespoon paprika, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 1/4 teaspoon chili powder and 1/4 teaspoon cayenne," stir, bring to a boil and simmer for 15 minutes or until the sauce thickens slightly.

Beef and Vegetables in Mustard Sauce is low in fat yet heartily flavored with a creamy sauce, and provides many essential vitamins.

Hearty dish: Low in fat, yet heartily flavored, Beef and Vegetables in Mustard Sauce will warm you up on chilly fall days.

BEEF AND VEGETABLES IN MUSTARD SAUCE

4 medium potatoes, peeled, washed and cut into large chunks
1 medium or large onion, quartered
1 teaspoon tarragon
1 large carrot, thickly sliced
3 cups low-fat beef broth or low-sodium beef bouillon

1/4 pound very lean beef (top round or flank)
1 (10-ounce) package frozen cauliflower
5 ounces evaporated skim milk
1 1/2 tablespoons coarse-grained mustard

Place potatoes, onion, tarragon, carrot and broth in a large pot. Simmer gently for 25 minutes. Meanwhile, trim all exterior fat off meat and cut across the grain into thick slices. When the vegetables are nearly cooked, add the beef and frozen cauliflower to the pot and continue simmering for five minutes (for well-done beef, simmer for seven minutes).

Stir in the evaporated milk and the mustard, and heat for two more minutes. Serve.

CANTON SPORTS SCENE

Chiefs peaking

Plymouth Canton picked the ideal time to post its lowest score of the season. The Chiefs' golf team shot a 213 to easily dispose of Livonia Stevenson, which shot 229, in their final golf dual meet of the season Friday at Brae Burn.

"We're peaking at just the right time, before the conference meet," said Canton coach Tom Alles. His team finished the dual season at 4-7 overall, 2-3 in the Western Lakes Activities Association's Western Division.

Chuck Newsome led the Chiefs against Stevenson with a medalist-earning 37. Brian Carlson was next for Canton at 42, followed by Chris Wilson (44) and Albert Hamood and Jason Bricker (both at 45).

"We've been playing well," Alles said. "Players whom I expected to play well are playing at their potential right now."

Still, Alles is making no rash predictions for Tuesday's WLAA meet, which will be hosted by Stevenson but at Canton's home course — Brae Burn. A middle-of-the-pack finish seems likely for the Chiefs, with Livonia Churchill the odds-on favorite and Plymouth Salem, North Farmington and Northville the top challengers.

Still, anything could happen.

Hutko leading MSU

Michigan State's women's soccer team went into the weekend with a 5-1-1 record, thanks in part to the solid play of sophomore forward Leah Hutko (from Plymouth Canton).

The Spartans defeated University of Detroit 3-1 Sept. 21 and Dayton 2-0 Sept. 25. Hutko netted an insurance goal in the win over U-D, then got the game-winner and added an assist against Dayton.

For the season, Hutko ranks third on the team in scoring with four goals and two assists, good for 10 points.

Kris Goff, a sophomore from Plymouth Salem, has appeared in three games as a defender for the Spartans.

Rocks run wild Brannan-led ground assault batters Central

It was by no means a performance of perfection, but Plymouth Salem did net something Friday that had been rare this season — a victory.

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth Salem coach Tom Moshimer found a different perspective from which to view his football team Friday.

Good thing for his players it was a long ways off.

After listening to his tirade in the press box, the conclusion one would draw was that his team had gone from bad to worse. And that wasn't too good — the Rocks had lost three of their first four games.

But that wasn't the case. Not at all. Salem was in the midst of a romp, bowling over Walled Lake Central in a homecoming downpour, 35-18.

"I was not happy," insisted Moshimer, even though his team improved to 2-3 overall and to 1-2 in the Western Lakes Activities Association Lakes Division. "Our offense was good at times, but we made a ton of mistakes."

Perhaps it was that different view of the game. Moshimer suffered separated and torn ligaments in his right knee the previous week during Salem's loss to Livonia Stevenson. With his knee in a brace, he decided he'd be better off in the press box watching instead of on the sidelines.

"I tried it one other time," Moshimer said of his press box perspective at halftime. "I can see a lot better, I can call a better game, but I can't talk to the kids at halftime."

Against a team like Central, there wasn't much to worry about — particularly when your team has Mike Brannan carrying the ball. The 5-foot-11, 192-pound senior tailback carried the ball nine times in the first two quarters, gaining 100 yards.

The Vikings' kicking game set up Salem's first two scores. The Rocks' defense pushed Central back to its own 4-yard line on its first possession, and from there Greg Tobias' punt got only as far as the Central 30.

Salem couldn't do much, but on fourth down Mike Kley booted a 40-yard field goal that cleared the crossbar by 15 yards.

The Rocks upped their first-quarter lead to 9-0 after a poor punt snap sailed over Tobias' head. Salem took over at the Central 11; on its second play, quarterback Brad Lear powered in from 4 yards out.

The Vikings made a game of it — for a short time, anyway — with a 73-yard drive, the key play a 39-yard Adam Bruce-to-Jeremy Tisdale pass to the Salem 34. Twenty-four yards rushing by Matt Koxchke set up Tobias' 3-yard TD run; the two-point conversion failed, leaving the score at 9-6 early in the second quarter.

Salem answered with an 11-play march that took up 5:05 of the second quarter, with Brannan doing most of the work. He had runs of 17, 37, 17, 7 and 1 yards, accounting for 79 yards in the 89-yard drive. Still, it took a 5-yard pass on fourth down from Lear to Kirk Craggs to give Salem a 16-6 halftime lead.

2nd-half comeback lifts Salem; Canton struggles, but holds on

After getting upset at home by Walled Lake Western just nine days earlier, one would think Plymouth Salem's girls basketball team had learned a lesson.

Then again... The Rocks flirted with disaster once more at home Thursday, trailing a poor Westland John Glenn team (one win in seven previous games) by nine points at the half. In the second half, Salem got its act together to post a 43-35 triumph.

It shouldn't have been so close. And against a more formidable foe, the end result may not be a happy one.

"There were no changes," said Salem coach Fred Thomann of his halftime talk. "I just asked them to play harder. It was a struggle to score. They were well-prepared; they really got after it."

The Rockets (now 1-7 overall, 0-3 in the Western Lakes Activities Association) opened up a 16-11 lead after one quarter and extended it to 25-16 at the half.

Salem pressured full-court in the second half, and that helped turn the tide. The Rocks narrowed the deficit to 29-26 after three periods, then outscored Glenn 17-6 in the fourth to win going away.

Shellye Sills did her part, scoring eight of her 13 points in the fourth quarter. Kelly Lukasik finished with nine points, including four free throws down the stretch, and Amanda Abraham converted three free throws after being fouled on a three-pointer to end the third quarter; she totaled nine points and 10 rebounds.

Glenn got 15 points from Rochelle Harris and 12 from Kelly Klenc.

The win pushed Salem's record to 6-3 overall, 2-1 in the WLAA.

■ Canton 40, Northville 35: Poor free-throw shooting kept the score close, but Plymouth Canton still emerged with the victory Thursday at Northville.

The win was the Chiefs' third in a row, pushing their record to 5-3 overall, 2-1 in the WLAA. Northville is 4-4 overall, 1-2 in the WLAA.

Canton, which has been streaky at the line all season, was aided by the Mustangs' equally inept performance. The Chiefs were 6-of-18 from the stripe; Northville made 5-of-15.

Canton led 19-14 at the half, but only 31-29 entering the fourth quarter. The Mustangs were still within three with only a minute remaining.

Kristi Fiorenzi led Canton with 12 points. Northville got 16 from Samantha Leger.

■ PCA 76, Fairlane 22: Dearborn Fairlane Christian proved no challenge at all for Plymouth Christian Academy Friday in Dearborn.

The Eagles, who improved to 6-3 overall and to 3-1 in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference, jumped out to a 13-3 lead after one quarter and were up 35-5 by the half.

Karin Reed once again led the way for PCA. The senior guard collected 17 points and dished out eight assists.

She got plenty of help, however. "It was really a team effort tonight," said coach Rod Windle, noting Sarah Sumner's 12 points and 10 rebounds, Amy Jeffries' 10 points, and nine points each from Lisa Erickson and Kristine Zedan.

Slow start can't stop Rocks

Livonia Franklin made a game of it against Plymouth Salem — for one half.

The Patriots limited Salem to one goal in the first half. Then the Rocks got rolling, pumping in four second-half goals to post a 5-0 soccer rout at Salem Wednesday.

The win improved the Rocks' record to 7-2-2 overall, 3-1 in the Western Lakes Activities Association's Lakes Division. Franklin is 4-5-1 overall.

The scoring came from a variety of players, with Andy Makins getting two goals. Scott Buczek chipped in with a goal and two assists, and Mike Kley and Kevin Little each added one goal. Drew Drummond, Matt Simmons and Doug Herriman had assists.

Brian Baczynski was in goal for the shutout.

■ Oakland Christ. 1, PCA 0: Plymouth Christian Academy gave the No. 3-ranked team in Class C-D, Pontiac Oakland Christian, a battle but couldn't get the win Friday at Oakland Christian.

PCA slipped to 5-3-2 overall, 4-2-2 in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference. Oakland is 11-0-1 overall, 7-0 in the MIAC.

The only marker of the match was netted by Keith Ford — with just 2:30 remaining. Eagles' keeper Jamie Neil was exceptional, making 21 saves. Also playing well for PCA were center midfielder Ryan Thomason and sweeper Chris McCoy, both seniors.

Overaitis leads Falcons' rout of Ladywood

BY BRAD EMBOS
STAFF WRITER

Tara Overaitis played like she never left. The 5-foot-10 All-Stater and her new teammates at Dearborn Divine Child also played like there was never a doubt Thursday, rolling to a 66-43 girls basketball victory over host Livonia Ladywood.

Overaitis, who transferred to Divine Child after three seasons with Ladywood, led all scorers with 19 points (on eight of 11 shooting from the floor).

She scored 12 of her team's first 14 points as the defending state Class B champions improved to 8-1 overall and 3-0 in the Catholic League's Central Division.

Overaitis, who left Ladywood last January in wake of coach Ed Kavanagh's firing, played with only a slight bit of trepidation.

She wasted little time in scoring, hitting a short baseline shot just 38 seconds into the ballgame. "The first basket kind of set the tone," Overaitis said. "I get a little nervous before every game, but actually I felt kind of at ease because I knew the school, my teammates and my coaches were behind me."

free throws with 4:16 left in the second period to put Ladywood on top 20-18. But the lead was short-lived, as Divine Child regrouped to gain a 33-22 halftime advantage.

Afterwards, Jansen realized she was without a key ingredient. Carpenter was missing in action for nearly six minutes before being reinserted into the lineup midway through the second quarter.

"It was my fault, I really thought she (Carpenter) had two fouls," Jansen said. "But my assistant coach told me we weren't penetrating from the point. So we checked the book and as it turned out she had only one foul."

Ironically, Carpenter's return also coincided with the 15-7 third-quarter surge for the Falcons. DC opened up a 48-29 lead by the final period before coasting home.

"When Carpenter was out of the game we had to take advantage, and when you don't, that hurts," Ladywood first-year coach Lisa McPhee said.

Ladywood, meanwhile, made only 10 of 16 shots from the floor and turned the ball over seven more times in the third quarter.

shot of a diving Chris Mullett. "It was a sprint pass with three receivers going out and two backs staying in to block, but there was a lot of pressure on him," Stevenson coach Jack Reardon said.

The Raiders, who were out-gained 203-149 yards, received all the offense they needed in their first possession of the second quarter. North faced a second-and-8 at its own 28.

Hayes dropped back and fired a 10-yard pass to Beal. The junior receiver eluded three Stevenson backs in a race to the far sideline and sprinted 62 yards untouched for the game's only score.

"As soon as I turned the corner, I knew I was gone," Beal said. "O'Leary opted to try a halfback pass on a two-point conversion attempt, but the pass fell incomplete."

The Spartans did, however, have their chances. The last was thwarted when Stevenson faced a fourth-and-10 at the North 13 with 1:08 remaining. Quarterback Dean Bacheller scrambled outside, but his off-balance pass fell

FOOTBALL

Hayes won the quarterback duel by completing six of 10 passes for 83 yards. Bacheller connected on two of eight for 7 yards and was intercepted once.

"We actually wanted to pass more," O'Leary said. "I felt that Stevenson's secondary hadn't been tested that much this year and wanted to get the ball to Richard and Nigel (wide receivers)." Early in the fourth quarter, a seven-play drive took Stevenson down to the North 5, but the Spartans fumbled and Kong received.

The Spartans pushed the Raiders back to their own 3, but Kong broke loose for a key 21-yard gain which gave North some important breathing room.

"The rain wasn't a factor at all; it was just poor ballhandling," Reardon said. "We have to learn to hold on to the ball. We had our opportunities but just came up short."

Andy Gignac, John Zagel and Scott Kahanec. Rice had several opportunities on corner kicks, according to LeJoy, but the defenders or Podolak were able to keep Rice from having any shots off re-directions.

"We supported well defensively," LeJoy said. "When Rice did get chances, our guys delayed and exercised a lot of patience, until they got a lot of numbers. Rice had a lot of corner kicks and long throws and we knew we had to deal with that. They're a big and physical team."

Canton's boys, girls keep record perfect

The dominant cross country teams are quickly asserting themselves. And once again, among the most prominent will be Plymouth Canton's teams, both the boys and girls. Canton's boys had few problems running past Livonia Churchill Thursday while running their dual-meet record to 2-0 in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

The final score was 18-41 at Cass Benton. The Chieftas took the top four spots, asserting dominance. Brian Crockett led Canton, finishing first in 17:01. Next was Ian Bedford (17:36), followed by Sergio Shaves (17:57).

The Canton girls, who also improved to 2-0 in the W.L.A.A., were led once again by Becky Wolfram. Wolfram set first overall in 20:27. Beth Higgins was second (21:13). With Meghan Barresi fourth and Tracey Jarvis fifth (22:14) and (22:07), Canton sixth (22:24). The Chieftas collected eight of the top 10 spots.

The Rocks collected just three of the top 10 positions in falling, 20-37. Leah Rutherford was fourth (20:55). Stacy Moore took fifth (20:59) and Meredith Davis was seventh (21:05). The loss left Salem at 1-1 in W.L.A.A. duals. Stevenson, which was led by Kelly Travis' first-place finish (19:27), is 3-0 overall, 2-0 in the W.L.A.A.

Gene makes the move to TV for Something Wilder on NBC

By JEFF PLASS

Anyone who knows Gene Wilder's work will readily admit that the actor has always seemed, well, a little out there.

In some of his more colorful film roles, the two-time Academy Award nominee has portrayed a sheep-loving psychiatrist (Everything You Always Wanted to Know About Sex), a mildly sociopathic confectioner (Willy Wonka and the Chocolate Factory) and an accountant seemingly in serious need of a caffeine-intake reduction (The Producers).

But with his television series debut, NBC's Something Wilder, the two-time Oscar nominee seems to have taken (for him) a great, big gulp of normalcy.

In the series, which airs Saturdays, Wilder stars as Gene Bergman, a slightly past middle-age advertising executive. Gene and his younger wife, Annie (Hillary B. Smith), have abandoned the rat race of New York City to raise their 4-year-old (fraternal) twin sons in Annie's peaceful hometown of Stockbridge, Mass.

Of course, having waited so long to try fatherhood, Gene would prefer to spend as much "quality time" with little Sam and Gabe (Carl Michael Lindner and Ian Bottiglieri) as possible. But between managing the fledgling ad agency he opened with his friend Jack (Gregory Itzin) and semi-incompetent brother-in-law, Richie (Jake Weber), and overseeing the remodeling being done to his 18th-century house, there are distractions aplenty.

For Wilder, the story idea couldn't have come along at a better time.

It was in the lonely, introspective period following his late wife's (actress Gilda Radner) death that Wilder found and developed a solemn appreciation of life and sense of carpe diem. And when executive producers Lee Kalcheim and Barney Kellman approached him with the idea for the series, it struck a responsive chord.

"I took a long time when I wasn't working and I found, I don't know, I would call it an awareness in life of the preciousness of each moment," Wilder says. "And they (Kalcheim and Kellman) came and told this little story about a man who, late in life, has twins.

"And I'm listening, (it) sounds - um - sweet, it's nice. Then they said, 'And if he'd had them at 26 or 7 or 8 years old, it wouldn't have been the same thing. (He'd) be busy worrying about paying the rent and getting an apartment, but now the preciousness of life. And then a bell went off, the preciousness of life.'"

"And that's when," he says "I don't like to use the word fate loosely, but it seemed very fatalistic to me, that this should come about for me at this time in my life and I thought about it and said yes."

Much like Tom Hanks' performance in Big, Wilder's portrayal of Gene presents the child inside every grown-up without simply showing a stupid adult. Gene identifies with his boys rather than being their unwitting, overwrought, frustrated and outdated victim. The show manages to thrive on their loving relationship without leaping off the edge of cutesy canyon.

Wilder himself has been happily remarried for more than three years now. He says one of the show's most enjoyable aspects is getting to vicariously experience many of the positive traits of fatherhood, without any of the negatives.

"If you (asked) me now," he says, "would I like to start a family and have fraternal twins? I would say no, I think not. Unless I could do it in a fantasy... if I could do it in a movie or a play or a TV show, yes. Because then I would have all the advantages except I could go home at night and be alone with my wife and not have to get up in the middle of the night and everything."

And so now, after playing so many off-the-wall characters on film and on stage, the actor-writer-director gets ready for Something a Little Wilder on television: parenthood.

1994-95 NHL season looks like Lindros' year
BY JEFF PLASS

In case you blinked and missed the off-season, the NHL is geared up and ready to roar into the 1994-95 regular season.

And ESPN, along with ESPN2, is ready to provide blanket coverage, airing more than 100 games, beginning Tuesday, Oct. 4, when ESPN presents the Philadelphia Flyers taking on the Florida Panthers.

ESPN lead hockey commentator Bill Clement really likes the Flyers' chances this year, due in particular to the promised emergence of the game's next great superstar, Eric Lindros.

"I think the team that may make the greatest strides could be the Philadelphia Flyers, just based on Eric Lindros," Clement claims. "He is Robocop on skates. He's got the looks, the charisma and the heart, especially with (Flyers vice president) Bobby Clarke coming back to Philadelphia.

"Bobby was Eric's childhood hero and they have developed a real kinship. As far as Eric's concerned, Bobby's back home, and I think that will make Eric play to his potential more often than he did last year."

Mondays on ABC, Shelley Fabares stars as Christine Armstrong Fox in Coach.

"I mean, last year," Clement adds, "he was typically erratic. I say typically for somebody that age in general, with tremendous ups and downs. But I think Bobby Clarke's influence will make Eric a force on a far more regular basis."

STAR NOTES

Ford, Leeves were Hollywood odd couple

BY JOHN CROOK

Faith Ford of Murphy Brown and Jane Leeves of Frasier are two of the most beautiful actresses working in television today.

But things sometimes got pretty ugly when the duo, best friends in real life, lived together for several years. There was the cat thing, for instance.

"I would talk to her cats," Ford laughs. "I drove 'em crazy, actually. I would, you know, 'MRAOW, MRAOW,' really loud, you know, like cats in heat do? It would drive Jane batty. Eventually she would storm in and scream, 'Faith, stop it!'" (this delivered in an uncanny duplication of Leeves' elegant British accent).

The twosome became friends when they met in acting class several years before either really had a major success. Although Ford is married now, she and Leeves remain close.

"We live, like, 10 blocks from each other, which is really great," Ford says. "Whenever we have anything to go to, we're always exchanging clothes. For the most part we're the same size, even the shoes. It saves a lot of money, because we're always having things to go to. I was so happy to hear she got Frasier for that reason alone. Now she has money to buy clothes, too. So if I don't feel like spending whatever on a new outfit to wear to some function, I'll just go over and see what Jane has."

Ralph Harris sometimes has to dress in drag to help his family in On Our Own, Sundays on ABC.

Scenery shifting backstage at CBS, Coleman's game not over, Alda gets last laugh

Pssst: Murmurs from CBS' fall lineup include the possible replacement of Touched by an Angel with the return of Christy, starring Kellie Martin, in time for a two-hour Thanksgiving episode already being filmed in the Smoky Mountains of Tennessee.

Also, producer Diane English's Double Rush, starring Robert Pastorelli (Murphy Brown) as the owner of a bicycle delivery service in New York, is primed to join the CBS lineup on the double as soon as another half-hour series falters.

And Northern Exposure's Rob Morroff, who has never seemed much happier in Cicely, Alaska, than his character, is rumored to be restive. But with a contract that runs through July 1995, he's definitely on the set this fall, says CBS spokeswoman Brooks Cantini. But she doesn't say how many episodes Morrow may be written out of.

Gary Coleman (Diff'rent Strokes) may be returning to television in a series titled Looking Up. The show, currently in development, is to be set in a TV facsimile of Gary Coleman's Game Parlor, a real-life video arcade now operating in Marina Del Rey, Calif.

British actor Anthony Hopkins turned lion tracker for an episode of PBS' Nature to air this Sunday, Oct. 2 (check local listings).

After a close encounter on Tanzania's Serengeti plain, Hopkins said getting to know a lioness was "like looking, touching and admiring the fast and powerful car one has always dreamt of owning. Everything about her is super-charged."

Alan Alda has traded wisecracking Army doctor Hawkeye Pierce of *M*A*S*H* for a role as himself when he serves as host of PBS' monthly series Scientific American Frontiers.

Asked recently to comment on the changes in commercial television, Alda quipped, "I don't have any thoughts on the current state of network TV... why should I if they don't?"

Scientific American Frontiers returns Wednesday, Oct. 5 (check local listings).

Victoria Rowell is resident pathologist Amanda Bentley in Diagnosis Murder, Fridays on CBS.

LET'S TALK

Full House returns this fall; Gump's Sinise was in The Stand

BY TAYLOR MICHAELS

Q: I work for a sheriff's department in Oregon and I collect law enforcement stuff. One of my favorite shows is In the Heat of the Night with Carroll O'Connor. I am hoping he will be able to send me a picture of himself and everyone else in uniform and a Sparta Police patch (both new and old) and, now that he plays the sheriff, a patch from that department. I wouldn't mind even getting the badge and name tag from his show. -Jerry Silver, Multnomah County, Ore.

A: As you may not have heard, Heat will be on this year only as three of four TV movies. I have no idea what your chances are for getting all these props, but try writing to O'Connor C/O the show at MGM Worldwide TV, MGM Plaza, 2500 Broadway St., Santa Monica, Calif. 90404-3061.

Q: I am a big fan of the show Full House and I heard it was going off the air. Is this true? -Christina Evans, Kingsville, Ohio.

A: Relax, Christina. Full House returns for its eighth season this fall.

Q: Can you please tell me where I have seen Gary Sinise from Forrest Gump before? -Elissa Gilmer, Avella, Pa.

A: I can only guess that you were among the gazillions who saw Sinise in the lead role of Stephen King's The Stand on TV last spring.

Q: I am a big fan of Jose Canseco, who plays for the Texas Rangers. Can you give me his address? -K.D. Doyle, Ashtabula, Ohio.

A: Write to him C/O the Texas Rangers, P.O. Box 90111, Arlington, Texas 76004.

Q: I am a great fan of the Sherlock Holmes Mysteries on A&E. Do you know where I could write to Jeremy Brett, who plays Mr. Holmes? -Sharon Cullison, Oroville, Calif.

A: It's often tricky getting a letter to an overseas actor, but I would suggest trying to send it C/O Mystery, Frank Goodman Associates, 1776 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Q: Can you please tell me where I can purchase a copy of a comedy movie called Dinner for Two, which I saw on TV last year? Also, the name of the lead actor and actress. Thanks. -Tennyson Victor, Blyas, Ariz.

Carroll O'Connor

A: Sorry, I checked with two large video chains and two major movie reference books. There was no trace of any movie under this title, either on video or not.

Q: I am a big fan of Emilio Estevez. Could you please give me an address to write to him? -Jennifer Hunley, Olney, Ill.

A: The most recent agency address I have for him is Intertalent Agency Inc., 131 S. Rodeo Drive, Suite 300, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Q: I would like to write to Wallace Kurth and Ricky Martin from General Hospital. Do you have their addresses? -V.K., Ohio.

A: You can write to any member of the cast C/O ABC Television Network, 2040 Avenue of the Stars, Century City, Calif., 90067.

Q: Where can I write to Harrison Ford? -Mrs. Elizabeth Baggett, Dunn, N.C.

A: Try writing to him C/O Patricia McQueeney, 10279 Century Woods Drive, Los Angeles, Calif. 90067. That's the most recent address I have for him. Good luck.

Q: I would like the mailing address for Beau Bridges. Will Harts of the West be on this fall? -Vivian Johnson, Danville, Ky.

A: I'm afraid Harts is gone for good. Write to Bridges C/O CAA, 9830 Wilshire Blvd., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Brazil's Xuxa hopes to win American hearts

BY SUZANNE GILL

Supermodel-turned-superstar Xuxa (pronounced "Shoo-sha") is the acknowledged pied piper of South American children. She is Brazil's No. 1 recording artist, and her children's show is viewed by millions. A shelter bears her name, and an immunization campaign she sponsored would be the envy of the Clinton administration.

Now Xuxa has entered the English-speaking market with a U.S.-based version of her daily variety show, Xuxa, airing weekday mornings on The Family Channel. But Xuxa will probably benefit more from the arrangement than the children she is meant to entertain.

In her eye-catching jumpsuits and pillbox hats, slim, blond Xuxa begins and ends each show by puckering up with a kiss for the camera. She also has kisses for the winners of various goopy and degrading games played twice each program. ("Go! Go!" she urges.) Other features include a daily guest (a preview tape featured a politically incorrect juggler) and a brief segment on something vaguely educational - say, the lifestyle of a python.

The real feature of the show is Xuxa, singing three forgettable numbers on stage with her young fans. The lyrics of one song beg the audience to forgive her broken English.

Unfortunately, mind candy is the same in any language.

Martin Short is the man with a million faces in The Martin Short Show, Tuesdays on NBC.
