Educators unveil spending plan

The Plymouth-Canton schools want to spend $3.5 million on textbooks, $945,00 on media centers, $1.5 million on computer software, $3.6 million on computers, $700,000 on teacher training and $1.7 million on building needs.

The long-awaited list explaining how Plymouth-Canton Community Schools would spend the $12 million it will receive should voters approve a two-year, 2.3-mill enhancement levy in the June 12 election was released Monday.

The tax increase, which would cost the owner of a $100,000 home an additional $115 in taxes, would be used for teacher training, textbooks, and instructional tools.

Superintendent Charles Little suggested reducing it to eight or 12 pages and mailing it to every home in the district. The information also will be included in school newsletters, on Omnicom cablevision, signs in school buildings, talks given by members of the speakers' bureau, and perhaps in paid advertising, said Dick Egli, community relations director.

Board member Susan Feiten suggested that the administration include an explanation of how the schools spent the $12 million ear-

It's not getting a lot of attention, but along with the 2.3-mill enhancement levy on the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools' ballot June 12 will be an 18-mill renewal on non-homestead property.

The millage renewal applies to commercial and industrial property, cottages or second homes, and non-qualified agricultural property. It would raise $14.8 million for the school district.

Homes that are primary residences are not subject to the renewal, nor is qualified agricultural property.

"The renewal is necessary to meet the normal operations of the school district," said Superintendent Charles Little. "It's not anything new for commercial businesses, but it does need public approval."

"It can't be replaced from any other source. Renewal is the key word," said Ray Hoedel, associate superintendent for business.

Farmland is considered qualified if more than 50 percent of it is actively used for agricultural purposes, or if it's formally classified as agricultural. Any buildings located on agricultural land, other than commercial buildings, also are considered qualified and are unaffected by the non-homestead renewal. Also exempt from the non-homestead renewal is agricultural land that includes a house occu-

New airplane has this pilot soaring high

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

When Jack Salo's new airplane arrived, he took it out of the shipping container, attached the tail and the wings, and got ready for the skies.

"It is a reality that you can keep this plane in your garage," said Salo, president of the Ford Eagles Flying Club at Canton-Plymouth Mettetal Airport. "Two people could put the wings on in a half-hour."

The new plane that Salo has fallen in love with is the KATANA, a 1,160-pound fiberglass training plane with a short wing span of about 35 feet. Salo uses the plane for teaching at Willow Run Airport where his company, Salo Aviation, is headquartered.

"I saw it last June. I thought, 'That's a sweet looking airplane,'" Salo said. He plans to buy a new, improved model later this year.

Salo moved his flying school to Willow Run in July 1994, after state aeronautics officials would allow only one such type of business at Mettetal. Doug Kitze of Kitze Aviation is the Mettetal fixed base operator/manager and offers a flying school.

Salo, formerly of Plymouth, opened his school when he retired after 35 years at Ford Motor Co. "I wasn't going back into the rocking chair," he said about retirement. Two years before retiring, he got an airport management and aviation technology degree from Oakland Community College.

Salo offers flight instruction, ground school and a charter service out of the Signature Flight Support building at Willow Run. Salo started like plenty of other pilots — as a kid interested in flying. "I was sweeping grass, anything so I could fly with an instructor," he said, adding he took his first flight at 12 at Burus Airport on Plymouth Road, west of Beech.

Hole-in-one partly luck for golfer

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

For the second time in his golfing career, Bob Dates, Canton recreation supervisor, made a hole-in-one while playing in his regular league May 3.

"It's obviously part luck. The more skilled player has better luck because he's shooting closer to the hole," Dates said. "But it was mostly luck."

He made his lucky shot on the fourth hole, a 140-yard hole, of the west course at the Links of Novi golf course.

Dates got his first hole-in-one in 1990. "I had given up hope," Dates said, adding that when it happened he assumed it would be the first and last time.

Players in his league were astounded — they'd never seen it done before — when Dates slid the ball right into the cup in May. "I think they were more excited than I was. I was kind of in shock."

The day got even better for Dates — who, by the time he had finished nine holes, discovered he had hit a career low of 34.

Dates, who has played since he was 5 years old, loves golf, pure and simple. Twice he has played in the Lincoln-Mercury Kapalua International Golf Tournament in Hawaii. It is a two-day pro-am tour, which allows amateur golfers to play with the professionals. Professional players then continue on with their tournament.

Dates said he isn't sure yet whether he will play in Hawaii this year because of the busy summer and fall ahead for recreation staff, with the opening of the Summit on the Park community center and 18-hole Pheasant Run Golf Course.

New activities on tap for Liberty Fest

By Joanne Maliszewski
Staff Writer

This year's Canton Liberty Fest, June 23-25, will feature more opening night activities and festivities than previous years.

"In the past, we had an outdoor concert. This year, we'll have the concert and a lot more for the Friday night opening," said Bob Dates, Canton recreation supervisor and chairman of the festival committee that plans the three-day event in Heritage Park.

As in the past three years, the festival will open with an outdoor free concert at 7:30 p.m. featuring a two-hour performance by the Willow Creek Band. To get the festival off to a roaring start, two new events are planned for Friday night, including a Las Vegas Night and bingo.

The Las Vegas Night will be hosted by the St. Thomas A Becket Booster Club. It will begin at 7 p.m. and feature classic games of chance, such as black jack and roulette. Bingo will be hosted by the Canton Chamber of Commerce with cooperation from the Canton Community Foundation. It will run 7-11 p.m. and is a fund-raiser for scholarship money for Canton residents.

"I'm sure both will be a big draw. We're getting community groups involved and adding to the activities for Friday night," Dates said.

Attendance at the festival has grown over the past three years. Even last year's rain didn't spell disaster with approximately 40,000 participants. "It's very noticeable in the parking. Each year we have had to increase parking spaces. We anticipate even bigger crowds this year," Dates said.

There will be plenty for the larger crowds to see and do this year. The Taste of Canton, which features cuisine from local restaurants, has been expanded to include 10 establishments. Restaurants will include Mountain Jacks, TC Gators, Olive Garden, Rose's, Buck Jones Deli, Damon's, Thai Bistro, Marco's Pizza, Applebees and Baker's Square.

The Canton Chamber of Commerce will continue its business EXPO tent where businesses can display their wares. But the chamber will have a second tent devoted to health and fitness and feature local health organizations, hospitals and doctors.

Kids will be drawn to the festival with an enlarged area of activities for them. Another soccer field has been devoted to kids' activities, including rides. "We've really bumped up the popular kids' activities," Dates said.

America's Most Wanted car club will enlarge its show with about 100 cars each on Saturday and Sunday. "They are really excited and doing a tremendous job. The show will be spectacular," Dates said.

A tent will be devoted to the Summit on the Park community center, which won't yet be open when the festival rolls around. Activities and equipment targeted for the Summit will be demonstrated, as will desserts by the center's catering staff.

The Pheasant Run Golf Course also will be featured during the festival. "Demo Days" is scheduled on the grounds of the new practice range where visitors can try out new equipment.

The Canton Community Playscape, Heritage Hideout, will be available during the festival. Construction is scheduled for June 7-11 in Heritage Park.

Here's a sneak preview at some activities planned for the weekend festival:

- A new program this year, "History at the Gazebo," will provide guests with a sampler of living history, featuring costumed interpreters representing a variety of eras of American history.
- The Heritage Park amphitheater will be filled with music throughout the weekend, while a special stage will be set up on the main soccer fields for children's entertainment.
- Saturday's festival lineup will be closed with the annual fireworks display over Heritage Park. A performance by the 70th Division Army Band will precede the display, sponsored by the Community Federal Credit Union.
- As in the past, artists will display their talents at an expanded Fine Arts Show on Saturday and Sunday. An arts and crafts show and antique show also will be featured.
- Paddleboat rides on the main pond in Heritage Park will be offered again this year.
- Picnic in the Park, sponsored by the Plymouth-Canton D.A.R.E., will offer visitors meals by Outback Steakhouse.

Tool Check

The following is a list of tools needed during the construction of the Canton Community Playscape, dubbed Heritage Hideout. Construction week is June 7-11. All tools loaned are guaranteed to be returned in the same condition as they were lent. Donors should label their tools. Tool check-in will be open June 2-6. Tools will be inventoried at check-in and returned June 12-13. For more information, contact Bob Donaldson, 261-8928.

Kids reel in a good old time

By Jill Halpin
Staff Writer

The fishing hadn't even started and Johnny Dixon, 4, of Canton was talking about the one that got away.

"I really caught it but somehow it got away in the water and . . ." explained Johnny, as he and his family — father Bryce, mother Betty and brother Nick, 8 — sat enjoying lunch at Canton's Heritage Park last week.

Despite last year's misfortune, the Dixon brothers were well-armed to entice the trout. Fresh bait and better skills promised to work in their favor as the boys geared up for a day of fishing at the eighth annual Canton Parks and Recreation Fishing Derby.

"We're prepared this time. We dug fresh worms out of the backyard," said Nick, pointing to his jar of bait on the picnic table.

Sunny skies shone as the Dixon family joined more than 700 other Canton residents to enjoy fishing and fun at the tournament, held May 6 at the Heritage Park pond.

Residents ages 3-15 brought poles and nets of all shapes and sizes in an effort to catch the biggest fish.

No fishing permits were required, and families were allowed to spend an hour from 9-5 trying to land "the big one," said Lisa Leneghan, parks and recreation special events coordinator.

Participants took turns at a chance to win one of two $100 savings bonds and sweatshirts.

"We stocked the pond with 1,750 rainbow trout all the way from Kalkaska, Michigan," said Lenaghan, estimating that close to 500 were caught. "It was great to see parents out there with their children, it's a great family outing."

Canton resident Sherry Fusco agreed.

"This is just terrific for kids. It's one of the most wonderful things that Canton has to offer. We've talked about this for the last few weeks. This is a very nice event for families," Fusco said as she watched her daughter Tiffany, 6, pull a six-inch crayfish out of the water with her net. "I've already caught three fish with my net," boasted Tiffany as she displayed her latest catch. "This guy is pretty big," she said, peering into her net.

On the north shore of the pond, Steve Rickerman supervised his son Andy, 4 and family friends Suzanne, 7, and Fatima, 6, in their quest for the winning catch.

This group also had their own fish story, as well as the fish to prove it.

"One of the girls caught one, but had trouble pulling it in. When her line broke, it wrapped around the other line, so we were able to pull it in with that line. It was a big one and we're going to enter it," he said, pointing at the fish.

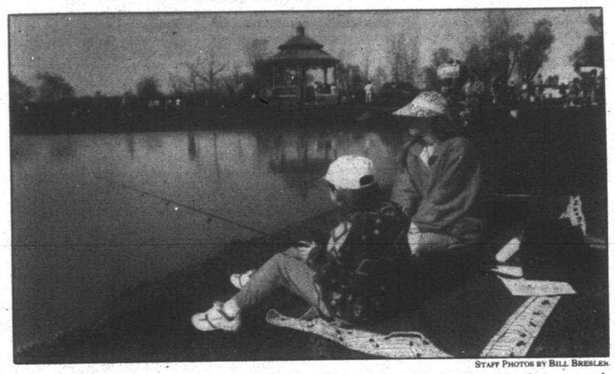

One of the parks and recreation department's biggest events, the tournament offers children a chance to get up close and personal with nature, in this case a small pond teeming with trout.

This year's fishing derby drew close to record crowds, said Lenaghan.

With that in mind, the department is considering running the event for two days next year.

Meanwhile, residents are invited to fish at the Heritage Park pond until it is empty.

Winners of the 1995 Canton Parks and Recreation Fishing Derby and the size of their catch are listed below: first place girls ($100 savings bond) — Alyson Woods, — 18 inches; second place girls (sweatshirt) — (tie) Courtney Baracy and Mary Lou Liebau, 10 — 16¾; first place boys ($100 savings bond) — Bridge Riddel 16¾ inches; second place boys (sweatshirt) Kevin Bradley, 16¼.

School hopefuls drop out of race

By M.B. Dillon
Staff Writer

Citing careful consideration of the "long, uphill battle" necessary to "fulfilling the priorities I know all parents share," Anne Cox of Plymouth Township has decided not to run for Plymouth-Canton school board.

Candidate Sheryl Khoury, president of the Plymouth Library Board, dropped out of the race earlier.

"After researching and reading information I have received, especially the Candidates Guide to 1995 School Board Elections, and talking with many people the last few weeks, I have been made aware of the many concerns and issues that plague not only our school district, but many districts," she said. Cox has children in private school as well as in the district.

"There are many parents in our community who have concerns and would like continued efforts made to alleviate them," said the Chicago native.

"Those same parents also have positive comments regarding their school, and we all should appreciate the dedication that the administrators and teachers are making every day to all children.

Cox said that "at this time, I feel that even though I am willing to have my priority be the educating of children, I see that this will be a long uphill battle and I would like to see another candidate who is willing to make a four-year commitment to fulfilling the priorities which I know all parents have; educating the children so they may learn to the best of their abilities.

Cox said she wishes all the candidates "success, and hope they will all continue to support the administration and teachers so that the Plymouth-Canton school district will become as successful and effective as we would like our schools to become."

Cox said she hoped all parents would read the candidates guide to be made aware of the responsibility and goal, which is to be attained by administrators when educating "the ability to see what's best for our children and their futures."

Voters on June 12 will fill two seats on the school board. Remaining candidates include Carrie Blamer of Plymouth, Daniel Dunnigan of Canton, David McCarthy of Plymouth Township, Michael Maloney of Plymouth, Jeffry Phillips of Plymouth, Brenda Anderson Plecha of Canton, Paul Thomas Schrauben of Canton, and Gerald Trumpka of Plymouth.

Plymouth-Canton trustees Susan Feiten and Roland Thomas are not seeking re-election.

Beautification Committee promotes plant exchange

By Joanne Maliszewski
Staff Writer

If there are plants you need or some you want to get rid of, the Canton Beautification Committee's May plant exchange should be on your calendar.

"They do it in Detroit. So we decided we would try it here," said committee member Dorothy Skowrunski.

The exchange will be 9-11 a.m. Saturday, May 20, in the pavilion behind the Canton Historical Museum on Proctor Road, immediately west of Canton Center.

The exchange is an opportunity to get some new perennials, herbs, seeds, bulbs or house plants that you don't have. If you have too many of one kind of plant, the exchange is an opportunity to give them to someone else.

"People come and mingle and talk with each other. Some people have a cardboard sign that says what they have and what they want. You can also just see what people have," said Christine Rollins, committee chair.

The plant exchange is one of a number of activities the committee has planned for the coming year. The committee continues its work on activity awareness books for third-graders. The booklets cover the environment, beautification and history.

The committee is likely to help with the Canton Community Playscape landscaping, as well as plantings around the Canton Historical Museum. The committee also plans to work on plantings around the township's welcome signs. Members also nominate for the Keep Michigan Beautiful awards as well as for apartments that host landscaping contests or programs.

"We were thinking that if we can get enough volunteers, we would like to participate in the Adopt-A-Highway program or adopt the Rouge," said member Chris Lapinski. "The beautification committee is hard at work again."

Anyone who would like to join the beautification committee should call Kathleen Salla, Canton volunteer coordinator, 397-6450, or Lapinski, 454-3468.

Last year, the committee hosted a house plant exchange during its annual seedling giveaway, in which 7,000 trees and shrubs were given away to residents at Canton Township Hall. But township officials decided the seedling giveway would not be offered again this year, despite the $1,800 cost of buying the seedlings.

That decision helped prompt this year's plant exchange, with the hope that it will become an annual event, hosted by the beautification committee.

Skowrunski, Rollins and Lapinski are among the committee's certified master gardeners. They and others on the committee will be available during the plant exchange to provide information about planting and gardening in general and in Canton.

The Master Gardener Association of Wayne County is a non-profit group of volunteers trained in horticulture through a program sponsored by Michigan State University. The association's purpose is to maintain high levels of current horticultural knowledge in its members, who in turn educate the general public in cooperation with the Wayne County-MSU Coopersative Extension Service.

"They have had average homeowners in the master gardener classes. They even had a professional beekeeper. It is for men and women," Lapinski said.

The three master gardeners are ready to help Canton residents who have questions about gardening and planting. The first thing to know about gardening in Canton is the clay. The wisest thing to do is to get a soil sample, even if you have added soil on top or within the clay. You can send the sample to the Wayne County Extension, which can be reached by calling (313) 494-3013.

"They can tell you what your soil needs and how to enrich it," Skowrunski said. "Sometimes it's best to consider raised gardens."

While many new homeowners are encountering the clay — especially after topsoil has been removed and sold when homes are built — it's still wise to get soil samples in the older subdivisions, Lapinski said.

"When you talk about perennials that will exist in this clay, they will live but they won't flourish," Lapinski said.

Rollins reminds homeowners that they need not be stuck with the clay. There's plenty of things you can add to the clay to help break it up, such as lime, compost or peat moss.

Food collected

Letter carriers, members of the National Association of Letter Carriers, Branch 2184, will collect food for the hungry, Saturday, May 13.

The food collected will be transported to local area food banks. Postal customers are asked to place nonperishable food at their mailbox before 9 a.m. Letter carriers will collect the food as they make their rounds.

Postal customers also may drop off food at their local post office: Canton's office is in the North Harvard Square shopping center.

In 1994, letter carriers nationwide collected 32 million pounds of food. This year's efforts are expected to exceed last year's collection because more communities are participating.

The letter carrier's food drive is supported by the United States Postal Service and the United Way.

Playscape walkathon

Organizers of the Canton Community Playscape, called Heritage Hideout, will sponsor a walkathon 1-3 p.m. Saturday, May 13, on the path around Heritage Park where the playscape will be built.

Pledges will be collected. Proceeds go to the playscape effort. For more information, contact Lana Tatom, 981-2914, or Kim Sanford, 453-6407.

most of his life, the KATANA has Salo thrilled with its technology and light weight. Once Salo put the KATANA together and took it for its first flight at Willow Run, the plane got approval from the Federal Aviation Administration.

"I encourage anyone taking up flying to use this plane," he added.

The KATANA, built in London, Ontario, features a German rotex engine that operates similar to a car engine. It also has a constant speed propeller, which means you can maintain the speed of flying you like. What makes it a favorite teaching plane for Salo is its joy stick — instead of a steering wheel or yoke.

"It's the latest technology. With the toys all of our kids are growing up with today, well, they all play with joy sticks. It's like you were born with it. It's an easy plane to fly."

For the owner, a KATANA is less expensive to buy — about $87,000 — than other general aviation planes. As airplanes go, it's cheap on gas, with an efficiency of 34 miles per gallon or 3.8 gallons per hour of flying.

marked for high technology in the $59.7-million 1991 bond issue.

"It would behoove us to put something in writing," she said.

Little agreed, saying, "It needs to be put in writing."

Feiten also suggested that the need for textbooks be explained. "It seems a lot of people don't understand many of our texts are eight, 10 and 12 years old," she said.

Board member Barbara Graham said it should be emphasized that the 2.3 mills will be levied for two years only. After that, districts will be forced to share any millage revenue they raise with districts countywide, under the state's new school financing method.

The enhancement millage is needed to improve the curriculum and assist in meeting state performance standards and stricter graduation requirements, school officials say.

The district would spend 30 percent of the $12.2 million on computers and printers; 29 percent on textbooks and instructional materials; 14 percent on school building needs; 13 percent on software; 8 percent on library media centers; and 6 percent on teacher training.

Budgeted for textbooks in 1995-96 is $616,000, up from $200,000 this year and $100,000 the year before.

Expenditures over five years are projected at $3.5 million for textbooks and instructional materials; $945,000 for library media centers; $1.55 million for software; $3.6 million for computers; $700,000 for training, and $1.7 million for individual school building needs.

The school board approved the 1995-96 budget Monday as well.

pied either by the owner or an agricultural worker.

"The point is, the 18 mills exists already," said Hoedel. "It's a vital part of our new foundation grant that we get from the state. Without it, they would reduce us $990 per student. That is 16.8 percent of our operating revenue of $89 million."

Should the renewal fail, Hoedel said the district will try again.

"If worst comes to worst, we would schedule elections 'til it passes. There's no limit to the number of elections you can have on the renewal," he said. Districts for the next two years can ask for enhancement millage twice a year. After that, locally raised millage revenue must be shared with districts countywide.

While the renewal is for 10 years, non-homestead taxpayers (and homeowners) can bank on assessments going up "only at the rate of inflation or 5 percent, whichever is the lesser," said Hoedel. "That's good news for all homeowners and non-homestead property owners."

Under Proposal A, which revamped school finance, commercial and industrial taxpayers also received a 26-percent tax decrease, Hoedel said.

The reason the district is asking for a 10-year renewal is "because this is such a vital part of our foundation grant," said Hoedel.

Plymouth-Canton residents also are paying 2.3 mills in debt retirement. The debt is scheduled to expire in 2017.

Senators, cops 'offended' by Fieger comments

By Tim Richard
Staff Writer

Southfield attorney Geoffrey Fieger, a former drama student known for his flamboyant courtroom and news conference style, bombed before his state Senate Judiciary Committee audience as he argued against a police chase bill.

"I take extreme offense," said Sen. Mike Rogers, R-Howell.

"I did understand you to call police criminals," said chairman William VanRegenmorter, R-Jenison.

'It's people like Fieger, who, knowing (an injured person) can't recover damages from the fleer, turn the blame on law enforcement," said Dearborn Police Chief Ron Deziel.

Sen. Chris Dingell, D-Trenton, said nothing but rolled his eyes when asked later about Fieger's performance.

$280,000 death cap

Fieger is best known to the public for defending Jack ("Dr. Death") Kevorkian in his 22 assisted suicide cases. But Fieger, who once studied drama at the University of Michigan, is better known in legal circles for suing doctors and companies who allegedly have injured someone.

He ladles out insults freely and describes himself as a very intelligent man who should run for governor one day.

At issue is a package of bills before the Senate panel on "pursuit" policies — what should happen when a crime suspect flees police. The bills would:

- Provide for "new and stricter penalties" for fleeing and eluding police and gradations of punishment — two years for simple flight, 15 years for a flight that results in someone's death.
- A cap of $280,000 on non-economic ("pain and suffering") damages for state and local police units that adopt one of the model Emergency Vehicle Policy plans. Feiger concentrated his fire on this bill.
- A set of such plans for police to adopt.

VanRegenmorter said the panel may begin reporting out the bills this week.

■ 'You're seeking to protect insurers. The only thing your bill addresses is limiting liability of those who are negligently involved in police chases.'
Geoffrey Fieger, Attorney

'I represent victims'

Sneering at "this august body," Fieger said, "You're seeking to protect insurers. The only thing your bill addresses is limiting liability of those who are negligently involved in police chases.

"In real life, I represent victims," he said, citing a suit on behalf of the family of a young attorney killed by someone fleeing police out of a residential street.

"The Senate values life," Fieger said, referring to its outlawing of assisted suicide, "but suddenly no longer do you value life, but you price it at $280,000 . . . Why would anyone reward the negligent police agencies? . . . You shouldn't, ever, limit the ability to collect. The theory of tort laws is to dissuade, to deter. You encourage negligent (police) conduct."

Geake: "How can you say it encourages police to engage in negligent chases?"

Fieger: What is the incentive to train officers if the penalty is only $280,000 instead of $2 million? . . . If you want to protect people, you don't need that cap."

VanRegenmorter: "Money isn't the definition of the problem. It's the inability to get insurance. Some police agencies don't chase because they can't get insurance (against unlimited jury awards)."

Fieger: "Let the free market work. I have yet to see a city go down (bankrupt) because of a chase."

Sen. Jon Cisky, R-Saginaw, a former sheriff's officer: "As one involved in high-speed chases, I never thought of the money . . . You know, as an attorney, you'll look around for the deepest pockets."

Rogers, a former FBI man: "You represent trial attorneys (who typically get one-third of a jury award as a contingency fee)."

Fieger: "I am the person you come to to get a remedy."

Rogers: "You've appointed yourself to represent me?!?"

Fieger: "I and people like me. I don't do it for the money any more. I do it because it's right."

Rogers: "Your drama lessons have paid off . . . I take extreme offense at your sweeping statements. For you to sit there and show disrespect for police who are risking their lives . . . to say this committee has snuggled up to insurance companies . . . I point out that economic damages (medical bills, lost pay) aren't affected by this bill."

Fieger: "Officers on the beat don't pay. Insurance companies (should) pay. Why you want to limit liability, I don't know."

'Horrendous verdicts'

Next was Ron Deziel, Dearborn police chief, representing the Michigan Association of Chiefs of Police:

"There is a crisis. There is a problem because of lawsuits that have resulted in horrendous verdicts against deep-pockets government.

"Some police agencies won't pursue. Insurers won't insure. A policy of no pursuit is irresponsible.

"There are times when we must pursue violators and criminals. Pursuit is dangerous. Pursuit has been a source of controversy for many years. Every agency should adopt a policy.

"This bill doesn't shut out recovery. It allows recovery of all economic damages but limits non-economic damages. It's people like Fieger who, knowing there's no recovery from the fleer, turn the blame on law enforcement.

"But whose fault is it? Whose fault is it?"

Asked by late arrival Sen. Gary Peters, R-Bloomfield, whether Dearborn's department is insured, Deziel said, "We're insured only for catastrophic losses — over $1 million."

Refer to Senate Bill 378 (penalties for flight), 379 (cap on noneconomic damages) and House Bill 4536 (model police pursuit policies) when writing to your state senator, State Capitol, Lansing 48909.

Truth in taxation hearing set

This hearing begins 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, May 17, in the board room of the Grote Administration Center on the Haggerty Road campus just south of Seven Mile Road in Livonia.

Eriksson plant engineer recognized as Extra Miler

Thomas Finfrock, a plant engineer at Eriksson Elementary School, was honored with the Extra Miler award by the school board at its Monday night meeting.

"Tom's peers have rated him as outstanding for thoroughness and reliability," said Trustee Sue Davis, who presented the award.

"Tom has expanded the areas for which he holds himself responsible. He willingly does any task that will make our school safer, cleaner, or more efficient," wrote the Eriksson staff.

"Tom is always surprising his staff with ideas for making our lives easier and more comfortable in ways we would never imagine."

Finfrock also was recognized for taking a personal interest in students.

Finfrock brought to the district a wealth of experience. He worked as an apprentice in structure remodeling, watercraft engineering, tool grinding, and carpet installation.

Finfrock began his career with the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools in August 1986 as a custodian at Central Middle School. Three years later, he held the assistant head maintenance position at Hulsing Elementary School, moved to East Middle School, and then to Salem High School. His next move was to Eriksson.

Finfrock thanked the board and Eriksson staff. "It's a very, very good staff," he said. "To be nominated by such a great staff is a very big honor."

Finfrock was given a framed copy of his Extra Miler resolution, a cloisonne in the shape of the Flag of Learning and Liberty and a gift certificate for dining donated by the Roman Forum Restaurant in Canton.

Hospital celebrates focus on delivering quality health care

■ Whether it's through technology, political winds or new social directions, when it comes to health care the forecast calls for change.

St. Mary Hospital is celebrating National Hospital Week this week.

The theme for the week May 7-13 is "A Healthy Commitment in Changing Times."

Whether it's through technology, political winds or new social directions, when it comes to health care the forecast calls for change. But one thing that never changes, said hospital spokeswoman Julie Sproul, is the hospital's commitment to providing the best health care to the communities it serves.

That commitment begins with the members of each hospital's staff and during this week St. Mary Hospital employees will be recognized for the contributions they make year-round.

A Fun Walk was held Monday with ribbons and prizes awarded. A special ethnic "Around the World" employee luncheon on Wednesday featured American, Asian and Italian food. On Friday a drawing will be held for prizes from local merchants and vendors.

St. Mary Hospital also will have a booth featuring blood pressure, cholesterol screening and other tests at the ninth West Suburban Product and Services Exposition (Expo 275) May 16-17 at Burton Manor in Livonia.

For information on the hospital Expo 275 events, call (313) 464-WELL.

SMART general manager confident as bus vote nears

By Tim Richard
STAFF WRITER

Michael Duggan was in a good mood for a public official most think will lose a major election.

"The response is extremely positive," said Duggan, the deputy Wayne County executive in his third year as acting general manager of SMART, the suburban bus system which is asking voters for money.

"Conventional wisdom is we'll lose," Duggan admitted when he spoke to the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments executive committee.

But a telephone campaign aimed at senior citizens, along with help from organized labor and businesses, is pleasing the SMART chief as time draws near for voters to decide on a one-third mill property tax to subsidize the bus system.

Private donors are funding circulars in which friends of SMART will ask 10 of their friends to vote yes. Their slogan: "Without your voice, we're going nowhere."

Wayne County voters, mainly in communities east of I-275, will decide the proposal May 23. Oakland voters, mainly in the southeastern section (except the Bloomfield area), will vote June 6. Macomb will vote countywide on May 23.

No state help is forthcoming. "I thought we were close to a deal on a vehicle registration fee," Duggan said. "Pat Nowak (state director of transportation) got us $11 million, but we'll be flat out of cash May 11.

"There have been major federal cutbacks in transit starting with (President) Reagan and going to Clinton. Everywhere else, there's a local tax. Seventy places in Michigan have a local source of revenue. SMART is the only one that doesn't."

Novi councilmember Tim Pope tried to pin down Duggan on the balkanized bus system Duggan was leading. "You seem to support a regional system, yet you seem gleeful that 41 of 60 (Oakland County) communities have opted out (of the bus tax vote)."

"I'm not gleeful," replied Duggan. "I do not criticze any who opted out. Auburn Hills and Novi get minimal service now and for the major new service additions. Yet Auburn Hills is in (the June 6 vote), and Novi is out. I would prefer you (Novi) would stay in," offering to meet with Novi officials to work out acceptable bus routes.

Oakland County Commissioner Kay Schmid, R-Novi, said, "Your expanded service to Novi was ridiculous. The plan for a route from Seven and Grand River to Novi was ridiculous. Our main concern is not line-haul buses; 75 percent of the buses are line-haul. They're empty. We need connectors."

University will offer workshops

Beginning in June, Madonna University will hold its summer math 1995 workshops, a series of classes designed to teach K-6 educators how to use concrete materials, modeling techniques and problem-solving strategies to enhance their students' conceptual understanding of mathematics.

Each workshop will be divided by grade levels to provide activities appropriate to various classrooms. Upon completion, each participant will receive a resource binder of ready-to-use activities and a certificate of attendance.

The cost of each course is $30 and includes refreshments. Local school district Eisenhower funds may be used toward workshop fees. If taken for undergraduate or graduate credit, the cost, in addition to the $40 registration fee, will be $84 or $110, respectively.

All classes will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m.

Problem solving with Math Models and Manipulatives will be held Monday through Friday, June 19 to 23. Classes will be held simultaneously for both K-2 and 3-6 educators. Participants will learn how to use manipulatives and modeling techniques, and activities will focus on patterns, number sense, place value, basic skills and operations, fractions, geometry concepts and probability and statistics.

Those who enroll in Calculators in the Elementary Mathematics Classroom will take part in various hands-on calculator activities. Educators will explore the use of calculators to develop logical reasoning and critical thinking, to build number sense, to promote problem solving and to reinforce math concepts. The seminar will be held Tuesday through Thursday, June 27 to 29, for K-3 educators. Teachers from grades 4-6 will meet the same days with an additional day June 30.

Participants in Math Through Literature: Making the Connection will be acquainted with the various connections between math and literature. Activities will be designed around selections from children's literature that lend themselves to a problem-solving approach to learning math. For K-2 educators, classes will be held Wednesday through Friday, July 5-7. For teachers in grades 3-6, class will meet Monday through Friday, July 10-14.

For more information, call Madonna University's math department at (313) 591-5104. Madonna is at I-96 and Levan in Livonia.

We can't say enough about our nurses.

In honor of National Nurses Week, May 6-12, we take great pride saluting our dedicated, compassionate, and talented nurses. The people who work around-the-clock to care for patients throughout the Oakwood Healthcare System.

We support this year's nationwide celebration with a special theme symbolizing the warmth and humanity nurses bring to their profession.

Nurses: Caring Hearts, Touching Lives.

We believe nurses are truly "the heart of healthcare." It's the special kindness, warmth, skill, and professionalism nurses offer our patients that makes the hospitals in the Oakwood Healthcare System safe, comforting places to rest, heal, and recover.

While we will never be able to say enough about our nurses, we are pleased to express our sincere gratitude and appreciation to every one of them.

STANLEY L. COON

Services for Stanley L. Coon, 83, who founded what became the Coon Brothers auto dealership at Plymouth Road and Telegraph, were Friday, May 5, at Trinity Presbyterian Church, Plymouth.

The Rev. Dr. William C. Moore officiated. Arrangements were made by Vermeulen Funeral Home. Burial was in Grand Lawn Cemetery.

He was born in Redford Township and died Wednesday, May 3, at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor. He was the owner of Coon Brothers, which evolved from a gas station he started on the site in 1932.

Mr. Coon and a brother ran gas stations and an appliance store in the corner during the 1930s and 1940s, and in 1951 he added a building on the Telegraph Road side to sell Nash cars. Soon, he remodeled the corner and dropped the appliance store and just had the dealership and Standard station. Throughout the years, he added a service area, bump shop and paint shop.

He lived most of his life in Redford Township, moving to Northville in 1966. He retired in 1980, retaining the building and ground but selling the business to three family members and one employee.

He had four acres in Northville and he loved to farm. He had a good sized orchard with miniature fruit trees of all kinds and nuts and a large garden from which he shared the harvest with friends and neighbors. He loved the corn from his garden and planted it so he could enjoy corn all season long.

He is survived by his wife, Hazel; daughters, Shirley Millard, Sally Foote and Sandra Dow; brothers, Harold of Lathrup Village and Raymond of Camp Verde, Ariz.; 10 grandchildren; and nine great grandchildren.

Memorial contributions may be made to Trinity Presbyterian Church, 10101 Ann Arbor Road, Plymouth 48170, and Arbor Hospice Home Care, 3810 Packard, Suite 200, Ann Arbor 48108.

School code repeal opposed

By Tim Richard
Staff Writer

Keep a strong state School Code, teacher Michael Horner told the Senate Education Committee Monday, May 1, because the "free market" can't do the job.

The North Farmington High math teacher ripped former General Motors President Lloyd Reuss' published remarks on the market system's ability to provide good schools.

"Cars today deliver only one percent of the pollution they did 20 years ago. We have seat belts for safety. We have CAFE (fuel economy) standards set by the government," Horner said, although automakers had to be brought "kicking and screaming" to meet standards only government can set.

"If circumstances forced me to move, I'd like to know there are common standards statewide for teacher certification, curriculum and assessment," Horner said to the delight of 100 people who packed the Senate panel's hearing in Farmington.

All but one or two in the audience felt the same way. It led Republican Sens. Leon Stille of Spring Lake and Doug Carl of Mount Clemens to put much space between themselves and Gov. John Engler, who called for repeal of the School Code in his State of the State message last winter.

In fact, Stille, the chair, and Carl, the vice-chair, even distanced themselves from Senate majority leader Dick Posthumus, who in February issued a news release prematurely announcing, "Senate Republicans repeal School Code."

"From my viewpoint, the gears have changed. We're headed toward revision rather than change," said Stille, a freshman senator and former IBM marketing manager.

"The notion of repealing the School Code did not come from the Senate," added Carl, the Legislature's best known conservative fundamentalist.

'Village idiots'

Dissenting was Patricia Alspack, a Farmington parent who blamed "village idiots" for state school standards. The seventh-grade state MEAP test contains a story written at the fourth-grade level, she said, calling for Michigan's use of national standards.

Alspack blistered the adulation of 'diversity" in public schools because 'United we stand; divided we fall." She debunked "multiculturalism" because "whites are lumped into one group" whether they're English, Scotch, German or New Yorkers.

"I'm fighting (low school standards) while other parents pull their kids out of public schools," she said — to the applause of one person.

Michigan's frequently-amended, 1,800-section School Code provides for the organization, governance, teacher certification, school accreditation, and academic requirements for the 560-plus K-12 public school districts. There's wide agreement it's too detailed and cumbersome, requiring too much paperwork. Beyond that, political interest groups are all over the map.

Karen Miller, Southfield school board member, was one of several urging the continued ban on "parochiaid" — proposed state aid to private and church-related schools. That line was often applauded. Sen. Carl, sponsor of a constitutional amendment to lift the parochiaid ban, didn't comment.

Mark Katz, Berkley school board member, had a technical idea that could save school districts money: Allow schools to establish "lines of credit" at their banks, so they would pay interest only on what they borrow rather than have to borrow a fixed sum, whether they need the total or not.

Several, including Rochester's Janulis, called for striking out the requirement of bilingual schooling — teaching a Spanish-speaking student in his own language. Questioned on this point by Sen. Gary Peters, R-Bloomfield Township, Janulis said, "24 countries are represented in Rochester. English as a second language has more relevance."

Rehabilitation Services

The Road Back.

It's been said that even the longest journey begins with a single step. For people disabled from strokes, sports and work related injuries, neck, back and hand injuries, fractures and spinal injuries, or arthritis — and for their families who offer the support and encouragement essential for successful rehabilitation — that first step can begin at St. Mary Hospital.

Our physiatrist-managed comprehensive programs of physical medicine and rehabilitation are tailored to the needs of individual patients. And our team of physicians and rehabilitation specialists bring their wide range of skills and experience together for a single purpose: to help each patient reach his or her maximum level of independence in daily life.

Issues rated

Public safety is No. 1 concern

More than 90 members of the new Wayne County Citizens Advisory Board and 15 county commissioners worked together to chart the direction of the Wayne County legislative branch at the first working session of the Advisory Board on Saturday, April 29 in Detroit.

Here's how the Advisory Board ranked issues of importance in Wayne County:

1. Public safety.
2. Public transportation.
3. (tie) Health care, environment.
4. (tie) Economic development, government efficiency, recreation.
5. (tie) Airport noise, infrastructure.

"This working session served as a barometer for the elected officials to chart their legislative course based on how strongly citizens from Wayne County feel about issues," said commission chairman Ricardo Solomon in a press release.

Advisory Board members Colleen McClorey and Val Vandersloot, who were appointed by Livonia Republican Thaddeus McCotter, said the meeting was productive.

The format was for several board members, no more than two from the same district, to sit with a commissioner and discuss issues.

Vandersloot said commissioner William O'Neil, D-Allen Park, was surprised to be made aware of issues and concerns that he hadn't considered before.

The Advisory Board members made the following suggestions at their first meeting:

■ Public safety: Expand alternative sentencing for offenders. Improve cooperation with local police departments. Expand sheriff's role in Detroit upon request. Increase prevention efforts.

■ Accountability of government: Improve communication and increase citizen's understanding of county government. Establish a code of ethics for elected officials. Improve information technology. Review salaries and wages.

■ Economic development: Improve working relationship with Canada. Improve coordination with city and county economic agencies. Review business tax structure. Publicize county health programs. Develop better cost containment features through managed care.

■ Recreation: Better publicize information about parks. Increase parks funding.

■ Infrastructure: Implement stricter load limits for trucks. Establish "Adopt a County Road" program.

■ Noise pollution: Provide tax abatement to residents in high noise areas.

■ Environment: Stop illegal dumping. Expand alternative work force to clean rivers. Conduct a county-wide tire sweep.

The next Advisory Board meeting is scheduled at a Downriver location in August.

The commissioners and citizens plan to explore these suggestions in greater detail at the next meeting.

The board's recommended solutions will be reflected in the commission's legislative agenda, Solomon has said.

Introducing

The Providence Heart Institute

Quality care — a Providence hallmark for 150 years

This year, Providence celebrates 150 years of service to metro-Detroiters. Quality care with a special personal touch has always been our hallmark.

Through the years, thousands of patients have trusted Providence Hospital in Southfield in matters of the heart. Now our full range of cardiac care services has become even better.

Convenient outpatient care

As we've grown, we've listened to what our patients and their doctors want. The result is the Providence Heart Institute, where comprehensive cardiac diagnostic testing and evaluation services are available in one convenient location.

You'll walk a few steps from dedicated complimentary parking at the Hospital's main entrance to register in a central location, then proceed to the Institute where helpful staff will coordinate, schedule and deliver all of your outpatient care, including cardiac rehabilitation.

Private lockers, changing rooms and conference space, as well as added space in diagnostic stress testing areas, will make your time with us comfortable.

Comprehensive cardiac services

Quality cardiac care depends on accurate diagnosis and treatment. Providence has an outstanding record for cardiac services, with complication rates below national averages.

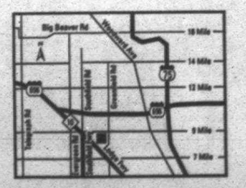

Providence offers a full range of cardiac services including electrocardiography, echocardiography, stress testing, pacemaker and arrhythmia clinics, cardiac catheterization, angioplasty, atherectomy, cardiac stents, cardiac surgery and cardiac rehabilitation. In 1992, Providence also opened Oakland County's first chest pain emergency unit to care for patients in those critical first hours when chest pain begins and is most responsive to treatment.

The Heart Institute can be reached by calling (810) 424-2000.

Epilepsy fundraiser set

■ There's still time to register to win prizes from official summer stroll T-shirts, baseball caps, sweatshirts, duffle bags to portable compact disc players and televisions.

The Epilepsy Center of Michigan is looking for fun and fitness buffs to participate in the 1995 Summer Stroll for Epilepsy, the national fund-raising event benefitting people with seizure disorders.

On Saturday, June 3, walkers in metro Detroit will kick off the Epilepsy Center's fourth annual stroll at the Troy Farm and Nature Center and the University of Michigan-Dearborn. A third stroll will take place June 20 in Grand Rapids.

Registration for the Troy and Dearborn sites starts at 9 a.m. and the stroll begins at 10 a.m. The Troy Farm and Nature Center is located on Coolidge Highway, between Square Lake Road and South Boulevard. The campus of the University of Michigan-Dearborn is located on Evergreen between Michigan Ave. and Ford.

There's still time to register to win prizes from official summer stroll T-shirts, baseball caps, sweatshirts, duffle bags to portable compact disc players and televisions.

Team prizes for groups of five or more walkers will also be awarded for the following: most money raised, highest team average, most creative name, most unique uniform, and largest team. Team members are also eligible for individual prizes. Participants raising $500 will be entered in a special raffle to win additional prizes. The grand prize winner will receive a made in Michigan adventure for two.

For more information on walking or volunteering, call the center's summer stroll hotline at 810-351-7979.

Chuck Gaidica, weathercaster at Detroit's WDIV-TV (channel 4) and host of Michigan Lottery's "megabucks giveaway" show is the stroll's honorary chairperson for 1995.

Sponsors of the stroll include WDIV-TV in Detroit, Parke-Davis Pharmaceuticals, Dearborn Federal Credit Union, NBD bank, BDO Seidman, Henry Ford Health System, Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan, Marion Merrill Dow, Inc., and Franco Public Relations group.

Founded in 1948, the center is the state's only non-profit organization focusing on epilepsy, providing medical, counseling, employment, information and referral, educational and advocacy services for people with epilepsy and their families.

Epilepsy affects over 90,000 in Michigan. It is a common neurological disorder marked by changes in brain function that result in seizures. Most people with this condition are otherwise normal and healthy. With regular use of medication, many can live completely free of seizures.

Where families are born... close to home

A COMFORTABLE ATMOSPHERE

Imagine giving birth in a comfortable, home-like atmosphere where you make many of the decisions about your birth experience. And then, think about being able to go home within 24 hours after your baby is born. Well, the New Life Center at Providence Park in Novi offers all that, and it's just minutes from home.

A UNIQUE APPROACH

From the moment you choose to have your baby with us*, you can feel comfortable knowing you'll receive personal attention from caring nurses, unrestricted visiting hours, prenatal classes, a neonatologist present at your baby's birth, and private visits to your home after baby's birth by a nurse and choreworker. What's more, you will enjoy a comfortable home-like atmosphere where your birth partner can stay overnight. The New Life Center at Providence Park was born from the success of the New Life Center at Providence Hospital, where for generations, thousands of women have had wonderful, nurturing, family-centered birth experiences.

COME SEE FOR YOURSELF

But don't take our word for it. Take it from the women who have already enjoyed a Providence Park New Life Center experience. Here are just some of the things they have to say:

- "We had no idea what to expect, but delivering here was the best experience of our lives. The personal attention we received made this a very positive experience."
- "My experience couldn't have been better. The staff was fabulous! They were so helpful, friendly and comforting. I really felt that they made my experience the best it could be. The room was beautiful, clean and comfortable. Everything was wonderful!"
- "Absolutely wonderful! I was so pleased I would rate it right off the charts!"

Call 1-800-806-BABY for an appointment to see what the New Life Center at Providence Park has to offer expectant families.

Zoo invites kids to safari series

The Detroit Zoo's summer safari series allows children age 4-12 to explore and experience the fascinating animal world through week-long, single-day and overnight adventures from June through August.

The safari series is conducted by safari guides made up of zoo staff members and docents.

Phone registration for the series begins Saturday, May 13, from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. Credit cards are accepted. Contact the zoological society at 810-541-5717 for registration or a program brochure. Underwritten by the society, the series is also supported by the Junior League of Detroit. Following is the list of camp programs offered for children.

■ Zoo Quest is for 4 and 5 year olds, and 6 to 9 year olds. It's a passport to adventure as children travel the ends of the earth to learn about animals from every habitat — from icy polar regions to African grasslands. Offered as a weeklong adventure 9 a.m. to noon in sessions running June 19-23, June 26-30, July 17-21, July 24-28, and Aug. 14-18. There will be one afternoon session 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. July 10-14. Cost is $65 for society members, $75 for non-members.

■ Zoovival Instincts, again for ages 4 to 5 and another session for ages 6 to 9, shows children the tricks and skills that animals can use to survive. Animal adaptation, family life, shelter and predator/prey relationships will be explored. Also offered as a weeklong adventure from 1 to 4 p.m. June 26-30; 9 a.m. to noon July 3-7; 9 a.m. to noon July 10-14; 1 to 4 p.m. July 17-21; 1 to 4 p.m. July 24-28; 9 a.m. to noon July 31 to Aug. 4 and 9 a.m. to noon Aug. 7-11. Cost is $65 for society members, $75 for others.

■ Chimp Chat for 4 and 5 year olds lets children examine the lives of chimps and explore the Chimps of Harambee exhibit. Then they'll go ape through role playing and other activities to learn more about these fascinating animals. Offered as a single day adventure from 9:30 to noon June 19, July 3, and Aug. 8. Cost is $17 for members, $20 for non members.

■ Not So Creepy Crawlers — for 4 and 5 year olds teaches children that insects, spiders, snakes and snails are sometimes spooky looking, but always fascinating. Offered as a single day adventure from 9:30 a.m. to noon June 21, July 10, July 25 and Aug. 14. Cost is $17 for members, $20 for non members.

■ Monkey Business for ages 6 to 9 lets kids explore animal behaviors to learn why snow monkeys groom each other and what message the Przewalski's horse is conveying when his ears are back. Offered as a single day adventure from 9:30 to noon June 20, July 17 and Aug. 2. Cost is $17 for members, $20 for others.

■ Dino Digs lets 4 and 5 year olds go on expedition to search for ancient animal life and visit some of the dinosaur's modern relatives at the zoo. Offered as a single day adventure from 9:30 to noon June 26, July 12, July 31, and Aug. 16. Cost is $17 for members, $20 for others.

■ Animal Speak is for ages 6 to 9. It teaches children to recognize that rattling tails and erect quills have distinct communication messages in the animal world. Offered as a single day event on June 27, July 19 and Aug. 7 from 9:30 to noon. Cost is $17 for members, and $20 for non members.

■ Whose Habitat? is for 6 to 9 year olds. Children explore the many interesting homes found in the animal world — whether underground or up a tree. Some amazing animal architects will be examined in this adventure. Offered as a single day workshop on June 28, July 24 and Aug. 9 from 9:30 to noon. Cost is $17 for members and $20 for all others.

■ Junior Zoologist is for 6 to 9 year olds, allowing them to think like scientists to experience many different facets of animal life. Offered from 9:30 to noon July 5, 26 and Aug. 15 as a single day adventure.

■ Who In The Zoo is for 10 to 12 year olds, teaching kids about the animals special grocery shoppers, doctors, and dentists who keep the zoo running smoothly. Offered as a single day adventure from 9:30 to noon July 11. $17 for members, $20 for non-members.

What's right with America 9

My featured guest today is Jean Cogill. She's a retired middle school teacher who for 34 years led near-teens and new teens through mathematics (like long division, long story problems, that sort of thing) and science (the periodic table of elements, chemical experiments requiring beakers and bubbling).

She'd devoted herself to teaching tough subjects to a tough crowd. Jean also devoted herself to her work at home, that of being a wife and mother. (She's been a wife to the same man for almost 41 years — that's devoted!)

But now that her teaching days are over and her mothering duties have eased a bit, she's become a world traveler. And I suspect that if time travel were possible, she'd do that, too, especially if the itinerary included a stop in 1920, the year women won the right to vote — "suffrage" as it was known in the language of the 19th Amendment.

Club takes edge off public speaking

■ There are those who handle it well and then there are those who all but faint at the prospect. But with the help of Toastmasters, many folks are finding they can get up and speak before a crowd and actually enjoy it.

By Diane Hanson
Special Writer

It feels like butterflies gathering in the stomach for an annual migration. Palms perspire. Shortness of breath occurs in a non-smoking, physical fitness guru with a 100 percent lung capacity.

They're all indicators that someone is about to give a public speech.

"People say there are two fears in life, death and public speaking," said Christine Phillips, past president and now vice president for public relations of the Oral Majority Toastmasters Club in Plymouth.

Phillips, a public health nurse employed by the State Department of Public Health, joined Toastmasters four years ago. Her job involved giving presentations to groups of doctors and other health care professionals.

"I had to learn how to design a presentation," said the Livonia resident. "I knew the technical material that I had to cover but I'd been to enough of those that were so deadly boring."

Phillips learned how to get her information across and add humor to hold the interest of her audience. The expertise gained through Toastmasters has been invaluable; she is now involved with presentations at national meetings with the Centers for Disease Control.

Toastmasters was founded 70 years ago by Dr. Ralph C. Smedley because of his strong conviction that "the ability to communicate is a God-given talent, which ought to be used by all for the good of all."

The first club was started in Santa Ana, Calif., and grew out of the need of a group of individuals to improve their communication skills. There are now more than 8,000 clubs in 52 countries worldwide; 3,000 of the clubs are in the United States.

The reasons for joining Toastmasters include confidence building, improving interpersonal communications, developing job interview techniques and being able to speak effectively, listen and evaluate situations.

Many reasons

The reasons are as varied as the occupations of the members — bus drivers, veterinarians, health care professionals, secretaries, computer technicians, business people and educators, to name a few.

The meetings last about two hours and consist of an impromptu "table topics" portion and a time for prepared speeches and evaluations. Special meetings are held for speech evaluation contests and for the International Speech Contest.

Winners of the local club contests go on to area, division, district, regional and, finally, international competition. The contests represent a challenge and an opportunity for recognition.

Vickie Belue, a credit union loan adjuster from Westland, joined Toastmasters in last September and is now vice president of the Oral Majority club. She joined because of the position to which she was appointed.

"I am called upon at various times in an impromptu manner to speak and I was not comfortable in doing that," she said. "This has really helped."

Barbara Owston, a retired nurse from Canton, simply "wanted some way to learn to express myself and I'm hoping this journey leads me out to people to do something like that."

Sometimes the reason for joining Toastmasters is very basic.

"I joined so that I would stay upright up there without passing out," said Christine O'Rourke, a veterinarian employed by Parke Davis in Ann Arbor, as she gestured toward the podium. "I was deathly afraid of speaking but I often not only work with rats and mice, I also work with people. So that was important."

O'Rourke, a Livonia resident, joined Toastmasters 2½ years ago when she started working at Parke Davis and on her postdoctoral fellowship for which she was required to give seminars.

"Probably the majority of people are like I am," said O'Rourke, who is currently president of the Oral Majority Club. "People are afraid to speak. I would always run away from it. But you can't. You get in a job or a situation where you can't avoid it."

O'Rourke has found the expertise gained from Toastmasters to be invaluable.

"It's a hidden jewel," she said of the organization. "It's a hidden value. Not many people know about this. They say 'What do you guys do? Do you go there and toast?' "

Be a guest

Those interested in finding out what Toastmasters members really do are welcome to come as a guest. Meetings are held in different locations and on different days or evenings.

Membership is reasonable, according to Marilyn Albee, lieutenant governor of education and training for District 28 of the Toastmasters. The Redford resident, a member of Dearborn Dynamic Toastmasters, pointed out that dues for both the local and international nonprofit organization are less than $100 per year, with a $16 new member fee that includes the beginning manuals.

Albee joined Toastmasters when she was between jobs and "needed to gain some self-confidence, improve my job-seeking skills and my impromptu speaking in job interviews."

The organizational fees help to pay for the many manuals that take members through the different levels and types of speeches. There are also mini workshops designed to improve listening, management and evaluation skills.

Conducting workshops and seminars is another area of instruction. By completing certain requirements and giving particular types of speeches, members can advance through the ranks of Able Toastmaster (ATM) to Competent Toastmaster (CTM) to Distinguished Toastmaster (DTM).

Toastmasters also reaches out with community service like its Youth Leadership Program, designed to help young people develop their potential to be good communicators and leaders. The programs are offered through schools and youth organizations.

"We come in for eight weeks and we teach them how to get up in front of a room and to speak," said Albee, who is involved in a leadership session.

As for adult membership, Albee concedes that "for many it's a lifetime commitment." Marc Sullivan of Plymouth is a shining example. He joined Toastmasters in 1958 and started the Oral Majority group in 1981.

"I find that I not only learn, I relearn and redo," Sullivan said. "I encourage others to stay with it."

Division C governor Arthur Clarke starts new Toastmasters clubs in the area and is employed as a college instructor. He gives high kudos to the organization.

"Toastmasters and the education expertise that I have been able to develop as a public speaker has helped me more than any other professional development endeavor that I have been involved in," Clarke said.

To find out more about Toastmasters, call (313) 721-3488 in Wayne or (810) 398-1892 in Berkley.

Plymouth woman receives FS award

A Plymouth resident has been named recipient of the Arne A. Erickson Award by Family Service Detroit and Wayne County.

Susan Floyd Voyles, director of communications, will receive award at the Family Service annual meeting on May 17.

Voyles earned the award because of her success in increasing community awareness of the organization and improving its fund-raising efforts during the past year, according to Elizabeth Sullivan, grants coordinator of The Kresge Foundation and vice chairwoman of the Family Service board.

"Through professional quality communication materials, focusing on the agency's services, Sue has helped to improve the organization's image," said Barbara Fahrenkrug, the director of programs who joined Sullivan in nominating Voyles for the award.

The Erickson Award was established by the Family Service Board of Directors in 1966 to honor staff member Arne A. Erickson, who was killed in an automobile accident while on assignment for the agency. The award recognizes a staff member for innovations leading to enhanced services, creativity in clinical practice, staff training and development and originality in developing now or existing programs.

Voyles spearheaded the agency's participation in Gannett Outdoors' public service program highlighting Family Service. Her publicity efforts resulted in 106 verified published print mentions of the agency and 55 exposures on radio or TV broadcasts.

She also coordinated 11 special events, including the 1994 annual meeting, which celebrated the 115th anniversary of the agency. In addition, Voyles improved fund-raising, resulting in increased Annual Fund contributions 215 percent over goal, a 20 percent increase in board giving and an increase of in-kind contributions to Family Service clients.

Voyles has a bachelor's degree in English/journalism from Madonna University in Livonia and a master's degree in journalism from Michigan State University. Her volunteer activities have included serving as president of the Non-Profit Public Relations Network, as vice president of Women in Communications Inc. Detroit chapter and as a committee member of the Substance Abuse Prevention Coalition of Southeast Michigan and on the Women in Communications national Progress of Women in Communications Committee.

Writer is precise in her work

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

LORENE GREEN

Dear Ms. Green,

I have always been fascinated with the way people write, but have never put much thought into how it reveals one's personality. I am very curious about what you think of mine.

M.L.

I am right-handed and 29 years old.

Many commendable traits can be gleaned from this well-spaced, neat and legible handwriting. A woman who is self-disciplined and results-oriented comes into sharp focus. Determination helps her stay on target to achieve her goals.

She functions in an orderly manner and can bring both things and people into systematic relationships. She plans her work as well as her daily life. Most of the time, work comes before she allows herself time for leisure. She derives satisfaction from methodical accomplishments and has limited patience with wasteful schedules or procedures that lack efficiency.

Precision and accuracy describe her work. She is conscientious, dependable and thorough, although not terribly lively. Others probably see her as a perfectionist.

She enjoys and expects full involvement and hard work once she assumes a task. She can handle the routine, repetitious details also. With superiors, she is cooperative as she wants to merit their approval.

A spirit of orderliness permeates this handwriting. She wants everything around her neat and orderly. She lives with the motto, "A place for everything and everything in its place."

Seemingly, our writer was raised in a rather strict environment. Old-fashioned virtues are firmly rooted. At an early age, she learned the importance of self-discipline and control.

"Shoulds" and "should nots" were often heard in her parental home. Her continued adherence to this training and moral discipline suggests a rigid attitude regarding ethics and duty. She may experience guilt feelings, if she goes against her training.

She expects a great deal from herself and probably from others. Flexibility is not her best trait. She can become unglued when plans are upset.

She is naturally discreet. Often she is cautious not to reveal too much about herself. Few will know when she is hurting.

There is a sense of refinement about this woman who is ever mindful of correct behavior. She has a caring, sensitive nature and can feel both for and with another. Although emotional by nature, she works at controlling her feelings.

Perhaps our writer was feeling unappreciated at the time this letter was written. Seemingly, she is searching for signs of love. There is some anxiety here also. Does she sometimes conceal her true nature?

Strong convictions are part of our writer, and she is very loyal to them. Loyalty to her friends can also be seen. Some of her friendships are of long standing. Love and friends are important parts of her happiness.

There is a tad of intuition in this handwriting which can be used to her advantage in her work and in relationships.

If you would like your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and full signature are helpful. Objective feedback is welcome.

I have always been fascinated the way people write but have not much thought into how it reveals one's personality. I am very curious about what you think of mine.

BREAST HEALTH EDUCATION

One in nine American women will develop breast cancer ...

If it's found early, about 90% of them will survive.

The key to beating breast cancer is finding it before it spreads. While it's still 90% curable. With the best chance of saving the breast.

At Providence, we're committed to providing a quality program to screen for breast cancer and teach women about breast examinations using:

- low-dose radiation
- fully accredited mammography equipment
- specially trained radiologists and technicians
- four locations with convenient hours
- acceptance of most insurance plans

Providence provides all the care you need if the diagnosis is breast cancer, from surgery, radiation and chemotherapy to reconstructive surgery. A multidisciplinary working group of physicians and other health care professionals assists patients in deciding which treatment is best for them, then streamlines that treatment so care can begin in a matter of days rather than weeks.

Providence oncologists have access to the latest cancer-fighting drugs and treatment protocols through membership in several national research organizations. The Hospital's radiation oncology program is affiliated with University of Michigan, bringing state-of-the-art care right here for Providence patients.

And we offer something more: The support, care and compassion cancer patients and their families need at a time that challenges body, mind and spirit.

Please call one of our four locations to begin your breast care program today. And practice it for life.

Willow Run

Local involvement is needed

Canton should take a role in planning the expansion of Willow Run Airport because it's easier to be on the inside making significant changes than on the outside complaining.

Willow Run will be an international cargo airport no matter what critics have to say, and becoming part of the process will allow residents to be heard.

Plans for Willow Run include extending one of five runways from 7,000 to 10,500 feet to allow 747 jets loaded with cargo to land and take off. The extended runway would be about one mile from Canton.

Willow Run expansion would allow the airport to serve as an international cargo facility, boosted by automakers, who plan to include the empty Willow Run GM plant.

The disclosure of those plans has sparked concern from Canton residents who want to know how much more noise and air traffic they will have to put up with. The residents have formed a group.

As a result of the concern, Canton Township recently hired former Metro Airport "Noise Czar" Bryan Amann, a Canton attorney, to deal with those concerns. It was a good decision. Air traffic patterns are a complex subject and Amann has the expertise to deal with them.

Amann's message is that the community get involved. "We want to make sure the process accurately and actively involves the concerns of Canton residents," he said shortly after being hired.

■ Plans for Willow Run include extending one of five runways from 7,000 to 10,500 feet to allow 747 jets loaded with cargo to land and take off. The extended runway would be about one mile from Canton.

The project has been misunderstood, partly because of its complexity. Planning is occurring on at least five levels of government, including federal, state, Wayne and Washtenaw counties, and township governments, namely Van Buren and Ypsilanti. Eastern Michigan University and the University of Michigan also are involved.

That's a lot of red tape to cut through to get answers. However, Canton can take the first step by becoming involved in the Willow Run environmental assessment, which has started. Noise and other similar concerns voiced by Canton residents would fall into this phase.

There's also another factor involved in the concern about Willow Run and concerns about airport noise from Metro. Residents who moved to Canton knew there were two airports nearby, when they bought their homes. Both airports have been there for decades.

It will do little good to stand on the outside and be critical of airport noise. Canton has a chance to get on the inside. Residents should take it.

Judicial mess hits everyone

The chaos in Detroit Recorder's Court is bigger than Detroit. The chaos affects suburban courts, too. Michigan needs court reform — defined as a single "trial court," instead of circuit, probate, recorder's and district courts — serving larger districts and with state funding.

Recorder's Court handles felony cases arising in Detroit. Everywhere else in Michigan, countywide circuit courts handle felony cases. Several Wayne County circuit judges are assigned to Detroit Recorder's Court. A confusing system? Yes — a mess.

The latest news reports say Detroit Recorder's judges have a backlog of cases that is growing. Results: The accused commits more crimes while waiting trial or simply vanishes; witnesses forget; and cases fall apart.

How does it impact the suburbs? First, suburban district judges often have been assigned by the state court administrator to help out on Detroit benches. That's not unfair, but it does slow down justice in the suburbs. Suburban communities ask for more judges, but the governor and Legislature say no because there's too little money.

Second, Detroit Recorder's judges are also reassigned — to help out on the state Court of Appeals. It amounts to putting a stressed-out worker on overtime.

Meanwhile, the Michigan Supreme Court is about to act. The justices have heard arguments in a 1989 lawsuit brought by 80 counties who want the state to fund their courts, not just Wayne County's and Detroit's. The Supreme Court is expected to decide that case before fall.

Later this month, the Supreme Court is to announce its plan for court reform. We don't know details, but we expect it will look like this: A single "trial court," districts of about one million population each, and full state funding. Each district would have an administrative judge with authority to assign other judges wherever needed.

Such a court reform plan would correct our current twin ailments: rigid geographical lines of counties and districts, and uneven workloads within districts. Every trial judge would have authority to hear every kind of case. Every trial judge would have a relatively even workload. Every judge would be expected to travel — but not too far — to help out a neighbor.

Michigan has some 611 judges. In 1991, the last time anyone tried to tally the total cost, it was $511 million. And yet our system is so rigid, both geographically and jurisdictionally, that we can't deploy judges easily as needed. It's like the old railroad union "featherbedding" rules, where you had to have X-number of oilers or brakemen whether you needed them or not.

Judicial chaos may be most visible in Detroit, but the mess is statewide, reaching all the way to the part-time judges in remote corners of the Upper Peninsula. We hope the Supreme Court will think boldly in its reform plans. We hope our legislators will resist the objections of jurists who would stick with the current byzantine system.

Court reform is as big an issue in 1995 as school finance was in 1972-94. The change will be massive but good.

School question

Try to envision a business department representative going to an annual budget review, and saying:

1. We don't know exactly what we will spend or where we will spend.

2. We can't (or won't) fully explain past expenditures.

3. We need more money to fund item No. 1.

One can but assume what the career longevity may be for that particular department manager.

But this is exactly the approach that the school officials and board members are trying to pawn off onto the voters.

Rather than provide a clear, concise rationale of needs, they predictably: (1) Attempt to place fear into the parents that their progeny will not be prepared for the future, and (2) wait until the last minute to issue data, real or implied, as a basis for that need. (By design, shortening time allowed for critical review — thus ensuring a degree of fuzziness to prevail).

This "Trust me" and "Feed me" operational mode of the schools does very little to negate the current distrust (disgust) felt by the voter.

Wrong business

In response to your article of March 23, "Kmart shoppers offer advice to new CEO," I would like to offer my "two cents" worth get out of the porn business.

The American Family Association has been spearheading a boycott of Kmart for four years because Mr. Antonini has refused to order Waldenbooks to stop their sale of pornography sold in their Waldenbooks store (profits go into the parent company Kmart). The company has suffered tremendous financial decline since the boycott began.

The financial problems facing Kmart parallel AFA's four-year boycott. This is a matter of public record and can be verified by any investment fund manager. The boycott has not been totally responsible for all the financial problems, but has been a significant factor; however, this has not been mentioned by the business or secular press.

Mourn all children

We have been hearing much rhetoric and lamentation about the recent tragedy in Oklahoma City, particularly concerning the horror and inhumanity of the murder of innocent children. Do we not see that a life is a life, regardless of age, sex, or nationality, and that all human life is sacred?

Are our children somehow more precious than the multitudes of children killed by our nation in Iraq, Vietnam, Korea, or Japan?

Why were these lives expendable and so easily extiguished?

Our government, in the name of peace (or war), has made some morally reprehensible decisions. We are not just citizens of a country, we are all members of the human race, and as such we have a duty and an obligation to one another. We seem to have set ourselves apart and above all other people on this earth. This is a grave mistake and I fear that there is truth to the saying, "what goes around, comes around."

Children in our society are abused, starved, tortured, neglected and murdered every day. These children are every bit as innocent and deserving as those we mourn, yet we fail miserably to protect and value them.

There is an inconsistency in our intense grief over the handful of unfortunate children in Oklahoma and in the way we fail to meet the basic needs of so many of our nation's youngest and most helpless citizens.

Our laws routinely protect the rights of abusive adults at the expense of these "victims," and fathers often shirk their financial obligation to their own children.

We have allowed violence to become glorified and commonplace, and we have allowed deadly weapons to be easily accessible to virtually anyone, even children. If we fail to value our children, a society's greatest asset and its future, then we do not value ourselves and our way of life. Such a society cannot endure.

Our moral outrage over prolonged and extreme suffering should be equal to or even greater than our outrage over premature instant (or near instant) death. Both are senseless, unnecessary, and inhumane. We must begin to see and face reality, to put things in their proper perspective and get our priorities in order, and to live morally responsible lives — and we must demand and expect the same from government and our elected officials.

Points of View

America's changes start at grass roots level

It seems that no sooner than someone says, "Things just can't get any worse," some new crisis occurs to shock the public into a new level of awareness of just how out of control and unpredictable the crisis in America has become.

Personal experience at a professional level compelled me to write an essay titled "The Secret Sabotage Inside of Black America," which was copyrighted, earlier this year.

The document concludes with a model offered as an alternative to the destruction in black America as well as in mainstream America.

I named this radical solution to our growing crisis The Master Builders Roll-Call For Social Accountability, of which this editorial is the first official public exposure.

The plan calls for a public roll call of the nation's governors, county administrators and city mayors. The goal is to create standardized goals and systems of social accountability across America.

Cities should be divided into districts, precincts or areas. Then, their efforts to develop the community should be highly publicized.

The theory here is that if Detroit is in highly publicized competition with Grand Rapids to organize its citizens, including prisoners and ex-offenders as well as leaders and average citizens, we will shape the culture of consciousness for safety, unity and welfare across populations.

Guest Columnist

Luke Lampkin

■ Cities should be divided into districts, precincts or areas.

The plan could change America's approach to crisis management and social development by using strategies now used to promote sports and market goods and services.

The plan calls for communitywide and nationwide motivational campaigns of standardized social participation and collaboration to restore community competence, confidence and credibility in America to rich and poor communities.

It would also provide for a structure to organize, research, and manage social patterns of individual and group behavior and organize volunteer systems of community management in cooperation with government agencies at local, state and national levels.

We may reverse the cycles of social disorganization, destruction and crisis at the point that we invest the same levels of planning, effort and enthusiasm that is invested in political campaigns and athletic promotions. But probably not a minute sooner.

Legislators right in seeking to cap suit damages

Sh-h-h-h. Don't give Geoffrey Fieger this information. It would spoil his dreams and shock him into a numerical reality.

Fieger is a Southfield trial lawyer who makes a living suing doctors and manufacturers who allegedly injure his clients. That kind of law is called "tort." There is a big movement, nationally and in Michigan, to reform tort law. Naturally, Fieger is against it and professes not to understand the opposition.

The reformers never have proposed that the injured shouldn't be compensated for actual injuries. Those are known as "economic" damages. They include medical treatment, wheelchairs, lost wages and the like. They are noncontroversial.

The controversy is over "non-economic" damages, known as pain and suffering. A state Senate bill would limit P&S damages to $280,000 in police chase cases. Horrors, says Fieger, chanting the trial lawyer's litany: "Let the jury decide." He goes on to say it's just the insurance companies, not the city or the business or the professional person who must pay.

To test that proposition, let us take a simple but realistic case from the real world. Let's say you and I and eight others are merchants of Venice, and each owns a caravel, a total of 10. We send those caravels on trading expeditions to Spain and the Middle East, but Mediterranean pirates get one in 10.

So we decide to share the risk. Each caravel is worth 10,000 lira, and one won't return. If we each pay a "premium" of 1,000 lira, we have a reserve of 10,000 lira. The unlucky entrepreneur who loses a ship to pirates collects.

Now let's let the plot thicken. Suppose one shipper says his caravel had 30,000 or 50,000 or 100,000 lira worth of cargo. We have only 10,000 in the pot. The shipper kicks and screams and moans and demands 100,000 lira. The doge's jury says the rest of us must pay. But it's the last time we'll do business with that whiner.

Non-economic damages, or pain and suffering, are much like that. How do we calculate our premiums when we have no advance idea what the damages will be?

That's how insurance works. To calculate each insured's premium, we must have some calculable idea of what the loss might be. It's this concept Fieger professes to be unable to understand, repeatedly and at length, when he hassled the Senate Judiciary Committee last week.

Tim Richard

■ The controversy is over "non-economic" damages, known as pain and suffering. A state Senate bill would limit P&S damages to $280,000 in police chase cases. Horrors, says Fieger, chanting the trial lawyer's litany: 'Let the jury decide.'

It's a convenient misunderstanding because plaintiffs' lawyers who work on a contingency typically collect one-third of the jury award. (In fairness, I must report Fieger said, "I don't do it for the money any more. I do it because it's right." Yeah, sure.)

Remember, the question isn't calculating economic damages. It's calculating "pain and suffering."

Some folks are stoic about pain and suffering. They'll force a smile and pretend it doesn't hurt. They may go off in a corner and bear their wounds quietly, like our poodle who avoided us for two days after he'd suffered a gash in the side of his neck.

Other folks make an operatic production out of it. They can emit melancholy wails that will rip your heartstrings. I recollect a drug addict, a veritable bum and drag on the public exchequer, a man who had forsaken his relatives. When he died, relatives emerged from the woodwork demanding tens of millions of dollars for the loss of the dear, dear departed.

Should pain and suffering be judged, as Fieger would have it, by a jury listening to the sighs and moans of the injured or the survivors? Juries don't calculate actuarial tables. They don't tally how many $7 million sobs, $5 million sobs and $250,000 sobs they will hear in a year. They determine one case at a time. Juries can't judge pain and suffering.

Our lawmakers are moving in the right direction when they say, hey, there's got to be a monetary cap on what a jury calls "pain and suffering."

But don't tell that to Geoffrey Fieger. He doesn't understand these things, by his own admission, and doesn't want to.

Fund state's universities using policy, not politics

One annual spring ritual in Michigan is the squabble over how the $1.3 billion budget for higher education gets doled out among the state's 15 public universities.

With no coherent state policy driving appropriations decisions, the process has become the single most totally parochial donnybrook in Lansing. Legislators pick partisan sides. Those representing Lansing favor Michigan State University, and those from Ann Arbor push the University of Michigan. Or Spartan alums square off against Wayne State graduates.

But over the past decade or so, a kind of tacit gentlemen's agreement has emerged that put at least the Big Three — U-M, MSU and WSU — at rough parity. If U-M got a 4-percent increase, so too would MSU and WSU.

This year, however, Gov. John Engler surprised everybody by proposing a budget with additional special appropriations of $10.3 million for MSU, $4.2 million for Western Michigan University and $1 million for Grand Valley State University. The net effect was to pick three winners (each receiving around a 6-percent increase) and 12 losers (each receiving around 3 percent, below the cost of inflation).

Right away, talk erupted of special deals and political deck-stacking. Gov. Engler was intimately involved in picking new MSU President Peter McPherson. Rep. Don Gilmer, who will be a member of the all-powerful conference committee on higher education appropriations, is from Augusta, near WMU's campus in Kalamazoo. And Grand Valley, located near Grand Rapids, benefited from the general west-side-of-the-state tilt of the Engler Administration.

A period of ferocious — even by higher education appropriations standards — lobbying ensued. Led by Sen. John Schwarz, a physician and alum of both U-M and WSU, and chair of the Senate Appropriations subcommittee on higher ed, a compromise proposal emerged last week that would give all universities general increases of 6 percent while maintaining the special outlays for the three winners.

State revenue projections will come out next Monday. Senate and House leaders will meet with Engler in the middle of next week to set targets for final appropriations.

What is to be made out of all this hullabaloo? Plainly, Michigan needs a policy-driven way to allocate funds to higher education. Political arm-twisting is hardly a sensible basis for supporting the great universities on which much of our economic future rests.

Philip Power

The basis can be found in the report of the Commission on the Future of Higher Education in Michigan, published in 1984. This bipartisan panel, which included former MSU President John Hannah, unanimously recommended a funding system based on twin facts:

■ Naturally, the roles and missions of Michigan's universities differ. Research universities do not pretend to do the same thing as regional state colleges.

■ So, too, do costs per student. It does cost much more to educate a doctor at U-M than it does to train a lab technician at Oakland Community College or Schoolcraft College.

The brilliance of the commission's report was to suggest that Michigan's funding targets for each type of university be set by examining how other states support their peer institutions — that is, those with similar roles and missions.

If, for example, other states support their regional colleges at a level of $X per student, this should become a target for state funding in Michigan.

You don't need a Ph.D. in rocket science to realize that once the current funding donnybrook is over, Michigan should adopt a rational system for supporting higher education based on the commission's model.

This time travel destination would be of great interest to Jean, seeing as how she's Livonia's League of Women Voters presiding officer. Jean also told me 1920 is the birthday of the league.

After I spoke with Jean, I looked up suffrage in the dictionary because it's a word that puzzled me. I knew it had to do with voting rights — but could this word suffrage be related to suffer? I mulled it over a bit, then looked it up. Turns out that I was all mixed up. The term suffrage has nothing to do with suffer. The word actually has its origin in medieval Latin where it meant vote, support and prayer. Now that makes more sense.

At any rate, suffrage and voting are significant to Jean's organization. And the organization is significant to Jean's life.

Now I'll admit this to you, but I couldn't to Jean (not when I was talking directly to her anyway), I am one who, up until now, has taken my voting privilege for granted. That's not to say I haven't been enthusiastic about it, I have. I get that butterfly, excited feeling every time I pull the lever to shut the curtain behind me in the voting booth. I know that here I have a voice. And my voice has to be heard; it's the law. No rich guy, or bully, or madman can shout me down in here. I get listened to in this voting booth.

And in 10 years when Carmen, my daughter, is old enough, she'll get listened to, too. And my Mom, who was born in the year of women's suffrage, has always been listened to. And she's one of the quietest, most reserved people I know. Yet her voice always gets through. And that's a neat thing. So for the three of us, three female representatives of three different generations, voting is, and always was, our right.

But then I got to thinking about my grandmother's generation. My own grandmother was a 32-year-old married lady with three children when women won the right to vote in 1920.

Before that time, on voting day, Grandpa would drop whatever he was doing, comb his hair, and walk to the polling place while Grandma stayed home to finish making the pie for dessert that night. Grandpa, while waiting in the polling place line, would exchange greetings with neighbors and friends and other shopkeepers, and maybe get a chance to look over the headlines in the morning paper. Grandma, in the mean time, would be home slicing peaches and measuring and sifting cups of flour.

The League of Women Voters had a lot to do with changing all that. The members of the league back then advocated and fought for women's suffrage. And now, 75 years later, the work of the league continues. In its earliest years, it focused on educating and informing these newest voters. Today, the focus is to provide voters, all voters — men and women alike — with solid, honest information on the issues and the candidates.

The league, Jean tells me, sponsors events which help voters become better informed. It hosts question and answer forums where candidates go before the general public and address the issues. It conducts studies regarding education, health care, children, etc. And when the studies have been completed, the league comes out with formal statements supporting or opposing specific legislation.

Fortunately, the business of the league is no longer focusing on women sifting flour because they've been forbidden the vote. The League's business, if you will, now focuses on the issues and candidates, so that women and men see them more clearly. Because of the league's work, we're all better able to make informed choices inside the curtained booth.

As president of the League of Women Voters, Jean invites you to join up. You must be a U.S. citizen and at least 18 years old. For more information, call (313) 421-4420.

CATCH THE HEATWAVE AT MERCY

Martha Reeves, who was recently inducted to the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame for her contributions to Motown, including "Dancing in the Streets," now has a scholarship to her name.

Reeves will be performing at Mercy High School on May 21 to help raise money for the newly established "Martha Reeves Scholarship Fund for tuition assistance, and instrumental music." All concert proceeds will go to the fund.

Those who purchase $50 patron tickets will get the best seats in the house. They'll also be invited to a champagne and appetizer afterglow where they can meet Reeves and the other stars of the show.

"Martha Reeves is doing this to help the school. She's not doing it for money," said Roberta Campion choreographer for the school's singing and dancing ensemble the Mercyaires, which is open to juniors and seniors by audition only. "A lot of people in the community think that all the kids who go to Mercy are rich, but some parents work two jobs to send their kids to school here. The scholarship fund will help them."

Reeves and Mercy High School, which is celebrating its 50th anniversary this year, got acquainted in February during the "Golden Oldies" auction.

"The Mercyaires do a Motown medley that begins with 'Heat Wave' and ends with 'Dancing in the Streets,' which are both Martha Reeves tunes," said Campion who is also alumni relations director. "So we asked her to be honorary chairman of our auction. She attended, saw the girls performing on stage, grabbed a microphone, and joined them. Everyone loved it.

"Our music department chairman, Larry Teevens, who also directs the Mercyaires, called her, and asked if she would be willing to do a benefit concert for tuition scholarships, and she said 'yes.'"

After graduating from Northeastern High school in Detroit, Reeves joined several girl groups. William Stevenson of "Hitsville, USA" approached her and suggested she come to work for him. That led to a meeting with Barry Gordy, and the rest is Motown history.

She'll be performing at Mercy High School with her sisters, the Vandellas.

Also on the program are the Mercyaires, the Honorable Myron H. Wahls and his jazz trio, and "Dr. Beans" Bowles who will direct the 15-piece "Big Band" New Greystone Jazz Orchestra.

By day, Wahls is a Court of Appeals Judge in Detroit, in his free-time he plays piano and contemporary jazz standards, including "Georgia" with a jazz trio. Wahls also performs regularly with jazz great Lionel Hampton.

Martha and the Vandella's will be performing in the second half of the program. The grand finale, of course, will be her rock and roll classic, "Dancing in the Streets."

Reeves and her sisters visited Mercy High School twice to rehearse with the Mercyaires for the grand finale, a musical salute to Mercy's 50th anniversary, that will involve all of the groups performing in the show.

'Opera great stuff' for local singers

SPECIAL WRITER

The whole world is a stage for Michael Parr of Livonia, and Parker Plague of Canton, as they step into their costumes for Michigan Opera Theatre's enormous production of the Giacomo Puccini favorite "Tosca."

An Allstate claims processor by day, Parr, who plays a priest in "Tosca," has found himself in "good hands" with the Michigan Opera Theatre chorus as he prepares for an opera career.

"Opera is great stuff," said Parr, 25, about this grandiose "Tosca."

A graduate of Albion College, with degrees in business and math, Parr said he got hooked on opera in a sophomore music appreciation course. Now, nothing is par for the course. The tenor, the youngest of three brothers, is single and flexes his time between working, studying, and singing.

Last week, he ran 12 miles in a March of Dimes marathon before singing in MOT's three-hour-long production of "Don Giovanni."

"It gets busy, but I enjoy it," said Parr, a 1988 graduate of Churchill High School in Livonia. He studies voice with former Metropolitan Opera star George Shirley.

"Hopefully, I can be as successful of he has been," said Parr.

Parker Plague, a fourth grader at Walker Elementary School in Canton is also cast in "Tosca," the story of a passionate opera diva whose love and life are destroyed through the crafty actions of the evil chief of police in Napoleonic Italy.

The theater has become like a classroom to him. He's learning about Vietnam while appearing in "Hang the Moon" at the Purple Rose Theater in Chelsea, and Italian history in MOT's "Tosca." He's also appearing in a Greek tragedy "The Thebans," at the Hilberry Theatre in Detroit.

"I am just a normal kids," said Plague. That's an understatment. Even though he's currently involved in three shows, Plague maintains an A average and does his homework between scenes. For "Tosca," he studied Italian history and learned how to sing "Te Deums."

As a member of the children's chorus, Plague finds himself in the middle of the recreation of the tragedy, learning about the evils of Rome's horror house "Castel Sant'Angelo." Everything is in Italian and Plague knows every detail of the complicated plot.

"Now, this is gross," said Plague describing how the infamous chief of police propositions the tempestuous Tosca in exchange for her lover's life.

"Singing in Italian is easy, once you get the hang of it," said Plague.

This is the first time he has sung in an Italian opera, but not his first time performing with a live pit orchestra. Plague has appeared at the Fisher Theatre in "King and I," and with the Dearborn Players Guild in "Oliver."

"I can't help singing the music all the time. It is in my mind and is subconscious," said Plague.

Plague is not without friends and family on the Masonic Temple stage. His voice teacher Joseph Pokorski of Rochester Hills is the Act III jailer and his father, Kerry Plague, is a supra.

Plague hates to be asked what he will be when he grows up. Perhaps that is because he is so grown up already.

Ukrainian-born soprano Maria Guleghina makes her MOT debut in the title of role of Floria Tosca. Other principal parts are played by Richard di Renzi (Cavaradossi), Richard Cowan (Baron Scarpia), Donald Conrad Hartman, Scott Piper and Lawrence Formosa. "Tosca" is directed by Harry Silverstein. Music director is Steven Mercurio.

Mary Jane Doerr of Troy is a full-time teacher and freelance writer who specializes in opera and musical theater.

BY BOB WEIBEL
STAFF WRITER

Have your theater experiences been somewhat tedious lately? Perhaps you should take in Standing Room Only's "Veronica's Room." Playwright Ira Levin's psychological thriller has incest, terror, murder and more. His characters range from the young and innocent to aging psychopaths.

Director, Genevieve Terry's cast does a credible job in most respects with the dramatic situations. However, there are times when an ambiguous pause or a chilling glance would add to the suspense. And a greater variety of speech patterns would give the performers a less rehearsed quality.

"Veronica's Room" transports the audience into a Rod Sterling "Twilight Zone" with Norman Bates characters from "Psycho." Indeed, the setting is a nicely designed Victorian room — with the furnishings ominously draped in white sheets. Death is not far away. The time is 1973.

Margaret Gilkes and Lynch R. Travis play a middle-aged couple who at first appear to be rather ordinary caretakers for the home. Gilkes is excellent from beginning to end. First with a homey friendliness and thick Boston accent, then as a demented killer. Travis, likewise effects a good character transition.

Elizabeth Racer and John Alwardt make a handsome young couple, who on their second date, meet the middle-aged folks in a restaurant. What appears to be a series of casual meetings turn out to be a ghastly plan to harvest another murder victim.

As the couple remove the sheets, they explain how Veronica died of tuberculousis. They want the young woman to pretend she is Veronica — and spend a few minutes with a sister who has cancer.

The young man is suspicious. The young woman is more adventurous. She agrees to bring a little joy into a dying woman's life — and thus is trapped in a web of terror. The spider (make that spiders) strike to satisfy their tortured souls.

The kindly, middle-aged couple turn into harsh, mean people. They lock the young woman in the room — claim that they are her parents — and that her name is Veronica — and the time is 1935, not 1973. She is being punished for killing her sister who discovered Veronica's incestuous relationship with a brother.

For those who will be attending the show, it wouldn't be fair to give away the ending. Suffice it to say that one bizarre relevation after another cascades into a nightmare for one and all. It's a plot you won't soon forget.

Bob Weibel of Westland is a freelance writer, who has spent more than 25 years in community theater as a director, designer and performer.

'Panther' rewrites history, but retains message

TICKETS PLEASE

JOHN MONAGHAN

It all starts with a traffic light. After another child is run down at a busy intersection, the primarily black Oakland, Calif., neighborhood takes its protest to the streets in the form of a candlelight vigil.

The police brutality that follows only encourages the newly formed Black Panther Party for Self Defense to turn up the heat. Taking their cue from the recently murdered Malcolm X to gain respect "by any means necessary," they start to carry guns.

While there has been considerable controversy about the historical accuracy of the film, Mario Van Peebles' "Panther" does capture the spirit of 1967. Much like the movement he chronicles, the young director strays from his original aims but not without successes.

One of these is the feeling of solidarity the film maintains, from stirring meetings at cluttered storefront offices to the historic march into the State Legislature building past an already befuddled Ronald Reagan.

These are heady times for the Panthers as women join, chapters form in other cities, and average Joes want to do their part. Some want to carry guns, others think they can pick up women. Most, however, want to remedy what they see as 400 years of oppression from "The Man."

Bobby Seale and Huey Newton, founders of the Party, remain central to the film. Though Seale says that interaction between he and Newton (who died in 1989) was limited in the early days, the film paints them as inseparable, a leftwing Lennon and McCartney.

REVIEW

Dividing these charismatic leaders was key to the police, and later the FBI, who saw the Panthers' militant activities as a threat to American policy in Vietnam. Newton's arrest after a shootout with police resulted in a "Free Huey" campaign that only made the Panthers' aims more visible.

Courtney Vance and Marcus Chong are quite good as Seale and Newton, but they're undermined time and again by the often preachy script by the director's father Melvin.

The elder Van Peebles is still best-known for directing and starring in the 1973 cult film "Sweet Sweetback's Baadasssss Song."

The super-charged story of a black man on the run from police brutality remains on Variety's list of top moneymakers but continues to confuse viewers with its message.

Son Mario ("New Jack City," "Posse") also lacks clarity, relying too heavily on MTV-style quick cuts and different film stocks a la Oliver Stone and "JFK." The camera never stands still long enough for us to savor any of the details or its minor characters, who don't have enough personality outside of the ranks.

Like Oliver Stone, the Van Peebles have developed their own conspiracy theory. The movie purports that widespread drug trafficking started in Oakland, perpetrated by the government as a way of "neutralizing" the African American population.

While Seale is right to call the filmmakers on revisionism, its important to remember that his last appearance on the scene was to sell a cookbook. He and the other now-graying Panthers should at least give the Van Peebles credit for keeping their message alive.

Redford shows restored 'My Fair Lady'

PREVIEW

The fully restored, "My Fair Lady," winner of eight Academy Awards, will be shown in its original Super Panavision 70mm stereophonic format for the first time in Michigan at the Redford Theatre, 17360 Lahser Road, (north of Grand River, between Six and Seven Mile Roads), 8 p.m. Friday, May 11; 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. Saturday, May 12. Free, supervised parking. Tickets $3.50 at the door; call (313) 537-2560 or (810) 258-5806.

The Redford's original 1928 Barton theater pipe organ will be heard one-half hour preceeding the film, and at intermission on Friday with Tony O'Brien at the console. Gus Bornian will be the organist at the Saturday matinee and evening performances.

Robert A. Harris, perhaps best known for his restoration work on the David Lean epic "Lawrence of Arabia," and James C. Katz, who teamed up with Harris to restore Stanley Kubrick's "Spartacus," were brought in to save "My Fair Lady," winner of the Oscar for Best Picture in 1964.

The original camera negative for "My Fair Lady" was so brittle that it kept tearing during the restoration process. To add to the problem, the three acetate black and white separations used in the Technicolor process had shrunk; producing halos and blurred images on the screen. The six-month restoration cost $600,000 before it was finished.

Once the subject of much consternation, it is now generally known that, Audrey Hepburn's singing voice was dubbed by Marni Nixon (whose singing voice was also dubbed for Natalie Wood in "West Side Story" and for Deborah Kerr in "The King and I"). It is now also known that the singing voice of Jeremy Brett, as Freddy Eynsford-Hill, was similarly dubbed by Bill Shirley.

"Priest" (British — 1995). In this controversial new film, a young priest questions the church's rules of celibacy and sanctity of confession. What starts as an authentic portrait of the modern priesthood quickly turns into a manipulative and one-dimensional plea for tolerance and understanding.

"Funny Bones" (Ireland — 1995). From the director of "Hear My Song," the story of two separated half-brothers, both comedians, who only discover each other in adulthood. Jerry Lewis co-stars.

Are your pets like Gordie?

"Gordy" is a young pig on a mission — to save his family, which has been hauled away from Meadowbrook Farm in the movie by the same name opening this Friday at metro Detroit movie theaters.

In the course of his travels, Gordy meets Jinnie Sue, the "First Little Lady of Country Music." The two become instant friends and Gordy decides to go with Jinnie Sue to the fund-raiser where she is to sing for the governor of Arkansas. During the fund-raiser, Gordy saves the life of the son of a billionaire industrialist Henry Royce. His son, Hanky, falls off the diving board and nearly drowns. But Gordy heroically leaps in and saves his life, and becomes an overnight celebrity.

Kids — write and tell us why your pet is a hero to win four tickets to see "Gordy," and a plush Gordy toy. Six prizes will be awarded. This contest is open to kids age 12 and younger. Deadline to enter is Thursday, May 18.

Thank You — Duran Duran

Whatever credibility Duran Duran re-established (or maybe that's established) after the release of their self-titled album, they have lost with "Thank You" (Capitol). The 13-track CD of all covers is Duran Duran's way of thanking some of their influences — Bob Dylan, Elvis Costello, Lou Reed and The Doors.

Duran Duran's versions of songs like "Lay Lady Lay," "Ball of Confusion" and "Drive By" are stale and stripped of the original versions' emotion. Even with the help of Grand Master Flash and the Furious Five, the lead-off track, "White Lines," pales in comparison to the original. The empty keyboards that lace the over-produced rap song make it tough to take the anti-drug song seriously.

Four fashionable white suburbanites re-recording Public Enemy's "911 Is a Joke" with an acoustic flavor was a joke, all right. The only standout on the album is the title track, originally done by Led Zeppelin, and that's because they stuck with the original flavor of the song.

Thanks, but no thanks.

Duran Duran plays "Planet Fest" at Pine Knob Music Theatre, I-75 and Sashabaw Road, Clarkston, 4 p.m. Wednesday, May 24, with Letters to Cleo, The Verve Pipe, Bush, The Ramones and No Use for a Name. For more information, call (810) 377-0100.

Clumsy — Samiam

Samiam is definitely one of the best bands to come out of the Northern California all-ages punk/club scene. On "Clumsy" (Atlantic), Samiam takes the energy and attack of hardcore and couples it with melody to create something rarely heard in rock music. Lyrically, the songs eloquently describe the lasting personal torment of surviving a painful childhood.

Samiam's personal torment is best described in the minor radio hit "Capsized." The song describes the endless cycle of domestic violence, where the child who is beaten grows to beat his family. The speaker wants to end the cycle but finds it difficult. The singer, Jason Beebout, sings,

The Deterants

Ian Trumbull: vocalist, lead guitarist
Release: "How's My Driving?"

Ian Trumbull's boss at Tower Records in Ann Arbor is either a really nice guy or doesn't exactly know what his employees are up to when he's not around. Whatever Trumbull is supposed to be doing (pricing discs, stocking shelves), he isn't; he's on the phone, presumably on the clock, discussing the recent plight of his band, Ann Arbor favorites The Deterants.

"We had a bad month," he said recently with a laugh. In March, various automotive troubles began seriously cramping the band's style. Then rhythm guitarist/singer Jim Chatfield fractured his skull.

"It's something to talk about if you want to put any really depressing news in there," Trumbull said. "It was really bad. He wasn't home for a month, and we basically couldn't do anything."

With Chatfield finally healed and the band practicing again, the attention is back on getting the all-important record deal. The Deterants' self-financed second album — "How's My Driving?" — has been out about seven months, full of what Trumbull calls "the Midwest, punk rock, early '80s kind of thing" similarly found in Buffalo Tom and the Replacements. The Deterants' hopes are hinging on its success.

"We're basically using this disc as a tool to get signed," Trumbull said. "We don't have anyone specifically working on it, just whoever has the time, usually me."

Although "How's My Driving?" has just hatched, the Deterants are already looking to record again.

"We've got a bunch of material almost ready and a bunch more we're working on," Trumbull said. "We're trying to find a label that will support putting out something else. These first (releases) we're self-funded by the band. Hopefully, the next one won't be."

Blue Dog's Trajano plays by rules

Drummer Alex Trajano is use to the freedom of jazz and his band Blue Dog. But for "The Lovely Liebowitz Sisters," now playing at the Gem Theatre in Detroit, he's learning a whole new discipline.

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Drummer Alex Trajano (pronounced Tra-ha-no) doesn't like to follow rules.

The Troy resident's avant-garde jazz/rock band Blue Dog thrives on spontaneity while melding hard-driving guitar, chaotic horns and modern jazz sounds.

"When I'm playing in Blue Dog, there is a discipline involved there but there's no structure," he said. "When I'm playing with Blue Dog, I'm concentrating on the moment. I'm concentrating on what's happening around me, where it's going to go and development and everything."

His look mirrors his tastes in music. Artsy black wire glasses encircle his eyes. His jet-black bobbed hair forms a frame around his face. An earring decorates each ear.

So it may come as a surprise to see Trajano nestled within the bamboo hut, palm trees and erupting volcano of the "The Lovely Liebowitz Sisters" colorful "Krakatoa Lounge" at Detroit's Gem Theatre. Instead of being a calm, cool, collective Blue Dog, he has joined Terry Hanson and Dearborn's John Dunn to provide the music as "Bobby Argyle and His Sox" for the breathlessly funny, audience participation-based review.

For this gig, it's either follow the rules or don't get paid. Eight gigs a week he changes his look to fit in with the 1940s, World War II-era storyline. Instead of a black coat and earrings, he wears dress pants and an argyle sweater. He had to make another sacrifice.

"I had to get my hair cut," the affable Trajano said. "It wasn't long, but it was long enough. I didn't have to get my hair cut it was long and kind of scraggly but they said I could grease it back inward, or pin it, or wear a beret or something.

"Asian hair is really stubborn, I've tried it, it doesn't work."

His Asian heritage adds a touch of irony to the 1987 Troy High School graduate's latest gig. "The Lovely Liebowitz Sisters" is a World War II-era musical review set in Cleveland's Majestic Amazon Hotel and stars Cheryl Hawker as the flirtatious "Patty," Liz Gray as the baton-twirling "Maxine," and Jane Allen as the all-together oldest sister "LaVonne."

Throughout the show, the three "pleasantly plump" sisters, lead by the gold-toothed emcee "Yannis" (John Tsafoyannis), pay tribute to the "boys overseas" and pray for their safe return.

The average patron in Cleveland in 1945 seeing a patriotic show like "The Lovely Liebowitz Sisters" probably wouldn't be receptive of an off-an entertainer. But Trajano, who is Philippino, takes it all in stride.

"It's so funny because they're talking about the boys overseas and plus it's 1945 in Cleveland."

Instead of cuts off Blue Dog's CD "What Is Anything" (Knitting Factory Works), his set-list includes standards like "In the Mood," "Beer Barrel Polka," "Chiquita Banana," "Cuban Pete," and "God Bless America."

New experience

Even though he's not too keen about his argyle sweater, the cheerful, horribly unpretentious Trajano chalks it up to experience.

"It's cool for the experience of doing it," he said. "I've never done something like this before. It's a gig. I'm doing it because I can."

Playing this kind of music has introduced Trajano a whole new discipline.

"Playing stuff from the 1940s, 1945, that tells you you have to understand what the drummers in 1945 were doing so it sounds authentic," he said. "That's what I mean about discipline. I can't do what I do in Blue Dog in this show. First of all I'd get fired, and second of all it wouldn't sound right. That's not what the gig calls for."

"I'm doing what I'm not used to doing which is doing what I'm told basically."

Trajano was initially attracted to the drums after hearing the song "The Little Drummer Boy." His instruments of choice were pots, pans and hampers until the elementary school when he made his first attempt at learning the drums.

"I started playing when I was in fifth grade, (but) I couldn't carry the snare drums to school because it was too heavy. Then I tried to play trumpet, which was a disaster. Then when I was in the sixth grade I started playing drums again," he said.

He started taking formal lessons at age 17. Having decided to make music his career, he attended Wayne State University, a school known for its jazz program. Before graduating with a bachelor's degree in music, he honed his skills performing with Rosemary Clooney, Rick Margitza, Jon Faddis and Gregg Bisonette. A three-time performer at the Montreaux Jazz Festival in Detroit, he also traveled to Montreaux, Switzerland, to perform at their festival in 1991.

An impressive resume, indeed, but what struck him the most in college was that he could make a living off of his craft. To Trajano, money comes second.

Sole motivation

"That's not my sole motivation for playing drums, however. (My motivation) is more in line with what Blue Dog's doing and been doing. We've made records," he said. "We've toured. We've gone to Europe. That kind of thing is why I started playing music when I as a kid.

"I never knew as a kid that you could make money playing music. Then when I went to school that was the whole motivation for teaching you was to say if you do this this and this you can make money playing music."

The influential, musically schizophrenic label Knitting Factory Works quickly scooped up the band after receiving their demo. The tour for "What Is Anything" took them to festivals around the world.

Now settled at home Blue Dog is busy recording their next record for an as-of-yet-undetermined label in between Trajano's shows and Blue Dog gigs.

In the meantime, he'll keep on being a Sox until "The Lovely Liebowitz Sisters" ends at the Gem.

"The Lovely Liebowitz Sisters" runs at the Gem Theatre, 58 E. Columbia, Detroit, runs through June 25. Ticket prices are $14.50 for 2 p.m. Wednesday shows; $21.50 for 7:30 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday shows, and 2 p.m. Sundays; $16.50 for 6 p.m. Sundays; and $26.50 for 7:30 p.m. Fridays and 5 and 9 p.m. Saturdays. Discounts are offered for groups of 12 or more, and for full-time college students with a valid I.D. This weekend, the Gem is running a Mother's Day special where patrons who buy one ticket can bring mom free. For more information, call (313) 963-9800.

White Zombie puts 'more' into latest album and tour

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Less is more, the old saying goes. But in White Zombie's case, their latest album is just "more."

"It's true; everything we did on the last record is on this record but it's just more of everything — more sampling, more heavier, more of a groove, more production," bassist Sean Yseult said.

And more words in the title — "Astro-Creep: 2000 Songs of Love, Destruction and Other Synthetic Delusions of the Electric Head" — as opposed to 1992's platinum-selling "La Sexorcisto: Devil Music Vol. One."

Soaring faster than the Millennium Falcon, "Electric Head Part 1 (The Agony)" kicks off the super-charged 11-track album. Singer Rob Zombie's dark and sometimes nightmarish vocals are more polished and fluid. Former Testament drummer John Tempesta is now on hand to clang the industrial-sounding, machine gun drums. Guitarist J. and Yseult round out the charismatic rhythm section.

The "more" theory, Yseult said, will carry over into their live show which hits the State Fair Coliseum in Detroit Sunday, May 21.

"It's really out of control," Yseult said. "We're spending every dime we have. We're building a big set. You gotta remember, last time we were on the road, we were getting bigger and playing bigger places. We never had time to stop and build a set or do anything."

Yseult talked about the tour while packing up her belongings to put in storage before she and White Zombie hit the road for a year. She calls this tour "short and sweet" compared to the non-stop, 2½ year tour they did in support of "La Sexorcisto."

"We must have come to Detroit 200 times," she said. "At Harpo's they were calling us the house band."

As their fan base grew over the 2½ years, so did confidence in Yseult, one of the few women in the hard rock scene.

"I've had a lot of girls say, 'I'm gonna go learn to play bass now,'" said Yseult, who was only 19 when she picked up the bass and formed White Zombie with then boyfriend Rob Zombie in 1985. "It's totally cool, especially because half of them are like 15 or younger. They're probably going to be pretty damn good by the time they get their band rolling."

White Zombie: Plays the State Fair Coliseum May 21 in support of "Astro-Creep: 2000, Songs of Love, Destruction and Other Synthetic Delusions of the Electric Head."

Cedar Point celebrating 125th anniversary

Cedar Point, rated the best amusement park in the world, will open for its 125th season on Saturday, May 13, and will be open daily through Labor Day, Sept. 4.

Opened in 1870, the Sandusky, Ohio, amusement park/resort is the third oldest in the United States and will introduce a record $17 million in improvements during its milestone anniversary season.

On opening day, Miss Ohio, Lea Mack, will sing the national anthem and the National Amusement Park Historical Association will honor the park with a special award. Festivities will begin 8:30 a.m. at the park's main entrance.

Cedar Point's gates will open to the public at 9 a.m. Closing times vary throughout the summer. For more information, call (419) 627-2350. Cedar Point will reopen for Bonus Weekends on Sept. 10, 16, 17, 23, 24, 30, and Oct. 1 from noon to 8 p.m. The park will be closed to the public on Saturday, Sept. 9.

"For the past 125 years, opening day at Cedar Point has marked the unofficial start of summer," said Don Miears, executive vice president and general manager of Cedar Point. "It's a grand tradition that we look forward to all winter."

Improvements to Cedar Point, already home to 55 rides, including a world-record collection of 11 roller coasters, will be Breakers East, a $10 million wing of accommodations at the Hotel Breakers and a major expansion at Soak City water park. The watery attractions at Soak City will open on Saturday, May 27, while Breakers East will officially open on Thursday, June 1.

Within the amusement park, guests will be wowed by the "Cedar Point Summer Spectacular," a high-tech laser, light and sound show. Presented by Meijer, Inc., and Pepsi. The multi-image show will run nightly Friday, May 26 through Sunday, Aug. 27, and Friday through Sunday, Sept. 1-3.

Thrill-seekers will dare to ride Raptor, the $12 million inverted roller coaster that opened last summer or challenge the Magnum XL-200, one of the world's tallest, fastest and steepest roller coasters with a 205-foot-tall first hill.

At Lusty Lil's Palace, "Showstoppers" will have guests kicking up their heels to classic show tunes, while "Rockin' Country" will offer foot-stomping fun at the Red Garter Saloon. On-screen at the Cedar Point Cinema, containing one of the Cedar Point largest indoor movie screens in the world, the featured IMAX film will be "Flight of the Aquanaut," an immersing tale of the deep sea and its inhabitants. To learn more about marine-life and its environment, guests will also be able to visit Oceana, where four Atlantic bottle-nosed dolphins will perform two different shows daily in a 1,600-seat stadium overlooking Lake Erie.

Cedar Point has plenty for young guests, too. Children will be able to experience the antics of the Berenstain Bears at Berenstain Bear Country, an indoor and outdoor fantasyland filled with fun and educational activities. At Kiddy Kingdom, a medieval-themed play area, more than a dozen kid-sized rides will be ready for action, including 4 by 4 trucks, Sir Bumpalot's Boats and a whirling antique Dentzel carousel.

Overnighters can take advantage of early-season rates at the Hotel Breakers, Sandcastle Suites Hotel and Camper Village RV campground. Two-night packages are available for all three facilities. The Cedar Point Marina also has overnight slips available for guests arriving by boat.

Just bring along a copy of the personals. During the time it took for a coffee break, I had placed my ad and recorded a voice greeting that described me perfectly. I know what it's like being busy, not having the time— or desire— to go out to the bars every night. But this? Well, take my word for it, this works.

"I always said I wouldn't be that way . . . I feel his hand/and I know/ I'm damned . . . This is the last time I treat you like that."

The melody keeps the songs running through your mind while the lyrics haunt you with their painful images. Anyone who hears this record — Samiam's fourth release but their first for Atlantic — will definitely be affected by it. "Clumsy" is one of those albums that will rarely leave your stereo or your mind.

— Eric Darling

A Vassar resident, Eric Darling is the former music director of the University of Detroit's radio station.

Wake Up Dreaming — Alex Lumelsky

Simplicity is the key to Alex Lumelsky's debut CD "Wake Up Dreaming." The Ukranian-born, and former Southfield resident, Lumelsky tells it like it is and lets his dry sense of humor show.

In the acoustic song "Lucky" he sings: "I asked, 'Could I stay over?' Your face blushed with uncertainty like you'd just made some big mistake. You led me to your room to view your book collection. I guess by now it's safe to say that all my favorite quotes and legends are still mysteries to me and so that's how I got lucky."

On the rest of the CD, the music mirrors his feelings and provides a good soundtrack to his unpredictable, quavering voice. "Wake Up Dreaming" is a showcase for what Lumelsky can do.

The credits read like a who's who of Detroit alternative music. "Wake Up Dreaming" features guest appearances by fellow singer/songwriter Priscilla Ederle, Mary Grabowski, Spank drummer Nino Dymtryszyn, Sister Seed percussionist Benjamin Ridley Jr., Bermuda Mohawk's Sal D'Agnillo, and Lance Larsen. It was recorded by Ridley at the Boneyard in Warren, and by Adam Druckman at Dream Street Digital in Southfield.

- Christina Fuoco

"Wake Up Dreaming" is available at most independent record stores and through Trampoline Records, P.O. Box 20811, Ferndale, Mich. 48220-0811.

Salem golfers win

Strong performances by Plymouth Salem's top three golfers was the key to subduing Livonia Stevenson in a Western Lakes Activities Association dual meet Monday at Fox Creek in Livonia.

Salem shot 197 to Stevenson's 210 to improve its record to 4-1.

Katie Murinas earned medalist honors with a 46. Katie Collins and Kelly Collins each added 47s, with Theresa Fullerton shooting a 57.

For Stevenson, low shooter was Kelly Kristy with a 49. Jill Van Tiem was next best at 53.

Angell chooses

Julie Angell, a star on both the basketball floor and in the classroom while attending Farmington Hills Mercy, has been accepted to Princeton University, where she plans to both play basketball and earn her degree.

Angell, a 3.9 student from Plymouth, has been a four-year varsity player at Mercy. She has also run track and, this year, is playing soccer for the Marlins.

She led Mercy in scoring and rebounding as a sophomore (9.4 points, 6.3 rebounds per game) and a junior (13 and 6.4), and was the team's top scorer as a senior. She was ranked among the top 40 prospects in the state by both Detroit newspapers, and she leaves Mercy as the team's third-highest scorer in history.

Elite scores 3-1 win

Dominic Vella of Livonia scored two second-half goals Sunday to give the Ann Arbor Elite a 3-1 soccer victory over the Ann Arbor United.

Elite goalkeeper Scott Hauman stopped a penalty kick with the score tied 1-1. David Nordwall scored the first Elite goal.

The Elite will play the Redford Marauders 2 p.m. Sunday for the men's Amateur Cup championship at Pioneer High School (Hollway Field) in Ann Arbor. Admission is $3 for adults, $2 for youths 18 and under.

The Elite, 0-2 in the IRSL, plays the Grand Rapids Explosion 7 p.m. Friday at Hollway. For ticket information call (313) 455-4011.

Chiefs grab favorite's position

■ The annual Mangan Meet always manages to summon one element every year: a contender for the WLAA championship. This season, the girls dual meet between Canton and Salem was actually a preview of the upcoming league championship, since the two of them rate as the conference's elite.

Double wins by Mary Anderson, Olive Ikeh and Nkechi Okwumabua in individual events, combined with three victories in four relays, enabled Plymouth Canton's girls track team to rule, 79⅝-48⅛, at Tuesday's Mangan Meet.

The victory kept the Chiefs unbeaten through five dual meets (3-0 in the Western Lakes Activities Association's Western Conference). Since Salem has been the powerhouse in the WLAA's Lakes Division, it would seem Canton is the heavy favorite to win the WLAA title May 24.

The Chiefs certainly outperformed the Rocks Tuesday. "It was a real big win," said Canton coach George Przygodski. "I think our girls are approaching their potential."

Anderson, just a sophomore, looked it: She won the 100-meter (15.8) and 300-meter (48.3) hurdles. Okwumabua, a freshman, was also impressive, capturing the top spot in the long jump (15-feet, 5¾-inches) and in the 100 (13.4).

Ikeh's wins came in the 200 (26.4) and 400 (59.6).

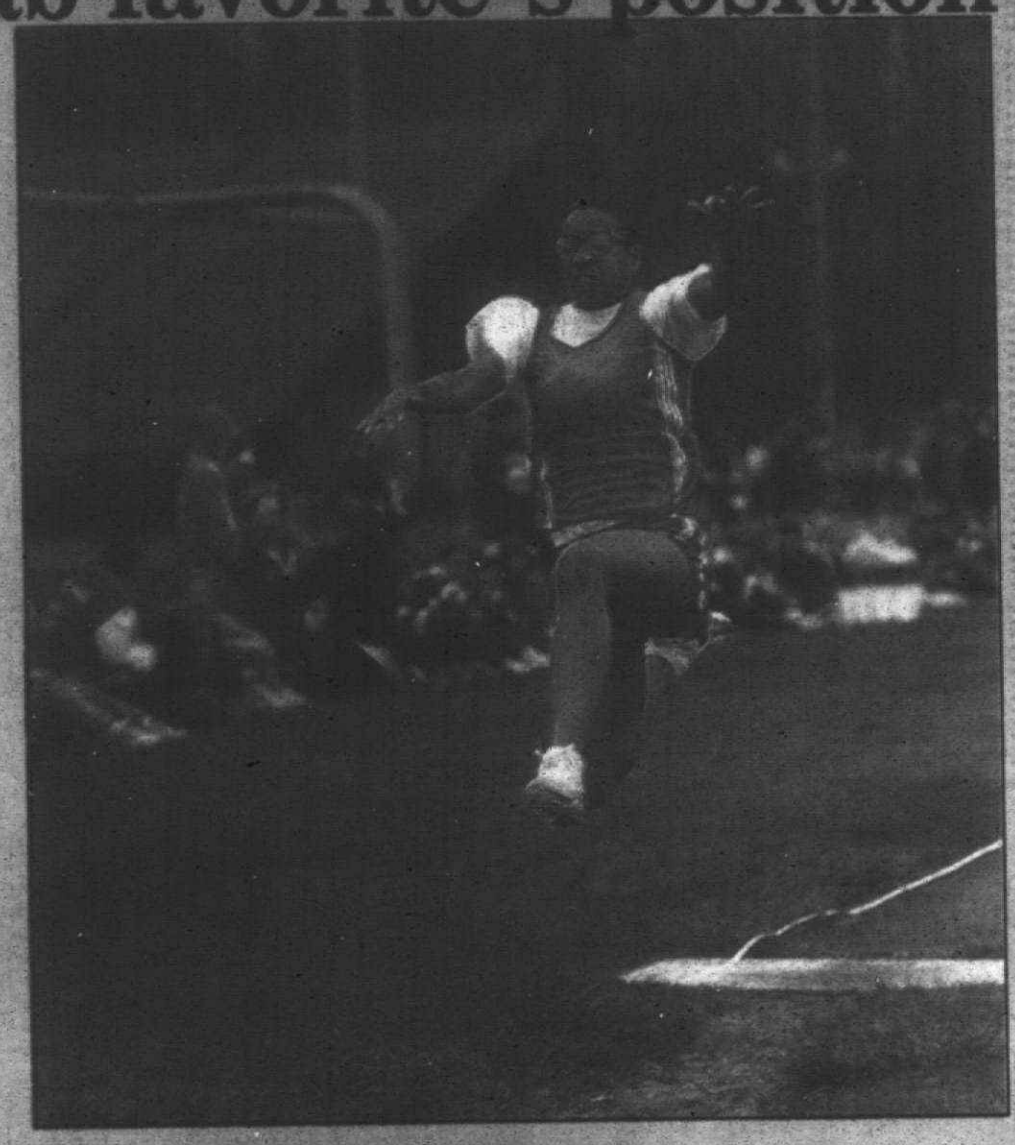

The Rocks were limited to five firsts: Angie Smith in the shot put (34-2½), Nicole Van Hees in the high jump (5-0), Sarah Hamilton in the 800 (2:23.6) and Nicole Bolton in the 1,600 (5:35.2) in individual events, and the 3,200 relay team.

Other individual event winners for Canton were Sara Israel in the discus (99-2) and Becky Wolfrom in the 3,200 (11:55.9).

Salem pulls away to victory over Canton

■ TRACK

The Chiefs were the object of this Salem triumph. The Rocks collected wins in 14 of 16 events, dominating throughout in a 95-33 victory in the annual Mangan Meet Tuesday.

"We finally put a good meet together," said Salem coach Geoff Baker, his team now 5-1 overall in dual meets. "And it was a good time to do it."

Canton might not have agreed. Rocky Johnson, Jason Barylski and Scott Pengelly each won two individual events to pace the Salem triumph: Johnson was first in the shot put (45-feet, 7-inches) and discus (136-9), Barylski won the 100-meters (11.69) and 400 (50.6), and Pengelly was first in the 1,600 (4:31.2) and 3,200 (9:46.0).

Salem also won three of four relays.

Canton's only individual first came in the high jump, courtesy of Jim Chefan (6-0). The Chiefs also were first in the 3,200 relay (8:33.9).

Other individual winners for Salem were Andres Lopez in the long jump (18-10¼), Dirk Schmiedel in the 110 hurdles (15.58), Yu Kobayashi in the 300 hurdles (42.8), Lawrence Nunn in the 200 (23.6) and Andrew McDonald in the 800 (2:01.1).

Madonna frosh pitcher in tune

By C.J. Risak
Staff Writer

No member of the Madonna University softball team could dispute the difficulty the Lady Crusaders had emerging from the six-team Great Lakes Independent Section Tournament last weekend. They were walloped in their first game, then battled back from the loser's bracket to win four straight.

However, what that victory earned them was no cakewalk. Madonna advanced to the Great Lakes Regional, hosted by Indiana University-Purdue University-Indianapolis. The six-team tournament started Wednesday; it is scheduled to conclude Friday.

Madonna opened yesterday against Bethel College. A win would put them against Shawnee State, the region's top seed and the team Madonna eliminated from the tournament last year. A loss would drop them into the loser's bracket of the double-elimination tourney.

Bethel won the National Christian Conference title a week ago; Shawnee State is ranked fifth nationally in the NAIA.

"They're not head-over-heels better than us," said Madonna coach Jerry Abraham, his team now 23-17. "Our pitching is good; our hitting is good."

What is difficult for Abraham to gauge is how his young team will react to the pressure. In last Saturday's back-to-back wins over the College of Mount St. Joseph's, he had six freshmen in the starting lineup.

"If we get on a roll of some sort," said Abraham. "I think we're capable. We can play with any of them."

That showed in the double showdown with St. Joseph's last Saturday. Abraham started freshman Shanna Streng on the mound, even though the day before she'd been rocked by St. Joe's in a 13-2 tournament-opening loss.

Streng came through this time, stopping the visitors on two hits in the first game and keeping the Crusaders in the second game until they could rally to win in the sixth inning. Her performance earned her tournament most valuable player honors.

The regional champion will advance to the NAIA World Series.

For Madonna to be that team, Abraham said, will require better offensive production. "Where we need to pick it up is in the sticks," he said. "We need to hit the ball more consistently.

"I'm optimistic, but I know we have to play our best softball of the season to advance."

That's one reason why the Crusaders played a schedule packed with softball powerhouses all season long — so they'd be ready to go at tournament time.

That'll help. But with a team that's so young, predictions are futile.

SOCCER

Salem, Canton claim easy wins

With Livonia Stevenson's loss to Livonia Churchill Monday, the tournament picture in soccer for the Western Lakes Activities Association has become cloudier than ever.

It all comes down to this: Should Plymouth Canton upset or tie Stevenson Monday, Salem will play Churchill for the WLAA championship (providing the Rocks survive the remainder of their WLAA schedule without a mishap).

Salem kept its hopes alive by trouncing Walled Lake Central 6-1 Monday at Central. The Rocks had a 4-1 advantage at the half and were never threatened. Mari Hoff put in four goals, with Mia Sarkesian and Missy Simons getting one spiece. Sarkesian also had an assist; Kelly Lukasik added three assists and Jodi Coyle had one.

The win lifted Salem's overall record to 10-1-2; the Rocks are 3-0-1 in the WLAA's Lakes Division.

Last Friday at Salem, the Rocks played Troy — which earlier this season was the state's No. 1-ranked team — to a 1-1 tie. "It easily could have finished 5-to-5," said Salem coach Ken Johnson.

The match was scoreless at the half. Salem struck first, getting a goal from Liz Peltier one minute into the second half. Heather Buchanan assisted. Troy tied it seven minutes later.

Jenny Parviainen accounted for three of the Chiefs' goals. Lisa Esper, Melissa Tomei, Melissa Marzoff, Dawn Koontz, Emily Stachera and Amicie Crayton got the others, with Esper picking up two assists and Tomei three. Emilie Meier, Becky Vachow and Jill Rahnert added one assist spiece.

The win boosted Canton's record to 9-3-1 overall, 4-1 in the WLAA's Western Division.

SOFTBALL

Canton regains form with Western sweep

Plymouth Canton kept Walled Lake Western winless in softball Monday, pounding the visiting Warriors twice, 21-7 and 14-0.

Jackie Nicastri pitched all five innings in the opener to collect the win. She allowed four earned runs on seven hits and four walks, striking out four.

"We were hitting the ball," said Canton coach Jim Arnold. "We had been in a slump but the bats came alive. We came out, played real hard and were in the game both mentally and physically."

Shelly Burske's three hits and four RBI led Canton, which improved to 12-8 overall, 5-3 in the Western Lakes Activities Association's Western Division. Jenny Sikora had two hits and four RBI, Kari Jackson added two hits and two RBI, and Amy LaGrow got two hits.

Canton led 11-0 after one inning, 13-0 after two and 21-0 after three.

In the second game, Angela Litwin stopped Western on one hit — a second-inning single. She walked three and struck out one in the five-inning shutout.

Butske's three hits and three RBI led the Chiefs' 12-hit attack. Jillian Gross also had three hits, while Amy Price had two and Sikora banged out a two-run single in Canton's five-run first inning. The score reached 11-0 at the end of three.

Marcis loses 1st; Canton in 1st

Plymouth Salem's senior ace was victimized for four runs on four hits and two walks in four innings of a suspended game against visiting North Farmington Monday. It led into a 14-run barrage by the Raiders in the last two innings and a 16-6 North win.

Marcis slipped to 4-1 with the defeat.

North combined five hits, three walks, a hit batter and an error into a nine-run seventh inning, breaking open a one-run game. Salem's only highlight: Bill Styles, who went 3-for-3 and drove in two of the Rocks' runs.

Salem avenged the suspended game embarrassment by routing the Raiders 15-3 in Monday's second game. Keith Boughner, making his first career start, gathered his first career victory; he surrendered five hits and one walk in six innings, striking out four.

The Rocks pounded North's pitching for 19 hits. Kirk Craggs had four hits and scored two runs, while Kaz Kurisu, Styles and Brad Lear each collected three hits. Lear and Styles each drove in three runs, with Styles scoring three times. Kurisu scored five runs, one on an inside-the-park home run.

Ahmande Grimes chipped in with two hits, two runs scored and three RBI, and Jeff Mackiewicz had a double and three RBI.

Last Saturday, Salem and Canton hosted Adrian and Monroe. The visitors didn't go away happy; Salem swept them, 10-0 over Adrian and 14-4 over Monroe.

Dan Quaine was the winning pitcher against Adrian in a game that was ended by the mercy rule after five innings. Quaine pitched four innings, gave up one hit and four walks, striking out five. Kurisu had a single, a double and an RBI; Styles had two hits and an RBI; and Lear contributed a hit and two RBI. Dave Bol slugged a solo home run.

The game against Monroe was ended after six innings by the mercy rule. Tom Demetsenare was the winning pitcher, his first varsity victory; he went four innings, allowing one run on three hits and three walks, with two strikeouts.

Grimes' grand slam home run in the first inning got Salem rolling. Quaine added a two-run homer, while Styles had a single and three RBI. Kurisu chipped in with a double and two runs scored, while Lear had a single and three runs scored.

The 4-1 stretch left Salem with a 5-1 record in the Western Lakes Activities Association's Lakes Division; the Rocks are 14-4 overall and ranked eighth in the state.

■ Canton 8-1, W.L. Western 2-3: Plymouth Canton's pitching continues to shine, but the bats went silent in the second game of Monday's double-header against Walled Lake Western.

Still, the split put the Chiefs on top of the WLAA's Western Division with a 5-2 record, thanks to Livonia Franklin's sweep of Farmington Hills Harrison. Canton is 13-7 overall.

Canton won the opener against Western on the pitching of Eric Stidham, who gave up one earned run on five hits and two walks in six innings, striking out five. Brian Kovach pitched the last inning without allowing a base runner.

Brian Kwiatkowski and Kevin Kovachevich each had two hits for the Chiefs, with Kwiatkowski driving in a run. Mark Biro had a hit and two RBI, and Kurt Richards added a hit, a run scored and an RBI.

In the second game, Jason Mortiere took the loss, although he pitched well enough to win — allowing two earned runs on five hits and three walks, with five strikeouts, in seven innings. Anthony Pastor was the only hitter on the Chiefs, getting two with one RBI.

Last Saturday, Canton swept a pair of wins from Monroe, 2-1, and Adrian, 4-1. Mark Hazzard was the winner against Monroe, tossing a three-hitter, with one walk and five strikeouts. Brian Dixon had two hits, scored a run and stole two bases. Kovachevich and Biro each had RBI.

In the second game, Jason Pennebaker was the winning pitcher, giving up one run on three hits and three walks, fanning six. Dixon again had two hits, a run scored and two steals; Kovachevich and Kovach each had a hit and an RBI; and Richards added a hit and two RBI.

■ Oakland Christ. 13, PCA 6: Seven runs in its last two at-bats pushed Pontiac Oakland Christian to victory Monday over visiting Plymouth Christian Academy.

Brian Fair was the losing pitcher, going the distance for the Eagles, who are now 2-6 overall and 1-6 in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference. Jon Isensee led PCA's attack with two hits and an RBI, while James Jones chipped in with a hit and two RBI. Both are freshmen.

Last Saturday, PCA split a double-header at Warren Bethesda, winning the opener 12-8 but losing the nightcap 20-2.

In the opener, the Eagles scored 10 runs in the final two innings to pull out the victory.

Donahue named Schoolcraft coach

By C.J. Risak
Staff Writer

Redford Bishop Borgess' loss will be Schoolcraft College's gain.

Glen Donahue, a veteran coach at the high school, junior college and four-year college level, has agreed to become SC's next men's basketball coach.

He replaces Dave Bogataj, who resigned last month.

What SC is getting is a coach with a wealth of experience. A member of the Basketball Coaches Hall of Fame, Donahue coached for 19 years at Highland Park CC ('67-86), posting a 401-205 record and drawing nationwide attention to the school (40-2 record in '84-85) before leaving to rebuild the program at St. Mary's College in '87.

Once again, Donahue's efforts paid dividends. In five years, he built St. Mary's into the best team in the NAIA's District 23, reaching the NAIA national tournament in consecutive seasons ('90-91 and '91-92).

But after the school's best season, the program was dropped in April '92, and Donahue was out of a job.

He found one at Redford Bishop Borgess, where he has coached the past two high school seasons. He also serves as dean of students.

But his heart was always in college-level coaching. "I had a great desire to get back into college coaching," said Donahue.

"I was very interested (in Donahue) for a number of reasons," said Kavanaugh. "He has experience at all levels of coaching: high school, junior college and at a four-year college.

"But what was really important to me was his network. He knows people at all levels, and he should be able to draw kids to Schoolcraft."

That was the biggest problem Bogataj had. Often, when he did have the makings of a good team, players would be lost to academics at the January semester break.

To Donahue, recruiting isn't a necessary evil. "Certainly, it's a main reason I want to get back into college coaching — I like recruiting," he insisted. "I like to build a roster and work with it."

He also knows he'll have to find the right kind of kids. "We have to have serious students from the start," said Donahue. "I'm looking for those kinds of kids, certainly — good students who are well-motivated."

New coach: Glen Donahue, a member of the Basketball Coaches Hall of Fame, will be the new Schoolcraft College men's coach.

Donahue was also under consideration for the Madonna University coaching job, and, he said, although both were attractive positions, he decided to go back to the junior college level, where he enjoyed so much success.

Which is what made him so attractive to Kavanaugh. "More success," the SC athletic director answered when asked what he wanted from his new coach. "We've got a very successful soccer program, and volleyball always does well. We want to bring basketball to the same level."

Crusaders riding a hot streak into post-season tourney

By C.J. Risak
Staff Writer

■ BASEBALL

The last weekend of the regular season was less than hoped for, at least by Madonna University baseball standards. But the Fighting Crusaders are still a hot team going into the Great Lakes Independent Section Tournament, which they are hosting.

The first round of the eight-team, double-elimination tourney was Wednesday. The final round is scheduled to start at noon Saturday (one or, if necessary, two games).

Madonna, the No. 2 seed, opened Wednesday against No. 7 Greenville (Ill.). A win would put them up against the Trinity-Mount St. Joseph's (Ohio) winner at 1 p.m. today. The winner of that game would advance to the 4 p.m. winner's game. All of Madonna's games, and the tournament's final two rounds, will be at Madonna Field.

West Virginia State enters the tournament as the No. 1 seed (a 31-8 record). At No. 3 is Asbury (17-12), followed by Trinity (Ky.) International (14-11), St. Joseph's (20-27), Sue Bennett of Kentucky (8-15), Greenville (19-21) and Indiana University-Purdue University-Indianapolis (4-52).

The Crusaders lost three of four games last weekend to St. Xavier (Ill.), ranked 17th in the NAIA. The defeats were by 7-3 and 5-4 Saturday, and 6-2 Sunday; they won Sunday's finale, 2-0. The 1-3 record left them with a final regular-season mark of 33-23.

Still, Madonna finished impressively. At one point, the slate was 13-13 — after a trip to Colorado. Since then, the Crusaders have gone 20-10; they were 9-3 last week.

"Our team has improved immensely, since the start of the season until now," insisted coach Mike George. "We solidified our lineup, which helped."

Another factor was a talking to George gave his team on a trip back from a double-header split at Tri-State (Ind.). "You'd have thought we had won the World Series, coming back on that bus," said George. "I blew my stack . . . I didn't like the attitude on the team. I told them the time for making excuses was over."

It was also time for some of the veterans to start stepping up. They did; both Scott Anderson and Jim Solak struggled at the plate early in the season, but Anderson finished with a .329 batting average, 14 doubles, four homers, 34 runs batted in and a team-best 21 stolen bases (in 23 tries).

Solak ended up batting .328, with 11 doubles, four homers and 45 RBI. And although he had just a 1-4 won-lost pitching record, his 2.43 earned run average was best on the team.

What made George beam was having five sophomores as his five best hitters: Tim Kasubowski (.342) and Aaron Jones (.340). Wilczynski's 16 doubles, 62 hits and 50 runs scored led the team.

Volunteers help make Relays memorable

BRAD EMONS

The Observer-land Boys Track Relays would not have endured had it not been for the efforts of all the volunteers over the years.

Thanks again to all the people who help run a smooth meet.

Saturday's 25th running of the event, held Saturday at Redford Union, was beautifully run by RU athletic director Jim Gibbons.

Past meet participants and directors John MacKenzie, Bob Ouellette, Fred Price and John MacKenzie were also recognized for their contributions over the years. They were presented with plaques.

Wayne Memorial's Ken Riley, facing a stiff field that included Farmington Hills Harrison's Kevin Bryant and Westland John Glenn's Todd Peterson, was the most impressive.

Riley's 14.1 clocking, which broke the meet mark by six-10ths of a second, goes down as one of the all-time Observerland performances.

Of course, I've had the honor of witnessing several memorable nights over the years.

My all-time favorites: 1. Stevenson's Dave Hall anchoring the mile relay; 2. Plymouth Salem's Scott Bublin beating Redford Catholic Central's Aaron Roberts in the 100-yard dash; 3. Churchill's Erik Hansen going a sub-10 flat in the 100, only to discover later that the starting line (10 yards up) was wiped out because of the heavy rains, which turned the RU track into a moat.

This year, I'd be remiss if I didn't mention the strong showing not only by Riley, but also by Catholic Central's Joe Leo in the 1,600 run (4:24.2); Westland John Glenn's Brent Washington's furious charge on the anchor leg of the 400 relay; and the fine individual effort turned in by RU's Tom Kessel.

Well done by all, plus the weather cooperated for the first time in recent memory.

Bo, Abbott, Kaline

Former Plymouth Salem High basketball player Tim Van Wagoner, most recently the director of marketing for the Milwaukee Brewers, has started his own company, which publishes limited edition sports art.

Van Wagoner, who once lit me up for 39 points in a JV basketball game (what a great guy!), wanted me to mention to our readers — those who remain staunch and loyal Michigan football fans — that you can still order a limited print of "The Game," an autographed drawing by Tim Spransy of Bo Schembechler (who is being hoisted on a victory ride following Michigan's stunning 24-12 upset victory over Ohio State in 1969, which sent the Wolverines to the Rose Bowl).

A major portion of proceeds will be donated to the Millie Schembechler Adrenal Cancer Research Fund and the Michigan Athletic Scholarship Fund.

Limited prints are also available of pitcher Jim Abbott's "No Hitter" with the Yankess, and Al Kaline.

I've got a new idea for Tim. How about one of the 1995 Stanley Cup champions (the Red Wings perhaps?)

Odds & ends

■ I know the weather has been a major problem this spring with all the postponements, but scheduling around Easter break, proms and Memorial Day weekend don't help or give high school teams enough game or practice time, for that matter.

It seems softball and baseball teams play only games and don't ever practice. And frankly, it shows with all the mismatches, lopsided scores and poor performances.

■ I have a solution for all the bickering and in-fighting in the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League: Hold a draft, just like the professional leagues. Teams then can retain a player's rights for two years. That would eliminate all the politics, then how about sending our best team, made up of LCBL All-Stars to the All-American Amateur Baseball Association Tournament in Johnstown, Pa.?

For years, the Detroit Adray League (with no residency requirements) had a huge advantage over the LCBL.

Let's level the playing field once and for all and make it a competitive LCBL.

■ Schoolcraft College made its wisest move in years by hiring Glen Donahue as men's basketball coach. Give credit to athletic director Ed Kavanaugh for having the foresight to make such a move.

Now the question is: Will the Schoolcraft administrators give him enough rope to support the student-athlete and let him turn the program around?

I'll be watching closely, because if Donahue (who has a proven track record) can't do it, nobody can.

By the way, hello to Rocky Watkins wherever you are.

Also, what ever happened to Carlos Briggs?

■ Congratulations to the University of Detroit Mercy for winning the Eastern Conference title in the Midwestern Collegiate Conference.

Double fault

Livonia Franklin tightened the race in the Western Division Monday with a doubleheader sweep at Farmington Hills Harrison.

The sweep knocked the Hawks out of first in the division. Plymouth Canton now sits atop the division with a 5-2 mark. The Patriots and Harrison are 4-3.

In the opener, Franklin rode the strong arm of Brian Crumley, who struck out a career-high 14, as the Patriots hung on for a 3-2 victory. Crumley (5-2) scattered four hits and walked only one.

"This was Brian's finest hour," Franklin coach Jim Karoub said. "He's been sharp all year, but he was extra sharp today."

The Patriots opened the scoring in the first inning when Crumley ripped a two-run single. Harrison narrowed the margin to one in the fourth when Aaron Lawson singled home Jake Lawson.

Franklin scored what proved to be the winning run in the fifth on a Tim Miller single. The Hawks scored one unearned run in the seventh on a Kevin Horton double, but Crumley was able to escape further danger.

Eric Bowman went 3-for-4 for the Patriots, who had seven hits.

Jake Lawson took the loss, as he struck out 10 and walked nine.

Franklin took the nightcap 9-4, despite being outhit 11-8. The Patriots used a five-run sixth to pull away.

Tied 4-4 in the sixth, Bowman cleared the bases with a three-run double. Miller later knocked in two more with a double.

"We were able to put our hits together," Karoub said. "The walks also hurt Harrison. Four of our players who had walked later scored."

Bowman finished with two hits and four RBI. Rich Longsdorf went 1-for-3 and drove in one run.

C.J. Ghannam paced the Harrison attack with four hits, including a solo homerun. Cantor added two hits and one RBI.

On Tuesday, the Patriots improved to 14-4 overall with a 6-3 WLAA crossover victory at Livonia Stevenson.

Eight out of the nine batters in the Franklin lineup had hits, paced by Ray Maleyko, who went 4-for-4 with one RBI. Aubuchon was 2-for-3 with an RBI.

The loss went to Glenn Pinneo, who struck out six, walked two and hit two batters. Kevin Raycraft had two hits for the Spartans (3-11).

■ Brother Rice 2-3, Redford CC 1-0: Birmingham Brother Rice on Saturday limited host Redford Catholic Central to six hits in sweeping a double-header over the Shamrocks.

The double loss left CC with a 13-5 overall record, 6-5 in the Catholic League Central Division. The Shamrocks have to win their final five Central Division games, including a double-header Saturday against Warren DeLaSalle to have a shot at the Catholic League playoffs.

First-place Brother Rice won the first game behind the two-hit pitching of Marty Weymouth, who walked two and struck out four.

The Shamrocks loaded the bases in the seventh, but Weymouth ended the threat by snagging a liner off the bat of Garet Burch with two outs.

Kevin Thomas suffered the loss in a complete-game effort. Thomas scattered four hits, walked seven and struck out four.

The Warriors committed three errors behind Weymouth, including two in the third inning that led to the Shamrocks' only run. Matt Kaye reached base on an error and went to third following a pair of sacrifice bunts. Kaye scored when Burch's grounder was booted.

Brother Rice scored single runs in both the fourth and fifth innings.

John Taggart walked in the fourth, stole two bases and scored on a passed ball. Taggart doubled in the fifth to to send home Joe Kalczynski, who singled and stole second.

I don't have all kinds of time to be running around singles bars looking for the person of my dreams. Then a friend told me how she keeps her social life in gear with the personals. Fast, easy, free... and it works. Even recording the perfect voice greeting was simple. Now that's my idea of finding love in the nineties.

Frustration of phoning DNR office is over

OUTDOOR INSIGHTS

BILL PARKER

To say I was aggravated is probably the understatement of the year.

Seventeen full minutes on the phone line and I had yet to speak with a human being.

I had decided to call the Michigan Department of Natural Resources field office in Livonia recently in hopes of speaking with an expert about a future column I was working on.

No such luck. I got absolutely no where with voice mail because I didn't know the name or extension (only the title) of the person I needed to speak with. I tried the name of a familiar contact at the field office, but that phone only rang...and rang...and rang...and rang.

Aggravated? Slightly.

After repeated failed attempts to reach anyone in Livonia I decided to call the DNR headquarters in Lansing.

A very polite and apologetic secretary answered on the third ring.

"Maybe I'm getting somewhere," I thought.

Unfortunately, she couldn't connect me with the Livonia office from Lansing. But she was able to give me the name and a direct number, of the individual in Livonia that I needed to speak with.

I called. The phone rang, and rang, and rang, and rang. No answer. No voice mail. Nothing but ring...ring...ring...ring.

Aggravated? Absolutely.

'Well," I thought. "Maybe if I call the wildlife biologist at Livonia he can help put me in contact with someone that can help me."

I called Lansing again and got another direct number to Livonia.

The phone rang. Voice mail again - out of the office. But the end of the message instructed me on how to reach a secretary who promptly explained to me how big the building was in Livonia and that she had no way of knowing if the person I was trying to contact was in or not.

"That division is on another floor," she explained politely.

It had now been close to 40 minutes since I started my journey through the intricacies of modern technology. And I was no closer to reaching my goal than I was before I started.

Aggravated? Infuriated!

I decided to go to the top and asked to be connected appropriately.

Alan Jirik, District Field Administrative Supervisor at the Livonia office, was on another line, but his secretary assured me he would call me right back. He did, within minutes.

Mr. Jirik was very understanding and sympathetic to my problem.

"I've been here for two-and-a-half years and the phone system has been an ongoing problem," admitted Jirik. "The number of calls we receive each day is just too big for us to handle."

Jirik estimated the Livonia field office receives approximately 1,500 to 1,600 calls each day. After apologizing for the inconvenience he gave me the best news I've heard all year.

"We've spent $80,000 on a new voice mail system that will be installed over the next couple of weeks," Jirik said. "Hopefully this will alleviate some of these problems."

The new system is in operation. Hopefully, it will put the local DNR back in touch with the public.

Anglers and turkey hunters are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information to Outdoors, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI. 48009. Fax information to (810) 644-1314 or call Bill Parker evenings at (810) 901-2573.)

Workshop will feature composer

The workshop is open to organists, choir directors and church musicians of all denominations. The registration fee for the workshop is $8, and lunch is $5. Registration will be at 8:30 a.m. and the sessions conclude at 2 p.m.

Burkhardt is a graduate of Carthage College and Southern Methodist University, where he studied organ under Dr. Robert Anderson and choral conducting under Lloyd Pfautsch. He has continued his studies at the postgraduate level at Indiana University, the University of Southern California and the University of Minnesota.

He has served parishes in southern California and Minneapolis, Minn., as organist and director of music, and has served at Christ College Irvine in Irvine, Calif., as college organist and lecturer in church music and music education.

His numerous organ hymn improvisations, choral anthems for adult and children's choirs, and handbell compositions have been published by MorningStar Music Publishers in St. Louis, Mo. His publications and compositions will be on display and available for purchase at the workshop.

Advance registration for the workshop and lunch can be made by calling Christ Our Savior Church at (313) 522-6830. The church is at 14175 Farmington Road, north of I-96.

Fennel adds spice to garden dishes

National Herb Week is May 7-14, and Fennel (Foeniculum species) is the official plant this year. Its botanical name comes from the Latin word, foenum, which means hay, and the feathery foliage may be the reason why.

There are several varieties of this herb, a relative of dill, coriander, caraway, cumin, anise, carrot and Queen Anne's lace, but we will talk about the two most popular ones — a variety called sweet fennel (F.v.var.dulce), which includes "Bronze," and Florence fennel (F.v.var azoricum), also called finocchio and anise.

"The Cook's Garden," a free catalog — available from P.O. Box 525, Londonderry, Vt. 05148, (phone (802) 824-3400, fax (802) 824-3027) — carries seeds of the varieties Sweet fennel (F. vulgaare — "Smoke"), "the true red-leaved form, much sought after both for its ornamental and its herbal qualities," and Zefa Fino (F. vulgare), "a Florence, or bulbing-type fennel grown for its swollen leaf stalks."

They advise: Sow the seeds in midsummer for early fall harvest in rows eight to 12 inches apart, then thin plants to eight inches apart in rows. The seeds can also be sown in the fall for a spring harvest (best in zone 6 pockets). Fennel is a biennial herb and may self-sow.

The plants need good drainage and like a humus-rich soil, full sun and not overly damp or wet conditions, although the seeds, when first sown, need to be kept moist for at least two weeks until first leaves appear. Fennel grows three to five feet tall and is nice in the herb garden as well as when used as a landscape plant.

Many uses

All varieties impart a sweet anise flavor to dishes, and all parts of the plant are edible. The foliage adds a special touch to fish dishes and green salads, while the stems can be chilled and stuffed with flavored cheese. The seeds are used in Italian sausage, vinegars, candy, tea, and body and hair preparations. The bulbs of Florence fennel are used as a vegetable. In addition, fennel has been used medicinally for more than 2,000 years.

The caterpillar stage of the black swallowtail butterfly feeds on the leaves of fennel, followed by the chrysalis stage, which will live on the stems until the new butterfly emerges. Children as well as adults will enjoy watching for the green, black and yellow caterpillar to appear on the plant.

Leaves can be clipped once the plant is well established and can be chopped and frozen in containers for storage. The stems take a while longer to become fully mature, approximately 80 days. Cut them off at ground level, when the bulb at the base is three to five inches across. The seeds can be harvested when they turn from yellowish to brown. Snip the seed head off and drop into a paper bag, store in a warm, dark place to finish drying, then transfer to jars. The bulbs need to be dug up for cooking.

LOOKING TO THE FUTURE

What will cars look like five years from now or the furniture in your home? Visit the annual student exhibition at Center for Creative Studies in Detroit to find out.

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN

What types of advertising and products will we see five years from now in the market place?

Observerland residents graduating from Center for Creative Studies say it could surprise you.

View more than 2,000 artworks, advertisements, decorative and functional objects, jewelry, apparel, furniture and transportation designs of the future at the 1995 CCS Student Exhibition May 13-28 at the school, 201 E. Kirby across the street from the Detroit Institute of Arts.

The show is culled from five CCS departments including crafts, fine arts, graphic communication, industrial design, and photography.

Highlights of the exhibit include demonstrations of computer aided design, proposals and models for this summer's Art on the Move sculpture installation project, transportation design exhibits of clay models sponsored by Chrysler Corp., futuristic toys, one-of-a-kind coffee and tea sets, and furniture designs using wood, metal, fiber, and plastics.

Young designer

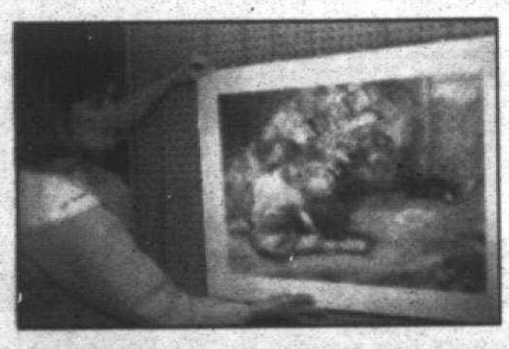

One look at Ryan Mee's collapsible shelving unit constructed of recycled materials reveals an increasingly mobile society running out of landfill space. The 23 year old Canton Township resident designed the 6 feet high by 4 feet wide Gridcore and aluminum unit, meant for mass marketing, with himself in mind since it is likely the next few years will find him just getting his feet wet in the design world.

Currently Mee works part-time at Exhibit Works in Livonia, a designer of exhibits for the trade show industry. Before that he interned at Arrow Molded Plastics in Aitken along with 26 other members of the Visual Arts Association of Livonia exhibit a variety of two dimensional artworks through May 26 in the lobby of Livonia City Hall, Farmington Road and Five Mile.

Sponsored by the Livonia Cultural League, City of Livonia and the Livonia Arts Commission, the 21st annual Spring Art Show features oil, watercolor, acrylic, pastel, colored pencil, watercolor monotype, photography, gouache and mixed media paintings priced between $62 and $600.

Two new cookbooks have recipes for fennel. "The Herb Companion Cooks" (Interweave Press, $16.95, soft) also features many unusual recipe ideas for all kinds of dishes from appetizers to desserts, gifts and condiments. Each is clearly written and easy to follow. "Betty Crocker's New Italian Cooking" (Macmillan, $18) contains "easy and authentic recipes by Antonio Cecconi." Nutrition information is included with each recipe. If you like Italian, you'll like this book.

TIMELY GARDEN TIPS

■ The April/May issue of the magazine The Herb Companion features an article about fennel and has many other herbal features. The publisher is Interweave Press, 201 E. Fourth, Loviand, Colo. 80537-9977.

■ Plan to attend "Everything Herbal" Saturday, May 20, in Birmingham. Call (810) 645-0896 for more information.

■ Continue to divide perennials; renew mulch in the beds.

■ Begin planting perennial and vegetable seedlings. Water them well. Protect them from the sun with a shade cloth or other shade device. I like to use a plastic milk crate for a few days.

■ Watch for insects in the garden and identify them before trying to destroy them.

■ Weeds are growing. Keep after them to prevent them from going to seed.

Marching bands from both schools kick off the event at 11 a.m. in the Kohl's parking lot. Music will be performed throughout the two days.

A coupon booklet, filled with more than $100 worth of savings from participating stores, will be sold to customers for a $5 donation.

Promotional t-shirts especially designed for the event will also be sold to raise funds. All proceeds will support the Band Together program. Local businesses have contributed funds to sponsor flowerbeds.

ART EMANUELE/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Vipers Game: Eric Zurawski plans to play a major role in the future of advertising with his catchy headlines, dynamic artwork and copy.

Troy, assisting in design work including the functional as well as stylistic development of several prototype and production parts for automotive interiors and office furnishings.

At George P. Johnson Co. in Madison Heights Mee assisted in design work and model building of exhibit proposals for the 1994 automotive show. All of these internships through CCS have honed not only his design skills but his ability to work with clients.

While still in school, Mee designed a kitchen sink for the handicapped, a cement clock, and a maple and glass table sporting drawers within drawers.

"What is the future of product design? There's a definite movement toward truth in materials, truth in form. If you design a wood table you don't cover the wood," said Mee, a graduate of Detroit Catholic Central High School in Redford Township.

"The green movement is playing a big part to recycle materials in the future. Simplification is a very big theme: how a product is going to work in its environment and making it a user friendly product, you want to interact with."

Advertising campaigns

Advertising will see many changes as well in the future.

Eric Zurawski, who served his graphic communications internship at Kolon, Bittker & Desmond in Troy, says computers will turn the world of advertising upside down in the near future.

Regardless of whether clients buy time to target customers on the superhighway or in publications, Zurawski believes the concepts of attracting their attention remain the same.

His campaign for the Detroit Vipers hockey team, "finally a game you can sink your teeth into," works on the screen as well as in print displayed in a community newspaper's sport section.

Both campaigns by Zurawski, a Livonia resident who graduated from Detroit Catholic Central, will be on exhibit as part of the CCS student show.

"I start out with thumbnail roughs and usually work down from a tag line. I like to make my ads catch you with a headline and then read my copy. I like to cement it by having some good copy," said Zurawski, who is undecided about seeking a career as an art director or copy writer.

"I see an art director as being able to be a writer and designer, a totally visual person."

Susan Chiaravalle agrees with Zurawski that an art director has to be able to take an ad from the concept stage on through to the final illustration.

The 25-year-old Westland resident took classes at CCS in everything from hand lettering to air brushing. Her two years of computer courses at CCS she considers requisites for working in the advertising field. She hopes to find work in New York, Chicago or Atlanta after graduating later this month.

Challenging ads

Chiaravalle will exhibit campaigns for print as well as TV-spots which spotlight cat food and excercise equipment.

Her campaign (AIDS, it's for real, practice safe sex) espouses abstinence until the right person comes along. It features the portraits of pop artist Andy Warhol.

"As an art director we think of our whole concept and who we're targeting. I'm always studying designs and concepts by looking through magazines," said Chiaravalle, a Garden City High School graduate.

"If an ad makes you laugh, cry or think then it's a good ad."

Lara Azzopardi, a graduate of Churchill High School, says the world of advertising attracts many young people because of the endless possiblities for creativity. The 25 year old CCS graduating senior hopes to obtain a position as an art director at an advertising agency.

Azzopardi currently works part time at Metrovision of Livonia doing everything from painting set backdrops to assisting in the production and editing of Madonna University basketball and volleyball games.

Azzopardi will exhibit a two-page spread for Porsche, and story boards for commercials for a cruise and Porsche. Additionally, she along with other students in the graphics communications department are putting together a history of CCS, founded in 1906 as Society of Arts and Crafts, in celebration of the school's 90th anniversary.

"I love this field. There's so much we can do," said Azzopardi.

Student exhibition

To kick off the student exhibition a patron's reception takes place 5-6 p.m. Friday, May 12. Tickets are $150. The exhibition opening follows 6-9 p.m. Admission is $20 in advance, $25 at the door. Both allow guest to view and purchase works by emerging artists previous to the show's opening to the public.

CCS offers bachelor degrees in 17 visual arts majors and non-degree programs in music, dance, art, and design. Exhibition hours May 13-28 are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday, and 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

For more information about the student exhibition call the school at (313) 872-3118.

tries down to 85 artworks. The Dearborn Public Schools teacher awarded Best of Show ($100), First Place in Oil ($40) and the Grumbacher Award for Best Use of Color (Medal) to Helena Lewicki of Farmington Hills for "Still Life with Flowers."

In his statement, Melikian says "I felt her painting best exemplified the rather elusive feeling of harmony so often talked about in discussions of fine art."

Melikian also awarded First Place in Watercolor ($40) to Eileen Bibby, Livonia for "Oranges."

First in Mixed Media ($40) was awarded to Evelyn Henry, Redford for her pastel rendering of flamingos entitled "Lagoon."

Melikian said, "from a technical standpoint, the First Place pastel of Evelyn Henry was very impressive as pastel is a difficult and demanding medium."

"It's a very tight show judged on realism. Everything he left is worthy. He was very selective. It's a quality show," said Farmington Area Arts commissioner Evanthia Samra, co-chair of the exhibit with Lewicki and Irene Kallas.

Aitken won the Livonia Arts Commission Award ($100) for her watercolor, "Graffiti for the Little Ones." A former art teacher at Plymouth Christian Academy, Aitken plays glints of sunshine off the curls of her 2 year old daughter Elizabeth in this pointed statement. Safe sex, and adoption not abortion scream warnings that must not go unheeded.

"The message on the wall in graffiti is because I feel that life is precious and I want to do everything to protect it. Children have so much to battle," said Aitken, who is presently studying for a master of arts degree at Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti.

Other awards for artworks in VAAL's Spring Art Show went to Kay Fill for Second and Honorable Mention in Oil, and an Honorable Mention in Mixed Media; Third in Oil to Irene Kallas; Second Place and an Honorable Mention in Watercolor to Aitken; Third in the same category to Marge Masek; Second and an Honorable Mention in Mixed Media to Lydia Kroes and Third to Kelly Sauter- Dobson.

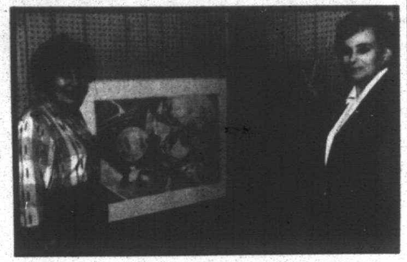

Honorable Mentions (Ribbons) were awarded in Oil to Sharon Morganti and Henry; in watercolor to Al Weber, Aitken and Bibby, and in Mixed Media to Kathy Morgan and Louise Dorman.

Also displaying work in the exhibit are Audrey Harkins, Tom Igel, Shirley Bishop, Billie Thompson, Judy Franata, Shirley Ceaser, and Cheryl Zielonka of Livonia; Kay Rowe of Plymouth, Morganti of Garden City and Morgan of Westland.

Melikian earned bachelor and master of fine arts degrees from Wayne State University. His work is in the collections of Ameritech, William Clay Ford, Ford Motor Co., and the Henry Ford Estate. He has exhibited at the Sixth Street Gallery in Royal Oak, Meadowbrook Art Gallery and Cary Gallery in Rochester, and Grand Central Gallery in New York City.

VAAL is dedicated to advancing the knowledge and appreciation of the creative arts by offering studio classes and annual exhibits, all open to the public.

Show hours are the same as city halls' 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Canton exhibit supports art club

SPECIAL WRITER

Ann Arbor artist Hugh Burley demonstrated his oil painting techniques in a far corner as Three Cities Art Club held its 1995 Spring Juried Art Show April 28-30 in the Canton Public Library.

Fourteen members of the club displayed 51 oil, mixed media, watercolor and monoprints priced from $25 to $450.

Lucas, who received a bachelor's and master's of fine arts degrees from Eastern Michigan University, teaches watercolor in the Plymouth Canton Community Schools adult education program and at the Visual Arts Association of Livonia.

"The show's smaller than we usually have but it's nice. Why do we exhibit? We want to show off. I think art and music need an audience," said Jackie Daniel, exhibit co-chair with Florence Hirschmann.

"I always enjoy looking at other people's work and sharing mine," added Hirschmann of Plymouth.

Annalee Davis of Livonia won First Place in Oil for her "Autumn Weeds." Second Place went to Daniel for the energetic "Comanche Warriors," Third place was awarded to Frances Bowlby for "Serenity."

Honorable Mentions went to Davis and John Davison of Plymouth.

First Place in Watercolor and Mixed Media were awarded to Kay Fill for "White Geraniums," Second and Third to Florence Constable for "Crab Apples" and "Tulips."

Grumbacher donated its Silver Medallion Award for Best Use of Color. It went to John Davison for "Vermont," an oil.

Businesses which provided gift certificates as awards were The Art Store & More, and Northwest Blueprint & Supply Co. in Livonia; Creative Framing, and Woods' La Petite Hairstyle in Plymouth; Art Store of Canton, and Frameworks II in Canton, and Miller's Artist Supplies Co. in Farmington Hills.

Founded in 1956, Three Cities Art Club began with eight members. Today there are 25. The name of the club comes from the cities of Plymouth, Northville and Livonia where the original members lived.

Three Cities, now with members in many communities of Wayne County, meets at 7 p.m. the first Monday of each month from October through May in the meeting room of the Plymouth Township Clerk's office, Ann Arbor Road and Lilley. New members and visitors are always welcome at the meetings.

A community service organization, Three Citites has donated videos and art books to the Plymouth Library as well as art scholarships to deserving local students. Donations have also been given by the club to the Geer School Restoration Project, the Plymouth Community Arts Council and the Michigan Cancer Foundation.

Use textures creatively

FOCUS ON PHOTOGRAPHY

MONTE NAGLER

Textures play a vital role in the appearance of most photographs. Used creatively, textures will enhance the color, shape and overall composition of your work.

Our environment is rich in texture, from the rugged surface of a pebbled beach to the alternating smoothness and roughness of an old wall of peeling paint or the intimate texture of a single feather.

Late afternoon or early morning light will produce a skimming light that will produce needed texture that will give your shot important impact. An overhead sun will minimize texture making your photo appear too flat.

In landscape photography, tune in closely to how texture can relate to composition. Rivers, roads, fences, etc. will break the scene into distinct textured shapes so that the areas created build into an integrated design pattern.

In the city, textures are everywhere. The granular pattern of a street or the irregularities of a wall of bricks are both rich in texture. Even an old junkyard contains a multitude of shapes and textures that will produce exciting results. Remember that with city scenes, just as in landscapes, directional lighting is necessary to bring out strong textures.

Enjoy photographing food? If so, you know that skillful lighting is a must. A sliced cabbage, the skin of an orange or the crust of a loaf of bread all require proper directional lighting to enhance surface textures.

When photographing your pet, always try to use side or back lighting. By doing so, you'll obtain maximum detail in the animal's fur and get separation from the background, too.

Another interesting texture to explore is human skin. Strong side or back lighting will bring out weathered wrinkles in the face of an old sailor while soft frontal lighting will show the sleek, smooth skin found on the face of a beautiful model.

Don't forget, texture itself can be the main subject. Details of plants, rocks and wood can make dramatic photographs in their own right. Or, on a broader scale, imagine a plowed farmland photographed to produce an abstract image of line and pattern.

Yes, textures are a key ingredient in obtaining vivid results with your camera. Without texture, pictures may appear dull and lifeless. But used correctly, textures will help you to bring home those winning shots.

Short shot

Nationally recognized local photographer Monte Nagler will give an informative presentation on "The History of Photography" 7:30 p.m. Friday, May 26, at Barnes and Noble, 6800 Orchard Lake Road in West Bloomfield. In addition, Nagler, who studied under Ansel Adams, will display his private collection of photographs including original pieces by Adams, Alfred Stieglitz, Edward Weston, Yosuf Karsh and many more. Reservations aren't required.

Monte Nagler is a fine art photographer based in Farmington Hills. You can leave him a message by dialing (313) 953-2047 on a touch-tone phone, then his mailbox number, 1873. His fax number is (810) 644-1314.

Mortgage myths keep some out of market

Potential first-time home buyers are taking themselves out of the mortgage market based on myths about what is needed to buy a house, according to research done for the Mortgage Bankers Association of America.

The reality is that an individual can purchase a house with a down payment as low as 3 percent, an income under $30,000 in most regions of the country and a less-than-perfect credit history or no history, the MBA maintains.

To increase awareness of special first-time buyer programs and flexible financing options, Fleet Mortgage has joined with MBA to promote a nationwide education campaign, Buying a Home: It's Easier Than You Think.

The cornerstone of the campaign, a free brochure, Plain and Simple Guide for First Time Home Buyers, answers basic questions in language for someone who is just learning about the mortgage process.

Sections include:
- Getting started.
- Low down on loans.
- Fifteen commonly used mortgage terms.

To obtain the pamphlet or to schedule a personal consultation, contact Fleet Mortgage 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays at (313) 462-4041.

"There are many serious misconceptions about the mortgage process that are cheating people out of the financial security provided by home ownership," said Joe Pickett, MBA president.

The association's research has found that consumers believe mortgage lenders don't want to lend money to young people.

"The fact is, mortgage lenders want to help, not hinder the process," Pickett said. "We want to give people a chance to own their own homes."

■ 'There are many serious misconceptions about the mortgage process that are cheating people out of the financial security provided by home ownership.'

Joe Pickett

Bret Hoffman, Fleet's Livonia branch manager, picks up on the theme.

"Do you believe you can't afford your own home? Do you think your current income, credit history or savings account balance will prohibit you from qualifying for a mortgage? If so, you aren't alone," Hoffman said.

"These programs accommodate applicants who have little cash to close, those who need special consideration regarding their credit history and those who require low monthly payments.

"In fact, monthly mortgage payments frequently are equal to or less than, monthly rent payments," Hoffman said. "All this means that home ownership is attainable. Don't count yourself out."

Fleet Mortgage Corp. and Fleet Real Estate Funding are subsidiaries of Fleet Mortgage Group, a leading originator and servicer of mortgage loans nationwide.

Developer asks how to handle complaints

CONDO QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q. I am a developer who is faced with a series of complaints by a condominium association regarding various defects and deficiencies. The people in my company are advising that I fight to the bitter end and retain counsel who promises to embark upon a scorched earth policy to try to bleed the association dry and discourage it from pursuing me. Others suggest that I attempt to settle the matter, even though I do not believe that all of the claims of the association are reasonable. Based on what I know to be your extensive experience in these types of matters, what do you suggest that I do?

A. Someimes developers are in a no win situation when they are confronted with construction defect claims brought by a condominium association. On one hand, if there is legitimacy to the construction defect claims, at least to some extent, which is normally the case, the developer cannot ignore the claims of the association.

While the Developer may honestly feel that the claims of the Association are either invalid, inflated or misguided, ultimately an unsympathetic jury may be the fact finder as to that issue. Other attorneys might counsel you to fight the association to the bitter end, in an effort to impose economic hardship on the association, hoping that the association's suit will either fail for want of money or desire. However, this course of conduct ignores the costs attendant to such extended litigation, not only in terms of out of pocket costs being paid to the attorney, but also in the deprivation of time and resources of the developer in attendng to the litigation, as opposed to engaging in more profitable and productive enterprises. A profitable or more responsible course of action is to attempt to work with the association, through experienced legal counsel in your behalf, in an effort to reach an amicable and reasonable resolution, hopefully before the commencement of lawsuits.

It has been my experience that condominium associations do not like litigation any more than developers and will generally bend over backwards in an effort to reach a fair and reasonable accommodation with the developer. I have seen situations where both the association and the developer respectively won the battle, but lost the war, with the extensive costs of litigation and the toll that it takes, not only on the association, but on the reputation of the developer in the community.

Therefore, every effort should be made by the developer to understand the association's claims, to investigate them to obtain their own evaluation of the legitimacy of their claims from an objective party and to then attempt to negotiate a fair and equitable resolution with the association in a timely and enlightened fashion.

Robert M. Meisner is a Birmingham area attorney concentrating his practice in the areas of condominiums, real estate, corporate law and litigation. You are invited to submit topics which you would like to see discussed in this column, including questions about condominiums, by writing Robert M. Meisner, 30200 Telegraph Road, Suite 467, Bingham Farms, Michigan 48025.

House is healthy

You can put almost anything in a house if you're willing to spend the money. Health House presents environmentally conscious, health-sensitive options that don't necessary cost an arm and a leg.

STAFF WRITER

It looks like a typical house from the outside, the Worthington model constructed by S.R. Jacobson Development in Windridge Subdivision off Seven Mile just west of Haggerty in Northville.

But the Bingham Farms-based builder, in cooperation with Detroit Edison and the American Lung Association, has gone out of its way to create an environmentally conscious Health House to show what can be done to make life easier for asthmatics and allergy sufferers.

The upgrades include a geo-thermal heating/cooling system that uses ground water rather than natural gas, a ventilation system that changes air throughout the house three times per hour and a radon control system.

Other touches include hardwood floors throughout the main level (instead of carpeting) and insulation made of recycled newspaper rather than fiberglass.

The thrust of Health House is to educate people about what's available. Visitors can see for themselves during an open house noon to 6 p.m. daily except Thursdays through May 21. Admission is $3, and proceeds will go to the American Lung Association.

"The lung association gave us a list of components of the construction process good, better, best," said Colette Scholten, sales and marketing director for Jacobson. "Sometimes, best is too expensive or not practical."

"It's a matter of making decisions what you want in a house," said Larry A. McAllister, chief executive officer of the American Lung Association of Michigan. "There's a lot of information people aren't aware of."

"We want people to have choices. People can pick things they need most within a budget," Scholten added.

The cornerstone of Health House is a geo-thermal heating/cooling system. Cost, including installation, is about $8,000.

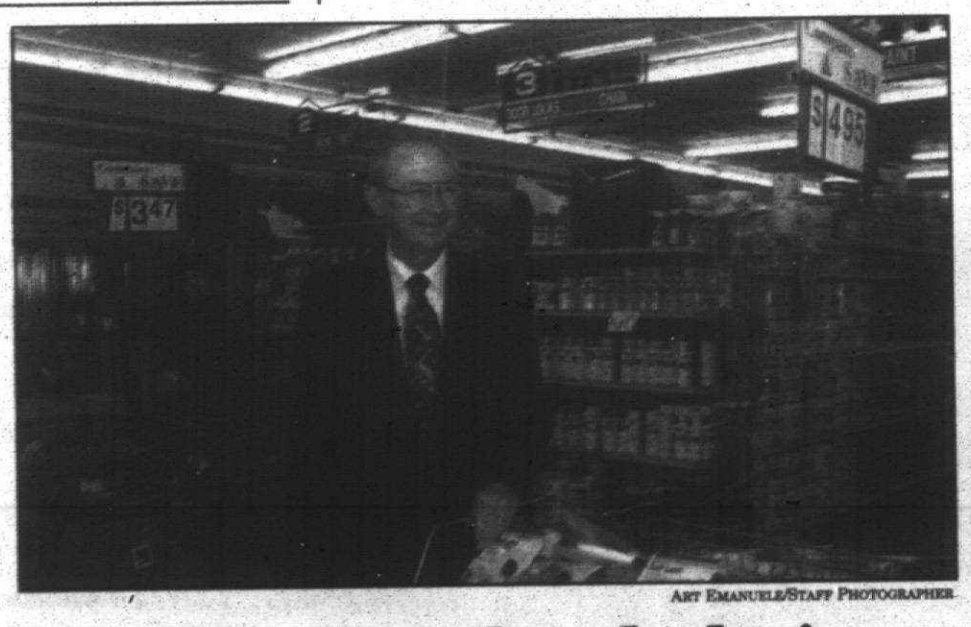

"The principle is simply we're transferring heat from the ground to the house in the heating season and from the house to the ground in cooling season," said Jared W. Goetz, an account representative with Edison.

"We're not burning anything. There's no flame, no by-products of combustion," he added.

"This is the whole heating/cooling unit," Scholten said pointing to equipment about the size of a traditional furnace in the basement. "There's no ugly condenser outside. We're not using fossil fuels, and we don't have combustion in the house."

Goetz pegged gas savings at about $500 per year on a 3,000-square-foot house like the Wor-

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

ACO Hardware, with stores in Livonia, Redford, Westland, Canton, Plymouth, Farmington Hills, Southfield, Bloomfield Hills and Rochester Hills, bills itself as the largest hardware retail chain in Michigan in terms of annual sales.

The privately owned company, headquartered in Farmington Hills, reported sales of $96 million from 65 outlets around the state during its recently completed budget year.

INSIGHT &

ACO indicated that it would become the largest hardware chain in the nation after buying NHD Stores, a publicly held company in New England whose 35 stores notched sales of $48.6 million last year.

William Aiken, ACO's president, chief executive officer and board chairman, believes his company has the tools to turn around NHD's three years of operating losses.

Following are edited excerpts from a recent interview with Aiken, 60, a Bloomfield Township resident, who joined ACO as controller 23 years ago.

What's this purchase going to cost and how are you going to pay for it?

Aiken: Acquisition of shares and transaction costs would approximate $2.8 million.

In addition, ACO will make some working capital available to the acquired company, $1.5 million, to rebuild inventory and upgrade systems. They have no point of sales systems (computer registers) now.

"Geo-thermal is not new," he said. "It's a public awareness thing." A ventilating system that permits energy from warm air exhausted from the home to warm incoming cold air before it's circulated without actually mixing with incoming air provides a fesher product at reduced cost.

The ventilating system starts at about $3,000.

"We wanted to address molds and moisture," McAllister said. "It constantly recirculates air and reduces potential exposure to allergens.

To prevent radon gas, which naturally seeps into basements, Health House places several inches of peat gravel covered by a plastic membrane and two vent stacks at the foundation. Cost is $800.

Upstairs, Nu-Wool insulation made from recycled newspaper is blown into walls instead of traditional insulation whose fibers can cause problems for people with allergies or breathing difficulties. Cost is $2,200.

"Hardwood floors eliminates carpeting," McAllister said. "Carpeting is a major source of dust and dust mites. This cuts down on risks for asthmatics.

"Hardwood is expensive," Scholten said. "On the steps and upstairs carpet, we use 100 percent non-toxic padding made out of recycled materials and 100 percent nylon carpet."

Solid wood cabinetry in the Worthington rather than pressed particle board eliminates a formaldehyde source for $3,150. Paints with lower volatile organic compounds are used at a negligible cost increase.

The Worthington model, a two-story colonial with four bedrooms, living room, dining room, den and family room, carries a basic price of $300,000.

Going with the geo-thermal heating/cooling system, ventilating system, radon control, Nu-Wool insulation and solid wood cabinetry would add about $17,000 — 5¼ percent.

Giving buyers options and letting them know what's out there regardless of price range is the ultimate effect of Health House.

"We build $100,000 houses, too, and want people to have choices," Scholten said.

We are rearranging our financing relationships. Our bank will handle refinancing of our current borrowings, plus the additional capital for required (merger) transactions.

We're not only consolidating our debt but expanding our credit lines. Let's say the entire financing package is over $30 million, the largest part represented by an open line of credit.

What's the key to making the merger work?

Aiken: We will bring advanced technology and systems to inventory management.

Second, combination of the two companies will create a very effective and competitive buying entity. We will cooperate and coordinate vendor relations.

We can't remedy economic cycles, but we can remedy inventory management, inventory stock positions. We can remedy buying strength.

How does ACO hold up in competition against big players like Home Depot, Home Quarters and Builders Square?

Aiken: We've been able to survive, I think, because we serve the consumer with convenience and value. Others may say that, but our consumers keep coming back and have for 50 years.

We've had several invasions, if you will, of new-format retailers.

A customer going to one of the big boxes generally is on a visit for a major project involving building materials or very large ticket items like sheds, tractors, room remodelings.

The consumer shopping ACO is after a maintenance and repair item that the do-it-yourselfer has always had the need for. Let's talk about paint. Let's talk about gardening, plumbing, electrical replacement and upgrading.

Our stores are all in convenient, neighborhood shopping centers. We're not in regional malls. I think consumers like to shop in their neighborhoods.

How are you doing financially?

Aiken: Last year was our best year ever. We had record sales, record earnings. Earnings were slightly over 3 percent (of sales). That includes a one-time gain on the sale of excess real estate.

I would think if you want to grow, it would be safer to buy an existing store than start one from scratch.

Aiken: If you want to stay competitive, growth is essential. It's very difficult to do one store at a time. There's not enough development of new shopping centers and communities.

The advantage of acquisition is you acquire an existing customer base.

Biggest isn't always better, but smaller is always difficult.

How do you hear that ACO is perceived in the community? What do your customers tell you?

Aiken: We get very few complaints. We get many compliments. Convenience is a more frequent reference. They like our advertised products, probably because of value. They like our selection.

After convenience, I think we get compliments on the friendliness of our people.

Do you subscribe to a personal business philosophy?

Aiken: You must in private companies, just like public ones, produce a return for your investor. That is utmost.

In order to do that, you have to have an above-average complement of employees. They have to be satisfied with the job and have to be willing to produce.

Ted Traskos, our founder (in 1946), has always believed that you have to give a customer value at a fair price and make it easy for them to obtain their needs.

Consumers, particularly do-it-yourself consumers, know when they're getting value and when not.

Expect tree-trimming crews before July

As the summer storm season approaches, Detroit Edison line clearance crews will continue to trim trees in 45 southeastern Michigan communities during the next two months. Four communities in the Observer circulation area should see crews before the first of July. They are: Canton Township, Livonia, Plymouth and Plymouth Township.

Edison's tree-trimming program has helped reduce the number and length of power outages, a spokesman said. In 1994, the utility's customers experienced 35-percent fewer prolonged power outages than the previous three-year average. In addition, the length of those outages was shortened by 75 percent.

"We've had great success with our line clearance program which is why there will be an on-going cycle of trimming in our service area," said Robert J. Buckler, senior vice president, energy marketing and distribution.

"Our efforts will continue to focus on reducing the number and length of outages."

Trees that grow into or near power lines can knock them down during high winds and storms, causing outages. Downed power lines also pose safety hazards, particularly for young children who should be told that fallen power lines and anything they come into contact with can be dangerous.

In addition, trees in contact with power lines can drain electricity from the Detroit Edison system, which may result in low voltage to customers.

The utility's tree-trimming crews follow National Arborist Association pruning standards, which are designed to maintain the health of the tree.

Convicted killer builds his own Internet home page

EMORY DANIELS

What makes this page interesting is that Davis is serving time on death row in Illinois and is believed to be the first death row prisoner in the United States to plead his case directly to the people on the Internet.

Davis, whose home page went online April 24, is scheduled to be executed May 17 by lethal injection. Online users can learn about Girvies'conviction and death sentencing by using Lynx or another Web browser and point to http://www.mcs.net/(tilde mark)bkmurph/girvies.htm. The home page contains an article he wrote about "evidence" that establishes his innocence. There also are links to Chicago Tribune articles and news reports from other papers on his case.

Davis also makes available the e-mail address of Jim Edgar, who happens to be the governor of Illinois and holds the power to grant clemency. On his page users will find an electronic petition for clemency and will have the opportunity to sign the petition. Upon first arriving, there is a flashing numeral on the top — the numeral representing the number of days Davis has before facing execution.

(I learned of this page from Elliott Parker, journalism professor at Central Michigan University who is very good at collecting gems and passing them on. In the back of my head, though, is a thought that I may have read about it someplace else. If so, I apologize for not giving credit; in my files Prof. Parker is the only reference I kept.)

Responding to readers

From time to time I get phone calls or e-mail messages from readers who missed my last column or want to know about a topic I covered a few months ago. To meet that need, I had decided some time ago to put my columns on-line so users could access past columns easily and find what they were looking for.

I also decided to make this project a learning experience for myself. I had done some reading about hypertext markup language (html) and home page construction. So I decided to learn html markup and how to build a home page. It took a while to figure out how to get the columns on line and arrange them on the home page. But it has finally happened. What results is not pretty designwise or graphically, but it's fucntional.

Also on my home page is a link to Patrick Crispen's Internet e-mail lessons offered a year ago. Many of our users took those lessons but did not keep all of them and have made inquiries from time to time about a particular lesson. Eventually I decided to make my home page a learning center on the Internet and so offered links to a Unix reference desk, a couple of links about html and home page building, one to Odd de Presno's book "The On-line World" (which I reviewed in an earlier column), and to the general reference desk offered by Purdue University.

So if you'd like to take a peek, go to Lynx or any Web browser and point to http://oeonline.com. A direct link is http://oeonline.com/(tilde mark)emoryd. I welcome suggestions and comments.

Back in business

A good source to learn about things new on the Internet has been the Scout Report. A couple of months ago, however, the Scout Report site closed down — some of us feared it might be for good. In case you missed the announcement, the Scout is back in business. If you haven't benefited from the Scout Report, or want to return, the new Universal Resource Locator (URL) is http://rs.internic.net/scout-report-index.html. You also can receive the Scout Report each Friday via e-mail by sending a request to majordomo@dstest.internic.net and in the body of the message type "subscribe scout-report." The URL for Gopher users is is.internic.net.

Speaking of what's new on the Net, O&E Online has some new ventures on the Internet worth checking out. There's an area restaurant that will not only tell you its summer fare but also share a lot of information about vegetarian food and vegetarian cooking. Point to http://oeonline.com/(tilde mark)innseasn. The Detroit Institute of Arts is on-line with us and has a very interseting home page, which can be accessed at http://oeonline.com/(tilde mark)dia. And the Cranbrook Institute also has joined the O&E Online community and can be visited at http://oeonline.com/(tilde mark)crdesign. The Cranbrook site only can be accessed with a graphical browser while all the others can be visited with the text browser, Lynx.

Strange festivals

And, finally, let me share with you some of the unusual festivals you can visit in Michigan, the midwest and elsewhere that I learned about on the Internet.

Some of the festivals I may visit (after I get the lawn mowed and house painted) include the Pig Gig, a rib cook-off in August in Bay City, and the River Roar, which involves tiny high-powered boats doing laps on the Saginaw River in late June every year. These two tips were shared by Greta Guest, reporter with the Bay City Times.

Also in the Thumb is the Bayport Fish Sandwich Festival and in Arenac County in Homer is the Sucker Fest. And in the Thumb town of Caseville is the Caseville Carp shoot in which carp are shot with bow and arrow.

Midwest festivals included the Twins Day Festival in Twinsburg, Ohio, in August, a festival with a toilet-paper throwing contest in Wadsworth, Ohio, near Akron, and the famous Buzzard Festival in Hinkley, Ohio. Another Midwest spring special is the Horseradish Festival in Collinsville, Ill., across the river from St. Louis.

Any readers going out west could check out the Heeney Tick Festival held each spring in Heeney, Colo., a small mountain town in Summit County, the Garlic Festival in July in Gilroy, Calif., or in April or May the Ramona Festival in Ramona, Calif., where the community stages outdoor performances of a Helen Hunt Jackson story with some 200 towns people participating.

Mule Day is held once a year in Columbia, Tenn., which happens to be the mule capital of the world. The Saturday parade includes local mule teams as well as mule teams from all over the world — joined by country bands, high school marching bands and Girl Scouts. The festival includes a liars' contest and square dance (for people).
