Library vote unlikely in 1996

For now, library officials have decided not to ask Canton voters to consider a bond request in 1996, even though the library continues to be pressed for space.

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Canton library trustees aren't likely to ask voters in 1996 — a year after voters turned down a similar request — for a bond issue to expand and renovate the library on Canton Center Road.

"I think the best thing you could do is survey the community," Library Director Jean Tabor suggested to the library board Aug. 16.

The decision to not ask voters for additional tax dollars to expand the cramped library was not unanimous or without debate. Trustees David Bone and Bill Simmerer voted to put the issue before voters at the presidential election.

"It is not something we should feel personally affected by. It needs to be done. We should get out there and do it," Bone said.

A number of trustees agreed with Tabor that it would be wise to find out how voters feel about the library, who uses the facility, what they use it for, what would they like to see added to the library and are they willing to pay for an expansion. Tabor expects to ask township officials when their next survey will be conducted and whether questions about the library can be added. A survey of voters was not conducted prior to the April bond issue vote.

"We are going to try to do as much as we said we would do, especially in technology," Tabor said, in light of the April 1995 bond issue defeat.

Some trustees expressed concern about asking voters again for financial help to expand so soon after the April denial. "The downside risk is that the public will feel it gave us an answer," said library president Greg Stachura.

Lions' mascots carry on tradition

Roaring tribute: Dad Dan Baker and son K.C. Baker are following a tradition in their family, handed down over the generations, to serve as mascots for the Detroit Lions.

BY MARY RODRIQUE
STAFF WRITER

When Canton teens Brian and K.C. Baker prance around the Silverdome in Lions costumes as official team mascots, they are continuing a tradition going back three generations.

It started back in 1934 when their grandfather William Baker was offered the unusual public relations job for the brand-new Detroit Lions, then playing at Briggs Stadium. William was the official Lions mascot until his death in 1960. Then his son Dan (Brian and K.C.'s dad) took over.

Now Dan and his two sons — wearing furry costumes of adult lion, teen lion, and cub — cheer the team on at every home game of the season, including exhibition games during the sticky hot month of August.

"It's a very fun thing to do," said K.C., an eighth-grade Pioneer Middle School student. "But it gets very hot in there. We drink a lot of Gatorade and water and we rest during halftime."

"It's exciting to meet a lot of the players," added Brian, a freshman at Plymouth Salem.

Both boys have been romping around the Silverdome as mascots since they were 5 years old.

"It was kind of scary when I was little," K.C. said. "I stuck pretty close to my dad."

Brian says he doesn't even remember that first season as a team mascot. But recent memories are good.

Tractor restoration has him feeling proud

BY MARY RODRIQUE
STAFF WRITER

Where most people would see a pile of rusted junk, Dean Juergens saw a diamond in the rough.

"It was a basket case," said Juergens of the 1935 B Model John Deere tractor he came across two years ago.

"Rubber was crumbling off the tires. It was growing roots. I had to have it."

Juergens works in his family's business, Canton Power Equipment on Ford Road west of Canton Center, a sales and repair shop for lawn and garden equipment.

The dilapidated tractor had been sitting idle in the woods just a couple miles west of his business for over 20 years. It still had the original brass oil filter. He gave the owner a 47-inch mower deck in exchange for the tractor.

"I felt sorry for it," he said.

Up until a month ago, Juergens spent nearly all his spare time meticulously restoring the tractor, even sitting in the bathtub during the winter months wet sanding parts.

"I couldn't wait for good weather," he explained. "My girlfriend almost disowned me. I worked on it religiously for two years. All it needed was everything," he said.

There were moments of frustration big and small. Parts for the 60-year-old machine weren't always readily available.

"I'd get discouraged and walk away for a week or two. But I never gave up."

He figures he spent about $8,000 on the restoration — not counting his hours of labor — tinkering on the job if possible and at home in his South Lyon apartment.

The restoration, his first ever, was finally completed just in time for the Plymouth parade for the Fourth of July. He drove the bright green and yellow 14½-horsepower machine down the parade route to crowd approval.

But the real payoff came recently when Juergens' prized tractor was named Best of Show at the Tractor Expo Aug. 10-12 in Grundy Center, Iowa.

"It's the world series of tractor shows," he said. "It's very prestigious to be considered, let alone take the top prize."

Mobile post aids police, firefighters

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

It's sort of an office and headquarters on wheels for Canton police and fire personnel.

"We will use it for complex or large operations where we would be on the scene for a long time," said Canton Fire Chief Mike Rorabacher.

The public safety department's new mobile command post is a converted motor home that offers radios, cellular phones, a cellular fax, a work area for communications and tactical operations. It also offers an on-board generator.

The $50,000 command post will be used soon when public safety conducts an emergency exercise at Canton-Plymouth Mettetal Airport. The new post replaces an older, converted rescue squad that had been used for years.

Rorabacher said the mobile command post doesn't have to wait for an all-out disaster — such as at the airport — to be used. It can be used for house fires, such as the one at the Dell'Orco home in December, 1990. "It was such a tragic fire. There was a lot of work to do at the scene," he said.

The unit will allow command officials who direct an operation to be closer to the scene. It also frees up dispatchers at the public safety department because calls can be directed to and from the mobile unit, Rorabacher said.

The unit also will allow police and fire officials to get victims and relatives out of the tragedy and into the mobile command post where they can be interviewed.

"It has a lot more room and is a lot more accommodating. This unit will complement making rational decisions," Rorabacher said.

Road projects continuing as planned

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI

■ Financed through a special assessment district, the paving of Beck should begin at the start of October.

The end of summer may be coming on fast, but you'll continue to see plenty of road projects undertaken in Canton before freezing weather arrives.

"We have made great progress so far this year," said Tom Casari, township engineer.

But there's more to be done. Bids were recently received for the paving of Beck Road from Cherry Hill to Geddes. "We got some good numbers," Casari said.

Financed through a special assessment district, the paving of Beck should begin at the start of October. Completion will probably be next year because of a couple of bridges that need widening and two miles of paving.

Plans are about two weeks away from being submitted to Wayne County for review and approval for the realignment of Canton Center Road with Belleville Road. "We'll take bids this year and maybe get some of the work done," Casari said.

Canton Township is providing a local match for the realignment, while the remaining tab will be paid with federal transportation improvement funds.

A third project calls for the paving of gravel streets in the Canton Hills subdivision, north of Michigan Avenue. The township is paying for the paving of about three streets through its community improvement fund.

Plans for widening Canton Center, from Cherry Hill to Ford Road, to five lanes are still in the works. Preparations for the appraisal of land that will be needed for the widening are being completed. "I don't see that going this year," Casari said. This project will be financed with federal money.

The township will pay for the paving of Koppernick, east of I-275, to serve the Holiday Park subdivision. A winter bid is expected, with construction in the spring.

Contractors for Wayne County are continuing to repair the base of Lilley Road north of Ford. Once the base is repaired, repaving should follow. "We were told it will be completed this year," Casari said.

Participants in a special assessment district that includes Canton Township will pay for the paving of Palmer, Lotz to Hannan. A move is afoot to pave Haggerty, between Palmer and Haggerty, through a special assessment district. But that won't happen until next year.

Work continues on the resurfacing of Cherry Hill, east of Haggerty, by Wayne County. Meanwhile, work has been completed on the intersection of Palmer and Canton Center and the Summit Boulevard, which provides a connector to Beck Road. The new signal at Palmer and Canton Center has been a boon for motorists.

"With the signal you've got more gaps on Canton Center," Casari said.

Trustee Beverly Way prefers to wait until 1998. "The community has not felt the need for this library (to expand)," she said.

Tabor said the library is making the most of its existing space. Library staff Friday moved the adult non-fiction collection to make room for other materials. An office also will be transformed into a computer room for youths. And trustees are considering using the large library meeting room for quiet study — a decision expected to concern homeowners associations and other groups that use the room regularly free of charge for meetings. The children's activity room at night also will be used for quiet study.

"I don't think we'll have a problem in 1998," Way said, adding that by then it will be apparent how cramped the library is and in need of additional space.

Bone said that waiting until 1998 doesn't really matter. "It's all going to be the same problem. My belief is that it's basically a sales job."

So far this year, the library is up to 394,303 items circulated. That's compared to 370,806 at the same time last year. Total circulation for 1994 was 627,796.

Patrons who would vote on the library issue don't necessarily use the library at night when it is most crowded. "By 1998, we will show a lot more wear," Tabor said, adding it might be wiser to wait for the new subdivisions under construction to fill with families.

Responding to concern that a vote in 1996 could hurt the library's credibility with voters, Bone offered an opposing viewpoint. "If we go in 1998, the average voters won't remember we went for a vote in 1995," he said. "I think the more you do this, the more we show the need for this."

Library officials unsuccessfully asked voters in April to support an $8.8 million bond issue to be repaid over 10 years with an average .80-mill tax increase.

Money from the sale of bonds would have expanded the existing 31,000-square-foot library to 56,000 square feet. The expanded facility would have included more seating, more tables, more quiet study rooms, as well as group study rooms, a genealogy room, advanced technological capabilities and a Friends of the Canton Library gift and book shop. Parking also would have been expanded.

The bond issue would have cost a homeowner with a $100,000 house, assessed at $50,000, about $40 annually.

The library expansion and bond issue will be discussed in September at a library planning committee meeting. "They will talk about where do we go from here, as well as long-range strategic planning," Tabor said. "The trustees' decision doesn't rule out a vote in 1996 if something changes or they have other information."

■ The restoration, his first ever, was finally completed just in time for the Plymouth parade for the Fourth of July. He drove the bright green and yellow 14½-horsepower machine down the parade route to crowd approval.

He transported the tractor by trailor to the week-long event in the center of America's farm country.

"This event is not as well known in Michigan, but it's beginning to get more recognition," he said. "Restoration is getting to be very big. Farmers are getting older; they reminisce about the old days. They have money and time to pick up a hobby, which is restoring old tractors."

Dean's father, Bob Juergens, who started the family business 25 years ago, doesn't know where his son picked up his knack for restoration, but he's proud of the work he's done.

"He saw this thing from start to finish and he's done a nice job," Bob said.

The restored tractor sits in front of the business and is eye catching for motorists along Ford Rd.

"I never thought I'd get such a response from people," said Juergens. "They ask what is it; we go from there. The farmers who come in really like it. I originally wanted it to accent the front of the business.

"It was really a labor of love," he added. "It's not so much the trophy; it's just knowing that others are excited about it, too."

At 28, Juergens figures he's probably one of the youngest tractor restoring hobbyists around.

At this point, he's not sure he'll tackle such an ambitious project again.

"My girlfriend needs some quality time now," he said.

And he has no plans to sell his prize tractor, which brought him a greatly detailed gold-plated tractor model trophy from the Iowa competition.

"I won't sell it," he vowed.

He learned that his machine was manufactured on Jan. 15, 1935 and shipped from Waterloo, Iowa, to Romulus.

"So it's always been a Michigan tractor," he said, noting that it probably looks better now than it did when it rolled off the assembly line.

The man Juergens bought it from hasn't seen the transformation.

"I haven't shown him yet," he said. "I'm sure he'll be pretty excited."

Math skills add up to success on big book move

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

It boiled down to a mathematical equation.

"It's like a story problem for librarians," said Rebecca Havenstein-Coughlin, head of adult services at the Canton Public Library.

One of the most popular spots in Canton — the library — was closed Friday to allow 36 librarians and staff to move approximately 125,000 items, including books, audio and video tapes, and CD-ROM discs.

Librarians were moving the items to make better use of existing room in the library. For one thing, it was decided that it was noisy when patrons had to trek through the library's study areas to get tapes. Those tapes and discs are now closer to the front of the library.

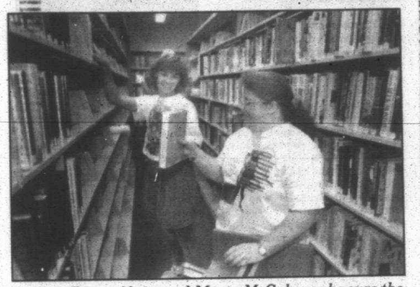

But if you move one thing, you have to move something else. When the tapes and discs were moved, that meant the adult non-fiction collection of books needed moving — and in order.

Unfortunately, Friday morning after the staff started the move, a cartful of books tumbled. But all was well. The books pretty much fell in the order in which they were shelved according to the Dewey decimal system.

"We hadn't been using all the tops and bottoms of the shelves," Havenstein-Coughlin said. As of Monday, patrons can look at the very top and the very bottoms of the stacks of shelves in the adult non-fiction section. Stool have already been purchased to help patrons reach the top of the shelves.

"We had to measure the inches of books," Havenstein-Coughlin said. "We counted up the available shelves and came up with the number of inches we needed for books."

The fervent hope was that the big move would be completed by the end of Friday.

Pot left on stove prompts Canton firefighters' arrival

Listed below are some of the Canton fire and rescue incidents reported during the past week, as well as fire safety tips and programs available free to the community. Year-to-date (Jan. 1-present) runs for the Canton Fire Department: 2,460; last year's total: 3,445. Last week's total runs: 104*

■ COOKING LEFT

Canton firefighters responded to a smoke alarm call at 9:46 a.m. Aug. 10 in the 45000 block of Glengarry to find that the homeowners had left a pot cooking on the stove. No one was home at the time.

Firefighters had to gain entry to the house. They turned the stove off and found only smoke damage, no fire damage.

■ BURNED TOAST

Firefighters responded to a fire alarm call at 8:07 a.m. Aug. 8 in the 42000 block of Lilley Pointe to find that a homeowner had burned toast. Firefighters opened windows for the homeowner to rid the condominium of smoke.

■ OPEN BURNING

A resident was found burning a small amount of wood outside in the 2600 block of Woodmont at 2:12 p.m. Aug. 10. Firefighters told the resident to extinguish the fire and reminded him of Wayne County's ordinance prohibiting open burning.

■ WIRES DOWN

The driver of a semi-truck was not injured when the truck came in contact with a low hanging electrical wire in the 39000 block of Michigan Avenue at 11:14 a.m. Aug. 11.

The wire then fell between the cab and the trailer. The wire was not charged and firefighters removed the hazard.

■ BRUSH FIRE

Firefighters extinguished a brush fire in the 51000 block of Cherry Hill at 9:05 p.m. Aug. 11. Firefighters had to gain entry to the fenced area.

■ CAR ACCIDENT

A man was treated for minor cuts on his nose and arm after he was in a one-car accident at Michigan Avenue and Beck at 2:41 a.m. Aug. 13. The car tore out a hydrant and damaged two telephone poles.

■ OVERHEATED

Firefighters were called to treat a construction worker in the Lotz and Palmer roads area at 2:23 p.m. Aug. 15 who was overheated. When firefighters arrived, they found the man was conscious — a co-worker said he passed out earlier — and was already cooling himself with water from a hose.

Firefighters took his vital signs and advised him to continue cooling himself. The man sought his own medical treatment.

■ SAFETY TIP

Canton firefighters remind residents and motorists to avoid parking in front of fire hydrants, which must remain unobstructed. Residents also are reminded to trim weeds and grass growing around the base of fire hydrants.

■ PROGRAMS OFFERED

Canton residents and businesses are reminded that a number of programs are available to them for free from the Canton Fire Department. Programs include CPR and basic first aid classes, juvenile fire setters, baby-sitter awareness, and tours and department presentations.

■ CPR/FIRST AID

Groups may sign up for training for adult, infant/child and CPR and first aid classes. Groups may be as small as three or four people. Most of the classes are about four hours in length. Participants receive a card that says they completed the course. The only cost to participants is the purchase of a textbook. For more information, contact Sgt. Jim Davison, 453-4114.

■ SAFETY HOUSE AVAILABLE

The fire safety house is available for groups, including homeowners associations and civic organizations. Firefighters use the house to teach home safety for adults and children, as well as fire prevention. For more information, call Canton fire prevention, 397-5348.

Teen-ager who had transplant could be homeward bound soon

BY MARY RODRIQUE
STAFF WRITER

Double lung transplant recipient Greg Unger suffered a mild bout of rejection last Monday, but the family of the Canton teen could bring him home as early as Wednesday.

"Last Sunday, Greg was doing great. On Monday, he started feeling lethargic. By Tuesday, his oxygen was decreasing," said Bill Unger by phone from his son's hospital room last Thursday in St. Louis Children's Hospital.

Greg was treated with a three-day regimen of high doses of anti-rejection drugs. His surgery Aug. 6 was the 15th double lung transplant performed at the hospital this year, and the 90th one overall.

Hospital spokeswoman Kim Kitson said Greg's on a regular floor now and working with physical therapy. His oxygen levels and medication are being closely monitored, she said.

Bill Unger said his son also is experiencing an inflammation of the lungs due to the transplant and might have to stay on oxygen longer until it clears up.

"I've seen slight improvements," said Unger, who has kept a vigil at the hospital along with Greg's mother, Barbara. "We don't feel like he's ready to go home."

"They prepared us for a roller coaster ride and that's what we're going through now. We're optimistic still."

Some earlier concern regarding the larger size of the transplanted lungs has been erased.

"Eventually, the lungs will adapt to his chest cavity," Unger said.

Greg's sister, Jamie, is also in St. Louis, and his brother, Chris, was expected to fly in on Friday. His room is adorned with about 60 cards from well-wishers.

"He's been talking to some of his friends on the phone. He's in pretty good spirits," Unger said.

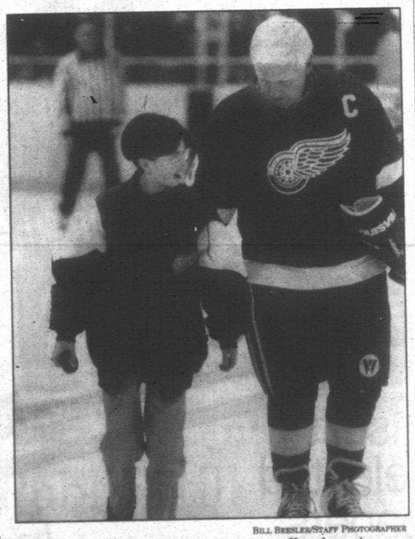

"He walked down the hallway this morning and he's going for physical therapy later today. That should get his blood circulating."

Greg will remain on anti-rejection medication for the rest of his life. Basically, the drugs suppress his immune system to block rejection, but they also make him more susceptible to infections.

The transplant came just before Greg's 15th birthday on August 9. Although he wasn't able to celebrate with birthday cake, he was taken off a respirator that day, "which was the best present of all," according to his dad.

Greg suffers from cystic fibrosis, a genetic disease that affects the lungs and digestive system. Eventually, an abnormal amount of mucus in the lungs suffocates the victim.

Canton firefighters and police officers headed two benefit hockey games with the Red Wings alumni to raise money for Greg. Throughout the year leading up to the transplant, fund-raisers were held in Plymouth and Canton to pay for the transplant and relocation costs.

Is a Michigan MBA that important?

Should we tell the world how important our MBA program is by changing the University logo? We probably couldn't get away with it, but many graduates (and even more potential employers) think that a Masters degree in Business Administration from the University of Michigan is among the strongest in the field. Good news for you.

The School of Management now offers two graduate degree programs at the Dearborn campus. There is a dual degree program leading to both the Master of Business Administration and Master of Science in Engineering—Industrial and Systems Engineering. Then there is the MBA program which is designed as a cross-over vehicle for those whose undergraduate degrees are in areas other than business administration.

Of course, with the Dearborn campus, things are even more convenient for many students. Not easier, just more convenient. After all, this is the University of Michigan.

"Last year I got passed through the crowd. Two guys just lifted me up. Everybody kept throwing me up into the crowd. That was fun."

Footballs signed by various players decorate Brian's bedroom.

"I've never had time to play on a team because of this job, but I play football with my friends," he said.

Friends of both boys enjoy tagging along to the games and have also filled in as mascots on occasion, when either Brian or K.C. gets sick.

When Brian was 12, he remembers sitting on the sidelines during one game when the action came a little too close.

"A player ran into me. Actually, they kind of jumped over me. I wasn't hurt," he said.

K.C. fondly remembers a Halloween party he was invited to at the home of former Lions defensive lineman Jerry Ball.

"I've got a football signed by him," he said.

His current favorite player is Barry Sanders. Brian says he doesn't have a current favorite player.

"I like them all," he said.

Dan Baker took a break from his mascot role in 1962 when he moved to Florida. His older brother, Bill, took over and kept the job until 1975, when the Lions moved to the new Pontiac Silverdome. Then Dan put the costume back on and hasn't stopped cheering for the hometown team since.

"My oldest son, Dan Jr., used to do this, too," Dan said. "He's 26 now and lives in Denver."

The full-body costumes were purchased at the now-closed Van Deaus in Royal Oak, which was also the supplier of many of the elaborate costumes worn during the annual Thanksgiving Day parade. Costumes had to be adjusted as the boys grew bigger.

For Thanksgiving, the trio adds a Pilgrim theme to their costumes.

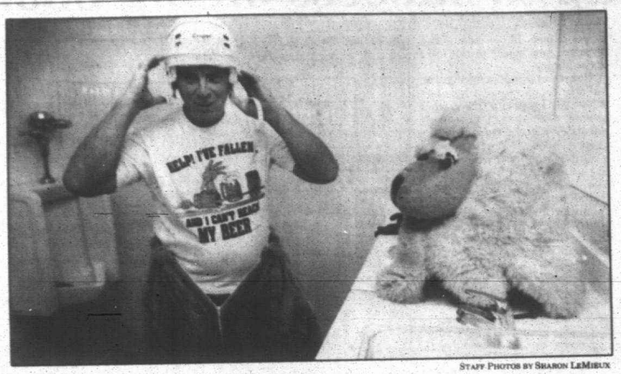

"We just meander around the stadium," Dan said. "Sometimes we ad lib. The fans take it well. Even the visiting fans. We get a lot of Chicago and Green Bay fans when the Lions are playing those teams.

"It gets very hot inside that Lion's head, about 120 degrees," Dan added. "We drink a lot of water. It's especially a lot of fun when the weather gets cooler. The kids meet the players, get autographs and see the game up close."

The Baker family admits being team mascots won't get them rich, but the experience is priceless.

"I'm 56 years old now and this keeps me in shape," said Dan, who is an account manager for Mark VII Transportation.

The Lions' first home game of the regular season was Aug. 17 against the Arizona Cardinals.

Reaching out a school goal

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Members of the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education agree there's a strong need to involve more citizens with the school district. How to pursue that goal was debated last week.

According to a plan presented by Trustee Jack Farrow, a "community involvement committee" would be advisory, with members drawn from the board.

Other board members said they preferred a committee of district residents, who perhaps belong to existing groups such as PTOs or the Community School Council, which includes representatives from all school buildings.

After the June millage proposal failed, the committee was suggested by individuals who contended that perhaps the best time to run a millage campaign is when there isn't a tax proposal on the ballot.

Superintendent Charles Little is all for the idea. "I contacted 72 homeowners associations to speak about the millage, and only 20 responded. They didn't even know who I was," said the superintendent. At the meetings Little did address, "only eight or 10 people showed up."

Little recommended starting with the Community School Council. "It's a growing, cohesive force. After seeing the energy they generate, I think we're on the same page," he said.

Freshman board member Mike Maloney respectfully disagreed. "I missed one PTO meeting in all the time I was on the Allen PTO, and I didn't know the School Council existed," he said.

Several board members emphasized the need to reach the 70 percent of residents who don't have children in school.

Trustee Barbara Graham said that while PTOs and the council "have done an excellent job, they haven't gotten that much recognition. Now we are looking for another committee to do something they are already doing. We keep diluting things with more and more committees."

Trustee Sue Davis said she likes the premise of the I CARE committee, formed in 1989 to help pass a millage. "It's based on volunteerism in the whole community. I want to build something that is districtwide, rather than a body that cares mainly about its own school," she said. "We have to think about the bigger picture."

Said Trustee Mark Horvath: "It sounds like we have a belief that the School Council is coming on. Maybe it's time that as a board and top-level administration, we paid attention to them rather than start a new committee."

Horvath suggested postponing action until a replacement for the retired community relations director is hired.

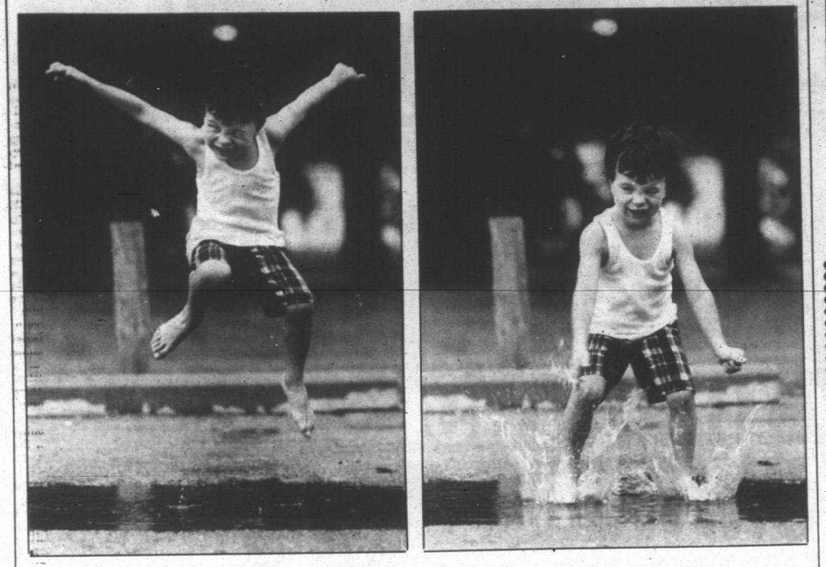

Farrow said he'd draft a revised proposal.

Plymouth City Commissioner Robert Jones was in the audience, and suggested that the committee "have as its mission developing an atmosphere of mutual trust." He emphasized that the district needs to reach the "70 percent of people outside the beltway" who don't have children in school.

Betty Bloch, who heads up the district's business-education coalition, said such a committee is a necessity. "They only time we talk to senior citizens is at the time of a millage. We need to do a better job of reaching out," said Bloch. "I feel there needs to be some kind of umbrella that enfranchises and reaches beyond school buildings to include all citizens."

Legislature to decide

Split state board re-defines 'public school'

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Clark Durant nudged Michigan education a step closer to parochiaid as a split State Board of Education endorsed a new definition of "public schools."

Durant, R-Grosse Pointe, won 5-2 approval Aug. 16 of proposed governance changes that now go to the Legislature. The recommendations face trouble in the House of Representatives, where many Republicans and most Democrats are protective of public schools.

"Much too broad," objected Dorothy Beardmore, R-Rochester, the lone Republican to fight Durant on the board. Current law defines public schools as school districts, intermediate districts and public school academy corporations.

The new draft would redefine a public school by its "mission" of teaching academic skills. It's close to the definition pushed by Teach Michigan, a group that openly favors striking the anti-parochiaid section of the Michigan Constitution and allowing state-paid vouchers to be used by parents at any school, public, private or church-related.

Said Beardmore: "As long as their mission focuses on whatever their mission was, they can go ahead" with assurance of state money. "But how does their approach meet state standards?"

Beardmore said the Durant-backed code assumes public money "belongs to the family or student. It's a terrible blending of private and public money. It's not legal, constitutional or ethical. It's a back-door entrance to viewing the foundation grant (state school aid) as a voucher."

Barbara Roberts Mason, D-Lansing, who joined Beardmore in opposing the new draft, criticized Durant, the board president, for stacking the discussion with backers of charter schools. "I would like to hear three additional people with other viewpoints," she said after hearing Durant's hand-picked speakers, including former Milwaukee superintendent Howard Fuller.

Durant, an attorney and conservative GOP figure elected to the board in 1994 with religious right backing, had his votes lined up and mostly let opponents talk without rebuttal. Voting his way were Republicans Gary Wolfram of Hillsdale, Marilyn Lundy of Detroit, Sharon Wise of Owosso and Ruth Braun of Saginaw. Wolfram and Braun are appointees of Gov. John Engler.

A bone of contention was the charter school concept, also called PSAs for public school academies. Current law allows a limited number for academies to receive charters from universities and state foundation grants while operating largely outside the domain of local elected school boards.

Durant's forces support PSAs with ideology: "choice," "competition" and "freedom." Opponents said PSAs should first be tested and researched.

Fuller, a rumored candidate for Michigan's open superintendent of public instruction job, bluntly urged Michigan to charter an unlimited number of academies, even though "it's too early to analyze" their success in Milwaukee in his tenure.

Opponents said PSAs should be considered experimental until research proves their value.

"It is indeed too early to make any analysis of charter schools in Milwaukee," said Mason.

Said Beardmore: "Before we rush to create more PSAs, we should find out what their successes are and what their challenges are. This has not been thought through," she added, calling Fuller's advice "foolhardy."

Public comments consumed two hours of the board's morning meeting.

"Durant's rhetoric does not match his true meaning," said Joan Donnell, Blomfield Township mother of two. She blistered Durant for forcing the resignation of state superintendent Robert Schiiler Aug. 3. "Dr. Schiller wanted to improve public education in this state, not dismantle it," she said.

"Let charter schools ride their course before we jump ahead to home rule," said Dirk Koorstra, a Zeeland teacher. He warned that smaller "autonomous" schools advocated by Durant "can be controlled by special interests."

Julius Maddox, Pontiac teacher and president of the Michigan Education Association, urged a "sound, researched-based" approach. Maddox said both parties in the Legislature supported core curriculum standards, school accreditation and proficiency tests, and cautioned against "a radical course of change."

Barbara DeMarco, West Bloomfield parent representing People for the American Way, said Durant's agenda is "the destruction of public education." She called "choice" and "freedom" mere "buzzwords."

Julie Dennis, a Rockford teacher, urged research before adoption of "unfounded proposals."

Besides Fuller, one of Durant's chosen speakers was Chuck Stockwell, a 16-year veteran of the Wayne-Westland School District before he left to start a charter school. Stockwell accused the local board of trying to frustrate his group's effort by taking vacant school buildings off the market.

"The department (of education) must become proactive and educate superintendents," Stockwell said. "We've made repeated efforts to talk to our local school board — to no avail."

Stockwell said charter schools face a money hurdle: They can get no state foundation grants until they've been open for three months — at a cost of $500,000 to $1 million in operating capital. "Banks won't even talk to us (about start-up loans). We need to issue tax anticipation notes."

He said vacant school buildings, already paid for by taxpayers, should be made available to groups that want to start charter schools. "Waive the fire marshal code," he said. "That building was OK as a public school for 37 years but not as a charter school today."

Urging "at least 200 charter schools," Stockwell said, "Charter schools could give (educators) freedom to do the job they know they can do."

Beardmore, referring to charter backers criticism of "unnecessary state mandates," said, "I want to know what they are. No one has said what they are."

Survey: Public still likes its schools

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

A telephone survey of 1,300 Michiganians was bad news for critics who say public schools are a big failure.

"People like their schools. Half of the respondents gave their local schools a grade of A or B," said a staff summary of the survey, presented Aug. 16 to the State Board of Education.

The survey showed little enthusiasm for school "choice," a buzzword with board president Clark Durant, R-Grosse Pointe, and political conservatives.

"Nearly two-thirds of the parent respondents said they would not exercise an educational choice if they had one. In fact, parents said they would not take their child out of the school he or she now attends — even if the child could be sent to any private or parochial school at public expense," the report said.

People strongly opposed parochiaid and vouchers — state funds supporting private and parochial schools. Favoring it were 27 percent; opposed were 70 percent; the rest couldn't say. The anti-parochiaid sentiment was even stronger than in 1970, when 57 percent of voters amended the state constitution to prohibit parochiaid and vouchers.

A heavy 84 percent said "charter schools" — favored by Durant and Gov. John Engler — "should abide by the same rules as public schools."

Those surveyed, by random-digit telephone calls, supported statewide standards for education, which opponents call "bureaucratic rules." The survey showed continued strong support for local control — and a low level of confidence in state legislators.

Board member Dorothy Beardmore, R-Rochester, asked for a breakout by Detroit versus the rest of the state because of a perception Detroiters are unhappier with their public schools than others. "I don't want Detroit to be lost in southeastern Michigan figures," she said. "Detroit is very different from the rest of the state and even from southeastern Michigan."

Durant asked if the public's perception of school quality was moving up or down. The answer: up.

Barbara Roberts Mason, D-Lansing, called the survey "attitudinal — not based upon facts. We have a lot of data that schools are better."

Gary Wolfram, R-Hillsdale, said past surveys showed parents in school districts with low MEAP (assessment) scores gave more A and B ratings to local schools than did parents in high-scoring districts.

State Rep. James Agee, D-Muskegon, a former school superintendent and strong critic of Durant, commented outside the board meeting that the survey was "the real story" and that State Board members wanted to avoid giving it much time, even though the board had funded the survey.

Dentistry in the 90s
by Herbert M. Gardner, D.D.S. & Martha P. Zinderman, R.N., D.D.S

ROOT CAUSES OF PAIN
In the event that a tooth is infected or abscessed, the dentist will likely recommend root canal treatment as a means of saving the tooth. Despite its popular reputation, root canal treatment is not painful. Root canal therapy puts an end to this pain by removing the pulp that lies beneath the crown of the tooth and extends down (root) canals into the root(s). Once this soft tissue is removed, the tooth is cleaned, medicated, and filled with a rubber-like material when all traces of infection have disappeared. The affected tooth may then be fitted with a post and crown to render it structurally sound.
We will make every effort to ensure your comfort during root canal treatment. At LIVONIA VILLAGE DENTAL ASSOCIATES, we believe in saving teeth (instead of removing them) and we will make every effort to save yours. Our goal is to help preserve your natural teeth for a lifetime. We're located at 19171 Merriman Road, where our concern is your comfort and confidence. Ounce of prevention comes in form of immunizations

By Linda Ann Chomin
Special Writer

During Dr. Donald Lawrenchuk's 13 years as medical director of the Wayne County Health Department, one of the saddest and most preventable deaths he documented was that of a little girl who had not been immunized against measles.

The child's father had signed a personal waiver during the 1989-1991 outbreak which nationwide caused more than 130 deaths, half of whom were young children.

"We're very concerned about the increasing number of people requesting personal waivers," said Lawrenchuk. "There's a certain amount of complacency, particularly today with our busy lifestyles. It's an easy way out.

"Measles is the most contagious disease of mankind, and one of nine diseases that are vaccine preventable. When kids are most contagious is two-three days before we find the child has the disease. They're incubating the disease and passing it on."

All 50 states require schoolchildren to be immunized against measles. Failure to do so can lead to new outbreaks. If a pregnant woman contracts German measles, or rubella, she can lose her unborn baby or the baby can be born blind, deaf or mentally retarded.

Now that school bells are about to ring, parents and legal guardians need to check if their children are up to date on the required immunizations of DPT (diphtheria, pertussis and tetanus), MMR (measles, mumps and rubella) and OPV/IPV (polio).

Before the measles vaccine was licensed for use in 1963, the disease struck nearly all children by age 15.

Measles is known to cause serious complications, such as pneumonia and brain inflammations, leading to convulsions, hearing loss and mental retardation. Two of every 1,000 children who catch measles die from it.

Add to the high numbers of children unvaccinated because of waivers, the fact that vaccines on average are only 95 percent effective and you begin to see the danger.

"Currently, there is a pertussis, or whooping cough, outbreak in Wayne County," said Lawrenchuk. "According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention in Atlanta, pertussis levels are at the highest levels in 26 years and for every reported case, 10 go unreported. We normally get weekly reports from schools (during the school year), but those are just the tip of the iceberg."

It's the law

State law requires a child, ages 4-6, receive four doses of DPT. If a dose was given on or after the fourth birthday, a booster dose of DPT is required. Most children have five doses. For ages 7-18, if a DPT dose was not given in the last 10 years, a booster dose is required.

Three doses of the polio vaccine ("five" oral or inactivated) are required. If the last dose was not given on or after the fourth birthday, a booster dose is required. Most children will have four doses.

Two doses of MMR are required, with the first dose given on or after the first birthday, the second dose at least 30 days after the first, and at or after 15 months of age.

Begining March 6, 1996, even the youngest of children must complete the required immunizations, including HIB (haemophilus influenza — type B) or they will be excluded from attending child care centers, group residences and preschool programs.

The Livonia, Wayne-Westland, Garden City, Plymouth-Canton, Clarenceville, Redford Union and South Redford schools require a record of dosages to be presented at the time of enrollment. State law prohibits a principal or teacher from admitting a child to school without proof of the required immunizations.

The State of Michigan provides a booklet to simplify record keeping. Children who have not received the immunizations required by state law will be excluded from school on the first day of school.

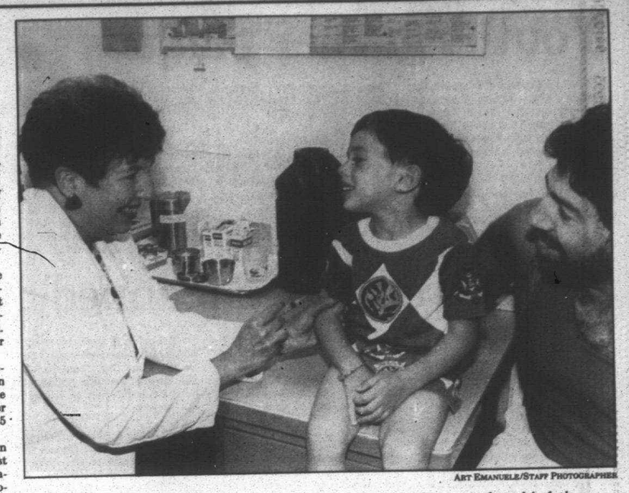

Controversy over the safety of DPT in the last few years could be the reason parents in greater numbers are signing personal waivers. However, diphtheria is nothing to fool around with. One out of every 10 people who get the disease dies. Tetanus, with complications ranging from convulsions to broken bones, kills three out of every 10 people contracting it. Pertussis, or whooping cough, can be just as deadly.

"In Michigan, we haven't had those problems with DPT because Michigan produces their own vaccines," Lawrenchuk said. "I don't think anyone would dispute there have been cases of death, but the benefits far outweigh the risks. In the 51-year history of the Wayne County Health Department (in the clinics), we've never had a serious reaction like death or an anaphylactic reaction."

Youths garner plaques

Four of 35 Junior Olympic finalists from Canton Township who participated in the Detroit Metropolitan Area Youth Fitness Meet in July came home with plaques and placed in their events.

More than 1,500 boys and girls ages 7-14 competed in the 38th Annual Youth Fitness Track and Field Meet at Belle Isle park in Detroit. Forty-five communities were represented in the finals.

Winners represented Class A (ages 13-14), Class B (ages 11-12), Class C (ages 9-10), or Class D (ages 7-8).

Winners from the Canton Junior Olympic program include:

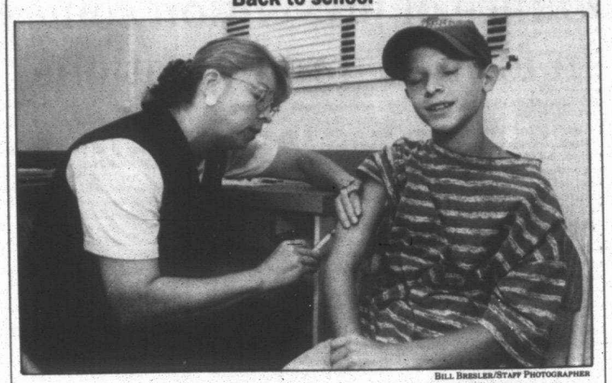

■ Mike Horgan from Carriage Hills Park, who placed third in Class C running long jump with a jump of 8 feet, 9¼ inches.

■ T.J. Tomasso from Kingsway Park, who placed first in Class B running long jump with a jump of 11 feet, 9 inches.

■ Kendra McKinney from Windsor Park West, who placed first in Class C chinning with 12 chin-ups. McKinney holds the Detroit Metropolitan Area Youth Fitness record in Class D chin-ups with 13 chin-ups in 1993.

■ Angie McKinney from Windsor Park West, who placed first in Class B standing long jump with a jump of 6 feet, 1.2 inches.

Wayne-Westland district hires 48 teachers, 7 administrators

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

In a massive hiring effort just two weeks before the start of school, the Wayne-Westland school board recently employed 48 teachers and seven administrators, closing the gap on vacancies created by an early retirement plan.

Most new teachers have been hired at entry-level salaries of $27,620 — far less than their predecessors, who had earned as much as $55,000.

Some 160 educators last school year accepted a $50,000 payout, to be paid in monthly installments over eight years. The district also paid $14,000 in taxes for each employee, boosting the retirement incentive to $64,000.

The district still is tallying the savings that will come from replacing top-salary educators, an employee services secretary said Tuesday.

At a Monday night meeting, school board member Patricia Brown commended district officials for ensuring savings by hiring entry-level teachers.

Many of the teachers are new to the profession; some have served as substitute teachers in Wayne-Westland.

On a gloomy note, board member Debra Fowlkes was disappointed that the 48 new teachers include absolutely no minority educators.

Few gains have been made since a 1992 outside audit noted that Wayne-Westland has few minority teachers compared to a 13-percent minority student population.

Dan Slee, assistant superintendent for employee relations, said the district has unsuccessfully sought minority teachers.

"We are mindful of the situation," he told Fowlkes, "but we have seen hardly any minority candidates.

"I don't believe they are being graduated from college," he added later.

The district has had better luck hiring minorities for administrative posts in recent years, but finding teachers remains difficult, Slee said.

"We are mindful, and we are searching," he said.

Board President Francis "Bud" Winter said many minorities choose private-sector jobs that pay more money.

Following is a list of newly appointed administrators, whose salaries couldn't be obtained Tuesday from the employee services department. A secretary said some salaries weren't yet known.

■ Charles Heard, director of instruction, will be the new executive director for elementary education.

■ Barbara Skone, a longtime Wayne-Westland elementary teacher, will be the executive director for curriculum development.

■ Carolyn Packard, a former Wayne-Westland teacher consultant, will be the director of special education.

■ Michael Steinhebel, vice president of the Royal Oak-based Servicar of Michigan, will be director of transportation.

■ Karen Zokas, a former Grosse Pointe principal and Plymouth-Canton assistant principal, will be principal of Hamilton Elementary School.

■ Nancy Raynes, a Pinckney classroom teacher, will be principal of Vandenberg Elementary School.

■ Christina Bak, a longtime Wayne-Westland gym teacher, will be assistant principal of Wayne Memorial High School.

Two executive secretaries also have been added, Janice Kienman in general administration and Donna Beyer in business. Both have held other district positions.

Student lunch prices in Wayne-Westland on upswing this year

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Wayne-Westland students will pay more for school lunches this year as district officials move to curb rising costs in the food services department.

Despite the price increases, school lunch costs will remain competitive with those in neighboring districts, Superintendent Duane Moore said.

New lunch prices were approved Monday night in a unanimous decision by the Wayne-Westland school board.

Elementary pupils will pay $1.55, a 10-cent increase. Middle school and senior high students will pay $1.75 or $2, depending on their lunch selections. That marks a 15-cent price hike.

Milk will cost another 35 cents.

The prices still are lower than the cost of most fast-food combination meals.

"It's (still) a good deal," school board member Richard LeBlanc said Monday.

Students receiving reduced prices will pay 40 cents for lunch, regardless of grade level. That price is unchanged from last year.

Some 6,000 to 7,000 Wayne-Westland students eat school lunches each day, said Vickie Moore, food services director.

Adults who eat lunch at school will pay higher costs, too, ranging from $1.95 to $2.75. That reflects a 25-cent increase.

The increases follow a study that found Wayne-Westland prices to be lower than many nearby districts during the 1994-95 school year.

Local students could buy meals for less money than their counterparts in Garden City, Livonia, Plymouth-Canton, Ann Arbor and Taylor, to name a few districts.

"We're not out of line at all," Duane Moore said Monday.

Lunch prices didn't change last year, even though the program had to absorb a 9.21-percent increase in employee retirement costs.

Patricia Brand, assistant superintendent for business, noted in a memo to Moore and the school board that retirement costs rose from 5 percent to 14.21 percent on wages.

"Recognizing that it is never a pleasant situation to request price increases, our program has been forced to absorb additional expenditures without offsetting revenue," Brand said. "We would like to assure all that we are continually reviewing the program for cost-saving improvements."

Students can see minor lunch savings by buying weekly tickets that are $7.25 for elementary pupils and $8.75 for secondary students, regardless of their food selection.

Meanwhile, the district this year will implement a state-ordered breakfast program at all schools, following a pilot project that was launched late last school year.

Breakfast costs will remain unchanged at $1 for elementary students and $1.25 to $1.50 for secondary students. Students receiving reduced prices will pay 30 cents, regardless of grade level.

The state has begun requiring most districts to provide breakfast because many students weren't eating at home.

"Breakfast is the most important meal of the day," Vickie Moore said. "You need something to jump-start your motor each day."

mittee chair, has introduced legislation to eliminate the personal waiver or exemption. The bill passed the House of Representatives last year, but not the Senate. The legislation would not affect the medical or religious waivers.

Bankes also is asking the public health industry to take a look at an incentive program for welfare recipients who have their children vaccinated. With the new budget year starting Oct. 1, she also is looking to appropriate money from the $2 million public health budget for a statewide immunization registry. According to Bankes, these measures are of the utmost importance because people's lives are at stake.

"It really hit home for me when my secretary thought she had the measles and an aide in my office had a rare blood disease and couldn't be inoculated," Bankes said. "Because one person had not followed up on the second inoculation, the other person's life was threatened."

■ 'We're very concerned about the increasing number of people requesting personal waivers. There's a certain amount of complacency, particularly today with our busy lifestyles. It's an easy way out.'

Dr. Donald Lawrenchuk

College age students as well as young children need to be protected against diseases like measles. The National Foundation for Infectious Diseases also recommends that the three million college students and adults ages 20-37 receive a second measles shot since some may have slipped through the cracks during the time requirements were being phased in.

Michigan is one of 28 states not requiring a measles booster before a student enrolls in college. If you were born in 1957 or later, ask your doctor whether you are immune to measles, or if you should be vaccinated. It could save your life.

"We need to look at college age students because the older you get, the harder it hits," said Lawrenchuk.

On average, DPT, MMR and OPV/IPV immunizations cost around $60, if given at a doctor's office. Many health insurance plans cover these costs. For those without coverage, free clinics are a boon. The Wayne County Health Department offers immunizations Monday through Friday at its Westland clinic, 2501 Merriman Road, one block north of Michigan Ave. Call (313) 467-3319 for an appointment.

AAA foundation calls for overhaul of driver education

Driver education needs to be "reinvented," advises a new report from the AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety.

Traditional driver education methods teach teens how to get licenses, but do little to reduce crashes. The AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety recommends that young drivers be taught a broad-based curriculum that focuses more on safe driving attitudes and behavior than on basic skills.

The Novice Driver Education Model Curriculum outline recommendations include:

- Developing computer software to teach driving basics;
- Improving in-car instruction with more driver feedback;
- Involving parents in the driver education process;
- Using social pressures to foster safe driving attitudes;
- Enacting graduated licensing systems that restrict new drivers to safer times and locations.

■ The AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety recommends that young drivers be taught a broad-based curriculum.

"We're letting our kids down . . . we're not doing enough, and it's time to do more," said AAA Michigan Vice President Corporate Relations Larry Givens. "Fifteen- to 20-year-olds account for nearly 15 percent of all driver fatalities, but make up only 7 percent of all licensed drivers."

According to Givens, the AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety report supports findings released by AAA Michigan in its study released earlier this year — Portrait of a Young Driver.

Both studies confirm what many have known all along: young drivers are at a much greater risk for crash-related death or injury than the general population; driver education efforts must be enhanced to provide more on-road experience; feelings of "invulnerability" among young drivers are responsible for risky behavior behind the wheel and alcohol use among teens is at an all- time high.

"Teen-agers are inexperienced and do not have the ability to perceive risks appropriately," added David Willis, executive director of the AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety.

For a copy of the "Novice Driver Education Model Curriculum Outline" and report on driver education, contact the AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety, 1440 New York Ave., N.W., Washington, D.C., 20005.(202) 638-5944.

MHS offers reduced fee to seniors who adopt cat

People over age 60 are getting a special invitation to adopt cats from the Michigan Humane Society.

MHS is offering a special reduced adoption fee of $30 to seniors who adopt a cat at any MHS shelter.

Sherry Silk, MHS director of operations, said, "Cats are really ideal pets for older people who may not be able to care for a larger animal. Cats provide companionship and comfort and surprise many first-time owners with their playfulness and affection.

"Owning a cat can have psychological and physiological benefits, too, especially among seniors. Studies have shown cat owners to be less lonely and depressed, and some have even experienced lowered heart rates and blood pressure."

The Michigan Humane Society's adoption fee includes sterilization, age-appropriate vaccinations and a 15-day health guarantee. Adoption hours at MSH shelters at 3600 Auburn in Rochester Hills and 37255 Marquette, Westland, are noon to 7:30 p.m. Wednesday through Friday, and 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Butter churns up flavorful memories

Having just returned from a two week vacation in Maine, I thought it only fitting to talk about lobsters, and butter.

I loved reading Irena Chalmers description of butter in her latest book "The Great Food Almanac," (Collins Publishers, copyright 1995, $25).

Chalmers writes "there is something mystical about the way butter forms in golden globules simply from agitating pure white cream for a given amount of time in the dark confines of a churn.

"Butter making is in a sense an act of creation, and in declining its rich rewards, whatever our reasons, we fail to complete a ritual that has been in place around the world since prehistoric times."

I know exactly what Chalmers was referring to in that quote. On vacation a woman next to me in line at Beal's Lobster Pier requested diet margarine instead of the real stuff to dip her lobster morsels in.

Let's begin by exposing all those faux butters out there. There are about the same number of calories in butter as margarine, but butter lovers tend to eat more butter than margarine eaters do. Sprinkle on butter substitutes contain salt, rice starch, lecithin, annato and tumeric. Natural as these ingredients might be, real butter is closer to nature. A wise man knows when food contains no sugar, no cholesterol and no calories, it also has no taste.

For the record, yes, I ate my lobster(s) with butter, but relied on the sole little souffle cup (about 2 tablespoons) rather than requesting more. I first cut my lobster (at Beal's it was with my hands) of course, and then dipped my fork (or fingers) in the melted butter and then speared the lobster chunk.

Fat facts

For the record, margarine, like butter, must also contain 80 percent fat, but most margarines are made with refined and hydrogenated vegetable oils. Some might even have additional animal fat.

Real butter is only as good as the cream from which it is made. Anyone who has tasted real, French butter made from Brittany cows knows of what I speak. The cows are fed and milked so the butter making can be coordinated with the first possible transportation to Paris where it is made and sold immediately.

If a trip to the city of romance for butter sounds a bit indulgent, try locating a pound of Plugra butter, developed by Hotel Bar Foods in America; it is as close as it gets to real French butter in taste and texture. The only place I've been able to find Plugra is J.R. Hirt's in the Eastern Market. Then again, if you're lucky enough to get your hands on some real cream from Guernsey Farms in Northville or Caulder's Dairy in Lincoln Park, you might be able to churn some real good butter all by yourself.

Nothing reveals the quality of a cuisine so unmistakably as the fat on which it is based. Bacon arouses memories of the South, olive oil evokes Mediterranean cooking and sweet butter will bring forth memories of fine French foods.

Substituting margarine

Fats tenderize, provide flavor, help bind ingredients together, and produce browning in baked goods. Butter is interchangeable with margarine in most recipes, but real butter should always be used for candy, puff pastry and croissants. Butter margarine blends (60 percent margarine and 40 percent butter) are available and can be used interchangeably.

The best margarine to cook with is corn or soy margarine but other blends made from vegetable oils are acceptable. Because whipped and tub margarine are softer and contain a higher percentage of air, only stick margarines should be used in baking. Reduced calorie products contain 20 percent less fat than butter, and have water and air substituted for fat. Don't use them for baking.

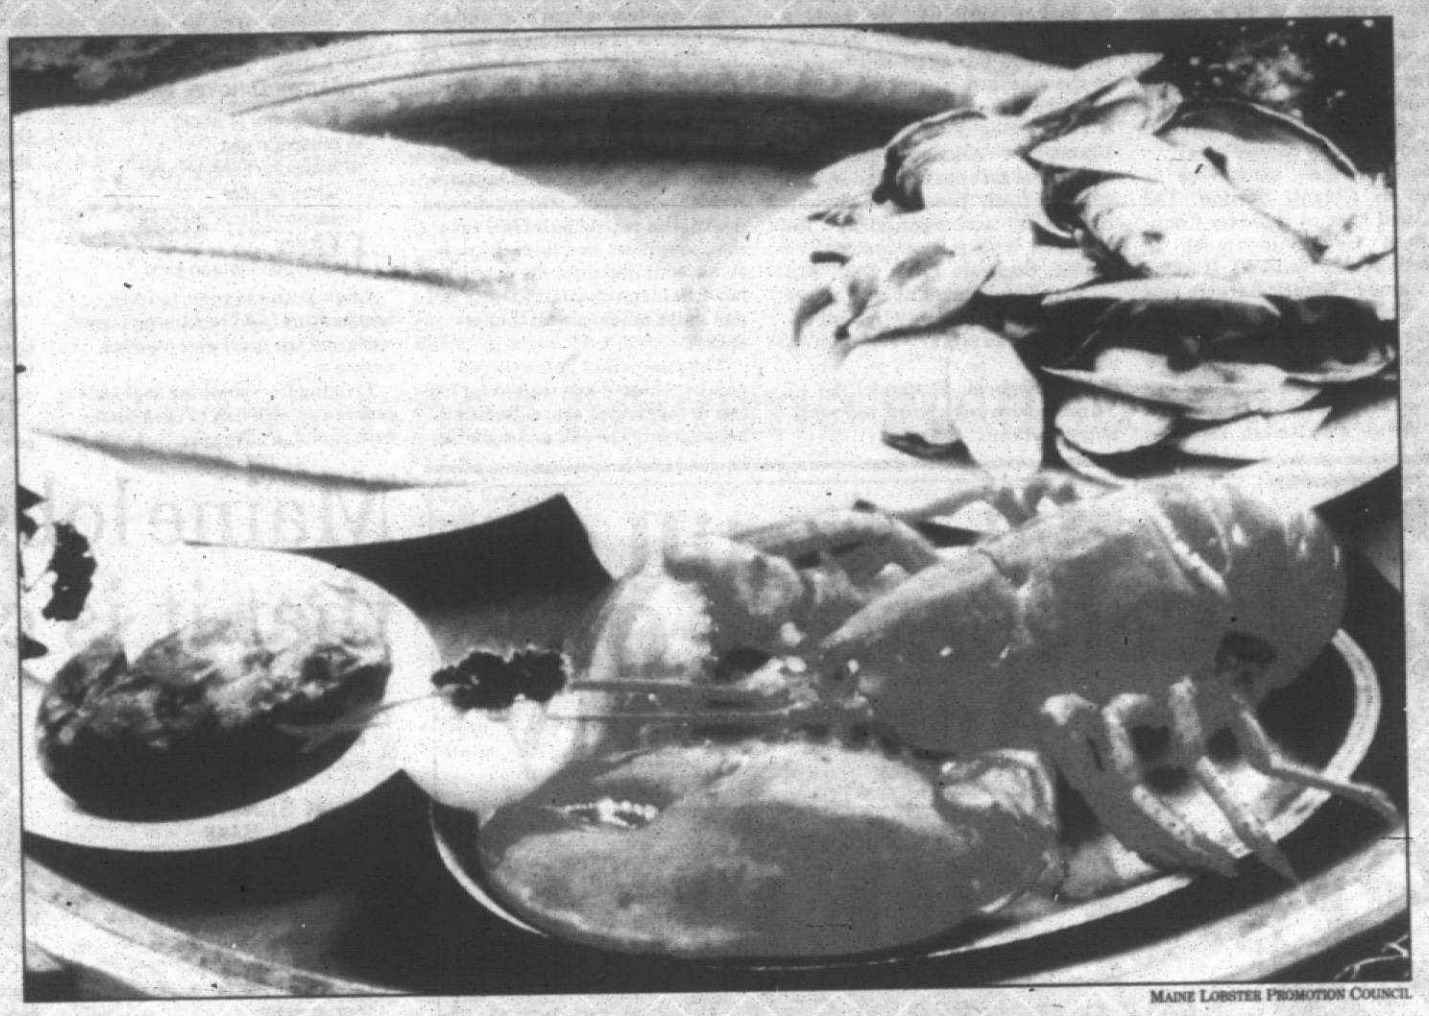

Flavor wise, reduced fat and no fat faux butters and margarine are not a personal favorite. I would rather compromise by eating a little less real butter than giving it up totally for the faux butters any day.

MAINE LOBSTER PROMOTION COUNCIL

LOBSTER IS VERY EASY TO COOK

TAKE A CRACK AT MAINE LOBSTER

AUGUST IS "MAINE LOBSTER MONTH"

BY KEELY WYGONIK
STAFF WRITER

Turn any meal into a special event with Maine lobster. August is "Maine Lobster Month" and the perfect time to experiment with these tasty crustaceans.

"Lobster is very easy to cook," said Kevin Dean, co-owner of Superior Fish Company in Royal Oak. It's also lower in fats, calories and cholesterol than the skinless white meat of chicken or turkey.

According to a study conducted by the National Institutes of Health, a 3.5-ounce portion of lobster contains just 72 mg. of cholesterol, 98 calories, and 0.1 gram of saturated fat. Maine lobster also contains omega-3, a substance that is believed to reduce the risk of heart disease.

Dean said the most frequently asked question about lobster at Superior fish is - "how do I cook them?"

Lobster can be baked, broiled, steamed, grilled, sauteed, stir-fried, boiled and even microwaved.

The two most common ways to cook lobsters are steaming and broiling.

"I like to steam lobster," said Dean. "You need a big kettle. Put a two inches of water in the bottom of the kettle, and bring it to a rolling boil. Put the lobsters in the pot, make sure the heat stays constant, and begin timing. Cook 10-15 minutes per pound."

Dean compares the taste of steamed lobster to steamed vegetables. "If you asked people what tastes better, canned or steamed vegetables, they'll say steamed. When you steam a lobster, you're trapping and retaining the flavor."

Others prefer the boiling method. To boil lobsters, fill a large kettle 3/4 full of water. The Maine Lobster Promotion Council suggests that you allow 2 1/2 quarts of water for each lobster. Bring the water to a boil.

Put in the live lobsters, one at a time and let the water boil again. Lower the heat, cover the kettle, and simmer about 15 minutes for a 1 to 1 1/4 pound lobster and 20 minutes for a 1 1/2 to 2 pound lobster.

When the antennae pull out easily, the lobsters are done. You should be able to easily pierce the meat with a fork.

After you purchase your lobster, don't run home and fill the bathtub with water. Lobsters are harvested from the icy, salt water of the North Atlantic Ocean. They should be stored in the refrigerator or in a cooler.

"Put a cool, damp cloth or newspapers on top of them," suggests Dean. "If you're storing them in a cooler, put the ice underneath the lobsters."

Cook lobster within a day of purchasing them. If you store them in plastic bags, punch holes in the bag to keep air circulating.

Lobster is available fresh or frozen at many supermarkets and seafood stores. Expect to pay a little over $7 per pound. Prices will be lower after Labor Day when the demand isn't as high, and before Christmas.

HOW TO EAT MAINE LOBSTER

1. Twist off the large claws.
2. Crack each claw with a nutcracker, pliers, knife or rock.
3. Separate the tail from the body and break off the tail flippers.
4. Insert a fork where the flippers were and push the tail meat out in one piece. Remove and discard the black vein that runs the entire length of the tail meat.
5. Open the body by cracking it apart sideways. Lobster meat lies in the four pockets (or joints) where the small walking legs are attached. The small walking legs also contain excellent meat, which can be removed by sucking on the ends of the legs.

Seghesio Winery is 100 years young

In 1895, Angela and Edoardo Seghesio bought their first grape ranch in Sonoma County, Calif. Known today as the "Home Ranch," it is the site of the original family residence and the first Seghesio winery, which was built in 1902. Seghesio wines are known for quality and value. Chef Brian Polcyn of Muskie's Urban Pier in Auburn Hills gives Seghesio's Sangiovese high marks for its ability to match well with food. The grapes for the Seghesio Sangiovese come from vineyards planted in 1910.

Although Seghesio can boast a 100-year history in the wine business, their bottled wines have only been available via retail and restaurant sales since 1983. It is phenomenal that this wine family was able to persevere through years of bulk wine production, Prohibition, and the Great Depression to launch the Seghesio wine brand. Imagine that prior to Prohibition, California had 700 wineries and today, there are just 800!

When 30-year-old general manager Peter Seghesio recounts the family history, he reminds us that "Wine is our history, our tradition and our way of life." The family kept its vineyards alive during Prohibition by selling grapes to home winemakers (200 gallons were allowed per household) while the winery was closed. When Prohibition was repealed in 1933, the winery reopened, and wine production resumed.

Winemaker Ted Seghesio believes the new wine brand benefits from a long family heritage tempered with youth and innovation. "We are an Italian, family-owned winery, but we are not old-fashioned," he said. "Seghesio wines are not locked into a past era."

Seghesio wines benefit from grapes grown in established vineyards that Ted guides into wine. "My goal is to make a wine that is accessible when young, yet balanced to age," he emphasizes.

Today's wine consumer can thank the Seghesio family for preserving their sangiovese, barbera, zinfandel and nebbiolo, rather than pulling out the vines during Prohibition. "Although we didn't destroy our vines, we didn't know what we had either," Peter admits. "Most of these varieties were sold to other wineries in a category known as 'mixed blacks' or they became part of a red blend."

Currently, Seghesio is propagating sangiovese using clean budwood from its own vineyards. The expansion will increase sangiovese plantings to 40 acres, as well as 10 acres of barbera and more aglianico. "We are using St. George rootstock," said Ted, "the original rootstock used by grandpa Seghesio. It's been working for 100 years, so why change now?"

The old-vines sangiovese is known as Chianti Station. Ted explained that in Sonoma County, from Geyserville north to Cloverdale, the railroad stations were named Chianti, Barbera and Asti. The original 10-acre sangiovese planting was adjacent to the Chianti Station.

"We're just getting back to what we started with," claims Peter. "We've had Italian varietals and zinfandel planted all along. And here we are in our 100th year with our best hillside vineyards planted to those varieties. The next 10 years will bring the most aggressive replanting program this family has ever experienced. We'll plant 140 acres, 50 percent to Italian varieties. We have a dream for a new winery by 2000, but for now our effort will remain in the vineyard.'

Tasting the wines of Seghesio:

■ 1994 Seghesio Sauvignon Blanc, $7 — Aromas of grapefruit and citrus zest are followed by flavors of fresh peach and melon. Excellent accompaniment for shellfish, crab or fresh oysters.

■ 1993 Seghesio Pinot Noir, $12 — Light and flavorful with notes of cherries and leather. A very refreshing summer red when chilled.

■ 1993 Seghesio Zinfandel, $9 — Yummy with big cherry, red raspberry perfume.

Clarified Butter

1 pound butter

In a small heavy saucepan, gently heat butter over low heat until completely melted.

Remove butter from heat and set aside. Allow to stand for 10 minutes. This allows the milk solids to settle to the bottom and the scant foam of salted butter to rise to the top.

If butter was salted, using a teaspoon, skim top of melted butter to remove white foam. (Do not discard, use this on vegetables!) Now wipe the spoon clean and skim the pure yellow butterfat from the pan or bowl. Skim until a milky white residue (milk solids) are all that remains.

The pure yellow butterfat can now be reheated and melted for lobster or for making sauce. Be careful because with the salt and milk residue removed, butterfat hardens to rock solid when chilled. It can be kept almost indefinitely covered securely in the refrigerator. Serves 10-12 about 2¼ tablespoons each.

Looking for something great over a great grilled steak or corn on the cob? Try this!

Maitre D'hotel Butter

¼ cup butter (1 stick)
½ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon fresh ground white pepper
1 teaspoon fresh chopped parsley
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Allow butter to come to room temperature. Add remaining ingredients and stir until well blended. Serves 4.

Looking for something sophisticated to go with fish or even better with shellfish? Try this!

Shrimp Or Lobster Butter

1 pound shrimp or lobster shells (ask your fish monger)
½ cup butter

Dry the shrimp or lobster shells by placing them on a baking sheet in a very low (about 250 degree F.) oven for 45 minutes to one hour or until shells are very dry. Break shells up as finely as possible. I crush mine in a food processor with the metal blade, but you can pound them (with a mortar and pestle) or run them through a food grinder.

Melt the butter in a heavy saucepan over low heat. Add the crushed shells. Bring the butter to a simmer and remove from heat. Do not allow the butter to boil.

Line a sieve with muslin or cheesecloth and strain the warm butter into a bowl. Makes about ½ cup.

Here's a butter sauce that is as good on escargot as it would be on a fillet right off the grill. A little effort is involved, but trust me, it's worth it.

Sauce Bourguignonne

2 cups dry red wine, preferably Burgundy
2 tablespoons minced shallots or mild onions
5 sprigs parsley
Pinch of thyme
¼ bay leaf
2 tablespoons chilled butter

Combine the red wine, shallots, parsley, thyme and bay leaf in a heavy saucepan and bring to a boil. Continue cooking until mixture is reduced by half (to about 1 cup).

Strain the mixture and return to the saucepan over very low heat. Using a whisk, quickly whisk in chilled butter ½ tablespoon at a time, whisking constantly over low heat until sauce thickens. Makes about 1 cup.

Maine lobster is everything that it is cracked up to be

See related lobster story on Taste front. Recipes compliments of the Maine Lobster Promotion Council.

Maine Stovetop Lobster Bake

4 pounds Great Eastern Mussels
4 (1¼ pound) Maine Lobsters
12 small red potatoes
4 ears sweet corn
4-8 small boiling onions
2 cups water
1 cup (2 sticks) butter
2 lemons, cut into wedges
2 tablespoons salt

Rinse mussels in cold water. Pull black threads out of mussels at the hinge of the shells. Parboil onions and potatoes. Shuck corn, leaving innermost husks.

Place roasting rack in the bottom of a large (12 by 16-inch) roasting pan. Place lobsters on top of rack and arrange corn and onions between the lobsters and sides of the pan. Add mussels and potatoes, being careful to keep the top of the Bake level.

Add salt to water, pour water in pan. Cover tightly with lid or foil and place on the stovetop or preheated grill to cook. If using a grill make sure the coals are very hot. Start timing the Bake when you first see steam. Cook covered for 15 minutes. Serve with melted butter and lemon wedges on the side. Serves 4.

Steak 'n Lobster Kebabs

2 pounds sirloin
6 large frozen lobster tails, thawed (or 12 small tails)
½ cup beer
½ cup salad oil
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon honey
2 tablespoons snipped fresh chives (2 teaspoons dried)
1½ teaspoons snipped fresh parsley (½ teaspoon dried)
1 teaspoon snipped fresh basil (¼ teaspoon dried)
Fresh ground black pepper to taste
Lemon wedges

Cut sirloin in 1½ inch cubes. If lobster tails are large, cut crosswise in thirds, leaving shell on; if small, leave them whole.

Combine beer, oil, lemon juice, honey, chives, parsley, basil and pepper. Marinate beef and lobster in marinade for 1-2 hours. Thread meat and lobster alternately on skewers. Grill the kebabs, turning and basting with marinade, over hot coals for 15 minutes or until lobster flakes when tested with a fork and beef is done as desired. Serve hot with lemon wedges. Serves 6.

Coastal Lobster And Scallop Bisque

1½ pound live Maine lobster
2 tablespoons butter
½ pound scallops
1 quart half & half
Few drops Tabasco sauce
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Salt & pepper to taste
2 tablespoons fresh chopped chives

In a large pot of rapidly boiling water, cook lobster for about 4 minutes. Remove and cool. Remove meat from claws and tail, cut into chunks. In a heavy bottom pot, melt butter until bubbling. Add scallops and saute about 2 minutes.

Add lobster and cook about 1 minute. Slowly add half & half, Tabasco, and Worcestershire sauce. Simmer for 10 minutes. Adjust seasoning with salt & pepper. Serve in heated bowls and sprinkle with chives. Serves 4.

Lobster Saute With Linguine

3 (1¼ pound) Maine Lobsters
1 pound Linguine
2 cloves garlic, minced
1½ cups onion, sliced
2 tablespoons butter
½ to ¾ cup mushrooms, sliced
¼ cup white wine
2 cups fresh tomatoes, peeled, seed and diced or canned, pasta-ready tomatoes
½ cup lobster broth
½ cup heavy cream or yogurt
½ cup scallions, cut ½-inch long
2 tablespoons parsley, chopped
Old Bay or seafood seasoning, to taste
¼ to ½ cup Parmesan cheese, grated

Steam lobsters (1 per every 2 persons), in 1 inch of water for 8-10 minutes. Remove, and let cool. Reserve ½ cup of liquid (lobster broth). After lobsters cool, pick meat out of the shells and dice in large pieces. Carefully extract the claw meat and leave whole.

Cook the linguine. In a large skillet, saute garlic and onion in butter for 5-8 minutes until onions are soft. Do not allow to brown. Add mushrooms and cook water out of them, then remove and reserve. Add wine and reduce by ½. Add tomatoes and cook 2-3 minutes.

Add lobster broth and cream or yogurt and reduce ¼. Bring to a boil, simmer and add lobster and scallions, parsley, reserved mushrooms and Old Bay or seafood seasoning. Add Parmesan cheese to thicken.

Toss ½ of sauce with cooked linguine. Arrange on plate, pour remaining ½ of sauce over each serving. Top each serving with the whole claw meat. Serves 4-6 people.

Recipe compliments Wilfred Beriau, chef instructor, Southern Maine Technical College, South Portland, Maine.

Choose a low-fat dressing to flatter your salad

LOIS THIELEKE

Low calorie, summer fresh crisp greens and bright vegetables need a dressing to flatter them and you. Preserve the lean look with a fresh light salad dressing.

Two tablespoons of a regular dressing can add 100 to 200 calories with 12 to 20 grams of fat. Two tablespoons of a regular bleu cheese dressing has about 16 grams of fat, while the "lite" version has 7 grams of fat. However, 7 grams of fat in the light bleu cheese has the same amount as regular Italian dressing. Read the label, "light" does mean less fat than the original version, but not lighter on the sodium. Light of one variety can have the same amount of fat as some other regular dressing. The new food labels make it easier to find dressings that are lower in fat, calories and sodium. A dressing that has little or no fat is labeled fat free or low fat.

A standard serving size is two tablespoons for salad dressings. If the label says fat free, the dressing contains less than one-half gram of fat per serving. Fat-free has nothing to do with sodium amount. If you're keeping track of the sodium, you'll want to look for one that has less than 300 mg in a serving. Of course, there are low sodium and sodium free dressings on the market. One of these would have less than 5 mg of sodium per serving. Low-fat salad dressings have no more than 3 grams of fat and is low in calories if it contains no more than 40 calories per serving. A low sodium dressing has no more than 140 mg of sodium per serving.

Buying bottled dressings with less fat sometimes means giving up a lot of flavor, so make your own. Instead of mayonnaise, use equal amounts of plain low-fat yogurt and reduced fat mayonnaise. Using reduced fat mayonnaise reduces the fat from 22 grams to 3 grams. To add a little bite to this, add seasonings such as Dijon mustard and lemon juice. For each one-half of dressing, add about one tablespoon Dijon mustard and one-half tablespoon dried herbs. Flavorful dressing can be made using dried or fresh herbs such as, dill, tarragon, rosemary, oregano and basil. Use the herbs and fresh ground pepper instead of salt.

Vinaigrettes are very popular for dressing a salad. Instead of the usual three parts oil to one vinegar, revise it to one part oil and three parts vinegar. Flavored vinegars such as balsamic, raspberry or tarragon make great dressings. To rid the dressing of fat, don't use oil, just use the flavored vinegar. Rice wine vinegar is a mild flavor that will enhance a salad.

Non-fat buttermilk can be substituted for yogurt in homemade dressings. It is thicker and tangier and makes a moist, creamy dressing for any kind of salad. Fat-free mayonnaise can be blended with a touch of olive oil and a splash of lemon juice which improves both the taste and the texture of the dressing. A dressing from vinegar, lemon juice and a little ground pepper or mustard will add lots of flavor. Lime juice, soy sauce, honey and garlic make a sweet sour flavorful dressing.

Always order dressing on the side in a restaurant, then you control the amount. At home, put about a tablespoon of dressing in a large bowl, add your salad and toss lightly to cover the greens. You'll be amazed how little it takes.

High fat "add-ons" to flavorful greens can make the calories skyrocket. Crumbled bacon, cheese, avocado, olives, marinated vegetables and butter-fried croutons are just a few. Start building your salad and take a look at all the ingredients that add calories, making it a high-calorie food.

Coleslaw can also become a "dieter's nightmare." Go easy on the mayonnaise-based dressing. Make a mock Thousand Island dressing by using plain yogurt, a little ketchup and chopped dill pickles. Mock Green Goddess can be made with yogurt, garlic, lots of chopped chives and parsley, lemon juice and minced anchovies. Tomato juice or chopped or pureed tomatoes make an excellent base for a flavorful, lighter dressing.

Choose a salad dressing that flatters your salad and won't hurt your waistline. Don't make a low-calorie dish into a high-calorie one by adding unneeded fat to a salad dressing.

Cantaloupes become golden jewels

By Christine Venema
Special Writer

All cantaloupes are muskmelons, but not all muskmelons are cantaloupes! Muskmelons is the proper name for the group of melons which we call cantaloup, honeydew, Persian and Casaba. "Musk" is a Persian word for a kind of perfume. Since ripe melons often have a fragrant odor, so the name developed. Along with watermelon, muskmelon belong to the cucumber or gourd family.

The origin of the muskmelon is uncertain. Some authorities claim the Indian Subcontinent while others claim Africa. The Egyptians and Ancient Romans cultivated them. However, the size was much smaller than that seen today. The netted melon called "cantaloupe" in the United States is also known as the nutmeg melon.

A half of a two-pound cantaloupe is 90 percent water. It has 95 calories.

There are 825 milligrams of potassium. One serving has 8,61 0 International units of Vitamin A.

Choosing cantaloupe

The stem end should be slightly sunken, smooth and well caloused. Melons that have some of the stem on them were picked before they were fully ripe — they are not as sweet or juicy.

The webbing should be well-raised, coarse, dry and grayish in color. It should stand out sharply over the entire surface of the melon. The color beneath the netting should be yellow-tinged or bright yellow in color. Be sure it is not too deep, or over-ripe.

The odor should be musk-like, fragrant and sweet.

Softness at the stem end is often considered a sign of ripeness. However, repeated pressing on the end of an immature melon may also make it soft at the stem end. Ripe melons are heavy for their size.

Ripe cantaloupes should be wrapped in plastic warp, a plastic bag, or a sealed container before being placed in the refrigerator to prevent mingling of melon aroma with other foods.

Melons are neither cooked, baked or canned! They can be frozen, but they are used almost exclusively as a dessert in salads and fruit cups, or for a breakfast fruit. Pieces floating in gingerale, or fruit juice make a cooling beverage. Melons are best when served cold!

Wines made in Michigan win gold medals

By Eleanor and Ray Heald
Special Writer

An annual event, the Michigan State Fair Commercial Wine Competition is designed to highlight the ever-improving Michigan wine industry and reward those producers who have made or released exceptional wines during the year.

Even though Michigan is considered a white wine region, there are a number of excellent red wines. Look for the 1993 Chambourcin and 1993 Chancellor from St. Julian. Of 115 wines judged on Aug. 10, 20 percent earned gold medals and are listed below. While results represent the tally of a 13-judge panel (including us), we have personal favorites. They will always be wines that find harmony with foods at the dining table.

One of the best dry rieslings made anywhere in the world is the 1994 Good Harbor. This garnered Ray's Best of Show white wine vote. It has aromas and flavors of fresh apples, is well balanced and doesn't leave a sweet impression. For $9 you have to try it! Eleanor liked the Good Harbor Northern Lights best. For $8, you have to try this one too! Michigan wines are a proof that you don't have to pay a lot of money to get a very good bottle of wine.

1995 Gold Medal Winners

■ Fenn Valley Vineyards: 1994 Chardonel; Brut Champagne; Raspberry; and Classic Reserve White.

■ Good Harbor Vineyards: 1993 Pinot Gris; 1994 Chardonnay; 1994 Riesling; Northern Lights White; Coastal Red Lot 93; and Cherry.

■ Leelanau Wine Cellars: 1994 Leelanau Limited Chardonnay; and 1993 Leelanau Limited Chardonnay.

■ L. Mawby Vineyards: Brut Cremant and 1994 Vignoles Sur Lies.

■ Old Mission Cellars: 1994 Chardonnay.

■ St. Julian Wine Company: Niagara; 1993 Chancellor (Best of Show Red); Solera Cream Sherry (Best of Show White); Raspberry Champagne; and 1993 Chambourcin.

■ Tabor Hill Winery: 1993 Lake Michigan Shore Riesling; Heritage Red; and 1991 Late Harvest Riesling.

Denim reigns over school fashions

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

Whoever it was who said you can't legislate taste probably took his kids shopping for school clothes.

The battle between youngsters who just know they can't live without the latest (and most expensive) fad gear and parents who know their children need clothes that are durable, affordable and appropriate is worth fighting, says Dr. Robert Butterworth, the child psychologist.

"But we shouldn't approach it as a battle," Butterworth said. "It's an opportunity to parent responsibly and build consumer skills in a generation that will certainly need those abilities."

An important reason is that even grade schoolers are treated differently based on how they're dressed. If they look ready to learn, teachers will expect and get more out of them, according to Butterworth. Novelty items might be all right for playtime, but the classics are still the right thing for the classroom.

So what's "classic" for back-to-school 1995? It's a one-word answer: denim.

"You can probably narrow back-to-school fashions down to three key things — texture, layers and shapes," said Amy Knickerbocker, children's area manager at Jacobson's Laurel Park store in Livonia. "Designers are mixing a lot of different fabrics together to create a lot of different textures . . . with lots of layers, like a tee under a three-button Henley with a vest."

This fall, it's not uncommon to find a floral print rayon dress and denim vest worn with a tee. In fact, Knickerbocker said, the vest is a key item in the layered look. There are plenty of fleece jackets, worn over tees and tartan plaids in red, navy and green. And completing the look this fall: layered tights and socks and shoes in patent leather with lug soles or chunky heels.

"That little Mary Jane is now a Mary Jane with lug soles and loafers with chunky heels," Knickerbocker said.

Denim rules

Likewise, denim rules at J.L. Hudson, where kids will be wearing denim dresses, vests, jacket, shorts and accessories, according to M.J. Burns, the retailer's fashion director.

"Denim is absolutely number one in everything," Burns said. "It's the number one fabrication for the 1995 school year."

Denim jeans have been popular since Levi Strauss fashioned the first pairs in the 1870s. Today, it's a critical staple for kids of all ages, and another big fabric is flannel shirts, Burns said.

Denim jeans and shorts, a hot silhouette this fall, are pairing up with flannel shirts, thermal tops, polar fleece tops, college logo sweatshirts and logo athletic T-shirts for boys, with girls donning polar fleece jackets, Esprit logo sweatshirts, embroidered Mickey denim, Mickey jumpers, denim overalls and novelty knit tunics.

For young men, Hudson's has Levi's 550, Silvertab and 560 jeans, flannel shirts, Girbaud Brand X jeans, long-sleeved thermal Henleys, pigment-dyed fleece, screen T-shirts, Guess? Pascal jeans, and printed reverse fleece CPOs.

For juniors, it's ribbed tops, flannel shirts, denim jeans, overalls, vests and jackets, sweaters sets, Henleys, plaid skirts, jumpers and walk shorts, Burns said.

And, again, footwear includes those "good old thick-soled" shoes, made popular by Doc Marten.

"The designer Yves St. Laurent was quoted once as saying that he wished he had invented blue jeans because they have expres-

School supplies are colorful, practical and box office hits

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

"Batman" and "Pocahontas" aren't only cleaning up at the box office. They're among the popular themes for this year's school supplies.

"I think licensed products like backpacks and lunchboxes with 'Batman' and 'Pocahontas' are going to be big sellers this year," said Carolyn Brookter, a spokeswoman for Target stores.

Even though the caped crusader, Pocahontas, Casper the Friendly Ghost and the Mighty Morphin Power Rangers are at the top of the heap, the "Lion King" still roars.

"That, for some reason, has really hung on. Kids still sing the songs. This has really sustained itself," Brookter said.

According to Kmart. spokeswoman Joy Corneliussen, a "Lion King" backpack is one of the stand-out items at her store.

"We have a 'Lion King' Linticular backpack," said Corneliussen. "It has a hologram that shows Simba from a cub to a lion in 10 different stages."

The role of backpacks has changed during the past year. Instead of just providing a convenient way to carry school supplies, back packs now allow students to show their individuality, said Dave Penrod, divisional vice president, fashion accessories, at Kmart.

"Accessories, perhaps more than any other category, offers kids affordable, versatile ways to make a statement," he said.

Styles at area stores range from micro-mini to mega-size backpacks made with patent or flat leather, denim, plaid, nylon, suede or waterproof material.

They feature locker loops, organizer pockets and padded back straps. Besides cinematic themes, backpacks decorated with license plates, Looney Tunes characters, sports logos, rock bands and Olympic designs also are popular.

Walk down a school supply aisle at any drugstore and it's obvious that bright colors are still "in." Pens, pencils, notebooks and rulers glow from the shelves.

"The brighter-colored ones are the trend among younger kids," Brookter said. "The more colorful and wilder the better."

Nike-brand products are new to Target this year. The sporting company is slam-dunking notebooks, binders, book bags and student planners in solid colors with colorful Nike graphics into stores.

"Student planners are similar to day planners except they may have class schedules, homework pages, or sports schedules. They cover all the different activities in school," said a spokeswoman for one store who wished to remain anonymous.

If backpacks aren't your style, organizer bags are also pegged to be a trend setter. The bags, primarily made from leather, come with tons of compartments for things like makeup and wallets and mansions and even calculators, eyeglass case, agenda, memo pads and mirrors.

Lunch boxes may become a thing of the past. Many customers are opting for mini-coolers instead.

Hot trend: Backpacks are the rage this school year. At Kmart, styles range from micro-mini to mega-size backpacks made of patent or flat leather, denim, plaid, nylon, suede or waterproof material.

BACK TO SCHOOL

On your mark: School districts' starting times vary

Summer vacation is at an end. The mornings of sleeping in are dwindling. The countdown to the start of the 1995-96 school year has begun in earnest.

The first week of school can be confusing at best and mind-boggling at its worst, so here's how Observerland school districts are welcoming students back:

Farmington

Teachers in the Farmington Public Schools will report on Monday, Aug. 28, with school starting for students on Tuesday, Aug. 29.

High school and middle school students should report by 11:30 a.m. Aug. 29, while at the elementary schools, the starting times are:

Beechview, 12:47 p.m.; Eagle, 12:12 p.m.; Flanders, 12:02 p.m.; Forest, 12:02 p.m.; Gill and Gill Year-Round, 12:12 p.m.; Highmeadow, 12:47; Hillside, 12:47 p.m.; Kenbrook, 12:02 p.m.; Larkshire, 12:47 p.m.; Longacre, 12:47 p.m.; William Grace, 12:02 p.m.; Alameda, 12:37 p.m., and Fairview, 12:37 p.m. The Early Childhood Headstart program will start at 12:30 p.m.

Livonia

For the first time in a decade, school starts in the Livonia Public Schools before Labor Day.

K-6 students will attend school in the morning only on Tuesday, Aug. 29. Afternoon kindergarten sessions begin for all students on Wednesday, Aug. 30.

Orientation for middle school students is scheduled for Tuesday, Aug. 29. At Emerson and Holmes, seventh- and eighth-grade students only attend school from 8:15 a.m.-2:45 p.m. At Frost, seventh-grade students only will attend school from 8:15 a.m. to 12:45 p.m. At Riley, seventh-grade students only will attend school from 8:15 a.m. to 12:20 p.m. On Wednesday, Aug. 30, all middle school students will attend a regular schedule.

Plymouth-Canton

In the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, the first day will be Tuesday, Aug. 29. The morning session only will be for kindergarten through 12th grade with no afternoon kindergarten.

Starting times will be 8:45 a.m. at Allen, Bird, Eriksson, Hoben, Miller and Tonda Elementary schools and at 9 a.m. for Farrand, Tanger, Field, Fiegel, Gallimore, Hulsing, Isbister, Smith and Bentley Elementary schools.

sion, modesty, sex appeal and simplicity," Burns said.

According to Mary Kwan, divisional vice-president for the children's division at Sears, while denim is the strongest category for boys and girls this fall, "the ways in which denim is being worn have changed dramatically. Kids are redefining tradition."

The styles are cleaned up yet casual, more structured with simpler silhouettes, a sharp contrast to the grunge look that invaded back-to-school wardrobes several years ago, she said.

This year, girls' wardrobes resemble their older sisters' selections with little tees, kilt skirts, sweater sets, cardigan sweaters and varsity jackets. Girls' kilts and pleated skirts are shorter this fall, and argyles are featuring softer, more weathered colors.

Accessories fall under the theme of "Forever Plaid," including plaid backpacks and sneakers. Patent leather Mary Janes, field boots and hiking boots are the mainstay of girls' back-to-school footwear.

For boys, the retailer is pairing denim jeans with plaid flannel shirts — in traditional plaids, ombre plaids and buffalo check — that serve as jackets when worn over T-shirts. Screen tees, featuring "attitude phrases," fun trendy screens, and character screens continue to be a favorite among boys.

Fleece and polar fleece tops and Sherpa-like trimmed varsity jackets will ward off the cold this fall, and winter and athletic shoes also are popular, according to Kwan.

Other picks

Butterworth has some other picks for kids and parents:

- Plaids are big this year, especially at the Children's Place. The retailer is featuring traditional kilts for girls and big shirts for boys. There's also Chaplinesque suspender pants in plaid for girls.
- Spumoni offers pants, a tartan apron dress and flip skirts for girls and long flannel shorts for boys, all in upbeat plaids.
- Plaids also play big in the T.J. Maxx collections for kids, including a plaid skort for teen-aged girls and flannel banded collar shirt for teen-aged boys.
- Versions from Bonjour include a mixed-plaid bib-top jumper and a front-buttoned mini-kilt.

In style: At Dots, the stylish teen can pair up a No Excuses button-front denim skirt with a blue, green and gray wool blend sweater, ivory backpack and cotton/Lycra navy tights without spending a fortune.

Visit State Fair for Day of Beef

Sunday, August 27 is the annual "Beef Day at the Michigan State Fair." Beef producers and the Michigan Beef Industry Commission will be providing some fun-filled activities and events for "fair-goers."

Plan to visit the Amazing Acre Agriculture Building and sign up to win free steaks in the "Make Mine Beef" contest at the beef booth. While you're at the booth, pick up a variety of quick and convenient beef recipes.

"Be sure to stop by the Community Arts Exhibit Hall on Beef Day," said Maggie Nelson, promotion manager for the Michigan Beef Industry Commission. "At 2 p.m. pre-registered contestants will be competing for cash awards in the exciting Build a Better Beef Sandwich contest." In addition, the audience will have a chance to cast their votes for the People's Choice Award."

Beef cattle production is the sixth largest enterprise in Michigan's agricultural sector. Beef cattle are raised in every Michigan county. Michigan ranks 14th in the number of cattle on feed. Beef sold at retail is 27 percent leaner compared to a decade ago. A three-ounce cooked portion of lean beef contains only 8.4 grams of fat. An average 3-ounce serving of cooked beef has slightly less cholesterol (73 milligrams) than a 3-ounce portion of roasted boneless, skinless chicken (76 milligrams).

Beef is one of the best sources of iron and zinc. Beef contains all the essential amino acids necessary for growth and is a major source of thiamin, riboflavin, niacin and vitamins B-12 and B-6.

Beef is nutrient dense. It has a high level of nutrients as compared to calories. An average 3-ounce serving of lean beef contains 183 calories.

Texas chef shares recipes for brunch

BY LANA SWEETEN-SHULTS
AP NEWSFEATURES

With the arrival of spring comes springtime socials, from bridal and baby showers to Mother's Day brunches.

Goliad, Texas' Joyce Benson has plenty of experience when it comes to preparing such traditional springtime meals. She and her husband, Wallace, operated The Madison Bed and Breakfast for 3½ years before giving up the B&B last June.

During The Madison's three-year run, some interesting guests passed through the Benson's kitchen.

"We had people from all over the world — Japan, Africa and Germany," said Wallace.

Orange Slush

Orange juice, freshly squeezed or reconstituted.
Concentrated cranberry juice

Fill a stemmed glass with orange juice, to about a 1½ inch from the top of the glass. Fill the rest of the glass with concentrated cranberry juice. The cranberry juice will settle to the bottom of the glass.

Spinach Frittata

5 tablespoons butter, for cooking
1 tablespoon olive oil
1 large, chopped onion
1 clove minced garlic
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1½ pounds fresh spinach
5 eggs (or egg substitute)
¼ chopped fresh basil or ¼ teaspoon dried basil
¼ teaspoon oregano
Salt and pepper, to taste
Swiss cheese, shredded, for garnish

In a large skillet, combine 4 tablespoons butter and 1 tablespoon of olive oil. Saute the onion, garlic and nutmeg. Wash, dry, and chop coarsely the 1½ pound of spinach. Wilt the spinach in the sauteed mixture by covering the skillet about 3 to 4 minutes. Puree the wilted spinach in blender.

In a large bowl, whisk the eggs (or egg substitute). To the eggs, add the basil, oregano, salt and pepper. Melt 1 tablespoon butter in skillet. Pour the eggs and cook over low heat until nearly firm, about 12 minutes. as the egg cooks, pick up the edges of the egg and allow liquid from the top to go to the bottom of the pan so that all the liquid cooks. (Cook as you would an omelette).

Place egg in baking dish, then layer the spinach puree on top of egg. Sprinkle shredded Swiss cheese on top, then bake in oven for 20 minutes.

Cut into wedges. Serve as wedges with broiled tomato slice.

Breakfast Casserole

¼ pound seasoned turkey sausage
¼ teaspoon fennel seeds, crushed
½ teaspoon dried Italian seasoning
2 cloves of garlic, minced
2 (8-ounce) cartons egg substitute, one being herb-seasoned
1 cup skim milk
¼ cup shredded cheddar cheese
¼ cup chopped onion
salt and pepper
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon red pepper
6 slices white bread, cut into ½-inch cubes.

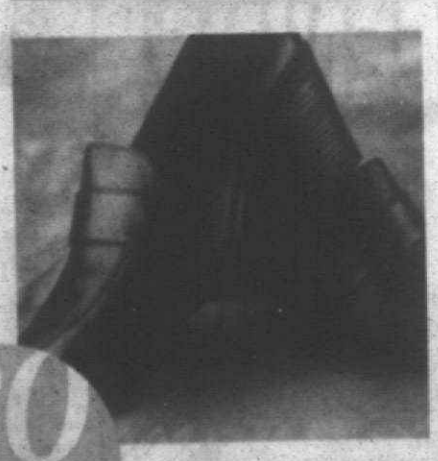

Saute the turkey sausage, fennel seeds, dried Italian seasoning, and garlic in a large skillet until meat is browned. Combine the egg substitute, milk, cheese, onion, salt, pepper, dry mustard, red pepper and white bread cubes. Mix the egg mixture with the crumbled sausage mixture and pour into a 11-by-7-by-2-inch baking dish which has been sprayed with vegetable spray.

Cover and refrigerate at least 8 hours. Bake uncovered in a 350-degree oven for 50 minutes or until set and lightly browned. Let stand 10 minutes before serving.

Daly places 2nd

Daly Restaurant put on a good performance in its trip to the Class A Women's Fast Pitch Softball National Tournament, hosted by the American Softball Association Aug. 11-13 in St. Louis. But it wasn't quite enough to overtake the eventual champion, Hot Stuff, of Torrance, Calif.

With some strong pitching by Plymouth Canton graduate and current University of Michigan standout Kelly Holmes, Daly won its first four games by a combined score of 25-3. Holmes won two of those, shutting out the Akron Thunder 8-0 in Daly's second game. She struck out 13 in the six-inning stint.

Holmes, who compiled a 15-6 record, topped the Parsippany Blue Jays (of Ridgewood, N.J.) 2-1 on a two-run home run by Melissa Drouillard in the bottom of the seventh inning. Holmes handcuffed the Jays on three hits.

In its fifth game of the tournament, Daly lost to tourney champ Hot Stuff 3-1, with Holmes absorbing the defeat. She surrendered nine hits in the contest, including a two-run double to Kim Wuest in the seventh that broke a 1-1 tie.

Daly survived to reach the tourney final against Hot Stuff by blanking the Los Angeles Diamonds 6-0, but Hot Stuff was too tough, beating Daly 5-3 in the title game.

Daly, representing the Great Lakes Region, finished with a 5-2 record in the 38-team tournament. The team's final record for the season was 42-10.

Daly second baseman Dawn Godfrey and first baseman Julie Liljeberg were selected to the All-American team. Marci Kelley, who shares the pitching duties with Holmes, and right-fielder Angie Fielder were named second team All-Americans; Holmes, shortstop Drouillard, catcher Cris Wasserman and left-fielder Kelly Thayer were third team All-American choices.

Best in flight

Dolly Vettese, of Plymouth, fired a 46-43/89 to easily capture the second flight at the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association's tournament Wednesday at Greystone Golf Course in Romeo.

Vettese's score was five strokes better than runners-up Mary Kranick and Karen Condino, who each shot 94s.

Football fund-raiser

The Plymouth Canton football team will be at Danny's Foods, located at 250 N. Main in Plymouth, Wednesday from 8 p.m. to 6 p.m. to partake in a fund-raiser. A portion of the money raised during that period will go to support the Chiefs' football program.

Any questions, or those wishing to volunteer to be an adult supervisor, should contact Gail Sarrault at 455-6234.

Basketball registration

The Plymouth Canton Junior Basketball Association will conduct its registration for the 1995-96 season 6:30-8:30 p.m. both Aug. 31 and Sept. 6 at the East Middle School gym.

Association rules stipulate that: Everyone who registers will be placed on a team and must play part of every game; players must live in the Plymouth-Canton school district or in Canton Township; tryouts will be conducted to distribute players, but those interested do not have to be basketball players to register.

Parents interested in coaching and high school students interested in a paid job as a referee may register at the same times. Registration costs are as follows: third and fourth graders (boys and girls), $65; fifth and sixth graders (boys and girls), $70; and seventh and eighth graders (boys and girls), $75.

Tryouts for ninth and 10th graders will be announced at a later date. Team jerseys will be provided, and can be kept by the players.

Softball sign-up

There are still tournament openings for softball teams at the Canton Softball Center, starting with this weekend when the co-ed state tournament is held. There are vacancies for all levels of co-ed teams, both recreation and competitive. Cost is $175 per team.

CSC will also sponsor a Tournament of Champions this weekend. Any team finishing in the top three in its league may enter. Cost is $125 per team, with jackets awarded.

And there will also be a Tavern Tournament this weekend, with any bar/restaurant-sponsored team eligible. Cost is $175 per team.

The fall season is also upcoming. It begins Sept. 5 and consists of six weeks of double-headers. Cost is $395 per team plus umpire fees ($7 per game). Men's, women's and co-ed league openings are available.

For information regarding any of the above, call (313) 483-5600, ext. 102.

Anyone interested in submitting material to Sports Scene may send it to sports editor C.J. Risak, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, MI, 48150, or may FAX it to (313) 591-7279.

In search of a championship

Canton's 'D' will carry load to start with

By C.J. Risak
Staff Writer

It's been more than nine months, but the effects linger still from Plymouth Canton's state championship soccer season.

"We had the biggest turnout ever," said Chiefs' assistant coach Jeff Neschich of the preseason practices, counting 23 varsity and 21 junior varsity players.

Unfortunately, many of them weren't the same players responsible for last year's title success. Gone are top scorers Jeff Fliss, Graham Wilk and Chad Dale, as well as Simeon Alleyne, Lance Pellow, James Bossieux, Jeff Cohen, Keith Gniewek, Jeff Knysz and Shawn Conway.

Fliss is headed to Michigan State to play, with Wilk going to Kentucky, Gniewek to Madonna University and Bossieux to Hope College.

It's a lot to replace from a team that went 20-1-3 en route to its first-ever boys state soccer title. And there's something else missing, too.

Coach Don Smith underwent surgery last month and has been forced out of action. He isn't expected to return until mid-September; fortunately he has an experienced assistant in Neschich, who will run things until then. Smith can do nothing more than watch practices from his car.

It can't make the rebuilding process any easier. But the Chiefs won't enter the season — which begins with the Gary Balconi Invitational Saturday, with Canton, host Plymouth Salem, Grand Blanc and Portage Central all taking part — empty-handed.

Their strength will be their defense. Even with standout defenders Bossieux and Gniewek graduated, the

Salem must fill some large offensive gaps

By C.J. Risak
Staff Writer

Last fall, the soccer season ended dismally for Plymouth Salem in a shootout loss to Livonia Stevenson.

To make matters worse for the Rocks, their school chums from Canton went on to beat Stevenson in the district final and trudged all the way to the Class A state title.

The only team the Chiefs could not master last season was Salem, which handed them their only defeat of the season and later tied them.

Salem had the firepower a year ago, with three players netting at least a dozen goals. They're all gone now: Doug Herriman, Scott Buczek (15 goals apiece) and Mark MacInnis (12 goals) have graduated. So has all-state defender Mike Kley, stopper Trevor Pruett, part-time starting keeper Anthony Cosenza and midfielder Kevin Little.

The losses seem considerable. But the Rocks, as coach Ken Johnson described it, still have "some good ones coming back."

Leading the returnees are three starters who will share the captainship this season: senior forward Ronny Mashni, senior keeper Brian Bacyinski and junior defender Chris Curry.

"All of them are going to be key players," said Johnson.

Their leadership roles will be magnified after last year. What hurt Salem in '94, according to Johnson, was "individualism, egotism. If nobody hot dogs (this year), it'll be good. We have to play as a team.

"I think these kids will be far more team-inclined. They're very fit, they've worked very hard."

One goal's realized — another awaits

It was 13 years ago when Jeff Angiulli — then only five years old — laced up his first pair of roller skates.

Taken to the local roller rink by his mother, a former roller skater, the young Angiulli quickly learned the intricacies of the sport and began competing at the age of seven.

It was then, with his entire life still before him, Angiulli plotted his goal in skating — to become the best roller skater in the world.

On Nov. 24, Angiulli — now 18 years old — has a chance to achieve that dream at the World Games in Bucaramanga, Colombia. Angiulli will compete against the top three skaters from countries around the globe.

"I gave myself four years to become the world champ after I became world-class, and it's been three years," Angiulli said.

The 1995 Plymouth Salem graduate earned his opportunity by winning the bronze medal at the Olympic Sports Festival in Denver July 26, and then finishing third again at the Nationals in Syracuse, N.Y., Aug. 12.

In all, Angiulli has won 13 medals in his career — the first coming when he was 8 years old — but none would equal a medal from the World Games.

Jim Jagfeld/Staff Photographer

Medal-winner: Jeff Angiulli collected a pair of bronze medals and a berth on the U.S. team.

"I'm going there to win, but I'll be happy with whatever happens," Angiulli said.

And whatever happens, Angiulli won't consider retirement anytime soon.

"It's just getting to the point now where they are sending me places to compete and paying for me to go," he said. "It's kind of like taking paid vacations."

PROFILE

Roller-skating is considered a Class A international sport, which qualifies it as an official sport for the Pan American and World Games, but not yet at the Olympics.

In Colombia, Angiulli will be judged on four "figures." Each figure consists of the skater performing a figure-eight, which takes about one-and-a-half minutes. The skater is judged on pace, edge consistency and the type of cusp turn he makes in the middle of the figure-eight.

Most importantly, the skater's wheels must precisely straddle the figure-eight line. The skaters are asked to perform two of these figures on two days.

Angiulli expects the toughest competition from the field of more than 30 skaters to come from the Italians and his fellow Americans — the two traditional world powers in the sport.

"I've heard about the Italians through the grapevine and I've seen tapes of them compete, so I do know what skating against them will be like," Angiulli said.

When youth prevails

12-year-old jolts rivals in posting tournament's best round

By Brad Emons
Staff Writer

Westland's Evan Chall turned in a round beyond his years Friday in the Burger King Junior Golf Tournament held at the Westland Municipal course.

The 12-year-old upstaged all 108 boys and girls competitors, firing a 1-over 35 to win his age division at the 16th annual event.

It was the fifth junior tournament victory of the summer for Chall, who normally practices four hours per day "to keep at the level I'm at."

"I didn't do anything spectacular, but it was a real consistent round," said Chall, who parred eight of nine holes. "I had 17 putts. I got on the greens in two and putted for par."

Chall, who played a practice round Monday at Westland Municipal, used course management to finish ahead of his older competitors by three strokes.

GOLF

On the tight fifth hole, Chall hit a two-iron off the tee and earned par.

"The course was in real nice shape, and I just tried to use my head," added Chall, whose father Dennis is the head teaching pro at Fellows Creek in Canton Township.

Wayne's Jamisen Beevers, who plays for Dennis Chall at Memorial High, won the Boys 15-16 age division after beating Canton's Brian Prybylski in a playoff. Both shot 38 in regulation.

In the Boys 13-14 age division, Westland's Chris Tompkins won with a 39, while Matt Dryja of Dearborn Heights took second with a 41.

Chall's 35 was six strokes better in the Boys 11-12 division than co-runner-ups Scott Dunahoo of Westland and Ryan Rogowski of Livonia.

(Elizabeth Handzlik of Westland was the Girls 15-16 winner with a 53, while Nicole Nolan of Westland shot a 63 to win the Girls 11-12. Faith Fletcher of Garden City was second with a 74.)

As a 10-year-old in his first competitive tourney at the Burger King, Chall made the top 20 with a 53. Last year, as an 11-year-old, he finished third with a 43.

This season, the lanky 5-foot-8, 110-pound Chall has blossomed.

He has also captured age-group titles at the Independent Insurance Agents, Defiance (Ohio) Junior Open, the Michigan Power-Bilt Tour Pepsi event and the Monroe Lazy-Boy (where he shot 39-40/79 at Green Meadows in Monroe).

"I play a wide variety of sports — basketball, tennis and billiards — but my main focus is on golf," said Chall, who counts Greg Norman, Er-

Career backup? Lion accepts it

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

Scott Kowalkowski doesn't complain or fret about the role he's asked to play in his job.

His concern is having a role and keeping the job he has with the Detroit Lions.

The fifth-year pro, who was raised in Farmington Hills, starred at Orchard Lake St. Mary's High School and lives in Lake Orion, is a reserve linebacker and special-teams player.

"That's my role," Kowalkowski said. "I've been a backup my whole career; I'm a team guy. Whatever is good for the team is good for me."

Kowalkowski, who played at Notre Dame and was drafted by the Philadelphia Eagles, is preparing for his second season with the Lions.

As a member of both punt and kickoff teams, Kowalkowski is on the field a lot, but he's No. 2 on the depth chart at right linebacker behind Mike Johnson.

Kowalkowski played the whole second half Thursday against the Cincinnati Bengals, however, making four tackles and just missing an interception.

"I love the game; I love to play," he said. "The preseason is the time for me to show what I can do.

"I'm willing to be a backup; I'm not selfish. Mike Johnson is a great player, and I can learn a lot from him.

"I love the Lions; I'd like to stay here. My dad played here, and mom works here. (The Lions) treat everyone well from the top on down."

Bob Kowalkowski played offensive guard for the Lions (1966-76), and Judy Kowalkowski is a secretary in the Lions' accounting office.

Scott would seem to be a good bet to earn a place on the Lions' roster again, but he isn't taking anything for granted.

So he knows his role and accepts it. He just keeps playing hard and trying harder.

"I do my best and let the chips fall where they may, as people say," Kowalkowski said. "I just want to play; I just go every day and play.

"If you're thinking about whether you're going to make it, then you're not thinking about playing; your mind isn't on the game. If you don't make the plays, you're going to be out."

Like any player in any sport, Kowalkowski would like to be a full-time player on defense and hopes eventually to reach that status in his pro career.

"I take it year by year," he said. "I have goals I want to achieve. Some I have; some I haven't.

"I'm happy what I'm doing now. This what I've wanted to do my whole life, since I was a little kid going to camp with my dad. I want to play here."

Another reason why Kowalkowski wants to stay in Detroit is because he believes the Lions, who are 3-0 in the preseason, are "going to go places.

"I think we're going to be damn good. We keep taking steps to get better. It starts Sept. 3 in Pittsburgh, and we're taking the steps to get there."

Maybe this will be the year Kowalkowski achieves another of his goals.

"I've been in the playoffs twice, and I'd really like to get to a Super Bowl," he said. "We won a national championship at Notre Dame. That was a great feeling, and I can't imagine what a Super Bowl would be like."

A plus for the 6-foot-2, 228-pound Kowalkowski is the Lions' switch to a 4-3 defense this year from the 3-4.

"I played this position at Notre Dame and this defense at Philadelphia," he said. "It suits me better. It allows me to use my speed to run. You don't have to be a 250-pound linebacker to play this defense.

"You have the big guys up front to keep (offensive linemen) off you, and it allows you to make plays. In (the 3-4) you have to take on big linemen all the time, and that gets to be hard on anybody."

Kowalkowski's forte is tackling, but he switches roles and becomes a blocker on the punt and kick receive teams.

That's really nothing new for Kowalkowski, who blocked for Tim Brown and Rocket Ismail at Notre Dame and Mel Gray last season.

"You get a knack for blocking guys; it's all leverage," he said. "You don't have to knock anybody out; you just have to get in the way."

NOTE: Kowalkowski and former Harrison High School standout Mill Coleman made the first cut Friday when the Lions trimmed the squad to 60.

FOOTBALL

Despite player losses, Shamrocks look tough

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

Redford Catholic Central has had to spend the last nine months thinking about the last game of the 1994 soccer season, so it's no wonder the Shamrocks are looking forward to the start of '95.

The Shamrocks were knocked out of the state tournament with a controversial 2-1 shootout loss to Livonia Churchill in the Class A district. The Shamrocks had a goal waved off in the final seconds because of a referee's admitted mistake.

Phil LaJoy returns for his fifth year as CC coach. His new assistant coach is Kevin Tuite, a CC graduate who also played for Livonia Bentley before it closed in 1985. Tuite played at Central Michigan University.

The Shamrocks finished the '94 season with a 9-4-3 overall record. Since none of the Livonia schools will play CC during the regular season, the Shamrocks will have to wait until post-season play to get revenge.

"We're anxious to get on to the new year," LaJoy said. "If we had any luck, it wasn't good."

Lost to graduation are Brian Collier (two-time first-team All-Area defender), Andy Gignac (second-team All-Area defender), Dan Kogut (second-team All-Area midfielder), Jeff Buckley, Scott Kahanec and Jon Zugel.

The leading returnees are senior tri-captains Tom Derhake, midfielder (second-team All-Area); Chris Kennedy, sweeper (second-team All-Area); and Dan Mulvihill, forward.

Mulvihill is the leading returning scorer with nine goals and nine assists in '94. Derhake had six goals and eight assists and Kennedy scored seven goals with four assists.

Other returnees for CC include Brian Nemes, senior defender; Mike Martin, junior forward; Tony Moucoulis, junior midfielder; Keith Knoefel, senior defender.

Impressive newcomers are Lance Bethel, senior forward; Shawn Kahanec, sophomore midfielder; Nat Kessler, sophomore goalkeeper; and Travis Miller, senior goalkeeper.

"We lost quite a bit from last season (10 players), but I like what we have coming back," LaJoy said.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

LARAMORE GOLF OUTING

Openings remain for the Rick Laramore Memorial Scholarship Golf Outing scheduled for Wednesday, Sept. 13 at Idyl Wyld Golf Course in Livonia.

Laramore, a former Livonia Churchill hockey player, died at age 17 of lymphoma (cancer) on March 27, 1995.

The cost of 18 holes, including a cart, light lunch, refreshments and dinner, is $80 for adults, $60 for children. Dinner only is $30.

There is both a morning and afternoon golf session. A 7 a.m. registration and 8 a.m. shotgun start will kick off the morning session. A 1 p.m. registration and 2 p.m. shotgun start kicks off the afternoon session.

Dinner will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Italian-American Center, 39200 Five Mile Rd., Livonia.

Funds raised will go to the Rick Laramore Memorial Scholarship Fund, awarding scholarship money to eligible high school varsity hockey players in the school district.

Those interested in sponsoring holes at $100 per hole or in contributing grab bag items are asked to contact Bill Murray at (810) 212-7777, Mark Stankevich at (810) 486-4044 or Judy Laramore at (313) 525-3695.

Call Churchill hockey coach Jeff Hatley at 459-1391 for registration forms.

Anyone interested should contact athletic director Dave Yarbrough at (810) 960-8373.

nie Els, Nick Price and Nick Faldo among his PGA Tour favorites. "I'll go to the (indoor) dome and hit balls all winter. I even hit plastic balls in chair at home."

Chall not only uses his head on the golf course, but also in the classroom. He's been a straight-A student the past three years at Grant Elementary in Livonia and also was awarded the school's presidential academic award.

He will attend Frost Middle School this fall and eventually for Churchill High School.

"He (Evan) has high aspirations," said Dennis, who is a counselor in the Wayne-Westland Schools. "He'd liked to play someday at the University of Michigan and then try the tour if he's good enough."

Although he didn't play his first competitive tournament until he was 10, Evan got an early jump on most junior golfers.

At 17½ months "he was knocking down dry wall with a plastic Disney toy club," according to his father. At 2½ years he was swinging with sawed-down models.

"By the time he was four or five he could hit the ball pretty well," said his father.

Scary to think what could happen if he keeps improving.

Evan's final tournament for the summer will be Tuesday, Aug. 29 at the Woodlands for the American Junior Golf Classic.

Scheduled to appear at that event is Evan "Big Cat" Williams, the former national long-drive champion.

TEN-PIN ALLEY

AL HARRISON

There are all kinds of bowling tourneys, just as there are all kinds of sponsoring organizations for tournaments.

The Paralyzed Veterans of America holds the most unusual, in as much as the competitors are wheelchair bowlers.

The Michigan Masters, organized and directed by Livonia's Bob Calderon, a wheelchair bowler, took place at Merri Bowl in Livonia during the first week in August.

I have usually tried to be there to help cheer the competitors on, but other circumstances took care of that and as most of my readers know, I was slightly incapacitated at that time, thanks to the surgeons at Henry Ford Hospital.

The competitors began arriving from all over the country on Thursday, Aug. 3, and the next day, they were in action at Merri-Bowl.

The first event was the doubles tournament on Friday morning in which stand-ups were paired with the wheelchair bowlers.

On Friday evening, a 9-pin no-tap tournament was held, just for the wheelchair participants.

Saturday morning's activities featured the opening ceremonies, immediately followed by the first set of singles play. With a lunch break in between, the second set of singles followed in the afternoon with the third and final set of singles play slated for Sunday morning.

After the smoke had cleared, the battle was over and the trophy went to Texas.

The fourth-highest finisher in singles play was none other than Calderon, who put the whole thing together.

Then, on Sunday night the entire group held the awards and dinner at Ladbroke Race Track in the Michigan Mile Room.

Once again, the wheelchair bowlers have what it takes to put together a fine event, a good time was had by all.

■ This is the big weekend for all bowling fans, enthusiasts and just plain bowling nuts. It's the time for Bowling Expo '95 at Gibraltar Trade Center North in Mount Clemens.

It may seem a long way to go, but it's worth the trip, and once you get onto the expressway system, you get there quickly, just follow I-94 East to the North River Road Exit, turn west after about a half mile and you are there. Admission is only $1.50 per car, and there will be be new products for bowlers, along with all kinds of bargains on equipment and accessories.

If you have not been to a bowling Expo, this could be just the time to go.

Three full days of exhibits, feature celebrities, new products, discounts, close-outs, giveaways, information, instruction, tips, tournaments, league openings and much more.

The Expo hours are noon to 9 p.m., Friday; 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday; and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday.

Then he issued a warning: "You can have an army of great players, but if they don't march together they're not any good."

Mashni joins another senior, Andy Makins, as a midfielder who's been transformed into a forward. Others expected to help fill the depleted forward positions are senior Mike Meagec, who didn't play last year and was on the junior varsity as a sophomore, and sophomore Brett Konley, who possesses "a shot like a rocket."

The midfield and defensive positions are Salem's strongest areas, and what should make the Rocks a challenger for both the Western Lakes Activities Association title and the state championship.

Curry is one of five experienced midfielders returning. He is joined by seniors John Larson, Taras Seniuch and Matt Simons, and junior Matt Sarkesian. It's a formidable group, but juniors Josh Fair and Ryan Konley and sophomore Andy Power — all junior varsity players last year — will be seeking playing time.

The defense was hurt by the losses of Kley and Pruett, but there are some able replacements. Leading the list are seniors Drew Drummond, Matt Hucal and Chris Jaskolaki, all with varsity experience from '94. Two others who will get plenty of action are junior Scott Loewe, a sweeper on the JV last year, and sophomore Rob Zdrodowski, an Olympic Development Program regional pool player.

Zdrodowski's ODP status isn't unusual for a Salem player. Johnson said at least a half-dozen of his varsity players have ODP experience.

Bacyinski, who split time in the net with Cosenza last year, will be the first-string keeper. Andres Lopez, a junior, will be his back-up.

"I'm looking forward to the season," said Johnson, who announced last year that this would be his final season of coaching. He's already surrendered his Salem girls coaching position. "I hope to get to the finals, like with the girls."

The talent is there, certainly. The best of the Rocks' attributes, according to Johnson, is "versatility. Just about everyone can play two positions, really.

"It looks pretty strong. But Livonia Stevenson's pretty tough."

Stevenson and Canton should again provide the biggest challenges to the WLAA crown, with Churchill also in the hunt.

And Salem will be in there, too — providing the Rocks keep focused on the team goals in this, Johnson's final season as coach.

Chiefs will be tough with George Tomasso, an all-state selection, in goal with '94 starters Todd Stonestreet and Greg Kilby (all are seniors), together with senior Sam McGrath and junior Jason Bennett.

At midfield, experienced players returning are Evan Sabourin, Robert Gumber and Anthony Riemma. Again, all are seniors who saw considerable action a year ago.

On the front line, the picture is a bit fuzzier. Neschich figures the players filling the voids will "make it or break it for us." They are senior Ryan Meath, senior Jeremy Stillings and junior Jacob Rea.

Of the newcomers, Matt Ammons and Mike Elsner (both juniors) will bolster the defense immediately, and junior Kevin Gniewek (Keith's brother) will patrol the midfield. Neschich is optimistic regarding all three.

Still, the question will linger as long as the memory of last year's championship does — are the tools available to make another state tournament run?

"When you think of superstars, you think of scorers," Smith said. "We don't have any of those yet. But this is a good group . . . they're capable. We've got a lot of experience back on defense.

"And they're big, tough kids, they're not going to take much from anyone."

The task will be a different one for Smith when he returns to action, as well. Last year's title team was a bit unruly; the current team is a bit easier to handle.

"Last year, it was more management," said Smith. "This year, I'm going to have to coach some more."

With tough competition expected once again from Salem, Livonia Stevenson and Livonia Churchill within the Western Lakes Activities Association, matching last season's success will be nearly impossible.

But success will always be expected.

The person to beat happens to be his friend, Steven Patton. The two-time world champion from Pontiac is "like a machine," according to Angiulli.

A lot of the credit for Angiulli's recent success goes to coach Bud Patton, who has coached the world's last two champions.

"He's been my coach for the past two years and he's been excellent," Angiulli said. "Instead of telling you what to do, he lets you create your own style. He did, however, teach me how to become more consistent during the routine."

Angiulli skates five to six times a week, usually skating at Riverside Arena in Livonia or in Pontiac with Patton.

At the competitions, Angiulli avoids Patton during the skater's pre-competition ritual of getting to the arena early and sitting alone, performing a type of self-hypnosis for about an hour. He then puts his skates on and listens to music through his headphones before stepping onto the rink.

That routine may be altered, by necessity. Instead of listening to music before the event, Angiulli may have to think about his homework. Angiulli will have to juggle his roller-skating career around his freshman year at University of Michigan-Dearborn.

"I'll have to talk with my professors and see if they'll allow me to miss some classes," Angiulli said. "If they have a problem with that, then I'll have to find some other classes."

And life after competitive roller-skating won't take Angiulli away from his love. He plans to study marketing and advertising at UM-D to open his own in-line skate store.

JOHN MONAGHAN

Edward Burns doesn't fetch coffee anymore.

Not that long ago the 27-year-old writer, director, and star of "The Brothers McMullen" worked as a production assistant for "Entertainment Tonight." His responsibilities included driving a van and getting java for TV honchos.

In town recently to promote his film (which opens Friday at the Main and Maple Theatres), Burns is friendly, unassuming, and pleasantly surprised to find himself in the spotlight.

In a movie he calls "a romantic comedy for guys," his McMullen brothers are three second-generation Irishmen living together temporarily in a Long Island suburb. Each finds himself in a romantic crisis which could change his life forever.

Jack (Jack Mulcahy), the eldest, contemplates an affair. Barry (Burns' character), a young screenwriter, struggles with the commitment question. Patrick (Mike McGlone) must decide between a wealthy fiance or the girl next door while remaining true to himself and his Irish-Catholic faith.

Burns had written a handful of screenplays before deciding to shoot "McMullen" himself, using his connections at "ET" to find technicians. "I stole sound people all the time," he remembers, "and all those interns like myself who were itching to work on a project like this."

Meanwhile, an ad in the trade papers ("No-Budget Indie Feature Seeks Non-Union Actors. No pay") brought him stacks of resumes and 8 by 10 photos to search through.

TWENTIETH CENTURY FOX

Brotherly love: Mike McGlone (left) as Patrick, Edward Burns (center) as Barry and Jack Mulcahy as Jack in the romantic comedy "The Brothers McMullen."

If the house in the movie looks realistic, it should. Burns shot over eight months in the family home on Long Island where he and his own brothers shared bathrooms, traded secrets, and got on each other's nerves — just like in the movie.

"McMullen" is based on his own life experiences, though many elements couldn't be further from the truth. The movie's Irish father is a drunkard, a tyrant, and also dead; Burns' supportive real-life father served as executive producer on the film.

With film stock, processing, and equipment rentals, the final bill for the film was around $25,000, roughly the cost of last year's independent sensation, "Clerks."

"McMullen," however, has a different look and attitude. It's more polished technically and doesn't feel it has to knock you out with its cleverness and edge. Some might call it square, old-fashioned, and overly romantic and did when Burns tried to enter it in some festivals.

Opportunity knocked at Sundance, still the premier showcase for low-budget independent films in America. Strong word-of-mouth followed the first of four screenings, making "McMullen" the festival's hot ticket.

Soon Burns was besieged by guys in suits all trying to negotiate an exclusive distribution deal. Twentieth Century Fox picked up the film, releasing it under a new division called Fox Searchlight, which will highlight independently made films.

Meanwhile, Burns finds himself in an enviable position. He has been given the green light for a picture at Fox while he crisscrosses the country (and soon Europe) to promote his first film.

Burns reluctantly subscribes to the movies' belief that everyone has a perfect mate. "I suppose that there is a chance that there is that special someone out there," he says. "We're all wondering if this is the real thing or just a one-night stand."

Adventure to save pandas filmed in China

Filmed in China's remote Himalayan mountain highlands, "The Amazing Panda Adventure," opening Friday, Aug. 25, at metro Detroit movie theaters, follows two young people and their wise old Chinese Guide as they try to find and return a lost baby panda to its mother. Braving hardships and facing unexpected adventures, the two youngsters learn to love and respect pandas as they gain maturity and tolerance for each other.

The film stars Stephen Lang, Yyi Ding and Ryan Slater.

Ryan is 10, and en route to China to visit his father, whom he hasn't seen in two years. Ryan's father Michael (Stephen Lang) is a naturalist specializing in the conservation of Giant Pandas, who live exclusively in the bamboo-forested mountains of China. When Ryan arrives in China, he discovers his father is busy and preoccupied with the fate of the preserve. Ryan gamely tries to make the best of things and joins Michael, a Chinese Girl named Ling (Yi Ding) and a Chinese naturalist named Chu (Huang Fei), as they set out into the mountains to check on one of the pandas.

The panda, a mother with a new baby, has been trapped by poachers. As the poachers return to collect their quarry, they are confronted by Michael's group and they shoot and wound Michael, then run into the dense forest. The panda reserve's rescue helicopter can only airlift the wounded naturalist and panda, leaving Ryan, Ling and Chu behind for a second trip.

But as they await the helicopter's return, the trio realizes that the poachers have stolen the mother panda's baby, and quickly set off to rescue the little panda and find their way back to civilization.

Ryan begins the trip angry and resentful, but once he finds and cares for the baby panda, he forms a special bond with the roly-poly creature. As the trio of humans and their precious cargo overcome nature and man-made obstacles to return to their home, Ryan grows up and ultimately earns the respect of his father, gaining greater understanding of Michael's important work. At adventure's end, father and son have helped assure the survival of the little panda and the panda preserve itself.

"The Amazing Panda Adventure" was initiated by documentary filmmaker John Wilcox, who conceived the original story based on his experiences in China, where he shot the first documentary on the elusive Great Panda, telecast in 1984, followed by a second documentary in 1988." Wilcox wrote the original draft of the script.

Among the most beloved animals in the world, Giant Pandas are high on the endangered species list. It is estimated that less than 1,000 of the exotic black-and-white creatures are surviving in the wild, exclusively in China. Only a handful of zoos around the world have produced offspring. The famous preserve in Wolong, Sichaun, is successfully breeding pandas, but no more than two cubs a year have been born. The two baby pandas in "The Amazing Panda Adventure," were born in Wolong, which presently has 21 pandas. An adult panda used in the film came from the Wuhan Circus.

The young pandas had six people to care for them: their keeper, researchers and a veterinarian from the Wolong Reserve. The adult panda from the Wuhan Circus had an entourage of eight.

When they weren't turning somersaults, they chewed everything in sight and catlike, clawed their way up anything verticle.

"I spent hours mesmerized by them," said associate producer Josie Rosen. "They are funny, cute and cuddly, and they have these compelling eyes that just draw you in."

"The Amazing Panda Adventure," from Warner Bros. and Lee Rich Productions, is directed by Christopher Cain. It is rated PG.

One reason merchants are cashing in on sales of women's golf equipment and apparel is as old as time itself — women are physically different than men. They must have equipment tailored to their height, arm length, and upper body strength. Women's golf clubs have shorter and lighter shafts with narrower grips than mens' and even the balls are softer, wound less tight to make them feel lighter.

Manufacturers appreciate that women want to look good on the greens. The female side of the swinging set desires fancier cuts of shirts, shorts, slacks, sweaters and jackets, plus matching hats, gloves, shoes and accessories. Bavarian Village International Ski & Golf, with 12 locations in Michigan, stocks more than 35 styles of women's golf shoes priced between $29.95 and $200, according to the Novi store clothing manager Mary Curry.

"Women's golf has become so strong it's not a male-dominated sport anymore," she pointed out. "Over one third of all golfers are women. At Bavarian Village, we've literally tripled our clothing for women within the last year."

Clothing manufacturers have jazzed up women's golf clothes, brought in more color, more patterns, more designs. There are jackets to match every outfit to go from the golf course to dinner. There are even golf balls to match the outfits — from fluorescent pinks to pastels.

At Ladies Day Golf on Northwestern Hwy. in Southfield, business is solid. Since opening in June 1994, sales at the full-service golf center for women have steadily increased. The four years spent creating the business' marketing plan is paying off for owner Sarah Frank of Bloomfield Township.

Ladies Day Golf offers more than equipment, apparel and accessories. Customers can get lessons from PGA golf pro and business partner Ron Ralston and LPGA and PGA professional Fran Kocsis; state-of-the-art video training; and a club membership which includes special discounts and the opportunity to network with other women golfers in the member's lounge — a private place to practice swings.

"According to the National Golf Foundation, golf is now the fastest growing recreational sport in the country," Frank said. "And more than 50 percent of all new golfers are women."

Women have a number of reasons for taking to the greens, not the least of which is because that's where the men are, said Curry with a smile. Also, with so many men taking early retirements, their wives don't want to be golf widows anymore.

"Golf was always a man's game but now women realize they have to play the game to compete in the business and corporate world, too," said Frank who's been a golfer for 45 years.

"It's become a necessity for the business woman," she continued. "More business deals are done on the golf course than anywhere else. There's even an Executive Women's Golf League now. The beauty of golf is you don't have to be a physically outstanding athlete. Golf is much more of a mental game. You're not playing against anyone but yourself and the conditions on the course that day."

In downtown Rochester, The Forward Tee owner Barb Thorpe, said her two-year-old golf apparel shop for women was doing well. She described the store as a "golf boutique," specializing in shoes, gloves, bags and clothing for female players. Thorpe recently added a few golf items for men to further serve customers shopping for gifts.

Store seeks agencies for a service award

Parisian is accepting nominations for its second annual "You're Somebody Special" Award. Ten thousand dollars is presented each year to the non-profit organization award winner that has done outstanding work to serve families in need.

Last year Crossroads of Michigan received the award.

Parisian is asking its customers and the public to nominate candidates for the "You're Somebody Special" Award that will be presented at a special ceremony in November.

Nominations for the award will be accepted through Friday, Sept. 8 at Parisian, Laurel Park Place in Livonia. Individuals may also submit nominations by mail to Parisian, 17625 Newbirgh Road, Livonia, MI 48152. Forms are available at Parisian.

A panel of community leaders will review the nominations and select a winner. The winner organization will receive a cash award of $10,000 and its name inscribed on the "You're Somebody Special Award" on permanent display at Parisian.

Founded in 1887, and based in Birmingham, Ala., Parisian operates 36 specialty department stores in the midwest and south.

Retail Realities

While retailers have bemoaned poor sales in women's ready-to-wear the last few years, they've been enjoying one bright spot — sales of big-men's clothes rose 12-percent in 1994 to $3 billion. Overall menswear sales rose 3.6-percent to $39 million last year.

One reason for the boost in men's clothing sales, according to industry analysts, is the corporate world's switch to more casual dress codes in the workplace. There's been an evolution in womens wear, but a revolution in menswear according to a Hudson's spokesman. However, it's anyone's guess why men are buying the bigger sizes . . .

Where can I find?

The deli-lovers have spoken! Here's the next challenge, it seems a bit odd, but Janice Carniere of Livonia assures she's in search for "a beautiful boudoir chair that doubles as a potty."

"I know it was made years ago, but I need one today and I can't find one anywhere. I've called several medical supply companies with no luck. The one I have in mind was covered with fabric and no one would ever know it was also a potty. If any reader knows where I could purchase one, or knows someone who could build me one, I'd be most appreciative."

There you have it. If you know where Janice can find such a "chair," please give Malls & Mainstreets a call at (810) 901-2567. We'll print your responses! You can fax an answer to (810) 644-1314. Or write Where Can I Find, c/o The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, 48009. New shopping challenges are also welcome through these avenues. Thank you!

In response to Lisa Rigg of Livonia's request for good New York and/or Mediterranean-type delicatessens similar to "the Ann Arbor ones like Zingerman's Amer's," we received the following reader responses:

■ "Send her to Maya's in downtown Plymouth, it's the best."

■ "Didn't you know Amer's opened a new location last year in Maple in downtown Birmingham?"

■ "The Bread Basket on Greenfield and Lincoln in Oak Park has the best deli in town. I travel 30 miles once a week to have lunch there. The corned beef is stacked four-inches high."

■ "At Five Mile and Farmington it's David's New York Deli for the best hot or cold sandwiches in town. Lots of office workers come over every day for lunch, so it must be good."

■ "The Pickle Barrel Deli is a light. It's on 12 Mile and Evergreen in the Evergreen Plaza. been around forever."

Chevrolet's new Tahoe delivers rugged elegance

By Anne Fracassa
Avanti News Features

In the world of sport-utility vehicles, there are the big guys, the little guys and the little- little guys.

In Chevrolet's case, the offerings range from the mini-utility Geo Tracker to the compact Chevy Blazer and the super-size Suburban. And now Chevrolet is poised to take a crack at the soon-to-be-popular full-size sport- utility market with the all-new 2-door and 4-door Tahoe, the replacements for the K-Blazer.

Chevolet's research showed many customers wanted a little more room than the K-Blazer had to offer, yet didn't want the huge size of the Suburban. The 1995 Tahoe fits nicely in that niche, believes Ed Schoenherr, segment manager of Chevolet's full-size truck division.

"We found a lot of people wanted to move up from a

ROAD TEST By Anne Fracassa

4-door Blazer and wanted a 4-door full-size, but the Suburban was just too big for them," he said. "The Tahoe is the best of both worlds. Suburban owners are generally not looking to move down, so we don't believe we'll take any Suburban sales away.

"There is a huge unmet need and the Tahoe will fit in that niche." The Tahoe represents the first time Chevrolet has completed a vehicle — from concept to production — in 25 months. The number 25 is fitting, too, because Chevrolet's first full-size sport utility was introduced 25 years ago.

Built at the Janesville, Wis., assembly plant — the same site that builds the Suburban — the Tahoe is a full 18 inches shorter than the Suburban and is available in either a 2-wheel-drive or 4-wheel-drive model.

There's also a choice of panel rear doors or a combination tailgate/lift-glass door. The tailgate/lift-glass door provides good, clear visibility, while the panel rear doors have an unsightly large "seam" in your rearview mirror.

Powered by a standard 5.7-liter overhead cam V-8, the Tahoe can tow up to 7,000 pounds when properly equipped with a tow package. The engine performed nicely around some twisting and hilly roads in Detroit's northern suburbs, never skipping a beat or sounding tired on the way up those hills.

Although the Tahoe looks larger than its predecessor, it isn't. It's the perfect size and is easy to maneuver. I even took a crack at parallel parking and backing into a parking space — successfully, and without a hassle.

The Tahoe is available in a 4-wheel-drive 2-door model and a 2- or 4-wheel-drive 4-door model. I drove the 4-wheel-drive 2-door and 4-door models. Both are comfortable, easy to get into and out of, and, although they are large trucks, they don't seem like large trucks.

It's probably that way because the interior is so comfy, plush, and car-like you kinda forget you're in a full-size truck. Both exterior and interior styling are beautiful and stately. And it's not the kind of truck a guy comes home from the construction site in — unless he's in a suit.

Three trim levels are available on the Tahoe: Base trim, the LS and LT. There's also a sport package available. Safety is there as well, with 4-wheel anti-lock brakes and driver's-side airbag standard.

There are assist handles everywhere — and cupholders galore. Interior space measures up at 122.5 cubic feet of cargo space — plenty to use on a trip up north to the cottage.

Large tinted windows flush to the body give the Tahoe a streamlined look and provides optimum visibility. Outside mirrors are mounted on the door and provide excellent rear visibility as well. There are even rear heat ducts to ensure consistent climate control throughout the cabin.

All-new instrumentation is simple and elegant, yet provides just enough information you'd want to have at your fingertips. The stereo and climate controls are easy to reach and not so far out of the way you would have to take your eyes off the road to operate them.

On the bucket-seat models, there's a really neat center console that converts to a mobile workstation. It's got a pivoting writing surface, map pocket, cassette tape or CD storage, removable coin holder, rear-seat cupholders and a latched rear storage drawer.

The optional engine is General Motors' hefty 6.5-liter Turbo Diesel (available only on the 2-door models). Standard is a 5-speed manual transmission on the 2-door models, while the 4-door models all have automatic transaxles as standard. By the way, the automatic transmissions have a special (Dextron III) transmission fluid that never, ever needs replacement under normal use. Four-wheel-drive models, of course, have the wonderful, carefree "shift-on-the-fly" capabilities.

So if you're looking for a rugged daytime truck that can handle an unpaved, seldom-used back road and then take it to the theater at night, this is the sport utility for you.

Oh, you better wash the Tahoe first. Your significant other would want you to.
