Megastore sparks controversy

Residents are preparing for a public hearing Feb. 5 on a Super Kmart store proposed for a parcel near Haggerty and Ford roads. They are concerned about increased traffic and noise in the area, as well as decreasing property values.

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Richard Bargowski knows he's not alone in his fear of what a proposed $14.3 million Super Kmart could do to his neighborhood and traffic in the Haggerty and Ford roads area.

"Most people I talk to are unhappy with this," said Bargowski, who lives in the Willow Trail subdivision, south of Ford, west of Haggerty.

Residents within 300 feet of the proposed Super K on 27.39 acres on the north side of Ford Road, between Man's Do It Center and Haggerty Road, will be notified of a public hearing on the project. The hearing is scheduled for 7 p.m. Monday, Feb. 5 before the Canton Planning Commission.

"It's the back portion of all these properties," said Jeff Goulet, Canton community planner, referring to businesses that front Ford, such as Kentucky Fried Chicken and First of America Bank.

Take a chance: Hidezo Fujiwara of the Izakaya Sanpei restaurant in the Coventry Commons shopping center hopes more Americans experiment with their taste buds at his authentic Japanese restaurant.

Restaurateur reaches out to Yankees

BY RENEE SKOGLUND
STAFF WRITER

Hidezo Fujiwara believes more Americans would give his authentic Japanese restaurant a try if they could find it. The Izakaya Sanpei is tucked way in the Coventry Commons shopping plaza located on Joy and Morton Taylor Roads in Canton.

"It's a little off the main street. Even some Japanese who come cannot find it," he said.

This is the Izakaya Sanpei's fourth year in business. So far, Americans make up about 30 percent of its clientele. Fujiwara wants to increase that percentage. In the past, he tried all kinds of advertising to lure in the locals but got little return on his investment.

"I spent a lot of money on direct mail, cable TV, the newspaper. It didn't work. Americans don't care much about coupons or discounts. It's been word of mouth," he said.

Speaking about mouths, Fujiwara wonders if the real problem might be American tastebuds — they're timid. Most American customers play it safe when dining at Izakaya Sanpei and order dishes like chicken or beef teriyaki.

However, Fujiwara sees signs that Yankee tastebuds are yearning for a bit of adventure. "Americana are beginning to eat sushi," he said with a smile.

Sushi? Hamburger-loving Americans eating raw fish? In Canton? It's happening. In fact, Fujiwara recently hired a new sushi chef from New York who specializes in "roll" sushi, which Fujiwara hopes will appeal to both American and Japanese tastes.

Although you may find "Philadelphia Roll" on Izakaya Sanpei's menu, don't expect hamburgers. The restaurant is definitely Japanese and caters to Japanese businessmen, the hefty 70 percent of its clientele.

"It's mostly Japanese businessmen on weekdays and on weekends they bring their families," said Fujiwara. "After work Japanese businessmen come here for a few appetizers and a few drinks."

Well, Americans sometimes do the same thing, and Fujiwara would like to introduce them to "happy hour" Japanese style. They can try shoshu, a drink similar to vodka but served with hot water.

Residents still upset over developer's plans

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

The lawyers say nothing has changed, but the residents are still upset.

A legal opinion requested by Canton Township Supervisor Tom Yack says Canton has no legal leverage to force a developer to obey current zoning regulations in a Planned Unit Development commercial district.

The issue arose because Cherry Hill Orchards residents vigorously opposed the proposed construction of a 70,000-square-foot, supermarket-anchored shopping center by the Market Development Co. on the southwest corner of Cherry Hill and Lilley. The board approved the Cherry Hill Court shopping center Dec. 12.

"We have 20-some questions that still to this day remain unanswered," said resident David Heinowski. "And we have no way, no leverage, to get an answer now because the township has given it all away. So we're a little bit upset over in our community here. We're quite disappointed."

The Planned Unit Development was created by township government in the 1970s. The concept was that each PUD in the township would have a combination of uses, including houses, shopping centers and gas stations.

However, as Canton grew, the subdivisions were built, while the PUD commercial parcels remained vacant.

The PUD agreements are so written than today's developer can build according to rules that were in effect at the time the agreement was signed, meaning they may put up bigger buildings and do less landscaping.

Although the Market Development Co. officials have agreed to abide by most current township building regulations regarding construction of Cherry Hill Court Shopping Center, they have exercised their right to erect a much bigger building than current law allows.

The legal opinion, from the firm of Hemming, Polaczyk & Cronin, affirmed what officials already believed: that the township had no legal recourse to make PUD developers obey current building regulations.

Canton wins appeal to serve alcohol to golfers

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

Canton Township has won an appeal with the state Liquor Control Commission to serve alcoholic beverages to golfers at Pheasant Run.

Clerk Terry Bennett reports that she received notification from the Liquor Control Commission Monday, Jan. 22, granting the appeal, subject to a final inspection.

Originally, the township's request for an outdoor liquor license at Pheasapt Run Golf Club was denied, because cart paths cross roads in surrounding subdivisions that aren't owned by the golf course, said liquor commission regional supervisor Ronalee Polad.

The commission's policy, Polad said, is to deny licenses for on-course sale and consumption whenever cart paths cross roads not owned by the course.

The Pheasant Run cart path crosses roads five times between the first tee and 18th green. The crossings are equipped with stop signs.

The township appealed the ruling and made a presentation to liquor control commissioners Maxine Perry and Betty Pulliam Nov. 9.

According to a statement signed by Perry and Pulliam, the appeal was granted because "the township recorded easements over the crossings for golf cart usage; that all of the golfers will be using distinctive golf carts; that there is extensive landscaping between the surrounding homes and the golf course; and that the township will ensure that alcoholic beverage sale and usage will be appropriately controlled."

Perry and Pulliam concluded that Canton "has instituted ongoing policies, rules and regulations which assuredly alleviate the commission's initial anxiety over allowing the outdoor sale, service and consumption of alcoholic beverages in such a large and open area. In fact, the commission believes that the Charter Township of Canton should take deserved pride in its agencies and individuals who were responsible for instituting these comprehensive procedures."

Course manager Kevin Mill said it's unlikely that any golfer will get drunk while playing. Serving beer to golfers, he said, "is more of a service to them than a real big revenue producer."

Matt Durack, who runs Summit Cuisine, the Pheasant Run caterer and co-applicant on the license, said golf facilities that don't sell beer on the course may lose golf outings to courses that do serve beer. Township-owned Fellows Creek Golf Club on Lotz Road, north of Michigan Avenue, serves beer and liquor.

Hockey benefit event on Saturday to feature Gordie Howe

By Joanne Maliszewski

Greg Unger

Just think — where else can you meet Red Wing great Gordie Howe, watch a good hockey game between the Red Wings Alumni and Canton firefighters and police and do something for a worthy cause — and all for $5?

The firefighters and Detroit Red Wings Alumni Association will meet again on the ice at 7 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 27, at the Plymouth Cultural Center and Ice Arena, 525 Farmer, Plymouth.

The evening of entertainment will benefit the University of Michigan Trauma Burn Center in Ann Arbor.

To add more fun to the evening, Gordie Howe and his wife, Colleen, will be on hand to personalize their autographed autobiography, "And . . . Howe" 3:30-6 p.m. before the game at the cultural center. Books are $35 and available for purchase at both Canton fire stations: No. 1 on the corner of Cherry Hill and Canton Center, and No. 2 on Warren Road, between Haggerty and Lilley.

Books that have been pre-ordered may be picked up at the cultural center where the Howes will personalize them.

The game follows a tradition started by firefighters and Canton police in 1995 to help Canton resident Greg Unger, now 15, who underwent a double-lung transplant this past summer. Firefighters raised more than $21,000 to help pay for medical and associated costs for Greg, who has cystic fibrosis. Greg has recuperated and has returned to school in the Westland school system.

In fact, Greg, who firefighters have dubbed as their honorary coach, will be there the night of the game. "He is the reason we did these games to begin with," said firefighter Sgt. Jim Davison.

Proceeds from the game, as well as half of the proceeds from the book sales associated with the event, will help the Trauma Burn Center, as well as the Great Lakes Burn Camp, a summer camp for children who are burn survivors.

The hockey benefit also will feature the firefighters' popular raffle, with tickets at $1. You can buy as many as you want. One of the prizes is seven days in a Florida condo — donated by Greg Unger's dad, Bill — from April 26 to May 3. The prize includes airfare. Other prizes will include dinner certificates and sports memorabilia.

Intermission will bring a host of activities including fun for kids who want to try their hand on the ice. The winners of the raffles will be announced during intermission. Refreshments will be available.

Tickets for the game are available at both fire stations, as well as Johnson's restaurant on Ford, just west of Lilley, and Detroit Sports & Rec, on Ford Road, just east of Lotz.

For more information, contact firefighters Mike Caruso, 981-1113, or Jim Davison, 454-4655.

Cable freebie concerns local mother

By Ralph R. Echtinaw
Staff Writer

Unannounced cable freebies are fine so long as they don't include nudity and profanity, said Canton Township resident Kathryn Hall, who was upset recently to discover she was getting Cinemax, which she hadn't ordered.

Hall said she found out in late December when she noticed her children watching a movie on Cinemax.

"I didn't want my kids having access to this kind of garbage," she said.

Hall phoned Omnicom "at least six times" to complain, but nothing happened. "They didn't know why it was on at my house, and they couldn't turn it off," she said.

Then Hall phoned the township government to complain on Jan. 9 and finally got some action.

A service technician came to her house Jan. 13 to turn off the Cinemax.

Continental Cablevision Director of Operations Frederick Collman said Hall was probably getting Cinemax because a technician ran out of "traps," which are installed in the outdoor cable pedestals to block the signals for HBO and Cinemax.

"It happens infrequently, but it does happen," Collman said. "The customer should be informed about that, and it's my impression they are being informed about it."

Continental Cablevision spokesman Bill Black noted that Hall's problems occurred before Continental took over Omnicom's operation on Jan. 15.

Hall's problem, he said, might have arisen because Continental is in the middle of rebuilding its network of cable in Canton Township, Plymouth Township, Plymouth and Northville Township.

Black said there may well be more people who are getting Cinemax and/or HBO free for the same reason Hall got Cinemax.

Hall's concern is that other parents are unaware that their children are watching R-rated movies on HBO and Cinemax.

Cable companies continuing wiring

By Ralph R. Echtinaw
Staff Writer

Both Continental Cablevision and Ameritech New Media Enterprises are wiring Canton Township for cable, but won't say exactly how far along they are.

Continental, which has just purchased Omnicom, is replacing most of Omnicom's network of cable that brings television signals to 32,000 customers in Canton, Plymouth and Northville with a fiber-optic system capable of handling more than 74 channels.

Ameritech is Continental's competitor in Canton, but has yet to get enough cable in the ground to sign up customers.

Ultimately, the two companies expect to vie for the affections of every cable customer in Canton.

Continental spokesman Bill Black reports that "we're quite a ways along" with the rewiring, but won't be more specific. Continental has finished rewiring a "small area" in Canton, but Black won't say where that is.

"We're in a competitive environment, and we'd rather not say any more about what our plans are," he said.

Ameritech spokeswoman Marcia Sayles is equally ambiguous. "We're right on track with our building," she said.

Asked if she could say what percentage of the job is complete, Sayles said, "I would love to tell you what that is, and our competitors would love to have that information."

Sayles believes Ameritech will "offer our services later this year" to at least some Canton residents.

Headache patients find quality care available

By M.B. Dillon
Staff Writer

Because headaches are so complex, often many strategies are tried before an effective one is found. . . .

As David Balfour, Matthew Kochanek, or Nancy Davidson can tell you from experience, the headache is a seriously misunderstood, underestimated health problem that ravages the lives of 50-100 million people in the United States.

Balfour of Plymouth Township is a 53-year-old teacher who began suffering from severe headaches 15 years ago. His cluster headaches — which occur frequently for two or three months, subside and then start up again — feel like "someone is pinching my left eye or temple as hard as they possibly can and then maintaining that for quite a long time. Even that can't explain how bad the pain really is."

It's so bad, says Balfour, that he's tempted to cut his temple with a knife in an effort to relieve the pain. When he last got a bad headache, "I wanted my wife to take a frying pan and hit me in the head and knock me out. I just couldn't take it.

"I have been in my family room when I felt one coming on. By the time I get to the stairs, I am on my hands and knees, crawling to get upstairs. It hurts that much."

Migraines

The migraine headaches of Canton's Matthew Kochanek, 14, began when he was 7, evolving by the time he was 10 to three and four days a week.

"He wasn't able to do anything," said his mother, Sandy. "Kids would be knocking on the door wanting him to go out and play. He'd be on the couch in the dark, throwing up and not wanting anyone to touch him. It's really a hard thing to deal with. It breaks your heart as a parent.

"I remember when he was small we had a really terrible incident I've never forgotten. We were invited somewhere and Matt had already been having a headache. If he got over-excited, especially as a youngster, it would bring on a headache. Sure enough, that evening came, and he got a headache. He was so sick he couldn't go. His father stayed home, and his sister and I went."

A woman at the function asked where Matt was. When Kochanek explained, the woman said, "Well, big deal. He has a headache. It's not like he has cancer. It's not like he is going to die.'

"I just looked at her and thought, 'How ignorant.' I guess you would have to see a person or to live with someone who suffers like this to realize how sick a person can be."

Chronic pain

Nancy Davidson, who recently moved from Plymouth to South Lyon, is in chronic pain with her headaches. President of the Head Pain Association of Michigan, Davidson is on medical disability from General Motors. She drives with a basin in her car at all times in case a headache hits and she begins vomiting.

With medication, Davidson's headaches were under control until six years ago when she slipped in a shopping mall. "My head hit the floor like a bowling ball. After that, I got progressively worse," said Davidson, 43, who heads up a Livonia-based support group for headache sufferers.

Balfour, Kochanek and Davidson are all patients at the Michigan Head Pain & Neurological Institute of Ann Arbor. Founded by nationally-renowned neurologist Dr. Joel R. Saper, the institute treats patients from all over the U.S. and several foreign countries.

Saper visited the area recently, speaking before a full house at the Novi Hilton. Presented by the Head Pain Association of Michigan and Chelsea Community Hospital, Saper's program addressed what's new in head pain research, and about the need for pain legislation in Michigan to "provide more quality care and access to appropriate treatment for pain sufferers.

"I'm not here to entice you to come to my clinic," said Saper. "I'm here because I want you to be able to go to your doctor and make sure he or she is tuned into what is new and effective."

Long suffering

Far too many head pain patients go undiagnosed, or improperly diagnosed, he said. Others are denied the treatment they need because of misguided health care practices.

Many people suffer longer than they should because they belong to health maintenance organizations that refuse to refer patients outside the HMO.

Saper shared a few horror stories. One involved a patient from out of state who was taking "57 Tylenol a day. He'd had his upper and lower teeth removed and his facial nerves cut, yet he still had headaches.

"The problem with HMO's is that if they don't allow the correct tests, the assumption is you don't have anything wrong; you're just nervous. Don't let anyone tell you you don't deserve help."

Too often, said Saper, patients aren't referred by HMO's because the expert in headache doesn't belong to the HMO. "If a doctor makes more money by telling you nothing is wrong, that is dangerous. WE need to bring some sense and sanity to HMO's to do what they do best, but not bring into the picture even more devious schemes."

As the newly-appointed chairman of the Michigan Council on Pain, Saper says he intends to "put a lot of pressure on science and government to make sure people have access to care. Headache is not a trifling illness. It's a serious public health problem responsible fore 700 million missed work days annually."

Myths debunked

Researchers are encouraged by the recent discovery that the migraine process occurs at the top of the brain stem. "It's a very important breakthrough, because we now know where we can direct treatment," said Saper.

"We also know that migraines are built into your biology. It's not stress; it's not something you yourself can eliminate. Secondarily, headache could be a sign that there is something seriously wrong," said Saper, who's appeared on numerous nationally-syndicated TV talk shows.

Saper debunked several myths, including one once taught in medical schools. "When I was in medical school, we were told that women didn't have more headaches then men, it's just that women were more tense and like to go see doctors. We know now the reason women have more headaches is because of estrogen. Estrogen has an effect on the brain's pain mechanism."

It's now known, said Saper, that headaches aren't caused by stress, nor are they a psychiatric problem. "The psychogical issues are overstated. Headache is caused by biochemical disturbances in the brain. If you suffer from head pain, it's because you have a biological predisposition.

New drugs

Because headaches are so complex, often many strategies are tried before an effective one is found. Many of Saper's patients, including Balfour, Kochanek and Davidson have been helped at MHNI with biofeedback relaxation tapes, preventive medication and pain relievers. Pharmaceutical companies have developed many new drugs specifically for the treatment of headache.

Saper said patients who chart their daily activities and diet sometimes discover the things that trigger their headaches. Stabilizing the day's activities, or avoiding certain foods, such as chocolate and caffeine, helps some patients. Some discover the over-the-counter painkillers they're taking "have actually become the cause of the headache," he said.

For others, the the carbon dioxide in cigarette smoke is a trigger, Saper said. Discontinuing smoking or avoiding second-hand smoke can help alleviate headaches, he added.

"We can't help everyone, but we can help a lot of you," Saper said. "We don't give up on people with headache. We keep trying."

Drug testing to start

By Ralph R. Echtinaw
Staff Writer

Canton Township trustees voted 7-0 Tuesday, Jan. 9, to begin testing for drug and alcohol use among about 40 township employees who work in jobs requiring commercial driver's licenses.

Administrative and Community Services Director Dan Durack said trustees had no choice but to adopt the testing policy because the federal government requires it.

"If you are found to have drugs or alcohol in your system by random test, you'll be fired," Durack said.

He added, however, that "we've never had a problem or instance where that has happened."

Half of the affected employees will be randomly selected for testing each year, Durack said. Urine samples will be taken and analyzed for traces of marijuana, cocaine, opiates, amphetamines and PCP. Breath analysis will be used to test for alcohol.

Employees who test positive or refuse the test will be fired immediately, according to the township's policy statement. Employees who test positive will also be referred to the Township Employee Assistance Program for evaluation and possible assignment to a treatment program.

However, the insurance of a fired employee will be canceled. The employee will then have the option of paying the insurance premium himself, which would cover continued treatment, or letting the insurance expire and paying for the treatment himself, said Personnel Manager David Medley. The employee may also discontinue treatment after the insurance is canceled.

The policy statement also permits the township to test a covered employee if there is a "reasonable suspicion" that the employee is under the influence of drugs or alcohol.

The program is expected to cost township property owners about $2,000 per year.

Police officers and firefighters are not covered by the new policy, Medley said. Although firefighters drive large vehicles, state law does not require them to have commercial driver's licenses, Medley said.

Public Safety Department employees, however, may be compelled to submit to drug testing if supervisors believe there is a problem.

State GOP leader to speak to Canton Economic Club

The public is invited to hear Susy Heintz, chairwoman of the Michigan Republican Party, speak at the Canton Economic Club at noon Wednesday, Jan. 31, at the Summit on the Park community center.

Heintz is a former Wayne County Commissioner from the 10th District and former supervisor in Northville Township. She will discuss leadership in the 1990s.

Tickets are $15 and available by calling the Canton Community Foundation, 981-3002.

Heintz' role in the Republican Party has been on the fast track since her days as a volunteer for the late Gov. George Romney's campaign in 1962. Heintz began her career in politics as a teenager when her father, former Mt. Clemens Mayor Bert Vande-Vusse, encouraged her to volunteer.

Heintz has held many grassroots positions in the GOP including precinct delegate, charter member of the Republican Business and Professional Women's Forum and delegate to the 1992 GOP Convention in Houston.

She also has served as an elected official. She was the sole Republican on the Wayne County Board of Commissioners 1986-1990 and while on the board served as vice chair. She served as township trustee, clerk and then supervisor in Northville Township.

She left her seat on the Wayne County Board to join Gov. John Engler's administration as director of his southeastern Michigan office in 1991. She was appointed chair of Engler's 1995 Inaugural Committee.

The Canton Economic Club is in its seventh season and features monthly speakers from business, industry and government. The club is sponsored this season by Rudolph Libbe and the Observer Newspapers.

■ At the public hearing, planning commissioners will consider a request for a special land use and a site plan for the proposed development.

for a special land use and a site plan for the proposed development. Under the township's "super store" criteria, a special land use permit is required for a single-use building of 40,000 or more square feet operated by one corporate entity in a C-3 commercial zone.

Bargowski is trying to prepare his neighbors for the public hearing. "We can still be proactive and let our thoughts and feelings be known to township officials," he said, adding that he has not yet received information from the township or the developer, the Zaremba Group of Lakewood, Ohio.

The developer apparently plans to meet with homeowners, Goulet added.

The Super K will include a grocery store in a 177,757-square-foot building, plus a garden shop of 21,800 square feet. There is room for a 25,000- square-foot retail area for another user on the site. Parking would be available for 1,081 vehicles and the lots would cover the front of the building and the sides, Goulet said.

"There is no parking behind the building. The only thing (behind) is loading docks," he added.

But unlike many newer commercial developments, there will be 166 feet of distance between the loading docks and the property line, which is about mid-point in the Willow Creek, which separates the planned development from Willow Trail subdivision.

Plans for storm water retention may not require the removal of as many trees as a similar project did behind Builders Square, which backs up to Pickwick Village subdivision, which is west of the planned Super K.

"A lot more trees may be saved here," Goulet said, adding there is also wetland mitigation to be considered on the site.

A four-foot berm with landscaping has been suggested between the Super K and homes behind the development, plus trees will have to be replaced for those removed for construction. "We're paying particular attention to the truck dock area," Goulet said.

Super K plans also include three entrances to the development off Haggerty, and one off Ford, between businesses facing the commercial corridor.

Residents' concerns

Bargowski said he drafted a letter to his neighbors and delivered about 100 of them so far encouraging homeowners to attend the public hearing and to get involved. The letter also offers concern for increased traffic, noise, the influx of problems accompanying more people in the area and decreasing property values.

Residents are also concerned whether the existing Kmart stores at Ford and Sheldon roads in Canton, and Haggerty and Ann Arbor roads in Plymouth Township, will close if the Super K opens.

A traffic study and market analysis — required by the township — are completed. The Michigan Department of Transportation has been requested to require improvements to Haggerty Road by the developer at the intersection with Ford to accommodate increased traffic, as well as a deceleration lane for the planned entrance on Ford Road.

"The market study shows they can survive," Goulet said, referring to neighbors' concerns about Kmart's financial strength, particularly with the Super K.

"These are private business decisions. It is all part of the marketplace. To be competitive with Wal-Mart and Meijer, Kmart has to get into these big stores. It is not for us (township officials) to judge if they are making a good business decision."

Vacant buildings

But Karl Zarbo, director of property management Ramco-Gershenson, which owns the New Towne Plaza on Ford and Sheldon where the existing Kmart is housed, said he anticipates the store will remain in operation through 1996 and 1997.

"We expect they would honor that lease," Zarbo said, adding that the primary term of the lease is up in 1999.

Zarbo also said that Kmart has softened its position. "When they open up a new one, that doesn't mean automatic closure for the old one."

If Kmart should close its existing store, they could pay for the vacant store, but Zarbo said Ramco-Gershenson would have little trouble filling the space. "There are exciting opportunities in Canton everyday. We believe we've got good real estate."

But Bargowski will tell you about the closed Kmart in Dearborn — closed when the Super K opened in that city. He also points to the now vacant Source Club on Warren and Newburg.

"It's just sitting idle there. There is an oversaturation of markets," Bargowski said.

Yack contacted attorneys following the board's Dec. 12 vote. The board can reconsider the issue one meeting after the vote, which would have been the first meeting in January.

Heinowski has read the recent legal opinion and noted the lack of a reference to the legal recourse he suggested to the board of trustees.

"Government cannot contractually, or in any other way, give up its power to govern," Heinowski said. "We the people are the ones who empower the township to govern. (Officials) cannot give away, either by election, contract or any other means, that right, because it's only invested from us to them, and it does not depart. And that's what they've done with this PUD agreement."

Heinowski said he has identified some court cases that prove this.

"(The attorneys) did not look at the court cases we presented to them or anything else," he said. "They kept their blinders on and looked at a very narrow issue."

But Yack said attorneys did review the cases submitted by Heinowski. "They considered it and said it was not on point."

Residents remain disappointed. "Years down the road people are going to be looking at the planning of this and wonder, 'Why did this ever happen?'" said resident Luana Ross, who praised trustees Melissa McLaughlin and Phil LaJoy, who were the only board members to vote against the supermarket.

"I really applaud McLaughlin for standing up for what she felt is right and (saying), 'This is a big mistake.'"

As for the remaining board members, Ross said, "I'm really frustrated that they're going along with this. I just wish they'd try a little harder to find a way out of this.

"I think it's time for a change on the board."■

Besides having timid tastebuds, Fujiwara said Izakaya Sanpei's American diners differ from their Japanese counterparts in other ways. "American regular customers come in once in awhile and spend lots of money. Japanese customers come regularly and spend a little more moderately.

Sheriff's report '95

Marijuana seizures skyrocket

The Wayne County Sheriff's year-end statistics for 1995 show a 503 percent increase in marijuana seized on the streets of Wayne County.

In 1995, the sheriff's narcotics officers confiscated more than 5,626 pounds of marijuana, up from 933 pounds in 1994. Although marijuana showed the sharpest increase for the year, the department's narcotics enforcement records reflect the use of other illicit drugs has also begun to rise.

The drug problem has dominated law enforcement operations to such an extent that more than 75 percent of police departments have instituted special community programs and crime units focused exclusively on combating it.

■ The profitability — marijuana is less expensive than other illicit drugs such as cocaine and heroin;
■ Aggressive enforcement — including the networking between state, local and federal agencies;
■ Popular use of marijuana as a "gateway drug."

"Beyond a law enforcement concern, this is also a public health crisis," Ficano said. "The long-range consequences of drug use are devastating to the local economy and society. In most cases the taxpayer is left to pay the cost for drug rehabilitation or prison."

The amount of cocaine seized in 1995 also increased 219 percent as compared to 1994, with 355 kilos seized in 1995 and 111 kilos seized in 1994.

The amount of heroin seized in 1995 decreased 60 percent from 1994 with 910 grams seized in 1995 compared to 2,271 grams in 1994.

According to a recently released report from the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA), drug-related problems accounted for nearly a half-million visits to hospital emergency rooms in 1995.

"We in the communities of law enforcement, prevention, education, and treatment must work together in partnership, with families and community groups. We are all potential agents of change, and we all bear responsibility to address this epidemic," Ficano said.

Also in 1995 as part of the drug enforcement program, 788 cars were seized in the PUSH OFF program as compared to 526 cars seized in 1994. A program started in 1990, it allows officers to seize cars used by people involved in drug activity, according to Nancy Mouradian, chief of staff and communications director for the Wayne County sheriff.

PUSH OFF stands for Purchasers Using Streets and Highways Opt For Forfeiture.

New group home designed for seniors

BY BETH SUNDRLA JACHMAN
STAFF WRITER

Four senior citizens are sharing a home in Livonia.

That may not seem all that unusual. But Dorothy Grunst, 67, Ann Reid, 61, Humbert "Bert" Orsette, 68, and Marke Knapp, 64, have moved into a new group home for developmentally disabled senior citizens.

The four moved to the single floor home in Livonia because of their ages and decreasing mobility, according to Denise King, executive director of the Community Opportunity Center. COC operates homes in Livonia, Redford Township, Plymouth and Garden City. It was getting difficult for the four senior citizens to maneuver the stairs at their former home, Plymouth House in downtown Plymouth, and some had suffered some health deterioration, King said.

"We needed to do something for these individuals," King said. "They weren't ready for a nursing home, and they couldn't afford an American House type setup."

The home, at Milburn and Haldane in Livonia, opened late last October, when the four moved from Plymouth House, a group home which houses 16 residents of various ages.

The Milburn House is licensed by the Department of Social Services and includes 24-hour supervision. It is the only senior citizen group home COC operates.

The residents have many skills and not only help with chores around the house, they also choose to work jobs Monday through Friday at a sheltered workshop called Services to Enhance Potential or STEP, which is located on Schoolcraft Road between Hubbard and Merriman. Their jobs involve work such as packing boxes.

COC is funded through Detroit Wayne County Community Mental Health Board and receives case management services through Wayne Center, an agency of people of various fields such as nursing and psychology. "A number of different disciplines are available to use," King said.

The rate to live at the home is set by DSS and as of Jan. 1, it is $575.50 a month, which comes from the residents' Social Security checks and covers everything other than things like clothing and haircuts. Health care is paid for by Medicaid and Medicare.

The need is great for group home care as COC has a waiting list of more than 200 people, and the wait can last 10 to 15 years, she said. Wayne County has a waiting list of 1,000 people, she said.

Unfortunately people don't recognize the need to find care for their developmentally disabled children until the parents become much older, and they begin looking for someone to care for their children, King said.

That's when they run into the waiting lists, she said.

To be eligible for COC's homes a person must have a primary diagnosis of mental retardation and be at least 18 years of age.

COC, founded in 1965, serves 68 people with various degrees of independence ranging from 24-hour supervision to the "Home of My Own" program, in which people live in apartments with periodic supervision.

Two of the Milburn House residents have lived in group homes or institutions for most of their lives. Two had lived with their families.

Residents learn skills such as grocery shopping, meal planning and preparation, and how to make their own doctor's appointments. They have a board listing their chores for the week, including sweeping, kitchen cleanup, vacuuming, taking out trash and helping with meal preparation.

There's always at least one staff member on duty, on nights when some residents want to go out and others want to stay in, there are two staff members, King said. When the home first opened staff members from Plymouth House helped out and some transferred. "Having people who had been trained already helped the transition," King said.

Volunteers also helped to pull things together, King said. The home required many renovations to meet licensing guidelines, she said.

The Milburn House previously had housed other residents of other ages, but when the decision was made to start a senior home, the present residents had lived together before and "we knew they would get along," King said.

There are the usual interactions between members of a household. Orsette has a favorite chair that the other residents usually let him have. He says he likes the quiet at his new home.

Knapp says he likes everything about living at Milburn House, including his chores like taking out the garbage. "I wouldn't want to live anyplace else," he said.

"I love it," Grunst said. "The Local reps split on vote to reject county raises

The Wayne County Board of Commissioners failed to reject 4 percent raises for commissioners and other county elected officials Jan. 18.

The vote was 4-10 to reject the raises, with local commissioners Bruce Patterson, R-Canton Township, Michelle Plawecki, D-Dearborn Heights, Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, voting to reject the raises. Commission Vice Chair Kay Beard, D-Westland, voted against rejecting.

By ordinance, the salaries of the county executive, sheriff, prosecuting attorney, clerk, register of deeds, treasurer and county commissioners are tied to the governor's salary.

A rejection of the increases takes a two-thirds vote of the commission, according to the ordinance.

The governor's salary increased 4 percent to $122,166 as of Jan. 1. Salary increases for county elected officials, who under ordinance make a percentage of the governor's pay, are:

- From $113,011 to $117,531 for the county executive;
- From $101,710 to $105,778 for the prosecuting attorney;
- From $84,758 to $88,148 each for the county clerk, sheriff and treasurer;
- From $79,107 to $82,272 for the register of deeds;
- From $57,204 to $59,012 for the chairman of the county commission;
- From $51,204 to $53,012 for the vice chair of the commission;

Safe community

Perception becomes reality

It's a sad commentary on human behavior when an undercover police officer has to be stationed at the newly opened Summit on the Park community center that was designed for family fun.

Already a 13-year-old was arrested for setting off a fire extinguisher, while other teens were booted out for hassling younger children having fun at the Summit. A code of conduct is in the works to remind patrons of how they must behave at the new center.

It's of greater concern when residents in Canton are scared and unnerved by a rash of senseless crimes, such as the murder of 17-year-old on Lotz Road in early January or the kidnapping, robbery and rape of a couple in their 60s in northwest Canton in late December.

Residents have every right to be concerned, both about the tragedies that have occurred, as well as the irritating behavior of a handful of misbehaved kids who seem determined to ruin other guests' fun at the Summit.

Whether it's talking to your children about their behavior in public or learning how to secure your home and property to avoid breakins and damage, part of the responsibility for a safe community rests on the residents who call the township home.

If there is any lesson in these recent tragedies, it is as Canton Public Safety Director John Santomauro so aptly says that: "When you're scared perception is reality."

To that end, Santomauro and other police officials met recently with northwest Canton residents to update them on the investigation of the kidnapping-robbery-rape and to address their concerns.

This type of communication and connection is necessary when tragedy strikes. At the very least, the meeting helped residents understand what the police are doing, as well as how residents can help themselves.

Residents are urged to participate in their neighborhood watch programs. The police can't be everywhere so it's good advice for neighbors to look after each other. It's also good advice for residents to feel free to call police when they see something unusual or suspicious. It's better to be safe than sorry. That's what the police are there for and that's why you pay taxes.

As Santomauro admitted, there's probably nothing that could have prevented the attack on the couple in northwest Canton. But you can certainly decrease the odds of being a victim of crime by keeping a watchful eye, being aware of your surroundings, especially your neighborhood, being mindful of your home security and by calling police when something just doesn't seem right.

Canton police offer free home security surveys that within 45 minutes will tell you what your house may be lacking to keep you safe, such as appropriate locks and outdoor lighting. You can drive around any Canton neighborhood at night and notice that most homeowners do not leave on their outside lights. That alone could be an invitation for trouble.

And somewhere, the responsibility for the behavior of kids and teen-agers who cannot behave in public must fall on parents — the same parents who drop their kids off at the Summit and drive away.

The new community center is not a baby-sitting service or a place where weary parents can unload their offspring. Perhaps it is parents who need to be reminded of their responsibilities.

Perception indeed becomes reality. But residents can help themselves by being aware and by keeping an eye on not only their children, but on their neighbors. It takes everyone to make a safe community.

D.C. woes: failure of human will

If you were not personally hurt, you should be at least embarrassed by the recent 20-day shutdown of the United States government.

And now it appears that both sides are once again on a collision course that could bring the fiscal integrity of the country into question.

Talks on the the balanced-budget issue broke off last week and it's unlikely there'll be any progress in settling soon.

We would rather not point partisan fingers of blame. In part, we can blame inexperience in two branches of government: a green president with 14 years in a state the size of Wayne County, a band of 74 Republican freshmen representatives, many of whom had no prior experience in government. The notion that we can elect "outsiders" to "clean up the politicians' mess" failed to bear fruit. Experience is important.

Newt Gingrich, a history professor as well as speaker of the U.S. House, should have taught his 74 pupils the first three lessons of politics: compromise, compromise, compromise. A budget battle isn't a matter of principle. War, abortion, open government — these are matters of principle. The budget is a matter of mere money, and money matters always can be compromised.

In the last government shutdown, toxic waste cleanups were halted. No student loans were processed. No business financing deals were advanced. Contracts weren't issued to private firms that do government work.

The state, which gets federal money for Medicaid, got close to the bottom of the barrel. In the Veterans Administration hospitals, workers who aren't the best paid in the land went without checks but stayed at their posts, though their morale was low. Social Security claims were handled by workers who weren't getting paid.

National parks were shut down. Sure, it isn't the vacation season, but some delivery workers in private enterprise had to detour 150 miles around shut-down parks in other parts of the country.

In Washington, the National Gallery exhibit of Jan Vermeer's paintings was saved by private donations.

There was one ray of dubious sunshine: $22 million in presidential campaign funds went out to the candidates.

It wasn't as if there were a European-style general strike. It wasn't because of a revolution in a banana republic, a monetary implosion in "third world" state, or a typhoon that flooded a national capital.

The shutdown was due to the failure of human will. President Clinton and the Republican-controlled House of Representatives couldn't agree on the budget. They simply didn't complete their work.

Oh, they had time. They started on the budget in January of 1995 and had until last Sept. 30, the end of the old fiscal year, to complete. Here we are, 103 days into fiscal 1996, and our elected leaders have failed to meet their deadline. A meat packer, an auto supplier or a newspaper that failed to meet its deadline wouldn't be in business long.

Even if you weren't personally hurt by the latest failure in Washington, you probably know somebody who was affected by it. And all Americans should be embarrassed.

Pay the price

I read with great interest the Observer & Eccentric newspaper article titled "Cop Crash" regarding a police officer sliding into another vehicle on southbound Morton Taylor Road on Jan. 4. The officer reported that he was traveling less than 10 miles per hour when he braked. "I just kept sliding. I could not turn," he wrote in the police report.

My question is, did the officer receive a traffic ticket for not having his vehicle under control? Or is the officer above the law? Over the past five years, I have had two of my teenage children receive tickets from the Canton police for similar occurrences. Both of them made similar statements. "It was solid ice and I couldn't turn the vehicle." One of the accidents resulted in no property damage whatsoever. A patrol car just happened by when she spotted my daughter and the driver of the other vehicle checking for damage. The police response was, "You should always have your car under control." She wrote a ticket.

From the article in your newspaper, it appears that the Canton police officer didn't have the patrol car under control.

I don't know who the officer was — it wasn't reported in the paper. However, after paying two excessive fines and having my automobile insurance raised twice due to teenage tickets, I hope that this officer has to pay the price also.

Trustees blundered

When reading Ralph Echtinaw's article about the grand opening festivities at Canton's new Summit on the Park ("The Summit: they like it," Jan. 8) the reader might come away with the mistaken impression that the Summit is a smashing success story.

Mr. Echtinaw only got the opinions of those persons who toured the Summit, which leaves roughly 58,000 Canton residents whose opinions were not necessarily reflected in the article. (After all, one would not interview spectators at a baseball game to learn why people don't like baseball.)

When the voters and taxpayers of Canton were asked if they wanted a Summit, they said NO — not once, but twice. Yet there it stands, in all its glory, a $13 million dollar sterling example of exactly what is wrong with city, state and federal government today: an elite few with an agenda can supersede the wishes of those who will be forced to pay the bills. (Does anybody really believe that no taxpayer funds will be used to pay for this facility or its day-to-day operations?)

Even before the Summit was opened, we saw the effects of having lost so much revenue from the coffers. Millage issues were put before the voters to pay for road and library improvements where funding is no longer available. Duh. Who didn't see that coming? And in order to pay the mounting expenses, money is being shuffled from one account to another. Guess who'll being paying the interest charges? Somehow I don't think it will be the elite few.

I would urge the Canton Board of Trustees to take a long, serious look at the damage they've done to their credibility, then sell the Summit to private enterprise. In the meantime, Canton residents can boycott the Summit until the trustees admit — and endeavor to resolve — their blunder.

Michael Olin, Canton

A big thanks

I want to personally thank all the generous people who helped support the Canton Chamber of Commerce's first car raffle. The winner of a 1996 Ford Escort was Mike MacLeod of Canton.

The effort and support from within the community and our businesses made this a success. The proceeds from this fund-raiser are for our building fund. We, as the Canton Chamber of Commerce, are constantly working on our visibility in the community. We are growing at a tremendous rate and our efforts would be much better met if a chamber office was built.

Our vision for the near future is to make this a reality. Unfortunately, our dream is still not within reach, so you may see more building fund-raisers. All who are involved in the Canton community would be winners. Speaking of winners, Jack Demmer Ford sponsored the car for this event and I can't thank him and his staff enough for their time and dedication.

Thomas V. Adamusik, Car raffle chair

New tradition

Pool table draws teen-age friends like a magnet

This past December, we started a new tradition. The impetus for it began a few months ago, when my husband, Don, decided to resurrect the pool table.

First, he had to divest it of its accumulated stuff. (All flat surfaces have invisible signs that read, "I'm available. Use me for storage!") The unearthed surface was pretty worn, so he had our son, Phil, decide to give the table a facelift. They replaced the threadbare olive felt with bright green.

This piqued the interest of our home's many teenage visitors. While trying their hand at the game, they discovered that Don, though not a player in recent years, had maintained considerable skill. And, young folks being young folks, they devised a new mission in life: to beat Don at pool.

To understand this driving force, I must tell you that your house is like the one in the old Jell-O commercial. Tricycles once filled the driveway. They, in time, gave way to bicycles, which have long since been replaced by cars.

Natalie and Phil's friends are like extra children to us. We take many of them on an annual, weeklong camping trip. Over the years — I should own stock — we have served countless peanut butter and jelly sandwiches and pizza. The young people also like it when we play Monopoly, pinochle, and Clue with them at our kitchen table. It was inevitable, then, that they challenged Don on the recovered table.

Don's skill dates back to the summer he was 13. He spent those three carefree months at the Dearborn Youth Center, practicing, from dawn to dusk, the fine point of breaking, banking, and trick shots.

Now Ryan, Tony, Gaurav, and Derrick, athletic and competitive to a person, gave it their all. Don played them left-handed. He gave them two shots for his one and allowed them retakes. And when he saw they were too discouraged, he missed the occasional shot and winced convincingly.

Still the gap was wide, so the kids resorted to extreme measures. They began coming over after school to practice whether Phil and Natalie were home or not.

Many evenings, the assorted teen-agers returned, after attending to homework, and disappeared downstairs for a couple more games.

The need for allowances decreased, so Don issued the ultimate challenge. How about having the First Annual Christmas Pool Tournament?

Opponents were chosen by a blind draw. The boys busied themselves playing the elimination rounds and jockeying for psychological advantage. The event occupied a healthy portion of their holiday free time.

Ryan, worried when he drew Don in the semi-finals, talked his opponent into yet another handicap to equalize the competition. Don agreed to use only three pockets to sink the eight ball. He even let Ryan choose: one corner and the two sides.

It was a close match, all things considered. Ryan pulled it out with a bold block of one pocket, beating Don and going on to win the final match against Derrick.

If you're thinking that Don didn't play to win, you're right. He didn't play to lose either. We believe, as some cultures do, that it takes a whole village to raise a child. Don and I are glad to provide a safe and wholesome environment for teen-agers. And we share our time, thrilled that Natalie and Phil have friends who enjoy family-based activites.

I am reminded of an old TV announcement. "It's 10 o'clock. Do you know where your children are?"

We can answer, "Yes. And a few others, too."

Names of public job applicants can't be secret

Suppose your local town council voted in October to set the property tax rate, but then refused to reveal it to you. The November election passes. "Wait 'til you get your tax bill Dec. 1," they tell you.

"Zounds! Something's amiss," you are likely to say. It's your wallet. You think you ought to know the tax rate ahead of time so you can plan your finances and how you'll vote in the election. Your local council violated the law and political good sense.

That example is fictional.

Suppose your school board is considering discipline of six students for drug activity on school grounds. The students request a closed hearing — permissible under the Open Meetings Act.

Afterwards, the board votes in open meeting to suspend them, but refers to them only by number, not name. And the board doesn't name them in the minutes, its official record. Your officials give you a cock-and-bull story about "unwarranted invasion of an individual's privacy."

"Odds bodkins!" you say. "I want to know who those bad kids are so I can keep my youngsters away from them."

That example is true. It's in a 1982 state Court of Appeals case called Palladium vs. River Valley School District. The Herald-Palladium, a Berrien County paper I had the honor to work for prior to this case, sued to have the names revealed in the minutes.

"Boards of education act only through their minutes," said the Court of Appeals. "The minutes cannot be altered or supplemented . . . (The) minutes must contain the student's name. The facts cannot be hidden by using the student's number."

We come to a more recent, statewide example that affects more people. The Natural Resources Commission is hunting for a new director to replace the suddenly departed Roland Harmes. Some candidates request confidentiality in the screening process — permissible.

But then the NRC, meeting in Novi Jan. 11, votes in open session to advance four candidates to the interview process — Rodney Stokes of MDNR, Tracey Mehan of the Great Lakes Office, Michael Carrier of the Iowa department and a "mystery candidate."

TIM RICHARD

■ To its credit, the agency came through with the name on Jan. 17, after it had several days to call the mystery candidate (K.L. Cool of North Dakota) and warn him that his name had to be revealed.

Whoa! How can a public body vote in public on a public appointee and keep his name secret?

NRC made a mistake. Chairman Larry DeVuyst and the members may have meant well, but they made a mistake. "It stinks," said publisher Glen Shepard at the North Woods Call. "Troubling. It should not be shrouded in secrecy," said George Weeks at The Detroit News.

I filed a Freedom of Information Act request with DNR on Jan. 12, citing the River Valley case. DNR turned it down. To its credit, the agency came through with the name on Jan. 17, after it had several days to call the mystery candidate (K.L. Cool of North Dakota) and warn him that his name had to be revealed, and that he'd better get his house in order back home or plan to drop out.

It was never worth a lawsuit. But it's the kind of mistake that NRC, with a lawyer to advise it, never should have made for one day, let alone for nearly a week.

And the lesson is that a public body can't do public business and keep it a secret.

Gov. Engler is partisan, but he's a man of ideas

I re-read Gov. John Engler's State of the State speech over the weekend.

Some may see this as an odd way to spend scarce leisure time. But I found it worthwhile to deflect a few days distant from all the Engler-for-vice-president hype and hotly partisan tone.

I reached three conclusions:

1. The governor is serious about welfare reform.

Project Zero, a pilot program to be tested in two urban and four small town and rural areas, will focus the Department of Social Services on surveying welfare recipients, identifying barriers to employment and subsidizing government services to ease the transition to work.

The administration is budgeting an extra $40 million next year on transportation and child care, two factors which make it hard for young mothers on welfare to get a job, which DSS Director Gerald Miller argues is a good deal because each welfare recipient moved off the rolls saves the taxpayers around $10,000 a year. Able-bodied adults enrolled in Project Zero would either accept a job or lose welfare benefits.

For a governor whose initial views on the subject consisted of saying that people on welfare are just a bunch of lazy bums, Project Zero is big-time movement. It risks alienating those folks who still think anybody on welfare is a lazy bum, but it has the virtue of realism in offering help for folks without skills or transport or child care.

2. In politics these days, ideas matter a lot.

The recent Republican renaissance was fueled at heart by a whole bunch of new ideas challenging fixed Democratic orthodoxies that run back through the Great Society all the way to the New Deal.

Cutting taxes stimulates economic growth. The welfare state encourages a culture of dependency. Bureaucratic government is inherently inefficient and clumsy, so privatizing governmental services makes sense. Crime is bad; abortion is worse; unions stink; morality counts.

These ideas may be good or bad. Most likely, they will turn out to be a mixed bag. But they are new, and they challenge standard Democratic thinking that ran out of gas about 15 years ago.

PHILIP POWER

■ The recent Republican renaissance was fueled at heart by a whole bunch of new ideas challenging fixed Democratic orthodoxies that run back through the Great Society all the way to the New Deal.

Engler's State of the State speech makes the point. In addition to proposing Project Zero, he pushed for tax-free Renaissance Zones for run-down urban areas, suggested a centralized system for collecting child support and plans to consolidate the Departments of Labor and Commerce to form the Department of Consumer and Industry Services.

I cannot remember a Michigan governor as filled with new and far-reaching ideas.

3. The best way for a political minority to become a majority is to quit carping and come up with its own new ideas. Michigan Democrats, tentatively and at long last, are beginning to come to grips with this truth.

They are drafting bills to cut the Michigan income tax, create a state network of high-tech information links and fight crime by putting more cops on the beat.

It took the Republicans years in the political wilderness, but minority status does wonders to concentrate the mind. Democrats have a long way to go, but it might just be they are learning this important truth.

Knapp had gotten tired of climbing four flights of stairs at Plymouth House. "By the time I got up the stairs my legs bothered me like a toothache," he said.

Each resident has goals which are set up annually, for example Knapp has been assigned to work on budgeting, while Orsette has been given an exercise program, King said.

They also have hobbies such as bowling, movies and shopping, and all of them go to church on Sunday at Mainstreet Baptist Church in Plymouth, because it's a small church and they've felt comfortable being active there, King said.

Plans are to make modifications to the home, as the residents need them.

"We have to be real aware of what seniors' needs are," King said, adding staff members will continue to help people with their aging changes.

Getting Mama all to herself

"Hannah Got Mama All to Herself" is a children's story about a little girl who feels crowded by the boys in her family. She'd like some time with just Mama. One night everything falls into place

Hannah waved as the bus went by on whisper smooth wheels. Papa, Sherman and the rest of Den 6 were off to the Moon Watchers Museum and Lodge for the night. Telescopes, bed rolls and knapsacks were packed neatly under the bus. And high above the bus, a smooth moon floated. Hannah almost had Mama all to herself.

Later, Hannah and Mama and little Joe Tommy saw raggedy clouds move over the moon. That's when they heard the sputter and clunk of Aunt Tilly's car rattle up. When Aunt Tilly pattered to the porch with her shoulder shawl close about her, she said it was a great treat, indeed a delight, to take little Joe Tommy to her rickety cottage for that whole night. Then she rattled her keys and teetered Joe Tommy and clattered out. She drove away with baby bottles, night bunting and jars of bananas scattering and clinking underneath her seat.

And Hannah got Mama all to herself.

The moon and stars lit their way as they set off together. Just Hannah and Mama.

They sat by the window of the Quilted Cafe. When they received their plates of food, they put

'Care-ousel' helps young mourners

Sigmund Freud believed children didn't have the capacity to mourn. Thinking has changed and programs like Arbor Hospice's award-winning "Care-ousel" have been started to help youngsters deal with the loss of loved ones.

Arbor Hospice of Ann Arbor believes that children are "the forgotten mourners." Children's needs are often misunderstood because they express grief differently than adults.

The organization took that into consideration and created "Care-ousel," a program that helps children who are grieving the loss of someone close to them, as well as those who themselves or their parents are seriously or terminally ill.

The group, open to school-aged children ages 5-18 who have experienced the death of a family member no matter when or how that loss occurred, begins its next 12-session weekly program at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 30, at the First United Methodist Church of Plymouth.

"I certainly believe that these programs are very important to know about," said Arbor Hospice's Sally Dunning who helped create "Care-ousel." "So often children don't show the kinds of signs of distress (that adults show). You don't find kids who look like grieving adults. Instead adults misread kids and they think it really doesn't bother them that much."

Instead of showing traditional signs of grief, children try to communicate in other ways. For example, they wet their beds, or are afraid of sleeping alone in a room, Dunning explained. Their behavior changes, however, through the course of "Care-ousel" meetings.

"Parents will report to us in the beginning that their kids are doing a lot of acting out in school — fighting and hitting, just not doing well. These are things that you normally wouldn't associate with loss necessarily," said Dunning, who led groups since 1989. "What you find as the group progresses is that they're doing a lot more talking about the parent who died.

"As they express their feelings, their behaviors begin to change. They don't hit so much and they don't fight. So what they've done is to be able to put words with what they're feeling and not showing it with their behavior."

Hidden feelings

Dunning explained that there are a variety of reasons why chil-

napkins in their laps, in a very proper manner. When they spoke across the table to each other, they used quiet voices. And when they giggled, they giggled softly, the polite way.

In the window glass Hannah could see Hannah and Mama, just the two of them. On the other side of the window glass, the sky stars begged for wishes. "I wish this night would never, ever end," Hannah's whisper misted a circle on the glass. She reached for Mama's warm hand and held it tight. All to herself.

"Mama!" Hannah cried. "It's Aunt Tilly and Joe Tommy."

Joe Tommy's face was red and wet. Aunt Tilly's shoulder shawl was in a knot. Her words tumbled. "I must return Joe Tommy to you right now. He didn't like staying the night. At all." Joe Tommy reached out to Mama, and Mama cozied him in. Aunt Tilly rattled her keys and clattered her shoes across the cafe. And then was gone.

■ Hannah and Mama had a delightful party, until Joe Tommy mushed a muffin in his baby hair.

Just then, tea cups of warm cocoa milk arrived. Just two of them.

Hannah and Mama daintily sipped. Joe Tommy snatched spoons and clattered them to the floor. He poured salt out of the salt shaker into a big pyramid on his tray. Hannah, at last, in a ladylike voice said, "I believe we should leave." And they did.

To the tiny shop with hair fancies and earrings went the two ladies. And Joe Tommy. Hannah looked at mouse earrings and ballerina earrings. She looked at sparkle hair bands and star barrettes. Hair fancies and earrings were everywhere! But then Joe Tommy yanked a batch of hairbows down from a twirly around case and screamed very loudly. Mama scooped him up and said, "I believe we should leave." And they did.

Once home, Hannah prepared a tea party. She poured juice in two of Mama's best tea cups and a little in a baby bottle. She carefully arranged tiny muffins on a plate and set them on the table. Hannah and Mama had a delightful party, until Joe Tommy mushed a muffin in his baby hair. "I believe he should leave," Hannah remarked. "And be put to bed."

On the other side of the window glass over Joe Tommy's crib, the moon smoothed out. Hannah looked up at it. Far away, Sherman and Papa looked up at it. They all saw the great white blanket it laid down in the darkness. A corner of that moon blanket cozied Joe Tommy. He breathed a gentle breath and fell asleep. And so, at last, Hannah had Mama all to herself.

Hannah gathered six books for Mama to read on Mama's big soft bed.

And, at last, with her head on the pillow, Hannah took Mama's warm hand and held it tight. All to herself. And so ended the night.

At church the next morning, light shone through the windows of stained glass, making rainbows on Mama and Hannah. And Joe Tommy. The ladies sang songs. Joe Tommy rattled pages in the hymn books. He made rude spitty noises. Hannah whispered to Mama, "I believe we should leave." And they did.

They stood in the back breezeway where rude, noisy babies get cozied and calmed by their mamas. Joe Tommy had Mama. Hannah stood by.

While there they stood, they saw Sherman and Papa stroll in. Sherman proudly motioned to his new moon badge. Mama looked. Hannah, too.

Then Hannah's family returned to their pew to sit in the window glass rainbow. They all bowed their heads and held tight to each other's hands. Papa. Sherman. Joe Tommy. Hannah. Mama. All in a row.

And Hannah got Mama all to herself.

dren hold in their feelings. Some kids are afraid to talk to their surviving parent because it might upset them.

"We help them understand that tears are a good thing, they're a healing thing," she said.

A common effect of a parent's death is a child's fear of abandonment. They're scared when their parents go to work, run errands, or drop them off at school.

"Children often become very clingy after a parent dies, they're afraid to see them go," Dunning said. "Parents get understandably upset about that. As a result of the group and understanding more about this fear that a second parent would die and how rare that is, bit by bit the children get back to their development stage that they were at before the death."

The group also addresses the guilt children feel after a loved one dies.

■ 'A lot of children, in fact a majority of them, have somewhere inside (of them) this belief that they did something that caused the parent's death and end up feeling guilty.'

Sally Dunning

"A lot of children, in fact a majority of them, have somewhere inside (of them) this belief that they did something that caused the parent's death and end up feeling guilty," she said. "They believe if you're guilty you really should be punished so they are setting out to see themselves punished."

When children are taught to understand that they didn't have anything to do with their parents' death, they stop acting out.

Blame it on Freud

The misconception about children's ability to mourn dates back to Sigmund Freud, Dunning explained. It was Freud who sent people off in the wrong direction.

"He was quite sure that children didn't have the capacity to mourn until at least adolescence," she said. "But if a child is old enough to love then they're old enough to grieve and mourn. Even a 6-month-old responds in some way to a loss."

Dunning came to Arbor Hospice in 1989 when "Care-ousel" was in its infancy stage. The group, she said, is an off-shoot of "Starting Over," a bereavement group for young widows and widowers. That group helps parents better understand the needs of their children and how to deal with issues of single parenting.

"Originally, when 'Starting Over' began, one of the things that the parents were understandably concerned about was their kids," she said. "They would bring their children just to play together when they met. But they needed more than to just play. They needed help too and little by little it took on the form that we have now."

"Care-ousel" is based on a guide called "A Leader's Guide to Time Limited Developmental Facilitation Groups for Parentally Bereaved Children," which was created by Dunning and Molly Timony of Arbor Hospice along with a team from the University of Michigan's Sadye Harwick Power Program.

Clinicians from Arbor Hospice and U-M met for five years to study the needs of parentally bereaved children and to develop a model for group intervention which would address the changes that these children must cope with over time.

The result is a 12-session guide for invention for children which supports them from telling the story of their parent's death through thinking about the possible dating and remarriage of their surviving parent.

In November, the National Hospice Organization gave the team the Award for Excellence for Educational Programming.

Dunning said there are a few other children's bereavement groups in the area, but none are as specific as Arbor Hospice's group.

"There are a couple in the southeastern Michigan area that occasionally will do a group for children," she said. "Ours are the only groups that are a combination of loss specific and age specific, and are professionally led."

The next 12-week session of "Care-ousel" will meet at 7 p.m. beginning Tuesday, Jan. 30, at the First United Methodist Church, 45201 N. Territorial Road, between Beck and Sheldon roads, Plymouth Township. There is a $30 per week charge for the program, which is open to the public, but no one is turned down for financial reasons. For more information, call (313) 677-0500.

Writer has resourceful mind, but needs structure in life

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

LORENE GREEN

Dear Lorene,

I have been trying for the longest time to find my handwriting style submitted in your feature. I've had no such luck, hence I'm submitting my own.

I am a 41-year-old, married mother of two who also enjoys a professional career. I prefer to dictate since my writing is hard to read. I am right-handed.

B.S.
No city given

This letter was written on lined paper which I do not often select because lined paper does not furnish certain information that is helpful to the analyst. However, since the sample was a challenging one, I wanted to do it.

If this is the writer's usual selection of writing paper, and I feel it is, it tells us she has a need for structure in her life.

This woman has above average intelligence with a resourceful, creative and versatile mind. She can deal skillfully with difficulties or problems.

The ability to grasp essentials comes rapidly. She finds non-essentials restrictive. Routine and repetition can be almost intolerable. A suggestion is more to her liking than a book of intructions.

Her mind moves quickly. With those who cannot keep up mentally, she may have limited patience. She appears to have a built-in antenna which allows her to probe into affairs and size up situations.

Flexible and adaptable are descriptive words that fit her personality. While seeking her identity she likes to keep her options open. She also knows how to manipulate others through understanding and empathy. Diplomacy has been developed to avoid friction. Seemingly, her upbringing was rather strict.

This woman may be somewhat of an enigma to others. Being understood by everyone is not terribly important.

At the time this letter was written, she was experiencing some inhibition or fear of a future challenge.

She appears to enjoy having her own way. She can move quickly to assume control of a situation or group of people. She is self-protective and her thinking is often directed toward the satisfaction of her own wishes or desires.

She is not inclined to sit down and take the time to plan out her goals. I think any planning takes place as she is involved with her work.

Her nature is often emotional. It is not easy for her to conceal her feelings. If nothing else, her body language gives her away.

There is strong determination and goal orientation here. She enjoys challenges and accomplishment. She does not give up on things that are important to her. With less important things, she is inclined to give one quick spurt and then move on. With the amount of speed shown in this handwriting she may need to be careful to avoid small mishaps.

If you would like your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please write a few paragraphs about yourself, using a full sheet of white, unlined paper and writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and signature are all helpful. Due to the volume of mail, personal replies are not possible. However, objective feedback is welcome.

Workshop weighs options of dieting

In the U.S. today, 32 percent of adults are overweight. Every year millions of people in the U.S. are dieting at any one time, with the largest number beginning in January.

If you are one of that number making a New Year's resolution to lose weight, there are some things you should know. Even though Americans spend $33 billion per year on weight reduction products, the prevalence of overweight is increasing, not diminishing. The majority of those who begin a diet do not complete it and, if they do lose their weight, it is all regained within five years.

With that in mind, professional counselor Suzanne Hamilton will conduct a "Weighing the Options — Evaluating Weight Management Programs" workshop at 9 a.m. Saturday, Feb.3, at New Directions Center for Christian Counseling, 37625 Ann Arbor Road, west of Newburgh, Livonia.

Participants will learn how to evaluate their health risks and diet readiness, what questions to ask, what types of programs are available and how to evaluate them.

According to Hamilton, the National Academy of Science, Institute of Medicine, has identified three criteria to use when evaluating weight management programs. They are:

(1) The match between the person and the program. Know for whom the program is appropriate and whether it is appropriate for your given goals and characteristics. The least invasive and costly programs should be chosen by those with the least amount of weight to lose, who have no accompanying weight-related health problems, and with the strongest self-motivation.

Risen Christ installs Steven ministers

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

A member in need will have someone to help at Risen Christ Lutheran Church in Plymouth Township with the start of the Steven Ministry.

Ellie Hunt-Goebel, Anita Miller, Helen Jones, Gordon Eddy and Bill Schauwecker of Plymouth and Sandy Mueller of Canton will be commissioned as Steven ministers at the 11 a.m. worship service Sunday, Jan. 28.

The Plymouth Township church is joining more than 5,000 churches, representing 90 denominations, across the country in offering the lay ministry.

"We're having the commissioning service so the congregation knows who the Steven ministers are and what the ministry is going to do," said Lay Minister Hugh McMartin. "The Steven Ministry is owned by the congregation and to be effective, we need them to refer people for care."

The Steven Ministry was founded more than 20 years ago in St. Louis, Mo., by a pastor who still serves as its executive director. It is a confidential ministry of Christian caregiving and support for people facing crises in their lives, such as a terminal illness, grief, hospitalization, separation or divorce, birth, adoption or disability.

Risen Christ decided to become involved in the program because of the time constraints imposed on McMartin and the Rev. K.M. Mehrl, pastor.

"The pastor and myself can only be there a certain amount of time," McMartin said. "But immediately after a crisis, there are still things that need to be done."

McMartin attended the 12-day Steven Ministry leaders conference, then returned to the church to begin interviewing potential members. A screening process was used to find out if those members interested in serving were qualified to care for others.

The six finalists received 50 hours of training, including two eight-hour retreats. The training spanned 3½ months and concluded in December. Their commission is for two years and then can be renewed on a yearly basis for as long as the lay ministers want.

The ministers will work one-on-one with assigned members of the congregation. They will begin their work immediately after being commissioned, having already been matched with "a care receiver," McMartin said.

People interested in or with questions about the Steven Ministry at Risen Christ, or who know someone in need who could use the support of a Christian caregiver, can call McMartin at the church, 453-5252.

Ex-Great Lakes cruise ship crews plan reunion

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

She was called the "Sweetheart of the Lakes:" an apt description, according to Richard Ruggerole of Livonia, who met his wife Marylou aboard the Chicago, Duluth and Georgian Bay Transit Company's S.S. South American in 1954.

He was an assistant bartender; she worked in the tea room. They were among the 60 mostly college students who worked aboard the ship each summer as it ferried vacationers and travelers around the Great Lakes for 53 years.

"Basically, you worked for the tips," said Ruggerole who worked the summers of 1952-54. "You were paid $65 per month and received your room and board and uniforms. Any week you didn't make $125 in tips was a bad week."

In his 20's and attending Wayne State University, Ruggerole found out about the job from a cousin who had worked on the ship from 1948 to 1950. He worked two seasons as a bus boy before moving up to assistant bartender.

A family member also helped Marylou land a job on the ship in 1954. Two days after getting it she recalls telling her family that she "didn't want to go to South America."

Fellow alum P.J. Henry's introduction to Great Lakes cruises was at age nine, when her family sailed aboard the South American's sister ship, the S.S. North American from Chicago to Mackinac Island.

"I thought it was the most wonderful thing to do, and I wanted to be a crew member," said Henry, who worked on the South American for five summers and now lives in Walled Lake. "When we moved to Michigan, low and behold my senior class trip was on the South American and I signed on to be a crew member. It was a wonderful summer job."

Getting together

The Ruggerroles and Henry are among a group of the ships' alumni who are spearheading a reunion in Detroit this July. This is the third time they have organized a get-together. The first was held in Holland, Mich. and the second in Detroit in 1991 attracting 240 former crew members from throughout the United States.

Cruise reunion

The upcoming reunion is for all crew members who served on both the North American and South American between 1913 and 1967, and organizers hope to have even more former crew members at the July 26-28 festivities.

"We've been talking about this for years," said Ruggerole. "P.J. and others keep pushing it, and Sandy Meggert started a newsletter in 1986-87 to help people keep in touch with people."

Plans include a fantail party on Friday evening at the Westin Hotel, a cruise aboard the Diamond Belle to the Detroit Yacht Club for the captain's dinner on Saturday and a non-denominational service at Mariner's Church, presided over by crew members, on Sunday.

"There are thousands of people from the metro area that worked on those ships," said Henry. "In fact, a lot of crew members came from Ward Presbyterian Church."

Ruggerole recalls one crew member who had a master's degree in home economics but "never taught a day in her life."

"She'd work summers on the boat and in the winter would worked as a hostess at a dude ranch," Ruggerole said. "She'd work every other year, that way she could get a new car and travel around the country."

Built at the Great Lakes Engineering Works in Ecorse, the South American was launched on Feb. 1, 1914, a year after the North American began excursions from Chicago to Mackinac Island. It carried 540 passengers and a crew of 160 on week-long excursions across Lakes Erie, Huron and Superior.

The sailing season ran from mid-May to mid-September, kicking off with a cruise to the Tulip Festival in Holland.

After that were the three-day "kiddie cruises" — senior class trips — to either Port Stanley or Mackinac Island and charter cruises by business like the Ford dealers of Cleveland and Detroit Chamber of Commerce before the "merry-go-round schedule" kicked in on June 15.

The merry-go-round was the two-day trip to Buffalo, N.Y., followed by the five-day trip to Duluth, Minn., a scheduled that continued until its final regular trip to Mackinac Island on Labor Day weekend.

The ship would set sail from the foot of Woodward Avenue on Friday evening for Buffalo and would return by way of Cleveland, docking in Detroit on Sunday afternoon. That evening it headed north, stopping at Mackinac Island on Monday and Munising and Houghton on Tuesday before docking in Duluth on Wednesday. Thursday, the South American would head back to Detroit by way of Parry Sound on Georgian Bay in Canada, docking in Detroit on Friday.

Summer help

The summer help included six bellhops, seven waiters and 26 waitress. The busboys would take care of five tables in the dining room, while the waitresses tended to just two.

The crew's quarters were on the lowest deck of the ship below the water line, while the women's rooms — collectively called "the harem" — were to the front of the ship.

"The first day I was assigned to Room 4; I shared it with three others," Ruggerole said. "The steam pipe was a foot and half over my head and the drive shaft was under the floor."

The crew also had its own area on the fantail, called the poop deck, and once a week there was an after-hours crew party in the dining room, "if you had the strength," Ruggerole said.

The ship's doctor was recruited for two-week stints and could bring along the family. The doctor wouldn't get paid, however everything except alcoholic beverages, was provided.

The same was true for the Catholic priest, however, during Ruggerole's stint in the ship, two bellhops who were in divinity school conducted the Protestant services.

Twice a week crew members would perform in a show for the passengers, a way of earning points that translated into a bonus. "If you stayed until the end of the year," Ruggerole said.

The end of the year came around Sept. 15, so the ships could make it to drydock in Lake Macatawa at Holland before the Coast Guard-imposed deadline of being off the Great Lakes by Oct. 15.

The "sweetheart of the Lakes" never missed a season, even when it was gutted by fire in 1924 shortly after drydocking in Holland. It was completely remodeled at Ecorse and ready for crusies in June 1925.

Originally built at a cost of $600,000, the ship featured a steel hull with the remainder of its structure done in wood, which eventually brought about the end of her grand sailing career in 1967.

"Congress passed a law that all ships must be fire-proofed," Ruggerole said. "The South American had a steel hull, but the rest was wood with 60 coats of paint."

The ship finished the season running excursions to the Montreal World's Fair before being sold for $111,111.11 to the Seafarers International Union. It left Detroit for the last time on Oct. 16, 1967 for Newport News, Va.

There were several attempts to convert her into a training ship school at Piney Point, Md., and other attempts to return her to Detroit as a floating hotel-convention center, but to no avail.

Eventually, the South American was sold for scrap and hauled to the Port of New Jersey in Camden, N.J. Her sister ship suffered a different fate, sinking mysteriously in 220 feet of water off Nantucket, Mass., in September 1967.

Looking back on their summers on the South American, the Ruggeroles and Henry agree that it was fun. Marylou would have signed on for a second summer if not for her dashing young husband-to-be.

"He wasn't going back, so I got a job in the medical profession," she said. "You worked hard, but you made good money and had fun."

Former North American and South American crew members interested in more information about the reunion can write to: Crew Reunion, P.O. Box 032, Walled Lake 48390-0032.

Designers showcase work at bridal expo

Four metropolitan Detroit wedding veil designers will debut their work at the BRiDE + GROOM Bridal Fashion Expo, slated for Sunday, Jan. 28, at the Summit on the Park in Canton.

The quartet are finalists in the first BRiDE + GROOM Publications/Wedding Shows bridal fashion design competition. Competing for honors are Trisha SaputoHull of Star Design in Roseville, Donna Przepiora of Veil Designs by Donna Marie of Warren, Kathleen Thomas of Bridal Veils Unlimited & More Inc. of Sterling Heights and Von Jour Reece of Von Jour Reece Designs of Detroit.

"Meredith" distinction awards will be presented to veil design contest winners in the categories of traditional and avant garde, based on originality, aesthetic expression, concept development, workmanship and appearance. The "Sully" award will be presented to the overall finest designer for 1996.

The expo will feature an afternoon — noon to 4 p.m. — of continuous fashions, seminars and exhibitors. The wedding veil designers will share the runway with bridal fashions from Ellen's Bridal, Victoria's Bridal and Angi's Bridal. Formal wear will be shown by Russell's Tuxedos, and honeymoon attire will be from Touch of Romance.

The finalists will debut their designs at the expo, and Von Jour Reece also will show his complete wedding line of gowns, after five and trousseau fashions.

Reserved tickets for the expo cost $5 and are available by calling the BRiDE + GROOM ticket line at (313) 937-2812. They also will be available at the door for $7.

Cookie orders can be placed through Friday, Jan. 26, for delivery to begin Feb. 19. The cookies cost $3 a box and there are eight varieties available this year: Thin Mints, Peanut Butter Patties, Lemon Pastry Cremes, Peanut Butter Sandwiches, Shortbread, Carmel DeLites, low-fat Strawberries N' Creme and no-fat Cinnamon Oatmeal Raisin Bars.

The cookie sale started nearly 60 years ago as a bake sale. Last year, Huron Valley Girl Scouts sold 977,976 boxes of cookies. Fourteen percent of proceeds from the sale benefit the individual scout troops, while the council gets 32 percent which is used for its camps, services to low-income girls, volunteer training, scholarships, "camperships" and staff support.

For Kimberly Tamme, the cookie sale means a camping trip to Bellaire, Mich. in June with Cadette Scout Troop 535, while camping trips, activities and badges will benefit from the sales effort by her sister Kellie, Amy Fitzsimmons and other members of Junior Troop 209 at Hulsing Elementary School in Canton.

Brownies Whitney Soltau, 8, and Emily Maiorana, 7, are turning on the charm to sell cookies so their Troop 265, also based at Hulsing, can go camping in May.

The Huron Valley Girl Scout Council serves more than 14,000 girls and 4,000 adults in Livingston, Monroe, Washtenaw and western Wayne and Oakland counties.

For those craving cookies who may miss the current sale, take heart. Booth sales, where the scouts hawk boxes of cookies at local businesses and shopping malls, start up Feb. 24.

Six community bands from the metropolitan area will head to Twelve Oaks Mall Saturday, Jan. 27, for the 16th annual Festival of Bands.

The festival, eight free concerts throughout the day in the mall's center court, gives band members a chance to socialize and showcase their skills together. Each band will perform for about an hour, and two other concerts will each feature the combined efforts of three bands.

It's an event band members and mall visitors alike look forward to, said Paul Barber, a festival founder.

"We've been real successful," Barber said. "The same bands come back every year."

Carl Grapentine of radio station WNIB in Chicago is the festival's master of ceremonies. Grapentine is a former Detroit disc jockey.

The concerts begin at 11 a.m. and run through about 8:30 p.m., with a break of about an hour and a half.

Barber, music coordinator for the Farmington Public Schools, is a founder and director of the Farmington Community Band, which is in its 30th season.

The 65-member band's purpose is threefold, Barber said. It gives adults who've studied instrumental music a forum for musical expression, provides an opportunity for community service and offers some high school musicians enrichment outside of the traditional school setting.

"It has a multitude of blessings," he said. Barber and his wife, Fern, founded the band in 1966 during their first year of teaching.

The band has a wide repertoire that includes baroque music, Broadway show tunes, marches and contemporary music. It also has smaller units, including Dixieland and jazz groups.

Twelve Oaks has been supportive of the festival from the outset, Barber said.

Throughout the years, the festival has featured a wide variety of music, Barber said. Only once that he can remember was the same piece played by two different bands, he said. "Every year, I listen to all eight concerts," he said.

Grant Hiemke, director of the Birmingham Community Band, said community bands are increasing in popularity around the country. The Birmingham band, he said, provides a "very friendly, open kind of atmosphere" that encourages musicians to participate.

Hiemke, in his 16th season as music director of the Birmingham band, is an instrumental music teacher in the Farmington district. The Birmingham band has a unit that gives concerts of Dixieland-style music and raises money for scholarships to the state's Interlochen arts and music camp.

Twelve Oaks Mall is at I-96 and Novi Road. The concerts are free for mall visitors. For more information, call (313) 261-2202 or (810) 489-3412.

By Linda Ann Chomin

If a trip to the Detroit Zoo seems too chilling right now, visit the lions and tigers and bears in "The Animal Show" at the Swann Gallery. The 4,000-square foot jungle bears more than 140 painted and sculpted works of animals by artists from Livonia, Redford Township, Royal Oak, Bloomfield Township, Pontiac, and Detroit. Whimsical walruses welcome children and adults alike with a wink. That was the plan.

"I hadn't seen any other galleries do an animal show," said Swann Gallery director Therese Swann, "but I had heard about the new interpretive gallery at the Detroit Zoo and thought this would be uplifting after the holidays."

Kathy Cushman's papier mache lion roars a hello the moment you step through the door. A graduate of Clarenceville High School and a part-time student at Western Michigan University in Kalamazoo, Cushman spent about a week sculpting the lion for a local band to use as a prop during a concert. Bigger than an Old English Sheepdog, Cushman's king of the jungle has eyes that seem to follow visitors around this lively space.

"The eyes came from a garage sale. I bought a whole bag so there are more animals to come," said Cushman. The 25-year-old Livonia resident also has a leopard puppet on display in the glass showcase.

What kind of animal is this by Catherine Peet of Royal Oak? A horsefly with a paint brush for a head. A dragonfly made of driftwood. But what animal has a spring for a tail?

"It's made of found objects," said Livonia printmaker Jeanne Poulet.

"My granddaughter spent a half hour looking at it, trying to figure it out. You can see parts of old furniture. It's made with real teeth and a spring that becomes a rattle for a tail."

Talking Animals

There is seriousness, too in "The Animal Show." Wildlife walking sticks featuring endangered animals by Randall Lentz of Redford Township, are crafted from wooden pallets and crates used for shipping. The sticks reuse resources that otherwise might end up in a landfill. Imperfections like nail holes have been left as a reminder of the wood's original intent. "As an artist my main concern has always been to inform and involve those viewing my art so that they think and act upon the information to make a positive change. Even something simple like a walking stick, if viewed with understanding, can make a statement," said Lentz.

The Tanzanaian black rhinoceros, loggerhead turtle and humpback whale are either threatened or endangered by man's pollution. They struggle to survive in shrinking habitats.

"The whole idea of recycling is to preserve our environment. It's wonderful how he took a piece of found wood and recycled it to create a beautiful work of art," said Swann.

ARTISTIC EXPRESSIONS

LINDA ANN CHOMIN

The criteria for good art cuts across mediums universally. I was reminded of that when serving as one of the judges in the 14th annual Plymouth International Ice Sculpture Spectacular. More than 637,000 visitors attended this year's festival Jan. 10-15 to watch carvers from the U.S., Japan and Switzerland create on-the-spot sculptures of animals, figures and abstract forms.

Judges from Japan and the United States gathered to pick the winners. A Friday night meeting to agree on guidelines had to be delayed due to the lack of an interpreter. When we met on Saturday morning Certified Master Chef Dan Hugelier, coordinator of the judging; chefs Manabu Itou and Eiji Suezawa of the Biwako Hotel in Japan; Helmut Holzer, an Austrian born Certified Master Chef from Atlanta; John Fitzer of Westland, a professional ice carver, and myself represented a cross-section of creative minds for awarding honors.

Artistic achievement and strength of design, craftsmanship, detail and precision, strong lines, symmetrical or even depth and uniformity, originality, creativity, and an eye for proportion made up each of the four separate categories awarding points from 1 to 10.

When it came to picking a winner of the two-man team competition the choice was unanimous. "Dance of the Butterfly Queen," an Art Deco female figure, surrounded by butterflies, carved by Ted Wakar of Canton Township and Jim Burr Jr. of Livonia, won the gold medal.

As the two days of judging progressed it became obvious there were differences among the judges in regards to criteria used. One of the best carvings as far as I was concerned featured two horses fighting by Anja Schneider, a Swiss exchange student.

Fitzer argued to mark down the carving because the base was unfinished. Everyone else loved it awarding it a Silver Medal in the Professional Individual category.

Next, a carving of a ram standing on a rock by Gary Allwein of Columbus, Ohio, kept controversy brewing as Japanese judges awarded the work high scores. It was obvious to the Americans, the legs were out of proportion, too short for the body.

On the other hand, the uneven lengths of the arms on ladies at "Brunch in Kellogg Park" seemed meant to be. Reminiscent of Toulouse Lautrec's Moulin Rouge scenes, the work stirred up more controversy, eventually resolved. And so it went.

All of the judges agreed to take into consideration skill levels of carvers in high school and college competitions coordinated by chef Richard Teeple of Plymouth, an ice carving instructor at Henry Ford Community College, Dearborn. Once Japanese judges understood "high school" our numbers were in sync.

Taking First Place in the High School Individual division was Nicholas Watts of Plymouth. The student from Catholic Central High School in Redford captured points with a carving of a grizzly bear about to attack. Second Place High School went to Michael Watts, also a Catholic Central student, for his depiction of a toddling penquin. The Watts brothers teamed up the two animals for an assembled sculpture taking First Place in the two man high school competition.

Second place went to Rudolph Poindexter and Donald Day of Golightly Career and Technical Center in Detroit, and Third to Jim Geary and Nate Dufort of Plymouth Canton High School.

College two man team First Place honors went to Brian Riggs of Plymouth and Robert Susko of Westland. Both attend HPCC. Other local winners in this category were Third Place, Woody Thomas of Plymouth and Alexander Young of Novi representing Oakland Community College in Farmington Hills.

Seminar for advanced carvers

Certified Master Chef Dan Hugelier, chef instructor at Schoolcraft College and a three-time member of the U.S. Culinary Olympic Team, is teaching a one-day hands-on seminar in Advanced Ice Carving Techniques Saturday, Feb. 17, at Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

The cost is $160. For more information call (313) 462-4448.

Design and artistic themes for composition will be discussed and students will learn fusing, logo-work, and multi-block construction techniques.

raising money to save the African white-backed mountain gorilla by filling commissions for bronze sculptures of the endangered beast.

Located in the Detroit Art Corridor, the non-profit Swann Gallery opened last September. Swann, an artist and part-time postal carrier, funded the project. She aims to provide a forum for artists through exhibits like "The Animal Show." Just how dedicated is she to the concept? Three days after opening the gallery Swann broke her leg. No problem. She simply greeted visitors in her wheelchair.

■ MASTERING COLOR

Would you like to know more about the dazzling optical effects possible when red is placed next to green?

Visual Arts Association of Livonia is offering five sessions in mastering color with Farmington Hills artist Edee Joppich Jan. 25 and 27, and Feb. 1, 7 and 17.

Utilizing Joppich's, students will paint a color-reference book. Mixing the colors on the chart will show students how to arrive at unusual sparkling colors as well as subtle grays while mastering watercolor techniques. Learn how to prevent colors from turning muddy, then record these mixtures for future reference.

Joppich, owner of Joppich's Bay Street Gallery in Northport, is well-known in this area as a painter and teacher. Cost is $80 for VAAL members, $85 for non-members.

Call Marge Masek, (313) 464-6772 for more information about VAAL sponsored art classes and workshops, or to register for Joppich's sessions.

Sunday, January 28, 1996 • 2 p.m. Lecture Hall

From its founding in 1919 until its forcible closure by the Nazis in 1933, Germany's Bauhaus school of design attracted an amazing roster of faculty and students including Walter Gropius, Ludwig Mies van der Rohe and Wassily Kandinsky. Many of these luminaries moved from Berlin and resettled in America, where they established new design schools and trained generations of students. This enticing documentary by producer/director Judith Pearlman celebrates the Bauhaus and its influence on the American architecture scene.

'Dandelion Wine' captures innocence of simpler times

Trinity House Theatre presents Ray Bradbury's "Dandelion Wine" 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays to Feb. 10, 38840 West Six Mile Road, (on north side of Six Mile Road, west of I-275) Livonia. Tickets $7. Call (313) 464-6302 for reservations.

BY SUE SUCHYTA
SPECIAL WRITER

Trinity House's "Dandelion Wine," set in 1928, captures the innocence of a simple era and a simpler time — the magic of childhood summers. Through the eyes of a young boy, theatergoers experience a warm reminder of summer despite the cold Michigan night outside.

Kindling the magic and enthusiasm is Andrew McIntyre as Douglas Spaulding, the young boy whose pure and delightful spin on life guides us through his summer odyssey of realization. McIntyre's talent and contagious enthusiasm set the tone for the performance, as did the energy and ability of the other youth in the cast.

Even though "Dandelion Wine" is performed as Reader's Theater with minimal set and props, the cast drew audiences in with strong emotion, and acting as intensely hypnotic as any fully staged production.

Other standouts include Carl Dumas of Redford as the Narrator and Colonel Freeleigh, the keeper of Civil War stories, whom the town's children dub the human time machine. His voice, full of the character acquired through experience, spins a captivating tale like a ballad.

■ REVIEW

Margaret O'Rourke-Kelly as Great Grand-Mama gave a touching and skillful performance in the vignette, "A Sum In Arithmetic" as she prepares her great grandson Douglas for her impending death. Her admonition, "Nobody ever dies who has a family," is easily one of the simplest yet most memorable lines of the play.

Music director Kathy Kitzman's musical selections, which intersperse the vignettes, were an auditory treat. All were written in 1928 or earlier, with one exception.

Despite some minor lighting difficulties, some forgivable historical inaccuracies in the costumes, and the awkwardness inherent with a tight stage, the cast worked well as an ensemble. The dedication of the technical staff was evident in the overall smooth flow of the production.

Trinity House's commitment to presenting a Christian theater perspective is evident in the harmony created onstage and in the wings.

So, if you're looking for some warm family fun to chase away winter's chill, look no further than Trinity House Theatre to sample the summertime magic of Ray Bradbury's "Dandelion Wine."

PSO presents chamber concert

Several members of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra will join together to present a Chamber Concert 8 p.m. Saturday, Jan. 27, at the Plymouth-Canton Little Theatre in Plymouth-Canton High School.

"I'm very proud of Alex," said Cheung's mother, Amy. "Even though he is only 16, he is a seasoned musician. He plays with great emotion."

Cheung's twin brother Anthony is also a youth artist winner. He will perform during the PSO's March concert.

This concert is sponsored by First of America and Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs.

Woodward, Bloomfield Hills. Lecture by Nozkowski and Linn 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the deSalle Auditorium at the museum. For "An Autobiography," Nozkowski produced 20 paintings to document a 100-mile long strip of land stretching from Manhattan Island to Ulster County in upstate New York. Each abstract canvas represents a five-mile stretch of the land that has been important to the artist throughout his life. Linn, who was born in Detroit, subsequently photographed the places Nozkowski painted, providing a parallel vision to the abstract work. "Viewpoint" features the work of eight artists representing the vitality and diversity of the contemporary art scene. Snowden is a painter and associate professor at Center for Creative Studies.

From Dusk Till Dawn' proves an eternity for some

JOHN MONAGHAN

Quentin Tarantino has the right attitude about the new movie he wrote and co-stars in. He admits in recent interviews that it is an exploitation film — stupid, sleazy, often offensive, and delivering the cheapest kind of thrills.

And on that level, "From Dusk Till Dawn" is a success. Certainly not for all (or even most) tastes, it's a blood-soaked hybrid that has audiences and critics either in on the admittedly sick joke or threatening to form a lynch mob.

It begins with a classic Tarantino exchange between a Texas sheriff and the guy behind the counter at a roadside liquor establishment. The sign reads "World of Liquor," a spinoff of the old paint company logo with a bottle covering the world in booze.

In the wings are the gun-toting Gecko brothers, just waiting for someone to make the wrong move. They've already blown away a handful of police on their run for the border so they won't hesitate to pop off a few more along the way.

JOYCE RUDOLPH/DIMENSION FILMS

They hijack a RV driven by a preacher and his family and promise that they'll let them go as soon as they're safely into Mexico. It's a premise used constantly in the late 1960s, usually starring Ray Milland (or some other aged leading man) and directed by Roger Corman.

The talent pool is a bit stronger here. Harvey Keitel plays the preacher (undergoing a profound crisis of faith), while Juliette Lewis is the daughter who catches the attention of the younger gunman, who we discover earlier is a psycho sex offender.

Amazingly enough, in his most substantial role to date, Tarantino proves that he really can bring a believable character to the screen. Where his earlier parts seemed more like guest walk-ons full of hyperactive rambling, his Richard Gecko is both hilarious and menacing.

Things get really weird when they pull into the parking lot of a quaintly named biker bar where the denizens just happen to be vampires. Exactly halfway through the film, "From Dusk till Dawn" turns into a bloody battle of man against monster that makes the "Evil Dead" movies look like a weekend camping trip.

The director's reins are handed over to Robert Rodriguez, best known for his low-budget "El Mariachi" and its sequel, "Desperado." He is especially good at capturing a sleazy south-of-the-border atmosphere, though his editing lacks the kind of kinetic energy that makes Sam Raimi's "Dead" movies so watchable.

There are plenty of surprises here, including "ER's" George Clooney as the other Gecko brother, who we know must have a soft side beneath his body-length tattoo. Comedian Cheech Marin extends his movie resume in three different roles, including a profanity-spewing doorman who must be heard to be believed.

Trash by design, "From Dusk Till Dawn" is far more satisfying than Rodriguez and Tarantino's previous collaboration, the self-consciously clever "Four Rooms." They're back in fine form, testing an audience's patience and apparently having a blast along the way.

Dreyfuss scores with 'Opus'

BY DAVID GOODMAN
AP NEWSFEATURES

REVIEW

"Mr. Holland's Opus" marks the full return of the Richard Dreyfuss of old — not the fading star who slouched through bombs like "Moon Over Parador," but the Richard Dreyfuss people remember so fondly from films like "The Goodbye Girl," "Jaws," "Close Encounters" and, most recently, "The American President."

There's no question this latest role, an aspiring composer named Glenn Holland who puts aside his dreams to take care of his family, is a meaty one indeed.

For starters, Dreyfuss gets an entire adult life-span to play with, a huge swath of time, from age 30 to 60, to show a man changing and growing. He also gets the support of a "small" character-driven film, the kind that derives its drama from the unspectacular successes and failures making up an ordinary, uncelebrated life.

There are no car chases or splintering glass elevators. Instead, we get a neighborhood music teacher, a student who can't produce a good tune on her clarinet, a school orchestra that cannot keep time and a young singer who tantalizes Holland with the siren call of beauty, talent and ambition.

These are the events, the challenges making up Mr. Holland's days. And this bittersweet movie, though openly manipulative and oversentimental in places, reminds us how important such "small" moments are.

When the film opens, it's 1964 in Portland, Ore., and Glenn Holland is pushing 30. The young musician and his sweet, likable wife (Glenne Headly) are poor in an optimistic, graduate student kind of way, and Holland is seeking a way to escape the wedding circuit so he can concentrate on composing the magnificent symphony that will make him famous.

To temporarily solve the annoying problem of earning money, Holland takes what he sees as another temporary pick-up gig, teaching "Music Appreciation" and coaching the band at the local high school. He naively thinks a teacher's day ends at 3 p.m. and that he'll have time to compose.

Facing an audience of turned-off teens is quite a comedown for a man who would be Copeland and, at first, he's a resentful teacher, boring his students with colorless lectures and annoying the principal (Olympia Dukakis) with his obvious lack of commitment.

But something catches hold inside and the unique challenges of teaching begin to work their way under Mr. Holland's skin. Increasingly, he finds himself ignoring the score sitting on the piano at home to spend time after school drilling the orchestra.

Before he knows it, he's a fully fledged teacher and a life has gone by. It's not the life he planned out, but also not, as we later understand, a wasted life either.

It takes a certain degree of guts to make a movie about real life, the kind of mixed, workaday lives people usually end up with instead of the glittering fantasies they planned out.

Unfortunately, director Stephen Herek ("Bill and Ted's Excellent Adventure," "The Mighty Ducks") has about half the courage required to make this kind of movie. In the end, he doesn't completely trust that real life will be compelling enough unadorned.

There are a couple of times when "Opus" resorts to implausible contrivance for dramatic oomph. Like the hopeless music student who suddenly starts blowing notes like Benny Goodman after an hour of Mr. Holland's coaching. The deputy principal (W.H. Macy) is also a bit of a cardboard villain with a crewcut, given to yanking Holland into his office to warn against the evils of rock 'n' roll.

But there is a touching subplot about Holland's lack of interest and eventual acceptance of his deaf son, and also a great performance from newcomer Jean Louisa Kelly as Rowena Martin, the classic small-town ingenue with the crystalline voice who materializes (rather magically) to sing Gershwin in the school musical.

New York punkers Ruth Ruth turn free gig at club into record deal

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

It's hard to get any gig in New York, let alone a weekly one. Usually, the band plays a gig one month, takes the next off, and returns the following month.

The three members of the New York pop punk band Ruth Ruth didn't let that dissuade them from devising a plan to build a following in the city. After tossing around a handful of plans, singer/bassist Chris Kennedy came up with an idea that would allow Ruth Ruth to generate a fanbase without monopolizing any club's time.

"We talked to the club owner at this club called The Continental in New York and told him we were trying to build a following," explained singer/bassist Chris Kennedy.

"We asked him if we could play early when he didn't have a band playing and we'd play for free. He let us and we did it for about a year and a half. At first we played to nobody, but then after a year and a half we had a pretty good following."

Ruth Ruth's perseverance paid off. The trio met its manager at the club and subsequently signed a deal with American Recordings. Kennedy said he never expected his weekly gigs would result in a contract.

"No way. We had no plan of attack, but we were attacking, I guess. . . . We never thought that far. We just thought it would be great to keep playing."

Ruth Ruth, which also includes guitarist Mike Lustig and drummer Dave Snyder, have kept on playing and will continue during most of 1996 which includes a Feb. 8 St. Andrew's date with Everclear and No Doubt.

A few weeks back, Kennedy had other things on his mind. He's just come in his New Jersey home which has been buried in snow thanks to the "Blizzard of 1996." With shoveling behind him, Kennedy warmly spoke of Ruth Ruth's debut album "Laughing Gallery" and hit single "Uninvited."

"I feel really happy and really fortunate that we're getting the mileage that we're getting. I love the whole idea of people knowing our single and that they're beginning to check out the record," he explained.

"I feel like I might have a career that I love to do. Right now, we're kind of like, 'Do we go back to work on our day job or do we keep going?'" added Kennedy who "did everything from driving a truck to paralegal work."

The album explores Kennedy's inner-most insecurities — and securities, like in "Uninvited."

"With that tune I wanted to try to write a tune that showed what I went through growing up. I hung out on my own a lot and I didn't care. I'd rather be alone than hang out with a bunch of dumb people," said Kennedy, 28.

"I kind of wrote that tune in an affirming light. You can be uninvited on your own and that can be a really good thing."

Kennedy relates the musically choppy "Mission Idiot" to a screwed up relationship song.

"You can't get out of it. You know you're a chump. No matter what you do, you're always in a bad spot," said Kennedy who's happily married.

In this case, the title came before the song.

"I'm really happy with 'Mission Idiot.' I had that title for a long time and I couldn't come up with a tune. I had about five of them that didn't work. Then I turned around and it showed up."

"I Killed Meg the Prom Queen" is a response to Julie Brown's "The Homecoming Queen's Got a Gun?"

"It's pretty much a venting tune. It was written about my graduation period, but I wrote that tune right about a year before we wanted to do the record. It's about what I've gone through, the people I grew up with, and the memory I have from growing up. I'm kind of going back to all that (stuff) now."

"When I'm 40 I'll be writing about everything I'm going through now."

Right now his band's focus is its upcoming tours. After rejoining Everclear for a couple weeks, Ruth Ruth will head over to England in mid-February.

Kennedy has no problem with promising fans who have seen Ruth Ruth open for Everclear before that they'll see a much tighter show on Feb. 8.

"When we began the Everclear tour we didn't know what the hell we were doing from putting a show together and playing well. We were all right but it was really kind of a different thing going from playing to 125 people to 500-800. You have to be together to keep up with Everclear. I think we became a better band under the competition."

Ruth Ruth and No Doubt open for Everclear at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 8, at St. Andrew's Hall, 431 E. Congress, Detroit. Tickets are $9 in advance for the all-ages show. For more information, call (313) 961-MELT or (810) 645-6666.

Grueling tour inspires fine album

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Like the Dave Matthews Band, Hootie and the Blowfish and Blues Traveler, the Chicago band The Freddy Jones Band built its following through relentless touring.

Ironically the painstaking 2½-year tour almost brought them down.

"There was a lot of stuff that happened on that tour," explained drummer Simon Horrocks.

"We almost ran out of money. Vehicles were breaking down. People were getting sick. Family members died. It was like a ton of bricks came down on the band. It was a make it or break it tour. We figured that if we could survive through that tour, we could survive anything."

The tour was so grueling that The Freddy Jones Band's manager and road manager suggested the band "throw in the towel." Horrocks, whose father died during the tour, and the rest of the band insisted that they finish. Unbelievably, he said, they mustered the energy and the motivation to do that.

"Honestly I don't know where it comes from. You just do it. You don't even think about it. I guess it comes back from when my mom used to make me go to school if I was sick," Horrocks said.

From the bad, however, came the good. The quintet turned its experiences into its third, and most critically acclaimed album to date, "North Avenue Wake Up Call" (Capricorn).

"All the expejences over the course of the year — like the time we were stranded for a day when our bus broke down in 115-degree heat outside of Clovis, N.M., or the death of my father during our tour — got bottled deep inside us. And when we finally got off the road and into the studio, these memories came pouring out."

(Incidentally, on its "North Avenue Wake Up Call" tour, the band has gone through seven opening bands, three tour managers, and three different buses.)

From the slide-powered "Hold on to Midnight" to the haunting "Waitress," "North Avenue Wake Up Call" offers a melodic, lyrical series of road-inspired snapshots. Every song is framed by The Freddy Jones Band's rich blend of multi-layered three-part harmonies, and electric guitars with sprinklings of mandolin, banjo, Hammond organ, and accordion for flavor.

Besides the songs, the name of the album has connections to the road.

"After a Saturday night gig in the Midwest, we're usually so pumped by the energy from playing for an appreciative audience that we just drive all night, trying to make it home to Chicago by dawn," Horrocks said.

"As soon as we hit the bumps and potholes of beat-up North Avenue on the north side of town right about sunrise, one of us just yells out, 'North Avenue Wake Up Call.' And we're home."

The Freddy Jones Band was formed in South Bend, Ind., by vocalists/guitarists Marty Lloyd and Wayne Healy. The pair moved the group to Chicago in the early 1990s, recruiting drummer Will Leonard, bassist Jim Bonaccorsi and guitarist Rob Bonaccorsi.

Horrocks, who moved to Chicago 10 years ago from Dearborn, came into the fold upon the recommendation of his hometown friend Leonard who was leaving the band.

Through an intense grass roots campaign that included mailing lists and word-of-mouth referrals, The Freddy Jones Band was able to build up such a dedicated following that more than 120,000 people bought copies of its 1993 album "Waiting For The Night." The band's label, Capricorn Records, then re-issued The Freddy Jones Band's 1992 independent self-titled album.

In the days when grunge bands were getting the nods from record companies, Horrocks said, it was incredible that bands like his generated that kind of response.

"At the time when all these (college rock) bands were getting started, the musical trend trend was nothing like what we are. They weren't even looking toward the future (of music like The Freddy Jones Band). All the record labels were trying to find the next Nirvana," he said.

Times have changed, however. The Freddy Jones Band continues to pique the interest of radio programmers and listeners, fellow acts Dave Matthews Band, Hootie and the Blowfish and Sheryl Crow are striking it big.

Gigging with those bands helped boost The Freddy Jones Band from its touring-in-a-"little-stupid-Ford-van" stage to its current big-time-touring-with-a-tour bus set up.

"We're happy with what's happened. Now we can afford to do bigger shows and live a little bit more of a comfortable lifestyle on the road."

The Freddy Jones Band performs Saturday, Jan. 27, at the Blind Pig, 206-208 S. First St., Ann Arbor. Doors open at 9:30 p.m. for the 19 and older show. Tickets are available at Ticketmaster. For more information, call (810) 645-6666 or (313) 996-8555.

Band lugs piano for different sound

STAFF WRITER

Ben Folds didn't want to start a band that would get lost in the sea of "alternative rock" bands. So he, Robert Sledge, and Darren Jessee purposely set out to do something different. They took a piano, fuzzy bass and punk-rock drums and created Ben Folds Five.

"We didn't want to do the same old thing at all. We figured having it be a piano trio was a good way to mix it up. . . . It took a full, big, commitment to make it what it is."

And what a commitment it turned out to be. Set against using an electric piano, the band took on the difficult task of moving a piano around the United States during its tour. As a matter of fact, the first time Ben Folds Five was able to talk a promoter into hiring piano movers to carry the instrument from the truck to the stage was for its show with Heather Nova at The Shelter below St. Andrew's Hall in Detroit last September.

It proved to be a pretty motley experience at best.

"We saw these skinny punked-out kids and I said, 'Has anyone seen anybody looking like piano movers?' They said, 'We're piano movers.' So they got the piano out and I realized that these guys didn't know anything about moving a piano. I told them 'you gotta watch that. Pianos are heavy (and awkward).' "

They got the piano to the stage safely, but Folds learned a valuable lesson.

"It turned out they weren't the piano movers. They were all these tall, skinny, punk kids there for the Pennywise show at St. Andrew's. The real piano movers showed up later."

Ben Folds Five has hit the road again and will probably need help moving their piano up to the second floor 7th House at 7 N. Saginaw in Pontiac on Friday, Jan. 26. The band is touring in support of its self-titled debut for Caroline/Passenger records.

Folds describes his 12-song CD as "punk rock for sissies" but critics have called it "phenomenal music." He sneaks humor into almost every song.

In the loungy beginning to "Underground" Folds, at times singing like Joe Jackson, takes jabs at alternative rock kids looking for mosh pits. The fuzzy-rock "Uncle Walter" tells the story of that ever-so-annoying relative who talks on and on about pointless things. The full-force rocker "Julianne" is about a girl who looks like Axl Rose while "Boxing," an imagined conversation between Muhammed Ali and Howard Cosell, has waltz-like timing to it.

"All the songs on the CD span from ones I wrote in high school to something I wrote in the studio while we were working on the record. . . . It's the best of my songwriting."

Folds has played the piano since he was 9 when his father took the instrument as payment for some remodeling work he did. Folds's parents didn't have to pressure him to practice like some do — it was actually the opposite.

"I'd get up at 6 or 7 in the morning playing piano and waking up my parents. I think they were sorry they got that piano."

Taking lessons wasn't his thing, so he learned on his own.

"I just knew that that was something I could do, given the chance to mess with it. I'd be playing in bed until 8 or 9 (at night) listening to an Elton John record with a little tape recorder. I'd say, 'When I wake up I'm going to go in there and play this song.' I went to the piano and of course I didn't do it but I had the dumb confidence to play it no matter what."

Years after the temper tantrums ended, Folds is now making his living behind a piano. Folds isn't a big on musicians' stage antics, so being shackled to a piano at shows is fine with him.

"I'm not a big fan of jumping around as a musician anyway. It just looks like a big wind up toy jumping around on stage. I'm glad I don't have to worry about that. If you're playing piano and just sitting there, that's probably better. Don't get me wrong, though. We have a really good time."

Take a good look at his piano, he said. The scars from his gigs show.

Ben Folds Five and 3 lb. Thrill play the 7th House, 7 N. Saginaw, Pontiac, on Friday, Jan. 26. Doors open at 8 p.m. for the all-ages show. Tickets are $6.50 in advance. For more information, call (810) 335-8100 or (810) 645-6666.

DINING

Norman's Eton St. Station has great food, atmosphere

By Ethel Simmons
Staff Writer

Birmingham's historic train station found a new life when it was converted into a spectacular restaurant — Norman's Eton Street Station.

"Before I came to work here, I (already) loved the restaurant," said Dan Linnen, who had dined there previously. He joined the staff as general manager five months ago.

Ever since the restaurant first opened in 1984, the crowds have kept coming to enjoy the dining and ambiance. The main dining room has a high ceiling, and a high noise level that only adds to the mood of the group socializing there.

Always popular with singles (age range around 30 to 50), the restaurant has a main dining room joined by an area that seats 25 at a circular bar and has 20 more seats along the side wall and back.

For people who like quieter dining, other rooms include the "A" room, just off the main dining room, and the tunnel on the lower level (which used to lead directly to the trains), as well as the upstairs dining room. Both the tunnel and the room upstairs are sometimes used for private parties.

In the main dining room and bar area, the vivid scene is set with four giant, petrified palm trees in terra-cotta pots, above eye level, accenting the length of the room. The curved ceiling, painted terra-cotta when the train station was redone as a restaurant, has been re-painted within the last few months to a heavenly periwinkle blue, accented with gold.

"That's Norman's decorating," said Bonnie LePage, referring to her restaurateur husband. Besides Norman's Eton Street Station, the couple owns East Side Mario's in Rochester, Livonia and (coming in April) Southfield and operates Mac and Ray's in Harrison Township.

Food to match

Eton Street Station occupies about 10,000 square feet, a spacious background for its 190 seats. With menu offerings that match its good looks, the restaurant serves up tasty salads, pasta, seafood and beef.

On a recent afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Kaltz of Troy were celebrating their 45th wedding anniversary. He had the seafood fettucine, declaring, "It's scrumptious. The noodles are like what my own mother made years ago."

She has the hazelnut chicken, one of her favorite dishes there, and said she also favors the restaurant's planked whitefish. "It's a toss-up — which do I get," whenever they visit.

At a nearby table, four buddies, all retired from Ameritech Publishing in Troy, got together for lunch. Dave Beamer of Rochester Hills said, "The chicken pot pie was the best I ever had." Jack Buczko of Rochester Hills called the omelet "excellent." "It was a good meal," agreed Dan Harmon of Farmington Hills, who had ordered the taco salad. James Barnes of Birmingham rated the cajun turkey salad as "fine."

Linnen, the new general manager, is from Northern Michigan, where he ran his own restaurant and bar. Norman's also has a new chef, Mark Elscholz, who has a background with seafood and the Muer organization. Linnen said the restaurant he owned "was more of a beef house. I'm a stickler on fresh carved beef. We keep each other in check."

"We've expanded the whitefish section. It's such a seller," said Bonnie LePage. At both lunch and dinner, five whitefish dinners are offered — planked, potato-encrusted, grenoblaise, meuniere and heart healthy.

Beef eaters too

She pointed out that although diners today are more health conscious, they still enjoy eating beef. Over the holidays, "We could not keep up with cutting fillets of New York (strip steak)."

LePage said she has not been able to pursuade customers to order low-fat or no-fat salad dressings. "They all wanted blue cheese and ranch. But Mark made a raspberry vinaigrette he introduced on the spring menu, and it has been received real well."

Considering other menu changes, a customer survey was made and the decision was to stick with the present offerings. "We have a very loyal clientele," Linnen said. "They enjoy the atmosphere and enjoy the eclectic menu."

The menu does change seasonally. The spring menu is introduced in May when the popular outdoor patio opens.

Because customers are well satisfied with the food and the surroundings, Linnen said the biggest challenge is motivating the young people who work at the restaurant. "Dan's emphasis is going to be on training and service," LePage said.

CANTON SPORTS SCENE

Award-winner named

Jenny Clack, a 1995 Plymouth Salem graduate from Canton who is currently a freshman at Coastal Carolina University in Myrtle Beach, S.C., was named the 1994 Hoxie Memorial Award-winner for junior female tennis players Jan. 16 at the Fairlane Club in Dearborn.

Jenny Clack

Some of Clack's high school tennis achievements include reaching the state semifinals in singles while posting a 26-2 record as a senior and three times being selected to the all-state tennis team. She is attending Coastal Carolina on a tennis scholarship.

The award was presented by John Sommerville. Dilmus Clack, Jenny's grandfather, accepted it on her behalf.

Previous Hoxie award-winners include current pro Amy Frazier, from Rochester, and Steve Campbell, a Redford Catholic Central graduate.

The award, named after the late Jean and Jerry Hoxie of Hamtramck, is presented to the male and female junior player who has made a greater contribution to the game through sportsmanship, willingness to help others and deportment.

Jarvey honored

James Jarvey, a longtime assistant coach on Plymouth Salem's football team, has been selected for induction to the Michigan High School Football Coaches Association Hall of Fame. Ceremonies are scheduled for March 16 at the University of Michigan's Crisler Arena.

The honor, according to Salem head coach Tom Moshimer, is well-deserved. "Absolutely," insisted Moshimer, himself an MHSFCA Hall of Famer. "He's been a real strong leader in our program. He works them hard, but he gets the most out of them."

Jarvey joined Moshimer's staff in 1975, coming over from Plymouth Canton, where he coached junior varsity and freshmen football. Before that, Jarvey coached at Livonia Clarenceville.

Jarvey is a Northern Michigan University graduate; he went to Calumet HS.

He has been Moshimer's longtime defensive coordinator and assistant head coach. Last season, he also coached the offensive line; prior to that, he worked mainly with the linebackers.

"He's really my right-hand man," said Moshimer. "If anything happened to me, he'd take over."

Among the linebackers Jarvey worked with were Scott Jurek, who played at Eastern Michigan; Darryl Bartkowiak, who starred at Saginaw Valley State; and Kurt Urban, a standout at Hillsdale College.

"They sort of reflect his personality," said Moshimer. "Jim's a hard-nosed kind of guy. He's not a finesse-type guy. Consequently, he brings out the toughness in our guys."

Players of the week

Francine Williams, a 5-foot-10 senior forward for Madonna University's women's basketball team, and Jeff Kennedy, a 6-foot sophomore guard for the Crusaders' men's team, were both named players of the week for the NAIA's Great Lakes Section.

In the women's team's only game of the week — an 81-67 victory over Concordia College — Williams, from Oakland Tech (CA), scored 21 points (going 3-for-3 on three-pointers), grabbed 12 rebounds, made five steals, blocked three shots and had two assists.

Kennedy, from Detroit East Catholic, collected 40 points in two games while shooting 50 percent from the field, with 14 rebounds, five assists, five blocks and 10 steals.

The Lady Crusaders beat Concordia College 81-67 in their only game of the week. The Madonna men lost 89-87 to Cornerstone last Thursday (Kennedy had 12) and 82-73 to Calvin College Saturday (Kennedy scored 28).

Champs

The Plymouth-Canton Devils, a Pee-Wee hockey team, compiled a 19-1-3 regular-season record, defeating both the Plymouth-Canton Wizards and the Turbo Sharks to advance to the district tournament. The Devils outscored their opponents 113-21 and posted nine shutouts.

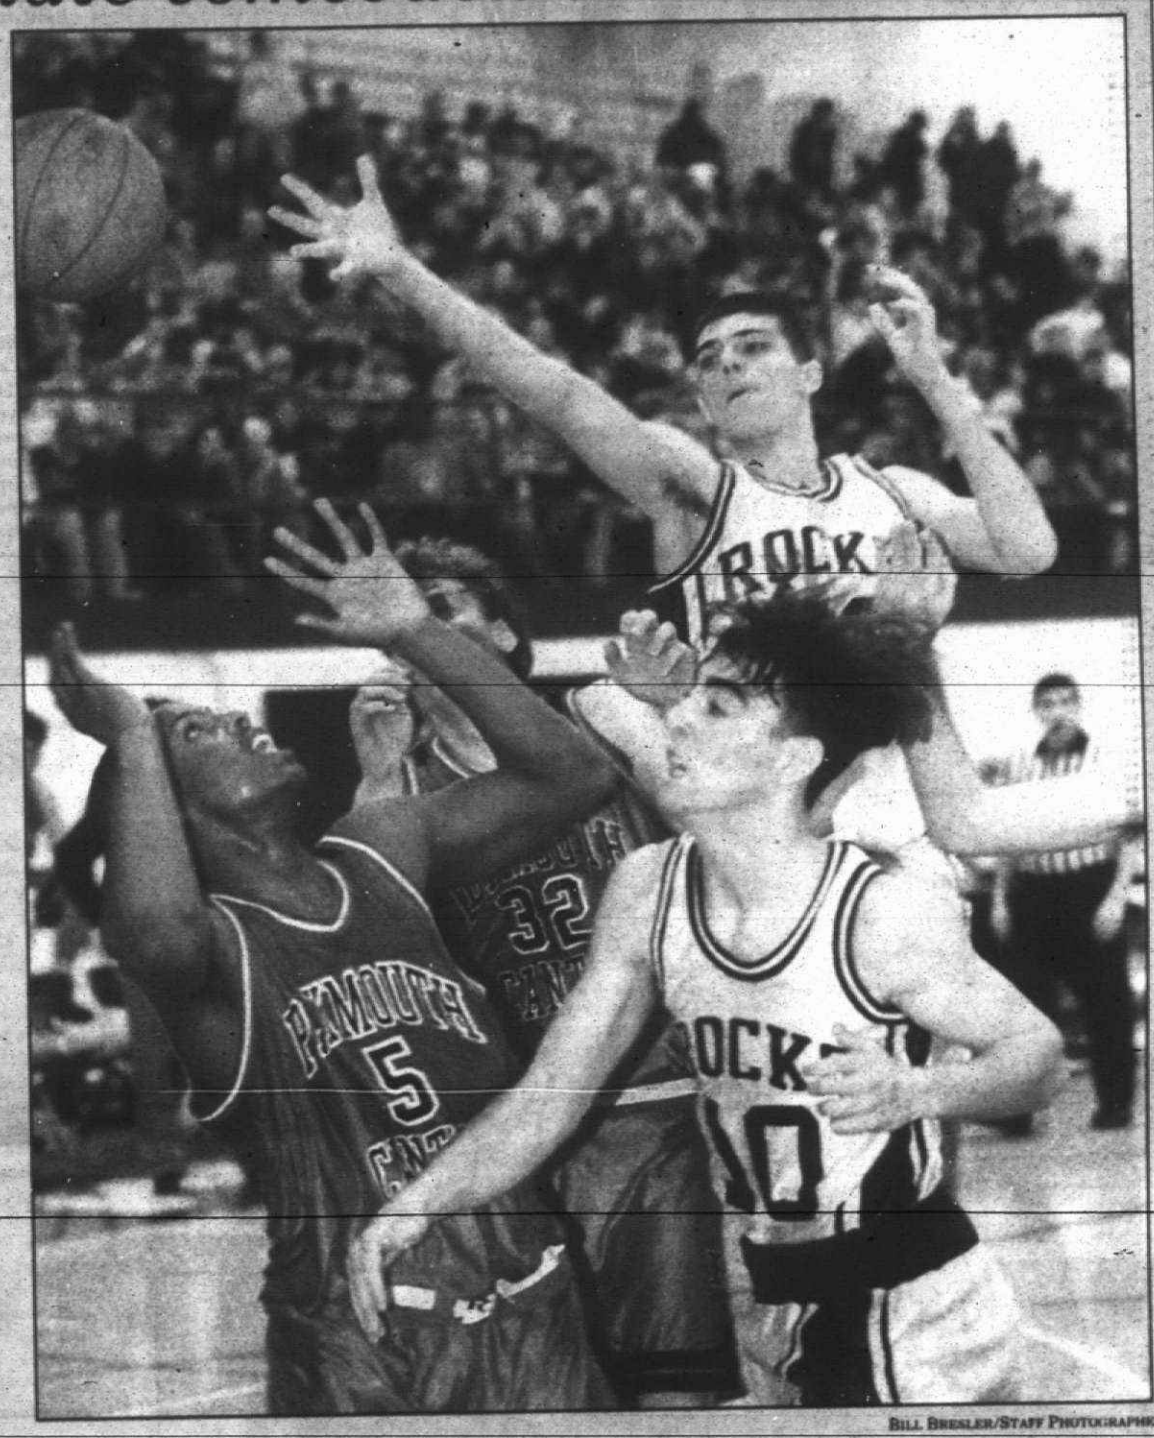
Anyone interested in submitting items to Sports Scene may send them to sports editor C.J. Risak, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, MI, 48150, or may fax them to (313) 591-7279.

In the nick of time

Canton's late comeback catches Salem

■ For years, Salem has dominated Canton on the hardwood. On Tuesday, it seemed the Rocks would once again, despite Canton's unbeaten status and lofty state ranking. But what helps make the Chiefs a powerhouse is their never-give-up attitude.

By C.J. Risak
Staff Writer



Bill Bresler/Staff Photographer

Out of reach: The ball wasn't all that got away from Salem Tuesday — so did a certain victory, thanks to the shooting of Canton's Ron Hunter (left), who scored 10 of his 23 points down the stretch.

Great thing about sports — the definition.

There's a winner, there's a loser. Watch a game for a few minutes and it's usually easy to determine which is which.

Unless it's a game like Tuesday's city rivalry between Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton, a game that defies description. Canton, unbeaten in its first nine games and ranked fifth in the state, was the clearcut favorite; the Rocks were battling to keep their collective heads above .500.

But it's Salem that ruled, from the opening tip until — well, the final minute.

That's when the Chiefs made their move. And it came just in time, too; down six with just over a minute to play, they scored eight points in the time left (two three-pointers by Ron Hunter and a put-back at the buzzer by Matt Ammons) to force overtime.

The end didn't come, however, until the final second of the extra period, when Hunter drained a short jumper to allow the Chiefs to escape with a 65-64 triumph.

"We did not deserve to win," Canton coach Dan Young flatly declared afterwards. "(Salem coach Bob) Brodie did a great job with his kids. Salem was better than us, they were quicker than us."

"I don't want to put down our guys, but Salem kicked our butts."

And yet, it was Canton that collected the win, raising its record to 10-0 overall, 4-0 in the Western Lakes Activities Association. Salem slipped to 5-5 overall, 2-2 in the WLAA.

"We played pretty well," said Salem's Brodie. "We had the opportunity, we just didn't get it done.

"I thought we grew a lot tonight. But the loss still hurts."

Until the final minute of regulation, losing seemed out of the question for the Rocks. Canton's first two baskets of the game were three-pointers, by Hunter and Ammons, the second giving the Chiefs a 6-5 lead. When Andres Lopez scored his seventh-straight point for Salem with 4:25 left, it gave the Rocks a lead they didn't relinquish until the hectic final minute.

Power's driving basket with 1:50 remaining in the final quarter pushed Salem ahead, 53-45. Mark Bray answered immediately, scoring with 1:41 left.

That's when Salem's troubles escalated. The Rocks missed three-straight free throws, leaving the door ajar.

Hunter was the one who sneaked through. When Salem increased its five-point halftime lead (27-22) into double-figures in the third quarter (37-26 with 1:06 left), Brodie switched his team to a zone defense, in effect daring Canton to beat the Rocks from the perimeter.

The strategy looked sound until Hunter put up what looked like a desperation triple-try from outside the top of the key with 1:03 left in the final quarter. The ball banked off the glass and in — Canton had its reprieve.

On the ensuing possession, Salem's Ryan Andrzejewski was whistled for failing to get the ball over the 10-second line. The Chiefs regained possession, and Hunter did it again, knocking down a trey to knot the game at 53-all with 38 second left.

Salem attacked, and Power got off a short jumper in the paint that bounced out. But Lopez rebounded and scored, regaining the lead for Salem with 22 seconds to go.

When Power knocked the ball loose after the inbounds pass and the Rocks got possession, the win again seemed assured. All Salem had to do was inbounds the ball with 8.5 second to play.

But Lopez was tied up by Ammons and Mark Bray, forcing a turnover and giving the ball back to Canton. Hunter launched a long jumper from the corner which was well short, but Ammons rebounded and put it in, tying it at 55-all and forcing OT.

Hunter's basket with 3:33 left in the extra period gave Canton its first lead since the first quarter. Two

Gilles' return boosts Chiefs' lineup

Back in the fold: Katey Gilles, one of the state's best all-around gymnasts, makes Canton a state title contender.

■ GYMNASTICS

By C.J. Risak
Staff Writer

Teams often need a boost at mid-season, something to provide a spark. But the one Plymouth Canton's gymnastics team received was more than anyone could have hoped for.

Monday's dual meet at Walled Lake was more than just another win for the Chiefs (who are now 7-0). It marked the return of Katey Gilles, one of the top gymnasts in the state.

Gilles, a junior who won the state individual all-around championship as a freshman, had previously decided to perform on the club level only this winter. She then changed her mind, according to Canton coach John Cunningham.

"She quit her club team," he said. "She was not having a good time out there."

According to Cunningham, Gilles did not like the individual atmosphere of the club scene; she missed the team spirit associated with high school sports.

Of course, her rejoining the Canton team could have caused problems. "We sat down and discussed it before," Cunningham said, referring to an earlier talk he had with his team regarding Gilles and her possible return. "To a girl, they said to do what's best for the team.

"That's why this is my best team ever. Everyone is for the team, and Katey fits into that mold."

The Chiefs were hardly struggling without Gilles. Monday's meet, a 131.25-116.55 triumph over Walled Lake, boosted the team's Western Lakes Activities Association record to 3-0. Walled Lake is 0-3 in the WLAA.

Gilles competed in just two events, finishing first in the uneven parallel bars (9.0) and balance beam (8.85).

Still, with tougher competition ahead — Northville, Hartland and Plymouth Salem figure to challenge Canton, the defending champ, for the league title — Gilles' return is a major boost.

Good news for Canton? "And bad news for a lot of others," remarked Cunningham. "Now we have one more bit of artillery in our arsenal.

"This gives us a certain degree of confidence. We already had confidence as a team, but this adds to it."

Enough to perhaps make a run at three-time state champion Holland, ranked No. 1 in the state? Cunningham won't rule it out. "Now we can at least entertain that hope," he said.

The Chiefs are currently ranked fifth in the state. Behind Holland (and ahead of Canton) are Hartland, Rochester Adams and Northville. Salem is not currently listed in the top 10.

Agape ends Greater Life's streak

A fourth-quarter surge carried Plymouth Agape Christian to its fourth-straight win in Metro Christian Conference play, and gave Greater Light and Life its first loss of the season, 66-53 Monday at Greater Life.

Agape improved to 6-2 overall, 4-0 in the MCC. Greater Life is 6-1 overall, 3-1 in the MCC.

Agape forged a 32-24 lead at halftime, but Greater Life charged back to narrow the gap to 46-45 after three periods. The fourth quarter, however, belonged to Agape.

Behind Adam Martin's six points and Matt Major's five, the visitors outscored Greater Life 20-8 in the period to win going away. Martin finished with 18 points; Josh Thompson had 15. Greater Life got 26 points from Wade Mitchell.

■ Fairlane Christ. 72, PCA 68 (OT): Jamie's Neil's jumper with 10 seconds left in regulation tied it for Plymouth Christian Academy and forced overtime, but the Eagles could not sustain their momentum Tuesday at Dearborn Fairlane Christian.

PCA slipped to 7-3 overall, 0-2 in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference with the setback.

BASKETBALL

The score was tight throughout OT and was tied at 68-all, but Fairlane got the final four points. After trailing 33-28 at the half, PCA charged back to take a 46-40 lead into the final quarter.

■ CC 53, Brother Rice 46: The stage is set for a showdown in the Catholic League Central Division boys basketball race.

First-place Redford Catholic Central rallied on Tuesday night to defeat host Birmingham Brother Rice, allowing the Shamrocks to remain undefeated halfway through the Central Division season at 5-0, 10-0 overall.

Redford Bishop Borgess remained one game behind the Shamrocks in the Central with a 4-1 record after a 61-47 win over host U-D Jesuit Tuesday night.

The Spartans, 8-3 overall, will try to gain a share of first place when they host the Shamrocks at 7 p.m. Friday. CC reached the century mark in winning the first meeting between the two teams on Friday, Jan. 5 at home.

CC got its running attack going in the fourth quarter, outscoring Rice 23-14 in the last eight minutes to erase a 32-30 deficit.

The Shamrocks, who made four shots from three-point range during the last eight minutes, were led by junior guard Marc McDonald with 17 points. Seniors Chris Misiak and Richard Turk added 10 each.

Turk made four free throws down the stretch to seal the outcome.

Dan McGrath, a senior forward, led Rice with 17.

CC made 11-of-16 free throws compared to Rice's 8-9.

Rice, 6-5 overall and 3-2 in the Central Division, used slow-down tactics from the start of the game, but the Shamrocks led 12-9 after one quarter and 22-18 at halftime.

Borgess, meanwhile, didn't have to rally, but received a challenge as well from U-D Jesuit.

Borgess enjoyed a 30-22 halftime lead before the Cubs cut the deficit to 41-38 after three quarters. The Spartans outscored U-D 20-19 in the fourth quarter, making 10 of 12 free throw attempts.

"The big game is Friday versus CC for the top spot," Borgess coach Rosie Barnes said. "That was our only loss and we want to tie for the league. That will be our big game."

The Spartans shot 17-23 at the free throw line compared to U-D's 6-15.

Bray free throws put the Chiefs up 61-58 with 1:29 remaining.

Now it was Salem's turn.

Phil Parker's driving basket and a Hunter foul resulted in a three-point, game-tying play for Salem with 1:10 to go. Hunter scored again with just under a minute left to put the Chiefs back in front by two.

On Salem's possession, the ball bounced loose, finally getting knocked back to Power just outside the three-point arc. Uncovered, Power hit the triple, and Salem had a 64-63 lead with 12 seconds left.

The Chiefs immediately charged downcourt. Hunter went to the baseline, then circled back out toward the free throw line, around the retreating Salem defenders. He got the ball, got his shot — and got the basket, the game-winner, at the buzzer.

"That's the job of good players," said Brodie of Hunter's display, which ended with a game-high 23 points. "We executed our game plan pretty well. But sometimes you deserve it and you don't get it.

Lopez's 21 topped Salem. Power had 15, Parker 11 and Mike Korduba eight.

An emotional win, an emotional loss. Which ever side your team was on, it's time to forget and move on.

While Canton hosts Northville.

NOTES: Other news that was nearly as good for Canton as the win over Salem, starting forward Rob Johnson, whose injured knee was expected to sideline him for the remainder of the season, could return. Johnson, who underwent outpatient surgery yesterday, did not suffer an anterior cruciate ligament tear, as originally feared.

The hope is that one of Canton's best all-around players could be back by the start of the WLAA Tournament early in March.

In the win over Walled Lake, Brooke Larson turned in a sound performance with a meet-best 32.85 score in the all-around. Larson won the floor exercise (8.6), was tied for second with teammate Beth Muylaert in the vault (8.0), and finished fourth in both the bars (7.7) and beam (7.75).

Nicole Vaagenes, a sophomore who was third in her first-ever all-around competition for Canton (31.60), won the vault (8.2), took second in the bars (8.0) and was third in the floor (8.2). Muylaert, a junior, took second in the all-around (31.60), with seconds in the vault, beam (8.7) and floor (8.25).

Canton's other top scorer was Marcie Emerick, third in both the bars (7.85) and beam (8.55), and fourth in the vault (7.9).

The Chiefs will now have some time to adjust to their new, bolstered lineup. Their next action isn't until next Wednesday, when they host second-ranked Hartland. On the following Saturday (Feb. 3), the Chiefs will also host the Plymouth Canton Invitational.

SC muffles Macomb

Schoolcraft College's four-game skid in Eastern Conference men's basketball came to an end Saturday when the Ocelots nipped Macomb CC 81-80 at Macomb.

SC improved to 6-11 overall, 1-4 in the conference. Macomb is winless in conference matches (0-5) and is 5-11 overall.

Dave Pavlak led the Ocelots with 31 points, including 8-of-13 on three-pointers. SC connected on 11-of-23 from three-point range.

Tim Burns contributed 16 points and Dwaun Warmack totaled 10 points and four assists. Rudy Hatfield (from Livonia Churchill) finished with eight points and nine rebounds, while Jeff Rebitzke had eight points and eight boards.

The Monarchs got 24 points from Arnoldo Sherrell, 17 from Jason Hill, 11 from Brian Boatman and 10 from Terrance Hudson.

Macomb took an early 24-14 lead, but SC overcame that to go into the half up 46-39. The Ocelots' lead was never a big one, however; the game was tight throughout the second half. With five seconds left, Warmack converted a free throw to put SC up by a point. Macomb's Hill got off a 12-footer at the buzzer, but the ball rolled out.

NOTES: The Ocelots have two players listed among the MCCAA Eastern Conference's top 20 in scoring: Tim Burns and Jason Maschke (from Livonia Franklin), both averaging 13.1 points per game. Henry Ford CC's Matt Paupore (Plymouth Canton) ranks seventh, averaging 18 points per game.

Burns is ninth in the conference in rebounding (7.5), just ahead of Plymouth Salem grad Dan McKian (7.0) of Henry Ford CC. Hatfield is 14th (6.0).

McKian is fifth in field goal percentage (56.9 percent); SC's Doug Walters is third in free throw percentage (77.8 percent); Maschke is fourth (46.4 percent) and Pavlak is seventh (43.3 percent) in three-point percentage; and Salem grad Doug Herrman of Henry Ford CC leads the conference in assists (8.0 per game), with SC's Dwaun Warmack eighth (4.6).

■ Madonna 68, Concordia 63: The Fighting Crusaders rebounded from a loss to Calvin College Saturday to win their third game in four outings Tuesday at Concordia College.

The win boosted Madonna's record to 6-16; Concordia is 3-19.

Madonna both outshot and outrebounded the Cardinals, a rare accomplishment for the Crusaders this season. Jeff Kennedy and Dan Perttula (from Redford Thurston) led Madonna with 14 points apiece.

Brandon Slone (Plymouth Salem) added 10 points, Mike Maryanski netted nine with three steals and a team-best five rebounds, and Christian Emert totaled eight points, eight assists and four steals.

Madonna, which led 31-27 at the half, outboarded Concordia 31-29 and outshot the Cards, making 25-of-54 from the field (46.3 percent) to their 21-of-48 (43.8 percent).

Against Calvin, the Crusaders got pounded on the boards and, consequently, on the scoreboard Saturday.

The Saints got career-high scoring performances from Brad Dykstra (19 points) and Sam Hargraves (15), two of four players to reach double-figures for them. Rob Veltkamp (15) and Russ Wema (12) were the others.

Madonna got a game-high 28 points from Kennedy. The 6-foot sophomore guard also led the Crusaders in rebounds (six), assists (five, tying Emert) and steals (nine). Maryanski and Perttula added 15 points apiece, with Slone getting 11.

The difference was on the boards: Calvin owned them, outrebounding Madonna 45-21. The win boosted the Saints' overall record to 9-7.

Cushman lifts Madonna

Katie Cushman was deadly from outside the three-point arc Tuesday, connecting on 6-of-10 to lead Madonna University's women's basketball team to an 86-70 road victory over Cornerstone College.

Cushman, a freshman guard, totaled 27 points and four assists to pace the Lady Crusaders, who improved to 16-9. Francine Williams added 18 points, 10 rebounds, three assists and five steals, with Michelle Parmentier getting 14 points and three steals and Stacy Lamphere collecting 10 points.

Salem rules own Invitational; Canton crushes Rockets

■ VOLLEYBALL

The view depends upon your perch.

Take a 15-8 win in girls volleyball, for instance.

At Walled Lake Western, for example, that might be a thing of beauty. At Plymouth Salem, it's straight out of ordinaryville.

Salem recorded a 15-8, 15-0, 15-3 victory Monday over Walled Lake Western but coach Allie Suffety regarded the first game win in much the same manner as a driver views bugs on the windshield.

"We didn't play really well in the first game," Suffety said. "But we kind of picked it up later.

"We're still not passing the ball real well. That's something we've got to work on this year."

Shellye Sills paced the attack against the host Warriors with seven kills, four blocks, two block assists and seven digs. She also had four ace serves.

Karissa Socia had nine kills and six digs while Kim Sheldon recorded four kills and eight digs. Karen Springsteen was the top server with six aces.

The victory improved the Rocks to 19-4-2 overall, 3-0 in the Western Lake Activities Association. Salem is 1-0 in divisional play.

It dumped Dearborn Heights Crestwood, 15-3, 15-3; nudged North Farmington, 15-0, 15-7; hammered Hazel Park 15-1, 15-1; and flailed Farmington, 15-4, 15-11.

In the semifinals the Rocks canned Plymouth Canton, 15-6, 15-2, before handling Farmington Hills Harrison, 15-9, 15-12, in the finals.

Sills had 36 kills, six blocks, six assisted blocks and nine aces in the tournament. Socia recorded 34 kills, 12 digs and three aces while Sheldon had 18 digs, 14 kills and eight aces.

Jenny Trott notched 11 kills, six assisted blocks and four aces while Amanda Abraham had eight kills, three blocks and four assisted blocks. Nicole Van Hees had six kills, a solo block and six assisted blocks.

Plymouth Canton

The Chiefs' less-than-exemplary play at the Salem Invitational was not as evident Monday against Westland John Glenn. Canton ripped the Rockets 15-7, 15-11, 15-4, to improve to 10-4-3 overall, 3-0 in the WLAA.

Strong serving again paced the Chiefs. Anne Alioto had five service aces and Nikki Kovachevich had four. Beth Ostach's six kills led the attackers. Jessica Orleman, Kristi Drinkhahn and Kovachevich led the defense with 10 digs apiece, as coach Steve Anderson substituted freely.

In the tournament, Canton survived some erratic play to reach the semifinals against Salem. In their pool, the Chiefs split with Harrison 7-15, 15-11; beat Garden City 15-6, 15-2; split with Livonia Franklin 15-2, 13-15; and beat Romulus 15-2, 15-4, before losing to Salem.

Amber Wells had a strong day for Canton, with 34 assists to kills, 25 digs and 12 aces. Kovachevich had 16 aces and 23 digs, while Drinkhahn collected 36 digs and Orleman had 25.

Depth pivotal ingredient in Rocks' victory

■ SWIMMING

The Rocks Invitational was not just hosted by Plymouth Salem's swim team last Saturday, but it really suited the team well.

The four-team event had four heats in every individual event (with one entry per team per heat) and three in relays, with the same number of points scored in each heat. The emphasis, therefore, was on quality of depth.

And that's just where Salem excels. The Rocks outdueled runner-up Birmingham Groves, scoring 260 points to the Falcons' 230. Livonia Stevenson was a distant third (134), with Saginaw Heritage fourth (113).

Salem's depth was never more evident than in the 400-yard freestyle relay. The Rocks won the A, B and C heats, with Tim Buchanan, Nick Corden, Mark Detling and Kyle Petroskey combining for a first in the fastest race (3:26.25).

Other top-heat winners for Salem were Petroskey in the 200 free (1:53.11) and Otto Geiseman in the diving (386.60 points).

Buchanan was a winner in both the 200 free's (1:54.00) and 100 butterfly's (57.94) second-fastest races, and Patrick Morgan was first in the 100 free's second-fastest heat (51.25) and the 50 free's third fastest (23.54). Justin Hulett won twice in the B heats, in the 200 (2:02.50) and the 500 (5:31.44) free, so did Kevin Crabill, in the 100 fly (1:02.89) and 100 backstroke (1:03.58);

Other multiple winners in D-level heats were Stevenson's Keith Falk in the 200 individual medley (2:06.65) and 500 free (5:02.96), and Groves' Joel Wallace in the 50 (22.63) and 100 (50.63) free.

Salem's other individual firsts went to Brian McKay in the A-level 200 free (2:11.62); Andrew Locke in the A-level 50 free (24.66); Bjorn Haverland in the A-level (121.80 points) and Jeff Wickham in the B-level (274.95 points) diving; Brian Galvin in the A-level 500 free (5:42.98); and Matt Casillas in the A-level (1:07.07) and Brent Mellis in the C-level (59.48) 100 back.

On Tuesday, the Rocks improved to 5-0 in dual meets with a 110-76 non-league victory at Brighton.

Salem coach Chuck Olson shuffled his lineup substantially for the winless Bulldogs (0-5), and it hardly mattered. Jim McLenaghan won twice in the 25-meter pool, capturing the 200 individual medley (2:34.57) and the 500 free (6:18.99).

Rocks win novice tourney

■ WRESTLING

Krueger sent his sophomores to Garden City during the weekend and they accomplished something no Rocks team in recent memory has done — won it.

"It's one of the biggest tournaments of its kind in the state," Krueger said. "We finished second a few times, but we'd never won it. Until now."

Third-place finishers included Dan Morgan at 103 pounds and Anwar Crutchfield at 152 while in fifth place were James Green (135), Craig Van Camp (171) and James Walker (189).

A freshman, Chuckie Hamblin, won the heavyweight classification in the sophomore portion of the meet, where the Rocks didn't have many entrants and thus finished way down the list.

Krueger sent his more experienced upperclassmen to Romulus and again, because only five wrestlers were able to compete, Salem finished far down the team totals list.

Four of the five scored. Ernie Coburn was third at 119 pounds, Dave Popeney third at 145, Jeremy Breithaupt fourth at 152 and Clayton Walker fifth in the 189-pound weight class.

Saturday, Krueger will send his full squad to Holt, where it will compete with four of the state's 10-best teams.

"We didn't come away with any wins," Krumm said. "We were 0-4. But I'm happy with the overall effort."

Canton was wrestling against Temperance-Bedford, an annual state power, Troy, host South Lyon and Gibraltar Carlson.

"No one accepted that they were going to lose. They all competed. I've told them before I don't care if they win or lose. But I do care about effort. Put forth the effort."

OUTDOOR INSIGHTS

BILL PARKER

Tony Conrad got an unexpected surprise on a recent predator hunt. The Livonia resident was fox hunting with Plymouth's Greg Blagus on a moonlit night earlier this month in southern Wayne County. Perched in a thick fence row overlooking an overgrown farm field, Conrad was calling for his friend when a coyote approached within 30 yards.

"I knew they were around here, but I never thought we'd get one," said Conrad. "I think I got more excited than he did."

Conrad, an avid hunter, had given up on predator hunting for a few years and just got back into it this season.

"I was getting disappointed with my calling ability so I got out of it for awhile," explained Conrad. "But when you call in a coyote, you must be doing something right. They're a lot more wary than a fox.

"There's really no big secret to it (predator hunting)," continued Conrad. "They come in pretty close to the calls. It's a great wintertime activity. You don't have to be out at a certain time or stay out all night. You can go out for an hour or for three or four hours. You call your own shots."

Conrad said the downside of predator hunting is that occasionally a local dog will hear the call and start barking. He's also had other nocturnal visitors.

"I've had house cats come in to my call and one guy told me he once had an owl swoop down and take his hat off."

Fox, coyote, rabbit, raccoon and bobcat seasons are still open. Check the state Department of Natural Resources 1995-1996 Hunting and Trapping Guide for specific dates and details. And don't forget, you'll need a fur harvester's license to hunt (or trap) fox, coyote, raccoon and bobcat.

A full freezer

William and Leslie Gentner had more hunting success this year than some hunters experience in a lifetime.

"After the sale of our second home and property in northern Michigan in August, we decided we were going to start hunting in other parts of the country," explained William.

The Livonia couple opened the fall hunting seasons with a moose hunt in Fort St. John, British Columbia. Leslie broke the ice by taking a bull moose which sported a 40-inch rack and dressed out at over 1,000 pounds. William, "after four grueling days of climbing and sliding," shot a Rocky Mountain goat with 9-inch horns.

William's luck was far from running out. During Michigan's December elk hunt he took an imperial bull elk. The huge bull dressed out at over 650 pounds and sported a 7x7 rack which green scored in the 360 class. This was the first time William has received a permit for Michigan's elk season and he took the bull within a half-mile of his former property.

On Dec. 23, the Genters were back on the road headed for Sonora, Mexico for a Mule deer/Coues deer hunt. On Dec. 28, William shot a 10-point Mule deer with a 24-inch spread and the following day connected with a Boone & Crockett Coues deer which green scored 106 points.

Goose hunt reminder

A special Canada goose season runs through Feb. 4 in southern Michigan. The DNR initiated the season, which has been open since Jan. 6, to help control the exploding local goose population in the southern part of the state.

The area open to hunting includes public and private lands south of a line from Port Huron through Grand Rapids along highways I-69, M-21 and M-45, but excluding the Allegan County Goose Management Unit as shown in the Michigan Waterfowl Hunting Guide.

The DNR recorded nearly 111,000 Canada geese in the state during a survey taken Dec. 11-15. About 55,000 of those birds were within the area open for the special hunt. Counties within the hunt area that had the most geese were Ingham, Jackson, Calhoun, Branch, Washtenaw, Hillsdale, Oakland, Livingston, Wayne, Monroe, Kalamazoo, Barry and St. Joseph.

"Geese will be found roosting on open water, especially along river systems where they can fly out and feed in corn stubble or unpicked corn," said DNR waterfowl specialist Jerry Martz. "If snow cover stays light and temperatures are not extremely cold, hunting could be very good.

"As usual, hunters will have the best long-term success if they hunt the fields and avoid disturbing birds on their water roosting sites."

Successful hunters are asked to submit parts of the geese they take to the DNR to help evaluate the impact of the hunt on Michigan's resident geese. Hunters are asked to put the head and tail, including tail feathers and the vent with at least 2-inches of intestine, into a plastic bag and indicate the date of the kill and the nearest town. The bags can be kept frozen and delivered to the DNR within a month of the close of the season.

Mounts on display

Over 300 wild game mounts from north and south America and Africa are on display and for sale at Arrowhead Archery in Taylor.

"The mounts are from one private collection," explained Bob Turcheck, co-owner of Arrowhead Archery. "We know its the largest collection in Michigan and it's probably one of the top 20 in the nation.

"If you have children, grab your camera and bring them down. It's an incredible display. It's amazing. It's a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity," said Turchek.

Arrowhead Archery is located at 25595 Van Born, between Telegraph and Beech Daly. Store hours are 10:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday and 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Call (313) 295-3474 for more information.

Hunters and anglers are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information to Outdoors, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI 48009. Fax information to (810) 644-1314 or call Bill Parker evenings at (810) 901-2573.

CyberSafe

Video helps parents guide children onto Internet

EMORY DANIELS

Parents and schools concerned about making the Internet safe for children have a couple new allies in this area — Parallel Productions, Inc., a West Bloomfield producer of educational video programs, and MST TechnoKids, a Birmingham computer education company.

These two firms joined hands to produce a video aimed at helping parents make cyberspace safe for their children. "CyberSafe: A Parent's Guide to the Internet" is a 45-minute videotape with an accompanying printed piece that teaches parents how to bring the on-line services safely into their home.

Although the title refers to the video as a "Guide to the Internet" it actually is a guide to on-line services as it addresses, at length, commercial services such as America Online as well as the Internet. AOL and Prodigy are not synonymous with the Internet; parents need to be concerned about all on-line services.

"The videotape was produced in response to the alarming frequency of pornography and pedophelia recently attributed to on-line services and the Internet," says Tom Vleavinger, vice-president of MST TechnoKids who wrote the material for the video and appears as host. "Directed at parents who may not be familiar with computers, the videotape addresses the basic terminology associated with the Internet and offers practical suggestions for its use by children."

One of the strongest points the video makes is that parents and schools should not rely exclusively on software such as Net Nanny or Surf Watch which can be programmed to block out objectionable material. First, most young people with computer savvy can do as much with software as its programmers can. Second, personal oversight by adults cannot be replaced by software.

Cleavinger said "CyberSafe" uses American Online as its on-line focus, because AOL has more than four million subscribers and, like the Internet, has areas non-adults should not access. In fact, there are areas best avoided by adults as well.

"CyberSafe" does not try to be a computer training course but a primer that teaches adults and parents rules and guidelines for family cyberspace safety as well as how to use the parental controls available on AOL.

"Too often the child is the expert when it comes to on-line services and the Internet," says Cleavinger. "CyberSafe teaches parents how to use the parental control features of American On-line, select safe destinations for the Internet, and provides guidelines for bringing this new technology safely into the family environment. SurfWatch and other third-party software is only partially effective . . . One needs more."

The video offers: 10 rules of cyber safety; risks to children on-line; establishing on-line ground rules; defining on-line terms such as .gif, instance message, chat rooms; the significance of "screen names"; electronic blocking; indicators that a child is accessing pornography; and establishing limits of communication for the child.

The video and printed material is available at $19.95 and can be ordered by calling (800) 380-2620. Anyone with questions may send queries via E-mail to CyberSafe@aol.com.

An example of the practical advice in printed materials and the video are instructions for parents to search their hard drive at home for pornographic materials their child might have stashed away. Kids like to download pornographic pictures for viewing later or to share with their friends. Most such graphic files will have the extension .gif. Other extensions for picture files are .jpg, .tif, .bmp, .pcx, .pix, .avi, and .igf.

With this knowledge, a parent can sit down at their computer and at the DOS prompt type "DIR *.GIF /S" and press ENTER. Any pictures with a .gif extension will appear. Copy down and then access through whatever viewer is on your machine. Repeat process for .jpg, .bmp, etc.

Windows users can go to File Manager, select "file" form the menu, select "search," type "*.GIF" and press ENTER. Repeat for other extensions.

Macintosh users will select "file" from the menu, select "find," set find items to "on local disks," set the first box to "name" and the second box to "end with" and the third box to "GIF." Then select "find." Repeat with other extensions.

What matters most is parental responsibility. Remember when cable television first arrived and we blocked out stations on the cable box. That was not enough. Likewise, we can absolutely control what printed material enters our homes.

Like dealing with printed material and CATV, parents also must become personal monitors and be diligent when dealing with the Internet. Net Nanny is not a substitute for the watchful eye of a parent.

Do the math: Keeping credit card debt doesn't add up

BETH ALLEN

The credit card bills from the holiday season are rolling in along with the New Year. If you spent more than you intended, there are several things you can do to get those balances down to zero.

If you are asking yourself if trying to pay off your debt is worth it, consider the cost if you don't. The rewards for paying off your credit card debt can mean a hefty return.

It's a simple matter of arithmetic. If your credit card is charging you an average of 14.99 percent, every $100 of debt costs $14.99 a year in interest. To get that amount of money, a person in the 28 percent tax bracket has to earn $20.82 before taxes. To earn that much money from a $100 investment, a person would have to earn a pretax yield of 20.82 percent. With today's low bank savings rates of about 2.5-3 percent it's easy to see why paying off credit debt is essential if you want to get ahead financially.

Once you pay off your credit card debts you should vow to never charge again unless you know you have the money to pay the balance when it's due.

In the meantime, where do you begin?

If you want to get out of debt, the first thing you need to do is begin immediately. Stop incurring any new indebtedness. Do whatever it takes to stop spending. For most people that means limiting your shopping. Giving credit cards to a neutral party can help. If you know your little ol' grandmother only gets out on Sundays to go to church and never spends a dime unless it's in cash, give her your credit cards for safekeeping.

Closely examine all of your expenses. You should be able to attain a reduction of 10-15 percent by eliminating a lot of unnecessary spending. One of your worst enemies can be impulse buying.

The more you expose yourself to the temptations of buying opportunities, the more likely you are to spend.

To help solve this problem what you need is a spending plan. There is no question you are going to be shopping and spending money. The goal is to become a better spender and cut back or cut out things you can live without. If you start to account for every cent you spend, it is easier to reduce items you can live without. Bottom-line numbers are extremely important to someone who wants to eliminate credit card debt and live within his or her income. Examine your spending habits closely and get back to the basics of what is really needed.

After you have calculated what income is needed for the basics and the money to keep the bill collectors off your porch, put all extra income into paying off your debts. Excess money is probably something you can't imagine, let alone figure out where it's going to come from. This will require you to make sacrifices. Start doing things for yourself and stop paying for services for someone else to do it for you. The savings can add up quickly when you total your eating out, dry cleaning bills for something you could probably hand wash and learn to change your own auto oil. Spending on services that can pamper you or make you look good fills great psychological needs. However, the stress of not being able to meet your financial obligations can likewise make for some very depressing moments. Getting out of debt requires making choices.

When you're shopping, stop and think about the price of the merchandise you're considering and how many hours it's going to take you to work for it. Is it worth the hours of labor you will have to put in? Is there something else you can substitute for a lower cost?

If you are having trouble staying away from running up high credit card balances, start paying in cash. When you're out of money, you're out of spending. Remember, to support your spending habits and stay out of debt you can only do one of two things, you can either make more money or spend less.

■ CHILDBIRTH REFRESHER
— St. Mary Hospital will offer a Childbirth Refresher Workshop from 9 a.m. to 1:45 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 10 in the Pavilion Conference Room near the Levan Road West entrance. The hospital is at Five Mile and Levan roads in Livonia.

The workshop follows the Prepared Childbirth Class, using the Lamaze childbirth method, and instructs mothers-to-be on relaxation and breathing techniques that assist mothers through the different stages of labor and delivery.

Cost of the one-day class is $40 which includes lunch. The prerequisite for this class is attendance at a Lamaze class within the last five years. Registration is required. Call (313) 591-3314 for information or (800) 494-1615.

■ CANCER PREVENTION
— Oakwood Healthcare System will kick-off a pilot program focused on cancer prevention and early detection awareness in February.

Called "Keep on TRAC: Take Responsibility Against Cancer," its aim is to increase adolescent students' awareness of health behaviors which may decrease the risk of developing lung, skin, cervical and oral cancers and increase the potential for early detection of breast and testicular cancers.

The program will be piloted in the Dearborn Public Schools, then expand to other area school districts serviced by Oakwood. For more information call (313) 593-8000.

■ NEW TUMOR TREATMENT
— Oakwood Hospital and Medical Center-Dearborn now offers brain tumor patients a radiation treatment which is safer and more accurate with less pain. The "halo-less" system means the patient doesn't wear the traditional, tightly fitted headgear, reducing trauma during treatment. Other benefits include more options and flexibility in treating irregularly shaped tumors.

This "halo-less" system is the first of its kind in Michigan, according to information from the hospital. Treatments are as accurate as one millimeter. "Essentially, it is a minor procedure and no pain medication is necessary," said Dr. Paul Lattin of the hospital's radiation/oncology department.

■ MENTAL HEALTH SUPPORT
— St. Mary Hospital in Livonia offers a free Mental Health Family Support Group meeting every Wednesday from 2-3 p.m. on the 5th floor of the main hospital near the Five Mile entrance. This meeting provides education and support services to friends and family members of persons suffering from mental disorders.

Registration is not required. For more information, please call (313) 655-2944 or (800) 494-0277.

SelectCare, Kmart offer mini-grants to keep students fit

SelectCare and Kmart are teaming up to improve the health and fitness of elementary school students in metro Detroit with a new program.

Called "SelectStudents: Fit for the Future," the program will award mini-grants to students and will run through May of 1996. It is intended to encourage students to work in teams, understand fitness and help them develop healthy behaviors in their everyday lives.

The program presents health and fitness problems in a lesson-plan format and challenges students in grades kindergarden through six to develop activities in their schools to make a positive difference.

Student teams, or entire classes, develop and submit project plans to SelectCare for financing. They can use many types of research tools including surveys, posters and videos.

Funded projects will be executed over six weeks and documented results submitted back to SelectCare for judging.

"In the workplace and at home, the future is in the hands of our children," said SelectCare Senior Vice President Dean Hovencamp. "We're proud to support this program that challenges, empowers and enriches area students."

Kmart Corporation, headquartered in Troy, joined SelectCare to provide supplemental funding. "Fit for the Future is an exciting program that we are happy to support as another example of our commitment to the children and communities we serve," said Kmart Vice President of Corporate Affairs Shawn M. Kahle.

"SelectStudents: Fit for the Future" evolved from SelectCare's earlier health education initiative, the SelectStudents contest. Since 1989, more than 36,000 metro-Detroit student participated in this health essay/poster contest. The transition to the new, activity-based program gives students a "hands-on" opportunity to conceptualize, create

INVITING IDEAS

Vanilla more popular than ever

RUTH MOSSOK JOHNSTON

Sinful and delicious, vanilla has hit the pinnacle of popularity. It's become fragrances for both men and women, potpourri, flavors for tea, coffee and syrups. I even made vanilla vinegar for gifts.

This unique flavored vine, which is actually a type of orchid, has come a long way since Cortez tasted it while being hosted by Montezuma, the Aztec Emperor!

I prefer Tahitian Vanilla as the beans are far more flavorful and aromatic than those grown in Madagascar or Mexico.

While years ago there seemed to be a resistance to seeing specks of anything in food — today it seems to be a culinary must. Everyone wants whole foods, earthy foods.

Here are some vanilla ideas:

- Place a whole vanilla bean in a jar of sugar. Wait two weeks while the flavor permeates the granules. If you don't use sugar, place a whole vanilla bean in a jar of honey.
- Scrape out a vanilla bean or two and mix into a pint of rich vanilla ice cream or low-fat yogurt.
- Try adding vanilla to seafood dishes or to your favorite salad dressing.

CLASSIC CREME BRULEE

3 cups whipping cream
1 vanilla bean, split
6 egg yolks
3 tablespoons granulated sugar
1 cup superfine or brown sugar for topping

In a heavy saucepan bring cream to a boil with the vanilla bean. Remove from heat, and let sit for about 10 minutes.

In a bowl beat egg yolks and granulated sugar until thick. Add warm cream, mix well. Put mixture in a double boiler or return to heavy saucepan and cook over low heat about 10 minutes or until mixture appears thick and coats the back of a spoon.

Remove custard from heat. Strain through a fine sieve. Pour into four individual five-ounce ramekins. Chill two or three hours.

Remove custard from the refrigerator. Put brown or superfine sugar in a sieve and sprinkle evenly on top of custard. Put custard under broiler until sugar carmelizes. You must watch it carefully so sugar does not burn. Serve.

RUTH'S VANILLA VINEGAR

1 four liter (16 cup) glass bottle with a cork or rubber gasket lid
10 Tahitian vanilla beans
16 cups white wine vinegar (good quality)
Assorted wine vinegar bottles to put finished vinegar in, and corks or lids

Split 10 Tahitian vanilla bean (pods) lengthwise with a small, sharp knife. Open the pod and scrape out the seeds and pulp. Drop into the glass jar along with the empty pod.

Pour the wine vinegar over the vanilla — seal the jar and let it steep in a cool, dark room for 4 weeks.

When the vinegar has finished steeping, strain the vinegar. Using a funnel, fill clean bottles and add one or two pods (if desired) before sealing with a cork or gasket top.

To add interest to the bottle, add a few sprigs of flat Italian parsley. make sure any herb you are using is well washed and intact.

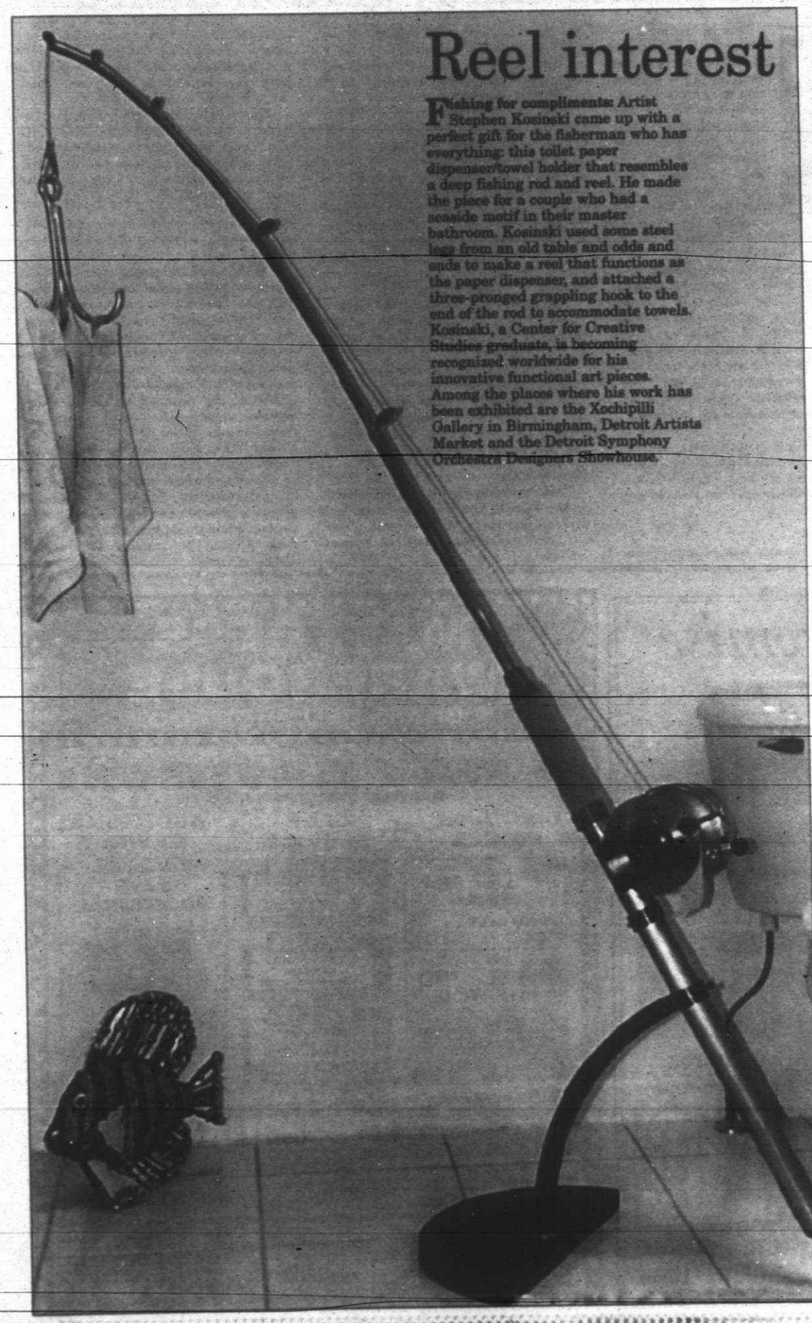
MARKET PLACE



Reel interest

Fishing for compliments: Artist Stephen Kosinski came up with a perfect gift for the fisherman who has everything: this toilet paper dispenser/towel holder that resembles a deep fishing rod and reel. He made the piece for a couple who had a seaside motif in their master bathroom. Kosinski used some steel legs from an old table and odds and ends to make a reel that functions as the paper dispenser, and attached a three-pronged grappling hook to the end of the rod to accommodate towels. Kosinski, a Center for Creative Studies graduate, is becoming recognized worldwide for his innovative functional art pieces. Among the places where his work has been exhibited are the Xochipilli Gallery in Birmingham, Detroit Artists Market and the Detroit Symphony Orchestra Designers Showhouse.

Touch of Paris

French setting: Wells Freight & Cargo in Birmingham features whimsical accessories that can turn any dining room into a stylish bistro for the evening. A sampling includes the bold and colorful "Cafe Paris" and "Cabaret," which pays homage to the quintessential Parisian night spot. Both are from Sango. Costs are $89.97 for a 20-piece "Cafe Paris" or "Cabaret" service for four, and $259.97 for a 45-piece "Cabaret" service for eight.

GARDEN SPOT

Native plants: hardy garden choice

MARTY FIGLEY

One of the most recent trends is the use of native plants in our gardens. This assures that they are acclimated to grow well in the same conditions and zones in which their ancestors began. It also indicates that they may require less care because they are stronger plants and are therefore less stressed. Stressed plants invite disease and insects.

Another factor to consider is water requirements. Native plants have been living on just the water that Mother Nature provides, without supplemental watering. Watch for more of these "homebodies" to be available each year.

A third growing trend is the use of herbs intermingled with perennial borders and foundation plantings. These plants add beauty and function to the landscape and can open up a whole new world of gardening.

New blooms

Goldsmith Seeds has introduced an ivy geranium with double deep crimson blooms. Look for "Simone."

This company also has several new petunias. "Heavenly Lavender," an F1 hybrid, performed beautifully in my garden last year and is one of the All-America Selections Award winners for this year. This bedding plant is a multiflora double petunia that blooms several days earlier than other doubles. The color is most unusual and striking.

AAS has also chosen the F1 petunia "Fantasy Pink Mom," a milliflora petunia. Milliflora means many small blooms. This small plant is suitable for containers, borders and rock gardens because of its size.

The third AAS winner is Salvia farinacea "Strata," a blue and white bicolor flower. It is heat, drought and severe weather tolerant.

The National Garden Bureau has introduced many new varieties of flowers and vegetables for 1996. If you would like a list, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to me at The Eccentric, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham 48009.

Radishing

This organization has declared 1996 as the Year of the Sunflower (which I will tell you about when we talk about our sunflower contest) and the Year of the Radish.

Radishes aren't only red, some have shades of white, scarlet, rose, lavender and black; interior colors include white, pink, green or tints of deep rose. Sizes range from an ounce to 70 pounds.

Plant seeds in a sunny location in loose, even sandy, well-drained soil. If your soil is heavy clay, consider raised beds or containers. Look at the seed packet and decide how soon you will want to harvest.

New ideas at the recent Garden Writers meeting I attended include the following:

Use a premium rather than an all-purpose potting media for house plants. The two are different in composition and benefits, with the premium having added amendments to promote healthier growth. Many premium soiless mixes contain sphagnum peat moss that is harvested in Minnesota.

A new, dry Alaska Fish Fertilizer, a natural organic plant food in pellet form, breaks down in the soil at a slower rate than non-organic fertilizers.

Plantea is "the all-natural plant food in a tea bag," which has all the benefits of compost tea. Suitable for house plants and containers. To learn more, contact Plantamins Inc., Box 1980, Kodiak, Alaska 99615; phone (907) 486-2500.

COVER STORY

Home of the Year

STORY BY MARY KLEMIC • AT HOME EDITOR

The Home of the Year in the Autumn Park subdivision in Novi smoothly combines the traditional and the contemporary in its decor as well as in its design.

The 3,300-square-foot house, commissioned by Better Homes and Gardens magazine and APA-The Engineered Wood Association, will be featured in the magazine in August. Builder was John Shekerjian of John Richards Homes of Birmingham.

Public tours of the house, on Beck between Nine and 10 Mile, began Saturday and continue for the next two weekends. Hours are noon to 5 p.m. An optional donation of $2 per person ($5 per family) will go to Children's Hospital of Michigan.

On the cover:
Birmingham builder John Shekerjian of John Richards Homes stands in the great room of the Home of the Year, open for public tours in Novi. Staff photo by Tom Hawley.

Features of the house make it spacious and cozy at the same time. Rectangular archways flanked by pillars are arranged under curving walls. Ceilings are high and dotted with recessed lights that keep the lines clear, adding to the openness of the rooms. Skylights, and plentiful windows with little or no drapery, fill the rooms with light.

Area rugs reveal rich wood floors that are oak and maple inlay in some rooms. The house has no formal living room, but a great room that has a 20-foot ceiling. A small fireplace adds another touch of comfort and warmth — literally. Accessories include wall pieces resembling a giant antique watch and a giant gear.

Next to the great room is a combined morning room and kitchen. The kitchen is stylish — with such features as cherry wood and a row of cheery raised tile along one wall — but also functional — as in the Avonite countertops that are thick and can withstand cuts. This is an especially inviting area, with a casual, friendly atmosphere. Shekerjian kept in mind that people congregate in such space.

"Everybody spends time in the kitchen," he said.

The large kitchen contains a big island in the center consisting of a counter and lower table. Drawers under the counter have clear fronts that reveal the contents. The refrigerator is "hidden" behind paneling. Plates can be lined vertically in an open space for easy removal.

Walls are faux painted, as are those in the formal dining room. In the latter the painting has narrow, white, vertical stripes among gentle colors, giving the illusion of wallpaper.

Bay windows are throughout the house, with drapery placed in a way that gives a little space from the window.

The interior design was by Joseph Boehm, Better Homes and Gardens senior interior designer. Randy Grange of TRG Associates was the architect.

TREASURE SEARCH

Plates look like pottery

NANCY AND FRANK BOOS

Dear Nancy and Frank:

Several years ago I found some Royal Doulton dinner and salad plates at an estate sale. On the back are the Royal Doulton logo and The Kirkwood. They appear to be made in the early 1900s. I'd like to know how much they might be worth.

Dorothy, Southfield

Dear Dorothy:

Without the actual trademark on the bottom of the plates having been photographed, we cannot date the plates you have. We can only say that we believe they are pottery rather than bone china. From our experience here at the gallery, they appear to be circa 1930s rather than early 1900s. Your plates have the pattern name printed right on them, which is something done on the more modern patterns, that is, those made well after World War I.

We gather from your letter that you have four salad plates and four dinner plates. The value of these plates is rather nominal, with the dinner plates being around $30 at retail and the salad plates around $20 at retail. Your best bet is to expand the set at one of the china and replacement services in the country (call the gallery for names and numbers) or to use these colorful plates in a decorative manner, for instance, on a wall. Best of all, you might just mix and match these plates with complementary pieces from other sets and use them all for a different and colorful table setting.

Nancy and Frank Boos are with the Frank H. Boos Gallery, an appraisal firm and auction house at 420 Enterprise Court in Bloomfield Hills that has been in the auction business for more than 30 years. Do you have an item you would like to know about? Send in a good photo of it, along with its description (including size, working parts, etc.) and any known provenance (history) to Treasure Search, The Eccentric Newspapers, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham 48009. Include your name, community and phone number.

Home, Garden show set

The fourth annual Spring Home & Garden Show has it all and then some more, with more than 300 exhibitors.

Sponsored by the non-profit Building Industry Association of Southeastern Michigan, the show will take place Thursday-Sunday, Feb. 1-4, at the Novi Expo Center, I-96 and Novi Road. Hours are 2-10 p.m. Thursday-Friday, 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Sunday. Call (810) 737-4478 for information.

Admission is $6 for adults, $4 for seniors, $3 for children ages 6-12, free for children under 6. Family tickets for two adults and accompanying children are available at Farmer Jack for $9.

"The amount of money homeowners spend on remodeling has risen to close to the amount spent on new home construction," said Janet Compo, president of the BIA and chief executive officer of James Compo Inc. in Farmington Hills. "This show provides a wealth of opportunities for homeowners to see how they can remodel for substantially less money than taking on the trouble and expense of a full-scale relocation."

Special highlights include tips for improving, fixing and decorating your home from Beverly DeJulio of The Discovery Channel's "Easy Does It"; an appearance by WXYT's "Ask the Handyman" Glenn Haege; gardens by members of the Metropolitan Detroit Landscape Association; a floral arrangement competition for local florists; demonstrations on decorating, home repair and remodeling; and a Treasure Chest contest with prizes.

The exhibitors will show their most interesting and up-to-date products and services for kitchens, baths, doors, windows, yard/gardens, remodeling, furniture, arts and crafts, decorative accessories, electronics, heating, cooling and appliances.

Seminars are scheduled

Come into the garden and gather a bouquet of information at Home & Garden, a series of seminars Feb. 3 to March 6 at the Somerset Collection, Big Beaver Road and Coolidge in Troy.

At Home columnists are among the featured speakers. More information on the event will be featured in next week's At Home section.

Home & Garden is sponsored by English Gardens, KLM, the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers and The Townsend Hotel.

Suspense in the court

By Esther Littmann
Special Writer

"Is our legal system about justice or merely about winning and losing? Do the innocent go free or those with the biggest bankroll? That's the topic of former trial lawyer David Gordon's first work of fiction, "NT-GILTY" (Glenbridge Pub., 1996, $21.95). A guaranteed page-turner, the novel asks what we've all been pondering: How far will a defense attorney go to acquit his client and promote himself?

Gordon's suave and street-smart protagonist J. Bradley Crawford acknowledges no limitations. Hired to represent the amiable but weak-kneed drug-dealing son of the wealthy and powerful Froemmer family in an assault case, Crawford goes beyond the call of duty and decency.

Though the charge against Kenny Froemmer is minor, the stakes are high. An acquittal will mean a fat paycheck, but more important, the family's future legal business for Crawford's law firm. Plagued by financial burdens — a spendthrift wife, college tuition for the kids and expensive hobbies — the frenetic 40-year-old trial lawyer knows he must win. After all, everyone is counting on him!

Drawing on the moral mayhem and the expert marksmanship of his Vietnam past, Crawford decides to murder the three witnesses to Kenny's crime. Disguised as his 20-year-old client (blond wig tied in ponytail), Crawford kills the young men in a drive-by shooting while Kenny is home with a perfect alibi.

Foolproof, yes? Well, not quite! In the absence of witnesses, Kenny is, indeed, acquitted of the first offense. But his alibi for the second crime is less than airtight. Easily identified, the petted and pampered future heir soon lands in jail for first-degree murder.

Once more Crawford comes to the rescue of a grateful family that can't do enough for their brilliant and dedicated attorney. Gordon creates the sickening but captivating spectacle of an innocent young man being represented by a lawyer, guilty of the very crime with which the defendant has been charged.

To the author's credit, his villain isn't all black. Crawford is loyal to his family and friends and tries very hard to please. But like a character in a Greek tragedy, the higher he rises, the greater must be his fall. Talk about suspense! At this point, it's almost impossible to put the book down, as one wonders if and how justice will be served.

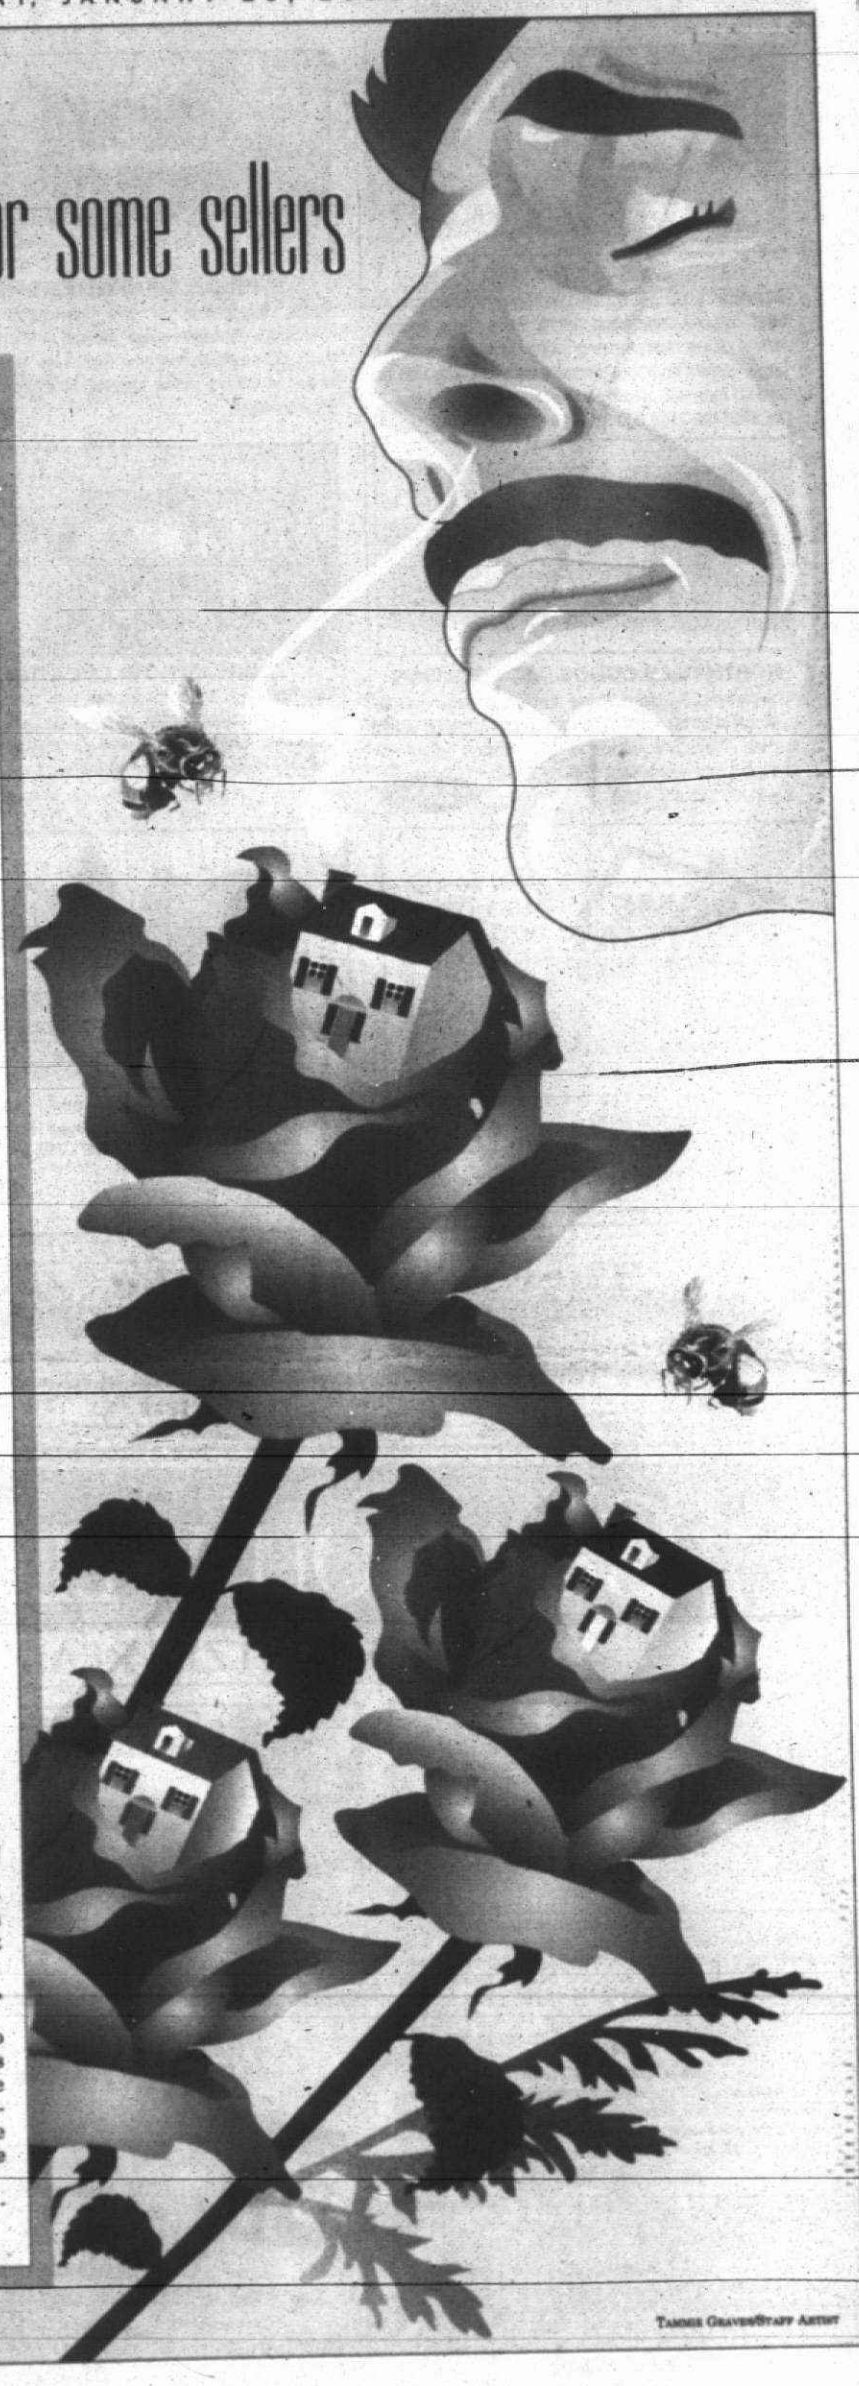
Offensive odors smell trouble for some sellers



By Doug Funke
Staff Writer

The nose knows.

And when it comes to showing a house for sale, smells are like any other variable in the mix. It's tough to prove they seal a deal. But an offensive smell can send prospects away in a hurry.

"Smell does sell and bad odors are a real problem," said Sharon McCann, office manager at Coldwell Banker Schweitzer in Plymouth.

"If there was a house that smelled like heaven, and you wanted to stay there forever and ever, amen, but it wasn't the right size or in the right location, you won't buy it no matter how good it smells," McCann said.

But there's another side to the story.

"If a house smells very pleasant, you will linger longer," McCann said. The more you linger, the more you start taking notice, (mentally) start placing furniture."

And, maybe, make an offer.

There apparently are no scientific studies that directly link baking bread, scented candles and potpourri with home selling success.

"We don't have evidence that any of that works," said Eric Spangenberg, a professor of consumer behavior at Washington State University. "It's all based on anecdotal evidence, hearsay and urban legend."

"What Realtors have done is they have a product and they're trying to market the product," said Michael Bernacchi, marketing professor at the University of Detroit Mercy.

"They want to make it as environmentally pleasing as they can by attracting the senses," he said. "The idea is for cumulative cues to be positive. Pleasant smells is one of the ways that would be helpful. To say it would cause a purchase in and of itself is insane."

Both Bernacchi and Spangenberg mentioned that retailers use music and smells to bring customers into their stores and put them into a buying mood.

So why shouldn't real estate agents play up the good memories of hearth and home, many of which center around food and other pleasant smells?

"The first impression is a lasting impression and that includes elevation, landscaping, foyer and air quality," said Harvey W. Whitehead, a Realtor with Hannett, Wilson & Whitehouse in Bloomfield Hills.

"I don't necessarily tell people to bake bread or herbs on a stove," he added. "I tell them to use your best judgment and know those four things will get the best response.

"Many homeowners will end up taking it to the logical conclusion. Most will do something. I've seen them bake bread, bake cookies, put Odor Eaters in closets."

"The smell is the first thing you notice when you open the door," Fujimori said. "I tell them not to cook fish. Fish smell is not attractive to most American buyers. Please don't cook fish. Cook beef or chicken."

Alfonso Griffin, an agent with Red Carpet Keim Walker in Southfield, recalls a bad incident with prospective buyers, pets and odors associated with animals.

"They were definitely interested in the property, but the smell turned them off completely," Griffin said. "You have different buyers. You have people who want to buy a house perfect and not do anything."

"Pet smells are the worst," McCann said. "I've had to have sellers remove carpeting. Once it was removed and the pet odors were gone, the house sold."

Smoking also presents problems. Air fresheners alone usually don't do the job. More intensive remedies in that situation include cleaning of drapes, walls and carpets.

All agents warn against too much sweetness in a house, especially with the number of people who seem to have problems with allergies nowadays.

"One time, I was doing an open house in Canton and the owners had potpourri," Fujimori said. "People came in and said it was too strong. I told the homeowner and they took it out."

Fujimori likes to use candles.

Griffin also likes the less-is-more approach. He'll spray with an air freshener – "maybe vanilla fragrance" – especially if the house is vacant.

"One (fragrance) isn't a problem," Griffin said. "When you have different fragrances, it makes a difference."

Usually not for the better, either.

"You can overdo it at times to the point where it almost chokes you," McCann said. "If someone has plug-in air fresheners, stick-ups and potpourri all over the house, people will say, 'What are they trying to cover up?' "

The Associated Press contributed to this story.

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q. My husband and I are about to retire and are beginning to look at where to buy. In a recent response in your column you refer to a place called "Teleride, Colorado," which is still under development. Is there a way for us to discover several places such as this for us to explore for possible retirement? We would like to buy in an area that has not yet peaked.

A. My reference to Teleride had to do with real estate development and, in particular, condominium development in a booming ski and golf resort area. There are areas around the country that advertise themselves as retirement communities.

My suggestion would be that you pick an area of the country in which you might settle, visit that area and contact a Realtor and/or the local chamber of commerce and perhaps a representative of the local builder's association to inquire as to available communities for you.

For example, areas of Tucson and Phoenix, Arizona, have huge communities that are particularly designated for retirement communities.

I would welcome readers of the column to submit suggestions as to areas that fit your particular interest so we can response to your question in future columns.

Q. I own some property, and the neighbor claims he has an easement right over it because his property and mine were owned by a common grantor a number of years ago. At that time, there was, in effect, a right to traverse my property by the other property owner in order to get to a lake.

However, there is no express easement agreement. Do I have a right to withhold them from using the easement?

A. I believe what may have been created on your property is what the law refers to as an implied easement. Where your property and the easement property were once owned by a common grantor and where the easement was apparently and contiguous and where the easement is necessary to your neighbor's use of the property.

The court may well have a right to determine that your neighbor has established an implied easement over your property.

You should, of course, examine the facts with legal counsel who is knowledgeable in property law.

■ HOUSING SURVEY

A recent national survey conducted by Yankelovich Partners for the American Society of Interior Designers indicates that respondents are optimistic about owning their own houses.

The survey shows respondents of all races who are 40 years and under, 87 percent believe that they will own a better home in the next 20 years. The most optimistic groups are African Americans, 94 percent, followed by Hispanics, 93 percent.

Nearly 64 percent of respondents feel that their current home is nicer than the one they grew up in. The majority of satisfied home owners live in the South, 74 percent, compared to the Northeast, 65 percent, North Central States, 60 percent, and the West, 55 percent.

The sense of satisfaction depends on the age of respondents. Only 45 percent of those 16 to 29 years of age prefer their current home compared to 59 percent of those 30 to 49 and 83 percent of those 50 and older.

Historic sale: The Hopkins Family along with Real Estate One agents Jeff Hitch and Gwen Schultz pose before the house whose sale resulted in the company passing the billion dollar mark for 1995.

The company said it hit the magic number in October with a sale in Bloomfield Hills.

The buyers of that house, Deborah and David Hopkins, were transferees from Pennsylvania. The sellers, Barbara and John Zrno, also were moving as the result of an executive transfer.

To make the occasion even more special, both agents involved in the billion-dollar sale were from Real Estate One.

Gwen Schultz, representing the sellers, works for Real Estate One Ralph Manuel Associates in Birmingham. Jeff Hitch, representing the buyers, works out of Troy.

"We were very happy with Real Estate One," Deborah Hopkins said. "Jeff did a superb job of previewing a lot of homes before we came to town. He knew exactly what we wanted. Jeff's up-front work really helped us out."

The 30 company-owned offices in Michigan last year totaled sales of $1.16 on 9,625 houses and condominiums.

"It's a goal we've been growing towards a couple of years now," said Daniel S. Elsea, general sales manager. "Now, we're eyeing $2 billion. I anticipate doing it in five years. We'll probably do it through added services and probably through mergers with other firms.

"We've done most of our growth through agent services, client services," he said. "The agents are the ones that get the business. We provide the support. We've got some pretty innovative computer programs. Our advertising is very strong as well."

Established in 1929 in Detroit, Real Estate One has offices in Livonia, West Bloomfield, Farmington, Lathrup Village, Birmingham, Westland, Plymouth, Bloomfield Hills, Troy, Clarkston, and Rochester.

3 major players compose bulk of secondary marketing

MORTGAGE SHOPPING

DAVID C. MULLY

(This is the second in a two-part series explaining the home mortgage secondary market.)

In last week's column, we looked at how the secondary market for mortgage loans affects people who want to buy houses by:

- providing liquidity
- moderating periods of capital shortage
- facilitating movement of capital, and
- moderating differences in regional interest rates.

To further understand how the system works, let's take a look at the organizations that are the major players in the secondary market.

Three federally-chartered institutions were created by Congress to develop the secondary market for residential mortgages. These institutions are the:

- Federal National Mortgage Association (FNMA)
- Government National Mortgage Association (GNMA)
- Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation (FHLMC)

The oldest of these institutions is the Federal National Mortgage Association (FNMA), also known as "Fannie Mae." It was created in 1938 as a wholly-owned government corporation. Its purpose was to provide a secondary market for FHA-insured and, later, VA-guaranteed loans.

FNMA is now owned by private shareholders and deals mostly with conventional mortgages. FNMA has the nation's largest mortgage portfolio. For its securities, FNMA guarantees the timely repayment of interest and principal, even if the payments have not been collected from the borrower.

In 1968, FNMA was partitioned into FNMA and GNMA. As part of the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), the Government National Mortgage Company, commonly known as "Ginnie Mae," assumed responsibility for special assistance functions, such as programs requiring government subsidies.

In 1970, GNMA created the first publicly-traded pass-through securities representing undivided interests in pools of FHA and VA mortgages. The GNMA security, which is backed by a federal government guaranty, enabled mortgage bankers to sell large quantities of mortgages to new investors who lacked the staff and expertise to evaluate the purchase of whole loan packages.

The largest number of GNMA securities is backed by pools of long-term fixed-rate mortgages on single-family residential properties. These securities are highly liquid because they are readily available and easily interchangeable.

The third federally-chartered secondary market institution is the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Institution, or "Freddie Mac." FHLMC was created in 1970 primarily as a secondary market for savings and loans institutions. However, it now buys from many types of originators.

The FHLMC has few loans in its portfolio; it finances its operation chiefly through its participation certificate (PC) program. Through this program, FHLMC purchases and packages mortgages into participation certificates.

FHLMC also exchanges PCs for mortgages packaged by a single issuer. In addition to PCs, Freddie Mac issues collateralized mortgage obligations or CMOs. These are mortgage-backed bonds that are grouped according to the maturities of the loans being used for collateral. By offering different classes of maturities, FHLMC can attract investors with different investment needs.

Recently, several other private secondary market organizations have entered the scene. These include MGIC Mortgage Marketing Corporation, General Electric Credit Corporation and The Home Mortgage Assess Corporation.

Unrelated to the federal government, these organizations buy and sell mortgage and mortgage-backed securities. Individually, they serve a number of purposes, such as dealing with mortgages that exceed FNMA or FBLMC purchase limits or helping builders obtain financing. A strong secondary market is essential for a strong primary market in residential loans.

The entry of these new companies, along with the federally-chartered organizations, helps ensure a steady stream of investments and capital for the mortgage industry.

General Contractors' new president calls for more personal involvement

Edward R. Jarchow, new president of the Greater Detroit Chapter Associated General Contractors of America, has asked members to look at planning changes implemented by the organization and get more personally involved.

"If you join an AGC committee or task force, your time will be used effectively and you will see how the AGC experience can serve you personally while bringing more value to your company," Jarchow said in a brief address during the recent annual meeting.

"We encourage your suggestions and we need your active participation," he told his colleagues.

Jarchow, 53, is a Birmingham resident and a vice president and treasurer at Barton Malow Co. in Southfield. He's a certified public accountant with 23 years experience in construction and real estate development.

AGC is a professional association of general contractors, subcontractors and associate members like suppliers, bankers, insurance people and lawyers involved in commercial projects.

Strategic changes already implemented by AGC identified by Jarchow include:

- More short-term task forces to focus on single issues to more efficiently use members' time.
- A change in the way the board of directors and committees communicate so they can work together in a more focused manner.
- Working to build alliances with other industry associations.

Even though the Greater Detroit Chapter won national chapter of the year honors last year, it can't rest on that laurel, Jarchow said.

"We must adapt to the changing business environment that our members are experiencing and work to provide measurable value," he said.

"Any comfortable old business environment that might have existed in the past for the buyers of construction services from our AGC members has been destabilized because of re-engineering, downsizing and the general need to do more with fewer resources.

"The needs of our owner-clients have changed the complexity of our projects and the way we must operate. Clients are demanding that AGC members find ways to build their projects faster, better and cheaper," he said.

Members grow personally and professionally by broadening horizons through committee work and task forces, Jarchow later said in an interview.

Edward R. Jarchow

Jarchow said he views his experience in the financing rather than operations end of construction to be an advantage as he takes over the presidency.

"I've come up through the organization (AGC) as an insider with an outside perspective," he said. "When change is needed . . . maybe that perspective helps."

We'd like your opinion.

NEW HOMES

Heritage Hill features large, beautiful lots

Fred Greenspan, a Southfield builder with nearly 50 years experience in residential construction, is completing the final phase of Heritage Hill, 27 detached site condominiums in Milford.

Daughter K.G. Dunn, the third generation Greenspan to be involved in the business, is managing agent of the project on Milford Road a half mile north of Kensington Metro Park and four miles north of I-96.

Two floor plans are available — a colonial of 2,850 square feet with four upstairs bedrooms priced at $299,900 and a 2,710-square-foot two story with the master on the main floor and three bedrooms up for $297,400. Each has 2½ baths.

A 2,400-square-foot ranch with three bedrooms is on the drawing board. That plan is expected to be priced in the mid $270,000 to lower $280,000 range.

Heritage Hill is a rare involvement for Greenspan in that he didn't also develop the property.

"We'd just completed a project in Northville, Woods of Northville. This was presented to us and I liked it. I said I didn't want to be in with anyone else and bought all the lots," Greenspan said.

"I just liked the existing beauty . . . trees, rolling terrain, parks," he said. "It's an established area. It's not just raw."

"Large lots," Dunn added.

That may be one of the biggest attractions. All but six of the lots are at least 100 feet wide. Eleven are at least 120 feet wide.

TAMMIE GRAVES/STAFF ARTIST

But there are other draws.

Kensington Metro Park with all of its recreational offerings including Kent Lake, golf and nature trails is just down the road. The village of Milford, with a quaint shopping district, is close, too.

"It's a country feeling," Dunn said.

"Too small is no good. Too big is hopeless," said Carol McPhillips, sales manager. "We're beautifully sized."

Greenspan's credentials — he's a former president of the Building Industry Association of Southeastern Michigan — also should impress prospects, McPhillips said. "He's been building over 40 years all over Detroit. He has a solid reputation, vast experience."

Brentwood plan: This model at Heritage Hill features a first floor master suite and laundry, great room, dining room, study, kitchen/nook and powder room. Three bedrooms and a full bath are upstairs.

The two-story foyer features a curved staircase. The living room is on one side of the foyer, the dining room on the other. A butler's pantry leads from the dining room to kitchen/eating nook with island and walk-in pantry.

A bridge overlooks the family room upstairs.

The master, with cathedral ceiling, has a separate tub and shower, two walk-in closets and two separate vanities.

The other three bedrooms have ceiling lights and share a second bath.

The Brentwood model also has a two-story foyer, family room with sloped ceiling, dining room, study, kitchen with island and built-in desk and first floor master.

The master has a pan ceiling (cathedral is standard), separate tub and shower, one walk-in closet and dual sink vanity.

BY JOHN D. MCCLAIN
AP NEWSFEATURES

WASHINGTON (AP) — Housing starts in November posted the biggest gain in a year, but the increase was limited to apartments as the lowest mortgage rates in nearly two years failed to boost single-family construction.

Analysts said severe weather and the slowing economy probably also reduced single-family activity in much of the nation in December and January.

"Seasonally, we expect bad weather, but this has been an unreasonably bad winter," said economist David Lereah of the Mortgage Bankers Association. "So it's hard for builders to dig holes and get trucks and cranes going in many parts of the country."

Joe Blalock, an economist with America's Community Bankers, said that even with lower interest rates, growth in housing this year probably will be held back by declining consumer confidence and reduced demand after more than four years of economic recovery.

Construction of new homes and apartments jumped 5.7 percent in November, to a 1.42 million seasonally adjusted annual rate, the Commerce Department said Tuesday. Activity was mixed regionally, rising in the Midwest and South but falling in the Northeast and West.

It was the department's first economic report since much of the government was shut down Dec. 16 by the federal budget impasse and then the blizzard. The report had been scheduled for Dec. 19.

The gain was the biggest since a 5.9 percent surge in November 1994 and boosted starts to the highest level since a 1.43 million rate last July.

But the unexpectedly strong advance was a rebound from a 4.6 percent decline in October, when starts plunged to 1.34 million, lowest since 1.30 million last June.

Construction of single-family homes — 80 percent of starts — remained unchanged in November at a 1.1 million rate after falling 3.2 percent a month earlier.

Still, economist David F. Seiders of the National Association of Home Builders described the rate as "very good."

Many analysts had expected single-family starts to level off after rebounding from last winter's doldrums, when mortgage rates rose above 9 percent. Thirty-year, fixed-rate mortgages averaged 7.35 percent in November, lowest monthly average since 7.15 percent in February 1994.

The monthly payment on a $100,000 mortgage with a 7.5 percent interest rate is $699, while the payment on the same loan with a 9 percent rate is $805.

Applications for building permits — often a gauge of future activity — rebounded 3.2 percent, to a 1.43 million annual rate, up from 1.38 million in October when they fell 1.5 percent. Single-family applications were up 1.6 percent.

Lead pipes in older homes may cause health problems

The beautiful old house you just bought to renovate and fill with character may also have tap water loaded with lead. Many people are aware of lead in older paint, but may not be aware of lead in older plumbing that can contaminate drinking water and have permanent effects on physical and mental health.

A recent trend indicates that younger house buyers lean toward certain elements of charm and character in a house, qualities such as hardwood floors, high ceilings and archways that are mainly found in older houses. Unfortunately, these older houses and apartments built before 1930 are very likely to have older plumbing. Older plumbing used solder that has a high lead content, which can leach lead and cause high concentrations of lead in drinking water. The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) has found that lead in drinking water is one of the leading sources of lead in the bloodstream, contributing to 20 percent of total lead exposure for an average person.

Most drinking water is naturally lead free. Lead leaches into water when it sits in a house's pipes. Unfortunately, lead is a colorless, odorless, tasteless hazard, and the full extent of its harmful effects are not yet known.

For infants and children, the effects of lead ingestion can begin with premature birth and low birth weight. Lead poisoning can also be linked with slowed mental and physical growth, decreased intelligence and other measures of cognitive function, such as attention span. Anyone at any age can experience damage to the nervous system, red blood cells and kidneys, elevated blood pressure and hearing loss.

Those most at risk include infants, children under age six, pregnant women and adults exposed to lead in their workplace. Children are at the highest risk of lead ingestion because they play in the dust and dirt, put things in their mouths, and drink a higher percentage of liquids. Their bodies are small and tend to absorb more lead into their bloodstreams. Infants and toddlers can be at higher risk due to juices and formula mixed with water.

Recent studies by Harvard University doctors at a lead poisoning clinic in Boston found that the primary source of lead in the bloodstream of about 15 percent of lead-poisoned infants treated at the clinic was from lead-tainted drinking water used to make formula.

The EPA has set a lead limit of 15 parts per billion (ppb). Reaching or exceeding this limit forces public water systems to reduce and monitor lead levels, and notify the public of elevated lead levels. To illustrate how small 15 ppb is, consider that 1 ppb is about equal to 1 drop in 36,000 gallons of water. Just fifteen drops in a large swimming pool would reach the lead action level. This shows how toxic lead is, even in very small quantities.

Fortunately, simple tests, performed by an independent water testing lab, can determine the lead level and overall water quality in your house. Once you know whether lead exists, there are several ways to reduce or remove it, thus improving water quality.

One of the easiest ways to reduce lead levels is to let your tap water run cold for 30-60 seconds to flush out any lead that has leached into water standing in the pipes. Hot water tends to draw out more lead so if you need hot water, the best idea is to take cold water from the tap and boil it on the stove.

To ensure that lead is being removed from tap water, you can install a lead-removing water filter. "If you purchase a lead-removing filter, be sure to work with a reputable company that can help you decide which system is best for you," said Dick Elliott, president of EcoWater Systems.

For more information on water quality testing and treatment, get EcoWater free educational booklet, "The Water in Your Life," by calling 1-800-86 WATER.
