Fireworks case sputters out

Fireworks merchants Efim and Elissa Burda won a legal victory Friday as 35th District Court Judge Ronald Lowe dismissed charges brought against them by the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office.

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

Judge Ronald Lowe of the 35th District Court dismissed charges against Canton fireworks dealers Efim and Elissa Burda Friday, May 24.

Lowe cited a May 6 written opinion by Wayne County Circuit Court Judge John Murphy that said Michigan fireworks laws are invalid because they don't use the same classification system as federal fireworks laws.

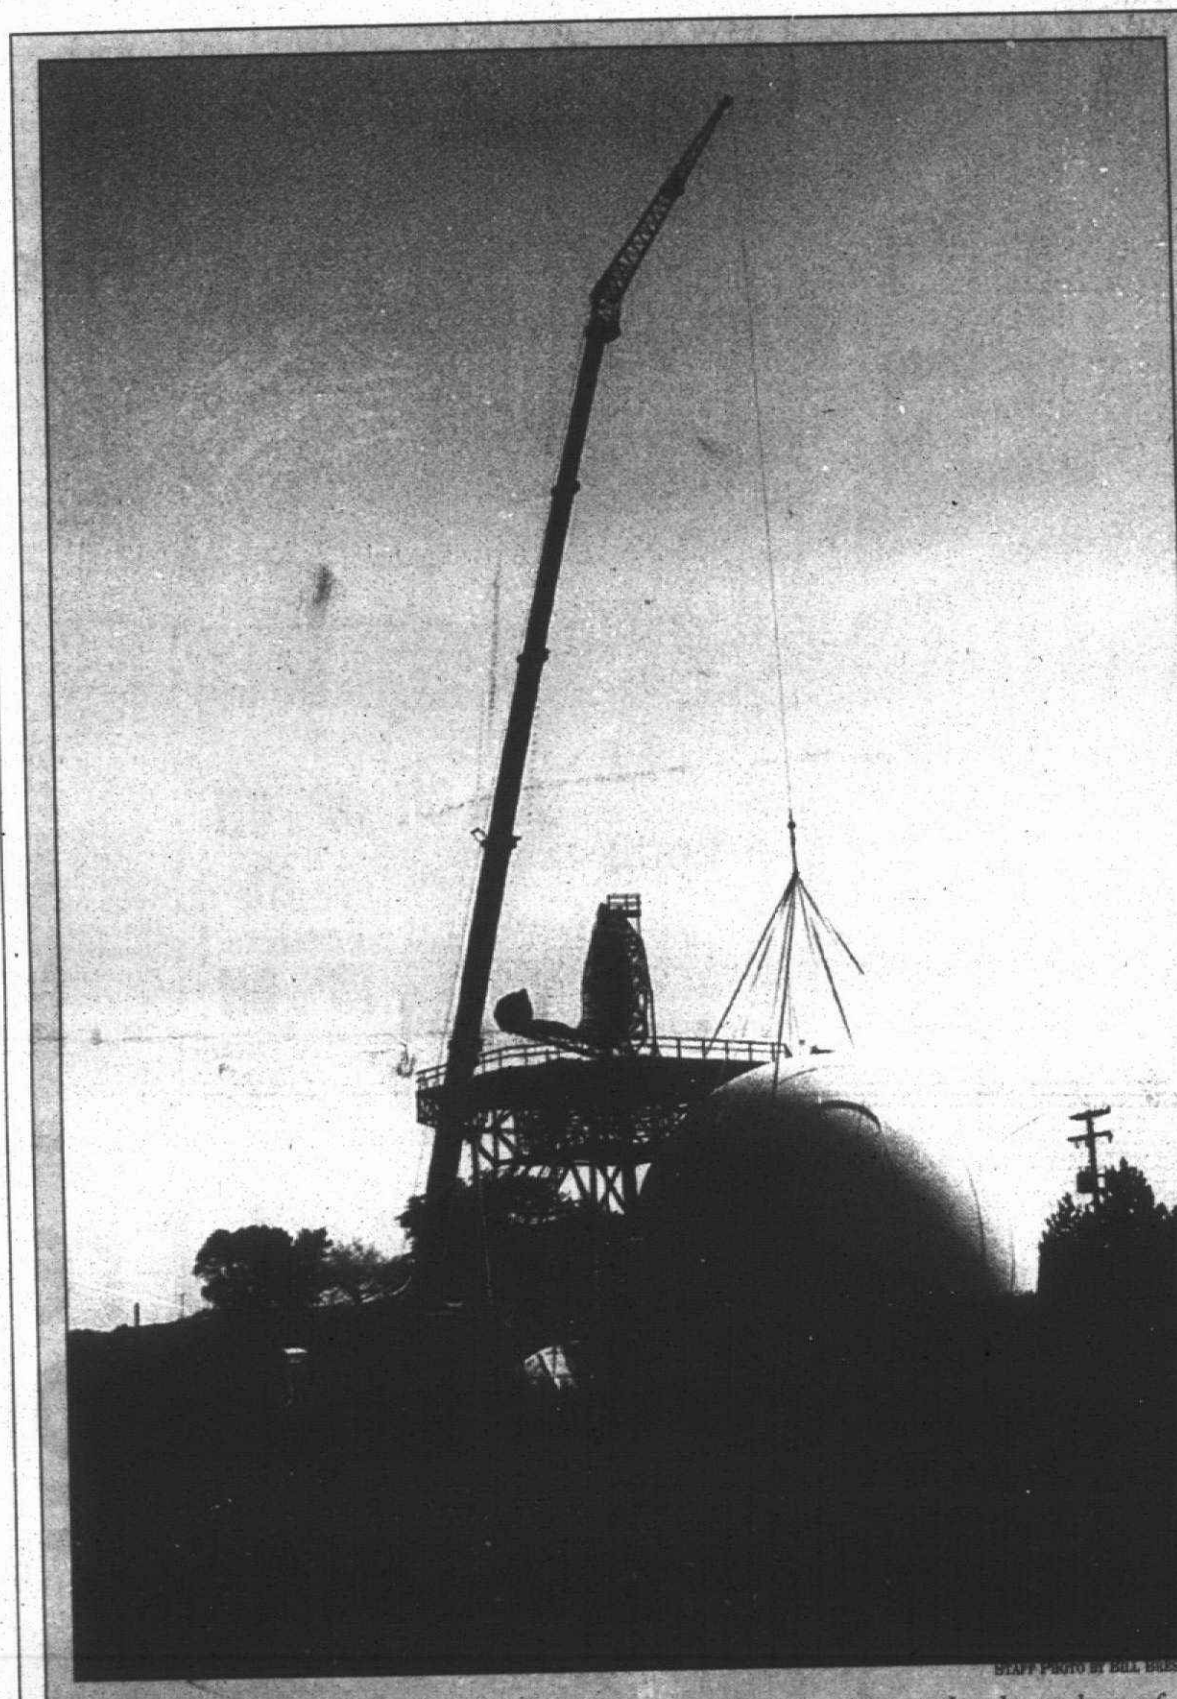

"...this court, in accordance with standard constitutional law, must strike down the state requirements so that plaintiffs may obey federal law," Murphy wrote.

Despite the prosecutor's assertion and the defense attorney's admission that Judge Lowe was not legally bound by Judge Murphy's opinion, Lowe said, "It's very clear from the opinion that there has been, on the federal part, an attempt to preempt in this field."

Assistant prosecutor Patrick Muscat said the prosecutor's office will likely appeal the ruling.

Radar gets a new dome

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW

After 38 years on the tee, the Federal Aviation Administration's "golf ball" was dismantled last week and replaced with a "soccer ball."

The 55-foot-wide fiberglass golf ball at Michigan Avenue and Sheldon housed one of Cleveland Center's 40 long range radar antennas used to steer commercial air traffic around the country.

The golf ball was disassembled and lowered to the ground in pieces last week to make way for a new and improved dome that more closely resembles a soccer ball.

The 13,000-pound soccer ball is 59 feet in diameter and carries six lightning rods. The construction crew put it together in just eight hours, said radar technician Henry Wolf. "It looked like an eggshell" during assembly, he said.

Some 435 cubic yards of concrete were added to the base of the radar tower to help support the soccer ball. A section of waveguide had to be replaced after a workman decided to drill holes in it for circulation.

The crew was ready to hoist the soccer ball in place Friday morning, but the wind stopped them. Five men couldn't handle the soccer ball after it was raised just one foot off it's pedestal. The crew was able to install the ball later that day when the wind died down.

With a range of 250 miles, the 1.3-gigahertz Ratheon radar can detect aircraft as far away the Mackinac Bridge, Chicago and Indianapolis.

County puts parks millage on ballot

BY BOB NEEDHAM
STAFF WRITER

Wayne County will make improvements in several local parks – and play a role in running some city of Detroit facilities – if voters OK a quarter-mill tax increase on the Aug. 6 ballot.

On a 9-3 vote Tuesday, the Wayne County Commission approved ballot language for a new five-year tax dedicated to parks, on the condition that the county continue to appropriate parks money from its general fund at the current level of $2.78 million. If approved, the new levy would generate nearly three times that amount – an estimated $7.92 million next year.

The cost to homeowners would be 25 cents a year per $1,000 of taxable property value.

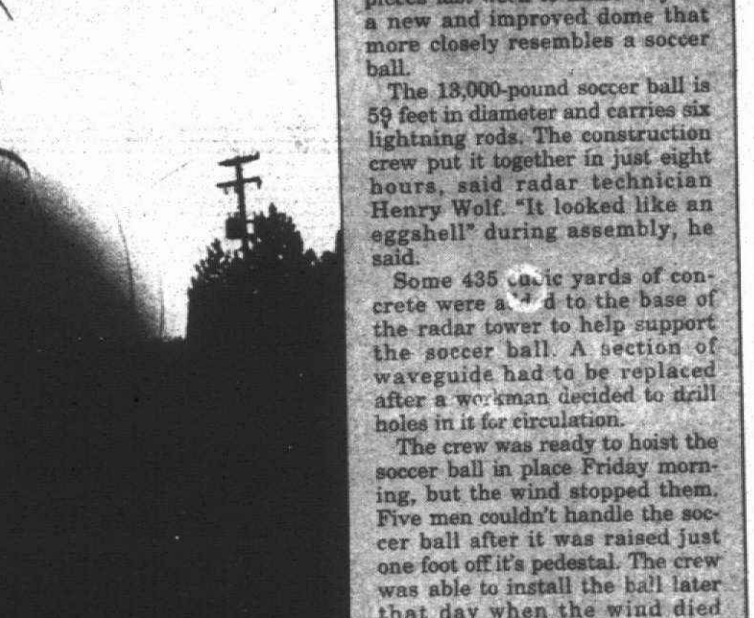

The ballot language, developed by the Ed McNamara administration, specifies that some of the money would be spent at Hines Park, Elizabeth Park in Trenton, Fort Wayne in Detroit and Chandler Park in Detroit. The last two are owned by the city; the county does not own any park facilities in Detroit.

Deputy County Executive Michael Duggan suggested the commission quickly approve a detailed plan for use of the money if the tax passes. A tentative list includes improvements to the Holliday Nature Preserve and Nankin Mills in Westland; Bell Creek and Lola Valley parks in Redford; Lower Rouge Park in Canton, Westland, Wayne and Inkster; Cross Winds Marsh in Sumpter Township; and Detroit's Mariner Park.

Including the current general-fund appropriation in the ballot proposal ensures that voters will get what they ask for, Duggan said: "This is going to be for new facilities and new service."

An important factor is the building and operation of new facilities at the Detroit parks, on which the county and the Dennis Archer administration just agreed last week, Duggan said. He added many legal issues must still be worked out.

"I don't see us taking title to the lands; I see us operating the facilities," Duggan said of the Detroit projects.

Commissioner Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, said he opposes the tax increase even though some projects it would fund would go in his district. McCotter represents most of Livonia, Plymouth, and Plymouth Township.

"I do not believe in the Santa Claus theory of government," he said. "The county wants its tax increase. The county will use every means at its disposal to get its tax increase."

He also said since the current general-fund parks spending will not be indexed to inflation, that will amount to a cut in parks funding from the general fund.

McCotter then suggested three other alternatives to raise a special parks fund: increasing the general-fund appropriation, dedicating a percentage of the county budget surplus to parks, or using money from the sale of surplus county land.

"The taxpayers that I represent will end up having to work so hard that they'll never get any time off to enjoy these parks," he said before the vote. During the meeting he added that all Wayne County municipalities have local parks, and expanding the county system amounts to duplication.

"When we consider the whole general fund ... that ($2.78 million) is a considerable amount for the county to be investing in parks programs in light of all the other parks programs that are out there," Patterson said.

Approval for putting the question on the ballot nearly followed party lines, with Democrat Edward Boike of Taylor joining the commission's three Republicans – McCotter, Patterson, and Andrew Richner of Grosse Pointe – in voting no.

After the vote, Commission Vice Chair Kay Beard, who represents Westland and Garden City, said parks spending is critical to address the problem of delinquent youth.

"We can't keep turning our backs on what's happening to young people today," she said. "It's crucial for us to provide recreational opportunities for young people.

"I'm sure people will have a lot of questions," she said of the specific projects. "They have every right to question us thoroughly."

The tentative wish list of projects includes:

•Fort Wayne: Museum, renovations.

NCATE, Madonna University Invite Your Comments

The School of Education at Madonna University is scheduled for a fall 1996 accreditation review by the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE). Federal regulations require that accrediting agencies allow for public comment on the qualifications of institutions or programs under consideration for initial or continuing accreditation.

Both NCATE and Madonna University recognize graduates, parents, schools and community organizations have valuable perspectives on the quality of the programs that prepare teachers and other school personnel. We invite interested parties to submit written testimony on the School of Education to:

Board of Examiners NCATE
2010 Massachusetts Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20036-1023

Comments must address substantive matters related to the quality of professional education programs offered at Madonna University, and should specify the respondent's relationship, if any, to the institution (i.e., graduate, present or former faculty member, employer of graduates). Copies of all correspondence received will be sent to Madonna University for comment prior to the review. No anonymous or oral testimony will be considered.

Letters of comment should be received by August 1, 1996.

The 1996 WSDP Radio Auction exceeded its fund raising goals, raising nearly $5,500, on Saturday, May 11.

The station's goal was to raise $5,000 through the annual auction. Since the station met the goal they will donate $500 to Community Hospice Services of Plymouth. "We were excited to team together with the hospice. The students recognize their important contributions to our community," said Bill Keith, Station Manager. Two local businesses, The Robins Nest and I.N.M.Y Attic of Plymouth, donated an additional $25 to the hospice. The $550 total donation will be presented to the hospice at WSDP's annual banquet on Tuesday, May 21.

WSDP would also like to thank auction sponsors, and guest auctioneers for their support of the auction. "The community really came out and supported us. We especially appreciate the businesses that donated items," said Keith.

Installed in 1953, the original radar equipment is still in use. Sometimes spare parts, like old vacuum tubes, have to be manufactured, but an FAA crew of four keep the radar running 10 hours a day, seven days a week.

All the crew members have military experience. Wolf and Lori Lewis were in the Air Force, Hubert Martin was in the Army and James Wright was in the Navy.

Wolf said the new soccer ball dome has attracted attention already.

The owner of a nearby collision shop, he said, came over to inquire about buying advertising space.

Fireworks from page1A

to announce a sale. "Buy one of anything and get a second one free," he said.

The Burdas were charged for selling fireworks illegal in Michigan to an undercover police officer last summer.

At about the same time, Patricia and Donald Linn, who own Tri-City Fireworks of Canton were charged, too.

Both defendants are represented by attorney Hugh "Buck" Davis, who specializes in fireworks law.

Davis was successful April 29 in getting Judge Lowe to quash a search warrant he signed last year that resulted in the seizure of 525 cases of fireworks from the Linns on June 22.

Judge Lowe ruled that he had been "reckless" in signing the warrant because he was unaware of a 1989 Ingham County Circuit Court injunction that affirmed the Linns' right to do business as long as they only sold to people out of state. "There should have been language in the search warrant to protect Tri-City's right to sell fireworks outside the state," Lowe said.

Wayne County Prosecutor John O'Hair is appealing Lowe's decision on the search warrant, and will likely seek to join Canton Township government in appealing Judge Murphy's decision, Walsh said.

Meanwhile, the Burdas' request to the township for a permit to display fireworks was pulled from the board's agenda May 14. Township attorneys argue that, if state fireworks laws are invalid as Judge Murphy writes, then the township can't issue permits.

The Burdas say they have sites in other areas of the state where people who buy fireworks are invited to come and learn how to safely blow up their fireworks.

"We're still going to have a shoot site because we want to show people how to use fireworks properly," Efim Burda said.

Piece by piece, Model A comes to life

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

In an era where people routinely pay to have their grass cut and their oil changed, Canton resident Bill Harrison stands out.

The 78-year-old Consumers Power retiree built his own barn, his own white picket fence, his own outdoor swings, cultivated a large flower garden, put aluminum siding on his house and built a 1928 Model A Ford from parts.

"I still can't believe I built me a car," he said as he adjusted the spark advance. "I'm not too much of a mechanic really."

Harrison said he would have given the car away many times during construction, which stretched from 1969, when he bought the wheels for $12, to last year when he finally got it running. "My wife talked me out of (giving it away), and here I have a car," he mused.

"He never thought he could do it either," said Edna Harrison. "Because he really doesn't know anything about cars."

Harrison got the urge to build a Model A after his son Jerry bought a 1930 Model A. "He got me started, and then he left," Harrison said. "He flew the coop" and moved to New Mexico.

Edna Harrison still keeps the records of when everything was purchased. Tires and tubes cost $108.98 in September 1969. An engine cost $25 in March 1970. Body and frame were $50 in May 1970. Smaller parts were purchased at flea markets and from Motor City Antiques in Harper Woods and from Gaslight Auto Parts in Urbana, Ohio.

Harrison said the body was sitting in a farmer's field at Hannan and Van Born. "There was no back seat," he said, "no glass (and no roof). You could look up at the sky." He bought it from the farmer, built a roof for it and replaced the upholstery.

He found the engine in a farmer's homemade tractor while visiting Mrs. Harrison's family in Beacher City, Ill., about 200 miles south of Chicago. "I don't remember how I talked him into (selling it), but I did," Harrison said. "I put the engine in the back of the car and came home with it."

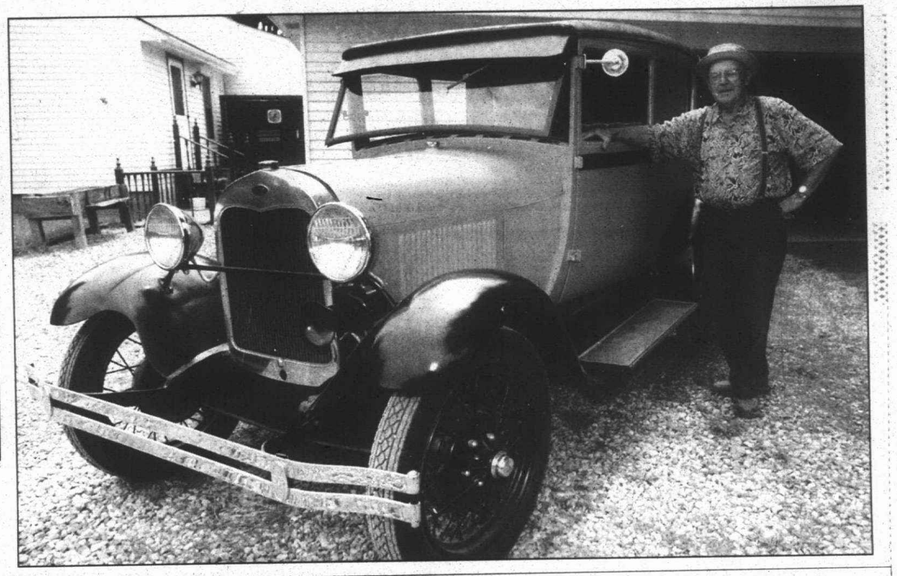

Three hundred dollars later the rebuilt motor was ready to rock, but Harrison wasn't ready to roll. So he stored it in a closet of his house. "It's a big closet," he said.

Years later when Harrison was in his 60s, he lifted the cast-iron, four-cylinder engine into a "kid's four-wheel wagon" and toted it out to the car.

Harrison retired in 1980, and much of the work was done after that. "When I was working I didn't have time to work on it," he said. "And not only that, I didn't have the extra money. These parts are expensive." For example, he said, a set of turn signals cost $65, and two headlights are $300. "When you're working and you've got a family to take care of you don't spend that kind of money."

Even now Harrison is putting the final touches on his car as he continues to restore his son's car as well. "I won't get it on (the highway) until I get turn signals on it," he said. "If you stick your arm out (to signal a turn) somebody might think you're waving at them."

Playscape cleanup

The Heritage Hideout playscape in Heritage Park is almost all cleaned up for the summer. But a little more work is needed.

A final cleanup is scheduled 4-8 p.m. Monday June, 10, Tuesday, June 11 and perhaps Wednesday, June 12.

Adults are invited to participate. Only rakes and wheelbarrows are needed. All the necessary painting is complete on the playscape, but there's still plenty of new woodchips to put down.

Refreshments will be served. Babysitting services will not be available during the cleanup.

Honored

The late Janice Nowacki-Tobin of Canton who was killed along with two other crew members when their Medflight helicopter crashed in December, 1994, were honored at the National EMS Memorial Service May 25 in Virginia.

Registered nurse Nowacki-Tobin and fellow crew members Dr. Terry Racicot and pilot Richard Elliott were among 33 emergency medical service providers who died while on duty in recent years assisting sick or injured patients.

Since the memorial service was established in 1993, 63 EMS providers from 20 states have been honored.

The names of Nowacki-Tobin, Racicot and Elliott were engraved on individual brass leaves that are part of the "Tree of Life," a permanent memorial to EMS personnel who died in the line of duty.

A picture and brief biography will be placed in the National EMS Memorial Book. The service and permanent memorial are the only ones of their kind dedicated solely to EMS personnel.

COP CALLS

Church hit

The 55-year-old pastor of Resurrection Catholic Church on Warren Road told police that someone broke into the church the night of May 26-27.

Police found that the double doors at the back of the building had been pried open. The window of the office door was broken, and four drawers in a desk had been pried open.

Nothing was missing, according to the police report.

Another break-in

A 26-year-old man who lives at Lucas Nursery on Ford Road told police that someone broke into the business between noon and 1 p.m. May 25 and took a television, a compact disc storage unit, clothing and $30 in change.

The man believes he knows who did the crime, and he gave the name to police.

Domestic violence

Canton police arrested a Brookline Road man May 25 after his wife told them he beat her up.

The man told police he slapped his wife "a few times," according to the police report.

The wife said "he kept pushing her down on the floor and slapping her in the face with his right hand, causing her glasses to fly off," according to the police report.

The woman was bruised behind her right ear and on the right side of her face, the report said. She declined medical treatment.

Stolen motorcycle

A 27-year-old resident of Village Green West Apartments on Haggerty Road told police that his 1994 Honda CBR900RR was stolen from the parking lot the night of May 26-27.

The motorcycle, worth $9,000, was parked in the man's carport, according to the police report.

Stolen Ford

A Canton man told police that his 1993 Ford Explorer was stolen at 8:45 p.m. May 26 from Maria's Italian Bakery & Pizzeria on Haggerty at Cherry Hill.

The man said he left the keys in the vehicle while he went inside to buy something.

Stolen Mustang

A Canton couple told police that their 1988 Ford Mustang was stolen from the parking lot of their apartment building between 11:45 a.m. and 12:20 p.m. May 26.

A set of keys for the car that had been left in the front door lock were missing, according to the police report.

Deer shot

A Canton police officer was dispatched at 3:50 a.m. May 26 to investigate a report of an injured deer on Michigan Avenue at Lotz.

The officer determined that the deer's hind legs had been broken. "I fired one shot from my 9mm and dispatched the deer," the officer wrote.

Lost equipment

A Canton police officer assigned to the "Seatbelt Enforcement Detail" wrote May 24 that he lost one of two magnetic signs that he put on the side of his patrol car.

The sign identified the car as part of the "Safety Belt Enforcement Unit."

The officer said he drove up Canton Center and Michigan Avenue to look for the sign, but couldn't find it.

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

Mettetal Airport's dilapidated, and in some cases waterlogged, hangars will begin to be replaced next year if all goes as planned.

Airport advisory board member John Vergona, state Bureau of Aeronautics representative Randy Coller and airport manager Doug Kitze met in May to discuss the future of hangars at the state-owned airport south of Joy and east of Lilley.

They were confident that space in a new hangar could be rented almost immediately. "They'll all be full no matter what you build," Kitze said.

"With (Big Beaver Airport in) Troy closing, I don't think we'll have any trouble filling a new hangar," Coller said.

The difference is that Coller's location could accommodate a "T-hangar" from which planes would come out on both sides.

In Vergona's location there isn't enough room for a T-hangar. They'd have to build a "box" hangar there with planes going in and out on one side only.

Because of the way airplanes are shaped, more of them can be stored in a T-hangar. So T-hangars are more cost effective than box hangars.

Coller estimated that a box hangar would cost one-third more to build than a T-hangar.

Kitze said he would lose some of his current tenants if box hangars are built because they couldn't afford the rents the airport would have to charge for box hangars.

The hangars would be filled, he said, but with corporate planes and planes owned by wealthy people.

Coller predicts that a new hangar would cost at least $100,000, but not more than $200,000. The hangar would be paid for with airport revenue. Pilots planning to rent space in the new hangar would likely be required to pay six months rent in advance. The rent, Coller said would probably start at $250 to $300 per month.

"If you want a nice hangar, you've got to pay more money," Coller said.

The hangars targeted for demolition are Nos. 14 and 15, which together hold 21 airplanes.

"The hangars need to be replaced," Kitze said. "The walls don't come down to the ground. (The floor) is heaving. And you've got water in there."

OBITUARIES

MARGARET J. KROPF

MARVIN K. HAUK

Services for Marvin K. Hauk, 76, of Lake Suzy, Fla. were Thursday, May 20, at The First Presbyterian Church of Port Charlotte. Burial was in Royal Palm Memorial Gardens. Arrangements were made by Kays-Ponger//Royal Palm Funeral Home, Port Charlotte Chapel.

Mr. Hauk resided in Florida since 1987 after moving from Plymouth. He was a principal and teacher for Wayne-Westland School district, retiring in 1987. He was a graduate of Eastern Michigan University and University of Michigan with a M.A. degree and a specialist degree in education. He served in the U.S. Army in the Pacific Theater during World War II and was a member of the First Presbyterian Church of Port Charlotte.

He is survived by his wife, Janita O. Hauk of Lake Suzy, Fla.; two sons, Todd A. Hauk of Westland, and David A. Bewernitz of Crystal Beach, Fla.; one daughter, Alea DeNeau of Seattle, Washington; one sister, Beverly Sharp of Douglas; three grandchildren.

The state Senate finally had a roll call vote on Indian casinos, and they lost 8-28.

Voting to approve the gambling casino agreements were: Michael Bouchard, R-Birmingham, Mat Dunaskiss, R-Lake Orion, and John Schwarz, R-Battle Creek.

Opposed were Loren Bennett, R-Canton, John Cherry, D-Clio, Robert Geake, R-Northville, Gary Peters, D-Bloomfield Township, Mike Rogers, R-Brighton, and Alma Wheeler Smith, D-Salem.

Absent was George Z. Hart, D-Dearborn.

Lawmakers took the roll call vote after the Christian Coalition said it "called for a recorded roll call to ensure that the citizens of Michigan would know how their state senator voted on the compact."

The tribes are free now to ask the U.S. Interior secretary to permit the casinos.

License loss OK'd

Rep. Greg Kaza, R-Rochester Hills, launched an unusually long protest as the House of Representatives on May 21 approved a series of bills allowing state agencies to lift the occupational licenses of professional persons who fall behind on child support payments.

The bills passed on roll calls ranging from 80-23 to 90-14 and were sent to the governor for signing.

"This legislative package proposes license sanctions that have nothing to do with professional ability," said Kaza. "The bills would eliminate a person's ability to pay child support. The delinquent payer might be punished, but so would the recipient.

"This legislation would mean unequal treatment for workers. A worker who needed a government license to practice his or her trade would be at risk of losing their livelihood, while another worker who did not need a license would not be affected.

"Even worse, the bills assume that government Friend of the Court accounts are accurate when legislative hearings earlier this year highlighted numerous problems with the existing system. . .," Kaza said in a formal protest printed in the House Journal.

Voting yes: Lyn Bankes, R-Redford, Eileen DeHart, D-Westland, Tom Kelly, D-Wayne, Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, Jim Ryan, R-Redford.

Voting no: Deborah Whyman, R-Canton.

A bill to allow lifting of driver's licenses for non-payment of child support had a closer call, surviving on a 57-45 vote.

Voting no: Whyman of Canton.

Doggy-free camps

Police: Tickets await impatient motorists

In response to many complaints from motorists concerning travel delays and potential incidents, MDOT has posted additional signs to improve notification of detour routes.

Motorists who make illegal and potentially dangerous maneuvers to avoid traffic delays at the bridge repair on Ford and I-275, could end up in even bigger jams.

Canton police are warning motorists that they will take strict enforcement action against motorists who endanger others by ignoring traffic regulations.

The Michigan Department of Transportation has closed two ramps to I-275 for repairs. They are eastbound Ford Road to northbound I-275, and westbound Ford Road to southbound I-275. The ramps are expected to be closed for about six weeks.

Detours have been posted advising motorists heading east on Ford Road to take I-275 north to the Ann Arbor Road exit and to re-enter on southbound I-275.

In response to many complaints from motorists concerning travel delays and potential incidents, MDOT has posted additional signs to improve notification of detour routes.

"The detours do add a little bit of travel time but are not terribly inconvenient," said John Sanford, MDOT resident engineer for construction.

Sanford advises that motorists can avoid the inevitable slowdowns in the Ford Road-I-275 area by choosing the local roads as alternate routes during construction.

For motorists unable to avoid the area, Sanford suggests, "slow down, a number of lives are in jeopardy - state and township inspectors, contractors and motorists. We know we are inconveniencing people, but we must do the work to keep the system operating."

Canton Public Safety Director John Santomauro said safety is the primary issue for police.

To direct safe movement by motorists through the work zone, MDOT has posted additional traffic signs, Santomauro said.

"Motorists making illegal and unsafe movements in the construction area will be ticketed," Santomauro added.

A no-no: It's common to see motorists make illegal turnarounds to get past the detours that plague the Ford Road and I-275 interchange. But police have promised to enforce traffic laws, including the illegal turnarounds made at a nearby apartment complex, just east of I-275.

McCotter seeks term limits for county officials

By Bob Needham
Staff Writer

Republicans on the Wayne County Commission introduced a plan to limit terms of elected county officials Tuesday.

Led by Thaddeus McCotter of Livonia, the commission's three Republicans proposed limits of eight years in office for county commissioners, the county executive, sheriff, prosecuting attorney, clerk, treasurer, and register of deeds. The limits would not include special circumstances like partial terms.

Tuesday was the deadline to place proposals on the Aug. 6 ballot, which McCotter sought for his plan. Instead, commissioners sent it to their legislative research committee for consideration.

"What this would do is allow the people of the county to make up their own minds," McCotter said in introducing the plan. "I would be for it," he added.

Commissioner William O'Neil, D-Allen Park, said he opposes term limits but not giving voters their say. However, he said it would be more appropriate for the November general election.

"In the primary all we're really getting out of the deal is the opinion of the few," he said. "Very few people go to the polls in the primary."

McCotter — whose district includes most of Livonia, Plymouth, and Plymouth Township — said he hoped to get the proposals on the August ballot because it will include fewer races than the November general election. However, he said he does not expect the Democrat-dominated commission to put it before voters at all.

"I cannot envision my colleagues putting term limits on the ballot," he said after the meeting. "They didn't even want to consider it."

In addition to O'Neil, however, Vice Chair Kay Beard, D-Westland, said after the meeting she favors putting term limits before voters, even though she thinks they're a bad idea.

"I think the people should have the opportunity to decide. I have no problem putting things on the ballot," she said. Beard's district also includes Garden City.

McCotter said he will pursue the plan at the commission level, but at the same time plans to recommend to term-limits activists that they begin a citizen petition drive to get the ballot questions before voters that way. He added that he will provide them with the ballot wording he developed to help their cause.

"There are people out there who want to do a citizen initiative," McCotter said. "I believe they will be successful ... Why should county government try to impede putting it on the ballot?"

Beard said term limits means a significant loss in experience and institutional memory, and added the democratic process makes them unnecessary.

"The voters have term limits in their hands every time they go to vote. I think that's the ultimate term limit ... I've never understood why people want to limit their own ability to vote."

McCotter's term-limits plan would take effect Jan. 1, with no retroactivity. It covers three separate proposals:

- To limit county commissioners to four full, two-year terms.
- To limit the county executive to two full, four-year terms.
- To limit the sheriff, prosecuting attorney, county clerk, treasurer, and register of deeds to two full, four-year terms.

The proposals went to committee on a voice vote. Commissioner Michelle Plawecki, D-Dearborn Heights, who also represents Redford and part of Livonia, was absent.

THE RACE IS ON!
MILAN DRAGWAY
Milan Dragway
By DON NICHOLSON
Back in the late 50's to early 70's all you had to hear were the names "Big Daddy" Don Garlits, Ron Mancini, Ramchargers, Dick Landy, Roger Lindamood, Shirley Muldowney, Della Woods and even Ronnie Sox to know they were talking about Chrysler powered drag racing at it's finest. With all the heat between the big three, it was always a war to see who was the best. Now it's 1996 and the war is still on. This weekend, at Milan International Dragway, it is going to be even more prevalent, with one of the biggest Mopar meets in the country. Although this is the "Mopar Weekend", Saturday afternoon at 6:00, the Mopars will take on all comers with a Mopar-vs-all race it's down to the final round to see who will prevail in the end. Will it be Ford, Chevy or the Mighty Mopar.
The gates open at 9:00 am both Saturday and Sunday with the Saturday and Sunday Mopar race starting at 1:00 pm. Darrel Alderman and Scott Geoffrion, two pro stock champs, will be signing autographs Saturday from 11-2 and 5-8, then again on Sunday from 11-4. Some of the wildest side by side pro stock action will be running both days with the "Killer Instinct" Avenger making some 6 sec. 200 mph+ passes against Bill "The Kid" Stepp's Avenger. If you have never seen two cars that look almost like they could be driven down the street hit over 200 mpg, in less time than it takes for the family grocery getter to shift into second gear, this is a must see.
As I mentioned before some of these cars look like they could be driven down Middlebelt. In fact some of them do. The Ramchargers pro street shoot out will be run on Sunday with qualifying Saturday. These cars are all street legal cars with mufflers and all the equipment needed to drive on the street!! In order for them to qualify for street car status they must be able to be street driven without receiving mechanical tickets from the local law enforcement. Some of the biggest names in the country come from the Detroit Metro area. With Bruce Kimmons being on of the Kings. His 7 second Camaro runs times and mph that was only seen in top fuel back in the sixties.
All weekend long there will be all kinds of action for the Mopar enthusiast, from the wild two wheel 1/4 mile passes down the quarter mile by the "Original Hurst Hemi Under Glass" being driven by Bob Riggle while he looks down track thru a window in the floor and steers the car with right and left rear brake handles. With any luck, we will have an in car camera tapping the action for the local access tv show "Motorsports Excitement", which will be airing this event Thursday, June 6, 1996. Also the car show and swap meet for the real enthusiast or Mopar car restorer. We'll have lots of things to look at and pick out the missing part for the car, back home, in the garage.
If you own a Chrysler product and have always wanted to go racing this is the weekend to try. Saturday you can race for only $35.00 or join the race for "Mopars Against All Makes" and see who prevails. Then Sunday come out for the two class race depending on how fast your car runs. Both days are bracket racing, where the slower car gets the head start. So even the little Omni has a chance of win against your neighbors 440 Cuda!!!! Don't miss all the fun and excitement. Come on out to Milan International Dragway. See you there!!!

Summertime

Buckle up and drive safely

The summer months make us all want to be carefree. But think for a moment how many times you've seen a baby on a mother's lap in a car, or better yet, a baby on a mother's lap in a convertible – or kids crawling freely all over the back seat.

With Memorial Day celebrations behind us, it's officially summertime, despite the damp and cool weather.

But that easy, laid-back feeling summer usually brings is slowly taking over most of us. That's why it's a good time to remind all motorists to use caution and wisdom as summer rolls around.

Already Canton police are intensifying traffic enforcement as part of the "Safe & Sober Campaign," which is a national effort to reduce alcohol-related fatalities and to increase seat belt use.

With high school graduation and school-ending celebrations right around the corner, students are urged to be wise with their partying. Nothing has changed: Driving and drinking don't mix.

Parents are reminded to know what their graduating high school students are doing and to be sure they don't drink and drive while celebrating the start of their adult lives.

The summer months make us all want to be carefree. But think for a moment how many times you've seen a baby on a mother's lap in a car, or better yet, a baby on a mother's lap in a convertible – or kids crawling freely all over the back seat.

It doesn't take much foresight to be wise and make sure you buckle up – adults and children – the moment you get into a car. Those annoying seat belts have saved plenty of lives. It's not a joke.

Nor is the fact that Canton police have designated three time periods through the Labor Day weekend during which they will provide highly visible enforcement of the state's seat belt and drunken driving laws.

As part of their campaign, police will focus on traffic on Ford Road and Michigan Avenue. It is these two thoroughfares where the greatest number of accidents occur in Canton.

Motorists are advised that police will use checkpoints, saturation patrols and other tactics to pursue and arrest alcohol-impaired drivers. Drivers and their passengers who are not wearing seat belts will likewise be ticketed.

Police also will initiate other enforcement efforts to address child passenger safety, teenage drunken driving and speeding.

The police are telling motorists upfront what they plan to do this summer. It's serious business and the consequences are more than a ticket and a hefty fine. The effort is designed to save our lives.

Police say that by increasing the number of arrests and raising the perceived risk of arrest through enforcement, they expect to increase long-term compliance with the seat belt and drunken driving laws.

Let's hope it works.

Rouge: It's up to us to help

As residents of the Rouge River Watershed, we need to realize that the river is part of our community, and we need to care for it. If we don't do it, it won't get done. And that, in large part, is where Rouge Rescue comes in.

Sometimes, we have to clean up other people's mess.

The people involved in the annual Rouge Rescue cleanup of our neighborhood river are not the ones who use it as a substitute landfill. They're not the ones who – through foolishness, ignorance or simple malice – junk up the Rouge River and its tributaries with broken furniture, old firewood and bald tires.

But in less obvious ways, everyone in this area has contributed to the degraded condition of the Rouge, through the careless use of lawn fertilizer, by being tied in to a combined sewer system, or by living with a failed septic field. Even if we were completely innocent concerning the river, though, we would still have a responsibility to help clean it up.

As residents of the Rouge River Watershed, we need to realize that the river is part of our community, and we need to care for it. If we don't do it, it won't get done. And that, in large part, is where Rouge Rescue comes in.

After more than a decade of annual cleanups, the worst of the job is over. The rescue effort has been a resounding success, in many cases solving problems which had existed for years. New ones always crop up, though, from both human and natural causes. Someone tosses a grocery cart into the river, or a storm brings down a dead tree limb. The river requires constant care, and Rouge Rescue is an ideal way to give it.

Of course, the rescue alone won't solve all the river's problems; it's not designed to do so. But it's a critical component in the overall cleanup/recovery strategy which has begun to make considerable headway.

Our thanks and appreciation go out to the organizers and volunteers of Rouge Rescue. The cleanup is this Saturday; we strongly encourage participation. It's our river, remember, and it's up to us to take care of it.

QUESTION:
What is your feeling about flying on low-budget airlines?

We asked this question at the Canton Public Library.

"I've always flown major ones. This (ValuJet crash) has me interested even less."
Arthur Carpenter

"I fly a lot on business. My travel agent said she wouldn't recommend it. Part of it is safety; part is service."
Debbie Jones

"I don't fly that often. Even on low budget airlines procedures are in place. I wouldn't be afraid."

Media showed sensitivity

Following the tragic loss of my wife and daughter in the crash of ValuJet Flight #592, your reporter Kevin Brown, called my home to request an interview. Realizing that he was only "doing his job," and feeling that talking about my terrible loss might actually help my distressed mental and emotional state, I agreed to be interviewed.

I would like to inform you that Mr. Brown showed great sensitivity and compassion during the time spent in my home. His genuine concern for the feelings of myself and all my family members present at that time were very apparent. The photographer who accompanied him also showed the same genuine feelings while doing his job.

Both your reporter and photographer should be commended for their actions during this very sensitive situation, as their actions were far above what one often thinks of the news media's handling of face-to-face interviews. Please thank them both for myself and my family.

Thank you, WSDP!

On behalf of everyone at Community Hospice Services, but most of all our patients and their families, we would like to publicly express our sincere gratitude to the entire crew at the WSDP 88.1 student radio station at Plymouth-Canton Centennial Park.

Due to their very successful auction this month, which was supported by the Plymouth/Canton community, the students selected Community Hospice Services as the recipient of a $550 donation. As the hometown hospice in the Plymouth area, we are very honored to have the talented young people at the radio station, as well as the station manager Bill Keith, recognize and validate the work we do caring for the incurably ill and their families. Our hats are off to everyone associated with WSDP 88.1 FM!

Schools must regain trust

At the school board meeting of May 20 I learned that the members of the administration team who are currently negotiating a new contract with the teacher's union all have wives or daughters who are teachers in the Plymouth-Canton school district. This presents an inherent conflict of interest and is unethical.

In the past, the Plymouth-Canton school board has used third party negotiators, just as the police and fire departments do. We should return to this system.

Over the past two years I have spoken to many people in the community, urging them to support the school millages and have been dismayed at the widespread mistrust people feel toward the school board and the administration. Resolving this issue is a necessary step toward regaining that trust. The school board members should remember that they have a fiduciary responsibility to the district and to the public.

POINTS OF VIEW

GUEST COLUMNIST

SCOTT HEINZMAN

Access. In order to do anything, you must have access. It's a universal reality.

In some cases, accessibility is a convenience or luxury. We now have 24-hour access to our bank accounts thanks to the clever people who invented ATMs. The Internet gives those with a personal computer access to a world of information. Some $250,000 gave access to a private breakfast with House Speaker Newt Gingrich and Sen. Majority Leader Bob Dole at a Republican fund-raiser.

For people with disabilities, the simplest forms of accessibility are necessity. Some are obvious, like ramps. Others are not so obvious, like specific measurements for door clearance space. Lack of accessibility can be a form of isolation and even discrimination.

To standardize building codes and to protect people with disabilities from discrimination, laws like Michigan's barrier-free design law and the federal Americans with Disabilities Act were passed.

These laws provide the answers to a lot of common questions. Does a restaurant have to have a large bathroom stall for wheelchair users? Does a building need to have an elevator? Is the local mall required to have a telephone device for the deaf?

The answers to questions like these are spelled out by barrier-free design codes and ADA guidelines. The law takes into account a building's age, renovations, how much accommodations for accessibility would cost in relation to the financial resources of a business, and more considerations.

In general, new construction must conform to all these specifications. Older buildings need to be made accessible to the "maximum extent feasible" where "readily achievable" and as not to cause an "undue burden" on the owners.

It is the responsibility of those who issue building permits to see to it that all barrier-free design cases and ADA guidelines are followed. It is not uncommon for the local building inspector to miss a transgression. It is common for older buildings to be out of compliance. Building inspectors have plenty to keep them busy with new construction so it is unlikely that would find the time to investigate existing facilities unless for some reason it was brought to their attention.

Those who need accessibility need to be watchdogs for it. To this end, Michigan Protection and Advocacy has created the Michigan Access Project. Project trainings are going on in counties all over the state.

The trainings, which last about five hours, will cover Titles II and III or ADA, which pertain to accessibility, and Michigan's barrier-free design law. Afterward, participants will know how to be sure that a place meets accessibility requirements. And they'll know what to do if it doesn't.

To participate in the Michigan Access Project, contact Carolyn Fowler of Michigan Protection and Advocacy at 800-288-0261.

Many Republican congressional members want to repeal ADA as an unfunded mandate. Yet most accessibility accommodations are inexpensive and many are useful to those without disabilities. Consider the automatic door during the holiday season, or curb cuts when bicycling. One friend tells me how women prefer the larger wheelchair accessible stall to the smaller standard stalls in public restrooms. And I know that people who aren't fortunate enough to have television in their bathroom sometimes activate the closed captioning option on their TV when nature won't wait for a commercial.

Conquering accessibility obstacles has led to technological advances like voice-controlled computers. Who knows what the future will bring? We could all end up in a very accessible world with driverless vehicles, automated housekeepers and anti-gravity belts, just like the Jetsons.

(There will be a disability dialogue for people living in western Wayne County 7-9 p.m. June 12 in Livonia. Anyone interested in discussing disability issues is welcome. For more information, call Scott Heinzman at (313) 462-2423 after 11 a.m.)

Charter school backers plan a premature 'celebration'

TIM RICHARD

Once upon a time, there was a school that celebrated graduation day. There were laurels for class projects, honors for high achievers and a bevy of parents bursting with pride.

Next day, the students took mid-term exams.

What, say you, is this some kind of joke? An Alice in Wonderland fantasy?

No, it's Michigan 1996.

The mid-term exam will come after Oct. 1, the start of the new fiscal year. Let us ponder the Senate Fiscal Agency's analysis of Gov. John Engler's proposed budget for fiscal 1997:

"Charter Schools Performance Study — $300,000.

"The Governor recommends a general fund increase of $300,000 to evaluate the performance of Public School Academies."

PSAs, or charter schools, are in the second year in Michigan. Two-thirds were private schools that got a piece of paper from Central Michigan University's charter mill.

There is little to no hard evidence to suggest charter schools are doing any better or worse than real public schools, where people elect the school board and vote on bond issues.

There is no evidence to suggest that charter school graduates do better in the outside world; no testimony from employers that their grads are better on the job; no methodical accounts from universities to inform us their graduates are better or worse prepared for higher education.

And yet their adherents propose to "celebrate" May 29 — this year! — at a Charter Schools Expo in Lansing. "Celebrate" is their word, or at least CMU's. I quote from its news release:

"Michigan's 43 public charter schools will celebrate their varied programs in the first annual Michigan Charter School Expo on May 29 in Lansing ...

"The event is sponsored by the Michigan Resource Center for Charter Schools and co-sponsored by the Michigan Association of Public School Academies and the Michigan Department of Education. The Resource Center is located on the campus of Central Michigan University and serves all Michigan charter schools.

"The response by the public charter schools has been very enthusiastic," said Mamie Thorns, coordinator of the Expo. "They can't wait to come to Lansing and tell about the exciting contributions they're making and the pride they feel as pioneers in this growing area of public education."

Some questions come to mind:

• Why is the state Department of Education supporting this? It hasn't organized an exposition for real public schools. Do you suppose the malignant influence of State Board of Education President Clark Durant, whose previous experience was in private schools, came to bear?

• By what stretch of the ego can a new phenomenon – admittedly in the "pioneer" stage – stage an exposition, which is usually to demonstrate accomplishments?

The answer, I suspect, is that the goal of charter school supporters has been realized. It is not to offer a brand of specialized education for the global economy. It is to get state money with almost no strings attached.

By now, everyone who has seriously studied charter schools has seen the TV news film about the New York City district whose superintendent allowed local teachers to set up specialized academies for the performing arts, sciences, engineering and the like. Existing schools and tenured teachers were allowed to specialize. Parents and kids could take their pick. There were waiting lines.

Those were real charter schools, not private schools lining up for a new brand of welfare with no state standards attached.

Michigan is tearing up its standards and replacing them with "suggested" benchmarks. If there are no standards, parents can't compare one school to another.

And that's the whole idea. Charter school supporters don't want comparison. They want an exposition. Before the mid-term exam. At state expense.

PHIL POWER

Two events last week will shape the future of this region for many, many years.

• Wayne County and Northwest Airlines finally cut the deal to build a giant new terminal at Metro Airport.

• General Motors bought the Renaissance Center and plans to use it as a showpiece corporate headquarters in downtown Detroit.

The new terminal, featuring a new $786 million midfield terminal and 5,000-space parking deck, puts Southeastern Michigan firmly into the world of international travel and transport.

Dan Washburn, Northwest's lead voice in negotiations with Deputy County Executive Mike Duggan, said it right: "Detroit has become Northwest Airlines' most important international launching pad in North America. ...When our customers of the future come to the United States from Europe, Japan, China, Mexico and Canada, most will arrive in Detroit, and their port of entry will be an impressive and dignified new terminal building."

As someone who has done my share of flying in and out of dowdy old Metro, I sure hope Washburn is right. Maybe Wayne County Executive Ed McNamara should visit the new Delta hub in Cincinnati to see what "impressive and dignified" really means before he puts the shovel in the ground. Anything less would be a real shame, not to mention a waste of money.

As to GM and Ren Cen, two things are clear to me:

First, the General Motor Corp. that did the deal in something under two months is decidedly not the organization that used to take years to decide to repaint an executive bathroom in the old New Center Building. Maybe things really are different at GM.

Second, even though there's a lot of cynical talk about how GM can use the Ren Cen move as a smokescreen to hide wholesale relocation to the Auburn Hills Tech Center, I don't believe it. I think GM has chosen to put its footprint right in the middle of Detroit, thereby giving the effort to revitalize the center city a giant boost.

By the time the year 2000 rolls around, I wouldn't be surprised to see a Southeastern Michigan in which:

• Detroit, previously the (sink)hole in the center of the doughnut, is beginning to come back as a real city and an asset to the region.

• A world-class airport is linking the region easily and quickly to the rest of the world.

• Giant corporations are taking advantage of transportation and technology to gain enormous competitive advantage and stimulate economic growth.

• World-class cultural activities (assuming for a moment that baseball and football games qualify as "culture") are running the gamut from the newly-renovated Detroit Opera House to the music and theater in Ann Arbor.

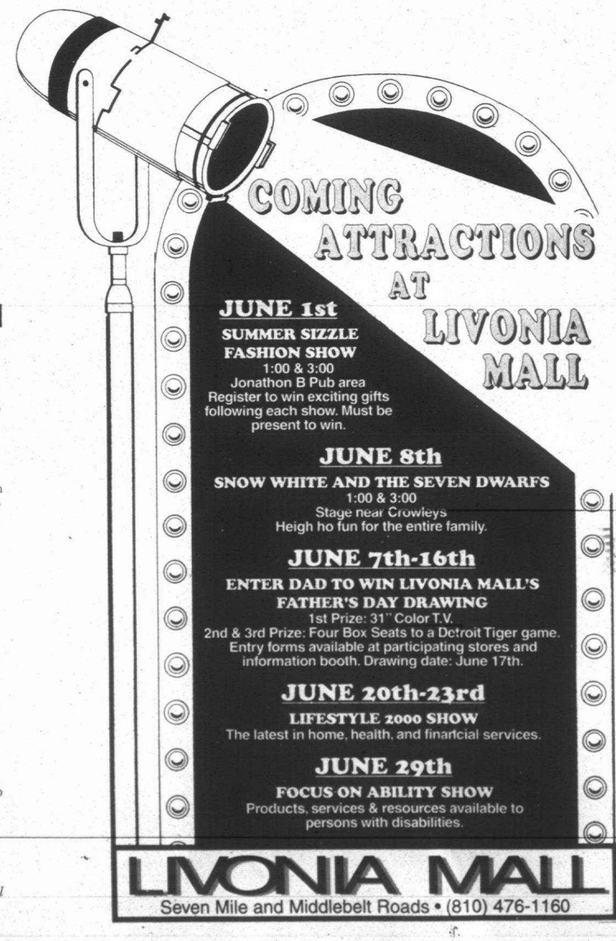

• Outstanding universities – the U of M in Ann Arbor, Michigan State in East Lansing, Oakland in Rochester and Wayne State in Detroit – are marking the four corners of a region that, per capita, has more education, research and economic development potential than anywhere in the country.

For years I've been impressed by – and more than a bit jealous of – North Carolina's Research Triangle, the region between Chapel Hill, Raleigh and Durham. It has three pretty good universities, some seriously good corporations, lots of research and technology transfer, admirable economic growth. And a terrific PR program.

But I believe that as of now, all the essential factors are present for southeastern Michigan to challenge – heck, exceed! – the Research Triangle.

All we need now is a catch name. Somehow, "Research Quadrilateral" doesn't quite do it.

Proper answer for Joe's 'why'

I was driving along the highway a few days ago when 4-year-old Joe pointed out the window and said, "Look at the water tower. It's big. I wish I could climb all the way up and see everything. That'd be fun."

I looked. I didn't think it'd be fun. It's too high up and I'd be afraid of falling. And a policeman would probably arrest me anyway for climbing water towers, I'm sure there's some sort of rule about that.

We drive along. And I started thinking. I realized, suddenly and silently, that I didn't know beans about water towers. But it didn't matter. I wasn't in the market to buy a water tower unit at the time. I wasn't taking class in "Modern Odd Structures" and studying the water tower unit at the time. I was just ignorant and no one needed to know it. But then the inevitable happened; Joe asked why, why are there water towers. He wanted to know. I had to say something.

"Hmmmm," I began. "Let's see," I added. And then, "Water towers store water. In the tank. Way up high. And then water comes back down through pipes and goes in the ground."

I thought to myself, how dumb. Why make water go against gravity like that to get from the ground up to the tower and use all that energy when it'll just be coming back down again real soon anyway. That's not storing water, that's just making water do busy work.

I didn't get it. My explanation was, at best, lame; it didn't hold water.

■ Kathie Tuyo has many things to be grateful for. She has her health and her family and her special delight, two-month-old daughter Michelle who helped save her then pregnant mother's life.

BY DIANE GALE
SPECIAL WRITER

Kathie Tuyo takes a special delight in her daughter's Michelle's thick, dark hair. It's a sign that the chemotherapy she had while she was pregnant didn't affect the baby.

Sitting in the den of her Livonia home, Tuyo's hair is also thick and has grown back after the cancer treatments made her bald. Her face bursts into smiles as she looks at the baby she fought to have and who likely saved her life.

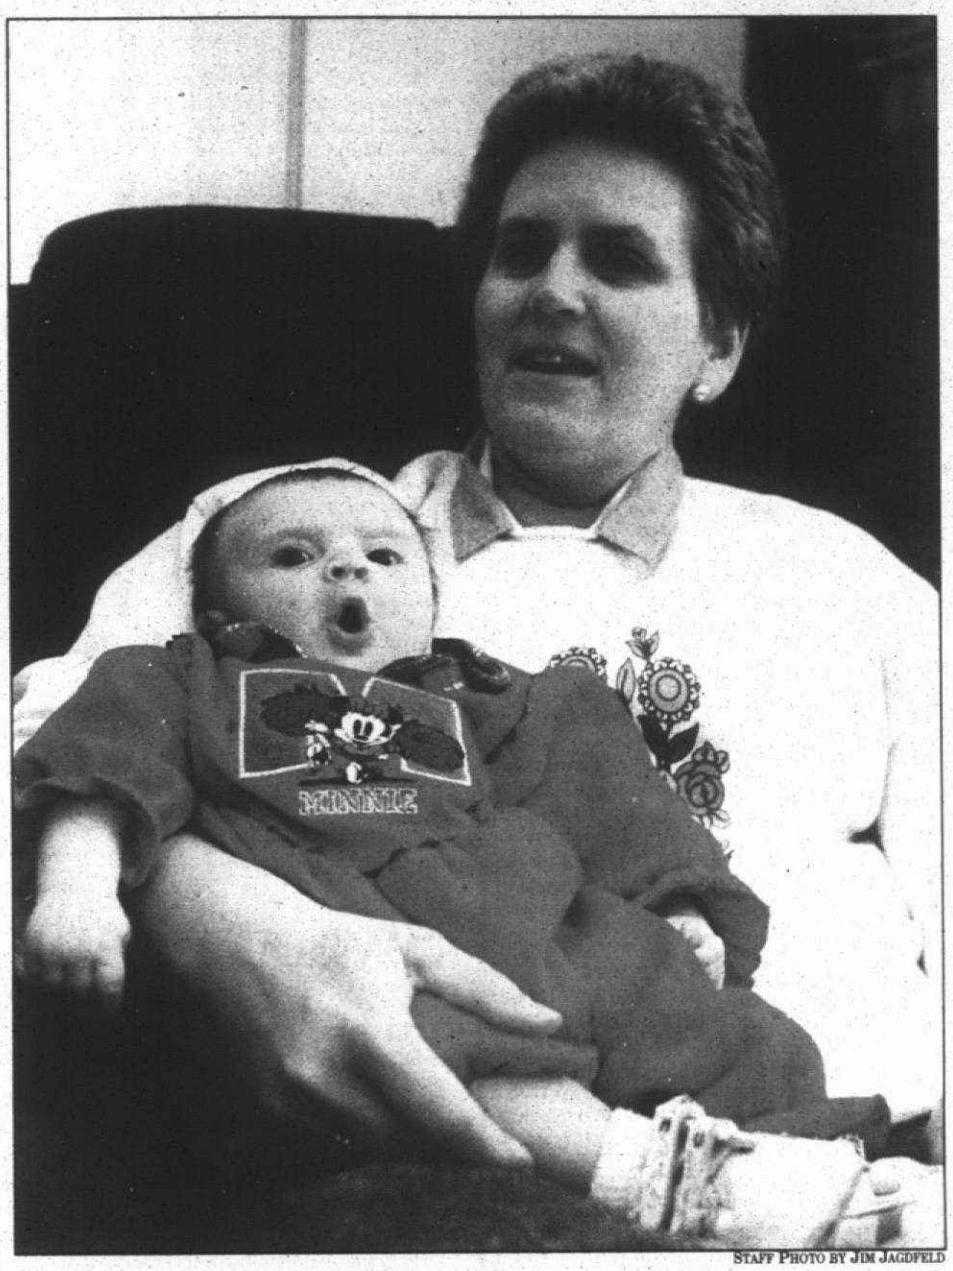

Tuyo was 42 when she went to her gynecologist, because she suspected she was pregnant. That's when the doctor found a lump in her breast. She had a mammogram and biopsy A week later, she learned she had breast cancer.

The cancer had grown to two centimeters even though only 18 months earlier she had a mammogram that showed nothing. So, Tuyo believes that if she hadn't done to the gynecologist, the breast cancer probably wouldn't have been detected until it was much larger and more life-threatening.

"We attribute Michelle to probably saving my life," Tuyo said. "I'm sure I wouldn't have found it myself."

Meanwhile, Tuyo did everything she could to preserve Michelle's life. Doctors told her to abort the baby, remove the breast, and get radiation. But as a Catholic, she knew the church said it was wrong to abort. And even though she follows her religion faithfully, the decision wasn't that easy.

"My mother was an officer in the Huron County Right to Life group and it was something that was really ingrained in us," she said.

Suddenly, philosophical questions about abortion became real. Tuyo and her husband, Gerald, had to think about the entire family.

"I would be leaving my husband with four children and possibly one more," Tuyo said. "But the church was firm on it. There was no way I could have an abortion. We had to consider it. I would never have thought we would struggle, because my views on abortion is that it is terribly wrong."

' My husband took part in all the decisions, but he said that ultimately it was mine to make. We had four children at home and we tried not to make the cancer a focus of our lives. But once we made the decision to go ahead with the pregnancy, it was made.'

Kathie Tuyo

Difficult decision

She decided to continue the pregnancy and fight the cancer. Tuyo turned to William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak. She was 11 weeks pregnant when she had the mastectomy. Chemotherapy treatments began five weeks later.

"My mother died of lung cancer and I wanted to do what I thought would take care of it," Tuyo said. "Truthfully, I cried once during it all. My husband took part in all the decisions, but he said that ultimately it was mine to make. We had four children at home and we tried not to make the cancer a focus of our lives. But once we made the decision to go ahead with the pregnancy, it was made."

Naturally, she worried about the risks to the baby and possible birth defects. Tuyo said the doctors weren't sure what kind of problems would result from the baby being exposed to chemotherapy or whether the baby would be exposed at all.

"It used to be done, frankly, not at all 10-15 years ago," said her physician, Dr. David Decker of Beaumont Hospital. But cases of pregnant women who received chemotherapy and delivered healthy babies have began making medical history.

In the past 18 months, Beaumont has treated three pregnant women with chemotherapy, Decker said. The procedure is rare and having three patients in a short time was extremely unusual.

"There's different feelings in the medical field," Decker said. "You find doctors who say it's not safe for the mothers or the babies. But some of those opinions are outdated."

Previously, it was thought that estrogen, which is produced abundantly by pregnant women, stimulated cancer growth.

"The survival of pregnant women with breast cancer is the same as women with breast cancer who are not pregnant," Decker said. "There are pretty minimal risks for the baby once the organs are formed in the first trimester. No research shows that chemo is harmful to the mother or baby, when it's given during the second or third trimester.

"Practically, it works, but we can't explain how or why. Essentially, it appears safe."

During Tuyo's second trimester, she received four doses of chemotherapy. After the first dose, Tuyo lost all her hair. But, her biggest concern was whether the chemotherapy passed through the placenta to her baby. Feeling the baby move comforted her.

Plenty of support

"My husband and I really have a deep faith and that helped a lot," Tuyo said, adding that the outpouring of concern from friends, family members and strangers was overwhelming. She even received letters of support from people in her hometown, Bad Axe, whom she hadn't heard from in 25 years.

Meanwhile, friends and neighbors organized a dinner-making campaign that lasted three weeks. Every night someone came over with a hot meal for the family.

"Everyone was telling us that they were saying prayers and it helped a lot that so many people were behind us," she said.

She paused briefly as she took Michelle to the basement where two employees were caring for children in her day care business, Kathie's Kids Child Care. The business thrived through the entire pregnancy and even now.

During the roughest times while she was receiving the chemotherapy, Tuyo's two children from a previous marriage, John, 15, and Laura, 14, pitched in, doing laundry, cooking and caring their siblings – Michael, 5, and Steven, 3. Gerald has a son from a previous marriage, Gerald, 21 , who lives in Columbus, Ga.

"Michelle was not planned, but she obviously came for a purpose," Tuyo said. The hardest part, she added, was waiting to give birth and see the baby. A Caesarean section was scheduled for March 11.

"As the time got near, the anxiety mounted," Tuyo said. "I would sit on the couch and think, 'Please, God, let it be tonight.'"

On March 6, almost a week early, Tuyo delivered 8-pound, 10-ounce Michelle Nicole. Her robust size and thick, dark hair were signs that the chemotherapy didn't pass through the placenta.

"When they put her on my stomach and she was crying and she had a lot of hair, you could tell everything was fine," Tuyo said. "We said, 'Thank you, thank you, God.'

"The next day the pediatrician examined Michelle and said: "I examined the baby and she's perfect. Then I read your chart and I rechecked her and she was still perfect.' She's been to the pediatrician twice and everything is fine."

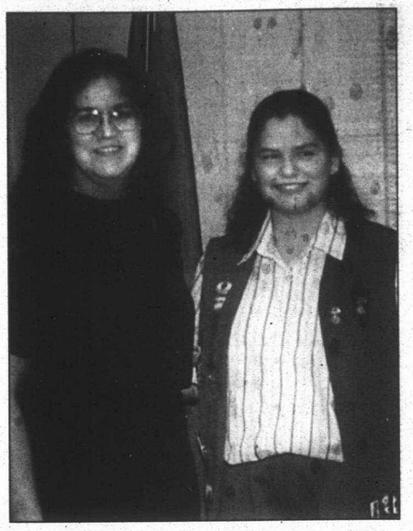

As for Tuyo, even her doctor was impressed by her emotional strength.

"Here was a woman who was pregnant and looking to lose her breast and her hair," Decker said. "It's a very brave thing to do. I admire her. She didn't want to abort, I understand, because of her Catholic religion. Talk about standing by your convictions."

While Tuyo's doctors won't use the word "cured," they do say her treatment is complete except for a series of follow-up visits.

"The bottom line is you have to have your faith, family and friends," Tuyo said. "That's what got us through."

And now, regardless of solid advice from pediatricians to let infants sleep alone, Tuyo said: "For the first six, weeks I let her sleep with me every night. I wanted to hold her near."

Sweet Adelines to present spring concert

The Spirit of Detroit Sweet Adelines will welcome spring with a free concert at 8 p.m., Thursday, June 13, at Heritage Park, on Farmington Road just north of 10 Mile Road.

Participants are encouraged to bring a lawn chair or blanket, pack a picnic dinner, and let the award-winning 110-woman chorus serenade them with old and new favorites.

The Spirit of Detroit Chorus recently installed new officers and board members at its annual dinner at St. Mary's Cultural Center.

New board members are Guinn Berger of Romulus, Pat Holewinski of Allen Park, Kathi Lopez of Livonia, Harriet McAvoy of Lincoln Park and Maureen Maher of Westland.

Continuing board members are Marcia Knack of Westland and Alice LaVigne of River Rouge.

The chorus welcomes new members. Rehearsals are at 7 p.m. every Tuesday at St. Paul's Church on Five Mile just west of Inkster in Livonia.

Spirit of Detroit, which won the regional Sweet Adeline competition, will represent Region Two at the international competition in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. in October. Region Two encompasses parts of Michigan and Canada.

Organizational skills help her use her time wisely

Dear Ms. Green,

I am a 53-year-old woman who is married and has three children. My husband will be retiring in four years so we are thinking about the future and how our life will change. Many of our friends are retired or retiring. It is interesting to see how they are handling it.

I am right-handed. I will be watching the newspaper for your analysis. This has been something I've wanted to do for two or three years.

C.N.,
Rochester Hills

The most pervasive trait in this neat handwriting is her organizational skills. They are helpful in planning the efficient use of her days. Things in her life do not just happen but are the result of her planning. She loves order and system and is neat and consistent. She has an aversion to clutter.

She wants to be in control of her own destiny. She is goal-oriented and a productive worker who can probably do many things well. A strong sense of pride inspires her to do a commendable job as well as live up to other's expectations.

There is maturity of both outlook and action here. Her values are well defined. At times she may look through rose-colored glasses.

She has an aversion to rude people. Neither does she appreciate people who might be prying into her private life.

Her thinking is logical and oriented toward common sense. She appears to rely almost solely on logic rather than follow the intuitive flashes that might come to her.

Seemingly, she has a need to be right. This can cause her to fret over small details.

She has been influenced by a traditional upbringing. She is a rather serious person, but not without a little humor.

Whether happy, sad, excited, calm or angry, she finds it difficult to conceal her feelings. She tends to be quick in responding to emotional appeals and often wears her heart on her sleeve.

It seems quite possible she does not always learn from past mistakes. As a result she may be inclined to make them again.

Currently, whatever she is doing is not fulfilling to her.

This woman is friendly, amiable and empathic. A kind heart has her reaching out to others with a helping hand and compassion. Social interaction with others is a source of pleasure for her.

If you would like your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please write a few paragraphs about yourself, using a full sheet of white, unlined paper and writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and signature are all helpful. Due to the volume of mail, personal replies are not possible. However, objective feedback is welcome.

I am a fifty-three year old woman who is married and has three children. My husband will be retiring in four years so we are thinking about the future and how

Farmers' donation helps CHS

Community Hospice Services is on the receiving end of a $750 award from Farmers Insurance Group through its Agent Community Sponsorship Fund.

Michele Schmidt, of Schmidt Insurance Agency, Inc., is the agent who submitted the fund request and is responsible for the award.

"Michele and her husband Ray Schmidt, are exceptional advocates of hospice and have given generously to fund raising events to benefit Community Hospice Services, " said Lori George, CHS marketing and development representative.

The award was delivered by Jack Hagerty, district Manager at Farmers Insurance Group. Community Hospice Services will use the award for its children's bereavement programs, purchasing literature and "keepsakes" for the children.

"These items benefit participants in that they are a reminder of the grief work they started and give them permission to continue to heal," George said.

Community Hospice Services will offer its six-week grief support series for children, beginning May 28. It is also accepting registration for Camp Phoenix, a three-day camp for children ages 6 years and older who have experienced a significant loss.

These programs are funded by community support, such as Farmers Insurance Group, and are offered free of charge to anyone in the community, George said.

Community Hospice Services is a non-profit community-based program serving residents of western Wayne, southern Oakland, and eastern Washtenaw counties. Begun in 1981 and its mission is to provide comprehensive and compassionate care for the terminally ill and their families.

Sewing is focus of seminar

A popular seminar, it is designed for sewers, needle arts enthusiasts, beadworkers and quilters. It features 44 workshops, displays of fabrics and sewing machines and a book sale.

The workshop topics range from pattern selection and serging to dyeing, making accessories for the home and new sewing products.

The keynote speaker is Christine Reilly, owner of Firefly Embroideries and beaded embroidery instructor. She is the founder and past president of the Great Lakes Beadworkers Guild.

Registration begins at 8:15 a.m., and the first session starts at 9 a.m. The fee is $62, with the option to purchase lunch for an additional $8.

The seminar will be held in the Liberal Arts Building on the Livonia campus.

Colon cancer facts

By Ganesh Deshmukh, M.D.

Colon and rectal cancers are curable with early diagnosis and treatment, however they are also the most common causes of cancer-related deaths.

Virtually all colorectal cancers begin in growths in the colon, called polyps. Although the causes of polyps and cancers are not known, a diet high in fat and meat increases the risk of developing both conditions.

Less than 10 percent of colon cancers occur as a result of heredity. One form of inherited colon cancer, called familial polyposis, may be detected by a genetic test. Other inherited colon cancers can be detected by examination of the colon.

The majority of colorectal cancers are not inherited and the American Cancer Society recommends that everyone over age 50 be screened annually. Screening includes a test for blood in the stool and periodic sigmoidoscopy (examination of the rectum and sigmoid).

Today the management of colorectal cancer is both surgical and non-surgical. The cancer is diagnosed by colonoscopy and biopsy which involves inserting a flexible instrument (colonoscope) into the rectum and colon to obtain a sample of the cancer. This procedure occurs while the patient is under sedation. Further testing by CAT scan and ultrasonography determines the extent that the cancer has spread.

These cancers are treated by surgical removal. Early cancers are often cured by surgery alone. The treatment of larger, and more advanced, cancers requires surgery combined with chemotherapy and radiation.

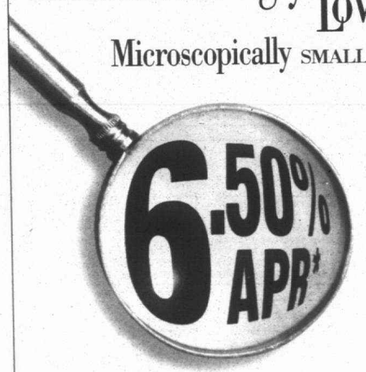

Today, many rectal cancer surgeries do not require the creation of a colostomy ("the bag"). The removal of small rectal cancers does not require incision and only an overnight hospital stay. Larger rectal cancers are removed by abdominal surgery.

In summary, most colon cancers are curable if detected early on, and the best approach to treatment includes surgical and non-surgical measures.

Dr. Ganesh Deshmukh, board certified in colorectal surgery, is a member of the surgical staff and a surgical educator at Oakwood Hospital and Medical Center-Dearborn. He is a clinical assistant professor of surgery at the University of Michigan.

WOMEN OF FAITH

The Women of Faith Joyful Journey Conference will be held 7-10:30 p.m. Friday, June 7, and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, June 8, at Temple Baptist Church, 23800 W. Chicago, Redford.

The conference will feature four of today's most dynamic, influential and motivational women – Patsy Clairmont, Barbara Johnson, Marilyn Meberg and Luci Swindoll – who will merge their unique talents to give messages of inspiration, encouragement and hope.

Noted for their humor, wit and wisdom, each will bring a different view of life that will challenge women to look at their circumstances and experiences in a new perspective.

Advance registration is $45 or $39 each for a group of 10. At-the-door, tickets are $55. To register call 1-800-BOOKS-45.

Faith youth recognized

A group of young people from Faith Lutheran Church in Livonia has been honored by Urban Forestry and Park Reclamation for work in the greening of Detroit.

The church youth and pastor Bart Muller were named Volunteer of the Year by the organization.

The youth raised money and received a matching grant to help with their work. They participated in two plantings in an area just south of Highland Park on the site of a firebombed apartment and in the community. They also worked in the Corktown area near Tiger Stadium.

Among those participating were Jennifer Russo, April Boughton, Melissa Baker, Michelle Dryer, Rob Boughton, Kevin Muller, Jeremy Hornak, Eric Muller, Denise Bryngelson, Michael Heiderbrink, David Nims and Muller.

Teacher celebrates 40 years of service

The members of St. Paul's Lutheran Church and School in Livonia will be celebrating a very special anniversary on Sunday, June 2.

The congregation will gather at 4 p.m. for a special service of thanksgiving in honor of Carolyn Smart who is celebrating her 40th year in the teaching ministry.

Born in Montell, Wis., Smart graduated from the Dr. Martin Luther College in New Ulm, Minn., with a bachelor of arts degree in elementary education. She began her teaching career at St. Peter's Lutheran Church in Plymouth in 1956, leaving in 1961 to accept a call to teach at Grace Lutheran in St. Joseph.

She returned to the area in 1966, when she joined the staff at St. Paul's in Livonia, where she has remained for the last 30 years, now teaching some of the children of the children she first taught at the school.

She has taught grades one through five during her career . She also enjoys music and can often be found at the console of St. Paul's church organ during worship services. She also has helped develop and train various school choirs.

The special service, which will acknowledge Smart's extensive contributions, will be followed by a reception and dinner. For more information, call the church at (313) 261-1360.

Lame explanation aside, I had a story about a water tower. It involved a controversy that bubbled up in my old hometown a long time ago when I was growing up. The way I remember it is that our town had an old water tower, a gray, weather-beaten wooden thing at the north end of town, by the creek, and it was being replaced with a modern, white one outside the town limits.

Whatever, Joe wasn't interested in some old story about underwear on water towers. He wanted to know, basically, what went on under the underwear.

So I turned to him and said, "I'm not sure about water towers, so how about we find out? Together?" I figured it'd take a few minutes, if that, once we got home to look up "water towers" in the encyclopedia.

"Water tower" isn't listed in the encyclopedia. I did find something, a very little something in there about, "elevated holding reservoirs" under "water resources." I gave a watered down version of the encyclopedia information to Joe. He gave me a "that's kind of dumb" look.

I didn't like that look one bit.

So off to the library we want a few days later, right after Tony's Tuesday evening baseball game. We were going to the library anyway to return some books. We got so far as the parking lot. Jack started screaming and baby Steven was fussy and Carmen had homework to do at home and Joe needed a bath so all I managed to do was rush in the library, return books, and rush out. The notion of researching water towers had gone down the drain in a big hurry.

I'd never intended on making this such a big deal, and I was willing to forget all about it, but when Joe crawled in the bath that night, he brought the subject up again. And I couldn't just say to him, "Just leave it alone. I don't know about water towers. They just are there, Joe, and they do whatever they're supposed to and that's that. End of subject." This type of answer would warp him for sure, according to respected child-rearing experts everywhere.

I had to pursue this. To be a good mom, I had to pursue this.

The next morning I called the city's water department. I felt sheepish. These people are busy and not in the business of answering questions a 4-year-old asks his mom that she can't answer because her encyclopedia lacks information and her children are too noisy or wet or tired to bring in the library on a Tuesday night. But guess what? My question and I were treated with great respect. I learned so much and once my phone conversation concluded I told Joe everything.

I was extremely impressed with myself for having gone the extra mile, having answered my children honestly and accurately and respectfully. The experts would applaud. I'd done my job and done it well. My child would be so much better for it.

My child, it turns out, responded with, "Jack squished a Pop Tart into the carpet while you were on the phone. Can I play on the swings now?"

TOWNSHIP OF CANTON

CHANGES ARE MADE IN DETERMINATIONS OF THE TOWNSHIP OF CANTON, WAYNE COUNTY, MICHIGAN, BASE (1% ANNUAL CHANCE) FLOOD ELEVATIONS UNDER THE NATIONAL FLOOD INSURANCE PROGRAM.

On September 2, 1981, the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) identified Special Flood Hazard Areas in the Township of Canton, Michigan, through issuance of a Flood Insurance Rate Map.

The Associate Director for Mitigation, has determined that modification of the elevations of the flood having a 1% chance of occurrence in any given year (base flood) for certain locations in the Township of Canton, is appropriate. The modified base flood elevations amend the FEMA Flood Insurance Rate Map for the community.

This modification to the effected Flood Insurance Rate Map reflects channelization and placement of fill along Tonquish Creek. This revision also deletes the nonexisting roads, Production Drive, Enterprise Drive, and Commerce Drive, and adds the existing Koppernick Road. As a result of the channel modifications, there are increases and decreases in the base flood elevations, 1% and 0.2% annual chance floodplains and floodway. The revised base flood elevations for Tonquish Creek are as follows:

Location	Base Flood Elevations (NGVD)* Effective	Revised
Approximately .6 mile downstream of Lilley Road	None	674
At downstream side of Lilley Road	682	683

* Elevation in feet National Geodetic Vertical Datum

The changes are made pursuant to Section 206 of the Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973 (P.L. 93-234), and are in accordance with the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968, as amended. (Title XIII of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, P.L. 90-448) 42 U.S.C. 4001-4128, and 44 CFR Part 65.

Under the above-mentioned Acts of 1968 and 1973, the Associate Director for Mitigation, must develop criteria for floodplan management. In order for the community to participate in the National Flood Insurance Program, the community will be using the new base flood elevations to administer the floodplain management measures of the National Flood Insurance Program. These modified base flood elevations will also be used to calculate the appropriate flood insurance premium rates for new buildings and their contents.

Upon the second publication of notice of these changes in this paper, any person has 90 days in which he can request through the Chief Executive Officer of the community that the Associate Director for Mitigation reconsider the determination. Any request for reconsideration must be based on knowledge of changed conditions or new scientific or technical data. All interested parties are on notice that until the 90-day period elapses, the Associate Director's determination to modify the base flood elevations may itself be changed.

Any person having knowledge or wishing to comment on these changes should immediately notify:

Adoption agency needs translators

They need help when their child goes to school, or there is a doctor's appointment, or to explain the significance of holiday customs.

"They" are couples who have adopted infants and toddlers from Poland.

The problem: the parents speak English and no Polish; the children speak Polish and no English.

The solution: "We are looking for individuals who would be available for support for these families," said Denise Weiss, adoption director at Orchards Children's Services in Southfield.

The agency, a full-service adoption resource center, is compiling a list of people who are proficient in Polish and make it available to families to call upon when a need arises.'

Individuals who want to volunteer or want more information should call (810) 433-8653 and for either Weiss or Lisa Presley, senior adoption placement specialist.

Weiss and Presley got their first volunteer when they approached Msgr. Stanley Milewski, chancellor of the Orchard Lake Schools for help in appealing to the community.

"Put my name on the list," he said.

Within the past year, Orchards Children's Services has helped five families in the metro Detroit area bring back children from Poland. Currently, the agency is assisting about 10 other couples who are in the process of adopting.

One of the couples is adopting a sibling group of three children, ages 3, 4 and 5.

"It takes a lot of adjustment," said Presley. "When there's a language barrier, it makes things more difficult."

Parents need assistance explaining to a child about the first day in school, for example. Or if there's a medical problem, which is a certainty with these children since all are "certified unhealthy," according to Presley, with ailments ranging from chronic ear infection to a necessity for surgery.

"It would be helpful to the parents to have someone explain to the child in his or her own language just exactly what is going to happen at the doctor's office or in the hospital,' said Weiss.

Every effort is made to keep alive the child's Polish heritage.

"We could use someone who could communicate with both parents and children about Polish customs as well as American traditions," added Weiss.

Has your Mom had a mammogram?

The risk of breast cancer increases with age. It is one of the leading causes of death among women 65 and older. Early detection through regular mammograms could prevent many of these deaths. Yet as women get older, they are less likely to get mammograms. Has your Mom had a mammogram? If not, encourage her to get one. It might be your chance to give her good advice.

Walkathon benefits DRIS

You can help the blind and print-impaired residents of southeastern Michigan "read" The Observer and more than 100 other publications by participating in the annual "Walk with Art" Walkathon Saturday, Sept. 21.

The five-kilometer walk route weaves through the 10th annual Detroit Festival of the Arts site in the University Cultural Center and Detroit's New Center area.

Registration will begin at 8:30 a.m. A parking lot cookout and awards ceremony will follow.

"Walk with Art" will benefit the Detroit Radio Information Service (DRIS), a nonprofit radio reading service for people who can't see, hold or comprehend normal print. DRIS is a subchannel service of Public Radio Station WDET-FM.

"This year, we are especially interested in hearing from alumni volunteers and professionals working in the media who started their career by reading for DRIS," said director Kim Walsh.

Forum aims to educate people about psoriasis

It is the estimated the five million Americans living with a lifelong skin condition the National Psoriasis Foundations hopes to reach with its major educational outreach, PSORIASIS CONTROL!

The free public forum is being presented in 10 cities across the country, including the Detroit metropolitan area 6-8 p.m. Monday, June 10, at the Ritz Carlton, 300 Town Center Dr., Dearborn.

"Each year, between 150,000 and 260,000 new cases of psoriasis, are diagnosed," said Gail Zimmerman, executive director of the National Psoriasis Foundation. "And although such a significantly high number of Americans are affected, psoriasis is neither well-known nor well-understood. However, one thing is certain: while there is no cure, more research activity is being done today than ever before and new discoveries are on the way."

PSORIASIS CONTROL! will feature a medical panel, which includes local medical expert Dr. Margaret Douglass, staff physician in Department of Dermatology at Henry Ford Hospital, who will offer an in-depth look at the various types of psoriasis. In addition, a local rheumatologist will provide key information on psoriatic arthritis.

World-renowned authority on dermatology, Dr. John Koo, will discuss standard therapies for psoriasis and their side effects, as people must change from one therapy to another as their condition requires.

Koo, director of the Psoriasis Treatment Center and vice-chairman of the Department of Dermatology at the University of California, San Francisco Medical Center, also will provide friendly advice on "How to be a Partner with Your Dermatologist." He will emphasize how keeping control over the psoriasis enables a person to stay active and independent.

Tom Gilbert, a member of the NPF Board of Trustees and active member, will present significant information about what the NPF is doing to advance research and public understanding. Gilbert also will be on hand to discuss his personal experiences with psoriasis.

Following a question-and-answer session attendees will have the opportunity for one-on-one conversations with the speakers. There also will be refreshments and giveaways at the end of the program.

Psoriasis is a chronic skin disease that affects from 1-3 percent of the population in the United States. Its cause is unknown. While there is evidence that the disease is inherited, there does not seem to be a specific hereditary pattern. It may skip one or more generations, then reappear.

Psoriasis seems to be most common among Caucasians and people of East African descent. Although it usually develops between the ages of 15 and 35, it can appear at any age. Males and females are equally affected.

There are several types of psoriasis. Psoriasis vulgaris, or plaque psoriasis, is most common. Other, less common forms of the disease are pustular, characterized by blisters of pus; guttate, which is most commonly seen in children and adolescents and is characterized by drop-like lesions; inverse, which develops where there are folds of skin, such as the armpits and genitals; and erythrodermic, which takes a number of forms, but usually appears as a periodic, widespread reddening of the skin.

The course of the disease varies. Patients may experience periods of improvement or flare-ups. The disease may go into remission or it may worsen. Psoriatic arthritis, which usually affects the joints of the fingers and toes, develops in about 10 percent of psoriasis sufferers.

Although there is no cure for psoriasis, treatment is available to alleviate symptoms and make patients more comfortable. The choice of therapy depends on factors, such as the type and severity of psoriasis and the risk of side effects. More than one approach may be used, and the clinician may periodically redesign the treatment regimen depending on the patient's response.

Maybury Park and Farm offer family activities

Families looking for things to do can find them at Maybury State Park and State Farm during June.

Located on Eight Mile Road, just east of Beck Road in Northville Township, the farm will offer its monthly story time at 11 a.m. Saturday, June 1, and 3 p.m. Sunday, June 2.

The story time will be in the Farm Demonstration Building. The topic will be "Farm Pets" and will include stories and a short craft activity.

Families are also invited to gather at the Maybury Pond 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, June 8, for family fishing as part of Michigan's annual Free Fishing Weekend.

Park personnel will demonstrate fishing techniques and equipment at the dam on the pond service road. Some equipment and supplies will be available for fishing, but participants are encouraged to bring their own.

The farm also will be celebrating National Dairy Month with its Dairy Day program 1-3 p.m. Saturday, June 15. Hands-on activities will demonstrate how some dairy products are made.

Maybury State Park is open 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily. Farm hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. A state park motor vehicle permit is required. For more information, call (810) 349-8390.

Summer Festivals

MUSIC ROUND-UP FOR ALL EARS

By Christina Fuoco
Staff Writer

Weep not that the Lollapalooza Festival is skipping the Detroit area this year for the first time in the festival's six-year history; there's plenty of other music to be heard this summer.

Pine Knob opened May 16 with Bob Dylan, and offers a summer full of pop, rock and country acts. The key to attending shows this year is to buy tickets early. Shows like the H.O.R.D.E. (Horizons of Rock Developing Everywhere) Festival, Dave Matthews Band, and Hootie and the Blowfish are already sold out.

Changes to the 15,000-person capacity venue include an expanded waterfall, repainted pavilion, and repaved/recurbed west parking lot. This summer's main addition is The Knob Knook, an open-air lounge inside of the east entrance.

"It's a nicer place to come in ahead of time and sit and wait for people or have a drink. We're trying to make the outdoor experience even more pleasant. Pine Knob has always had a great atmosphere. Once the weather finally gets warm, it's great to go out under the stars and enjoy the atmosphere," explained Connie Marshall, events coordinator for Pine Knob.

The Palace Sports and Entertainment, which runs Pine Knob and The Palace, is using Meadow Brook Music Festival on the Oakland University campus in Rochester for about 25 shows this year ranging from the Gin Blossoms and Goo Goo Dolls to the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. The season at Meadow Brook opens Tuesday, July 2, with Joan Armatrading.

"We have a lot of diversity this summer," said Hugh Lombardi, executive director for the three venues. "One thing that we're real happy with is we expanded our DSO schedule. Last year we did four events, this year in weekends we're doing six events. We're real excited about that."

a replacement for Lollapalooza this year. WHYT (96.3) is working on its second "Planetfest" while WRIF is planning "Artfest" at Pine Knob in early August. CIMX (88.7) "89X" will host its fifth birthday bash at 1 p.m. Friday, June 21, at the Phoenix Plaza Amphitheatre, 10 Water St., Pontiac, with the Screaming Trees – one of the Lollapalooza main stage bands – Sloan, Girls Against Boys, Jale, Triple Fast Action and Elephant Ear. Tickets are $8.90 for the all-ages show.

CIMX's sister station CIDR (93.9) "The River" has scheduled its first "Riverfest" for 1 p.m. Sunday, June 23, also at the Phoenix Plaza Amphitheatre. Scheduled for Pine Knob in mid-July, the "Warped Tour" features "extreme sports" stars and skateboarder bands. Groups scheduled to appear throughout the tour, although not necessarily at Pine Knob, are Bad Religion, No FX, Pennywise, Rocket From The Crypt, and The Suicide Machines. Ticket prices and bands will be announced soon.

OK, those who just have to see Metallica, Screaming Trees, Psychotica, Rancid, and Soundgarden can travel to Indianapolis' Deer Creek on Tuesday, July 2, Columbus, Ohio, on Wednesday, July 3, Barre, Ontario, on Saturday, July 6, or Quebec City on Monday, July 8, to catch Lollapalooza. Keep in mind that lodging near Lollapalooza sites is hard to find after the bands, crew members, vendors, and other participants book their rooms. Local boys Sponge, whose sophomore effort "Wax Ecstatic" is due out Tuesday, July 2, on Columbia, and Ruby are confirmed to perform on the second stage.

Dubbed "chickapalooza" by males, the "Stripped" multimedia concert showcases some of the most revered female singer/songwriters. Canadian songstress Sarah McLachlan, ex-'til tuesday singer Aimee Mann, Lisa Loeb, Patti Smith, and Paula Cole round out the line up set for Pine Knob Music Theatre at 7 p.m. Friday, June 7. Tickets are $35 for Superfan seating, $24.50 for pavilion seating, and $15 for lawn.

Another heir apparent is the "Warped Tour," held last year at the Phoenix Plaza Amphitheatre. Scheduled for Pine Knob in mid-July, the "Warped Tour" features "extreme sports" stars and skateboarder bands. Groups scheduled to appear throughout the tour, although not necessarily at Pine Knob, are Bad Religion, No FX, Pennywise, Rocket From The Crypt, and The Suicide Machines. Ticket prices and bands will be announced soon.

OK, those who just have to see Metallica, Screaming Trees, Psychotica, Rancid, and Soundgarden can travel to Indianapolis' Deer Creek on Tuesday, July 2, Columbus, Ohio, on Wednesday, July 3, Barre, Ontario, on Saturday, July 6, or Quebec City on Monday, July 8, to catch Lollapalooza. Keep in mind that lodging near Lollapalooza sites is hard to find after the bands, crew members, vendors, and other participants book their rooms. Local boys Sponge, whose sophomore effort "Wax Ecstatic" is due out Tuesday, July 2, on Columbia, and Ruby are confirmed to perform on the second stage.

Original programming

The Ann Arbor Summer Festival, held at the Power Center, wins the prize for the most original programming. Pop singer Lisa Loeb ("Stay" and "Do You Sleep?") will perform with an orchestra of high school and local professionals led by her brother Ben at 8 p.m. Saturday, June 29. (Ticket prices range from $33-$23.) Her label Geffen Records is expected to come into town to film the event, said festival spokeswoman Rachel Francisco.

"The Sisters of Glory' concert is another one of the unique things. Ce Ce Peniston is a pop star and Albertina Walker is a gospel star and they come together to celebrate gospel. They do it in different styles. They'll do a country gospel song then something traditional, then maybe an R&B song. That's a really exciting one," Francisco explained.

R&B diva Thelma Houston, Phoebe Snow and Lois Walden join Walker and Peniston for the show. Johnny Cash, Soupy Sales, Maynard Ferguson, and The Mavericks are also slated to appear during the three-week long festival.

Besides The Mavericks, a number of country acts will visit the area during the summer. Country star Holly Dunn chose an intimate venue for her Detroit-area summer show. She'll play the Lakes-Area Hoedown, an all-day family event hosted by the Multi-Lakes Conservation Association, at 1 p.m. Saturday, June 8, at the Multi-Lakes club, 3860 Newton Road, Walled Lake. The $10 tickets are available at Ticketmaster outlets or by calling (810) 645-6666 or (810) 363-9109.

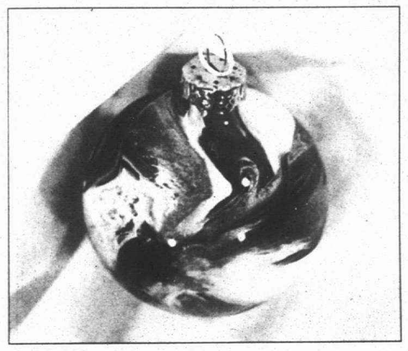

Recent winner of the ACM's "New Male Vocalist" award, Bryan White, returns to the area to play the Michigan TasteFest on Thursday, July 4. The TasteFest menu will serve up a diverse group of dishes including Stewart Francke, the subdudes, Blue Rodeo, Duke Tumatoe and Kool and the Gang. All the concerts are free.

"It's something that really started around food. A lot of people are going to be down here so we might as well give them some entertainment. You're not going to see Bob Seger here, but you'll see up and coming groups and bands ... long-time favorites that maybe don't play Pine Knob or places like that."

The Frog Island Music Festival hops from New Orleans to jazz to blues music during its three-day event Friday, June 21-Sunday, June 23, at the Frog Island in Ypsilanti. Headliners scheduled to appear are Steve Riley and the Mamou Playboys, Al Rapone and Zydeco Express, The Billy Harper Quintet, Eddie Shaw and the Wolf Gang, and James Cotton. Tickets are $15 for Friday, and $15 for Saturday in advance; $18 for each day at the door. Two-day advance purchase pass is $25. Children aged 12 and younger are free. Call (313) 763-TKTS, (810) 645-6666 or (313) 487-2229.

Most of organizers of this summer's festivals stress that their events have "something for everyone." Glance over the list and it's probably true. We're Lollapalooza-less but we'll be nevertheless entertained.

Nankin Mills will benefit from craft show

LINDA ANN CHOMIN

Craft shows are abundant at this time of year, but the Friends of Nankin Mills think of their June 2 event as a way to fund the preservation of our past. From noon to 5 p.m. Sunday more than 20 crafters will exhibit their wares next to the baseball diamonds across the parkway from Nankin Mills, 33175 Ann Arbor Trail and Edward Hines Drive in Westland.

After the show closes, the festivities continue with a country and western concert, co-sponsored by the Westland Cultural Society, at 6 p.m. Proceeds from the craft show, produced in cooperation with Wayne County Parks System, will help fund an interpretive center inside the mill which recently underwent $1.5 million worth of renovations and expansion.

For those of us who grew up in the Observer area, the Nankin Mills Nature Center is the era we remember. Naturalist Mary Ellsworth introduced many of us to the wonderful world of animals. It was a place to see and learn about injured raccoons and deer.

Kathy Myers savors the history of the grist mill two doors down from her Westland home. Her grandfather Floyd Bassett sold Henry Ford the mill in 1918. Built in 1863, the year Henry Ford was born, it is the second mill built on the site. The first mill is said to have been a hiding place for escaped slaves traveling on the Underground Railroad.

Myers' father worked as a yardman and watchman at the mill for Henry Ford. The craft show, for which Myers volunteers many hours, is one of two fund-raisers to help fund the interpretive center. Formed in 1989, the Friends of Nankin Mills, due in part to these fundraisers, were instrumental in bringing about renovations of the mill that housed the nature center from 1957 to 1980. Wayne County Parks acquired the mill from Henry Ford in 1948. Today, the park systems' offices are in the new addition to the mill.

"I became a member of the Friends of Nankin Mills six years ago after I saw how the mill was going to pieces and the roof was falling in," said Myers, who is co-chair of the craft show and vice president of Friends. "Mary Ellsworth was a good friend of our family. Of course, in this modern age of technology, there will be computers instead of a naturalist so the kids will learn hands-on about the history of the area surrounding the mill along with the animals and plants in the area."

Friends president Denise Johnston says the interpretive center's history timeline will begin with Native Americans, continue on through to the arrival of European settlers followed by the years when Henry Ford turned the Civil War-era mill into one of his water-powered village industries. The mill has a lot of history. Nankin Mills became the center of a community called Pike's Peak that grew up in the 1850s. One of the earliest settlers was Marcus Swift, an abolitionist, so outspoken his house was burned down by people who disagreed with him.

"Nankin Mills was where Ford and Thomas Edison experimented in the 1920s with fossil fuel and steam, and built the first battery to generate electricity for Ford's car parts plant during times when the river dried up," said Denise Johnston.

"The time line will continue to where we are today, some of the problems today. It will heighten the awareness that we're also responsible for the condition of the river. There will be a hopeful look at the future which involves all of us," said Denise Johnston.

"A lot of animals, here when the Native American tribes used to meet on the banks of the river, have ceased to exist. Let's not let anymore animals disappear and save what we've got."

The show will feature a variety of crafts including terra-cotta wind chimes and bird feeders, wreaths, wood shelves and quilt racks, and three dimensional paper sculpture by Hazel Owens of Garden City. Jill Zimmer of Westland will be selling her Christmas bulbs made by swirling acrylic paints inside glass ornaments. The result is a marbled effect. Zimmer, who earned a bachelor of fine arts from Eastern Michigan University, will also have earrings. Prices for the ornaments are $10 each or $3 for $25.

If you're looking for a traditional Raggedy Ann doll made from muslin an with embroidered face, don't miss Maureen Pomaranski and Beverly Jovan's booth. The two Livonia crafters will be selling five sizes of the dolls from 10 to 36 inches in height priced between $15 and $50. A heart on the doll's chest says "I love you." Pomaranski and Jovan will personalize dolls with a child's name and birth date for gift giving. According to Pomaranski many women buy the dolls for themselves.

There will also be Raggedy Andy dolls. Pomaranski says, the work that goes into the dolls "is a labor of love."

FINE ARTS

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

Looking for designer clothes for your cement goose? From ceramic replicas of historic Michigan homes and buildings to metal sculpture and pottery for the garden, the 20th annual Livonia Arts & Crafts Festival, on the grounds of Greenmead Historical Village, has something for everyone including entertainment by Blooper the Clown, jazz and blues fusion by Blue Metro, and ethnic music by two Ecuadorian groups.

"It's a fun afternoon to come with the family," said Stephanie Skaggs, festival co-chair with Dave Gerczak.

"Besides being an art show, it's a festival with sand art for the kids and seven or eight food booths with hot dogs, ice cream, lemonade, roasted almonds and bottled water," added Gerczak. "This is going to be the biggest and best arts and crafts fair ever. Close to 400 artists applied for the show. We tried to select the cream of the crop."

Presented by the Livonia Arts Commission, the juried show features more than 225 artists and crafters from Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Florida, Missouri, and Maryland.

Marianne Akers' booth is always a favorite spot with its angels, Old World Santas, carolers, snowmen, shop-till-you-drop doll, witches, and Boo Kids (dressed as ghosts). The innovative crafter recycles children clothes and shoes purchased at garage sales, thrift and resale shops to make the life-size little people. The soft sculpture characters are sure to create smiles at the 50 shows Akers will do this spring and summer.

"We have a whole new line of Santas and 15 new angels including a blue jean angel and a gardening angel in a work dress carrying a basket of flowers and vegetables," Marianne Akers said.

Akers' little people are so popular that an army of ghosts and witches awaiting shipment to the mail order catalog Pot Pourri frequently stand in the dining room of her Livonia home. Prices for the little people range from $6.50 to $125 with most costing between $20-$25.

Fair goers seek out Rick Denomme's booth for photographs of wolves, birds, and wildlife. The Northville resident spent the entire month of January in Africa. Look for his photos of cheetah, lions and giraffe captured on the plains of Kenya and Tanzania. Denomme watched a baby giraffe being born there.

"It was so exciting. We watched the baby giraffe take his first steps. It took an hour for him to stand," said Denomme who works with his wife Connie as a team in their wildlife photography business.

Twice a year they travel to locations around the world including British Columbia for killer whales, Montana for wolves and lynx, and Alaska for grizzly bear.

"It's not as easy as it looks," said Denomme who spent four days watching one bear to catch him with mouth open about to snag a fish for lunch. Basically a self-taught photographer, Denomme prints all of the images. He will do 25 shows in eight states this year. His best seller, by the way, are the wolves. Prices start at $12 for a matted 8 by 10 inch to $200 for a framed, ready to hang 24 by 30 inch. Preview Denomme's wildlife photography at his one man show at Livonia City Hall June 3-27.'

Nancy Guido's handmade ceramic tiles, similar to those made by the historic Pewabic Pottery, are sure to be popular with fair visitors for use as accent pieces in home decorating. A member of the Village Potter's Guild in Plymouth where she teaches the art of making tiles, Guido recently did a backsplash for a friend.

"The tiles are totally functional. You can put them in counter tops or frame them for the wall as art work in the kitchen," said Guido, who earned a Bachelor of Fine Arts from Eastern Michigan University. "There are so many ways the tiles can be used."

While most of the tiles feature Celtic designs, her latest storybook tiles bear the image of a bunny reminiscent of Beatrix Potter. Prices: $5 for a 4-inch tile to $75 for 8 by 10-inch storybook tiles.

Just in time for the art fair, Guido is working on tables with Dennis Magyar, who makes wrought iron furniture. Magyar's 16-inch round table will be inset with Guido's handmade tiles.

Maygar, also an exhibitor in the show, will offer large wall mirrors, tables with inset glass tops, candlestick and platter holders, patio tables, lamps and benches. He began making the wrought iron furniture five years ago. In 1994, he won First Place in the metal category at the LAC festival. While this is the only show he will do this year, work from Maygar's Iron Den is on display at the Countryside Craft and Antique Mall in Walled Lake. Prices: $13-$325.

Fine crafts in the show include pottery by Kathy Sandberg of Plymouth and weavings by Nanette Wiecek of Canton. A member of the Village Potter's Guild, Sandberg will exhibit vases, large bird baths, mirrors, new chip n' dip serving dish designs, and a flowing abstract sculpture of a female figure. Prices: $9-$125.

Wiecek, an elementary teacher in Wayne Westland Schools, will bring table runners, place mats, throws, pillow and shawls woven on one of her four floor looms. A weaver for 25 years, she was inspired to learn the craft by her 99 year old grandmother. Prices: $22-$60.

"I grew up in Kansas where everyone quilted and knitted. I was five when I made my first quilt. Originally, I got into spinning and dyeing wool after listening to my grandmother's stories about washing out her wool on the rocks in the river," said Wiecek.

Observer area artists and crafters in the show include Livonia residents Peggy Lewis, basketry; Debbie Krompatic, porcelain dolls; Rose Stebbins, florals; Canton: Paul Kowalczuk, wood; Charlotte Potes, textiles; Marge McVicar, country dolls, bears, cows and rabbits; Louis Winek, Wood; Cheryl McCleay, air brush clothing; Farmington: Bob Mineweaser, fine wood furniture and toys; Dearborn: Paul Gilbert, antique photos of Michigan.

This is the art's commission's sole fund raiser. Proceeds go toward producing the Music Under the Stars series in summer and the lunchtime concerts

SHOW BOASTS ORIGINAL ART AT AFFORDABLE PRICES

Three Cities Art Club holds its annual spring art exhibit May 31-June 2 at Canton Center Library, 1200 Canton Center Road, south of Cherry Hill. Hours are 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and noon to 4 p.m. Sunday.

The 45 piece show was juried by Detroit artist Lin Baum, who teaches a portrait drawing and painting classes at Schoolcraft College in Livonia. Mediums in the show include watercolor, acrylic, oil, colored pencil, pastel, monoprint, and traditional marbling on Chinese and Japanese papers.

"The show represents the fine arts that local artists do. It's affordable art that you can purchase instead of prints," said club secretary Susan Argiroff.

Founded in 1957, originally began with members from Plymouth, Northville and Livonia. The club meets the first Monday of the month at 7 p.m. in the Plymouth Township Hall on Ann Arbor Road at Lilley. For more information call Susan Argiroff, (313) 422-8106.

Former Cult singer finds peace in alternative music

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Testosterone rock got a little old for Ian Astbury during his years as lead singer for the anthemic rock band the Cult.

"I wanted to change the band into a more progressive band," Astbury said via telephone from his California home.

"I felt my roots were back in the alternative scene. My friends were people in the alternative community rather than the rock community.'... I tried to pull the Cult in that direction."

For the 1994 self-titled Cult album Astbury recorded the song "The Witch" which was based more on rhythm than lead guitar. Astbury saw the Cult going in that direction but guitarist Billy Duffy wouldn't have any of it. After a fistfight in Brazil, the singer called it quits.

"I didn't want to do (the hit single) "She Sells Sanctuary" anymore. I wanted to do something real, organic and authentic so I came back to LA, got on a plane and went to England to see a lot of my friends."

The reactions he got confirmed that he did the right thing.

"They said, 'Glad you got away from that. Good luck to you,'" Astbury recalled.

As a result, Astbury formed the Holy Barbarians, an alternative rock band that takes a more organic approach to music and uses the ingredients found in "The Witch." Long gone are Astbury's trademark wailing, long hair and overt sexuality.

"Songs are the marrow of this band. The creation of songs, in the authentic sense of the word, is what we aspire to. There's no aspiration to be any hard-rock gonzoid," said Astbury, the 34-year-old father of Dusty James, 3, and Che, 1.

The songs found on the Holy Barbarian's debut "Cream" (Reprise) reflect the "real" Astbury, not the one that Cult fans created in their minds.

"The sexual harassment I used to get (with the Cult) was insane. They wanted me or they wanted the pinup of me. I'd start talking about things I was into like (beat poet Jack) Kerouac but they wanted me to be a rock male bimbo - not someone who's completely obsessed with Kerouac."

Don't wait around for too many Cult songs at the Holy Barbarian's show Thursday, May 30, at St. Andrew's Hall in Detroit.

"I'm very conscious of the history of music. Some guy leaves the band and goes off and starts his solo career: Sometimes it's quite pathetic. Some guys get it all wrong like Robert Plant. All of a sudden he goes out in stone-washed jeans and a bad haircut and recreates the songs that he'd just been doing. It's a real cheap, shallow, self-parodic type of thing. They can never shake off the ghost of the previous incarnation."

Astbury said he hopes to be successful at his solo outing like Lou Reed after he left the Velvet Underground and Iggy Pop in his post-Stooges days.

"I'd rather think of myself in that school than do something third rate. The only Cult song we do is 'The Witch.' Some Cult fans will be disappointed in that, but that's the way it is. This is not the Cult."

The Holy Barbarians and Biff Naked play an 18 and older show Thursday, May 30, at St. Andrew's Hall, 431 E. Congress, Detroit. For more information, call (313) 961-MELT.

Barenaked vocalist geeks on computers

CHRIISTINA FUOCO

Ed Robertson, vocalist/guitarist for the quirky alternapop band Barenaked Ladies, is a self-proclaimed "computer geek."

"The first thing I did when I got up was I downloaded my e-mail," Robertson said. "We've got lap-tops on the road with us. As a touring musician, we don't have a lot of time. Sitting down, writing a letter, closing the envelope, and putting on a stamp really does take a lot of time. I can answer 20 pieces of e-mail in half an hour where it would take me four hours to do that by snail mail."

The next logical step for the Barenaked Ladies was to release a CD-ROM which it did earlier this year. The "Shoe Box" EP contained video clips and selection from all three of the band's albums.

"We just switched to new management. Nettwerk is a multimedia developer and we had a keen interest in developing something like that. It was cool because we could make something in house that was of really good quality with tons of information. We could put something out that wasn't $28.99 because we hadn't paid some development company anything to do it for us."

The single "Shoe Box" is found on the November released "Born on a Pirate Ship," the band's first release since the departure of keyboardist Andy Creeggan. As a consequence the album has a more guitar-driven sound.

"From the songwriting to the actual recording, the whole process was much more collaborative this time around," said the Ladies' lead singer Steven Page. "We seemed to come together in a new way as a quartet, and got back to what it is that we really enjoy doing. Playing live has always been a key component of the band and what we wanted this time around was to get some of that live energy on tape."

Fans of the Barenaked Ladies can see the band live at 7:30 p.m. Saturday, June 1, at Pine Knob Music Theatre in Independence Township. Tickets are $25 pavilion and $12.50 lawn. For more information, call (810) 377-0100. The Barenaked Ladies' official World Wide Web site is at http://www.repriserec.com/BarenakedLadies. • Family Funktion, the acid jazz party held Wednesdays at Alvin's in Detroit, just finished celebrating its first anniversary with guest DJs and special promotions. Acid jazz is a collage of soul, jazz, funk, R&B and hip-hop music.

The night was started by a collection of DJs – Papa Ron, Brian Gillespie, Munk, and Jim Stone – who go by the name Family Funktion. Knowing that clubgoers "get sick of things very easily" the group spices up the weekly event with guest DJs, eclectic music, giveaways, food, and CD release parties.

"We try to keep the program very fresh and innovative. It's not like you could come on a Wednesday and hear the same songs as last week. That's what keeps a lot of people coming back. Everyone spins different and plays different stuff," Stone said.

Bands like the Brand New Heavies, Jamiroquai, Fugees, and The Roots, are on the set list with salsa and up-tempo Latin music thrown in. As a testament to Family Funktion's credibility, former Disposable Heroes of Hiphoprisy singer Michael Franti, currently of Spearhead, and soul singer Omar have stopped by to visit.

Family Funktion is held from 9 p.m.-2 a.m. Wednesdays at Alvin's, 5756 Cass Ave., Detroit. Cover charge is $5.

• The British pop band Pulp is popular in England because of its music, but here in the United States it's another story. Most Americans first heard of Pulp when lead singer/lyricist Jarvis Cocker jumped on stage with Michael Jackson during an Brit awards ceremony (the Brtish Grammys) and was accused of assaulting children. Charges were never filed but the legacy lingers on.

"I guess that's been the most annoying thing about the whole affair," bassist Steve Mackey said. "From an outsider's point of view, it looked like a publicity thing. But it wasn't."

"It's not a very good way to be known."

The bombastic, 13-year-old band plays St. Andrew's Hall, 431 E. Congress, Detroit on Friday, May 31. Cocker's erratic behavior is worth the price of admission – $8.50 in advance; $10 at the door. Doors open at 6:30 p.m. for the all-ages show. For more information, call (313) 961-MELT.

'Horseman' delivers romance

BY JOHN MONAGHAN
SPECIAL WRITER

"The Horseman on the Roof" has a mix of romance, adventure, beauty, and economy of style rarely achieved since Douglas Fairbanks and the silent era. Even moviegoers who usually cringe at the mere thought of subtitles will be swept away by this engaging French epic.

The year is 1832 when a dashing young cavalry officer (Olivier Martinez) embarks on a treacherous journey to his native Italy. Though hunted by Austrian assassins, he returns the kindness of a spirited noblewoman (Juliette Binoche) by helping her reunite with her husband.

If it sounds a bit like one of those tacky romance novels, then so be it. With this and his recent adaptation of "Cyrano," director Jean-Paul Rappeneau proves himself unabashedly romantic, serving up the kind of passion that the Merchant-Ivory period films often cry for.

"Horseman" also has a macabre side, setting the action amidst the plague-ridden French countryside where cholera has taken its toll. Red-coated soldiers keep the populace under quarantine and burn the dead on funeral pyres — that is if the eyeball-plucking crows don't get to them first.

Newcomer Martinez shines in his role as the perfect gentleman. He looks away when his traveling companion lifts her skirt to don wool stockings. He gallantly allows himself to be arrested when she ends up behind bars.

She's no sissy either. Played by Juliette Binoche (star of "Red" and France's most captivating young actress today), she proves an excellent horsewoman and handy at firing a musket. She marvels at his efficiency and manners, the product of the army's discipline and his mother's good grooming.

Maybe the foreign subtitles make the whole thing easier to swallow, but I liked "Horseman" far better than the schmaltzy "Last of the Mohicans" of a few years back. Though both have the sort of love-at-all-costs quality, this one showed some melodramatic restraint.

Even in its swashbucking swordfights and running leaps on horseback, the movie has a lack of showiness. There are also genuinely funny moments when she visits acquaintances who fall all over themselves until they find out that she has been in proximity of the plague.

Cinematographer Thierry Arbogast makes ample use of the wide screen, painting powerful images in muted colors and silhouettes. So great are some of these shots that the subtitles even move over to one side so as not to compromise the composition.

For the first hour-and-a-half, "Horseman" has the kind of repressed sexual energy that seems almost standard in films of this type. Things get a little weird near the end, however, in a love scene of sorts whose explicit nudity and bizarre situation make it among the most perversely titillating ever filmed. Ah, the French.

Playing exclusively at the Main Art Theatre in Royal Oak, "The Horseman on the Roof" returns my faith in things many of us hold dear: true love, chivalry, and French cinema, all of which have been noticeably absent from moviehouses in recent years.

SCREEN SCENE

BIRMINGHAM THEATRE
211 South Woodward, Birmingham. Call (810) 644-FILM for information. ($6.50; $4.25 matinees; $4.25 seniors/children under 12)
• "Mission: Impossible" (USA - 1996). Tom Cruise and Jon Voigt play super-secret agents involved in a deadly hunt for a missing computer disc in this big-screen version of the sixties
• "The Postman" (Italy - 1995). The Oscar-nominated tale of love and friendship between an exiled poet and his postman.
• "Last Summer in the Hamptons" (USA - 1996). Henry Jaglom ("Eating") directs Victoria Foyt, Viveca Lindfors, Roddy McDowall, and Martha Plimpton in a celebration of love, art, and family life surrounding a matriarch and her three-generation theatre clan.

MAGIC BAG THEATRE
• "Three Stooges Festival" (USA - 1996). 9 p.m. June 5. A tribute to the slapstick trio with five of their original shorts comedies.

MAIN ART THEATRE
118 N. Main Street at 11 Mile, Royal Oak. Films play through at least Thursday, unless noted otherwise. Call (810) 542-0180 for information and showtimes. ($6.50; $4 students, seniors and matinee; $3 twilight)
• "I Shot Andy Warhol" (USA - 1996). Lili Taylor stars as Valerie Solanas, the real-life wacko feminist who tried to put a slug in the Pop Art icon.
• "Horseman on the Roof" (France - 1995). An epic adventure, set in 1832, about an officer and a woman who together face an unrelenting epidemic that reveals both the weaknesses and strengths of mankind. Directed by Jean-Paul Rappeneau ("Cyrano").
• "Cold Comfort Farm" (Britain - 1996). In this wicked comedy from director John Schlesinger, a sophisticated young Englishwoman in the 1930s suddenly finds herself orphaned and with no fortune. Starts Friday.

MAPLE THEATRE
4135 W. Maple, Bloomfield. All titles play through at least next Thursday, unless noted otherwise. Call (810) 855-9090 for information. ($5.75; $2.95 twilight)
• "Fargo" (USA - 1996). In this sixth film from Joel and Ethan Coen, Frances McDormand plays a pregnant sheriff investigating a bizarre murder case in the Upper Minnesota snowbelt. Dryer and less satisfying than the Coens' other pictures, but still one of the most unique and uncompromising films of the year.
• "Mission: Impossible" (USA - 1996). See Birmingham Theatre listing above.

REDFORD THEATRE
17360 Lahser (at Grand River), Detroit. Call (313) 537-2560 for information. ($2.50)
• "My Gal Sal" (USA - 1956). 8 p.m. May 31; 2, 8 p.m. June 1 (organ overture begins a half hour before showtime). Rita Hayworth and Victor Mature star in this typically lavish Technicolor musical set in the Gay '90s.

STAR JOHN R
John R at 14 Mile, Madison Heights. Call (810) 585-2070 for showtimes. ($6.50; $4.25 matinee/twilight)
• "Ghost in the Shell" (Japan - 1995). In this sample of feature-length Japanese animation, director Mamoru Oshii ("Akira") offers a female heroine with lots of action. Definitely not for kids.

STATE THEATRE
2115 Woodward, Detroit. Call (313) 961-5450 for information. ($1)
• "The Road Warrior" (Australia - 1981). 9 p.m. June 3. Mel Gibson reprises his role as Mad Max, the ex-policeman of the not-so-distant future who takes on a group of desert pirates. Often considered the best of the three-film series, it offers amazing stunts, car chases, and a performance that further insured Gibson's career as an international superstar.

DINING

Sophisticated Tribute offers ambiance, fine food

BY JUDITH DONER BERNE
SPECIAL WRITER

It might seem an unlikely place for a restaurant that aims to take its place among the top restaurants in the country.

Tribute, opened earlier this month, is tucked between a Marathon service station and Best Western hotel on 12 Mile Road in Farmington Hills on the site of the former JW's Saloon.

But once inside, you enter another world.

In an eclectic setting worthy of nearly as much attention as the food, Chef Takashi Yagihashi (plucked from Ambria in Chicago) and manager Mickey Bakst (persuaded to leave Tapawingo in Ellsworth) are overtly out "to create the most upscale, sophisticated restaurant Detroit has ever seen."

That is the charge of the Wisne family (Progressive Tool) which spent a reported $2 million to develop Tribute on land they own. "It is the Wisne's tribute to food, wine and service," Bakst says.

The restaurant, devised by Victor Saroki & Associates (Birmingham Theatre restoration), combines classical, Art Deco and contemporary furnishing and design elements while the food reflects Chef Takashi's training in classical French, his native Japanese and nouvelle cuisines.

"We want to offer the most innovative, creative food unlike Detroit has seen," the ponytailed, 40-something Bakst said. "It is not so fancy, but full of flavor." Bakst, a veteran restaurateur and Southfield native, is the first to acknowledge it will take awhile to realize their food and service goals.

Tribute
Address: 31425 W. 12 Mile Road, Farmington Hills, (810) 848-1313.
Hours: Dinner only starting at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday-Saturday.
Reservations: Suggested.
Menu: Contemporary French
Prices: Expensive. Major credit cards accepted.
Attire: Business casual to dressed-up.

"It's like putting 12 different hockey players from different teams together," Bakst says. "You can't expect them to perform in a week. It takes time."

Ilene Karson, an inveterate new restaurant-goer, agrees the ingredients are there for an outstanding dining experience.

"I think it's going to be OK," said the West Bloomfield resident, who dined there Saturday night with her husband, Richard, and another couple. "I will go back."

The two men gave rave reviews to the chargrilled steak accompanied by souffle potatoes, trio vegetable puree, wild mushroom, braised endive and reduction of Zinfandel ($30), Karson said.

A rose-hip glazed muscovy duck breast with braised jicama and red cabbage, braised potato, wild rice with tart winter fruits and fricassee of wild mushrooms ($29) was also excellent, although it could have been served warmer.

The chocolate banana dessert, wrapped in a paper-thin pastry shell and accompanied by a dollop of sassafras ice cream, was excellent, Karson said.

Food temperature and service must contend with having to be delivered from the sleek, elongated, lower-level kitchen which soon will host a Chef's Table. The table, which must be reserved in advance, will feature tastings from the menu ($70 per person) plus suggested wines.

Tribute's kitchen is fully visible to guests who descend the staircase to use the stunning restrooms or small dining and garden seating area.

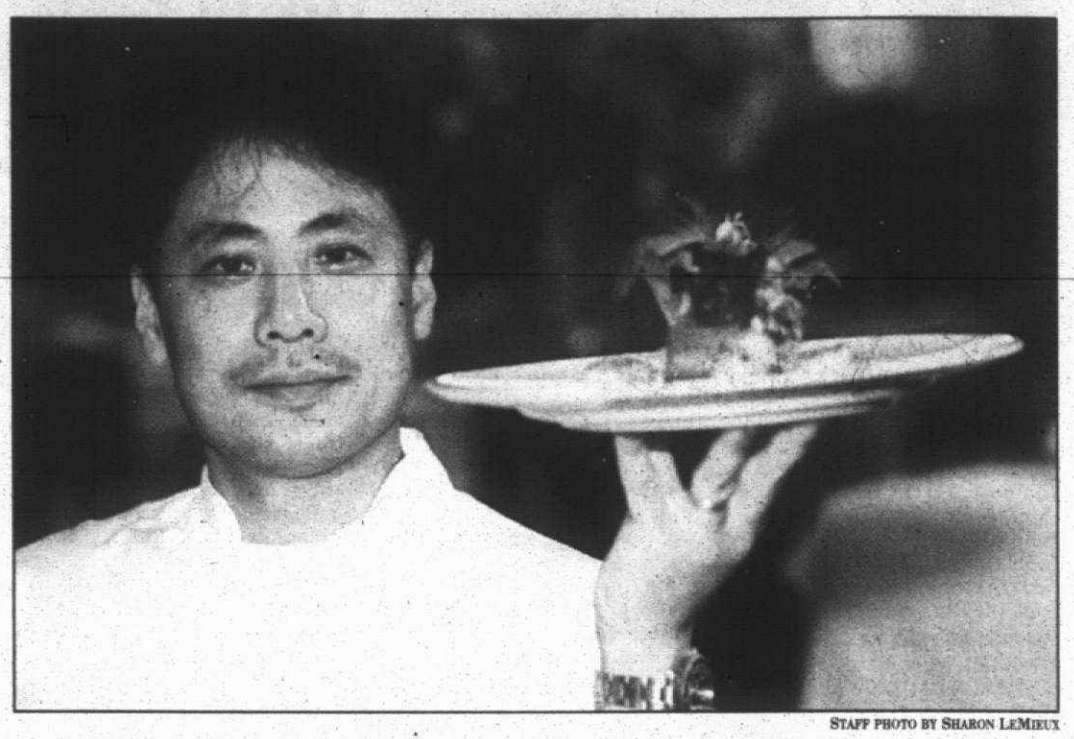

"It's the new concept of people free to see what we're doing," the chef explains. And that includes looking into the glassed-in refrigerator and extensive wine cellars.

Sneak peeks of the kitchen are also available through openings in the floor from the bar above.

Chef Takashi said he was lured from his Ambria post by an opportunity to create fine dining in an atmosphere of fun.

"It's a beautiful restaurant. This is still fine dining with serious food, serious service, but more fun," said the executive chef, who now lives in Beverly Hills with his wife and two young children.

"I don't want stuffy service. I want good service," Bakst confirms. And, "I don't want formal attire in this dining room. It's supposed to be comfortable."

Indeed, the high-ceiling, triangular-windowed dining room lined by asparagus-colored banquettes and overseen by a mural depicting a tribute (get it!) to Ulysses' wife Penelope by West Bloomfield artist Robert Schefman was not lost on William Wolf from Bloomfield Hills.

Wolf, accompanied by his wife Eleanor and another couple, said he was "extremely impressed by the ambiance and the elegance. Even the table settings were unusual."

He started his meal with a salad of hearts of romaine, artichoke and palm, aged goat cheese, water chestnuts and oranges in a sherry vinaigrette ($9) which he said was wonderful.

His steak was great, he said, and their friends claimed the rack of lamb, roasted with sweet garlic and rosemary, saffron black olive cabbage, ratatouille, potato puree and curry-carrot jus ($29) was the best they had ever had.

Wolf had no room for dessert this time. But he should be aware that pastry chef Tanya Fallon and sous chef Tim Voss will be back from their honeymoon shortly.

Rocks gain district semifinals

■ BASEBALL

Ryan Andrzejewski picked up the slack in coach Dale Rumberger's absence, scattering five hits Tuesday to lead Plymouth Salem to a 10-2 victory over Livonia Churchill.

Rumberger missed the game due to kidney pain. He is facing surgery in the near future for the removal of a defective kidney.

The victory put Salem into double digits in wins with a 10-18 record and gave the Rocks a little momentum heading into the state tournament this weekend.

Rumberger said Andrzejewski would pitch the tournament opener Saturday against Livonia Stevenson. Should the Rocks win, Keith Boughner would go in the second game.

"We're in good shape, pitching-wise," Rumberger said. "If we can pick up the ball, we'll be all right. That's been our problem all year long."

Salem piled up eight runs before the game was two innings old. Andrzejewski took it from there, striking out eight, walking two and hitting one batter in seven innings. He also went 2-for-3 with two RBI.

Churchill loaded the bases with nobody out in the first but Andrzejewski struck out two and got the third out on a popup to catcher.

The Rocks then went to work. An error, Kevin Niemiec's double, a Ryan Rumberger double and a single by Andrzejewski made it 3-0.

Niemiec went 3-for-4, scored a pair, drove in two and had a double. Rumberger had two hits, including a double, and drove in two.

"We told them to treat it like it was like a re-start for us," coach Rumberger said, "with the tournament season and everything. And they did."

Salem coach in need of surgery

Plymouth Salem baseball coach Dale Rumberger is facing surgery to remove one of his kidneys in the near future.

"My doctor said he knew it was serious when I told him I couldn't make the baseball game," Rumberger said Tuesday after Salem defeated Livonia Churchill, 10-2, without its coach in attendance.

Rumberger was hospitalized for two days with excruciating pain, but got out of St. Joseph

Madonna's coach leaves job he loves

As trivial as it may sound, every beginning must have an end.

For Madonna University, Mike George was the beginning, the end and all that lay in between in what has become a nationally-prominent baseball program. He transformed a club-level group of walk-ons into a team that challenged for a berth in the NAIA World Series year after year.

Now it's all over. On Tuesday, George gathered what players he could from last season's team, 22 in all, into a small classroom at Madonna and in a short, to-the-point speech, told them he was resigning.

It was not what they expected to hear - that was obvious. Throughout the 10-minute address, only one person made a sound: The man everyone knew as "Skip."

It was a title George relished, and it's something he won't forget.

"Next to the day my dad died, I've never felt worse," George said.

He leaves reluctantly, certainly with sadness. But it was a decision he had to make, and when broken down to its simplest terms, it was the only one he could make.

Financial gain?

Small college athletics is not a money-making proposition. Coaches are part time - or, as Madonna assistant athletic director Bryan Rizzo eloquently described it, the pay is part time, the position is full time.

And that defines George. He put his all into developing the baseball program at Madonna, for a grand total of $10,000 a year.

Until two years ago that was enough, because George worked for the school as director of intramurals. But when Rizzo was hired, that position became one of his titles: sports information director/assistant athletic director/director of intramurals.

For the past two years, George has tried to juggle his finances, tried to make things work. He finally realized he couldn't.

Small college means small pay. It's the way things are.

"I tried to stay on here as long as I can financially," he said. "But I'm 35 now . . . I have to look down the road."

George has accepted a position in management training for Cooker's Restaurant.

It wasn't really what he wanted. He searched for ways to work at the university, where he spent much of his time.

No other choice

But he did not have his college degree, which limited his options.

"I was hoping (the administration) would do something," George said. "It's going to be hard to leave here. My heart and soul went into this program.

"I am somewhat disappointed a position isn't available to me, but I understand it is a business."

It's impossible to downplay what George did for the university through his baseball team. He did not just coach - not hardly. "The easiest part of coaching baseball here was coaching baseball," he said. "That was (comparatively) a no-brainer."

George spent "24 hours a day, 365 days a year" on Madonna baseball. When not recruiting players, he was lining up sponsors or conscripting boosters. Or working on Madonna University Park, the baseball field at the former Livonia Bently HS that George virtually rebuilt.

"I was like a drug addict," he admitted. "I was hooked on baseball. And like a drug addict, I'm sure I'll have my withdrawls."

Disappointed and burned out

He isn't planning on coaching again. At least not in the forseeable future. Part of the reason is the disappointment in leaving the team he built from the ground up, certainly. But, he added, he feels "a bit burned out.

"It is a lot of work. I don't think anyone realizes how much work goes into this. I've been at it for 17 years."

It's equally as difficult to imagine Madonna baseball without him, the guy who started it all and built it, base by base if you will, into a formidable program.

And yet the George era, which always seemed never-ending, has reached its conclusion. But as any philosopher would tell you, it isn't the beginning or the end, or even the length of time between the two, that matters.

Chiefs rout Pioneer

After two straight rough encounters in the state district tournament, Canton went up against an Ann Arbor Pioneer team that could not match its ability. That became apparent by halftime.

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR

Call it a preliminary. After what Plymouth Canton's soccer team went through in the districts, a game like this one was most welcome.

No, it wasn't against a ranked opponent (again). No, there was no last-second heroics, no disputed overtime, no need for breath-taking defensive play.

In fact, Canton keeper Sarah Warnke could probably have gone home early - say midway through the second half - and no one would have noticed. That's how lopsided Canton's 4-0 triumph was over Ann Arbor Pioneer in Wednesday's Class A regional semifinal at Walled Lake Western.

Warnke was the savior in the Chiefs' 2-0 victory over Plymouth Salem in Saturday's district final. Against Pioneer, she was virtually untested.

"We needed this game," said Canton coach Don Smith. "We were getting a little tired."

The rest will come in handy. On Friday, the Chiefs (now 15-4) go up against top-ranked and unbeaten Brighton, which defeated Livonia Stevenson 3-0 in Wednesday's other regional semifinal. Game time for the regional final, hosted by Western, is 7 p.m.

Anyone analyzing the Pioneer team would probably say the talent is decent. And yet it still cannot match the ability found in schools in this area.

For 23 minutes the match was even, and that did concern Smith. "In the beginning I was a little bit (concerned)," he admitted. "I thought we were lying around . . . all you have to do is let them score, they get all fired up and we can't put one in."

That didn't happen. With 16:22 left in the first half, the Chiefs got a corner kick, taken by Lisa Tomasso. It couldn't have been diagrammed any better; Tomasso's line drive went to Jessica Bradley, and her perfectly-placed header went over Pioneer keeper Eva Bower to make it 1-0.

That was the first pebble in the the avalanche. Canton scored twice more before the break, thoroughly demoralizing the Pioneers.

The other two first-half goals came from Jenny Parviainen, both on quick counters. On the first, Melissa Marzolf raced down the right wing, drawing two defenders with her, then crossed the ball into Parviainen for the second Chief goal with 8:16 left.

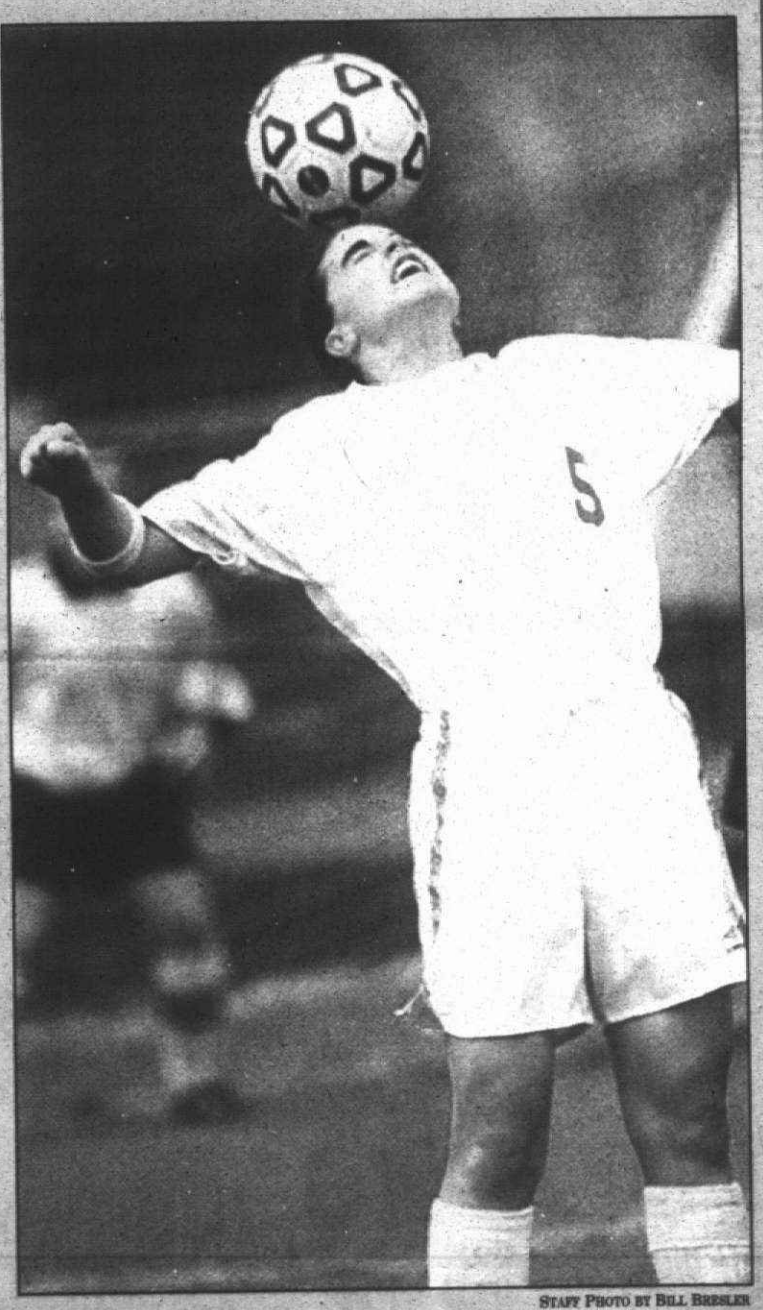

Another quick Canton counter resulted in Jennell Cobor speeding down the wing. Her cross in to Parviainen forced Pioneer keeper Bower to come out to challenge. The Chiefs' junior put it past her, and with 2:41 to play in the half the lead was 3-0.

That proved far too big a deficit for Pioneer, which ended its season with a 10-3-5 record. "We weren't sharp offensively today," said coach William Browning. "When our best player (Kendal Willis) did get in the box, she didn't even get off the shot."

That didn't occur too often in the second half. The Chiefs controlled the action and, although they scored just once more, their play was far more dominating.

The last goal came with 23:00 left, after the ball bounced around inside the Pioneer box. Cobor finally got possession, and put a short shot into the net.

But if this was a break, it's over. Like last week, when the Chiefs beat two state-ranked teams (Livonia Churchill and Salem), another major challenge awaits in Brighton.

Canton edges Salem in 10th

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR

Clutch hits, superb base-running, sparkling defense, and - of course - extra-inning heroics.

Ho-hum.

Point is, it's never boring when Canton and Salem meet on the softball diamond. And it wasn't Tuesday at Canton.

The Chiefs rallied for a run in the sixth to tie it, then withstood a couple of Salem rallies to post a 3-2 win in the 10th.

There were two out when freshman pitcher Gretchen Hudson slugged a long fly over the rightfielder's head to score Tara Biro with the game-winning run.

"We do it every time," said Canton coach Jim Arnold as his team looked forward to the district semifinal, Saturday at 10:30 a.m. against Livonia Stevenson. "Last year, it was the same way. No matter what our records are, it's always a rivalry between the red and blue."

The two teams met once in '95, with Canton emerging with a 1-0 regular-season victory. In '94, they met in the district semifinal, and the game went 13 innings before the Chiefs could collect a 4-3 triumph.

"It's an ongoing battle," agreed Salem coach Bonnie Southerland. "It's just too bad we had to play each other in the first round of the districts."

It was a tense, drama-laden game throughout. Canton scored first, getting a run without the benefit of a hit in the third.

Salem countered by pushing across two runs in the fourth. Back-to-back doubles by Carah Best and Stefanie Volpe got one run in. A ground out by Jenny Trott moved Volpe to third; Terri Walters' single delivered her with the second run.

It stayed that way until the bottom of the sixth. Amber LaGrow started Canton's rally with a lead-off walk. Biro followed with a sacrifice bunt, on which LaGrow raced to third after some indecision by the Salem infield.

Jenny Sikora then hit a one-out grounder to Salem's Best at shortstop. Best fired home, but it was too late to get LaGrow.

The Chiefs put two more runners aboard with one out in the seventh, but Trott - Salem's pitcher - defused the rally by getting the next two batters.

In the eighth it was the Rocks' turn. Nicole Sitek

Al Harrison Bowling

A contingent of Russian scientists and engineers visited the metro area last month to study American business methods.

One of the stops included Merri Bowl Lanes in Livonia. It was the first time many of them had ever been in a bowling center because there aren't any in Russia.

Robinson hosted the group at a luncheon during which he explained some of the workings of bowling center and how it is such a good example of the free enterprise system.

Robinson told his foreign guests that the goal of his business is to satisfy customers by maintaining good working relationships with the bowlers so they will keep coming back.

Friendly Fun Centers are full-service operations, offering a range of restaurants, cocktail lounges, playrooms, amusement and vending machines, billiards and meetings rooms.

All of this combines to add to the bottom line and provide an entertaining environment for customers Robinson told his guests.

Part of the Merri Bowl visit was devoted to going behind the scene and to looking at the modern pinsetting machinery which transformed the sport of bowling.

The Merri Bowl tour was led by mangers Chris Mood and Ginger MacRae who ended the tour by offering their guests a chance to try their hand at bowling.

The Russians - Igor V. Shitarev, a computer specialist; Marina Tchistokolva, a chemist; Ana Vakulenko, a mechanical engineer; Sergei Kolessov, Nicholas M. Bessonov, Eugeni Davydov, a chemist and Sergey G. Lakeev and Sergei V. Gussev - were outfitted with shoes and balls.

Gusev threw a strike on his first try, but strikes and spares aren't that easy to come by as the Russians soon discovered.

Lakeev made a difficult 5-10 split and Tchistoklova threw a natural hook. Vakulenko showed a lot of athletic talent with a nice delivery.

Kolessov started out with a most unusual two-handed style then he quickly adapted to the more conventional delivery.

As for Shitarev, he worked at it a while and finally threw a strike.

I tried to explain the scoring system to some of the bowlers but my Russian language skills are lacking and every time they asked a question, I would simply nod and say "Nyet," the only word I know.

The language barrier also proved to be challenge at lunch. Waitress Debbie Blanchard tried to explain to Bessenov what lasagna is and to Vakulenko that the only meat dish on the menu was a hamburger.

The group left Merri Bowl with a favorable impression of the American bowling scene and they couldn't have chosen a better place, Robinson was a super host. He explained bowling to them clearly and made sure they enjoyed themselves.

But they won't have a chance to practice when they get back home - at least not yet. Russia is one of few nations where bowling centers don't exist. Bowling is taking off in a big way in parts of Asia and Europe.

Pay attention AMF and Brunswick, for there lies an untapped market. And from what we saw recently at Merri Bowl, the Russian will love the sport if they get some lanes.

Charlotte Whitney of the University of Michigan Dearborn headed the group which is funded by the U.S. Department of Commerce and co-sponsored by Ford Motor Co. and the University of Michigan.

The Russians also visited Oakwood Hospital, Don Massey Cadillac in Plymouth Township, WDIV-TV Channel 4, Laurel Park Place Mall, Detroit Metropolitan Airport and the Ford Wayne Assembly Plant.

There are four AMF lanes housed in the U.S. Embassy in Moscow and a few more sprinkled here and there in some hotels. There is no bowling center in Moscow - a city of nine million people.

Mercy Hospital in hopes of coaching his team Tuesday.

"By the time I got home," Rumberger said, "I was too pooped.

"I don't know if I'll be able to coach in the tournament. We'll see how the pain goes. And when they decide to do it."

Salem's highly-regarded coach had been living in pain recently but was hospitalized when it intensified. He originally thought it might be kidney stones.

"The doctor told me the other day, 'I've got good news -- you don't have any kidney stones. But your kidney has to come out.'"

(Physicians take note: this was just Rumberger's way of making light of a serious situation.)

As the pain increased, Rumberger had begun making plans for others to coach Salem's team in his absence.

"It was coaching by committee," Rumberger joked. "I even got (ex-)coach John Gravlin to come out of retirement."

"After all these years," he said. "it's caught up with me. After two days in the hospital I got them to let me go. I wanted to coach the game but after I got home the pain was so bad I just couldn't do it.

"My other kidney is fine. It's kind of like a birth defect."

The way it was explained to Rumberger, the tube that drains the kidney is under sized and is now causing the organ to swell.

"I'm taking more pills right now than they make," Rumberger said.

Rumberger says he's going to be fine.

doubled with one out, then moved to third on Best's groundout. Volpe followed with a hard drive -right to the rightfielder.

Biro started a Chiefs' rally in the eighth with a bad-hop single to lead off the inning. Two outs later, Biro was still at first, but she stole second and came racing home on Nikki Kovachevich's base hit to center.

Salem centerfielder Kristen Los' throw to home was on the mark, however; Volpe applied the tag to end the inning.

After an uneventful ninth, Salem put two runners aboard in the 10th, reaching second and third with two out. Best grounded out to third to end it.

In their half of the inning, the Chiefs collected consecutive singles by Michelle Butske, LaGrow and Biro to load the bases with no one out. Sikora grounded into a force play at home and, when Arnold hesitated in giving the signal to LaGrow after she reached third, she was called out for being off the base with the pitcher in the pitching circle.

Hudson's pitching was as impressive as her hitting. After scoring twice in the fourth, she kept the Rocks off the board for six-straight innings.

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR

Mike George was one of the cornerstones of Madonna University athletics. He started the baseball program from scratch in 1989 and built it into a perennial winner, an annual challenger for the NAIA World Series.

As all other coaches at Madonna, George was part time. The job, at least to him, required far more attention. And finding the finances outside of coaching to allow him to continue at Madonna proved impossible.

He had approached the school's administrators about any other work options at the university. None were available to George, who does not have a college degree.

"It's personal," he said in explaining his abrupt resignation. "I have an opportunity . . . . I've accepted a position to work at Cooker's Restaurant.

"I've been here as long as I can. I bear no ill will toward anybody here. This program will survive, with or without me."

A search committee will be formed to find his replacement. George said he would like his assistant coach, Greg Haeger, a former pitcher/first baseman at the University of Michigan and Redford Catholic Central, to succeed him.

Haeger acknowledged that he was "very interested" in the position."

George insisted it was a "combination of things" that led to his departure. After 17 years of coaching baseball, he said he felt "a bit burned out."

That, certainly, was understandable. George dedicated himself to Madonna baseball, all out, in every facet, from planning the initial media guides to finding financing for and planning spring trips south.

He increased the baseball program's budget with sponsorship dollars and worked out a deal with the city of Livonia to use the baseball field at the former Livonia Bentley HS, where he oversaw the construction of Madonna University Park. With the help of neighbors and boosters, the Park has been built into one of the top fields in this area.

With such tireless energy, it seemed unlikely, if not inconceivable, that George would ever leave. When he told the 22 players from last season's team that were still in town of his decision at a special meeting Tuesday, the effect was unanimous - shock.

"I had no idea," said a stunned Craig Benedict, a three-year starting pitcher for Madonna from Plymouth Canton HS. "I thought he called the meeting to talk about summer workouts.

In his eight seasons, George compiled a 251-172 record. Last season the Crusaders went 29-26 with a senior-less team; in '95, they came within two games of the NAIA World Series, and in the two years prior to that they posted win totals of 42 and 43.

"I guess that if I have one regret, it's that we never got to the World Series," said George.

The regrets now are Madonna's. Said Sister Mary Francilene, the school's president: "He was the standard-bearer for our baseball program. He will be missed."

Sports stores offering a fishing license giveaway

OUTDOOR INSIGHTS

BILL PARKER

Want a free fishing license?

If you're between the ages of 17 and 19 and are one of the first 50 teens to stop in the area Sports & Rec sporting goods stores during National Fishing Week, that's exactly what you'll receive.

Sports & Rec is a chain of 85 sporting goods stores nationwide. Two of those stores recently opened in the O&E -land. Detroit Sports & Rec is located at 39453 Ford Rd. in Canton and Bloomfield Sports & Rec is located at 2055 Telegraph Road in Bloomfield Hills. Each store will hand out 50 free licenses to teens during National Fishing Week, June 2-8.

"It usually only takes a day or two," admitted Jeff Grady, manager of the Bloomfield Hills store. " We do it to coincide with National Fishing Week and to try to get kids interested in fishing. We've been doing it for years, but this is our first year in this area."

To qualify for the free licenses teens are asked to provide proof of age and parental consent. Issuance of a license will be contingent upon the applicant meeting all state and federal requirements for a fishing license. The offer is limited to one-year, Michigan resident fishing license and supplies are limited.

For more information call Detroit Sports & Rec at (313) 981-0088 or Bloomfield Sports Rec at (810) 452-8999.

Bass anglers place

Kyle Green, of Bloomfield Hills, placed 54th among 254 anglers. Greene landed eight fish over the three-day tournament and finished with a total weight of 25-pounds, 2-ounces. He pocketed $1,000 for his efforts.

Chuck Economou, of Lake Orion, placed 77th with seven fish weighing 21-pounds, 5-ounces, and Plymouth's Patrick VanTiem finished 117th with five fish totaling 15-pounds, 2-ounces.

In all, 13 Michigan anglers competed in the tournament with 1996 B.A.S.S. Angler of the Year Kevin Van Dam of Kalamazoo leading the way with a second-place finish. VanDam had a limit catch of 15 fish which tipped the scales at 66-pounds, 1-ounce. He collected $22,000 for placing second. Bobby Padgett, of Columbus Georgia, won the tournament and set a new BASSMASTER record for the heaviest three day (five bass per day) catch at 77-pounds, 9-ounces. He earned $36,000 for winning the tournament.

Economou, the busiest of the local anglers competing in the BASSMASTER Tournament Trail, finished 26th overall in the 1995 Eastern Invitational standings out of 459 anglers. Patrick VanTiem finished 87th, Greene was 108th and Rick VanTiem, of West Bloomfield, was 156th. Economou also finished 60th in the Central Invitational standings. (The top five anglers in the Eastern Invitational standings, the top five anglers in the Central Invitational standings plus the top 25 anglers in the Top 100 circuit advanced to the BASS Masters Classic, Aug. 8-10, in Birmingham, Alabama.)

Volunteers needed

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources is looking for anglers to volunteer their time and talent to help teach the fundamentals of fishing during the "Fishing in the Parks" program at Metamora-Hadley Recreation Area, north of Oxford.

Volunteers will be needed every Tuesday at 6:30 p.m. beginning June 18 and running through August 13.

Volunteers are invited to participate on as many Tuesdays as they would like through the summer. The programs are conducted by park staff. Volunteers will assist people of all ages in tying knots, baiting hooks, casting, and removing fish from hooks.

The Fishing in the Parks program is sponsored by the DNR's Fisheries and Parks and Recreation divisions, the American Sportfishing Association, Michigan United Conservation Clubs and Michigan State University.

Hunters and anglers are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information to Outdoors, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI 48009. Fax information to (810) 644-1314 or call Bill Parker evenings at (801) 901-2573.

SC changes NJCAA rule

Women's golfers at two-year colleges throughout the National Junior College Athletic Association will use a shortened tee-off distance next year largely because Schoolcraft College included women on its golf team.

Traditionally, NJCAA schools field all male teams, but in 1989, SC hired Carolyn McKinnis-Steffen, the first women golf coach in the history of the Michigan Community College Athletic Association.

During the 1993 and '94 seasons, SC was the MCCAA's first school to include women on its team.

With the inclusion of female golfers at SC, the MCCAA and Region 12 of the NJCAA voted last year to allow women to use the shorter tee-offs, which is normally 80 percent of the overall length of the men's courses.

Thus, SC has helped make NJCAA golf truly coed.

SPRING Net Weekly & Net Sunday
SPRING delivers the suburbs with more weekday readers than The News and Free Press combined!
Now there are more reasons than ever to go home with SPRING Newspapers. SPRING continues to be the primary weekday newspaper for suburban residents of this suburb-driven market.* For example:
• 48% of adults in the SPRING survey area read SPRING weekly and daily newspapers.
• SPRING delivers, on average, 1,060,000 total readers every week.
• That means SPRING delivers 1,067,000 gross impressions for an entire week.
Compare these numbers to your other media alternatives: only 37% of adults in the SPRING survey area read the weekday Free Press or The Detroit News.
More suburban Detroit readers turn to SPRING.
• SPRING delivers more weekday suburban readers with household incomes over $50,000.
• SPRING delivers more suburban homeowners (51%) than any other weekday newspaper.
To find out more about how the Detroit market has changed, and for information about our current audit, call the SPRING Newspaper Network at 1-800/382-8878.

Nurses get accolades

Four nurses at the Department of Veterans Affairs Medical Center in Ann Arbor have been recognized by their peers and supervisors for their professionalism and compassion, receiving both national and local awards.

Medical Center Director Edward L. Gamache presented the VA Secretary's Awards for Excellence in Nursing to: Dawn Guswtitus, Medical Intensive Care Unit and a Redford resident; Shirley Freshney, from the medical/neurology unit 5 North and a Pinckney resident; and Nancy Gray, a nursing care technician in the operating room and an Ann Arbor resident.

Nominated by their co-workers, the national award-winners are recognized for effectively putting current nursing standards into practice, working positively with their co-workers to provide excellent care to patients and for keeping up their nursing skills through continuing education.

He received the award for positively demonstrating behavior which reflects the art of nursing.

Mercy CEO honored

Brenita Crawford, president and CEO of Mercy Hospital-Detroit, was honored Saturday, May 18 as Community Leader of the Year by the National Council of Negro Women-Detroit Section at the fifth anniversary of the Tribute to Black Women Community Leaders breakfast.

She was nominated for her work in transforming the financially strapped Mercy Hospital to one showing profitability and a broad interest in community based programs.

Four individuals from seven states, including Michigan, will be selected by a distinguished panel of judges in Washington, DC as the 1996 national honorees at a celebration hosted by the national NCNW this fall.

Award given

Wayne State University professor Gabriel Lasker is the recipient of the first annual Franz Boas Distinguished Achievement Award of the Human Biology Association.

The award was established to recognize the contributions of an outstanding human biologist.

Boas taught physical anthropology at Columbia in 1896 and was a major figure in the history of American Anthropology. Margaret Mead and Ruth Benedict were among the many notable students of Boas'.

He joined Wayne State in 1946. As a professor emeritus of anatomy/cell biology and adjunct professor of anthropology, Lasker has taught generations of medical students.

He has served as a founding member of the International Association of Human Biologists, president of the American Association of Physical Anthropologists and president of the Human Biology Council.

Gabriel Lasker

Four honored by peers

Four doctors were recognized by the School of Medicine Alumni Association, which presented the 1996 Distinguished Alumni Awards to Dr. Lawrence Crane and Sen. John J. Schwarz, also an MD and Lawrence M. Weiner Awards to Dr. Eugene Perrin and Dr. Joseph Dunbar.

The Distinguished Alumni Award recognizes School of Medicine graduates who have been selected by their peers as having substantially contributed to humanitarian causes; whose contributions to the health field in a broader sense are outstanding or for service to the school.

The Weiner Award honors exceptional contributions of non-alumni to the school through excellence in teaching, research, and/or administrative duties. These individuals have met the high standards created by Dr. Lawrence Weiner's exemplary record of service to the school.

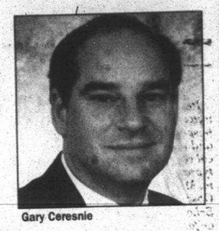

Ceresnie joins staff

Gary Ceresnie, DPM, joined the Southfield and Detroit Podiatry staffs of DMC Health Care Centers last month. The Southfield Center is located at 27207 Lahser Rd., Ste. 200 and the Detroit Center is located at 22341 W. Eight Mile. DMC has locations in Southfield, Northwest Detroit, Novi and Livonia and is a member of the Detroit Medical Center.

Previously, he practiced in Coral Springs, Fla. He received his Doctor of Medicine degree from the William M. Scholl College of Podiatric Medicine in Chicago, Ill.

Ceresnie lives in West Bloomfield.

Century Oaks offers spectacular setting

It's on Gunn Road just west of Adams in Oakland Township, backs up to Bald Mountain Recreation Area but is fairly close to I-75, M-59 and access to city amenities.

Mix in Rochester schools and you have an attractive 224-acre residential subdivision developed by Frankel Associates of Troy.

Buyers may purchase a lot, priced at $109,000 to $149,000, and bring in their own builders. Or they can buy from John Scaccia, a Rochester custom builder who has acquired eight lots.

"I live out here," Scaccia said. "This is country living at its finest."

"Rolling hills afford a lot of opportunities for walk-out lots," said Mark J. Erickson, spokesman for Frankel. "There's lots of wooded areas."

While buyers can bring in their own builders, strict architectural controls will be enforced.

"We have a very unique site," Erickson said. "We want to be sure houses built are consistent with the nature of the site and the surrounding area. Our purpose is to maintain property value."

Only brick, wood siding and stone will be allowed as exterior materials. Ranches must be a minimum 2,700 square feet, two stories, 3,000.

At this price point, must buyers in Century Oaks will have built new before.

"They will be relocating executives from Chrysler and other auto-related companies," Erickson said.

"What we'll get mostly is people who know the area and want something better for their family," Scaccia said.

TAMMIE GRAVES/STAFF ARTIST

"This sub gives you neighbors so you have community, but at the same time you have a great deal of privacy," Scaccia added.

"To some people, this may seem further north than they want to go," Neal said. "A few years from now, there won't be anything south of here."

Buyers shouldn't wait until the very last minute if they have a specific kind-of lot in mind, Neal said.

"Now, at another place I'm working, I have people say, 'What do you have with lots of trees' and 'What do you have that backs up to a park,'" he said. "You don't come into the last stages and get that."

Scaccia said he plans to construct 3,800-square-foot colonial as his on-site model.

The house will feature a family room with two-story ceiling and fireplace, study, living room, dining room, kitchen/eating nook, half bath and laundry on the first floor.

The upstairs master will have a separate shower and whirlpool tub, dual sink vanity and walk-in closet.

Two upstairs bedrooms will share a jack-and-jill bath and the fourth upstairs bedroom will have its own bath.

Scaccia's model, the Huron, will include two furnaces and two air conditioning processors, two staircases to the second floor, three-car garage, basement, and double oven, cooktop, microwave and dishwasher in the kitchen.

Lap of luxury: John Scaccia plans to build this house, a 3,800-square-foot colonial with two furnaces, two air conditioning processors and two staircases, as a sales model at Century Oaks. Estimated price with lot is $449,000.

"It's a very, very fine floor plan," Scaccia said. "It's worked very well for us. It's traditional, open. The master will have all the bells and whistles."

Estimated price including lot - $449,000.

"We will have other plans where the master is on the first floor," Scaccia added. "We do custom designing ourselves and modify any of our existing plans."

Erickson said he anticipates that most of the houses in the sub will be custom designed and built. "They will start in the four hundred thousands and go up from there."

"Don't be surprised if you see them over $800,000," Scaccia added.

Century Oaks will be serviced by a community water well and city sewers. There will be no sidewalks.

The property tax rate currently is $23.19 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value. That means the owners of a $450,000 house in the sub would pay about $5,200 the first year.

"It's kind of nice to have 4,600 acres of state land in your back yard," Greg said. "It's not going to be touched. It's quiet. Another reason we liked it is lots were very generous in size. In our particular lot, the sun sets in our back yard."

Turner said they're thinking about building a two-story of 3,300-3,500 square feet with four bedrooms including a first floor master and a walk-out.

"The quality of homes they're putting up back there is what we're looking for," he said.

Flashing is prime location for leaks in the roof

(AP) - Flashing is used to prevent moisture from entering under the roof covering wherever two or more planes of a roof meet or wherever the roof meets a vertical surface. It is also used along edges of roofs and other windows or doorways to direct moisture away from the house exterior and structural framing.

Roll roofing material is widely used for flashing, particularly along ridges and hips, and at valleys. However, the most durable flashing materials are sheet aluminum, copper or galvanized steel. All are sold in rolls especially for the purpose.

Chimney flashing is usually in two parts: the base (or step) flashing, which wraps completely around the base of the chimney and extends several inches under the roof covering, and the cap (or counter) flashing, which covers the top edges of the base flashing. Sometimes roofing felt extends up the sides of the chimney, taking the place of metal base flashing.

Flashing should be inspected at least once a year, as it is a prime location for roof leaks. Look for cracks and separations where the flashing meets the chimney, vent stack, dormer and abutment walls, and where roof planes meet at valleys. Sometimes damaged flashing is discolored. Very old flashing sometimes develops pinholes which are hard to see. So if possible, check the roof from below for leaks.

To maintain and repair flashing, coat all flashing seams periodically with asphalt roofing cement, especially at chimney and vent stack seams. Apply the cement using a small mason's trowel and smooth the contours of the cement so that it does not form hollows and ridges where water may collect and eventually lead to leaks and damage.

Where you find holes of 1-square-inch or more in the flashing, cut a patch from the same material as the flashing, 1-inch larger all around than the hole. Apply cement to the damaged flashing, press the patch in place, then cover the entire area with cement and smooth the surface.

Where flashing meets brickwork it is usually embedded in mortar. Separations here require immediate repair since the loose flashing actually collects water and funnels it down beneath the roof where it may spread and do considerable damage.

To repair, provided the flashing itself is sound, rake out the old mortar from the seam to a depth of about three-fourths-inch. Press the flashing back into place, wedging it if necessary with small stones, then fill the seam with fresh mortar, using a trowel. Smooth the seam carefully. Seal the flashing with asphalt roofing cement after the mortar has fully cured. If the flashing is corroded or damaged, you will have to replace it.

Metals touching each other react when wet. As a result, metal flashing must be fastened with nails made of the same metal as the flashing. Otherwise one or the other will corrode, often quickly. If it is impossible to match flashing and fasteners, use neoprene or asphalt washers with the fasteners to prevent direct contact between the two different metals.

Metals in contact with certain acid-containing woods, such as redwood and red cedar can also corrode. When purchasing flashing, exterior wood shingles or siding, and fasteners to match, check with your building materials supplier for advice.

But the president of an area home improvement referral service says fixing a leaky basement doesn't have to drain your wallet.

"If the leak is coming from a small crack in the basement wall or from one of the seams in cement blocks, a homeowner can usually fix it with hydraulic cement available from any hardware store," Paul said. "And if you can fix it yourself, you can definitely save a lot of money."

The first step to fixing a leak from a crack is to enlarge the crack with a mason's or ball peen hammer and a cold chisel, making sure to wear protective goggles, Paul said. Make the inside of the crack larger than the surface to secure the cement in place, but don't go deeper than three-quarters of an inch.

Next, clean the area with a stiff brush, then vacuum the crack to make sure there aren't any loose particles. Moisten the crack lightly with a sponge or damp cloth and fill the area with hydraulic cement, using a trowel to press the cement into the crack. The cement will harden in a few minutes and expand when it dries, bonding tightly with the existing cement. Apply a second coat of cement after the first coat hardens to ensure the crack is sealed tightly.

"Once it hardens, the leak should stop. Obviously, more severe problems would require contracting a company that specializes in repairs of basement leaks, but it's good to try and fix it yourself if you can."

Paul's company, Home Advantage, is a free referral service that specializes in referring honest home improvement contractors in metro Detroit. His company has developed a network of local contractors, and Paul screens and checks their references, licenses and insurance and continually monitors their workmanship to ensure they are honest and reliable.

Following some simple rules can help homeowners avoid the pain of using a dishonest contractor, Paul said. He offers these seven steps to help protect homeowners:

1. Ask for references. By doing this, homeowners receive valuable information about the contractor's workmanship. Ask the references questions such as, "How was the quality of the work?" and "Would you use the contractor again?"

2. Check for insurance. Make sure the contractor has valid insurance. If the contractor doesn't, and one of the workers is injured on your property, you could end up paying the medical bills.

3. Ask for a written guarantee. This step is very important in case there is a discrepancy regarding workmanship or cost overruns. Get a written, detailed cost analysis before your project begins to prevent problems between you and your contractor.

4. Request a project completion schedule. Asking the contractor for a schedule that explains the tasks and timeframes for the project will help minimize construction delays.

5. Don't pay everything in advance. The only time a contractor needs money in advance is when he orders a custom, nqnrefundable item for your project. Never pay more than 20 percent up front. Paying for work as it is completed helps ensure the work will be completed to your specifications.

6. Don't pick up the permit. Having the contractor pick up the building permit from your city or township serves two purposes. First, when the contractor picks up the permit from the city, it is proof that the contractor's building license is valid. Second, if there is a problem with the quality of the workmanship, you can track the company by its license.

7. Make your last payment after you receive a waiver of lien. A waiver of lien is a document from the contractor's supply company indicating that all your materials have been paid. If your contractor doesn't pay for your materials, then you could be held liable for the debt.

Home Advantage has made more than 2,000 referrals to its network of area contractors and service firms. For more information, call Home Advantage at (800) 733-3778.

Lannie has country charm,

A wide country style porch, complete with railings and posts, gives the Lannie the appeal of an old-style country home. However, the interior of this two story home has a contemporary flavor.

Just inside the front door, a U-shaped stairway, with polished colonial wood dowel posts and banister, leads upstairs, visually separating the dining room from the family room. Due to its unconventional placement in the center of the room, a bridge at the top connects the stairway to the two upstairs bedrooms. Those two bedrooms share a bath. An extra vanity, which provides makeup space outside the bathroom, will be a sure hit with teens.

The kitchen, nook and family room run together. French doors fill the family room with light and offer easy access to the deck for leisurely meals outside when the weather is inviting. A colonial fireplace for family photos and heirlooms is located off the large family room.

The master suite has a large walk-in closet and an entrance, through French doors, to the deck for those sunny afternoons. The master suite has a private bath. The amenities include a custom tub, shower and his and her vanities, that provide enough space for putting on makeup and shaving.

For the study kit of the Lannie (401-35) send $10 to Landmark Designs, P.O. Box 2307-0E48, Eugene, OR 97402 (Be sure to specify the plan name and number. For a collection of plan books featuring our most popular plans, send $20 to Landmark or call 1-800-562-1151.

Sheds provide weather resistant storage for garden tools

(MPS) - More than ever, experts are recognizing the growing interest in gardening and a virtual explosion in outdoor living. Families are spending more time outside - whether they're vacationing at home around the pool, working in the yard or garden, or relaxing on the patio, outdoor living has created a growing need for storage space.

"Due to the popularity of outdoor living and the storage it requires, the newest additions to homes this summer are going to be easy-to-assemble sheds," says Bob Czechowicz, senior product manager for lawn and garden at Rubbermaid Specialty Products Inc.

Easy assembly is important. People who spend a lot of time outdoors don't want to spend even more time assembling things. So manufacturers like Rubbermaid have made assembly easy for the consumer. All of Rubbermaid's storage sheds are assembled without tools. Thanks to their system of snap-together, interlocking panels - assembly time is estimated at less than 15 minutes.

There are four sizes of Rubbermaid's storage shed. Two vertical sheds are sized right for long handled garden tools or water skis and, with the addition of shelves, can easily be converted to a potting shed. Two horizontal sheds have top access, as well as front-door access, for easy storage of push mowers, fertilizer, pool supplies and firewood.

Choose a lawn mower that's right for you

With spring in the air, it's time to pack up the snowblower and crank up the old lawnmower. But will your old mower make it through the spring and summer, or is it time to consider buying a new one? For many consumers, the thought of choosing a new lawnmower is intimidating. With all the different kinds of mowers on the market, how do you know which one is right for your lawn?

Size up your lawn. For large lawns of half an acre or larger, you may want to consider a tractor or riding mower. Riding mowers have an average width cut of 30 inches and 11 horsepower and cost $900 and $2,000. These tractors can be adapted to plow snow in the winter. Some popular brands include Murray and Honda.

If your yard is less than half an acre, chances are you'll be better off with a push mower. There are two types to consider: standard and self-propelled. Both range from 20 to 22 inches in width cut and have 3.5 to 6 horsepower. A self-propelled model lets you steer without straining to push it, as it virtually moves itself. This mower is ideal for hilly lawns. Standard push mowers range from $129 to $227, while self-propelled push mowers are $268 to $530.

Power it up. Next you'll need to decide on either a gas or electric mower. "Both have several positive features, and the choice really comes down to the conveniences and needs of the users," said Marshall Avison, seasonal tools merchant for The Home Depot.

There are two kinds of gas mowers: a two-cycle and a four-cycle. A two-cycle mower mixes the gas and oil in one tank. The fuel is better distributed as you mow, but you must make the mixture yourself. A four-cycle gas mower places the gas and oil in two separate tanks. You'll still have to put the gas and oil in yourself, but you won't have to measure them. A four-cycle mower won't always distribute the fuel evenly on hills and may stall.

Gas mowers are traditionally thought of as the American lawnmower of choice, but electric mowers are gaining in popularity. They don't emit exhaust fumes and won't pollute the air. Electric mowers can be either cordless or rechargeable or may come with a cord to plug into a household outlet. The cords will usually only stretch 100 feet. A cordless model only needs to be plugged in overnight, and the next day it will cut for 1.5 to 3 hours, or up to a half acre. Cordless models use less electricity than the mowers with plugs.

Electric mowers are generally maintenance free. You won't need to add gas or oil. They are also very quiet. Popular brands of electric mowers include Black and Decker and Ryobi.

To mulch or not to mulch. Mulching is a process that uses grass clippings to refertilize the lawn. Mulching is easy, good for the environment and is the best source of nitrogen for the plant roots.

To avoid the mulch leaving lines in your grass, mulching should be done on a dry day rather than when the grass is wet and heavy.

Mulch mowers are available in both gas and electric models, and almost all mowers can be adapted to mulchers with an easy to install kit.

Many mowers have a release bar which automatically shuts off the mower if you need to step away.

Some newer models also have a "blade brake clutch" which lets the engine run while the blade stops. This stops your from restarting the mower every time.

Here's how to make your home environmentally friendly

Making a difference can be as simple as forming new habits, like recycling and composting or selecting materials that place less burden on our planet and have a positive effect on the family's health and pocketbook.

Aside from blooming foliage and drifting pollen, one of the rites of spring is a greater awareness of our fragile environment. While no one can personally stop global warming or save the ozone layer, homeowners can create "greener" surroundings with a few smart cost-saving improvements around the house.

Making a difference can be as simple as forming new habits, like recycling and composting or selecting materials that place less burden on our planet and have a positive effect on the family's health and pocketbook.

"Wasted energy is one of the largest factors affecting our environment, with the most potential for conservation as well as cost-savings," says Mark Eisen, director of environment marketing at the Home Depot. "Most houses can be made much more energy efficient with a few simple, one-time improvements, such as installing insulation, ceiling fans, thermal windows and programmable thermostats."

Lower the flow: Just one dripping faucet can waste as much as 700 gallons of water a year. Low flow shower heads and low flush toilets (now required by law in new products) can save thousands of gallons a year in the average household.

Reduce the runoff: Soaker hose and drip irrigation systems can lower your water bills by delivering water directly where they need it. By reducing or eliminating runoff, you also reduce the burden of fertilizers and pesticides on our lakes, streams and oceans.

Give nature a break: Stay in control by starting with nature's own methods to beat the bugs. Attract birds with birdhouses, feeders and natural backyard wildlife habits to help reduce pests. Bug lights, screening, citronella candles and insecticidal soaps are other less-toxic alternatives that will keep visitors away.

Try branching out: For an all-around environmental boost, plant a tree. When properly sited, trees and other landscaping can save up to 30 percent in home cooling and heating costs.

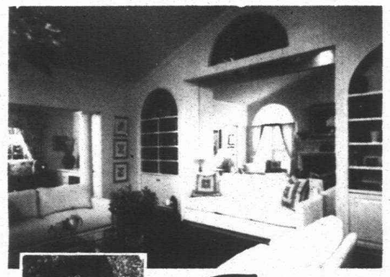

Down the drain: Install a kitchen garbage disposal to rinse away bones and other food wastes that are not suitable for composting. Keep all of your drains flowing with biodegradable enzyme products that are safer to use.

Clear the air: Tune up your systems to make your family more comfortable while you save on heating and cooling costs. Upgrading and properly maintaining your home air filters is easy and helps improve indoor air quality. Vented range hoods and room exhaust fans also help remove smoke, moisture, airborne bacteria and other indoor pollutants.

Get the lead out: It is believed that more than 58 million homes built before 1978 in the United States and Canada contain lead-based paints. To reduce lead hazards in your home and protect your family during any home renovation, Home Depot is offering a free information sheet "Reducing Lead Hazards When Remodeling Your Home."

Why wait to insulate: Upgrading your insulation to a higher R-value can lower energy costs dramatically. Start with insulating the attic and unheated crawl spaces. Sealing ducts, caulking and weatherstripping reduce energy loss even more. A "Smart Choice" flier, which outlines additional ways and products to make the home greener, is available at Home Depot.

"This is an exciting project for our organization. We have grown from an entrepreneurial company which began out of our founder's home over 25 years ago, to one of the largest sales promotion companies in the world," David A. Brandon, Valassis' president and chief executive officer, said. "As the lease for our current facility was approaching expiration, we began researching the most efficient and effective facility plan for our corporate headquarters. We researched options in Plymouth, Ann Arbor and Livonia. We have chosen Livonia _ an area in which most of our employees live, and an area Valassis has been proud to call home for 18 years."

"I am very pleased that Valassis Communications is locating its new corporate headquarters in Livonia's Victor Corporate Park," Livonia Mayor Jack Kirksey said. "Valassis is a valued corporate citizen, involved in the city, schools and community in many ways. Valassis has sponsored scholarships and has welcomed student co-ops in their business. CEO David Brandon is also active with the St. Mary Hospital board of directors."

The city of Livonia has enjoyed a close working relationship with Brandon and Valassis, Kirksey said.

Valassis Communications Inc. is a sales promotion company, offering consumer promotion techniques including: Valassis inserts, free-standing inserts distributed to more than 56 million households each week through Sunday newspapers; C&D County inserts, distributed to more than 5 million households in rural communities; Valassis Impact Promotions, specialty and solo promotions; ROP Solutions, run-of-press couponing and advertising directly on the pages of newspapers; Valassis Sampling, newspaper sampling programs; and ventures in Mexico, France and Canada.

Valassis has eight sales offices and three printing facilities and had revenues of $613.8 million for 1995.

O&E ONLINE

EMORY DANIELS

Some of the most interesting and fun sites to visit are the ones with the best photographs and graphics. So I've been waiting with the anticipation of Heinz Ketchup for one of my favorite magazines, National Geographic, to appear on the World Wide Web.

Well, apparently this will happen next month. The June issue of Netguide reports National Geographic will go online in June at http://www.nationalgeographic. It will be interactive, visual, and carry ads.

Another colorful magazine that is now on the World Wide Web is Midwest Living which can be accessed at http://www.midwestliving.com. Midwest Living offers information on Midwest travel and food, fun family activities for travelers, cozy bed and breakfast sites and intimate restaurants. "Best of the Midwest" offers the editors' picks of the Midwest's top travel destinations, food features and home and garden projects.

If you find Midwest Living useful you might also want to visit Yankee Magazine at http://www.NewEngland.com/. Yankee Magazine has just released this diverse online guide to New England. Check out "New England in a Nutshell" then browse around to the reviews of restaurants, lodgings, museums and The Yankee Traveler newsletter. There are maps detailing famous back road drives and city walks and a regional forecast from The Old Farmer's Almanac, and a selection of other New England links.

If New York City is on this summer's calendar for you don't leave without checking out MetroBeat-NYC at http://www.metrobeat.com/nyc/index.html. Here is the on-line version of comparable to MetroBeat's Guide to the Big Apple. Find NYC's finest art galleries, comedy and cabaret clubs, lectures, museums, theater, and sports. Spend some time at this site and learn what to do in Manhattan, Brooklyn, Staten Island, Uptown East or the Bronx.

If Myrtle Beach has much more allure than Manhattan than these two options will be helpful. One is a Listserv discussion group of Myrtle Beach which will bring you news of interest daily, or at least weekly, via E-mail. Or, if you don't wish to subscribe to "The Myrtle Beach Internet News" via E-mail than visit the Website which has an archive of the List's information.

"MYRTLEBEACH" is the Listserv topic available through MAJORDOMO@LISTSERV.MBSC.COM-The Myrtle Beach Internet News. "MYRTLEBEACH has all the latest news from Myrtle Beach, SC, and the Grand Strand area: New attractions, theater schedules, golf courses, event schedules, shopping, restaurants, accommodations, airline fares, etc. The affiliated Website can be accessed at http://www.mbsc.com.

To subscribe to "MYRTLEBEACH," send an E-Mail message to MAJORDOMO@LISTSERV.MBSC.COM and in the body of the message type "SUBSCRIBE MYRTLEBEACH" (without the quote marks).

As I indicated in an earlier column, AAA members can get trip triks on-line by going to AAA Michigan's Website. If you aren't a member of AAA, visit MapQuest at http://www.mapquest.com which will tell you how to get form your home to anywhere in the U.S., and tell you where the ATM machines and restaurants are en route.

News of the Internet is spreading like a grass fire on a warm summer day. Last week I heard about the plans of the Wayne County Sheriff Department launch its Website as an on-line attempt to involve citizens in crime-fighting. (More on this later). About the same time I was reading about the city of Farmington's plans to have a page on the Web.

Then last Tuesday evening I was at a Business Expo at Burton Manor and heard a lot of news about coming entries onto the Web by area institutions. St. Mary Hospital, for instance, is seriously looking at the possibilities of the Web as a marketing tool. Likewise, the Felician Sisters to the north (Madonna University) is developing a home page on the Web it hopes to launch soon. I stopped by to visit with Livonia Library Director Michael Deller who handed me the URL for Livonia Public Library's Website. I went home that evening and visited http://tln.lib.mi.us/~lvcc/index.html and was quite impressed.

On my list of things to do is a visit with a business man in Canton who has achieved rather remarkable sales results from having a home page on the Web. I'll share this information with you also.

Anyhow, the news that Madonna University was about to land on the Internet set my mind to wondering how many more state public and private colleges and universities are on the Web. University of Michigan, of course, has been a leader and I have run across some MSU ventures and a nifty site sponsored by Albion.

So, may I issue a challenge to my readers. I invite you to locate as many state colleges and universities on the Web (or Gopher) as you can find within the next week. E-mail the list to emory@oeonline.com and I will share our discoveries in the weeks ahead.

■ BENEFIT PROGRAM
Universal Self Care Inc. has begun a new prescription benefit program, Universal RX. The company specializes in diabetes supply and self-management services. "Universal Rx positions our company as a one-stop shopping source for a group's information, disease management and prescription benefit needs," Ed Buchholz, divisional president, said. "Diabetes management is our focus and Universal Rx opens up many more opportunities for us." The program offers employers, managed care organizations, insurance companies, third-party administrators, health-care coalitions, and other groups prescription benefit services, including a pharmacy network, electronic claims service, drug card service, mail-order programs, education programs and disease management services.

■ EXPANDED FACILITIES
NCC Electronics, a company specializing in safety systems and controls, has recently moved to new locations in Michigan and Windsor. The Michigan facility, located in Westland, includes a product display area. For more than 10 years, NCC Electronics has worked with manufacturers to help them understand safety standards they must meet and to provide solutions to safety and control problems.

■ NEW NAME
Northwest Graphic Services Inc. has launched a new corporate identity program and will now be doing business as The Northwest Group. The Northwest Group is a graphic communications and advertising agency, specializing in the design and production of marketing, corporate promotional and product literature, and print media advertising. The company provides services under three divisions: Northwest Advertising (advertising, marketing and creative), Northwest Graphic (creative, digital prepress and printing services), and Northwest Photographic (studio and location photography). Established in 1959 by Jerry Wilke, the Northwest Group is led by his daughter, Diane Wilke, vice president of sales; Tom Graham, vice president of operations and Allen Weaks, vice president of marketing.

■ BUSINESS MOVES
Murder, Mystery & Mayhem Books and Collectibles, formerly in Livonia, has reopened in Farmington under new ownership. The new store is at 35167 Grand River in the Drakeshire Plaza. The store is open seven days a week and offers mystery, espionage, horror and suspense books and accessories, tapes from old radio shows, and other mystery-related items such as puzzles, games and T-shirts.

■ BIZ-COM AWARD
The Northwest Group of Livonia has received the Business Marketing Association of Detroit's Biz-Com Best of Michigan Silver Award, for the production of the Viviano Flower Shop direct-mail catalog.
The Biz-Com Best of Michigan awards recognize outstanding achievement in design, layout and production of business promotion and corporate literature. The Viviano brochure is a 16-page direct-mail presentation of the floral arrangements, services and facilities of Viviano Flower Shop Inc. The Northwest Group was responsible for concept, creativity, copy writing, artwork, photography, printing and bindery.

■ WORKER GRANT
The Michigan Jobs Commission has announced the award of a $10,000 dislocated worker grant to the Wayne County Job Connection, a Michigan Works agency based in Wayne. The award will help provide basic readjustment services to workers affected by the closing of Interlink Technologies in Livonia. "At the Jobs Commission, we are committed to helping workers get back to work as quickly as possible and to increasing the availability of quality services and training options," said Doug Rothwell, chief executive officer and department director of the Michigan Jobs Commission. The funds will be used for assistance and readjustment services for the workers and their families affected by the plant closing.

■ LOCAL FINALISTS
Forty-two finalists out of about 100 individuals nominated were chosen.
The two local finalists are Judith A. Denton and Robert H. Kolo of World Class Engineered Products Inc., Redford Township.
The Entrepreneur of the year awards program was founded by the professional services firm of Ernst & Young. The program's purpose is to honor business people who are successful entrepreneurs and those who have actively encouraged entrepreneurs. The Michigan regional award recipients will then be eligible to become National Entrepreneur of the Year award recipients. A national judging panel will select the finalists and award recipients from 45 regional programs.
Reservations to the awards banquet, which will be held at the Ritz-Carlton on June 19, can be made by calling (313) 596-8733 by June 12. Tickets are $85 a person.

■ COMPANY CERTIFIED
Michigan Induction Inc. of Canton has completed QS-9000/ISO-9002 registration. The achievement of QS-9000/ISO-9002 certification comes at the end of a two-year quality focus initiative. Michigan Induction is a heat treat corporation, which maintains 35 induction systems.

■ DEALER OF YEAR
G/B Sales & Service Inc. of Plymouth, a Mitsubishi forklift dealer, has been named a 1995 winner of the Dealer of the Year Award by Mitsubishi Forklift Trucks. G/B's award was based on performance in Mitsubishi's Striving for Excellence program. "In this year-long competition Mitsubishi dealers are judged on a broad range of business operations," said Gregory Blackwood, president of G/B Sales & Service. "Successful performance in these categories is designed to result in the highest levels of customer satisfaction. Every member of the G/B Sales & Service organization played a major role in our earning this award."

■ OPPORTUNITY DAY
About 35 Detroit area employers gathered at Detroit College of Business recently seeking qualified students for jobs openings at Opportunity Day. Companies that attended included Valassis Communications of Livonia, EDS, Federal Mogul Corp., Ciber, CDI Information Systems, city of Dearborn, and Henry Ford Museum.

Cedar lookalikes are in many styles

Q: My husband and I are going to be reroofing and we keep hearing about shingles that look like cedar or slate. How do these differ from the standard shingles that we have on our home now?

A: Shingles that look like cedar or slate are sometimes referred to as dimensional shingles or architectural shingles. They have either a fiberglass or an asphalt base and are usually laminated together which gives the effect of the real thing without the high price sticker. The warranties on these "dimensional shingles" vary from 25-40 years. There are many manufacturers with a wide variety of color options also. Some brands are very rustic looking, such as a cedar shake, while others have more of a uniform appearance such as cedar shingle. Depending on the color selected, a person can choose between an old weathered shake or a brand new looking shake. There is even a color that has gray and red tones to simulate an old slate roof. It is rather difficult to select a color from a few shingles and therefore it is best to ask your contractor for a few references in your neighborhood where you can see the complete finished project.

Q: I have a home with cedar shingles that have lasted for 50 years. I have oiled and stained the shingles about every six years. I am now having new cedar shingles put on and they advised me not to stain or oil them, just repair them when they become damaged. Won't the oil and stain help preserve and keep them from damage?

A: Yes it will, however, the majority of cedar roofs remain untreated and are known to provide excellent service. Fungicide chemicals will inhibit moss, fungus and mildew in areas of high heat and humidity and will contribute to roof life service. Care should be taken in applying some chemicals because of the toxicity. (Follow manufacturer directions). In areas of low humidity, where moss, fungus and mildew are not a potential problem, commercial shingle stain or linseed oil will prevent excessive dryness and therefore prolong the natural resilience of cedar. In those areas fungicide chemicals can be used to good effect but are not vital. Whatever the case, the roof should be kept free from debris.

INVITING IDEAS

Celebrate summer with a sandwich

RUTH MOSSOK JOHNSTON

Warm weather is the perfect time for having Sandwich Soirees. What qualifies as a sandwich? A sandwich is combined with bread of "sandwiched" between slices, or put in a pocket (pita bread)

Tramezzini and Muffaleta may be two fairly new ones in the forefront - not really new, but new to many Americans. Both Italian in origin, both unique and different in their approach. Tramezzini are small Italian sandwiches made with a high-quality crustless white bread - many times filled with pesto and cheese. Italian Muffaletta is a traditional sandwich made from a whole round loaf of bread - filled with wonderful stuffings of cheese, meats, vegetable and drizzled with a vinaigrette.

The Earl of Sandwich is attributed with the invention of the sandwich, whilst in the midst of a long gambling session, he would not leave the gaming table for a meal, and requested his manservant to bring him a hunk of beef between two slices of bread.

Here are some suggestions that can be used for any occasion:

BLACK AND WHITE TRAMEZZINO

SANDWICHES

Ingredients for Black Olive Pesto:

2 cloves garlic, peeled
Olive oil
2 teaspoons lemon zest
Capers, drained

Directions for Pesto:

Drain the olives and stone them - place them in a blender or food processor - add the garlic and process. Continue to process until it is the desired texture you want, either coarse or smooth, adding enough olive oil to make the pesto dense. Scrape the bowl with a rubber spatula and place the olive mixture in a clean bowl - adding the lemon zest and as many capers as you desire (1 tablespoon or more). Cover the bowl and refrigerate until needed - this recipe will keep for several weeks.

Fresh mozzarella cheese packed in water
Sliced white bread
Black olive paste

Directions:

Slice the mozzarella cheese and let drain on paper towels. Place the bread flat and trim off the crusts. Spread black olive pesto on both sides of bread, add the cheese slices to one slice of bread and top with the other pesto covered slice.

MUFFALETTA

Ingredients:

3 tablespoons of olive oil
1 eggplant (weighing approximately ¾ pound), cut into ½ inch thick slices)
Salt and freshly ground black pepper
1 Italian loaf of round bread (weighing approximately 1 pound)
Vinaigrette (any type of your choosing- homemade or prepared)
Fresh tomatoes, sliced thin
Fresh basil leaves, washed and stems removed
Black olives, stoned and coarsely chopped
4 ounces smoked ham, sliced
4 ounces smoked turkey, sliced
4 ounces beef (corned beef or roast) sliced
6 ounces mozzarella or provolone cheese
Seedless cucumber sliced thin (the long English type)

Directions:

Preheat the oven to 425 degrees and generously grease a baking sheet with olive oil.

Sprinkle the eggplant slices with salt and place them in a colander and let drain for one half hour, Rinse the eggplant under cool running water, drain and pat dry.

Brush the eggplant slices with olive oil and place in a single layer on the greased baking sheet. Bake until the eggplant is soft and nicely browned (approximately 20 minutes). Remove eggplant from the oven and let cool.

While the eggplant is cooling, take the round loaf of Italian bread and cut off a lid. Remove the inside bread and hollow out leaving approximately ½ inch of bread attached to the crust.

Brush the inside of the bread loaf generously with your vinaigrette. Fill the inside of the loaf with the slices of cooked eggplant, slices of meats, cheese, and cucumber slices - when all of the ingredients are used, season with salt, pepper and drizzling of vinaigrette - repeat the process until the entire loaf is filled and is brimming over the top - place on the lid and press down to join the lid with the bowl of the bread. Cover the entire bread bowl with plastic wrap and then cover in foil. Refrigerate 18-24 hours.

Unwrap and cut into wedges for serving. Yields 4 servings.

HOME SPAS: WATERS WORK WONDERS

SPECIAL WRITER

Imagine yourself soaking in a tub of hot whirling water without a care in the world. No need to plan a vacation to a far-away resort in order to enjoy a half-hour lounging in waters hovering around 104 degrees. As more and more people realize there's nothing like a hot soaking to rejuvenate the mind and body at the end of the day, sales of home spas continue to surge.

For thousands of years, man has known about the benefits of soaking in hot waters.

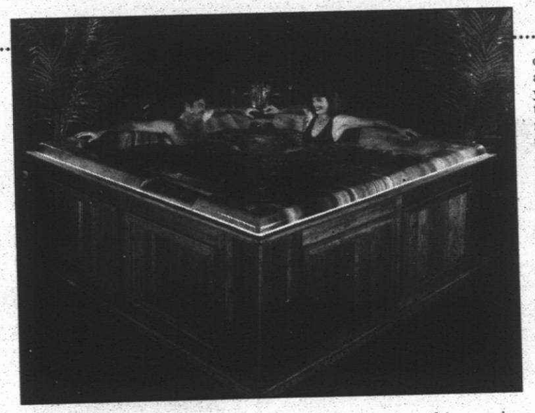

Ancient civilizations such as the Greeks, Romans, Chinese and Japanese valued the therapeutic and restorative properties of hydrotherapy so greatly that thermal baths became an essential element of daily life. In more modern time although still centuries ago in Spa, a resort in Belgium, people used the town's hot springs to renew themselves alleviating stress, fatigue and depression through the wonders of waters.

Today even European governments, with the exception of the British, believe in the benefits of spas. A national health insurance system enables almost anyone with a signed form from their physician not only to visit a spa for a cure, but be entirely reimbursed for expenses.

When water is heated between 100 and 104 degrees, it acts as a relaxant on the body dilating blood vessels, slowing the pulse rate, and slightly enlarging the heart allowing it to work 10 to 20 percent more efficiently. As circulation improves, muscles relax.

Tension and anxiety are a part of Bob and Lee Alanskas' hectic lifestyle. He's a sales representative for an automotive supply company. She's a full-time volunteer for arts organizations around town. The Livonia couple installed a spa in their patio, then enclosed it with glass for winter and screens for summer, when it doubles as a pool.

"It's so therapeutic. What makes it so nice is that it has jets and recliners. We can lay down and get a massage on everything from your back to your feet if you have stress or sore muscles," Lee Alanskas said.

Steve Bishop, owner of Pools-a-Go-Go in Berkley, uses his outdoor spa in the dead of winter for the same reasons as the Alanskases. During a recent snowstorm, which dumped nearly six inches on the metro area, Bishop and his wife invited another couple to take a dip after work. The ideal 104-degree temperature eliminates any chill one feels once submerged in the water.

"They're very relaxing. They leave you feeling good. I go home and de-stress but a lot of people like to entertain," Bishop said.

"Our sales (of spas) are increasing every year. They've been around for 20 years but they aren't what they are today. Today, they're portable with multi-hydrojets and LCD readouts. If you're moving you can take them with you."

How to choose a spa

In the 1950s and '60s creative Californians recycled wooden wine vats into hot tubs. Today the choice of spas overwhelms shoppers. Soft-sided or acrylic? Bishop sells both. But what should you choose? There are a lot of factors to take into consideration. What is your price range? Costs for a spa run from $2,500 for the soft-sided to $10,000 for a deluxe acrylic model with 25 jets.

To determine your needs, ask: Will the spa be used indoors or outdoors? In privacy for its therapeutic value or in groups for entertaining?

Despite Michigan's cold climate, only one in 100 customers at Fireplace & Spa in Canton opt for an indoor location, said salesperson Gary Novak. Most install the acrylic Cal Spas in decks or on patios. Their best selling eight-foot model, priced at $7,195, accommodates six to eight comfortably.

"The bulk of customers are pleasure seekers. We work longer hours and more days. It does take the edge off," said Novak, adding this advice.

"As far as safety concerns, make sure the spa is UL listed. The thickness of material is important to prevent cracking and the more insulation the better because water transfers heat faster than air. The better the insulation, the lower the cost to run."

Fireplace & Spa locations in Southfield, Utica and Canton also carry gazebos to enclose a backyard spa. They are designed for privacy and to eliminate such elements as weather and mosquitoes. A Japanese bath house style would fit right in with an Oriental garden in the back yard.

Safety first

Even if you're in good health, never spend more than 1/2-hour in a spa. Because of its effect on the body, people with medical problems should consult their physician first.

"People with high blood pressure should check with their doctor, because the hot water does raise the heart rate," Novak said.

For homes with children, locking caps or covers are available to keep the spa securely covered when not in use.

Books for gardeners offer wealth of ideas

MARTY FIGLEY

"Irises and Other Flowers," Elizabeth Blackadder, watercolors, Deborah Kellaway, commentary (Abrams, $19.95), is a beautiful small book perfect for anyone who loves flowers and art. Kellaway relates the history of each flower and its place in art and Blackadder paints; tulips, amaryllis, lilies, poppies, hellebores and others, as well as her favorite irises.

Kellaway explains that the artist studies each flower and paints them, directly onto the paper, as she sees them, whether the petals have fallen or not. Exquisitely done with an ethereal quality.

"The Gardener's Complete Q & A" (Storey/Garden Way, $39.95) has a question-and-answer format. Part I: Lawns, covers new or rebuilt lawns and care; II: Landscapes, trees, shrubs and ground covers, flower gardens, structures and special gardens; III: Annuals, designing with, growing, those for a specific purpose, problems and solutions; IV: Perennials, planning, in the landscape, caring for, diseases and pests; V: Herbs, growing, problems and solutions; VI: Fruits, orchard, growing; VII: Vegetables, home garden, growing. The last five parts include many suitable plants, in alphabetical order, with specific questions regarding that plant.

Each part is thoroughly covered; line drawings are clear and color photos are very good. Even if you don't have a specific question, a great deal can be learned from reading this book. I'll put it on my reference shelf.

New gardeners

For new gardeners, a little book, "Basic Gardening: A Handbook for Beginning Gardeners," Louise Carter (Fulcrum, $9.95, soft), is just that. All aspects of gardening are covered, not in great detail because of space, but well done. For young people and those just starting to garden, a welcome gift.

"Gardening Wizardry for Kids," Patricia Kite (Barron's, $14.95), should be in each classroom or home. More than 300 indoor gardening projects that use inexpensive, readily available materials will keep the children entertained while they learn without knowing it! Bright and attractive, with illustrations by Yvette Banek, the ideas are here. Grow ginger root and radish foliage, learn about plants and water, dry flowers, and make a fruit stamp decoration, plus more.

Kite throws in some historical facts to keep things humming. The American Horticultural Society is offering the book through its book service, or you can write Barron's, 250 Wireless Blvd., Hauppauge, N.Y. 11788.

"The New Gardener: The Practical Guide to Gardening Basics," Pippa Greenwood (Dorling Kindersley, $24.95), is for new gardeners as well as seasoned ones. Ideas for all types of gardens are included and each subject, from lawns to greenhouses, dividing, planting and trellises to patios, is skillfully explained and demonstrated with drawings and photos. Bright, very organized pages are packed full of information that works.

Wild lawn

"The Wild Lawn Handbook," Stevie Daniels (Macmillan, $27.95), is the book for those who wish to convert a traditional lawn into more informal style that will attract wildlife and require less water, chemicals and care. This isn't for those who think that by just letting the grass grow, this will be accomplished, but rather for those who are willing to spend the time - up to three years or more - and the dedicated energy in order to realize their goal.

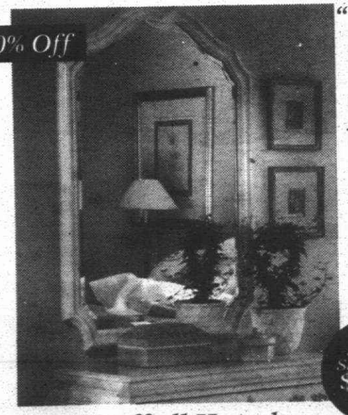

Daniels has tackled the subject with a realistic attitude and lots of information and interviewed people across the country to find out how they changed their landscapes. She even has cautioned about local ordinances, and given sources for plants and seeds as well as organizations that can give advice. We are in the Eastern Woodlands area according to her map and many, many native plants are available. A very thorough and important book - the "lawn" of the future is here.

"365 Days of Gardening," Christine Allison (Harper Collins, $17.95), contains more than 1,000 bits of information that you may find useful: tips from long ago, inspirational thoughts, practical facts - i.e., continuously remove lower leaves of Brussels sprouts, early in the day so they will snap off easiest, to encourage heads to keep forming higher up the stalk. And use holiday wrap cylinders for making biodegradable collars to protect plants from cutworms... All garden subjects are covered from vegetables to ornamentals.

The home stylist will visit the client's home to create custom decorating projects and supervise their installations, for a one-time fee of $75 for up to three rooms.

The fee is waived once $750 is spent.

The home stylist will make design recommendations, suggest fabric wall covering choices and paint colors, take measurements, advise on furniture, lighting and accessories purchases and arrange to have window treatments, slipcovers or other home furnishing projects made to specific needs.

Clients can use the Laura Ashley Made-to-Measure or Made-to-Order and other custom options to have decorative items made.

In addition, the home stylist can help the homeowner integrate or refurbish existing furniture, coordinating with local workrooms for special needs.

For information, call toll-free (800) 367-2000.

APPLIANCE DOCTOR

JOE GAGNON

For the past several years you could be driving down the highway in Minnesota or on a gravel road in Texas and you might hear this appliance doctor with his favorite cliche on the airwaves of America. I have repeated it so many times now, that people walk up to me and play it back. "They don't make them like they used to."

For many years, we in the service industry have seen quality of American made major home appliances diminish to the point of ridiculous. Failure of the same components in certain products over and over again tell us exactly what is wrong before we even get to the house. The escalating cost of these parts especially in the past five years have created complete replacement of products rather than repairs. Can not the manufacturers in this country understand that the American homeowner wants a quality product? Is it so difficult for them to put out a product which will last a normal period of time with a minimum amount of breakdown? You bet it is, and I'm about to be brave enough to tell exactly why.

Years ago there were 27 manufacturers of home appliances in this country who built in years of life into their products which exceeded 15 to 20 years in many cases. Today there are but five who control all of the old names we grew up with. These five expect to be around for many years and can only do so by having sales figures which exceed last year's sales figures or at least stay the same. How can we even think that the quality and long life of yesteryear should be maintained year after year. The replacement market it what the manufacturers count on to stay in business and even if it means giving a value not equal to the dollar, they intend to do just that, stay in business.

Recently I heard the Pink brothers being interviewed by America's Master Handyman Glenn Haege about their well-known kitchen cabinet business. They made comment on how many consumers are selecting Asco and Bosch dishwashers over American made brands. They felt that selection was made based on noise level and quality of product and that is what a homeowner wants in a dishwasher. I don't blame them one little bit for recommending these foreign made products. If you owned a business, wouldn't you want your customers to be satisfied with the complete job.

In the recent issue of Appliance Service News, they published the new lowered life expectancy of some major home appliances. This is a first as far as I've seen and I still don't think the figures are as low as I'm seeing. Forget those figures we've seen for so many years such as 15 years on a refrigerator, it is now 10. The dishwasher has dropped to nine, while the hot water tank that some of you have used for over 20 years has fallen to life expectancy of just nine years. Are the manufacturers of major home appliances in this country listening to the needs of you and me? I think you and I can get them to pay attention by working together on a little project. I would like you to join me.

Take a pen and paper and write me a short or long letter on how you feel about the appliances in your home. Tell me how long it lasted and how many times it failed. Did you like your products performance and in general, your thoughts about the product.

I will take your letters and make sure that they get into the hands of the presidents of each of the companies that you write about. Just maybe, a little something which is better than nothing might help to make a difference.

I invite you to take a little time and write your own column about appliances, send it to me in care of this newspaper, and together we could help a whole future generation receive some old-fashioned quality.

Joe Gagnon, the Appliance Doctor, will answer your questions about maintaining and repairing large appliances. Gagnon is president of Carmack Appliances in Garden City and does a weekly radio program on WJR-AM. He is author of "First Aid from the Appliance Doctor," available at area bookstores.

Ann Arbor garden walk slated

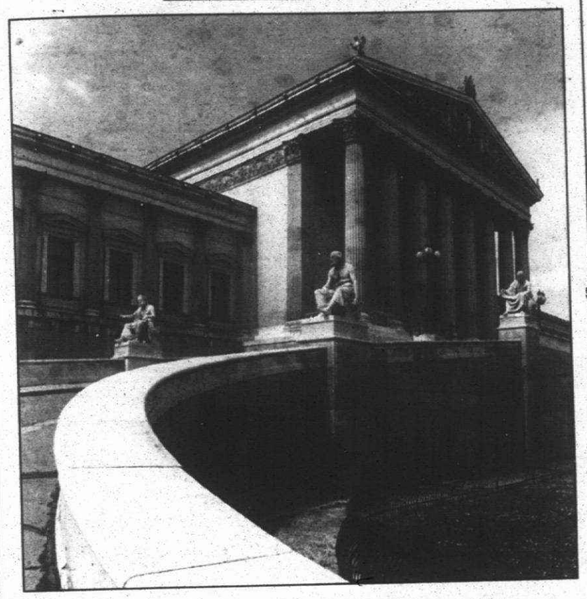

The Ann Arbor Branch of the National Farm and Garden Association will sponsor the sixth annual Garden Walk noon to 4 p.m. Friday, June 14, and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, June 15.

Tickets are $8 per person. For more information, call (313) 769-0691, (313) 769-9587 or (313) 663-2339.

Five gardens with unusual landscapes and a variety of special plants will be featured: a garden retreat in a golf course community, a "rose is a rose" garden, a collector's garden of perennials and woody plants, "Mother Goose's secret gardens" and a gardener's paradise with a spectacular Huron River view.

Proceeds from the walk will benefit Washtenaw Community College for landscaping and horticultural scholarships.

FOCUS ON PHOTOGRAPHY

Plan for vacation photos

MONTE NAGLER

Warm weather is finally here. Summer is just around the corner. Now is the time most of us begin planning for that upcoming vacation.

Part of the planning should be preparing for your photography while on the trip. Listed here are some tips that will help you bring home those winning shots.

• Make sure you're thoroughly familiar with all the controls and features on your camera. Even reread the instruction manual. Practice with a roll before you leave and become an expert at changing film and lenses correctly and quickly.

• Travel light, but don't leave an important piece of equipment home. In addition to your camera and normal lens, a wide angle and moderate telephoto will cover most picture taking situations. You'll find zoom lenses very beneficial on a trip. A small flash unit and collapsible tripod will come in handy and a polarizer filter will add important impact in your scenic shots.

• Film? Take enough to get you through the trip, usually a roll per day. Decide in advance if you prefer print or slide film and select a minimum speed that will enable you to cope with a variety of lighting situations. Take along a few rolls of fast film for those special low light shots you're bound to encounter. Important: If traveling by air, don't let your film pass through X-ray screening machines. Use a film shield bag or request visual inspection of your film.

• Do some planning before you leave. If going abroad, study the people, locales and customs. If staying in the United States, read up on the national parks or other points of interest you'll be visiting to get some photographic ideas.

• Don't pass up pictures on the way. Many good photographic opportunities are missed by ignoring interesting things en route because it's felt better pictures are waiting at the final destination.

• Include people in your shots. People at work or play are an integral part of any environment especially when engaged in traditional crafts and events.

• Go beyond staged events. Real people and real places are far better subjects than staged events for the tourists' benefit.

Monte Nagler is a fine art photographer based in Farmington Hills. You can leave him a message by dialing (313) 953-2047, then his mailbox number, 1873. His fax number is (810) 644-1314.

Designers, builders win raves

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

Area contractors and architects played major roles in most of the projects designated as 1996 construction and design winners in an annual program sponsored by the Engineering Society of Detroit.

The winners included a church, house, stadium and factory.

"Every other competitive award program is based on a singular focus," said Karl Greimel, professor or architecture at Lawrence Technological University and chairman of the awards program.

"In this instance, we expect some member of the team to be a member of ESD. Beyond that, the breadth and depth of choice is greater than any other award program I'm familiar with.

"That's what gives this program such integrity, strength and importance," Greimel added. "Choice is made entirely on quality and satisfaction of criteria."

Criteria included quality of overall design, innovative construction techniques, land use/environment consideration, materials, unique engineering systems, energy consciousness, and social/economic impact.

This is the first unmanned vehicle durability test facility in North America. It includes a 1.3 mile test track of two surfaces, one of concrete and stretches of unlevel granite blocks, the other paved with diagonal stretches. A 12,000-square-foot building is part of the site.

This retreat center/meeting house in the woods was surgically placed by using a 120-foot tower crane with a 246-foot boom halfway up the hill. Erosion was minimized, access roads avoided.

Exterior materials of copper and stone require minimal maintenance and will oxidize and change color with age. Wood is the primary interior material. All materials have a natural finish.

Structural, mechanical and electrical systems are exposed as much as possible to create an environment where students have a first-hand view of the technology.

This five-story, 280,000-square-foot facility will accommodate research, computer and engineering areas with administrative functions at the automaker's research and engineering campus.

This contemporary 3,500-square-foot house on the fringe of the business district of an affluent suburb symbolizes the owner's achievements in the steel and commodities markets.

The house boldly states that a home doesn't always need a cute gabled roof, arched windows and a brick chimney.

Factories today aren't simple enclosures, but a complex integration of processes, technology and appropriateness. This facility reflects an emphasis on lean production, automation and knowledgeable workers on the floor.

This baseball stadium, built of brick and steel, combines the best of oldtime parks with modern conveniences, great sight lines and comfortable seating. The stadium demands as much attention as the game.

Other award winners involved firms which, while outside of the O&E coverage area, include principals and employees who live in our communities.

Walbridge Aldinger was general contractor for the Wayne County Medical Examiner's Office and a replacement parking structure at Detroit Metroploitan Airport.

Smith, Hinchman & Grylls was architect/engineer for the Bagnoud Aerospace Engineering Center. The firm, achitect/engineer for the Guardian Building completed in downtown Detroit in 1929, also was cited for historic achievement.

DeMaria & Co. was general contractor and Ghafari Associates was architect/designer for the Patterson Technical Center at Henry Ford Community College in Dearborn.

■ Peterson lauded

Mark Peterson of Coldwell Banker the Michael Group in Clarkston has been named a top 10 sales associate in Michigan for gross commission income and listings sold for the first quarter among Coldwell Banker Residential Affiliates.

The Michael Group was among the top five offices in listings sold for the first quarter for the Midwest Region, Coldwell Banker Residential Affiliates.

Robert J. Pilarcik is broker/owner.

■ Maibach speaks

Ben C. Maibach III, president of Barton Malow, a general contracting/management company in Southfield, recently delivered the graduation address to Lawrence Technological University students at Cobo Center.

He also received an honorary doctorate degree in engineering during graduation ceremonies.

Maibach, a Farmington Hills resident, holds a civil engineering degree from Michigan State University and has taken graduate and professional studies at Wayne State, MIT and Harvard.

■ Delaney honored

John F. Delaney of Coldwell Banker Schweitzer Real Estate in West Bloomfield has been chosen as a member of the company's Diamond Society.

The honor is bestowed only on the top 10 percent of the more than 55,000 Coldwell Banker sales associates in North America.

His professional designations include Graduate Realtors Institute, Residential Marketing Specialist, Corporate Property Specialist and Certified Buyers Agent.

■ Inspector joins association

Timothy J. Dunn, Accurately-Dunn Inspections and a Canton resident, has joined the ranks of the National Association of Home Inspectors.

In order to become an NAHI inspector, a member must meet training and experience requirements and agree to perform inspections in compliance with standards of practice and a code of ethics.

■ Tree man

Brian Granader, a sales associate at Century 21 Associates Northwood, figures he will deliver about 1,500 pine seedlings free to front porches in Royal Oak this spring.

The main purpose is to beautify the city, Granader said, but he concedes that it doesn't hurt to get his name out, either.

"It's especially rewarding to give back something to the community," he said. "I live here. I do a lot of business here. I strongly believe in showing appreciation to the people with whom Century 21 Northwood services."

Granader estimates that the goodwill gesture/promotion cost about $2,000.

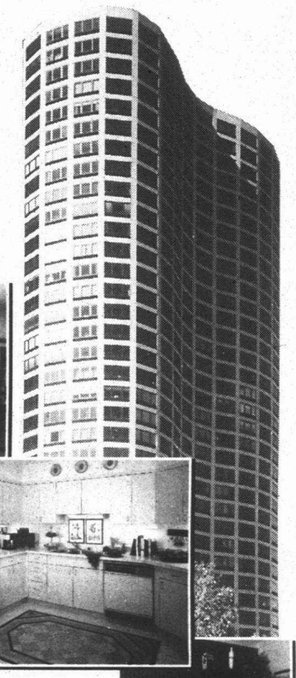

■ Concierge services

Francine Finucan, owner of Executive Concierge Services in Troy, announces she's added Fox Hills Apartments, Bloomfield Hills, and Oakwood Corporate Housing, Southfield, as clients.

"Customized to each client, our services can range from airport shuttles to total household management," Finucan said. "These personalized services are in response to peoples' growing needs and shrinking leisure time."

Michigan ranks 3rd in floriculture sales

Michigan placed third nationally in value of wholesale sales of floriculture products in 1995, according to the Federal/State Michigan Agricultural Statistics Service. Only California and Florida reported larger sales than Michigan.

Reports from Michigan's 566 commercial growers indicated an estimated wholesale value of over $184 million for all surveyed floriculture crops, up 10 percent from last week. This estimate includes summarized sales data as reported by growers with $100,000 or more in sales plus a calculated wholesale value of sales for operations with sales from $10,000 to $99,999. Crop category breakdowns for Michigan operations with over $100,000 in sales and the percent change from 1994 were as follows:

First, bedding/garden plants with $131 million in sales, up 12 percent; second, flowering potted plants with $26.2 million in sales, up 7 percent; third, cut flowers with $10.2 million in sales, down 6 percent; and fourth, foliage for indoor or patio use with $3.8 million in sales, up 5 percent.

Michigan leads the nation in value of sales for five floriculture crops. They are:

■ Potted geraniums (cuttings) with 5.7 million pots sold, valued at $9.4 million.

■ Geranium hanging baskets with 411,000 baskets sold, valued at $2.6 million.

■ Impatiens hanging baskets with 349,000 baskets sold, valued at $1.9 million.

■ Bedding impatiens with 2.1 million flats sold, valued at $12.7 million.

■ Bedding petunias with 1.3 million flats sold, valued at $7.4 million.

■ Cut gladioli with nearly 34 million spikes sold, valued at $5.4 million.

■ Bedding geraniums with 469,000 flats sold, valued at $3.7 million.

■ New Guinea impatiens hanging baskets with 410,000 baskets sold, valued at $2.6 million.

■ Bedding New Guinea impatiens with 102,000 flats sold, valued at $961,000.

■ Cut sweetheart roses with 1.5 million blooms sold, valued at $741,000.

Total greenhouse cover for all operations in the state rose 3 percent to 32.1 million square feet. This includes both rigid and film plastic greenhouses as well as glass greenhouses. Only California and Florida have more total greenhouse cover.

Nationally, the value of floriculture crops continued to increase in 1995 but at a slower pace. The total value of all crops at wholesale for all growers over $10,000 of sales is estimated at $3.27 billion for 1995 compared to $3.25 billion in 1994.

Area in production for the 36 states totaled 843 million square feet over cover area and 27,155 acres of open ground in 1995. The largest valued products were bedding and garden plants which increased 3 percent in 1995. At $1.32 billion, this category contributed 44 percent of the total wholesale value of production for operations over $100,000 in size.

No sweat, keep cool and save

With summer on the way, it's time to crank up the air conditioner and prepare for those outrageous electric bills. Right? Wrong! Just follow these simple tips from Home Depot and not only will you save energy and money, but you'll also beat the heat.

Programmable thermostats let you set an operating schedule that your air conditioner will follow. For example,you leave for work at 7:30 a.m. and your thermostat adjusts to 80 degrees while no one is home. At 5 p.m. your thermostat returns to 76 degrees. You come home to a cool house, yet the air hasn't been on during the day while you're not home. Programmable thermostats are ideal for people who are on a set schedule. They are easy to install and cost between $30 and $115.

Dehumidifiers pull moisture out of the air and into a room. When the air is drier, it feels cooler. You can set a thermostat a few degrees higher than normal and still feel comfortable. Dehumidifiers cost approximately $200.

Loan programs offer flexible mortgage options

MORTGAGE SHOPPING

DAVID C. MULLY

Balloon mortgages may be suitable if you plan to sell or refinance your home within a few years and want a fixed, low monthly payment.

Last week we discussed the advantages of fixed rate and adjustable rate mortgages to meet different financial needs. Today we'll examine other mortgage options.

Two Step Mortgage®

The Two-Step is a special type of adjustable-rate mortgage because it adjusts only once - either at seven years of at five years. After the initial adjustment, the mortgage maintains a fixed rate for the remaining 23 or 25 years of a 30-year mortgage repayment term. For example, if your initial interest rate was 8 percent, you would pay that rate for the first seven (or five) years. Then, for the remaining 23 (or 25) years you would pay an interest rate that is indexed to the value of the 10-year Treasury security on the adjustment date. This new rate can never be more than 6 percentage points higher than your old rate. There is no limits on how much lower the adjusted interest rate can be. The Two-Step provides the benefit of initial low rates with the stability of longer term financing. If you continue living in your home beyond the loan adjustment date, the Two-Step offers the assurance of a fixed rate for the remaining term of the loan. At the adjustment date, there is no additional refinancing cost, no forms to complete and no requalification necessary.

Balloon mortgages

Balloon loans offer lower interest rates for shorter term financing, usually five, seven or 10 years. At the end of this term, they require refinancing or paying off the outstanding balance with a lump sum payment. Balloon mortgages may be suitable if you plan to sell or refinance your home within a few years and want a fixed, low monthly payment. The advantage they offer is an interest rate that is lower than fully amortizing fixed-rate mortgages, including 15-year mortgages and Two-Step mortgages. For example, your initial interest rate may be 7.5 percent, and you would pay that rate for the first five, seven or 10 years (depending on the terms of your balloon loan). Then, your entire outstanding loan balance would be due to the lender - or you might have to pay a fee to refinance your loan at the prevailing interest rate. However, ask about all the conditions for a refinance option at the end of the balloon term. With some balloon mortgages, the lender doesn't guarantee to extend the loan past the balloon date. If you don't feel you will be able to meet all the refinance conditions or think the balloon term may be up before you are ready to move, this type of loan may not be appropriate for you.

Other types of mortgages to consider

Fannie Mae's Community Home Buyer's Program. These loans allow you to use a greater percentage of your income toward monthly housing expenses (income/debt ratios of 33/28 percent versus traditional ratios of 28/36 percent), and they don't require you to have two months of cash in reserve at closing. In some areas, these loans have income limit restrictions. You may find these flexible mortgage loans helpful because you don't have to rely on a traditional credit history report to demonstrate that you are a good candidate for a mortgage. You can show you have a good credit history using your rent and utility receipts.

Government-insured loans. You may want to consider the mortgage plans offered by the Federal Housing Administration (FHA), the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA), or the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA). FHA and VA loans were discussed in my recent columns but to summarize, properties purchased under these programs must meet certain minimum standards and possible loan limits. FHA-insured loans offer very low down payments (3 to 5 percent). VA guaranteed mortgages with no down payment are available to qualified veterans. You must get a certificate of eligibility from the Department of Veterans Affairs for a VA loan. The guaranteed rural housing program offered by FmHA is for people who meet certain lower income requirements and wish to buy a home in a rural area. This government-guaranteed loan requires no down payment.

Q: We are selling our home ourselves. What is the best way to make sure that a prospective buyer is qualified for a mortgage?

A: When selling a home by owner, you must wear the different hats the real estate agent usually wears when representing you, one of which is to pre-screen all prospective buyers to make sure they are qualified for the necessary financing. The real estate agent will request a pre-approval letter or a pre-qualification letter (not as strong as a pre-approval letter) from a mortgage lender. After receiving it, she would call the loan officer or lender who issued the letter to verify that the lender is reputable and ask how long it would take to close the loan if they foresee any hitches etc. This is the same approach you should take. Another option is to recommend to the buyers a lender for pre-screening that you are comfortable with.

"Cracks can occur when expansion joints or reinforcement wire are not used in the original construction," said Mark Wacho, a building materials specialist with Home Depot. "It's important to repair cracks when they're small. If they are not repaired, they can grow longer and deeper. When this happens in a driveway, for instance, water seeping through the crack can erode the soil underneath and cause the slab to shift."

Unfilled cracks in driveways and sidewalks also are an open invitation to wild vegetation which can grow in the cracks and make them larger.

Cracks in basement allow moisture to enter the home from soil behind the foundational walls or from underneath the floor. In addition, cracks are an open door into your home for ants and other insects which live in the ground. And, whether inside or outside the home, cracks in concrete are unsightly and pose a danger. Even a slight difference in height between the two sides of the crack on the floor can cause someone to trip and fall. So, if it's cracked, fill it. Here's how.

Choose a mild, dry day if working outdoors. First, use a wire brush or chisel to remove loose material from the crack. Then, use a ball-peen hammer and cold chisel to create a dovetail surface, which will prevent the repair material from pushing out of the crack.

For the vertical cracks, use the same procedure, except that the first concrete mixture should be troweled in a thickness of one quarter to one-half inches and allowed to dry.

Then, apply additional layers until the crack is slightly overfilled, then feather it out with the surface.

Coat the edges of the hole with latex bonding liquid. Mix concrete with water, then stir in the bonding liquid. Pour in the mixture and smooth with a flexible knife or trowel.

One important thing to remember throughout the repair process is future prevention. Many problems of concrete cracking, chipping, crumbling and pop-outs, are due to improper installation. Remember to have the proper water-to-concrete mix and a slower drying process is almost always advisable. You can slow the drying process by covering new concrete with plastic.

The tools you'll need for this job are wire brush, masonry chisel, ball-peen hammer, trowel, wallboard knife, vacuum, sledge hammer, tamper, screed board hand float and shovel. The materials are Portland cement, vinyl-reinforced concrete, latex bonding liquid, ready-mix or premix concrete mix.

Board's assessment discount may be illegal

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q: Our bylaws provide that annual statements shall be payable by the co-owners in 12 equal monthly installments. My question to you is can the board of the association establish a discount for this assessment if paid in January 1996 for the full year. The discount that they are giving is approximately 5 percent. The board claims that they are doing this for the convenience of the treasurer for deposit and investing more funds earlier because of our up north location. However, CDs only pay 3 percent to 3.5 percent.

To make things worse, the board has recently increased our monthly assessment to begin in January to meet budget requirements, but then, somehow, decides that it wants to discount the monthly assessment if paid in advance. In short, we are money short per budget requirements necessitating an increase in the monthly assessments and yet our board offers a discount to be paid up front, losing substantial sums for the year if the monies are paid. I presented this information to the board on several occasions but to no avail. Does this make sense? Is it legal to discount condominium monthly assessments?

A:It is an interesting question which you have posed, the answer to which in part depends upon the express provisions of the condominium documents. You have indicated in your question that the assessments are to be paid in 12 equal monthly installments. The board has apparently established a policy, however, that it will provide a discount if the payments are paid early. Presumably, the board has the authority to establish some sort of discount for assessments, as long as same is fiscally responsible and authorized, either expressly or implicitly, by the condominium documents. I would suggest that the board would be on firmer ground in providing a discount if the documents provide for same expressly, authorizing the board to do so. Absent such an express authorization, the board's authority to provide a discount for early payment may be questionable since there is no prohibition on a co-owner paying his assessment early, even if they are due on a month to month basis and there is no concomitant obligation on the part of the association to grant such a discount. I have seen situations where boards have levied additional or special assessments with the proviso that it would be discounted if paid early. Of course, that was within the express board's authority to levy the terms and conditions of an additional assessment, whereas your documents may provide more specifically the terms and conditions for payment of the annual assessment on a monthly basis. To say the least , the board's decision may not be fiscally responsible and may be legally impermissible. However, again, it is necessary to review the documents in detail before a comprehensive opinion can be provided.

Q: We put in trees in the back of our house approximately 38 years ago, believing that the trees were on our property. Now we find out, after having a survey, that the trees are actually on our neighbor's property. He has only lived there two years. We have maintained these trees all these years. Do we have a chance to retain our trees. The neighbor put up a fence to assert his claim to the property.

A: You may have a basis for adverse possession of the property if you meet the requirements set forth in the law. I would recommend that you consult with an attorney who can gather all of the facts, including the nature of your maintenance of the trees over these years and how far the encroachment is on the property. You may have a good claim.
