New Catholic school to be built

It's a go. Archbishop Adam Cardinal Maida announced that a new $7.2 million Catholic school will be built in Canton. It will be the first Catholic school built in the Detroit area since the 1960s.

The Archdiocese of Detroit has approved construction of a 60,000-square-foot, $7.2-million Catholic school at Resurrection Church in Canton.

The kindergarten-through-eighth-grade school, expected to be open for business in September 1997, will be shared with St. Kenneth, St. John Neumann and St. Thomas A'Becket parishes.

"This is truly an historic moment," said Archbishop Adam Cardinal Maida in a press release. "It's the first Catholic school to be built in the Archdiocese of Detroit since the mid-1960s. I wish to commend the Catholic families from the four parishes in the area who sought the school and their pastors who responded to the need."

However, low initial interest on the part of parents made financial concessions by the archdiocese necessary to get this school built.

Last April officials said each family must contribute $5,000 to the construction fund. This generated the enrollment of about 100 families through May 1 when the goal was 380.

Maida reduced the fee to $3,500 per family, which is expected to boost enrollment.

To compensate, Maida also agreed to extend the length of a $4 million, interest-free loan to the project from 10 years to an undetermined number of years.

"That's a reflection of how badly the cardinal wants this to happen," said St. Kenneth parishioner Mike Gerou, who has enrolled his two children.

Maida left the proposed tuition at $2,500 per child, per year.

Other financial details are unchanged, too:

The lingo is the same. The enthusiasm and competitiveness are there. They still hit ropes to the outfield and slap each other on the butt.

But these men sport a few more wrinkles and gray hairs than the typical softballers.

They play with two first bases, one for the runner and one for the first baseman. And when a run is scored the runner crosses a line behind home plate, which is reserved for the catcher's foot as he awaits the throw.

The forum for this endeavor is a 65-and-over men's softball league that includes two teams from Livonia and one each from Taylor, Dearborn, Southgate and Canton.

They play a 30-game season in 15 weeks beginning in mid May. On Mondays and Wednesdays at 10 a.m. they do battle. But the emphasis on winning isn't what it was when they were young men.

"Here the attitude is 'Play,'" said Canton resident Bob Victor, 65, who plugs the hole at third base for the Canton team. "The important thing to do is play. We're 50 years removed from high school but still have the same ambition, same enthusiasm."

Victor's wife Mary Ann has watched Bob play since the two attended St. Casimir High School in Detroit, circa 1948.

"It's better than being a couch potato," she said while sitting in the wooden-plank stands at Heritage Park Wednesday. "More guys should come out. The fact that they're exercising is enough." Winning is a bonus. "I come to all their games. I'd rather watch them than the younger guys. They're too competitive. I really admire these guys."

Canton resident Charlie Volker, 69, is perhaps the team's most dedicated softballer. Although recently sidelined after a batted ball jammed the index finger on his glove hand, Volker is a member of four teams and plays six days a week.

"I'm looking for another team," he said, so he can play every day. "I love it. It keeps you young. When you retire and you're sitting around, you kick the bucket at an early age.

"Of course," he added, "I think of 65 as middle age."

Jack Scheel, 65, is enjoying his first year on Canton's over-65 team. He previously played on the over-55 team. "I've played ball all my life," he said, adding that he enjoys "the camaraderie, competition, exercise, a little bit of everything. I'm glad at this age I can do it."

During the winter Scheel plays ball in Florida, stiff knee and all. "Sometimes the thing gets so stiff I just can't move," he said.

Golf course building costs drive loan

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW

Unanticipated construction cost increases at the Pheasant Run Golf Course have forced Canton trustees to increase the amount of an inter-fund loan to pay the bills by about $130,000.

The amount of money that trustees have loaned from the general fund to the building authority construction fund to build Pheasant Run has risen from $319,500 to $450,151.

Pheasant Run revenue is expected to be used to reimburse the general fund about $75,000 a year through 2002, said Chief Financial Officer John Spencer. The total payback will be $523,299 after a 4-percent interest charge is figured in.

These payments are separate from the $471,620 a year for 20 years the township is paying to retire $5.7 million in bonds that were sold to fund construction of the course.

Although construction cost about $1 million more than originally anticipated, Municipal Services Director Aaron Machnik said cost overruns are to be expected.

"Changes to a construction job occur regularly with almost every construction job done," he said.

About $100,000 of the most recent overrun can be attributed to work done around the clubhouse. Asphalt paving was expected to cost $77,000, but the bill was ultimately $91,000. Moving dirt around was expected to cost $18,000, but wound up at $25,000.

There were likewise minor increases in the amount spent on curb and gutter and site utilities.

The main unanticipated expense was in connecting electricity to the

1996-97 school budget still on drawing board

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Despite hours already spent in workshops, Plymouth-Canton school officials still are wrangling over the district's budget, projected to increase to $96 million in 1996-97 from $93 million this year.

Trustees raised questions at the June 10 meeting over projected spending increases for athletics and security. There's also disagreement about whether the district should hire — as administrators recommend — a full-time, $28,000 telecommunications clerk. The employee would manage the district's new phone and voice mail systems and monitor the district's $336,000 phone bill.

What most irked Board Vice President Mark Horvath, however, was expenditures not being talked about.

Board appointee blames loss on low voter turnout

WESTLAND SCHOOLS

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Wayne-Westland school board appointee Ed Turner blamed his campaign loss to victors David Cox and Robin Moore on a miserably low voter turnout in Monday's election.

"I attribute my loss to low voter turnout and the apathy of the people in the school district," said Turner, a six--month appointee who lost his bid for a four-year term.

Only 1,800 of the district's 65,000 registered voters went to the polls, marking a paltry 2.7 percent turnout as Cox and Moore won four-year terms.

Top vote-getter Cox, a former Westland City Council member, celebrated with political newcomer Moore and about 50 of their supporters as vote totals were reported to their election night headquarters at the Willow Creek apartment clubhouse.

Supporter Carol Gillentine declared victory for Cox and Moore at 8:30 p.m., just 30 minutes after polls closed.

"We have won," Gillentine said, prompting cheers from the enthusiastic crowd.

Cox garnered 947 votes compared to Moore's 915 and Turner's 722, according to unofficial totals. Two other board hopefuls trailed far behind, with Marshall Wright receiving 378 votes and Jack Stange getting 173 votes.

Moore carried eight of 17 voting precincts, and Cox won seven precincts. The winners tied with 27 votes each in the P.D. Graham Elementary precinct.

Turner captured the most votes in only one precinct, Hamilton Elementary, while Wright and Stange didn't carry any precincts.

The 2.7 percent turnout was far below projections of 15 to 20 percent, and some political observers suggested that voters stayed home because there were no issues such as tax increases on the ballot.

Cox, 38, won a school board term seven months after he lost his re-election bid for the Westland City Council. Cox, a senior account executive with an insurance agency, served two years on the council.

"I attribute my win to the people who got behind my campaign and talked to their friends and relatives and made today happen," Cox said Monday.

He cited financial issues as his top school board concern, and he pledged to seek more state dollars for local school districts.

"I'm absolutely committed to that," he said.

Moore, a 42-year-old accountant/controller, said her first bid for public office succeeded because she and her supporters worked tirelessly.

"I think just getting out and going door to door and getting my name out helped," Moore, a Wayne resident, said.

"I'm excited, and I'm ready to go," she said.

Moore drew some pre-election criticism because her daughter attends a private school, for what Moore has described as personal reasons. But her other two children are Wayne Memorial High School graduates, and Moore has said her daughter will eventually be moved into the public school system.

On Monday, Moore said the private school issue didn't cloud her campaign.

"I don't even think it became a real issue. It kind of fizzled," she said.

Departing school board president Francis "Bud" Winter said he believes that Cox and Moore are qualified for their positions.

"I feel very badly about Ed Turner, because I think he has a lot to offer this school district, but I think all of the candidates could do a good job," said Winter, who chose not to seek re-election. "They just have to remember that they are there for the children. That has to be their motivation."

Gillentine, who chaired Cox's campaign and helped with Moore's, said she believes voters decided the race based on candidate qualifications.

"David Cox's legislative expertise will be an asset to the board, and Robin Moore has some fresh ideas," Gillentine said. "I believe they can work as a team. The people who have been elected to this board (in recent years) are a team."

Turner, who has been involved in school matters for years, said his commitment to students will continue despite his election loss.

"The people of the district may have let me down a little bit," Turner said, "but I'm not going to let the schools down."

Turner's appointed term will end June 30, when Cox and Moore will be joining board holdovers Patricia Brown, Debra Fowlkes, David James, Mathew McCusker and Martha Pitsenbarger.

Wayne-Westland budget avoids red ink

WESTLAND SCHOOLS

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

A new $92.7 million Wayne-Westland school board budget avoids the red ink that plagued the district two years ago, but officials warn that any sudden, unforeseen expenses could renew deficit fears.

Projected revenues will outpace spending by only $2,500 for 1996-97, but the year-end balance is estimated at $407,255 due to dollars carried over from the previous year.

Even so, administration officials warn that the projected surplus is minuscule for a $92.7 million budget, particularly in an era when state-level cuts pose a continual threat.

"We're very tight," Patricia Brand, assistant superintendent for business, said of the newly approved budget.

School officials are troubled by declining enrollment; the district is expected to lose 300 to 400 pupils annually. The board loses about $5,600 in state dollars for each student.

For the 1996-97 budget year, alone, district revenues will plunge $2.5 million from the previous year's $95.2 million, according to an analysis from Brand.

"It's very difficult when you have a decreasing enrollment," she said.

Enrollment is estimated at 14,400 for 1996-97. That marks a 10,000-student decline from the early 1970s.

Moreover, financial difficulties have gutted the district's budget, with the surplus dropping from $6.8 million in June, 1992, to the projected $407,255 for 1996-97.

To be sure, administration officials are pleased to have erased a $2 million deficit that forced massive budget cuts in 1994-95, such as the elimination of transportation for students in grades seven through 12.

But officials stress that a healthy budget would provide a cushion of $6.5 million for emergencies.

"Obviously we need to do things to generate revenue so that we have that equity," school board member David James said during a meeting last Tuesday.

Despite the tight purse strings, officials have managed to plan for some much-needed expenditures, such as buying 14 new school buses.

"Our buses are old, and there are many that shouldn't be on the road right now," Brand said Tuesday.

The new budget, approved Tuesday in a 6-0 school board vote, had to be proposed even before a state aid bill had been ratified. That forced Brand to submit a spending plan based on what she called her "best estimates."

"We have staffed tightly and budgeted accordingly, and, therefore, we will have minimal ability to accommodate any additional financial problems," Brand wrote in a memo to school board members and Superintendent Duane Moore.

What is disturbing to school officials is the potential for financial difficulties on several fronts. Consider:

- The district has set aside $2.7 million to help pay for county special education programs, but the amount needed could increase.
- Higher retirement costs could force the board to find more money.
- Enrollment decreases below the 14,400-student mark would pose a greater loss than officials expect.
- Unforeseen repairs needed at aging school buildings could siphon money from the budget.

Eric Branham, owner of Modern Landscaping Co. of Westland phoned the Observer June 12 to ask that an article be printed to point out that his company is not Modern Day Landscaping.

"I had people calling me up, swearing at me, 'You were supposed to be here. Where's my money?'" he said.

Canton residents chosen as scholarship recipients

Twenty-three residents are recipients of scholarships through the Canton Community Education Grants program.

"We are very excited about what this has done," said Joan Noricks, executive director of the Canton Community Foundation, which served as the coordinator of annual grants from a number of community organizations, area colleges and businesses.

The foundation has offered scholarships for the past five years. This year, however, organizations, such as the Canton Chamber of Commerce, and service groups that provide scholarships were contacted and all eligibility applications put under the foundation umbrella.

"This year applicants had to fill out only one application," Noricks said. "A number of students qualify for three different scholarships."

Representatives of the service groups, organizations and chamber of commerce presented the scholarships to students Monday night at the Summit on the Park community center.

The following Canton residents received scholarships, where they are attending college and which organization provided the scholarship:

- Sherri Czub, Schoolcraft College, Canton Business & Professional Women.
- Jerri Kelly, Madonna University, Canton Business & Professional Women.

Parents lobby for alternative high school program

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

The community can expect more young people to turn to drugs and alcohol and to drop out of school if an alternative high school program called Journey isn't continued and expanded, parents and students told the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education Monday night.

The program, with a student-teacher ratio of 12-1, was piloted this year for 50 ninth-graders at Starkweather Center.

More than 200 people signed a petition, reiterating their request that the board extend Journey into 10th grade. School officials say there's not enough money to do so.

Dozens of Journey students and parents attended Monday's meeting. Among them was ninth-grader Stephani Hootman, who told trustees that Journey has turned her life around.

"This school has meant so much to me. My grades have went up. I have taken an interest in my work. Those things seemed like a curse to me just last year. I never did my work. Now you wanna shove us back with the crowd and uncaring teachers? I don't think so. No way. I want to stay, if I have to redo the ninth grade and flunk to come back. I love this school."

An emotional Hootman said the kids and teachers at Journey are "like a family. We're staying as far away from trouble and drugs and cigarettes as possible."

Steve Queen, a parent on Journey's advisory board, said an expanded Journey "can stem the tide of dropouts.

"What makes it work is each student is made to feel valued. What greater thing could be taught? To throw them back into what they consider an educational abyss (Plymouth-Canton Educational Park) is wrong. To reduce a child to a statistic is wrong. Lip service doesn't save kids; action does."

Dennis Marquess said Journey parents are getting the runaround from the administrators and the board. "We need someone to take some leadership. We are going to promise to keep pushing. We are not going to go away."

Parent Leslie Queen said, "These kids deserve an answer. No one has told them what is going to happen to them. They deserve nurturing and understanding from all of us."

Adele Aichler said Journey rescued her son. "I had started planning for his early death or jail; that's how badly things deteriorated. He's changed so dramatically I hardly believe it's my son."

Another parent urged the board to place the issue on its June 24 agenda. "You need to address this. Other districts across the state and nation are."

Superintendent Charles Little said the district simply can't afford another Journey class, nor is there space. "On Wednesday, administrators are meeting at the Park. They're looking for ways to smooth the transition. That's where it is at this point."

Board president David Artley said, "The solution has to come from the Park. They are the administrative folks."

Board treasurer Mike Maloney commended those who've made Journey a success.

"Unfortunately, we are strapped for resources in terms of space. I challenge you all to try to look for solutions within the system."

Trustee Sue Davis said, "I'm a little bit amazed people are asking us for direction. I was under the impression someone was directed to solve this problem."

"The reason this program was successful is that it was a 'bubble-up' (staff-conceived) program," said Little. "That's where the solution lies."

Trustee Barbara Graham said, "This concerns me. We've recognized special needs for special education and talented and gifted students. We've always had kids drop out, but we haven't been able to address it. I do believe this has to be a priority. I would be happier with a Journey program that is successful than with another brand new high school.

"If kids don't get the help they need now, we'll be spending two, three and four times more when they're on drugs and everything that goes with it," she said.

Trustee Jack Farrow suggested taking the per-pupil revenue of $5,270, multiplied by 50 students, and handing it over to Journey for a 10th grade. Little said the money wouldn't come close to covering costs, nor would it be fair when class sizes at the high schools are in the thirties. "That's the cold bucket of water we are dealing with," Little said.

Canton man recalls his 13th parachute jump in WWII

The following is Orville Dickerson's contribution to the book "At Ease," published by Renaissance Books:

Would 13th Jump Be His Last?

"Hey Dickerson, watch out. You've got your 13th jump coming up on Thursday.' I'd been hearing those taunts ever since the jump schedule was posted several days before. I didn't think I was superstitious, but this barrage of 'reminders' of bad luck was making me sweat this jump more than usual.

It was 1947 and I was a medic with the 188th Parachute Infantry Regiment stationed in Sendia, Japan. We were in the 11th Airborne, which was part of the Army of Occupation in Japan.

A bunch of nonsense, I told myself. The pre-13th jump hazing was traditional. Paratroopers were trained to believe they were the toughest men on earth, and no paratrooper would ever let anyone know he was even a little afraid.

The men scheduled for that 'fateful' jump never talked about their feelings, not even to each other.

If they can do it, so can I, I told myself. I'm just as good a man as they are, I affirmed with all the courage I had amassed during my 18 years of life.

Thursday finally arrived, and when the company assembled for reveille, I felt the comforting warmth of the sun. At least the weather is good, I thought.

The next few hours were busy – 30 minutes of calisthenics, morning chow and a 1 1/2-mile double-time march to the hangars. But even all this activity did not dispel the anxiety.

As soon as I was issued my chute, I rushed to be first on the 'stick.' There were three sticks of jumpers, 15 to a stick. The medic always jumped first or last, and I wanted to be first. If I froze, the guy behind me would push me out.

Soon we were airborne and over the jump site. 'Hook up!' the jumpmaster commanded. 'Move it up!'

188th Parachute Infantry

I was propelled to the door by the 14 men behind me. 'Go!' was the next command, and I'm not sure if I jumped or was pushed. The next thing I remember was the shock of the chute opening.

I looked up and saw one or two 'blown' panels. Nothing to worry about, I thought. But other jumpers started yelling, 'Blown chute!' I thought it was just some more kidding. 'You blow it!' I yelled back. But as the words left my mouth, I realized I was falling too fast!

The ground was rushing up to meet me. The chute was collapsing, and I was lopsided and falling fast!

I yanked on the heavy metal handle attached to the rip cord on my emergency chute. The chute opened between my legs and flipped me right-side up. It slowed me, but I was still falling too fast.

Oh brother, I thought, I'm going to be one of those who lost it on the 13th jump!

I hit the ground hard. But all those landing drills in jump school paid off. I had made it alive.

I still had the rip cord handle in my hand. As the medics rushed toward me, I stuffed it in my boot. A quick examination showed I had suffered no broken bones.

A jeep came speeding up, and a lieutenant jumped out. The first words out of his mouth were not, 'Are you hurt?' instead, he demanded, 'Where's your rip cord?'

'I don't know, sir,' I lied.

'You dropped it, didn't you, private?' the lieutenant yelled. 'Don't you know you could have hurt someone on the ground?'

I'm alive, I thought, ignoring the lieutenant's tirade. That handle will make a nice souvenir.

In all I made 22 jumps. Some were memorable, but none equaled the one on that Thursday in 1947. And ever since, I've been cautious about the number 13."

Canton Township resident Orville Dickerson is part of a book of military anecdotes just published by Reminisce Books.

The 210-page hardcover book is filled with short stories by men and women in uniform.

Dickerson's story concerns his 13th parachute jump as a member of the U.S. Army's 11th Airborne Division in 1947.

Dickerson nearly bought the farm that day in Japan as his main chute failed and he was forced to rely on his emergency chute.

Now 67 years old, Dickerson lives with his wife of 47 years, Latricia, in the Wagon Wheel trailer park on Mott Road.

Latricia Dickerson, 64, is a retired Willow Run High School teacher. She wrote her husband's contribution to the book by transcribing a tape of him telling the story.

The publishers shortened Dickerson's contribution, "but that's all right," his wife said. "It's their book."

To order a copy of the book, call (800) 558-1013 and have your credit card ready, or mail $22.49 to Reminisce Books, box 990; Greendale Wis. 53129.

"When we went forward with the last millage request, we asked for money for teacher training, materials and technology. I don't remember seeing equipment for the athletic program in there," he said.

"I don't see increases in here for teacher training, technology and textbooks. We told voters we needed a lot more money. Now we are saying we'll get by, and raise the budget elsewhere. I don't understand the rationale."

Horvath also questioned why there's been no discussion on how the district will pay to operate the five new schools it is proposing to build.

"We're talking about nickels and dimes, instead of how we are going to allocate the fund balance to operate new schools," said Horvath. "We're talking about a few thousand dollars here, and not talking about $5 million. If this is the money you are asking for, fine. Then don't go back to the public and ask for money, because you aren't going to get it."

Transportation spending for the athletic department is $40,500 this year, and budgeted at $49,500 for next year. Increases are also planned to buy equipment and hire an assistant gymnastic coach, bringing the total athletic budget to $968,056 from $935,141 this year.

A 6-percent raise is budgeted for the security director.

Superintendent Charles Little said, "We have too many examples of students being transported by parents and coaches. Even with an additional $9,500, it falls far short of what I would expect for athletics.

"We haven't budgeted athletic equipment on a steady basis," Little added.

In explaining the need for an increase in the security budget to $471,395 from $448,314, Assistant Superintendent for Employee Relations Errol Goldman said demands are increasing.

'I don't see increases in here for teacher training, technology and textbooks. We told voters we needed a lot more money.'

Mark Horvath
—Board vice president

"The demand for coverage by the security department has been expanding. In addition to the normal day-to-day operation, the number of special events has continued to increase," he said.

The performing arts program budget is also slated to increase, from $86,261 to $89,153.

Trustee Jack Farrow supports the increases. "Planning, cooperation and hard work are the road to success. Athletics and drama are an excellent way to teach that," he said.

Farrow also favors the hiring of a telecommunications clerk.

"Are we going to use the phones we put into rooms or not? Using senior level people to fix them isn't wise. Shall we remove the phones and do away with the problem all together?"

"I'm with Jack on this one," said Board President David Artley.

Board Treasurer Mike Maloney said, "I don't feel the solution to every problem is adding another person. I'd like to challenge administration to find a way to do this with existing personnel."

Horvath agreed with Maloney. "I have a problem adding a $28,000 person when we have class sizes that are huge," he said.

Goldman said to contract for service, or to do it in-house, carries implications. "that's not to say certain things won't be done. But as we add service, we have to add training. Most of that falls to Donna (Aveck, director of computer services and technology systems).

clubhouse. This was budgeted at $27,700, but cost $105,485.

Machnik said that officials planned the budget thinking that crews from Detroit Edison would extend the underground cables, but Edison doesn't do that anymore. So a contractor had to be hired, which costs more.

The interfund loan also paid for the following items: Tables and chairs ($5,000), umbrellas ($3,600), Trash cans ($3,000), awning ($3,000), interior furnishings ($5,000), storage shed ($1,000), tables ($4,500) and display racks ($3,000) for a total of $28,100.

The new tables and chairs were purchased to replace the tables and chairs that are already in the clubhouse. Course manager Kevin Mill said the new tables and chairs will give the eating area a restaurant feel. Machnik said this goes along with the concept of making Pheasant Run nicer than most municipal courses.

The old tables and chairs, which are actually not very old at all, will be used in the township's new public meeting room in the basement of township hall.

Mill said he would ultimately like to build an addition to the clubhouse that would house an expanded dining area. His wish list also includes a covered golf cart storage area and an above-ground gas tank to refuel carts.

Earlier this year an above-ground tank was installed at the township maintenance building and is meant to be shared by the golf carts. But Mill said it's too far to drive the carts.Machnik said these things might be purchased down the road, but only if there is sufficient Pheasant Run revenue to pay for them.

"We're extremely excited and overwhelmed," said St. Kenneth parishioner Kathryn Kristoff, who with husband Mike Mitchell led the effort locally to have a school built. "We can hardly believe it. I can't say enough good things about the cardinal."

Kristoff and Mitchell have already enrolled two children and plan to enroll the child Kristoff now carries. "That's why we need this school," she said. "I'm going to fill it myself."

Resurrection Church is located on Warren west of Beck.

The first phase of construction will include grades kindergarten through four. The second phase, expected to be complete in four to five years, will add grades five through eight.

Phase one will include 18 classrooms, a lunch room, multi-purpose room, library and a computer room. Phase two will include 16 more classrooms, a gym, art room, science labs and auxiliary rooms.

People interested in enrolling children in the school may pick up forms at any of the participating churches.

New laws get tough on juvenile offenders

■ New laws signed June 11 will remove the necessity for the trial judge to hold a separate hearing on sentencing the juvenile as an adult.

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Michigan is moving on three fronts toward more severe punishment of juveniles who commit serious crimes.

An appellate court upheld a life sentence for a 15-year-old killer. Gov. John Engler signed a 21-bill package making adult sentences mandatory in some cases. And the state Senate approved a "punk prison" bill and sent it to the House.

Court of Appeals

A state Court of Appeals panel upheld a life prison sentence for 16-year-old Clinton Cheeks, convicted in a 1993 Inkster murder case. The sentence was handed down by Detroit Recorder's Judge Warfield Moore Jr. under a previous law granting the judge the option.

"After the jury convicted (Cheeks), the trial court held a juvenile sentence hearing as required. . .to determine whether to sentence defendant as a juvenile or as an adult," said Judge William B. Murphy's opinion.

Cheeks' lawyer argued that Judge Moore abused his discretion.

The appellate panel, however, found that while Cheeks didn't have a "significant" prior record, his actions were repetitive because he "had a fascination with guns and had been involved with guns in the past. . .

"The trial court noted that defendant was emotionless and arrogant during the trial. The trial court characterized defendant as mean and vicious.

Cheeks shot David Pasley, father of a four-year-old girl, 11 times – including five times at close range as the victim lay on the floor of his house – and then removed a gold chain from the victim's neck.

The appellate court found Moore had gone through a check list of factors before making his finding. The 3-0 opinion was also signed May 7 by Judges Richard A. Griffin and Edward R. Post.

No judicial option

The new laws signed June 11 by Engler will remove the necessity for the trial judge to hold a separate hearing on sentencing the juvenile as an adult.

Once the prosecutor decides to charge the juvenile as an adult, the judge will have no option but to sentence the juvenile as an adult.

Engler said other parts of the 21-bill package will:

• Lower to 14 the age at which a prosecutor may bypass the juvenile system and directly file charges in criminal court for capital offenses. It means the prosecutor won't have to ask a probate judge to waive the youngster into adult criminal court.

• Expand sentencing options for judges.

• Make escape from a juvenile facility a new felony offense. Livingston County residents living near the W.J. Maxey training school sought this law.

• Require a juvenile using a gun during commission of a crime to serve a specific period of time in a detention center. (Persons charged as adults must serve at least two years in prison for using a gun in a crime.)

Boot camp hailed

Sen. Mike Rogers, R-Brighton, hailed Senate passage of his Senate Bill 696 that amends the juvenile code to add boot camp placement as a sentencing option for juvenile offenders.

A companion bill, House Bill 4723, requires the Family Independence Agency (formerly Department of Social Services) to establish one or more juvenile boot camps and develop training programs for them.

Court reform is likely to be a major topic when the Michigan Legislature conduct a cleanup session Tuesday, July 2.

The House rejected, 0-103, Senate Republicans' amendments to the House-passed bill late at night on June 7. Basic purpose of both versions is to shift powers of probate courts to circuit courts. The Senate version set up a new family division of circuit court and provided for phasing out funding Detroit Recorder's Court.

That forces the bill into a joint House-Senate conference committee. As House conferees, Speaker Paul Hillegonds, R-Holland, appointed Reps. James Ryan, R-Redford, Michael Nye, R-Litchfield, and Ted Wallace, D-Detroit. Nye is chair of the House Judiciary Committee.

Refer to House Bill 5188 conference report when writing to your legislator.

Fairlawn cut

The new mental health appropriations bill is on its way to Gov. John Engler's desk after the House agreed 86-18 to a conference report pegging total spending at $1.15 billion.

"I voted 'no' because the bill fails to appropriate funds to maintain Fairlawn Center as an inpatient psychiatric facility for adolescents with serious emotional impairment," said Rep. Hubert Price, D-Pontiac. Price said it was an unfair blow to the Foundation for Mentally Ill Children, which "has contributed countless hours of volunteer service and over $650,000 for an 80-bed addition to the Fairlawn Center in 1993."

Also voting against the bill were are Reps. Greg Kaza, R-Rochester Hills, Tom Kelly, D-Wayne, and Deborah Whyman, R-Canton.

Senate approval came on a 35-1 vote with all area senators voting yes.

Among members of the joint House-Senate conference committee were Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, Reps. Jan Dolan, R-Farmington Hills, and Shirley Johnson, R-Royal Oak.

Speed bill OK'd

The House agreed to Senate amendments on the speed limit bill that knocked out failure to use seat belts as a primary offense. Police will be able to issue tickets for non-usage of seat belts only when they stop a driver for another, primary offense.

The House vote was 77-26. Voting no were area Reps. Penny Crissman, R-Rochester, Greg Kaza, R-Rochester Hills, Susan Munsell, R-Howell, Frank Fitzgerald, R-Grand Ledge, and Alan Cropsey, R-DeWitt.

Meanwhile, Sen. Doug Carl, R-Macomb County, chief Senate advocate of a 70 mph speed limit, announced the Michigan Department of Transportation's unofficial list of highways that will be used to test the a 70-mph speed limit from Aug. 1 to Oct. 31:

- I-94 between M-59 and Port Huron.
- I-69 between Flint and Port Huron.
- I-96 between Lansing and Grand Rapids.
- I-75 between Standish and Grayling. .
- I-75 between Grayling and Mackinac City.
- I-75 between Mackinac City and Sault Ste. Marie in the Upper Peninsula.

"Based on engineering criteria and results from this study, MDOT will determine which stretches of freeway can be increased to 70 mph," Carl said.

Charmed career

Freshmen are rarely seen and even more rarely able to get bills passed.

Not so with first-termer James Ryan, R-Redford, whose 1994 victory in a previously Democratic district gave Republicans control of the House for the first time in decades.

Ryan, as noted above, will be on the conference committee deciding the shape of trial court reform in Michigan.

He was given sponsorship of the widely-publicized bill to ban "partial-birth" abortions, signed into law at the state level by Gov. John Engler shortly after President Clinton vetoed a federal bill on the same topic.

And Ryan got another pat on the back when Engler on June 12 signed the "no-from, no-file" income tax option bill. Engler had asked for the bill in his State of the State address, and House leaders picked Ryan to put on his name as sponsor of HB 5694.

About one million state taxpayers would have the option of not filing a personal income tax form if their income is only from wages, with less than $100 coming from interest ($200 for those filing jointly).

Said state Treasurer Doug Roberts: "Valued residents of this state will no longer need to file a piece of paper just to let government know they exist."

"Let's face it," added Ryan, "a non-existent tax form is about as easy as it gets."

Coalition preps for ozone action summer education campaign

The Clean Air Coalition of Southeast Michigan is preparing for its third Ozone Action public education campaign to prevent formation of excessive ozone levels in the region.

Ground-level ozone is a health hazard at excessive levels, but it can also cause breathing problems at lower levels.

Ground-level ozone, the bad ozone targeted by the Ozone Action program, has the same molecular structure as the good stratospheric ozone, also known as the ozone layer. Steps taken to help the ozone layer, such as not using chlorofluorocarbons in aerosols and air conditioners, have no effect on surface ozone levels.

Ozone is formed when hydrocarbon emissions react with energy from the sun. Hydrocarbons, largely a result of unburned gasoline, are produced by more than just industry sources.

Individual actions such as lawn mowing, driving cars, and painting houses contribute to the ozone problem.

Suggested ozone actions include refraining from refueling cars or mowing lawns on action days as well as car pooling or using public transportation.

The most popular action taken by residents was not mowing the lawn, according to the coalition.

The Ozone Action program alerts the public when weather conditions are right for excessive ozone formation _ usually when temperatures are in the '90s and there is little wind or cloud cover.

On action days, businesses, governments and individuals are urged to take voluntary actions that reduce the amount of hydrocarbons they emit into the air. Ozone action days occur about 12 times during the summer. Last summer, however, Southeast Michigan recorded a record number of 16 action days.

Ozone levels are measured at 10 monitoring stations throughout Southeast Michigan. Each is permitted to exceed the federal clean air standard on three days in any consecutive three-year period. A fourth day in violation at any one station results in a violation of the federal standard for ozone.

Two monitors recorded one violation each last summer _ Algonac and New Haven. Because of these violations, motorists in the region will use cleaner, low vapor pressure fuel this summer. In addition, tanker-to-storage vapor recovery equipment, will be implemented year-round across the region.

Businesses and government organizations are asked to notify employees and customers when Ozone Action days occur and to reduce emissions .

More than 300 Southeast Michigan businesses and units of government have signed up to receive fax notification of upcoming Action days. The coalition also makes Action day status available on a toll-free hot line 1-800-663-3AIR or via the Internet at http://www.semcog.org/ozone-action.

Dentistry in the 90s

SAVING TEETH WITH ROOT CANALS

The fact that the number of root canal procedures has more than doubled in recent years shows that people are placing a greater value on saving their teeth. When an infection spreads through the canals of the tooth, either due to injury, deep cavities, or receding gums, a painful, inflamed abscess may develop. It is at this point that the patient has to choose between extracting the tooth or restoring it with a root canal procedure, followed by a crown in some cases. Root canal treatment involves cleaning the nerve out of the inner chamber of the tooth and filling it with an inert material that helps keep the tooth in place. An extraction makes it necessary to get a bridge or an implant. With the help of anesthetics, undergoing root canal treatment is now no more uncomfortable than getting a large cavity filled. Remember, it is the abscess that is so painful not the treatment that alleviates the pain and restores the tooth.

Root canals, fillings, tooth replacement, partial or full dentures, cosmetic dentistry, and extractions are just some of the services we offer. At LIVONIA VILLAGE DENTAL ASSOCIATES, the recommendations we make for any dental treatment are always in the best interest of our patients. You can rely on our expertise to provide you with quality dental care in a warm environment at 19171 Merriman Road. We provide "twilight sleep" for the fearful patient. Please call 478-2100 to schedule a convenient appointment Mon., Tue., Thu. & Fri. 8-5, Wed. til 9 p.m. Smiles are out business.

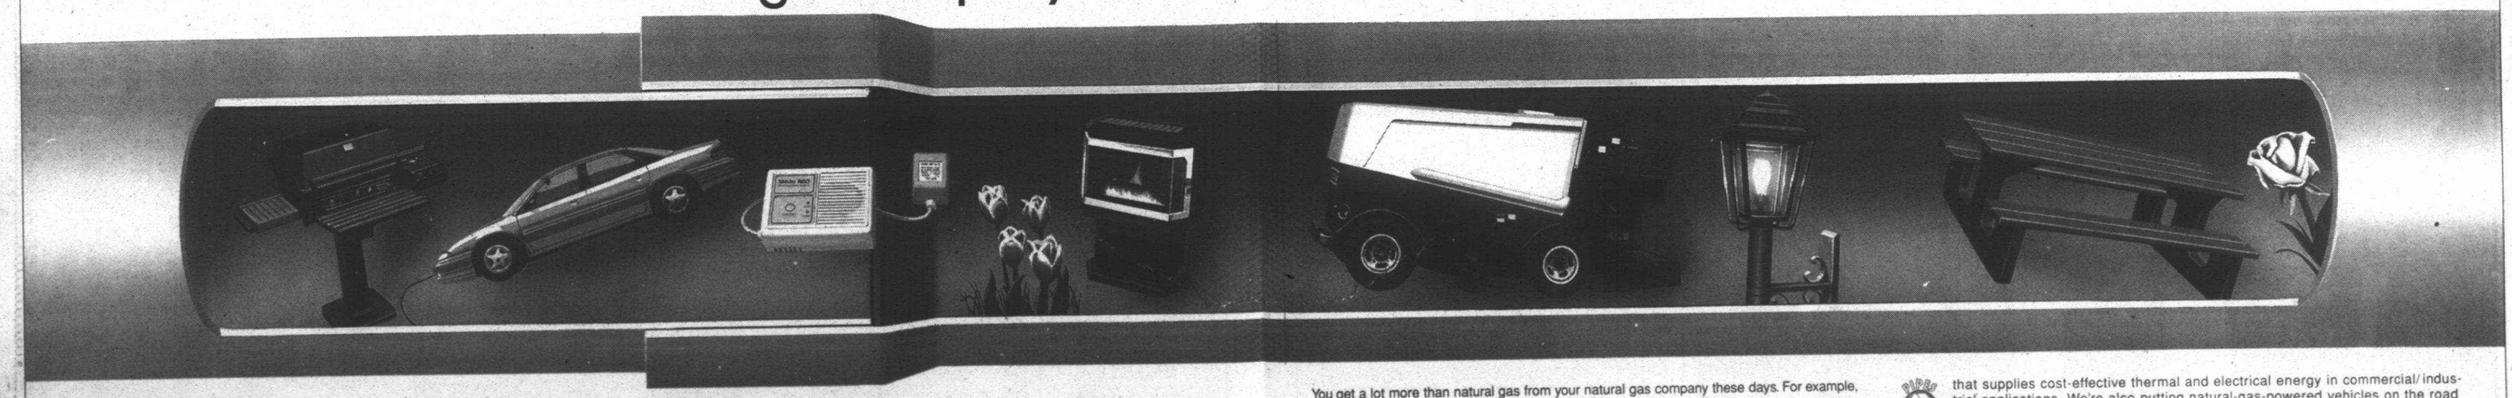
The discounted introductory variable rate of 7.75% APR is based on The Wall Street Journal prime rate minus 1/2% which was 8.25% on April 1, 1996. Your APR may rise or fall if the prime rate changes. After that, the negotiated rate will apply. Offer available for new investment only and excludes small business lines of credit, construction loans, SBA loans and/or refinances of existing Michigan National Bank loans. Loan requires a 1/2% commitment fee plus any applicable third-party cost (such as recording fee, appraisal fees, title search fee). This term loan is a minimum of 60 months. The minimum is $50,000 and the maximum is $500,000. Offer valid May 1 through June 30, 1996. Loan must close by July 31, 1996.

A gas company that's much more than a gas company? It's no pipe dream.



You get a lot more than natural gas from your natural gas company these days. For example, we've just introduced Home Protection Plus,℠ a new program to protect you against costly appliance repairs.

To help you confidently purchase natural gas appliances such as grills and fireplaces, our Ideal Energy Dealer Network connects you, toll-free, to qualified dealers in your area.

Then, too, we now offer helpful products ourselves, such as carbon monoxide detectors and gaslights. Plus advanced technologies such as cogeneration that supplies cost-effective thermal and electrical energy in commercial/industrial applications. We're also putting natural-gas-powered vehicles on the road (and Zambonis on the ice) to protect the environment. We're even turning trash-bound plastic pipes into picnic tables as part of our Pipes 4 Parks program.

To find out what we can do for you, call MichCon. You won't believe what's coming down the pipe.

be 70 next month, but "I don't like to remind myself of that," he said.

Collis seldom played while he was working, but re-entered the arena in 1987 after retirement. He plays second base for the Canton team. "You get exercise and competition," he said. "It gets you out of the house."

Ernie Parker said he didn't play ball for 27 years, when he started with a 55-and-over team in 1985. "It's great," he said. "I'm 66 years old, still running the bases and (enjoying) the comradeship."

Don McSween, 73, said he has been playing softball since he was 50. Al Baldwin had open heart surgery a couple years ago, but still plays.

Dewey Reeves, 71, said baseball or softball has been part of his life since he was a teenager in New Jersey. "I don't drink anymore, and I don't chase women," he said. "So I've got to have something to do."

The Canton team, which has no known nickname, is managed by Ken Livernois. "Boy oh boy, these old farts!" he exclaimed Wednesday as his team went down one, two three at the plate against the Livonia Legends.

Forgetting that his mitt was stuck in the back of his pants, Livernois hollered, "Who's got my glove?"

Then he remembered what he did with it. "I've got my glove. It's in my back pocket," he said as he ran out to his position.

In a post-game interview, Mary Ann Victor was asked why she faithfully attends every game her husband plays.

"When you've got a good man you hang on to him," she said.

"What is it you wanted?" Bob Victor joked.

"Lunch," she replied.

Snipped for summer: This style by Max of the Mariomax Salon in West Bloomfield, gives new appeal to "short and sassy."

Summer styles must beat heat

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

The word from stylists on summer hair is that women's coifs are moving away from the '60s mod look (long bangs swept to the side) but don't look for dramatic changes, and fire red is hot, hot, hot!

What's in as far as length, texture and color, is a matter of personal preference according to hair stylist Jeffrey Beaton of Beaton Colors in Birmingham. Individuality reigns over summer lengths as long as the hair is cut to move in all directions and looks great.

"Clean looking hair is in," he insisted. "We're starting to do longer hair, off the face with center parts as well as shorter cuts with a little more definition showing off the cheekbones and eyes. Look for more ponytails, sometimes two or three at a time. Also chignons, not like your old aunt used to wear, but updated by leaving a hair or two loose or adding an accessory like a bow."

Today's busy lifestyles demand styles that require a minimum of care. A good cut will not only shave years off your age, but save time. Texturing, achieved with color, cut and styling products, is an option that can add body to the hair, but be careful because if overdone, texturing can lead to a wild, unkempt look.

Gradations of color

"The amount of texturing done depends a lot on what the lady is wearing, whether it's classic or trendy," Beaton continued. "Color, we're using to create more dimension in the hair. We're using more shading effects on the sides and parts of the head with blonds and browns, light reds and deep reds. The colors just fades in so there's a depth. As far as overall color, red is in. Schwarzkopf Indian Fire is really red and vivid."

How do stylists like Beaton predict the next season's hair styles? He does a lot of experimenting on the side. Besides running his own salon, Beaton styles hair for fashion models photographed on-location in romantic destinations such as Paris and in the Westland studio of Emin. The styling Beaton does in the studio has everything to do with fashion. Here, he has the opportunity to try out-of-the-norm color and cut. The walls of Beaton's salon as well as his book exhibits the results.

"In the studio we're doing really trendy stuff because if hair's done right it's like a piece of art. In the salon, the latest clothes dictate what can happen with hair because the two have to be compatible. Also, new styling and texture products like pomades and texture creams influence the latest styles and colors. In the early days, pomades just made hair dirty looking," said Beaton, a hair stylist for 20 years. "Now, we use pomades instead of hair spray. We don't spray our clients before they go out the door."

Some like it short

At Secretz salon in Westland hair stylist Vickie Zawacki said look for lots of short and sassy hair this summer.

"The short bob is back and lots of color, fun color such as streaks or headband, also texturing with a razor that's not so even and perfect," she said. "As far as longer hair, perms are coming back. People are getting tired of the long, straight look."

Summer sun, wind and pool chemicals can play havoc with hair.

Here are a few tips from Beaton to help your locks survive the season:

* At the beach, put a lot of conditioners in the hair and slick it back to keep it healthy.
* Before going into a pool's chlorinated water, wet the hair down and put on a conditioner to repel the chemicals.
* The sun does change hair color dramatically. Coloring will wash out after just a couple of times in the sun so put a sunscreen on the hair or wear a hat.
* And should ever your style fail you, remember this summertime tip from the ladies of Hawaii: Use a bobby pin to fasten an old fashioned corsage or gardenia in your hair.

Hot new toys for cool summer fun

Summertime and the livin' is easy.. as long as the kids are happy and having lots of safe, fun. Here are some new (and old) products to add to the giggles and glee.

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO
STAFF WRITER

A recent retail survey revealed that families with children under age 6 buy toys more often than families with older kids (shopping nine times a year for about 17 toys and games).

And moms who go toy shopping alone spend $22; bringing a child along pushes your total to $30.

With the kids are out of school and free from a daily regimen of studies and recess, a trip to the store for a new board or ball game may be a salvation of sorts.

The hottest new toys according to Market Focus Toy Editor Christopher Byrne are the Louisville Slugger Batting Trainer Set ($40) from Just Sports; Nerf's Hydro Ball, a new twist on the water-balloon ($6.99); The Bungee Paddle Ball ($14.99) from Koosh, a turbo-charged game of catch with suction cup-capped darts, Skyblasters, $14.99.

For family fun it's Fisher Price's Bubble Rocket ($15.99). You can create a launchpad in your backyard and as the rocket takes off, it leaves a stream of bubbles behind.

Speed Freak Zoomballs ($10.99) are sculpted, high-quality foam balls from Pressman Toys. The trick is to grab the handles, pull the string and send Zoomball flying to your opponent. Choose from Crusher, Claw and Creature.

For little girl's tea parties there are Tea Bunnies sets ($19.99) which feature a bunny and a miniature tea set and desserts. The set also includes a matching child-sized cup and saucer. Each Tea Bunny hides inside a decorated teacup.

For big kids parties, Pressman offers MindTrap ($19.99) to challenge the way you think. Advertised as "a party in a box" it's perfect for teams or individuals. The game asks questions that appear easy, but to get the right answer you must apply logic and insight, avoiding the obvious.

Five new travel games from Pressman should keep the kids quiet for long car rides. Most are priced under $7.

At Adventures in Toys on Maple in downtown Birmingham, owner Shelley Littman said summer means playing outside and rain or not, "there are still all those little boys out there with all that energy."

She recommends Tuggerwar ($18); Hippity Hop Balls in all sizes from $21; scooters from $40; jump ropes, and driveway tennis, volleyball and badminton sets $20-$40. "And lots of sidewalk chalk."

"So many people have pools these days that water toys and pool games are also selling well," she said. "Noodles and variations of these floating toys are $3-$7, and dart ball games that can be used in and out of the water are $20."

At Doll Hospital and Toy Soldier Shop on Twelve Mile in Berkley, play structures are the best sellers as parents investigate "safe play opportunities for their children outdoors," according to owner Jack Parish.

"You can get a good starter play structure for about $400, although many parents want the bigger sets that keep congregations of kids busy for lots of hours," he said.

Playmobile and Brio sell "any week of the year" as each manufacturer offers hundreds of accessories for fantasy play.

At Imperial Sports, Lakeside in sterling Heights, Briarwood in Ann Arbor, and Fairlane Town Center, in Dearborn, In-line skates are just the thing. Prices range from $115 to $390.

Night time play is not complete without a super flashlight for freeze tag. Look for these at Kmart from $20. Tents for backyard camp-outs are also available from Kmart and other sporting goods retailers. Don't forget the spooky stories book...

Backseat adventures: New from Pressman, games to go when there are still two more hours to the lake! All are under $7 and available at most toy departments.

Local artist's tiles decorate new mall's cafe

BY CORINE ABATT
SPECIAL WRITER

Tiles created by Anita Schmaltz-Rae will add a golden touch to the new Somerset Collection North's Peacock Cafe, slated to open Aug. 16, in Troy.

Schmaltz-Rae, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Schmaltz of Bloomfield Hills, graduated from Marian High School where her interest in art was encouraged. She received her degree at the Center for Creative Studies of Detroit majoring in drawing, painting and sculpture and studied tile-making at Detroit's historic Pewabic Pottery.

The artist was commissioned by JPRA Architects-Peterhansrea Design and Forbes/Cohen Properties to create the 55 tiles in five different designs, each approximately 8 by 8 inches square.

The five motifs, done in deep relief, are a pear tree, grapes, wheat, flowers and a peacock. The artist said the lustrous gold surface of each tile comes from incorporating the genuine article into the glaze before the final firing. The tiles, now complete, will be installed in the archways above each vendor in the food court.

"I wanted them to be sculptural pieces in themselves."
Anita Schmaltz-Rae
ARTIST

In describing her approach to this project she said, "I wanted the tiles to be substantial. I wanted them to be sculptural pieces in themselves."

She credits her mother-in-law, antique dealer, Kathy Rae of Birmingham, for introducing her to tile as an art medium.

"She has an artistic eye and she had been studying and selling antique tiles for a long time," Schmaltz-Rae explained. "She also introduced me to Pewabic Pottery and I liked it immediately. I was there for two years, taking classes and working part-time pressing tiles.

– drawing, painting and sculpture. They are being used more and more by architects and designers to accent areas of homes and commercial buildings."

She and her husband, musician Collin Rae, currently live in Royal Oak. Anita Schmaltz-Rae will soon open her new studio with kiln in Hamtramck.

Here's how Schmaltz-Rae came up with the tiles:

1. The work began when each tile design was sculpted out of clay. From these, plaster molds were made.

Next, each of the 65 tiles was handpressed in the mold and left to airdry for several weeks due to their thickness.

2. When dry, the first of three firings commenced. The first firing (reaching temperatures over 1800 F) released unwanted elements and the chemical water from the clay, making the tiles hard enough to glaze without distorting the surface.

3. Now, the rock-hard tiles were dipped into the glaze and fired again this time to the much higher temperature of 2403 F. This literally gave the tiles a glass surface.

4. In the final step, liquid luster was painted on the glazed surface of each tile and fired to a lower temperature of 1517 F to adhere the luster to the surface.

5. The result? A rich, metallic surface containing actual gold, reflecting the elegance of the Somerset North Collection.

Car buffs love special nights

BY MARY QUINLEY
SPECIAL WRITER

Heads turn and conversations halt as the fat-fender, dangerously low-to-the-ground "Midnight Special" glides into the Ramchargers lot and parks in a second-row space. Just another Monday Cruise Night in Livonia for the red 1949 Mercury with the thin neon pink light strips hidden under the hood and in the grille.

"Come over here and look under the hood. My buddy built the flathead engine," says the 63-year-old owner, Nick Iannello.

He then points to the front James Dean license plate. Actor Dean drove the same year Mercury in the movie "Rebel Without A Cause."

The Plymouth Township resident attends cruise nights "at least a couple of times a week."

"I meet some of the finest people. All of them are friendly; they respect the cars and enjoy them," he said.

When nature cooperates — a "must" for successful cruise nights — Paul Chilson of Garden City drives his 1993 Chevrolet truck to the same Ramchargers parking lot. King Kone, an ice cream parlor in Garden City, is his destination on Tuesday nights; Northville's 1950s-style Wooly Bully's is his Wednesday choice.

"If the weather is nice, I'll attend three a week."

Chilson's cherry-red truck with extended cab and short bed accompanies him to local cruise nights.

"I didn't participate until I bought this truck. People buy trucks, but they don't go to the extreme like I did. In the bed (of the truck), there's a home entertainment system with a 20-inch color TV and VCR."

Tilghman Ridgway of Garden City attends a cruise night at least once a week.

"There are cruise-ins almost every night of the week. Thursday is my day of rest," he said.

One look at his shiny black four-door sedan initiates a conversation about "the days when ladies wore bustles." Ridgway owns a 1935 Ford Bustle Back.

Cruis'nites at the Great American Diner in White Lake Township are "just like a car show every week," owner Ron Korte said. The 1950s-style diner, glowing with neon lights and steel trim, hosts cruise gatherings on Wednesday and Saturday evenings in the summer.

"All types of cars show up. Some are vintage cars. Generally, the cruises on the weekends attract the '50s-'60s cars. Street rods from the late '30s-'60s are popular. Many are modified or converted; some are originals," Korte said.

Cruise nights — a time for looking under hoods, opening up car doors, showing off interiors, and sharing street machine stories. You'll discover barbecues, refreshments, square dancing, contests, raffles, '50s tunes — and an atmosphere of camaraderie.

If you go, remember to treat the cars like museum treasures. Look, but please don't touch.

Area offers plenty of chances to show off

BY MARY QUINLEY
SPECIAL WRITER

So — you own a car you think is pretty cool. You've thought about showing it off. Go for it.

Call it a cruise-in or call it a cruise night; it doesn't matter. Pick any day of the week. The metro area swells with street machine gatherings. Here's a sampling to get you started.

On Sundays try: Wild Woodys, a bar in Roseville, (810) 294-5331; or Cruisin' Sundays at McDonald's on Woodward, (810) 585-8265. Visit Ramchargers in Livonia, (313) 591-3224, on Monday nights. On the first Tuesday of every month cruising happens at Harlow's in Westland, (313) 722-RACE; King Kone, (313) 522-5663, an ice cream parlor in Garden City; or Pampa Lanes, (810) 264-8877, in Warren.

Wednesdays are special at Northville's Wooly Bullys, (810) 380-5163; and the Great American Diner in White Lake, (810) 698-2210. Check out Augie's restaurant in Madison Heights, (810) 588-3120. Plan Friday night in Roseville at the Continental Lanes & Golf Center, (810) 293-2300. Missed the Great American Diner's Cruise Night earlier in the week? Go Saturday evening.

So — What are you waiting for? Head for a cruise-in! No excuses accepted.

P.S. You don't need a fancy car to attend.

CHEF LARRY JANES

Smoking adds intensity to foods

Obviously, 'tis the season for dusting off the grill. However, the Janes Gang never really "put away" their grill. Our deluxe "state of the art" gas grill allows us to enjoy the flavor of the fire all year long.

You can never really run out of good ideas, and lately a bunch of new grilling books have caught my attention. Two books by Cheryl and Bill Jamison that lend a new twist to typically grilled fare, really piqued my interest.

Grill masters

Their books "Smoke and Spice" and "Sublime Smoke" (copyright 1996 and 1994 respectively by Harvard Common Press, $16.95 each), offer bold new flavors inspired by the old art of barbecue. No one knows the fine art of smoke barbecue better than the Jamisons. All together, they have written five books on the art of backyard fire influenced cuisine.

I'll never forget the first time I dabbled in smoke cuisine. Robin Mather, (editor of the "Detroit Sunday Journal") and I were asked to teach a sausage making class at Kitchen Glamor.

We met over lunch to discuss our curriculum and decided that one of the dishes would be a smoked Andouille sausage. Robin volunteered the use of her portable smoker and we spent a leisurely fall afternoon making sausage, searching out apple wood sources and sipping cold long necks while the sausage smoked. I lucked out on both experiences because Robin never collected her smoker, and I ended up with great sausage recipes.

Since then, I've smoked turkeys, ducks, venison, beef jerky, salmon, and oysters, mostly without the help of the Jamison's books; relying solely on advice from friends and relatives.

Now I have two books, definitive in nature and content, that explain the who, what, when, where and why of smoking. In their book "Sublime Smoke," the Jamisons use smoking not as a curing method, but to smoke and cook foods using a "hot" smoke that adds depth and intensity to the flavor of almost any food.

Barbecue smoking, in contrast to cure smoking, fully cooks food between temperatures of 225 to 300 degrees F., higher than pit masters use to smoke their real barbecue and lower than grill masters use.

In their book "Smoke and Spice," the Jamisons detail the real way to barbecue on a charcoal grill, water smoker or wood burning pit using exotic rubs, mops, marinades and spices. Both books explain the "basics" everyone needs to know about grilling as well as an in depth description of charcoal and hardwoods, and how flavors differ from brand to brand and tree to tree.

If anyone ever discovers a way to fix real barbecue by pushing a button, life will be dull. Cooks add to the soul of barbecue, and they do it through their fuels and tools. Cigars produce smoke and so does burning fat, but you wouldn't want to cook with either one.

Woods

The smoke flavor in real barbecue comes mainly from the wood. The authors claim that only real hardwoods work best and preferential wood is what usually grows in local areas. Mesquite is exported from South America, Mexico and the Southwest, but nothing beats good old cherry, apple wood, oak or hickory, readily available in this neck of the woods. Steer clear of soft woods like pine, cedar and spruce as they contain too much sap and can make your barbecue harsh and foul tasting.

I would be lying if I said that one man's barbecue is another man's jar of liquid smoke. Even if you're not contemplating the purchase of a smoker, and have nothing more than a cheap piece of tin metal shaped like a grill, these two exemplary books on smoking, and the art of grilling, will be appreciated.

In all honesty though, you know how I can tell that the Jamisons are true die-hard died in the wool lovers of smoke and grills? Their books are loaded with tales that are generously sprinkled throughout the book based on the facts and secrets of real people who created the barbecue tradition. These tales will acquaint you with some of the more notorious barbecue events and traditions throughout the country, and there are many intriguing ones.

Get out of the kitchen and over to Oakland Community College's Orchard Ridge Campus Saturday for the second annual Culinary Classic. You'll meet some outstanding chefs, learn more about food and wine pairings and enjoy a taste of some of metro Detroit's finest restaurants.

The Harmonettes, an outstanding acappella group, will stroll the dining area during the Grand Tasting and sing some of your favorite tunes, and a pianist from Hammell Music will play a Diskladier grand piano to add to the festivities.

Browse in the marketplace, under big tent on campus, which offers everything from olive oil to cookware. Professionals will be available to answer questions about kitchen design, and don't forget to place your bids in the silent auction.

Prizes include $5,000 kitchen cabinetry and installation, a white water rafting trip, a romantic night for two at the Townsend Hotel in Birmingham, metro area restaurant dining packages, a "Chefs in your Home" package, a Garland Resort package, and more.

Proceeds benefit OCC's hospitality department and the development of a Chuck Muer Culinary Resource Library on campus.

You'll toast the start of your culinary adventure at a champagne breakfast on the deck in the center of campus behind Tirrell Hall overlooking a fountain pond framed by trees. Eaton Nursery of West Bloomfield is decorating the deck for this occasion with potted flowers, floral trees and displays. Flutist Kathy Mekis of Walled Lake will play light classics during breakfast.

Throughout the morning and early afternoon, chefs and wine experts share expertise in a variety of seminars. Picking which one to attend will be difficult. Space is limited, so register early if you can.

There are six offerings 10-10:55 a.m.:

- Carl Segal and Casey Eslick, Segal/Eslick Associates, Chicago will educate and entertain anyone who has ever thought of opening his own restaurant.
- Lorraine Platman of Sweet Lorraine's Cafe in Southfield, Madison Heights (deli) and Ann Arbor will discuss "Ancient Foods Today."
- Master Chef Milos Cihelka of the Golden Mushroom fame, Southfield shares his wisdom while preparing Greek lamb chops, Armenian rice pilaf and curried lamb patties with Indian salad.

n Scott Finaly, Robert Mondavi Vineyard, will present a Chardonnay Oak Barrel Seminar. Participants will taste the influence of different types of oak on a chardonnay.

- Madeline Triffon, Master Sommelier and Wine Director of Matt Prentice's Unique Restaurant Corporation, shares secrets of wine tasting. (Seminar filled)
- Stephen Arens of the Leelanau Coffee Roasting Co. explains the difference between good coffee and great coffee.

More seminars follow 11-11:55 a.m.

- Former White House chef Henry Haller, who was hired by Lady Bird Johnson, shares memories of "Cooking for Five Presidents and their First Ladies," and recipes from his book, "The White House Family Cookbook."
- Chef Jim Blake, C.A. Muer Corp., offers tips for perfect barbecuing, including seafood.
- "You be the Judge!" at an amateur wine judging competition moderated by Karen Wenk, Michigan Grape & Wine Industry Council.

Just before lunch at the Grand Tasting under the big tent (featuring a taste of some of your favorite restaurants and award-winning wines from the Great Lakes Regional Wine Competition held in conjunction with the Culinary Classic on June 6), you'll have the opportunity to learn more about food and wine pairings at these seminars.

- William McMillen, The House of Seagram explains how to distinguish a single-malt from a blend. Taste the differences from various areas of Scotland.
- Chef Chuck Rachwitz of Rocky's of Northville and Rocky's of Brighton will prepare salmon four different ways.
- Vincent Senatore, Tyfield Importers, and Gianni Gagliardo, Gagliardo Diffusione SRL, offer advice on Italian food and wine affinities.
- Brian Polcyn, Five Lakes Grill, explains how to prepare low fat, high flavor fresh asparagus salad, herb breaded chicken breast and honey vanilla cheesecake.
- Can you pick out all the flavors a Fume Blanc offers? Scott Finaly, Robert Mondavi Winery, will help seminar participants enhance their palate through a component tasting.
- Dr. Su Hua Newton, Newton Vineyard, will discuss "The Pairing of Food & Wine," explaining nuances of matching food and wine flavors.
- Michael Harding, Churchills, and Sam Awdish, Remy Amerique, explain differences in selecting, cutting, storing and smoking cigars, and Cognac. You'll learn how to savor the finest after-dinner drinks.

Spanish winery releases 1970 vintage

BY ELEANOR & RAY HEALD
SPECIAL WRITERS

A 1970 Rioja was just released from a winery in Spain. The date's correct and this is not a re-release. It's the first release of 1970 Bodegas Montecillo Gran Reserva. What's the scoop?

In 1973, Osborne y Cia, Spain's largest producer of wines and spirits, purchased Bodegas Montecillo winery, originally founded in 1874 by the Navajas family in the Rioja region. Back then, the Osborne family's main business was sherry and brandy, but they were interested in investing for the future and their grandchildren. To accomplish this, Osborne did a number of smart things after the purchase. Not least among them was to buy additional land for a state-of-the-art winery to insure quality. To make the wine in this facility, they hired one of the first female winemakers in Spain, Maria Martinez Sierra.

Martinez Sierra is not a believer in the chateau concept where a winery owns its vineyards and produces estate wines. She convinced the Osborne family to sell the vineyard holdings of Bodegas Montecillo and to purchase grapes from the best growers with the best vineyards in the central Rioja Alta region. This practice allows production of 100 percent varietal wines blended for complexity from a number of top sites.

Tasting the wines of Bodegas Montecillo it's easy to see the Martinez Sierra imprint on the wines. "I don't believe in wines of fashion," she said. "Wines must represent the tradition of the region, but be made by the most modern methods from the very best grapes. I make wine only from grapes that are indigenous to our region. At Bodegas Montecillo, there is no pressure to make wines from a poor vintage, but there is always the demand for consistent quality.".

And this is true. No red wine was made from the inferior 1992 vintage. There will be a 1993 Crianza, but no Reserva or Gran Reserva from this vintage. But 1994 and 1995 are so excellent that all levels of wine will be made. Never before have there been two back-to-back exceptional vintages for Rioja. The average is one every eight to 10 years.

Bodegas Montecillo produces only one white wine, Vina Cumbrero Blanco $8 made 100 percent

WINE SELECTIONS

Outstanding bubblies for summer entertaining:

- 1991 Schramsberg Blanc de Blancs $22.75 — serve with fresh seafood, pasta with herb sauce or a quiche.
- 1992 Schramsberg Brut Rose $22.75 — wonderful with fruit platters, ham or Asian cuisine.
- 1988 Schramsberg Blanc de Noirs $24.50 is sufficiently hearty to accompany veal, pork tenderloin, smoked fish or a creamy mushroom risotto.

Value chardonnays. Prices on your favorite white wine keep climbing, but we've found a few gems.

- 1995 Santara Chardonnay (from Spain) $7 — exceptional at this price
- 1994 Chateau Souverain Chardonnay $12 — delicious fruit
- 1994 Mirassou Chardonnay, Harvest Reserve $15 — complex and oaky

Touted as an alternative to chardonnay is

- 1994 Mirassou Pinot Blanc, Harvest Reserve $15 with a sensational fruit profile. Serve it with scampi, lobster, grilled scallops or any poultry preparation.

Pinot Noir is the perfect summertime red. Chill the bottle 20 minutes in the refrigerator before serving with lamb, smoked meats or salmon.

- 1993 Mirassou Pinot Noir $8.25 — fresh and tasty
- 1994 Charles Krug Carneros Pinot Noir $9 — very good value
- 1994 Davis Bynum Pinot Noir — luscious fruit
- 1994 Iron Horse Pinot Noir $18 — if you think it's pricey, check the cost of a French Burgundy of equivalent quality; it will be twice the price and perhaps not as flavorful!

"It's an outstanding event, not just because of the seminars, but because of the Grand Tasting and the ambiance of the campus," said Jeanne Towar, honorary chairwoman , and vice president/publisher of "Detroit Monthly" magazine. BARBECUE SHRIMP

24 large shrimp, peeled and deveined
10 slices bacon, half cooked, cut in half lengthwise

Barbecue sauce:

1 1/2 cups orange juice concentrate
6 tablespoons soy sauce
1 cup ketchup
3/4 cup molasses
4 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
2 teaspoons Tabasco
1 1/2 cups chili sauce
2 tablespoons Dijon mustard
2 cloves garlic, chopped fine
2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
1/2 cup chicken broth
2 teaspoons salt

Peel and devein the shrimp, leaving the tail on.

Cook the bacon halfway in a skillet, chill, cut in half lengthwise.

Wrap the shrimp in the bacon holding together with a toothpick.

In a large bowl mix together all of the ingredients for the BBQ sauce.

Place the bacon wrapped shrimp on a sheet tray.

Ladle the BBQ sauce generously over each shrimp, leaving the tails unsauced. Place the shrimp under a low heat broiler, cook for 6 minutes. Turn shrimp and cook for another 6 minutes.

To Serve: Place the shrimp on a large,decorative platter, with napkins on the side. Serves 8.

Chicken can be substituted for the shrimp.

COHO SALMON PHYLLO WITH CHEVRE CHEESE

12 ounces (4 fillets) Coho – fingerling salmon, boneless, skinless
6 sheets phyllo dough
1 small red onion, julienne, sliced thin
2 ounces Chevre cheese
1 teaspoon garlic
2 medium fresh tomatoes, peeled, seeded and quartered
1/2 teaspoon fresh basil, chopped
Salt and pepper to taste
2 ounces (4 tablespoons) margarine
6 ounces (3/4 cup) bread crumbs
1 tablespoon olive oil
4 ounces (or as needed) butter or margarine, melted

Saute onion with garlic in olive oil until clear. Add tomatoes, basil, cook 3-4 minutes. Remove from stove, add Chevre cheese. Season to taste. Cool.

For assembly of first portion, butter 1 sheet of phyllo dough, sprinkle with bread crumbs. Repeat 2 more times until you have 3 layers. Don't put bread crumbs on the last layer. Coat one side of fish fillet with bread crumbs.

Add 1/2 of cheese mixture on top of fish. Put second fillet on top of mixture (like a sandwich). Sprinkle with bread crumbs.

Place fish on edge of dough, roll fish up in dough buttering the dough as you roll up – tucking the sides.

Assemble second portion the same way you did the first .

Bake in 350 to 375 degree F oven until brown and fish is completely done, 15-20 minutes, 145 degree F internal temperature.

Slice in half, serve warm with green beans. Serves 2.

from the viura grape variety. The 1994 version has the delightful aroma of fresh pears. It's a great value, clean and crisp with just the right acid zip to pair it well with seafood and lighter summertime dishes.

Three red wines are made: Vina Cumbrero Tinto, Vina Monty Gran Reserva, and Montecillo Gran Reserva. Tasting the same wine from several years illustrates vintage differences in the Rioja region. 1991 Vina Cumbrero Tinto $9 made from 100 percent tempranillo grapes was aged 18 months in French oak (coopered at Bodegas Montecillo which has two full-time barrel makers producing 2,000 new barrels each year). The wine was bottled aged one year before release and is highlighted by generous red fruit components, good complexity and a finesseful finish.

1988 Bodegas Montecillo Reserva $12 is the first reserva bearing this name introduced into the market. It, too, is 100 percent tempranillo, aged 18 months in French oak, but it had five years of bottle age before release. Depthful red fruit characters are complexed by some leathery and spicy notes. It finishes rich and amazingly youthful. 1986 Vina Monty Gran Reserva $19 has impressively youthful color, fresh fruit and violet floral notes. It's rich, complex, balanced and structured with bright fruit flavors.

And then there's the newly released 1970 Montecillo Gran Reserva about $60. "There will be no wine before its time," is something of a standard joke in the wine industry. Anyone who tastes this wine should stop using the phrase jokingly. "Some wines take longer to be ready to drink," Martinez Sierra noted. "This is one of them. It was bottled in 1975 and has only come around recently. We won't release a wine that's aggressively tannic. Such wines destroy foods and that's why we wait."

The wait has definitely been worth it. Unbelievably youthful color is complemented by a magnificent cigar-box aroma. This is one of the world's most intensely extracted, generous, lush wines that finishes smooth and velvety. It's awesome and will be available here next month.

Smokin' dishes flavorful summertime fare

See related Taste Buds column on front.

If you're looking for ways to elevate the art of smoke cooking to new heights, check out these recipes, compliments of Cheryl and Bill Jamison.

RED EYE BUTT

2 cups strong coffee
2 cups cider vinegar
1 medium onion, chopped fine
1/2 cup dark molasses
1/2 pork butt (about 3 1/2 to 4 pounds)

The night before you plan to barbecue, combine the marinade ingredients in a blender or food processor. Pour the marinade over the pork in a plastic food storage bag. Refrigerate the meat overnight. Before you begin to barbecue, drain the pork, reserving all of the marinade and adding 1 cup of water to the marinade if you plan to baste the pork during cooking (optional). Allow the pork to sit at room temperature for 40 minutes before starting.

Prepare the smoker and bring the temperature to between 200 F. and 220 F. Bring the reserved marinade to a boil over high heat. Reduce the heat to a simmer and cook for 10 minutes. Transfer the pork to the smoker and cook it for 4 hours. Baste the meat with the warmed marinade at 45 minute intervals. After 4 hours, wrap the pork in heavy duty foil, pouring 1/2 cup of the marinade over the meat. Discard any remaining marinade. Seal the edges of the foil well. Return the pork to the smoker for 2 more hours, cooking it to the fall apart stage with an internal temperature of 190 degrees F. Serves 6.

SMOKIN' WALDORF

3 unpeeled apples
2 tablespoons oil, preferably walnut
2 ribs celery, chopped
2/3 cup raisins
2/3 cup chopped walnuts
1/3 cup mayonnaise
1/3 cup plain yogurt
The juice of 2 limes
1 1/2 teaspoons sugar

Prepare the smoker for barbecuing, bringing the internal temperature to between 200 F. and 225 degrees F.

Coat the apples liberally with the oil and place in the smoker. Cook for 1 hour, until the apples are deeply browned and softened. Remove from the smoker and set aside until cool enough to handle. Peel the apples and slice into bite sized chunks. Combine apples with remaining ingredients. Toss gently. Serves 4.

VEAL TOP CHOPS

Paste:
1 cup fresh sage leaves
4 cloves garlic
1/4 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons dry Marsala wine
The juice of 1 lemon (about 2 tablespoons)
3 tablespoons olive oil
4 thick cut veal chops, about 10 ounces each
4 slices bacon, cut into thirds

At least 2 hours and preferably 4 hours before barbecuing, make the sage paste. Combine the sage, garlic and salt in a food processor or blender and process until sage is minced.

With the motor running, add juice and oil and process until a paste is made. Apply the paste thickly to the chops, wrap the chops in plastic and refrigerate.Prepare the smoker for barbecuing, bringing the internal temperature to between 200 F. and 225 degrees F.

Remove the chops from the refrigerator and allow to sit at room temperature for 20 minutes. Drape the top of each chop with three pieces of bacon. Transfer the chops to the smoker and cook for 1 1/4 to 1 1/2 hours. The chops are ready when the internal temperature reaches 150 degrees F. for medium rare. Remove the chops from the smoker. Discard the bacon, serve hot garnished with fresh lemon and sage. Serves 4.

These recipes from "Smoke and Spice" by Cheryl Jamison and Bill Jamison, (copyright, 1996. Harvard Common Press, $16.95 paperback).

Bronzed and beautiful, smoked whole chicken makes simple yet festive centerpieces for picnics and other gatherings. This chicken gets its moistness and great tang from mayonnaise – either regular or low fat!

MAYO RUBBED PICNIC CHICKEN

Rub:
1 tablespoon mayonnaise
1 teaspoon chili powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
8 ounces beer or dry white wine
Two 3 1/2 pound whole chickens
Paste:
1/4 cup mayonnaise
2 teaspoons chili powder
1 teaspoon paprika
dash salt

The night before you plan to smoke the chickens, combine the rub ingredients and rub underneath the skin (on the meat) of the chicken coating it well.

In a small bowl, combine the paste ingredients and mix well. Massage the chickens thoroughly inside and out with the mixture. Place the chickens in a plastic food storage bag and refrigerate them overnight. Bring the smoker to its appropriate cooking temperature (between 200 degrees F. and 225 degrees F.)

Remove the chickens from the refrigerator at least 30 minutes before smoking begins. Transfer the chickens to the smoker, breast side down. Cook chickens until their legs move freely and the internal temperature is about 180 degrees F. (about 3 to 3 1/2 hours cooking time).

Turn each bird breast side up halfway through the cooking time. Great hot or chilled! Serves 6.

'Star' breaks ground for new 20 screen Southfield theater

Star Theatres broke ground June 12 for their new "flagship" 20-screen theater and entertainment complex in Southfield.

Work has already begun on the Star Southfield Entertainment Complex scheduled to open in Spring of 1997. The 180,000-square-foot building will be anchored by a 20-screen Star Theatre with 6,000 seats and will include several large, high-quality themed restaurants and entertainment-related retail stores. When completed it will be Michigan's largest theater complex.

While Star Southfield will continue the Star Theatres' traditions of unparalleled customer service and plush, oversized rocking chair seats, the theater will offer even more to local moviegoers. All twenty Star Southfield auditoriums will feature stadium-style seating, with stepped seating rows providing enormously improved sightlines, huge screens, nearly double the size of typical theater screens and significantly increased legroom. The two largest auditoriums will each have 700 seats and screens over 65 feet wide. Every auditorium will be equipped with Sony Dynamic Digital Sound(TM) (SDDS (TM)), the most advanced digital cinema sound system available in the marketplace today.

With twenty screens, Star Southfield will be able to feature all current film releases, including exclusive art and specialty films. Star Southfield will also be able to play popular films on several screens at once, offering a wide range of convenient showtimes and guaranteeing seats for all customers.

Also unique to Star Southfield is its highly themed design, which has been created by Rockwell Group, known for its exciting and creative approach to projects for The Walt Disney Company, Sony Theatres, CBS and Planet Hollywood. For Star Southfield, Rockwell Group has designed a themed environment that will draw from both the rich history of Detroit and the excitement of the movies. The complex will feature three themed areas: the "Historic Detroit Lobby," "Hollywood Boulevard," and the "Hollywood Soundstage." Each area will feature three-dimensional details such as replicas of famous Detroit landmarks and famous movie sets combined with actual props and memorabilia from popular films. The central concession stand will feature a 20-foot tall bucket of popcorn with basketball-sized popcorn kernels that actually "pop" into the air.

Commenting on the theater's design, Star Theatres' chairman Jim Loeks stated, "Star Theatres" goal is that the environment itself should be so fun and exciting that just entering the theater is worth the ticket price even before you've seen a movie."

Star Southfield is also designed with consideration to Star Theatres' signature customer service program with all the amenities that metro Detroit moviegoers have come to expect, including an open managers' kiosk in the lobby, indoor computerized box offices, huge concession stands and Star's "next-in-line" service guarantee.

The Star Southfield Entertainment Complex represents the final phase of the 75-acre Galleria Officentre development, which features four award-winning office buildings containing 1,100,000 square feet of office space.

Michigan Open qualifiers

The first round of stroke play begins Tuesday in the 85th Michigan Amateur Golf Championship at Michaywe' Hills Golf Club (the Pines Course).

Following two days of stroke play, the first and second round match play begins Thursday with the quarterfinals on Friday and the semifinals and finals on Sunday.

Among the area competitors include Brian Mills and Michael Moco, Livonia; Claud Johnston, Fred Backiel and Matt Wiley, Westland; Ronald Borean, Redford Township; Gabriel Garcia, Plymouth.

State Cup champions

Adam King of Livonia was a member of the Vardar III 80/81 under-15 boys soccer team which captured the Michigan State Youth Soccer Association Cup title June 2 at Borden Park in Rochester Hills.

Vardar III defeated the Canton Magic, 2-0, in the championship. They advanced to the finals with wins ove rthe North Metro Rangers (Rochester Hills), T.P.S.A. (Troy), Greater Flint Rockers (Flint), the Lobos (Lake Orion) and the Livonia Youth Soccer Club Wings-Mangune.

Vardar III advances to the Midwest Regional, June 22-26, in Louisville, Ky.

Other members of the State Cup champs, coached by Morris Lupenec and managed by Doug Yingst, include Elliott Belden (Troy); David Burnett and Josh Epstein (Bloomfield Hills); Yuri Burrell (Lathrup Village); Marcus Chorvat and Nick DeGraw (Clinton Township); David Dwaihy (Grosse Pointe Woods), Danny Ferrin (Grosse Pointe Farms), Abraham Geiger (East Lansing), Victor Gordon (Birmingham), Steve Kolb (West Bloomfield), Alan Lyskawa (Novi), Jim Murphy (Royal Oak), Terry Shear (Clawson), Anthony Timlin (Beverly Hills) and Stuart Yingst (Grosse Pointe Park).

Madonna baseball camps

Madonna University will stage three different sessions of summer baseball camps, 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, June 17-21, June 24-28 and July 8-12 at Madonna University Park, located at the Bentley Center.

The cost is $180 per session.

For more information, call (313) 432-5609.

Wooden bat player

Jeff Temple of Wayne Memorial is a member of the Southeastern Michigan Baseball Associaiton team that will play this season in the Michigan 18-and-under Wooden Bat League.

Temple will play outfield, second and pitch for SEMBA team.

Cage coach wanted

Livonia Churchill is accepting applications for head varsity boys basketball coach.

Those interested should call athletic director Marc Hage at (313) 523-9217 or send a resume to: John E. Rennels, Assistant Superintendent for Personnel, Livonia Public Schools, 15125 Farmington Road, Livonia, Mi. 48154.

Glenn scholarships

Three-sport athletes Charles Bailey and Katie Boogren have been awarded summer camp scholarships in memory of Irma Kionka and Donald Domke, both former administrators for the Wayne-Westland Schools.

Bailey, who competes in football, basketball and track, and Boogren, who is a member of the cheerleading, gymnastics and soccer teams, will receive $250 each for outstanding performance in the classroom and the athletic field.

Summer ice skating

The Westland Sports Arena is offering open ice skating from 4-5:45 p.m. Fridays, and 1-2:45 p.m. Saturday and Sundays beginning June 22.

Admission is $2.50 for students and senior citizens, and $3 for adults. (Skate rental is $2). For the safety of skaters, all participants must have their legs covered.

For more information, call (313) 729-4560.

Women Only Challenge

The 14th annual For Women Only Challenge, a five-kilometer competitive run to benefit the Breast Cancer Fund, will begin at 8 a.m. Sunday, June 23 at Gallup Park, located across from Ann Arbor Huron High School.

The event also includes a 5K fitness walk and girls only events for .25 mile (ages 6 and under), .50 mile (9 and under), one mile (12 and under) and 5K (19 and under).

Entry fees are $18 (until June 22) and $20 (race day). Girls only events are $5.

For more information, call (313) 769-2926.

In-Line skate camp

Openings are still available for the Oakland Community College in-line skate camp, 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday on the Orchard Ridge Campus.

The camp, for all levels of skaters, includes lunch, prizes and giveaways.

For more information, call (810) 471-7561.

Kapla sparks Hines Park win

Hines Park Lincoln Mercury has a commanding lead in the early-season LCBL standings after defeating Decision Consultants.

A four-run outburst in the third inning carried first-place Hines Park Lincoln/Mercury to a 5-1 victory over Decision Consultants in a Livonia Collegiate Baseball League game Wednesday at Ford Field.

Former Redford Catholic Central product Dave Kapla, now at Michigan State, hit a two-run single for the winners (8-0-1) to spark the uprising.

Hines Park tallied its other run in the seventh on an RBI groundout by Mike Cervenak (Michigan), scoring Greg Ryan (Eastern Michigan).

Steve Hornsberger's RBI single in the seventh averted the shutout for Decision, which slipped to 4-2-1 in the LCBL.

Designated hitter Jim Chwalek collected two of Hines Park's seven hits.

Ryan led DCI with two hits.

Left hander Mark Fleming (Wayne State), making only his second outing of the season after undergoing knee surgery, pitched 6 1/3 innings, allowing four hits and one walk, to pick up the victory. Brian Reynolds (EMU) came on to get the final two outs.

Losing pitcher Joel Hillebrand (Madonna) took the loss, going six innings. He struck out five and walked six.

•CAESARS 5, HONIG'S 4: On Wednesday, Kevin Uzarski tripled and scored on a wild pitch in the bottom of the seventh as Little Caesars (3-6) kept Michigan Honig's (0-7) winless.

Honig's jumped out to a 2-0 first-inning lead when Chris Kirian singled in Rob Murphy and Brandon Woods walked and later scored on a wild pitch, but Caesars held the fort as Uzarski made a diving catch in center field.

Caesars answered in the bottom of the inning on walks to Aaron Babicz (Hillsdale College) and Jason Schniers (Henry Ford CC) followed by a groundout by Chad Stock.

In the top of the third, Murphy walked, stole second, advanced to third on a fielders choice and scored on Kirian's sacrifice fly to make it 3-1, but Caesars scored three times in the bottom of the inning to take a 4-3 lead.

Jay Harrington reached base on an error and Uzarski singled him to third. Scott Carden then hit a sacrifice fly, scoring one run.

Aaron Racey followed with an RBI single. Babicz and Schniers walked to load the bases and Racey scored the go-ahead run on an fielders choice.

Caesars turned double plays in the fifth and seventh innings to preserve the victory for starter Alex Wozniak, who allowed three earned runs on three hits. He walked 10 and struck out three before needing relief help from Brian Cotner, who came on to earn the save.

Mario Garza, who pitched the final 4 2/3 innings for Honig's, allowed just one hit, three walks and one earned run. He struck out four after relieving starter Tom Illijavski.

Uzarski collected two of Caesars' five hits.

Adray Metro Roundup

Rick Berryman coaches the Redford Union baseball team.

He also coaches the first-year Michigan Rams, a college-aged team whose practices and home games are held at RU.

Berryman's high school players better have a good excuse if they're late for practice, because, after all, the field is right next door to the school.

Berryman has to be more lenient with the Rams, some of whom have needed a map to get to practice.

Five of the Rams are from Redford Township, but Berryman's roster includes players from across metro Detroit and one from Santa Fe, N.M.: Jaime Dean, who plays at the University of Nebraska-Omaha and is staying with an uncle in Detroit over the summer.

He was understably late his first day of practice and Berryman had to laugh.

"He was the only kid coming from New Mexico and he apologized for being late - he got caught in a thunderstorm in Indiana," said Berryman, recalling their initial meeting.

"My sponsor Dan Varon told me to get some hard-working, dedicated kids. This kid's so dedicated, he drove half-way across the country to play here."

Berryman heard of Dean from a baseball contact in the area.

The Rams are members of the Adray Metro Baseball Association, a mixture of college-aged and Class A teams from metro Detroit. The Rams won their first game AMBA game on Thursday against Class A Troy Jet Box, 9-5, at RU.

The win raised the Rams' record to 1-2 in the AMBA, 2-2 overall.

Left-hander Dave Susalla (Redford Catholic Central/University of Detroit-Mercy) earned the win, scattering seven hits and three walks and allowing just one earned run in 6 2/3 innings. Brian Berryman (Redford Union/University of Michigan) picked up the save, coming on with the bases loaded and two outs in the bottom of the seventh.

Berryman struck out the only batter he faced, the cleanup hitter, to end the game.

"Susalla pitched a great game, he's one of my favorite athletes, a gutsy pitcher," coach Berryman said.

First baseman Jason Mitchell (RU/Eastern Michigan University) went 4-for-4 with four RBI. Left fielder Deandre Cooper (Allen Park Cabrini/Southern Colorado) went 3-for-4 with two RBI playing his first summer league game.

Shortstop Greg Rogers (Redford CC/Oakland University) was 1-4 with a run scored. Third baseman Dan Gillay (Ypsilanti Lincoln/Western Michigan University) was 2-4 with an RBI.

Berryman signed Gillay on recommendation from WMU coach Fred Decker. He was another kid coach Berryman had never met.

"The first time I met him, it took him a long time to get out of the car," coach Berryman siad. "He's 6-2, or 6-3, which is good."

One of the Rams' strongsuits is speed at the top of the order. The Rams' leadoff batter and center fielder Schuyler Doaks (Detroit DePorres/Jackson State) showed some of his speed even when he failed to reach base on Thursday.

"Schuyler hit a two-hopper back to the pitcher the other night and got thrown out by a step and a half," coach Berryman said.

The pitching staff includes Susalla, Brian Berryman, Jason Horn (South Lyon/Oakland University), Jake Lawson (Farmington Hills Harrison/Oakland) and Mike Hribernik (Birmingham Seaholm/U-M).

The starting lineup includes catcher Mark Lantzy (Lake Orion/Saginaw Valley), second baseman Rickie Miller (Cass Tech, Grambling) and Tom Hartley (Hartland/Michigan State) in right field.

Steve Smith (RU) and Mike Burgess (Dearborn Edsel Ford) are key reserves.

Several of the Rams played last summer for the Concealed Security Connie Mack World Series team.

Jones beats Monster

BY JIM TOTH
STAFF WRITER

Sheer survival proved once again to be the key ingredient for producing victory on The Monster.

With golf's greatest talents bearing down in attempt to tame the famed 6,974-yard, par-70 layout of Oakland Hills Country Club's South Course, it was longshot Steve Jones escaping The Monster's wrath long enough Sunday to finish with a two-under total 278 and win the 1996 U.S. Open Championship. Longshot only in the sense that Jones, 37, was forced away from Tour competition for three years due to a dirt bike injury in 1991, that among other injuries, left him nursing ligament damage to his left ring finger.

"This is a thrill of a lifetime," beamed Jones, earning custody of the Open Championship Cup following his final-round 69 that left him one stroke better than runners-up Davis Love III and Tom Lehman. "When I injured my finger, I wasn't sure I'd ever play again. But I continued to work and things began to come together. You really can't prepare for something like this. I just happend to be in the right place at the right time.

For Jones, that was no more evident than being in the fairway on the decisive 18th hole. After watching playing partner Lehman find the bunker with his tee shot, Jones found the center of the fairway. A seven-iron to the green and and two putts into the cup handed Jones his first Major championship and first tournament triumph of any kind since he won the Canadian Open in 1989.

"It takes a lot of guts to win," said Jones, who along with Lehman and Love were the only golfers in the field to post su' -par totals. "I didn't know if I had t. e guts to win another tournament, et alone a major.

"But I know every kid who grows up and plays golf dreams of making a putt on the final hole to win the U.S. Open," Jones said. "Fortunately, I had about a one-foot putt to make mine."

Unfortunately for Lehman and Love, they were unable to negotiate putts on 18 to force a next-day playoff.

"I'm a little closer than I was last year and a lot more disappointed than last year," said Love, following a three-putt performance on the final hole. "This is as hard a course as I have ever played day-in, day-out. With the rough being the way it is and the greens as fast as can be, there is never a let up."

Lehman, who like Love continues to seek his first major victory, echoed Love's feelings toward battling The Monster.

"My goal was to shoot under par, and if I could shoot under par, it was going to take a lot to beat me, said Lehman, who one day after equaling the course record with a 65 settled for a one-over 71. "I thought I played well enough to win today, I just didn't get the bounces."

Top 10 finishers: 1. Steve Jones (74-66-69-69-278); 2. (tie) Davis Love III (71-69-70-69-279), Tom Lehman (71-72-65-71-279); 4. John Morse (68-74-68-70-280); 5. (tie) Ernie Els (72-67-72-70-281), Jim Furyk (72-69-70-70-281); 7. (tie) Scott Hoch (73-71-71-67-282), Vijay Singh (71-72-70-69-282), Ken Green (73-67-72-70-282); 10. (tie) Lee Janzen (68-75-71-69-283), Greg Norman (73-66-74-70-283), Colin Montgomerie (70-72-69-72-283).

Hoff, Spaccarotella repeat selections for '96

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

In a decade-long tenure as Plymouth Canton girls soccer coach, Don Smith's teams have always been winners.

The Chiefs have never had a losing season and twice have been ultimate winners, capturing Class A championships in 1988 and again this year.

For leading Canton successfully through another state tournament, Smith has been named Coach of the Year in Observer-land.

The Chiefs, who were unranked and underdogs in several playoff contests, eliminated three rated teams and won six of seven tournament games by shutout en route to the state title.

Smith's teams have been district champs seven of the last nine seasons and state runners-up twice.

Canton has a .769 winning percentage while compiling a record of 150-31-14 from 1987-96 under Smith, who also coached the Canton boys to a state title in 1994.

The 1996 All-Observer team has two repeat selections: Livonia Churchill's Marie Spaccarotella, who is a four-time honoree, and Plymouth Salem's Mari Hoff. Both are high-scoring, senior forwards.

Salem sophomore midfielder Mia Sarkesian, Farmington Harrison junior goalie Sara Kloosterman and Farmington Hills Mercy junior forward Jena Kluska were second-team picks last year.

ALL-AREA FIRST TEAM

Mari Hoff, forward, Ply. Salem: Hoff, who moved from midfielder to forward this year, scored 20 goals and could have had more, according to coach Doug Landefeld. The Dream Team All-Stater had six assists.

Hoff ended her high school career with 69 goals and 34 assists. She also received the President's Scholar-Athlete Award at Salem and was first-team All-WLAA.

"Mari is the best all-around player in the state, and her work ethic is matched by no one," Landefeld said.

"She came out of a lot of games early because we were ahead; so her stats are misleading. The reason she didn't win Miss Soccer is because she didn't score 44 goals. That's why everyone likes her; she's such a good team player."

Marie Spaccarotella, forward, Liv. Churchill: Spaccarotella capped a fabulous four-year varsity career with a 23-goal season for the Chargers. Recognized as one of the fastest players in the state, she scored 102 goals in her career.

Spaccarotella could start a scoring play as well as finish one. Besides being a prolific scorer, she also had nearly 40 career assists.

The Dream Team All-Stater is going to the University of Michigan on a soccer scholarship.

"Marie is the best goal scorer in the history of Churchill High School," coach Nick O'Shea said. "Her determination to score far surpasses any player I've ever coached."

Jena Kluska, forward, Farm. Mercy: Kluska, a three-year varsity player, scored 22 goals and assisted on five others. She served as team captain and earned first-team All-Catholic honors.

"Jena has an excellent work ethic, is a natural goal scorer and is a strong leader by example," Mercy coach Deepak Shivraman said.

Melissa Marzolf, forward, Ply. Canton: Marzolf was the primary scoring threat for the state champion Chiefs with 17 goals and eight assists. In two years of varsity play, she has 27 career goals and 20 assists.

"Melissa is a true athlete whose soccer will improve each year," coach Don Smith said. "She plays with the intensity of a champion."

Canton- Coach of Year

Mia Sarkesian, halfback, Ply. Salem: Sarkesian is one of only two sophomores on the Class A all-state team, and she also made the All-WLAA team.

She helped at both ends of the field but is at her best on the offensive attack. Sarkesian scored 14 goals and recorded seven assists.

"Her strength was definitely going forward," coach Doug Landefeld said. "Her goals were all big-time goals. There weren't many mop-up goals for either (her or Hoff). Mia is a dream for a coach to work with."

Angela DeDomenico, halfback, Farmington: DeDomenico is a key playmaker, as well as an offensive threat, from the center-midfield position. She had six goals and six assists this year with 36 shots attempted.

In two seasons of varsity play for the Falcons, she has scored 10 goals and been credited with eight assists. DeDomenico was a first-team, All-WLAA selection, all-state honorable mention and team co-captain.

"Angela is a playmaker on offense and quite often begins the plays that form the attack on our opponent's goal," Farmington coach Bob Neff said. "Defensively, she actively participates in controlling play in the midfield."

Candace Perkins, halfback, N. Farmington: Perkins started the season in the center-midfield position but moved to a wing to give the Raiders more offensive punch. The result was a 13-goal season.

She was a four-year varsity starter, team most valuable player this year and two-time All-Lakes Division choice. Perkins, who also played basketball and volleyball, received the Raider Cup as the outstanding senior student-athlete at North Farmington.

"Cooker was extremely important to us this year, not only for her statistics but her role in helping a young team develop," North coach Tim Russell said.

Anne Fedrigo, halfback, Liv. Stevenson: Fedrigo was named to the Class A all-state first team and the All-WLAA team. She likes the role of an attacking midfielder, contributing nine goals and five assists this year.

Fedrigo is a three-year varsity player and was a team tri-captain along with Angie Pandoff and Mamie Vanderburgh. Her career totals are 18 goals and 21 assists.

"Anne is the best player, the most knowledgeable and hardest-working player I have," coach Jim Kimble said. "Obviously, that's why she's where she is now.

"As a returning player next year, she will be the leader of the Stevenson girls teams. It was difficult for her as a junior, because she did have seniors ahead of her. She leads by example and is well respected by her teammates and most of the people in the Western Lakes."

Andrea Sudik, defender, Ply. Salem: Good teams play good defense, and that's why Salem is always among the best teams. Players like Sudik might be unsung but are vital to the team success.

Sudik was All-Lakes Division, a scholar-athlete, honors graduate and recipient of the Presidential Fitness Award. Defending was her forte, but she did have three assists.

"Andrea was our most consistent player," coach Doug Landefeld said. "She's a tireless worker and is very capable of bringing the ball out of the back. She's also a terrific person."

Jill Rahnert, defender, Ply. Canton: Rahnert's most outstanding attribute as a player is her "great defense," according to coach Don Smith. She was instrumental in her team's ability to limit potent offensive teams during the state tournament and eventually capture the title.

"Jill is a highly-skilled defender who plays 125 percent at all times," coach Don Smith said. "Her intensity and enthusiasm are unmatched."

Lisa DeShano, defender, Liv. Franklin: DeShano scored six of her team's 15 goals despite her primary assignment being at the opposite end of the field. She was an All-WLAA, first-team selection and all-state honorable mention.

She has signed with Western Michigan University.

"I thought she was the backbone behind the team," Franklin assistant coach Cathy Wheatley said. "He (coach Dave Hebestreit) could put her anywhere, whether it be at sweeper or forward. She gave every game 110 percent."

Sarah Warnke, goalie, Ply. Canton: Warnke concluded an outstanding high school career and was a key player in Canton's march through the Class A playoffs to the state title.

She posted 17 shutouts this year for the Chiefs and allowed just nine goals. In her 62-game varsity career, she had 35 shutouts and 38 goals scored against her.

Warnke was an All-WLAA, first-team selection and Class A all-state choice this year.

"Sarah was our main girl this season," coach Don Smith said. "She set school records for shutouts in one season and helped guide us to a state championship. What else could a coach ask from his keeper? Well done, Sarah."

Sara Kloosterman, goalie, Farm. Harrison: Kloosterman's ability as a keeper is not always evident judging solely by statistics. She is a three-time All-WLAA and all-state selection despite playing for a below-.500 team. She made the coaches All-State Dream Team this year.

Kloosterman kept the Hawks in each game, stopping 213 of 238 shots for an 89.5 saves percentage and average of 2.4 goals against. She had four shutouts and 11 scoreless halves out of 21 in goal.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Joint Commission of Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations will conduct a routine accreditation survey of Oakwood Hospital Annapolis Center-Wayne from July 17-23, 1996. The purpose of the survey will be to evaluate the organization's compliance with nationally established Joint Commission standards. The survey results will be used to determine whether, and the conditions under which accreditation should be awarded the organization.

Joint Commission standards deal with organizational quality of care issues and the safety of the environment in which care is provided. Anyone believing that he or she has pertinent and valid information about such matters may request a public information interview with the Joint Commission's field representatives at the time of the survey. Information presented at the interview will be carefully evaluated for relevance to the accreditation process. Requests for a public information interview must be made in writing and should be sent to the Joint Commission no later than five working days before the survey begins. The request must also indicate the nature of the information to be provided at the interview. Such requests should be addressed to:

Division of Accreditation Operations
Organization Liaison
Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations
One Renaissance Boulevard
Oakbrook Terrace, IL 60181

The Joint Commission will acknowledge such requests in writing or by telephone and will inform the organization of the request for any interview. The organization will, in turn, notify the interviewee of the date, time, and place of the meeting.

The notice is posted in accordance with the Joint Commission's requirements.

Pro Bowlers event overshadowed by golf

TEN-PIN ALLEY

AL HARRISON

It was a rare week as the bowling and golf worlds collided in the suburban areas as the Pro Bowlers Tour hit Taylor Lanes for the Greater Detroit Open, while the U.S. Open was being staged at Oakland Hills Country Club.

If you tuned into any sports-talk radio show or television, the talk was golf, golf and more golf.

But there was very little mention of the PBT, but that's par for the course.

The dailies carried tons of verbage on the U.S. Open, except for the very fine section in Thursday's Free Press.

Hats off to Free Press bowling writer Matt Fiorito for his very insightful stories on pro bowlers scenario.

He mentioned the fact that Chris Schenkel has been the man at the microphone for 35 straight years, a feat more enduring than Johnny Carson's 18 or Ed Sullivan's 17 as a TV show hosts.

Fiorito also did some very good behind-the-scenes reporting on what it takes to put together this event and keep it going.

With all due respect, the U.S. Open had no participants from the Detroit area, while the PBT had 25 from our state and several from Observerland including Doug Spicer (West Bloomfield), Terrell Smith (Redford), Kelley Bennett (Auburn Hills), Ted Karbownik (Clarkston), Oliver Mabry (Southfield) and David Mahaz (of Novi), who owns a pro shop in Livonia.

These names are just part of an illustrious field which also includes such greats as Brian Voss, Walter Ray Williams, Del Ballard, Jr., Bob Learn, John Mazza and Gene Stus.

As part of the Greater Detroit Open, a celebrity bowl was held June 11, hoste by former Tiger pitcher Dave Rozema, with a little help from Kirk Gibson and Dave Bergman.

The money which was raised went to the Barbara Ann Karmanos Cancer Institute.

The spotlight also was on a pair of mascots, Paws (from the Tigers) and Roary (of the Lions). They helped the cause by posing for pictures, while putting on quite a show with their cute antics.

And it was pretty amazing they could actually throw a pretty good ball in full costume.

As you read this column, this PBT event is history, and if you viewed it on TV, who know who emerged victorious.

This column was written before the finals, so there is no way to list the Taylor winners, except to say, that the way this event was run, everybody was a winner - fans, bowlers, the DeBiasi family, who put it all together in no small part, and the sport of bowling.

•As a first-time event on June 2, three separate youth travel leagues got together for a challenge match at Cloverlanes in Livonia.

Among those competing included the Sunday Youth Classic (SYC), Wayne Westland Youth Traveling Classic (WWYTC) and Ward's Youth Travel League (WYTL).

In some hot and heavy action to determine the best, it turned out that SYC came out on top with a pinfall total of 12,051. WWYTC was runner-up with 11,894 and Ward's was third with 11,806.

High shooters included: Myron Lee (SYC), 270; Mike Willis (Ward's), 267-231; Tom Gutowski (SYC), 245; Bill Vitale (WWYTC), 227-227; Kathy Finke (Ward's), 227; Steve Engebretson (WWYTC), 223-214; Michelle Anger (SYC), 232-210; Keith Loveland, 247; Chris Green (Ward's), 236-218.

Judging by the success of the inaugural event, it should become a fixture.

Hornets defeat Garden City

BASEBALL

The Livonia Hornets swept a pair of games last week in the Little Caesars Amateur Baseball Federation (Connie Mack 18-and-under).

On Thursday, the Hornets won at Garden City, 12-2, thanks to an eight-run first inning.

Justin Kerr paced the Hornets' hitting attack, going 3-for-4 with three runs scored and two RBI.

Mike Tomassi was the winning pitcher, allowing only one hit and one run over four innings. He struck out eight.

On Tuesday, the Hornets trimmed Dearborn at Ford Field, 8-7, as reliever Andy Dattolo got the win and Tomassi earned the save. Kevin Marvin, the starter, worked the first four innings.

The Hornets collected nine hits, led by Todd Wilson, who went 3-for-4, and Scott Craver, who was 2-for-3.

Livonia Travel rolls

Roy Rabe (Livonia Stevenson) pitched a four-hit shutout, fanning six over six innings, as Livonia Travel earned a 6-0 victory Thursday over the Michigan Indians in a LCABF Mickey Mantle-age (15-16 year-olds) game played at Ford Field.

Offensively, Brett Wells (Livonia Churchill) had a bases-loaded two-run double and Corey Cook (Churchill) added a two-out RBI single.

Rabe was also 2-for-2 with three RBI.

Bob Malek (Redford Catholic Central), Casey Rogowski (CC) and Dale Hayes (Westland John Glenn) also had hits for the winners.

Justin Draughn (Churchill) hurled a scoreless seventh to preserve the shutout.

Nick Dedeluk (Redford), the Indians starter, pitched all seven innings in absorbing the loss.

Celebrate!

By Renee M. Skoglund and Mary Quinley, Special Writers

When Charles and J. Frank Duryea produced a series of 13 vehicles in their Springford, Mass. workshop in 1896, little did they know that they had set in motion the wheels for great sociological change across the country.

Detroit soon made the fledgling car industry hers. In 1904 Ransom E. Olds produced 5,000 cars in his Jefferson Avenue plant, nearly a quarter of all cars built in the nation. However, it was Henry Ford whose name became synonymous with the industry for decades.

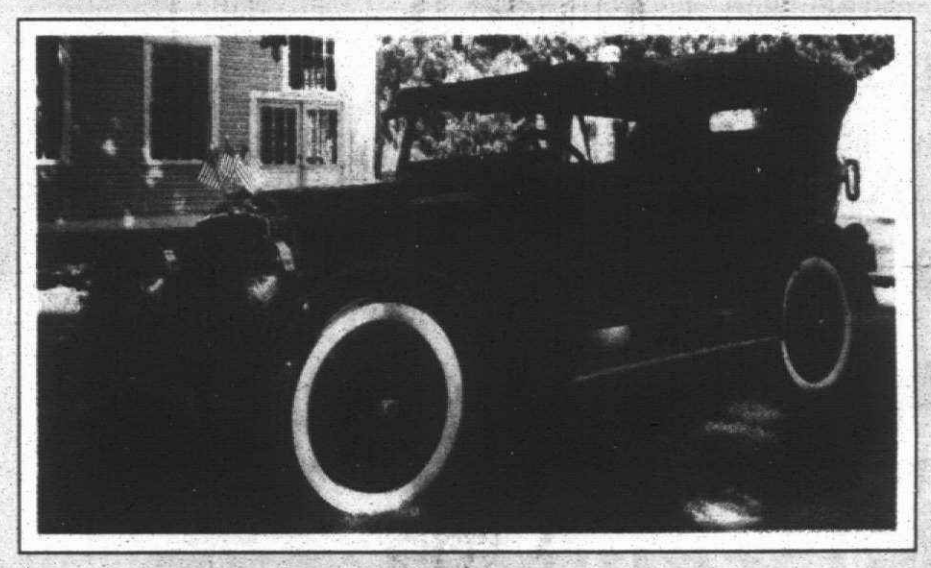
In 1910, Henry Ford's Highland Park plant established the moving assembly line. Soon thousands of unskilled laborers flocked to the city. Not only did these workers build the Model T Fords, they bought them, thanks to Ford's $5 daily wage initiated in 1914.

Car ownership led to mobility. No longer dependent upon street car lines, auto workers could now live outside the city. The suburbs were born.

Travel back and forth to work — as well as some Sunday joy riding — led to road building. Better roads led to increased commerce and gave rise to a number of "roadside" industries: gas stations, motels, and restaurants, including today's drive-through variety.

For better or worse, we are a society on the move. Around the bend lies our future, and most likely the automobile will take us there. This is the year to celebrate what J. Frank Duryea started and pioneers like Henry Ford, Ransom E. Olds, William C. Durant, Charles W. Nash and Walter P. Chrysler perfected: the American automobile.

PHOTOS AND PAGE DESIGN—GLENNY MERILLAT



Plan a centennial celebration road trip. But before you hit the highway, get your car checked out at your dealership. And when it comes back all washed and shiny, say "thanks." It's all part of today's car dealers' extra service to their customers.

How to celebrate:

No birthday party is complete without a cake — and the automobile's 100th is no exception. Share a slice at the birthday bash located at the Michigan State Fairgrounds. June 16-23 has been designated American Automobile Centennial Week — and celebration options are plentiful.

Looking for an evening trimmed with glitter and gold? Cobo Center hosts a Gala Dinner party with Jay Leno as guest. Dinner tab: $200 per person.

Perhaps high society elbow-rubbing is not your style. Why not head for the nearest Daly's or A&W drive-in and treat the gang to a 1950s-style, carhop-served dinner.

Then turn up the radio and search the neighborhood for a "Cruise Night" gathering of street machines. Take a date, the kids, or the grandparents — summertime cruisin' appeals to all age groups. Save some energy to watch a movie at one of a dwindling number of drive-in theaters.

Later during the week, discover racing vehicles at the Motorsports Hall of Fame in Novi; check out the Henry Ford Museum's 1896 Duryea Motor Wagon (remember, there were only 13 made); or turn the crank on the Model T replica to start the engine at the Detroit Historical Museum. Get a taste of the auto barons' lifestyles and tour one of four area mansions.

For the couch potato crowd, leave the car parked in the garage. Check the TV listings for an automobile documentary or turn on the computer and search the World Wide Web for auto-related trivia, anecdotes and events.

Happy 100th Birthday, Automobile Industry!

Henry Ford brought industry to country

BY RENEE M. SKOGLUND
SPECIAL WRITER

The Henry Ford who conceived the huge Rouge Plant also created "village industries," small factories in the countryside that tapped into the power of nearby streams.

Ford intended to harmonize rural life and industry by exporting his small-parts manufacturing into the country. By using the under-employed rural labor force, he could preserve farming and benefit industry.

By 1944, over 20 village industries dotted the banks of country rivers, including several along the Rouge River.

Nankin Mills

Henry Ford visited Nankin Mills, on Ann Arbor Trail in Westland, often in his childhood when it was the heart of a community known as Pike's Peak. He bought it in 1918. Shortly after it opened in 1920, the restored mill produced stencils for making Ford parts.

Nankin Mills, with its beautiful 12-inch-thick sycamore beams, is now the picturesque headquarters of the Wayne County Parks Department.

Newburgh Mill

Built on the site of an old cider mill in 1935, Newburgh Mill — on Hines Drive in Livonia — was started by employees from the Rouge Plant and completed by farmers.

Thirty-one men worked at the mill, including the farmers who helped build it. They produced 95 percent of the twist drills used by Ford.

During World War II, the plant made several parts for the Pratt and Whitney airplane engine. Production ceased in 1947. Currently, the building is used as a mini sheriff station.

Wilcox (Plymouth) Mill

Production began at Wilcox, on Wilcox Road in Plymouth, in 1923. It employed 35 men who made $6 a day.

The mill, originally the site of the Wilcox grist mill, produced 95 percent of all taps (used to make screws) used by Ford. During World War II, 60 men worked in two shifts to manufacture aircraft engine parts in addition to the taps. All production ceased after the war.

Phoenix Mill

Built in 1922, Phoenix Mill — on Northville Road in Northville Township — employed between 50 and 100 women who made small parts for the electrical systems.

They received $5 a day and two rest periods. During World War II, the women made ID badges and electrical wiring for the M-7 gun director.

The mill closed after the war and now serves as a maintenance yard.

Northville plant

In 1920, the Northville plant opened on the Main Street site of a former sawmill.

Eventually, the plant employed 250 local people, many of them farmers, who made valves for Model Ts being assembled at the Rouge Plant.

Botsford Inn: Creon Smith stands in the famous dance hall at the Botsford Inn.

Legacy of dance lives on at the Botsford Inn

"The square dances are rapidly returning to their original popularity ... The modern dances with their lesser demand for skill and spirit, their tuneless music, their tendency to jazz, their essential unsociability, are losing vogue everywhere."
— from "Good Morning"
a book on early American square dancing published by Henry Ford in 1926

Ford loved country dancing, and folklore has it he purchased the 160-year-old Botsford Inn on Grand River in Farmington because he met and courted his wife, Clara, on the inn's huge dance floor.

Shortly after buying the inn in 1924, Ford began making restorations, which included moving the inn 200 feet back from the road and lengthening the upstairs ballroom to 30 by 80 feet. He renovated the original dance floor by installing special gaskets under each wooden peg, making sure dancers would always enjoy a good "bounce."

Current owner Creon Smith has revived a Ford tradition by opening the ballroom to country dancing every Friday night. About the dance floor, Smith said: "It's a dancer's dream. Your ankles never get tired."

Canton factory offered spot for disabled veterans

Henry Ford built a factory in Canton's Cherry Hill Village just for disabled World War II veterans, according to Melissa McLaughlin, a member of the Canton Historic Commission.

The factory, one of Ford's "village industries," was located on the corner of Ridge and Cherry Hill roads, still very much a rural area. The site has been expanded, and is now occupied by DE-STA-CO Cylinders.

The old creamery that Ford converted into a dormitory for the men stands empty nearby.

In addition to physical limitations, some of the veterans were shell-shocked. Ford chose the site for its quiet and hired managers for their patience. He also made sure the men ate well.

"Henry Ford brought his chef out from Fair Lane. He used to come out and have breakfast with the men," said McLaughlin.

Because there was a moratorium on building supplies at the time, Ford built the factory on the sly. "People sent in their dinner bells off the farm to be melted into bullets," she said.

The factory manufactured ignition and door locks, keys, and hinges. It closed in 1961.

THE LOOK MAY CHANGE...

Museum showcases history of racing

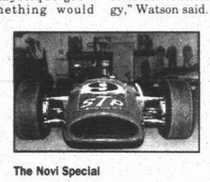
BY RENEE M. SKOGLUND
SPECIAL WRITER

If you're a "speed freak," rev your engines and head for the Motorsports Hall of Fame in Novi. Opened just three years ago, the 19,000-square-foot museum features over 75 new and vintage racing machines, from Indy cars and dragsters to motorcycles and boats.

Holding special place in the exhibit is the "Novi Special," the city's namesake, whose supercharged Novi V-8 rattled eardrums for almost 20 years.

From 1946 to 1965, the Novi became legendary in the world of motor sports due to local industrialist Lew Welch's quest to win the Indianapolis 500. Welch produced a series of race cars that led races, broke records, did everything a legend should do — except win.

"No car made a sound like a Novi Special," said Ron Watson, president of the Motorsports Hall of Fame. "They would fire up and the crowd would stand up in awe. A mystique grew about it. Something would always go wrong. It would set the pace, then maybe its wheels would wear down. It never won."



The Novi Special

But legends have little to do with love, Watson said. "The Novi Special is America's most popular racing car."

The Motorsports Hall of Fame also pays tribute to the men and women who laid their hearts and souls on the track. Their portraits make up the museum's "Heroes of Horsepower" gallery.

Watson is very proud of the museum's educational mission. Docents teach the children about safety features, technological advances in crash endurance, and wonders of aerodynamics.

"Motor sports is the most colorful use of science and technology," Watson said.

There are plenty of hands-on attractions at the museum: driver uniforms, memorabilia, videos, driving simulation games and a 1/24-scale slot-car track.

Watson encourages everyone who loves cars to come out and visit the Motorsports Hall of Fame during the American Automobile Centennial celebration week. "It's not only for gear heads," he said. "There's a lot of good human stories here."

The Motorsports Hall of Fame is located in the Novi Expo Center on Novi Road just south of I-96 (exit 162). It's open seven days a week, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Auto dealers experience a changing job

BY RENEE M. SKOGLUND
SPECIAL WRITER

"The most dramatic change has been going from the image of an individual in a plaid suit with a cigar and feet on the desk to a business person seriously interested in the business," Walt Norris said about his profession.

Norris has been in the car business since 1959 and owns three dealerships: Livonia Chrysler-Plymouth, Century Dodge in Taylor, and Holiday Chevrolet in Farmington Hills.

A self-described "hip shooter," Norris said he's learned a lot about dealing with customers from his daughter, Colleen McDonald, the dealer principal at Holiday Chevrolet. "And I don't say that in nepotism," he added.

His most important lesson? "The most unreasonable people are the most easily converted with patience."

Although Norris said he has mellowed over the years, it seems his daughter still has more patience.

"I'm a very patient person. He'll say I'm too patient," said McDonald. "When he sold cars in the late '60s and '70s, everything was different. Rather than, 'This is the way it is,' it's, 'How would you like it to be?'"

McDonald, who started as a dealership switchboard operator 14 years ago, makes sure her own dealership doesn't scrimp on the "extras," like washing a car after every service or finishing a job ahead of schedule. "You want to go beyond their expectations," she said.

Brenda Massey also is the daughter of a successful dealership owner. Her father, Don Massey, owns a national mega-dealership, Don Massey Cadillac, based in Plymouth.

Selling cars wasn't Massey's first career choice. She was director of nursing at a psychiatric hospital for several years. However, when her father suggested another family member become involved in the business, Brenda decided to give it a try.

"I promised myself I would do it for a year even if I hated it," she said. That was in 1987. She has been selling Rolls Royces and Bentleys ever since, and the last two years were record sales years.

"I really enjoy selling these cars because you meet people who have set goals for themselves and meet those goals," she said.

Like Colleen McDonald, Brenda Massey's selling style differs from her father's. "I could never be as flamboyant as he is," she said. "They broke the mold with him."

Irma Elder

Massey admires her father's loyalty to his customers. "I have never heard my dad complain of a customer, even at home. I think that's why he's so successful."

When Irma Elder took over the dealership after her husband died in 1983, she discovered she enjoyed running Troy Ford and Jaguar of Troy. "What kept me on was the interest, the excitement."

Although Elder was one of the few female dealership owners at the time, she said she experienced no discrimination. "When they see that you are not just a figurehead, that you are part of the organization, you earn their respect."

Elder believes women in car sales could learn one lesson from their male counterparts: "Rejection is not part of our world. We may talk to 10 customers and not sell a car."

Elder also concurs with McDonald and Norris that the entire nature of the dealership business has changed, has become more service-oriented: "Twenty years ago, there wasn't the competitiveness."

Russell Shelton

Russell Shelton was only 9 years old when his father, Bud, started a car dealership in 1958. "I don't know if I helped or hindered," he said of his early attempts at car washing.

Shelton, owner of Shelton Pontiac-Buick in Rochester, said selling cars is hard work.

"You've got to be up every day. This is hands-on. You can't run this by remote control. It used to be easier to sell a car. We used to be able to sell by the hood of the car."

What makes selling difficult? Paperwork, government regulations, and pleasing the customer, of course. "We've raised their level of expectation and now we have to live up to it," Shelton said.

Car lovers recall their first vehicles

BY RENEE M. SKOGLUND
SPECIAL WRITER

That sleek body, those soft leather seats, that four-in-the-floor transmission — ah, such sweet memories.

Judy Murphy of Birmingham hasn't forgotten her first car, a 1955 black Chevrolet Bellaire convertible with red leather upholstery. "Whatever they had in 1955, it had," she said.

She went to a party the night she got it. "After I got there all I could think of was that car in the garage. I've never had a car that I've been so excited about."

Livonia's mayor, Jack Kirksey, loves cars. He's owned 33, including a 1957 Volkswagen he once drove through the South. When he stopped for an oil change at a rural gas station, the overalls-clad attendants gawked.

"I told them the car came from Germany, but that I didn't care for the German music. They told me I could always go and buy an American radio."

Kirksey's first car was a 1937 Chevy he bought in 1947 at age 17. He and his brother Bob drove it to Florida. On the way home, the brothers decided to each drive 100 miles, then switch.

Bob drove five tortuous miles through small towns, then turned the wheel over to Jack and drove in the back seat for some sleep. After driving only a half-hour, Jack hit the turnpike. "When I woke Bob up he couldn't believe we did 100 miles."

Paul Scupholm of Redford Township also was 17 when he bought his first car, a green 1940 Ford. "The first gear was gone. I had to start it up in second. After school one day I got a ticket for drag racing. I went to court. The judge dismissed the ticket because he said you couldn't drag without first gear."

Alyce Humphrey of Plymouth followed her father's advice and bought a "spiffy" car after graduating from college in 1967. He told her the next time she bought a car she'd have to worry about kids and money.

Humphrey loved her new yellow Mustang with black roof. "The inside was like a little cockpit. I drove it for 10 years. When my second daughter was born, there were so many holes in the floor, we were worried about her getting "fumed" to death. Then we bought a used, four-door something that was safe."

The 1964 midnight blue Coupe de Ville Cadillac "with a 429 four-barrel" still holds a special place in Bloomfield Township resident Jeff Iovan's heart.

"Oh, those big hubcaps, those big tires, and all that chrome. It was loaded with chrome. And it had fender skirts," said Iovan, 17 when he bought it in 1972.

"The trunk was carpeted and it held eight teen-agers. We'd sneak them in the drive-in."

Iovan's father took the car bowling one night and someone smashed into the back end. "I totally lost interest in the car because I didn't have the $1,500 to fix it."

Forty years ago, Irma Elder of Bloomfield Hills, owner of Troy Ford and Jaguar of Troy car dealership, cruised through Miami drive-ins in a green, two-door Ford she shared with her sister Carmen.

"On Friday nights our deadline was midnight. We couldn't eat meat! We would ask for permission to stay out later. We used to order our hamburgers at five minutes to midnight."

Elder let out a sigh and said, "That first car was the most fun not because it was the best but because it was the first."

Proud owner: Now Livonia mayor, Jack Kirksey has always liked cars, including his first — this 1937 Chevy.

Drive-in restaurants serve up nostalgia

BY MARY QUINLEY
SPECIAL WRITER

Some summer nights the air stood still. Heat glazed the sidewalks. The kids on the block needed to cool off. Ditto, their parents. To the rescue: the A&W Drive-In.

Nine siblings led by mom and dad squeezed into the stuffy car. No one had to be called twice for the root beer run.

"When we were kids an A&W root beer was a treat. The ice-cold mugs really topped it off," said Cathy Diroff, one of the willing participants.

Diroff, a Westland resident, fondly recalls the days some 30-plus years ago when her dad drove the clan to the local A&W on Schoolcraft in Detroit.

"My favorite part was the taste of the root beer. We all liked the carhops who brought the drinks to the car on a tray and attached it to the window. I still go to A&W."

Orders for Daly Burgers and foot-long hot dogs keep carhops moving at the Plymouth Daly's Drive-In.

"We have a couple of boys who are carhops. They do real well," said Rita Grace, owner.

Grace, who has been in the Daly's restaurant business for almost 25 years, describes her customers: "If they're my age, they are bringing their kids, because that's what they did. People like (the car service). It's always worked well. I think it's a nostalgic thing."

The Big Boy craze began more than 60 years ago in Glendale, Calif. Closer to home in the late 1930s, three Elias brothers opened the Dixie Drive-In in Hazel Park.

"Thousands of people say they used to stop at Big Boy's. This is the place where (guys) met their first girlfriends. The drive-in was how this company really took off in the '40s and '50s," said Tony Michaels, Big Boy vice president of marketing.

Pat Enderle of White Lake remembers the Big Boy near the Greenfield and Grand River intersection in Detroit.

"It was a great spot. It was the hangout, the place go if you had wheels or your friends did. Drive-in restaurants were a blast. They were a social event. Everybody was there. Going to Big Boy was the freedom of being on wheels — a passageway to adulthood," she said.

Enderle's 17-year-old son, Ryan, has a very similar attraction to a hangout his mom once frequented, sans curb service. Some things never change.

"Usually I go if there's nothing better to do. I go with my friends. It's a place we can go to and stay without ordering a lot," the high school junior said.

A handful of Daly's and A&W drive-ins offering curb service are scattered around metro Detroit. Yet you'll have to travel to Albion for the only Michigan Big Boy with car window service.

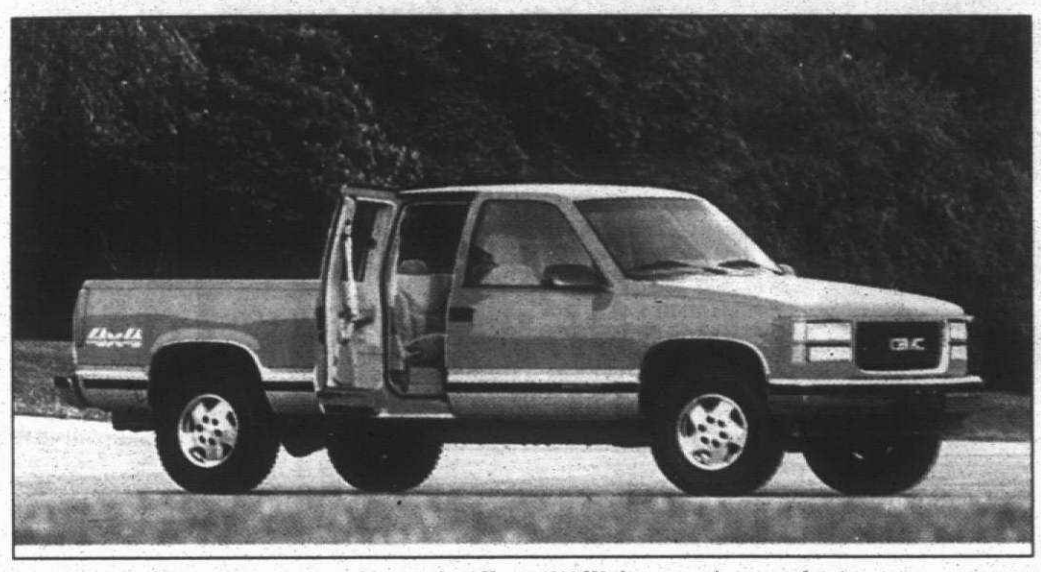
New 3rd door makes Sierra pickup a keeper

By Anne Fracassa
Avanti NewsFeatures



ROAD TEST By Anne Fracassa

Used to be buying a club cab pickup truck was great if you had a family. With its full-size truck capabilities and versatility, adding a bench seat in the back for the kids was, well, just perfect, if dad or mom wanted a pickup.

Now enter the GMC Sierra Club Coupe outfitted with a third door.

This is heaven on 16-inch all-terrain steel-belted radials.

Having the third door makes all the difference in the world for your rear-seat passengers. It means you don't have to fiddle with the front seats — you know, moving them up and over and then back — to let your passengers in. Just open the passenger door, reach in and open the second door.

Both doors open up wide, too, so there's no struggling.

And what those doors open wide for is comfortable, plush seating and carpeting, as well as more-than-adequate bench seats that can accommodate three large adults in front — and in back. Leg room in the rear seats could be better, though. With tall people in front, you'll find it less than an average person might want.

Test-driven this week was the 4x4 Sierra Club Coupe outfitted with the famed GM Insta-trac and the Vortec 5000 V8 sequential fuel injected engine with 55 more horses than last year's model. Reigning in those 230 horses is easy, as acceleration and merging onto freeway ramps is done without effort.

The standard engine for the Sierra is a new base Vortec 4300 V6 that provides 200 horsepower. This engine is outfitted with platinum-tipped spark plugs and coolant fluid that have a life expectancy of 100,000 miles. Also available as options are a 5.7-liter V8, 7.4-liter V8 and a 6.5-liter turbo-diesel V8.

The interior of the Sierra has been completely changed over last year's model. And change is good.

Instrumentation is smartly laid out, with simplicity the norm. There are gauges galore — tach, speedometer, oil, water temp, battery and fuel. Plain and easy to read, too.

There are very few switches to fool with.

There's a switch for the cargo light and one for the headlamps. Cruise control and windshield wipers are on the turning stalk. The AM/FM stereo/cassette/CD is up high on the dash so you're taking your eyes off the road for only a second. There are two auxiliary power plugs located in the middle, between front seat passengers, to accommodate the cell phone and radar detector. And both of those plugs are covered with spring-hinged doors. In the middle of those is a cigarette/cigar lighter in case you need another plug.

Between the front passengers is a neat, pull-out dual cup holder. Also between the front passengers is a center armrest that folds up and away if you need to carry that third passenger.

In the fabric-covered console is a storage compartment that can hold a good number of cassettes or CDs. Close it and on top there's a flat surface that can be used to write on. A band across the top can hold a number of papers and there's even a place to snap in your favorite pen and hold some change.

Of course, there are plenty of safety features on the Sierra, including daytime running lamps, illuminated entry, dual air bags, B-pillar-mounted height-adjustable shoulder belts, shoulder belts for the rear passengers and an electrochromic inside rearview mirror with an 8-point compass built in.

The base price of the Sierra is just a hair over $20,000. The model tested, however, loaded with all the special stuff, came in at around $27,500.

At $20,000, it's got a lot of standard equipment, such as an Insta-trac 4x4 transfer case, power steering, power brakes, a front stabilizer bar and independent front suspension, an all-welded cargo box, 100-amp alternator, steel-belted radials, driver air bag, 4-wheel anti-lock brakes, side door guard beams, intermittent wipers, tinted solar glass, gravel anti-chip protection, a 25-gallon fuel tank, removable tail gate, side window defoggers, front tow hooks and rear heat ducts for the passengers.

With all that, it's obvious the Sierra is a solid full-size pickup truck that's solid on features and bullish on price. It's a good buy for anybody who needs to haul people or cargo comfortably.

1996 GMC Sierra

Vehicle class: Pickup truck.
Power: Vortec 4300 V6 engine.
Mileage: 14 city / 22 highway.
Where built: Flint and Pontiac, Mich.; Oshawa, Ontario, Canada; and Fort Wayne, Ind.
Base price: $20,290.

Keep Car Cool To Save Interior

Summer heat is hard on a car's interior. It can cause the headliner (ceiling fabric) to droop, the padded dash to crack and upholstery to fade.

Many summer related problems can be addressed with a little common sense. Try to park in the shade. Avoid those wide open spaces that allow relentless full time exposure to the sun.

Try to park near a building to assure your car of some shade at least part of the time.

Finally, purchase a sun shade. These inexpensive cardboard blockers placed in the windshield and rear windows help lower the interior temperature.

More tips on protecting your car's interior are in a free pamphlet, 'HOW TO KEEP YOUR CAR LOOKING YOUNG', published by the Car Care Council. Send a stamped, self addressed envelope to the Car Care Council, Dept. N, One Grade Lake Drive, Port Clinton, OH 43452.

If you'd like to see a particular model tested or if you have a car question, send Anne Fracassa a message at AVANTI 1054, Avanti's America Online mailbox...Or comment through the Internet at AVANTI1054@aol.com
