BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

Canton resident Glenn Hornback is a transplanted Okie farm boy who never lost his fascination with horse-drawn vehicles.

After service in World War II as a hydraulic mechanic on Consolidated B-24 Liberator bombers, Hornback moved to Michigan in 1947 to take a welding job with Fisher Body, from which he retired in 1985.

His first horse-drawn acquisition was a "pony buggy" purchased 30 years ago. "Then I just started accumulating," he said.

Since then, Hornback has bought a sleigh from Carl Holston, the former assistant fire chief in Westland, and built a road cart from scratch.

"I got the parts from the Amish" down in Shipshewana, Ind., he said. "They build them carriages. New ones. Build them from scratch."

But Hornback's proudest possession is a carriage that may have carried Abraham Lincoln from the train station to a plantation in Indiana in the last century.

"It was sitting in his barn for years," Hornback said. "All the leather was rotted off of it. He told me if he ever got rid of it he would give me first chance at it. He died the following Friday, after we went down and got it."

Hastings maintained that the carriage had once transported Lincoln, although no proof exists to that effect.

Hornback and Holston sandblasted and refinished the carriage and took the fenders to the Pennsylvania Amish to have leather sewn on. "If you're interested in something like that you'll go wherever it takes to (get the job done)."

Now the carriage resides in the Hornback barn along with the pony buggy, sleigh and road cart.

Hitching up his Tennessee walking horse Blaze to the carriage, Hornback has used the rig in at least 12 weddings and once to carry his granddaughter in a parade seven years ago.

Hornback doesn't know why he is so interested in horse-powered vehicles.

"They just fascinate me," he said. "It's like these people with older cars. You wonder why they're interested in them, but the horse-drawn vehicles fascinated me more."

Fumes close Salem pool

■ Eight people were treated and released from the hospital after the mixing of two pool chemicals created chlorine gas.

BY M.B. DILLON

The Plymouth Salem High School pool and building were evacuated shortly after noon Monday after swimmers and employees were exposed to potentially lethal chlorine fumes.

Muriatic acid and chlorine, used to balance the pH in the pool, "were accidentally mixed, producing a very irritating gas," said Judy Evola, community relations director for Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

"Approximately 100 students from the Kids' Time child care program and Community Education classes were immediately evacuated by staff and student assistants and taken to the Phase III building."

Two employees and six students were taken to hospitals by the Canton Fire Department and the Plymouth Community Fire Department, said Canton Fire Chief Mike Rorabacher.

"A total of eight people were transported to St. Mary's, Oakwood

Canton Liberty Fest to kick off tonight

The fifth annual Canton Liberty Fest gets under way tonight with paddleboat rides, an outdoor performance by Dance Dynamics, a screening of the movie "Pocahontas," and a pie eating contest, all in Heritage Park. Admission is free.

Although "Everything is going great," according to event staffer Marianne Stewart, there is some apprehension about the weather prospects.

"If you can do anything to turn off the rain, that would be wonderful," Stewart said Tuesday.

Liberty Fest Chairman Bob Dates of Canton Parks and Recreation said, "We'll be ready to go no matter what the weather. It's not an event you just postpone to the following weekend."

Channel 2 weather forecaster Kam Carmen said Wednesday that we'll likely have a hot, humid weekend with a chance of showers.

Friday's festivities leave the pier at 6:30 p.m. when the Plymouth-Canton Percussion Ensemble of 15 students will play at the amphitheater.

Other Friday events include a concert by Bobby Lewis and the Crackerjack Band, a Vegas Night by St. Thomas A'Becket Church, and a bingo game by the Canton Chamber of Commerce.

Saturday the fun begins at 10 a.m. with paddleboat rides, an arts and crafts show, a fine arts show, a classic car show, a kids' art workshop and a "Taste of Canton" food-tasting event.

Also Saturday are children's entertainers Marc

Officials question tax breaks

Canton trustees wonder if the township's tax abatement policy for industrial development has any effect on decisions to build factories.

"Our inclination is that, more often than not, you don't need to offer the added incentive," said Supervisor Tom Yack.

Local man helped build Tucker

BY RENEE M. SKOGLUND
SPECIAL WRITER

Canton resident George Simons, 70, is part of automotive history: An ace mechanic, he worked on Preston Tucker's fabled but short-lived "Tucker Torpedo."

"Tucker was a newcomer way ahead of his time," Simons said. "He was more of the Henry Ford type. He loved his good time. He had everyone believing him."

In the 1940s, Simons' father, William, owned a gas station and repair shop on Michigan Avenue just west of Canton Center Road. Tucker — a "monkey wrench" engineer who challenged the Big Three when he began his car company in a barn in the back of his Ypsilanti home in 1946 — became a frequent customer.

TAMMIE GRAVES/STAFF ARTIST

Simons, who worked with his father, was assigned his own Tucker, one of only 51 eventually produced by the Tucker Corporation.

"In 30 seconds I could have the whole engine out on the floor," he said. Besides the transmission, Simons worked on the electrical system. "I got the old cyclops light to work."

When asked about the Torpedo's engineering quality, Simons said: "Oh, it was beautiful. It had such a high torque that I think B. F. Goodrich made a special tire to stay on the rim. The car was so well balanced. We'd drive through Riverside Park in Plymouth with one front tire in the trunk and peo-

Ex-Canton bicyclist died living life to the fullest

Days before he died in a Utah biking accident, former Canton resident Jonathan Mickevicius wrote the following to a friend.

Mickevicius closed his letter thusly: "Gotta live, don't wanna write, talk, got to do, do, do. Gotta GO!!!"

Mickevicius, 20, was killed at 1:10 a.m. Tuesday, June 4, on State Road 40 about 136 miles east of Salt Lake City.

After working all winter as a ski lift operator in Vail, Colo., Mickevicius and friend Paul Schafer were riding bicycles to San Francisco.

Near the end of their third day on the road, the young men traveled west on a four-lane road in Duchesne County, one mile west of Roosevelt City, according to Sgt. Dave Jacobsen of the Utah State Police.

Jacobsen said the men rode side he doesn't believe any company currently getting an abatement would have built elsewhere if it hadn't been available.

Currently the township has 54 outstanding tax abatements with 28 companies.

For example, the Colwell Equipment Co.'s 11-year abatement expires at the end of this year. For that period of time the township has not collected property taxes on half the taxable value of new construction.

Other abatements include American Yazaki, Chivas Products, Galaxy Precision Machine, International Door, Fairlane Gear, Draw Tite and Procoil.

The township has a point system whereby the size of abatements are determined by the cost of the construction, the cost per acre, the number of new jobs, how well the jobs pay, and more.

A company building a factory worth more than $10 million overall, $1 million or more per acre on land it already owns and providing at least 25 jobs qualifies for a 10-12 year abatement.

Trustee Melissa McLaughlin suggested tightening the points policy to make it more difficult for companies to get long-term abatements. Yack suggested that they might consider making 10 years the maximum.

Trustee Phil LaJoy, who runs a business, was alarmed at the talk of ending abatements. "Should we ask industry what their feelings are?" he asked. "Will it make an impact?"

Treasurer Elaine Kirchgatter said it would seem likely that companies getting tax abatements would be good "corporate citizens," but the reality is that they are not. She believes that none of the companies on the tax abatement list are contributing adequately to community causes.

Voyles said trustees could probably tighten restrictions on tax abatements without discernible adverse effects. "I think you could probably tweak it and no one would be dramatically impacted," he said. "I think they would take what they can get."

Yack said he will present a few options for modifying abatement policy at a future meeting.

Health Center Canton and St. Joseph's," he said. "Some of the symptoms they complained of were burning eyes, and burning throats. One guy described it very specifically as respiratory distress. He was having trouble breathing."

Evola said to her knowledge, none of those transported to hospitals were admitted.

Treated and released were Jennie Jansen, 8; Caitlin Campbell, 9; Claudia Moltar, 8; James Pomersan, 8; Steve Blossom, 15; and Elizabeth Austin, 6.

School employees Ron Klien and Mike Hanula also were treated and released.

Evola couldn't say how the incident occurred; whether it was inadvertent, or whether it involved a new employee unaware the chemicals shouldn't be mixed in the same tank.

"We are investigating that. It's still being looked at," Evola said late Tuesday.

Muriatic acid and chlorine are kept in separate hoppers and individually released into water to disinfect and balance the pH. Directly mixing the chemicals causes chlorine gas to form.

Thomas McNulty, section chief in the Wayne County Health Department's environmental health division, said the district notified him of the incident Tuesday morning.

"(Maintenance supervisor) Mr. Dennis Thompson called me and reported what happened," said McNulty. "He said the chemicals had been mixed by an employee, and there were people who required some treatment. It looks like someone did it accidentally, or didn't have the knowledge that when you mix the two together, you have a potentially dangerous situation.

"What results is a very toxic gas that can do permanent damage. It was used in World War I. We've recommended that the district send their employees to get some training through a certified pool operator course on the use of pool chemicals and all aspects of pool operation."

Ken Jacobs, the district's area coordinator for security, said, "All of the parents of the students were called to inform them of the incident, and to remind them if their child experiences physical symptoms or listlessness to take them to their family physician.

"Safety is always the top concern in these situations," he said. "The Plymouth-Canton Community Schools is conducting a thorough investigation into the incident and every precaution is being taken to ensure the incident does not happen again."

Under the Public Health Code, no disciplinary action is called for, said McNulty, adding that the identical incident occurred at the Salem pool three to five years ago. "We get reports of this happening once or twice a year (in the county).

"In this case, the people immediately affected were below pool level in the equipment room. The fumes traveled up through the ventilation system. Chlorine gas is heavy, but some of it evidently got up into the ventilation system and into the pool area."

The Fire Department helped ventilate the building. Doors were opened, and large fans brought in. "By 2 p.m., the danger had passed," said Rorabacher. The building reopened Tuesday morning.

The health department was last involved with the district several months ago when fecal matter was found in the pool.

"At our last inspection last winter, the pool was in compliance. We didn't have as much of a problem as we did during the '95 inspections," McNulty said.

"It's been our experience that the school is right on top of this kind of issue. The schools have been very responsive and very helpful. It looked a lot worse than it was," said Rorabacher.

Parade to mark auto centennial

Being that we live in the Motor City, it's hard to believe that the 100th anniversary of the automobile almost went off without a parade.

Sunday's Auto 100 Parade will feature 1,400 vehicles cruising a 3.5-mile stretch of Eight Mile through Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties. The parade route begins at Ryan Road and heads west to the Michigan State Fairgrounds at Woodward Avenue. Engines will rev up at 1 p.m.

"For the 50th anniversary in 1946 there was a Grand Prix down Woodward Avenue. (The cars) were painted gold for the occasion. Everyone remembers that. But for the 100th anniversary no one was doing much of anything," said Don Sommer of Troy, chairman of the parade and antique car buff.

Sommer was also founder of the annual Meadow Brook Concours d'Elegance car show in Rochester.

"My idea was to have the 100th anniversary be the grandest of all parades and have Jay Leno as the grand marshal," he said. "And we did it."

The Tonight Show's Jay Leno will be leading the pack, driving a 1929 Duesenberg owned by Bill Chorkey of Farmington Hills. Behind him will be Packards, Fords, Royals, Hudsons, and even a Tucker (only 50 were made.) There are more than 60 different makes of autos, trucks and motorcycles.

"There will be cars you've never heard of before, like the Moon," Sommers said.

The Auto 100 Parade and Birthday Party is the culmination of a yearlong celebration of the automobile. The birthday party takes place at the fairgrounds following the short trek down Eight Mile. Entertainment, car exhibits and 25,000 pieces of birthday cake will be on hand. Admission is $8 for adults and $2 for children age 12 and under.

Other activities leading up to the parade include the Great American Cruise In from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. on Saturday at the Michigan State Fairgrounds for car enthusiasts, who want to cruise in and show off their cars. Admission is $8 for adults and $2 for children. Parking is free. The Centennial Gala Dinner is Saturday evening at Cobo Hall. The historic tribute to men and women who built automotive industry features Jay Leno, who will share car stories. Price is $200 per plate.

•1938 Chrysler Imperial Convertible Sedan once used by bootleggers in Missouri and which had auxiliary tanks installed under the floor to haul booze in, owned by Diran Yazejian of Bloomfield Hills.

Simons recalled cruising his infamous Tucker down Canton Center Road one day at about 110 mph. A state trooper recognized him and gave chase. When Simons pulled off the road to turn around, the car stalled. "I had spun the clutch disc," he said. "The police said, 'We got you now.'"

Simons said Tucker remained undaunted even after he was charged with fraud by the Securities and Exchange Commission — and later found not guilty — and lost his company.

"Pres had another idea. He wanted to build a car and sell it through the J.C. Penney and Sears catalogs, a 'kit' car. His pattern maker made the wood prototype for it. It wasn't going to be built for comfort. It was for economy."

When asked if he would like one more joy ride in that beloved car, Simons said: "Oh, sure. I felt more secure in that car than any car I've driven."

Cable firm offers 'Net

BY JEFF COUNTS
STAFF WRITER

Canton and Plymouth residents are the winners again in the cable television war between Continental Cablevision and Ameritech, which are competing for cable subscribers.

Continental Cablevision will start testing a new high-speed Internet access service on Aug. 1 and is looking for about 50 volunteers to receive the service for free, said Dave Childs, director of new business for Continental.

It's the first such service in the Detroit area, he said.

"The service is hundreds of times faster that using the phone lines," he said.

Continental plans to test the new service for four to five months and plans to introduce the service to Canton, Plymouth and Northville later this year.

To sign up, call (888) 339-1688 or send an E-mail message to admin@continental.net.

Interested participants must have at least a 486 PC with 8 megabytes of RAM or a Mac 68030 with system 7.1.

"We're looking for a broad base of people. We want to work with them to seek what they like and how they use it," he said.

The Plymouth-Canton area is one of only two such test areas in the country, he said, adding that the other is in New England.

After the test, the cable firm will eventually start charging for the service. It will eventually be offered throughout the area.

"This is yet another exciting feature of our next-generation technology," said Bill Black, Continental's corporate affairs director. "Our new two-way fiber optic telecommunications network is brining our customers a clearer, more reliable picture, over 100 channels, and now, it will offer customers a glimpse into the future of telecommunications."

Continental Cablevision and Ameritech started competing for subscribers earlier this year after Canton and Plymouth officials approved allowing both firms to operate in the two communities.

The Plymouth-Canton is now one of the few areas of the country where two cable firms are competing for viewers.

Earlier this year, Continental purchased Omnicom Cable.

by side. Mickevicius' father, Michael, said the men rode one behind the other near the white line.

"They'd grown accustomed to lights coming from the rear and became desensitized to that because they always passed," the father said.

That is, until a westbound pickup truck driven by Michael Theener, 18, of Duchesne came upon the biking duo. Theener's truck struck Mickevicius, knocked him off his bicycle and pitched him into the darkness.

Jacobsen said Mickevicius rode his bicycle in violation of state law in that he wore dark clothing and had no reflectors on his person or his bicycle.

Mickevicius was taken to a hospital in Roosevelt City, then flown to Latter Day Saints Hospital in Salt Lake City.

The father, who lives in Southfield, said he is trying to see the good in what happened. He seems to bear no malice for the truck driver, who may yet be charged by prosecutors in Utah. Nor does he wish to take up the illumination issue. "Had he had reflectors of consequence, he may not have had the accident," Mickevicius admits. "But, again, that doesn't matter."

Instead, Mickevicius considers the full life his son led and concludes: "I'm fortunate to have a son who actually had a life and did things rather than worried about what's going to happen tomorrow."

An avid runner, rock climber and snow boarder who eschewed alcohol and drugs, Mickevicius the younger was in top-notch physical condition. In fact, he moved to Colorado in September 1995 to climb the mountains there and establish residency to attend the University of Colorado. "I would have forbid him to do this, but I knew I couldn't take that away from him," the father said.

Mickevicius' tiptop condition "paid off bigger than he or anyone could have imagined," the father said, as all seven major internal organs were donated to others.

"In Jonathan's case, every one of his seven organs now are within someone whose life, in essence, is a gift from Jonathan," he said.

Jonathan's liver, his father said, was given to a 16-year-old girl, and his heart saved the life of a 40-year-old man.

Mickevicius lived in Canton through the ninth grade, staying with his mother, Patricia Baltzer (now of Cheboygan), before moving in with his father in Southfield. He graduated from Ypsilanti Lincoln High School in 1994.

Michael Mickevicius was initially consumed with grief, but the upbeat letter his son wrote days before his death turned him around.

Inspired by his late son's energy and spirit, Mickevicius has dedicated his future to "this campaign that the rest of my life will be about."

In short, he said he is now devoted to "making bad things good and good things better."

Solomon sentenced in death

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

Former Canton resident Linda Solomon was sentenced to 4½ to 15 years in prison June 13 in the January 1995 hanging death of her 6-year-old daughter.

Solomon pleaded guilty to involuntary manslaughter May 17. She was originally charged with first-degree murder and felony child abuse. But Solomon accepted a plea bargain offered by Wayne County assistant prosecutor Maria Oxholm in agreeing to plead guilty to the lesser charge.

Wayne County Circuit Court Judge Brian Zahra gave Solomon the maximum sentence allowed for an involuntary manslaughter conviction.

Solomon has been in the Wayne County Jail since last summer and will receive nearly a year's credit on her prison sentence. She could leave prison in 1999.

According to police, Solomon spent most of Jan. 28 in her apartment with Chelsea, though they spoke only occasionally.

Solomon told police she heard Chelsea singing and playing. She said she also heard bumping and banging noises coming from Chelsea's bedroom.

Linda Solomon

Solomon told police that she later went inside Chelsea's bedroom to ask if her daughter wanted pasta for dinner.

Solomon then found Chelsea hanging by the neck from a bunk bed.

Solomon told police she removed whatever was around Chelsea's neck and set the girl on the lower bunk.

Solomon said she began CPR and called 911 shortly after 7 p.m. while continuing to try to resuscitate her daughter.

Canton firefighters took Chelsea to Oakwood Healthcare Center, from where she was flown by helicopter to the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor.

Boy suspected of setting fire

Firefighters quickly extinguished the bed, which was in the basement, according to the police report.

The boy's mother told police that her son "has started fires before and that he has to be watched all the time," according to the police report.

The boy's 12-year-old brother, whose bed burned, told police that his brother "plays with matches all the time, smokes cigars, cigarettes and lights candles and incense a lot."

The boy admitted that the half-smoked cigar found under the bed was his, but he denied setting the fire.

The boy said he used to flick lit matches in the basement, but he ran out of matches two months ago.

He said he smoked the cigar in his bedroom and threw it downstairs, but did not light the bed.

A neighbor said she saw the boy "run from his apartment front door toward McDonald's in a big hurry" that night, according to the police report.

COP CALLS

Puckish youth

A 39-year-old Fellows Creek Apartments resident told police that a 7-year-old neighborhood boy "is always hitting his hockey pucks at her car," according to the police report.

The latest incident occurred the afternoon of June 12, the woman told police.

She said the boy has caused $150 in damage to her 1994 Ford Escort with his hockey pucks.

The boy's father told police that the boy was grocery shopping with him at the time the woman said the boy hit her car with a hockey puck.

"The father believes (the woman) is just blaming his son because she has a problem with his son," according to the police report.

The boy told police that he did not hit the woman's car with his hockey puck.

Cigarette thief

A 45-year-old employee of the Michigan Avenue Shell station told police that a man stole four cartons of Marlboro cigarettes worth $93.60 at about 1:50 a.m. June 13.

The man said the thief grabbed the cigarettes off the counter and ran into the woods. Police searched the area, but did not find the thief.

Stolen car

A 72-year-old resident of Argyle Court told police that her 1991 Ford Taurus was stolen from the apartment parking lot the night of June 15-16.

Police found a small pile of glass on the ground where the car had been parked.

Stone throwers

Two boys who live in Fairways at Pheasant Run admitted to police that they threw rocks through windows of two houses under construction June 13.

The boys took out two garage and four basement windows at one home and one garage window at another home.

A police officer phoned the boys' mothers, who were at work, and the mothers agreed to pay restitution to the builder, Korchak Company.

The builder does not want to prosecute the boys, according to the police report.

Appeals court sides with developer in wetlands case

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

A state Court of Appeals panel stunned the Department of Natural Resources by ruling it must pay $5.3 million to an Oakland County builder for "taking" 28 acres of his property by declaring it a protected wetland.

Joseph Kosik, his J.F.K. Co. and his Resorts and Co. wanted to build a restaurant on 55 acres of land zoned commercial on M-59 just west of Pontiac in Waterford Township. DNR refused a permit in 1988. DNR also refused Kosik's later proposal to fill in 3.17 acres and convert 5.36 acres of upland to wetland.

"This is a very important decision," said Kevin Smith, assistant attorney general representing DNR. "There have been other cases where trial courts found there had been a taking, but the others were reversed by the Court of Appeals. This is the first case where the Court of Appeals found there had been a taking."

Smith was unsure whether the state solicitor general would recommend appealing to the state Supreme Court. "If the decision is not reversed, it will have a significant impact for the wetlands program. The DNR will have to consider the impact of all permit denials."

■ 'If the decision is not reversed, it will have a significant impact for the wetlands program. The DNR will have to consider the impact of all permit denials.'

Kevin Smith
-assistant attorney general

No nuisance

"The crucial issue," said Michigan's second highest court, "is whether there is a taking within the meaning of the Fifth Amendment to require just compensation."

It said there was. "The decision to build a restaurant, or a request to fill in wetlands, do not constitute nuisances that a government may abate," wrote Judge Kathleen Janssen. She was joined by Judges Clifford Taylor and J.P. Noecker in upholding a Court of Claims ruling.

They said "the legislature's declarations in the Wetlands Protection Act and the Michigan Environmental Protection Act. . . do not constitute background principles of nuisance and property law sufficient to prohibit the use of plaintiffs' land without just compensation."

The state court relied heavily on a 1992 decision of the U.S. Supreme court in Lucas v. South Carolina Coastal Council. "(W)hile property may be regulated to a certain extent, if the regulation goes too far, it will be recognized as a taking," Janssen wrote.

Court of Claims Judge William E. Collette awarded Kosik and his companies $3.2 million for the property taken, $1.6 million in interest and nearly $460,000 for a temporary taking of part of the land.

Collette in 1991 ruled the DNR wetlands restrictions "rendered the property essentially worthless as commercial real estate, and that plaintiffs were therefore entitled to just compensation." The base award amount to about $60,000 an acre.

"The parties do not question that the state has a legitimate interest in preserving and protecting wetlands," said Janssen's opinion. The question was money.

The trial and appellate courts found unconstitutional a section of the statute limiting the landowner's recovery to twice the state equalized value of the property (half the supposed market value).

National issue

Janssen's opinion noted "the 28 acres of wetlands is irregularly shaped within the 55-acre parcel. Thus, it is not possible to simply leave the wetlands area undeveloped and build on the remaining 27 acres. . . Here the plaintiffs could not develop the remaining 27 acres because of the configuration of the wetlands within the parcel."

She added, "Defendant (DNR) has not shown that the Court of Claims' computation of damages was erroneous or excessive."

The Michigan Association of Home Builders joined the case as an "amicus" on Kosik's side.

The case is part of a nationwide battle between landowners, who say government is taking their property by regulating its use, and environmentalists, who insist wetlands are essential to the ecosystem. The 1992 Republican national platform came out for the landowners' side.

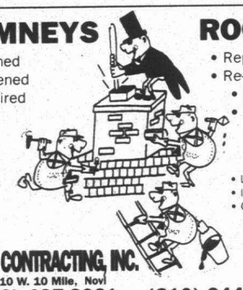

Ingham circuit judges constitute the Court of Claims and hear all suits against state government. Michigan Republicans contend Ingham jurists are politically too liberal.

'Your Family Diamond Store Where Quality and Service Are Affordable'

We Deliver Families.

Some people think birth is a woman's concern. It is, of course, but it's also much more.

At St. Mary Hospital, we think it's a family affair, so we make it easier for the father and the whole family to share the wonder of childbirth; before, during and after.

Before you're due — when your anticipation is growing as quickly as your baby — our prenatal classes for expectant families such as Lamaze, breastfeeding and infant care and safety get your family ready for the new arrival.

And when your baby is born—after months of waiting come down to a single day— we make sure that day is everything you meant it to be. Our commitment to family involvement includes flexible visiting hours; time with your baby; and time for father, grandparents, brothers and sisters. And all the while, you'll enjoy private rooms that combine homelike comforts with the support and security of St. Mary Hospital.

Once you're home, we're as close as your phone, with follow-up and basic infant care information.

So, talk with your doctor about St. Mary Hospital. Or call us at (313) 464-WELL to help you find a physician who's right for you. Because when it comes to families . . . we deliver.

Trustee argues lot widths

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

No one can call Canton Township Trustee Bob Shefferly narrow-minded. At least not where lot widths are concerned.

Shefferly stepped down from the dais at a board meeting June 11 to step up to the podium and speak as a citizen against narrow lots.

The item on the board's agenda was approval of the preliminary site plan for Fox Meadow II. This will be a row of lots on the north side of Hanford if and when the road is extended to Canton Center from Sheldon.

Shefferly lives on Hanford. So he abstained from the vote, citing a conflict of interest.

Cook Development was granted variances by the Zoning Board of Appeals to have seven of 10 lots smaller than township zoning rules allow.

Shefferly said he is all for extending Hanford, but believes the ZBA erred in approving 64-foot widths for Fox Meadow II.

"There is an excuse and a reason for 60-foot-lot homes being built in the '70s, but what is our excuse in the '90s?" he asked. "At the very beginning of this project the board was told there was room to build eight houses. Then we heard nine, and then 10.

"This will not add to the beauty, aesthetics and planning expertise that we have been working to convey to the public. How often have we heard it said that the new homes being built were beautiful, but they were too much house for the size of the lot?

"The new construction along Hanford should represent our present thinking in what lies in Canton's future, not what was on the books back in the '70s when we were new at planning community development. Mistakes could occur then and be forgiven to some degree because of our lack of experience."

The developer plans to put 10 lots on the property, seven of them 64 feet wide. The other three are 80, 116 and 158 feet.

Township Community Planner Jeff Goulet said development of the property cannot be done without granting variances. The property is in a tight spot between Fox Hills subdivision and Plymouth Canton Schools property to the south. The Hanford extension must swing 31 feet to the south to give the lots a modicum of depth.

Zoning Board of Appeals members, Goulet said, figured that 64-foot lots are OK for that area because surrounding lots in Fox Hills and on Hanford are 60 feet.

Township Supervisor Tom Yack said Tuesday that he will contact developer Ron Cook and ask if he will consider eliminating one of the 64-foot lots.

Yack also said the agreement between the township, Cook Development, the school district and nearby property owner Nick Selimi has stalled.

Negotiations continue to reach an agreement and build the road.

Bennett sets office hours

On Friday, June 21, state Sen. Loren Bennett and a staff member will be in the large meeting room of the Canton Township public library. The township library is located at 1200 S. Canton Center Road.

Area residents with problems, questions and/or concerns about state legislative issues, or who simply wish to meet their senator, are welcome to stop by between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. Appointments are not necessary, and individuals will be seen on a first-come, first-served basis.

Bridge work progresses

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW

Commuters will be pleased to know that restoration work on the I-275 bridges over Ford Road is nearly done.

Michigan Department of Transportation assistant resident engineer Ken McLenon reports that work atop the bridges is complete and all lanes are open, as are the four on and off ramps.

Work on the north abutments will be finished by July 20, McLenon said.

The acceleration/deceleration lane on westbound Ford will be closed during the day as work continues.

Contractor A.J. Williams, Inc. of Melvindale was paid $566,983 to perform the work. The company began work April 12.

State eyes voluntary efforts to control storm water runoff

BY BETH SUNDRLA JACHMAN
STAFF WRITER

■ As the metro area was awash in rain, representatives from various governmental agencies and municipalities met to talk about the Rouge River and mounting a watershed approach to managing it. U.S. District Court Judge John Feikens presides over the hearings as part of an attempt to resolve a lawsuit that began in 1977.

Until federal guidelines are set state officials want local municipalities to take voluntary action to manage storm water runoff and help clean up the Rouge River.

That is according to information presented by officials of the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality and the Environmental Protection Agency at an informational hearing Tuesday.

Storm water was the topic outside and inside Tuesday during the third in a series of hearings on water quality in the Rouge River.

As the metro area was awash in rain, representatives from various governmental agencies and municipalities met to talk about the Rouge River and mounting a watershed approach to managing it. U.S. District Court Judge John Feikens presides over the hearings as part of an attempt to resolve a lawsuit that began in 1977.

"My interest has gone along the line of a watershed approach, particularly, to address the problems of the Rouge River," Feikens said in his introduction. But agencies haven't embraced the intercounty drainage district concept, he said.

A watershed approach is not new to Michigan, according to Robert P. Miller, chief of the surface water quality division of the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality. "The Feds have been moving toward a watershed approach," he said.

"The issue before us is more than just the watershed," it's storm water, he said. Storm water or rain water running over the land takes the residue from land, lawns, cars, driveways and roads, industrial sites and agricultural fields and washes it into the river and ultimately into the lakes, Miller said.

"All of our watersheds are in our control, they're defined," and they ultimately wash in to the Great Lakes, he said. "We have a real high calling as far as protecting the water," he said.

The DEQ chooses to proceed with a voluntary approach until federal guidelines are in place, Miller said. Those guidelines aren't expected before 1999, he said.

In answer to the question of "how clean is clean," which has been asked at the previous two hearings, Miller said, the federal water quality standards are the goal and they have the weight of law.

"It's not a debate whether we will meet the water quality standards," he said. The standards will apply to any flow of water greater than a drought level flow, he said.

Water quality is judged on standards such as dissolved oxygen levels, microorganisms and physical characteristics, he said.

The water quality standards are a fixed target, but can be influenced by local municipalities as far as approaches to attaining the standards, he said.

In the long-term, the state will comply with federal requirements, in the near-term the agency plans to proceed with the watershed approach, Miller said.

The DEQ will participate in local voluntary watershed efforts, but will bring in enforcement if it has to, Miller said.

Other plans in the interim include developing the best management practices manual, encouraging communities to control illicit discharges and educating the public.

"People care about the water . . . I think there will be a lot of voluntary initiatives," he said.

When asked by Feikens if the DEQ supports the formation of an intercounty drainage district, Miller said no. "Because we really feel we are still at the stage where we can do things voluntarily," he said.

But, "If the communities decided that is the best thing to do we would work with them," he said.

Feikens asked if the agency would be willing to extend the time required to meet the standards.

"What's really important is to be on the right course," Miller said. The DEQ would be willing to work with communities on the time schedule, he said.

The requirements to get combined sewer overflow permits didn't seem voluntary, Jim Murray, director of Wayne County's Department of Environment, said in response to Miller's presentation.

But, the CSO controls aren't part of the storm water control plans, according to Chad McIntosh, deputy director of the MDEQ.

CSOs weren't being discharged in anything but wet weather, Murray said. "I don't think there is a voluntary program when dealing with wet weather discharges," Murray said.

"Waiting is good if you know what you're waiting for," Murray said.

"Where are we going with CSO control? Where are we going with SSO (sanitary sewer overflow) control. . . We have standards that exceed everywhere else in the country. . .," he said.

After the hearing, Livonia resident Joan Lintelman, a member of the Rouge River Advisory Council, said she liked what the EPA and state officials said. "They're ultimately responsible for the water of the United States."

Communities need to pursue meeting water quality standards, she said.

As for the costs local communities could face, Lintelman said that is because municipalities have taken a "Band-Aid approach" in the past and haven't looked at the total picture.

"Now it is extremely excessive in cost," she said. Today governments are facing what community governments of the past were unwilling to face, she said.

Angelo Plakas, Westland city attorney, said he was pleased to hear Murray make the comment that his boss (county Executive Edward McNamara) was not endorsing the intercounty drainage district concept.

He called the voluntary approach the most prudent and cost effective. The voluntary approach works each April 15, he said.

"The thing that concerns Westland is the cost," Plakas said. "It's mind boggling to say the least. The citizens are being taxed to death."

The next hearing has been tentatively set for July 16.

Tale of the turnout

Not voting wastes influence

While Plymouth-Canton Board of Education incumbent Jack Farrow and newcomer Liz Givens are surely celebrating their wins in the June 10 election, there's a disconcerting note to the results.

Of the district's 60,000 voters, less than 4 percent, or 2,182, voted. That's shameful.

It is the school district in Canton and the Plymouths that captures more attention from residents than do the municipalities. Parents continue to be concerned about class size, the need for new schools to accommodate a growing student population, teachers' contracts, improved technology and student test scores – just to name a few.

So why did only 2,182 vote? Some said they were surprised there was an election. Others said they don't follow local politics and still others said they aren't happy with the district. Good reasons not to vote, right?

This is clearly one of those times when those who vote are justified in telling those who don't to stop complaining about the school district. It takes a lot more effort to complain than it does to vote. That's especially true with the new voting machines the district shares with Plymouth Township. It takes all of a couple seconds to touch the computerized screen and cast your ballot.

It is true that millage elections draw more voters to the polls than do elections for school board candidates. That's interesting when you consider that voters are sure to have an opinion about spending their money, but not an opinion about who spends their money.

Voters who don't vote should realize they send out signals of satisfaction to the school board and school district administration. Guess that means there will be little controversy or debate in the coming year.

Low voter turnout also allows special interest groups to control the outcome of elections. For example, a majority of the seven school board members have either been rated qualified or endorsed by the Plymouth-Canton Education Association.

That means that any voter who is concerned about the current salary schedule's steps that grant teachers salary increases of as much as 13 and 14 percent, can continue being concerned. What is the likelihood that these concerns will fall on welcome ears?

Consider the voter turnout and the fact that the winners of the election were the two candidates endorsed by the teachers' union. With that in mind, there's a strong possibility that the almost 4 percent of Plymouth-Canton voters were teachers or those interested in maintaining teachers' status quo. There's absolutely nothing wrong with that, as long as the rest of the voting population can live comfortably with it.

There's really no excuse for not voting. It is in their local communities that voters have the greatest influence.

The only way residents lose influence and a say in how they want their communities to be is by standing idly by and not voting.

County parks deserve a 'yes'

Wayne County voters have an opportunity this summer to stabilize funding for the county parks system, and it's an opportunity that should be seized.

The county has put on the August primary ballot a new, ¼-mill tax dedicated to improvements in the county park system, which includes such facilities as Hines Park and the Holliday Nature Preserve. It's a good system, and Director Hurley Coleman and his staff have made admirable progress with the resources they have available. Bottom line, though, is that they need more.

Wayne County currently pays for its parks through an annual allocation from the county general fund, combined with other revenue from user fees, grants and the like. Many counties – notably Oakland – fund parks systems through a dedicated property tax similar to Wayne County's new proposal.

Despite Wayne County's inordinately high tax rate overall, the parks system here does not have a stable funding source. The general fund allocation has varied wildly through the years, depending on the financial and political situations of the moment.

The August proposal would stabilize parks funding two different ways. First, it would establish a dedicated source of revenue for five years through the new tax – around $8 million in the first year. And second, it would mandate that the general fund allocation for parks be continued at its current level, about $3 million, for that same five years.

Although we would have preferred to see an allowance for inflation, this second provision is a critical point in favor of the plan. It means that county politicians won't be able to play a "shell game" with parks money, eliminating the current allocation and using the new tax to fund existing programs. This way, the new tax would have to be used for new projects.

And what are those projects? The plans include improvements throughout Hines Park, including new grills and tables, new facilities for team sports, and reopened bridle trails; restoration of trails and foot bridges at the Holliday Nature Preserve in Westland and Canton; and development of an interpretive center at Nankin Mills. Other projects, including a water park and renovation of Historic Fort Wayne, are within the city of Detroit — a long-needed first, since the county now operates no parks in its largest city.

Agreement seems almost unanimous – even among opponents – that these projects, as a whole, deserve funding. The main disagreement seems to be over how best to fund them.

Commissioner Thaddeus McCotter, representing Livonia and Plymouth on the county commission, is among the critics of the proposal. He argues that an additional tax is the wrong way to address park needs, and that the county could have found adequate funding elsewhere, if only it had looked.

McCotter makes a good point; it does feel like the administration reached for a tax increase as a first, rather than last, resort. But frankly, we have to deal with the proposal that's before us; and if voters defeat this tax, we can't realistically see the projects being funded any other way.

At a cost of $12.50 a year for a $100,000 house, the expense of this plan is simply worth it. The county parks system deserves a stable, reliable source of funding to build on its accomplishments and take the next step toward providing residents a truly first-rate operation. This proposal should accomplish that, and it merits a yes vote.

LETTERS

Thanks, but no thanks

Editor's note: This is a copy of a letter sent from Wayne County Commissioner Bruce Patterson, R-Canton, to commission Chairman Ricardo Solomon.

Dear Chairman Ricardo Solomon:

I wish to acknowledge receipt of your memorandum dated May 28, 1996 and its identified enclosures. I received them today and began considering them immediately following the conclusion of our full board meeting.

I want to thank you for extending your invitation to me to serve on the committee you have chosen to form pursuant to our Rule 14. I consider the invitation to join you and serve on the Special Committee on Airport Expansion to be both an honor and a compliment. You have consistently demonstrated your faith in my ability and dedication to the people I was elected to serve throughout this, my first, term in office. I appreciate your confidence and thank you for it.

It is tempting to accept your appointment to serve on this new special committee. I suspect that the work will receive substantial public exposure and that there will be much "glamor" involved. However, on this occasion, despite the honor and the compliment, I must most respectfully decline the invitation. I hope you will understand.

While I agree that expansion of Detroit Wayne County Metropolitan Airport, and the concomitant infrastructure improvements and upgrades, are important to the vitality of Wayne County and the State of Michigan, I find myself faced with a dilemma. That dilemma centers around the question of priorities.

As I am sure you will admit, I have been a consistent, outspoken advocate for the residents of the communities I represent in the 11th Commission District. More specifically, relative to this issue, I have been such an advocate for the residents of the City of Romulus and the Township of Huron who live in the airport noise impacted areas. I have pressed the issue of full compliance with the Plan 150 Noise Mitigation Program at every possible meeting, and on every appropriate occasion. To such an extent that I fear that I have alienated some of our colleagues. Undoubtedly, I have upset those in the McNamara Administration, and, in particular, Mr. McNamara.

However, I am convinced that if I were to accept your very gracious invitation to round out this special committee, my constituents would be concerned that I was lessening my commitment and resolve to their cause. Some might even feel that I was abandoning my position, or forsaking their cause. This I cannot do; this I will not permit.

Therefore, until such time as I am convinced that the County of Wayne is interested in fully complying with both the letter and the spirit of the Plan 150 — Noise Mitigation Program, and shows that commitment by fully implementing and making operational the Airport Noise Advisory Committee called for in Article V, of Resolution 92-807, and Budget Instruction (T) of Appropriations Ordinance 95-769, I will have to limit my involvement to that to which you make reference in your memorandum, page 2, paragraph 2, for all commissioners. Accordingly, I look forward to receiving "a schedule of meetings and an action plan for the Special Committee will be readily available."

I made a promise to my people, the residents of the 11th Commission District, that airport noise mitigation was my number 1 legislative concern, whether at Metropolitan Airport or at Willow Run Airport. I have fought consistently for the relief my constituents were promised by the county and the FAA in 1992. Since those constituents are still waiting and suffering from the noise and the failure of Wayne County to keep those promises, I will have to focus my attention, efforts and energies on that aspect of the Wayne County Metropolitan Airport operation, not the expansion aspect.

As I indicated above, I trust you will understand; I hope you will respect my decision. I am confident that my constituents will. Thank you.

Bruce Patterson
Wayne County Commissioner
11th Commission District

POINTS OF VIEW

Beware when buying prepaid funerals

Try this on for size. Did you know you may have the expertise to sell prepaid funerals? You might be the next prepaid funeral seller and not even know it. If you have good sales skills, you — yes, you — could sell pre-need funerals tomorrow. Almost anyone can sell prepaid funerals under such titles as financial planner, memorial counselor, family planning counselor, pre-need counselor — anything that sounds credible.

Prepaid funeral sellers often generate customer leads through such vehicles as funeral home registers, raffles at the Home Builders Show, booths at Chamber of Commerce expos, fundraisers at senior citizen centers, even Easter egg hunts.

But it gets worse. How do you feel about pre-need sellers jotting down license numbers from cars at a cemetery or a funeral home?

Would you trust someone who borrowed a church registry for leads, or sold a prepaid funeral at a senior citizen home to get referrals?

I certainly hope you are wondering how these abilities relate to funerals. In fact, the funeral is the least important thing to salespeople like this.

Funeral directors, cemetery owners and pre-need companies are trying to change the marketplace. They are doing so by trusting your money in a financial institution, selling you an insurance product or not protecting your money at all. That is why it is important for buyers of prepaid funerals to know where their money is going.

When funeral homes, cemeteries and pre-need companies employ commissioned salespeople to sell their services, the truth can get muddy. Do these situations sound honest?

A funeral director sells a family a casket and a burial vault then tells them "everything is taken care of." Years later when the death occurs, they are told they must pay a service charge and additional expenses.

GUEST COLUMNIST

KEVIN MCCABE

A pre-need company rents a casket for $1,600 by telling the family the average casket sells for $9,000. When the family gets to the funeral home, they learn that for $1,400 they could have bought the same one.

Do I need to mention free attorney services for estate planning to encourage sales?

My point is that it is hard to know with whom you are dealing. These salespeople may work for the funeral home, the cemetery, the pre-need company or a company contracted by any of the above. The state of Michigan is supposed to regulate pre-need funeral sales, but unfortunately it knows as much about funerals as the average citizen.

Example: If you saw a company named ABC Funeral Services, would you assume they are a state licensed funeral home? I did, so I filed a complaint. The state told me the company is legal because it is licensed as a pre-need seller. Why do you think this pre-need company would want a name that makes people think they are a funeral home? Simple _ sales, sales and more sales!

How do you protect yourself? Deal with someone you know. If you don't know anyone in this field, find someone committed to your community.

Make sure 100 percent of your money is trusted and that you can get a 100 percent refund on principle and interest. Get it in writing.

Be wary of anyone who says "everything is taken care of." There are always incidental items at the time of death.

If it sounds too good to be true, it is. Can any death related item be too good to be true? Don't let salespeople compare one product or service to another. Make your own comparisons so you will know exactly what you're buying.

Charter school's troubles raise more concerns

It was a "bad news" story, and yet there was an element of humor in the June 13 article in the Lansing State Journal.

A so-called charter school is in trouble. El-Hajj Malik El-Shabazz Academy has been placed on probation, "plagued by complaints of misconduct and mismanagement on the part of its governing board," the story said.

"They're in serious trouble," said Robert Mills, director of Central Michigan University's Charter School Office, suggesting the academy may "self-destruct." CMU, you may recall, is the charter mill that ground out most of the 43 charters in the state.

Let us peruse the LSJ story further:

"Mills' office is investigating a series of complaints of misconduct, including the dismissal of administrator Angela Scott and possible violations of the state Open Meetings Act.

"'We're questioning the whole protocol of how hiring and firing were handled, why bitter complaints by parents were not being handled by the board and the abrupt resignation of board members,' Mills said.

"Mills said his office will work with the board to develop operating policies and guidelines. CMU officials also will interview new candidates to fill the board vacancies.

"'If matters do not improve, CMU could revoke the charter that allows it to operate,' he said." End of quotes.

Charter schools, according to the national literature, are supposed to be specialized schools organized by parents and teachers to promote specialized kinds of education, such as the art, theater or science. That's the theory.

As implemented by Gov. John Engler and state Board of Education President Clark Durant, the concept has become perverted to state subsidies for private schools.

TIM RICHARD

The Shabazz tale suggests some pertinent questions:

- Charter schools are supposed to be competitive in the free market by catering to the demands of consumers – i.e., parents. But here we have the parents in revolt.
- A board member, Larry Scott, and the administrator, Angela Scott, are husband and wife. Does that not reek of nepotism and conflict of interest? You wouldn't see that in a real public school.
- Central Michigan University, located an hour north in Mt. Pleasant, will interview candidates for the board. What's wrong with having voters elect the board, the way we did with real public schools June 10?
- At the outset I noted there was an element of humor in the situation. It's this: Charter schools are supposed to be free of "bureaucratic red tape" – Engler's term when he proposed charter schools to the Legislature. And yet we have an unelected bureaucrat from a university with an unelected board probing Shabazz's management and board.
- Note Shabazz's "Afrocentric" curriculum. Glance through the Help Wanted classified ads of this or any other newspaper and find all the job opportunities for graduates with Afrocentric skills. The founders, administrators, Central Michigan University and parents of Shabazz students are playing a mean trick on the kids with such a curriculum.
- Yes indeed, charter schools are legally "public" schools subject to the Open Meetings Act. In the real world, however, no newspaper has the resources to cover all of them. In the real world, newspapers make most (though far from all) of the squawks about violations of the Open Meetings Act. I submit for your objective consideration the proposition that Engler and Durant want minimal media scrutiny because they want to nourish secret agendas, secretly implemented.
- Some, perhaps one-third, of so-called "charter schools" may be the genuine thing – specialized public schools. The majority are private schools lining up at the Proposal A feeding trough. And you wonder: How many other charter schools are as bad as Shabazz, just not exposed yet?

Campaign commercials harm political discourse

The election season is approaching. Pretty soon, the airwaves will be filled with sound bites and the TV screens with negative ads. Charge and counter-charge will be the order of the day.

Now, before all this overwhelms us, is a good time to pause and reflect on the state of our politics.

One way or another, I've been either covering or participating in American politics for 30 years. I have never seen such negative content and uncivil tone as today infests our political process.

It isn't enough merely to disagree with your opponent on the substance of policy. It seems necessary these days intentionally to malign your opponent's character, question his morality and distort her record.

Much of this, I submit, has come from the general emotional power of political advertising on television and, in particular, on its most recent manifestation, the negative ad.

Survey research shows clearly that most people get most of their information about politics from television. Political professionals distinguish between news – "free media" in their nomenclature – and "paid media."

Given adequate money, the pros by and large prefer paid media as the medium of choice by which to communicate with the electorate, if only because they thereby avoid having to deal with nosy and mostly uncontrollable reporters. This is especially so when they decide to "go negative," a tactic that usually requires the unchallenging environment of TV time, bought and paid for.

Moreover, the pros have discovered that the easiest way to get around the legal limitations on campaign spending is to collaborate with so-called "independent" committees – wink, wink; nod, nod – that have "no links" to the campaign. Independence makes them immune from reporting and disclosure requirements, while the lack of linkage provides the candidate with useful deniability when an outrageous lapse of taste or honesty takes place.

In parceling out blame for this downward spiral, the news media bear an important and largely overlooked share.

Most television stations, which charge premium rates for political ads, are reluctant to bite the hand that feeds them by subjecting these same ads to the fierce scrutiny of their newsrooms before they are run. Some newspapers try to analyze the content and evaluate the distortions of TV advertising, but the stories usually run too late to promote public understanding.

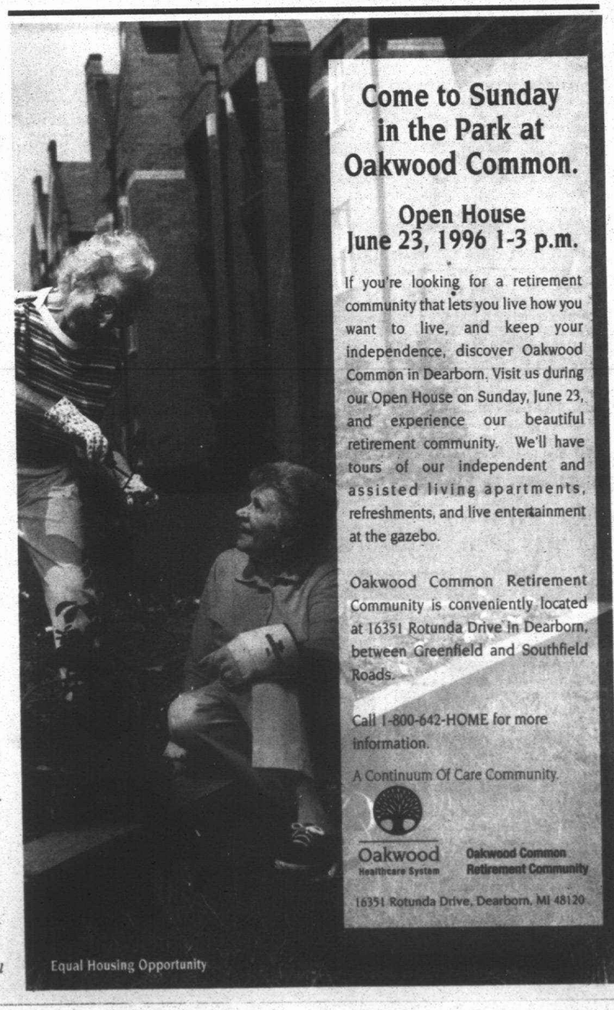

PHILIP POWER

■ Given adequate money, the pros by and large prefer paid media as the medium of choice by which to communicate with the electorate, if only because they thereby avoid having to deal with nosy and mostly uncontrollable reporters.

Given our tight local focus at this newspaper, we can't do much about presidential or senatorial elections. But we do cover – and have a clear responsibility to cover, with aggressive integrity – congressional and state legislative races, as well as various local contests. For the record, here's our policy with respect to political advertising:

- We will not accept political ads for our newspaper that we know are untrue. Where we are suspicious, we will check with our newsroom before running the ad.
- We will not accept for publication in the last edition before the election an ad that makes a new charge without contacting the opponent to offer an opportunity to rebut.
- We will review – for accuracy, taste and relevance – television ads run by candidates in our circulation area. In particular, we will assume that ads run by "independent" committees are controlled by the candidate unless offered compelling proof this is not so.
- Our endorsements will be based in part on whether candidates contribute to a rational discussion of the issues and a civil tone to the campaign.

Piano program designed for elementary students

An 18-week program for elementary school-age piano students, the class offers a weekly 60-minute group lesson and a 30-minute private lesson.

The group lessons enable the student to share music learning and perform for each other on a regular basis. The private lessons reinforce individual needs in technique and musicianship. Students work on weekly assignments, drills in rhythm and note reading, fundamentals of music and creative work, and may use the electronic piano lab, a state-of-the-art facility with 10 full-sized keyboards.

New and transfer students must arrange an interview appointment with Linda Wotring at (313) 261-0318 before registering. Orientation and registration for the fall program are Sept. 7. Fee is $430. For starting dates or more information, call (313) 462-4400, ext. 5218 or ext. 4448.

S'craft offers summer programs for youth

Schoolcraft College offers two summer programs for students age 4 through high school. Kaleidoscope presents classes in math, computers, the arts and science. A sampling includes "Are you Ready for Algebra?" "Keyboarding & Word Processing," "Cartoon Capers," and "Detective School for Kids."

All Kaleidoscope classes except the fire academy are scheduled for two or three weeks, Monday through Thursday, and begin July 15. Fees for the classes range from $71-78. Mail and fax registrations continue until July 15. Walk-in registration is June 26-27 at the McDowell Center.

The Talented and Gifted program offers two sessions, beginning July 8 and July 22. Both sessions meet for two weeks. A sampling of TAG classes includes "Music and the Computer," "Introduction to Archaeology & Anthropology," "Creative Dramatics," and "Speed Reading," for children ages 4-7. Fees range from $75-95. Mail and fax registrations continue until July 1. Walk-in registration is June 26-27 at the McDowell Center.

For more information, call (313) 462-4448. To fax registration, dial (313) 462-4572.

KAREN MEIER

When it gets scary, just give a whistle

I'm rather beside myself today, and it's kind of obvious. I've been biting my lip, chewing my nails, watching the clock hands move. And for days I've been careful not to walk under any ladders. Or break any mirrors. Or spill any salt. Or step on Sparky, our black cat.

I'm trying hard to keep my good luck chart in perfect order. I'm even working on a few extra credit points. I'm going to need all the luck I can muster. After all, I haven't flown in 14 years.

And that's going to change real soon. I'm going on an airplane. And not just me. All of us. From the baby to the 12-year-old, and none of them has ever even been on an airplane.

We're going to celebrate a 50th wedding anniversary. An extraordinary 50th wedding anniversary. Actually, any 50th wedding anniversary is extraordinary. And worth every bit of hubbub surrounding it. That love abides in their Massachusetts home after half a century is what is drawing my aunt and uncle's extended family together. That feat deserves the sacrifice of my fear and our dollars. What Uncle Bob and Aunt Margret have is rare and beautiful and inspiring and definitely worth hubbub and plane trips.

Knowing that doesn't stop me from worrying over everything about the pending flight, though. From the big serious worries to the small serious worries. Like the way my family will resemble a duck family, with Mom and Dad duck paddling through the airport, followed by their five ducklings. And going through the jet

Teacher introduces students to her 'roots'

■ North met South for a brief period when a group of Brazosport, Texas, High School students decided to visit the Detroit area and specifically their teacher's hometown of Plymouth.

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO

Orchestra students at Brazosport High School in Freeport, Texas, could choose to travel anywhere in the United States for their student trip. But they chose Plymouth, the hometown of their teacher, Jane Lindamood.

"We had a choice to go anywhere, but we thought we'd like to go to Detroit," said Tabitha Kirkland, a violin/viola player. "It would cost a lot more to go somewhere else."

The students' whirlwind trip June 7-10 took them to Greenfield Village, Greektown, Windsor, and a Detroit Symphony Orchestra concert. After the DSO show, the students rubbed elbows with the professional musicians and had their pictures taken in the first chair of their respective instruments.

On June 9, a few of the students performed during the worship service at St. Alexander's Church in Farmington.

The one thing that fascinated the students was the opportunity to go to a foreign country.

"One regret they had was they didn't bring a container for what they kiddingly called 'foreign water' from Lake Erie," said Lindamood's mother, Ann, with a laugh.

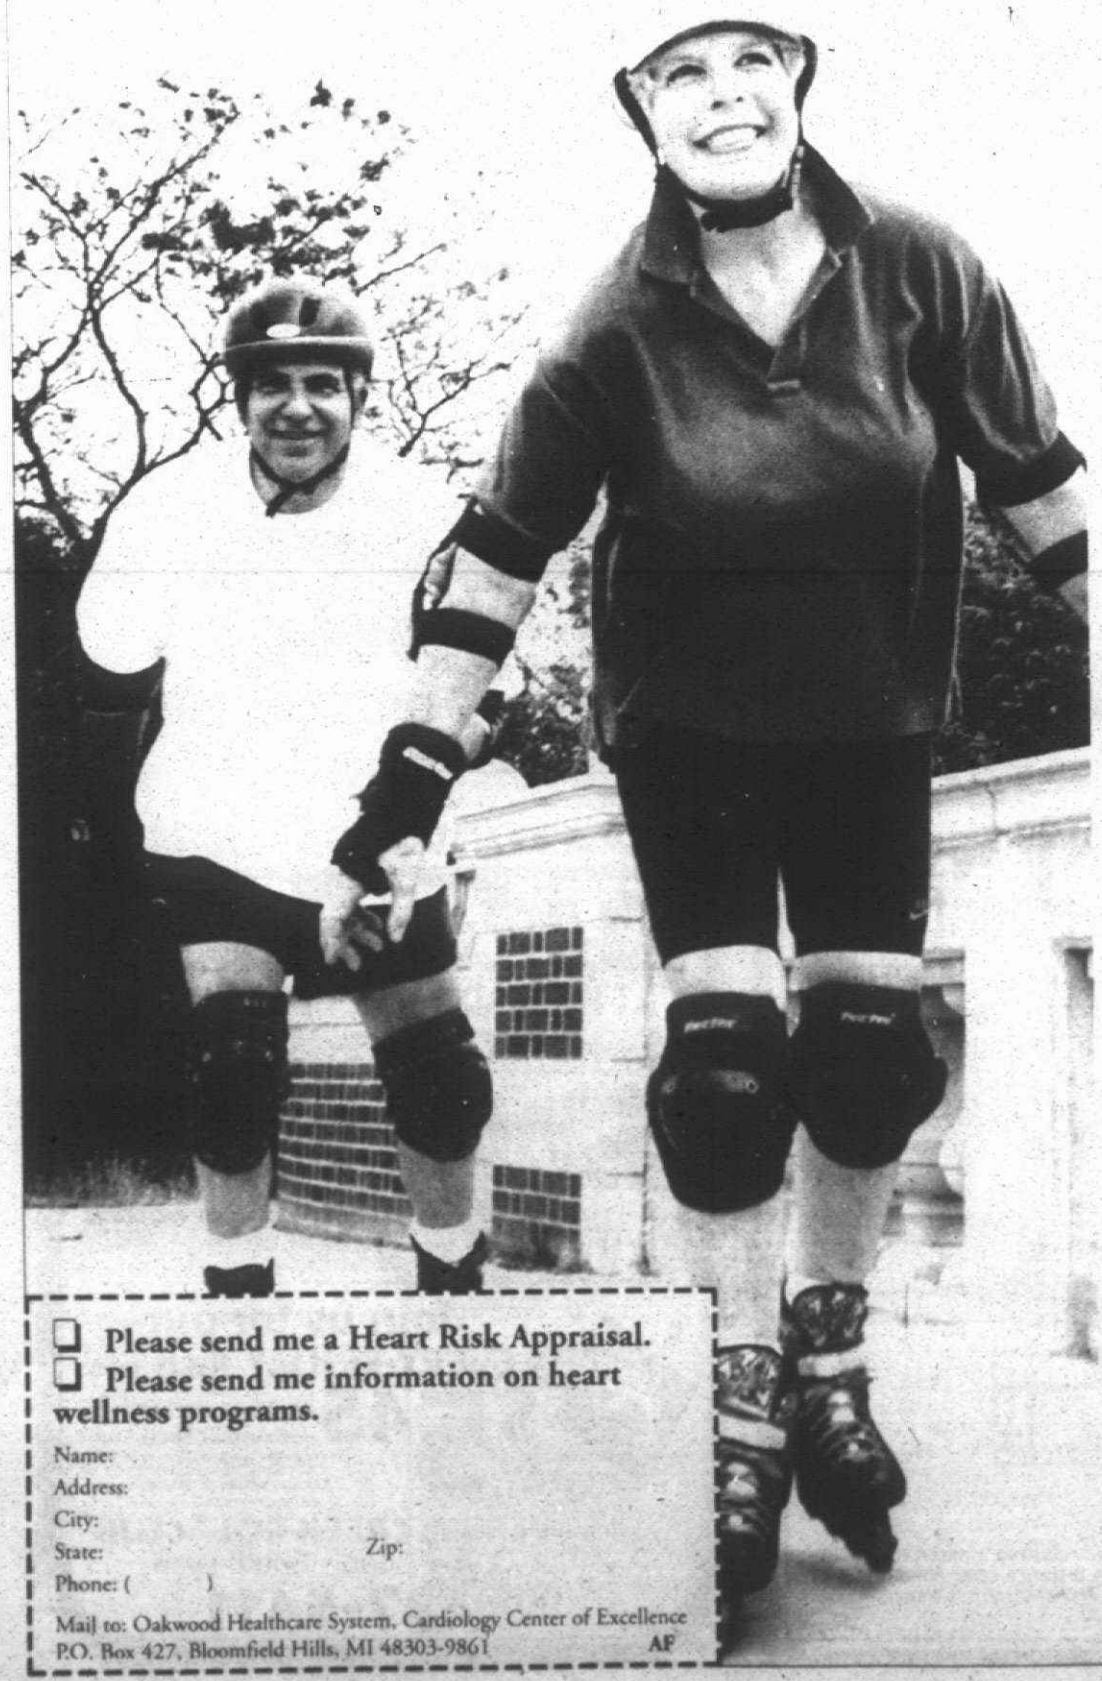

The kids were equally as fascinated with the sharp grass that grew in the Lindamoods' backyard.

"It's hard; it stabs your feet," said Sommer Lamkins, who had been playing backyard sports games before diving into a barbecue, prepared by Ann and husband Benton.

At Brazosport High School, it's tradition that the ensemble takes a recreational trip out of state every four years, Lindamood explained.

And I worry about those G-forces pushing me back into the seat as the plane taxis down the runway. And I worry about how hard I'll be squeezing the children's hands as the plane lifts itself off the earth. I'm going to have to struggle mightily to remain calm and in control. For their sake. I'm sure everything will be just fine. I'm sure of it. I am.

■ Well, fine. Go ahead and tell on me. But just think, how many times did my plan work? My whistle plan? Every single time.

Really. Oh, you think I'm whistling in the dark now, don't you? Well, maybe I am. Whistling in the dark isn't so bad. Neither's singing or talking real loud.

When I was young, I'd whistle in the dark for silly reasons, like a bogeyman living in the attic. Now, I reserve whistling in the dark for big stuff, like airplane rides.

Back when I was silly, I'd whistle to let my family know I was OK as I fed the parakeet in his cage upstairs which stood right by the doorway leading to the bogeyman-infested attic. I told my family that in the event my whistling stopped, they should immediately come upstairs because something horrible would have happened. So whistle I did. For all I was worth. And sing. Loudly. And after Woodstock was fed, I'd come bumping and crashing down the stairs, startled by some last minute awful thought, making a heck of a racket.

"What's your problem?" Beth, my much wiser and older and calmer sister, would snap.

"Shoelace problems," I'd sigh.

Then she'd cluck her tongue at me and tell.

Well, fine. Go ahead and tell on me. But just think, how many times did my plan work? My whistle plan? Every single time. Not a once did the system fail. A bogeyman never got me. My parakeet and I were never harmed. Well, that's not quite true. Woody was harmed once. Actually, it was quite a bit more than harmed.

The cat accidentally got past the door leading to the upstairs and the next thing we knew we heard a clattery crash of a bird cage being upset. And then there were scuffling sounds. Presently, the cat ran down the stairs and ran right past the rest of us in the family room, and something greenish and feathery stuck out of his little cat mouth.

We managed to rescue the poor little bird that time. He was never quite the same after that, though. His singing and noise-making became noticeably diminished. And then one day, the bird and the cat met up again. And, well, it was all very sad.

But if that little bird had just been noisier at that last meeting, then when the noise suddenly stopped someone would have come to his rescue. But he wasn't singing or whistling or making noise to begin with. So there was no things-are-too-quiet warning.

So you see, singing, whistling, making a racket in the dark is smart and a good safety rule.

So I'll keep whistling, keep avoiding ladders and loose-topped salt shakers and the like for the next few days. And I'll keep saying, "Everything will be all right." It's worked before.

Disney World in Orlando, Fla.

"The idea of the trip is to reward the students who put the time and effort into the orchestra program," said Lindamood, a 28-year-old 1986 Canton High School graduate. "Even though it's not the same as going to Disney World, they decided this would be something fun to do.

"And there was enough to do to make it an interesting and worthwhile trip."

Lindamood, who earned a bachelor's degree in music from Western Michigan University, has been a music teacher at Brazosport and Freeport Intermediate Schools since 1993. Because the orchestra classes begin in intermediate school and continue through the high school, Lindamood potentially can have students for seven consecutive years.

During her tenure at the schools, Lindamood has gotten to know her students and thought it was only fair to let them meet her family in Plymouth.

So for four years, the students raised the money for the trip in traditional ways like selling candy. Lindamood even lent money to a financially strapped student, so she could come along. Marissa Diaz plans on working off her debt by helping to put the orchestra library together during the summer.

Lindamood said that planning the trip was difficult because a lot of tour companies don't consider 10 people a "true group." To save money, Lindamood contacted friends of the family to serve as hosts for the students. She came up with four host families, including her parents who took in three of the students.

"We decided that staying with host families was a good way (to go)," Lindamood said. "Families from the Plymouth and Farmington areas graciously agreed to host those of us who came."

With their children living away from home, Joe and Pat Hanish of Farmington Hills were looking forward to having teen--agers around the house again.

"We thought it would be a great opportunity for these kids to get to see this area," Hanish said. "This is what they needed."

"They all took back what they thought was the great thing – Vernors," Ann said.

Maybury programs to focus on nature

If you're looking for something to do that's fun and educational, you can turn to May bury State Park and Maybury Farm in Northville.

The park and farm have a variety of activities planned for June and July. The park is open daily from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. Farm hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. A state park motor vehicle permit is required for entry.

The park will host a tree identification hike at 7 p.m. Thursday, June 27. The park interpreter will lead participants on a walk through the mature wood lot and open meadow areas of Maybury to look at some of the trees common to southeast Michigan.

At 8:30 a.m. Wednesday, July 3, senior citizens join a park naturalist on a special walk. The leisurely stroll will follow the paved trails and will highlight some of the natural features of the park. Participants should meet at the park's concession building. Insect repellent is recommended.

Maybury Farm's monthly story time for kids will feature "Farm Chores" Saturday and Sunday, July 6-7. Children are invited to the farm demonstration building for stories, then try their hands at some of the daily chores on the farm. The program will offered at 11 a.m. July 6 and will be repeated at 3 p.m. July 7.

Park goers also can join in a night hike, starting at 8:30 p.m. Thursday, July 11. Hikers will explore the woods and fields of the park in search of "night life." Sky conditions permitting, they also will be looking for the summer constellations. Participants should meet at the concession building.

For birders, there will be a bird hike at 8 a.m. Saturday, July 13. Plans are to walk some of the open meadows and fields in search of resident summer birds. Insect repellent is recommended and participants should meet at the concessions building in the main parking lot.

Maybury State Park is on Eight Mile Road, one mile west of Beck Road in Northville Township. For more information, call (810) 349-8390.

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

LORENE GREEN

Dear Ms. Green,

As a child I began to write backward with my left hand. I understand Leonardo Da Vinci and Michelangelo did the same thing. I never really considered myself an artistic person; I can't draw at all. But I do have good taste in choosing clothes and interior design.

Thank you for analyzing my handwriting.

A.I., Bloomfield Hills

Klara Roman, in her book "Handwriting: A Key to Personality," says "The fact that mirror writing is the natural mode of the left-hander is a well known fact." I would be interested to hear from other left-handed writers regarding this ability.

The writer's combination of good spacing and legibility suggest system and order in her life. Organizational skills are evident. First, she plans and then she implements the planning.

Our writer is also mentally mature. She likes to concentrate on one thing at a time and dislikes distracting influences while working. She reasons with logic as well as intuition. She has a bias for unbellished facts.

She is both self-disciplined and goal-oriented. Her willpower cannot be missed. She knows how to cut through the extraneous and get right down to the essentials.

When there is work to be done, she will get it done in a productive manner. A strong sense of duty does not permit her to rest and relax until it is done and done well.

This woman has been exposed to culture and refinement. Reading, while providing pleasure for her, can also afford her some time to be alone, which I believe she needs.

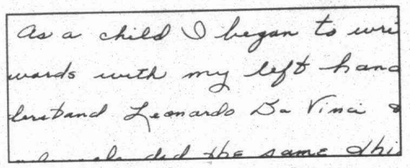

This is an observant person. Little escapes her watchful eyes. Each and every detail is an important part of the picture. Relationships with others are enjoyable but somewhat guarded. She often maintains distance between herself and others. Friendships do not come easily. Although she may wish to make closer relationships, she may find it difficult to bridge the emotional gap.

Possibly, she is more at ease with things she can control than with people who are often unpredictable. Crowds can be unsettling.

She is easily offended by real or imagined criticism of a personal nature. Her feelings are easily hurt. This probably began at an early age and may still dictate her responses.

At times, the writer's self-esteem appears to fluctuate. she seems to perceive herself differently in various situations or times. In addition, it seems possible she is experiencing some guilt feelings. The person represented by the surname in her signature seems to loom large in her estimation.

It is good to see some humor in this handwriting. It can play an important role in putting perspective into one's life.

If you would like your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please write a few paragraphs about yourself, using a full sheet of white, unlined paper and writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and signature are all helpful. .

If you're thinking about adding a pet to the family, don't miss "Meet Your Best Friend at the Zoo," coming to the Detroit Zoo Saturday and Sunday, June 22-23.

Last year, almost 600 homeless, dogs, cats and even a few rabbits found new homes during the unique weekend adoption event.

"Meet Your Best Friend" will be 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday at the zoo, 10 Mile Road at Woodward Avenue in Royal Oak. Co-sponsored by the Michigan Humane Society and the Detroit Zoo, the concept for the "Zoo Do" was the brainchild of local businessman and passionate animal lover Joseph Sowerby. In 1993, following the death of his cat, Sowerby brought his idea to zoo director Ron Kagan and MHS executive director Gary Tiscornia.

"I went to adopt another pet and was overwhelmed by the sheer numbers of animals being euthanized because there just aren't enough homes," Sowerby said. "I was looking for something that could make a difference in a big way."

"Meet Your Best Friend" has made a difference, especially for the almost 1,000 animals that have been placed with families since the event began three years ago. Tiscornia believes that coming to the zoo to find a pet appeals to a broad range of potential adopters.

"Shelter animals need every break they can get and this affords us a wonderful opportunity to reach people who might not otherwise come into our shel-[illegible]," he said.

[illegible] addition to adoptable ani-[illegible]ls from the MHS, animals [illegible]n other humane groups – The [illegible] Connection, Detroit Animal [illegible]ntrol, Humane Society of Monroe County, K-[illegible] Stray Rescue, Macomb County Animal Control, Michigan Animal Adoption Network, Oakland County Animal Control, Silver Lake Animal rescue League and Wyandotte Animal Group – will be available.

The entire event will take place under four big tents, with one set aside for individual interviews with potential adopters. Animal adoptions are done on the scene, and if adopters qualify, the pet can go home to his or her new home that same day. Fees vary, with the MHS charging $95 for puppies under 12 weeks of age, $85 for adult dogs and $60 for cats. The MHS fee includes an evaluation for health and temperament, basic vaccinations, sterilization and a 10-day guarantee for infectious disease.

Adopters will also receive a free pet care kit, courtesy of Purina and be entered in a drawing for free zoo memberships and free sterilizations for their new pet from MHS.

For more information about "Meet Your Best friend at the Zoo," call the Michigan Humane Society at (313) 872-3400.

Hospice volunteers needed

Hospice of Southeastern Michigan, a program of Hospice of Michigan (HOM), is in need of volunteer support.

Hospice volunteers play a variety of roles. They may work closely with patients and families, work in the hospice office or in the community speaking on behalf of hospice, staffing information tables at community events.

Volunteers are trained to understand the philosophy and goals of the organization and learn how to work with patients and families. Training sessions are held monthly at convenient times and locations.

RESOLUTION NO. 3
HAGGERTY ROAD PAVING AND DRAINAGE
SPECIAL ASSESSMENT DISTRICT
SAD NO. 1996-1

WHEREAS, this Township Board, pursuant to Act 188, Public Acts of Michigan, 1954, as amended, and after notice to all of the record owners of land in the proposed special assessment district, tentatively declared its intention to undertake certain public improvements in the Township, as more particularly in Exhibit A hereto; and
WHEREAS, the Township Board has caused to be prepared by a registered engineer plans showing the public improvements and the location thereof and an estimate of the cost thereof; and
WHEREAS, after due and legal notice, the Township Board has met on June 11, 1996, at 7 o'clock p.m., Daylight Savings Time, and heard all persons interest therein at said first hearing with respect to the proposed public improvement and the special assessment district.
NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED THAT:
1. The Township Board hereby determines that the public improvements described in Exhibit A hereto and made a part hereof are necessary for the health, safety and welfare of the Township and that said public improvements shall be made and completed pursuant to aforesaid Act 188.
2. The Township Board herb approves the plans and estimate of cost for the public improvements in the total sum of $1,760,000.00 as prepared and presented by the Township engineer. Of the aforesaid total cost of the project, the sum of $1,760,000.00 will be spread against the hereinafter named special assessment district pursuant to the aforesaid Act 188.
3. The Township Board finally determines that said special assessment district shall consist of all of the lots and parcels of land described in Exhibit B hereto and that the existence of said special assessment district shall be maintained until all special assessments payable on the roll hereinafter described, and any bonds issued in anticipation of such special assessment, have been paid.
4. The Supervisor is hereby directed to make a special assessment roll in which shall be described all the parcels of land to be assessed as above set forth, with the names of the owners thereof, if known, and the total amount to be assessed against each parcel of land, which amount shall be such relative portion of the whole sum to be levied against all parcels of land in the assessment district as the benefit to such parcel of land bears to the total benefit of all parcels of land in the special assessment district.
5. When the Supervisor shall have completed the special assessment roll, the Supervisor shall affix thereto a certificate stating that said roll was made pursuant to a resolution of the Township Board of the Township adopted on the date of adoption of this resolution, and that in making the assessment roll the Supervisor has, according to the Supervisor's best judgement, conformed in all respects to the directions contained in said resolution and the statutes of the State of Michigan, and the Supervisor shall then report the special assessment roll, with the certificate attached thereto, to the Township Board.
6. All resolutions and parts of resolutions insofar as they conflict with the provisions of this resolution be and they hereby are rescinded.

EXHIBIT A
HAGGERTY ROAD PAVING AND DRAINAGE
SPECIAL ASSESSMENT DISTRICT 1996-1

RESOLUTION
Woodcreek Preliminary Planned Development District

WHEREAS, the Project Sponsor, Mr. Tom Jetke, has proposed the development of a residential Planned Development District to be known as Woodcreek Planned Development District, located on the west side of Lilley Road between Michigan Avenue and Palmer Road; and,
WHEREAS, the Planning Commission, at a public hearing, reviewed the proposed Preliminary Planned Development District Agreement, and recommended APPROVAL of the Woodcreek Preliminary Planned Development District, conditioned upon the addition of a woodchip or boardwalk path through the open space areas, and based on the following findings of fact and as summarized in the attached written analysis and recommendation:
1. The proposed Planned Development has been designed with consideration of the surrounding residents and has attempted to balance natural feature preservation and development of the subdivision.
2. The proposal is consistent with the spirit and intent of the Comprehensive Plan and Zoning Ordinance by combining the density of the R-1 and R-3 parcels and reducing the lot sizes to preserve natural areas within the development.
3. The proposal will comply with all local regulations, except those listed in the staff analysis.
4. The design of the project has been determined to exhibit design excellence in lot layout and preservation of natural resources. A density bonus of 5% has been requested in consideration of design excellence for this project and is recommended by the Commission.
5. Open space greater than 25% of the gross land area has been provided. The project sponsor has indicated that 32.5%, or 16 acres of open space is included in the proposal and does not include road rights-of-way in the calculation.
6. The Lilley Road access into the development has been located and designed to have the least possible impact on surrounding residents and to provide safe access into the project.
7. Sixteen acres of "passive" recreational open space have been provided in the form of undisturbed, natural woodland and wetland areas with access to the Rouge River corridor.
NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, the Board of Trustees of the Charter Township of Canton, Michigan does APPROVE the request of the project sponsor, Mr. Tom Jetke, to grant preliminary approval of the Woodcreek Planned Development District, conditioned upon the construction of a woodchip or boardwalk path through the open space areas, if such a path is approved by MDEQ, and based upon recommendations made by staff and the Planning Commission as described in the analysis and recommendation attached hereto and made part hereof.

Churches perform at fest

For the first time in its history, the 14th Annual McDonald's GospelFest will include a combination of Gospel and Christian music, tapping into talents from across southeastern Michigan.

With the theme "The Gospel According to Southeastern Michigan," this year's music extravaganza will unite performers representing all parts of the Metropolitan-Detroit area, including Redford's Word of Faith Sanctuary Choir and Temple Baptist Church Choir.

This year's GospelFest will blend the sounds of both Gospel and Christian music as well as represent a joint community effort among Detroit and its suburbs.

"Because Detroit has contributed so many superstars and classic recordings to the field of Gospel music, it is sometimes easy to overlook the fact that the church always has been and will be the main source for inspirational music," said Deborah Smith Barney, executive producer of this year's GospelFest. "This year's theme arose from a desire to spotlight the various ways music is used to spread the Gospel message within southeastern Michigan churches."

Headlining this premier musical event will be contemporary Gospel sensation Yolanda Adams with Derrick Starks and the Motor City Praise Band. Adams, a native of Houston, has won four Stellar Awards, including 1995 Best Female Vocalist for her latest album "More than a Melody."

Adams will be joined by special guest Commissioned. The Gospel group, originally from Detroit, received a Grammy nomination in 1995 for Best Contemporary Soul Gospel Album..

Local church choirs, in addition to the Word of Faith Sanctuary and Temple Baptist Church choirs, include Bethesda Christian Church Choir of Sterling Heights and the Recording Choir of Greater Grace Temple of the Apostolic Faith of Detroit.

The Southeastern Michigan McDonald's Operators Association Beacon Award will be presented posthumously to Bishop David L. Ellis in honor of his tremendous contributions to the religious and civic life of southeastern Michig

Huron Valley Scout Council re-elects board members

Mary Sue Deyo of Westland will continue taking meeting minutes, something she has done for the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council Board of Directors since 1965.

Deyo was reelected board secretary, during the council's 14th annual meeting, held April 27 at the Eastern Michigan University Corporate Education Center in Ypsilanti.

Active in Girl Scouting for many years, Deyo has taken minutes for every council president since Esther Hulsing in 1965. Her Senior Girl Scout Troop 259 was the first troop from the council to travel to Our Cabana, the World Center for Girl Guiding and Girl Scouting in Cuernavaca, Mexico in 1970.

Deyo also is active with the First Congregational Church of Wayne, the Great Lakes Indian Crafts and Cultural Association and the Thunderbirds, a square dance group.

Elizabeth Allen, a certified financial planner for S/E in Livonia, also was elected to the Board of Directors. Allen is a member of the Michigan Society ICFP, Northville Business and Professional Women and the League of Women Voters.

She is a graduate of EMU and Ferris State University. She and her husband Rodney have two children and three grandchildren.

Other area residents elected at the meeting were Karen McLaurin, Nominating Committee member, and Rebecca Curtis, Gladys Hubbard, Elysia Rodriguez, Verna George and Barbara Weir delegates to the National Council Meeting of the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A. The National Council Meeting will be held Oct. 11-14, 1996 in Fort Worth, Texas.

Phyllis Partain

McLaurin has served on the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council board. She is a member of Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, the National Society of Executive Women and the NAACP. She is a software support and customer service manager for Ameritech.

Curtis was named a national delegate and a girl advisor to the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council Board of Directors. She is president of Senior Girl Scout Troop 512. She is active in the marching band, Student Council, Students Against Drunk Driving, and the Ecology Club at John Glenn High School in Westland.

Hubbard has been involved in Girl Scouting for more than 20 years, currently as a trainer. She is active with St. Michael's Lutheran Church in Wayne. She works for Great Harvest Bread and Dependable Health Care.

Rodriguez, a Western Michigan University student majoring in pre-psychology, received the Girl Scout Gold Award in 1994. She is a "Campus Gold" advisor to the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council board and a member of the troop committee of Troop 146. She volunteers for the STAR program at WMU.

George is currently Huron Valley Girl Scout Council vice-president. She serves on the Alumnae Society steering committee and the committee for the Juliette Low Golf Outing.

She also volunteers for D.A.R.E. and the Pickwick Village Homeowners Association in Canton. She is self-employed in automotive customer relations.

Weir has served as troop leader, council delegate, troop services director and trainer. She has been a day camp staff member for 17 years. She lives in Canton.

Lori Wolfe was elected a girl advisor to the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council board. Barbara Svec, Jaclyn Svec and Phyllis Pertain were elected national delegates-in-case-of-vacancy.

Wolfe, of Plymouth, is active with TLC, an anti-violence, anti-substance abuse program at Plymouth Salem High School, where she is in tenth grade. She has been a Girl Scout since Brownies and is now a member of Troop 367.

Jaclyn Svec, also chosen as a girl advisor to the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council board, is president of Senior Girl Scout Troop 501.

She is manager of the wrestling team at Plymouth Salem High School and the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps.

Barbara Svec is active in the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps, the American Red Cross and various parent-teacher organizations.

She has been advisor for Senior Girl Scout Troop 501, service unit manager for Canton and area cookie manager.

Partain is currently area association chair for Plymouth-Northville-Canton and a member of the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council board.

She has been a leader, area nominating committee chair and advisor. She works as a lab technician for the University of Michigan.

Kaleidoscopes

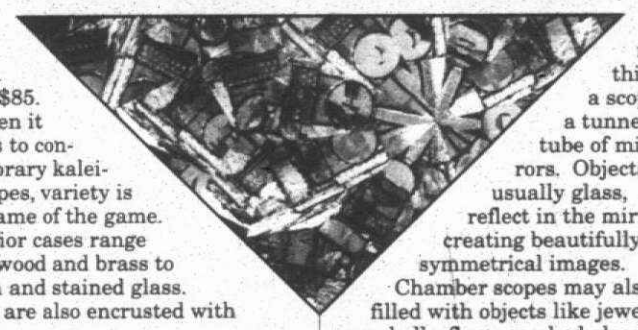

IT'S ALL DONE WITH MIRRORS OF IMAGINATION

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

"Fireworks Captured," Michigan's largest exhibition of kaleidoscopes June 22 to July 7 at Chameleon Galleries LTD in Plymouth will be bigger and better than last year with more than 180 scopes handcrafted by 20 of the country's top artists. This is a popular show for collectors from the Pacific Northwest to East Coast. During the second annual exhibit last summer, half of the 100 scopes sold on the first day.

"We're going to have everything from rings to hand held and pedestal kaleidoscopes," said Denni Englehart, gallery co-owner.

Englehart and gallery manager Nancy Tilly recently acquired the latest works at the Brewster Society convention in Corning, New York. An organization of kaleidoscope artists and collectors, the Brewster Society was founded by Cozy Baker, the leading authority on the colorful contraptions with a collection of more than 500 antique and contemporary scopes. Baker is the author of four books on the subject including "Kaleidorama," a handy companion brimming with information ranging from history to how to make a scope. Baker will make special appearances in the gallery June 22-23 to sign her books. In addition on Saturday, Kay Winkler will teach an all-day workshop during which participants will make a kaleidoscope. The cost is $150 and includes all supplies. The session is limited to eight students so call the gallery for reservations (313) 455-0445. Sunday, Dean Ashby will teach a kaleidoscope decorative soldering class limited to 15 students. Cost: $85.

When it comes to contemporary kaleidoscopes, variety is the name of the game. Exterior cases range from wood and brass to blown and stained glass. Some are also encrusted with jewels.

"We'll have Jeffrey Balter's prototype of a planet, when activated by sound, the images inside look like lightning. We also ordered a scope in the shape of a torch to commemorate the Olympic games in Atlanta. J. Phil Coghill created a limited edition of 26 of the all glass torches in red, white and blue," said Nancy Tilly.

Sterling silver rings and pendants by Dean Krause allows wearers to enjoy the exciting and mesmerizing images of a kaleidoscope anywhere they go. Best known for his wearable art jewelry, Krause finds inspiration in the rain forests and ancient cultures of the Mayan and Olmec people in Central America where he frequently travels. He will be available at the gallery on Saturday to answer any questions about his work.

Discovered in 1816 by Sir David Brewster, a Scottish inventor, philosopher, writer and scientist, kaleidoscopes are the ultimate art form because they not only contain color and light, but motion.

When you peer into the tube of a scope, brilliant colors form changing patterns reminiscent of stars, flowers and stained glass. For a layman's understanding of the instrument, think of a scope as a tunnel or tube of mirrors. Objects, usually glass, reflect in the mirrors creating beautifully symmetrical images.

Chamber scopes may also be filled with objects like jewels, seashells, flame-worked glass, and beads or with liquids like oil and floating objects that produce a drifting effect. The invention of new materials has brought about innovations in the art. Scopes using dichroic glass, a technological discovery made by the space industry, create an iridescence reminiscent of dragonfly wings. Metallic oxides give the glass its glow.

An egret scope by Bob and Sue Rioux was crafted from an array of glasses including dichroic. Glass artists since 1976, the Riouxs create scopes from traditional to one-of-a-kind and limited editions using a myriad of mirror configurations in a Kennebunkport, Maine studio. Their work is in the collection of Queen Nor of Jordan.

Kaleidoscopes originally peaked in popularity during the Victorian era when a mania for the instrument spread worldwide. A resurgence of interest among collectors and gift givers occurred after Cozy Baker presented the first exhibition of scopes in 1985 in Washington, D.C. By 1988, the Smithsonian Institution had sponsored a three year touring exhibit with stops in 18 U.S. and Canadian cities.

"Kaleidoscopes make great gifts. The exterior is as aesthetically beautiful as the inside," said Tilly, who's given many of David Kalish's wedding scopes as gifts to newlyweds. A marriage of two scopes in one, each side reflects a different image. According to Kalish, the scope is a "metaphor for marriage or any relationship. It demonstrates that two people can view the same subject at the same time while each perceives a uniquely different vision."

"Scopes are great stress breakers for executives, to sit on a desk or at home," said Tilly. A handsome man's scope by Michael Miron and Lisa Krueger has components of computer chips and watch parts floating in glycerin."

Prices for exhibited scopes range from $80 to $2,000.

Part high-tech wizardry, part found art, EarthQuest opened Saturday and continues through Sunday, Sept. 15. Its colorful characters and interactive displays are designed for children but are sure to keep adults occupied as well.

EarthQuest's message is that changing what we do with our trash can save resources, clean up the planet and improve the quality of life. Those changes are summed up in its motto: Reduce, reuse, recycle.

"It's a visual barrage," Mark Pasco, of Cranbrook public relations, said of EarthQuest. When kids step into the exhibit "their eyes light up," Pasco added.

"I'm having a great time every time I come down here with a reporter or someone."

Mechanized talking characters are triggered by motion sensors. Video screens pose questions to test visitors' environmental savvy. A television features a video showing the environmental ugliness caused by pollutants and mountains of trash. And panels on the recycling of aluminum, steel, scrap metal, plastic and paper include the goods that can be made from recyclables.

EarthQuest visitors are greeted by the robot J.D., a junkyard dog and exhibit guide who seeks help in battling Toxicus, "the monster of waste" lurking in a nine-foot-high pile of garage. Toxicus feeds on what people throw away, and visitors must use three powers — reduce, reuse and recycle — to defeat him as they tour EarthQuest's six zones.

Five of the zones represent areas in which we can make changes to improve the environment: home, neighborhood, transportation, shopping and recycling. In the sixth, the End Zone, pieces of two-sided puzzles can be put together to show Earth as clean and cared-for or as a huge garbage dump — or as something in between.

In the Neighborhood Zone, visitors can spot reusable and recyclable trash in see-through garbage cans and trash bags. Kids can try on vests lined with trash — a day's worth (four pounds) or a week's worth (28 pounds). The vests are a runaway favorite with kids, said Millicent Worrell, also of Cranbrook's public relations office.

In the Home Zone, light-up displays show how much water can be saved by using low-flow showerheads and toilets. The Transportation Zone has videos on vehicles powered with petroleum alternatives.

In the Shopping Zone, video screens show the environmental pros and cons of consumer goods as their bar codes are scanned in the checkout line. For every bad choice — such as a single piece of fruit grown with pesticides and wrapped in a plastic bag, or eggs in a plastic foam carton — there is a "green" alternative.

Some displays are housed in structures built with castoffs — old clothing, empty plastic bottles and the cases of discarded car batteries. The work of Tyree Guyton, who builds junk sculptures and decorates houses on Detroit's lower east side with other people's garbage, comes to mind.

Museum-goers can rest on sturdy plastic park benches fashioned from recycled car parts.

"Every piece here they've saved from just being dumped in a crater in the earth," Pasco said.

EarthLab is an EarthQuest bonus. Here, students can watch worms as they turn compost (mostly shredded newspapers) into rich soil, look at a map of contaminated sites in the Detroit area and watch puppet shows with a cast of animals that live in rainforests.

In conjunction with EarthQuest, a number of special programs are planned at Cranbrook, including a composting class, an art workshop and a concert by a folk musician who will sing about recycling, conservation and the appreciation of nature.

EarthQuest is sponsored nationally by the Ford Motor Co., Hertz and IBM. There are also a number of local sponsors.

Summer art classes, camps offer family fun

LINDA ANN CHOMIN

Art camps and classes are a great way for kids to have fun, increase self-confidence, and encourage creativity. Among the organizations teaching painting, pottery and cartooning this summer are the Plymouth Community Arts Council and D & M Art Studio. Special sessions for parent and child offer the opportunity to create lifelong memories and mementoes.

Charlotte Orlewicz and 6-year old son Jeanne-Pierre took classes last spring in mixed media and pottery at the PCAC and found nothing is more fulfilling than combining fun with learning. Together they made a bird house, clay cup, and a miniature window box that was given to Orlewicz's mother-in-law for Mother's Day.

"It was really a fun thing for the two of us," said Charlotte Orlewicz, a PCAC Art Lady volunteer at Our Lady of Good Counsel.

According to arts education adviser Mary Mack, some of the most interesting PCAC classes this summer are the child and parent pottery class, and an ancient Egyptian art class where children will make a mummy case, design and wear Egyptian dress, and learn to write their name in hieroglyphics. A young architects and builders class is a hands-on for kids using real tools (except for power tools). They will be taught to work with the tools safely to build a pencil box, flower planter and a play house. PCAC class prices for 8-week sessions range from $62 to $75.

"We want to present classes for the family so that they can develop a closer family relationship. These classes leave a lasting impression on families," said Mack.

"Art opens up an entire creative area of your personality and that creativity can apply on the job or at school."

Now that renovations of the art classrooms are completed all classes except pottery take place at the PCAC arts center, 774 N. Sheldon in Plymouth. Pottery classes are offered at Plymouth Salem High School. For information about PCAC classes call (313) 416-4ART.

The arts council also offers performing arts workshops (5 days for $100 per session) in acting, singing, dance, and technical theater. For theater workshop registration only, call Jennifer Tobin, (313) 453-5212.

D & M Art Studio, in cooperation with the Plymouth Cultural Center, will offer week-long art camps June 24 to Aug. 9 culminating with a children's art exhibit Aug. 25. Costs range from $55 to $115 per session. In addition, D & M will offer camps at the Westland Bailey Center and the Summit on the Park in Canton. The theme of the sixth annual camp is the painted desert of the Southwest.

"We're offering a lot of new projects including traditional sand painting and making Indian tribal masks, papier mache puppets like coyotes, and chipped tile paintings formed into mosaics," said Sharon Dillenbeck, camp director.

"We welcome parents and grandparents to join the kids in our multi-age camps."

More than 280 students participated in last year's camps which concluded with the making of "Save the Rain Forest" collage measuring 15 by 20 feet now on display at the Plymouth Cultural Center. Each child drew or painted a block for the paper "quilt" including Carolyn Kavajecz's daughters Valerie, 12 and Lauren, 9. While Valerie is a serious art student, Lauren goes to camp for the fun. Her favorite activities are piano and wheelchair racing. Lauren was paralyzed as an infant in a car accident. The camp offers a lot of benefits not the least of which is interacting and learning to get along with others.

"There's a lot of different activities. They get instruction but they always let them do it themselves. They meet other kids and are exposed to different teachers and personalities. At the end, there's an art show that Sharon makes sure all the kids get ribbons," said Carolyn Kavajecz.

For information about the Westland and Canton camps, or to register call D & M Art Studio at (313) 453-3710 until June 30. From July 1 through August, register at the Plymouth Cultural Center, 525 Farmer or by calling (313) 455-6623.

Dave Matthews' bass player graduates road 'college'

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Most college students' undergraduate years involve meeting new friends, going to class, studying, getting a fake ID and gabbing until dawn in a 12-by-12 dorm room.

Stefan Lessard earned his "degree" in a non-traditional fashion. The 22-year-old spent his formative years as the bass player for the Dave Matthews Band. Instead of sitting in a lecture hall with a couple hundred people, Lessard showed up to 15,000 people a night a thing or two about fluid funky bass playing.

"For the first four years, I took it very much like school," said Lessard who joined the band at age 16. "I really had to learn from everybody. I feel as if I had gone to school for the past four years and graduated. Now I'm going to let loose and relax for awhile."

"Next year I'll start thinking about 'graduate school.'"

Lessard's diplomas are four platinum albums, each signifying one million sales of the Dave Matthews Band's debut studio album "Under The Table and Dreaming" (RCA), which spawned the Grammy-nominated single "What Would You Say." The band's latest album "Crash" (RCA) is poised to be just as successful. The first single "Too Much" has inundated the radio airwaves and the video is on heavy rotation at MTV. The song, Lessard said, is representative of the aggressive nature of the album that integrates some electric guitar from Tim Reynolds, who also appeared on the live album "Remember Two Things" (1993) and "Under The Table and Dreaming."

'I feel as if I had gone to school for the past four years and graduated.'

Stefan Lessard

"I think that's just our direction now. We're a lot more rougher now; not rougher as in mean. We're a lot more aggressive when it comes to what we play. We're more confident of this band working together. ... It's a reflection of us – the dark sides of us and the light sides of us. It feels like it's more of a rounded out album."

Matthews credits producer Steve Lillywhite (U2, Talking Heads, Rolling Stones) with the relaxed, yet adventurous attitude in the studio. Lessard said that watching Lillywhite and Matthews work together on the songs was like watching an artist at work.

"Half of the things (Matthews) does in the first part (of recording) he's not really singing lyrics. He's just singing phrases that fit well with the melody that he hears in his head. From his phrasing, words start to appear. Steve would take all those bits and pieces that weren't really words and help Dave pick his brain."

"What we do from there is we grab from the different areas of music – this part would sound good with this part. As a group that's when we really start to fine-tune the song. When Dave plays guitar, it's like he's making a sculpture from there."

The Dave Matthews Band formed in 1991 with Matthews, saxophonist LeRoi Moore, Lessard, and drummer Carter Beauford with violinist Boyd Tinsley jumping on board later that year. Lessard said his parents were pretty relaxed about his teenage obsession.

"At first they definitely had the parental concerns of who I was hanging out with – 30, 20-year-old crazy young people – and what I was doing, going into bars and things like that. They were pretty loose about it, though. Both of them are musicians, but I had a couple of all-nighters that didn't go by quite as coolly as I thought."

Lessard should be soaking in his parents' advice. Lessard takes another class in adulthood in August when he and his wife, who married Wednesday, Feb. 7, in New York, are expecting their first child in August.

"In a way it makes me really want to get the whole touring thing worked out. Boyd has a child, too, so we're trying to plan future tours where we have a baby bus."

The Dave Matthews Band, The Freddy Jones Band and Ben Harper perform a sold-out show at 6:30 p.m. Saturday, June 22, at Pine Knob Music Theatre, I-75 and Sashabaw Road, Independence Township. For more information, call (810) 377-0100.

MC5's Kramer reunites on stage with John Sinclair

Former MC5 member Wayne Kramer is promising that his show on Saturday, June 22, at Alvin's in Detroit will be the "cultural event of the summer."

The show will mark the first time that Kramer and John Sinclair have performed together since the days of the MC5.

"We've been friends and we've hung out and we've done things together over the years, but we haven't worked together or performed. We'll tear the roof of the place," said Kramer via telephone from Kansas City.

Kramer, who lives in Los Angeles, said that the show came together by happenstance. Kramer was looking for an opening band, and John Sinclair and the Blues Scholars were looking for a gig at Alvin's. Sinclair was founder of the White Panther Party and manager of the MC5. He is now a poet and musician living in New Orleans.

Tickets for Kramer's 18 and older show are $8 in advance at Ticketmaster. Alvin's is located at 5756 Cass Ave., Detroit. For more information, call (313) 832-2355.

• Last year, one of the most hotly reported stories in Canadian music was the "break up" of the pop band Sloan. Ironically, according to vocalist/guitarist Jay Ferguson the band never did "officially" break up.

"We thought we probably wouldn't continue to do the same stuff," Ferguson said. "We really didn't do much else besides what we had to do. We didn't announce to the press that we were breaking up because if we didn't we'd have to defend ourselves. So we really didn't say anything."

On Friday, Sloan will be joined by Screaming Trees, Girls Against Boys, Seaweed, Jale, Rusty, 7-Year Bitch, Triple Fast Action, 3 Lb. Thrill, and Elephant Ear. The show begins at 1 p.m. at the Phoenix Plaza, 10 Water St., Pontiac. Tickets are $8.90 for the all-ages show. For more information, call (810) 335-4850

• Besides CIMX, the album rock station WRIF (101.1) is also celebrating a birthday. In honor of its 25th anniversary, the band has invited Peter Wolf, The Verve Pipe, Stabbing Westward and Charm Farm to play the State Theatre in Detroit on Friday, June 22.

Jim Carrey's 'Cable Guy' delivers nervous laughs

TICKETS PLEASE

JOHN MONAGHAN

Cable guy: Jim Carrey (left) the Cable Guy, taunts a jailed and helpless Steven Kovacs (Matthew Broderick) in "The Cable Guy."

It worked for Charlie Chaplin, eventually for Woody Allen, and not well at all for Bill Murray.

Call it the "Tears of a Clown Syndrome:" the time in every comic actor's life where he begs to be taken seriously. Jim Carrey's got it in "The Cable Guy," which wants to be both poignant and hilarious and is too rarely either.

In a not-so-clever turn on the "Fatal Attraction" scenario, Carrey play a lonely cable installer who leeches onto Matthew Broderick's young professional, a guy who has just broken up with his girlfriend. The friendship starts out harmlessly enough with a trip to the satellite dish.

Then things start to get weird. Of the 11 messages Broderick finds on his answering machine, eight are from the cable guy.

"Just blow drying my hair, thought you might have been trying to call," one says. Soon Broderick finds all aspects of his life invaded.

There are funny moments in "The Cable Guy," especially when the new friends go to a medieval-themed restaurant. Of course they end up in the jousting ring, engaging in the classic Spock-Kirk battle to the death from an old "Star Trek" episode, complete with Carrey mimicking the music.

What makes this different from Carrey's other outings is actor/director Ben Stiller, who has set himself up as a sort of conscience for Generation X. He proved with this and his earlier "Reality Bites" that he can deliver laughs in his comedies, but he wants them to be nervous ones.

Here he gives himself cameo parts as twins in a televised murder case involving former child stars that has the country wrapped up like OJ. The idea is funny (especially plugs for Eric Roberts in the inevitable TV movie), but the forced soul-searching only makes Stiller a tedious filmmaker and shallow philosopher.

Then again, you wonder how much of Stiller's treatment made it on screen with the temperamental Carrey around. Horror stories from the set of the second "Ace Ventura" movie prove that the $20 million-per-picture comedian is hell on directors.

Take the scene in the men's room of a swanky restaurant where Carrey beats up a scummy guy that's trying to move in on his friend's girlfriend. Stiller has made us dislike the victim, but when Carrey goes to work, we get only the bullying side of his humor. After while we wish he'd just leave the poor guy alone.

Broderick makes a decent straight man, though I still have trouble taking him seriously as an adult. Only occasionally does he hit on his fascination with the cable guy, who arrives like a messenger out of nowhere and sometimes offers good advice, even if it is from yesterday's Jerry Springer.

The ultimate message in "Cable Guy?" That Carrey's character (he calls himself Chip Douglas after "My Three Sons") is the nightmare product of neglectful parents who set him in front of the television set. Carrey's climactic cry of "kill the babysitter" comes off hypocritical from an actor who represents the lowest form of screen comedy.

John Monaghan welcomes your calls and comments. To leave him a voice mail message, dial (313) 953-2047 on a touch-tone phone, mailbox 1866.

SCREEN SCENE

BIRMINGHAM THEATRE
211 South Woodward, Birmingham. Call (810) 644-FILM for information. ($6.50; $4.25 matinees; $4.25 seniors/children under 12)

• "Mission: Impossible" (USA - 1996). Tom Cruise and Jon Voigt play super-secret agents involved in a deadly hunt for a missing computer disk in this big-screen version of the sixties TV show. Directed by Brian DePalma.

• "Last Summer in the Hamptons" (USA -1996). Henry Jaglom ("Eating") directs Victoria Foyt, Viveca Lindfors, Roddy McDowall, and Martha Plimpton in a celebration of love, art, and family surrounding a matriarch and her three-generation theatre clan. Today is the last night.

• "Jane Eyre" (Britain -1996). Charlotte Gainsbourg takes on the role of Emily Bronte's Victorian heroine, an orphaned girl who falls in love with the mysterious Mr. Rochester (William Hurt). Directed by Franco Zeffirelli, still best known for his classy Shakespeare adaptations. Ends Thursdday.

DETROIT SCIENCE CENTER
5020 John R at Warren, Detroit. Call (313) 577-8400 for information and showtimes. (Free with museum admission. $6.50; $4.50 seniors/students)

• "Titanica." An Omnimax screening that takes you inside the portholes and across sunken decks of the world's most famous shipwreck. Also showing: "Desktiny in Space," which shows how humans will live in space in the not-too-distant future.

DETROIT INSTITUTE OF ARTS
5200 Woodward, Detroit, 7 p.m. Monday, June 24.

• "Cinema Canada" – Canadian consulate invites metro Detroiters to a free screening of "The Champagne Safari," the biography of an eccentric, driven and disgraced industrialist which garnered a Genie Award, Canada's equivalent of the Oscar, for best feature-length documentary.

MAGIC BAG THEATRE

• "Kids in the Hall Brain Candy" (USA -1996). 9 p.m. June 26. The first feature film from the Canadian comedy troupe is five times funnier than a whole season of "Saturday Night Live." Here an anti-depressant drug unlocks your happiest moment, but with a horrible side effect.

MAIN ART THEATRE
118 N. Main Street at 11 Mile, Royal Oak. Films play through at least Thursday, unless noted otherwise. Call (810) 542-0180 for information and showtimes. ($6.50; $4 students, seniors and matinee; $3 twilight)

• "Cold Comfort Farm" (Britain -1996). In this wicked comedy from director John Schlesinger, a sophisticated young Englishwoman in the 1930s suddenly finds herself orphaned and with no fortune.

• "Welcome to the Dollhouse" (USA -1996). Middle school can be hell for teenager Dawn Weiner, who dreams of popularity and revenge against the beautiful people around her. Todd Solondz' debut film is notable for its honesty, but it's also an uneven piece of work more horrifying than funny.

• "Moll Flanders" (USA -1996). Daniel Defoe's classic novel about a woman born on the day her mother was hung. Starring Robin Wright, Morgan Freeman, and Stockard Channing.

MICHIGAN THEATRE
606 Liberty, Ann Arbor. Call (313) 668-8397 for information. ($5; $4 students/seniors)

• "Spike and Mike's Festival of Animation 1995." Through June 22 (call for showtimes). A must if you didn't catch it last year: eleven short animated films, including "Denny Goes Air Surfing," "Sleepy Guy," "The Monk and the Fish," and Nick Park's Oscar-winning "The Wrong Trousers."

• "Cold Comfort Farm" (Britain -1996). Through June 27 (call for showtimes). See Main Art Theatre listing above.

STATE THEATRE
2115 Woodward, Detroit. Call (313) 961-5450 for information. ($1)

• "Fargo" (USA -1996). 9 p.m. June 24. The latest from the writer/director team of Joel and Ethan Coen, about a bizarre murder in the Minnesota snowbelt. Less successful than the brothers' previous works, but it does boast a knockout performance from Frances McDormand as an unflappable sheriff.

UNITED ARTISTS OAKLAND MALL

• "Cemetary Man" (Italy - 1995). Rupert Everett plays a gravedigger more at home with zombies than human beings in this ultra-gory horror comedy based on an Italian comic strip. Hopefully not too much will get lost in this dubbed film, complete with 3-D effects.

• "Mystery Science Theatre 3000 The Movie" (USA -1996). The big-screen version of the cable TV phenomena about a guy and two robots who provide a running commentary during really bad movies. The turkey this time: "This Island Earth," a 1954 space opera whose alien villains sport huge brains and lobster claws. Starts Friday.

Construction begins on new Star Theatre

Star Theatres broke ground June 12 for their new "flagship" 20-screen theater and entertainment complex on the lot of the Galleria Officenter at 12 Mile Road and Northwestern Highway in Southfield.

Work has already begun on the Star Southfield Entertainment Complex scheduled to open in Spring of 1997. The 180,000-square-foot building will be anchored by a 20-screen Star Theatre with 6,000 seats and will include several large, high-quality themed restaurants and entertainment-related retail stores. When completed it will be Michigan's largest theater complex.

Radio show celebrates legendary Bill Kennedy

Tune in WDTR FM (90.9) 7 a.m. or 12:30 p.m. Thursday, June 27 to celebrate Bill Kennedy's 88th birthday.

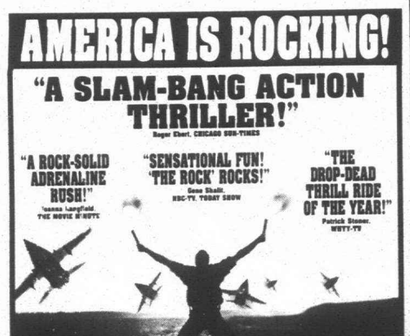

Radio host Tom Wilson of the "Somewhere in Time" Radio Show, spent several days poolside in Palm Beach with the legendary Kennedy who hosted the popular TV show – "Bill Kennedy at the Movies."

The knowledge he shared on his show came from lots of experience in Hollywood of the 1940s. Having 60 movies, a TV series, his own movie, and a variety of show biz jobs to his credit, Kennedy has lots of stories to tell.

On the June 27 show, he will share some of his memories. Kennedy always performed his own stunts and recalled a scene in which he was required to fight a vicious dog. After several bites, and three takes later, Kennedy quit.

His most memorable part was that of the executioner of Ingrid Bergman as Joan D'Arc. Kennedy and his neighbor, Donald Trump, have joined forces to fight the arrogance of airlines flying over their homes and ruining the ambiance of Palm Beach. If you'd like to send Bill Kennedy a birthday card, send it to: Bill Kennedy, 140 Kings Road, Palm Beach, Florida, 33480.

Lark celebrates anniversary with many couples

BY KEELY WYGONIK
STAFF WRITER

June is a popular month to become engaged, or married, and lots of couples will be celebrating at The Lark.

Jim Lark, who owns the restaurant with his wife Mary, a well-known artist, told me about a woman who said the Lark was special because that's where her husband proposed. She added – "but doesn't everybody get engaged at the Lark." It was one of the nicest compliments he ever received.

Whether you're celebrating a special occasion, or just out for dinner, Jim and Mary want you to feel at ease in their award-winning restaurant modeled after Southern European inns. The atmosphere is relaxed, yet elegant. Original artwork decorates the interior, which features tiled and carpeted floors, and terra cotta walls with Portuguese tile murals. There are lots of fresh flowers everywhere. Cars whiz by on Farmington Road, but all is quiet and serene at The Lark. For awhile you'll forget you're in the heart of West Bloomfield. Gardens, trees and ponds shelter Canadian geese and other wildlife.

"We opened one side with glass doors to an enclosed garden to help create the ambience of an inn," explained Jim Lark. "Our vision hasn't changed in the 15 years we've been open. We're always looking for ways to improve. Our cuisine is always evolving. We've only had three chefs since we opened, and each one has been better than the one before. We let him do what he wants, just as long as he does it right, and the best."

The Lark

Address: 6430 Farmington Road, (north of Maple Road), West Bloomfield, (810) 661-4466.

Hours: Fixed-price and ala carte dinners from 6 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday. Closed Sunday and Monday, except for theme dinners on the last Monday and Tuesday of each month. Will be closed for summer vacation Sunday, June 30 to Tuesday, July 9.

Reservations: Required

Prices: Four course fixed price dinners $50 to $57.50 excluding dessert. Major credit cards accepted, (except Discover).

Marcus Haight, Chef de Cuisine, joined the Lark in 1986. Prior to joining the Lark he was dinner chef at Gallic Le Bec Fin of Georges Perrier in Philadelphia. He uses only the finest ingredients in his kitchen – garden fresh herbs, extra virgin olive oil, and Guernsey Farms Dairy products to name a few.

Deciding what to order is always a challenge at the Lark. The menu changes throughout the year to reflect the seasons. Dinner begins with cold appetizers, followed by a choice of soup, pasta, or hot appetizer of the day, Italian ice, "for a refreshing interlude," and main course with accompaniments.

Choices include: Atlantic Salmon with Garden Sorrel, Dry Vermouth & Garlic, Roast Main Lobster with Sherry-Vinegar and Oregano Hollandaise, Black Angus Sirloin Strip Steak with Crisp Onions & Pinot Noir Sauce. Look for veal medallions and White Sturgeon with lemon caper & dill sauce on the new July menu.

"My mother said, 'you can only get out of your head what you put into it,' " said Jim Lark. We travel a lot to search out food ideas and recipes, they become the source of our monthly theme dinners. We also send Marcus to France. It has been, and still is, the source of the best cooking."

The Lark is hosting a Wood-Grilled Brazilian Barbecue Dinner 7 p.m. Monday and Tuesday, July 29-30. The cost is $75 per person, not including tax or gratuity. Champagne and Mango Granite Cocktail and coffee are served with dinner, other beverages are extra. Call for reservations, the last date for cancellation without charge is July 22.

"Our most memorable meal in Brazil, and the most enjoyable in Portugal on several occasions was at Churrascarias, specialty barbecue restaurants whose splendid feasts put even the best barbecue of our west and south to shame," writes Jim Lark in his monthly newsletter sent to customers.

"Your waiter will present each barbecued offering on a sword-like skewer and slice off as much as you wish. In Brazil, the waiter tries to sneak up on patrons deep in conversation and refill their plates before they know he's there. You get the picture; it's a crazy evening which seems perfect to take full advantage of our outdoor grill."

Latin rhythms will be provided by Heidi Hepler and Michele Ramo. The menu features wood-grilled country sausage, giant shrimp, barbecued baby spareribs, leg of lamb, and beef tenderloin, Brazilian rice, black beans with garnishes, banana, Brazil Nut, Caramel & Chocolate bombe, Coconut Ice Cream, Chocolate Sauce, and assorted chocolates.

Reservations are a must at the Lark, which seats 45 to 49 people at eight tables and three booths in the main dining room, and two booths in the cafe (bar). Guys, don't wait until the day of your anniversary to call – it might be too late!

"If you want dinner on a certain night, don't delay," said Jim Lark. "You'll know you have your reservation. For a party of two on a Saturday night you should make your reservation five to six weeks in advance."

Plan on reserving at least a week ahead for dinner on a weeknight. And if something should come up and you can't come, call to cancel as soon as possible.

CYO baseball champs

The pitching of Jeremy Borsos and the hitting of Andy Kocolowski were enough to lift St. John Neumann's, of Canton, to the championship of the Catholic Youth Organization's 13-14 year-old boys division in baseball.

Borsos fired a four-hit shutout that stopped St. Lawrence of Utica 3-0 in Saturday's final at Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher. Borsos, who will be a freshman at Plymouth Canton HS in the fall, walked one and struck out seven in the title game. For four innings, he was tossing a perfect game.

His offensive support was supplied by Kocolowski, who had three hits in the contests: two singles and a two-run double in the fifth inning. Jason Lukasik contributed a run-scoring single in the third to give St. John Neumann's its first run.

The team finishes its season with a 14-2 record, including an 8-0 mark in the CYO's West Division.

Links challengers

Adam Peters and Katie Collins, both from Plymouth, were in the hunt but couldn't collect top honors in their junior golf tournaments Sunday and Monday.

Peters competed in the Slazenger Qualifier at Binder Park Golf Course in Battle Creek Sunday. He turned in a solid round of golf, finishing tied for third in the boys 16-and-over division with South Haven's Matt Fritz, each with a 77.

Andy Nietering of East Grand Rapids won the Qualifier with a 74. Brent Carlson of Davison was second at 76.

On Monday at the Junior Classic Scramble, sponsored by Oldsmobile at the Atlas Valley Country Club in Flint, Collins shot a 90 to place fourth in the girls 16-and-over division. Beth Cooper of Kalamazoo was the winner with an 82, followed by Kari Prochazka of Flushing, 84, and Jennifer Peters of Davison, 88.

Both tournaments were conducted through the Game Of your Life Foundation (G.O.L.F.), a non-profit corporation from the originators of the Power-Bilt Michigan Junior Tour.

Coach fills hoop staff

Marylou Jansen, the new women's basketball coach at Madonna University, has filled in her staff. She will be assisted by Jennifer Dempster and Andrea Fron.

Dempster, 27, is a graduate of both Rochester HS and Oakland University. She played four years of basketball at OU and was part of the Lady Pioneers' team that advanced to the NCAA II Final Four in 1990.

She has coached freshmen basketball for one year at Birmingham Marian HS and has served as the varsity softball coach at Dearborn Divine Child for one year. She has also been the junior varsity softball coach at both Rochester and Auburn Hills Avondale.

Fron, 31, is a Divine Child and a Ferris State graduate. She played four years of basketball at FSU, being named team captain in 1984 and '86.

Fron has coached freshmen basketball at Marian HS for five years and has been assistant varsity basketball coach for nine years.

Crushers cruise

The Canton Crushers, an under-10 girls soccer team, finished first in their Great Lakes Soccer Division with an 8-1-1 record.

Crusader spikers win

The Crusader AAU 14-and-under girls volleyball club won the Michigan Junior Volleyball Association championship last weekend in Grand Rapids at the new USA Volleyball Warehouse with a 15-10, 5-15, 15-11 victory over Genessee.

Coached by Lee Cagle, Crusader AAU eliminated Lakeshore Red (14-16, 15-12, 15-8) and Chelsea (15-12, 15-7).

In the Club Division (Pool G), Crusader defeated Lansing Area Volleyball Association Flyers, Adrian Area to advance in Pool BB where they defeated UUSL-North (15-6, 14-16, 15-13), SOVA-AK (11-15, 15-11, 15-13) and Lakeshore-Black (15-6, 15-3).

Members of the Crusader Juniors, who will travel to Iowa for the nationals next week, include Alexis Bowman, Andrea Kmet, Kristin Kmet and Tera Morrill, Livonia Emerson Middle School; Desiree Betts, Livonia St. Robert's; Jillian Dombrowski, Pioneer Middle School (Plymouth); Angie Germain and Angela Hundley, Central Middle School (Plymouth); Bree Pastalaniec, East Middle School (Plymouth); Amanda Suder, West Middle School (Plymouth); Janel Hasse and Meredith Hasse, Northville Meads Mill.

Scoring soars for boys

The first-ever all-state soccer games proved a success on all levels. Long overdue, the precedent has now been set; overwhelming interest in the sport should insure it will be an annual event.

There was a twinkle in the eye of former Observerland coaching stalwarts Pete Scerri (Livonia Stevenson) and Ken Johnson (Plymouth Salem), who renewed acquaintances once again during Saturday's inaugural Michigan High School All-Star Boys Soccer Game held at Plymouth-Canton Educational Park.

Between them, the two retirees have won six state championships and had five runner-up finishes.

Johnson, who led the Rocks to the 1995 boys title, made the trek all the way from Ormond Beach, Fla. (just north of Daytona) and his Red Team didn't disappoint, scoring a 4-2 win in an entertaining match featuring many of the state's top seniors.

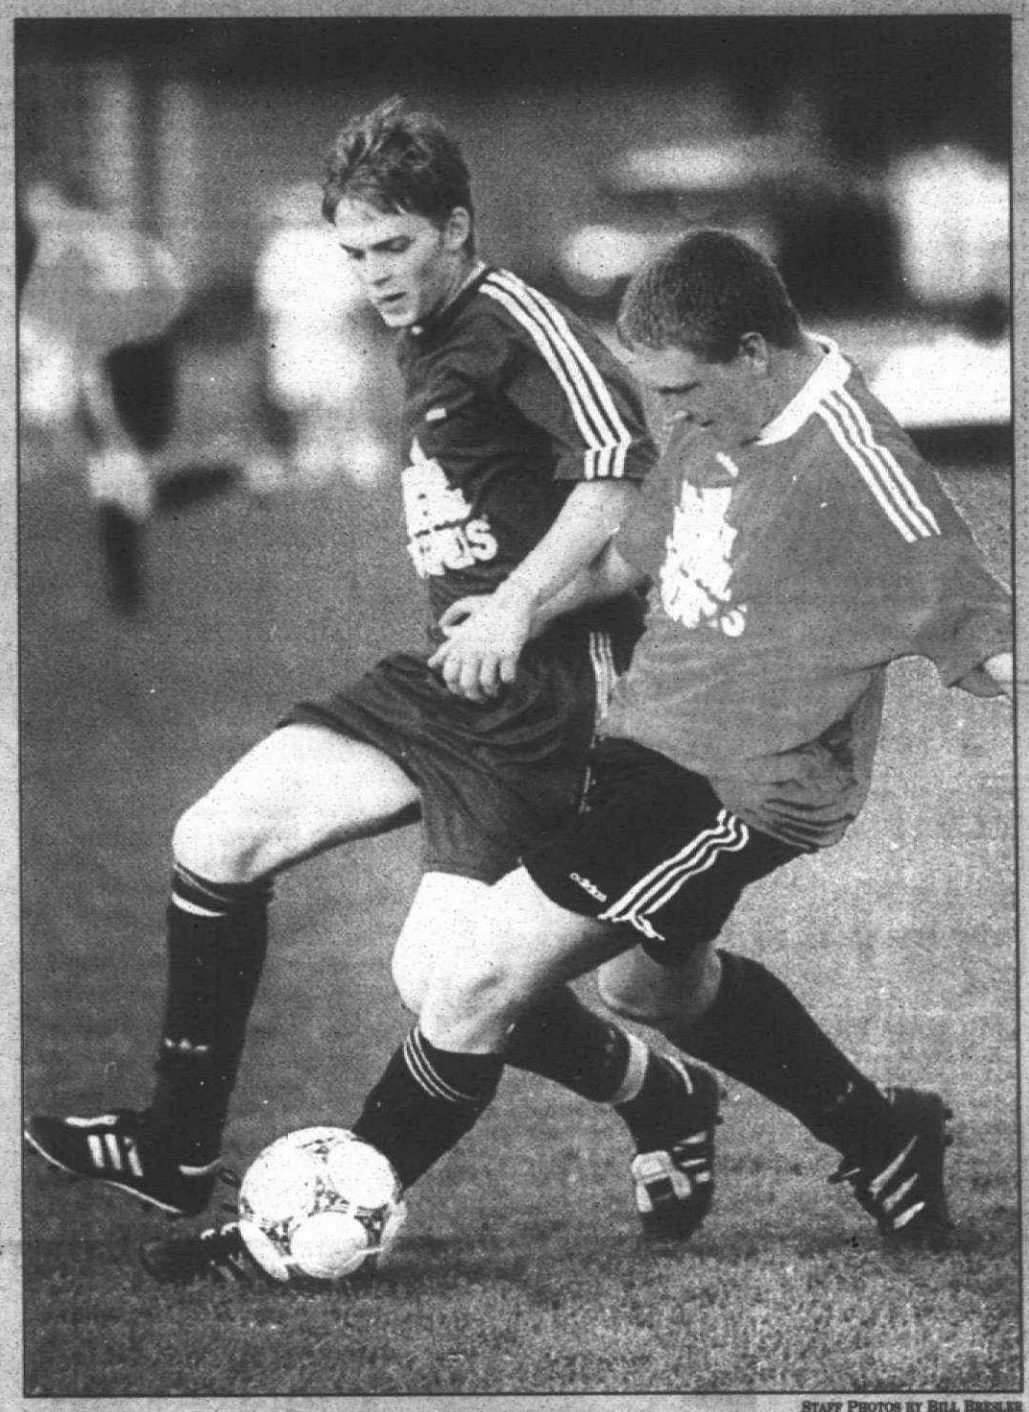

And life couldn't be much better for the former Salem coach, who headed for the sunshine state (last March) after putting in 30 years as an electrical maintenance leader at Detroit Diesel and guiding the Rocks to a state championship.

"I'm gardening, riding a bike and swim in the ocean every day," Johnson said. "I'm up at 6 and riding my trail bike. I can feel the ocean breeze. I've gone from 174 pounds to 153. I bought a satellite dish, I watch all the sports. My wife and I just love it. It's something we've always wanted to do."

Johnson, a native of Middlesborough, England, began working as a 14-year-old at Imperial Chemical, Inc. before moving to Calgary, Alberta to live with his sister and take a job with the Canadian Pacific Airway. He eventually moved her to work at Diesel and began coaching an under-11 club team back in 1975.

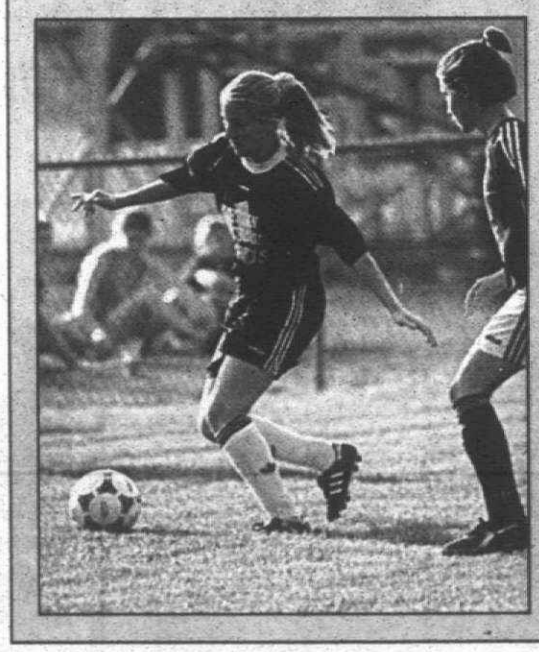

"The club was looking for a coach and I saw it in the Observer," Johnson said. "That's how I got started in all of this."

Gene Fogel, one of the long-time voices on WJR AM-760 in Detroit, wishes he could have given more publicity to Saturday's Michigan High School All-Star Soccer Game.

But with golf's prestigious U.S. Open being held at the same time only miles away at Birmingham's Oakland Hills Country Club, that's easier said to friends than reported on the airwaves.

"If you can talk to a high school all-stater or a Corey Pavin or Jack Nicklaus, who are you going to talk to?" Fogel said, almost apologetically.

The first-ever boys and girls games, virtually ignored by every media outlet in town, gave fans their last glimpse of some of the best high school seniors in the state.

Fogel happened to be one of the few media present as coach of the Navy Team, which lost to the White, 2-1, under perfect weather conditions at Plymouth Canton Centennial Education Park.

Fogel formerly coached at Farmington Hills Mercy from 1983-88. His counterpart on the White Team's bench was Cathy Cole-Kansman, the former Farmington and North Farmington girls and boys coach from 83-88.

Cole-Kansman plays for Fogel on the 30-over Shooting Stars women's team that won a national title in 1995 and was runner-up in '94.

"The talent level since I coached has improved a hundred fold," Fogel said. "I attribute it to the Steve Hornsberger was just two outs away from a no-hitter, but Hines Park Lincoln/Mercury had to hold on for 5-4 victory over Little Caesars in a Livonia Collegiate Baseball League game June 14 at Ford Field.

Hornsberger, a lefty from Brighton and member of the Central Michigan University baseball team, held Caesars hitless for 6 2/3 innings before Aaron Racey broke up the bid with a single.

Racey then advanced to second on a balk and Hornsberger proceeded to give up three straight singles to Aaron Babicz, Scott Carden and Aaron Cagnon, accounting for two runs.

Reynolds, however, got the final out to preserve the victory.

Kevin Uzarski, the losing pitcher, gave up six hits, two walks and three balks in six innings. All five runs were unearned as Caesars committed three errors.

Stacy McCollum had a three-run double to spark a four-run fifth for Hines Park. Brian Kalczynski added two hits and an RBI. John Papp also added two hits.

On Sunday, first-place Hines Park improved to 11-0-1 by sweeping a pair of one-run games from Michigan Honig's, 7-6 and 6-5, at Ford Field.

Papp had two hits and two RBI in the opener, while Kalczynski and Chance Beam also collected two hits apiece.

Chris Hesse, the starting pitcher, worked 5 2/3 innings to pick up the victory. Mark Fleming went the final 1 1/3 to earn the save.

DNR adds field officers; perch study planned

OUTDOOR INSIGHTS

BILL PARKER

Arthur Green of Farmington Hills is one of nine conservation officers recently hired by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources to bolster its field operations. The new hires fill vacancies created by retirements and transfers in recent years.

"We're pleased to have these additions to our field enforcement effort and will look forward to the officers completing their training and being fully integrated into the division's field operations," said Law Enforcement Division Chief Herb Burns. "There are currently 160 field-level conservation officers in various locations throughout the state, and these nine will enable us to provide an increased enforcement in some priority areas."

The DNR's Law Enforcement Division is processing a number of additional conservation officer candidate applications and is looking forward to employing as many as 42 new officers over the next 18 months.

Perch study started

In an effort to learn more about the perch population in Lake St. Clair, Michigan DNR fisheries biologists recently initiated a long-term study on Lake St. Clair perch, the first such study in 13 years.

Biologists hope to tag 2,000 perch and are asking anglers to assist in the study by reporting information to the DNR on any tagged perch they catch.

"We have several goals for this study, the most important of which is to determine the survival rate of perch in Lake St. Clair," said DNR fisheries research biologist Robert Haas. "We also expect to find out how many are being caught versus how many die from natural causes. Through this study, we will be able to estimate mortality rates, follow the movement patterns of perch and get an idea of the population."

Regatta returns

The Oakland County Boat Club and the Rainbow Connection have teamed up to sponsor the 79th Annual Regatta, July 21, on Sylvan Lake. The event is free, but parking is limited. Competition is sanctioned by the American Powerboat Association.

The Rainbow Connection is a non profit Michigan corporation dedicated to granting wishes to children with life threatening illnesses.

The theme of this year's regatta is "The Race for Wishes." A portion of the proceeds from the event will be donated to the Rainbow Connection. The Oakland County Boat Club is asking for donations. All donations are tax deductible.

For more information call Glenn Wachler at (810) 682-9870 or Suzanne Jones at (810) 783-9777 for more information.

Fishing per built

If you don't own a boat, it's often difficult to find a place to wet a line. Thanks to volunteers from the Oakland County Sportfishing Association, Wright & Filippis, Ameritech Telephone Pioneers of America and park staff, a new, handicap-accessible fishing peer has been built on Lake Sixteen at Orion Oaks County Park in Lake Orion.

The 150-foot-long dock provides plenty of access into the deeper waters of the lake.

"This dock will allow everyone an opportunity to fish at Orion Oaks," said Dan Stencil, chief of park operations. "Because of its distance out into the lake people will be able to fish deeper water than they could in the past."

The dock is located off Joslyn Road next to a handicap-accessible parking area and a picnic area complete with barbecue grills.

Anglers and hunters are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information to Outdoors, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI 48009. Fax information to (810) 644-1314 or call Bill Parker evenings at (810) 901-2573.

BOOTING UP A CV JOINT
Constant velocity (CV) joints are flexible joints used in front-wheel-drive (FWD) automobiles to permit smooth application of power to the wheels. In the event that a FWD car should display clicking noises coming from the front of the car during turns, it may be due to a worn outboard CV joint. Each side of the car has an inner and outer joint, both of which are covered by protective seals known as "boots." If there are no unusual noises coming from the front of the car and there is no shudder or vibration, but the boot is torn, only the boot needs replacing. If this bit of maintenance is performed immediately, it can prevent the destruction of the CV joint and its costly replacement. For this reason, it is a good idea to make sure that the CV joint boots are inspected every time the car is lubricated.
CV joints can be expensive to replace which is why it is a good idea to check the boots around them during routine service checks to make sure they aren't punctured. At HOLIDAY CHEVROLET INC., we are your one-stop full-service facility, where you get value for your dollar. We also keep a large top-quality parts inventory to save you time waiting for a repair. youth leagues, premier leagues, that get kids playing at a young age."

Both Fogel and Cole-Kansman said they were honored to coach the first all-star game.

"When I think about how many coaches I put as mentors and role models, I'm totally honored," said Cole-Kansman, who broke out in laughter when she added, "They must not have been available."

The state's Miss Soccer, Amber Berendowski of Brighton, scored the game-winning goal for the White with 2:19 left. Berendowski, stopped a couple minutes earlier on a breakaway by Plymouth Canton goalkeeper Sarah Warnke, didn't waste her second opportunity.

"Sarah Lawton (Birmingham Marian) carried it down, the defender went to her and she crossed it," Berendowski said. "It was just me and the goalie (Warnke) and I just touched it in."

Berendowski hopes this was the last time she has to play against Livonia Churchill's Marie Spaccarotella, Plymouth Salem's Mari Hoff and Troy Athens' Emily Schmidt, who were members of the Navy Team.

The four all will play together at the University of Michigan. Troy's Shannon Poole, who also signed with U-M, did not play in the all-star game.

"We'll have a great team next year. I can't wait to start," Berendowski said.

Along with Berendowski, Hoff's opponents on the White Team included Salem teammates Julie Buczek and Andrea Sudek.

Buczek is continuing her career at Michigan State University and Sudek will play at Kalamazoo College, where she won't see this kind of competition.

"I had to mark Emily (Schmidt), Marie and Mari - it was rough," said Sudek, a tired victor.

All the scoring took place in the second half. The flawless first-half goalies were Buczek, who played for the White, and Grand Haven's Jennifer Haller, who played for the Navy.

The Navy's Amber Wiersmen of Holland Christian opened the scoring, converting a penalty kick at 4:58 of the second half. The White's Laura Montecillo of Troy Athens tied the score with a goal assisted by Marian's Meghan Kolbe at the 22:00 mark.

"She is so deceiving," Cole-Kansman said of Montecillo. "She can excellerate on the dot and her first and second touch on the ball are sweet."

Hoff compared the game to those she's played in the Olympic Development Program. There were more adjustments to make, however, since there was no practice prior to the game.

"You don't know how fast they are, what they're going to do," Hoff said. "You just guess."

The game was fun for most, painful for Dearborn Edsel Ford's Heather Nelson, who had to apply an ice pack to her nose after being hit by an errant ball.

Warnke will attend Wayne State University on a basketball scholarship but says she hasn't played her last soccer game.

"I love it too much not to play it anymore," Warnke said.

Other Observer and Eccentric players in the game included Lake Orion's Penny Richards, Birmingham Seaholm's Jennifer Timlin and Livonia Stevenson's Mamie Vanderburgh, who were on the Navy Team; and Detroit Country Day's Pamela Bierzynski, Lake Orion's Kristi Elliott, Livonia Stevenson's Angela Pandoff, Troy Athens' Shannon Stevers, Plymouth Canton's Becky Vachow and Livonia Churchill's Kerri Verardi on the White Team.

The only boys and girls coach Salem ever had, Johnson led the boys to one state title and a pair of runner-up finishes. His girls took one title and finished second in another.

"I may coach down there (Florida) if my time allows for it," Johnson said. "I've checked things out, but it would be a younger group."

Scerri, who retired from Ford Motor Co. after 33 years as a claims inspector, moved two years ago to San Marcos, Calif. (near San Diego) to be closer to his son.

He also enjoys the warm weather and ventures occasionally to nearby Chula Vista to check out the U.S. National Team's training complex.

But the 67-year-old Scerri, who is just completing three months of chemotherapy after a bout with cancer, was happy to back on the sidelines, but only for one game.

"There's no pressure in a game like this," said Scerri, who guided the Blue Team. "You miss it because it gets in your blood. But when you're old you don't miss it that much."

Scerri had the opportunity to coach Steve Williford, the skillful All-State midfielder who is headed to Michigan State. Scerri coached his older brother Derek, who went on to star at Oakland University.

"That Willy's a player," Scerri said. "These kids are a lot better since I left, just by the passing and from the way they possess the ball. I've seen lots of soccer in California and the only thing we don't have here are the leaders who can push."

Some of Johnson's Red members certainly made their mark, including Canton goalkeeper George Tomasso, who made several acrobatic saves to keep his team in front, 3-2, after one half.

"I was just having fun," said Tomasso, who is headed for Eastern Michigan. "We're just playing. There was only a few kids I haven't played against."

Tomasso was the member of the under-18 Michigan Wolves, which recently captured the State Cup and is headed to the Regional this weekend in Lexington, Ky. He will be joined by fellow All-Stars Drew Drummond and Matt Simmons of Salem, Williford and a pair of defenders headed for the University of Kentucky, Scott Sersen of Stevenson and Todd Stonestreet of Canton.

Drummond's goal, coming off a counter attack at 32:05 of the second half, sealed the victory for the Red Team.

University of Detroit-bound Matt Quinter, who suffered a bloody nose in a collison with Blue keeper Brian Baczynski (Salem) in the first half, contributed two assists and earned praise from Johnson.

"If I had an MVP, he would have been it," Salem's former coach said. "What a tough player."

The Red team received first-half goals from Hackett's William Purdy (9:46) and Salem's Ronnie Mashni (35:00). Midway through the second half the Red rang a shot off the crossbar, but the Blue came back on Drummond's counter, which proved to be the game-winner.

Overall, it was a good start to what the soccer coaches feel will be an annual affair.

"Hopefully we can keep this going," said Stevenson coach Walt Barrett, who replaced Scerri as the Spartans' coach in 1989. "It was a nice night to play, too."

"We're very excited and hope it's the first of many," said Gary Balconi, one of the game's organizers. "There are tremendous players in the state and we like to promote the game."

the seventh to pull out the win.

Barrett and McCollum each finished with two hits.

Jerry Nozewski, who pitched the seventh, notched the win. Darric Terry started, working 4 2/3 innings before giving way to Fleming.

•DECISION 9-3, CAESARS 3-4: Decision Consultants, Inc. (6-3-1) and Little Caesars (4-8) split a double-header Sunday at Ford Field.

Decision collected 11 hits and took advantage of five Caesars errors to win the opener.

Chris DeShetler went 2-for-5 with a pair of RBI for the winners. E.J. Roman added a triple and double, while Greg Ryan and Jason Rice also contributed two hits apiece.

Brian Cotner went 3-for-3 for Caesars.

Mitch Jabczynski, the winning pitcher, went six innings, allewing three runs (all unearned). He struck out five, walked one and allowed just four hits. Joe Fabris finished up.

Alex Wozniak, the first of three Caesars pitchers, allowed six runs on eight hits over four innings before giving way to Cotner and Brian Crumley.

Uzarski and Jay Harrington opened the inning with singles and Racey brought Uzarski home with a single.

Decision reliever Jason Carter then intentionally walked Cagnon to load the bases, setting the stage for Carden, who ripped a shot between third and short, brington home Harrington with the game-winner on a fielders choice.

Carden tied the game in the seventh, 2-2, when he scored on an error. That came after DCI had taken a 2-1 lead when DeShetler scored on a wild pitch.

Babicz and Racey each had two hits for the winners. Babicz had an RBI double in the fourth.

Pete Quinn collected two hits for DCI.

Harrington, the winning pitcher, went all eight innings. He gave up just four hits and three walks. He struck out five.

Carter, who took over for Fabris in the fifth, suffered the loss.

In Observerland, there are two leagues that feature girls golf: the Western Lakes Activities Association and the Catholic League.

It's a testament to teams from this area that both were dominated by Observer-area squads.

In the Catholic League, Farmington Hills Mercy gained the first-ever official conference championship. A league tournament has been conducted every year for the past five - and Mercy has won all five - but this was the first season there were enough schools competing for it to be a sanctioned league sport.

Vicky Kowalski
Coach of the year

In the WLAA title meet, Livonia Stevenson simply blew away the competition, winning the championship by 50 strokes to complete an unbeaten season.

So there was no lack of choices to fill the spots on this season's all-Observer team.

Coach of the year honors were also up for grabs. Vicky Kowalski of Mercy not only took the Marlins to the Catholic League title, but also guided them to the state meet for the third time in four years.

John Wagner of Livonia Stevenson also had some solid credentials, what with the Spartans' lopsided win at the WLAA final and their qualifying for the Class A tournament, too.

In the end, however, the honor went to Kowalski. Mercy went on to finish ninth at state, even with a lack of seniors (just two in the top six players).

Among the seven chosen to represent the Observer area, only three are seniors - which means we'll be hearing a lot more about those that remain.

FIRST TEAM

This marks the third-straight year she's been chosen to the first team. A four-year letterwinner at Ladywood and team captain, she certainly earned her way with a stroke average this season of 44.

Besides gaining medalist honors at the Catholic League Tournament, Kowalski was individual medalist at the Pinckney Invitational with an 82 and placed third at the Class A regional at Sylvan Glens. At the state final at Forest Akers in East Lansing, Kowalski shot a 98.

"During the 1996 season, Laura earned a place as one of Ladywood's finest players of all time," said coach Phil Heyer. "Laura's 44 scoring average led the team for the second year in a row.

Laura also leads in the classroom with a 4.1 GPA, ranking fourth in her class."

Kowalski is headed to Florida State University in the fall, where she will be part of the golf team.

She was a team leader, both on the course and in the clubhouse. A four-year letterwinner, Khoury posted a 91 at the WLAA tournament to earn all-conference honors, shot a 93 at the Class A regional at Brighton's Huron Meadows, and earned medalist honors with a 92 at the Monroe Jefferson Invitational. She had five nine-hole scores under 45.

"Andrea Khoury has contributed her skills to our team for four years as a varsity standout," said Stevenson coach John Wagner. "Her fiery spirit and determination have been a part of our team that we will sincerely miss.

A co-captain, Bischoff had a 49.7 stroke average and fired a 92 at the WLAA Tournament, placing sixth and earning all-division honors.

Her other top performances were at the Class A regional (104) and the Monroe Jefferson Invitational (108).

"Emily really committed herself to golf this year," said her coach, Sharon Laskowski. "She set some high goals, worked hard on her short game and it paid off.

"She was a real delight to coach. She was our No. 1 player all year and will be missed."

Her numbers were perhaps the best in the area. Murinas posted the best score of anyone in this area at the Class A final with a 90, missing the state cut for individuals by two strokes.

Her nine-hole average was an equally impressive 45.7, which was a clear indication of her greatest strength: her consistency. Murinas was third at the WLAA with an 87, earning all-WLAA honors; she was third in the Class A regional with an 85; and she teammed with Katie Collins to card a 79 in winning the Pinckney Best Ball Tournament.

"Katie has a passion for the game and is truly a student of the game of golf," said Rick Wilson, her coach at Salem. "In a relatively short career, Katie has achieved much in high school golf.

Katie Collins, Plymouth Salem, junior: Perhaps the worst day of the past season came at the worst time for Salem's Collins. At the Class A regional at Oakpointe, she shot a 95 and failed to qualify for the state finals as an individual.

That wasn't like her. Collins had earned runner-up honors in the Ann Arbor Invitational at the University of Michigan golf course with a 90. She and teammate Murinas had been twin terrors for the Rocks all season long and had paired to win the Pinckney Best Ball Tournament with a 79.

Then came the disappointment at Oakpointe. Collins' reaction? In Salem's next competition, which happened to be the WLAA Tournament at Huron Meadows, she fired an 84 to capture medalist honors.

For the season, Collins had a 47.1 stroke average for nine holes. "Her demeanor and commitment to golf was a good example for all the other team members," said her coach, Rick Wilson. "Katie has the complete package, in terms of her golf game.

"She hits the ball well and accurate, and has the short game to complement. Katie will return as a senior and will be considered one of the top players in the state."

Kelly Kristy, Livonia Stevenson, junior: What made Stevenson so powerful this season was exceptional talent throughout its lineup. Kristy was at the top of that scale.

She led the Spartans by earning medalist honors in eight of 10 dual matches and never really faltered. She was medalist at the Stevenson HS Invitational, was second at the Monroe Jefferson Invitational, was on the all-tournament team at the Traverse City Invitational with a season-best round of 80, earned all-division honors at the WLAA Tournament, finished fourth at the Class A regional with a 90, and finished the season with a nine-hole average of 45.7.

"Kelly led our team to the most successful season in Stevenson High School history," said her coach, John Wagner. "Her athletic and mental abilities have matured to a level of excellence.

"Kelly has the work ethic that will allow her to continue her growth as an individual with superior skill. Her love for the game is every coach's dream."

Jennifer Borowiec, Farmington Hills Mercy, freshman: Borowiec is a vision of the future, in terms of golf in the Observerland area.

She set a Mercy record for freshman by shooting 42 for nine holes, at Sycamore Hills vs. Mount Clemens Lutheran North. This at the school that produced LPGA standout Meg Mallon.

Borowiec was second at the Catholic League Tournament with a 93, averaged 45 for Catholic League duals (47 overall), shot 93 at the regional at Sylvan Glen to place seventh, and shot a two-day total of 98-94//192 at the state finals, the best score for a freshman.

She was also good enough to earn medalist honors for Mercy in seven of eight dual meets.

"Jennifer is very dedicated to the game of golf and to the Mercy team," said her coach, Vicky Kowalski. "She will continue to work hard to improve individually and to help th team finish higher next year."

STAFF PHOTOS BY JIM JAGDFELD

Adam Cardinal Maida of the Archdiocese of Detroit last week blessed the new Mission Health facility in Livonia and expressed hope this would be a first step among Catholic healthcare organizations to establish a "wider partnership throughout southeastern Michigan, the state of Michigan, the country and even the world."

Maida was the featured guest at last week's formal dedication of the new 68,000-square-foot facility on the southwest corner of Newburgh and Levan roads in Livonia.

The center is a collaborative effort between Mercy Health Services and the Daughters of Charity National Health System Inc.

Mission Health is a community-based network of four hospitals: Providence in Southfield, St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor, McPherson in Howell and Saline Community In Saline.

"Caring for the whole person in the impetus behind the design of his facility," said Maida who called the new facility an exciting venture as health care reforms from focusing on "sickness to wellness."

Maida said eight years ago a call for collaboration among Catholic health organizations went out and "Mission Health is a response to that call."

Brian Connolly, president and chief executive officer of Mission Health Corp., described the collaboration as one in which mutual values which include respect, justice and advocacy for the poor are of prime importance.

Peter Karadjoff, administrator of the Livonia facility, marked the dedication by accepting special items placed in a time capsule. Items included a picture of the advisory board, chaired by Alberta Muzzin, a Livonia business owner; a copy of the June 13 Livonia Observer, a picture of the former Livonia Providence healthcare facility, a key to the city of Livonia presented by Mayor Jack Kirksey, copy of the strategic plan and a religious medal.

The brief ceremony included prayers by Sister Lucille Marie Beauchamp of the Daughters of Charity and chair of the Providence Hospital Community Board, Ruth Slasor, administrator of Providence Primary Care Physicians and Sister Yvonne Gellise, senior adviser to the president for governance of Mission Health Corp.

Special recognition was awarded to artist Georg Vihos, creator of "Transformation," a painting donated by physician Stanley H. Levy and his family in memory of his wife, Susanne Jackson Levy.

A sculpture, "Caring for Our Community," created by Frank Varga stands in front of the new center. Varga has created pieces at both Providence Hospital in Southfield and Providence Medical Center- Providence Park in Novi. The Livonia sculptures symbolize togetherness, a sense of community.

The new Mission Health facility which opened to the public in May provides a comprehensive range of services from community health education to diagnostic testing and treatment including cardiac diagnostic testing, diagnostic radiology, women's imaging, lab services and physical therapy.

The center also features a pharmacy. More than 70 primary care and specialty physicians will see patients in office. Urgent care services are available to adults and children 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. 365 days a year.

June 1996

Dear Friend:

Oakwood Healthcare System has recently completed the data gathering and planning phase of our transition process, which involved more than 400 people (including 147 physicians and dozens representing communities we serve) during the past six months. We are now moving ahead to ensure a healthier tomorrow for our patients/members and our organization as a whole.

Earlier this month, Oakwood's board adopted recommendations emerging from the process, and approved new strategies for the organization through the year 2000. You will hear more about these from us during the next several months.

Why do we feel new strategies are necessary?

Changes in healthcare are occurring in the Detroit area and in virtually every community in the United States. They are affecting every hospital and healthcare system nationwide. These changes include a decrease in inpatient volume, and increase in the demand for outpatient care and other non-acute services, the future decline of Medicare and Medicaid reimbursement, increased pressure from payers and purchasers to reduce costs and increase efficiencies, and managed-care reimbursement which sets fixed dollars per person and dictates a shift toward wellness.

We need to listen to our customers or we won't be in business long. And, we owe it to you and others to be as healthy and strong as possible — so we can meet and exceed your expectations for years to come.

Like any good business, we need to step up and make the adjustments necessary to meet our customers' long-term needs. Those adjustments will require large investments of time and money. However, we recognize our responsibility to make decisions — as difficult as they may be — keeping tightly focused on the best, long-term interests of all those we serve. We've set the strategies and, as customer demands dictate, we will make specific decisions on ways to follow them.

What will the changes achieve? They will ensure that you benefit from consistent, high-quality care across the Oakwood system; make it easier for you to access Oakwood services; make it easier, effective and more desirable for you to move out of the hospital and into the most appropriate non-hospital settings (such as being treated in doctors' offices or at home); promote wellness by increasing education on prevention; and replace unneeded hospital beds with a network of 24 outpatient centers.

You will learn more about these changes and how they will affect you and your family. In the meantime, a special toll-free phone line has been activated through September 30th to receive your questions and comments on this. Please call 1-800-861-4630 to offer a question or comment that can be considered by us in future communications with you. Also, please feel free to write to any of us with your ideas and thoughts at: A Healthier Tomorrow, Oakwood Healthcare System P.O. Box 2500, Dearborn, Michigan 48123-2500.

We are excited about these changes, and need your support and thoughts as we move forward.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Kenneth Aird

Pulte's Forest Creek off to a good start

Pulte Homes of Michigan, the largest volume-builder in the state, has apparently hit a responsive cord with Forest Creek Estates in Westland.

Buyers have snapped up nearly a third of the 123 lots and the model won't be finished until August.

"Typically, they're impressed with all the standards we include at base price, quality of the work," said Sean C. Strickler, sales representative. "The location is close to highways, malls – everything is easy access."

"It's a smaller community," said William Smith, project manager. "It has location, availability to major thoroughfares, affordable tax base. It's an affordable piece of real estate."

Four floor plans are available.

The ranch, 1,506 square feet with three bedrooms and two baths, carries a base price of $164,990.

A 1,950-square-foot colonial with three bedrooms and 2-1/2 baths goes for $182,990; a 2,070-square-foot colonial with three bedrooms and 2-1/2 baths for $193,990; and a 2,270-square-foot colonial with four bedrooms and 2-1/2 baths for $198,990.

A fireplace, oven and dishwasher, first floor laundry, two-car garage and basement are included in the base price of all plans.

Air conditioning ($2,500) is extra.

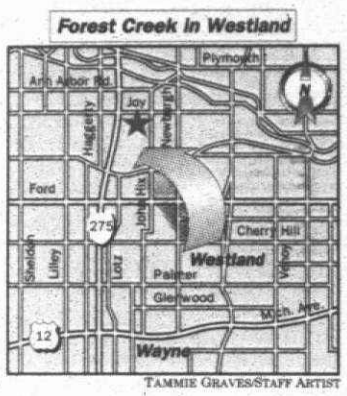

The model under construction, the three-bedroom colonial, will showcase a family room with sloped ceiling, formal dining room, kitchen/eating nook with island and family room with sloped ceiling.

A staircase extends from the two-story foyer, a second staircase from the family room. A planter shelf will top off the hall closet in the foyer. A nine-foot ceiling in the kitchen will allow for a decorator shelf over cabinets.

Chair and crown moldings are standard.

The master with sloped ceiling will include a separate tub and shower, a dual sink vanity and walk-in closet.

Two bedrooms and a second full bath upstairs also will be upstairs.

TAMMIE GRAVES/STAFF ARTIST

Buyers can get a feeling for the Aspen by visiting Pulte's Lexington model at Glengarry Village in Canton. In fact, Forest Creek sales will be handled at that sales office off Canton Center Road south of Cherry Hill until the model is completed.

Visitors who drive through Forest Creek, off Joy Road between I-275 and Hix, will notice that the 39-acre sub is nearly surrounded by trees.

Exterior materials on houses include vinyl and brick.

Forest Creek is serviced by city water and sewers. It's within the boundaries of Livonia schools. There will be sidewalks.

"We're finding a lot of people within Westland moving, some Downriver people moving into this area," said Deen Hyde, marketing manager for Pulte.

All of the floor plans are selling well. "You get a lot of house for the money," Strickler said.

The property tax rate for Forest Creek is nearly $35 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value. That means the owners of a $183,000 house there would pay about $3,200 the first year.

The annual association fee to maintain the entrance and common areas is $200 per house.

"We can take advantage of our buying power – our ability to buy in large volumes and negotiate national contracts – and pass that on to the customer," Smith said.

"We have pre-construction conferences where we discuss what to expect as we build the house," he said. "That helps eliminate questions, makes us more efficient. We double check to make sure everything is right."

Jeff and Dianne Williams, along with daughter, Meghan, will move into a ranch.

"We always wanted a new home. This is affordable," Jeff said. "Pulte is a high quality builder that has a good reputation.

"We liked the floor plan. It's wide open and spacious," he added.

"The whole house has cathedral ceiling except for two of the bedrooms. The great room opens to the dining room with an archway in between. The kitchen sink is built on an angled corner that faces the great room and dining room," Williams said.

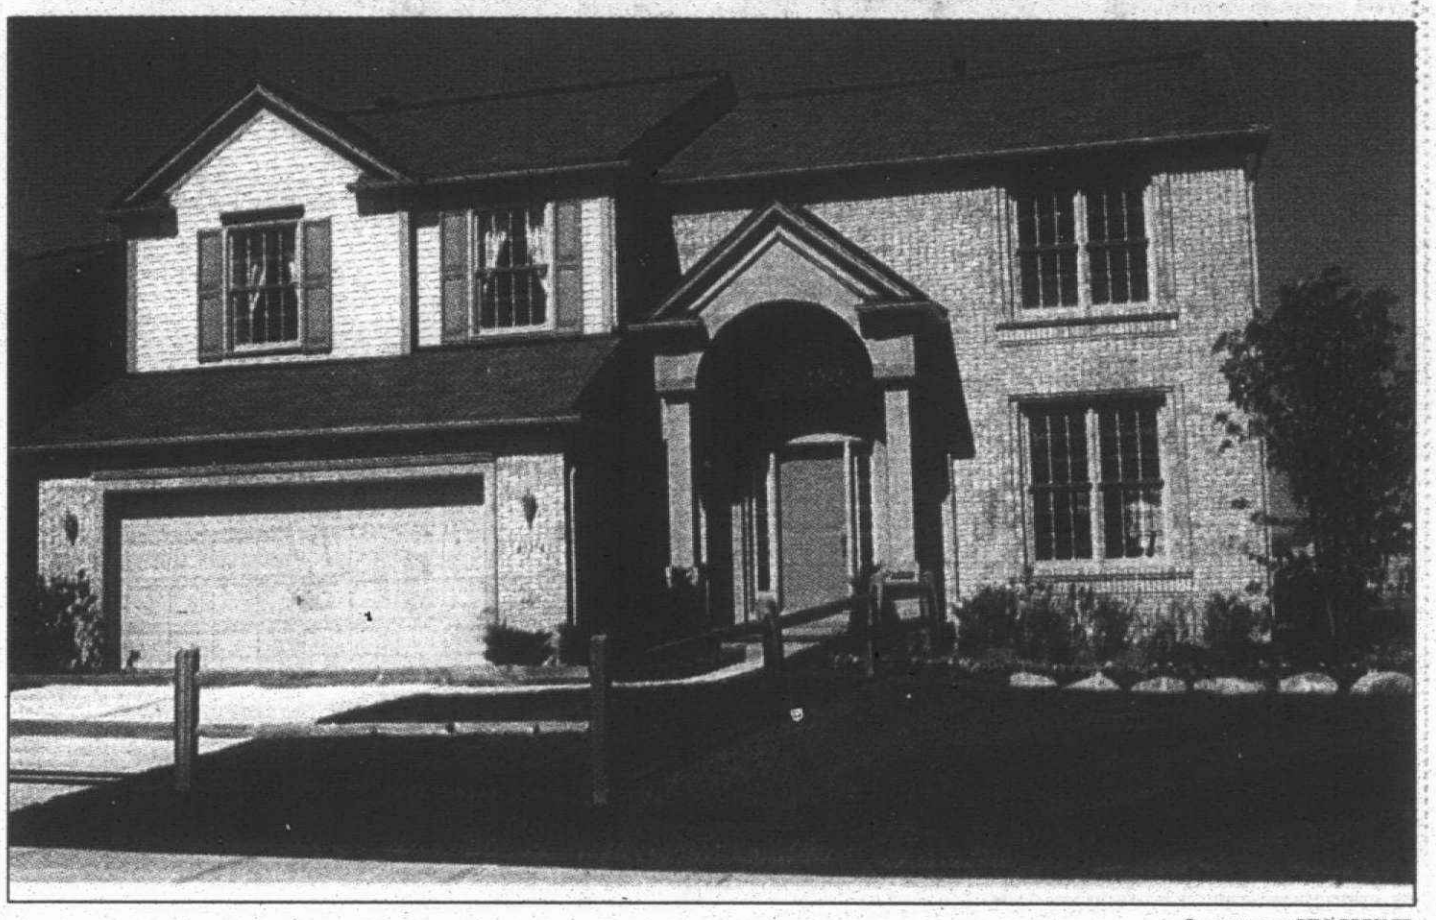

Andrea and Dion Hogan and son, Drake, also will move into their first brand new house, a four bedroom colonial.

"I really like the double staircases, plus we wanted an extra bedroom for a den," Andrea said. "I love the island kitchen."

The subdivision, itself, also has a charm, she added.

"We liked the way it sets back from the road and kind of opens up. "We like trees all around the sub.

"Pulte is very reputable," Andrea Hogan said. "That made us confident as well.

AMERICAN INVSCO

Burglar gives expert advice on house protection

By Ron Browning
The Daily Ledger, Fishers

NOBLESVILLE – Floyd Poore says no house is safe from burglars.

He should know. The 47-year-old Tennessee native spent the better part of three decades breaking into houses and businesses.

He made a good living at it, too, because people made it easy for him, he said.

"I could make more doing that than working," Poore said, then grinning widely. "People make the mistake where they leave stuff out in the open. People do it to themselves."

Poore has been in prison since April 1983, serving time for burglary and theft convictions from five different counties, including Hamilton.

Poore speaks in a slow, southern drawl as he recalls his past outside the prison walls.

He's robbed more houses than he can remember.

He would strike when his victims were most vulnerable when they were out shopping or away on vacation.

As temperatures increase, more people take vacations. That is when burglars go to work.

"More burglaries occur in the summer than any other season because more people are away from home," said Phil Bell, a home security expert.

Burglaries increase 10 to 18 percent in the summer, Bell said.

Most thieves don't want to confront anybody, Bell said, so they wait until everyone is gone.

People are creatures of habit, Poore said. They wake up, leave home and return at the same times everyday.

"I'd watch you for about a week and get your pattern down," Poore said. "Then I'd hit you on your vulnerable day."

But Poore wouldn't break into a house unless he knew it was going to be worth his time.

His victims would let him know.

People love to show off their possessions, Poore said. But nice stereos, antiques and gun cases attract more than just innocent admiration.

"That's advertising," Poore said. "Somebody goes down the road and looks in the picture window and there it sets."

He never entered a house blindly, Poore said. He would target specific items before ever planning a burglary.

More often than not, someone familiar with the house would hire him to break in and steal a certain item. While inside, if something else caught his eye, he'd take it too.

It would take only 20 to 30 minutes to clean out a house, Poore said.

He never kept items he stole. That's an easy way to get caught, Poore said.

Like a wholesale distributor, Poore had regular customers who would buy the items he took.

Guns are the easiest to sell, Poore said. But his biggest payday came in 1967 when he was hired to steal $180,000 worth of gold coins from a house.

Getting into a house was even easier than finding out what was inside, he said.

Locks, dogs and alarm systems couldn't keep him out. He could always find a way to get into even the most secure homes.

"I ain't seen the house yet that can't be burglarized," Poore said.

If a burglar wants to get into a house, they'll find a way, Bell said.

The trick is to make the burglar's job as hard as possible, Bell said.

Many home owners are turning to expensive security systems that include closed-circuit TV, motion detectors and glass-breakage detectors, Bell said.

But police say a few common sense safeguards can be as important as any state-of-the-art alarm system.

"Society, overall, makes it easy for people to steal because we're lazy," said Ken Whisman, a County Sheriff's Department sergeant. "We don't take precautions to protect our property."

Little things such as checking locks on doors and windows to make sure valuables are not out in the open are the first steps in thwarting burglars.

Engraving your name and Social Security number in valuable items like stereos and TVs deters burglars because it makes them harder to sell, Whisman said.

Being a good neighbor may be the best way to keep burglars out of your house, Noblesville Police Chief Dick Russell said.

"Know your neighbors and help each other out," Russell said. "If you see something suspicious in your neighborhood, report it."

Have a neighbor collect your mail and newspapers, even cut your grass, if you're on vacation, Russell said.

Neighbors were Poore's biggest enemy when he was breaking into a home.

"If you're going to leave the house, notify your neighbors, I don't care if you're just going to the store," Poore said.

Any house can be broken into, Poore said, but a perceptive neighbor can make it a lot harder.

Tips

Law-enforcement and security officials say residential burglaries increase during the summer because more people are on vacation. If you plan to be away from home for even a few days, they say you should:

- Notify your neighbors so that they can watch for any suspicious activity.
- Check the locks on your doors and windows. Install deadbolts on your doors if they are not already there.
- Secure sliding doors with pins. Placing a board or bar in the track might not be effective because burglars may take the entire door off the track.
- Don't stop your mail or newspaper service because burglars will notice. Instead have someone pick those items up each day.
- If you plan to be gone longer than a week, have someone cut your grass while you are away.
- Don't leave a message on your voice mail or answering machine giving a specific time when you will return. While you are away, check your messages each day.
- Install timing devices that will turn on lights and stereos at a specific time each day. Have them come on at times you would normally turn on those appliances. Also, place a radio in a room that cannot be seen from outside the house.

By Popular Mechanics
For AP Special Features

Metal roofing, while adding a unique or period touch to your home, often brings up questions regarding maintenance and installation. As far as painting goes, Terne (copper and tin plate), should be painted as soon after application as conditions will permit with a red iron-oxide, linseed-oil vehicle primer to prevent corrosion. This paint, which is brush-applied, is very slow drying with a 72-hour drying time. This is followed with a compatible linseed-oil finish coat.

In the old days, folks just used two coats of the red iron-oxide primer, which is the reason many of us picture old metal roofs as red. Today, the compatible finish is available in a variety of colors. Depending on environmental conditions, expect to repaint about every eight years.

Some of the metal shingles manufactured today are made from galvanized steel, the same way they were at the turn of the century. Like Terne, galvanized steel should be painted. This smooth, slick and shiny surface must be etched or roughened up before paint will adhere to it properly. Today, most of the major paint companies sell self-etching primers for use on new galvanized panels.

Terne-coated stainless steel (TCS) blends the best of yesterday and today: the durability and permanence of Terne make it a virtually maintenance-and-corrosion-free product. TCS is type 304 stainless steel that's coated on both sides with a Terne alloy that's 20 percent tin and 80 percent lead. It's considered self-healing because the Terne coating is anodic to the stainless steel.

In other words, if it is scratched, the Terne will act sacrificially to protect the base plate. Because of the way it resists corrosion, TCS is a good choice for severe marine or industrial climates. Under most conditions, its unpainted surface will weather to a warm gray.

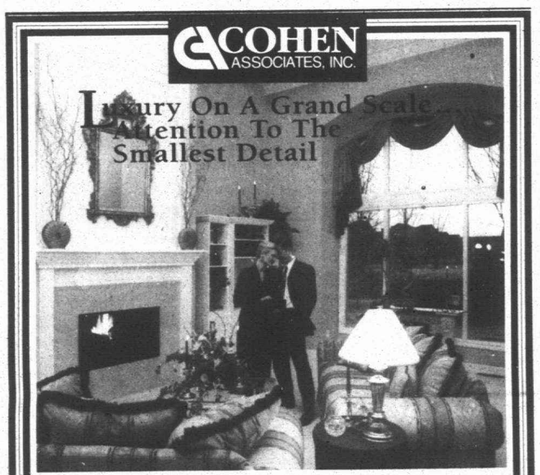

Another self-healing alloy used in the manufacture of metal roofing is Galvalume, a sheet-metal product with an aluminum-zinc alloy coating. This material also requires no paint and, if left to its own devices, will weather and eventually look like dark zinc. It's also available in a variety of factory-finished colors.

Fortunately, installing metal shingles isn't much different from installing any other composite single roof. Any roofing contractor will be able to do it. So should any of you do-it-yourselfers who aren't afraid of heights and are willing to tackle a roofing job. Basically, most metal shingles interlock and are secured to the roof with two nails driven through a nailing flange.

Although installing a seamed metal roof is a bit more complicated, it can be done by a sophisticated do-it-yourselfer if it's a pretty straightforward job. A lot of the craftsmanship that is used to go into this type of installation has been replaced by machinery.

The Ponder: This rambling ranch has an unusual design that provides for special entertainment areas and lots of privacy. There is also an extensive deck area for outdoor living. See plan below..

Ponder designed for relaxing

The 2482-square-foot Ponder exhibits an unusual floor design that caters to those needing a proportionate amount of relaxation when the work day is done. If you like to have a good time entertaining family and friends, give the Ponder a good look.

Set up the VCR or projector and there is plenty of room here for the whole gang to enjoy an evening of entertainment.

After the show, move over to the dining room, where the built-in buffet is waiting to appease the biggest appetites.

Following the trip through the buffet line, step through the sliding glass door and spend a relaxing hour in the Jacuzzi, or find a soft chair in the living room and take a little rest.

The well-appointed master suite, isolated for privacy, features a large skylit sleeping area, access to the patio, a huge walk-in closet and bathroom with separate toilets and basins.

Immediately next to the master suite is a home office. Install a computer and monitor the household accounts, or finish up weekend work that you brought home.

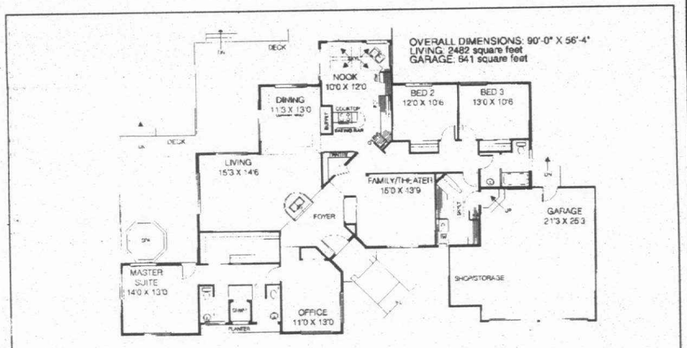

The secondary bedrooms, on the opposite side of the house, are ideal for older children or can serve as accommodations for overnight visitors. A full bathroom is located in the hallway.

The walk-in kitchen, with a skylit breakfast nook extension, provides a bright atmosphere for casual meals. Other kitchen features include garden windows, pantry and double ovens.

Placed conveniently by the garage is a substantial utility room. There is a built-in ironing board and sink in addition to a wall skylight. Soiled clothes can be dropped offer here before entering the house.

The two-car garage has an area set aside for a shop and extra storage. The hobbyist in the family can set up a full complement of tools and work without disturbing the rest of the household.

For a study kit of the Ponder (335-240) send $10 to Landmark Designs, P.O. Box 2307-0E48, Eugene, OR 97402. (Be sure to specify plan name and number). For a collection of plan books featuring our most popular home plans, send $20 to Landmark, or call 1-800-562-1151.

Proper insulation improves resale value

(NAPS)—One of the easiest ways to make your house more comfortable and increase its resale value is often the one that's most overlooked.

Know what it is? Here's a hint. It's the most preferred insulation on the market today.

It's fiber glass and contractors say it offers a wealth of energy efficient benefits. Whether you're remodeling a family area or building an addition, insulation can be the most important ingredient in making that room more comfortable. There's also a payback as it is relatively inexpensive and will improve your home's energy efficiency.

Maintaining proper insulation can also make your home more attractive to potential buyers. In fact, most buyers list energy-efficiency as a prime consideration. The reason?

When adding insulation, it's important to look at the attic, sidewalls and the crawlspaces in your floor or garage.

Here are a few suggestions:

- First, use a ruler in your attic to measure the amount of insulation currently installed.
- To check sidewalls press your hand on the wall. If it feels cold in the winter and hot in the summer, it may need more insulation.
- Check under the floors and in unheated spaces. Finally, whether you are doing the work yourself or through a contractor, it pays to familiarize yourself with all the recommended R-values for your region and insulate accordingly.

Copper plumbing designed to last for years

(NAPS)—Homeowners with copper plumbing correctly believe their piping is the one thing they never have to think about. Why? Because except for highly unusual circumstances — copper simply lasts for scores of years.

Before you make a hasty decision based on what appears to be a lower installation fee, ask the following questions before you buy, build or remodel your own house.

■ Does your plumbing material have long-term, proven performance?

■ Can harmful substances penetrate its walls?

■ Are the joints reliable? Will they withstand rapid pressure and temperature changes?

■ Will it perform equally well in hot and cold weather? Is it easily thawed, if necessary?

■ Does it resist punctures and abrasion and not embrittle with age?

■ Can it inhibit the breeding of germs?

■ Does it burn, or give off smoke or toxic fumes when exposed to fire?

■ Does it have a low lifetime cost, with virtually no maintenance?

■ Are other homeowners confident about it; will it increase the home's investment and resale value?

■ Does it have widespread approval of building inspectors and engineers?

■ Does it have inherent quality and value, or is it false economy?

Copper is the only plumbing material that can answer "yes" to all these questions. It is used in more than 85 percent of all U.S. homes. With its dependable lead-free solder connections, it requires no maintenance, because joint fittings don't break down or pull apart. Copper meets, or exceeds, building codes in all 50 states. It's governed by strict, long established standards and is permanently identified for home inspectors. It's a natural, environmentally friendly material, not a synthetic.

Plumbers know how to install and test it — year-round, through a wide range of temperatures. Since copper is rigid, it doesn't sag over long runs and requires few supports. It can handle extreme conditions; it will withstand more than 1,000 pounds of pressure, even though normal system pressure is about 50-80 pounds per square inch. And it can endure repeated freeze-thaw cycles...although, of course, no plumbing should be allowed to freeze.

For today's health conscious consumer, copper is almost the perfect material. It is impermeable and biostatic—contaminants cannot penetrate it, and it actually inhibits the growth of harmful bacteria.

Finally, the cost for copper quality and reliability is surprisingly low. An all-copper plumbing system costs about the same as other, less reliable materials. Any, usually minor, higher cost will be quickly eliminated when you find you don't have to keep calling the plumber to repair it. Moreover, and perhaps even more importantly, your local realtor will confirm that all copper systems add value when it comes time to sell your home.

In a study conducted for the Copper Development Association, the overwhelming majority of residential plumbing contractors throughout the country said they prefer copper. Nine out of ten said they have it in their own homes.

To learn more about copper, call the Copper Development Association at (800) 741-6823. And visit http://piping.copper.org.

Staple gun handy for a variety of home repairs

BY READER'S DIGEST BOOKS FOR AP SPECIAL FEATURES

Safety First

Because it fires staples that can cause severe injuries, handle and store a staple gun with care. Keep the staple gun's handle locked with the safety catch when it's not in use. Never point a staple gun or fire one at anyone or anything other than the work at hand. And _ very important _ keep a staple gun out of the reach of children.

Types of Staple Guns

A hand staple gun drives staples into types of material, usually wood, with a squeeze of the handle. Available in lightweight or heavy-duty models, look for a gun that loads and operates easily. Some heavy-duty models have a variable power button that adjusts firing strength to requirements of the job, to accommodate staples of different sizes, and to reduce recoil and jamming. For heavy, time-consuming jobs, such as installing insulation or carpeting, consider renting an electric staple gun.

Staple Gun Use

A staple gun is easy to use. Grasp the handle and place the gun firmly against the material to be stapled. Disengage the safety lock and release your grip so the handle springs up. Then squeeze the handle down sharply to fire the staple. If possible, to eliminate recoil and increase firing strength, press down the head of the gun with the heel of your free hand.

Use a lightweight staple gun to replace or repair screening. To repair a screen that has pulled out its wood frame, staple the screen to the frame, folding a hem as you go. Double over the screen to make the fastening stronger and avoid unraveling. Another tip for stapling a screen mesh: place the staples at an angle to the mesh. The staple then has more material to grip and is more secure. Similarly, set staples going through fabric so that they are at an angle to the weave.

A staple gun can also be used to install insulation. Hold the insulation in place with one hand while firing the staple gun with the other.

Staple Removal

Some fastening jobs, such as stapling plastic sheets over a window, are meant to be temporary. Here's a way to make staple removal hassle-free:

Slip a heavy-duty rubber band around the head of the staple gun. The rubber band acts as a spacer, leaving the staples sticking up slightly so that they are easy to take out. To remove staples, use either a pincer-type office staple remover or the lever type that looks like a can opener, which often comes with a staple gun kit. You can also use the rubber band trick to keep staples from cutting through very thin materials.

Wiring, Hammer Tacker

There are two other specialized tools that drive staples.

A quick, neat way to run phone and stereo wire is to staple it in place with a wiring tacker. It shoots staples that bridge the wire without damaging it. Many staple guns come with an attachment that turns them into a wiring tacker.

There's also a hammer tacker, which is handy if you are doing construction jobs that don't require great accuracy of placement, such as attaching roofing felt. To set a staple, you just swing the tacker and strike the surface with the tacker head as if you were using a hammer. The tacker makes it easier to work overhead and is kinder to arm muscles and hands.

Library gateway to AIDS info

EMORY DANIELS

O&E ONLINE

An agency in the region has a special program to assist Michigan residents in learning to use Internet to tap the wealth of information available on AIDS and HIV.

The Detroit Community AIDS Library (DCAL) is working with Michigan State University's AIDS Education Project in East Lansing to accomplish this goal.

DCAL is a partnership of libraries and community-based organizations in Detroit formed to provide resources and outreach to HIV/AIDS affected persons. DCAL's home page on the World Wide Web, billed as the "Gateway to HIV/AIDS Information for Detroit and Southeastern Michigan," can be accessed at http://www.libraries.wayne.edu/dcal/aids.html.

The Website provides local news and announcements, information on public hearings, listings of national, Michigan and metro Detroit hotlines/helplines, a subject index to organizations, descriptions of organizations and support groups, a link to Local Libraries Resources (LUIS), and a link to HIV/AIDS Resources on the Internet arranged by subject and alphabetically, including a link to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention home page.

The Michigan statistics on HIV/AIDS are available online from the DCAL site. This is the complete quarterly report from the Surveillance Section of the Michigan Department of Community Health (formerly Michigan Department of Public Health). Also many of the community public libraries provide access to the Website from their home pages or will assist with locating HIV information using the DCAL site.

Michele Klein, medical librarian at Children's Hospital, saw a need to provide access to information for people affected by HIV and AIDS and came up with the idea of using medical libraries in collaboration with community-based organizations that serve persons with HIV or AIDS.

DCAL has made available resources from the Internet, AIDS databases from the National Library of Medicine, the Health Reference Center database, and catalogs of books, pamphlets, videos and journals.

One of the services offered is Internet access to Medline which includes databases on AIDS literature, drugs and clinical trials. Access to Medline requires a user ID. Additional software, called Grateful Med, also is recommended. The software can be ordered for $30 or downloaded from an Internet Website. For information, call 800-638-8480.

DCAL's efforts are funded, in part, by an 18-month grant from the National Library of Medicine and in-kind donations from Children's Hospital and Shiffman Medial Library at Wayne State University.

Staff at the seven library and community organization sites in Detroit have been trained by DCAL in cultural competency, human sexuality, and social diversity. Each of the seven sites has a personal computer with monitor and printer, attached by modem to the National Library of Medicine AIDS databases and other HIV-related information files.

The library sites are at Children's Hospital of Michigan, Detroit Public Library, Harper Hospital, and WSU's Shiffman and the community organizations are Friends Alliance Project Survival, and Community Health Awareness Group.

The DCAL home page was created in January 1995. E-mail inquiries may be sent to Linda Draper, the project's librarian coordinator, at LDRAPER@SHIFFMAN.MED.WAYNE.EDU, by snail mail to Detroit Community AIDS Library, 4325 Brush St., Detroit, Mich. 48201 or by phone at (313) 577-8943.

Grace & Wild Digital Studios in Farmington Hills has added new staff members.

Carl Scott of Livonia has joined the teleproduction facility as graphics manager and facilitator. He has 11 years of experience in graphics and animation, including positions as animation director at Orbis Broadcast Group and The Film & Tape Works in Chicago. His responsibilities at Grace & Wild include coordinating projects that combine graphics with post production services and assisting in preparing project budgets for graphics and animation projects. He is a graduate of Heritage University's teleproduction program.

Shelley Wanshon of Canton Township has joined Grace & Wild as a billing clerk. She comes to the company from NBD Bank, where she served as a teller. In her new position, Wanshon prepares invoices and handles accounting duties.

Jeffrey Sielaff of Canton Township has joined Grace & Wild as a courier. Sielaff's responsibilities will include pick-up and delivery of film and video materials, as well as general assistance in Grace & Wild's shipping department. Sielaff is a recent graduate of the Specs Howard School of Broadcast Arts.

John Matthews of Plymouth has been selected as the director of retail marketing for Clark Refining & Marketing Inc.

Matthews will be responsible for all retail marketing and promotional activities for Clark's 825 gasoline and On The Go convenience stores. He will be based at Clark's Retail Business Center in Glen Ellyn, Ill.

"John Matthews will be a great asset to the Clark marketing team here in Chicago," said John Hanner, vice president of operations. "His experience in executing successful marketing programs and promotions in the restaurant industry will be invaluable to Clark as we continue to expand our business and further develop our On The Go concept."

Matthews most recently served as national marketing director with Detroit-based Little Caesars Pizza, where he was responsible for all marketing activities for 850 restaurants nationwide.

Clark's Retail Business Center, which is responsible for the retail operations of more than 820 gasoline and On The Go convenience stores throughout the Midwest and Gulf Coast, is in Glen Ellyn, Ill. Clark also owns and operates two Illinois refineries, a Texas refinery and 16 distribution terminals.

Gach

Steven J. Gach has joined the hydrogeological team of Toltest Inc. in Plymouth as an engineer.

Gach is a certified underground storage tank professional and has eight years of experience in environmental assessment, engineering, consultation and project management.

Brugman

Kathryn M. Brugman has jointed the air quality team at Toltest Inc. in Plymouth as an environmental engineer.

Brugman has three years of experience in environmental consulting and specializes in assisting industrial and governmental clients to comply with requirements of the clean air act.

Toltest has provided consulting engineering services since 1927.

J. Michael Washburn, superintendent of Forest Hills Public Schools, recently was named 1996 "Superintendent of the Year" by the Michigan Association of School Administrators.

Washburn is a former superintendent of Garden City Public Schools and a former teacher, principal and associate superintendent of Wayne-Westland Public Schools.

Washburn holds bachelor's, master's, and specialist's degrees from Eastern Michigan University. He received a doctorate from Wayne State University and has completed post-doctoral work at the University of Colorado and the University of Northern Colorado.

The association cited Washburn for leadership, support of more equitable financing of schools, involvement of community members in Forest Hill schools and the educational program in Forest Hills.

Susan Martinico has joined the Amerisure Companies as human resource manager at Farmington Hills. She is responsible for overseeing staffing activities for the claims and policyholder services departments.

Martinico has 19 years of experience with St. Paul Fire & Marine Insurance Company where she served as human resource representative.

The Amerisure Companies include Michigan Mutual Insurance Company, Amerisure Inc. and Amerisure Insurance Company. All the companies have headquarters in Southfield.

Sigworth

Sigworth, whose former title was director of grants and institutional research, came to Schoolcraft in 1985 after working at Wayne State University and Washtenaw Community College. As Schoolcraft's chief statistician, she and her staff are responsible for compiling data for state and federal reporting, for the Michigan Department of Education program evaluation, for new program development and future planning and for faculty program research.

She also is responsible for processing and implementing state, federal and private grants, and teaches a business statistics class. Sigworth earned a bachelor's degree at Eastern Michigan University and a master's in education from the University of Michigan.

Expo gives small businesses exposure

BY BETH SUNDRLA JACHMAN
STAFF WRITER

Things got down to business as small business people from all over the Metro area gathered last week to display their wares or services in Livonia.

A Business-to-Business Expo was held at Burton Manor in Livonia, sponsored by the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce. More than 120 businesses manned expo booths all day June 13, with special workshops, a lunch and a reception.

Susan Dillon, president of Graphic Visions Inc. of Plymouth, was having a busy day showing off the products Graphic Visions offers. "The nice thing about this one (expo) is that it is business oriented," she said.

A firm with 10 employees, and in business for 8 years, Graphic Visions offers design and printing of graphics and logos on items such as business cards, signs, and brochures.

At the expo, the booth had examples of the company's work, which Dillon pointed out is all done in-house.

At the NBD Bank booth, expo visitors could put their business card in a box and, if their card was drawn, they won the chance to grab as much money as they could in 30 seconds in a glass booth.

The money booth is always popular, P.J. Green, a branch manager at NBD Bank in Detroit, said. While the bank was showcasing its small business services, the booth was attracting interest from passersby.

Ralph Santarpia, an account executive at Brown and Bigelow Remembrance Advertising in Ann Arbor, showed off a variety of items businesses could use to promote themselves.

With items like mugs, bottles, calendars, T-shirts, pens and backpacks printed with the business's name, businesses can give customers a gift and send an advertising message, he said.

"You take something functional and put a name on it," he said.

At the Credit Reporting Information Services booth, Ron Thierry was winning over many of his fellow exhibitors who are in the position of hiring employees. The company does background and credit checks on potential employees.

After giving out a folder explaining the Livonia company's services, Thierry, vice president of information services, said it is unfortunate, but the company's services have become necessary.

He said the response to the booth had been terrific, adding it's "the right product, or service I should say, at the right time."

Livonia's New Horizons Computer Learning Center was also in the right place at the right time as it gave out information on the company's computer class offerings. Account executive Peggy O'Keefe manned the booth and said a seminar on Microsoft and the Internet at the expo had generated a lot of interest.

Business people can use the directories for sales leads because it contains detailed information about companies with contact names, so it ends "cold calling" she said.

Joanne Potter, owner of Aunt Clara's Cookie Cupboard in Plymouth, was a visitor at the expo. She found the booths interesting, although she had just begun looking at them. "You see what different companies are doing. You try to keep up," she said.

■ DEALER OF EXCELLENCE
Yale Materials Handling-Michigan Inc. of Livonia, a fork-lift truck dealership representing Yale Materials Handling Corp., has been honored with the Yale Dealer of Excellence Award. The award is the highest honor in the Challenge of Excellence program the Yale annual dealer recognition program which recognizes superior performance in sales and business management. Yale Materials Handling-Michigan was one of eight Yale lift truck dealers out of 48 nationwide to be named a dealer of excellence.

■ NATIONAL ATTENTION
Madonna University's on-site baccalaureate program at Rouge Steel in Livonia was the subject of a workshop at the national conference on workplace learning held in Milwaukee, Wis., this spring. Three Rouge Steel students, Tom Smith, Ken Diegle and Pamela Smith, along with Madonna's Rouge Steel coordinator Marty Keck, adjunct professor JoAnne Isbey and two UAW Local 600 representatives presented a workshop titled "Implementing Worker-Centered Learning: See How UAW Local 600 and Madonna University Do It." "There has been a great amount of interest in workplace learning," Keck said. "Our students at Rouge Steel are smart, ambitious and want to learn. Many of them are planning second careers in areas such as social work, teaching and clinical psychology." The program began in 1993 with a few students and has grown to 30 workers.

■ INTERNET ADDRESS
Dearborn Federal Credit Union, which has opened a branch at Newburgh and Seven Mile in Livonia, has established a home page and an E-mail address on the Internet. The home page address is http://www.dfcu.org/dfcu and the E-mail address is dfcu@aol.com. Dearborn Federal Credit Union has assets of more than $900 million and serves more than 160,000 members worldwide. Membership is open to employees and families of any Ford Motor Company or subsidiary unit in the United States that is not served by another Ford employee credit union. Employees of Henry Ford Health System, members of Greenfield Village, tenants of Ford Motor Land Development Corp. and selected employee groups are also eligible to join.

■ COMPANY RECOGNIZED
ZenaComp Inc. of Livonia has been recognized as number 20 in the Michigan Private 100. ZenaComp's compounded annual growth rate since 1991 is 51.9 percent. The company has more than 50 employees. The U.S. Small Business Administration sponsored a dinner at the Amway Grand Hotel in Grand Rapids to honor the Michigan Private 100 winners. Mark Lichtman is ZenaComp's founder and owner. The company specializes in mainframe conversions with database connectivity, Internet services, and database warehousing.

■ CUSTOMER SERVICE
The Detroit district of the U.S. Postal Service has received a mail delivery rating above the national average. "Providing customer service is our number one goal," Carl T. January, Detroit District manager of the U.S. Postal Service, said. "Our mission for first class mail is on time, every time, every piece, every day." Mail delivery is rated by how fast a first class letter is received. The Postal Service is also offering a "We Care" program, in which mail received after the carriers have left their stations is delivered. This mail will be marked with a yellow smiley face sticker.

■ CELLULAR SPECIAL
Buy a Pick-Up & Go cellular phone between now and July 6 and Ameritech will donate $3 to Special Olympics. "Our goal is to generate more than $30,000 in donations for the Special Olympics," said Deborah J. Ravetta, Ameritech Cellular vice president/regional market manager. "In addition, we've already pledged $290,000 to the organization as a statewide sponsor of the Law Enforcement Torch Run this summer." Ameritech is also offering new cellular subscribers free weekend calling for the rest of 1996, free long distance for the rest of 1996 and a free Motorola portable phone. Certain restrictions apply.

■ QUALITY AWARD
Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Angileri of Livonia have established the Angileri Quality Award to encourage quality achievements in the automotive industry and to recognize the value of the master's degree in quality and operations management at Madonna University in Livonia. The award will be available to a Madonna University student pursuing a master's degree in quality and operations management or the certificate program leading to a master's degree in quality and operations management. Frank Angileri is president of Quality Concepts and Strategies Inc. in Livonia, a consulting firm. He is retired from Ford Motor Company, where he worked in quality control for 34 years as a senior quality engineer." I hope to make a small contribution to the enhancement of quality through this award," Angileri said. The first award will be $2,000. A second award of $3,000 will be given to an applicant in the second graduating class. An endowed and unendowed scholarship fund was established to administer the Angileri Quality Award. The Ford Motor Company Fund will match the gifts.

■ AWARD WINNER
McNeely & Lincoln Associates Inc., a Livonia civil engineering and land surveying company, won first and second place in the boundary/cadastral maps category of the Bethesda-Md. based National Society of Professional Surveyors' 1996 ACSM/NSPS Map/Plat Design Competition.

■ WAIT AND SEE
Ameritech customers in the Detroit area can see name and number information on call waiting calls. "Wait & See" became available earlier this month. "With Wait & See, customers can decide whether or not to interrupt their conversation to take another call," said Linda Alperin, director of marketing for Ameritech Consumer Services. Customers will need special equipment – a display unit or telephone – that's compatible with the service. The special equipment is available from Ameritech. There is no additional charge, but customers must have caller ID or call waiting and call Ameritech to subscribe to the new service.

■ SCHOOLS HONORED
GMI Engineering & Management Institute has honored high schools for "actively supporting their students by preparing them for the rigors of higher education" and two local high schools were honored. Plymouth Salem High School in Canton Township and Detroit Catholic Central High School in Redford Township were honored as top feeder schools to the college. GMI is an independent college of engineering, science, and management in Flint. The college offers a cooperative educational program with all students alternating between classroom work and on-the-job sessions with one of nearly 600 employers throughout North America.

■ COMPUTER TRAINING
New Horizons Computer Learning Center of Michigan has announced that the company's systemwide revenues for the first quarter of 1996 were $41 million. New Horizons has a center in Livonia. The company offers training in software and network applications. New Horizons achieved $103 million in revenues in 1995. "Our success is a result of our being flexible and able to quickly adapt to fast changing technology and the needs of our customers," said Mark McManus Jr., president of New Horizons Michigan. "Customer demands have been the catalyst to help us provide the best service possible to our clients."

■ PENTASTAR AWARD
Plymouth-based Freudenberg-NOK's Cleveland, Ga., and LaGrange, Ga., seal manufacturing facilities have each recently received Chrysler Corporation's Gold Pentastar Award. The Cleveland production facility received the Gold Pentastar Award for excellence in quality, warranty and delivery of its valve stem seals used in several Chrysler engines. The LaGrange facility, which manufactures automotive seals, was also presented with Chrysler's gold Pentastar Award for excellence in quality, warranty and delivery of oil seals. The Chrysler Gold Pentastar Award – initially called the Pentastar when established in 1985 – recognizes supplier manufacturing plants which have met or exceeded Chrysler's standards in quality, delivery and warranty of its products. Freudenberg-NOK is a general partnership created in 1989 which operates 15 facilities in North American and is part of a global network formed between parent companies Freudenberg & Company of Germany and NOK Corporation of Japan.

■ CHOSEN BY SEMCOG
The Southeast Michigan Council of Governments has chosen C.M. Althoff Company and the Michigan Municipal Risk Management Authority as its representatives for property and liability coverages. Workers' Compensation coverage has been place with the Accident Fund Company. SEMCOG is a voluntary association of governmental units in Livingston, Macomb, Monroe, Oakland, St. Clair, Washtenaw and Wayne counties that fosters intergovernmental cooperation by providing a public forum in which local elected officials may coordinate planning and decision making issues which cross jurisdictional boundaries. C.M. Althoff Company is a risk management and insurance firm located in Royal Oak.

■ HIRING PACE
A pleasant employment climate is forecast for the Detroit area this summer, based on company responses to Manpower Inc.'s staffing survey released recently for the third quarter. "For July, August and September, 31 percent of participants in the Employment Outlook Survey foresee more workers on their payrolls while 5 percent predict a reduction in personnel. Another 54 percent expect current workforce levels to prevail and 10 percent haven't finalized their plans," Jeanne Heller of Manpower said. Hiring projects for the third quarter can be among the strongest of the year, Heller said. "Here in Detroit, the outlook was not as strong last quarter, when additional employees were budgeted by 23 percent of respondents and 3 percent expected to cut back. Last summer's results showed 33 percent intending to increase and 3 percent saying decreases were planned."

Flowering trees help brighten your yard

MARTY FIGLEY

As our landscapes mature, they become more shady and the consideration of new plantings changes. Then, too, narrow lots with houses or buildings nearby are often shady areas that require plants that perform well there.

Consider trees. There are several small flowering trees that are ideal for these situations and add a note of brightness. Now, I'm not talking about heavy shade, but light shade, perhaps under tall trees. By the way, it's good practice to remove some of the lower branches on tall trees to allow enough light to reach the shorter ones.

Often these "second story" trees are found naturally near the edge of a woods. Some of them to consider are Serviceberry, Redbud, Flowering Dogwood and Mountain Ash.

There are several species and cultivars of each and before you make your selection, visit local nurseries and/or learn about them from a book. "Landscaping With Native Trees," Guy Sternberg and Jim Wilson (Chapters), is an excellent one. It includes a list of mail-order sources, several in Michigan.

The folks at Ray Wiegand's Nursery, Macomb, (800) 955-3658; Alexander & Associates, Washington, (810) 286-1500; or Bordine Nursery Ltd., Rochester Hills, (810) 651-9000, or Clarkston, (810) 625-9100; may be able to help.

Varieties

Downy Serviceberry, Amelanchier arborea, and smooth serviceberry, A. laevis, are the most tree-like of the group. Others are more shrub-like.

Serviceberries bloom in the early spring with white, airy blossoms. In the summer they produce a sweet berry that birds love — so do people if they can beat the birds to them. The leaves turn color in the fall and winter interest is provided by the smooth, gray bark.

Redbuds, Cercis canadensis, remain relatively small, which makes them ideal in many gardens. The rose-pink blossoms in early spring are followed by heart-shaped leaves, which turn green after a brief flush of a reddish hue. You may be able to find a white-flowered redbud, Cercis canadensis var. alba, which would be a conversation piece.

MARTY FIGLEY

In the winter, seed pods cling to the arching branches of these trees and add interest to the landscape.

Flowering Dogwood, Cornus florida, is probably the most popular of the flowering trees in our zone 5. It is difficult to choose from the many dogwoods available; some with white blossoms, others with pink or salmon. It is fascinating to watch the changes of the flowers during the period they are opening to their ultimate size.

Clusters of bright red fruit enhance the rich red foliage in the fall and the winter scene is improved by the tree's silhouette. Little, softly pointed flower buds also add interest then.

Cruise invitation

On a personal note: I encourage you to join me on a "Gardens of the River Cruise" aboard the Mississippi Queen steamboat, April 13-20, 1997. Jim Wilson, host of PBS-TV's "The Victory Garden," and Todd Steadman, editor of Garden Gate magazine, will lead talks and tours during this spring trip.

We will sail from New Orleans and visit fabulous Southern gardens and antebellum plantations in Oak Alley, Baton Rouge, Natchez, Vicksburg, Helena and Memphis. On board, we will enjoy entertainment and scrumptious food in a most relaxing atmosphere.

Early April is an ideal time to leave this Northern weather and go South! Free air transportation if you book by Tuesday, Aug. 13. For additional information, call Chuck Randolph Travel & Tours at (810) 645-5050, or me at (810) 644-2178.

Marty Figley is an advanced master gardener based in Birmingham. You can leave her a message by dialing (313) 953-2047 on a touch-tone phone, then her mailbox number, 1859. Her fax number is (810) 644-1314.

APPLIANCE DOCTOR

Watch the attitude, it could cost you

JOE GAGNON

When I call for service on whatever, I always make a point of paying attention to the attitude displayed by the person answering the telephone. Whenever I have received a negative feeling I simply have called someone else. Now let me reverse my position and place myself at work receiving a call from a consumer who is rude to me. Let me give you my thoughts as to what I'd like to do to this kind of customer.

I repeat – what I'd like to do, not what I actually do. This kind of column or speech is not wise to do in some cases, ex: smoke but don't inhale, look but never touched etc. etc. etc.

Caller: I'd like service and I want a senior citizen discount because I'm over 65.

Brain: Let's see now, doesn't this customer realize that we do service as honest as can be and never rip anybody off. The total price is going to be lower than anyone else would charge and he has the nerve to ask for a discount. Why don't I just add the cost of the discount to the price of the part, that way they'll never know the difference.

In actuality: It is done by many in the industry, so it is wiser for the consumer to know this before they demand or expect a senior citizen discount. The Appliance Repair Act would make you aware if this was done to you.

Caller: I called and set up a service call for this afternoon and the guy's not here yet. It's 3:30 p.m. and I just got a call to play golf at 4. Set it up for tomorrow, I should be here.

Brain: Gosh darn it, I had three people call wanting service today and I had to tell them we were booked, and they should call someone else. Now, not only did I lose the income from one of those three callers, I lost the money from this guy who canceled. That's OK, tomorrow when we do go out to his house, we'll make up the loss in the overcharging of a part, or maybe fix something that isn't broke. We'll get him.

In actuality: It is done by many in the industry, so it is wiser for the consumer to know this before they cancel the call for some frivolous reason. It might be smarter to call another service company for service the next day. The Appliance Repair Act would make you aware if this was done to you.

Caller: Yeh, my washer's broke, can you come out and fix the #@&(* thing. You ask what, look, if I knew what was wrong with it, do you think I'd be calling you. I have to have a guy here at 5 p.m. tomorrow and he's got to be out of the house by 5:30. Can you do it.

Joe: Sir, that's a commitment I can't promise and I'd just as soon have you call someone else.

Brain: Give him a telephone number for one of the well known rip off companies in town and let nature take its course.

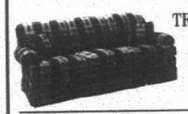

In actuality: It is done by many in the industry, so it is wiser for the consumer not to make demands that are unreasonable or to swear to the call taker. The Appliance Repair Act would make you aware if this was done to you.

The point of this column is to make you aware that some regulations are needed in this industry very badly. You the consumer are at the mercy of any service technician who walks into your home to fix a major home appliance. To be rude to anyone who has the power over your wallet or purse in terms of repairs is not a wise decision. Be polite and answer the questions asked by the call taker and trust that you have selected one of the good honest service companies that exist out there. The Appliance Repair Act might make them all good honest companies. I sure hope so.

Joe Gagnon, the Appliance Doctor, will answer your questions about maintaining and repairing large appliances. Gagnon is president of Carmack Appliances in Garden City and does a weekly radio program on WJR-AM. He is author of "First Aid from the Appliance Doctor," available at area bookstores.

INVITING IDEAS

Backpack in style to enjoy happy trails

RUTH MOSSOK JOHNSTON

The kids are out of school, the weather is finally beautiful, and we have some vacation time coming up – what to do with these components? Plan a hike – go for a nature walk, "smell the roses," or at least seize the opportunity to see the roses.

Ten years of going to camp has left its imprint on me. I love the outdoors, the smell, sounds, and beauty of what surrounds me. I'm fortunate that my house is fairly secluded with woods and wildflowers – but I don't stop there – I enjoy a quiet day out on the nature trails or visiting my dear friend Betty-Lee in Indiana. She has 80 untouched serene acres. If the weather doesn't cooperate, I take out the movie "Indian Summer," get out a box of Kleenex, and call a few old Camp Petosega friends who I still keep in touch with.

The days of having to eat jerky while camping or hiking are long gone – sure you can still bring some jerky along, but with the thermal and insulated containers available, it's no longer your only option.

As always, my foremost concern is food safety – keep cold things cold! Plan to bring along finger foods and easily handled edibles – food that don't require utensils. Take plastic, resealable bags for leftovers and discards. Make sure backpacks are durable and lined – if you're borrowing your child's school backpack, clean it out and line it with a plastic bag (the kind they pack your groceries in at the store are ideal). Water bottles now come with shoulder straps, perfect for long walks. Bring along prepackaged wet towels for hands – baby wipes do the trick. Backpacks can be filled with elegant edibles or simple camp-type foods.

■ Vegetable chips (you can purchase these at gourmet food shops and upscale groceries). If you get really ambitious, you can make home-made vegetable chips and deep fry or bake.

■ Pickle spears – homemade or store bought. Slice and drain pickles, wrap tightly in a moist paper towel, and then in plastic wrap.

■ Sandwiches made with bread slices, lavash (paper thin bread for rollups) or biscuits (the cracker type). Make sure filling is something that does not spoil easily. Peanut butter on Quaker Caramel Corn – fat-free corn cakes – is delicious!

■ Jerky or dried meats – the gametype are fun – Butcher Boy Meat Products in Warren (810) 779-0600 even has Alligator Chew in what appears to be a tobacco tin.

■ Nuts and dried fruits – or a combination – make your own trail mix with your favorite nuts and dried fruits. Try using dried blueberries, cranberries and cherries, not just the common ones like figs, apricots and raisins.

These snack straws are easy to make and quite tasty – make them as spicy as you choose – wrap them carefully, they are delicate. These are quick to prepare, but they do need overnight refrigeration – allow enough time for preparation. It's easiest to make them in a food processor.

SPICY CHEESE STRAWS

1 pound extra sharp Cheddar cheese
1 3/4 cups all purpose flour
3/4 cup butter or margarine
Cayenne pepper to taste
Curry powder to taste

Grate cheese in a food processor or with a cheese grater. In the bowl of a food processor fitted with the steel blade, add the flour, cheese and butter – process slightly, add a pinch of cayenne and curry (desired amount). If you have a small food processor, do this in two separate batches. Process the dough until it looks like dough and is well mixed.

Remove the dough and chill covered or wrapped in plastic overnight. When you remove it from the refrigerator the next day – divide the dough into four sections.

Soften enough to be able to roll – roll out the dough between two sheets of waxed paper to about 1/4-inch thickness. Using a small sharp knife, cut the dough into narrow strips approximately 3 inches long.

Place the dough strips on an ungreased baking sheet – bake at 400 degrees F. until the cheese straws are slightly browned – cooking time should be 8 to 10 minutes. Do not overcook! Cool and serve – or pack up for your trek. Yield: approximately 100 pieces

Greenmead garden walk set June 29

Delight your senses on a journey through the magical gardens of seven Livonia homes 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, June 29, as Friends of Greenmead present their seventh annual Garden Walk.

Admission for the walk is by ticket only. Cost is $7 in advance, $8 at the door. Tickets are available at Greenmead (Newburgh and Eight Mile in Livonia), the Community Resources Division at Livonia City Hall, any Livonia library and Jacobson's in Laurel Park.

Lush gardens, thoughtful landscaping, the trickle of water from a fountain, the jumping of multi-colored fish in ponds, a tranquil waterfall, and beds of Myrtle, Ajuga, fern and cool hosta create a tapestry of sound and texture for the garden viewer.

Annuals and perennials in brilliant blooms of pink, yellow, orange, blue-violet and scarlet will accent inlaid patios, stylish rock gardens, brick walkways, stone paths, magnificent decks, a Victorian gazebo and a secluded footbridge. "Natural" delights include various wildlife, families of butterflies, birds, fish, herons and ducks in each of the garden settings.

If you're looking for some creative landscape ideas you won't want to miss this popular event. Proceeds will go to the restoration and preservation of Greenmead Historical Park in Livonia.

Bonsai show celebrates variety

BY MARTY FIGLEY
SPECIAL WRITER

He has been president twice of the Four Seasons Bonsai Club of Michigan and will be in attendance during its 23rd annual show, which will again be at the Washington Square Building, Washington and Fourth, Royal Oak. Show times are 12:30-9 p.m. Friday, June 21, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday, June 22, and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, June 23.

Hanna and Vance Woods of Roseville, another club member, were invited to show their specimens at the Japanese Cultural Club Exchange with the city of Detroit on Belle Isle in early May. During that event, the Japanese consulate introduced them to Kahn Itoh, general manager of Itochu International, who will judge this upcoming show.

Hanna has been growing bonsai for 25 years and grows a variety of plants. Most of them are outside all year; some of them are deciduous, others are evergreen. And, as he says, "I've got 'em everywhere."

"Of all my plants I probably do have a favorite," Hanna said.

When his son was born he dug an Ulmus carissafolia in Bartlesville, Okla., and has won awards with it. It will be in the show in Royal Oak. Hanna recalls the ages of some of his plants using his children's ages as a guide.

An Acer palmatum "Bloodgood" caught my eye with its dark red foliage. He raised it from a seedling and grew it in the ground for quite some time. Now it sits beautifully in a pot. The ultimate height will be 30 inches.

"Classic proportions are literally everything in bonsai — height to width to size of pot, that is, the size of the trunk in relation to the depth of the pot and the height of the tree.

"For example, if the depth of the pot is four inches, the trunk width should be four inches and the height of the plant six times higher than the depth of the pot, or 24 inches.

"With proper pruning the trees will fill in to make a more proportioned classic statement."

An 18-year-old Katsura grown from seed is a knockout. Hanna grows others from seed as well as finding plants in northern Michigan.

I asked him what was the most important thing necessary to grow these interesting plants. He said a high level of commitment, especially time. A person also needs to understand what keeps them alive.

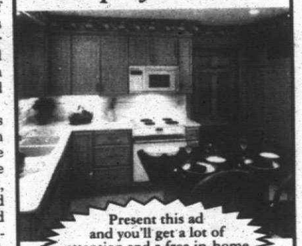

They need a lot of water and sunlight ("it's not that difficult"). Hanna waters the plants every day during the growing season, sometimes twice a day. He holds the small plant in a large container of water, just up to the edge of the pot, until the bubbles stop. This takes just a few seconds. The larger plants are watered with a special Japanese bonsai watering can with a fine hose spray. Rain water is collected for this important requirement.

Very porous soil, almost a non-soil, is used in the containers, some of which Hanna has designed and made. The mix consists of 1/3 each of very coarse chopped granite or sharp builders sand, or chicken grit (easiest to find), for good drainage, Turface (chopped and fired clay pellets), which helps retain moisture in raised beds, and fine pine bark or chopped Spaghnum peat or both, or shredded oak leaf mold (really good), which provides a source of organic matter. Conifers need less organic matter in the mix, but then need more fertilizer.

Hanna uses a slow-release fertilizer, a tri-organic pelleted product called "Bio-Gold" with a ratio of 5-6-3. It is scattered on the soil and when it is depleted he adds more.

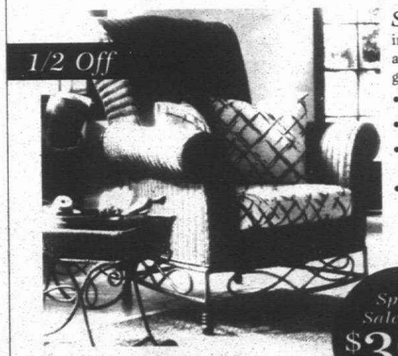

Demonstrations on styling, plant selection, soil mix, pruning, wiring, potting and more will take place 1, 3, 7 and 9 p.m. Friday; noon and 2, 6 and 8 p.m. Saturday; and 11 a.m. and 1, 2 and 4 p.m. Sunday. Best of Show judging will be 10 a.m. Saturday.

Hanna also teaches classes through the club as do other members.

COVER STORY

BY MARY KLEMIC
AT HOME EDITOR

Cupolas — those slender little towers on rooftops — are genteel beacons of history and romance.

And now they are signs of individual style as well.

Lawrence Zechmeister, owner of Zack's Workshoppe in St. Clair Shores, specializes in cupolas. He makes them by hand to fill custom orders, matching each cupola to the style of the structure to which it is attached and the client's ideas.

"(It's) a feeling of history on their own home," Zechmeister said.

"It just says something about the individual person."

Cupola roofs may be smooth, glistening copper, or consist of quaint wooden shingles. They may be topped with a choice of brass or copper vanes, including boats, carriages, ducks that seem to glide in for landings, chubby pigs, majestic eagles, elegant horses and stately whales.

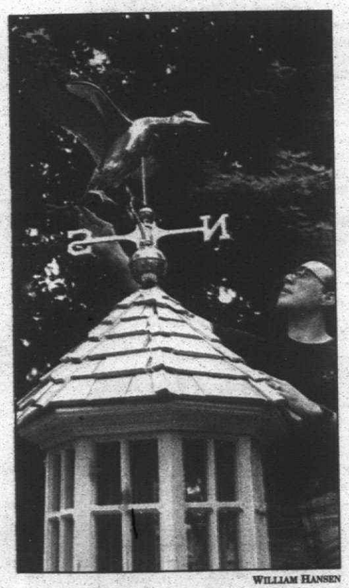

Lanterns activated by solar cels can be installed to coat the cupolas in a soft light at night. The structures are vented, and can be removed if a resident wants to transfer them to other houses or garages. Some cupolas are like little rooms and can be furnished.

A cupola can fit on any style house — ranch, Tudor, colonial, for example — of any age. It can be placed on a garage, a barn, a gazebo or a boathouse as well as on a residence.

"I've put them on $50,000 homes and million-dollar homes, and they never, never looked out of place."

Originally, a cupola was a small room, a form of a "widow's walk," where by tradition women could watch the harbor when they heard that ships were returning, and wait for their loved ones to come back from sea voyages. The structures also ventilated barns or houses.

Today homeowners have different reasons for wanting a cupola. The Finleys of Bloomfield Hills were looking for an anniversary gift.

WILLIAM HANSEN

Looking up: Zechmeister adjusts the vane on a cupola. The craftsman can match the shape and style of a cupola to any structure.

"Every year we always buy something for the house," Genevieve Finley said. "We decided to support an artisan (last year)."

The couple decided to replace a 40-year-old cupola on their garage. Zechmeister made them an octagonal cupola with cedar shingles. It is blue with white stars and is lit at night.

"People love it," Mrs. Finley said. "We had an open house New Year's, and eight people took his (Zechmeister's) card."

"I've always wanted one," said Kathleen Switalski of Northville, whose carriage house bears a cupola by Zechmeister with a "country doctor" vane. "These were the first I've ever seen in my life that I liked. They're just stunning ... I just love it."

Zechmeister is proud of the fact that rather than being mass produced, each of his cupolas is made by hand, a personalized approach that went into the original construction of many antiques.

"It's a real individual piece," he said. "No two cupolas I do will be the same."

The craftsman has handled some unusual requests, such as making cupolas for two 92-feet tall silos that were remodeled and converted into rooms. A person in the cupola can see geese fly by at eye level.

Cupola sizes vary, from about five feet to 14 feet across. The pine base octagon measuring 24 inches takes about 10 days to build; the cedar cupola takes longer.

Prices, which include the vane, delivery and installation, range from about $800 to $2,800; most are $1,500 to $2,000.

Zechmeister got started in the cupola business about 14 years ago. He was working as a carpenter on a project for developer Morry Cohen when he was asked to rebuild a cupola on horse stables there that were constructed in the 1800s.

Since then, the craftsman has become a "cupola-holic," understandably enthusiastic about the pieces. He thinks of them as his "calling cards," and has invited clients on neighborhood tours to see the completed cupolas.

INTERIOR MOTIVES

Kitchen technology appeals to all tastes

NAOMI STONE LEVY

Are you prepared for sticker shock? I wasn't! An all-new kitchen with technological appliances galore and all the other amenities can cost as much as $40,000. You need to visit a showroom that displays a number of manufacturers' goodies, because there are a myriad of choices.

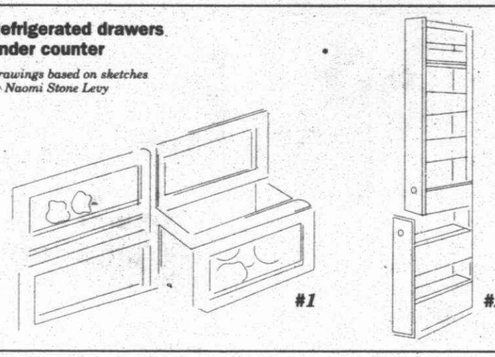

Initially your decision rests on whether you prefer gas or electric. I have always cooked with electricity, but there are amateur and professional chefs who would scoff at my choice.

There are now convection ovens as well as broilers and conventional ovens. There are plate warmers and warming ovens. There are six-burner tops, grids and the standard four-burner tops.

The range hood combines performance with style. They now are quieter and cleaner. If you have an island in your kitchen you must be careful not to cut off everyone's view. If your range is against a wall there are many styles. I know of one hood that is similar to a pullout disappearing slide.

Refrigeration and storage

Refrigeration in the past was limited to a single unit, either with the freezer unit above or below or side by side. Now there are under counter door units. There exists refrigerated drawers with glass fronts, also under counter (see drawing No. 1). You dream it, and you can coordinate it. The refrigerated drawer units accommodate fruits and veggies, and should be placed near sinks, where they can be used conveniently. Don't overlook an ice maker.

The new cabinetry is staggering. There is an array of paneled designs. There is plastic laminate in a variety of colors. Laminate can be obtained in glossy or mat finish. Hint: Glossy is more effective, but harder to care for because fingerprints are immediately evident.

Some pantry units pull out (available from either side) and can be used for storage of canned goods (see drawing No. 2). Other units can be glass above the counter and solid doors below. There are a multitude of specialties such as spice drawers where the jars are tilted for easy reading. What about wine racks with bottles also inclined at the correct downward angle?

Countertops

Countertops need thought. The best of the best is granite, second best is Corian. A minimum of care and a maximum of style. If you can afford it, a "bull-nose" edge adds a special touch. Next down in pricing scale is Avonite, or its equal. And there is the ever-present plastic laminate, ad infinitum.

The sinks should be housed under counter, not over the edge. The height of the counter should be governed by the height of the principal occupant. A tiny person can be accommodated as well as a tall person. Why stretch or bend unnecessarily? I'm all for eliminating backaches.

Hardware resonates good taste. A gooseneck spigot isn't only handsome, it is functional. It can be obtained in white, black, dark bronze or brass as well as the standard chrome. The balance of the hardware should match.

Standard towel rods are more interesting if three or four are stacked one above another, as in a ladder. Even more fun is to run one continuous rod around the entire perimeter of the kitchen, just under the counter. If you have an island kitchen there should be a second continuous rod.

On the floor

Be apprised that floors enhance the entire job. No longer will the ubiquitous rolls of linoleum or congoleum suffice. Squares of vinyl laid on the diagonal, with accent colors, will lend personality. Or large clay tiles are handsome.

One of my favorite floors is very bleached white oak strip. The oak strips are available more narrow than the standard 2-1/2-inch stock and are ever so much more effective. Must be seen to be believed — an awesome floor, it has a very modern aura.

Another wood floor is called "log cabined." The strips are laid in a concentric square design, with each of the four corners alternating as in a log cabin. Very effective. This requires a rectangular or squarish room.

Have I spent all your money? I trust you are an inordinate cook and will love every moment you are in your new kitchen. It will justify the cost.

For good shots, care for camera

MONTE NAGLER

Taking good care of your camera will assure that it will perform satisfactorily for you for many years. Here are some basic tips to help you out.

• Never leave your camera in a very hot or very cold spot. Temperature extremes can warp delicate casings and fittings and distort mechanisms.

• Keep the body free of dust and dirt. A soft cloth works just fine. I've found that Q-Tips dabbed in film cleaner solution is an ideal way to reach those hard-to-get-at spots on your camera.

• It's easier than you think to accidentally have a camera knocked from your hands or bumped into a solid object. Accidents or rough handling can cause severe damage. So always use the camera strap. Having your camera securely around your neck prevents accidents (and theft).

• Most cameras aren't waterproof and can be damaged significantly if water gets inside. Take care to protect both body and lens from water. If your camera should get wet from rain, dry it off immediately with a soft, clean cloth.

• Don't touch the glass on the front or back of your lens. Fingerprints, if not removed right away, may eventually become permanent. Keep your lenses clean with lens cleaning tissue and lens cleaning solution.

• Store your camera in a dry, ventilated place. The original box with its moisture absorbing silica gel bag is an ideal means of safe storage.

• If you aren't going to shoot for a while, remove all batteries from your camera. This will prolong their life and will eliminate any chance of battery corrosion. Try thinking of your camera as a best friend and treat it accordingly.

LET'S REMODEL

Don't skimp when repairing sprinklers

Q: We winterized our lawn sprinkler system last fall, but when we opened it in the spring the back flow preventer was broken. What would cause this?

A: You may have a couple of issues going on. First of all, older systems are being serviced where there is a gate valve in place. There are two types of valves used to connect the domestic water system to the back flow preventers; gate valves and ball valves. A gate valve is screwed down and over time may not seal completely, causing water to get into your backflow preventer which may expand when the water is frozen during winter, breaking the backflow. Many people purchase gate valves due to initial cost. However, a brass ball valve fastens tight enough so that no water can get through to the backflow preventer. If your current system has a gate valve you may want to consider replacing it with a ball valve for preventative maintenance. This would take approximately an hour of labor costs at $60.

The part will run about $30. To repair a back flow is about $185, labor included.

The second thing to consider is that, when fall rolls around, many so-called sprinkler companies drive through neighborhoods offering winterizing at extremely low costs and are often unqualified, some are even uninsured. Remember, saving money now may cause you big money down the road. Keep in mind that an eight zone system will probably cost $5 per zone with a minimum of $40 to winterize. The company should also offer a warranty against damage to the system for the spring opening unless you have a gate valve. Preventive maintenance should include converting to a ball valve and selecting a qualified contractor. Although there is no licensing required for an irrigation contractor in the State of Michigan you will want to look for the following:

■ Choose a full-time irrigation company that specializes in servicing after the installation.

■ A written work order provided by the company which includes an address and phone number. Ask for a business card.

■ Make sure that the company you choose has been in business for at least three years and intends to continue in this line of work.

■ Keep your receipt and contact the same company in the spring for a spring turn-on, so if damage has occurred, you're now dealing with the same contractor.

In short, a qualified legitimate contractor will gladly do the job right the first time so you will continue to do business with them. A sprinkler business is not unlike any other service business – it boils down to service and backing up your work. Keeping the customer happy. The bottom line is service, service, service.

AROUND THE HOUSE

How to be sure your chimney stacks up

A developer was near completion on a new 75-home development in suburban Philadelphia. A local home inspector was brought in to review one of the properties for a client.

The inspector noticed that the fireplace chimney on the home he was inspecting wasn't the proper height. He noted this in the report.

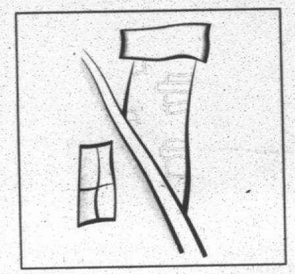

Before he got into his vehicle to leave for the next inspection, he took notice of the other new homes in the development.

Each had similar chimneys, none of which was the proper height. All 75 homes had similar problems and, subsequently, all the chimneys had to be changed.

Not all chimneys are created equal. There are accepted standards for chimneys, although some of these standards vary based on geographic location and local ordinances. Many chimneys are lacking in one or more of these standards.

■ How high your chimney should be: Your chimney should be at least two feet above any portion of the building within 10 feet of the chimney and at least three feet above the point where it passes through the roof.

■ What size flue the chimney should have: Your chimney shouldn't be smaller than the collar from the heating appliance.

■ How far the chimney should be from combustible material: The chimney should be two inches away if it is built partially or entirely within the structure, and one inch if it is built outside the structure.

■ Height requirements for metal chimneys: The height requirements for metal chimneys are the same as for masonry chimneys: at least two feet above any portion of the building within 10 feet of the chimney, and at least three feet above the point where it passes through the roof.

■ How to know your fireplace will draw without lighting a fire: Generally, you can know if your fireplace will draw without lighting a fire by checking just a few things:

— 1. Check for smoke stains on the front of the fireplace or mantel. These stains indicate that something has gone wrong. What that is will be determined later, but there is a problem if stains are present. However, if a fireplace is new or if the mantel has been recently painted, the stains may not be evident.

— 2. Check the size of the flue and firebox opening.

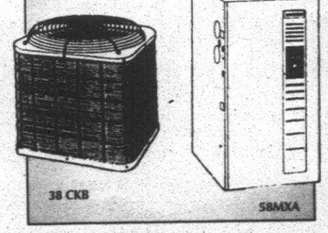

2a. The chimney flue should be one-tenth (if square or rectangle) to one-twelfth (if round) the size of the firebox opening or larger. For example, an eight-by-12-inch chimney flue, or 96 square inches, should have a firebox opening of 960 square inches, about 30 by 32 inches.

2b. The chimney should be two feet above the roof or any roof structure within 10 feet and a minimum of three feet above the roof.

2c. Other criteria such as the throat and smoke shelf should be considered. However, if the flue to the firebox ratio is correct and the chimney height is acceptable, the chimney will probably draw.

Many chimneys need some form of repair or cleaning. Consult a chimney specialist from a recognized chimney association for an annual cleaning and safety review.

Know your limits in battling garden pests

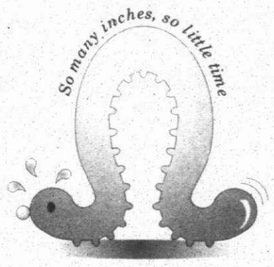

You've got inchworms and aphids. Blackspot and powdery mildew. Scab and fusarium. You try to do all the right things and still, pests and pestilence persist in bugging you and your plants. What's a gardener to do?

Learn to live with it is the advice of the H.D. Hudson Manufacturing Co., manufacturer of a broad line of quality compression sprayers and dusters. Insects and disease have shown a remarkable ability to adapt to the sophisticated natural and manmade environment we use in our struggle to have beautiful lawns and gardens, Hudson said.

It is impractical to attempt to eradicate all pests or plant diseases. It is far better for the gardener to learn to limit the damage they cause. An excellent place to start is in understanding how, when and why to "do battle" with dangerous pests.

Most pest-fighting chemicals are formulated to be used in very small quantities. Using more than is recommended may be harmful to the environment and is also expensive. Equipment that applies the precise blend of active ingredient and carrier (usually water) is a must.

Versatile compression sprayers, such as those engineered and manufactured by Hudson, are extremely useful. Unlike hose-end sprayers, compression sprayers consistently and dependably spray insecticide, herbicide or fungicide at a consistent pressure and in a precise amount and pattern to strike at the heart of the problem. This precision cuts down on waste, and by doing so, is easier on the environment and will save the user money.

Another benefit of compression sprayers, such as the Leader brand from Hudson, is freedom from dragging a hose around the yard. Compression sprayers from Hudson come in a variety of sizes and have working capacities from 1/2 to 2.75 gallons of spray. Yet another benefit: Compression sprayers eliminate the need to buy premixed sprays that are mostly water and are much more costly, ounce for ounce.

Interestingly, compression sprayers let the gardener reach many trees with insecticide to help ward off gypsy moth and other pests that feed on early summer foliage. Slide-type sprayers, such as the Trombone sprayer from Hudson, are ideal because they create enough pressure to spray up to 40 feet into trees.

While expert opinion differs on timing, the general thinking is that pesticides should be applied when damage is first seen, rather than after damage is pronounced. Early damage means that pests are present and at work and, chances are, they can be easily controlled.

For example, rose growers may wait to apply a systemic insecticide when the first cluster of aphids appears on new growth. Since systemic-type insecticides last up to six weeks, applying them before pests are present is wasteful.

Time of day is another "when" factor. Generally, pesticides should be applied when foliage is dry and the air still. This usually means early evening or mid-morning after dew has dried. Avoid windy days because spray is easily carried and may damage non-targeted plants.

"Live and let live" is the approach some gardeners take, forsaking all manmade means to control pests. There's nothing wrong with this approach as long as practitioners realize their yield of flowers and vegetables is likely to be diminished, or marred, because of the presence of pests.

In recent years, gardeners have become more savvy in their understanding of the value of modern pesticides and equipment, and take the approach that care in use of these materials means that pest, pestilence, plants and people can exist nicely together.

The choice of no pesticide or selective pesticide is yours. Whichever way your thinking goes, a free and useful pamphlet from Hudson will help you choose the best approach for your lawn and garden. For a free copy of "Getting Started on a Spraying Program: Why, How and When to Spray," send a stamped, self-addressed, No. 10 envelope to: Free Booklet Offer, H.D. Hudson Manufacturing, 500 N. Home safety checklist (NAPS)—Most of us don't think much about electricity unless we are forced to go without it. But just like light bulbs and appliances, the electrical system in your home deserves your attention.

■ You can check to see that lamps and extension cords aren't cracked, frayed or covered by rugs or furniture.

■ Check light bulbs to determine that the wattage is appropriate for lighting fixtures.

■ Electrical appliances should be kept away from damp and hot surfaces and have appropriate air circulation.

Dim or flickering lights, arcs or sparks, sizzling or buzzing sounds from your electrical system, odors, hot switch plates, loose plugs and damaged insulation, among other things, are signs of potential hazards and should be looked at by a qualified electrician.

For more information, send a 55¢ stamped, self-addressed No. 10 (business size) envelope to National Electrical Safety Foundation, 1300 North 17th Street, #1847, Rosslyn, Va. 22209.

Cranbrook holds tours of Saarinen House

Cranbrook Art Museum offers "Saarinen House and Garden: A Total Work of Art," docent-guided tours of the restored Saarinen House, now through Oct. 31.

The tour lasts about one hour and 15 minutes, and features the history of Cranbrook, as well as the development of its architecture, focusing on Saarinen House.

Saarinen House was restored in 1994. Initially completed in 1930, it was the home, studio and garden of Finnish-American architect Eliel Saarinen, Cranbrook's resident architect from 1925 to 1950. It was identified by scholars as one of the most significant domestic interiors designed in America in the 1920s.

Tours introduce visitors to Saarinen's role at Cranbrook Academy of Art and feature an in-depth look at the architect's American masterwork. All tours of Saarinen House begin and end at Cranbrook Art Museum and are geared for an adult audience.

The tour begins in the art museum with a brief history of the development of Cranbrook and the importance of Eliel Saarinen as its master architect. The tour continues with a short walk over to Saarinen House along the Triton Pool detailed with sculptures by the Swedish master Carl Milles, through the Crafts Court of the art academy and down Academy Way to the house.

Once inside the house, the tour features the impressive living room with its handcrafted furnishings and Pewabic Pottery tile fireplace, as well as the dining room, a masterwork of detail finished off with a golden dome.The tour continues on the second floor and features the master bedroom with the suite of furniture designed by Eero Saarinen, the son who was the architect responsible for such architectural wonders as the St. Louis Arch and Dulles National Airport.

General tours of Saarinen House are limited to 12 people each and are available 11 a.m. and 1, 1:30, 2:30 and 3 p.m. Thursdays; and 1, 1:30, 2:30 and 3 p.m. Saturday-Sunday. Tickets include admission to Cranbrook Art Museum and are $6 for adults, $4 for seniors (65+) and full-time students, and $2 for children under age 7 and art museum members. Tour tickets may be bought on the day of tour only.

All tours begin and end at Cranbrook Art Museum, 1221 N. Woodward, Bloomfield Hills, and include walking and several flights of stairs.

Private tours of Saarinen House are available for groups of eight people or more, with advance notice, between 10 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. Wednesday and Friday, 4 and 7:30 p.m. Thursday, and 10 a.m. and noon Saturday. Large groups will be divided into smaller tours of 12 people each. Private tours must be booked two weeks in advance. Private tour tickets include admission to Cranbrook Art Museum and are $10 per guest, no discounts. For information or to book a tour, call (810) 645-3323.

Cranbrook Art Museum, including The Store at Cranbrook Art Museum, is open to the public for general viewing 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday, Friday and Saturday; 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday; and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday. Downtowns thrive in suburbia

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

Living in small-town America with a well-defined downtown, even inside suburban rings of a metropolis, still draws a great amount of interest.

Communities such as Birmingham, Rochester, Plymouth, Farmington and Clarkston thrive for lots of different reasons.

You know firsthand if you've ever visited. If you haven't, there are plenty of folks who will promote the splendor.

"I think the thing about living in downtown Farmington, number one before anything else, is people perceive it's a safe place," said Judy Downey, executive director of that city's downtown development authority.

"Plus, we keep it clean, as attractive as possible," she said. "We work hard to offer a variety of businesses so a person could shop downtown without driving to a mall.

Then Downey cut right to the chase.

"I lived in a community once where I went from rural to downtown living. I didn't realize how convenient it was to walk to eat out, walk to the post office, library, park."

Nancy Austin, a Realtor with Coldwell Banker Preferred, has lived in the city of Plymouth and has sold in that downtown community.

"I can tell you why I moved to town. I wanted my kids to walk to school and, after school, get to a job under their own power with a bicycle or walking," she said.

"They have a lot of family activity right in the heart of downtown – concerts in the park, movies are right there, shopping is right there. Bicycling and walking everywhere is wonderful," Austin added.

■'People want to go back to small-town activity, to know and be known by people and a more personable lifestyle. People in a subdivision can go for months without seeing neighbors. There's no center of activity.'

Michael Bartlett
Real Estate One

"Whether you're a young, two-career couple, a young family with kids or empty-nesters ... there's something for everyone," she said.

"People want to go back to small-town activity, to know and be known by people and a more personable lifestyle. People in a subdivision can go for months without seeing neighbors. There's no center of activity."

"People want a sense of belonging," she said. "Before, it was wanting that country feeling."

"There's a sense of continuity in a downtown area," said Yvonne Teevens, an associate broker with Quality Better Homes & Gardens in Plymouth.

"You feel this is the center where you're living. You shop, not necessarily all the time (downtown) but it's available to you. Community events are available to you, the feeling of small-town charm," Teevens said.

Even residential builders who build houses with all the modern conveniences in outlying areas near suburban downtowns have touted the downtowns when promoting their projects.

Those include Bridge Valley and Clarkston Bluffs in Independence Township, Rolling Oaks in Plymouth Township and Carroll Farms in Farmington Hills.

"Plymouth still has the mystique of a small-town atmosphere still in demand," said Mike Zeid of Encore Custom Homes.

"People are wanting to come out here to enjoy what Clarkston is all about – a quaint, rural town," said developer A. Mathew Kiriluk II.

While the lifestyle can be highly attractive, houses in downtown communities generally aren't any more or less hot than houses in other subdivisions, agents concur.

The older housing stock needs more maintenance and won't have all the amenities of newer houses. Property taxes usually are higher. And it can be difficult to get around when crowds pour in for special events.

The owners of a $150,000 house in the city of Plymouth will pay $700 more annually in property taxes than the owners of a $150,000 house in Plymouth Township.

Taxes on a $150,000 house are nearly $700 higher in Birmingham (with a downtown) than Bloomfield Hills, $550 higher in Rochester (downtown) than Rochester Hills, and $500 higher in Farmington (downtown) than Farmington Hills.

"There's different levels of services sometimes provided by cities not provided by townships," said Paul J. Sincock, assistant city manager in the city of Plymouth.

"You look at our community. We operate a cemetery, we operate a recreation department, we operate a parking system, we contribute pretty substantially to events in our community," he said.

"We sweep the streets and we collect everyone's leaves through bulk collection in fall," Sincock said.

"I guess the biggest thing is being able to walk to the bank, library, movie theater, shops and not feel every time I go somewhere I have to get in a car," she said. "I like being able to hear church bells."

Donegan concedes that while older houses are solidly built, they don't contain the amenities of modern construction like luxury master suites.

There's a limit to how much you can spend on remodeling, she said. "We don't want to be the biggest and best in a neighborhood. That's never a good real estate investment."

New rules make senior housing more available

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q: Senior citizen housing has become easier to obtain based on recent governmental regulations. Do you has any insight in that regard?

A: Yes. It appears that HUD has made a policy decision to make the rules as flexible and liberal as possible for senior citizen housing. Basically, while communities can no longer be adult only based on the Fair Housing Amendments Act, there is a loophole for housing for older persons if they meet the following criteria: (1) 80 percent of the units must be occupied by at least one person over the age of 55; (2) the community publishes policies and procedures demonstrating an intent to provide housing for people 55 and over; and (3) the community provides "significant facilities and services specifically designed to meet the physical or social needs of older persons." It is this latter requirement that has proved the most difficult but recent regulations published by HUD have liberalized and loosened these requirements. You are best advised, of course, to consult with an experienced attorney who can analyze your particular community association in regard to the recent regulations.

Q: I am a landlord of a shopping center and our anchor store has breached its contract and is moving out. They claim that they are obligated to pay the rent. Do you have any suggestions as to what my measure of damages might be since they were an important store in the shopping center attracting business?

A: I believe that you have a good argument that your measure of damages is more than ordinary contract damages that you would be entitled to in a breach of lease situation. Arguably, the measure of damages is the present worth of the property with the anchor store, less the present worth of the property without the anchor store.

Your argument, based upon a recent opinion of the North Carolina Court of Appeals, is that your shopping center had a loss in terms of it diminished market value. This is because the presence of the anchor store had presumably enabled it to draw customers, attract and keep other tenants, and obtain financing. Obviously, you may not be able to do this if your prime retail space is taken up by someone other than a prime anchor store.

Naturally, the contribution of each store determines the flow of business of the entire center and likewise, the store was the focal point of the entire shopping center and then you may well have a good argument for additional damages.

■ ERA to expand

ERA Franchise Systems, a residential real estate network, is expanding its franchise sales force in advance of an aggressive campaign to double the number of franchises by the year 2000.

Currently, ERA has more than 2,500 independently-owned and operated offices throughout the U.S. and 14 other countries.

"The way to increase market share is to sell more franchises to quality brokers and help our current base of broker members and sales associates become even more productive," said Fred Beilstein, ERA president and chief operating officer.

"This will be accomplished through the use use of improved technology to support our product and service offerings," he said.

ERA has 16 franchise offices in the Detroit area, 13 in western Michigan.

■ Schweitzer acquisition

Schweitzer plans to relocate its current Royal Oak office to that Keim location.

■ Home financing workshops

Ross Mortgage presents free, no-obligation home financing workshops 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, June 25, at the International Business Center, 43000 Nine Mile east of Novi Road, Novi, and 6:30 p.m. Wednesday, June 26, at Freedom Hill County Park, 10 Mile east of Schoenherr, Sterling Heights.

For reservations, call (810) 968-1800.

■ Apartment management

Lawrence Technological University sponsors a series of workshops on apartment management and review of the registered apartment management certification 2:30-5:30 p.m. Thursdays Sept. 5-Dec. 12 on campus in Southfield.

Topics include risk management, marketing rental housing, planning for development management, financial management and maintenance.
