Parkland OK'd for post office

Township trustees agreed Tuesday to offer four acres of Griffin Park to the United States Postal Service for construction of a post office. Trustees are asking $500,000 for the land.

The needs of the many outweigh the needs of the few.

That was the stance Canton trustees took Tuesday as they voted 6-0 to offer four acres of Griffin Park to the United States Postal Service for a new post office over the objections of nearby residents.

Trustees set a price of $500,000 for the property, which is on the east side of Canton Center Road just north of Cherry Hill. USPS officials have six months to consider all offers.

The USPS wants to buy property in Canton and design the building before September, then build the new post office in 1997. The building is expected to be a 29,000-square-foot, one story, $4 million branch of the Westland post office with 62 employees initially and 73 after 10 years. USPS officials have not officially responded to the township's offer.

Township Supervisor Tom Yack said the administration offered the parkland for sale because "we're fearful of what happens if there are no (other) parcels recommended or proposed. I just know how hard it has been to get on the list (for a post office)."

Township Clerk Terry Bennett said "we don't know for positive, for sure" if any other offers were made.

But Embassy Square resident Kathy Rokakis asked around and discovered that developer Terry Nosan offered to sell four acres on the southwest corner of Canton Center and Saltz to the post office.

Nosan said Wednesday that his price is $550,000. "I'd be happy to sell it to them," he said.

Trustees were not swayed by a parade of unhappy residents Tuesday who spoke against replacing two baseball fields in Griffin Park with the post office.

"My first priority is to have a

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

The Canton Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors has hired a director to replace Linda Shapona, who quit this year to take a similar job with the Westland Chamber.

Berkley resident Carleigh Barnes officially begins her new job July 16.

She comes from the Southwest King County Chamber near Seattle, Wash., where she served as community affairs manager and interim general manager from February 1993 to December 1995.

Barnes, 24, received a bachelor's degree in English literature from the University of Washington in 1994.

She moved to Michigan in March to be with her fiance, J.P. Flaharty, who was recently hired by a Troy engineering firm.

The couple plan an Aug. 31 wedding in Seattle. "(My parents) told me, 'You can leave, but you've got to get married back home,'" Barnes said.

After the wedding, Barnes will be known as Carleigh Flaharty.

Barnes read about the vacant job in the newspaper. "I knew in my heart all through the job search that this was the one that was going to work out," she said. "This is really where I wanted to be."

The Chamber search committee - attorney Mike Gerou, banker Janet Volante, builder Tom Adamusik, employer Phil LaJoy and printer Bob Carrigan, began with 130 applicants, sent questionnaires to 18, interviewed eight and sent two to an Ann Arbor employee assessment company, Career Directions.

Adamusik, owner of Regal Construction, said Barnes impressed him in the interview.

"I don't know her, but the feeling I get about her is just so damn positive," he said. "She has a great sense of humor, which is a necessity in this business. She has the ability to sell the Chamber without making an effort to do that. She's just going to explode with this job and bring it to the heights we want."

Volante, First of America Bank president, said she was impressed that Barnes was "not looking for just a job," but chamber work specifically.

"She is a very well put together person, very enthusiastic and really seems to enjoy that kind of work," Volante said.

STAFF WRITER

State Rep. Deborah Whyman saw political chicanery in all directions last week as the Wayne County prosecutor declined to press charges against a woman who allegedly harangued Whyman at the Belleville Strawberry Festival July 15.

Politics: Whyman believes Prosecutor John O'Hair would have filed charges if roles were reversed.

The woman reportedly was the spokesperson for a group of four to five volunteers for U.S. Rep. Lynn Rivers who approached Whyman in a parking lot, where she was talking with Dave and Martha Brown of Belleville.

Richard Padzieski, chief of operations for the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office, said the woman wasn't charged because her beef with Whyman was political, not racial.

Whyman said the woman was black, but Padzieski said the woman's ancestry is "one-fourth Filipino and three-fourths white."

Whyman said she assumed the woman was black because "she identified herself as a person of color and went on to say, 'We in the African community...'"

In a press release, Whyman said, "She came up to us and demanded that I apologize for my recent statements about the Detroit NAACP

Ameritech can't offer HBO; Cinemax

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Ameritech can't provide HBO and Cinemax channels to cable television subscribers in Canton, the Plymouths and Northville, according to a June 5 Federal Communications Commission decision.

"We don't anticipate changing anything because customer interest in our service has been good," said David Onak, Ameritech New Media spokesman.

But the FCC decision means that subscribers in Canton, Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Northville and Northville Township - communities already served by Continental Cablevision - won't get HBO 1,2,3 or Cinemax 1 and 2 through Ameritech when it provides service.

Continental Cablevision officials consider the ruling a win for their side of the cable television competition in this area. Continental Cablevision has an exclusive programming agreement with HBO, which also owns Cinemax.

Earlier this year, Ameritech and Americast - a joint venture of Amertech, Bell South, SBC, GTE and the Disney Company - filed a complaint with the FCC arguing that Continental's exclusive contract with HBO violated FCC programming access rules.

According to Continental officials, the 1992 Cable Act allowed exclusive contracts that existed as of June 1, 1990. Continental and HBO entered their contract in 1988 with exclusivity running until Dec. 31, 1997.

The FCC denied Ameritech's complaint and said that it found the cable act provision that Ameritech cited to be "clear and unambiguous."

"We feel fully vindicated by the FCC's decision," said Robert Sachs, Continental senior vice president for corporate and legal affairs. "In finding the programming access provisions of the Cable Act to be 'clear and unamand my legislation to abolish the Detroit Recorder's Court. When I informed her that I wouldn't do that, she said, 'We in the African community know where you live. We have your number, and we are going to get you.'"

Dave and Martha Brown verified Whyman's story. "She had a tone to her voice that sounded threatening," Dave Brown said. "It upset Debby, and it upset us."

The woman finished her statement by saying, "You don't know (beans) about people of color," Brown said.

Whyman said she has been threatened before, but never so ominously. "This is the first one that terrified me," she said.

The four-year state House veteran is now taking additional safety precautions and may apply for a concealed weapons permit, she said.

Rivers agrees that the woman was one of her volunteers marching in the parade that day. "She hasn't done anything (for the Rivers campaign) since then," Rivers said.

Asked if the woman is welcome to volunteer again, Rivers said, "I haven't thought about it one way or another."

The Ann Arbor Democrat said she now cautions all volunteers. "When they're marching with us they need to be on their best behavior."

Rivers' opponent in this year's election, Republican Joe Fitzsimmons, issued a press release four days after the incident.

"Lynn Rivers should be ashamed," Fitzsimmons said in the press release. She preaches tolerance and practices apathy. Her lack of concern over this matter sends the message that racism is OK."

Said Rivers: "Every press release on this is directed at me. To have this played out in a starkly political way is frustrating. There's this constant attempt to pull me into it and hope that I'll be politically damaged by it. Everybody is trying to milk it as much as they can."

Then last week the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office declined to charge the campaign volunteer with a crime.

Following the decision, Whyman accused Prosecutor John O'Hair of letting politics affect the decision.

"There's a double standard in Wayne County," she said. "If I had made a similar threat to the person who threatened me, I doubt if it would be dismissed."

A Royal Oak-based group called Citizens for Justice issued a press release July 3 to criticize O'Hair.

"If the white employee of a Republican official made the same threats to an African American lawmaker, John O'Hair would be tripping over himself to bring charges," said Citizens for Justice spokesman Darin Chase in the press release.

Whyman, a Republican, is up for re-election this year and opposed by Democrat Deborah Nesbit, also of Canton. Rivers and O'Hair are also up for re-election.

biguous,' the commission could not have spoken more loudly about the baselessness of Ameritech's claims."

But Onak said Ameritech officials have had only a few days to review the FCC's decision. "It's premature to determine what we will do on the legal side," he said. "We continue to believe Continental should not be able to apply an exclusive contract with HBO to the terms of the contract (with Canton and the Plymouths)."

Meanwhile, Onak said Ameritech may provide HBO and Cinemax in other communities for which it provides service, such as Columbus, Ohio, where service recently became available.

"We have contracts to offer HBO in the midwest, just not in areas where Continental is," Onak said.

David Onak
—Ameritech spokesman

Ameritech continues to build its cable system in Plymouth and Canton. "We began offering service in May in some parts of Plymouth and Plymouth Township," Onak said.

Bill Black, Continental corporate affairs director in Southfield, said it's a relief to have the issue with Ameritech resolved. "As much as the FCC's affirmation of our HBO contract is welcomed, it's unfortunate the Commission, HBO and Continental have had to spend time and resources answering Ameritech's frivolous charges."

A cable franchise agreement between Ameritech and Canton, the Plymouths and Northville, made history in 1995 by allowing competition between two cable television companies.

Carrigan, owner of Alpha-Graphics, said the new director is a "very bright, communicative young lady we think has a lot of potential. We are fortunate to be able to attract her."

Barnes had nice things to say about the search committee members, too.

"They had such a great rapport," she said. "It was very apparent to me that these people were excited to be part of that organization. They're definitely visionaries, and they're future-minded."

Barnes said she accepted the job the day it was offered, June 27, although she was offered the regional directorship of the American Heart Association earlier in the week.

"I didn't hesitate one way or another," she said. "I was truly holding out for the Canton job."

STAFF WRITER

Developers of a 680-acre, 895-home subdivision/golf course/park in central Canton requested last week that planning commission consideration of their project be postponed after township planners recommended denial of their plan.

Steve Friedman, the principal owner of the Selective Group, which has partnered with Phoenix Land Development to take on this 10-year project, asked planning commissioners to table the plan July 1.

Friedman and Company have gone round and round for months with Canton officials. They have continually been sent back to the drawing board by planning commissioners and continually returned with a plan that does not meet expectations.

The development, called Central Park, is tentatively scheduled to feature detached and attached condominiums, as well as single-family homes on a variety of lot sizes. Some 250 acres are devoted to open space, including a nine-hole golf course, regulated wetlands, uplands and a park by Denton Road that would be given to the township for soccer or softball fields. Estimated population of the development is 2,604 people. Taxes paid by property owners would increase Canton Township's revenue by more than $4 million.

Canton Community Planner Jeff Goulet listed 20 reasons to recommend denial of the plan, including the following:

- "Brick veneer is not an acceptable building material."
- "Since the need for the paving of Denton Road is driven by the infrastructure needs of the development, the developer should pay the entire cost of paving Denton Road from Cherry Hill to its southernmost property line."
- "Denton Road shall be paved and cost assumed by the developer...at a date no later than any road connection from the development is approved."

'Keep the plans. Throw the PDD agreement away.'

Jeff Goulet
—Planner

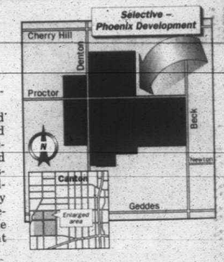

- "The goal of adjusting the school district boundaries is to prevent a subdivision from being divided into two by different school districts, not necessarily to realign the entire property into the Plymouth-Canton School District."
- "The dates for commencement and construction of the golf course are unrealistic."
- "Based on the developer's desire to control the entire design of the golf course, it appears that the golf course should be constructed by the developer."

In conclusion, Goulet wrote, "The proposed project does not provide a definite benefit and may be of detrimental impact to the township due to the high level of financial commitment necessary for substantial infrastructure improvements to support the development.

"It is further recommended that for this project to proceed as a planned development district, the developers should commit to paying for all infrastructure improvements, including roadways, water, sanitary sewer and storm water management necessary to support the proposed level of development in this area of the township."

To the planning commissioners, Goulet said, "Keep the plans. Throw the PDD agreement away."

Commission Chairman Vic Gustafson reiterated his April advice to the developers, when he said, "Please come back when (your plan) is prepared. And you're better off not coming back if it's not prepared."

Friedman promised to do right by the planning commission more than two months ago.

"They gave us our marching orders," he said in April. "We'll come back with what they're looking for."

Committee members sought

The Plymouth-Canton school district is looking for community members for three committees: the Housing and Facilities Committee; the Citizens Finance Committee and the Long-Range Planning Committee.

The Board of Education will select volunteers at its July 22 meeting by random draw.

Needed are committee members who are parents of students at the elementary, middle and high school levels; residents without children in the schools; business people; and individuals interested in the district's future.

Interested individuals should contact the district's Community Relations Office on or before Wednesday, July 17. Call the office at (313) 416-2753.

Horvath takes over as board chief

BY JEFF COUNTS
STAFF WRITER

The president runs the meetings, but has no more power that other school board members.

The Plymouth-Canton schools in a reorganization meeting on Monday elected Mark Horvath as the new school board president, changed its meeting day to Tuesday and discussed bidding out financial and legal services.

Horvath succeeds David Artley as board president. The president runs the meetings, but has no more power that other school board members.

The treasurer will be Michael J. Maloney, who previously served as treasurer.

The most significant change made by the board was to shift its meetings nights to Tuesdays at 7 p.m.

"It will speed things along," said Horvath.

However, the most discussed issue was the naming of legal and financial firms to contract with the school system.

But while there was discuss, only one contract was delayed. It's for legal services on land matters that are handled by Donald Morgan.

Other contracts were approved. They are: Thrun, Maatsch and Nordberg for financial and election matters, Collins, Blaha & Slatkin for labor relations matters, Pollard & Albertson for labor relations and special education matters, Errol Goldman for in house general counsel.

Maloney said he wants to look at bidding out the contract to audit the $95 million school budget.

That couldn't come until next year, according to school administrators, who said the audit is due to be conducted in December and it's too late to change auditing firms.

"It's a good idea to hold that off," said Maloney.

The board's eventual decision was to starting looking at bidding out the work in January, so the school district could select the best bid and make a decision next summer.

The board was urged by Jones to bid out as many legal and financial services contracts as possible.

"When I was with the city, we found it was one way to bring costs down," said Jones, a former city of Plymouth mayor and council member.

Also critical of the school board actions, was Ted Bolen, a school board critic. He urged the board to bid out contracts for both legal and financial services.

"You're going to need support if you go for a bond issue this year," said Bolen, referring to a possible bond issue that could go on the ballot to raise money for building new schools.

"We can change this at anytime," said Jack Farrow, a board member.

Horvath said that if the schools do opt to put a bond issue on the ballot, the contracts for financial services will be looked at.

In other action, the schools:

- Approved continuing the Journey program at Plymouth Canton and Salem high schools. In a report, Superintendent Charles Little said that 8th and 9th graders in the program for youths who need extra help will be at the high schools where the will be the appropriate teachers and social workers to deal with them.
- Approved a boundary change that will allow nine students in the southwestern portion of the school district to continue attending Bentley School.
- Little approved allowing five students to attend a pre-kindergarten program in the Livonia schools. Such a program isn't offered by the Plymouth Canton schools. Earlier this month, Little rejected signing the necessary waivers to allow the students to attend the program, citing financial loss by the district. The money for those students would go to the Livonia school district.

- Site plan for two new industrial projects have been submitted to planning services for approval by the township's in-house development review committee. Plans for the Hunn Company Spec Building call for a 33,500-square-foot facility, east of Haggerty, south of Joy. This is the southern half of the property owned by Westland Controls. Plans for the Tantara Trucking Building outline a two-phase project. Phase one consists of 60,000 square feet. Phase two calls for 40,000 square feet. It will be a warehouse and distribution facility, south of Michigan Avenue, west of Belleville Road.
- The railroad crossing on Haggerty Road, south of Joy, will undergo construction later this summer, possibly beginning Aug. 1, according to Chessie System representative Tom Tippie. The tracks at the crossing have sunken making it difficult for cars to cross. The project, which is expected to last four or five days, will shut down that section of Haggerty Road. Motorists are advised to use Lilley Road as a detour during that time. Residents will be advised of the exact date of construction as workers move their way up the tracks from Toledo, completing various projects along the way.
- The township's engineering services recently held a pre-construction meeting for River Woods subdivision. The way is now clear for utility construction. The 91-home subdivision will be on 65.6 acres north of Newton, west of Beck.
- Mass grading was expected to begin on Royal Pointe West subdivision. The installation of individual water and sanitary sewer lines will be done later. Royal Pointe West is on 93 acres east of Ridge Road, between Hanford and Warren. The subdivision will have 132 homes.
- Wayne County reports that the paving of Beck Road, between Cherry Hill and Geddes, is expected to be completed by the end of July.
- The site plan for a new industrial project has been submitted to planning services for approval by the development review committee. Plans for the Ashley Multi-Tenant Building call for a 35,500-square-foot building and a 45,000-square-foot building; both will provide warehouse and office space at the southeast corner of Koppernick and I-275.
- Construction of the new Max & Erma's restaurant is scheduled to begin this week. Project sponsors have met with building and inspection services and engineering services recently. These pre-construction meetings clear the way for work to commence. The work scheduled for this week involves construction of the building's foundation. Underground utility work is expected to take place the week of July 15.
- Max & Erma's will be located on the east side of Canton Center Road, just south of Ford, adjacent to Meijer's parking lot, and across the street from the AAA site. The goal is to open the restaurant by mid-December.

Meet officers; firefighters

The Canton Public Safety Department will host a family day 4-11 p.m. Thursday, July 11 at Detroit Sports & Recreation on Ford Road, east of Lotz.

The public is invited to meet police and firefighters.

Republicans to meet Sunday

The Canton Republican Club will hold its monthly meeting at 6 p.m. Sunday, July 14, at the Cherry Hill School on the corner of Cherry Hill and Ridge roads. The public is welcome.

Knife attack

Police arrested a 34-year-old Westland woman Wednesday, July 3, after a Canton man said she threatened him with a knife for cutting weeds on her mother's property.

The 41-year-old Fairview Road man said he had reached over the fence with his weed whacker and cut a few weeds on his neighbor's property.

His neighbor complained, then the neighbor's daughter came to his house and "produced a long knife and advanced to one-half inch of (the man's) nose with the knife," according to the police report.

The weapon was identified as a bread knife at least 12 inches long.

The man said he disarmed the woman and called police.

Break-in

A 71-year-old Hanford Road resident told police that someone broke into his house between 6:45 and 10 a.m. Wednesday, July 3, and stole speakers worth $250, $70 in cash, a pager worth $100, a necklace worth $117, 40 compact discs worth $600, a charm worth $50 and an amplifier worth $600.

The man said the stereo worth $450 was missing from his son's 1988 Ford EXP.

The man believes the thief or thieves entered through the garage door and an unlocked door into the house.

Dog bite

A husband and wife residing on Pickwick Road told police they were attacked by two stray dogs at 7:15 a.m. Wednesday, July 3, while trying to save their cat from the dogs.

The dogs had been attacking the cat, bringing the man and woman to the rescue.

But the dogs turned on them, scratching the man's arm and biting the woman's hand, according to the police report.

The dogs were turned over the Critter Control and taken to the Humane Society in Westland. The dog owners could not be located.

Missing Beer

A 52-year-old Holiday Estates trailer park resident told police that someone broke into his home and stole two bottles of beer from the refrigerator.

When he returned home at 4:35 Tuesday, July 2, he found fireworks debris, fast food items and two empty Molson beer bottles next to his shed.

According to the police report, the man also "found a hole in the wall caused by a glass coffee pot."

The man determined that the thief or thieves pushed his door open to get inside the mobile home and take the beer.

Potato salad thief

Police arrested a 22-year-old Westland man July 4 after Meijer security officers said they saw him "put a container of potato salad in his pants" and try to leave the store without paying, according to the police report.

The man was given a court date and released on bond.

Stolen car

A 50-year-old Westland resident told police that her 1988 Mercury Tracer was stolen between 2:45 and 4 p.m. Wednesday, July 3, from in front of a group home on Oakbrook.

Police found no broken glass, lock parts, or other signs of forced entry at the curb where the car had been parked, according to the police report.

post office in our community," Treasurer Elaine Kirchgatter said.

"I too see it as a priority service for our community," Bennett said.

"Parks and things like that are like frosting on the cake," Trustee Melissa McLaughlin said.

"It sounds like you're saying, 'We want this post office so bad that we're willing to give away the township to get it," resident Mike Stover said.

Stover added that he thinks trustees are "afraid the federal government is going to say, 'We're going to pick up our toys and go home.'"

"It seems to me that Canton is greedy to want to sell this (property) off and make some money," Rokakis said.

Residents were also spooked by the spectre of gridlock at Canton Center and Cherry Hill.

"I'm worried about people getting hurt," said Stover's son Chris. "People are going to be dying (on Cherry Hill)," said resident Brian Van Wingerden. "The (traffic) situation is serious, not just an inconvenience."

Stover's wife Cynthia said, "Had I known three years ago I was going to get a post office in my back yard I never would have bought my back yard."

Other residents who objected to selling four of Griffin Park's 37 acres to the USPS are Art Roberts, Diane Koskey, Robert Bulmer and Mary Bonadeo.

The ball fields that would be eliminated are used by the Plymouth Canton Junior Baseball Association.

Water safety programs set, Engler signs angler bills

Catching up on the natural resources beat:

At a time when growing number of accidents are reported with personal watercraft, the state Department of Natural Resources is scheduling free law and safety programs on three Oakland County lakes in July.

The one-hour programs begin at 7 p.m. on these dates and sites:

- July 16 _ Pontiac Lake Recreation area, west end of beach, Waterford Township.
- July 23 _ Lake Oakland access site, Waterford Township.
- July 30 _ Tipsico Lake access site, Rose Township.

Programs are designed for people who already own personal watercraft. Topics include watercraft laws, boating law and local acts. An equipment checklist is reviewed. No registration is necessary.

Sponsors are DNR, Michigan Boating Industry, Personal Watercraft Industry, PWC Manufacturers, K&W Cycle and Anderson Sales & Service.

For directions or answers to specific questions, call DNR at 810-666-1020.

No harassment

Gov. John Engler has signed a pair of angler protection laws sponsored by Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, and Rep. David Jaye, R-Macomb County.

The laws make it a misdemeanor to harass anglers intentionally and provide penalties up to 93 days in jail and a $1,000 fine for a first offense and up to a year in jail and $2,500 fine for a second offense. One also strengthens the hunter harassment law.

Lawmakers acted after animal rights groups announced plans to bother fishermen this summer. Said Engler: "Thanks to this legislation, fishermen in the Great Lakes State can worry less about big-mouth protesters and more about big-mouth bass."

"I am extremely pleased with the overwhelming bipartisan support for these bills," said Geake.

About licenses. . .

The state Senate passed a bill to raise fishing and hunting licenses on May 23, but it's still languishing in the House Conservation Committee.

Senate Bill 940 would raise total revenue 13.8 percent, from the current $41.1 million to $46.8 million the first year (beginning in March of 1997). Revenue would be raised by like amounts over five years to a total of $16.5 million over the current level.

The Senate vote was 22-14.

Twenty Republicans and two Democrats voted yes, including Republicans Loren Bennett of Canton, Mike Bouchard of Birmingham, Mat Dunaskiss of Lake Orion, Robert Geake of Northville, Mike Rogers of Brighton, John Schwarz of Battle Creek and Democrat Alma Smith of Salem.

All nay votes cast by Democrats, including John Cherry of Clio, George Hart of Dearborn and Gary Peters of Bloomfield Township.

The issue became partisan when Democrat Joe Conroy of Flint offered an amendment for zero increases for people 65 and older. Republicans rejected it.

Here are some of the increases proposed for certain licenses:

- Fishing _ from the current $20.70 general fishing and trout licenses to a single all-species license of $26 the first year and $28 by 2001.
- Small game _ from $10.35 to $13 the first year and $15 by 2001.
- Firearm deer – down from $13.35 currently to $13, then up to $15 by 2001.
- Senior all-species fishing _ from $1.50 currently to $13 the first year and $14 by 2001.
- Senior small game _ from zero to $6.50 the first year, then to $7.50 by 2001.
- Junior all-species fishing (ages 12-16) _ from free to $1.
- Junior small game _ down from $5.60 to $1.

Refer to Senate Bill 940 (S-1) when writing to your state representative, State Capitol, Lansing 48909.

Special assessments aren't taxes, Kelley rules

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

A little-noticed attorney general's ruling could cost Michigan property owners more for local improvements. At least one suburban lawmaker calls it "an outrage."

Attorney General Frank Kelley ruled that special assessments aren't taxes. Therefore, despite Proposal A of 1994, special assessments may be collected on the "state equalized value" of property rather than the lower "taxable value."

Upshot: Townships, in particular, may be encouraged to finance public improvements by special assessments rather than from the general fund.

For example, a house with a $104,000 market value has a state equalized value (SEV) of 50 percent or $52,000. But if local real estate prices are rising faster than the consumer price index of less than 3 percent, the taxable value may be capped at just $50,000.

The owner pays county, local, school and community college taxes on the basis of taxable value, or $50,000. But special assessments _ often used for streets, sidewalks, water and sewer construction _ would be paid on the SEV, or $52,000.

Kelley based his ruling on a 1958 state Supreme Court decision in the case brought by St. Joseph Township against the state.

"The millage-based special assessment levied against the taxable value of property would not bear a reasonable relationship to the benefit received," Kelley said (italics added).

In that case, the suburban township levied a two-mill special assessment for fire protection.

"The law is settled that special assessments are not taxes," said Kelley, quoting from 19th Century Chief Justice Thomas Cooley.

An assessment is paid for "the cost of public improvements in its immediate vicinity" and is levied against specific parcels; a tax pays for general benefits and is assessed against an entire local unit.

Kelley also cited his own 1979 ruling that tax limitations in the Headlee amendment to the Michigan Constitution don't apply to special assessments.

Rep. David Jaye, R-Macomb County, criticized Democrat Kelley's ruling, saying, "If it looks like a duck and quacks like a duck, it's a duck. If it is collected like a tax and paid like a tax, it's a tax.

Jaye said the House passed his bill to require that special assessments be collected on the lower taxable value, but the Senate has yet to act on it.

If you have questions about our healthier tomorrow, call Oakwood's President at (313) 593-7700 between 4 p.m. and 6 p.m. on July 16th and 17th.

Leading the way to a healthier tomorrow. With your help.

July 1996

Dear Friend:

Oakwood Healthcare System has recently completed the data gathering and planning phase of our transition process, which involved more than 400 people (including 147 physicians and dozens representing communities we serve) during the past six months. We are now moving ahead to ensure a healthier tomorrow for our patients/members and our organization as a whole.

Earlier this month, Oakwood's board adopted recommendations emerging from the process, and approved new strategies for the organization through the year 2000. You will hear more about these from us during the next several months.

Why do we feel new strategies are necessary?

Changes in healthcare are occurring in the Detroit area and in virtually every community in the United States. They are affecting every hospital and healthcare system nationwide. These changes include a decrease in inpatient volume, and increase in the demand for outpatient care and other non-acute services, the future decline of Medicare and Medicaid reimbursement, increased pressure from payers and purchasers to reduce costs and increase efficiencies, and managed-care reimbursement which sets fixed dollars per person and dictates a shift toward wellness.

We need to listen to our customers or we won't be in business long. And, we owe it to you and others to be as healthy and strong as possible — so we can meet and exceed your expectations for years to come.

Like any good business, we need to step up and make the adjustments necessary to meet our customers' long-term needs. Those adjustments will require large investments of time and money. However, we recognize our responsibility to make decisions — as difficult as they may be — keeping tightly focused on the best, long-term interests of all those we serve. We've set the strategies and, as customer demands dictate, we will make specific decisions on ways to follow them.

What will the changes achieve? They will ensure that you benefit from consistent, high-quality care across the Oakwood system; make it easier for you to access Oakwood services; make it easier, effective and more desirable for you to move out of the hospital and into the most appropriate non-hospital settings (such as being treated in doctors' offices or at home); promote wellness by increasing education on prevention; and replace unneeded hospital beds with a network of 24 outpatient centers.

You will learn more about these changes and how they will affect you and your family. In the meantime, a special toll-free phone line has been activated through September 30th to receive your questions and comments on this. Please call 1-800-861-4630 to offer a question or comment that can be considered by us in future communications with you. Also, please feel free to write to any of us with your ideas and thoughts at: A Healthier Tomorrow, Oakwood Healthcare System P.O. Box 2500, Dearborn, Michigan 48123-2500.

We are excited about these changes, and need your support and thoughts as we move forward.

Thank you.

Sincerely,

Kenneth Aird

School buses

Procedures must be followed

Some Fiegel Elementary School parents are right to be upset that their children have on a couple of occasions been left at the bus stop because the school bus is overloaded.

It is unthinkable that children, as young as 5 and 7 years of age, are told to hold on and wait for a half-hour until the bus can return to pick them up for school. In today's world, it's simply unsafe to leave a young child standing alone at a street corner.

Clearly, something is amiss with the Plymouth-Canton Schools Transportation Department. Inherent in the transportation department's charge of transporting children to and from school, as well as to field trips, is the priority of ensuring each child's safety – on and off the school bus.

True, there are procedures in place, however, if they are not communicated to employees, particularly substitute drivers, what's the point? One error could cost a child his or her life.

Let's also imagine a 5-year-old's reaction to being told there's no room on the bus and being asked to wait on the corner.

It is the 1990s and many parents leave for work the moment the kids are on the bus or at the bus stop. Parents often don't find out that their kids have been left at the curb until their children decide to tell.

Transportation officials should have gone out of their way to inform parents of what happened when kids were left at the curb. Instead, parents were given no explanation of why their children were left behind.

There will always be problems with any large system. But those problems are only further aggravated when parents are not promptly informed. Parents have a right to know what is happening with their children, as well as the school district for which they pay taxes.

Field trips are a necessary and enjoyable part of going to school. But it seems someone goofed in the scheduling of buses when a smaller bus was sent to pick up Fiegel students because of field trips.

Surely the safe transportation of students regularly scheduled on bus routes must take precedence over field trips, as worthy as those trips may be.

Making sure that all drivers, including substitutes, know procedures, as well as full disclosure to parents when incidents arise, will ensure the safety of all children who ride buses to school.

Improved scheduling between regular routes and field trips also will go a long way in averting any possible tragedy for parents and children in the district.

Think before turning on tap

What a difference a year makes.

It was the summer of 1995, you'll recall, when water use restrictions were in place throughout much of southeastern Michigan, including western Wayne County. This year – after a cool, wet spring – it's business as usual. So go ahead: wash that car, water that already lush, green lawn for one more day, fill up the kids' pool again.

Wait a minute. Maybe now, before we get to the crisis stage, is the best time to make some permanent changes in the way we handle our resources.

Despite the current lack of restrictions, conditions are still present for a possible water shortage. A two- or three-week dry spell would do it. Remember too that the 72-inch water main under construction for suburbs just to the north won't be ready for tapping until later this year or early next.

We're lucky here in Michigan. The Great Lakes provide us with an almost inexhaustible supply of fresh water. In parts of the U.S., particularly the West, people live constantly under the same kinds of restrictions we dealt with last summer. Our good fortune isn't license for careless or neghgent behavior when it comes to turning on the spigot.

So think before you wash that car or water that lawn. Is it really necessary, or can it wait another day? Following your own, voluntary restrictions is always preferable to complying with a mandatory water use ban put in place by others.

Whalers add affordable touch

Western Wayne County will be hockey rich this fall when the Detroit Whalers face off for the first time at a new arena under construction at Beck and Five Mile roads in Plymouth Township.

The Whalers add a needed, affordable attraction to the area. Season tickets range from $149 to $249 for a 33- game season. Single-game ticket prices are $5 to $12. Last season, Red Wing season ticket prices ranged from $690 to a hefty $2,760. For a single game, ticket prices go for $15 to $60.

That means a family of four can see some good hockey for $20. That's only $5 more than one person seeing one game in the worst seat at Joe Louis Arena.

The Whalers are part of the Ontario Hockey League, which produces some players for the National Hockey League.

Here's a sampling of players who started in the Ontario league: Wayne Gretzky, Steve Yzerman and Paul Coffey.

Imagine the chance to watch a future Yzerman develop as a hockey player. In a sense, there's more of a reward for a sports fan in watching that happen than there is in watching a superstar perform.

The Whalers bring back a sense of community to sports. Many of the players, ages 16-20, will be living in area homes. Area families are being sought to house players who come from other areas.

These young players will be around the community, not jetting back to Moscow or Moose Jaw at the end of the season, never to be seen again.

Welcome, Whalers! You are a welcome addition to western Wayne County.

LETTERS

He's concerned

I am concerned over the recent "alleged" incident between Congresswoman Lynn Rivers and Rep. Deborah Whyman of Canton. It is my understanding that Rep. Whyman was harassed by a Rivers campaign worker at the recent Strawberry Festival Parade and has filed a report with the police for "ethnic intimidation."

I also read that despite several witnesses to the confrontation, Rep. Rivers denied the accusation and dismissed the event as a "phantom incident."

What is going on here? Can Congresswoman Rivers really be this insensitive? I am appalled over her total lack of concern for this matter. I feel I have to question her commitment to the community if she allows people who work for her to behave in this manner. This is exactly the problem with our government - arrogance. Those in power feel they are somehow above the law.

I think Rep. Rivers needs to get control of her staff. If she can't control the people who work for her, I have serios reservations about her ability to govern in general. I urge my fellow Canton residents to write to Congresswoman Rivers and share your concerns about this manner. We've fought for a long time to end discrimination, let's not let it win now.

Students agree

I used your June 13, 1996 article, "Community standards - Government must stay out" in summer school.

The students agreed with your opinion. My questions are as follows:

- Is the 25-member committee part of Leadership Canton?
- What have they drafted this for?
- Have you seen their list or interviewed them for their thoughts?
- Is there tought to including Plymouth, etc.?

Hats off to Canton police

This letter is being sent to the Canton Observer for recognition of the Canton Police Department. On Sunday, June 9, I noticed that a stop sign was missing at the corner of Weathersfield Way and Double Tree.

Being a main crossing for the children who attend Tonda Elementary School, I was concerned for the safety of the children who cross this intersection on their way to school. I called the Canton Police Department with my concern of the missing stop sign and most importantly the safety of the school children. They agreed with my concerns and responded immediately by placing a temporary stop sign at this intersection.

A little service you might think, I don't think so. This little service with immediate response may have saved a child from being struck by a car and seriously injured or killed. It is this type of proactive response by the Canton Police Department that other police departments should follow. So, HATS OFF TO THE CANTON POLICE DEPARTMENT for a job well done in a professional manner. A special thanks goes to Lt. Cripe and the Adam's Shift who responded to this concern.

MS 150: Bike tour is great fun for a good cause

SUSAN ROSIEK

This Saturday, more than 1,000 bicyclists from throughout the metro area will leave Northville Downs and ride 150-200 miles to raise money for the National Multiple Sclerosis Society.

Some are accomplished cyclists who will take part in a century loop (100 miles each day) or ride the 150 (75 miles each day) route at a record pace. Others are part of teams formed by area companies – GM, Ford, EDS, Bosch and Detroit Edison – who support the fund-raising effort. Others do it for fun and the personal challenge of riding 75 or 100 miles a day. (Sunny Days is a team of bikers age 60 and older.) But, whatever the motivation, everyone should have a good time.

The MS 150 Bike Tours in metro Detroit and Grand Rapids – this year marks the 11th annual event in metro Detroit – are among the most well-organized in the state. Rest stops every 10 or so miles provide healthy, refreshing snacks to refuel. Equipment failure is tended to by metro bike shop owners who volunteer their time and who make minor repairs at a reasonable price. And if riding to the next stop seems impossible there's always the SAG wagon – no one gets left behind.

For those concerned about safety, the Michigan National Guard will serve as medical and traffic coordinators for the Northville to East Lansing ride.

At the end of the first day, riders arriving on the campus at Michigan State University can get a massage, take a hot shower, eat a healthy dinner and generally enjoy a party atmosphere – all for a good cause. And, yes, you can survive a night in a college dorm.

Cyclists return to Northville Downs Sunday and are treated to a barbecue. As you cruise down Seven Mile thankful for the finish line, MS volunteers line Sheldon Road cheering and clapping as if you've just completed a leg of the Tour de France.

There's still time to sign up for the weekend ride. Karen M. Breen, campaign manager for Metro Detroit MS 150, says riders can just show up at 6:45 a.m. Saturday, pay the $35 registration fee and the $150 pledge donation. Riders can start out as early as 7:30 a.m.

The $150 pledge fee is the minimum. Pledge dollars help continue the Michigan's chapter statewide service program and support ongoing national research and education efforts aimed at the ultimate goal – eliminating MS in our lifetime.

Breen said the MS Society hopes to raise $540,000 from the ride to continue its work.

I rode the Northville to East Lansing route three years ago. It was my first time and I was among some 100 riders who took a wrong turn in downtown Brighton. I remember riding up a hill wondering why I ever let my husband – who was up ahead and didn't take the wrong turn – talk me into the ride. A short while later, I passed a pair of cyclists who were riding old-fashioned high wheelers. I don't know who they were but to this day, I admire their tenacity for riding all 150 miles on those bikes.

The last two years I've done the Grand Rapids to Hope College MS 150 with friend Caroline Price of Plymouth. She's one of those accomplished riders I mentioned earlier. Caroline averaged 20 miles an hour (sometimes more) the entire route.

The Grand Rapids to Hope College ride is smaller – a little more than 600 riders. Since I spend most of my time in southeast Michigan, the western ride offers a refreshing change of scenery.

This year, many riders from the Detroit metro headed west and took up the challenge. Former Livonians Tim Knox and Mike Gabel were among the riders. Both have been longtime MS 150 Tour riders and have raised lots of money for the cause.

Also riding was Joe Follick who collected lots of pledges from his generous co-workers at Frontier Communications (formerly Allnet) in Southfield.

If you're in decent physical shape, this weekend's ride promises to be lots of fun. If you haven't gotten on a bike in months or years, Saturday may be too early to start but there's always next year. And although it may seem like hard work, it's great exercise for a very good cause.

If you know people who have multiple sclerosis it's even more encouragement to ride because they can't. I have two good friends and a colleague at this newspaper who battle MS and my ride is relatively easy compared to what they face every day.

Pledges too are generally easy to round up. My Observer colleagues are generous folks. In fact, when summer rolls around they've come to expect that I'll be asking for a pledge.

There are lots of special people eagerly awaiting this Saturday's tour. Among them are 71-year-old Charles Morris of Livonia. He's participating for the fifth year, according to his wife, Marcy.

Morris will ride with his daughter, Sallyanne Morris, 43, of Pontiac.

Charles Morris bikes every day and he does the MS 150 Bike Tour for personal reasons. The Morrises are the parents of nine children. According to Marcy, Charles has recruited a few of the kids for his rides at one time or another.

Morris, who's lived in Livonia for 44 years, will turn in a pledge sheet that lists an impressive total of $2,100.

If you think you might ride or if you need more information - or more convincing - call Karen Breen or the MS office at 1-800-247-7382. If you can't ride and would like to volunteer, you can do that, too. Employees at Domino's Pizza are donating their time for this weekend's event.

And to Charles and Sallyanne Morris and the more than 1,000 others who'll ride Saturday, make sure your seat is padded, may the wind be at your back and have a great ride!

Michigan should be wary of vote by mail plan

TIM RICHARD

The Jim Nicholson story reminded me of a public relations lady who once told me over lunch she had made major changes in her life: different hair style, new wardrobe, new friends – even a new signature.

Next time she voted, she used her new signature and, to her astonishment, was never questioned by the poll worker. Anybody could have signed her name and voted, she said.

It recalled the time I was checking out a congressional candidate, a "Junior," to see if he voted regularly. How you voted is a secret, but whether you voted is a matter of public record. Lots of candidates are embarrassed when their voting records are revealed.

The candidate and his father lived in the same township and precinct. The clerk's record showed Junior had missed one election. Junior later told me he had, in fact, voted but the poll workers stamped his father's card, even though Sr. and Jr. had markedly different signatures.

Nicholson was accused by Ronna Romney, his rival for the GOP U.S. Senate nomination, of failing to vote in the 1992 presidential election. Nicholson said he did vote, but (1) Jim Jr.'s card was stamped. At the time, Junior had moved to Illinois to work and vote, but (2) the city clerk in Michigan never canceled his registration.

I bring this up not to take sides in a party primary but to illustrate how casually our voting records are kept. The city clerk in Michigan should have received notice from Illinois that Jim Jr. had registered there – if the system worked properly.

Secretary of State Candice Miller, our chief elections official, estimates 15 to 20 percent of voter registrations are deadwood – people who have moved, died or dropped out of society. Meanwhile, state Sen. Alma Wheeler Smith, D-Salem, is beating her drum to loosen the rules by proposing voting by mail.

By mail? Whoa! Miller says that when a new statewide computer system is fully functional and the deadwood is removed, she will consider running an election by mail.

It amazes me that Michigan doesn't have massive voter fraud right now. (Maybe we do, and no one has uncovered it.) Certainly, other states are reporting plenty of fraud. Items:

- A June 1995 Reader's Digest article, "Vote Fraud: A National Disgrace," reported that California, Pennsylvania and Texas allow either same-day registration or registration without verification of address.
- Same article: "At least twice after her husband's death in May 1993, a Baltimore woman asked her local elections board to strike his name from the voter rolls. On election day 1994, she voted for the Republican gubernatorial candidate ... Several weeks later she learned that her husband, a Democrat, had voted as well ..." The Democratic candidate for governor won a come-from-behind victory by 5,000 votes with a surge from the Baltimore precincts.

"In Baltimore, the board of elections had 21,889 such names (of voters who had been inactive five years, hadn't responded to two mailings and should have been purged), but officials dropped only 12,795 names." One gets the impression the Baltimore clerk deliberately didn't cancel the dead husband's registration.

- This tale from Rich Lowry, political reporter for National Review, June 17: Absentee ballots in Alabama account for 3-4 percent of the vote. But in 1994 in Greene County, 34 percent of all ballots were absentees. The embattled chair of the Greene County Commission won re-election with 50 percent of his votes cast absentee. A watchdog group claimed absentee ballots were stolen from people's mailboxes, among other sins.

In 1976, Michigan adopted a "motor voter" law allowing the secretary of state to accept voter registrations at driver's license offices. Under Democrat Richard Austin's rule, Miller said, Flint had five such offices (one per 28,000 people) while Novi and Wixom had zero (pop. 41,500). Austin's partisan bias showed.

With so many flaws already in the system, Michigan should be very wary of mail voting and other moony "get out the vote" schemes.

Walk reveals life's rewards

There are times, moments really, in a person's life when everything couldn't seem to get any better. You know the moments I'm talking about. The kind that if someone were making a movie, a happy, feel-good movie, that scene, that moment, would not be left on the cutting room floor. It would definitely be included in the picture. It's picture perfect.

Granted, those moments are usually rather rare; they're far different from the ordinary, the fragmented, the scattered, like-a-puzzle-someone-knocked-into, kinds of moments that fill our regular days.

Tonight I feel fortunate. I've been lifted from the ordinary chaos. Things made perfect sense to me. It was really cool.

And I didn't have to climb some tall mountain in Tibet to seek a wise man. And I didn't have to study all night long to achieve this rare moment of understanding. And I didn't have to dial up Dionne Warwick and her Psychic Hotline. All I did was take an early evening, summer walk with my family around the neighborhood. That's it. I swear. That's all it took.

After I cleaned up the supper dishes I called the children from the corners of the yard where they had been playing a form of baseball which involved a pogo stick, basketball, bases, and a very squeaky toy dump truck. I told them

■ Last year Plymouth resident Betty White volunteered 5,313 hours for Angela Hospice in Livonia. For her efforts, she won a JCPenney Golden Rule Award.

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Betty White, a volunteer for Angela Hospice in Livonia, sees the nurses that take care of terminally ill patients at the facility as angels. But she could be considered an angel in her own right.

Last year White, 76, volunteered 5,313 hours by answering the phones at night earning her a JCPenney Golden Rule Award in April. She was awarded an engraved Crystal Flame and the organization donated $1,000 in her name to Angela Hospice.

"I'm proud of my award but I'm especially glad that hospice got $1,000," White said in her Plymouth apartment.

A nine-year volunteer, White spends her evenings taking calls from caregivers, grieving relatives, and others who call from 5 p.m. to 8:30 a.m. weeknights and from 5 p.m. to 11 a.m. on the weekends.

"She's wonderful. I can't say enough about her," said Kathryn Cobleigh of Angela Hospice. "Betty White has in 1995 donated over 5,000 volunteer hours, which is more than I work. She's just fabulous."

"She's the connection between Angela Hospice and our patients when the office is closed."

White knows first hand what it's like to be a caregiver of terminally ill patients. Her husband Bill died 11 years ago; her son Larry died July 4, 1995, during a liver transplant.

"I lost a son and I lost a husband. I really have empathy for these people. I know exactly what they're going through. I've walked the road myself. They talk to me just like I'm a friend of theirs. I've had people call me back after the death and thank me and tell me how much I helped them through it just by being there when they called," White said.

Volunteers important

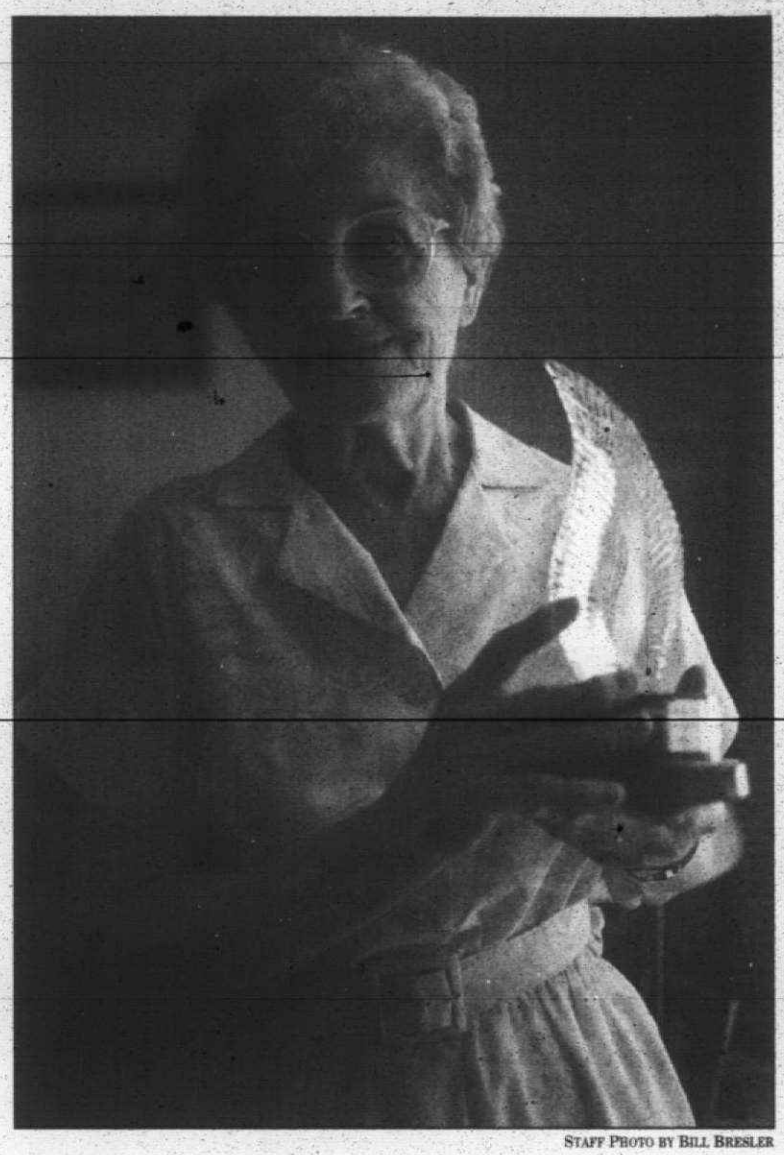

Founded 11 years ago by Sister Giovanni, Angela Hospice relies on volunteers. It boasts a roster of 300 volunteers, with about 150-200 of them active, Cobleigh said.

"They're an integral part of the hospice. Medicare requires that 5 percent (of the cumulative hours put in by workers) are volunteer hours. So it is mandatory. We could not exist without our volunteers. I think Betty alone puts in our 5 percent," Cobleigh said with a laugh.

The volunteers work with residents in the 16-bed care center, or go into homes and provide relief for caregivers. Others volunteer their time in the office or by answering the phones. Most volunteers only do it from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on the weekends and White covers the rest.

White volunteered at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Allen Park for 15 years prior to coming to Angela Hospice. When the drive from her home in Plymouth to Allen Park became rough in the winter, she looked for a place to volunteer closer to home. She saw an advertisement in the newspaper that hospice was seeking volunteers and soon thereafter she stopped her work at the hospital. Given her experience with her husband and son, White said she knew she had a meet me in the front and we'd arrange our walk line up.

Joe led the way on his handed down from Tony two-wheeler with the training wheels, next came Tony pushing Jack in a stroller, then me pushing Steve in his stroller, and then Carmen. Ron joined us after about four houses.

So the whole family was out for a summer stroll. Together. All of us. That was the beginning of the moment I'll capture and remember.

As we walked and strolled the sweet smell of honeysuckle drifted toward us. Boy, what a summer smell that is. And the smell of a freshly cut lawn. Kind of pungent, kind of sweet. I didn't want to breathe it all in so deeply that I made a snort noise, but then I didn't want to miss a bit of it either.

■ As we walked and strolled the sweet smell of honeysuckle drifted toward us. Boy, what a summer smell that is. And the smell of a freshly cut lawn. Kind of pungent, kind of sweet. I didn't want to breathe it all in so deeply that I made a snort noise, but then I didn't want to miss a bit of it either.

I don't know who started it exactly, but at some point "Take Me Out To The Ballgame" became our walking song. We were pretty quiet about it, I don't think anyone heard us even if they happened to be sitting on their front porches. But we sang it anyway. Even 2-year-old Jack knows this song. His version cracks me up. A lot of the words are close facsimiles to the real lyrics and some were right on and same are just very fine, apt interpretations. Like the part where it goes, "Buy me some peanuts and Cracker Jacks," Jack sings, "But me some peanuts and Cracker Me's."

While we were singing, softly so no one could really hear us, we heard coming from one of the streets over, the ice cream truck's tune. This year it's the rag-time song, one of my all-time favorites, "The Entertainer." I love that song; it's so jaunty and up and dancy.

Carmen, being at the back of the walk line, heard it first and ran for home to get some money from her piggy bank. She was quick and brought enough even for her brothers. I was floored. I didn't want to let on that I was floored. But I was.

She bought her little brothers some Popsicles, Tony didn't want one, he was still full from supper. Joe couldn't drive his big bike and eat his super-duper all kinds of colors inside and outside Popsicle so he walked and I pushed-pulled his bike, Ron took over Steven's stroller, and the walk continued.

Puddle discussions took place. So did tree helicopter discussions. A couple exchanges had to do with large ants, anthills, and a jet plane overhead. Almost at the end of the walk, our house now directly across the street, we paused to say "hi" to our neighbors. They were out in the yard and came by the shady part of the sidewalk where we could catch up on the latest, and keep an eye on Jack who broke free from his stroller right about then.

Some of the neighborhood birds were beginning their night songs. An evening breeze ruffled the full, summer-laden trees. Pleasant family news was being exchanged. Friendly laughter punctuated the cooling evening. A dog barked somewhere.

And nothing could have been better.

lot to offer to Angela Hospice.

"I had taken care of my husband at home. He was bedridden. I had a lot to offer. I could turn and make the bed, bathe them, get them out of bed and to a chair. I had learned all this from his physical therapist."

She worked with caregivers in homes until she fell and broke her leg and hip. Sister Giovanni, who answers the phones day and night, asked if she would consider taking the phones during rush hour. White agreed.

"I started and I never stopped."

Feeling comforted

She's been on the phones overnight for eight years; she was on the phone during the daytime for the first few years.

"Everybody you're dealing with is sad. It's frustration. It's sorrow. There's nobody getting better that we handle. But just being able to talk to them, they have a voice there. You can have an answering machine but there isn't a person there who understands what they're going through."

A light sleeper, White goes to bed and when the phone rings she picks it up before the ring is over, she said.

"Whatever it is, if it's a death I take down the information and tell them the nurse is on the way. I just say a little prayer to myself for the patient who died and for the family and go back to sleep."

'I really appreciate that they allow me to do this. I'm blessed. ... I feel like I want to give back some of the things I've gotten. I think we're all supposed to help each other. I don't think we're put here just to be an island unto ourselves.'

Betty White
Angela Hospice volunteer

"I feel comforted that I know that God's taking over now. What will keep me awake is the blaring of televisions. If someone blares their television I can't go back to sleep. With this, I can go back to sleep because God's taken over."

White feels blessed that she is able to volunteer for hospice.

"I really appreciate that they allow me to do this. I'm blessed. I really am blessed. At my age I've got my health. I've got my sight. I've got my hearing. I feel like I want to give back some of the things I've gotten. I think we're all supposed to help each other. I don't think we're put here just to be an island unto ourselves.

"If I could leave one thing for my children, it would be the knowledge that some of this rubs off on them. It's something that they can look back on and kind of walk in my footsteps."

After all, the mother of six – Bill Jr., Richard, Karen, Gayle, Cheryl and the late Larry – is following in the footsteps of her mother, who was a nurse.

"These hospices are really doing such merciful good with those that are on the last road of life. The nurses are angels. Every patient they have is not going to get better. They never once see a patient get better yet they handle themselves beautifully and they have such a love for it. You have to be a special person to do that."

Cervical cancer screening – the Pap test
By James A. Roberts M.D., M.S., F.A.C.O.G., F.A.C.S.
Since Papanicolaou first introduced what has become known as the Pap test, few other tests have been more widely used and misunderstood. The Pap test may be the most significant piece of preventative medicine available to women.
The Pap test involves the simple and painless step of removing a sample of cells from the cervix — the opening to the womb — usually done as part of any pelvic examination. This sample is then tested for the presence or absence of cells associated with cancer. While cervical cancer is the most common female cancer world wide, the extensive use of this test in the US has resulted in cervical cancer becoming a rare occurrence with only 15,700 cases diagnosed in 1995.
Since cervical cancer is caused by a sexually transmitted virus (Human Papilloma Virus-HPV), experts agree that a woman should begin having the Pap test as soon as she becomes sexually active. There is less agreement about how often this test should be performed. However, most major physician groups support the annual performance of the test.
Many women misunderstand the Pap test, thinking it will screen for several different cancers. When the results of a Pap test are negative, meaning that cancerous cells have not been detected, patients assume they do not have cancer. In fact, the Pap test will only screen for cervical cancer. Cancer of the vagina, uterus, or ovaries can rarely be detected by a Pap test and most other types of cancer are almost never detected.

A Link for ADD, LD and Other Struggling Kids?
Empower Your Children for the Upcoming School Year

Fact: 93% of children in special education have it. 78.9% of juvenile delinquents have it. 80% of reading disabled children have it. Virtually 100% of ADD children have it.

What do they have in common? The answer is simple: poor vision.

It's a long known fact that the inmate population has an overwhelming number of vision problems. It's a little known fact that learning disabled do as well.

We are all concerned about illiteracy. But what can we do about it?

According to John P. Jacobi, O.D., we can begin with comprehensive vision testing for our students. "Every day, I see children who have an undiagnosed vision problem, although they are all receiving school screenings. That test is very basic. These children need their eyesight and visual processing skills assessed--in other words, do they have the ability to focus, stay in focus for the entire school day, remember and apply what they have seen?"

"We offer a free visual screening that goes far beyond even the most comprehensive of vision examinations. These skills, though rarely tested, are a necessity for any at-risk child."

It seems so obvious that our first question would be, "Can he even see the print?" But kids are missed and misdiagnosed all the time.

"What we accomplish in our visual therapy clinic is the visual rehabilitation of patients, which allows them access to their best tool for learning, working--everyday function," notes Dr. Jacobi. "In addition to addressing their focus and double vision, we will test and treat visual processing including visual memory and visualization."

If your child has reading, spelling, or handwriting problems, has headaches, loses his or her place while reading, reverses letters, or is unable to sit still, call Dr. Jacobi for a screening of vision problems. He will offer it free of charge to parents who have concerns in this area. Call (313) 525-8170 for an appointment. Don't overlook the obvious.

Debby Duncan

Northville Christian adds intern to staff

Northville Christian Assembly has put out the welcome mat for Debby Duncan who has joined the church's summer intern program.

Duncan is working with Pastor Carlton Quattlebaum in the Creative Arts Department. A junior at Evangel College in Springfield, Mo., she is majoring in vocal music education.

She is the daughter of the Rev. Hugh and Joyce Duncan, outstanding Christian leaders in the community. Duncan is the District Home Missions director for the Michigan District of the Assemblies of God. Joyce is fifth grade teacher for Northville Christian School.

Her older brother, Hugh Jr., also contributes in creative arts as a worship leader and musician.

"Debby's heart for God and His church shines through everything she does," Pastor Quattlebaum said. "Her background as a PK (preacher's kid) has helped her to not romanticize ministry, but have a practical sensible approach, knowing that ministry is often just plain, hard work.

"Her diverse abilities enable her to serve will in a variety of capacities, a fact that we are enjoying very much! I hope that through the experience, Debby will leave with an ignited desire to use, develop and consecrate her abilities to God for his service."

About her summer experience, Debby hopes to gain experience "which will further my abilities and equip me for what the future holds."

"God has given me a great love for music and has called me to work in both the classroom and the church," she added.

Writer is independent and seeks room to grow

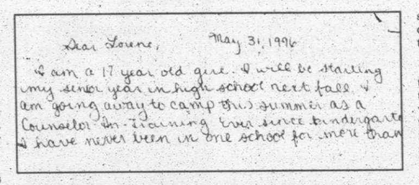

Dear Lorene,
I am a 17-year-old girl. I will be starting my senior year in high school next fall. I am going away to camp this summer as a counselor-in-training. Ever since kindergarten, I have never been in one school for more than two years. Unlike most kids that move around a lot, my family is not involved in the Army. We just move around for the mere reason of not staying in one place too long. For this reason I have never had many friends. I hope to accomplish this goal in my senior year. I am left-handed and always been an admirer of your column.

J.P.,
Livonia

The handwriting of many young people changes frequently and sometimes without too much provocation. So I am reluctant to analyze it without seeing samples written at other intervals. However, this is a teenager who is quite mature for her 17 years. I can't help wondering, if it is due, in part, to the numerous moves she has experienced. It would be interesting to hear her opinion on this.

I am cognizant the readers have heard me say this previously, but the spacing used on the page of handwriting is important in analyzing the person's personality. Good spacing, among other things, suggests one who makes efficient use of her time, Her omission of most lead-in strokes on words augments this.

The writer is independent and seeks the freedom to grow. Her approach to life and living is usually direct. When there is something to be done she does not just sit around and talk about it. She starts in and gets it done, and done well. Efficiency is her hallmark. Mediocrity has no place in her work.

Here is a young girl who has already made it a habit to set goals for herself. She does not wait for someone else to do it for her. She knows what she wants to accomplish and gets busy working on it.

The writer has also been blessed with a good mind. She has many ways of thinking and solving problems. She tends to explore and analyze new information and probes for logical solutions. Intuition appears to be used only rarely.

Her memory is retentive and she keeps an eye out for all details. Then she takes the time to see they are handled.

I think this girl would be a joy to know. She can relate smoothly to others and is not one to make waves. She is open-minded and tolerant of people and their opinions and ideas. I suspect she is also an attentive listener. She knows how to be tactful.

Although empathy, amiability and peace are usually chosen, she can stand up for herself, if pushed too far or too long. Outwardly, she is composed and inclined to hold her feelings in check. In emergency situations, she can remain cool. Rarely does she become impulsive.

She appears to be a tad secretive about her personal life. Her signature and the text are very similar telling us she is as she presents herself. She does not try to appear as someone she is not.

She finds beauty in many things, especially nature. Colors, especially purple, can be pleasing to her. I think she has also been exposed to some of life's finer things.

If you would like your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please write a few paragraphs about yourself, using a full sheet of white, unlined paper and writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and signature are all helpful. Due to the volume of mail, personal replies are not possible. However, objective feedback is welcome.

Engler praises Geake for Friend of Court reform bills

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

A massive package of bills to reform Friend of the Court operations means more than exposing deadbeat dads. It's also part of welfare reform, said Gov. John Engler as he signed three more bills pushed by Sen. Robert Geake.

"No one's done more than Bob," Engler said of the Republican senator from Northville. "He has been tireless in going around the state" in 10 public hearings totaling more than 50 hours.

"There was merciless beating and upbraiding of the Friend of the Court," said Geake. "In spite of that, we've had very gracious cooperation from FOC associations."

Engler, in a signing ceremony July 2, said assuring that custodial parents get child support will "keep people from falling into poverty and see that children are well-served. For many, the failure to receive child support is a floor they fall through into poverty and welfare."

As cameras rolled, Engler pointed to a chart listing two fathers and a mother from Kent, Ingham and Tuscola counties who had skipped the state owing $42,000, $29,000 and $21,000 respectively in child support.

Each month state agencies will release lists of "10 most wanted" parents based on how far they are behind in support payments.

"We're going after those people who conceal their income by taking payment under the table," said Geake. "We want the court to enforce its own orders."

The new laws will:

- Direct Friend of the Court offices to be open 20 hours a week during "non-traditional" times. FOC offices must disburse payments within 14 days of receiving them. FOC also will be required to report much data, such as tax intercepts and support modifications, to the State Court Administrator's office.
- Create a FOC advisory committee in each county's board of commissioners. The FOC director will continue to be an appointee of the chief circuit judge, but aggrieved persons will have a public sounding board. The bill was an alternative to Geake's original plan to take FOC entirely away from courts and place them under general county government.
- Allow a judge to change, retroactively, the amount of support payments from parents who hide income.

Earlier bills allow the lifting of state driver's and occupational licenses of deadbeat parents; punish those who make false reports of child abuse; mandate the reporting of deadbeat parents to credit agencies; and establish a "parentage registry" in the Family Independence Agency to help enforce child support obligations.

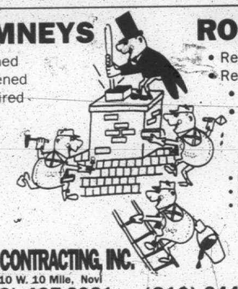

The bills also dovetail with efforts by Rep. Jessie Dalman, R-Holland, to change Michigan's no-fault divorce law.

Dalman said her bills would require a "parenting plan" in each divorce so there will be "more mediation, less arbitrary decisions. Divorce will continue. We just want people to understand their responsibilities."

To report missing parents who are delinquent on child support, contact Bill Hart at the Michigan Family Independence Agency's office of child support at 517-335-0892.

CC takes 3rd place in national quiz bowl meet

The varsity quiz bowl team from Detroit Catholic Central High School placed third out of 68 competing teams from all over the United States in a competition held at Marymount University in Arlington, Va., in June.

Coached by Howard Weinberg, a Catholic Central faculty member, the varsity quiz bowl team consisted of Clint McDonell, of Garden City, Greg Van Hoey of Redford Township, Mike Buchanan of Farmington Hills, Hernan Munoz of Canton Township, Scott Chemello of Livonia, Mike Curle of Novi, and Pat Medado and Chris Marco, both of Detroit.

After that tournament, the quiz bowl team headed to the Panasonic Academic Challenge at Disney World, also held in June, in Orlando, Fla. The tournament was held by invitation only, with one team per state. Catholic Central finished 10th out of 50 teams.

Catholic Central is a private, all-male college preparatory high school in Redford Township.

Transfer tax refund office sets new hours

The hours for the Wayne County real estate transfer tax refund center are 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

That's different from what was originally announced because of a consent order issued in late June, according to Harmetha Jarrett, assistant corporation counsel. The office will be open Monday through Friday until Oct. 31, 1996, but will be closed on Labor Day and Columbus Day.

The office opened July 1, to issue refunds to people who sold real estate in Wayne County between Jan. 11, 1990, and May 10, 1996.

Under a court decision issued earlier this year by Circuit Judge John Kirwan, Wayne County must now pay back part of the money it collected in real estate transfer taxes.

The tax was increased after in 1980 the state gave Wayne County, alone among the 83 counties, power to raise the real estate transfer tax to 75 cents from 55 cents per $500 of property value.

A homeowner challenged the tax in 1990. A Michigan Supreme Court decision last year said the tax could only be recovered from 1990 when it was first challenged by the homeowner.

The county has been ordered to refund 20 cents per $500 in property value plus 2 percent interest.

To obtain a refund a seller must appear in person with a driver's license or other picture identification to apply for it at the tax refund center, which has been set up at the Neudeck Building, 415 Clifford, at the corner of Clifford and Bagley in Detroit. No applications will be accepted by mail.

If the seller is disabled, resides out of state, or is in the military, he or she can designate someone as an agent, but must use a form available at the refund center. That form requires a notarized signature from the seller. A group of sellers for one piece of real estate can follow the same process, with one designated agent presenting notarized forms for the other sellers. Only one check will be issued per transaction.

The seller must provide a copy of the deed, or if it is not available, Wayne County will research it.

The county is encouraging claimants to maintain an alphabetized schedule to claim the refunds: last names ending in A-D on Mondays, E-J on Tuesdays, K-O on Wednesdays, P-S on Thursdays, and T-Z on Fridays.

A phone number with taped information has been set up at (313) 224-5050.

Celebrate the arts

DURING DOG DAYS OF

summer

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN • SPECIAL WRITER

"If people see you're in the Ann Arbor show, it gives them confidence to buy a painting," said Plymouth artist Thomas LeGault. Year after year fair goers line up on the corner of Liberty and Main Street.to watch this whiz with a paint brush complete an acrylic work every 1 1/2 hours.

"Ann Arbor has helped establish me," said LeGault who has exhibited in the Ann Arbor Art Fair for 20 of the 25 years he's painted the representational abstracts featuring Northern Michigan lake scenes, florals and lighthouses. "The fair is a showcase, a qualifier for who's who. And even for people not making a purchase, there's no where else they can sample a variety of media this expansive."

Organizers expect 500,000 visitors to celebrate the visual and performing arts at the nationally acclaimed Ann Arbor Art Fairs July 24-27. More than 1,000 artists and fine crafts persons, who have been subjected to intense jurying processes, will descend on 24 downtown city blocks in a festival fit for the entire family. Imaginative works ranging from storybook pottery by David Stabley of Pennsylvania to classic car paintings by Tom Hale of Farmington Hills to contemporary glass tables by Stan Megdall of West Bloomfield are among the extensive list sure to please every art patron.

In addition to the finished works, kids of all ages will be fascinated watching juried artists and members of the Ann Arbor Potters Guild demonstrate their skills from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily. Ethnic and fine restaurants, outdoor cafes and food booths will tempt fair-goers with dozens of dining opportunities. For the undecided, the Edible Art Fare on Liberty between Main and Ashley will serve a sampling from the menus of Ann Arbor's restaurants.

The Ann Arbor Art Fairs are actually three fairs in one, each with its own history and concept. The Ann Arbor Street Art Fair, the original juried show now in its 37th year, is known for exhibiting cutting edge artwork. Selected as the top fine craft show in the nation by Sunshine Magazine in 1995, the Ann Arbor Street Fair received nearly 2,000 applications from 36 states for 190 booths.

"We have a total of 73 new artists. One of the most interesting is Patrick Dragon. Although not new to the fair, he will be throwing clay forms for people to touch and leave their imprint in the vessels in progress," said Susan Froelich, Ann Arbor Street Art Fair executive director.

The State Street Area Art Fair features 275 nationally prominent artists. Organized by a group of State Street merchants in 1968, the fair is in the heart of the State Street shopping district.

"We're really excited because we have a lot of new exhibitors like nationally known African-American artist Margaret Warfield from Georgia. And there's more intricate wood work and new metal work this year," said State Street Fair coordinator Kathy Krick.

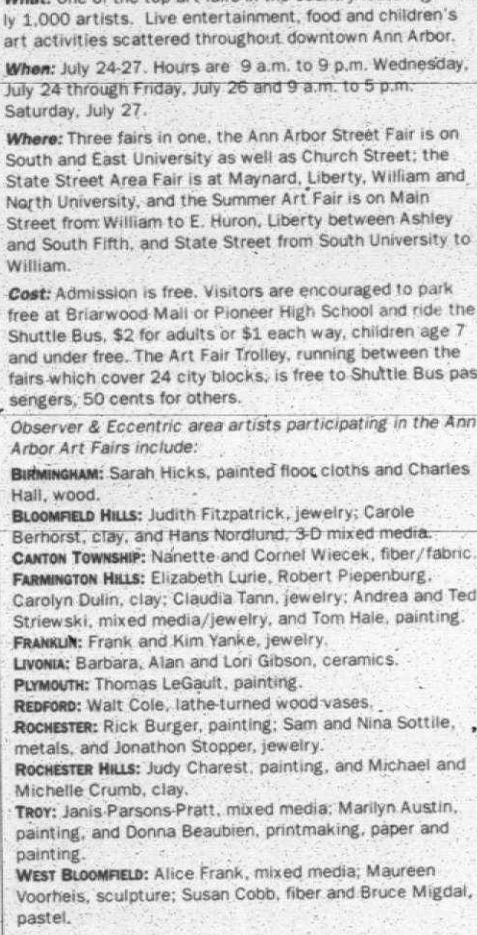

The Summer Art Fair, sponsored by the 1,500 member Michigan Guild of Artists and Artisans, is the largest of the three fairs with 560 artists in 540 booths. For 26 years it has delighted fair goers with contemporary American art and fine crafts, and the ever-popular Imagination Station at Liberty and Fifth where families can create art for free. "We've invited 112 different local performers. The live music adds a whole other aspect to the art fair that's fun," said director Shary Brown.

Competition for entry is tough in the three fairs. While criteria for acceptance differs, all three utilize committees to jury slides. In the case of The Guild, seniority of members is a factor. Although artists undergo intense scrutiny, they reapply year after year because it's well known in the arts community that exhibiting in the Ann Arbor Art Fairs will add credibility to their resumes.

For the last 15 years, Maureen Voorheis has shown her polished aluminum, cast and fused glass sculptures in Ann Arbor "because sales are good." The Summer Art Fair provides the West Bloomfield sculptor with a large audience to test her latest designs for tables and mirrors featuring neon lighting under cast glass.

"It's great exposure. You're getting so many people from out of town because it's so prestigious.

FINE ARTS & CRAFTS FESTIVAL

Art in the Park bigger and better

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

Visitors will find more food and entertainment than ever at the 16th annual Art in the Park July 13-14 in Plymouth. Show producer Dianne Quinn credits the city's new "Streetscape" project for allowing her to interweave everything from Thai food to crepes Suzette and sweet corn to tempt taste buds. A barefoot violinist from Boulder, Colo., harpist and hammered dulcimer duo dressed in Medieval clothing, a 1920s jazz, swing, and Dixieland group, South American Andean folklore by Americamanta, and children's music by Altered Ego will treat the ears and the soul.

"Thanks to the installation of electrical outlets in the recently completed 'Streetscape,' this is the first year we've been able to spread food and entertainment throughout the show," said Dianne Quinn.

From 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday, and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, nearly 400 booths will sport paintings, pottery, jewelry, sculpture, photography, stained and blown glass, basketry, wearable art and wood crafts by artists from 25 states including Maryland, New York and California.

"Because people are getting into their yards more we've increased the yard and garden art. There's lots of fun stuff from metal sculpture made with found and new objects by Richard Peterman to canvas hanging chairs by Martha Anderson and stone carved garden art by Vicki Carr," Quinn said.

"One of the best artists this year is Hilda Gleizer Rindom. Her paintings are very colorful and have that European flair."

Quinn commissioned the Florida artist to create a painting from photographs of Plymouth's streets, new lamps and clock. The brightly colored scene is featured on this year's laser-printed Art in the Park T-shirts. On the back is a poem by Rod Reinhart about the annual festival Quinn founded 16 years ago with 33 artists in Kellogg Park. Born in Cuba, Gleizer Rindom studied at a top art school in Havana. Her work is reminiscent of Israeli artist Itzchak Tarkay's cafe scenes.

Megan Wakar, 8, of Canton, is the youngest exhibiting artist in Art in the Park. The Tonda Elementary student will bring more than 80 of her clay animals priced at $2 on up. Wakar began making the farm animals, whales, dogs, cats, elephants and lions after taking classes at Which Craft in Livonia 1 1/2 years ago when her mother, Theresa, took note of Megan's skills for sculpting a bear from Crayola modeling clay. Talent runs in the Wakar family. Megan's father is world champion ice carver Ted Wakar.

"It's given her a boost of confidence, but I don't want to push her. As much as anything, I want her to have a good time. She's having fun and we're spending a lot of time together sitting around the table," said Theresa Wakar who assists Megan by rolling out the clay.

Glass blowers Joseph Wisniewski and Christine Fleischer of Livonia are looking forward to exhibiting at Art in the Park because this is their first fair although both have shown work at galleries before. They've been busy applying for a sales tax license and creating paperweights, bowls, plates and vessels to put inside their new tent. Although the hot glass is worked in John Fitzpatrick's Touch of Light Studio in Ferndale, all of the grinding and engraving is done in their Livonia studio. Prices range from $35 to $200.

"It's the excitement of being there and participating as artists rather than observers," said Christine Fleischer.

On Saturday only, Debbie Malek of Plymouth will exhibit her adult's and children's furniture, hand-painted in English cottage-style. Look for Adirondack chairs, also garden angel and

Music in the Park just one of arts council's community offerings

LINDA ANN CHOMIN

Brisk breezes blew through Kellogg Park last week as Guy Sflerezza and the Chautauqua Express rolled into Plymouth to entertain the crowd of more than 300 assembled on the grass. The Music in the Park Series is hosted by the Plymouth Community Arts Council every Wednesday noon to 1 p.m. through Aug. 21. Sponsored by Carl L. Schultz and Sealant Equipment & Engineering Inc., the program is one of several presented in the community by the arts council.

Vera Russanow, an Orion Township children's librarian who lives in Livonia, came to hear Sflerezza to determine if the singer/guitarist's program might be appropriate for the 50 five and six year olds in her storytime hour. Singing "Yellow Submarine" and other songs, the popular Sflerezza led groups of grinning children through the park like a pied piper.

"It's nice the way the music is for all ages," said Vera Russanow.

"It's mostly moms with little kids and business people having their lunches that attend the Wednesday afternoon concerts in the park," said Debra Madonna, PCAC chair for the event.

"The criteria we use for booking performers is the music must keep moving. The focus is on music. We have a great canopy for it here in the park. The city cooperates with us by setting up the PA system and everything."

The annual budget for Music in the Park, including the costs of performers and programs, is $2,750. Next year's projected figure is around $3,500. Thanks to folks in the community like Schultz and his company, programs like Music in the Park will continue to give pleasure to arts lovers in the area this summer.

The arts council is currently in the midst of Capital Campaign Drive to raise funds for phase two of renovations to its Sheldon Road building. Scheduled to begin in mid-August, the work entails the creation of an arts rental gallery, storage space, lobby, and business offices. In order to match a $42,000 Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs grant by September 30, the PCAC must raise $80,000.

"We're appealing to individuals, corporate and retailers within the community through mail and personal contact for donations," said PCAC executive director Randy Lee.

Since the completion of phase one in March, the council has been able to expand its hours and programming. Founded in 1969 as a pilot program for supplementing arts curricula in the Plymouth-Canton Schools, the PCAC has grown immensely and now offers not only art classes but a children's theater program, Music in the Park series, art rental gallery, scholarship awards, and the annual dinner theater and fall artists and craftsmen show.

There are several ways we all can help to support the arts council efforts to renovate the non-profit Joanne Winkleman Hulce Center for the Arts. Pilgrim Motor Sports has donated a Kawasaki jet ski valued at $5,750 for a drawing to be held at Art in the Park 3 p.m. Sunday, July 14 in Plymouth. Tickets are $1 and available at Frances Jewelry Gallery, The Trading Company and the PCAC offices at 774 N. Sheldon or by calling (313) 416-4ART.

While the arts council hopes to raise $10,000 with the raffle, Lee hopes generous patrons will contribute on their own to the campaign to provide an appropriate setting for arts programming. A $5,000 donation will entitle you or your business to a Pewabic tile installed in the lobby's permanent architecture and bearing the donor's name. All donations are tax deductible. The reward for smaller contributions from individuals is knowing you helped build a facility to encourage future generations in nurturing the arts. We all must help if the arts are to survive.

But the bottom line is it forces you to come up with new ideas. It stimulates your creativity," said Voorheis.

This is the first year Sarah Hicks, a University of Michigan School of Art graduate, was juried into the State Street Fair.

The Birmingham resident is anxious to hear visitors' comments about her floor cloths painted with traditional fruits and flowers.

Some of her tromp l'oiel style cloths mimic a fish pond or an oriental rug with a spilled glass of wine. Although most of her commissions comes from word-of-mouth, she anticipates a dramatic increase in sales after appearing in this highly rated national show.

"Ann Arbor is the biggest fair. All the artists want to get in. It's a huge four-day event," said Hicks.

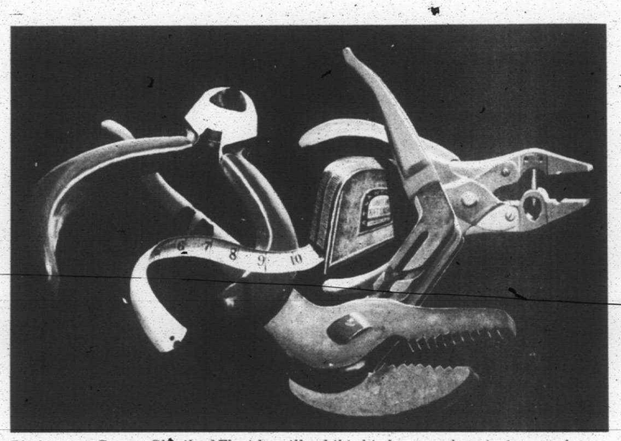

This is also Walt Cole's first year in the State Street Fair although the Redford wood worker has exhibited his lathe-turned vases made from exotic woods in Birmingham's Art in the Park and Franklin's Art on the Green for three years.

"It's an accomplishment for me to be in it. The recognition is important," said Cole.

Carolyn Dulin of Rochester agrees with Cole on the value of recognition but in her viewpoint even more important is the exposure; it's priceless.

Her 24-inch colored porcelain figures have been seen by 1 1/2 million people in the Ann Arbor Street Fair during the past three years.

"That kind of recognition helps your career. Rated as one of the nation's finest shows, it gets terrific crowds. A lot of artists do very well," Dulin said.

other styles of bird houses. Malek's whimsical creations raise crafting to a higher level of art. Much of the furniture is hand made by husband Ken Malek.

Something new and interesting at this year's show is Hand Art. Have your hand cast and molded. Make your own hand, your child's hand, or a parent and child holding hands. Like a portrait or bronzed baby shoes, Hands Unlimited creates a memory that will last forever. Hands are $15 each, stands $10.

A Plymouth Community Arts Council board member, Quinn is excited to be hosting a raffle Sunday, July 14 at Art in the Park to benefit phase two of renovations to the PCAC building. Win a Kawasaki Jet Ski donated by Roger Ratliff of Pilgrim Motor Sports in Plymouth. Valued at $5,750, the two person water craft includes a Shoreland trailer.

Tickets are $1 each and available in Plymouth at Frances Jewelry Gallery, The Trading Post, and the PCAC office or by calling (313) 416-4ART.

"We really need to come up with matching funds of $80,000 by September 30 in order to take advantage of a Michigan Arts and Cultural Affairs grant," said Quinn.

Local artists participating in Art in the Park include Marianne Akers and her soft sculpture Boo kids, Santas and angels, and Barb and Alan Gibson, clay from Livonia; Kathy Sandberg, pottery, Tom LeGault, painting and the Village Potters Guild from Plymouth; and Rick Denomme, wildlife photography, Northville.

Also of note:

"Art at the Pavilion" July 19-21 at the Southfield Civic Center Pavilion, 26000 Evergreen Road. Tickets for the opening night benefit and art preview scheduled 5-9 p.m. Friday, July 19 are $15.

Admission to "Art at the Pavilion," a fine arts and crafts show that features 115 exhibitors hailing from Texas to Vermont, is $4. Hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, July 20 and Sunday, July 21. Parking is free for the three day event. For more information or benefit tickets call 1-(800)-834-9437.

Local artists participating include Barbara and Alan Gibson, clay, and Warren Agee, jewelry, Livonia.

Playing H.O.R.D.E. Fest like summer camp

Seeing 'Red': God Street Wine – from left, guitarist/lead vocalist Lo Faber, pianist/vocalist Jon Bevo, guitarist/lead vocalist Aaron Maxwell, drummer/vocalist Tomo, and bassist/vocalist Dan Pifer – play the second stage at this year's H.O.R.D.E. Festival at Pine Knob Sunday and Monday, July 14-15.

The H.O.R.D.E. (Horizons of Rock Developing Everywhere) Festival shows at Pine Knob Sunday, July 14-Monday, July 15, sold out soon after tickets went on sale, but it's not only the fans that are looking forward to the festival.

Dan Pifer, bassist/guitarist/vocalist for God Street Wine, said playing the H.O.R.D.E. Festival is like going to summer camp.

"It's great for the musicians, too," Pifer said. "It's like summer camp for us. Insane things go on. Last year the Black Crowes' bass player was getting a lesson from Ziggy Marley's bass player because he didn't really understand how to play reggae. It's really nice, a really good vibe."

Pifer added that it's fun for him to see the bands perform. This year's line-up includes Blues Traveler, Lenny Kravitz, Rusted Root and Natalie Merchant on the main stage, and God Street Wine, Fiji Mariners, The Samples, and Jeff Healey band on the second stage Sunday, July 14. On Monday, July 15, Freddy Jones Band takes the Fiji Mariners place.

"It is so cool to see Lenny Kravitz. He never seemed to tour around where I was, and now I finally get to see him night after night. He's just so cool with his huge dreadlocks, sunglasses and his band is all decked out like '70s Zeppelin. It's so rock 'n' roll. It's great, I love it."

God Street Wine is touring in support of "Red," its debut album for Mercury Records but its fourth album overall. "Red" follows on the heels of "$1.99 Romances," which was released by Geffen in 1994 but sank soon afterward due to a lack of record company support, Pifer said.

The band's latest album, Pifer said, is a much more relaxed record than "$1.99 Romances."

"We made a relaxed record. It's very introspective. There's a lot of stuff about personal relationship that were going on at the time. There's anger and frustration. There's a lot of that in the record," Pifer said.

"There's a lot of fun in the album, too. I wouldn't call it a dark, depressing record. It's reflective of the space we were in. It's a very honest record."

Misc.: Hard rockers Korn will host its own Internet call-in "talk show" at 7 p.m. Pacific Time Thursday, July 18 at http://www.sony.dreammedia.com/Epic/artistdetail.qry/artistid=97. Korn Internet Live will give fans a preview of new material and a direct connection to the band. During the broadcast, Korn will debut just-recorded tracks from the recent studio sessions and play more music live. The U.S. audience will be able to call toll-free phone numbers set up in the studio to talk directly to the band members with the conversations being broadcast. It will take place from the Los Angeles studio where Korn is recording the follow up to its gold-certified, self-titled debut. ... The self-titled debut album from Detroit blues artist Robert Bradley's Blackwater Surprise is due out Tuesday, Sept. 17, on RCA. ... Ben Grosse of Canton's Pearl Sound studios has remixed "Ready To Go," the latest single from Republica, an acclaimed U.K. indie alternative/dance band signed to RCA in the United States. The band is fronted by Nigerian-born vocalist Saffron who has performed with N-Joi and The Shamen. Grosse has also mixed music by Filter, Deborah Harry, Red Hot Chili Peppers, and the Flaming Lips.

Mouth-watering delights await at Opa! Fest, July 12-14 at St. Nicholas Greek Orthodox Church, 760 West Wattles Road in Troy. (810) 362-9575. Hours are 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $1 at the door.

Last year more than 7,000 people attended the festival which features authentic Greek folk dancing, live music, Festival singers, children's activities, and specialty food items.

Cooking demonstrations will be presented throughout the day so that anyone wishing to make Greek foods will have a chance to try their hand at some tasty dishes. Recipes will also be available.

The weekend events will also include the popular cultural exhibit "Eternal Olympics" highlighting the 100th anniversary of the Olympic Games. Look for parishioner Rich Fisher 2 p.m. Sunday at the Loukoumathes booth. He and other parishioners will be preparing these feather like honey balls. The "honeyballs" booth has become a labor of love for the church and Nick and Helen Masters of Beverly Hills, former owners of Masters Candies in Redford, and their family. Last year they prepared 10,360 honeyballs.

'Lone Star' gives murder mystery a Texas twist

JOHN MONAGHAN

REVIEW

Seems everybody wanted sheriff Charlie Wade dead at one time or another. So when his bones and badge are unearthed 40 years after his mysterious disappearance, current sheriff Sam Deeds finds himself saddled with a difficult case. Among his many problems: the prime suspect appears to be his late father, a legend in tiny Frontera, Texas.

A murder mystery with a Texas twist, John Sayles' "Lone Star" is a story of the painful aspects of discovery. Constantly Sam is warned not to dig too deep, not to open that particular box where a rattle snake might be waiting inside. This is the kind of movie where his revelations will stick with you long after it's over.

It's also a story of changing times in this Texas border town, whose white power structure slowly returns to the Mexicans, and shouts are exchanged over the way schools teach the history of the Mexican-American struggle. The sheriff's job of making deals with business owners and illegal immigrants has turned him into what Sam calls a glorified jailer.

"Lone Star" is another in a series of fascinating films written, directed, and edited by Sayles who has, in films as diverse as "Eight Men Out," "Passion Fish" and last year's "Secret of Roan Irish," delivered unique, heartfelt stories with fascinating characters. His latest effort may be the best film of the year.

Known for working out of the Hollywood mainstream, Sayles shies from big-name stars, casting earthy "Picket Fences" actor Chris Cooper in the main role. Kris Kristofferson has the pivotal part as the racist, Colt-toting Sheriff Wade, seen briefly but unforgettably in flashback, making sure he has his cut of any illegal activities, from poker games to illegal border crossings, that take place in his jurisdiction.

Matthew McConaughey (best know for a part in "Dazed and Confused" but guaranteed to make a splash in "A Time to Kill" later this month) plays Sam's father, whose own term as sheriff was marked by more humane but still questionable practices when it came to dispensing justice.

Rarely a showy director, Sayles does some clever things with flashbacks. Sheriff Sam might be gazing across a barroom or off the side of a bridge and then the camera pans over to the action in the past. Part of it involves the Mexican girl Sam was involved with as a teenager. With his divorce final and her husband dead, they start to pick up again.

Time and again, Sayles presents a moral landscape that's hard to traverse. The townspeople want the sheriff to let sleeping skeletons lie, afraid the publicity will hurt the unveiling of a town square plaque in dedication to his father. He keeps digging, wanting partially to prove something to himself about the man he's constantly sized up against.

In some ways "Lone Star" works as a companion piece to "Fargo," the surprise Coen brothers' hit, but minus their oft-misunderstood smirk. Far from the frozen tundra of northern Minnesota is Sayles' dusty desert town, all the more realistic on his miniscule budget.

Now playing exclusively at the Main Art Theatre in Royal Oak, "Lone Star" is the kind of captivating story – like "Fargo" and "The Usual Suspects" – that should find a wider audience outside of the art houses. See it now before someone tells you any more about it.

'The Nature of Smoke' zippy, entertaining read

BY VICTORIA DIAZ
SPECIAL WRITER

"The Nature of Smoke," by Anne Harris (Tor., $29.95, 284 pp.)

How many science fiction novels have you read lately that open up with the lead character preparing to rip off a repair shop in Ferndale?

Its a rather odd beginning is not the only thing about "The Nature of Smoke" that makes it stand out. This debut novel by Detroiter Anne Harris works on several different levels. First, it's a zippy, entertaining read, played out by engaging characters against vivid backdrops. It's carefully-structured, and its author has a real knowledge of how to turn a phrase. Maybe best of all, it's thought-provoking without being ponderous.

"The Nature of Smoke" is set in the not-too-distant future in a dog-eat-dog techno-world of holograms, Sears jetliners, genetic experimentation and synthetic life forms. At its center is a tough, young Detroiter named Magnolia, who can't read or write, but knows more than a thing or two about defending herself against the threats of this shadowy world.

After having run away from her desperately poor home in a devastated, "partitioned" Detroit, she is almost murdered as she unknowingly participates in a "slasher" film in New York. Using her quick wits and street-savvy, she knifes her "co-star," and manages to flee the scene.

But her troubles have just begun. The whole event has been photographer live, and sent out via satellite to TV channel subscribers. Soon, highly important owners of this futuristic porn station will be after Magnolia for what she has done to their "star." And another sinister figure will be tracking her down too. His name is Remus Rahul, and he is "the world's only supplier of sophisticated human simulacra." He has some dastardly plans to distill Magnolia's spirited "essence," and make a bundle.

Though this story is played out against a high-tech background, new age hardware is definitely not the star here. What propels this story ever-forward are its vibrant, imaginatively drawn characters — those who are human and those who are, shall we say, something else.

Finding a sanctuary of sorts in "Polish Siberia" ("Part of the 1998 Cultural Reparations Act"), Magnolia meets Cid, a brilliant biologist who spends most of her time with quantum particles and highly sophisticated holograms until Magnolia comes along. There, at the mysterious Wotroya House, Magnolia also comes across the exotic Tumcari, who spends most of his lonely days floating about a greenhouse pond, since he is genetically related to water lilies. (Though he's one of Rahul's experiments gone awry, he's got a charming, wry sense of humor.)

There's also Ms. Wujcik, who can do all kinds of thing, except make decisions on her own; the gorgeous Kelira, who's desperately searching for his sister in this chaotic world; and the bloodthirsty Spider and Dex, two ex-NHL stars. (Harris' take on the aquatic nature of the game is delightful.)

The cast of character goes on, but you get the idea. Reading about them is a little like getting to know the clientele of a "Star Wars" bar.

Which is not to say that this story is less-than-serious. It's a carefully-considered visit into a dark future, exploring such matters as chaos and universal pattern, and the nature of smoke.

Be warned: This novel is replete with violence. In fact, Harris has a tendency to sometimes dwell at tiresome length on each bruising altercation, listing every blow and punch as if they were steps in a long, complicated dance we must all learn. But none of the violence itself is gratuitous. And, if you take this literary trip into a world of Mylar money, Indo-pop music, falafel stands, and fractal souls, you may find yourself not just taken away by it all, but perhaps a bit enlightened as well.

• LAST WORDS: Garden City resident, Martin Koskela, has authored "Welcome to Shadow Lake," a novel centering on the experiences of Finnish immigrants during the Great Depression. The story takes place in Michigan's Upper Peninsula, and is available locally at the Finnish Center in Farmington Hills.

• Don't miss "About Books," aired Saturday and Sunday evenings at 9 on C-SPAN 2. Be there when various authors visit bookstores across the country. Stand behind the editors' shoulders as they make important decisions about upcoming publications. Watch as writers address a graduating class at a university, or talk with a book group.

THE RACE IS ON!
MILAN DRAGWAY
Milan Dragway
By DON NICHOLSON
The ground shakes, the thunder roars and the smoke in the air hangs low. It's that time of year again for the N.H.R.A. Northern National Open and the Top Fuel Invitational, sponsored by Stu Evans Lincoln Mercury. Top Fuel racing at its' finest with Shirley Muldowney RUNNING HER FIRST EVER SUB FOUR SECOND run (4.95 seconds to be exact), Shonda Hartman came out right behind her to try and match the sub four second run, running full throttle right out the back door and using the sand trap to make up for the additional track used in his run. Along with the lacking local Top Fuel drivers, Wayne Bailey and Jack Ostrander made valiant attempts to rain in the fours putting on a great show with 5.0 second runs. The last time Ostrander was at Milan he went thru the finished line lights in a ball of fire. Doug Herbert and Bruce Litton put on a pair of great runs under the lights with flames shooting out of the headers with the ground shaking and the smell of nitro in the air. Everyone wants in the record books for the first four or the first one in the Milan 300 m.p.h. club. Shirley was the only one with the honors.
Have you ever wondered what it would be like to take your Camaro, Cavalier or the family Mustang and drive from 0 to 200 m.p.h. + in a 1/4 mile? Talk to the people that have some of the fastest door slammers around. Pro-modified racing is slightly modified body styles of the cars we all drive on the street. The motors are obviously bigger and the chassis and roll cage set up is designed for the traction and safety needed to get the cars down the track and protect the driver when things don't go as planned. Most of these cars are powered by big cubic inch motors running over 1,600 horsepower and absorbed by the use of nitrous oxide. Nitrous oxide is one of the most unpredictable forms of horsepower as you never know what can happen when the green light comes on. John Jacks untouched his brand new split window Corvette and ran 5.97 and 6.86 right out of the trailer. Tim McCormick came to town and drove for Chris Holbrook in the Stu Evans Lincoln-Merc sponsored pro-mod mustang.
Not to be outdone by anyone is The Mid-America Funny Car Challenge with their 1/8 mile smokey tire burnouts and wild 6 second funny car action. With cars like Mac Attack, Warren Eells Fast Company, and many more from all over, the Mid America funny car circuit travels the country, entertaining the crowds and spending time talking to the fans in the pits. Most of these racers are family teams and the whole family gets involved in the daily maintenance and round to round upkeep of the cars.
Next is the wild 9 second quarter mile passes by the infamous Roy Trevino (Lee Trevino's cousin) on the back wheels. That's right the G.M.C. pick up truck runs down the 1/4 mile on his back wheels. With wheels in the air he looks thru the floor of the truck and steers with two hand brakes one on each of the rear wheels. Watch motorsports Excitement tonight to watch this event and take a ride with our in car camera on board with Roy Trevino. Roy and his wife Rita are great entertainers and love to spend time with the kids that stop by and visit at their trailer. A lot of Nostalgia racers will remember Roy when he was driving the Mast Taxi wheelstander. The body of that car is being turned into an Outlaw supercharged car by a local racer.
Last but not least, the Stu Evans sponsored N.H.R.A. Northern National open will also be run in conjunction with the Stu Evans sponsored Top Fuel Invitational. The Northern National Open featured all the Division 1 pro stock class cars running for N.H.R.A POINTS and the Ramchargers Pro Street Shoot Out with cars like Bruce Kimmons, and local racers George Baloga and Dooley Harper. This weekend proved to be as big as a National event without the big prize tag. For complete coverage and a chance to see yourself, check out Motorsports Excitement this only local cable show featuring local drag racers.

DINING

Seafood Tavern rolls out welcome mat

By Keely Wygonik
Staff Writer

Casual and friendly, Chuck Muer's Seafood Tavern, which opened in March, has something on the menu for everyone – seafood, ribs, chicken, pasta, and beef. You can stop in for appetizers and drinks, a seafood dinner, or burger with soup or salad. There are booths and tables, and the bar is separate from the dining area. Don't leave your kids at home, they're welcome here.

There's a game room with video and pinball games, a wall of aquariums to look at, and a special menu for children under 10. Even the most finicky child will find something to their liking. Choices include burger with fries, chicken strips, fried scrod, linguine with Alfredo or butter sauce, and cheese pizza. A soft drink and ice cream are included.

For more sophisticated palates, the chefs will gladly create a child-size portion. "There was a seven year old girl in here recently who ordered Cedar Plank Salmon," said Executive Chef Tom "Buzzy" Holzer of West Bloomfield. "We've had kids order mussels and Shrimp Danielle. The adult portions are too big for kids."

Believing that kids grow up to be big kids, and that means more customers, the staff at Chuck Muer's aims to please. "We're open to suggestions from customers," said Holzer. "If a guest wants something special we'll call to see if we can get it," added corporate chef Jim Blake. "Then we'll call to say we've got it."

Check the board for daily seafood specials. On Monday the chefs call different purveyors to see what's available. After the restaurant featured Ivory White Salmon, customers called to find out when it would be on the menu again.

Executive Chef

Fish is like produce; it's seasonal, and not all varieties are available all the time. Look for smelt in the spring, but lobster tails, an often requested item, are available on weekends.

When they were developing their Blue Plate lunch and dinner menu, the chefs asked people what their favorite comfort food was.

Monday is chicken pot pie day, Tuesday, beef stroganoff, Wednesday, lasagna, Thursday, roast turkey served with mashed potatoes & gravy and season vegetable, Friday, lemon crumb scrod with choice of potato or rice, and seasonal vegetables, and Saturday, prime rib of beef.

Popular seafood offerings include Potato Encrusted Whitefish ($9.50); Salmon Rockefeller — Salmon filet stuffed with spinach Rockefeller mix, rice medley, and seasonal vegetable ($11.95), jambalya, and Cedar Planked Whitefish ($9.50) or Salmon ($11.50). Chuck Muer's Seafood Tavern also sells a lot of ribs and beef. Diners have a choice of BBQ St. Louis Ribs or Texas Beef Ribs, filet mignon, London Broil, or Steak a la Muer. Chicken breast, with Martha's Raspberry, Teriyaki or Barbecue sauce is on the menu, along with half of a roasted chicken. You can order Pasta Pagliara — salmon, shrimp, scallops, mussels & linguine ($14.95), or Fettuccini & Meatballs ($7.25).

In addition to the Tavern Burger (six ounces fresh ground chuck topped with cheese, bacon & BBQ sauce), and traditional hamburgers, they also sell almost 1,000 salmon burgers a month. Chinese Chicken Salad — Asian vegetables, grilled chicken, Mandarin oranges, crispy wontons and peanut dressing ($7.95) is a much-ordered lunch item.

For something light, try a Dinner Pizza — there's Chef Jimmy's giant pizza with house-made sausage, pepperoni, onion, mushrooms and three cheeses, individual pizza pies, smoked salmon pizza, BLT pizza and White Vegetable Pizza — broccoli, garlic, zucchini & three cheeses.

During the summer, the chefs order produce locally from Centennial Farms, which is owned by the Gass Family. They supply the restaurant with corn, tomatoes, beans, raspberries, squash and herbs.

A Summer Lite menu, which started July 5, features items made with farm-fresh produce. Chuck Muer's Seafood Tavern is known for their Gazpacho, which will be available through Labor Day.

Save room for dessert; there's Key Lime Pie, New York Style Cheesecake with berry sauce, apple and Michigan cherry pie, and a brownie hot fudge sundae.

Making a statement

Falcons sting Broncos in showdown

With the season just passing its midpoint, the Falcons made certain they would retain their hold on the MSHL's top record by routing the Broncos, the league's next-best team.

The big showdown never materialized Tuesday at Plymouth Ice Arena, when the Falcons - the only unbeaten team remaining in the Metro Summer Hockey League - and the once-beaten Broncos tangled.

It figured to be a battle down to the final buzzer. It wasn't; the Falcons broke a 1-1tie early in the second period and just kept rolling, all the way to an 11-2 victory.

The win kept the Falcons on top of the MSHL's Bakes Conference with a 5-0 record. The Broncos slipped to 4-2, but remained in first place in the Eagle Conference, one point ahead of the Wolverines.

The Broncos did do one thing: They kept Falcon sniper Jesse Hubenschmidt, from Redford-Detroit Catholic Central, from doing serious damage. Hubenschmidt had been on a tear, scoring five goals Sunday to boost his total to a league-best 14.

He got just one against the Broncos, but David Scott and Dan Hunt picked up the goal-scoring slack for the Falcons. Scott riddled the Broncos for four goals (he now has 12 for the season) and an assist, while Hunt collected three goals and three assists.

Brian Calka added four assists for the Falcons, while Mike Chaka, Mike Klinger and Troy Taylor contributed a goal and an assist apiece.

Bill Trainor scored both Bronco goals.

The Falcons' Tom Taylor and John Trainor combined in goal to stop the Broncos' attack.

Spartans 11, Huskies 3: The Spartans built a 7-1 lead by the 3:20 mark of the second period and coasted to an easy win Monday at Plymouth.

Tony Tuzzolino led the Spartan offense with three goals and two assists. Josh Wiegand had two goals and an assist; Mike Schmidt had two goals; and both Dane Esterline and Larry Leo got a goal and an assist. Brady Priest and Pat Dakhi scored single goals, and Chris Frescoln had two assists.

The Huskies got goals from Todd Kesler, Dave West and Brian Hannigan.

Casey Ostig and Robert Harrison teammed in goal for the Spartans to limit the Huskies to three goals.

Wolverines 8, Wildcats 5: When the Wolverines win, it's usually three players who do the bulk of the scoring. That was the case Monday, when they defeated the Wildcats at Plymouth.

Scott Goleniak poured in three goals and added five assists, with brother Paul Goleniak contributing three goals and three assists, and Scott Lock chipping in with two goals and three assists for the Wolves. No one else had more than a single assist.

The Wildcats, who pulled to within 6-5 on Bob Nagy's second goal with 1:52 to play before surrendering two empty-net goals in the final 41 seconds, also got two goals and an assist from Antoli Buliga. Bobby Davis finished with three assists, and Oleg Panasenko

Mold maraud past Hornets in sweep

SOFTBALL

The Motor City Mold continued their torrid play in the Incredible Fastpitch Softball League, trouncing the Farmington Hornets 11-0 and 18-2 Tuesday.

Sarah Carson tossed a no-hitter in winning the first game, surrendering just one walk while striking out four.

In the second game, Jenny Sikora was unstoppable on offense and untouchable on defense. The Plymouth Canton student slugged a grand slam home run and a double, driving in five runs, then handcuffed the Hornets on one hit and three walks, allowing two unearned runs while striking out seven.

Liz Elsner added a solo homer for the Mold in the second-game victory. Sarah Freels chipped in with two hits and three runs batted in and Carrie Kovachevich had two hits and two RBI.

In the first game, Sikora had two hits and two RBI, while Amber LaGrow and Angela Litwin each had two hits and an RBI.

The wins improved the Mold's record to 10-2 overall and 7-0 in the Incredible Fastpitch Softball League.

Also Tuesday, the Canton Commanders bested the Livonia Gators twice, 15-5 and 18-13.

Canton coach on Olympic trail

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR

'It's going to be really neat. How many times will you get the chance to be on the same floor as the greatest athletes in the world?

'I'm excited. As the days get closer, I get a bit more nervous.'

Dan Riggs
—Olympic official

What Dan Riggs did, back in October of 1994, wasn't any different than what thousands of other sports enthusiasts did.

He knew the Olympics were coming to Atlanta. He found the telephone number to purchase tickets. And he called.

Riggs wasn't an ordinary ticket-buyer, it's true. A long-time coach at Plymouth Canton HS in all kinds of sports - he currently coaches the Chiefs' girls golf team, but he's also been active in football and wrestling - Riggs is a certified official in both football and wrestling as well.

It was the latter that drew Riggs' Olympic interest. And ultimately, that interest got him something he never dreamed of when he first made that phone call, nearly two years ago.

Riggs isn't going to the Olympics merely as a spectator any longer. He's going to be part of it, as an athletic service manager in the wrestling venue.

"I've been in athletics all these years," the 47-year-old Livonia Bentley HS graduate said. "But this is something different."

That's for sure. Riggs, who has been a wrestling official in state high school district and regional tournaments for the past 15 years and who coached Canton's wrestling team for 10 years, will now be a sort of liaison.

"I'll be dealing with the athletes during the competition," he explained. "They'll check in with me first, and I'll make sure they have everything they need."

That will include getting them an escort, to help foreign athletes and coaches in a strange land find their way around.

The job is strictly volunteer, and it won't be easy. Riggs leaves Monday and goes through a basic orientation Tuesday through Thursday (he's already been studying an extensive manual), which includes a dress rehearsal for the opening ceremonies Wednesday.

Wrestling competition begins Sunday, July 20, with the Greco-Roman style. Following those three days of competition, Riggs will go back into training for two days, followed by the freestyle competition July 29-31.

He's been told his work days could last from 7:30 a.m. until 10 p.m.

Does that sound like fun? It does to him.

"It's going to be really neat," Riggs insisted. "How many times will you get the chance to be on the same floor as the greatest athletes in the

Improved pitching has Finesse looking for better things

The Finesse Under-14 girls softball team will be going after its third-straight state tournament championship this weekend at Rotunda Field in Dearborn.

This is Bob Bako's second year as coach and he believes this team has better potential than last year's, which finished 13th at the World Tournament.

Finesse will play in two World Tournaments this month. They have qualified for the National Softball Association World Tournament July 17-21 in Rock Hill, S.C. and the United State Slo-pitch Softball Association World Tournament July 24-28 at the Canton Softball Center.

Bako said Finesse is the favorite to repeat as state champion and a good bet to finish among the top five at both world tournaments.

Finesse is 34-13 overall, including 8-6 in the league. It is 26-7 in tournaments, including 2-0-1 at last weekend's Inter-Lakes Tournament in Commerce Township.

Finesse beat Clinton Valley, 17-3, and the Downriver Destroyers 16-6 before having a rematch with Clinton Valley in the championship game, a 10-10 tie.

"We have a good mix of power and speed and I think the biggest turnaround from last year is our pitching," Bako said. "We are giving up less than one walk per game compared to about five or six last year. We were basically a 13-year-old team last year."

Finesse's pitcher is Jillian Minjoe, who hails from Washington, Mi. and attends Romeo High School. Her father works with Bako, which is the connection she used to join Finesse.

Minjoe walked only two batters in 12 innings of work at the InterLakes Tournament. Amy Paling was the winning pitcher against the Downriver Desteroyers, allowing five hits and five walks.

Samantha Crews was 5-for-8 with 10 RBI, reaching base 10 of her 11 total at bats to lead Finesse. Katie King and Sarah Lewis also reached base safely in 10 of their 11 plate appearances.

King was 6-10 with eight RBI and Lewis was 5-10 with four RBI and six runs scored.

Jillian Davies was 4-6, reaching base safely all six of her plate appearances.

The team also includes Karlene Kilburn, Ashley Julien, Julie Stoll, Rachel Sundberg, Kim Dombrowski, Erin Pickens, Andrea Spencer, Sara Masterson, Taryn McCloud, Angela Bako, Jackie Migliore, Tracy Hudson and Danielle Dickerson.

Assisting Bob Bako are Bill Crews and Stan Dombrowski.

Finesse U-12 champs

The Finesse Under-12 team recorded a 4-0 record, including an exciting 19-18 win over the Interlakes Flames in the championship game, to win the Interlakes USSSA World Qualifier in Commerce Township.

The U-12 team, like their sister team two years older, will play in the USSSA state tournament this weekend at Rotunda Field in Dearborn.

Stephanie Crews (Westland), Andrea McMillan (Livonia) and Crystal Little (Wayne) led Finesse with .667 batting averages, each going 10-for-15 at the plate. Crews had eight RBI and McMillan, Little and Jenny Stone (Northville) had seven each.

Rachel Reed hit .400 (6-15), while Stone batted .385 (5-13) as did Sara Booth (Garden City, 5-13) and Anne Roosevelt (Garden City, 5-13). Lauren Monterey (Farmington Hills) hit .353 (6-17) and Melanie Stack (Garden City) batted .313 (5-16).

The U-12 Finesse has had a successful season, including a runner-up finish June 22-23 at the Canton National Invitational Tournament.

Melanie Stack pitched three complete games and one inning of the other, a 20-5 win over the Interlakes Classics in the semifinal on Sunday. She only allowed three walks in 22 innings of work throughout the weekend.

Crews gave Stack some rest, pitching three innings after Finesse had taken a commanding 15-0 lead following the first inning.

Andrea McMillan had four hits and two RBI and Crews contributed three hits, all doubles, with four RBI to propel Finesse into the finals.

The Flames scored nine runs in the fourth inning of the championship game to take a 14-7 lead, but Finesse rallied with nine of its own in the fifth and scored the eventual winning run in the sixth.

Crews had four hits and three RBI, McMillan had three hits and three RBI and Stone contributed two hits and three RBI.

Finesse opened the tournamnt with a 15-10 win over the Flames as Stone had three hits and four RBI and McMillan two hits and two RBI. The second game was a 7-3 victory for Finesse over the Dirt Devils. Monerey had four hits and two RBI and Little contributed three hits and three RBI.

The Finesse team also includes Jennifer Kiesnowski (Romulus), Corrine Kilburn (Sterling Heights), Courtney Frankowicz (Garden City), Jodie Reed (Wayne), Megan Pickens (Livonia) and Sara Crews (Westland). Crews and Reed are the team's only 10 year olds.

The manager is John Tonner and coaches include Jenny Smith, Chuck Fay and Kevin Kilburn.

Summer hockey founder recovering from heart attack

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

A.J. Baker is so relieved, he feels like taking a joy ride – on his Zamboni, of course.

Baker, a 37-year-old Redford Union graduate and an assistant coach for the 1996 NCAA Division II national hockey champion University of Alabama-Huntsville, says he's blessed to be on his feet again after suffering a heart attack June 17.

"I have to get back on the Zamboni, do some toolin' around, 360 degree power turns, stay away from the walls and make sure I don't run anyone over," joked Baker, interviewed over the telephone Tuesday night. "I feel very lucky."

Baker is overjoyed, but don't get the wrong impression. He knows that after an experience like his, which included four days in a hospital's intensive care, it's time to change some of his daily routine and diet.

Baker, the founder of the Metro Summer Hockey League that plays most of its games at the Plymouth Cultural Center, left for UAH-Huntsville two summers ago.

His jobs as an assistant coach and manager of a local rink called the Ice Plex kept him busy throughout the day and eating on the go at odd times.

"I'd have burgers, pizza once a day, chow down on some big steak, couple bags of chips, four cups of coffee," said Baker, 6-foot-1, who weighed 235 pounds at the time of the heart attack. "I was so hurried between working at the UAH, recruiting, putting together equipment lists, opening up the locker room, then rushing over to the ice rink at 3:30 every day and staying late."

The hectic schedule and questionable diet aside, Baker knew heart trouble was a possibility. His father died at the age of 59 and his grandfather at age 60, both from heart disease.

"I'm kind of prone to that type of thing," he said.

Baker's heart attack came while he was showering in the locker room following a pick-up hockey game at the Ice Plex. Although the pain told him there was something seriously wrong, he never lost consciousness and eventually was able to drive himself to the hospital.

He didn't let any of the players still hanging around the locker room know he was even in pain.

"I felt fine when I got off the ice, but in the shower is when I started feeling bad," Baker said. "It felt like two big guys sitting on my chest. My hands were a little numb, but I didn't let on anything, the other guys had no idea what was going on. I didn't feel like I was going to pass out. But I got dressed very quickly."

After everyone left, Baker remained at the Ice Plex, knowing he had to resurface both ice sheets, count the money, set the security system and lock up.

He finished resurfacing one of the ice surfaces, but because of the pain decided to skip the second ice surface and wait until the morning to count the money.

Baker got in his car and when the pain didn't go away, drove straight to the hospital, where he was rushed to immediate care.

"I sat in the car 10 minutes, thinking it would pass. When I still didn't feel well I thought I better get some help," Baker said.

Baker said his doctor told him his heart attack was a "5" on a scale of 1-10. The doctor performed a cardiac catheterization and angioplasty and several days later Baker returned home.

Baker expects to be back at work next week and an upcoming stress test should show how soon he can assume more responsibilities. A more sensible diet, including dried bananas, yogurt covered pretzels (yes there are such things), and long walks are most important to his rehabilitation, he said.

Baker said get-well wishes have come from all over, including a card from the MSHL.

"I feel real good right now – the people at the hospital treated me fantastic, I've got too many people pulling for me right now," he said. "I got a card from (MSHL commissioner Keith) Pietila, a whole pile of signatures from people I knew (in the MSHL) and even people I didn't know.

Baker knows his health is a top priority, but he can't help but is think about the future of UAH hockey. With Division II hockey in jeoparday because of diminishing teams, there is talk that UAH will move up to Division I and join the Central Collegiate Hockey Association with teams like Michigan and Michigan State.

"I have that on good authority," Baker said of UAH's possible move to Division I and the CCHA.

Current UAH players inclued Paul Schloss from Livonia and Redford Catholic Central and Tony Guzzo from Canton.

The Crusaders Under-14 AAU girls volleyball team placed 16th at the national tournament held June 21-25 in Des Moines, Ia.

Livonians Alexis Bowman, Andrea Kmet, Kristin Kmet, Tera Morrill and Desiree Betts teamed with Jill Dombrowski, Angie Germain and Amanda Suder, all of Plymouth, to finish with a 15-4 record.

The coaches were Debbie Karabees-Betts and Cindy Suder.

The state-champion Crusaders gave a strong account of themselves even in defeat, losing a hard-fought match to the eventual champion St. Louis Spirits; 4-15, 16-14, 14-16.

"It was a very educational time for the kids, an experience they can learn from and grow with," Karabees-Betts said. "Iowa is a beautiful state and the kids were really well behaved - their parents should be very proud."

and Grant Judd notched two assists each. Brian Alent added one goal.

Falcons 11, Bulldogs 6: Hubenschmidt continued his torrid scoring pace, pouring in five goals and adding an assist to lead the Falcons past the struggling Bulldogs Sunday at Plymouth.

The goal spree pushed Hubenschmidt's total to 14, best in the league through Sunday.

He got plenty of help from his teammates in the win over the 'Dogs. Dan Hunt scored twice and assisted on five others, and Troy Taylor had two goals and four assists. David Scott also had two goals and an assist.

The 'Dogs were led by Jack McCoy, who had three goals, and John Brodhun, who drew four assists. Both Brent Thomas and Kyle McNeilance had a goal and an assist, and Brian Tarsin had one goal.

Broncos 7, Huskies 1: In a meeting between two teams at opposite ends of the league standings, the outcome was predictable Sunday at Plymouth.

The Broncos built a five-goal lead before allowing the winless Huskies to get on the board. Brian Consolino got two of the Bronco goals and assisted on another, while Brent Bessey had a goal and two assists.

Jason Szynkowski and Darren Hands each contributed a goal and an assist, Scott Hands and Bill Trainor each scored a goal, and Mike Forbis and Daryl Schimmelpfenneg collected two assists apiece.

Dominic Catanzarite scored the Huskies only goal.

Wolverines 8, Lakers 8: The Lakers' Jim Pietila punched in the game-tying goal with four seconds left to cap a furious comeback Sunday at Plymouth.

The Wolverines had taken an 8-6 lead on Scott Goleniak's goal with 6:58 left. Mike Harris pulled the Lakers to within a goal with 5:39 to go, setting the stage for Pietila's tying marker, his second of the game to go with two assists.

For the Lakers, Steve Jones also had two goals and one assist, both Keith Pietila and Vic Decina had a goal and two assists, and Charlie Ciuffetelli had a goal and an assist.

The Wolves were paced by Scott Lock, with three goals and two assists; Scott Goleniak, who had five assists to go with his goal; Paul Goleniak, with two goals and three assists; Adrian Straka, a goal and an assist; Mike Mattila, one goal; and Jason Wesley and Andrew Perry, two assists apiece.

"I'm excited. As the days get closer, I get a bit more nervous."

No one was more surprised than Riggs to be selected to one of the premier volunteer positions in the wrestling venue. According to Riggs, only seven of the 125 staff members in that sport are service managers - and more than 2,000 people applied for those 125 spots.

Riggs sent in his application almost as a lark. When he heard on the phone recording as he ordered tickets for the Olympic wrestling competition that volunteers were needed, his reaction was, "Well, what the heck."

He sent in his name. Two months later, in December of '94, he received his first packet of forms to fill out. He did,sent them in and, the following July, he got another packet containing more specific questions.

He had survived the first round of eliminations.

He completed the second set of forms and returned them, then "I didn't hear anything for five or six months." When he did, it was Christmas 1995.

Jim Craig, one of the top officials in charge of Olympic wrestling, telephoned Riggs at school. Riggs thought it was some sort of prank, at first. But it wasn't.

Although he'll receive no payment for his services, he will only have to pay for his transportation to Atlanta. He'll receive a uniform, which includes a watch, shoes, shirts, pants and a hat, all of which he can keep, and his housing and food will be provided, So will transportation.

Of course, that's not all the freebies he'll receive. Riggs is hoping to be at the medal rounds for wrestling, which will increase tremendously what already figures to be a sizable number of memories.

The right stuff

Mallon bows out, but her honor is intact

DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

By her own good deed, Meg Mallon gave Mercy High School cause to honor its most famous alumna beyond being just a great golfer Monday.

It was coincidental but appropriate her next stop after being disqualified from the Jamie Farr Classic in Toledo was the Sixth Annual Meg Mallon Golf Outing to benefit her alma mater.

Mallon was the first-round leader Friday but informed tour officials of her own rules violation Saturday, knowing she would not be allowed to continue playing.

Her honesty and sportsmanship served as an example of the virtue and character the Catholic girls school espouses.

For a day, Mallon was able to escape the spotlight of the Ladies Professional Golf Association Tour and retreat to the familiar surroundings of Edgewood Country Club in Union Lake but not the swirl of attention.

"With the strange thing that happened, everybody keeps asking about it," Mallon said. "They say they're sorry but proud of me for turning myself in."

Mallon rolled a putt for birdie on the par-5 17th hole to the lip of the cup. Players are allowed time to walk to the ball plus 10 seconds before hitting it again.

The ball eventually fell into the hole on its own, but a TV replay Saturday revealed Mallon had waited 18 seconds before it did.

That should have resulted in a penalty stroke and round of 66. Mallon was disqualified for improperly signing a scorecard, because she had reported a 65.

After discussing the matter with tour players Friday night, Mallon realized she might have erred.

"I didn't sleep at all that night; I was thinking it was longer than 10 seconds," she said. "There's no way I could have played golf the next day if I had done something wrong. That's just not what golf is. It's a game of integrity, and players have to call it on themselves."

The 33-year-old Mallon, who is in her 10th year on the tour, said she knew of the 10-second rule but faced a conflicting situation because the ball was still moving.

"My instinct was not to hit a moving ball," she said. "I was trying to do the right thing, and it ended up being the wrong thing."

Mallon added she was surprised no one else among a large gallery, LPGA officials and other pros didn't know the specifics of the rule to say something and make a determination at the time.

"The rules are very complicated; there's no way you can know all of them, and that's why we have officials," she said. "I knew the rule; I just didn't know it to its complete extent.

"Unfortunately, I signed the card. The funny thing is it only matters if you sign the card and the score is lower, not if you sign a card with a higher score. In that case, you keep the score but get to play."

Joan Pitcock replaced Mallon as the leader Saturday and held on Sunday to win the tournament with a 9-under 204. It was the first tour victory for the nine-year veteran and netted her a first-place prize of $86,250.

Mallon is sixth on the money list this year, and a victory at the Farr Classic would have moved her into third place and $10,000 out of first.

"(The disqualification) meant a lot, but there's no guarantee you're going to win, so you can't look at it that way," she said, adding she didn't regret her decision. "It's a combination of being a golfer and Catholic; it doesn't matter."

Did she think she could have won?

"In a three-day tournament, it's crucial to have a good round the first day, and I felt I had a good chance. When 9-under wins the tournament, you never know. I was half way there.

"But you have to follow the rules. Just because you're playing well, that doesn't mean you're bullet-proof from the rules."

Mallon won the Sara Lee Invitational and the Hawaiian Open earlier this year, and her goal is to keep playing well unlike 1993 when she tailed off following a fast start that also included two victories.

"I don't think you can look at anything as a setback," she said. "You have to turn it into a positive regardless of the situation. Maybe I needed a rest, a new perspective or to work on my game.

"You move on and hope to play better the rest of the year. You can't let it interfere with your psyche, because it won't do any good."

Her victory in Hawaii will be one of her positive golf memories. Her playing partner, Karrie Webb, had a four-shot lead with five holes left, but she faltered and Mallon sank several birdies to win it.

"I figured I was playing for second," Mallon said. "They handed me the trophy, and I said 'cool.' It was very unexpected but very welcome."

Mallon has made approximately $2 1/2 million on the tour, most of it in the last six years, and is among the top 20 career money winners.

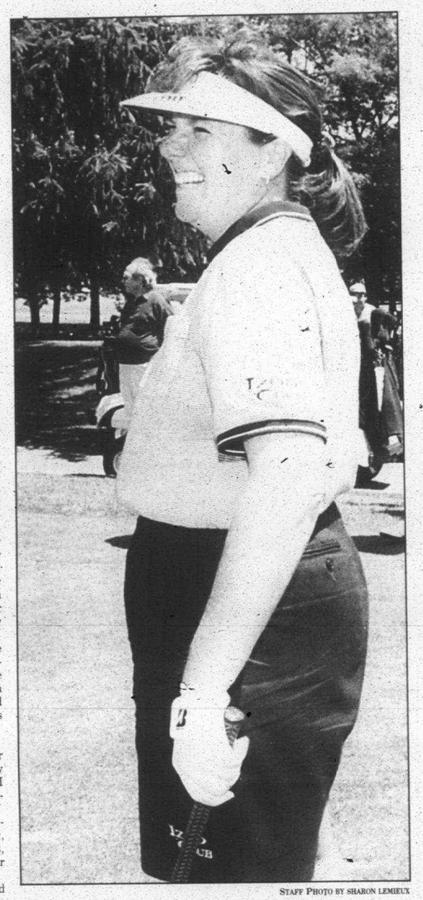

"The first year I earned $1,500, the second $25,000," she said. "Ninety was the first real good year. The '90s have been wonderful, and that's really when my career took off."

"Barring injury, I hope to play a few more years, as long as I enjoy it, because this game is no fun when you're not playing well."

Mallon said she always looks forward to the Mercy event, because it gives her the opportunity to visit with family and friends. She lives in Arizona but has a brother, Paul, in the metro area.

But she was planning to be on the road again Tuesday, heading to Ohio for another of the dozen or so tournaments she plans to enter this year.

"I have to get up early tomorrow and drive to Youngstown, so it's not really a day off. I'll be back on the horse, with a rule book."

A winner: Meg Mallon, a 1981 graduate of Farmington Hills Mercy, lost any chance of winning last weekend's LPGA tournament in Toledo when she turned herself in for inadvertantly signing the wrong scorecard. Her honesty, however, earned her something even more valuable - respect.

RECALL EFFORTS

Recalls of automobiles over safety concerns signal an effort by consumers, government agencies, and automobile manufacturers to make cars, vans, and trucks safer. A measure of the care and diligence that these various interests bring to this common goal is underscored by the fact that, for the first time, the number of cars recalled exceeded the number of new cars sold. According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), over 17.8 million vehicles were recalled in 1995 and, according to the trade publication Automotive News, fewer than 15 million cars and light trucks were sold in the U.S. during the same period. This does not mean that 1995 models were any less safe than those manufactured in previous years. A safety recall campaign can cover up to eight years of a particular model and involves a safety defect investigation by the NHTSA.

Even if a recall doesn't cost you a thing, and it may well help ensure your safety. Bring your car in quickly for repair at an authorized dealer. If you receive a notice on your model car, At HOLIDAY CHEVROLET INC., we are diligent in solving automotive problems in a swift in diagnosis. We make ensuring your car's drivability and performance our leading priority when you bring your car in, whether it's for repair or routine service. Visit us at 30250 Grand River. Phone 474-0500. New legislation protects anglers

Bill Parker/Outdoors

Michigan's two million anglers can rest easily knowing they have the same protection from harassment by the animal-rights extremists as Michigan hunters enjoy.

In an effort to give anglers protection from harassment and interference while fishing, Governor Engler recently signed a package of bills that makes harassment of fishermen on Michigan waters a misdemeanor offense as of July 1, 1996. Sponsored by Senator Robert Geake (R-Northville) and Representative Dave Jaye (R-Washington Township), the legislation is officially called the "Michigan Fisherman's Rights Act" and is modeled after Michigan's hunter harassment law. Engler signed the bills recently at a press conference at the Brenke Fish Ladder in Lansing after the bills were unanimously passed by both the senate and the house.

"Blessed with abundant natural resources Michigan has always been a state where outdoor sporting activities such as angling are encouraged," said Engler, in a prepared release. "As any fisherman will tell you, there are few things more peaceful and enjoyable than finding a quiet spot to cast a line."

This legislation is a direct effort to keep those quiet spots peaceful and enjoyable.

"Back in the spring, PETA (People for the Ethical Treatment of Animals) announced it was going to launch a campaign this summer to harass fishermen and that Michigan was one of the target states," explained Art Dittmar, a Farmington Hills resident and past president of Michigan United Conservation Clubs. "This legislation was in response to that threat. Thank goodness it took effect on July 1."

Under the new legislation, anyone who harasses, obstructs or interferes in the lawful taking of fish and other aquatic species could face up to 93 days in jail and/or fines of between $500 and $1,000. A second offense could result in a year in jail and/or a fine of between $1,000 and $2,500. Commercial fishermen are also protected under the Michigan Fisherman's Rights Act, but the fines are increased to no less than $500 to $5,000 for a first offense and no less than $1,000 to $10,000 for a second offense.

"Thanks to this legislation, fishermen in the Great Lakes State can worry less about big-mouth protesters and more about big-mouth bass," said Engler.

The legislation also protects anglers from the annoying antics of disrespectful snowmobile and personal water craft operators.

The legislation is a four-bill package.

- SB 963 creates protection for the recreational fisherman and is similar to Michigan's existing hunter harassment law. It prohibits a person from obstructing or interfering in the lawful taking of fish and other aquatic species by another person. An individual violates the law by intentionally or knowingly engaging in the acts listed in the bill.
- HB 5775 is the penalty provision for violations of the sport fishing section.
- SB 965 strengthens the hunter harassment law by eliminating a double intent requirement and adding the repeat offense provision.
- SB 966 extends the protection to commercial fishermen and increases fines.

The legislation has been carefully drafted so people who are swimming, boating or sailing will not face prosecution by an overzealous fisherman.

THE RACE IS ON!
MILAN DRAGWAY
Milan Dragway By DON NICHOLSON

The ground shakes, the thunder roars and the smoke in the air hangs low. It's that time of year again for the N.H.R.A. Northern Nationals Open and the Top Fuel invitational, sponsored by Stu Evans Lincoln Mercury. Top Fuel racing at its' finest with Shirley Muldowney RUNNING HER FIRST EVER SUB FOUR SECOND run (4.95 seconds to be exact). Rhonda Hartman came out right behind her to try and match the sub four second run, running full throttle right out the back door and using the sand trap to make up for the additional track used in the run. Along with the ladies local Top Fuel drivers, Wayne Bailey and Jack Ostrander made valiant attempts to run in the fours putting on a great show with 5.0 second runs. The last time Ostrander was at Milan he went thru the finished line lights in a ball of fire. Doug Herbert and Bruce Litton put on a pair of great runs under the lights with flames shooting out of the headers with the ground shaking and the smell of nitro in the air. Everyone wants in the record books for the first four or the first one in the Milan 300 m.p.h. club. Shirley was the only one with the honors.

Have you ever wondered what it would be like to take your Camaro, Cavalier or the family Mustang and drive from 0 to 200 m.p.h. + in a 1/4 mile? Talk to the people that have some of the fastest door slammers around. Pro-modified racing is slightly modified body styles of the cars we all drives on the street. The motors are obviously bigger and the chassis and roll cage set up is designed for the traction and safety needed to get the cars down the track and protect the driver when things don't go as planned. Most of these cars are powered by big cubic inch motors running over 1,000 horsepower and assisted by the use of nitrous oxcide. Nitrous oxcide is one of the most unpredictable forms of horsepower so you never know what can happen when the green light comes on. John Jarvis unloaded his brand new split window Corvette and ran 6.07 and 6.36 right out of the trailer. Tim McDaniels came to town and drove for Chris Holbrook in the Stu Evans Lincoln/Merc sponsored pro-mod mustang.

Not to be outdone by anyone is The Mid-America Funny Car Challenge with their 1/8 mile smoke'n tire burnouts and wild 5 second funny car action. With cars like Mar Attack; Warren Eells Fast Company, and many more from all over, the Mid America funny car circuit travels the country entertaining the crowds and spending time talking to the fans in the pits. Most of these racers are family teams and the whole family gets involved in the daily maintenance and round to round upkeep of the cars.

Next is the wild 9 second quarter mile passes by the infamous Roy Trevino (Lee Trevino's cousin) on the back wheels. That's right this G.M.C. pick up truck runs down the 1/4 mile on his back wheels. With wheels in the air he looks thru the floor of the truck and steers with two hand brakes one on each of the rear wheels. Watch motorsports Excitement tonight to watch this event and take a ride with our in car camera on board with Roy Trevino. Roy and his wife Rita are great entertainers and love to spend time with the kids that stop by and visit at their trailer. A lot of Nostalgia racers will remember Roy when he was driving the Maxi Taxi wheelstander. The body of that car is being turned into an Outlaw supercharged car by a local racer.

Last but not least, the Stu Evans sponsored N.H.R.A. Northern National open will also be run in conjunction with the Stu Evans sponsored Tri Fuel invitational. The Northern Nationals' Open featured all the Division three class cars running for N.H.R.A POINTS and the Rendezvous Pro Street Shoot Out with cars like Bruce Kinmonts, and local racers George Bellage and Donny Harper. A Message To The Community

As we approach the one-year anniversary of the labor walkout at our newspapers, we certainly don't feel it's an occasion to celebrate. We are mindful of how much hardship has been caused to our employees and their families, including those on strike. And we know that the community has suffered as well through this difficult time.

Even as we consider the past year, we are hopeful that new ideas and new approaches, on both sides, might yield a realistic settlement based on where we find ourselves today – 12 months into the strike.

A year later, a lot has changed.

Since the strike started, more than 65 bargaining sessions have been held with the six unions but we don't seem to be getting any closer to a settlement. We do want to reach a settlement. We do want to move forward, but it is imperative that the unions accept the reality of where our business is now.

We care about fairness toward our employees. That's why our original offer called for fully paid health care through HMOs, no layoffs and a 10.3 percent wage increase over three years, on top of already good salaries. Five of our 11 unions settled contracts and are working today. It's obvious that they felt our offers were fair.

Unfortunately, union leaders did not allow employees to vote on our offers.

Even if a settlement were reached today, more than 500 jobs will have been lost to our community. Some of those lost jobs reflect the damage that this strike has done to our business and some are related to the improved efficiencies. Certainly the economic loss that we've suffered will not allow us to accept the feather-bedding of past years.

On the picket line and in the streets.

The unions and their supporters continue to throw star nails, break windows, damage newsracks and steal newspapers, block entrances to our facilities and yell racial and sexual slurs. They've even targeted employees at their homes.

We absolutely do not find it acceptable for employees and their families to be threatened and intimidated. While we believe in the strikers' freedom of speech and their right to picket, we question their right to continue to throw out racial and sexual slurs at our employees as they enter our facilities.

Amid all this, the two newspapers continue to serve readers.

From the first day of the strike, we made the decision to continue publishing. We feel a deep sense of obligation to this community to provide news and information every day. Our two newsrooms have continued to make improvements, particularly in the area of local news. By continuing to publish, we have preserved two vigorous, and separate, editorial voices in this community.

Where do we go from here?

We'll continue our commitment to publish The Detroit News and Detroit Free Press every day. And while we proceed with efforts to build our business back, and to continuously improve our service to customers, we'll keep meeting with the unions in the hope that we can achieve a resolution.

GranCare opens new regional office here

One-stop shopping apparently has arrived in the healthcare field.

Aging baby boomers and an increasing number of adults responsible for their aging parents has caused a new strain on healthcare. But one company that entered the Detroit market several years ago thinks it has found the solution by offering a continuum of care. It may be the first in Michigan to offer the full-range of service.

Livonia has become the regional administrative office for GranCare, Inc., a national company that offers services for patient's post-acute and long-term needs.

'We case manage the patient and match them (with a healthcare plan) based on their medical condition and socio-economic needs.

Helayne O'Keiff
president

The regional office on Ann Arbor Road, near I-275, is the Michigan headquarters for seven branch offices, three pharmacies, five assisted living centers and 11 skilled nursing facilities. GranCare also employs a host of home care professionals.

GranCare may be known more familiar locally by its subsidiaries, the five Hamilton House assisted living centers, one of which is located on Drake Road in Farmington Hills, and its skilled nursing facilities, Cambridge Nursing Centers. It is in the process of selling its Redford location on Beech Daly.

"We case manage the patient and match them (with a healthcare plan) based on their medical condition and socio-economic needs," said Helayne O'Keiff, president of the Home Care division of GranCare, headquartered in Atlanta, Georgia.

In the past a person seeking care for an aging parent had to find different providers to ensure that the parent was taken care of during various stages of their heath. With one phone call, GranCare consultants can place the individual in a skilled nursing home, assisted living center, or send a visiting nurse to their home. The patient can be moved from one continuum to the next depending upon their condition.

The patient will be seen by a GranCare registered nurse within 24 hours of calling its intake hotline, said O'Keiff.

Home healthcare has taken off in recent years as hospital costs increase and hospital stays shorten. Home health is also one of the most cost-effective means of taking care of an ill person.

"We send a professional to the home and teach the family how to continue care. This way we provide one-hour of care rather than a lengthy hospital stay... We can do a lot more at home," said O'Keiff.

Four areas of service include the resident facilities, such as the skilled nursing and assisted living centers; Team Care Pharmacy; Home Health Division; and Cornerstone, which builds relationships with hospitals and offers facilities management services.

GranCare entered the Detroit market in 1991 through the acquisition of International Healthcare Management, which owned 17 facilities. In January, GranCare merged with RN Health Care Services.

Next building phase opens at Park Ridge

Park Ridge South, an upscale single family site condominium community in West Bloomfield, continues a collaboration between Cohen & Associates and the Selective Group.

That partnership, along with Nosan Enterprises, has laid the groundwork for 67 units across Pontiac Trail from Park Ridge.

Detached condos range in price from $329,900 for a two-story of 3,175 square feet with four bedrooms and 2-1/2 baths to $419,900 for a 4,075-square-foot two story with four bedrooms, three full baths and two half-baths.

Larry Cohen handles the building. Models are expected to be completed by the end of the year.

"We spend an incredible amount of time to think out design," Cohen said. "It has to live well, not just look good. You have to take an interior design and blend it with an artful exterior design.

"We've typically tried to be on the cutting edge," he said. "Here, we took a whole different tack on elevation – softer, less formal but timeless, classic appeal.

"We take a good, basic design and try to improve on it," Cohen said, citing a gathering/sitting area/computer space in an upstairs loft component of the Monterey Summit plan.

"Here, I wanted to put in an active playground for children. In our mind, open spaces, gazeboes aren't good enough if they can't be used by the community," he said.

Eight plans are available, but buyers can customize. Most lots carry premiums ranging from $5,000 to $25,000.

All plans include at standard price three car garage, fireplace, double oven, cooktop and dishwasher, first floor laundry, basement, ceramic or wood flooring and 20 recessed lights.

Two models will be erected.

The Versailles, the most expensive unit at $419,900, is 4,075 square feet with four bedrooms, all upstairs, three full baths and two half baths.

Plans call for a main floor featuring a library, great room, family room, dining room, kitchen/nook with serving peninsula and two staircases to the second floor.

One half-bath on the first floor is off the garage and laundry, the other, more formal, between the foyer and library.

The step-up master has a pan ceiling, separate tub and shower, dual sink vanity and walk-in closet.

Two other bedrooms share a jack-and-jill bath. The fourth bedroom has its own toilet and shower.

The Cambridge III also is a two story with four bedrooms up. At 3,800 square feet, the base price is $384,900.

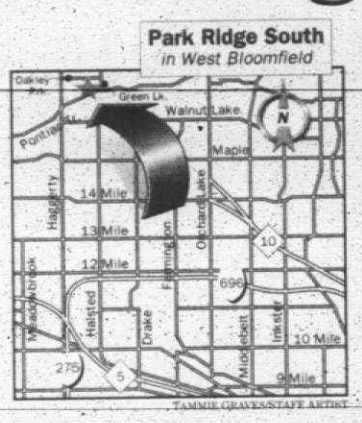

The main floor features a parlor, library and family room separated by a two-way fireplace, kitchen/nook and dining room with butler's pantry. Again, two half baths are on the main level.

The master, with cathedral ceiling, shows two separate vanities, two walk-in closets and a separate tub and shower.

Two bedrooms share a jack-and-jill bath and the fourth bedroom has its own shower.

Cohen also offers three floor plans with a first floor master.

Brick, stone, wood and Dryvit will be used as exterior materials.

Versailles: This model at Park Ridge South includes four bedrooms, three full baths, two half-baths and more than 4,000 square feet of living space.

"We've had a lot of interest, a lot of enthusiasm," said Gail Sandweiss, sales coordinator. "The lots are magnificent, homesites are densely treed so there's a lot of privacy. It's like you're in northern Michigan.

"Kitchens are magnificently sized," she added. "We're hearing that's what people want. And large family rooms for all the media equipment people have now.

"The desire to be in this area is very strong," Sandweiss said. "Schools are excellent, value for home is excellent and the location is excellent."

At this price point, most people buying here will have purchased new before, Cohen said.

Park Ridge South is serviced by city water and sewers. The subdivision will have sidewalks. It's within the Walled Lake school boundaries.

The property tax rate currently is $28.14 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value. That means the owners of a $385,000 unit there would pay just over $5,400 the first year.

The annual association fee is estimated at $200-$250.

Kim and Ken Berman, bought a four-bedroom, two story in Park Ridge about two years ago for themselves and children Justin, Jordan and Jenna. It was their first brand new house.

"The building process went very smoothly," Kim said. "We were in before they said we'd be in and any minor things (problems) they took care of right away.

"What attracted us, I guess, was the design of the home," she said. "The best thing we liked about the plan was two staircases – one off the foyer, one off the family room."

Kim Berman also cited the family friendliness of the sub including neighbors, sidewalks and playground as as attraction.

Sandy and Michael Lippitt, along with son, Maxwell, also have lived in Park Ridge for about two years.

"We liked the location. It's a little further out from congestion," Michael said. "We like the coming school district of Walled Lake. We like the rural nature of the area and we liked the price point.

"From a building experience, they did everything they said they would," Lippitt said.

The sales office at Park Ridge, (810) 669-1070, is open noon to 6 p.m. daily.

In the blink of an eye, you can damage your vision with something as simple as debris thrown from a lawn mower.

Fortunately, protecting your eyes from the dangers of working in the yard can be as simple as wearing protective eyewear.

Here are five precautions:

1. Protect your eyes from flying particles, fertilizer and pesticides with safety eyewear.
2. Follow all instructions on warning labels for equipment and chemicals.
3. Remove all stones, twigs and other potential projectiles before you mow or weed-whack an area.
4. Be sure to spray a chemical away from your face and the faces of others nearby.
5. Keep others, especially children, a safe distance from your work area or equip them with protective gear, including eyewear.

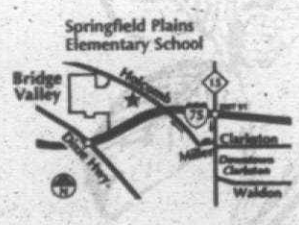

Keep these safety tips in mind and keep safety glasses on your face when working in the yard and you may be better able to keep yourself and your family out of the accident statistics.

Singlebode is small but convenient

The 1,149-square-foot Singlebode is an economical house with a floor plan perfectly suited for the needs of empty nesters wishing to down-size, or for a young family searching for their first home.

The kitchen has lots of room for the cook to maneuver while preparing meals. Amenities include walk-in pantry, dishwasher, range and oven. An eating bar is handy for those informal times.

The spacious living room flows unobstructed into the dining area. This creates a roominess that belies the square footage. The dining room has a sliding glass door to the back patio. There is enough room here to relax in the sun with a barbecue and some lounge chairs.

The master suite extends out from the left with a view window to the front. The amenities here include a large sleeping area and a walk-in closet. The bathroom on the first floor conveniently services both the master bedroom and the living room.

A home's energy efficiency is part of its price

While size, livability and location are all important factors when looking for a home, don't overlook what it costs to heat and cool.

Simply put, the more energy efficient it is, the more you'll be able to afford in mortgage payments.

Four basic areas of energy efficiency you should examine include:

■ Optimum amounts of insulation, caulking and weatherstripping.
■ Energy efficient windows and doors.
■ A high-efficiency heating and cooling system.
■ Energy efficient lighting and appliances.

Today, a properly insulated home not only helps you save on your fuel bills, it can help to improve indoor comfort. Many experts recommend that quality insulation such as CertainTeed Building Insulation or InsulSafe III Blown-In Fiber Glass should be installed to today's recommended R-values in the attic and sidewalls. Insulation should also be installed in the floors, garages and crawlspaces and around the water heater, pipes and within and around ducts.

In the area of windows and doors, look for energy-efficient models like low-e double paned windows, which provide three times the efficiency of single pane glass for added energy savings.

Perhaps most important in terms of your annual energy bills, is your central heating and cooling system. Have a professional evaluate or test the system. In addition, look for oil and gas furnace modifications such as higher efficiency burners and automatic electronic thermostats.

Lastly, but still important are the lighting and appliances in a home. Perhaps the best way to evaluate the efficiency of major appliances, such as dishwashers, waterheaters and furnaces, is to look for the bright ENERGY GUIDE label to help you determine the annual operating costs.

In the area of lighting, remember that a 40-watt fluorescent bulb gives off more light than a 100-watt incandescent bulb at half the energy costs.

An informative Energy Checklist for Buying and Selling is available free from the CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482 or by calling 1-800-782-8777. You can also see the checklist on the Internet at http://www.certainteed.com

James S. Bonadeo, president emeritus of the Building Industry Association of Southeastern Michigan, is one great guy, according to colleagues and friends who recently toasted his 50 years in the business with a testimonial dinner.

Bonadeo, 80, a Plymouth resident and still active in residential construction, served as president of the association for three years, 1989 through 1991.

He's the only person to serve as president for more than one year since the association's founding in 1928.

"I enjoy everything I just did," Bonadeo says of his active lifestyle. "Probably the most enjoyable part was when I used to build 10 custom homes a year. I got to meet people and you became friends with them."

A plumber by training, Bonadeo figures he's built thousands of houses in suburban Detroit. He was especially active in Redford early in his career, Plymouth now.

He was a moving force in Victoria Park subdivision in Detroit during the early 1990s, the first substantial residential development in the city in years.

Bonadeo also has been active in charity and civic work including Boys Town of Italy and Madonna University.

Bonadeo, who credits much of his success to "some terrific people working for me," said he has no plans to retire.

"I promised my wife, Earlene, after 80 I'd slow down to 40 hours a week. She chided me recently saying, 'You've been 80 for four weeks and you haven't slowed down yet.'"

The couple enjoys extensive traveling.

A daughter, Nancy, and son, Mark, have been involved in the construction business during various stages of their lives.

Proceeds from the testimonial will be used to establish a scholarship in Bonadeo's name for students interested in a building career. A portion also will be used for political action on behalf of property rights.

"Jim has told me that one of the most gratifying parts of his business is the second- and third-time buyers he sees," said Gilbert "Buzz" Silverman, a Farmington Hills builder and current BIA president.

"Continuity like that speaks for itself."

James S. Bonadeo honored president emeritus

Here are some tips on staying cool in this hot summer weather

Enhance your home comfort by installing high-performance central air-conditioning. The newest systems are efficient, quiet, and include outdoor units that are smaller than traditional models. Experts at Carrier Corporation recommend the following tips when purchasing your central cooling system:

1. High Efficiency: The number one homeowner requirement in cooling systems is high efficiency. Look for a Seasonal Energy Efficiency Ratio (SEER) of 10 or greater.

2. Low Sound Levels: Imagine trying to enjoy your backyard with a noisy condensing unit. Choose a model with a low sound level that appeals to you and your neighbors.

3. Small Size: Your central cooling system will feature a unit that sits in your back or side yard. You'll want to choose one large enough to do the job, but small enough not to detract from the beauty of the exterior of your home.

4. Environmentally sound: New chlorine-free refrigerants used in some brands of air-conditioning will not harm the earth's protective ozone layer.

Carrier's WeatherMaker 38TXA is among the industry's highest-efficiency single-speed residential air conditioners, providing a SEER of 13.0. Its high-efficiency rating helps you reduce your cooling costs between 40 and 60 percent and qualifies it for the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's Energy Star Residential Program, which recognizes products that reduce energy consumption and pollution.

The WeatherMaker is also one of the quietest models available. Its sound output, as low as 71 decibels, is as quiet as your refrigerator. It also uses a new chlorine-free refrigerant which complies with future phase-out legislation affecting residential air conditioners. This chlorine-free refrigerant, R-410A, makes the WeatherMaker the first residential air conditioner to be approved by Green Seal, a national, non-profit environmental labeling organization. R-410A also enabled Carrier to make the new air conditioner as much as 27 percent smaller than comparable units.

Once you purchase your system, remember these maintenance tips to ensure optimum performance and comfort:

1. Have your central air-conditioning system inspected by a qualified service technician or dealer at the beginning of the season.

2. Clean the standard air filters monthly and newer, more advanced filters every three to five months.

3. Make sure the outdoor or condensing unit of a central air conditioner is free of debris. Trim or remove shrubs or obstructions within one foot of the unit.

4. Be careful when mowing the lawn near a condensing unit that grass clippings and leaves are not blown toward the unit.

5. Never add refrigerant to an air conditioner yourself. Call a dealer who has the knowledge and equipment to do this job properly.

6. Do not run a central air conditioner when the outdoor temperature is below 70 degrees. This may cause premature compressor failure.

What's a great way to perk up a tired-looking room or give a sense of serenity to a room that's always full of chaos? Color! The right color scheme in a room can create an atmosphere that suits your particular lifestyle needs.

"When decorating a room, one of the first steps is to establish a color scheme" says Margi Daniels, ASID, La-Z-Boy design consultant. "And it doesn't take an interior designer to combine colors that will bring out the best in your home. With a little design know-how, selecting and coordinating colors can be easy."

A handy tool any do-it-yourself decorator can use to simplify the color selection process is a "color wheel" available at your local art supply store. Invented in the 17th century by Sir Isaac Newton and still widely used throughout the interior design industry today, the color wheel incorporates the spectrum of colors into an easy-to-use wheel form, helping designers and consumers alike create well-balanced and aesthetically pleasing color schemes.

According to Daniels, there are four basic color schemes derived from the color wheel that can act as simple guidelines when decorating your home:

Monochromatic Color Scheme

A monochromatic color scheme uses one color only, incorporating degrees of lightness and darkness (or value) of that color for variety. With a monochromatic color scheme, textural fabrics on upholstered furniture can be used to add depth and richness to a room. This scheme works most effectively in small rooms.

Adjacent or "Related" Color Scheme

An adjacent or "related" color scheme comprises three colors that are next to each other on the color wheel and have a common color denominator such as blue, blue-green and green. Daniels advises, "This scheme works well in any room of the home and tends to be the most foolproof."

Complementary Color Scheme

A complementary color scheme pairs two colors directly opposite one another on the color wheel, such as yellow and purple. For this type of color combination to work best, it is important to allow one color to dominate while the other serves as a contrast.

Triadic

Triadic color schemes are developed using any three colors that are equidistant from each other on the color wheel. When combined correctly, red, yellow and blue tones, for example, can be especially dramatic.

"There is no need to be intimidated by color when decorating your home," says Daniels. "By using the right tools and following these simple guidelines, you will be able to combine colors that evoke the right mood and create an atmosphere that not only complements but enhances the activity or function of your room."

For more decorating ideas, call 1-800-MAKE A HOME to receive a free La-Z-Boy Decorating Guide. The guide includes easy-to-follow steps for room planning and decorating, definitions of common home furnishings terms and a grid and furniture templates so that you can develop your own floor plan.

Fight lightning

A "power surge" may not sound dangerous, but if it strikes your PC, TV or other electronic equipment, it can be a real problem and a financial or replacement costs.

Lightning doesn't have to hit a power line to fry your electronic gear. It can strike a tree in your yard and find its way into your house wiring through a ground connection.

Fortunately, there is something you can do to protect your investment. You can now get a circuit breaker/surge arrester to protect your home's entire electrical system.

Circuit breaker/surge arresters, which typically retail around $75 to $100, can be easily retrofitted into existing home load centers (that gray box in your basement or garage), though you should have a qualified electrician install it.

Several companies in the U.S. manufacturer these devices. Some are more rugged than others. One model can handle currents as high as 40,00 amperes. The typical lightning strike is 25,000 amperes.

For more information on whole-house surge protection, write Siemens Energy & Automation, P.O. Box 2407, Norcross, GA 30091-9828; or call 1-800-964-4114.

Success of 18-inch satellite dish sparks heated dishes, fake rocks

The 18-inch Digital Satellite System is such a big success it has spawned a whole new industry of accessories that give DSS owners new ways to catch up on local news and weather, dress up their dish or even take it along on vacation.

In its first year DSS became the fastest-selling consumer home electronics product in history. DSS has quickly become the No. 1 cable alternative and has revolutionized the way Americans watch TV by offering laser disc-quality picture, CD-quality sound and a wide variety of unique programming options from two complementary providers, U.S. Satellite Broadcastings and DIRECTV.

Now new companies are jumping on the DSS bandwagon by developing accessories ranging from compact antennas that make access to local programming even easier to special RV units to let road-trippers enjoy DSS and nonstop movies when they travel.

"Not long ago, people didn't understand all that DSS had to offer. But now DSS is becoming a mainstream household product with its very own line of gadgets," said the Gadget Guru Andy Pargh.

Industry insiders agree. "We're not surprised DSS is inspiring other innovations. Once people see all the programming choices with crystal clear pictures and incredible sound, they love it," said Stanley E. Hubbard, president and CEO of U.S. Satellite Broadcasting. "These accessories will give consumers even more ways to enjoy the DSS and U.S. Satellite Broadcasting experience."

The Big Stick

Using a traditional antenna, local news and network affiliates can be accessed off air with the touch of a button on the DSS remote control. DSS is fully compatible with local broadcast. Recently, Toshiba announced a new line of compact antennas including the "Big Stick." It can be mounted under the eaves of a house. Another antenna mounts right on the DSS pole.

On the Road Again With DSS

Recreational vehicle owners can turn their RVs into theaters on wheels, thanks to the latest RV accessory – DSS. Datron, Winegard and Bestmade Super Satellite offer DSS units that deliver nonstop movies and entertainment featuring the same crystal clear picture and CD sound as residential DSS, even on the road.

Fully automated DSS units are operated with the touch of a button from inside the RV. Handy manual units can be cranked out of the RV's roof by hand.

Rock Your World

For those who want to landscape with DSS, a new accessory does the job and enhances the yard at the same time. Rock On has developed a faux-granite "boulder" to cover the 18-inch dish.

It is sold along with baby granite boulders and allows clear transmission of the satellite signal.

Roam Room To Room

RCA has developed the Remote Control Signal Sender that allows DSS owners to control what they are watching from any room in the house. For instance, a person watching television in the bedroom can change the DSS channel without needing to go into the living room, where the DSS set top receiver is located. This new technology from RCA allows the DSS remote control signal to travel through walls.

Satellite In The Sky

Satellite Sky-Dome has developed an attractive skylight that encloses the 18-inch dish. The fully operational, plastic skylight is mounted into the roof and allows clear transmission of the satellite signal.

Hot, Hot, Hot

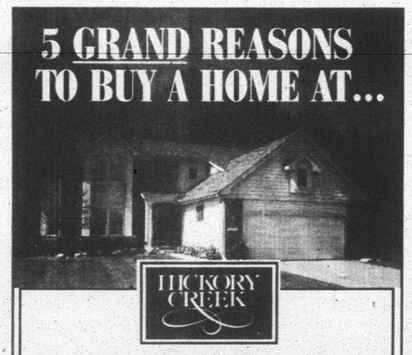

For DSS owners who live in colder climates, the Perfect 10 HotShot dish and dish covers will melt their cares away. Perfect 10 manufactures an 18-inch DSS dish with a low-voltage internal heating element to melt snow or ice from the dish.

Glass Houses

Toshiba also is launching the new GlassLink System which eliminates the need to drill through walls by allowing DSS signals to travel from the dish outside the house to the receiver inside. The signal travels through a pane of glass via a two-piece magnetic device on either side of the pane.

DSS is available wherever TVs are sold and through AT&T.

How much house can you afford?

There are many important questions prospective homebuyers should ask, such as "How much house can I afford?"

"What are the different types of loans available?" "Should I finance my home for 15 or 30 years?"

To answer these questions, first you need to find a good source of information. One useful source of information now educating home buyers about their options is the HomeSide Lending web site on the Internet.

The web site's helpful glossary defines many unfamiliar terms involved in buying a home, while a products and helpful information page explains how the home financing process works and which options might be best for you.

A pre-qualification worksheet can help you figure out exactly what you can afford.

According to HomeSide Lending, a mortgage lender qualifies a prospective borrower by looking at income and debts.

Under most product guidelines, about 28 percent of a family's gross monthly income may be used for the payment of your mortgage and up to 36 percent of their gross monthly income may be used for total monthly debts. Additionally, there are many programs available for first-time homebuyers that make it easier to qualify for a mortgage.

Many mortgage options exist and learning about what's available may save you money.

For example, a 15-year mortgage can save you thousands of dollars in interest payments but a 30-year mortgage will probably have lower payments and can qualify you for a higher loan amount.

In certain situations a fixed rate mortgage is ideal and in others, an adjustable rate mortgage is better. Certain homebuyers may also qualify for government-insured loans.

How much will your monthly mortgage payment be? The web site makes it easy to figure out if it's an amount you can afford.

HomeSide's mortgage rates and payment table are updated each business day. The calculator can give you monthly principal and interest payments for a variety of loan programs.

Reaching New Heights Of Cleanliness

When you get down to it, cleaning the floor is a chore that can be made simpler. Here are a few hints on how:

■ Try to wipe up water and spills immediately, especially on floors waxed with liquid wax or you may get white spots that need rewaxing.

■ Remove soiled spots and black marks by rubbing with fine steel wool dipped in a liquid water-based wax. Do not use steel wool on "no-wax" floors nor embossed tiles.

■ To remove chewing gum, candle wax or tar, wait until the material has hardened. Put an ice cube in a plastic bag on the spot. This will hasten setting. Scrape up any excess with a dull-edged tool.

■ To make vacuuming easier, many people look for special attachments or unique on-board cleaner tools. Case in point is the new Hide-A-HoseTM System on the Ultra MVP from Dirt Devil. This system includes a built in stretch hose and, when used with the telescopic wand, provides as much as 20 feet of extended cleaning reach. Although the long hose stores neatly out of sight and out of the way, when you need to, it can reach great distances without having to physically move the vacuum. Stairs and other areas are now much more accessible. In addition, it is only half as loud as conventional cleaners and offers an ultra filtration system that traps 99.97 percent of dust and allergens. It also features a patented "Touchless" bag change system, and a patented Edge Wedge™ tool for cleaning corners and stairs. Thanks to the extra long hose, you may be able to clean a whole flight of stairs without once lifting the machine. There's a full bag indicator, automatic dual edge cleaning, quick cord release and dual headlights.

■ If you can, it's a good idea to vacuum the padding and the floor under a rug at least every six months.

■ Don't shake small rugs. This can break threads, loosen knots, fray fringe, damage backing and tear binding.

■ Don't hang rugs over a clothesline. This will bend the fibers and break the backing.

■ If your carpet gets crushed by heavy furniture, moisten the matted area with water and cover with a clean dry, white cloth. Place a hot iron very lightly on the cloth. Remove the iron and cloth and brush the tufts erect with your fingertips or a dull, blunt knife or spatula.

Keep these ideas in mind and you may find you can keep your floors looking fine without having to look too down about it.

SEMCOG offers peek at regional info

A press kit arrived in the newsroom recently from the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments announcing it has a new Web site on the Internet.

O&E ONLINE

EMORY DANIELS

Earlier I had noticed SEMCOG had placed the Universal Resource Locator (URL) of its site on the front of its mailing envelope. That's one good way to promote a Web site.

So I had taken a quick peek at what SEMCOG was doing but was much more fully informed after going through the press kit. You, too, can take a quick peek or linger by pointing to http://www.semcog.org.

The intent is to provide residents, business persons or officials in the region with the most frequently requested data and information on a 24-hour basis. The Web site is seen as an alternative to using the telephone or visiting SEMCOG's office during working hours.

Among the information to be made available at this site will be:

■ A profile of 233 communities in the region, including data on current population estimates, households, jobs, and development;

■ Building permits issued in 1995, by community;

■ A directory of SEMCOG staff with phone numbers and E-mail addresses;

■ Daily updates on Ozone Action;

■ An application for SEMCOG's free RideShare car/van pooling service.

The home page has a graphic of the state of Michigan with the southeast region outlined in blue. Home page table of contents items include: General Information; SEMCOG News; Programs & Data; Contacting SEMCOG; Search; and, How to Use This Web Site.

General information links you to such topics as a calendar of meetings and activities, advisory councils and committees, planning designations, and related Internet sources. The link to Products & Data takes you to such items as aerial photographs, publications, maps, data sets, regional profiles, community profiles, and more.

The site, which went online June 26, 1996, allows you to download Abode Acrobat Reader free for easier viewing and printing of documents. Files at this site are in different formats; those that require Abode for downloading are identified with a special PDF (Portable Document Format) icon. The free download can be found under the "How to Use This Web Site" link.

Exchange students

In the same day's mail as SEMCOG's press kit came a press release from Amy Mullen for the American Institute for Foreign Study Foundation for its Academic Year in America (SYA) program.

Each year students ages 15-18 arrive from more than 25 countries to live with American host families. Well this press release tells about the program and about the need for host families.

What caught my eye was that Amy listed a URL for a home page on the letterhead of the press release. (Another good way to promote a Web site). So the next time I was online I double-clicked Netscape and pointed to http://www.aifs.org/aifsaya.htm.

If you do the same, you'll find a photograph of a group of young people standing and waving at you. Assumedly they are exchange students arriving in America, or leaving America, who are happy (because they are smiling in the photo) about their experiences here.

The table of contents has links to: The Program—How it Works; Want to be a Host Family?; Want to be a Local Coordinator?; On being an exchange student ...; Grants to Schools; Links; and About AIFS.

Now there are a lot of groups involved in exchange programs — Rotary, for one, Julian Prince of West Bloomfield for another. So there's a lot of competition for the attention of editors and reporters to spread the word about each group. What I learned because Amy placed her home page URL on the letterhead was that the AIFS Foundation is now searching for host families for students from Poland, Spain, Brazil, Germany and the Netherlands and if I was interested in doing so I could call 1-800-322-4678, ext. 5423, or E-mail mburnham@aifs.org.

■ The Symantec Anti-Virus Research Center can be accessed at http://www.symantec.com/avcenter to obtain computer virus technical information. Especially helpful is Symantec's A-Z searchable directory of viruses. Similar data investigates infections specifically for Macs.

■ ViruSafeWEB—Version 2.0 can be reached at http://www.eliashim.com to download a free anti-virus program that plugs right into your Web browser. The software will instantly scan everything you download over the Internet and notify you if a file is infected or corrupted. ViruSafe-WEB 2.0 can also be used to scan other Internet tools like FTP and E-mail programs.

■ Tomorrow's Morning is a weekly newspaper created just for kids that can be accessed at http://morning.com. A few of the areas covered include international, educational and nature news. Find out why people in England can't stop eating, what Russian President Boris Yeltsin is doing to prove his youth is still intact or what Spider-Man's up to.

■ Given the state of the present Tigers, many of us have become minor league baseball fans. Minor league baseball is easy to follow in this area with the Mudhens in Toledo and the Lugnuts in Lansing. Learn more by visiting "Minor League Baseball" at http://www.minorleaguebaseball.com/. The site claims to host each and every team from the Albuquerque Dukes to the Yakima Bears. Users will find full schedules along with a special section devoted to league news.

Emergency card available

It looks like a credit card.

But it acts in emergencies.

And new local distributor Gary Thompson of Livonia thinks it offers a valuable service.

The Emergency Information Card is a wallet-sized card with a 24-hour worldwide 800 phone number that will allow fax transmission of information in case of emergency by activating the information with a personal identification number.

In an emergency it could save a life, by giving hospital personnel information about the patient's medical history, including allergies and current medications, according to Thompson. It can also provide emergency and family contacts.

"One of the nice things we feel about is it is an organizational tool," Thompson said.

Thompson and his family had carried paper medical documents in their wallets for more than five years when he and his wife Nancy learned of the card, he said.

Emergency Information Center Inc. holds customer supplied information on more than 4 million cardholders in a National Information Response Center for fax transmission in the event of an emergency. The center's computer bank is based in New Jersey.

The information is held in confidence and will only be sent via fax when the proper access code has been activated.

The card can access blood type, medications, physicians, insurance carrier, emergency contacts and more than 15 other items of information. For insurance and theft purposes it can also fax personal property description with serial numbers, issue up to 50 faxes across the state for a missing adult, child or pet, and keep the location of a last will and testament on file.

The card is $19.95 for the first year, with a yearly renewal of $9.95 and it can be updated at any time free.

Thompson has been distributing brochures about the product at local doctors' offices and hospitals.

Budget cuts threaten consumers' safety

JOE GAGNON

Many of you who read this column or listen to my radio show know of my role in the world of consumerism. I specialize in the field of major home appliances and dabble in the rest of everyday life. I believe that consumers need to be treated fairly and honestly and that anything less than that is unacceptable.

The need for individuals and organizations which are labeled as helpers to consumers is greater today than ever before. President Kennedy felt the same way during his time in office when he established the United States Office for Consumer Affairs which is now being threatened with elimination.

It is my opinion that if this step by Congress is permitted, appliance rip-off problems will seem small in comparison to what will be perpetrated onto the American consumer. This agency in Washington with only 13 employees who work countless hours without compensation and care so much for others has been scheduled for a budget cut in September. The budget cut is a stinging amount of 1.8 million dollars which is only a small fraction of the country's total expenditure. The wrong of all this is the fact that it is their total budget which would in essence eliminate the agency which helps so many millions of American consumers.

We live in a world already needing more protection than we have. Take the example of Nancy Donley, who in 1993 served her son Alex a home-cooked frozen hamburger. Alex died three days later, a victim of an infection caused by E coli 0157:H7 a highly toxic bacteria that this country's antiquated meat inspection system isn't set up to detect. This poor woman who made sure that Alex wore his helmet every time he rode his little bicycle and strapped on his seatbelt in the car caused this tragedy by feeding and loving him.

The federal Centers for Disease Control reports that at least 10,000 Americans are killed each year by food-related illnesses. Now you put this writer in charge of this subject in this country and I'll show you how to put a stop to it all. We will have a barbecue at my house and in attendance will be the food producers of these products and the elected government officials who want to cut back on consumer budgets. I'll be doing the cooking and they will be doing the eating. Maybe then they can relate to how Nancy Donley feels today.

This is just one of the many stories I could relate to you on the subject of consumerism in this big country. Since President Reagan thought it wise to cut back on everything possible, consumer agencies across this land have disappeared at alarming rates. Don't you ever doubt that no good can come from the removal of the U.S. Office of Consumer Affairs. Certain elected officials who are set to vote on this subject have about as much compassion as Jack the Ripper. Why don't you write or call your senator in Washington; you'll know what to say.

Joe Gagnon, the Appliance Doctor, will answer your questions about maintaining and repairing large appliances. Gagnon is president of Carmack Appliances in Garden City and does a weekly radio program on WJR-AM. He is author of "First Aid from the Appliance Doctor," available at area bookstores.

Make it a daylily day

The Southern Michigan Hemerocallis Society will sponsor a daylily garden bus tour Sunday, July 21.

Registration is required. The $20 fee includes lunch and the bus tour. Send the fee to Armand DeLisle, 30332 Ohmer Dr., Warren 48092-1956. For more information, call DeLisle at (810) 751-8419.

The tour will visit gardens of the society's members. Two award-winning gardens will also be viewed: the Stout Silver Medal Bed, containing all the daylilies winning the highest national award given to one daylily each year since 1950, and the Don Fischer Memorial Cup Bed, featuring the best in miniature daylilies awarded nationally since 1962.

The public is encouraged to join the tour, not only to see three differently styled beds incorporating the daylily, but also to see how the daylily has progressed over several decades of hybridizing and to learn more about the growing of the daylily.

GARDEN SPOT

Mosses will thrive in rock gardens

MARTY FIGLEY

It's always exciting to meet a new plant and I recently was introduced to several at the recent Metropolitan Detroit Landscape Association/Meadow Brook Garden Show.

In the rock garden installed and maintained by Ray Wiegand's Nursery Inc. (where the trains entertain), assistant wholesale manager Rick Born pointed out Irish moss and Scottish moss. The nursery is at 47747 Romeo Plank Road, Macomb (call (810) 286-3658).

These plants aren't really mosses, but are Sajina sublostusa, false mosses that take heavy traffic, are excellent planted between bricks or stepping stones and make a significant addition to the various plants in a rock garden.

"Both of these plants like an acidic soil, 6 to 6.2 pH, and grow in the sun, which is important," Born said. "Although they are late to re-leaf in the spring, they are evergreen (Irish is dark green and Scottish is pale green), they're worth the wait. These 'mosses' only need pruning for esthetic purposes."

Born did caution me that when these plants are grown under ideal conditions they could be quite invasive, although they are easily controlled.

"We have been growing these plants in the nursery for at least six years and find that they are excellent plants."

True mosses grow normally in the woods and need shade. This variety of Sajina thrives in the sun and loves sand. Drainage is important and although it loves moisture it must dry out before giving it a thorough soak — 1-1/2 inches deep every two days. Although fertilization isn't necessary it may appreciate an occasional spray of muracid.

Other varieties

Several sedum, Crassulaceae, varieties are also important in the rock garden scene and also prefer a sunny site. One especially is S. kamtschaticum.

"You could play football on it and it won't bother it."

It has proved to be quite successful and is a particularly attractive sedum. The plant grows only five inches tall with white-margined green leaves. It flowers in the summer with orange-yellow blossoms.

There are many other low-growing sedums and Wiegand's Nursery has had good luck with three of them. They are all S. spuriums. The first variety, "Red Carpet," has red foliage and pink flowers; the second, "Dragonblood," has red foliage and white flowers, and S. spurium tricolor, sometimes called the Christmas sedum, has foliage that is red, green and white.

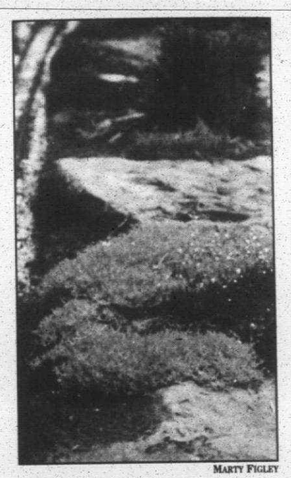

Other sedums that may be of interest are S. acre, a vigorous, evergreen species that grows only two inches high and has bright yellow flowers in the summer. Another perennial is S. dasyphyllum, with grayish-green oval foliage on pinkish-gray stems.

A good book about plants suitable for the rock garden will guide you in the proper selection for your growing conditions. Two of the latest offerings are both published by Timber Press. They are "Cushion Plants for the Rock Garden," Duncan Lowe ($29.95), and "Rock Garden Plants of North America," edited by Jane McGary ($49.95).

"Cushion Plants for the Rock Garden" details both easy-to-grow and more demanding varieties of these plants. Information about the survival tactics of 87 plants for pots, troughs, plunge beds and alpine gardens as well as instructions for growing them are

LET'S REMODEL

Home improvement loan can save money

Q: How can home improvement financing save me money?

A: These days we are all looking for a break on our taxes. Our home provides a means by which we can borrow on the equity for any purpose and receive a tax deduction.

"But, what if we don't have enough equity and how can home improvements help?" We have designed a wide range of loan programs that may require no equity, and then take into consideration the future value of your improvements before you have started the work.

"But how does this save me money – you're not giving me money, I'm borrowing it" It is simple, by taking your new improved value before work starts, you will have more equity upfront. This means that you can borrow (on a tax deductible basis) enough money to pay for the home improvements and pay off high rate, non tax deductible loans and credit cards.

For example: Existing value, $160,000. Existing First Mortgage, $100,000. Equity, $60,000. Credit Cards, $10,000. Car Loan, $10,000.

Monthly payments: Mortgage, $1,035. Credit Cards, $40, Car Loan, $350.

Total: $1,785.

These are your current expenses and after shopping around you get a bid for $30,00 to do home improvements. Now you are in a slight panic because how on earth are you going to afford to get another loan to pay the contractor? Here is a possible solution.

Under our equity program you could qualify for $50,000. (Note: a typical bank would only lend you $28,000). That $50,000 would cover the job cost, credit cards and your car loan. The monthly payment would be $588 for 15 years.

New debt: Mortgage, $1,035, Harris loan, $588. Total $1,623.

So you would save $162 per month plus have $30,000 worth of home improvements done. This does not even consider tax benefits.

Cindy Hall, Harris Financial, Troy, 1-800-444-6510.

GARDENS SHOW HEALTHY ATTITUDE

BY MARTY FIGLEY
SPECIAL WRITER

A Healthy Garden Tour, , will take place 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, July 20, and noon to 4 p.m. Sunday, July 21.

Ticket price is $3 for each tour. Different gardens are open each day, rain or shine. Children under 10 years of age aren't allowed. Tickets and maps are available at time of purchase at designated stations.

Direct questions weekdays to Southeastern Oakland County Resource Recovery Authority in Royal Oak at (810) 288-5150, or the Henry Ford Estate in Dearborn at (313) 593-5590. The tour is co-sponsored by the authority and the Detroit Free Press

The southeastern Michigan area has been divided into six sections so that many people can visit any or all of the gardens. (See the related schedule.)

All of the gardens on these tours (each tour has six or more gardens) use a minimal amount of chemicals or none at all. The styles are quite diverse so that visitors will be able to get ideas as well as enjoy their beauty. They feature annuals, perennials, herbs, shrubs and/or vegetables.

Working wonders

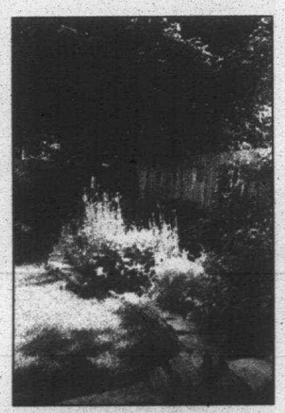

One Birmingham garden has been in the making for five years from what once had been a very neglected yard and garden. Now it is a charming garden with lots to see and emulate.

Nancy Kader has done wonders in the five years she has lived in her home. The front was a typical yard with foundation plantings, grass and a walk straight up the center.

Now this area has been fenced in with a 36-inch tall wrought-iron gate. Yellow "Stella de Oro" daylilies march around the outside of the fence and holly (kept to a perfect height) guards the other side. The rest of the beds are filled with lilies, peonies, hostas, several Rhododendrons "Hong Kong" with creamy/yellow blooms that are "just stunning early in the season," Kader said.

Two trees anchor the corners. A Purple Pendula is "nifty" with purple foliage and smooth bark of the same color and a "Sugartime" crabapple has "interesting looking nubby bark that I love." The fruit hangs on the branches until spring, for which the birds are thankful, and it also adds texture in the middle of winter.

Kader especially enjoys watching the hummingbirds as they visit the two "enormous" trumpet vines on the front of the house. The vines are quite old.

In the back

A border garden along the back fence is filled with plants that belonged to Kader's mother. Bright red dianthus, orange poppies, several kinds of lilies (including Oriental), white astilbe, bleeding heart (these last two, she has found, do well in the sun) and white shasta daisies like their new home. String trellises against the wooden fence support beans, limas and cucumbers.

Speaking of vegetables, Kader has reserved a sunny spot for them and it is packed with the likes of kohlrabi, cabbage, two kinds of spinach, three different onions, leeks, beets, garlic, carrots, peppers, tomatoes and lettuce. Marigolds edge the bed for pest control.

Around the edges of the enclosed garden many of the same plants seen in the front garden are growing here, as well as others such as several strategically placed clematis vines. A ligularia with large, heart-shaped leaves adds still more texture and will bloom with tall, bright yellow spike flowers. "Purple Palace" heuchera, roses, tall delphiniums (a white and a deep purple one called "Black Night"), Rudbeckia, Jacob's Ladder, bee balm and petunias as well as other flowers are enticing to birds, bees and butterflies.

Special houses

Six birdhouses are included in the garden as well as a specially built butterfly house. Kader has put twigs inside to lure them and hopes that this year they will make a home there. It did take two or three years for birds to take up residence in the houses, so she is patient.

A small pond centers the back yard and the running water is a delightful sound. Koi and goldfish live year-round as the deepest part is 36 inches. Plants include ribbon grass, Iris, Taro, papyrus, water forget-me-nots and watercress, which the fish eat.

The far end of the garden contains grapes, raspberries, blueberries, currants and rhubarb among the flowers while two large stone lions sit on pedestals and stand guard.

The raised brick patio rests against the house and is edged with purple lobelia. This ambitious lady designed the brick walk that leads from the porch steps (and up to the patio) with a slope rather than steps. This idea adds a graceful feel to the landscape.

Kader has done most of the work herself and said, "I'll never do brick again."

She composts outdoors and worm composts in the basement using a special container. She uses all her kitchen scraps, keeps the mixture moist and is left with worm castings and water. She drains the water off to provide rich nutrients to the garden. When I asked why, she replied, "It just seems responsible to me." Soaker hoses are kept in every garden year round.

Kader said she spends 20 hours a week in the garden in the spring and it is obvious she spends a lot of time there during the rest of the season. She has planned the garden to have successive bloom all year long. A new metal obelisk stands waiting for a newly planted clematis "six-inch white flowers — a new one" to scramble over it. She has also installed lighting and said, "That's a real joy."

These gardens will be open SATURDAY, JULY 20:

"Rock Garden Plants of North America" is "An Anthology from the Bulletin of the North American Rock Garden Society." The book contains the best articles from this publication over the society's first 50 years.

Many plants suitable for alpine gardens originated in North America, therefore they are the focus of the book. Information about plant sites, native species and personal experiences with these plants from noted rock garden enthusiasts will guide the reader to success in growing many of them. The color photos show the diverse attributes of rock garden plants.

INVITING IDEAS

Turn barbecue leftovers into soup

RUTH JOHNSTON

In the midst of gorgeous weather, nothing tastes better than firing up your grill and cooking outdoors. When planning a guest list for a barbecue, I always buy enough groceries to feed at least six more, just in case we have "strays" stop by. This behavior invariably leaves me with an abundance of leftovers — leftover barbecued chicken, corn on the cob, sliced tomatoes ... sound familiar?

While normally I will have guests clamoring for an invitation to leftovers at my house, cold barbecued chicken, microwaved day-old corn on the cob, and soggy tomatoes, isn't their first choice. Let this food go to waste? Not a chance. When all else fails, make soup!

Faced with the aforementioned ingredients, I opened my fridge and visually scanned what was available: jalapeno peppers, red peppers, celery and a jar of cannellini beans; this is certainly workable. A quick look to my shaker seed box, enough onions and garlic? Perfect!

Serve "Ruth's Leftover Barbecue Soup" with some piping hot sourdough or cornbread, and add a salad.

With this recipe, feel free to experiment — add whatever you have leftover or what's in your fridge. If you have additional grilled vegetables left over, they would be a delicious addition. The next day, throw in some raw shrimp, cook until the shrimp is cooked, and create another meal!

RUTH'S BARBECUE SOUP

Ingredients for stock:
- 3-5 pieces of leftover barbecue chicken (sauce, skin and bones included)
- 1 large onion, peeled
- 2 cloves garlic, peeled
- Water to cover

Ingredients for soup:
- 2 large red peppers
- 2 tablespoons light olive oil
- 3 large onions (approx. 4 cups), peeled and chopped
- 2 1/2 tablespoons chopped garlic
- 4 ounces (6-8) fresh red hot cherry peppers; remove stems, seeds, and chop
- 4 jalapenos; remove stems and seeds, and chop
- 3 cups chopped celery
- 12 cups liquid — 10 cups reserved stock (see above) plus 2 cups chicken broth (use more broth if necessary to have 12 cups of liquid in total)
- Fresh leftover tomatoes chopped or 1 can (28 ounces) season diced tomatoes, drained
- 2-6 ounce cans of tomato paste
- 2-3 ears of leftover corn on the cob; remove kernels (with a knife remove kernels by slicing downward while holding the cob vertically)
- 1-19 ounce can or jar of cannellini beans, drained.
- Salt to taste

In a large stock pot, place leftover chicken, onion and garlic — cover with water to cover.

Cook stock over medium high heat removing foam as necessary. Cook until the meat of the chicken is falling off the bones. Let cool enough to handle — strain the broth and reserve the chicken meat. Place the meat in the filtered broth and reserve until later.

Roast 2 large red peppers (you can do it right on your gas open flame, broil, grill on a grill or torch with a small hand-propane torch) until blackened. Place the roasted peppers in a glass bowl and cover with plastic wrap to sweat. Once cool, cut off the stem, remove the seeds and devein. Remove the blackened skin by scrapping with a small knife — don't rinse, you want to keep all the flavor). When the skin is removed, cut into 1/4 inch dice

In a clean large stock pot, add the oil and heat. Add the onions and garlic and saute until transparent. Add the diced hot peppers and saute for 3-4 minutes. Add the diced celery and saute for about 8 minutes. Add the roasted red peppers and all of your liquid (12 cups in total) and the chicken meat. Add the drained canned tomatoes and tomato paste — mix thoroughly

Let cook for about 40 minutes over medium low heat — add the kernels of corn and the cannellini beans. Add salt to desired taste, and continue to cook until all vegetables are tender and flavors infused. The longer it cooks, the better — make sure to keep it cooking on low heat. Yield: 8-10 servings

I am not a dedicated bread baker. If the weather's hot, the only bread cooking in my house is in the bread machine. I found an interesting bread mix at Sam's Club — SOURDOUGH Bread Machine Mix by KRUSTEAZ®.

Cloisonne box is classic artistic treasure

BY NANCY AND FRANK BOOS
SPECIAL WRITERS

Dear Nancy and Frank:
I have this pretty box which I'm told is Japanese. It looks like porcelain. Can you give me some information?

Tina,
Bloomfield

Dear Tina:

Even though what you have looks like porcelain, it is actually cloisonne (pronounced cloy-son-aye). Cloisonne is a technique where cells or partitions made from thin metal bands called cloisons are attached in a design form to an object, usually metal. The cells are then filled in with finely ground colored glass enamel pastes and fired in a special kiln to fuse the enamels to the body of the object. From this basic technique, about 20 different varieties of cloisonne enamelware have evolved.

The standard cloisonne most of us are familiar with has the wires intact so they can be seen and felt on the finished product. However, the variety you have is called wireless or pulled wire cloisonne.

In wireless cloisonne, the wires are removed before each firing so that they are totally gone when the work is finished, or if any wires remain, they are totally covered over with layers of enamel. If any wires remain under the enamel, sometimes the original design can be very indistinctly seen.

The wireless method gives a very smooth, lustrous appearing surface with a slightly hazy effect and can therefore be misinterpreted by the uninitiated as porcelain.

Some ceramic cloisonne is known to exist, which means the cloisons had been affixed to a ceramic or porcelain body. Obviously, this would make the work very fragile and therefore quite rare. However, ceramic cloisonne is considered less desirable by some as it tends to have a duller color and the surface cracks with age.

Although most of us are most familiar with Japanese cloisonne, the technique originated in Greece and worked its way over the centuries to Japan. Because cloisonne was made approximately from the 10th to the 20th centuries in France, well before it reached Japan, at least half of the varieties have French names.

At one time, collectors and museum curators looked down their collective noses at Japanese cloisonne as an art form. The wireless technique inspired beautifully done pieces having some of the qualities of lacquerware. It allowed master artisans to interpret the Japanese artistic sensibilities in a magnificent manner. Now 19th and 20th century Japanese cloisonne is considered highly collectible.

If your piece is in good, original condition, it would probably bring $8,000 to $10,000 in a retail shop. Don't use it for buttons and perhaps you should get in insured.

FOCUS ON PHOTOGRAPHY

Keep your film safe from X-rays

BY MONTE NAGLER
SPECIAL WRITER

Starting to think about your 1996 vacation? Well, part of vacation planning is getting geared up for those memorable holiday photographs.

And if getting there by air is on the agenda, stop and ponder this important fact: Airport X-ray screening devices may be hazardous to your film's health.

What a shame it would be to return home with those treasured rolls of vacation pictures only to have had them hopelessly damaged by airport X-rays.

This potential problem has been compounded in recent years by the introduction of super fast films that are far more sensitive to X-ray damage than slower speed films.

To add to the problem, X-rays have a cumulative effect on film. That is, if you're making three or four plane stops on your trip, your film is more likely to be harmed by repeated X-raying.

Many travelers, aware of possible X-ray damage, place their film in check-through luggage thinking it will be safe there. Not so!

This may be the worst place to store film. Check-through luggage is subject to spot checks with high dosage X-ray units that increase the likelihood of ruined film.

Are there some things you can do to reduce or eliminate the danger of X-rays to your film? Absolutely.

To begin with, you can buy a lead-lined film pouch from your camera shop. I prefer the heavy-duty variety. The lining will protect your film from potentially harmful X-rays.

Secondly, and if convenient, have your film processed while on your trip. You'll not only get to see the results of your photographic skills sooner, but airport X-rays can't harm developed film.

Thirdly, exercise your traveler's rights at domestic airports and request a visual inspection of your film. By arriving early and being polite, you usually won't have any problems with security personnel.

Top remodelers pitch sound advice

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

Thinking about some remodeling work around the homestead?

Before you hire a contractor, listen to Ray and Jeffrey Stella, father and son, respectively, who recently were named among the best in the country by Remodeling magazine.

The Stellas, based in Plymouth, were specifically cited for business savvy.

"If you want quality workmanship, on-time completion, good communication, don't buy on price alone," Jeffrey said. "Buy on references and rapport with the contractor."

But by the same token, don't be afraid to talk money.

"Establish a budget right away," Ray said. "We can design you a kitchen for $10,000 but it won't be the one seen in our showroom. We need a plan. That's our road map."

Ray, whose father built garages and did masonry work, started his own business in 1958. Jeffrey is a Certified Kitchen Designer.

Last year, they did 38 jobs with a gross volume of about $900,000. The two have an office manager and recently hired a production foreman. Ray's wife, Kathie, helps with the books.

Walter W. Stoeppelwerth, a consultant, publisher of estimating manuals and columnist for Remodeling, was involved in the process of selecting premier contractors for the magazine's Big 50 this year.

"I met Ray Stella about 15 years ago in Chicago," Stoeppelwerth said. "I've always been impressed with the way he's endured with time. He's an honest, sharp, hard-working guy.

"In the remodeling business, there's more than a 50-percent fatality rate every year," Stoeppelwerth said. "Those are staffed by competent, hard-working tradesmen incompetent at business. The Stellas learned the business end and practice it.

"You need to become computerized, put a lead man on a job who runs it from start to finish," Stoeppelwerth said. "Specialize. Don't try to be all things to all people. Remember, you're running a business. You have to charge money."

The Stellas attribute much of their success to longstanding relationships built with subcontractors and suppliers.

"On average, people have been with us 10 years," Ray said. "They have a whole lot to do with keeping a project going."

Larry Waldsmith, a Livonia designer, has been on call for more than two decades.

Then there's attention to detail and communication with the customer.

"We not only sell the job, we personally produce it and take responsibility to see the job through from start to finish," Jeffrey said.

"Just about 100 percent of the time, they're there," Ray said of homeowners while work's in progress. "It's business as usual for the family and kids. It's not like a new home where nobody moves in until it's totally done.

"Job site maintenance is important as far as cleanliness goes," Ray said. "Communication is another key word. We tell them what to expect, what's going to happen tomorrow."

People who remodel rather than move have reached a comfort level they don't want to give up, the Stellas said.

"There's no guarantee if they move into that four bedroom house they will get the same schools, the same feeling of neighborhood," Ray said.

And folks seem to be staying put longer.

"In the mid 1980s, people lived in a house six, seven, eight years," Stoeppelwerth said. "Now, the average American family stays 11.4 years.

Most renovations have a reasonable payback, according to a 1994-95 cost/value report prepared by Remodeling magazine.

A 200-square-foot major kitchen remodel here with mid-priced new cabinets, countertop, oven, cooktop, microwave, dishwasher, disposer, 3-by-5 island and floor averaged $18,510 with an 84-percent recoup at sale.

Updating a 5-by-9 bathroom here with a new tub, toilet, vanity, lighting, floor and tile averaged just under $7,000 with a payback of 85 percent.

But there are degrees of remodeling, too. A cabinet refacing rather than replacing can save big money. And the Stellas agree that it doesn't make sense to spend $20,000 remodeling a kitchen in a house that has a market value of $60,000.

"There's no reason to go buy a Cadillac if you're on a Chevrolet budget," Jeffrey added.

Following are several check points buyers should consider before committing to a remodeling.

- Make sure the contractor is licensed, insured and bonded. Check those documents and, if you feel the need, get phone numbers to call and verify.
- Ask for and contact references.
- Be specific in the contract about materials to be used in the project. Think about including a completion clause in which a contractor pays penalties for unreasonable delays once work begins.
- Make sure the contractor – not you – acquires all permits.
- Obtain a waiver of lien from the contractor after work is done so subcontractors and suppliers won't later harass you for unpaid bills.

The potential for growth is staggering. A lot of money is spent on renovations now.

"Remodeling this year will be $122 billion," Stoeppelwerth said. "In 1967, it was $13.7 billion. Houses built after World War II are getting to the stage where they have to be remodeled. The average American house is 28 years old."

His advice if you're in the market?

"Don't get 15 bids. Get a couple of people in ... and see if you're comfortable. Get references. Check the references. Don't buy a remodeling project on price."

Club members have a right to due process

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q: I am a member of a private country club who wishes to expel a member because of vulgar and demeaning language which was used in the presence of certain members. The other parties, however, do not wish to bring their name to the forefront. The club intends to have a hearing regarding the expulsion of the member, but there will not be any witnesses. The country club thinks that if they disclose the names of the complainants, they will be intimidated by the member who is sought to be expelled. I am concerned about the due process considerations and am wondering if you have any comments since this is, in a sense, in the form of an association about which you may have knowledge.

A: The rights of members in country clubs is something that is not normally considered in the jurisprudence. Generally, when a private club holds a hearing to determine whether to expel a member, the elements of fair procedure include an opportunity for the member to confront and cross-examine the accusers and to examine and refute the evidence. Such was the decision in a recent case heard in California. The appeals court held that the person that was expelled was not afforded an fair hearing because he was not allowed to confront the two original complaining witnesses in that their identities were concealed from him. That case also found that the board's consideration in closed session of unnoticed and undocumented matters regarding the person expelled had clearly deprived him of a procedurally fair hearing. He argued that the decision of the board should have been reviewed under the business judgment rule, but the court correctly stated that the business judgment rule is not applied when considering to uphold the actions of a private association and the issue of due process.

Q: I recently sold my home and am thinking about buying a condominium. I saw you mention in your column the Michigan Condominium Statute. Where can I get information on this?

A: You can get a copy of the Condominium Statute by either contacting your local state legislator who will be more than happy to provide you with a copy of it or going to the library. While the Condominium Statute may be "interesting" reading, I strongly recommend that you consult with a knowledgeable attorney in condominium law before entering into a purchase agreement in connection with a condominium project. Knowing the law, of course, will help you work with your attorney, but is not a substitute for good and sound legal advice.

Best finance deal for inexpensive condos

MORTGAGE SHOPPING

DAVID C. MULLY

Are you thinking of purchasing a condominium in the $135,000 price range or less? Are you planning on investing less than 15 percent of the price as down payment? If so, the following financial tip may be your best bet.

If you fit into this category of home buyers or are planning on selling a condominium in this price range, FHA financing is an excellent choice. It offers costs savings and more flexibility than previous FHA loans, or many current conventional loans.

Simply chose an unit on the "FHA Approved Condo List" which is updated periodically and tells buyers or sellers that FHA financing is offered. You may be surprised to learn just how many condos are on this list. For example, in Novi and Northville there are 12 complexes approved, as well as many more in the Detroit market. And, if the condo you are interested in is not on the list, I can quickly obtain approved status through HUD. FHA mortgages are allowed to a maximum of $124,000 in Oakland and to $116,850 in Wayne County.

FHA requirements have changed and loans are now much easier to obtain than before. For instance, sellers are not required to pay discount points. Also, repair requirements are less stringent on condos, and condos would typically not have as many repairs needed as a house would. Some falsely believe that FHA loans are only for low to moderate income people. The FHA loan is actually perfect for the young professional ready to move from renting to owning.

FHA financing offers many advantages over other types of financing. With the lower down payments and lower costs of a FHA loan, monthly payments are typically reduced and your ability to buy a higher priced condo is improved. For example, compare putting 5 percent down for a conventional mortgage or putting the minimum down for a FHA mortgage on a condo selling for $125,000. FHA financing could save $3,262 in cash investment and reduce monthly payments by $150. Additionally, the annual income needed to qualify for a FHA loan is approximately $10,000 less than for a conventional loan. If you would like more specific information on this example, please call me and I'll explain.

Mortgage insurance for FHA condo loans also provides an area for savings over conventional loans. First, there is no up-front MIP (Mortgage Insurance Premium) insurance required on FHA condos, a savings of 2.25 percent times the loan amount. Secondly monthly FHA MIP costs are considerably less than monthly PMI (mortgage insurance) costs for conventional loans. Following the $125,000 purchase example, monthly FHA MIP costs would be $27 less than for conventionals. A $27 difference per month over the course of several years can really add up. Thirdly, it is possible for the monthly MIP to drop off automatically while monthly PMI does not and may only be dropped if you request it from the lender.

Some other great advantages of FHA financing are: competitive rates, sometimes better than conventional loans; ability to assume FHA condo mortgage, which can help you sell in times of higher interest; flexibility of sources of down payment which can be gift funds or loans, in some cases; no income restrictions; and no income restrictions on previous home ownership.

FHA adjustable rate financing is advantageous in that you qualify at the first year rate of adjustable rate programs (another approximate $15,000 increase in buying power) and the maximum rate caps are only 1.0 percent each year and 5 percent over the life of the loan compared to 2 percent and 6 percent caps for conventionals. The FHA adjustable rate presently varies starting at 6 percent with points and 6.75 percent with no points.

Finally, flexibility in several other FHA underwriting guidelines can be found versus conventional loan guidelines. For example, there are expanded debt ratios and 401K loans are not used in the calculation of monthly debt. Another area of flexibility is the amount of time a loan applicant may have been employed at a current job.

With these advantages, you can see that FHA financing can help you enjoy the tax benefits and appreciation that come with owning a condominium, and you can save considerable expense. For those purchasing a condo in the $30,000 to $135,000 price range, FHA financing is truly one of the best deals you will find.

■ Talking House promotion

Dean Miller, a Realtor with Coldwell Banker Schweitzer in Birmingham, has purchased seven radio transmitters to do the talking for houses he has listed for sale.

Prospects turn their car radio to a specific frequency outside the house to hear the sales pitch recorded by Miller.

"I give all information up front and save me time with sellers and buyers," he said. "Any time you can give a home more exposure, it's a great idea."

The transmitters cost about $200 apiece. Messages up to three minutes long can be changed at Miller's option. He said he came across the product in a real estate magazine.

Live your life to save energy

Those lazy, hazy ozone action days of summer are here and with them comes anticipated warm temperatures and high humidity for the remainder of the season.

To keep cool during summer months, Consumers Power offers these energy-saving tips:

■Operate stoves, ovens, dishwashers and clothes dryers in the morning or evening when it's cooler outside. These appliances add extra heat to the home and make air conditioners work harder.

■Set the air conditioning thermostat at 78 degrees during the day when you're home and even higher when you're away. An automatic thermostat will ensure energy savings.

■When shopping for an air conditioner, make certain the unit is the appropriate size. Buy an air conditioner with a higher energy efficient ratio (EER) for maximum savings.

A unit with an EER of 10 will cost half as much to operate as one with an EER of five.

■Eliminate or reduce air conditioning needs by installing an attic fan. Ceiling fans will cost even less. A room air conditioner that's on for eight hours costs about $1.68 compared to a ceiling fan at three cents.

"Practicing these energy-saving tips will increase your comfort factor and maximize your energy dollar," said Steven L. Ray, energy delivery manager for electric distribution. "An energy-efficient household will help you reduce your use and beat the heat."

Ozone action days are hot summer days when excess ozone will be created. On those days, businesses and individuals are encouraged to take voluntary action to reduce emissions which lead to ozone creation.

Outdoor action activities would include not running power lawn mowers, filling auto gas tanks and barbecuing during the hottest parts of the day.
