Seniors seek better access

An angry group of Canton seniors told the township board Tuesday they wanted better access to Summit on the Park. The board said they can't use the west banquet entrance, but will look at other options.

BY VALERIE OLANDER
STAFF WRITER

A group of seniors is considering boycotting the senior center at Summit on the Park due to the long walk into the facility from the parking lot.

About 30 angry seniors appeared before the township board Tuesday requesting temporary use of the west entrance of the community center near the banquet halls until another solution is found.

"You put us way in the back. We have to pass four swimming pools and turn to the left, then there we are. It was poorly planned and executed for us. It's a white elephant," said Flo Lorimer.

Many said they would rather go back to their old facility at Michigan and Sheldon, which has since been rented out to several social agencys.

"It's not easy carrying in a casserole from the parking lot for potluck," said Esther Sprengel. "We asked for a parking lot (during the planning of the Summit) and you didn't listen to us."

The board denied the request on a 5-2 vote. Supervisor Tom Yack said opening the west entrance would interfere with those attending functions at the rented banquet facility, which produces revenue for the Summit. Trustees Bob Shefferly and Phil Lajoy, who voted for the measure, said they didn't see the harm in opening the west entrance — at least temporarily.

"If the banquet facility doors are open, knowing human nature soon other people will be using that as an access," said Yack.

The board tabled another plan to buy an $11,847 multi-passenger vehicle to pick up seniors in the parking lot and shuttle them to the north entrance door. Seniors said they didn't want it because they wanted to be independent. The board will review the issue and come

Contract is approved, but bad feelings linger

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

While there's labor peace in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, bitterness lingers among teachers, many of whom attended Tuesday night's Board of Education meeting.

Trustees unanimously ratified the contract, which grants teachers a 2-percent raise this year and a 3-percent raise next year. Teachers also agreed to a health insurance changes.

Assistant Superintendent for Business John Birchler said the district looked "not only at salary, but retirement, social security and fringe benefit costs." This year's total employment costs increased 4.61 percent for teachers, and 3.5 percent for Superintendent Charles Little, whose salary is $113,751, he added.

The board heard from teachers, parents, and Plymouth-Canton Education Association President Chuck Portelli, all of whom expressed their disappointment. Most spoke of changes at the elementary school level.

Teacher Klo Phillippi said that throughout negotiations, "we never heard the word 'student.' There are

Walk brings elation

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Watching Canton's Martha Krisciunas on the job as an purchasing analyst and payroll trouble-shooter at Ford Motor Company, you wouldn't suspect there's another, equally large dimension to her life.

At 1:45 p.m. last Sunday, a jubilant Krisciunas, 74, jumped for joy as she crossed the finish line of the Detroit Free Press-Mazda International Marathon with a time of 6:15, 30th among the 32 men and women who race-walked the 26.2 miles through Windsor and downtown Detroit.

"It was wonderful. It was my fifth time, and I did the best. I'm faster each time I do it," said Krisciunas, who left her native Lithuania in 1948 and hasn't lost her heavy accent.

"I've never been so happy finishing. I was shouting, 'I did it, I did it!' People were waiting there; my neighbor who drove me was waiting. They were shouting. I jumped up and raised my arms up. I said, 'I can't believe I have so much energy.' I was so happy. I'm still happy all day today.. I just feel great."

Friends and neighbors waited for Krisciunas at various mile marks, and cheered for their heroine.

A widow, Krisciunas said she felt as though the young woman

Smashing pumpkins

Pile of pumpkins: Amanda Bostic examines the remains of pumpkins smashed by truck-driving vandals at Andy & Mary's Farm Market at Beck and Ford roads. Amanda was the first to arrive and discover the carnage. "Oh my gosh," said Bostic. " You would have been so mad if you had to clean it up." Sometime between 10:30 p.m. Friday and 8:30 a.m. Saturday someone drove a vehicle through the pumpkin pile damaging 50 pumpkins at an estimated $300 loss. Don't worry though — the market still has plenty of pumpkins for last-minute shoppers.

Local man launches 11th-hour campaign for supervisor seat

BY CASEY HANS
STAFF WRITER

Although only one name will appear on the ballot for Canton Township supervisor Nov. 5, another resident hopes that you remember his name on election day – and bring a pencil to the polls.

Michael Witten, 23, has launched an 11th-hour campaign as a Democratic write-in candidate for the township's top seat. He is a legal assistant at the downtown Detroit law firm of Bodman, Longley & Dahling.

He faces veteran Republican Supervisor Tom Yack, who is running for his third four-year term.

Witten has begun a door-to-door literature drop, spearheaded by a small contingent including Witten, his girlfriend and their families. He also stood outside the Kmart store at Sheldon and Ford and put his information on cars at St. Thomas A' Becket Church. He said he received only one complaint from a resident about his literature drop.

A registered Democrat who lives on Old Bridge in the Lilley/Palmer area, Witten said he recently discovered that the slate of candidates for Canton Township office are running unopposed, and he wants to shake up the race.

"I don't figure I'll have much of a chance to win, but maybe I'll get my name out there and have a chance next time." Witten said he is aiming to get 1,000 votes in the race.

But Witten said there are some benefits to writing in his name on election day. "I'm young – I have new ideas," he said. "The population of Canton is getting younger, and I can relate to them."

Witten is a 1991 graduate of Plymouth Canton High School and graduated last April from the University of Michigan-Dearborn majoring in political science. A life in politics is his aspiration.

Bennett: More money for roads

BY VALERIE OLANDER
STAFF WRITER

Canton would receive $11.1 million for road maintenance and construction if it was allocated money directly from the state, according to Senator Loren Bennett.

The amount raised eyebrows with township officials since it is much higher than the $2.5 million figure Wayne County allegedly said it distributes to Canton annually from the state's gas and weight tax (Act 51).

County spokesperson John Roach said the $11.1 million seemed "considerably high," but referred questions to Deputy Director for Engineering Alan Richardson. Richardson was unavailable for comment.

Currently, money from the state's gas and weight tax is distributed to the 76 townships by the 21 counties. Bennett is trying to change the distribution procedure through an amendment to the Senate's transportation package, SB 1011. Townships with a population of more than 10,000 would have the choice of taking the funds directly from the state or contracting services from the county to complete road work.

The Senate approved the bill on Oct. 2. The House of Representatives will vote on the legislation sometime after the Nov. 5 election.

The $11.1 million is preliminary data gathered by the Department of Transportation based on the impact of the legislation.

"I had no idea what the numbers would be when I started this," said Bennett. "I was extremely shocked. I had no idea the numbers would be this large."

Bennett has been visiting the municipalities in his constituency to pass on the news. He attended Canton and Plymouth townships board meetings on Tuesday.

On Monday Brownstown Township officials were equally shocked, he said. Apparently they were told by the county their annual share of the gas and weight tax is $400,000. Under Bennett's plan, they would receive $3.7 million directly from the state.

Townships could not develop their own road department if they take the funds directly. The road work would have to be contracted out, Bennett said.

The township would be responsible for all road work — construction and maintenance including snow plowing and street sweeping.

Officials did have some concerns with the legislation. Trustee Melissa McLaughlin questioned the issue of who would have jurisdiction and liability over the roads.

Bennett said the Supreme Court ruled in August that township's are liable for the maintenance of sidewalks if someone slips, falls and sues. The same would likely hold true for roads if they were responsible for maintenance

He said he hasn't heard from Wayne County regarding the performance audit he requested from the state's Auditor General to determine how efficiently the road money is being spent. Notification was sent out Oct. 3, two days after a law allowing the state to conduct a performance audit, he said.

Roach said the executive's office has received the request, but he was unsure of how they would respond.

back with another proposal in 30 days.

Several months ago the township added handicap parking spots and installed park benches in the parking lot so that seniors could rest on their walk into the facility. Attorney Rob Mullen said that wasn't a viable solution, especially with winter coming. Mullen took on the seniors' cause pro bono, telling the township board Tuesday that the design of the building denies access to seniors.

"I don't think you intentionally discriminated against the seniors, but the way it is laid out is discriminatory," he said.

The Summit was built with $750,000 in block grant money based on the senior population and the seniors are being "locked out because of the inadequate access," he said.

Yack said eight to 10 spots could be built on the north side of the building on the fire access road. Several light poles would have to be moved to make room. The administration also considered putting up signs, but Yack questioned how signs would be worded, for handicappers or seniors? Then, he asked how a senior would be defined to monitor the spots.

"How do you define a senior citizen? Someone with an AARP card. If it is, then I'm a senior citizen because I got mine last week," he said. (Yack turned 50 on Oct. 17.)

After the meeting several seniors said they were frustrated with the process.

"We've been in there since March and we've been patient. Either we're going to have to boycott or just drop out of the clubs altogether," said Lorimer.

Shaking her head, Charlotte Schwartz added, "It's to bad. It's a beautiful building but an inconvenience for us."

Yack said he is disappointed that Witten didn't come out of the gate sooner in the process.

"I would have preferred he selected the normal approach of filing and have a debate of the issues," the two-term incumbent said. "People would then at least have a chance to see a contrast of the candidates."

Witten said he is only now seeing the potential he could have had if he had registered for the post, and worked through the system. He plans to have high school Close-Up students help him distribute literature in the closing days of the campaign, and said he has received several calls from the community offering assistance.

In addition to Yack, the township clerk, treasurer and all trustees are running unopposed on the Republican ticket in this year's general election.

Witten reminds voters who are interested in casting a write-in ballot to include the candidate's name (spelled correctly), the candidate's party affiliation and which office the candidate is vying for.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE
by Chris Knight

"FSBO" IS RISKY BUSINESS

The paperwork is a major cause for concern for homeowners who try to sell their home in the Plymouth and Canton areas with a "For Sale By Owner" sign in the front yard. Using a standard real estate sales contract can be a risky proposition because of the many new local and state governmental requirements which cover everything from disclosures to tenants' rights. Professional Realtors understand the paperwork and know the pitfalls that can render a contract unenforceable. In the course of many real estate transactions, the buyers have at least some desire to back out of the contract between ratification and the closing. And they will be able to do so, if the paperwork does not meet the precise legal requirements of the local jurisdiction. The terms of the sale should be set forth in a clear and unambiguous way in order to avoid a costly dispute. Many of the homes that we list started out as "For Sale by Owner" transactions that didn't result in a sale, and the cost of unraveling the failed contracts often exceeded the broker's fees.

ELECTION 96 CANTON PUBLIC LIBRARY BOARD OF TRUSTEES

There are seven candidates for six non-partisan seats in the Nov. 5 election. Top vote-getters will serve four-year terms on this independent board. Candidates William T. Simmerer, an incumbent, and challenger Edward J. Zelmanski did not respond to our request for information for this chart.

	Why are you seeking a seat on the board? What qualifications would you bring to the board?	What do you believe is the Board of Trustees role in the library?	How do you believe growth in Canton is affecting the library?W hat would you do to keep pace with growth?
Katherine A. Baldrica Basner, 53 Teacher for 29 years, Wayne-Westland Married to Bill Basner 23 years in district Community involvement: incumbent on Library Board, active in Canton Business and Professional Women	I am seeking re-election as a result of a personal commitment to public service as well as a general love of and respect for the immeasurable ways libraries assist and enrich peoples' lives. I have served on the library board since 1979 and have helped it evolve from a conceptual stage to its current status as one of the most valued resources in Western Wayne County.	The board is responsible for establishing the tone of the library by conveying community expectations in regards to the facility, material, and services provided. The board hires a library director who is capable of carrying out the will of the community and motivating staff to provide the best service. The board determines policy, oversees finances, and carries out short- and long-range planning.	Canton has a unique dilemma. We are faced not only with incredible growth, but also a population of individuals who recognize and value of a public library. Canton residents are educated people who want access to a variety of materials. It is a foregone conclusion that expansion of the library is inevitable. At some point expansion must occur.
James Gillig, 58 Orthodontist, Canton practice Married to Sandy Gillig, 2 daughters 19 years in district Community: incumbent on Library Board, 1991 Small Business Person of the Year, Educational Exc. Found. Board 2010	Since this is an unpaid position, the incentive to run must be public service. I believe that each of us has a responsibility to serve the community in whatever way we can. My primary emphasis for the past 18 years has been the creation/improvement of library services to the citizens of my community. During that time, I have had the honor of serving as treasurer or chairman of the board 16 times.	The board's role is clearly spelled out in the State Law. The board is the legal governing body of the library. We levy taxes, dictate expenditures through the budget, approve policy and hire and supervise the library director. We do not directly involve ourselves in the daily operation of the library, which is handled by our outstanding director.	Obviously, the rapid growth has profound effects. Demand for materials continues to soar. We expect to circulate over 700,000 items in 1996 and it continues to grow every year. This type of demand can and has been addressed by the use of highly sophisticated technology. The second demand is for more study facilities. Eventually, we must expand the facility.
Gregory Stachura, 46 transportation/shipping sales Married to Jean Stachura, two children and one nephew; 17 years in district Community: current president of Library Board, RESA education foundation, elder in First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth	Service to the community is important to me. Giving of oneself is important to character maintenance as well as development. Furthermore, I have enjoyed my service during my first term as a trustee and I believe that there is more that I can do to help address the issues at hand for our township and the library.	The duties of the trustees are clear under the charter of our library: policy-making and fiduciary oversight. Beyond that, trustees must anticipate the future information needs of the Canton community and develop plans to meet those needs.	The explosive growth of Canton has been a challenge. During my first term, we proposed a millage to finance an expansion; the proposal failed at the ballot box. I am convinced that we will need an expansion of our current facility at some point in the future. The longer we wait, the further away will be our relief from these crowded conditions in our building and on our data lines.
Raymond J. Van Hoeck, 64 Retired senior officer in banking/finance Married to Maggie VanHoeck, 4 children 19 years in district Community involvement: served on Canton Tax Review Board, active in St. John Neumann parish; many committees	I want to pay back the community by offering my experience, talent and commitment. The library would benefit from my financial and administrative background in the business world. Having raised a family in Canton . . . I have an understanding of the role of the library in the lives of young people, while knowing the needs of mature adults through personal experience.	The most significant responsibilities of the board are: maintain a standard of excellence; ensure revenue needs are met; provide guidance in controlling costs; plan for the immediate and near-term needs of Canton residents; plan for the long-term needs of the community; and help manage the library's relationship with the neighboring communities in a fair and efficient manner.	The exceptional growth of the area has certainly created a strain on the library's resources. There are a number of options that can be explored to meet this growth: greater use of technology, expansion, use of satellite units and taking creative steps in cooperation with others. An example might include cooperation with the school board in making use of the library resources in our schools.
Kathy Young, 51 Exhibit manager, Gale Research Married, three children 19 years in district	It is my way of saying "thanks" to the Canton Library for years of service to me and my family. We have lived in Canton since 1977 and have used the library consistently during that time not only as avid readers but also as students. As exhibit manager for Gale Research, I have worked with the library community and am somewhat familiar with their funding and technological issues.	It is my understanding that the role of the Board of Trustees is to oversee the operation of the library which entails developing and maintaining policy and a balanced budget.	I can only speculate from my observance of the growth of new subdivisions in Canton that the library has to be affected. I can't quote circulation numbers, but know from my weekly visits to the library that it is always busy. Expanded hours might be an option and, of course, there is library expansion.

Drug exam postponed — again

BY VALERIE OLANDER
STAFF WRITER

A Monday preliminary exam scheduled for a Canton man facing drug charges has been rescheduled for Oct. 28, after a mix-up in which the defendant and prosecuting witnesses didn't show up in local court.

The defendant also faces a reduced drug charge, carrying a lesser sentence, according to his attorney Anthony Chambers.

This is the second postponement in the case against Jon Paul Drahos, 25, who was originally charged with possessing more than 650 grams of cocaine. Chambers said he is now charged with intent to distribute between 250 and 649 grams, a charge which carried a mandatory 20-year prison term.

A conviction of more than 650 grams of cocaine carries a mandatory life sentence.

The exam was originally scheduled for Friday, Oct. 18, but it was adjourned until last Monday's docket before 35th District Judge Ron Lowe. The new exam is scheduled for 9 a.m. Monday before District Judge John MacDonald.

Drahos' bond was reduced Monday to $200,000 from the original $1 million set by Judge MacDonald at arraignment.

Chambers said in the formal lab analysis, the evidence weighed in at less than 650 grams, prompting the reduced charge.

"He just missed mandatory life by 10 grams," said Assistant Wayne County Prosecutor Pat Muscat.

On Monday, the Wayne County Sheriff's Department apparently forgot to transport the defendant from the county jail. But Drahos wasn't the only one missing from court. The witnesses didn't show up either.

Detroit Police Narcotics officers executed a search warrant Oct. 8 at Drahos' residence at Stoney Brooke Apartments and at a rented storage unit behind the apartment complex at Joy Road, east of Haggerty. Canton Police assisted.

Detroit Police Lt. Maurice Cochran said police uncovered the majority of suspected cocaine from the storage unit. However, there were no police officers in attendance to testify Monday.

Injuries reported to students, driver in bus accident

Three injuries were reported early Wednesday when a Plymouth-Canton School bus carrying 25 high school students was hit by an 18-wheel semi truck on Ford Road and Canton Center, police said.

Two students, a 15-year-old boy and 17-year-old girl, were taken by Canton Firefighter Rescue to Oakwood Hospital for minor injuries sustained in the accident, said Officer Lou Stevens.

The bus driver, a 34-year-old Canton woman, was taken to Annapolis Hospital after hitting her head on the side window, he said. All injuries were minor in nature.

The truck was heading eastbound on Ford when the driver, a 34-year-old Chicago man, disregarded a traffic light and struck the bus, which was heading north on Canton Center, Stevens said. The driver was issued a traffic citation.

The accident caused extensive damage to the left front portion of the bus and a small fire ignited, but the bus was equipped with an extinguisher and it was quickly put out, said Stevens.

Another bus transported the remaining students to the high school.

Band greets Clinton at airport

BY DIANE HANSON
SPECIAL WRITER

Plymouth-Canton band members were flying high Monday, with the honor of playing for President Bill Clinton.

The band was invited to play during the groundbreaking ceremonies marking the beginnings of a new terminal and a multitude of other improvements at Detroit Metropolitan Airport. The more than $1 billion improvement package is slated for completion by the turn of the century.

Clinton and Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer made it a point to greet the excited performers.

"It was an honor and very exciting that they chose our band for the day's activities and the event," said Amy Boerma, associate band director at PCEP.

The band played for several hours as dignitaries gathered in the huge, building-sized tent beside the runway where Clinton's plane landed. Among those on stage with the president were: Archer, Wayne County Executive Ed McNamara, Sen. Carl Levin, Congressman John Dingell, and former ambassador to Canada and former governor of Michigan Jim Blanchard.

"This is a great day for Wayne County, It's a great day for the state of Michigan," said Clinton. After a speech commending the partnership between local, county and national governments as well as with Northwest Airlines Clinton slowly made his way around the crowd-filled tent, shaking hands as the PCEP Symphony Band played strains of "Stars and Stripes Forever," one of Clinton's favorites.

The nearly 80 members of the band were allowed to put their instruments down when Clinton finally made his way to their corner of the tent. The president was instantly surrounded by the formally-dressed teens.

"It was thrilling," said senior clarinetist Matt Boudreau, who shook the president's hand. "It's a once in a lifetime chance."

Junior clarinetist Lisa Garcia was quite moved by the experience. "I can't believe I got to touch his hand," she said. "He reached all the way over the crowd. He was so nice to try and get every single hand. This is a real rush for me."

Senior flute and piccolo player Mike Wrobel also shook hands with the chief executive. "I'd never seen him in person before," he said. "It was a great experience to be here and actually see him."

For Amy Sonnanstine, senior flutist, "It was an honor for our band to be selected to play for the president of the United States."

Senior tuba player Russell LaForte was close enough to talk with Clinton. "I thought it was quite exciting to have him actually talking to us and ask us what pieces of music we were playing."

One of the pieces the band played was "Chester." LaForte said the president noted that he had played that piece when he was in high school and that he missed playing in the band.

Band director David McGrath was pleased the president took so much time to talk with the students, shake so many hands, and compliment the band. He said there were a number of people who asked if the PCEP Symphony was a college band. "Everyone was very amazed that this was a high school group," said McGrath.

she suddenly found walking beside her was a godsend.

"A girl walked with me, and we started talking. We decided to finish together. I called her my guardian angel, and she called me her guardian angel. I said, 'Because of her, I am going faster, and because of me, she is going faster,' " Krisciunas said.

One step ahead

As it turned out, Krisciunas finished just ahead of her "guardian angel," Lynne Golden, 28, of Auburn Hills. "She had to stop at the Porta-John at the 25-mile mark," said Krisciunas. "It's too bad we didn't finish together. But I waited for her.

"When you start, you wonder how it's going to be. You are doing, doing, doing. Somebody up there helped me; gave me that girl, and gave me power to go with her. That's is how I did it sooner. That is why I went to church today – to thank someone up there," said Krisciunas.

Krisciunas credits Ed Andrysiak, founder of the Holy Strollers at St. John Neumann Church, with inspiring her to try the marathon.

"I used to walk a little bit for health when my husband got sick. I lost my husband in February 1992. What do you do when you are alone and just working?

"You come home and there's an empty house," said Krisciunas. "Ed is 80-something, and he was telling about his heart trouble and how he does marathons. I asked him, 'Do you think I can do it?' He said, 'Why not? You can practice,' and he gave me a training schedule."

Krisciunas joined Andrysiak and Lori, his 20-something training partner, for workouts of up to 18 miles. "We would drive to his house, and do the mileage. We increased the walking."

In 1992, Krisciunas completed her first race, the Free Press marathon, in 6:59. Her times have come down each year since.

Krisciunas travels with Andrysiak and others to area races, including the annual Bobby Crim 10-miler in Flint. She raises pledges for Michigan Special Olympics, beneficiary of the Crim race.

"The Ford people are wonderful. They gave over $1,000 this year. Last year, they contributed $1,273. They are nice people," said Krisciunas, who will retire at year's end. "I saw people from work who were running the marathon. I saw them before the race. They wished me good luck."

A new facet to life

Krisciunas said walking changed her life. "I started walking just to do something. I feel better, and I am healthier. I didn't lose weight, but I didn't gain. I'm not fat. I wear size 10," said Krisciunas, proud to be 5-foot-5 and 132 pounds. "I don't have to diet. I watch what I eat. I don't eat bad foods or greasy foods."

Her advice for would-be walkers and racers? "All you have to do is start walking a little bit a day, or maybe every other day, then six times a week. You find the time if you want to. For me, if I don't go for a walk, it seems like something is missing. I go for a walk, I feel great. My spirit goes up. I do it every day."

Krisciunas has already inspired coworkers and others to start walking, especially some who have seen her walking along Sheldon, Ford, Hancock and Barchester. They said " 'If this old woman can walk, we can walk,' " said Krisciunas. "They're younger, and now they're walking."

so many things elementary teachers ask for that never make it to the table. "We're reducing instructional time for art, music and physical education. . .In the future, we need to think seriously about putting kids first," she said.

Teacher Debra MacGregor said to the superintendent: "I have come to accept that you see me and my colleagues as adversaries. I don't understand it, but I accept it." MacGregor said she was surprised that at recent meetings, board members "could passively sit," without responding, as teachers relayed their concerns.

Portelli asked the board to meet with the PCEA to help heal wounds left from the dispute, which was met with an affirmative response from School board president Mark Horvath.

"Teachers don't feel they were treated with dignity and respect," said Portelli. "Plymouth-Canton is not a healthy district. The work environment has changed. Some lines of communication have been permanently damaged, and the spirit of volunteerism is in serious jeopardy. We need to face our problems and not hide behind laws."

The pact raises entry-level pay to $31,777 and top of the scale to $61,968. The increases are in addition to step increments built into the salary schedule. The built-in raises range from 4.8- to 9.6-percent per semester, depending on experience.

Vote totals weren't disclosed by the PCEA, but reportedly more than 500 of the district's 837 teachers ratified the agreement.

State board to unveil character ed program today

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

After a long gestation, the State Board of Education is due to give birth today (Thursday) to a resolution advising public schools to do "character education."

The question is: Will it embody values such as "respect, responsibility, caring, trustworthiness, justice, fairness, civic virtue and citizenship," as proposed by Superintendent of Public Instruction Art Ellis?

Or will it be laced with references to God, Bible lessons and parents, as advocated by board president Clark Durant, R-Grosse Pointe?

The eight-member State Board has been tangled on the issue since July. It didn't take up the matter in August and September.

Today's meeting is scheduled to start at 9:30 a.m. in the fourth floor of the John A. Hannah Building, 603 W. Allegan about two blocks west of the State Capitol in Lansing. Public comment is scheduled for 1 p.m.

There are signs many consider it a tempest in a teapot. Tim Kelly, Gov. John Engler's representative to the board, already has said the body has spent too much time on it.

Louis Legg III, R-Battle Creek, Gov. Engler's latest appointee to fill a board vacancy, has hinted he is less than ecstatic over the dragged-out argument.

In a letter to all board members, the Jewish Community Council of Metropolitan Detroit called it "unnecessary for the State Board of Education to devote so much energy on this issue. Values always have been, and continue to be, taught by capable, caring educators throughout our public school system."

The letter, signed by president Allen Zemmol, said Durant "has repeatedly used his position as president. . . to attempt to insert religion into the public schools."

Durant apparently had a hand in drafting the first resolution, which emphasizes "fundamental rights of parents" and places parents and religious leaders in prominent spots to be on local school district drafting committees.

And Durant touched a raw nerve among many when he said, in an out-of-the-room interview with a broadcaster, that Bible stories could be used to teach character.

Board member Dorothy Beardmore, R-Rochester, offered a counter-proposal. It says American values "transcend religious beliefs." She cited the values of "respect, responsibility, caring, trustworthiness, justice and fairness, and civic virtue and citizenship."

The Beardmore draft places responsibility on "public schools to provide character education," without mentioning what interest groups should be on the local district's committee. And it underscores "constitutional separation of church and state," to which Marilyn Lundy, R-Grosse Pointe and a Durant supporter, strongly objects.

A Texas company sells a curriculum in building character, but the State Board, as a matter of policy, refuses to endorse any one curriculum or textbook.

Many of Michigan's 560 public school districts long have tried to teach values of character, though not necessarily in a systematic way and not necessarily the same values.

The governing boards of the state's three largest universities - Michigan, Michigan State and Wayne State - are elected on a statewide basis. The constitution provides for a governing board with supervisory authority for each institution. The eight board members serve staggered eight-year terms. U of M candidate S. Martin Taylor, and MSU candidates Joel f. Ferguson, Robert Weiss, Ernesto Todd Mireles and Becky Minnick did not respond in time for publication.

University of Michigan Governing Board

	Do you believe that this university should receive the same funding, more funding or less funding from the state? Why?	What measures would you support to contain costs at this university without sacrificing the quality of education?	What is the most important issue facing public universities today and what is your position on that issue?	What qualifies you to be a member of this university governing board?
Name: Deane Baker Age: 71 City: Ann Arbor Party: Republican Education: BBA Wisconsin; MBA Harvard Occupation: President of Ann Arbor Group, Incorporated, a construction, land development and real estate company	More. In 1985 Michigan received $206,000,000, 22.4 percent of total budget. In 1996 Michigan received $324,000,000, 2.4 percent of total budget.	Slow tuition raises. Aggressive fund raising. Hire retired faculty to teach undergraduates. Rapidly transfer university research product to private industry.	Cost containment, increased efficiency and restructuring, yet maintain quality. A critical example, adapting Michigan's teaching hospital to the rapidly changing and highly competitive economic environment.	Experience of Grand Valley and Michigan boards. Know university operations. Highest priority is making Michigan accessible to Michigan residents at reasonable cost.
Name: Michael D. Bishop Age:29 City: Rochester Party: Republican Education: JD - Detroit College of Law 1993; BA University of Michigan 1989; Cambridge University, Cambridge England 1992, Summer; University of Paris - Sorbonne, Paris, France 1992, Summer; Universidad de Sevilla, Sevilla, Spain 1988, Summer Occupation: Attorney	More. To ensure the university continues leading the way in scientific, academic, cultural and medical advancements. Students have no limits on learning.	Demand fiscal responsibility. Support tight cost controls to ensure funds are being invested properly and cut wasteful spending on unnecessary programs. Big government must stop.	Quality, but affordable education. The board is obligated to cut its own spending before it raises tuition and passes the cost on to the students.	Proud alumnus, I'm committed to hard work, open discussion with the board, students, faculty. Will bring integrity to the board.
Name: Olivia P. Maynard Age: 60 City: Goodrich Party: Democratic Education: BA, Political Science, George Washington University; MSW, University of Michigan School of Social Work (gerontology) Occupation:President, the Michigan Prospect for Renewed Citizenship	No university can expect significant increases in the state budget. It would be tragic if U-M were allowed to fall behind other state colleges.	A focus on administrative costs.	A balance of quality teaching and research while maintaining student access.	Ability to listen, work with people of diverse views and backgrounds, fair and open minded, leadership skills, dedication to public service.
Name: William H. Hall Age: 40 City: Rockford Party: Libertarian Education: Northwestern University School of Law, Chicago, Illinois; JD, cum laude, Order of the Coif, 1981; Wabash College, Crawfordsville, Indiana; AB, magna cum laude, Phi Beta Kappa, 1978. Occupation:Attorney, Partner, Warner Norcross & Judd LLP (Chair, Real Estate Services Group)	Less. Heavy reliance on tax dollars has diverted attention from its educational mission and hurt is ability to competently market itself in a competitive environment.	Eliminate waste, downsize or cancel programs not meeting goals. Refocus resources on programs which provide most benefit. Emphasize private endowment and non-tuition revenues.	Spending has spiraled out of control and must be decisively cut. Soaking students, parents and taxpayers for more funds hurts those who should be served.	Former leader in taxpayer organizations Taxpayers Association of Michigan and Heartland Institute. Fifteen years experience in private business. Excellent educational credentials.
Name: Calvin J. Matie Age: 27 City: West Bloomfield Party: Libertarian Education: BA University of Michigan; MBA American Graduate School of International Management Occupation: President - Matie Marketing	Less funding. Taxpayers should be free to spend their money on their own children's education and not be forced to subsidize the education of others.	Salaries, benefits and perks of professors and administrators needs closer scrutiny.	Most important issue is that students receive and education that is marketable in the workplace outside of the world of the university.	I will take a business-like approach to issues facing the university.
Name: William B. Quarton Age: 47 City: Ann Arbor Party: Natural Law Party Education: 1986 MBA EMU (Beta Gamma Sigma, Phi Kappa Phi); 1976 MSCI MERU (Switzerland); 1971 BA Beloit College Occupation: Chairman of the Board & CEO Nortex Cash Management, Inc.; Chairman of the Board Nortex State Bank	I would support more funding only with careful evaluation of the efficiency with which those funds are used and the goals.	Excessive compensation for administration and entertainment positions which have no direct bearing on educational quality may not be the best use of funds.	University education must add proven techniques for unfolding student's full creative potential to the presentation of knowledge and learning methodology. Education should structure future success.	It is my firm belief that education is the unlimited resource. It should fulfill students' lives and aspirations not just fill them full of data.

Michigan State Governing Board

Name: Colleen Pero Age: 41 City: East Lansing Party: Republican Education: BA, Business (honors), Michigan State University (Member of Honors College); MIM, International Finance (honors), American Graduate School of International Management; JD (honors), University of Houston Occupation: Vice President, Pero, Inc.	More. Decreasing proportionate state funding the past 20 years coupled with inadequate cost containment measures at all universities have resulted in almost unaffordable tuition.	Each cost must be examined with input from all constituencies. Across-the-board cuts aren't fair - they punish all programs, regardless of overall value.	Tuition. I support the MSU Tuition Guarantee. We must do everything possible to keep tuition under control so that our universities remain affordable to students.	A strong, diverse resume of leadership in business, government, law and non-profit organizations. I'll keep the University's interests first - and academics ahead of athletics.
Name: Dave Porteous Age: 43 City: Reed City Party: Republican Education: BS, Michigan State University, cum laude, 1974; JD, Thomas M. Cooley Law School, 1977; Russian Language Program, Yale University Occupation: Attorney and President of Porteous and White law offices	MSU should receive more funding from the State. I will work to see MSU receives it's fair share of state dollars.	I support President McPherson's tuition guarantee. We must not punish our students or faculty to save costs.	Providing a priceless education at an affordable cost is the biggest challenge facing universities. The tuition guarantee is a good start at meeting this goal.	I have served on many boards and commissions. My legal background will help me make wise and appropriate decisions for the university.
Name: Brian A. Kluesner Age: 33 City: Manistee Party: Libertarian Education: Attended government administered schools. 1968-1980. GED, 1984. Currently conducting personal studies in economics and law. Occupation: Self employed, builder. Aspiring political writer.	Less "Taxpayer" funding. This would necessitate, more prudent and responsible spending by the board; provide greater incentive to obtain alternative funding.	Private and/or self funding of, non-essential, services and programs. Development of, private, educational mutual funds. More emphasis on undergraduate studies.	Over-dependence; of institutions on taxation, of students on institutions. Dependency breeds indolence and irresponsibility. Independence breeds, creativity, adaptability, and self-determination.	Respect for the individuality of students; firm commitment to education, rather than indoctrination. Thorough understanding of the need to obtain alternative funding.
Name: Michael H. Miller Age: 45 City East Lansing Party: Libertarian Education: Bachelor of arts in Chinese, Michigan State University June 1983 Covered Chinese and Soviet studies. Occupation: Automobile worker, General Motors Service Parts Operations	I would like to see the university receive more funding, but what it does with it is even more important than how much it gets.	The university has only made a start towards meeting the educational needs of non-traditional students. More students on evenings and weekends would spread fixed costs.	The most important issue is quality of education. The university is capable of increasing quality by focusing its efforts on improvements in courses and curricula.	I am an alumnus. I have experience in other settings as well, and I am able to generate new and valuable ideas concerning educational excellence

Wayne State University Governing Board

Name: Vernice Davis Anthony Age: City: Farmington Hills Party: Republican Education: Bachelor of Science in Nursing, Registered Nurse, Wayne State 1970; Masters of Public Health, University of Michigan 1976 Occupation: Senior vice president, urban and community health, St. John Health System.	Current funding level is adequate, but could benefit from some enhancement given the unique urban mission and student needs. Annual increases must reflect inflation.	Reduce administrative cost: reduce utility costs. Improve building utilization. Expand use of working professionals as part-time faculty. Increase class size for non-research faculty.	At risk disadvantaged students need to be recruited and the challenge to increase retention and graduation rates. Increasing cost and need to keep tuition affordable.	As an "at-risk" graduate of WSU, I know the value of quality, affordable and accessible higher education.
Name: Paul Fecko Age: 63 City: Bloomfield Hills Party: Republican Education: WSU; bachelor's degree in chemical engineering; WSU; master of business administration; WSU; MD Occupation: Ophthalmology, private practice	Universities must be adequately funded to carry out their mission of education, research, public service. My mandate is to insure that these funds are available.	Assure that business cost control measures are employed. Eliminate duplication of programs or services. Assure that programs are productive and meeting enrollment needs.	Maintaining quality education. Return to basic core curriculum for all students. Student must have adequate educational foundation to enter the university and be successful.	Broad educational background. Continued affiliation with the university. Service on governing boards of corporations and groups.
Name: Murray E. Jackson Age: 69 City: Detroit Party: Democrat Education: Attended Wayne State University, receiving bachelor's and master's degrees in humanities, and served as a faculty member and administrator. Occupation: He served as the founding president of Wayne County Community College, joined the faculty of the Center for the Study of Higher Education at the University of Michigan.	I think we need more funding, and I think a formula funding process would be equitable where a University's expertise could be utilized.	To combine administrative responsibilities into larger units that would eliminate some administrative duplication and costs.	Constitutionality of independence of public higher education. Universities must show that their independent constitutional status is in the best interests of state and students.	My 45 years of experience in higher education, my academic expertise in urban higher education, my service at Wayne State University as a faculty member.
Name: Annetta Miller Age: 75 City: Huntington Woods Party: Democrat Education: RN, Philadelphia; Officer US ANC; 1995 Graduate WSU Art History cum laude.	A first-class education for the students of an urban research university requires more financial aid and greater state investment to ensure success.	Cost control must not take place at the expense of excellence; Alternative sources of funding need to be explored. Careful evaluation of courses to eliminate redundancy.	Bring university to 21st century; reassess programs, training and philosophy of what is needed to produce a fully educated person; collaborate with community colleges.	24 years on State Board of Education supporting public universities; service as officer in US Army Nurse Corps; recent BA Degree Art History WSU
Name: Thomas W. Jones Age: 52 City: Detroit Party: Libertarian Education: Cass Tech HS, Detroit; Wayne State two years Occupation: Legal Research	Zero funding. There should be a total separation of education and the state to save the middle class from being tax slaves.	Make it a private institution subject to the economic forces of the free market.	Public universities have directly produced communism for the poor, fascism for the rich and big government overall. Position-abolish each.	My experience in seeing the destruction of Detroit due to government with its high taxes and non-productivity which is infecting the entire state and country.
Name: Stacy Van Oast Age: 32 City: Richmond Party: Libertarian Education: Wayne State University; BS in Marketing - 1993 Occupation: Currently, I am my kid's mom. Previously, materials coordinator for downtown Detroit electrical contractor for 10 years.	Less funding; all universities should strive to become self-sufficient so that all financing is spent responsibly and only on providing academic excellence.	Make downtown campus user-friendly (more parking!) - costly satellite campuses then become unnecessary. Create atmosphere of pride to encourage enrollment, alumni/community support, quality academics.	Individual rights must be protected so that academic excellence can flourish, regardless of person's sex, ethnic background, religion, sexual orientation, etc.	I am a proud, concerned, and responsible alumna with leadership, management, and board room experience.
Name: Durk L. Bartoo Age: 42 City: Detroit Party: Workers World Education: Occupation: People's Artist - computer graphic designer	Expand funding for universities and all public schools. Tax the corporations, dismantle Pentagon, stop the prison build-up to fund guaranteed free education for all.	Quality education is a right, not privilege. Free tuition. Open admissions. Guaranteed incomes for students. Stop privatization and attacks on unions. Cut administrators' salaries.	Education, technology must be accessible to workers and poor. Expand affirmative action with quotas. Degree programs for African-American, Latino studies. Maintain Native American tuition waiver.	Working class organizer. Fighter against racism, sexism, lesbian/gay oppression. Education should reflect true struggle history of workers, not propaganda of big business and rich.
Name: Key Halverson Age: 41 City: Southfield Party: Natural Law Party Education: Occupation: I presently work as chief state administrator for the Natural Law Party, having been instrumental since its formation in 1992. I have recently been in managerial/analytical positions for projects established by major automotive firms.	More funding contingent on improved educational outcomes and graduation rates. Funding should be related to measured success in developing educational excellence.	Contain administrative costs by utilizing a healthcare package shown to reduce costs by over 50 percent while increasing creativity of faculty, thus simultaneously enhancing educational quality.	Failure to use intelligence developing technologies. To be effective, education must develop full human potential while providing mastery of skills needed to compete in society.	My extensive administrative background coupled with knowledge/experience of successful technologies. Affiliations with progressive educational experts who also support a broad-based educational platform.
Name: Jane Walker Meade Age: 50 City: Grosse Pointe Party: Natural Law Party Education: Graduate of the Grosse Pointe Public School System. Further studies in health and human relations. Occupation: President, JWM Agency, Inc.	State funding increases approximately 2 percent annually. Basic inflation absorbs it. Increased appropriations would allow expanded academic opportunities and support services.	Low student proficiency necessitates expanded remedial services. Emphasis on stronger basic education in Michigan schools is imperative! Crime reduction surrounding campus helps everyone prosper.	Cost containment while offering quality education is crucial. Attracting and keeping excellent faculty, supporting students in achieving academic goals. I envision expanded disease prevention research.	Personal thirst for greater knowledge and innovative solutions. Resolve to support faculty, administrative and student excellence. Tax dollar supervision with honor, integrity and fiduciary responsibility.

Congressional candidates address election issues

LWV VOTERS GUIDE

Voters in the 13th Congressional District will choose among five candidates to elect to a two-year Congressional term in the Nov. 5 election.

A U.S. Representative earns $133,600.

The 13th Congressional District includes Canton Township, Plymouth Township, city of Plymouth, Northville Township, city of Northville, Westland and Garden City.

The following candidates are running:

Joe Fitzsimmons, 61, a Republican from Ann Arbor, is the retired president and CEO of University Microfilms. He holds bachelor's and master's degrees from Cornell University. He is an adjunct lecturer at the University of Michigan.

Democrat Lynn Rivers, also from Ann Arbor, is serving her first term in the U.S. House of Representatives. Rivers, 39, previously served in the Michigan state House from 1992-94. She was a member of the Ann Arbor Board of Education from 1984 to 1991, including three terms as president. She holds a bachelor's degree from the University of Michigan and a law degree from Wayne State University.

Libertarian candidate James F. Montgomery, 62, has a master's degree in higher education from the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor.

Montgomery, from Ann Arbor, is a foreign student advisor at the University of Michigan. A Michigan resident since 1962, he and his wife, Pat, established the Clonlara School and Clonlara School Home Based Education Program. He is a Korean War veteran.

Montgomery is a member of the Ann Arbor Rotary Club; and St. Mary's Catholic Church.

Jane Cutter, a candidate from the Workers World Party, lives in Ann Arbor and is an educator.

Cutter has a bachelor's degree in history from San Francisco State University, and has teaching credentials in History and English as a second language.

Jim Hartnett, 24, is a candidate for the Socialist Equality Party.

Hartnett received a bachelor's degree in chemical engineering in 1994 from the University of Michigan. He also is a 1989 graduate of Plymouth Canton High School.

Hartnett is an engineer and was raised in Canton. He joined the Workers League, predecessor of Socialist Equality Party, in 1994.

Candidates were asked to summarize their backgrounds in 50 words and were allotted 25 words to answer each question. The candidates were asked to answer following questions which are listed by subject in alphabetical order:

Q: Abortion: Should the decision to have an abortion be left to the individual under any circumstances? If so, which circumstances?

Fitzsimmons: I support a woman's right to choose, but not at taxpayers' expense.

Rivers: I support the provisions of Roe v. Wade which allows for abortion on demand through the second trimester and in limited medical circumstances thereafter.

Montgomery: Abortion is not a proper concern of the federal government.

Cutter: Guarantee abortion and all other health services (including prenatal care) to women, children and men. Provide housing, child care, jobs, to care for wanted children.

Hartnett: Decision on abortion should always be left to the woman affected; a basic democratic right not to be infringed by the state or organized religion.

Q: Affirmative Action: Do you believe that the federal government has a role to play in preventing discrimination based on race, gender or disability? Why or why not?

Fitzsimmons: I'm a passionate advocate of equal opportunity. If it means better schools and improved opportunities, I'm for it. If it means quotas or set-asides, no.

Rivers: Discrimination is illegal in the United States. Of course the government has a role in enforcing those laws and prosecuting those who flout them.

Montgomery: No. These questions (affirmative action) should not be federal concern.

Cutter: Federal government must be responsible to redress years of past racist, sexist and anti-disabled discrimination, as well as prevent their recurrence.

Hartnett: Discrimination based on race, gender or disability should be outlawed, but affirmative action foments racial divisions. Jobs and education for all, not quotas or rationing.

Q: Budget Deficit: How would you eliminate the federal budget deficit? How quickly?

Fitzsimmons: We need to grow the economy, contain runaway government spending and pass a balanced budget amendment.

Rivers: I supported the 'Coalition' budget which balances by 2002. By responsibly delaying tax cuts until balance, it protects education, Medicare, Medicaid, and the environment.

Montgomery: By immediately selling off federally owned assets (national parks, etc).

Cutter: Slash Pentagon budget, eliminate corporate welfare, increase taxes on wealthiest individuals, moratorium on debt service, to balance the budget quickly, increase social services.

Hartnett: The budget deficit could be quickly eliminated through cuts in military spending and ending massive tax breaks for the wealthy and giant corporations.

Q: Campaign Finance Reform: What federal campaign finance reforms do you support, if any?

Fitzsimmons: We need to level the playing field so incumbents don't hold all the advantages. Organizations should not be able to donate unreported money.

Rivers: We need less money in the system, not more. I support spending caps, time limits on campaigning, and limiting use of candidate's own money.

Montgomery: Federal law should not address issues of campaign financing.

Cutter: Guarantee free, equal access to all print and electronic media for all ballot qualified candidates, limit corporate contributions.

Hartnett: Ban corporate campaign contributions and eliminate all loopholes through which the wealthy control political process. Full media access for all parties and candidates.

Q: Crime: What can the federal government do to help citizens feel safer in their homes and on the street?

Fitzsimmons: We need to support our local police, pass tougher laws that require career criminals to serve their full sentences and protect victims' rights.

Rivers: Prevention, protection, punishment. Assist communities in developing recreational and anti-drug programs for youth, putting more cops on the streets, and funding courts and jails.

Montgomery: End the federal governments' War-On-Drugs which creates enormous profits for criminals and causes addicts to steal to support their habits.

Cutter: Fight crime by guaranteeing jobs for all, with $10 minimum wage. Access to education, mental health and substance abuse treatment, and youth programs.

Hartnett: Fight crime by fighting its real causes. Program to end poverty, provide drug rehabilitation for all who need it.

Q: Environment: Should the federal government continue to set regulations to protect the environment and public health? Please explain.

Fitzsimmons: We must protect our natural resources, but regulations need to be based on sound research, not arbitrary findings.

Rivers: Absolutely. It is one of my top legislative priorities.

Montgomery: No. This is not a proper function of the federal government.

Cutter: Strengthen environmental and public health protections. Severely punish corporate polluters. People before profit! Simultaneously protect jobs and environment by creating environmentally friendly employment.

Hartnett: More, not less, government action is needed to defend health and safety. Corporate polluters must be held financially and legally responsible.

Q: Foreign Policy: What responsibilities, if any, does the United States have to other nations and their citizens?

Fitzsimmons: We must exercise leadership with the restraint to not engage in every problem area in the world where there is no clear objective for America.

Rivers: We should keep our leadership role in the world, remain a part of the UN, while urging greater effectiveness, and promote global communication and cooperation.

Montgomery: The proper foreign policy role of the federal government is to maintain diplomatic relations with foreign nations, NOT to provide for their welfare or defense.

Cutter: No U.S. military intervention abroad. End murderous economic sanctions against Cuba, Iraq, Libya. Guarantee equal pay, conditions, for foreign employees of U.S. corporations.

Hartnett: Bipartisan Democratic and Republican government works to defend interests of big business abroad. Oppose all intervention, support massive aid if organized by a workers government.

Q: Health Care: Does the federal government have a proper role in ensuring that all citizens have access to adequate health care? Explain.

Fitzsimmons: Quality, affordable health is not a debatable issue. It should be accessible to everyone.

Rivers: Absolutely. Addressing this single issue would allow us to make progress on myriad other programs like welfare, Medicare, tort reform, etc.

Montgomery: No. This is not a proper constitutional function of the federal government.

Cutter: Socialized health care to guarantee access to all services, including mental health and long-term care. Take the profit motive out of medicine!

Hartnett: For national health care system, quality care for all.

Q: Taxes: What reforms, if any, would you propose for the federal tax system?

Fitzsimmons: We need a flatter, fairer, simpler system. I want to make tax bills smaller, so people can keep more of what they earn.

Rivers: Deficit reduction before tax cuts, expansion of Earned Income Tax Credit, closing loopholes, and favorable treatment of education and housing expenses.

Montgomery: Abolishment of the IRS and the personal federal income tax.

Cutter: Close corporate loopholes, increase taxes on corporations and wealthiest families, reduce or eliminate taxes on poor and middle class, don't tax unemployment benefits.

Hartnett: A genuine progressive tax system, end to regressive sales taxes eliminate all loopholes for corporations and the wealthy.

Q: Welfare: How would you change the current welfare system, if at all?

Fitzsimmons: I support the plan that was passed by the Republican Congress and signed into law by the President.

Rivers: Move people to economic self-sufficiency by aiding them in acquiring education/job training, child care, health care coverage, and transportation.

Montgomery: Abolish the federally funded welfare system.

Cutter: Repeal welfare 'reform.' Jobs or guaranteed income if unable to work. Raise minimum wage. Free quality child care, affordable housing.

Hartnett: Massive jobs program should eliminate need for welfare. Rescind Clinton-Republican cuts and provide safety net for any still in need.

Political parties go on the attack in state court race

ELECTION '96

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Candidates for the Michigan Supreme Court can't campaign much, but this year other political interests are doing the jungle fighting for them.

The result is a series of attack ads as savage as in a congressional race. The issues are liability lawsuits and money.

The Supreme Court itself, in 1974, wrote highly restrictive canons of conduct. Says Canon 7: "A candidate, including an incumbent judge, for a judicial office. . . should not make pledges or promises of conduct in office other than the faithful and impartial performance of the duties of office."

The result has been wooden campaigns between candidates in black suits or robes, all stressing fairness and experience. Voters are so poorly informed that one-third never bother voting for Supreme Court, and only about 7 percent can even identify a justice in a non-election year.

This year the Michigan Chamber of Commerce, aided by defendant corporations, is doing its best to help Republican nominees, Chief Justice James Brickley, 67, of Traverse City, and Oakland Circuit Judge Hilda Gage, 57.

The Michigan Association of Trial Lawyers and organized labor help Democratic hopefuls, William Murphy, 51, of Grand Rapids, and Marilyn J. Kelly, 58, of Bloomfield Hills, both judges on the Court of Appeals, the second highest court.

Meanwhile, a couple of other candidates could be spoilers for the major party nominees. Jessica Cooper, an Oakland circuit judge who tried but failed to get support in Democratic circles, is running an independent campaign. Jerry J. Kaufman, a Libertarian, is making his third bid for the Supreme Court after running fourth (ahead of a Democratic nominee) in 1988.

Under Michigan's quirky law, most candidates are nominated by political parties but run on a nonpartisan ballot.

The tort issue

The chamber started it.

President James Barrett wrote in its magazine that business was tired of seeing tort reforms passed by a pro-business (read: Republican) governor and Legislature but junked by appellate courts.

Its complaint is that appellate courts are too free with other folks' money in allowing plaintiffs to sue for injuries, with "greedy" trial lawyers collecting one-third of the awards.

Its ads attack Murphy and Kelly without mentioning Brickley and Gage. One ad features the case of a hockey player who sued the ice rink for a puck injury and a woman who complained of sexual abuse 41 years after the event. Murphy and Kelly favored letting the cases go to trial.

"Let the jury decide," say trial lawyers, who resist any effort to cap "pain and suffering" awards, the kind of "expert" witnesses who can be used and limits on their fees. "Wait 'til you are injured some day," they add.

Democratic chair Mark Brewer replied that the chamber, through its Justice for Michigan Citizens political action committee, is trying to "buy control of the Michigan Supreme Court."

Murphy, the first Democratic nominee, is a former president of the Michigan Trial Lawyers Association, the hobgoblins of business and health care providers. His 1996 literature, however, buries that fact. Instead, Murphy's campaign pushes better management of the criminal docket.

In his acceptance speech, Murphy departed from his text to remind Democratic delegates his sister "is a proud member of the MEA (Michigan Education Association)."

Kelly's quest for the nomination stressed her labor support.

The money issue

Both sides have made an issue of how the other gets its money.

The chambers' PAC, Justice for Michigan's Citizens, says "more than 88 percent of all the money raised so far by Murphy. . . has come from trial lawyers."

It singles out Sommers, Schwartz, Silver and Schwartz, a Southfield law firm, for raising 33 percent of Murphy's money as of Labor Day and personal injury lawyer Lee Steinberg (as in "Call Lee for Free") for donating up to the limit.

"More than 90 percent of the contributions to his (Murphy's) campaign are from trial lawyers," added GOP chair Betsy DeVos on Oct. 11.

Democratic chair Mark Brewer says the chamber is dodging the campaign finance law and doubling its contributions by creating the second PAC, Justice for Michigan's Citizens.

In a formal complaint to the Secretary of State, Brewer said the chamber is largely in control of the second PAC.

Brickley, Gage, Murphy and Kelly remain quietly above the fray, letting the special interests and partisans do the heavy work.

The spoilers

Because one-third of Michigan voters fail to vote for Supreme Court justices, an independent candidate has ample opportunity to challenge a major party nominee.

Chief Justice Brickley has about 11.6 percent name recognition, according to an EPIC/MRA poll, and leads the field. He will be aided by the fact that on , he will be the only Supreme Court candidate designated as an incumbent justice.

His running mate, Hilda Gage, has about 2.6 percent name recognition. The Murphy-Kelly slate has 2.0 and 3.6 percent name recognition, respectively.

Retiring from the Supreme Court will be Justice Charles Levin, ineligible to run because he has reached age 70. Levin, a liberal on the tort issue, nevertheless has always won as an independent.

Judge Cooper, 50, also is running as an independent, invoking Levin's name at every opportunity. She has received great publicity from two high-profile cases, a murder trial of Dr. Jack Kevorkian and her light sentence of the Japanese woman from Farmington Hills who drowned her baby.

Whether voters approve of her judicial conduct or not, it's likely the name recognition will propel her candidacy. The political newsletter, Inside Michigan Politics, gives Cooper a good shot at topping Gage on Nov. 5.

Enter Jerry J. Kaufman, the Libertarian candidate. There are 19 Kaufmans practicing law in Michigan, and four of them are judges or former judges. Kaufman has been a great political "name" since the 1950s, when Nathan was one of the first television judges.

Jerry Kaufman, who has a civil and worker's comp practice in Berkley, does little campaigning, but his name was strong enough to win him a fourth place in the 1988 Supreme Court race, ahead of Democratic nominee Marvin Stempien, a prominent Wayne circuit judge and former legislator.

The other Libertarian candidate is David Raaflaub, an Ann Arbor lawyer who has run before but without denting the other candidates' votes.

LWV VOTERS GUIDE

Livonians face off in sheriff's race

■ Democrat Robert Ficano of Livonia and Republican Timothy J. Olszewski of Livonia are vying for a four-year term as Wayne County Sheriff.

Democrat Robert Ficano of Livonia and Republican Timothy J. Olszewski of Livonia are vying for a four-year term as Wayne County Sheriff.

The sheriff is paid $88,148.26.

The following League of Women Voters questionnaire appears in an effort to inform voters on the candidates stands in certain issues. Republican Olszewski did not respond.

Q: Specifically, what is your position on allowing law-abiding citizens to carry handguns?

Ficano: We have laws that permit citizens to carry handguns as concealed weapons. Currently, the law is applied inconsistently from county to county. The Legislature should set uniform standards across the state for gun boards to act upon when considering applications.

Q: What is your position on casino gambling for Detroit? Did it increase crime in Windsor?

Ficano: To my knowledge, crime has not increased significantly in Windsor. Citizens of Detroit have voted to approve gambling, the city should be allowed to follow the will of its electorate. The state allows gambling via horse racing, lottery and bingo, it seems inconsistent to ban one type of gambling. Regardless, safeguards for licensing application and revenue for law enforcement should be significant if gambling is approved.

Q: Where can the sheriff's department save money?

Ficano: Saved taxpayer money by confiscating approximately $3.2 million a year of drug dealers' assets. That money used to pay for the salaries and equipment of officers. Saved taxpayers money by confiscating the cars of those soliciting prostitutes. That revenue also pays for the salaries of officers in the morality unit. With the right legislation, the same type of could be used to save money in other criminal area.

Local woman plans book drive for Detroit school

A drive will be held Saturday at Livonia Mall to collect books for a library at Cooper School, 6836 Georgia, in Detroit.

The drive will take place in front of Sears from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Books for preschool through 6th-grade students are being sought.

Karen Calka, a book distributor for her home-based business with Dorling Kindersley Family Learning, is asking people to bring to the mall any books they can donate. Monetary donations also will be accepted for people to purchase books at cost for the school.

"Cooper School currently has no books in their library," Calka said. "I do not mean they have very few, I mean they have none.

"They recently received tables and chairs for the students to sit at. They also received bookshelves for the books to be placed on. But due to the lack of funds, the bookshelves remain empty."

Calka also will display books at the mall that people can purchase to donate. Calka will discount them 50-75 percent off retail. Any donation is tax deductible.

Calka is working with a foundation to help Cooper, as the school was selected as the focus of "Communities that Care," a community building program that seeks to address identified risk factors for young people such as early academic failure, lack of commitment to school, low neighborhood attachment, and neighborhood crime and drug problems.

Calka hopes people can make the book drive a "top priority."

"I am giving of my time to this cause because I firmly believe children need to be educated in order to become productive citizens," Calka said.

LWV VOTERS GUIDE

Candidates oppose county split

Voters in Redford Township, Dearborn Heights and part of Livonia will select the Wayne County commissioner to represent District No. 9 for the next two years.

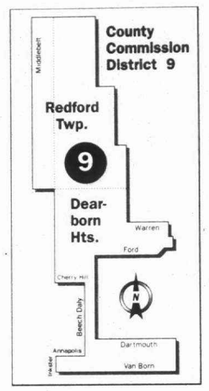
Democratic incumbent Michelle Plawecki and Republican challenger Marge Horvath square off in the general election Nov. 5.

Plawecki, 29, of Dearborn Heights, was elected in 1992 and 1994 to county commission. Prior to those elections, she was a court screener for Southwest Detroit Community Mental Health Services. Plawecki holds a bachelor's degree in political science and psychology and a master's degree in public administration from the University of Michigan.

Horvath lives in Dearborn Heights and was elected to the Dearborn Heights City Council in 1993. Horvath is employed with AT&T.

The following questions were posed to the candidates by the League of Women Voters. The League of Women Voters is a nonpartisan organization established in 1920 to encourage citizen participation in government.

■ Democratic incumbent Michelle Plawecki and Republican challenger Marge Horvath square off in the general election Nov. 5. Plawecki, 29, of Dearborn Heights, was elected in 1992 and 1994 to county commission. Horvath lives in Dearborn Heights and was elected to the Dearborn Heights City Council in 1993. Horvath is employed with AT&T.



Q: How much of your campaign funds come from vendors who do business with the county?

Horvath: None.

Plawecki: Approximately 50 percent of the contributions which I have received since the inception of my campaign in 1992 for Wayne County Commissioner is derived from businesses who do business with the County.

Q: Why is the county pushing new stadiums when problems of housing, crime and drugs are more important?

Horvath: That is a question that I am trying to find an answer to. I haven't a clue as to why stadiums are such a hot issue when help is needed in so many other areas.

Plawecki: Many elected officials in Wayne County believe that constructing two new stadiums are necessary in order to make Detroit viable for economic growth. While I have always been a proponent of increasing economic development in and around Wayne County, I am opposed to using taxpayer dollars for the purpose of constructing such stadiums.

Q: Should Wayne County be made into two counties? Why or why not?

Horvath: No. Not cost effective. We just need more accountability and local control and say-so.

Plawecki: Western Wayne County would have to double its taxes to offset the increase in costs which would be incurred from secession. Until data is presented to me suggesting otherwise, I will not support raising taxes and will continue in my efforts to improve the services provided to the local communities.

S'craft marks 35th year with community open house

In 1961, voters approved the establishment of Northwest Wayne County Community College. Three years later Schoolcraft College opened its doors to students.

Today marks the 35-year anniversary of the college that was later named Schoolcraft.

The new Continuing Education Center will hold an open house today from 3 to 5 p.m. with food and an opportunity to meet the staff and talk about the programs. From 5 to 7 p.m. the party will shift to Waterman Center where there will be cake, balloons, clowns and face painting.

Nine faculty and staff members of the original facility still work at the college. They remember 1964 as a time of tremendous excitement, a feeling of community, much construction and mud.

So many students showing up for the first registration they referred to the day as "Black Tuesday." Staff members also remember their yearly salaries -- somewhere between the upper $5,000s and the high $7,000s.

"It was pretty stark," said Fernon Feenstra, now assistant dean of technology/natural sciences, who comprised the electronics department in 1964 and earned $6,400 his first year. "Construction was still going on, there was no paving and we walked on planks."

Feenstra was living in Milwaukee when the college called him, based on the recommendation of a professor at Western. When Feenstra saw the campus, the mud and the surrounding fields, he thought it was surreal. "But in talking with the president, he convinced me this was the future."

Feenstra ordered all the equipment for the lab from his Milwaukee home and unloaded his boxes by flashlight because there was no electric power in the Forum Building.

"Those were fun times," he said. "The president got us together in the Forum and gave us a pep talk about how things would change.

"We were a family. We had potlucks, card clubs and outings and our bowling team, the Tech Boys, cleaned up on all the rest of the staff."

Marv Gans, assistant dean for continuing education services, was tapped to set up the athletics department, and build a schedule for the cross country and basketball teams. Gans was without a physical education building for seven years, and had to find places for teams to practice.

"The basketball team practiced in nine different places," Gans said. "We held classes at Northville State Hospital. In the winter, I carried a shovel in my car and had to shovel snow away from the State Hospital door. Then I would unlock the door, let the students in, and lock them up because it was a state hospital.

"One day the water in the swimming pool was 140 degrees, so I held class by the side of the pool and used it like a sauna room."

Gans, who earned $7,800 because he taught, organized the schedule and coached basketball, said his normal day began at 6:30 a.m. and ended at 10 p.m.

"We were kind of a raucous bunch, very optimistic, relatively young and naive, and enthused about starting a new school. We were going to make it into something special," said Sue Kaplan of the 48-person faculty. "The first students were very good, and it really seemed to be an academic institution devoted to teaching instead of research. The students were exciting and excited. It was really pretty nice."

Except for a few minor incidents. Kaplan remembered that her office partner opened a closet door one day, reached into her coat pocket, and found a field mouse. Some of the little creatures were apparently displaced and decided to move inside once the original farm site became a college.

Kaplan reported a $6,700 salary. "The closer to the time school opened (that) you were hired, the higher your salary," Kaplan said. "As each of us got the offer, we were told not to tell anyone, so we immediately went out and told each other."

Kaplan said faculty had extra duties chaperoning student dances and counseling students, although none were trained counselors. Feenstra said he was the entire financial aid office for a time. Dumont Hixon, who came to Schoolcraft as a reading teacher, remembers President Bradner walking out to the parking lot to count cars at different hours of the day — a first-hand, market survey of class loads.

SC history: Students walking on campus in 1964 didn't have far to go. The administration building was among the first three college buildings completed. It opened in August 1964. Others included the maintenance and forum buildings.

Andy Watson, chemistry professor, remembers the "plywood palace," a make-shift cafeteria at the east end of the forum building he said was similar to a circus wagon with a plywood roof.

Faculty members walked through the mud and snow to buy coffee and sandwiches the entire first year until a snack bar was established inside a building. Watson recalled the dress code stating that women faculty or students could not wear slacks and at least one student who was sent home for inappropriate dress.

Jean Pike, current associate dean of students, remembers the ankle-deep mud. She also remembers how friendly everyone was.

"We all pulled together as a team," Pike said. But she also remembers discovering that her $5,600 salary as a business instructor was somewhat below that of her male counterparts.

Another of Pike's memories is the first orientation at the old Mai Kai Theater which was the showing of the movie, "What a Way to Go." The marquee said, "What a Way to Go — Welcome to Students of Schoolcraft College."

One of those students, Donna Nordman, who now works as a coordinator in Schoolcraft's career center, said she remembers everything being new and shiny, with the bookstore located in a trailer where the Waterman Center now stands.

Also involved in the Oct. 24 celebration will be Harold Gordon, now a managing member at Roney & Co. Gordon taught Schoolcraft's first continuing education class in 1971, an investment class with about 50 students.

Gordon said he had "a basic blackboard, one chalk and one eraser." After 25 years, the Continuing Education Center Service has grown to 260 classes with more than 15,000 participants yearly.

Schoolcraft College is located on Haggerty Road between Six and Seven Mile roads, just west of I-275.

Schools honor secretaries with awards

Denise Gerisch and Karen Massey, secretaries at East Middle School, were named Extra Milers by the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education recently.

Gerisch and Massey are described as a "dynamic duo who consistently give a positive first impression to all who enter East and go beyond job expectations day after day, year after year."

Nominated by Ellen Tucker, president of the Community School Council and a parent of a former East student, Gerisch and Massey have served the district for 18 years collectively.

"Everyday you can watch both of these women greet every student by name; give a 'mom' touch to everyone in the sick room; provide assistance to parents, students and staff; cooperate with PTO or extra-curricular needs; know what most of the students do away from school and take an interest in their activities- all while doing their job expertly," Tucker said. "Their performance should be the standard for the district."

East Middle School Principal Ellison Franklin said, "Their readiness and willingness to support all members of the school community - students, staff and parents - is commendable. The ways in which they counsel, advise, reprimand, encourage, nurture and mediate are always in the best interest of the students, staff, parents, district and the community. They represent the most positive aspects of the essential role of support staff in public education."

Gerisch and Massey accepted the Extra Miler certificate of recognition; pins of the flag of liberty and learning, and dinner gift certificates from the Cozy Cafe from school board member Dave Artley.

College board honors CC students for high scholarship

Twenty-five students at Detroit Catholic Central High School in Redford Township have been named AP Scholars by the College Board in recognition of their achievement on the college-level Advanced Placement Examinations.

About 54 percent of America's graduating seniors have taken one or more AP examinations. Only about 12 percent of the more than 537,000 students who took AP examinations in May 1996 performed at a level to merit such recognition.

The College Board recognizes several levels of achievement based on the number of year-long courses and exams (or their equivalent semester-long courses and exams).

At Catholic Central:

■ One student qualified for the AP National Scholar Award by earning grades of 4 or higher on eight or more AP examinations. Michael Buchanan of Catholic Central received this honor.

■ Eight students qualified for the AP Scholar with Distinction Award by earning grades of 3 or above on five or more AP examinations, with an average exam grade of at least 3.5. These students are: Michael Buchanan, Scott Chemello, Robert Delonis, Clint McDonell, Jeffrey Monnette, Melchor Munoz, John Rajlich, and Gregory VanHoey.

■ Five students qualified for the AP Scholar with honor award by earning grades of 3 or above on four or more AP examinations, with an average exam grade of at least 3.25. These students are: David Jackett, Christopher Jensen, Dante Passera, Richard Ratke and Craig Soules.

■ Twelve students qualified for the AP Scholar Award by completing three or more AP examinations, with grades of 3 or higher. The AP Scholars are: Maher Abuhamdan, Matthew Bieniek, David Cain, Andrew Flowerday, David Gulbernat, Gregory Hnatiuk, Francis Ko, Patrick Medado, Srinidhi Nagaraja, Michael Shallal, Richard Stachura, and James Watts.

AP examinations are taken in May after students complete college-level courses at their high school, are graded on a 5-point scale (5 is the highest).

Most of the nation's colleges and universities award credit and/or placement for grades of 3 or higher, and more than 1,300 institutions award a year of credit to students with a sufficient number of qualifying grades. There are 29 AP examinations offered in 16 disciplines, each consisting of multiple-choice and free-response (essay or problem-solving) questions.

Exchange program is seeking homes for high school students

Foreign high school students are scheduled to arrive soon for academic semester visits in area homes, and the sponsoring organization needs a few more local host families.

Students are all between 15- and 18-years-old, are English-speaking, have their own spending money, carry accident and health insurance, and are anxious to share their cultural experiences with their new American families, according to John Doty, executive director of Pacific Intercultural Exchange.

PIE currently has programs to match almost every family's needs, ranging in length from a semester to a full academic year, where the students attend local high schools.

PIE area representatives match students with host families by finding common interests and lifestyles through an informal in-home meeting. Prospective host families can review student applications and select a match. As there are no "typical" host families, PIE can fit a student into just about any situation, whether it be a single parent, a childless couple, a retired couple or a large family.

Families who host for PIE also are eligible to claim a $50 per month charitable contribution deduction on their itemized tax returns for each month they host a sponsored student.

For the upcoming programs, PIE has students from Spain, Denmark, Germany, Poland, Russia, Finland, Argentina, Brazil, Colombia, Paraguay, Australia, New Zealand, Croatia, and many other countries. PIE has been invited to participate in a special government-funded program to bring scholarship students from the newly independent states of the former Soviet Union to the United States.

PIE is a non-profit educational organization that has sponsored more than 18,000 students from 40 countries since its founding in 1975. The organization is designated by the United States Information Agency and is listed by the Council on Standards for International Educational Travel (CSIET), certifying that the organization complies with the standards set forth in the CSIET's standards for international educational travel programs.

Doty encourages families to contact the program immediately to allow the proper time for the students and hosts to get to know one another before they actually meet.

Area families interested in learning more about student exchange or arranging for a meeting with a community representative may call PIE toll-free at 1-800-631-1818 or via the Internet at http://www.pieusa.org. The agency also has travel/study program opportunities for community volunteers to assist and work with area host families, students and schools.

No injuries reported in apartment fire

By Valerie Olander
Staff Writer

An early Sunday morning fire devastated one unit at the Village Squire Apartments at Ford and Lotz and caused significant smoke and water damage to others.

Damage to the building was estimated by firefighters at approximately $75,000.

The tenants of the apartment where the fire originated were awakened by neighbors and escaped unharmed, said fire Chief Mike Rorabacher. All the units were evacuated as firefighters battled the blaze on the second floor. No injuries were reported.

Village Squire resident James McNellis, an aquatics specialist for the township's Summit on the Park, said he was awakened by neighbors pounding on his door about 3:30 a.m. His building is adjacent to where the fire occurred.

"I got outside and within a few minutes firefighters and police were there. They had it contained quickly," he said. "I was really impressed with their professionalism. It was the first time anything like that ever happened to me."

The fire was ruled accidental, Rorabacher said. The tenants told police they were in the bedroom burning a candle and some incense on a nightstand the night before, which was Sweetest Day. Both fell asleep as the candle and incense were nearly burnt out, police were told by one of the tenants. A paper towel also had been placed under the candle and incense so not to burn the night stand, police said.

As firefighters were busy extinguishing the flames from the second floor apartment, another fire alarm was received from Center Stage, located next to the apartment complex. Westland firefighters were called to respond. "That's not what a fire chief wants to hear," said Rorabacher. "You get a sinking feeling."

But it was a false alarm. Rorabacher said that a water flow alarm was set off when they opened the hydrant at the apartment fire.

Malicious destruction

A large pumpkin was thrown through the window of the Wagon Wheel Mobile Home Park clubhouse at Barr and Geddes roads between 2-8 a.m. Friday. The pumpkin was taken from a nearby residence, police said. Damage was estimated at $300.

■ An arrow was shot through a Wayne County Road Department construction trailer sometime between 7 p.m. Friday and 9 a.m. Saturday at the corner of Beck and Geddes. The arrow went through the east window and stuck into the west wall, police said. Damage was estimated at $200.

■ A homeowner on Embassy Court in the Canton Center and Warren area reported hearing a crash about 8 p.m. Friday and discovered someone threw a brick through the outside glass storm door. Damage was estimated at $70.

■ Two 12-year-old boys who apparently missed the school bus on Friday were detained by police about 11:30 a.m. after three vehicles were vandalized at the Crossings Apartments. An employee at the apartment complex saw two boys near a blue 1984 Toyota Corolla, which had smoke coming out a broken window. The youths set off firecrackers inside the car, causing $120 damage to the car seat, window and door lock, police said. Firecrackers were also put in a 1984 Toyota Camry and a door lock was damaged on a 1981 Mercury Capri. The youths were released to the custody of their parents.

Possession of marijuana

A student at Salem High School was arrested last Thursday for having approximately 20 grams of suspected marijuana in his possession, police said. Students apparently notified school officials when a student was allegedly attempting to sell the illegal substance. Police recovered a joint containing 5.5 grams of suspected marijuana, a bag with 4.8 grams of suspected marijuana and 15 joints weighing approximately 10.9 grams.

Breaking and entering

A building under construction on Thistle Drive was broken into sometime between 6:45 p.m. last Thursday and 9 a.m. Friday. The project manager told police the culprit broke out the dry wall in the garage and then, stole two space heaters, valued at $110. Damage to the drywall was estimated at $400 and damage to pipes was $300, police said.

Livonia attorney challenges O'Hair for prosecutor's post

■ Wayne County voters will select between Democrat John D. O'Hair and Republican Donald Knapp to a four-year term as county prosecutor. O'Hair has been county prosecutor since 1983. He is a Detroit resident. Knapp, a Livonia resident, has not campaigned for the post.

Wayne County voters will select between Democrat John D. O'Hair and Republican Donald Knapp to a four-year term as county prosecutor.

O'Hair has been county prosecutor since 1983. He is a Detroit resident.

Knapp, a Livonia resident, has not campaigned for the post.

The Observer will be running excerpts of questionnaires from the League of Women Voters, a nonpartisan organization which aims to inform voters on election issues.

Q: Should first offense cocaine dealers be sentenced to life terms? If not, why not?

Knapp: First offense means first-time convicted not necessarily first-time dealing cocaine. Cocaine and cocaine dealers destroy lives. If you are convicted of trafficking in large amounts of cocaine, you should receive a life sentence. Those in the lucrative business of destroying lives should pay a very high price.

O'Hair: Michigan's 650 drug lifer law is not too harsh for the major drug trafficker, of for the person regularly engaged in selling drugs, whether or not the offender has been arrested before. For a youthful or first-time offender not previously or regularly engaged in drug distribution it is time to review the wisdom of lifetime prison sentences. For this kind of offender, there may be more proportionate and less costly punishment.

Q: Should doctors be given legal safeguards to help people commit suicide?

Knapp: I believe that despite any effort to create a system that would permit physician-assisted suicide, abuses will arise that will result in unintended deaths. I stand with the American Medical Association in opposition to physician-assisted suicide.

O'Hair: If the state Legislature concludes that physician-assisted suicides should be decriminalized, the circumstances should be very limited, clearly and precisely defined, and carefully monitored. Any exemption from criminal responsibility for physicians should be explicitly stated.

Q: Plea bargaining helps law enforcement solve cases. Wouldn't better police work do the same, while keeping dangerous felons in prison longer?

Knapp: The real issue is not plea bargaining, it is whether we should require mandatory minimum sentences for criminals. Anyone convicted and sentenced should know that he will serve his full sentence, without parole, and not be released early because of jail overcrowding. Build more prisons, don't impair law enforcement.

O'Hair: This office does not plea bargain major crimes. Plea bargaining when done responsibly serves the public interest. When pleas are negotiated, accountability for the crime is the goal, not case disposal. A plea is never agreed to unless the punishment it provides is adequate and equivalent to what could be expected following a conviction.

Fund-raiser will support mission work

The Pallottine Fathers will host their annual dinner dance at 7 p.m., Saturday, Nov. 9 at the Hellenic Cultural Center, 36375 Joy Road in Westland.

Proceeds will benefit the Irish order's missions in Tanzania, East Africa.

Cocktails will be served at 7 p.m., followed by dinner at 8 p.m. with music by Noel Henry's Irish Showband.

Tickets are $37.50 per person. For tickets and information, call (313)285-2966 or (810)681-5736.

Honored as Irish Pallottine Men of the Year for their support of the missions will be John Wisely of Waterford, formerly of Southfield, and Dr. John Newell of Allen Park.

The Rev. Stephen Keogh of the Wyandotte-based Pallottine priests said "a missionary is a religious who goes to a place where he is needed but not wanted, and remains there until he is not needed, but wanted.

"Our fund raisers and church appeals are the lifelines of our missionaries in Tanzania, East Africa. Our success in that wind-scorched land of famine and death is not only due to the dedication of our missionaries, but also to the generosity of caring and loving people. Without this help, our missionaries cannot do their work of spiritual and human development."

Festival admission is free, however, a nominal fee will be charged for the hay ride. Food concession will be available.

All events will be held outdoors so parents are urged to dress youngsters appropriately.

Math students leading the nation

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Hats off to calculus students at Plymouth Canton Educational Park.

They're leading the nation in passing the Advanced Placement calculus test. Nationally, 58 percent of students who take the AP exam pass. Plymouth-Canton's passing rate is 95.6 percent, said Judy Evola, community relations director for Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

Students who pass the AP exam are eligible for college credit.

Not only is the passing rate higher, but an unusually high number of PCEP students take the AP test, said veteran Salem math teacher Tom Cotner. Typically, 25-30 students at a given high school take the AP exam.

"We have a larger number of kids who take the test than most districts do, and our passing rate is second to no one," said Cotner. "We're really happy. The whole department is very proud of what we've been able to do with these kids.

"Ten years ago, we had less than 10 kids taking the test at Canton and Salem. Now we have 69. We worked real hard to push that program. The whole math department did.

The work of Cotner, the retired Canton calculus teacher Jim Muneio, and his replacement, Marsha Hoff, has paid off steadily over the years. "Ten years ago, we had one class of calculus. Now we have six. Additionally, we have one second-year calculus class that just came into existence this year," said Cotner. "The kids I have are going to be able to take a higher level advanced placement and get eight college credits."

Passing the general AP test entitles a student to four credits.

Benefiting are not just the students planning to major in mathematics in college.

"Most of these kids are going into engineering, math, or some science that requires quite a bit of math," he said.

Band heading for state competition

BY DIANE HANSON
SPECIAL WRITER

The Plymouth-Canton Marching Band captured second place honors among 27 top competing bands at the Bands of America Regional Championships at the University of Toledo in Ohio Oct. 19.

They also took the Class AAA Outstanding Music Award during the preliminary competition earlier in the day when bands from Michigan, Ohio, Kentucky and Pennsylvania vied for the coveted top ten placements.

The evening competition featured the 10 top bands, including five from Michigan. Plymouth-Canton's jazzy and entertaining performance of "The Road to Oz," clinched the Outstanding General Effect award for the crowd pleasers and netted them a second place finish with a score of 88.45-which included a 0.2 point penalty for boundary violations. They were edged out of first place by Norwin Senior High School from Huntingdon, Pennsylvania, with a score of 88.8.

Band director David McGrath said "we're not done yet . . .The good news is, there's three weeks left (until nationals) and we're almost done learning, whereas last year we were learning right up until two days before we went to nationals."

McGrath said the band finished fourth overall in preliminaries but they had a good talk before the finals, "got the kids fired up and they came out this evening and just had a great show."

Associate band director, Pat Ruddy agreed. "We were extremely happy," he said. "We thought the kids were great and the most important thing, the kids were extremely happy. "

"I think it was the most outstanding performance we had all year, all around," said Eric Schuetzler, a junior who plays percussion. Junior Jesse Young, percussion, and sophomore Natalie Greenshields on cymbals, concurred.

The Plymouth-Canton drumline received the of playing the bands onto the field for the finals awards presentation. "I think they know that we have a good percussion section, someone who can keep a beat," said percussion director, Gregg Rinehart of the Plymouth-Canton selection. McGrath foresees a lot of polishing and improvements for the band before the State Championships at the Silverdome this Saturday and the Bands of America Grand National Championships at the RCA Dome in Indianapolis on Nov. 7, 8, 9. "We'll clean, clean, clean this week," McGrath promised. "It should be a different band by Saturday."

Plymouth Theatre Guild

Local season is launched with a musical revue

SPECIAL WRITER

THEATER REVIEW

The Plymouth Theatre Guild launches its 50th season with "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow," a musical revue celebrating favorite Broadway musicals. The show runs two more weekends, Fridays and Saturdays, Oct. 25-26 and Nov. 1-2, at 8 p.m., and Sunday, Oct. 27, at 6 p.m. at the Water Tower Theatre on the campus of the Northville Psychiatric Hospital. Tickets are $12 at the door, and $11 in advance. For information, call 810-349-7110.

PTG's musical gala provides a talented mix of more than 50 performers, featuring director James Morisi's voice students and community theater regulars. To accommodate the fast pace and diversity of songs, the stage was dominated by an expanse of steps, which accommodated the entire cast for company numbers and provided an effective way to create vignettes on different levels when featuring highlights from a given musical. The actors, dressed in basic black, used quick and clever costume pull-on pieces to rapidly change their appearance between numbers.

The group numbers were impressive, from the opening number, "A Little Night Music," to the closing number, "Applause." "Do You Hear The People Sing," from "Les Miserables," ended the first act on a stunning note, while the men of the company opened the second act with a stirring rendition of "BUI-DOI" from "Miss Saigon."

Comic relief came from ongoing "interruptions" from the "Nunsense" nuns, who comically beleaguered talented narrator Debbie Pletzer by sneaking in their production numbers. They even slipped in a number from "Sister Act" and performed a few steps of the Macarena in their habits.

Talented soloists were the rule of the evening. Standouts included: Kris Budzynowski in "On My Own" from "Les Miserables"; Jason Courney in "BUI-DOI" from "Miss Saigon"; Connie Randall in "Clusters of Crocus" and "Come To My Garden," and Amber Grand in "Girl I Mean to Be," from "The Secret Garden"; and Anastasia Xuereb in "Applause."

Other highlights include Phil Lukasik's gangster in "Sit Down, You're Rocking the Boat" from "Guys and Dolls," and the younger cast members' rendition of "It's the Hard Knock Life" from "Annie." Fine acting made several other songs a hit, including Wendy Sielaff's "I Just Want To Be A Star" from "Nunsense,"Kerry Plague and Lilianna Juhasz's "Master of the House" from "Les Miserables," and Judy Rychman's "Turn Up the Spotlight" from "Nunsense." The tap number from "42nd Street" was a fun treat as well.

The "Grease" numbers missed the mark; they seemed to need more rehearsal. "Tin Horn Fugue," from "Guys and Dolls," was curiously performed by women dressed as gangsters. It could have worked, but didn't – the actresses seemed too hesitant to make it work. "Tomorrow," from "Annie," performed as a softly sung duet, also missed the mark: The song is best when belted out by a powerful soloist. And Ve Stambersky's Miss Hannigan just wasn't mean enough to pull it off. And, hopefully, the lighting, at times hesitant and off the mark, will improve by the second weekend.

Students are disciplined

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Nearly 100 eighth-graders staged a walk out at Lowell Middle School recently, protesting the alleged cancellation of their class trip to Washington D.C.

Several students were disciplined after they refused to reenter the school building, said Principal Roche LaVictor.

Because they were without a labor agreement, many teachers were refusing to take on duties not specified in their contract. The Washington trip was among the activities "on hold."

The students were "expressing their displeasure with the situation. We explained to them that they were basically jumping the gun, because the trip had not been cancelled," said LaVictor.

"We told the kids they were out there without appropriate information. We said, 'You're not asking questions, you're just reacting to rumors,'" the principal said.

The walk-out began at lunchtime, when 75-100 eighth-graders went outside. After the situation was explained, all but 11 students returned to school, LaVictor said. "There were some suspensions. I'm not at liberty to give specifics."

BIG, THICK, TASTY STEAKS.
100 YEAR-OLD SPICE RECIPES.
AND OVER 65 BEERS FROM PLACES YOU'VE PROBABLY NEVER EVEN HEARD OF.

Two words of advice about our new steakhouse: come hungry.

Jump into a mound of fried dill pickle slices or a towering onion ring tree for starters. Then you'll regret having only 10,000 taste buds as you dig into one of our hearty, seasoned steak, chicken, or fish dishes cooked Santa Maria style - over a red oak fire grill right in the middle of the restaurant.

But you can always cool off with over 65 micro-brewed beers. (Not all at once, of course.)

"Can I have all this and still afford to eat the rest of the week?" you ask. You bet. Because we don't think a killer meal should come with a price that's hard to swallow.

Regional votes

Support stadiums for Detroit

We endorse, with lukewarm enthusiasm, Wayne County Proposition S on the Nov. 5 ballot – two taxes for two stadiums.

We endorse them because Wayne County is on a roll in turning around the economy in Detroit and helping it grow in the suburbs. The list of successes swells daily.

Major league sports teams, like the Detroit Lions and Tigers, are an important ingredient in a region that already boasts a world class symphony orchestra and art institute. All the improvements, taken as a growing package, can make the county seat a magnet instead of a place to flee, as it has been since 1967.

Indeed, when Money magazine in July picked the top 10 places to live out of 300 in the United States, Ann Arbor was No. 5 in part because of its proximity to big league sports.

It is hard to object to the tax proposals as such: 1 percent on hotels and motels, 2 percent on rental vehicles, with travelers (mostly on business expense accounts) picking up the bulk of the tab. The Hotel Association of Greater Detroit and the Michigan Hotel/Motel and Resort Association not only don't object but are actively supporting them,. Many car rental companies support the package.

We share the concerns about "corporate welfare" but in fairness must point out two things: The governmental contribution to the $500 million-plus projects is smaller than in nearly all other big city stadium projects; and the two most famous benefiting families, Ilitch and Ford, have shown a dogged loyalty to this region with their investments and contributions. They deserve public confidence.

Our enthusiasm, however, must be lukewarm because of the tax situation in Michigan and the region.

PROPOSITION S

An objective Citizens Research Council points out that Proposition S, if approved, will raise the Detroit hotel tax rate to 15 percent, third highest in the country. The new car rental tax rate will be 8 percent, not tops but close to the 50-city average of 8.24. Taxes aren't a total impediment to economic development, but they bear watching.

Most importantly, we point out that this is the third county tax increase the McNamara administration has proposed in just two years. There is a disturbing statewide trend, in the wake of the hefty Proposal A property tax cut of 1994, for all kinds of local governments to ask all kinds of new taxes.

We supported with great zeal the mid-1995 property tax increase for SMART, the suburban bus system, because it opened the gates of opportunity for many would-be workers to get suburban jobs. Public transportation remains an extremely high priority for us, right after public education. The SMART tax has two years to run.

We also smiled on the parks proposal of last August. As traffic swells, people deserve healthy and well-maintained recreation facilities close to home. That parks tax runs five years.

We fear that if Wayne County and other units keep it up, however, there will be another taxpayers' revolt; we fear that revolt may be directed against schools, SMART and the parks.

And so, while recommending a yes vote on Proposition S, we say emphatically that the Lions' and Tigers' stadiums are a far lower priority than schools, buses and parks for Wayne County families.

Look carefully at state ballot

Some are important, some mere nuisances. But we urge all voters to look at the state proposals at the bottom of the Nov. 5 ballot.

Proposal A is a mischief law to ban use of bingo games as political party fund-raisers. Democrats sponsor most of the political bingos; their take is a mere 5 percent of the profits. They hardly intrude into church bingos.

Republicans in the Legislature passed the law in 1994 when they had a temporary majority in the House. The law amounts to a piecemeal approach to campaign finance reform. A no vote rejects the law. We recommend a no vote on Proposal A.

Proposal B would amend the Michigan Constitution to require that lawyers be licensed, (admitted to the State Bar) for five years before they can run for judge. Currently, a greenhorn fresh out of law school can be elected judge. On Wayne County's bedsheet ballots, several inexperienced persons have been elected on the basis of "name." Proposal B wouldn't guarantee smart and experienced judges. But it would provide a good minimal qualification for officials who hold our fortunes, our safety and our lives in their hands. We recommend a yes vote on Proposal B.

Proposal C is a puzzler. It would elevate the Veterans Trust Fund, established in 1946 after World War II, to constitutional status. It is a $50 million fund to make temporary, emergency grants to veterans and their families and provide college tuition aid for their children. Over the decades, the Legislature has raided the Veterans Trust Fund several times for general fund purposes during recessions, when revenues declined. The Legislature itself, in a moment of penance and self-denial, placed Proposal C on the ballot. If the fund should be retained at all, it should be protected. We recommend a yes vote on Proposal C.

PROPOSALS A,B,C,E

Proposal E would allow three non-Indian gambling casinos in Detroit. All other casinos in Michigan are operated by tribes, under federal law. State law prevents casinos, allowing only bingo, the state-run lottery and horse race wagering.

In the past, we have editorialized against establishing casinos in Detroit because there was no redevelopment going on in the city. But things have changed under the Dennis Archer administration.

Gambling is a recreational pursuit for many people. More than 16,000 people pass through Detroit every day to visit Windsor casinos, restaurants and hotels. About 90 percent of the money spent in Windsor casinos is from the United States – some 80 percent from Michigan alone. In addition, the limited gaming allowed under Proposal E will create a number of low-skilled jobs that may be needed in the city.

Detroit residents have approved local ballot measure to allow limited casino gaming. We recommend a yes vote on Proposal E.

Let state professionals manage wildlife issues

Michigan's bear population has been managed masterfully the last few decades.

There are 10,000 black bear in the northern woods, a healthy population. Hunters take about 1,500 a year. More importantly, bear-human encounters are dwindling. It has been decades since a child was killed by a bear.

This excellent record is the work of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, which fine-tunes the bear population through hunting rules. It allows the use of bait piles and packs of dogs, through which 95 percent of the bears are taken.

Proposal D would outlaw the use of bait piles and dogs. Its purpose is to keep alleged trespassers off private property, although in the Upper Peninsula only a dozen such cases were reported last year.

Proposal D amounts to using a bomb to do the work of a paring knife. It is overkill and bad management. It should be defeated.

Suppose, if it passes, the bear kill is cut to a few hundred per year. In a few years, the bear population would explode. There would be more bear-human conflicts, more bears declared nuisances for just behaving like bears. There are likely to be new reports of tiny humans being mauled in their backyards, as we saw in the 1950s.

Micro-managing of the bear population is not the answer. The job should be left to the DNR.

That brings us to Proposal G. It would declare state policy to be scientific management of wildlife by trained biologists. It should be adopted. Proposal G makes one change from existing law. Gov. John Engler took away rule-making authority from the Natural Resources Commission and gave it to the DNR director. Proposal G gives authority back to the commission. Engler himself supports G.

Proposals D and G are rivals. If voters say yes to both, the one with the most "yes" votes becomes law. If both fail, the DNR director will continue to make hunting rules.

To be safe, voters should say no to Proposal D and yes to Proposal G.

Missing representatives

I would like to thank the League of Women Voters for the excellent Candidates Night they put on Tuesday, Oct. 1, at the Canton Little Theater at Canton High School. Your hard work is greatly appreciated.

I was further impressed that over 65 Plymouth and Canton citizens took time out of their busy schedules and attended the forum. Unfortunately, two out of three state representatives didn't feel these 65 citizens of Canton and Plymouth were worthy of having their questions answered.

The only current state representative that did appear and answer the questions was Eileen DeHart. Unfortunately, state Reps. Deborah Whyman and Gerald Law didn't find the time to answer our questions.

Fortunately, their opponents, Deborah Nesbit and Deborah Hoadley, did attend, and did show these 65 citizens they do care about the Canton-Plymouth community. There were numerous insightful questions from the audience, and fine answers from the panelists.

In fact, I only have two questions left, for the non-attending panelists, Deborah Whyman and Gerald Law:

1. "Where were Deborah Whyman and Gerald Law?" and
2. "What could possibly have been more important than the citizens of Canton and Plymouth?"

Praise for Patterson

The comments made by County Commissioner Michelle Plawecki (Oct. 7, "Roads dispute") show what is terribly wrong with Wayne County government today. Decisions at the county level are generally not based on the needs of a particular community, but on how someone aligns themselves politically. Unfortunately, road funding is just one example of the inequities that the political empire in Wayne County has fostered over the past several years.

County Commissioner Bruce Patterson was elected to represent the needs of his constituents, not to kowtow to the political agenda of others. While the political "in" crowd of the County Commission may not like it, Commissioner Patterson should continue to be a strong voice for this community.

I am deeply concerned about the pettiness Commissioner Plawecki shows toward Commissioner Patterson, and about her lack of vision toward the voting public.

Persons working toward positive changes in their communities should be respected, not met with comments such as "I think it's that time of year when people just have too much time on their hands."

Where's opponent?

I would certainly like to express my appreciation to the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, their Legislative Committee, I-Care, the League of Women Voters and all of the interested citizens that participated in the first formal debate scheduled between myself and my opponent, Rep. Deborah Whyman.

Unfortunately, Deborah Whyman was a no-show, making it difficult to debate the substantive issues facing education in our district. It is my belief that this no-show reflects the attention that Ms. Whyman has given to our school district. Talk but no action.

Her vote to eliminate adult education, her desire to have the state take increasing control over educational issues and our local tax dollars, her belated entry into the issue of fund equity, and her continued support for the diversion of tax dollars to private schools are clear signs that Ms. Whyman is not a supporter of public school education.

By her unwillingness to attend the Plymouth-Canton Schools' educational debate, she has shown that once again she will not confront the serious issues head on.

Since Labor Day, my supporters have distributed over 50,000 campaign fliers throughout Canton. This was accomplished by over 75 volunteers on a weekly basis. Unlike Ms. Whyman this was accomplished without the use of taxpayer-funded literature.

I want to discuss the issues and have taken to the streets in an old-fashioned campaign. I wish that Ms. Whyman would come out of hiding and debate the issues. Where are you, Deborah?

POINTS OF VIEW

Young, old can use care outside home

JUDITH DONER BERNE

I have never really believed in either day care for babies and toddlers or assisted living for the elderly.

I thought that if both parents had to work, it was better to bring someone into the home to care for the child, if it could be afforded, rather than to cart them off to day care.

And, I thought, that the elderly, too, were better off staying in their home with someone to assist them, if they could afford it, rather than to enter an assisted living situation.

Of course I had considered both concepts only from afar. And, as with many untested philosophies, the reality is quite different.

Because my own experience now shows I was wrong.

Drawing similarities between caring for the young and the elderly is not so unlikely. It's actually hard not to draw parallels between my 20-month-old granddaughter and my 80-year-old mom in what is truly a circle of life.

For example, as Allyson was learning to walk, my mother became dependent on a walker.

As Allyson is picking up new words, my mom is aware that words don't come to her as easily after a slight stroke.

And now that Allyson is running, jumping and climbing, my mom has had a setback and can only get around in a wheelchair.

Luckily, both are plucky.

Allyson, who has been in part-time day care since she was 6 months old, has just graduated to the 2-year-old room along with Jack and Jordan, with whom she has shared her babyhood.

Not only has she made the adjustment, but, after a perfunctory acknowledgment she continues to play when her mom, dad or even Grammy (sob) come to pick her up. She makes it perfectly clear that she's stimulated and at home away from home.

My mom, faced with surgery for a benign tumor on her back that we hope will allow her to regain mobility and relieve her pain, tries hard not to complain and doesn't let us see her tears. Luckily, she also has her "Jack," who has been both advocate and companion.

But she has resisted assisted living, preferring to stay in her own apartment in another city with practical nurses around the clock and her out-of-town children visiting intermittently.

It's not a good situation. The right caregivers are hard to find. Cooking nutritious meals is not part of their job. Some have tried to take advantage of her. And, although yes, she is surrounded by her own things and in a traditional high-rise apartment building, it is an isolated existence.

I recently accompanied Observer & Eccentric book reviewer Esther Littmann to an assisted living facility, The Trowbridge in Southfield, where she gives weekly book reviews on a volunteer basis.

It was an interesting hour. Littmann brought the book "True Colors," the autobiography by Bloomfield Hills resident Patricia Hill Burnett, home to an audience of 35 or so senior citizens.

Some were in walkers and wheelchairs and a few were accompanied by nursing attendants. But all except one who fell asleep for a bit were completely engrossed in the lively review, which Littmann, a Bloomfield Hills resident, punctuated with questions to which they eagerly responded.

And Littmann is not their only source of outside excitement. They had to move to a larger room for Linda Garfield, who discusses current events twice a week. And large crowds also attend storytelling by Corinne Stavish. Other smaller draws are American history and humanities classes.

So although you think of assisted living as prepared meals, transportation and health services, it is also about socializing and stimulation.

It seems that home can sometimes be more confining than cozy for a young child or an elderly person if well-chosen day care or assisted living is available.

To understand budget, get lock on lock box

TIM RICHARD

I studied high school civics, college political science and business school accounting and never heard of a "lock box."

Nowadays, you can't understand the machinations of your tax dollars at work unless you know about a "lock box." Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Redford, who ranks as one of Lansing's 25 queens and kings on the House Appropriations Committee, educated me recently.

A line-item is made in a state spending bill but takes effect only if the U.S. Congress makes changes in welfare and Medicaid programs that yield Michigan more revenue. If the feds come through, we can spend the money; if not, forget it.

It's as if Dad promised he'll take Mom to the Cayman Islands if he gets a Christmas bonus. No bonus, no trip.

It's conservative budgeting procedure that makes sense. In the old days, Gov. Bill Milliken had to issue executive orders cutting spending, particularly for schools, when a recession shriveled revenues.

Later, Gov. Jim Blanchard had his own device: He would underestimate revenue and get the budget passed. Months later, Blanchard would say, Hey, let's use the extra revenue for a nifty new program I have in mind.

The lock box technique says we'll hike spending on program X if extra revenue comes in. Whatever one thinks of Gov. John Engler's policies, his budget practices deserve praise.

Naturally, legislative Democrats want to play politics.

Said House minority leader Dennis Hertel, D-Detroit: "When the governor proposed his budget, we raised the concern that it was a mistake to predicate it on federal action which had not yet occurred."

Hertel pointed to $100 million worth of expansions of health-care coverage for children, in-home care for the elderly, Medicaid, prison construction, schools for new state troopers, Job Commission grants and conservation officers that won't occur.

President Bill Clinton signed the GOP's welfare bill but vetoed the Medicaid changes. See, said the Michigan Democrats, we told you so.

This mightily annoyed Rep. Don Gilmer, R-Augusta, chair of the House Appropriations Committee. He said Hertel and the Democrats were well aware of the lock boxes in the budget bills. Gilmer said Democrats were off base in saying program backers had been told they would receive increases. "They were told they would get the funding only if the federal changes occurred," Gilmer said.

"The budget is balanced, the programs are funded as approved, and shame on them," he added.

Meanwhile: There is little public discussion but lots of quiet worry about the Michigan Supreme Court's refusal to take up Durant vs. State and Schmidt vs. State.

Those were the cases in which the Court of Appeals ruled Engler had improperly cut "categorical" school aid to out-of-formula school districts.

Engler's argument, you'll recall, was that if well-off suburban school districts didn't get general school aid, they shouldn't get categorical aid, either. The suburbs disagreed. So did the courts.

One day you hear the districts are entitled to $500 million; next day, others could file claims, and the total amounts to $1 billion, $2 billion, $3 billion. Keep in mind the total general fund budget is just $8 billion.

Will the Durant decision drain the $1 billion "rainy day fund"? Will a tax hike be necessary?

Doubtful. Engler will negotiate a settlement with the schools closer to the $500 million mark than to the $3 billion mark.

Open Meetings Act hampers search for new U-M president

PHILIP POWER

Consider this: Suppose you are a board member of a $2 billion corporation, a world leader in its field but facing troubled times.

Suppose you are searching for a new CEO for the company, competing with other companies in the job market for leadership.

And suppose the Michigan Legislature passed a law which, when interpreted by the courts, ordered you under criminal penalties:

• Not to meet one-on-one with candidates for the job.

• Not to talk privately about any of the candidates with your search committee or the headhunter you have hired.

• Not to use confidential reference checks – letters and phone calls to former employers – without releasing them to the public.

• Even – get this! – not to talk with your fellow board members about the decision except at a public meeting of the board.

And suppose further that these legal requirements deterred many excellent candidates from putting their names forward and, at the last minute, caused one of your finalists to withdraw.

How would you feel?

For starters, how about outraged and hamstrung at this terrible example of absurd and damaging governmental intrusion into your business affairs?

Sounds outlandish? Not at all.

This is exactly what is going on just now at the University of Michigan, where the Board of Regents is working under court order to select a new president in a way that complies with the Michigan Open Meetings Act.

It's clear that the publicity requirements of the Open Meetings Act scared off most sitting presidents from participating in the search, thereby eliminating from the selection pool almost everybody with prior experience as a university president.

Then last week, the Detroit and Ann Arbor newspapers sued the U-M, claiming the search process set up by the Board of Regents violated the Open Meetings Act. Washtenaw Circuit Judge Melinda Morris ruled that the university had to open up every aspect of the search process and forbade one-on-one meetings between regents and presidential candidates.

One of the five finalists promptly withdrew, telling the chair of the search committee: "I cannot go forward with such a process, because it no longer provides any opportunity for candid discussion about sensitive issues." Search consultant Malcolm McKay pointed out that selection procedures at private universities wisely offer presidential candidates the chance to get to know, one-on-one, the board members for whom they will be working.

Of course, the newspapers are harrumphing that the Open Meetings Act is just wonderful because it requires all public bodies (U-M Board of Regents is one) always to conduct the public's business (the university is in large part tax-supported) entirely in public (i.e., so that reporters can look over shoulders and report about scandal in the background of candidates and backroom deals between the regents).

This absolutist position amounts to saying that a central point of public policy in Michigan should be to place our public universities at an enormous competitive disadvantage versus private schools in searching for competent leadership. Talk about cutting off the nose to spite the face!

The Board of Regents – let the public record show clearly that I'm one – is going ahead to select a new president, even under the strict terms of Judge Morris' ruling. It won't be easy. But the university needs a new president right now, and the Michigan Constitution says selecting one is our job.

I can only hope we'll get good candidates.

And when all the fuss is over, I hope the Michigan Legislature will amend this intrusive, poorly written and counterproductive law to cut trustees some slack in selecting the best possible candidates to run the universities that are among the crown jewels of our state.

Friends of Rouge honor O&E for efforts to aid river cleanup

The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers have made some new "best" friends.

Because of the newspaper chain's efforts to inform the public of efforts to revitalize the Rouge River, the Observer will receive a "Best Friends of the Rouge" award at a dinner tonight at Warren Valley Golf Course in Dearborn Heights.

■ 'Your newspaper has been particularly diligent in watching the effects of day-to-day activities and how they affect the Rouge.'

Jim Graham
Friends of Rouge

Jim Graham, executive director of Friends of the Rouge, a group dedicated to the river's cleanup, said the award was presented to people or organizations that contribute to river's revitalization and the group's success. The Observer won in the media category, one of eight.

"Your newspaper has been particularly diligent in watching the effects of day-to-day activities and how they affect the Rouge," Graham said. "Like letting people know that when they wash their cars in a parking lot, that soap and water runs into a storm drain and affects the river's quality."

The Observer was the first corporate member of the Rouge-friendly program, Graham said. Friends of the Rouge is aimed at residents and corporate officials so they learn how to monitor themselves to help reduce the impact on the Rouge, Rouge said.

The Observer published a special section on the river earlier this year.

"(The newspaper has) really done an outstanding job," Graham said.

"It's difficult for the board of directors to pick nominees because there are an awful lot of people who make significant contributions. We're proud to bring them recognition."

Halloween can be risky for pets

Halloween is fun, but it can be hazardous for household pets, warns Dr. Paul Bloom of Bloom Animal Hospital in Livonia.

"We worry about dogs who share the goodies collected by trick-or-treaters," Bloom said.

"It frequently leads to an upset stomach, and it isn't healthy for their teeth. Chocolate is a special concern because it contains a chemical, theobromide, which is toxic to dogs in large quantities."

Cats, dogs and other house pets may also be at risk during Halloween because of increased arrivals and departures at houses, and increased vehicle traffic.

"If you're expecting visits from any little ghosts or goblins, it's a good idea to confine your furry friends to an area where they can't slip out of the house accidentally," Bloom said.

"Keeping Halloween safe is important for the whole family, including the four-legged members."

Bloom is a diplomat of the American Board of Veterinary Practitioners, Feline and Canine Specialty.

He is an assistant adjunct professor of dermatology at the Michigan State University College of Veterinary Medicine.

'Candy Lady' seeking donations for boys at Maxey Training School

Each year children receive candy from trick or treating. Sometimes they receive so much, that parents don't know what to do with it.

Joy Landau, also known as the "Candy Lady of Oak Park" advises parents not to dispose of excess candy, but to donate it to the Joy and Lou Landaus' candy collection to be checked, then given to the Maxey Boys Training School.

Donations will give candy to young people who may otherwise get none, according to the Landaus.

This charitable project serves many purposes, Joy Landau said. It helps parents allow their children to enjoy the Halloween festivities without keeping too much candy, and provides some special treats for others.

"Charity is a very important lesson to learn and what better way for our youngsters (to learn), then to share some of their candy," Landau said.

"This would also be a wonderful project for your PTA, Scouts, clubs or neighborhoods."

The Landaus will be collecting candy until Nov. 18. People can bring it to the Landau home, 24231 Gardner, in Oak Park.

KAREN MEIER

E-mail provides food for thought

In a minute, I'll be sharing with you an E-mail letter I got. I'm sharing it because ... well, I've already shared so much with you over the years. Mostly good, some bad. Yet even with the bad I've always looked for the good. A lesson, maybe a promise, a hope. Something good. And it's there. The good is always there. Like the phoenix rising from the ashes.

And that's how it's going to be with this letter. Good will come of this.

"Dear Karen, I just finished reading your latest article, and I am humored by how you describe the public reaction to 'easy to take, ordinary life ... simple break from serious business, etc.' For a long time ... there has been a group of women who read your article and get quite upset. In fact, we have all talked about actually contacting you.

"We are working mothers, with high-powered careers, stressed to the max. We are the moms that use the 'nasty words' at gymnastics practice because we've been running on a bagel and Coke since 7:45 a.m. ... have a run in our hose, a broken nail, no milk in the fridge, a kid who needs a seven-page book report typed that evening, and we haven't done laundry in 12 days. Some of us have husbands, some of us do not, our reasons for our careers are very diverse, we love our families as much as you ... we just vent in a different way ... but for sure, I can tell you we find no humor in your attempt to hold on to the 'Americana' life of the past.

I've seen you out in public ... your young children looked unkept, runny noses, dirty diapers and improperly dressed. In fact, you were not put together so well yourself. This was even at a school event where every mom does her best to make her kids proud of her. Instead, your younger children were so distracting, no one could concentrate on your son's presentation and everyone seated around you prayed that your toddler wouldn't wipe his nose in their lap.

"Which leads me to another thought ... all of us working moms really got upset at how you tried to present to the world what a great blessing having your last 'special needs' child was. It appears to us you weren't able to keep up with

Storybooks have reader as the 'star'

■ Deborah Dodge was looking for a business she could operate out of her home. An ad in the newspaper provided the answer and today she spends her time making personalized children's books.

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

Call it fate. Call it karma. When Deborah Dodge was looking for a business opportunity, she found it in the classifieds.

A dental assistant who had taken time off because of an illness, she was ready to go back to work, but wasn't sure what she wanted to do.

"It was one of those things like what do I want to be when I grow up," the Livonia resident said. "I got sick and took 1 1/2 years off and got spoiled, so I thought about what I could do at home. I found the ad in business opportunities.

"It just sounded right and felt right when I went over to her house."

The right is her Star-Shine Creations, a Create-A-Book business she purchased in August from a fellow Livonia resident. For $14.95 (plus sales taxes and $2 shipping), Dodge will create a children's story book that features the reader as its "star."

With the help of computer program, she inserts such pertinent information about the child as his or her name, nickname, hometown and the names of three friends or relatives.

The computer inserts the information at appropriate spots in the story line, prints it out on pages that are assembled with colored illustrations and coordinating hard cover she gets from the Hefty Publishing Company, the sole owner of the Create-A-Book trademark.

In addition to the personalized story, there's a dedication page and a sticker that displays a photograph of the "star" of the book.

"I've always been interested in children and I like that this is something special for kids," Dodge said. "The price is reasonable and it's personalized for that child.

"I did a few for relatives and the kids were delighted."

The personalized children's books are the brainchild of John and Rita Hefty, who founded the Create-A-Book company in 1980. John created the software while Rita wrote the stories.

The business evolved into Hefty Publishing Company in 1993 with the merger of Create-A-Book Inc. and their second publishing company, Presto Print Books. Hefty is the largest publisher of personalized books with more than 80 titles.

Her selection includes books about Christmas, Hanukkah, fishing, camping, the beach, sports and birthdays. There also a McGruff safety for children in the third through fifth grade and a "My School Fun Book" that includes the names of the child's teacher and school and has activities that can be done with a parent.

New to the line is the "Baby's Create-A-Book," the story of the child's birth. It comes in four versions – standard mother and father, adopted, single parent and Christian.

Dodge also is doing personalized letters at $2 each from Santa Claus – both naughty and nice – and letters for Easter and Hanukkah.

Owning a business isn't something new to the Dodge family. Husband David is a partner in Pyramid Pavers and son Scott, who is studying business at Schoolcraft College, started a lawn maintenance and landscaping business when he was 16.

Daughter Katie, a junior at Livonia Churchill High School, has dreams of being an actress, and has helped her mother with Star-Shine.

"David was supportive, but he was skeptical at first," Dodge said. "I think my son thought I'd flipped my lid, but when he saw the stuff, he was amazed."

The amazement is how easy it is to manufacture the books. While Dodge tells customers there's a 10-day turnaround time for orders, it takes all of 10 minutes to print and assemble a book. Once the pages are printed, assembled and cut to fit the book, they are stapled between two sheets of sticky-backed paper that are attached to the inside covers.

While Dodge could have bought a Create-A-Book franchise, purchasing the established business was Pre-planning one's cemetery arrangements is an important part of estate planning — a practical and loving thing to do for your family. Leaving an important decision like this to one's spouse or children places a burden on them — something no one needs during a time of stress. the care of the ones you already had.

"One of the woman in our group has raised a handicapped child, she has a special education background ... her response to your article on that topic was, 'This lady is trying to convince herself that this is something special, she doesn't have a clue ... this will take its toll on the whole family.'

"Now, you have probably never thought about how your article affects women like us. We are empowered females, assertive, aggressive and on quests for various reasons. We love our children and our families, but we don't live solely for them. We have other missions in life. In fact, we view your lifestyle as outdated, that is probably why we can't relate.

"When I was a kid, my mom didn't work, she had as many kids as you, we were all clean and neat, behaved well and you could eat off her floor. Plus, my mom always looked pretty.

Today, she marvels at the hours I put in to my business, how often I travel, how well-behaved and independent my kids are and is pleased that I have a lovely home with no housekeeper. She tells me I am lucky to have a freedom she never had ... a career where I know I can always take care of myself and my children.

■ ... I'll do as the letter writer suggests – use her words as food for thought. Which means having to think about stuff like divisiveness, prejudice, intolerance, materialism, self-aggrandizement, and whatever else you or I uncover.

"So Karen, this is food for thought for you. Everything you write is not cute, sweet, funny and full of universal family themes as you may think. You have neglected and even offended a segment of your sisters ... we don't just run with the wolves ... we are the alpha females ... leaders of the pack.

"We are the female lawyers and advocates who will help you someday plan for your special child, we are the doctors and therapists who will help him when he is ill ... we are the directors of agencies and financial institutions that every family needs ... and yet, we're still moms and wives ... we swear when we need to vent ... we never go out in public without makeup, and we buy our donations to the school bake sale at Kroger!"

This letter's unsigned.

The meanness in it goes deep, much deeper than the bitter, brittle personal attacks. And the meanness is so wide-ranging. And destructive. But I'm almost out of room today.

So, there'll be a series of columns – "The Phoenix Series." In it, I'll do as the letter writer suggests – use her words as food for thought. Which means having to think about stuff like divisiveness, prejudice, intolerance, materialism, self-aggrandizement, and whatever else you or I uncover.

But you know, in doing that, in thinking and talking and writing, we'll be able to move up and away from these smoldering ashes. And the phoenix will take wing.

You'll see.

Write, call, E-mail. I'm listening.

less costly and came with an established customer list. But she's found word-of-mouth is "tremendous" for the books.

"My sister-in-law told the people she worked with about the business, then took in a couple of forms and it snowballed," she said. "There's just a tremendous word-of-mouth with this business.

"I told friends about this and many had heard of it and even purchased books for their kids when they were younger."

But she isn't relying on only word-of-mouth. She's looking to capture some of the holiday gift-giving through a few craft shows and is hoping to get the baby book in hospital gift shops.

"I have real good feelings about this," Dodge said. "I know it's something I would do, especially with the new mother thing. I know I would do that.

"I have to think in terms of what would draw my interest, if I was out Christmas shopping and this draws me."

People interested in more information about the personalized books or to place orders can call Deborah Dodge at (313) 422-1488.

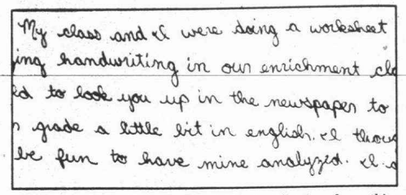
LORENE GREEN



Dear Ms. Green,

My class and I were doing a worksheet on analyzing handwriting in our enrichment class. We were told to look you up in the newspaper to help out our grade a little bit in English. I thought it would be fun to have mine analyzed. I am a 12- year-old female. I go to Our Lady of Good Counsel school. I am right handed. I would like to know what you think about my handwriting. Thank you a lot.

A. M.,
Plymouth

First of all let me say that the handwriting of young people often changes along with the personality so I rarely select it to analyze in my column.

However, since your handwriting is very good in that each and every word is clear and easily read, I am going to make an exception. Also, I hope it is not too late to show your teacher that you are quite a mature young girl.

You are conscientious and dependable. In addition, you are obedient to your teachers, parents and others in positions of authority.

You seek to get along with others in a harmonious manner.

You are probably a loyal and faithful friend.

You are organized and know how to use your time well. You can do work that requires precision and accuracy. You are careful to see that all details are handled. You don't waste time on unimportant things and you leave as little as possible to chance.

Determination is a positive and strong part of your personality. Once you start on a task or goal, you can be counted upon to finish it.

You are not a wishy-washy person. When you make up your mind, you can be rather decisive.

Security is important to you. You need to know you are useful and accepted in your own way of doing things. You also need support and assurances of love. The opportunity to express yourself and your feelings without anyone putting value judgments on how you say or do things is also needed.

You appear to be open-minded and tolerant of the opinions and/or ideas of those around you. Most of the time you conform to a socially accepted code of behavior.

Seemingly, you are more reticent than talkative. You may be feeling a little stress at this particular time.

Your thinking pattern is sequential and methodical. When you learn something new, your memory carefully retains it. You dislike being rushed or having to meet pressure deadlines. In emergency situations, however, you can be calm and unemotional on the outside.

I think you probably find enjoyment in music. Aptitude for it may also be yours.

Have you ever considered making a collection of something that you like a great deal? You might find this a most rewarding hobby.

The paraph under your signature is unusual for one so young. If original and not copied from someone you admire, it would suggest self-confidence.

If you would like your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please write a few paragraphs about yourself, using a full sheet of white, unlined paper and writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and signature are all helpful. Due to the volume of mail, personal replies are not possible. However, objective feedback is welcome.

Parents can find help, info at 'Celebrate Families'

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Asking for emotional, psychological or financial help can be an intimidating experience.

Interested in helping families before their problems get out of hand, the Child Abuse Prevention Council of Out-Wayne County (CAPCo) decided to make it easy on agencies' potential clients by hosting the "Celebrate Families" fair Saturday, Oct. 26, at Wonderland Mall in Livonia.

"Instead of calling someone from the phone book or hearing about it from a friend and not really knowing what it's like, they will be able to talk directly with a staff person about what they do, or how much it costs, how to get the service," said Sandra Murphy, executive director of CAPCo. "The idea is I think it's a little less intimidating and a little less formal. The mall is just a busy place on the weekends and we thought that this would give people the opportunity to informally just pick up something then they could call, if they wanted to.

"Plus if they're having to deal with a problem and don't want to do it when other family members are around this will give them the opportunity."

"CelebrateFamilies" is an annual family resource fair that the Child Abuse Prevention Council coordinates at Wonderland Mall. The fair will feature booths staffed by volunteers and employees of health care systems, human service agencies, volunteer agencies, churches and schools, she explained.

Murphy's hope for the fair is that while it will help people, it will also boost area organizations' number of volunteers, foster parents and mentors.

"All of these agencies are focused on family issues, parenting issues and helping to create healthy families; that's sort of the underlying tone," she said. "That's why we call it 'Celebrate Families' because we want it to be upbeat, and we want it to be positive.

"Our feeling is that there certainly are enough negative things that we read about and see every day that we need to start focusing on the positive things that are very much a part of what we do, that there are healthy families."

Besides the presence of area agencies, "Celebrate Families" will host a guest appearance by TC Bear, the mall's mascot, who will lead sing-alongs with children at 11 a.m., 1, 3 and 5 p.m. in the center court.

"The mall has been very supportive," Murphy said. "They are providing entertainment throughout the day in the center court area. The whole idea is it would be a place where the kids can go, although they're to be supervised, that it would give them something fun to do at the mall. Then moms and dads after the concert would be able to walk around and look at the displays."

Sandra Murphy
–Child Abuse Prevention Council

The Child Abuse Prevention Council of Out-Wayne County is a private non-profit organization that services Western Wayne County and the Downriver area. Its mission is to prevent child abuse and neglect through community education programs and public awareness.

The organization is also a designated council for the Children's Trust Fund, a checkoff on the state income tax form.

"Part of what we attempt to do is to promote the checkoff by getting more people to do it, and to help agencies to develop prevention programs and then get them funding from the checkoff," Murphy said. "We know that for every $10 we spend on treatment for families that are already in trouble, we can spend $1 on prevention and have a greater impact on what we're really trying to do.

"Our goal is to prevent child abuse by trying to get more programs to help get families before they get over the edge and become terribly dysfunctional."

One of those programs is "Be a Hugger, Not a Slugger," a parent education program partially funded by Target. It is offered for free through area agencies.

"It helps provide information for parents on alternatives to hitting, slapping or shaking their children; it's aimed at the average parents who's trying to do the best job they can managing their children without using corporal punishment," Murphy said.

Through "Celebrate Families" and other programs, CAPCo helps to make families functional.

"Of late I've heard people use the word diversity to describe families, not just diversity in terms of race or culture, but diversity in terms what makes up a family – one parent, two parents, three kids, six kids, special needs children, grandparents raising children," she added. "Whatever they define as family in their family we have to be really be focused on positive things for family and how we can help families be the best they can be."

The Child Abuse Prevention Council of Out-Wayne County, located at 30000 Hiveley in Inkster, is seeking volunteers for the following positions: human resource committee member, finance committee member, education and training committee member, special events assistant, media and communications assistant, literature distribution assistant, public speaker on parenting programs, clerical, bulk mailers, resource materials librarian, office assistant and receptionist. For more information, call (313) 721-5901.

Brides-To-Be Brings Together Everything for a Wedding

Many people fantasize about weddings. Some actually have them. But it's impossible to make a living fantasizing about weddings — or is it?

"Brides-to-Be was a fantasy for me," said Cyd LaChiusa, who owns the leading bridal show company in Michigan. "When I started the business 18 years ago, no one even knew what a bridal show was. Brides-to-Be created the whole business."

Cyd with four lovely Brides-To-Be

Before she started the company, LaChiusa was working in advertising and promotions, which provided a natural lead-in.

Her company produces 25 shows a year all over metropolitan Detroit. Between 60 and 100 wedding-related businesses set up booths and brides are able to browse, comparing products and prices. Typically, around 600 people attend each show.

The biggest show of the year is in January in Dearborn, where some 4,000 guests come to see over 250 exhibitors.

She tries to schedule several photographers at each show, from the inexpensive to the extreme high end. Limousines, balloons, cakes, catering, flowers, ice sculptures, and, of course, wedding gowns and tuxedos are all among the products and services represented. Visitors can even find such exotic items as the swans from "Father of the Bride." Each visitor also receives a free "Brides-To-Be" bridal directory.

A big change from the early days is that brides are much more price conscious than they used to be.

"Moms and dads used to pay for the wedding," she said. "Now, you see more working women attending the shows and they're very aware of costs, of services, of what the money will buy."

To fill the need, three shows a year are "Super Sales" where everything is discounted.

LaChiusa added a new division three years ago: Babies-To-Be, which holds two shows annually. About 2,000 people come to the shows.

She is also planning to expand geographically into Indiana and Ohio.

The Brides-To-Be office is located at 36000 Moravia, Suite B, and can be reached at (810) 790-5500. The office is open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and callers can request lists of upcoming shows and a free bridal directory.

Volunteers talk about health

Breast cancer can occur in women of all ages. It's the leading cause of death in women between the ages of 40 and 50 and often has no obvious symptoms – no pain, no preceptible lumps, nothing. However, it can be developing.

One goal of the Barbara Ann Karmanos Cancer Institute is to detect breast cancer early, when it's most curable.

During October, Breast Health Awareness Month, the institute's West Region Office, serving west areas like Livonia and Plymouth and Downriver, is highlighting its speaker program for early cancer detection.

The regional office provides breast health awareness speakers for any size gathering in any setting, from a small group in a private home to larger groups in a church, work place or senior citizen center. The office will tailor the program to the group.

The speakers, most often breast cancer survivors, address groups on health education and awareness, encouraging they follow the guidelines of breast health.

The recommendations include monthly breast self-examinations starting at age 20, yearly clinical breast examinations by a health care professional and screening mammograms according to national guidelines.

The number of breast cancer deaths can be reduced by 30 percent, if women would follow these guidelines, according to the institute.

Olga Cameron, a nurse from Livonia and a 19-year breast cancer survivor, serves as a volunteer speaker for the organization. She stresses the importance of the breast health guidelines for early detection of cancer.

Her mission, through education and awareness, is for women to take responsibility for their own good health, to become breast health care advocates and to contribute to the control of breast cancer.

Cameron addresses diet, refers participants for further information and uses a follow-up program as part of her presentations.

She also works as a volunteer for the American Cancer Society with their Reach to Recovery program.

Her message is important since the lifetime probability of breast cancer among American women is about one in eight.

At age 40, the chances of developing the disease are one in 217; by age 50, one in 50; by age 60, one in 24, and by age 85, one in nine.

Breast cancer is the most commonly diagnosed cancer in women, and is second only to lung cancer as the leading cause of female cancer death.

This year alone, 180,000 American women will be diagnosed with breast cancer. That's 2 493 per day, 21 per hour or one new case diagnosed every three minutes.

Breast cancer can kill, but it also can be successfully treated, if diagnosed early enough.

"For women diagnosed with the disease, proper screening will dramatically increase their chances for survival and cure," said Dr. Cheryl Grigorian, director of the Barbara Ann Karmanos Cancer Institute"s Berkley Breast Center. "Breast cancer, when detected early, is more than 90 percent curable."

The Karmanos Cancer Institute is one of the nation's leading cancer research, treatment, education and outreach centers. To request as speaker, call the West Region Office at (313) 561-8880.

Cancer study needs participants

Researchers at Detroit's Barbara Ann Karmanos Cancer Center are looking for women to participate in a study that may answer the question: can breast cancer be prevented?

The Breast Cancer Prevention Trial, established in 1992, is an international effort to determine whether the drug tamoxifen can prevent breast cancer.

Tamoxifen has already proven effective in the treatment of breast cancer to prevent recurrence in women already diagnosed with the disease. It is the most commonly prescribed cancer medication in the world.

To be eligible, women must be 35 or older, with a family history of breast cancer or a personal history of benign breast biopsies. Participants will receive either the drug or a placebo (a pill containing no drugs).

For more information, call Erica Anderson or Ann Marie Ferris at (800) 527-6266.

College standouts

•Kalamazoo College's women's soccer team is is off to an outstanding start to its season with a 10-1-1 overall record and a 6-1-1 mark (through Oct. 18) in the Michigan Intercollegiate Athletic Association.

Among those who have helped the Hornets reach those lofty marks are Andrea Sudik, a freshman midfielder from Canton (Plymouth Salem HS), and Lisa Bares, a sophomore midfielder from Plymouth (Salem HS).

Through 12 games, Sudik has two goals and four assists, a total of eight points. Bares has one goal for two points.

•Bowling Green State opened its hockey season last weekend, and the good news for Bob Petrie was that he played.

Petrie, a senior goalie from Canton, was the Falcons' starter last year until suffering a groin injury in December. The injury proved more serious than at first believed, and Petrie ended up sitting out the remainder of the season.

Indeed, his availability for the start of this season was in doubt. He did, however, split time in goal with sophomore Mike Savard in both games last weekend -- a 9-0 victory over the University of Toronto and a 7-2 triumph over Ohio State, both at BGSU.

Petrie made 11 saves in the win over Toronto and four against the Buckeyes, but surrendered both goals.

The Falcons play at Central Collegiate Hockey Association foe Lake Superior State this Friday and Saturday.

•Jill Mellis, a junior on Oakland University's women's swim team from Canton (Plymouth Canton HS), was one of three double-winners in individual events as the Lady Pioneers registered a victory in the Pioneer Fall Classic last weekend at OU.

Mellis' wins came in the 50-yard and 100-yard breaststroke events. OU is one of the top contenders for the NCAA Division II championship.

Lions, Steelers post wins

•The Canton Lions' varsity football team thwarted a late drive by the Farmington Rockets to post a 20-16 win Sunday.

The Lions scored first and maintained the lead throughout the game, but the Rockets never gave up. A 56-yard run by Brandon Ellison on the Lions' first possession gave them a 6-0 lead, and an interception by Russell Scott set up a Scott Disher TD run that increased that margin to 12-0.

The Rockets scored before the half was over, however, and converted the two-point try to make it 12-8 at the break. Ellison again broke loose to start the second half, racing 60 yards before being stopped at the 12. Scott eventually scored and Disher got the two-point conversion to make it 20-8.

The Rockets got a TD and two-pointer to trim the Lion lead to 20-16, then mounted a fourth-quarter drive that covered 50 yards before the Lions stopped them to post the win.

The Lions' junior varsity wasn't so successful, losing 14-6 to the Rockets. Their only touchdown came on a Reggie Joyner run, set up by a 30-yard pass completion from Scott Hewitt to Michael Parmilee. David Reeser, Bill Pitt and Parmilee led the defense.

The Lions' freshman team posted its third-consecutive shutout, beating the Rockets 20-0. Chris Drabicki scored two touchdowns and David Thomas tossed two TDs to lead the offense. Drabicki scored on a 5-yard run and a 15-yard pass from Thomas. Thomas also tossed a 21-yard scoring pass to Nathan Rzeppa. Tommy Freeman, Gabe Parmilee and Brandon Kilgore paced the defense.

•The Plymouth-Canton Steelers's varsity excelled on both sides of the ball in besting the Garden City Chargers, 22-0 Saturday.

The onslaught started with a 25-yard Chris Hardy-to-Charlie Haeger touchdown pass. Hardy scored the next TD on an 18-yard run, and Brad LaVallee tossed a 42-yard scoring pass to Chad Goethe for the final score.

The Steelers' junior varsity wasn't as successful, falling 8-0 to the Chargers.

The freshmen Steelers improved to 4-3 with a 19-6 win. Brandon Mancini had two interceptions to lead the Steeler defense, returning one 37 yards for a TD. Other touchdowns were scored on runs by Dylan Tobin from 4 yards out and Brandon Hoard.

Wanted: soccer goalie

A new Little Caesars premier girls indoor soccer team needs a goalie. The team's goalie suffered an injury, so a replacement is needed.

Any goalie with a birthdate between Aug. 1, 1980 and July 31, 1981 can apply. Also, anyone qualified with birthdates between Aug. 1, 1981 and July 31, 1982, or Aug. 1, 1979 and July 31, 1980 will be considered.

No cost is involved. Please call (313) 464-9114.

Hoop champs

Nick Cabauatan, Scott Discher and Steve Wiessenstien combined to win their division at the Our Lady of Good Counsel 3-on-3 basketball tournament in Plymouth last weekend.

In a best-of-three games final, the trio won 11-6, and 13-11. Cabauatan attends West Middle School; Discher and Wiessenstien go to Lowell MS. All three are eighth graders.

Madonna to join WHAC by next year

BY C.J. RISAK

COLLEGE NEWS

Another piece to the athletic puzzle has been fit into place for Madonna University -- and this is a big, big piece.

The current schools in the Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference have voted in favor of allowing Madonna to join the conference. The Fighting Crusaders will officially join the WHAC July 1, 1997.

The WHAC, an NAIA conference, currently has six members: Aquinas, Spring Arbor, Cornerstone, Concordia, Siena Heights and Tri-State (Ind.). Madonna is the first addition to the conference since its creation in 1992.

"I think we'll add to the strength of the WHAC, and I think they realize that," said Madonna athletic director Ray Summers. As for what this will do for Madonna, Summers said: "It should really help us become more centered in Michigan NAIA sports, and it gives us a conference identity."

Madonna, which has been competing in the NAIA as an independent, plays all the WHAC members anyway, since all of them compete at the same level and all but Tri-State are located in Michigan.

Gaining admittance has not been easy. Since adding men's soccer in 1994, Madonna has offered enough sports (six -- men's and women's basketball, baseball, softball and volleyball are the others). But it took three tries, in consecutive years, for Madonna to be accepted.

Part of the problem was that other conference members thought there was an inequity in how much money per student-athlete Madonna offered, compared to what WHAC members alloted.

As it turned out, it proved to be more a matter of how that figure was calculated.

Also, there was some concern with Madonna's past athletic history,

Chiefs eliminate Salem

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR

A high school career was on the verge of ending. With it, Matt Ammons -- a Plymouth Canton midfielder -- would take a scoreless streak that extended back to his sophomore year.

Or so Canton coach Don Smith thought. But then again, with less than five minutes remaining in a 1-1 match against arch-rival Plymouth Salem, a game that would end one team's season, Smith wasn't really spending too much time thinking about Ammons and his scoreless streak.

He had other matters to occupy him. Like what to do about a suddenly revived Salem team, which had scored the game-tying goal with 13:16 left in Wednesday's district semifinal at Canton and had since dominated play. That string of dominance was now nearing the10-minute mark.

So what would Smith do -- especially if the match went to sudden-death overtime with the Rocks in control?

His concern proved to be inconsequential. Jason Bennett, who had just returned to the game after spending a mandatory 10 minutes on the bench for drawing a yellow card, struck a hard drive on a free kick just inside Salem's side of midfield.

Ammons, who plays basketball for Canton and stands 6-foot-5, outleapt Salem's defenders and headed the ball from 18 yards.

It was perfectly placed, over Salem keeper Andres Lopes and into the net with 3:33 left, giving the Chiefs a 2-1 victory and a berth in the state district final against the Novi-South Lyon winner at 1 p.m. Saturday at Canton.

"If you wanted to get one before you left, that was the one to get," Smith yelled to Ammons after the game. "It was the best one you could have gotten."

Mind you, the last two years, in whatever district Salem and Canton have been assigned, the winner has reached the state championship game -- and won.

The way the Chiefs played against Salem, they could be that type of team. They haven't lost in 13 games (a 13-2-4 record).

Then again, Salem might have been that type of team, too. The talent was certainly there; what the Rocks were lacking against Canton was a finishing touch.

They often managed to get the ball into position, but couldn't put a shot on net. Perhaps what happened in the first half to Brent Mullin was prophetic; a ball,deflected and bouncing free, ended up on Mullin's foot, six yards in front of the Canton goal with only a falling-down Ben Davis, the Chiefs' keeper, in between.

Mullin somehow shot wide.

"I think that would have really got us going," said Salem coach Ed McCarthy, ending his first year with a 13-4-2 mark.

"We just never seemed to have the personnel in the right spots to finish, and that's something we've done well all year. But Canton really played well, I've got to give them credit."

After Mullin's miss, Canton countered. A minute later, Mike Bennett took a pass from Nick Wright and drilled a shot past Lopez for the game's first marker, coming with 11:39 left in the opening half.

It was back-and-forth for most of the second half, with no change in the score until, with 13:16 left, a Brett Konley corner kick reached Mullin, and he made up for his earlier miscue by bouncing the ball to Ryan Konley, who did finish it to tie the match.

Salem was in control after that, but, as Smith noted: "They do that. (Salem) always has good touches at midfield, they'll put 15 good passes together. But it won't do you any good if you can't finish."

On Wednesday, the Chiefs finished -- they finished Salem.

A big win: Canton broke a 1-1 tie with a late goal by Matt Ammons, something the Chiefs have done all-too-often this season. The win puts them in the district final.

Whalers stung by Sting

A chance to gain ground on the second-place Sarnia Sting slipped away from the Detroit Whalers Sunday, when the Sting stung the home team with four third-period goals in posting a 4-2 victory.

Combined with Saturday's 4-4 tie with the Oshawa Generals, also at Compuware Arena, the Whalers fell to 4-6-1. They are in third place in the Ontario Hockey League's West Division with nine points, trailing Sarnia (7-1-1, 15 points) and the first-place Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds (9-2-1, 19 points).

Detroit had the early lead against Sarnia, getting a first-period goal from Julian Smith at the 14:14 mark, with assists going to Randy Fitzgerald and Eric Gooldy.

The Sting tied it on a power-play score -- their first three goals were on the power play -- by Wes Mason at the 4:07 mark of the third period. The Whalers resumed the lead four minutes later, when Sergei Fedotov netted his first goal of the season, a power-play marker from Steve Wasylko and Mark Cadotte.

The Sting, however, took command after that, getting another goal from Mason and two more from Jon Sim and Todd Miller in the final seven minutes of the game.

Robert Esche was in goal for Detroit; he made 30 saves. Patrick Desrochers had 23 saves in the net for Sarnia.

Saturday's battle against Oshawa was a back-and-forth struggle throughout, with Detroit getting a goal from Smith with 7:32 remaining in the game to knot it at 4-4. Jesse Boulerice and Fitzgerald assisted.

Oshawa (6-5-1, 13 points in the East Division) opened the scoring at the 12:40 mark of the first period with a goal from Dan Hindte. Detroit tied it less than four minutes later, Harold Druken netting it with assists from Chad Cavanagh and Andrew Taylor.

The Whalers took the lead in the second period on a goal by Taylor, with Druken and Cavanagh assisting, but their lead lasted just 1:15 before the Generals re-tied the game with a goal by Marty Wilford.

Then it was the Generals taking the lead on Wilford's second goal of the game, a power play with 2:08 left in the second period. Detroit tied it again on Jesse Boulerice's goal (Fitzgerald assist) before the Generals set the stage for Smith's third-period dramatics, taking a 4-3 lead on Ryan Lindsay's goal.

Esche made 26 saves in goal for Detroit, while Oshawa's Mark Cairns made 28.

The rivalry between Sarnia and Detroit (Sarnia leads the eight-game series, 2-1) continues Friday when the Whalers travel to Sarnia. On Saturday, the Belleville Bulls visit Compuware Arena for a 7:30 p.m. game, then the Windsor Spitfires come to Compuware for a 6 p.m. contest on Sunday.

PCA runners jolt conference rivals

Plymouth Christian Academy won its first ever Michigan Independent Athletic Conference boys cross country title Tuesday in surprising fashion at Auburn Hills Oakland Christian.

The Eagles, who had a .500 record in dual meets this season, finished with 35 points, edging out Bloomfield Hills Roeper 41 and Oakland Christian 44.

"Coming into the meet, I thought one of four teams could've won the title because of the parody in the league," said PCA coach Steve Bauslaugh, now in his 15th season at the school. "We came in second a few times, but this is the first time we've come in first and it feels good."

The key to the victory was that all five PCA runners ran their personal best times.

Leading the way was junior Art Graf, who crossed the finish line second in 18:21, 45 seconds behind Roeper's Kevin Watkins who took first.

Other PCA finishers were senior Mike Kimpan in seventh (19:01), junior Matt Smith in ninth (19:32), senior Dan Maier in 13th (21:46) and Zack Parton in 14th (21:46).

"The team peaked at the best possible time," Bauslaugh said. "Matt ran way over his head and Dan and Zack ran about a minute faster than they ever have."

Rocks qualify for state; Canton splits

SWIMMING

In a four-day span, Plymouth Salem's swim team came very close to getting all it had hoped for.

At last Saturday's MISCA meet, an event for the sole purpose of qualifying girls for the state finals, all three Salem relay teams bettered qualifying standards and four individuals did the same.

On Tuesday, the Rocks hosted Dearborn. They came away with a dual-meet victory again -- their fifth in six meets -- by a 110-76 margin.

Nine of 12 firsts in the Dearborn meet went to Salem.

Individual-event winners were Audrey Hala in the 200-yard freestyle (2:02.98); Kathy Kelly in the 50 free (26:21); Michelle Wallon in diving (178.50 points); Yvonne Lynn in the 100 butterfly (1:03.86); Kellyann Williams in the 100 free (56.81); Lori McKay in the 100 backstroke (1:07.45); and Katie Bonner in the 100 breaststroke (1:16.14).

The Rocks also won two of the three relays. Lynn, Bonner, McKay and Kelly combined for a first in the 200 medley (1:57.74), and Williams, Lynn, Sarah Rogers and McKay teamwned for a win in the 400 free (3:55.31).

Last Saturday's MISCA meet, from several standpoints, was of even greater importance than Tuesday's dual, and Salem coach Chuck Olson was pleased with the results.

"We swam real good, real fast," he said. "We just swam real well."

In the relays, Lynn, Bonner, McKay and Kelly easily made the state cut (which is 1:57.09) when they finished fourth in 1:54.18, a new Salem varsity record. Kelly, Carrie Dzialo, Williams, and Lindsay Hartz finished sixth in the 200 free relay (1:43.16) and qualified (cut: 1:44.49).

And in the 400 free relay, the team of Williams, Dzialo, Hala and Lynn reached 3:46.59, far better than the state cut (3:51.59) and nearly two seconds better than their previous best, while placing seventh.

In individual events, Lynn set the pace by setting two varsity records in bettering qualifying standards. Lynn was ninth in the 200 individual medley (2:18.05; cut is 2:18.99) and fourth in the 100 back (1:00.30; cut is 1:03.49).

Also, both Kelly (25.62) and Williams (25.37, ninth) topped the state cut (25.69) in the 50 free.

"I'm very happy with the way the girls swam," concluded Olson.

There were disappointments, of course -- the biggest belonging to Hala, who twice missed qualifying for state in the 500 free by the narrowest of margins. She finished second against Dearborn in 5:27.40, and was clocked in 5:27.63 at the MISCA meet. Qualifying is 5:27.39.

The Rocks swim at North Farmington Thursday.

Brighton nips Canton

By the time the last event of the meet -- the 400-yard free relay -- came around, Plymouth Canton didn't have much of a chance to beat host Brighton Tuesday.

The Chiefs didn't have to just win the event. They had to capture the top two places.

It didn't happen, and Canton lost 94.5-91.5. The defeat left the Chiefs with a 4-6 overall dual-meet record.

There were all sorts of "if onlys" that could have changed the outcome of the meet. The biggest: Canton diver Lisa Sabina hit the board during warm-ups. Although not injured seriously, she was unable to compete.

Canton took fourth and fifth in diving; a second would have been enough to win them the meet.

Meagan Dowd won two individual events for the Chiefs: the 200-meter individual medley (2:47.55) and the 100-meter backstroke (1:16.68).

Other winners were Teri Hanson in the 100-meter freestyle, whose time (1:02.35) -- when converted to yards -- bettered the state qualifying cut (56.07; cut is 56.09); and the 400-meter free relay team of Jaclyn Bernard, Angie Frost, Sue Fanning and Donna Logsdon (4:35.59).

Last Thursday, the Chiefs splashed past Walled Lake 109-77 at Walled Lake Western.

Dowd, Kate Jackson, Hanson and Amy Sonnanstine won the 200 medley relay (2:03.52), and Hanson, Frost, Fanning and Dowd teammed for a first in the 400 free relay (3:57.70).

Individual winners for Canton were Hanson in the 50 free (26.19) and 100 fly (1:02.09), Dowd in the 200 IM (2:28.76) and 100 back (1:06.89); Frost in the 100 free (59.36); and Jackson in the 100 breaststroke (1:19.43).

On Thursday, Canton hosts Northville at 7 p.m.

SOCCER

Plymouth Canton's boys soccer team squeezed by Northville, 1-0, Monday night in opening district action in the Michigan High School Athletic Association tournament.

"We didn't play too well," Chiefs' coach Don Smith said, "and Northville played real well."

Canton took a 12-2-4 record into Wednesday's district tournament match against Plymouth Salem, 13-3-2, in a meeting that is a rarity in high school sports in that it's a home game for both teams.

Mike Bennett scored an unassisted goal for Canton with 1:16 left in the first half, stealing the ball from a defender and taking it in for the score.

"They came out real strong," Smith said. "We were just sort of sitting back, thinking we're going to take 'em easy. But they didn't let us.

"They played a good game. They didn't outplay us, but they played a good game."

Detroit CC 6, Fordson 0: Shaun Kahanec scored three goals and Tony Moucoulis added two goals and an assist, leading Detroit Catholic Central to a 6-0 Class A district quarterfinal victory Monday over host Dearborn Fordson.

Kevin Graff scored the other goal for the Shamrocks. Mike Martin had two assists, while Brad Winslow and Jeff Boogren contributed one each.

Matt Kessler and Nick Reid shared the shutout in net.

Fordson ended its season with a 7-9-1 record.

CC was 9-6-2.

Stevenson 10, Harrison 0: Livonia Stevenson invoked the 10-goal mercy rule with 10 minutes to play Monday, routing visiting Farmington Hills Harrison in a Class A district soccer opener.

The win improves the Spartans to 13-2-1 overall.

Goalkeepers Eric O'Neil and Joe Suchara shared time for the shutout.

Stevenson advances to the district championship game against Farmington (6-9-2), 4 p.m. Friday at North Farmington. Farmington eliminated North Farmington in the other first-round game on Monday, 3-2.

ON FIRE
Car fires are not as uncommon as a person might think. In fact, the National Fire Protection Association reports that there are about 331,460 vehicle fires in this country each year. Most are caused by mechanical problems, leaks, and electrical problems, all of which can be prevented with regular maintenance. Think car owners can spare themselves the frightful prospect of a car fire by having their cars checked regularly, with particular attention paid to hoses, pipes, and caps. All should be secured, in good condition, and replaced if necessary. Gasoline and other car fluids account for 42% of all car fires. As for electrical causes of car fires, do-it-yourselfers run the greatest risk of creating short circuits and malfunctions that can lead to fires. Lastly, because the exhaust system can become very hot (a catalytic converter can reach 1,100 degrees Fahrenheit), a car should not be parked over combustible material (dry leaves).
Regular maintenance can help you avoid a host of automotive problems that you can only begin to imagine; give your car the routine attention it deserves and you're more likely to be satisfied with your car's performance. At HOLIDAY CHEVROLET INC., we give personalized service to all who come to see us and use our services. You'll find our technicians are factory trained and expert in their fields. We are in the top ten CSI category compared to all other Chevy dealers. Sales: M-Th 8:30-9:00, Fr & W 8:30-6:30, F 8:30-6; Service: M-F 7-6; Parts/Body Shop: M-F 8-6. We're at 30250 Grand River (474-0500).
HINT: Should you experience a car fire, pull off the road immediately. Car fires will damage the electrical system within seconds (horn, power windows, etc.), but steering and brakes should continue to function.

Easy going – for now

Salem's superior size just too much for Franklin; Canton wrecks John Glenn

BASKETBALL

Plymouth Salem used its superior height advantage Tuesday to rout host Livonia Franklin, 47-22, in a Western Lakes Activities Association girls basketball game.

The Rocks put the game out of reach early with a 13-3 first-quarter blitz, which was extended to 23-9 by halftime. The lead increased to 36-11 entering the fourth quarter.

Andrea Pruett led Salem with 13 points and eight rebounds. Angela Sillmon recorded 13 points and seven rebounds, while Amanda Abraham had 10 points, 13 boards and four assists. Merritt Walker chipped in with nine points and eight rebounds.

"We played strong defense tonight," Salem coach Fred Thomann said. "But the height advantage we had was the key. It helped us control the boards."

Salem improved to 13-3 overall and 8-2 in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

Julie Warner and Tera Morrill scored seven points apiece for the Patriots (4-12, 2-8).

Canton 54, John Glenn 17: Every Plymouth Canton player played in Tuesday's Parents' Night victory over visiting Westland John Glenn.

The victory placed Canton in a tie for first in the WLAA with Northville, which lost to Walled Lake Central. Both teams are 9-1 in the conference. The Chiefs (14-2 overall) led 15-0 after one quarter and 24-3 at halftime.

Melissa Marzolf led Canton with 14 points and Nkechi Okwumabua added 10. Kristi Fiorenzi chipped in with eight points.

Katie Suda's 10 points paced the Rockets (0-15 overall, 0-10 in the WLAA). Glenn committed 35 turnovers to Canton's 12.

PCA 25, Roeper 19: Plymouth Christian Academy moved into sole possession of third place in the upper division of the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference Tuesday with its victory over visiting Bloomfield Hills Roeper.

The Eagles improved to 9-5 overall and 3-3 in the MIAC. The Roughriders dropped to 4-11 overall and 1-5 in the league.

PCA led from the start, taking a 6-2 lead into the second quarter and an 11-4 lead into halftime. The Eagles built their biggest lead at 19-7 entering the fourth quarter.

"The low score was reflective of the no-calls in the game," PCA coach Rod Windle said. "There was good defense played, but it was a very physical game with players being taken off the ball without any fouls called."

Sarah Sumner paced the Eagles with seven points and 11 rebounds. Sarah North's eight points led Roeper.

Agape 62, Saline Christ. 46: Sophomore guard Kim Ther scored 30 points and stole the ball seven times Monday night to lead Plymouth Agape Christian to victory over Saline Christian.

The win enabled Agape to finish its conference schedule with a 6-0 record in a season that so far stands at 11-1 overall. Saline Christian is 3-3 in the league, 3-6 overall.

Host Agape jumped off to a 10-3 lead after the first quarter and expanded it to 33-13 at halftime.

Junior center Calley Mullen scored 12 points and added 13 rebounds for the Wolverines and senior guard Jaci Ther had seven assists to go with six points.

Junior center Leia Angus led Saline Christian with 18 points and seven rebounds. Jamie Lewis had 13 points and junior guard Alicia Gaddis scored 12 while adding three assists.

Ocelots tuned up for playoffs

Three games, three shutouts. Can't ask for much more than that, can you?

Schoolcraft College men's soccer coach Van Dimitriou isn't asking for anything more -- just a continuation of the same. The Ocelots host the Region 12 Tournament this weekend, and their semifinal opponent Saturday with be Cuyahoga CC.

Now, last Saturday SC beat Cuyahoga 1-0, giving the Ocelots two regular-season wins over their Cleveland-based foe. Which won't mean a thing on Saturday.

"That's what I don't like about this system," said Dimitriou of the new playoff format. "You can beat a team twice, and you'll still have to beat them again."

And beating a team three times in a season isn't always easy. But the way the Ocelots are playing right now, they could do just that.

On Tuesday, they traveled to Kellogg CC and returned with a 5-0 victory. Billy Krips collected three of SC's goals, with both James Bossieux (from Plymouth Canton) and Garrett Maki adding a goal and an assist.

That marked three-straight shutouts for SC. On Oct. 16, the Ocelots blanked Delta CC 3-0, getting a first-half goal from David York and two second-half markers from Maki.

Which set up Saturday's match at Cuyahoga. The game was scoreless at the half, but SC broke the deadlock when Pete Lechowicz (Livonia Stevenson) converted a pass from Matt Keller. Travis Miller (Redford Catholic Central) was in goal for the shutout.

COLLEGE SOCCER

Now SC, which finished 8-6-3 overall in the regular season and 6-2 in the region, must survive this weekend's two-game trial. At 1 p.m. Saturday, Delta plays Lakeland; SC vs. Cuyahoga follows. The winners meet at 1 p.m. Sunday.

Trinity Christ. 3, Madonna 2: Madonna University's resources finally started to run low Saturday at Trinity Christian College.

On Friday, the Fighting Crusaders had ripped Purdue-Calumet 3-0, getting one goal from Scott Emert and two more from Christian Emert. But Christian Emert was red-carded, which sent him to the sideline for the remainder of Friday's match and left him there for all of Saturday's.

Complicating matters, against Trinity Christian Scott Emert was red-carded 10 minutes into the match -- which meant Madonna had to play the rest of the game with 10 players, and neither Scott nor Christian Emert could re-enter.

"We controlled most of the play and we were shorthanded most of the way," said Madonna coach Pete Alexander.

Robert Vega scored both goals, with assists going to Jerome Beeler and Seamus Rustin. Madonna had a 14-10 shot advantage.

"They had some decent opportunities," said Alexander of Trinity. "They're a good, strong team, but I think we pretty much dominated the game."

The split leaves the Crusaders with an 11-3 record.

WMU 2, SC 1 (women): Western Michigan, a first-year NCAA Division I program, dominated the action against the depleted Schoolcraft College team and came away with the win Sunday.

It was the final regular-season game for SC, which has a 6-7-2 mark.

The Broncos had a 1-0 lead at the half, but the Lady Ocelots tied it with a goal from Dawn Koontz (Plymouth Canton), the assist going to Stacy Baker (Livonia Churchill). WMU got the game-winner with 20 minutes left.

The Broncos also hit the post three times and the crossbar twice more.

SC was without Staci Muysenberg (injured ankle), Melissa Crain (red card last game) and Livonia Franklin product Lisa DeShano (sick).

WMU profitted from the performances of midfielders Kerri Verardi (Livonia Churchill) and Angela Pandoff (Livonia Stevenson) and defender Amber Rabeau (Plymouth Salem).

"They played an excellent game in the midfield," said SC coach Nikki Johnson of Verardi and Pandoff. "Those two did a lot of the work for them."

SC is now idle until the NJCAA district tournament Nov. 15-17 at DeKalb CC in Atlanta. The Ocelots have a first-round bye, but they open the tournament against the NJCAA's top-ranked team, Brevard (N.C.).

Madonna claims its Classic crown

These are the kind of tests that can wear on a team.

So far, Madonna University has handled their mid-season challenges well. The only letdown, and calling it that would certainly be debatable, was a loss at Oakland University two weeks ago.

The Lady Crusaders' perseverance was evident again last Saturday, when they hosted University of Michigan-Dearborn and Taylor (Ind.) University in the Madonna University Classic.

Each match went four sets, but each match was also a win for Madonna.

The Crusaders did away with UM-D, 13-15, 15-6, 15-5, 15-6, then handled a team expected to challenge them for the Great Lakes Region title when they beat Taylor, 15-17, 17-16, 15-3, 15-6.

Julie Martin (from Livonia Stevenson) filled a major role for Madonna, both offensively and defensively, in both matches. Against UM-D, she collected a team-best 18 kills (.548 kill average), had two service aces, 14 digs, and paced the Crusaders with two solo blocks and four block assists.

In the win over Taylor, she again led Madonna in kills (14) and blocks (three solo, eight assists).

Kelly McCausland (Redford Union) was nearly as efficient. McCausland had 17 kills, 10 digs and four blocks against UM-D, and 11 kills, three service aces and three blocks against Taylor.

Karin Sisung also was instrumental, with 12 kills (.478), two aces and 13 digs against UM-D, and nine kills, three aces and 18 digs against Taylor.

Heather Steinhelper, just returning from an ankle injury, had a team-high 32 digs in the two matches to go with 13 kills; Erin Comment had 19 digs in the Taylor match and 14 kills for the tournament; and Meg

VOLLEYBALL

Paris collected an incredible 93 assists to kills (11.6 per game) in the match.

The two wins allowed Madonna to reach the 30-win mark -- the Crusaders' record improved to 30-3.

On Tuesday, Madonna beat the University of Windsor in an exhibition match, 15-5, 15-6, 14-16, 15-10, in Windsor. McCausland had 17 kills and 15 digs; Comment had 16 digs; Martin had 15 digs; and Paris dished out 37 assists to kills.

SC sinks Delta

Schoolcraft College took advantage of its trip to Delta College to iron out some things in its lineup -- and still posted a 15-4, 15-2, 12-15, 15-4 volleyball triumph Tuesday over the winless (in conference) Pioneers.

"We altered our lineup a little bit," said SC coach Tom Teeters. "And we're still in the process of altering it. I think we're on the right track now, though."

Last Thursday, the Lady Ocelots struggled to beat Macomb CC in five games, prompting Teeters to shuffle things. Michelle McRae seemed to pick it up best; against Delta she was superb, collecting 14 kills, 18 assists to kills, five blocks, four service aces and seven digs.

Hermina Angeles totaled 11 kills, 16 digs and four aces; Yvette Sixbey (from Garden City) and Stacy Sailus had nine kills apiece, Sailus getting eight blocks; Amber Wells (Plymouth Canton) got 28 assists, eight digs and three aces; and Jamie Clark (Livonia Churchill) had eight digs and four aces.

The win pushed SC's record to 19-9 overall, 7-2 in the Eastern Conference. Delta is 0-9 in the conference.

which included dropping intercollegiate programs. That concern is no more, not with Madonna's proven success in softball, volleyball, soccer, baseball and women's basketball.

"This should embellish our program," said Summers. "And with future league expansion a definite possibility, "This will be one of the strongest (NAIA) conferences in the midwest, and in the future one of the strongest in the country."

It will also help Madonna keep costs down, with easier scheduling and less cutback in travel costs. "That's one of the downsides of being an independent," said Summers. "Over 50 percent of our budget goes for travel. When you have an implanted schedule, that will be greatly reduced."

As an independent, Madonna has been forced to qualify for post-season NAIA playoffs by going through a tournament with other independents, prior to regionals. In the WHAC, conference champions automatically qualify for post-season play.

"Everyone wants to belong to a conference," summarized Summers. "When you're an independent, it's always nebulous, obscure, who you're going to play in the post-season and where you'll play."

So it seems there are no negatives in this move. Which means it will be a major plus for Madonna, establishing it with an athletic presense.

In Garden City and Redford—

"Covering community sports is challenging."

We caught a glimpse of Steve Kowalski's sense of humor when he first told us why he enjoys doing what he is doing, "Coming home at three in the morning, paying for parking and hot dogs at the games..."

Then on a serious note he admits that it's the challenge that keeps him going, "Some of your sources are young, never been interviewed. It's fun and rewarding to do a good job."

Steve knew that when he scored only four points in Junior Varsity Basketball during his own high school days, that he had a better chance writing about sports than playing them. He's done it so well that he's received awards for it; the most recent in 1994 from the Michigan Press Association in their "top game story" category.

In Livonia and Westland—

"We have a good group of schools to cover."

When we asked Brad Emons what he enjoys most about covering community sports, he told us, "The people we deal with, from the coaches to the student-athletes, they truly appreciate the coverage—we cover a good group of schools from the smallest to the largest."

Brad began reading the major league box scores when he was still in grade school, wrote in high school and earned a degree in journalism from Franklin College in Indiana. He's been writing for your hometown newspapers since he graduated in 1977.

How does our coverage stack up? Brad says that unlike the metropolitan newspapers, "We cover a variety of prep sports and do it in-depth—both boys' and girls'. We're able to hit more than the highlights. We get to know nearly every high school coach and athletic director by their first names."

In Plymouth and Canton—

"It's real, it's serious, but it's also fun."

C.J. Risak is talking about SPORTS, of course.

When did he decide on sports reporting? "Early in my career, after being out in the real world. Sports is real, it's serious, but it's also fun."

One facet of the job C.J. especially enjoys is meeting people—the players and the coaches, "We get to know a lot of people first-hand," he said.

His enthusiasm and dedication is reflected in his writing. In 1994, he received a first place award from the industry for best sports column and second place for putting together the best sports section.

WLAA playoff offers no big challenge for Rocks, Chiefs

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

Two weeks left until we pick our next president.

Two weeks to go when we will also determine which Observerland teams are headed to the state football playoffs.

Nobody in the area, however, is a lock like Bill Clinton just yet.

On Friday, Westland John Glenn (7-0) faces a treacherous rematch with host Walled Lake Western (6-1) for the Western Lakes Activities Association crown. Glenn won the first meeting between the two teams (Sept. 13) by a 28-17 count.

The Rockets, leading Class AA-Region III, then close out their season with rival Wayne Memorial (4-3).

Farmington Hills Harrison (6-1) also has a rematch of sorts this weekend, 1 p.m. Saturday at home against Livonia Stevenson (5-2) in the second-place WLAA crossover. Harrison has edged Stevenson for the last two WLAA crowns.

Harrison then closes out its season at home against defending Class B state champion Beverly Hills-Detroit Country Day (4-2).

Another playoff possibility is Lutheran High Westland (6-1), which needs wins over Harper Woods Lutheran East (4-3) and Rochester Hills Lutheran Northwest (0-7) to beat out Deckerville (6-1) and Harper Woods (6-1) in Class C-Region IV.

GRID PICKS

Redford Catholic Central (5-2) is a longshot in Class AA-Region III, but could put itself in position with a victory this Saturday over unbeaten Dearborn Divine Child (7-0). If CC wins by two points, the Shamrocks will get a rematch with Birmingham Brother Rice in the Catholic League A-B Division championship game Saturday, Nov. 2 at the Pontiac Silverdome.

As for the prediction race, it's a dead heat as both prognosticators (yours truly and Dan O'Meara), each went 13-2 last week for an aggregate 86-19 season count.

Here is a look at this week's action.

FRIDAY'S GAMES
(all 7:30 p.m. unless noted)

Clarenceville at Hamtramck (4:30 p.m.): Hamtramck (3-4, 3-3) has been somewhat of a disappointment in the Metro Conference, but there's no doubt that Livonia Clarenceville (3-4, 3-4) can hang with the league's best. PICKS: The Cosmos can't stop Donahue Fulton, but beat the Trojans.

Trenton at Redford Union (7 p.m.): The best of the Mega-White Division, Trenton (7-0, 5-0), Class A-Region III playoff bound, takes on cellar-dweller RU (0-7, 0-5). Trenton is coming off an important win over Dearborn, 7-6. PICKS: RU can't stop quarterback Ryan Szokola and Trenton.

St. Agatha at Notre Dame Prep: The Aggies (0-7, 0-4) got ripped last weekend by Center Line St. Clement, 49-0, while Pontiac Notre Dame Prep (2-5, 1-3) pulled a Lou Holtz, losing to Waterford Our Lady of the Lakes, 20-0. PICKS: Lou Holtz saves his job at Notre Dame Prep with a Catholic League C-Section win.

Lutheran Westland at Lutheran East: The Warriors (6-1, 5-1) looked shaky in their last Friday night outing (14-13 over Clarenceville), but this team appears to be on a mission. East (4-3, 3-3), with the Bruce and Dennis Tuomi connection, is coming off a 38-23 loss to Clarenceville. PICKS: The Warriors find a way to win.

Edsel Ford at Garden City: Dearborn Edsel Ford is 5-2 overall and 3-2 in the Mega-White after a 27-7 victory last week over Taylor Kennedy. Meanwhile, GC (1-6, 1-4) earned its first win of the year against Redford Union, 19-6, as junior tailback Mike Wrobel rushed for 191 yards. PICKS: The Edsel is not quite obsolete. GC becomes the lemon.

Romulus at Wayne: The Zebras (4-3, 3-3) showed much promise winning their first four, but now find themselves in a funk after losing their last three, including a 35-14 shellacking last week by Dearborn Fordson. Romulus (1-6, 1-4) shouldn't be considered dangerous, but after losing only 21-6 to Mega-Red Division leader Wyandotte, the Eagles appear to be more than a match. PICKS: Wayne show true grit with a victory.

W.L. Central at Franklin: This is a battle of third-place divisional teams in the Western Lakes. Both have identical 4-3 records. Central coach Darrell Harper, who is harboring playoff aspirations in Class AA-Region II although nowhere to be found among the top 10 last week, cried foul when the WLAA athletic directors originally had his Vikings paired against Plymouth Canton (3-4) in the crossover. He may also realize that Franklin has looked lousy in its last two meetings. PICKS: Central maximizes its playoff points, Emons says, but O'Meara feels Patriotic.

Phy. Salem at Northville: Thanks to the grips of the Walled Lake Central people, Salem (4-3) gets a rematch with Northville (1-6), a team the Rocks barely beat in the second week, 17-14. Salem's original opponent in the crossover was rival Canton, but the WLAA A.D.'s didn't want Salem and Canton to meet in consecutive weeks. PICKS: Salem wins by more than a touchdown this time.

Farmington at Ply. Canton: Farmington (1-6) is coming off a 41-6 loss to Lakes Division champion Glenn, while Canton (3-4) lost to Western Division champ Walled Lake Western, 33-13. Confused? PICKS: It's easy pickings for Canton.

N. Farmington at Liv. Churchill: Both teams are 0-7 and this is their chance to redeem themselves. North may have the better defense, while Churchill might enjoy the advantage on offense. PICKS: Flip a coin, it says North.

W.L. Western at Westland Glenn: The two teams met in 1992 with Western taking the Western Lakes title. Glenn (7-0) has a balanced offensive attack, led by the passing of 6-foot-6 junior quarterback Justin Berent, the area's most accurate passer, and the running of Reggie Spearmon. Western relies on the Wing-T offense and a stunting defense, led by 6-4, 220-pound outside linebacker Kevin Crane. The Warriors are quick on both sides of the ball. PICKS: Emons sticks with Glenn in a cliffhanger, but O'Meara sides with Western.

SATURDAY'S GAMES
(all at 1 p.m. unless noted)

Liv. Stevenson at F.H. Harrison: The Spartans (5-2) are steadily improving, but will remain an underdog against Harrison (6-1), which is fighting for a playoff berth. Stevenson's Gade Clark ran only 13 yards away from the 1,000-yard mark. The Harrison got its passing game going last week as quarterback Kevin Bambenek riddled the Franklin secondary for 251 yards. PICKS: Harrison keeps it going.

Taylor Truman at Red. Thurston: Both teams are 4-3 overall and 3-3 in the Mega-Blue. Truman shut out Dearborn Heights Crestwood last week, 36-0, as the Hardin brothers, Wes and Mike, teamed up for three touchdown passes. Meanwhile Thurston struggled to beat last place Dearborn Heights Annapolis, 21-12. PICKS: It's a history lesson for the Eagles, the Truman Doctrine goes into effect.

Bishop Borgess vs. A.P. Cabrini at the Downriver Community Center: Borgess (2-5, 0-4) lost to playoff-bound Southgate Aquinas, 41-0, while Cabrini (2-5, 2-2) edged Detroit East Catholic last week, 9-6. Picks: Cabrini stops the Spartans.

Dbn. Divine Child vs. Redford CC (7:30 p.m. at D.H. Crestwood): Some people accused DC (7-0, 3-0) of playing a soft schedule. Huh? The Falcons played toe-to-toe with the Detroit Snooze's No. 1-ranked DePorres and beat them fair and square, 14-13. Catholic Central (5-2, 2-1) can claim a share of the Catholic League Central-West crown and get a rematch with Brother Rice by playing spoiler. PICKS: The Shamrocks don't need luck, just a little offense to beat DC.

CC still in hunt for division title, state playoffs

FOOTBALL

If overall point differential becomes the tie-breaker to decide the winner of the Catholic League Central-West Division football title, then Redford Catholic Central did itself a huge favor Saturday night.

The Shamrocks scored 41 points before halftime and went on to defeat U-D Jesuit, 48-8, at Livonia Clarenceville.

The win, coupled with Dearborn Divine Child's 14-13 upset victory over Detroit St. Martin DePorres earlier in the day, moves the Shamrocks into a second-place tie with DePorres in the Central-West with a 2-1 record.

The win also keeps alive the Shamrocks' hopes of qualifying for the Class AA playoffs as they are now 5-2 overall.

If CC beats unbeaten DC (7-0, 3-0) and DePorres (6-1, 2-1) beats Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher this weekend, the three teams will be deadlocked for first place.

If CC beats the Falcons by more than one point, the Shamrocks will qualify for the Catholic League championship game in the Prep Bowl on Saturday, Nov. 2 against Birmingham Brother Rice at the Pontiac Silverdome.

But if CC beats Divine Child by only one point, then the point differential against all teams comes into play. That's why it was important for the Shamrocks to score big against U-D.

U-D lost five fumbles and one interception, which led to five CC touchdowns.

Junior fullback Chris Dueweke scored on runs of 2, 32 and 5 yards and finished with 62 yards on six carries.

Senior Rich Deptula scored on a 2-yard run, junior Josh Christenson scored on a 4-yard run and senior James Gusoff on a 1-yard run.

Senior quarterback Greg Call completed three of nine passes for 41 yards, including a 12-yard TD pass to Jeremy Jakary.

Aaron Rock made six of seven extra point attempts, with his only miss coming after a bad snap.

The Shamrocks finished with 241 total yards.

U-D avoided a shutout when quarterback Joe Clinton threw a 7-yard touchdown pass to James Carson with 3:03 left.

A running clock is used whenever a team gets a 35-point lead in high school football. A running clock was used in this game the entire second half and part of the second quarter.

The Shamrocks ran only six plays from scrimmage after halftime.

Joe Sgroi, Nick Mastroionni, Newell Bentley, Gino DiGiandomenico and Brian Teefey had fumble recoveries for CC. Teefey and John Daguannon each had one sack. Sgroi led the Shamrocks with six tackles.

Call returned an interception 26 yards to lead to CC's first score in the first quarter.

Area veterans to make a difference with drives

To celebrate "Make a Difference Day" Saturday, the Plymouth-Canton Vietnam Veterans of America Chapter 528 will host two events.

The first is a clothing drive to collect good, wearable warm clothes _ coats, hats, gloves and blankets _ for metro Detroit homeless veterans. The clothing will be collected from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. at the Good Food Store at Ford and Lilley Roads in Canton.

There will also be boxes in the store to hold clothes donated by folks who can't come by on Saturday.

The second event is a blood drive at Canton Township Hall from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., to meet the high demand for blood during the holiday season.

The blood you donate can save a life _ maybe a member of your family or even your own, event organizers said.

Students learning how to run own businesses

The lemonade stand is passe at Pioneer Middle School.

Following a month of instruction in economic theory and the operations of a free-market economy, Pioneer students are putting theory into practice.

All nine eighth-grade social studies classes, under the direction of instructors Mary Bailey, Carole Brooks, Richard Gray, Susan VanHellemont and Sally Yentz, have been charged with setting up their own business and challenged to make a profit.

After an "interest-rate drawing," class representatives were required to make an appointment for a "loan interview" with the Bank of Newman, named for instructor Ed Newman. Loan approval required signed contracts and depended on applicants' professional appearance, decorum and financial knowledge.

Once they got their loans, classes did market surveys to test the desirability of their proposed product, gathered the necessary capital for production, calculated the probable cost and budgeted for advertising costs, which included posters, a TV advertisement, and a storefront.

Businesses include Big Cheese Nachos, the Chocolate Express, The Hot Dog Hut, Baby Burgers, Frozen Fantasy, Mickey G's Fries and Cheese, Mr. G's Tropical Freeze, Crispy Critters and The Palace of Pretzels.

MEDICAL BRIEFS

Don't shake baby

Shaking a baby, even one time, can delay normal development, result in brain damage, spinal injury, retardation and even death. Shaken Baby Syndrome is a medical term used to describe the shaking and resulting injuries sustained when infants are violently shaken. The IOF Foresters, a fraternal benefit society offering family benefits and supporter of better parenting, suggests the following tips for a crying baby:

- feed the baby slowly, burping often
- offer a pacifier as needed
- hold close and walk or rock the baby
- take the baby for a ride or put in a swing
- take a break: have someone else offer care for baby.

The first national conference on this syndrome will be held Nov. 10-12 in Utah. For more information, call (801) 399-8430.

Arthritis help

The Michigan Chapter of the Arthritis Foundation and St. Mary Hospital in Livonia are teaming up to help area residents who suffer from arthritis — a debilitating disease that affects one in seven Michigan residents.

The organization will co-sponsor a six-week Arthritis Self-Help Course from 3-5 p.m. beginning today, Oct. 24. For information or to register, call the Arthritis Foundation at (800) 968-3030.

The course will include basic information about the disease, medications, treatments, strategies for dealing with pain and other problem-solving techniques. Arthritis affects 37 million Americans of all ages, including almost 300,000 children.

One in three families are touched by the disease which strikes women nearly twice as often as men.

Free treatment offered

In recognition of Substance Abuse Awareness Month in October, Garden City Hospital is offering free alcohol or drug assessments and evaluations.

The confidential assessment is performed by experienced clinical staff. Time is available to answer questions and discuss treatment recommendations.

To schedule this free professional consultation, call (313) 458-3395.

HAP expands

Health Alliance Plan has expanded into Washtenaw and Livingston counties through the Huron Valley Physicians and Mission Health Corp. "Our agreement . . . strengthens our presence in Washtenaw and Livingston counties," said HAP president James Walworth.

"We'll be able to meet the needs of businesses with employees residing in these areas, and our members will have a greater selection of highly respected physicians and community hospitals."

The healing benefits of T'AI CHI

BY DIANE GALE • SPECIAL WRITER
STAFF PHOTOS BY JIM JAGDFELD

Watching a t'ai chi class is like stepping away from the fast-paced world outside and switching on the "slow motion" button as the students gracefully and ever so softly sway their limbs.

They look as if they're using pantomime and ballet to tell an elaborate and dramatic story. Every movement of the soft-style martial art is designed for defense, but most people who take the classes are seeking stress management and healing benefits.

T'ai chi trains the body to be loose and elastic through exercise and mediation that also used yoga techniques.

"It totally changed my life," said Barb Johnston, a student in a class offered by Botsford General Hospital.

"Five years ago I was very, very unhealthy," said Johnston, a Birmingham teacher, explaining that systemic lupus made her extremely tired and gave her severe joint pain and kidney problems.

"By doing water classes and t'ai chi I'm much calmer and I have fewer flare-ups," said Johnston who was diagnosed with the ailment 15 years ago when she was 18. "My doctor supports it (t'ai chi) 100 percent."

Help for muscles

In fact, another student in the class, Marilyn Feingold of Livonia was told by her doctor that t'ai chi might help her, too. Feingold, who has fibromyalgia, a muscle disorder, said the class is relaxing and helps her focus better during the day.

Pat Reynolds, of Redford, was drawn to t'ai chi for its meditation benefits, but he, too, has found physical relief.

"I've only been doing it for a few weeks, but before I came here I had pain that shot down my legs and they've subsided," Reynolds added.

The Chinese have been aware of t'ai chi's power since the form originated about 1,300 years ago.

It's based mostly on circular motion and flow at a smooth even tempo creating perfect balance as the weight of the body is shifted from one side to the other. When t'ai chi is perfected the student learns coordination and relaxation of the entire body.

Breathing techniques enhance lung capacity and stamina. The movements open the circulatory system and increases the return of blood from the body to the heart and eases the flow of blood from the heart to the body.

With t'ai chi's mystical and new- age aura, the Western Hemisphere has taken a lot longer to embrace the idea of using deep breathing and mental concentration to obtain harmony between mind and body. Yet, in the United States, where hard-style aerobics has taken the lead in the exercise circuit, recent medical studies are pointing to t'ai chi's benefits.

For instance, the "American Geriatrics Society" recently published reports that t'ai chi improves balance among senior citizens. Another study published in the magazine showed that t'ai chi lowers blood pressure.

"T'ai chi gets all the nutrients to the different parts of the body that need help," according to Genie Parker, who teaches the Botsford course and is a senior instructor at the Wu's T'ai Chi Chu'an Academy on 14 Mile Road in Clawson. The school also has locations in Ann Arbor and Rochester.

Relax and think

"It's not aerobic," she added. "Aerobics will take the heart and get it up to a high rate of speed. The East is suggesting you relax and pump circulation through different types of motions. The heart will beat slower, but stronger and take more blood and oxygen into the brain so you can think more clearly."

"Students relax their minds, because they have to stop thinking about everything else, because it's quite detailed," said Parker, who teaches Wu style t'ai chi, one of five t'ai chi methods, and has been practicing it for eight years. "As you learn it you don't have to think so much about what you're doing, then you can feel and enjoy it more."

People of all ages from youngsters to 90-year-olds and every walk of life are taking t'ai chi classes. Corporate managers are also bringing t'ai chi instructors, like Parker, into their buildings to help employees with stamina and concentration.

"On the west and east coasts you see a lot of t'ai chi, in the school systems, in the universities and in parks," Parker said. "Here in the middle we're just trying it."

She recommends trying several different places and teachers before you decide which t'ai chi class you want to take.

"There's a lot of bad t'ai chi around," said Parker who trains with members of the Wu family.

"There are students of students of students and they start making things up. You really have to watch out."

T'ai chi effects

As a teacher Parker sees what t'ai chi can do.

"I've seen a woman come in with arthritis in the knees and it took her about one year and a half and she walked out feeling wonderful," said Parker who immediately remembered another man who needed a cane, because he was born without a hip bone. After three years of t'ai chi he walked without an aid. Other students are dealing with depression and stress and have found relief.

"I have a student now with MS (multiple sclerosis) and we're hoping to see good results there, too," she added.

When perfected t'ai chi teaches students to remain calm under all circumstances.

"You can stay calm and centered so that whatever force comes into you, you learn to neutralize it," Parker said. "Incoming forces are not only fists and feet. It's when you've spilled your coffee and your boss is coming in the door. It teaches techniques for people to deal with situations."

One of Parker's students is Dr. Alex Green a pathologist at Botsford who introduced the idea of offering t'ai chi classes through Botsford.

"There's been some major medical studies showing the benefits of t'ai chi in regards to helping balance, stress management and overall health," said Green adding that t'ai chi has improved his health allowing him to overcome bad allergies, a lot of colds, lower back problems and stress.

"You feel an overall increase in energy and an increased feeling of well being," he said. "The medical profession is becoming more open minded. It (t'ai chi) improves overall strength and improves the immunological system.

"That's my opinion and it's the opinion of the Chinese who have been using it for more than a thousand of years."

In unison: The class moves together, with Dr. Alex Green of Botsford Hospital at front and center. Green has been doing t'ai chi for eight years.

Gophers know how to dig

EMORY DANIELS

When I first became interested in the Internet, not that long ago, the "hot" access tool was Gopher.

Developed by computer students at University of Minnesota, Gopher was a much easier and more enjoyable way to access information for many of us than Telnet or FTP. Gopher accessed sites for us using Telnet in the background, making it easy to layer down (burrowing) from one level to another until what we wanted.

The development of the World Wide Web and the introduction of Mosaic pretty much sounded the death knell for Gopher. We forget now that Gopher had only been around for about two years before the Internet went bonkers for the Web and Mosaic (soon to be supplanted by Netscape).

In the present Internet environment, Gopher is pretty much relegated to being valuable only as an archive service. Because everyone has flocked to the Web, there is no need to update Gopher sites as often when the traffic is so low.

Gopher still is functional as a means of storing research and other data so it is available when wanted. Gopher also is very functional to access books or other literature when a text-only world is quite adequate.

Among the books and other media available via Gopher of interest to Internet surfers are:

■ "The Big Dummy's Guide to the Internet" which can be reached via Gopher using the Universal Resource Locator of gopher://ftp.std.com:70/11/internet/eff

■ "The Internet Companion" at gopher://ftp.std.com:70/11/internet/companion

■ "Internet Teasers" at gopher://ftp.std.com:70/11/internet/worldteasers

■ "Zen and the Art of the Internet" at gopher://ftp.std.com:70/11/internet/zen

■ Tools for Internet Exploration at gopher://gopher.oise.on.ca:70/11/tools

A standard source of help on finding things on the 'Net is Scott Yanoff's Special Internet Connections which can be accessed at gopher://ftp.std.com:70/0R0-93390-/internet/yanoff

A more recent source I have made use of is Donna Wair, library assistant for the Law Library, Government Documents at Vanderbilt University. I get leads from her via E-mail, including most of the ones used in this column.

By the way, we often end up at Gopher sites without our knowledge. Many links on a Web site will point to a Gopher site and the browser takes us directly to the targeted site without "burrowing."

Halloween sites

■ Booville at http://www.usacitylink.com/boo/ takes you to the haunted city on the Web where you can cast your spell, visit haunted houses, or compete for prizes in the TRICK net TREAT contest which will run for eight weeks.

This is the second year USAcitylink has hosted Booville. The contest involves visiting US cities to pick up clues to solve the weekly questions. Three grand prize winners will be drawn at random and awarded on Oct. 31. USAcitylink has other holiday specials throughout the year and does a nice job.

■ Check out the Halloween page at http://www.aec.ukans.edu/leo/holidays put together by Suzan Moody at University of Kansas. This page has links to lots of other sites with pictures, games, stories, etc. She has other holiday pages with links to Thanksgiving, Martin Luther King, Jr. Day, Groundhog Day, Valentine's Day, St. Patrick's Day, Passover, Easter, and Memorial Day.

■ The Scriptorium has a Halloween Web site with some unusual features, including: Free Halloween Desktop Patterns for use on web pages; shareware Halloween fonts — original, bizarre and Scary Halloween Design Contest & Art Gallery with original graphics; and Halloween links. ■ Internet Archive at http://www.archive.org is a site created by a group of history-conscious Netizens who work hard at completely charting and archiving the Internet. The archive will eventually reach 10 terabytes and provide historians a thorough collection of data, including newsgroups and downloadable software.

Up and running now is the Presidential Election Web Archive '96 and the WWW Archive — informing us on what the average lifespan of a site is and the real size of the Web. In an effort to "preserve" all your favorite sites — the archive is gathering a snapshot of everything that's ever been published on the Web. So far 200 gigabytes have been collected.

■ Seussville is not a new site but certainly is worth visiting which you can do by pointing to http://www.seussville.com.

The site has been completely refurbished. Seussville offers a comfortable atmosphere for parents and teachers trying to introduce children to the wonders of the Web. Its many new features include The Say Let's Play section with engaging quizzers, teasers, crafts and games and the newest Seuss book — "My Many Colored Days."

HOUSES SCARE 'THE YELL OUT OF YOU'

SPECIAL WRITER

The thick green fog envelops the unsuspecting intruder so quickly that finding the exit to beat a hasty retreat is an impossibility. Once inside the abandoned missile silo at the top-secret military base, irradiated mutated beings pop out of nowhere, growling and sneering menacingly close. Some are armed and dangerous with weapons like chain saws, drawing screams from even the most stoic.

Not to worry, it's all part of the elaborate hoax of the haunted Halloween habitats that materialize in October.

Silo X is one of the area's newest and largest. Located on the Oakland University campus in Rochester, the haunted attraction spans the length of 10 football fields, and even goes outdoors through the woods and a crashed military helicopter.

Being sufficiently scared, the Silo X tour could take as little as 20 to 30 minutes, or up to 45 minutes for those who relish that fright feeling. Lines to get in could take equally as long.

So why do otherwise normal folks go to such lengths to be scared out of their wits when the air chills and the frost collects on the pumpkin?

"I think they like to come through with their friends and get a reaction, being in a scary situation with a group of people," said Al Canavan, Farmington Jaycee haunted house veteran. He has been with the Jaycees for seven years and said "definitely, high school girls are the best screamers."

It's a safe way to get some excitement, said Canavan. "It's getting a rush with their friends." That adrenaline rush is easy to achieve at Dr. Jeckhell's Haunted House and Children of the Corn, both in Sterling Heights, or Dr. Jeckhell's Haunted Hayride at the Brighton Recreational Riding Stables in Brighton.

A Hollywood set designer has utilized Disneyworld-type technology to create some very special effects that don't just stay inside. Dr. Jeckhell's Haunted House includes a trip into the dark night as part of the deal with equally scary creatures lurking in the shadows or rising from the dead.

Children of the Corn is perhaps even a bit more frightening. Both take 10 to 15 minutes to tour, and are very likely to "scare the yell out of you" as promoters predict.

Perhaps an ironic twist, many of these frightfully fun domains offer an avenue for some very philanthropic deeds. That's not exactly the first thing that comes to mind when confronted by a menacing space creature or blood-dripping, knife-wielding zombie.

Jeff Crank, owner of Crank's Catering of Warren, and creator of the Dr. Jeckhell attractions, started the spooky spectacles last year on a whim to raise money for a friend who needed a bone marrow transplant. This year he added Children of the Corn, and the hayride, where one never knows what may pop out of the hay, to help raise money for another bone marrow patient, Annette Ferrara, a Macomb County resident.

Crank said they scared over 10,000 people last year while raising thousands of dollars for his friend's operation. With this year's added attraction, he hopes to collect even more money for his Second Chance Foundation.

A portion of the September revenue from Silo X benefited the Rochester and Clarkston school districts. Not to worry if you don't have the opportunity to make it out to Silo X this year, the Rochester Community Schools Foundation has a contract with Silo X and Oakland University to reconstruct the green-fog-filled attraction for the next six autumns.

The Jaycees are well-known for their goodwill and community support as well as a multitude of dire domains in October. Many local Jaycees groups sponsor the haunted houses while contributing to their communities.

The Farmington Jaycees offer a discount for bringing two or more cans of food to be donated to "Neighborhood House," a community organization for needy families. They are also encouraging blood donations by offering a free trip through their daunting domicile with a Red Cross receipt verifying an October donation. Keep in mind, many of these fright factories are pretty scary even for the brave hearts (or those who claim to be) and may not be suitable for young children.

Some of the nightmare-provoking abodes do have special children's times or "Friendly Monster" showings. There are also many children's and family events to celebrate the fall holiday. Mechele McClain, president of the Livonia Jaycees said the children really love Friendly Monster days. Lights are kept on and masks off. "It was unbelievable the number of people that brought their children," said McClain. "We don't jump out at them. We just explain to them what they're going to see and what we would do."

She said that if parents bring reluctant children to the full-blown scare scene, they will offer to watch them in the office while the adult tours the house. It appears that the area haunted attractions offer something for every terror threshold from amiable to adrenaline rush plus.

EXHIBITION

Livonia art teachers show those that can, do

What: Livonia Public School art teachers display their talents in a variety of mediums.

Where: Livonia Civic Center Library, 32777 Five Mile east of Farmington, second floor fine arts gallery.

When: Through Oct. 27. Hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday to Thursday, until 5 p.m. Friday-Saturday, and 1-5 p.m. Sunday.

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

For the second time in a decade, Livonia Public School art teachers will exhibit their paintings, sculpture, weavings and pottery at the Livonia Civic Center Library Fine Arts Gallery.

Sponsored by the Livonia Arts Commission, the show enables parents and students, as well as, the community to view the skills and creativity 20 of Livonia's elementary, middle and high school teachers, and student teachers, bring to the classroom daily.

"We're not only educators but we're artists. Art is in your blood. There's a need to do it," said Phil Dimmer, Churchill High School art department chairman.

"When I get excited about my own work, it transfers to my students," added Connie Cronenwett, Stevenson High School art department chairwoman. Cronenwett coordinated the exhibit with Sally Morche-Diskin and Suzanne Waring.

Dimmer, an exhibitor at the Ann Arbor and other art fairs, displays serigraphs in the show. An evening landscape takes on an unusually slim but vertical form that's sure to be a crowd pleaser due to the peacefulness it instills in the viewer.

An avid gardener, Cronenwett created silver-soldered copper and brass garden sculpture for the exhibit. Perched on top of stakes, the lighthearted faces strike whimsy similar to that found in her masks of personalities she's known throughout the years.

"They're fun and zany," said Cronenwett, who's taught in Livonia Public Schools since 1966.

Waring sees the teachers' exhibit as an opportunity to display the talents of Livonia's teachers. She's encouraging her students at Emerson Middle School to visit the library to view the works in which she mixes pastels, pencil, gel medium and paint.

"I love color. The way it flows together. I teach my students it's okay to be frustrated, to work with an area when they're not pleased with it," said Waring. "Letting other people see my work, gives me a unit of measuring. There's an old adage: those who can, do and those who can't, teach. Well, we do both. We have a lot of talent out there in the schools."

Sandy Attebury agrees with Waring about the importance of the exhibit. Attebury, who grew up in Western Australia, teaches art at Buchanan and Webster Elementary Schools. She combines photography, painting and electronic imaging through computer graphics. Over the image of an Australian beach where she used to swim, Attebury scanned in a photograph of her Australian-born daughter. The solarized technique minimally outlines the hair and face.

"I think it's great to showcase the teachers. We don't see each others work in school," Attebury said.

While many of the teachers produce their art on weekends during the school year, or on summer vacation, Gary Boyll always carries a camera to capture images ranging from rusted old cars to Maui volcanoes. Boyll, a teacher at Tyler and Kennedy schools, has exhibited at the Detroit Institute of Arts, Detroit Artists Market and Wayne State University.

"I just like the old cars, their sculptural content. This is my first real venture into color photography because everything in the past has been black and white. Although composition is the same, it's very challenging to work with the light in color," said Boyll.

An art teacher at Randolph and Cooper Elementary Schools Morche-Diskin likes to work with her hands and it shows in her traditional as well as non-traditional weavings. Her interest in textiles led to her creating a line of wearable art marketed under the name of Stella's Creations. She's displayed her wares, incorporating a rainbow of fibers, in the Ann Arbor Street Fair and the Northville Arts and Crafts Show. "Sunset" is a wall hanging focusing on a fiery sun as it reflects on the water.

"I like feeling what I'm creating, the tactile sense of working with textiles. I feel like I'm more a part of it. I'm energized, working with the colors to capture the blazing sun," said Morche-Diskin, who's taught art for 24 years. Her students have seen the exhibit.

"It's interesting for the students to see us differently, not only as a teacher but as an artist. This is how I spend my spare time. I can weave while watching television and create wearable art on commission by using the colors in someone's wardrobe."

Livonia art teachers included in the exhibit are Suzanne Crooks, a teacher at Adams and Hull; John Wagner and Wayne Johnson, Stevenson; Ed Hubert, Livonia Career Center; Joanne Hoekstra, Nankin Mills and McKinley; Barbara Bray, Roosevelt and Johnson; Mary Lynn Giovan and Anita Lamour, Churchill; Doreen Lawton, Tyler and Coolidge; Lea Gonzalez, Cooper, Webster and Roosevelt; Doug Johnson, Stevenson; Darren Sipos, student teacher at Stevenson; Salwa Zarou, student teacher, Cooper and Randolph; Victoria Fairris, student teacher, Webster and Buchanan; and Karen Orzel.

Village Artists show at Farmington library

ARTISTIC EXPRESSIONS

LINDA ANN CHOMIN

October has been an exciting month for Canton artist Kay Rowe who experienced her first one-woman show Oct. 1-21 at the Downtown Farmington Public Library, 23500 Liberty at Grand River. Although Rowe took down part of the 15-piece exhibit of large scale watercolors to showcase her students (collectively known as the Village Artists) at the library, several of her paintings remain on display until Oct. 31.

"I believe exhibiting is essential. Art is to be seen and showing work provides motivation. Musicians need to be performing. Artists are the same way," said Rowe, principal clarinetist for the Ann Arbor Symphony and the Calvary Baptist Church Orchestra in Canton.

"Classes ($8 a session) are ongoing at the studio so people can start at any time. There's so much to be gained from people working in groups. We put up our paintings regularly for critiques. They all learn from that. They need to get feedback from other artists."

Rowe opened the Village Artists studio in March to teach transparent watercolor to students of all levels from beginners to seasoned exhibitors. Most of the sessions take place there except for occasional field trips to paint on location. Frequently, the destination of choice is Rowe's four-acre Canton farm where she raises pet llamas and chickens.

"I always encourage them to paint from life as much as possible whether it's on location or a set-up still life. When you paint from a photograph, you're just copying."

Rowe has taken art classes and workshops at the Detroit Institute of Arts, the University of Michigan, Schoolcraft College and the Visual Arts Association of Livonia. She previously taught at St. Andrews Episcopal Church in Livonia, and Michigan Art Exchange in Plymouth before it closed last year. A recent visit to Rowe's studio in Plymouth's Old Village revealed a multitude of reasons that students take classes here.

"I'm just having fun here. I like the freedom of the medium and playing with color," said Nancy Walls Smith, who had formerly worked in colored pencil.

"Art is such an escape. You come here and just forget whatever else is going on in your life."

Ann VanWagoner, an exercise therapist for Oakwood Health Systems, began studying with Rowe in May. She was working on an illustration for a book on the Marine Corps Marathon.

"Painting offers me the opportunity to create. I have always been attracted to watercolor because of the way the light is reflected from the paper under the paints," said VanWagoner of Plymouth.

Impressed by watercolor techniques learned in Rowe's classes, Lorainne Petro, who has directed a latchkey program for 20 years in Northville Public Schools, is now passing the lessons onto her second to fifth grade students.

"I think the kids need to have spice in their life. One little girl framed her picture and gave it to her grandfather for Christmas," said Petro of Northville.

Of her classes with Rowe she continued, "Kay has taught me discipline. My raccoon painting looks like raccoons but they're stylized. If I wanted a photograph I'd take it, but I needed the discipline and basic skills to start painting before realizing my own style."

A former substitute art teacher in Plymouth Canton Schools, Marilyn Carl of Plymouth began classes with Rowe to learn more about the watercolor medium. She has exhibited with VAAL and Independent Artists. Each summer she attends weeklong sessions in Northern Michigan with Farmington Hills artist Edee Joppich.

"Kay takes a lot of time to help me. Sometimes teachers expect you to know techniques and basics already, but she will explain them," Carl said.

Village Artists studio not only provides instruction but studio time ($2 fee) and exhibiting opportunities as well. For more information, call Rowe at (313) 455-7221 or 455-1487.

The space at the library is available for showing by members of the Farmington Artists Club, to which Rowe belongs. Other Village Artists included in the October exhibit are Terry Allor of Plymouth; Pam Grossman, Livonia; Yvonne Craig, Farmington; and Norine Berryman, Brighton.

Farmington Public Library hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday-Thursday, to 5 p.m. Friday-Saturday, and 1-5 p.m. Sunday.

MOVIES

Britain's 'Secrets and Lies' one of year's best

JOHN MONAGHAN

Mike Leigh's movies have a way of sneaking up on you. Characters you find mildly irritating to downright repulsive will keep you watching for their next unpredictable, but wholly believable, move. Titles like "High Hopes," "Life is Sweet," and "Naked" rank among the past decade's most perceptive examinations of the human condition.Now comes "Secrets and Lies," the Palme d'Or winner at Cannes this spring and probably Leigh's best movie yet. This study of a British family suffering from the title maladies benefits from startlingly real performances. It's an emotional roller coaster ride that mines hope out of seemingly overwhelming despair.

Hortense, having just lost her adopted mother, decides to research the real one. Despite the advice of the adoption agency, which questions her timing, she tracks down Cynthia, a fragile woman who spends a wretched life trying to relate to another daughter, 19-year-old Roxanne, who hates her guts.

Another complication: Hortense is black, Cynthia white. When they finally meet at the daughter's urging, Cynthia politely tells her that there must be some mistake. She breaks down when she realizes who fathered the little girl she gave up at birth.This moment is all the more incredible when you understand that Leigh has arranged for actresses Brenda Blethyn and Marianne Jean-Baptiste to meet for the first time in the scene. The writer/director, who has been making movies for the past 25 years, spends several months working with his actors, developing characters and then deciding how they're going to interact.

Cynthia has a younger brother, teddy bear-shaped Maurice (Timothy Spall). He runs a local photography studio, positioning squirmy kids and married couples, shooting weddings on the weekends.The irony is, of course, that a man who spends his life telling other people to smile has little to smile about himself. His materialistic wife shows him little affection, putting all her effort into cleaning and decorating their expensive, sterile suburban home. Not surprisingly, she doesn't get along with Cynthia.

At the center of the action remains Hortense, who not surprisingly, works as an optometrist. She's the only one who can see things clearly in a classically dysfunctional family for whom there may still be hope.

Outside of the recently extended family Leigh drops in a couple of wild cards. A man comes into the studio one day claiming to be the former owner and starts to berate Maurice, his one-time apprentice, for not being more ambitious. The man turns out to be a drunk who actually overextended and squandered the business away.It's this kind of unrelated incident that may make you second guess Leigh's motives in an already lengthy film. But it's also this kind of random occurrence that makes it so true to life.Visually, the movie is appropriately bland.

Leigh, who has worked extensively in television, favors close-ups to capture the expressive faces of his performers. He gives his actresses free reign during that intense first meeting, refusing to cut away from their restaurant booth conversation for what could easily be 10 minutes.Whether ""Secrets or Lies" will find the audience it deserves is anyone's guess. After premiering at the Detroit Film Theatre earlier this month, it now screens at the Birmingham.

Those used to the witty repartee and idyllic country estates of Jane Austen will find a bracing dose of reality in the claustrophobic rooms of Leigh's working-class Brits.

Lovitz has fun with friends in new 'High School High'

STAFF WRITER

When actor Jon Lovitz was told that Tia Carrere was going to co-star with him in his latest movie "High School High" he wasn't too sure of her talent.

"I didn't really know how talented she was. When I saw 'Wayne's World' I really thought they got some girl who could barely speak English. I remember thinking, 'Who is this girl? She can't even speak.' I thought she really spoke that way," said Lovitz during a recent interview at the Ritz Carlton Hotel in Dearborn.

"She's super talented and really nice, just the warmest person."

"High School High," which opens Friday, Oct. 25, is reminiscent of a comedic version of "Dangerous Minds." It tells the story of Richard Clark (Lovitz), who leaves the private Wellington School, where his father, Thaddeus (John Neville), is the headmaster, to accept a job at a ghetto school that is so tough that it has its own cemetery.

His innocent nature immediately butts heads with the tough principal Mrs. Doyle (Louise Fletcher). Naive about gangs, Clark breaks up a fight between ex-gang banger Griff McReynolds (Mekhi Phifer) and a tough gang leader and begins to see potential in McReynolds. "High School High" also stars Natasha Gregson Wagner, Malinda Williams, and Guillermo Diaz.

The urban street comedy is produced by David Zucker, Robert LoCash and Gil Netter, and written by Zucker and LoCash and Pat Proft . Lovitz explained that it was the chance to work with Zucker, best known for his "Airplane!" and "Naked Gun" movies, that drove him to audition for the movie.

"I think those movies are hilarious. I read the script (and) thought it was funny. When I met with David Zucker and read some lines, and they just thought it was funny. I really tried to sell myself and said I really can do this part and they hired me. It worked out. I was really excited to do it," Lovitz said.

It was especially exciting to work with Fletcher, who earned an Academy Award for her performance of "Nurse Ratched" in "One Flew Over The Cuckoo's Nest," and Neville, a recipient of the Order of the British Empire, whose credits include stage and movie roles.

"Working with a lot of the actors was great. Hart Bochner ('PCU' and 'The Buzzz') directed it, and he's a friend of mine. He helped me a lot. The actors like Louise Fletcher and John Neville, one of the best actors, and the rest of the cast Tia Carrere, Mekhi Phifer, and the kids were so much fun. Everyone was real nice."

"They found these people that I had never heard of and here they are, just great."

Lovitz, whose next project is a movie starring Gary Shandling and Annette Bening that begins filming in the summer, began his career as a stand-up comedian and made his way to "Saturday Night Live" from 1985-1990. While on SNL, his signature characters became Master Thespian, and the pathological liar "Tommy Flanagan," whose line "Yeah, that's the ticket," made him a household name.

"It started out as an inside joke between a friend of mine and I. I took it to the 'Tonight Show' and the next day people were telling me they saw it and they thought it was so funny that they put it on their answering machines," said the goateed Lovitz, decked out in black-framed glasses, a plaid shirt, jeans and Adidas sneakers.

"When I got 'Saturday Night Live,' I remembered that and thought 'Man if I do it on 'Saturday Night Live' the country may be saying it.' Sure enough they did. It was pretty amazing that because you say something on television, especially 'Saturday Night Live,' can become a part of pop culture," Lovitz said.

He wishes the current SNL cast the best, but was vague about his opinion on it.

"I think there's a lot of funny people on the show. Whoever's on the show it becomes their show. They keep changing casts all the time and it's hard because you don't know who you're going to work with. As soon as you get used to working with someone, they're gone. It's hard. I only wish the show well. It gave me the career that I have."

His career has included appearances in the movies "City Slickers II," "A League of Their Own," and "Big." In addition, Lovitz did voice-overs for the animated features "An American Tail: Fievel Goes West" and "The Brave Little Toaster."

On television, Lovitz, who earned two Emmy nominations for his work on SNL, provided the voice of the title character in the animated series "The Critic," and guest starred on "Seinfeld," "Friends," and "The Larry Sanders Show."

His role in "High School High" marks an important milestone in his career, he explained.

"It's different because it's the first time I had a lead in the film. That made it enjoyable. The story is about me and the kids in the school. I was the guy who's driving the film as opposed to reacting to everyone. I had a drunk scene, a love scene, and a fight scene, which I had never done. So it was a lot of fun."

"Kissing Tia was a lot of fun, too."

Rush will play The Palace without opening band

CHRISTINA FUOCO

Last week Rush started pre-tour rehearsals for its "Test For Echo" (Atlantic) swing through the United States nestled in the Adirondack mountains in upstate New York, and drummer Neal Peart reports that everything is going just fine.

■ 'That's the first time we've ever done that. We came up as an opening act. We opened for anyone anywhere. We didn't have a lot of radio play and had no mainstream media support. It was the alternative of the time. If you weren't going to be mainstream, your alternative route was to open shows and win the audience the old-fashioned way,"

Neal Peart
drummer for Rush

The 2 1/2-hour show, which comes to The Palace of Auburn Hills on Friday, Oct. 25, marks plenty of first-times for the band. First, there will be no opening band.

"That's the first time we've ever done that. We came up as an opening act. We opened for anyone anywhere. We didn't have a lot of radio play and had no mainstream media support. It was the alternative of the time. If you weren't going to be mainstream, your alternative route was to open shows and win the audience the old-fashioned way," Peart said.

"This time we figured after all these years and all the material we have, we wanted more time for our shows. It's a really long show – 2 1/2 hours of music alone with an intermission. It gives us a lot of freedom to do old and new songs, old stuff that we've never played live before. That's a treat for us and for our fans."

Peart explained that one of the songs will be "2112," from the 1976 album of the same name. Rush has played abridged versions of "2112" but "it had never been played in its entirety." The set will also include "Natural Science" from 1981's "Moving Pictures."

Rush performs at 8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 25, at The Palace. Tickets are $40 and $27.50. For more information, call (810) 377-0100.

• The Cleveland band Dink has never been too thrilled about the constrictive title of "industrial band." But it's sure to go away with the recent release of the "Blame It On Tito" EP. Hip-hop flavored interludes and roughed up pop passages are still there, but the album is much more guitar driven.

"Most of the writing started on guitar rather than on machines," said guitarist/singer/programmer Sean Carlin. "I find our thing much more akin to bands like the Sex Pistols. I see ourselves as a garage band with a computer. We are very, very low-fi, high tech."

The five-song EP features the original version of Dink's hit single "Green Mind," as well as the band's reinvention of Neil Young's "Ohio," an account of the disturbances at Kent State University.

"We all kind of live in the Kent area. We all went to Kent State. There's still some weirdness about it here in Kent."

"Blame It On Tito" is a teaser to an as-of-yet unnamed full-length debut due out in February or March. The album may include remixes by members of Consolidated and Download, and David Oglivie.

"We're going to balance the record out with machine-driven and guitar stuff."

• Those went to Hootie and the Blowfish's show Friday, Oct. 18, at the Breslin Center on Michigan State University's campus and were thoroughly entertained may want to consider getting a wedding gift for drummer Jim Sonefield, who married Deborah Mason Saturday, Sept. 28, in Birmingham.

According to their gift registry at Hudson's, the couple is still in need of a Cuisinart/Conair stockpot ($129), natural-colored Polo bath towels ($14.99), hand towels ($5.99) and washcloths ($9.99); and white Polo bath towels for the second bathroom.

• Misc.: Grammy Award-winning producer and songwriter Glen Ballard has formed Java Records with Capitol Records. Ballard, the producer and co-writer behind Alanis Morissette's multi-platinum debut "Jagged Little Pill" (Maverick), will serve as producer, songwriter and A&R rep for the joint venture. Capitol Records will distribute the label and work with Java staff in the marketing and promotion of upcoming releases. ... Detroit rappers I.C.P. play hometown shows Wednesday, Oct. 30-Thursday, Oct. 31, at The Palladium, 17580 Frazho, Roseville. Among the material in their set will be songs from the duo's upcoming album "The Great Milenko" (Hollywood), due out in early 1997. White Zombie singer Rob Zombie will direct the video for the as-of-yet undecided debut single. For more information about the shows, call (810) 778-6404.

Timber Wolf Tavern has good looks and food

BY RENEE SKOGLUND
SPECIAL WRITER

The Timber Wolf Tavern may well be the best-looking tavern in town. Its pine and oak interior, complete with a large, stone-faced fireplace, provides a rustic, warm ambience that makes you want to dunk your chocolate chip cookie into that second cup of coffee.

Chocolate chip cookies in a tavern? Sure, why not, especially if they're homemade. These paw-size cookies have been a menu hit since the Timber Wolf opened last April.

"We've donated those cookies to many events in Redford," said owner Bryan Boyadjian. The cookies are free on Sundays.

Boyadjian, who owns the Timber Wolf with his father Samuel, knows it takes more than cookies to keep customers coming back. It takes home-made pasties ("Better than the U.P."), meatloaf with sauteed mushrooms and onions, roast turkey and Shepherd's Pie, a baked casserole of sirloin steak, vegetables, cheese and golden-brown mashed potatoes.

Speaking of potatoes, the Timber Wolf dishes up some terrific au gratins. "One thing I wanted on my menu was au gratin potatoes," said Boyadjian. "They're served in a crock, and they are just great."

The Timber Wolf also features hearty specials, like fried lake perch for $7.50 or prime rib on Friday and Saturday nights at $10.95 for a 10-ounce slice and a $12.95 for a 12-ounce slice. And if you're a Friday-night fish eater, there's Icelandic cod with hearty portions of fries and slaw for $5.95.

The Timber Wolf attracts just about anyone with a hearty appetite who doesn't mind eyeballing a wild boar or moose head while eating. Families are most welcome. (The kids love petting the heads, which come compliments of Boyadjian's uncle Harold Bjornstad's hunting prowess.)

"Our restaurant is geared to a blue-collar clientele. "We serve large meals and just about everything is home-cooked. We really put a lot of love and care into our food," said the personable Boyadjian.

And if you happen to drop by on Tuesday night, you can wash down your dinner with a 16-ounce mug of micro-brew for a mere $2. Thursdays, it's $2 for draft beers and $1 off of house drinks for women.

Tim Proben, owner of Mom's Plumbing in Livonia, pronounced his meatloaf "wonderful." Proben brings his wife and four kids to the Timber Wolf at least twice a week. "I like the atmosphere, I like the people running it, and best of all I like the food. I haven't had a bad meal yet," he said.

The focal point of the Timber Wolf Tavern most definitely is the bar area, the abode of a mounted 200-pound silver-furred Northern Alaskan wolf. Surrounding the wolf is a wrap-around oak and pine bar, hand-crafted by Samuel Boyadjian. A pressed-tin ceiling rimmed in soft gold recessed lighting completes the visual effect.

Boyadjian is proud of his and his father's handiwork. "We pounded every nail, stained every board," he said, then pointed to 600-pound wooded bear near the fireplace. "It took five guys to get it off the pick-up truck."

On Saturday, October 26, the Timber Wolf Tavern is having a "Howling Party," with costume prizes, drink specials and entertainment by Double Cross, a top-40s band. Call for reservations.

Southfield infill project off beaten track

Take a single-family infill residential project with 14 lots in a heavily-wooded Southfield neighborhood with easy freeway access, nearby schools and shopping opportunities.

Mix in a couple of builders offering new houses on large lots for less than $150,000.

What you get is the newest addition to Meadow Downs, tucked off Coral Gables south of 11 Mile east of Southfield Road.

"One reason I give for naming this Southfield's newest little secret is people who come to open houses say, 'I didn't know you were back here,'" said Marion Tindle, assistant manager for Century 21 Elegant Homes and sales representative at the site.

"It's a nice secluded area," said James R. Guibord, president of United Home Builders. "You won't have an influx of traffic. It has good access to 696. Because of all the trees, it's another advantage to the area. It's like living up north."

"It's a great, central location," said Scott A. Cantor, partner with Coventry Homes.

"It's a wonderful school system there," said Robert Schwartz, Coventry Homes partner. "There's real good shopping in the area."

Both builders have many floor plans to offer or will customize to a buyer's specification.

United's prices range from $134,900 for a two story of 1,450 square feet with three bedrooms and 1-1/2 baths to $172,900 for a colonial of 1,900 square feet with four bedrooms and 2-1/2 baths.

Coventry offers three-bedroom, 2-1/2 bath colonials ranging from 1,500 square feet for $145,000 to 1,850 square feet for $168,500.

Both offer ranches and plans with the master suite on the first floor.

United's on-site model, features a living room, dining room, kitchen/nook and half-bath on the first floor.

The master suite has a separate tub and shower, dual sink vanity, walk-in closet and ceiling fan. Two other upstairs bedrooms each have ceiling lights.

TAMMIE GRAVES/STAFF ARTIST

The master bath, with separate doors, services all three bedrooms.

The model includes a range and dishwasher, basement laundry and two-car, attached garage.

Vinyl siding covers the exterior.

Base price is $134,900.

Guibord terms this model an expanable house because pre-engineered plans are included for a later addition of a family room downstairs and a fourth bedroom upstairs for an additional cost.

A fireplace ($3,000) and air conditioning ($2,200-$2,800) are also extra.

Coventry intends to construct a three-bedroom colonial as its on-site model.

Floor plans indicate a living room, dining room, family room, kitchen/nook with sink facing the family room, laundry and half-bath on the main floor.

Upstairs, the walk-up master will have a cathedral ceiling, two walk-in closets, dual sink vanity and separate tub and shower. Two other bedrooms will share a full bath.

The house will have an attached two-car garage, basement, full covered front porch and include and dishwasher.

Exterior materials will be brick, vinyl siding and wood accents.

Base price is $168,500.

"I find as a Realtor new construction is usually usually out of price for young families or first-time new buyers," Tindle said. "This sub is affordable for them.

"Both builders are willing to work with people and their own plans. They are willing to customize," she added.

The annual property tax is estimated at $56.58 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value. That means the owners of a $145,000 house there would pay about $4,100 the first year.

Ron Randolph bought a three-bedroom colonial with family room from United Home Builders.

"I've been in Southfield the last seven, eight years," he said. "It's real convenient. I really like the trees, lot size, sitting back there secluded. I like the size of the bedrooms, family room. I would recommend the builder highly," Randolph said. "He's real easy to work with."

Until models are completed at Meadow Downs, prospects interested in plans of United Home Builders and Coventry Homes may contact Marion Tindle, sales rep, at (810) 569-6613 for an appointment.

Meadow Downs: Builders at Meadow Downs can come up with a plan to suite any taste. But simple, functional designs like this are expected to be especially attractive.

Find more storage space around the home

By Reader's Digest Books For AP Special Features

If you are a typical homeowner, you probably are forever trying to find more storage space for an increasing number of possessions.

The first step to making more space is to throw out those things that you never or rarely use. After that, you can look for nooks and crannies that, with a bit of ingenuity, can accommodate items you keep.

Here are some tips:

In The Attic

Short on closet space? Install a wooden rod or metal pipe between rafters for hanging out-of-season clothing in garment bags. Use pipe straps or pipe clamps to secure the rod to the rafters.

Make shelves under eaves. Use 2-by-3s to support the shelves. Run 2-by-3 uprights vertically between the rafters and the joists or floor. Then run 2-by-3 supports horizontally from the uprights to the rafters. Cut three-quarters-inch plywood to size for the shelves.

Don't forget halls

Even a narrow hall may have space for shelves. Line a wall from floor to ceiling with shallow shelves for paperbacks or for your collection of figurines or other knicknacks.

Construct a storage loft across the end of the hall. Use it for luggage and other lightweight items that are used only occasionally.

Under the stairs

Build a roll-out bin, a simple plywood box on casters to fit under the front edge of a stairway. To cut out the front and back of the bin, trace the slope of the stairway on a piece of cardboard and use it as a pattern for marking three-quarters-inch plywood. Assemble it with drywall screws and carpenter's glue. Reinforce all the interior corners with three-quarters-inch molding.

You can also fill the space under stairs with shelves. Support the shelves at the stair ends with stepped vertical pieces. Use the space behind the shelves as a closet.

Where there are closets under stairways, install a small shelf under each step for storing small articles.

New bathroom storage

Install a shelf just above the sink. It will give you a handy, dry place for cosmetics and toiletries. Place it high enough so it doesn't interfere with turning the water on and off.

Fill unused space around a toilet with combination shelves and towel bars in a ladder arrangement. Leave space above the tank to take the top off.

Your child's storage

Most young children have trouble putting away toys. Your toddler will clean up with less fuss if you provide roomy catchall storage bins. For quick, inexpensive bins, cover cardboard boxes with stick-on paper. To encourage neatness, label the boxes with pictures of what's supposed to go into them. Replace them when they become tattered. To put your child's clothes within reach, add a second, lower rod in the closet. Install 1-by-4 cleats on either side of the closet and mount sockets for a new clothes rod on them. Or simply suspend the rod on chains from the higher rod. Use the upper rod for out-of-season wear.

More closet space

Use the same idea in one section of your own closet. Install two rods, one 3 to 4 feet above the other. Hang short items such as shirts and skirts on them.

Suspend wire shower curtain hooks from the rods to hold belts, purses and scarves. Attach hooks, towel racks or shoe bags to the closet walls or door for miscellaneous items.

Get help locating buried utility lines

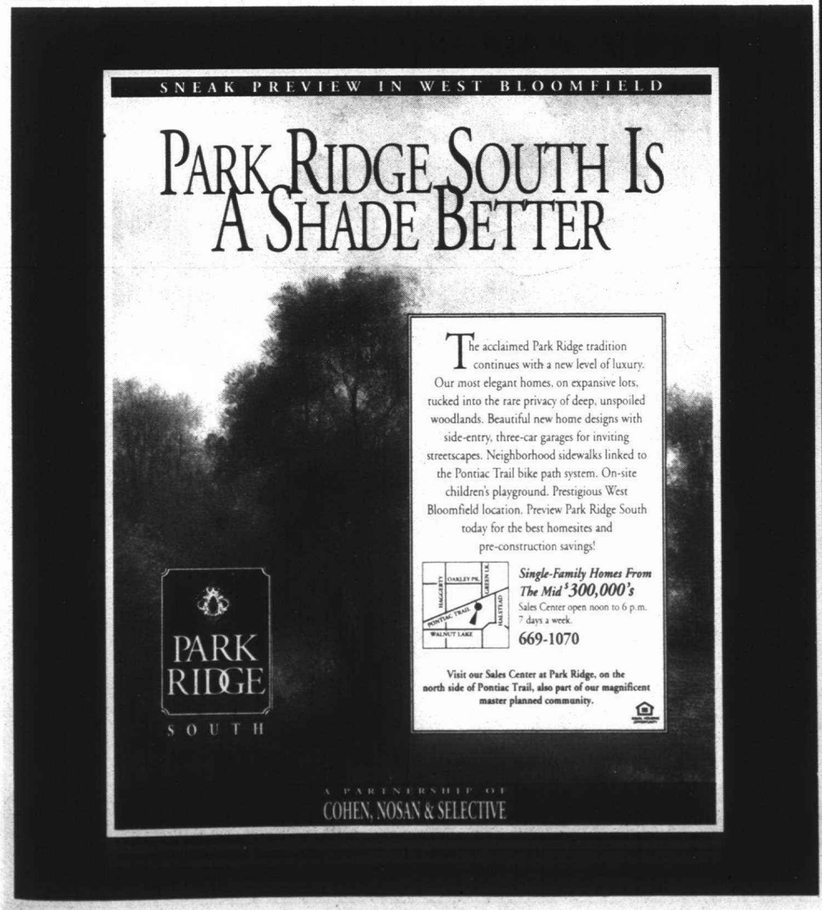
MISS DIG helps homeowners avoid injury and damaging utility lines

Before turning the first spadeful of earth for a tree, fence or deck foundation, Detroit Edison advises customers to call MISS DIG to request free location markings for underground public utility lines or assistance with overhead electric lines.

A free phone call can prevent injury to a do-it-yourselfer or damage to overhead electric or underground public utility lines that could interrupt utility service, said Glenn Spence, retail customer marketing representative for Detroit Edison and president, MISS DIG System Inc.

"Home improvement chores can pose a danger if you don't know the locations of overhead and underground electric lines or other underground utilities," Spence said. "A phone call to MISS DIG can help you plan your work to avoid any problems contact with utilities may cause."

Call MISS DIG at 1-800-482-7171 weekdays between 6 a.m. and 7 p.m. at least three working days before you expect to begin an outdoor project. MISS DIG will notify participating members who will mark the locations of underground utilities on your property. Callers also will be advised about maintaining a safe 10-foot clearance from all overhead electric lines.



Attention to detail tools pays big dividends

Pay attention to the details in your life and everything else will fall into place.

That's the rule that has been helping home craftsmen and women all across America with the sanding, cutting, grinding and polishing. A new variable speed power tool that does this is the latest value-priced entry in Ryobi's line of detail tools.

Called simply the Multi-Tool, it is a hand-held rotary action, all-purpose tool with collects that hold a wide variety of cutting, grinding and polishing bits. Made to sell for less than $60, the Multi-Tool is reported to have plenty of muscle, outperforming other tools with more consistent RPM and reserve capacity to deliver more power under the load.

The tool gets its power because of its very high torque at low RPMs, as well as high RPMs. Torque is a measurement of resistance against force. Machines like the Ryobi, which can produce significant torque, will work effectively. Those that can't, won't.

Hobbyists and do-it-yourselfers can find dozens of uses for this tool when working with wood, metal, ceramics or glass. It easily handles engraving, carving, cutting, sharpening, filing, sanding and buffing. Among its thoughtful design features are two separate power controls – an on-off switch and a second switch to select speeds between 8,000 and 23,000 RPM.

Compared to single-switch units, this dual-switch system allows users to leave the speed preset when turning the tool off, eliminating the hunt for the right speed when the tool is turned back on again.

An informative brochure about hand-held power tools is available free by0 calling 1-800-525-2579.

More warning needed on faulty gas line

JOE GAGNON

In a recent article a newspaper reported that the gas line to hook up an appliance such as a stove or clothes dryer might be dangerous to your health. The article was written based on information obtained from the Product Safety Commission in Washington.

The CPSC reports that they have received 200 cases where the old style corrugated metal gas lines have sprung a leak and been associated with 35 deaths and 59 injuries. This type of flexible connector has not been sold for the past 10 years, but I'm sure there are many clothes dryers in the American home which still have this product connected to it.

Millions of consumers out there have clothes dryers which are well over 10 years old. It is sad that the CPSC had to wait until 35 people died before they brought out information that could possibly save the lives of more victims. The article you might have read will not be seen by many millions across the country and yet I feel they should do more in an endeavor to reach these people.

The deaths and injuries reported so far might be a small amount compared to the figures of the next five years. As these connectors get older than I think the likelihood of a leak would increase tremendously. There are many ways they could increase this warning so that it reached more homeowners than it has so far. As an example I would suggest that they work through every major utility company across the land and put a warning notice in every utility bill sent to each customer. I would have printed and charged back to the manufacturer of these deadly connectors, a full page article in all newspapers across America and follow that up with the same procedure on television.

Let me give you a synopsis of the warning put out by the CPSC and the action you should take to correct the problem. First, let me say that it is my recommendation to hook up a gas line dryer using only solid copper tubing with flared fittings. Use enough tubing so that you have several loops coiled at the rear which allow you to move it for service and cleaning. These materials are available at your local hardware store where they will flare the fittings etc. The hardware store industry is very versed on what has to be done to properly hook up your clothes dryer.

The CPSC reports that older corrugated metal tubes were used in hooking up ranges, ovens and clothes dryers. They are uncoated, brass, flexible metal lines which has a fitting on each end which is soldered in place. The solder can fail resulting in a gas leak. They also recommend that the appliance not be moved to any degree as this might cause the connector to break and leak gas. The CPSC suggests that you call a professional service provider to inspect the product. They fail to mention that there might be a cost for this service or that a clothes dryer in operation has a vibration to it that could cause a leak as well.

I recommend that if you are using this type of connector which hasn't been sold in the past 10 years, you shut off the gas to the product, remove the hazard and replace it yourself. If I was the chairman of the Consumers Product Safety Commission I would have printed a special weekly listing of every product complaint filed daily to their agency. I would wouldn't wait 10 years of compiling information which I knew was causing and injuries. A copy of this article is being sent to the CPSC in Washington.

Joe Gagnon, the Appliance Doctor, will answer your questions about maintaining and repairing large appliances. Gagnon is president of Carmack Appliances in Garden City and does a weekly radio program on WJR-AM.

Tips for a more secure home.

- ✔ Don't answer telephone survey questions such as "Do you have a color TV, stereo, etc." A burglar may be on the other end of the line trying to find out if it's worthwhile to break in to your home.
- ✔ Don't let newspapers and mail pile up while you are out of town.
- ✔ A phone call to our police or sheriff department notifying them of the dates when you will be out of town is always a good idea. They often will make a point of checking your home while you're away.
- ✔ Install and use dead bolt locks and "pin" your easily accessible windows.
- ✔ If you have an alarm system, let the burglar know it by displaying the window decals.

MARTY FIGLEY

Season sensations: Pumpkins and mums welcome the fall season.

Color the autumn season wonderful

MARTY FIGLEY

Isn't it wonderful the way the colors of fall all blend together? The oranges, yellows and crimson shades of the leaves, the golden yellow of pumpkins and the yellows and greens of winter squash, the reds and yellows of apples and pears and the colors of autumn-blooming flowers and shrubs. The ever-popular grasses also blend their maturing seedheads to the color scheme. Nature has really endowed this planet with something remarkable.

Have you ever wondered just what makes the leaves turn color at this time of year? It's connected with the way deciduous trees (those that lose their leaves) store food and prepare for winter dormancy. As the days become shorter and cooler temperatures prevail, the trees stop producing chlorophylls and then begin sending nutrients to the roots. (Trees produce chlorophyll, which are the green pigments that absorb energy from light by way of photosynthesis to make food.) As the subsequent chlorophyll decays, the other pigments in the leaves are revealed.

Trees have various amounts of two principal types of pigments: carotenoids, which produce yellows and oranges; and anthocyanins, which are red-colored.

When the days are warm and sunny and the nights are cool, we can probably expect the foliage colors to be more brilliant than when the weather is cloudy and wet.

Prepare to pare

This coming weekend is the perfect time to carve your Halloween pumpkins. The possibilities are endless. For instance, by using various sizes of pumpkins stacked one on top of another, a whole "being" could be created. If you carve spooky, happy or sad faces, or faces that resemble a famous person or friend, your imagination could really be put to work.

When you carve your pumpkins use a good sharp paring knife, or one slightly larger. A serrated knife may work better for those with tough skins. If the skin is especially thick, small children might need Mom or Dad to scrape some away so that the pumpkin will glow when a light is in it.

Cut the lid (we often put a little V at one edge to match the lid with the pumpkin top) and scoop out the insides with a big spoon. Put a lot of newspapers on the table or floor to catch the mess. If there are several children in the family and you have only one pumpkin, let each one draw a feature on a piece of paper and then all can choose which ones should be used. Each child then should have a turn at carving.

This is the time to save the pumpkin seeds for toasting in the oven. They are a healthy and delicious treat. Spread the seeds on a baking sheet, sprinkle lightly with salt and bake in a 375-degree oven for 20 minutes; stir occasionally.

While the family is carving the faces, Mom or Dad might tell the youngsters that the Irish were the first to fashion a lantern out of vegetables for display on Halloween. They used rutabagas, turnips and potatoes. One story that comes from Ireland is about the Irishman named Jack who was kept out of heaven because he was so stingy and out of "that other place" because he was so mischievous. Jack had to wander the Earth with a lighted lantern until Judgment Day.

When the Irish came to the United States in the middle of the 19th century, they brought with them the tradition of "jack o'lantern." Here were pumpkins to carve and fashion for Halloween, a perfect replacement for those other vegetables.

This pumpkin (or squash) soup could be cooking while the carving is being accomplished and will add a perfect finale to the festivities.

PUMPKIN SOUP

Serves 4

1 pumpkin or winter squash – about eight inches tall and wide
2 tbl. softened butter
Salt and pepper to taste
1 medium onion, finely sliced
1/4 cup long-grain rice
3-1/2 cups chicken stock
Freshly grated nutmeg or cumin
To garnish: 6 slices bacon, cooked until crisp, and 3 tbl. crumbled mozzarella cheese

Cut lid from pumpkin, scoop out seeds. Rub butter around inside, add salt and pepper. Place onion and rice inside. Bring stock to boil. Put pumpkin in large pan, pour hot stock into the pumpkin, replace lid. Bake two hours at 375 degrees. Remove pumpkin from oven, scrape some of the softened flesh from the wall into the soup and mix it in. Add nutmeg or cumin to taste. Garnish with bacon and cheese. Serve from the pumpkin.

INVITING IDEAS

Wild game is low-fat alternative to beef

Camouflage and hiking boots have their place. On the wilderness runway, hunting season attire translates well into – great game for cooking. Low-fat and delicious, game meats provide a healthy alternative to eating traditional red meat (specifically, beef).

Martin J. Marchello, Professor, North Dakota State University, Department of Animal and Range Sciences, College of Agriculture has done extensive research on the nutrient composition of game meat – finding Whitetail Deer to have only 1.4 grams of fat/100g and 149 calories (Kcal/100g) and Mule Deer to have 1.3 grams of fat/100g and 145 calories (Kcal/100g). USDA Choice Beef comes in at 6.5 grams of fat/100g and 180 calories (Kcal/100g).

Many cooks are intimidated with the prospect of cooking venison, or any wild game.

Master Chef Milos Cihelka (one of 66 Master Chefs in America) specializes in "the reward of the hunt." Many of you will remember Chef Milos from his chef-partner days at the Golden Mushroom Restaurant in Southfield, Michigan. Now, in partnership (Wild Harvest Videos) with acclaimed cinematographer Jerry Chiappetta, they have combined efforts and produced a series of wonderful videos – Master Chef Series of Game Care & Cooking.

RUTH MOSSOK JOHNSTON

An avid hunter, as well as a Master Chef – Milos demonstrates in the first video; Big Game: Field to the Table, the importance of proper field dressing and transporting game, the need to age the game, skinning techniques, how to preserve a hide, the actual butchering, freezer wrapping of the meat, and last but not least, simple camp recipes for preparing the venison. The second video, VENISON Healthy & Tasty has Chef Milos demonstrating the use for marinades, and how to make some of his favorite venison recipes (along with accompaniments). Throughout the videos, the chef shares numerous tips on handling this type of game. CARE & COOKING Gamebirds & Animals is the third, in this series of videos.

Individual game tapes are available for $24.95. Collector gift sets of three videos in handsome holders are $69.95 per set. All tapes are available at Border's Books, Dick's Sporting Goods, Gander Mountain, Kitchen Glamor Stores, Dunham's and Best Buy or by calling toll free 1 (800) 819-3799.

If hunting is not your bag, and you'd rather not be among the 16 million plus registered hunters in the United States – game meat is only a phone call away. The Internet is a great source for ordering meat, as well as many local butchers, specialty meat shops, and game ranches.

With the concern over fat content, game meats are becoming more and more popular, here are some books to check out: America's Favorite Wild Game Recipes, The Hunting and Fishing Library, hardback 128 pages, 1994, $19.95. The Wild Menu, A Farmraised Game Cookbook Recipes from the Original National Wild Game Competition, Chef Christopher Ray with Greg Linder, hardback, 160 pages, Willow Creek Press, 1995, &24.50. The Canning, Freezing, Curing & Smoking of Meat, Fish & Game , Wilbur F. Eastman Jr., paperback, 202 pages, Garden Way Publishing, 1995 $9.95.

MEDALLIONS OF VENISON WITH GORGONZOLA BUTTER SAUCE

Serves 4

1 whole small whitetail backstrap or 3/4 mule deer backstrap, about 2 pounds

1 cup olive oil

1 tablespoon cracked black peppercorns

1 tablespoon chopped garlic

3 tablespoons lemon juice

1 teaspoon minced shallots or scallions

1/4 cup dry white wine

1/4 cup heavy cream

2 tablespoons crumbled Gorgonzola cheese

1/2 cup (1/4 pound) cold butter

1/2 teaspoon white pepper

Place the game in a glass or enameled container. Make a marinade from the oil, cracked peppercorns, garlic, and lemon juice, and pour it over the meat. Let marinate for at least 1 hour. Turn the meat occasionally to allow the marinade to flavor all sides. Meanwhile, prepare a charcoal fire or preheat a gas grill or broiler.

Herbal air: The upper herb garden at Cranbrook has a new look.

Franklin antique show features herb items

BY MARTY FIGLEY
SPECIAL WRITER

Members of the Herb Society of America, Southern Michigan Unit, have been doing a lot of planning, digging and planting to create a new look for the upper herb garden at Cranbrook Gardens in Bloomfield Hills.

Perhaps you have missed this special garden, which is several steps above the lovely formal herb garden – the one with the statue "Ecola." The next time you visit, I hope you will make a special effort to see the new design.

Members participate in several fundraisers each year, and for the second year they will offer exceptional gift items at the upcoming Franklin Community Antiques Show.

The show will take place Thursday-Saturday, Oct. 24-26, at Franklin Community Church, 32473 Normandy in Franklin. A preview party is planned 6-9 p.m. Thursday. Reservations at $35 are requested; call (810) 626-6606. Daily admission to the show (10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday) is $5.

The herb society unit will offer colorful dried herb bundles, the popular mustards, woolen angels, wreaths, lavender and rose bath salts, herbal note cards and many other unusual items. Proceeds from this booth and other unit functions are used to maintain the two herb gardens at Cranbrook. The unit has also contributed funds for the children's garden at Michigan State University, the National Herb Garden in Washington, D.C., and the Herb Society of America, with headquarters in Mentor, Ohio.

More than 30 selected dealers will offer quilts, folk art, furniture, porcelain, wicker and more.

Luncheon will be served in the Country Kitchen and baked goods will also be available for purchase.

To make the sauce, combine the shallots, wine and cream in a saucepan over moderate meat and reduce to half of the original volume. Lower the heat and add the crumbled cheese; stir until melted. Cut the cold butter into 4 pieces and add to the sauce, a piece at a time, stirring all the while. Season with white pepper. Set the sauce aside in a warm place but not over direct heat as it could cause the sauce to separate.

Put the meat close to the heat source to allow the olive oil coating to flare up and create a hot fire. Keep turning the meat to allow the outside to char without overcooking the middle. Remove the venison from the heat when it is rare (130 degrees F) or at least no more than medium-rare (140 degrees F). Slice, arrange on individual plates, top with sauce and serve.

LET'S REMODEL

The modern bathroom is now a private retreat

Q. Do you have any information available on the current trends for remodeling bathroom?

A. Homeowners are always looking to develop kitchens where they can bond as a family, but the bath is where they escape. The biggest trend in bathrooms today is cocooning. "Homeowners want to retreat from the world and their families," says Peter Schor, president, Institute of Bathroom Product Knowledge. "The American attitude toward the bath is changing. We used to look at the room as purely utilitarian. Now, we are approaching the bath as the Europeans do – we are seeing it as a place for personal pampering."

That may explain the rise in steam showers, rain bars, rain domes, double shower heads, body massagers and sprays, saunas, jetted tubs, oversized tubs and in-line heaters. Baths are becoming the one place to submerge problems and get away from life's stress and demands – and that retreat is getting bigger. Schor notes that 75 percent of consumers in a recent poll said they wanted a larger master bath with a separate tub and shower. He also notes that 18 percent of all tubs are jetted, and that number is increasing.

Americans want to relax. Some are even going so far as to put their exercise equipment in the master bath to release their aggressions before climbing into a private sauna or hot bath. But this is one trend Iris Harrell, NARI member and winner of the NARI 195 Contractor of the Year Award for Residential Baths Over $15,000, doesn't recommend. There may be too much moisture in the bath for the health of the exercise equipment. You may be encouraging rust and other deterioration.

It is better to create a separate but adjoining room for exercising. The trend for larger baths can be a trick when there is limited space to grow. If you have to choose between a bath or shower, the shower is more important. Don't try to combine the two, Harrell warns. The tub-and-shower combination is difficult to get in and out of and looks clumsy in a small space. A larger shower stall with clear glass enclosure will increase the visual line of the space while still maintaining the need for a relaxing water experience.

And an "experience" is what homeowners are seeking. They are looking at their baths as a form of water recreation, be it a long hot bath in a tub that has in-line heaters or in a shower with a rain bar. Whatever the form, the feel of water seems to be relaxing. Steam and heat seem to do the trick, too. Radiant floor heating, towel warmers and steam showers also are emerging and finding a comfortable niche in the bath market.

Magnifying mirrors are on the rise as well. As Baby Boomers are aging and their eyesight declining, the magnification is appreciated. Good lighting is, too.

NARI MICHIGAN REMODELING ASSOCIATION

Lighting is an important element of any room , but particularly in the bath. Here is a room where you must be able to shave, put on makeup, find a fallen contact lens, sort laundry, and still be able to have a soothing soak – all activities that require different lighting techniques. Schor recommends cross-illumination along side of mirrors with an additional top lighting bar. The cross lighting from the sides will eliminate dark shadows (another feature aging Boomers love). Use recessed cans and diffusers for increased mood lighting around the tub. In this area of the bath, atmosphere is everything.

The other type of lighting to remember is natural lighting. Harrell contends that daylight is essential in the bath. "People want to make a visual connection with the outside. It helps them relax and increases the visual size of the room."

Skylights, picture windows, solar tubes are all added benefits to creating the perfect bath. They increase the light and the view. Homeowners today are having hard days. Most families include two working adults who both need to get ready at the same time in the morning. These homeowners want two lavatories and maneuvering room for two, but they still want to maintain their privacy.

Another quality they are seeking to maintain is safety. Again, the largest market group is aging, and their abilities are declining; in addition, they are settling into homes in which they would most likely want to stay. These homes, and baths, need to incorporate universal design features, such as higher vanities (30-35 inches), curbless showers, wider clearances around the tub and toilet, and easily manipulated faucets and hardware.

The bath industry is a big segment of the remodeling industry and is also the most expensive per-square-foot project in the entire house. Always keep in mind safety, relaxation, expansive spaces and accessibility. But most of all, remember that the bath is a home

Home full of creative views

BY MARY KLEMIC
AT HOME EDITOR

Creativity has been important throughout Cele Landay's life.

The Farmington Hills woman worked as a commercial and residential designer for 25 years. She has served on fundraising committees and trustee boards for a variety of arts-related organizations and institutions, including with the Detroit Institute of Arts, Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association, Archives of American Art and Fanclub Foundation for the Arts.

Art is important in the Landay home as well. It is a way of having an impact on the family's environment. Landay is an example of someone comfortable with art, who arranges many different works and furniture pieces in an inviting surrounding.

"Ever since I can remember my environment has been very important to me," she said.

"All (of the works) are meant to be used. I love it all. It makes me feel good.

"They're like good friends. They really are."

Art works of many kinds are ensconced in every room. Prints and three-dimensional pieces by such 20th century artists as Ellsworth Kelly, Peter Schnabel, Wendel Castle and Jim Dine, as well as furnishings from European to Memphis styles, the whimsical and the elegant, are at home.

The pieces add to the joy of coming home. For Landay, seeing them is like greeting friends.

"I love coming home."

The dining room includes a settee, a fireplace and an unusual light fixture consisting of small bulbs on an arrangement of wires over the table. The bulbs can be slid along the wires, and raised or lowered. Candlesticks designed by Salvador Dali look like little sculptures and can be taken apart to be used. A Roy Lichtensten print of the Oval Office is on one wall.

In another room, a chair that can be divided into two sections has a '50s motif, with a Marilyn Monroe image on the back rest and materials like those from a soda fountain.

Andy Warhol's "Ten Jews" fill several walls in other rooms. Glass table works blossom from tables. A large silk tapestry bursts with vibrant colors. A blue Dale Chihuly piece, like a giant shell or flower, rests on a piano; an especially fitting place as Landay's son is a composer who wrote music for the renowned glass artist.

Some pieces are trophies to the imagination of Landay's husband, Martin, CEO of the Globe Trading Co. in Detroit. One work he designed is a table with a base made from a blender used to make compact powder parts for automobiles. The machinery can be turned on to make a rhythmic motion.

Landay's designing touch is of special note in the kitchen, where one end is a dining area. The wall here has a castle design and a fireplace. The floor is covered with bright squares that resemble a caftan.

"I buy what I love."

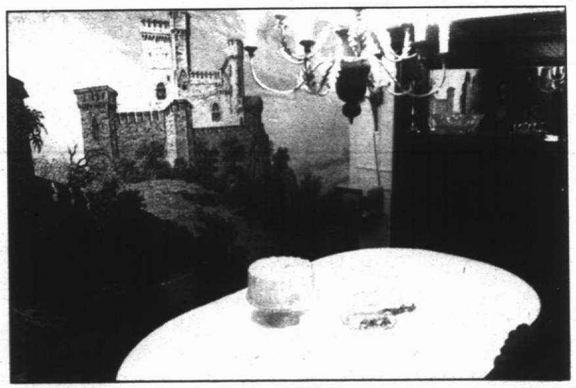
"I don't go looking for anything. It's like (the art works say), 'Cele, come get me.'"

Landay advises anyone who would like to buy art to get informed.

"Read a lot. Find out who's who. Go into the shows."

The next Fanclub benefit is 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 26, at the American Center Building, 12 Mile and Northwestern in Southfield. Proceeds will go to the BBAA, Hilberry Theatre and Orchards Children's Services After School Arts Program

The fund-raiser has a gothic theme, music, and food by more than 30 Detroit area restaurants. Costumes are optional; a costume contest offers cash prizes. Admission is $75, or $25 after 9:30 p.m. Call (810) 988-0-FAN for information.



FOCUS ON PHOTOGRAPHY

Soar with creativity

MONTE NAGLER

Every creative endeavor has its pitfalls, traps, even a room of private torment. It's difficult to keep a wave of creativity in constant momentum.

This applies to photography, too. Even with our modern cameras, lenses and knowledge of the craft, we all have those dark nights of confusion and doubt and we seem to lose perspective of what we're doing.

Well, don't store away the camera in favor of a long vacation in front of the television. The recognition of frustration and a tendency to be overly critical of your photography are part of creativity. After all, it often takes a setback to achieve further growth.

So at those times you feel you're at the end of your creative rope and you're ready to pack up the camera – don't! Here are some ideas to beat the blahs and get you back on the road to creativity.

Review your past work and begin to ask yourself some questions. Are there any particular trends or themes you may be overdoing? Is there a variation of our subject matter that will produce a fresh outlook? Can you get a different perspective by another lens or camera angle or by shooting at a different time of day? Are there ways you can add more of your own individuality to your pictures? Knowing where you've been will help you chart a course for the future.

Take another look at the world around you. There may be subject material you never considered photographing before that will now interest you. If you've always shot landscapes, perhaps now is the time to begin to photograph people. If you've always shot distant scenes, maybe now is the time to take an intimate look at textures, patterns and closeup details. If you've always been a realist, how about taking a look at some abstracts? A 180-degree turnabout may not ultimately be for you, but it will keep the creative juices flowing.

Start looking at more photographs. A trip to one of the local photography galleries or a leisurely browse through the photography books at your library or local bookstore will be rewarding and inspiring.

And keep some inspiring thoughts in mind, too. Remember that you are making photographs, not just taking snapshots. Shift your photographic vision from the recording of a scene to an expression of mood. Remember that the two most important things when you photograph are you and your subject, and strive to really get to know your subject. And remember to use your imagination and spontaneity when you photograph.

So don't let your creative bubble burst. Rather, let it help you to soar to new heights of photographic excitement.

Monte Nagler is a fine art photographer based in Farmington Hills. You can leave him a message by dialing (313) 953-2047 on a touch-tone phone, then his mailbox number, 1873.

Mourning edition tells of tragic history

BY NANCY AND FRANK BOOS
SPECIAL WRITERS

Dear Nancy and Frank:
I have an old newspaper called the Detroit Advertiser and Tribune that covers the assassination of President Abraham Lincoln. Do you think it's real and what is its value?

Carl,
Royal Oak

Dear Carl:

Your paper, dated Monday, April 17, 1865, is the morning "mourning" edition of a paper reporting stories relating to the assassination of President Lincoln by the actor John Wilkes Booth. This paper wasn't the forerunner of either our current Detroit Free Press or Detroit News. There were about 20 newspapers at that time, most of which have gone the way of the Detroit Times.

On Good Friday, April 14, 1865, the president was in a good mood for three reasons: five days before, Gen. Robert E. Lee had surrendered his Confederate army at the Appomattox Court House in Virginia; for all intents and purposes slavery had ended in the rebellious Southern states; and those states were now aware, in no uncertain terms, that secession from the Union wouldn't be tolerated.

Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln were planning to attend the theater that evening, venturing out in public even though it was common knowledge that Confederate sympathizers were many and were lurking in Washington.

Booth, a fanatic on the cause of the Confederacy and the mastermind of the assassination plot, learned of the Lincolns' theater plans and the special box in which they would be sitting.

While watching the play, "Our American Cousin," Lincoln's bodyguard become so engrossed in it that he drifted away from his position guarding the entryway to the president's box. While Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln were sitting, holding hands, Booth slipped into the box with a .44 caliber derringer loaded with one bullet. He fired from six inches into the back of Lincoln's head. Gun smoke filled the box, pandemonium broke loose, Mrs. Lincoln, weeping, cradled her husband's body and Booth leaped from the box to the main floor 10 feet below. He caught a spur in the presidential decorative bunting draped on the box and this caused him to land unevenly and break a leg. He still managed to flee from the theater shouting, "Sic semper tyrannis," which translates to "Thus always with tyrants."

Tragic news

By 11 p.m., all of Washington had heard and the nation began its mourning. By 3 a.m. Saturday, April 15, Booth's name had been released as the assassin and at 7:22 a.m., Lincoln's heart stopped and Mary Lincoln's heart broke. She never really recovered.

Booth, considered by most to be a black-hearted traitor, managed to escape roadblocks and searches for days. He had to get medical attention for his leg and went to a confederate sympathizer he had known, Dr. Samuel Mudd.

Later, when being prosecuted, Mudd said he didn't recognize Booth, who arrived in disguise, and wasn't aware that the man he treated was Lincoln's assassin. Mudd, who maintained to his dying day that he was innocent of conspiracy, was later sentenced to life in prison for helping Booth.

By Monday, April 17, the date of your paper, the entire nation had learned of the tragedy and was in mourning. By this day, Lincoln's body lay in state in Washington and hundreds of thousands turned out to pay their respects in that city and all along the route the funeral train passed as it took the body of Lincoln and his young son, Willie, who died three years earlier, to Springfield, Ill., where they were buried side by side.

Booth was finally captured in a barn in Virginia after 12 days of running and hiding. He had sworn he would never be taken alive, which turned out to be prophetic as he was shot in the head and died two hours later.

Mournful memorabilia

Your paper is memorabilia from one of the most tragic events in the history of the United States, the first assassination of an American president. If it appears to be good old paper made from rags, our feeling is that it is authentic. Newer paper would be yellower because of the acid content.

Also, the obvious condition of staining, discoloration and tears along the crease makes us more confident that it is authentic but also decreases value. Also, you'll notice the heavy black lines between the columns. This was traditionally done for publications dealing with death and mourning.

We feel that your paper would bring about $100 to $150 at an auction and perhaps 50 to 100 percent more at a retail store. This is a real dichotomy, as your item is a wonderful piece of memorabilia about one of the most heinous times in U.S. history.

When clients get 'ugly' agents stay calm

BY NORMAN PRADY
SPECIAL WRITER

"I had an ugly situation," said Linda Kittredge, a real estate sales associate, when explaining how she handles difficult clients.

Kittredge, of Quality Real Estate NW/BHG, Livonia, recalled the home seller who refused to close of the sale of his house because he wanted 100 percent of a previous deposit, of which he was legally entitled to only 50 percent.

There had been an out-of-town buyer moving here to take a new job, she said. He made an offer on this seller's house, paid a deposit of almost $6,000, was then offered an even better new job in another city and backed out of the deal knowing he might lose his deposit.

So what happens to the deposit? Sometimes, the seller may choose to have it returned to the almost buyer. Or it can be retained and divided; half to the seller, one-quarter to the seller's broker or agent, one quarter to the broker and agent who brought the buyer.

At Kittredge's company, "we always give our 25 percent to the seller." So this seller now had 75 percent but wanted it all. "His perception was that it was a deposit on his house and it was his money. We went around and around for days, maybe two weeks."

He apparently was not impressed with the words in the sales contract, which clearly outlined the distribution of a retained deposit. Nor did he accept, Kittredge said, her further explanation that the remaining quarter was not her company's to give, that the other company was legally entitled to and, when asked, had said they intended to keep it.

How determined was the seller to get the remaining 25 percent, a sum less than $1,500? Consider this: while he was demanding the additional money, Kittredge brought him a new offer on his house with a higher selling price than the first offer, which would more than make up for the amount he felt he was losing. He accepted the offer, but then said he wouldn't complete the sale until he got the balance of the original deposit.

"We sat down to sign and he refused to sign. I brought in my broker, who explained to him that it could go to arbitration but he'd lose. He settled down and signed."

While all this was happening, this seller himself was under pressure to move to another city to start his own new job. He was "otherwise pleasant," Kittredge said.

"We have to be very careful in writing contracts," Kittredge said, "and standing behind them and explaining them.

"People understand conceptually, but when an unexpected situation arises, it's easy to become confused and for harsh feelings to start erupting."

On the other side of the transaction, difficult times with buyers, Kittredge said, can be due to expectations about the content or condition of the house.

When the buyer discovers, for example, when taking possession of the house, that something is missing, possibly a major appliance, "sometimes agents will try to smooth things over," she said.

"Sometimes," she said, "the buying and selling agents will chip in to replace something. When the (buyers) are angry, who are you going to lash out at?"

Nancy Howell, office manager and associate broker at ERA Home & Land, Rochester Hills, says that "calm" is the secret to handling a difficult client.

"Have to keep everyone calm. Remain calm and try to reason with facts. Constant communication. Documentation. And patience. We have to be adept at being good counselors."

Like Kittredge, Howell has had the experience of solving problems with cash out of her own pocket, replacing what she refers to as "small items" to resolve some sticking point. This can mean she might "end up buying an appliance or a light fixture."

When there are differences between the buyer and the seller, or when the buyer feels shortchanged, they "look to the Realtor to kick in," she said.

Are there times an agent would like to fire a client? Apparently so, according to the experience of Virginia Tipton, associate broker with Red Carpet Keim Will Tipton, Garden City.

For Tipton, the issue was "trust," and the difficult client was a seller who was "questioning everything we do," Tipton said. "You do have to trust people."

Tipton drew up a contract to return the seller's listing to him, legally keeping the commission rights to the buyer she had already presented. The seller knew that this was a premium buyer and his best selling opportunity. He "then became manageable. Transaction was perfect."

"It boils down to patience," said Jane Maier, associate broker with Why USA All American Properties, Farmington.

As issues come up for seller or buyer to confront, "I present the situation and leave it alone. It has to be their decision.

"I've always been considered a 'soft sell,' someone who considers people's feelings, she explained.

"Buying or selling a house is emotional. People have to work things through, not be pressured."

Don't just sit there quietly if your condo is noisy

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q. My air conditioning chiller system is a common element of our condominium and is in my building. It didn't work for a number of years, but recently, it was activated. Since then, the noise level and vibrations have become very disturbing.

Do you think I have any basis to pursue the condominium association and/or its board?

A. Of course, each claim would depend upon the sentiments of the judge, but in a recent appellate case from Massachusetts, the court held that a co-owner could maintain a nuisance action against the condominium association. The court recognized the obligation of a board to correct a "substantial interference with the quiet enjoyment" of the co-owner's unit from a cause located in the common areas. The case in question also upheld the right of the co-owner to sue the broker, who, at the time of purchase, assured the co-owner that the unit was quiet, and there were no noise problems. The court held that the issue was whether the statement by the broker was one of opinion of fact. The court said that while a statement about noise can be either, in the case at hand it was reasonable to infer that the real estate agent had facts to justify her statements because her employer maintained an office in the condominium and had been involved in sales for a period of years.

Q. I entered into a purchase agreement for a condominium and made a deal with the builder, but unfortunately I did not get legal advice and the contract provided no specific time table in the purchase agreement. Now, after the purchase agreement has been signed, I find that the builder made a deal with a topsoil contractor to store the topsoil on my condominium property. Accordingly, the builder has not started my unit.

What recourse do I have in order to have the builder live up to his part of the purchase agreement.

A. It appears that you have dug a hole for yourself, literally and figuratively, in this one. Obviously, the builder feels that he is under no compulsion to complete your condominium in a timely fashion.

However, reasonableness dictates that he would make a good faith effort to commence construction. Presumably the builder would be willing to give you your purchase money deposit back if you requested it from him, and, if this is a new condominium and the builder is a developer, you may have recourse in the event that the purchase agreement does not comply with all of the aspects of the condominium act.

You should immediately consult with a lawyer to review your purchase agreement and inform the builder of your dissatisfaction. You will have to make a decision as to whether you want to try to force the builder to complete the building in a timely fashion or simply get your money back.

Again, it depends upon the terms of the building contract and a further review of the facts.

Feeling the chill?

Wintertime means chill time for just about everyone. And, the chill can appear quickly when rooms in your home or office are just too cold. In fact, nearly all homeowners and business owners alike report rooms that tend to be much colder than others within the same structure. No matter how high they set their thermostat, they are not able to make those cold rooms comfortable.

Why? Because of bends in the ductwork, ducting types or long duct runs, certain rooms simply do not receive the same amount of airflow as other rooms.

Well, suffer no more. Specialty fans like the EntreeAir Door Frame Fan and the Equalizer EQ2 Register Airflow Booster help keep the chill out of wintertime.

Designed to quietly circulate air from room to room, the EntreeAir Door Frame Fan simply mounts in the corner of a door frame and will not interfere with the normal operation of the door. A convenient rotary on/off switch is located on the 10-foot power cord. For homeowners, the EntreeAir is ideal for circulating heated air from rooms with fireplaces and wood stoves. In the office, it moves air from warmer to cooler rooms.

The Equalizer EQ2 Register Airflow Booster is designed to pull twice as much air from poorly performing registers every time your forced-air heating system operates. (It also works with a central air-conditioning system in the summer.) As a result, the air spends less time getting to the room, and the air temperature is greatly improved.

This airflow booster simply mounts over an existing floor or wall register (duct openings 6 inches by 12 inches or smaller) and plugs into a I 10-volt outlet. With its built-in thermostat, you can select a temperature at which the unit will turn on and turn off automatically. It also can be set to run continuously for improved air circulation.

Both the EntreeAir™ and Equalizer EQ2 are energy-efficient, operating for less than 3 cents a day, and are safe for children and pets.

When were the lowest mortgage rates offered?

MORTGAGE SHOPPING

DAVID C. MULLY

In this segment of my column, I look back and compare mortgage interest rates and mortgage trends over the last 25 years. Last week we looked at when the highest 30-year fixed-rate occurred. This week, let's look at when the lowest 30-year fixed-rate occurred. Do you know what the rate was and in what year it occurred?

With the presidential election coming up, I thought it would be interesting to look at what interest rates have typically done after an election. Looking back to the 1988 and 1992 election years, do you think rates went up or down after the election? (Answers are at the end of this column.)

To buy an existing home:

Most have heard about the supposed hassles lenders put us through when applying for a mortgage. But, simply by documenting the way you manage your assets before you buy a home, you can avoid some of these hassles. For example, when you know you are getting ready to move and purchase a home in the near future, make sure you save your three most recent bank or asset statements. If you move any of your assets from one account to another in preparing for the purchase, simply keep records of these transactions. Often, people don't think of this. When applying for a mortgage, the lender may notice a large deposit in a particular account and ask for an explanation. It becomes difficult to verify where the deposit came from if you do not keep accurate records.

You may ask why lenders even care where the money comes from if you are making a large down payment. But, they do care because they have to verify that these funds were not borrowed. Because lenders generally sell loans in the secondary market, they need verification for their buyers of all funds used in the transaction. Even if you're receiving a gift from a relative of have money under a mattress, you're best to have the money in your bank account at least three to four months before you buy. If this is not possible, simply keep a record of any deposits you make and where the money came from. This will help to avoid some of the hassles others have gone through because they did not keep records.

To buy a newly constructed home:

My advice here is to always read your purchase agreement with the builder. Specifically, be aware of what the Michigan State Transfer Tax will cost on new construction purchases and whether the builder (seller) is paying it or passing the cost on to you, the buyers.

Recently, in talking to senior loan officer Vivian Johnson from Old Kent Mortgage, she shared the experiences of two of her customers who recently bought new-construction homes. She said, "They were not aware that the fine print in their contract with the builder stated that they were to pay the Michigan Transfer Tax." The Michigan Transfer Tax normally is paid by a seller when selling a home. Builders are considered the seller in new construction transactions. Therefore, they pay the transfer tax or sometimes, as in this case, they pass it on to the purchasers.

Where it was confusing for these customers, according to Johnson, was "It was not pointed out or even estimated as to how much the cost would be to my clients until the time of closing. This caused a problem in that the purchaser ended up needing additional funds to close which they were not prepared to pay." Even though the builder disclosed this in the contract, they did not include the tax amount in their estmate of cost to the purchaser. Make sure you ask up front who is paying for this tax and how much the cost will be. According to Johnson, "Make sure you give this information to your loan officer so they may include this cost in your total estimate needed." This helps you have a better understanding of how much you need for the closing and helps the lender do an accurate verification of funds needed to close.

To refinance your home:

With interest rates still very low and close to the lowest levels in the last 24 years, many homeowners are still refinancing. One large segment of home owners refinancing currently are those who took out a one-year adjustable mortgage originally and now find their rate increasing, causing their payment to increase. Other homeowners may see the adjustment date creeping up and don't want to wait for the upward adjustment to occur so they refinance before this can happen to them.

It can make sense for some of these homeowners to consider another one-year adjustable mortgage (with no prepayment penalty). In most cases, I have found that the cost to refinance can easily be recouped in a matter of months. So, depending on your opinion of where rates are going and how long you plan on staying in your home, it may be the right decision for you now.

Mortgage Timeline answers:

In October 1993, the 30-year fixed-rate was at a 25-year low; it bottomed out at 6.83 percent. Before this time, the previous 25-year low was in April 1972 with a 30-year fixed rate of 7.29 percent. Compare this to today's rate of 8.0 percent and you can see that we are still very close to some of the all-time 25-year lows.

After both presidential elections in 1988 and 1992, interest rates went down. In November 1988, the 30-year fixed-rate was at 10.27 percent, falling slightly to the high 9 percent range by mid 1989. In November of 1992, the 30-year fixed rate was at 8.31 percent, falling all the way to the 25-year low of 6.83 percent in October 1993.

Select furnace wisely

For most consumers, their heating system is their home's biggest energy user – and biggest factor in their energy bills.

Thus, when buying new heating equipment, consumers should consider not only the purchase price but also the energy it uses, the efficiency of the equipment and annual operating costs.

Federal ratings, called "annual fuel utilization efficiency" or AFUE, help consumers compare the efficiency ratings of new furnaces and boilers. These ratings are found on bright yellow EnergyGuide labels.

Using average energy cost information from the U.S. Department of Energy, the American Gas Association (A.G.A.) has calculated how much it costs to operate central heating systems with various types of energy on a national average basis.

For example, a conventional gas furnace with a 78 percent efficiency rating would cost $637 to operate in 1996, according to A.G.A. A high-efficiency natural gas furnace with a 94 percent AFUE would cost $483 to operate in 1996, A.G.A. says.

In contrast, a high-efficiency electric resistance heating system with a 99 percent efficiency rating would cost $1,727 to operate – almost four times more than the high-efficiency natural gas unit.

This means that, over the average 18-year life of a heating system, a consumer could save $22,000 by selecting a high-efficiency gas unit instead of an electric resistance unit.
