Observer to introduce new Sunday edition

The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers will move its Monday newspapers to Sunday publication to better meet the needs of suburban advertisers and readers.

The change will take place February 1997, vice president and general manager Steve Pope announced Tuesday.

"Our market analysis shows a Sunday environment is better for both advertisers and readers," said Pope. "It allows advertisers to capture the weekend market and offers readers our product when they have more free time in their day. Both readers and advertisers have been requesting this change over the past few years."

"The community character of the papers will not change, and we will continue to emphasize local news," Pope said.

"It's our intention to build on our franchise as a dominant provider of local news in Oakland and Wayne counties," he said.

"Our new Sunday publication will embrace all of the features of the Monday newspapers including high school sports coverage, Malls & Mainstreets and our colorful Taste section," said Pope.

The New Homes section which contains stories and pictures of new residential developments will move to Sunday.

"That's the day families traditionally shop for a new home," Pope said.

Sunday's coverage also will include health and business and a new fine arts section.

The Observer & Eccentric publishes 15 suburban newspapers with a combined circulation of 160,000. The papers had published on Thursday and Monday since 1974, when the Observer and Eccentric groups merged.

The move to Sunday will affect only the 12 editions now published on Monday and Thursday.

Man will stand trial for drugs

A local judge this week refused to further reduce the sentence of a Canton man facing felony drug charges. The man's attorney argues that others had access to the storage locker containing cocaine.

BY VALERIE OLANDER

Accused drug dealer Jon Paul Drahos, 25, of Canton may not have been the only one with access to a rented storage unit where 630 grams of cocaine was seized by Detroit police on Oct. 8, according to statements made Monday in 35th District Court.

Defense attorney Anthony Chambers made the comments during a preliminary exam for Drahos on the drug charges. Chambers said the drugs were found in the trunk of a 1964 Ford Galaxy parked in a garage unit Drahos rented at American Budget Storage, located on Joy Road, east of Haggerty.

Drahos lived nearby in the Stoneybrooke Apartments. Police also raided his residence, confiscating approximately 10 grams of cocaine, marijuana and Diazepam (Valium), police said.

However, 35th District Court Judge John MacDonald denied a request from the defense attorney Monday to further reduce charges brought against Drahos.

Drahos was arraigned on a mandatory life charge of possessing over 650 grams of cocaine. However, that charge was reduced last week when a formal lab analysis weighed in the evidence slightly less than 650 grams.

Drahos now faces a lesser charge of possession of 625-649 grams of cocaine, which carries a mandatory 20-year prison term upon conviction.

On Monday, Chambers motioned to get evidence which was confiscated from the rented storage unit thrown out of court, calling it circumstantial. He requested the charge against Drahos be further

High turnout is expected in Tuesday election

ELECTION '96

BY CASEY HANS
STAFF WRITER

More than 60 percent of Canton voters are expected to cast ballots in the Nov. 5 general election Tuesday, Canton Township Clerk Terry Bennett predicted this week.

Although absentee ballot returns were slow early in the week, Bennett said she expected a similar turnout to the one experienced in the last presidential election four years ago, when between 64-67 percent of voters went to the polls.

"This is a really difficult one to predict," she said. "But I would guess over 60 percent."

She said that although 5,700 requests for absentee ballot were made as of early this week, only 2,000 had been returned.

"Does that mean that they just haven't decided, or have they decided not to vote? I'm not sure," she added. "But we're gearing up for a last-minute rush."

Township Hall will be open during special hours from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. this Saturday, in addition to regular weekday hours, for voters to apply for absentee ballots. By law, voters have until 4 p.m. Monday to drop off their ballots; emergency ballot returns will be accepted at the clerk's discretion on Tuesday.

"I would like to suggest that people be prepared, because the ballot is a long one," she said. In a pre-election test, it took an average voter six and a half minutes to read 75 percent of the ballot through. For that reason, she expects lines to be long.

Bennett noted several items of which voters should be aware:

- If you applied for and received an absentee ballot, and decide to go to the polls personally, you must surrender the absentee ballot before being given one at the polls.
- New registration cards were sent out one year ago noting the proper voting precinct. If unsure, contact the clerk's office.
- If you have moved within the 21st District House race is heating up

BY VALERIE OLANDER
STAFF WRITER

A hot race for the 21st District state House of Representatives turned into a mellow debate Monday between Republican incumbent Deborah Whyman and challenger Deborah Nesbit, a Democrat.

Although the two candidates disagreed on almost every question asked of them at the Canton Chamber of Commerce-sponsored event, forum moderator Dr. A. Frederick Neil only issued three warnings regarding the mutually agreed upon rules of the debate.

Nesbit received two of the warnings for telling attendees that she is "scared to death" of Whyman's extreme measures, particularly those involving alleged ties to the Michigan Militia.

Whyman received one warning at the very end of the debate when she alleged Nesbit was being financed in her campaign by out-of-district supporters. Whyman, who was on a crusade to abolish Detroit Recorder's Court during her two terms in office, claimed Nesbit's campaign financial forms show several Recorder's Court judges contributed.

The majority of the debate focused on the issues and was free of sniping between candidates, despite the obvious differences they had on the issues. They discussed such topics as the state's role in welfare reform and health care, and how to downsize government without cutting programs.

Whyman supported privatizing government programs to cut costs, such as in the Former teaching sub charged with touching

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

A former Plymouth-Canton substitute teacher faces a preliminary exam today in connection with charges of criminal sexual conduct involving a North Oakland County high school student.

Melvyn O'Dowd, 29, of Westland, is charged with driving a 15-year-old Holly High School student to a cemetery in his car and fondling her.

Last year, the parent of a Plymouth-Salem High School senior complained about the same teacher to Plymouth-Canton school officials. The mother claimed he flirted with her daughter and asked personal questions, said Holly Police Detective Scott Fischer. The student skipped school to avoid the teacher, Fischer said.

O'Dowd's telephone number is unlisted; he could not be reached for comment.

O'Dowd is to appear in Clarkston's 52nd District Court, 2nd Division on charges of criminal sexual conduct in the fourth degree. Improper sexual touching is a misdemeanor punishable by up to two years in jail, a $500 fine, and includes mandatory testing for AIDS and other sexually-transmitted diseases.

Fischer said he is also investigating charges leveled by a second Holly student who claims to have been fondled in a school storage room.

prisons and Department of Treasury. Prison guards don't have to be state employees, she said. There also is no need to keep employees year-round in the Treasury Department when the busiest time of the year is during income tax season, she said.

"Privatizing can mean the loss of many jobs," said Nesbit.

Nesbit favored looking at programs that are duplicated, requiring more accountability from some departments and opening the doors of communication among all the state agencies to get the most effectiveness out of the programs that state currently has to offer.

Nesbit also was concerned about the loss of school funding from Proposal A, which reduced local property taxes in exchange for a higher sales tax. The result has been the reduction of funds for the local school districts, which are growing at astronomical rates in the Canton community. Nesbit said an amendment to Proposal A is needed to bring money back to the local districts.

Whyman said schools need to look at cuts in administrative and teacher salaries before getting more state funding. She cited a recent news report which claimed teachers in Michigan were the highest paid in the nation.

She also would like to see a law enacted that would require builders in new growth areas to help with the construction of new schools, similar to the way developers build new roads.

Nesbit said a safety net is need to move people from welfare to the workforce and that includes offering adult education programs, day care and transportation.

Whyman said a closer eye is needed to ensure programs aren't abused. In the past, drug addicts and alcoholics were given state money straight out, she said. Whyman was responsible for getting a law passed that required them to be enrolled in a drug treatment program before getting any of the funding, she told the group.

"There are two types of legislators. Those who go along with everything and those who take on the tough issues. I'm not afraid to take on the tough issues," said Whyman in her opening statement.

Said Nesbit in her closing statement: "I want to represent Canton in a positive nature ... I have problems with the way we've been represented and want to make positive changes."

township of Canton and have not changed your registration, you will be allowed to vote one time at the old precinct. However, be prepared to take the time to fill out paperwork correcting your address for future elections.

• If you have moved away from Canton, you may also vote this time if the move was within 60 days of election day, Bennett said. You must also be prepared to fill out correcting paperwork.

Bennett said clerks' offices are having problems this year with people who have filled out a mail-in voter registration, instead of registering personally at a clerk's office or Secretary of State branch. Those voters cannot receive an absentee ballot this year, she said, because no one has verified their registration personally. They must vote at least once in person before an absentee ballot will be considered, although this disclaimer is not noted on the mail-in form.

"No one has seen them (the voter) face-to-face," Bennett added. "It's an attempt to cut down on voter fraud. We've had a lot of unhappy people."

Bennett noted that with the recent declaration of write-in candidate Michael Witten, a Democrat running for the office of supervisor, her office will take extra care in counting ballots.

"We will be very laborious and meticulous so we can account for them all," she added. For this reason, she said those looking for results can expect a late tentative count of votes.

The Canton Board of Canvassers is scheduled to meet Wednesday afternoon to verify the vote count.

ELECTION 96 CANTON PUBLIC LIBRARY BOARD OF TRUSTEES

There are seven candidates for six non-partisan seats in the Nov. 5 election. Top vote-getters will serve four-year terms on this independent board. Candidate William T. Simmerer, an incumbent did not respond to our request for information for this chart. This is the final installment in coverage.

	How do you feel technology fits into the public library operations and services? How important would is it and what role should it play?	Do you support library expansion? How would you pay for it?
 Katherine A. Baldrica Basner, 53 Teacher for 29 years, Wayne-Westland Married to Bill Basner 23 years in district Community involvement: incumbent on Library Board, active in Canton Business and Professional Women	I am skeptical of the overall importance of technology. Obviously, there are many values, but there are some serious drawbacks. Possibly the greatest strength of technology is its ability to provide current information. However, the cost of keeping up with technology is expensive. Technology should be one means of supporting resident needs, but it should not be the sole focus. A sound library must always have an assortment of print and non-print materials.	Yes, I support library expansion and the sooner the better. We must expand before we are immobilized and unable to provide quality service. The costs for expansion will be through a bond proposal. When we proposed an expansion bond two years ago, we were looking at financing for the shortest duration possible to take advantage of the low interest rates which prevailed. Our goal has always been to proceed in the most economical way available to us.
 James Gillig, 58 Orthodontist, Canton practice Married to Sandy Gillig, 2 daughters 19 years in district Community: incumbent on Library Board, 1991 Small Business Person of the Year, Educational Exc. Found. Board 2010	Technology will be at the heart of all future modern libraries. Through the use of technology we can access information all over the world in seconds. We are one of the most technologically advanced libraries in the state, but we must continue to take a leadership role in this area. This should not be interpreted to mean that print is dead! There will always be a place for books, magazines and newspapers.	The library will have to be expanded. We cannot continue indefinitely without enlarging the physical plant. The real question is when our patrons will demand that we expand. Financing should be through the use of bonds through a dedicated millage. Current debt is paid out of operating millage and accounts for 20 percent of our budget. In the future it won't be possible to build and operate a larger facility out of operating income alone.
 Gregory Stachura, 46 transportation/shipping sales Married to Jean Stachura, two children and one nephew; 17 years in district Community: current president of Library Board, RESA education foundation, elder in First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth	Technology is here to stay. There has been a cultural shift that will not reverse itself and our patrons are going to expect continuing service. Electronics have streamlined the workload for our staff to multiply their efficiency. Electronics have streamlined the workload for our staff to multiply their efficiency. The rapidity with which technology delivers information will enhance the utilization of our resources by making them available simultaneously.	I have supported and continue to support expansion of the library to the extent that the voters of Canton are willing to pay for it. The vehicles for finance are clear; either we issue bonds, try to build cash reserves for future building through less service today, or we develop some combination of the two. There isn't a better value around than that which our citizens enjoy through our library. Unfortunately, many think the library gets funding through the township.
 Raymond J. Van Hoeck, 64 Retired senior officer in banking/finance Married to Maggie VanHoeck, 4 children 19 years in district Community involvement: served on Canton Tax Review Board, active in St. John Neumann parish, many committees	It will be necessary for technology to play an increasing role in meeting the library needs of residents. Some of the growth pains of the area can also be alleviated by current day technology. The library's use of technology should dovetail with the expansion of technology in our everyday lives. Two cautions: do not be a slave to it and do not expand resources that would best be handled by the private sector.	Expansion is one of the obvious ways of meeting the growing need for library services and I would strongly support expansion if study showed it to be the most efficient solution. I believe that: use of neighboring community and school library resources and use of technology should be thoroughly explored to determine their cost effectiveness. If expansion proves to be the best way of meeting growth, then board members should examine funding methods.
 Kathy Young, 51 Exhibit manager, Gale Research Married, three children 19 years in district	If funding could support it, technology should be part of every library's future. Technology offers the library community not only automation, but limitless opportunities for accessing information beyond the walls of the Canton Library. Through online access, patrons can have worldwide access to information that was previously only available at certain locations.	Yes. I believe a library expansion is needed, but would need to research the figures more closely before making a judgment and, of course, the final decision would need voter support.
 Edward J. Zelmanski, Jr., 43 Attorney with D. Douglas Alexander Married to Karen Brackett, Canton teacher; 3 children 16 years in district Community: school activities and scouting leadership	We are living in an exciting time. Technology has revolutionized the communications process and the computer network is a central component of that change. Its place in the modern library is central. The board must use wisdom in determining the correct balance for the current time.	Yes. 2 mills are allowed for library funding. The board needs to consider alternate funding sources (ie: friends, bequests, etc.) and a Headlee override is an option. d(1.64 Headlee limit)

Accident

A 79-year-old Canton woman was in serious condition this week at the University of Michigan Hospital following an accident on Sheldon Road, near Ford, about 4 p.m. Friday.

Police said the woman was driving a 1988 Chevrolet Celebrity across Sheldon Road from the Kmart exit into the Kroger parking lot entrance when a 1987 Plymouth Sundance struck the passenger side. The Sundance, driven by a 19-year-old Canton man, was heading northbound on Sheldon. The impact caused the Celebrity to hit a third vehicle, a 1986 Chrysler Fifth Avenue, which was waiting to exit Kroger.

No tickets were issued. Police are continuing their investigation.

Malicious destruction

A 29-year-old Livonia man called police when a dispute that started in Westland spilled over into Canton during a car chase along Ford Road about 2:30 a.m. Oct. 23. The victim told police the incident began at a Westland bar. He left the bar and was driving down Ford Road in his 1991 GMC Pickup truck when a Canton man, 22, reportedly cut him off in his vehicle at Ford Road and Newburgh. The Canton man got out of his vehicle and threatened him with a knife through the window, he told police. The victim stopped at a gas station and called police then drove west on Ford Road. The suspect continued following him to Ford and Hix, where he again got out of his vehicle and dented the 1991 GMC pickup truck with the butt of a knife, causing $300 in damage. The motorist then fled northbound on Haggerty from Ford Road.

Stolen cars

Two cars were reported stolen from The Crossings at Canton. A 1986 Pontiac was stolen from in front of one apartment building sometime between midnight and 6:45 a.m. Friday and a 1987 Oldsmobile Cutlass was stolen from a car port between 10:30 p.m. Thursday and 10:30 a.m. Friday. A 1990 Nissan was stolen from Saratoga Street in the Lilley and Ford Road area sometime between 10:30 p.m. last Thursday and 6 a.m. Friday.

Malicious destruction

Approximately $1,500 in damage was reported to police Friday morning when it was discovered that vandals poured a liquid substance, believed to be paint thinner, on a 1993 Ford Van that was parked in a driveway on Spinning Wheel in the Beck and Warren area.

Felonious assault

A Detroit man told Canton police an off-duty Wayne County Sheriff Deputy threatened him with a handgun after he pulled in front of the deputy's pickup truck on Ford Road and Lilley about 9:30 p.m. Friday. The motorist said the 1994 Chevrolet pickup driven by the deputy began following him until he pulled into a gas station on Warren Road. The Detroit man and his son ran into the gas station to call for help. The attendant didn't call police because the deputy identified himself as a police officer and then, yelled at the Detroit man for driving erratically and almost causing an accident, the attendant told police. She never saw a gun, police said.

The deputy told police he never drew his weapon, but did yell . Police are investigating.

O'Dowd, who has no criminal record, stood mute at his arraignment before Magistrate Lawrence Johnson. A plea of not guilty was entered for him.

Plymouth-Canton Assistant Superintendent for Employee Relations Errol Goldman said that local concerns involving O'Dowd were resolved. "We listened to the concerns they (mother and daughter) had, and addressed them. We believe they were investigated to the parent's and child's satisfaction, and the matter was resolved at that point," said Goldman.

Canton police were not contacted, nor were formal charges brought.

O'Dowd was substituting for a Plymouth-Canton science teacher who was on a leave of absence last year. Goldman said the complaints were made early second semester. An investigation was completed in April, and the teacher finished out the semester before being hired by Holly Public Schools to teach physical science.

Goldman said O'Dowd was not asked to leave the district. "He was a long-term substitute. So when the position finished, there was no longer a position for him," he said.

Fischer said the Salem mother "didn't know what the exact results were from their meeting. The only thing she did know for sure is that the teacher was not to have any contact with her daughter."

The news came as a surprise to one Salem science teacher who asked not to be named. "I worked with Melvyn O'Dowd, and as far as a coworker, he handles himself very professionally," she said. "He has great classroom management.

"He had taken a lot of interest in the Science Olympiad and had come to me a couple of times to find out more about his being involved. He expressed interest in working with the Olympiad, and was very interested in keeping up."

There was nothing wrong with O'Dowd's conduct, she added. "He never did anything to make me think otherwise."

Big-hearted girl helps friend in need

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Robin Kendall's heart must be nearly as big as one of her stuffed animals. The 9-year-old from Canton has collected nearly $1,400 for a fellow dancer who needs a bone marrow transplant.

Robin, who takes lessons at Masters of Dance Arts in Canton, raised the money in a single day at Miller Elementary School.

Robin and Stephanie Smith, 8, of Belleville met last summer at a national dance competition in Arlington, Va.

"When I saw her dance, she had one-and-a-half legs," said Robin. "I knew she was kind of sick, but I didn't know she was very sick. She's funny. She seems to be happy no matter what she does."

Robin, her parents and others at the competition learned that Stephanie needs a $500,000 transplant not covered by insurance. The girl's parents have been told that unless the transplant takes place within the month, "she is in God's hands."

Stephanie – a T-ball player and winner of both ballet and national beauty pageant titles – has a rare auto-immune disorder for which there is no name. The disease eats away at bones and joints, causing extreme pain and stiffness.

When Stephanie was 3, her right ankle had swollen to four times its normal size. Doctors were forced to amputate her leg below the knee. Chemotherapy has taken its toll on Stephanie's organs.

Her parents say that if the operation is paid for in advance, several hospitals are willing to perform the experimental transplant. "The chances are nine out of 10 that if she has the transplant, she will get better," said Jill Kendall, Robin's mother. "If not, it will turn into leukemia and she may die."

Jill said Stephanie's tragedy "kind of hit Robin. She said, 'Mommy, I wish I could do something more to help Stephanie.'"

Said Robin: "I was sad. I thought they (Stephanie's parents) wouldn't make that much money. I wish Stephanie could live."

Mother and daughter went to work. With the permission of Miller principal Peggy Brooks, they distributed 600 fliers to students and staff explaining Stephanie's situation. After lunch the next day, Robin sat outside the cafeteria and accepted donations.

"One family gave $250, and another one gave $200," said Robin, who spends lots of time reading when she's not practicing hip-hop, jazz, or ballet. "Four of my friends and one of their friends raised $110."

Robin gave the money to Stephanie at a pizza party that night at Masters of Dance. "Stephanie was surprised," said Robin. "So was her mom. Her mom started to cry."

Dance parents have donated funds raised at their concession booth at the Palace in Auburn Hills. Stephanie's friends gave what they earned at a dance benefit they staged recently in Belleville. Dancers and instructors flew in from as far away as Pennsylvania to help.

So far, $150,000 has been raised.

Jill and John Kendall are understandably proud of their daughter, and at the same time dismayed that such a fund-raiser is necessary.

"I can't believe people can be turned away like that," said John. "They can let people get sicker and sicker, and not give them the half million. But they can launch a missile that costs $1.2 million, and a company like Ford can pay $40 million to put their name on a new stadium."

"It's horrible to think she didn't even meet the experimental guidelines," said Jill.

'I knew she was kind of sick, but I didn't know she was very sick. She's funny. She seems to be happy no matter what she does.'

Robin Kendall talking about her friend

Robin is thinking positively. "Stephanie's mom promised me since I raised all that money that one day if Stephanie got better and had the transplant that I could go to the park and play with her. I thought that was really sweet."

Greg Kendall, 6, a young man of few words, has been a supportive brother. Asked what he thinks of his sister's efforts, he said: "good."

Anyone wishing to help may make checks payable to the Friends of Stephanie Smith, and send them to P.O. Box 258, Bryn Mawr, Pa. 19010. The fund is administered by the National Transplant Assistance Fund, a non-profit tax-exempt organization.

Band marches its way into the record books

BY DIANE HANSON
SPECIAL WRITER

The Plymouth-Canton Marching Band pulled it off again under the big top of the Silverdome in Pontiac on Oct. 26.

They marched their way into the record books of the 21-year history of the Michigan Competing Bands Association State Championships on Saturday after a stellar competition season in the state, sweeping every first-place award possible.

Plymouth-Canton's championship performance earned band members Flight I trophies for Best Percussion, Best Music, Best Marching and Maneuvering and first place in Flight I as well as the highest score, 94.32, ever achieved in the MCBA's 21-year history.

That topped Plymouth-Canton's record-breaking score of 94.0 last year.

"I'm glad we broke the record from last year," said senior trumpet player Beth Derbin. "I thought that was cool."

Contenders at the championships included 10 bands from each of Flights I, II, III and IV, selected to compete on the state level based on each band's season competition scores.

"The level of marching band performance in Michigan has just increased, improved phenomenally over the last three years," said Jack Ellis, president of the Board of Trustees of the MCBA. "These band kids are incredibly dedicated." Senior saxophonist Joe Violi felt really good about the PCMB Saturday night performance.

"I thought it was one of our best performances of the year," he said.

But he also felt some cause for concern and hoped the terrific score wouldn't give the band a false sense of security with just two weeks to go until the Bands of America Grand National Championships in Indianapolis.

"We have other business to look forward to," said Violi. "We're going to have to work really hard these next two weeks to make the show as good as it can be."

Band director David McGrath couldn't agree more.

"They performed extremely well tonight," he said. "They marched and played very, very well. We have two weeks yet to keep polishing it (the show) and add the finishing touches."

He added if the band members "keep their focus and work hard, which I don't doubt that they will, in two weeks, we're in good shape."

McGrath pointed out that the RCA Dome in Indianapolis, where the national championships will be held, is about 20,000 seats smaller than the Silverdome with less reverberation. The most important thing right now, according to McGrath, is that the kids are having a lot of fun with their crowd-pleasing program of "The Road to Oz."

The masterful musical combination of "The Wizard of Oz" and "The Wiz," in conjunction with creative choreography and marching is drawing voluminous applause from delighted audiences.

Said junior Dave Hester, who plays a trumpet solo in the program, "I really enjoyed it and I'm sure everyone else did, too."

The Flight II championship went to Lakeland, 93.37. Farmington Harrison captured the Flight III top award with a score of 89.57 and Chesaning cinched first in Flight IV with 84.17 points.

Other area bands were Flight I, Livonia Franklin, 73.67, and ninth place. West Bloomfield took seventh place with 75.37, and Westland's John Glenn came in fourth with 78.87.

The Plymouth-Canton band will be competing at the Grand National Championships on Nov. 7-9.

reduced to possession of less than 50 grams of cocaine for the narcotics seized from his apartment.

Detroit police Officer Gasper Rossi testified that the key to the trunk of the 1964 Ford Galaxy was found in an exhaust system suspended from the ceiling of the storage unit.

"Anyone who has access to the storage bin has access to the car," Chambers argued.

Chambers also argued that police didn't find packaging and cutting materials at the apartment or at the storage unit, which would have indicated Drahos was selling the illegal substance.

MacDonald ruled that enough probable cause existed to bind the case over to Recorder's Court on the charge of possession of 625 to 649 grams of cocaine.

Wayne County Assistant Prosecutor Pat Muscat made a request to MacDonald to reinstitute the $1 million bond that was originally set at the arraignment. Last week, Judge Ronald Lowe lowered the bond to a $200,000 cash when the possession charge was reduced.

"He missed facing life in prison by 10 grams. I don't feel it's appropriate for someone in possession of such a large quantity of cocaine to get off on $200,000 bond," Muscat argued.

MacDonald declined to increase the bond.

Patterson's a no-show on tax cut vote

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK
STAFF WRITER

■ 'It's a perfect example of how he's never here when it matters.'

Michelle Plawecki

Three of four western Wayne County commissioners supported a 0.25 mill tax cut for county residents during a vote on Tuesday.

But the missing vote from the fourth commissioner — who was absent — was blamed by another commissioner for the board's failure to pass the cut.

Commissioners voted, 7-7, to reduce the county's general operational millage. Commissioners Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia; Michelle Plawecki, D-Redford Township, and Kay Beard, D-Westland supported the measure.

Bruce Patterson, R-Canton, was absent. Plawecki blamed Patterson for the motion's failure.

The vote was split evenly between the suburban and Detroit commissioners.

Opposing it were Edna Bell, Robert Blackwell, Kenneth Cockrel, George Cushingberry, Bernard Parker, chairman Ricardo Soloman and Jewel Ware.

The commissioners eventually approved appropriations for December and an apportionment report, 8-7, that set the millage at 7.929 mills for county residents for the winter tax bills. Beard joined the Detroit commissioners in supporting that move.

McCotter, who seconded the tax cut motion made by Boike, was disappointed it didn't pass. "I thought it was long overdue," McCotter said. "It would have offset the parks millage."

The proposed cut would have saved the owner of a $100,000 home about $12.50 in annual county taxes. That amounted to about $7 million for the entire county, McCotter said.

Commissioner Plawecki ripped Patterson for missing the vote.

"It's a perfect example of how he's never here when it matters," Plawecki said.

Plawecki said the motion was appropriate for this time of year because it was proposed during the county's budget hearings. The cut offsets the 0.25 parks mill, which is one reason why it was supported by the suburban commissioners, Plawecki said.

Plawecki called the motion a concerted bipartisan effort. "Everyone's pretty much disappointed," Plawecki said.

"I can't tell you the last time (a cut) has been done. It's frustrating. (Patterson) can complain about higher taxes, and here, he's nowhere to be found. Everyone else is here working on the budget and their campaigns, and he's nowhere to be found.

"The residents in Canton need to know that."

McCotter and Plawecki said the tax cut issue would not be revisited this year. "We can't," Plawecki said. "What we established is levy of Wayne County and it can't be revisited until next year's budget."

An aide to Patterson said he believed Patterson missed the meeting because he was out of town on vacation with his family this week. Patterson could not be reached for comment.

A colleague said Patterson was away on a hunting trip.

Commission chairman Soloman also was unavailable to comment on the vote.

Once it became apparent the tax cut was not going to pass, the board acted on the operational millage. Those mills were scheduled for action on the agenda.

Beard backed the motion to set the millage rate because she believed it would be "irresponsible" not to support it once it was apparent the tax cut would not pass.

"That would be irresponsible not to vote for it because people are waiting for their tax bills so they can deduct it from this year's taxes," Beard said.

The commissioners approved a levy of 7.929 mills, which included the following: 6.7069 mills for operations, .9532 mills for the county jail, .0189 mills for the veterans trust fund, and .25 mills for Wayne County Parks.

Voters face proposals to amend charter

COUNTY BALLOT

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK
STAFF WRITER

With all the attention focused on Tuesday's election with presidential and Congressional races, a stadium tax proposal, state referendums and local races, it may be easy for voters to overlook two ballot proposals to amend the Wayne County charter.

Voters will decide whether to repeal charter rules spelling out the duties of an independent auditor and amend the charter to expand the auditor general's duties.

The proposal gives the auditor general — rather than the chief executive officer — power to engage an independent external auditor to prepare an annual financial report. It also gives the auditor general power to audit operations and administration of county agencies to check the compliance with ordinances and regulations.

The second county proposal authorizes appointment of an independent commission counsel to defend the legal rights, powers and duties of the county commission. It also deletes the duties of the corporation counsel in section 4.312 to provide legal services to the commission.

Voters can expect to see additional information posted at the polls, including the following statement. It will not be on the ballot because it exceeds the 100-word limit for proposals.

The auditor general shall:

■ Make audits of the financial transactions of all county agencies at least once every two years, or as otherwise directed by the County Commission.

■ Make compliance audits of the past or current operations of any county agency, as requested by the Audit Committee of the Commission.

■ Make performance audits of agency operations if requested by the executive officer in charge thereof.

■ Make a full report to the county commission of each individual audit and file a copy with the CEO.

Ben Washburn, corporation counsel for Wayne County, doesn't want to sound self-serving when he discusses the second ballot proposal concerning corporation counsel. Washburn won't comment on it, but he can describe the quandary for legal counsel.

"The charter provides (corporation counsel) the power to represent all county agencies including county commission," Washburn said. "But the problem is it is a position appointed by the CEO (chief executive officer Edward McNamara)."

ELECTION 96

WAYNE COUNTY CIRCUIT COURT

On Tuesday, Nov. 5 Wayne County voters will select 12 out of 19 candidates to serve 6-year terms as judges in Wayne County Circuit Court. The salary is $109,257. Circuit Judge John Gillis Jr., and 36th District Judges Donald Coleman and Paula Georgette Humphries did not respond to questionnaire requests.	What is your position on court reform?	Should judges be elected or appointed? Why?	Who is the jurist you admire most? Why?	What do you consider your most important case? Why?
 Susan Borman Wayne County Circuit judge since 1979. Recorder's judge, 1973-79. Deputy defender Legal Aid and Defender office. Represented indigent accused persons throughout case. Tremendous variety of cases.	I prefer court "reorganization" because "reform" implies improvement. Both Wayne Circuit and Detroit Recorders admired worldwide as models of efficiency. Merger poses a myriad of problems. Court funding changed, likely to be costly to the county. Establishment of separate family court unnecessary. Aspects of legislation may not survive challenge.	Although Michigan follows elective system, half first take bench by gubernatorial appointment. I favor elective system; it's democratic; provides opportunity for diversity; process forces candidates to go before the voters and learn about concerns of citizenry. Furthermore, appointive system is no guarantee of improvement.	Justice David Borden, Connecticut Supreme Court, personifies qualities of judicial excellence. Intelligent, honest, dignified, highest reputation for fairness, he has the ability to communicate elegantly yet his opinions are easily understood. He has moral courage, does not shrink making the "unpopular" decision. He is open-minded and patient.	Every case is important to parties, but sometimes outcome affects others, may effect important changes. Decisions about suspended driver's licenses affects others' safety. Child support enforcement where one parent receives public assistance results in taxpayer savings. Discrimination or products liability cases change behavior or improve safety.
 Bill Callahan 22 years trial court experience in Wayne County. A litigator at Plunkett & Cooney law firm in Detroit. Also led a commercial litigation practice group at the firm and is involved with antitrust, securities and business fraud and divorce and negligence cases.	I favor court reform. There are many archaic aspects to the present system, which has not kept up with changes in lifestyle, technology and crime.	Judges should be selected through nominating commissions. Fourteen states do this. In elections campaign funds come from attorneys and litigants. Some consider their contribution to be an investment. Gubernatorial appointments have historically been political favors. The public expects and needs an unbiased, non-partisan court system.	No answer given.	As a young attorney, I assisted a father to reconnect with his children over his ex-wife's objections after 10 years of not seeing them. We negotiated with the ex-wife and her lawyer. Father and children attend family counseling together. The children also became reacquainted with their grandparents and cousins.
 Michael James Callahan Elected to open seat on circuit court in 1990. Six years on bench, used more than 2,500 jurors to verdict. Served on Michigan Court of Appeals three times. Assistant prosecuting attorney in St. Clair County 1979-81 and in Wayne County 1987-90. Ordained Catholic priest, 1969-91.	Court reform should include a family court to expedite custody decisions. Recovery caps under tort reform are permissible. Jurisdictional amount for circuit court should be raised to $25,000. Combination of statutory and constitutional courts will achieve the balance that reflects county voters.	Election of judges should continue with some refinement. Limit candidates to public service campaigning (cable tv, newspaper survey etc.) Ban fund-raisers and lawyer contributions. (Last election I spent $280; I accept no contributions). Appointments are too politically driven. Judges should answer to voters after each term.	Judge James Ryan, formerly of Wayne County Circuit and Michigan Supreme Court, sits now on Federal Sixth Circuit. He has emphasized judicial training and epitomized integrity and hard work. He is clear in his decisions. Besides, I occupy his courtroom where his wisdom seems pervasive.	Defendants seek requests for lesser included offenses to receive leniency from a jury. In People v. Richard Bailey, the Supreme Court upheld my refusal to given a lenient instruction in a murder case and reversed its own 1980 precedent which had thwarted prosecutors. My ruling is a victory for tough not lenient treatment of violent criminals.
 William J. Giovan Wayne County Circuit judge for 21 years. Served on two other trial courts; Detroit Recorder's Court, in intervals between 1966 and 1972; and Common Pleas Court from 1973 to 1975.	Some of it is beneficial, such as placing all domestic relations matters under the jurisdiction of one court instead of allowing the possibility of conflicting orders between courts regarding child custody. Several other aspects of court reform legislation are being challenged in court as being violative of the state constitution and federal law.	The best method would be appointment of judges who later run for election on their record. Contested elections are expensive and the cost is ultimately paid by the public. This method preserves the right of the public to remove judges while avoiding the cost and distraction of a contested election when the public is satisfied with the judge.	Judge Learned Hand of the U.S. Court of Appeals was one of the finest judges this country has produced. He was a master of thought and language. He was an eloquent writer and speaker who, in one of his most memorable addresses, said: "Liberty lies in the hearts of men and women. When it dies there, no court – no constitution can save it."	When I was supervising judge of the Wayne County citizens grand jury, I wrote an opinion supporting the right of the grand jury to subpoena films from a TV journalist who refused to comply. The opinion was challenged and upheld through the state and federal courts. The films were used to identify and convict the killers of a Michigan State trooper.
 Pamela Rae Harwood Wayne County Circuit Judge. Served as a litigation or trial attorney for 10 years before becoming a trial court judge 11 years ago.	"Court reform" relates to many issues. I am concerned that the legislation creating a family court will result in most Circuit Court judges being unable to preside over domestic relations cases in spite of their years of experience and expertise.	I prefer that we elect our judges but I have some serious reservations about the way we do it. For example, it is too difficult for voters to learn about the candidates and to make informed choices. I am also concerned about the implications of judicial candidates raising money.	Jurists who work hard, treat people with respect and who are committed to the law, the profession and his or her personal integrity are worthy of our admiration	A judge does not distinguish cases by importance because each one is special to the litigants involved.
Richard Hathaway Wayne County Circuit judge since 1984. Wayne County assistant prosecutor, 1977-81; Recorder's judge 1981-84.	Reforms to make the court system more uniform and easier for litigants, attorneys and citizens are excellent.	I believe our present system works. Although this is a state where judges are elected, more than 50 percent of the judges on the benches today have been appointed to their positions.	Michigan Supreme Court Justice James Brickley. He has a law-and-order background; former assistant prosecuting attorney, head of the trial division for four years; academician, and former president of Eastern Michigan University for five years. His background and intellect make him a fair and great jurist.	People v. Albert Easter, et. al., a tragic case involving the shooting deaths of three Inkster police officers. This trial resulted in murder convictions for the defendants. These convictions upheld by the appellate courts, and the Department of Corrections followed through on the Court's order that the defendants be incarcerated at different facilities for life.
 J. Phillip Jourdan Wayne County Circuit judge since 1987, including several stints as visiting judge on the Court of Appeals. Former chief of staff to Gov. James Blanchard, and state budget director.	I favor some aspects of the legislation, such as the merger of circuit and probate courts and the creation of a family court. In my 10 years as a judge, I have come to believe that family matters are the most important work that we do.	I believe some form of the "Missouri Plan" is best. This means judges are first appointed and then required to seek the approval of voters for subsequent terms. Such a plan would reduce the need for heavy reliance on election financing from attorneys and would promote an independent judiciary.	Personally, I respect and admire three recently-retired colleagues: Judges Lucille Watts, James Mies and Michael Stacey. Each of them earned a reputation for absolute fairness. In retirement, each continues to contribute to our community. Historically, I admire Chief Justice John Marshall because of his role in establishing America's judiciary.	I believe my most important cases are all of my child custody disputes. Parents come to court in great personal distress. A judge's role is to help them through the process without adding to their pain. Custodial decisions are among the most difficult and far-reaching decisions we make.
 Arthur Lombard Wayne County circuit judge, appointed by Gov. John Engler in March 1994. Was professor of law for 21 years at Wayne State University Law School for 21 years, seven as associate dean. Dean of Detroit College of Law from 1987 to 1993. Taught law for 29 years at Wayne State, DCL and Harvard and litigated part-time throughout.	We currently have an efficient court. We must insure that court reform does not impair our ability to do justice in each case before us. The challenges of court reform are a good reason to keep the experienced, incumbent judges on the bench.	The answer to that question is province of the people and the legislature, not a judge.	Judge J. Edward Lumbard of the U.S. Court of Appeals (not a relative), for whom I clerked in 1964-65. He is caring fair, well-trained in the law, always prepared, even tempered, open-minded, passionate about doing the right thing, and, at age 95, still sitting half-time, in full possession of his faculties.	My most important case is the one currently before me at the moment, whatever it is. The one with the most community impact is probably the La Mirage topless bar case, in which I affirmed the Liquor Control Commission's denial of a license because of adverse community impact.
 Bill Lucas Attorney. Former appointed Recorder's Court judge, elected county executive, sheriff. Trial experience in both federal and local courts.	As a former Wayne County executive, I support state funding of local courts. However, I believe that the issue of court reform will eventually be decided by the U.S. Supreme Court.	I believe judges should be elected for the citizenry to express their support for those individuals that they believe represents their views and interests.	This is a difficult choice between Judge Damon Keith, for his excellent example of character and competence and Judge Myron Wahls for his fairness on the bench and his unflagging strength and humor in handling life's adversities.	In 1996 I assisted in a civil rights trial in federal court in Memphis. The case involved the defacing of a Jewish synagogues. As I questioned the defendant and other witnesses, I remember thinking that only in America could a black man raised in Harlem, New York City, be given the opportunity to protect the Constitutional rights of another minority group.
 Laura McMahon Lynch Attorney. Participated in trials over last 13 years involving divorce, wrongful termination from employment, medical malpractice, real estate disputes and felonies on both a lead counsel and co-counsel basis.	I support the newly passed legislation which creates a family law court. I am hopeful that a court which focuses on family issues exclusively, will improve services for those who use the court by giving priority to families' needs and by attracting jurists who are interested in the subject matter.	Judges should be elected because it is the only way to assure that the bench will reflect the whole community. We do need more criteria for judicial qualifications than we currently have, such as 10 years experience and a test to examine a candidate's knowledge of the position sought.	I admire Judge Avern Cohn because he is fair, but firm, prepares thoroughly for each case, is committed to equal opportunity for all, is devoted to protecting infringements against our constitutional rights and insists on civility in his court room.	I advocated for an abused spouse who was threatened by her husband at gunpoint and suffered intimidation for 27 years. I was able to convince the court to give her exclusive possession of their residence, and to assist her in regaining her self-esteem and financial security.
 Sheila Gibson Manning Trial attorney for 12 years. Practiced in the federal, circuit and district courts throughout southeast Michigan and Michigan Court of Appeals. My litigation experience is in the areas of corporate law, health care, contract, tort, bankruptcy, collection, personal injury defense and criminal prosecution.	Our court system is one of the best in the world and many try to emulate it. There is room for improvement but no need for an overhaul. The decisions relating to reform should be relegated to the courts and attorneys that utilize the system with legislature's approval.	The governor should be allowed to make appointments but the people should be able to decide whether these individuals are being of service to the community through the election process – this promotes accountability. Five years as a licensed attorney should be required as a prerequisite for judicial consideration.	I admire Judge Cynthia Stephens. She is knowledgeable, kind, compassionate, fair, but firm, on the bench and she always makes herself available to the community. As an attorney she has always been helpful to me in my endeavors and never hesitates to assist me with my desire for advancement.	Health care issues and case management cases are very critical. Here it is necessary to provide the most effective long term care for catastrophic and long-term illnesses with a limited dollar pool. There must be a balance between the needs of the patient, family and available funds.
 Susan Bieke Nielson Wayne County Circuit judge since 1991. As an attorney for 11 years, I handled hundreds of trial court cases involving commercial litigation and malpractice /products liability. As a trial court judge for the last five years, I have handled thousands of criminal or civil cases.	The Wayne County Circuit Court has been recognized nationally as one of the models of efficient court administration in a large urban area. Court reform must aim to improve the delivery of judicial services to address the needs of our citizens, but not at the expense of the taxpayer.	A combination of election and appointment. The current system of election necessitates fund-raising activity and political posturing which is undesirable. However judges must be accountable to the public. Thus, a system which allows a public vote to "retain" or "replace" a judge is preferable as to "choosing" among two or more candidates.	Wayne County Circuit Court Judge Paul Teranes. Judge Teranes is an intelligent judge dedicated to the effective administration of justice. His courtroom demeanor is outstanding, in that while he has a firm grasp of the need for efficiency and deference to the law, he treats all persons who come before him with kindness and respect.	The one that is before me at any given moment. Even though a particular matter may have no interest or impact to the public at large, the case is very important to the people who are involved in it. It is therefore imperative that I treat that case with the utmost respect and be thoroughly prepared to deal with the legal issues that are involved.
 Roland Olzark Wayne County Circuit judge. Legal career spans 42 years, 16 years as a practicing attorney and 26 years as a circuit judge. Tried all manner of cases involving complex issues of fact and law. Within a 50-word limit, suffice it to say I am highly experienced in trial work.	While improvements may be needed, the current legislation has created much divisiveness and raises several constitutional and Headless issues. The proposals of Justice Brickley, supported by the various judges associations, would have been more productive. The funding provisions threaten the independence of the courts and the separation of powers doctrine.	While I have benefited from campaigning, meeting people and gaining new perspectives about the role of the courts, it is disheartening to know many are elected solely on name recognition or gender. The "Missouri Plan," i.e., appointment then an election to determine if retention is merited, offers a reasonable compromise.	My choice is Justice James Brickley. He has presided over the courts of this state with dignity and perceptiveness in difficult times relative to issues concerning funding of courts and court reorganization. Also, he has devoted much of his life to serving the people of this state in various positions.	In Olepa v. Olepa, 151 Mich App 690, I was presented with an issue involving the visitation rights of a grandfather with his grandchild where he and his son, the child's father, were alienated. The case clarified the visitation rights of grandparents pursuant to the Child Custody Act.
 Edward Thomas Wayne County Circuit judge. Elected to Recorder's Court in 1978 and served through 1990. Appointed to Wayne County Circuit Court in 1990 by Gov. James Blanchard. Has 18 years judicial experience.	I feel that court reform should take place with the best interest of the public in mind, not to serve the needs of a select few. By no means should any limitation of an individual's access to the courts occur under the guise of court reform.	Judges should be elected, because the community should choose who should sit in judgment over their cases. If a system were developed that would allow the public to have a significant voice in the process I would consider an appointive system.	My most admired jurist is Judge Damon J. Keith of the U.S. Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals. As a trial judge he was patient, informed and listened to both sides before making a decision. His fairness was as well known as his passion for doing what justice required.	My most important case was the criminal prosecution of the men accused and convicted of setting fire to Kristen Grauman. It was a very involved case and received a great deal of publicity. It was one of the first trials where the print and visual media were present daily in the courtroom.
 Isidore B. Torres Recorder's Court judge since 1988. Has trial court room experience as a trial lawyer and now as trial judge. Tried numerous major cases in both state and federal courts. As a trial judge for over 13 years, he tried thousands of cases.	I am in favor of court reform.	I am in favor of the election process of selecting judges. I very much believe in our democratic form of government and that the well-informed voter is in the best position to select the judges that will serve on the judiciary. Citizens are entitled to exercise their voice in the operation of our government.	There are a number of judges who I have admired over the years. They possess the same qualities that are essential to the fair administration of justice. Judges should be of sound intellect, possess a wealth of professional and community experience, and an uncompromising commitment to justice, fairness and equality.	I sincerely believe that all of my cases are important. Each involves to some extent a human tragedy and therefore severely impacts on the lives of individuals. We as judges must remember whether the case is big or small that everyone is entitled to be treated with the same importance.
 Brian Zahra Circuit judge since Gov. John Engler appointment in 1994. Was a former partner in at the Dickinson Wright law firm, specializing in representing product manufacturers sued in lawsuits alleging the manufacture and sale of defective products.	The Michigan court system is antiquated and needs to be updated. Currently, many courts are overloaded while other courts are underutilized. Court reform is needed to address these inadequacies.	Judges should first be appointed and then subjected to retention elections. Under such a system prospective candidates would be screened by a bipartisan citizen's merit selection panel to limit the field of candidates from which the Governor may choose. The Governor would then appoint and the Legislature would confirm the appointment.	Judges James Ryan of the U.S. Court of Appeals. Ryan is a person of principle, integrity and compassion. He possesses an excellent judicial disposition. On and off the bench Judge Ryan is courteous and respectful to people and the law. His commitment to justice is exemplary.	My most important case is the one before me at any given time. As a public servant I owe each litigant my undivided attention so that each party receives a full and fair hearing before a judge who has put his heart and soul into being an impartial arbiter of the law.

'Get priorities straight,' Pursell urges

STAFF WRITER

Punches — or punch lines — were rolling in a pro/con discussion Monday at Canton Township Hall regarding Proposal S, Wayne County's tax proposition to build two new stadiums.

A roll of toilet paper was one of the props used by retired Congressman Carl Pursell, co-chair of Taxpayers Against Proposition S to get his point across.

Deputy County Executive Michael Duggan didn't bring any props, but took time to reminisce on Pursell's former voting record. Don't forget, he said, "the toilet paper guy" is the same one who voted to allocate $2.5 million in federal money for Detroit's People Mover."

If Proposition S is passed, a tourist tax would be levied on motels and car rentals to fund two new sports stadiums in Detroit.

Monday forum was sponsored by the Canton Chamber of Commerce.

The toilet paper Pursell brought with him was to demonstrate the need for it in Detroit Public Schools, which recently rationed toilet paper because students were abusing the privilege.

"Let's get our priorities straight Mayor (Dennis) Archer, Executive (Edward) McNamara . . . we should be taking care of education and crime problems, yet we want to build a stadium with our tax dollars," Pursell argued.

Duggan countered, saying the stadiums will have a positive effect on the city of Detroit and surrounding suburbs. It will create jobs where they are needed the most, he said. The unemployment rate in Detroit is in the double digits.

In addition to the two stadiums, developers have proposed to build a Little Italy next to Greektown, Magic Johnson has committed to a 20 Theater complex and a nearby residential development is in the works. Also, General Motors has announced plans to move into

S'craft anniversary full of fun, reminiscing

Schoolcraft College passed a milestone last Thursday.

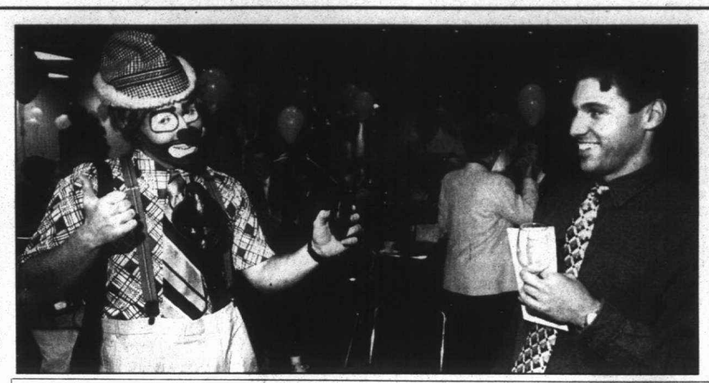

The college celebrated its 35th anniversary with an open house at the Continuing Education Center and a gathering at the Waterman Center for cake, balloons and face painting. About 250 people attended the festivities.

Many of the guests included the college's original board of trustees, who reminisced about the early days when the college was new and Haggerty was unpaved.

The college celebrated the 1961 voter approval of the establishment of Northwest Wayne County Community College. Three years later Schoolcraft College opened its doors.

Nine faculty and staff members of the original facility still work at the college. Staff members remembered their yearly salaries -- somewhere between the upper $5,000s and the high $7,000s.

The college now houses more than 9,300 students. After 25 years, the Continuing Education Center Service has grown to 260 classes with more than 15,000 participants yearly.

All those years ago: Jim O'Neil of Livonia chats with Liz Johnson of Plymouth. O'Neil was on the first board of trustees for the college 35 years ago. Johnson's mother, Jane Moehle, was on that same board.

Educators outline standards for state English curriculum

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Suppose you are Jay Gatsby, the mysterious Long Island millionaire in F. Scott Fitzgerald's novel "The Great Gatsby." You hear Martin Luther King's speech "I Have A Dream." How do you respond?

That's the kind of question a suburban high school student would face in an American literature course unit of 10 weeks on "The American Dream," said Dr. Charles Peters, a consultant for the Oakland Intermediate School District.

"It's more than writing a book report and regurgitating it," Peters told the State Board of Education. "They learn to synthesize material, not just regurgitate it – but get below the surface and grapple with ideas.

" 'The Call of the Wild' is not just a dog story. It's about survival and natural selection. 'Heart of Darkness' is not just a trip up the river but a moral dilemma. We ask such questions as, Is the American dream achievable? We get kids to think critically."

Peters led off an Oct. 24 presentation by educators on Benchmarks for the Model English Language Arts Content Standards for Curriculum, followed by speakers from Walled Lake, Birmingham, Southfield and Michigan State University.

Dreams change

The sum of efforts by 6,000 Michigan educators, the benchmarks are written in educationese: 12 content standards each for early elementary, late elementary, middle and high schools. In plain English, they are aimed at integrating the language arts of reading, writing, listening and speaking, as well as getting kids to compare characters in different stories with similar problems.

For example, said Peters, a student is assigned to interview persons from three different generations on the questions: What were your dreams? What obstacles did you encounter? What tools did you use to achieve them?

The students are asked to draw conclusions and make generalizations. They are asked to keep a dated journal and describe how their dreams changed over time.

Their literary sources are classic and contemporary: Twain's "Huckleberry Finn," Steinbeck's "The Grapes of Wrath," Miller's "Death of a Salesman," Time magazine essays, newspaper articles, Franklin Delano Roosevelt's inaugural address, poetry of Maya Angelou.

Students in groups take a character – such as Daisy in "Gatsby" and Willy Loman in "Salesman" – and describe how the character would respond in various situations. "They begin to use the voice and to evaluate," Peters said.

'Phonological Zoo'

Dr. Linda Ayres, principal of Commerce Elementary School in Walled Lake, described how three puppets are used in a nine-months sequence called the "Phonological Zoo." Funny Bunny teaches rhyming, Cameron the Camel teaches alliteration, and Sally Spider teaches sounds.

Youngsters learn through reading, listening, writing, singing, word games and dancing, said Ayres, who has won prizes for research in the teaching of reading and is an adjunct professor at Oakland University.

"We are very sensitive to the opinions of parents and teachers. Our parent population is very supportive, 98.5 percent, of the academic work," she said.

John Klemme, assistant principal of Birmingham Covington School, said the benchmarks define literacy. "We celebrate the power of language as the most important of human gifts. It explores issues of timeless importance – who are we and what can we become? How did our decisions affect others around us?" he said.

Karen Miller, president of the Southfield Board of Education, praised the benchmarks for "providing a framework for teachers to set standards that can be reached.

"Writing should come as naturally for kids as brushing their teeth. I've watched both of my daughters become comfortable public speakers. They have no 'writer's block.' They learned sentence structure and grammar without its being drilled into their heads.

"Teachers with 20 years experience become even better," Miller added.

'It's refreshing'

"It's refreshing to be in this state," concluded Dr. David Pearson, newly appointed distinguished professor of education at Michigan State University and a reading researcher. Peviously he was dean of education at the University of Illinois.

Pearson predicted the benchmarks would get "two diametrically opposed reactions. First, they're vague. Second, they are intrusive and create too many hoops to jump through.

"These standards are the right compromise between civic virtue and individual liberty. There are many routes schools can take. The standards are respectful of the rights of parents and teachers. Students should be able to use their skills outside the classroom.

"The standards are a roadmap. They leave schools some choice of routes. They are in the great American spirit of local control."

There were criticisms. In a separate presentation, Dr. Bob Sweet of the National Right to Read Foundation in Washington, D.C., said, "I haven't heard anything about how you measure success."

Dr. Annette Weinshank of The Reading Clinic called the standards "a hope. It cannot possibly do what it says it wants to do." She suggested Michigan educators "produce a coherent statement on early elementary reading that starts where they're supposed to end up." the Renaissance Center. A major expansion at Detroit Metro Airport will make the city a hub for tourists, he said.

"Think about the national attention all this is getting . . . we'll be able to do in three years what it took Cleveland 10 years to do," Duggan added.

But Pursell said the toilet paper fiasco also received national media attention on NBC and in the Wall Street Journal, embarassing the region.

In Pursell's bag of tricks, he pulled out a glossy, four color pamphlet that endorses Proposal S. So far, $700,000 has been spent on the campaign to get to the proposal passed. He predicted $1 million will be spent by Nov. 5.

He also questioned why the Ford family, owners of the Detroit Lions, and Mike Ilitch, owner of the Tigers, need $800,000 in state subsidy to build the stadium. According to Forbes magazine, Ford is worth $1 billion and Ilitch is worth $7-8 million, he said. "Let them pay for it," Pursell said.

Duggan said, "People say all it will do is shift money around. If it shifts money from Oakland County to Wayne County, I like it."

S'craft board to hear Yack before deciding DDA issue

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK
STAFF WRITER

The Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees will wait to hear from Canton Township Supervisor Tom Yack before deciding whether to withdraw from a downtown development authority in that township.

Trustees voted 4-2 Wednesday to delay any DDA decision until the board's November meeting.

Trustees Brian Broderick, Richard DeVries, Stephen Ragan and Patricia Breen supported the motion, while chairman Patricia Watson and trustee Carol Strom opposed it. Trustee John Walsh was absent.

The Canton DDA was created in 1984 for an 80-acre area along a strip on Ford Road from Morton Taylor to Sheldon. The DDA is a form of tax increment financing, which allows local governments to "capture" increases in property value to finance infrastructure improvements.

The DDA diverts assessment growth to the municipality that normally goes to the community college. It cannot capture school taxes for K-12 education.

By resolution, Schoolcraft's board can opt out of the DDA.

The Canton Township board agreed on Oct. 10 to expand the DDA boundaries to include 773 acres, stretching from the city of Westland to west of Canton Center Road.

The expansion will give the Canton DDA $47,715 in 1997 that will not go to Schoolcraft. Estimates show that figure growing to $57,000 in five years. That figure is currently $14,990.

"We need to ask whether or not you want to continue to not have these taxes come to Schoolcraft," said Butch Raby, vice president of business services.

DDAs and Tax Increment Finance Authorities prevent Schoolcraft from collecting $109,414 in property taxes it normally would receive.

Ragan lobbied for the board to listen to Yack before making a decision. Ragan said the DDA will address "serious problems" along Ford Road. About $25 million in development will be addressed this year, Ragan said.

Breen said her biggest concern was the students. "We'll probably have to increase tuition to offset this," she said before she switched her vote. An earlier motion had been made not to enter the expanded DDA, which resulted in a 3-3 tie vote. In that case, chairman Watson's vote would have carried that motion.

Strom agreed that the roads should be improved, but not with money otherwise directed to students. "But the question is who should pay for that?" she asked. "Should the students and the college pay for that? I don't think they should."

Ragan reiterated that Yack wanted to address the board before it decided if it would opt out of the DDA. The motion then carried to wait for next month's meeting.

Yack said he would work hard to convince the board about the DDA's need for Schoolcraft and how the community college and township feed off each other's prosperity.

"Communities like Canton have added a great deal to (the community college's) district," Yack said. "(Canton is) a lot like the goose that laid the golden egg. Otherwise, that goose that laid the golden egg will have a hard time laying the golden eggs."

The DDA will add turn lanes, and infrastructure improvements to draw residents to the area. Yack said the road improvements would ease traffic concerns. If residential assessed values continue to grow, the community college will continue to reap those benefits, Yack said.

Yack was concerned that Schoolcraft would consider opting out.

"Canton was willing to give up nine mills of SEV, we're asking them for 1.8 mills," Yack said.

Canton officials hope to initiate the DDA by the year's end, so the DDA can capture in 1997 revenue for the projects that were completed this year, Yack said.

Signs will identify Rouge streams

The Rouge River Remedial Action Plan Advisory Council recommended the installation of signs to identify tributary streams in the Rouge River watershed.

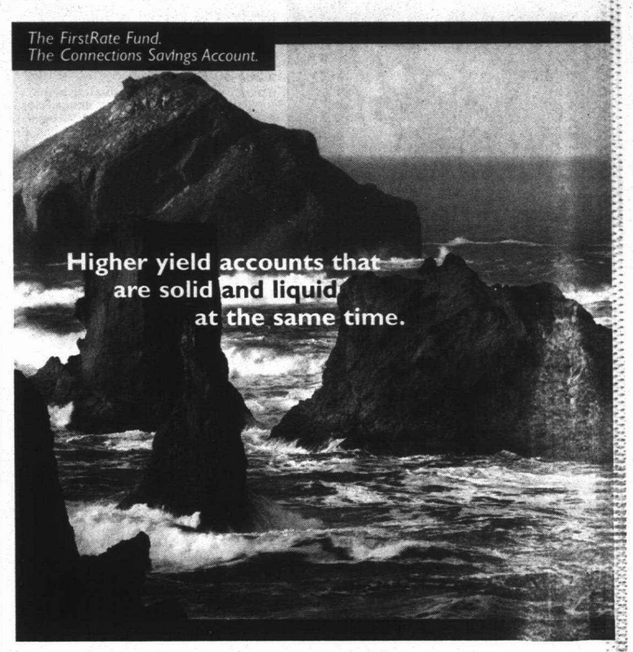

The council helps oversee the revitalization of the Rouge River with Wayne County. The project is financed through the federally-funded wet weather demonstration project.

Robert Fredericks, director of the division of watershed management for Wayne County's department of the environment, said the county wanted to work with local communities on sign placement.

"Since the watershed is so large, (county officials) will be identifying certain relevant places to put the signs," Fredericks said.

The resolution said increasing the public awareness about the location of surface waters within the Rouge River watershed and their physical relationship to the Rouge will likely raise interest in the river.

Students thanked for hospital efforts

Three Plymouth-Canton High School students received written thanks for their dedication and volunteer efforts at Garden City Osteopathic Hospital.

Marie Mroz has given 400 service hours without compensation to the hospital since she began in August, 1994. Since she began volunteering in June, 1996, Stacy Maironis has donated 45 hours and Kellie Titus 32 hours.

Susan Methner, the hospital's director of volunteer services, said, "The hospital believes that the participation of volunteers as individuals, as well as representatives of the communities we service, extends the spirits of caring in every personal way, as an enhancement and reassurance to the concepts of service to which Garden City Hospital is dedicated. In addition to the personal reward enriching each student's life, they can explore health care career opportunities in the hospital setting.

"Each student has joined a tradition of helping that has become an expected and necessary part of our society."

Pat Patton, Canton High School principal, said, "We are very proud of our students. Receiving accolades from services such as this reinforces our belief that high school students make vital contributions to many services throughout the community."

LEGISLATIVE ISSUES UPDATE
State Senator Loren Bennett presented a legislative update on the amendment to SB1011. Senator Bennett briefed the Board on a legislative initiative he has taken regarding road funding, road work and road maintenance. He stated that he added an amendment to Senate Bill 1011 that would allocate money directly from the state to the Townships with populations of 10,000 or more. Mr. Bennett explained that currently money from the state's gas and weight tax is distributed to the 76 townships by the 21 counties. Senator Bennett said the specific township would have the option of continuing status quo and working through their county, or receiving the money directly from the state and contracting out the necessary road work services. Senator Bennett explained that the townships would not be allowed to develop their own road department. He said that the amendment is presently in the House to be decided upon after the November 5, 1996 election.
In response to concerns by Trustee McLaughlin, Senator Bennett said that the liability of roads would be with the townships. He noted that any Interstate or State highways would remain the liability of the specific jurisdictions. Senator Bennett emphasized that nothing would be taken away from the cities or the counties of Michigan, the money in question is generated strictly on behalf of the townships. He said the money is generated in trust for the townships. Senator Bennett compared the level of service Canton is receiving at $2.5 million per year, he said that based on the state numbers Canton should be receiving in excess of $11 million per year.

WHEREAS, the Planning Commission, at a public hearing, reviewed the proposed Preliminary Planned Development District Agreement, and recommended APPROVAL of the Central Park Preliminary Planned Development District, based on the following findings of fact and as summarized in the attached written analysis and recommendation:
1. The proposed planned development has been designed as an integrated development linked together by a boulevard collector road and has provided 39% total open space, exceeding the 25% minimum requirement;
2. The proposed open space includes 39 acres of land for a park and 71 acres of land for a golf course which will be deeded to Canton Township, which provides a benefit not otherwise achievable under standard ordinance requirements;
3. The proposed plan has an overall residential density of 1.34 dwelling units/acre which is consistent with the maximum base density of 1.53 dwelling units/acre permitted to be considered by the Future Land Use policies of the Comprehensive Plan and the underlying Zoning;
4. Open space not proposed to be deeded to Canton Township will be considered common open space and will be maintained by a homeowner's association;
5. A majority of the existing natural habitat, including wooded and wetland areas, are proposed to be preserved in approximately 147 acres of common open space;
6. The project sponsor has provided necessary buffer areas and has committed to paying for all utilities and infrastructure to serve the proposed development, including the paving of Denton Road to its southernmost property line and will not have an adverse fiscal impact on the Township, an economic impact on surrounding properties, nor impact future development of the area;
7. The road network of the proposed plan, the commitment of the developer to pave Denton Road and the applicable sections of Proctor Road at the point of connection or impact, and the proposed pedestrian system connecting all of the open space areas meets all of the criteria for public access and traffic impact; and
8. The proposed schedule of modifications to the zoning ordinance outlines the basic development standards for all of the residential lots and condominium units and meets the general intent of the zoning ordinance for said lots and units; and
9. Subject to the following conditions :
a. All of the 120 x 150 foot lots (primarily along the east side of Denton Road) shall maintain a rear setback of 50 feet.

d. The PDD Agreement (paragraph 9 on page 7) shall be amended to clarify that the developer shall provide appropriate active recreational facilities in those areas of the plan designated for the condominiums and subdivisions.

NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, the Boartl of Trustees of the Charter Township of Canton, Michigan does APPROVE the request of the project sponsor, Mr. Steven Friedman, to grant preliminary approval of the Central Park Planned Development District, based upon recommendations made by staff and the Planning Commission as described in the analysis and recommendation.

WHEREAS, the Board of Trustees has determined that an alternate roadway design for the primary loop between beck and Denton Road would be more beneficial than a boulevard cross section and said alternate roadway design shall be approved subject to the following conditions:
1. The primary drive, including the image drive street scape, shall have a minimum right-of-way width of 60 feet with a paved road cross section of 31 feet; and
2. The depths of the 100 and 110 foot wide lots which abut the primary drive shall have increased depths of 165 feet and have minimum front yard setbacks of 55 feet; and
3. The developer shall dedicate a 20 foot wide easement along the front of all lots abutting the primary drive, shall landscape and irrigate said easement in conjunction with the roadway improvements and shall maintain said area until the homes are built on each individual lot at which time the homeowner will assume maintenance for said landscaping.

Area families are needed to host 2 Brazilian exchange students

Plymouth resident Lynne Levenbach is interviewing families in the area interested in participating in a cultural exchange experience by hosting a Brazilian high school student for the spring semester.

Two students will arrive in the U.S. in January sponsored by PAX - Program for Academic Exchange.

Brazil is larger than the continental U.S. with a history not unlike our own, yet few Americans know much about South America's "Gentle Giant."

"There's so much more to Brazil than the rain forest, and these students are eager to share their culture with us," said Levenbach, who serves as community coordinator for PAX, a non-profit foundation.

Exchange students can live like American teens for six months; joining sports teams, studying for exams and participating fully in family life. PAX students are between the ages of 15 and 18, speak English, have full insurance coverage and their own spending money.

PAX families are asked to provide students with meals, a place to sleep and study, and a warm, supportive environment. Private rooms are not required and single parents, young couples and senior citizens are welcome to apply.

For information call Lynne Levenbach at (313) 453-8562 or Peggy Jackson at the PAX national office at (800) 555-6311.

'Candy Lady' seeks donations for boys at Maxey Training School

Each year children receive candy from trick or treating. Sometimes they receive so much, that parents don't know what to do with it.

Joy Landau, also known as the "Candy Lady of Oak Park" advises parents not to dispose of excess candy, but to donate it to the Joy and Lou Landaus' candy collection to be checked, then given to the Maxey Boys Training School.

Donations will give candy to young people who may otherwise get none, according to the Landaus.

■ 'This would also be a wonderful project for your PTA, Scouts, clubs or neighborhoods.'
Joy Landau –'Candy Lady'

This charitable project serves many purposes, Joy Landau said. It helps parents allow their children to enjoy the Halloween festivities without keeping too much candy, and provides some special treats for others.

"Charity is a very important lesson to learn and what better way for our youngsters (to learn), then to share some of their candy," Landau said.

"This would also be a wonderful project for your PTA, Scouts, clubs or neighborhoods."

The Landaus will be collecting candy until Nov. 18. People can bring it to the Landau home, 24231 Gardner, in Oak Park. The home is located between Coolidge and Greenfield, south of 10 Mile Road.

Halloween festival attracts 600 youngsters

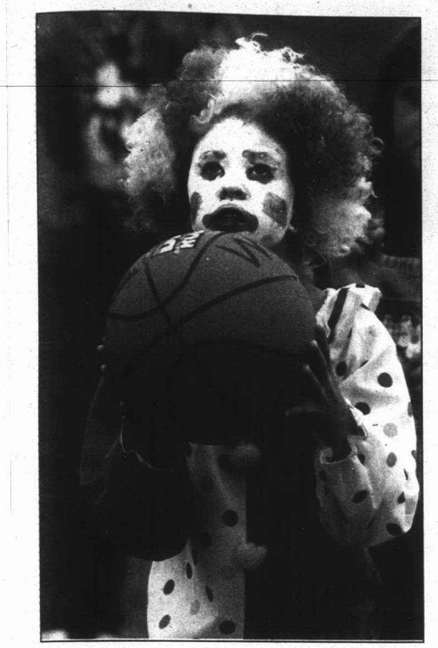

Saturday was a day full of fun for about 600 youngsters from several Wayne County communities at Nankin Mills Picnic Area.

The children were treated to a costume contest, games, candy hunt, hay rides and puppet show at the Wayne County Parks Halloween festival.

"The Boo Brothers Puppet Show of Funny Frights," presented by Pippin Puppets and "The Red Rug Puppet Theater" entertained the children.

East Lansing-based puppeteer Beth Katz brought her one-woman old-fashioned "Punch & Judy" style audience-interaction show to Hines Park.

State House

Nesbit, DeHart the best choices

On Nov. 5, voters in the Canton area will do their part to elect a U.S. president, member of Congress and others to office.

Closer to home will be the election of two state representatives. Most of Canton is represented by the 21st District, while a small portion in the northeast corner is represented by the 18th District.

In these races, the Observer is endorsing challenger Deborah Nesbit in the 21st District and incumbent Eileen DeHart in the 18th District. We believe these candidates will best represent Canton in the state House of Representatives in the coming term.

In the case of the 21st District, we are recommending that Nesbit, a Democrat, be elected over current incumbent Republican Deborah Whyman. Canton voters should to look beyond party lines in this election, and cast their ballots for the candidate who is more moderate in her views and who will best represent the changing face of this district.

Some 1,000 new homes are being built in Canton alone each year, which means people with varied cultures, religions and views are moving here. This newspaper has taken a position embracing this change as one which makes ours a stronger community – but not if we are represented by someone who cannot accept these changes.

Whyman's admitted ultra-conservative politics and her vocal stand pitting Detroit against the suburbs are nothing but divisive to a region which is attempting to work together for the betterment of all its people. We are disappointed that Whyman declined an opportunity to share her views and debate her opponent at a recent League of Women Voters candidate forum.

Whyman said she was given too little notice of the event; in an election year, we believe candidates should make every effort to get their message out and we expect them to put in the extra effort to do so.

In this vein, Whyman has targeted her campaign effort only toward those she knows support her in this election year; in effect, she is preaching to the choir. Nesbit, on the other hand, has knocked on doors of numerous district residents to share her message with as many voters as possible.

We believe Nesbit will be a more open-minded representative who will embrace all views and represent all people of the 21st District, regardless of their view.

In addition, Nesbit's background in health care and social work will give her the skills and tools necessary working at the state level to continue reform of the welfare system and deal with legislative issues of family and home. We believe she will also work at bipartisan consensus-building in Lansing, something we can ill afford to overlook in today's busy political arena.

In the 18th District, Democratic incumbent DeHart faces Republican challenger Dennis LeMaitre. Both candidates have a grasp on the issues, and they have an admirable history of community involvement.

On balance, however, we believe that DeHart should be re-elected to a second two-year term. Experience and a proven track record are the key elements that tip the scales in DeHart's favor. She is to be commended for her bipartisan efforts. She has supported numerous Republican measures, showing that she isn't afraid to step across party lines to vote on an issue.

We believe both Nesbit and DeHart are deserving of the Canton vote Nov. 5.

Rivers should serve again

Incumbent Lynn Rivers is the best choice in the race for Congress in the 13th District.

The Observer recommends voters in Canton reward her solid performance over the last two years and return her to Congress on Tuesday, Nov. 5.

Throughout the campaign Rivers has articulated her views clearly, intelligently and honestly.

Her Republican opponent, Joe Fitzsimmons, although an intelligent and personable man, has been unable to clearly articulate a case for replacing Rivers. His campaign has relied heavily on rhetoric. He offers vague proposals and pat phrases to explain his stand on issues while Rivers provides clear, concise explanations which only serve to demonstrate her understanding of a wide range of complex issues.

The Fitzsimmons campaign also has gone to great lengths to mislead voters and misrepresent Rivers' stands on several issues including the balanced budget, education and her statements in Congress on partial birth abortion. Such tactics smack of dirty politics and are characteristic of a campaign that has no clear direction or purpose.

Rivers is conscientious and hard-working. She has a keen mind for the policy issues and unlike many candidates we have seen come and go over the years she — not her staff — formulates her position on issues.

Throughout her political life — as a school board member, state representative and member of Congress — she has been attentive to her constituents, whatever their political persuasion.

Rivers is also very accessible and visible. She is tireless and appears committed to serving the public in a positive way. She conducts frequent town meetings, issues forums and community coffees where she comes to listen and inform — not campaign.

Rivers clearly understands the legislative process, knows how to analyze problems quickly and find possible solutions, and deal with her peers in a positive manner.

We believe her support of balancing the budget before cutting taxes, using tax dollars for programs that offer long-term benefits to society such as college student loans and spending cuts such as the welfare reform bill have been responsible and in the best interests of voters in western Wayne County.

Rivers also has advocated that Congress put its own house in order when it comes to spending cuts. She does not spend money like her Congressional colleagues.

In her second year in Congress, the National Taxpayers Union ranked her 427th out of 435 members of the U.S. House in spending to run her House office for staff salaries and benefits, district office operations and franked mail postage. She returned $244,000 of her budgeted allocation to the national Treasury last year. She spent 71 percent of her budget "allowance," the lowest of any member of Michigan's congressional delegation — Democrat or Republican.

And, she has authored a bill to cut government perks, including pensions, automatic pay raises and free parking. She voted for gift-limitation rules which she has personally put into practice in her own office. She doesn't accept gifts or free meals.

Although we don't always agree with all of her views, Rivers' experience, integrity and intelligence make her a solid choice in the 13th District.

In addition to a Republican challenger, other minor party candidates on the ballot include Jim Hartnett, Socialist Equity Party, James F. Montgomery, Libertarian Party, and Jane Cutter, Workers World Party.

The 13th District has a lot of independent voters who want a substantive and ethical person representing them in Congress. That person is Lynn Rivers.

Millage renewal is not a good value

Canton voters in precincts 2, 20 and 15 will have a money decision to make on Tuesday, Nov. 5.

They will be asked, along with most of Wayne County, to vote on a 1-mill property renewal for another five years. (Those living in the Schoolcraft College district won't vote on this .)

WCCC's nearest campus is in Van Buren Township, on Haggerty south of I-94. Enrollment at that facility is about 200 students, about five or six typical classes in a neighborhood elementary school. But residents have a more convenient, quality community college at Schoolcraft. Financially, the cost is about the same: $70 per credit hour at WCCC and $73 for an out-of-district Schoolcraft student. At the same time, Schoolcraft offers a wide range of programs and services and has a more stable history.

WCCC has certainly cleaned up its act within the past year after many years of mismanagement and embarrassing, high-profile problems. While the Observer generally supports regional institutions, the millage renewal doesn't look like a good value for local residents.

But don't be surprised if the proposal is approved throughout most of the county, despite suburban opposition.

ELECTION LETTERS

She's for Whyman

The letter from Democratic challenger Deborah Nesbit epitomizes what is wrong with character education in the schools. Nesbit, according to her records, has 75 volunteers. I believe (state Rep. Deborah) Whyman has at least that many, but she did not have the advantage of giving her volunteers class credit for working on her campaign.

I think someone should do a close-up investigation of the "close-up" program. It's odd how that class consistently turns out volunteers for only the Democratic Party in a Republican district.

Why didn't Whyman attend a debate where questions were written with the assistance of (The Community) Crier staff in order to favor Nesbit and her ultra-liberal, left-wing agenda? Because Whyman is an intelligent person and nobody's fool. My vote is still for Whyman and for fair play.

Bobbie Cleary
Canton

Editor's note: Whyman and Nesbit are vying for a seat in the state House

Who is 'us'?

"A voice for us?" Mr. Fitzsimmons must mean his "us" – the upper class, white, male, divorced, business owner whom he represents: another silver-spoon politician. He certainly doesn't represent my "us" – the middle class, multi-racial, male and female, hard-working, family-oriented "us" who are the employees of this country.

Mr. Fitzsimmons and company are broken records complaining about Lynn Rivers' "whining." I guess then he must think that all of us who started out young and broke, with kids to protect and care for, must be whiners too. Lots of us, like Lynn, went to work and on to night school to work on our degrees. It took grit and determination to accomplish the goals we set for ourselves. Mr. Fitzsimmons obviously has no experience or compassion for the kind of lives most of us have led.

Lynn has worked hard, in her family, her hometown and in the Congress for "us," the people she represents. She hasn't forgotten or ignored our veterans, either. She's provided help and service each and every time she was asked. She's volunteered her time in the community to benefit needy causes.

So, Mr. Fitzsimmons, WE the voters who come from the middle class, humble, working backgrounds will be voting for Lynn Rivers this year since she is the voice for US.

Pro-business approach

I have read a few letters and articles in the Observer about the race for U.S. representative of the 13th District, which includes Canton.

The letters "No to Rivers" and "Rivers supported" dealt with the backgrounds of both Joe Fitzsimmons (business) and Lynn Rivers (housewife, student, school board member, etc.) and how these backgrounds will make them better or worst servants of the people. In my mind, if the economy is doing well, the people are doing well. Don't tell me what you can do for my family. Keep the economy strong and I will take care of my family.

To this end, I feel the candidate that I vote for is going to have to be pro-business. I am not sure (who) Rep. Rivers is. Her vote against granting China most-favored-nation status indicated to me that she is oblivious not only to the workings of business but is uninformed on international issues. Michigan depends on exports to fuel its economy. The civil rights of the Chinese people have come a long way because of greater trade relations and will not improve if you isolate them again. Rep. Rivers may be great at relating to the average Joe, but I am afraid the average Joe needs someone that can also relate to business and the economy.

MORE ELECTION LETTERS

A vote for Nesbit

I am writing this letter because I sincerely believe that our state representative, Deborah Whyman, has lost touch with the typical Canton citizens, and therefore should be removed from public office in the upcoming election.

Deborah Whyman helped to pass legislation which prohibits this community from being able to improve per pupil spending for our schools and children, even if the voters of this community want to. She has also put our children in the second tier of public education.

She also has ensured that once potential home-buyers learn of the problems with the Plymouth-Canton School District's funding, that our housing values may stop their rise, and may eventually begin to decline.

She has helped to pass recent legislation which prohibits you or your children from suing a drunken driver, even if the drunk runs a red light, and even if he causes you permanent and serious injury, if your injuries do not show up on an X-ray, an EMG or an MRI.

Further with regard to a recent survey of pro-consumer issues, Deborah Whyman only voted on behalf of the consumer two times out of 15.

Deborah Whyman's indifference to the needs of this community is further shown by the fact that she failed to appear to debate her opponent at the League of Women Voters Forum on Tuesday, Oct. 1, even though 65 citizens of this community showed up to ask her questions.

The choice for state representative for the citizens of Canton seems clear to me for Nov. 5. If you want a state representative who is unwilling to address the questions of their constituents, vote for Deborah Whyman. If not, I would urge you to vote for change, and vote for Deborah Nesbit.

Write-in platform

As you may already know, I am running a write-in campaign for Canton supervisor.

I, like many of you, am unhappy with the direction the present leadership has steered our community. Our roads cannot handle the present traffic situation, yet explosive construction continues throughout the township. Our schools are overburdened, yet every empty field seems to be turned into a new subdivision. Township leaders are attempting to tell us how to live our lives with morality legislation. Taxpayers' money is not being controlled as wisely as it should.

These are a few of the issues that have prompted my campaign.

My mission for Canton is to create a more friendly community. Problems citizens face will be solved as quickly as possible, minimizing red tape and layers of bureaucracy.

Further, while I feel growth is good for the community, I believe that we need to control how we grow. A third issue I feel needs attention is the fact that the community does not have an ice arena, and still lacks an adequate number of soccer fields or softball diamonds.

If elected, I would do everything possible to end discussions of a community ethics code. This is an unreasonable and dangerous tool that has no place in our community. Giving our leaders the power to control the way we live our lives is not the way to address our concerns about morality.

Furthermore, we have a large senior population who has no place to call their own, unlike their counterparts in our neighboring communities.

A final issue I will address is the lack of activities for our youth. I would like to meet with the youth of our community and attempt to come up with a safe and economically viable venture that our teens would actually use.

I look forward to meeting with members of the community and working alongside our township board members to bring positive changes to the greatest community in the state.

POINTS OF VIEW

Townships: Consider downside to road money

Suburban townships should think long and hard before they jump on state Sen. Loren Bennett's road money bandwagon.

Bennett, R-Canton, won approval of his amendment to a package of Senate road bills allowing townships with more than 10,000 population to obtain a share of road money rather than depending on the county to care for local roads.

In the Great Depression year of 1932, counties were given jurisdiction over all township roads and streets (in addition to many "mile" roads in cities). Bennett's amendment would have the effect of returning us to the pre-Depression system of road responsibility. The House will take up the Senate bills after the Nov. 5 election.

Superficially, the Bennett amendment is alluring. Who doesn't think the county road commission (or in Wayne, the public works department) isn't spending enough on "our" roads and too much on "theirs"? We've heard the line for 20 years or more.

In Wayne County's case, says Senate Majority Leader Dick Posthumus, the specter of partisan politics darkens the picture. Canton's, Plymouth's and Northville's township officials are Republicans. The boss of Wayne County, CEO Ed McNamara, is a Democrat – and, rightly or wrongly, an easy target.

Lots of townships could be affected. In Wayne County, Bennett's Canton has more than 57,000 inhabitants. Redford Township tops the 54,000 mark; Plymouth Township, 24,000 mark; Northville Township, 17,000. Brownstown, Huron, Sumpter and Van Buren all are eligible.

So why should townships think long and hard before opting to take the road money?

■ Liability. Suppose, for example, a township gets $2 million worth of road money. Suppose there's a bad accident due to road design and repair, and someone wins a $1.5 million lawsuit. There goes 75 percent of its road money for a year.

Far-fetched? Think again. In the early 1980s, the Michigan Department of Transportation got nicked in a single lawsuit for one-third of its annual construction budget. Those trial lawyers have sharp rows of teeth.

Tim Richard

The current system of letting counties run the road operations has the advantage of spreading damages from a megabucks lawsuit over a broader area. No one unit gets stung too hard.

■ Adequacy. Even if a township gets its formula share of the money, it's unlikely to be enough. "Every city subsidizes roads," in addition to getting a straight shot of money from the state, said Brent O. Bair, managing director of the Oakland County Road Commission.

In other words, townships who take advantage of the Bennett amendment – in the event it becomes law – likely will find they must scrape up money of their own to supplement their cuts of state fuel taxes, Bair said.

■ Cityhood. Cities get their road money straight from the state. Why shouldn't a big township incorporate as a city and do the job right?

Cities have far more powers than townships: more control over their governmental structure, the ability to become nonpartisan, more bonding and more taxing authority.

There's the rub. Over the last three decades, townships have tried to acquire the powers of cities, one by one, without incorporating and writing charters. "Townships are cities in everything but name," says Gene Thornton, lobbyist for the Michigan Townships Association. Thornton exaggerates, of course, but each year his statement edges closer to the truth.

Unfortunately, many township officials lack the testicular fortitude to look the voters in the eye and recommend the obvious: Let's stop whining, incorporate as a home-rule city and tackle our problems with good tools instead of stone axes.

Some townshippers turn yellow over the "T" question, taxes. Others feel protected by a township's partisan elections, where they worry only about the primary and face little challenge Nov. 5.

The Bennett amendment, while alluring, is unnecessary for the improvement of roads. What's necessary is suburban local officials with modern ideas and old-fashioned courage.

Political money is handed out only for a return on investment

Philip Power

As this year's political season comes down to the last few 20-second-spot-infested days, my own thinking keeps circling back to one thing: Money, the mother's milk of politics.

I've never seen so much money spent on so many different races.

It's the millions being poured into the U.S. Senate and congressional contests throughout Michigan. It's the hundreds of thousands of dollars being spent in Michigan on the various state and local ballot proposals. Nationally, best estimates are that something like $1 billion is being spent on the presidential race alone.

Numbers like that tend to bring out the cynic in me.

Frankly, I doubt that much money is being spent solely for idealism or in passionate conviction that paragraph 2(b) in the party platform is really worth it. Big money is going to be put up by smart people only if they see a big payoff quite clearly in the near future.

We certainly have succeeded in creating the ultimately efficient political system. Shorn of the inconvenience of political parties pulling ordinary people into loose coalitions, we have erected a politics in which wealthy interest groups – whether labor unions or trial lawyers, whether developers or conservationists – contend directly for the influence and wealth that arise as the result of governmental acts.

As evidence, consider this year's contests to fill the two posts on the Michigan Supreme Court.

Time was, judicial campaigns rotated around a mixture of name ID (in these parts, Irish helps) and judicial philosophy (whatever that means) and juridical temperament.

No longer. Four of the candidates for the court – all sane and sensible people – find themselves sadly positioned as pawns for conflicting interest groups.

The Michigan Trial Lawyers Association has thrown its considerable muscle behind one of its own, Court of Appeals Judge William Murphy, a Democratic nominee. As of the most recent campaign finance report, Murphy had raised some $375,000 for this campaign. Of this, more than $100,000 came from donations from members of one Southfield law firm, Sommers, Schwartz, Silver and Schwartz.

This despite the naive-sounding advice on campaign fund raising put out by the State Bar of Michigan: "a (candidate) committee may accept unsolicited contributions ... provided that the contributions are not so large as to give an appearance of attempting to bias the candidate in the contributor's favor."

Ignoring the slightly contrary-to-fact qualities inherent in the adjective "unsolicited," just which law firm is entitled to the presumption of bias before the Supreme Court if Judge Murphy were to be elected?

To be sure, both Republican-nominated candidates, Chief Justice James Brickley and Oakland Circuit Judge Hilda Gage, have also raised money from political committees. The Michigan Bankers Association ($10,000 per candidate), the Michigan Chamber of Commerce ($5,000 each) and a coalition of hospital groups ($10,000 each) are hardly in the business of tossing big checks around with no expectation of a benign outcome.

With all of this stuff going on, a cynic might suggest that our legal system could reach hitherto unimagined efficiency if each legal brief submitted to our judges also were to include an indication of how much special interest PACs and which lawyers and law firms contributed to their campaigns. Then at least the donors would be better able to correlate the provision of justice to the extent of campaign contributions.

Obviously, that's a low blow. I've known Justice Brickley and Appeals Judge Marilyn Jean Kelly (the other Democratic nominee) for years and respect enormously their thoughtfulness and integrity. Judge Murphy and Judge Gage, too, have fine reputations.

But their ability to convince ordinary people that the application of the law is impartial and fair is being sorely jeopardized by our political system that is increasingly – and sadly – infested with the taint of special interest money.

FAMILY ROOM

KAREN MEIER

Let me count our blessings

The phoenix is already rising from the ashes – rising from The Letter you saw in the "Family Room" last week. You've been sharing your thoughts, you've been talking at the office, at home, with your moms, husbands and wives about The Letter. Good is coming of it. And I'll share your thoughts here in the "Family Room," like a forum, beginning next week.

But for today, I'll share my thoughts – on one particular passage in The Letter: "... all of us working moms really got upset at how you tried to present to the world what a great blessing having your last 'special needs' child was. One of the women in our group has raised a handicapped child, she has a special education background ... her response to your article on that topic was 'This lady is trying to convince herself that this is something special, she doesn't have a clue ... this will take its toll on the whole family."

"This" is My Baby. He IS a great blessing. That is neither pretense nor exaggeration. It's the truth. And there's never been a need to be convinced or to convince anyone on that. He is, all my children are, blessings.

Our five blessings

Steven is the youngest of five children, the five children of mine who were granted birth and life. There were others who were not granted this, they were taken from us by way of four miscarriages and one ectopic pregnancy. I lost these children, I still grieve for them.

Steven, though, was granted life. And we rejoice! He was strong enough and spirited enough to make it through. In my experience, that's extraordinary, that's a blessing. And the fact that he was born with Down syndrome declares even more emphatically his strength and indomitable spirit. He made it to me and my husband and our other children in spite of it all.

Steven's birth on the way to the hospital on that bitter cold winter midnight on a lonely country road makes his standing in the "blessing" category rock solid. There were no doctors around to assist. The passenger seat I was sitting in was bolt upright. My husband was driving as fast as the slippery roads would permit, when Steven emerged.

It was six degrees below zero that night. Not a house, not a soul in sight. And when the van finally came to a stop on that cold, dark night, my baby was in the world and in my hands. God had put him there. And there is no one who can convince me otherwise. And when he wasn't breathing after he had been born, I wanted to scream and cry and shake my fist upwards, "It's not fair, God. Don't do this."

But, instead, it wasn't a fist I saw, it was a hand, my own, wiping the baby's nose off and my husband's hand wiping the baby's mouth out. And Steven coughed and then he cried. He was here. In the world. In our hands. Through it all.

A blessing, for sure

He is a blessing. I will shout it from the top of the highest mountain for no one or for everyone to hear. It doesn't matter who hears, I know it. All five of my children are the greatest blessings I could ever know. That knowledge is in my heart and in my head. There was never a moment when this child's foundation was shaken, when his place on this earth or in this family was in question.

People have told us, "Steven is so lucky to have you as his family."

"No," I tell them. "We're the lucky ones." I don't know what we as a family or I as an individual have done in God's eyes to be granted such a tremendous, precious gift. I do know – none of us is paying a toll.

He is work, to be sure. But all children are "work." He goes to school, with me and two of his brothers, each week. He had eye surgery about a month ago. Lots of doctor visits involved with that, lots of trips many miles up the road and bringing the other children along. He has significant hearing loss, the time involved in diagnosing that has been considerable. And what we will do in the future to help him overcome this obstacle will require more time. All of us are willing and happy and excited to do this for him.

That's how it has to be in a family. Because of Steven, our world has opened up, our hearts have opened up.

We've been following a program of nutritional therapy for Steven. We've met with the experts. We're spearheading a national organization to disseminate information about the therapy. This is not a "toll." This is life. And we celebrate it and we cherish it and we embrace it.

Life should never be a cheap proposition, where tolls are counted and blessings are not. If the road is wide enough, if the love encompasses all who travel there, there is no "toll." This fami-

Ghoulies & Ghosties & Things that go bump in the night

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

The pumpkins are carved; the candy dishes filled with goodies. Hordes of Power Rangers, Dalmatians, fairy princesses and the usual ghoulies and ghosties are on the move.

It's Halloween, that one time of the year when it's fun to be scary and to be scared.

Halloween dates back 2,500 years to the Celts and their Druid priest who celebrated the "Lord of the Dead" on Oct. 31, the last day of their old year.

Trick or treating comes from the English custom of the poor begging for "soul cakes" for a promise to pray for the dead, while the custom of carving a jack-o'-lantern comes from Irish and English lore. Jack, so the story goes, broke a promise with the devil and as a result had to roam the earth to Judgment Day, carrying only a lantern to light his way.

While some sources describe Halloween as a "children's holiday," the opposite is true. Today's Halloween celebration has become a $2.6 billion bonanza. It is now the second most hyped and celebrated season of the year.

"Halloween is no longer just a day, it's a season," said Dr. Michael Bernacchi, marketing professor at the University of Detroit Mercy. "It's uniquely configured by and for (baby) boomers for them to relive their childhood.

"Not only do they do it for the kids and the family to make it a fun celebration, they do it for themselves."

That's not quite the case at MaryAnne Jacek's house in Canton Township. While her decorations entertain the neighborhood, they're "a little method of torture" for husband Dave, whose birthday falls on Oct. 31.

"He gets embarrassed, but I decorate in his honor," she said. "But it's all in fun. I started when we lived in Dearborn Heights with a little old man and woman. I told him, 'This is gonna be us.' Unfortunately, they got stolen."

Scaredom's favorites

The display now includes scaredom's favorites – Frankenstein, the Grim Reaper and the Mummy – as well as a gargoyle on the roof. There are appropriate sound effects and music and strobe light and, new this year, a black light.

"Halloween is mine, Christmas is my husband's," she said of the decorating. "I've had people stop across the street and take pictures. The kids get embarrassed. They walk by the door and say, 'Oh God, there's more people out there.' "

The Jaceks have a good turnout for Halloween and humor those youngsters frightened by the display. For those who refuse to come to the door, they deliver their candy to them at the sidewalk.

"They see it day after day, but when it's dark, they tend to get scared, " she said. "I really like having Halloween for the kids."

Bernacchi traces the rise of Halloween as a season – "Without it, October would be a humdrum month." – to the 1960s, when the "fun-loving" boomers left home with a do-your-own-thing attitude, fueled by TV's "The Munsters" and "The Addams Family."

But the defining moment, according to Bernacchi, was the airing of Charles Schulz's "It's the Great Pumpkin, Charlie Brown" in 1966. Boomers were blossoming and they were able to take a favorite holiday into adulthood.

But with the tainted candy scares of the '70s casting a pall on the celebration, Halloween moved inside with malls, churches and the like offering a secure environment.

"That made a large contribution to institutionalizing this holiday," Bernacchi said. "The key indication was the holiday was already there, but this was an acknowledgement, like the pope canonizing it.

"For merchants, it was too good to pass up. These days, the marketplace can no longer let themed events happen by chance, they have to orchestrate them and Halloween was a convenient godsend."

Visitors welcomed

If that's the case, then Lynn Berger fills Bernacchi's bill. She's been decorating her house for about six years and "really enjoys the kids and their parents who come by," some in cars.

"I'll have grandparents stop and say, 'Oh, you're doing it again; I always bring my grandchildren by,' " Berger said. "And I think Detroit Edison enjoys it. I have three flood lights and a huge spotlight on the porch."

They family spent 12 hours on a Saturday putting up the display that includes Dr. Madman's Laboratory on the porch, complete with a patient and Nurse Torture.

There are 33 tombstones for notables from Ken and Barbie to Larry, Moe and Curly in the Rigormortis Cemetery, while the Dig and Bury Pet Cemetery is "home" for Elsie the Cow and Barney, to name a few.

"I thinks it's my wacky brain that comes up with the ideas; my nickname is Loony Lynn," she said.

The Livonia resident estimates that close to 150 children and their parents visit the elaborate display on Halloween. She also admits that her son Jeff, then age 13, wasn't excited about the display when she first started doing it.

"He'd ask why we had to be the only ones on the block to do this, but now he thinks it's pretty neat," Berger said. "I've always enjoyed Halloween; it's my favorite holiday."

As for Kathy Hildebrandt, Halloween comes to life on Halloween and is a reflection of her enjoyment of being scared.

"I enjoyed being scared as a kid; my dad always did that," she said. "It's really fun getting scared on Halloween."

The headstones are carved from scrap Styrofoam husband Alan brought home from work.

Limited edition: Zofia and Henry Zawieruszynski's newest doll, "Olga," was made specifically for Reme Tillman, owner of Reme's Collectibles in Canton. The dolls – there are 10 of them – sell for $1,285 each.

BY JILL HALPIN
SPECIAL WRITER

A pair of nationally-known doll makers will visit Canton this weekend to introduce a special, limited-edition porcelain doll, made exclusively for a local doll shop.

Doll artists Zofia and Henry Zawieruszynski, a Polish-born husband and wife team, are scheduled to visit Reme's Collectibles on Ford Road at Lilley Saturday, Nov. 2. The Zawieruszynskis will spend the afternoon signing dolls, chatting with customers and introducing "Olga," the limited-edition doll, which retails for $1,285, said Reme Tillman, owner of Reme's Collectibles. "Olga" is the newest doll in the Zawieruszynski Originals line of dolls, priced up to $4,000.

"This is a very special doll," said Tillman. "She is a limited edition with only 10 pieces and was made just for this store. Like all of the other dolls created by the Zawieruszynskis, she is just beautiful, with exquisite detailing."

For Tillman, who has owned and operated Reme's Collectibles in the Canton Corners shopping center for the past eight years, "Olga" has special meaning. It was Tillman who stumbled upon the yet-to-be discovered artisans and their work while visiting a doll exposition in 1995.

"I felt like I discovered them. When I saw their dolls, immediately I knew that they would be famous," the store owner said. "I just knew that they would be a hit. Their dolls have eyes that talk back to you when you look into them. They reflect a great deal of emotion."

That emotion may come, in part, from the plight of the Zawieruszynskis.

The couple, artists in their native Poland, came to America, seeking work in 1988. They left behind two teenaged children, who stayed with relatives for six months before joining their parents. The couple settled in Minnesota and worked for a printing company before making their first dolls in 1992. The dolls immediately began winning awards, Tillman said.

After viewing the dolls at the doll expo in Virginia, Tillman bought all six and brought them home to Canton.

"I had them in the shop for only 20 minutes before they began to sell," she said. "The Zawieruszynskis are used to working very hard, and this is reflected in their work. People recognize this."

Tillman believes it is her special relationship with the couple that prompted them to craft the "Olga" doll.

"I like them very much, and so do our customers," she said. "I have a hard time keeping them in stock."

She is also looking forward to introducing her customers to the couple. It is a good chance for owners to meet the creators of the pricey dolls.

"We have a family-type rapport with our customers," she said. "It will be a nice chance for them to learn more about the artists."

Tillman is also sponsoring visits from other doll makers and teddy bear artists throughout the coming week. Ruth Trefeissen, a doll artist from Germany, will visit the store on Nov. 4.

ENCORE work earns her Woman of Achievement award

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Sharon Morris learned to make lemonade out of lemons. She has turned her experience as a breast cancer survivor into a positive one by volunteering for and creating support groups.

For her efforts, the Westland resident will be honored with a YWCA of Western Wayne County's Women of Achievement Award at noon Friday, Nov. 1, at The Fairlane Club in Dearborn.

Morris, who admits she has the gift of gab, was at a loss for words when asked how she felt about winning the award.

"I can't express it; it's wonderful to be recognized like that," she said.

The awards honor western Wayne County women in arts/communication, business/industry, government/law, professions and volunteer service and as a young woman.

Those joining Morris as award winners are Sharon Sims of Taylor, Agnes Joan Harrison of Inkster, Jennifer Granholm of Northville Township, Dr. Barbara J. Diamond and Jennifer Baron, a Dearborn Heights resident who has consistently been a leader in school clubs, sports, church and other community organizations.

Florine Mark, president and chief executive of the W.W. Group Inc., the largest franchise of Weight Watchers International, will be the keynote speaker at the fifth annual ceremony. Tickets are $25, $10 of which is tax-deductible, by calling the YWCA at (313) 561-4110.

Morris was nominated for the award by Rose Rosa, a member of ENCORE, a breast cancer support and exercise group facilitated by Morris.

"I encourage anyone who has a question to join a support group; I have been a member of ENCORE group for 19 years and we are never too old and help others," said Rosa. "I recommended Sharon Morris for an achievement award for all her volunteer work and for all the years she has helped other people. ENCORE has helped a lot of women. That's why I said if anybody has any questions they should join a group.

"Even if they don't have cancer, they have something else. They still should join a group to get help because if you ask you're going to get help, if you don't then you won't. Look at all the people that have problems in the world and they don't ask. They don't know who to ask."

ENCORE was founded in 1972 in New York by registered nurse Helen Glines Kohut, a qualified swimming and ballet instructor who had a mastectomy. Morris had breast cancer in 1977 and joined ENCORE a year later when the first group in the metropolitan Detroit area was formed.

"I started as a participant because I had an open incision and couldn't move my hand or my arm for five months," she said. "There was another facilitator. I guess I had such a good gift of gab or suggestions that the facilitator saw in me that she talked me into going to Pittsburgh, Pa."

Lorene Lewallen of Garden City heard about ENCORE through material she received after she had breast cancer surgery in 1988. She joined the group to regain use of her arm, so she could continue wallpapering, crocheting, and doing arts and crafts. Lewallen said she has been tremendously helped by Morris, the program, and fellow mastectomy patients.

"The hot tub, the swimming and the arm exercises we do in the water, all of that helps. I consider these gals my friends now," she said. "It's helpful to know that you're sitting across the table from somebody that's had that done to them years ago and look how good they're doing. It gives you incentive to do what they did to get in their shape."

Morris meets with ENCORE members from 9-11:30 a.m. Thursdays at the Forum Health Spa, 34250 Ford Road at Wildwood in Westland. Besides being involved with ENCORE, Morris volunteers for the Reach to Recovery program from the American Cancer Society, and facilitates a breast cancer support group at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia 7-8:30 p.m. the second Thursday of the month.

The married mother of two and grandmother of three founded but is no longer affiliated with the American Cancer Society-sponsored Just Between Us, a support group that meets monthly in Garden City.

"That one was already established and St. Mary needed my help more, so I dropped that program," Morris said.

Running support groups, Morris said, is just as educational for her as it is the members.

"The support groups, I've been doing these for almost 20 years, since 1977," she said. "I learned something new every time I have a group.."

A $2 per session fee and doctor's permission are required to participate in ENCORE. For more information, call the YWCA at (313) 561-4110. The group will have a craft sale Friday-Sunday, Nov. 22-24, , at the Bailey Recreation Center, 36651 Ford Road.

Body parts, including the arm of Hollywood's Halloween favorite, Jason, accented with plastic fishing worms add to the effect.

Recent arrivals in Livonia, Hildebrandt started her Halloween traditions eight years ago, when they lived in Dearborn Heights. In addition to decorating, the family settles down with plenty of popcorn to watch scary movies.

"I got my love of scary movies from my father; it's one of my nice memories," she said. "And I've taught the kids how fun it is to scare people.

"People say you shouldn't scare kids, but if you show them that it's for fun and not done to terrorize them, it's OK. We have a good time."

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

Chris Knight

BEWARE OF H.O.

What is "H.O."? You can probably guess – it means "home odors."

Be careful of odors in your home. If your family room smells stale or your cat or dog has left a distinctive odor in the hallway, the important thing is to remove the root cause of the odor rather than to merely treat the symptoms. Smells have a powerful effect on the way people react to a house, and no amount of room freshener or vanilla on the light bulbs can mask a serious odor problem. In fact, such remedies may draw attention to the problem. We have seen homes with an odor problem languish unsold on the market for months or sell for thousands of dollars less than comparable homes in the neighborhood.

If you think that you may have a problem, talk candidly with your Realtor. Your agent should be able to offer some constructive suggestions, and perhaps refer you to a professional who can help banish H.O. from your home!

If there is a move in your future, Chris Knight is ready to serve you. Call Chris at Coldwell Banker Schweitzer Real Estate, 313-453-6800.

New Maternity Center Opening February 1997

My Delivery. My Physician. My Hospital.

"St. Mary Hospital offered so many choices for me, my baby and my family."

When I first thought about where to have my baby, I was sure of a few things: I didn't want to be moved from room to room, I wanted my family to stay with me, and I wanted the back up of a full-service hospital. St. Mary Hospital's new Miracle of Life Maternity Center offered me the choices I was looking for.

My doctor told me about the new maternity center's private, single-room suites, designed to help me feel at home. I'll stay in the same room for labor, delivery, recovery and postpartum care – they're called LDRPs. My best friend, Nancy, and her little girl can visit when it's convenient for me. I can even have someone stay overnight in my room.

And, the hospital's new Marian Women's Center offers education like Infant Care and Safety classes and a Breastfeeding Program to help us make the adjustment to home life.

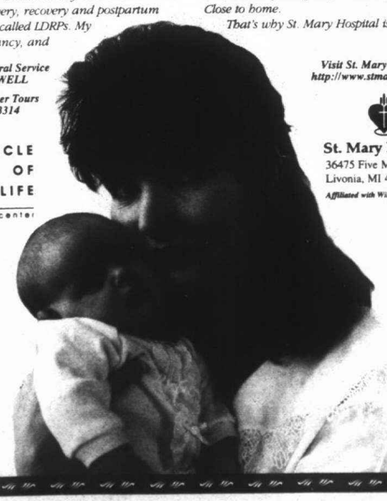

For my peace of mind there's 24-hour obstetrical coverage, and neonatology service is available if my baby needs it. State-of-the-art technology includes epidural anesthesia for comfort, and advanced fetal monitoring. All the while feeling very much at home. Close to home.

That's why St. Mary Hospital is my hospital.

Book discussion focuses on women

Several writers who contributed to a book of autobiographical essays will be at the Little Professor Bookstore in Plymouth on Saturday, Nov. 2, to discuss their work.

The essays are part of "Private Voices, Public Lives: Women Speak on the Literary Life," edited by Nancy Owen Nelson and published by the University of North Texas Press in June 1995.

The writers will speak about their essays, discussing the background of them and possibly reading brief passages during the gathering 1-3 p.m. at the cappuccino bar in the rear of the bookstore. There also will be time for questions from the audience.

Several of the The books promotes the use of the personal voice in conjunction with traditional critical analysis to discuss the connections between the public lives and private voices of the women.

Each wrote an autobiographical essay in which she explored the role which text – through reading, teaching or writing – has shaped and directed her own consciousness.

The includes 24 essays, six of which were written by Michigan residents. Four are associated with Henry Ford Community College in Dearborn – Lois Hassan and Nelson who are English instructors, Elsie Mayer, a retired English instructor, and Grace Stewart who is with the college's Focus on Women program.

The other Michigan authors are Catherine Lamb, who is with the Great Lakes Colleges Association in Ann Arbor, and Carol S. Chadwick, a professor at Wayne County Community College.

The essays cover a wide range of literary materials from the writings of Katherine Ann Porter, Laura Ingalls Wilder and Ann Morrow Lindburgh to those of Frederick Manfred and Hart Crane.

The essays open the door for a new approach to writing about literature and provide good reading for the general reader, the student of English and the literary and women's studies scholar, according to Nelson.

The popular strength of "Private Lives" is the power and freedom it gives to the personal voices of the writers. It gives them the opportunity, possible for the first time, to write about how literature has shaped their lives, consciousness and decisions, she said.

Little Professor Bookstore is at 380 S. Main St., Plymouth. For more information, call (313) 455-5220.

Writer has a magnetic personality

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

LORENE GREEN

Dear Ms. Green,

I have been reading your column for many years and find handwriting very interesting! I am very interested in the way people write. I am a right handed, 39-year-old female. My teachers used tell me I draw my letters instead of writing them. I hold my pen very tightly and I like to print also.

I have been married for 12 years and I have three children. I love my family and I love people.

Please analyze my handwriting. I will look forward to seeing it in the paper!

Thank you!

J.R., Livonia

This large bold handwriting suggests a woman who wants to create a lasting impression on others. She demands room and seems to know how to get it.

She has a magnetic personality, combined with leadership qualities. She is also self-sufficient and relies on herself for what she wants to accomplish. She is determined to overcome obstacles and has many good ideas. She rarely misses a trick.

When starting in on a new activity she may be a tad cautious. However, when she sees it is working she gains confidence and moves forward with accuracy and determination.

Much of her world revolves around what is happening right now. Her main concern is with the demands of day-today living, sociability and herself. She enjoys activities that involve people and she is empathetic and intuitive about them.

She likes to do things on a grand scale. She is able to focus on the large picture of things, while still retaining a feeling for details.

She has the abundant energy it takes to handle her home, family and sundry activities which consume so much of her time. She wants immediate gratification of her desires and does not like to wait.

This is a woman who takes an objective view of situations. She thinks before she acts. There is an aura of control and poise about her. She is not one to share her personal life with many other people. In fact, she can be rather evasive, if pressured for answers.

Our writer is progressive and independent in her thinking. Seemingly, she has jettisoned some emotional baggage from the past. In the early years she did not perceive her parents united in their parenting. There are some things here she feels she cannot change, so she has decided to accept them. A little anxiety is noted.

She seems to be very aware of time and uses hers wisely. She may equate time with money. A strong appreciation of what money can provide in creature comforts is hers.

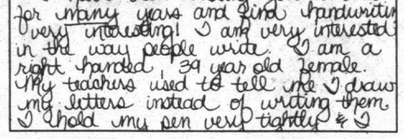

She probably also enjoys sports or some form of physical activity for relaxation.

A lively imagination abounds in the handwriting. It often entices her down the path of new adventures. She is probably a good storyteller. It also enables her to visualize future experiences as well as make her activities more creative.

When she wrote this letter she appeared to be overextended with too many irons in the fire. She was probably finding it difficult to keep things sorted out and to honor her commitments in timely fashion.

Her goals seem to be placed a little low for her capabilities. Someone once offered this valuable advice, "Reach for the moon. If you miss, you will still fall among the stars."

If you would like your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please write a few paragraphs about yourself, using a full sheet of white, unlined paper and writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and signature are all helpful. Due to the volume of mail, personal replies are not possible.

Grace Christian Fellowship holds dedication service

On June 16, the Open Door Christian Church closed its doors for the last time in Northville. But the closing wasn't the end of the church.

A week later, on June 23, it opened its doors as Grace Christian Fellowship at its new location, 29520 Munger, south of Six Mile Road and west of Middlebelt Road, Livonia.

"God has given us a new name and a new place for worship where we can carry out God's purpose for this church," said Pastor Mark Freer. "We are excited about the new opportunities to reach out to this and surrounding communities."

On Sunday, Nov. 3, Grace Christian will have its dedication and celebration service. The dedication service will be at 10 a.m. with the celebration starting at 7 p.m.

There also will be an open house with light refreshments, starting at 6 p.m.

Pastor Francis Martin of Family Life Fellowship in Lafayette, La., and long-time friend of Freer will be ministering at both services.

"Grace Fellowship is a group of people of all ages and backgrounds brought together by the Holy Spirit with a common desire to know God, glorify and enjoy him forever," Freer said. "Our name exemplifies what we believe. Grace is why we are here – God's grace. Christian is who we are – disciples of Jesus Christ. Fellowship is what we do – love, receive, serve and be in partnership with one another."

Grace Christian Fellowship has services – worship and teaching – at 10 a.m. Sunday. A nursery and full children's church also is available. For more information, call (313) 525-6019.

Free Agent victory

The first-ever Midwest Dekhockey Tournament attracted teams from throughout the midwest, but the winner was from the neighborhood -- the Canton Free Agents, who defeated another local squad, the Canton Panthers, 3-2 in the final Sunday at Michigan Dekhockey in Canton.

The Free Agents reached the finals by sweeping through the tournament without a loss. They opened with a 5-2 victory over the team they would meet in the final, the Panthers, on Saturday. Later that day they handled Team No Good easily, winning 12-2.

The Free Agents first game Sunday was against Team Pepsi, a match they won easily, 9-3. After that it was on to the tournament semifinals against Team Universal Stomp, a game they won 10-3.

The Panthers, led by the tournament's Most Valuable Goalie, Scott Fristick, upset Team MIDEK 3-2 in the semis. The Panthers trailed 2-0 going into the final period, then scored three times for the upset win. Canton residents on the Panthers are Sam and Josh Barrie, Craig Catello and Greg Pfiefer.

The Free Agents dominated action early against the Panthers in the final, outshooting them 27-12 and outscoring them 3-1 heading into the last period. The Panthers cut the deficit to one, but could not control play down the stretch.

A Supreme Court shot

Probate Court Judge Martin Maher, of Canton, could never have this decision overturned -- a hole-in-one at Hickory Creek Golf Course in Plymouth.

His Honor collected his ace on the sixth hole, 123 yards in length, last Friday. He used a pitching wedge, and finished with a round of 93. It was his first hole-in-one in 20 years of golfing.

Steelers stun Lions

•In the final regular-season game on the schedule, the Plymouth-Canton Steelers varsity football club clobbered the Canton Lions 27-0 Sunday. The Steelers have qualified for the playoffs; they'll open their run for the Superbowl Sunday.

Kevin Entsminger scored twice for the Steelers on two 1-yard touchdown plunges (one in each half), and quarterback Chris Hardy threw for one TD and ran for another. Hardy hit Chris Sherfey witha 10-yard scoring toss to open the scoring, then ran 3 yardson a quarterback keeper in the second half.

Marshall Tucker, Charlie Haeger, Chris Trott, Brad Lavallee and Hardy led the defense, which limited the Lions to 10 rushing yards.

Matthew Schuler, Jason Singleton, Brian Tomlinson, Brandon Szwejkowski and David Reeser led the defense.

•The Lion freshmen also finished their season with a win, beating the Steelers 12-0 -- their fourth-consecutive shutout. The Lion frosh finish with a 5-2-1 record.

Chris Drabicki scored the first touchdown in the first half on a 15-yard draw play. David Thomas cushioned the Lion lead with a 1-yard dive.

The defense was led by nose tackle Jonathan Wood, who forced four fumbles. Eric Lyons, Ryan Lewis, Matt Koetling and Greg Johnson paced a defense that held the Steelers to three rushing first downs.

Call (313) 483-5660, ext. 2 or 3 for more information.

Co-ed volleyball

Canton's Parks and Recreation Services is sponsoring a co-ed volleyball league, with play beginning Friday, Dec. 6, and continuing on Fridays throughout the 12-week season.

Cost is $175 per team plus $15 for each player who lives outside Canton Township or the city of Plymouth. Teams are allowed as many non-residents as they wish (a resident is defined as anyone who lives or works full-time in the areas mentioned).

Registration will be Oct. 28-Nov. 5 for returning teams and from Nov. 6 until the league is filled for new teams. For more information, call (313) 397-5110.

Salem runners reach state finals

Hopes were high among Salem cross country runners entering last Saturday's regional, but little else seemed to favor the Rocks. And yet, they overcame the odds to finish third, qualifying for the state finals.

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR

The game plan was simple and straight-forward:

Just do your best.

Plymouth Salem girls cross country coach Dave Gerlach could not offer his team any secret plan that would put them at the top of the standings at Saturday's Class A regional at Ann Arbor Pioneer HS.

But what he told them was direct enough: "All we need is to have a good day and have some other teams not have such a good day."

Considering the level of the competition -- three of the teams (Livonia Stevenson, Pioneer and Novi) were ranked in the top four in the state, and several others had spent time in the top 10 -- it sounded as if the Rocks, as good as they were, would need a lot of help.

They got it, and a good portion they supplied themselves. With superior performances particularly from their seniors, Salem managed to claw its way to a third-place finish, good enough to send them to Saturday's Class A state final at Michigan International Speedway in Brooklyn.

"We knew it was going to be a battle from gun to finish," said Gerlach, whose team placed third at the Western Lakes Activities Association meet. "We knew the untouchables would be Stevenson and Novi.

"After that, it would be a battle. There were 10 quality teams battling for three spots."

And, as Gerlach noted, two spots were almost certainly occupied by Stevenson and Novi. Ann Arbor Huron, Pioneer, Plymouth Canton, Farmington Hills Mercy and Farmington were among those expected to challenge.

"Our goal was, 'Let's get to the finals,' " said Gerlach.

Led by senior co-captains Nicole Bolton, who finished 13th overall

Canton slogs past 'Dogs

These two teams knew each other. And they were familiar playing each other in the kind of conditions Tuesday's weather brought: cold and rainy, which converted the playing surface into a swamp.

The first time Plymouth Canton played Brighton on the Bulldogs' home field, the Chiefs had to rally in similar weather ("It was rainy and muddy, but not like this," said Canton coach Don Smith) to earn a 2-2 tie.

On Tuesday, in the Class A regional semifinals, it was Brighton that faced the same prospect under worse conditions. The Bulldogs, however, could not overcome the obstacles facing them -- not the least of which was keeper Ben Davis -- as this time the Canton prevailed, 2-1.

The win pushed the Chiefs' record to 15-2-4 and sends them into Saturday's regional final against league rival Livonia Stevenson. The game is 1 p.m. at Brighton.

Thus far this season Canton and Stevenson have played twice, the Spartans winning in the regular season 3-2 but the Chiefs beating them in the Western Lakes Activities Association championship game, 3-1.

The swamplike conditions of Tuesday's game, most of which was played in a downpour, pretty much ruined both team's normal playing styles -- although Brighton coach Dusan Shiposh did say his team had played on the same field all season, in similar condition.

If the 'Dogs were more accustomed to it, it didn't show.

"I thought the teams were pretty evenly matched," said Smith. "And actually, considering the conditions, the kids handled the ball pretty well.

At least at first. Both teams had ideal scoring chances in the first half -- Brighton scoring in the first minute of the match only to have it disallowed by an offsides call, and Canton's Kevin Gniewek putting a shot off the goal post -- but neither could score.

The Chiefs ended the drought (in this weather?) when Brighton's defenders were unable to clear a ball out of danger. It reached Gniewek, and he put his shot under the crossbar this time, giving Canton a 1-0 lead with 38:47 left in the second half.

The Chiefs had the best of the play prior to that, and for five minutes more. Then on a Bulldog counter, Andy Finley sent a perfect through pass from the left wing to Scott Hurlbert, and he converted it to tie the score at 1-1 with 32:38 remaining.

After that, it was Brighton that was in control, and Canton was holding on. Already Davis had been tested on several occasions in goal, but over the next 12 minutes he was forced to make several more stops in the slop.

On one of those few occasions the Chiefs drove into Brighton's end, getting a throw-in near the corner,

"He's at the five, four, three, two, one...touchdown!"

This line, made popular by legendary University of Michigan broadcaster Bob Ufer, has been resurrected during the past four years over WSDP-FM (89.1).

The line, and many more like it, has come from the mouth of John Kreger, the station's sports director and the voice behind the microphone of many Plymouth Salem and Canton sports events.

But like Ufer and Kreger's other mentor, Ernie Harwell, the legendary voice of the Detroit Tigers, the voice eventually fades.

That will be the case Friday as Kreger, a senior at Canton, announces his final Plymouth Salem-Canton football game.

"It's extremely hard to do Salem-Canton games," Kreger admits, recalling his most memorable game -- a five-overtime victory by the Rocks over the Chiefs two years ago in boys basketball.

Kreger began announcing sporting events at the school-run station in the middle of his freshman year. In addition to football and basketball, he has announced soccer, softball and baseball.

What drove him to radio occurred during his childhood.

"My grandfather was a big U-of-M fan and Tiger fan so I listened to Bob Ufer and Ernie," Kreger said. "I remember listening to a tribute for Ufer. My mom had tears in her eyes listening to him. I wanted to have that same impact.

"I enjoyed their ability to make you feel like you were at the game. That's something I've always tried to do."

Kreger's first outings at WSDP were definitely learning experiences.

"I used a lot of Uferisms, and my station manager said that I'd succeed if I'd be myself. I wasn't sure how to be myself, so I used some lines which I knew would work."

Kreger began to do things like counting down the final five yards before a touchdown and even mimicked Ufer on his first touchdown call on a

Whaler rallies lead to victories

After taking a few lumps over the past couple of weeks, the Detroit Whalers delivered a few.

Winless in five-straight games through Friday's loss to the visiting Sarnia Sting, the Whalers -- who have on more than one occasion surrendered a flurry of third-period goals and lost a game -- turned the tables on the Belleville Bulls Saturday and theWindsor Spitfires Sunday.

Against the Spitfires, the Whalers got a power-play goal from Chad Cavanagh with 3:35 left to play to post a 4-3 win; against the Bulls, it was three third-period goals that led to a 3-2 victory.

The wins boosted the Whalers' record to 6-7-1 in the Ontario Hockey League's West Division; their 13 points places them third, behind

A final showdown

Rocks' slim playoff hopes still flickering as they prepare for Canton

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

It's the final weekend of the high school football season for most Observerland teams.

But some will continue on in the playoffs, as long as things go right for them this weekend.

Westland John Glenn is the only team that's a lock for postseason play.

The undefeated Rockets are tied with Clarkston for the lead in Class AA-Region 3, and Glenn will have to beat arch-rival Wayne Memorial to gain the No. 1 seed.

Redford Catholic Central in AA-Region 3 and Farmington Harrison in A-Region 3 also will qualify if they win.

Lutheran Westland needs not only a victory but a little help in Class C-Region 4.

Even if the Warriors beat winless Lutheran Northwest, they also need Armada to beat Deckerville.

The only other team with a chance is Plymouth Salem in Class AA-Region 2. The Rocks are a longshot, but most teams in the region have two losses.

It's down to the wire for another contest, too. Brad Emons and Dan O'Meara remain tied in the grid-picks battle.

Both were 12-3 last week and have the same overall record, 98-22.

But there will be a winner; however, we won't know who it is until Sunday night. The outcome hinges on the Catholic League Prep Bowl.

O'Meara gained a game in early October when he picked Brother Rice to win the Boys Bowl, but the prognosticators have done an about-face for this one.

Yours truly is taking Catholic Central in the rematch, while Emons has cast his vote in favor of Rice.

FRIDAY'S GAMES
(all times 7:30 p.m. unless noted)

Bishop Borgess at Ecorse, 3:30 p.m.: The season ends where it began for these teams. Borgess has won only two of seven games this year, and one of those wins was a 48-0 romp over the Ecorse in the season opener. The Spartans have lost their last five to finish last in the Catholic Tri-Sectional Division. The Red Raiders (1-6) took their first win Saturday, 30-6 over Taylor Light and Life. PICK: Borgess wins again.

Garden City at Romulus, 7 p.m.: Both teams bring 1-7 records into this Mega Conference crossover game. Romulus had to battle the tougher Red Division teams and probably played the tougher schedule, but the Cougars also had it rough in the White Division against the likes of Dearborn, Trenton and Edsel Ford. PICK: The Eagles get their second win.

Clarenceville at Flat Rock: The Trojans (4-4) can finish the season with a fourth straight victory. They won their third in a row when they knocked off Hamtramck, 40-27. It looks like Clarenceville might get its wish, too, since the Rams have only a 1-8 record. Flat Rock has lost five straight since beating Allen Park Cabrini, 21-19. A 26-0 loss to New Boston Huron last week was its lowest point differential. PICK: The Trojans take a winning streak into next season.

Churchill at Stevenson: The Spartans (5-3) won't be in the playoffs after two straight appearances, but they've had another fine year despite seeing a four-game win streak end Saturday at Farmington Harrison. Gade Clark has rushed for 1,032 yards and is Stevenson's all-time leader with 3,022. The hard-luck Chargers (0-8) let a potential victory slip away Friday. North Farmington scored twice in the final minute to erase a 14-13 deficit and beat Churchill, 27-14. PICKS: Two votes for Adlai.

Trenton at Franklin: Mega White champion Trenton (8-0) hopes to secure the No. 1 seed in Class A Region 3 with a victory over the Patriots. Trenton routed Redford Union 54-14 for its eighth win in a row. Franklin (5-3) ended Walled Lake Central's playoff hopes with a 17-7 victory and won't be an easy mark for the Trojans. PICK: Trenton wins a close one.

Wayne at John Glenn: Nobody has any doubts about the Rockets (8-0), not after the way Glenn dominated Walled Lake Western, 24-0, to win its first Western Lakes championship since 1987. The Zebras (5-3), who snapped a three-game losing streak with a 26-8 win over Romulus, always get fired up to play Glenn and remain a worthy opponent. PICK: The Rockets charge into the playoffs.

Canton vs. Salem (CEP): The Rocks pulled off the upset last year, defeating the Chiefs 28-21. Canton finished 5-4 and Salem 3-6. The Chiefs (4-4) could be the spoiler this year since the Rocks (5-3) still have an outside chance at making the playoffs. Except for Brighton and Battle Creek Central, everyone else in AA-Region 2 has at least two losses. Regardless of what happens, Salem has done better than anyone expected at the start of the season. The Chiefs rolled over Farmington last week, 42-0, while the Rocks defeated Northville a second time, 28-14. PICK: Canton celebrates a win this year.

SATURDAY'S GAMES
(all times 1 p.m. unless noted)

Luth. N'West at Luth. Westland: The Warriors (7-1) are virtually assured of a victory against the winless Crusaders (0-8). But will that hurt Lutheran Westland's playoff chances since Lutheran Northwest is a Class D school and the Warriors get no bonus points for opponent victories? It will still be a close finish in CC-Region 4 between Lutheran Westland, Deckerville and Harper Woods for the third and fourth spots. The Warriors won their eighth in a row Friday, 24-7 over Lutheran East. PICK: It's no contest as the Warriors roll.

Howell at N. Farmington: The Raiders got South Lyon off the schedule and replaced it with another formidable Kensington Valley Conference team. Howell (5-3) was .500 in the KVC with loses to Brighton, South Lyon and Novi. The Highlanders hammered Lakeland in their last game, 48-13. North Farmington (1-7) rallied in the final minute to score two touchdowns and defeat Livonia Churchill for its first victory, 27-14. PICK: The Highlanders take the high road to victory.

Country Day at Harrison: Country Day (4-3) won't get a chance to defend its Class B state title. Unbeaten Class BB power Dowagiac whipped the Yellow Jackets, 52-0, knocking them out of playoff contention. Country Day might not have one of it's better teams but remains a formidable foe, and the Hawks (7-1) need a win to qualify in Class A-Region 3. Harrison played well in its last two games and could be peaking at the right time. The Hawks have won five straight and need to make it six. PICK: Harrison will be in the playoffs next week.

Lakeland at Farmington: The Eagles are a little more Farmington's speed as opposed to the big AA schools (Glenn and Canton) it has tangled with in recent weeks. The Falcons (2-6) have beaten Lakeland (0-8) in the season finale the last two years and hope to make it three in a row. The Eagles have lost all of their games by no less than 20 points; the 13 they scored against Howell last week was their highest total of the season. PICK: Farmington goes out a winner again.

St. Agatha at Benedictine, 2 p.m.: The Aggies dropped to 0-8 after losing to Pontiac Notre Dame Prep, 24-12, and now face a supposedly tougher opponent from the Catholic League Tri-Sectional Division. The Ravens (3-5) have lost three straight and five of their last six, including a 20-6 loss to East Catholic. PICK: It's a winless season for St. Agatha.

Redford Union vs. Thurston, 3 p.m. at Pontiac Silverdome: Redford Union won this game last year to finish 3-6 while Thurston was 1-8. But indications are the Eagles have the upper hand this time. Thurston (5-3) is having a fine season and has won three straight, including a 27-26, overtime victory Saturday over Taylor Truman. The Panthers (0-8) have scored only 39 points this year, with roughly a third being scored Friday in a 54-14 loss to Trenton. PICK: The Eagles earn bragging rights.

SUNDAY'S GAME

Detroit CC vs. Brother Rice, 7 p.m. at Pontiac Silverdome: It's a double rematch in the Prep Bowl to decide the Catholic League First Division champion. The same teams played in last year's championship, with CC winning 17-7. Secondly, it's a rematch of the Boys Bowl game in which Rice rallied from a 14-0 halftime deficit to win in overtime, 21-14. The key questions: Can CC run the ball more effectively and stop Rice's passing attack? The Warriors (8-0) are assured of a spot in the Class A playoffs, but the Shamrocks face a must-win situation in AA. PICK: Emons puts his faith in the Warriors; O'Meara favors the Shamrocks.

GRID PICKS

If you want more than just the highlights these are the guys to turn to:

In Garden City and Redford—
"Covering community sports is challenging."

We caught a glimpse of Steve Kowalski's sense of humor when he first told us why he enjoys doing what he is doing, "Coming home at three in the morning, paying for parking and hot dogs at the games..."

Then on a serious note he admits that it's the challenge that keeps him going, "Some of your sources are young, never been interviewed. It's fun and rewarding to do a good job."

Steve knew that when he scored only four points in Junior Varsity Basketball during his own high school days, that he had a better chance writing about sports than playing them. He's done it so well that he's received awards for it; the most recent in 1994 from the Michigan Press Association in their "top game story" category.

In Livonia and Westland—
"We have a good group of schools to cover."

When we asked Brad Emons what he enjoys most about covering community sports, he told us, "The people we deal with, from the coaches to the student-athletes, they truly appreciate the coverage—we cover a good group of schools from the smallest to the largest."

Brad began reading the major league box scores when he was still in grade school, wrote in high school and earned a degree in journalism from Franklin College in Indiana. He's been writing for your hometown newspapers since he graduated in 1977.

How does our coverage stack up? Brad says that unlike the metropolitan newspapers, "We cover a variety of prep sports and do it in-depth—both boys' and girls'. We're able to hit more than the highlights. We get to know nearly every high school coach and athletic director by their first names."

In Plymouth and Canton—
"It's real, it's serious, but it's also fun."

C.J. Risak is talking about SPORTS, of course.

When did he decide on sports reporting? "Early in my career, after being out in the real world. Sports is real, it's serious, but it's also fun."

One facet of the job C.J. especially enjoys is meeting people—the players and the coaches, "We get to know a lot of people first-hand," he said.

His enthusiasm and dedication is reflected in his writing. In 1994, he received a first place award from the industry for best sports column and second place for putting together the best sports section.

FOOTBALL

Thanks to Clarkston and Detroit King, Detroit Catholic Central's chances of qualifying for the Class AA football playoffs improved before it took the field Saturday night.

The Shamrocks then took care of their end of the bargain, using a devastating defense to beat previously-undefeated Dearborn Divine Child, 23-6, before an overflow crowd at Dearborn Heights Crestwood.

It was the perfect way to end a weekend that started Friday night with Troy and Detroit Henry Ford, two teams ahead of CC in Class AA Region 3, losing to Clarkston and King, respectively.

The win sends the Shamrocks, 6-2 overall and 3-1 in the Central Division, into the Prep Bowl championship where they'll play Birmingham Brother Rice at 7 p.m. Sunday at the Pontiac Silverdome. A win would likely seal a berth in the state playoffs.

"I'm awful glad to get back in the league race and our players really made the best of it tonight," CC coach Tom Mach said. "We look forward to any rematch."

The victory had even more significance for CC nose guard Rich Deptula, who transferred from Divine Child in the middle of his sophomore year.

The Shamrocks sacked DC's mobile junior quarterback Andy Kisabeth five times and Deptula was in on three of them.

He had one solo sack and shared another with senior linebacker Milam Brooks, who also had a solo sack. Senior linebacker Joe Sgroi had one sack and Deptula, Brian Teefey and Nick Selasky combined on the other.

The Shamrocks enjoyed a 235-102 edge in total yardage and had 15 first downs to the Falcons' four.

"It's great playing against them _ I've been with them all my life and I wish them luck _ now. But this was for bragging rights tonight," Deptula said. "Everything's been handed to us, now we've got to take control of it. We've got the toughest team in the state. No one has more heart."

No one illustrates the Shamrocks' toughness better than defensive tackle Gino DiGiandomenico and defensive back Nick Mastroionni, who are playing with soft casts on their arms. DiGiandomenico has a fractured wrist and Mastroionni a fractured hand.

"It just weighs a little bit," DiGiandomenico said. "It comes in handy on tackles."

Junior fullback Chris Dueweke scored on a 1-yard run and led the Shamrocks with 81 yards on 19 carries. Senior tailback Greg Alcala scored on a 4-yard run and finished with 70 yards in 14 attempts, showing remarkable balance on several of his runs.

Senior quarterback Greg Call was busy in the first half, carrying the ball 10 times on the option for 29 yards before settling for 35 in 13 attempts. He scored on a 1-yard run.

The other CC points came on a 25-yard field goal by Aaron Rock.

When Kisabeth wasn't sacked, he was hurried, completing five of 16 passes for 71 yards.

It didn't take long for the CC defense to show its mettle.

The Shamrocks fumbled on their first play from scrimmage and DC's Dan Deegan recovered at the CC 23 yard line.

The Falcons could gain only four yards in three running plays, however, and a 31 yard field goal attempt on fourth down was wide right.

The Shamrocks then took nearly nine minutes off the clock, driving 72 yards in 17 plays before Rock kicked a 25-yard field goal for a 3-0 lead with 1:38 left in the first quarter.

CC raised its lead to 16-0 after scoring on drives of 46 and 38 yards to start the second half.

The Falcons recovered a CC fumble at their own 47 on the last play of the third quarter. Kisabeth directed a nine-play scoring drive that was capped by an 8-yard touchdown pass to Jim Ptasznik with 8:35 left in the game to cut the deficit to 16-6. Kisabeth completed a two-point conversion pass to Ptasznik, but it was disallowed because of offensive pass interference.

That kept the deficit at 10 points instead of eight.

The Shamrocks sealed the victory with a 54-yard scoring drive that ended with Call's one-yard dive with 4:58 left. Brooks caught a 17-yard pass on third down to keep the drive alive.

Shamrocks shock U-D Jesuit, 2-0

BY STEVE KOWALSKI

SOCCER

With all the water and mud that settled at midfield after a driving rain Tuesday afternoon, Detroit Catholic Central's boys soccer team wouldn't have wanted to start its attack there.

But that would have been the case even on a dry field.

University of Detroit-Jesuit seems to be most vulnerable on the wings, and the field conditions at Southgate Anderson just gave the Shamrocks another reason to avoid midfield.

"We just pushed (Mike) Martin outside," Orsucci said. "The way they play with three defenders flat in the back and double stoppers, I told my outside midfielders (Martin, Pat Griffin and Matt O'Neil) to play as wide as they can get because U-D is extremely strong in the middle."

Martin, a senior midfielder, scored both goals and junior goalkeeper Matt Kessler recorded his fifth shutout as the Shamrocks beat U-D, 2-0, in a Class A regional semifinal.

The Shamrocks, 12-6-2 overall, advance to the regional final to meet the winner of Wednesday's Birmingham Brother Rice-Grosse Pointe South game at 11 a.m. Saturday at Anderson.

U-D, which bowed out with a 15-3-1 record, defeated CC 1-0 in an earlier meeting back in August.

Playing in such miserable conditions, Orsucci knew the first goal would be key.

The Shamrocks controlled play most of the first half and finally capitalized when Martin turned and blasted a left-footed shot from about 35 yards out past U-D goalkeeper Shawn Alexander with 13:22 left in the first half.

Martin earlier hit the post with a shot and led several rushes on the U-D net only to be turned away. His earlier misses led him to change his philosophy about attacking the U-D net.

"Their goalie kept sliding out toward me, so instead of dribbling up, I just decided to get him when he least expected it," Martin said. "The ground was wet and we were looking to hit the ball anywhere we could at him."

Kessler preserved the lead with a diving save off a free kick from about 15 yards out with 5:13 remaining in the half.

"I told the kids the first goal was just going to be huge," Orsucci said. "That first half was the best half we've played all year. It was awesome to see such a team effort."

Martin added an insurance goal with 6:56 left, lofting a shot over the head of the U-D keeper, who must have been at least 40 yards out of his goal.

"He was out of his net huge and it was an open hit so I just struck it," Martin said. "When I was at about the 50 yard mark I noticed he was out about 35 yards. I turned and I was open."

U-D had a couple nice chances off of re-starts in the second half, but most of the opportunities went wide of the net.

Injuries are a concern for Orsucci, who gave the Shamrocks Wednesday off to heal some aches. Their top marking back, senior defender Brian Lindsay, was only able to play about five minutes due to a leg injury suffered in Saturday's district final win over Dearborn.

Senior defender Mike Graff played another strong game in his place. Lindsay should be ready to play Saturday.

Adding to Orsucci's concern was the condition of Larry Schmid, who laid out of bounds next to the CC bench the last three minutes after limping off the field.

Schmid recovered in a hurry, however, when the final whistle sounded and the teams exchanged the traditional post-game handshake.

Schmid said the team is on a mission, first to beat another possible Catholic League foe, then anyone who remains in the state tournament.

To think, the Shamrocks didn't even make the Catholic League playoffs.

"I don't even feel anything now. I'll go home, ice up and be back on Saturday," Schmid said. "Everything in the past doesn't mean squat, the states are ours. We aren't going to lose another game."

PCA falls

Auburn Hills Oakland Christian poured it on in the second quarter Tuesday and beat host Plymouth Christian Academy, 58-37.

The Lancers led 15-8 after the first quarter before outscoring the Eagles 31-9 in the second quarter.

"We caved in under their pressure," PCA coach Rod Windle said.

The Lancers, state-ranked in Class D, improved to 14-1 overall and are the champions in the upper division of the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference with a 7-0 mark.

Christy Mehlberg's 23 points led Oakland. Sarah Sumner and Jenny Sutherland scored eight points apiece to pace PCA (9-7 overall, 3-4 in the MIAC).

the Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds (10-4-1, 21 points) and the Sting (8-2-2, 18 points).

Windsor dropped to 3-10-1, while Belleville fell to 4-9-2.

In the win over Windsor, the Whalers were held scoreless until midway through the second period, when goals by Randy Fitzgerald and Andrew Taylor tied the score at 2-2.

Windsor went back in front with a third-period goal by Dean Mando, but Detroit rallied, getting another goal from Taylor, who leads the team with eight, and Cavanagh's game-winner.

The Whaler recent surge started Saturday against the Bulls. They trailed 1-0 going into the final period, but tied it with a goal from Sergei Fedotov. The Bulls reclaimed the lead three minutes later, with Nikos Tselios putting them back on top.

But after that, it was all Detroit. Mark Cadotte re-tied the game with just under nine minutes remaining, and Taylor won it with a power-play goal with 5:48 to go.

Julian Taylor added two assists for the Whalers, who continued to get strong goaltending from Robert Esche (24 saves against Belleville, 25 against Windsor).

the Bulldog defenders again failed to possess the ball in the mud. Gniewek did, setting up Nick Wright, who beat Brighton keeper Ryan Bees with 19:03 left.

That proved to be the game-winner. The 'Dogs had chances, but none they could get past Davis.

"We could have beaten them," said Shiposh. "They had great chances to score, we had great chances to score.

"We tried to eliminate going down the middle of the field, and I thought we did. We knew they were taller than us, so if we played high balls they would shut us down immediately."

But trying to maintain possession on solely foot-to-foot passing, on a surface so submerged, was a difficult task. Against Canton, it proved impossible for Brighton, which bows out at 14-3-4.

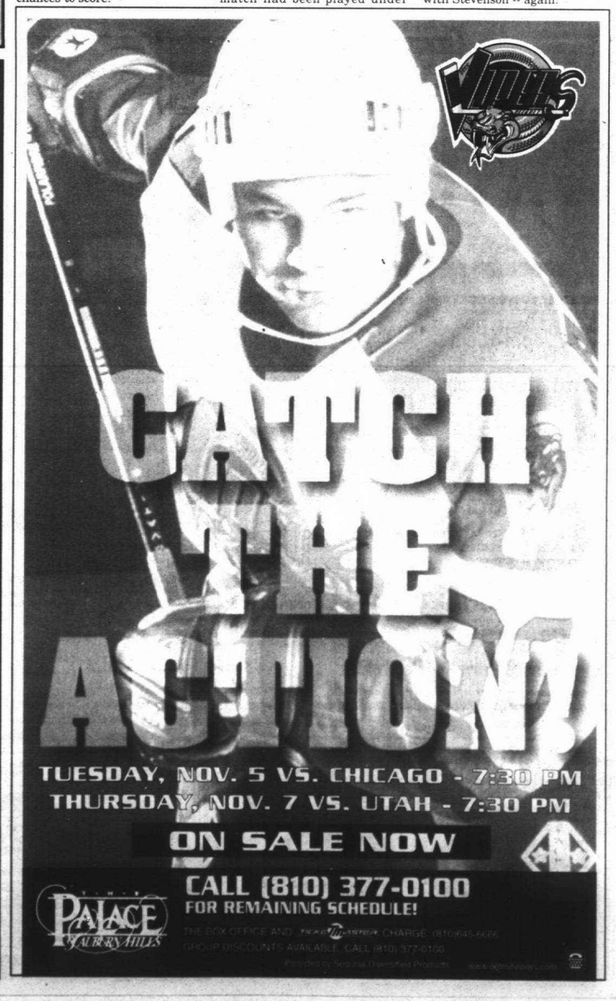

Who would have won if the match had been played under ideal conditions? Shiposh was certain Brighton would have, no doubts; Smith thought the teams were evenly matched.

A non-partisan (ahem) onlooker thought the Chiefs had superior size and speed, which would have translated into more goals and a greater margin of victory.

None of which really matters at all. All that matters is that on Saturday, at 1 p.m. on the same field, it will be Canton colliding with Stevenson -- again.

score by Canton's Brett Elledge, saying "God bless you, you cotton-pickin' red heart."

"He started as a Bob Ufer wannabe," recalls Paul Sincock, the public address announcer at Plymouth Canton Educational Park. "But he's developed his own, unique style.

"He's definitely a hometown fan. We pick on him once in awhile because he always picks the Plymouth team to win. The rest of us in the press box are more realistic. He's been able to tolerate us, however."

Kreger doesn't disagree that he is a "homer."

"It's tough separating being a fan and being a broadcaster," he said. "I've taken some heat for it. The hardest part about this job is being unbiased.

"Some of the things I say on the air aren't always true. But I don't think the Plymouth teams will ever lose. I'm a Plymouth sports fan first."

His love of Plymouth sports is evidenced by his acceptance of having never announced for a title-winning football team. Early this season, it appeared Kreger might have his chance to follow a playoff qualifier when Salem began 4-1. But the Rocks faltered and dropped out of the playoff hunt.

"Our teams are in a tough conference," Kreger rationalizes. "I've never been disappointed by the way they perform. I just love the atmosphere."

According to Kreger, one of the biggest advantages to broadcasting has been getting a chance to know the coaches.

"I like them all," he said. "There are a lot of students who don't ever get a chance to know these coaches, and I get that chance. They all show a lot of respect to me and I'll miss them all."

Kreger hopes to continue his broadcast career into college and beyond. He anticipates attending either Syracuse University or Michigan State University, both of which have fine schools of broadcasting.

"I can't envision doing anything else," he said. "This has been the love of my life since day one."

(20:12), and Kristie Giddings, who was 17th (20:21), Salem scored 141 points to beat out Canton, which was fourth with 172.

Stevenson was first (43), as expected, and Novi took second (76). Other local teams: Farmington, seventh (176); Mercy, ninth (198); and Livonia Churchill, 10th (215). Stevenson's Kelly Travis won the Class A race (19:11.8), in which 20 teams competed.

The biggest break Salem got was from Pioneer, which tied Canton with 172 but finished fifth on the tiebreaker (sixth runner). Being well-acquainted with the course and one of the state's top-ranked teams (No. 3 going in) apparently didn't help the Pioneers.

Another factor in the Rocks' success: packing. All five of their scorers were within a minute. Placing third on the team and 35th overall was senior Mari Disbrow (20:59), who enjoyed her best showing of the season, with Evelyn Rahhal 37th (21:02) and Ellen Stemmer 42nd (21:12).

Although Canton did not qualify as a team, it will send Becky Wolfrom as an individual. Wolfrom placed 11th overall (20:00).

"We weren't real worried about times," said Gerlach. "Our goal is always to put our top seven runners within a minute of each other. Our next goal is to put our top five (within a minute).

"We're extremely excited. This is the first time in10 years we've sent a team to state -- maybe even longer."

Well, now the wait is over.

CROSS COUNTRY

The Detroit Catholic Central boys cross country team won the Class A regional Saturday at Royal Oak Kimball – its third regional title in the last five years.

The Shamrocks did so without the supervision of coach Tony Magni, whose mother Maria passed away Thursday after a long illness. Assistant coach Gene Grewe filled in for Magni.

The Shamrocks, wearing black patches on their sleeves in honor of the elder Magni, took first place with 60 points.

Rochester Adams, which had the second and fourth top runners, finished second (68) and Birmingham Brother Rice finished third (104), winning a tie-breaker against Rochester.

It was the second time in the last three years Grewe took over for Magni at a regional. In 1993, with Magni at his niece's wedding, the Shamrocks won their first boys track regional in some 30 years.

John Griffin led the Shamrocks with a third-place finish in 16:22. Senior Chris Laney was eighth (16:46).

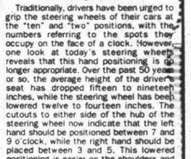

Rounding out CC's roster were Anthony Wolfe, 14th, (17:01); Dan Danic, 15th (17:02); Craig Skalski, 20th (17:12); Joe Hubert, 23rd (17:18); and Ryan Schrieber, 24th (17:19).

The Shamrocks are aiming for a top-10 finish at Saturday's state meet, which begins at 2 p.m. at the Michigan International Speedway.

First place at the regional went to Rice's Ben Evans (16:10). Adams' Adam Cross was second (16:21) and teammate Ken Tracy was fourth (16:23).

Magni said one of the keys to the Shamrocks' performance at the state meet is how close Griffin can stay to Evans, who could finish fairly high.

HOW TIMES HAVE CHANGED
Traditionally, drivers have been urged to grip the steering wheels of their cars at the "ten" and "two" positions, with the numbers referring to the spots they occupy on the face of a clock. However, one look at today's steering wheels reveals that this hand positioning is no longer appropriate. Over the past 50 years or so, the average height of the driver's seat has dropped fifteen to nineteen inches, while the steering wheel has been lowered twelve to fourteen inches. The cutouts to either side of the hub of the steering wheel now indicate that the left hand should be positioned between 7 and 9 o'clock, while the right hand should be placed between 3 and 5. This lowered positioning is easier on the shoulders and helps reduce fatigue. The revised grip also keeps the hands away from the center of the wheel so they will not be thrust into the face by airbag deployment.
Whenever you drive, you are more apt to make good decisions if you are relaxed. At HOLIDAY CHEVROLET INC., we are diligent in solving automotive problems and swift in diagnosis. Finding solutions you can count on is what we do best. Visit us at 30250 Grand River. Phone 474-0500. "Your Today and Tomorrow Dealer!"
HINT: Grip the steering wheel at the positions indicated above, with the palms facing each other, canted about 45 degrees.

Madonna sparkles in Big Gun win

VOLLEYBALL

Coaches in general are difficult to please, so it's understandable that Madonna University's Jerry Abraham was less than pleased with his volleyball team's play at St. Mary's College (South Bend, Ind.) Tuesday.

Oh, the Lady Crusaders won. Don't they always (almost)? They handled host St. Mary's 15-9, 15-7, 13-15, 15-12, improving their record to 35-3.

"We played good enough to win, that's all," said Abraham.

Hard to please, considering his team was coming off one of its biggest tournament victories of the season. On Friday and Saturday at the Big Guns Classic at the College of St. Francis, Madonna swept through three top-rated opponents while losing just one game.

The Crusaders beat St. Ambrose University 15-6, 15-5, 15-8 Friday, then dispatched St. Xavier University 9-15, 15-8, 15-4, 15-10 and host St. Francis 15-8, 15-6, 15-9 on Saturday.

"We played our best volleyball of the season in defeating St. Ambrose, and College of St. Francis, who had beaten us earlier this season," said Abraham. "They were at home and they were on fire, and we beat them in three (games).

"I don't think that's happened to them (this season) before."

Julie Martin (Livonia Stevenson) and Kelly McCausland (Redford Union) each had 17 kills against St. Francis; McCausland finished with 59 in the three matches, while Martin totaled 57.

Martin added 17 blocks (six solo), while McCausland had 18 blocks (four solo) and 19 digs.

Other standouts for Madonna: Meg Paris, 125 assists to kills, 16 digs and six service aces; Karin Sisung, 21 kills, 31 digs and eight blocks; Heather Steinhelper, 21 kills and 26 digs; and Erin Comment, 35 digs.

"It was an outstanding team performance," Abrahan added. "And it was a great team win. They played with a lot of enthusiasm, a lot of intensity. I felt our team really raised the level of its play. They played with total confidence and total control, both offensively and defensively."

It wasn't quite the same against St. Mary's. McCausland led with 19 kills and 11 digs, with Martin getting 16 kills and two solo blocks; Sisung, nine kills and seven digs; Comment, six kills and nine digs; and Steinhelper, five kills and nine digs. Paris totaled 38 assists, six digs and two solo blocks.

SC ties for 2nd

Schoolcraft College traveled to the Illinois Central CC Invitational last weekend and posted a 3-2 record against some of the best NJCAA teams in the nation.

The Ocelots defeated 11th-ranked Kankakee (Ill.) CC 15-11, 8-15, 15-5 and host ICCC 12-15, 15-12, 15-11 on Friday. Saturday's going was tougher: SC lost to Jefferson (Mo.) 15-5, 7-15, 15-8 and eventual champ Belleville (Ill.) 15-6, 15-7, before rebounding to beat Johnson County (Kan.) CC 8-15, 15-4, 15-6.

Sarah Gregerson, whom coach Tom Teeters said is "the most improved player, playing all the way around, including serving and hitting," led the comeback against Johnson County with five kills in the third game.

On Tuesday, the Ocelots lost at University of Windsor 15-12, 15-3, 15-13, dropping their record to 24-11.

Gregorson and Jamie Clark (Livonia Churchill) had six kills each, with Clark adding three service aces and Yvette Sixbey (Garden City) five kills. Michelle McRae collected 12 assists to kills.

SOCCER

SC tumbles in region

A combination of factors have put Schoolcraft College's men's soccer team in an unfamiliar position -- at home.

The Ocelots, for the first time in more than a decade, won't be making the trip to the NJCAA Inter-regional Tournament next weekend (Nov. 9-10). The reason? They didn't survive the Region 12 Tournament.

After beating Cuyahoga CC twice during the season (6-1 and 1-0), SC found the third time a charm for Cuyahoga, which capitalized on a defensive blunder to score the game-winner in the waning moments of Saturday's regional semifinal at SC.

The 3-2 win put Cuyahoga into Sunday's final against Lakeland CC, which was also a test. Cuyahoga survived, however, battling back from a 2-0 deficit to first force overtime, then beat Lakeland on penalty kicks.

The official final score was 2-2, but it will be Cuyahoga that advances to the Inter-regional.

"We had a 10-minute breakdown in the first half," said SC coach Van Dimitriou, his team finishing with a 9-7-3 record. "We were up 1-0, and they scored two goals in that 10 minutes."

The Ocelots corrected the situation -- switching to four midfielders instead of three -- but the damage had been done.

Still, there was plenty of game yet to play. Kevin Fritz had put SC up 1-0, the assist from Matt Keller. After Cuyahoga went ahead, the Ocelots fought back and tied it before halftime, 2-2, on Garrett Maki's unassisted goal.

It remained that way until the final minutes when, after a goal by Fritz was disallowed because officials ruled he pushed a defender, Cuyahoga took control of play.

With the ball rolling free toward the SC goal, keeper Travis Miller (from Redford Catholic Central) called off the SC defenders and prepared to field the ball. But on a wet and treacherous field, the ball slipped through his fingers, and ended up in the net.

The 10-minute lapse in the first half seemed to concern Dimitriou more than Miller's miscue. "The same thing happened to us against Macomb," he said. "We have a 10-minute breakdown, then we come together and play as wellas any team we've had here.

"The games we lost (this season) were by defensive breakdowns. I guess that'll happen when you have four freshmen back there (on defense)."

The four defenders did not always communicate well, said Dimitriou, perhaps due to their various soccer backgrounds. Whatever, it didn't help when Dimitriou lost his only sophomore with experience -- Joe Sisko (Plymouth Canton) -- to injury at midseason.

Crusaders trim Aquinas

After one of their more lackluster performances of the season -- and there haven't been too many -- Madonna University's soccer team rebounded nicely.

Against Aquinas College, the Crusaders overcame a pasting absorbed Saturday and some poor weather to blank the Saints 2-0 Tuesday at Ladywood HS.

The win was the second-straight for the Crusaders over Aquinas -- after two years with none at all. They are 12-4 overall.

The first half of Tuesday's match was scoreless, but 20 minutes into the second half Andy Makins (from Plymouth Salem) broke the deadlock, giving Madonna a 1-0 lead. Seamus Rustin iced the win for the Crusaders with an insurance goal.

Mike Schroeder was in goal for the shutout.

Saturday's match, at Tiffin University (Ohio), was a whole different ball game. "I think this was definitely a team we could have beaten," said Madonna coach Pete Alexander, "but we came out a little timid."

The reason: Tiffin was ranked among the best teams in the region. Which is how it looked in the first half, as Madonna fell behind 5-1 by halftime.

The Crusaders played better in the second half, narrowing the gap to 5-4, but Tiffin scored two late goals as Madonna pressured.

Jason Stempien did a great deal of damage for Madonna, scoring two goals and assisting on another. Ryan Mollien and Rustin also scored.

SPRING Newspapers have your winning number in suburban Detroit.

7 6 1 8 8 5

SPRING's audited circulation is a sure bet.

It's no gamble. Buying SPRING Newspapers in suburban Detroit is a sure bet. Why risk your newspaper media dollars on an unaudited circulation? When you buy SPRING Newspapers, you're buying the largest audited circulation in suburban Detroit. The Detroit News and the Free Press have yet to issue a current ABC audit, so there's no telling how many papers are being printed – and who's receiving them. SPRING Newspapers are not only a sure bet, they're also a smart bet. For example:

- 48% of adults in the SPRING survey area read SPRING weekly and daily newspapers.*
- SPRING has an audited circulation of 761,885.
- SPRING delivers, on average, 1,060,000 total readers every week.*
- That means that SPRING delivers 1,167,000 gross impressions for an entire week.

Compare these numbers to your other media alternatives: only 37% of adults in the SPRING market read the weekday Detroit Free Press or The Detroit News.†

More suburban Detroit readers turn to SPRING.

- SPRING delivers more weekday suburban readers with household incomes over $50,000.
- SPRING delivers more suburban home-owners (51%) than any other weekday newspaper.

To find out more about the Detroit market and for more information about our current audit, call the SPRING Newspaper Network at 1-800/382-8878.

Breast Reconstruction Offers Excellent Results

By Satish C. Vyas, M.D.

More than 100,000 women in the United States undergo a mastectomy for breast cancer each year. The result is severe physical deformity often causing a broad range of psychosocial problems.

It is surprising to note that data from the National Cancer Institute reveals that less then 25 percent of women who undergo mastectomy are aware of the advances in breast reconstruction techniques.

With available modern reconstruction procedures, women do not have to suffer the disadvantages and disfigurement of the loss of the breast through breast cancer.

What techniques are available?

Basically, there are four techniques available.

- First, the available muscle and skin can be expanded by implanting a special balloon (skin expander) which is gradually inflated with fluid over a period of several weeks. Later on, the expander is replaced by a saline implant.
- Second, if there is not enough tissue in the mastectomy area, muscle and skin can be transferred from the back and an implant inserted.
- Third, the surgeon can take excess skin and fat from the lower abdomen, tunnel them under the skin to the mastectomy area, and sculpt the shape of a breast with the tissue available. This technique has the added advantage of giving a tummy tuck at the same time. Since no implant is used in this technique, the texture and feel of the breast is close to normal.
- Finally, very occasionally, if none of the other three options can be utilized for medical reasons, then a tissue from another part of the body, such as the buttock, can be used through a micro-surgical technique.

The final touches

With all of these procedures, after the breast wound is completely healed, the nipple projection can be made by using local skin. A tattoo with FDA-approved dye can be used to match the color of the nipple.

A consultation with a plastic surgeon should include a discussion on the most appropriate technique for you, details about the operation, what realistically can be accomplished, and risk factors. Most of all you should discuss all your feelings candidly.

Dr. Vyas is section chief of Plastic Surgery at Oakwood Hospital and Medical Center - Dearborn and a clinical assistant professor at Wayne State University. He is also an artist and a sculptor.

MEDICAL BRIEFS

Research study

Henry Ford's Department of Hematology-Oncology is conducting a research study to test a new drug that may restore the effectiveness of chemotherapy for patients with multiple myeloma, a cancer of the bone marrow.

The study is designed to evaluate whether PSC 833 prevents or overcomes this resistance to chemotherapy treatment. To be eligible, patients must be 18 or older, have multiple myeloma which has progressed following treatment with at least two cycles with chemotherapy drugs Vincristine, Adriamycin and Decadron (known as the VAD regimen) and be physically able to tolerate additional treatment.

Call (313) 876-1856 for information about participating in the study.

Genetic link

Can genetic markers indicate which women will develop breast cancer? The American Cancer Society recently awarded researchers at Henry Ford Hospital $330,000 to support a three-year study to answer this question.

Researchers will study more than 5,000 women who were diagnosed with benign breast disease by Henry Ford Health System physicians between 1981 and 1991. They expect to find that 250 to 300 of these women went on to develop breast cancer.

"Our study is just the tip of the iceberg," said Maria Worsham, director of molecular pathology for Henry Ford. "Hopefully the information we obtain will be an important resource for learning about genetic indicators for other diseases."

Checking bone density

The Medical Fitness Center, located on Farmington Road in Livonia, how has the Hologic QDR-4500 Bone Densiometer for detecting osteoporosis.

This state-of-the-art machine produces an accurate report that will facilitate physicians in the treatment of this condition that is responsible for more than 50,000 deaths every year. It is important that women and others at risk are tested and that the disease is detected at an early stage. The testing takes approximately 10 minutes and requires a physicians prescription in order for insurance to pay for this procedure. Call Medical Fitness for information at (313) 425-5544.

Nail infection breakthrough

After years of research there is an answer for people bothered by fungal nail infections on their feet and hands.

The new medication for this condition is administered in a tablet form, and it has been used in Europe and Canada for the past five years and administered to more than 4 million patients. The results are encouraging with a success rate of more than 80 percent.

Until recently, the problem with antifungal agents prescribed for this problem have been the numerous side effects. The cross reactivity with other medications was considerable and the high incidence of side effects with previous medications made it difficult for physicians to prescribe these agents.

"Even if the medication was prescribed, the success rate was only 50 percent at best," says Dr. Steven Watson, a Canton Foot Specialist, who has treated Fungal Nail Infections for more than 14 years.

"The Fungal Nail Infection can cause other problems including thickening of the nails which can lead to severe pain of the foot," he said.

Pancreatic cancer therapy

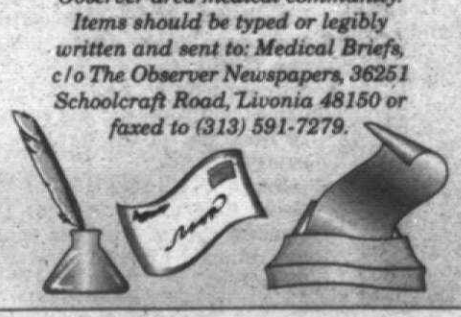

Patients suffering from pancreatic cancer can test an investigational treatment that has shown promise in early studies.

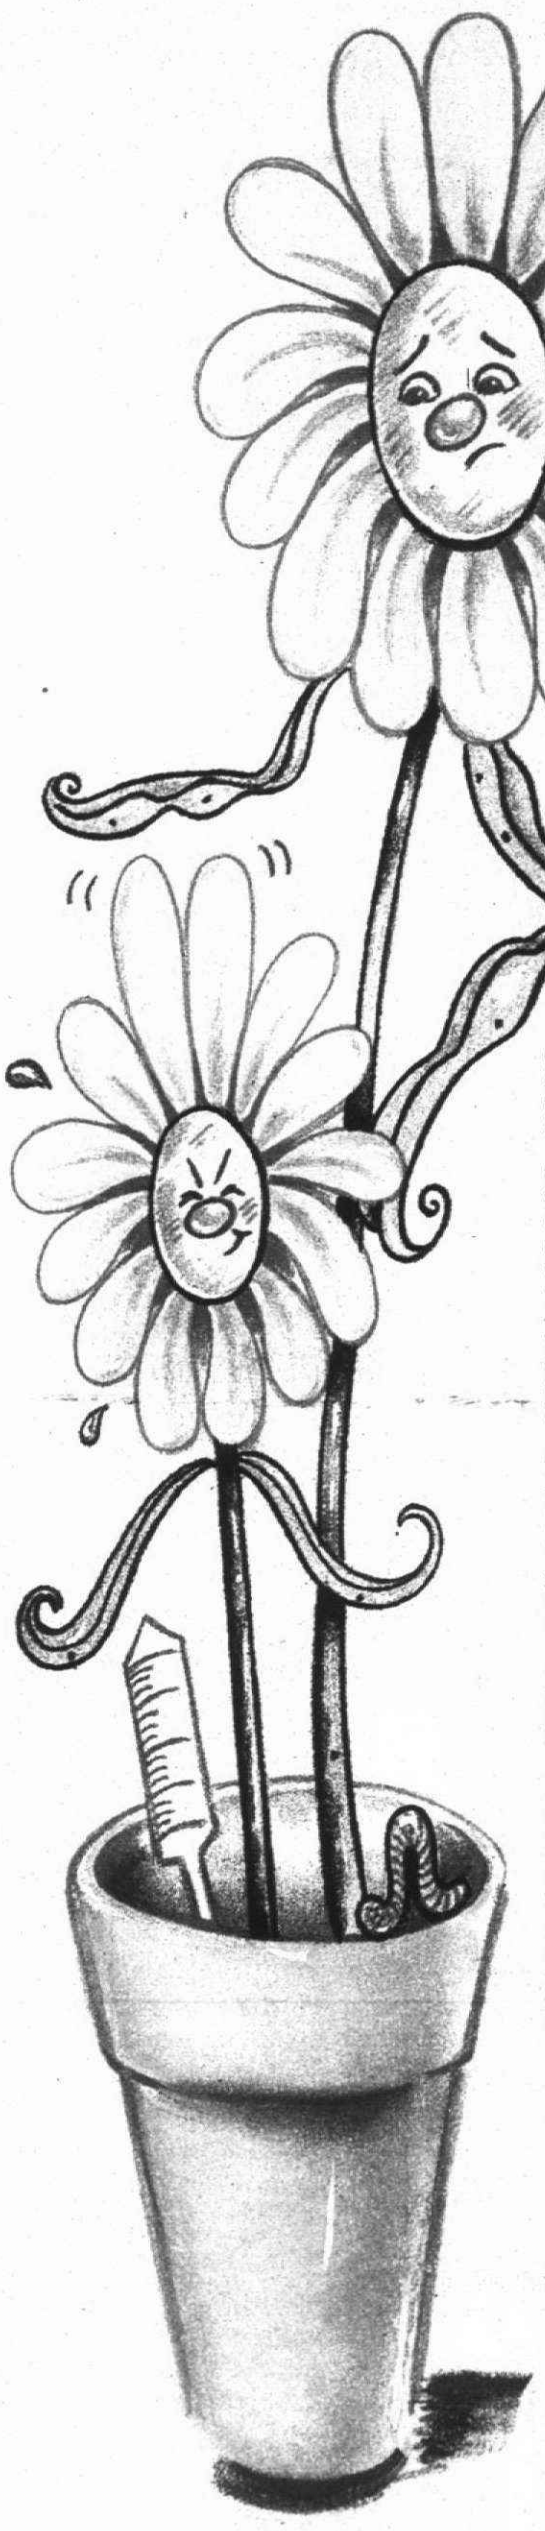

Researchers at Henry Ford Hospital are part of a worldwide clinical trial investigating the drug SMS 201-995. The drug is being tested for its effectiveness in treating inoperable, advanced pancreatic cancer.

Pancreatic cancer is the deadliest of all cancers. Among those with the type of cancer being treated in this trial, fewer than 10 percent would be expected to survive within a year of traditional therapy. Last year, 27,000 Americans died of pancreatic cancer. Nearly 24,000 new cases will be diagnosed this year.

To participate in the study, patients must be 18 or older and be diagnosed with inoperable stage II, stage III or stage IV cancer of the pancreas. For more information, call Dr. Ira Wollner, at Henry Ford Hospital's Division of Hematology-Oncology at (313) 876-1929 or the Research Office at (313) 876-1856.

If only fertilizer helped

For some children, growing up isn't easy

BY DIANE GALE • SPECIAL WRITER

Parents naturally compare their child's height with that of other kids. And if your child consistently comes up short, you've probably wondered what you can do to boost those numbers, including lifts in his shoes and spraying his hair straight up.

Serious possibilities, like growth hormones, are a consideration especially when parents worry their children will be overlooked, literally, at the dance, in sports or the business world. But doctors say to be cautious.

"Growth hormones are at risk for being overused," according to Dr. Campbell Howard, chief of pediatric endocrinology and diabetes at Children's Mercy Hospital in Kansas City, Mo.

"There are definite proven medical indications for its use and it should be prescribed very carefully by the pediatric endocrinologist or perhaps a few other specialists," Howard said. "We need to keep very strict standards in determining who would be best treated with it."

Growth hormones aren't the only alternative. In some cases, a child's failure to grow adequately can be reversed by looking at nutrition, chronic illnesses and emotional problems.

First, determine how tall the child is at the doctor's office where at every visit the nurse plots growth on a National Center for Health Statistics chart developed from a study of children in Colorado 30 years ago. The numbers show larger children in the 50 to 100 percentile range, smaller children in the lower end of the spectrum and some children off the chart.

Dr. David Rosen, University of Michigan Medical Center assistant professor, noted that genetics play an important role in growth and the charts don't account for patterns among different nationalities.

"In those cases, we try to reassure the parents there is no problem and that they should not imply to the child that growing at the 15 percentile is wrong," Rosen said.

Kimberly Frye, executive director of the Human Growth Foundation, said the agency often receives calls from parents asking for charts based on nationality. Unfortunately, she said, there's no such thing. Rosen also noted that charts don't account for changes in growth patterns since the figures were developed three decades ago.

"Kids are healthier and better nourished in some cases than previously and kids tend to grow faster," Rosen said. "Puberty has gotten earlier, because of better nutrition and health."

There's a growth spurt 1.5 years into puberty that lasts about six months and then it trails off gradually. If there's a physical or emotional problem, Rosen said, reversing the growth pattern must be done before puberty ends.

Doctors say to avoid trying to figure out how tall the child will be as an adult, like multiplying the child's height at age 2 and adding two inches or averaging the parents' heights.

"There's no real benefit to try to predict the final height by 2 years old," Rosen said. "You create too much concern and if expectations aren't met people are unhappy."

Dr. Kevin Deighton, of Providence Primary Care Physicians of Livonia, said he gets a lot of requests from parents with infants who want to know how tall their child will be.

"But most realize that there's more to life than their height," he added.

Doctors agree that while growth charts have flaws, they remain a valuable tool.

"The red flag should go up anytime a parent is concerned," Rosen said. "If a child is in the 75th percentile during the first year of life and then goes from 75 percent to 25 percent we try to figure out why he stopped growing."

One reason may be poor nutrition. Mom was right. Children must eat their fruits and vegetables. Carbohydrates are also important and fats and sugars should be avoided. If that can't be done, a vitamin supplement is recommended.

"I use height as a good indicator of how the child is developing," Deighton said. "If growth is being stunted, I look for organic causes."

Growth is also affected by chronic illnesses, like asthma, heart disease, infections, cystic fibrosis, kidney problems, Turner's syndrome, a chromosomal deficiency or a host of other conditions.

Lack of appropriate affection could be another reason the child isn't growing adequately. And in rare cases doctors find that the child doesn't have enough growth hormones.

"That's unusual and most kids who aren't growing at their parents' satisfaction don't need growth hormones," Rosen said. "But lots of parents would like to give it to them anyway."

Children grow at different rates, too. Elaine Boria, a Livonia mother of three children, said that although her youngest son is at the bottom of the growth charts, he's progressively moving up the charts and appears to be growing at a normal rate.

"My older son was considered small," she said. "He was much smaller than the other kids and by the end of the fourth year he was every bit as tall. I'm guessing that may happen with my other son."

In other cases, when doctors suspect a problem they carefully monitor changes and if the child still isn't growing adequately, sometimes hospitalization is needed for further study.

"The main thing that we recommend is that after age 2 or 3 a normal child should grow approximately two inches per year or more," Howard said. "If a child isn't growing two inches or more a year, that can be an indicator to see a health care provider and particularly if the child's height is below the fifth percentile."

Out of 100 children with poor growth, fewer than 25 percent end up being seen by a pediatric endocrinologist.

"There are a lot of normal children who are genetically small and we need to remember that," Howard said.

Rosen stressed that society places too much emphasis on height.

"There certainly is heightism in our society," he said. "Height is unfortunately important. But, people who are 5 foot 1 are as successful as people who are 6 foot 1 and that is the message that parents should be giving their kids whether they are at 90th percentile level or at the 10th percentile level."

Osteopaths celebrate the 'sandwich generation'

The 3,000 member Michigan Association of Osteopathic Physicians & Surgeons is celebrating National Osteopathic Medicine Week, Nov. 3-9, by reminding the "sandwich generation" to take care of themselves.

The sandwich generation is the group of adults who are raising young children while also caring for elderly parents. As the population ages and people have children later in life, health experts say the sandwich generation is growing.

Time commitments and responsibilities related to child care, elder care and to career make for hectic, stress-filled lifestyles for this age group.

The sandwich years, late 30s to age 60, are a good time to make changes in lifestyles, such as improving diet and exercising regularly, according to Melvin Linden, D.O., president of the Michigan Association of Osteopathic Physicians & Surgeons.

Because osteopathic physicians receive training first in primary care and the holistic approach to practicing medicine, they suggest that the sandwich generation is old enough to know that they can't take their health for granted. But they also are young enough that often they have not experienced any major health projects, says Linden.

He notes that the sandwich years are a good time to make changes in lifestyles, such as improving diet and exercising regularly.

In 1994, the Centers for Disease Control reported these statistics for the sandwich generation (ages 40-64): cancer, 32 percent; heart disease, 30 percent; accidents, 6 percent; stroke, 4 percent; lung disease, 3 percent. Statistics for other Americans were: heart disease, 32 percent of all deaths,; cancer, 24 percent of all deaths; stroke, 7 percent of all deaths; pulmonary disease (lung ailments), 5 percent of all deaths.

As people raising children and caring for aging parents, sandwich generation members often are primary bread winners for their families. Missing work for illness or injury can add complications to an already hectic lifestyle. According to Centers for Disease Control statistics, the most common cause of missed work among the sandwich generation is injuries followed by respiratory conditions, flu and digestive disorders.

Regular exercise, a healthy diet and preventive medical treatment can help reduce the number of work days missed each year.

SMOKEOUT BIRTHDAY

For the past 20 years, staff and volunteers of the American Cancer Society have helped millions of Americans quit smoking by proving to themselves that they can quit a day, and therefore, ultimately, they can quit a lifetime. In a new twist to an old problem, the American Cancer Society is now focusing its efforts on children and teen-agers, because most smokers start before they reach 18.

Therefore, a lot of effort is placed toward pre-teens in the week of the Great American Smokeout. The pre-teen promotion is an hilarious, upbeat program targeted at fifth- through eighth-graders using curriculum, fun goodies, gripping posters, and informative brochures and audiovisual materials to help kids learn about the dangers of tobacco to their health.

On Nov. 21, students participating in the program will "scream" out against smoking in the culmination of the program, the American Cancer Great American SmokeScream. The students will be encouraged to join their healthy, smoke-free lungs to a chorus of screams with their classmates. The American Cancer Society believes that if kids can get through school without smoking, they probably will never smoke as adults.

There's also an opportunity to learn about the dangers of tobacco use in an interactive way. The American Cancer Society's Internet Web site can be accessed through the American Cancer Society's home page, http://www.cancer.org. On the home page, users simply click on the Great American SmokeScream icon to find fun facts, games and contests, and celebrity insights on the dangers of using tobacco.

Since the inception of the Great American Smokeout, the smoking rate of American adults has dropped from 36 percent to 25 percent.

A sure sign of autumn.

Slow down and watch for children when you drive.

Interested in 24-hour shopping, seven days a week, with more than 130,000 items under one roof? You can try any one of the Meijer stores or settle for fewer items and try On-Line Shopping at the store's new Web site.

"It's just another way to provide our customers with the convenience and services they desire," said Fred Meijer, chairman of the executive committee. "We are in the business to provide quality products, convenience and service so providing an On-Line Shopping service extends our ability to meet the needs of customers while reaching new customers."

In mid-June, Meijer launched its own Web site, which has been very popular, according to Tom Vilella, director of media services/strategic planning. "The success of our Web site has enabled us to continue to develop and implement additional services for our customers. By offering an on-line service, Meijer can now reach customers who shop from their home or office."

Internet users can choose from a select group of 150 items by pointing to http://www.meijer.com. "The products and services are ideal for sending gifts to relatives and friends who are miles away or just around the corner," said Vilella.

All items are delivered via United Parcel Service Ground (UPS) to 48 states within seven to 10 days. Special arrangements can be made to send items out of the delivery area. For a limited time, shipping is free. Gift wrapping also is available.

Shoppers at the Web site also may use VISA, MasterCard or Discover when ordering. Meijer has made a special arrangement for encryption to make credit card transactions secure.

Great guitarists come together to jam

STORY BY
CHRISTINA FUOCO

Guitar summit: Noted rock guitarists Steve Vai, Joe Satriani and Eric Johnson will each play a set and then come together for a jam session when the "G3" tour comes to The Palace of Auburn Hills Thursday, Oct. 31.

Who: Joe Satriani, Eric Johnson and Steve Vai

What: "G3" tour

When: 7 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 31

Where: The Palace of Auburn Hills, 2 Championship Dr. (I-75 and Lapeer Road), Auburn Hills

Other: Tickets are $22.50; Superfan seating is available. For more information, call (810) 377-0100.

As a teen in Carle Place, N.Y., fledgling guitarist Steve Vai thought about the day he could play alongside his mentor/guitar teacher Joe Satriani. He never actually thought it would happen, but now, years later, he's joining his high school buddy and Eric Johnson on stage for the "G3 = Three Great Guitars" tour.

"I dreamed about it, but no, I never thought it would ever actually happen to this magnitude," Vai said with a laugh.

Satriani added that it feels natural for the two to play together on stage.

"It feels quite natural now I suppose because I started teaching Steve when I was 15," Satriani said of playing with Vai. "We've known each other for a very long time. We're closer as friends than we are as student and teacher. We went to the same high school and hung around with the same crowd."

"It started out as a student-teacher thing then I guess we just sort of turned into musical comrades. We have so many things in common like where we grew up. When we get together it takes about a half a heartbeat to get back to where we were."

The "G3" tour comes to The Palace of Auburn Hills tonight. The three men are considered to be the most influential rock instrumental guitarists of the past decade. Satriani, 39, has sold more than 7 million records and earned six Grammy Award nominations. Before his solo career took off in the mid-'80s, Satriani moved to the Bay Area of California and taught guitar to Larry LaLonde of Primus and Kirk Hammett of Metallica.

For his 45-minute set, Johnson will play tracks from his latest release "Venus Isle" (Capital), the follow-up to his 1990 near-platinum album "Ah Via Musicom," which includes "S.R.V.," a tribute to the late Stevie Ray Vaughan and the Wes Montgomery-flavored jazz track "Manhattan." The 42-year-old Austin, Texas,-bred guitarist won a Grammy Award for the song "Cliffs of Dover" from that album. The song also earned the distinction of being the first instrumental track to break into the Top 5 on Billboard and Radio and Records rock radio charts and ranked No. 9 on Radio and Records' 1991 Year-End Chart.

The 36-year-old Vai made his professional career debut in 1980 as part of Frank Zappa's band. Since then he has worked with David Lee Roth, Whitesnake, and appeared as the devil's guitar player in the Walter Hill movie "Crossroads." In mid-September, he released his 18-track Epic Records debut album "Fire Garden" which includes the four-part "Fire Garden Suite."

The show will feature 45-minute sets by each of the three guitarists, and culminates with a jam session which may include a visit from a hometown ax slinger. At previous shows, guests like Chris Duarte, Neal Schon of Journey, Kenny Wayne Shepherd and Gary Hoey have stepped on stage.

"We're hoping to draw from a lot of different areas of music – from rock and blues to a guy who permanently plays in vocal bands or instrumental groups," said Satriani who spent years trying to get this tour together.

"That's what we're into. We're the complete non-judgmental touring group. We like bringing people on that'll be like a square peg in a round hole. In essence, Steve Vai, Eric Johnson and myself, we don't really make the same kinds of records. Our guitars sound extremely different. It's not unusual for us to think about adding somebody like Yngwie Malmsteen, Ted Nugent, John McLaughlin, or Neal Schon. Most guitar players whether they're 18 or 58 have got a history of playing blues, rock 'n' roll, jazz, pop, whatever, but the same thing kind of runs through the veins – it's the guitar, the musicianship, and the love of music. That's the common ground."

EXHIBITION

Artist uses dots to connect nature, science

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

Jim Isakson chooses to see the proverbial glass of water as half full instead of half empty. When his position as a graphic artist with an Auburn Hills' agency was eliminated earlier this year, Isakson viewed it as an opportunity to create fine art.

Since then the 31- year old Canton artist, who graduated from Center for Creative Studies with a BFA in illustration, has spent hundreds of hours producing the nine acrylic and gouache paintings on exhibit at the Clique Gallery in Royal Oak.

In the tradition of French Post-Impressionist Georges Seurat, Isakson paints hundreds of dots in an attempt to relay the beauty and mystery of nature and the universe. Landscapes and non-representational abstracts, dealing with subjects ranging from campfires to the cosmos, dominate the show.

"It has to do with energy and basic physics, and manifesting particles of energy into a painting. The points represent the intense detail I want to project of whatever element I'm painting. Realism doesn't really present a challenge because there's an automatic end result. Pontillism tends to provoke more of an interest in the subject matter because the dot depicts energy just as the universe which is composed of an infinite number of tiny particles," said Isakson, an admirer of Seurat, Monet and van Gogh.

"I hope the viewer will interact with the painting: up close to see how the dots are flowing, then back up to view the entire image."

Pontillism carefully and systematically organizes a series of dots into a pictorial order. However methodical this style appears, the inherent creativity produces a rhythmic movement overiding the discipline of the placement of dots in space. Using cylindrical forms and flowing lines, Isakson paints a perfectly manicured landscape entitled "Green River" after a similar location along the Manistee River in Northern Michigan. This work was juried into the The Art of the Garden exhibition held in March at the Matthaei Botanical Gardens in Ann Arbor.

"I start with a sketch, but sometimes I like to let the brush draw as well. I let the painting talk to me," said Isakson, who graduated from Plymouth Salem High School after studying art with Kris Darby and Dave Falzetti.

"Northfire" captures the color and movement of a roaring campfire on a canvas mimicing the shape of the subject. Look close to decipher the animals typical of the Northern Michigan woods. Amidst the roaring flames, lurk a howling coyote, moose and snake.

"Since I camp a lot I wanted to project the feeling of the fire illuminating up to the sky. The flames are symbolic of the animals found there. Before I start a painting, I paint a mental image in my head and let be the goal I want to achieve," Isakson said.

The fact that Isakson's paintings stimulate the imagination is the reason Elaine Redmond invited him to show at the gallery co-owned with her daughter Eve. Both are photographers.

"With Jim's work you can see every mark he's made. It almost encapsulates time. While they're realistic, it opens up the imagination because he abstracts the form. It's a Rorschach test. There's no sharpness. It's all organic. The whole feeling is very flowing and comforting," said Elaine Redmond.

"And the technique in itself is so amazing, the labor intensiveness of it."

FINE ARTS

Woodcut artist keeps Japanese tradition alive

LINDA ANN CHOMIN

Michael McCullough was studying for a marketing degree at Eastern Michigan University when he realized the suit and tie business world wasn't for him.

The Redford resident stayed in school though to earn a BFA from EMU in 1993. By day, he carves bears, deer, zebra, people, lighthouses, and still life into blocks of birch plywood to create woodcuts. At night, he waits tables in an Italian restaurant in Southfield to pay the bills.

McCullough will bring twenty of his woodcut images to the Schoolcraft College Foundation Fall Craft Show Nov. 9-10 in Livonia. Hours are 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday and 11 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $1.50 adults, 50 cents for children ages 5-12, under age 5 free.

"I decided to change to art. I liked the black and white of pen and ink, so I took four or five print making classes with Richard Fairfield," said McCullough, a graduate of Churchill High School in Livonia.

"I like the printing aspect of the woodcut medium and to work with wood. Both my dad and grandfather taught industrial arts. I like the hardness of the image and the sharp lines that a hand-carved and individually rubbed woodcut produces."

Since March, the 31- year old artist has created a body of work, primarily printed in black and white. Limited to editions of approximately 100, the woodcuts range in price from $25 to $65.

"Everything's done in reverse so you have to work backwards. After I've finished carving, the image is inked and a piece of rice paper laid over it. I then use a wooden spoon to pressure the paper. I reink the surface two or three times before completed. It's not like a press where you can do one after another," said McCullough.

"I love the old Japanese wood blocks when they made everything to appear flat. The history of this medium is important to me. Theirs was done on rice paper, but it was a lot thinner. The flattening was so there was not a lot of depth," said McCullough.

"Since I didn't invent this, it's important to keep with the tradition of the style, but to use more Americanized style."

A Northern Michigan forest of trees is background for a lone whitetail deer in one of the woodcut images. Mischievous bear cubs climb the trees in another print. The trees form a vertical screen from which the animals seem to peer out.

Earl and Alice Spuck purchased one of McCullough's bear prints at the Old Village Craft Fair in Plymouth earlier this month. Once framed, they plan to hang it in the family room of their Canton home.

"They were fun bears. They had personality," said Earl Spuck when asked why he bought the print.

"It reminded us of our cabin in Canada or places we'd visited," added Alice. "The scene makes us feel like we're there when we can't be there."

More than 150 artists and crafters will take part in the juried show at Schoolcraft College, now in its eighth year. Proceeds from admission and booth fees will go to the Schoolcraft College Foundation Scholarship Fund.

"We have two gymnasiums chock full of a variety of arts and crafts geared for the holiday season," said Schoolcraft public relations person Kathy Hulick.

Linda Ann Chomin of Canton is a freelance writer specializing in the visual arts. Her Artistic Expressions column appears weekly in the Arts & Entertainment section of The Observer Newspapers.

MADONNA UNIVERSITY SHOW

Plymouth painter Tom LeGault is one of the exhibitors in Madonna University's 12th annual Holiday Arts & Crafts Showcase 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 2-3 in the Activities Center on campus, 36600 Schoolcraft Road in Livonia. Admission is $2, children under age 12 free. All proceeds from the show will be used for instructional and computer lab equipment, and new technology for distance learning whereby students throughout Michigan study for degrees via a satellite hook-up.

From handmade quilts to steel garden sculpture, jewelry, clay and painting, the show promises to offer something to fill everyone's holiday shopping list. Special attractions will include photos with Santa 12-3 p.m. both days, a $1,000 raffle drawn at 4:45 p.m. Sunday, and a bake sale.

"What makes our show special is that we offer different crafters, about 100, each day," said Amy Rybas, public relations person.

LeGault will display his palette knife paintings of Northern Michigan lake and harbor scenes as well as those focusing on fall color and contemporary abstract snow themes on Sunday only. An artist for more than 20 years, LeGault exhibited in 30 shows in 1996 including the Ann Arbor Art Fair and Plymouth's Art in the Park. In June, he won Best of Show at the St. Clair Art Show, and in 1994 the Governor's Choice Award was presented to LeGault by Gov. John Engler at the St. Clair Shores Art Show.

"I did Madonna's spring show and decided to return this fall because it's a nice location with ample parking; it's a nice show overall," said LeGault.

UKRAINIAN SHOW TO OPEN

An art exhibition commemorating the fifth anniversary of Ukraine's independence opens with a reception 1:30-4:30 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 3, at Biegas Gallery, 35 E. Grand River in Detroit.

Among the 65 Ukrainian, Canadian and American artists displaying their paintings, ceramics, photography, and batiks are Livonia Chamber of Commerce membership director Chrystyna Nykorak; Mychajilo Cmytrenko, who painted the icons at Immaculate Conception Church in Hamtramck; Detroit photographer Dan Graschuck; mixed media artist, Alexander Tkachenko, and teramist Wendy Walgate, a graduate of Cranbrook Academy of Arts in Bloomfield Hills.

In 1991, after more than 70 years of communist rule within the Societ Union, Ukraine declared its independence. This enabled artists to create work free of the former regime's decree that art should reflect communist ideology.

Hours are noon to 6 p.m. Thursday through Saturday, or by appointment. For more information call the gallery at (313) 961-0634.

WOMEN OF ARTISTRY

Frame Works of Plymouth will host an exhibit by the Women of Artistry 1-5 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 3 in its shop at 525 Penniman Avenue. The show continues through Nov. 16.

A variety of mediums will be represented including acrylic, oil, watercolor, fiber, and photography by artists Susan Argiroff of Livonia; Sharon Dillenbeck, Canton; Julie Giordano, Northville; Carol McCreedy, Westland; Norma McQueen, Garden City, and Kelly Sauter-Dobson, Livonia.

All six artists have donated work for a raffle to be held Nov. 16. Tickets are $1 each and available at Frame Works Nov. 3-16. All proceeds will go to a Women of Artistry Scholarship Fund to benefit a female student artist.

DIA FILES

The Detroit Institute of Arts periodically offers opportunities for artists to teach workshops related to special exhibits and its permanent collection. Teacher certification isn't required. Typically these workshops consist of one-, two- or three-day programming and are offered to children, adults and/or teachers. Schoolcraft's 'All My Sons' masterful production

Schoolcraft College in Livonia presents Arthur Miller's "All My Sons" 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays, Nov. 1-2 (sold-out), and Nov. 8-9 in the Waterman Center on campus, 18600 Haggerty, Livonia. Theater tickets $6.50. Call for reservations/information: (313) 462-4409.

BY BOB WEIBEL
SPECIAL WRITER

Arthur Miller's "All My Sons" is akin to viewing a rogue tidal wave. It begins innocently enough far from shore. Unseen forces propel it along. As you become aware of its potential, nothing can prepare you for the final power and fury of the waves surging and crashing over the rocks exposing deep, dark secrets of the sea.

Director Jim Hartman and his Schoolcraft College cast and crew do a masterful job of staging Miller's classic drama. Their final act of "All My Sons" builds tension and sustains suspense as few other shows in recent memory. Although it's a student production with performers of varying skills and experience, this pales in comparison to a very satisfying overall effect.

As with much of Miller's work, the play deals with an idealistic son and a guilty father.

The time is shortly after World War II. The boys have come home from the war, but not all is well in the Keller home. One son, Larry, has been killed (the mother refuses to believe he is dead). We learn that the father may have been involved in manufacturing faulty aircraft parts that led to pilot deaths. His partner is in jail for the crime. The other son, Chris, is in love with Larry's girl friend, Ann, and is about to propose marriage, against the wishes of the mother.

Brian Taylor does an excellent job as the middle-age father, Joe Keller. (Someone needs to improve his stomach padding, however. It's too obvious.) Although only twentyish, his voice inflections and mannerisms capture the essence of the conflicted Joe Keller. You see that Joe is an ordinary man, one who would do anything for his family. Joe is not an evil man, but his compulsion to succeed in business led to one fatal mistake.

Unfortunately, Joe lacks the moral fiber to own up to his error. The dirty little secret stuns Chris, who expected more from his father. Joe's lamentable, "I saved the business for you" falls on deaf ears and leads to the stunning finale.

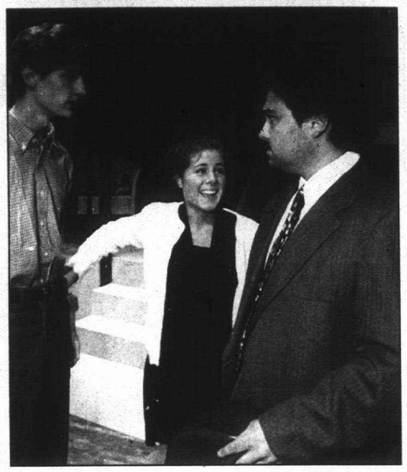

Thomas Steele is remarkably consistent as the moral beacon, Chris Keller. He is at times a bit too passive; a more-animated performance would add credibility and the strength of his character.

Brenda Lane is marvelous as the tortured wife, Kate Keller. She shares Joe's secret. Like him, she fights to hold onto a family that never really never measures up to her dream.

Sarah Colomina scores as the lovely Ann Deever, the daughter of Joe's business partner. Petite and perky, she rides the roller coaster of emotions between her love for Chris and obligations to her father and brother.

David Ormsby is effective as the brother, George Deever. Fresh from a visit to his father in jail, he comes to town to break up the marriage and expose the awful truth.

Good supporting performances were given by Hank Stawasz and Linda Smith as Dr. Jim and Sue Bayliss, Sean Sullivan and Julie Matta as Frank and Lydia Lubey, and Jamie Manning as Bert.

'Swingers' picks up on cocktail culture

JOHN MONAGHAN

They enter the cocktail lounge in search of "digits," or telephone numbers, of any "baby" worth their attention. Trent, the smoothest of the group, walks up to one and starts talking. Strolling away, his back to her, number in hand, he rips the paper up for the benefit of his friends.

Cold.

"As harsh as it is, as harsh as the dialogue sounds, I think it's brutally honest," says director Doug Liman, sipping a monster martini at Hamtramck's Motor Lounge. "These guys are real. That's how they talk about women."

Far from some misogynist fantasy, however, "Swingers" is an often hilarious, dead-on look at the mid-'90s phenomenon called the cocktail nation. Primarily found in New York and Los Angeles, these retro-twentysomethings order martinis and Manhattans, wear bowling shirts and perfectly creased pants, and use a lingo that's one part Dean Martin with a splash of Tarantino.

Since the movie opened earlier this month in New York and Los Angeles, it has already given hipsters a new vocabulary, in which the ultimate compliment is to call someone "money."

The low-budget movie, which opens tomorrow at the Birmingham Theatre, may be the best independent release of the year. It's also a nice coup for the Birmingham, which could do well by picking up on movies passed over by the sometimes stodgy Main Art Theatre.

Filmed primarily in the streets, apartments, and cocktail lounges of Los Angeles, "Swingers" charts the lives of five guys, all vying for a big break in television and movies. Wearing a big head at Disneyland wouldn't be so bad if you could play Mickey instead of Goofy.

They hang out at bars like the Derby and the Dresden Room, go to parties, and try to pick up women. At the latter Trent (Vince Vaughn) proves this new Rat Pack's guru. Tall and thin, like a handsomer version of Tim Robbins, he picks up the women with a magic bag of tricks that his friend Mike (Jon Favreau) just can't seem to get a handle on.

Mike is still in mourning, waiting for the past six months for a call from his ex-girlfriend back in New York. When he does score some "digits," he invariably screws it up. The guys say not to call her for two, maybe three days, but he calls her that night. In one take, without cuts, he leaves a series of messages on her answering machine that are both hilarious and pathetic.

"You have this phenomenon when you see it in front of an audience where people are both laughing and cringing," Liman says. "He's getting people to talk back to a movie screen all alone and that's a hell of a scene to pull off . . . Everywhere else in the film I threw in a million cinematic tricks."

Aside from the lead role, Favreau wrote the screenplay, co-produced, and was originally supposed to direct when he handed the reins over to friend Liman, who also served as director of photography.

The first-time director had been making short films since grade school. At 30, his goal was to make a movie that looked like a million, despite a budget of only $250,000. He did this by concentrating on the actors and shooting guerilla-style, without city permits, in natural light.

"I set out to do an actually poor job," he remembers. "I didn't want this film to be about the cinematography. We tried to avoid lighting whenever possible, and spent the whole time just shooting. We were shocked to see it looking as good as it did."

Trent takes Mike to Las Vegas, thinking the change of scenery will do him good. The casino they pick isn't the glitzy kind with exploding volcanoes and white tiger cages. This one's populated by senior citizens smoking cigarettes and tugging on slot machine handles.

Getting the casino to let them shoot inside was easy, according to Liman: "They were promised a bunch of old people from old age homes," he said. "One of the associate producers had a girlfriend whose father had a bunch of nursing homes in Nevada. Bus them into Las Vegas and the casinos would do the favor."

While independent movies like "Swingers" usually premiere at the Sundance Film Festival, Liman and Favreau rented a theater, invited the studios, and soon found themselves at the center of a bidding war. Not surprisingly, the movie was picked up by Miramax, the company that made "Clerks," "Pulp Fiction," and "Trainspotting" such huge cult successes.Since then, head swingers Liman and Favreau have been promoting the movie separately, sometimes taking swipes at each other. "There's no question when a movie this small hits this much success, there's a dynamic in the group that is sort of like 'Treasure of Sierra Madre,' " Liman laments. "They say that success has many fathers and failure is an orphan. I can only be flattered."

■Fox Searchlight Pictures, Bravo and the Independent Film Channel is inviting interested actors and budding directors to join Academy Award-winner Al Pacino, in his directorial debut, as he goes "Looking for Richard." Semisonic 'rocking in a good way'

CHRISTINA FUOCO

Besides having the talent to write hook-laden songs, memorable melodies, and addictive harmonies, Semisonic has a talent that some people might not be aware of.

"We rock because Jake (drummer Jacob Slichter) plays the keyboard and the drums at the same time," said guitarist/lead singer Dan Wilson with a little smirk.

"I think that's pretty much unheard of. There's something about this sound that has this extra layer because Jake is kind of multi-ambidextrous, and more limber than most drummers."

Those who went to WHYT's "PlanetFest" in late August know that he's telling the truth. One of the highlights of the festival, Semisonic brought forth its ever-present Beatlesque harmonies especially on songs like "F.N.T." and the first single, "If I Run."

"Our songs are real melodious. There's a harmony and a melody to it that we just can't seem to escape," Wilson said.

Wilson and bassist/vocalist John Munson were half of Trip Shakespeare, the Minneapolis group that came out of the post-Replacements/Husker Du scene. Slichter had played drums and various other instruments in bands. It was his basement where Semisonic got its start.

"I had written a few songs with Jake and had written some things with John actually in the couple of months that Trip Shakespeare was kind of fading away. John, Jake and I had played a few parties just playing covers in very late '92 and early '93. We played 'Drift Away' by Dobie Gray and other '70s chestnuts that we were going shamelessly trod out," Wilson explained.

"It was super fun. We kind of started to realize that we were rocking in a good way. One thing led to another, and in Jake's basement studio in early '93 we were recording to just have fun."

Wilson added that since that time Semisonic's sound has changed.

"We got this sampler about a year after we started playing and it completely transformed the way we work in the studio. It made possible the landscape of backward guitar, beeps and fish-like bubbling sounds (on 'Great Divide')."

Semisonic and Stir perform Wednesday, Nov. 6, at the Blind Pig, 206-208 S. First St., Ann Arbor. Doors open at 9:30 p.m. for the 19 and older show. Tickets are $8 in advance. For more information, call (313) 996-8555.

Misc: Jennifer Finch, bass player for L7, has left the group. Finch has announced that she will return to college and has decided to forego the rigors of an extensive tour in support of the Los Angeles-based band's upcoming Reprise Records release "The Beauty Process – Triple Platinum." The album is being produced by Rob Cavallo (Green Day), Joe Barresi and L7 in Los Angeles. Set for release in early 1997, the album will include Finch's musical contributions prior to her departure.

If you have a question or comment for Christina Fuoco, you can write to her c/o The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft Road, Livonia, or via e-mail at cfuoco@aol.com. You can also leave a message for her by calling (313) 953-2047, mailbox 2130 on a Touch-Tone phone.

Coming to town: The pop band Semisonic returns to the area to play the Blind Pig in Ann Arbor Wednesday, Nov. 6, in support of its debut album "Great Divide" (MCA). The trio – from left, John Munson, Dan Wilson and Jacob Slichter – performed at Pine Knob in August as part of "PlanetFest."

T.J. Kirk pays homage to legendary artists

T.J. Kirk performs at 10 p.m. Friday, Nov. 1, at the Magic Bag, 22920 Woodward Ave., Ferndale. Tickets are $10 in advance for the 18 and older show. For more information, call (810) 544-3030.

The jazz band T.J. Kirk believes in giving credit where credit is due. So in order to honor their influences, drummer Scott Amendola and guitarists Will Bernard, Charlie Hunter and John Scott created T.J. Kirk, which pays homage to Thelonious Monk (T), James Brown (J), and Rashaan Roland Kirk (Kirk).

"The band started out as a way to perform the works of those three composers and cross reference them with each other. Frequently, we're playing two or three compositions by those composers at the same time. It's a good way to bring attention to the original records and composers that we are drawing upon for our sources," Schott said.

He stressed that T.J. Kirk is not a cover band.

"We're trying to be faithful to the spirit rather than the letter of the law. A lot of the times we alter the composition to suit our needs or our purposes. Some people might think that's sacrilegious but I believe in order to preserve the essence of an idea you need to rephrase it in a different way."

Later in the conversation, Schott let it slip that T.J. Kirk has another meaning.

"The band was named James T. Kirk but Paramount who owns 'Star Trek' and everything 'Star Trek' related wouldn't let us use that name. But with T.J. Kirk we're able to encapsulate both T.J. Hooker and James T. Kirk – two William Shatners rolled into one," Schott said with a laugh.

Although all four members have solo projects, T.J. Kirk is important to them.

"It's something we take seriously and work very hard on. The three guitarists in the band, we're all friends. We all live in Berkeley, Calif. We just admired each other's playing, but we didn't have many opportunities to play together. We started it as a lark to get together and jam and maybe do a concert and people just got very excited about it."

T.J. Kirk is touring in support of its second release, "If Four Was One" (Warner Bros.) , a project that Schott is "tremendously proud of." "The exciting thing about being in a band it when each person puts in their own creative energy. Sometimes we come up with stuff that any one of us would not have done."

The T.J. Kirk show Friday, Nov. 1, at the Magic Bag is the first on the band's tour.

DINING

Elegant: name of the game at Misty Duck

RENEE SKOGLUND
STAFF WRITER

Owner David Khoury describes The Misty Duck's menu as "an eclectic blend of conceptual American cuisine."

Eclectic? Yes. The menu ranges from an assortment of sandwiches to sophisticated entrees. Conceptual? Yes again. Paring sauteed wild boar medallions with golden pears and rosemary cream may well be a concept new to American cuisine, at least in this area.

The Misty Duck, opened just a few months, bears no traces of the Big Boy Restaurant that once occupied the premises. Guests are surrounded by creamy gold tones and warm brown paneling. A honey-colored tiled fireplace divides the dining area and more casual bar area. There is no clutter in this restaurant, which has a soft Euro-styling, and the pheasants mounted on the walls add a nice, muted touch.

Ambience is delightful, but well-prepared food is even better. When asked to name a customer favorite, Khoury did not hesitate. Blackened BBQ Buffalo Burger. "They love it, absolutely love it. It has a very nice flavor to it. It gives you a tangy flavor. It's becoming a hit here."

Lunch prices average about $7.95 for an assortment of sandwiches and salads and from between $10.95 and $16.95 for pastas and seafood. Dinner entrees are priced between $15.95 and $26.95. Don't ask about dessert prices. Just order one, like the molded chocolate clam shell stuffed with mango mousse and garnished with raspberry sauce and chopped mangoes.

While wild game is The Misty Duck's specialty, it's not its entire identity. You'll find mesquite-grilled fillet mignon, lamb with a lemon-tarragon glaze, and several kinds of fish, including a fresh catch of the day.

"The Atlantic salmon wrapped in grape leaves is the finest dish I've ever had," said Khoury. The salmon is served with a cucumber yogurt dill sauce and garnished with baby corn and sauteed green and red peppers.

Everything – glazes, sauces and stocks – is homemade at The Misty Duck. And everything is super fresh. "The advantage of a small kitchen is that you can't warehouse anything. It's in and out," said Chef Bradley Kimelman.

Kimelman said paying attention to the details separates The Misty Duck from other restaurants. All entrees exit his kitchen with an edible baby orchid.

"It's like a painting. Every dish that goes out is autographed by me and my staff," he said.

Wild game is an excellent low cholesterol source of protein. All wild game served at The Misty Duck is USDA approved. For the uninitiated, Kimelman recommends trying his "Hunter's Soup," a rich mixture of vegetables, tenderloin, wild boar and venison. "It's a meal in itself, not gamy," he said.

Cindy Brautigan of Salem ordered tuna stead with capers on her first visit to The Misty Duck. "It was delightful, flaky and moist," she said. Her husband Mike, more adventurous, ordered the grilled duckling salad with forest mushroom.

"It was just gorgeous," said Brautigan, who added, "Everything presented at the table was beautiful. You ate it with your eyes as well as your mouth."

Brautigan also said the waitstaff was very helpful and didn't mind going back to the kitchen to ask questions.

Khoury loves customers like the Brautigan. It affirms his belief that The Misty Duck fills a restaurant niche with the Canton area that hasn't been filled before.

"Born out of the deep recesses of my mind came The Misty Duck Bistro, and I've been tickled pink ever since," he said.

Team work: Chef Bradley Kimelman, owner David E. Khoury, and general manager Bill Khoury pool talents to make dining at The Misty Duck in Canton a unique experience. Fish, pasta, traditional dishes, wild game and desserts are elegantly presented.

Condos offer small town, downtown living

Bryan A. Timlin, who has enjoyed much success in downtown Birmingham with condominium development, expects good things from Townsend Place East and West in that community.

Both are apartment to condominium conversions within a couple blocks of each other and easy walking distance to shopping, parks and the library.

Prices start at $129,900 for a one-bedroom, single-bath unit of 700 square feet to $209,900 for a two bedroom and two bath of 1,000 square feet.

A limited number of combination units with upwards of 1,600 square feet including two bedrooms and two baths are available starting at $329,000.

"The single biggest amenity is proximity to downtown Birmingham," Timlin said. "Number two, this is beautifully priced for downtown Birmingham."

Twenty-four units will be carved into each of the two buildings. Each is three stories high. Prices increase as you choose a higher level. Townsend Place West is almost sold out.

Rick Coury is the general contractor in charge of the renovations. "It's a structurally sound building ... a good, sound project to be involved with," he said. "Everything in the building has been upgraded for safety issues."

"This is a major, close to being a 100-percent renovation," Timlin said. "Everything is new from top to bottom. It's not decorating, but renovation."

All kitchens, bathrooms, windows and doorwalls will be new. Carpeting will be replaced, paint applied.

Tammy M. Pote, sales representative, comes in contact with all kinds of prospects.

"They absolutely love it," she said. "They like the design. What they're looking at when they look out the window is what it's about. They drive up and see gas lights."

TAMMIE GRAVES/STAFF ARTIST

"Look out our windows," Timlin said. "You see trees, gardens, flowers."

All units will have either a patio or balcony. Balconies will have built-in flower boxes. Each building will have an exercise room, elevator and laundry facilities. Every owner will have at least one covered parking place.

All units will contain a new refrigerator, oven, microwave and dishwasher. Crown molding is standard.

"We're appealing to a new demographic here – baby boomers and baby boomers' children," Timlin said. "Our market tends to be singles. People are getting away from large places. Young people don't need it. Older people are selling.

"You know what people like about this – maintenance-free living," Timlin said. "They can park their car here and never get in it unless they're leaving the community."

The finished model at Townsend Place West, 900 square feet, features a living room/dining room, kitchen with under-counter lights, bedroom and a bathroom with combination tub and shower. Base price is $169,900.

Brick is the primary exterior material with some wood siding.

Both Townsend Places are served by city water and sewers. Both are within the Birmingham School District boundaries.

The property tax rate currently is $43.69 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value. That means the owners of a $170,000 condominium there would pay about $3,700 the first year.

The monthly maintenance fee ranges from $120-$189 dollars and includes water, window cleaning, lawn care and pest control.

Bill Cox bought a two-bedroom unit. He wanted to stay in Birmingham and enjoy the amenities of condo living.

"I picked Townsend due to the reputation of the builder ... the quality of construction he's undertaken at other sites," Cox said. "I do have the flexibility of customizing my condo to my taste. That's exactly what I've done.

"If you think about it, at this price point ($240,000 with upgrades), there's virtually no new construction in Birmingham," he added.

Theresa and Wayne Raymond bought a one-bedroom unit.

"We now live in a pretty big condo, four bedrooms," Theresa said. "We wanted to live in downtown Birmingham. We wanted to downsize. We drove by Townsend Place. It was perfect for what we needed.

"I like the looks of the building, but mostly I like the location," she said.

The model at Townsend Place West, (810) 540-1230, is open noon to 4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday and by appointment.

John Richards HOMES

National home ownership is second highest ever

WASHINGTON (AP) – Figures released last week show more Americans own homes than ever before.

With just two weeks until election day, the Clinton administration reported that home ownership nationally has climbed to 65.6 percent of U.S. households.

President Clinton quickly sought to turn the national increase to his political advantage.

"My administration has worked hard to help more Americans own their own homes," Clinton said in a statement citing the economy, lower interest rates and efforts to cut closing costs.

The national figure, for the third quarter of this year, is the highest quarterly rate in 15 years and the second highest on record, Housing Secretary Henry Cisneros told reporters.

"It's an excellent manifestation of how a strong economy can actually touch people's lives," Cisneros said.

Clinton's statement was distributed moments after a White House briefing on a report usually issued by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Cisneros said 66.3 million households owned their own homes in the second quarter of this year, up from 66.1 million the previous quarter.

He said black homeowners increased from 5.3 million to 5.4 million and Hispanic owners from 3.57 million to 3.62 million.

The home ownership rate of 65.6 percent trails only the record 65.8 percent rate set in 1981, Cisneros said.

Lower mortgage interest rates and an improved economy have helped spur home buying, Cisneros said.

Cisneros also announced a series of new initiatives which he said were designed to reach 67.5 percent home ownership by 2000. These included:

■ Plans to double the number of local home ownership partnerships to 150 by 1997.

n Establishment of a computer "web site" and a toll-free phone number to assist women who want to become homeowners.

■ A program to provide home ownership counseling in various languages.

■ Creation of home ownership zones in cities to help establish areas of affordable housing.

■ Reducing regulations that can increase the cost and complexity of becoming a homeowner.

Consumers warm to gas fireplaces

Natural gas fireplace equipment is gaining popularity, as consumers seek greater convenience and an alternative to the environmental and health effects associated with wood-burning fireplaces and stoves.

Residential wood stoves are one of the largest sources of the tiny "particulates" that cause visible air pollution and aggravate breathing problems, especially in children, according to the Environmental Protection Agency.

Natural gas fireplace logs burn far more cleanly than wood and emit no particulate matter, soot or smoke, according to the American Gas Association (A.G.A.).

Many consumers prefer natural gas fireplaces because of the convenience, A.G.A. says – no wood to chop, no kindling to fuss with, no logs or ashes to haul.

Some natural gas hearth units can even be turned on and off by remote control.

A.G.A. recommends that consumers have natural gas fireplace and heating equipment, venting systems and chimneys inspected.

Plan is suitable for family that wants smaller home

Parents can cook dinner and still keep an eye on kids playing in the yard. The 1,471-square-foot Levings is ideal for a family about to buy their first home, or for a couple close to retirement and wishing to down-size to a more manageable floor design.

Attractive wood siding and a covered walk impart a nice touch as you enter this home.

The kitchen is large with plenty of counter space. And it's just inside the front door, handy for popping in to grab a snack. The open living room and dining room invite entertaining or family gatherings. The optional wood stove adds charm to this area. Sliding glass doors lead you from the living area to the covered deck for enjoying the warm summer nights and cool fall evenings.

This home has a roomy master bedroom with a double vanity in the dressing area, separating the bathroom and walk-in closet. A skylight fills the dressing area with soft natural light.

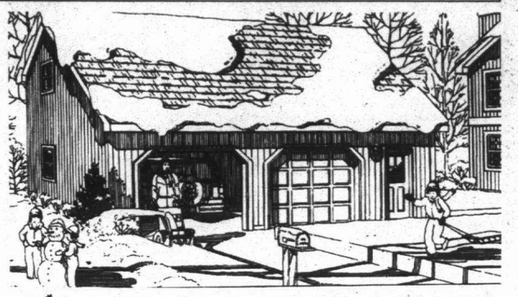

The den, with French doors, can be used as a home office or guest room if needed. A full bathroom is located in the center of this floor plan, allowing for easy use by the entire home.

The large two-car garage not only has a side entrance but direct access into the house via the oversized utility room. This handy space houses the washer/dryer and a half bath. The half-bath is convenient to those working in the garage or yard.

LET'S REMODEL

New design principles help everyone

Q: My wife has a bad back. We are looking to remodel our kitchen over the winter and would like to know what recommendation can be made to make her life more comfortable.

A: Consideration for people of different ages, sizes and mobilities are being referred to interior design circles as Universal Design. The objective today is to design space to meet the needs of anyone who is to be using the room. The first and best recommendation would be to select a remodeling contractor who specializes in universal design, for that individual would be sensitive to the strategies to accomplish these objectives and some of the products available to help do so. Specifically for persons who have chronic back pain, there are several specific details that can make working in the kitchen fun again. Bending at the waist is usually very uncomfortable for people with back problems. To prevent unnecessary bending, raise the dishwasher 12 inches off the floor. This makes it easier to load and unload while standing erect, and more convenient for anyone. Designing the lower (base) cabinets with additional drawers, rather than so many doors, will also cut down on bending. Where door bases are used, incoporation of storage aid devices such as roll-out baskets and dividers can be beneficial.

Also remember that leaning forward is uncomfortable, so generally speaking it is thought that only the first 15 inches to 18 inches of space at the front of a counter is best accessible. A good rule of thumb is to have three different countertop heights in good universal design. Some 30 inch high counters, some 36 inch high and some 42 inches off the floor is considered adequate for individuals of various ages and sizes to work at a countertop at a height comfortable to a given individual. For persons with back problems, select a sink that is no more than 6 inches deep, again to reduce unncessary leaning forward. Place faucets at the side of the sink rather than at the back. Choose appliances like cooktops with controls located at the front of the device. In general, controls should also have a logical placement that indicates which burner unit the control operates.

Other considerations in universal design might include accommodation for the fact that as people age, their eyesight deteriorates, especially under dimmer lighting conditions. Use plenty of lighting, and remember that good illumination requires are lighting, task lighting and accent lighting. Use a contrasting edge on countertops and in flooring in front of cabinetry to differentiate those spaces. Also, as people age, the strength of their grasp is decreased. This is especially true for items that are higher than shoulder height. Be sure that easy landing space is available next to ovens and refrigerators. With excellent design and advance planning; the kitchen can be a functional space for everyone as well as a place of beauty.

Garden books take your around the world

MARTY FIGLEY

"The Siberian Iris," Currier McEwen ($39.95, Timber Press), should be in every iris lover's book collection. The author, 93 years old, has devoted 40 years to growing and breeding these plants and shares his, and other experts', extensive knowledge.

Beginners as well as experienced growers will benefit from the vast information including history, detailed descriptions, culture, pests and diseases and characteristics of modern cultivars. Recipient of many awards, and the first hybridizer to induce tetraploidy in Japanese and Siberian iris, McEwen's love of these fascinating plants shines through. A list of places to see the plants throughout the world, judging and show information, as well as a list of his favorite plants, attest to the detailed information in this book.

I am very excited about "Nature Printing, with Herbs, Fruits and Flowers," Laura Donnelly Bethmann (Storey Publishing, $22.95). It is beautifully illustrated to show exactly how to accomplish the tasks necessary to create a desirable product.

Projects range from those for children to advanced techniques. Bethmann describes suitable papers and paints and helps the novice with all the steps from collecting specimens to various ways of printing. The ideas can be used on paper, fabric, walls, furniture – the possibilities are endless. This is the next best thing to having her right at your side.

"Water Gardening, Water Lilies and Lotuses," Perry Slocum and Peter Robinson, with Frances Perry (Timber Press, $59.95), is a complete book on this subject, beginning with the history of water gardens, followed by the "nitty-gritty" design and construction information and how to care for the garden, including fish and other life forms found there.

An encyclopedia of suitable plants follows with the plants segregated into suitable categories, i.e. submerged plants, bog plants, moisture-loving, etc. A portion of the book is devoted to water lilies and lotuses, which are such a large part of these gardens. The excellent color photographs alone will entice the reader to try this type of garden. The line drawings ably illustrate the technical side of the plants and the gardens. The list of sources is extensive.

Passion for plants

Ken Druse has another winner with "The Collector's Garden" (Clarkson/Potter, $45). He visited many passionate plant collectors and relates their stories as they share how and why they are doing it.

We meet Harold Epstein in New York, who has an extensive collection of hardy plants from many parts of the world; the owners of Yucca Do Nursery in Texas, who specialize in more than 150 plants native to Mexico; and Geoffrey Charlesworth and Norman Singer, who grow 4,000 species of plants each year. "Probably the most important contributors of new plants to our gardens," Druse writes.

Then there is John Gwynne, whose garden is discovered after entering a hidden doorway, and the alpine landscape near Philadelphia, which features phlox. Druse also visited Marco Polo Stufano of Wave Hills, N.Y., and the fabulous gardens. I could go on and on. Druse's photographs and narrative make this an outstanding work, sure to be sought after for many years.

In "Growing Myself" (Dutton, $21.95), Judith Handelsman shares her "spiritual journey through gardening."

"Through thought, word and deed I communicated with my plants and they responded," the author says. "In their own silent way, they communicated back to me."

She has lived and gardened in many locations in many situations, some poignant, others humorous. Each chapter deals with not only how she cared for plants, but people as well, and thereby gained personal strengths. Perhaps her insights will help us do the same.

History lesson

A most interesting book, "The White House Garden," William Seale ($9.95 hardcover, $7.50 soft), relates the history of this most famous garden. Its plan is based on a traditional 18th century American garden.

"Four significant periods mark the evolution of the White House grounds and the president's park over the past two centuries," Seale writes.

First farmland and wilderness in 1800, the grounds have evolved into beautiful parkland, enjoyed by many visitors. The photographs illustrate the many aspects of the gardens, from formal to more casual, buildings and trees.

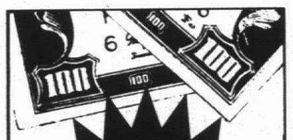

To order, write: White House Historical Association, Box 96586, Washington, D.C. 20090-6586. Check or credit card. Postage and handling included in price.

APPLIANCE DOCTOR

Appliance cat finds a home with Pee Wee

JOE GAGNON

This story begins way back almost nine years ago when my son Mark and I were living together in an apartment complex adjacent to a golf course. One day Mark observed a man deposit this black cat over the fence into the fairway of the 18th hole. He strolled over in his easy going manner and asked the man what he was doing and at the same time the cat climbed the fence and jumped into Mark's arms. He observed the cat had no claws and was also minus some private parts which caused him to again ask the man what his actions were leading to.

This stranger explained that he was moving away and couldn't take the cat with him, so he was dumping him unto the golf course. Mark, the second of three sons, has always loved nature to the greatest degree. This characteristic quality prompted him to politely explain to this man that the cat could not take care of itself in the wilds of nature without claws. He also informed him that unless he went across the street to the Kroger store and purchased a new kitty litter box and sand, plus some food, he was going to beat his brains in.

Naturally, the man complied rather quickly, and so began the life of Pee Wee with the Gagnon father and son family. The first night of sleep in the apartment was interrupted by a trip against the closet door in my bedroom. This little kitten has climbed onto my chest at three in the morning and when I awoke from a deep sleep to find these two big eyes staring at me from only a few inches away, it scared me to no small extreme. The noise caused Mark to awake in a hurry and I can still see him running down the stairs with the big 357 Magnum pointing in my direction.

Thank God he didn't kill me over this new found cat. Today Pee Wee lives with me and is a very happy cat. He weighs over 30 pounds and sleeps in a wicker basket beside my bed. He eats the best steak and seafood because I visit the finest restaurants. We have never has an argument since our first meeting. Pee Wee is lonely during the day which prompted the second part of this story.

Seven weeks ago, my youngest son, Andrew, was in the back yard of our store removing an old part for a consumer from a washing machine. As he lifted the washer this little orange kitten no bigger than the palm of your hand made a crying sound. He brought the kitty into the store and we gave it some water which it was too weak to even touch. The mother cat was around the back yard with three other well developed kittens and wouldn't come near this abandoned one. In all of this excitement we decided to let Dr. Morrison have a look at him. Three days later we had a new kitten which was going to survive, had no fleas, no worms and also no home.

Can you guess where the kitty is now? I named him Kenmore after the washing machine we found him under. I took him home as a new friend to Pee Wee and I had his claws removed do as not to hurt the big cat when he's playing. Everything is going fine as home except that Pee Wee now has to sleep on the floor because Kenmore now sleeps in the wicker basket.

Back at the store the mother is still around while we have been taking care of the other three kittens which are living in the rear shed. Andrew has boxes with blankets and pans with kitty litter and an ample supply of Nine Lives cat food. He has named these three kittens, Norge, Philco and Hamilton. I am not taking these other kittens home. I repeat, I am not taking these other kittens home. Do you understand, Andrew?

Joe Gagnon, the Appliance Doctor, will answer your questions about maintaining and repairing large appliances.

STUDENTS HAVE FUN LEARNING ABOUT BULBS

STORIES BY MARTY FIGLEY · SPECIAL WRITER

The 30 students in Debbie Gaj's seventh grade class at Frost Middle School in Livonia had quite a busy time and a learning experience which started last fall and lasted into the summer.

They are among 43,000 students throughout the United States who planted bulbs and had fun doing it.

Gaj said she read about the National Gardening Association's program in a newsletter for educators.

The one-of-a-kind grant bulb program, Kids Growing with Dutch Bulbs, was generously supported by three organizations, the Mailorder Gardening Association, Columbia, MD, the International Flower Bulb Center and the Dutch Bulb Exporters Association, both of Holland. Two hundred schools in 44 of the 50 states each received Dutch flower bulbs last fall and Frost Middle School was one of only two selected in Michigan.

The executive director, Camille Chioni of the MGA, wrote, "The 200 grant recipients were selected based on their applications which demonstrated clear educational goals and a commitment to helping children gain hands-on experience with the many joys and wonders of gardening. The National Gardening Association, Burlington, VT, administers the selection process of the grant program."

Before the bulbs arrived, Gaj's students studied about bulb plants and, in anticipation of the arrival of 250 bulbs from the sponsors and another 250 from the Michigan Bulb Co., Grand Rapids, each student drew a plan (to scale) of the proposed bulb planting site.

Gaj said the students were very excited by the program.

"They really enjoyed it. For many they had never planted bulbs before and they enjoyed working outside," she said.

The students voted for the best design, which must have been quite a big decision. Josh Thompson then took his winning design and made a full-scale drawing. Pictures of the blooming plants were tacked along the edges of the drawing. Last October (they recalled it was cold) the students prepared a raised area about 20 by 14 feet that had pine trees growing in it, but not much else. One boy said, "It was covered with little pine cones."

Tulips, daffodils, narcissus, grape hyacinths, crocus and puschkinia were carefully placed in the ground and covered with wood chips. The kids had fun riding in a wheelbarrow along with the chips as they were carted from a holding area to the garden.

This past spring saw the results of their hard work, so they decided to plant a butterfly garden in the courtyard area, which is surrounded on all sides by the classrooms. This garden is two years old and the area was mostly grass before the gardens were constructed.

Gaj said of the school garden, "It gets better every year – now the perennials are starting to mature."

The butterfly garden has three sections; the middle one is centered with a bird bath and two gardens on either side are triangle in shape. The side gardens are edged with the students' rock collection. A cement walk connects them all and two large benches are nearby for rest and relaxation.

Home Quarters donated thousands of seeds for this enterprising project, and the students had fun deciding just what to use in this garden. Some seeds were started indoors while others were sown directly into the ground.

When I visited at the end of May the new little plants were peeking through the earth and will make a handsome garden as they grow. Marigolds, cosmos, four o'clocks, snapdragons, daisies, forget-me-nots and chives are just some of the flowers in the garden. At the end of our visit, three students were getting ready to plant seedlings.

In July and August some of the students met with Gaj for lunch and to weed and care for their own special garden. Several students said, "I'd like to do this again."

Gaj said the bulb project was for only a year but she would like to find sponsors for other similar gardening projects.

In addition to the plants, the class used the National Gardening Association's GrowLab and ideas from their newsletter "Growing Ideas" for other class projects.

Another project that came out of this gardening experience is called "Feeder Watch," through Cornell University Laboratory of Ornithology. The students made feeders and bird houses and hung them around the perimeter of the courtyard. Every two weeks they recorded which birds they had seen and the time they had visited.

This is truly a success story and Gaj and her students are to be congratulated.

These programs are enthusiastically endorsed by educators; pint-sized quality tools are now available for children. All the kids need is someone to get them interested, a little bit of guidance and a sense of adventure and fun.

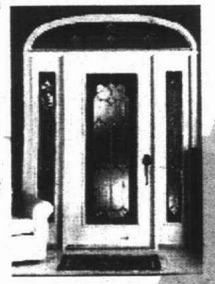

If you wish to learn more about the bulb grant, contact Camille Chioni at the MGA, PO Box 2129, Columbia, MD, 21045 (410-730-9713). For the GrowLab program and other educational programs, contact: National Gardening Association, 180 Flynn Ave., Burlington, VT 05401, or phone 1-800-Letsgro.

HOME ELECTRONICS

Put a little woof into your home protection

BARRY JENSEN

Is that barking dog real or is it electronic? If you bought it from a Sharper Image store, it's electronic.

The electronic dog is really a motion detector that senses movement up to 20 feet away. The detector is housed in a box 10 inches high, six inches wide and six inches deep. This box of dogs can be battery powered, or you can plug the detector into the wall.

When the detector senses movement, it sounds an alert. The alert starts out as a barking dog, but, as someone gets closer to the detector, it switches the sound of its alert to a snarling dog.

The detector's official name is the Radar Watchdog and Intrusion Alarm. Because it can sense movement through walls, it is well suited for keeping possible intruders outside your home. Just be sure to keep it out of view.

But the motion detector works well to keep visitors from straying into areas around the home where they would be unsafe, such as a steep stair, or alerting you that a small child is somewhere he shouldn't be.

The detector is not just a barking dog. It can give out one of three alert sounds: a barking/snarling dog, a group of barking/snarling dogs, or a siren.

The detector has few controls. One knob is off/on/volume to control the sound of the barking or siren. Another knob controls the sensitivity of the device. Because the detector puts out radio-frequency emissions, it could interfere with nearby stereos or other similar electronic devices. To reduce or eliminate any such interference, you should change the direction the detector faces, the location of the device or reduce the sensitivity.

Another control allows you to select whether you want the alarm to come in the form of the barking of one dog, the barking of several dogs or an alarm siren.

For those who like to show these things off to their friends, there is a demonstration switch that allows you to make the box bark on command. More practically, it gives you a quick indication that the detector is working.

The manufacturer says plastic and fiberglass do not affect range at all. Solid metal shortens the range drastically. Objects such as brick or curtains affect the range to a lesser or greater degree.

The manufacturer recommends you place the detector three to five feet from the floor for maximum range and sensitivity. The detector is most sensitive in the direction you point it. But it will sense movement 360 degrees, although not as well as it will sense movement for 100 degrees in the direction you point it.

"It's been a terrific seller," said Jan Godwin of Sharper Image in Troy. "It is the second or third generation of a device we have had for several years."

One advantage of the barking motion detector, especially for those who leave an empty house all day, is that there is no dog to feed or pet or groom or clean up after. The downside is that there is no dog to pet or play with.

Some of the sites touted by the company as good places for the detector include offices (you have dogs in your office?), homes (this sounds more reasonable), apartments (especially if animals are allowed), dormitories (you have dogs in your dorm room?), warehouses, storage spaces, factories, weekend cottages, garages, recreational vehicles, boats, etc.

The barking detector might scare someone off temporarily, but not for the long term. But that's really what you want if you are interested in this type of device. You can't keep someone out of your house if he is determined to break in.

If you need major security, there are companies that specialize in such security – for a lot more money.

The barking Radar Watchdog and Intrusion Alarm is $130 and comes with a one-year warranty. It is available at local stores and through the company's catalog.

FOCUS ON PHOTOGRAPHY

Planting an idea: A Cycad plant provided an excellent example of a pattern shot for Monte Nagler's camera. This photograph was made at the University of Michigan's Botanical Gardens.

Design your photos with patterns of life

MONTE NAGLER

Photographs don't always need a central subject. Because patterns are encountered so often in our daily lives, they can play an important part in our photography. Pattern can make order out of chaos and lend rhythm and harmony to seemingly meaningless design.

You, as a photographer, have the exciting opportunity to draw attention to the frequently unnoticed wealth of detail in the world of pattern around you.

Perhaps the best way to see pattern is to use a viewing mask previously described.

Use your viewing mask to isolate patterns from distracting surroundings. Its function in helping you compose your shots will surprise you. You'll find yourself zeroing in on meaningful subjects you never knew were there.

Around your home, look closely for patterns in brickwork or shadows on the steps. A row of books or design in the floor tile will offer picture possibilities. Details in the grille of your car will make interesting photographs, too. How about a trip to the supermarket? A keen, photographer's eye will notice the arrangements of fruits and vegetables in the bins or cans and bottles on the shelf.

Modern architecture (as well as old) offers a multitude of pattern possibilities. Through your photographer's vision, look closely at newly constructed (and under construction) buildings for infinite opportunities to capture patterns on film. A closeup of old steps and railings makes an exciting pattern shot.

Be sure to look for the multitude of patterns in nature. Look carefully at a scattering of leaves, bark on a tree or patterns in the sand. Move in close on an individual leaf to capture the intimate and delicate patterns of nature.

Remember, the aim of creative photography is to make a visual interpretation of an experience, not just to record an image.

Try to convey through your photographs something that excites and interests you, something you wish to share. With pattern shots, you can do just that.

Monte Nagler is a fine art photographer based in Farmington Hills. You can leave him a message by dialing (313) 953-2047 on a touch-tone phone, then his mailbox number, 1873. His fax number is (810) 644-1314.

Tips for a more secure home.

- ✔ Don't answer telephone survey questions such as "Do you have a color TV, stereo, etc." A burglar may be on the other end of the line trying to find out if it's worthwhile to break in to your home.
- ✔ Don't let newspapers and mail pile up while you are out of town.
- ✔ A phone call to our police or sheriff department notifying them of the dates when you will be out of town is always a good idea. They often will make a point of checking your home while you're away.
- ✔ Install and use dead bolt locks and "pin" your easily accessible windows.
- ✔ If you have an alarm system, let the burglar know it by displaying the window decals.

Our Mission Statement.

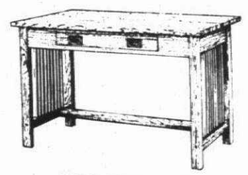

The Finest Quality Furniture We've Ever Shown.

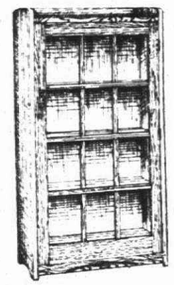

Near the beginning of the century, the Arts and Crafts movement sprang from America's most innovative designers, Frank Lloyd Wright, Gustov Stickley and Charles Tiffany. Art, they said, should be found in the objects we use everyday, and true beauty occurs when design. function and ornamentation all work together. In furniture, the movement took shape in the Mission style. The same style and heirloom quality craftsmanship brought to life by the Arts and Crafts movement has been reborn by The Michaels Company.

INVITING IDEAS

Your 'Big Night' can be savory feast

RUTH MOSSOK JOHNSTON

Mouthwatering and delicious is the new movie "Big Night" co-written, and co-directed by Stanley Tucci, who also co-stars in the film. A food movie this is – you want to leave your popcorn behind and run to the nearest Italian restaurant – looking for finely prepared risotto, basil adorned vegetables and timpano.

While "Big Night" is still at local theaters, it would make for a great get-together – paired with Italian cuisine, a group of good friends, and a bottle or two of red wine. In planning this Italian feast evening, pick up enough tickets ahead of time for your guests to see the movie, and have prepared a delicious Italian dinner to enhance the experience.

If the thought of cooking Italian cuisine intimidates you, relax – not all dishes are as complex as the elaborate stuffed pasta dish, timpano, served in the movie. Anna Ivaldi, owner and cateress extraordinaire of Il Piatto D'oro (The Golden Plate) has recipes to share. Her culinary repertoire includes things like; Cupola Di Prosciutto (ham and cream mousse), Nidi Di Polenta Con Funghi (cornmeal nests filled with mushrooms in a light red sauce), Crespelle Imbottite (light dough filled with ricotta, mozzarella cheese and herbs in fresh tomato sauce), Risotto Alla Milanese (Arborio rice cooked in chicken broth or meat broth, and seasoned with saffron and Parmesan cheese), and last but not least, her Lasagne – either Al Forno, or Con Verdure – homemade pasta with layers – Al Forno with ragu' and besciamelle sauce topped with Parmesan cheese or Con Verdure with sauté of spinach, mushrooms, and broccoli florets, fresh tomato sauce and topped with Parmesan cheese.

Italian born Anna Ivaldi, originally from Genoa, is a self-taught cook, influenced by her mother and older sister. Coming from the North, Anna talks about the differences between the flavors in Northern and Southern Italy – "the North uses butter and cream, to retain heat where it is cold, and there are more cows." She continues the discussion, "there is just a hint of garlic and not in all dishes – Southern Italians use more garlic and more tomato." Always soft spoken and articulate in her heavily Italian accented - English, she displays passion about all she does; her art (paintings and drawings on every wall of her home), her knitting, her cooking classes, her teaching of Italian, or her ongoing catering business.

Anna has graciously shared some of her recipes with me – if you would like to entertain and not take the time to cook – have Anna prepare it – you can reach her at:

MELANZANE MARINATE
MARINATED EGGPLANTS
(FOR 6 OR 8)

Eggplants slices, fried marinated in olive oil, wine vinegar, basil, garlic, salt and pepper, and then served cold. Better if marinated for a day.

coarse salt
1 cup fresh basil leaves
1 clove garlic (peeled)
Salt and ground black pepper
1/2 cup red wine vinegar
vegetable oil for deep frying

Slice the eggplants vertically into 1/2 inch slices; do not peel. Place the slices on a large plate, sprinkle liberally with coarse salt and let stand for 1 hour with a weight on top. Tear the basil leaves and place in a small bowl. Chop the garlic and add to the basil. Mix very well with a wooden spoon. Rinse and dry the eggplant slices with paper towels and deep fry them in a large quantity of vegetable oil until golden all over. Do not drain the oil with the paper towel. Put down a layer of undrained eggplant, cover with basil and garlic, then sprinkle with salt and pepper. Repeat until all the slices are in the serving dish. Pour in the vinegar, let cool and then place in refrigerator covered with aluminum foil. After 1 hour gently turn the slices over. Return to the refrigerator still covered for at least 3 hours more.

Cook's Note: The marinated eggplant can be preserved through the entire winter by covering it with olive oil in a jar

VERMICELLI ALLA SIRACUSANA

Vermicelli with pepper, tomatoes and eggplant (for 4)

1 large cubed eggplant
coarse salt
1 or 2 yellow peppers oil
1 clove garlic (peeled)
2 anchovies finely chopped
4 to 5 tomatoes peeled and chopped salt and pepper
8 black olives chopped
1 tablespoon capers squeezed & chopped small bunch basil (chopped)
14 ounces vermicelli
Caciocavallo or Parmesan cheese

Sprinkle the eggplant with coarse salt and let the juice run for 1 hour, then rinse and dry them. Roast the peppers by turning them under the broiler and remove skin, then cut into strips. In a large pan, fry the eggplant in oil. Add the garlic and when the aroma rises, the anchovies and then the tomatoes. Season with salt and pepper, and simmer about 15 minutes or until the eggplant is tender. Add the olives, capers, basil, and the pepper strips and cook a minute longer. In a separate pot, boil the vermicelli in plenty of boiling salted water until al dente (firm, but tender). Drain and serve with the sauce. Sprinkle with grated cheese.

One of my favorite Risotto Recipes comes from the book Italian Cooking in the Grand Tradition by Jo Bettoja and Anna Maria Cornetto published by the Dial Press, 1982.

NOTE: The entire process of cooking this risotto takes approximately 45 minutes and requires full attention – allow enough time to prepare it properly. Arborio rice is a necessity – it can be found at Italian markets, specialty food shops and upscale groceries. Bone marrow can be obtained from your local butcher.

RISOTTO, MILAN STYLE

6 tablespoons unsalted butter
1 1/2 ounces (45g) bone marrow finely chopped
1/2 medium onion, minced
1 pound (450g) Arborio rice
3/4 cup dry white wine
1/2-1 teaspoon saffron threads
About 5 cups simmering beef or chicken broth
6 tablespoons freshly grated Parmesan cheese, plus additional cheese for serving
Freshly ground black pepper

1. Melt 4 tablespoons of the butter with the marrow in a saucepan large enough to cook the rice, making sure the marrow dissolves. Add the onion and sauté gently until soft and transparent, about 5 minutes. Add the rice and stir until every grain is coated and shiny, about 3 or 4 minutes. Add the wine and keep stirring until it evaporates.

2. Dissolve the saffron in 2 tablespoons of the hot broth and set aside.

3. Add the remaining hot broth to the rice, 1/2 cup at a time stirring constantly, waiting until the broth is absorbed before adding more. The risotto should always be moist. After about 15 minutes, taste the rice. It should be al dente. Add the saffron, stir, and cook for 3 minutes, adding broth as necessary and stirring constantly.

4. Remove from the heat when still moist and stir in the remaining 2 tablespoons butter and the 6 tablespoons Parmesan. Cover tightly and allow the risotto to set for 3 minutes. Turn out onto a heated serving dish and serve with freshly ground black pepper and more Parmesan as needed.

Authors Note: The risotto should be, as we say in Italy, al onda, or wavy. It should be served slightly moist, not dry.

Example:
If you live in a Canton home with a current market value of $183,579, approximately how much would it cost to replace it with a similar home in Birmingham?

Soiution:
Multiply the market value of your current home by the index number of the destination city where you plan to move, then divide that number by the index number of the market where your current home is located:

$183,579
times 180
divided by 93
equals $355,314

To replace a $183,579 home in Canton with a comparably-sized property in Birminham, expect to pay approximately $355,314.

What would it cost to buy a house exactly like yours in another community in the metro area?

Coldwell Banker Schweitzer, a regional real estate franchise with seven local offices, has updated a price comparison formula that serves as an informational starting point for people interested in making a move.

An index devised by a computer program that includes the average home sales price of transactions May 1 through July 31 of this year is the crux of the formula.

About a dozen Observer & Eccentric municipalities appear in the Schweitzer survey.

"It's just a good barometer, a guideline," said Kathy Schweitzer, director of administration for the local firm. "It gives people a good idea what their current home would cost in a new location.

"I'm sitting in my house on a Sunday afternoon reading from a brochure provided by a friendly Coldwell Banker Schweitzer person and I can look in areas I'm shopping and get an idea what I will pay," she said. "All in one place.

"We give it to all of our sales associates," Schweitzer said. "They distribute it to their customers and clients. We also use it for our relocation department. It gives transferees a real good idea what they can expect to pay for a house."

To apply the Schweitzer formula, you multiply the market value of your current house by the index number of the destination city where you want to relocate, then divide that number by the index number of the city where you currently live.

According to the formula, a house in Livonia with a market value of $175,000 would cost approximately $135,700 in Southfield, $166,100 in Canton, $182,100 in Rochester Hills and $321,400 in Birmingham.

A house with a market value of $250,000 in West Bloomfield would cost about $222,200 in Troy, $226,900 in Livonia, $238,400 in Farmington Hills and $243,100 in Plymouth.

Keep in mind that the formula serves only as a guidepost. Your exact house may not be available in other communities. Also, mathematical averages can't be used to extrapolate a specific result.

Comparable market sales in a well-defined area affected by supply and demand, current interest rates and consumer confidence in the economy determine specific selling prices.

Matt Wojcik, marketing coordinator for Coldwell Banker Schweitzer, updated the formula this year.

"Some of the values for some of the towns were more than you would think," he said.

Forty-six communities around the state were surveyed.

The target house contained 2,200 square feet, four bedrooms, 2-1/2 baths, a family room or equivalent and a two-car garage.

The five highest-cost communities were Birmingham, with an average sales price of $354,750, the Grosse Pointes, $237,930, Northville, $229,608, Brighton, $227,000, and Ann Arbor, $220,100.

The five lowest-cost communities were Detroit, with an average sales price of $92,500, Jackson, $135,725, Midland, $138,700, Eastpointe, $154,000, and Allen Park, $156,666.

The average sales price of the target house in several O&E communities showed sizable leaps when compared to a survey two years ago, Coldwell Banker Schweitzer's computer search indicated.

The average price in Birmingham rose to $354,750 from $245,000, but only four sales of the target house were recorded during the survey period this year.

West Bloomfield increased to $212,827 from $179,580, Plymouth to $207,673 from $170,300, Farmington Hills to $202,468 from $174,921, Rochester Hills to $201,948 from $170,500 and Livonia to $193,908 from $163,900.

A variety of factors make houses in one community more in demand than another.

"I think it boils down to schools, perception of the school system, parks and amenities offered to people who live there," Schweitzer said.

"Taxes, maybe," Wojcik said.

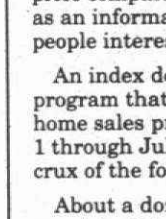

"Traffic, too, is another thing," said Tracey Ewert, marketing manager for Coldwell Banker Schweitzer.

Selling strategies other than where to advertise remain basically the same, Schweitzer said. You sell a lifestyle and community assets along with a house.

"In Warren, you might say you're close to the tech center as opposed to Birmingham, where you're close to shopping," Ewert said.

Smaller satellite dishes could be banned, too

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q. With the advent of the new small size in satellite dishes, does our community association still have the right to ban satellite dishes, which are specifically prohibited in the documents.

A. More than likely it does. Generally, the prohibitions on satellite antennas does not address the issue of size but merely the "evil" of satellite antennas.

Before an association can move forward in the age of technology, it must amend its documents to provide that the smaller and certainly less objectionable satellite antennas are permitted. Failure to address the issue of the size of the satellite antenna leaves the homeowners association with no alternative but to enforce the satellite antenna provisions based upon certain cases reported at the most recent Community Associations Institute Law Seminar, which this author attended in San Diego, Calif.

Courts have reasoned that the fact that an exterior satellite dish is hidden does not "remove the fact that a violation exists, however concealed, and that in a private agreement, as distinguished from a criminal situation, the court may not impose its view on what may be reasonable, contrary to the agreement of the parties, or contrary to exercise of good faith by the association."

Q. I have a medium-sized business with approximately 55 employees on a regular or part-time basis. We are involved in the home construction business.

Does the Family Leave Act apply to us?

A. Yes. The act applies to employers with 50 or more employees, including part-time employees and temporaries. The act provides that employees must have worked for the employer for at least a year and for at least 1,250 hours during the year. They must also be at a work site where the employer employs at least 50 people within a 75-mile radius.

The leave can be taken because of the employee's own illness, if it makes them unable to work, the illness of a child, spouse or parent, if the employee is needed to provide them with care of psychological support, the birth or adoption of a child or a faster care placement and up to 12 weeks a year can be taken in leave.

The employees can sue in state for federal court and can sue for interference with their rights under the act such as wrongfully denying leave or discouraging them from taking leave. They can also sue if they are fired or denied a promotion or bonus because of absences covered by the act.

Employees can also file a complaint with the Labor Department, which will investigate the case and attempt to resolve it, possibly by filing suit on the employee's behalf. If the Labor Department files suit, the employee's right to sue is terminated. Employees can recover lost wages and benefits for actual monetary losses (such as the cost of providing care) up to the equivalent of 12 weeks wages. They also can recover double damages (unless the employer acted in good faith and had reasonable grounds for believing it was not committing a violation) and attorney fees.

MORTGAGE SHOPPING

DAVID C. MULLY

The mortgage timeline:

In this segment of my column, I look back and compare mortgage interest rates and mortgage trends over the last 25 years. Do you know in what year since 1984 the one-year adjustable rate hand the highest first year start rate: 1984, 1987 or 1989? What do you think the rate was: 8.75 percent, 10.25 percent or 12.25 percent? In keeping with our election year rate quiz, which election year since 1972 has had the highest increase in mortgage interest rates the following year: the 1976, 1980 or 1984 election. Answers in next week's column.)

To buy an existing home:

Many lenders require the amount of homeowners insurance coverage to be at least equal to the amount of your mortgage, which is not necessarily the same as the estimated replacement cost for your dwelling. Which is the correct amount of insurance? In find the answer, I talked to Mark Diederich, an agent for Nationwide Insurance in Novi. He said the correct amount of coverage "should be at least the amount of replacement cost." He went on to say, "Even though lenders tell you they want coverage of at least the amount of the mortgage, a recent law signed by the governor prohibits lenders from requiring the amount of a homeowners policy for more than the replacement cost of the mortgaged building. This has come into play much more often in recent years, with more and more homebuyers making a down-payment of just 5 percent or 10 percent. This makes insurance coverage for the mortgage amount higher than what is really required, causing needless higher annual premiums.

Diederich also points out that "Since this law was just singed in November 1995, some people may not even be aware that their current policy's coverage amount is perhaps more than they really need." If you have any questions about homeowners insurance, you can call Diederich at his Nationwide insurance office at 1-810-=347-3630.

To buy a new house:

For buyers in this category, making the decision on whether to obtain a long-term rate lock commitment from a lender can be very difficult. what makes this decision especially difficult is that homebuyers must make a guess as to what interest rates are going to do in the next three to nine months, or whenever their construction will be complete. The decision is both important and hard to make because lenders normally require an extra upfront fee to lock in an interest rate for a time period longer than the traditional 45- or 60-day free lock-in period. The rate lock fee can be as much as 1.5 percent of the loan amount.

Using a $200,000 mortgage as an example, the fee would be $3,000. So, in making this decision, you have to weigh the upfront cost against the possibility that rates will increase by the time your home is completed. In an election year, it can even be harder to predict. Depending on what your crystal ball says, you make the call. Personally, I like to point out to my clients that they can always float the rate and simply watch for warning signs (while their house is being built) that something significant is happening with rates. Then, if they desire, they can lock in the rate at that time or possibly avoid the extra lock-in cost altogether. This can save an extra cost that may be unnecessary.

To refinance your current home:

If you believe that rates are going up in the next year, refinance now if you have an adjustable rate mortgage (ARM) and go to a fixed rate. If you believe rates are staying the same or coming down next year, refinance to a zero-cost one-year ARM with no prepayment penalty. This is especially a good move if you are on an ARM that is about to adjust upward. You may believe rates will be stable or dropping and join the growing ranks who refinance each year to another one-year, zero-point and zero-closing-cost ARM (with no prepayment penalty). Call me for a free analysis of your mortgage situation at 1-8900-405-3051.

Mortgage Timeline Answers from last week:

In October 1993, the 30-year fixed rate was at a 25-year low; it bottomed out at 6.83 percent. Before this time, the previous 24-year low was in April 1972 with a 30-year fixed rate of 7.29 percent. Compare this to today's rate of 8/0 percent and you can see that we are still very close to some of the all-time 25-year lows.

After both presidential elections in 1988 and 1992, interest rates went down. In November 1988, the 30-year fixed rate was at 10.27 percent, falling slightly to the high 9 percent range by mid-1989. In November 1992, the 30-year fixed rate was at 8.31 percent, falling all the way to the 25-year low of 6.83 percent in October 1993.

A side note to my column of two weeks ago: I stated then that the highest 30-year fixed rate in the last 25 years had reached 18.45 percent in October 1981, making the payment on a $100,000 mortgage $1,543.85. I thought it would be interesting to point out that the annual income needed to qualify for that mortgage in 1981 would have been approximately $66,000. Comparing this to today's 8 percent rate and payment of $733.76, the income needed to qualify would be just about half at $34,000. Compounding this is the fact that it was much more difficult for people to earn $6,000 in 1981.

Use fall maintenance checklist

The cool breezes of autumn may bring relief from the summer heat, but for home owners they also bring a reminder that it's time to start fixing, cleaning, and preparing for winter weather.

If certain tasks are left undone, say the home inspectors from the American Society of Home Inspectors (ASHI), then a home becomes increasingly vulnerable to air, moisture, and water penetration, which may eventually cause structural problems. Whether done by the home owner or a professional service contractor, preventive maintenance will help prolong the efficiency and lifespan of a home's many components.

In addition to any obvious repairs that might be necessary, ASHI recommends that home owners safely tend to the following each Fall in order to prevent minor problems from turning into major expenses:

1. Inspect the roof, using binoculars, for damaged, loose, or missing shingles. Repair as needed.
2. Check the flashing around roof stacks, vents, skylights, and chimneys as possible sources of leakage. Repair as needed.
3. Look for leaking, misaligned, or damaged gutters, downspouts, hangers, gutter guards, and strainers. Clean the gutters after all the leaves have fallen.
4. Check and upgrade attic insulation and ventilation so that improper conditions will not lead to ice dams in the winter, which can cause leaks and interior damage to the home.
5. Cut back tree limbs growing on or over the roof, as well as shrubbery growing against the house, to prevent damage to the home's exterior.
6. Check all doors and windows for proper caulking and weather-stripping. Remove any worn or decayed materials and apply new material as needed.
7. Drain exterior water lines, hose bibbs, sprinklers, and pool equipment. (Do not leave hose connected to bibb.)
8. Have the heating system serviced annually (Fall is the best time).

For a free brochure on seasonal home maintenance routines, send a self-addressed, stamped business-size envelope to: "Maintaining Your Home", ASHI, 85 West Algonquin Road, Suite 360, Arlington Heights, IL 60005-4423.

How to prevent winter ice dams

Last year, homeowners from the Great Lakes to New England and throughout the Mid-Atlantic States experienced leaks caused by the heavy snowfall and ice build-up making the winter prosperous perhaps only for contractors. The aftermath of the Winter of '96 has everyone wondering what the Winter of '97 will bring weatherwise.

If you experienced a problem last year with build-ups of ice and the formation of icicles on the base of your roof, otherwise known as ice dams, there are several areas you can check to protect your dwelling this year.

First, what are ice dams? Ice dams are formed when heat from the inside of a home escapes into the attic and through the roof decking. Snow then melts on the upper roof and runs down toward the eaves as water. When it reaches the cold eaves and gutters, however, it refreezes and ice builds up. The result is water backing up under the roof shingles where it can soak through the roof decking and into the attic causing damage to ceilings and walls.

Check your attic

First, check the insulation in your attic and, secondly, check your ventilation.

Why? Because a well-insulated attic – to today's energy standards – minimizes heat escaping through the ceiling – greatly reducing the possibility of snow melting and refreezing at the base of your roof. And then, since it is impossible to keep all heat from escaping into your attic, the heat lost can be drawn up and out of the home if you have adequate ventilation. This prevents the underside of the roof deck from becoming heated, causing snow to melt and refreeze causing ice dams.

The CertainTeed Home Institute suggests having a professional insulation contractor look at your home this fall. To find a contractor, ask friends and neighbors, look in the Yellow Pages or call the local contractors association. A contractor will determine how much insulation you currently have in your home and what you may need to bring it up to today's energy standards. Look for quality insulation materials like Insul Safe III® Blown-In Fiber Glass Insulation, which is thermally-efficient, noncombustible and noncorrosive for the life of a home. In addition, it won't settle with age. A contractor can also determine if you have enough ventilation and make sure everything is working properly.

Further protection

If you plan to build a house or re-roof an existing home, there is another protective step you can take in addition to proper insulation and ventilation. Ask your builder to use waterproofing shingle underlayment before the roof shingles are installed. One type of underlayment, WinterGuard™, completely resists roof water leakage. It is a last line of defense against leaks, preventing backed-up water from getting into your home.

If you'd like more information, write for the free "What You Should Know About Ice Dams and Your Home" pamphlet from the CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482, or call 800 782 8777.

Yesterday's elegance

The gingerbread trim, that gave a look of elegance and beauty to many turn-of-the-century homes and buildings, is now staging a nationwide comeback.

Victorian style trim, for both exterior and interior use, is once again adorning porches, outlining roofs, accenting hallways and supporting mantels. Lacy fretwork and intricate carvings, based upon 19th century designs, are even being used as wall or panel or cabinet door decoration.

Products readily available include doors, mantels, gable treatments, corbels, brackets, spandrel and balustrades and rails, gazebos, along with highly decorative moldings.

Bars, back bars and Brunswick style bar treatments enhance recreation rooms in homes and bar areas in restaurants.

A complete source for authentic Victorian Millwork, including custom designing, is Cumberland Woodcraft Company, Inc., Post Office Drawer 609, Carlisle, PA 17013. A full color catalog, with over 175 color pictures and design ideas, along with a price list, is available for $5.
