CANTON CONNECTION

Think spring

This week's mid-winter warm-up did the trick. It's not too early for our Connection correspondents to begin thinking spring.

With that in mind, we pass along a few "timely" reminders:

■ Mark your calendars for the annual Canton Liberty Fest, set this year for June 19-22. This year's event, hosted by Canton Township, will feature a Saturday-night fireworks show, "Taste of Canton" extravaganza and entertainment for the entire family.

In addition, the Canton Chamber of Commerce will serve as co-hosts of a Friday-night road rally. Rally participants will receive clues leading to eight local businesses and community "hot spots." The chamber is seeking volunteers to help staff this event and others who would like to participate in festival activities. For information, call executive director Carleigh Flaherty, 453-4040, before March 15.

■ American Power Wash, 41949 Joy Road, in Canton, hopes to hold fund-raising car washes every Saturday or every other Saturday during June, July and August.

Car wash owners are looking for charitable organizations and school groups that would like to host the events. For information, call Julie, 451-7676, by May 15.

Help with taxes

State Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, is making the 1996 Michigan Taxpayer's Guide available to 20th District residents.

The 50-page booklet offers the latest information on tax laws in an easy-to-understand format. Tax forms also are included.

"This should help ease the burden of filing taxes, an unenviable chore we all face," Law said. "This guide is a great resource."

The booklets are available at local libraries and by calling Law's office at (517) 373-3816.

Townships banding together

Canton is one of about two dozen large townships in metro Detroit looking at forming a new group to lobby for their concerns. The group would break off from the current Michigan Townships Association.

BY VALERIE OLANDER
STAFF WRITER

Canton will be hosting a "Forum for Large Townships" on Wednesday, expected to draw approximately 100 municipal representatives from more than 20 different townships across the state.

By the time the event is over the attendees may have formed their own lobbying group to deal with issues unique to large townships, such as road financing and sidewalk liability.

Officials from the growing townships in southeastern Michigan have compared themselves with small cities. More and more townships are confronting city-like issues, such as union negotiations, the need for more public services and unfunded mandates from the Legislature that are taxing their limited resources, officials say.

The 1,242 townships in the state are represented by the Michigan Townships Association. However, the group is unable to provide large townships with legal help or information on negotiating union contracts, said West Bloomfield Supervisor Jeddy Hood, who will be attending the forum.

"It's pretty clear that the majority of townships (the Michigan Township Association) represents are smaller. They're viewed as the voice for smaller townships... It would not be a breaking away of MTA, but something different and distinct," said Hood.

Redford Township Supervisor Kevin Kelley said, "Municipal services is one of those issues that differentiates us from townships up north... Our biggest problem being roads."

Townships, unlike cities, are dependent on county road departments for maintenance. State gas tax money goes directly to county, which prioritizes which roads need repair first.

Tradeport bill back on agenda

STAFF WRITER

Legislation brought to the House floor by state Rep. Deborah Whyman, R-Canton, has a Republican ally at home a bit nervous.

Whyman reintroduced a bill that will give her constituents a say on whether Willow Run will become an international tradeport or not. The bill was originally introduced last year, but wasn't acted upon prior to the close of the legislative session.

As the law stands right now, a community can ask for a referendum to be put on ballot, but it's not binding. This legislation reintroduced by Whyman would make it a binding referendum, she said.

However, Wayne County Commissioner Bruce Patterson said when he first heard about the bill from a Whyman aide, he asked, "What Democrat did that?"

"When the aide told me it was a Republican I said, 'We no longer control the House, why would a Republican do that?' I guess you could say I'm a bit concerned," said Patterson.

In November, Republican lawmakers lost seats to Democrats, who now occupy a majority of the House.

Investigators remain baffled by fatal crash

BY VALERIE OLANDER

More questions than answers surround a fatal accident on Haggerty Road, just north of Michigan Avenue in which 40-year-old motorist Diane Wenz of Canton was found dead at a construction site about 6:45 a.m. Feb. 13.

Charges have not been filed against anyone, although police are investigating why a Westland woman did not report the accident which apparently occurred sometime before 1:45 a.m.

"A person is required by law to report an accident. We found out about this one by calling the woman at home from information we obtained from the car's registration," said Officer Lou Stevens.

Leaving the scene of a personal injury accident is a one-year felony. Negligent homicide is a two-year misdemeanor.

Police were called to a gas station at Michigan and Lotz at 1:45 a.m. on a report of the damaged S-10 Chevrolet pick-up truck being abandoned in the parking lot.

When contacted by police via telephone the woman reported leaving her pick-up at the location after being involved in a hit and run accident at Michigan and Haggerty. The other motorist left the scene, she told police. Officers looked in the vicinity of the accident, but found nothing suspicious at the time.

It wasn't until 6:45 a.m. that construction workers found Wenz and the white Dodge Spirit she was driving in an excavation pit on Haggerty, north of Michigan Avenue, police said.

"It looks like one was going eastbound on Michigan and the other southbound on Haggerty. One of the cars spun around and hit a crane (at the construction site) and then went into the pit which apparently led the woman to believe that (the victim)

Construction boom is sign of rolling economy

Tracy Scott of Canton Township likes what he sees on the construction horizon. The 28-year-old is about halfway through his training as a plumbing apprentice.

"I'm very optimistic," Scott said. "It looks quite bright with everything going up. We do pretty well on schools, hospitals, commercial, industrial. Home Depot is what I'm doing now.

"I've always had a big desire to work with my hands, work outside, build things," he said.

Work down the road – stadiums, casinos, airport renovations – also will provide jobs, jobs, jobs, Scott said. "It should keep us busy for quite a few years."

Not that his nose isn't pressed firmly to the grindstone now.

"I was laid off once, but went back the next day," Scott said.

Tom Adamusik, Canton resident and owner of Royal Construction, remembers when jobs weren't as plentiful as they are today.

"In 1981, '82 and '83, the skilled trades were really having a hard time," said the trained iron worker. "I wasn't working and a neighbor had asked me if I would do his roof. I ended up doing 30 roofs in a three-month span."

Up on the roof

Roofing soon led to a whole world of home improvement possibilities.

"I had no idea that I would own a home remodeling business when I was learning iron working (26 years ago)," Adamusik said.

Fortunately, that training enabled him to watch and experiment with other skilled trades. Today, he and his crew do a variety of journeymen work including electrical, roofing, drywall, painting, plumbing, heating and cooling.

"I love waking up every morning," he said. "I have a new thing every day. It's never stagnant."

Adamusik, 47, knew his future rested in skilled trades as a teen.

"I didn't want to go to college," he said. "I thought working with my hands and with my brain would be more gratifying."

So far, he hasn't been disappointed. He feels such a sense of pride after completing an assignment, he often wants to share it.

"My wife is sick of driving with me," he said, jokingly. "When we drive past a place I worked on, I say 'I did that.'"

Last year's jobs were too numerous to count for Adamusik, but he expects to do just as well, if not better, this year.

"With the more homes that they build, sooner or later, I'm going to be there," he said.

Construction, indeed, seems to be Craft mall to open on site of former racquetball club

NEW BUSINESS

A Canton Township woman is taking a swing at business in the old Rose Shores Canton Racquet Ball club.

Carol Wren, 48, plans to open Carousel Crafts & Antiques at 41677 Ford Road in early March. It has been a dream of hers for several years.

"I worked at establishing a craft mall before, and this just grew from that," she said.

She retired from retailing about six or seven years ago, after 25 years in the business, "and when this opportunity came around, it intrigued me," she said.

With the help of manager Barbara Kosciolek, the pair have spent the last several months working with contractors, squaring things away with Canton officials and recruiting vendors.

"We are continually searching for vendors with unique, exciting, quality crafts," said Wren, who aims to make her craft store different from the rest.

"We are not going to be just country crafts," she said. "We're going to have some contemporary, some Southwestern ... We're going to provide different periods and tastes."

Yet, people looking for country crafts will find that too.

There is enough room for 700 vendors in the two-story building, complete with a lounge area, elevator, a charity booth and space for special events.

"We don't want to be just another store for people to come into. We want it to be an event they come to," said Wren.

Special events might include craft classes or auctions. The two will always be open to ideas.

"Eventually, we also want to create an artist's corner" where paintings and other works will be featured.

The pair have decorated the building, both inside and out, "to try and create an ambiance."

That ambiance calls for a variety of crafters who will cater to customers from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Saturday and noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Crafters, many of whom were recruited by Wren and Kosciolek, will offer: clay figures, baskets, knitted items, ceramics, woodworking, floral arrangements, candles and scents, dolls, clocks, seasonal items and Victorian reproductions just to name a few.

Sherry Durbal will cater to those with Victorian tastes. She, together with daughter Christine, established Victorian Creations four years ago. They will show their wares in a 4-feet by 8-feet space once the store opens.

The pair have come a long way from making their first replica Victorian hat. They have evolved to include dresses, parasols, fans, wall hangings, hat pins, hat stands and more ranging in price from $35 to $250.

"We knew it would be a seller," said Sherry Durbal, who boasted of a client list including people from out of state. It was her popularity in fact which lead her to a new home at Carousel Crafts & Antiques.

"They (Wren and Kosciolek) sent me a letter," she said. "They had seen me at shows."

The mother-daughter team has leased space at craft stores in the past. They are especially excited about the Canton location.

Sherry Durbal feels "its proximity to shopping areas" will make Carousel Crafts & Antiques a prime location for her daughter and herself. She is also excited that "there is not another craft and antique store in the area."

"The location is great," Wren agreed. She explained that although she has lived in Canton for three years, it took more than residency for her to open her business there.

"Research for the business led us to Canton."

With the "Super Kmart right across the street," Wren is hopeful Carousel Crafts & Antiques will become another place people routinely frequent.

"We will be a one-stop shopping place for gifts and decorating," she said. They will also sell gift wrap, boxes and cards so that people looking for that quick gift can come in, make their selection, wrap it up and head out for any gathering.

"We will have gifts that will be a pleasure to give," she said, adding "some crafters will offer personalized gifts." Special orders will also be accepted.

Space is still available for interested crafters. Prices and booth sizes vary from the smallest, 1-foot, flat wall space for $20 to a 7-feet by 7-feet space at $245 per month in a six-month lease.

"We can make arrangements for almost anyone," said Kosciolek about the booth sizes. "They just need to call." The number is 981-3080.

left the scene of an accident," said Sgt. Ed Tanner.

Police were still investigating whether the headlights of the Spirit were visible as it lay in the construction pit, Tanner said. They also are attempting to determine whether the woman died from the first impact with the Chevy S-10, the second impact at the excavation pit or sometime thereafter.

Wayne County Chief Medical Examiner Tom Alston said Wenz died of "multiple injuries." The time of death listed on the death certificate is 9:05 a.m. — the time police reported the death to the medical examiner's office, he said.

"Nothing we would do would show the time of death. That would be up to police investigating the accident. They would be able to tell if rigormortis set in when she was found," said Alston.

Serology reports will take four to six weeks for the Michigan State Police to determine the blood alcohol level of Wenz at the time of the accident. A blood alcohol level was never obtained from the other driver since she was contacted by telephone the night of the accident.

Literacy group offers training for tutors

The Community Literacy Council, Inc. will be conducting tutor training seminars for its reading program. To participate in the seminars, a potential tutor should call the Council office at 313-416-4906.

The reading tutor seminar will include two 4 hour sessions. Part A will be the initial introduction to the program. It includes information on how the Council operates, where students are from and how they are assigned tutors, sensitivity training, cultural differences and similarities, confidentiality issues, administrative requirements of the tutor, and using the Laubach Way of Learning and Laubach Way to English teaching techniques. Part B includes discussions on teaching spelling, training in the Challenger series and alternate education tools, and teaching video of English as a second language. To be a reading tutor a person is required to complete both sessions.

Gas station site clean-up progressing at slow pace

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

How far along is cleanup of leakage from underground storage tanks at the former Amoco gas station in downtown Plymouth?

Answers differ depending upon whom you ask, and when.

Kent Barry, spokesman for Amoco's Great Lakes region, said December test results were generally favorable, placing the property well within state standards, clearing the way for redevelopment.

"Clean up has gone extremely well. The site has tested below the state requirement for the substances that put the site on the state's list of problem sites to begin with," said Barry in an interview Thursday. Barry added that "we expect to apply for and get closure by the end of the year, or early next year at the latest."

Later in the day, however, Barry said that after investigating further, he learned that "it could be three to five years before we get to the point where we are going to apply for closure with the state."

A 1995 repeal of Michigan's leaking underground storage tank law clears the way for redevelopment, even before the site is cleaned up. Under the amendment, the original owner, not the purchaser, pays for remediation.

According to Valerie Burgess-Byrd, district supervisor for the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality, the site is still classified as "Class One. A Class One site is one in which there is free product, or a level of risk requiring immediate action, versus a Class Four, which means the there is no demonstrable long-term impact," she said.

"There is still free product under the Box Bar, however the current remediation system cannot recover it. It would appear a more aggressive system may be needed to address the free product under the Box Bar, or that was under the Box Bar. There's been no demonstration that it has been abated," Burgess-Byrd said. "Remediation of that product is going to be a potentially costly effort."

Steve Guile, director of Plymouth's Downtown Development Authority, met with Amoco officials recently. "They indicated to us the property itself will soon become developable," he said.

"Amoco will continue to pump clean aquifer until it's deemed remediated by the DEQ, but that doesn't necessarily mean that particular piece can't be developed," said Guile. "What we're doing now is getting appraisal of the property. Once we see what the value is, we'll have another meeting with Amoco to figure out what can be done in terms of acquisition of the property, possibly by the DDA."

Annette Horn, chairperson of the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce Retail Committee, said she was informed after the city's meeting with Amoco that "progress is going forward, and that it will be cleaned up ahead of schedule."

Business people are anxious to see the property utilized.

"Downtown Plymouth is in dire need of restrooms," she said. "All the other downtowns have a centrally-located resting spot where you can get a drink of water or rest if you need to. Retail would be terrific in that location as well, or maybe even a restaurant."

Because of the contamination, "there could be restrictions on the type of use," said Burgess-Byrd. "More than likely, property that would require a basement would probably not be feasible. That is one of the problems with the Box Bar. They want to put a basement in, and there are hold-ups with that. It's likely restrictions would be placed on the site, unless the property was abated to a level of risk we consider not to be a residential risk. There could be restrictions for only commercial use, or areas that would have to have pavement maintained."

Chip Falcusan, owner of the Box Bar, said he's had no communication with Amoco. "When they monitor, they don't inform us. I would be interested in seeing how far along in the process they are. They haven't told me anything," he said.

No pollutants are noticeable in the building, nor are any fumes, Falcusan said.

Barry said he also is unaware of any problems at the Box. "Nothing from my information would preclude any development at that site. We are very confident, as is the state, that there would be no threat to occupants of the site or any other site at this level and at this point in time."

Falcusan, who is planning to build a microbrewery at his Ann Arbor Trail location, said he can do so without an addition.

He questions how saleable the Amoco property is. "All the cleanup equipment and the pipes running underneath still have to be in place. So I would imagine it would be difficult to sell or lease. What happens if for some particular reason, they have to get back into that area to do some work underneath the property? They would have to tear the building down and dig. I remember what it was like just getting the tanks out of the ground."

"DEQ representatives are available to meet with officials from Amoco and the city," said Burgess-Byrd. "The corner is still an active leaking underground storage tank site. We would be willing to have the DDA, Amoco and everyone sit down and talk with us. That way we could review the entire file," she said.

Amoco began removing carcinogenic fuel oil and petroleum from the groundwater and soil at Main Street and Ann Arbor Trail after it was mandated to do so in a 1991 court order.

Contamination seeped to an area south of the Mayflower Meeting House; west of Main Street and east of the Box Bar.

Growth Works cites volunteers

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Dedicated volunteers and staffers were lauded at the Thursday, Feb. 6, recognition award dinner of Growth Works.

The youth services agency honored a number of people at the ninth annual event, at Ernesto's in Plymouth. "It's nice to know there are still people who have a dream," said Donald Morgan, board president, in honoring Dale Yagiela for his 25 years of leadership.

Yagiela, who serves as executive director of Growth Works, said "I love doing this job," adding that his family is the only other thing of equal importance.

"Hopefully, this will all continue on in the future," Yagiela said.

Other honorees included:

•Hewlett-Packard Corp., which has supported Growth Works through donations of new computer and office equipment. The award was accepted by Karen McDonald, who chairs the Hewlett-Packard Area Citizenship Committee in Novi. It was presented by Carol Davis, board member, who noted the donation has allowed the agency to publish a newsletter, among other activities.

•Volunteer mentor Susan Sage received an award from Susan Davis, the agency's director of community services. "I just really appreciate the volunteers we have," said Davis.

•Kathy Tarnowski received an award from board vice president Rita Lowenstein. "Kathy's been a good listener," Lowenstein said. Tarnowski opened her home to a youth in recovery. Lowenstein also lauded volunteer Tim Devlin, who was unable to attend.

•Wayne County staffer Dale Jurcisin was given an award by Yagiela. The former assistant county executive has been willing to champion youth issues, Yagiela said, and has the ability to look for common interests among diverse groups.

"This is a good time to give him some inspiration, I think," Yagiela said, noting Jurcisin lost Livonia's mayoral race and had his father die in the past year. Jurcisin is now director of information processing for Wayne County.

The agency provides such services as employment assistance and substance abuse treatment for young people in the Plymouth-Canton community and beyond. Yagiela, in reviewing the past year, told those at the dinner the agency assisted more than 1,400 people during the year.

Of those, 400 were from Plymouth or Plymouth Township, 500 from Canton and the remainder from western Wayne and eastern Washtenaw communities. The agency budget is over $600,000.

"This was a big year for us," Yagiela said. The board established a retirement program for Growth Works employees.

"In terms of programs, last year was a very successful year." Community employment and chemical dependency programs served many; the latter had over 125 people in intensive outpatient treatment, Yagiela said, with a success rate of 70 percent representing those who remained sober.

"My hats are off to you who have worked so diligently."

Remembering crash victims

In memory: Handbells and handchimes purchased in memory of Donna and Kim Rennolds were dedicated last month at Geneva Presbyterian Church. Donna Rennolds, who lived in Plymouth Township, was instrumental in establishing the musical program at the Canton church. She taught at Schoolcraft College. Daughter Kim was an Eastern Michigan University student. The two women died in a Florida plane crash last May. Adult and youth choirs performed using the instruments at both services.

"All of a sudden we're going to be dealing with this again. I thought it was contained. Once this is released in the hopper, anyone can get a hold of it and change it," Patterson added.

Whyman's bill is in response to a 1994 law allowing creation of economic development zones surrounding certain airports. In 1995 the state appropriated $250,000 for the Willow Run project to complement $4 million in federal funds and $250,000 from local governments.

Upon approval of a development plan by an enterprise zone authority, Whyman's House Bill 4338 would allow residents of adjacent communities 45 days to gather the necessary number of signatures for a binding referendum on the issue. At least 25 percent of the signatures must be from the project county and the petition must be filed with the county's clerk.

Whyman said Patterson doesn't understand the workings of state government.

"It's a single section bill. You can't change the purpose of a single section bill. I can't see any harm the Democrats can do," she said.

Besides, the bill, upon approval, would go to a Republican-controlled Senate, and finally a Republican Governor before becoming law, she said.

The bill is an amendment to the international tradeport development authority act. Whyman said she voted in favor of the 1994 tradeport legislation to support several blighted communities to the north that wanted the tradeport designation. She said she never thought Willow Run would be a viable alternative.

Whyman said she backs her original vote because there are communities who eagerly want the tradeport. However, she said it's unfair to undertake such a large government project without allowing people recourse if they disapprove of the measure, such as in the case of Willow Run.

"The issue isn't going to go away at Willow Run we will continue to have traffic and noise from it... we have to be diligent in our efforts," she said.

Whyman attempted to strike a $200,000 appropriation last year for runway improvements at Willow Run, although it was defeated in the end. She will continue to watch budget appropriations that will add to the noise and traffic at Willow Run, she said.

Canton Supervisor Tom Yack has been a longtime critic of the Wayne County Road Department. He claims townships don't get their fair share of the road money. Yack was out of town and unavailable for comment this week.

Meanwhile, state Sen. Loren Bennett (R-Canton) has sponsored an amendment to the proposed gas tax increase that would give all increases in the gas tax directly to townships.

"I think its good for them to come together and see a consensus on issues that affect them. (We don't feel slighted) just because we weren't particularly invited," said MTA executive director John La Rose.

The MTA attempts to address issues of large townships through its Urban Township committee, he said. The committee meets to address legislation and education programs.

"Sure I thinks size dictates certain kinds of problems. We don't get involved with some, such as labor mediation," La Rose said.

Plymouth Clerk Marilyn Massengill said one of the issues she wants to see addressed at Canton's forum is that of governmental structure. More power has been put under the direction of supervisors as township's grow in size — a similar structure to that of a Mayor in a city.

In Plymouth, the accounting department was put under the supervisor's direction several years ago. Those duties at one time belonged to the clerk and treasurer, she said.

Townships with a population of 20,000 or more were invited to the forum, said Canton's Budget and Finance Director Tony Minghine. Attendees will be divided in four groups to address topics: Roads and Development, Finance, Public Safety and General Government Operations.

"Reason we're meeting... There's a feeling we're not represented by the Michigan Municipal League (a group for cities) and the Michigan Township Association primarily is for small townships and their issues, although we had no intention to exclude them for this," said Minghine.

busting out all over or germinating on drawing boards.

A Super Kmart is planned for the northwest corner of Ford and Haggerty. Site plans call for a 225,000-square-foot building with land valued at $14.5 million.

Auto Nation, a late model used car dealership, will be built on a 20-acre site on Ford Road just east of I-275. Estimated value of the project is $6.5 million.

A Centre Village shopping center is planned with Kroger proposed as the anchor store on the southwest corner of Canton Center and Ford roads. Three proposed commercial buildings will house 188,000 square feet. The project is estimated at $11 million.

Plymouth-Canton school voters will decide a $79.7 million bond issue next month that includes new buildings and renovations.

Other projects

Then there are new stadiums for the Tigers and Lions downtown, up to three glitzy gambling casinos for Detroit plus expansion and renovation of Detroit Wayne County Metropolitan Airport.

Metro's expansion alone is expected to generate 20,000 construction jobs, according to Tim Johnson, director of marketing and communications for jobs and economic development in Wayne County.

"It will be a bonanza for the skilled trades," Johnson said.

Barton-Marlow, Perini and Walbridge Aldinger are a few of the area contracting firms that have been awarded contracts for work at the airport, Johnson said.

"For the next two years, market activity will be very busy," said Michael Haller, president of the Associated General Contractors of America, Detroit Chapter and executive vice president of Walbridge Aldinger.

"It's really in all market sectors. Health care is busy, automotive is busy, retail, even commercial is starting to pick up," Haller said.

He attributed the growth to efforts of governmental leaders like Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara and Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer, along with Big Three auto executives.

The Ilitch and William C. Ford families, owners of professional sports teams, also have played major roles.

"It's all coming together," Haller said. "Now it's in our hands to make it all happen."

"My clients are still bidding jobs and probably have bigger backlogs than they've had in 20 years," said Russell F. Agosta, chairman of the construction group for Grant Thornton LLP and chairman of the Construction Association of Michigan.

Building activity in the private sector adds to local property tax bases. Public construction projects often enhance quality of life. Both can spawn spin-off projects and help existing businesses.

"It starts by providing (construction) jobs," Agosta said.

"When finished, all those buildings will have people working inside. A good portion come from nearby. Even those who aren't spend money. They buy gas, shop on the way home, go to restaurants.

"Availability of new and better facilities to shop means a better environment. It makes your community a better place to live," Agosta said.

"There's a trickle-down effect," Haller said. "If there's a lot of construction going on, crafts people are earning money. He might say, 'I'm going to get that snowmobile I've always wanted.'

"In addition, a lot of people like new facilities," Haller said. "With stadiums and upgrades at the airport, it may be pardon our dust now, but once completed, they're something people can enjoy and be proud of."

BUILDING BOOM

Area commercial value keeps growing

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK
STAFF WRITER

Westland and other communities throughout western Wayne County have noticed more commercial construction, which most of the time results in growth in the overall property values of the communities.

That, in turn, leads to more tax revenue.

Last year's new developments in Westland included the 33,000-square-foot William Faust Library on Central City Parkway, a 25,000-square-foot addition at Kohl's at Westland Shopping Center and a 59,563-square-foot Circuit City retail store at Central City Parkway and Warren Avenue.

This year's planned developments are the $21 million Sears Store & Auto Center, at Wayne and Warren roads; a Kroger at the northeast corner of Michigan and Merriman; and a retail center at One Michigan Place at Michigan and Merriman.

Projects are popping up all over western Wayne County.

Livonia

Assessed values of real (land and building) commercial property in Livonia increased slightly from approximately $432.3 million in 1995 to $437 million in 1996. Personal property (equipment, furniture, computers and fixtures) increased from $195 million to $209.7 million.

Here's a summary of some of the major construction around Livonia:

■ General Medical Corp., a medical supplier, will be the tenant of the former Hygrade plant, 38150 Plymouth. It is zoned for an industrial warehouse/office building, housing 140,678 square feet. The estimated value is $3.4 million.

■ Phase I of the Four Oaks Shopping Center is substantially completed to house 27,187 square feet at 8811 Newburgh near Joy Road. The value is estimated at nearly $1.3 million.

■ A multiple-tenant office, 17270 Farmington (northeast of 6 Mile), will house office space covering 12,858-square feet. The value is estimated at $564,000.

Canton

In Canton Township, assessed values on real commercial property increased slightly from approximately $163.7 million in 1995 to $171 million in 1996. Personal property increased from $40 million to $45.3 million.

Some of that growth will include:

■ A SuperKmart is planned for the northwest corner of Ford and Haggerty. Site plans call for a 225,000-square-foot building with land valued at $14.5 million.

■ Auto Nation, a late model used car dealership, will be built on a 20-acre site housing a 76,000-square-foot facility on Ford Road, just east of I-275, across the street from the Home Depot and near the Westland border. Estimated property value is $6.5 million.

■ A Centre Village shopping center is planned with Kroger proposed as the anchor store on the southwest corner of Canton Center and Ford Road. Three proposed commercial buildings will house 188,000 square feet. The property is estimated at $11 million.

Voters in the Plymouth-Canton school district will decide on March 22 whether to approve $79.7 million in bonds to build a new high school and elementary school, purchase school buses and new technology, and remodel school facilities.

Plymouth

Assessed values of real commercial property in the city of Plymouth increased slightly from approximately $52 million in 1995 to $54.2 million in 1996 and in Plymouth Township from $60.8 million to $63.1 million. Personal commercial property increased from $108 million to $134 million in Plymouth Township.

Projects include:

■ The Mayflower Hotel's owners have announced plans to begin work on a $2 million renovation.

■ The city's old library and houses near that site were demolished for contractors to build a new $5 million library right next door to City Hall on Main Street.

■ The Box Bar on Main Street will expand and include plans for a microbrewery.

Garden City

In Garden City, assessed values of real commercial property increased slightly from approximately $45.3 million in 1995 to about $45.5 million in 1996. Personal property rose from $10 million to $11 million.

Site plans have been approved for a new Arbor Drugs on Ford Road and Brandt.

City officials were not aware of any more major commercial construction in Garden City, but they expect several other projects will be proposed this year for the Downtown Development Authority in the Ford Road and Middlebelt area.

Not all communities experienced growth and hence, tax growth, in commercial last year, but with several projects completed that year and more on the way, that should change.

Redford

In Redford, assessed values in real commercial property declined slightly from approximately $77.8 million in 1995 to more than $77.2 million in 1996.

Redevelopment appears to be the name of the game in older communities, such as Redford Township. With most of the open land gone for new businesses, old sites used to house new looks is the game plan.

Redford will see many new renovations and changes in its business climate:

■ A new 10,000-square-foot building on Five Mile and Telegraph will house Rite-Aid Pharmacies. General contractor Albert Ludwig is also the same contractor who developed the Heritage Plaza on Telegraph next to Campbell Dodge.

■ Buildings that once housed Warehouse Club and Standard Tube near Plymouth and Telegraph will house a 175,000-square-foot building and a 25,000- to 30,000-square-foot building on 15 acres. Rite-On Industries, a manufacturer of robotic equipment currently on Beech Daly, will move its operations to the old Warehouse site.

■ Mr. Alan's Shoes will move its headquarters and retail store to a site formerly housing the former Farrell's Ice Cream Parlour and Bavarian Village Ski Shop years ago on Telegraph north of I-96.

Redford schools also will see some capital improvements. On April 27, 1996, voters in the Redford Union school district passed the first bond in 30 years for $33.4 million.

The money will fund energy-saving measures – new lights and thermal-insulated windows – and technology (computers).

In South Redford schools, school officials are planning with architects to spend bond money approved in September by voters.

Westland

In Westland, real commercial property declined slightly from approximately $323.2 million in 1995 to more than $320.6 million in 1996.

Personal property showed a dramatic increase from $87 million to $112 million. Westland Assessor Jim Elrod attributed that to the placement of an appraiser to specialize in assessing personal property.

Elrod attributes the real commercial property loss to vacant business sites at the malls, and at the Michigan Tax Tribunal, offsetting increases in new construction.

"The only 'increase' is in new construction," Elrod said.

Officials expect the commercial values to grow with the new developments.

Union sponsored trade schools

Electrical Industry Training Center
32100 Utica Road, Fraser 48026
(810) 293-6600
Director: Michael Hogan

Applications are available at the school 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. the first working Monday of each month except April and May. They must be completed and returned with appropriate transcripts within 30 working days.

Applicants must live in Wayne, Oakland, Macomb, Huron, St. Clair or Sanilac counties or Brighton, Deerfield, Hartland, Tyrone, Oceola or Genoa townships in Livingston County.

Applicants must be a high school graduate or have a GED, have successfully completed one full year of algebra or two full years combined of any other math and have the legal right to work in the U.S.

Those who meet minimum requirements will be scheduled for a basic mechanical aptitude test given monthly at the school in Fraser.

The formal training program lasts five years. Apprentice electricians attend classes at the school two days per month for eight hours each. A minimum of 8,000 work hours is needed before taking the licensing exam.

Apprentices are currently paid a starting wage of $8.92 per hour, beginning journeymen, $25.49.

Detroit Trowel Trades
Training Center (Bricklayers)
1627 W. Fort, Detroit 48216
(313) 965-1175
Director: Robert McNeilly

Applications are available 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. the first Wednesday of each month at the school.

Candidates must be at least 18, residents of Wayne, Oakland, Macomb or Monroe counties, possess a driver's license and have completed at least two years of high school.

Mechanical, spatial reasoning and logic aptitude tests are given in April, July, October and November. Applicants who reach a minimum score in all segments are interviewed.

Apprentices go to school eight hours per day, five days per week for three months and are paid $10 per day. After that, they are assigned to a contractor at a minimum starting pay of $12.50 per hour.

The apprenticeship continues for three years with special classes offered periodically.

A journeyman bricklayer now starts at $22 per hour.

Detroit Carpenters Apprenticeship School
1401 Farrow, Ferndale 48220
(810) 541-2740
Director: Ron Conrad

Prospects can apply 9 a.m. to noon Wednesdays at the school. Candidates must be at least 17 and present proof of a high school diploma or GED and a valid driver's license.

New classes start in January, April, July and October.

The program takes four years. Apprentices attend school every 10th day for eight hours. They must complete 576 classroom hours and 8,000 on the job.

Apprentice carpenters currently start at $8.89 per hour, journeymen, $21.68.

Painters Apprentice School
1191 E. 10 Mile, Madison Heights 48071
(810) 548-0090
Director: Paul C. Logsdon

Applicants for the painting apprenticeship, like carpenters, must find a union contractor who will hire/mentor them through the program.

A list of contractors is available at the school noon to 9:30 p.m. Tuesdays through Thursdays, 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Fridays.

Candidates who find a sponsor and pass a 30-day probationary/tryout period automatically enter the apprenticeship program. No tests, no interviews.

Prospects must be at least 18 and a high school graduate or GED holder.

Apprentices attend school four hours at a time, once a week. The program lasts three years. Apprentices must complete a combination of 6,000 work/school hours.

Apprentices start at half the pay of journeymen. Journeymen at the bottom of the scale currently make $16.35 in the residential sector, $20.19 in commercial/industrial.

Cement Masonry Apprenticeship School
15101 Wyoming, Detroit 48238
(313) 834-2049
Coordinator: Charlie Carter

Applications will be available at Local 514 on Wyoming probably in April, Carter said.

Applicants must be at least 18, a high school grad or GED holder with a driver's license and proof of transportation.

Prospects will fill out the application and take a math aptitude test at the same visit. Those who hit a minimum score on the test will be interviewed about two weeks later, after which at least 25 will be invited into the apprenticeship program.

A three-week orientation follows at the union hall during which apprentices will be paid $50 per week plus a minimum hourly rate of $10.55 if they're assigned to a contracting crew.

Classes meet in Ferndale every Saturday for 30 weeks starting in September. The program lasts three years.

A journeyman cement mason starts at $19.72 per hour.

Plumbing Industry Training Center
531 E. Seven Mile, Detroit 48203
(313) 891-5755
Director: Carl Schroeder

The plumbers school, in the process of selecting a class of 24 to start this year from applications submitted last November, probably will accept more applications this fall to start in '98, Schroeder said.

Interested persons should start calling in July for specifics.

Minimum qualifications are age 18, high school diploma/GED and a valid driver's license.

Candidates will take mechanical aptitude and numerical reasoning tests. Everyone who hits a minimum score will be interviewed. Apprenticeships will be offered on an as-need basis based on the interviews and test scores.

The program takes 5 1/2 years and a minimum 11,000 work and class hours combined. Classes meet twice a month for eight hours each.

Apprentices currently start at $9.05 per hour, while newly licensed journeymen make $25.53.

Pipefitting Industry Training Center
636 Executive Drive, Troy 48083
(810) 585-0636
Director: Larry Giroux

The application period for 1997 closed last month.

Applicants must be at least 18, a high school grad or GED holder.

Those who complete the application take a qualifying mechanical aptitude, math reasoning, spatial relations test. Everyone who hits a designated score will be interviewed by the joint union/industry apprenticeship committee.

Apprenticeships are offered strictly on the interview scores, which include education and experience, on an as-need basis.

The program lasts five years. Candidates must complete 8,000 work and 1,000 class hours. Apprentices attend class twice monthly eight hours at a time.

Pipefitting apprentices currently start at $8 per hour, journeymen $23.36.

Iron Workers Apprenticeship School
32121 Schoolcraft Road, Livonia 48150
(313) 421-1050
Coordinator: Tom Sego

Upwards of 150 applicants on a waiting list will be offered apprenticeships before more applications are accepted, probably in July of 1998, Sego said.

The selection process is entirely random.

Basic requirements are a minimum age of 18, U.S. citizen, and high school graduate or GED holder. Everyone who qualifies will be assigned a number by lottery and offered an apprenticeship in order as classes form.

Participants must pass a physical and drug screen before beginning training.

The program lasts four years with a minimum 8,000 work hours, 768 class hours. Classes meet two days per month.

Iron worker apprentices now start at $9.93 per hour. Beginning journeymen are currently paid at a rate of $19.87.

The school will take your name and phone number and notify you of the next orientation sessions.

Following are other union construction-related apprentice schools in the metro area with contact persons and telephone numbers.

New Morning students get worldly experience

For one day at New Morning School recently, students wielded as much power as the world's leaders.

They were the highest-ranking government officials from each of the earth's continents, with decision-making power concerning energy, food, and literacy.

"The Junior World Game is played on a 12 x 26 floor map, which accurately depicts the true shape and size of each land mass, called the Fuller Projection map," said Donna Williams of new Morning School.

"Students are divided into teams and equipped with accurate information about our earth's energy, literacy, population, and food resources." Players become movable players on the map, "traveling and engaging in negotiations with other regions. They are empowered to make a difference in the world," said Williams.

"Through art, music, visual presentation and role-playing, students attempt to solve the problems of hunger, illiteracy and energy waste."

Eliza Hutchinson, 12, said students "learned a lot, but had fun." Students received "the right amount of population chips (poker chips), food (little bags of beans), energy (candles) and literacy (pencils)," she said.

Few residents speak out on river cleanup plans

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK
STAFF WRITER

■ The draft assessment identifies problems and opportunities which address fisheries, water quality and recreational issues associated with the Rouge River basin. State officials say the assessment is of interest to anglers, outdoor recreation buffs and all residents and users of the Rouge River system.

Ralph Williams of Livonia believes the extensive work along the Rouge River should be better publicized.

Another Livonia resident hopes Wayne County can develop an access road to place boats in Newburgh Lake.

Tom Casari, a Canton Township engineer and member of an advisory council for the Rouge River Remedial Action Plan, said positive comments were made in that community about the "realistic approach" of a draft of the watershed assessment report on the fishery potential of the Rouge River.

That was about the extent of public comments made at a public hearing in Livonia on Wednesday. Michigan Department of Natural Resources officials conducted hearings in Livonia, Dearborn and Southfield last week to get input on the watershed assessment.

The draft assessment identifies problems and opportunities which address fisheries, water quality and recreational issues associated with the Rouge River basin. State officials say the assessment is of interest to anglers, outdoor recreation buffs and all residents and users of the Rouge River system.

Jeff Braunscheidel, a biologist with the fisheries management division of the state Department of Natural Resources, spent two years working on the assessment draft. Much of the report was written by Jennifer Beam, also a fisheries biologist.

Public comments will be collected at the meetings or can be submitted in writing to the DNR. Once these are collected, the DNR will decide on appropriate comments for inclusion in the final draft, Braunscheidel said.

"We hope the report will be used by various groups in the watershed," Braunscheidel said. Those groups will include city and county governments, parks and recreations departments and the Rouge River Remedial Action Plan Advisory Council.

The report does not include any costs because some of the recommendations include a range of activities with a wide range of costs. That responsibility of choosing recommendations is generally left to local governmental units and their elected officials to decide whether to spend money on these expenses, Braunscheidel said.

Williams said a priority list would help outline the improvements and added that when improvements occur, the public should be informed.

Braunscheidel said once the early draft is completed, the next report will be a management plan listing priorities.

Another resident wondered what plans Wayne County had for the parks property adjacent to Newburgh Lake. He was told to talk with the Wayne County parks division about his concerns and that Wayne County probably had a master plan for its parks.

State officials are working with Wayne County and subcontractors on the $10 million restoration of Newburgh Lake. Soil and sediment contaminated with polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs) will be excavated over the next 18 months, contaminated fish killed, and game fish will be restocked in the lake.

None of the audience members complained about the report.

Copies of the draft can be obtained from Jeff Braunscheidel, fisheries division, Michigan Department of Natural Resources, 38980 Seven Mile Road, Livonia, MI 48152-1006. Braunscheidel can be reached at (313) 953-1481. Written comments can be sent to Braunscheidel at the same address.

Written comments will be accepted through March 28.

Madonna to host volunteer fair

Madonna University in Livonia will be holding its third annual Volunteer Fair from noon to 4 p.m. Tuesday, March 18 in the Take 5 Lounge on campus.

"The fair is an effort to match the interests and talents of volunteers with existing needs in the community by providing the volunteers with a chance to shop for the right organization," said Deacon Gene Desjarlais, director of campus ministry.

Some organizations offer internships which can help expand career skills. There are not only local community opportunities but nationwide and some international, added Deacon Desjarlais.

"A lot of people get nervous at first going up to the tables and asking questions, afraid a commitment needs to be made right away. The fair gives both the organizations and community volunteer a chance to learn about each other without making an instant commitment," said Angela Moloney, senior at Madonna University and coordinator of community and public services.

As a student as Madonna University, Moloney has volunteered with numerous organizations. Two of her inquiries at the fair led her to volunteer opportunities in Cincinnati and Montana.

"Once you do volunteer work it changes your life forever," Moloney said.

She added that the fair's committee tries to recruit organizations that touch each field of study at Madonna University so that diverse volunteer opportunities exist for people with different interests.

Some of the organizations who will be represented include the American Red Cross, Deaf Options, Focus: HOPE, Livonia Family YMCA, Metropolitan Jail Ministry, New STEPS, Sisters of Charity Associates in Volunteer Ministry and World Medical Relief.

For more information, call campus ministry at (313) 432-5419.

More gaming to bring more state regulation

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK
STAFF WRITER

State Senate Majority Leader Dick Posthumus, R-Alto, knows regulations must be established to oversee casino gambling in Detroit.

So he has set up a Senate standing committee to do just that.

"There's no question of whether we will have (casinos) or not," Posthumus said. "At the same time, we want to avoid crime and corruption."

Posthumus said recently he expects potential changes in laws governing state and local taxes, liquor control, zoning statutes, State Police, Attorney General and Department of Treasury, campaign finance and conflict of interest.

The Senate Gaming and Casino Oversight Committee will be comprised of five senators, including Sen. Michael Bouchard, R-Birmingham; Sen. Mike Rogers, R-Brighton, and Sen. Bill Schuette, R-Midland. Sen. John Cherry, D-Clio, will recommend two members of his caucus.

The committee also will examine social issues, such as compulsive gambling and addiction. Posthumus said Bouchard and Rogers bring strong law enforcement backgrounds to the committee while Schuette brings insight in the area of economic development.

Posthumus expects the group to examine recommendations from Gov. John Engler and Attorney General Frank Kelley on legislation and potential regulations.

Posthumus has asked the senators not to accept campaign contributions from anyone who may have interests in the casino operations.

The group will study possible effects casinos may have on Michigan's horse race tracks, such as Ladbroke in Livonia.

Sen. Dick Posthumus

"We'll have to look at what impact it has on the horse racing industry, but the ones here are probably the most economically viable."

Posthumus did not know yet what it will cost to police the casino gambling industry. He does not expect any of the casinos to open this year.

"Our job will not be deciding who will be (a casino owner or operator), but who can't be," Posthumus said. "We don't want just a 'fly-by-night' operation."

Indiana's laws have been studied and Posthumus expects similar legislation will be used here.

Jurisdiction between police and regulatory agencies will need to be spelled out. "The last thing you want is a turf war," Posthumus said.

Road conditions

Posthumus also discussed the poor condition of Michigan roads.

Posthumus believes improved gas mileage on vehicles has decreased gasoline use and, therefore, money earmarked for road repairs has not increased over the years.

Sales taxes on gasoline also are not earmarked for roads in Michigan, as it is in other states. That money goes to schools.

Posthumus was asked if there was a likelihood that that money would go toward roads. "We could, but one of the arguments was that's what got Michigan in trouble in the 1970s and '80s," Posthumus said. "Then you're taking money out of the local economy. I don't think anyone should argue that those (tax cut) policies didn't turn this state around."

The funding of the roads is "out of the hands of the Legislature," he said. The Michigan Department of Transportation controls those funds.

"As a result you have a bureaucracy that is less responsive," Posthumus said. He wants legislation to make that department more accountable.

Posthumus wants the state auditor general to conduct performance audits. Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara and state auditor general Tom McTavish disagree over whether the state has access to such records and are awaiting an opinion from the state attorney general about such requests.

Part of the problem is the difference of opinion over which audit is sufficient, the performance audit or the financial audit.

"We're having a fight with Wayne County. Every county spends a lot of money on roads. We need accountability on this money."

Posthumus was asked why Teamsters and road builders had such clout with the Legislature that no action was taken on taxes on diesel rigs. Posthumus responded: "When we eliminated a diesel discount, we took 'em on and beat 'em. That will bring in $20 million to $30 million."

Lighter per axle weights on roads was "as good if not better" than the theory that by having fewer trucks with greater weight, road wear will improve, Posthumus said.

Madonna sets spring, summer registration

Madonna University's in-person spring and summer term registration for new and returning students will be held from Monday, March 17, through Monday, March 31.

Office hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays, with the exception of Friday, March 28, when the office will be closed; and until 7 p.m. on Mondays and Thursdays, with the exception of Thursday, March 27, when the office will close at 5 p.m.

Late registration will be from Tuesday, April 1, to Friday, May 2. During late registration, office hours will remain the same with the exception of April 28 and May 1 when the office will close at 5 p.m.

Classes begin the week of May 5.

Non-admitted students must obtain a permit-to-register from the admissions office. Students may enroll in day, evening and weekend classes. Transfer students are welcome.

Shop carefully for freshest fish

With modern transportation methods it is possible in many U.S. cities to purchase, for example, fresh Norwegian farm-raised salmon one day after its been harvested.

In most metropolitan areas, freshwater fish is also readily available. However, when it comes to saltwater fish, the availability of really fresh fish is often a problem.

A number of years ago we had "day boats," which left docks in the evening, fished all night, and returned with their catch in the morning. That was really fresh fish. Today, because of the depletion of fish stocks, day boat fishermen cannot catch enough fish to economically survive. Therefore, we rely on larger fishing boats that may stay on the water fishing for as long as three weeks. Ice is shoveled over each day's catch and the sheer weight of it and the time the fish stays on board take their toll.

On the North Atlantic shores, these fish are sold at auctions. There may be three price groups for the same species off the same boat, depending on its age and condition. Buyers from fish wholesalers (such as M.F. Foley in Boston) that sell to high quality stores, restaurants and clubs, will pay a price premium for fish caught the last two days of fishing, which is called "the top catch." This very fresh fish seldom shows up in the average supermarket because of the price difference.

What do we look for if we want to buy really fresh fish? First, observe how they keep the fish in the store. The fish cabinet should be clean and orderly. Whole fish should be buried in ice, not just laid on top. Fillets should be displayed in a manner ensuring their temperature at a constant 32 degrees F. Use your nose. If there is an unpleasant, fishy odor, then the product being sold is of poor quality.

Whole fish have clear, bulging eyes, the gills are bright red or pink, the color of the skin is bright, and the scales are firmly attached. Cuts of large fish should have a bright color, fillets have a natural shine, no blood bruises, and the edges are not frayed. Above all, fish should have a sweet sea or cucumber-like smell. If you are not allowed to smell the fish in the store, do so as soon as possible after the purchase. Any foul odor, a hint of ammonia or yeast, and you better take it back.

Fish fillets

Be careful when buying skinned fish fillets. The origin and correct species of the fish are also important. The skin provides a clue. Quite often skinned fillets are sold as something else, always more expensive. Skinned "Florida Red" snapper is seldom that. More likely it is a cheaper cousin from South America.

Whole fish and steaks are also commonly advertised as of different origin: "Native" swordfish could be Chilean and of much lesser quality. "Norwegian" salmon may also be Chilean, or Canadian, even Pacific. So called "Bay Scallops" are often called "calicos," very inferior to the taste of the real bays.

Poaching fish

Many people believe that food has to be browned to taste good. It is not necessarily so. Poached fish gives us not only a very moist, flavorful product, but it also eliminates the fishy smell in the house, is healthier, easily digestible and makes cleaning up a snap.

What is poaching? It means cooking a product submerged in liquid at temperatures between 165 and 180 degrees F. Higher temperatures result in boiling, which is OK for potatoes, but causes fish, and poultry, to become dry and crumbly.

Fatty and firm flesh are especially well suited for poaching. Use a meat thermometer to monitor the water temperature. Add your favorite herbs and spices, or a splash of vinegar. The fish may be portioned into steaks or fillets.

To check for doneness in a steak: push a fork into the spine bone; when the fish is done, the bone will pull out easily.

To check for doneness in a fillet: slide a wide spatula half way under the fish, then lift the center of it up. Look inside the opened crack – when done, the flesh is opaque (not translucent). Lower the fish and the crack will seal again.

Local chefs go toque to toque to pair food and wine

BY ELEANOR & RAY HEALD
SPECIAL WRITERS

Area foodies are learning that the place to be on Mardi Gras is the annual Michigan Culinary Food and Wine Extravaganza at Mac and Ray's harborfront restaurant on Lake St. Clair's Anchor Bay. The event is a benefit for the Michigan Culinary Team and Scholarship Fund.

The Michigan Culinary Team competes in the World Culinary Salon (culinary equivalent of the Olympics) every four years. Team Michigan 1996 brought home seven medals including one gold.

This year, 25 of metro Detroit's top restaurants and chefs were invited to go toque to toque. Each created a table display, designed a recipe and matched it with a wine available through one of the area's wine purveyors who also participated. Preparations were of Olympic stature! We, along with a few other area food writers, judged the restaurants and assigned a maximum of 20 points in each of five categories: overall table presentation and display; visual presentation of food; food composition and quality; quality of wine selection; and food pairing/compatibility with wine. Competition was stiff. Only one point out of a possible 100 separated first and second place. Less than a point differentiated third place from second.

First place and trophy winner was Troy's Mon Jin Lau where chef/proprietor Marshall Chin designed Thai Chicken with Peanut Sauce and Rice Noodles to harmonize with the 1995 Etude Pinot Blanc. Chin credits Novi's Decanter Imports vice president Michael Kilano for "nailing the match."

Kilano favors two regular menu items at Mon Jin Lau: an appetizer of Thai Chicken on Bamboo with Peanut Sauce and Sizzling Thai Chicken with Peanut Sauce, an entree. When his wine company was paired with Mon Jin Lau for the competition and Chin said he wanted to do a Thai chicken recipe, Kilano sensed a harmony with

MAIN DISH MIRACLE

Entertain uncertainty with quick turkey dish

BY MURIEL G. WAGNER
REGISTERED DIETITIAN

February and March can be fickle. You never know when an ice or snow storm is in the works. During this uncertain time, it's always better to expect the unexpected. Dinner's no problem when it's built around ingredients that can be conveniently kept in the freezer and pantry.

Turkey Breast Scallopini with artichokes and mushrooms is an elegant response to the question – "What's for Dinner?" It's not budget busting, accommodates your new healthful eating program, is fancy enough to serve company, and tastes wonderful. And, if you're rushed, this recipe is for you – it can be made in less than 30 minutes.

I used to make scallopini with veal, but that makes too big a hole in my pocketbook now. Turkey breast tenderloins have a similar flavor, and are a much less expensive stand-in for veal. You probably know that veal is low in fat, but did you know that turkey is lower in cholesterol than veal?

Artichoke hearts packed in water add an elegant low calorie touch. They come already cut in quarters, but if you can't find them, it takes no time to cut them up. I like to cook the mushrooms in the microwave until they release their water. I discard the water. Since it takes only about 3 to 4 minutes, you can do this while the turkey is browning. Canned, whole mushrooms can be substituted, but they lack the flavor of fresh. Italian seasoning is an herb blend found in the spice section of your local market.

I use an expensive, but drinkable white wine rather than cooking wine in this recipe because it's more palate-pleasing and lower in sodium. Some cooking wines have added salt.

If wine is not a usual part of your cooking repertoire, double the chicken broth. Pounding the turkey breast may seem like more work, but don't omit this step. It makes a thin piece of meat that's more tender and cooks more evenly in a short period of time. You want to cook all poultry until it's no longer pink for safety's sake. Be sure not to let the garlic brown. This makes it bitter tasting.

Orzo, a rice-shaped pasta, mixed with some flat leaf parsley, chopped fresh, seeded plum tomatoes, and sliced ripe olives makes an interesting side dish. If this isn't available, rice can be substituted. I like to cook my rice in chicken broth for added flavor.

This whole meal, including making a green salad, should take less than 25 minutes to prepare, even for inexperienced cooks.

Turkey Breast Scallopini is one of Myra Petocsky's favorite dishes. "It's a pleasure to eat something that tasty and know that it's also healthy," said Petocsky who lives in West Bloomfield. "Everyone loves it. No one realizes that it is so low in fat and calories."

TURKEY BREAST SCALLOPINI

- 1 pound Turkey Breast Tenderloins, cut into four portions
- 1/4 cup all-purpose flour
- 2 tablespoons Italian seasoning
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 1 clove (or more) garlic, chopped
- 1 can (13.7 ounce) artichoke hearts, quartered and drained
- 1/2 pound fresh mushrooms
- 1/2 cup low sodium chicken broth
- 1/2 cup dry white wine
- 1 fresh lemon, quartered

Pound the tenderloins with a mallet or cleaver until 1/3-inch thickness. Combine flour and Italian seasoning in a plastic bag. Shake the tenderloins in the closed bag until well coated with the flour mixture.

Heat olive oil in a nonstick skillet on low heat. Add chopped garlic. Cook over low heat until garlic is softened. Do not brown. Add turkey and brown on both sides until the center is no longer pink.

Remove turkey, but do not discard pan juices or browned bits. Cook mushrooms covered on high for 3-4 minutes in the microwave until they release their juices. Drain. Add to skillet with artichokes, wine and broth. Heat for 10 minutes until liquid becomes syrupy. This will not thicken. Return turkey to pan and reheat to serving temperature.

Remove to plate and squeeze the juice of the quartered lemon over each piece. Serves four.

MON JIN LAU THAI CHICKEN WITH PEANUT SAUCE AND RICE

NOODLES

Noodle preparation:

12 ounces Thailand Rice Noodles (available in Asian markets)

8 ounces cold water

In a large bowl, soak noodles in cold water 45 minutes. Drain in a colander and set aside.

NOODLE MARINADE:

1 tablespoon finely grated fresh ginger root
1/2 tablespoon finely chopped garlic
1 teaspoon dried chili flakes
3 tablespoons sesame oil
2 tablespoons pure honey
3 tablespoons lite-brewed soy sauce
1/2 cup julienne red peppers
1/2 cup julienne cucumbers
1/2 cup shredded green onions
1/2 cup julienne carrots

Combine marinade ingredients in a medium bowl, then toss noodles and vegetables together.

CHICKEN PREPARATION:

3/4 pound sliced chicken breast
1 large egg white
1 teaspoon course kosher salt
1 1/2 teaspoons Chinese rice wine or quality dry sherry
2 tablespoons corn starch
4 to 6 tablespoons corn or peanut oil
Garnish: ground peanuts

In a medium bowl, combine chicken with all ingredients except oil and marinate for 20 minutes.

Heat wok or heavy skillet over high heat. Add oil and stir fry chicken (with marinade) until it turns white and is cooked thoroughly. Pour off excess oil. Combine chicken with peanut sauce (recipe follows). Place chicken with peanut sauce over rice noodles. Garnish with ground peanuts.

SPICY PEANUT SAUCE

1/4 cup soy sauce
1/4 cup rice wine vinegar
6 tablespoons cold water
1 tablespoon sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons minced peeled fresh ginger
1 teaspoon minced garlic
6 tablespoons smooth peanut butter, at room temperature
3 tablespoons peanut oil
3 tablespoons Asian sesame oil
1/2 teaspoon chili oil

Place the soy sauce, vinegar, water, sugar, salt, ginger, and garlic in a blender. Process on high speed until the ginger and garlic are smoothed into the liquid, about 1 minute. Add the peanut butter and process for 1 minute longer:

Combine the oils and drizzle into the sauce with the blender running on low speed. Store covered in the refrigerator for up to 2 days. Bring to room temperature before serving. Makes 1 1/4 cups.

Recipe from "Sheila Lukins All Around the World Cookbook," (Workman Publishing, Inc. 1994)

OPUS ONE SEAFOOD QUENELLES WITH LOBSTER SAUCE

For lobster sauce:
6 cups lobster stock
1 tablespoon minced shallots
1 cup champagne or white wine
1 teaspoon clarified butter
1 1/2 teaspoons tomato paste
1 cup heavy cream
salt and white pepper to taste
1 tablespoon arrow root or cornstarch
1/4 cup dry sherry

In a sauce pan, reduce lobster stock to one cup. In a small saute pan, cook shallots in butter briefly. Add wine and reduce by 3/4. Add to reduced stock.

Dissolve arrow root in two tablespoons cold water. Bring stock mixture to a boil. Add arrow root mixture to stock, whisking briskly. Bring to simmer. Add tomato paste. Whisk in well. Add heavy cream and season to taste with salt and pepper. Add dry sherry and simmer five minutes longer. Reserve.

For quenelles:

1 cup peeled and deveined shrimp
1 cup bay scallops
1 egg white
1/4 teaspoon salt
pinch white pepper
1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
1 tablespoon heavy cream
2 quarts hot lobster stock for poaching

Place shrimp and scallops in a food processor fitted with a steel blade. Puree until fine. Add egg white, salt, pepper, garlic powder and cream to processor bowl. Blend until well mixed.

Drop teaspoon-size portions of mixture into simmering lobster stock until seafood is firm. Remove quenelles with a slotted spoon and reserve on wax paper.

Quenelles can be made in advance and refrigerated to be reheated in the finished lobster sauce before serving. Serves 4.

Wine suggestion: 1995 Robert Mondavi Napa Valley Chardonnay.

LUIGIS LAMB CHOPS

1 pound lamb chops
For marinade:
1/2 cup olive oil
1 teaspoon minced fresh garlic
juice of 1/2 lemon
Italian seasoning mix of choice, added to taste salt and pepper to taste
For topping lamb chops:
1/2 ounce olive oil
1 teaspoon freshly minced garlic
8 ounces washed spinach, stems removed
4 quartered and sliced Roma tomatoes
Garnish:
2 ounces crumbled feta cheese

Marinate lamb chops a minimum of one hour and maximum of two days. Season and broil lamb chops to desired temperature.

Heat saute pan. When hot, add the olive oil, garlic, spinach and tomatoes. Saute one minute.

Wine suggestion: 1993 Grgich Hills Zinfandel.

the new release of California's Etude Pinot Blanc from the Carneros region.

"Pinot Blanc provides an exciting option to chardonnay," Kilano said. "It matches spiciness in dishes better than chardonnay or sauvignon blanc."

"We made some adjustments to our sizzling Thai chicken recipe for the competition because we used steam tables which are always a challenge," Chin said. "We're suggesting a recipe to somewhat duplicate the experience, but our peanut sauce preparation is an ancient Chinese secret!"

Chin also remarked that the balanced acidity and creamy body of the wine held up to the special spices in the sauce. If you want to taste the real thing, visit Mon Jin Lau soon and try it with Etude Pinot Blanc, a wine in limited quantity, which is being served by the glass.

Opus One

Seafood Quenelles with Lobster Champagne Sauce were paired with 1995 Robert Mondavi Napa Valley Chardonnay and garnered the second place award for Detroit's Opus One executive chef Tim Giznsky.

The preparation also took high marks for presentation. Each serving plate was given a garnish and design with a sweet balsamic glaze and a red pepper coulis applied from a squeeze bottle. The quenelles were set atop the plate's garnish. Integration of these flavors enhanced the dish and its match with the wine.

"After trying several wines, the Mondavi Chardonnay was chosen to complement the richness and complexity of the seafood as well as the lobster sauce served with the quenelles," Giznsky explained. It's interesting to note that when we inquired about a food harmony for this wine, winemaker Tim Mondavi's first suggestion was seafood. Way to go, Opus One!

Luigis Downtown

"In some circles, there is a big deal made about the pairings of food and wine," Luigis Downtown general managing partner Jim Salazer said. His restaurant, in Mt. Clemens, took third place for chef Ron Hofer's Luigis Lamb Chops paired with 1993 Grgich Hills Zinfandel.

"I think simpler preparations are always best when a chef is trying to both show off the food and the wine," Hofer added. There are proprietary spices in this recipe. As its replacement, Hofer is recommending a blend of Italian spices as a seasoning alternative.

"The key to matching food and wine is balance," Salazer continued. "Neither the food nor the wine should overpower the other. We had some interesting challenges facing us pairing our house specialty lamb chops with an appropriate wine. Lamb has a distinctive and strong flavor and the recipe calls for a fairly heavy marinade. The spinach and tomatoes lend an acidic character to the dish and feta is certainly among the bigger-flavored cheeses."

Decanter Imports had its second winning wine match. On-premise sales person Carl Boehm credits Salazar for making the final decision on the wine. "At first a Chianti Classico Riserva was considered," he said. "But something was missing and Jim was looking for the perfect match. He found it when Decanter's owner Judy Dunn changed the focus to zinfandel with lamb."

The true secret ingredient to matching a dish with wine is continual tasting of the dish and adjusting spice ingredients along with salt and pepper until the right harmony is achieved. Chefs' house recipes should be taken as broad guidelines.

Their raw ingredients change with nearly every delivery of meat, poultry, seafood or produce. But recipes prepared in each chef's kitchen have consistency because they continually TASTE – that's the well-chosen name of this section you're reading!

Stretch your seafood dollars with economical entrees

Arlington, VA – Who's to say that seafood bargains can't be found? There's plenty of innovative and economical options if you know what to look for at the market, especially during Lent, which began Feb. 12 with Ash Wednesday. The fish experts at the National Fisheries Institute offer these year-round tips for seafood customers:

■ Take advantage of special sales promotions and don't overlook the frozen case. Buying frozen seafood means you can stock your freezer and thaw the product at your convenience.

■ Buy items in season – blue crab in the spring or lobster from June to September.

■ Extend seafood with low-cost foods such as pasta or rice.

■ Stock up on non-perishable items such as canned tuna or salmon

■ Take advantage of the delicious varieties of under-appreciated fish such as skate, cape shark, hake, bluefish and mackerel, which are often lower in price.

■ Use seafood in recipes such as soups or casseroles, which extend your fish or shellfish.

■ Combine smaller amounts of more expensive seafood products with less-expensive types of fish or shellfish. Not only will you keep food costs down, but you can add variety to your diet. Here are several recipes that are healthy for you and your wallet.

SHRIMP PESTO LINGUINE

2 tablespoons olive oil
1 large onion, coarsely chopped
1 (10-ounce) package frozen peas
1 tablespoon pesto sauce (purchased or homemade)
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/8 teaspoon salt
1 pound shrimp or crab-flavored surimi seafood, flake-style; or a mixture of both products
8 to 10 ounces dried linguine, broken in half and cooked according to package directions
2 tablespoons fresh parsley, minced

Cook the pasta according to package directions. Reserve 1/2 cup of the pasta cooking liqtid. Meanwhile, heat the olive oil over medium heat in a large skillet. Add the onion and saute until tender, about 5 minutes. Add the peas, pesto sauce, pepper and salt. Cook, stirring occasionally, about 5 minutes.

Add 1/2 cup of the pasta cooking liquid to the skillet and bring to a simmer. Add the shrimp or surimi seafood and cook until thoroughly heated. Divide the linguine among 4 bowls or shallow plates. Pour the sauce over the pasta and toss gently. Sprinkle with parsley. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

HEARTY ITALIAN FISH SOUP

1 tablespoon olive oil
I cup onion, finely chopped
1 red or green bell pepper, cored, seeded and chopped
1 cup (1/2-inch diced) red or other waxy potato
1-3/4 cups boiling water
1 can (14-1/2 ounces) cut tomatoes, in juice
1 can (8-ounces) tomato sauce
1/2 teaspoon dried oregano
1/4 teaspoon dried basil
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon sugar
1 pound white firm-fleshed fish (i.e., catfish, cod, monkfish, snapper, ling-cod, rockfish, seabass tilapia or tilefish)

Heat the olive oil in a large pan over medium high heat. Add the onions, pepper and potato. Saute over medium-high heat until the onions are lightly browned, about 5 minutes. Add the boiling water, tomatoes, tomato sauce, basil, oregano, salt and sugar. Bring to a boil. Reduce the heat, cover, and simmer 10 to 15 minutes or until the potatoes are tender. Meanwhile cut the fish into 1-inch cubes. Add the fish to the soup. Simmer gently, partially covered, until fish is opaque and cooked throughout, about 4 to 5 minutes. Ladle into soup bowls and serve with crusty bread, if desired. Makes 4 servings.

SEAFOOD PENNE PASTA

3 pounds fresh mussels in the shell, or small clams
1 tablespoon olive oil
2 tablespoons white wine vinegar
1/2 cup water
2 large cloves garlic, minced
1 large carrot, peeled and thinly cut on the bias
1/2 cup onion, diced
1/2 teaspoon dried hot pepper flakes
8 ounces dried penne pasta, cooked according to package directions chopped parsley, for garnish

Scrub the mussels under cold running water. Pull off the beards. Set aside. Discard any mussels that have died. To check, gaping shells should close after being tapped.

Heat the oil in a large stock pot or kettle. Add the onion and garlic and saute over medium heat 5 minutes or until soft. Stir in the water, vinegar, carrots and hot pepper flakes. Bring to a boil. Cover and cook 5 to 7 minutes or until the carrots are almost tender. Add the mussels or clams, cover and cook until the shells open, about 6 to 7 minutes. (May require more time to cook clams thoroughly.)

Meanwhile, divide the pasta among 4 wan-n bowls or shallow plates. Divide the mussels, vegetables and cooking liquid over the pasta. Sprinkle with parsley and serve hot. Makes 4 servings.

Chef Milos shares salmon recipe

See Chef Milos column on Taste front.

POACHED SALMON

6 salmon fillets or steaks
Court Bouillon:
2 quarts water
1/2 cup cider vinegar
1/2 cup sliced carrots
1/2 small onion, sliced
1/2 lemon, sliced
10 parsley stems
1 bay leaf
1 teaspoon peppercorns
1/2 teaspoon thyme
2 tablespoons salt

In stainless steel pot bring Court Bouillon ingredients to a boil, cook 15 minutes and strain. Place the fish in a pan wide and deep enough to hold it in one layer without crowding.

Pour the hot bouillon over fish to completely cover, shake the pan to make sure fish is not stuck to the bottom, place it on low heat and cook at a temperature between 165 degrees F. and 180 degrees F. for approximately 15 minutes depending on thickness of fish.

Serve with lemon and melted butter, boiled new potatoes and a simple green salad. Serves 6.

CLARIFICATION

Editor's note: A special thank-you to Sharon Ringholc of Walled Lake, who called to let us know the Cherry Pie recipe in the Feb. 16 issue of Taste was "Impossible!" I called Renee Skoglund, who wrote the story, and asked her to double check the recipe. She checked, and upon finding no errors in comparing the recipe in the book to the one in our paper, decided to try it herself. Renee's a great cook, and as she started making the pie, saw that it was not the consistency that it should be. "There was a mistake in the original recipe (in the cookbook)," said Renee. "We apologize for any inconvenience this may have caused our readers."

We're here to serve you. If you have bad results with a recipe that appears in Taste, please call me, (313) 953-2105, and leave a message on my voice mail so we can correct it as soon as possible. We take great care to make sure our recipes are correct, but sometimes, as in cooking, mistakes do occur.

Keely Wygonik – Taste & Entertainment Editor

Here's the correct recipe.

IMPOSSIBLE CHERRY PIE

1 cup milk
1/4 teaspoon almond extract
1 1/2 cups Bisquick
2 tablespoons melted margarine
2 eggs
1/4 cup sugar
1 (21 ounce) can cherry pie filling

Streusel Topping:

2 teaspoons margarine
1/2 cup Bisquick
1/2 cup brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon

To make Topping: mix all ingredients until crumbly. Set aside.

Heat oven to 400 degrees F. Beat together first 6 ingredients until smooth. Pour into 10-inch greased pie pan. Spoon cherry pie filling evenly over the top. Bake 25 minutes. Take out of oven and top with Streusel Topping. Bake again, until brown, about 10 minutes. Cool and refrigerate.

HAVE YOU REACHED THE BREAKING POINT?
As many as 40% of 50-year-old women will suffer a bone fracture due to osteoporosis at sometime during their remaining lifetime. Are you at risk?
Osteoporosis and associated fractures can rob you of your mobility and your independence. Osteoporosis is a debilitating disease that can lead to pain, height loss, spine and hip fractures, and a deformed spine. Unfortunately, many women with osteoporosis have no symptoms until a fracture occurs. Early diagnosis of this disease is essential and new treatment options are now available.
Dr. Melody M. MacMartin, Medical Director of the Osteoporosis Detection Center-Livonia Medical has a special interest in the detection and treatment of osteoporosis using a DXA Bone Densitometer. A bone density test is safe, fast, noninvasive, and painless-and it will provide essential information to help your doctor assess the health of your bones.
Dr. MacMartin is board certified in Family Practice and a graduate of Kirksville College of Osteopathic Medicine. She practices with Dr. Nancy J. Rancour who is also a board certified family practitioner and a graduate of Michigan State University College of Osteopathic Medicine.
Both doctors are committed to the prevention, detection and treatment of osteoporosis. This test is recognized by most major insurance carriers as a covered benefit. There is no need for a physician referral and a copy of the test will be sent to the physician of your choice. Call (313) 427-3500 for your appointment. Dr. MacMartin and her staff can help you maintain your independence with an evaluation for osteoporosis.

Tiffany archivist discusses history

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
STAFF WRITER

Anita and John McMartin of McMartin's Jewelry believe it's their role to not only offer one-of-a-kind jewelry designs, but educate customers about their industry as well.

Following this philosophy, the husband and wife design team will present a series of informative lectures through 1997. They are in the process of renovating and renaming the John McMartin Jewelry Arts Gallery after its chief artisan.

To kick off the series, the McMartins scheduled a book signing for Janet Zapata, art historian and author of "The Jewelry and Enamels of Louis Comfort Tiffany," from noon to 5 p.m. Saturday, March 1 at their shop, 440 North Main in Milford.

In addition to the signing, at 6 p.m. Zapata will give a slide presentation and lecture on "A History of American Jewelry in the 20th Century" followed by "The Jewelry & Enamels of Louis Comfort Tiffany" at 7:30 p.m. Space is limited. Register by calling (810) 684-8895.

"We want to begin educating customers about the jewelry industry and about jewelry as an art form that's why we're turning our showroom into a gallery and offering guest lecturers," said Anita who grew up in Southfield and until recently co-owned Your Jeweler's Bench in Farmington Hills before marrying John McMartin in 1995.

Janet Zapata

"The more customers know about jewelry, the better decision they can make about their purchases," she insisted.

A former archivist for Tiffany and Co., Zapata curated several exhibitions for the firm including "The Silver of Tiffany & Co. 1850-1987" at the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston in 1987, and "Tiffany: 150 Years of Gems and Jewelry" at the American Museum of Natural History in New York in 1988.

A consultant for the jewelry department at Christie's in New York City and for the Louis C. Tiffany Museum in Nagoya, Japan, Zapata recently finished writing an essay on "The Nature of Diamonds" for an exhibition opening in November at the American Museum of Natural History in New York.

Along with writing for magazines such as American Craft and Jeweler's Circular Keystone, Zapata is currently co-curating "The Glitter and the Gold: Fashioning America's Jewelry," an exhibition for the Newark Museum on the history of jewelry making in Newark, New Jersey.

According to Zapata, Newark at one time made 90 percent of the 14 karat gold used by Tiffany and Cartier.

"No one has even looked at Louis Comfort Tiffany's jewelry before. Most only know him for his stained glass. His jewelry designing began in 1898. In 1902, he continued with Tiffany Furnaces designing jewelry and enameling on copper followed by the years from 1907 to 1933 at Tiffany and Co. when he switched to enameling on gold and silver instead of copper," said Zapata, who frequently lectures on American jewelry and silver.

"Louis turned to nature for inspiration in all his work. The slides show the influence in a necklace of black opals and enamels in the Metropolitan Museum of Art collection. The opals take the shape of grapes. Another piece, a 9 1/2 inch brooch in the shape of an iris, reflects an interest in naturalism dating back from the late 19th century."

Zapata's lectures will include the introduction of platinum, art deco in the 1930s when American design broke with European design, the reintroduction of the figure in jewelry design, and the big, bold 1980s designs of 1980s by Elsa Peretti and Paloma Picasso "for women who are buying their own jewelry."

"At the end of the 19th century platinum was introduced and was widely used for diamonds. It replaced sterling silver because it tarnished. Now, at the end of the 20th century, the metal is titanium, used in airplane parts," said Zapata.

"I see the future as bigger and bolder designs by independent designers and diamonds which have been set in prongs now being set between shanks."

Jacobson's readies for the future

Jacobson's fights for its survival by closing weak stores and modernizing favorites.

BY JUDITH DONER BERNE
SPECIAL WRITER

Few shoppers surveyed last week at Jacobson's flagship store in Birmingham were concerned that the store will go the way of those in Dearborn, Kalamazoo and Jackson whose closings were recently announced.

"No way," said Dee Lane of Bloomfield Hills, representing the majority. "I think Birmingham is very well supported. I've been to the Dearborn store. It is not as well stocked."

She particularly shops the children's, linen and shoe departments. "I love the shoe salon. It's well-selected and intimate. They're so customer-oriented. They make me feel welcome."

Debbie Fadool of Farmington Hills is concerned.

"I just asked the salesperson about closing Birmingham," she said. As she got into her car in the covered, attended lot directly behind the Birmingham store, she added, "I love the personal service."

Jacobson Stores spokesman Fred Marx emphatically states that neither the chain nor the three stores in the Observer & Eccentric circulation area – Birmingham, Rochester Hills and Livonia – are in any danger. He ticks them off:

•Rochester Hills: "Jacobson's owns that property (at Great Oaks Mall). People don't know how well that store does. They're the only department store up there."

•Livonia: "Laurel Park is doing phenomenally due to the whole explosion of the Plymouth-Canton-Northville area."

•Birmingham: "Birmingham has tradition. It is their largest producing store. They do as much on the phone and in the shipping room as on the sales floor. They have a rare continuity of staff. What Nordstrom gets credits for – customer service – Jacobson's did early on."

Jacobson's has had financial problems only over the last year and a half, Marx adds. "They're taking action with three stores that have not contributed."

Marx said the Jackson and Kalamazoo stores – among the chain's smallest stores – are in small downtowns that don't draw from other areas. Dearborn, he said, is a mid-size store that is not doing well. It stands on property the company owns and already has had several offers to purchase.

He reminds that although those stores are closing, Jacobson's expanded into Boca Raton, Fla. in November. After the closings, the chain will operate 25 stores in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, Kansas and Florida.

Marx is also confident that new chairman and CEO P. Gerald Mills is the person Jacobson's needs to regroup and regain its profitability. Mills, formerly with Hudson's, "is a pro," Marx said. "He'll bring the best out of them."

New players

Mills already has brought in three new people, including Beverly A. Rice, whom he named senior vice president for fashion and merchandising strategy on Jan. 20. She'll orchestrate the planning, development and implementation of the company's fashion themes.

Rice will collaborate with merchandising, marketing and the individual stores to articulate a company-wide fashion identity. She has been vice-president/general manager at N. Theobold, Inc., Giddings-Jenny, and L.S. Ayres & Co.

Marx sees Jacobson's becoming more pro-active in their drive to not only keep their current customer but appeal to others. It's the ability to "become more meaningful to the next audience without giving up what you are."

When Crowley's closes next month, Jacobson's will be downtown Birmingham's sole retail anchor.

"Jacobson's plays a vital role in our economy," reports Geoffrey Hockman, chairman of Birmingham's Principal Shopping District. "I only know what I read in the papers. I have no information on which to be nervous. I know the Birmingham store is an important store in their chain."

Jacobson's History

1869: Abram Jacobson opens small women's apparel shop in Reed City.
1904: Son, Moses Jacobson, moves to Jackson and purchases the Falkner-Porter store.
1920: The store moves to a new, four-story building and Moses Jacobson names it for his mother, Esther Jacobson.
1924: Moses Jacobson organizes Jacobson Stores Inc. and opens stores in Battle Creek and Ann Arbor.
1939: Brothers Nathan and Zola Rosenfeld purchase the corporation.
1942: The Jackson store is remodeled and enlarged and Jacobson's begins an expansion program throughout Michigan, Ohio, Florida, Indiana, Kentucky and Kansas.
1950: Jacobson's opens in Birmingham, adds second level in 1961 and a third-story addition in 1971.
1953: The company opens The Home Store, including furnishings and gifts in some locations, including Birmingham.
1978: Jacobson's opens in Rochester Hills.
1982: Nathan Rosenfeld dies. Russell Fowler becomes chairman of the board. Mark Rosenfeld is named president.
1987: Jacobson's Livonia opens.
1991: Jacobson's ends its never-on-Sunday tradition, opening its stores seven days a week.
1993: Russell Fowler retires. Mark Rosenfeld is named CEO. The company phases out furniture, setting up a consolidation of the Birmingham store from three to two buildings.
1995: Separate Children's Store closes in Birmingham. Moves to third story of former Home Store.
1996: Mark Rosenfeld resigns. P. Gerald Mills is named chairman and CEO. A month later, James B. Fowler resigns as president.
1997: Jacobson's announces the closing of three stores – Dearborn, Kalamazoo and its first store in Jackson.

McMahon's designs delight art lovers

BY SUSAN DEMAGGIO

Fantastic buttons take center stage in Pam McMahon's spring collection which surely deserves a standing ovation.

Pam McMahon

If you can afford an outfit ($1,800-$2,700 sold exclusively through Neiman Marcus) you'll own a classic work of clothing art. Each garment element was chosen for its "whimsy factor" from the colorful contrasting linings to the unique trims at collar and cuffs.

"I just wanted to make clothing that was different and fun," she said at a recent breakfast to promote the Michigan Humane Society's Paws for Celebration benefit Sept. 13.

"Each piece is created by my husband Ed McMahon's tailors in Beverly Hills, from designs I put together in my garage/studio. Many of the buttons are antiques from the 20's and 30's, or we make them. The fabrics are silks and tapestries from Europe and California."

The McMahons have been married for five years and share a love of dogs, owning five – two golden retrievers, a basset hound and two "precious mixtures."They support many charities including the Chrinshaw Christian Center in south central L.A.for disadvantaged youth and a portion of the profits from The McMahon Collection go to the school.

"I left home very young," Pam explained. "And I am honored and blessed for the way my life has turned out. I want to give something back."

She said that although she lacks formal design training, she's able to draw from a life-long love of beautiful clothes and a creative imagination. The fabrics, linings and trims are selected for nine basic suit styles, some pants, some skirts. The fall collection, McMahon's third offering, will introduce leather, evening clothes and blouse designs.

"I'm so proud of her," said Denise Lutz who became close friends with Pam when their husbands both served on the board of directors for an air museum. "Her clothes put a smile on your face because they are so special and wearable."

McMahon said she hopes to eventually design shoes and purses for her collections.

Think spring! Swim suits are in!

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
STAFF WRITER

Whether you have a cruise planned or are simply staying put this winter, it's time to start thinking about swim wear.

According to Rachelle Fanelli, owner of Sunny J's Lingerie and Leisure Wear in Plymouth, December, January and February are hot months for swim suit sales because the selection is best. This year manufacturers continue to fine tune designs in realization more of us are working out, but we still need a little help when it comes to fighting gravity and eliminating unwanted bulges.

The buzz word this season is "control" so fabrics have a higher percentage of lycra to camouflage, emphasize or provide a shapely lift. Still finding the "right" suit is never easy.

"The hardest decision a lady's going to make is buying a bathing suit because it reveals so much of the body," said Fanelli. "Most of our customers get to know us because of the bra-fitting service we offer. As professional bra fitters, we work with our clients' figures to find the perfect swimsuit. It makes it easier for them because they're not going in and out of the dressing room trying on dozens of suits."

Fanelli begins a swim suit fitting by asking what asset a customer least likes.

"A lot of women think they need a suit with a skirt but that emphasizes the problem. Another big misconception is clothing size correlates with swimsuit size. We take a measurement to find the correct bra size and go from there," she said.

At Sunny J's, bra cups in swim wear begin at A and go all the way to G. Over her last 11 years in business, Fanelli has found 70 percent of her first time bra fittings are wearing the wrong size. In a swim suit, this error causes shoulder straps to slip and the suit to ride up.

Surfin' style: For guys, longer trunks come in a variety of colors at Target from $14.99.

Take control

"About six to eight years ago, designers and manufacturers started realizing people are getting more body conscious. There are two ways people can accomplish control: a full girdle by Carol Wior takes away the tummy with power netting, or with a suit by cutting edge designer Anne Klein, who's come out with a high-cut neck."

Carol Wior believes so strongly in the one-piece patented Slimsuit she takes her 85 piece collection around the country using a before and after model to show the slimming difference. Sold with a tape measure, Slimsuit guarantees to take an inch or more off the waistline.

"As people are getting older, they're more body conscious. They want to look good and feel good about their body. For the lady who's wearing a miracle bra everyday, she doesn't want to get to the beach and look flat. A number of suits including ones by Mainstream and Anne Klein have push-up bras or bust cups. And if a suit doesn't have it we can sew them in," said Fanelli.

Designer Anne Klein offers fashion focused on body flattering fit. Swim suits from the "Figures" line of her Cruise '97 collection have 84 percent more lycra than most industry swimsuits. In addition, the heavier fabrics help sculpt the body poured into classic tanks, square necks, alluring high necks, and sculpture tank maillots. A basic black maillot with a higher neckline ($96) provides large busted women more coverage.

"Anne Klein was the trend setter this year. She's gone to sable, olive and black and lowered the leg an inch. Now that the leg has been lowered, it's not up to your navel anymore," said Fanelli.

"But in general, the trend is to a two piece suit, separates. Another trend is that people are getting larger on top. While some of this is attributed to implants, teenagers 12 to 18 have gotten much larger in the last 10 years."

Exelent Designs by Patricia Karalla, based in Warren, has everything from thongs to full coverage tops and bottoms (about $46 each) "for the lady who thought she couldn't wear a two piece."

Beach Bound Ltd. in Birmingham takes a slightly different approach to finding the perfect suit. Owner Carol Bross, who in her 11 years of creating custom swim wear, has yet to see the body that fits perfectly into a production swimsuit.

"By appointment only, we show customers different styles to try on. Once they find what they like, we take measurements every inch down the body for one pieces and not as many for a two piece. Then they choose their material," said Carol Bross.

More than 300 fabrics in cotton/lycra and nylon/lycra are available. Plan on a one week wait for these custom suits. Prices range from $70 to $150.

Also popular this season are cover ups. At Sunny's J's, Anne Klein's sheer black vest is a winner at only $30.

"Many women want a matching cover up to go from their hotel room to the pool or at community pools. The good news is they're lower in price this year."

Function and flair: If you're not in shape for your bikini and you're heading south, don't despair! From Honors, a polka-dotted swimdress sizes 8-16, $19.99 at Target.

Hudson's hosts essay contest
Hudson's invites students to participate in a Black History month contest. Students must write (in 150 words or less) "What Black History Means to Me." Winners and runners-up will be chosen in three age groups: 6-9 years; 10-13 years; 14-18 years. Winners receive a $100 gift certificate and four tickets to Greenfield Village & Museum. Pick up entries at any Hudson store – contest deadline is Friday, Feb. 28. Details on the entry forms.

Sally's inventory grows
Sally Horvitz at Sally's Design Boutique in The Orchard Mall, West Bloomfield, reminds Joan Vass clients that even though the Joan Vass boutique at Somerset Collection South closed last year, they can still find her collections locally at Sally's. Horvitz will also arrange special orders and size checks.

Sally announces that she is an exclusive retailer of the new Sid and Samm line.

Another Home Depot opens
Home Depot cuts the ribbon on another metro-Detroit location, Feb. 26 from 6-9 p.m. at 355 Haggerty Highway in Commerce Township. Many municipal and community leaders will attend the pre-opening reception.

The store opens to the public on Feb. 27 at 6 a.m.

Features of the 111,000-square foot home improvement warehouse include a bridal registry, 20,000-square foot garden center, a design center and installation services. Home Depot was founded in 1978 in Atlanta, Ga. and now claims to be the largest "hardware" center in the U.S.

Spring fashion benefit
Neiman Marcus' annual "Art of Fashion" event to benefit Hospice of Southeastern Michigan is Thursday, March 6 at 11:30 a.m. Tickets are $100, $50 and $35, and include passed hors d'oeuvres, a formal runway show on the third level, and a reception following in the couture salon. For ticket reservations call (810) 443-5900.

Builders show on the way
The 79th annual International Builders Home, Flower and Furniture Show arrives just in time to dispel cabin fever and influence spring cleaning and remodeling plans.

The big event runs March 15-23 at Detroit's Cobo Conference Center with more than 400 exhibitors. Monday-Friday hours 2-10 p.m. Saturdays 11 a.m. to 10 p.m. and Sundays 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Admission is $6.50 for adults; $4.50 for seniors; $4 for children 6-12 years. Discount coupons come with this month's Edison bills. (810) 737-4478.

Dentistry in the 90s
by Herbert M. Gardner, D.D.S. & Martha P. Zinderman, R.N., D.D.S.
BEATING GUM DISEASE
Traditionally, the advanced form of gum disease known as periodontitis is addressed by surgically lifting back the gums, scraping underlying teeth down to the roots, and stitching the gums back into place. If this procedure fails to improve the condition of the gums, tooth extraction is generally recommended. Now, recent research indicates that short-term use of antibiotics used in conjunction with deep cleaning and scaling of the teeth may significantly improve the condition of the gums to the point where tooth extraction may not be necessary. When researchers gave periodontal patients oral doses and local applications of two antibiotics (metronidazole and doxycycline), combined with deep cleaning and scaling, they found that the need for surgery was reduced by 93 percent and for extractions by 81 percent.
You need not lose your teeth to gum disease. Periodontal disease is usually a slow, painless, progressive disease. At LIVONIA VILLAGE DENTAL ASSOCIATES, we will do everything possible to insure that your visits to us will be as comfortable and pleasant as possible. We're located at 19171 Merriman Road, where our sole aim is to provide gentle, compassionate dental care of the highest quality. Please call 478-2110 to schedule an appointment. Smiles are our business.

P.S. The best defense against gum disease is to brush and floss daily, as well as to schedule yearly dental exams.

Fairlane extends evening hours

Fairlane Town Center in Dearborn announced that the center's Saturday hours will be extended by three hours beginning March 15.

Saturday hours for the entire center will be 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Currently, the center's mall shops close on Saturday evening at 6 p.m.

"Over the last year we have listened to our customers and tenants. Many of our time-pressed customers are finding the early closing inconvenient. In addition, our tenants have expressed a preference for the center's traditional 10 a.m.-9 p.m. Saturday hours," said Aj D. Jemison, general manager.

"We have taken the necessary time to focus on Fairlane Town Center's goal: offering Wayne County and the surrounding area the premier family shopping experience."

In the past two years, Fairlane has introduced numerous programs and amenities focused on Fairlane's core family customer.

These include a children's play area, new family restrooms, free week-day evening valet parking, the 20th Anniversary Celebration events and the Be True to Your School program.

In coming weeks Fairlane Town Center will announce a lineup of family-focused entertainment and activities.

The tri-level regional shopping center is located off the Southfield Freeway at Michigan Avenue and Hubbard. For more information call the center at (313) 593-3546.

Where can I find?

Thanks to all the readers who phoned in locations for the hard to find items listed last week!

Here's what we found:

- Several readers report great success with very long-lasting light bulbs from the N.O.V.A.H. Co. of Clearwater, FLA. The toll-free number for orders is 1-800-243-6555.
- More readers called in with names of their favorite smoke-free beauty salons – all the JC Penney salons, Head West of Novi.
- "Jeannette" has the crocus-pattern dinnerware and has been put in touch with the searcher.
- Penelope Avesion reports that the Kitchen Glamour stores have flat KitchenAid beaters, and Williams & Sonoma stores offer a toll-free number to Culinary Parts Unlimited a good source for parts from Krups, Waring, Norelco, Brita, KitchenAid, Bodum, Hamiliton Beach, Presto, Faberware and Salton to name a few. They ship within 24 hours of your order 1-800-543-7549.
- A reader found Schmartzau Strawberry Preserves plus other products at Vic's Market on Grand River east of Novi Road.
- Handyman Doug Newell said Kolmar makes a leveling compound that fills cracks in linoleum. The number for inquiries: 1-800-626-1876.
- Mrs. Schaefer says Hudson's might carry Smooth Ones products or special order them.
- The Mayflower Button Club of Plymouth offers appraisals and information about antique buttons according to member Connie Fitzner (313) 453-7078.

We're still looking for:

- A retailer who sells Permknit Sportswear for "Cynthia" of Birmingham.
- A special request from Diane Hackman of Garden City for elementary school readers from the 50s and 60s: "As a student at the old St. Hedwig's School I recall using blue-covered Polish readers, about 10-inches by 5-inches, with the Christ Child on the cover that listed words in both Polish and English. I'm also hoping to locate those old Dick and Jane readers."
- An old CD of saxophone artists Body & Soul by Verve.
- Sandi of Troy wants a 1990 edition of Hudson's Santa Bear to complete a collection.
- We're back to needing a copy of Well Savored Passages. A boating couple wants the book for navigating Lake Huron's channels and a xerox copy doesn't work well.
- Veronica Stevenson needs a copy of the manual for the Viking Sewing Machine, model 6030. She does not want the company's entire product line manual, just the pages that apply to her machine.
- A Polyperk Electric coffee pot that makes 6-8 cups for Terry Leszczynski of Garden City.
- Megaware from France for Sandy Crocker. "I bought it about 10 years ago from Farmer Jack's and I want to purchase more."
- Rose Marie Windelski is looking for fresh onion bread that she used to buy from Chatham's that you put in the oven and bake. "It's not frozen," she insisted. "It's delicious with ham and I want it for Easter."
- A Corelle pattern of dishes "Spring Pond" for Kit Lynn.
- Paula MaCue hopes to quickly locate an antique "Boy Scouts in the Wilderness," which is part of an old collection for a shopping buddy.
- Wayne Peal is looking for a pair of Beatle boots complete with elastic gussets and Cuban heels – 11 1/2 D-please.
- A reader is trying to find a linoleum patch product to seal a cracked floor from moisture. Does anyone know of such a product?
- Mary Drummy of Grosse Pointe is hoping to find a copy of The Other Half of the Egg, (180 ways to use up extra yolks or whites) by Helen McCully.
- Robert Kunz hopes to find two NASCAR collectibles 1/64 scale: #8 Kenny Wace "Red Dog" and #98 the RCA car. Call him at (313) 427-3914.
- Marlene Hyet wants to know whatever happened to Sophie's Pierogis on Maple in Troy. Did the store relocate?
- A woman is looking for cassette tapes called "Song of Praise" Volumes 1-3 by now-defunct Servant Publications of Ann Arbor.
- Roz Novak needs a copy of Danny Kaye singing "Momma Give Me a Drink of Water."
- "Mrs. Ray" is wondering if there is any market for the old Avon articles she's collected from catalogs of the past.
- Ever see Magic Baking Powder made by Nabisco of Toronto on your grocery shelf? A caller doesn't want to travel to Canada any more to buy it.

If you've seen any of these items in your travels, let Malls & Mainstreets know and we'll print the answers. Please call (810) 901-2567.

St. Mary Hospital's addition dedicated

The new west addition at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia was dedicated and blessed and artifacts were placed in the cornerstone during a special ceremony Wednesday.

Cardinal Adam Maida, archbishop of the Archdiocese of Detroit, performed the blessing and dedication for a gathering of more than 300 people which included hospital, government and business officials and community guests.

Directing the program was David Brandon, chairman of the board of trustees at St. Mary Hospital and CEO of Valassis, a printing-insert company based in Livonia.

Brandon jokingly referred to himself as "part-time business executive and full-time member of the board at St. Mary."

Livonia Mayor Jack Kirksey called the hospital facility "absolutely second to none."

Deb Pace, who brought greetings from Gov. John Engler and other local lawmakers, said she was honored to be part of this dedication because she was born in St. Mary.

Others were equally warm in their praise for the new facility.

"It's an honor to help St. Mary open a new chapter," said Wayne County Commissioner Thaddeus McCotter, adding the new facility is an example of "what the hands can do if our hearts are open to God."

Another guest, Debbie Dunn, a nursing instructor at Madonna University and a former employee at the hospital, called the hospital "a wonderful place."

"I worked here for 17 years," said Dunn, a Plymouth resident. "This is the kind of place where people come and stay for a long time."

Community guests Mary and Walter Oren of Redford Township, were at the dedication because "this hospital has been a big part of lives."

Mary's sister is presently in the hospital.

The 89,000-square-foot addition, scheduled to open for use in late February or early March, will house the Marian Women's Center, Miracle of Life Maternity Center, Perioperative Services including new surgical suites and the Central Processing Department.

It's the fifth major expansion of the hospital which opened in 1959 "providing high quality health care to the communities we serve," said Sister Mary Modesta, president and CEO, at Wednesday's ceremony.

Maida paid tribute to the Felician Orders calling them "faithfully committed to serving the community." He called the square mile of Livonia from Schoolcraft to Five Mile and from Levan to Newburgh "truly holy ground."

In addition to St. Mary Hospital, the Felician Order also operates Madonna University, Ladywood High School, Marywood Nursing Home and a retirement community for clergy.

A public open house of the new addition is from 1-5 p.m. today at the hospital and will feature tours, food, clowns, information booths, an historical display and gifts.

Albert Kahn Associates served as architects and Barton Malow Company served as construction manager on the project, which began in February 1995.

Opened in 1959, the hospital is sponsored by the Felician Sisters and is affiliated with William Beaumont Hospital. The new addition won't add beds to the 304-bed facility, but will relocate four departments.

At Wednesday's ceremony, artifacts placed in the cornerstone included: a crucifix, a picture of Our Lady of the Millennium; a statue of St. Joseph; a picture of St. Felix of Cantalice; a picture and medal of Mother Mary Angela Truszkowska, foundress of Felician Sisters; the St. Mary Hospital mission statement; state, county and city proclamations; a list of board members, medical and hospital staff, volunteers, architects and contractors; a list of religious and civil leaders; a guest list; invitations to the groundbreaking and dedication; brochures; the dedication program-booklet; the Livonia Observer supplement on the new addition; the Livonia Observer, and other newspapers.

After the ceremony guests were invited on a tour of the new facility where Ladywood High School students posed as patients in the maternity center and in the operating rooms. Area students will also pose as patients during today's open house tours, according to Julie Sproul, director of community relations at the hospital.

Susan Rosiek and Beth Sundrla Jachman contributed to this story.

Mayoral appointment criticized

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

Despite questions raised by some city council members, Westland Mayor Robert Thomas confirmed last week that he will try to appoint a second Wayne-Westland school board trustee to the city's nine-member planning commission.

But his nomination of David Cox will face strong opposition from at least three of seven Westland City Council members who say they will refuse to confirm Cox.

Citing a potential conflict of interest, council members Charles Pickering, Glenn Anderson and Richard LeBlanc said they don't believe that two Wayne-Westland school board members should serve on the planning commission.

Their opposition follows two votes that school board member David James cast Jan. 7 as a mayoral-appointed planning commissioner.

James made planning commission motions that the council approve a 92-condominium development to be built on 11.9 acres of property owned by the Wayne-Westland school district.

The financially strapped school district stands to gain $298,000 by selling property next to Patchin Elementary School on Newburgh Road south of Warren – a sale that is supposed to occur by Feb. 10.

Pickering, Anderson and LeBlanc said James should have abstained from the planning commission vote and disclosed his interest as a school board member.

"That is a definite conflict – an ethical conflict," LeBlanc said Tuesday.

New nomination

The controversy surrounding James has bolstered council opposition to the mayor's nomination of Cox to the planning commission.

Early on, Pickering notified Thomas in writing that he would oppose Cox's nomination.

"If Dave (Cox) were to be confirmed, he would be the second member on the commission that is also a trustee on the Wayne-Westland Community School Board," Pickering wrote on Jan. 9. "I believe this creates an imbalance on the (planning) commission."

Pickering also has asked City Attorney Angelo Plakas for a still-pending opinion on whether proper process was followed when the council voted 4-3 on Jan. 21 to support the condominium development next to Patchin School.

On Monday, the mayor said he didn't perceive any ethical problems with James' vote.

"I don't see it as a problem," Thomas said, adding that the planning commission is merely a recommending body to the council.

James has reserved comment until Plakas issues his opinion.

The dispute over James' dual roles has drawn more attention to the mayor's nomination of Cox, a former city council member who was defeated in a November 1995 re-election bid. He was subsequently elected to the school board in June of 1996.

Pickering said the James controversy "is a good example" of why another school board member shouldn't be appointed to the planning commission.

Pickering, Anderson and LeBlanc said the planning commission should include members with a diversity of backgrounds. "Having two members of the school board kind of goes against that philosophy," Pickering said.

Mayor says no conflict

Cox's nomination had been placed on the council's Jan. 21 agenda, but Thomas asked that it be removed because he was out of town. Some council members questioned whether Cox's name would resurface, but Thomas confirmed Monday that he will nominate Cox.

"I don't see any conflict," he said, adding that Cox's background as a council member qualifies him for a planning commission post.

Moreover, Thomas said council members who have raised ethical questions "are just looking to use that as an excuse to try to turn (Cox) down for political reasons."

LeBlanc disagreed. "It's not the person; it's the position that the person holds."

Anderson said Cox's appointment "could really not be the best thing for the city. There are too many other people who are qualified that do not have a potential conflict."

CARRIER OF THE MONTH: CANTON

Michael Marsico, 13, of Canton was named carrier of the month for February. He started his Canton Observer route in January of 1993. He is an 8th grader at Central Middle School and has a B-plus average. He delivers his route in the Windsor Park Subdivision. His parents are Robert and Mary Anne Marsico. He has a brother, Matthew, 11; and a sister, Melissa, 16. His favorite subjects are math and science. His hobbies include collecting model cars, playing basketball, football and roller hockey. His team was the division champs and tournament champs for basketball. His future plans include attending Penn State University or the University of Notre Dame and maybe becoming a science teacher. He likes the responsibility and making his own spending money most about his route. He has learned how to meet a deadline and to manage his money while delivering his papers. He feels that other young people could benefit by teaching them responsibility and the ability to deal with people.

Commissioners: Serving city, schools doesn't mean conflict

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER

As a former Farmington planning commissioner and school board member, Jim Abernethy faced decisions that affected the finances of the city and the school district.

Like David James, a Westland planning commissioner and Wayne-Westland school board member, Abernethy didn't abstain from voting.

"Unless an action stands to benefit me personally, I ought to be able to cast a vote," Abernethy, a Lawrence Technological University professor of architecture, said Tuesday.

"I didn't feel that would cause me to be in a conflict of interest," he added later.

James, in his role as Westland planning commissioner, has come under fire for recommending that the Westland City Council approve a condominium development that will pump $298,000 into school district coffers.

The district will receive the money from the sale of 11.9 acres of land adjacent to Patchin Elementary School on Newburgh south of Warren.

Several council members consider James' action as a planning commissioner to be a conflict of interest. Councilman Charles Pickering has asked City Attorney Angelo Plakas for an opinion.

Abernethy said he believes that an elected school board member should be allowed to vote as an appointed planning commissioner on issues that affect schools and city government — unless personal gain is at issue.

"I think it should be allowed," Abernethy said Tuesday, when contacted by the Observer for his opinion.

In some ways, Abernethy said, a school board member who serves in an appointed city post can become a liaison who proves beneficial to both bodies.

Westland Mayor Robert Thomas has noted that Pickering in the past has called for more links between city government and the school district. James' two-tiered role is one way of fostering such involvement, Thomas said.

In Farmington, Abernethy said he once faced a decision whether to support the creation of a Downtown Development Authority that would generate tax revenues through tax increment financing.

The plan, which won approval, froze school district tax revenues in a specially designated area. The district was asked to accept the DDA plan.

Even though the district would lose some immediate revenues, Abernethy said he supported the TIFA proposal because it would help the city of Farmington and, eventually, the school district.

"I didn't have any personal gain in this one way or the other," Abernethy said. "I didn't gain a cent personally."

Westland council members haven't alleged that James, a Realtor, will benefit financially from the condominium development.

They have, however, voiced opinions that he should have

Once Upon an Easel story continues

Great news for area artists – a new concept in art stores will open March 1 at 8691 N. Lilley in Canton's Golden Gate Plaza. An open house 1-4 p.m. Saturday will not only offer free art demonstrations, face painting and refreshments, but also acquaint customers with all of the merchandise and services offered by owner Sharon Dillenbeck.

Actually, the store is not new. Dillenbeck simply moved the old D & M Art Studio from Plymouth and revamped her business plan to include such extras as serving as a clearing house for portrait commissions. For 12 years, the Canton artist had offered art instruction in Old Village. Classes at the new Canton location begin the first week of March.

Showcasing works

In addition to instruction and a summer art camp for children, Once Upon an Easel will showcase a gallery of local artists' and children's art works. It will also give artists the opportunity to take their art from an idea to reality by providing services such as a lending library with art reference and rentals of art fair tents, display screens and easels. There will also be an artist on hand at all times to answer questions.

"The whole concept is one stop shopping for anything art at palette-able prices. Our trade-in, trade-up policy is ideal for students who've bought materials they no longer need like tubes of paint, easels and brushes. Just because a tube of paint is open doesn't mean it isn't usable anymore," said Sharon Dillenbeck who plans to put those tubes to use in her painting classes.

"We'll also have art birthday parties, classes for teachers and a lending library where anyone who donates books will never have to pay to borrow a book. You'll even be able to rent tents, display racks and easels to host your own art show."

Another unique concept Dillenbeck has conceived is a Try-It-Then-Buy-It policy. A separate area will be set aside where customers can try brushes, pastels and paints before they buy. She's learned first hand, the cost for materials mount up quickly.

An Art Institute of Pittsburgh graduate, Dillenbeck's spent untold hours creating art over the years along with teaching the subject at Our Lady of Victory in Northville. The fact, all of the classes she teaches at the Plymouth Cultural Center, Canton's Summit on the Park and the Westland Bailey Center include art materials in the price, also drilled home the expense of paints, brushes and paper.

Legendary artist to lecture in Ann Arbor

STANLEY LIVINGSTON

Stellar Print: Owned by Wendy and Jeff Roth of West Bloomfield, this mixed media print by Frank Stella is currently on display through April 13.

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
STAFF WRITER

If experience is the best teacher, internationally renowned artist Frank Stella should rank at the top of the list as a visiting professor. As an artist living and working in New York since the late 1950s, Stella was part of the Minimal Art movement in the 1960s. Best known for his "hard edge" paintings and unconventionally-shaped canvases, Stella has work in the permanent collections of the Museum of Modern Art and Whitney Museum in New York, Art Institute of Chicago, Walker Art Center in Minneapolis, and the Detroit Institute of Arts as well as museums in Paris, Amsterdam, West Germany and The Netherlands.

The University of Michigan School of Art & Design is hoping its students as well as the community will take advantage of a visit and lecture by the legendary artist 7 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 25, at Rackham Auditorium in Ann Arbor. The lecture is free and open to the public. This is the third of a series of visits to the university by Stella since September.

"We had an overflow crowd for last October in the amphitheater. That's why we're moving this lecture to the auditorium with a seating capacity of 1,000," said Peg Kusnerz, assistant to art school dean Allen Samuels.

"Generally we have an audience ranging in age from 18 to 24 but with Frank Stella we're seeing a broader spectrum because his art reaches all ages. Although Frank Stella is this international artist who dearly loves what he's doing, he has the ability to share that and make it accessible."

Stella is no stranger to this area. When he visited the art school in October, West Bloomfield collectors Wendy and Jeff Roth held an open house to introduce the 60-year-old artist to the arts community. They began collecting Stella's work nearly 20 years ago. A print from their collection, "Illustrations After El Lissitzsky's Had Gadya," is currently on display in the Michigan Collectors exhibition continuing through April 13 at the University of Michigan Museum of Art. Created between 1982 and 1984, the print combines the techniques of lithography, linoleum cut and silkscreen with hand coloring and collage.

"Frank Stella's one of the foremost living contemporary masters in the world. I like the style of his work and his colorations," said Jeff Roth.

Daughter Wendy Roth, a graduating senior at the art school, heard Stella's lecture and student critiques last fall and plans to attend the Tuesday evening session as well.

"It was interesting to have someone as famous as him to comment on everybody's work as opposed to a teacher. Even though I'm a graphic artist and he's a fine artist, I gained a lot from his visit," said Leslie Roth.

A Perfect Arc

What: A lecture by internationally renowned artist Frank Stella, known for his "hard edge" paintings. Presented by the University of Michigan School of Art & Design in conjunction with a two-day stint as a visiting professor at the art school, the lecture is part of the Visiting Artists & Designers Program.

When: 7 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 25.

Where: Rackham Auditorium in Ann Arbor. Admission is free and open to the public. For more information, call (313) 764-0397.

Although artists and designers throughout the years have visited the School of Art & Design, this is the first season for the formally organized Visiting Artists and Designers Program. Flyers announcing the series of lectures by Stella, sculptor Ellen Driscoll and former Detroit Institute of Arts curator Jan van der Marck were mailed to alumni and friends of the school living in Bloomfield Hills, Toledo and the Detroit area last fall.

Kusnerz, sculpture professor Jon Rush, and painting professors Jim Kogswell and Vince Castagnacci comprise the visual arts committee which scheduled Stella's visits. Castagnacci first had the opportunity to gain in-depth knowledge of Stella's art when the University of Michigan Museum of Art curated a retrospective exhibition of his prints that toured the U.S. from 1982 to 1985.

"Scheduling three visits by the same artist is something new for us. We decided we needed more of a dialogue so he could meet with students, become familiar with their ideas, then come back and address some of the progress. During the last two visits he gave impressions and advice and talked about his art. It was immensely beneficial. Students were incredibly responsive and appreciative. He's an inspiration, the kind of energy he's brought. He brings to this situation more than informed experience and knowledge," said Vince Castagnacci before turning to Stella's art and the reason why they chose him as a visiting professor.

"In the best sense, Stella is open for question on every level. The work provokes controversy, dealing as it does in contrasts, both formally and as a narrative. A salient feature of his work is informed energy. We sense a physical mind at work. He sets the tempo in the late 1950s and it has never flagged. If this is true in terms of sheer energy, the same can be said of his appetite. Stella is a voracious feeder, alternately nourished and exhausted by this theme or that subject though it's uncertain whether he is the exhauster or the exhaustee."

DSO orchestrates star-studded 1997-98 season

BY FRANE PROVENZANO

On a recent trip to New York City, Detroit Symphony Orchestra executive director Mark Volpe accompanied renowned cellist Yo-Yo Ma to Carnegie Hall. They were on their way to attend Isaac Stern's 75th birthday party. "We're all friends and have good working relationships," said Volpe.

Assembled at Stern's mid-winter celebration was a Who's Who of the classical world. Apparently, Volpe has drawn on his many inside connections in arranging next season's concert schedule.

Whereas the current season features a distinct international flavor, 1997-98 highlights several legendary classical and jazz artists. And, of course, there are several surprises. "It's an unprecedented star-studded season," said Volpe.

The big-names in DSO 1997-98 season are known well beyond the classical world. Popular performers include Stern, Yo-Yo Ma, Kathleen Battle, James Galway and Helen Huang.

Artbeat features various happenings in the suburban arts world. Send news leads to Linda Ann Chomin, Observer Newspapers, Inc., 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, MI 48150, or fax them to (313) 591-7279.

FINAL DAYS

Time is running out to see the Thunderbird Supercoupes rendered by Livonia artist Susan Roush McClenaghan at Livonia City Hall. Her one person show of paintings, vehicle graphics and computer generated portraits of vintage cars continues through Feb. 28.

One of two current Livonia Arts Commission shows on view, Roush McClenaghan's exhibit moves easily between the worlds of commercial and fine art. Because she grew up surrounded by racing cars one would expect her talents to lean in the direction of high-powered automobiles, but Roush McClenaghan captures the magic of golden wing horses battling in mid-air just as well.

Hours are 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

In addition to the Livonia City Hall show, the arts commission continues to display Dakotah Designs basketry by Kathi Fricke through Feb. 26 in the second floor showcases at the Livonia Civic Center Library.

An accomplished weaver, Fricke uses shed antlers as handles in many of her baskets. The free form design of each basket flows from the size and shape of the deer, elk and moose antlers. Her work has been shown at the Dayton Institute of Arts' Oktoberfest and the Michigan Renaissance Festival.

Library hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, until 5 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and 1-5 p.m. Sunday.

STORYTELLER TO PERFORM

It has been a busy year for Plymouth Township storyteller Debbie Christian. Last August she was a semi-finalist in the "National Storyteller of the Year" competitions. Her performance of the original story "Grandpa's Journey" was first runner up in the nation and earned her a prize of $1,000.

On Friday, Feb. 28 she will be performing adult stories for the 10th annual Storytelling Festival at The Ark's new location on Main Street in Ann Arbor. At 1 p.m. Saturday, March 1 she will be on WDET Public Radio 101.9 on the show "Folks Like Us."

Sunday, March 2 she returns to The Ark for children's storytelling shows at 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. For tickets call (313) 761-1800.

Christian's first commercial audio tape will be released at the end of February. Entitled "Cherished Tales," it includes her award winning story "Grandpa's Journey."

ARTIST NAILS AWARDS

Wendy Weldon is at it again. Winning awards, that is. She won one trophy for First Place in the fantasy nail category and another for Third Place in flat nail art at the North American Beauty Show Internationale held Feb. 2-3 at the Renaissance Center in Detroit.

A technician at The Nail Station in Plymouth, Weldon has won six trophies for her original art. Her creations have also been published in magazines.

For her First Place creation at the beauty show in Detroit, Weldon used a live model's set of nails upon which to build a 3-dimensional heart shaped rose trellis with two angels or Cupids sitting and kissing on a swing. Crafted entirely from acrylic except for a gold chain suspending the swing, the work was modeled after an Italian Renaissance painting. In the flat art nail category, Weldon painted cameos of a man and woman against a background of black and green Florentine marble.

WATERCOLOR WORKSHOP

Chase away those winter blues by taking a landscape watercolor workshop with Farmington Hills artist Gwen Tomkow 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Friday, Feb. 28 and Saturday, March 1 at the Visual Arts Association of Livonia, 9501 Henry Ruff in the Jefferson Center.

The cost is $45 for VAAL members, $50 for nonmembers.

Bring in photographs of your favorite places. Tomkow will give tips on composition, color and artistic interpretation. Having trouble painting skies or a northern Michigan lake? Tomkow will show you how.

Be sure to bring a Chinese brush, because she will also teach new techniques.

For more information or to register call Billie Thompson at (313) 427-9767 or 427-9683.

OPENING RECEPTION

The Scarab Club kicks off its 1997 Silver Medal Exhibition of Michigan and Ontario artists with an awards reception 2-5 p.m. Sunday, March 9 in its historic building at 217 Farnsworth behind the Detroit Institute of Arts.

The show begins March 2 and runs through the 30th.

Farmington Hills artist Tom Hale will judge the entries awarding a total of $900 in cash prizes. Hale is internationally known for his acrylic paintings of classic cars. He will give a critique of the show 7 p.m. Wednesday, March 19.

Gallery hours are noon to 5 p.m. Wednesday to Sunday.

CALL FOR ARTISTS

The Ann Arbor Art Center is looking for works in all media including clay, fiber, glass, metal, oil, acrylic, paper and wood to display in its MADe House '97, Michigan Artist Design for the Home. The house is custom built, fully furnished and accessorized with original works of art. Expected to draw 5,000 visitors, the house is featured as part of the highly successful showcase of homes June 14-29.

The MADe House offers artists in every medium the opportunity to promote and highlight innovation in furnishing and design in the home environment in addition to engaging the community in the education, exhibition and exploration of the visual arts. For more information call (313) 994-8004.

Suburbanites fuel Orchestra Hall revitalization

BY MATT JACHMAN
STAFF WRITER

Two suburbanites are in the forefront of a Detroit revitalization effort they say will create a cultural mecca for southeastern Michigan.

Developer Peter Cummings, who lives in Bloomfield Hills, and Katherine Beebe, a real estate consultant from Birmingham, are two of the movers behind Orchestra Place, an $80 million complex under construction in the area around Orchestra Hall, home of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

Orchestra Place will combine office, retail, dining and parking space, a new high school focused on the arts, and an Orchestra Hall expansion that will have amenities for musicians, concertgoers and symphony staff.

The 1997-98 Detroit Symphony Orchestra season will mark the first signs of major physical improvements to Orchestra Hall. By November, the initial phase of the three-phase project will include a 250-seat upscale restaurant and plenty of on-site parking.

"It represents the perfect kind of project for Detroit," said Beebe, a project manager, shortly after Orchestra Place was announced a year ago. "It's kind of the best of Detroit."

Cummings, vice chairman of the DSOH board, said the intent is to bring together cultural, educational and corporate organizations in a way that demonstrates their commitment to Detroit.

Cummings and DSOH executive director Mark Volpe said they sense a yearning for urban life among suburbanites, especially younger people for whom a symphony concert may be a new experience.

Orchestra Place will provide a comfortable "one-stop-shopping" urban atmosphere for concertgoers, students, musicians, DMC employees and workers at nearby businesses, he said.

Construction of the five-story office complex began in August, following the demolition of a former Winkelman's department store on the northwest corner of Woodward Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard. The office building is scheduled to open this November, and an adjoining parking structure in September.

Construction of the high school and the Orchestra Hall expansion will begin within the next two years.

The development is a joint effort between the Detroit Public Schools, the Detroit Symphony Orchestra Hall Board and the Detroit Medical Center, which will lease some of the new office space for its headquarters.

An estimated 400 to 500 DMC employees will work in the new office building, with about 300 of those workers relocated from suburban DMC locations. DSOH will have offices there as well.

The office complex will also have 50,000 square feet on the ground floor for refreshment and retail space. Possibilities include a coffee shop, an art gallery, a DSO store, and a book and music store. A major new restaurant will anchor the ground floor. It is the first office building built on Woodward between Grand Circus Park and Eight Mile in 35 years, Beebe said.

An 800-space parking structure, to be used by office workers and visitors during the day, and concertgoers in the evening, is under construction just west of the new office building.

The project, said Cummings and Volpe, could be a catalyst for more development in the Woodward Avenue corridor. "We are part of the fabric of this community," said Volpe, of Grosse Pointe Park.

Orchestra Hall expansion, 50,000 square feet, will add a lounge and locker facilities for musicians and a lobby for before- and after-concert activities. It will be paid for through DSOH fund-raising. The surrounding construction will not change the interior of Orchestra Hall, widely known for its excellent acoustics.

chalk, brushes, and paints for courses in basic drawing and two dimensional art this semester. Although she teaches preschool art part-time for Dillenbeck, Buffington still needs the break the Canton store could provide.

"Having a store like Once Upon An Easel is going to help a lot because the supplies they require us to buy, I wouldn't normally buy such as paint and cheaper brushes. So if next semester I want a better brush, I can trade it in. It's going to cut costs on my end," said Shandy Buffington.

Dillenbeck has taught children's art classes since 1971. As an artist who proudly refers to herself as a mom first, she has worked tirelessly as a volunteer for such organizations as the Plymouth Community Arts Council where she served on the board six years as well as brought art into elementary classrooms as a Picture Lady. A founding member of Canton Project Arts, she has co-produced and juried the Canton Liberty Fest Fine Arts Fair in Heritage Park for the last six years. She also introduced the first summer art camps in the area several years ago.

So it's no wonder when Dillenbeck went searching for her new location, she took into account the fact that children total 66 percent of her students.

If you miss the demonstrations during the open house, you can still learn more about classes in drawing, painting, ceramics, clay, and photography. Beginning April 1, Once Upon An Easel will hold free 20 minute children's mini sessions. Registration is required one week in advance.

"I had to make sure this was children friendly," said Dillenbeck. "I couldn't accommodate disabled kids before. Now this is handicap-accessible."

Linda Ann Chomin is the fine arts writer for The Observer Newspapers. Her Artistic Expressions column runs weekly in the Arts & Leisure section. To leave a voice mail message for her, call (313) 953-2145.

dents representing more than two-thirds of its audience, the DSO has targeted the area for an intensive subscription campaign. Generally, subscribers, which also include Wayne County residents, make up about 70 percent of the concert audience.

With a marquee lineup and intense marketing, Volpe expects a double-digit percentage increase in subscriptions for 1997-98. "In the classical music world, you have to build an audience," he said. "The earlier the better."

Overall, the season presents a "mosaic of sound," said Volpe. "We're trying to broaden ourselves in the community."

To increase audience appeal, the DSO offers five series, including selections of classical, American popular music, contemporary jazz, along with two programs for young concertgoers. Series run concurrently, from September to June.

Like the programs of other major symphonies around the country, the newly announced DSO season reflects an eclectic range of "classics." For instance, the eight-week Pops Series opens in mid October with Dave Brubeck, then features the music of Duke Ellington and Cole Porter. This year, the series adds a four-concert Thursday morning performance, "Coffee Pops."

After last year's near sell-out season, the upcoming Jazz Series continues with an impressive array of stylists, including Sonny Rollins and the Carnegie Hall Jazz Band.

Meanwhile, the DSO's educational outreach programs – the Young People's Concert Series and the Tiny Tots Series – are designed to teach basic musical concepts. A performance of "Raiders of the Lost Symphony" offers a playful lesson in the relationship between rhythm and melody. The Tiny Tots Series, which introduces children to music with the help of puppets and games, will be held at Mercy High School Auditorium in Farmington Hills.

Once again, DSO conductor Neeme Jarvi's music explorations has translated into an innovative DSO offering. In 1997-98, Jarvi, who's from the former Soviet republic of Estonia, will present music of films from the former Soviet Union and American filmmakers. Jarvi will also be on hand to conduct 35 performances over 12 weeks.

Along with the traditional music of Beethoven, Brahms, Mozart, Tchaikovsky and Stravinsky, the DSO will perform a work of Michigan composer Elaine Lebenbom.

Enter the O&E Oscar Derby

Hooray for Hollywood, and the Oscars! It's time to guess this year's Academy Award winners, and the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers with the Birmingham Theatre are getting ready for the big night.

The Birmingham Theatre is celebrating the Academy Awards by showing the five films nominated for Best Picture of the Year, March 14-23. On March 24, the theater will be hosting an Academy Awards Night Party to benefit Karmanos Cancer Institute and the Variety Club.

You can buy tickets for individual films, or a $45 pass for admission to all five films; plus an Academy Award Festival Prize Package with poster and other goodies; $125 tickets include admission to all five films, Academy Award prize package, and a ticket to the Academy Awards Night Party. Tickets available at the Birmingham Theatre or by calling, (810) 644-3419.

■ Look for the Oscar Derby entry form on this page to qualify for a chance to win a pair of VIP Premiere Passes to the Birmingham Theatre. The passes are good for one year, unlimited access to films shown at the Birmingham Theatre. Deadline to enter is 5 p.m. Friday, March 21.

Send/or fax your Oscar Derby entry form to Keely Wygonik, Entertainment Editor, Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, MI 48150, fax (313) 591-7279. One entry per person, you must be 21 or older to enter our contest. Employees of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, Inc., and their families, are not eligible.

Best actor nominee: Woody Harrelson received an Oscar best actor nomination for his role in "The People vs. Larry Flynt."

Early bird drawing

■ Readers who send/or fax their Oscar Derby entry forms to Keely Wygonik by 5 p.m. Friday, March 7, will qualify for a random early bird drawing to win:

■ An Academy Award Film Festival Party Package, which includes admission for two to all five Academy Award nominated films; plus an Academy Award Festival Prize Package with poster and other goodies; and two tickets to the Academy Awards Night Party Monday, March 24, at the Birmingham Theatre.

■ Academy Film Festival Pass for admission for two to all five Academy Award-nominated films. (There will be 10 winners).

■ Birmingham Theatre pass for two, valid Monday-Thursday. (There will be 10 winners).

Tim Allen hosts benefit premiere

Tim Allen and his wife Laura are hosting a special benefit premiere of Allen's new family comedy from Walt Disney Pictures/TF1 International, "Jungle 2 Jungle," 1 p.m. Sunday, March 2 at the Fox Theatre in Detroit. The premiere is a benefit for Lighthouse of Oakland County, Inc.

Tickets are now on sale for these benefit events.

■ Benefactor Gala – tickets $200 per person, includes cocktail/supper reception with Tim and Laura Allen and stand-up comedy entertainment on Saturday, March 1. An additional $100 includes reserved seating at Sunday's premiere screening and admission to the post-premiere afterglow at Detroit's Second City Comedy Club. Benefactor Gala tickets are available by calling Lighthouse (810) 253-3717.

■ Patron Premiere – tickets $100 adults, $50 children, include reserved seating at Sunday's premiere screening and admission to the post-premiere afterglow at Detroit's Second City Comedy Club. Call Lighthouse (810) 253-3717 for tickets

■ General admission tickets – premiere screening only, are $20 and available through Ticketmaster (810) 645-6666.

BOOKS

Writers make science's big ideas understandable

ESTHER LITTMANN

The book's objective, according to Bloomfield Hills resident Arthur Wiggens, is to create a "do-able challenge," to make scientific ideas accessible without overwhelming the reading with ponderous detail

Like many former liberal arts majors, I have only a nodding acquaintance with scientific concepts such as quarks, isotopes and chlorofluorocarbons. Wouldn't it be nice, I've often thought, to learn more about such topics without taking time-consuming courses or reading jargon-laden books meant for professionals.

A recent publication entitled "The Five Biggest Ideas in Science" (John Wiley and Songs, 1997, $14.95) meets my needs perfectly. Written by Charles M. Wynn, formerly with Oakland Community College and currently chemistry professor at Eastern Connecticut State University, and Arthur W. Wiggens, physics professor at Oakland Community College for the past 28 years, the book tackles fundamental ideas in the areas of physics, chemistry, astronomy, geology, and biology as a means "to comprehend, appreciate, and evaluate the world of science."

But this 185-page paperback is not a mere handbook of definitions. In the capable hands of award-winning teachers Wynn and Wiggens, each "big idea" creates ripple effects to encompass related topics and showcase the methods by which scientific discoveries are made.

An explanation of atomic structure, for example, begins with the competing hypotheses of Greek philosophers Aristotle and Democritus and ends with the quantum mechanical model accepted today. In the process, we are reminded that science is anti-authoritarian: only the evidence counts, not a theorist's credentials.

In another chapter, a discussion of the Big Bang theory to explain the origin of the universe humbly ends with the admission that science may know the "how" of physical phenomena but not always the "why." Whether the subject is cellular structure and DNA or the earth's shifting tectonic plates that cause continental drift, the authors lead us painlessly and enthusiastically from simple concepts to complex ideas.

The book's objective, according to Bloomfield Hills resident Arthur Wiggens, is to create a "do-able challenge," to make scientific ideas accessible without overwhelming the reading with ponderous detail. Sure enough, numerous theories are clarified in careful prose. Explanations are often accompanied by colorful analogies and easy-to-read charts and diagrams. To attach what the authors call the "ha-ha" experience (humor) to the "Aha!" phenomenon (epiphany), the authors invited premier science cartoonist Sidney Harris to add his unique perspective with cartoon commentary.

And if that weren't enough, there is even an Appendix called "Idea Folders" that wows us with spin-off topics such as the cloning of an African clawed frog (accomplished in the 1960s) and the development of computer biochips, which the authors explain are "organic molecules manufactured by bacteria."

Science fiction buffs will enjoy reading about anti-matter and the strong possibility of intelligent life elsewhere in our universe. Environmentalists will find material on global warming and the dangers of radioactive isotopes.

There is even a chapter entitled "Risk/Benefit Analysis: Potential Applications of Scientific Knowledge" that touches on issues of ethics and responsibility.

"The Five Biggest Ideas in Science" has a permanent spot on my bookshelf. It's a terrific source for an adult or high-school reader interested in a panoramic view of modern scientific inquiry.

SCREEN SCENE

A sampling of what's playing at alternative movie theaters across metro Detroit as reviewed by John Monaghan.

Birmingham Theatre 211 S. Woodward, Birmingham. Call (810) 644-FILM for information. ($6.50; $4.25 matinees and seniors)

■ "Touch" (USA-1997). When a handsome young social worker starts performing miracles, everyone wants a piece of the action. Christopher Walken, Bridget Fonda, Tom Arnold and newcomer Skeet Ulrich star in a clever adaptation of an Elmore Leonard novel, directed by Paul Schrader.

■ "Evita" (USA-1996). Madonna gets her chance to shine in the role of a lifetime: Argentina's Eva Peron in the musical drama based on the 1976 stage hit by Tim Rice and Andrew Lloyd Webber. Antonio Banderas co-stars as the Argentinian everyman who comments on the action.

■ "Everyone Says I Love You" (USA-1996). So what if no one can carry a tune? Woody Allen's new musical comedy has the kooky characters and oddball casting you've come to expect, starring Drew Barrymore, Alan Alda, Tim Roth, Julia Roberts, and Goldie Hawn (in probably her best role ever).

■ "Shine" (Australia-1996). The story of David Helfgott, a concert pianist driven to the edge at an early age by an overbearing father. His ultimate success over adversity makes for an inspirational story.

Detroit Film Theatre Detroit Institute of Arts, 5200 Woodward Ave., Detroit. Call (313) 833-2323 for information. ($5; $4 students)

■ "Prisoner of the Mountains" (Russia-1995). Feb. 23 (call for showtimes). Based on a 150-year-old novel by Tolstoy, this contemporary Russian film finds two soldiers taken prisoner by Chechen rebels who hope to swap them for political prisoners.

■ "Anna" (Russia-1996). 7 p.m. Feb. 24. The filmmaker's chronicle of his daughter's growth from age 6 to 18 serves as a metaphor for the dramatic changes in the former Soviet Union over the past two decades.

Main Art Theatre 118 N. Main Street at 11 Mile, Royal Oak. Films play through at least Thursday, unless noted otherwise. Call (810) 542-0180 for information and showtimes. ($6.50; $4 students, seniors and matinee; $3 twilight)

■ "Mother" (USA-1996). Albert Brooks returns to directing and starring in this comedy about a twice-divorced man who tries to come to terms with his mother (Debbie Reynolds) when he moves back in with her.

■ "Hamlet" (USA-1997). Kenneth Branagh's latest version of the Shakespeare classic runs at its true length of nearly four hours (with intermission). But this shouldn't keep you away from the year's first epic film experience, a tour de force for star/director Branagh, who has compiled a most eclectic cast including Billy Crystal, Jack Lemmon, Kate Winslett, and Robin Williams.

Windsor Film Theatre 2135 Wyandotte St. West, Windsor, Canada. Call (519)254-FILM for information. ($5.25; $4 U.S.)

■ "Project Grizzly" (Canada-1996). 9 p.m. Feb. 23. A Canadian researcher is obsessed with meeting a grizzly bear face-to-face in this unorthodox documentary. He suits up in a supposedly grizzly-proof suit of armor and journeys through small towns to his date with destiny in the Rocky Mountains.

■ "The Seventh Continent" (Austria-1989). 9 p.m. Feb. 24-25. In this deceptively simple film from Michael Haneke, a well-to-do Austrian family have all the modern conveniences but have forgotten almost entirely how to communicate with each other. (Presented by Kinotek Film Society)

Shallow script sinks bayou mystery

BY LEANNE ROGERS
STAFF WRITER

A couple is on their boat spending a leisurely afternoon along the coast of Louisiana when their quiet time is interrupted by the roar of a low-flying plane, which crashes into the water.

Retired New Orleans police officer Dave Robicheaux straps on his scuba gear and dives down to the wrecked plane. He rescues a little girl, the sole survivor of the crash, and sets into motion a series of events that will end tragically, not least of all for Robicheaux.

The 1996 film "Heaven's Prisoners," an adaptation of the novel by James Lee Burke and now on video, gets a lot of the details right but comes up short due to a rather shallow script.

The film's opening scenes are emotionally strong as recovering alcoholic Robicheaux, played by Alec Baldwin, is seen in confession talking with his priest about the power of his craving for liquor. Even knowing he would lose the most important things in his life – his wife and business – Robicheaux has to admit he still wants to drink.

After the plane crash, Robicheaux and his wife, played by Kelly Lynch, take in the little girl. When there official account of the crash comes out, the number of people killed is short and Robicheaux begins nosing around, raising the ire of some local drug dealers, their gangster partners and a couple of branches of law enforcement.

Part of the problem with the film is that there isn't a strong bad guy. With his hair in cornrows, Eric Roberts plays Bubba Rocque, the local drug baron who is working to expand his business with hooking up with New York mob guys. Only when his wife is involved does Bubba get physical with his childhood friend Robicheaux.

Maybe it was because I read the book but there was little suspense in the story and even less urgency. The actors, who largely do a fine job, invest much more emotion and weight to the film than the script warrants.

Are we there yet? Be prepared to keep kids happy

Keeping a young traveler content on a long car trip can be difficult. In my case, I had a long car journey coming up with my then-5-year-old son. But some of these techniques apply equally well to air travel.

If you can keep the young traveler calm, everyone else in the car will be calmer. Frayed tempers make even a short trip uncomfortable, to say nothing of a long drive in a confined automobile. Some of these techniques apply just to overnight trips. Many of these tips help grown-up travelers; after all, grown ups are people, too.

Things to take along:

■ Drink boxes and other such foods (to be brought out at times determined by the supervisory grown-up). Take along things your travelers will eat, not the things you think they should eat – a long automobile trip is not the time to teach better eating habits. If anyone in the car is sensitive to sugar or caffeine, make sure he doesn't get too much of either. Select your snacks and beverages with this in mind.

■ Cooler to keep cool foods cool. Fill it with ice or blue ice before you fill it with snacks and beverages.

■ Anti-motion-sickness medication (Dramamine), even if no one in the car has shown a propensity for getting motion sickness.

■ Pillows, at least one. Car travel is soporific.

■ Blanket, so a sleeper can be warm without roasting the other passengers.

■ Ear plugs.

> Tell us your ideas
> Dear reader,
> What tips have you used with success to keep one or more young travelers amused during a long automobile trip?
> Please send us your tips. Mail them to Hugh Gallagher, Car Trip Tips, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia MI 48150. Or fax them to Hugh Gallagher, Car Trip Tips, 1-313-591-7279. Or E-mail them to newsroom@oeonline.com Attn Car Trip Tips.

■ Sun glasses and something to block out an early-morning or late-afternoon sun.

■ Simple games, lots of them. (Garage sales were wonderful.) Do NOT tell your young traveler how many games you have – you want each game to last as long as possible. At least one adult should be expected to play these games with the young traveler.

■ Juvenile activity books that contain crossword puzzles or word searches.

■ Sharpened cheap pencils with soft leads and separate erasers. These probably will be lost, so don't count on Dad's Mount Blanc pen to do crossword puzzles.

■ Easy-to-read book for each passenger.

■ Premoistened wipes.

■ Paper towels.

■ Change of clothes for the young person.

■ Swim trunks (if your journey is more than one day). You can let your young traveler use up his pent-up energy in a motel swimming pool so he will sleep soundly in a strange bed.

Before you leave:

■ If you have a larger vehicle such as a van, mini-van, motor home, fifth wheel, etc. consider driving it rather than your passenger car.

■ Learn a few games such as the alphabet game. For an older child, take turns giving synonyms or homonyms (just don't call them that).

■ Install a CB radio. Your child will have something to listen to and you may be able to get on-the-road advice, which will make everyone calmer.

■ Find a cooler and decide where you are going to put it in the car.

■ Get up at the young person's normal waking-up time. If you have to get him up early, use the pillow and blanket to let him go back to sleep in the car.

■ Don't forget the grownups: Whatever you can do to make the adults more comfortable probably will reflect on the ease of the journey.

■ Make sure the young person gets a good night's sleep.

On the roll:

■ Make frequent rest stops (and bathroom stops). Don't ignore roadside parks and other rest stops.

■ Stop for meals, even though you have food with you. A stop, even to sit in a fast-foot restaurant, is still a chance to stretch and visit the restroom.

■ Don't hurry. It doesn't make sense to stress everyone out in an attempt to get to your vacation spot to relax – getting a speeding ticket is not relaxing.

■ Play "I Spy," the game where you see who counts the most animals, farm equipment or farm equipment signs, red cars, whatever, as you go along.

■ Find the letters of the alphabet in order on buildings or signs along the roadway. (Hint: Check out gasoline stations for "Quaker State" for the rare "Q." Look for the dread "J" in highway signs such as "junction."

■ Play the game of license plates. "Collect" states. Warning: This can be rowdy.

■ Take this chance to teach your child how to read a map – or let him be the navigator, if he can be trusted.

■ Take along coloring books and crayons at your own risk. It's not easy to retrieve a missing crayon while rolling down the highway.

Toledo museums make a lively one-day holiday

BY HUGH GALLAGHER
STAFF WRITER

If you're looking for a quick getaway, Toledo has two excellent reasons to take a short ride south.

The superb Toledo Museum of Art is presenting "British Art Treasures from the Russian Imperial Collections in the Hermitage," a stunning display of paintings, silver, ceramics and jewelry, through May 11.

A new hands-on science musem, COSI Toldeo opens March 1.

British art in Russia

The exhibit from St. Petersburg's Hermitage shows a long Imperial Russian affinity for things British. Catherine the Great who reigned from 1762 to 1796 was notorious for her lovers and her intrigues, but she was also a devoted art patroness and an insatiable collector of luxurious items. She was also, like Peter the Great before her, interested in strengthening Russia's ties with western Europe.

British art never attained the reputation on the Continent of French, Flemish and Italian art, but with Catherine's reign British art became more and more popular among the Russian nobility. Catherine purchased numerous items for the Hermitage, then the name for her retreat within the Winter Palace, which is now the State Hermitage Museum.

This exhibit is a modest size but rich in variety and quality. It covers nearly every aspect of fine and applied arts and is notable both for its opulence and its artistry.

Though Catherine was never able to convince a major British painter to come to her court, she did collect the works of several outstanding British painters or painters with strong British connections such as Sir Anthony van Dyck. The exhibit has three full length van Dyck portraits.

Notable paintings include Sir Joshua Reynolds' "The Continence of Scipio" and his lush, sensual "Cupid Untying the Zone of Venus."

But the real show stoppers are two stunning landscapes by Joseph Wright of Derby. Wright was famous for his experiments with light sources and these two paintings, personally chosen by Catherine, display his mastery of light. "Firework Display at the Castel Sant' Angelo in Rome" glows at the center where the fireworks burst in a grand finale and then shoots skyward in specks of light.

Even more brilliant is "The Iron Forge Viewed from Without" which uses both the cool light of the moon and the hot light of a forge in stunning contrast.

Silver sensation

The work that will draw the biggest oohs and aahs is a solid silver wine cooler created by Charles Frederick Kandler in 1734. This work is the size of a small bathtub and is ornately decorated in tribute to Bachus, of course. The silver, as curator Brian Allen explained, is not highly polished but has a patina, as preferred by the Russians.

Catherine had several palaces. One she used only when stopping on her way from the Winter Palace to her summer house. It was for this small palace that she had the Wedgwood company create one of the most elaborate dinnerware sets ever commissioned. The Green Frog Service, named after the palace which sat on a former frog marsh and decorated on top of each piece with a bright green frog, was designed for 50 people and originally had 944 pieces. What is most interesting is that the pieces were decorated with 1,222 different views of British landscape, from park and river scenes to cottages and palaces. No scene was repeated. The exhibit has 22 pieces from the surviving 767 pieces in the Hermitage.

Catherine was also a patroness of British, more correctly Scottish, architects. Most notable in the exhibit are CharlesCameron's drawings.There is much more – Wedgwood medallions and plaques, coins, cameos, bejeweled watches, a gold mirror and garden designs.

PCJBL registration

Registration for the Plymouth Canton Junior Baseball League will be Sat., March 1, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., and Wed., March 5, from 7-9 p.m. in the Canton High School cafeteria.

The league is adding a Senior League for boys 16-18 and a girls fast-pitch softball travel league for ages 11-14.

Players new to their leagues should bring birth certificates. Cost for boys and girls ages 7-8 is $65, all others in the house leagues $75 with a family house league limit of $160. Travel team participants pay $325.

The PCJBL plans to have raffle tickets for a 1997 Chevrolet Malibu available for sale along with the opportunity for prepaid signup for baseball clinics.

For additional information, call Boys Vice President Dave Goethe at 455-1402 and Girls Vice President Ray Barnes at 981-5170.

Whalers triumph

The Detroit Whalers built a 4-0 lead by before the midway point of the second period, but then had to hold off the Erie Otters to post a 5-4 Ontario Hockey League victory Thursday at Compuware Arena in Plymouth.

Harold Druken scored a goal and added two assists to lead the Whalers' assault, which lifted them to 23-30-5 and kept them in fourth place in the OHL's West Division.

But Steve Wasylko's power play goal with 7:38 left in the third period proved to be the game-winner. Erie scored in the game's final minute to pull within one, but could not get the tying marker.

Eric Gooldy and Druken scored first-period goals to help Detroit to a 2-0 lead. Jan Vodrazka and Julian Smith added markers in the second period to boost the Whaler advantage to 4-0, before the Otters answered with three second-period goals.

Wasylko and Smith also each had an assist, and Mike Morrone contributed two assists. Robert Esche was in goal for Detroit; he made 23 saves.

Detroit plays host to the Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds twice this weekend: at 7:30 p.m. Saturday and at 6 p.m. Sunday.

Big Ten track

The Big Ten Conference's women's indoor track and field championships were last weekend at the University of Illinois in Champaign, and one Wolverine looking to make an impact was Plymouth Salem graduate Sarah Hamilton.

Going into the meet Hamilton, a sophomore, boasts the Big Ten's second-best time posted this season in the 600-meter run (1:33.57). Hamilton also has U-M's third-best time this season in the 800 (2:13.49).

Another U-M athlete to watch: Salem grad Olive Ikeh, who had the Wolverines' top score in the pentathlon (3,301 points) and was third-best in both the 55-meter hurdles (8.7) and 400 (1:00.1).

A softball preview

The highly-touted University of Michigan softball team got its season underway last weekend with a trip to the west coast to play in the San Diego State Campbell/Cartier Classic.

The Wolverines, coming off a school-record 51-14 season, are ranked fifth in pre-season polls.

Among those they'll be counting on is senior pitcher Kelly Holmes, a Plymouth Canton HS graduate.

Holmes appeared in 31 games last season, going 16-7 (and one save) with a 1.81 earned run average. She pitched 177 2/3 innings, allowing 156 hits with 96 strikeouts and just 47 walks.

A new Wolverine on the roster is freshman Stacey Judd, an infielder from Livonia Ladywood HS.

Sports card show

The city of Plymouth will sponsor a Sports Card and Memorabilia Show Saturday, March 15 at the Plymouth Cultural Center (located at 525 Farmer).

The show will be held in conjunction with the AAA Bantam Hockey State Championships, which will be in the same building.

The show will be from 9:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Admission and parking are free. Any dealers interested in a booth should call the Plymouth Recreation Department at (313) 455-6620.

Adult softball meeting

Organizational meetings for anyone interested in having a team in one of Canton's summer softball leagues, sponsored by the Canton Parks and Recreation Services, are slated for Saturday, March 1 at the Summit on the Park Community Center.

The men's meeting will be at 10 a.m., with the women's meeting at 10:30 a.m. and the co-ed meeting at 11 a.m. Information on league fees, registration dates and times, residency requirements and league formats will be available.

Call the Parks and Rec office at (313) 397-5110 for more information.

Canton mauls . . .

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

Nick Hurley has a good sense of geography.

The senior guard pointed the way as Plymouth Canton advanced to the semifinals of the Western Lakes Activities Association boys basketball playoffs with a 57-43 win Friday at Westland John Glenn.

The 6-foot-1 Hurley, who plays right-handed, but uses his left hand as an effective offensive weapon, scored a game-high 21 points as the Chiefs (12-6 overall) earned a home-court date Tuesday with WLAA regular season champion Walled Lake Central (14-3).

Canton scored the game's final 14 points after Glenn had deadlocked the count at 43-all with 5:14 remaining on a hoop by Kevin White.

"We kind of let things fade away because we went to individual stuff," said Hurley, whose 15 first-half points, many on drives to the left side of the hoop, forged Canton to a 31-18 lead. "We just had to play good defense, keep the ball in front of us, rebound better and be strong with the ball."

The Chiefs did just that and made just enough free throws in the final quarter (eight of 12) to pull out the victory.

A pair of free throws by Joe Cortellini with 4:56 gave his team the lead for keeps.

Rob Johnson's rebound basket with 1:37 left made it 49-43 in favor of Canton, and all but secured the victory.

Donte Scott added 16 points for Canton, while Johnson and Matt Ammons contributed nine and eight, respectively.

But it was the heads-up play of Hurley that proved to be the difference.

"I think I'm better with my left, I feel more confident with the left," he said. "I shoot right and do that naturally. I'm mostly right-handed. But 80 percent of the time I like to go to the left side of the floor."

After Glenn jumped out to a 10-6 first quarter lead, but Hurley answered with seven straight points for a 13-10 advantage.

The Chiefs then went to town in the second period, outscoring Glenn 18-8 capped by Hurley's steal off an inbounds pass (underneath the Rockets' basket) and layup with one second remaining to make it 31-18 at intermission. (Glenn was led by Jon Becher's 10 points.)

But Glenn, using a full-court trap, all but erased Canton's lockerroom

Don't get behind the Livonia Franklin team bus. It goes like crazy in the passing lane.

Livonia Franklin used a dazzling passing game Friday night to speed by Plymouth Salem, 74-66, in the opening round of the Western Lakes Activities Association playoffs.

The Patriots visit Farmington Hills Harrison on Tuesday night for a 7 p.m. WLAA tournament semifinal while the Rocks go to Northville for a consolation battle.

Things could be finally coming together for Franklin, which sputtered and stuttered through the early and middle phases of the 1996-97 basketball season like an automobile breathing carbon monoxide.

"We had some injuries at the beginning of the season," new Coach Dan Robinson said. "And they were adjusting to a new coach.

"They've learned to play a little harder. They're applying more pressure in the passing lanes, playing harder defensively.

"We also talked about playing with passion."

The Patriots, like most of the WLAA teams, aren't so good that they can coast through a game. Like a racing engine, all cylinders and valves must be working at maximum efficiency.

Franklin is now 10-8 overall, 6-6 in the WLAA while Salem dropped to 13-5 for the season, including an 8-4 mark.

Robinson's team's record is not indicative of the quality of the team.

Matt Bauman, a big man with the passing ability of a much smaller one, missed the first part of the season with a foot injury. And the youngster expected to be the point guard, Brian Facione, has had trouble with a shoulder all year.

A separated shoulder delayed the start of his season. He got back into a action — only to separate the shoulder again. He's practicing, but is unlikely to see action.

But Nick Mongeau's throwback set-shot three-point shooting, the pinpoint no-stop passing and the growing confidence of guards Peter Sosa and Kevin Biga at the controls has Franklin humming.

The Patriots beat the Rocks in an

Shamrocks scoot past St. Mary's in 2 OTs

BASKETBALL

The rivalry is so good four quarters just won't do it justice.

Redford Catholic Central and Orchard Lake St. Mary's battled through two overtimes Thursday before the Shamrocks prevailed, 58-55, in the semifinals of the Detroit Catholic League tournament.

"We're in the finals," Catholic Central Coach Rick Coratti said. "It wasn't easy. Nothing's easy for us."

CC will play for the Redford City Championship against Bishop Borgess in the Catholic League finals Sunday at 4 p.m. in the University of Detroit Mercy's Calihan Hall.

"CC's been our nemisis in the tournament," said St. Mary's coach Dennis Butcher, whose team was trying to advance to the Catholic League final for the fourth-straight year. "They're a good team. They're well-coached. If we can't win it, I hope they do."

The Shamrocks downed the Eaglets in overtime a year ago, 73-59, in the finals of the Catholic League tournament. CC held the edge in overtime in that one, 16-2.

St. Mary's had beaten Catholic Central, 64-60, earlier this season but Butcher acknowledged that was then and this was now.

"It's much different playing Catholic Central in December than playing them now," he said. "Nick Moore, who's a sophomore, has stepped up his play quite a bit.

"And Chris Young was a timid player then. He's stepped up his game, too.

"Their team has matured."

The rivalry isn't over, either. Both have a solid nucleus of players returning for future overtime battles.

Young is a junior and so is the player Butcher had fronting him most of the game in an effort to keep him from getting the ball, Mike Robinson. Young is 6-10 while Robinson is four inches shorter.

The game drew a crowd of a couple of thousand people, among whom were University of Notre Dame (and former NBA) Coach John McLeod.

Along with McLeod was former Detroit Pistons' broadcasting partner, George Blaha, and a former Irish star (and current Pistons' broadcaster) Kelly Tripucka.

McLeod was there to look at — and be seen by, of course — Young.

Young scored 16 points, reached double digits in rebounds and blocked a shot or two but wasn't the presence of a, let's say, Robert Traylor.

A lot of that had to do with St. Mary's defense, keying on Young and Marc McDonald.

And a lot had to do with the fact Young was playing with a plastic mask over his recently broken nose.

"He had the flu, a broken nose and he hurt his elbow in practice Wednesday," said McDonald, whose triple at the start of the first overtime was the last of his game-high 21 points.

Salem, Canton trail at WLAA

Changing of the guard?

Sure seemed that way at Thursday's Western Lakes Activities Association Gymnastics Championships, hosted by Plymouth Canton.

Used to be a meet Canton (the '96 league champ) and Plymouth Salem dominated. When Salem finished fourth last year, that was thought to be some sort of apparition — a one-year hiatus from true contention.

Incorrect determination. Both Canton and Salem fell from serious challengers to also-rans as Hartland, Northville-Novi and Brighton emerged as league contenders.

The title went to Hartland, which surprised the state's top-ranked team, Northville-Novi. The Eagles outscored the favorites in just one event, the balance beam, but it was by a sizable enough margin to make the difference: 35.75 to 34.0.

Hartland finished with 143.10; Northville-Novi was second with 142.95 in a meet featuring seven of the state's top 10-ranked teams. Seven of the WLAA's eight teams scored 132.7 or better.

Last year's champ, Canton, was the team that placed seventh with 132.7. Brighton was third (138.9), followed by Farmington schools (138.5), Salem (133.45), Westland John Glenn (133.3), Canton and Walled Lake combined (128.7).

"This was totally unexpected," said Hartland co-coach Deb Heck of the title.

Added Hartland's other coach, Dave Domagay, "This is my fourth year here, and this is the first time we pulled together so well. There was real cohesiveness — not do what's best for the individual, but do what's best for the team."

Brighton's Shannon McCall was the meet's top performer, winning the all-around (37.4) with first-place finishes in the vault (9.2) and balance beam (9.4).

Salem's Kristin Kosik was second in the all-around (36.55); her best finishes were a second in the vault (9.15) and a tie for second in the floor exercise (9.4).

Farmington got strong performances from Brook Rubin (sixth in the all-around, 35.55) and Sarah Nolan (ninth, all-around, 35.35). Rubin was second in the beam (9.3) and tied for eighth in the uneven parallel bars (8.9); Nolan tied for seventh in the beam (8.85) and placed ninth in the vault (8.7).

The Farmington performance pleased co-coach Jeff Dwyer — and why not? "We broke a record," Dwyer noted. "That was the highest (team) score ever by any Farmington school.

"I was excited — I think everyone was. And I think that's what it'll take next Saturday (at state regionals)."

Dwyer's sentiments are common. Farmington will travel to the Hartland regional, and will battle the host team, Brighton, Freeland and Holt for three available berths to the state meet.

"It's been eight years since a Farmington team has advanced to state. "That was our biggest goal this year, to go to state," Dwyer said. Now it's within reach.

Both Canton and Salem feel the same, despite their unfamiliar placings at the WLAA meet. Salem's Kosik was the only top-10 finisher from either school in any event.

Canton's best was Liz Fitzgerald, who placed 13th in the all-around (34.15); Fitzgerald tied for 13th in the bars (8.6) and tied for 14th in the vault (8.45).

"I'm looking forward to regionals," said John Cunningham, Canton's coach. "We've got a week to prepare and the teams we have to beat are the ones that finished right ahead of us (in league). We've got to make a couple of steps and we'll be there."

Both Cunningham and Salem coach Pam Yockey have all but surrendered the top spot in their region, hosted by Canton Saturday, to Northville-Novi. The other two berths will be contested for by John Glenn, Ann Arbor Pioneer, Jackson County Western, Hillsdale, Salem and Canton.

"We have a chance of making it to state," said Yockey. "We have not yet been totally together," she added, noting injuries and other commitments that have bothered the Rocks. "Potentially, we can score much higher."

Madonna's season over, with no playoffs

It was a night of milestones for Madonna University's men's basketball team.

Not all the news was good. The Fighting Crusaders lost their season finale 114-81 at Siena Heights Thursday in a game they really had no chance to win. The Saints (24-5) led 53-36 at the half and just kept pulling away.

The defeat also destroyed any hopes of post-season play for Madonna. The Great Lakes Independent Sectional qualifiers will be Berea (Ky.), Indiana Southeastern, Indiana Tech and Robert Morris (Ill.). The Crusaders were fifth.

CRUSADERS

The good news? Madonna did set a record for wins, finishing the season with a modest 9-20 record. In coach Bernie Holowicki's first season last year, the Crusaders were 7-23.

Also, they have two four-year graduates of the program to boast of: Brandon Slone (from Plymouth Salem) and Christian Emert (Walled Lake Central).

Slone bows out as Madonna's career leader in scoring and rebounding, while Emert is the team leader in assists and steals. This season, Slone averaged 12 points and six boards a game; Emert notched seven points and five assists.

Against Siena Heights, both Slones — Brandon and his twin brother Mike (also from Salem), who has one year of eligibility remaining — both performed ably. Each scored a team-best 14 points; Brandon also tied for game-high honors in rebounding with eight, while Mike was 4-for-4 on three-pointers.

Kristian Magro added 13 points and eight boards, with John-Mark Branch and Mike Maryanski getting eight points apiece.

Siena Heights, on the other hand, had 12 players score, with five reaching double figures. The Saints were paced by Anthony Staffney's 28 points; Ryan Sanford had 16, Daniel Winston had 11 and Steve Bennett scored 10.

MADONNA NOTES: The Madonna women's basketball team (12-14 overall) has made the NAIA Great Lakes Independent Sectional playoffs. The question is, will the Lady Crusaders be a first or second seed?

That won't be determined until Monday. Either way, Madonna will host its first playoff game, a sectional semifinal Saturday. The sectional finals are March 5, with the highest-seeded team hosting.

SC slams Hawks

The Schoolcraft College women's basketball team will enter their post-season playoffs on a positive note, following Tuesday's 72-48 rout of visiting Henry Ford Community College.

The Ocelots will be the second seed in the Michigan Community College Athletic Association's state tournament. Schoolcraft, which received a first-round bye, will host the winner of the Delta Community College-Oakland Community College game on Wednesday at 6 p.m. in the quarterfinals.

The Ocelots, who lost to OCC in their two previous games this season, hope to advance to the semi-finals at St. Clair Community College. The semi-finals will be played at 5:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Friday, with the finals at 3 p.m. Saturday.

After the state tournament, the women will prepare for the NJCAA Regional Tournament, which will be the following week in Muskegon.

OCELOTS

Against Henry Ford, the star was Sheilah Coulter. The sophomore center poured in 31 points, including 20 points in the second half when Schoolcraft outscored the Hawks 45-29.

Schoolcraft also received 10 points apiece from freshman guard Crissy Harmon and from sophomore forward Kristi Engel (Redford Thurston).

The Ocelots improved to 19-7 overall and are 10-4 in the MCCAA Eastern Conference.

Henry Ford, which played with only six players, was paced by Joanne McComb's 17 points.

A pair of local graduates — Karen Gundry of Plymouth Salem and Becky Vachow of Plymouth Canton — played well for the Hawks. Gundry tallied 11 points, while Vachow nailed three triples and finished with 10 points.

HENRY FORD 87, SCHOOLCRAFT 82: The Schoolcraft men's basketball team finished its season Tuesday, losing to visiting Henry Ford.

The Ocelots will not to participate in the post-season playoffs — they failed to qualify for the MCCAA state tournament, and administration officials have chosen against traveling to the NJCAA regional tournament in Cincinnati.

Schoolcraft ended the season 6-19 overall and 3-11 in the MCCAA Eastern Conference.

Tuesday's contest against the Hawks was close throughout as Henry Ford held a slim 39-35 halftime lead. The Ocelots comeback attempt fell short, however.

Leading Henry Ford (16-9, 9-5) was Jerome Turner, who poured in a game-high 24 points. Dan McKian, a Plymouth Salem graduate, pumped in 22 points and Cy Baker netted 14.

Schoolcraft was led by Dwaun Warmack and Bruce Goode, who each scored 17 points. Naron Burks and Tymon Marshall added 12 and 10 points, respectively.

A pair of local athletes also contributed. Rudy Hatfield (Livonia Churchill) chipped in nine points and Pete Males (Garden City) scored nine. It was Males' first game back since suffering an injury early in the season.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

Spring training

Eastern Michigan assistant baseball coach David Martin will be the head instructor in a Spring Break Baseball Camp, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday, March 31 through Friday, April 4 at Bloomfield Hills Middle School.

The camp is open to youngsters ages 7-16.

For more information, call Bloomfield Hills Recreation at (810) 433-0885.

Spring hockey

Team and individual registrations are be accepted for the Plymouth Rockets (over 20), Silver Sticks (over 40) and Golden Eagles (over 50).

Teams will play Sunday nights and one weekday night at the new Compuware Arena in Plymouth Township.

For more information, call John Wilson at (810) 471-0658.

Spring hoop

Team openings are still available for the North American Youth Basketball 13th annual spring tournament, Friday through Sunday, May 9-11 at Schoolcraft College.

The tourney features 10 different age brackets: boys and girls in grades 5-6, 7-8, 9-10 and 11-12.

The entry fee is $80 per team (guaranteed minimum of two games). The entry deadline is Friday, April 18.

For more information, call the NAYB national office at 1-800-7873265 or Mike Trudeau at (810) 469-4242.

earlier meeting, 77-71 in double overtime.

"They played a nice game against us the first time," Salem Coach Bob Brodie said. "But they didn't pass as well as they did this time.

"They tore us apart in every aspect of the game. They took it to the hole, hit threes and beat us on the glass."

Mongeau led all scorers with 24 points including six triples while Baumann had 18 points, 17 rebounds and three assists. Biga scored 11 points, Paul Terek and Jay Fontaine eight apiece.

Andres Lopez led Salem with 15 points, Andy Power had 10, Bhavin Patel nine, Nate Gray and Jeff McKian eight and Matt Mair and Mike Korduba seven each.

Salem started a smaller, quick lineup of Power, Lopez, Patel, McKian and Gray. It shot out to an 8-2 lead with 2:59 left.

But when the big guys came in for relief, Franklin shredded them with its passing game. And every time Salem went to a zone, Franklin either found an open seam or kicked the ball out so someone could nail a trey.

"Against Canton (a loss), we didn't pass as well," Robinson said. "We talked about making the extra pass. We talked about playing hard, playing as a team."

By the end of the first quarter, the Patriots were up, 17-11. It was 35-30 at the half (including two Bauman free throws on a 1-and-1 which should not have been shot because Salem wasn't in the bonus).

The Rocks pulled into a 39-39 tie on a Gray trey with 5:34 left in the third quarter but Mongeau nailed threes from the top of the key and the right wing on consecutive trips down the floor.

Salem's smaller lineup kept chipping away but every time it cut the gap, it seemed to run out of gas.

"We created some turnovers," Brodie said. "But we didn't convert them all. And those times it happened, they'd come down and hit a three in our face after we scored a layup."

"Bob did a nice job," Robinson complimented. "They gave us some different looks. But we adjusted to every one.

"And Peter Sosa did a great job on Andy Power, just keeping him in check. He's a great guard."

Bauman made two floor-length passes for layups when Salem was pressing to get back in the game late in the fourth quarter and his assist total was low because often his pass led to a teammate's making the feed.

"Scoring doesn't matter to him," Robinson said. "He wants to win."

"We never felt like we were in command," Brodie said. "They were in command."

It wasn't like everything went Franklin's way, though.

At halftime, the Patriots went down to their locker area only to find it all steamed up. Too hot to handle, as it were. Maybe it was symbolic.

momentum with a 21-8 third-quarter run.

"In the second half we knew if we'd sit back and play offense and defense at each end, you're not going to be Canton," Glenn coach Mike Schuette said. "We had to play a different tempo."

The Rockets' top scorer, the mult-talented 6-3 David Jarrett, who inexplicably was held scoreless in the first half, came to life in the third with nine of his team-high 11 points. Brad Wilde added a pair of three-pointers during the surge and Justin Berent buried a three-pointer with 38 seconds left in the quarter to cut the Canton lead to 41-39.

"We knew Glenn would make a run because they're a good team," Canton coach Dan Young said. "We had to stick together and keep hanging in there. We need to play team defense and offense, and if we get away from that, we're not as good a team."

Glenn then tied it at 41-all with 7:48 left in the game on a spectacular alley-oop dunk by Jarrett. The Rockets, however, scored only one more field goal the rest of the way and Jarrett couldn't get off another shot.

The Rockets made only two of 11 shots and committed seven turnovers in the final quarter.

"I've never been one to say this guy is our scorer or that guy is a rebounder," said Schuette, who picked up a technical foul with 49 seconds to go. "Everyone has the green light to shoot or the green light to pass.

"We had a couple of put-backs that didn't go down and they got come second and third chances. We didn't rebound well on the defensive end."

The loss dropped the Rockets, one of the WLAA preseason favorites, to 7-11 overall.

"This is a great team to coach and the attitude is great," he said. "We get close in games, but for some reason we can't get over the hump."

Canton, meanwhile, is moving on in the winner's bracket.

"It's nice to go home and play," Young said. "But in our league this year it really doesn't matter. Anybody can beat anybody on any given night."

McDonald, ticketed for Loyola of Chicago, made a key play after junior Joe Jonna hit a short shot from the right wing 31 seconds into the second overtime to put his team up for good, 55-53.

McDonald penetrated from the left wing, bound his way blocked and slipped a nice underhanded pass to Young, who turned and hit a soft, short jumper to make it 57-53 with 2:36 to play.

But if Young improves as much between his junior and senior seasons as he did between his sophomore and junior years, McLeod will have a lot of company at Catholic Central games.

Kylo Jones, a four-year starter who's committed to Western Michigan, missed four triples in the second overtime. And a free throw with 15 seconds left in regulation.

"We definitely were in position to win," Butcher said. "Give me 47-47 with Kylo at the line any time."

"He's been knocking them down for four years," Coratti said.

Jones scored 18 for the Eaglets, matching McDonald's triple in the first overtime and getting six in the third quarter when St. Mary's took a 37-29 lead.

"You felt you lost it about 20 times and you felt you won it about 20 times," Coratti said. "In regulation and in the overtimes. You'd be feeling good, then — boom."

The Shamrocks started the second half in a zone, just for a switch, after a strong man-to-man produced a 19-16 lead.

But after McDonald hit a triple to make it 24-20 with 5:37 left, the Eaglets reeled off 13 unanswered points for a 33-24 lead.

But Catholic Central, which junked the zone after St. Mary's found it easy to penetrate, opened the fourth quarter with eight unanswered points of its own to fashion a 38-37 lead. Orchard Lake went up 45-38 but CC fought back and tied it, 47-47, on Matthew Martinez' runner in the lane with 60 seconds to play.

Martinez finished with seven points while Moore and Jonna had six apiece. Young sank the first half of a 1-and-1 with 51 seconds left in the first overtime to force the second.

"It was a defensive game," Coratti said. "By both teams. And as good defense as you'll see all year. There are a lot of good shooters on both teams."

Many will be back for another shot at it in 1998. See you next year.

NATURE NOTES

TIM NOWICKI

Even within the United States, people in different regions have food preferences.

Along the East Coast we often think of lobster, in the South crayfish are eaten frequently, and in the Southwest there is a Mexican influence with hot peppers and refried beans.

No matter where we live we can enjoy any of these food, but residents of these areas tend to eat more of these kinds of foods.

The same is true of birds. Volunteer feeder watchers from around the U.S. determined the preferred food of birds attending their feeders.

These volunteers were coordinated by The Laboratory of Ornithology at Cornell University in Ithaca, N.Y.

At each feeding station, birds were given three choices of seeds - black oil sunflower, millet and milo (sorghum).

Dark-eyed juncos, the most frequently seen bird at feeders, prefer millet to sunflower seeds. But along the West Coast black-capped chickadees ate five times more milo than black-capped chickadees in the East. Both populations eat predominantly black oil sunflower seeds, but a distinct regional preference emerged.

A similar difference occurred in mourning doves. Here in the East, they eat a fair amount of sunflower seeds, but in the West, mourning doves eat half the amount of sunflower seeds as their East Coast cousins.

Probably the most interesting difference occurs in the house finch. House finches are those sparrows with red on their head and chest. They were introduced into New Jersey in 1940 from their native range which is west of the Rocky Mountains. Since 1940, house finches have moved westward, and in the early 1970s they reached the Detroit area.

In the West, house finches eat sunflower seeds 71 percent of the time and millet 22 percent of the time. However, in the East they eat sunflower seeds 85 percent of the time and millet 11 percent of the time. Why did these descendants from the West choose to eat more sunflower seeds?

Analysis of this study showed that birds of the same species may choose seeds that are more nutritious and beneficial for the area in which they live.

Blue jays in the Northeast for instance, eat more sunflower seeds than blue jays of the southeast. Black-capped chickadees showed the same change in preference. It is believed that the colder temperatures of the Northeast require a bird to use more energy to stay warm. Oils in the sunflower seeds provide more energy than seeds like millet and milo.

Tim Nowicki is a naturalist at Independence Oaks Park in Oakland County. He lives in Livonia.

ON THE RUN

MARYBETH DILLON

If you ran high school or college track and figured the thrill was gone because you're over the hill, there's good news.

There's a thriving track-and-field circuit that offers competition for adults. Local universities host meets throughout the year. They're enjoyable to enter, and fun to watch.

The Motor City Striders' men's and women's teams organize road trips, competing at meets out of state and throughout Michigan. Not only do runners have a good time; they often bring home the hardware.

A frequent medal-winner is Ed Andrysiak, 83 years young, of Plymouth Township.

Last weekend, Andrysiak won gold medals in the 50-meter (14.07) and the 200-meter dash (57.89) at the 1997 USA Track and Field Open/Masters Michigan Track Championships at Grand Valley State University near Grand Rapids.

Making a comeback from injury, Andrysiak enters his share of road races, including marathons. But he's also a track fan.

"Road races take so long. You can expend just about the same amount of energy in a short race, and it's over in a short time," he said.

"The thing I enjoy is the fact I am getting better, not only physically, but mentally and the whole bit."

If the doctors attending to Andrysiak in the early 1970's could see him now, they'd be surprised. Andrysiak had suffered numerous heart attacks, weighed 212 pounds and sported a 44-inch waist. "The doctors told me I should sell my house and move into a nursing home because I didn't have long to live."

That was seven marathons and countless track meets ago. Andrysiak now weighs 169 and has a trim, 36-inch waist. His muscular legs are the envy of many a younger man.

"I haven't had any problems since then, and I'm off all my heart pills," said Andrysiak, founder of the Holy Strollers, a walking club based at St. John Neumann Church in Canton Township.

The next event on the track calendar is close to home.

Macomb Community College, 14500 E. 12 Mile Road in Warren, is hosting the 1997 USATF Midwest Masters Indoor Track and Field Championships from 9 a.m. - 11 p.m., Saturday, March 1.

Events in 5-year-age divisions (30-90-plus) will include the long jump; high jump; shot put; pole vault; 60-yard hurdles; 60-yard dash; 220-yard dash; 440-yard dash; 880-yard dash; 4 x 440 relay; 4 x 880 relay; 2-mile racewalk; mile run; and 2-mile run.

Entry fee before Feb. 26 is $12. Race-day registration is $18.

VIRTUAL REALITY

Golf simulator works at Westland Municipal

BY RICHARD L. SHOOK • STAFF WRITER

Want to play golf at Pebble Beach this winter without taking an expensive plane trip? You can, and just by taking a short drive, too. To the Westland Municipal Golf Course and its three indoor golf simulators.

Won't cost you an arm and a leg, either. Just $25 ($20 for seniors) buys an hour's worth of playing time for up to eight people on one of the three simulators at Westland Municipal, just south of Cherry Hill on Merriman.

"It's the best we've played," Bill Shaheen of Westland said during a recent round when the regular municipal course was a frozen green and white quilt. "It's the best we've seen.

"It gives you the feel of a golf course. It's the closest you can come to playing real golf without being on a golf course."

Shaheen and Frank Pinkham of Detroit were enjoying a leisurely round on the simulated Castle Pines course. That and Pebble Beach are two of 16 course you can "play" at the touch of a keypad.

Like Shaheen says, it's the closest you can come to playing real golf in Michigan during the dead of winter. Beats the greens fees on the real courses in the summer, too (that is, if you could get on 'em).

"You play it," Pinkham chimed in, "because you can't play outdoors."

"One thing you never have to worry about is the weather," said Bob Kosowski, superintendent of operations at Westland Municipal. "It's always around 72 degrees inside the simulators."

You don't even have to bring your own clubs.

Use the clubs Westland Municipal provides, chose your course and you're on your way.

There's a tee provided. Players drive their ball into the canvas, upon which is projected a view similar to what you'd see were you on the tee at the real course.

Graphics show distance to the tee, hole number, elevation, number of shots taken, strokes in relation to par, wind direction and just about anything else you'd want to know if you were playing a round of outdoor golf.

Two lasers track the ball for speed and trajectory after you hit it. A white dot appears on the screen to approximate what your ball would do on the real course.

More graphics then tell you how far you hit the ball, how far it rolled and where it stopped. It also shows elevation in relation to the flag and distance from the pin.

After a moment, an updated view pops up to simulate what you'd see from where your ball would be on the real golf course.

End up in the woods and that's exactly what you see — trees, leaves and rocks. And a smarty alek voice to let you know exactly where you are.

Once you get used to the fact you're looking at a computer enhanced image, the views begin to take on a relatively real look. Foreground trees look pasted-on but those in the peripheral have a photographic quality that can be eerie.

"It's virtual reality golf without having the virtual reality equipment," Shaheen said.

The system features the sound of a bird chirping, the occasional croak of a frog (Hey, I don't want to hear that when I'm playing! Means I'm too close to the swamp!) and comments you may or may not want to hear.

A sassy voice says, "Was that a tree?" or monotones "You've hit a tree" when your ball gets over into the woods or strikes the only tree in the fairway. You'll get "It's in the rough" for an errant shot.

Say your second shot lands you in the woods. You can punch up an aerial view such as you might have on the back of your scorecard.

You can also ask to be shown what direction the pin is, so you can aim your shot accordingly. A flag will zoom into view and then shrink down to nothing.

An excellent feature of the system is a faint white grid overlayed on the green and its apron. The grid provides depth perception because it shows hills, valleys and slopes a putter or chipper would see and be able to take into account for his or her shot.

If you don't pick it up right away, you will when you miss a downhill putt and the ball keeps going until it's out of sight. Or you don't read the left break and your "dead on" 25-foot putt misses to the left by four feet.

You putt off what is also the driving tee but you aim at the hole. You have to hit the ball so it reaches the screen, though, or the laser trackers won't register the putt (which isn't all bad, either).

A par putt might produce applause and a "Great par" comment, or "Good save."

Shaheen put his second shot of a par 4 hole on the green and the computerized voice told him "You're dancing."

Players get a "Nice bird" comment for making a birdie putt.

Kosowski says Westland Municipal's three indoor simulator bays are busy nights and weekends. They put one in the lobby last year and it proved so popular they added on to their building, moved it there and added two more.

It's open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. every day, with later times available with a reservation. It typically takes one person 45 minutes to an hour to play a round and lessons are available. Kosowski said lower summer rates will be available.

You can choose a wind direction other than a tailwind and should you land in the rough, you can use a matt that has artificial turf of two different lengths to simulate light and heavy rough. It also has white artificial turf — for a sand trap, of course.

"You can score better on these than you can on a real course," Pinkham said. "I've never hit a ball 300 yards on any golf course. But I've done it here. And Bill does it regularly."

In addition to deleting funny bounces, the damping effect of wet fairways and other vagaries of golf, there's another benefit: all putts within six feet are "gimmies."

One thing you don't want to hear is the computerized voice saying, "I hate it when I do that."

Means you landed in a hazard.

But hey, you get that in real golf, too.

TEN PIN ALLEY

AL HARRISON

Valentine's Day has come and gone.

Charlie (my cat) tried to eat the bouquet of flowers I bought my wife, but I caught him just in time. Usually a day for hugs and kisses, for Steve Hille and Debbie Campau, Valentine's Day was a good day to get married even though they were to bowl at Country Lanes that night in the Guys and Dolls league.

Call it "Love on the Lanes," this is a remarkable story not only because the couple are avid bowlers, but also because Steve had shot his first ever 300 game a week ago with an all-time high series of 782.

The wedding reception was at Country Lanes the following night, included bowling in the Moonlight No-Tap Doubles.

This story could be called "Love at First Strike" as Steve and Debbie's first date was at Garden Lanes where Debbie had gone to watch Steve bowl.

Apparently she liked his style. Best wishes to the newlyweds. I know that couples who bowl together stay together.

•It is the nature of this sport that many heroes are created by their outstanding performances on the lanes. Some are young, some old and sometimes they will amaze you because of their age.

Angelo Bertuca is just such a person, for at the age of 77, he has just bowled a 289 game in the Senior Men's League at Wonderland Lanes in Livonia.

It just so happens that I know Angie, as he and I were teammates a few years ago, and those who have bowled with him know the special holler he gives out whenever he makes a good pocket hit.

"In the LaBonza" is his battle-cry, and you could hear it 15 lanes away.

Last Wednesday Morning the "LaBonza" was heard over and over as Angie enjoyed his big moment. I just wish he would someday translate it for me, I still don't know what "the LaBonza" is.

•In recent weeks we have seen all kinds of bowling records being broken, tied or sanctioned for the very first time.

We have heard and read about the 900 series by Jeremy Sonnefeld of the University of Nebraska, a new all-time record for a woman bowler in Michigan by Farmington Hills own Tamika Glenn (which also is the second highest ever in the nation at 853).

Another new one hit the record books as Brian Brennan ties on all-time Greater Detroit Bowling Association record for a triplicate while bowling in the Bowl One Classic Mixed League in Troy.

In spite of the fact that Brian bowled an incredible 33 out of a possible 36 strikes, he did not win the $1,000 Strike Jackpot.

He missed a strike in the fifth frame of the third game on a solid pocket hit which left an eight-pin still standing. This ties the GDBA record set by John Bennett on May 23, 1982.

Brennan left a seven-pin in both the first and second games.

In the Strike Jackpot, a strike must be registered in certain designated frames in order to win the $1,000. He needed the one strike that he did not get in that fickle fifth. This exceptional performance is not a big surprise, for Brennan was carrying a nice 226 average at the time.

MEDICAL BRIEFS

Overweight kids

The number of overweight children in the U.S. has doubled in the past 30 years. This is partly due to the fact that today's children are less active. In fact, less than one-half of today's children engage in regular physical activity.

"When you consider that children spend an average of 17 hours a week watching TV in addition to the time they spend playing video and computer games, it's not surprising that American children are less fit today," said Dr. Steven Keteyian, Ph.D., program director for Cardiac Rehabilitation with the Heart and Vascular Institute of Henry Ford Health System.

"The long-term risk of cardiovascular disease among these kids is disturbing, particularly since inactive children are more likely than active children to become inactive adults," Keteyian said. "Parents need to help their children develop good physical habits at an early age to help avoid lifelong problems."

While heart attacks and stroke are rare in children, evidence suggests that the process leading to those conditions begins in childhood. Inactive children also weigh more, have higher blood pressure and lower levels of heart-protective high-density lipoprotein (HDL cholesterol) than active children.

"Parents need to be good role models for their kids," he said. "Since children imitate their parents, make sure you too are physically active. Instead of watching them play, play with them. Climb on the jungle gym with them at the park, swing on the swing set and play leap frog."

The Henry Ford Heart and Vascular Institute offers 10 tips for boosting children's physical activity level.

- Limit the amount of television, movies, videos and computer games to less than two hours a day. Substitute the rest of their free time with physical activity.
- Play hide and seek with your kids and encourage imaginative play. Use the upstairs as well as the downstairs if you live in a two-story house.
- Play Frisbee golf on walks with your child. Throw the Frisbee at an agreed-upon target, such as a boulder, rock or sign.
- Walk the nature trail at an area Metropark. In addition to looking for winter birds and animals, you will establish the connection that exercise is fun.
- Go sledding or tobogganing.
- Take the family ice skating or inline skating.
- Lap it up at an indoor swimming pool. Swimming is a great total body workout that tones most major muscles.
- Observe what sports and activities appeal to your child, then find out about lessons and clubs. Some children thrive on team sports, others prefer individual activities.
- When kids are bored, suggest something that gets them moving – like playing catch, building a snowman or riding bike.s Join in with them.
- Give your children some household chores that require some physical exertion, keeping in mind their levels of strength, coordination and maturity.

Race for the Cure

Thousands of area women and men will take to the streets Saturday, April 19, for Michigan's largest race – Detroit's Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation Race for the Cure.

Presented locally by the Barbara Ann Karmanos Cancer Institute, the sixth annual race will be held at the Detroit Zoo in Royal Oak. Race organizers expect 15,000 participants.

The Race for the Cure is a 5-kilometer run/walk and 1-mile fun walk that brings together people of all ages and abilities to promote positive breast cancer awareness, early detection and survivorship.

According to Jane Hoey, race chair and the institute's assistant director of breast cancer education and outreach, more than 600 breast cancer survivors are expected to attend the 1997 event. "Those 600 survivors are our neighbors, co-workers, friends and family members. They're the proof that we can make a difference in this disease."

Seventy-five percent of proceeds are used by the Karmanos Cancer Institute to fund breast cancer awareness and early detection programs, and also to assist low-income women needing additional tests following abnormal mammograms. The remainder is used by the Komen Foundation to help fund its National Grant Program.

Entry fee is $15 by March 28, $18 by April 4, $20 by April 11 and $30 thereafter, There will be no race day registration. Entry forms will be available soon at Jacobson's, JCPenney, Pier 1 Imports, area running stores, and by calling the institute, 1-800-KARMANOS (527-6266), or the Motor City Striders hotline, (810) 544-9099.

Research volunteers advance medical care

BY DIANE GALE ANDREASSI
SPECIAL WRITER

You don't have to be a doctor or scientist to be part of a cure that will save lives now and for generations to come. Volunteers for medical studies are giving society a tremendous gift and they say their efforts are minimal, overwhelmingly worthwhile and may help themselves in the end.

Sister Nancy Jamroz recently got involved in the Women's Health Initiative, a national study involving about 163,000 women ages 50-79 looking at how diet, hormone therapy, calcium and vitamin D affect cancer, heart disease and broken bones, which are the major causes of death and health problems among women.

"I received information through the mail and after reading it over I realized there is concern that women's health care hasn't kept up with general health care and also there can be a personal benefit," according to Sister Jamroz, vice president for student life at Madonna University in Livonia. Sister Jamroz, 55, will have blood tests and will answer questionnaires regarding diet, general medical history and lifestyle as part of her involvement in the dietary and hormone replacement part of the study.

She refers to her role as "a very small part, but I know the importance of research and people who will be subjects. Women have always been concerned about caring for others and this is a small way we can contribute to women in the future," she said.

"There is a need for more women to become involved in helping other women with this specifically, but other ways, too. We need to advocate for one another."

Often, people don't realize that medicine and the practice of medicine is based on science, according to Dr. Susan Hendrix, Women's Health Initiative director and principal investigator at Wayne State University. "We change that practice based on what we learn," she said. "We now know medical research is the thing that should direct the way we practice. By volunteering in a research study you should answer questions about your health and we as physicians get a better understanding on how we should treat people."

"Patients often ask, 'Why doesn't anyone have a better answer for my problem?' " Hendrix said. "The body is the most complex machine there is. We look at medical breakthroughs and this is how they happen – through these studies." Anyone interested in taking part in the Women's Health Initiative should call 1-800-5-4-Women.

Studying strokes

"Who knows who will benefit?" according to Jesse Williams, who is involved in a study about stroke medicine. "To me it's a chance to contribute and that's what my life is all about," he said. "My objective is to be useful."

Williams had a stroke in February 1996. He was shopping and bumped into a old woman; he walked a few more steps, hit a wall and realized that something was terribly wrong. Williams couldn't see out of his left eye and later was told he had a stroke. The Detroit resident learned about a study investigating how a drug, Warfarin (coumadin), compares with aspirin in treating stroke victims. Williams, 62, is taking Warfarin, a blood thinner.

"These studies don't work unless we have patients who are willing to participate," according to Bryan Bertasio, a Wayne State research nurse who is working on the Warfarin study. "They not only help themselves with good followup care and free medications, but they're also helping other people and themselves by the results of the study," Bertasio added.

People are on earth a certain amount of time, Williams added.

"Whatever we do we're born to die," he said. "We need to do what we can for our fellow man. Perhaps what I am doing will affect my children in the future. I have a great faith in God. He's my doctor."

If you're interested in volunteering for various studies at Wayne State regarding strokes, call 745-4244 or 577-9676.

Prostate research

Frank Cassise, a Bloomfield Township resident, also wanted to help others when he got involved in a study regarding an improved PSA (prostate specific antigen) test, which detects prostate cancer.

"My wife had seen an article in local papers that they were looking for people who had a father or an uncle who had prostate cancer," Cassise, 50, said. "And in my case both of them had it, so I was in their high risk group."

Also a previous test showed that his PSA level had started to go up. "I thought this was an opportune time to take advantage of being involved in a test that would be more accurate in readings," he said. "I never really thought about it until my father came down with it (prostate cancer) and his doctor recommended that my brothers and I be tested."

Cassise said a lot of people he talks to still don't know about prostate cancer. "It is a real serious problem and they can do something about it if you catch it right away," he added. "A neighbor of my had just had prostate surgery and when he found out my PSA had gone up, he called and offered a lot of support and information. If I can, I want to do the same to help others," Cassise said.

"When I saw what my father and uncle went through I will do anything possible I can do to try to avoid that for myself and others." He said the people who conduct the research study have been personable and helpful.

"There's no way I felt like a guinea pig. The doctor took the time to explain everything they were doing and what they were looking for. It was very informative."

More men are needed for the study, Prostate Risk Initiative, Detection and Education, P.R.I.D.E. Researchers are looking for men with a family history of prostate cancer and African American men, who are at a higher risk, according to Dr. Peter J. Littrup, Karmanos Cancer Institute associate professor of radiology, urology and radiation oncology who is conducting the P.R.I.D.E. study. Consider that prostate cancer is the No. 1 diagnosed cancer in men over 50 and is the No. 1 killer of cancer in African American men.

P.R.I.D.E. study volunteers are asked to go to one of various Detroit Medical Center laboratories around the metropolitan Detroit area and say they would like to participate. "Participants in clinical trials will be crucial in continued progress in medicine in the United States," Littrup said. "The people who get involved by helping to define new ways of understanding and treating cancer will be saving lives in the future and that's particularly true in minority and disadvantaged groups."

Anyone interested in volunteering in the P.R.I.D.E. study should call 1-800-577-3306.

Lock Up seeks 'prisoners' for good cause

The American Cancer Society is looking for prisoners, felons and repeat offenders to participate in the 12th Annual Great American Lock Up, March 11-14. For $25, you can have someone arrested – anyone. By calling the Lock Up Hotline at 1-800-543-JAIL, you can put someone behind bars for a good cause.

Want to lock up your boss? A co-worker? A friend? You select the day and time you want your "prisoner" arrested and their criminal "charge." Your husband forgot to send you flowers for Valentine's Day? The boss hasn't given you a day off in weeks? Your co-worker hasn't returned your stapler? Lock them up.

Organizers will send officers to pick them up and take them away ... to one of 11 jail sites to defend their case before the honorable judge. Guilty? The jail cells are conveniently located right next to the judge.

Prisoners will then wear cell mate outfits complete with ball and chain, shirt and hats for their "mug shot." Next, it's in the slammer to make telephone calls to ask for pledges to go toward their bail. How long will they stay in jail? As long as they want. Organizers will return them safely in an official Great American Lock Up courtesy car.

Detroit Pistons president and honorary chairman Tom Wilson has been leading this fight against cancer for the past eight years. "This event is the largest of its kind in the country," Wilson said. "We're raising vital funds for cancer research, cancer prevention and early detection, something that affects just about everyone."

Last year, the American Cancer Society's Great American Lock Up raised over $800,000 for cancer research, early detection and prevention programs. Programs such as Tell-A-Friend and Reach to Recovery are just two of the life-saving programs for women with breast cancer.

Three out of four Michigan families will be touched by cancer in some way, and one out of every four deaths in the United States is a result from cancer. For information on the event, call the Lock Up Hotline at 1-800-543-JAIL.

Sponsors of the Lock Up include UPN 50, the Pistons organization, and Lucent Technologies.

Web site saves Michiganders trip to Frankenmuth

EMORY DANIELS
O&E ONLINE

Zehnder's of Frankenmuth claims to be America's largest family restaurant. And it might be. It is, at least, Michigan's largest chicken restaurant. When you think of Frankenmuth, you think of Zehnder's or the Bavarian Inn.

Zehnder's now has its own Web site at http://www.zehnder-sw.com. Online visitors can read the restaurant's menu for white or brown chicken, tour 6,800 yards of Zehnder's 18-hole golf course (The Fortress), learn about upcoming events in Frankenmuth, or make reservations for an overnight visit at the Bavarian Haus Motel.

The 67-page Web site is packed with information about the restaurant known for its family-style, all-you-can-eat chicken dinners and about its golf, lodging and retail divisions.

"Zehnder's of Frankenmuth is known around the world," said president Albert F. Zehnder, "and now anyone, anywhere can have a virtual Zehnder's experience. We will constantly be changing the site and adding new items so people can visit again and again and see something new every time."

A "What's New" page features two most-requested Zehnder's recipes and has information about how to order executive chef John W. Zehnder's new cookbook, "The Flavors of Frankenmuth."

The Web site also provides a virtual tour of The Fortress. A map shows the full layout of the course. When you click on a hole, you can see the layout of that hole and get tips on how to play the hole successfully.

Online visitors also can enter a contest to win a free dinner for two, mail-order food items, or learn about job opportunities at Zehnder's. A Web-site map gives directions to Zehnder's that you can print out for your glove compartment.

State bar

The Michigan Bar Association now has its site on the Web. It's a colorful site and, because of that, takes a while to visit the first time. Once cached, it's not bad. Point to http://www.michbar.org and go fill up your coffee cup.

One section includes the Michigan Code of Judicial Conduct, Michigan Rules of Professional Conduct, an application for lawyers to volunteer pro bono services (free legal aid), Hospice Legal Aid Program, and guides for Law Day.

There is also a link to court opinions, which probably is more useful for bar association members. This page includes information on opinions of the Michigan Court of Appeals, Michigan Supreme Court, U.S. Supreme Court, and 6th Circuit Court of Appeals. Many opinions are available for download as Word 6.0 or WordPerfect documents.

There's also a link to news releases issued by the association, and to meetings and events, and publications. A Legal Gateway page offers links to law schools, legal organizations, media-related groups, Michigan government sites, and other legal sites.

Sir Speedy

In an effort to provide a 24-hour online service, the Livonia Sir Speedy center at 33599 Seven Mile has placed a WWW home page on the Internet.

The site will take customer's orders via Sir Speedy Online, a 24-hour bulletin-board system. Point to http://www.sirspeedy-centers.com/6310.

"By using our Internet site, customers can send us their jobs (electronic files) as well as communicate with us via our E-mail address at speedy@mich.com," said owner Tom Kenyon. "Our home page also offers a link to the Sir Speedy worldwide home page in which customers from anywhere in the world can use the Internet to find services provided by Sir Speedy, the closest location, and even a map directing them to a nearby location.

"Our global digital network is convenient and easy to use. We give the customers free of charge the special Sir Speedy online client software, either Windows or Macintosh-based. It can be downloaded from the Internet or sent on disk to the customer."

A customer can produce a document on his or her computer in black and white or in color. The customer then connects to the Web site, gets an electronic job ticket to fill in specifics of the job. A Sir Speedy computer accepts the job, sends it to one of the firm's printers and the job is finished and delivered.

"We also offer digital-storage capabilities that enable us to make changes for the customer anytime he or she wants. Because information can be moved electronically, proof review and approval is very quick. That means a customer's work can be reproduced virtually on demand," said Kenyon.

Red Wings site

"Hockeytown," developed by Ameritech as the official Web site for the Detroit Red Wings, can be accessed as http://detroitredwings.com.

The site features player biographies, live chat, ticket packages, and up-to-the-minute game reports that include photos taken during the game. The site has animated hockey players at the top of each section, action photos, historical photos, and fan interaction.

The site earned praise from ISWire Web Facts, "The Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League (NHL) have a site on the Internet's World Wide Web called Hockeytown that shows an expert knowledge of on-line branding and graphical layout. Other teams should take note."

Web Jewels

■ The Teenage Computer Network at http://home.ml.org/tcn/ is a place for kids ages 12-17 to hang out online. Despite the fact this site is based in Australia, kids from the world over are encouraged to drop in and read TCN's reviews, game cheats and articles. Budding writers are encouraged to submit their literary works including their own reviews: This is a place for kids, by kids.

■ Parents' Journal of School Related Issues at http://www.parentsjournal.org/ is a non-profit group's electronic journal to provide parents with an inside view of what's happening at your child's school. Articles are written by both teachers and parents — like Dr. Alan Krantz's "What's Wrong with School" and Linda Davis' column on "Safe Kids/Safe Schools." The site regularly reviews new educational software, book and video releases. "Ask Doctor Dave" is a column for pressing educational questions like what to do if your child refuses to do homework or how to manage your child coming home and saying "My teacher hates me."

Emory Daniels may be reached via E-mail at emory@oeonline.com. Past columns are may be accessed at http://observer-eccentric.com/main/emoryd/archive.html.

MARKETPLACE

Marketplace features a glimpse of suburban business news and notes, including corporate name changes, new products, office openings, new affiliations, new positions, mergers, acquisitions and new ways of doing business. Items for Marketplace should be submitted to Observer Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. The fax number is (313) 591-7279.

AWARD GIVEN
Jon Greenberg & Associates Inc., a retail design firm based in Southfield, was awarded a prestigious SADI Award at the Retail Design & Construction Conference and Expo held Feb. 2-5 in Dallas, Texas. JGA was recognized for its design of the NASCAR Thunder retail store at Gwinett Mall in Atlanta, Ga.

The awards, which recognize superior achievement in design and imaging, are presented annually in 14 categories by Retail Store Image and Shopping Center World magazines. The NASCAR Thunder store was honored in the category of "New Specialty Stores" of 2,000 to 5,000 square feet.

LAW FIRM KUDOS
The law firm of Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone ranked first in Michigan and 16th nationally among the nation's top bond counsel for all of 1996, according to figures compiled by Securities Data Company Inc.

During 1996, Miller Canfield handled 224 municipal bond issues valued at more than $2.5 million. The law firm was the only Michigan one included in the national rankings of the top 20 bond counsel for all of 1996.

BEARS TO HELP
Eight Detroit area Target stories are helping to make emergency situations more bearable for young children by donating cuddly teddy bears to local EMT units.

The donation is part of the Target Helping Hugs program, now in its sixth year. It is sponsored in partnership with the National Association of Emergency Medical Technicians and Hershey. Helping Hugs, created by Target, supplies EMTs with stuffed animals to help ease children's fears and anxiety during emergencies.

Representatives from Livonia, Westland and other area departments traveled to the Dearborn Heights Target Feb. 18 on their fire engines to pick up the bears. This year, Target stores throughout the country will donate more than 100,000 bears to local NAEMT affiliates that provide emergency medical services.

Named Fellow

Walter W. Newgeon has been named a Fellow of ASQC. He works on electric vehicle programs in the engineering office of Chrysler Corp.

Newgeon earned a bachelor's degree in aeronautical engineering from Purdue University and a master's degree in business administration from Wayne State University. He and other new Fellows will be recognized May 5 at an awards luncheon.

Galco changes

Galco Industrial Electronics has announced the promotion of Paul F. Kochan to director of repair operations. He will be responsible for overseeing the Depot and Field Service divisions of Galco. Kochan joined Galco in 1988 and has advanced with the organization. He holds a seat on the Advisory Board at Henry Ford Community College.

Jeffrey J. Selewski has been appointed as OEM market specialist. He will be responsible for developing new business relationships with OEM customers in southeast Michigan. Selewski holds a bachelor's degree in finance and economics from Wayne State University.

New responsibilities

HDS Services, a Farmington Hills-based food service and hospitality management company, recently announced the appointments of two regional directors of development.

Chad Bellville will be responsible for new business development in the company's Midwest region markets of Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and Tennessee. He joined HDS Services in 1995 upon graduation from Michigan State University. He will be located in Dayton, Ohio.

Luke Kramer has joined HDS Services from Marriott Management Service, most recently holding client management and sales support positions in the Northeast and Mid-Atlantic regions. A business and economics graduate of the University of New Hampshire, Kramer has been appointed regional director of development for HDS Services Northeast region, including all of New England and the northern tier of New York state. He is assigned to the North Andover, Mass., office.

Manager award

Christine M. Cleland of Belleville has met the Institute of Real Estate Management's requirements and been awarded the institute's Accredited Residential Manager award. She is administrator of Westhaven Manor Senior Retirement Community in Westland. She previously was administrator of Southhaven Manor Senior Community in Taylor.

Professor lauded

Professor Taki Anagnostou, an Eastern Michigan University faculty member, has been honored with the creation of a $5,000 scholarship and an honorary lifetime membership in the Detroit Society for Coatings Technology.

Anagnostou, a Livonia resident, is professor and coordinator of EMU's polymer and coatings technology program. He received the recognition during a joint meeting of the Detroit Society for Coatings Technology and the Detroit Paint and Coatings Association in January.

He joined EMU in 1986 and established EMU's emission center in 1991, where he serves as the center's project director. Anagnostou is a past recipient of the EMU Alumni Association Teacher of Excellence Award.

Promotion given

Kellogg Company announced the promotion of Aimee M. Bedard to associate scientist-convenience foods product development. She joined the company in 1989 and was most recently assistant scientist.

Bedard

Bedard is the daughter of Judy and Ernest Bedard of Livonia. She graduated from Bishop Borgess High School in Redford in 1988, and received her bachelor's degree in food science from Michigan State University. The Kalamazoo resident is pursuing her master's degree in business administration at Western Michigan University.

New appointments

Kenneth R. Oscarson has been appointed operations manager for Orchard, Hiltz & McCliment's Geographic & Information Services Division. He will be responsible for the day-to-day management of the division. Oscarson has been with OHM for 21 years and a principal in the engineering consulting firm since 1986.

NEW HOMES

The Woods: Choose Abbey or any builder

There aren't many residential developments where buyers can purchase a lot then bring in their own architect and builder to design and construct a house.

The Woods, a Burton-Katzman development off Adams north of Silver Bell Road in Oakland Township, is one where exactly that can happen.

Some 68 lots, from a third of an acre to just over an acre, can be had for a price ranging from $78,030 to $105,885.

Builders as well as individuals can buy. But the developer will retain tight architectural/construction control to prevent the upscale subdivision from taking on a hodgepodge look.

"We think we've located a niche in the marketplace," said Laurence R. Goss, Burton-Katzman executive vice president. "We'll make sure there is a harmony of design and style."

Ranches must be a minimum of 2,500 square feet; two-stories, 3,000 square feet. Exteriors have to be primarily brick, no vinyl or aluminum.

"We do allow them to design the home to their taste," Goss said. "We would recommend certain architects who have demonstrated the ability to design beautiful homes. But they can use anyone who's licensed and can meet the deed restrictions."

Abbey Homes, Burton-Katzman's construction arm, promotes four plans for the Woods, although it will consider building anything.

They include:

■ A 2,810-square-foot ranch with three bedrooms, 2-1/2 baths, library, dining room and great room with a base price of $325,500.

■ A 3,192-square-foot Cape Cod with four bedrooms (master on the main floor), 3-1/2 baths, library, dining room and great room at a base price of $377,500.

TAMMIE GRAVES/STAFF ARTIST

■ A 3,400-square-foot colonial with four bedrooms, 2-1/2 baths, living room, dining room, library and family room at a base price of $353,200.

All of the plans include as standard items fireplace, three-car garage, first-floor laundry, basement, and cooktop, double oven, microwave and dishwasher.

The base price of those plans doesn't include the lot.

■ The fourth plan, a 3,800-square-foot colonial, has been built as an on-site model and sales office.

The main living area contains a library with built-in bookcases, step-down living room with cathedral ceiling, step-up dining room, kitchen/nook with butler's pantry, walk-in pantry and built-in desk.

A family-room with 10-foot-high ceiling and two half baths – one off the laundry and the other off the library – also are on the first floor.

Four bedrooms are upstairs.

The master with tray ceiling showcases a whirlpool tub, separate shower, two vanities, one with a dressing/make-up area, and a pair of walk in closets.

A second bedroom features a combination tub/shower and walk-in closet, while the third and fourth bedrooms share a jack-and-jill bath.

Base price of the model, again excluding lot, is about $387,000.

Goss projects that buyers will be able to get into the Woods for about $350,000, including lot, with an average starting price in the low $400,000s.

And the community will draw, he said.

"Number one is the Rochester School District, second is proximity to Chrysler Technical Center," Goss said. "Third, at this price point, there are very few choices in Oakland Township and availability of lots for individuals. It's great (I-75) access."

"Most visitors are impressed with the scenery, the size of the home sites, the quality of the homes once they get inside the models, the detail work we do," said Todd Craft, sales rep for Burton-Katzman and Abbey Homes.

"In five or 10 minutes, you can be in downtown Rochester, but you're out in the country here," Goss said.

The Woods features city sewers and a community water well. There are no sidewalks.

The property tax rate currently is $22.46 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value. That means the owners of a $410,000 house in the sub will pay about $4,600 the first year.

Jay and Karen Mitchell brought in their own plans for a colonial that Abbey is building.

"It's Rochester Hills schools, size of this lot was good, pick-your-own-lot, pick-your-own-builder was helpful," Jay Mitchell said. "I was impressed with their quality and ability to maintain the (natural) surrounding area.

"Abbey has been very good helping us anticipate. The superintendent is here every day," Mitchell said.

The Abbey model and development sales office, (810) 370-0838, is open noon to 5 p.m. daily, closed Thursdays.

Building the beautiful in residential housing

STEVEN SIVAK

I was out the other day cross-country skiing at Maybury State Park, and I realized that just a few years ago there were no houses within view – the houses are creeping in and filling the holes that have been left behind. As an architect one might think that this would bring a smile to my face – but no, it does not. The primary reason for this is because much of what I am seeing is unattractive to me. Why is it that most architects and builders can not seem to build projects that are attractive?

The very best builders do not design for their clients but instead tell prospective clients to visit one of their preferred architects and to come back when the drawings are ready. These kinds of builders realize that there is a strong separation between the two professions.

The speculative builders, who really ought to be called developers, are of a completely different mind set. These kinds of firms all seem to offer similar schemes and style to their clients. The lack of individuality and variation are so great that a majority of these projects are painted with a single color and the color is the same from project to project and developer to developer! Too bad that the color is a pinkish brownish gray – uggghh!

The style that is so en vogue these days is frequently referred to as the "junior embassy look." It is the style that has all of the roofs going in all directions. Now do not get me wrong; I have nothing against roofs if they create interesting spaces below them, but this requires stick framing as opposed to truss framing.

The roofs that are so common are not occupiable spaces; they are merely additive elements that are stuck on to a truss-framed main roof. With few exceptions, they all have flat ceilings and fail to have any interesting three-dimensional development inside the house itself. The one common exception that these contemporary houses have is the three-story entrance, which is impressive to the public who drives by these homes.

There are two ways to reduce the number of these kinds of houses being built, and the first way is to hire an architect and build a custom home. The bad news in hiring individual architects is that unforeseen circumstances in construction can and will lead to cost increases. Standardized house plans minimize these unforeseen increases, but at a visual price.

When a buyer has a unique home built for him, the buyer can fall prey to the inability we all have in controlling our desires for the niceties of modern living. These desires also lead to cost increases. Buying a pre-built house minimizes the buyer's ability to choose more than he can afford.

Equally as unappetizing is the delay factor from the day one decides to build a custom house. Instead of moving into a pre-built home in a matter of days or weeks, the buyer of a custom-designed home must wait easily 12-18 months for his house to be built before he can move in.

The second way to "beautify" the new-home environment is to encourage developers to hire more good architects to design these speculative properties. If prospective buyers refuse to buy what is shown to them, the market will certainly adjust to supply what it is that they demand.

Snaking light cords, baggy slipcovers cheapen photos

By Barbara Mayer
For the Associated Press

Why don't our rooms look like those in the decorating magazines?

For starters, ours exist to be lived in. Not that the rooms we see aren't real. It's just that they've been, shall we say, enhanced for the photographer.

For example, we don't see wall outlets and lamp cords – and rarely a bare surface.

Why?

The camera's eye is more unforgiving than the naked eye. Even a beautiful room photographed as-is would have blemishes little noticed in daily living.

"Because the camera exaggerates empty surfaces, a bare kitchen counter looks like a landing strip in a photograph," Donna Warner, editor of Metropolitan Home, says.

And the everyday things – the toaster and the coffee grinder, the hot pads and hand towels, the salt shaker and the pepper mill – won't cut the mustard.

"So," Warner says, "we have to bring in fruits and vegetables to make the kitchen look lived in."

In other rooms, the furniture usually is rearranged and choice accessories are brought in for the shoot, as a photo session is called.

"European magazines are more casual about reality," Carolyn Fleig of Tucson, Ariz., says, "but American magazines do not want to see outlets, plugs or cords."

Fleig, a graduate of the Parsons School of Design in New York, travels throughout the West to find and then "style" rooms for editorial photography. Among her clients are Hearst Special Publications and Meredith's Better Homes & Gardens magazines.

Like Mary Poppins' satchel, Fleig's capacious carryall includes remedies for many aesthetic ills.

"A screwdriver and scissors are essential," Fleig says, "along with straight pins and safety pins to pin up drooping slipcovers."

She carries a loupe and a magnifying glass to study Polaroid prints, which are preliminary to the photo session. She checks the lighting and looks for any shadows, reflections or jarring physical imperfections.

A plate rack can hide a wall outlet. And grocery bags and newspapers can be crumpled for filler in the bottom of a large basket of fruit. There's a variety of tape, including duct tape good for taping electrical cords to furniture backs.

"If a magazine wants a fire in the fireplace, we arrange the logs and then put small balls of paper exactly where we want the flames," Fleig says. "The paper quickly ignites and produces the effect of a roaring fire, which is nice in hot climates during the summer."

Unlike Mary Poppins, Fleig needs a car trunk for large vases and platters to satisfy the camera's need for bigger-than-life objects. She expects the photographer to bring an electric screwdriver to remove a door that might be in the way. A small item compared with a truck full of lighting equipment.

"Homeowners are surprised at how much photographic equipment and how much time are needed," Fleig says. "It can take eight hours to photograph a kitchen and several days to do a number of rooms in a house."

With all of the primping, there is less today than there once was. Metropolitan Home, for example, used to have three types of shoots. An "A" shoot meant bringing fruit and flowers. "B" meant adding a lot of accessories, such as linens and pillows.

"The 'C' shoot was when you brought in the furniture," Warner says. "Now we have A and B shoots, but rarely get to C because of the expense."

Whether it's bottom line or otherwise, some magazines today prefer a simpler look.

"Our rule is one type of flower at a time," Kelly Reardon-Tagore, editor of Hearst Special Publications, says.

Oh yes, don't feel bad if your rooms aren't photo material.

"My house doesn't look like it belongs in a magazine," Warner says. "You might as well ask why most people don't look like fashion models."

Wallpaper strips coordinate design

Wallpaper borders are a fun and easy way to coordinate colors and give your walls personality. They help to link adjoining rooms and are an inexpensive alternative to moldings.

When selecting the right border, take into account what's already there. If your walls are decorated with bold colors, keep that same theme in the border you decide upon.

"Look at the dominant colors in the wallpaper or walls, and pick a border that uses those hues," says Leslie Langenburg, a design expert at The Home Depot. "Borders can also be used very effectively if you take complementary colors and coordinate patterns. For example, you can take dominant colors from your plaid sofa and choose a coordinating floral border."

Borders can be hung at nearly every height, but it's best to use wider borders higher up on the wall. Add a strip near the ceiling or install it lower to mimic a chair-rail effect. But, always keep in mind the direction of the pattern, particularly when using it around windows and doors.

For added dimensions, cut around the designs with scissors before you hang the border, or purchase die-cut or laser-cut borders. Die-cut borders come with an edge already cut around the pattern and laser-cut borders allow you to tear off the edge that you don't want, giving more flexibility.

"If you are unsure if the border will work, buy just one roll and take it home. Cut off a large enough piece and tape it gently to the wall and see how you like it over the next few days," says Langenburg.

Always buy enough to cover your area because there will be waste. But remember, don't throw away scrap pieces. Using the decoupage technique, affix them to accent boxes, trays or lamp shades around the room, or let the children use the scraps to decorate clay flower pots.

Home would fit young family

The Dickinson's symmetrical exterior, gabled dormer and full front porch are reminiscent of the Craftsman-style homes, popular in the first quarter of this century. The windows too, multi-paned on top and single paned at bottom, are typical of this period. Measuring in at just a little more than 1,400 square feet of living space, this plan is economical to build as well as to heat, making it ideal for a young family.

Following tradition, family living spaces are on the lower level, bedrooms above. Fully half of the main floor is devoted to the wide open country kitchen, sure to be the most popular area in the house. There's space here for an eating bar, a large kitchen table, and maybe even a couch and a desk for the family computer. Utilities and a small powder room are conveniently close to everything.

Parlor and dining room flow together, their boundaries defined by a half-wall capped with twin posts similar to those supporting the front porch. Each area is windowed on two sides. Double doors at the rear provide access to the back yard. If outdoor living is important, you can easily add a deck or patio.

The master suite isn't fancy, but it does have its own private bathroom complete with an oversized shower. Secondary bedrooms share a third bathroom.

A big bonus in the Dickinson is something that isn't apparent from the floor plan. It's an attic space that spans the full width of the home at the back. The ceiling tapers down to four feet at the rear. Access is through the closet in the left bedroom.

For a review plan, including scaled floor plans, elevations, section and artist's conception, send $15 to Associated Designs, 1100 Jacobs Dr., Eugene, Ore. 97402. Report highlights rise of 1st-time homebuyers

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) – Lenders are taking innovative steps to help thousands of working-class families become homeowners for the first time, a Housing and Urban Development report said.

Meanwhile, in related action, an agreement was signed between the Michigan State Housing Development Authority and USDA Rural Development to assist with the financing of single-family housing for low-income rural Michigan home buyers.

The HUD report, issued at the Midwest Summit of the National Partners in Homeownership at Michigan State University, detailed 10 steps lenders can take to target first-time and low-to-moderate income families.

The moves range from homeownership education and counseling to prudent underwriting criteria for lenders. Also included: default mitigation to help lenders and borrowers avoid foreclosure on delinquent loans.

The report is to be distributed to lenders, the secondary mortgage market, and those involved in providing greater access to home loans for first-time buyers.

"Affordable homeownership programs are allowing millions of American families, many of them young and minority families of modest means, to achieve a homeownership dream they never thought they'd reach," said HUD Secretary Henry Cisneros.

"With first-time home buyers making up a larger share of the market, lenders are discovering that no only does affordable lending make sense – it makes dollars and cents," he said.

After years of lagging homeownership levels, the rate is now at a 15-year high of 65.4 percent. Cisneros said first-time home buyers are the driving force behind the increase.

"The recent dramatic rise in homeownership – the largest increase in three decades – is strongly linked to an expansion of affordable home mortgage financing," he said.

"First-time home buyers, low- and moderate-income families, women and minority home buyers, urban home buyers – all are more able to obtain an affordable home mortgage and attain the American dream."

Studies show that the market share of first-time home buyers grew from about 40 percent of all home sales in the 1980s to 47 percent in 1994-95, HUD said.

The report was prepared following a series of forums that HUD cosponsored on affordable homeownership lending.

Hardwood: There's a species for every floor

Hardwood floors have been around for centuries, but at no time have there been more species and colors from which to choose. Whether it's oak, maple, ash or newer species like Brazilian cherry, there's a hard-wood flooring to complement any interior design style.

"As color and design trends in home furnishings change, preferences in wood flooring change too," says Neil Poland, vice president of sales and marketing for Harris-Tarkett, a manufacturer of hardwood flooring based in Tennessee. "By updating the species and colors we offer, manufacturers can continue to meet the growing demand for hardwood flooring with a broad range of choices that are right for today's design needs."

How do you decide what's right for you? Poland provides some direction.

Oak is by far the most popular hard-wood flooring species, he says. It is plentiful, t is competitively priced, and it is available in a variety of styles – planks, strips and parquets. The open graining is strong, but not overwhelming, so it is a good background for any interior design style. In a natural tone, it complements contemporary architecture and furnishings as well as casual country looks. In a darker color, reminiscent of walnut or mahogany, it is equally at home with 18th century antiques and reproductions as with an Arts and Crafts look or your own eclectic mix.

"If a homeowner is having a hard time making a choice, he should follow the lead of millions of home buyers, home remodelers and interior designers, and choose an oak plank-type floor in a natural color," notes Poland.

Gaining in popularity, however, are floors of maple and ash. Maple features a straight graining pattern and is hard and strong. Ash is a blond wood that also is extremely hard. Both are ideal choices for flooring.

"Because they are lighter woods, these two species are often found in light or white colors," says Poland.

Brazilian cherry is one of the newest additions to Harris-Tarkett's Longstrip American Collection. With its distinct graining pattern and inherent hardness – it is more than 75 percent harder than oak – it is an elegant alternative to oak. Its pink/red color goes through the wood and darkens with age to add a warm patina to the floor. Its denseness and hardness make it ideal for high-traffic areas, notes Poland.

"With its unique color and graining, this species is a good choice for the homeowner who wants the flooring to be an important part of the overall interior design statement," says Poland. Although its name sounds exotic, Poland confirms that the Brazilian cherry used today is harvested from controlled forests grown for this purpose.

Once you've chosen a species and color, the next decision is the type of flooring. Again, there are a number of options – prefinished or unfinished, the Longstrip type, an "engineered" plank, a solid or a parquet. Which are the top sellers?

"There's no doubt that prefinished Longstrip and the prefinished engineered floors are far and away the best sellers," says Poland.

Prefinished products offer a number of advantages. They can be installed without the dust, fumes or waiting time associated with the installation of unfinished floors. In addition, factory finishes are precisely controlled to assure a uniform thickness throughout the floor.

From an installation point of view, the most versatile product is Longstrip. Produced in 8-foot planks to resemble strip flooring when installed, a Longstrip laminated floor can be installed permanently over most subfloors without the use of nails or adhesives.

"It's great for remodeling since it's one of the few products that can be installed in an average room in a few hours. The furniture can be put back into place and the room the best sellers," says Poland.

"It's great for remodeling since it's one of the few products that can be installed in an average room in a few hours. The furniture can be put back into place and the room used immediately," Poland notes. "Engineered" is the term used to describe laminated plank and strip hardwood floors, like Harris-Tarkett' Hoiston and Jonesborough, which are available in 2Y@-inch strips and 3-inch wide planks. They are top-quality an provide a number of installation advantages. They are inherently stable so the floor does not expand and con tract, leaving unsightly gaps between the planks. They feature Tark-Lock, proprietary milling technique that produces a precise tongue and groove fo a tight fit between planks, resulting i a smooth, level flooring surface tha does not trap dust and other particles.

The "engineered" manufacturin process also uses more of every log, maximizing the yield from each tre harvested. The price is very competitive when compared to solid plan and strip products, as well s when compared to other flooring materials, like vinyl or carpeting.

No matter the species, color or type, the big news is the growing use of hardwood flooring in kitchens. "The variety of colors and species give the homeowner or designer a number of choices when mixing woods within the space using one wood for the cabinets, anothe for the flooring, and yet another for the dining table and chairs," notes Poland.

The real reason, however, is the advanced factory finish. For example, Harris-Tarkett puts seven coats o polyurethane on its prefinished flooring products, giving homeowners a luxurious, yet tough and durable no-wax floor.

"These finishes can stand up to whatever a cook dishes out," says Poland.

There's no doubt hardwood flooring is one of the fastest-growing segments of the flooring industry, according to Poland. "Homeowners and home buyers have discovered that it provides very good value for the price, it is luxurious, yet easy to care for, and it enhances the indoor air quality," he says. "But, most importantly, it fills the color and design needs of the homeowner or designer."

To help choose the hardwood flooring that's right for you, order Harris-Tarkett's 20-page, full-color catalog. It's free by writing to Harris-Tarkett Inc., 2225 Eddie Williams Road, Johnson City, TN 37601-2872, or calling toll-free 1-800-842-7816.

From out of the blue: emotional effects of color

(NAPS) – Feeling blue? How about red, green or orange? Whether or not we realize it, we all are affected emotionally by the colors that surround us.

Even at home, the colors we choose reflect our feelings and personalities. Colors also influence us and those who share our homes.

Color researchers have found that when test subjects are placed in red rooms, their pulses and body temperatures increase; when the same individuals are placed in blue rooms, the opposite occurs.

Other experiments have shown that violence among inmates was reduced when prison walls were painted pink, and that children in red classrooms were more hyperactive than their peers whose classrooms were painted blue.

"Because we see colors with our hearts, not our heads, they have the power to put us in a variety of moods," says Margi Daniels, ASID, La-Z-Boy design consultant.

"So, when choosing colors for your home, choose wisely, according to a room's function and how certain colors make you and your family feel."

Following are the emotional and psychological influences of some of today's most popular color families. Use this information as a guide to determine the colors that are the best for your home.

Red: Reds stimulate our nervous systems and increase assertiveness. They make us feel empowered and energetic; thus, reds are ideal for areas where physical activity will take place, such as a play area or workout room. Have trouble getting up in the morning? Paint the bedrooms red. Chances are you will bolt out of bed:

Orange: Like reds, orange hues are stimulating. Both color families tend to increase the appetite, which is why they're so often used in restaurant interiors. People also laugh more and are more gregarious in the presence of orange. Dinner parties will last longer and seem more interesting in a coral or light orange dining room.

Yellow: Yellows remind us of sunshine. They can make a dark room seem bright and more cheerful. Used in a small room, yellow seems to visually expand the space.

Green: Greens remind us of gardens, fields and forests. Surrounded by them, we feel calm and refreshed. Their relaxing influence makes greens welcome in bedrooms, bathrooms and other areas where peace and tranquility are desired. Greens also help bring nature indoors, making a hot, sunny room seem cooler.

Pink: Pinks give us a sense of well-being and make us feel affectionate, congenial and positively disposed towards others. No longer relegated to little girls' bedrooms, pink and its relatives rose, mauve and blush have become popular choices for today's social areas, such as living rooms, dining rooms and dens.

Brown: Symbolizing "down to earth," brown stabilizes, secures and supports. Browns, including beiges and taupes, are perfect for neutral territories of the home, such as kitchens or baths. They bridge together rooms, other colors and moods. They neither activate nor pacify; they blend, combine and cooperate.

Purple: This regal color inspires awe and respect. Because it has long been worn by clergy, it takes someone of high esteem to use it at home. When made lighter, it becomes more comfortable and assuring. A great color for an insomniac's bedroom, purple helps lower blood pressure and quells those conversations with yourself that prevent you from sleeping.

Blue: The favorite color of most Americans, blue makes us think of clear skies and placid lakes. Like green, its psychological effects are calming and soothing, so it, too, is appropriate for personal spaces where you plan to rest and relax.

"Remember, too, that color is very personal," says Daniels. "You may adore blue for its serenity, but your spouse may find it cold.

"Finding out how certain hues make you and your family feel is crucial to determining how best to color your world at home."

Know what you want in kitchen

(MPS) – When planning a kitchen project, the easiest part is often aesthetics. Most individuals know overall colors and styles that they want to incorporate into the space. The harder part is knowing what materials and products to include in order to create the desired look.

"It is very important to have an understanding of the pros and cons of the various cabinets, appliances and surface materials that are available," explains Doris Lacroix, CKD, CBD, 1997 president of the National Kitchen & Bath Association (NKBA). "Only then can you evaluate them properly in relation to your needs."

Part of the process, according Lacroix, is knowing the terminology. Following are some important definitions to learn as you prepare for a kitchen project.

Cabinets

A recent study conducted by the NKBA shows that cabinetry accounts for a major portion (53 percent) of the total cost of a kitchen project. Indeed, cabinets can be a focal point in kitchen in both an economic sense and a design sense.

"There are numerous options available in kitchen cabinetry today," Lacroix says. "To determine what cabinets are right for your space, begin with the different methods used manufacture them."

Stock cabinets – These are standard cabinets that are produced in large quantities in advance. As they are produced in quantity, special units are not available. However, manufacturers offer a wide range of widths and styles, and they are the least expensive choice.

"Purchasing stock cabinets does not mean sacrificing style," explains Lacroix. "Decorative moldings can be added to stock cabinetry for a unique look, and interest can added with a clever layout."

Custom cabinets – These cabinets are manufactured on a kitchen-by-kitchen basis after the kitchen has been designed. Then these cabinets are produced for a perfect fit in any kitchen. And, they are available in a wide range of wood species, finishes and special sizes.

"Although they are more expensive, custom cabinets give a kitchen a distinctive, upscale look," Lacroix says.

Semi-custom cabinets – Semi-custom cabinets are produced by both stock and custom manufacturers on a stock basis. According to Lacroix, semi-custom cabinets have many more standard interior fittings and accessories than regular stock units.

Appliances

Preparing meals, cooking and cleaning up are still the primary activities that take place in the kitchen. To accomplish them, an individual must have the right equipment. "Everyone completes these tasks differently, and therefore, appliance choices are very individual," Lacroix says.

Cooking equipment – Cooking equipment is available in three types, according to Lacroix. Built-in equipment provides an oven at waist height or, if using double ovens, one at eye level and one below.

"Using a built-in piece will allow more counter space. Also, it can be designed so that the oven and the cooktop are together or separate," Lacroix explains. "If separated, a built-in cooktop with two to six cooking elements can also be planned."

Slide-in or free-standing equipment features an oven below the cooking surface. According Lacroix, this is a good choice if budget or space limitations exist.

"One popular choice in free-standing equipment is the commercial-look oven," Lacroix says. "Today a commercial-style equipment is available for residential application."

The third option is the drop-in range. It is similar in looks and price to the slide-in, but it is installed between base cabinets and supported by cabinetry.

Like other types of kitchen equipment, refrigeration units also can be built-in or free-standing Separate refrigerator and freezer units are available, although combined units are more popular. "Smaller, individual refrigerators can be planned under the counter near the sink to allow storage of cold items closer to where food preparation is done," Lacroix says. For combined units, several options are available, according to the NKBA. The freezer may be located on the bottom, on the top, or the refrigerator and freezer may be side by side. Refrigerator/freezer units that have freezers placed on the top tend to have a lower energy consumption than units with side-by-side or bottom freezers because the freezer section is farther away from the warm compressor a condenser, according to the NKBA.

Countertops

Choosing the appropriate countertop material is essential because it adds the overall aesthetics of the design, but it must also be practical.

"Each countertop material has its advantages and disadvantages. Therefore, the selection is often based on the individual and how he or she will use the space," Lacroix says.

Decorative laminate – According to Lacroix, laminate is very durable and easy to clean, and it is available hundreds of colors and pattern However, it is subject to cuts a burns from hot pots, and once da aged, it cannot be repaired.

Solid surface – Solid surface materials are easy to customize to given space, and they combine we with other materials. If damaged, sol surface materials can be repaired.

"This material is a good choice you want to add a feeling of luxury and elegance to a space," Lacroix say "Color and pattern choices are some what limited when compared with laminate options, and solid surface counters can be expensive."

Ceramic tile – This material offers tremendous versatility in color . patterns and customizing. It is also quite durable and will not cut, bubble, blister or peel. It is, however, expensive and not practical for use everywhere in the kitchen.

"When incorporating ceramic tile, it is important to consider how the counter will be used," Lacroix explained. "Tile is not a good choice for an area where a great amount of food preparation will be completed. It should not be used in a space where you will be rolling dough, for example."

Marble/granite – Like solid surfaces, these materials add elegance to the kitchen. They are very fashionable and durable. If they are broken, however, neither can be repaired. Also, marble is easy to stained.

"It is important to note that it is not necessary to choose just one countertop material," Lacroix says. "Solid surface, laminate, tile, marble and granite can be combined with each other, offering several benefits.

"The combination gives the kitchen a unique look while cutting down on costs and retaining durability in high-use areas.

Walk-out lower level enhances luxury ranch

3759 Princeton Court
Bloomfield Hills
(N. of Long Lake, E. of Middlebelt)
Hall & Hunter
$789,000

This magnificent contemporary five-bedroom brick ranch is in North Wabeek, built in 1985.

An entry foyer with white marble flooring enters into a 27-foot by 20-foot great room with a 12-foot ceiling, white marble fireplace, pass-through wet bar to the kitchen and doorwalls to a wrap-around deck. A formal dining room ovelooks a wooded lot.

The kitchen features a huge granite island counter with electrical outlets and pop up food center, a sub-zero refrigerator, microwave, two self-cleaning ovens, white ceramic flooring, and walk-in pantry. A large breakfast room has a dramatic sloped skylighted glass ceiling and doorwalls to the deck.

The master bedroom suite has a 12-foot ceiling, architecturally designed ceiling with spotlights over the bed, built-in TV unit, two walk-in closets and doorwall to deck. The bath has a large Jacuzzi, steam stall shower and double sink.

Two bedrooms share a bath and the fourth first floor bedroom has its own bath.

The 3,812-square-foot main level is complemented by a completely finished, 2,500-square-foot lowe level walkout reached by a dramatic stairwell with skylight.

The lower level has a family room with curved glass block walls and gas fireplace. A complete second kitchen includes a refrigerator, island counter and vinyl flooring that matches the family room carpeting.

An exercise room features a hot tub, built-in TV and mirrored closet for equipment. There is also a full bath and the fifth bedroom.

The house has a three-car garage.

For information, call William A. Meade at 810-855-2911.

Technical Support Staff In Short Supply

By Sheryl Silver,
Career Source

Do you have good communication skills? Are you patient? Adept at using Microsoft Windows on your PC? If so, you may have a future in technical support, a career category where demand is high and earning power is on the rise.

Technical support encompasses custom service reps (also called technical support reps) employed by software companies, ad well as help desk staff, PC and LAN technicians and an array of networking professionals inside organizations that use computers. Although not often highlighted in articles discussing computer related jobs, technical support is one of the fastest growing segments of the information technology (IT) job market according to those who place and hire such personnel.

Greg Scileppi, executive director of Menlo Park, Calif. based RHI Consulting, a division of Robert Half International Inc., says, "Demand continues to increase. It's really the most explosive area of growth in IT today, at least in our business."

Bill Rose, founder and executive director of Software Support Professionals Association in San Diego, whose 5000 members represent over 600 software publishers, says, "A recent member survey found that finding, retaining and training customer support people was the top priority."

As to what's fueling the expanding demand, Scileppi says, "The proliferation of network computing and local and wide area networks in large corporations is one factor and because network computing has become more affordable, the number of small and medium size businesses implementing technology has also grown." And where there's technology, says Scileppi, technical support staff are needed.

Rapid change and innovation in the IT area has also contributed. "As technology continues to advance, users need help coping with the technology being introduced," says Scileppi.

Rose makes the point that a few years ago, customer support was a job that wasn't valued or well paid by software companies. "Today, however, the pay scales are moving up to equal those of developers as companies have come to recognize the value of customer support and good customer support professionals," he says.

Rose says what has also become clear to his membership in recent years is that communication skills are more important than technical skills for those just entering this career area. "We've learned we can teach people the technical skills needed if they have the communication skills." Scileppi also believes communication and people skills are critical since one deals with end users daily.

For those considering these occupations, Scileppi says there are both internal and external routes of entry. "Externally, there are a lot of training programs available," he says. "Programs offered by Compu USA and New Horizons are two that come to mind."

If one is inside a company, says Scileppi, one can end up in technical support from a variety of entry points, including customer service. "People coming out of customer service can move into the help desk area by marrying their listening, communication and problem solving skills with some technical knowledge."

Rose says many software companies are combating the shortage of available talent by growing their own software support reps via in-house training. "If someone is adept at using Microsoft Windows, even if they learned it at home on their PC, they're a good candidate for these opportunities if they're good communicators."

Finally, in terms of advancement potential, Scileppi says, "In every area of IT, there are two routes for advancement, one technical and one management oriented." From the help desk, for example, as someone becomes more adept technically, Scileppi says, "they can become hardware or software technicians or networking professionals." Alternately, he says, they can move into management of the help desk function.

Working Life

Truth or Consequences in Your Job Hunt

By Deborah L. Jacobs
Chronicle Features

Some people will do anything to get a job, even if it means lying.

A striking example involves 53 New York stockbrokers who paid stand-ins to take their six-hour licensing exams. Federal authorities caught up with the scam last month after a two-year investigation. The brokers, who lost their jobs and their licenses, now face criminal charges.

Why lie to get in the door? Applicants offer a number of excuses, from "I really need this job" to "everybody else does it". Often, people think they have to cover up resume gaps or portray themselves as superstars.

A recent survey of 100 college students showed that 95 percent were willing to lie at least once to get a job; 41 percent said they already had. The most common lie; embellishing a past job title to make the position sound more important, says Michael Cunningham, the University of Louisville psychology professor who conducted the poll. Other lies involved inflating salary history and puffing about extra-curricular activities, says Cunningham, who did the survey for Chicago-based Reid Psychological Systems, a pre-employment screening company.

Eventually, most falsehoods have a way of catching up with you. For Jean Houston, it took more than three decades.

After Houston made headlines last year for supposedly holding "seances" between Hillary Clinton and Eleanor Roosevelt, journalists turned the spotlight on her. They came up with a couple of discrepancies in Houston's background. At least one version of her resume included a Ph.D. in religion. It turned out that Houston had enrolled in a doctoral program, but never received the degree. What's more, Houston's publicity materials called her an "internationally renowned psychologist." Yet Houston, a New York resident, didn't even have a license to practice in her own state.

In a business but on trust, Houston's gross exaggerations may wind up costing her clients. She may never know how many people chose not to retain her services because she lied.

For people in the corporate world, consequences of career lies could be much more readily apparent. If, at the hiring stage, a company learns you've faked your credentials, you'll certainly lose out on the position. The same discovery later on could get you fired or blackballed in your industry.

Sometimes people get caught once there's trouble on the job – for instance, if their work hasn't been up to snuff. At that point, managers might take a second (and closer) look at your resume and find out you didn't tell the truth.

People who have been laid off and then brought lawsuits have also had much earlier lies come back to haunt them. If you decide to sue -- say, for sex, race, or age discrimination -- your old bosses will inevitably go digging for dirt. If they find any, it probably won't derail your case altogether, but it could limit what you collect.

Many people wonder how to put the best possible spin on their backgrounds without lying. And yes, it's hard to know where to draw the line. But in trying not to lie, you don't have to go overboard with the true confessions either -- about your reasons for losing a job, for instance, or being out of work.

Take the case of a young lawyer who had the impressive title of "general counsel" at a small company -- that is, until the business did away with her position. "Do I have to say on my resume or in a cover letter why I don't work there anymore?" she asks.

Absolutely not. What's more, that approach would detract from the lawyer's good credentials. There's plenty of time at an interview to explain that the company decided to hire legal help as they needed it, rather than keeping a lawyer on staff.

In this case, as in so many others, job hunting involves trying to figure out what other people want. Unfortunately, some applicants overestimate -- and lie to make up for their "deficiencies". In reality, most companies are looking for candidates who work hard, are pleasant to be with and have reasonably good credentials. You don't have to walk on water.

Forget the flu; protect against viruses

By Alice Bredin
Tribune Media Services

Last week, two people with whom I share a lot of e-mail and computer file attachments found computer viruses on their systems. The experience was the equivalent of your closest co-workers coming down with the flu. They lost days of time ridding their systems of the virus, and I lived in fear of "coming down with it" myself.

So far, a virus has not appeared on my system, but it was a reminder to me that I have to be more careful about which files I bring into my computer system. This is particularly true as I spend more time on-line, downloading files and receiving e-mail from a variety of sources.

Viruses are frequently passed through files downloaded from the internet, files from other people's computers, new software and files attached to e-mail. File libraries on commercial services such as America Online and CompuServe should be low-risk because forum operators are supposed to check all files before posting them to the forum.

In most cases, a virus can only infect your system if you download it onto your hard driver. Receiving an infected attachment to an e-mail will not infect your system until you download it.

If you share files with people via computer you may be at risk of contracting a virus. The virus my co-workers had turned all files into templates.

I narrowly avoided a virus last year after downloading a creative and clever Halloween card from an e-mail my husband got through the Internet. The card featured colorful goblins and other creatures moving around the screen. We learned later that the e-mail was reportedly designed to activate itself at a certain date and time and wipe out the systems on which it resided. Luckily, we got wind of this and deleted it before the virus struck.

According to "The Telecommuting Advisor," by June Langhoff (Aegis Publishing, 1996) signs that your computer has a virus include: your computer's date and time stamps change mysteriously; you run out of disk space because your programs are growing in size; your system crashes frequently; you get strange error messages such as "Gotcha"; or your disk is erased automatically.

To avoid infection by a virus do the following:

• Install and use an anti-virus program. Use the program to scan your hard disk and each floppy before you copy files to your computer or run programs. Update your anti-virus software regularly by visiting the vendor's web site or subscribing to the anti-virus software regularly by visiting the vendor's web site or subscribing to the program's update service so you can receive protection against the latest virus as well as receive new technology.

• Don't download e-mail attachments from people you don't know. This includes e-mail repeatedly forwarded to dozens of people, like the Halloween card I received. Erase the e-mail immediately.

• Don't download programs from bulletin boards not well-known to you.

• Don't use pirated software.

• Back up your computer often to protect your files.

These resources from "The Telecommuting Advisor" will help you protect your system.

Impreza Outback Sport commands respect

CAReport

BY ANNE FRACASSA
Avanti NewsFeatures

The versatility and comfort of a 4-door passenger car.

The capabilities of an all-wheel-drive sport utility.

In a small package.

That's what the 1997 Subaru Impreza Outback Sport is all about. Doesn't look like a sport ute, but is. But you're not climbing in a tall truck. You're slipping into a passenger car.

It reminds me of American Motors' jump into that sort of thing with the Eagle so very many years ago. It was all-wheel drive or 4-wheel drive (I can't remember which) and was still designed to be a passenger car. I still see those things on the road once in a great while.

What you can count on with the Impreza Outback is its strength. This is a solid car and worthy of the Outback badge that's graced the Legacy for the past few years.

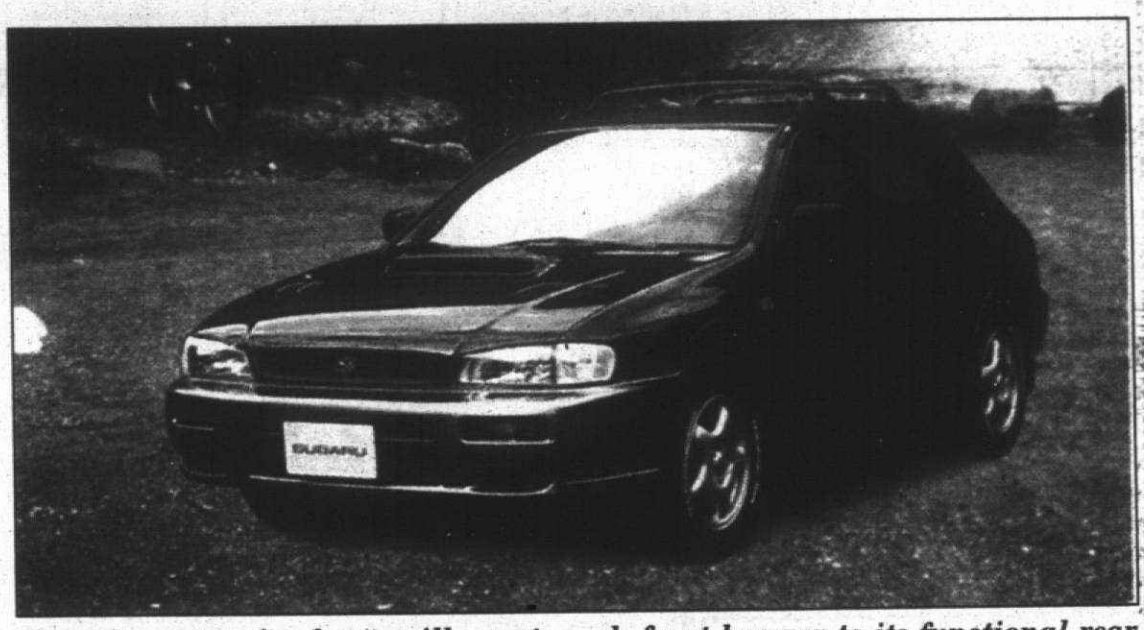
But Outback isn't just the trim level of the Impreza. It's a whole lot more, including new sheet metal, neat exterior colors, rugged interior fabric, a performance upgrade and the addition of a 12-volt outlet in the rear cargo area.

If you're looking for a passenger car that has the capability and versatility of an all-wheel drive for inclement weather, this Impreza's for you. I especially liked the price — just under $20,000.

Subaru used a shortened Legacy chassis on the Impreza, so you know where its heritage comes from. No doubt Legacy has earned its kudos by now; it's strong, versatile and proven.

The Impreza Outback, I believe, will be no different. It's already the highest-ranked compact car in J.D. Power and Associates Initial Quality Study.

From its aggressive front grille, vents and front bumper to its functional rear treatment, the Impreza Outback is stylish, attractive and has the look and feel of a comanding automobile.



From its aggressive front grille, vents and front bumper to its functional rear treatment, the Impreza Outback is stylish, attractive and has the look and feel of a comanding automobile.

Powered by a horizontally opposed "boxer" engine, the 2.2-liter 16-valve single overhead cam delivers a solid 137 horsepower — more than adequate to power this baby.

Subaru has long been active in the World Rally Championship series and is proud of its long-stroke 4-wheel independent MacPherson struts suspension system it's used in those endurance races. That same system is on the Impreza Outback Sport, ensuring that power is delivered to the road no matter what road conditions you'll encounter.

The heavy-duty independent suspension system has front and rear stabilizer bars that absorb all the bumps you can throw at it and still give you excellent cornering abilities with a minimum of body roll. Couple all that with variable power-assisted steering and you've got power, superior handling and control over any driving condition.

Safety features on the Impreza Outback include standard dual air bags, 4-channel anti-lock brakes, side-impact door beams, an impact collapsible steering column, 5-mph bumpers and child safety locks on the rear doors.

Standard comfort and convenience features are plentiful, including air conditioning, power door locks, power side-view mirrors, power windows with driver's automatic down, 2-speed intermittent wipers, rear sindow wiper and washer, an ignition off/headlights off system, a 60/40 split fold-down rear seat, undercoating and rustproofing and a protective clearcoat finish.

Also standard is an 80-watt AM/FM stereo with cassette, clock and four speakers placed strategically around the cabin. Just fine for a vehicle of this size.

Both Subaru Outbacks — the Legacy and Impreza — are extremely popular on the East Coast and in the New England states. Never understood why Subaru didn't sell a ton of these cars in the Midwest.

The Impreza Outback Sport is perfect for anyone who doesn't know whether they need or want a truck, lead active lives and need the versatility of a passenger car and wagon and want to have the pleasure of all-wheel drive to get them where they have to go in nasty weather.

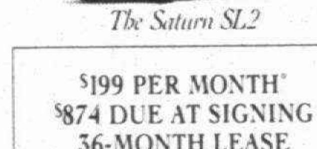
A DIFFERENT KIND of COMPANY. A DIFFERENT KIND of CAR.



The Saturn SL2

$199 PER MONTH*
$874 DUE AT SIGNING
36-MONTH LEASE

Introducing one of the nicer leases around. Not because of the affordable payments. And not because of Saturn's great value. But because we hear our lack of pressure and our fair pricing make leasing a Saturn just plain nice. SATURN.

SATURN OF ANN ARBOR 313-769-3991	SATURN OF PLYMOUTH 313-453-7890	SATURN OF FARMINGTON HILLS 810-473-7220
SATURN OF SOUTHFIELD 810-354-6001	SATURN OF LAKESIDE 8109-286-0200	SATURN OF SOUTHGATE 313-246-3300
SATURN NORTH 810-620-8800	SATURN OF TROY 810-643-4350	SATURN OF WARREN 810-979-2000

Payments based on 1997 SL2, automatic transmission and A/C, with M.S.R.P. of $14,665. License, title, registration fees, taxes and insurance are extra. First month's lease payment of $199 plus $180 down and $495 acquisition fee ($874 due at signing). Option to purchase at lease-end for $10,416. 36 monthly payments total $7,164. Primary lending source must approve lease. Mileage charge of $.15 per mile over 36,000 miles. Lessee is responsible for excessive wear and use. Payments may be higher in some states. Delivery must be taken from participating retailer stock by 3/15/97. ©1997 Saturn Corporation.
