After 12 years in Plymouth, Sharon Dillenbeck is packing up her paints and moving to Canton Township.

The local artist and art teacher will open D&M Studio's Once Upon An Easel at 8691 Lilley in the Golden Gate Plaza March 1. A ribbon cutting ceremony begins at 1 p.m.

"Yes I'm scared and nervous that I'm doing this, but I have all these supportive people behind me," said the Canton resident of 14 years.

After dividing her time and students between the Westland Bailey Center, the Plymouth Cultural Center and the Canton Senior Center, Dillenbeck felt it was "time to pull it all together under one roof."

At 48, Dillenbeck has few plans other than to continue painting and continue teaching people to paint. However, she does plan to offer some new things she was unable to in her old 400-square-

Plan raises doubts

■ A former Plymouth-Canton school official questions whether the district will have enough money to open new buildings if voters approve a March 22 bond issue.

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

A former Plymouth-Canton school board president is questioning whether the district will have enough money to operate two new schools should voters approve their construction as part of a March 22 bond proposal.

After examining the bond proposal and district financial projections, Roland Thomas said Plymouth-canton needs a bond issue, "but not this one."

The $79.7 million bond issue calls for construction of a new high school, elementary school, infrastructure improvements at existing schools, new computers and buses.

When the district built two schools after a 1991 bond issue, they remained closed for a year because of a money shortage. That history, fluctuations in the district's five-year financial projections and other factors have some residents, including Thomas, questioning the current proposal.

In recent months, administration has presented three financial projections.

Geake stepping down; Whyman stepping in?

Bob Geake will retire from the Michigan Senate in 1998 even though he is eligible to run for a last term.

"I told the Republican caucus this morning I'm not going to run in '98. It's time to move on," he said Tuesday.

"One reason is finances. I need to earn some more money before I retire," said the Northville Township resident, who will be 60 on Oct. 26 and 62 at the end of his sixth Senate term.

The district includes the Northville community, the Plymouth community, Livonia, Redford Township, and varying portions of Canton Township.

Republican candidates who have announced for the seat include state Rep. Deborah Whyman and Wayne County Commissioner Thaddeus McCotter.

"I've been looking at that possibility for about a year and a half," said Whyman, R-Canton, who is prevent-

Assessment hike tied to new homes

BY VALERIE OLANDER

Residential property values in Canton Township increased by 5.75 percent while commercial, industrial and agricultural properties had no change in taxable value, said Assessor John McLenghan.

Assessment notices were mailed out last week to property owners.

Homeowners' taxes will be based on a 2.8 percent increase, which represents the rate of inflation. Proposal A capped increases in taxable value or state equalized value (SEV) at the rate of inflation. SEV is used to determine the amount of taxes levied.

The 5.75 percent increase is lower than the 9 percent average of reported real estate transactions in metropolitan Detroit, McLenghan said.

The median residential sale in Canton was $142,000 during the Scouting party is big at Tonda

BY LAURIE HUMPHREY
STAFF WRITER

More than 180 girls will celebrate the 85th birthday of Girl Scouting Monday, March 3, at Tonda Elementary School in Canton.

"Every year, we have a thinking day about worldwide scouting," said Carol McKee, a 43-year-old Canton scouting leader. "This year, we thought it would be nice to celebrate the birthday of Girl Scouting."

The ceremony, featuring presentations by former Girl Scouts and a ventriloquist, will last 85 minutes, one minute for each of the group's 85 successful years.

"We really want this to be a nice celebration," said McKee. "In this time and age, 85 really stands out and says 'Look what we've achieved.' "

Amid the birthday cake, ice cream and balloons, Esther Sprengel, president of the Canton Historical Society, will give the girls a look into scouting decades ago.

"She will talk about her scouting days," said McKee, a former nurse. "And she will be bringing with her possibly two other ladies."

The reason for the history lesson is simple, according to McKee.

"They're (the girls) getting a sense of history, a sense of pride."

Girl Scouting was the brainstorm of Juliette Gordon Low, who began with a troop of 18 girls. The first meeting was in her house on March 12, 1912.

Today in the United States, there are three million Girl Scouts, ages 5-17. Their focus is "To serve God and my Country, To help people at all times, And to live by the Girl Scout Laws."

Newburgh Lake ready to be lowered

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK
STAFF WRITER

The $10 million restoration of Newburgh Lake will enter another phase Monday when contractors are expected to remove a sluice gate on an old dam there to lower the lake.

That phase will begin only if work is completed on another temporary dam by the end of this week.

The lake, actually an impoundment of the Rouge River, will be lowered 8 or 9 feet by April 1.

Later that month or early May, the excavating firm of Browning Ferris Industries (BFI) will begin removing from the lake's bottom 390,000 cubic yards of soil and sediment contaminated with polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs) and transporting it to a landfill in Salem Township. The first of two fish kills are tentatively scheduled to start in May or June to rid the river of the PCB-contaminated fish.

Hines Drive is scheduled to be closed between Haggerty and Newburgh roads in late April or early May through July 1998.

The lake lowering will continue through the excavation as lake depths fall an additional 4 feet by Sept. 1. The lake will be excavated through April 1998.

Currently the lake is 16 feet at its deepest point near the dam in the east end. Much of the lake is shallower than that, particularly in the west end, where depths average from 6 inches to 2 feet.

Engineers expect to lower the lake a foot every three days over the next month.

"We expect it will take three weeks to 30 days to draw it down," said John O'Meara, staff engineer with Environmental Consulting & Technology, the consulting firm overseeing the restoration project.

The excavation will continue through next winter, then a second fish kill will be conducted in May 1998 once the excavation is completed.

The lake will be "filled" between May and July 1998. That is, a gate on the dam will be closed and allow for the lake to fill the area.

Hines Drive will be restored during the time of the lake fill. Fish will be restocked in the lake in July 1998.

The lake - now closed - is expected to be open to the public by August 1998. Besides the closing of a portion of Hines Drive, residents can expect construction noise, odor from the excavation of muck, plant life and sediments, and prevented use of the lake for 18 months.

The first of two fish kills is scheduled this spring once the water temperature warms up.

Rotenone, a pesticide derived from plant roots that kills fish will be sprayed on the water. Potassium permanganate will then be applied to detoxify the rotenone.

"Our focus is to make the world a better place," said McKee, citing some of their activities. "We march in parades, collect food for food banks, donate to shelters and work in soup kitchens."

The annual birthday party is a time to reflect on everything the girls have accomplished over the past year, and what they need to do in the future.

With four children to raise, church activities and volunteer work at her son's school, McKee admitted that leading a group of Girl Scouts can be exhaustive. Yet, she has no intention of giving up. "If I can make this world a better place, create better citizens ... then my job is done," she reasoned. Plus, she works together with other leaders and co-leaders to get projects done, like the 85th Birthday Party.

■ The Tonda cluster is made up of Daisies (kindergarten,) Brownies (first-third grades,) and juniors (fourth-sixth grades).

Planning the event, open only to Girl Scouts in the Tonda cluster, took about one month, she said. "But Girl Scouts work very quickly. We're very efficient."

Teamwork is only one concept girls are encouraged to learn in Girl Scouts; organization is another. So while the girls are usually involved in the planning of such events, McKee said this one was special. "We're giving this party for them.

"It's a lot of work, but it's very fun."

The Tonda cluster is made up of Daisies (kindergarten,) Brownies (first through third grades,) and juniors (fourth through sixth grades). Girls, including McKee's 11-year-old daughter, Kelli, meet two or three times each month.

The group will get together an additional time this month to be entertained in the Tonda cafeteria beginning at 6:15 p.m. Monday.

first half of 1996, up from $123,000 during the same time period in the previous year, he said. The increase is due to new construction, he added.

About 50 appointments already have been made with the Tax Board of Review to appeal property tax assessments. Hearing dates are set for 1-5 p.m. and 6-9 p.m. Monday, March 10, 9 a.m. to noon and 1-5 p.m. Tuesday, March 11. Appointments must be made for both days. From 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, March 15, has been set aside for walk-ins.

All of the review hearings will be held in the lower level of the Canton Administration Building. Other hearing dates and times may be scheduled as needed.

Residents can appeal assessments for two reasons: hardship and based on market value.

Residents who claim hardship must fill out a hardship form. They must have proof of income or proof of unusual circumstances, such as mounting medical bills.

Those who appeal on market value should bring any documents showing recent sales in the neighborhood. The assessor works off a two-year sales study to make the assessments, however, that study ended in March 1996. Any sales after that may by applicable to the appeal.

If an appeal is denied residents can further appeal to the Michigan Tax tribunal prior to June 30 this year.

To make an appointment, residents should call the Canton Assessor's Office at 397-6831 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. through Feb. 28.

Pizza driver, pizza shop targeted in robberies

Two robberies were reported at Canton pizzerias last week.

A driver for Hungry Howie's was assaulted and robbed of $250 by three men on Cherbourg, east of Sheldon, police said.

The driver told police he had just made a delivery on Cavalier Street about 9:15 p.m. Friday when he was returning to the Ford Road pizzeria.

He was driving north on Sheldon when he was passed by a blue or black Sunbird or Cavalier, which forced his car off the road at Cherbourg. Three unknown white males jumped out of the vehicle and pulled the 20-year-old driver from his car, punching him several times. One of the attackers reached in his jeans pocket and stole about $250 in cash, police said. While the assault was taking place another robber took the car radio.

In a separate incident, a 17-year-old employee at Marco's Pizza, 45490 Ford, was robbed at knife-point shortly after 3 p.m. on Sunday.

■ COP CALLS

The employee told police he was in the back of the store cleaning up and didn't hear the doorbell when the robber entered and grabbed a knife from the back counter. He threw the employee into a wall and then told him to lay on the floor while he took approximately $79 from the cash register and fled out the back door.

The robber was described as five-foot-10 inches tall and 160 pounds. He was wearing a ski mask, black jacket and combat boots, police said.

Store managers from both locations declined comment.

Stolen car

A 41-year-old resident of Fairway Club Apartments reported her 1993 Dodge Dakota stolen from the parking lot sometime between 3 p.m. Monday and 9:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Breaking and entering

A break in was reported at a home on 41000 block of Metaline sometime between 6:45 and 9:10 p.m. The homeowner told police she returned to find the garage lights on. Drawers to entertainment center were open and several Nintendo 64 video games, valued at $69.99 each, were stolen. Jewelry also was taken from a bedroom. The thief broke in through a basement window, police said.

■ A $550 refrigerator was stolen from a home under construction on the 3800 block of Hunters Court. R & K Homes employee reported the theft which occurred sometime between 1 p.m. Friday and 8:30 a.m. Saturday.

■ 'It's the next logical step.'
State Rep. Deborah Whyman, –on running for the Senate seat vacated by Bob Geake

ed by the Michigan term limit law from seeking another term in the state House. "It's the next logical step."

"Bob is a gentleman, he works very hard and his high character is shown by his decision to announce his intentions early and give everyone an equal opportunity" in that race, Whyman said.

State Rep. Lyn Bankes, whose district includes Redford and part of Livonia, said she won't run. She's considering a run for county commissioner.

"There will never be another Bob Geake and he's done a great job for 22 years," said McCotter, R-Livonia.

State Rep. Gerry Law, R-Plymouth, whose 20th District includes Livonia said: "I'm not sure what my plans are, I always planned on supporting Bob. Whether or not I'll run is something I'll evaluate down the road."

Law is eligible to seek a third consecutive House term in the November 1998 election.

The filing deadline is May 12.

Legislators currently are paid $51,894 and are due for $53,129 in 1998. They have expense allowances of $8,925.

Geake said another reason to announce his plans now is to give his successor a chance to build up seniority. Voters in 1992 approved term limits for legislators. Senators were held to two terms beginning in 1994, so there will be a big turnover in 2002. A senator elected in 1998 would be in a good position to move into the leadership circle.

Representatives were held to three terms, and many will be looking in 1998 at seats in the south wing of the Capitol Building where the Senate sits.

"Qualified candidates are backed up to run. It may be a crowded field," Geake said. "I don't plan to endorse a successor at this time."

He "probably" will return to the field of clinical psychology, work he did at Northville State Hospital and in private practice before his election to the House in 1972.

"I definitely will not go into lobbying" as do many former lawmakers, he said.

Geake is the senior Republican in the Michigan Senate and will have been in the upper chamber 22 years by the time he retires, though other suburbanites have served longer. The late William Faust, D-Westland, put in 28 years; Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, served 24.

Because his announcement came quietly in caucus, fellow senators have yet to unleash a barrage of oratorical tributes. That probably will come in 1998.

Emphasizing he has a year and 10 months to serve, Geake said his top accomplishments have been:

- "The triplicate prescription law, ending the diversion of prescription drugs to the black market."
- "The anti-stalking law, which has been emulated in many other states."
- "My Friend of the Court reform package.

"However, more needs to be done on Friend of the Court reform. I want to work also on setting up family courts within the circuit court framework, and on welfare reform."

Biggest disappointment? "Never being elected to Congress," he said. He was the GOP nominee in 1992 against Democrat William D. Ford.

For several terms Geake has been vice chair of the Appropriations Committee, which approves all budget bills. His subcommittee specialties have been mental health, social services, regulatory and corrections.

Other assignments have been Judiciary, which studies bills relating to court reorganization and crime; and Families, Mental Health and Human Services, which delves into social policy questions. The latter panel reported out much of his Friend of the Court reform bills.

After earning three degrees in special education, guidance, counseling and psychology from the University of Michigan, Geake settled in a landmark square white farmhouse on Eight Mile Road in Northville Township, where wife Carol carries on a veterinary practice. They have three children.

Geake won an at-large seat on the Schoolcraft College board in 1969 and became chair. When a House of Representative seat opened up in 1972, Geake joined a Republican uprising that captured most county board and legislative seats for the GOP and held them ever since.

He won the Senate seat in a special election March 23, 1977, after Carl Pursell vacated it to move to Congress. Geake was re-elected in 1978, 1982, 1986, 1990 and 1994.

His campaigns were low on flashy advertising, long on door-to-door leg work.

Would he, after 27 years in public office, encourage today's civics students to a career of public service?

"I would strongly recommend it," he said. "It's very satisfying. There are few other fields to help so many people as through public office."

Geake is the first Republican and second senator to bow out of the 1998 race. Democrat Jim Berryman of Adrian will run for governor.

But others are expected to decline re-election, both to seek higher office or to give someone else in the district a chance to build up seniority before the great term limits retirement party of 2002.

feet studio.

"The kids were practically sitting on one another," she said with a chuckle. With 1,400 square feet in the new studio, students will be able to spread out a little.

Meanwhile, plans are in the works to include a coffee & espresso bar, a private gallery, a lending library, an 8-foot stage to feature an artist in residence and more.

"We will also have a trade-in, trade-up policy," she said. If art students had to purchase an item for a class, but they will never use it again, they can take it to D&M Studio's Once Upon An Easel and get something else.

Teaching more than 500 students every week is an awesome responsibility, Dillenbeck said, when you have to supply each of the students with the necessary materials.

"In my classes, you don't have to have all your own materials. We provide them."

She believes the reasoning for such a policy is common sense, even though other art programs don't offer the materials.

"How does a parent know a child will like that (class)?" Since the supplies are included in the price of a class, the child can just be switched to a different class without requiring them to buy all new supplies.

She offers classes in: multimedia, cartooning, drawing, painting, clay and ceramics just to name a few. Just as diverse as her class offerings will be her stock.

"We're not going to be a full-service store as soon as we open," she said, "but we will sell acrylics, watercolors, canvasses, colored pencils, oils, everything you need for classes.

"And if I don't have in this store what they want, I will order it and have it the next day."

Calling her store a "one-stop shopping place," Dillenbeck and a team of sales people will "cater to the student, teacher and professional." In addition, she will offer holiday work shops, summer art camps (for every age group,) scout badge workshops and college portfolio preparation.

"And the first Saturday of every month, we will have 20 minutes free for little kids," she said. The idea is to get the youngsters interested. "That will start in April."

Despite her new endeavor, Dillenbeck plans to remain active in outside programs like the Fine Arts Camp for Kids, Women of Artistry, Project Arts Canton and the Liberty Fest Fine Arts Fair.

"Anyone who knows me knows that art is my life," she said. Fortunately, her family is very supportive and also interested in art.

"My whole family gets into this," she said.

She pointed to a bare, white, studio wall which will soon display the design of her 12-year-old daughter. The mural will be painted by some of her students...her extended family.

Basement flooding reported

Heavy rainfall caused flooding in several areas of Canton last Friday morning closing down Sheldon Center Road during the morning rush hour and flooding 17 basements. Surface flooding also was reported in the Sheldon Road and Palmer area near the Mott Drain.

Approximately 1.5 to 1.75 inches of rain fell overnight Thursday. Warmer temperatures also caused increased storm water runoff from the frozen ground.

As this week come to a close, residents can expect additional flooding due to more heavy rain predicted.

"All local problems were not due to our system at all. It was storm water overflow and not sanitary sewer backups, not like Westland," said Tom Casari, township engineer.

In Westland approximately 500 residents reported flooded basements from sanitary sewer back ups allegedly caused by a subcontractor blocking off a main drain during installation of a new sewer system.

Most of the flooding in Canton was caused by catch basins blocked by leaves and ice, Casari said.

Coincidentally, the Board of Trustees on Tuesday approved a storm water management ordinance expected to curb some of those problems. Developers will be required to pay $150 per lot fee to be used for storm water pollution prevention and maintenance. It is expected to take effect in March.

"Subcontractors drag a lot of mud in the streets, causing the sediment to go into the sanitary sewer system. This will create a revenue stream to do clean up work so not to burden the taxpayer," Casari said.

Canton is one of the first communities to adopt an ordinance that requires developers to pay a fee. Sterling Heights has already requested a copy of the ordinance to consider adopting a similar policy.

Thomas, a Ford Motor executive who has degrees in accounting and marketing, spent 12 years on the school board, choosing not to seek re-election in 1995. He says a classroom building - not an expensive new high school - is what the district needs.

John Birchler, the district's executive director for business, fielded questions on line items in the most recent forecast.

• Salaries and benefits: They will account for 89 percent of total expenditures 2001-2002 - up from 87.3 percent in 1995-96 - assuming a 1.5-percent increase each year. Birchler was asked whether the 1.5-percent increase is realistic based on past contracts which have offered more; and whether what's left will be enough to cover all the district's non-salary costs.

"That is what we are projecting. It's a labor intensive business," he said.

Birchler said the figure does take into account the automatic, built-in increases in the salary schedule, which for teachers range from 4.8 percent to 9.6 percent annually during the first 10 years of employment.

"For now, we must assume that everyone who's here now is going to be here," said Birchler. As senior teachers move up the salary scale, "they don't get the built-in increase."

• Benefits and utilities:

Birchler said he's projecting lower benefit costs due to the new health care plan. Switching from Blue Cross "is reducing our benefit costs," he said.

Utility costs in the latest financial forecast reflect lower costs than projected earlier, due to projected savings from a recently-adopted energy conservation plan and de-regulation of utilities expected to offset costs due to things like additional computers, Birchler said.

Thomas is concerned about the line items. "If each of those three categories (salaries, other benefits and utilities) are off by .5 to 1 percentage point, the fund balance will be reduced by $4.4 million. The fund balance, or surplus, in 2001-2002 is projected at $4.56 million.

• Facility maintenance, repair: Less is allocated for this line item than in December's projection. Between 1997-98 and 2000-2001, projected expenses are pegged at $280,400 less than they were Dec. 17.

"We've typically not increased maintenance on facilities on a regular basis," explained Birchler.

• Transportation, non-salary: Reductions since December in this area total $84,900 over a four-year period.

• Other costs: The line item includes special, adult and vocational education; driver education; summer school and student testing; as well as legal, audit, and borrowing cots; property liability insurance; tax refunds and data processing fees.

Improper connections cause water pollution

By Ken Abramczyk
Staff Writer

Fred Cowles believes raw sewage still may be flowing in the Rouge River through improper connections between sanitary lines and storm sewers.

While the senior watershed management specialist with the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality doesn't have knowledge of specific cases or can identify particular communities in Wayne County as sources of the problem, he knows statistics reflecting on the river's poor water quality don't lie.

"There is a growing suspicion that (illicit connections) are causing more pollution than we thought in the past," Cowles said. "We are finding a significant number of pollutants.

"Certainly one of them is raw sewage."

Part of that problem will be alleviated by the activation of retention basins within the past year throughout the basin. But Cowles believes everything from poor plumbing and cross connections to failing septic tanks can contribute to the problem.

"Usually it's an honest mistake, with the homeowner not even knowing about it," Cowles said. "It's possible they could have a cross connection with the storm and sanitary sewers, which were done to relieve a problem."

That might cause a problem only during a flood, Cowles said, but it creates a sewage flow nonetheless.

Residents who may believe that they are connected to Detroit's sewer treatment system and are billed for the same services still can be connected to an old septic system, Cowles said.

That septic system may have a failed septic field and contribute to groundwater contamination. All without the homeowner's knowledge.

"People get billed for sewer services, and they may not have had the occasion to pay a plumber the $500 or $1,000 or whatever it costs to get the septic disconnected and connected to a sewer."

Homeowners who purchase old homes may not know whether the home was ever even connected.

Sometimes homeowners may place gravel on their property to allow for storm water pooling on lawns to run into the street.

Contamination can come from more blatant sources. People may even change oil in their vehicles in the street and let the old oil run down the storm sewers.

Storm sewer discharge

State seeks cooperation from locals

By Ken Abramczyk
Staff Writer

■ Cities, villages and townships are obvious participants, but county agencies of roads, drains and parks, and state educational agencies are encouraged to join with the communities, schools and universities in developing plans.

State environmental officials want communities throughout the state to eventually eliminate improper storm water discharges into storm sewers.

But they don't want to force them through government mandates, at least not yet.

The Michigan Department of Environmental Quality has proposed voluntary guidelines communities would follow to receive a general permit from MDEQ for storm water discharges from separated sewer systems. Applicants must be governmental agencies which own and control separate storm water drainage systems.

"We're going to find out if a different approach is going to work," said Fred Cowles, senior watershed management specialist with Michigan Department of Environmental Quality's surface water quality division. Cowles reviewed a draft of the plan with the Rouge River Remedial Action Plan Advisory Council at the group's bimonthly meeting on Feb. 19.

Permit applications will require communities to identify discharge "point sources" and establish a plan to eliminate discharges. The DEQ will review the plan and if it is unacceptable, it will identify areas that need to be addressed before permit coverage is granted.

Discharges

Improper or illicit discharges include any seepage or discharge to the separate storm water drainage system that is not composed entirely of storm water, but some exceptions are allowed. These discharges include non-storm water discharges through illicit connections; and dumping of sewage, motor vehicle fluids, household hazardous wastes, grass clippings, leaf litter, animal wastes, restaurant wastes or any other waste directly into a separate storm water drainage system.

State officials hope the problem can be tackled on a "watershed-wide" basis in a watershed management plan. Each community will receive a certificate of coverage (COC) for use with the general permit.

Cowles highlighted other aspects of the report for the RAP council:

■ The DEQ wants other governmental units involved, also on a voluntary basis, namely schools and universities.

■ This program is a separate one from permits issued for retention basins for combined sewer overflows where sanitary and storm sewers combine and empty into the river. Those cities receive separate permits for the basins.

■ Communities with separated systems still may have improper connections in homes with raw sewage from these residences flowing into storm sewers. (See related story.)

Even though communities may have resolved much of the CSO problems by separating sewer systems, those municipalities will still be asked for voluntary cooperation, Cowles said.

Schools and universities will be asked to voluntarily join, because they are a separate unit and do not fall under municipal jurisdiction, Cowles said. "They are a major part of any watershed," Cowles said. "Public schools and universities play a significant role."

Cowles had no evidence to suggest that schools or universities were contributing significant raw sewage to the river.

The watershed management program will be a "locally driven program."

"(Communities) can develop their own (programs) for their constituency and recreation, and what they will do to do that," Cowles said.

Watershed management

Watersheds rarely follow a jurisdictional border of communities, Cowles said. "(The plan) demands cooperation among jurisdictions of those who share the same watershed," Cowles said.

With the management plan, taxpayers can work on something their tax dollars have funded, Cowles said.

Cities, villages and townships are obvious participants, but county agencies of roads, drains and parks, and state educational agencies are encouraged to join with the communities, schools and universities in developing plans, Cowles said.

Schoolcraft will increase tuition

By Ken Abramczyk
Staff Writer

Schoolcraft College students can expect an increase, albeit modest, in tuition this fall, according to the college's president Richard McDowell.

Schoolcraft trustees will meet in March to discuss the 1997-98 budget, anticipated state revenue for the college and other revenue, and tuition fees.

Gov. John Engler proposed recently in his 1997-98 budget that Schoolcraft will receive about 4 percent more general operational revenue next year than the state's package for the college in this current fiscal year ending June 30.

Next year Schoolcraft would receive $10.6 million in revenue from the state, which includes a one-time expenditure of $120,000 for technology, and about $100,000 for job training and at-risk students. This year's state package totaled about $10 million.

Engler's proposed budget must go through hearings in the state House and Senate. Overall, McDowell was pleased with Engler's proposal.

"We will probably have a tuition increase, and we haven't decided it yet, but it probably will be modest," Dick McDowell said.

Engler has recognized the need for money for job training and programs for at-risk students, McDowell said. The "at-risk" state money equals about the same amount as the current budget.

McDowell does not expect to review the college's proposed budget until March. Tuition costs have increased about $1 or $2 a credit hour in previous years.

The technology money comes in handy for the college as technology needs have changed for the campus, McDowell said. The campus housed only two computers when McDowell came to campus more than 10 years ago.

Today that number totals 1,600.

"There has been a recognition of specific needs with the governor and the legislature," McDowell said. "We're pleased to be working with them and that they see that an investment in our students is an investment in the future."

Camp fair will help to plan super summer for kids

By Jennifer Placinto
Staff Writer

It's not too early to register for summer camp.

The 1997 Michigan Camp and Activities Fair is a free event open to the public from 11 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Sunday, March 2, at Cranbrook Schools in Bloomfield Hills. Enter from the main drive located at 1221 N. Woodward, on the west side of Woodward, south of Long Lake. Visitors will be escorted to the fair by shuttle bus and will receive a free pass to the Cranbrook Institute of Science.

The eighth annual "Super Summers for Kids," organized by The Merrill-Palmer Institute/Wayne State University, will feature more than 85 directors from local, national and Canadian summer programs, including overnight camps, day camps, teen programs, wilderness and trip adventures, sports and riding camps, music, art and drama, and academic enrichment.

The annual camp fair saves parents time and a lot of legwork, said Sandy Schwartz, Merrill-Palmer's special events coordinator. "This has all the directors in one place," she said. "They'll have lots of handouts and videos. They'll be able to speak to them personally."

Sheryl Hessler has gone to the Michigan Camp Fair for the past two years to enroll her daughter and son in summer programs. "It was so much easier," Hessler said, adding that she moved to the area just before enrolling her children.

Parents and children, ages 3 to 18, will have the opportunity to meet with representatives from each program to ask questions, view videos and receive information.

Younger campers can participate in day camps that feature outdoor activities such as swimming and field trips. Older students can register for camps offering national and worldwide travel opportunities, including cross-country biking trips, wildlife survival and business administration.

Camps are gender specific and co-ed and upper high school and college students can acquire summer jobs with the camps.

"Usually it's a nice adventure for students," said Schwartz, adding that, in some cases, the staff is international. "It's an opportunity to be with your peers and make a difference."

With camps already beginning to fill up, the event allows parents and children enough time to make their selection before running out of options. "It's very timely to think about the activity you want your child to participate in," Schwartz said. "There's always a camp to fit your schedule."

Camps last as little as one week and throughout the entire summer.

The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers is sponsoring the event along with PASS Sports and MetroPARENT Magazine.

develop proposed watershed boundaries, identification of discharge points, an illicit discharge elimination plan and a public education plan.

"The DEQ would make the final decision on the boundaries, but the community will request it," Cowles said.

Communities would need to fulfill its responsibilities it promised when applying for the permit, particularly on illicit discharges and public education.

Cities can evaluate

This plan will allow for changes if communities evaluate the plan after two years and believe the permit requirements aren't working. Communities will need an extensive database to research whether the discharge methods are working, Cowles said.

"Watershed management is no panacea," Cowles said. "It's tough. It's hard work."

But the hard work with community involvement is preferable than wasting tax dollars, Cowles added.

Tom Casari, a township engineer with Canton Township and a member of the Rouge River RAP Advisory Council, had not read the draft, but said Canton officials were involved with the draft of the document with county and state officials.

"We think this approach will work in terms of federal guidelines," Casari said.

But the report does not highlight any costs of correcting the discharges, which could be a burden for some communities, Casari acknowledged.

Canton is expected to have a second reading soon of a stormwater ordinance that they expect can be used as part of the permit requirements.

Another official from the Conference of Western Wayne – a group of mayors, supervisors and other delegates from 18 communities in western Wayne County – called the draft a "workable document."

A possible scenario

Cowles outlined how things might work under the COC permit and watershed management plan:

First a community would have interest, then contact its neighboring community. That group would discuss plans with the DEQ. The communities would reach an agreement on the "basics," then nonparticipants would be notified and invited.

Cowles summarized the program as "voluntary, watershed-based, participative, effective, cost efficient through cooperation, and protective against liability."

Cowles was asked why the state just didn't wait until 2001 for the federal government's next phase of requirements.

"It is control over our own destiny," Cowles said. "It may be an option in Phase Two to do this kind of thing." If it is, the communities will have a system already in place, he said.

The DEQ will accept public comments for 30 days after a legal notice is published which Cowles expects within the next month.

Rivers plans constituent coffee hours

U.S. Rep. Lynn Rivers, D-13th District, has scheduled "coffee hours" in Northville for Tuesday, March 25 from 9 to 10:30 a.m. at Murphy's of Northville Restaurant, 134 N. Center.

Rivers represents Canton and Plymouth townships, Garden City, Plymouth, Westland, a portion of Livonia and 15 other communities in Wayne and Washtenaw counties.

All constituents are encouraged to drop by, have a cup of coffee and discuss their concerns with her.

For information, call Rivers' district offices in Ann Arbor (313) 741-4210 or Wayne (313) 722-1411.

Government is target of civil rights complaints

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

"Civil rights." Supreme Court decisions. Battling lawyers. Plotting Klansmen – that's the film version.

The real world is different as the Michigan Civil Rights Commission and department try to ratchet down a 4,500-case backlog and solve problems through quiet mediation rather than noisy litigation.

"It's a rewarding, thrilling, hard-working job," said Sondra Berlin, the West Bloomfield businesswoman who presides over the eight-member CRC from a wheelchair.

Appointed by Democratic Gov. James Blanchard in 1985 and reappointed by Republican Gov. John Engler, Berlin represents handicappers. The civil rights movement was strong in the 1960s, and she says it is "on the move again."

"A lot of our cases are employment, predominantly race. We try to educate the public and show what has to be done," said Berlin, who is co-owner and secretary-treasurer of Weight Watchers.

CRC members earn a per-diem, which fellow member Edgar Vann, a Detroit Baptist minister, says "pays for my parking." The CRC meets once a month, on a Monday, in the state's Detroit office building at 1200 Sixth. The background reading, said Berlin, takes another three to eight hours.

The CRC was created for the first time by the 1963 Michigan Constitution, championed by then-Gov. George Romney.

Lumping cases

Staff member Rita McFarland said the enforcement bureau is trying to reduce the backlog and increase efficiency by lumping the 4,500 complaints into three categories: 1) easy, where CRC may not even have jurisdiction; 2) single issue, which can be moved fairly quickly; and 3) complex, which are "high-impact cases that require a lot of investigation."

McFarland said cases are grouped by respondent since many are related. Top four targets:

1. State government.
2. Ford Motor Co.
3. City of Detroit.
4. Detroit Public Schools.

"It's interesting," observed CRC vice chair Dr. Evelyn Crane, a retired Detroit school administrator, "that three of the top four were governments."

By grouping the complaints, McFarland said, a single investigator can (for example) learn once what General Motors' attendance policy is without repeating the process for other complaints.

Michiganians file 6,500 complaints a year. The annual report of 1995, the last full year for which statistics are available, shows 33 percent were related to race, 14 percent to physical handicap, 9 percent to sex, 5.4 percent to age, and many to multiple factors.

"We talk to them to see what we have early on," said Thomas Carnegie of CR's office of community services. Most are solved by communication, a promotion, agreement to rent an apartment.

"We give people (respondents) 30 days to respond before we do anything else. Many respondents like the process; they like us to work with them.

"When we cannot resolve a case, then we will send it back for regular processing. The report work is never repeated. We're trying to stay fast but efficient."

In 1995 governments and companies paid nearly $5 million "due to investigative or conciliatory complaint resolutions," said CR director Dr. Nanette Lee Reynolds.

A few big cases

Sometimes, however, a case goes all the way to a formal hearing before the CRC.

"We heard oral arguments this morning," said CRC member Francisco J. Villarruel, who practices law in downtown Detroit, lives in Livonia and is moving to Plymouth Township.

In that case, from Jackson, Paula Brewer, an African-American woman, alleged she was discriminated against and treated differently by her employer, Montgomery Ward.

"We will receive supplemental proceedings. Then we'll have a blind draw to see who authors the opinion and order," Villarruel said. "It will be circulated for review and comment. Then we'll have public comment next month and vote." He declined to give his own views just yet.

In 1995 the CRC issued eight orders. Either party may appeal to the circuit court.

Villarruel was appointed and reappointed by Engler to a four-year term. "I'm not in politics. I didn't solicit this. I was asked by the governor's staff to provide public service," he said.

"I'm active in the Hispanic lawyers group. They wanted a Hispanic representative. I lived in southwest Detroit nine years and went to parochial school – Holy Redeemer."

Hispanics have different problems from African-Americans – "language and cultural differences that are a roadblock," Villarruel said. Old Errol Flynn movies show Hispanics as cruel, raving despots. Modern TV dramas – "all these cop shows" – also bother him. "Who do you see as bad buys, robbers, dopers, pimps?" he asked rhetorically.

Informal work

CRC watches such high profile incidents as the adventures of Warren Mayor Mark Steenbergh and Wayne Circuit Judge Andrea Ferrara but doesn't get directly involved.

The panel discussed Steenbergh's refusal to appear at dedication ceremonies of a black church. Staff member Carnegie

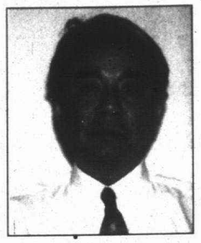
Yazaki executive dies at 57

Services for Masayuki Yamamoto, chairman and president of Canton-based American Yazaki Corp., were scheduled for Japan.

Mr. Yamamoto, 57, died Friday from respiratory failure. He was a West Bloomfield resident.

Mr. Yamamoto was employed for 28 years Yazaki Corp. of Tokyo, spending the last 20 years with the auto supplier's North American subsidiary. He led the growth of the American Yazaki from 20 employees to more than 1,200 in the U.S. and Mexico, a company spokeswoman said Tuesday.

More than 800 people currently work at the Canton location. A planned expansion will boost local employment to 1,200, making American Yazaki the township's largest employer.



Masayuki Yamamoto

Construction of a four-story research and development center on the American Yazaki site at Haggerty and Warren Roads is scheduled for May. The expansion "will go ahead as planned," despite Mr. Yamamoto's death, said Diane Copado, company human resources manager.

Mr. Yamamoto's duties have been assumed temporarily by Shinji Yazaki, executive vice president of Yazaki Corp., Copado said.

Mr. Yamamoto, known to family and friends as "Yami," is survived by his wife, Kikuko ("Katie"); daughter and son-in-law, Chisato ("Tina") and Mitsutaka Takashiro; sib, Ryota ("Roy"); and three grandchildren, Rina, Kokio and Takaya.

Canton Observer
OPINION
794 South Main, Plymouth, Michigan 48170
Thursday, February 27, 1997

It's back

Tradeport plan still lacking

Designating Willow Run Airport as an international tradeport is a bad idea – and not just because Canton residents would be adversely affected by an increase in the size and number of planes taking off or landing at the Ypsilanti facility.

The Observer has gone on record against the tradeport proposal and the airport expansion it would require. We must restate our opposition in light of the puzzling move by state Rep. Deborah Whyman, R-Canton, reintroducing tradeport legislation in the Michigan Legislature.

Whyman said this week that House Bill 4338 is simply "insurance" for constituents who would fight such a move and it provides them with the tools – a binding voter referendum – to do just that. "This doesn't raise the issue (of a Willow Run tradeport) again. I believe people who live in areas where a tradeport is considered should have the opportunity to voice their opinions," she said.

Whyman supports the tradeport concept, particularly as a way to jump-start development in blighted communities. She designed the current bill after hearing from the leader of a citizens initiative against the Willow Run plan, she said.

But Whyman is playing a dangerous shell game with a plan that was, for all intents and purposes, shelved more than a year ago and had little chance of springing back to life. Her actions have drawn criticism from Wayne County commissioners Bruce Patterson and Thaddeus McCotter, whose districts encompass Canton, Livonia and other communities in Willow Run's flight path.

Turning Willow Run into a major international cargo facility by expanding a runway and allowing access to fully-loaded 747-sized aircraft may have had some merit three years ago. Washtenaw and Wayne County officials and others were concerned about the economic after-shock from the closing of GM's Willow Run Assembly plant. But backers of that plan failed to make a convincing case and current employment figures in both Washtenaw and western Wayne County communities don't support an infusion of more than $200 million in tax dollars for airport and ancillary improvements.

In addition, there is a danger that what amounts to a government-subsidized "corporate park" at Willow Run could siphon off some of the private-sector industrial development that has taken root in the area's booming communities.

Under Whyman's bill, residents in adjacent communities would have 45 days to gather signatures for a binding referendum either for or against turning a particular airport into a tradeport. That's a tall order for any grassroots organization. The number of needed signatures would depend on the area's overall population and at least a quarter of the signatures would have to come from within the county where the facility would be located. In other words, if Washtenaw County residents were overwhelmingly in favor of the a Willow Run project, Canton residents lose out.

House Bill 4338 is poor legislation masquerading as voter empowerment. What the people should decide is to ground it permanently.

Theater isn't related to bond

Don't let talk of a proposed performing arts center at the site of a third high school confuse you when you go to the polls March 22 to vote on a $79.7 million bond issue for the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

■ When going to the polls, school district voters should think about what's best for their children, the school district and their pocketbooks.

A high school close to Beck and Joy roads would be built if voters approve a $79.7 million bond issue in a special election March 22. Also included in the bond issue are a new elementary school, new buses and computers, and the refurbishing of existing school buildings.

Canton Supervisor Tom Yack announced the performing arts center at his annual State of the Township address recently. He said it would be a community facility for the Plymouths and Canton. He also said one of the biggest hurdles for the project is the March bond issue.

Proponents of an arts center still have no idea how to pay for it. But Yack has said that if the center is attached to the new high school, "it's obvious" the school district will pay for its operation and maintenance.

Hold on. Let's be clear. At no point has a performing arts center been discussed at informational forums on the bond, at the bond steering committee level or before the Board of Education.

Plymouth-Canton Superintendent Charles Little has met informally with a couple Canton officials about the performing arts center.

But as school trustees maintain, they have received no proposal, nothing in black and white.

And while Yack has mentioned the center would be a community facility, does that mean Plymouth and Plymouth Township will be asked to chip in? There has been no formal discussion of that either.

Public input is a must before any decision is made on such a project.

Clearly, a performing arts center at a third high school is an example of putting the cart before the horse. Let's take care of one community issue that involves lots of money before we take on another – especially if in the end, the school district may be expected to foot the bill for operations and maintenance of a new center.

All we hear is how Plymouth-Canton has suffered under Proposal A. Already, Little has said that within the next five years there will be another bond issue put before voters because of aging buildings and continued growth.

Voters should be certain not to muddy their thinking about the bond proposal with a performing arts center.

A center may be exactly what many of the cultural arts groups in the Plymouths and Canton want. It's certainly what Yack has been promoting in the last few years. But that project initially was going to be – in one form or another – in conjunction with the health center on Canton Center Road, which is now under construction. Obviously that didn't work out.

When going to the polls, school district voters should think about what's best for their children, the school district and their pocketbooks.

Bond benefits unfair

I tend to reinforce responsibility over irresponsibility. Unfortunately, Plymouth is being asked to subsidize irresponsibility.

The lack of a backbone in Canton officials over the years has allowed builder pressure to win and the longterm master plan of 20 years to become a running joke.

I call it "land jam." We're jamming in more house. The rural feeling, larger lot, non-crammed community that Canton desperately wanted to be years ago, is not what Canton has become today. A few berms and bunkers just don't cut it.

Since Canton officials have always lost against builder pressure on the front door, they should have looked at back-door solutions to uncontrolled growth. One proposal might have been to ask voters to approve a "future schools fee" tacked onto every new plot proposed by a developer. Then, years later, as new families filled the community, the invested fees would have substantially offset the cost of building new schools. That's called planning, fiscal responsibility, forethought.

Years ago it was prudent and equitable to maximize scarce school resources by creating an equal partnership between Canton, Plymouth and Plymouth Township. Today, however, the differences in growth and size of each community do not make it equitable for Plymouth to be taxed equally for new schools that mostly benefit Canton.

I am being told, not asked, to cough up another $80 million in taxes to bail out a lack of planning and bad judgment, or the school system will fail. Dr. CharlesLittle has fabricated an overcrowding crisis by playing with the subjective "ideal number of students per class" and it almost appears, by gerrymandering the placement of children in some schools to create tension.

The false picture he paints is that if the new tax fails, my child will fail. Pass the new tax, and my child will succeed. In other words, my child's success is tied tomoney and not to teacher quality.

I am not surprised to hear that, after months of study, there is no alternative plan for me to consider should a bond/tax issue fail. Contingency plans published before the bond proposal would open up the door to other reasonable choices and weaken the current plan of "you must pass this tax or else." The strength of "you must pass this tax or else" plan lies on the weak foundation of no other choices to consider before the bond proposal comes in March.

'Yes' for children

I would like to urge all of you to vote YES on Saturday, March 22, for our schools. There is going to be much discussion in the next several weeks regarding this bond proposal but I want to ask everyone, pro and con, to never lose sight of the real reason we are voting on such an important issue. The real reason is for our children and for our community, now and in the future.

Let us not lose sight of the fact that 4,600 high school students are being taught in two schools that were originally built for a total capacity of under 4,000 students. Let us not lose sight of the fact that these students, and many more to come, do not have all the academic and non-academic opportunities they could have crammed into two schools. If we expand by just adding new classrooms, we will only be warehousing these young people and they deserve more. They deserve more room in all three high schools to expand their own potential.

Let us not lose sight of the fact that our elementary schools are also crowded. One new elementary school will not just help and affect the students in Canton. All elementary schools, district-wide, will feel the positive affects.

Let us not lose sight of what we want for our children in terms of maintaining a safe haven in all of our schools. Just like our homes need capital improvements over time, so do the schools. There is money in this bond proposal for capital improvements for all the schools for such projects as roofing, plumbing, heating, and cooling.

Let us not lose sight of what is taking place in terms of technology and we want our children to be a part of this exciting world. Two computers in every class district-wide as well as completely outfitting the computer labs is what is proposed. How can we not afford to give our children this?

If you aren't sure of what you are voting for, plan on attending one of many informational meetings being held throughout the district. They are well-publicized or call the Board of Education office for a schedule.

I am asking all of you to give our children a gift. For each $100,000 that your home is valued at, it will cost you $88 per year. Think about all the gifts you buy your children and what they cost. As parents, we are always looking for "educational" gift to our children. Wouldn't this be one of the most important and valuable "educational" gifts you could give your child? I know it will be for me.

Points of View

19 years later, Headlee has let us down

Next year is the 20th anniversary of the Headlee Amendment, a web of regulations that many of us fiscal conservatives said wouldn't work. The evidence mounts that it hasn't.

Dick Headlee, now retired in Utah and sending Christmas cards with pictures of his multitudinous progeny, is a good man with an impulse that I applaud. He thought government spending was going up too fast. His answer was a 1978 tax-limitation amendment to Art. IX of the Michigan Constitution.

My side said 1) the constitution was no place for an intricate set of detailed regulations and 2) limiting taxes won't stop growth of revenue increases.

We cited college tuitions, college computer fees, college enrollment fees, vehicle registration fees, trailer registration fees, occupational licenses, hunting and fishing fees, court costs and a thousand more non-tax revenues. Did you know that you need two kinds of boat launch stickers in Michigan – one for state parks and another for Waterways Commission launches?

Gov. John Engler, who would like to be known for 21 state tax cuts, is trying to avoid a tax increase for roads by shoving needs onto local units of government: toying with revenue sharing, forcing cities and townships to seek local tax increases for roads, causing many of us to pay for vehicle repairs because of crater-sized potholes on neglected roads.

The most recent evidence that the Headlee Amendment has let us down comes from the Citizens Research Council, a Farmington Hills-based outfit which is reliable but misnamed. Its chief supporters are the Big Three auto companies, their suppliers, utilities, banks, big law firms, big retailers and so on. The dry title of its Report No. 319 is "Ad Valorem Special Assessments in Michigan" which it says are "essentially unfettered by the state constitution."

It used to be that special assessments were charges against your property for things like streets, lights, sidewalks and sewer lines. They essentially benefited your home or store.

Tim Richard

■ But in a special assessment district, you must pay on the higher state-equalized value. Attorney General Frank Kelley said so in a 1996 ruling. And so, despite the Headlee tax-limitation amendment and Proposal A, your township special assessment will rise with real estate inflation.

By a "clever" stratagem in the Legislature, says the CRC, townships, in particular, are authorized to establish separate authorities to provide police and fire protection. "Assessments" are levied townshipwide. Townships are subject to tax limits, but assessments aren't taxes, got it?

CRC complains that local government reporting is "inadequate or inaccurate," but it calculates there are 147 unitwide ad valorem special assessment districts raising $55.5 million a year in revenue – 132 in townships, 11 in cities and four in villages.

Lawmakers stretched the list of allowable projects over the years to cover garbage collection, curbs and gutters, pedestrian bridges, blight, parks, tree removal, bicycle paths, subdivision control, historic districts, port authorities, maintenance of lake levels, erosion control, storm water retention basins – and so on.

Nine of those laws have been passed since the 1978 Headlee tax-limitation amendment.

The plot thickens. You remember Proposal A of 1994? It capped the amount your property valuation for taxes could rise each year to the level of consumer price inflation or 5 percent. At my homestead, the taxable value is $2,230 less than the old state-equalized value.

But in a special assessment district, you must pay on the higher state-equalized value. Attorney General Frank Kelley said so in a 1996 ruling. And so, despite the Headlee tax-limitation amendment and Proposal A, your township special assessment will rise with real estate inflation.

Tough luck, townshippers, but we ogres in the media told you so.

In school, we were taught the statesman's motto: Don't trust men, but bind them with the chains of the constitution! Wrong. Slapping a constitutional cap on taxes doesn't make people's problems go away.

Letter

Tactics anger parents

An open letter to the Plymouth-Canton school board:

We purchased our new home at the end of July 1996 in the Pheasant Run subdivision in Canton. Prior to our final decision was an interview with the public relations office of the school district regarding Bentley Elementary School, one of the newer schools in the area, also the one we had confirmed with school officials that both my son (now in kindergarten) and my daughter (now in third grade), would be attending less than 45 days from then. The day after signing the agreement of sale on the property, we attempted to enroll our children in their new school, having moved from out of state in June 1996. We are shocked to find out that the "Rules of the Game" had changed and our son's first year in half-day kindergarten would be not in the school we were told and with his sister but in another school across town. This would require a 45- to 60-minute ride each way for him. We implored the schools but no accommodations were made other than assurances that next school year the children would be united.

Some six months have come and gone. Our family beliefs are such that we are attempting to be active in our children's education. Unfortunately, the school district did not share our dedication to the spirit of the family and is more interested in trying to figure out how many new PCs they can add. There appear to be more concerned parents who are in similar situations with their children split up with "Oh well, it will be better in the year 2000!" We are now being told that we are to face another year of not having the children being together. The township continues to hand out building permits like candy at Halloween! Without consideration to controlled growth, without concern to the welfare and concern of the current residents. Recommendations for alternative schooling (e.g., year-round school) fall on deaf ears. Their solution will come in three years.

Our family decided on living in Canton because up until now it had a reputation of excellent schooling and strong community values. In the retail industry there is a term for this situation, "Bait and Switch." When the questions were asked that would have prevented this, we could have invested our hard-earned money in another community that walks the talk! A disaster has occurred in Canton. A building twister is and has destroyed the family values of this community. This requires intervention from the state of Michigan and the federal government. We know of no FEMA regulation that would prohibit such assistance. Children's futures are at stake, their education is at risk by poorly funded and understaffed schools, overcrowding prohibits proper development of their minds due to the chaos, the flood has broken through the makeshift dike and now jeopardizes the values of not only the families of the community but also property values. Because what family would wait to live here now!

Your immediate attention and response to this matter is required. Failure to comply puts us all at potential risk of loss of our children's future.

Sherman Shoes closing is loss for community

Larry Sherman decided last week to close down Sherman Shoes, the company his father, Fred Sherman, founded 72 years ago.

At one point, Larry had 14 stores all around the metropolitan Detroit area. But he didn't want the business to get out of hand, so he contracted it to just four stores: in Laurel Park in Livonia, Twelve Oaks mall in Novi, Somerset North in Troy, and downtown Birmingham.

"We're making money, but it's not fun any more," Sherman said in explaining his decision to retire. He will close the stores and liquidate the assets (including some 17,000 pairs of shoes) by the end of March.

And so another family-owned retail operation bites the dust. It's very sad.

In case you haven't noticed, a revolution has been taking place in retailing over the past quarter-century.

First it was the big shopping malls, led in Michigan when Northland opened in the 1960s. The malls were usually located at a distance from downtowns.

Then big national discount chains such as Wal-Mart started opening stores. Wal-Mart specialized in locating giant stores near small towns, and a lot of local retailers couldn't stand the competition.

And before you knew it, all kinds of "category killer" operations were opening up, stores that specialized in every kind of sporting good or hardware item or imported china that you could imagine. Then came the outlet malls – Birch Run up I-75 and the newly opened Kensington Valley on I-96 near Howell – featuring seconds and slightly damaged goods at rock bottom prices.

And then most recently came the Somerset complex in Troy, which was based on the idea of making a super-upscale mall a destination point for shoppers throughout an entire region.

At every step along the way, the retailing revolution took business from traditional "mom 'n' pop" retailers, usually owning one or two stores, often located in downtowns all across Michigan. Shopping malls offered lots of free parking. National chains possessed economies of scale – in buying, shipping, advertising, management – that made them tough competitors for family firms. Discount stores and category killers offered vast selections and low prices.

Larry Sherman isn't the first family retailer to decide to close his business, and he certainly won't be the last.

Philip Power

■ A revolution has been taking place in retailing over the past quarter-century.

But his passing is sad, because folks like Larry Sherman are some of the things that make home town communities all across Michigan the warm and vital things they are. Larry was a founding member and past chairman of the Principal Shopping District in downtown Birmingham, past president of the Birmingham-Bloomfield Chamber of Commerce, past president of the Birmingham Rotary Club and former chairman of the Birmingham City Planning Commission.

People like Larry – engaged, community-minded business people with a stake in the future of their home towns – don't tend to populate the national headquarters of the Wal-Marts of this world. And when a person like Larry Sherman decides to close his business, it's a loss for everybody who thinks that a sense of community is an important part of life.

But don't feel too bad. There will always be a place for alert, energetic, smart folks who see a niche. Downtown Birmingham is surviving the competition from Somerset just fine, thank you, with a mix of restaurants and entertainment. And other towns served by this newspaper are figuring out how to do the same thing.

I remember the guy who ran a little local hair salon the day the national discount chain ("Haircuts only $8") announced it was locating right next door. He looked a little nervous until he got an idea for an ad: "We fix $8 haircuts!"

Entrepreneurs! God love 'em! And Larry Sherman, too.

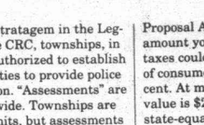
New Maternity Center Now Open

My Delivery.
My Physician.
My Hospital.

"St. Mary Hospital offered so many choices for me, my baby and my family."



When I first thought about where to have my baby, I was sure of a few things. I didn't want to be moved from room to room. I wanted my family to stay with me, and I wanted the back up of a full-service hospital. St. Mary Hospital's new Miracle of Life Maternity Center offered me the choices I was looking for.

My doctor told me about the new maternity center's private, single-room suites, designed to help me feel at home. I'll stay in the same room for labor, delivery, recovery and postpartum care – they're called LDRPs. My best friend, Nancy, and her little girl can visit when it's convenient for me. I can even have someone stay overnight in my room.

And, the hospital's new Marian Women's Center offers education like Infant Care and Safety classes and a Breastfeeding Program to help us make the adjustment to home life.

For my peace of mind there's 24-hour obstetrical coverage, and neonatology service is available if my baby needs it. State-of-the-art technology includes epidural anesthesia for comfort, and advanced fetal monitoring. All the while feeling very much at home. Close to home.

That's why St. Mary Hospital is my hospital.

merely commented: "A missed opportunity to begin a healing process."

The department conducts more than 200 workshops a year in Detroit, Escanaba, Flint, Grand Rapids, Jackson, Kalamazoo, Lansing and Traverse City on housing with federal grants from HUD.

It works less formally in "tension-creating" cases such as May 5, 1994, when a Lansing radio station aired a parody that offered Mexicans as prizes. Hispanics didn't think it was funny, especially since the date was Cinco de Mayo, the Mexican equivalent of the Fourth of July.

Villarruel wound up heading a CRC committee to conduct media forums in Detroit and Lansing. More than 200 persons attended, and 51 commented.

'Re-engineering'

Latest project for the CR is "re-engineering," said director Reynolds – doing more with a steady flow of resources.

"The governor included $1 million in his budget to assist with technology," said Reynolds. Altogether, Engler recommended a 12 percent hike to $14.5 million.

The governor's budget message set a fiscal 1998 goal of slashing the time it takes to handle complaints from 14 months to two; to conciliate, from 25 months to two; to process complaints through legal review, from 63 months to three.

It's the reason for all the staff reorganization, grouping of complaints, revising of procedures.

Federal funding reached a peak of $1.75 million in 1992 and has been pared to $1 million currently.

CR is involved with other departments such as the attorney general and budget in an Equal Opportunity Workforce Planning Council. Its topic is "recruitment practices," said staff member Chuck Rouls. "There will be some streamlining and modification. It's asking departments to monitor their workforce profiles before and after early retirements."

Here is the profile of the Civil Rights Department's 180-member staff as of the beginning of fiscal 1996:

- White – 68 or 38 percent.
- Black – 80 or 50 percent.
- Hispanic – 14 or 8 percent.
- Native American – 4 or 2 percent.
- Asian – 3 or 2 percent.

Women predominated among whites, blacks and native Americans and accounted for 103 or 58 percent of the total staff.

Who gets contracts?

Rev. Vann, the Detroit Baptist minister, sees another problem state government is neither addressing nor reporting on: contracts to minority businesses.

"Where do we stand on procurement and contracts? I've never seen a report on where we stand. We've got paralysis of analysis.

"It's not just a matter of jobs but ownership. People are dependent on who feels like giving them a job," said the five-year member of the CRC.

Chamber to host jobs fair

Do you have a hard time finding qualified employees? The Westland Chamber of Commerce is 'working' for you. The Westland Chamber of Commerce Annual Jobs & Careers Day will be held at the Westland Shopping Center on Saturday, April 12 from 10 a.m. until 9 p.m.

The event's major sponsor is the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

The mall will be filled with more than 80 tables for employers to meet job seekers. Employers may choose from three selections of involvement in the fair.

The basic success deal offers a six-foot skirted table at the fair at $125 for chamber members, $175 for non-chamber members. The $275 "premium deal" level offers $50 off a table at the fair, and a listing in the following: the fair's promotional materials, the chamber's Internet Home Page, media coverage, Observer Newspaper advertising, direct mail, signage at the mall prior to the event, and various chamber publications.

The $200 supporting sponsor level is intended for those who cannot staff a table, but would like visibility. This level offers all the benefits of the premium level, minus the table.

Chamber officials advise businesses to reserve early. The sponsorship cut-off date is March 17, and the table rental deadline is April 11. High traffic is expected for the show because extensive newspaper, radio and direct mail advertising is planned. The regional mall marquee will highlight the event to local traffic.

Table locations will be outlined in a fair brochure, given to attendees. Sequential educational career seminars will be held during the day, covering more than 20 careers. Representatives from area colleges and universities will be in attendance.

To reserve your table, your sponsorship or to offer a seminar for "Ask the Professional" sessions, call the chamber office at 326-7222.

Highway projects on tap

Relief is on the way for at least some metro Detroit area motorists plagued by potholes this spring.

The Michigan Department of Transportation is scheduled to open bids March 7 for a large interstate highway reconstruction project in Michigan this year, a 9.2-mile stretch of I-275 south of Romulus to Monroe County.

The estimated $36 million project will be built with long-lasting concrete, according to documents issued by the Michigan Department of Transportation. Concrete was approved by the department's pavement selection committee after a rigorous study, noted Bob Risser, executive director of the Michigan Concrete Paving Association.

This stretch of highway has not been resurfaced in nearly 20 years, and has been the recent subject of some media attention for large potholes. The bid schedule will allow contractors to begin work by April 15.

The project should be completed by the fall of 1998.

KAREN. MEIER

A cause worth helping out

The bottom line is this. Make out a check for $8.95. Today. Do it right after you read this. Don't make the check out to me, it's not for me. I repeat, the money's NOT for me.

It's for about half a million other people, adults and children, who deserve it and need it. I'm just speaking out on their behalf. Why? Why do this? Why for them? Why today?

Because with each passing day, lives are lost, and hope is not offered. And as much as this pains me to say, it's money that will change this.

Consider this. There are nearly equal numbers of people in our United States affected by AIDS as are affected by Down syndrome. Research dollars for AIDS pour in, and hundreds of scientists have dedicated their lives to finding the cure for this horrible, life-ending disease.

The rallies, the parades, the quilts, the celebrities, the red ribbons, all translate into huge awareness, scientific attention, and a push for a cure. Advocates and hospice care and rights and money are huge with this as well, as they should be.

But I ask you, why is pathetically little attention paid to those with Down syndrome when their numbers are nearly equal?

And why, when attention is paid to Down syndrome, does it come in such unconscionable forms?

Last week on two separate morning programs on two Detroit radio stations people with Down syndrome were referred to as "mongoloid idiots, freaks." This from Howard Stern and Geoffrey Fieger. And Vice President Al Gore made a disparaging remark about an "extra chromosome crowd" not long ago.

It's not just the rich and famous saying these things.

I've been asked why Steven isn't institutionalized, why he wasn't aborted, why I'm not ashamed of him.

Difficult mission

I've been snubbed and cast out on account of this mission. People have turned their backs on me, literally, (backs, incidentally, covered in real mink and smelling of expensive perfume and $2.50 a pack cigarette smoke), and given me nothing.

From the powerful and influential on down, they hang up on me, criticize me, dismiss me, on account of my mission, the mission to help a gentle, forgotten segment of our society.

Such cruelty, such heartlessness, such ugly power kills hope and makes it just that much easier to just kill.

In spite of Howard Stern, Geoffrey Fieger, even the Vice President, there is hope. I've seen it. My baby, like all born with Down syndrome, has a metabolic imbalance because of that extra chromosome causing the "imperfections" inherent with this condition.

There is a therapy which targets the imbalance, the depleted areas, and brings them up to more normal levels. This is done through safe amounts of vitamins, minerals, amino acids which meet the needs of the depleted systems of those with Down syndrome.

Doctors don't tell parents about this; doctors wait for scientific studies to be completed. So I'm telling you. And Steven is showing me.

If you saw him on the television last week you know what I'm talking about! He's a baby with a good appetite, sparkling eyes and a happy, alert smile. And he's incredibly healthy. I see it, my family sees it.

There are others in the U.S., and the world, on this therapy, a modest 15,000. Why such a low number, why not everyone? Because the medical community does not yet support it, many don't even know about it, the, studies haven't been done, or even funded.

Cause for hope

If the money is raised and the studies conducted and the results published and put in the hands of the medical professionals, then, THEN doctors will offer this up to otherwise hopeless parents.

What most doctors offer now is outdated, inaccurate information. The conventional wisdom is grim. Doctors also offer, and some I've heard recommend, aborting the fetus who has Down syndrome.

When, make that IF, a Down syndrome baby is born, within 24 hours a social worker visits the new mom and offers her the "option" of institutionalizing her baby.

These children don't deserve to be shoved aside, forgotten about, or, God help us, eradicated. Because they don't fit society's picture of normal, or perfect, or socially acceptable.

I'm not Elizabeth Taylor or Jerry Lewis,

PCEA knows plenty 'bout birthing babies

■ There was a time when a man needed a permission slip to be present at the birth of his child. A lot has changed, and much of it's due to the work of groups like the Plymouth Childbirth Education Association, which recently celebrated its 25th anniversary.

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

For the past 25 years, the Plymouth Childbirth Education Association has watched the birthing experience evolve.

PCEA member and registered nurse Charlene Shedd, a lactation consultant from Plymouth, remembers when she joined St. Mary Hospital in Livonia in 1974, men had to get signed permission slips in order to attend the birth of their child.

"They had to get a permission slip saying they attended Lamaze classes," she said. "The form also said the hospital is not responsible for any emotional response to the birth like, 'If I fall in the floor and crack my head open, it's not your fault.' We've seen the changes and the thing is we've just outlived the old doctors. That's how you get changes."

Sue Damatio, a registered nurse from Wayne and fofmer president of the group, said when PCEA formed, doctors discouraged patients from attending its classes.

"When we first started, there was a lot of strong resistance from the doctors; the hospitals didn't want people coming in and telling their preferences," she said. "Now they realize that educating patients is a good thing."

Epidurals, narcotic medication that goes into the lower back that doesn't enter the circulatory system and only affects the pain receptors, have moved into the forefront. "Drive-through" births, where mothers and babies are discharged 24 hours after the birth, have become commonplace.

But the primary change is the number of options – pain or labor-inducing medications, epidurals, or no medication at all – available to mothers.

"Now there's a lot of intervention; you have choices, and hopefully you make the one that's best for you," said PCEA president Rose Fricke, a registered nurse and instructor from Plymouth.

"People want to know now; they want to learn about their options before they go in," added Tish Lauer, PCEA treasurer, instructor, and registered nurse from Livonia. "I think they want more control of their lives."

25 years and counting

Wrapping up its 25th anniversary, PCEA offers classes on childbirth, newborn care and breast feeding, as well as refresher courses and private tutoring year-round.

"Basically, we give them the education they need to understand what's happening and what to expect in labor and delivery. We give them the information so they can make the choices that are right for them," Damatio said.

The classes are taught following the handbook "Prepared Childbirth: The Family Way" by Debby Amis and Jeanne Green published by The Family Way Publications in Plano, Texas. The 87-page book covers pregnancy, childbirth and postpartum and family, and includes a 14-page workbook section.

PCEA is a splinter group of the Ann Arbor Lamaze Group.

"People left that organization and came to Plymouth around 1970. They used to teach in the old (Community Federal) credit union basement on Harvey," said Nancy Lee Pride, an instructor from Wayne. "Now it's branched out, going to churches and McAuley health centers. We serve western Wayne County."

Currently, childbirth classes are held at 7 p.m. Tuesdays at the Salvation Army Building in Plymouth; 6:30 p.m. Sundays and 7 p.m. Thursday in the community room of the St. Joseph Mercy Health Building in Plymouth; 7 p.m. Thursdays at the First Methodist Church in Northville; 10 a.m. Saturdays and 7 p.m. Tuesdays at St. Matthew's Methodist Church in Livonia; 7 p.m. Mondays at Kirk of Our Savior Church in Westland; and 7 p.m. Tuesdays at St. Michael Lutheran Church and 7 p.m. Mondays at Geneva Presbyterian Church, both in Canton.

Refresher classes take place at 7

Show funds BPW scholarships

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

They like to be community oriented. And it shows. They've served as the host for installation of city officials, helped with Michigan Week activities, participated in the Christmas tree lighting program and support the Goodfellows and Girl Scouts.

In addition to those things, the Garden City Business and Professional Women's Club has devoted its time and efforts to helping women.

And it's that devotion that is providing a winning combination for the group's fourth annual Parade of Fashion Show Sunday, March 16.

"There's a tremendous dedication to the organization and people are very willing to get involved and work hard for this fund raiser," said Joyce Pappas, who with Cathy West, Helen Jones and Amelia Olivero are planning the event. "They believe this is a very worthwhile thing."

The goal is to raise $2,500 for scholarships. Each year the club awards scholarships to men or women who are reentering the work force and people who need money to further their education. The money comes from the fashion luncheon and a raffle with prizes of a day trip to Atlantic City, an estate planning package and $100 travel gift certificate.

A special raffle, featuring a watercolor by Plymouth graphic artist Todd Marsee and a $100 gift certificate for the Liz Claiborne Shop at Twelve Oaks will benefit the group's second annual honor scholarship, given to a high school senior who will be attending a two-year college.

Support from the community also has come from Garden City Hospital, National Wholesale Printing, Orin Jewelers, The Hair Hut, The Gold Tones, attorney Sandra Larson, The Travel Desk and Mary Denning's Cake Shop.

This is the fourth year the club has put on the fashion show. The first year it was held at Hawthorne Valley in Westland and like this year, members modeled the fashions. Hopes to attract 100 that year went by the way when 200 people showed up, and "we've been growing ever since," said Pappas. This year's goal is 400 people to enjoy wine and hors d'oeuvres, luncheon and fashion show.

The benefit will get under way at 12:30 p.m. March 16 at the St. Mary Cultural Center, 18100 Merriman Road, between Six and Seven Mile roads, Livonia.

Tickets cost $25 and include lunch, the fashion show and a chance to win one of more than 100 door prizes, donated by such businesses as Edward's Catering, Dream Nails, the Dearborn Inn and Pro Golf. Raffle tickets are $1 each or 6 for $5.

Mistress of ceremonies for the event will be WYCD Young Country 99.5 FM on-air personality Linda Lee. She has been with the popular country music station since 1995, working as a fill-in announcer and then host of the 7 p.m.-midnight time slot. She was hired last year as a full-time Morning Show personality and Morning Show producer for the station.

Fashions for the show will be provide by Liz Claiborne and focus on the latest spring styles in casual, workday casual and career clothing in 6 through plus sizes.

The models will be members of the club – Anna Schaefer, Virginia Liogglio, Lona Oliverio, Lois Wade, Kathleen Urban and Regina Valasco – and community residents – Cindy Merriman, Linda Merriman, Glenna Tinsley, Karen Pursell, Margo Maclean, Judy Santieu, Susan Blaskay-DeYonder and Vickie Watts.

"We'd like to become the event of the season in the community and in some ways that is happening because people are calling for tickets," said Pappas. "It's nice to have people tell us they like supporting this because of what the BPW does."

The BPW is the oldest and largest organization for working women in the world. It is dedicated to achieving full participation in the work force, equity and economic self-sufficiency for working women.

The Garden City chapter was. founded 44 years ago and includes of the original members – Virginia Liogglio, Merion Garrity and Leona Parrish – on its active roster.

The chapter meets for a dinner meeting with a speaker or activity the third Thursday of the month and is "one of the strongest in the state," according to Pappas.

"There's a misconception that you have to own a business to belong, but anyone can become a member ... men and women," Pappas said. "And you don't have to be a Garden City resident. A majority of our people work in, live in or have lived or worked here previously.

"Our members come from places like Birmingham, Livonia, Canton, Plymouth, Westland, Dearborn, Dearborn Heights, Inkster and Royal Oak."

The diversity of the membership has made planning the fashion benefit easy. The group's good organizational skills are such that the benefit hasn't been burdensome for any one person, so "everyone can come and enjoy themselves and that's important," Pappas said.

For ticket reservations or membership information, call Pappas at (313) 422-7030.

p.m. Mondays at St. John's Episcopal Church in Plymouth. Breast-feeding and newborn care classes are taught in separate two-hour blocks at 7 p.m. Tuesdays at the St. Joseph Mercy Health Building.

Although classes are held in that building, PCEA is a non-profit organization not affiliated with any hospital, Fricke explained.

Independent group

"We're independent; that gives us the advantage because we can give an unbiased viewpoint," Fricke said. "The organization is run by the instructors. If you take it through your doctor's office or through your hospital, they're going to tell you what they do there. All of our instructors are parents. They have had children."

One of the unique factors about the group is that it offers private tutoring.

"We will come to their house, although it's at a slightly higher cost. It's more time-efficient. You can cover it in a shorter amount of time. It's good for people with busy schedules, or people who travel a lot or go to school," Fricke explained.

The childbirth classes are taught in six-week sessions year-round and cost $60, while those who prefer private tutoring are charged $100. Breast-feeding courses are $15, and newborn care is $10.

Of the 406 couples who attended classes last year, PCEA counted an obstetrician and his wife, who was also a doctor.

"They just wanted a chance to sit down and learn about childbirth; they were there as an expectant couple," said Damatio, a former PCEA president. "He said that the things we were teaching were things that they didn't cover in medical school."

Fricke estimates that half of the PCEA instructors are registered nurses and most teach once a week. All the instructors are members of the International Childbirth Education Association.

Damatio explained that many women in the group were drawn to PCEA because of their experiences with childbirth.

"I think most of us had good experiences," she said. "Even those whose experiences weren't all that great thought we had something to offer and share with other couples that were going through that. We believe in it."

famous and influential and able to extract big bucks for good causes. I'm only a parent who has hope for her Down syndrome child and wants that hope for all parents of Down syndrome children.

I'm on a mission to raise money for a segment of society whom most seem to want to forget or ignore or turn their backs on or ridicule.

Let's not turn our backs on this. There is hope.

For a tax-deductible donation of $8.95, sent to 44456 Clare Blvd., Plymouth 48170, you will have brought this mission closer to reality. Make your check out to "Friends of Tri" (not me). "Friends" is a charitable, non-profit organization responsible for funding research into Down syndrome therapies.

With your donation not only will you reach out to thousands born and yet to be born, but you will receive a token of appreciation from me, from Friends of Tri. It's my book, "The Phoenix." My husband and I edited and published it, all at our own expense, to raise funds desperately needed for Down syndrome research.

Time is critical. Don't wait. Just in the few minutes you've been reading this, someone is needlessly losing hope, and some are losing their lives.

Stop this nonsense.

The rewards will lift you. You will have helped. And some day soon I pray, hopelessness will no longer be dished up to new moms and dads of babies with Down syndrome, instead hope and nutrition and scientific evidence will be on the plate for all to partake.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

GETTING TO KNOW YOU

When an agent begins to work with new buyers, he or she will sit down with them and ask a lot of questions, and do a lot of listening. In the initial buyer interview, we try to get a clear idea of what you are looking for, as well as the approximate price range, considering your overall financial picture. The agent will explain how we work to represent you, what the local market in the Plymouth and Canton areas is like, and what we can do to help you locate that perfect home.

At this initial interview, it is important for buyers to be as clear as possible about their needs. When an agent has calculated what you can afford, he or she won't show you homes you might love but that are way out of your price range. If the agent knows that you have bad knees and want to avoid stairs, you won't be taken through three-story colonials with top floor master suites. Promoting clear communication with our customers is good business for us, and it can save you hours of house hunting.

If there is a move in your future, Chris Knight is ready to serve you. Call Chris at Coldwell Banker Schweitzer Real Estate, 313-453-6800.

Parents get help from 'Teach Your Children Well'

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

The Rev. John Nunes has a goal of helping young men, specifically young African American men, reach age 25 alive and well. As mission director for Lutheran City Ministries and associate pastor at Historic Trinity Church, he works closely with David Eberhardt to open up channels of communication to young people through seven storefront churches, Operation Rebound and a Boy's Choir.

Now he's found another way to help – Lutheran Hour Ministries' "Living for Tomorrow" program which has returned to the Detroit metropolitan area for a second straight year.

"Many local churches and congregations do what they can do for themselves, they're not able to put on this kind of intensive campaign," Nunes said. "So when they come together they're able to do a tremendously great thing and touch a lot of lives."

The "Living for Tomorrow" campaign is a family-oriented, multi-media outreach program that's running in the Detroit area now through March 8.

Through television, radio and newspapers advertisements, listeners are encouraged to call a toll-free number to receive a free booklet and cassette tape, "Teach Your Children Well."

The booklet offers practical tips on how to communicate with children about tough issues such as drugs, peer pressure, violence and sex.

Ninety-eight churches are providing the 1,500 volunteers who are handling the telephone requests at phone banks around the area. Callers have a choice of receiving the booklet and tape by mail or having it delivered to their homes.

While the program also serves as an opportunity to connect unchurched respondents with local Lutheran congregations, it's not a campaign to beef up church membership,

"Nobody will come out and beat them over the head with the Bible," Dave VanDermay, manager of LHM's Media Outreach Services, said of the home delivery. "There's no ulterior motive. We're not here to put buns on benches; we're here to help out.

"The information will be well-protected. People who call can feel safe that people will not start showing up at their doors. If people want to seek out one of these churches, it's their decision."

"It's a very low-key, non-confrontational approach," said Nunes, who signed on as spokesman for the Detroit "Living for Tomorrow" effort because it parallels the work being done by Lutheran City Ministries. "It's meeting people's needs.

"You've got to connect with people where they are and this where people are."

LHM pioneered the "Living For Tomorrow" series in 1992 with positive results. Since then, it has played in 28 cities, including Dallas, Chicago, Lincoln, Neb., and Sioux City, Iowa.

It debuted in Detroit last year, drawing a recorded number 6,700 phone calls for its "Now You're Talking" booklet and tape dealing with conflict resolution.

Nunes doesn't expect the response to be as large this year since the focus is on parents with children.

VanDermay estimates the two-week effort is costing $65,000. The ads are appearing on Detroit's four major networks and eight-nine radio stations. The program also is running simultaneously in Lansing and Saginaw, Bay City and Flint.

"Most of the people who call are women," said VanDermay. "Women are the first to recognize a problem and take steps to correct it."

The volunteers are manning the telephones at the four regional phone banks – Salem National Lutheran in Westland, St. Paul Lutheran in Pontiac, Outer Drive-Faith Lutheran in Detroit and St. Paul Lutheran in Trenton.

In addition to Salem National, local Lutheran churches participating in the program are Christ Our Savior in Livonia, Christ the Good Shepherd in Canton, Hosanna Tabor in Redford, Risen Christ in Plymouth and Our Savior and St. Matthew in Westland.

"This gives hope," said Nunes. "Where there is God, there is hope. Where's there's life, there's hope."

Lutheran Hour Ministries is a service of the International Lutheran Laymen's League, a volunteer organization that's an auxiliary of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod and Lutheran Church-Canada. Parents interested in receiving LHM's "Teach Your Children Well" booklet and cassette tape can call 1-800-LIVING-4.

Champions again

Oakland University captured its eighth Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference womens swim title in nine tries Feb. 20-22 at Northern Michigan University.

One of the standouts for the Lady Pioneers was Jill Mellis, a junior from Plymouth Canton. Mellis captured the league title in the 200-yard breaststroke (2:26.63) and was part of four championship relay teams: the 200 freestyle (1:38.53), the 400 free (3:53.33), the 200 medley (1:49.82) and the 400 medley (3:59.59).

It's the last GLIAC championship OU will win. The Pioneers are planning to drop out of the league and move to the NCAA Division I next year.

Quite a force

The Canton Force, an under-16 boys soccer team, finished first in the under-17 indoor select division at Wide World of Sports in Ann Arbor. The Force were 6-0-2 in the Winter I session.

BY C.J. RISAK

BASKETBALL

Call it a period of adjustment. Plymouth Canton did, Walled Lake Central did not.

The Western Lake Activities Association champions sure didn't look the part Tuesday in a WLAA Tournament semifinal at Plymouth Canton. The Vikings were outgunned from the start, with the deficit growing faster than the U.S. budget.

The final was 60-32, a victory that provided the Chiefs with some solace after they dropped a homecourt 50-47 decision to Central during the season.

Canton takes a 13-6 record into Friday's tournament final against Farmington Harrison, a 65-49 winner over Livonia Franklin Tuesday. Central, now 15-4, plays Franklin in the consolation final.

Both games are at Livonia Churchill; the consolation game starts at 6 p.m., with the championship starting at 8 p.m.

"I was real pleased with our defense and I was real pleased with our overall concentration," said Canton coach Dan Young. "We always seem to have lapses, but a lot of times you just have to fight through those things."

Unlike their first meeting, the Chiefs had few lapses against the Vikes this time. The reasons: Their own defensive effort and the way they handled Central's pressure defense.

Both were traceable to Donte Scott.

The 6-foot-4 senior point guard took care of the ball ably — the Chiefs had 18 turnovers to 14 for Central — and, more importantly, put a muzzle on Viking sharpshooter Todd Negoshian.

In the two teams' first meeting, Negoshian lit up Canton for 33 of his team's 50 points. On Tuesday, Scott did most of the work against Negoshian one-on-one, and he limited him to 10 points — on 3-of-19 shooting (1-of-7 on threes).

"I was definitely focusing in on Negoshian," said Scott, who checked him only part of the time in the first meeting. "I didn't want to leave him — heck, he got 33 of their 50 against us last time."

Rocks still reign in WLAA; Chiefs finish 2nd

There are reasons — they're not secrets, really — for all this success.

Last Saturday, Plymouth Salem did the expected. The Rocks collected their fifth straight Western Lakes Activities Association boys swimming championship with relative ease, scoring 504.5 points to outdistance runner-up Plymouth Canton (462).

Farmington finished third (326.5) and Livonia Stevenson was fourth (309), followed by North Farmington (286.5), Farmington Harrison (243), Northville (242), Westland John Glenn (184.5), Walled Lake (161), Livonia Franklin (156) and Livonia Churchill (104).

So how do the Rocks do it, year after year? "The guys knew what they had to do and they did it," said Salem coach Chuck Olson.

Not much of an answer, really, but there is more. Olson doesn't rely on a few stars, or his senior class, to carry the load.

"There's no such thing as rebuilding," Olson said. "We don't believe in it. This year we're rebuilding for next year."

A typical Salem swimmer? Olson pointed to Luke Woodcock, one of four senior captains. On the surface, it wouldn't seem like he was the biggest of contributors to the Rocks' success; Woodcock finished seventh in the 200-yard individual medley (2:07.33) and was sixth in the 100 backstroke (58.06).

But then listen to Olson, who pointed out Woodcock's six-second drop in the 200 IM from his previous best time, and his three-second drop in the 100 back.

"That's the kind of team this is," said Olson.

It's the kind of team most WLAA squads, including Canton, would like to feature. The Chiefs, in their second year under Kyle Lott, made impressive gains.

"We had a terrific all-around meet," said Lott, whose team finished unbeaten in WLAA Western Division dual meets. "The kids couldn't have swam any better.

"We finished only 40 points behind Salem, one of the best teams in the state. Our team made a big statement, and we've got a lot of young swimmers. We're going to be competitive for years ahead."

Individually, the meet featured two double-winners: Farmington's

The goal of each wrestler was to get through the regional tournament and qualify for the state finals.

Nineteen of a possible 32 Observerland wrestlers achieved that objective in Division I competition Saturday at Walled Lake Western.

Three finished as champions: Livonia Stevenson junior Katsuhiko Sueda (103), Plymouth Salem senior Eric Coburn (119) and Wayne Memorial senior Rich Watson (130).

The Division I state finals will take place at Kellogg Arena in Battle Creek March 7-8.

Wayne qualified five of seven wrestlers, Plymouth Salem four of five, Westland John Glenn two of four, Garden City one of two, Livonia Churchill one of four.

Coburn finished in first place for the second straight week, winning a 2-0 decision over Adri-

Vikings topple Salem in final

Bridesmaid no more.

Apparently Walled Lake Central finally got tired of runner-up finishes in the Western Lakes Activities Association volleyball tournament.

The Lady Vikings finally exchanged vows at the altar Saturday at Northville, disposing of Plymouth Salem for the third time this year in the WLAA championship match, 15-6, 15-11.

"This is our first one since we started this tournament playoff format," Central coach Mike Lindstrom said. "We'd been in the finals lots of times, but we always lot to (Livonia) Churchill, (Livonia) Stevenson or Salem.

"They expect to do this kind of stuff. They had been prepping themselves all year for this one.

"We were disappointed at home last year. We felt we should have won it, but we had some injuries and sickness. Nothing to take anything away from Stevenson because they were deserving, but this year they made up their minds."

Central, now 41-5-3 overall and state-ranked, proved to be more than a one-girl wrecking crew (led by 6-foot-1 middle blocker Becky Cummings).

Contributions in the championship match came from several different players.

Cummings, as usual, was strong with seven kills, an ace, one solo block and nine digs.

Sophomore Amanda Mendenhall came off the bench to contribute three aces and five kills, while junior Sabrina Nordeen had five kills and two aces.

Also getting into the act was senior setter Jennifer Keeler (three aces/eight digs), senior defensive specialist Katie Horton (nine digs), junior back-row player Kelly

SPOTLIGHT ON TAX STRATEGIES & FINANCIAL MATTERS

by Pat J. Paige CPA

Let It Ride

Investors might wonder what their stock portfolios would look like if they were to time the market so perfectly that they could avoid corrections. As it turns out, the taxes that they would have to pay on the profits would take a bigger bite than the market loss that they would be trying to avoid. For instance, take the nine percent correction in the market in 1994. The investor who correctly sensed that rates were headed up at the time and who sold at the end of January only to get back into the market in June would still have had to pay 28 percent federal tax on capital gains. After adjusting the basis for reinvested dividends, that works out to 10.7 percent of the portfolio. In short, an investor would have fared better riding out the downturn.

Madonna still top seed despite loss

COLLEGE HOOP

Most people would believe this was no way to prepare for the post-season tournament.

Madonna University women's basketball coach Marylou Jansen isn't one of them.

Jansen's team hosted Siena Heights College Monday in its regular-season finale — an opponent with a 9-19 record, someone who should have provided a nice tournament tune-up.

Instead it was a nightmare, at least until the last few minutes. During the first 32 minutes of the game, the Lady Crusaders had fallen flat; they trailed 70-51 with 8:09 left.

Over the last eight minutes, however, they did outscore the Saints 25-7 — which, unfortunately, left them one point short and on the bottom end of a 77-76 outcome.

So Madonna takes a 12-15 record into the NAIA's Great Lakes Independent Sectional Tournament. Siena Heights ends its regular season with a 10-19 record.

As impressive as the Crusaders' late rally was, it could not overshadow their earlier shortcomings. They were badly outrebounded (54-39) by the bigger Saints and at times looked more like a team playing its first game of the regular season instead of its last.

Considering the record of the team they were playing, and noting that it was the Saints second victory of the season over Madonna in as many tries, it did not brighten the post-season picture.

Jansen, however, did not agree. "In a way, it was (a good warm-up)," she said. "I look at Siena Heights as a very tough team, no matter what their record is. I can't imagine a team in the Sectional being bigger, faster or stronger than they are."

Madonna enters the six-team Sectional as the No. 1 seed; as such, the Crusaders — and second-seed Mount St. Joseph (of Ohio; a 10-12 record) — receive a first-round bye.

The opening round of the tournament featured University of Michigan-Dearborn (5-23) playing Notre Dame (from Cleveland; an 11-13 record) and Wilberforce (of Ohio; a 6-20 record) going against Indiana Tech (of Fort Wayne; a 7-15 record) last night.

The UM-D/Notre Dame winner will meet Madonna at 7 p.m. Saturday at Madonna. Mount St. Joseph will host the Indiana Tech/Wilberforce winner, also at 7 p.m. Saturday.

The championship game will be at 7 p.m. next Wednesday (March 5), with the highest remaining seed hosting.

The Sectional champion advances to the 32-team NAIA Division II National Tournament at Tri-State University (Angola, Ind.) March 12-18.

Jansen was not surprised by the rebounding numbers. "Well, they are bigger and stronger," she said. "But we've had to contend with that all year."

What she didn't like were the turnover totals. Siena Heights had more (28), but Madonna still had too many (20).

To succeed in the upcoming playoffs, the Crusaders must create more opportunities — and take advantage of them. Although they forced eight more turnovers than they committed, Siena Heights outscored them 21-18 in points off turnovers.

"We have to do a better job against basic pressure," said Jansen. "That's been our weakness so far. And although we do live by the jump shot a bit, we still have to try to go inside."

Against the Saints, Madonna's only consistent threat was Katie Cushman. The sophomore point guard nailed four three-pointers in the first half, the only reason the Crusaders trailed just 42-40 at the break. Cushman finished with 19 points, seven rebounds, six assists and two steals.

Mary Murray and Michelle Parmentier added 13 points apiece, and Meegan Zann had nine points, four assists and seven steals.

Siena Heights was paced by Jessica Spiegel with 18 points (including four triples), Bevin Malley with 15 points, 17 rebounds and three steals, and Natarsha Napier with 10 points.

With 3:30 to play, Madonna still trailed 74-62. But five points by Cushman and four from Zann ignited a 14-3 finishing run; Cushman's triple with :12 left trimmed the Saints' lead to 77-76.

A missed layup enabled the Crusaders to regain possession with 2.3 seconds left, but the Saints intercepted the ensuing inbounds pass, ending the game.

But not the season.

Whalers stage consecutive comebacks

A third-period rally, sparked by Steve Wasylko's two goals, enabled the Detroit Whalers to post a come-from-behind 4-2 triumph over the Owen Sound Platers Sunday in an Ontario Hockey League game at Compuware Arena.

Detroit, which tied the Central Division-leading Kitchener Rangers 3-3 Saturday at Compuware, trailed the Platers 2-1 after two periods Sunday. Wasylko scored with 3:34 expired in the final period on a power play to tie the game.

Harold Druken got the go-ahead marker with 11:22 left; Wasylko added the insurance goal, an empty-netter, with 19 seconds to play.

Mark Cadotte also scored for Detroit; both he and Druken had assists as well. Randy Fitzgerald had two assists.

Robert Esche made 21 saves in the victory, which improved the Whalers' record to 24-30-6. Their 54 points puts them fourth in the West Division.

Against Kitchener Saturday, Detroit again had to come-from-behind, twice rallying from two-goal deficits in the last period to forge a tie.

A Luc Rioux goal just 1:08 into the third period helped Detroit trim the Ranger lead to 2-1, but Ryan Mougenel pushed it back to two with a power-play marker for Kitchener with 9:11 left.

With just 2:08 remaining, the Whalers pulled back to within a goal when Cadotte put a shot past Ranger netminder David Belitski. Then, with 1:41 left, Mike Morrone knocked home the game-tying marker for Detroit.

Morrone and Cadotte each drew assists on the other's goal. Esche made 31 saves in the tie.

Detroit hosts Sault Ste. Marie, the West Division leaders, at 2 p.m. Saturday and at 6 p.m. Sunday.

WHALER NOTES: The infamous Hanson Brothers, from the movie "Slapshot," will entertain Whaler fans Saturday during their game against the Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds.

The Hanson brothers — alias Steve Carlson, Jeff Carlson and Dave Hanson — will sign free autographs and perform skits, including their Zamboni Skiing act.

Tickets are $12 for the VIP section, $8 for executive reserved and $5 for end zone seats. To order tickets by phone, call (313) 453-8400.

Shamrocks collect crown

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

CC HOOP

Nick Moore said it's "like Heaven" bringing the ball up court and seeing Marc McDonald on the wing and Chris Young in the low post ready to receive one of his passes.

Young and McDonald are quickly beginning to feel the same way about his presence.

Moore, CC's 6-foot sophomore point guard, played perhaps his best game in leading Detroit Catholic Central to an 81-71 victory over Redford Bishop Borgess in Sunday's Catholic League championship game at University of Detroit-Mercy's Calihan Hall.

Moore scored 14 points and played an outstanding floor game as the Shamrocks became the first team in 12 years to win back-to-back Catholic League championships.

"Nick's a sophomore but he's playing like a senior," CC coach Rick Coratti said. "I thought we'd be pretty good but young and inexperienced. We've just kept getting better."

The Shamrocks, who are 13-6 overall, play Detroit Public School League champion Denby in the Operation Friendship Game at 2:30 p.m. Saturday at Calihan Hall.

"As the season goes on I get more confident," Moore said. "That's the main reason I like to have the ball in my hands. If we turn it over, it's on me. It's like Heaven, you can't lose (having McDonald and Young as teammates)."

Moore made only four of 12 shots, but they all seemed to come at key moments – like his three-point shot that gave the Shamrocks a 38-29 lead and came right after Young blocked a shot early in the second half.

"Nick's been a huge addition (from the junior varsity) and we wouldn't be nearly as good without him," said McDonald, who scored a game-high 35 points. "He does a great job looking off the defender and getting me open."

The Shamrocks were deadly from outside, making 10 shots from three-point range. McDonald made five triples and finished 10 for 16 from the floor, including one that looked to get a little help from above late in the third quarter.

McDonald's three-point attempt from the corner hit the rim, bounced high and came straight through the net. Reserve guard Matt Martinez also finished the next possession with a triple to give the Shamrocks a 48-40 lead.

"As soon as I shot it, I was like, 'That's off,'" McDonald said. "I'll give God credit for that one. I barely hit the rim."

Martinez played another strong game off the bench with 12 points, including three triples. Joe Jonna and Moore made one three-point shot each.

When the Shamrocks weren't shooting from three-point land, they were looking inside to Young, who scored 13 points, including a pair of baskets on dunks.

CC led 31-28 at halftime and outscored the Spartans, 25-18, in the third quarter to open up a 56-46 lead. The Shamrocks made four triples in the third, two each by McDonald and Martinez.

CC made 14 of 23 shots after halftime, including six straight in the third quarter. The Shamrocks finished 26-for-47 from the floor while the Spartans were 29-71.

The Spartans enjoyed a 32-26 rebounding advantage and turned the ball over only 11 times to the Shamrocks' 17, but didn't capitalize enough on their possessions.

Borgess' junior guard Kevin Jordan put on a shooting display of his own, burying five triples en route to a team high 21 points. Aaron Jessup had 15 points and nine rebounds and Durand Bynum 13 points and seven rebounds.

The Spartans' 6-7 senior center Sam Hoskins was held to six points and six rebounds.

Young led the Shamrocks with nine rebounds and two blocks and Jonna added five caroms.

John Hawkins, who finished first in the 200 (1:47.83) and 500 (4:52.43) freestyles, and Stevenson's Steve Domin, who captured the 50 free (22.31) and 100 butterfly (53.47).

The league's top two teams boasted just 1 1/2 individual-event winners between them: Salem's Otto Geiseman, who won the diving with a school-record 500.55 points, and the Rocks' Nick Corden, who tied Farmington's Pete Bosler for first in the 100 freestyle (49.45).

However, both Salem and Canton dominated where depth ruled — in the relays. The Rocks' Kyle Petroskey, Tim Buchanan, Nick Corden and Andrew Locke won the 200 free relay (1:30.83), and Dettling, Petroskey, Buchanan and Brent Mellis combined to capture the 400 free relay (3:21.48).

Canton was a surprise in the 200 medley relay, trimming five seconds off its season best in a two-week span, culminating with a victory at the WLAA meet. Pat Krause, Kurtis Hornick, Don LeClair and Alex Rottgers were the winners in a state-meet qualifying 1:41.07.

With three individual-event firsts and two thirds in relays, Farmington had a strong meet for the Falcons.

"What a great team effort," said Farmington coach Ross Bandy. "I never would have picked us for third at the beginning of the season. These kids swam with great emotion."

Other individual winners were North's Dan Gabriel in the 100 back (54.63), Harrison's Robin Trombley in the 100 breaststroke (1:01.66), and Northville's Evan Whitbeck in the 200 IM (1:59.61).

Burt (six digs), 6-foot sophomore Becka Saldana (three kills) and junior middle blocker Kristen Brady (nine digs).

Senior middle blocker Laura Hochthanner had the game-winning kill to douse a Salem rally. The Rocks trailed 10-1 in the second game, only to pull within three (14-11) before Central put it away.

"We're a well-round team, we can go nine to 10 deep," Lindstrom said. "We may not hit as hard as I like them to be, but we're a smart team who can pick people apart.

"The key are the seniors in this group. You can't say enough about Cummings and Keeler, but you have someone like (5-foot-4) Horton, who is a little passing machine and one of the best defensive players I've had pound for pound."

Salem's top hitter on the day was 6-foot junior Amanda Abraham, who held her own against the talented Walled Lake Central attack with seven kills, four solo blocks and one ace. Jenny Trott added four kills, two aces and seven digs, while Kelly Street contributed three kills.

Salem coach Brian Gilles was not discouraged by the loss.

"Central is a very good team, they're solid in all areas," he said. "I thought we played with them today. It's just that our serve receive broke down. And that's like walking guys in baseball to pitch to the home run hitters.

"I told our players we'll be back next year. I'm happy with the way the team is now. I'm not happy we didn't win, but we're learning."

Salem at times used four sophomores and one freshman during the tournament.

"We lost five starters from last year, including a Division I player now at Ohio State (Shellye Sills), and we're now 37-8-5," Gilles said. "We're having a pretty nice season."

Salem ousted defending tourney champion Stevenson in the semifinals, 15-9, 15-13, 15-3 (as freshman Amanda Suder served seven points in the decisive third game).

Stevenson, the only team to go unbeaten in pool play, advanced in the elimination round with a 15-13, 15-5 win over host Northville.

Senior Gina Palmeri led the Spartans with 24 kills and seven solo blocksm on the day, while Whitney Crosby had 10 kills and an eye-popping 22 aces.

Sophomore Stephanie Dulz, recently brought up from the JV squad, stepped up with 19 kills.

Other Stevenson standouts included setter Nicole Tobin (39 assists), Lindsay Pfeifer (31 digs/11 kills), Becky Peterson (16 digs), Beth Pinneo (29 for 29 serve receive), Kelly Kristy (nine kills) and Dawn Krol (14 for 14 serving).

Churchill, which dropped to 26-9 overall, split with Salem in pool play and then avenged a loss earlier in the year to Plymouth Canton, 10-15, 15-2, 15-2.

Central then ousted the Chargers, 15-3, 15-11, in the other semifinal.

"Walled Lake did an especially good job blocking the middle and they passed extremely well," Churchill coach Mike Hughes said. "Central outclassed us and they deserved their ranking."

Lori Leszczynski and Megan McGinty recorded 40 and 39 kills, respectively, while Sarah Fabirkiewicz and Amanda Eszes combined for 23 more. Setter Kari Buzewski also had a solid day making just two errors.

Canton (34-9-2) lost middle hitter Stephanie Chefan to an ankle injury during the Churchill match.

"They seemed to have lost their enthusiams after she (Chefan) went down," Hughes said.

Canton coach Steve Anderson said it had "a lot to do with a mental letdown."

"I don't know how much it had to do with Stephanie getting hurt," he said. "Unfortunately in high school sports, those things happen."

Jessica Orleman led Canton with 24 kills (in 79 attacks) and 25 digs.

Nikki Kovachevich led defensively with 31 digs, while setter Courtney Wells recorded 39 assists.

"Our tallest player is only 5-9 and sometimes we can't contend at the net," Anderson said.

But Scott did more than just play defense. He scored 12 points, grabbed 13 rebounds, dished out five assists, made four steals and blocked two shots with a superb all-around effort.

But as Scott was quick to point out, this game belonged to all the Chiefs. Nick Hurley led the scoring parade with 18 points; he also had five rebounds, five assists and three steals. And Matt Ammons finished with 13 points and 12 boards.

As the final score indicated, Canton dominated in just about every phase of the game, including rebounding (50-26; 19-10 on the offensive boards) and shooting (23-of-51 from the field, 45.1 percent; Central was 12-of-53, 22.6 percent).

The Viking scorers were led by Brad Burlingame with 11 points.

"I think Canton played well," conceded Central coach Steve Emert, "but I think some things took place tonight that shouldn't have."

Emert wasn't pleased with the officiating, which he felt robbed his team of its ability to effectively utilize its pressure defense.

"We didn't execute offensively," he added. "Some of our youth showed up tonight."

The game was still very much in doubt with 5:10 remaining in the half, Canton clinging to a 19-17 lead. That's when things started to get away from the Vikings.

The Chiefs outscored them 12-2 to finish the half, taking a 31-19 lead into the break. It was still a 12-point margin with two minutes to play in the third quarter, but Ammons scored the final four points of the period to expand Canton's lead to 42-26.

Central managed just six points in the final period. Hurley, meanwhile, scored 12 in a row for the Chiefs to put the victory on ice.

"Our whole focus was defense and taking care of the ball," said Young. "(Central) is so good with their pressure defense, it's a struggle fighting through it."

All Canton has to fight through now is Farmington Harrison (16-3 for the season) to capture its third-consecutive WLAA Tournament title.

Salem 60, Northville 51: When it's raining threes, try covering it up with a blizzard of layups.

Plymouth Salem survived a barrage of 10 triples by Northville Tuesday night by making even more layups in a WLAA loser's bracket tournament game played at Northville.

The Rocks only had two three-point shots but were effective in their high-flying, high-percentage shot style to advance to host a Thursday night game against Westland John Glenn.

Andres Lopez led Salem (14-5) with 17. Mike Korduba and Tony Bernhardt had 10 apiece for the Rocks, 9-4 in the WLAA.

The Mustangs (9-10) got 24 points from center Jeff Arenz and 11 from Dave Terakedis. Arenz stepped out for five threes himself.

The Rocks recovered from their first-round tournament loss to Livonia Franklin and led wire-to-wire, withstanding a 13-9 Mustang surge in the third quarter.

Salem put up a 21-12 first quarter by clamping down on Terakedis and getting inside for the layups that the disciplined Rock attack features so well.

Eight players scored for Salem, which tightened its defense in the final quarter to stop the Northville run.

an's Omar Rivera in the finals and improving his record to 47-3.

Coburn, who defeated Lincoln Park's Chris Taylor 8-1 and pinned Milford's Jason Amell (1:16) in his first two bouts, had beaten Rivera 5-0 at the Salem Invitational.

"Right now I'm wresting the best I have all year," said Coburn, a first-time state qualifier. "I hope to get to the finals and do well; I'm hoping to win it.

"The kid from Anchor Bay probably will be my toughest competition, but he'll be on the other side of the bracket. I shouldn't see him until the finals."

Coburn received a point when Rivera was penalized for an illegal scissors hold around the head. He escaped to start the second period, accounting for all the scoring.

Coburn was cautioned twice for a false start to begin the third period. A third would have meant a penalty point and a one-point difference in a close match.

"I was kinda worried about jumping again," Coburn said. "I just laid back a little bit and waited.

"I consider myself a pretty good rider, and that's what I did."

Salem's Teono Wilson was second at 189, losing a close decision (4-3) to Southgate's Eric Danko in the finals.

Wilson lifted Danko off the mat and put him down for a 3-2 lead with 29 seconds left in the bout. But Danko escaped to tie; then, he escaped again from a restart as time expired to win.

Crutchfield had to win his last three bouts to qualify. He defeated district runner-up Brad Kalis (South Lyon) 6-4 to go to state, and his late takedown enabled him to outscore WLAA and district champion Corey Vos (Walled Lake Central) 10-9 to place third.

"I was really shooting for states; that was my main priority," said Crutchfield (37-12). "I knew how good (Vos) was and had a feeling I could beat him. I knew he was gasing; I still had a lot of strength; I knew it was now or never."

Crutchfield also scored late points on Kalis to win that bout.

"Anwar took him down at the end, and the kid couldn't come back," Salem coach Ron Krueger said. "He couldn't have timed it any better."

The Rocks also qualified Dan Hamblin, who was fourth at 140. He pinned Observerland champion John Fedulchak of Glenn (2:54) to earn a trip to state.

Singer's life reached out to others

JOE GAGNON

Fat Bob became a household word in Detroit in just 45 days. He performed on the Mike Douglas show, also with Arthur Godfrey, Woody Woodberry, Margaret Whiting, Johnny Desmond, Duke Ellington, Milton Berle, Soupy Sales, Myron Cohen, Jack E. Leonard, Pete Fountain and Jimmy Durante.

He became Detroit's ambassador to the world with his singing of our National Anthem, having been seen and heard by well over 400 million people in a 25 year period.

Today, Fat Bob has a new career in a place called Heaven. He leads the directs the choir with his number 1 soloist being our beloved J.P. McCarthy who could always belt a song with the best of them. They were always the best of friends and everytime Fat Bob was fired by WJR, it was J.P. who had the power and used it to rehire him back. Not able to have that certain touch of comedy in his morning shows without Fat Bob's disguised humor, it is very ironic that both died within months of each other.

Fat Bob died on Father's Day just a year and a half ago. During breakfast at a restaurant in Livonia with his wife Carole, Bob suddenly complained of not feeling well and Carole called 911. Bob walked himself out to the ambulance and laid down on the stretcher. Some people will say that he died on the following day, but I'll you that he was dead before he even arrived at the hospital. In his will, he wanted every part of his body donated to others which is why the hospital kept his body alive until the next day when a team of physicians could work together. His wife of only eight months, Carole Taylor was by his side and held his hand. Fat Bob Taylor was always lending a helping hand to anyone in need. I don't think Bob know how to say no.

Four years ago I began to do interviews on WJR with Fat Bob and Larry Patton, answering consumer questions about appliances, Bob kept telling management that I should have my own show, and I firmly believe that because of him, I'm where I'm at today. He used to tell me to be myself, be patient and don't ask for much, and I wish he were around now to tell me what to do, now that I've got so much.

In his will, he asked that a music scholarship be started in his name at Eastern Michigan University. Carole Taylor and I, along with the blessings of WJR, took two albums of Bob's music and had them put on tape. With considerable reservation, I ran a promotion that with a $50 donation to his scholarship fund, a tape would be mailed out. In the past year, the university has received $28,000 in his name, thanks to the people who loved him. We are now at the point where I am having more tapes made in order to continue his wishes.

Even now he continues to help others. This warm, sensitive man spent a whole lifetime sharing with us his talents that went beyond the music we heard. If there is a heaven, or a life after, don't be surprised if in the future you hear that voice singing, "Oh, say can you see" or "Hi, I'm Fat Bob Taylor the singing plumber from Ann Arbor."

Joe Gagnon, the Appliance Doctor, will answer your questions about maintaining and repairing large appliances. Gagnon is president of Carmack Appliances in Garden City and does a weekly radio program on WJR-AM. He is author of "First Aid from the Appliance Doctor," available at area bookstores.

Ice dam leak may requrie new roof

Q: Every winter that we have heavy snowfall, our home has a serious problem with water leaks at the edge of the roof. While our insurance company will fix the damage, they will not fix what is causing the leaks. We know that our existing shingles were installed 19 years ago when the house was remodeled. What exactly is causing the leaks and how can we fix it?

A: Your leaks are caused by what is called an "ice dam," which is a buildup of ice at your roof edge that forms an area similar to a dish or trough where water is trapped and then backs up under your shingies, roof sheathing, soaks your insulation and eventually leaks through the ceiling and walls of your home. Ice dams are formed by snow melting over the heating sections of your home, or areas above your attic. The water runs down to the roof edge (sometimes an overhang which is not heated) and freezes – forming a dam. There are several things you can do:

1. You mentioned the roof is 19 years old so you are probably about due for a new one. It would be my guess that there is more than one layer of roofing on the house, therefore all the existing roofing should be removed to the roof plywood on boards. Install a 3-inch by 3-inch aluminum drip edge that will lap down into your gutters, if you have them, or onto your fascia board. Then install a product called Ice Shield on at least the first three feet of the roof, with felt paper on the remaining sections and then shingle. Ice Shield will seal tightly to the drip edge, the roof boards or plywood, and to the nails that penetrate when you apply your shingles over the top of it. It is a wonderful product that performs very well when install according to the manufacturer's specifications. There are several manufacturers of the Ice Shield type products. I prefer to install Ice Shield to a point that is at least three feet inside the outer wall lines to be sure to stop the water from backing up.

2. Insulate your attic to an R19 (6 inches of fiberglass insulation with a vapor barrier facing the living space) or preferably to an R-38-R44. If you already have insulation in your attic pull it aside to see if it has a vapor barrier on the bottom side against your ceiling. Also be sure to install proper overhand, roof ventilation and Overhang to roof (called proper vents). Here I would suggest that you consult a professional licensed contractor as it is easy to make a mistake with ventilation which can add to your heating and cooling costs and probably cause serious structural damage and rotting.

3. A quick easy fix is to keep our gutters, downspouts and roof free of all debris.

4. While I don't recommend electrical heat tape as a permanent solution, it can keep the roof edges oven and water flowing. Again, follow the manufacturer's instructions as water and electricity can be a dangerous combination.

"I Don't Pay My Servicemen a Commission on Repairs"™

If your heating or cooling equipment breaks down...
Don't panic • Don't pay more

Guaranteed Flat Rate Service™ protects you from getting overcharged for heating, cooling or plumbing repairs. Some companies pay servicemen based on the parts they sell you. This, of course, can lead to abuse and you end up paying the bill.

Other companies charge for their service on an hourly basis. And sometimes they advertise what seems to be an attractive low hourly rate. But it might take the average technician (who is less skilled) two or three hours to make a repair that my technician can fix in 45 minutes.

So what appears to be a savings can actually cost you twice as much.

Here's how I've solved this problem.

I only charge you a low Guaranteed Flat Rate for the diagnosis and repair. I never charge you an hourly fee. After all if one of my technicians gets "stuck" on a difficult problem why should you be penalized?

One more thing. It's important.

I never charge you for "hard-to-find" parts. Most of the time the exact part you need is there. And if it isn't? I don't charge you extra to get it.

Fun with formality: Jazzy decor welcomes

BY MARY KLEMIC
At Home Editor

Imagine you're an artist facing a blank canvas. Now imagine that canvas becoming three-dimensional, and large enough for you to enter it – say it measures 2,000 square feet.

That's the size of the Clarkston House of Michael and Michelle Biondo. And they decorated like an artist would paint, placing a lot of vibrant colors on their residential "canvas."

"Everything was just white," said Michelle, a former interior decorator.

"It's just been fun putting it all together."

Fun is the word that comes to mind as you tour the house, which is both whimsical and exquisite. Luscious shades on various walls are as lively as confetti, and suggest a celebration.

"The downstairs are a little more formal. I just like it to feel welcoming. Fun with formality."

The Biondos have lived in the house for three years. The house, seven or eight years old, was converted from a cabin by designer and builder Gerry Robb of Clarkston.

"We've been on a pretty tight budget. We just have to use what we have."

The couple decorated by using their artistic talents (Michael is an auto body designer at GM). For example, Michelle painted borders along the wall and designs on the ceiling, as well as furniture and even the floor in one room.

The dining room features purple walls, with tiny gold scroll swirls along the perimeter matching the pattern on placemats. Sleek black furniture and antique pieces are in comfortable combination. Two elongated, eight-sided mirrors are along the wall opposite from the windows.

Purple is Michelle's favorite color. Another shade of purple is in the spacious living room – in the drapes over the bay window, and in the rectangular area rug near the fireplace over the off-white carpet. The stone fireplace, saved from the cabin, is topped with a pair of topiaries. Chairs in the room bear a festive, colorful pattern.

Not all of the white has been covered. Whitewashed oak floors run throughout the house. The cozy music room features black and white tones, such as a black and white curtain with a keyboard design.

The kitchen is intimate and roomy at the same time. A large, angled island has plenty of space to seat visitors.

"It's a good entertaining house."

The baby's bedroom and bathroom delight adults as well as children. A painted border of animals runs along the perimeter of the bedroom. In the bathroom are a floor of brightly colored squares, a painted border of fish at child's eye level around the sink, a floral shower curtain, and pink and green trim on the door and window.

The master suite suggests paradise with its tropical hues. A wall is coral, a folding screen and a chair are brightly painted. The canopy bed is angled.

This room leads to the master bathroom with its wondrous decor. Stars were painted on the ceiling, and door handles are star-shaped. A skylight, a walk-in shower with glass blocks, and a full-length mirror blend perfectly with the stellar motif.

Also in this bathroom are a suit of armor in one corner, and an aquarium that fills a rectangular space. The aquarium contains colorful "fish," a display that can be seen from below.

Fish of all shapes and sizes adorn walls around the house. An eclectic assortment of art works is found throughout. Plants also abound, from large potted plants reaching from floor to ceiling to smaller arrangements of greenery.

"It's a fun house. Not real serious."

Biondo would like to get back into decorating consultation.

"Working with people on a budget. That's my direction now."

Special arrangement: A suit of armor and an aquarium are among the unusual features of the master bathroom in the Biondo residence. As in other rooms of the house, a large potted plant is also on the scene.

'Motor City Madness' at show

BY MARTY FIGLEY
Special Writer

"Motor City Madness" is the theme of this year's Flower Show at the Pontiac Silverdome, presented by District 1-The Federated Garden Clubs of Michigan Inc.

The ticket price, $6.50 for adults and $3 for children ages 6 to 14, includes admission to all of the activities during the Home and Garden Show. Discount coupons are available at participating Amoco stations and Elias Brothers' Big Boy Restaurants. Hours are 3-10 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 27; noon to 10 p.m. Friday, Feb. 28; 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday, March 1; and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday, March 2.

People who specialized and worked to improve a particular flower such as the carnation, tulip or dahlia in the 18th and 19th centuries were called "florists," although they may have worked at another occupation. When they gathered at their local meeting places and exhibited their finest specimens, the flower show was born. So, hundreds of years later the tradition is still in full force, and at no better place than the popular Silverdome location.

"Motor City Madness" suggests many ideas on which Federated Garden Club members have based their memorable displays. The Design Division, "The Motor City – Something for Everyone," features such titles as "Assembly Line," "Theater District" and "Can You Find Your Way Through the Ren Cen?" Also in this division, "Children's Zoo" and others, staged in miniature houses, are always interesting to see.

The Horticulture Division, "Gardening in the City," is open to any amateur grower. These must be ready for judging by 10 a.m. Feb. 27. House plants of all shapes and sizes will be displayed, along with herbs, dish gardens and terrariums, forced branches, hanging plants, African violets, orchids and others.

Special Exhibits Division, "Hometown Proud – The Diversity of Culture," includes education exhibits "Trees of Michigan," "Ikebana" and others. Among Artistic Crafts are "Art and Flowers," "Eastern Market" and "Living Wreaths." There is also a division for children and it's always interesting to see what they create for their interpretations of "Michigan State Fair" and "Detroit Zoo." For Flower Show information, call Nancy Goulette at (810) 347-6853.

The Michigan Home and Garden Show, in the main section of the Silverdome, features 15 life-size gardens displaying the latest trends in architectural accents and landscape design. For Home Show information, call (616) 530-1019.

Books present different views

MARTY FIGLEY

As the planting season draws near, many of us are contemplating what we will do in the garden this year and are looking for ideas. The following books approach gardening in different ways; all are informative and well written.

"Designing, Creating, Nurturing Glorious Gardens," Jacqueline Heriteau (Stewart, Tabori and Chang, $50), stresses the fact that personal gardening ideas are fine, there are really no rules that must be followed. The only real criteria that need to be met are the environmental needs of the plants, climate and soil and site conditions.

The large book features 250 full-color photographs that will take your breath away – and illustrate her point. Gardens large and small, including kitchen, water, shade, natural, xeriscape, hillside, seashore and rock are featured, while Heriteau's lyrical yet practical suggestions guide. Some of the unusual color combinations might break the color rules, but they work and the exuberance of the gardens shines.

Sidebars contain informative lists such as flowers for butterflies, perennials for shade, shrubs for erosion control, etc. The book may challenge us to be more creative, but isn't that what gardening is about? You won't know where to start with this book.

Native plants

"Easy Care Native Plants," Patricia Taylor (Henry Holt & Company, $35), is "A guide to selecting and using beautiful American flowers, shrubs and trees in gardens and landscapes ... those grown in any part of the North American continent prior to the arrival of Columbus in 1492."

We learn that many plants seen in English gardens are actually American natives that colonists had neither the time nor money to cultivate. Now we are finally beginning to appreciate and use them, many of which will be "new" to us. They are available commercially and the source list will guide.

Regional lists of successful plants from horticultural experts give a quick look at what will work, and includes suitable plants for patios and decks, trees for shade, shrubs for winter interest, flowers for drought conditions and the bright prairie plants for many gardens. Taylor has visited public and private gardens for detailed information.

The encyclopedic section includes all pertinent information; sidebars give a short synopsis. This book contains most important information that you will need about native plants. Wonderful resource.

Harmonious

Reader's Digest's "The Gardener's Book of Color: Creating Contrasts, Harmonies and Multicolor Themes in Your Garden," Andrew Lawson ($32.95), is an excellent guide for novices as well as more advanced gardeners. He explains how our perception of color is affected by what our eyes see, and with his photographs and text illustrates color combinations, shading and hues.

I especially like the growing tips that he shares. Three sections are devoted to single colors, harmonies and mixed colors. Line-drawn diagrams of the major plantings clearly show how the plants are placed in each garden. Short descriptions of plants are arranged by color and season – some of them are unusual, which enlarges the gardener's palette. A beautiful and most useful book.

"The Harmonious Garden: Color, Form and Texture," Catherine Ziegler (Timber Press, $44.95), approaches this subject straight on, which makes it easy to understand.

Ziegler, a professional landscape designer, uses the 16-color wheel to explain color principles and follows with photographs to illustrate her point.

Each garden vignette is in color, accompanied by a line drawing that shows where each described plant is located (and the number used). Cultural information is also included. Color combinations are organized by hues such as Yellow/White, Red-violet/Blue-violet/White, Yellow-green/White, etc. A description of each garden tells why particular plants were used, when they bloom and growing habits.

A large second section contains additional cultural information about each plant described in the first part of the book and lists additional plant associations for each. It was voted the best gardening book for 1996 by Publishers Weekly.

Marty Figley is an advanced master gardener based in Birmingham. You can leave her a message by dialing (313) 953-2047 on a touch-tone phone, then her mailbox number, 1859.

Invite a chef to teach cooking party

Macomb Community College Culinary Arts/Hospitality Program is one of the finest anywhere. The Culinary Arts program is headed by talented and knowledgeable Chef David Schneider.

The School's "Team Macomb" is an award winning team with numerous medals, ribbons and accolades – locally, nationally and internationally. Now that I am faculty at the college, I speak with great admiration and pride.

When the students are involved in competitive Culinary Olympics, the team may be given a "Mystery Basket" – a grouping of ingredients with a set amount of time to complete a certain amount of dishes. Points are then allocated on a variety of levels (kitchen sanitation, organization, blind taste and visual appeal) and a winner is chosen. I recently attended a team practice at Loon River Cafe – where Chef Schneider and Chef Ray Hollingsworth (the executive chef for Loon River Cafe and Catering Establishment, as well as a faculty member at the college) were putting the student team through the rigors of an actual competition.

RUTH MOSSOK JOHNSTON

While observing the team in action, and then enjoying the delicious foods they prepared – I had a real brainstorm. This would make a fantastic and fun couples evening – with hopefully a tasty outcome ... it is not unlike what I do with my own students during lab-time, or should we say, kitchen time?

The host or hostess should purchase ingredients for the evening – these ingredients could be simple to complex, depending on the group of friends invited – those that have some culinary ability and those that do not. Enough ingredients would be made available to divide them among the guests, giving each " group" the same or different ingredients.

One group could be assigned the appetizer portion of the menu, another group the entree and last but not least, one group assigned to the dessert. If you want to make this culinary event really simple, prepare the appetizers and dessert ahead of time, then have the groups do different entrees. Keep in mind that this is not a group of chefs – try to keep the groups equal, don't let all the 'culinary challenged' be placed in the same group – disperse them among those that can cook!

Make available adequate cookware and utensils, aprons, chef's hats (toques – classic tall white hats), some cookbooks or food magazines (to fall back on) and a good dose of humor ... this is suppose to be fun, not stressful (forget the competition points format). We leave the stress to the students, or chefs doing these culinary competitions.

Another fun food event, especially during the winter doldrums, would be to have an actual cooking class for a group of guests. A cooking instructor is only a phone call away – call your local newspaper, check the community education courses, or call the culinary schools in your area – there are lots of them! Have a "guest chef" (teacher or student) come in and cook a complete meal while your guests observe, or have it done as an actual class – then have a tasting of the food samples. Food is a hot commodity today, and chefs have become celebrities. If hiring someone is beyond your means, be the chef instructor yourself!

If you are taking on the responsibility of playing instructor, know your recipe – do something you have done many times – this is not the time to experiment.

As with entertaining on any level, be well organized and well prepared.

If you would like to try this idea and you do not have adequate kitchen space or a professional stove – use portable gas burners. The gas comes in cans and the mini-stoves can be placed anywhere as long as the room is well ventilated, and the cooking surface flat. These wonderful portable mini-stoves are available at your favorite kitchen shops, Asian markets and some hardware stores. Prices of the portable gas burners range from approximately $25 to $65. Some even come with a travel case. They are fabulous for tailgates, picnics, camping, holidays when stove space is limited, or for doing a fun culinary event at home with friends.

If these ideas are way too intimidating – have a pizza party where your guests build their own pizzas. Supply your company with pre-made crusts fitted on individual pizza pans, have an array of ingredients available; tomato sauce or pesto sauce, different kinds of cheeses, toppings from typical things like; pepperoni and white mushrooms to more unusual things like; grilled vegetables (red and yellow peppers, caramelized onions, wild mushrooms, and zucchini), fruit (especially rings of pineapple and star fruit), unusual meats (wild game or interesting salami/sausages) or seafood (calamari, shrimp, lobster, escargot, or mussels). For a different twist to pizza – do a dessert pizza!

Lavash sandwiches (flat bread, like tortillas) to be rolled, can work the same way. Give each guest one or two rounds – have them build their sandwich with an array of ingredients, then roll them up, heat if necessary, and serve for lunch or dinner. Some of the subway shops do a six foot long sub – ask them if you can just buy the looooong roll, and build your own 6-foot sub.

With all the culinary films now out on video – showing a food movie would be fun, before or after the food.

These ideas are not only fun for adults, they make great kids parties too (minus the movies and keep the foods simple and kid oriented) – something a little different from the traditional Happy BD gig, and a whole lot more creative than most kiddie games!

Getaway Cruiser brings fresh sound to Sony

By Christina Fuoco
Staff Writer

Some of Mio Vukovic's favorite bands are from Detroit. So, given his history as an artist and repertoire representative for Geffen Records and now Sony 550 Music, he found it ironic that he never signed a band from this area.

Innovative hip-hop/alternative rockers Getaway Cruiser answered his wish.

"I read a little blurb about Getaway Cruiser and something about it really stuck in my head," said Vukovic, via telephone from his Santa Monica, Calif., office. "Something about it spoke to me. I tracked them down and they connected with me."

He flew out to see the band perform at The Shelter below St. Andrew's Hall in Detroit, opening for Elektra Entertainment's Tuscadero in early August – Getaway Cruiser's fifth show.

"I thought they were doing something so fresh. I was really bored with a lot of the music and demos I'd been getting. ... Because they're (Getaway Cruiser) recording a lot of the stuff in their basement studio it has this homegrown feeling. They're kind of a cross between this organic band and a programmed sound. They're one of the few groups I've heard that's doing it and doing it right. They're not doing it as a joke. ... I liked their stuff and I took a chance."

Getaway Cruiser guitarist Chris Peters, a 25-year-old West Bloomfield native now living in Ann Arbor, is just as pleased to be working with Vukovic.

"He really understands what we're doing musically. We have a lot of the same points of reference. When we talk about the kind of record we want to make, it's all in sync. So many labels that we talked to we were just never on the same page," said Peters who also handles drum loops, harmonica, and turntable duties.

"We could tell him, 'We would like our record to sound like the (Rolling) Stones' (1978 album) 'Some Girls' meets DJ Spooky.' People would go, 'What the hell is that.' With Mio he knows what we're talking about. He'll say, 'Oh you like that stuff, I can recommend six more records like that.'"

Not wanting to go into too many details, Peters said his band signed a seven-album deal with 550.

"That's pretty standard. ... We could make one and they could drop us, or we could make all seven of the records. ... This band is finally doing what we really want to be doing. It was surprising how fast it happened because we just made a tape to get shows. It got into the hands of record labels. I didn't expect to be where we're at for awhile."

Getaway Cruiser formed in April 1996 after the demise of alternative popsters Whirling Road, of which Peters, his brother Drew, and bassist Mark Dundon of Birmingham, were all a part. For Getaway Cruiser, Drew Peters jumped from drums to guitar, and taking on accordion and eight-track recorder sampling duties.

Recent signings: Getaway Cruiser – featuring guitarists Chris and Drew Peters, formerly of West Bloomfield, and bassist Mark Dundon of Birmingham – recently signed a seven-album deal with Sony 550 Music.

The threesome recruited singer Dina Harrison, an Ann Arbor resident formerly of Saginaw, after Chris Peters saw her singing with her former band, the local funk outfit The Bucket.

"I saw her singing this Chaka Khan tune. I just thought she was great. We had to get her out of this horrible cover band and get her into a real band," Peters said.

Harrison had five days to prepare for her first show with Getaway Cruiser.

"I had to write lyrics to the songs. I had a notebook with the lyrics on the floor on the stage in front of me because I hadn't learned them yet. We work well under pressure," she said.

Drummer Dan Carroll of East Lansing joined a few months later.

The shy, wide-eyed Harrison, Peters said, is one of the keys to the Getaway Cruiser's originality.

"She brings in a whole jazz approach. A lot of it is very subtle and it works. She comes up with melodies and things that my brother and I wouldn't even think of. We haven't run into the problem of going stale," Peters said.

Mixed in with Harrison's angelic vocals, are the Peters brothers' two-guitar assault.

"My brother and I have these niches that are totally carved out. My guitar playing tends to be really rhythmic, basic riffs. I'm a fan of T-Rex, Kiss and all the metal of the late '80s. I'm a real sucker for a riff. Drew kind of puts this My Bloody Valentine sparkle over it all, especially on a lot of the new stuff," Peters said.

Getaway Cruiser should begin work on its 550 debut in May with The Butcher Bros. (Joe and Phil Nicolo), who has also produced albums by Urge Overkill, Cypress Hill, and Urban Dance Squad.

"The brother Joey, who does mainly the hip-hop records, will do all the programming. Phil, who does mainly rock records, will do all the rock recording. They'll mix it together. They were tailor made for this group," Vukovic said.

In the meantime, Getaway Cruiser is releasing its first EPs – "Phones Calling" on its own Skillet Records label this week, and an aptly-named "Instrumentals" EP on the Michigan space rock label Mind Expansion in mid-March.

The band recorded "Phones Calling" with three different producers – Mercury Rev's Dave Fridmann, who, besides producing his own band, worked with the Flaming Lips and Weezer; Curt Ralske, frontman of Ultra Vivid Scene; and Al Sutton at the White Room studios in Detroit. The instrumentals EP and the segues on "Phones Calling" were produced by Ann Arbor producer Geoff Streadwick (Morsel, Wig).

"The whole idea of the EP ('Phones Calling'), as a fan of hip-hop, you flip over a hip-hop record and you see a variety of producers. It was kind of bringing that concept into a rock band," Peters said.

For example, Fridmann, "really put a great Mercury Rev-ish stamp on 'Half of Me.' That was the whole idea, to let these guys put a real stamp on these songs."

The nine-song EP closes with "Prelude 21," a Chopin piece that Drew Peters rearranged. Chris Peters said the rigidness of his former band, Whirling Road, never would have allowed for "Prelude 21."

"This band is my band, well, our band. This is a real reflection of what I want to be doing. This is exactly what I want to be doing. We do what we do on our own terms, entirely. We're allowed to do whatever the heck we want to do. How many bands are throwing Chopin tunes on a record. It works. It's cohesive. In the context of the old band if we had started to do a lot of these things, it wouldn't have worked."

Interspersed within "Phones Calling" and the "Instrumentals" EPs are samples of other artists' music.

"I have crates full of records. I dig through everything. I could pull out a Henry Mancini record, an old hip-hop record – Grandmaster Flash, KRS-1 record – any kind of record. Frank Sinatra, Doris Day, anything especially if they're really big arrangements like lots of classical records, and big band records. Even on marching band records you can find some cool stuff."

Now that the self-managed Getaway Cruiser has signed with 550 Music, Peters stressed that the work has just begun.

"Now it's not time to sit back and say, 'Great. We've got a record deal.' Now all the work is ahead of us: Staying out on the road for 10 months, and more importantly first making a great record."

Barbershoppers plan 'Great Day for the Irish'

Rehearsing: Reniassance Chorus members practice for their concerts on March 7 and 8.

By Keely Wygonik
Staff Writer

"Sweet Adeline" and "Down by the Old Mill Stream" are songs you don't hear on the radio, but they are a part of our American culture, and one of the reasons the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America, Inc. was formed.

"We wanted to save the old songs," said Jerry Beamish of Westland, president of the Wayne Chapter of S.P.E.B.S.Q.S.A. Inc., which is presenting a concert March 7 and 8 at Plymouth Salem High School in Canton.

In existence for over 50 years, the Wayne Chapter "Renaissance Chorus" draws its 61 members, all men, from western Wayne county including Garden City, Plymouth, Canton, Westland, Livonia, Redford, Farmington and Farmington Hills. Some travel from as far away as Brighton, Trenton, Sterling Heights, Warren and Royal Oak to sing with the group.

"In Michigan there are about 25 chapters of S.P.E.B.S.Q.S.A. It's very popular. We rehearse every Tuesday at Newburg United Methodist Church in Livonia," said Beamish. New members are always welcome.

But barbershop singing isn't just for men, there are Sweet Adelines chapters too.

"We sing a cappella, in four-part harmony, and our voices are used as instruments," explained Beamish who has been singing with the Wayne Chapter for four years. "My two daughters were singing in the Wonderland Sweet Adelines Chorus in the Lansing area, and my wife and I attended their concerts, and international convention. After hearing my daughters perform, I got more interested in barbershop harmony."

The March 7-8 program, titled "A Great Day for the Irish," will feature the "Renaissance Chorus" performing memorable Irish tunes including, "It's A Great Day for the Irish," "Harrigan," "Sweet Rosie O'Grady," and "My Wild Irish Rose."

Guest quartets include "Fred" from Atlanta, Ga., fourth place International winners, known for the humor they include in their numbers, and "Onyx," a champion quartet from the Lansing area.

On St. Patrick's Day, the Renaissance Chorus will be performing 10:30 a.m. to noon at Holy Trinity Catholic Church, Sixth and Porter Street in Corktown, Detroit.

Theatre of the Deaf presents spinning fantasy

By Frank Provenzano
Staff Writer

The lasting appeal of "The Miracle Worker" proves that sign language carries a vocabulary of human emotion. That story of a young Helen Keller and her teacher, Anne Sullivan, enlightened the public of misconceptions about the deaf.

Three decades after Patty Duke and Anne Bancroft's engaging performances, the assimilation of the deaf can be measured by the growing popularity of the plays performed by the Tony Award-winning National Theatre of the Deaf.

Hauling their sets, lighting and costumes in an 18-wheel bus, the 11-member ensemble will roll into the 800-seat Harrison High School Auditorium in Farmington Hills.

On Friday, they'll perform "Curiouser and Curiouser," an adaptation of Lewis Carroll's spinning fantasy, "Alice in Wonderland."

Unlike the seminal 1957 play about deafness, "The Miracle Worker," the national theater's adaptation of Carroll's bizarre wonderland dramatizes a variation to spoken language. Empathizing with the deaf might be similar to Alice realizing that situations are never quite what they seem to be.

The one-time only performance is a near sell-out. "I definitely should've gotten a bigger theater, but the play is so visual we didn't want it in too big (of a setting)," said Linda Booth, executive director of the Deaf and Hearing Impaired Services of Farmington Hills. DHIS, a nonprofit educational, interpreting and case management agency, is the local producer of the play.

Drama: Alice, played by Jorjan Jeter, encounters a multi-handed signing caterpillar in the National Theatre of the Deaf's "Curiouser and Curiouser." The play is an adaptation of Lewis Carroll's "Alice in Wonderland."

Many social service agencies refer to the drama of the day-to-day. Few actually get into the theater business. DHIS, however, has found center stage to be just the place to spotlight the "visual language" of the deaf.

Combining dialogue from three of the non-deaf cast members with the signing of the deaf cast challenges an audience's perception of "normal" or effective communication.

"You either hear or see every word," said Booth, a West Bloomfield resident. "We're providing an opportunity for people to understand that sign language can be an engaging art."

Five years ago, Booth and Monalee Ferero, DHIS associate director, first brought the highly acclaimed national theater group to the area for a performance of "Ophelia." That play was also performed before a capacity audience.

For Friday's performance, Booth expects about a 60/40 majority deaf audience, including students from signing programs at Oakland University, Madonna University, Wayne State University and Michigan State University.

With 90 percent of deaf children born to hearing adults and an aging population prone to hearing loss, Booth hopes the play will bring together the deaf with hearing adult parents. "There's a need for more mentoring," she said. The multi-language play provides for a meeting ground.

After all, with the imaginative "Curiouser and Curiouser," reality can be suspended, and only the rules of the imagination apply.

"It's like watching a foreign film with subtitles," said Laine Dyer, spokesperson for the National Theatre of the Deaf.

In one highly expressive scene, said Dyer, the play's lead, Alice, encounters a multi-handed caterpillar played by three actors. Their six hands sign in unison with the rhythm of Shakespearean verse, said Dyer. Many of the other eccentric characters are enhanced by sign language, including the fumbling Tweedledum and Tweedledee.

Friday's performance also marks the homecoming of Jorjan Jeter, a 12-year-old actress from Detroit. Jeter, who is deaf in her left ear and uses a hearing aid in her right ear, plays the lead role, Alice.

Two years ago, Jeter was inspired to get into acting after seeing the national theater's performance, "Italian Straw Hat." With more deaf people entering the work force and arts, the lasting testimony of assimilation might just be that it's not unusual for Jeter to dream, and ask, "Why not?"

JET challenges audience with 'Unexpected Tenderness'

"Unexpected Tenderness" opens at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, March 2 at the Jewish Ensemble Theatre, located in the Aaron DeRoy Theatre, 6600 W. Maple, West Bloomfield. The play runs through Sun, March 23. For information, call (810) 788-2900.

By Frank Provenzano
Staff Writer

Days before opening night and Evelyn Orbach could barely keep her eyes open. With her sweepingly effusive manner, she explained that she had just returned from a trip to Argentina. "We went to explore a foreign culture," said Orbach, artistic director at the Jewish Ensemble Theatre in West Bloomfield. "It's summertime down there anyway."

It took about 18-hours to travel back home, including a long layover in Miami. But Orbach became revitalized when talking about "Unexpected Tenderness," the upcoming Israel Horovitz play at JET, which opens this Sunday. "What's typical about Horovitz is that he's atypical," she said.

Of course, Horovitz's plays, such as "I Am A Fountain Pen" and "A Rose By Any Other Name" demonstrate that few of his 50-plus plays fit any format. Horovitz divides his time in Israel, the U.S. and Europe. The prolific playwright is working on a French film.

Since JET was established eight years ago, Orbach has sought engaging plays with broad themes about humanity, such as "The Diary of Anne Frank," and "Torch Song Trilogy." Or, she has presented provocative dramas that deal with social issues. Clearly, "Unexpected Tenderness" is in the latter class.

By Orbach's admission, Horovitz's provocative play about the travails of a hard-working, lower middle-class family will challenge audiences. Don't expect a pleasant stroll through a Neil Simon sitcom. Set in a 1950s idyllic household with an unspeakable undertow, "Unexpected Tenderness" unfolds as a troubling – and violent – story of domestic abuse.

In one scene, the mother in the play grows incensed at her two teenagers. She yells for "you" to "get upstairs." When one starts for the stairs, the mother yells, "Not you ... You!" Most stressed-out parents can relate to the difficulty in trying to recall their child's name in the heat of the moment. "Horovitz has found the human elements of the drama that are universal," said Orbach.

The play features John Michael Manfredi, who won Best Actor in a lead role for his performance last year in JET's "Torch Song Trilogy." Director Randall Forte returns to renew his longtime collaboration with Orbach.

Thornton shines in Oscar-nominated 'Sling Blade'

TICKETS PLEASE

JOHN MONAGHAN

Karl Childers' story is not a pretty one: raised in a shed with a hole dug for him to sleep in, 12-year-old Karl heard noises in the house one afternoon and, upon investigating, saw a strange, naked man on top of his mother. He grabbed a sharp knife called a sling blade and killed them both in a blind fury.

Thirty years later Karl is released from a mental institution and returns to the small Southern town where he was born. What follows in "Sling Blade" makes for perhaps the most poignant independent movie released so far this year.

"Sling Blade" is directed by Billy Bob Thornton, best known for co-writing and appearing in the gritty "One False Move." His slow-witted Karl might be compared to the lovable Forrest Gump, except for his violent past.

In the first of many chilling scenes, Karl is interviewed by a college newspaper reporter shortly before his release. She has been told not to ask him any questions, but when he offers, she jumps at the chance: "Do you think you'd kill again?" Karl thinks for a long minute before answering matter-of-factly: "I don't see my having any need to."

■REVIEW

But he's soon tempted again. The widowed Linda (Natalie Canerday) and son Frank (Lucas Black) have taken the indigent man in and allow him to sleep in the heated garage. The problem lies with the woman's boyfriend, a not-so-good ol' boy known to fire orders and insults when he's "likkered up."

Confrontation between the two is inevitable, but Thornton doesn't make Karl's moral decisions easy. Doyle (played by country music veteran Dwight Yoakam) is not a bonafide psycho like Dennis Hopper in "Blue Velvet." He's a screwed-up redneck, abusive in a way that too many men are to women and small children, and all the more realistic for it.

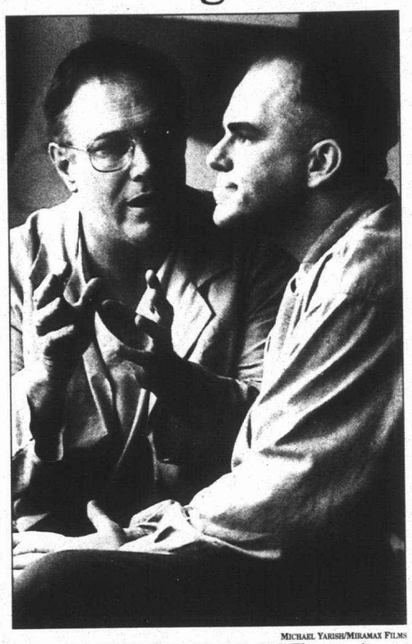
Thornton creates an unforgettable character in Karl, whose tight-lipped, rumbling "mmm, hmmms" at the end of every sentence are as easily recognizable as Gump's sleepy soliloquoys. His scenes with the boy are touching but not cloying, another way that Karl and Forrest part company.

Aside from giving Yoakam a shot at the big screen, Thornton also lifts the sagging career of John Ritter, who plays Linda's best friend Vaughan, a gay man out of place in a small Southern town.

He too puts up with Doyle's abuse because he cares too much for Linda to leave her alone with him. Ritter's especially effective in a scene where he bares his soul to Karl over a plate of fast food, while it's obvious that all Karl is thinking about are the french fries.

Ironic moments throughout "Sling Blade" prevent it from growing overly contrived. Watching Ritter play a gay man after years of impersonating one on "Three's Company" is a treat. Then there's Yoakam, whose rehearsals with his hapless bandmates inevitably end in a drunken stupor in which he boots everyone out.

Less effective is the reunion scene between Karl and his father (Robert Duvall), who bears a striking resemblance, but has little to add to the story. Independent director Jim Jarmusch also does his part for the low-budget project as a patient employee at the local Frostee Cream.



MICHAEL YARISH/MIRAMAX FILMS

For the multi-talented Thornton, "Sling Blade" is a balancing act that seems to be paying off. Though it's playing locally at only one theater (The Maple in Bloomfield), Thornton's acting and screenwriting have been honored with Academy Award nominations.

While no masterpiece, "Sling Blade" has many of the qualities that make for a truly great film. Its study of the rawer aspects of human nature gets under your skin, like the wooden chair that scrapes across the institutional floor in the movie's understated opening and closing scenes.

Tim Allen hosts benefit premiere of new Disney movie

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Television star and Beverly Hills resident Tim Allen has the tools to raise money for Lighthouse of Oakland County, Inc.

The "Home Improvement" star and his wife, Laura, will host a benefit premiere of Allen's new family comedy, "Jungle 2 Jungle," on Sunday, March 2, at the Fox Theatre, 2211 Woodward Ave., Detroit. The premiere is a benefit for Lighthouse of Oakland County, Inc., a non-profit human services agency established to assist low-income families and seniors.

Tickets are now on sale for the benefit events.

■ The Benefactor Gala, priced at $200, includes a cocktail/supper reception with the Allens and stand-up comedy entertainment on Saturday, March 1. For an additional $100, benefactors can reserve their seating at Sunday's premiere screening and attend the post-premiere afterglow at Detroit's Second City Comedy Club.

■ The Patron Premiere, priced at $100 for adults and $50 for children, includes reserved seating at Sunday's premiere screening and admission to the post-premiere afterglow at Detroit's Second City Comedy Club. Patron Premiere and Benefactor Gala tickets are available by calling Lighthouse at (810) 253-3717.

■ General admission tickets for the screening only are $20 and available through Ticketmaster outlets including Hudson's, Blockbuster Music or Harmony House stores, or by calling (810) 645-6666.

Allen, who last appeared in "The Santa Clause," stars in "Jungle 2 Jungle" as Michael Cromwell, a successful commodities trader who is engaged to marry Charlotte (Lolita Davidovich), a New York fashion designer. When he ventures into the Amazon rain forest to ask his wife (JoBeth Williams) to sign their divorce papers, he discovers he has a 13-year-old son, Mimi-Siku (Sam Huntington).

Michael brings his son to New York, but having been raised in the jungle, Mimi-Siku wreaks havoc on his dad's well-ordered life by doing things like scaling the Statue of Liberty.

Directed by John Pasquin, "Jungle 2 Jungle," also stars "Saturday Night Live" veteran Martin Short as Michael's high-strung business partner Richard, David Ogden Stiers, and Bob Dishy. The screenplay is by Bruce A. Evans and Raynold Gideon based on the French film "Un Indien Dans La Ville," written by Herve Palud, Thierry Lhermitte, Igor Aptekman and Philippe Bruneau de la Salle.

The film has been rated PG, and opens at theaters nationwide on Friday, March 14.

Lighthouse of Oakland County, Inc., provides a continuum of services that move people from poverty and crisis to independence and self-sufficiency. Lighthouse helps people help themselves by finding permanent solutions to problems faced by people in need.

In 1990, Lighthouse of Oakland County, Inc. was recognized by President George Bush with the 376th Point Of Light award for outstanding community service.

■ "Touch" (USA - 1997). When a handsome young social worker starts performing miracles, everyone wants a piece of the action. Christopher Walken, Bridget Fonda, Tom Arnold and newcomer Skeet Ulrich star in a clever adaptation of an Elmore Leonard novel, directed by Paul Schrader.

■ "Everyone Says I Love You" (USA -1996). So what if no one can carry a tune? Woody Allen's new musical comedy has the kooky characters and oddball casting you've come to expect, starring Drew Barrymore, Alan Alda, Tim Roth, Julia Roberts, and Goldie Hawn (in probably her best role ever).

■ "Shine" (Australia - 1996). The story of David Helfgott, a concert pianist driven to the edge at an early age by an overbearing father. His ultimate success over adversity makes for an inspirational story.

Detroit Film Theatre Detroit Institute of Arts, 5200 Woodward Ave., Detroit. Call (313) 833-2323 for information. ($5; $4 students)

■ "When We Were Kings" (USA -1995) Feb. 28 to March 2 (call for showtimes). Much more than a chronicle of the historic Muhammad Ali-George Forman heavyweight championship, this documentary includes contemporary interviews with Norman Mailer, Don King, and Spike Lee. They talk about the social implications of the decade's most memorable showdown.

■ "Man by the Shore" (Haiti/France) 1993). 7 p.m. March 3. During Francois Duvalier's reign in Haiti, a young girl finds herself subjected to so much fear and abuse that she retreats to an imaginary world.

Tobe Hooper, director of "Texas Chainsaw Massacre," fashioned this saga of zombies and vampires overrunning London. The second, about New Wavers from outer space, was an art-house hit when originally released. Shown on big-screen video. (Free)

■ "Mars Attacks!" (USA - 1996). 9:30 p.m. March 5. The special effects star in this typically warped science fiction tale from Tim Burton, based on a series of '60s trading cards and featuring a hit-and-miss dual performance by Jack Nicholson. ($2)

Main Art Theatre 118 N. Main Street at 11 Mile, Royal Oak. Films play through at least Thursday, unless noted otherwise. Call (810) 542-0180 for information and showtimes. ($6.50; $4 students, seniors and matinee; $3 twilight)

■ "Kolya" (Czechoslovakia - 1996). This Oscar-nominated foreign film finds a marriage of convenience turn into a personal revolution for a middle-aged, down-on-his-luck cellist.

■ "Mother" (USA - 1996). Albert Brooks returns to directing and starring in this comedy about a twice-divorced man who tries to come to terms with his mother (Debbie Reynolds) when he moves back in with her.

■ "Hamlet" (USA - 1997). Kenneth Branagh's latest version of the Shakespeare classic runs at its true length of nearly four hours (with intermission). But this shouldn't keep you away from the year's first epic film experience, a tour de force for star/director Branagh, who has compiled a most eclectic cast including Billy Crystal, Jack Lemmon, Kate Winslett, and Robin Williams.

Maple Theatre 4135 W. Maple, Bloomfield. All titles play through at least next

Thursday, unless noted otherwise. Call (810) 855-9090 for information. ($6; $2.95 twilight)

■ "Sling Blade" (USA - 1996). Billy Bob Thornton wrote, directed, and stars in this portrait of a middle-aged man released from a mental institution after 30 years. He must somehow assimilate back into the community where he committed a grizzly murder. Nominated for best actor and screenplay honors, Thornton's first feature also boasts surprising performances from Dwight Yoakam and John Ritter.

Windsor Film Theatre 2135 Wyandotte St. West, Windsor, Canada. Call (519) 254-FILM for information. ($5.25; $4 U.S.)

■ "L'Homme (The Ideal Man)" (France -1996). 9 p.m. Feb. 27 - March 2. On the morning of her 35th birthday, Lucie is jolted awake by her biological clock in this satirical look at women in their thirties.

■ "Sweet Sweetback's Baadasssss Song" (USA - 1971). 9 p.m. March 3-4. Dedicated to "all the black brothers and sisters who've had enough of The Man," Melvin Van Peeble's still-shocking film follows the adventures of a cop killer on the lam. (Presented by Kinotek Film Society).

DINING

La Shish showcases Lebanese cuisine

BY ELEANOR & RAY HEALD
SPECIAL WRITERS

We all like to do something special on our birthday. La Shish owner Talal Chahine celebrates by opening restaurants. And that's exactly what he did this year on Jan. 12 when La Shish made its debut in Farmington Hills. Nightly, diners have been "weathering" the lines that have spilled out the door ever since. People in line are not displeased with the wait. We talked to a group back for the fourth time in 10 days!

"We listened to our customers many of whom came to our Dearborn locations from Farmington Hills, West Bloomfield and Northville," manager Charlie Saad said. "They kept asking us when we were going to open a La Shish near them."

Farmington Hills attorney Richard Zucherman and his wife, Denise, are among such diners.

"We love the Dearborn location, but we're happy not to make the drive," Denise commented. This was Denise's second visit since the Farmington Hills La Shish opened. It was Richard's first. "You get the best hommous and the best bread [pita baked in a special on-premise oven] here," Richard added. "Salads are large and all the ingredients are fresh. The dressing is tasty and properly tossed so the greens are not dripping. At La Shish, a diner gets quality and quantity at a reasonable price – I'd say more for your money than most other places."

Among other Zucherman favorites are lamb chops, marinated in a special La Shish marinade, then grilled; shish tawook (chicken kabob); and fattoush (a vegetarian salad).

Credit for this praise goes to corporate chef Jamil Eid who now oversees five La Shish eateries.

In 1956, Eid graduated from culinary school in Lebanon where he was trained in continental cuisine. Before coming to La Shish seven years ago, he worked in Africa and Australia.

"Today, I cook only Lebanese because I want to explain Lebanese culture through our food," Eid said. "Lebanese food at La Shish must have a good appearance on the plate; it must taste delicious; and above all come across as healthy. We prepare many vegetarian dishes because that is part of our culture. When meat is used, it is trimmed of every inch of fat. A French influence also shows in Lebanese food. After all, we were once considered the Monte Carlo of the Middle East."

Another healthy aspect of La Shish is its juice bar, operating side-by-side with a full service bar. For $2 per glass, there are raw juices such as traditional carrot, apple, orange, grapefruit and lemon. Then there are juice combos such as carrot with apple or celery, beet or spinach. Each of these combos is listed on the menu with its health benefits. Also available are raw juice smoothies mixed with banana, strawberries, and honey or your choice of orange, apple, mango, guava or papaya. Carrot Smoothie with banana and honey is the most popular.

For appetizers, try hommous, baba ghanooj, falafel, tabbouli or grape leaves (both vegetarian and lamb stuffed). Among popular principal plates are chicken, lamb or beef ghallaba (stir fry). This dish can also be made with shrimp or swordfish. To experience some of nearly everything, order the sampler plate for two $26, or any of the combos, shish, shawarma, lamb or vegetarian ($10-18).

Sharing both food and friendship, a large group can dine sumptuously on a bevy of appetizers in a Middle Eastern atmosphere with well-appointed artifacts, photographs and memorabilia. Or there is La Feast $70 with the best of the best, serving six to eight. La Shish is a place to take children who are old enough to eat without much parental assistance.

For those with a sweet tooth, traditional desserts such as rice pudding with rose water and baklava are on the menu. All menu items are available as carry-outs.

La Shish (translated as the skewer) in Farmington Hills, has been discovered. "We have five Fridays and two Saturdays every week," Saad admitted. The busiest time is 6:30-8:30 p.m. The line moves quickly because there are 150 seats. Recently, even restaurant owner Johnny Gianopolis (Gianopolis' at 12 Mile Rd. and Middlebelt) was in line waiting for a table to celebrate his son's birthday.

"It is my son's favorite Dearborn restaurant, so we're here to try out the new location," Gianopolis admitted. It's a compliment to any restaurateur when one of his colleagues comes to eat and celebrate at other than his own establishment.

Open houses serve purposes

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

When the couple from Westland decided that it was time to move from apartment living to home ownership, they used several Sunday afternoons visiting open houses to get a feel for the market.

They eventually bought in Redford, stumbling across their starter home during – drum roll – an open house.

"Open houses helped me crystallize my feelings what I wanted in a house," said the woman, who asked not to be identified. "I think we were relaxed, receptive. There was no pressure on us."

Sherry Mifsud, a Realtor with Century 21 Castelli in Garden City, reports two interesting experiences with open houses, one involving a sale, another a buy.

"I was hosting an open house," Mifsud recalled. "The buyers' agent gave them the listing, they happened to drive by and noticed it was open. They decided to stop and fell in love with the house.

"They came by a second time just as I was closing up. They wanted to take a second look. They wanted to put in an offer, so I told them to go through their agent. They bought.

"I had an open house another time, a couple came in and said, 'Nope, this isn't what we've looking for,'" Mifsud said. "They happened to mention, though, that they had a house in Tennessee to sell. I told them we have a referral service and we helped list that house.

"In the meantime, I found them a house up here," Mifsud said.

That probably happens more often than people realize.

Vicki and Dennis Barill recently bought a house in Commerce.

"We didn't find a house through an open house," Dennis said. "We met a Realtor who eventually found us a house.

The Barills found open houses useful. "You can look through a house a lot quicker and you don't have to make an appointment," Dennis said.

Christopher McDonald, broker/owner of Home Master Realty in Livonia, is a big believer in open houses.

"You want to do two things," he said. "You want to sell the home and you want to meet the buying public so if you're not selling them this home, it's the next home."

Open houses can be a great learning experience for sellers, too, McDonald said.

"We had a home we couldn't sell in a real good area," he said. "They had the home on the market about a month. I went to the home one weekend when it was open. I was listening to what people said.

"The next day, I meet with the homeowner," McDonald said. "I was very respectful. I said, 'You pay a commission, so I have to be very honest.' The blue carpeting was ugly and the decorating – I don't want to say terrible – but people didn't like it.

"The lady across the table started crying, then said, 'Thank you. Nobody would tell us what was wrong,'" McDonald said.

"They immediately got up, ordered new carpeting, painted, took down some bad wallpaper. Within three days of that being done, two offers were sitting on the table. That's what you learn from an open house."

Not all Realtors think highly of open houses. They can tie up a lot of time. It's difficult to determine how many offers directly result from open houses. Not everyone who walks in the door will be a serious buyer.

"The national average is about one percent a year sales from open houses," said John Delaney, a Realtor with Coldwell Banker Schweitzer in Farmington Hills.

"I'm finding that the popularity of open houses is kind of dwindling," he said. "With all the computers out there with the multi-lists, a lot of serious buyers are working with Realtors."

But upwards of 80 percent of sellers, looking for the widest audience, want open houses, Mifsud said.

"They're as effective as you're prepared to make them be," said Richard Halmekangas, broker/owner of One Way Realty in Livonia.

"The whole key is you start two weeks in advance by mailing post cards to people already living in the area," he said. "Maybe a friend at work or a colleague wants to be in the neighborhood."

Don't play guessing games with newspaper advertising by having prospects call the office to get the address. Include it in the ad and run the ad several days in advance of the open house, Halmekangas said.

Delaney prefers to concentrate on portable, lead-in signs.

"People drive a community because they like the community," he said. "They'll circle and say, 'Let's see what's available.'"

"I like to put colorful balloons out," Mifsud said. "It's an eye-catcher."

Cleanliness counts big time at open houses.

"Make sure the mat out front is clean, all the lights are on in the house even if it's daylight," Halmekangas advises. "That puts warmth into a home. In case any doors squeak, we carry WD40 (oil) in a can. I've washed more than one bathtub and sink the seller forgot.

"I always try to have something to slow people down, cider and doughnuts or punch, to get them to talk," he added.

McDonald said he goes against the grain by not handing out a spec sheet as soon as prospects walk in the door.

"I don't want them distracted," he said. "I walk them through, and I want them to respond."

Wisdom used to be that sellers shouldn't be around when Realtors show an open house.

"Never do I want a seller at my house," McDonald said. "A buyer won't be open; they won't tell me what's good or bad."

Halmekangas, however, wants the sellers available, perhaps in the yard if the weather allows, maybe in a basement workshop, to answer questions that might come up.

"Buyers always want to know why they're moving; they wonder what is the neighborhood like; will I fit in?" he said. "It's a relationship business, not square footage."

One final thing – don't leave valuables or dangerous items lying around the house.

"In one case, I found a loaded handgun on the night stand next to the bed. In another case, I found $100 in rolled quarters on the bed," Delaney said. "Obviously things like these should be put away."

Land owner, easement owner split maintenance

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q. The question I have is whether the owner of a parcel of land has a right to require the owner of easement rights to pay a prorata share of the cost of maintaining that easement.

A. Generally speaking in this state, the Michigan courts have followed other jurisdictions that have ruled on the question and have held that where a dominant and servient tenant both use an easement, the court may apportion the cost of repairs between them, which is, in my judgment, the equitable way to proceed.

Q. I own a parking ramp, and the city is threatening to condemn my property. I am wondering if I am going to be able to get what I understand is referred to in condemnation law as "going concern value" for my business.

A. It may be very hard for you to establish that you have a going concern value based upon a recent unpublished decision of the Michigan Court of Appeals.

In that case, the court found on similar facts that the value of the defendant's business was reflected in the value of the property itself and the defendant in that case was not able to establish any customer good will or other intangibles warranting additional compensation.

To the extent that you are using the property as a parking lot at this time and if the government when it condemns it continues to do so, it may have acquired a going concern.

However, to the extent that you are not able to establish that your business was derived, to some extent, from managerial expertise or customer loyalty or from any intangible that could be comprehended by the term "going concern value," you will not be entitled to any damages.

Obviously, you should retain counsel at this point to assist you in this difficult condemnation question.

Questions you should ask mortgage broker

MORTGAGE SHOPPING

DAVID C. MULLY

As a consumer considering the purchase or refinance of a home, you may realized a number of benefits when better informed about mortgage practices. The question below are specifically designed to assist consumers when interviewing mortgage brokers. Consumer borrowers have rights and deserve to expect a reasonable and professional level of competent service from a mortgage broker. Remedies are also available if service is not satisfactory. Use answers to these or other questions to help guide your decision-making process, not only in selecting the best loan program, but also the best mortgage broker for your particular requirements.

1. In what ways will the services you provide as a mortgage broker offer financial benefits to me throughout my home ownership?

2. Will you provide me with a copy of the wholesale interest rate sheet for the various loans I may consider?

3. Will you disclose all fees to me that you or your company expect to earn from placing my mortgage, whether those fees are paid directly or indirectly by me, and whether they include origination fees, discount points, premium release fees, service release fees or other rebates?

4. In what ways can you assure me that I can avoid the payment of unnecessary add-on loan expenses or "junk fees."

5. Is it your company policy to disclose sales price and contract terms to the appraiser you hire to evaluate the property on my behalf, and how will this disclosure or non-disclosure benefit or harm my financial interests?

6. Typically, what possible property defects, or adverse environmental conditions do you require repaired as a condition of loan approval?

7. What suggestions about the various loan programs that are available would you recommend to help ensure the best possible equity realization on a subsequent resale of the home I am buying or currently own?

8. If you are representing my borrowing interests, how will you ensure that I will be reasonably protected and informed throughout the loan process?

9. If you harm me in any way, will you reimburse all fees to me which you and your company earn as a result of placing my loan?

10. If I don't select your company for mortgage services, which two other companies would you suggest I interview and why?

11. If I pay for a copy of my credit report and appraisal report, when will I be furnished with copies of those items?

12. If I make the decision not to use your company to place my loan, will I get my original loan package back and when will it be delivered to me?

13, How far in advance of closing will you furnish me a closing statement?

14, Will you explain in terms I can understand the purpose of all my closing expenses and who received them as well as an explanation of the fee amounts you expect to earn?

15. What other parties can pay a portion or all of my closing expenses?

16. What other mortgage program options are available in the marketplace that my provide financial advantages for me, even if your company doesn't offer those options?

17. Will you attend the closing of my purchase transaction to answer additional questions about my mortgage obligations and the loan documents I am required to sign?

18. Will you furnish me a list of past borrowers for reference purposes?

19. Does the loan program I am considering require mortgage insurance?

20. Do you intend to sell my loan and, if so, when will it be sold and how will that process benefit or harm me when I later expect services from you?

21. What is your experience in placing mortgage loans?

22. What specific training or certification do you have in "representing" loan borrowers?

Likewise, here are some questions to consider and actions to take for yourself before meeting with a prospective mortgage lender. These will help you clarify your mortgage needs.

1. How much down payment can you comfortably afford?

2. Can you qualify for any government-insured mortgage programs?

3. Consult mortgage payment tables to determine monthly payments.

4. Complete a realistic assessment of what you can afford to pay each month.

5. Compare various types of mortgages . . . adjustable rate, fixed rate, balloon, and others. Know your options before you buy.

6. Know the cost of borrowing the money. Will it be better to have a mortgage that can be paid off quickly, or a longer-term mortgage with regular, assured payments?

7. Assess your future financial prospects. Can you realistically anticipate a major change in income in the near future or long-term?

That clanking you hear in the pipes can cause leaks

By Popular Mechanics
For AP Special Features

■ Older, slower-acting two-handle faucets often don't shut off quickly enough to cause it. The newer single-handle faucets stop the stream much more suddenly and can cause water hammer.

Besides the disturbing bumps and thumps, water hammer in your home's water pipes can damage the system and cause leaks. The knocking can burst a pipe or loosen a fitting behind the wall.

While it may sound like something you cannot fix yourself, there is something you can do. Installing air chambers at kitchen and laundry sinks and bathroom basins and tubs usually does the trick.

In fact, many modern plumbing codes require anti-hammer air chambers everywhere except toilets and outside sill cocks. Air chambers are inexpensive and easy to install.

Water hammer is the audible result of tremendous over-pressures produced inside a water-supply system when fast-flowing, pressurized water comes to a stop as you close the valve quickly. Air chambers at the faucets provide soft, air-filled "pillows" to bring the rushing column of water in the pipe to a gentle stop.

Changing faucets can produce water hammer where there was none before in older plumbing systems. Older, slower-acting two-handle faucets often don't shut off quickly enough to cause it. The newer single-handle faucets stop the stream much more suddenly and can cause water hammer.

A typical house air chamber is 12 inches long and is made of half-inch pipe capped at the top and installed vertically in the supply line just before it reaches the shut-off valves. You can make the chambers from either plastic or copper pipe and fittings available in standard sizes.

Fixtures supplied by pipes coming up through the floor are least apt to have air chambers. These are among the easiest to make up yourself. Here there is plenty of room to have chambers 18 inches long and, if the problem is severe, they can be made up with three-quarter-inch rather than half-inch pipe.

Because of height limitations, wall-supplied fixtures must have shorter air chambers and these should be made from three-quarter-inch tubing. Both hot and cold sides of the water supply need air chambers.

Making up air chambers using plastic pipe and fittings, where local plumbing codes permit, is easy and long-lasting. Solvent cement is used to join pipes and fittings.

You can face the air chambers in any direction when you install them simply by lining up their tees. However, once installed, you can't change their direction without altering the lengths of the riser tubes. You can install an air chamber without having to open the wall or floor simply by assembling it to fit under the sink or fixture.

Always include a shut-off valve for emergency use.

All air chambers need to be recharged with air occasionally or whenever water hammer comes back. You can do this by turning off the water and draining the pipes to admit air.

If you install a line shut-off valve with a waste drain built into it, you can recharge the air in the system simply by opening them and catching the small amount of water that's contained in the line to the faucet.

If you have standard shut-off valves with no waste drains, shut off the water supply at the main house valve and slip out the riser tubes. Check to make sure the toilet tank is full and turn off its shut-off valve.

This keeps tank water from back-siphoning into the water supply system.

After draining the air chambers, retighten the hand nuts when you've reinserted the risers in their adapters.

Check the attic to help reduce utility bills

Turn off the lights! Close the refrigerator door! Shut off the TV! – typical advice when it comes to saving on energy bills. However, if you really want to reduce your utility bills, you should start chanting, "Check the attic for insulation."

According to a Department of Energy (DOE) report, between 50 percent and 70 percent of the energy used in the average American home is for heating and cooling, up to 20 percent for heating water, while everything else combined accounts for only 10 percent to 30 percent of homeowner utility bills.

One of the best ways to conserve energy and cut heating and cooling costs yearround is to add insulation in the attic. Additionally, insulation can make a home more comfortable and help to maintain a uniform temperature while providing sound-control benefits.

The DOE recommends R-38 insulation in the attics of most U.S. homes, equal to 12 inches of fiber glass blanket insulation (the specific DOE recommendation for southern Michigan is based on local heating/cooling costs and the climate). It never hurts to have more insulation that the gonernment-recommended minimum.

Since most attics have just an average of 6 inches of insulation, adding insulation may help the majority of homeowners increase the energy efficiency of their homes.

No more excuses

Despite the money that may be saved and the benefits insulation provides, many homeowners still put off doing an insulation job because of the itch generally associated with installing insulation. This old excuse no longer holds water, because it is now easier than ever for a do-it-yourselfer to undertake an attic insulation project.

A new insulation product manufactured by Owens Corning, Pinkplus R-25 (8-1/2 inches thick) insulation featuring Miraflex fiber, gets rid of the discomfort associated with insulating. Miraflex fiber insulation uses a new fiber that is nearly itch-free and cottony-soft.

The new insulation comes in rolls about half the size of traditional rolls, while providing the same square footage of insulation. The smaller insulation rolls are easier to transport from store to home and then to the attic or crawl space.

An easy do-it- yourself project and a small investment today may save you plenty in the years to come.

To locate the building supplier or home center that stocks Miraflex fiber, call the Owens Corning product hot line 1-800-GET-PINK. Each homeowner who calls will receive a free copy of Owens Corning's 32-page booklet "What's Your Insulation Project," which provides information on how and where to insulate around your home.

Control lighting at home: Install a dimmer switch

There may be times you want to control the level of illumination in a room – from very dim to maximum brightness – to suit the way you want a room to "feel" at any time.

You can bring this ambience to any room by replacing the standard on/off wall switch with a dimmer switch, which allows you to adjust the light level from your home's ceiling lighting fixture.

Know what you need

"The two most important things to keep in mind about dimmer switches are knowing the switch type and wattage rating," explains Sal Degaetano, Home Depot Electrical Department associate. "First, find out if the dimmer switch is replacing a regular single-pole switch or a three-way switch, then choose that same type of dimmer switch. Then, know what the dimmer switch rating capacity needs to be – such as 600 warts or 1,000 watts. The rating, nonnatty 600 watts or 1,000 watts, should be equal to or higher than the total wattage of the light bulbs being dimmed."

Before you proceed, perform the following checks: Make sure the lights to be dimmed are incandescent bulbs. Do not install a dimmer to control a fluorescent lighting fixture. One manufacturer claims that it is coming out with a bulb that can be dimmed, but until them, stick to incandescent lights.

Many dimmer switches are bulkier than the regular wall switch they will replace. Inspect the wall switch junction box to make sure it is large enough to accommodate the dimmer switch you have selected.

Installation tips

Before beginning installation, turn off the circuit breaker at the main service panel or remove the fuse for that line at the fuse box. Use a neon bulb circuit tester to make sure the power is off. Then, remove the existing wall switch.

Note that your dimmer switch has wire leads instead of screw-type terminals. Connect the wire leads to the circuit wires using wire nuts. Some dimmer switches also have a green grounding wire that should be connected to the grounded metal box or to the bare copper grounding wires.

In a three-way circuit, where more than one switch controls a light, only one of the three-way switches may be a dimmer switch. The other switches will continue to be able to turn the light on or off. A three-way dimmer has an additional wire lead. This "common" lead is connected to the common circuit wire, which is the one attached to the dark screw terminal on the old switch.

Testing the dimmer

When your electrical connections are completed, replace the switch cover plate and turn the dimmer switch to the "off" position. Turn on the circuit breaker at the main service panel or replace the fuse in the fuse box. Then turn the switch "on," ensuring that the light grows brighter as you gradually turn the knob to the full "on" position.

Finally, enjoy your new dimmer switch – you now have control over the lighting in your room.

Mortgage rates decline

WASHINGTON (AP) – Thirty-year, fixed-rate mortgages averaged 7.56 percent this week, down from 7.65 percent last week, according to a national survey released Thursday by the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp.

The decline put the rate at the lowest level in 11 weeks, when it was 7.44 percent.

On one-year adjustable rate mortgages, lenders were asking an average initial rate of 5.45 percent, down from 5.52 percent last week and the lowest in 11 months.

Fifteen-year mortgages, a popular option for those refinancing mortgages, averaged 7.06 percent this week, down from 7.14 percent a week earlier.

The rates do not include add-on fees known as points.
