Independence Day

Planning ahead: Organizer Fred Hill says there are practical and patriotic reasons for scheduling a 7:30 a.m. start to the Plymouth-Canton Jaycees annual Fourth of July Parade.

Parade is real wake-up call

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

It's not too early to think about the Fourth of July parade – when you're planning one that's exceptional.

Parade organizer Fred Hill and the Plymouth-Canton Jaycees have come up with a banner carrying the new parade logo, "Good Morning USA."

But what makes the biggest impression on folks about the parade is the start time – 7:30 a.m.

"The usual reaction to 7:30 is 'This is sick,'" Hill said, laughing.

Why so early?

"It allows us to be the state of Michigan's first Fourth of July parade, it makes available to us units that wouldn't otherwise be available later in the day," Hill said.

"And it doesn't land in the middle of somebody's Fourth of July picnic. People can get their red, white and blue blood running."

Another unique feature of the parade centers on audience participation. There will be 600 reserved bleacher seats. "Each section has a

Outcry stalls mall

■ Canton's planning commission has recommended denial of a controversial rezoning for a strip shopping center. The project's fate now lies with the township board.

Canton's planning commission – after a lengthy and heated public hearing Monday – recommended denial of a rezoning request that would have allowed a strip mall at the southeast corner of Canton Center and Geddes roads.

The five-acre site is currently zoned for an office development.

The hearing lasted more than two hours as residents lined up to speak in opposition of the proposal – the second such request since 1995. A more intense C-2 or community shopping zoning was denied in 1995.

Opposition by more than 50 in attendance and a petition with 121 signatures was enough to sway commissioners. Several said they could have voted either way on the rezoning and one member, Karl Zarbo, said he wasn't sure how he would vote just prior to the vote being taken.

But the only dissenting vote by the planning commission came from Melissa McLaughlin, also a township board trustee. The final hurdle for residents will be the township board, which has the ultimate decision.

"I'm torn about this because I understand the passion and logic of concerns that residents have

Third-grader taking a ride on 'Showboat'

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

When 8-year-old Sarah Wiercioch of Plymouth went down to Detroit's Masonic Temple to audition for the Tony award-winning "Showboat," it was a bit intimidating.

Trying out for five parts in the Broadway production were 60 children.

"The guy said to just come in your regular clothes, so I was in my plain old clothes with no makeup," said Sarah, who's appeared in six plays at the Marquis Theater in Northville and the Plymouth Arts Council.

Other kids were wearing make up and evening gowns, and they had huge portfolios," said Sarah.

"We went down more or less just to see how it went. There were a lot of other kids. I wanted just to see if she would even like it," said Sarah's mother, Susan Wiercioch, who read about the auditions in the newspaper.

The children were shown some dance steps, which Sarah caught onto easily, having studied ballet, tap and jazz. "We had to dance and go around in a circle, and then do a London Bridges thing," said Sarah.

They asked us to read something, and I was the only one who acted it out," said Sarah, whose blue eyes sparkle when the topic turns to singing, acting and dancing.

Auditions were Feb. 13, and "they told us they would call Monday, but they called the next day," said Sarah. "After my mom got off the phone, she was screaming her head off. I was jumping up and down. I said, 'Oh my gosh, I really made it, a real Broadway play.'"

Playing the role of "Young Kim," Sarah will join a company of 90 actors directed by Harold Prince who hails from both Broadway and Canada in the show that opens Tuesday. Starring are Tom Bosley of TV's "Happy Days," Emmy Award-winner Karen Morrow and Tony Award-winner Gretha Boston.

Other children who made the cut were Jackie Olesko, 9, of Milford; and Detroiters Danny Dixson, 10; Ibrahim Muhammad, 8; and

Bond passage would add to district debt

■ PLYMOUTH-CANTON SCHOOLS

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Should Plymouth-Canton Community Schools' 25-year, $79.7 million bond issue pass on March 22, the district will build a new high school and a new elementary school, and make district-wide improvements. The yearly cost for a $200,000 homeowner would be $175.

The district's debt will balloon to $303 million – up more than 920 percent from 1991 when debt totaled slightly more than $30 million.

A 1997 graduate of Plymouth Canton High School – should he or she stay in the community – will pay off the bond at the age of 43, assuming no new bonds pass.

With a yes vote, "the school district's debt would grow at a rate six times faster than the federal debt, which increased by 158 percent in the same six-year period," notes Ted Bohlen, who serves on the district's citizens finance committee.

"The much-talked about federal debt on Dec. 31, 1990, was $3.36 trillion. Exactly six years later, it stood at $5.32 trillion," said the retired General Motors attorney, who is speaking on the bond proposal before the Plymouth Kiwanis Club at noon today. "Here you have a federal debt everyone is appalled at, and we're trying to balance the budget. In the meantime, (the district is) going up six times faster."

Documenting change is challenge

Editor's note: Canton resident, historian and author Virginia Bailey Parker has written a series of stories based on interviews with longtime residents. This is the final installment of the Observer's "Canton Memories" column. Howard Moyer and Roy Schultz, whose recollections have appeared here, have since passed away. The entire collection of videotaped interviews may be viewed at the Canton Historical Museum or Canton Library.

BY VIRGINIA BAILEY PARKER
SPECIAL WRITER

Few residents can mentally strip away the veneer of Canton's current landscape to envision the shadows of our past countryside. Even more difficult is the mental leap necessary to imagine patterns of daily life in this once thriving agricultural community.

Just 20 years ago, typical subdivision lots ended a few side streets west of Sheldon Road. At Ford and Canton Center Roads, a Gothic farmhouse dominated the land Meijer now occupies. A small store, Julien's, was the sole business on that corner. One only needed to venture past that intersection, mere minutes from home, to enjoy country roads and vistas stretching across vast farmland. Today, homes and manicured lawns, stores, restaurants, and light industry are fast replacing the farms.

As the physical changes obscured more and more of our past, the Canton Historical Society saw a need to preserve the stories of our rural heritage. In 1994, it commissioned an oral history project to record reminiscences of 14 longtime residents.

A surprisingly colorful tapestry evolved. Onlookers, from early on, had the notion that our scattered farms formed a disjointed entity, one devoid of special identity or historical significance. But to the contrary, the story of a warm tight-knit community unfolded. Families, friends, and neighbors came together to work, socialize, and worship; to share in each other's joys and hardships. The residents were knowledgeable, successful

The likelihood of there being no future bond issues is slim. Superintendent Charles Little has said voters can expect to be asked to approve another in two or three years.

"We can project our needs for five years; that's all we are allowed by the state to do," said Little. "All the numbers indicate the population is going up."

Proposal A effects

School officials say that under Proposal A – which allows the district a relatively low state foundation per-pupil grant and disallows local millages – the district has no choice.

"Under Proposal A, the only way we can get more money is with a bond issue," said Judy Evola, community relations director.

"The whole process of bonding in this state leads you to make bad financial decisions for very good business reasons," said former school board member Roland Thomas, who served as president during implementation of Plymouth-Canton's 1991 bond issue.

Says Bohlen: "The district had problems before Proposal A. They did it to themselves by paying high wages – and they couldn't pass millages."

Acquiring debt isn't something Plymouth-Canton, or other districts, have shied away from.

In 1991, Plymouth-Canton voters approved a $59.7 million bond to build two elementaries and make improvements. The board pledged then that "we can handle this bond without increasing taxes."

Six days after the 1991 bond passed, trustees raised the debt levy from 2.0 to 2.3 mills.

As advised by Stauder, Barch & Associates – the financial adviser recently reappointed by the board – the district structured repayment of the 1991 bond with both current interest and capital appreciation bonds, or CABs.

CABs – which are no longer legal – carried an interest rate two and a half times higher than conventional bonds but allowed districts to extend debt.

Bonds expensive

Financing the bond with current interest bonds would have generated new interest of $73 million. By using CABs, the district was able to lower the millage from 4.56 mills to 2.3 mills, generating interest of $110.6 million. The district opted for lower millage and extended the payments to 2017.

"This generated $37.6 million in additional new interest for the taxpayer," said Bohlen.

The district refinanced the existing 1986 bonds to take advantage of lower interest rates. The cost to taxpayers was $11.3 million.

"The interest rate may have been somewhat lower. That isn't the issue," said Bohlen. "The issue is that interest payments were much higher because they were extended from the year 2000 to 2018." The CABs replacing the outstanding 1986 bonds carried interest of $15.6 million, up from the original $4.3 million.

"It's like buying a $200 item and putting it on your credit card: With interest, you end up paying $500 or $600. If you think, and if you figure, it's a problem. But a lot of people don't," Bohlen said.

School board member David Artley, who was on the board in 1991, said "You can argue that extending the debt levy is a tax increase. I understand the argument, but I don't agree we increased taxes. It's easy in hindsight to look back and say we could have done things cheaper. But we were given documentation, with backup research, recommending CABs."

Little and John Birchler, executive director for business, defended the moves. "Whatever went into that decision is subjective," said Little. "It's history. The people who made the decision made it based on what everyone thought was appropriate."

"It's a matter of opinion," said Birchler. You can maintain a level payback over time, or spike it up in the beginning."

Opening delayed

In 1993, two years after the bond passed, the district couldn't afford to open its two new schools. It trimmed $4.7 million from the budget, laying off 42 teachers and cutting classroom aides, textbooks, administration, maintenance, and extracurricular activities.

Bohlen predicts the district will again be forced to lay off teachers if the bond issue passes. "We've made many cuts in the non-salary areas in each of the five years in our financial projection to maintain the fund balance, and have just a $20,000 cushion. One little squeak, and we're deficit spending," he said.

After the Legislature made CABs legal in 1986, 82 Michigan districts borrowed $571 million that will require $2 billion to repay.

According to Standard and Poor's, use of CABs "represents a significant deferral to tomorrow of payment for school facilities used today. As a result, the steadily increasing debt burden could limit districts' future debt capacity and thereby restrict their ability to address future capital needs."

In 1995, Ann Arbor public schools passed a $50.1 million bond issue for remodeling and renovations. Ann Arbor - whose student population is similar to Plymouth-Canton's and has $28 more in general revenue - is now looking to cut $3 million, as expenditures are surpassing revenues.

Romulus schools have also used bonds to fund improvements. It eventually will pay a total of $35.8 million in interest on a $6.2 million loan.

host, and each person gets a package of items. When the clowns come down the street, they pull out a sponge rubber nose and put it on, Hill said. There will also be shakers, visors, and plenty more props and noisemakers. I think it's going to be a hoot," Hill said.

Tickets for bleacher seats will be $15, to help raise money to help pay for other parade features.

Spectators along the route will be encouraged to wear red and white and blue, sing patriotic songs and chant "USA," Hill said. He's trying to get a metro Detroit radio station to play the National Anthem at 8:15 a.m. parade day. The plan is for the parade to stop and for participants and parade watchers to sing along with their radios.

Made by American Flag and Banner of Clawson, the nylon banner is printed in red, white and blue. "We are selling the commemorative flag as a fundraiser. It indicates an individual's or a company's support and will help promote the parade," Hill said.

The $125 banner can be displayed in windows, and will hopefully be abundantly displayed along the parade route, organizers say.

Hill got the banner idea from the Cherry Festival celebration in Traverse City. "I think it's important, it shows support for the event. We hope to sell 200 of them," Hill said.

Organizers say they hope to raise $30,000, through a variety of sources. The money will help pay for helium balloons, large heads, clowns in 8-foot wheels and more.

The parade is also to include the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps, a banjo group, canine precision drill team and a moving American flag formed with colored balloons.

Businesses and groups are also encouraged to put together floats for the parade. Some who've committed already to floats are Sideways Inc., Stella contractors, the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce, Temple Baptist Church, Coldwell Banker, and Plymouth Township trustees. "We have 12 or 13 floats, we have room for five or six more," Hill said.

The Detroit Tigers mascot "Paws" will also march in the parade, and Hill said he's seeking players from other Detroit sports teams to participate.

He's also seeking to have volunteers dressed in "Good Morning USA" shirts to serve as marshals along the parade route.

"There's community pride, there's national pride involved. Having people stand as the American flag goes by, there's a real strong hint of patriotism here," Hill said. "We're building a new tradition here."

Diver's body recovered

By Ken Abramczyk
Staff Writer

Wayne County Sheriffs recovered the body Monday afternoon of Frank Zimmerman, who is presumed to have drowned while working on a dam at Newburgh Lake.

Zimmerman was working in about 12 feet of water Thursday morning on a sluice gate on the lake's dam.

Investigators believe the 48-year-old diver was clearing silt near the sluice gate and had coworkers open the gate to clear silt from in front of the gate. Coworkers lost radio contact with him after one of them started closing the gate in an attempt to slow the strong current thought to have pinned Zimmerman.

Sheriffs found Zimmerman's body at about 2:30 p.m. Monday 400 to 500 yards east of the dam in the Rouge River. About six or eight deputies had created a chain and waded through the river in a tight line, using pikes - long poles with hooks on the ends - to check the bottom of the river, according to Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano.

Ficano said sheriffs could not conduct such a search on Friday or during the weekend because the water levels were too high. The levels had dropped from 5 feet on Friday to about 3 feet on Monday, Ficano said.

The county's medical examiner's office was on the scene on Monday and expected to complete an autopsy. Ficano did not know when that would be completed.

Ficano expressed his sympathy to Zimmerman's family, whose members were at the sheriff's substation on Monday. "It was difficult for them, and they were very patient with us during this whole ordeal," Ficano said. "We appreciated their patience and our sympathy goes out to them.

"We also appreciate all the local police and rescue agencies who assisted us, especially Livonia."

Police dive teams from Washtenaw and Oakland counties and Detroit Police Department also assisted Wayne County Sheriffs.

Nancy Mouradian, a spokeswoman for the Wayne County Sheriffs, said a dive team from a Monroe-area firm of Solomon Diving, Inc. volunteered to help Wayne County divers search the tunnel area on Sunday. The Sheriffs mounted division conducted foot searches along the river's banks on Saturday and Sunday.

Zimmerman's helmet was found by those dive teams near the sluice gate.

Chase reaches speeds of 100 mph

COP CALLS

A 28-year-old Southgate man was arrested after leading police on a chase over several miles with speeds reaching 100 mph, according to police reports. The chase started at Ford and Lotz about 1:20 a.m. Saturday.

Police said they were on routine patrol when they noticed a 1989 Chrysler switch lanes and speed up in an attempt to avoid them. The Chrysler fishtailed onto northbound Lotz where the driver turned off the headlights and traveled in the dark at an accelerated speed. Another motorist was nearly struck by the fleeing car on Warren.

An officer at Warren and Haggerty clocked the car at speeds of 100 mph when it went through a flashing four-way stop at the intersection. As the fleeing car headed westbound on Warren the driver lost control at the curve near the fire station and slid off the road. The uninjured driver was ordered to the ground, telling police "I can't believe I ran from you guys."

Police said a breathalyzer test revealed the man had a .05 blood alcohol level. He was charged with fleeing and eluding police and possession of a dangerous weapon. Police found a dagger in the driver's side door compartment of the Chrysler. he was released on $200 bond. A court date is set for April 1. A passenger in the car, a 23-year-old Southgate woman, faces a charge of possession of marijuana. Police confiscated a small amount of suspected marijuana from her pocket. She was released after posting $200 bond. A court date is set for March 31.

Assault and battery

A 15-year-old student at Plymouth Canton high School was taken to Garden City Hospital by Canton Fire Rescue about 10:30 a.m. Friday after injuring his head in a fight with another student. The injured student fell backwards, hitting the back of his head on the floor. The youth who hit the boy was expelled until further notice. Police were waiting to find out the nature of the injuries and talk to the injured boys parents before filing charges.

people, who possessed a wonderful sense of humor and a rich heritage.

Many of the residents' memories date to the early 20th century. Their reflections mix nostalgia with healthy doses of reality. Avis Blackmore Waldecker spoke of how lonely a place the farm could sometimes be, and of how wintertime brought frost on the nail heads in unheated bedrooms. Worse, death was a more frequent visitor than today, claiming women in childbirth and children whom modern medicine might have saved.

Coping at home, at war

Interviewees also shared stories from their Victorian parents and letters from ancestors who settled the township in the 1800s. Robert Padget selected several excerpts that disclose what our forebears thought, felt, and experienced. One ancestor, who lived on a Geddes Road farm in the 1830s, wrote that he had to contend with bears endangering his hogs.

Other letters are from Civil War soldiers who hailed from Canton. One passage reveals the pain of a young man who faced death and mayhem on the battlefield while carrying the burden of a rift with his father.

Many of the interviewees related tales about life in Canton's two hamlets: Sheldon Corners and Cherry Hill. Churches, schools, general stores, creameries, blacksmiths, inns, dance halls, and so on were established in each place. Neighbors from as far as three miles away gravitated to these crossroads villages to conduct business and socialize. Everyone recalled the daily bustle at Windsor's and West's stores, and stories swapped around the potbelly stoves there.

Thriving social lives

Another aspect of country living that elicited a wealth of warm remembrances was the one-room school experience. Canton had nine scattered through its 36 square miles. Surprisingly, five of the buildings still exist. Each one constituted its own district and was a central gathering place for neighbors. Events like school plays and PTA meetings involved the whole family.

Similarly, parents and children attended dances together. Sheldon Hall was a popular spot as was West's Store, which boasted a spring lumber dance floor. Dorothy May West and others told of more than one romance being sparked at these gatherings.

Those who lived in outlying portions of the township had a different custom. They simply rolled up the rug in a neighbor's living room, as Flora Thorman related, and danced to the music of an obliging neighbor's fiddle.

Roy Schultz, Donald Gill, Robert Simmons, Ross Hauk and Howard Moyer spoke at length about technological changes in farming. Machines replaced the slow, backbreaking labor done with horses, plows, and shovels. But mechanization had its drawback. It eliminated the need for – and inherent rewards from – men working together for threshing, silo filling, and corn shredding.

Rural folkways

Meanwhile, Elsie McKinstry Fulford, Gertrude Sitlington Hargreaves and Helen Morton Crichton Parks painted a portrait of rural folkways. They described methods for preparing and storing food in crocks in dirt-floor cellars before refrigerators were invented. Several residents told stories about butchering bees when people worked together to lay in their winter's supply of pork. George Simons explained how this, too, was occasion for neighbors to help each other out, especially during the Depression.

And Heloise Travis Dunstan gave us a rare, first-hand look at life in the Bartlett-Travis House, the home her grandparents owned, which the Historic District Commission is restoring.

As today's fast-paced changes eclipse our past, stories of our rural heritage become even more precious. The fourteen people who were kind enough to share their memories have allowed us to glimpse a way of life that was, and to understand who we as a community are today.

Gay rights group files suit

By Valerie Olander
Staff Writer

Canton lawmaker Deborah Whyman said she won't be changing her campaign tactics in her upcoming bid for the state Senate, despite a second libel lawsuit being filed against her Friday.

The Triangle Foundation, a homosexual rights group, is suing Whyman in Wayne County Circuit Court for campaign comments alleging the group engaged in illegal activity by encouraging men to have sex with boys.

The literature was mailed to Canton homes days prior to the November election during her fourth run as state representative. The brochure called challenger Deborah Nesbit a "homosexual extremist."

Nesbit isn't a plaintiff in the lawsuit, although it lists eight individuals – all of whom are members of the Triangle board of directors and contributors to Nesbit's campaign, said Jeffrey Montgomery, president of the Triangle Foundation.

A similar slander suit is pending in 35th District Court by Van Buren Township trustee Donna Clark, who ran unsuccessfully against Whyman in 1994.

Whyman, R-Canton, said there is no need to change her campaign strategy in the 1998 race for Bob Geake's Senate seat because the slander lawsuit is "frivolous." Geake recently announced his plans to retire even though he's eligible to run for a last term. Whyman and Wayne County Commissioner Thaddeus McCotter have stepped into the ring.

"It's a frivolous lawsuit and it points out the need for us to have legislation against frivolous lawsuits, such as this. They siphon off court resources that are needed for legitimate complaints," said Whyman.

The suit alleges that after Triangle asked for a retraction of the statement, she again libeled them – saying "homosexual acts between consenting adults are indeed felonies." The second mailer, meant to be an apology, was sent out to constituents in the 21st District in late January.

"All she had to do is apologize and admit her statements were incorrect and untrue," said Montgomery.

Whyman said in a previous interview with the Observer that she welcomed a lawsuit by the Triangle Foundation, claiming members would incriminate themselves during depositions as violating the state's criminal sexual conduct laws.

While there are sodomy statutes on the books, the current interpretation has not found that people will be cited unless the conduct includes a minor, force, money or public activity, Montgomery said.

"At no time has the Triangle Foundation advocated criminal sexual conduct, statutory rape or any other act or activity," the group's suit stated.

Residency law from page A1

Bloomfield. It was defeated several times and when near to becoming law with an amended 15-mile radius provision, it died in committee.

Although Canton is the largest community within the 21st District, other communities Whyman represents do have residency requirements for police and fire, such as Belleville and Sumpter. Van Buren Township, like Canton, doesn't have any residency requirements.

"I think residency laws are unconstitutional ... I'm responsible for representing my district, but I also have an opportunity to do what's right. Since I'm on the Civil Rights Committee this is right up my alley," she said.

Whyman said the U.S. Justice Department has sued suburban communities over their residency rules. The Justice Department has argued cities like Warren have used residency laws to prevent minority hiring, but the federal government has ignored Detroit's most restrictive hiring policy, she said.

Until the 1980s, Detroit was the only community that required a person have residency before applying for a job out of 81 suburban communities that had residency requirements, said Whyman. Although that has since changed, there is still a mass exodus from Detroit jobs by police and fire personnel looking for more lax residency requirements in the suburbs, she said.

"They created a situation in which firefighters and police were hired and trained at their expense and then left for the suburbs. The suburban communities are not paying for training officers because they're siphoning off Detroit's training. That's not fair," she said.

The bill would prohibit all residency clauses from being imposed on public employees. It would ban public employers from specifying that a person reside within a geographic area or within a specified distance or travel time from his or her place of employment as a condition of employment.

Washington insiders debate in Livonia

By Renee M. Skoglund
Staff Writer

Opinions on the federal budget, Newt Gingrich, White House scandals and campaign reform were served up along with dinner at the Michigan Political Leadership Program's second annual fundraising dinner last month at the Laurel Manor in Livonia.

The MPLP is a bi-partisan education program of Michigan State University's Institute for Public Policy and Social Research.

More than 600 MPLP supporters, including Terry Ahwal of Livonia, executive assistant to Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara, and Eric Candela of Westland, an administrative aid to Wayne County Commissioner Kay Beard, attended the event and listened to guest speakers George Stephanopoulos and Lynne Cheney spar over issues.

Stephanopolous, former senior advisor to President Clinton and the president's 1992 campaign manager and director of communications, introduced himself as "One of the 25 most dangerous liberals in Washington."

Cheney, former chair for the national Endowment for the Humanities and current host of the conservative talk show "Crossfire Sunday," was not intimidated. "George, I do hope to learn a lot from you, like how do you keep your hair from going flat?" she said.

Stephanopoulos, currently a visiting professor at Columbia University and a political analyst for ABC Television, said "good ideas should not be dismissed because of partisan roots." However, he said the 1996 federal budget was a bipartisan product that resulted in "90 percent of the cuts affecting

Lawmaker seeks cap on FOIA fees

■ Rep. Andrew Richner, R-Grosse Pointe, wants to cap fees that local and state governments charge for copying public documents. A 1996 bill that takes effect at the end of this month will take off the lid on "research" costs governments may charge to look up documents.

One suburban lawmaker thinks the Legislature isn't repairing enough damage to the state Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) despite committee action Monday.

Rep. Andrew Richner, R-Grosse Pointe, wants to cap fees that local and state governments charge for copying public documents. A 1996 bill that takes effect at the end of this month will take off the lid on "research" costs governments may charge to look up documents.

Otherwise, there was little controversy as the House Oversight and Ethics Committee unanimously approved a bill by Rep. Greg Kaza, R-Rochester Hills, to restore the broad purpose language of the original FOIA law: to inform all persons of "the affairs of government and the official acts of those who represent them as public officials and public employees."

The House and Senate are expected to pass the one-page bill.

In post-midnight lame-duck sessions in December, the Legislature struck that language and curbed the purpose to apply only to "governmental decision making." That act is due to take effect at the end of this month.

Lucille Taylor, legal advisor to Gov. John Engler, said the change was "stylistic" and "irrelevant." Taylor said Engler "neither supports nor opposes" Kaza's bill to restore the original language. She predicted Engler would sign the bill.

Rep. Pat Gagliardi, D-Drummond Island and chair of the panel, pounced on Taylor, charging Engler "is not supportive of FOIA" and engaged in "shenanigans" in hiding documents on state sale of the Accident Fund.

Barbara Skurnowicz, a Bloomfield Hills government watcher, scoffed at Taylor's remark: "No one is dumb enough to believe the change is

McNamara backs bid for road money

By Ken Abramczyk
Staff Writer

Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara backs his Oakland County counterpart's efforts to obtain more money for roads, even if it means an increase in the gas tax.

Mike Duggan, assistant Wayne County executive, said McNamara supports Oakland County Executive L. Brooks Patterson's efforts to place a state gas tax hike before Michigan voters to finance road repairs.

Patterson announced recently he was willing to initiate a petition drive to place on the ballot a request to increase the gasoline tax if state lawmakers do not act on the issue soon.

Duggan said McNamara works well with Patterson and Macomb county leaders. Those leaders maintain similar attitudes with metro Detroiters fed up with the poor conditions of roads, Duggan said.

"There's only so many times you can drive through these wide potholes," Duggan said.

Duggan doesn't believe Engler will be successful in obtaining more money from the federal government.

Duggan said he expects officials from the three counties to push to obtain more road money. About 30 percent of money raised from gas taxes paid by Wayne County residents goes outstate, Duggan said.

"One of the things we'd like to see is more of that money stay here," Duggan said. "Oakland County feels the same way."

The actual size of the gas tax will depend on the overall road formula, Duggan said.

"It's not a partisan issue, it's just that everybody in this part of the state knows we need new roads."

Natasha Fuller, 7.

Inge Zayti, owner, producer and artistic director at the Marquis, first became acquainted with Sarah when she attended the theater's acting camp three years ago. Zayti said she always thought Sarah would be successful, "but I'm surprised it happened this early. She is talented, and very good. The children here are very talented; all of them. We already have five kids on Broadway, and many who've performed with the Michigan Opera Theater. Sarah had the right look, the right size, and the voice. And she has stage presence."

"Showboat," a $10 million production, may be taking her to Broadway, added Zayti. "They're working on this right now. Hopefully, she's going to get it."

While the third grader - a good student at Our Lady of Good Counsel School - is more than happy to belt out a tune and dance a few steps for anyone who asks, she's also quick to sing the praises of her family.

She's proud of her mother's talents in arts and crafts, and says she's "Daddy's (Brian's) little girl." Her 10-year-old brother Troy plays on OLGC's undefeated basketball team, and Sarah likes to show visitors his trophy.

March will be busy for Sarah. She'll be appearing in "Winnie the Pooh" matinees at the Marquis, and in eight performances of "Showboat" six days a week.

It'll be worth her while. "They're going to pay me $1,040 a week," she says.

Sarah plans on a career on the stage. With her considerable talent, warm smile and bubbly personality, who's to doubt her?

shared," said McLaughlin.

However, McLaughlin's contention, and that of several other commissioners, was having less control over an office development, such as height, setbacks and berming. Canton also has an ordinance regulating architectural-style on strip malls. The Sheldon and Cherry Hill center is one built within the 1994 code. An office building also could be two stories in height, she said.

The planned Canton Center Road realignment with Belleville Road will help traffic concerns, McLaughlin added.

"You've been talking about that realignment for years. When is it going to happen? For all we know it will be another three years," said Lois Zilka of Woodlands of Canton subdivision.

Zilka conducted a study of all strip malls in Canton Township, finding a 16 percent vacancy rate. She also counted 22 strip malls just on the east side of Canton Center. Potential vacancy also looms over the leased Kmart building at Sheldon and Ford and the McAuley Health Center, which will move to the new Saint Joseph Mercy facility (formerly Mission Health) on Summit Parkway.

Several residents voiced concerns about Canton's rapid development, making some unflattering analogies to other communities. Resident Tom Goltselty recited from a story in the Ann Arbor News in which a Pittsfield woman was quoted as saying, "Pittsfield is becoming like a Canton Township."

"Canton Township is becoming a verb, communities are becoming Canton Township-ed," he added.

But on the other end of the pendulum, Ronald Beaver told commissioners, "I lived in Westland for 40 years. I left cement city to be in the country. I didn't build my retirement home to look at Dumpsters and a cement wall."

Residents said they wanted to preserve the rural residential atmosphere of the Canton Center and Geddes area. A 77-lot Kimberly Meadows subdivision is being built to the west of the proposed strip mall site.

Smith science fair promotes education through 'frenzy'

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Smith Elementary School was the scene of "Fifth-Grade Science Frenzy" Friday night.

Billed as a "non-traditional science fun fair," the event featured a gym full of hands-on experiments devised by students and parents.

A few moments at each booth revealed answers to such questions as "What is the difference between gloop and glop?" "What keeps hovercraft close to the earth's surface?" and "What protects animals in icy water?"

Joey Lorenz, 10, discovered science can be enjoyable. The fifth-grader had fun blasting his dad, who was visiting with someone 30 feet away, with puffs of air ejected from his handmade air tunnel.

"I just got a bucket, put a handle on it, cut a hole in the bottom, and put a piece of vinyl over the top and tightened it," said Joey, demonstrating his creation. The tool he used to fire his air gun was handmade, too. "I attached a tennis ball to a drumstick," he said.

Of the science fair, Joey said, "It's pretty cool. I like science, so it's pretty fun for me."

Joey's friend Casey Rice, 11, was enjoying himself. "I just like seeing a lot of new things. I like inventing new things and coming up with new ideas," Casey said.

Fourth-grader Jesse Predhomme, with help from mom, devised a magnetic metal detector. A tiny light bulb was placed in the center of what looked like a metal object. "If it's metal and you touch these two wires to it, the bulb lights up. If it's not, it won't," explained Jesse.

The exhibit was a hit. "Kids want to touch everything," said Margaret Predhomme. Jesse gave his mother due credit for the display. "My mom did it at work," he said.

That was the idea, said organizers of the fair. "The experiments are designed and presented by volunteer families of Smith School children in all grade levels," said coordinators Robin Felinski and Linda Brandt Teeple. "Parents and children work together to prepare and set up the experiment, making a moot point of the common question of who really did the experiment - the parent or the child."

Having parents help man the booths gave children a chance to visit their classmates' exhibits.

Heather Bruner, 8, and Lauren Vala, 9, visited the fair. Both are students at Miller Elementary in Canton.

"It's fun to see different things," said Heather.

"It's fun to experience things that maybe you haven't thought of," said Lauren.

Debbie Bruner brought her daughter and Lauren. "It's a good thing for the kids. We come back year after year," she said. "It's just as exciting every time. And it's great to see parents donating their time."

Exhibits were as entertaining as they were imaginative. The volcanic eruption center was fueled with exploding baking powder and vinegar.

Students experimented to find out whether they were stronger than an egg by pressing on either end of a hen's egg in an attempt to break it.

They discovered amidst floating bubbles how soap cleans. They learned how popcorn pops; why prints are taken from fingers; how scales balance; and whether air has weight.

They found out how to separate salt from pepper without touching either; if a balloon weighs less with or without water; and how we know prehistoric creatures existed.

Designing an exhibit was worth the effort, said parent Scott Lorenz. "My son's project kept him entertained all week," he said.

CITY OF PLYMOUTH
PUBLIC NOTICE
1996 CDBG FUNDS:
PROPOSED REPROGRAMMING

Pursuant to Federal guidelines, the Plymouth City Commission will hold a public hearing on Monday, March 17, 1997, in the Commission Chambers at City Hall, 201 S. Main Street, to consider reprogramming certain 1996 Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) funds as follows:

Current Project	Current Amount	Proposed Project	Proposed Amount
Senior Citizen Services	$40,500	Senior Citizen Services	$30,500
Old Village Development	27,000	Old Village Planning	27,000
Growth Works Project	10,000	Growth Works Project	-0-
ADA Building Compliance	-0-	ADA Building Compliance	20,000
TOTAL	$77,500	TOTAL	$77,500

The purpose of this reprogramming is as follows:

Senior Citizen Services: adjust the 1996 allocation to the amount which will be spent within the program year time limits. This does not reflect any reduction in the current level of senior citizens services.

Old Village Allocation: modify the program purpose from capital improvements to development planning on the basis of decisions made by the Old Village Development Authority.

Growth Works Project: reallocate the CDBG funds on the basis that the City's allocation to the project will come from general revenues instead of CDBG funds.

Citizens are invited to comment on the proposed reprogramming.

Christian-centered education

Movement draws families who want smaller, accessible schools

BY HUGH GALLAGHER
STAFF WRITER

Lee Ann Young of Canton had sent her children to the Plymouth-Canton schools and was generally pleased.

In Garden City: Rick and Brenda Driver like the attention their children receive at United Christian.

But she and her husband decided they needed something more. "We wanted a school that would support some truths and principles we hold as a family," she said.

The family attended Calvary Baptist Church in Canton and two years ago enrolled their children (Kristopher, Stephen and Erin) in Plymouth Christian Academy – part of that church's ministry and adjacent to the church.

Since the mid-1970s there has been a growth in church-affiliated schools other than traditional Catholic and Lutheran parochial schools. Three schools in the Observer area, Agape Christian in Plymouth and Canton, United Christian (affiliated with United Baptist Church) in Garden City and Plymouth Christian Academy in Canton are part of this movement to create smaller, more accessible, Christian-centered schools.

All offer preschool to 12th-grade education.

Quality education

Administrators emphasize the academic quality of their schools. "We are not a glorified Bible school," said pastor the Rev. Mark Moore, of the Agape Christian Center which operates Agape Christian Academy, which is now in two locations in Plymouth Township and Canton and will move its elementary school to the Canton campus in the fall. "All of our students are prepared for college."

Assistant principal Kathryn Herczeg said 90 percent of the school's graduates go on to college. At Plymouth Christian, the largest of the three, about 95 percent of its graduates go on to college.

"We approach the educational process from a Christian viewpoint," said Gordon Nickel, headmaster at Plymouth Christian. "That distinguishes us from other schools."

Nickel said the school tries to build students academically, emotionally, physically and spiritually. Students take the Stanford Achievement Tests and regularly score above national and state averages.

At Agape Christian the curriculum is from ABeka, a Christian publishing company associated with Pensacola Christian College in Florida where emphasis is on the basics.

Herczeg said she liked the curriculum for its consistency from year to year. The program is used at many Christian schools and missionaries.

Focus on basics

Though other curricula are used, all three schools emphasize back-to-basics education. But they also adapt to modern educational needs like computers.

At United Christian, ABeka is combined with curriculum from Bob Jones University and other material.

"All academic subjects are taught from a Christ-centered viewpoint," said Dan Bewley, principal of United Christian, located in a former Garden City elementary school. "We base everything on the Bible precepts and guidelines of the Bible."

A sign at the front of the school reads: "Fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge."

All three schools require Bible classes and this Christian emphasis is important to parents.

Marcia Tong of Canton has three children, Stephen, Emily and Nathan at Agape and she says she likes her children attending a school where teachers have the same point of view that she presents at home.

Tong and other parents at the Christian schools say the smaller size allows them to participate more actively in their children's education.

"When they read in chapel we come," Tong said. "We're more involved in their homework and have to sign off on it. We've been to spelling bees, science fairs, speech meets."

Rick and Brenda Driver of Garden City say they like the one-on-one attention their children Mike, Michelle and Randi receive at United Christian and that they are able to participate in so many activities.

"Their self-esteem is high, they feel good about themselves," said Brenda Driver. "They don't need to go along with the group. It's been a positive influence."

Dan and Elizabeth Dantes of Redford have two daughters at United Christian, Rachel and Rebecca. For them the school's fundamentalist religious teachings and rules of conduct are important.

"I work in a bus ministry and I visit a lot of places, I see kids in public schools – there are kids in the second grade who can't read," said Dan Dantes, a deacon at Bethel Baptist Temple. "My kid learned to read in kindergarten."

All three schools have after-school sports and other activities including out-of-state and overseas trips.

Jennifer Donovan of Superior Township has always sent her daughters, Anna and Elly, to a Christian school. She sums up the feelings of parents at Christian schools:

"Teachers here are caring Christians and it follows all the way through. It's consistent to what you're teaching at home."

Values and structure key in traditional religious schools

BY CASEY HANS

PAROCHIAL SCHOOLS

Families that choose traditional parochial schools – or those with a religious focus – do so for a variety of reasons.

Many revolve around values, structure and the atmosphere offered by such schools, according to some parents and school officials interviewed. Religion also plays a strong role for families.

Take the Danic family in Redford, which has chosen St. Valentine Elementary and Catholic Central High School or the Pitt family in Canton – Westland's St. John's Lutheran Elementary was the choice for their three children.

The Danics consider themselves members of the "Catholic Central family," including mom Bonnie and dad John, who both graduated from public high schools.

The nearly 70-year-old Roman Catholic-based high school for young men has attracted three of the family's boys, all who attended St. Valentine Elementary School before moving into the all-boys college prep academy.

Oldest son Mike – now a college sophomore – attended CC and graduated, Dan is now a CC senior and David, an eighth-grader at St. Valentine, is looking forward to beginning his career there next fall.

"It's more than I ever would have expected," said John Danic, an electrical inspector for Redford Township. "The attitudes – weren't anything I expected. There's nothing I can say ... that I would do differently."

A school for everyone

Bonnie Danic noted that the school graduates "gentlemen at 18" and said "I feel the staff and the faculty really care about the kids. We wanted them to be involved and there's something for everybody if you want to get involved." She works as a religion education secretary at St. Valentine school, so she can be home after school.

Life at CC is a family affair – with active alumni and moms' and dads' clubs. Sporting events, especially football at the powerhouse school, involve the entire CC community.

"The friends I've made at CC – I think they'll be lifelong," said Dan Danic, who said he feels well-prepared for college. "It's well-rounded. I get a top-notch education and it's also prepared me with my faith and for the outside world."

Youngest son David said he has watched his brothers have a good time at CC. "I feel like I know all about it now," he added.

The Basilian Fathers who run the school interweave their motto of "Teach Me Goodness, Discipline and Knowledge" throughout the curriculum of the school.

CC principal the Rev. Harold Gardner explains the school's philosophy, which includes a sense of pride whether academically, athletically or in building a student's self-worth: "We don't just educate the mind," he said. "We hope we're teaching them to be good. And to do that ... they have to lead an ordered life."

Religion classes are a key part of the school day. "The teaching of theology is central to our program," Gardner added. "It's an academic and it's taught every day."

Starting early

Structure in parochial schools begins early in life at the elementary level.

At St. John's Lutheran School in Westland, the school is integrated with the church community – so much so that those who have children attending the school are expected to join the church.

Part of the Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod, the school draws its 125 students from the general area and includes families from Westland, Garden City, Inkster, Livonia and Canton and other communities.

"Most of the calls I get are from people who want to get their children out of public school," said principal Michael Falk. "Some are concerned about bad influences, some would like to have a smaller setting and some are looking for church training."

The Pitts, former Westland residents who now live in Canton, attend church at St. John's and send three of their children to the school – Kristen in the eighth grade, Bill in seventh and Abby in fifth.

"The Christian education part is what's the most important to me," said Diane Pitt. "Also the class size is small – only 18 to 24 in a class – so it's a lot of one-on-one. A lot of the families have known each other for years."

Parents are also welcome into the school, which the Pitts believe is important. Not only can they sit in on classes, but the parents also get involved in other ways. The Pitts both coach sports at the school and Steve is on the school board.

The Pitts chose St. John's because it was close to home, and because both of them had a Lutheran education. Steve grew up in Westland and attended St. John's, while Diane grew up in Livonia. Both attended a Lutheran high school in Saginaw, which is where they met.

Steve Pitt said although St. John's has changed since his time there, the school still offers more structured study habits and the type of education they are seeking. "I think it's changed a little, like everything changes with time," he said. "It's still tighter than a public school. And they can bring in a religious angle (to the classroom.)"

A unique view

The Pitts have an interesting perspective: Diane is a teacher of autistic children at Burger Center in the Garden City school district, so they appreciate the frustrations faced by public school systems and the importance of parental choice.

"It's not ... that we dislike public schools, we just want our children to have a nice Christian education," said Steve Pitt. "Public schools today are just taken for granted. There's nothing wrong with education today ... you have problems when you don't have parental support and good communication with the school.

"Schools get a hard knock – I think they get a bad rap sometimes."

At the two schools, tuition can be steep especially for multi-child families. Catholic Central charges $4,350 per year per student, with some help offered to families who need it. At St. John's, tuition for church members is not charged, but first-year families are charged $2,000 per student, with each additional student charged half price.

Both schools also use standardized testing to track their students, and compare results with other area schools.

A review of alternative schooling concludes

Whether home schooling, choosing a traditional parochial or private school or trying one of the newer charter schools in Michigan, parents continue to research educational choices for their children.

Today, the Observer Newspapers concludes a series of several alternatives in our area, including:

■ Families who choose to attend Plymouth Christian Academy in Canton, United Christian in Garden City and Agape Christian in Plymouth and Canton.

■ Traditional parochial schools: A look at Catholic Central High School in Redford and St. John Lutheran School in Westland and families who choose them.

Tonda project gets DNR grant

Sumpter Township and Canton will benefit due to the efforts of two community-minded individuals who applied for competitive Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Natural Heritage Small Grants.

The grants are administered by the Wildlife Division of the DNR, and funding is provided by private contributions through the nongame Wildlife Fund check-off on the state income tax form.

The grantees and projects are as follows:

Marjane Baker, Tonda Elementary School Stream Naturalization Project, Canton.

Stephen Kunselman, Lakeplain Prairie Prescribed Burn Proposal, Sumpter Township.

Grants are awarded to projects which identify, protect, manage and restore native plant and animal species, natural communities, and other natural features. Grant projects also promote the knowledge, enjoyment and stewardship of Michigan's native species and ecosystems for present and future generations.

Senator Bennett, chair of the Senate Natural Resources and Environmental Affairs Committee, said, "It is wonderful to see individuals pursue the opportunities provided by these grants. I commend these people for their proactive approach to helping our environment and for the benefit they will bring to the communities in which they live."

Distributor cashes in on coffee boom

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

When Tom Isaia started selling espresso machines in Ann Arbor in 1974, there were no coffeehouses.

Now, with the growing popularity of coffeehouses and specialty coffees, his expanding Coffee Express Co., which distributes its products to more than 300 retail outlets in Michigan and northern Ohio, has outgrown it's Ann Arbor building.

That's why the company is moving to a new Plymouth Township facility, in April or May.

Isaia said that now, 75 percent of his business is roasting and selling coffee beans, to markets and coffeehouses including the Plymouth Coffee Bean Co.

In the mid-70s, Isaia owned the Blind Pig tavern in Ann Arbor, where an espresso machine sat behind the bar. To expand his espresso machine business, "We did some Yellow Page advertising, some word of mouth," he said.

After selling the Blind Pig in 1979, he took a booth at a coffee-related trade show in 1980. "We were actually calling on different restaurants, the word spread that I knew how to fix espresso machines," Isaia said.

Then, the machines could be found mainly in finer restaurants, and occasionally in Italian restaurants. By 1982, Isaia was also roasting coffee for the retail market.

That business grew to include coffeehouses that began springing up in Ann Arbor in the late 80s. "All it takes is a popular place to begat other places," Isaia said.

Coffee Express Co. will be leaving its current 3,000 square-foot site at 1342 N. Main for an 8,000 square-foot facility at 47722 Clipper Street in the Metro West Industrial Park. The company currently employs nine. Isaia said that number could grow by four.

Has the coffeehouse trend peaked? "I don't think so," Isaia said. He points to the TV show "Friends." Several scenes typically take place in a coffeehouse. "The underlying reason for coffeehouses, is it's a social place, all people can go there," he said.

While coffee drinkers may start out with flavored coffee with lots of milk and sweetener, Isaia said they typically move toward coffee "stripped away from some of the trappings."

His company specializes in non-flavored beans. Isaia stresses that coffee grown in different regions of the world has its own characteristics. For example, coffee grown in the Americas "has a kind of dependable taste, it's not acidic or lively," Isaia said.

Senate GOP backs Engler board order

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Republican lines broke in the House, but held firm in the Senate, behind Gov. John Engler's executive order stripping power from the State Board of Education.

Democrats blistered Engler for issuing the orders after the GOP lost control of the State Board in 1996. They roasted Republican senators, who voted 22-15 along straight party lines against taking up a resolution to overturn Engler's action.

"Some may view this as a political battle between the State Board and the executive branch," said Sen. Ken DeBeaussaert, D-Macomb County, "(but) it's important to remember we have a dog in that fight, too." Democrats complained that Engler in effect junked 139 statutes in making the power transfer.

Engler took from the elected board and gave to the appointive superintendent "procedures for financial takeover of districts, the power to suspend charter school authorizing bodies, to receive or reject school contracts, the power to delay state aid. . . development of school accreditation, the power to determine teachers' certification, and on," said Sen. Dianne Byrum, D-Onondaga.

Engler's foes on the State Board now must go to court if they have any hope of overturning the order. Democrats also have the option of turning it into a 1998 election issue.

The House on Feb. 20 voted 70 to 36 to overturn Engler's executive order. Democrats and 15 Republicans voted to overturn. Here is how local representatives voted:

Yes – Deborah Whyman, R-Canton, Democrats Bob Brown of Dearborn Heights, Eileen DeHart of Westland, Tom Kelly of Wayne.

No – Republicans Lyn Bankes of Redford and Gerald Law of Plymouth.

Rep. Patricia Godchaux, R-Birmingham, a freshman who supported overturning the order, said, "If a board can't have the last say on rules, you might as well not have a board. As a former member of a school board, I know how important it is to have that vote."

Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Redford, who will leave the House at the end of 1998 under term limits, usually supports public schools but voted with Engler this time. "I have bigger fish to fry," said Bankes.

"The governor sent me a letter thanking me for my vote. It's not often he sends letters like that. I told my secretary, 'File that. We're going to need it,'" said Bankes, who plans to run for Wayne County commissioner in 1998.

Generally, however, Republicans said little while senior Democrats launched a barrage.

"The people elected this State Board in a clear rejection of the governor's agenda," said Sen. Joe Conroy, D-Flint. "They did not elect this superintendent (Art Ellis, Engler's inconsequential."

A parade of Oakland County residents was joined by the unlikely duo of the American Civil Liberties Union and Michigan Christian Coalition in supporting Kaza's bill.

Howard Simon, ACLU's executive director in Michigan, said the FOIA law, unless fixed, could curb the public's right to know about toxic wastes and complaints against licensed nurses, which don't involve "decision making."

"Secrecy is the weapon of totalitarian government," said Simon, a Plymouth area resident.

That was when Richner raised the question about whether FOIA cap fees charged for documents. Committee chair Pat Gagliardi, D-Drummond Island, told of being charged $700 by the state Department of Management and Budget for documents.

Tom McMillan, an Auburn Hills councilman and field director for the Michigan Christian Coalition, said "many citizens can't afford an attorney" to fight with government about public information and its costs.

"I never believed in a million years I'd agree with Howard Simon," said Skurnowicz.

Barbara Willing, a Lake Orion activist, complained her local police board "won't even share governmental decision-making with the community." Willing said she had been charged $50 just to look at minutes of meetings, although FOIA says looking at documents is free.

Karen Holcomb-Merrill, director of Common Cause, urged lawmakers to pass Kaza's bill and "get rid of the controversy."

Michael Shpiece, a Bloomfield Hills attorney and chair of the Michigan Freedom of Information Committee, agreed with the others and supported the Kaza bill.

In opening remarks, Kaza took the blame for failing to notice the state Senate had made massive amendments to his simple effort to allow an administrative appeal, without lawsuits, to persons denied public documents under FOIA.

"I don't know what happened that evening. Why was it inserted? That's all unclear," said Kaza, who said he and other lawmakers had a thousand pages of bills and amendments to act on in their 21-hour session of Dec. 12-13.

The changes were inserted in the Senate, but who wrote them also was unclear. The Michigan Press Association reported they were drafted by Michael Gadola, an Engler staff member.

While Democrats made much of the oversight, Rep. Frank Fitzgerald, R-Grand Ledge, sought to cut short the conversation by moving to report out Kaza's bill.

While the Kaza amendment restores the broad purpose of the FOIA, it doesn't repair the other 1996 changes: raising the price for "research," placing a time limit on when persons may file suits, requiring all FOIA requests be in writing, and removing the need for government to respond "immediately" to FOIA requests.

Richner said he will explore capping the fees some local units charge for documents. These run as high as $3 per page in some police departments with a half-hour minimum for "research" on police reports. Libraries and stores charge 3 to 10 cents per page for copies.

Refer to House Bill 4339, the preface amendment to FOIA, when writing to your state representative, State Capitol, Lansing 48909.

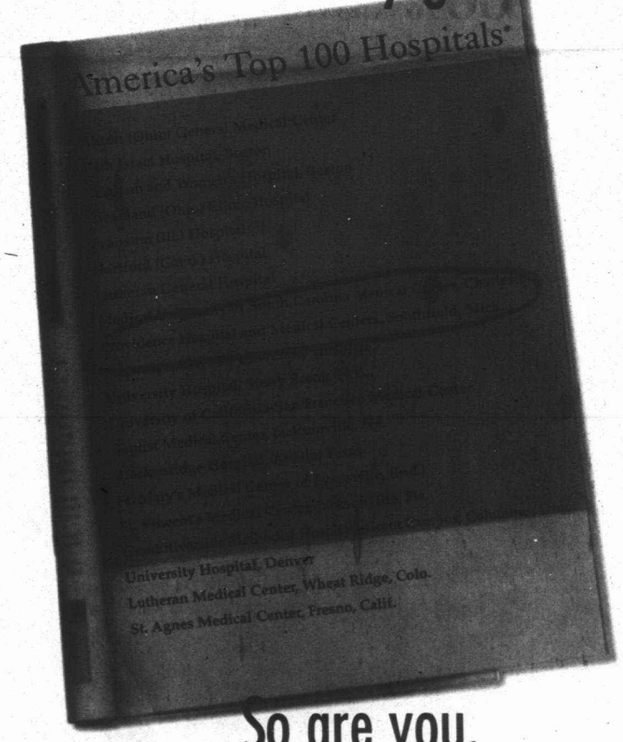
Providence is in very good company.



So are you.

The Providence team of physicians, associates and volunteers is proud to announce that we've made the list of America's Top 100 Hospitals. Two independent research firms rated over 3,500 acute-care hospitals nationwide, examining them for efficiency, financial stability, and quality of care. And in the final analysis, Providence was ranked in the top 100. We're excited to be in such good company. But then, after more than 150 years of serving metro Detroit—we couldn't be anything less. House Democrats seek tax cut for college tuition

STAFF WRITER

House Democrats are trying to "out-Engler Engler" in the tax cut department, beginning with sweetening the college tuition tax credit law.

The House Colleges and Universities gave 5-4 party-line support to a Democratic bill that would raise the maximum income tax credit to $500 from $250 and let all students' families take advantage of it.

"We are opposed," said Madhu Anderson, the former Farmington Hills resident who now is a top official in the Treasury Department. "The (governor's) budget is designed with significant tax cuts in place. We will not support any more."

Supporting the bill, though without comment, were freshman Democrats Bob Brown of Dearborn Heights and Nancy Quarles of Southfield and three other Democrats.

Opposed were Judith Scranton of Brighton and three other Republicans.

The Feb. 26 vote forwarded the bill to the House Tax Policy Committee for further review. The bill's sponsor is freshman Rep. A.T. Frank, D-Saginaw, who took over a former Republican seat to help give Democrats a 57-52 majority in the House.

Sponsored in 1995 by Sen. Loren Bennett, R-Canton, the law currently allows the family of a student to deduct up to $6,250 of community college, university or private college tuition from taxable income up to $250, but there's one catch:

The college must not have raised tuition last year more than the rate of consumer price inflation. Currently, that eliminates students at Oakland University, the University of Michigan-Ann Arbor, UM-Flint, Central Michigan and Schoolcraft College.

Eligible are students at Eastern Michigan, Michigan State, Wayne State and most of the regional universities; and Oakland, Wayne County, Lansing, Macomb and Mott community colleges.

Frank's bill would remove the tuition increase test, taking pressure off college boards to keep hikes below the rate of inflation. That idea was applauded by Glenn Stevens of the Presidents' Council of State Universities. "The law now has an uneven impact, he told the panel.

Agreeing with that part of the bill was Rep. Clyde LeTarte, R-Horton, former president of Jackson Community College. "The CPI component is one of the worst pieces of legislation we've ever had. They (students) aren't going to move around every two or three year to get a tax credit," he said.

But Stevens' group and many Republicans opposed increasing the size of the income tax credit. At the $250 level, it costs Treasury $14 million. At the $500 level without an inflation factor, it may cost $48 million.

"The policy question is whether a general tax credit is desirable state policy," Stevens said. A more important tool for helping higher education, he said, is the general level of state appropriations. The Engler administration has proposed hiked of 2.5 percent for operations next fiscal year – barely the rate of consumer price inflation.

Republicans challenged Democrats to say where they would find the millions to pay for all their tax proposed tax cuts. Democrats said Republicans didn't ask that question when they were approving Gov. Engler's 21 tax cuts worth $2 billion.

Rep. Jessie Dalman, R-Holland, was on the short end of a 2-7 vote to lower the eligibility limit on the tax credit from $200,000 of family income to $50,000. "We should give the tax cut to a segment of the population that has very little discretionary income," Dalman said.

poorer people."

For the most part, Stephanopoulos endorsed partisanship. "A little partisan politics expressed in a vigorous but civil way may make people want to vote again," he said.

Cheney agreed. "Bi-partisanship and civility are a new type of political correctness," she said, adding that bi-partisanship "keeps important issues from center stage. Bob Dole said: 'Where is the outrage?'"

Cheney does not support limiting money spent on campaigns. "There is a free-speech component to campaign donations," she said.

Stephanopoulos countered by saying, "Fewer than a million people contribute to campaign funds. And they're the most wealthy."

Regarding current allegations of scandal in the White House, Stephanopoulos said Republicans divert attention from the real issues by bringing up scandals in the Democratic administration. "Republicans have scandal-envy," he said. Regarding Whitewater, Stephanopoulos said the special prosecutor spent $35 million over three years and "now he's going to quit because he has nothing."

(Kenneth Starr will retain his position as special prosecutor for Whitewater rather than accept a position at Pepperdine University.)

"I marvel at your ability to turn a sow's ear into a silk purse," quipped Cheney.

Stephanopoulos and Cheney also were on opposite sides when it came to reforms in campaign funding. "Campaign finance is a bi-partisan scandal," said Stephanopoulos. "Money buys power."

Cheney said that caps of $1,000 and $5,000 force constant solicitations by candidates and campaign managers.

She added that campaign reform is a "red herring" used by Democrats "when they can't even follow the laws."

Regarding allegations that Newt Gingrich used campaign funds designated for non-profit, non-partisan purposes for promoting the Republican agenda in a political science class he taught, Cheney summed up her response by saying, "What did he do so wrong?"

"Why did Democrats and Republicans vote to fine him $300,000?" said Stephanopoulos.

Stephanopoulos and Cheney agree on term limits: They are opposed to them. "Term limits are automatically written into our Constitution. They're called elections," said Stephanopoulos.

Cheney said term limits increase lobbying and campaigning. "Insiders understand the issues," she said.

Since its inception in 1992, the MPLP has sponsored year-long fellowship programs designed to bring together people from diverse backgrounds who are involved in public policy-making.

Every year, the MPLP chooses 24 fellows from among hundreds of applicants from the private and public sectors throughout the state and awards them $10,000 scholarships. To date, more than 200 fellows have gone through the program, including many elected officials in state government.

"The great thing about the Michigan Political Leadership Program is that we explore every issue on the face of the Earth with honesty," said Ahwal, a 1995 MPLP fellow. "You learn to discuss other points-of-view without getting hostile."

Ahwal said the MPLP provides fellows with training in public speaking, handling press conferences, managing campaigns and building consensus. "We do homework on top of this," she said. During one MPLP weekend, Ahwal had to construct her own campaign for mayor of Livonia.

A native a Palestine, Ahwal has been involved in her community for many years, including associations with the Livonia Youth Commission, the Livonia Jaycees, and the Livonia police reserves. "It's a motto of my family that we have to give back. We are very fortunate that opportunities came along, and we have to give back," she said.

Eric Candela, a former junior aid to U.S. Rep. John Dingell, D-16th Congressional District, said about his experience as a 1995 MPLP fellow: "It broadened my perspective. It helped me develop a better framework in that I can develop public policy that respects both people and the potential of the private sector."

When asked what were the main bi-partisan issues facing officials in Wayne County, Ahwal said: "Roads is the big thing. Crime is another." She stressed the need for more juvenile education programs. "I'd rather put money in education than correction. The best schools spend $10,000 a year per student. To house a juvenile, it costs $89,000 a year. Why not spend it on education? Why not on parks and recreation?

"Every issue could be partisan or bi-partisan. It's what affects you personally."

Colleges, universities hold degree completion seminar at Schoolcraft

If you are interested in completing a bachelor's degree, but worry about the time commitment, job conflicts or the fact that you will be an older student, a special forum at Schoolcraft College will address those concerns.

Ten colleges and universities will describe their programs on Saturday, March 22 for the mature adult with work experience who wishes to earn a bachelor's degree.

The seminar will feature presentations from Central Michigan University, Cleary College, Concordia College, Detroit College of Business, Northwood University, Spring Arbor, Siena Heights College, University of Phoenix, Walsh College and Wayne State University.

The programs, in business and health administration, offer upper division courses during the evenings and weekends, and students may receive as much as one year of credit for work experience or training and life activity.

With flexible scheduling and five- or eight-week sessions, students have a convenient way to earn a bachelor's in a short time period.

Participants may ask questions and collect materials. The seminar is free and open to the public, but reservations are required. Presentations begin at 10 a.m. and continue until representatives from all 10 colleges have spoken.

For information or to make reservations, contact the Schoolcraft Counseling Center at (313) 462-4400 ext. 5213.

former Commerce director). Giving him control over the Department of Education virtually assures the enactment of policies the public is against."

"This is an unprecedented power grab," said Rep. Laura Baird, D-Okemos, sponsor of the resolution. "People want moderation. They don't want John Engler's extreme right-wing agenda driving the future of our public schools."

But Rep. Tim Walberg, R-Tipton, was joined by Scranton and the five Democrats in blocking the amendment. "We took an oath to support the constitution which calls for 'equal benefit of the laws.' To exclude someone for their level of earnings goes the wrong way," Walberg said.

Refer to House Bill 4191 when writing to your state representative, State Capitol, Lansing 48909.

'Cut sales tax'

Students at Michigan State University have launched a drive to exempt college textbooks from the state's 6 percent sales tax. Associated Students of MSU also complains that tuition over 17 years has risen faster than the consumer price index and that texbook prices have leaped 91.5 percent in 10 years.

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Larry Owen, a former MSU trustee, endorsed the effort.

In other campus news, the University of Michigan Board of Regents approved an average rate increase of 4 percent for residence halls and 3.9 percent for apartments on the Ann Arbor campus for next year.

Move on licenses spurs restaurant

By KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

The owner of Tom's Oyster Bar of Royal Oak is getting an incentive to finally open in a storefront he owns on Penniman Avenue downtown.

And a downtown landlord says a departing Main Street gallery could give way to a retail clothing store by May.

The addition of two such businesses downtown would be good for the retail mix and therefore good for the whole downtown, according to downtown business consultants Hyett-Palma and the Downtown Development Authority.

To aid restaurant development in downtowns statewide, the state Legislature in December agreed to release 50 additional liquor licenses to taverns in downtown development districts.

Restaurants seeking to locate in such downtowns apply to the state for the license. One interested restauranteur is Tom Brandle, owner of Tom's Oyster Bar restaurants in Royal Oak, Grosse Pointe and Southfield.

Brandle bought a storefront on Penniman across from the post office more than a year ago, and some have speculated the delay suggests he's having second thoughts. Brandle was unavailable for comment Tuesday.

But Downtown Development Director Steve Guile said when he talked to Brandle in December, he said he planned to eventually open in Plymouth.

"I said as soon as we received the regulations from Lansing we'd send them on," Guile said.

"We should soon be getting some procedures from the Liquor Control Commission on how a business files for a license," he said.

The new licenses - for beer and wine only - are only issued to cities of 50,000 or less population, which makes Plymouth eligible.

"It's not like it's wide open but there are several cities in the same situation," Guile said, adding the licenses would be issued first come, first served.

Continental Cablevision has announced the winners of its media literacy contest, "In the Nick of Time," including five Michigan students who will receive educational prizes for their school.

Grand Prize winner, Andrew Fenton of Eastabrook New Horizon in Canton, will receive a trip for four to Nickelodeon Studios in Orlando, Florida, including round-trip coach airfare, three days/two nights hotel accommodations and a VIP tour of Nickelodeon Studios.

The first prize winner, Gerald McKennan of Maple Grove School in Lansing, will receive a Nickelodeon jacket for himself and a Nickelodeon Game Lab Event for his school. The school prize features interactive games and stunts developed by the Game Lab at Nick Studios in Orlando.

Four second prize winners include Jessica Masten of Roseville's Fountain School; Jennifer Cardwell of Canton's Lowell School; Ariana Green of Southfield's Leonhard School; and Nicole Grace Anderson of Canton's Field School. Each student will receive a Nickelodeon T-shirt for themselves and a Mr. Wizard Science Assembly for their school.

Twenty-five third prize winners will receive 10 free issues of Nickelodeon magazine.

"Being in the entertainment industry," said Bill Black, Continental's Regional Director of Public Affairs. "Having families of our own, we also realize the importance of selecting 'good TV.'"

Students and other residents in Continental's service areas received chances to win educational and fun prizes for themselves and their schools by filling out entry forms at Continental offices, in the Total TV cable guide and through the schools. The student handouts included programming listings which described educational and informative programming from Nickelodeon, followed by three questions to guide young people to become more active viewers.

Suggested Nickelodeon programming on the student handouts include "Nick News," an award-winning news program hosted by Linda Ellerbee for kids ages 8-13; and "Are you Afraid of the Dark," a program geared toward 6-11 year olds.

Commission to decide stadium lease today

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK
STAFF WRITER

Wayne County commissioners may approve today a lease contract between the county and the Detroit Wayne County Stadium Authority to provide financing of the new Tiger Stadium Project.

The lease will provide credit support for a planned authority bond issue that will contribute $80 million to the project and pay for expenses associated with the bond issue.

The lease also provides for a "first pledge" of all tourist tax revenue collected by the county treasurer and "full faith and credit" pledge of the county's general fund to meet cash rental payments required under the lease.

Project tourist tax collections should be sufficient to pay debt service on the bonds and risk to the county's general fund will be "minimal," according to County Executive Edward McNamara.

The proposed financial structure allows for 2 percent growth in tourist tax collections. Other details of the lease agreement were not available at press time.

McNamara requested commission approval today to close on the bonds by April 1.

Also scheduled for today's agenda is an $18.5 million contract with a Detroit firm to provide engineering and architectural services for the Midfield Terminal Building project at Detroit Metropolitan Airport.

Scheduled for commission action was a contract with Smith, Hinchman & Gryles Associates. The contract also was expected to be assigned to Northwest Airlines under the airport development agreement between Wayne County and Northwest Airlines. That agreement was approved by commissioners in October.

The contract was approved by the Committee on Roads, Airports and Public Services on Feb. 26. Committee chair Michelle Plawecki, a Democratic commissioner who represents Redford Township and part of Livonia, said she and other committee members did not have a problem with that contract.

Plawecki expects the commission to approve the contract. The county's portion of the project is $4.57 million.

Commissioners also may approve a $10.7 million contract with CoEnergy Trading Company for natural gas for five county facilities through February 2002 with a five-year renewal option.

Schoolcraft realigns divisions

Schoolcraft College's divisions of Liberal Arts and Business/Math/Information Systems will be realigned effective July 1.

Three assistant deans will receive new titles as associate deans as they pick up additional duties.

Jeanne Bonner will become associate dean of Liberal Arts/Independent and Distance Learning; Midge Carlton will become associate dean of Sciences; and Fernon Feenstra will become associate dean of business and technology.

All of the new associate deans will have two secretaries to help with their additional workload.

Further changes include Robert Pearce, who is now the assistant dean of college center operations; Gayle Stanek, director of Instructional Support Services, with added responsibilities of the Doc-U-Center. Susan Lupo becomes director of workforce development.

The office of Human Resources concluded negotiations with the Schoolcraft College Association of Administrative and Professional Personnel for the realignment.

Additionally, the college will hire a number of technicians to keep abreast of computer installation/repair and increased activity in the electronic instructional area.

At a meeting on Feb. 26, Schoolcraft's board of trustees:

•Awarded a $22,290 purchase order to Red Holman Pontiac GMC for a new public safety vehicle to replace a current 6-year-old vehicle.

•Awarded a $32,385 purchase order to Frye Printing Company, in Clinton, for printing 1997-98 general college catalogs.

•Approved revisions to the college computer use policy for staff and students.

The board also approved resolutions congratulating the following retirees: Donald Waldenmayer, professor of electronics who joined the college in 1974; Gordon Baumgartner, director of public safety, who came to Schoolcraft in 1981; Candis Martin, assistant dean of math/information systems/business, who has been with the school since 1965; Ann DeVergilio, secretary to the assistant dean of math/information systems/business who joined Schoolcraft in 1979, and Marlene Holiday, secretary in financial aid, who came to Schoolcraft in 1984.

The board expects to review next year's budget and receive a priority list for campus improvements at the next meeting on March 26.

Truck driving class offered at Schoolcraft

To become a skilled truck driver and prepared for entry level employment in the trucking industry, enroll in the Schoolcraft College class Basic Truck Driving.

Class participants will be trained for five weeks on the basics on trucking, with emphasis on safety and skill. The Federal Motor Carrier Rules and Regulations and vehicle maintenance receive special consideration. Students will spend time driving trucks in an enclosed range and on the road.

Sessions begin on March 17 and April 7 and the fee is $3,695.

For information, call (313) 462-4448. Schoolcraft College is located at 18600 Haggerty, Livonia, between Six and Seven Mile Roads, just west of I-275.

'Yes' on bond

Managing growth is priority

■ A citizens committee, with heavy parent involvement, has worked for most of the past two years on reducing class size to the current averages of 25 students in elementary classrooms, 29 in middle school and 28 in the high schools.

All sorts of arguments for or against building two new schools for Plymouth-Canton students can be made but the most compelling one is this: The community has spoken and manageable class size in a growing district is its top priority.

The Observer urges district residents to vote Yes in the special election on Saturday, March 22. If approved, the $79.7 million bond issue would pay for the construction of a new high school at the Plymouth-Canton Educational Park, elementary school in Canton, infrastructure improvements at schools throughout the district, new buses, enhanced classroom technology and computers.

The bonds will be repaid over 25 years and cost the owner of a $200,000 home an additional $175 per year in property taxes during the first year, according to district figures.

Projecting enrollments over a decade or more isn't an exact science. Plymouth-Canton has grown by 816 K-12 students, or 5.5 percent during the last three years and school officials are looking at a similar influx over the next four years, most coming from Canton's new subdivisions.

A citizens committee, with heavy parent involvement, has worked for most of the past two years on reducing class size to the current averages of 25 students in elementary classrooms, 29 in middle school and 28 in the high schools. Elizabeth Givens won election to the school board last year campaigning primarily on that issue.

Without new construction, it will be difficult to maintain those averages.

The bond amount is reasonable when compared to recent bond issues for construction, renovation and technology in comparably-sized southeastern Michigan school districts. Livonia voters approved $62.5 million for school renovations and computers in 1992. Farmington Hills voters face a $110 million proposal for building renovations and new technology three days after the Plymouth-Canton election.

The bond plan also offers an equitable way to make district-wide improvements. Older school buildings in Plymouth and Plymouth Township will receive a much-needed facelift.

The high school will be built at the west end of the park complex. The current district-wide high school enrollment lottery will remain for all three buildings. The new schools account for about three-quarters of the bond money and Canton's higher-priced, new construction will also bear the brunt of the total tax bill for those improvements.

This isn't a perfect proposal. Some questions remain, particularly when it comes to finding operating money once schools are built. Residents may remember that problem plagued the last bond issue approved by voters in 1991, although it's fair to point out a different administration was in place at the time.

The wisdom of buying buses with what amounts to a 25-year loan strikes us as short-sighted. In fact, the Observer has doubts about the financial stability of long-term bonds employed in Plymouth-Canton and dozens of Michigan school districts since the passage of Proposal A. If saddling future residents with debt for these improvements backfires, who will be accountable? Certainly not today's school leaders and government officials.

We remain disappointed in the hurry-up campaign mounted by school officials under the direction of Superintendent Charles Little. It gives the impression the current proposal is more of a work-in-progress than a finished plan. While a conceptual proposal was first broached to the public last December, the finalized plan and ballot language were only approved by the school board last month.

Still, in this case, the need for more classroom space clearly outweighs other concerns. The bond proposal offers the Plymouth-Canton community a chance to back up its stated mandate – small class size – with it's collective checkbook. District residents should vote Yes on Saturday, March 22.

Communication future's now

■ If the cable companies, phone companies, and Internet providers can't get along, tomorrow will still arrive. The only difference is that your entertainment center will have three converter boxes instead of one.

Part of our future lies less than three feet deep in our back yards.

Almost all communities in western Wayne County are wired, or about to be wired, with fiber optic cable by cablevision companies. And the existence of this new line is a forerunner to emerging technologies in the next two to three years that will make all our lives quite difference.

The cable is thicker than normal cable wire coming up to your house, and likely will be orange in color. Besides being thicker, and more colorful, fiber optic lines have far greater capabilities.

The major difference is fiber optic cable is two-way. The old line was one-way – it carried a television signal from your cable company to your TV set. Fiber optic cable can send and receive signal.

Another major difference is that fiber optic cable can transmit different kinds of signals, not just television. Fiber optic lines can carry telephone messages and digital messages from home computers as well as television sound and pictures.

Fiber optic lines not only carry more signals (expanded bandwidth) but can transmit signals of different types at the same time. Thus the same line coming into your house could be used for cable television, telephone service, or to access the Internet.

In this area, Continental, Time-Warner and Comcast are working on providing high-speed cable modems to residents to access the Internet. The cable modem, which looks much like a cable TV converter box, is connected to the fiber optic line coming into your house.

The Christmas shopping season in 1996 saw the introduction of high definition television sets. These H.D. sets are becoming more available in 1997. This new technology allows your television set to also be used as a monitor for your personal computer because the resolution is high enough to make it easy to crisply project the printed word and offer high-resolution graphics. The end of 1996 also saw the emergence of Web TV converter boxes use d with wireless keyboards.

Ameritech is now offering cable service in Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Canton Township and Garden City and has made bids to do so in Livonia and Westland. Because fiber optic lines are two-way, it is not too far-fetched that your "television" set can also be used to make phone calls. Right now, voice communication occurs over the Internet with what is called "telephony."

There probably is no technological limits to prevent a single "box" from functioning as both a cable box and a modem. Given the capability of micro-chips, the same box could also serve as a telephone transmission device.

And so in the year 2000, or thereabouts, you can sit in your easy chair with a single remote device (clicker) from which you can select whether to watch television, make a telephone call, or go to your favorite Web site for information, entertainment or your morning paper.

This will happen; the only question is when. The more the different parts of the telecommunication industry are able to work with each other, the quicker this scenario will be come part of our every day lives.

If the cable companies, phone companies, and Internet providers can't get along, tomorrow will still arrive. The only difference is that your entertainment center will have three converter boxes instead of one and you'll be juggling three clickers.

This is convergence trying to happen. Keep an eye on this significant development.

Kudos for principal

When I read the article, "Gallimore interim principal to serve extended period" (Feb. 16), a flood of memories came to me. I know the importance of an exceptional interim principal and appreciate another interim principal, Kate Otto, who came out of retirement to serve at Smith Elementary School when principal George Dodson was recovering from surgery during the 1987-88 school year.

I was not surprised to read: "Cheers arose from the audience at last week's Plymouth-Canton Board of Education meeting when it was announced that Gallimore Elementary principal George Dodson will serve for an extended period." It is the kind of response I would expect because of the kind of person he is.

Mr. Dodson was principal at Smith School for nine years. He had quite a reputation as a loose tooth remover. Our daughter and two sons experienced his goodness, gentleness, and obvious love of children. His strong will surfaced as needed when the well-being of children was involved. He actually embodied the example which was used to teach my generation the difference between "principle" and "principal" and when to use each spelling: The world principal has the world "pal" in it because the person who runs a school is your friend.

While serving as Smith School's Parent Faculty Organization president from 1987 to 1989, I got to know Mr. Dodson quite well. Since Mrs. Otto was the interim principal part of the first year during his medical leave, I worked more closely with him the second year. He asked me to do a lot of the work on the "I CARE" millage campaign. I gladly did because I admired him so much and knew that he was preparing to retire and had other school and health concerns to deal with.

The Smith School PFO board members and committee chairs, as well as children and other parents respected and loved Mr. Dodson from what we heard at district-wide meetings with other parent group leaders, the PFO vice president and I concluded that our school very likely had the kindest and easiest to work with principal. Many tears were shed during and after the Open House held on June 6, 1989, in the Smith cafeteria/gym to celebrate George Dodson's service as the school's principal and to thank him and wish him well in retirement.

Gallimore School is indeed fortunate that George Dodson was willing to come out of retirement to be their interim principal. I was glad to read about their expression of appreciation for him. He has a special place in my heart.

Split the district

The upcoming $79.7 million bond proposal is becoming an "Us vs. Them" issue, as in Plymouth against Canton. I don't think Plymouth wants to fund schools for Canton and why should they?

For over 20 years Canton's student population has been a strain on the school district. Canton has outgrown itself.

Plymouth schools had an impressive reputation when it was a small district. Now, it is just as mediocre as every other city in the county. It's too large to be managed properly.

The taxpayers cannot be expected to throw good money after bad every time Canton builds another overcrowded subdivision. It's time to correct the mistakes of past local government leaders. Something has to be done now. Isn't there anybody in Canton that can attempt to solve the problem? It is time to form your own school district. You would have more control over education than you do now.

Increased taxes year after year aren't the answer. And we certainly won't make any progress in the right direction with this current school administration.

Debt rising too fast

If the proposed Plymouth-Canton Community Schools bond proposal passes on March 22, the school district debt will increase from $32,855,495 (June 30, 1991) to $302,281,204. This is an increase of 920 percent in less than six years.

The much-talked about federal debt on Dec. 31, 1990, was $3,364,820,230,276.86 and exactly six years later Dec. 31, 1996, the federal debt stood at $5,323,171,783.19. In six years, the federal debt increased by 158 percent.

By comparison the Plymouth-Canton bond, if passed by the district voters, would grow 5.8 times faster in less than six years than the federal debt.

In recent history, the district has received voter approval and issued bonds three times in five years, in 1986, 1987 and 1991.

Good luck!

POINTS OF VIEW

Voters to decide bond plan March 22

Vote yes for our community

Susan Kopinski

The citizens of the Plymouth-Canton community have, and will continue to hear, information regarding the bond proposal we will be voting on Saturday, March 22. I am asking all of you to do two things: read and listen to all the facts before making up your mind and then vote.

The vote is on Saturday so that more people will be afforded the opportunity to vote. If you can't vote that day, please call 416-3095 and ask for an absentee application.

You will be asked to vote on an $80 million bond issue costing you 1.75 mills per year or $87.50 per year for every $100,000 that your home is valued at. This small amount will give you a new high school; a new elementary school; technology for our children in the form of two computers per classroom districtwide and 15 additional computers for every school that has a computer lab; new buses to replace older ones as well as additional ones to accommodate growth; and funds available for capital improvements at existing schools, such as roofing, plumbing and heating and cooling.

The detail for each of these items is outlined in the school district's Newsline paper that you received the week of Feb. 24. The Observer has also published a list, by school, of what is proposed. The Citizens' Election Committee has also been speaking at all of the schools and the last general information meeting will be at 10 a.m. Saturday, March 15, at the E.J. McClendon office on Harvey Street if you would like more information.

None of us can deny what is happening in our community in terms of growth. The growth is evident in Canton and Plymouth townships with new homes being built, but there is also growth in the neighborhoods in the city of Plymouth where more young families are moving into the wonderful older homes. Our school district is the Plymouth-Canton Schools, not separate municipalities.

I am very proud to say that it was information our community provided to the Bond Steering Committee that led to the recommendation to the school board for this bond issue. Our community is made up of all of us, including teachers, school district staff, and all of us that live here. No one was left out when discussions were taking place at three separate public community forums. Everyone was invited and I believe those that came were listened to and their comments were taken into serious consideration.

Unfortunately, you can never please everyone and compromises had to be made. This bond issue will not please everyone but no one bond issue could. This bond proposal is fiscally responsible and is what our residents told us they need.

People told us that they did not want to expand any of the schools, especially the high schools because there are too many young people there already. They told us that they want to try to get back to neighborhood elementary schools and they want more technology for our children. This bond issue meets these criteria.

Once again, I am happy to say that this bond proposal is community-driven.

As someone whose professional background is public finance, I also have faith in the school district's executive director of business when he says we can open and operate our new schools when they are built.

It is imperative that you vote on Saturday, March 22, and vote "yes" for our children and for our Plymouth-Canton community, which includes all of us. Remember to attend the public information meeting on March 15.

Susan Kopinski is chair of the Citizens' Election Committee and was chair of the Bond Steering Committee that made the recommendations to the school board.

Plan needs study, vote no

Roland Thomas

The March bond issue is the right idea with the wrong solution.

After much thought and close examination of the bond proposal, my conclusion is that this bond should not be supported by our community. While much of the requested bond money is needed, the community must ask itself some fundamental questions.

First, do we need a new high school? The critical word is need. After examining the enrollment projections, the present capacity at 28 students per teaching station for five periods a day and the fact that there is no operating money now or in the foreseeable future to reduce class size, one can only conclude that building a new high school is not logical or a wise use of our money.

The proposed new high school represents 62 percent of the bond or $53.4 million. A new high school would bring the total capacity of the PCEP to 5,782 students to support an enrollment that flattens out at about 5,100. The district is asking you to build a new high school of 1,143 students, not for 1,833 – just a simple 38 percent overbuild.

In discussing this bond proposal with teachers and administrators at PCEP, it is clear that they were not consulted in any type of focus group or by a committee about what the needs of our children are at the high school level. Why aren't they in the loop? There is a significant question that they have raised. Is the $1.6 million in added overhead enough to fund a brand-new, full-service high school? The projections need more professional study and input by those at the PCEP who will be doing the work.

Do we need to spend $9.7 million for the new elementary school? The basic premise is that we need an elementary school and we do need it. However, this school is designed to be able to convert it to a middle school at some time in the future. This strategy costs money. In addition, the district is asking you to pay for the purchase of a new site – $750,000. The district should use the property that it presently has and use the $1 million capital fund contingency.

Finally, the last two elementary schools cost $4.5 million. To build this one, excluding the site, will cost $9 million – double the cost in the nine years since we bid and completed the last two. That is an inflation rate of more than 8 percent compounded annually vs. a real CPI rate of 3-3.5 percent.

In summary, we need a bond issue, but not this one. The district needs to step back and determine what is needed, not what it wants. There was a site plan developed during the implementation of the 1991 bond that was done for our existing two high schools. It was designed to accommodate a classroom building between Canton and Salem.

With the information we have today, the district needs more classroom space, not more overhead. A new high school creates overhead.

A simple alternative is a classroom building at the PCEP that would include a single best-in class library, a cafeteria, a physical education-intramural gym and state-of-the-art classrooms. Use the $1.6 million in projected overhead to create a better educational process for our students by keeping the library open 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. and by adding weekend hours. Convert the existing libraries to classrooms.

Education needs to step forward and begin working toward meeting educational needs by improving educational processes. Use our funds wisely to improve education, not to add overhead. Defeat this bond in March and work to pass a better one in June or August, one we need and can afford.

Roland Thomas completed 12 years as a school board member in 1995. He also served four years as board president.

Waivers skew results of school reform tool

Philip Power

More than half of the juniors at Seaholm and Groves high schools in Birmingham didn't take the Michigan High School Proficiency Test last month, while nearly one-third of 11th-graders at Troy High School followed suit. Their parents signed forms letting them skip the test.

On the surface, this looks like a misguided, parent-led attack on pupil assessment tests – a key part of the school reform movement – but this is a very complicated subject. Here's some background:

Now in its second year, the proficiency tests – actually four tests, in reading, writing, science and math – are designed to let students earn proficiency ratings and seals on high school diplomas. "Novice" scores, below proficient, are entered into student transcripts.

According to the Michigan Department of Education, the waiver exemption was originally designed to give parents of developmentally disadvantaged students a chance to decide for themselves whether their kids should take the test. But the wording of the rule turned out to be so broad that any parent could use it.

The proficiency test is the most recent version of attempts to measure what students actually learn in school. Students also take the Michigan Educational Assessment Program (MEAP) tests in fourth, seventh and 11th grades.

When the test was given for the first time last year, only 2 percent of students statewide received parent waivers to skip. Reports of the Birmingham and Troy boycotts this year followed news that school officials in Muskegon Heights urged parents to keep low-attendance students from taking the test in order to boost school scores.

That wasn't the case in Birmingham, where more than half of the students skipping the test had at least a 3.0 grade point average.

With only about half its student population taking the proficiency test, scores in the Birmingham district will be "virtually meaningless," according to Ernie Bauer, a testing consultant for the Oakland County Intermediate School District.

The rationale for the state proficiency tests is simple. After all, the state subsidizes public K-12 education, and asking kids in each school district to take an exam to see what they're learning is only reasonable.

So how come some parents helped their kids slide by the test?

"I didn't like that the student was going to be labeled ... and I didn't want to see that on the transcript," said Sue Mordon, a Birmingham school district employee who signed the waiver for her daughter, Laura. Other parents wonder why their kids should take an 11-hour state proficiency exam during the same year that they also have to sit for the SAT and ACT college admission tests.

Bloomfield Hills Superintendent Gary Doyle argues the test isn't fair to students or districts because it doesn't provide enough information to gauge which classes need improvement or what textbooks should be changed. "Assessment is a vital part of an educational program, and we owe it to our students to assess them in a quality way," said Doyle.

Moreover, it's clear that neither college admissions officers nor employers are jumping up and down to have a look at the new proficiency seals on high school diplomas.

The critics have a point. MEAP, SAT, ACT, Michigan Proficiency Test. Enough is enough, already.

But the critics also are missing a fundamental issue. Assessment tests are essential to school reform. We simply cannot improve schooling in our state without a uniform statewide assessment of what pupils learn.

Maybe the state should require just one uniform proficiency test. Certainly state authorities should restrict future waivers from the proficiency test to those children who are actually developmentally disabled.

But individual parents, no matter how well-intentioned, should not be allowed to skew an assessment instrument that is a key part of reforming schools for all students.

High-powered team aids Madonna capital campaign

Madonna University stands at the eve of a new century with a vision and plan for the future.

With the development of a five-year plan and vision based upon the purpose of the university, "education for truth, goodness and service," the institution has officially announced a $15 million comprehensive campaign.

The components of the campaign includes $11.8 million for capital improvement, $1 million for scholarships, $1 million in endowments and $1.1 million for operations.

"As an institution of higher education, Madonna University is committed to teaching, service and career preparation, but as a Catholic university, it must go beyond the criterion of academic excellence," said Cardinal Adam Maida, archbishop of the Archdiocese of Detroit.

The Cardinal believes that Madonna University deserves support for this campaign because of its innovative programs, individual attention to students and particularly its Catholic philosophy of education."

Anthony Marchio

As of December 1996 Madonna University has raised $6 million toward the $15 million. Leadership gifts were secured as early as July 1994 in preparation for this campaign. This includes a $1 million gift from John and Elizabeth (DeSeranno) Stevens and Aline DeSeranno for the purchase of the Maertens Building.

With a donation of $500,000, former board chairman William Phillips and his wife, Bridget, established the William and Bridget Phillips Chair of Management and Professional Leadership to support the University's School of Business.

"Our campaign is off to a good start due to the fact that we have had a great deal of support from Madonna's Board of Trustees," said Sister Mary Francilene, Madonna University president.

An impressive Leadership Committee of 25 members will assist the university in reaching its goals. The co-chairmen are Leo J. Brennan Jr., vice president and executive director of the Ford Motor Co. Fund; Anthony Marchio, general director human resources, GM Service Parts Operations; Edward McNamara, Wayne County executive, and William Phillips, Madonna University trustee and CEO, Phillips Service Industries.

FAMILY ROOM

KAREN MEIER

And William was his name

William. That was the man's name. And now, I'll probably make a hasty association, a good association, with the name William. If in a book's beginning pages a character named William's introduced, I'll look for lots of good to happen to, around and because of William.

And if I happen to see a clerk in a store wearing a name tag saying "William," I'll probably want to say, "Good morning," only because of the other William I met. I'll just give credit to all Williams for no other reason than having the same name as a good William I met today.

Granted, that's discrimination in reverse. Yes, I make generalizations, stereotypes about things I like. When I was pregnant with my oldest child and my husband and I were mulling over names for the baby, we talked of Anthony. I'd never met an Anthony, or a Tony, I didn't like. I hadn't met that many, but the ones I'd had were all fine, good people.

And so it was decided, Anthony. The baby would bloom and grow into his name, was the notion. And sure enough, Tony, our now nearly-teenaged Tony, is a fine and good person.

This reverse discrimination isn't always about names. For instance, I like all beagles, Oreos and cigar smoke.

Frisky, the little stray dog I brought home

Breaking through: As part of the facial process, Theresa Worosz of Gerald's Salon uses an exfoliation to remove dead cells that can accentuate such things as aging lines on the face of Sarah Nunez of Northville.

■ Theresa Worosz likes things pure and natural. It's a way of life with her at home and at work. She knows how to revive winter-weary skin with a facial and dress up a face with makeup. She does so relying on organic, plant-based products that she herself uses.

Environmental awareness has made its way into a beauty salon.

In an era where animal testing is grounds for protests and 100 percent natural is replacing synthetics, more and more beauty professionals and their clients are turning to plant-based skin care products.

They seek lotions and potions that are gentle and kind to their skin, are earth-friendly and have long-lasting authentic effects rather than masking or covering up a condition or problem.

Theresa Worosz is one of those people who've made the switch. Director of the skin care department at Gerald's Salon in Northville, she specializes in the use of plant-based skin products and has incorporated them into her own lifestyle.

"The more I get into this, the more I realize what I don't know," she said. "Plant extracts are antibacterial, antiviral and antifungal. They can be used every where on the body."

Knowing what's natural is very important for good skin care, especially when you consider that the use of certain words like natural isn't regulated by the Food and Drug Administration.

Technically, according to Worosz, natural can mean petrochemicals that come from the earth which are non-renewable resources. Synthetic ingredients are derived from petrochemicals.

"There's a tremendous difference between a pure, natural product and one that only has one or two natural ingredients," Worosz said. "I teach our clients how to read ingredient lists and recognize truly organic products."

According to Worosz, organic materials are complex and versatile and can relate to living tissue. They are inherently kinder to the body and build healthier and stronger skin in the long run. Synthetic products, on the other hand, temporarily deceive the body and mask problems.

"The body knows the difference between synthetics and natural," she said. "The body can be fooled by synthetics, but eventually it figures it out.

"Plant-derived organic products sometimes take longer for results to show, but in the long run, they produce healthier, stronger skin."

Sheer, white material is draped over curtain rods create the illusion of windows in the windowless room where Worosz revives winter-weary skin. A candle in a hand-blown glass container infuses the air with a fragrant smell, just one of the many products of the Aveda skin care line she uses.

Philosophically connected

Admittedly, Aveda isn't the only line of organic, plant-based products around, but the company's philosophy suits Worosz just fine. It's environmentally conscious. It doesn't do animal testing and no animal byproducts are used in the manufacturing process. In fact, emissions at Aveda's Minneapolis laboratories are 90 percent plant-based, she said.

Aveda has been manufacturing plant-based skin care products for from the school yard one fine third grade day, was a faithful beagle friend and companion to the very end. She died long ago, when I was in college two decades past. But I recognize a beagle bark anytime and I figure that behind that bark is a good, happy dog enjoying life.

And Oreos, well, I've never turned my nose up at an Oreo. Ever.

And then there's cigar smoke. Grandpa Andersen smoked cigars, thoughtfully and regularly. Right up to the time he died at 93. He puffed in a most thoughtful manner as he'd weave yet another tale for us gathered in the parlor of Grandma and Grandpa's three-story old New England house with the thousand nooks and crannies, the milk chute, the glass-paned pantry doors and the gigantic backyard elms. Cigar smoke I like.

And now to that list of generalizations and stereotypes, I'm adding "William." William was a good Samaritan; I was the pitiful being at the side of the road. Actually, I was the pitiful being in the parking lot. The hospital parking lot. Steven was to receive his hearing aids today, and that is why I was in the hospital parking lot. The audiologist's office is in the hospital complex, which is huge. And it has a matching huge parking lot, approximately the size of the former Soviet Union – Siberia is where the empty parking spaces are. Every time.

And I've been there lots, for children's hearing appointments, eye appointments, for my knee surgery things and ultrasound stuff. Walking to and from the distant parking spaces under any of those circumstances is, let's see, how can I put this, interesting. Yes, that's it, "interesting." It's definitely interesting.

With two, three, sometimes even four children in tow, all of us frequently drenched by rain, and with the occasional baby bag upset resulting in stuff, diapers, wipes, doctor's referral slips blowing afar just as someone announces the urgent need to use the bathroom, I've often wondered what those shuttle bus shelters dotting the parking lot landscape might be for. I'd never seen a shuttle bus there, ever. Until today.

Today I parked in my usual remote, not by choice but by necessity, spot. I helped Jack out of the van, I helped Joe out of the van, and then I gathered up Stevie in one arm and the baby bag in the other. Once we were all outside beside the van, Joe announced his bathroom emergency. Jack asked to have his shoes tied again, the same shoes that had been so elusively hiding for 10 minutes back at home which ultimately made us tardy again.

Anyway, I looked up from my shoe tying task and saw a large van with an official sign on its side stopped right in front of me. The driver opened the window and yelled out to me, "Would you like a ride to the building?" Oh, my goodness, oh, my goodness, I nearly died. Of happiness and gratitude and disbelief. I couldn't believe someone had come to the rescue, sincerely and earnestly, without my saying a word, without any expectation whatsoever. It was a lovely, pleasant surprise.

I thanked the driver over and over. I asked him his name. "William," he said, and he said it with pride and a smile. And well he should have. He had a lot to be proud of, a lot. William and I exchanged some pleasant, laugh-punctuated conversation.

And before I knew it, I was at the front of the building. No one had wet pants, I hadn't lost any important papers, I hadn't carried two little boys across Siberia while the other trailed behind. I was in heaven.

And I told William so, I told him he must be an angel. He smiled and laughed and wished me a good day. And I wished him the same.

20 years. It has a full line of skin care, body care and makeup, including cleansers, toners, masks, shower gels, soaps and salts, for men and women, as well as 22 essential oils like teatree and geranium and three intensive infusions each made up of 60-80 different essential extracts.

Worosz was introduced to them while working at a friend's small Aveda concept salon in Garden City. She worked there a year before moving to Gerald's 1 1/2 years ago.

At the time Gerald's was a concept salon – it carried the entire Aveda line – but is now a premier salon. The change, Worosz explained, is because of a switch to the use of a facial peel, Gly-derm, developed by a Bloomfield dermatologist.

The peel, while not a pure plant product, includes glycolic acid, derived from fruits like grape and citrus. It works like an enzyme on the skin to remove surface buildup.

"The outer layer of skin is made up of dead skin cells and can accentuate aging lines," Worosz said. "By breaching that layer, you step up the renewal process. It's almost an irritant and as a result the body produce new skin cells at a faster rate. New cells are grape-shaped and they fill in the age lines."

Worosz likes the Aveda line because it can be incorporated into the other things people do. Its flexibility allows it to be used with other product lines.

"It's hugely adaptable," she said. "It can be as big and as fun as you want it to be or as precise as you want it to be. The company truly understands people."

Worosz has taken advantage of the company's belief its practitioners should be knowledgeable about its products and why they do what they do. She also has taken it one step further, incorporating it into to her own lifestyle.

She has delved in to the Indian philosophy of body wellness, read books on Chinese philosophy and made the organic, plant-based products a part of her life.

"I did a lot of reading because I wanted to understand why," said the Garden City resident. "I think mentally I'm attracted to things the body can use.

"Every plant extract is antibacterial, antiviral and antifungal."

She wore geranium extract last summer. It smelled good, eliminated body odor, and acted as a bug repellent. She also has found many uses for the zinc ointment. A natural sunscreen on a low level, she also uses it as an eye cream and on her lips at night.

As for the lipstick, it contains beeswax and the balance is cinnamon and basil that are digestive aids. Aveda found that women who wear lipstick tend to eat 10 pounds of it a year, Worosz said.

"I honestly believe my job is to help people," said Worosz. "I do makeup, do makeup lessons. I bring in the stuff and go through and see what will fit.

"I don't think Aveda is the only line in the world, but it is very versatile."

Nominations sought for RTL Mom of Year

Kaye Lani Rae Rafko-Wilson, Miss America 1988, will be the featured speaker at a Mother's Day Dinner at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, May 6, at the San Marino Club in Troy, to benefit Right to Life-Lifespan.

Rafko-Wilson is an internationally-known, inspirational speaker on critical health care issues. A registered nurse, she graduated from the St. Vincent Medical Center School of Nursing in Toledo in 1985. She helped open Hospice of Monroe and is very involved in hospice promotion.

The dinner also will honor the 1997 Mother of the Year, chosen from nominations received by noon April 2.

Nominations must be submitted in writing, explaining why the nominee qualifies for "Mother of the Year." Nominees must be a resident of Wayne, Oakland or Macomb counties and be able to attend the awards dinner.

The person who makes the winning nomination will also receive a free ticket to the dinner. If nominated by two or more individuals, the first one received will be eligible for the free ticket.

The person making the nomination should include his or her name, address and telephone number along with the name, address and telephone number of the nominee.

The Mother of the Year will be awarded a plaque, a dozen long-stemmed roses and a $ 100 J.C. Penney gift certificate.

"Mother of the Year" nominations can be sent to Right to Life-Lifespan, 28200 Seven Mile Road, Suite 127, Livonia 48152.

Dinner tickets are $30 per person or $250 for reserved table of 10, if ordered by April 7, and $35 per person or $300 per table thereafter.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

by Chris Knight

THE TITLE SEARCH

The people who do title searches have an extremely important job. They must ensure that the sellers really own the property being sold and that all liens against the property are being paid off as a result of the sale.

If the seller has had financial difficulties, for instance, and didn't pay his bills, there may be judgments that must be satisfied on or before the closing. Someone in addition to the party who signed the sales agreement may have an interest in the property. If so, it will be necessary for that person to sign the sales agreement and the deed that transfers ownership to the new buyer. The preliminary title report will also show any easements that run with the property. In addition, the Title Company will go back many years, examining what is called the "chain of title". If you learn that the property you are buying has title problems, don't panic. Most of them are resolved easily and in plenty of time to avoid delays in the closing.

For solid advice when buying and selling real estate, consult Chris Knight at Coldwell Banker Schweitzer Real Estate, 313-453-6800.

Tri-V Club helps keep school chums in touch

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Seven men in their early 20s from northwest Detroit and Redford got together in March 1937 to revive friendships that had been lost after they graduated from high school.

Thanks to the Tri-V Club, the men have remained friends for 60 years.

"We got out of high school in 1935, and there wasn't many jobs in those days. I realized after a year of being out that I hadn't seen several of my friends at all, so I got them together and we formed the club so we could keep in contact," said Ray Suchner, a former Livonia resident who founded the group.

In celebration of its 60th year, the Tri-V Club members and their wives are traveling to an inn at an Indiana State Park this month. According to John Lardin of Westland, one of the chairmen of the celebration, about 82 people are expected to attend, including the five surviving founding members – Suchner, who spends his winters in Fedhaven, Fla., and summers in Interlochen; Don Gasco, a Michigan resident; Don Winters of Brooklyn, Mich.; Brady Brenton of Arizona; and Jack Henry of Florida.

When he formed the Tri-V Club – named for the 15 members who attended the first meeting – Suchner said he never expected it to keep its momentum. He attributed its longevity to "the kind of people we have."

■ 'We're very careful who we take in; they're our kind of people, and like to do the things we like to do.'

Ray Suchner
Tri-V Club founder

"We're very careful who we take in; they're our kind of people, and like to do the things we like to do," said Suchner. "In the early days it was sports. We got a good softball team, had a bowling league and played hockey on Sunday mornings. We started having dances and other activities."

The Tri-V Club is exclusively a men's club. Members' wives join the auxiliary organization, while widows of the group become memorial members.

During the past 60 years, the Tri-V Club has evolved into a family-oriented organization. The group has a bowling and pinochle leagues and dances.

"In the winter, there's a bowling league for the men, in the summer we have a golf league," Lardin said. "The women have their own wives' club. The first Saturday for six months of the year the husbands and wives play pinochle. We have a men's stag nights where we go to dinner and a hockey game. The wives, they meet once a month. We have a couples' weekend one month of the year."

The Tri-V Club's family picnic in July attracted more than 140 people. In August, the group has a husband and wife steak dinner.

Those intending on joining the Tri-V Club must be a prospective member for a year before permanent members vote on whether to allow them in the club or not. Prospective members must be sponsored by a member, and the club limits its membership to 30.

Lardin joined the group 12 years ago.

"I love it; I love the people. Last week my son and I were down in Florida for Thursday through Saturday playing golf and we had some place to stay," he said.

Lardin enjoys the group so much that he sponsored his 23-year-old and 30-year-old sons' memberships.

"Anybody that I sponsor, I look for someone that I think will benefit from the club as well as the club benefiting from them," he said. "You have to be willing to be active. They should be friendly, outgoing and caring people – kind of like the club's motto of cooperation, friendship and loyalty."

Getting ready

For the Auction: Livonia residents Mary Koehler (left) and Nancy Lee (right) met with Channel 56 Auction celebrity chairman Murray Feldman of WJBK Fox 2 to launch their effort as Auction Shoppers for the 29th annual Detroit Public Television fund raiser. Koehler and Lee will canvass area merchants and businesses for donations of new items, valued at $100 or more, that will be sold to highest bidders during the six-day event April 15-20. Last year's auction raised $486,000 for the station. People wishing to donate merchandise can call the auction office at (313) 876-8350. Those interested in becoming volunteers can call (313) 876-8368.

St. John's welcomes new rector

Bill, Kimiko and Sarah Lupfer

St. John's Episcopal Church in Plymouth has put out the welcome mat for its new rector, the Rev. William B. Lupfer.

Lupfer assumed the rectorship on Ash Wednesday, Feb. 12, after he, wife Kimiko and 7-month old daughter, Sarah, visited her parents' home in Tokyo, Japan.

Lupfer comes to St. John's from Holy Comforter Church in Kenilworth, a suburb of Chicago, where he was an associate rector. Holy Comforter is the largest parish in the Diocese of Chicago, employing three priests.

Raised in the western suburbs of Chicago, he received his undergraduate degree in 1983 from the University of Colorado and his master's degree in Divinity in 1987 from Yale University.

He was ordained while attending Seabury Western Theological Seminary where he is now working on his doctoral thesis.

Among the other work he has done, Lupfer has worked with ex-convicts for the Council of Churches in Bridgeport, Conn.

He met his wife Kimiko when she relocated from Japan to work on her master's degree in teaching English as a second language at Fairfield University in Connecticut. They were married in 1990.

Lupfer's personal ministry statement includes a commitment to help people experience the presence of God through work, worship, fellowship and prayer together as a parish family. His ministry specialties include spiritual guidance, preaching, pastoral care and teaching.

St. John's Episcopal Church is at 574 S. Sheldon Road, Plymouth. For more information, call the church at (313) 453-0190.

Pain may be eliminated for millions

(SPECIAL) A drug that is exciting researchers in the treatment of pain has been formulated into a new product known as " Arthur Itis®" and is being called a "Medical Miracle" by some. In the treatment of debilitating conditions such as arthritis, bursitis, rheumatism, painful muscle aches, joint aches, simple backache, bruises, and more. Although the mechanism of action is unclear, experiments indicate that Arthur Itis® relieves pain by first selectively attracting and then destroying the messenger chemical which carries pain sensations to the brain, thus eliminating pain in the affected area. Arthur Itis® is an odorless, greaseless, nonstaining cream, and is available immediately without a prescription and is guaranteed to work.

Use only as directed.

ANNIVERSARIES

Evans

Theodore and Anne Evans of Canton recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. A belated party is planned for Park Place in Dearborn in June.

They exchanged their vows on Jan. 26, 1947, in Weirton, W.Va.

The Evans have five children – Carol Martin of Raleigh, N.C., Thomas of Canton, Katherine Irvine of Madison, Wis., Vanessa Thibault of Wyandotte and Edwin of Lafayette, Ind. – and six grandchildren.

He is a retired accountant and she retired from Ford Motor Co. as an office administrator. Both are tutors at Hoben Elementary School in Canton.

She also serves as a member of the senior advisory council of the Michigan Community Service Commission for the State of Michigan. Together, they serve as volunteers at the Summit Community Center on the Park in Canton.

Dickey

Florence and Chuck Dickey, 38-year Livonia residents, celebrated their 50th anniversary with a dinner reception, given by their children and grandchildren, at Plymouth Manor.

The Dickeys were married on Dec. 21, 1946, at Visitation Church in Detroit. She is the former Florence Haggerty.

The couple has three children – Nancy Schager and husband Karl, and Susan Calvin and husband Doug, all of Livonia, and the late Charles E. Dickey Jr., formerly of Farmington. They have three grandchildren – Griffin and Ashley.

She is a homemaker, while he retired in 1987 from Eaton Corporation of Southfield where he was a sales engineer. The couple are active members of St. Priscilla Church in Livonia.

Murawski

Andrew and Tillie Murawski of Milan celebrated their 50th anniversary with a Mass at St. Mel's Church in Dearborn Heights and a reception at their son's home in Garden City.

The couple was married Feb. 15, 1947, in Dearborn. She is the former Tillie Zyskowski.

They have three children – Al of Garden City, Vicki Hughey of Onsted, and the late Jerry Gromacki of Garden City. The Murawskis have eight grandchildren and 10 great-grandchildren.

She is retired from Fisher Body in Livonia, while he was a long-time employee of Harding Manufacturing Co., in East Detroit. They retired 17 years ago.

A World War II veteran, he is a member of the VFW and enjoys bowling. She enjoys cooking, being a homemaker, and doing crafts.

Zielke

David and Deborah Zielke of Walled Lake, formerly of Livonia, celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary by renewing their vows at St. Matthew Lutheran Church and dinner with family and friends at Nifty's.

The Zielkes exchanged vows on Feb. 11, 1972, at St. Damian's Church. She is the former Deborah Andreoni.

Graduates of Livonia Franklin High School, they also return to the site of their first date almost every anniversary, Daly Drive-in. They have two daughters, Rosemary and Rebecca.

He is employed by Conserva Electric Supply while she works for Hematite Acoustical Automotive Supplier.

All-WLAA volleyball

Both Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton were well-represented on the all-Western Lakes Activities Association volleyball teams.

Salem, which finished second in the league to Walled Lake Central, placed two players on the all-conference team and another on the all-Lakes Division squad.

Plymouth Canton, the Western Division champion, put one on the all-WLAA team, with two more making all-Western Division.

Salem's Jenny Trott, a junior outside hitter, and Amanda Abraham, a junior middle blocker, were all-conference picks. Canton's Jessica Orleman, a senior middle hitter, was also named to the all-WLAA team.

Other all-WLAA choices were seniors Becky Cummings and Jenny Keeler, from Central; senior Megan McGinty, from Livonia Churchill; and senior Tricia Traczyk, from North Farmington.

Named to the all-Lakes Division squad was Salem's Angie Sillmon, a sophomore middle blocker. Senior Christy Harkless of Westland John Glenn; seniors Katie Horton and Laura Hochthanner of Central; seniors Nicole Tobin and Gina Palmeri of Livonia Stevenson; and senior Sarah Mikel of Farmington were also all-Lakes selections.

Canton seniors Nikki Kovachevich, a setter/defensive specialist, and Jenny Sikora, an outside hitter, were chosen to the all-Western Division squad. So were Livonia Franklin seniors Randi Wolfe and Brooke Hensman; Northville senior Danielle Jaskot; Farmington Harrison senior Abby Ault; and Churchill senior Lori Leszczynski.

Honorable mention all-division picks from Salem were seniors Jenny Storm and Kristie Giddings, junior Kari Flynn and sophomore Andrea Pruett. Honorable mention all-division choices from Canton were seniors Courtney Wells, Donna Logsdon and Brandi Bernard, and junior Stephanie Chefan.

Whalers lose a pair

For most of the season, the rivalry between the Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds, first in the Ontario Hockey League's West Division, and the fourth-place Detroit Whalers has been tight.

Last weekend, it wasn't.

The Greyhounds pounded the Whalers twice at Compuware Arena, winning 5-1 Saturday and 7-3 Sunday.

The losses left the Whalers with a 24-32-6 record and still in fourth place, 27 points behind the first-place Greyhounds (36-17-9).

Saturday's game was close for one period only. The Greyhounds scored a power-play goal — the first of four — just 2:27 into the game. Nathan Perrott netted it; he scored two goals and added an assist in the game.

Detroit tied it seven minutes later, getting a shorthanded score by Harold Druken. Druken has 26 for the season.

Sault Ste. Marie pulled away after that, however, scoring twice in the second period and twice more in the third. Robert Esche was in goal for Detroit; he made 24 saves.

The Whalers host the Windsor Spitfires at 7:30 p.m. Saturday and 6 p.m. Sunday.

Soccer champs

•The Canton Crushers, an under-16 girls recreational soccer team, finished first in both the Fall and Winter I indoor sessions at the WideWorld Indoor Soccer Complex in Ann Arbor.

The Crushers combined record was 16-0. They scored a total of 114 goals while surrendering just seven in the two sessions.

The team is coached by Chuck Miller and Gary Kurzynski; the team manager is Becky Krohn.

•The Livonia Youth Soccer Club under-16 girls team placed first in the under-18 division in the first session at Total Soccer. The younger team outscored its older opponents 38-9 and posted four shutouts.

In the second session at Total Soccer, the LYSC club was 7-1 and tied for first. For its efforts, the team was rewarded with free tickets to a Detroit Rockers' game, with an on-field trophy presentation at halftime.

Team members are Blakely Barry, Kristen Esparza, Michelle Esparza, Nichole Gellner, Lauren Gunn-Boyar, Jamie Jakacki, Chris Mellor, Amanda Mikail, Kyla Murphy, Olivia Nellums, Colleen Scanlon, Jamie Scott, Kassie Scovel, Luba Steca, Andrea Surratt, Carolynne Suveg and Crystal Wright.

The team is coached by Mike Esparza and Lou Suveg; Rich Nellums is team manager.

Chief defense claws Pats

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR

Going up against a team with a player the stature of Matt Bauman, Livonia Franklin's 6-foot-8 senior center, meant Plymouth Canton would have to get a true team effort.

Wednesday night in a Class A basketball district semifinal at Northville HS, the Chiefs got just that.

They couldn't stop Bauman completely, but they limited him to 14 shots and 15 points with a strong defensive game that resulted in a 41-36 triumph.

Canton, now 16-6, advances to the district championship against Plymouth Salem, a 39-32 victor over Novi in the other district semifinal. The final will be at 7 p.m. Friday at Northville.

"We had our chances," said Franklin coach Dan Robinson, his team bowing out at 10-11. "But we didn't make the plays when we needed to.

"Canton is a team you have to beat — they're well prepared, they're not going to give it away. They deserved it."

The Chiefs made it their kind of game from the start: low scoring, with them in front most of the way (Franklin led just twice, both times by a point and both times in the second quarter), and a patient pace.

They were ahead 10-7 after one quarter and 25-17 at the half, due mostly to sophomore guard Joe Cortellini's outside shooting. Cortellini nailed three three-pointers, all in the first half, in scoring 10 points.

But the tough defense didn't just belong to Canton. Franklin's zone pushed the Chiefs to the outside, and although Cortellini did some damage, Canton's most reliable scorers — Nick Hurley, Donte Scott and Rob Johnson — were for the most part ineffective.

Hurley did score 10 points, but Scott and Johnson combined for just nine. Canton made only 12-of-40 shots (30 percent); Franklin was 16-of-48 (33 percent).

Big obstacle: Matt Ammons, who missed two games with a sore back, found the going tough against Franklin's Matt Bauman. But Ammons applied similar pressure on defense.

So while the mainstays struggled, the Canton bench came through. Johnson, who was given the task of checking Bauman, ended up fouling out with 6:06 remaining.

Enter Mike Elsner, who kept the Chiefs from missing a beat. "Mike Elsner was huge," said Canton coach Dan Young. "He gave us a big lift in the first half and came in in the second half when Rob was in foul trouble to cover Bauman, and he did a great job."

Again, it wasn't just Johnson and Elsner covering Bauman, but Matt Ammons (who returned to action after missing two games with a sore back) and anyone else in the vicinity.

"We made it hard for them to get it in to (Bauman) and we gave the guy covering him some help," said Young.

Still, Bauman scored all seven of Franklin's first-quarter points and had nine by halftime. But it wasn't until the second half that the Patriots pulled to within striking distance.

They held Canton to 1-of-9 shooting from the floor in the third quarter, trimming the deficit to 29-25. Then two Bauman baskets in a 38-second span of the fourth quarter made it a three-point game (34-31) with 4:39 left.

The difference was still three, thanks to a three-pointer by Nick Mongeau, with 1:55 to go. But Franklin could draw no closer, misfiring on some good chances and allowing Hurley step in for a steal with 33 seconds to go.

Free throws were a significant factor, especially down the stretch. The Pats made just 1-of-7 in the game and failed on a pair of one-and-one opportunities in the last 2:12. Canton was 14-of-20 (70 percent) at the line.

Bauman hit 7-of-14 shots in scoring his game-high 15 points; he also had nine rebounds. Jay Fontaine added 10 points and grabbed six

Rocks survive Novi scare

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR

It seems Plymouth Salem's basketball team doesn't know a good thing when it stumbles into one.

The Rocks came within three seconds of shutting out Novi in the first quarter of Wednesday night's Class A district basketball semifinal at Northville HS. Kyle Kearney's jumper from the corner ruined it.

Salem was hardly on fire, either. Kearney's basket made it 12-2 after one quarter; it was still a 10-point cushion, but that wouldn't last.

And it didn't. Novi charged back in the second half, eventually tying the score in the fourth quarter. But while the Wildcats reached the pinnacle of the hump, they couldn't get over it — Salem managed to thwart them in posting a 54-46 triumph.

"They were cold," Rocks coach Bob Brodie said of Novi's opening quarter. "It was nice to get a lead like that, but you know that they're going to start hitting those shots.

"We should have been up 25 or 30, but we just didn't convert."

Salem still had a 25-16 advantage at the half. But Kearney was starting to heat up.

He hit four three-pointers in scoring a game-high 19 points. A 9-1 Novi run in a 1:27 span of the third quarter closed the gap to 35-32; the Rocks got four free throws by Tony Bernhardt in the last 1:11 of the period to make it a seven-point game (39-32).

Two Kearney triples in the first three minutes of the fourth quarter pushed Salem to the brink. The Rocks had not trailed in the game, but Kearney's second trey from the wing pulled the Wildcats to within 43-42.

After a Mike Korduba free throw made it a two-point Salem lead, Novi's Brian Abbot tied it at 44-all with 4:33 to go.

From then on it was a ball game.

After two more Korduba free throws put the Rocks back on top, Novi's Jeff Fannon retied it — for the last time.

State meet coming up

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR

Five teams, three spots.

That was the situation facing both Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton — and three other teams — at last Saturday's Class A gymnastics regional, hosted by Canton. The first three finishers in the region would go to the state team tournament Friday at Rockford HS.

The top spot was certain to go to Northville-Novi, one of the state's top teams, leaving four teams to fight it out for the two remaining berths.

As it turned out, Northville-Novi did indeed dominate. And three other teams, not two, will advance.

That's because Canton and Westland John Glenn tied for third, each scoring 133.075 points. Salem placed second with 134.075; Northville-Novi won going away with 146.175.

Missing out was Ann Arbor Pioneer, which was fifth (133.00)

Salem holds on for district title

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR

Guess that ancient adage applies to Plymouth Salem's volleyball team, with only a minor alteration:

"Can't stand the heat, stay out of the tournament."

After last week's Class A district at Novi HS, it was obvious the favored Rocks liked playing with fire. To pass this test, they had to survive three best-of-three-games matches.

Which they did, but not before taking all three to the limit.

Salem defeated Northville in the district final 11-15, 15-6, 15-0, to improve to 40-8-5 and advance to Saturday's regional tournament at Berkley HS. Their first-round opponent: nemesis Livonia Ladywood, at 10 a.m. Ferndale meets Farmington Hills Mercy, also at 10 a.m.; the winners meet for the title at approximately noon.

"Never a doubt, eh?" Salem co-coach Brian Gilles asked in obvious jest after the win over Northville. Added his coaching partner, Allie Suffety: "That's a team that believes in themselves.

"But I don't know if we can do this next week against Ladywood."

Lapses like those Salem suffered during its last two district matches would certainly not be advisable against the Blazers, who have ended Salem's season in

McDonald's outburst carries CC to district final

BASKETBALL

Southfield coach Gary Teasley knew about Detroit Catholic Central's ability to score inside or outside.

But no matter what strategy the second-year coach could develop Wednesday, CC's Marc McDonald foiled.

The senior guard poured in 39 points — including seven three-pointers — to lead the host Shamrocks to an 85-69 victory over the Blue Jays in the Class A district quarter final.

CC advances to tomorrow's district championship game against Detroit Redford. Tip-off is 7 p.m.

McDonald owed much of his success to CC's early game plan of pounding the ball inside to 6-foot-10 Chris Young. The junior scored nine points in the first quarter to help open up the perimeter for McDonald.

"Our plan is to always establish the low post game," McDonald said: "That helps open up the outside game. So I was happy to see us work the ball inside."

Thanks to a 12-2 run, the Shamrocks led 20-14 after the first quarter. McDonald erupted in the second quarter for 17 points, but the Blue Jays were able to stay in the game.

The second quarter turned into a shoot-out with the two teams combining for seven triples (each team finished with nine treys). Southfield was able to cut the CC lead to two twice, but three consecutive triples by McDonald held off the Blue Jays.

Coratti is used to seeing McDonald taking over games and had no problem with the gunner hoisting many difficult triple tries.

"Marc has had the green light since his sophomore season," Coratti said. "Actually, the entire team has the green light — we have no traffic lights on this team. We will question some shots, however."

After the scoring fury was completed, CC took a 43-36 lead into halftime.

"The Shamrocks were able to play their fast-paced game, due in part to switching from a man defense into a zone.

""We went into a zone after Chris picked up his second foul," Coratti said. "They did hit some three-pointers against the zone, but they didn't look as comfortable against it."

Southfield scored the first four points of the third quarter to cut the deficit to four, but CC countered with a 10-0 spurt and took control of the game.

The Shamrocks led by as many as 24 points in the fourth quarter before Southfield finished with a late flurry.

In addition to McDonald's 39, CC received 22 points and 13 rebounds from Young. Nick Moore chipped in with nine points.

The Blue Jays, who finished 12-8, were paced by Alvin Westbrook and Joey Kennedy, who each scored 14 points. Clarence Powell added eight points and 14 boards.

The Shamrocks will attempt to win its seventh consecutive district title and ninth in 10 years.

in the 15-team regional.

"It was real surprising," said Salem coach Pam Yockey. "This is the first time there was a perfect tie in the team race. It was really a neat thing to happen."

Canton coach John Cunningham certainly wouldn't disagree, considering how it turned out — and that was in doubt right down to final rotation, with Pioneer scoring well, but not quite good enough, on the balance beam.

"Traumatic I think is the word," said Cunningham.

A total of 13 teams will compete for the state crown. Three-time defending champion Holland is again among the favorites, together with Northville-Novi, Rochester Adams and Hartland.

Brighton, Holt and Troy Athens figure to be just below the top four, with Portage, Rochester, Salem, Canton, Glenn and Grand Rapids Union filling out the field.

Northville-Novi, which was upset by Hartland at the Western Lakes Activities Association Tournament in Canton's gym nine days earlier, was more determined this time. Mustangs claimed the top four positions in the Division I all-around, and a fifth finished sixth.

The only one to break up Northville-Novi's all-around dominance was Salem's Kristin Kosik, who was fifth (35.575). Kosik's best placing was a second in the vault (8.825).

She was also sixth in the uneven parallel bars (8.85), seventh in the floor exercise (9.0) and eighth in the balance beam (8.9). "It was one of her strongest meets," said Yockey.

Canton put two gymnasts in the top 10 in the Division I all-around. Marcie Emerick was ninth (34.025) and Liz Fitzgerald was 10th (33.55).

Emerick tied for third in the vault (8.6), tied for ninth in the beam (8.65), placed ninth in the floor (8.825) and tied for 11th in the bars (7.95).

Fitzgerald tied for fourth in the bars (8.9), tied for fifth in the vault (8.45), was 12th in the floor (8.15) and took 15th in the beam (8.05).

The only other top-10 scorer for Salem or Canton in Division I was Salem's Allison Bracht, who tied with Fitzgerald for fifth in the vault (8.45).

Brooke Kilby led the Salem and Canton Division II scorers, finishing eighth in the all-around (33.35). Kilby tied for sixth in the bars with Canton's Nicole Vaagenes (8.5), was eighth in the vault (8.2) and tied for ninth in the floor with three others, including teammate Lindsay Hawraney (8.55).

Other Division II top-10 scorers were Canton's Beth Muylaert, ninth in the vault (8.15); Hawraney, who tied for ninth in the bars (8.4); and Canton's Holly Graham, who tied for 10th in the beam (8.5).

"Team consistency" is what enabled Canton to advance, said Cunningham. "In general, we had a very good meet. There were no spectacular performances, but all in all we had an excellent performance.

"This was another of those maximized efforts. They did what they had to do, they did the job."

Yockey thought her team's success "was a matter of the kids pulling together. It was the first time we had everyone in together, so I didn't really know what to expect. I really thought we'd be battling for third."

Both Cunningham and Yockey are aiming to win their half of the bracket Friday. "We could finish between eighth and 10th," predicted Yockey.

"I told the kids, 'Let's be first in our six,'" Cunningham said. "We won't have the pressure of being maybe second or third."

For both Canton and Salem, just getting there was a major gratification.

boards.

In addition to scoring 10 points, Hurley pulled down six boards, had five assists and two steals. Elsner finished with four points and six rebounds, while Scott led Canton with seven boards; Scott also had two steals.

The Chiefs outrebounded Franklin, 29-24.

Andres Lopez gave Salem the lead for good with a short jumper with 1:26 remaining; Fannon answered with a triple try that missed, but Kearney grabbed the rebound underneath — then dribbled it off his knee and out of bounds with a minute to play.

The rest of the scoring belonged to Salem. They converted 6-of-8 free throws in the last 36 seconds, Andy Power accounting for three of them.

Power ended up as Salem's only double-figure scorer with 10. Korduba and Bernhardt had nine apiece, and Lopez scored eight.

Elliot Edmunds added 11 for Novi before fouling out with 26 seconds left. The Wildcats also lost Kearney to fouls 10 seconds earlier, and Abbot was given two technicals and ejected after a skirmish with Korduba in the closing seconds.

Now Salem prepares to meet Plymouth Canton, a 41-36 winner over Livonia Franklin, in the district championship game at 7 p.m. Friday.

"We'll show up," said Brodie, "and we'll see what happens." What happened when the two teams met earlier this season was a 62-47 Canton victory.

the state regionals the past two years.

Perhaps the reason the Rocks struggled against mediocre teams like Northville and Novi, which they beat in the semifinals 15-9, 9-15, 15-9, was their first match against Livonia Churchill. Salem prevailed, 15-17, 15-9, 15-6.

"I think we played the championship match in the first match of the day, against Churchill," said Gilles. "It's always like that (in the districts). We always play Churchill, and they always take us to the limit."

The Chargers, who finished the season at 26-10, came close to ending Salem's season.

"Our problem is that we didn't get the ball to the right people at the right time," said Churchill coach Mike Hughes. "Salem shut down our offensive attack entirely.

"In the second game we had the momentum, but we lacked the killer instinct to put them away."

The Chargers did put Salem away in the first game, with Danielle Sockolosky serving the final three points. For the match, Megan McGinty led Churchill's attack with 25 kills. Lori Leszczynski added 22, Lisa Fabirkiewicz contributed 19 and Amanda Eszes had 13.

Salem was paced by Angie Sillmon with 14 kills and five solo blocks; Amanda Abraham, with nine kills, seven solo blocks and three block assists; and Jenny Trott, with 11 killls and 15 digs.

That put Salem into the semis against Novi. The Rocks had no real trouble in the first game, but then fumbled away the second and put themselves in jeopardy in the third, blowing a five-point lead as the Wildcats crept to within 9-8.

However, with Kristie Giddings serving and Abraham dominating at the net, Salem scored four-straight points, and Novi never again threatened in losing 15-9.

Trott, whose 32 kills for the day led the Rocks, had 12 and 11 digs versus Novi. Abraham had nine kills, seven solos and two block assists.

"How do you keep from getting an ulcer?" one of the Salem boosters asked Suffety prior to the championship match. "Time-release blood pressure medicine," the Salem coach joked. "It kicks in when I need it."

In the other semifinal, an otherwise successful season ended in disappointment for Canton, which lost to Northville 15-4, 15-12. The Chiefs, whose 35-10-2 final record included two wins over Northville, never got it going against the Mustangs this time.

"Some of my players, once they lose it mentally, they can't get it back," said Canton coach Steve Anderson. "Chemistry is everything with this team.

"But if you were to tell me at the beginning of the season that this team would go 35-10 with no one taller than 5-9, I would have told you you were nuts. They really were overachievers."

In the championship match, Salem built a 7-2 first-game lead before submerging. Northville, getting strong net play from Ashley Ossola, scored five of the last six points to pull away to a 15-11 triumph.

The Mustangs opened the second game where they left off the first, going in front 4-1. After that, however, Salem cranked it up, getting five points on Jenny Trott and six digs.

Ladywood's challenged, but advances to regional

BY BRAD EMONS

VOLLEYBALL

The forecast for Friday's Livonia Ladywood Class A volleyball district was breezy, warm and sunny for the host Blazers.

But Ladywood had to weather some storm clouds in the form of Livonia Stevenson, earning a hard-fought 15-5, 11-15, 15-5 triumph as coach Tom Teeters won his ninth district title since 1986.

The win pushes Ladywood's record to 51-5 overall, while Stevenson bows out at 28-9-4.

"We didn't expect it to be easy," said Teeters, whose Blazers won their fourth consecutive district. "Stevenson went to the tip game in the second game and it helped them out a lot. Their coach Kelly Graham did a good job ot instructing their players where to serve and where to tip the ball. We had trouble handling the free ball.

"But we hung in there and even though we lost the second game, we got our momentum back and it gave us a good start in the third game."

The Blazers, ranked No. 4 in the latest Class A statewide coaches poll, took a half-hour to dispose of Redford Union in the semifinals, 15-9, 15-12.

Meanwhile, Stevenson had a difficult time with Livonia Franklin in the first match of the night before winning, 15-9, 15-12.

And when the championship match started, conditions seemed ideal as Ladywood cruised to a 15-5 first-game win over the Spartans.

"The first time we played them at Schoolcraft (Invitational) we were scared and we got caught up in the whole image of Ladywood," Stevenson coach Kelly Graham said. "But tonight we were not afraid to play them.

"This is the hardest we've played all season."

In the first meeting between the teams, back on Feb. 1, 5-foot-11 sophomore Stephanie Dulz wasn't a factor simply because she was a member of the JV squad.

But after being pulled up by Graham for last week's Western Lakes Activities Association tournmanent, Dulz proved she was a varsity player and more, especially when she was attacking from the middle.

Behind the passing of Nicole Tobin, the digging of Lindsay Pfeifer and Kelly Kristy, the Spartans jumped out to leads of 10-4 and 14-7 before holding on for a 15-11 win, evening the match in games at 1-1.

But Ladywood regouped in the decisive third game as the Spartans could not recover from a 10-5 deficit.

Lefty Sarah Poglits, the 6-1 junior, finished the match with 15 kills, while Jenny Lachapelle and Cathy Hermann added 15 and 12, respectively. Jenny Young, a 6-1 sophomore, added six kills off the bench.

Kristen Dause contributed 17 digs and two key blocks, while setter Nicole Vondracek added 44 assists (with only one error) and 13 digs.

"I'm not displeased at all," Teeters said. "Stevenson did a good job. Our problem was weak free ball passing.

"I was confident we could come back and win the third game because we've done that most of the season in the really close matches."

Dulz led the Stevenson hitting attack with 15 kills, while Gina Palmeri, a 6-foot senior playing her final match, added eight kills and two blocks.

Kristy had 19 digs, while Pfeifer added 15 digs. Each collected six kills.

But it was thepoised play of Dulz which turned some heads.

"We knew she (Dulz) was a good player and she did a great job," Teeters said. "She had major spring and did a good job going around our block and making adjustments in the air."

Added Graham: "Next year she's going to be a key and she definitely opened some eyes."

Franklin gave Stevenson a run behind the passing of senior setter Randi Wolfe, who finished with 24 assists. She also had six kills.

Brooke Hensman paced the Patriots with 10 kills, while Melissa Zawacki and Missy Blanton added six and five, respectively.

Defensive contributions came from Jamie Wensing and Cathy Wolfe, who combined for 20 digs.

The Patriots finished 19-19-10 overall, respectable considering they lost senior captain and setter Janine Bosman for the season after being seriously injured in a car accident on Dec. 21.

"Overall I was pleased with the last third of the season," Franklin coach Ann Hutchins said. "We missed Janine, but the kids who went in for her got some good experience, Wensing in particular.

"Wolfe was our heart-and-soul. We lack the hitting power consistency — collectively — that other teams have. But defensively we played well. We showed sportsmanship and character despite some of our shortcomings."

RU bowed out at 20-16-4 overall, but the Panthers did not resemble the team which finished third with a 9-5 record in the Mega Conference's White Division.

"We were really nervous," RU first-year coach Vicki Toth said. "When we heard we were playing Ladywood, we were really pumped up.

"But once we saw the big crowd, I think the atmosphere intimidated us a little bit."

Ladywood served nine aces against the Panthers, including three by Poglits.

Ladywood moves into the regional semifinal, 11:30 a.m. Saturday at Berkley against the Novi district champion.

"We haven't broken the 50-win mark in awhile and that's a good sign," Teeters said.

Rocks repel Churchill's scare

BY C.J. RISAK

BASKETBALL

Monday's Class A district opener at Northville between Plymouth Salem and Livonia Churchill, teams at seemingly opposite ends of the basketball spectrum, was a perfect example of how deceiving a final score can be.

Yes, Salem — the team with 15 regular-season wins — prevailed over Churchill, and the final score was lopsided, 76-59. With the Chargers finishing the season at 3-18, the outcome wasn't unexpected.

But with 4 /12 minutes left in the game, it was still very much in doubt.

The difference were two scoring streaks by the Rocks that Churchill could not answer. The first started with 4:49 left in the third quarter and the Chargers ahead, 40-37.

Until that point, Salem's most consistent offensive threat this season — point guard Andy Power — had been held scoreless. But in a span of 2:22, Power scored six points to spark a 12-0 Rock run.

Salem had a 49-40 lead by the end of the streak and would not trail in the game again.

That doesn't mean Churchill rolled over. The Chargers trailed 54-46 after three periods, but outscored Salem 6-2 to start the fourth, cutting the deficit in half.

It remained a four-point game until 4:34 was left. From then on, the contest belonged to the Rocks: They outscored Churchill 18-5 to close it out.

Power finished with 12 points, eight coming in the third quarter. The player that led Salem from start to finish, however, was Andres Lopez — he netted 22. Jeff McKian added 13, nine in the fourth period.

Churchill got 14 points apiece from Justin Mattison and Kevin Renaud, and 12 each from George Kithas and Matt Van Buren.

"We emphasized getting back on defense, just for him," said Churchill coach Rick Austin of Power. Austin figured stopping Power would slow down the Rocks' running game.

The strategy worked — for a while. Then Power started knifing his way to the basket; all eight of his third-quarter points came off drives to the hoop.

Salem led 15-14 after one quarter, but a basket by Kithas capped a Churchill run in the second quarter, giving the Chargers a 30-24 lead. Over the last 2 1/2 minutes of the half, however, Salem scored six-straight points to leave the game knotted at 30-all at the break.

"They did a nice job with their patience," said Salem coach Bob Brodie of Churchill. "I don't think we played that flat, Churchill just did a nice job.

"We made some adjustments in the second half, we were a little more patient. (But the difference) was Lopez — he carried us in the first half."

Salem's patience in the second half showed in its shooting: The Rocks were 13-of-29 from the field in the first half (44.8 percent); in the second, they were 15-of-21 (71.4 percent).

"For the talent we have," said Austin, "we have to play scrappy, so we can be in the game at the end. Then if the other team isn't up to it, we can beat them."

Although the Chargers' record doesn't reflect it, by Austin's count they lost 11 games by five or fewer points. "We've set the tempo for the future of Churchill basketball," he said.

That future doesn't appear to be too distant.

Canton 47, Northville 36: The host Mustangs gave Plymouth Canton all it could handle in Monday's district opener — for a half.

Then defense took over.

The Chiefs, who trailed 19-17 at the half, limited Northville to 11 points in the second half until the final 18 seconds of the game, when the issue was already decided.

A three-pointer by Dave Terakedis had pulled Northville to within 30-28 with 3:58 left in the third quarter. After that, however, the Mustangs scored just one basket until those final 18 seconds.

The pivotal player for the Chiefs was, again, point guard Donte Scott. He scored his team's first eight points of the game en route to a game-high 19 points, on 7-of-11 shooting. He also had four rebounds, two steals and two assists.

Rob Johnson added 12 points (10 in-the second half) on 4-of-5 shooting, and grabbed eight rebounds. Northville got 12 points from Jeff Arenz and 10 from Luis Guajardo, but leading-scorer Terakedis was held to seven on 3-of-10 shooting, thanks to Scott's suffocating man-to-man defense.

The Chiefs scored the first six points of the second half, thanks to three steals by Nick Hurley, and never again trailed.

Northville finishes with a 10-11 record.

St. Agatha 82, Agape 36: Redford St. Agatha jumped out to leads of 19-11 and 36-19 en route to their 15th win in 20 games.

Spencer Galloway scored 15 points and Ian Wincher added 13 for the Aggies, while Matt Major led Agape with 15.

The Wolverines concluded their season 13-4 with the Class D district-opening loss at Southfield Franklin Road Christian.

Despite 3 wins, CC can't catch up to Brother Rice

Redford Catholic Central earned three individual firsts en route to a runner-up finish Sunday in the Catholic League boys swim championships held at Royal Oak Dondero.

Birmingham Brother Rice, ranked No. 1 in Class A, took the team title with 493 points followed by CC (315), University of Detroit-Jesuit (194), Harper Woods Notre Dame (169) and Warren DeLaSalle (120).

Kevin Reinke, a senior, swept the 100- and 200-yard freestyles with times of 49.23 and 1:46.85, respectively. Teammate Matt Baran captured first in the 500 freestyle (4:55.36).

J.P. Merchant added a pair of seconds in the 200- and 500 freestyles with times of 1:50.61 and 4:55.74, respectively. Nick Sosnowski added a second in the 200 individual medley (2:03.51).

All three CC relay teams also finished second — Sosnowski, Baran, Reinke and Paul Connolly, 200 medley (1:47.7); Tim Shedd, Nate Markou, Matt Tobkin and Doug Carlin, 200 freestyle (1:37.46); Ryan Meekins, Baran, Sosnowski and Reinke, 400 freestyle (3:19.42).

Connolly also added a third in the 100 breaststroke (1:04.27).

"The guys swam well and just about everybody posted their personal bests," CC first-year coach Dan Knipper said. "This is the most points we've scored in awhile."

Knipper also was pleased with two divers, Greg Braziunas and Mike Mattis, who took sixth and ninth, respectively.

CC has qualified for nine individual events and two relay races for Friday's state Class A preliminaries at the University of Michigan's Canham Natatorium in Ann Arbor.

In a meet Monday at UM, Meekins earned a state cut in the 100 freestyle (49.41), while Baran did the same in the 200 freestyle (1:48.48).

OUTDOOR INSIGHTS

BILL PARKER

It's that time of the year when cabin fever can really set in. The ice in southeastern Michigan is shot and ice fishing has come to a stand still. Rabbit hunting has also slowed to a tortoises pace with the lack of snow cover in our neck of the woods. If boredom has set in and you're itching to get out of the house, fear not. There are plenty of outdoor-related activities on tap this weekend to keep you're interest. Anglers, archers, turkey hunters and general outdoor enthusiasts can all get out and enjoy the weekend with numerous activities scheduled throughout the Observer & Eccentric coverage area which ranges from western Wayne County to northern Oakland County.

Gone fishin'

Want to catch a trout or hone your fly fishing skills? Check out the Midwest Fly Fishing Expo at the Southfield Civic center or the Greater Detroit Sportfishing Expo at the Palace of Auburn Hills.

The 19th annual Midwest Fly Fishing Expo, which is the major annual fundraiser for the Livonia-based Michigan Fly Fishing Club, runs Saturday (10 a.m.-7 p.m.) and Sunday (10 a.m.-5 p.m.) at the Southfield Civic Center, 26000 Evergreen Road.

Fly fishing experts Gary Borger, Dave Whitlock and Capt. John Kumiski will be the featured speakers. A slew of exhibitors will have booths at the show and will offer everything you need in fly fishing equipment. There will also be fly tying, rod building and casting demonstrations. Tickets are $8 for adults and children under 12 will be admitted free. Call (810) 486-4967 for more information.

The Sportfishing Expo runs today (4-9:30 p.m.), Friday (4-9:30 p.m.) Saturday (10 a.m.-9:30 p.m.) and Sunday (10 a.m.-6 p.m.) at the Palace of Auburn Hills. The show features continuous seminars with a lineup of all-star speakers including walleye experts Mark Martin, Bud Riser and Keith Kavajecz; bass busters Jeff Snyder and Bob Collins; renowned outdoor writer and film maker Tom Huggler; and many others.

The popular attraction the "Hawg Trough", which is a giant aquarium that gives spectators an up-close look at how different lures are presented and how live fish react to them, returns to the show. There are also over 300 exhibitors including manufacturer reps, fishing tackle dealers, guides and outfitters. Participants can check out a 3,100-pound great white shark, fish in a trout stream, experience "virtual reality" fishing against a computer, and purchase a 1997 fishing license from the Oakland County Sportfishing Association.

Tickets are $7.50 for adults, $3.50 for children ages 6-12, and children under six will be admitted free.

Huntin' for answers

Turkey hunters can get a jump on the upcoming spring season at a turkey hunting seminar slated for 6 p.m. Friday in Allen Park. Sponsored by the Michigan Big Game Hunters Association, the seminar will be conducted by Roy Aeschbacker and held at Red Fawn Hall, 6588 Allen Road, Allen Park. Hunters will learn hunting strategy and calling techniques and can also enjoy an all-you-can-eat spaghetti dinner.

Tickets are $10 and available by calling (313) 928-1340.

Archers can tune-up with a 3D shoot which begins at 9 a.m. Sunday at the Oakland County Sportsman Club in Clarkston. The shoot features all 3D targets and takes the archer through a wooded course featuring ground and elevated shots which simulate actual hunting situations.

The day begins at 8 a.m. with a pancake breakfast for all shooters. The Oakland County Sportsman Club is located at 4770 Waterford Road in Clarkston. Call (810) 623-0444 for more information.

If you'd prefer to stay indoors and shoot your bow, head north of the Palace on M-24 and check out Red Oaks Archery. Located just 1.5 miles east of M-24 on Davison Lake Road (the Oakland County/Lapeer County line), Red Oaks features an indoor 3D range with a moving buck target, 24 standard 20-yard shooting lanes, a dart tunnel (video archery), and a complete pro shop. Its best to call ahead for a reservation, (810) 628-1661.

Make changes now

If you've considered adding a scope to your favorite deer rifle, or trying a different load in your muzzleloader, now is a great time to make those changes since there is usually no waiting at the local rifle and shotgun ranges at this time of year. Bald Mountain in Lake Orion (810-814-9193), Pontiac Lake in Waterford (810-666-1020) and Pointe Mouillee near Rockford (313-379-3820) are all open for shooting during the winter.

Sweet maple syrup

If you fancy maple syrup on your pancakes or waffles, you can learn the art of making your own syrup through a couple programs offered through the Huron-Clinton Metroparks and Oakland County Parks. See how maple trees are tapped, and how the sap is drained and then boiled down into syrup.

Independence Oaks, near Clarkston, will offer a program on maple sugaring beginning at 1:30 p.m. Saturday. Independence Oaks is located on Sashabaw Road, 1.5-miles north of I-75. Call (810) 625-0877 for reservations.

Similar programs will be offered throughout the weekend at Indian Springs Metropark near White Lake and at Kensington Metropark near Milford. Call (800) 477-3192 for more information and to make a reservation at the Metroparks.

So there you have it. If one of the above activities don't break the cabin fever you can always head out to your deer hunting spot and look for shed antlers, check out the rabbit hunting opportunities at one of the local state game areas, or simply stay home and rent a hunting or fishing video. You don't have to be bored and full of cabin fever.

Anglers and hunters are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information to 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI. 48009. Fax information to (810) 644-1314 or call Bill Parker evenings at (810) 901-2573.

Shamrocks done in by Denby

BASKETBALL

Redford Catholic Central senior guard Marc McDonald scored the 1,200th point of his career in the first half of Saturday's Operation-Friendship Game, but adding to that milestone after halftime wasn't going to be easy.

Detroit Denby used several players to limit McDonald to two baskets in the second half and the Tars rallied to beat the Shamrocks, 68-56, at the University of Detroit-Mercy's Calihan Hall.

McDonald, who also surpassed the 200 mark for career three-point baskets recently, had 16 points by halftime.

He had 10 points in the first quarter when the Shamrocks jumped to a 25-15 lead. The Tars increased their defensive pressure, however, and made four shots from three-point range in the second quarter to take a 40-36 halftime lead.

CC's 6-foot-10 junior center Chris Young had a game-high 25 points, including six straight to start the second half, but the Tars were willing to exchange his points for less from McDonald.

The Tars' couldn't enjoy their championship long, however, as they were upset Monday in a Class A district first-round game by Grosse Pointe South.

"That boy can play," Denby coach Reuben Washington said of McDonald, who has signed with Loyola (Chicago). "He went to work in the first half. We just played good man defense, kept sending bodies at him. We'd rather shut down the three and were hoping for help low. He (Young) is 6-10 and our biggest guy is 6-4 so we were giving at least six inches."

Senior guard Sydney Mitchell led the Detroit Public School League champion Tars with 22 points. Taberi Jones scored 16 and Derrele Murray 13.

Senior guard Ronald Dotson, the son of professional boxer Tommy Hearns, had seven points and was one of the players assigned to guard McDonald.

"We just wanted to cut off his driving and keep a hand in his face because he can shoot," Dotson said.

McDonald made his first shot attempt of the second half, a reverse layup with 5:32 left in the third quarter that gave the Shamrocks a 44-42 lead.

He missed his last five shots of the third quarter and two more to start the fourth quarter before finally ending his scoring drought with 2:32 remaining in the game.

"I was tired from the very beginning," McDonald said. "My legs were not there. I don't know if the weeks have caught up with me or what."

Despite the lack of scoring, CC trailed only 61-56 after McDonald's basket.

The Shamrocks had a chance to cut the deficit to three or two, but one of the CC players lost the ball out of bounds after grabbing a rebound on the defensive end with 2:05 left.

The Tars went on to outscore the Shamrocks 7-0 the rest of the way.

"This game was a lot closer than the score indicates, but that's the way it goes," CC coach Rick Coratti said.

"We were still in it (down 61-56). We had got the rebound, came up the floor, had scored four straight, who knows?" We had some good shots, just missed them. We came down here to win."

Consumers want products that last

JOE GAGNON

The past four day weekend is what I call the busiest of the year. During this time I run the business, do radio shows, seminars at the builders state and book signings at my publisher's booth, compliments of the annual home and garden show at the Pontiac Silver Dome.

I meet some very interesting people during this period, and I have a chance to talk one on one with hundreds who receive the straight scope.

It is nice to have conversations with consumers who are seeking information about what it is they are about to go out and purchase. Some of the people at the retail level can't be too happy with me when the customer begins to ask questions inferring my name.

The leading question I was asked during this period was what I thought is the trend of new appliances coming in the next few years. My answer provided ammunition for this column you are now reading.

Major appliances has been bascially the same for the past 50 years. The biggest changes have been in the design features to create an appearance which matches with the rest of the room they are fitted into. Colors are changed every dozen years or so to give the customers a fresh look of a given era. Electronic board activated controls are the new thing which gives you a space age dimensional look and ease of operation.

Things are made smoother and sealed for easier cleaning and almost impossible for unqualified consumers to take apart.

Question: Am I being positive enough in this article? I am telling you that the new appliances of the future are looking absolutely beautiful and something to marvel at. Question: Am I being honest with you? The answer is NO.

The new trend in major appliances is to continue to receive from the manufacturers some products which have life spans greatly diminished from only several years ago. The quality and longevity are not there, and neither is the value that a customer once received when they purchased a product. The parts that eventually need replacing no longer cost a mere $25 but cost hundreds of dollars and you can't do it yourself anymore. Colors are changed almost overnight in manufacturing which imposes a need to replace good working products with new ones because they don't match the recent needed purchase.

Millions of consumers have been through this very costly era and millions will go through it again. No wonder the color white is sold in such numbers today and who knows what tomorrow will hold.

It appears that the producers in this country are not listening to consumers. People want a product to last a reasonable amount of time according to what old technology gave them, not the opposite. They don't want repairs to cost them more than the purchase price of the product, especially when it's only a few years old. They demand a value to meet certain expectations and it's not being delivered. Wasn't the car industry enough of a lesson to the appliance manufacturers. I don't believe so.

At the show this past weekend, there was on display a line of foreign made appliances which are there every year. This year I saw more people gathering around the sales personnel of Trevarow's Distributors than ever before. They were looking a quality and prices which they some day will be able to afford.

Joe Gagnon, the Appliance Doctor, will answer your questions about maintaining and repairing large appliances. Gagnon is president of Carmack Appliances in Garden City.

Fitting gift

Together: Two silver-plated nesting flutes fit together to form a greater goblet. The 5-1/2-inch tall Cazenovia Abroad goblets, each inscribed with "And they shall be one," are a perfect gift to celebrate an anniversary. The pair retails for $149 at Heslop's at the Merri-Five Plaza in Livonia, MeadowBrook Village in Rochester Hills, Oakland Mall in Troy and Orchard Mall in West Bloomfield.

Mirror, mirror

Bright look: The contrasting backgrounds of the outer and inner frames effectively highlight the colorful flowers on this hand-painted Peruvian mirror. The burnished gold completes this "Old World" look. The mirror is available in a variety of patterns and sizes to complement any home decor. Available for $42 at Sun Gate Imports, 550 Forest, Plymouth.

On the screen

Tune in: Frame Space Gallery, 4326 N. Woodward, Royal Oak, has installed a new, state of the art laser disc system that allows customers to choose from more than 29,000 pieces of art. The laser disc projects the images of art work on a special TV screen. Customers can choose from all types of works – including original oil paintings, limited edition prints, posters, photography, figurines and animation art – by hundreds of artists in all price ranges. Pieces may be viewed by artist and title, or by subject and color. An educational selection of samples of different styles can help determine what type of art might appeal to a particular individual. Call (810) 549-1640.

A rose is a rose ...

... and a special gift: Silk rose topiaries combine lifelike materials with the traditional symbol of love for a gift that will be cherished for years to come. The topiaries are available in various shades of blushing pink or a combination of white, yellow and pink. A patina-finished clay pot and a stem consisting of real twigs complete this "Old World" look. The topiaries retail for $16.98 in a three-inch pot and $39.98 in a five-inch pot. Available at English Gardens, 6370 Orchard Lake Road at Maple in West Bloomfield. Call (810) 851-7506.

Fiscal responsibility: a lesson in life

LISA LUCKOW-HEALY

How do you teach your children that money doesn't grow on trees or inside an automated teller machine (ATM)? One way might be to plant loose change or an expired ATM card in the ground and show young children it doesn't grow.

If you have a teenager, and you've mutually agreed his after-school job should pay for his gas and car insurance, he may learn a financial lesson if he spends his paycheck on fun and frivolity and has nothing left over to fill the fuel tank.

My parents bailed me out of my teenage deficit spending numerous times while trying to teach me the value of a hard-earned dollar. As a parent, I'm now concerned about how my husband and I will teach our children about financial responsibility.

According to Kiplinger's "Money-Smart Kids" (Kiplinger Books), children between the ages of 4 and 12 have annual income of more than $14.4 billion, of which they spend around $8.8 billion and save almost $6 billion. Less than half of children's incomes come from allowances, 20 percent from working around the house and 16 percent from their parents as gifts. They get 10 percent of their money from work they do outside the home and 8 percent as gifts from relatives and friends.

In today's day and age, it's necessary to set limits on your child's spending because a child who tends to have everything often loses respect for money and his parents.

The preschool years. Day-to-day examples of money can be more effective than a laborious discussion at this age. On a trip to the grocery store, ask your 4-year-old to look for the bread on the shelf that's marked with the yellow sale tag. Explain that this sign means the loaf costs less money than the others, so you have money left over to buy milk.

At home, ask your child to pick up his toys and start making his bed with your assistance, if he isn't already.

The allowance years. School-age children are in their prime allowance-earning years. What allowance amount do you set for your child and what tasks do you expect him to complete in return for his earnings?

Sit down with him and discuss what you believe is fair based on what the allowance will cover. The arcade? School lunches? Movies? Clothing? Savings? Is it fair to expect your son or daughter to load and unload the dishwasher? Cut the grass? Keep the bedroom clean? Set expectations and stick to them as much as possible.

Teenage wonder years. Myth: "Mom and Dad's Visa ought to cover it." Fact: "Son, here's your Visa bill for the new snowboard." In the long run, these parents will be left to bail their children out of the plastic obsession. This is one reason why it's a good idea to set up reasonable spending goals that are manageable for your teen.

One of Kiplinger's solutions to curbing teenage spending is the 70-20-10 rule of money management. Of the teen's income, he may spend 70 percent, save 20 percent for the future, more expensive purchases such as the snowboard, and use 10 percent for long-term investing.

Excitement sparks garden planning

MARTY FIGLEY

It's still not time to get out into our gardens. The ground is just too full of water and if we try to rush the season, we will compact the ground, which will make it more difficult in the long run for plants to spread their roots and grow properly.

However, there are still some exciting things to report to you gardeners so you can plan.

American Home & Botanical Garden is sponsoring a photo contest for amateur photographers and my friend, Walter Chandoha, a world-renowned photographer of flora and fauna, is the spokesman.

He has prepared a special booklet, "Tips for Garden Photography," that is available at no cost. Send a business-size, self-addressed, stamped envelope to American Garden Photo Tips. C/O 8026 Venetian Drive, St. Louis, Mo. 63105; or via Internet at www.cpiphoto.com.

The photo can be of any garden, public or private. First prize is $1,000 cash and the other prizes are great, too! Entry deadline is June 30, 1997. Call (800) 669-9699, Ext. 4200, for additional information.

For a second year, the Sunshine Creative Window Box Contest will take place. You can receive a free booklet, "Creative Ideas for Window Boxes," and an official entry blank by calling (800) 665-4592, or visit http://www.Sungro.com on the worldwide web.

A total of more than $10,000 in prizes will be awarded. The contest is sponsored by Sun Fro Horticulture Inc., Bellevue, Wash., a large producer of professional growing mixes and peat moss in North America.

New for the garden

New this year is a forest green-colored edging/border product manufactured by Easy Gardener. It is called Emerald Edge and can be hammered into the ground by using a mallet. Easy Gardener products are widely available locally.

The Perennial Plant Association announces that the 1997 perennial plant of the year is Salvia "May Night." It is adapted to most areas of the country and will grace gardens with its tall, dark blue-black flowers during May and June. The blue-gray foliage is aromatic.

"May Night" prefers full sun and average to dry garden soil. Early spring is the best time to plant bare-root stock, although potted plants may be put in the ground any time during the growing season. Combine this winner with yellow Achillea "Coronation Gold" or with pink or red herbaceous peonies.

What flowering plant is suitable for patio containers, in the garden and indoors as a house plant? Introduced by Anthony Tesselaar, an Australian nurseryman, the new Canna Tropicanna has striped foliage that evolves from burgundy to red, pink, yellow, gold then deep green. It is topped off by a rich, true orange bloom.

Look for it as a container plant for your favorite nursery or it can be ordered bare-root from Daffodil Mart, Spring Hill Nurseries or Van Bourgondien Bros. This will be a show-stopper.

Another new introduction is available this year. The George Burns Centennial Rose is a fragrant floribunda with large red flowers striped with creamy white. Each flower has a different striped pattern. It has deep blue-green glossy leaves and is highly disease-resistant.

Spring Hill Nurseries of Peoria, Ill., has introduced this unusual plant. For more information, call (309) 689-3849 or

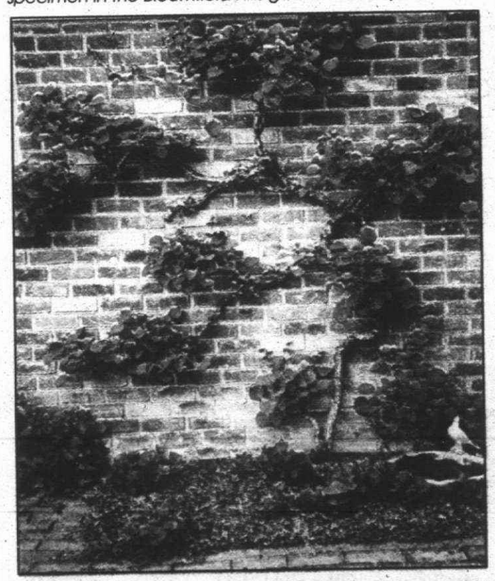
A lesson in gardening: The way it should be done

ON THE COVER

A Euonymus has been trained to grow as an espaliered specimen in the Bloomfield Hills garden of Betty Trost.



BY MARTY FIGLEY
Special Writer

A stroll through her garden with Betty Trost of Bloomfield Hills is a lesson about the way gardening should be done. I spent a delightful hour with this generous lady and learned a lot about her gardening practices. By the way, she volunteers countless hours at Cranbrook Gardens and has done so for many years.

As you enter the garden through a hand-wrought gate, a large Hornbeam tree, Capinus betulus, with interesting gray bark has an under planting of Hostas in shades of gold and green foliage. Lady's mantle, alchemilla vulgaris, also grows here keeping company with a handsome euonymus. Both have chartreuse blooms and the euonymus extends the season with the same color seed pods when the blooms are gone. A lavender-blooming clematis climbs up one corner area.

Shades of green foliage is repeated across the deck area where blue princess holly, ilex, junipers, juniperus, Sherwood spruce, picea, rhododendrons and pines, pinus mugo, provide a restful backdrop to the northweast corner of the home.

As the seasons have come and gone, the garden has changed and she says, "This was a July/August garden when it was sunny, but now as the trees have matured, shade is a consideration. Now it is basically a spring garden and at this point is a garden of textures. There is one big Silver Maple tree, acer, in the center of the back garden that provides much shade and has long roots that reach out into the garden beds. That is something I have to contend with."

The large area, which she and her husband, Norm, can enjoy from the house, contains "billions" of blue forget-me-nots, myosotis, and pink and white tulips, tulipa, in the spring. Basically, throughout the year, the garden colors are pink, white, gray and maroon. In early spring glory of snow, chionodoxa, fills the bed, followed with billows of the blue forget-me-nots. White blooming spirea and a double gold kerria which has chartreuse stems throughout the year, peegee hydrangeas and white fothergillas add interest. Also, pink sidalcea, which self sows freely and has blooms like miniature holly-hocks, and sedum "autumn joy" are all growing happily in their chosen location.

Betty often repositions the plants in this garden to suit herself and likes those that have a "see-through" quality when the late afternoon sun shows them at their best.

Clumps of gray lamb's ears, stachys byzantina, outline the edges of the garden and the sedum, sand cherries, prunus besseyi, a bushy shrub, and a smoke tree, cotinus coggygria, provide the maroon shades. The smoke tree is kept cut back to keep it in scale, therefore it doesn't bloom. Several big double pink carefree beauty roses are growing on either side of the smoke tree and make a nice contrast.

Near the back of the garden, "my all time favorite" is a witch hazel, hamamells "Arnold Promise" which has delicate yellow blooms in February and March "for five weeks!" She told me this plant is related to another member of the hamamelidaceae family parrotia persica, a small tree which grows nearby and has exciting bright fall foliage. Fothergilla is also in this family and it, too, is quite colorful in the fall season.

When the saponaria (soapworts), asters and phlox have grown tall and before they flower, she cuts half the stems off about half way and lets the rest of them remain long. This way bloom time is considerably increased.

In September and October the fall aster, asteracae "Alma Potschke" will bloom with vibrant reddish-vermilion blossoms. Betty says, "It knocks your eye out." Some of the same flowers growing in this garden are also grown in her holding area – or her cut and share garden. Saponaria (bouncing bet), daisies, yarrow, feverfew, chrysanthemum parthenium, fountain grass and cut-leaf violets, viola, are just a few. Both of these beds have tall shrubs in the back.

Another view the couple likes to enjoy from their home is a heavenly blue morning glory, ipomea, vine which is growing over a 20-foot tall mock orange, philadelphus, shrub. She also enjoys a lace leaf viburnum and a barberry, berberis, which has yellow racemes and yellow flowers and berries that begin as yellow and turn reddish in the fall. At that time of year the leaves turn a "fiery beautiful red," adding another dimension to the garden.

Betty's philosophy is to "find what does well and grow it. A wise gardener takes a common plant and learns how to treat it." For instance, she digs up some of the plants in the spring when they are six inches high, disturbs the roots, and then puts them back down in the ground. The result is straight stems so no staking is necessary. Yarrow, achillea rosea, and saponaria, or anything that is aggressive can be treated in this manner. At that time, the plants can also be divided.

In a shady, quiet corner, another vignette appears and can also be seen from the house. Here are several evergreens such as Norway Spruce, and tucked back in the center is a pedestal. Betty says, "People often asked, 'what are you going to put on it?' and I tell them there is nothing to figure out, it just adds to a quiet texture." A hand-made heart-shaped bird bath setting on the ground invites these friends into the garden and the Christmas ferns, polystichum acrostichoides, and Japanese painted ferns, athyrium niponicum, grow nearby. Large rocks are positioned alongside the Japanese painted ferns to shade their roots and to hold moisture in the ground. A 25-year-old crabapple, malus 'red jade' tree adds an anchor to the garden.

Along the back brick fence, and in other areas of the garden, perennial lirope grows to 12 inches tall. It forms a dark green low hedge-like effect and makes a wonderful backdrop for other plants. Betty says, "People don't use it enough; it holds the soil. It is cut back early in the spring to about two inches and then needs no other care."

A rock garden filled with tufa rocks is filled with many plants. Betty says, "This area has been the same for 30 years and the loss of an old crabapple tree, which was destroyed by ice last winter, makes it necessary to remove the shade lovers and add those that need more sun."

In addition to all this, a large shady area in the front of the Trost home is a spectacular sight in the spring as it blooms with many varieties of wildflowers. I hope to share this special garden with you at a later time.

Show your metal: Try steel furniture

NAOMI STONE LEVY

Most of us associate metal furniture with porches and terraces. However, there are many other elegant types of metal furniture and accessories to which we should be exposed. You will quickly revise your thinking. I suggest a diversified mixture. All metal would be cold.

We can deal with seating pieces, coffee tables, consoles, dining tables, beds, headboards, lamps and chandeliers. It is feasible to use both new and/or antiques.

Upholstered sofas and chairs are an unparalleled venue. There is a dramatic set of dining chairs, fashioned of black straps of iron, the uprights topped with balls . The upholstery of the cushion is of primary importance. It might be a printed canvas, or even a heavily textured and beautifully colored chenille.

A venerable and distinguished artisan named Diego Giacometti is renowned for his signed furniture pieces. He was the brother of the artist Alberto Giacometti, and obviously was influenced by his skills.

Diego used small birds and animals perched on the lower rungs of his pieces. These were almost always made of bar steel, semi-polished to a lovely patina.

The originals are costly beyond belief. There are copies that you will love, but they too aren't inexpensive. One piece is all you need to create an eclectic atmosphere.

In the days of steam heat there were often metal radiator covers, well designed and very decorative, with lovely grill work fronts and solid tops. Finding a small one would result in a whimsical end table, set next to an armchair.

The only place I can recommend would be a shop that specializes in architectural parts, such as old columns, old windows and over-door fan lights.

Polished steel and glass are a 20th century innovation. Whether the steel is tubular or made of flat straps is irrelevant. It will forever be recorded in the history of furniture that this new technology and space design was born of the need to eliminate 19th century curlicues and embellishments.

Once again we deal with polished metal seating furniture, coffee tables, dining tables and chairs, consoles, beds and headboards. Even though we think of the aforementioned as very new, a designer named Eileen Grey originated much of it in the early 1920s. A woman well ahead of her time!

Think of the dozens and dozens of metal accessories on the market. Candlesticks and tall candlestands, boxes, trivets, tabletop ornamental brass or silver bits and pieces, to name only a few. Whether antiques or made yesterday they will resonate your own good taste. If interspersed with ivory, wood, leather, the metal becomes a great foil.

Take time when planning kitchen

Q: What are the items we should consider in a kitchen design. We have gotten many great ideas from our contractor but feel as if we might be missing some of the more practical things.

A: Because this is the place most people gather together in a home, you will want to take your time on designing this room. Also keep in mind that this is the part of the remodeling project that cannot be done quickly. Often times, homeowners want their project done quickly and do not realize the planning involved. Here are a few questions to ask yourself in the planning stage.

■ How do you currently use your kitchen?

■ What type of pots and pans do you own? You won't want to buy a 14,000 BTU commercial range if you have pots and pans from a discount store.

■ How do you prepare a meal? Do you use every pot and pan or do you simply tear open a box and toss the contents into the microwave?

■ On the average, how many cooks use the kitchen at one time? (You may want to create separate work zones for more efficient use of the space.)

■ Are you a baker who would benefit from a lower counter or island?

■ How do you shop? If you buy in bulk, do you have enough storage space?

■ Is there a certain style cuisine you prepare that requires storage for special ingredients, such as varying sizes of pasta or exotic spices and oils?

■ Do you enjoy cooking, or is your kitchen more of a gathering place than a gourmet retreat? If it is a gathering spot, is there room for family and friends who are not involved in the meal preparation? Is that space convenient and comfortable for everyone?

■ Would a family desk be helpful in this space?

■ Do you have children or teens that will be using the kitchen? Is so, would if be helpful to have a separate area in the kitchen dedicated to sodas and snack preparation?

■ Have you taken safety issues into consideration?

■ Is the lighting you have planned sufficient?

■ Does your family eat together often? If so, do you want an eat-in kitchen? How many need to be seated? Do you have enough room for all of them?

■ Do you entertain? How often? Do you prepare meals yourself or do you have them catered? What type of entertaining paraphernalia will you need to store? Have you been storing kitchen-related items in closets or rooms outside of the kitchen?

■ Have you made an inventory of the types of kitchen items you need to store to determine efficient placement and adequate storage space?

■ Is everything currently in working order or do you need to update large and small appliances?

■ Have you considered the energy savings afforded by newer, energy efficient appliances?

A collectors party – American style

RUTH MOSSOK JOHNSTON

With the continued interest in "collecting" – especially antiques, and nostalgic collectables, planning an afternoon get-together filled with American cuisine and the sharing of American antiques would be the perfect combination.

In planning your guest list, invite those that have a collection – antique purses, perfume bottles, hat pins, early books, carnival glass, quilts, tin, advertising items, kitchen-ware, sterling spoons, thimbles, etc ... or those that have an interest in collecting.

This might be the perfect way for someone to decide what they would like to collect. There are actual "Quester" groups in every state that have a speaker or member share (once a month) about "what they collect" and present a paper on their chosen collection or subject.

Plan as a group to go to the Henry Ford Museum, the Detroit Historical Museum, a grouping of antique shops (Royal Oak, Troy, Plymouth and Northville have quite a few), or a specific Antique show (the Southfield Americana Antiques Show & Sale is slated for March 21, 22, and 23 – at the Southfield Civic Center – check your Observer and Eccentric for listings of other upcoming antique shows and sales). Lunch could be served before or after the outing.

Keep the luncheon early American – or if you've got a group that collects European or English Antiques, give it a different flair – one that reflects the site of origin of the antiques or collectables to be viewed and discussed. Use antique dishes, linens and serving pieces, if you have them – add a touch of lace and sterling or for a more rustic flair, accessorize with sponge-ware pottery and a vase filled with hydrangeas.

After lunch, the host or hostess should plan to "show and tell" about his or her own personal collection – have some reference materials (from the library or your own collection) related to the topic at hand, to share with guests. Then, each guest (or some of the guests) could share an antique they've brought or one they just bought!

Your menu could be a nice hearty stew (great for lunch or dinner) as a one dish meal add some crusty bread and an apple pie for dessert. The stew can be made ahead of time or put in the oven with a timer.

If time is not limited, this could be an all day deal – start out with an early breakfast for all the guests – then get into the car(s) and head for Ohio – stop for lunch at the Golden Lamb Inn located in Lebanon, Ohio (about 31/2 hours from the Detroit area - 7 miles east of I-75). Lunch is served: Monday-Saturday 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., Sunday noon to 3 p.m. and dinners: Monday-Saturday 5-9 p.m. and Sunday 4-8 p.m. Call for information: 513-932-5065. Then, hit Waynesville (seven miles from Lebanon) – a tiny city filled with streets of antique shops!

OVEN STEW

Yield: 8 servings

This delicious oven stew is easy to prepare – the meat does not need to be browned!

You can almost turn on the oven and forget about it.

3 pounds lean stew meat (Beef, Bison or Lamb), trimmed and cut into cubes
1 (28 ounce) can diced seasoned tomatoes
1/2 cup beef bouillon (homemade or prepared)
1/2 cup dry red wine
1 pound small white onions, peeled
5 medium-sized carrots, peeled and cut into bite-sized pieces
2 pounds small pound potatoes, peeled
4-5 stalks celery, washed and cut into bite-sized pieces
4 tablespoons tapioca
1/4 cup fine bread crumbs
Bay leaf(s)
Salt and freshly ground pepper

Preheat oven to 250 degrees F.

In a large casserole or Dutch (French) oven add all ingredients and stir well. Bake in low temp. oven for 5 to 6 hours. Stir occasionally - end cooking time when meat is well cooked and all vegetables are tender. You may want to cook it uncovered for the last 1/2 hour.

3 cups apples, peeled, cored and sliced (medium)
1 cup sugar
1/3 cup flour
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon

Topping:

1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup brown sugar
1 cup flour

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F.

Place the apples in the pie shell. Sprinkle with the sugar, flour, nutmeg and cinnamon.

Melt the butter in a saucepan and mix in flour and brown sugar to make a crumbly topping mixture.

Top the pie with the crumbly mixture, and bake for 30-40 minutes or until apples are tender and top is golden.

Change of angle gives a new view

You'll be pleasantly surprised at how a change in camera angle can enhance and add impact to your photographs. A bird's eye view or a worm's eye view can give you a perspective not obtainable in any other way.

Finding a rise or hilltop from which to shoot that serene farmland pastoral will reward you with a picture you just can't get by photographing head on. All the intimacies of the scene will come together in a way no other angle will give you.

Even try shooting the next family gathering from atop a stool or chair to produce an exciting aspect you can't get by standing on the floor.

In the picture shown here, I concluded that a worm's eye view of this lion "guarding" the obelisk in London's Trafalgar Square would result in a dramatic photo. Shooting upward also helped emphasize the cloud patterns.

As in all good photography, compose carefully by placing the elements in the scene in the strongest position of the viewfinder. Expose properly and the shot is yours.

Petunia power

The National Garden Bureau celebrates 1997 as the Year of the Petunia. This flower originated in South America and was introduced in Europe in the early 1800s. Plant breeders have been working with them ever since to create the wonderful flowers we see today.

There are many classes of petunias: Multiflora, Grandflora, Spreading, Floribunda and Milliflora. They prefer a light but rich soil with good drainage and do like a sunny location.

After the plants are in the garden, fertilize them monthly with a balanced formula; double-flowered ones like to be fed about once every two to three weeks. If they are pruned back about midsummer, new shoots and more flowers will result. Milliflora and trailing petunias need no pruning.

TIMELY GARDEN TIPS

- If you haven't gotten your 1997 engagement calendar, check out Tasha Tudor's (Houghton-Mifflin, $15.95). It's a beauty and includes monthly observations.
- Check tree and shrub stakes and ties. Loosen guy wires that might strangle trunks.
- Order bare-root trees and shrubs for planting as soon as the ground is frost-free and isn't soggy.
- Soak bare-root plants in tepid water for several hours before planting.
- Trim winter-damaged hedges.

Nagler

Bird's eye photographs can be just as effective. It may require climbing up something to get the right angle, but so what? Just do it!

Picture an old barn, for example, surrounded by a field of tall Queen Anne's Lace. Standing in the field will produce just an ordinary shot. But kneeling down in the field to effectively "raise" the Queen Anne's Lace into the sky will reward you with an extraordinary photograph. Or consider shooting through that rustic old fence rather than over it for more impact-filled results.

As always, close attention must be paid to depth-of-field. For maximum results, everything should be sharp and in focus from front to back. Often a small aperture will give you the results you want.

For unusual portraits of some of your friends, try photographing them from the ground looking up.

The important thing is to experiment, use your imagination and have fun. Low and especially high angles aren't just for the birds!

Monte Nagler is a fine art photographer based in Farmington Hills. You can leave him a message by dialing (313) 953-2047 on a touch-tone phone, then his mailbox number, 1873. His fax number is (810) 644-1314.

FESTIVAL SHOWCASES IRISH JEWELS – MUSIC, DANCE

BY KEELY WYGONIK • STAFF WRITER

In Ireland, "Going-to-America" is a household word.

"Everyone knows someone who lives in America," said Leo McNamara, who just arrived from Ireland and is staying with his cousin, Maureen Lucas, and her family in Troy. "America is the place to go."

Many Americans, however, think about "Going-to-Ireland" to dig up family roots and discover their heritage, especially around St. Patrick's Day, which is celebrated this year on Monday, March 17.

"We started the St. Patrick's Day Irish Fest 12 years ago to give families a place to hear Irish music and celebrate," said Mick Gavin, who lays carpet and ceramic tile during the day and plays music at night, and on weekends.

Gavin, who comes from a family of musicians in Ireland, started holding the festival the Monaghan Knights of Columbus Hall in Livonia. "We grew from 300 people to 2,000 people," said Gavin. "There was no place to park, so we moved to the Bonnie Brook Banquet Center on Telegraph south of Eight Mile.

"Now we're moving again to the Hellenic Cultural Center, where there's more room and parking," said Gavin.

This year's Irish Festival features over 60 dancers and musicians including Leo McNamara an outstanding flutist known throughout Ireland; Mike Belvich of Canton, North American champion step dancer and fifth place winner in the All-Ireland competition; award-winning harpist and step dancer Colleen Burke of Novi; Ed McGlinchey, Terence McKinney, City of Detroit Pipe Band, the O'Hare School of Dance, and The Kitty Heinzman Ceili Dancers.

You'll hear musicians performing on Irish pipes, concert flute, fiddle, mandolin, piano, and guitar. There will be singers, 20 step dancers and 20 Ceili dancers.

Irish food and spirits will be available for purchase including corned beef and cabbage dinners, Irish stew, Scottish meat pies, hot dogs and other snacks.

"This is not a profit-maker," said Gavin. "We want to keep it entertaining and keep the price down so families can come."

He advertised the event in the "Riverdance" program, and has received about 100 calls from people interested in attending, but even before "Riverdance," Gavin, noticed a growing interested in Irish music and dance.

"It's a new challenge, and a new country to play music in," said McNamara who grew up in East Clare. "Flute music has been around Ireland for a long time, before the fiddle."

A self-taught musician, McNamara is a carpenter by trade. He started playing penny whistle when he was 10, and played flute through school. Matt Malloy of the Chieftains was an influence, as was Christy Barry. Now 30, McNamara began playing semi-professionally when he was 20, has played on radio and TV, and toured France, England and Ireland.

"Many Americans may think of Irish music as Tin Pan Alley – 'My Wild Irish Rose' – that sort of thing," said Gavin. "That isn't the case at all. The real music of Ireland has been beautifully nurtured over the years by many great musicians.

Irish music is for everyone to share, play, enjoy and dance to. It takes a lifetime to learn it. I've been playing fiddle for 40 years, but I've only scratched the surface."

McNamara has dreams of being a professional musician – in America. Gavin dreams of an Academy of Irish Music where he, McNamara and other musicians can pass their knowledge to others.

"I do intend to start such an academy," said Gavin. "The music was handed down to us, and I think it's our duty to hand it down to others. We have to give it to our children. I'm 51, and this is what I intend to achieve from now on."

Experimental film fest upholds Ann Arbor tradition

BY JOHN MONAGHAN
SPECIAL WRITER

Brian DePalma, Andy Warhol, Gus Van Sant, Agnes Varda, George Lucas, Kenneth Anger. The Ann Arbor Film Festival has been responsible for introducing these names to a wider audience.

But perhaps an even greater achievement is how the 35-year-old festival (the oldest of its kind in the country) has managed to stay afloat despite the changing tastes of Ann Arbor's video-crazy student population. It runs March 11-16 at the Michigan Theatre in Ann Arbor.

"I don't know what it is that makes students more connected to the Hollywood cinema than avant-garde films or classics," says Vicki Honeyman, director of the festival for the past 10 years. "Interestingly enough, a lot of the filmmakers who make the stuff for MTV or experimental commercials began making films for the Festival."

Honeyman has been part of the festival since the 1970s, when she was an active member of Cinema Guild and Cinema 2, two of the premiere venues for avant-garde films, not just in Ann Arbor, but across the country. Cinema Guild used to co-sponsor the event before it became a non-profit organization separate from the University of Michigan.

There are no video screenings in the program, and Honeyman likes it that way. "I know there are lots of talented people working in video," she says, "but this is a film festival ... it does not look as good as film; it's a different medium."

A team of bleary-eyed film fanatics sift through some 350 entries from around the world, which stack up on every available surface in the festival office behind Honeyman's hair salon. About 100 chosen films are screened over five nights for the public while a panel of judges (usually filmmakers themselves) awards $11,000 in cash prizes.

West Bloomfield artist and filmmaker Leslie Raymond directed "Rife w/Fire," documenting one man's pyrotechnic demonstrations. In her artist's statement, she points out that film and fire are ideal companions because they "share the rudimentary principles of light and movement."

"There are other festivals, but a majority of them aren't purely focused on film," Raymond says. "As technology turns to digital medium that is more and more video compatible, I see film as something of a dying breed. I'm definitely encouraged by Ann Arbor's devotion to a film-only festival."

Disney brings magic of 'Toy Story' to ice

BY KEELY WYGONIK
STAFF WRITER

Animators made Woody and Buzz Lightyear come alive in Disney's "Toy Story."

Recreating those characters, and making them believable was a challenge for director Jerry Bilik, scenic coordinator Mark Freddes and other people behind the scenes of "Walt Disney's World on Ice – Toy Story," now playing at Joe Louis Arena in Detroit.

"We had to create characters that people would empathize with," explained Bilik who attended the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, and was later a professor there. "This is the hardest show we've done."

Costumes, lighting, and music play critical roles in bringing the magic of the movie to ice. "It's a show about a journey," said Bilik. "Because the toys are plastic we had to cover up faces and skaters had to learn to skate in the costumes. When the skaters go into the arena we have to try to make the audience believe they're eight inches tall."

The tallest skater in the show is 6 feet 2 inches, and the shortest is five feet 2 inches; five feet six inches is the average.

In "Walt Disney's World on Ice Toy Story," the audience becomes a participant as they venture into Andy's room to meet Buzz Lightyear, Woody, Mr. Potato Head, Bo Peep, and Slinky Dog.

"Where the set stops, the audience fills in the blanks," explained Bilik. "It's a shared experience."

All of us have wondered what our toys do after we go to sleep or leave them.

Toys become so alive when you're playing with them.

"Toy Story," is about Woody, a pull-string cowboy, who gets upset when Andy, his 6-year-old owner, gets a new toy, Buzz Lightyear. Andy tosses Woody aside to play with Buzz. Besides making Woody mad, Buzz hasn't figured out that he's a toy, and not a lost space ranger. The two feuding toys get lost in the outside world, and land in the clutches of Sid, the neighborhood boy who destroys toys for fun.

Working together to escape from Sid, Buzz and Andy discover the true meaning of friendship.

"Toy Story on Ice" was choreographed by Olympic Gold Medalist Robin Cousins with an ensemble cast led by American Eddie Gornick as Woody, and Russia's Stanislav Jirov as Buzz Lightyear. Gornick is tall and slender, while Gornick is a compact powerhouse.

"This is a basic, simple, wonderful story about bonding and friendship," said Bilik. "Through skating, we see the heart and soul of the whole story clearer. This production is a celebration of friendship."

"Walt Disney's World on Ice – Toy Story"

When: through March 9 at Joe Louis Arena, Detroit.

Performances: 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 6-9; 11:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. Saturday, March 8; 1 p.m. and 5 p.m. Sunday, March 9.

Tickets: $11.50, $14.50 and $17.50, call (313) 983-6606 for information, or Ticketmaster (810) 645-6666 to charge tickets by phone.

As scenic director, Mark Freddes helps create some of the magic on ice. "Because the props and sets are designed oversized it was a huge undertaking," he said. "We had to ensure throughout the process of building the sets that we stayed in proportion and took into account the size of the real-life skaters and the oversized effect we were trying to create."

Andy's bed is 12 feet high, and elevators were built to get the characters up on it. "In animation it's easy to get characters from one point to another, but we're dealing with real life skaters in this show," said production designer Robert Little.

Making costumes the skaters could skate in was another challenge, they have to be able to move and jump. Buzz Lightyear is outfitted head to toe with a space suit.

He wears a special harness to "fly" in three scenes – the first scene in Andy's room, at the Pizza Planet when he's lifted by the giant claw with Woody, and in the finale with Woody. Timing was crucial. "The claw comes down and Woody and Buzz have to hook their harnesses to a cable," explained Freddes.

R.C., the remote-controlled car that spins, turns and pops wheelies in the show was everybody's favorite.

"It was fun to build and drive. Everyone wanted to drive it," said Freddes.

Bilik said the toy is similar to a wind-up model he had as a child. "I loved cars and trucks as a kid," he said. "I would play for hours in the little garden in front of my parents' house. With a car you could have any number of adventures. I guess I still like to play with cars."

WALT DISNEY

Friend in Me," as a tale of two toys unfolds in "Walt Disney's World on Ice – Toy Story."

Like other Disney shows, this one is designed for all ages. "If we see adults getting restless we're not doing our job," said Bilik. "Everyone's got to be beaming."

Canton Project Arts features MOT

Canton Project Arts brings back the Michigan Opera Theatre for "An Evening on Broadway" at 8 p.m. Saturday, March 8 at Summit On the Park, 46000 Summit Parkway in Canton Township.

Tickets are $20 and available at Arnoldt Williams Music, Dearborn Music, and the Canton Township Administration Building, or at the door the night of the performance. For information call (313) 397-6450.

There are still opportunities available to help with the event by ushering or checking coats. To volunteer call Kathleen Salla at the above number weekdays between 8:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m.

Also of note:

Ann Arbor Symphony Orchestra delivers "Symphonic Visions," an eye-opening performance, 8 p.m. Saturday, March 8 in the Michigan Theatre.

Program includes Rossini's "William Tell Overture," Dvorak's "Slavonic Dances," "Storm," and "Shepherd's Song," from Beethoven's "Symphony No. 6," and Mussorgsky's "Pictures at an Exhibition." Tickets $18, $23 and $28, call (313) 994-4801.

to a "Michael Moore Award for Best Documentary Film."

Some highlights of this year's event include Veit Helmer's "Surprise," a six-minute, hand-tinted black-and-white film in which a man piles up an arsenal of murder weapons around his loved one while she sleeps.

"Law of Averages," by James Duesing, uses digital animation to depict a surreal world in which two beleaguered creatures find love.

"Swell," from California's Charlotte Lagarde, focuses on a group of female longboard surfers whose ages span four generations.

While Sunday's "Winner's Screenings" remain popular, true film fans like to discover their own favorites among the nightly programs.

Winning films tour with the "Best of the Ann Arbor Film Festival" program at art houses around the country, including the Detroit Film Theatre at the Detroit Institute of Arts.

"It spreads the name around and makes people more aware of the festival," Honeyman says. "And of course it's great for the filmmakers because they get seen in more venues."

es there were other young musicians in the area she could play with. "It's important, we need to get more younger people involved," she said.

"Most of the songs I learned I learned at workshops in Ireland. I like the variety of songs in Irish music, it's got a certain style, it's really fun to play."

Mary Callaghan Lynch of Birmingham will be visiting Ireland with her family after the sixth "Irish Celebration at Patricktide," on March 16 at St. Regis Church in Birmingham. "I'll be auditioning for the Dublin Opera," a week after the concert said Lynch who performs regularly with Michigan Opera Theatre and is the recipient of the McAllister award for opera singers.

The March 16 event will feature a variety of Irish dances, poetry readings, vocalists and musicians to benefit the Christ Child House, which serves metro Detroit's disadvantaged children and their families.

In addition to Lynch, the artists performing include tenor Patrick Lynch, soprano Caitlin Lynch, and pianist John Callaghan.

Also of note:

■ Southfield's "Concerts in the Garden Series" features Blackthorn on March 9. Led by Richard McMullan, a native of Belfast on guitar, mandolin and cittern, the band consists of Gary McMullen on guitar and banjo, Fred Klein on keyboards, accordion and penny whistle, and Dennis Green on bass guitar. Vocals are handled by all members of the group. They sing a wide range of music including sea chanties, serious ballads, and contemporary music emerging from the Emerald Isle.

Lynch's 'Lost Highway' frustrates and fascinates

TICKETS PLEASE

JOHN MONAGHAN

David Lynch has never made it easy on us. From his nightmarish first feature "Eraserhead" in 1978 to his masterpiece "Blue Velvet" to his surprise television hit "Twin Peaks," Lynch has tapped into regions of the human psyche that many would just as soon leave untouched.

"Lost Highway," Lynch's first film in what seems like a decade, is no exception. It's a maddening, high-style head trip that will irritate five times as many viewers as it intrigues. It plays exclusively at the Star John R in Madison Heights.

The opening comes straight from Kafka: Fred, an L.A. saxophonist, wakes one morning to discover a videotape on his front step with a shot of his building's facade. Subsequent tapes reveal that someone has been filming inside the apartment, even while he and his wife sleep. He meets a man at a party, a small, pasty-faced creature (Robert Blake) who shocks him by revealing that he has been in Fred's apartment. Earlier, this mystery man's face may have replaced his wife's for a brief moment after the couple had sex.

What happens next is nearly impossible to explain and probably wouldn't help you understand the movie anyway. This film noir equivalent to "2001: A Space Odyssey" delivers so many red herrings and loose ends that it makes you wonder if the director himself knows what's going on.

In interviews Lynch has been characteristically cagey about interpreting his films. The movie, like good poetry, forces you to draw your own conclusions, make your own connections, as obtuse and unresolved as they may be. Snatches of dialogue (co-written by Lynch and Barry Gifford) are so sparse that you feel that they must have some special significance – but probably don't.

Instead of helping solve the mystery, Fred's sultry wife (Patricia Arquette) only adds to it. Sporting a Betty Page haircut and a Morticia Addams wardrobe, she seems steeped in intrigue. And just where was she when Fred called home from the club? The first half of "Lost Highway" is a study in sound, where the hum from a lightbulb or the opening of a manila envelope is boosted to eleven. The ring of a telephone reverberates with a series of piercing echoes that break the movie's stylistic silence.

The second half segues into another story and another character, a young mechanic named Pete who gets caught up with a gangster's girlfriend. This film noir riff has been played before, but Lynch gives it twists of his own, including a sex scene (one of several) in the desert, lit solely by the harsh glow of automobile headlights.

Lynch has assembled a typically oddball cast. Richard Pryor appears as the wheelchair-bound owner of the garage where Pete works. Gary Busey plays Pete's patient father, who's still not sure what happened to his son on that night no one seems to want to talk about.

You'll also spot Jack Nance, star of "Eraserhead" and a character actor in countless other films, who was recently murdered after a name-calling altercation in a doughnut shop. He plays a fellow mechanic who objects when Pete, plagued by headaches, changes stations on the radio.

Lynch has always been partial to wide screen, which he fills with stunning compositions, many steeped in almost complete darkness. This, linked with the impressive soundtrack, makes "Lost Highway" a must-see on the big screen – if you're going to see it at all. Viewers of this oddity are destined to fall into one of two categories: those anxious to see it again and those who wish they had never traveled this road at all.

John Monaghan welcomes your calls and comments. You can listen to him on Dave Dixon's Radio Show AM 1270, 8 p.m. to midnight Saturdays. To leave John a voice mail message, dial (313) 953-2047 on a touch-tone phone, mailbox 1866.

Fans go crazy when Solid Frog stalks them out

CHRISTINA FUOCO

Fans of the Saline rock band Solid Frog should beware. Taking a cue from "Stalking '101,'" the first song on its latest album "Pepper Spray" (Overture), the band is out to stalk its listeners – and potential listeners.

■ 'We do a lot of high schools just because the kids go crazy. We throw out CDs and T-shirts.'
Andy Patalan
Solid Frog

Like stalkers, the band – bassist Jeff Hayes, drummer Mike Purcell, guitarist Kyle Neely, and singer/guitarist Andy Patalan – will show up anywhere to promote its album. It could be a high school, hockey rink, concerts, or any other public place. It's called drive-by gigs.

"It just popped in my head," said Patalan, about coming up with the idea. "It was too easy not to do. I couldn't imagine doing anything more simple. Nobody has thought of it or has done it."

"I've seen the little garage bands that'll plug in in a park. I thought why not just do that in the van with a generator? That way we can just play a couple songs and leave before we get arrested."

The band has appeared outside the Michigan Theatre in Ann Arbor just as doors were opening for The Verve Pipe's show in late January.

"We do a lot of high schools just because the kids go crazy. We throw out CDs and T-shirts. The funniest one we did was up in Flint at the IMA Sports Arena. It's a 5,000-seat hockey arena. We did it on the ice during one of the intermissions. Although we got permission first, it was a surprise for everybody. We threw CDs up in the crowd."

Solid Frog's latest effort, "Pepper Spray," is a more solid effort than its debut "Supercoat," released in June 1995. The album hones in on Beatlesque melodies and clever lyrics ("I Bum"), driving guitars ("Stalking '101' "), and eerie guitars and vocals that explode at the chorus ("Telluride").

"We decided to hone in on more of the specific sound we were really happy with 'Supercoat.' We took that forward with 'Pepper Spray.' "

Besides drive-by concerts, Solid Frog is doing club dates. Patalan said he hopes the band can repeat its performance at Lollapalooza.

"That was a gas," Patalan said about his band's performance at the 1995 Lollapalooza at Pine Knob Music Theatre. "It was a great time. We went on early and all the people were coming in at that time. None of the other stages were open so it was just perfect."

"We plan on actually doing it again. We hope to go on tour with Lollapalooza. If we don't get accepted, we're going to do it anyway with the drive-by. We'll just follow it around playing in all the parking lots and all the people in line," Patalan said.

Solid Frog will perform with Hi-Fi and the Roadburners, 9 p.m. Saturday, March 8, at Harpo's, 14238 Harper, Detroit. Tickets are available at the door. For more information, call (313) 824-1700. The band also plays Sunday, March 9, at the Pharoah's Golden Cup, 28959 Joy Road, Westland. For information about the show's time and age restrictions, call (313) 513-8536.

Misc: Brian Vander Ark, singer/guitarist for The Verve Pipe, and Jon Frazier of Station C in Grand Rapids are in the studio producing the latest album by Monkey Chuck. "You can expect good old-fashioned MC with a few Vanderisms, such as screaming guitars and three-part harmonies," he said. Congratulations to The Verve Pipe, whose single "The Freshmen" debuted at No. 80 on Billboard's Top 100 Singles Chart. ... Barenaked Ladies will join the elite club of Jamie Walters, Donna Lewis, Flaming Lips, and Luther Vandross as artists who have had the honor of playing The Peach Pit on "Beverly Hills 90210." The Ladies will perform 8 p.m. Wednesday, March 26, on the Fox television show. ... April marks the release of "Under These Rocks and Stones" by Chantal Kreviazuk, and "Coming Up" by The London Suede. ... The ska band Buck-O-Nine has signed with TVT Records, best known for releasing Nine Inch Nails' debut album, "Pretty Hate Machine," and being the home to Gravity Kills. ...The Seahorses, the latest project by ex-Stone Roses member John Squire, is recording its debut album "Do It Yourself" in Los Angeles. It should be released in early summer. The album will feature a track that Squire co-wrote with Liam Gallagher of Oasis called "Love Me and Leave Me," before the Seahorses' lineup was solidified. Besides Squire, who is the lead guitarist and principal songwriter, the band also includes singer/songwriter Chris Helme, bassist Stuart Fletcher, and drummer Andy Watts. ... Don't look for Kiss to return to Detroit any time soon. The closest the band is coming to Detroit is Van Andel Arena in Grand Rapids on April 10 and Toledo Sports Arena in Toledo on April 12. Call (810) 645-6666 for more information.

DINING

At Somerset, they come to eat at J. Alexander's

BY ELEANOR HEALD
SPECIAL WRITER

At first, crowds came to browse and shop at Somerset North in Troy, but now they're coming to eat and J. Alexander's restaurant has become one of the hot spots. Retailers and staff from Somerset stores along with mall shoppers keep the eatery bustling at midday. On weekend evenings, even those who might have dismissed mall restaurants before, are taking to the serious food, yet casual mood of J. Alexander's.

This is a Memphis-based chain with 13 other locations in cities such as Chicago, Kansas City, several in Ohio and Florida. Corporate CEO Lonnie Stout was born and grew up in Grosse Pointe, Mich. Stock for this company trades on the New York Stock Exchange under the symbol JAX and the major stockholders are the employees.

Management titles strike a different chord in tune with a team concept. Managers are titled coaches and all employees are champions. It seems to work with staff taking significant pride in their particular area of work. The ultimate beneficiary here is the customer.

Regional director of operations Doug Richmond explained objectives. "We pride ourselves on food quality and service," he said. "Our focus is upper-end yet casual dining in a lively atmosphere. We vision J. Alexander's in a niche between a high profile steak house and a TGI Friday's."

Goals are played out in a 250-seat restaurant with a large bar seating 22. Walls are alive with soft colors. Crisp-looking waitstaff work to the beat of trendy music that sets a mood from the moment one walks in the door.

J. Alexander's

Where: 2800 West Big Beaver Road, Troy, in Somerset North, first floor directly under skywalk (810) 816-8379. Valet parking available.

Hours: Monday through Thursday 11 a.m. to 11 p.m., Friday and Saturday, 11 a.m. to midnight and Sunday 11 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Menu: Upscale with classic American favorites and mesquite-grilled beef and seafood.

Cost: Appetizers $3.45-$7.25; Soups and salads $3.45-$8.75; Sandwiches and burgers $7-10; Pastas $9-14; Seafood $14; Chicken $9-11; Prime rib, steaks, ribs, chops $15-21.

Reservations: No

Credit cards: All majors accepted.

Coach Todd Haines was in charge of day-to-day operations when I paid a call. New to our area, he's energized by the diversity of cultures and ethnicities.

"I like the way people feel comfortable coming in here in business dress or jeans," he remarked. The floor layout accommodates larger groups in booths or at tables. Smaller booths for two offer privacy. It was apparent that eating at the bar is popular. There were no empty seats.

Mexican-born Miguel Jiminez is head chef in charge or a well-organized kitchen which can be viewed by diners sitting in the rear of the restaurant. Jiminez worked in the kitchen at several J. Alexander's properties and came to Troy following a tenure as head chef in the Cleveland location.

"My challenge is consistency," he said. "A large part of the menu is corporate, but I purchase from local purveyors. If you liked one of our other restaurants, you can expect to get the same quality food and service here."

Fish is purchased from Royal Oak-based Superior Fish Co. which Jiminez praises for quality. Seafood of the day, vegetables and soup are the chef's call. Sunday's soup is potato. On Monday, it's red bean; Tuesday and Wednesday, tortilla soup, Thursday chicken gumbo with andouille sausage and Friday and Saturday black bean.

Among the popular lunch selections are Caesar Salad which is a J. Alexander's version of the classic with croutons and parmesan cheese plus the option of adding mesquite-grilled salmon for $5 additional or Alex's Club sandwich with smoked turkey, ham, bacon, gouda cheese and honey-Dijon sauce.

Hearty eaters take to the prime rib sandwich served on a toasted sourdough roll with horseradish sauce available upon request.

Popular dinner offerings are prime rib and a choice from among three daily mesquite-grilled seafood selections, market priced.

Lunch portions of the same are available served on jasmine rice with choice of additional side item. At dinner, there's a larger portion served with choice of side and Alex's house salad. Prime Rib is U.S.D.A. top-choice aged midwestern beef served au jus. A 16-oz cut is $21, 12-oz is $18 and 10-oz $16. All come with choice of side and house salad. Chef Jiminez maintains that all beef is aged 21 to 35 days.

"All our beef is less than five percent fat and we use only center cuts and filets," Jiminez added. "Our salmon is low in fat and low in cholesterol. We make our dinner salads very large to cater to customers who have healthier eating in mind."

This is a place to bring kids for a family dinner or lunch out. Five items on a children's menu are targeted at the 12-and-under age group. Items include a soft drink or milk and range from $3 for pasta to $7 for a 6-oz prime rib.

Every menu item is made to order in a quality-controlled, spanking-clean kitchen. There's also a short, but well-chosen wine list. Desserts, all made on-premise, can be accompanied by Haagen-Dazs ice cream.

New horizons: Tom Tedesco, left, and his mother, Susan, have taken the plunge and opened their own office. Bill Buckley, Susan's father, also was in the real estate business for 20 years

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

Susan and Thomas Tedesco, mother and son who have teamed as real estate sales associates for 10 years, are taking that working relationship to a new level.

The two are in process of establishing their own RE/MAX Showcase Homes franchise from scratch – an exciting, if not challenging task.

"I was waiting for a Birmingham (RE/MAX) office to open," said Susan, who has affiliated with the company for 17 years, the last five in Troy. "When it didn't, I just busted in and did it myself.

"I've always wanted my own office," said Susan, 60. "I feel it's a signature. When most people are winding down, I'm winding up.

"Birmingham is my kind of town," she said. "I get such a hug here. You wouldn't believe how many people walk by. It's so warm. It's so comforting. It's so fun."

During a recent interview, Susan smiled and enthusiastically waved at every pedestrian who passed her office window on Woodward north of Lincoln, drawing smiles and waves in return.

Tom, the broker in charge, and Susan, the primary investor, said they've spent at least $200,000 in office improvements, furnishings, equipment and franchise fees.

So far, it's just the two of them, four sales associates and a couple of secretaries in the office, which opened earlier this week.

"Finding the location that offered parking, offered enough space to attract good, professional people, good visibility was the key," Susan said..

"I understand that 65,000 cars go by here daily," she said. "When I found this location, it pushed me into buying the franchise."

Tom, 35, intends to concentrate on accounting and organization tasks.

"The biggest challenge is filling this place up with agents, quality sales professionals," he said. "Our goal is to be the number one RE/MAX office in the region. You measure that by the number of staff that produces bigger dollars and growth."

Tom also plans to stay active in the field.

"I very much enjoy working with first-time buyers and servicing them on their second homes and referrals to their friends and their friends' friends and building a network through service," he said.

Susan, a RE/MAX Hall of Famer for compiling lifetime commissions in excess of $1 million, will continue to concentrate on listings and sales. But she also intends to broaden her horizons.

"I want to be helping out in management – schedule time for secretaries, make sure we don't run out of supplies, more or less being the mom," she said

Tom and Susan have used mailings, advertising at kiosks around town and involvement in the Birmingham Chamber of Commerce to get the word out about their business.

They had lots of help starting out.

Bob Tedesco, son, brother and a licensed builder, served as general contractor on office renovations.

Bill and Kay Buckley, Susan's parents, offered encouragement. Both enjoyed sales careers, Bill in real estate for 20 years, Kay at B. Siegel.

"They have their eye on success, which becomes involvement in hard work," Bill Buckley said of his progeny. Susan has been in the business 27 years.

"I was working for a manufacturer as a receptionist," she said. "There was a real estate office across the hall. I was looking at my paycheck and looking at their paychecks. I checked into it and got a license.

"The first person I took out, I sold a home and said, 'This is easy.' Then I got hit with reality," Susan said.

"I was in sales and saw the type of money my mother was making," said Tom, a 10-year real estate veteran. "I asked her how I could get involved. She brought me on as her assistant and we pretty much worked as a team. She's the best trainer I could have had with all her knowledge.

"Sue is one of the most determined women I know," Tom added. "When she sets out to do something, she doesn't let up until the goal is met. She was in the top five producers five consecutive years and was number one in 1991."

"He's meticulous," Susan said back. "You can open his day runner and see where he is every moment of the day."

The best piece of advice ever received by the partners?

"Don't spend your commission until you earn it," Susan said.

"Make sure the client is number one and feels like they're number one," Tom added.

"I'm determined to be successful," Susan said. "I've had a very positive outlook on this situation. I haven't considered failure."

Bill Nance, a real estate lawyer, has known Susan for years and has used her services to buy and sell houses.

"She's very dedicated," Nance said. "I've always found her to be honest, very diligent. I've also found her to be very frank. She's involved in the community. She cares for the community. She will be a good business citizen.

"She's successful," Nance continued. "She could probably cruise out, but this is something she wants to do. It takes guts and determination. I know she's worked very hard putting this together."

Peter H. Luft, regional director for RE/MAX, believes that Susan has what it takes to start and grow a successful franchise.

"Susan has a tremendous amount of experience in the real estate business as well as with RE/MAX," Luft said. "She's very well versed on our system, its benefits and how to maximize those benefits.

"She's very professional, ethical, high profile. When we get the right people, they naturally attract other people to work with them.

"When you start out, you're wearing all the hats," Luft said. "With Susan maximizing her skills and Tom maximizing his, they will complement each other well."

Nature trail on your property may mean money

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q. Our property had some old railroad tracks, which have now been converted into a "nature trail" for hiking and biking. The railroad formerly had an easement and the city converted the land under something called the Federal "Rails to Trails Act." Somehow I believe we are entitled to compensation. Do you have any thoughts?

A. In a case similar to that where the railroad had acquired an easement back in the 1890s, the owner successfully claimed that once the railroad stopped using the land as a railroad, the easement ended and the land reverted back to them. The court held that the creation of the nature trails was a "taking" for which they were entitled to compensation. The court suggested that if the government wanted to replace "scheduled rumbling freight trains" with "obnoxious in-line rollerskaters," it had to pay to do so. I would suggest that if your facts are similar, you may have an equal basis for compensation.

Q. We are one of a few owners in a condominium complex. The newest member of our association has attended only one quarterly meeting and has been apprised that the assessments are to be paid to the treasurer at that time. The treasurer has had to put weekly reminders in the owner's mailbox each quarter. In addition, the president has telephoned the party to personally ask for the assessments so the association's bills can be paid.

This quarter the delinquent co-owner is six weeks late, and there is no indication that a payment is forthcoming. Our bylaws state that interest may be charged if payment is late.

I would appreciate your comments if you feel this would be of interest to your readers. We would like to know our recourse, how we can collect the funds to run the association, how can we collect late charges, and do we go to small claims court.

A. This, of course, is a very complex issue that is difficult to respond to in this column. It is more thoroughly discussed in the condominium operation class that I teach through Oakland Community College.

The association has a number of remedies available, including the imposition of interest and late charges if the condominium bylaws or rules provide for same, the recordation of a lien and institution of foreclosure proceedings, including the recoupment of attorney fees and costs.

I would not recommend small claims court as that is not a viable way to protect the secured interest of the association, which is established by statute and, presumably, your condominium documents.

I believe that the association, even though small, should take a vigorous and consistent approach toward the collection of these assessments and avoid "pleading" with the co-owner to pay the assessments; rather, a collection procedure should be adopted and pursued, which may include the recording of a lien by the association's attorney and the commencement of foreclosure proceedings, if appropriate.

Examining the pros and cons of reverse mortgages

MORTGAGE SHOPPING

DAVID C. MULLY

Increasing numbers of homeowners are finding, particularly in their later years of retirement, that they lack cash. Their largest asset is usually the home in which they live. Unlike other investments, such as bank accounts, stocks or bonds, a home does not provide any income to the owner unless he or she decides to rent out a room or two.

A reverse mortgage allows a homeowner who's low on cash to tap into home equity to provide income. Reverse mortgages are offered by many lenders, including the FHA.

The reverse mortgage was created by the FHA in 1987 as a pilot program for homeowners 62 and older. This program proved its popularity and is being considered a permanent HUD program.

Any individual – married, single, divorced or widowed _ who is at least 62, and owns and occupies a home is eligible to apply. The home may be a one-to-four-family dwelling or an FHA-approved condominium unity. The home must be owned free and clear or the mortgage nearly paid in full. There are no income limits, no restrictions on the use of the money, no employment requirement and no monthly payments required. The money is non-taxable income.

Taking out a reverse mortgage reverses the flow of income back to the homeowner. Each month, a bank or other financial institution sends you a check that you can spend on food, clothing, travel, or whatever suits your fancy. The amount of cash available is pre-set as the principle amount. The principle amount is determined based on the age of the homeowner, the value of the home and the interest rate factor. The older the homeowner is, the greater the cash amount available.

The homeowner chooses how often and how long the payments are to be received. A payment plan may be set for a specific number of years. This plan allows the money to be received in a lump sum at closing, in equal monthly installments, through a line of credit, or a combination of these methods. THE HOMEOWNER RETAINS OWNERSHIP through a "life-estate" in the property.

The money you receive each month is really a loan from the bank against the value of your home, which makes the monthly check free from taxation. Other advantages of a reverse mortgage are that it allows you to stay in your home and use its equity to supplement your monthly income.

But, for an elderly homeowner, taking a reverse mortgage can be a difficult thing to do psychologically. Most people work hard to feed a mortgage month after month, year after year, until finally it is all paid off. What a feat and what a relief after all those years!

The main drawback is that a reverse mortgage can deplete the estate that you may want to pass on to your heirs or use for some other purpose. Also, some loans require repayment within a certain number of years. The fees and the effective interest rate you are charged to borrow the money can also be quite high.

Because some loans require the lender to make monthly payments to you as long as you live in the home, lenders assume that you will live a very long time so they don't lose money in making these loans. If you end up keeping the loan for just a few years because you move, for example, the cost of the loan is extremely high. When the homeowner moves, sells the home, or dies, repayment of the mortgage becomes due.

The mortgage amount grows each period of the loan as the principle plus the interest accumulates. However when the mortgage becomes due, repayment is done similar to a "balloon mortgage." The total principle plus interest is paid off.

An excellent book that explores all the mechanics of reverse mortgages and how to shop for them is Your New Retirement Nest Egg by Ken Scholen. Call 1-800-247-6533 or write to him at 7373 147th St., Apple Valley, MN 55124.

The American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) also publishes a free information booklet entitled Home Made Money, which can be requested by wiring AARP at 1909 K St. NW, Washington, DC 20049 or by calling 1-202-434-2277. Also, feel free to call me with your questions about reverse mortgages.

You may be able to create a reverse mortgage within your own family network. This technique can work if you have family members who are financially able to provide you with monthly income in exchange for ownership of the home when you die.

There are also other alternatives to tapping home equity. One is to simply sell your home and buy a less-expensive property or rent a place. Current tax laws allow homeowners 55 and older to take a once-in-a-lifetime $125,000 capital gains exclusion when they sell a home and buy a less-expensive one.

Editor's Note: Dave Mully will be a guest speaker at the upcoming 79th Annual International Builders Home, Flower and Furniture Show, which begins March 15 and runs through March 23. He will be talking about "Mortgage Shopping" and how to save money.

He will be appearing every day at 3 p.m. starting Monday-Friday, March 17-21, with additional appearances at 5 p.m. Friday, March 21, 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. Saturday, March 22 and 2 p.m. Sunday, March 23.

David Mully has been writing his weekly "Mortgage Shopping" column for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers since June 1995. He has been involved with residential mortgage lending in the Detroit area since 1988 and is a mortgage consultant. The Saturn SL2

$199 PER MONTH*
36-MONTH LEASE

Introducing one of the nicer leases around. Not because of the affordable payments. And not because of Saturn's great value. But because we hear our lack of pressure and our fair pricing make leasing a Saturn just plain nice. SATURN.
