DAYLIGHT SAVINGS TIME

Believe it or not, the originator of daylight-saving time was Benjamin Franklin, who was appalled by the wanton use of candle wax by the Parisians.

"Daylight Saving Time - which beings Sunday, April 6, has been widely used since World War I, when the system was adopted by US law to conserve fuel for the war effort.

"During World War II, daylight-saving time was also mandatory, but it did not become law in peacetime until 1966," said Richard Cooper of Howard Miller(R), America's leading clock manufacturer and the largest manufacturer of grandfather clocks in the world.

Cooper, a modern-day time expert, has other mysteries to unravel:

- Who is in charge of daylight-saving time? The US Department of Transportation, which also has jurisdiction over time zones.
- How much electricity do we save by going on daylight-saving time? We trim the entire country's electricity usage by about 1 percent each day.
- Are there any other reasons? Studies have revealed that traffic injuries and crime are also reduced because of the added hour of daylight.
- Why does daylight-saving time begin the first Sunday in April? Mindful that barbecuing is best begun in daylight, the Barbecue Industry Association spearheaded legislation passed in 1988 that moved daylight-saving time up from the last weekend of April. Convenience store owners, baseball and softball groups as well as people who suffer from night blindness were also part of the coalition to extend it.
- Is anybody against daylight-saving time? Yes. Most farmers are against it. Dairy and livestock farmers feel the time change upsets the animals' feeding schedules..

Also, the time change also causes sleep deprivation that will make workers more prone to accidents, reports a Harvard Medical School professor who has studied the subject.

Daylight Savings Time begins at 2 a.m. Sunday, April 6. Set clocks ahead one hour before going to bed.

Vote challenged, recount set

Four people have filed challenges to the March 22 school bond election, in which 720 voters miscast their touch-screen ballots. A recount, part of one challenge, will be conducted today.

A former state representative, past school board member, current Plymouth city commissioner, and a Plymouth property manager have filed individual challenges to Plymouth-Canton Community Schools' March 22 bond election.

A recount, requested as part of one challenge, will be conducted at 2 p.m. today at the E.J. McClendon Educational Center. The recount is open to the public, said Plymouth-Canton Superintendent Charles Little.

Former trustee to run again, A2

The $79.7 million bond proposal narrowly passed, 5,733-5,637. There were 720 "under votes" that couldn't be counted because of errors that occurred with the new touch-screen voting machines. Spoiled ballots amounted to more than 6 percent of the total ballots cast.

The 25-year bond issue would fund construction of a new high school and elementary school; computer and bus purchases; and the refurbishing of all existing schools.

The recount and a revote were requested by Plymouth property manager Dan Herriman. A revote, which could be ordered by the local board of canvassers or through a circuit court challenge, would require that all voters participating in the March 22 election receive a ballot to be completed and returned in a special mail election.

Plans to implement the bond project are on hold pending the challenges. "We will wait until this is all cleared up," Little said.

Herriman said the recount "would establish whether those votes were lost or spoiled as reported by the board of canvassers. I didn't want to presume there wasn't possibly an error in the counting of the original votes.

Cops: Sex offender list draws concern

BY VALERIE OLANDER

Canton police will make available a list of sex offenders living in the community, but will do so with reservation.

Related editorial, page A14

On Tuesday, a new law went into effect that allows Michigan residents to obtain a list of those who have been convicted or pleaded guilty to sex crimes from their local police departments. It includes name, address and list of offenses.

The Michigan State Police have maintained the sex offender registry since 1994, although the list has been shielded from public view.

"I have some real concerns from a law enforcement point of view to make this list community information. Some of the information is provided by the convicted party and could be inaccurate," said Public Safety Director John Santomauro.

The sex offender is responsible for notifying the police agency of his or her address upon moving into a community, said Paul Bukowski of State Sen. Michael Bouchard's office.

Township considers sponsorship for park

BY VALERIE OLANDER

Corporate or service club sponsorship is one option Canton is investigating to designate what is currently known as Sheldon-Palmer Park.

For a price, an organization or service club could have the park designated after them, said Mike Gouin, Canton's recreation director. It's just one of many ideas that Gouin and his staff have proposed to find an appropriate name for the 21-acre park expected to open next summer. Construction will begin this year.

Canton also will have the task of naming another new park at Denton and Proctor, which is expected to open at the same time as the one at Sheldon and Palmer.

The township's third new park will likely remain Barchester Park since residents living nearby have called the former school property that for years.

"I don't know if (corporate sponsorship) will go anywhere, but I give them an A for trying ... Eventually we'll have to call it something. Both names, that's just a mouthful," said Township Supervisor Tom Yack.

Yack didn't have any ideas as to what the park should be called if a corporate sponsor is not found. He did know what it should not be named – after its crossroads or a person.

"After time, no one remembers who it is," said Yack, who didn't know who Griffin Park was named after. Flodin Park was named after a longtime township clerk, John W. Flodin.

Treasurer Elaine Kirchgatter didn't have any ideas for park names either, although she was involved in the naming of the Summit on the Park. The community center was named by an internal committee of township staffers. Kirchgatter was responsible for making "on the Park" stick.

Kirchgatter said the naming of Heritage Park about eight years ago came from a "name the park" contest and "at a point in time that we decided we were going to steer away

Third-grade thrill: President's 'special delivery'

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Excitement ruled at Eriksson Elementary School recently when among the run-of-the-mill mail arrived a large, fat manila envelope from the White House addressed to "Students of Deborah Barnett."

"We wrote the president in November after the election," said the third-grade teacher. "This was a culminating activity to studying the election. We followed it through newspapers, TV and the Weekly Reader. We wrote the president a note of congratulations wishing him the best for his second term. Some people also included suggestions of areas he might want to work on for the next few years."

"We really didn't think a lot about it. We were very delighted when we got this package," said Barnett of her class of 26.

A letter signed by President Bill Clinton read, "Thank you for writing to me. I'm sorry I can't answer all of your questions, but I want you to know how much I appreciate your sharing your feelings and ideas.

"When I came to Washington, I brought a clear plan to rebuild the American Dream – to restore the health of the economy and make sure that young people like you could grow up with the promise of a bright tomorrow. My administration has taken on the challenging issues and made the tough decisions necessary to move our country in the right direction.

"We are continuing to focus on the most important issues facing our nation – providing security to hard-working families, further expanding educational opportunities for America's students, and bringing people closer together at the community level.

"Each of you can help me reach these goals. For example, you can protect the environment by picking up litter and recycling. You can vol-

Former president wants back on school board

By M.B. Dillon
Staff Writer

You can take the man out of local government, but you can't take local government out of the man – at least in the case of Roland Thomas, who announced his decision to run for the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education this week.

The four-year seat is being vacated by 14-year board member Dave Artley, who has decided not to seek another term.

One other person has taken out petitions for the open seat, to be filled in the June 9 election. However under a new district policy, the name of the candidate won't be divulged until after his or her petition signatures are certified.

Thomas served on the board from 1982-1995. He served as board president in school years 1984-85; 1985-86; 1992-93; and 1993-1994.

Thomas, 53, said he was at a meeting of the local Republican Club last Thursday at the Water Club Grill when a friend challenged him to run.

"It got me thinking about what I'm contributing. Being on the Plymouth Symphony Board is fulfilling, but I think I have more to offer than what I'm giving by working with just one group," said Thomas, a 1961 Plymouth High School graduate whose three children also graduated from the district.

"I think I have the right kind of talent, and the time to offer to the district," he said. "I think I can help them get through the kinds of financial things and decisions that they'll be facing in the next four years."

Thomas, a longtime financial executive with Ford Motor Company, has a new job in customer service at the company. The new post – as well as two years off the board – "has given me a totally different perspective," he said.

"I'm designing a communication process for an organization of 800 people scattered across the U.S. Quite frankly, that is my avocation, to move out of this job into a communications strategy operation," said Thomas. "These experiences have given me a different perspective on how you communicate with and among people. It's given me a deeper respect for what other people feel and see."

Thomas said he shared that point of view with Superintendent Charles Little with regard to the bond election. During the bond campaign, Thomas publicly criticized the $79.7 million bond issue decided by 96 votes March 22.

"As I told Chuck Little going into the bond issue, 'It's not a personal thing, but I'm challenging your rationale and the board's rationale and their thinking.' People mean well and want to do a good job. We need to think about how we challenge thinking and rationale, and not the person," he said, adding that he no longer takes things personally.

Thomas added that there "needs to be a better understanding (on the board) of how the district operates, who is doing what within the district, and how it is done. The way you can do that is with workshops so the board is coming off a common base of understanding."

Thomas recently addressed the board of education, lamenting the fact that trustees are "less engaged" than previous boards.

Thomas credits "Galloping Gertie" Fiegel, his high school government teacher, for piquing his interest in politics.

"I think it is completely unacceptable that one out of 14 votes were lost or spoiled in this election," Herriman said. "People went to the polls expecting their votes would be counted."

There's lots of speculation as to what caused the under votes, and it's also not known "what was involved in trouble-shooting concerning the use of new equipment to anticipate problems and resolve them. But it's evident the process failed," Herriman said.

Former State Rep. Jerry Vorva, a third-year law student who works as a Realtor, has joined with representatives from 14 of the district's 18 precincts in requesting a revote.

"We've hired attorney Stephen Boak to represent us," said Vorva, who also is requesting a special mail election under provisions of state law.

"We say there is a defect or malfunction in the system software; the training of people and/or the instruction poll workers gave voters," said Vorva.

With the new touch-screen system, voters had to press three buttons to register their vote. They were marked "Begin voting," "Yes or no," and "End all voting." If a voter failed to press the "Begin" or "End" voting buttons, or pressed "Yes" or "No" twice, his or her vote was not recorded. Some voters reported that glare made the screens difficult to read. Others said they didn't notice the "End all voting" button because it was so far above the "Yes" and "No" keys.

"Not only are we outraged, but we are disappointed that Dr. Little in an unseemly and greedy way just wanted to dismiss those 720 people as if they didn't count," said Vorva. "I think that is fundamentally wrong. Look at the message sent by the people in charge of educating our children: 'It doesn't matter if you play the game right, it's whether you win or lose.'

"I was a cop for 10 years, and I can smell when something is rotten. I smell something rotten here," he said. "At a minimum, I smell a philosophy, a reasoning that is completely flawed."

Said Little: "I stick by my statement that what's involved is a learning curve. People are learning how to use the machines. Thousands of people voted correctly."

"In essence," said Vorva, "Dr. Little is calling these people stupid. He's saying, 'If you're not careful, I'm going to steal your money. Be more careful.'"

Former school board member Roland Thomas also filed a challenge.

"Based on the history we have had, I would have expected to see the under votes at 1 percent or less. The integrity of the process is paramount in my mind. People have spoken, but they all need to be heard," he said.

Computer training center aids navigation in high-tech world

By Richard Pearl
Special Writer

If the mere thought of running that powerful new personal computer – at home, at the office – has you stressed out, a new local business service may have the answer.

In keeping with their motto, "Unleash the power of your PC with your mind," Canton business partners and computer mavens Jeff Underwood and Dave Barman have opened what is believed to be the Canton-Plymouth area's first computer training center.

Since January, U&B Consulting, Computers and Training Center, a six-year-old firm located in a strip mall at Lilley and Warren roads, has been offering one-day, six-hour beginner or advanced sessions in IBM and IBM-compatible computer training. (The center currently offers no Macintosh training.)

Classes in either Windows '95 or Microsoft's Word, Excel or Access are conducted by one of the company's four professional teachers in the firm's new state-of-the-art classroom. Featured are 15 fast, U&B custom-built 133-Megahertz networked Pentium computers and a 40-inch television monitor, upon which the instructor can both show an instructional video and instantly display any student's monitor, to facilitate answering questions and solving problems. A Microsoft textbook is included in the training materials.

The fees are $95 per person for beginning or advanced Windows '95 and $125 per person for each of the other classes.

Or, if you want to do your own instructing, you can rent the facility for $500 per day.

"Just six hours, one day – that's it," says Underwood of U&B's classes, explaining that the training center was created because in most cases, "users aren't able to get the full potential from their units."

"You can have the fanciest computer in the world," says Underwood, "but if you don't know how to use it, it doesn't do you much good."

"Sure, a lot of people can learn computers from a book, but classes accelerate it considerably."

U&B began six years ago as a computer service operating out of Underwood's bedroom in his parents' house in Livonia. He'd bought a computer but was having trouble with the display on the monitor, so the supplier sent over a young computer-whiz named Dave Barman. He quickly fixed the display and the two became friends and then business partners.

"He's a technical guru and he's amazing," says Underwood of Barman, who has a degree in electrical engineering and handles the hardware and software. Underwood, who runs the business operations – "I'm better at keeping track of things and keeping people happy" – became so fascinated with computers that he switched his major from business to computer sciences.

The business soon outgrew Underwood's old bedroom and the fledgling company was moved to an apartment in Canton. About four years ago, it came to the strip mall. Since then, its growth has required more space and often 12- to 14-hour workdays, sometimes seven days a week. Underwood's parents, Dean and Sandra, recently joined the two co-founders as partners in the training center and Sandra works full time with Jeff to help handle the paperwork.

Both Underwood, 33, and Barman, 27, now live in Canton.

Their company, which builds and installs PCs for home and business and also installs network systems in businesses.

Customer Deborah Collins, an assistant manager of an apartment complex, praised U&B's work. "You get right to whom you want to speak to and don't get blown off. I've never had to wait for anything with them," she said.

The company is expanding its retail department to carry more hardware and software and it plans to offer Internet training by May.

Of the phenomenal growth of computers, Underwood can only say, "I don't know how we ever functioned without them (computers)." His home PC is hooked into a big 55-inch projection television for computer games and is also connected by modem to the office, allowing him more time with wife Sharon and infant son Dean.

And Underwood's computer? It's actually the same one he's had for eight years – a 286 that he's upgraded to a high-powered Pentium with 32 megs of RAM. "If you upgrade on a two-year basis, you can keep your PC current," he said.

Here's to good health

Getting a good idea of your current health outlook will be easier than ever for Canton residents this month.

Canton's Summit on the Park is an area site for Project Health-O-Rama, which offers a comprehensive battery of free and low-cost testing and information services in a drop-in, one-stop setting. Project Health-O-Rama at the Summit is set for noon to 6 p.m. Sunday, April 20.

The local site – co-sponsored by the Canton Chamber of Commerce, St. Joseph Mercy Health System and other area health providers – is one of more than 100 participating sites in southeastern Michigan. United Health Organization, a United Way agency, coordinates the area-wide Project Health-O-Rama at all sites during April and May.

Participation is open to anyone 18 or older. On-site registration is required and test results are confidential.

Basic tests available at no cost include: blood pressure, height and weight, vision, glaucoma, counseling and referral. Also offered free at the Summit will be nutritional counseling, body composition, massage therapy, medication counseling, oral and dental screening and fitness equipment sampling.

The following tests will be available for a fee: Blood panel of 23 profiles, $22; CA-125 ovarian cancer antigen blood test for women, $25; PSA blood test for men, $25; take-home colorectal cancer screening kits, $8; H. pylori blood test for stomach ailments, $15; take-home HIV test kit, $35; osteoporosis screening, $25.

For additional information, call the chamber, 453-4040, or the Project Health-O-Rama hotline, (810) 424-8600 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday-Friday.

from using people's names."

The Americana-type theme of the Heritage Park contest might not be a bad idea for the naming of the new parks, said trustee Melissa McLaughlin. McLaughlin said she wasn't opposed to naming it after a person, but the person should either be deceased or out of political office.

"I really don't know. I had a hard enough time naming my kids and the dog," McLaughlin said.

The Recreation Department is in the early stages of branding the park with a name. Other ideas include having a contest or having the staff or Recreation Advisory Committee brainstorm.

"The Sheldon-Palmer Park name might stay since both names have a historic meaning to the community or maybe just one of the names, Palmer Park or Sheldon Park," said Gouin.

The naming of the two parks also opens the door for the name of the 218 acres the township may purchase for active recreational land east of Napier between Cherry Hill and Ford roads.

The $3 million purchase is contingent upon a state grant application from the MDNR Michigan Natural Resources Trust Fund for the acquisition of park lands. If approved, it could pay up to 40 percent or more of the costs. The township would be responsible for $1.9 million.

information available to the public.

Names of sex offenders are kept on the registry for 25 years, Bukowski said. During that time, failure to notify their local police agency of an address change could result in a four-year felony charge, he said.

"The intent of the law makes good sense. People do have a right to know if their neighbor has been convicted of a sex crime, but the application of the law allows inaccurate information to be given out," said Santomauro.

He added, "I can't speculate on how people will choose to use it, but we'll be putting a disclaimer on it that the information may not be accurate."

Canton police will update the sex offender list every Monday. The registry will be available at the Records Bureau on the second floor of the public safety building.

The law is being challenged in federal court by three anonymous sex offenders represented by Grand Rapids attorney Frank Stanley. U.S. District Court Judge David McKeague declined to block the law from taking effect last week. Stanley appealed the ruling to the Sixth District Court of Appeals in Cincinnati.

Law allows judges to seize vehicles

A new law is in effect that allows judges to order people convicted of drunken driving – first-time offenders included – have their vehicles seized.

"Vehicle forfeiture could prove to be a life-saving tool," said Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano.

Ficano added that sweeping changes to Michigan's drunken driving laws will eliminate reckless drivers and result in safer streets.

Every year drunken drivers kill 25,000 people, injure over 500,000 people, seriously disable thousands of others and cause 50 percent of all highway deaths.

The new law is not without controversy. Debate continues on whether the law is constitutionally sound.

Inebriated drivers are getting a serious message, Ficano said, that drinking and driving can cost drivers their wheels.

Although experts say that tougher punishment and greater awareness is working, Wayne County still ranks among the 15 biggest counties statewide for driving under the influence (OUIL).

Ficano suggests that all motorists learn and understand the facts about alcohol and remember that alcohol in any amount can make you an unsafe driver.

Mutt march to benefit MHS canine rescues

Calling all dog owners. If your pooch loves to run, the Michigan Humane Society (MHS) invites you to enter your canine in the 14th annual Rosey's Grand Mutt Derby.

Dogs of all shapes and sizes will compete in the 60 yard races, Sunday, April 27 at Eddie Edgar Sports Arena in Livonia. Competitors are divided into five categories based on size. The five final class winners then compete for the Grand Mutt Championship.

Official entry forms are available at any MHS location in Detroit, Rochester Hills and Westland. Check-in the day of the derby begins at noon followed by race time at 1:30 p.m.

All dogs must have a commercially accepted collar and leash as well as a state, county or city license. Proof of rabies, distemper and parvo virus vaccination is required at registration.

Non-racers are welcome to enjoy the event for a $3 general admission fee while participants pay $7 per dog. All proceeds from the Mutt Derby will benefit the over 53,000 homeless and injured animals care for each year by MHS.

The Michigan Humane Society, a non-profit organization dedicated to serving animals since 1877 operates three full service shelters and charitable animal hospitals in the metro Detroit area.

SC trustees eye tuition, fee increase

By Ken Abramczyk
Staff Writer

■ In 1997-98, student tuition and fees will produce 31.9 percent of the total revenue. That figure is down from the 1992-93 figure of 34 percent, but up from 26.9 percent 10 years ago.

Schoolcraft College administrators have proposed tuition hikes of $1 per credit hour for resident, $2 for non-resident and $3 for out-of-state residents.

That will mean $51 per credit hour for in-district students and $75 for students who live outside the Schoolcraft District this fall should trustees approve the hike this spring.

Administrators also have proposed eliminating a $10 admission fee for new students, but increasing technology fees paid by students from 50 cents to $1 per credit hour. Registration fees of $25 per semester and student activity fees of $1 per credit hour will remain unchanged.

The Schoolcraft district includes the Wayne County portions of K-12 districts of Clarenceville and Livonia Public Schools; the Northville district; Novi Community Schools, excluding the portion covered by Oakland Community College and portions of the Plymouth-Canton school district.

Butch Raby, Schoolcraft's vice president for business services, outlined the tuition hikes March 26 at the trustee's monthly business meeting. Trustees also received a $38.6 million budget for the 1997-98 fiscal year.

Trustees are not expected to approve the tuition increases until the budget is approved. That is expected to happen April 26 after a public hearing is held that evening on the budget.

By keeping the tuition hike below this year's inflation rate established by the state Department of Treasury, students can receive tax credit for 4 percent of their total tuition.

"We're trying to keep (the increase) under 3 percent so students can get the tax credit," said Dick McDowell, president of Schoolcraft College.

The $1 increase would be the fourth increase in four years for in-district students, but the smallest during that same time period. Last year and in every year since 1993, tuition increased $2 a credit hour.

The tuition hike reflects the recent trend of students contributing more to the college's total revenue.

In 1997-98, student tuition and fees will produce 31.9 percent of the total revenue. That figure is down from the 1992-93 figure of 34 percent, but up from 26.9 percent 10 years ago.

Conversely, state appropriations now comprise 26.8 percent of total revenue, while 10 years ago that amount was 31.4 percent. The state's appropriation increase for all the community colleges will be 2.5 percent.

"We believe that figure will be 3 percent for Schoolcraft," Raby said. Property taxes will fund nearly 40 percent of this year's budget, which remained steady over the past decade.

Budget highlights include:

■ The millage rate is expected to remain unchanged at 1.8521 mills. For the owner of a home with a taxable value of $50,000 or a sales value of $100,000, that means that individual would pay $92.60 in property taxes to Schoolcraft.

Schoolcraft expects a 3.6 percent increase in property tax revenue because of the new development in the college's district, particularly in Canton, Northville and Plymouth. The state equalized value is projected at $8.3 billion for budgeting purposes in 1997-98, nearly a $300 million increase.

■ With the proposed tuition hikes, Schoolcraft costs slightly higher for its in-district students than Henry Ford Community College and Oakland Community College, but lower than Wayne County, Washtenaw and Macomb community colleges, according to statistics compiled by Schoolcraft officials.

■ A public hearing on the proposed budget was set for Wednesday, April 23 at 7 p.m. in the board conference room at the administrative building on Schoolcraft's campus.

Kelley takes on state's electric giants

By Tim Richard
Staff Writer

Outstate Michigan is prepared to battle the electric giants, Detroit Edison and Consumers Energy, even though a public hearing in Detroit was tame.

In Lansing, Attorney General Frank Kelley and Eric Schneidewind, a former chairman of the Michigan Public Service Commission, opposed the MPSC staff plan to allow deregulation of, and competition in, the electric industry.

They said the plan is rigged in Edison's and Consumers' favor.

It "shifts costs from investors to ratepayers and consumers," Kelley said in a March 25 hearing.

Schneidewind, an attorney representing Energy Michigan, a group of a dozen producers and business users, attacked both utilities' plans.

He said the proposal would "make competition so uneconomic that all Consumers customers who switch from tariff service to retail wheeling service would pay higher rates. No Edison customer would save more than 5 percent" by switching suppliers.

Heart of the matter is "stranded costs," the investments electric companies made to serve customers because of past regulations. Edison and Consumers want to pass stranded costs onto customers who switch suppliers.

No switches

Schneidewind, in a formal written reply, said stranded costs would amount to 1.26 to 1.45 cents per kilowatt hour for Consumers' customers and 1.9 cents for Edison customers who switch.

Those costs are about 14 to 20 percent higher than average residential electric rates in Michigan.

"The commission should be aware that electric customers will not switch to non-utility providers unless they save at least 10 to 15 percent," said Schneidewind. "By this test, no customer would switch to competitive service with the stranded cost rates proposed by Edison and Consumers."

Edison argued that with competition, customers would pay 8 percent less – assuming they stayed with their present utility and didn't switch.

Schneidewind attacked a second part of the utilities' plan – issuing bonds to spread their stranded costs over a 15-year period. "Edison's own filing shows that bonding would add over $3.4 billion of new tax and interest charges to customer bills to retire $2.7 billion of 'stranded costs.'

"Securitization (new bonds) should be rejected because it more than doubles total stranded costs while only producing 8 to 9 percent rate reductions," he said.

Schneidewind's exhibit showed that "Detroit Edison stranded costs can be reduced to $1.16 billion" through different methods of calculation.

For Consumers Energy, Scheidewind said stranded costs should drop from $4 billion to $458 million.

In contrast, he said, Energy Michigan's proposal "results in

District court hires administrator

BY BILL CASPER
STAFF WRITER

Kerry Erdman will move from 17th District Court in Redford to Plymouth, where he will replace retiring 35th District Court administrator Marion Belding.

Belding, who is leaving her job this month, worked 10 years in the post.

The 35th District Court serves Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Canton Township, Northville and Northville Township.

Erdman, who became the Redford court's first administrator nearly three years ago, made an outstanding contribution to the 17th District Court, Judge Daniel Ryan said.

"He greatly modernized and streamlined court procedures to make the judicial system here more accessible to the general public," Ryan said. "Kerry also helped to modernize the court's technology to handle a significant increase in our caseload. He has been an invaluable asset to this court and we will miss him greatly. Erdman, 44, said the position at Plymouth's district court is an attractive offer.

"If it had been any other court, I probably wouldn't have accepted the position," he said. "I've had several offers over the last 2 1/2 years and I turned them down, but this is a real good opportunity. This is an enviable position because it's a beautiful court that has a good working relationship with the five communities it serves."

Erdman's duties in his new assignment will primarily remain the same – to oversee day-to-day operations of the court, including the budget, he said.

However, Erdman won't continue as a magistrate, a function added to his duties at Redford's court.

Erdman said he applied for the Plymouth court position in December after he saw it advertised in a publication distributed by the State Court Administrators Office.

"I challenge you to set high goals for yourselves and to become active, involved citizens. Best wishes for every success. Sincerely, Bill Clinton."

Students received stickers that say, "I wrote the president and he wrote me back," a poster, booklets about the White House and flag, "and all kinds of great stuff," said Barnett.

The third-graders shared some of the questions they put to the president.

"I asked him to change the name of Arbor Drugs to Arbor Pills," said Jim Wilbur. Julie Gravel congratulated Clinton on being elected for the second time. "I asked him if he had any pets," she added.

"I asked, 'How many people do you have working for you?' " said Nick DeVitis.

"I asked him if he can make people stop spray-painting schools," said Josh Wolfe.

"I asked him how many rooms there are in the White House," said Jillian Granz.

Michelle Minikowski asked, "How is Socks doing?"

"I asked him how busy it was in the White House," said Steve Moore.

Kaelan Greer wanted to know how many windows there are in the White House.

Students also offered their opinions on how President Clinton is doing so far.

"Great. He is having fun in the White House," said Lindsey Polderdyke.

Special events mark Old Main centennial

Beginning April 14 and continuing through April 20, the Old Main Celebration Weekend will feature a variety of events including an Old Main historical exhibition, dance, music and theater presentations, alumni events presented by each of the 14 colleges, campus tours student awards and more

Thousands of Wayne State University alumni from across Michigan will revisit the halls of Old Main to celebrate the Old Main Centennial April 14-20.

The centennial features the completion of more than $46 million in renovations to the landmark building on WSU's campus.

Old Main, which opened its doors as Detroit Central High School 100 years ago, was founded in response to the state's need for accessible higher education on an urban setting. Today, the historic building represents not only the past, but also the future of higher education.

N. Charles Anderson, president of the Wayne State University Alumni Association and president of the Detroit Urban League, believes the renovation has an educational and sentimental value for WSU, the city of Detroit and students.

"The students want to go to schools where they can prepare for the workplace," Anderson said. "Technology has more of a presence now than ever before.

"Old Main will be a standard bearer of things to come at Wayne and to make it more 'user-friendly.' I think it ought to be a gem to attract students."

Ghafari & Associates, an architectural firm in Dearborn, converted Old Main into a modernized educational facility equipped to handle the needs of modern technology, including fiberoptics. Ghafari also built the Biological Sciences Building at 5047 Gullen Mall, renovated the Engineering Technology Building at 4855 Fourth and converted the old St. Andrew's Church at 918 Ludington Mall into a concert and lecture hall.

The state-financed project includes the remodeling of 300,000 square feet and the design of a 62,000-square-foot building addition on the northeast corner of Hancock and Second to house a recital hall, art gallery, orchestral and choral rehearsal room, rehearsal space for the Hilberry and Bonstelle theaters and theater classrooms. The renovation began in 1994.

The Romanesque revival style building has a brick exterior with terra cotta trim. The actual structure contains masonry-bearing walls with steel frames.

The main corridor houses ceramic tile, while Pewabic tile was used around main floor water fountains.

Old wood single-glaze sash windows were replaced with bronze-tinted windows with aluminum sashes, insulated glazing and framing to keep with the original style. The renovated area of Old Main features about 6,000 square feet of window wall systems including multiple floor curtain walls; punched (individual) windows; strip windows; bay windows and six round windows.

The renovations includes the addition of 560 pieces of miscellaneous glass for doors, side lights, (the strip next to the door) and transoms. The building will house 45 general classrooms, and include a planetarium and practice studios for the performing arts.

Heating and electrical systems have been updated, energy-efficient windows and air-conditioning installed and the building exterior has been cleaned.

Even the clock will work once the renovation is completed. Consisting of seven levels, the 250-foot-high, four-sided clock tower is the only remaining one of its type in the city. The clock's mechanisms have been replaced so the clock will function when the restoration is completed.

The original building was constructed in 1896. An addition was built around 1907. In the mid-1930s another section was added along Warren Avenue. A final appendage was tacked onto the southwest corner in 1941.

Old Main once housed libraries and deans offices. Offices were relocated after World War II and postwar expansion, according to David Barnett, university space planner.

"We're trying to maintain the historic nature of the building so it looks like it did in its prime," Barnett said. "We want to keep the feel of the wide corridors and maintain that sense but, because of what we're doing, it'll be a whole new building reconfigured to handle department needs."

Barnett said administrators studied renovating to resolve the building's architectural problems as early as the 1960s. People could not get from one side of the building to the other on certain floors.

Beginning April 14 and continuing through April 20, the Old Main Celebration Weekend will feature a variety of events including an Old Main historical exhibition, dance, music and theater presentations, alumni events presented by each of the 14 colleges, campus tours student awards and more.

WSU landmark is rich in history

■Old Main first opened its doors as Detroit Central High School in September 1896 to the chagrin of some community members who called the high school "elitist" and "unnecessary."

■The building's location was considered — at that time — on the outskirts of Detroit. Even the trolley stopped two blocks away from the school.

■The cost for building Central High School was $573,345, including site purchase, construction costs and equipment. When Mayor Hazen Pingree laid the cornerstone in 1895 he said the building would be useful to the rich, whom it would prepare for entrance to college, and the poor, whom it would enable to learn trades through manual training courses.

■The original building, complete with maple flooring throughout, was composed of 103 rooms, including an auditorium seating nearly 2,000 and a basement with racks for 500 bicycles. Elevator cars with "great power to carry 20 or more students," an "ingenious telephone system" and an elaborate clock network and clock tower contributed to what was once one of the largest high schools in the nation.

■In 1898 the Detroit Free Press referred to it as the "finest school building on the North American continent."

■In the early 1900s the only food served in the basement lunchroom was hot dogs, ice cream and candy.

■In 1917, Old Main became home to the Detroit Junior College under the leadership of Principal David Mackenzie. Detroit Junior College, offering Michigan's first public, junior college curriculum, shared Old Main with Detroit Central High School (DCHS) somewhat tenaciously until 1926, when DCHS was moved to a new location. By this time, the Detroit Junior College had become the College of the City of Detroit (CCD). CCD's first class of 62 students graduated in 1925.

■The 1930s saw the growing educational institution make its most profound transformation. Following the Detroit Teachers College incorporation into Old Main in 1930, the movement toward university status gained momentum.

■In 1934, Wayne University emerged as a unification of the five local colleges: Medicine, Pharmacy, Law, the Detroit Teacher's College and the College of the city of Detroit. In 1956 Wayne University became today's Wayne State University, Michigan's leading urban educa-

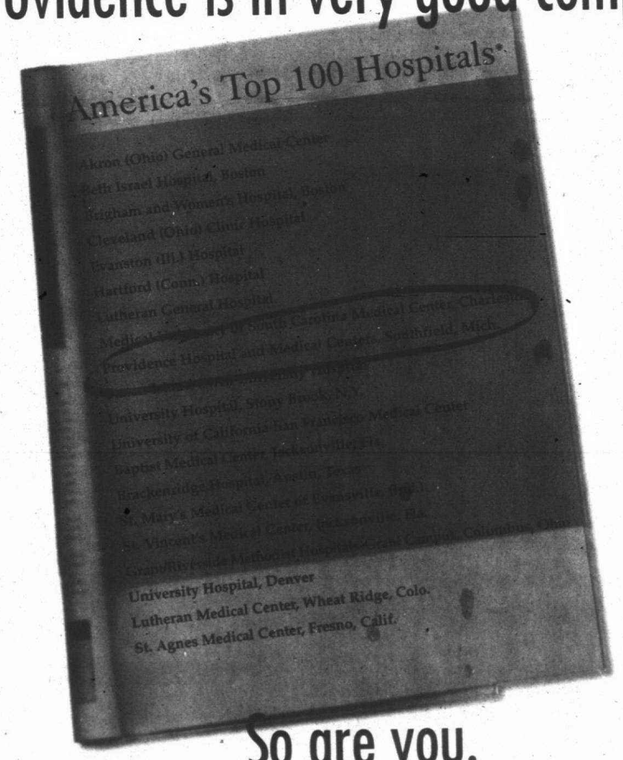
Providence is in very good company.



So are you.
The Providence team of physicians, associates and volunteers is proud to announce that we've made the list of America's Top 100 Hospitals. Two independent research firms rated over 3,500 acute-care hospitals nationwide, examining them for efficiency, financial stability, and quality of care. And in the final analysis, Providence was ranked in the top 100. We're excited to be in such good company. But then, after more than 150 years of serving metro Detroit—we couldn't be anything less. Competition

Edison, Consumers back PSC plan

STAFF WRITER

Detroit Edison officials, retirees and stockholders cheered the Michigan Public Service Commission staff plan to bring competition into the electricity market starting July 1.

They dominated MPSC's hearing March 26 in the Wayne County Commission auditorium in Detroit. Consumers Energy, which has much of the outstate electric market, also agreed in written comments to the PSC that competition is the way to go.

"We support the staff plan because all customers will benefit immediately from reduced electric rates," said Edison's Anthony F. Earley Jr., president and chief operating officer, in a written reply to MPSC's plan. He estimated rates would drop 8 percent, or $295 million.

The catch: how to recover "stranded costs," which the utilities say should be picked up by customers who switch providers. Residential customers who switch would pay rates 13 percent higher.

Government deal

"Many large industrial groups and our attorney general, Frank Kelley, are calling for shareholders to bear the burden of the costs incurred by utilities to meet the obligation to serve," warned Jerome Sobczak, an Edison retiree and chairman of a group of 27,000 of the 150,000 shareholders of DTE Energy, the parent company.

"They (Kelley and industrial users) are calling on the MPSC to renege on agreement made by the government during the long-standing regulatory environrecovery of legitimate stranded costs with surcharges that are not so high as to eliminate competition. The Energy Michigan plan contains no retail rate increase."

Schneidewind served on the MPSC from 1979-85 under appointment from Gov. William G. Milliken. He is with the Lansing law firm of Varnum, Riddering, Schmidt & Howlett.

Treat as 'contest'

Kelley, Energy Michigan and ABATE, a group of industrial users, asked the MPSC to conduct further proceedings as a "contested case," with formal introduction of evidence.

The issue arose when the Jobs Commission last year asked MPSC to deregulate electricity. MPSC staff produced a report on how the goal could be accomplished between this July 1 and 2004.

In Grand Rapids, 15 of the 20 speakers opposed the utilities' plan. David Dornbos, a Steelcase executive who chairs ABATE, said his group wasn't allowed to participate in negotiations with MPSC.

ABATE and a lobbyist for the Michigan Manufacturers Association complained that MPSC negotiated the plan with the utilities.

A March 26 hearing in Detroit drew only one dissenting voice and much support from Detroit Edison retirees and shareholders. They argued for protection of their investment on the grounds they are elderly, long-term, Michigan residents who invested in good faith in a regulatory climate.

CMS Energy, parent of Consumers Energy (formerly Consumers Power), serves 1.5 million electric customers and 1.4 million natural gas customers in more than 60 counties. DTE Energy, parent of Detroit Edison, sells electricity in southeastern Michigan.

Zoo extends spring hours

Animal enthusiasts will have an extra hour to enjoy the sites at the Detroit Zoo as the institute extends its hours for the spring season.

"We offer this extra hour in hopes that it will give our visitors more time to enjoy the great exhibits and events," said Detroit Zoological Institute Deputy Director, Darrl McFadden.

The additional hour also affords guests the opportunity to enjoy the Wildlife Interpretive Gallery featuring a tropical butterfly and hummingbird garden, coral reef aquarium and theater. CD-ROM interactive exhibits enable viewers to enjoy a short film series by an Academy Award-winning filmmaker.

"This facility has been very popular with all ages, and it has given the public a new and exciting educational experience," said McFadden.

Other highlights this season include longer viewing hours with the Zoo's Komodo dragon at the recently renovated Holden Museum for Living Reptiles & Amphibians. Significant structural and design changes have made the museum much more educational, visually appealing and user friendly.

Guests now encounter colorful back-lit graphics for each of its 75 species, spotting scopes in the center rainforest area for an up-close and personal look at prehensile-tailed skinks and free-ranging lizards and a 23 by 9 foot wall featuring a mural of the five types of reptiles and three types of amphibians on exhibit.

The Detroit Zoo opens at 10 a.m. 362 days a year. It is located at the intersection of 10 Mile Road and Woodward Avenue, just off I-696 in Royal Oak. Regular admission is $7.50 for adults, $5.50 for senior citizens (62 years and older) and students, $4.50 for children (2 to 12) and free for children 2 and under. Groups rates are also available.

For more information please call (810) 398-0900. Other DZI facilities include the Belle Isle Zoo and the Belle Isle Aquarium.

ment. . . We (shareholders) take these threats seriously."

"Stranded costs" are costs a utility pays in a regulated, monopoly environment to generate electricity, including transition costs, that might not be recovered if customers switch in a competitive market.

Edison recommended "transition costs only be assessed to customers leaving the utility system," Earley wrote. Edison estimates its stranded costs at $5.4 billion. It wants to recover them through:

1. "Securitization" – selling 15-year bonds worth $2.8 billion to pay off assets acquired because of regulation.

2. A surcharge on all electricity delivered on behalf of competitors. "The surcharge would be paid only by customers electing to use an alternative supplier." Estimated cost: 1.2 to 1.4 cents per kilowatt hour.

Michigan's average rates per kWh are 8.83 cents for residential, according to Consumers Energy, so the cost of switching would be 13.6 to 15.8 percent. Average commercial rate is 8.26 cents, so the cost of switching would be 14.5 to nearly 17 percent.

3. Reciprocity – allowing out-of-state suppliers to compete in Michigan only if their states give Michigan utilities a chance to compete.

Consumers Energy, the Jackson-based utility formerly known as Consumers Power, placed transition and implementation costs at nearly $2 billion.

Electric customers who leave Consumers Energy would pay about 1.45 cents per kWh, according to its news release. Those who stay with Consumers would not pay transition-implementation charges.

Competition would be phased in between July 1, 1997 and 2004.

Protect poor

MPSC members John Strand, John Shea and David Svanda listened without comment as a dozen persons spoke. Samples:

Alma Stallworth, former Democratic state representative from Detroit who used to chair the House Public Utilities Committee and now is on Edison's payroll, said the MPSC staff plan promotes fairness.

"It allows all customer groups to purchase open-access power in 1997. It demands reciprocity (to) protect Michigan jobs and revenues. And it allows utilities to recover stranded costs" by protecting shareholders, said Stallworth, whose title is community outreach liaison.

Ronald Robinson complained he "couldn't get past a secretary" to sell Edison officials about his idea to cut the cost of generation 90 percent. He didn't elaborate.

Joanne Rooney, a retired Edison supervisor in customer service, praised the MPSC report, saying the plan would provide reliable service, lower rates, provide new options, and honor Michigan's high environmental standards.

Ray Marcantonio, an Edison retiree, praised the report and said Edison has "worked to minimize outages during storms."

Upper Peninsula resident Henry Peters, who picked up news of the hearing on radio, complained the UP was considered as a nuclear dump site. He chided MPSC for holding no UP hearings. "What place is there for energy conservation in all this restructuring?" Peters asked without getting an answer.

'Look at solar'

Ronald Bosworth, a journeyman steamfitter from Royal Oak, warned of the danger of buying non-Michigan electricity. "If you buy power from Chicago and they don't have scrubbers, their nitrous oxides will come over here, and we're paying for it twice.

"Residents would pay more if they knew power was from a green source," said Bosworth, a member of the American Solar Energy Association. "Green source" refers to non-consumptive sources such as the sun and wind.

Joanne Klocke, in charge of homeless programs for the city of Detroit, urged MPSC to conduct "education programs in the simplest terms possible" for low-income people.

Harold Stokes, retired engineering and science instructor at Henry Ford Community College, deplored nuclear generating plants because "they generate wastes that no one wants."

David LeBlanc, representing Masco Tech, Taylor-based manufacturer, asked MPSC to hold evidentiary hearings because of "the vast amount of material" submitted. In an evidentiary hearing, witnesses under oath would have to provide facts to prove their claims.

Kathleen Walgreen, representing a fuel fund for low-income people, urged MPSC to "seek input from low-income people" and "prevent confusing marketing techniques."

Deregulating electricity in Michigan is part of a nationwide effort to deregulate airlines, natural gas and other industries.

tional institution.

Today, Old Main remains the heart of this thriving university, representing a century of affordable, quality education within a diverse urban campus.

The new Old Main will emerge as the university's first center for the arts, bringing the departments of music, art, art history and dance together for the first time. The renovated building will include a planetarium, recital hall, art gallery, practice studios, the Anthropology Museum, rehearsal space for the Hilberry and Bonstelle theaters and 45 general classrooms.

Beginning with a formal dedication and reception on Tuesday, April 15 at 11 a.m., the university will host a variety of college reunions, lectures, alumni events and other festivities in Old Main throughout the weekend.

STATE CAPITOL CAPSULES

Headlee back

Dick Headlee, the 1986 Republican candidate for governor, got a friendly hearing from a Democrat, Rep. Kirk Profit, chair of the House Tax Policy Committee, in Lansing recently.

Headlee, whose name was tacked onto the 1978 tax limitation amendment to the Michigan Constitution, was invited to tell the panel how to bring the state into compliance with the amendment.

The retired chairman of Alexander Hamilton Insurance Co. in Farmington Hills, Headlee now divides his time between retirement homes in Utah and southern California.

"After 18 years the elected public servants have stonewalled the courts, the constitution and common sense," said Headlee, protesting the state's propensity to shove costs onto local units of government without reimbursing them.

He said the Local Government Claims Review Board hasn't met since 1985 when it held "its first and only meeting. . . There are over 450 claims that lay untouched in a filing cabinet in the bowels of state bureaucracy, while that same state bureaucracy is fighting the Durant claim. This to me is one of the most flagrant abuses of the constitution on record."

In the Durant case, dozens of suburban school districts are suing the state for mandated costs such as special education. The 17-year-old case is due to be argued before the Michigan Supreme Court this spring.

"The explosion of local taxes under the charade of fees is frightening," said Headlee.

Hospital cuts

A former associate of Headlee, meanwhile, was battling Gov. John Engler's proposed cuts in the mental health budget.

Bill McMaster, Birmingham publicist and chair of Michigan Taxpayers United, told a House Mental Health Committee it was wrong to close Clinton Valley Center in Pontiac.

McMaster cited the 1991 case of Oakland County v. Michigan Department of Mental Health in which the county sued for costs of its program and won a settlement from Engler, then the newly-elected governor. McMaster called it "a waste of funds" to close state hospitals with treatment in favor of group homes with minimal or no treatment.

Dems pleased

House Democrats in Lansing said before the Easter break they were "progressing steadily" through their 90-day program of tax cuts for deserving working families.

Speaker Curtis Hertel, D-Detroit, cited the earned income tax credit for "cutting taxes for these hard-working families, most of whom didn't benefit from last session's (GOP sponsored) reductions in the inheritance and intangibles taxes."

Sponsored by Rep. John Freeman, D-Madison Heights, the earned income tax credit earning up to $28,495 to claim 10 percent of the federal earned-income credit on their state income tax returns. Democrats say it would benefit about 20 percent of Michigan wage-earning households.

With some Republican support, House Democrats also passed a bill to double college tuition credits against the state income tax. Both bills are likely to get a cool reception in the Republican-controlled Senate.

Cooperation

Republicans and Democrats united in the Senate on two bills.

Senate Bill 33, which requires a judge to assume "shared parenting" is the proper plan in divorce cases, passed overwhelmingly. It amends the Child Custody Act. In a public hearing in Livonia, the bill was strongly supported by most interest groups.

"The bill gives parents more leverage in determining their own parenting plan in divorce situations," said sponsor Joel Gougeon, R-Bay City.

Both parties praised a Senate-passed bill setting criminal penalties for a person who inflicts injury on a pregnant woman resulting in death or serious injury to her unborn child. Passed unanimously, it was sponsored by Sen. William VanRegenmorter, R-Jenison.

A companion bill in the House would allow the woman to recover civil damages for the wrongful death of a child in such a case. It is sponsored by Rep. Nick Ciaramitaro, D-Roseville.

The bills were prompted by a Wexford County case in which a reckless driver's pickup truck hit a vehicle driven by a woman who was scheduled to deliver a baby by caesarean section the next day. The unborn child bled to death. But the circuit judge dismissed a negligent homicide charge against the truck driver because the unborn child was not a "person" under Michigan law.

Appointments

Gov. John Engler has appointed:

■ Judy Dunn of Bloomfield Hills and Sister Mary Martinez of Livonia to the Community Service Commission, which encourages community service leadership. Dunn, a small business owner, will represent business interests. Martinez is Madonna University's director of the office of multi-cultural affairs and will represent trainers of disadvantaged youth. Their terms expire Oct. 2, 1999.

Brownfield tools

The state Department of Natural Resources will hold a workshop in Livonia on "Tools for Brownfield Development." Topics will include sources of funding, brownfield redevelopment zones and local experiences.

The workshop is scheduled for Thursday, April 10 in the Livonia Civic Center Library, 32777 Five Mile. There is no charge, but you must register in advance by calling Laurie Stallworth, DNR Environmental Response Division, 517-373-9540.

Other sites are April 15 in Gaylord, April 17 in Big Rapids and April 25 in Kalamazoo.

SC plans to expand campus buildings

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK
STAFF WRITER

Call it a $23.8 million facelift.

Schoolcraft College administrators have outlined that amount in proposed improvements at the main campus in Livonia and the satellite campus at the Radcliff Center in Garden City.

Butch Raby, Schoolcraft's vice president of business services, outlined locally-funded projects from the plan for 1997-98 for trustees at a meeting on March 26. That included laboratory renovations at the Forum Building, renovations to the Liberal Arts Building, expanded student seating in the Liberal Arts, Applied Science and Forum buildings and the Radcliff Center, and the expansion of the Media Center.

"The classrooms aren't large enough," Raby said. "We want to take the walls down to make them more accommodating."

Trustees approved budget adjustments for $56,000 for the Forum Building, $130,000 for the Liberal Arts Building, $200,000 at the Radcliff Building and $40,000 for the library.

Six 500-square-foot classrooms will be renovated in the Liberal Arts Building to become four 750-square-foot classrooms. A 2,500-square foot study area will be constructed at the west entrance.

Students can expect to obtain larger study areas in the Applied Science Building with the renovation and expansion of two west entrances into a 6,000-square-foot lobby/student study space/and vending machine area. A similar 1,800-square-foot addition is planned for the Forum Building.

In 1998-99, improvements proposed are a lab consolidation at the Radcliff Center, equipping each classroom with a facility computer work station, expanding the Metallurgy Lab in the Applied Science Building, and the creation of office space in all buildings for part-time faculty and an expansion of distance learning capabilities.

Board President Patricia Watson asked if $56,000 was enough to improve the labs.

The lab improvements will make these rooms more functional, Raby said. "In our best estimate, it should take care of the problems," Raby said.

Trustee Carol Strom was still concerned about the quality of the labs and safety. Raby said it would take care of the safety problems. "The gas valves leak and the lighting isn't adequate," Raby said.

Raby expects the board will review the plans every spring, upgrading them to have a two-year plan in place.

The architectural firm of Straub, Pettit and Yaste conducted interviews with Schoolcraft administrators and staff before completing the master plan. Schoolcraft administrators interviewed student leaders and added their input to the plan.

The college's board of trustees expect to approve a final draft of the capital improvement plan April 26.

Here is a building-by-building of selected capital improvements presented in the original draft of the master plan:

Waterman Campus Center: Construct two new culinary arts laboratories, a new culinary arts' resource library to house 12 to 15 computers, two faculty offices, and renovate and expand the American Harvest Restaurant. The cafeteria service and seating areas will be renovated and the cafeteria kitchen expanded.

Applied Science Building: Convert nine computer support rooms to a nursing computer laboratory, nursing computer work area, nursing storage and two classrooms for nursing classes. Five computer laboratories will be constructed, converting existing rooms.

The plan proposed that the college construct a technical services addition at the south side of the building with a 5,400-square-foot media center, a 3,350-square-foot information services and computer support area and a facility training unit.

Forum Building: A 3,500-square-foot addition in the north court yard to house a music practice laboratory, instrument and music storage and a small performance audience space.

Physical Education Building: Improve the pool and mechanical equipment with a backup circulating pump, repair valves and install grout for the pool. A drain system will be installed after 12 tennis courts are rebuilt.

Liberal Arts Building: Convert rooms into a theater workshop and dressing rooms, and remodel theater.

Bradner Library: Convert six classrooms into six study rooms and convert other rooms for audio-visual purposes.

Radcliff Building: Improve exterior design, modernize and combine the medical assisting lab and the biology lab and convert existing library and offices and storage space into a new library.

County names new environmental health director

Stephen Tackitt has assumed the duties of director of Wayne County's Environmental Health division as successor to Glenn Brown.

The division — a unit of the county's Department of Public Health — conducts a variety of preventative services, including food-service inspections, drinking water testing, on-site sewage system monitoring, lead poisoning prevention and water testing at public beaches and pools.

Prior to being hired by Wayne County, Tackitt worked as regional manager at NSF International, the Ann Arbor-based environmental quality testing and certification agency in Rancho Cucamonga, Calif., where he was responsible for customer service, audits, budgets and staff training.

Before that, he served as Macomb County's director of environmental health services for five years, and as deputy director from 1983-86. Between 1970 and 1983, he worked as a Wayne County sanitarian and supervisor.

Tackitt has a master's degree in public health from the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor. He lives in Plymouth Township with his wife and children.

Madonna to host sign language conference

Madonna University will host an American sign language storytelling conference to be presented five by satellite from Gallaudet University in Washington, D.C.

"Telling Tales in ASL: From Literature to Literacy, with a Focus on Deaf and Hard of Hearing Children and Youth," will be presented Friday, April 18 at the Madonna University video host site in Livonia.

Those attending the event will learn the principles, strategies, and materials using American Sign Language (ASL) storytellers from around the nation.

The conference will be presented at Madonna University's Kresge Hall, located at I-96 and Levan Roads in Livonia. The satellite portion of the program begins at 12:30 p.m. with an introductory presentation by Madonna University faculty, followed by the live two-hour interactive satellite broadcast. The seminar concludes at 3:30 p.m. after a wrap-up discussion. Sharon Meldrum, instructor of Sign Language Studies at Madonna, will facilitate the videoconference.

Fee for the program is $12. Individuals may register with a credit card by calling Madonna University's College of Continuing and Professional Studies at (313) 432-5731. For more information, contact the Sign Language Studies Department at (313) 432-5616 (voice mail) and TTY at (313) 591-9266.

Madonna University has been offering courses and programs of study in American Sign Language, deaf culture, deafness and interpreting since 1975. It continues to be the only program of its kind in the United States.

The list

Caution urged on sex crime law

As of April 1, residents can walk into their police departments and ask for a list of people in their neighborhoods who have been convicted or have pleaded guilty to sex crimes.

While some families may be comforted by the ability to find out who their neighbors are and their histories, we urge residents to use caution and sensitivity.

Local police chiefs are uncertain whether specific sex offenses will accompany the names on the list. If crimes are not included with the names, the lists could only create suspicion and hysteria in our neighborhoods.

Residents are urged to use common sense if they obtain the list. The best way to understand this list is to educate yourself on the myriad of charges for which anyone may be arrested. Urinating in public, for example, is considered indecent exposure and a sexual offense.

But in the spectrum of serious crimes, it doesn't much compare with charges of rape or child molestation.

Let's remember that in America when you have served your prison sentence – the punishment meted out for your crime – you have served your debt to society. When you are released from prison – barring any probational sentences – you are as free as your neighbors.

It's human nature to be concerned when you learn that your neighbor has served time for any crime, let alone a sexual offense.

State Sen. Michael Bouchard, R-Birmingham, said he sponsored the legislation to help people protect their families.

But let's also keep in mind that people who have served their prison sentence are entitled to start their lives over. Many of these people will have families in our local communities. Let us be mindful of how easily these children and families may be hurt by the information provided.

However, there are expert opinions that contend that certain sex offenders, such as pedophiles, cannot be rehabilitated.

If anything, this law should prompt citizens to ask questions about sentencing. If concern remains about the ability of someone released from prison to live in a law-abiding society, there is definitely a problem and the availability of this list won't solve it.

The list that is now available is designed to provide information to help you protect your families. But it can also hurt others.

Police are still doing their jobs. The availability of this list in no way deputizes neighbors to form vigilante groups.

We urge neighbors to use caution, common sense and sensitivity with the list of offenders.

Accurate census count is key

Strangers approaching your door this month aren't all solicitors. And the cards they leave behind when you're not home aren't necessarily junk mail.

The volunteers and call-back cards are part of Canton's mid-decade census.

Census enumerators, who wear identification, have been out and about in Canton Township neighborhoods since early March and will continue making their rounds through April 14. The census interview is short and to the point – only two questions are asked regarding names and ages of household occupants. In cases where nobody is home, a call-back card is provided for occupants to fill in the information and either leave it in the doorway or drop it in the mail.

Despite heavy publicity about the census, some residents remain unaware of the project. Others are wary of unfamiliar visitors, which is certainly understandable.

The mid-decade census is an expensive undertaking and somewhat unusual in southeastern Michigan. But Canton residents should know there is much to gain in getting an accurate accounting of the community's growth since the national 1990 census. Should Canton show a 15 percent population gain, or 8,556 more residents than in 1990, the township stands to receive as much as $680,000 annually in additional state shared revenues until the count from the next regular census (in 2000) becomes official. The money could replace or be added to local funding on programs and projects designed to improve the quality of life for all Canton residents, including road work, recreation and public safety.

Local officials believe the 15-percent population gain can be met if the enumerators reach nearly all residents. A final report must be submitted to the Michigan Secretary of State by June 1.

Residents who haven't been interviewed by a census worker or filled out a call-back card may call the township clerk's office, 397-1000.

Child abuse fight a taxing issue

We all know that child abuse and neglect have become all too common in our society. You can almost guess that once a week yet another story of horrific abuse to children will capture our attention.

More than two million cases of child abuse are reported each year, according to the National Council for Prevention of Child Abuse.

In Michigan in 1992, more than 50,000 reports of child abuse and neglect were made, resulting in 15,200 cases and 26,000 child victims. That same year in Wayne County, there were more than 11,000 reports of child abuse and neglect resulting in 3,500 cases and 6,700 child victims.

Prevention is the only way to address this growing problem. Unfortunately, appropriate authorities learn of abuse only after it happens when children have already suffered physical and mental injury, sexual attacks or exploitation, maltreatment or negligence.

Help is available through a multitude of programs, many financed by the Michigan Children's Trust Fund. One such local agency is the Child Abuse Prevention County of Out-Wayne County, which serves our western Wayne County communities.

A quick and sure way of helping to fund the 70 local child abuse and neglect preventions councils and 50 community-based direct service programs in Michigan is through the "Check-off Campaign" on your state income tax form – as well as direct donations.

It is the simplest way of donating to much-needed services and programs that will not only help prevent further abuse, but prevent a cycle of violence. Experts are certain that abused children or children who have grown up in homes with violence become abusive adults.

The Child Abuse Prevention Council of Out-Wayne's programs are financed by the income tax check-off through the Michigan Children's Trust Fund.

The council works to prevent child abuse through education, awareness, communication and advocacy.

Educational programs include a parent education program on child management called "Be a Hugger – Not a Slugger," as well as a new program, "Celebrate Fathers!," scheduled 8-11 a.m. Wednesday, April 9, at Burton Manor in Livonia. A panel of fathers will talk about the importance of fathers and ways to include men in their child's life.

The council also provides speakers to local civic and community groups, promotes Child Abuse Prevention Month in April, provides information and referral services in response to inquiries related to child abuse and identifies gaps in services and coordinates public and private resources.

Over the past 14 years, Michigan citizens have contributed more than $19 million to the Children's Trust Fund through the "Check-off Campaign."

Last year, 1.3 percent of all Michigan income tax filers contributed to the Children's Trust Fund Income Tax Check-off.

To be sure, the trust fund depends on all of us. It does not receive any money from state appropriations.

Prevention is the only cure for child abuse and neglect. We all have a stake in preventing the cycle of violence. But every effort costs money. By simply checking the Children's Trust Fund box on your income tax form, you will make a difference for all children.

Diverse opinions wanted

I'm writing in response to Joanne LaMar's editorial in the March 20 Observer. I'm not writing this to promote or denounce the bond, since that decision will have already been made by the time people read this. Instead, I would like to bring attention to some of the Plymouthcomments she made and the attitudes she conveys.

First of all, I do agree that we are all a part of the educational system. If we buy anything, we pay a sales tax that makes us, willing or unwilling, a part of the system. It was the next statement, "It takes a village to educate our children," that I would like to comment on. I believe it takes committed parents and qualified teachers to educate our children. I don't always agree with every "village" member and would not consider it very responsible of me to leave my children's education up to the "village." I do expect my children to grow up and be respectable villagers, but do not wish for them to take on many of the villagers' practices.

I guess if I was as busy as the writer of the editorial I'm commenting on, the village concept would probably be more appealing to me, because children do take up a lot of time and energy. Instead, I have chosen to take on that responsibility and am not dependent upon "village affairs." If we start handing our children off to the "village," who then will be held accountable for them?

The writer also stated that "we should not be about complaining, but about participation in change." Whoa, hold the ponies. Is she saying we should forget about our own diverse ideas and support something we might disagree with. I thought we lived in America. I thought we were the "village;" that diverse group of people where everyone's opinion counts. If William Wallace and his followers didn't "complain," how different would Scotland's history be? If the colonists didn't "complain" about their representation, would there be a USA? (This list could go on and on). General Patton (remember he served during World War II) once said, "if everyone is thinking alike, only one person is thinking."

Just because someone disagrees doesn't mean they're complaining. Yes, a former member of the school board spoke up against the bond. (Remember is too is a diverse member of the village). Should we so readily point a finger at him because he wasn't at the three forums (about nine hours total)? Let's not forget that this man did attend many school board and planning meetings, including the site development meetings where a site plan, which was ignored during the current process, was developed. He has served the community as a concerned "villager."

I found it interesting that 70-some people attended the community forum, but regular attendance at school board meetings is less than a dozen (excluding the board itself and employees). How many of the forum attendees are board meeting attendees? It takes more than just three days worth of forums to adequately understand our district. If those forum attendees are so committed to the "village," then where are they during the regular board and budget meetings?

I commend the writer of the editorial for making the sacrifices to attend the bond forums, but if the concern is truly there, she should rearrange her schedule and attend the board meetings regularly, where many ongoing decisions are being made that affect the "villagers" (perhaps a few American history course would also be of help). I also commend the former board member for acting as a concerned and responsible member of our "village." It's too bad we didn't take the time to be diverse and evaluate his ideas. (Isn't there a saying, "haste makes waste"). It would be interesting to see who actually has spent more hours and attended more meetings for the improvement of this district, the editorial writer (Joanne) or the former board member.

Lastly, (I have to ask) how does someone who has three jobs, three master's degree classes, is writing a thesis and involved in the bond proposal have time to see and know their children? Just as change is very difficult for many people, so is responsibility. Children take time and sacrifice. Do we really know what they need, or do we spend so much time away fulfilling our own needs, pretending to be concerned, that we really don't know them? Maybe change does need to happen, but maybe change means taking time to tune into our own children. Then so much wouldn't have to be left in the hands of the "village."

I'm a concerned "villager" whose husband attended two of the three forums and regularly attends board meetings.

POINTS OF VIEW

Let's demand money's worth on roads

When springtime comes around each year, we go through the bone-crushing effects and wallet-ripping arguments for more money to fill the potholes in our road system.

The real problem is that over the many years that we have had roads no effective system has consistently been used to design, build and maintain the road system. Each area of responsibility for our roads is given to a different agency or company that has no incentive, accountability or responsibility to keep the road fully functional for its intended life span.

Many factors affect the serviceable life of a road such as: (1) its basic design, (2) its physical location (on bedrock or in a swamp), (3) materials used, (4) construction techniques and skills, (5) proper maintenance and repair, (6) politicians, and (7) political lobby groups (those that want special considerations for vehicle weights or roadway location). Each one of these groups or agents has a vested interest in keeping the status quo. They all benefit from the cry "Fix these roads." Yet, they are all contributing parties to the present condition of our roads.

Instead of calling for more highway or gasoline tax money to be thrown into the drainage ditch with the other road debris, the question needs to be asked "How can the taxpayers ensure accountability from those spending and receiving our road money?"

The answer comes from the same idea that keeps the current system in place – greed. We give bonuses to those who finish a road-building contract ahead of time, but if the road does not last the expected life cycle the highwaymen get another contract to fix or replace it.

Failure of the road work has to cost the responsible people something. Under the current system, fixing a pothole so that it does not reappear means the repair team might be out of work, or the community's maintenance department's budget might be cut. What incentive is there to develop good, effective patch materials which will do the job once and for all when you can sell "cold patch" material into eternity? The answer is to make the road-building contract cover the complete life cycle from design, road-bed preparation, pavement laying and perpetual maintenance. This would establish accountability and, because there are no lucrative repair contracts, incentive to do the job right the first time.

Arthur Naujock

Systematic management

We make group purchases of our road system with the government acting as our (the taxpayer's) agent. The major problem is that this agent has authority to select the road plan, pick the builder, provide the maintenance, remove the snow and ice (salt – an inch of salt for each inch of snow), and levy taxes to pay for all of this. This agent however is not a single entity but many small sub-units with different responsibilities and operating instructions. There is no accountability to meet the "customer's" expectations. Our roadways are a product like anything else which means that there is an implied warranty for a reasonable serviceable life. Like any other product our roads need to be managed so that there is accountability for the life of the product.

Major obstacle

The last major obstacle to preserving good roads is in the politicians' hands. Reasonable, consistent and logical laws regulating road use and weight limits are absolutely necessary. If a vehicle needs more than a 2-8-8 (18 wheeler) tire combination the axles should be steerable to reduce the friction forces on the road surface.

There are models of this type of approach in existence today. Having toll roads for our city streets does not seem practical but it wasn't that many years ago that we assumed that only the city employees could be counted on to collect the garbage. Unless we change the way we manage our roadway system we will always be stuck with the standard politician's solution to every problem which is to throw more money at it in the hope that it will go away. The key point to remember is that we who pay for and use the road system are entitled to a fair return on our road and highway investments. We the taxpaying citizens deserve and demand better than we have been receiving.

Scholars don't get attention they deserve

Typically, a high-profile high school athlete with an average grade point average calls a press conference to announce which university he will attend to play football or basketball.

There's a gaggle of reporters, photographers, teammates, family members and friends on hand to celebrate the event.

In the next day's daily newspapers, there are usually a long story about the athlete, his college commitment, a color photo of the young man wearing a baseball cap bearing the university's logo as well as a columnist's comments on what the athlete's commitment means to the college's chances of winning next year.

I have nothing against an outstanding athlete getting a scholarship to a major university.

I've been a college basketball fan for about eight years, after the University of Michigan won the NCAA championship and, two years later, when the Fab Five arrived.

While I thought Chris Webber's monster dunks were a work of art, I always wondered about his classmates working on the latest techniques of computer programming or medical students toiling away throughout the nights and weekends trying to find a cure for a disease.

But I wondered if parents of high school students are a bit jealous if their son or daughter, with a 4.0 or higher grade point average, or a special talent, doesn't get the same recognition.

Leonard Poger

For example, what would happen if a local high school senior called a press conference to say he and or won a four-year scholarship to a private university, valued at more than $100,000, and planned to go to med school and search for a cure for cancer?

The dailies would ignore the announcement or put in a brief announcement in a suburban roundup.

While the Observer and other community newspapers pay more attention to top scholars than the dailies, there is still a horrendous imbalance in recognition.

I have had contact with numerous parents and high school seniors who have spent as much time with their classroom studies and special skills, such as science or music, as athletes, but rarely are those teens given the same recognition as athletes.

What bugs me is that the special talents and studies of outstanding scholars are more likely to contribute more to the quality of life of society than athletes.

Arguably, sports on TV or live are more entertainment than pure athletics.

But where will the nation find a cure for cancer or other diseases?

Where will America find the political leadership to examine the economic and health-care problems of its citizens in the 21st century?

Where will the country find the teachers, musicians, artists, writers and actors to enhance the quality of life of people of all ages?

Certainly, they will not be found on the football fields or basketball courts of major universities.

Watch out, Hillegonds, DIA battle is all uphill

Lots of luck, Paul Hillegonds. You're climbing straight uphill.

Hillegonds is the retired speaker of the Michigan House of Representatives who, at 47, has moved from Holland to these suburbs for a new career as head of Detroit Renaissance, a corporate-funded outfit trying to do good for the region. It's a noble goal.

A top concern is funding for cultural institutions such as the Detroit Institute of Arts and symphony, among others, Hillegonds told the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments.

"We will continue to work to find a plan for regional funding," Hillegonds said. "We will try to build a consensus first (before asking the state for enabling legislation.)" Polling shows strong public support for regional arts and cultural funding, he said.

Time for a reality check. If you are a Detroit City Council member, what is your chief concern?

A. Protecting the DIA's multi-million dollar art collection, expanding its public hours to full time and covering its deficit?

B. Saving the jobs of the city's union employees?

To a Detroit politician, the answer is B, of course.

The flap over local vs. state vs. regional funding for the DIA celebrated its 20th anniversary last year. It goes back to the days of Gov. Bill Milliken and Mayor Coleman Young. Prior to that time, the city funded its "cultural jewels" itself.

State funding for the jewels – DIA, the symphony, zoo, main library, etc. – hit a high in fiscal 1989 of $35 million which Gov. John Engler pared by roughly 40 percent in the 1990s. Engler's latest budget shows the arts at $22 million, but without a line item for the DIA.

Let's calculate that the state will give the DIA about $10 million. That's nearly half of the DIA's budget – fairly generous.

Currently, the DIA has a budget in the $22 million ballpark, but really needs something like $28 million for full-time operation. Although the city owns the assets (mostly donated), it puts up a mere $400,000 or less than 2 percent of the operating budget. The Founders' Society and admissions make up the rest.

Last week the Detroit council rejected, 6-3, Mayor Dennis Archer's plan to turn over operation of the DIA to a nonprofit corporation. The council majority wanted assurances that city positions stay city positions, controlled by the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

Tim Richard

That – not art – is Detroit's priority.

In suburban eyes, the whole process is one of giving Detroit money and having Detroit come back two years later and say there's a yawning deficit so give us more; two years later, give us more; more. It never ends. Statewide, there is a rebellion against funneling tens of millions downtown, in case you never read an outstate paper.

The Legislature and Engler are the only things keeping the DIA alive, and the thanks they get are, respectively, to be bashed as anti-Detroit and branded a Beal City bozo.

Well, there is a solution: Consider the DIA a regional, multi-county asset, rather than a city or state responsibility. That is what civic leaders like Hillegonds have been working on for several years.

There are two obstacles. 1) Suburban taxpayers love the arts but will decline to bail out a department controlled by the city of Detroit unless Detroit surrenders political control. 2) Suburban taxpayers are being peppered with tax proposals for a bus system, county parks, community colleges, school construction, roads, stadiums, police and so on.

My personal fear is that suburban taxpayers will become so annoyed by all the proposals that they will rebel against everything and reject the good along with the marginal and bad. My unscientific reading of the public mood is that we already are approaching that point.

Climb the cliff cautiously, Sir Paul of the Shining Armor. The DIA is not just another school project that needs to be marketed. It is loaded with political pitfalls.

My Delivery.
My Physician.
My Hospital.

"St. Mary Hospital offered so many choices for me, my baby and my family."

When I first thought about where to have my baby, I was sure of a few things. I didn't want to be moved from room to room; I wanted my family to stay with me, and I wanted the back up of a full-service hospital. St. Mary Hospital's new Miracle of Life Maternity Center offered me the choices I was looking for.

My doctor told me about the new maternity center's private, single-room suites, designed to help me feel at home. I'll stay in the same room for labor, delivery, recovery and postpartum care – they're called LDRPs. My best friend, Nancy, and her little girl can visit when it's convenient for me. I can even have someone stay overnight in my room.

And, the hospital's new Mariam Women's Center offers education like Infant Care and Safety classes and a Breastfeeding Program to help us make the adjustment to home life.

For my peace of mind there's 24-hour obstetrical coverage, and neonatology service is available if my baby needs it. State-of-the-art technology includes epidural anesthesia for comfort, and advanced fetal monitoring. All the while feeling very much at home. Close to home.

That's why St. Mary Hospital is my hospital.

Township OKs use of county property

■ The final PUD agreement must now be approved by the Wayne County Economic Development Commission and the Wayne County Board of Commissioners.

Northville Township trustees approved a Planned Unit Development agreement Thursday to guide the development of 896 acres of property owned by Wayne County in Northville Township.

Formerly the site of the County Child Development Center, the property is bordered by Five and Six Mile roads on the north and south, Sheldon on the east and Beck Road on the west.

The one year or so process of plan review and negotiation intensified over the past two months, culminating in the township approval on March 27. The final PUD agreement must now be approved by the Wayne County Economic Development Commission and the Wayne County Board of Commissioners, prior to execution.

Wayne County and the township opted to develop the property through the PUD zoning to allow the entire 896 acres to be developed through a detailed master plan as opposed to piecemeal development of individual parcels who will then be restricted by deed to develop the property per the conditions of the PUD and the initial concept plan.

Northville Township Supervisor Karen Woodside is pleased with the results of the PUD agreement. "This is an exciting project for Northville Township that will coincide with our 100th anniversary in 1998," Woodside said.

"Northville Township is pleased with to have a world class project of this caliber. The Planned Unit Development agreement will provide Northville Township with a premier development, yet will showcase the exceptional topographic features and beauty of this prime parcel of land.

"Our concern is to preserve the significant natural features that make Northville Township such an exceptionally desirable place to live and work. The PUD subcommittee, board members, township staff and consultants all worked very hard to come to an agreement with Wayne County representatives."

Residents will benefit from the paving of Six Mile Road between Sheldon and Beck. Area residents will enjoy a professional golf course with reduced rates for Northville Township residents as well as 45 acres which will be developed by the township for recreational and other public uses.

Other uses of the property include a balance of single-family and multiple-family residential development, along with small neighborhood commercial center and an area zoned for research and development.

PUD subcommittee chair and trustee Mark Abbo said: "I am pleased with the results of the lengthy negotiations which were difficult at times. I believe the Planned Unit Development will be of great benefit to the township and the county."

Trustee Marv Gans concurs. "This agreement satisfies the goals of the township and in particular to conveyance of property to the township for recreational use. It is a 'win-win' project."

Following the agreement's final approvals, demolition of the structures on the sites will occur. Simultaneously, developers will be preparing site plans for the property's development. It is anticipated that initial site plans will come before the township for review in the fall. The entire development will probably take five to 10 years to complete.

SC students eligible for MSU scholarship

Schoolcraft College students transferring to Michigan State University are eligible to win a $500 scholarship by the Michigan State University-Western Wayne County Alumni Association.

Applicants must be current Schoolcraft College students or graduates, with minimum of 50 credits, and transferring to MSU in the fall 1997 semester. They must submit a statement of no more than 200 words explaining career goals and how an MSU degree will help meet those goals. Applicants also must include a copy of all college transcripts with the application. Awards will be based on academic achievement and contributions to community and college.

Applications are available at Schoolcraft's Marketing and Development or counseling offices and must be submitted to Marketing and Development, located in the Administration Building, by Friday, May 2.

Art treasures to give, keep

She drew a silhouette of a cat sitting in a window sill. Beside the cat a candle stands in a simple candle holder. The cat looks outside, up into the night sky.

A full moon shines down on the small animal. And there is no man in the moon here, no, what there is is a full moon in the night sky with a cat's features emanating from the face of it. It is a "cat in the moon." And in delicate, whisper small script over the arch of the window these words: "We see things not as they are, but as we are."

This is a treasure of mine, a work of art and I own it. Its delicate fine lines, its grace, its warmth, its simplicity bespeak the artist's fine and careful hand, bespeak the artist herself.

And I had the pleasure of meeting and having tea with this extraordinary artist. Actually, she had tea, I had coffee. And the meeting was much more than my pleasure, it was an honor for me; it was a privilege. I met an artist, I met a lady.

Now, for several years I've been an "Art Lady" for our elementary school. "Art Ladies" are parent volunteers who periodically come into the classroom to share famous works of art with the children. And tell a little about the creators of that art.

But Art Ladies aren't required to be artists themselves, nor do they need a degree in art history. They just need to see how art, both the creation and observation of it, allow humans to be just a little more human.

Different feeling

At any rate, I'll never again feel right being called an "Art Lady," not after meeting Marlene Kutz, a real art lady. Marlene is as gentle and soft-spoken as I imagine an angel might be. In her words, in her inflections and expressions, and in her art, are a profound, yet somehow buoyant understanding of life.

The trials and tribulations of her 65 years are not a source of darkness or bitterness, on the contrary, this artist glows from life. Not a naive glow, not a silly, frivolous glow. But one that comes from the recognition that life is desperately precious no matter what form it takes.

As a former nun and retired teacher, Marlene taught many grades and lived in many places. She grew up in Detroit during the Depression, and she recalls hot, summer nights in the city when it was safe to sleep on the airy front porch, to catch a breath of air.

She remembers as an only child living in a busy, crowded house full of aunts and cousins and Grandmother learning to draw people at the age of 5 from Aunt Irene, the one who earned a living as a dime-a-dance lady.

Picture with a story

On the back of another of Marlene's works, she writes, "There is no prejudice here, no judgment. There is only the sweetness of the dance." In the piece, you can hear the music of the dancers, you can see the dancers' differences, and you feel the sweetness in all of it. It's palpable. It's real. Yes, it's a "picture," but it's so much more, it's a story and it has a moral.

And then there is the soft pastel water color, an impressionist styling of two little girls. Their backs are to us, and the one with the lighter, blonder hair, dressed in a summery blue sleeveless dress is speaking, is whispering something to her best friend, the little girl with the summery rose-colored sleeveless dress and the chestnut pony-tail swinging freely in the wind.

In delicate cursive writing in the margin is the single word, "Secrets." I know these little girls, I've seen them a thousand times, I've seen that same tilt of their young, innocent heads, the same carefree hair in the summer breeze.

When I first saw "Secrets" I remarked, "That's my Carmen and her best friend Bridget!" Marlene smiled knowingly. Somehow she knew.

Marlene showed me almost two dozen more of her works. Each told a story, in a poetic, profound way. The stories were, in turn, told exquisitely, whimsically, delicately, musically.

Marlene "told" of life being gentle, and told of life being riotous, with bursts, explosions of color. In her art, her "stories" are genteel, then gleeful, then filled with improbable moments, then probable moments, such as two ordinary little girls, best friends whispering.

Marlene gave all these to me. To keep. Actually, to send off. You see, they're greeting cards. But no, they're art. They tell stories, stories that could (perhaps, should) be heard over and over. So I'm keeping these. But I'll buy more, and those I will send. I'll be buying them tomorrow.

They're available in only one place: the gift shop in the Senior Center Building at the Livonia Civic Center complex on Five Mile and Farmington. For works of art, the price is

A new song: For Kim Moore of Plymouth, it was a waiter at a restaurant they ate at while attending the Gospel Music Association conference Christian singer who set her on the road to fulfilling her dream of being a Christian singer/songwriter.

■ It's a dream come true for Kim Moore. Singing and performing in churches have been a part of her life since she was a child. Now, she's taking it one step further, releasing her first album of Christian music, including several songs that she wrote.

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Since her days at Tennessee Temple University, Kim Moore has desired a career in music.

Two years ago fate and her belief in God helped the aspiring Christian singer/songwriter's dream come true.

After attending a concert during the Gospel Music Association's week-long conference in 1995, Moore and her husband, Eric, went to a restaurant to have dessert.

"The restaurant was almost ready to close and we didn't know that because we were so involved in talking to each other," said Moore, a former Canton resident who lives in Plymouth. "Our waiter heard us talking and he came over to our table. He said, 'Are you a Christian songwriter or artist?' I said, 'Yes, I'm a songwriter.' He sat down and talked to us and told us that he was an unsigned songwriter at that point."

The next night they went to another concert and literally ran into the waiter, whose name is Guy.

"He said, 'I think we were supposed to meet.' I said, 'I think we were too,' " Moore explained.

Six months later Moore and her husband decided it was time for her to record an album. She called Guy hoping that she could record some of the songs that he had written. He couldn't offer his songs to her directly because he had signed a publishing deal with Benson Music Group. He put her in touch with Jeff Morgan at Benson Music Group.

"He had access to all the files of songs; he'd send me tapes of 10 songs at a time," Moore said. "I'd listen to them and sometimes I didn't pick anything off of it, sometimes there'd be two or three off of them. I listened to close to 100 songs and picked seven to finish the project."

Moore, who wrote or co-wrote three of the album's songs, is celebrating the release of her debut CD "Beyond Redemption" with a party and performance at 7 p.m. Thursday, April 3, at Plymouth Baptist Church, 42021 Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth Township. The concert is free. For more information, call (313) 453-5534.

During the party, Moore will sing several songs off her album, motivational speaker Carol Kent will make a guest appearance, and there will be a time of prayer to dedicate the CD.

Concert-goers will have the opportunity to buy "Beyond Redemption" for $15 for the CD, and $10 for the cassette. Those who can't make the concert can purchase the album for $15.98 and $10.98 at Agape Booksellers, 44720 Ford Road, Canton.

Their competition is the Catholic Central Mother's Club and a foot race, but organizers are confident they'll have a good turnout.

The Zonta Club of Farmington/ Novi Area has been able to increase attendance by some 200 people each year for its "Stepping Out in Style" benefit for First Step, slated for 6-9 p.m. Sunday, April 13, at Parisian's Laurel Park Place store.

"One of the things we've found is that if we can get the people in the first time, we can get them back," said Zonta club member Beverlee McAllister who has had a hand in organizing the evening of food, fashions and shopping that will be hosted by Parisian.

For a price of $25 per person, participants will be treated to informal modeling and fashions shows, featuring career, casual and after-work clothes.

Successful last year, the fashion show will once again feature children ages 3-8, escorted by adults to ease them through their stage fright. And while the show will be geared more for career and professional women, there will be a small segment on dressy clothes, McAllister said.

Entertainment will include light rock guitarist Ryan Winkler of Livonia Stevenson High School, a strolling musical duo (guitar and saxophone), classical guitarist Michael Bryce, caricaturist Chuck Boya-

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

WE'RE MATCHMAKERS

Sometimes a good Realtor may remind you of a favorite aunt who is always trying to fix up her single nieces or nephews with her friends' sons or daughters. She really gets inspired when her efforts result in a great marriage. We match prospective buyers with the perfect home for their family--and when it works, we feel terrific!

Sellers often have a strong attachment to a home that holds many memories for them. It is important for them to know that the new buyers will love it, too. While any sale can potentially become complicated and difficult, problems seem to work themselves out more easily if you have started out on a positive note. This is one important reason why we work hard to maintain a good rapport between the parties involved in every transaction.

behind her songs. One song, "I'd Rather Listen to the Angels," is particularly touching to Moore.

"I co-wrote the song with two guys – Ryan Ballard and Brad Killian," she said. "Brad knew a gal that was affiliated with his church who was a cancer patient and was near death. One of the last things she did was she wrote a letter to a friend."

In the letter, the woman told of the nurses who were in her room trying to comfort her. But there was something else in there that captured her attention – a choir of angels. She died shortly after writing the letter.

"Brad was very moved by the thought that here's this woman who is near death," Moore said. "You would think that all this activity going on in the room would be more concerning to her because all these people were trying to help her be comfortable and ease her pain. But when she came into the presence of this heavenly group of people singing about God and praising God, that was all that really mattered.

"From that, Brad and Ryan wrote this song and I added a second verse to it."

Growing up in suburban Dallas, Texas, Moore performed in churches since she was a little girl. Her father was a deacon in a large Baptist church,

"I was raised in the church and played the piano; if you could play the piano and you were old enough, you played in church," she said with a laugh.

She spent her teen years in the church's youth group which gave her many opportunities to do ministry in other area churches. That, she said, "laid the groundwork for what I did with my life."

She earned a bachelor's degree in sacred music/piano performance in 1982 from Tennessee Temple University, where she met Eric. Moore put her music career on hold while her husband finished his seminary studies.

Seven years later, the couple, along with their two children, Lincoln, now 11, and Brittany, now 9, moved to Canton to start the Canton Community Evangelical Free Church. They now reside in Plymouth.

Eric is the deacon at Canton Community Evangelical Free Church which meets at Plymouth Canton High School's Little Theater, while Kim serves as creative arts director. By the summer, the church will move to the former Agape Christian Center at 41550 Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth Township.

Renewing her dream

She renewed her thoughts about a music career after the birth of her third child, Hunter Christian, in 1992. Three years later, they headed to the Gospel Music Association's weeklong celebration with the hopes that God would point them in the right direction.

"When we left, Eric and I prayed on the plane that God would just lead us to the people that he wanted us to meet...I really think he did," she said. "That's what's been so affirming in all of this. I make a decision to go down there and say, 'God, lead me' and he does. In the process, the affirmation comes that 'Yes this is the way you're supposed to be doing.'"

The most daunting part of the project was raising the money to make a decent recording. To produce a good quality album for under $10,000 is really hard to do, even under $20,000 is hard, she said.

"When I heard that, I thought 'I don't have $20,000," Moore added. "My husband's a pastor. We planted a church. It's not like we're anywhere near financially set. The people of our church and my family and friends have just come around. They saw the potential in the music and the ministry and have given gifts and donated services."

"Beyond Redemption" was recorded at the Track Factory in Canton and Benson Music Group's recording studio in Nashville. She wrapped it up in January. One of the songs on the album, "Only a Whisper Away," was written by up and coming Christian artist Carolyn Arends who performs at The Palace of Auburn Hills with Michael W. Smith and Audio Adrenaline on Saturday, April 12.

The success of singers like Steven Curtis Chapman and Michael W. Smith and groups such as Jars of Clay and DC Talk gives Moore hope.

"I'm really happy to see that happening," she said of their successes. "I like what those artists are saying with their music. I look around me and I see a lot of very unhappy people, people who are questioning and need a positive influence. I think when I look at the lyrics for those songs, they talk plainly about what life is like. They don't try to sugarcoat life and make it sound like it's something that it's not. On the other hand, they also say there's hope and I believe there is."

As for Moore, she wants to spread the message that "we're not alone and that there's hope in spite of the circumstances; in spite of what may seem like an overwhelming situation."

"I think that there's some people would think that contemporary Christian music is kind of out of touch with reality and everything's happy, happy, happy," she said. "What I experienced and what I know is that sometimes life is really terrible and really sad. Things go the way we don't want them to go. There's a lot of tragedy. We have to talk about that in both situations God is still there.

"Even though we may not feel that he's right beside us, he is there. He does want to bring peace into the midst of the difficult circumstance. That's the truth."

Institute schedules hospice training

The Barbara Ann Karmanos Cancer Institute hospice program will offer training in April for caring men and women who want to make a difference in their community.

Volunteer training sessions will be 6-9 p.m., beginning Monday, April 17, at the institute's West Regional Office, 3807 Monroe, Dearborn. The program will include training in communication skills, loss and grief issues, legal documents and the history of hospice.

According to Volunteer Coordinator Cathy Dominici hospice volunteers run errands, spend time with bereaved children, fulfill special wishes and provide support to terminally ill persons and their families.

"Energetic and optimistic people who are sensitive to the needs of others make great volunteers," she said. "Through simple acts of kindness, they learn about the wonderful healing power of human presence."

For more information, call Dominici at 1-800-527-6266.

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

Friends of Kalani Kailimai always ask her if she misses work yet. More than a year ago, she decided to leave her job at Mazda's Flat Rock assembly plant and become her own boss.

She is quick to tell them "no way" and how pleased she is she decided to accept the company buyout. Now instead of building cars, she's busy working with the customers who frequent her Rainbow Repeat, the latest addition to the area's resale and consignment market.

"This is so much easier," said Kailimai. "I'm doing something I like very much. This is much more gratifying than working for Mazda. The money was top-notch, excellent, but this is much more gratifying."

"Fed up and frustrated" with her job, Kailimai was going to quit and do something or quit and do nothing when she took the buyout. But she didn't go directly from employer to the boss. She worked for awhile at a friend's resale shop, Walk In Closet, in Ypsilanti before deciding to open her own store.

She tapped into what she was going to do to get what she needed for the store, getting equipment from stores that were going out of business and items from friends and other resale and consignment shops.

Nine months ago, she opened her shop in a small strip mall on Five Mile Road in Livonia and was pleased at the reception she received. A newspaper advertisement attracted a crowd of 95 shoppers on opening day even though she "didn't have as great of stock then."

Word-of-mouth and fliers have helped keep a steady flow of customers coming through the door. And a cadre of 200 consignors and 90 cash customers has keep her racks well-stocked.

To attract consignors, Kailimai followed her friend's advice of putting fliers in the window before she opened. She did and has 40 calls from consignors before the store opened.

Rainbow Repeat carries women's clothing in sizes 2 to 26-28 and accessories like shoes, purses, hats, belts and jewelry on consignment. For a fee of $7, consignors can bring in 30 items per month, splitting 50/50 with the store.

Kailimai tries to keep prices to a third of what the clothes would have cost regular retail. Some things that will come in with the price tags still on are priced at half of what's on the tag.

"Consignment isn't for everyone," Kailimai said. "There are those who would never purchase what we offer, but we offer great clothing and accessories for our customers who love to bargain shop."

Kailimai also offers instant cash for gently used children's clothing in sizes 0-14 and equipment like strollers, car seats and high chairs and progressive discounts on the clothing to help rotate stock. She does have a few rules to avoid being confused with thrift stores. Clothing must be current styles, two to three years old, freshly laundered and on hangers when brought to the shop.

Clothing items are seasonal. Fall and winter clothing is sold at 50 percent off to make way for spring and summer fashions. Unsold goods are returned to the consignor or donated to a women's shelter and teen pregnancy center, Kailimai said.

"While I'm essentially a resale shop, I only offer the best of what I am presented," she said. "I'm committed to providing quality merchandise, reasonable prices and a friendly smile."

She tries to remember everyone's name to add a personal touch and admits she is pretty good at it. While Kristen Cooper of Redford checks out women's jeans, her son, Kristopher, 7 1/2, and daughter Madalyn Rose, 14 months, are entertained by Kailimai and vice versa.

"Since I came here the first time, I've been telling everybody about it," said Cooper. "It's the best I've been to. She carries sizes that fit. I came here the last time and left stuff on the racks that I thought, 'I wish I'd had more money to buy.'"

It is that kind of interaction with the customers that adds to Kailimai's enjoyment, even though she admits to working close to 70 hours a week.

"I enjoy the interaction with the customers; I enjoy the children," she said. "I have customers come in and stay and stay. I enjoy passing the time with my customers.

"One of my customers asked if I have a life and I said, 'No, this is it.' I have no life anymore. When I worked in the factory they'd give me 17 vacation days and five personal days and they'd be gone by March. I've been here every day except for a couple when my mother had quadruple bypass surgery."

For more information about Rainbow Repeat, call Kailimai at (313) 427-0332. The store is at 29116 Five Mile, just east of Middlebelt, Livonia.

Christian Scientist Jill Gooding

'HEALING POWER'
Jill Gooding of Hampshire, England, will present a Christian Science lecture, "The Healing Power of the Ten Commandments" at 8 p.m. Friday, April 11, at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, 1100 W. Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth.

The lecture will address the deep cry from mankind for the return to basic morality and ethics. Gooding will discuss the need for and implications of the Ten Commandments in today's world, showing how, when understood spiritually, they are the basis for prayer and healing.

Gooding has been in the public healing practice of Christian Science for many years. She is a teacher of Christian Science and a frequent contributor to the church's periodicals. A member of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship, she has lectured extensively throughout Europe and the United States.

The lecture is free and child care will be provided. For more information, call the church at (313) 453-1676.

Trinity Church hosts series on C.S. Lewis

As a follow-up to its presentation in March of Mark McPherson's one-man show about C.S. Lewis, "From Narnia, With Love," Trinity Church of Livonia will host a six-week study of Lewis's best selling "Mere Christianity."

The series will be 6:30-7:30 p.m. Sundays, April 6-May 11. The Rev. Michael A. Van Horn, pastor of Trinity Church and long-time reader of C.S. Lewis, will lead the discussion.

Van Horn, a doctoral candidate at the University of Wales in the United Kingdom, wrote an award-winning master's thesis on Lewis's philosophical thought.

"Mere Christianity" is a compilation of a series of radio broadcasts for the BBC during World War II. It is said that Lewis's voice was second only to Winston Churchill in recognition during that era of British history.

The broadcast talks presented in clearest terms the foundational truths of the Christian faith. Thousands of people have found the radio talks and the subsequent book to be a profound and powerful introduction to Christian belief.

For more information about the series, call the church at (313) 425-2800.

ANNIVERSARIES

Burger

Walter William and Eleanor Marie Burger of Livonia celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with a gathering of friends and family at Vladimir's in Farmington Hills and with a renewal of wedding vows.

The couple was married April 12, 1947, at St. James Lutheran Church in Elmer, Mich. She is the former Eleanor Marie Brown.

They have five children – Denise Mazzei of Brighton, Paula Nelson of Farmington Hills, Deborah Thompson of Granada Hills, Calif., David of Brighton, and the late William Burger. They also have five grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

The couple retired five years ago. He was a carpenter and piano tuner; she was a registered nurse.

The Burgers, who enjoy charity work, are longtime active members of St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Farmington Hills where they sing in the church choir.

He performs with the Church Brass Band as well as the Farmington Brass and Franklin Village Band.

She is active with the church Women's League.

Medland

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Medland, 50-year Livonia residents, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with a Feb. 15 reception, given by their children and grandchildren, at the Botsford Inn in Farmington Hills.

She is the former Barbara Allen.

The couple has four children – Carol and husband Fred of Canton, Thomas and wife Deb of Westland, Gary and wife Carol of Lapeer and Barbara and husband Gary of Cedar – and six grandsons.

The Medlands are active volunteers at Greenmead Historical Village in Livonia.

Borawski

Edward and Anna Borawski of Livonia celebrated their 50th anniversary with a blessing of their vows and a Mass at St. Bernadine Church in Westland. A reception, given by their children, followed at Woods Condo Clubhouse.

The couple married Feb. 6, 1947, at Assumption Grotto in Detroit. She is the former Anna Armbruster.

They have three children – Julie Flahan and husband David of Livonia, Kathy Rice and husband Tim of Westland, and Paul and wife Judy of Mequon, Wis. The Borawskis also have six grandchildren.

He retired 15 years ago as a custodian for the Livonia Public Schools. She is a homemaker.

The couple enjoys traveling, card clubs, and senior organizations. They are active members of St. Bernadine Church.

Schoolcraft seminar addresses adoption issues

Being an adoptive parent has a number of special challenges in addition to the usual trials facing all parents. On Monday, April 28 Schoolcraft College will present "Tips for Raising Adopted Children," a seminar aimed at adoptive parents, prospective adoptive parents, extended family members, adult adoptees, birth families of adoptees and adoption professionals.

The seminar will address concerns such as those of a couple whose son, adopted, at birth is now 3 1/2 years old.

"Someday, our son may want to search for his birth parents," said the father. "On an emotional level, I worry about how this will affect our family and his relationship with us.

"I have to remind myself that he has roots beyond our family. If he decides to search, we will support him, but we will want him to realistic in his expectations."

Another mother wonders how much her adopted daughter, age 6, can comprehend about her adoption.

"I've always been open about the fact that she was adopted," said the mother. "Now she's starting to approach me with questions about her history. Obviously, I would never hide anything from her, but I don't want to give her more details than she can understand at this age. It's a real challenge to find that balance."

Helping to find that balance and addressing other concerns are two speakers, each with personal connections to adoption.

Linda Yellin, an adult adoptee, is a therapist and consultant with a private practice in Farmington Hills. She specializes in pre- and post-adoption services and is a leading authority on adoption.

Sharon Kaplan Roszia is program director of the Kinship Alliance, headquartered in California, and an adoptive parent and foster parent as well as a birth parent. Roszia co-developed the concept of the "Seven Core Issues of Adoption," and is co- author of "The Open Adoption Experience."

The seminar will focus on four topics: early attachment issues and hints for successfully brining a child into the family, what children can understand about adoption at what ages, who searches for their birth families, why and when does this issue arise and the impact of adoption on grandparents, cousins and other generations, as well as the adoptees themselves when they become parents.

The seminar begins at 6:30 p.m. and the fee is $20. Participants are asked to register before April 21.

For more information or to register, call (313) 462-4448. Schoolcraft College is at 18600 Haggerty Road, Livonia.

"Almost anywhere in the store you'll find entertainment," said McAllister. "And if you spend $150 you'll get the price of your ticket back. Parisian will give shoppers $25 of on $150 in purchases."

The strolling dinner will be provided by the Botsford Inn, Country Epicure, D. The Zonta Club has long been a supporter of the work done by First Step. A local chapter of Zonta International, it is a service organization of female executives in business and the professions working to improve the status of women.

Founded in 1978, First Step is the only agency to offer crisis intervention for the victims of domestic violence and sexual assault in the 35 communities in western Wayne and Downriver Wayne County.

The agency relies heavily on benefits like the fashion show to plugged up the holes in its public funding. Based in Canton Township, First Step received more than $550,000 from state and federal sources and $203,798 from the Plymouth Community United Way and United Way of Southeast Michigan.

The remaining $218,000 came from private sources like the money raised by the Zonta Club and at Livonia Churchill High School where students have brought in cans to collect money for First Step.

"We're hoping to get the information out about domestic violence and sexual assault along with having a fund- raiser," McAllister said. "Even with First Step's sexual assault program, there are people who don't think it happens in the suburbs."

From October 1995 to September 1996, First Step received 10,592 calls and helped some 4,556 individuals and provided housing for 660 people, totaling 10,899 nights at its shelter.

It also provide 28,917 hours of counseling, 1,359 hours of advocacy, 2,238 hours of child care, and made 178 community presentations. Volunteer hours total more than 18,000 and include many high school students.

"It's amazing the number of Plymouth-Canton students who volunteer their services at the Canton office," McAllister said. "Part of it is because the see the sexual assault in the high school and see the need even in their own families."

Zonta members are hoping to see the fashion benefit keep growing in size and money raised. By getting everything donated, everything raised at the event goes directly to First Step, said McAllister, who lauded the restaurants' support of the fund-raiser and the work being done by the agency.

"If we can get more and more people there, eventually we might have to branch out into the mall and get other stores involved," McAllister said.

Whaler award winners

Seven Detroit Whalers reaped awards for their outstanding performances this season in a variety of areas.

The team's most valuable player award went to goalie Robert Esche. The top scoring award was given to Andrew Taylor, with Harold Druken getting rookie of the year honors.

The most sportsmanlike player of the year award went to Steve Wasylko, while the best defenseman award was given to Jan Vodrazka. Luc Rioux was named scholastic player of the year, and Mike Morrone was honored with the humanitarian award.

Winners of team awards may be nominated for a Canadian Hockey League national award. The Whalers have one national nominee: Druken, for rookie of the year. Druken ranked second among rookie scorers with 27 goals and 31 assists, for 58 points in 63 games.

Soccerdome champs

The Canton Wizards, an under-14 boys soccer team, won its division in the third session at the Canton Soccerdome, posting an 8-0 record while outscoring their opponents 73-20.

Team members from Canton are Ryan Busse, Russ Caid, Rob Deboe, Carl Fanning, Chad Goethe, Michael Goethe, Ron Kluscar, Greg Musser, Ryan Rayden, Chris Sherfey, John Sink, Ryan Stanko and Alan Strang. The Wizards are coached by Dave Goethe and Rob Strang.

Other Canton Soccerdome third-session champions:

Under-10 boys: Cheetahs, coached by Mike Wiengand, first; The Gehl Group, coached by Mike Bianchi, second.

Under-11 boys: The Express, coached by Kevin Robey, first; the Panthers, coached by Curt Siegwald, second.

BASEBALL PREVIEW

Better defense is Chiefs' goal

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR

CANTON

Talk about a sophomore jinx.

There's no other way to describe Plymouth Canton's baseball season in '96. A year earlier, Scott Dickey's first as Canton coach, the Chiefs were surprisingly successful, posting a 17-13 record.

With a team loaded with seniors (eight of them) and experience, another step up was anticipated last season — perhaps even a Western Division crown and a shot at the Western Lakes Activities Association championship.

It didn't turn out that way, though.

The Chiefs struggled, finishing 15-16 with a team capable of much better.

Now Dickey must replace the departed — only two starters and one pitcher with experience return — while getting the team back on the right track.

"We're relatively young," Dickey noted, "and next year we'll be real young."

That's because Canton isn't actually young in terms of age, not with nine seniors on the squad (with five juniors and three sophomores). But the Chiefs are woefully lacking in experience.

Senior outfielders Jeff Opalinski and Pat Noonan both return, a definite help. Noonan, a left-fielder, was one of Canton's top bats, hitting .315 with seven doubles, a home run and 22 runs batted in, which was second on the team to John Wright, who's now playing first base at Grand Valley State.

Opalinski, who played right field last year, moves to center. He hit .294 with four doubles and 15 RBI.

The only other Chief with considerable varsity experience is right-handed senior pitcher Jason Mortiere, the No. 2 hurler last season (Anthony Pastor was No. 1) with a 3-3 record, a 3.90 earned run average and 35 strikeouts in 40 innings pitched. Mortiere is also slated to play some outfield.

Despite their inexperience, Dickey remains "confident, with Jason and if the kids pitch as well as we think they can."

Canton's biggest problems came on defense. "It was a frustrating year — extremely frustrating," admitted Dickey. "Last year we just made too many errors."

However, with a completely rebuilt infield, nothing's for certain.

Pat Van Hull, a junior who was on the junior varsity last year, will take over for Wright at first base. Dahlman will back him up.

Senior Nathan Copenhaver takes over at second; a part-time player last year, he hit .200 in limited playing time. Rourk figures to be in reserve.

At shortstop, senior Neil Wildfong — a .290 hitter in limited action a year ago — will be No. 1, with sophomore Andrew Copenhaver, a strong prospect, getting some time in support.

David Kwiatkowski, a junior, and Cortellini will be at third; both were on the JV a year ago.

No starter has been proclaimed at catcher as yet, with seniors Pat Marsac and Jason Tallant and junior Kyle Richardson all battling for the top spot.

Joining Noonan, Opalinski and Mortiere in the outfield will be senior Ray Horton, who played sparingly in '96, starting in right. Page and Tucker will also serve as backups.

"Last year, we were just disappointed with the way we played defensively," said Dickey. "If we had

Canton opens season with a twinbill split

It wasn't exactly what Plymouth Canton baseball coach Scott Dickey had expected, but all in all Tuesday's season-opening double-header against visiting University of Detroit Jesuit was more than satisfactory.

For one thing, the defense was sound. After last season, during which Canton let several games get away with sloppy play, Dickey made defense a priority.

The Chiefs responded, committing just one error in the two games, although it was a costly one, leading to two unearned runs in a 6-3 loss in the opener.

And the pitching was, well, good and bad. Sophomore Ben Tucker provided the good, hurling a five-hitter in a 4-1 second-game victory. Tucker went all seven innings, walking three and striking out eight.

"His pitching was great," said Dickey, who had figured Tucker to be the fourth man on his staff.

"We were really happy with the way we played defense. Our pitching was a concern in the first game — nine walks aren't going to help your cause."

Dickey had figured his first-game starter, senior Jason Mortiere, would be steady, but Mortiere struggled a bit. He gave up just two hits in five innings, and he struck out nine, but he also walked eight, which led to three runs.

Mike Rourk took over in the sixth with the game tied at 3-3 and ended up absorbing the loss. In two innings, he allowed three runs (one earned) on two hits and a walk.

Canton got all three of its runs in the opener in the third inning. Mortiere walked, stole second and scored on Neil Wildfong's single; after a Nate Copenhaver single, Pat Noonan doubled in two runs.

The Chiefs managed just two other hits off U-D starter and winner Jason Rospierski, who fanned 10.

In the second game, Canton scored four times in the first three innings to support Tucker. David Kwiatkowski, who singled in a run in the first inning, had three hits and Wildfong had two.

Copenhaver doubled in two runs in the second and Jeff Opalinski slugged a solo home run in the third.

"We got a lot of work in," Dickey added. "We swung the bat well. All in all, we were pleased."

The Chiefs play a non-league double-header Saturday at Walled Lake Central.

Rocks are planning a return to prominence

Painful memory: Salem coach Dale Rumberger had precious few positives to recall from the '96 season.

BY C.J. RISAK

SALEM

Everything seemed to crumble last season for a program in which success seemed merely a formality.

Player problems off the field, defensive ones on it, and then, with the state tournament just getting underway, coach Dale Rumberger suffered a serious kidney disorder that sent him to the hospital and forced him to miss the districts.

"I didn't like the way the season ended last year," Rumberger said. "As good as my first year was, last year wasn't. Just about everything that could go wrong, did."

In Rumberger's first year as Salem's coach, the Rocks reached the state quarterfinals. Last season, they didn't even make it to the district finals, finishing with a dismal 10-19 record.

The easy thing to do would be to look at last year and say it was just an apparition, that it would all fade like a bad dream without changing a thing.

Rumberger wasn't about to follow that path, not after what he went through — a kidney operation that kept him out of work for six weeks last summer.

Changes were made. For one thing, nothing was certain. Used to be seniors were secure, their places on the team assured.

No more. Rumberger cut three seniors during preseason tryouts.

"I got better kids than them," he explained. 'I'm sure they probably thought, 'We're seniors, they'll never cut us.'

"It was not a popular thing to do, but with the team chemistry we have now, it was probably the best thing I could have done."

Team chemistry had always been a given at Salem, but last year Rumberger was forced to suspend several players for a variety of infractions, from thievery to personal confrontation.

A more careful player selection process figures to solve that. But better character doesn't always translate into more victories.

Rumberger tackled that problem by bringing back his predecessor. John Gravlin, who coached Salem to a state championship in '91 and continued as the Rocks head coach through '94, when he gave way to Rumberger, his assistant and friend.

Gravlin assists Rumberger three days a week;

Top quality

State title contenders fill Observer squad

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

Redford Bishop Borgess boys basketball coach Roosevelt Barnes likes to tell his players about the time he scored 44 points for Monroe High School in a state tournament game.

Barnes isn't bragging, rather, he's teaching them a lesson.

"I scored 44 and we lost," Barnes recalls. "I would have given away 40 if we won and kept playing. I tell my young men points don't mean a thing.

"We believe in team basketball. We aren't about being selfish, from the coaching staff to the players to the manager. They have to be creative within the system. I don't want to take away creativity, but I want them to be intelligent players."

Roosevelt Barnes
Bishop Borgess

It's that team concept that helped the Spartans end their season with a 10-game winning streak and a Class C state championship. Borgess completed its tournament run with a 64-42 victory over Three Oaks River Valley at Michigan State University's Breslin Center.

Barnes, in his second year as Borgess coach, has been selected Observerland Coach of the Year as chosen by the Observer sports staff.

The Spartans were playing near .500 ball midway through the season when an overtime victory over Harper Woods Notre Dame earned them a berth in the Catholic League finals.

Borgess lost to Detroit Catholic Central, 81-71, in the finals but didn't lose again.

"The turning point was when we beat Notre Dame, when (all-stater Greg) Stempin got 53 and we still won," Barnes said. "We had five in double figures. That's when they understood the team concept."

After being named all-state at Monroe, Barnes, 39, went on to star at Bowling Green State University. He ranked near the top of BGSU's career records for steals and assists and was drafted in the eighth round of the NBA draft by the Houston Rockets in 1980.

Prior to taking over at Borgess, Barnes had coaching stints in AAU, at Wayne State, Detroit Redford and adult recreational leagues.

He is an operator for Detroit Edison at the Rouge Plant.

"God has given me a talent to coach and work with young people," Barnes said. "I thank God for the opportunity Borgess gave me. I have a degree in social work, have a heart for people. That's one of the things I look for in my coaching staff. We at Borgess have a nice group of alumni on my coaching staff. That's one thing we need more of at Borgess – alumni coming in to help young people."

Turning in another fine coaching job was Wayne Memorial's Chuck Henry, whose team reached the Class A semifinal for the second-straight year.

Wayne's Lorenzo Guess, one of Observerland's all-time greatest athletes, joins CC's Marc McDonald as repeat selections on the All-Observer first team. The rest of the team includes CC's junior center Chris Young, Borgess junior guard Aaron Jessup and Livonia Franklin senior center Matt Bauman.

Guess has signed with Michigan State while McDonald and Bauman are headed to Loyola (Chicago) and University of Detroit Mercy, respectively, of the Midwest Collegiate Conference.

Wayne's Richard Rashad and LaVelle Guess are on the second team with Plymouth Canton's Nick Hurley, Plymouth Salem's Andy Power and Farmington Hills Harrison's Matt Derocher.

Following is a profile of each player on the first and second teams:

FIRST TEAM

Lorenzo Guess, 6-3 Sr., Wayne: Made the All-Observer first team for the third straight year after a stellar four-year varsity career where he piled up a school-record 1,748 points.

During his four-year career, Guess led Wayne to an 83-16 record, including two trips to the state Class A semifinals and one to the quarterfinals.

This season, the point guard averaged 21.5 points, 8.0 rebounds, five assists and four steals as Wayne finished 24-2 and won the Mega Conference-Red Division crown for the third straight year.

Guess was third overall in the Mr. Basketball balloting and will play Sunday in Magic Johnson's Roundball Classic at the Palace of Auburn Hills.

"Lorenzo is a great competitor," Wayne coach Chuck Henry said. "His daily practice intensity is the same as his intensity during a championship game. He is the hardest worker in the weight room and is a great leader.

"He is also an outstanding student (3.6 grade-point average)."

Guess is headed for Michigan State University on football scholarship. He played quarterback for the Zebras all four years on the varsity and plans to play both sports at MSU.

Marc McDonald, 6-1 Sr., Redford CC: The Loyola (Chicago) University bound guard was a threat to score as soon as he crossed half-court.

A repeat selection to the first team, he averaged 25.1 points per game, eclipsing 30 points five times with a high of 44.

McDonald, who attempted more shots behind the three-point arc than in front this season, holds the school career record for three-point baskets with 216. He made 94 of 225 attempts (42 percent) from three-point land and 101-184 two-point attempts (55 percent) this season.

He scored 1,303 career points and started 64 consecutive games, which spans the last 2 1/2 seasons.

McDonald joined the varsity as a sophomore, the same year Rick Coratti was named coach of the CC program.

"He's a great kid and we're going to miss him," Coratti said. "Personally, I'm going to miss him because he started with me – I penciled him in from Day 1. It'll seem weird without him."

Matt Bauman, 6-8 Sr., Livonia Franklin: Headed for the University of Detroit-Mercy, Bauman finished his senior year averaging 17.6 points and 8.4 rebounds per game despite being double- and tripled-teamed most of the year. He also sat out the first two games of the year with a broken ankle.

Bauman is a four-year varsity player and two-time All-Western Lakes Activities Association pick.

As a junior, Bauman averaged 19.7 points and 7.3 rebounds per game.

This season, Bauman had a career-high 35 points against Walled Lake Central and 34 in a win over Plymouth Salem.

"His unselfish attitude, and ability to handle and pass the ball, allowed us to beat pressure.

"His defense was sound all year and great at times. Many times he was called upon to guard much-smaller players, which he did so successfully.

"I expect him to do well at UDM because of his work ethic and determination to improve. He still has a lot to learn and is eager to learn it. He's a joy to coach."

Aaron Jessup, 6-4 Jr., Redford Bishop Borgess: Jessup averaged 14.5 points per game and was capable of scoring points in bunches when the situation called for it.

He averaged seven rebounds and two steals per game and shot 50 percent from the field.

A Division I college prospect, Jessup averaged more than 22 points per game in the state tournament. A threat from three-point land and along the baseline, he had a season high of 30 points.

"Aaron's an outstanding young player," Barnes said. "He really came on in the state tournament. He was starting to play ball the way we knew he was capable. He has improved tremendously the last two years. He's gotten physically stronger, jumps higher."

Chris Young, 6-10 Jr., Redford CC: The junior center had some huge games, even after suffering a broken nose during the Catholic League playoffs.

He averaged 20.4 points, 12.2 rebounds and three blocks per game. He made 68.8 percent of his shots from the field.

Michigan, Michigan State and Notre Dame are just some of the teams hot for his services.

"Chris improved vastly between his freshman and sophomore years and made that jump again this year," Coratti said. "The thing that impresses me is the way he can run the floor for a kid his size. He has a great attitude toward the game."

SECOND TEAM

Richard Rashad, 6-4 Sr., Wayne Memorial: The four-year varsity player made All-Mega Red Division this year.

He averaged 13 points and eight rebounds per game at the center spot, despite playing a majority of the time against taller players.

"Richard has shown steady improvement each year," Henry said. "Richard has a 3.7 grade-point average and is one of the best student-athletes we've ever had at Wayne Memorial.

LaVelle Guess, 6-1 Sr., Wayne Memorial: The lefty sharpshooter was second on the team in scoring with a 16 point-per-game average.

He was also Wayne's top three-point marksman.

"LaVelle is a pure shooter and is one our quickest players with the ball," Henry said. "Lorenzo and LaVelle had incredible instincts in know what each other was going to do at all times."

LaVelle played three years on the Wayne varsity and made All-Mega Red Division.

Nick Hurley, 6-0 Sr., Plymouth Canton: He paced the Western Lakes playoff champions with 14 points, four assists, four rebounds and three steals per game.

"Using his athletic ability and going to the rim made him an effective player," Canton coach Dan Young said. "He's such a great competitor, that's the best way to put it.

"He was never intimidated by anybody, no matter who it was. He just likes to go out and compete. He's the type of kid when the game is on the line, he'll do whatever it takes."

Hurley is considering both Madonna University and Henry Ford CC.

Matt Derocher, 6-4 Jr., Farm. Hills Harrison: The forward led a balanced Harrison scoring attack averaging 12.5 points per game, including an impressive 44 of 97 on three-point shots (45 percent). He also shot 46 percent from the floor, 72 percent from the free throw line and had 1.2 assist-to-turnover ratio.

Derocher was also voted All-Western Lakes, team MVP and captain as Harrison finished 18-5.

The three-year varsity performer now has 692 career points.

"Matt epitomizes our development as a team," Harrison coach Mike Teachman said. "He is becoming a complete player instead of just a shooter. He had some tough defensive assignments this year and responded well. He leads through example and wants the ball in crunch time."

Andy Power, 5-7 Jr., Plymouth Salem: He led the Rocks to a district title after averaging 13 points four assists and three steals per game.Power shot an impressive 80 percent from the free throw line, 56 percent from two-point land and 33 percent beyond the arc.

"Defensively, with his quickness, he was always a threat to steal the ball," Salem coach Bob Brodie said. "He was very disruptive.Offensively, he was always a threat to dive and dish the ball. He also had great range on the three-point shot."

Madonna sweeps Saints

Dawn Shaffer drilled two home runs Monday to spark Madonna University to a sweep of host Siena Heights College in women's softball.

In the opener, the third baseman hit a solo shot as the Crusaders won 10-2 in five innings. Madonna scored eight runs in the second inning to put the game away.

Shanna Price scattered seven hits to improve her record to 6-1.

In the nightcap, Shaffer had three RBI on two hits including another round-tripper, as Madonna won 5-0.

Melissa McGue collected a pair of hits, as the Crusaders again took control early with three-run first inning.

Angie VanDoorn went the distance for the shutout, picking up her first win after four losses. She fanned six without allowing a walk.

Madonna is now 10-7-1.

After years of struggle, PCA all set to step up

BY NEAL ZIPSER
STAFF WRITER

If you have to learn how to walk before you know how to run, then the Plymouth Christian Academy baseball team should be trotting this season.

The Eagles have taken baby steps the first three years since Dave Robillard became coach, finishing 0-19 with 10 players in 1994, 2-19 in 1995 and 7-19 last season.

But this season may be the breakthrough year for PCA. The freshmen who went winless in 1994 are now seniors and they are joined by a talented group of newcomers.

The resurrection of the program can partially be attributed to the play of junior John Isensee, who came within an eyelash of winning the MVP in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference last season. All the first baseman did was bat .581 (.750 in league play), rip nine doubles and drive in 19 runs. In 55 at bats, he only struck out once.

For the program's rebirth to continue, Isensee's younger brother, Derek, will be integral. The freshman has made an immediate impact and will start at shortstop and possibly lead-off.

"Derek has the bat, the glove and a good arm," Robillard said. "He has good baseball sense and a good background. Both he and his brother love baseball."

Derek's emergence has also been important because he fills the void left by John Pugno, PCA's only starter from last season who graduated. Pugno batted .409.

In addition, Derek's move to short has allowed Robillard to move Chris DeRenzo to centerfield. The senior, who batted .567 with 20 RBI last season, will anchor the outfield. DeRenzo struck out only four times in 60 at bats.

DeRenzo will bat third in the order with John Isensee hitting clean-up. Batting fifth will be junior James Jones. The catcher, who batted .379 last season, will also be in PCA's starting rotation.

The ace of the squad will be senior Jim Speier. The right-hander can also play outfield and hit (.450).

"Jim has good velocity and has coupled that with good location," Robillard said. "He has established a curve ball, but now has to develop a change-up for the later innings when the other teams time his fastball."

The No. 2 pitcher will be senior Nathan Bryan. The 6-foot-3 hurler has a good curve ball, but Robillard is trying to work on getting more velocity from Bryan's large frame.

Rounding out the rotation will be junior Zack Farton, who has increased his speed from last season.

Also returning is senior Doug Robillard (.306), who will move from third base to second base.

Robillard's move clears the way for Randy Dalman. The sophomore, who transferred from Plymouth Salem, has impressed the PCA coaching staff and could also bat lead-off. Dalman will catch and may develop into the team's closer, too.

Junior Chris Brandon (.363) showed the most improvement of any player on the squad last season, according to Robillard. Brandon solidifies the right field spot.

"We have been thin in the past and have lacked offense in the bottom of the order," Robillard said. "This year, we'll be stronger throughout the entire lineup."

Left field is still a question mark; speedy junior Josh Moore and sophomore Bill Kiesel appear to be the front runners. Junior Nick Patron is also a serious contender for the position.

Other newcomers that will see playing time include freshman pitcher/outfielder Andy Powers, sophomore first baseman Evan Gaines and sophomore catcher/third baseman John Warrick.

"We have players that are ready to step in once we lose the four seniors after this season," Robillard said.

The Eagles finished second in the MIAC's lower division last season, losing twice to division-winner Oakland Christian. But Robillard believes this season will be different.

"With the additions to our team, we have an excellent chance of winning the division," Robillard said. "We never have beaten any of the upper division teams so a challenge I've given to the team this year is to be competitive and beat some of those teams.

"With four pitchers and a reliever, the infield as solid as I've seen it and with talent in the outfield, we're looking solid. We have a chance to have a winning season, which would be the first in the program's history."

he is responsible for team defense. It was, in a word, atrocious last season.

"We're going to be a lot better defensively," said Rumberger. "John is emphatic about technique."

When you talk about Salem, the conversation begins with senior catcher Ryan Rumberger, the coach's son.

Dads often tend to overrate their prodigy, but in this case it would be difficult to. "Ryan's the best catcher, the best hitter I've ever coached," his father said.

Ryan's statistics provide proof. The team's MVP in '96, he batted .488 with 12 doubles, five home runs and 30 runs batted in. He had an on-base average of .635, a fielding average of .986, and was an all-Western Lakes Activities Association selection.

And big-game ability? How's this: In eight state tournament games, Ryan has hit .555 with two home runs and 12 RBI. In Salem's district semifinal loss to Livonia Stevenson last year, he slugged two solo homers.

An honor student with NCAA Division I talent, Ryan has had a full-ride offer from University of Detroit Mercy and a partial from the University of Miami.

Ryan is the team's anchor, to be sure, but there's plenty more. The rest of the infield has been restructured, with particular attention to defense.

The Rocks return two other full-time starters in the infield: senior first baseman Dave Barker, the teams Most Improved Player last season, when he hit .323; and senior third baseman Tim Sisler, who struggled in '96 (.116 batting average with 11 errors) but has improved significantly, according to Rumberger.

At second base, Adam Seiter — a senior who played 16 games last year, batting .273 with nine stolen bases — moves in as a regular. Junior Tony Bernhardt, a JV starter in '96, takes over at shortstop.

The outfield's greatest attribute is what Rumberger referred to as the team's outstanding feature: speed. "I've never had a team with this much speed before," he said.

Experience, however, is lacking. Only senior center-fielder Alex Ras played substantially in the outfield last season; Ras, who will serve as the team's lead-off batter, hit .205 with nine stolen bases in '96. He was also named the team's defensive player of the year, making just one error in 25 games.

One of Rumberger's major changes for '97 is switching Kevin Niemiec from shortstop to the outfield. A senior, Niemiec didn't have much trouble at the plate, batting .319 with two homers and 16 runs scored. But he made 22 errors in his first season playing short.

Rumberger said Niemiec will also pitch and be at designated hitter.

Salem's pitching is difficult to assess, by last year's figures. No. 1 on the staff is senior righthander Tom DeMetsenare, in his third year on the varsity. DeMetsenare had a respectable 3.33 earned run average last season, striking out 43 in 42 innings pitched. But his record was just 3-5 (with two saves).

No. 2 on the staff is Kurt Berlin, a junior with an even more bizarre record. A righthander, Berlin posted a superb 2.63 ERA in 42 innings of work — but he is still searching for his first varsity victory. He was 0-5 last season.

Sisler, another righthander, will see considerable mound time. He was 0-1 with a 2.25 ERA in 13 innings last season.

Two juniors, lefthander Jason Cox and righthander Scott Hay, and Niemiec will also pitch.

Others who will see playing time: in the infield, junior Ben Szczepanski at first base; senior Jeff Degenhardt and junior Mark Runchey at second; and junior Brett Burleson at catcher and designated hitter; and in the outfield, junior Jason Day and senior Jim Degenhardt.

"We're going to be strong up the middle," said Rumberger. "And we're going to manufacture more runs this year, because the home runs will come mostly from one guy (Ryan Rumberger)."

What Rumberger thinks will surprise opponents is Salem's speed: "It's something you can't coach, and we've got a lot of it."

He added that for a team coming off such a dismal season, it will be "important that we get off to a good start."

That start comes at noon today, when the Rocks play a double-header at Ypsilanti.

just played defense, we feel we could have won the district."

A good bet, considering the team with the best record in the district was Livonia Franklin, at just 15-15 — and the Patriots didn't advance, either, losing to Livonia Stevenson in the final.

"I feel if our defense is intact, we'll be able to compete for the league and district titles," predicted Dickey. "The strength of our team is up the middle, and I feel that right now we have the defense to compete.

"If our young pitchers can pitch well, we'll do all right."

There's a lot of ifs for a team in a division that features teams like Walled Lake Western (a powerhouse, with everyone back plus transfer Kevin Thomas from Redford Catholic Central, a pro prospect) and Farmington Harrison, as well as defending champ Northville.

A fast start could get this team headed in the right direction.

OUTDOOR INSIGHTS

BILL PARKER

The aroma of burning charcoal overwhelmed my winter-dampened senses as I walked across the parking lot last week at Yates Park in Rochester Hills. The warm, sunny afternoon was certainly made to order for a barbecue in the park, but I wasn't there for a picnic. I had my mind set on other things – steelhead in particular.

Reports have been trickling in that the spring steelhead run was beginning on the Clinton River. Unfortunately, I didn't actually put an eye on any steelies last Thursday but fellow anglers along the shore of the river assured me that the run had begun.

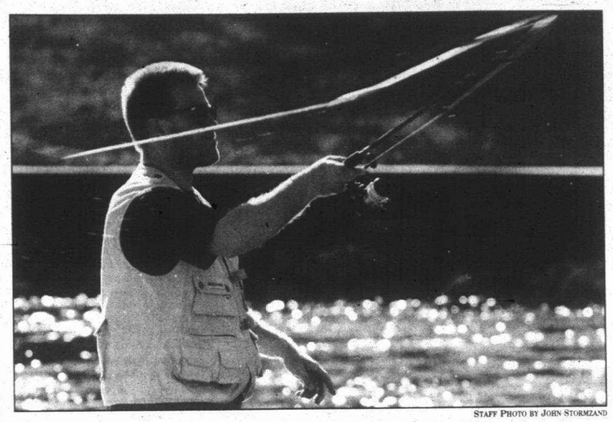
"One guy caught two nice steelhead and one brown trout two days ago," said Randy Forsyth of Canton. "It's pretty slow right now. I haven't caught anything today, but this morning I was fishing over near Ryan Road and some guy caught an eight-pounder. A few more days like this and they'll start catching them pretty regularly."

On the fly

Armed with a recently-purchased fly fishing outfit from Paint Creek Outfitters and an assortment of hand-tied nymphs and wigglers Rochester Adams senior Dan Griffiths was at the river attempting to catch his first steelhead with a fly rod.

"Last year I caught about 15 steelhead here with my spinning rod and reel, but this year I wanted to catch one with a fly rod," said Griffiths, who ties his own flies and fishes the Clinton three to four times a week. "Nobody is having much luck today. I only talked to one guy who had any luck and he caught about a 15-incher. A few fish have moved up onto the beds, but its still kind of slow. It's still early."

Each spring, steelhead, which are actually rainbow trout which have matured in the Great Lakes, enter rivers and streams throughout the state and journey upstream to spawn.



STAFF PHOTO BY JOHN STORMZAND

Getting an angle: Randy Forsyth of Canton joined a host of fly fishermen during last week's warm weather to try and land some steelhead trout. When the snow melts and the waters warm, the trout start running.

Sparked by warmth

The annual runs are sparked by the water temperature. The runs generally hit full stride when the water in the river reaches 50 degrees or warmer. Last week the water temperature in the Clinton was hovering around 40-42 degrees. A few more warm days or a couple days of warm rain and the run should really heat up. Steelhead fishing on the Clinton generally remains pretty decent through the end of April and the beginning of May.

"They really come in here with a pretty good run when the water heats up," said Dave Arnold, who was light-lineing with a noodle rod and a four-pound-test leader. His bait was artificial orange spawn on a No. 10 hook. "I caught and released a 16-incher here last week. I haven't had any luck today, but it's too nice of a day to work so I took the afternoon off and came here."

Although the steelhead activity was slow last week, a few anglers, like Lake Orion's Bob Mundy, were having good success catching white suckers. Like steelhead, suckers also journey upstream each spring to spawn.

Opportunities abound

"I really hadn't given it much thought before today, but it's such a nice day and I was itching to go fishing, so I came over here," said Mundy, who had three 15-18 inch suckers on a stringer. "It's close to home, and it's a good time. These suckers are pretty good smoked, and I hear they're catching a few steelhead, already."

The Clinton River empties into Lake St. Clair in Anchor Bay. There are dozens of good fishing spots from the mouth of the river up to the dam at Yates. Some of the hot spots include the areas of the river near Ryan and 22 Mile roads and Jefferson and 15 Mile roads.

Steelhead can easily leap the small dam at Yates Park and provide a fishery upstream from the park as well, although many fish congregate in the holes and undercuts below the dam.

Keep it clean

If you're headed over to the Yates for a day of fishing be prepared for heavy traffic. The intersection of Dequindre and 23 Mile roads gets backed up, especially at rush hour, so leave yourself ample time to find a parking spot and get to the river.

No matter where you fish, remember to treat the area with respect and keep the banks and the river free of trash. Don't leave bait containers and hook wrappers for someone else to pick up and if you see something laying around don't be afraid to pick it up. Show your appreciation for a great fishery and your respect for our natural resources.

Anglers and hunters are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information to 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI. 48009. Fax information to (810) 644-1314 or call Bill Parker evenings at (810) 901-2573.

Saints rip Crusaders

A two-run rally in the bottom of the eighth-inning in Monday's nightcap lifted Siena Heights College to the double-header sweep of visiting Madonna University.

The Crusaders (6-14) broke a 2-2 deadlock in the top of the eighth only to see the Saints score twice with one out and go on for the 4-3 victory. Siena Heights (10-12) won the opener 9-0.

The Siena Heights rally spoiled a fine pitching performance by Craig Benedict (1-4). Benedict surrendered only two earned runs and seven hits, while striking out five without allowing a walk.

Ken Szych (3-2) also threw well, going all eight innings for the win. He fanned seven without a walk while giving up three earned runs.

Eric Marcotte, Dan Taylor and Aaron Shrewsbury (two RBI) had two hits apiece for Madonna. Bob Hamp had the only other hit.

In the opener, the Crusaders were limited to just two hits by Jason Martines. Shrewsbury and Brandon Jaskolski each had the singles.

Tim Holland (1-1) started and took the loss for the Crusaders. Mitch Jabczenski relieved in the fifth, but was the victim of four unearned runs in his 1 2/3 innings of work.

Today's Observer carriers are tomorrow's business leaders.

Did you know that our carreirs are in business for themselves? We call them Junior Merchants and they are committed to getting the fruits of a lot of people's labor on your doorstep twice each week. And, like business people everywhere, their goal is customer satisfaction. But their job doesn't end there. Other business skills include keeping accurate records and reporting information on time.

There are a lot of famous names in the Newspaper Association of America's Carrier Hall of Fame—three presidents, Hoover, Truman, and Eisenhower. There are spiritual leaders, Norman Vincent Peale and Martin Luther King, Jr., there are astronauts and poets and entertainers. All of them recognizable not only for their talent, but for their values and character.

We think a carrier route is an excellent way to learn responsibility, respect for others, and a sense of what it takes to earn a dollar these days. If you agree and would like to put your son's or daughter's name on our waiting list to become a carrier, give us a call—who knows? Between us, we may be giving the world another president or poet.

Writer extols Australian appliances

JOE GAGNON

In the past two years of doing my radio show, I have received more than 31,000 letters from my listeners on Saturday and Sunday mornings. This volume of mail has much to do with the success of the show and is a method of verifying the interest that the average consumer has in the world of major home appliances.

The columns that I write in this newspaper have also created interest from readers. I have received many letters with a lot of kind words written about the column. Once in a while I get a letter which will say things much better than I could, and I would like to put this one on paper for you to read. It has been written by a lady who has allowed me to use her initials and not her full name. It gives me a great pleasure to present, Ms R.T. of Bloomfield Hills.

Dear Mr. Gagnon,

I generally read you "appliance doctor" column and I would like to make some comments.

Regarding your last column, I agree with you – American appliance manufacturers seem to be caught in a time warp. I have just returned from Australia and while there I noticed that their washing machines were much smaller, much more modern looking, more advanced and cleaned just as well if not better. A New Zealand manufacturer has a machine which weighs the clothes then adjusts the water level and whatever as necessary. This machine's agitator is only about six inches high but still does a very good job cleaning the clothes without incurring hard-to-get-out wrinkles. It is a slick machine.

Another comment, I would like to make it that I would like to see more practical columns. I read you work because in the past I have learned how to clean the dish washer and the washing machine. Perhaps you could write about how and when to clean the air filters attached to the furnace. And the furnace – is there anything a homeowner can do to keep it running more efficiently? How often should we vacuum the coils under the refrigerator? Knowing things like these is really helpful and saves money on repairs. Thanks for your column.

Sincerely, R.T.

Folks, I hope you enjoyed this letter as much as I did. It is not a mean letter and it has some touches of very good constructive criticism. It lets her express her views which can help direct another person to do a better job. My reply to R.T. is as follows.

Thanks so much for your letter and your awareness of how different a foreign washing machine can be. Your agreement shows that you have absorbed the words in my column and that you are a more informed consumer. It is the intention of this paper to create an interest for its readers through a variety of writers on different subjects which your letter proves is working.

Your comments on the furnace and air cleaner is not my line of expertise but I'm sure you will see the subject covered in another column.

Thank you once again for writing. I hope you do it again. Ladies and gentlemen – please take a few moments and drop a line, it can only help to make things better. – Stay tuned.

Joe Gagnon, the Appliance Doctor, will answer your questions about maintaining and repairing large appliances. Gagnon is president of Carmack Appliances in Garden City and does a weekly radio program on WJR-AHM. He is author of "First Aid from the Appliance Doctor," available at area bookstores.

Tea for terrific

At your service: Chiasso, a catalog and retail company specializing in well-designed accessories for the home and office, opens its newest store today at Somerset North, Big Beaver Road and Coolidge in Troy. Chiasso (the name means "uproar, sensation" in Italian) celebrates contemporary design, such as architect Michael Graves' whimsical teakettle with the famous removable bird whistle. Of 18/10 stainless steel, the kettle has a heat-resistant blue polyamide handle and 2-1/4-quart capacity. The teakettle, nine by 8-1/2 inches, costs $145. Graves' creamer and sugar set, 3-1/4 by five inches, costs $135. The complete tea service (kettle, creamer and sugar) costs $275. Call (800) 654-3570.

Pull of nostalgia

Horse sense: This stick horse pull toy, available at Country Merchant, 535 Forest in Plymouth, is reminiscent of days past and childhood remembered. To achieve its antiquated look, the stick horse is hand-carved from wood and painted with great detail. Resting on a rolling platform with reins made of rope, it stands two feet tall and costs $59.99. Other antique pull toy replicas are also available. Call (313) 454-5700.

Be prudent pruning trees, shrubs

MARTY FIGLEY

Spring is a good time to prune many trees and shrubs before weeds appear in the gardens, planting is uppermost on our minds and other necessary chores need to be done. Pruning helps to control size and shape of these plants and is a chance to remove broken or damaged limbs from winter's fury.

This is the time to stand back and look at the growing plant to see what you want to do with it. Is it too large, are there crossed branches, is its form what you really want?

Perhaps only one wayward branch needs to be removed, or the whole thing needs to be cut down and eliminated from the garden and replaced with something more suitable.

If branches hang over sidewalks or paths, or over a roof, prune them away. If there are branches that may interfere with moving or walking, they'll need to be removed.

The silhouette of the plant is more apparent now before the leaves appear and hide some of these possible conditions, so get ready, set and go!

Timing is critical when pruning. Late flowering and autumn flowering shrubs flower on the current season's growth and must be pruned in the spring to encourage new growth and vigorous shoots that will flower then.

Spring flowering shrubs, on the other hand, flower on the previous season's growth and mustn't be pruned until after they present their show. The new growth will then ripen to repeat the flowering the following spring.

Two trees that are often seen in our landscapes, birch and most maples, need to be pruned in late summer or early fall because the sap flow is diminished at that time. Certain shrubs and trees, topiary forms, standards and grafted (weeping) plants need specific types of pruning.

Evergreens that are pruned too early in spring, or too late in summer, produce soft new growth that may be damaged by frost or cold wind. So wait until early summer to prune them.

Use the proper tools to make this job easier and more successful. The pruners, saws and shears must be sharp and the proper size so the cuts will be clean and will heal more quickly. It isn't necessary to use a product to facilitate healing; these plants do it with the help of Mother Nature.

Let's discuss pruning tools. Pruners: Position the thin blade nearest the trunk. Use this tool for small woody stems no more than the approximate thickness of a pencil. Loppers: Use this tool when the stem fits entirely within the bite of the loppers. The long handles facilitate a quick, clean cut. Pruning saw: This is ideal for cutting thick wood and stubs, and heavy branches. Pruning or cutting garden knife: The curved blade of this tool will smooth the rough edges of a large or small cut. Pole pruners: These are ideal for very tall trees.

A good book about pruning is a very necessary addition to the gardener's reference material. It will be a constant guide so the garden will be the best it can be throughout the seasons.

TIMELY GARDEN TIPS

• When shoots are three to four inches high on peonies, fertilize with a complete dry fertilizer at the rate of three to four pounds per 100 square feet of bed area. Water immediately.

• Scatter seeds of calendula, poppy, snapdragon, larkspur, sunflower, sweet pea.

• Remove protective screening from evergreens.

• Fertilize ground covers and shrubs.

• Fertilize bulbs planted in the fall with a balanced formula.

NAOMI STONE LEVY

A visit to a furniture store or the Design Center will expose "glitz and glamour" galore. View it all with two grains of salt, because a little glitz goes a very long way. Lots of platitudes, but good, solid advice.

Glamour is easy to achieve in living areas. We all endeavor to be eclectic. We will combine many types of items in this assemblage. It is challenging to gather sofas, settees, chairs, tables and lamps of many derivations and make them work together.

Contemporary, English, French, Spanish and Italian may be intertwined with elan and without confusion if you use good judgment. One theme should dominate, with others selectively interspersed.

Example: The sofas, end tables and coffee table could be simple and modern. A French or other style two-seat settee then blends in well. Do you own a tall-back, Spanish, open armchair? Why not reupholster it in a period tapestry that is attuned to your newer scheme? The other fabrics used will make for instantly obvious glamour.

Although I never advocate a lot of gilt, in a mirror frame it is always appropriate. Caution: The frame shouldn't be overly elaborate in configuration.

Accessories, always my cherished choices, are now of paramount importance. Antiques (or their equivalent in appearance) must top your modern coffee table. This is the day your attic or basement should be raided.

Aunt Gertrude left you a large low bowl that you have never unwrapped from the newspapers. Combine that with tall crystal candlesticks. A small flowering plant in a terra cotta pot and saucer is also in order. If you want more glitz have the plant set out in a tasteful silver holder.

Your lighting can vary from a black Tizio contemporary, added to an ornate Sevres vase mounted into a significant lamp. The shade for this one must be ultra simple.

A very ornate headboard will dominate in a bedroom, and if used should take precedence over the remaining furniture. The nightstands and lamps have to be in scale to the headboard, but not compete for attention. The bedspread must also play second fiddle. Though the fabric can be elegant, there will be a conflict of interest if it is fussily and overly draped.

A very simple upholstered bench at the foot of the bed is a great foil for the headboard and spread. Complete the room with an unmatched dresser and chest, if there is sufficient space. I've said this many times, even if the salesperson at the store doesn't agree with me. I strongly dislike "suites."

Juxtapositioning of disparate items demands discretion. Scale is primary. How do you know you have achieved a great combination? Try them together. If they don't seem correct they probably aren't correct. Rearrange until you have a winner!

Good vents prevent attic moisture

Q: The roof we had put on when we purchased our home 15 years ago seems to be in good shape and was warranted for 20 years. I have noticed a lot of moisture in the attic. What else could create moisture?

A: A 20-year shingle that is 15 years old or more may not be telling you it is time for a new roof but before going through the expense of re-roofing check for these possible causes of attic moisture/condensation below:

■ A hot attic creates a hotter roof. Ventilation is very important for the attic to remove excess moisture. Check for a properly installed moisture (vapor) barrier on the warm side of the ceiling in the attic under the insulation and also for homes with a crawl space.

■ Are bath and/or kitchen fans vented to the attic instead of on the outside of the roof? This extra burden of moisture can create serious damage to the roof boards, rafters, shingles and create wet insulation. Check for leaks around vent pipes and flashing on the roof. If you are not comfortable on a roof then please call a roofing contractor! You can find good products to cover pipes for years of added protection.

■ Do you have a high efficiency furnace? This is excellent for fresh air into the home but not good if the moisture in the fresh air can now rise only to become trapped in an inadequately vented attic!

■ Does you home have new windows, doors and/or added insulation to the walls or attic? Moisture that could once escape through old windows and doors will now congest in the attic if not properly vented! This problem over the years can cause serious damage to your home not to mention your pocket book in lost energy dollars and repair costs!

■ What kind of ventilation does your roof have? You need a properly vented attic. Does your roof have intake (soffit vents)?

These are perforated or lanced products that fit under the overhang of your roof. You should also have exhaust vents; metal pot vents; wind turbines; gable end vents; or a ridge vent. Intake vents work with exhaust vents and this is best for proper movement of air into the attic to create exhaust at the ridge of hot air and excess moisture. If your roof has soffit vents are they clean and free of dust,dirt and pollen? Is the insulation away from the soffits allowing cool fresh air to enter the attic? If not, baffles can be installed.

Is your roof designed with soffit vents (overhangs)? How many pot vents are on your roof? The building code (BOCA) would require approximately 18 metal pot vents for a 960 square foot attic. This is the minimum code standard for ventilation of a roof.

To help prevent and remove trapped attic moisture homes built without overhangs can now have continuous soffit vents installed. These soffit vents hide behind the gutter (allows the beauty of the roof to be enhanced) ande have 1/8 inch openings (government standard) that are virtually non-clogging.

Good luck!

Susan Keeling, The ComboVent Co., Taylor, 313-291-1400.

Variety: Businesses around the area display awnings from Marygrove The Awning Store and More of Livonia. Many of the features, such as backlighting shown at bottom, can be applied to retractable arm awnings for the home.

A call to arms: Retractable arm awnings can be placed anywhere at any style house (at left and below). Residents may adjust the angle and extension. Marygrove The Awning Store and More of Livonia is presenting the American Roll Shutter at the Home Improvement Show opening today in Novi. The business also offers freestanding umbrellas that reach from the side (at right).

Awnings with arms extend comfort, beauty

By Mary Klemic
At Home Editor

Homeowners are sounding a call to arms – arms that extend or retract awnings, that is.

Operated electronically by a switch from inside the house, the awnings increase room space and give extra protection from sun or rain. They are a popular way to add comfort and beauty to the house.

"You can have (an awning) whenever you want," said Michael Falahee, owner of Marygrove The Awning Store and More, 12700 Merriman in Livonia. "You no longer have to take it down for winter storage."

Marygrove will present the retractable American Roll Shutter at the first Home Improvement Show, open Thursday-Sunday, April 3-6, at the Novi Expo Center.

An open patio is exposed to the weather. An umbrella put up at a table there may not give enough coverage. Retractable arm awnings gently glide over the space as far as desired, in effect extending the roof. When they aren't out, the awnings are tucked inside a tube.

The awnings, installed in two to three hours, can be as high as seven feet and reach out five to 50 feet. They can be controlled by automatic timer, to extend or retract at a certain time or to adjust for sun and wind. They can be angled downward to function like shutters.

A tiny level on the underside helps keep the awning straight. The motor can't be seen, as it is inside the tube. The acrylic material is easy to maintain.

"Mother Nature keeps it clean."

Marygrove's satisfied customers include a Harrison Township family who got a retractable arm awning two years ago because of the effects of the sun. The family can adjust it to any angle from inside the house.

"We like it very much," one of the family members said. "We face the west part of the day and it becomes very warm.

"We're very pleased with it."

The awnings are decorative as well as practical, and blend with any style of house. Customers can have them made from a wide range of colors and patterns that can be coordinated with furniture fabrics. Solids, stripes and tweeds are featured designs. The awnings can be backlit for a special touch.

The awnings block 100 percent of ultraviolet rays. They help keep rugs and furniture from fading, lower indoor temperatures by as much as 15 degrees and reduce heat gain in the house by more than 77 percent.

Marygrove also offers freestanding umbrellas that extend from the side rather than the center.

Marygrove has installed awnings at many businesses as well as residences in the area. The giant waving piano keyboard at Wooly Bully's in Northville is one of the company's awnings.

The Novi Expo Center is at I-96 and Novi Road. Parking is available there for a fee. Show hours are 2-10 p.m. Thursday-Friday, 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $4 for adults, $3 for children ages 6-12 and seniors, free for children under 6. Family tickets for two adults and accompanying children are available at Farmer Jack for $9. For more information, call (810) 737-4478.

On the cover

Now you can put awnings up or down with the touch of a button, easily adjusting them for time of day and type of weather. The retractable arm awnings, featured at the Home Improvement Show in Novi, can be made from a wide range of fabric patterns.

Artichokes can be intimidating

RUTH MOSSOK JOHNSTON

In teaching cooking classes (outside of the culinary school), I find many home-cooks intimidated by using certain vegetables. In a recent grouping of classes, I was amazed at how many in attendance were unsure of how to prepare leeks, what to do with them, or even how to clean them – that was nothing compared to the actual fear I saw in their eyes when I talked about cooking artichokes.

Why is this immature flower bud from the thistle family so intimidating? The sharp pointed ends for one, its unique flower appearance seems to be another. Many people are acquainted with artichoke hearts (especially the ones found marinated and in cans or jars), after all they are served in many salads – but the whole thing, now that's another issue.

Artichokes 'marry well' with the texture and tastes of most foods (including ethnic flavors) – and are enhanced with sauces, dressings, oils, and butter.

Artichoke Tips:

■ When choosing artichokes from the grocery or your favorite fruit market, find artichokes that seem heavy for their size – with a compact form (you don't want ones with loose leaves or those that seem to have a lot of space inside.

■ Choose artichokes that are uniform in color – very dark discoloration indicates frost or over maturity. Do not purchase artichokes that feel rubbery or dry.

■ You can remove the fuzzy choke (that guards the precious heart) before or after cooking – a small pointed spoon or melon baller will do the job. It is easier to remove the choke after cooking when the artichoke is tender.

■ Artichokes can be boiled or steamed (see recipe that follows) and eaten hot or cold.

■ Artichoke hearts may be eaten raw – if a recipe calls for raw hearts, they are usually sliced very thin.

■ Lemon is a natural with artichokes – you can soak your artichokes in water spiked with lemon juice, use lemon juice in the water you cook the artichokes, or combine lemon with butter or any other sauce or dressing for a delicious taste.

■ In eating a whole artichoke – the leaves should be eaten one by one – dip into sauce (if sauce or butter is provided) scrape the meaty side of the leaf with your bottom teeth – then discard the leaf.

■ As with dipping any vegetable in a sauce or dip, do not dip your leaf twice unless the dip is individually portioned out and each person has their own.

■ If serving artichokes to guests, make sure they know how to eat them – it is most embarrassing for everyone if someone tries to down an entire leaf!

Ask your guests, and then give a demonstration if need be.

STUFFED CHILLED ARTICHOKES WITH CREAMY LEMON-LIME SAUCE

Yield: 6 servings

These artichokes are light and delicious – perfect as an appetizer or luncheon entree. The lemon-lime sauce is low in fat and calories. If doing a brunch buffet, they hold up well on the table – place the sauce in a gravy boat or fill a beautiful glass jelly server, and serve on the side. If serving at a sit-down affair, drizzle some sauce on the stuffed artichoke and have extra sauce to pass. The lemon-lime sauce is delicious served with a simple crudité.

Ingredients for the stuffed artichokes:

6 large artichokes

Lemon juice for acidulated water

1 cup carrots, ends cut, peeled and cut into julienne

1 cup broccoli (flowers only, cut into small florets)

1 cup wild mushrooms (fresh if possible), washed and thinly sliced

1 cup sweet peppers (red or yellow), cut into julienne

Ingredients for the Lemon-Lime Sauce:

1 1/4 cup Laban (heavy strained yogurt) (sour cream can be used)

2 tablespoons (canned) light evaporated milk

1 1/2 tablespoons chicken tea* or heavy concentrated chicken stock

3 tablespoons sweetened lime juice

1 1/2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice

3 teaspoons sugar

1/4-1/2 teaspoon cayenne pepper

Directions for cooking the artichokes and vegetables -

Remove the stem and bottom leaves from each artichoke (the stem is also delicious and can be very tender – they are discarded in this recipe due to the filling of the artichoke and allowing it to sit flat). With a sharp knife, cut off the top of the artichoke (approximately the top third) so that it is flat, and trim off any thorny tips.

Place the artichokes and lemon juice in a large casserole or stock pot. Add boiling water to completely cover the artichokes. You can also steam the artichokes – in 2 inches of boiling water and covering with a lid – if choosing to steam – make sure the water does not totally evaporate, add water if needed.

If boiling – over medium-high heat, cook the artichokes in a pot covered with a lid for 30-40 minutes or until the artichokes are tender and the bottom leaves pull out easily (you can fork test the stem end for tenderness as well). Remove the artichokes from the pot and drain. Place them upside down on paper towels to drain any excess water.

While the artichokes are cooking, prepare the steamed or sautéed vegetables.

In a medium-sized pot fitted with a stainless steel basket steamer, add the julienne carrots and cover the pot. Cook over medium-high heat for 5 minutes.

Add the broccoli florets and cook for an additional 3 minutes. Add the red pepper (or use roasted red pepper for the final set-up). Add the mushrooms to the pot and cook briefly.

Remove the steamed vegetables and drain. Vegetables can be roasted or sautéed instead of steamed. Place the cooled-down cooked artichokes and cooked vegetables in the refrigerator to chill.

For The Lemon-Lime Sauce:

Place the Laban (or sour cream), evaporated milk, chicken tea, lime juice, lemon juice sugar, and cayenne pepper in a glass bowl. Whisk until smooth.

Putting the Artichokes Together:

Remove the chilled artichokes from the refrigerator. Carefully pull open the artichokes and remove the "fuzzy" choke from each with a small spoon. Fill the cavities with the vegetables (also roasted red peppers, if they have not been steamed with the other vegetables). Reshape the artichoke. Serve with Lemon-Lime Sauce.

Cook's Notes:

* Chicken Tea is an actual product – chicken base – it is much like a super concentrated chicken broth (Original Smithers Gourmet Chicken Tea) is fat free and low in calories and is found at Hiller's Emporium (Shopping Center Markets) or specialty shops.

 Sweetened lime juice is found at all grocery shops and liquor stores – primarily used in beverages, it is a pre-sweetened lime juice, great in; mixed drinks, flavoring for sparkling water, salad dressings, and marinades.

Disaster relief is peace of mind

LISA LUCKOW-HEALY

The recent ice storm that struck metro Detroit caught many households by surprise, including mine.

My husband and I were awakened by a large tree branch hitting the roof. We were dismayed at the loss of power, water and heat. Trees were uprooted or held up by the slender thread of our telephone line. A live power line was precariously perched in a pool of water adjacent to the garage.

Busy signals rang in our ears as we tried to reach the utility company and our insurance agent. We held on to high hopes for a rapid return to normalcy as we packed a day bag, loaded Beamer – our 9-month-old Weimaraner – into the car and headed for the warmth of my parents' home.

Our hopes were dashed as we witnessed the storm's devastation around town. For four days, we pitched camp in Livonia. After our numerous trips home to a frigid 35-degree interior to replenish clothing supplies and bail water from the sump pump to avoid a basement flood, power was finally restored.

Every household should prepare for the ramifications of disasters such as a winter storm, flash flood, fire, tornado or hazardous materials spill.

Prepare for disaster before it strikes. Relief could take hours or days. Depending on the nature and severity of a disaster, you may not have time to gather necessary supplies such as food, water, first aid items or cleaning supplies.

As a family, it is a good idea to prepare a disaster supplies kit. In doing so, every member of your household who gets involved will understand why certain supplies are necessary and how and when they will come in handy.

According to the American Red Cross and the Federal Emergency Management Agency, there are six basics you should stock in your home: water, food, first aid supplies, clothing and bedding, tools and emergency supplies and special items.

The organizations suggest you keep the items you'd most likely need in an evacuation in a carrying container such as a large plastic bin, a backpack or a duffel bag. (Those items in the following lists are marked with an asterisk.)

Keep these rules of thumb in mind when assembling your disaster supplies:

Water – Store at least a three-day supply of water for each person in your household. One gallon of water* per person per day (two quarts for drinking, two quarts for food preparation/sanitation) is recommended by the Red Cross. People with special needs such as nursing mothers, children and those who are ill may require additional water.

First aid kit – It is a good idea to have a first aid kit* for your car and your home. It should include basics such as sterile bandages and gauze pads, adhesive tape, scissors, tweezers, a needle, antiseptic, moist towelettes, petroleum jelly, safety pins, antibacterial soap, latex gloves, aspirin or non-aspirin pain reliever, antacid, Syrup of Ipecac, a first aid manual and a list of emergency telephone numbers.

Clothing and bedding – Each member of the household should have at least one complete change of clothing*, including shoes or boots, and a blanket* or sleeping bag.

Tools and emergency supplies – Important considerations to pack include eating utensils, paper products (plates, cups), a battery-operated radio* with extra batteries, a flashlight* with extra batteries, a manual can opener, a fire extinguisher, matches* in a waterproof container, a compass*, a signal flare*, a shut-off wrench, a whistle*, plastic sheeting, toilet paper, personal hygiene items*, plastic garbage bags, a bucket and disinfectant.

Special items – In addition to general family disaster relief items, it's also important to remember the special needs of infants, toddlers, the elderly and physically challenged family members.

Don't forget to pack important family documents you typically store in a fireproof, waterproof portable container.

Store your disaster relief supplies in a convenient place everyone can get to should the need ever arise. Keep a smaller version of your kit inside your family vehicle. Above all, discuss where your family will meet in the event of certain disasters. Establish a plan.

Capture fleeting childhood moments

Did you know that children are the most photographed of all subjects? After all, only a photograph can provide an enduring record of the growth and activities of a child.

Because these pictures will grow more meaningful and priceless as time goes by, the photographer must use the utmost care and attention to portray the precious times of childhood.

Most important in photographing children is capturing their spirit.

Some youngsters are natural "hams" and will respond delightfully in front of the camera. But others become very aware of the presence of a camera and won't react well to posing directions. Stiff poses and artificial expressions will tend to replace a natural look and it is only after the camera is put away that the child's naturalness returns.

But if a child is enjoying a toy or an activity of his or her own choosing, he or she becomes unaware of the camera and capturing the child's "spirit" will be easy.

So concentrate on candids. The unplanned and the unexpected provide the opportunity for that exceptional photograph of your child. The objective is to capture the fleeting expression and momentary action rather than attempt to pose the situation.

If you are, however, shooting in a more controlled, posed environment, let the child "do his own thing." Let him assume positions or facial expressions that are a reflection of his own personality.

Very important, get on the child's level. Even get down on the floor. Pictures looking down on youngsters aren't flattering. Children live in a world of giant adults and huge surroundings. By getting low, you can capture a child's perspective and greatly improve your pictures.

Try using a telephoto lens. A lens of 100-200mm in focal length that allows you to keep your distance will be far less intimidating to a youngster. He or she may not even know you're there.

Candid delight: A telephoto lens enabled Monte Nagler to "move in close" and capture this delightful, spontaneous shot of this young girl in Shanghai, China.

If outdoors, shoot for an overcast day. Overcast weather provides the best lighting for "people" pictures. The lighting is soft and harsh shadows are eliminated. If it is sunny, position yourself so that the sun is behind your subject and then use fill-in flash to add sparkle to the face.

If indoors, try using natural light from a window. You may need a faster film in this circumstance, but the results will be most pleasing.

By photographing children naturally, you'll be able to record the spirit of youth that your family and friends will enjoy for many years to come.

GARDEN

■ The Roses-West Rose Society will meet 7:30-9:30 p.m. Thursday, April 10, at the Novi Community Center, 45175 W. 10 Mile, west of I-96 and Novi Road. "Old-fashioned Garden Roses of Yesterday and Today," a slide program with one-on-one questions and answers, will be presented by Paul Banish, an American Rose Society horticultural judge and consulting rosarian and the first deputy director of the Great Lakes District. He has written many articles and presented programs, and has been growing roses for 20 years. A social hour is featured. Guests may attend. Call (810) 347-0400.

■ Gardeners can learn to design an interesting landscape or, on a smaller scale, plan and plant an herb garden, in classes offered at Schoolcraft College in Livonia. "Landscape Design Workshop" is a four-week class beginning Thursday, April 3, that will demonstrate how to design a landscape from the ground up or how to redo an existing landscape. The class fee is $61. "Basic Herb Gardening" will explore plant choices, garden design and layout and pest management. Students will learn to use herbs in cooking and crafts. The one-day seminar is Saturday, April 5, and the fee is $39. For information or to register, call (313) 462-4448. Schoolcraft College is at 18600 Haggerty, between Six and Seven Mile and just west of I-275.

■ Wayne County's master composter training course will take place 7-8:30 p.m. Tuesdays, April 15 through May 27, in Meeting Room 1 of the Redford Community Center, 12121 Hemingway, between I-96 and Plymouth Road and just west of Beech Daly. The $20 materials fee is due the first day of class. Register through Tuesday, April 8, by phone at (313) 224-0485, fax at (313) 224-5016, or e-mail at staffdvp@ co.wayne.mi.us. Include your name, address and phone number. Call recycling coordinator Donna Myers at (313) 326-3936 for information.

■ The next meeting of the Metropolitan Rose Society will take place 7 p.m. Friday, April 4, at the Royal Oak Senior/Community Center at 3500 Marais, east of Crooks and north of 13 Mile. The speaker for the evening will be one of the group's members, Ed Mayer, who is a lifetime American Rose Society consulting rosarian and rose judge. His topic will be "Everything You Wanted to Know About Pruning Roses But Were Afraid to Ask." The public may attend.

■ "Gardening in the '90s," the ninth annual gardening seminar presented by the Master Gardener Association of Wayne County, will take place 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday, April 19, at First Presbyterian Church of Dearborn, 600 N. Brady. Registration deadline is Saturday, April 5. Call (313) 382-1424 for information.

■ The Ann Arbor Flower & Garden Show continues 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Thursday-Saturday, April 3-5, and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, April 6, at the Washtenaw Farm Council Grounds, 5055 Ann Arbor-Saline Road. Tickets sold at the show are $9 for adults, $3 for children ages 4-12 and free for children age 3 and under. Senior citizens receive a $1 discount on tickets bought at the door Thursday and Friday. Call (313) 998-7002 for shuttle locations and show information.

■ The Wayne County Soil Conservation District announces its annual spring tree seedling sale for 1997. Orders for planting stock are being accepted until Tuesday, April 8. Seedlings are tentatively scheduled for distribution Friday, April 25. For an order form containing information on trees available, site preference, uses and prices, contact the Wayne County Conservation District at 5454 Venoy Road, Wayne 48184, phone (313) 326-7787.

■ Victoria Lang grows historic old garden roses, exhibits them and writes about them. She has won blue ribbons and trophies with her roses. Troy Garden Club brings this advanced master gardener and 1996 consulting rosarian, with her videos and slides, to its members and the public at the club meeting noon to 3 p.m. Wednesday, April 9, at the Troy Community Center. The center is in the Civic Center complex directly behind City Hall at 500 W. Big Beaver Road. Refreshments will be served noon. Guest donation is $3. For information, call Barb at (810) 879-1393.

■ English Gardens conducts free seminars on a variety of gardening topics. The weekly seminars, open to the public, are 7 p.m. Wednesdays at the West Bloomfield store, 6370 Orchard Lake Road. Call (810) 851-7506. Topics, speakers and dates include "Container and Window Box Gardening," Ann Kushner, April 9; and "Gardening with Annuals for Color Impact," Roger Rotarius, April 16.

■ "Earth Friendly Tips" will be presented by Terry McLean, Michigan State University Extension horticultural adviser, at three locations: the Novi Public Library, 45245 W. 10 Mile, Wednesday, April 9; Orchard Lake Middle School, 6000 Orchard Lake Road in West Bloomfield, Thursday, April 17; and the Bloomfield Township Library, 1099 Lone Pine Road, Thursday, April 24. The time of each session is 7-8:30 p.m. For more information and to register, call (810) 858-0895 for the Novi and Bloomfield Hills classes and (810) 539-2290 for the West Bloomfield class. The free program is sponsored by the MSU Extension, Oakland County, and Southeastern Oakland County Resource Recovery Authority.

■ Soil nutrient test kits from Michigan State University are available for purchase from selected retailers in Southeastern Oakland County Resource Recovery Authority communities until Saturday, April 12. The $10 price includes pH, lime requirement, phosphorus, potassium, calcium, magnesium and organic matter. For a complete list of participating garden centers and hardware stores, call SOCRRA at (810) 288-5150 weekdays.

■ In cooperation with Southeastern Oakland County Resource Recovery Authority, Four Seasons Garden Center, 14471 W. 11 Mile in Oak Park (phone (810) 543-4400), is making the Michigan State University soil testing service available to area residents until Saturday, April 12. Bring soil samples from your lawn, flower garden or vegetable garden to Four Seasons, where you will be assisted with completing forms and packaging. (Call or stop by Four Seasons for instructions for proper soil sampling.) SOCRRA will deliver the samples directly to MSU's laboratory, and participants will receive a written soil analysis and recommendation by mail within two to three weeks. The cost of $10 includes basic nutrient and organic matter tests and shipping fees.

FRANK PROVENZANO
STAFF WRITER

Unfortunately, real-life tragedies of epic proportions occur too frequently in metropolitan Detroit. David DiChiera, founder and general director of the Michigan Opera Theatre, shakes his head and wonders how deep the despair has grown.

"A boy kills his girlfriend because he thinks she's pregnant, then he kills her two girlfriends, then is killed himself because he has a death wish," he said. "How do you make sense of that?"

Even by the standards of the melodramatic operatic world, the miseries behind today's headlines seem beyond comprehension. But for DiChiera, that hardly means there isn't any hope.

On the contrary, the lavish blend of music, drama and design commonly known as opera could provide a much-needed emotional catharsis, said DiChiera. "Opera brings a depth of emotion that can help us understand," he said. "The best operas offer strong lessons about life, lessons that never leave us."

Beginning Thursday, the MOT will present Verdi's "Rigoletto," a moral lesson of the fate for those consumed by vengeance. It's the first time that MOT has performed the famous opera since10 years ago when it offered an uncharacteristically small production at the Fisher Theatre.

The opera features several local vocalists, including James Patterson of West Bloomfield, Barbara Scherrer of Oxford, and Frank Pitts of Rochester Hills.

Road to Redemption

"We did 'Rigoletto' before on a very modest scale," said DiChiera. "But I had been so unhappy with the production back then that I kept thinking that I had to redeem myself."

The road to redemption for DiChiera and MOT has been paved with the completed restoration of the Detroit Opera House, and the selection of Verdi's classic for the inaugural season at the world-class venue. When the curtain goes up, audiences will witness an enormous production originally created for the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts.

"This production is closer in scale to what Verdi had in mind," said DiChiera. Ironically, it wasn't quite clear what the Italian composer initially had in mind.

"Rigoletto" is often cited as a turning point in Verdi's evolution as an international composer. Because of the magnitude of his influence on 19th and 20th-century operatic compositions, some critics contend "Rigoletto" is a turning point for modern opera. Apparently, Verdi's explorations of arias, recitatives and duets were ahead of their time.

After the premiere of "Rigoletto" in 1851, Verdi composed "Il Trovatore" and "La Traviata." Collectively, the three operas are known as the Verdi Trilogy. At the time of the original performance of "Rigoletto," however, critics dismissed Verdi's work in favor of the broad emotional tides of German composer Richard Wagner.

Based on "The Fool's Revenge," a play by Victor Hugo, "Rigoletto" pushed operatic as well as political limits. The opera had to be reworked several times because it was too critical of the ruling sovereign of France. But like Hugo's more famous story, "Les Misearbles," the story is a passionate exploration of human limitations and miscalculated assumptions.

Rigoletto, a hunchback and acid-tongue jester in the Renaissance court of a Duke, has a cruel wit, but a well of love for his daughter. In mocking the demise of others, however, he incurs a relentless curse that forces him to come face-to-face with his greatest fear – losing his daughter. When she falls in love with the Duke, who has "ruined" her, Rigoletto pledges vengeance. The plot unfolds as an intricate game of chess played by the relentless Gods.

Local talent on stage

In the role of Sparafucile, James Patterson of West Bloomfield lends his resonating bass in a portrayal of the ominous assassin. During the last 20 years, the opera veteran has toured extensively throughout North America. He made his MOT premiere last year as Dr. Gezil in "La Traviata."

"When I was younger, I played Sparafucile as a big and tough fellow," said the 6-foot-6 Patterson. "But I've come to realize that it's more evil to play him with a spooky indifference."

Joining Patterson are Barbara Scherrer of Oxford and Frank Pitts of Rochester Hills, both of whom are apprentices in MOT's program.

In the fine operatic tradition of chance occurrences, Scherrer and Pitts' association with the MOT sounds a lot like destiny. Scherrer was invited to join MOT after a stunning performance of an aria performed at MOT's annual voice competition. A mezzo soprano, Scherrer sings two roles in "Rigoletto," Countess Ceprano and Giovanna.

"On one level, when I'm in costume, surrounded by the set, I'm thinking, 'I'm Countess Ceprano.' But on another level, I'm thinking this is all so surreal, 'What am I doing here?'"

As a recent graduate of Harding University in Arkansas where he majored in music, Pitts was looking to enhance his current duties as a piano instructor with a singing career. Last year, he won a chorus part in "La Boheme." Shortly after, he was accepted as an apprentice at MOT. Pitts, a bass, will sing the role of Ceprano.

With the combination of local and international talent, such as Haijing Fu in the lead role, and Sumi Jo as the lead soprano, the MOT's "Rigoletto" production has been designed for a distinctively modern feel.

In Europe, opera is not limited to the highly educated or only those who can afford tickets, said Patterson. "It's not unusual for audiences to see 'Rigoletto' every couple of years. The more you're around opera, the more accessible and socially relevant it becomes," he said.

Tom Bosley, best known as Howard Cunningham on the hit TV series, "Happy Days," is having a wonderful time with the cast aboard "Show Boat," docked at the Masonic Temple Theatre in Detroit.

"It's going very well," he said. Before agreeing to wear Cap'n Andy's hat, Bosley saw the show three times. Twice in New York, and once in Los Angeles. "I saw the shows with different leads each time, but this is the best company," he said. "There's chemistry that works between actors. People have told me that."

He joined the company on Feb. 17, and will be with the show for a minimum of six months. "I'll see how it goes," he said. "I had only three weeks to rehearse before we opened. I learned the whole part before I went into rehearsal. I have the support of a great cast."

Bosley made his Broadway debut in 1959 as New York City Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia in the musical "Fiorello." Although he had never done musical theater before, it was a role that earned him that season's Tony Award, The Variety Critics Award, The Newspaper Guild of America and the ANTA Award, making him the first actor to capture all four awards in one year.

"In those days it was a job," he said. "You went to New York, to Chicago, where the work was."

His film debut followed in 1962 in "Love With A Proper Stranger," which also starred Natalie Wood and Steve McQueen, and co-starred in "The World of Henry Orient," "Divorce American Style," "Yours, Mine and Ours," and "The Secret War of Private Frigg."

But, when you say "Tom Bosley," most people say "Mr. C," the moniker associated with some of the "Happy Days" in his career.

"No one wanted me to play a heavy, a villain, but those are the roles actors want to play, the meaty ones. But I don't regret it," he said. "It was exciting to be in a hit TV show for 11 years, (1974-1984). I had two families. My TV family, and the one I went home to every night. We were close, and shared experiences. Two of us lost wives, two got married, and babies were born during that time."

Playing the fatherly captain is a role Bosley is comfortable with. " 'Show Boat' is really about family," he said when asked how he felt about the racial controversy surrounding the show.

"The musical endures because of the marvelous, classic songs that have stood up for generations," he said. "The show is 70 years old. Edna Ferber wrote about life on the show boat. The racial aspects were typical of that time – 1893 to 1927 – they're part of history."

In fact, Bosley pointed out, one number,

Cast delivers laughs in 'Lend Me A Tenor'

Schoolcraft College presents "Lend Me A Tenor" 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday, April 4-5. Tickets $6.50, call (313) 462-4400, Ext. 5393. The college is at 18600 Haggerty Road, Livonia.

SPECIAL WRITER

Schoolcraft College's "Lend Me A Tenor" is a farce-aholic's delight —two hours of intoxicating belly laughs, howls, screams of surprise, and nonsensical hilarity. Professor, James Hartman, not only has designed a spiffy 1930s hotel room (complete with the usually six doors of a farce) but directs his cast with a deft hand.

Their Italian was impressive (the play is about a world-famous opera star) and the cast performs with the precision and energy of a drill team. Occasionally, the pace drops, but one suspects the timing will improve as they become more familiar the show.

It is the biggest night in the history of the Cleveland Grand Opera Company. Tito Morelli (also known as 11 Stupendo) is to sing his greatest role, Otello, at the gala season opener. Of course, nothing goes according to plan in a farce.

Morelli is late, then drugged to sleep, thought dead, and plans are made for an imposter to play Otello. Which gets us to the real fun — two Otellos cavorting about the stage, in and out of doors, all the while being pursed by his wife and assorted amorous woman.

Brian Taylor is terrific as, Morelli, the womanizing, bigger than life, conceited, opera star. His stage presence and comic timing are marvelous.

In one of the funniest scenes in memory, Taylor makes his body as limp as a rag doll; as others attempt to shake him from his stupor. One wonders how he ever survived rehearsals.

Adam Conger, as Max, stirs the evening's drink of lunacy. Conger in his first major role gives a splendid performance as a nerdy, Walter Mitty type. Max's job is to take care of the great Morelli while he is in town. Max, of course, has singing aspirations – though he can barely manage a squeak, and claims to know Otello.

Morelli unwittingly gives a riotous singing lesson to Max — and he is later able to perform the role of Otello with great applause. Max, still dressed as Otello even manages a rendezvous with his own girlfriend, Maggie, who hardly gives him the time of day as himself

Jessica Brown is very good as Maggie, a young lady given to swooning over opera and its stars. David Ormsby, scores as her buffoon-like dad (Saunders) and impresario of the opera company.

Shannon Krause is dynamite as Morelli's fire-breathing Italian wife, who leaves him because of his affairs, but keeps coming back. Jennifer Allie (Diana) was appropriately sexy and seductive as a local opera singer, who hopes a tryst with the great man will further her career.

Kathryn Cobleigh spiced the evening's fun as, Julia, a local patron of the arts. All dressed in, silver, she wonders how she looks, which results in the great line, "Like the Chrysler Building."

Rounding out the cast is Ryaniver Klann as the bellhop. He wants a picture of the star, is chased about to confiscate his camera – and in a typical second of nonsense, everyone freezes, he snaps, and the chase continues – and the audience laughed itself silly.

"Misery," in this production directed by Harold Prince, was taken out of the original, which opened in New York on Dec. 27, 1927. It was the second show with book and lyrics by Oscar Hammerstein II and Jerome Kern.

Theater, movies and TV, Bosley has done it all, but theater gives him the most satisfaction. "When the curtain goes up you get the audience's response," he said. "There's a lot of waiting around in movies and TV."

Like his "Happy Days," Bosley enjoys the chance to work with young actors in the show, including 8-year-old Sarah Wiercioch of Plymouth who portrays young Kim in "Show Boat."

"They're all adorable," he said about the youngsters. "And they're doing a great job. The kids are wonderful."

Of the next generation, there aren't many opportunities in theater, and those who do make it, he said have to have multiple talents – be able to sing, act and dance.

"There are a lot of young people who get breaks on TV who aren't ready talent wise," he said. "Quick money hurts."

As he travels down "Ole Man River," his favorite song in "Show Boat," with the cast, Bosley is enjoying the ride, and putting the future on hold.

"I have a television project," he said. "My wife and I developed a comedy," but we tabled it because of the show.

St. Mary's College to present play written by Pope John Paul II

"Our future depends on love."

A line from the first act of "The Jeweler's Shop" provides the theme of this play written in 1960 by Pope John Paul II, who was at the time Karol Wojtyla, auxiliary bishop of Krakow.

The three-act play will be presented by the Polish Theater Group of New York at 8 p.m. Friday, April 4 and 7:30 p.m. Saturday, April 5 in the Rev. J. Rakoczy auditorium at St. Mary's College, 3535 Indian Trail at Orchard Lake and Commerce roads in Orchard Lake.

Tickets are $20 adults, $10 seniors and students. For information call (810) 683-1750.

"The Jeweler's shop explores the relationship between three couples. The first couple shares memories of their young love and happy, but all-too-short marriage; the second feels the pain of emptiness when the two married people become strangers to one another, and the third faces anxiety and fear as they prepare for their own wedding.

Guided by the mysterious personage of "The Jeweler," all three couples are invited to place their trust in the hands of "the One who is watching," and to gain strength through him when tragedy, uncertainty or fear arise.

A score of Gregorian Chant and contemporary Christian folk music enhances the play's message.

The production by the Polish Theater Group directed by Ireneusz Wykurz has been winning audiences and critics alike since its premiere in New York City in October 1994.

Wykurz, an actor, director, teacher and producer with nearly a quarter century of professional experience, founded the Polish Theater Group, based in Brooklyn, in 1992 to promote interest in Polish theatrical drama in the U.S.

St. Mary's College is sponsoring the production in association with the Friends of Polish Art of Detroit.

Chenille Sisters bring witty ditties to Mercy High

With growing audiences at concerts and increasing record sales, the Chenille Sisters finally got the message. "Quit your day jobs." They have. Their full-time gig can be heard This Saturday at Mercy High School Auditorium in Farmington Hills.

The upcoming concert, part of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra's Tiny Tots series, will feature classic and original children's songs along with skits and plenty of the Chenille's trademark audience participation adventures.

For their wit, wisdom and rhythm, the Ann Arbor trio has been guests on Garrison Keillor's "A Prairie Home Companion and NPR's "All things Considered." In 1995, their television special, "The Chenille Sisters: Makin' Rhythm," appeared on PBS. They're currently developing a children's holiday special for public broadcast.

What: The Chenille Sisters in Concert
When: Saturday, April 5 at 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m.
Where: Mercy High School Auditorium at the northeast corner of 11 Mile and Middlebelt roads in Farmington Hills.
Tickets: All seats $10. General admission seating. Call (313) 833-3700

Since expanding their repertoire in the late 1980s to include children's music, the three-woman signing ensemble has risen in popularity with kids, and in the hearts of parents who actually like what their kids listen to. And that probably makes the Chenille's parents proud, too. Of course, the only thing keeping Cheryl Dawdy, Connie Huber and Grace Morand from being related is having different parents.

The band's name comes from a typically off-beat perspective. "Go to your grandmother's house and look at her bedspreads," explained the Chenilles. "That soft, cotton fabric that makes you want to put on your jammies and ask her to read you a story is chenille."

That kind of home-spun humor usually gets audiences of all ages singing along to "Oh, I wish I were a dinosaur."

The Detroit Symphony Orchestra will not be performing with the Chenille Sisters on April 5.

The final Tiny Tots Concert of the 1996-97 season on Saturday, May 3 will feature Rheda Becker, narrator and music programmer for then young, in a program titled "Songs, Stories and Silly sounds."

Festival showcases films made in Israel

BY KEELY WYGONIK
STAFF WRITER

Hollywood is synonymous with movies, and France is known for its International Film Festival in Cannes, but most people don't make a connection between film and Israel.

"The Israeli Film industry is very creative, they've put out some very good work," said Michael H. Traison of West Bloomfield, president of the America-Israel Chamber of Commerce of Michigan, sponsor of metro Detroit's first Israeli Film Festival, Saturday and Sunday, April 5-6 and April 12-13 at the Maple Theater.

"There has never been, to our knowledge, an Israeli Film Festival in Michigan. There are festivals in New York and Los Angeles that last several weeks. I expect to see a large number of people in the audience who just want to see good films. This (The America-Israel Chamber of Commerce of Michigan) is not a Jewish organization, we are a business organization that concerns a region of the world where we are promoting trade."

Naomi Blumenberg of Farmington Hills, director of the Midrasha Center for Adult Jewish Studies, Agency for Jewish Education in Southfield selected the 10 films produced in Israel by Israelis.

"This festival is not only for the Jewish community, but we hope to draw people who are interested in foreign films," she said. "These are all recent films with diverse subject matter – military, holocaust, and fictional," she said. "They're high quality, worth watching films with good stories, cinematography, and English subtitles that reflect the story." The films are all in Hebrew.

Blumenberg selected 10 after watching close to 30 films, and reading descriptions of 40-50.

"Opening night is going to be good," she said. The film, "One of Us" is about four young defenders of modern Israel who find themselves caught in a crossfire of conflicting loyalties. Ultimately, each must decide which takes precedence: loyalty to a cause; to comrades, to oneself, or to the truth.

Uri Barbash directs this film described as "sometimes violent, sometimes tender, always suspenseful look into the darker side of human values."

" 'One of Us' is totally fictional, but it relates to an incident in the 1980s," said Blumenberg. "A bus was hijacked by two or three terrorists, and one of the terrorists was killed. It deals with a variety of issues – censorship, democracy. How do you come up with a code of ethics for the military when there's a compulsory draft?"

After the film, Osnat Ur-Leurer, currently on leave of absence from her job as a major in the Education Corps of the Israeli Defense Forces, will lead an informational discussion. Is "One of Us" fact or fantasy? Is a situation like this possible in today's Israeli society?

Datia Traison, Michael Traison's wife, and an English/Spanish teacher at Southfield Lathrup High School, reviewed most of the films with Blumenberg. "They're all very different," she said. "There are light comedies, and very touching, beautiful stories that deal with moral dilemmas. The films reflect a large cross section of Israeli life and humanity. They will appeal to all different tastes, they touch different parts of the human condition, and are very worthwhile."

Israeli Film Festivals are big productions on the East and West Coast, and Traison believes the time has come to introduce these filmmakers to metro Detroit audiences, and business people.

"It ought to attract people who are interested in film, and Israel," said Michael Traison. "The Maple is in the center of an area of people who enjoy film. It has evoked a tremendous response, and will be very popular. It will give people a another view of Israel."

"The film industry in Israel is growing and well developed," said Datia Traison. "There's a wealth of creativity and technical know-how."

Tickets will be available at the box office, but people are encouraged to call for tickets in advance.

SCHEDULE

Saturday, April 5
■ 9 p.m. Saturday, April 5 – "One of Us" (1989) (see story for description)

Sunday, April 6
■ 2 p.m. – "The Flying Camel," (1994, for mature audiences, age 14 and older) – Comedy of contrasts about three unusual characters, Bauman, an eccentric Jewish professor who collects artifacts; Phares, an Arab who collects garbage; and Gina, a young Italian nun, who find commonality in the course of an uncommon adventure.
■ 4 p.m. – "The Heritage" (1993, for mature audiences) – Set in Spain, this drama begins in the 1400s with a Jewish family's destruction by the Inquisition and concludes in 1992 with discovery of a heritage lost.
■ 6 p.m. – "Cup Final" – (1992, for mature audiences) – Contrasts war and sorts. It is 1982. Israeli and Palestinian soldiers battle for southern Lebanon. Cohen, an Israeli reservist and Zlad, his Palestinian captor, are equally devoted soccer fans. Against news flashes from the World Cup soccer matches in Spain, the two men struggle with the brutalities and foolish ironies of war.
■ 8 p.m. – "Song of the Siren" (1994) – In the midst of the Gulf War. Screaming sirens warn of Scud missiles falling on Tel Aviv. But "thirtysomething" advertising executive Talila Katz is fighting a personal war with Ofer, her longtime love; Noah, a romantically exciting newcomer; and her mother who is desperate to see Talila marry and start a family. Includes news clips of Israeli journalists interviewing American soldiers.

Saturday, April 12
■ 10 p.m. – "Lovesick on Nana Street" (1995) – Funny and bizarre love story about a romantic dreamer who wants to win the girl of his dreams, a beautiful actress who isn't at all interested.

Sunday, April 13
■ 2 p.m. – "The Summer of Aviya" (1988, for mature audiences) – Aviya is a 10-year-old girl yearning for normal childhood in newly independent Israel. But life is painful and confusing. Her mother is a holocaust survivor. Without friends, and surrounded by uncertainty, Aviya finds hope in music.
■ 4 p.m. – "Under the Domin Tree" (1995, for mature audiences) – Sequel to "Summer of Aviya" finds Aviya now 15, in a youth village with other teenage death camp survivors and war orphans. Based on Gila Almagor's autobiography.
■ 6 p.m. – "White Night" (1996) – Brutally realistic film, the true story of good and evil. Filmed in Israel's highest security prison, it depicts a prisoner's critical discovery of courage and faith. A Cannes award-winner.
■ 8 p.m. – "An Imagined Autobiography" (1996) – Making a film about her own life, young movie director Aya instructs actors who portray her mentally ill mother, her taciturn father, and herself as a troubled adolescent. For Aya, the process reveals new meanings to life.

Pitt, Ford make believable team in 'Devil's Own'

TICKETS PLEASE

JOHN MONAGHAN

Harrison Ford and Brad Pitt create a different kind of buddy picture in "The Devil's Own." Well-acted, reasonably believable, and often touching, the movie more than accomplishes its balancing act between action and intimate character study.

Ford plays Tom O'Meara, a New York City cop who agrees to house an Irish immigrant until the young man gets on his feet. Unknown to him or his family, Pitt's Frankie Devaney is an IRA terrorist with 26 kills to his credit and more in the works.

The movie opens in Northern Ireland, circa 1972, as a boy and his father come in from a day at work on the water. Just as the father recites the "for what we are about to receive" portion of their pre-supper grace, a masked gunman bursts in and shoots him dead in full sight of the family.

Flash forward 25 years to a fierce Belfast gunfight between Frankie's IRA mates and the military, from which Frankie escapes unharmed. He heads for the states with a plan to bring a boatload of heavy artillery back to his homeland.

The oft-reported troubles on the set of "The Devil's Own" didn't prevent veteran director Alan Pakula ("All the President's Men") from delivering a well-crafted thriller. Sure there are dopey moments, especially in its attempts to make sure we like Frankie no matter what, but at least it keeps the mushy stuff to a minimum.

Best are the subtle touches. On his first night in America, Frankie sits down to supper with his new family and you get the sense that this is the first good meal he's had in years. He gets a few stares when he admits that he has never eaten corned beef and cabbage, even though Tom's wife insists it's "all you eat over there."

As Frankie becomes more and more a part of the family, he continues to negotiate for arms. He hooks up with a scummy Irish bar owner/Mafioso (played by Treat Williams) whose constant prodding about where Frankie is staying hints at the trouble that will inevitably follow him home.

Pitt continues his attempts to shed his pretty boy image. With each subsequent film he has convinced the camera to get closer and closer to his less-than-perfect complexion. And while I'm sure a real Irishman could pick it apart, his brogue remains consistent throughout.

And Harrison Ford? Thank Pakula for coaxing out of him something better than his usual one-note performance. Though we've seen him as a father before, there is genuine tenderness as he tucks one daughter in bed or beams proudly as another celebrates her confirmation.

Despite their different acting styles, these two box office attractions appear to bring out the best in each other. The younger actor is able to engage in lengthy, tear-filled, James Dean-like confessions while Ford gets to quietly brood about the responsibility that goes with wearing a badge. Even the most intense dialogue is spoken in near-whispers, which draws us further into the characters' suffering.

The action scenes in "The Devil's Own" are mostly of the chase-and-shoot variety, extremely well-edited and suspenseful. If the climactic showdown doesn't exactly get your adrenaline flowing, it does bring the characters to closure without one of them jumping just out of reach of an exploding fireball.

Suspense thriller: Tom O'Meara (Harrison Ford, left) has no reason not to trust his young Irish house guest Ron Devaney (Brad Pitt) until he learns of his violent reason for coming to America in "The Devil's Own."

Singer Carolyn Striho sees good things for new CD

CHRISTINA FUOCO

Longtime Detroit rocker Carolyn Striho has released her new album "Reminiscing About the Future" (Mysteriho) and according to her manager Freddie Brooks, the future looks bright.

"This release is her strongest to date and should help establish her as Detroit's most formidable female rocker since Suzi Quatro," he wrote in a letter sent with the CD.

Performing since the early 1980s, Striho agreed and explained that in recording "Reminiscing About the Future" she found her niche in the pop/rock market as a singer/songwriter.

"It was sort of streamlined as far as what we wanted to do," said Striho, a former Canton resident. "We went in with more definite ideas. The songs were written more specific to a certain sound. I felt really strong about these songs."

"To me, it's more narrowed down (to a singer/songwriter genre). I've written a bunch more songs in that vein. They're kind of popish but it's also got that rock edge."

Striho is ready for the big publicity blitz for her CD. She's already performed at the Magic Bag and visited Ralph Valdez's WDET radio show. Up next is an interview on the CIMX-FM's "Homeboy Show" and an in-store appearance Friday, April 11, at Off the Record in Royal Oak.

"We're going to be playing out a lot more. We're going to make people aware of the record through radio interviews and through performances."

Carolyn Striho performs a free, all-ages show at 7 p.m. Friday, April 11, at Off the Record record store, 401 S. Washington, Royal Oak. For more information, call (810) 398-4436.

• To Everclear singer/guitarist/lyricist Art Alexakis, a solo acoustic tour is a very scary thing.

"I'm not hiding behind guitars and mics with two other guys. The audience is sitting there staring me down like a bunch of hoot owls. I get worried that I'll forget the lyrics," said Alexakis who plays the Mill Street Entry below Clutch Cargo's in Pontiac on Thursday, April 3.

Alexakis is taking a break from recording the band's follow up to the platinum-selling album "Sparkle and Fade," which yielded the hits "Heroin Girl," and "Santa Monica." But it's not an intentional vacation.

"To be honest, I thought the record would be done by now. I thought I'd be winding down but it didn't work out that way. I needed a break. After the album's done, I'm taking the first vacation I've ever had in my whole life. I'm going to Hawaii with my family."

Alexakis said that his set will be 13-15 songs long and will include a few covers and tunes from Everclear's two records.

"I'm going to debut new songs, sing old songs, sing really old songs, and songs that aren't on any records. I think this tour is a good opportunity to get out and connect with the audience. Last year we were playing really big places like Pine Knob. I just want to get back and get close to the people."

Art Alexakis performs Thursday, April 3, Mill Street Entry below Clutch Cargo's, 65 E. Huron St., Pontiac. Doors open at 7 p.m. for the all-ages show. Tickets are $10 in advance. For more information, call (810) 333-2362

Misc: The Verve Pipe, The Observer and Eccentric Newspapers' 1993 Band of the Year, will perform on David Letterman's show on Friday, April 25 ... The Verve Pipe's East Lansing homeboys Botfly will celebrate the release of its new CD at an all-ages show 8 p.m. Saturday, April 5, at St. Andrew's Hall. Orbit, which is receiving airplay on WRIF, Outhouse, and Merge are opening. Tickets are $10 in advance. For more information, call (313) 961-MELT.

If you have a question or comment for Christina Fuoco, you can write to her in care of The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft Road, Livonia, or you can leave her a message at (313) 953-2047, mailbox No. 2130, or via e-mail at CFuoco@aol.com.

Celebrating release: Carolyn Striho, who backed Patti Smith at a number of local shows including CIMX-FM's X-Fest in June at the Phoenix Plaza Amphitheatre, performs songs off her latest CD "Reminiscing About The Future" at an in-store appearance at Off the Record in Royal Oak on Friday, April 11.

British girl band Fluffy takes to 'serious' U.S. audiences

STAFF WRITER

Upstart British bands have long shunned the United States saying that touring here is a waste of time. Britpoppers Blur thought that way until lead singer/songwriter Damon Albarn discovered during a soul-searching expedition in Iceland that he not only liked America but the country's college rock sound. (Hence the stylistic change on Blur's self-titled effort released last month.)

Blur wasn't alone. A handful of other bands decided to stay in the cozy confines of their country where they are revered. That's not the case with the all-girl punk band Fluffy. Since the release of its debut album "Black Eye" (The Enclave), the band has decided that the United States is the way to go.

The four fashionable women – drummer Angie Adams, bassist Helen Storer, guitarist Bridget Jones, and singer/guitarist Amanda Rootes – who wear mini skirts and stacked heels on stage often find themselves heckled by fans in their home country England. Founding member Adams said the band is taken more seriously in the United States.

"When we play there (England) it's a waste of time. Why should we bother? Why should we get up on the stage and play for these people shouting things like (lift your shirt)," said Adams via telephone from her Calgary, Alberta, Canada, hotel room.

"In America, when we play no one would dare do anything like that. Women are more readily accepted in the music industry in the United States. Journalists in America, they talk about punk rock and its history and our influences. In England, people really like the tabloid stuff. They want to talk about your life, and how short your skirt it."

The women dress like they do because "we're really proud of the fact that we are women. We don't dress down," said Adams whose band opens for D Generation on Thursday, April 3, at The Shelter below St. Andrew's Hall in Detroit.

"Black Eye" is filled with searing guitars, snarling vocals and unforgiving sexual lyrics. Peppered throughout the album are their thoughts on fuzzy drunken nights out ("Technicolour Yawn"), abusive relationships ("Scream," "Black Eye" and "Husband"), snotty famous people ("Too Famous"), drug use ("Psychofudge") bad girls who pretend to be good ("Crossdresser"), and a loss of innocence ("Cheap").

The band isn't one to mince words, either. Lyrically some of the songs are soul-wrenching.

"I'm not as drunk as I seem. I can't scream. You walk away whilst they whore me. Taking no blame," Rootes sings in "Scream." "Husband" tells a familiar story of an abusive relationship.

"Our songs are more angry than anything else," Adams explained. "I can't imagine Amanda singing 'I'm so sad. My boyfriend's left me.' We just want to be positive role models to women. If you're up there and you're five women on the stage you want to give people the right idea, really. You want to inspire other women to be strong and do what they really want to do instead of whining about something and making everybody sad."

Fluffy opens for D Generation on Thursday, April 3, at The Shelter below St. Andrew's Hall, 431 E. Congress, Detroit. Doors open at 6 p.m. for the all-ages show. Tickets are $8 in advance. For more information, call (313) 961-MELT.

SCREEN SCENE

A sampling of what's playing at alternative movie theaters across metro Detroit as reviewed by John Monaghan.

Detroit Film Theatre Detroit Institute of Arts, 5200 Woodward Ave., Detroit. Call (313) 833-2323 for information. ($5; $4 students)

"Message to Love" (USA-1970/1996). April 4-6 (call for showtimes). The 1970 Isle of Wight musical festival was supposed to be another Woodstock but quickly deteriorated into a free-for-all. Among those trying to hold it together on stage: Jimi Hendrix, The Who, The Doors, The Moody Blues, Donovan, Leonard Cohen, Joni Mitchell, and even Tiny Tim.

"Fire on the Mountain" (USA -1996). 7 p.m. April 7. A documentary look at World War II's indomitable snowmen, the skiers and mountaineers who battled Nazis in the Apennine Mountains of Italy.

Magic Bag Theatre 22920 Woodward, Ferndale. Call (810) 544-3030 for information.

"The Begotten" (USA - 1991) and "Tales from Gimli Hospital" (Canada -1993). Starting at 9 p.m. April 8. Two "Eraserhead"-inspired exercises in weirdness. In the first, the earth renews itself on the corpse of a strange thing born of a Godlike creature. "Gimli" tells of jealousy and madness as two men share a hospital room. Shown on big-screen video. (Free)

"Swingers" (USA - 1996). 9:30 p.m. April 9. Perhaps the most underappreciated independent movie of last year was this depiction of twentysomethings in Los Angeles waiting for their big break. Better yet is how it examines the often bizarre dating rituals of a generation that has inexplicably begun to embrace Frank Sinatra and martinis. ($2)

Main Art Theatre 118 N. Main Street at 11 Mile, Royal Oak. Films play through at least Thursday, unless noted otherwise. Call (810) 542-0180 for information and showtimes. ($6.50; $4 students, seniors and matinee; $3 twilight)

"Waiting for Guffman" (USA -1997). Christopher Guest, best known as a founding member of the fake rock group Spinal Tap, creates his own mock documentary about a small town in Missouri staging a sesquicentennial pageant. Guest co-wrote and directed the low-budget film, and even stars as Corky St. Clair, the high school drama teacher who helms the show with hilarious results.

"Smilla's Sense of Snow" (USA - 1997). Julia Ormond and Gabriel Byrne star in this contemporary thriller about the investigation surrounding a young boy's mysterious death.

"The Godfather" (USA - 1972). The success of the "Star Wars" rereleases has all the studios looking in the attics. Francis Coppola's seems like a good place to start, the still-influential gangster epic that gave Marlon Brando his greatest role as Don Corleone and launched the career of Al Pacino.

"Suburbia" (USA - 1997). Writer Eric Bogosian ("Talk Radio") and director Richard Linklater ("Dazed and Confused") team for this comic look at a group of friends who are forced to examine their lives when an old friend, now a successful rock star, comes home for a visit. (Starts Friday)

Maple Theatre 4135 W. Maple, Bloomfield. All titles play through at least next Thursday, unless noted otherwise. Call (810) 855-9090 for information. ($6; $2.95 twilight)

"Sling Blade" (USA - 1996). Billy Bob Thornton wrote, directed, and stars in this portrait of a middle-aged man released from a mental institution after 30 years. He must somehow assimilate back into the community where he committed a grizzly murder. Nominated for best actor and screenplay honors, Thornton's first feature also boasts surprising performances from Dwight Yoakam and John Ritter.

Redford Theatre 13671 Lahser (at Grand River), Detroit. Call (313) 537-2560 for information. ($2.50)

"Stars and Stripes Forever" (USA / 1952). 8 p.m. April 4; 2, 8 p.m. April 5 (organ overture begins a half hour before showtime). Hollywood's version of the life of John Philip Sousa, with all the brass and flag-waving you can stand. Clifton Webb plays the March King, with support from Debra Paget and Robert Wagner.

Windsor Film Theatre 2135 Wyandotte St. West, Windsor, Canada. Call (519) 254-FILM for information. ($5.25; $4 U.S.)

"The Act of Seeing.." 9 p.m. April 7 - 8. An evening with Stan Brakhage, the experimental filmmaker who employs a variety of unorthodox film techniques. This program focuses on some of his bleaker works, among them: "Reflections on Black" (1955), "The Dead" (1960), "Black Vision" (1965) and "Murder Psalm" (1980).

DINING

Legacy appeals to piano and jazz club lovers

BY ELEANOR & RAY HEALD
SPECIAL WRITERS

Architecture of a former bank building on Grand River in Farmington Hills attracted 37-year-old Hector Puente Jr. It was vacant for two years before Puente and his partners bought it with the goal of transforming the site into a clubby yet casual dining atmosphere appealing, especially on weekends, to piano and jazz enthusiasts.

Puente, a Farmington Hills resident, gave the building more than a face lift to turn the colonial structure into the Legacy Dinner Club with its dramatic cathedral ceiling and large windows. On Fridays and Saturdays, performances by local jazz artists such as Cliff Monera, Kimmie Horne, flute, saxophone and clarinet player Larry Nozero or the Chad Michaels Trio are given on the lower level. Diners upstairs can choose tables that allow viewing of performers below.

A jazz lover himself, Puente created a club-like atmosphere that's elegant yet simple. White tablecloth seating for 150 with comfortable, cushioned chairs is accented by the blue, burgundy and purple hues chosen as "renovation" colors.

"I'm trying to create something away from the franchise concept," Puente said. "I'm offering personal service where I get to know diners as in-house accounts, Chicago style."

While Puente has not owned a restaurant before, he comes from a family that does. For 17 years, his father has owned and operated Mexican Gardens in Southgate. "Loyal clientele who know my family have already found me in Farmington Hills," Puente said.

The Legacy Dinner Club

Where: 36600 Grand River, Farmington Hills, on north side of Grand River between Halstead and Drake roads near I-275, (810) 474-8417.

Hours: Monday through Friday open at 11 a.m. and Saturdays at 4 p.m. Close 4 p.m. Monday, 9 p.m. Tuesday, 10 p.m. Wednesday/Thursday, and 2 a.m. Friday/Saturday.

Menu/Entertainment: continental cuisine with daily specials, and appealing to jazz enthusiasts, local artists perform Friday and Saturday evenings.

Cost: Lunch $5-15, dinner $8-30.

Reservations: yes

Credit cards: all majors accepted.

Chef Paul Schmidt directs the kitchen. His experience at Dearborn's Ritz-Carlton, the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island and most recently, the Dearborn Club has prepared him for diner expectations at a dinner club, but one with an accent on casual.

Lunch and dinner menus are offered. At lunch, both hot and cold appetizers are available. While billed as appetizers, your midday food cravings may be fulfilled with the likes of a lobster salad with lobster meat, mixed greens and balsamic vinaigrette $9 or tri-flavored grilled polenta with wild mushroom jus $8 and there's mushroom caps filled with crabmeat and topped with Béarnaise sauce $9. Other salads include house mixed greens with tomatoes and cucumbers $3 and chicken Caesar $8. There are burgers (Black Jack $6 or turkey $8), grilled steak sandwich $9.50 and a traditional club sandwich $7.

Lunch entrees include a number of pasta dishes, pork, veal, beef and seafood ranging $7-16, all served with house salad, bread basket, vegetable and potato, pasta or rice.

At dinner, one finds some of the more popular cold and hot appetizers that appear on the lunch menu, but prices are the same, not taking the frequent $2 or $3 dinner hike. Others are added. Grilled pork medallions served with rice, baby carrots and whole grain mustard cream sauce is $10 at lunch and $10.80 at dinner. It seems that this dish is fast becoming a house specialty.

Proportioned items at dinner include Prime Rib with Yorkshire Pudding. The 10-oz is $18, 16-oz is $20. The interesting spin, Earth & Turf – grilled filet mignon with wild mushroom medley, is 8-oz $16 and 12-oz $20. New York Strip is $15 for the 8-oz and $19 for 12-oz portion.

A principally California wine list has both by-the-glass and bottle selections. Puente has taken some of the challenge out of selecting the "right" wine by recommending white wines particularly suited to chicken, seafood and other light dishes. Reds are tagged "Ideal with steaks and other hearty dishes." Full bar service is also available.

Once warm weather sets in, an outdoor patio seating 34 will open for tea brunches from noon to 2 p.m. plus full menu service.

FAIR HOUSING: There's room for everyone in the pod

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

"We see we're having some level of success in some specific areas. We see there's still a long way to go."

That's how Clifford R. Schrupp, director of the Fair Housing Center of Metropolitan Detroit, analyzes the state of open housing here as the organization he heads enters its 20th year of service.

April also is Fair Housing Awareness Month nationally.

"By and large, we have made the denial of reality of housing discrimination much more difficult to do," Schrupp said. "That's a significant step. We don't solve problems if we don't think we have any.

"The second thing we've done is raise the level of remedies for people," he said. "We've had numerous six-figure awards and settlements. It send a message that fair housing will be enforced."

The Fair Housing Center averages about 250 complaints per year, Schrupp said. Upwards of 80 percent deal with rental situations, 10-12 percent sales properties, five percent mortgage financing and a miniscule with cooperatives or condominiums.

Some are resolved, others fall by the wayside due to lack of evidence. Lawsuits, filed about 15 percent of the time, are overwhelmingly won by the complainant, Schrupp said.

"When we look at the type of complaints, 65 percent involve allegations of racial discrimination," Schrupp said. "The next highest is familial status, 10-15 percent, anybody with kids. We still see management companies that refuse to rent to families with children or put families with children in one segment of the development."

Federal and state laws say renters and sellers can't discriminate on the basis of race, religion, sex, national origin, handicap status, family status, marital status or age.

Melvin Kaftan, owner of about 2,200 apartment units and president of the Apartment Association of Michigan, doesn't see major problems with discrimination among landlords.

"I would assume most are mom-and-pop people who don't know the law," Kaftan said. "I don't want to say there hasn't been a few big lawsuits of bigger owners who had problems. I know an awful lot of people who don't have a problem."

Some novice building owners who get into the business as an investment don't have the expertise themselves or don't train their managers to deal with the legalities of property management, Kaftan said.

Others owners would rather argue about what their rights should be rather than what the law requires.

"There's a lot of education to it," Kaftan said. "Most people that know go into compliance."

"I think the answer is to take the program you do during fair housing month and have it all year long," said James M. Newton, a vice president at Standard Federal Bank and president of the North Oakland County Board of Realtors.

"And education, education, education until the generation that perpetuates this kind of behavior is gone," Newton said.

"I think most agents know what to do," said Larry Martin, president of the Western Wayne Oakland County Association of Realtors. "It's part of their license training, part of their orientation training.

Quite often, a seller will say, 'I don't want to sell to a particular protected class,'" Martin said. "It then becomes my duty to say, 'If you're serious, I have to contact the FBI.' It's my job to tell them, 'You can't do that. It's against the law.'

"The dumbest thing in the world is to earn a commission, then be involved in a lawsuit," said Martin, training director for Remerica of Michigan.

Robert J. Corbett, an associate broker with Century 21 Campbell in Madison Heights, is president of the Birmingham Bloomfield Rochester South Oakland Association of Realtors.

"I have no doubt it (discrimination) continues to exist," Corbett said. "I think it's much more subtle than it used to be. You don't get doors slammed in your face. It's, 'We want a bigger down payment, we want this, we want that.'

"In reality, in normal conversations after explaining responsibilities under the law, I haven't had a problem," he said.

Corbett urges zero tolerance for discrimination. Report problems immediately to your firm's lawyer or your board's lawyer for advice and direction, he urges Realtors.

All owners and renters should realize they have a stake in fair housing because most folks relocate several times during their lives.

"Certainly, people need to avoid fence-building kinds of things, statements like, 'Let them live over there,'" Schrupp said. "Those kinds of statements occur in many social settings. You can either challenge them or ignore them. I support challenging."

"We need to be alert about spotting potential troublemakers," Schrupp said of people already living in a neighborhood. "You start working on those folks long before people move in so you don't have incidents."

"Rather than worry – quote – that the neighborhood is changing ... welcome neighbors," he added.

"People who live in apartment complexes where they have discrimination can certainly let us know," Schrupp said. "They can certainly be witnesses. If you know peoples' rights are being violated, let them know.

"Our concern is that people are being treated equally," Schrupp said. "It would also be nice if it were good treatment. This is a big step for some people – just getting to equal treatment.

Refinancing a mortgage

MORTGAGE SHOPPING

DAVID C. MULLY

Three reasons motivate people to refinance or obtain a new mortgage to replace an existing one. One reason is obvious: to save money because interest rates have dropped. Refinancing also can be a way of raising capital for some other purpose. A final reason is to get out of one type of loan and into another. The following discussion should help you decide upon the best option in each case.

Spending money to save money

If your current loan has a higher rate of interest than comparable loans now available, you may save money by refinancing. Because refinancing almost always costs money, whether you can save enough to justify the cost is a bit of a gamble. Your odds of saving money by refinancing go up a lot when the new loan is available with a rate of at least one percentage point less than your current loan and you're planning to keep the property for at least five years. If you can recover the costs of the refinancing within a few years, go for it. If it takes longer, refinancing may still make sense if you anticipate keeping the property and mortgage that long.

Beware of mortgage lenders or brokers who brag about how soon your refinance will pay for itself; they usually oversimplify their calculations. For example, if the refinance costs you $2,000 to complete (accounting for appraisals, loan fees and points, title insurance and so on) and reduces your monthly payment by $100, the lender or broker typically says that it takes 20 months for you to save back the refinance costs.

This isn't accurate, however, because you lose some tax write-offs if your mortgage interest rate and payment are reduced. You can't simply look at the reduced amount of your monthly payment (mortgage lenders like to look at it however, because it makes refinancing more attractive.) And your new mortgage will be reset to a different term than the number of years remaining on your old one. If you're refinancing a 30-year loan you've been paying on for five years with a new 30-year loan, you'll add five years to your house payments.

If you want a better estimate of your likely cost savings but don't want to spend hours crunching numbers, take your tax rate – for example, 28 percent – and reduce your monthly payment savings on the refinance by this amount. Continuing with the example in the preceding paragraph, if your monthly payment drops by $100, you're really only saving around $72 a month after factoring in the lost tax benefit. So it takes 28 months ($2,000 divided by $72) – not 20 – to recoup the finance costs.

Note that not all refinances cost tones of money. So-called no-cost refinances or no-point loans minimize your out-of-pocket expenses but may not be your best long-term options. Such loans usually come with higher interest rates.

Using money for another purpose

Refinancing to pull out cash from your home for some other purpose can make good financial sense because, under most circumstances, mortgage interest is tax-deductible.

Easements: all should pay

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q. Do the persons who have the benefit of the use of an easement have any obligation to pay for it?

A. Generally, the law provides that one who benefits from the use of an easement has an obligation to maintain it, and, when the benefits are shared with others, that obligation can well be shared with the others unless there is an agreement to the contrary. Many times, homeowners have access to property such as where there is a joint use of a common road where easements are involved but there is no underlying association or covenant in a subdivision declaration that provides for the maintenance and/or cost of maintenance of the road.

This is, of course, a problem that can be resolved by the land owners getting together and recognizing that it would be in the best interests of all of them to work towards either forming a community association or otherwise agreeing in writing to a shared responsibility for the maintenance of the road and recording it against their property so that future land owners who succeed in interest to these properties are bound.

A good real estate lawyer should be able to assist you with this type of agreement.

Q. I visited the marina district of Puerto Vallarta and am interested in a condominium. Do you have any idea of what it is going to cost to buy one and can it be rented out?

A. Obviously, the prices of condominiums vary depending upon the location and size. However, a recent review of the area indicates that there is one condominium complex where a developer sold a block of units to an investor who is now attempting to sell them to the public, presumable at reduced rates. For example, a condominium unit containing two bedrooms, partially finished, containing 1,400 square feet will sell for $81,000 U.S.

Finish basement for more space

Ever wish your home had more space, but think the cost of an addition will overwhelm you?

Well, you may be pleasantly surprised. There's a practical, affordable solution: Finish your basement.

According to a survey of remodeling contractors, finishing a basement is one of the most inexpensive ways to add more space to a home. It is far less costly than an addition and a proven way to increase the value of your home.

Also, because basement space is flexible space, you can easily customize it to meet your family's needs. Depending on the desired use, a basement can be converted into a variety of livable spaces, including a family room, home office, extra bedroom, children's room or fitness room. And, as your needs change, it's easy to modify basement space.

Regardless of whether you transform the unfinished space yourself, hire a contractor to do it or decide to do a little of each, the design, planning and finishing process lets you express your creativity while accomplishing your goal of affordably increasing living space.

When planning the space, make sure there's enough headroom. Interior designers at Armstrong World Industries say most codes require a minimum of 7-1/2 feet from floor to ceiling.

When planning the ceiling, the designers say suspended or "drop" ceilings are usually the best choice because they provide the solutions homeowners are looking for:

- They attractively cover exposed floor joists while permitting access to pipes, ductwork and wiring.
- They eliminate the messy, labor-intensive process of sanding and painting drywall.
- They provide an effective sound barrier between the basement and upper floors. They come in a variety of designs for any decor or budget.
- They can be installed quickly and easily.

Additional information on ceilings for use in finished basements is available from Armstrong. Write to Consumer Response Center, Armstrong World Industries, P.O. Box 3210, Lancaster, PA 17604, or call 1-800-233-3823 and ask for a copy of "Residential Ceilings."

against a home is to pay off other higher-interest consumer debt – such as on credit cards or on an auto loan. The interest on consumer debt is not tax-deductible. Plus, you can usually borrow at a much lower interest rate than what consumer loans charge you.

If you're starting a business, consider borrowing against your home to pay for the launch of your business. You can usually do so at a lower cost than on a business loan.

The most critical question is whether a lender is willing to lend you more money against the equity in your home (the difference between the market value of your house and how much you owe on it). Call me for assistance in estimating this amount.

Changing loans

You might want to refinance even though you're not forced to raise cast for other needs. Perhaps you're not comfortable with your current loan – holders of adjustable -rate mortgages often face this problem. You may find that a fluctuating mortgage payment makes you a nervous wreck, in addition to wreaking havoc on your budget. The certainty of a fixed-rate mortgage may be your salvation.

Sometimes jumping from one adjustable loan to another makes sense. Suppose you can lower the maximum lifetime interest rate cap and the refinance won't cost too much. Your new loan should have a lower initial interest rate than the one you're paying on your current loan. Even if you won't save megabucks, the peace of mind of a lower ceiling can make it worth your while. Another benefit of refinancing is to allow you to get rid of private mortgage insurance if you have 20-percent equity in your home.

Editor's note: Dave Mully will be appearing at the Home Improvement Show at the Novi Expo Center to discuss Mortgage Shopping and how to save money on mortgages. Dave's sessions are today (April 3) at 4 p.m., Saturday, April 5 at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. and Sunday, April 6 at 5 p.m. Discount family tickets are available at Farmer Jack.

Jamey Kramer's REAL ESTATE FACTS
...The "Original" Real Estate Column

What's Included?

When buying a home, what is included in the purchase price? Does the deed describe all of the property being conveyed? Are the drapes and refrigerator part of the transaction?

Details of a home purchase are spelled out in the written purchase contract, signed by both buyers and sellers. This agreement in writing includes the price and terms, and details of any personal property to be included in the transaction. A legal description of the property being conveyed is also cited, and it includes any improvements such as a home.

Since real estate is considered to be the land, and any permanent improvements on the land, personal property is considered to be 'everything else'. A general rule is that everything permanently attached, i.e. drapery rods, TV antenna, built-in range is considered part of the real estate. Items not attached such as drapes, refrigerator, picnic table, etc. are personal property.

When in doubt, always include a specific reference to items of personal property in the purchase contract. Specify whether the items are included at no additional cost and, if not, include the price.

Trees, shrubs, and bushes, because they are planted, are considered part of the real estate. A free standing range, washer, and dryer, are considered personal property.

When buying a home, ask the real estate agent what, if any, personal property is being included. You are free to negotiate for any additional items, however the sellers are not obligated to include them. The best assurance for all parties is to include all items agreed upon in the written purchase contract.

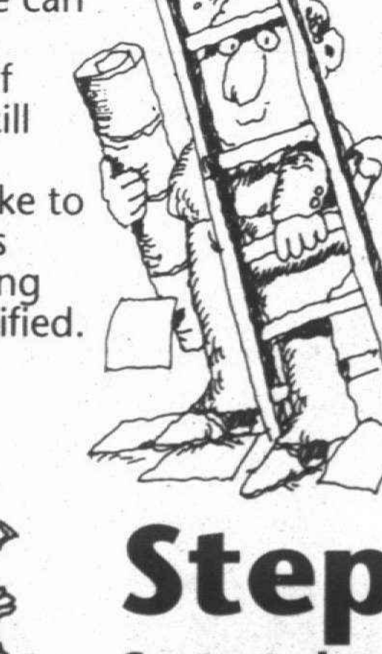
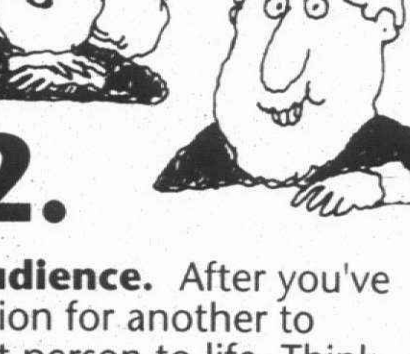
Step 1.

Sell a solution! Your old rattle trap is a teen's dream machine. That old set of golf clubs is sure to be a big hit with a beginner. Here's the point: Your former treasure can bring another pleasure. And if you've got a skill to market or service you'd like to provide–there's someone looking for you in classified.





Step 2.

Aim for an audience. After you've selected a solution for another to seize, bring that person to life. Think about your product or service and its original value to you, then detail its features and benefits to another individual. When you put those benefits into words, other like you will find value too. And that's of value to you!

Step 3.

Contact classified. Give us a call. You'll cash in on the speed and effectiveness of the dynamic classified marketplace. Each day, highly motivated readers are seeking services and solutions for a variety of needs. Turn to the classified pages, and you'll turn your item to be sold into money! It's as easy as 1-2-3!

BUY IT. SELL IT. FIND IT. CLASSIFIED

AT UNION MOTOR COMPANY, WE SELL VEHICLES THAT COST LESS.

WE DON'T SELL VEHICLES THAT COST JOBS.

April 4th and 5th mark the Grand Opening of a dealership dedicated to the working people of Southeastern Michigan.

Union Motor Company will sell only previously-owned, American-made cars, trucks, and boats. We will also carry a large selection of new and previously-owned Harleys and Boss Hosses.

We will sell these high-quality vehicles and boats at great low prices—and offer even lower prices to all union members and their families.

Many of our all-American cars have warranties, some still factory fresh. And you can purchase a warranty for any of our cars.

At Union Motor Company, we're union from our salespeople to our service people. And proud of it.

Join us Friday and Saturday, April 4th and 5th, for our Grand Opening Celebration. Along with entertainment, hot dogs, pop and balloons, you'll find great Grand Opening prices on great American-made vehicles.

You deserve a low price. After all, you probably had a hand in making them.

Join us for the fun:

- ★ Open Friday 9-7, Saturday 9-5
- ★ Kids' entertainment Friday 4-6pm
- ★ Free hot dogs, pop & balloons
- ★ WYCD Young Country remote broadcast Saturday noon-2pm
- ★ 25 new & previously-owned Harleys
- ★ On-the-spot financing
- ★ Warranties on many cars
- ★ Classic cars on display

HOME IMPROVEMENT SHOW
NOVI EXPO CENTER
I-96 and Novi Road
April 3-6, 1997

The first Home Improvement Show opens Thursday, April 3, and continues through Sunday, April 6, at the Novi Expo Center.

"There is such a demand for this type of show that we added another one to our roster," said Scott Jacobson, president of the Building Industry Association and of S.R. Jacobson Development Corporation in Bingham Farms.

"The median American home is 29 years old and much smaller than homes built today. Remodeling, especially to enlarge a home, is especially popular now. The show will inspire homeowners with remodeling ideas and much more."

For a special highlight of the show, Don Aslett, the undisputed King of Clean, will show how to make housework faster and more fun.

Additional show features include BIA's Remodelors Council presenting "ABCs of Remodeling," covering how to plan your remodeling project, designing your remodeling project, selecting a remodeling contractor, contract, specifications and warranties, building and trade permits and inspections, zoning regulations and financing your remodeling.

Among the other attractions are the Parade of Homes, which features a pictorial display of new homes and a free plan book sponsored by BIA, Standard Federal Bank and The Detroit News and Free Press Classifieds.

Exhibitors will help you start to plan and plant those spring landscapes. Anglin Supply of Novi brings an array of trees and plants and garden art to satisfy those green thumbs. Add a touch of elegance to any garden with handmade copper trellis and other unusual copper items from M.C. Copper Designs of Sterling Heights.

These are just a few of the more than 100 exhibitors who will show their most interesting and up-to-date products and services for kitchens, baths, doors, windows, remodeling, interior design, furniture, decorative accessories, electronics, heating, cooling and appliances.

Show visitors can pick up free magnets, yardsticks, pens, pencils, brochures and product samples at most exhibits.

Expert demonstrations on decorating, home repair and remodeling will be given throughout the show, including relief and impressioned tiles at the Stewart Specialty Tiles of Troy exhibit.

The Novi Expo Center is at I-96 and Novi Road. Hours are 2-10 p.m. Thursday-Friday, 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Sunday.

Admission is $4 for adults, $3 for children ages 6-12 and seniors, and free for children under 6. Family tickets for two adults and accompanying children are available at Farmer Jack for $9. Parking is available at the expo center for a fee. For more information, call (810) 737-4478.

The non-profit BIA of Southeastern Michigan is sponsoring the show. BIA also sponsors the International Builders Home, Flower and Furniture Show at Cobo Conference-Exhibition Center and the Spring Home & Garden Show and the Fall Remodeling Show at Novi Expo Center.

Cleaning expert adds polish to show

The show takes place Thursday-Sunday, April 3-6, at the Novi Expo Center. Call (810) 737-4478 for information.

Aslett frequently appears on shows like "LIVE – Regis & Kathie Lee," CNN, "Oprah," ABC's "Home" and The Discovery Channel's "Home Matters." He is the best-selling author of 20 books on organization, decluttering and cleaning and is business spokesperson for some of the nation's leading companies including Rubbermaid and Eureka.

Aslett has appeared in magazines such as People, Better Homes & Gardens, Woman's Day and Family Circle.

He was named Business Leader of the Year for his successful business, Don Aslett's Cleaning Center, which is the retail/mail order store for his books and products. The King of Clean recently expanded his cleaning consulting to helping people declutter their offices since that's where many people spend most of their waking hours.

He is considered a media authority on everything from environmentally aware cleaning to the battle of who does the housework; from dejunking our lives to how to make it in business – and all with a spin of humor.

Throughout the country, Aslett has shown audiences how to have a lot more time for fun by teaching how the professionals clean 75 percent faster, better and cheaper. He has demonstrated how to cut housework up to 30 percent (in cost and in time) through building and design. Parents have even learned how to enlist their untidy offspring to help clean house while learning responsibility and earning some money.

At the Home Improvement Show, Aslett will give several sparkling clean seminars that will make cleaning faster and more fun. Show times are 3 p.m., 5 p.m. and 7 p.m. Thursday-Friday; 1 p.m., 3 p.m., 5 p.m. and 7 p.m. Saturday; and noon, 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. Sunday.

The Novi Expo Center is at I-96 and Novi Road. Hours are 2-10 p.m. Thursday-Friday, 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $4 for adults, $3 for children age 6-12 and seniors, and free for children under 6. Family tickets for two adults and accompanying children are available at Farmer Jack for $9. Parking is available at the expo center for a fee.

This 'Home Improvement' helps you uplift your surroundings

The first Home Improvement Show has nothing to do with the television show of the same name except that it is about the betterment of homes. That's what homeowners will discover when it takes place at the Novi Expo Center, I-96 and Novi Road, Thursday-Sunday, April 3-6.

"The amount of money Americans will spend on home remodeling is close to the amount spent on new home construction," said Scott Jacobson, president of the Building Industry Association and of S.R. Jacobson Development Corporation in Bingham Farms.

"One reason for this is that homeowners don't want the trouble and expense of a full-scale relocation when for a lot less money, they can custom tailor their homes through remodeling. This show is the ideal place to get plenty of terrific ideas."

Features include "King of Clean" Don Aslett, who will present several sparkling clean seminars on making housework faster and more fun; BIA's Remodelers Council seminars on "ABCs of Remodeling"; demonstrations on decorating, home repair and remodeling; and a Treasure Chest contest with daily prizes.

More than 100 exhibitors will show their most interesting and up-to-date products and services for kitchens, baths, doors, windows, remodeling, interior design, furniture, decorative accessories, electronics, heating, cooling and appliances.
