Archery tourney to return in '98

■ Canton officials are still trying to gauge the economic impact of last week's National Archery Championships at Heritage Park. But the NAA and township have agreed to stage the event in Canton for at least one more year.

BY VALERIE OLANDER
STAFF WRITER

The Canton community will host the National Archery Association's U.S. National Target Championships in Heritage Park again next summer.

The success of last week's 113th annual event – which drew a record 530 competitors, including 130 from 17 different countries – helped Canton land the 1998 championships. Previously, the event was held in Oxford, Ohio, for a number of years before moving to Orlando, Fla., in 1996 and Canton this year.

The economic benefit of holding the tournament is estimated at $1 million for the metro Detroit area – an amount Canton officials hope to snare a larger share of next year.

Since the archery tournament was brought to Canton through the Detroit Convention and Visitors Bureau, lodging was recommended at hotels near Detroit Metro Airport and Laurel Park mall in Livonia.

Only two of Canton's hotels were on the list, said Carleigh Flaharty, Canton Chamber of Commerce executive director.

Crash kills driver, 3 others injured

BY VALERIE OLANDER

Canton police believe alcohol may have played a role in an early Sunday morning fatal accident on Michigan Avenue, east of Lotz Road.

Willie Brent, 30, of Ypsilanti was killed when the 1987 Toyota Corolla he was driving was hit head-on by a 1992 Saturn heading the wrong way.

"The Saturn was driving eastbound in the westbound lane when it hit the other car head-on," said officer Lew Stevens.

Brent was pronounced dead at the scene. Three other victims were still hospitalized Tuesday afternoon for injuries sustained in the crash about 3 a.m. Sunday.

A passenger in Brent's Toyota, 30-year-old Terry Lawson of Ypsilanti, was taken to Oakwood Hospital Annapolis Center, where he was airlifted to the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor. Lawson was listed in fair condition, according to a hospital

Administrators named for Canton High, Central

BY RENEE SKOGLUND

■ PLYMOUTH-CANTON SCHOOLS

The Plymouth-Canton school board Tuesday approved new assistant principals for Plymouth Canton High School and Central Middle School.

Gary Fulks, a former assistant principal and athletic director at Williamston High School, located near Lansing, will become assistant principal at Plymouth Canton High School effective Aug. 18. He was selected from among 19 qualified responses, of which five were internal, according to district officials.

Fulks has a master's degree from Eastern Michigan University. He is in the process of completing a specialist program in educational leadership at EMU. He has taught mentally impaired, emotionally impaired and learning disabled students for many years.

In addition, Fulks has an extensive background as a basketball coach at several high schools, including Redford Union. He's been an athletic director since 1992.

Fulks was unable to attend Tuesday's board meeting.

Karen Green, a former counselor at Orchard Lake Middle School, will be assistant principal at Central Middle School. She has worked in the West Bloomfield School District since 1986.

"I've been nothing but smiles since I've gotten this position. I'm looking forward to working with Barb Church," said Green after she was introduced at the meeting.

Green has a master of education in counseling and a master of music in education, both degrees from Wayne State University. She has been a mentor for new teachers and has served on school improvement committees.

UPS walkout no package deal for local businesses

BY MATT JACHMAN AND VALERIE OLANDER
STAFF WRITERS

The Teamsters union strike against United Parcel Service entered its 10th day Wednesday, but it didn't take that long for local businesses to feel the pinch.

Mail Boxes ETC., on Ford Road east of Lilley, has been taking calls from customers wondering what happened to packages shipped UPS prior to the strike.

"We're not getting our supplies in either. We've been waiting for things like packaging tape and bubble wrap from our home office," said Nicole Short, manager at Mail Boxes ETC.

It is now using other carriers, mainly RPS, Roadway Packaging Services, which isn't offering any delivery guarantees due to the increased business brought about by the strike, said Short.

Janet Schultz of Canton Center Animal Hospital has had a two- to three-day delay in getting medical supplies shipped to her.

"It's been more of an inconvenience than anything else. We just have to watch our supplies closer and make sure we don't run out. Other clinics have been borrowing from each other," she said.

On Monday, Schultz was attempting to ship a medical test to Michigan State University to determine if one of the patients, a dog, had Lyme disease. The serum had to be kept on ice.

Although Schultz considered making the drive to Lansing herself, she decided to ship RPS through Mail Boxes ETC. rather than pay $75 for Airborne Express. It cost $39.89 to ship RPS.

"That's another problems, we charge our customers so much for doing a test and then we find out it's going to cost us a lot more to ship it out," she said.

Business is picking up at Mail Boxes ETC. after it nearly screeched to a halt last week, Short said.

"It's been slow. A lot people weren't shipping at all at first, but now they realize it's going to have to get there whether it's on a slow boat to China or on an airplane," she said.

Observer, WXYT to host Canton town meeting Sept. 4

Roads choked with traffic, classrooms filled with kids and neighborhoods working together with police to remain safe.

The hottest issues in Canton will hit the airwaves 10 a.m. Thursday, Sept. 4 when the Canton Observer teams up with WXYT radio to host a live, two-hour town meeting from Damon's restaurant.

The show will be hosted by WXYT's Jimmy Barrett and feature interviews with local community leaders.

The program is part of a joint venture between the radio station and The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers that will showcase people and issues in all 15 Observer & Eccentric communities.

"I think we're creating something a little unique here," said Doug Gondek, operations manager and program director at Southfield-based WXYT.

"It's a spotlight on the town. It's an opportunity to show one community to other communities," he said of the collaborative arrangement, entitled First Thursday Town Meeting with Jimmy Barrett.

Tedd Schneider, Canton Observer community editor, will serve as co-host for the Sept. 4 program.

Scheduled guests include Canton Supervisor Tom Yack; Michigan Rep. Deborah Whyman, R-Canton; Chuck Little, superintendent for Plymouth-Canton Community Schools; and John Santomauro, Canton public safety director.

The fast-paced format will create a forum for public debate on local issues and an opportunity for non-residents who tune in to learn more about the spotlighted cities, townships or vil-

Commission OKs condo project; neighbors happy

The Canton Township Board of Trustees will vote on final approval Aug. 26

A 58-unit "luxury-style" condominium complex is planned for the southwest corner of Morton Taylor and Joy Road – behind two acres of commercial development. A medical or professional office building is likely.

The entire 12 acres is part of a 20-year-old consent judgment from Wayne County Circuit Court which allows the property to be used for commercial purposes.

Residents of the Mayfair Village subdivision, located to the west, were pleased the majority of the vacant property would be used for residential instead of commercial. However, many were concerned the condos would be built too close to their neighborhood.

Mary Jo David said it would not only be in Mayfield Village residents' interest to build the condos farther away, but also the interests of the potential condo owners who would be overlooking 10 back yards with swimming pools and basketball courts.

S & S Builders proposed to build the condos with a 35-foot setback, while neighbors requested at least 40 feet. Typical building standards would be 60 feet.

Attorney Bryan Amann, representing S & S, said a 40-foot setback would make the condos too close together. The internal road would have to be made with a shorter width.

Plans call for a maximum of 58 condo units (29 buildings). The two-unit buildings would include an upstairs master bedroom, which required additional approval from the planning commission for higher elevation.

"We think second story elevation is going to add to add to the price of a nome," said Amann.

The condos will sell for from $185,000 to $200,000 for those with an upstairs master bedroom.

Amann said the developer also plans to make some improvements at the corner, which is a gateway into Canton Township. Currently, a utility house sits alongside the Welcome to Canton sign. Plans call for a kiosk with clock tower, Amann said.

Resident Dave Thomas of Mayfair Village said the property "is the last piece of the puzzle between Sheldon and Morton Taylor, that we wanted it to go all residential. It was 100 acres, now we're down to 2.2 acres."

The planning commission unanimously gave tentative approval to the project. The township board will vote on final approval Aug. 26.

The driver of the Saturn, a 21-year-old Ypsilanti woman, is also listed in fair condition at U-M's Burn Trauma Unit. The driver and her passenger, a 24-year-old Clinton Township woman, were transported to Annapolis Hospital by Canton Fire Rescue and then airlifted to U-M.

The passenger of the Saturn is also listed in fair condition, according to the hospital spokeswoman.

"We suspect the driver (of the Saturn) may have consumed alcohol prior to the accident because the car was going the wrong way," said Stevens.

A search warrant was obtained by the Wayne County prosecutor's office to take a blood test from the driver of the Saturn. Police are awaiting the results of the toxicology report from the Michigan State Police crime lab to determine if alcohol was a factor in the crash.

If the blood test reveals the driver of the Saturn had a blood alcohol level of .10 or more, she could be charged with drunken driving resulting in a death, a 15-year felony.

If alcohol didn't play a role in the fatal accident, the driver could be charged with negligent homicide, a two-year misdemeanor.

"We're very happy for her and sorry to see her go. She was an outstanding counselor, very much a student advocate, and she knew the parents well. She is an excellent communicator and excellent with technology," said John Hoye, principal at Orchard Lake Middle School.

"She came in as a music teacher, did an outstanding job there and moved into the counseling position. And now she's moving into administration."

There were 28 qualified responses to the Central Middle School posting, of which six were internal, district officials said. Nine applicants were interviewed.

"We're pleased that the committees did such an excellent job with their recommendations, and we're pleased to have both assistant principals starting with us," said Errol Goldman, assistant superintendent of employee relations and personnel.

The selection committees consisted of the principal, two teachers, two parents, and one support staff from each school.

Goldman said to date the district has 851 full-time equivalent teachers for the 1997-98 school year, an increase of 13.2 FTEs over last year. (Teachers must teach five classes to be considered a full-time equivalent.) "We're still six or seven FTEs below budget," he added.

Many of the new hires are replacements for teachers who have resigned, retired or are on extended leaves of absence, according to Goldman. He also said the district estimates class size to be 25.1 students for elementary grades, 28.9 students for middle school classes, and 29.3 students for the high schools.

Superintendent Chuck Little said the district may have gained 300 additional students; however, requests for record transfers are not complete.

"Next year, we're going to check into blocking off rooms at Canton hotels," said Flaharty.

Of the two hotels utilized by the convention bureau this year, only one reported booking all its rooms. Most of the 133 rooms at the Fairfield Inn by Marriott were booked by individuals believed to be attending the weeklong archery tournament, said Fairfield Inn manager Maria Wyatt. The NAA reserved some of the rooms through the convention bureau.

The Budgetel Inn of Canton had few vacancies at its 102-room hotel, according to manager Mary Cowager.

The chamber will be conducting a survey of restaurant and hotels this week to determine how much of an impact the tournament had on business.

Despite Max & Erma's close proximity to Heritage Park, manager Mary Pat Purcell told the Observer the restaurant only had a "slight" increase in sales.

Rose's owner Richard Costantino said he registered about a 10 percent increase in business. The restaurant is less than a mile from where the archery fields.

"We were steady all the way through. I heard some comments (from diners) that they were from out of town and heard about how great the food was here by others at the tournament," said Costantino.

He added, "It wasn't a tremendous response ... I think a lot of them were families looking for quicker things to eat by the hotels."

Bob Evans Restaurant on Ford Road, near I-275, reportedly was jam-packed throughout the week.

A hospitality desk sponsored by the chamber supplied menus of all Canton eateries, which seemed to help both the archers and restaurants alike, said Flaharty.

"My guess is a number of restaurants saw spikes in their business," said township Supervisor Tom Yack.

Retailers also reaped the benefits, though it would be hard to evaluate exactly how much, Yack said.

One township employee reported seeing a van of foreign delegates shopping at Target. The NAA also made a last-minute purchase of 250 clipboards from Office Max Saturday night after realizing they forgot to bring theirs.

"I think the economic impact on Canton is greater than what people realized," said Canton Treasurer Elaine Kirchgatter. "I also think there was some spin-off into Plymouth."

Yack said the township is in the midst of tallying how much it spent in overtime and time employees spent during work hours to help with the event.

However, he said the payback to the township is recorded not only in dollar figures, but also in the attention it brought to Canton from media coverage, such as ESPN, and from the positive influence the day camps and archery event had on the township's youth.

The response from the archery day camps has raised interest in forming a western Wayne County archery association, he said.

Although township officials and staff will spend the coming year attempting to improve on this year's event, Kirchgatter pointed out that the record number of competitors that attended Aug. 3-8 will not be the case next year.

Many of the foreign archers signed up for the 113th U.S. National Target Championships in Canton because it was a precursor to the XXXIX World Target Championships in Victoria, B.C., Canada Aug. 14-23.

The world championship is held every two years. In 1999, the event will be held in France.

Race drives home anti-drug message

BY DONNA MULCAHY
SPECIAL WRITER

Drivers were racing through the parking lot at the Kmart on Wayne Road in Westland last weekend and yes, the police got involved.

But it was all in good fun. The young drivers were just taking part in the Kmart Kids Race Against Drugs event, which was held at the store Saturday and Sunday.

"I thought it was exciting for the kids," said Rick Jamroz of Westland, who took his grandsons, 10-year-old Anthony, 8-year-old Justin, and 5-year-old Kyle Zarb, all of Livonia, to the free event.

"The youngest one was a little disappointed, because he was too young to race, but they gave him a free hat and shirt, just for showing up," Jamroz said.

The race was open to children ages 7 through 12. They got to ride souped-up looking lawn tractors around a 75-by-185-foot race track, which was designed to look like a professional speedway. The blades had been removed from the tractors for safety's sake and the maximum speed possible was 5 miles an hour.

Each driver was accompanied by an adult "safety rider," who sat on a separate seat on the back of the vehicle and controlled a kill switch to the engine. The drivers rode one at a time, against the clock, and were required to wear helmets and safety belts.

"They seem to be pretty safe about it, which makes me comfortable, because that was a concern of mine," Lynn Sayles of Westland said, as her children, Stephanie Fisher, 8, and Bobby Fisher, 7, waited in line for their turn to race.

Kmart Kids Race Against Drugs is a national program that's funded through corporate sponsorships. The racing tour will stop at more than 300 Kmart and Super Kmart locations this year.

The program, now in its second year, was developed by the Kmart Family Foundation, a non-profit organization aimed at preventing and fighting drug abuse.

The purpose of the program is to attract children with a fun and exciting event, and then to give them the message that it's important to be drug-free.

To help get that message across, the foundation enlists the help of the local Drug Abuse Resistance Education program in every city the race visits. The foundation donates $5 for every child who races at that location to the local DARE organization.

About 500 children participated in the Westland race, so the city's DARE program will receive about $2,500, Westland police Sgt. Dave Hooper said Monday.

DARE is a cooperative effort between police departments and school districts in some 10,000 cities nationwide. In the program, police officers visit schools and conduct DARE classes, which teach children the importance of, and skills for living, drug- and violence-free lives.

Representatives of Westland's DARE program and other Westland police officers helped Kmart volunteers oversee the race track, and handed out DARE badges and coloring books during the event.

Members of the Westland Police Department's Explorer Program served as safety riders. Explorers are volunteers ages 18 to 22 who are interested in a career in law enforcement. They help out at various community events.

The racers appeared to be getting the anti-drug message – sort of.

When asked by a reporter what they had learned that day, several said, "how to drive a tractor." Others just shrugged their shoulders.

But when asked if they had learned that it's important not to do drugs, they mentioned that they were aware it was an anti-drug event.

All entrants received a commemorative hat, T-shirt, bumper sticker and certificate.

They competed in three age groups: 7-8, 9-10, and 11-12. Their finish times were recorded and the winners in each age group will be notified by mail. They will advance to the regional race-off Aug. 23.

The regional winners will compete for three $10,000 scholarships at the National Championships in Orlando, Fla., in January.

lages. The guests will take on-air questions from callers as well as members of the "studio" audience.

Canton residents and members of the business community are welcome to participate. A complimentary lunch will be served following the broadcast.

Those who wish to be a part of the audience Sept. 4 should call Damon's, 207-7427, prior to the event.

The show is intended to give local residents a chance to get to know their civic leaders and local newspaper editor – not to mention pressing community issues.

"We're excited about teaming up with WXYT in an interactive project that focuses on local issues," said Susan Rosiek, managing editor of the Observer Newspapers.

Observer & Eccentric promotions director Stefee Kim is working with local cable companies to encourage that each town meeting receives television coverage. "This is community involvement taking a different format," said O&E marketing director Rick Ficorelli. "We're bringing issues of relevance to that community and giving members of that community a forum for discussion...and it gives us a chance to display our editorial excellence."

With such extensive media coverage, it's hoped that each featured community will acquire a bigger voice and greater presence in the metro area. "It's an opportunity for members of the community, really, to design their postcard for their own town," Gondek said of the concept, explaining that the forum would not only be informative but also entertaining.

Future programs will be broadcast live from Farmington (Oct. 2) and Birmingham (Nov. 6).

Information about upcoming town meetings will be broadcast on WXYT and published in your hometown Observer.

Systems Inc., who sells self-defense equipment to individuals and law-enforcement agencies, has been using Airborne Express as much as possible during the strike. He also uses Federal Express for overnight shipping.

Sweeney said he and his wife, who deals in Mary Kay Cosmetics, spend up to $200 a week on UPS shipping, most of that for Practical Defense Systems. "I've been extremely happy with their services," he said.

"Unless this is rectified soon, it's going to affect a lot of people's sales," Sweeney said.

UPS spokeswoman Kristi Wolfgang took a similar approach. "A lot of our customers are strongly impacted by the strike," Wolfgang said Friday.

That the Teamsters and UPS are talking – they started meeting with a federal mediator in Washington, D.C., last week – is reason for optimism, Wolfgang said.

"It's always a positive sign when we continue to meet and talk," she said. "I know UPS is committed to staying at the table and talking as long as they need to talk," she added later.

Major disputed issues in the four-month negotiations include pensions, health benefits, subcontracting, package weight limits and the number of part-timers UPS employs.

The Teamsters want the company to hire more full-time workers; UPS says its proposal will result in 11,000 full-time jobs over five years. But 10,000 of those jobs will come from normal employee turnover, a Teamsters spokesman said.

Friday's picket lines at the UPS Livonia distribution center on Schoolcraft Road had a picnic-like atmosphere, as Teamsters and some of their spouses and children snacked on hot dogs, pop and chips and listen to "classic rock" on a local radio station.

A member of the Independent Pilots Association, which is honoring the picket lines, stood by, talking to strikers. Passing truckers from other companies honked semi horns in support.

"Things are going good," said Jim Cianciolo, president of Teamsters Local 243, which represents about 1,200 UPS workers in Livonia. "The members are strong. Morale is high.

McCotter opposed to building new Detroit courthouse

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER

A western Wayne County commissioner says he's not in favor of a major plan to build a $110 million courthouse in downtown Detroit.

Commissioner George Cushingberry, D-Detroit, has introduced a proposal to build a new court facility to house a revamped court system, which was prompted by the state-mandated merger of Detroit Recorder's Court and Wayne County Circuit Court Oct. 1. Court officials also plan to create a new family court division.

Cushingberry's plan for a new courthouse allows for all the courts to be housed in a single building, instead of spread throughout downtown Detroit. While the idea may have merit, implementation may be a bit harder to come by.

Commissioner Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, who also serves Plymouth and Plymouth Township, said modern technology could save the county a lot of money without the expense of a new building.

"I do not support the idea of a new courthouse," McCotter told the Observer. "We have existing structures we can look at renovating. There is no need for more indebtedness."

"We have faxes, modems and E-mail which can tie the courts together," said McCotter. "George put out the idea to stimulate debate, and it certainly did that."

Cushingberry said the county could sell bonds to finance the project, with rent from the courts to pay off the bonds. He would like to see a new facility constructed by the year 2000.

"I'm not convinced we need a new building," said Commissioner Bruce Patterson, R-Canton, vice-chairman of the judiciary committee. "We have a lot of existing buildings which might house all the courts. If not, we can have geographic proximity even if we can't have one building."

"And, with video arraignments becoming more popular, the issue of a single building may not be a big one. However, I would be willing to at least give it some consideration."

Patterson, also notes that with all the current construction in the Detroit area – Metro Airport expansion, new baseball and football stadiums, and future casino construction – it might be hard to get competitive bids and find workers to construct a court.

High school registration set

Editor's note: The following school opening information was provided by Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

Plymouth-Canton Educational Park students, both Salem and Canton, should pick up schedules at Salem High School on days and times listed below.

Students entering P-CEP for the first time must pay a $25 book deposit fee (12th graders-$15).

Returning students must pay all fines or return books and materials before a schedule will be issued. Students must bring with them the completed, signed, three-part emergency information sheet. Students arriving without this signed form will be sent home to get the form and will not be admitted to the scheduled pick-up arena. Please press firmly when completing this form so that all three copies are legible.

All students will have their school ID picture taken at this time at no charge. Parking permits will be issued to seniors and juniors on a first come, first served basis, so it is recommended that seniors and juniors wishing to drive to school report on their assigned day, rather than a make-up day, to be assured a parking permit.

Schedule changes are now made only for the following reasons:

- Misplacement in class.
- Failure in a prerequisite class.
- Enrollment in the Co-op Training Program.
- An obvious scheduling error.

Students requiring a schedule change for one of the above reasons will be able to see a counselor on schedule pick-up day, between 8 a.m. and noon, to make corrections.

The P-CEP Student Handbook will be distributed to students at schedule pick-up.

Plymouth-Canton and Plymouth Salem High Schools are also inviting parents to follow their son/daughter's daily schedule on Thursday, Sept. 4, 1997, at the P-CEP Open House, from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Softball umpire says assault by pitcher racially motivated

An umpire at Canton Softball Center plans to press ethnic intimidation charges against a player, who apparently didn't like a call he made, then threw a ball at the umpire nearly missing this head about 2 p.m. Friday.

The pitcher shouted racial epithets and an obscenity at the umpire, a caucasian, 32-year-old Ferndale man. The pitcher was held back by his teammates when he allegedly tried to assault the ump.

The dispute apparently started when the ump called a ball. Apparently the pitcher thought his pitch was in the strike zone. The batter hit the next pitch, which the pitcher caught, turned and heaved the ball at the umpire.

The name calling came after the umpire called the game. Teammates had to restrain the pitcher from going after the ump, the report said.

COP CALLS

Break-ins

A thief snatched two purses from two different residences at Sherwood Mobile Home Park early Monday morning.

One of the victims woke up when she heard the plastic blinds moving on a bedroom window. When she looked up, she saw an arm reach in and grab her purse. The woman screamed, scaring off the prowler.

Police searched the area and found another purse belonging to a resident of the mobile home park, who didn't wake up during the theft. The police canine unit searched the area but came up empty-handed.

Stolen car

A 22-year-old woman reported her 1984 Mercury Lynx stolen from the Budgetel Inn on Ford Road Sunday morning. The woman told police that the culprit was a man she was having an affair with. According to the report, the woman woke up and discovered both the man and her car gone. The woman called the man's house and talked to the alleged culprit's wife, who told her the car was at the residence. The Mercury was later recovered, police said.

Larceny

Air bags, valued at $1,000, were stolen from a 1996 Ford Windstar van while it was parked in the lot of Target, 43670 Ford Road, sometime between 11:15 and 11:50 a.m. Friday. An additional $1,150 in damage was reported to the driver's side door lock that was punched by the thief and the dashboard, police said.

An archer competing at last week's event reported his 15 Easton carbon arrows stolen from the field area sometime between 6 a.m. and 2 p.m. Thursday. An unknown competitor told the archer he thought he saw some juveniles walking away with them.

Malicious destruction

Vandals knocked down a portion of a brick wallscape at a home on the 45000 block of Edgewood in the Canton Center and Warren area. The homeowner noticed the damage, estimated at $650, Wednesday morning about 7 a.m.

CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF CANTON

CHANGES ARE MADE IN DETERMINATIONS OF THE TOWNSHIP OF CANTON, WAYNE COUNTY, MICHIGAN, BASE (1% ANNUAL CHANCE) FLOOD ELEVATIONS UNDER THE NATIONAL FLOOD INSURANCE PROGRAM

On September 2, 1981, the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) identified Special Flood Hazard Areas in the Township of Canton, Michigan, through insurance of a Flood Insurance Rate Map.

The Associate Director for Mitigation, has determined that modification of the elevations of the flood having a one-percent chance of occurrence in any given year (base flood) for certain locations in the Township of Canton, is appropriate. The modified base flood elevations amend the FEMA Flood Insurance Rate Map for the community.

This modification to the effective Flood Insurance Rate Map reflects the construction of the Wildwood Springs Site Condominiums (including excavation for two detention basins and fill placement) along Fellows Creek and Truesdell Drain. The subject area is located from Lotz Road to Interstate Route 275. As a result of the modifications, there are increases and decreases in the base flood elevations, widening and narrowing of the 1% (100-year) and 0.2% (500-year) annual chance floodplains, and widening and narrowing of the floodway along Fellows Creek. In addition, there is narrowing of the 1% and 0.2% annual chance floodplains along Truesdell Drain. The revised base flood elevations for Fellows Creek are as follows:

Location	Base Flood Elevations (NGVD)* Effective	Revised
Approximately 230 feet upstream of Lotz Road	664	665
Approximately 100 feet upstream of Interstate 275	667	666

*Elevation in feet National Geodetic Vertical Datum

The changes are made pursuant to Section 206 of the Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973 (P.L. 93-234), and are in accordance with the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968, as amended. (Title XIII of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, P.L. 90-448) 42 U.S.C. 4001-4128, and 44 CFR Part 65.

Under the above-mentioned Acts of 1968 and 1973, the Associate Director for Mitigation, must develop criteria for floodplain management. In order for the community to participate in the National Flood Insurance Program, the community will be using the new base flood elevations to administer the floodplain management measures of the National Flood Insurance Program. These modified base flood elevations will also be used to calculate the appropriate flood insurance premium rates for new buildings and their contents.

Upon the second publication of notice of these changes in this paper, any person has 90 days in which he can request through the Chief Executive Officer of the community that the Associate Director for Mitigation reconsider the determination. Any request for reconsideration must be based on knowledge of changed conditions or new scientific or technical data. All interested parties are on notice that until the 90-day period elapses, the Associate Director's determination to modify the base flood elevations may itself be changed.

Any person having knowledge or wishing to comment on these changes should immediately notify:

County Web site provides road particulars

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER

COUNTY NEWS

Despite the fact many radio stations broadcast frequent road construction updates, do you often find yourself right in the middle of gridlock when the report is aired?

Well, no longer do you need to find road repair crews by accident.

Wayne County officials have just begun putting that same information on the Internet. That means you can become an informed driver by looking for construction problems anytime on the Web, before getting trapped.

"I put up-to-date details concerning roads projects, and other interesting information, on the Internet," said John Roach, public information officer for the department of public services. "When you consider how many people read the site, I think it's a cost-effective way to reach the public."

"If you traffic (promote) the site, you can get an extreme return on your investment," added Marybeth Atzinger, program manager of Bowne Internet Solutions in Birmingham, who put together Wayne County's Web site. "If done right, it's like word of mouth with a visual."

Atzinger's job is not only to make an interesting Web site, but to promote it.

"Anyone can launch a Web page, but the idea is to advertise the site and submit it to various search engines so people can find it," said Atzinger.

"John has done a good job with content," said Atzinger. "Our job is to make sure people look at it."

Atzinger says the latest figures show the site is getting between 10,000 and 20,000 hits, or visitors, a month. She considers that on the high side for a Web site.

Roach says there are six different areas you can click on to get information about the county's road system.

"There are a lot of ongoing and upcoming road projects motorists can view," said Roach. "I also put in a fun feature detailing the birth of a pothole."

Another area maps out the roads.

"You can look at a map of the primary road system and the services we provide," said Roach. "You'll find we're about more than just fixing roads. We have information on road signage, traffic signals, guard rail repair, and other facets of the department."

You can also look for current conditions of major roads on a color-coded map, and as well as visit a feature detailing the inner workings of Wayne County's four movable bridges.

"I believe the Web site will help reduce the frustrations of motorists," said Roach. "When we talk to people about road conditions, we hear their frustrations. The perception is we aren't doing much to improve road conditions. This way, we can disseminate information and make people aware of what we are doing. It's an open line of communication between Wayne County and the people we are serving."

Wayne County's home page consists of two areas. One is the newly created roads system, which has been on line about a week; and the other deals with economic development, details about the county and specific communities, which has been around for about a year and a half.

The Web site cost $3,500, which Atzinger says is a bargain. Many home pages can cost up to $5,000.

"We worked within the county's budget to get them started," said Atzinger. "We saw this as a real opportunity to become involved in the community."

Atzinger says the county pays $600 a year to keep the Web site updated frequently.

Roach encourages visitors to the Web site to E-mail comments and suggestions, which can be done at the click of a mouse.

Wayne County's Web site can be found at http://www.waynecounty.com.

Congressman pleased by new income tax law

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

"It's a good, strong half-loaf. We all won," said U.S. Rep. Joe Knollenberg, R-Bloomfield Township, of the new income tax law passed by Congress and signed by President Bill Clinton.

Knollenberg, a third-term lawmaker and still a Speaker Newt Gingrich loyalist, has dropped talk of running for governor now that Michelle Engler says her husband will seek a third term. And Knollenberg hasn't made up his mind yet about a 2000 GOP presidential candidate but is closely watching Ohio's U.S. Rep. John Kasich, chair of the budget committee.

The congressman, whose 11th Congressional District includes much of Oakland and northwestern Wayne counties, was interviewed in his Farmington Hills office at the end of the congressional session. Highlights:

Q. This tax law has been called the Accountant's Full Employment Act. Is that justified?

Knollenberg: Any time you have changes of the magnitude you have here – tax cuts, capital gains cuts, child tax credits, estate tax relief, educational credits, IRAs with more people striving to take advantage of these – that's going to greatly expand the involvement of filing. There's some truth it will increase some paperwork.

At the same time, it's going to benefit the American people. Anybody concerned about the paperwork ought to be thankful because they'll get one heckuva benefit – from 28 to 20 percent on capital gains; some folks earning less than $41,000 will see it cut from 28 to 10. It's certainly worth while to take the time to file.

Q. From a Republican point of view, what policy goals have you accomplished?

Knollenberg: It's the first tax cut in 16 years. We've balanced the budget, and that hasn't been done in 28 years; we've reduced the (annual) deficit to a point the president is even saying it's less than $40 billion. There's talk of bringing it to zero, even next year.

Pile that on top of the fact that we've already cut some 292 programs, some $53 billion, out of discretionary spending; that's one-third of the budget. The discretionary part will slow down to 0.5 percent growth a year.

The other thing is the Contract with America, pretty much inspired by Newt Gingrich, but we all contributed – 85 percent is now in force.

I went to Congress in 1993. We had no power. The president rolled out a tax increase, the largest in history. Four years later, the same president is willing to cut taxes, reduce the size of government, slow down the growth.

Q. On Gingrich: You were kind of close to Dick Armey, floor leader from Texas. Were you part of or close to the plot to unseat Gingrich?

Knollenberg: No on all counts. I've been a supporter of Newt right along. The dissidents in number were probably a hard core of five, expanding to 12 on a given day, so they were a distinct minority.

There probably were some faults in the leadership; they didn't communicate properly; it was a particular fault of the lieutenants, Armey included. . . They all pledged loyalty and fidelity to Newt in this three-hour conference you may have heard about. It was put behind us.

Q. There's an impression, right or wrong, Gingrich has done more to give younger guys and newer members – yourself, Pete Hoekstra and (former Rep.) Dick Chrysler – exposure and leadership than speakers in the past. Correct?

Knollenberg: I believe he has. I haven't made a study of previous speakers. But maybe to a fault, Newt has brought in more and more people to the leadership; giving them chairmanships of task forces. He's been very open and interested in expanding roles for people.

Trent Wisecup, Knollenberg's press aide: Putting you on Appropriations in your second term.

Knollenberg: Some of the folks he put into the leadership were the ones he had problems with, so I'm sure it's bittersweet.

Q. My impression of the Contract with America is not just that it was a program, but a lot of these things had never even been voted on.

Knollenberg: I believe (your memory is correct). He talked about congressional accountability (applying the laws of the nation to Congress and its staffs).

He himself can't serve more than four terms as speaker. Removing proxy voting. Reducing the size of committees by almost 25 percent.

Strange to me, these went through with overwhelming majorities. They could never get out of committee, before.

Q. Joe, you were elected in 1992. You had some thoughts on term limits then (he said he would observe the Michigan decision to limit U.S. representatives to three terms, but that was overturned in court). What are your thoughts on term limits now.

Knollenberg: In my brochure, I pledged to serve no more than six two-year terms, 12 years total. I still hold to that.

That vote (to amend the U.S. Constitution for congressional term limits) was held, but there wasn't a two-thirds vote. We couldn't guarantee its passage, but we did bring it up.

Wisecup: 87 percent Republicans and 17 percent Democrats voted yes.

Q. Republicans resisted the Democrats' "Motor Voter Act," in large part because it required so much registration effort in social services agencies. How has it worked out, in your view, in partisan impact?

Knollenberg: We heard from clerks all the time about the imposition. They are literally, they tell us, unable to refuse anybody at the last minute because the documentation they (registrant) must provide is minimal.

The cost is excessive, too, when the clerks try to verify land, who also serves Garden City and Inkster, says she wants more research.

"We first need to take a look at the cost of bonds, the cost to build, the cost to move, and what the county would do with current space it owns," said Beard.

The issue has been sent to Cushingberry's Ways and Means Committee for study.

Scholarship honors employee's memory

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER

Blackwell Ford in Plymouth has established a scholarship at Schoolcraft College in memory of longtime employee Peter W. Mitchell of Livonia.

Mitchell, a 35-year veteran of the automobile industry, joined Blackwell Ford in 1983 as general manager, overseeing sales, parts, service and the body shop.

"Pete was a very loyal employee," said owner John Blackwell. "He was a mentor, a friend, a trusted and knowledgeable professional. I learned a lot from him."

Mitchell grew up in Canada before coming to the United States and joining the U.S. Marine Corps. He came to the Detroit area in 1935 to help care for his ailing father.

He is survived by June, his wife of 38 years, a son, daughter and two grandchildren.

"He was a wonderful father," said his son, Doug, truck manager at Blackwell Ford. "He was very well-respected in the business and often received calls from other dealers asking questions. He was a wonderful person."

■ 'He was a mentor, a friend, a trusted and knowledgeable professional. I learned a lot from him.'

The scholarships are available to employees of Blackwell Ford and their families. Scholarships will be given to full- or part-time students in any curriculum, and will be awarded based on grade point average, career goals and financial need.

where a person lives. It's an unfunded mandate.

I'm still against the idea.

Q. You supported NAFTA (North American Free Trade Agreement) very vigorously. Are you happy or...

Knollenberg: Happy. We said at the beginning this would not be without some dislocations, but that had started years ago. Any time you can produce a product here and sell to Mexico without tariffs...

That's why Chile is on a fast track for consideration in NAFTA this fall.

I'll be supporting that. The Boniors out there and Gephardt (House minority leader) will fight.

Clinton's on this. We have a friend in Bill Clinton when it comes to trade. He's turning more and more Republican.

There's also the CBI, Caribbean Basin Initiative. I was on a subcommittee trip down there. The economic and foreign ministers very much want that. That was in the bill, but it was taken out. I don't know the story behind that.

Q. Do you share the concerns of those who say the stock market is overheated?

Knollenberg: When we took over in 1994, the stock market (Dow Jones Industrial Average) was 3,900. Now it's over 8,000. Unemployment is low, employment is high, interest rates are down 2 percent. Inflation is holding. There aren't those factors that induce worry.

The growth in the stock market is real; I don't think it's superficial.

Q. Somebody ran a poll of CEOs (corporate chief executives) on who was responsible for the strong economy – Reagan's policies, Bush's policies, Clinton, the Congress, the Federal Reserve Board.

Knollenberg: All of the above.

I can't tell you Bill Clinton had any original thought until the Republican Congress came into view, and then he realized he had to work with reality.

You have to give Alan Greenspan (FRB chair) some credit for keeping interest rates down. He was an appointee of Bush.

Q. Who is on your short list of presidential nominee prospects for 2000?

Knollenberg: I haven't made a decision. (Sen.) Fred Thompson (of Tennessee) could be attractive. You have the usual: Steve Forbes, Jack Kemp, Gov. George Bush of Texas; John Engler could emerge.

I'm forgetting John Kasich, and I shouldn't.

Q. Is he the sleeper in all this?

Knollenberg: John Kasich (is a remarkably talented fellow. He does err occasionally, but he's resilient, he bounces back. He's a gifted speaker, great recall, knows the budget, is folksy. And I think he's interested. If something happens in 1999, you could see him emerge very quickly.

John is not an ideologue. He goes after corporate welfare, sometime to a point where he overdoes it. He just got married. He's writing a book, which could be a prelude to something bigger. He's always looking a step ahead of you.

Maybe people are tired of Lamar Alexander, Kemp, John McCain.

Kemp will have a hard time getting the nomination.

County economy gets boost from advertising campaign

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER

Wayne County officials "Wish You Were Here," doing business in and around metro Detroit.

It's all part of a big-time advertising campaign enticing business to locate in one of the nation's largest counties.

"It's getting very competitive when it comes to economic development," said Tim Johnson, director of marketing and public relations in the county's office of jobs and economic development. "There are so many counties, states and countries looking to attract new business and create an identity for themselves."

Johnson says Wayne County has the assets to compete with other areas of the country — two airports, Metro and Willow Run, for cargo and international travel; excellent highway and rail networks; and international access via the Ambassador Bridge.

"We have all the tools business is looking for, now we just have to let the world know," stated Johnson.

That thought is echoed by Betty Jean Hebel, associate professor of marketing at Madonna University.

"It's an excellent idea to give Wayne County a chance to differentiate itself from other areas," said Hebel. "The positive changes in Detroit, such as the stadiums and casinos, will help. But you still have to get your name out there for people to notice."

How can the county afford an expensive ad campaign?

"I sent a letter to J. Walter Thompson advertising agency asking if they could develop a campaign for free," said Johnson. "I knew they help many organizations with free services, so I thought I'd give it a shot. We certainly don't have the budget to develop a campaign and then place it in various publications."

Well, it worked.

"We do a number of projects from our Detroit office which we consider public service," said Blaise Newman, vice president at J. Walter Thompson in Detroit. "Our president's philosophy is to put something back into the community when we can. Certainly, what's good for Wayne County is good for us."

"We've done work for other worthwhile organizations for free, like providing campaigns for the American Cancer Society and United Way of Southeastern Michigan."

Newman declined to say how much J. Walter Thompson would charge for such an effort, only noting the cost would have been "five figures."

"It took us seven weeks to complete the campaign," added Newman.

Johnson says the only cost to the county is the $50,000 budget to put the ad in several business and industry publications.

"I think it's a dynamite ad campaign," said Johnson. "If we get just one investor to come to the area because of the ad, it will more than pay for itself through jobs that will be created and an increased tax base."

"Thus far we've had a couple of responses, primarily Realtors looking for warehouse space and possible locations for business," commented Johnson.

The campaign began in June. It is expected to continue over the next two years.

Volunteers Paint the Town with their heartfelt efforts

By Tony Bruscato
Staff Writer

Thousands of volunteers converged throughout Wayne County last weekend to participate in Paint the Town, painting and sprucing up homes of those who were unable to do it themselves.

Among those participating in the effort were 60 employees from Wayne County, who gave up a Saturday to help those in need.

Assistant County Executive Dale Jurcisin of Livonia has been participating in Paint the Town for most of the organization's 10-year history. Jurcisin says he probably gets more out of it than those he helps.

"It's a feel-good sort of thing," said Jurcisin. "It's something that's in your blood, a feeling of accomplishment."

This year, Jurcisin and other county employees painted the town at two houses on Campbell Street in Ecorse. They helped an elderly woman fix up her home, and a young woman who had a stroke and couldn't do the work herself.

Jurcisin, wife Bonnie, along with their three sons, have all worked with the volunteer effort after getting involved with a friend.

"One year my friend, Dave Parr of Northville, was sponsoring a house and asked me to help," said Jurcisin. "Eight years later, my family is still involved and Dave is president of Paint the Town."

This year, Jurcisin was on his own as the rest of his family had other obligations. However, his sister, Benj, and her husband were visiting from San Francisco and he enlisted their services for the day.

"My sister is as very community-minded person and didn't mind at all," said Jurcisin. "I think she would get the award for the volunteer who traveled the farthest to help."

"Many times volunteers bring their kids to help, and it's interesting to see them grow year after year," said Jurcisin. "When they're small, they usually get more paint on themselves than the house. But as they get older, the kids get pretty good at painting."

Jurcisin is well-aware of his

Michigan legislators won't be idle in fall

By Tim Richard
Staff Writer

With the 1998 budget and road taxes out of the way, the Michigan Legislature will have a full plate of work when it returns to Lansing the fourth week of September.

Some jobs involve state regulation of churches, consumer protection and an effort to push term limits onto Congress.

'Religious freedom'

The Senate Judiciary Committee on Sept. 23 will receive Rep. Kirk Profit's House Bill 4376, designed to correct the effects of a U.S. Supreme Court decision.

Profit, D-Ypsilanti, said his bill would protect against state laws and local ordinances which would prohibit the constitutional right to free exercise of religion. It would prohibit laws and ordinances from restricting the exercise of religion unless the unit of government demonstrates a compelling interest.

The House overwhelmingly approved his bill July 10.

The Supreme Court on June 25 ruled in favor of the city of Boerne, Texas, in what was essentially a zoning case. The city had denied a building permit to expand St. Peter the Apostle Catholic Parish because it was in a neighborhood zoned for historic preservation.

The parish challenged the city's refusal of a permit, citing the federal Religious Freedom Restoration Act. The city responded by challenging the constitutionality of that act and won in federal court in San Antonio. That act was passed in 1990 as Congress responded to an Oregon group which argued it had a constitutional exemption from Oregon's narcotics laws.

The U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans reversed and was itself reversed by the Supreme Court.

The highest court ruled 6-3 that Congress exceeded its power in passing the Religious Freedom Restoration Act. The opinion by Justice Anthony Kennedy said struck down as a "considerable intrusion into the states' traditional prerogative and general authority to regulate for the health and welfare of their citizens."

Justice Kennedy said Congress' action was too "sweeping" and intrusive, "displacing laws and prohibiting actions of almost every description and regardless of subject matter." Kennedy found "no evidence of a widespread pattern of religious discrimination in this country."

Consumer bills

House Democrats will push a 27-bill package of consumer protection laws. Among co-sponsors are Reps. Eileen DeHart of Westland and Bob Brown of Dearborn Heights.

Three would crack down on telemarketing fraud. One requires that all companies soliciting business by phone give buyers a three-day option to cancel purchases. Others prohibit prerecorded automated dial solicitations and require phone solicitors to stop calling when the consumer terminates the call.

Mortgage insurers would be required to notify borrowers when they have reached a 20 percent equity in their property.

Other bills:

- Prohibit stores from requiring Social Security numbers or credit cards for check verification.
- Prohibits credit card companies form requiring clients to disclose their Social Security numbers.
- Extends the "auto lemon law" to leased vehicles.
- Requires the use of plain English in contracts.

Voluntary limit

Rep. Greg Kaza, R-Rochester Hills, is pushing a state constitutional amendment allowing congressional candidates to submit a pledge form to the Secretary of State that they will observe term limits.

The Kaza legislation would allow U.S. senators to limit themselves to two terms (of six years) and U.S. representatives to limit themselves to three terms (of two years).

The Secretary of State would be authorized to print on the ballot "signed term limits pledge" or "broke term limits pledge" next to the name of the candidate.

With little hope that both chambers of the Legislature will summon up the two-thirds majorities to place the amendment on the ballot, Kaza said he is working on a petition drive. "It's basically the same group that did it in 1992," he said.

Voters approved a constitutional amendment applying to Congress, the governor and administrative board, and the Legislature. But the courts struck down the section of the amendment applying to the U.S. Senate and House.

painting skills.

"The last few years we've enlisted some of the pro painters who work for the county to help," said Jurcisin. "That way it speeds up the process, and we do a better job."

However, in the end, it really comes down to assisting those who need help.

"When all is said and done, it's helping the people where you live, a commitment to your community," said Jurcisin.

Canton becoming sports mecca

By most measures, we'd say last week's National Archery Championships in Heritage Park were a resounding success.

Sure, there were a few glitches, typical for a first-time event jointly organized by two groups (Canton Township and the National Archery Association in Denver) some 1,200 miles apart. But those complaints pale when put up against the spectacle and excitement created by lines of 70-80 white-uniformed shooters simultaneously letting arrows fly.

More than 500 archers from around the world, including many who brought family members, friends and supporters, spent the better part of a week here. Local residents were heavily involved, not just as spectators, but as a key part of the volunteer corps that made the event possible.

The competition raised the local profile of archery as an Olympic sport and at the same time boosted Canton's image as a community where sports and recreation play an integral role.

The NAA and Canton have agreed to stage the tournament here for at least one more year and Canton officials have said that if it makes economic sense for both parties, they would like the township to become the permanent home for the annual event. If that happens, the archery tournament would join the Memorial Day weekend youth soccer tournament that draws families from across the Midwest and Ontario; and several softball tournaments as staples on Canton's calendar.

We like the idea of Canton as an area sports mecca, particularly one where huge, taxpayer-supported stadiums or other public subsidies aren't required. Attracting and promoting such events helps local businesses to remain viable and, at the same time, puts Canton on the map for those who live and work outside the community and state.

Wanted: Fund-raiser diversity

The 1997 Canton Chamber of Commerce Golf Classic tees off tomorrow from Fellows Creek and we wish nothing but long drives and short putts for participants. At the same time, though, we issue a challenge to the chamber, Canton civic and charitable groups:

Plan more "un-golf" fund-raisers for 1998.

Yes, golf is booming. And yes, people love to find an excuse to take a summertime day off work and go chase little white balls around perfectly-manicured fairways and greens. But the golf fund-raiser has – pardon the pun – run its course.

For those who doubt us, we'll tell you that more than once this summer desperate organizers have telephoned our newsroom begging for publicity. There aren't enough foursomes, it seems, to go around. And if you play the local civic-charity golf circuit lately you'll undoubtedly have the chance to build long-term relationships with your fellow duffers. It's easy when the same crew tends to show up outing after outing.

Seriously though, organizations are missing out on opportunities to tap into other sources of revenue and community interest by taking such a single-minded approach to fund-raising. Canton residents and business people are a well-rounded group. Other types of fund-raising events – benefit concerts, theme dinners or movie premieres, for example – could be successful and at the same time appeal to different segments of the community.

New economy values job skills

■ There is bipartisan agreement: A university degree isn't quite as important as we thought it was. Job training is more important than we expected.

"Take a look at Sunday's 'Employment' section of the paper ... We have so many good jobs, we can't fill them fast enough ... jobs our grandparents never imagined, involving computers, robots and lasers. Time magazine called these jobs 'gold collar' since they can pay as much as $30 to $40 an hour. Interestingly, most of these gold collar jobs don't require a four-year college degree. What they do require is extensive training, especially work-based education."

– Gov. John Engler, 1997 State of the State message.

"The real problem is that the unskilled U.S. workers who once had good factory jobs are inevitably being replaced, either by lower-wage foreign workers or by computers and robots. They need newer and better skills Stop trying to protect yesterday's jobs. Join us in preparing people for tomorrow' jobs ...

"The AFL-CIO is dying a quiet death and has been doing so for years."

– Robert Reich, former U.S. secretary of Labor, in "Locked in the Cabinet," Knopf 1997.

"More than 70 percent of the jobs in America will not require a college education by the year 2000."

– National Center on Education and the Economy, 1990.

There is bipartisan agreement: A university degree isn't quite as important as we thought it was. Job training is more important than we expected.

To the shock of many, Michigan recently was revealed to rank 38th among the 50 states in the proportion of students earning four-year baccalaureate degrees from universities.

The fear is ill-placed. What we need to be looking at is the quality of high school education and the quality and quantity of job preparation kids get before they start their careers.

After World War II, the federal government set up a "GI bill of rights" so that returning soldiers, sailors, marines and airmen could go to college. Those veterans also had high aspirations for their children: no wars; summer camp; the good life in the green suburbs; college; no need to fear another Depression; white-collar positions.

The federal government, states and private donors did a superb job of getting an ever-increasing proportion of high school graduates into college. It even happened in Michigan, where college wasn't quite so necessary because of the abundance of highly paid factory jobs.

Michigan fell behind in college funding in the 1970s and '80s as the welfare load ate up shrinking state revenues. Tuitions rose, barring many students and their families from the university market. Since the mid-1980s and throughout the 1990s, however, Govs. James Blanchard and Engler have restored much of the funding and put a drag on tuition hikes.

What crept up on us was the changing economy for those in the lower half of the labor market. Those highly paid factory jobs dissolved, as Reich said, when plants were moved to Mexico and Sri Lanka or replaced by robots and computers.

No longer can a young man of dubious academic skills swagger out of the classroom and into a factory job. No longer can a young woman marry at 18 and be secure for life; she must be prepared to work if there's a separation, divorce, loss of a husband's job, or if the couple wants that vacation home and travel.

Last week, many western Wayne County residents were shocked at the 1997 Michigan Annual Report issued by the governor's office. It showed dropout rates rising. It shocked many local school officials, too, who had spotted no such increase in dropouts.

This newspaper's experience tells us to trust local statistics over Lansing-generated statistics. Odds are the dropout numbers aren't nearly as bad as the governor's distillation suggests.

But let us keep the key point in mind: High school, community college and trade school educations are far more important to success in the global economy than in 1945.

Every parent, counselor and teacher needs to make sure young people understand the importance of education and job skills while they're still in high school, and not 10 years later when they find themselves at a minimum wage dead-end.

Gas tax hike unnecessary

Again many members of the state House of Representatives have failed to listen to the people of Michigan and have tried to shove a more than 25-percent gas tax increase on us. Even though we have repeatedly voiced our opposition against it. Thank goodness, we have people like Greg Kaza representing our district who had the guts to voice our opinion to the bill on the floor.

Again we have been fooled by politicians, who promised the sales tax increase would be the tax to end all taxes. All the time they are sitting there with a surplus in the general fund, they are asking for more and more money.

Again they have neglected to tell the Michigan taxpayer that road taxes are not strictly used for road repairs but are diverted to other programs for which they weren't intended. Of course, we know the roads are bad, but whose fault is it that the state feels not accountable for how they spent our money. State officials feel no responsibility to try to keep the roads up as best they can with the money they had. They feel no responsibility to divert money, from excess money in the general fund, to do repairs. Now the roads are a nightmare.

Whose fault is it? The taxpayers? We are the people who keep paying and paying and paying and getting nothing in return. We are the people who keep hearing promise after promise, after promise by politicians who forget them as soon as they are spoken. Does the phrase "No more taxes" ring a bell? These are the words said by former President Bush, President Clinton and Gov. John Engler (When he asked for a sales tax increase.) Does the word "former" give us any clues on what we should do in the next election?

This gas tax increase was voted "Yea" by 56 members of the house. Lets do our homework and find out who these people are and if they represent you, write or call them immediately and let them know how you feel about more taxes. After all we pay their salaries. Again, "former" comes to mind. We cannot continue to let these tax increases drive us all into personal bankruptcy. We cannot continue to have politicians who continually lie to us. If we stick together and we can clean up the state government. Maybe we can then concentrate on cleaning up the federal government.

Thanks to you, Mr. Kaza and the other 47 representatives who had the honesty and decency to vote against this bill and who honestly represent the voters in your district.

Smokers, beware

Isn't it ironic that one of the participants of Daman's golf outing held July 15 to raise funds for scholarships in the medical field was engaged in an activity to ensure that he will be needing their medical services? In the July 17 Observer, Mr. Bernie Sakakini is pictured enjoying "The first cigar of the golf outing." If Mr. Sakakini continues with this habit, he can look forward to a 4 to 10 times greater risk of dying from laryngeal, oral or esophageal cancers than his nonsmoking counterparts. He will also double his chance of suffering a stroke or heart attack. There is a false sense of safety held by those who smoke cigars as their smoke is rarely inhaled. Unfortunately, this does not prevent the cigar user and those around him or her from being exposed to dozens of chemicals including 23 poisons and 43 carcinogens in its smoke. Some of these include the same tar, nicotine and carbon monoxide in cigarette smoke, only in greater concentrations.

Needless to say, all hazards of tobacco use, whether it be cigarette smoking or the use of smokeless tobacco, add up. According to the National Cancer Institute's "Cancer Facts and Figures, 1997," tobacco use will cost the U.S. economy more than $100 billion in health care expenses and lost productivity due to disease and disability in smokers.

So, light up, Mr. Sakakini and friends. But you'd better keep golfing to raise money for your own health care costs.

POINTS OF VIEW

Future without smoking isn't just pipe dream

"Hey, Mom, what's a cigarette?" Mike asked as he bounded into the kitchen. Puzzled by his unusual query, Mike's mother asked, "What makes you ask about that?"

"Well, we were watching a movie in history class today and this guy had something hanging out of his mouth that seemed to be on fire and none of us could figure out what it was so we asked the teacher, but he didn't want to talk about it. He just said it was something people used to use a lot and then changed the subject. Tony said his great-grandma used to talk about them when he would visit her and he said they were called 'cigarettes.' "

Mike's mom took a deep breath, pondering how to discuss this issue with her 14-year-old. She knew it was something he might ask about someday, but she had hardly prepared herself for how to answer him.

"Mike, when Grandma and Grandpa were younger, cigarettes were still made and sold to people who wanted them."

"But Tony said they killed his great-grandma."

"That may be true. Cigarettes contributed to many deaths back in the 1990s. They were responsible for more deaths than AIDS, homicides, suicides, alcohol, drugs, fires, car accidents and plane crashes combined! I remember writing a report in my history class about smoking and tobacco products and that they were related to over 400,000 deaths each year up until the late 1990s."

"If they were so bad, why did people use them? Why didn't they just stop buying them?"

"It was a lot more complicated than that. There was a chemical in the cigarettes and other types of tobacco called nicotine. It was a drug that was very addicting and made it very hard to stop. Plus, there were a lot of politics involved. Tobacco made a lot of money for a lot of people so it wasn't as easy as it sounds today."

"But it hurt people. They were showing pictures in this book of Tony's with people on machines that breathed for them and people with all kinds of cancers. It was gross! Why wouldn't our teacher talk about it? I thought he was supposed to answer our questions about history, not ignore them."

"Some people are still very hurt by what was called the Tobacco Wars. Some people lost parents, husbands, wives, even children to the effects of tobacco and secondhand smoke. Maybe he was too upset to talk about it."

"What's 'secondhand smoke'? Is that where you use both hands?"

"Secondhand smoke was the smoke that non-smokers were exposed to when they were around a person who was smoking. We learned over time that even this involuntary or passive smoke was very dangerous," Mom said.

"How did all this stop? I mean, we never hear about it or see anything like cigarettes now," Mike asked.

"It took many years for people to learn how to avoid tobacco. People stopped blaming smokers and started helping them quit. Health care professionals discovered successful ways to help people stay away from tobacco. Laws were enacted so kids were not exposed to tobacco products, tobacco companies were not able to sell their products everywhere and pretty soon people got tired of spending their money and wasting their health on cigarettes."

"Mom, I am so glad we don't have to worry about all that anymore." "Me too, Mike. Me too."

A story in our future? We can only hope.

Every crowd has its share of bad apples, peaches too

Reader Arlene Victor wrote in response to my column castigating Mackinac Center for saying business always does things better than government:

"I'm always looking for cogent arguments in defense of government roles with the many (smug) entrepreneurs I know who believe anything government can do, they can do better. How do you reply to their somewhat justified claim that government employees are often inefficient, ineffective and unmotivated?"

My fishin' buddy, an insurance claims adjuster, and I explored this at length when they weren't biting one Saturday morning.

His work experience is that 85 percent of insurance claimants just want their losses restored; 10 percent will try to chisel a few extra bucks; and 5 percent are crooks.

I had already come up with identical numbers: 85 percent of people want to do an honest day's work, pay their share of taxes and raise their families in peace; 10 percent goof off and cut corners on their work and taxes; and 5 percent are evil and should be imprisoned, sterilized or disbarred.

These percentages hold, we agreed, whether the group is Catholic, Buddhist, Baptist, white, black, yellow, green with purple polka dots, in business, in trades, in professions, or in government. There always is an 85-10-5 breakdown.

No religious, ethnic or economic group has a monopoly on virtue. None is totally rotten.

Business and government are different.

First, businesses seek market niches. Private freight companies carve out small package markets over frequently used routes. They don't attempt to do what Congress, 200 years ago, decreed the post office should do: unify the nation politically by delivering a one-ounce letter for the same price to any corner of the continent.

Tim Richard

Government serves everyone. Public schools take anyone who can walk or be wheeled in the door. Private schools tend to skim the cream.

Second, government's powers – hence its flexibility – are limited by constitutions and laws. To offer a new product, such as a state park, it must go through two legislative chambers, an annual appropriations battle or even the voters.

Government can't make a snap decision the way a business executive can – and in a republic, we wouldn't want it to have that power. Nor can government raise its prices, in secret and overnight, as business does.

Government was decades ahead of business in lowering hiring bars on the bases of race and gender.

I get annoyed at liberal Democrats who protect the rights of ethnic groups, welfare recipients, sexual perverts and draft-dodgers but then castigate corporate managers. Such liberals are as bigoted as any Dixiecrat ever thought of being.

Ditto with the Mackinac Center, which believes with rock-headed firmness that government is always wrong and business always right.

The profit motive doesn't always motivate managers to treat customers right. I'll always remember the GM service department manager who practically laughed me out the door when I asked if he had touch-up paint for an eight-year-old Chevy. And every Kmart shopper has horror stories about unresponsive or invisible help.

Remember the old-time public librarians who always "sh-h-h'd" you, sneered and scowled? Nowadays, even without the profit motive, public librarians knock themselves out to be helpful.

The state Department of Natural Resources, under two governors, has made an effort to teach field staffers to be nicer to the public; Gov. John Engler holds, and insists his department heads hold, public office hours; and the U.S. Postal Service clerks are either mellowing or being trained in courtesy.

The most fouled-up service in government, to my knowledge, is the Michigan State Parks campground reservation system, which is run by a private contractor.

There are good business folks and bad ones. There are good public servants and bad ones. Stick with the 85-10-5 rule.

Tim Richard reports on the local implications of state and regional events.

Fieger grabs the spotlight

It makes me smile to think of Geoffrey Fieger running for governor.

Although he has been called many things, no one has thought to have labeled the West Bloomfield attorney, famous for his defense of Dr. Jack Kevorkian and assisted suicide, a politician.

At least not our modern-day version.

He is not a conciliator. He doesn't cozy up to those in power. He doesn't win friends even as he influences people.

In fact, Fieger does quite the opposite.

He makes personal attacks on folks in high places: the governor, the Legislature, county prosecutors, to name a few. He challenges court procedures and be-robed judges. He walks a legal tightrope.

Ethics charges brought by the state Attorney Grievance Commission against Fieger were dismissed by an Attorney Discipline Board panel late last year. They included calling Appeals Court Judge Clifford Taylor "amazingly stupid" and accusing Ionia County Prosecutor Raymond Voet of "covering up a murder."

In their ruling, the discipline panel said all of Fieger's alleged statements were either true or expressions of opinion that were protected by the First Amendment.

Fieger has always been a provocateur. Back in the pre-Kevorkian days, when he and attorney partner Michael Schwartz were active in local West Bloomfield politics, he was often muzzled by his own faction. Schwartz was the spokesman of choice (later elected to and then toppled from the township board), because Fieger was likely to offend.

But it's Fieger who's running for the Democratic nomination for governor. And he'll open his campaign Aug. 21, a Thursday, at Rochester Municipal Park. "It's just an informal picnic in the park," said Sigrid Grace with the Rochester-Area Democratic Club. "We invited all the candidates and we're just thrilled at the opportunity to meet some of them."

Fieger's also scheduled to meet in the next two months with Oakland County Democrats, Livingston County Democrats and the Farmington Hills Democratic Club.

"So far, the response has been very positive," Fieger's legal assistant Donna Werth said. "The only ones complaining are some of his clients, and that's only because they still want him as their attorney."

Judith Doner Berne

Not to worry. I predict he'll still be their attorney. Because even though Fieger studied acting in college, I don't think he's quite up to the part of governor of Michigan. In fact, he could well be running as a lark.

He likes the soapbox. He likes publicity. And it's certainly a way to further spotlight the assisted suicide issue, that has become a true passion.

Gov. Engler, even in the role of "Pothole John," is a formidable incumbent, though it's doubtful Fieger will go that far. Because on the Democratic side, he'll have to beat out the likes of fellow Oakland County resident Doug Ross.

Ross has serious political credentials, serving under former Michigan Gov. Jim Blanchard and in the Clinton Administration under former Labor Secretary Robert Reich. And he has a reputation for commitment and ideals.

Still, Fieger will certainly inject some spirit into a campaign that might not otherwise rouse Michigan voters.

When his opening statement in Kevorkian's fourth assisted suicide trial earlier this year resulted in a mistrial, Fieger shrugged off accusations that he deliberately incited the jury. "That's what I do for a living – I get ahold of them, and I win."

Sure enough, the prosecutor in that case, again the maligned Voet, announced he was dropping the charges against Kevorkian. "What would stop Geoffrey Fieger from again pulling another stunt of some sort to derail a fair trial?" he said.

I'd sure want Fieger as my attorney. I sure don't want him as my governor.

Wee bit batty for bat houses

I was sitting on the patio the other night, kind of late, about 10 p.m. It had rained earlier and I could smell the fragrance of the citronella plant that we bought to keep mosquitoes away. Just as I was plugging in the bug light, The Feminist comes out.

"We should get a bat house," she said.

"A what?"

"A bat house."

"What is a bat house"?

"A house for bats."

"And why would we want a bat house?" I asked.

"To attract bats." She sounded exasperated.

"But why would we want to attract bats?"

"They eat mosquitoes."

"They get rabies."

"No more so than any other animal," she said. "That's just a myth."

"Uh-huh. Where did you hear about bat houses anyway?"

"I don't know. I read about them somewhere."

At work the next day, I picked up a copy of the Observer's At Home section. There, leading the "Marketplace" items on Page 3, was a picture of – what else? – a bat house. Available for only $29.98 at the four English Gardens locations.

"This must be where she saw it," I muttered. "Just wait till I get my hands on Mary Klemic." (She's the editor of that section.)

But I kept reading.

"Bats," according to the caption, are "no more prone to rabies than any other mammal" and one bat can eat "more than 3,000 mosquitoes in one night."

Great. Just what I want in my backyard. Flying carnivores. Rodents with wings. Little baby Draculas. Maybe she'll forget about it.

A few days later we're at the local Sears Hardware store, looking for an electric lawn edger (her idea). I picked out a cheap one.

"Let's get a leaf blower," she said. "So you can clean up the mess after you mow the lawn."

"No," I insisted. "I'll look like a lawn Nazi. No blower."

A few minutes later, while I was loading the grass/leaf blower plus vacuum into the shopping cart, she disappeared. I found her in the bird house aisle.

"What are you doing?"

"Looking for bat houses."

Fortunately, they didn't have any. But I figured I'd better do some research.

"Do people actually buy these things?" I asked. "I mean, suburbanites?"

Well, yes, according to Skip Hickey, a master gardener, certified nurseryman and general practitioner at the English Gardens store in Dearborn Heights. This year, Hickey said, the Dearborn store sold seven Bat Houses for the going price of $29.98. The West Bloomfield store sold six.

The Dearborn store sold two versions of a higher priced model, the Bat Chalet, for $39.98. In West Bloomfield, six chalets were sold.

Does the chalet attract a higher class of bat? Hickey didn't know. But he did say that "A lot of people are trying to attract bats."

"Why?"

"Bats are very beneficial mammals," he said. "They eat many times their weight in mosquitoes. They are a kind of organic mosquito control."

"Yeah, well, what about my bug light?"

"Doesn't work," he said. "Mosquitoes are blind. They aren't attracted to the light."

"And my citronella plant?"

"That'll work," he said, "but it has to give off aroma. And to give off aroma it has to be constantly bruised. You have to keep brushing the plant to make it work."

"What about those candles?" I asked. I thought I had him.

"They work a little better than the plants," he said, "because they're constantly giving off aroma. But it isn't that much. It depends on how much candlepower you've got."

All right. So I'm convinced. Bats are

Good news meant for sharing

Say cheese: While Dawn and Doug Kinnell and sons D.J., 9, and Drew, 8 months, focused on dinner, 7-year-old Derek's attention was quickly turned from pizza to posing when the camera started clicking Monday evening. Derek has been diagnosed with tuberous sclerosis complex.In hopes of developing a genetic test for the disease, the family has signed on for further testing after researchers last week announced they had identified a second gene that causes the disease.

Gene's discovery is cause for cheer

Dawn and Doug Kinnell are ready to roll up their sleeves and those of their three sons to give blood to help develop a genetic test to diagnosis the disease that has left one son with seizures and a mild form of autism.

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

An article in the Aug. 8 edition of the journal Science is enough to make Dawn Kinnell ecstatic. After 10 years of searching, researchers have identified the TSC1 gene of chromosome 9.

For some, it is another step toward unlocking the mysteries of the human body. For Kinnell and her husband, Doug, it is a huge step toward the diagnosis and treatment of the disease that has left their 7-year-old son with seizures and mild autism.

"We're very happy about the gene being found and we hope that a cure will be found one day," said Kinnell. "We've already asked to be one of the families in the genetic testing."

The TSC1 gene is one of two genes that have been identified that can cause tuberous sclerosis complex, an autosomal dominant gene disorder. First identified in the late 1800s, it affects every one in 5,500 births. It causes a variety of physical and neurological disorders, including seizures, mental retardation and tumors of the brain, kidneys, eyes, heart and other organs.

The Kinnells' son, Derek, is one of some 2 million people worldwide who have been diagnosed with TSC. Their 9-year-old, D.J., has not been affected and, with no known diagnostic genetic tests for TSC, they wait and wonder if 8-month-old Drew has the disease.

They also wonder if either of them have the TSC gene or if Derek's condition has been caused by a mutation. They worry more since Doug found a white spot on his skin. It may be a telltale sign of TSC.

Difficult diagnosis

Derek was 2 years old when signs of TSC began surfacing. He began having momentary seizures, and Kinnell immediately thought her son had a large brain tumor. But the EEG showed no abnormalities, and the pediatrician refused her request for a CT scan.

They went to a neurologist who determined he had epilepsy. Three months later, after more seizures, the doctor prescribed Tegretol, an anti-seizure medication. The medication seemed to help Derek who was more happy and less frustrated.

But the seizures returned around Christmas and a frustrated Kinnell went to the pediatrician for a referral to a new doctor. They saw him in February, and by then Derek was having 10-20 seizures a day.

"They're not the kind of seizures that most people are familiar with," Kinnell said. "He was never unconscious and there never was any shaking. The episodes were more facial; he'd have a glassy look in his eyes. They'd last around 30 seconds, and when he came out of them he would immediately go to sleep. They seemed to take all of his energy."

Kinnell pressed for an MRI, but the doctor wanted to get the seizures under control. He took Derek off the Tegretol and put him on a different seizure medication, Depakote, with devastating results.

Within two weeks' time, the toddler was no longer talking, he was "totally isolated and a very unhappy child." He also started showing signs of autism. He couldn't sit still, was still having "20-30-40 seizures a day and seemed to be getting worse."

Ten months after his initial seizure, an MRI was done at Children's Hospital of Michigan. Three days before Easter, the doctors called with a diagnosis. Derek had TSC. The white spots on his brain that had shown up during the MRI were tubers or lesions. They also were found in his heart and showed up as white patches on his skin.

"I had never heard of it until then," said Kinnell. "I stopped at the library to get a book and that was my first big mistake. It said a majority of TSC patients don't live past the age of 30. It was devastating."

But Kinnell kept educating herself. Even with the diagnosis, Derek's condition didn't improve. The Depakote wasn't helping, and he exhibited its side effects of hyperactivity, mood changes and behavioral problems.

"I was told they used Depakote in the psychiatric wards to calm people down, but it had the complete opposite effect on Derek," Kinnell said. "I pleaded with the doctor to do something and she asked, 'Would you rather have seizures or behavior problems?' I told her seizures because he was still having them."

The decision was to scale back the dosage of Depakote and give him another drug, Zarontin, to see if that would help. There were no major changes, so once again the Kinnells moved on, taking their son to a doctor at the University of Michigan.

Time for change

After telling him what Derek had and what had happened to him, he agreed to wean him off of Depakote. The toddler had been on so much of it, that he had become overmedicated and it took three months for it to work its way out of his system.

"The change was an overnight thing," Kinnell recalled. "When he went to bed, he was an unhappy child, but when he got up, we had our happy child back. It was the happiest time of our lives. Not only was he happy, he became seizure free for 2 1/2 years."

The family lived in Garden City at the time and Derek was enrolled in speech and language therapy through the Wayne-Westland Community Schools. He also attended a preschool class at Lathers Elementary School in Garden City. A form of special education, all of the students were speech delayed, but Derek even more so.

When the Kinnells moved to Livonia, Derek was speaking at the level of a 2-year-old. He has come a long way through the preschool program at McKinley Elementary, kindergarten at Garfield and some first grade at Buchanan. He knows the who, why and where and can do a lot, according to his mother.

"I've cried every day for him," Kinnell said. "He lost eight months of his life because of the medication."

Since finishing kindergarten, Derek's seizures have returned and he has developed behavioral problems. The goal is to get the seizures under control and the Kinnells have turned to the Michigan Institute of Neurological Disorders.

In September, Derek will have a video EEG done over a four-day period

Museum gets ready for Lincoln collection

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

The Plymouth Historical Museum needs to see at least 3.8 million more copper faces of Lincoln to acquire, preserve and display one of the most comprehensive collections dedicated to the former president.

So far, the museum has raised $112,000 of the required $150,000 for the Abraham Lincoln collection of Dr. Weldon Petz, a well-respected Lincoln scholar from Oakland County. Ford Motor Co. has been a major donor, providing a $50,000 grant to the fund.

"Ford believes that by being in the community, and as Plymouth's largest employer, employees need to give something back to the community," said Dan LaBlonde, secretary of the community resource committee (CRC) at Ford's Sheldon Road plant, and president of the Plymouth Historical Society.

LaBlonde, a Ford Motor Co. retiree, presented the idea of the grant to the CRC. To persuade the CRC into donating money, the museum put together a notebook and videos describing the Lincoln collection which has been on display in the past at the museum.

Beth A. Stewart, the museum's director, said the thing that really sold Ford on the project was the video of the responses of the children who had visited the exhibit.

One student created a "Jeopardy!" game based on the exhibit, while another acted as Robert Stack and discussed Lincoln's assassination as an episode of "Unsolved Mysteries." A group of kids found a church with a balcony and recreated Lincoln's assassination.

The CRC, in turn, went to the executors of the Ford Fund.

LaBlonde recalled that he asked "if Ford would like to be a major sponsor. With a name like Lincoln, Lincoln being a major car line of Ford," it made perfect sense, Ford agreed.

The other $62,000 came from members of the Plymouth Historical Society, which owns the museum, and area businesses. The museum hopes to raise the remaining $38,000 or more by the end of October.

People wishing to contribute can send donations to the museum, 155 S. Main St., Plymouth 48170. They are fully tax deductible and should be made payable to the Plymouth Historical Museum-Lincoln Acquisition Fund. For more information, call (313) 455-8940.

Various choices

Petz had plenty of interest from other museums and universities but he chose the Plymouth Historical Museum to house his collection because of his experiences with it in the past.

"With all the exhibits, they handled things really, really well and professionally," said Petz whose vast collection of Santa Claus items has also been displayed at the museum. He also preferred the location of the museum.

"There were some universities that were interested; I passed on those," said Petz. "The main reason is the fact of young people. To go to a university to use the material, it makes a difficult situation for them if they're writing a paper. Whereas a local museum brings it fairly close to them.

"I got a lot of letters from students who had written papers when I had the last exhibit and that helped to cement the project."

Petz decided to move his collection from his home to the museum because "it's time for it to be accessible to the public. I think it was a decision on my part that the older you get, the harder it would get to move something of this sort."

Petz's collection took more than 60 years to amass. It includes photographs, statuaries, relics, china, medals, books, several handwritten legal cases and law volumes from the Law Office in Springfield, Ill.

A lock of Lincoln's hair, Carl Sandburg's first edition and printer's dummies for his editions of "The War Years," and an etymology dictionary given to Lincoln by his mother, are also part of the collection.

Although Petz has an extensive collection of Civil War items, the museum's collection will focus solely on Lincoln. If the fund-raising efforts go well, the museum may consider purchasing the Civil War items as it has right of first refusal.

The museum's Stewart explained that the Civil War items would complement Plymouth's place in Civil War history. Company C of the 24th regiment formed in Plymouth via recruitment efforts in Kellogg Park.

Finding room

In order to house the collection, the museum is in the process of redesigning its space and perhaps adding a mezzanine. The lower level of the museum will become an educational center. Plans are in the works for an addition on the back of the building which would provide additional storage space.

Stewart said she is honored that Petz is trusting the museum with his collection. Newspaper stories about the acquisition of the collection have gone out on national wire services and already she's received phone calls and letters about the future exhibit.

"The interest in this stuff is incredibly high," said Stewart. "I always thought it was but I thought it was because I was in the environment where I'd see people who were interested in it."

As a result, Stewart said she expects that "it can be a real tourist draw to this area. It's one other great thing to add to what we already have."

The Lincoln exhibit will open on Feb. 12, Lincoln's birthday, and remain on display throughout the year.

"If he would sell his collection piecemeal, he could do very well," said Stewart. "There's one or two pieces that he could sell for what we're getting the whole collection for. It's really a great thing. It's an awesome amount of stuff – and responsibility."

in an effort to determine how many seizures he is having and which tubers on the brain are causing the seizures.

"If it's one or two tubers, they've done some very successful surgeries to remove them," she said.

In the meantime, the family has become active in supporting the work of the National Tuberous Sclerosis Association. They are part of a support group that meets 7-10 p.m. the last Thursday of the month at the Olive Garden restaurant in Novi. The meeting has attracted TSC families from as close as Novi, Livonia, Redford and Canton to as far away as Flint and Lansing.

They also helped raise $1,200 for research through a bowling benefit at Super Bowl in Canton in June and another $500 though a candle party.

Currently, they're raising money to sponsor a hole in Derek's name at charity golf scramble that will be held Sept. 20 at the Brookwood Golf Course near Flint.

The Kinnells have come to terms with Derek's disease. They know life is day to day and anything can happen when it comes to their son, but they look forward to the day scientists come up with treatments for the disease.

"It's great that they found this gene, not only for my family, but for other families and their children," Kinnell said.

popular. Bats eat mosquitoes. Lots of people want to attract bats. Me, I think I prefer the mosquitoes. Besides, she'll forget about bat houses if I just keep quiet.

A few days later, we're visiting her sister, the harborer of animals. Dogs. Cats. Birds. Hamsters. Turtles. She even throws out bread crumbs for the pigeons and the squirrels.

The talk turns to animals.

"We're thinking of getting a bat house," The Feminist says.

The sister looks at me. "A bat house?"

5 volunteers honored by Scouts

Five western Wayne County residents were among 20 Girl Scout volunteers, employed at Detroit area corporations and organizations, who have been selected as Corporate Volunteer of the Year Award recipients by the Michigan Metro Girl Scout Council.

The volunteers were honored at the council's sixth annual corporate luncheon, held at the Westin Hotel in Detroit. More than 250 local business professionals were in attendance when the volunteers were presented with their award by Penny Baller, chief executive officer, and Gloria Lara, president, Michigan Metro Girl Scout Council.

Local honorees were Katy Colling, Carol Galizia, Kathy Hoen and J'Nice Stork, all of Livonia and Sher Walker of Westland.

The "Corporate Volunteer of the Year Award" provides employers and council an opportunity to recognize corporate employees who support Girl Scouting and generously give their time to make a significant impact on the lives of girls.

The award is open to adult council members who actively serve in one or more volunteer positions and are employed at a metro Detroit corporation or institution.

Hospices team up to offer revamped Camp Phoenix

Gathering: There was plenty of room on the grass on the shore of the lake at Camp Tamarack for children to gather during one of the many activities offered during last year's Camp Phoenix.

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

When Community Hospice and Home Care Services Inc. decided something special needed to be done for children who had lost a significant loved one, it came up with idea of a weekend camp.

So, in 1994, CHHCS gathered up its staff, volunteers and the children and headed to Ortonville for a weekend of games, activities and a memorial service at Camp Tamarack in Ortonville.

Camp Phoenix was so popular, CHHCS decided to offer it again. Now, in its fourth year, the western Wayne County agency is preparing to unveil its new and improved Camp Phoenix, a joint venture with Hospices of Henry Ford Health System.

"It's really showing our commitment to help children," said Maureen Butrico, CHHCS executive director. "It shows that even though we compete, we can still do things together for quality care in hospice."

"We are excited to combine our children's programming knowledge and experience with Community Hospice's already established children's camp," said Jean Butrico, child life specialist at Hospices of Henry Ford Health System.

This year's Camp Phoenix will be Friday through Sunday, Aug. 22-24. The camp is for children ages 6-17 who have experienced a significant loss due to death within the past 24 months.

There will be opening and closing circles, an adventure challenge rope course, five specialized age-appropriate grief sessions and a picnic on Sunday afternoon for campers and their parents.

"The rope course is designed as a group exercise, trust exercise and an individual challenge," said Kathy Dattolo, CHHCS director of social work. "It's meant to help build confidence, trust and self-esteem."

There also will be a specialized memorial service on Saturday evening, led by CHHCS bereavement director Michael Meyer. He also will play the guitar and lead the campers in singing around a campfire following the service.

"The children also will create a journal and write their own story," said Dattolo. "There also will be a unity puzzle with every child getting a puzzle piece. They're all well-mapped and tried-out activities."

But the Camp Phoenix experience won't end when the children leave on Sunday afternoon. There will be a Christmas reunion, an evening of food and fun, and a chance to share stories and celebrate life, Dattolo said.

"We know we're doing the right thing for children," she said. "And thanks to Henry Ford, we will have children from all over the place."

It was CHHCS's Butrico who approached her counterpart at Hospices of Henry Ford, Sondra Seely, about sharing resources to benefit the children. The two women are members of the board of the Hospice Coalition of Michigan.

By sharing resources, the camp experienced a doubling in the number of campers, financial commitment, staff and volunteers. With a grant from the Women's Committee for Hospice Care and donations from businesses like Kmart and Meijer and groups like the Alpha Delta national women's sorority, the hospices have been able to purchase better supplies and equipment for the camp.

The husband of the president of the local sorority chapter was a CHHCS patient which led to the organization's commitment.

Walk continues Focus: HOPE's vision

On Sunday, Oct. 12, walkers will take to the streets of Detroit with the goal of "Making his work live on."

The walk is the annual Focus: HOPE WALK '97 and is keeping with the wishes of the late Rev. William Cunningham that his work at the Detroit civil and human rights organization continue according to the plans crafted prior to his death in May.

Eleanor Josaitis, executive director of Focus: HOPE, will lead this year's walk, which kicks off at 1:30 p.m. at 1400 Oakman Blvd. at LaSalle.

The walk annually attracts thousands of people. For a donation of $50, participants will receive an official T-shirt and cap.

Proceeds will support Focus: HOPE's technical training and food programs, childhood education, community arts and special community projects.

For more information about WALK '97, call the Focus: HOPE Volunteer Department at (313) 494-5500.

to provide paints, crayons, paper and markets for Camp Phoenix, which was "a really, really nice surprise," according to Butrico.

"Both hospices have brought the best of what they can bring to the camp," Butrico added. "We were able to tweak the whole weekend experience to make the best possible use of time, so each game has an ending point in meeting the needs of these grieving children.

"We have been able to make Camp Phoenix a much more user-friendly program."

The camp itself is free of charge, however, there is a $20 registration fee required at the time of application. For more information about Camp Phoenix, call (313) 522-4244.

Pioneer spirit turns up at Greenmead

Cleaning up: Michael Kosla, bishop of the Livonia Ward, gets helps from Connor and McKenna Schultz with cleaning the paint brushes. Katie Snow (below, center), Ann Moss and other church members found plenty of weeds to pull around the greenhouse at Greenmead.

It was 150 years ago that pioneers of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints made their way into Salt Lake Valley in Utah.

To celebrate the anniversary members of the Livonia Ward joined with congregations around the world in contributing a day of service to their local communities.

Sixty-five ward members donated almost 200 community hours at the Greenmead Historical Village on July 19.

"It was expected that some 23,000 congregations would contribute a minimum of 150 hours each of local community service," said Livonia Ward activities chairperson Gina Thorderson of the Worldwide Pioneer Heritage Day of Service.

"This is equivalent to more than 3.5 million hours or 400 man-years of community service."

"Our goal for the service day was 50 volunteers to work for 3 hours, and we exceeded it with 65 volunteers," added Michael Kosla, bishop of the Livonia Ward. "I was really pleased with the group of volunteers who came out to work and celebrate."

Volunteers did some weeding and gardening and joined in to paint a barn at the historical village.

"It isn't typical for work and fun to be used in the same sentence but our work project really was a lot of fun," Thorderson said. "I think a great bonding takes place when people work together, and we certainly experienced that this week."

Greenmead coordinator Marian Renaud was "impressed" by the church members' effort.

"We were pleased with the work they accomplished and the enthusiastic way they did it in," she said. "It was good to see people come together and work like family."

According to Trish Michalek, director of public affairs for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, service day activities in the metropolitan Detroit area ranged from beautification projects like the work at Greenmead to Special Olympics.

"We are amazed at the magnitude of the projects that were planned and the dedication of those who participated," said Michalek. "What a wonderful tribute to those who laid the groundwork of our faith."

Congregation members from East Shores helped 300 mentally challenged children in a Special Olympics, sponsored by the United States Army Tank Command at its plant in Warren.

The Walled Lake and Farmington Hills congregations joined forces to beautify stretches of Pontiac Trail, while church members in the Troy area packed picnic lunches and spent the day at the Troy Historical Museum, where they painted and repaired buildings and made costumes used by workers in the museum.

It was 150 years ago this month that Brigham Young led the first church members into a desolate mountain valley after an arduous journey from the Midwest. Thousands followed.

Today, Salt Lake City remains the world headquarters of the nearly 10 million-member faith.

"The pioneers fled Nauvoo, Ill., because they were seeking religious freedom," said Thorderson, who as a former missionary for the church, conducted tours at Historic Temple Square in Salt Lake City. "They didn't have planes or trains back then which made most of these pioneers walk more than 1,300 miles pushing and pulling handcarts with only their most basic possessions.

"Ultimately some 70,000 pioneers started a new life in the Great Salt Lake Valley. They had to learn to work hard and I think it's only appropriate that we celebrated their success with that same kind of effort."

Tans, cancer: what you need to know

Thinking about a suntan this summer? Before you head out for some serious rays, the American Cancer Society has some information about skin cancer, you should know about.

■ An estimated 50 percent of all people who live to age 65 will have at least one form of skin cancer.

■ There are several different kinds of skin cancer, distinguished by the types of cells the tumors resemble. The three most common types of skin cancer are basal cell carcinoma, squamous cell carcinoma and malignant melanoma.

■ In 1997, 40,300 (up from 38,300 in 1996) will develop malignant melanoma, the most serious skin cancer, and 7,300 people will die from melanoma. In Michigan, an estimated 1,200 new cases of melanoma will be diagnosed and 220 patients will die. That's up from 980 new cases and 190 melanoma deaths in 1996.

■ There will be more than 900,000 (up from 800,000 in 1996) new cases of basal cell or squamous cell skin cancers nationwide in 1997. Although highly curable, about 90 percent of these cancers could have been prevented.

■ A suntan is not healthy. It's the body's defense against skin damage cause by the dangerous ultraviolet rays of the sun.

■ The sun's ultraviolet rays are strongest between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. Exposure at these times should be avoided and protective clothing should be worn.

■ Maximum protection from the sun's harmful rays is offered by a sunscreen with a sun protective factor (SPF) of 15 or higher. SPF works like this: a person using a sunscreen with a SPF value of 15 can stay in the sun 15 times longer than without the sunscreen before obtaining the same degree of sunburn. The higher the SPF, the better.

■ Sunscreen should be applied 15 to 30 minutes before going outdoors. It should be reapplied if you perspire heavily or swim – no sunscreen will last all day.

■ You don't have to be hot to suffer sunburn. Snow reflects as much as 85 percent of the sun's rays.

■ Don't count on being safe on a cloudy day or under water. Seventy to 80 percent of the destructive ultraviolet rays, which are responsible for sunburns, penetrate clouds and water.

■ Individuals should practice regular skin self-examination and request skin examinations from their health care providers as part of their cancer-related checkups.

■ Radiation from tanning beds is as dangerous as the rays from the sun and can contribute to skin cancer and skin aging. Tanning parlor radiation also may cause additional damage to your eyes and immune system.

For more information, contact the American Cancer Society's at (810) 557-5353 or visit its Southeastern Region office at 29350 Southfield Road, Suite 110, Southfield.

Temple Baptist reaches out with music, seminars

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

Wayne Kurtycz quickly tells you that Temple Baptist Church's vision is to be a center for Christian discovery and development. Its purpose, he adds, is to lead people to a life of faith in Christ and then to a life of full devotion to Christ.

His office is tiny in comparison to the 2,158-seat auditorium where pastor Brad Powell conducts services, but it is from that small room that he helps the church reach out to young people through concerts.

A Christian since 1969, Kurtycz is the outreach events/singles pastor at the Plymouth Township church. As such, he helps bring some of the brightest stars in contemporary Christian music to the church, long known for its musical presentations and line-up of notable guest speakers.

"One of the things I love about my Christian life is the people and the music I'm involved with," Kurtycz said. "This church has 30 years of experience with Christian artists and speakers, and my desire is to do my very best and bring the top musicians in Christendom to Temple Baptist ... And I get to bring them to such an awesome church."

At one time located on West Chicago east of Telegraph Road in Redford, Temple Baptist opened the doors to its new church on North Territorial west of Ridge Road in March.

The church didn't have its annual Easter musical drama because of the move, but instead welcomed some 2,000 people to hear the music of mega Christian singer Sandy Patti.

"It was great," said Kurtycz who has put the finishing touches on a fall lineup that includes four concerts and three seminars along with the annual Christmas drama, "Glory of Christmas."

Busy fall lineup

The schedule kicks off when Rich Mullins and Band, with special guests This Train and introducing Mitch McVicker, take to Temple Baptist's stage for a 7:30 p.m. concert Friday, Aug. 15. Tickets are $12.75 in advance and $14.75 at the door.

More into folk than rock, Mullins has written such songs as "Awesome God," "Step By Step" and Amy Grant's first mega hit, "Give Your Praise to the Lord."

On Sept. 19, Phillips, Craig and Dean and the father-son duo of Aaron Geoffrey take center stage for a 7:30 p.m. concert, followed the "incredible" vocals of Susan Ashton at 6 p.m. Sept. 27.

On Oct. 10, Temple Baptist welcomes The Big Voice Tour, so named for its three artists who are popular vocalists – Crystal Lewis, Brian Duncan and Anointed.

Also in October is a leadership seminar (8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Oct. 2) with George Barna who will help to church leaders understand values and how to respond to changing environments.

"His thing is helping churches in marketing and statistic," Kurtycz said. "He's done tons of research on Disney, VISA and Billy Graham's organization."

Florence Whitnauer, well-known Christian author, will lead a conference for women, "Women of Virtue," 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Oct. 25, and well-known author and popular speaker on "Focus on Families" Gary Smalley will come to Temple for a two-day seminar in November.

Smalley, who has been a guest on such TV talk shows as "Oprah" and "Sally Jesse Raphael," will lead his "Love Is a Decision" seminar 6-10:30 p.m. Nov. 7 and 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Nov. 8.

"He's a counselor for Frank Gifford and Kathy Lee and has built hundreds of thousands of relationship around the world," said Kurtycz.

For kids and families

Sandwiched in the busy schedule is a visit by singer-storyteller Mary Rice-Hopkins, who will present a program for children 6-7 p.m. Oct. 11, followed by Fall Fling, a time of games and fun for children on Oct. 18.

The church will present popular Christmas musical on eight different days, beginning Dec. 6. The presentation will feature a new stage production and new sets. "Seating will be "very intimate" for the production, according to Kurtycz, who anticipates attendance topping 25,000 for this year's production.

If that's not enough, plans are already being firmed up for next year. Headliners include Petra Praise on Jan. 9, Phil Keaggy, Wes King and Scott Dent on Jan. 30, Audio Adrenaline on Feb. 13, Michael Card on Feb. 20, Clay Crosse and Jaci Valesquez on March 13 and Steve Green on May 29, with Dr. John Maxwell highlighting a May 14-15 leadership conference.

"The music ministry has been in full blown for about the last six years," said Kurtycz of the concerts. "Temple has been using contemporary artists to reach out to young people and our youth and single ministries are growing as a result.

"Church doesn't have to be boring. We're about people and helping them reach their purpose."

More information about the upcoming programs at Temple Baptist is available by calling the church at (313) 414-7777. Concert tickets can be ordered by calling 1-800-585-3737.

Star for Stratford

No, he's no Shakespearan star of the stage, but in Stratford, Ont., Erik Anderson certainly made a name for himself.

A native of Plymouth, Anderson left for Stratford — home of the prestigious Shakespearan Festival — after two years at Plymouth Canton HS to play hockey for the Stratford Cullitons in the Midwestern Ontario Junior B League.

Erik Anderson record-setter

Anderson graduated from Stratford Central School in June, and from the Cullitons after last season. From the latter with honors, it should be noted.

Anderson, a center, established new scoring records for both the team and the league last season, netting 54 goals and 91 assists for 145 points.

The former league mark was 144 points, set by Dan Haylow; the previous team record of 142 points was set by Ed Olczyk, currently playing in the National Hockey League.

Anderson was named league MVP, and the Cullitons were league champions all three years he played for them. In 1994-95, they were Ontario champs.

Later this month, Anderson will move up to collegiate hockey. He has a scholarship to attend St. Lawrence University in Canton, N.Y., an NCAA Division I team playing in the Eastern College Athletic Conference.

Golf classics

The Volas family has plenty to be proud of.

At the Pepsi Junior Classic Tournament, part of the Power-Bilt Michigan PGA Junior Tour, last Friday at Bedford Valley Golf Course in Battle Creek, Brad Volas of Canton tied for fifth in the boys 16-and-over division.

And Brandon Volas tied for seventh in the boys 13-and-under division.

Brad shot a 75, finishing three strokes behind division-winner Timothy Dahlberg of Clio. Brandon carded a 90, 11 strokes behind the division-winning total posted by Andrew Balulis of Baldwin.

Jeff Lulek of Canton also had a 95 in the boys 16-and-over division.

Softball champs

A challenging season in the Canton Parks and Recreation Softball League finished on a positive note for ASAP Machine, which emerged with the playoff title by beating previously unbeaten First Place Bar and Grill twice Aug. 1-3 at Heritage Park.

The title didn't come easily for ASAP, which was finished fourth during the regular season with a 9-5 mark. They opened their tournament run with a 25-2 win over Mark's Midtown, then defeated Mexican Fiesta 9-7 and Shark Club No. 3 23-12 before going up against First Place.

As the name indicates, First Place was unbeatable during the regular season, going 14-0. In the tournament, they defeated Beaver Creek/ARAmark 23-14, Shark Club No. 1 5-4 and Mexican Fiesta 18-7.

ASAP ended First Place's unbeaten string by edging them 15-13 in eight innings in the semifinals of the double-elimination tournament.

The title game was equally dramatic, with ASAP prevailing 8-6 with a seventh-inning rally.

Thirteen teams competed in the season-ending tourney.

Soccer players needed

Any girls wishing to play college soccer, who are still searching for a place to display their skills, here's your chance.

Schoolcraft College has openings at all positions for its women's soccer team. New coach Bill Tolstedt, who succeeds Nikki Johnson, got the job just three weeks ago and is faced with the uneviable task of finding a team before the season starts in three weeks.

Scholarships and financial aid are still available. Anyone interested should call Tolstedt at (313) 462-4400, ext. 5255, or at (313) 248-3733, or stop by practice next Monday, Tuesday or Thursday, from 5-7 p.m. at Schoolcraft's Field No. 2.

Recruits brighten SC soccer outlook

Keeper challenge: Stevenson grad Eric O'Neil should vie for a starting spot with SC.

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR

Nothin' quite like the week prior to the start of pre-season practice.

How can a coach, in whatever sport, be anything but positive?

For Van Dimitriou, coach of Schoolcraft College's men's soccer team for more than a dozen years, such optimism is what keeps him going. It's part of the job; it's expected.

If there was a time for his perpetually positive outlook to be challenged, wouldn't this be it? After all, his team is coming off a disappointing 9-7-3 1996 season; for one of the few times in Dimitriou's tenure, the Ocelots did not win the NJCAA Region 12 title, and they did not advance to the Inter-Regional Tournament.

I suppose the obvious reply to the aforementioned question is affirmative. The rest of the answer is, Dimitriou is ready to answer the challenge.

He believes he has recruited one of his most talented freshmen classes ever. The difference this year is, a large portion of this group of freshmen may not get a whole lot of playing time.

RECRUITING

Or to put it in proper perspective, they'll have to earn what playing time they get.

That's because Dimitriou has 10 players from his '96 squad returning, including eight starters and a ninth who was pencilled in as a starter before cracking his collarbone prior to the season and sitting out the entire campaign.

"That's a great number (of returnees)," the SC coach said. "It's just a matter of putting the pieces together again, but I like our chances a whole lot better than I did a year ago at this time."

So how good are his newcomers? Good enough to push at least some of the eight returning starters for playing time: "Six or seven (freshmen) will be in and out, either starting or as top subs," said Dimitriou.

OK — the next question seems both logical and obvious: How good are the returning starters?

The answer: Good enough to earn SC a No. 12 ranking in the NJCAA preseason poll.

"The talent is there," insisted Dimitriou. "It's just a matter of learning to play together."

Of the returning starters, several are noteworthy: Billy Krips (from Brighton), the team's most valuable player last year at stopper; Chris Jaskolski (Plymouth Salem), voted the team's best defender as a marking back; Pete Lechowicz (Livonia Stevenson) at midfield; Garrett Maki (Dearborn Crestwood) at forward; Travis Miller (Redford Catholic Central) at goalkeeper; Matt Keller (Rochester) at midfield; and David York (Novi) at forward/midfield.

Kevin Fritz (Brighton), a midfielder who earned a starting spot by the end of the '96 season, also returns. So does Shaun Pratt (Sterling Heights), the starting sweeper who broke his collarbone last pre-season.

Of the newcomers, Dimitriou figures those who will see plenty of action are keeper Eric O'Neil, midfielder/forward Jim Bullock, midfielder/defender Paul

Lynn's trip to nationals is memorable

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR

It's time to make adjustments for former Plymouth Salem swim standout Yvonne Lynn.

And so far, so good.

Lynn made her first trip to the U.S. Junior National Swim Championships last week at Miami University in Oxford, OH, and it was a memorable one.

No, there were no medals to boast about. Lynn finished 21st in the 100-meter backstroke (long-course) in 1:08.00.

But it was still something she'll never forget.

"I was pretty happy," was her own estimation of her performance. "Just being there was exciting."

It was a competition far different than anything she'd been exposed to previously. It was certainly far removed from a meet like the Western Lakes Activities Association Championships, where Lynn excelled in the past.

In last November's WLAA finals, she won the league title in the 100-yard backstroke in 59.81.

But that meet was in her own Salem pool, and although it was in front of a large crowd and there was a lot of good competition, it was nothing like the crowd and competition at the Junior Nationals.

Even the pool was far different. A 50-meter pool, in which all major international meets are swum, is more than twice the length of a 25-yard pool. Indeed, Lynn figures she has competed at that distance only five other times.

"It was totally different," she said in summing up the meet in general.

Lynn qualified for the Junior Nationals two weeks earlier at the Senior Championships, held at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor. Her 1:06.9 clocking — Lynn's best ever in the 100 back in long course meters — bettered the 1:07.5 qualifying standard.

Quick-learner gains gold — again

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR

Talk about a fast track to the top.

Brandon Yopp, of Canton, isn't interested in shortcuts. Or patience, for that matter.

Not when it comes to his sport of choice, tae kwon do.

Yopp went to the U.S. Junior Olympics for his sport, held June 30-July 5 in Louisville, Ky. He came home with a gold medal — a national championship.

Quite amazing, really, especially when considering the path he's traveled.

First of all, Yopp is 12 years-old; he's competing in the 12-13 age bracket. Which means he won a national title while in the bottom part of his division.

Secondly, Yopp's title came in First Gup, one skill level below black belt. Not bad, considering Yopp has been studying tae kwon do for only 15 months.

"We were looking for something for Brandon to get involved in," said his mother, Bonnie, "and we never thought we'd find it. His self-esteem has gone sky-high since he started.

"He really, really likes it."

Likes it? Who wouldn't?

Yopp got his start in tae kwon do under the direction of Sang Shop Kil, who runs Kil's Karate in Canton. At least that's where he officially began learning the sport. His initial interest came much earlier.

"Probably from movies and stuff like that," he said. "I liked the Ninja Turtles a lot when I was little."

Those memories guided him to Kil's Karate, where Yopp still works out, practicing three or four times a week (one-to-two hours a workout).

The practices continue to pay dividends, certainly — Yopp earned black belt status after the Junior Olympics.

His teacher has instructed all sorts of well-known people in the art of tae kwon do, but he told his young protege he has never had anyone gain his black belt so quickly.

Success in the sport isn't completely new. Yopp competed in his first tournament just two weeks after his initial lesson. It was in Brighton, and Yopp competed only in sparring; he hadn't learned enough in that short a time to try form.

In that first tournament, Yopp won a gold medal.

He's experienced little else since.

"I've been first or second in all my sparring tournaments," he said. "My master (Kil) says I'm a natural."

The 18 trophies and nine medals — seven of them gold, one silver and one bronze — would seemingly attest to that.

Yopp advanced to the Junior Olympics with a victory in the state championship tournament. In Louisville, he battled through eight matches, winning them all en route to the national title.

So what's next for this soon-to-be seventh grader at West Middle School?

There will be loads of tournaments in the coming months before the Junior Olympics roll around next summer.

After that, who knows? They choose the U.S. Olympic Team for the 2000 Games, which will be in Sydney, Australia, in a couple of years.

Archery: A big draw

BY STEVE KOWALSKI

When 18-year-old Californian Bill Buffington gets tattoos on his body, archery will truly have arrived.

Well, that's probably stretching it, but if free spirits define some of the more popular athletes in the United States then archery is catching up to those sports that have fascinated fans for decades.

Buffington was one of the more laid-back competitors at last week's U.S. National Target Championships in Canton, wearing a punk-rock look with bleached blond hair, untied tennis shoes and one earring.

His friend, 17-year-old Mike Pendola of Kalamazoo, wore two earrings.

Watch out, Dennis Rodman.

"No tattoos, but I wish I had some of the women he's got," Buffington said.

Joking aside, Buffington came here to show off – his archery skills.

"I'm not going to quit until I win the Olympics," he said.

Local favorite Jennifer O'Donnell, a former Farmington resident now living in Livonia, says conser-

DNR's State Fair display to showcase great outdoors

OUTDOOR INSIGHTS

BILL PARKER

The Michigan State Fair opens Tuesday, Aug. 19. A special exhibit at this year's fair entitled "Michigan: Your Great Outdoor Adventure," will enable people to experience and learn about some of the outdoor recreational activities Michigan has to offer.

The exhibit is actually a 50,000-square-foot pocket park built on site. Designed and built by DNR staffers, the park features interactive displays, seminars, demonstrations and hands-on activities which allow visitors to experience or learn about hunting, fishing, kayaking, canoeing, backpacking, camping and other activities. "This DNR pocket park is a substantial effort to bring Michigan's hunting, fishing and outdoor heritage and opportunities to a major event in the state's largest urban area," said Bruce Matthews, chief of the DNR's Office of Information and Education. "Through this exhibit we hope to encourage families and individuals to visit our state parks and forests, learn more about fishing and hunting, and seek out more ways in which they can participate in Michigan's great outdoors."

The exhibit features casting and fishing ponds, a complete campsite, the Firearms Training Simulator (F.A.T.S.) which allows people to shoot a laser-lighted firearm at moving targets, more than 20 outdoor-related presentations.

Free fishing licenses

The DNR will also give away 500 Young Angler Licenses to kids ages 12-16.

"We want to give young people, especially kids from urban areas, an extra incentive to try fishing," said Matthews. "Fishing is fun and everyone should have a chance to try."

A $2 Young Angler License along with a $1 Sportcard will be given to the first 500 youths age 12-16 who visit the exhibit.

Area clubs that contributed to the effort include the Western Wayne County Conservation Association, the Detroit Sportsmen's Congress, the Oakland County Sportsmen's Club, Michigan Bass 'N Gals, the Michigan Charter Boat Association, the Lake St. Clair Walleye Association, Metro West and Huron Valley chapters of the Michigan Steelhead and Salmon Fishermen's Association and the Downriver Walleye Association.

Nuisance geese

If you've had problems with nuisance Canada geese invading your yard help may be on the way.

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources is conducting a state-wide survey of damages associated with Canada geese in an effort to come up with a solution to the problem of marauding flocks.

The DNR is asking residents to fill out a single sheet of multiple choice questions. The survey, an Evaluation of Damages Associated with Canada Geese, will help the DNR determine the types of problems geese are causing, the time of year the problems are occurring, economic costs involved and what control methods have been tried.

"We want to assess what constitutes a nuisance to people and what they consider to be a tolerable number of geese," said Pete Squibb, supervisor of the DNR's wildlife management section. "We're also interested in finding out what measures people have taken to control goose problems on their property."

Locally, the Evaluation of Damages Associated with Canada Geese forms are available at the Livonia DNR District Office at 38980 Seven Mile Road, or by calling (313) 953-0241.

Warblers numbers up

Michigan's population of the endangered Kirtland's warbler is up from last year according to a recent census conducted by the DNR, the USDA Forest Service, the US Fish and Wildlife Service, the Michigan Department of Military Affairs and private citizens. The census turned up 728 singing males compared to 692 in 1996. A record high of 765 singing males were counted in 1995 and a record low of 167 were counted in 1987.

Anglers and hunters are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information to 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI. 48009. Fax information to (810) 644-1314 or call Bill Parker evenings at (810) 901-2573.

Longtime pro going into retirement

GOLF

Ray Bolo, the head professional at Western Golf and Country Club in Redford Township since 1960, will be honored by club members, fellow pros and friends with a retirement party Saturday night, Sept. 13.

The party, held at Western, will be a community-wide celebration and is open to the general public. Western is at 14600 Kinloch, between Schoolcraft and Five Mile roads.

Bolo, who set the Western club scoring record with a 64 set in 1968, has one PGA Tour victory to his credit – the Del Rio (Texas) Open in 1965. He also has won the Michigan PGA Senior Championship four times (1988, '94, '95 and '96), earning the title of Michigan PGA Senior Player of the Year three times.

Bolo shot a round of 65 in 1977 at the fabled St. Andrews, playing in the International Four Ball Pro-Am Invitational with three Western members. In 1983, Bolo's team captured the Pebble Beach Pro-Am title with a team of Ted Marsh, Greg Migliore and Al Rice. He also played with this select team in two Scottish tournaments and a Pro-Am event in Cannes, France.

To cap off his Scotland trip in 1983, Bolo won the Senior Pro Division title at Gleneagles during the International Four-Ball Tournament.

"Ray Bolo has been a tremendous asset to Western Golf and Country Club and to Michigan during his career," said Dave Baughman, chairmand of the Retirement Committee and past president of the club. "And the Board of Directors want to honor Ray's contributions with this special day."

Bolo and his wife Marcia have raised four daughters: Marcia Alyce, Deborah, Bonnie Rae and Andrea. Andrea, the youngest, enoyed a distinguished golfing career, winning the Michigan District Medal Tournament at Pinehurst with Tanya Manfert, qualifying for the U.S. Women's Amateur. She currently plays on the Belgium INternational Golf team.

Anyone interested in attending the Bolo Retirement Party may call Bob Donehue at (313) 531-1240.

Western gets a new coach

SOCCER

With the start of the prep fall sports seasons just round the corner Monday marked the end of summer vacation and the beginning of hard work and dedication for high school coaches and athletes. Monday was officially the first day of practice for the fall sports season.

Fresh starts and positive attitudes prevailed throughout the area. While butterflies were swarming in the stomachs of new players trying to land a spot on their respective varsity squads, there was also plenty of zeal and zest along the sidelines as new coaches stepped forward to take the reigns of the local prep programs at their respective high schools.

Joe Nora owns one of the new faces that will be gracing the sidelines this fall. Nora takes the place of Tom Faro as head coach of the Walled Lake Western boys soccer program.

Nora played prep soccer at Detroit Catholic Central and played college soccer at the University of St. Bonaventure in New York. He has assisted with the Northville Sting for the past two years but enters his first year as head coach of a high school varsity program.

The excitement of opening day of practice had Nora working overtime on Sunday night.

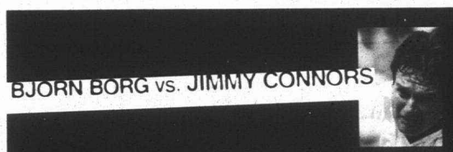
"I found myself sitting up thinking about drills and stuff like that," said Nora. "The thing that bothered me most is that I've never had to cut anyone before. I've been an assistant, but never a head coach where you have to send someone back to junior varsity or tell them to keep trying and to come back next year. I was thinking about what to say when that time comes and how to keep it positive."

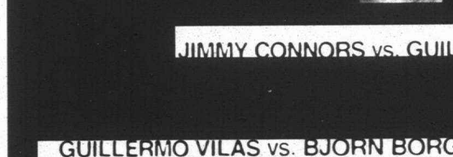
The Warriors held tryouts Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday and will start practice as a team today. Because of a steady rain falling throughout the day on Monday, Nora felt the turnout for the opening day of tryouts was down a little bit. Still, the first-year coach was elated to be back on the soccer field.

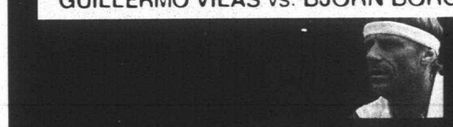
"It's pretty cool. I'm very excited," he said. "I just want to get the tryouts over with and get on with team practice. Our first game is August 22 against Lakeland so that doesn't give us a lot of time to prepare."

Nora sees himself as a disciplinarian, but strives to project a positive influence on his players. He'll stress team work in the early stages of practice.

"(When practice starts) we'll just try to get everyone in a positive frame of mind and get them to pull together as a team and work as a team," Nora said. "I'd rather have 12 decent players out there playing as a team than have 12 great athletic players who don't get along and can't play together. We'll probably try some team car washes or a 5K run to help pull the guys together. Things like that help with team unity."







Undying rivalries and dynamic personalities.

vatives still far out-number the radicals on the archery tour.

Where does she fall?

"You've got rebels and conformists," O'Donnell said. "I'm in-between. You can't get too out of control."

The organizers of the National Archery Association enjoyed the layout and hospitality they received at Heritage Park in Canton and look forward to returning, publicist Bill Kellick said.

O'Donnell, a 1992 Olympian, was making a comeback on the archery tour after taking time off to attend classes at Lawrence Tech and her jobs at Chilli's in Novi and the Bloomfield Hills Athletic Club.

She finished 25th in the Women's Olympic Division standings.

"It's really good to be back," she said. "I shot pretty well with a little practice I could have done better. It's like a kick in the butt to get ready for the next Olympics."

Being only 23, she must figure time is on her side.

Archery is one of those rare sports where age is not a barrier.

An 18-year-old can compete in the upper division just as easily as a 50-year-old.

It's not rare to find Olympic champions in consecutive decades.

"Archery is a longevity sport, a family sport, there is no end to it," said Darryl Pace, the 1976 and 1984 Olympic Gold medalist. "I look forward to 10 years from now when I can shoot in the Masters Division."

One who wants no part of the Masters Division is 59-year-old Ed Eliason, who remains competitive in the Men's Olympic Division.

Eliason finished 20th in the Men's Olympic Division on Thursday and he looks forward to attending another World Championship as a teammate of Butch Johnson, Justin Huish and Rod White.

He has been on 26 world championship teams.

"A lot of my friends are not making it because they won't change with the times," Eliason said. "They stick with the old way of shooting. Archers today are in great physical condition. Years ago, the world record was 1100 points and now it's around 2,600. You've got to figure out how to get there. It's not a boxing match, it's you and the target."

Of all the competitors at last week's event, only a handful are African Americans.

Ron West, an African American who lives in Washington, D.C., wishes more would try the sport.

He used to play football and baseball before he met Jim Brown, the former national archery champion not the former football star by the same name.

He likes archery's individuality.

"What you put in it is what you get," he said.

One of the sport's most renowned players, Butch Johnson, isn't in it for the money. Johnson was last week's national champion in the Men's Olympic Division and is rated 12th in the latest world rankings.

Johnson, 41, makes money working in an archery shop in his hometown of Manchester, Conn.

"I've won peanuts," he said. "I spend more than I win. It's a hobby."

Johnson's wife, Tricia, also competes on the women's tour.

Couples traveling and competing together is common. Jacquelline Turnbull, of New Brunswick, Canada, used to compete.

Now she just travels with her husband, Pierre, who competes.

He was known as "the Robin Hood of Quebec," where he grew up, she said.

Jacquelline watches, but sometimes she's preoccupied. Last Friday, she preferred reading a magazine to her husband's shooting.

"I just told him I think I'll go where the shade is," she said. "He just said 'You do your good reading, I'll do my good shooting.' You can't last the whole day out here in this heat."

erhouse in the NCAA's Division II.

But the Pioneers are moving up to Division I this year, which means a giant step up in competition. And that in turn means more practice time, with different events at greater distances.

Lynn will train to swim the 100-yard and 200-yard backstroke, the 200 butterfly and the 200 individual medley.

"Oh, it will be an adjustment," she admitted.

As for the Junior Nationals, Lynn could return next year (it's open to anyone 19 years-old and under), but she doesn't think she will. Her sights are set a good deal higher.

"I want to make the Senior Nationals now," she said.

NOTES: Joining Lynn at Oakland University will be her Salem teammate, Kellyann Williams.

Williams was a superb freestyler at Salem, finishing third in the 100-yard free at the WLAA finals in 56.36. She was also sixth at the league meet in the 200 IM, in 2:20.23.

Tokarsky, and midfielder/forward Bart Mays, all of whom helped guide Stevenson to the Class A state championship last year.

Dimitriou called Tokarsky, Bullock and Mays versatile players with excellent skills, while O'Neil should pose an immediate challenge to the returning starting keeper, Miller, who was solid in goal in '96.

A player who should bolster SC's offense, which sputtered at times last season, is forward Ryan Konley (Plymouth Salem). "He has a terrific shot and a nose for the ball," said Dimitriou.

Others to watch are Jeff Cullen (Haslett), a Class B all-stater who will vie for playing time at midfield or forward, and two older players: midfielders Paul Graves (Milford) and Todd Vilanueva (Walled Lake Central), both 21 years old.

Vilanueva is no certainty. He was taking six credit hours during the summer session to qualify to play. "I tried to get this kid three years ago," said Dimitriou. "He would be a great addition. He has great leadership ability."

There are others who could break into the rotation, like stopper Mike Longlois (South Lyon); midfielder/forward Ruslan Blajei (Southfield), a native of the Ukraine; forward Mike Stempien (Lakeland), who scored 13 goals as a senior; midfielder Kevin Graham (Redford CC), who didn't play in high school but shows plenty of promise; defender Andrew Stevens (Redford Thurston); midfielder/forward Blair Schmidt (Redford CC); keeper Mike Ferraro (Thurston); and three or four more.

The Ocelots won't have to wait long to prove themselves.

Following their pre-season scrimmage at Valparaiso College Aug. 23, they'll open their season at the Springfield (Ill.) Tournament against the host team on Aug. 30. The following day, they play Forest Park (from St. Louis); both teams finished among the top eight at the NJCAA Tournament last season.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE
by Chris Knight

EXCEEDING YOUR EXPECTATION

It takes time for real estate agents to build a business. Since a lot of our success depends on referrals from satisfied buyers or sellers, we work hard to exceed your expectations for service.

If a Realtor has done a superb job of selling your house or finding you a new one, the best way to say "thank you" is to give that person's name (and phone number) to anyone you know who is considering a move. You are not only doing the agent a favor, you are also directing your friends to a competent, knowledgeable and experienced salesperson. Buying a house or condo can be a little scary if you don't have a strong professional guiding you through the process. Realtors try extra hard to please referrals of friends or pleased customers. We are in the business for the long term and prosper by giving consistently high quality service.

If there is a move in your future, Chris Knight is ready to serve you. Call Chris at Coldwell Banker Schweitzer Real Estate, 313-453-6800.

Want to see a faster Internet? Want to see it again? Welcome to the fastest Internet connection to your home. One that's up to 50 times faster than the one you have now. You can only get it through Broadband. So what is Broadband? Simply put, it's a wire with two-way capabilities, a wire with enormous capacity. So things can move down it faster. Faster than anything else out there. Right now, Broadband lets you download from the Internet up to 50 times faster than ordinary telephone wire. This supersonic speed is why we call our Internet service MediaOne Express. ⊙ The networks in your area have already been upgraded with fiber-optics. Once your house is hooked up, you won't have to dial up to use the Net. You won't waste half a day waiting for images to download. Searches that used to take forever will be finished in seconds. Work will get done. Games will be played. ⊙ With Broadband you'll no longer simply receive all the exciting material out there. Because Broadband's unique two-way capabilities give your computer the power to send video as well as receive it. And you'll do it all at a speed you never imagined possible. Adding an entirely new level of meaning to the word "interactivity." ⊙ You'll discover the world's fastest Internet is just the beginning of what Broadband will come to mean to you. With this one single wire, your computer will become as entertaining as your TV. Your TV will become as smart as your computer. And you will be able to communicate in ways you never imagined. Broadband has the power to change the way we work, the way we play, the way we learn. ⊙ As for the present, enjoy your new Internet. For information, call 1-313-459-7300 or visit our Web site at http://www.mediaone.com/express

University chancellor will speak at fall forum

The chancellor of the University of Michigan-Dearborn, James Renick, will speak on the role of higher education and its effect on regional economic development at a legislative forum next month sponsored by the Southern Wayne County Chamber of Commerce in Southgate.

Since Renick was appointed chancellor at UM-Dearborn in 1993, the campus has been on a growth track. Enrollment is at an all-time high, three major state-funded buildings will be on line this year, and private support has increased to record levels.

"The most satisfying part of the job for me has been the opportunity to see the growing interactions between our campus and the people and communities we serve," Renick said. "High quality educational opportunities are critically important to the long-term economic vitality of the region, and UM-Dearborn has a significant role to play."

The Southern Wayne County Chamber of Commerce legislative forum series is a way to increase awareness of significant regional issues among the business community, according to Edward Clemente, vice president of economic development at the chamber.

"UM-Dearborn has been a genuine partner with businesses and public agencies in this area on a number of significant initiatives," said Clemente. "Business people in southern Wayne County will benefit from learning more about the campus and its commitment to this region."

The program will be held Sept. 22 at the Crystal Gardens restaurant, 16703 Fort St., in Southgate. Lunch begins at 11:30 a.m., followed by Renick's speech at noon.

To confirm reservations, which cost $10 including lunch, contact the chamber office at (313) 284-6000.

News program to air locally

A half-hour public affairs news program entitled "Legislative Forum" will be aired on local cable stations by the Democratic Caucus of the Michigan House of Representatives this month.

August's edition includes:
"More Cops for Local Communities" – Rep. Paul Baade, D-Muskegon, discusses his proposal to create a community policing program that will put 5,000 more officers on patrol.

"Family Tax Relief" – Reps. Deb Cherry, D-Burton, and A. T. Frank, D-Saginaw Township, outline new child care deductions and the college tuition tax credit.

"Aid for Education" – Rep. Laura Baird, D-Okemos, talks about her proposal to give a tax deduction for contributions to educational institutions.

"Legislative Forum" airs in Garden City on Comcast Channels 18 and 21 during the first week of the month. Scheduled times are 10:30 a.m., 2:30 p.m., 7:30 p.m., and 11:30 p.m. Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

In Livonia, the forum will be broadcast 8:30 p.m. Thursdays on Time Warner cable Channel 12.

Hang on to your modem, we're putting your 1987 Chevy on the World Wide Web.

So you don't have a 1987 Chevy. How about your car, or bike, or the stuff that's been hanging out in the attic for more years than you'd care to admit?

We'll put whatever you've found on the internet in a hot new spot called "AD VILLAGE"—the first place where you can place an ad on the World Wide Web where it'll be seen by not hundreds, or thousands, but millions of people! If you're thinking: "This is going to cost a bundle," think again. It's reasonable. Economical. Affordable. Cheap.

And believe us when we say that getting this done is a heckuva lot easier than cleaning the attic.

1-800-579-SELL

Or e-mail your ad to welcome@advillage.com
Or FAX your ad to 313-953-2232.
It's your call.

INTERIOR IDEAS

COMBINING TEXTURES

Even though the colors in an interior scheme may be artfully combined, the space will appear dull if there is not enough surface contrast. When textures are combined properly, it lends a sense of interest and excitement. To do so, it is important to stay within the same families of styles and types of textures when coordinating textures together. use formal textures with other formal textures. If a casual-looking fabric or textured treatment is being called into play, use other casual elements and accessories in the same room or space. Avoid mixing one extreme style of texture with another. At the same time, it pays to play up the subtle contrasts between hard and soft, as well as smooth and rough.

This week's column provides helpful tips on how to successfully combine textures. SCOTT SHUPTRINE is committed to creating beautiful interiors that reflect the personal tastes of each customer. Our interior designers combine academic study, on the job experience, and creativity. Founded in 1927, we are proud to be one of Michigan's most prestigious fine furniture chains offering a wide selection of furniture. Visit us at 977 E. 14 Mile Rd., Troy, (248-616-3585) or 43606 W. Oaks Drive, Novi (248-349-0044). Business hours are M, T, Th, & F 10-9, W & Sat 10-6, and by appointment.

NAOMI STONE LEVY

You have selected all of the furnishings that should make for a lovely interior, but for some inexplicable reason it falls flat. What to do?

There are several options. My favorite way to go is the addition of plant material. But this must have style. Just some vines or a sansevieria (sword-shaped leaves) mixed together and placed tastelessly in pots won't make an impression.

Flower pots exist in a number of materials. Gather together varying sizes and styles of cement pots. These are both decorative and strong. Some designs are leaf-like. Some are architectural.

Perhaps you will like all of the pots in one design. They become more effective when repeated, either in size or height.

Another material that has charisma as a flower pot is in basket form. Baskets, with or without handles, tall or short, natural wicker or stained, painted or decorated, all elicit their own atmosphere.

Clay pots are conducive to less formality. They evoke the natural look that we associate with plants. Florists don't give them consideration. They are just there.

Plastic or fiberglass pots are available in many colors, as well as black or white. These also are unlimited and exceptional in varied sizes.

You have the option of using arrangements in a foyer or living room. If used in a corner it is impressive if the tallest pot sets into the niche and the surrounding ones step down in size.

What is planted within this group also should be graduated in size and leaf structure. It is judicious to have the lowest growing varieties placed in the front. (See illustration.)

Consult a plant station for suggestions. There is always an attendant who knows more than I do. If I'm not comfortable with his or her ideas I talk to someone else. Take with you the measures of your wall or corner. Scale is so very important to ultimate success.

A very, very large Jade tree can be a focal point. It calls for the most simple pot because the tree itself has so much detail. Group your plants and pots together at the plant station to judge their effectiveness before you take it all home.

You are about to make a major investment. It doesn't have to be completed in one swoop. It would be prudent to have the finished project firmly set in your "mind's eye," to be acquired a little at a time. Is your display satisfactory?

Homeless animals day is set

In an effort to increase awareness of the plight of homeless animals, the Michigan Humane Society is asking for canned pet food donations in recognition of "National Homeless Animals Day" on Saturday, Aug. 16.

"Homeless Animals Day" was created to commemorate the approximately 15 million dogs and cats, puppies and kittens that are euthanized each year in our nation's shelters. "Pet overpopulation is an enormous problem. The majority of animals we take in are healthy, good natured pets that are put to death simply because there are not enough homes available," says Michele Mitchell, MHS Community Relations Director. "Responsible pet ownership includes steilizing your pet."

Those wishing to donate canned pet food in support of "Homeless Animals Day" can visit any of the three MHS shelters – 7401 Chrysler Drive in Detroit, 3600 Auburn Road in Rochester Hills and 37255 Marquette in Westland. Everyone who donates will receive an "I Helped a Homeless Animal" sticker.

Besides spaying or neutering your pet, other ways you can help homeless animals include:

- Adopt an animal from the Michigan Humane Society or your local shelter.
- Make sure your pets wear proper identification at all times.
- Do not adopt a pet unless you are willing to make a lifetime commitment.

All food donated will help feed the more than 52,000 homeless, abandoned and injured animals cared for each year by the MHS.

Open look: Downtown home full of space

You might not think that a downtown residence would have the advantage of wide open spaces. But space is one of the reasons Roy Johnston and Laura Henderson are happy with living in a three-story, Commercial Italianate building in the heart of downtown Ypsilanti.

The residence is one of six from the 19th and early 20th centuries on the Historic Home Tour of the Ypsilanti Heritage Foundation, taking place noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 17.

The tour, an event of the Ypsilanti Heritage Festival, is marking its 20th anniversary this year. A special preservation-related slide presentation will be featured.

Johnston and Henderson bought the property in 1995, a year after Johnston was named head of the art department at Eastern Michigan University. They describe it as a 25-year-old apartment in a 125-year-old house. The main floor houses retail space, the basement Johnston's studio and workshop. The couple live on the upper stories.

They had considered buying a farm, with a barn where Johnston could work on his art. But the downtown structure attracted them.

"I like the open planned space," said Johnston, who can walk to EMU from the house.

"The wide open space, the high ceilings," Henderson said when asked what she liked about the place.

Henderson, who was an antique dealer in Hong Kong and San Francisco, has accumulated a variety of beautiful and fascinating antiques, many of them Oriental. The antiques and energetic paintings by Johnston are displayed to exquisite effect.

Johnston and Henderson removed the khaki paper that covered a wall extending from the second to third level, and painted the wall a brighter, cream color. Other renovations they did included other painting, putting new wallpaper in the kitchen and half-bath and restoring the maple floor in the foyer.

Rooms with views

Among the rooms on the second floor is a cozy sitting or TV room with a fireplace. Shutters that were on the front of the building now enclose a laundry room. A staircase winds upward through a large rectangular area cut by previous owners.

The third floor opens like a flower and contains the living room, dining room, kitchen, deck and half-bath. A skylight is in the center. The berber carpet, resembling sisal, running across the third level and on the stairs is in a cream color similar to the walls.

The living room is over the front of the building. Shades on the tall windows have gold lining, which gives a glow to the room. Ivy, ficus and rubber plants are graceful floral counterparts to the furnishings and accessories. One of the walls is brick.

"The living room lends itself very well to entertaining," Henderson said. "You can have a large group of people... and it doesn't feel crowded."

On the other side of the staircase is the dining room. An elegant chandelier hangs over the rectangular table, and a red Oriental screen stands near one wall. Two different types of chests, one from China and one from Japan, are in this room. Sashes called obis sometimes serve as runners on tabletops.

The half-bath features lacquer red wallpaper, and a corner cupboard that holds Oriental dolls.

The kitchen, which leads to the deck, has brick walls on three sides. Wallpaper on one area bears a pattern of colorful fruit. The tall cupboards are back lit, and their surface matches that of the hood over the stove.

On the deck over the back of the building, petunias, marigolds, impatiens and other flowers are in planters lining the walls and pots on the floor. A pot of sunflowers adds a touch of Provence to the table. Herbs are also raised here.

"When you're out here and you see the church steeples and swallows and nighthawks you could be anywhere in the world," Henderson said.

The structure was built in 1870. A pharmacy and a milliner's shop were early occupants, followed by the Grinnell Brothers music store from 1908 to the early 1970s.

The building was vacant for several years, then used as office and counseling quarters for government social services before subsequent owners made residences out of the upper floors and ran businesses on the first floor.

Proceeds from the Historic Home Tour support an annual scholarship, the Historic Structure Marker Awards, and educational programs related to preservation. Some of the proceeds this year will go to the ceiling mural restoration project at the landmark Hutchinson House.

Advance tickets for the tour are $7 for adults, $6 for seniors and $4 for children under 12, and available at Saxton's Garden Center in Plymouth and businesses in Ypsilanti and Ann Arbor.

After Thursday, tickets are full price ($8 for adults, $7 for seniors and $5 for children under 12) and available only during the Ypsilanti Heritage Festival, at ticket booths in Riverside Park and in front of the Ypsilanti Historical Museum at 220 N. Huron. Call (313) 482-8666 for information.

Invest time in teaching kids value of saving

LISA LUCKOW-HEALY

As parents, we want the best for our children. Our children want whatever their friends have that they don't. We ponder the right ways to teach our children the value of a dollar. The children strategize how to spend it.

There is a family-friendly solution to our dilemma. It begins with the formation of a family investment group.

If the word investment is too formidable for your children, try calling it the family cash club or the family fun fund. The name may change but the purpose remains the same: to save money rather than spend it.

Janet Bodnar, author of "Kiplinger's Money Smart Kids" (Kiplinger Books, Washington, D.C.), said that by the age of 11 or 12, about 10 percent of children advance from savings accounts to stocks and mutual funds.

"Buying your children shares in a company is the best way to get them started in the market," Bodnar said.

The problem many parents face is getting started in what appears to be a very gray area of understanding. How do you explain the stock market or charting a stock to your children when you don't understand it yourself?

Begin with a trip to your local library or bookstore, or consult on-line databases. For a basic understanding of the stock market, as well as other investment alternatives, check out some of the following resources:

• National Association of Investors Corp. – Provides basic information on investing as well as how to start an investment club. For free information on this resource, call (248) 583-6242.

• Value Line Investment Survey – Provides overviews of approximately 2,000 individual companies, including historical price information and earnings and dividends. Value Line also rates each stock. Check your local library for availability or call (800) 833-0046 to subscribe.

• On-line databases – Resources such as America On Line's Personal Finance enables subscribers to monitor their own portfolios through features such as Quote Track.

• Kiplinger's Personal Finance Magazine

• Money Magazine

Creating a family investment group is a great way to spend quality time together while teaching your children that saving has tremendous rewards. After doing your initial research, set aside a few hours on a given evening for the whole family to meet and discuss what each of you will invest and where you will invest it.

Perhaps you wish to start your children off by buying 10 shares of a reliable blue-chip stock for each of them. Blue-chip stocks are those of the biggest, most

Garden spot: This Livonia garden holds both interest and variety

MARTY FIGLEY

A telephone call from Genevieve Sidney of Livonia prompted me to visit her neighbor, Sharron Reska in Livonia, to see her well cared for garden.

Edward and Sharron have lived in their home 32 years and have lovingly developed the landscape.

The first impression I got as I drove in the driveway was neat and tidy. Several island beds have been constructed in the front yard, with white marble stones surrounding the plants. The beds are edged with either gray or red bricks that make a perfect mowing strip around them.

Evergreens are carefully pruned along the front of the house and a small bed in the shape of a heart centers the yard.

In two beds rug Junipers have been pruned very low to form a pattern. One surrounds a light fixture with sedum and begonias interspersed.

A purple lace-leaf Japanese maple has been planted about a foot higher than other plants in the second bed that also features the pruned Juniper. Red barberry frames it. The level of the tree was raised to provide good drainage. The Junipers are trimmed twice a year.

A lovely arbor festooned with pink/purple clematis, with color-matched blooms of liatris standing all alongside, leads into the back yard. Edward, Sharron's husband, created this handsome piece.

Here the patio is surrounded by additional beds. Sharron likes the combination of purples and reds evident in the

JOE GAGNON

Several months ago the residents of a certain area of Westland were hit with a flooded condition in their basements of very serious magnitude. Several hundred homeowners were in a very serious frame of mind when I stood in front of them to discuss what should be done with appliances.

I talked about refrigerators and motors which might have been hurt during this flood and what to be careful of. At the conclusion of my short talk I found it necessary to give them my viewpoint on the subject because I thought the audience might think it self serving for my business to tell them to replace the complete gas valve in their dryer. I felt that even though the gas valve is sealed it still has an orifice which allows gas to exit and burn during operation. It seemed apparent to me and later proven true that water would enter this orifice and cause corrosion to form inside the valve. The valve would operate for a while and I couldn't be sure how long that would be.

I tried to explain that this corrosive action could cause the valve to stay in the open position when it should be closed. As a result the gas would pour out of the valve and cause a deadly situation. Now couple the above with the fact that some of this flood water contained raw sewage and you have an even more explosive situation.

The very next morning a friend from another service company called me and told me that a certain manufacturer he called told him I was all wet with my theory. I stuck to my story and told him that we were not going into a home and fix or check out a dryer without changing the gas valve or at least informing the consumer. After some gentle persuasion on my part, he decided to do it my way. Several months have now passed since that flood and, yes, things have happened to gas valves to prove me correct.

My son Shawn, who has been doing service in your homes for the past 15 years, has never before seen so many gas valve failures. He has replaced many in the very homes which were flooded and a few of them almost exploded off the face of this earth. I have seen more homeowners bring their valves in for repair to my store. These customers were aware enough to smell the gas when the valve failed and wise enough to do the repairs themselves.

Flooded basements or laundry rooms are not uncommon in this part of the country. Please make a copy of this column and the next time your relative or friend tells you about their flooded basement, give them a copy.

To the readers of this column who live in that flooded neighborhood and have yet to have a problem with their gas valve on their clothes dryers, I say this, "Come and see me. I will show you how to remove your gas valve and you'll see how simple it is. I will change the gas valve bracket and coils etc. and you will pay exactly what I pay for it. There will be no labor charge for doing this and no profit mad by anyone except you." IT COULD SAVE YOUR LIFE.

Joe Gagnon, the Appliance Doctor, will answer your questions about maintaining and repairing large appliances. Gagnon is president of Carmack Appliances in Garden City and does a weekly radio program on WJR-AM. He is author of "First Aid from the Appliance Doctor," available at area bookstores.

Lemonade stands serve up aid for storm victims

The "Kids helping Kids" lemonade stands at Scott Shuptrine Fine Furniture's annual Tent Sale, which took place July 11-21, raised nearly $1,100 for the American Red Cross Disaster Relief Fund for the victims of the Storm of '97.

Each year, Scott Shuptrine donates all proceeds from the sale of refreshments during its Tent Sale.

This year, the theme was "Kids helping Kids," where local children set up and ran lemonade stands. The lemonade was provided by Olga's Kitchen at 12 Oaks Mall in Novi and Oakland Mall in Troy.

Founded in 1927, Scott Shuptrine has stores in Novi and Troy.

landscape. Brick chips as well as the white marble have been used in some areas.

In one bed a bottle brush has been trimmed like a small tree. Its tall purple foliage matches the smoke bush on one side and a small maple tree (with a lighter shade) on the other.

"If I want something to grow out of the ordinary, I trim it until I get my desired results," Sharron said. "I have never lost a plant (due to pruning)."

There is something to see at every turn in this garden. "I love garden art," Sharron said, and many different examples have been used.

Driftwood has been artfully placed, wind-driven pieces add interest and wind chimes add a tinkling sound. Hanging baskets add color as do other containers set on bricks, logs, etc. If there isn't enough color to suit, artificial flowers are mixed with the real or used to fill in.

Interesting textured patio stones are placed for easy access into the beds; one in the shape of a shoe print.

Edward drilled holes into a large lava rock that now holds impatiens and sedums. Along the back wall of the home, a climbing hydrangea and a honeysuckle add height.

Each individual plant such as hosta and lavender takes center stage where it can be enjoyed for its particular beauty. Sharron keeps them contained by pinching, which also makes them grow more fully.

Another interesting structure caught my eye. A beautiful trellis has been installed into a center bed in the back yard. It is about six feet tall and is made of cement reinforcing rod.

This is another of Edward's creations. He told Sharron, after seeing wrought-iron trellises in a magazine, that he could make her something – which turned out to be a Mother's Day present.

The design contains unusual curlicues (he used a garden hose as a pattern for this embellishment) and has been painted black to resemble iron. Sharron has planted climbing white roses to grow on it and anticipates successful results.

A sprinkler system is installed and used when necessary. The very healthy plants are treated with Miracle-Gro every three weeks; Muracid is used on the impatiens if they need it.

The lawn is dense with grass and, as with the gardens, are cared for by the Reskas. They use an off-brand fertilizer (generally one low in nitrogen such as 12-12-12) on the lawn beginning the end of May and apply it three times during the growing season. They find this fertilizer at Chap's Pet Store, Five Mile and Merriman in Livonia.

It's always fun and a great learning experience to visit with gardeners who enjoy what they do and have something to share. If you have a garden, or know of a garden to feature in this column, please contact me through my voice mail number. (Dial (313) 953-2047 on a touch-tone phone, then mailbox number 1859.) profitable companies.

On the other hand, give your children some freedom to select their own stocks. It's often a good idea to observe the companies that manufacture products that are becoming trends with young people, and potentially buy into them before the market becomes too saturated with competitors.

"Once your kids have settled on a company, help them purchase a share or two by going through a discount broker to minimize commissions on small purchases."

A family investment group promotes family togetherness. Everyone has a common focus in tracking investment performance and comparing notes.

Perhaps you spend time with your children at the breakfast table reviewing their stock in the morning paper. Maybe your 8-year-old asks you to help him review his stock performance on-line after dinner each night.

As a family, agree to reconvene one day each week to review everyone's investment performance.

If your family investment group doesn't feel comfortable with the risks of the stock market, consider other options such as mutual funds, high-interest savings accounts, bank certificates of deposit and savings bonds.

"Getting your kids to save at all is great. Getting them to appreciate the risks and rewards of various kinds of investments is icing on the cake."

Pass the good word about Michigan's STATE FAIR

BY KEELY WYGONIK
AND CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITERS

It wasn't too long ago that people would say "doomed," when you asked them about the Michigan State Fair.

"Word of mouth is our best seller," said John Hertel who was appointed general manager by Gov. John Engler after attendance dropped to an all-time low of 163,000 people in 1993. "If we can get them here to see that it isn't dirty, rundown or unsafe, they'll come back."

When this year's fair opens Tuesday, Aug. 19, Hertel and his staff will be hoping for blue skies and sunshine, and that word gets out about all the positive changes – restorations of buildings, and emphasis on cleanliness, safety and quality – that have been happening at the fairgrounds since 1993. Last year attendance was more than 400,000.

"We are located within one hour's drive time of five million people, half the people of the state," said Hertel. "Except for a sporting event, there are few places people from urban, suburban and rural communities come together in one place."

The Michigan State Fair, originally held in 1849, only 11 years after Michigan became a state, was conceived to foster communication between farmers and city folk.

It was thought that farmers could learn the benefits of the latest machinery by visiting Detroit, and city dwellers could learn about produce and livestock, where their food came from and how their food was produced. This concept evolved over years to include recreation and entertainment, but education is still one of the fair's most important missions.

You can visit with farmers and their livestock, check out the blue ribbon fruits and vegetables in Kellogg's Agricultural Building, and witness cows, ewes and sows giving birth at the Blue Cross and Blue Shield/Michigan Farm Bureau's Miracle of Live Birthing Exhibit, presented by the Michigan State University College of Veterinary Medicine.

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources has designed a 50,000-square-foot pocket park near the Community Arts Building to help visitors try out or learn about hunting, fishing and outdoor recreational activities.

"Through this exhibit we hope to encourage families and individuals to visit our state parks and forests, learn more about fishing and hunting, and seek out more ways in which they can participate in Michigan's great outdoors," said Bruce Matthews, chief of the DNR Office of Information and Education.

A Welcome Tent at the exhibit has interactive displays where visitors can identify fish and learn about Michigan's wildlife. Two 250-gallon aquariums will hold fish typically found in southeast Michigan lakes and streams. The Brook Trout station, one of three located along a wheelchair-accessible pathway, features casting pools where people can try their skills at fishing. Fishing techniques and tips will be demonstrated by various fishing groups and organizations. There will also be a children's activity area.

Two performances by well-known children's entertainers including Richard Paul, Jim Carmody, Mark Thomas and Josh White Jr., will be presented each day at the Gazebo in the center of the Picnic Grove. In the Community Arts Auditorium, DMC Children's Hospital of Michigan Children's Theater will tell the story of "Jack and the Beanstalk," 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. Monday-Friday, and 1 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays.

Bo Diddley ideal grand master of Woodward Cruise

BY FRANK PROVENZANO
STAFF WRITER

First, the driving beat. Add a few seventh chords to a I-IV-V progression and you've got accompanying music for a nostalgic cruise down Woodward. If the sound is coming from Bo Diddley, then you've got a rhythm and blues crusin' classic. Which might make the trip even more evocative.

These might be the retro '90s, but hey baby, hold on.

That "man amongst men" ain't some relic. Although pushing 70, Diddley proved that he's prepared to take his soulful rock and rhythms to the grave. Last year's acclaimed album, "A Man Amongst Men" prove that.

Diddley will bring his brand of raw testosterone and self-effacing songwriting to the renovated Magic Bag in Ferndale this Saturday.

He may have broken through in the early 1950s, but Diddley is still pounding out what is now referred to as "classic rock." Has Bo Diddley gone traditional? Heck, his song catalog proves his hell-bent outlook hasn't changed in 50 years.

Among his hits are "I'm a Man," "Pretty Thing," "Diddy Wah Diddy," "Who Do You Love," "Hey, Bo Diddley," and "Hush Your Mouth." A jive dialogue in his 1959 song, "Say Man," is considered a precursor to rap.

"Who else but a true legend of rock and roll should be here to epitomize the spirit of the 1950s and 1960s in the (Woodward) Dream Cruise," said Bethany Bain-Chamberlain, spokesperson of the Magic Bag.

Last February, she noted, Diddley received the Lifetime Achievement Award from the Rhythm & Blues Foundation. In 1987, he was inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame.

While not formally nominated for the honor, Diddley might be the ideal choice as grand master of this weekend's crusin' parade up Woodward. His music spans the time when Woodward Avenue developed from a country road to a concrete path from the Detroit River through urban grittiness to suburban sprawl and affluence.

If there were any doubters to Diddley's musical longevity, check out the list of contemporary musicians who point to the Mississippi-born legend as a major influence – Eric Clapton, Keith

SRO serves up slice of pie

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
STAFF WRITER

SRO Productions present Francine Hachem's "A Piece of American Pie" 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays, Aug. 15-16 and 22-23 and 2 p.m. Sundays, Aug. 17 and 24 at The Burgh on the northeast corner of Civic Center Drive and Berg Road, one block east of Telegraph in Southfield. Tickets are $12 for general seating and includes entertainment and refreshments during admission. Call (248) 827-0700.

The best part of rehearsing for the upcoming production "A Piece of American Pie" for Sarah Buehler is singing Gloria Gaynor's "I Will Survive." The song boosts Buehler's spirits and she needs that now. Doctors wired Buehler's teeth in place last week after the Livonia resident was involved in a car accident. But Buehler troops on, rehearsing three days a week for the show about American women.

"It's fun and I love that song," said Buehler during a brief phone interview.

Buehler plays the role of a young woman in the musical revue. The show tracks the different phases of a woman's life and spans a period of time from Abigail Adams to Madonna. Actresses Kimberly Renfrew Gebbie of Rochester, Diane Sievers and Jodie Kuhn Ellison, Royal Oak and Francine Hachem and Rio Scafone, Ferndale, represent the other stages with songs such as "Take Me Out to the Ball Game, "Come In From the Rain," "Under the Boardwalk," "God Bless America," and a Judy Garland medley. •

Buehler sings "Because You Love Me" to portray the importance of a young girl's formative years. The 17-year-old was inspired to pursue a career in musical theater after studying voice and theater in the Creative and Performing Arts Program at Livonia's Churchill High School. She begins studies at Wright State University in Dayton, Ohio, this fall.

"The song shows how the love of your mentors and teachers makes you a stronger person and makes you who you are," said Buehler.

Francine Hachem created and directs the musical tribute to women. Hachem received her theater training at Willoway Apprentice Theater in Bloomfield Hills. Her directing credits include stints with the Plymouth Theatre Guild and West End Productions. The feminism of the 1970s urged equality for women in all aspects of American life. Women went to work full-time, in most instances while juggling a marriage and children. Hachem juggled theatrical endeavors and working in the accounting department at the Chrysler Corp. for 30 years until retiring in December. Now, Hachem plans to devote the rest of her life to theater.

"It's a slice we're taking from the pie to celebrate women of all ages," Hachem. "It's a consciousness raiser and has information people forgot or didn't know or understand."

"A Piece of American Pie" looks at life from a female perspective: the struggles, joys and power of women. The cast of five spent the last three months rehearsing the songs and monologues. Rio Scafone musically directs the cast to squeeze every drop of emotion from the lyrics.

Richards, Ron Wood and Richie Sambora.

Along with Muddy Waters, John Lee Hooker and Chuck Berry, Diddley's music forms the rhythm and blues backbone of rock and roll music. A musical form energized by Elvis, broadened by the Beatles and sustained by the Rolling Stones, The Who, Led Zeppelin and other innovative rock bands.

These days, however, Diddley might be better remembered by the younger crowd for his commercial appearances. Several years ago, he appeared in Nike ads alongside another "Bo" – former athlete Bo Jackson. And last year, he was featured in Taco Bell's "Run for the Border" commercials.

Yet it's not all about commercialism for Diddley. He performs concerts and campaigns on behalf of the homeless, and is active in the anti-drug movement.

When the kids get restless parents can take them over to the Farmer Jack Kids Games Pavilion where they can take part in potato sack races, the spaghetti eating contest or sugar cube stack.

Every day at 4 p.m. area high school marching bands, girl and boy scout troops, clowns and more will participate in the Ford Motor Co. Parade showcasing new Ford products.

Participating bands from Observer & Eccentric communities include, Farmington Harrison High School Marching Band (4 & 6 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 19), Garden City High School Marching Band (4 p.m. Friday, Aug. 22), Birmingham Seaholm High School (4 & 6 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 23), and North Farmington High School (4 & 6 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 27).

The East Lansing rock band The Verve Pipe will be among the acts headlining the band shell. The quintet, whose RCA debut album "Villains" has sold more than 1 million copies thanks in part to the single "The Freshmen," performs Saturday, Aug. 30.

James Brown and Little Richard kick off the fair on Tuesday, Aug. 19. Joe Walsh (Wednesday, Aug. 20), 702 and 112 (Friday, Aug. 22), John Michael Montgomery (Monday, Aug. 25), former New Edition singer Johnny Gill (Friday, Aug. 29), and the dance acts Crystal Waters, Robin S., and Lil' Susie (Sunday, Aug. 31) are among those slated to appear.

■ 'We want people to know that we're a venue that has a little bit of Pine Knob, a little bit of the Detroit Zoo. It's a combination of going to your uncle's farm, Cedar Point, Pine Knob, and your favorite art festival.'

Laurie Allen Marrocco
assistant general manager

"We certainly know that there's a direct correlation with the kind of entertainment we have and the kind of attendance we have," said Laurie Allen Marrocco, the fair's assistant general manager.

"We want people to know that we're a venue that has a little bit of Pine Knob, a little bit of the Detroit Zoo. It's a combination of going to your uncle's farm, Cedar Point, Pine Knob, and your favorite art festival."

The concerts are held 8 p.m. nightly in the bandshell and are free with a paid admission.

Also new this year is the Budweiser Beer School where you can learn how to brew beer from Anheuser-Busch brew masters, and earn a beer master diploma.

For thrill seekers there's the midway with more than 65 wild rides from which to choose, and Pepsi's Screaming Swing, an electrifying ride that raises its riders 180 feet above the earth, rotating in a full 360 degree loop at speeds of 65 miles per hour.

As the fair looks forward to next year's 150th anniversary celebration, the changes made since 1993 are already paying off. The fair is no longer subsidized by the state, and corporate sponsorship is growing.

"The Michigan State Fair is a Michigan institution that was in danger of not existing," Hertel said. "We want you to know the State Fair will stay in Detroit. Michigan deserves a great state fair."

Street performers run special risks

BACKSTAGE PASS

ANN DELISI

Tonight on Backstage Pass at 9:30 on Detroit Public Television, we continue our summer season with a look at artists with similar roots. Performers are special people who expose themselves to enormous risks every time they go on stage. After all, poll after poll tabs public speaking as Americans' most common fear. What if you bomb? What if you freeze up? What if the audience doesn't like you?

All valid worries, but now take it to the next level: what if the audience just keeps on walking? That's street performing, the toughest job in the arts. And on tonight's Backstage Pass, we enjoy the work of two former streetcorner artists who are achieving mainstream success.

Madeline Peyroux learned her craft from the street musicians of Paris' Latin Quarter. When she was 16, she started as a hat passer for a group of busking musicians called The Riverboat Shufflers, eventually convincing them to let her sing. The results were so impressive that the leader of a competing busking troupe, The Lost Wandering Blues & Jazz Band, gave her an impromptu audition. He liked what he heard, and Madeline spent the next three years touring Europe in a cramped Mercedes.

Madeline's voice is so hauntingly reminiscent of Billie Holiday that she cannot escape constant comparisons to the enigmatic blues diva. In fact, she lists a whole roster of influences, including Patsy Cline, Fats Waller and Bessie Smith. But perhaps her strongest influences come from the streets themselves. As Madeline says, "Songs I learned from different friends will always be associated with those street musicians I met in Paris. With a song like 'Walkin' After Midnight,' there's more to it because you've lived it. And if you were sitting at home trying to make sense of a piece of sheet music. It's a whole other world." Peyroux recently made her Atlantic Records debut with her new CD, "Dreamland." Tonight, we'll bring you her performance of the Fats Waller classic, "I'm Gonna Sit Right Down and Write Myself a Letter."

Closer to home, Robert Bradley got his chops on the streets of Detroit. His father moved the family to the Motor City in the mid '60s when he scored a job as an auto plant. Robert dropped out of high school and traveled the country performing music wherever he could – coffee houses, Baptist churches, and of course, on the streets.

In 1968, he returned home to Detroit, for years a fixture passing the hat at Eastern Market.

Then one spring day in '92 while working the corner of Griswold and State, Robert's voice carried through an open window at White Room Studios, where the former members of EMI Records alternative band Second Self were playing. They loved what they heard and coaxed him into the studio to jam. They've been together ever since and recently released their self-titled debut CD, "Robert Bradley's Blackwater Surprise," on the RCA Record Label. Tonight, we'll air for you the first cut off their CD, a visceral blues riff called "Belly Bone."

When you think of fine art, where do you picture it? In a museum? In an exclusive private collection? Well, we started a regular series of reports in our first season that fits the peripatetic theme of tonight's show: We set out to demonstrate that you can find art in the most unexpected places, and one of our Backstage Pass art correspondents, Gerry Craig, is a case in point. Gerry curates the Wildlife Interpretive Gallery at the Detroit Zoo and she continues to be our guide to art in unusual places all over Detroit.

It all started with the personal tour she gave me of the Wildlife Interpretive Gallery, a permanent exhibit that can be seen seven days a week, with rotating shows in the exhibit hall throughout the year. The next temporary exhibit is "Coral Reef Masterpiece Photography," which opens Sept. 6.

Also on the Big Show, we look at the debut production by the Detroit Actors Guild at the Alley Theatre, Terrence McNally's "Frankie and Johnny in the Claire de Lune."

We were graced with a scene from the play performed by actors Mary Bremer and David Regal. While they're on summer hiatus from theatre production, the Alley is presenting "Detroit Unplugged," a showcase of local musical performers every Thursday night, including some Backstage Pass alumni. All this happens tonight at 9:30 on Channel 56. Now get out there!

Family tradition: Ziggy Marley and the Melody Makers

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Within the last couple years, Ziggy Marley and the Melody Makers have done the House of Blues Smokin' Grooves Tour, Lollapalooza, and a Canadian multiband tour. After hanging around with so many rock bands, Sharon Marley is feeling a little differently about her music.

"It's interesting the people they (booking agents) hook us up with. It's good for our mental capacity because we get to socialize with people from totally different backgrounds. But there's so many different rock groups that we've sung with that I feel like a rock group," she said with a laugh.

Marley explained, however, that she prefers to play for crowds who aren't primarily rock fans.

"Smokin' Grooves was a nice mix because it had rappers, rock, and of course, it had reggae. You get a cross section of the whole thing. When it's only, like, rock, the crowd is wilder. They do that body surfing thing when everybody's going crazy."

Once again, however, Ziggy Marley and the Melody Makers is paired up with a rock band, Big Head Todd and the Monsters. The tour comes to Pine Knob Music Theatre in Independence Township at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 26.

The Melody Makers are touring in support of its latest album, "Fallen Is Babylon," which highlights the band's version of Curtis Mayfield's "People Get Ready," and "Everybody Wants to Be" featuring Wyclef of the Fugees. Marley is looking forward to performing songs off the album.

"I was getting kind of bored with our last show because we were on the road for a year and a half. I kept asking, 'When are we going to change the format?' Finally we have this new album. I can't wait to get out there. It's very exciting," she explained.

"I have this feeling that Ziggy is getting very experimental. He's going to be doing some a capella stuff. There's conga drums, big bass drums so there's more like a chanting feeling to some of the songs. It's becoming more spiritual in the performance itself."

The children of Bob Marley, Ziggy Marley and the Melody Makers grew up listening to a variety of music.

"We weren't really focused on reggae. We listened to a lot of gospel stuff, Stevie Wonder stuff. There was a lot of Al Green around, and Patti LaBelle and The Blue Belles. We had a lot of different backgrounds in music."

"We used to listen to some classical music. On Sundays in Jamaica, classical music is the only thing they play on the radio. I think by listening to all that music we appreciate the different feelings you get from different music. It's a vibe thing really. With some music, you can really dance to it, and it's really fun. With other music you sit down and really listen to appreciate what's going on."

At home in Kingston, Jamaica, the Melody Makers keep busy recording and distributing their own music, while running Tuff Gong, Bob Marley's record company. The group also designs its own clothes and choreography.

"Apart from the music, we all have children to look after. We have the Bob Marley Museum, that also falls under our own responsibility. We have to make sure everything is in proper order and represents what our father was about."

Sharon Marley explained that she doesn't feel any pressure to live up to her father's reputation.

"I feel pressure to live up to my own expectations. If I sing a wrong note, I'll never forgive myself and I can't sleep. The worst thing is to go on stage and make a mistake. I think I am my own worst critic. I live up to my own expectations because, you see, while our father was around he didn't live up to anybody's expectations. He was an individual in himself. We're all individuals. We all have our different personalities."

Ziggy Marley and the Melody Makers, along with Big Head Todd and the Monsters co-headline an all-ages show at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 26, at Pine Knob Music Theatre, I-75 and Sashabaw Road, Independence Township. Tickets are $22.50 pavilion and $12.50 lawn. For more information, call (248) 377-0100.

'OK Computer' downloads singer's discomfort with technology

CHRISTINA FUOCO

Radiohead's latest album "OK Computer" (Capital) is a difficult listen. The first single "Paranoid Android" is a 6 1/2-minute winding road of complex time changes, enraged lyrics ("You don't remember, why don't you remember my name? Off with his head. Off with his head, man"), and Thom York's roller-coaster vocals that soar at one moment and dissolve into a mumble at others.

In "Exit Music (For A Film)" Yorke is accompanied intermittently by acoustic guitars, and fuzzy guitars and bass. Chiming guitars sparkle throughout "Let Down" surrounding Yorke's lyrics "Hysterical and let down and hanging around. Crushed like a bug in the ground." Shivering guitars cradle Yorke's unease as he sings "Phew, for a minute there I lost myself. I lost myself" until it drifts into a pile of distortion on "Karma Police."

A musically rollicking "Electioneering" follows the grim, computer-animated tale "Filter Happier."

Twelve different songs for 12 different moods.

"It was nerve wracking at first," guitarist/vocalist Ed O'Brien admits about the initial release of "OK Computer."

"A lot of people have said it's an amazing album after a couple listens. I asked if people nowadays give albums a couple listens and the answer's been yes. Generally, albums these days have got to be accessible immediately but some of my favorite albums are the ones that have grown on me."

Calling from San Francisco, Calif., O'Brien explains that "OK Computer" has apparently grown on fans as well. Nearly all the shows on its headlining tour, including the Friday, Aug. 15, show at the State Theatre in Detroit, have sold out.

"We've done the first two dates in Los Angeles and San Francisco and it was pretty good; not bad for the first few dates of any tour. When you start touring properly it can be a bit precarious, but the crowds have been brilliant."

The English band recorded "OK Computer" at various points from September 1995 through Christmas 1996 taking time in between to "play in" the new material.

"We worked on it off and on for a year. We did a lot of touring in that time. We did European festivals. We did our own tour of the United States. We also opened for Alanis Morissette for three or four weeks. We find touring is a very creative time for us. We play in new material during soundchecks and incorporate them into the sets."

On Radiohead's first two albums, "Pablo Honey" and "The Bends" the eccentric Yorke worked through some inner demons. "OK Computer," with its running them of maladjustment in a modern world, offers a whole new viewpoint, O'Brien explained.

"Lyrically, it comes from Thom so he had an agenda. The main thing that's different from 'The Bends' in that 'The Bends' was a lot more introspective. 'OK Computer' is more from the outside in and reporting on it and documenting things. I think Thom deliberately did what he had to do on 'The Bends' and he didn't want to have to do it again."

One thing that remains constant with Radiohead is its affinity for off-beat videos. "Paranoid Android" is in effect an episode of "Robin," a twisted Swedish cartoon that makes Beavis and Butt-head look like Dennis the Menace.

"If we'd done a video with us in it, with the three sections of the song, it would seem to need something. You could do so much more with animation. It set the right mood for the song. It's a bit weird. There's a lot of black humor in it, but it's just right."

• Opening for Radiohead is the Scottish pop band Teenage Fanclub who is supporting its fifth album "Songs from Northern Britain," its first for Creation/Columbia Records which hit stores Tuesday, July 29.

Being on a new label, bassist/vocalist Gerard Love explained, changed the band's feelings about promoting a record.

"This is a fresh approach to working in the American market for us. With 'Bandwagonesque' (the band's 1991 album) there was a lot of hate involved. We didn't want media interest. Now we actually feel a lot more comfortable being written about. We're better at it (interviews) and we're a better band."

Radiohead and Teenage Fanclub perform Friday, Aug. 15, at the State Theatre, 2115 Woodward Ave., Detroit. Doors open at 6:30 p.m. for the all-ages show. For more information, call (313) 961-5451.

Moore, Roberts sink in late summer screen entries

TICKETS PLEASE

JOHN MONAGHAN

Despite being two of Hollywood's most popular actresses, Demi Moore and Julia Roberts have a knack for picking doomed projects that serve neither their talents or their audiences.

This summer's examples: Moore baring brawn over breasts in "G.I. Jane," a grueling Navy training film directed by Ridley Scott.

Then Roberts plays government agent to coverup-crazy Mel Gibson in "Conspiracy Theory," which, if not the worst film of the summer, is certainly the most misguided.

"G.I. Jane" recounts the trials and tribulations of the fictionalized first woman inducted into the elite Navy SEALS. She's given the opportunity by a vote-hungry senator (Anne Bancroft), who makes the progressive gesture assuming the woman won't stick it out.

And we have our doubts as well. The training is the kind of sadistic onslaught that is supposed to toughen up a young recruit for combat. The Master Sergeant, while calling you a maggot, will push your head into the mud with the steel toe of his boot and then justify it with, "What I'm doing could save your life."

Three quarters of the film is taken up by this kind of punishment, to the point where not just Moore, but the audience, feels like it has been standing out in the cold with a water-filled raft over its head. Do we really want to go through the ordeal?

Stanley Kubrick trod similar ground in the first half of "Full Metal Jacket," but there was a method to the madness. It not only boasted an Oscar-worthy performance by Lee Ermey as the bile-spewing D.I., but a decidedly cynical view of organized cruelty. "G.I. Jane" wants to have it both ways, demonizing the military while simultaneously waving the flag.

It's Moore's insatiable exhibitionism that gets on my nerves most in "G.I. Jane." Along with requisite shots of her in the shower and a bubble bath, we are treated to images of the newly buff Moore shaving her head (I haven't seen so many camera angles for one military cut since Elvis' induction) and performing pushups in sweaty slow motion.

The Navy SEALS have one idea right: when you get too tired to continue the program, simply ring a bell three times and you're out. Moviegoers have an even simpler option. They don't have to show up at all for this cinematic ordeal.

"Conspiracy Theory"

If it wasn't for her charming performance in "My Best Friend's Wedding," Julia Roberts would be in big trouble. Her latest film would be just another in an uninterrupted series of bad moves ("Mary Reilly," "I Love Trouble," "The Pelican Brief" and a half dozen others) designed to display her questionable range. "Conspiracy Theory" is the worst of the bunch, an idea that obviously spun out of control since its original inception. Is it an eccentric black comedy? A nail-biting thriller? An unorthodox love story? The filmmakers apparently didn't know either, giving test audiences the final say by filming two different endings.

Mel Gibson plays an unlikely New York cabbie who sees government cover-up around every corner. In his cluttered, Mylar-papered apartment where even the Tupperware containers are kept under lock and key, he pounds out a newsletter about his latest suspicions.

He does manage to get the ear of an attractive young government agent (Roberts), who doesn't necessarily believe him but listens anyway.

When the CIA-connected Patrick Stewart threatens the cabby's life and those associated with him, both are forced to run for their lives.

Gibson's performance borders on the embarrassing. Even Roberts seems to stand off to the side, looking on like a deer in the headlights, as he goes into his overwrought version of Rain Man with a toothpick and stocking cap.

Just how sympathetic is his character supposed to be when he spends most of his nights peeping into Roberts' apartment with binoculars?

Any good conspiracy theorist will give you a thread of truth to make you at least want to buy their story. "Conspiracy Theory's" nonstop rambling of coincidence, government idiocy and lame explanations makes even Roswell believable in comparison.

Wild America

Readers share 'wild' animal stories inspired by film

Seeing a bear cub up north while looking for deer, and meeting a cute woodchuck in Heritage Park, are two of the "Wild" adventure stories reader shared with us to win a "Wild America" prize package consisting of a T-shirt and camera.

Jonathan Taylor Thomas, Devon Sawa and Scott Bairstow star as the daredevil Stouffer brothers in "Wild America," now showing at metro Detroit movie theaters. The outdoor action/adventure tale that follows the brothers as they travel cross country with their camera in 1967 to film America's vanishing wildlife.

Here are our reader's stories.

■ "My wildlife adventure happened up north while looking for deer," wrote Elizabeth Langer of West Bloomfield. "We were surprised and excited to see a bear cub. I got out of the jeep to take a picture and the cub scrambled up a tree. When I looked up I saw two more cubs in the tree. Then I spotted a mama bear watching me from behind some ferns."

■ Leon Schoichit of Farmington Hills met Suzy the woodchuck at Heritage Park in Farmington Hills. "She was grazing on grass after a long winter in hibernation underground," wrote Schoichit. "She's plump & she waddles when she walks. One fine day I heard her emitting a few short, low growls. I stood very still and quiet for about five minutes; out of three of her underground tunnels, out popped three baby woodchucks, one from each hole in the ground. Suzy was relaxing nearby on a huge rock enjoying a sun bath. I got quite a few good photos of her, but not the babies; they're too sensitive & aware, it's impossible to approach them. Suzy is very cute. She appears to be soft and cuddly. It's a real pleasure to watch her.

■ "We went out on a rowboat with my grandpa and a bunch of swans started to follow us," wrote Kelly Gosselin of Livonia. "I think they wanted food, but we didn't have any with us. I think they looked so pretty swimming in the water."

■ Not many people can say they were kissed by a giraffe, but Sara Taube of Livonia can. She was only 3 and at the circus with her gram, mom, sister and cousin. "They had a place where you could ride the elephants, camels and horses" her gram explained in a letter. "They also had an area where you could pet baby animals. We were in that area when a baby giraffe bent over and gave me a big "lick kiss." One sweep of his tongue covered my whole face. It felt like sandpaper, and really scared me. I'm glad my grandma saw it. She is the only

DINING

AlexSandra's Opa is authentically Greek

BY LAURIE HUMPHREY
SPECIAL WRITER

Westsiders who love Greek food no longer have to travel to downtown Detroit to get a little OPAaaa!

Alexandra Sakellaris of Farmington Hills saw to that Wednesday, June 18, with the opening of her new restaurant.

"We wanted to bring a little bit of Greek Town to the west side," said the owner of AlexSandra's Opa in Livonia. The restaurant, on the lower level of Bobby's Country House, "serves authentic Greek cuisine for a very good price."

The lunch menu boasts everything from orektika (appetizers) to kota (chicken) to thalassina (seafood) for an average of $5.95. For those desiring variety, there's AlexSandra's Duo or Trio – a combination plate offering moussaka, pastitsio and spanakotyropita for under $8.

Don't worry if you can't pronounce the names, the waitstaff at AlexSandra's Opa has been specially trained to provide a helping hand on pronunciation, food selections and wine.

"All of them have tasted the food and wine," said Sakellaris, 46.

The dinner menu features many of the same dishes for a modest increase in price – $6.95-$16. There are a few surprises however, like the "famous Athenian-style broiled chicken."

"It takes 25 to 30 minutes to cook, but it is delicious."

And what would a Greek restaurant be without grape leaves? Patrons of AlexSandra's Opa will never have to find out. Dolmathes, or stuffed grape leaves, are made with seasoned ground beef and rice served with avgolemono (egg-lemon) sauce. A variety of Greek beers and coffee will top off the meal.

"When you feel like Greek food, you should come here," exclaimed the proud owner and single mother of two.

When asked which meal would attract the most attention, she hesitated, then answered.

"We have a wonderful chicken with artichokes and lemon, but the emphasis is our excellent lamb chops." They are all served with a small Greek salad and a smile.

The man behind all of these authentic Greek delicacies is Christos, who at 57 has been in the restaurant business most of his life. Although he received no formal culinary education, he has not heard any complaints yet.

"This comes natural to Greek people," said Sakellaris, who has also been in the restaurant business for years.

"I've been in the restaurant business since I was 15. I started in the original Seros on Griswold and State (in Detroit)."

One might say restaurateuring is in Sakellaris's blood.

"My parents were in the business, Bobby's family was in the business and Bobby and I were the husband/wife team for 25 years," she said. "He died last December, but this was his last wish – this restaurant. Six months to the date of his death, we opened the restaurant."

Her partner may be gone, but the legacy will continue in her sons, Yanni, 16, and Alexandros, 13.

"They are my busboys," she said, "but they want to go into the business when they grow up."

Before turning over the reins however, Sakellaris will teach the boys the family restaurant philosophies: "Make the restaurant cozy," "all our employees are friends" and "all our customers become friends."

Sakellaris discovered just how many friends she had on Monday, June 16, the grand opening celebration of AlexSandra's Opa. Even Livonia Mayor Jack Kirksey paid a visit.

"We had over 1,000 people," she said. "We sent out 1,500 invitations but expected 800."

She handled the crowd easily, directing people to the bar and the hors d'oeuvres table, where they could sample some of the menu items.

"They loved it," she said, "and if they like the food on a chaffing dish, can you imagine how much they will like it when it comes straight from the kitchen?"

Aside from authentic Greek cuisine, patrons of AlexSandra's Opa will find authentic Greek antiques amidst the modern decor. One such item is a "koboloe" – or worry beads.

"I don't know why they call them worry beads, because the men weren't worrying," she said, "but there is a story behind them."

According to Sakellaris, men just had to do something with their hands, so they played with these beads. It's the historic equivalent to the modern act of jingling pocket change.

As for future plans, there is no immediate urge to open another AlexSandra's Opa, or even change the menu.

"We're not ruling it out, we just have enough to do now," she said. "We'll see what the public wants."

All Sakellaris wants is for people to "enjoy the casual atmosphere and excellent Greek food" at AlexSandra's Opa. It's an opportunity she made possible thanks to the direction of her late husband, and friends Audrey Besso, Lee and Bob Alanskas.

"Bobby really started this, and he guided my all the way ... Lee, Bob and Audrey were always there."

SELLING REAL ESTATE CAN BE RISKY BUSINESS

HELEN FURCEAN / STAFF ARTIST

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

Real estate is a people business. Some people aren't nice. That's why Realtors should be aware of personal safety as they go about their daily tasks.

"My experience is Realtors ... look for the best in people not the worst so they're most vulnerable," said Michael Peck, executive vice president of the Western Wayne Oakland County Association of Realtors.

Encountering strangers at open houses, working alone in the office at night and driving in unfamiliar neighborhoods create the potential for an unwelcome contact.

While attacks are rare, they do happen.

"In 27 years, I'm aware of three Realtors who have been killed (none locally)," Peck said. "Probably 10 times in 27 years I can recall a Realtor being raped, assaulted, beat up."

Nancy Sielaff, a sales associate with Coldwell Banker Schweitzer in Bloomfield Hills and a karate black belt, says Realtors should always tune in to their surroundings.

"A lot of people go around with their heads up in the clouds," she said. "Listen to your own intuition."

One of the first lessons of childhood especially applies here. Be cautious of strangers.

"When you meet someone for the first time, always meet in the office," Peck said. "You never meet someone for the first time in a vacant home. You take someone with you. If worse comes to worst, you don't meet them."

That bears repeating time and time again.

"Kiss off the listing before you put yourself at risk," said Michael E. Cole, president of Be Safe, Inc. in Troy. "That can be replaced. You can't."

If you're uncomfortable, cancel an appointment and reschedule for another time when you can take along a colleague, Sielaff suggested.

Here are other things Realtors can do:

- "I'd prefer to do an open house with another person. For the safety of things in the house, I'd feel better. I just feel safety in numbers. That's a good time to take the new person in the office and get some exposure." – Sielaff.
- "Cellular phones are a great idea. They've been a great boon to giving security. – Peck.
- "I would always let clients lead the way in a house. They go first, you follow. You're not going to be cornered." – Sielaff.
- "Don't verbally spar with anyone. First, it can entice a person to action that wouldn't otherwise develop and, second, it can easily be misinterpreted and lead to legal complications." – Cole.
- "Don't wear expensive jewelry to an appointment." – Peck.
- "Park where you have some light and people are around. Have your keys out as you're walking to your car. My car is always locked, even when I'm in it." – Sielaff.

Here are a couple of suggestions from the Michigan Association of Realtors:

- Get into the habit of telling colleagues of your expected whereabouts. Develop a buddy system. Leave a note on your desk with details about the prospect, what properties you plan to visit and expected return time. Check in with the office periodically.
- A whistle and pocket flashlight can be handy, unobtrusive personal protection devices.
- If car trouble arises and you're alone with no cell phone, raise the hood, then remain locked in the car until help arrives. When someone stops, ask them to call for assistance.

Cole also raised the issue of environmental safety.

"As the agent approaches the home, they should be watchful of potential hazards. If the seller has children, there may be toys lying on in the yard of sidewalk. There may be water hoses from when the seller watered the grass or flowers.

"There could be loose cement or handrails on the stairs leading to the porch," Cole said.

"Be aware of which way the door opens. Some doors swing to the wide part of the porch, others swing to the short side. Someone could fall off the when the door is opened. Even a short fall can lead to some fairly serious problems.

"Watch for hanging plants, wires, lights and planters that could cause head or eye injuries," Cole said.

Bill Deacon, an associate broker with Century 21 Town & Country in Birmingham and president of the Michigan Association of Realtors, realizes that the vast majority of people Realtors contact are trustworthy.

But not all.

"The intuition thing, it does work," Deacon said. "If it feels uncomfortable, take a pass. Don't show it. Take someone with you. Not just women – men, too. We're vulnerable."

Don't be a victim of loan fraud

MORTGAGE SHOPPING

DAVID C. MULLY

Part I of II

When you buy a house, you enter into a long-term financial obligation. You fill out papers and sign legal documents based on those papers. It's important that you understand your responsibilities now, so that you won't be the victim of, or a participant in, a fraud.

When you apply for a mortgage loan, every piece of information you submit must be accurate and complete. Anything less is loan fraud.

Unfortunately, there are people who may try to convince you to lie about your qualifications, so they can illegally make money at your expense. Those people will appear to be your friends, saying that they're just trying to help you. They may downplay or deny the importance of complying with the FHA loan requirements, and suggest that it's all just "red tape" that everyone ignores. Don't be fooled by these lies.

Before you sign anything, read and make sure you understand it. In the process of buying a house, you sign many documents. You should understand everything. If you don't, don't sign. Your signature certifies that the information in a document is correct and you are agreeing to be legally bound by it.

Refuse to sign any blank document. If information is inserted, after you sign, you are bound by it. If that information is false, you are legally liable.

Do not buy property for someone else. If that person is unable to pay the monthly mortgage payments, you will be responsible for those payments. It will affect your credit history and may prevent you from getting other credit or buying your own house.

Do not overstate your income. If you inflate your earnings to buy a house, you may not really be able to afford the monthly payments plus the related expenses (electricity, water, telephone, heat) that home ownership requires. You risk losing the property and all the money you have put into it.

Do not overstate how long you have been employed. If you have been employed for just a few months, this may not be the best time to buy a house. Before you get a mortgage loan, you must be sure that your job is permanent. Until then, you are simply not eligible to buy.

Do not overstate your assets. Be truthful about how much money you have that you can use to buy the house. If you need to borrow money for a down payment, you are taking on a new debt that will reduce your ability to pay your mortgage loan.

Accurately report your debts. Disclose all loans and debts, including money that may have been (or will be) borrowed for the down payment. If you don't qualify for a mortgage loan because of your debts, then you don't have enough money available to make your monthly payments. Wait until you have paid off some of your debts before buying a house.

Restrict users of clubhouse

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Editor's Note: The uncorrected version of a reader's question ran last week by mistake. Here is the corrected version.

Q. We have a clubhouse in our condominium, which is limited to members and their guests. Do we have to comply with the Americans With Disabilities Act?

A. The U.S. Department of Justice has been clear in numerous technical guidance letters that community associations are only exempt from the Americans with Disabilities Act if the use of their facilities is limited to members and their guests.

Therefore, if a community association engages in activities open to the general public, such as craft sales, Boy Scout meetings and swim teams consisting of non-residents, they are likely to be considered a "public accommodation" whose facilities are subject to the Americans with Disabilities Act.

You are best advised to consult with your association attorney in regard to the parameters of your latitude in this area.

Robert M. Meisner is an Oakland County area attorney concentrating his practice in the areas of condominiums, real estate, corporate law and litigation. You are invited to submit topics that you would like to see discussed in this column, including questions about condominiums, by writing Robert M. Make good use of your garage

BY READER'S DIGEST BOOKS FOR AP SPECIAL FEATURES

For most people, the garage is an extension of the house. Here are some tips to make it easier to use:

Weatherstripping

To keep out cold air, rodents and debris, install vinyl weatherstripping designed specifically for closing gaps around a garage door. You will save energy as well.

Before installing weatherstripping, sand the door bottom, wash it with a mild detergent and let it dry for two or three days. Then paint the area of the door.

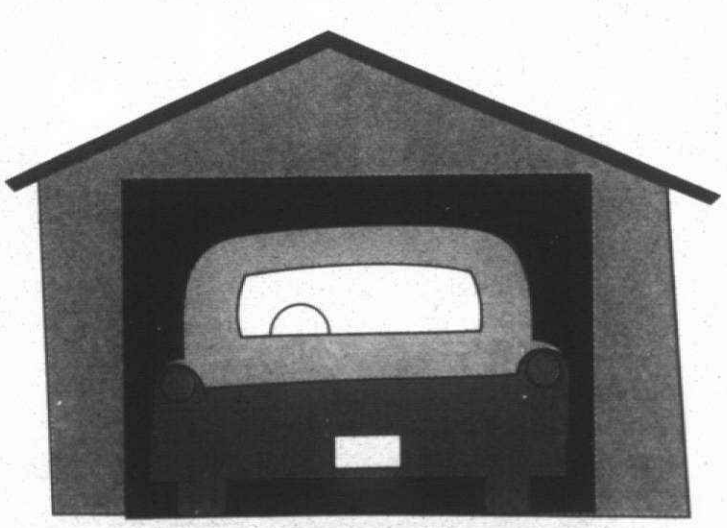
If your garage floor is uneven, you can still create a good seal between the bottom of the door and the floor. Simply tack a three-fourths-inch foam pipe insulation to the bottom of the door with the slit facing down.

CAUTION: Remember that a well-sealed garage means an even greater danger of carbon monoxide buildup. Never run an engine inside a closed garage.

Parking tips

Judging how far is enough when parking your car in the garage can be tricky. Hang a tennis ball from the ceiling. Park your car exactly where you want it. Then mount a screw eye in the ceiling and position the hanging ball so that it touches the windshield on the driver's side.

If you have trouble centering the car in its space, stick reflective tape the width of your car on the back wall of the garage. You'll center it easily.



Keep lawn mowers, bicycles and other equipment out of the way by painting white lines on the garage floor, outlining a space for each item. As long as all family members return the items to their designated spots, you won't have to get out of the car to move them before you can park.

Avoid damaging your car door when you open it by attaching a piece of scrap carpet to the wall.

Garage doors

When working on a manual garage door, set it at a comfortable level by securing a C-clamp or locking pliers on the door track to block door movement. This is safer than propping the door with a chair or other object.

Periodically, apply a thin film of lightweight oil to the rollers and hinges of a garage door. Go easy – too much oil will collect dirt. Keep tracks clean by wiping them occasionally with a damp cloth dampened with oil.

Channel weather's debris

Winter snow and ice create a mess when they melt. Confine the mess to the area under the car by gluing several strips of garage door bottom-strips to the floor with construction adhesive. Most of the garage floor will stay clean and dry, and the water will be channeled out to the driveway.

Rates rise

WASHINGTON (AP) – Average interest rates on 30-year, fixed-rate mortgages jumped to 7.46 percent this week after hitting a 17 1/2-month low the week before.

The average increased from 7.36 percent a week earlier, the lowest since Feb. 22, 1996, Freddie Mac said Thursday. It was the first increase in 10 weeks.

The average's peak, so far this year, was 8.18 percent during the week ended April 3, after the Federal Reserve tightened monetary policy.

Clean gas

Natural gas is the cleanest-burning fossil fuel, and can actually help reduce air pollution when used in place of dirtier fossil fuels, such as coal and oil, according to the American Gas Association.

When burned, natural gas emits almost no sulfur dioxide, which causes acid rain, or particulates, which cause cancer.

Let's Talk About Real Estate

"HONESTY AND FAIRNESS"

Believe it or not, honesty and fairness still work! We often hear of news stories wherein someone has attempted to bend the law by taking an unethical or illegal shortcut.

In real estate transactions, honesty is always the best policy. The good news is that you can buy and sell real estate profitably and accomplish it in an honorable manner. There are also some tools available today to assure you that the other party is being honest with you:

Seller disclosure form
Most states now mandate that the seller of a property fill out and sign a form attesting to the present known condition of every item in the house and remaining with the property. This information is made available to every potential purchaser who visits the property. If you make an offer on a home, based upon the information provided in the disclosure form, you can use it in the future if you find that things are not as they were represented.

Home inspections
Another valuable tool is the home inspection. Most offers are presented to the seller with the proviso that the buyer need not go through with the purchase if a physical inspection of the property by a qualified inspector reveals alarming information about the property's true condition. Based upon this new data, the buyer may decide to terminate the purchase or request a re-negotiation of the original terms.

A knowledgeable third party
Another important factor is your Realtor. A professional intermediary can help both buyers and sellers accomplish their goals in a win-win and honest fashion.
