Tougher anti-drug policy eyed

Plymouth-Canton school officials want to enact stiffer penalties for middle school students caught with illegal drugs. The new policy of automatic expulsion would match the penalties already in place at the high schools.

BY RENEE SKOGLUND
STAFF WRITER

If a middle school student gets caught selling or distributing drugs even once, the Plymouth-Canton school board wants the district to enact the same consequence as for a high school student – expulsion.

Under current policy, middle school offenders are given a five-day suspension for the first offense. The second offense results in the district petitioning the board for expulsion.

Smoking policy also reviewed, A2

At the board's Aug. 12 meeting, vice president Sue Davis made it clear she didn't accept the past rationale that middle school students be given an extra chance to mature.

"I believe kids know it is illegal from the get-go. Adults will use the (younger) kids because they know they just won't get the consequences an adult would. I can't believe a kid in middle school who has marijuana doesn't know it's illegal.

"We cut kids too much slack. If we cut them slack, what is it going to be like when they're 17? I'd rather have the kid learn this lesson at 12 or 13 than at 17, because then they'll have their butt kicked," said Davis.

Board president Mark Horvath concurred. "While there may be differences in children's maturity rate, I don't think we can ever have a school where we tolerate sale or distribution at any level."

The board plans to meet again with district officials so that any proposed change is in effect before school starts on Aug. 26.

Harsher consequences for possession of substances for illegal use by middle school students already are in place for the 1997-98 school year. Last year, a student received a three-day suspension for a first offense and a five-day suspension for a second offense. This year, offenders face a four-day out-of-school suspension and a one-day in-school suspension for the first offense

His dream trek is a real trip

BY KIMBERLY A. MORTSON
STAFF WRITER

Everyone has a dream that stirs inside them, always lingering just below the surface, yet far enough out of one's reach that it usually remains just that — a dream.

For 57-year-old Ron Rich his fantasy became a reality every day for nearly six weeks as he completed a seven-state, 2,434-mile bicycling trek from Spokane, Wash. to his home in Westland in just 41 days.

A sales/marketing representative for a Canton printing company, Rich devoted more than 18 months prior to the journey, "putting things into perspective," before setting out alone across much of the United States.

"It's something I've always wanted to do," said Rich, "ever since I was about 25 or 30."

It wasn't until he was in his mid-30s that cycling became a serious element of his life and not just an enjoyable diversion. A likely transition, he and his wife, Ruth, began repairing bicycles from their home 15 years ago and established a business, R & R Bicycle Repair, in 1996.

High-tech sign warns speeders

BY VALERIE OLANDER
STAFF WRITER

Motorists traveling along Morton Taylor between Joy and Warren will get another sign warning them to slow down and be cautious in the school crossing zone for nearby Hulsing Elementary.

The sign will come in the form of fiber-optic changeable message display boards similar to those seen along Sheldon Road near Byrd Elementary in Plymouth.

The speed limit along the stretch of Morton Taylor will be 25 mph during school hours and 40 mph during off-school times.

"It might not be up for the beginning of the school year, but it will be very shortly thereafter," said John Roach, spokesperson for Wayne County Public Services Department.

Crash shatters morning routine at Canton home

BY RENEE SKOGLUND
STAFF WRITER

It was just a routine Monday morning at the Pistor household in Canton until a truck came slamming through the front door about 9:30 a.m.

"Rumble, boom, crack, bang...I thought something broke. I looked out my window and saw the truck," said Randy Pistor Jr., 13.

Randy and his father were upstairs in the home, on the northwest corner of Morton Taylor and Arlington. Elaine Pistor had left for work a few hours earlier. Father and son ran downstairs to find a maroon pick-up parked well into their front hall. The truck had demolished the closet, pushed the bathroom facilities back a few feet, and just missed the kitchen. Insulation and bricks lay everywhere.

Pistor thought about the "for sale" sign in front of his house and called his wife. "I guess our house isn't going to be sold for awhile," he said.

The driver, Ron Ulko, 16, of Plymouth, had been turning left off of Morton Taylor on his way to Hulsing Elementary School, where he was to drop off a load of cable material for Source Link Communication of Edwardsburg, Mich. He said he was driving his own truck.

"I guess I turned too hard. I couldn't have been going that fast because I didn't hit the air bag,"

Ulko did not have a license. He said he had a "level 1" driver's permit, which requires young drivers to have a licensed adult with them whenever they drive.

Ulko said he had licensed driver with him earlier in the day, but took a chance. "I was just making a short trip somewhere and didn't think I needed him."

When Elaine Pistor arrived she surveyed the external damage – a boulevard tree gone along a porch post and the entire front entrance to the house. "We thought we had a potential buyer," she said, wiping away a tear before entering her house to look for the two family cats.

"They can still buy it later," said her

Singer wants audience on record

By Kevin Brown
Staff Writer

Plymouth Canton High School teacher and folk singer Matt Watroba is asking for a little help to make his Saturday, Aug. 23, show at The Ark something special.

Because the show will also be recorded as his first CD release, he wants to transform The Ark into a recording studio where the audience becomes the chorus.

"This will be a unique opportunity to become an important part of a live recording," he said.

The definition of folk music has grown since the late '50s, early '60s "folk-boom" days, when traditional music was a key element. Now many well-known performers considered folk, like Ani DiFranco, are chiefly singer-songwriters playing acoustic instruments.

On what is folk music, Watroba said, "You can expect it to be acoustic and not electric. You can expect the lyrics to say something about the human condition and our relationships to each other. Folk music is really something that comes from the people and not from popular culture.

"It's simple for the most part, but it's just as hard to be simple as it is to be complicated. The ideas are never simple."

Watroba is well-known to Detroit-area folk fans, as he has for the past 10 years hosted the radio show "Folks Like Us" from noon to 3 p.m. Saturdays on WDET-FM, 101.9.

He's also built a solid following as a top performer himself, performing at Ann Arbor's Ark once or twice a year. Watroba also hosted Wednesday Ark open stage sessions for five years. "That's a very familiar stage for me," he said.

Fans describe Watroba as a clear, strong singer and guitarist, with a dangerous sense of humor and great taste in picking songs.

After graduating from Plymouth Canton High in 1978, Watroba and two friends formed the group Phoenix. The trio performed for four years, then continued as a duo another five years.

He decided to abandon singing in clubs around the time his teaching career took off.

"Tom Paxton told me early on, if you have to make money make hamburgers and make music in good places," Watroba said.

Of bar audiences, he said, "I just came to the realization it's not that they were in wrong place, I was. I lean more toward storytelling songs with attention to the lyrics, they want upbeat music to accompany their drinking, which makes sense."

"That's why I'm glad to be able to play places like The Ark."

Joining him on some numbers on stage will be local top performers including Robert Jones, Neil Woodward and Jan Krist.

"The audience will be the chorus, it will really be more like a recording session than a concert," he said. The Ark holds 350-400.

Watroba plans to record some traditional songs and some from his favorite folk songwriters, including Paxton and Lou and Peter Berryman. The tentative title for the CD is "Anywhere You Are," taken from a Paxton song.

"Peter Berryman has offered to do the CD design, he's a talented visual artist," Watroba said. The CD should be out by Dec. 1.

As for musical goals, "I wouldn't mind being in a position to perform at folk festivals, traveling with my family around the country in the summer, that would be a lot of fun. I really don't have the aspiration to be a full-time traveling musician," he said.

The show starts at 8 p.m. Tickets are $10 for two people, and individual tickets are also $10. The Ark is at 316 S. Main in Ann Arbor.

Smoking gun: Hefty fine set for violators

By Renee Skoglund
Staff Writer

■ 'Cigarettes are a gateway drug to other drugs.'

Sue Davis
Plymouth-Canton school board

If you puff, you pay.

The Plymouth-Canton Community Schools will be more vigilant this year in ticketing students caught smoking on school property with a hefty $205 fine.

School board vice president Sue Davis said there are lots of adults at Centennial Park and any teacher, administrator or staff member can act as the "complainant" and ticket a student. It's simply a matter of enforcing a state law that says it's illegal for kids under 18 to smoke, she said.

"It's a drug-free area. And cigarettes are a gateway drug to other drugs. It's a mood altering chemical, and when it does not do the trick they move onto something else."

Currently, Canton police pick up all smoking tickets and turn them over to the 35th District Court.

In addition to the $205 fine – issued every time they're caught – underage smokers have to attend one week of an after-school anti-smoking clinic and can receive a five-day out-of-school suspension for a repeated offense.

Davis is currently working with police and township officials to get an ordinance "on the books" against smoking on school property. "My whole premise is on the legal aspect. They (students) are breaking the law on our property. Is there selective enforcement?"

Such an ordinance would give school officials more clout when dealing with adult offenders during school functions. Davis said the school board plans to work with parent groups such as Band Boosters to get the no-smoking word out.

"We're appealing to their integrity," she said.

'Vial of Life' program reaches 1,200 Canton seniors so far

"Vial of Life", a program geared for Canton seniors and organized by Canton's Senior Safety Coalition (CSSC) was introduced at 15 Canton sites this summer.

CSSC members estimate that approximately 1,200 Canton seniors have already received medical vials and medical history forms that were distributed at various senior and family oriented community events. Every senior was offered assistance in completing a form and was instructed to insert the completed form into the vial and store in their refrigerator. Their medical history would then be readily accessible to Canton rescue personnel in the event of an emergency.

and expulsion for the second offense.

According to Davis, a middle school violation for possession carries over to the high school as a first offense.

Ken Jacobs, an assistant principal at Plymouth-Canton Educational Park, handles the major discipline, including expulsions, at both the middle schools and the high schools. He said it didn't make sense to suspend students for three days for smoking, parking illegally or skipping school without increasing the consequences for possession or sale and distribution of drugs.

"As a school system, we're taking a pretty hard stance. When you step over the line and that affects the health and well-being of others, we call the line."

Davis said expulsion is not about a student never being readmitted. "It's about if you're going to do something wrong, there are consequences."

A promotion to his current position in sales and marketing allowed him to take the necessary leave of absence from work that would accommodate six weeks away from his job and put his plan into motion.

His initial strategy was planned with the assistance of Adventure Cycling, an organization that aids bicyclists in planning trips and acquiring the necessary maps and equipment for long-distance journeys.

Rich said his hope was to take advantage of the prevailing winds from the west and therefore selected Spokane as his starting point. "Wind is a big thing when you're out on a bike," said Rich, who enjoyed favorable weather over the majority of his trip with the exception of 5 or 6 days of rain.

■ 'This guy I met not only called around to find the part I needed but he gave me the keys to his pickup truck and let me drive 20 miles to get the part, not knowing any more about me than my name.'

Ron Rich

Custom-built bicycle

His specially-designed recumbent style bike was custom-built by an Ohio man several years ago including features conceived by Rich.

Unique attributes include hydraulic disc brakes, 63 speeds, a low-profile recumbent sling seat and front windshield that made the bike more aerodynamic.

Rich said the composition of the cycle results in a heavier overall weight compared to most bikes but offers a greater level of comfort for the cyclist as the rider's feet remain in front of them, rather than below, in the traditional riding position.

Prior to the trip the Westland resident had his cycle flown to a bike shop in Washington that he said is "sympathetic" to bicyclists in his position who can't make round-trip ventures, but are willing to store the equipment at no charge.

Traveling alone, Rich pedaled out of Spokane onto the highways and mountainous back roads of a state he last visited as a young Army enlistee in 1957.

"I didn't remember it being so hilly," said Rich.

Even with 18 months of research and planning, Rich said three weeks of illness, including a sinus infection and cold slowed his average from 100 miles over an 8-10 hour day down to an average of 65 miles.

"The terrain and how I felt contributed to my average," said Rich, "but I got in some 100 mile days after the third week and brought my average back up."

A 70-pound, single-wheel trailer attached to the rear of his bicycle towing camping equipment, clothing and food supplies was sent back to Westland early on into the trip as Rich started experiencing control difficulties when the cycle was descending down hills causing the trailer to pitch and sway.

Carrying more than 300 pounds up and down mountainous terrain, including his own body weight, the bike and total weight of the trailer, Rich opted to do without the cart and chose to stack nearly 230 pounds over the rear as he forged ahead into North Dakota.

Troubles along the way

Minot, a small town in the northern central portion of that state, became a one-day rest stop for Rich who was forced to have his rear wheel rebuilt as a result of the cumbersome weight he was now lugging.

Now averaging nine-hour days, Rich busied himself in the evenings. Often he slept on campgrounds, or in hotel rooms on wet, rainy nights, or even "someone's yard" as a last option. He wrote in a journal about his trip from beginning to end and took pictures.

Rich piqued the curiosity of onlookers attracted to the unique style of his bicycle.

As a former airborne ranger for the Army, Rich said his personal safety was never a concern but calling home every evening to his wife Ruth was a condition of the trip.

Trip was revelation

"I never considered my safety whatsoever," said Rich, "but I did realize how cynical and paranoid we are here." A kind gesture from a Minnesota stranger only confirmed that notion when a broken spoke couldn't be found in the nondescript Midwestern town he found himself.

"This guy I met not only called around to find the part I needed but he gave me the keys to his pickup truck and let me drive 20 miles to get the part, not knowing any more about me than my name."

Armed with a cellular telephone and some pepper spray, Rich said he was never bothered by bears that stole away a fellow cyclist's food supply from a Washington campground, but Rich encountered elk, deer, red fox, rabbits and nearly 100 dogs that chased him along back country roads and down highways that bordered endless farmland.

Near the end of his journey, Rich boarded a ferry in Manitowoc, Wis., transporting him across the waters of Lake Michigan to Ludington.

Up to speed: Ruth Rich, Ron's wife, kept his co-workers at Stylecraft Printing Co. in Canton up to date on the cyclists progress by updating a U.S. map that was posted in the office.

Back to the roads of his home state, Rich traveled Michigan highways and roads north of Lansing through St. Johns, down through the towns of Manchester and Chelsea, into Belleville and finally Westland where a welcoming party of more than 70 family and friends eagerly awaited his arrival.

"I didn't know about the party," said Rich who was anxiously greeted by his wife Ruth.

Rich said over the course of his trip she kept his Stylecraft Printing Company coworkers up to speed on his progress by tracking his journey on a U.S. map located in his office.

Enough for now

"Overall it was a great experience," said Rich, "but I wouldn't take a trip of that magnitude or go that far until I'm retired. And I haven't discussed it with my wife either."

After a challenging six-week journey, Rich went mountain biking near Island Lake just days after his homecoming and returned to work on Tuesday.

The Westland man hopes to do some magazine articles based on his journal entries on the technical aspect of a long-distance journey.

"I found a lack of that kind of information when I was doing the research for my trip, so I may be able to help other cyclists."

In the mean time, Rich says he'll continue to participate as an in-state cyclist in various events and ride for pleasure up to 100 miles a week.

With 2,434 miles behind him, one has to wonder if Rich didn't have another dream along one of those desolate country roads. A dream that will take him from the sidewalk of his Westland home to who knows where?

Rich does.

Canton Township's Board of Trustees agreed to spend $25,000 for the fiber-optic signs. The Wayne County road department will install them.

Parents in the Mayfair and Windsor Park subdivisions took on the issue in 1995 when the county increased the speed limit from 35 mph to 40 mph.

Canton Public Safety set up SMART trailers to warn motorists of their approaching speed and the township board approved an expenditure to paint yellow striping for crosswalks and pavement warnings marking the area as school zone.

However, an attempt to get a flashing light at Arlington and Morton Taylor was blocked by a quirk in the law which prevented much from being done in regards to traffic speed on Morton Taylor since Hulsing Elementary was not located directly on the road.

Rep. Deborah Whyman, R-Canton, introduced legislation to change the law so that school districts have a bigger say in speed limits along routes students walk to school.

The change in the law allowed for the fiber-optic changeable lights that are soon to be installed.

"I'll be much happier when they're in the ground. We've been working on this for two years," said resident Kristy Engle.

"Of course, September would have been ideal, but if they're shooting for the end of the year at least they'll be up for the inclement weather when it gets dark early," she added.

Vandals damage school

Approximately $200 in damage was reported at Erickson Elementary School where vandals spray painted graffiti on the building. The damage occurred sometime between 3 p.m. Aug. 12 and 7:30 a.m. Aug. 13. Blue spray paint was used to spray the words "Eastside," "Shorty," and "Jason loves Stacie" on the wall.

Theft

An Oak Park man reported his golf clubs stolen while inside the clubhouse at Pheasant Run Golf Course for about a half- hour on Aug. 11. The Ping brand clubs were valued at $1,500. Also, stolen was a watch, valued at $2,000.

Malicious destruction

Approximately $600 in damage was reported to a 1994 Ford Explorer Aug. 14 as it was parked in front of a building on Regency. A sharp object was used to scratch the driver's side and passenger side of the pickup. A 1996 Ford Taurus also received an estimated at $200 damage to the hood and left, front fender.

COP CALLS

Felonious assault

A 13-year-old Canton boy was taken into custody for shooting seven kids ages 10-15 with a BB gun. The victims were building a fort in the woods near Brookline, north of Gordy, when they were ambushed by the culprit and other teens armed with a BB gun and slingshots.

Larceny

A thief apparently distracted a 70-year-old woman at Kroger on Sheldon Road long enough to steal her wallet from her purse. The wallet contained $50 in cash.

■ A purse was stolen from a 24-year-old Dearborn Heights woman when she set it down at Cleats, 46555 Michigan Avenue, to show her son a video game. A pager, valued at $90 and $680 worth of miscellaneous items were stolen with the purse.

■ Within 15 minutes of discovering her purse stolen Aug. 14, a thief was using a 49-year-old Canton women's credit card at various stores in the area, racking up bills amounting to nearly $2,000.

The woman had her purse stolen while shopping at Kmart, 5725 Sheldon, on Aug. 14. Charges were made at six stores between 6:15 - 7:40 p.m. The last attempt at using the charge at an office supply store was denied for lack of proper identification. Another card had $430 charged on it, police said.

Malicious destruction

Approximately $2,000 in damage was reported to cars vandalized overnight Aug. 15 and 16. Windows were broken on seven cars. Most of the vehicles were parked in subdivisions in eastern Canton in an area between Haggerty and Morton Taylor and Palmer and Warren.

A witness to one of the incidents reported seeing a late model 1980s or early 1990s red Grand Am with a loud muffler in the area.

Another witness reported hearing a car with a loud muffler leaving the area where a 1997 Ford Taurus was vandalized on Glenshire, north of Palmer.

When reached by phone later, Tammy Leonard, who owns Source Link Communications with her husband Gary, said she was unaware that Ulko did not have his license. She confirmed that Ulko was not driving a company truck.

"What I understood it was a new truck his mother just bought."

Athena winners strive to lend a helping hand

By Kim Mortson
Staff Writer

The international Athena Award, presented to area residents who outwardly strive to promote the growth of women and their accomplishments, is awarded locally in Livonia, Canton and Garden City.

The Athena Award, endorsed by area Chambers of Commerce, originated in Lansing in 1980 after Realtor Martha Mayhood-Mertz found herself to be the only working woman serving as a director for the Lansing Regional Chamber of Commerce.

Mertz was also dismayed to learn that in the 75-year history of the chamber, only once had a woman been the recipient of a community award.

Seventeen years later, service organizations and local businesses select individuals, from communities such as Livonia, Canton and Garden City, not only for their professional achievements and community service, but also for actively and generously assisting others with their quest for professional excellence and leadership.

The Livonia Chamber of Commerce started presenting the Athena in 1988 thanks to the support of Action-Oldsmobile Nissan of Livonia who passed over sponsorship in 1994 to First of America Bank.

This spring, Athena award winners from Livonia gathered together in honor of the closing ceremonies of the International Athena Convention in Lansing.

Arranged by state Rep. Lyn Bankes, past Athena recipients in attendance included Laura Toy (1989), Livonia city treasurer; Jeanne Hildebrandt (1990), Livonia Mall manager; Joan McCotter (1991), Livonia city clerk; Alberta Muzzin (1992), owner, Dynamic People and executive director of the South Lyon Chamber of Commerce; Sister Francilene (1993), president, Madonna University; Bankes (1995), state representative; and 1996 winner Patricia Smith, law firm partner of Brashear, Tangora & Spence.

Saundra Florek, dean of marketing and development at Schoolcraft College and the 1994 winner did not attend the convention's closing ceremonies.

From Canton, 1997 winner Nicki Wilson, owner of the Decorating Den, participated in the program, said Carleigh Flaharty, Canton Chamber of Commerce.

Past Canton recipients have included Maria Holmes (1991), Media One; Frankie Middleton (1992), Better Built Fence; Janet Volante (1993), First of America Bank-Ford Road; Carol Felker, (1994) Keyline Services; Phyllis Wordhouse (1995), Wordhouse Financial Planning/Education; Bonnie Berg (1996) Bart's Rustic Lawn Furniture.

Amelia Oliverio, president of the Garden City Business & Professional Women (BPW) said the chamber, in partnership with the BPW, began recognizing the achievements of local women in 1996. Most recent winners were Susan (Pepere) McGraw (1996), Radio AAHS; and Kay Paupore, (1997) Garden City High School art instructor.

"I thought the Athena was an excellent award to honor the many women who don't get the recognition they deserve," said Oliverio.

According to Dynamic People owner, Alberta Muzzin of Livonia, the closing ceremonies of the international convention was an opportunity for past winners to gather together and share in the celebration of the convention.

The evening included a dinner at the Golden Rose Restaurant in Okemos hosted by Shelley M. Stahl of Karoub Associates of Livonia.

The caravan of local winners then traveled to the Wharton Center in Lansing to participate in the conclusion of the international conference established by Athena founder, Martha Mayhood-Mertz.

"It was kind of a coming home celebration for Mertz who first established the Athena award in Lansing," said Muzzin. "The whole evening was wonderful and everyone really enjoyed themselves."

Muzzin said the Wharton Center program brought together thousands of past and present Athena recipients from around the world including renowned author, Maya Angelou and veteran actor Harry Belafonte, who shared conversation with each other before the convention audience.

Fish restocking is possible for next year

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER

An agreement between Wayne County and Michigan environmental officials clears the way for Newburgh and Nankin lakes to be restocked with fish next year.

The pact between the Wayne County Department of Environment and the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality means the two lakes will be restocked with $25,000 worth of small-mouthed bass, northern pike and other game fish.

The agreement also calls for Environmental Consulting & Technology, the restoration project manager, to pay $3,000 to the Friends of the Rouge for educational programs.

The deal comes after thousands of fish were accidentally killed in Nankin Lake during an eradication designed to remove fish contaminated with polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs) from Newburgh Lake.

A natural pesticide, rotenone, was sprayed onto the middle branch of the Rouge River downstream from Wilcox Dam, then onto Newburgh Lake to kill the fish. Potassium permanganate was applied as a neutralizer to detoxify the rotenone near Newburgh Dam.

However, the Department of Natural Resources says the rotenone wasn't neutralized before heading downstream, killing fish in Nankin Lake. That was a violation of the contractor's permit allowed under the Department of Environmental Quality guidelines.

However, the Department of Natural Resources says the rotenone wasn't neutralized before heading downstream, killing fish in Nankin Lake. That was a violation of the contractor's permit allowed under the Department of Environmental Quality guidelines.

"We had always intended to do another fish kill and restock when the work at Newburgh Lake was finished," said Jim Murray, director of the Wayne County Department of Environment. "We're going to fill the lakes with game fish after completing the PCB cleanup of Newburgh Lake."

Murray said the kills resulted in approximately 15,000 pounds of fish being removed from Newburgh Lake and another 6,000 pounds downstream from Nankin Lake.

"The reality is that 95 percent of the fish killed were suckers and carp," said Murray. "Even if we didn't have the contamination problem in Newburgh Lake the game fish couldn't have endured. With the restocking, the game fish will have a chance to reestablish themselves."

"The fact that the northern pike, small-mouthed bass and bluegill were able to survive in that environment shows they will do well if we remove the other stress in the lake," said Murray.

Officials from the Michigan DEQ declined comment on a settlement, noting a final agreement will be signed in the near future.

However, the restocking of the lakes will be delayed as a result of the entire cleanup being detained. While officials had hoped to open Newburgh Lake next July for recreational purposes, that won't happen now until at least October 1998.

Murray said he'll talk with biologists to determine if the fish can be put into the lakes before winter, or if that part of the project will have to be deferred until spring 1999.

Meanwhile, the Friends of the Rouge group is elated over money it can use to further improve the river.

"While the circumstances which created the windfall are unfortunate, it's turned out reasonably well," said Jim Graham, executive director of the environmental group. "We're grateful that a non-profit organization will get the money instead of the state."

Graham is hoping to use the money to put on a second workshop showing how to restore eroding banks along the river, using natural planting materials.

Lawsuit planned to stop collection of Michigan's gas tax

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER

The Wayne County Taxpayers Association is set to file a lawsuit against the State of Michigan to stop the collection of the 4-cent gas tax recently approved by the legislature for road improvements.

"We are seeking a restraining order to stop the collection of the increase until at least April first," says Rose Bogaert, chair of the tax group. "It is our belief the immediate collection of the tax is in violation of the state constitution."

Bogaert says the state constitution provides for bills to be enacted at the end of the legislative session, unless legislators override the provision with a two-thirds vote.

Bogaert, from Dearborn Heights, also says the gas tax violates the provisions of the Headlee amendment.

"If we allow the state to continue collecting the gas tax, and then a court rules it violated Headlee, no doubt state officials will tell us they can't pay it back because it's already spent," said Bogaert.

Keith Kaye, 55, of Westland and a member of the taxpayers association, agrees the roads need to be fixed. However, he believes the state already has the money to do the job.

"The state is always using an emotional issue like roads, the elderly and disadvantaged children to increase taxes," said Kaye. "This is just another scam."

Bogaert is hoping to stall the increase to at least April first, thereby giving the tax opponents time to work on rescinding the legislation.

State Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Redford Township, says many times immediate implementation of a bill is done with a drop of the gavel. Bankes says it's pretty much standard procedure, unless someone calls for a roll call vote to delay a bill's start date. She agrees there may be merit for "court interpretation" on that aspect.

However, Bankes says she sees no violation of the Headlee Amendment in the gas tax hike.

State Sen. Loren Bennett, R-Canton, says the Senate did take an immediate-effect vote on the gas tax issue, which passed by the required two-thirds margin. Bennett says the roll call vote is standard procedure in the Senate, however he does note that House procedures are sometimes dictated by the "fast gavel." Considering the close House vote on the gas tax, Bennett says he would be surprised an immediate-effect measure by two-thirds vote could have passed in the House. He notes that could be cause for a lawsuit if the rules of the House are broken.

Like Bankes, Bennett doesn't see any violations of the Headlee Amendment.

The project is being developed by Ashley Capital, a New York-based company known for building huge industrial, warehouse and distribution facilities, such as the Romulus Business Center.

"There's been a number of (potential tenants) asking. No one typically signs the bottom line until they see the steel going up," said Ken Bowen, construction manager for Ashley Capital.

Bowen expects to break ground on the project this fall. The $50 million research park will create an estimated 1,200 jobs when completed.

"A large percentage (of the tenants) will be automotive-related and not industrial-type business," he added.

The planning commission gave tentative approval Monday for the special land use to allow the warehouse and distribution centers in the research park district.

Clusters of trees and shrubs, which Ashley Capital referred to as "landscape peek-a-boos" will break up the enormous length of the buildings.

Ashley Capital already received approval from township officials for the research park zoning. The 230 acres had been zoned agricultural and residential. The future land use map also had to be amended because it was zoned for residential development.

One of Canton's largest planned residential developments, the Central Park project, is planned to the north of the proposed Canton Commerce Park. Vacant rural residential property abuts the research park to the east, west and north.

Developer Mike Horowitz of the Selective Group asked the planning commission to put the Ashley Capital project on hold until it could be determined what the impact will be on the 80 acres to the north and west of it. The entire Central Park project encompasses a total of 680 acres, stretching west of Denton and north to Cherry Hill.

"The building that will be abutting ours is two football fields in size," Horowitz said.

He was most concerned with the building material Ashley Capital proposed to use, precast aggregate panels instead of bricks as required by township ordinance. The planning commission gave tentative approval for Ashley Capital to use the precast panels due to the length of the buildings.

aboard a large paddle boat on the Au Sable River when Radzwion noticed the elderly woman in dire need of medical attention.

■ 'She was unconscious for about 20 minutes. Basically, I just monitored her pulse. No one knew what to do.'

Nancy Radzwion

Her husband Mark had just taken three-year-old Maria to the restroom when she chased one-year-old Caroline to the other side of the boat where she saw the woman slumping down in her chair.

Radzwion handed the one-year-old to the bartender and began prepping the woman for CPR. The nurse put a life jacket under her head since the woman already hurt her jaw while slumping to the floor.

"She was unconscious for about 20 minutes. Basically, I just monitored her pulse. No one knew what to do," she said.

The Livonia woman apparently had a history of seizures, according to a friend that was with her. Radzwion never got the name of the woman who was able to walk away after the boat docked at the port.

"I really just gave her moral support and monitored her. By the time we reached shore she seemed to be okay," Radzwion said.

"I told them where the nearest clinic is."

Maybe being a nurse or a mother of two young children, Radzwion said she always looks around for the nearest emergency room whenever out of town. There wasn't a hospital in Oscoda, but she had discovered a clinic open until 9 p.m. where she directed the women after the boat trip ended.

Radzwion had worked as a CPR instructor for Wayne Community Living Services.

Dogs show their skills at Care Fair

From basketball playing to bomb-sniffing . . . talented canines will be showing off their stuff this weekend as part of Animal Care Fair '97.

Sponsored by the Michigan Humane Society, the Livonia-based Pet Supplies "Plus" retail chain, and the City of Southfield Department of Parks and Recreation, this pet lover's extravaganza will be held on Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on the front lawn of the Southfield Civic Center, Evergreen Road, north of 10 Mile.

The largest event of its kind in the area, Animal Care Fair '97 will feature four-legged relay races, doggie basketball, and other agility exhibitions by leading dog training teams such as the Oinkers Rock-N-Roll Canines from Redford.

Also on hand to demonstrate their special skills will be bomb and drug sniffing dogs from the Michigan State Police and Southfield Police Department K-9 units, specially trained search and rescue dogs, and horses from the Oakland County Sheriff's Department.

Animal Care Fair '97 will raise money for the Michigan Humane Society and help dozens of displaced dogs and cats find new homes. Although admission to the event is free, money generated by the sale of refreshments goes to the Michigan Humane Society.

CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF CANTON

CHANGES ARE MADE IN DETERMINATIONS OF THE TOWNSHIP OF CANTON, WAYNE COUNTY, MICHIGAN, BASE (1% ANNUAL CHANCE) FLOOD ELEVATIONS UNDER THE NATIONAL FLOOD INSURANCE PROGRAM

On September 2, 1981, the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) identified Special Flood Hazard Areas in the Township of Canton, Michigan, through insurance of a Flood Insurance Rate Map.

The Associate Director for Mitigation, has determined that modification of the elevations of the flood having a one-percent chance of occurrence in any given year (base flood) for certain locations in the Township of Canton, is appropriate. The modified base flood elevations amend the FEMA Flood Insurance Rate Map for the community.

This modification to the effective Flood Insurance Rate Map reflects the construction of the Wildwood Springs Site Condominiums (including excavation for two detention basins and fill placement) along Fellows Creek and Truesdell Drain. The subject area is located from Lotz Road to Interstate Route 275. As a result of the modifications, there are increases and decreases in the base flood elevations, widening and narrowing of the 1% (100-year) and 0.2% (500-year) annual chance floodplains, and widening and narrowing of the floodway along Fellows Creek. In addition, there is narrowing of the 1% and 0.2% annual chance floodplains along Truesdell Drain. The revised base flood elevations for Fellows Creek are as follows:

Location	Base Flood Elevations (NGVD)* Effective	Revised
Approximately 230 feet upstream of Lotz Road	664	665
Approximately 100 feet upstream of Interstate 275	667	666

*Elevation in feet National Geodetic Vertical Datum

The changes are made pursuant to Section 206 of the Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973 (P.L. 93-234), and are in accordance with the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968, as amended. (Title XIII of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, P.L. 90-448) 42 U.S.C. 4001-4128, and 44 CFR Part 65.

Under the above-mentioned Acts of 1968 and 1973, the Associate Director for Mitigation, must develop criteria for floodplain management. In order for the community to participate in the National Flood Insurance Program, the community will be using the new base flood elevations to administer the floodplain management measures of the National Flood Insurance Program. These modified base flood elevations will also be used to calculate the appropriate flood insurance premium rates for new buildings and their contents.

Upon the second publication of notice of these changes in this paper, any person has 90 days in which he can request through the Chief Executive Officer of the community that the Associate Director for Mitigation reconsider the determination. Any request for reconsideration must be based on knowledge of changed conditions or new scientific or technical data. All interested parties are on notice that until the 90-day period elapses, the Associate Director's determination to modify the base flood elevations may itself be changed.

Any person having knowledge or wishing to comment on these changes should immediately notify:

Traffic tieup: A truckload of dirt dumped on westbound M-14 at Hines Drive had traffic backed up for nearly two hours Tuesday morning. State police say the tailgate of a truck from Watertand Trucking in Wixom opened and lost its load of mud dredged from the cleanup of Newburgh Lake. Police say the incident didn't produce any injuries, just a lot of dirty cars and angry motorists.

Stadium progress 'smooth'

COUNTY NEWS

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER

Deputy Wayne County Executive Mike Duggan suggests you may want to plan now for the Detroit Tigers' home opener in the year 2000.

"Call now, there are a few seats left," quipped Duggan.

Duggan is feeling good as county officials this week are "just about there" with the acquisition of 99 percent of the property east of Woodward Avenue for new baseball and football stadiums in downtown Detroit.

"It's gone extremely smooth," said Duggan of the property acquisitions. We had some court fights, but we won them because we were prepared."

"We made a deal with the 10 largest business owners ... no litigation," said Duggan. "We sat down and appraised their businesses, made a fair offer and settled. We had a couple of guys who thought they could jerk us around in court with legal maneuvering, hoping we'd pay them a premium to get them out. The great majority of the people were happy to get a check and get out."

Duggan was looking for the Tigers to break ground this month, however the baseball club is not committing to any timetable.

"We have not set a date for ground breaking," said Tyler Barnes, Tigers director of public relations. "We are looking at late summer, which certainly doesn't rule out September."

Duggan has been privy to the designs of the new Tiger Stadium, but isn't giving away any secrets.

"They've shown us some of the drawings, and it's going to be a beautiful, old-time classic park like Camden Yards (Baltimore) and Jacobs Field (Cleveland)," said Duggan. "There are a lot of different features the club is talking about adding. I'm pleased with the plans."

Tyler, in keeping with the company line, will only tell the Observer design work is continuing, and will for several months.

While ground breaking is expected soon, Duggan says "it will be December when they start doing serious digging and pouring the foundations."

The year 2000 is going to be twice as big, if Duggan has his way.

"I believe the Lions will also open their stadium in the fall of 2000," said Duggan. "The Lions can't tell you that because they have a lease until the year 2004 with the Pontiac Silverdome. However, there is time. They don't need to break ground until next spring because their opening isn't until fall."

"We're moving on land acquisition and on design to be on a 2000 timetable," Duggan said. "The Lions have not given us a commitment they'll be wrapped up with Pontiac. They'll time the stadium construction with what's occurring there."

Duggan is positive the two new stadiums will thrive, unlike the Pontiac Silverdome.

"The Silverdome is so isolated by a sea of parking that it had no potential of business spinoff," said Duggan. "In our case, we're sticking two stadiums right into the fabric of downtown where it will be close to restaurants and entertainment life. There are 12,000 parking spaces within walking distance in a business district which all goes home at night and weekends."

Court ruling upholds school constitutionality

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Public school academies – also known as charter schools – may borrow at lower interest rates in the wake of a Michigan Supreme Court opinion upholding their constitutionality.

The U.S. Internal Revenue Service ruling paves the way for better credit ratings, said Gov. John Engler, a champion of the 1993 charter school law.

"This ruling eliminates one of the financial disadvantages charter schools face. All schools – traditional and charter – will enjoy short-term financial flexibility and cost savings available through tax-exempt notes," said the governor.

The Supreme Court on July 30 held 5-1 that charter academies are public schools under the state constitution, even though their boards aren't elected by voters, because they are governed by valid chartering authorities, mostly universities.

Justice Patricia Boyle issued a sharp dissent, saying charter school boards are privately selected, exempt from much of the school code, and unsupervised by the State Board of Education.

Justice Marilyn Kelly took no part in the ruling. She was on the Court of Appeals panel which last year ruled the charter act unconstitutional.

The Supreme Court reversed both the Court of Appeals and Ingham Circuit Judge William Collette, who had blocked state aid payments to the charter schools.

The case was brought by an anti-parochiaid group, two Democratic members of the State Board of Education and others. Joining the state in defense were Central Michigan University, the Noah Webster Academy (which was denied funds by the Department of Education), Northlane Math and Science Academy and New Branches School.

No definition

The majority opinion was written by Justice James Brickley, signed by Conrad Mallett Jr., Dorothy Comstock Riley and Elizabeth Weaver, with a largely concurring opinion by Michael Cavanagh. Main points;

■ Are academies true public schools? Yes.

"The 1963 Michigan Constitution does not define the term 'public schools,'" but merely states the Legislature must "maintain and support a system of free public education."

"Our constitution does not mandate exclusive (state) control," said Brickley. A school is public if it is "established and maintained at public expense, primarily from moneys raised by general taxation."

■ Is a private board of directors defective? No.

"(T)he Legislature has mandated the board of directors' selection process. The Legislature has this control ... Additionally, the board of the authorizing bodies is public elected or appointed by public bodies ... However, we do not have a requirement in our state constitution that mandates that the school be under the control of the voters of the school district."

■ Is the charter law "parochiaid" (state aid to parochial schools) and a violation of the constitution? No.

"(P)ublic school academies are not parochial schools. The statute specifically prohibits a religious organization from organizing a public school academy and further prohibits any organizational or contractual affiliations with churches or other religious organizations."

■ Is the act unconstitutional for forbidding the State Board of Education from exercise its duty to supervise and lead? No.

"Thus, it is clear that the board retains its constitutional authority over public school academies ... through the State School Aid Act. This is evidenced by the power of the board to deny funding, as it did to Noah Webster ... (A)cademy board members are public officials and are subject to all applicable law pertaining to public officials."

'Invalid on face'

Dissenting, Boyle called the charter law "invalid on its face" because it:

■ "Derogates the constitutional prohibition against the application of public funding to private schools."

■ "Usurps the authority of the State Board of Education to oversee and supervise public education."

"Public school academies are controlled by privately selected, rather than public elected, board of directors and are subject only to limited oversight by the authorizing bodies and the State Board of Education." She called the majority's idea that there is public control an "illusion."

"The authorizing body only has the authority to establish the 'method of selection, length of term and number of members of the board of directors'" – an authority Boyle called "nebulous." She added the state board has neither an opportunity to review an academy's application or contract before it is issued not power to revoke the contract.

"Academy schools are not subject to large portions of the public School Code," said Boyle, citing no express requirement to use certified teachers and disagreement over whether they must comply with the core curriculum.

Court: Educators' records public

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Two area lawyers were part of the celebration after the Michigan Supreme Court ruled the public may see the personnel records of teachers and public school administrators.

The high court threw out 4-3 the unusual "reverse FOIA" suits brought by the public school employees, who sought to block parental inspection of their records under the Freedom of Information Act, and ordered their release.

Dawn Phillips-Herz, a Bloomfield Hills attorney representing the Michigan Press Association, filed an amicus (friendly) brief arguing the records were public property.

So did Michael R. Shpiece, a Farmington Hills resident practicing in Bloomfield Hills, on behalf of the Michigan Freedom of Information Committee Inc., of which he is chairman.

"We conclude that the Freedom of Information Act compels the disclosure of the appellants' personnel records," said the court majority. "Because the requested information consisted of information related to the appellants' public employment, we hold that the appellants' personnel records are not within the privacy subsection."

It was signed by Justices James H. Brickley, Dorothy Comstock Riley, Elizabeth Weaver and Chief Justice Conrad Mallett Jr.

Losers were Saranac teacher Christine Bradley, whose records were sought by a parent of one of her pupils, and the Lansing Association of School Administrators, whose records were sought by the Parents Support Group. Saranac and Lansing administrators intended to release edited copies of the records until Bradley and LASA filed suit.

No privacy right

The high court rejected their arguments that releasing the records "would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of an individual's privacy."

That exemption, in sec. 13(a) of the FOIA, applies only to "intimate or embarrassing details of an individual's private life," said the court. Bradley's file contained documents "pertaining to corrective or disciplinary actions, complaints filed, and performance evaluations. As for the administrators, their requested records contained administrative performance reviews.

"Significantly, none of the documents contain information of an embarrassing, intimate, private, or confidential nature, such as medical records or information relating to the plaintiffs' private lives."

The court noted the employees didn't even allege there was personal information – they sought to block their performance records in public jobs.

Next, Bradley and LASA argued that "communications and notes" of an advisory nature could be exempted. Not so, said the court.

"First, the complaints from parents are not 'communications and notes within a public body or between public bodies' because the documents were created by parents, not by the school district.".

Second, the court said only the school districts – not the employees – could raise that argument.

Law above contract

LASA argued that the law exempts "medical, counseling or psychological facts or evaluations." It said their performance evaluations are "counseling evaluations."

No again, said the court, because " 'counseling' does not appear to include an employment relationship."

The Supreme Court said the Court of Appeals erred in trying to exempt the records under the common-law rule of privacy "because an applicable statute always surmounts a conflicting common-law rule."

Finally, LASA argued the performance records were exempt under its collective bargaining agreement with the district. Wrong, said the court. The school district cannot "eliminate its statutory obligations to the public merely by contracting to do so with plaintiff LASA ... No exemption provides for a public body to bargain away the requirements of the FOIA."

The court told the Saranac district it went too far in redacting (blocking out) a memo from the principal to Bradley. The copy Saranac proposed to release said:

"You must (blank). There are (blank) and (blank) all (blank) on (blank) and (blank). You were given several (blank) by other teachers plus the (blank) you already have. You have lent of (blank) to (blank) these (blank) in. Take care of the situation."

In a minority opinion, Justices Patricia Boyle, Michael Cavanagh and Marilyn Kelly agreed that performance evaluations, disciplinary actions and complaints must be disclosed under FOIA.

But they disagreed that those documents weren't "personal in nature." They said, however, that releasing them was "not a clearly unwarranted invasion of privacy."

Veteran educator to lead new school

EDUCATION

An experienced Detroit Public Schools administrator has been chosen to lead the Academy for Business and International Studies, a new independent public charter school opening this fall in Dearborn Heights.

The Leona Group, a school management organization, hired Richard Seefelt to help open the school for seventh-through 12th-graders.

"Rick has been described as innovative and dynamic by those who have worked mostly closely with him," said William Coats, president and CEO of The Leona Group. "His talents and creative energy will be a tremendous asset to the quality program we are offering the Dearborn Heights community. We are very pleased to have found someone of his caliber to lead this school."

The academy will provide a core academic program, plus help students prepare for work through an understanding of world cultures and a sense of discipline and personal responsibility.

Seefelt has a master's degree in secondary English education and reading, and a bachelor's degree in English literature. He has taught in middle and high schools throughout Detroit, and has worked as a reading specialist. He most recently was assistant principal at Jackson Middle School.

Seefelt said he believes the key to helping students succeed is "coordinating lessons with students' individuality. Teachers must be sensitive to the varied learning styles of students. I give my utmost, and expect my students to give their utmost to achieve success."

Seefelt stressed the need for parents and the community to be involved with the academy and its students.

"Businesses and institutions must be encouraged and given the opportunity to invest in the education of the community's children," he said. "They are an important, vital complement to the education team. As an administrative leader, I will endeavor to build, to work with, and to lead the educational team to help children succeed."

Boating skills focus of class in Redford

A boating skills and seamanship class sponsored by the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary will begin at 7 p.m., Monday, Sept. 8, at the Redford Township Community Center, 12121 Hemingway at Capitol Street.

The class will meet on 12 Monday nights. It is free except the cost of the textbooks. The class is designed for all boaters, new and experienced, power and sail.

Boating safety certificates will be issued at the end of the class. Boaters age 12 to 16 years old must pass a boating safety class in order to operate a motorboat or a personal water craft.

Strike damaged area economy

Among the biggest losers in the UPS strike were folks who neither work for the company as managers nor walked the picket line.

They were small business owners and their employees in the Plymouth and Canton communities. People like David Haupt, manager of Plymouth's Repeat the Beat record store, and Janet Shultz of Canton Center Animal Hospital in Canton.

Tuesday's tentative agreement signaled an end to the 15-day strike and was certainly good news for the package carrier and its workers. The relatively quick settlement is being met with a sigh of relief by area business people as well. But the damage to the local business community was real, if somewhat harder to gauge.

The music business relies on a constant stream of new products to bring people into stores. The dead of summer isn't exactly prime selling season for recorded music. So when a shipment doesn't show up – like new albums due earlier this month from the artist Morrisey and the group 311 – traffic at Repeat the Beat slows noticeably.

The veterinary clinic, meanwhile, paid a higher rate to ship a medical test to Michigan State University. The cost of shipping the test, for Lyme disease on a dog, was nearly as much as the cost of the test itself. "We charge our customers so much for doing the test and then we find out it's going to cost us a lot more to ship it out," Shultz said.

Short-term effects for area businesses were mostly small inconveniences such as those suffered by Haupt and Shultz. Added to that mix was downtime waiting through long lines at the local post office and the temporary limits imposed by the U.S. Postal Service and other shippers on the number of packages they would accept.

A longer the work stoppage would undoubtedly have created more serious implications for small business. Whether it came in the form of canceling a planned expansion, or cutting payroll and other costs, the results of a prolonged strike and increased shipping costs would have an impact on the local economy.

Despite posturing by both sides, neither UPS nor the Teamsters demonstrated a lot of sympathy for those caught in the middle. In fact, in what was the biggest nationwide strike in more than two decades, both labor and management used the plight of UPS customers as a political bargaining chip. And while there's nothing surprising or inherently sinister about that, it was an unfortunate sidebar to the dispute.

Now that the strike is history, the Observer hopes that small business patrons in Plymouth and Canton continue to take advantage of the merchandise and services available locally, ensuring vibrancy and growth in two of the more successful business communities in western Wayne County.

For UPS and its employees, the labor dispute was over pension plans and full-time vs. part-time jobs. But for the local business community, the issue was, and still is, economic survival in a highly competitive marketplace.

Parents are key to school success

■ The time to become involved in your child's education is at the beginning and a new school year presents student and parent alike with the chance for a fresh start.

It's a little bit darker in the morning and a little bit cooler at night, which means school buses will be rolling soon. In fact, classes begin next week for public school students in Livonia, Clarenceville, Wayne-Westland, Plymouth-Canton and Van Buren; and the following week in the Garden City, South Redford and Redford Union school districts.

The start of the school year is a good time to remind parents of the key role they play in the educational process.

In the news business, we tend to focus on the facets of education that are easily quantified – test scores, teacher salaries and unusual or innovative programs. But the day-to-day interaction between parents and kids on seemingly routine matters is at least as important in determining educational outcome as any of those other factors, maybe even more so.

From simply ensuring safety on the route to and from school and providing proper nourishment during the school day, to leading by example and showing encouragement in academic areas, parents can be the first and best mentors for their children. Here are just some of the ways a parent can make a difference in a child's education:

■ Read to your early elementary child. For older children, set aside a specific time for reading on a regular basis. Make sure appropriate reading material is easily accessible in your home and pick up your own books and periodicals where and when your children can see you.

■ Ask about school activities and assignments. Encourage your child to ask questions and take the time to provide answers, or help find a source with the information.

■ Monitor your child's progress at home and in the classroom. Don't wait for parent-teacher conference time if you think there is a problem.

■ Show excitement. Young children are impressionable and the way they view school is shaped by early experiences.

■ Make sure your child has breakfast, a good lunch (whether you send one from home or the school provides it) and plenty of water to drink throughout the day. New research shows that a constant flow of water stimulates the brain and keeps children more alert. Some teachers allow students to keep a water bottle at their desks, eliminating trips to the drinking fountain.

■ Drive slowly and watch for children darting into the street, particularly near schools. The school-zone speed limit in Michigan is 25 mph. State law also requires drivers on both sides of the road to stop and wait for a school bus when students are entering or exiting. Car pool drivers should make sure all occupants have fastened seat belts.

Your child's safety and success in school are directly tied to your attitude and actions. The time to become involved in your child's education is at the beginning and a new school year presents student and parent alike with the chance for a fresh start.

Angry over tie-up

On Saturday evening, Aug. 9, my husband and I were stuck on northbound I-275 for two hours between Ford Road and Ann Arbor Road (about a two-mile stretch). We entered the expressway from eastbound Ford Road at 6 p.m. There was no indication there was a problem on the expressway, until the top of the cloverleaf entrance ramp.

That morning, a truck spilled something on the road, that caused northbound I-275 to be closed at Ann Arbor Road. Why wasn't the entrance ramp at Ford Road closed to avoid this traffic jam? Any of the northbound traffic already on I-275 would have been delayed, but not stopped. Ford Road is just two miles south of Ann Arbor Road. The stoppage was caused by people getting on at Ford Road.

There were people driving on the shoulders and in the medians just to get off. There were kids in cars, a limo filled with people waiting to reach their destination, senior citizens, 18-wheelers, and a bride and groom, all stuck. My heart went out to the bride and groom.

Cars were breaking down, and clutches were smoking. I also drive a clutch. My clutch and brakes just lost a couple of years thanks to this unnecessary jam. By the time we reached the Ann Arbor Road exit, people were running the red light. The frustrations were showing. There was a very young women, who was crying at the side of the road, due to a vehicle mishap. What a rotten experience for a new driver. When we finally got off, I found a pay phone and immediately called the Canton Police Department. I asked if they could close the ramp to stop any more people from being stuck.

Well, they didn't have the authority, I asked them to call the State Police, and have them close the ramp. The dispatcher said the State Police couldn't do anything either, but she would give me the number to Wayne County. I was at a pay phone, and said I could post a sign there, but they couldn't do anything. As far as the State Police, one was there, but of no help. Instead of keeping people off the expressway he was giving people tickets for driving in the median. Thanks a lot! He also could have been useful in directing traffic off at Ann Arbor Road, making things faster.

The Plymouth Police Department was nowhere in sight. Let's see any police officer get stuck in a traffic jam. They wouldn't wait, and wouldn't give any other police officer a ticket to get out of the jam. Especially if they had kids who need to go to the bathroom!

The traffic jam could have been avoided, if any one of our tax-paid employees who were working on Saturday cared! The accident happened in the morning, and the expressway was not opened until late evening. There was plenty enough time to do something!

My weekend was wrecked. As well as thousands of other people's.

To those who were stuck after me, I tried to get someone to close that Ford Road ramp. I'm sorry that I couldn't help you.

If you are that person who cares, I am sorry this is not very professionally written, but I am still angry over this.

Why the flag?

If one wishes to protest a war, why does he burn the American flag? Why not break an egg, cross the street to the other side, or watch a rerun of "I Love Lucy"?

If one insists on a war and flag connection, you would think a demonstrator of any disposition would esteem the flag, fly the flag, sew another and display it. Burning makes no sense at all for one who honors his country and his flag.

It is easy to conclude that a flag burner is not a patriot but one who wishes to deny the greatness of the Country, the importance of representative government and the free market system. Let anyone prove his dementia as he espouses his socialist preferences.

All of us believe that even cretins can voice objections and incant their denials of America's goodness. But burn the flag? Burning the flag is not speech; it is an act of cowardice that intends the insult of those who believe our Country is a very special place.

POINTS OF VIEW

The origins of School-to-Work merit a close watch

Tim Richard's column on July 3 addressed the issue of School-to-Work reform currently being debated in educational circles in Lansing.

Richard established his support for the program by citing the success of Heinz Prechter, who went through a similar program in his native Germany. Richard also touted the support of the program by members of the Republican Party (Gov. John Engler and Lyn Bankes, R-Redford).

Hopefully, the following information will help to clarify the position of School-to-Work opponents.

School-to-Work is a state-level administered, federal program, signed into law by President Clinton in 1994. The plan was drawn up by Bill and Hillary Clinton, Ira Magaziner, and Marc Tucker, president of the National Center of Education & Economy, funded by the Carnegie Foundation. After studying the Goals 2000 Act, Representative Henry Hyde, R-Ill., concluded that the plan "... moves away from an academically intensive curriculum to one that is integrated with vocational training, producing skilled manpower for the labor market. The economy will be controlled by the federal government by controlling our workforce and our schools."

States are now busily complying with Goals 2000 and School-to-Work mandates. Statewide Workforce Development boards have formed to study which labor skills are needed in each state to determine "human resources" training requirements.

Perhaps a few quotes from a letter that Marc Tucker wrote to Hillary Clinton on Nov. 11, 1992, will shed some light on the real agenda behind School-to-Work: "The subject we (David Rockefeller, John Sculley, Dave Barram and David Haselkorn) were discussing was what you and Bill should do not about education, training, and labor market policy ... We think the great opportunity you have is to remold the entire American system for human resource development, almost all of the current components of which were put into place before World War II." The last sentence is revealing in that most experts agree that the "socialization" of America began in earnest in the 1930s under the Roosevelt administration.

Tucker next outlined the following points to "implement this vision."

■ A national "apprenticeship system" to serve as "the keystone of a strategy for putting a whole new post-secondary training system in place."

■ A national "employment service and a new system of labor market boards" to control all education, jobs, and job training.

■ Legislation "to advance the elementary and secondary reform agenda."

Educational researcher Shirley Correll, and others, have been pointing out that many of Tucker's educational "reform" efforts have been drawn directly from the Soviet Union. The Goals 2000/School-to-Work/Careers/Workforce scheme has clearly been fashioned from the Soviet polytechnical school.

The basis for the polytechnical system embodied in Goals 2000 and School-to-Work can be found in the Communist Manifesto. The framework for the Goals 2000 reforms was established by the Bush administration with the help of Lamar Alexander and William Bennett. It was George Shultz of the Reagan Administration who signed the Carnegie-drafted U.S.-Soviet education agreements with Gorbachev in 1985. That same year, Marc Tucker was brought on board by the Carnegie Foundation. Conservatives shouldn't feel relieved when various high-ranking Republicans attach themselves to legislative initiatives.

The Republican leadership walks toward socialism; Democratic leadership jogs. School-to-Work is simply another step toward the big-brother vision of America sculpted by Washington's elite, and the state-level bureaucrats who wish to join them by playing their prescribed roles in the game.

Union endorsement has roots in 'Save the Jobs' party

There is more than a personality choice behind the United Auto Workers union's endorsement of Larry Owen as the 1998 Democratic candidate for governor.

Why Owen? Political columnists don't have the answer. Instead, try "Locked in the Cabinet" (Knopf 1997) by Robert Reich, secretary of Labor in President Clinton's first term. He says:

"There are only two real parties in America, and they aren't the Democrats and Republicans. One is the 'Save the Jobs' party. The other is the 'Let 'Em Drown' Party." Both are wrong, he says.

The "Save the Jobs" party includes Lane Kirkland, past president of the AFL-CIO labor federation, and Bill Ford, who spent 30 years in Congress representing unions rather than people in western Wayne County, and boasted about it.

"Save the Jobs" politicians from both political parties vote for defense contracts, farm price supports, tax breaks for oil, cash for shipbuilders and ethanol producers, tariff protection for garment makers and steel makers. They fought expansion of the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA). Essentially, they're fighting a rear guard action.

"The 'Let 'Em Drown' party wants to move instantly to an idealized free market economy in which everyone's job is at risk, but none more than the blue-collar workers and the poor. This party wants to open all borders ... and privatize Social Security, health care, and anything else left over," Reich says.

It's fair to say UAW leaders belong to the "Save the Jobs" party.

Reich and many others want to "ease the transition of Americans from old jobs to new." He finds their median wages are dropping as executive bonuses and the stock market enter the stratosphere. Their answer is job training – by government, by community colleges, by mandated corporate investment in job training.

Most readers here know that companies spend a lot training managers.

Tim Richard

But Reich and others argue the companies are derelict in not training workers on the line.

Outside government, a group called the National Center on Education and the Economy preaches this message. NCEE is responsible for the line that 70 percent of jobs by the year 2000 won't require a four-year college degree, but will require training beyond high school. If you haven't read NCEE's report, you heard Republicans like Gov. John Engler repeat it.

NCEE has a lot of interesting names, such as Bill Brock, a former Republican secretary of Labor; Ray Marshall, a former Democratic secretary of Labor; Mario Cuomo, David Rockefeller Jr. and Philip H. Power, the same fellow whose column will resume in this space the week of Aug. 25.

Reich has enlightening interviews with Lane Kirkland and Bill Ford. Reich suggested a deal: If labor and its congressional delegation would withdraw their objection to NAFTA, they perhaps could achieve a $2 billion federal program for job retraining.

Their responses aren't printable in a household newspaper, but they basically said nuts, forget it. So they lost on both NAFTA and job retraining.

Now who should be Larry Owen's chief rival for governor but Doug Ross, Reich's former assistant secretary of Labor. Ross confesses he has a foot in the "Save the Jobs" party, but in practice I find he spends most of his breath talking about preparing Michigan for the 21st century and job retraining.

Bottom line: Ross isn't swallowing the union line 100 percent.

The fact that the UAW endorsed so early looks good for Owen, because whomever the UAW and AFL-CIO endorse has always won the Democratic nomination, though not the election.

Can Ross prevail anyway? He will try. He continues to collect money and endorsements.

Meanwhile, Reich noted that 40 percent of union people deserted the Democrats in the 1994 election that turned over Congress to the Republicans. People on the lower half of the job ladder also turned against Democrats.

Will the "Save the Jobs" party learn?

Tim Richard reports on the local implications of state and regional events.

Computers have their limits

It was with a considerable amount of mixed emotions that I recently purchased a computer system. I've long thought that computers fell into the same category as the bug zapper and the Salad Shooter; things that seem clever and useful, but you could still get by OK without them.

I might never have actually purchased a computer if it wasn't absolutely essential to how I make a living. So, like most other decisions in my life, I did this because I was forced to.

Once I resigned myself to the necessity, I figured I should learn as much as I could so I could make a smart purchase. I talked to experts, I read magazines, and I scoured all the ads and brochures. Ultimately, what I learned is that you should buy a computer with as big of numbers as possible. If you lay out the big bucks to get as many rams, gigs and megaherzes as available, it may be several weeks before your new system is totally obsolete.

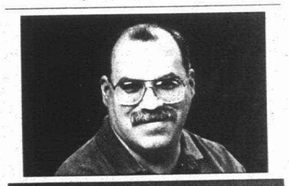
I've got to admit that I am astonished at what these things can do. The sheer power and speed with which information can be found and moved is both amazing and troubling. In a matter of a few minutes, I can locate an old friend, get his address and phone number, print a map to his house, and even check the public records to see how much he paid for it. It is the electronic equivalent of rooting around in someone's garbage without leaving home or getting your hands dirty. Of course, if I can do this to them, they can do this to me.

One of the many features that came on my computer is a free trial of an online service. With just a few clicks of the mouse, I would be ready to "surf the Net." The "few clicks" only took me about two hours.

After finally getting connected, I ventured into the "web" like a stupid, unsuspecting housefly. Once ensnared in this sticky trap, the spiders began moving in on me, and much to my horror, they were covered with advertising. It was like watching 90 minutes of commercials. I gave up without ever finding all the cool stuff that's supposed to be out there.

Even though this online stuff has been a dud so far, I'll give it a few more tries to see if I can get something worthwhile out of it. I'm sure it'll be better once I get the hang of it, but it will be a while before I stop believing that the Emperor of Cyberspace has no clothes.

At the risk of being labeled a heretic, I believe America's fascination with computers borders on the absurd. Granted, every day brings new developments to the field, and the implications of expanding technologies are inescapable. Still, it seems foolish and misguided to treat technology as The Holy Grail.



Gary Belanger

Computers fit well alongside the car, jet, electric light, telephone and indoor plumbing as significant developments which have changed our world, but they certainly don't rank any higher. Look at it this way: If you had to carry a candle with you on a quick trot to the outhouse in the middle of the night, would you be thinking about how much space is left on your hard drive?

E-mail, chat rooms and news groups all serve important purposes, but this should augment personal contact, not replace it.

I am also quite bugged by how much emphasis is being placed on technology in schools today.

At a recent school board meeting I attended, a board member sternly intoned that "Our children will not be able to enter the 21st century if they don't know enough about computers." I guess on the day that century begins, someone will identify the techno-dunces in the schools, hand them each a case of 1999 calendars, and ship them off to a virtual reality leper colony.

If I had been taught the technology of the day when I was in school, I would now be qualified to work in a museum. Do we really want our children so steeped in technology that the admonition to appreciate life will be "Stop and scan the roses"?

In many ways, we have paid for convenience with the erosion of privacy and intimacy. Computers can store, retrieve, organize and analyze data far better than humans can, but they cannot dream, feel, imagine or wonder. Letting them take over our brains is one thing, but letting them take over our souls is another. After all, life without computers might be inconvenient, but life without soul stinks.

Ex-sheriff's deputy charged in murders

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER

A former Wayne County sheriff's deputy and Westland resident is being held on two counts of murder for killing his ex-wife and her new husband, who at one time was his best friend.

Sgt. Shawn Gormley of the Peoria, Ariz., police department, near Phoenix, said witnesses identified Gary McKeon as the man who walked into the backyard of a home the two were visiting and opened fire on his ex-wife, 44-year-old Kerry Hild, and her 52-year-old husband, George.

Police say both were shot once. George Hild died at the scene, while Kerry was airlifted to a Phoenix hospital where she died.

Police said McKeon called the house before arriving, to make certain his ex-wife was at the home of relatives.

McKeon was arrested the next day at his Phoenix home. Gormley said police obtained warrants and were searching his home when McKeon walked up to officers and announced "I'm the guy you're looking for."

Authorities say he was taken into custody without incident and is being held without bond on two counts of first-degree murder.

The Wayne County sheriff's department confirms McKeon, 47, was a member of the department from January 1972, to his retirement on March 1, 1992. His last assignment was at Metro Airport.

McKeon, Kerry and their five children moved to Phoenix in 1992. Police say the couple were high school sweethearts who were divorced last year. Kerry married McKeon's best friend less than a year later.

Authorities also say a personal protection order was recently served against McKeon to keep him away from the couple. Police say he had put signs on his lawn with profanities and other references to his ex-wife.

McKeon had been working as a landscaper while living in Phoenix. McKeon had custody of the couple's four children.

Can you buy happiness?

What do you need to make you happy? Is it to be successful? Famous? Rich? To have the most?

Author and financial consultant Ron Blue relates a story about visiting a small, rural village in Africa where he was able to have a talk with one of the natives. Ron reports that he was quite taken aback when he asked a native what was the biggest problem facing his village. The man told Ron it was not the lack of food or medical attention, but "materialism." It's not like these villages have the amenities that we have come to expect like TV, microwaves, computers, cell phones and VCRs.

The villager went on to tell him, "If a man has a mud hut, he wants one made of cow manure. If he has a cow manure hut, he wants a stone hut. If he has a thatched roof, he wants a tin roof. If he has one acre, he wants two. Materialism is a disease of the heart. It has nothing to do with where you live. " (From "Home With a Heart" by Jas. C. Dobson, 1996, used by permission, all rights reserved.)

This same theme came alive for my son who traveled by boat around the world last year. He, too, sensed discontentment in each of the countries among the elders who see that the

Ballet company readies for audition

■ Dawn Greene and daughter June Smith are looking for a few good boys and girls to share their love of dance with. The duo is once again holding auditions for their ballet troupe which will perform "The Nutcracker Ballet" in December.'

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO

For Dawn Greene, dancing has become a family business.

The Canton woman is the artistic director of the Plymouth-Canton Ballet Company with her daughter June Smith of Canton, as assistant director.

Greene and her husband Beck are also the owners of the Grosse Ile Academy. Their other daughter and her husband, Dawnelle and Mark Nash, are dancers with the Cincinnati Ballet.

Once again this fall, Greene is hoping to share her family's love of dance with a new group of children as the Plymouth-Canton Ballet Company holds auditions this weekend.

"I think that ballet in itself gives them confidence, discipline and a knowledge of the arts," Greene said. "For ballet, it gives them experience of dancing with a live orchestra."

The Plymouth-Canton Ballet Company will audition children ages 9-12 from noon-1 p.m., and dancers ages 13 and older from 1:30-3 p.m. at Joanne's Dance Extension, 9282 General Dr., Suites 180-190, in Plymouth.

"The auditions are open to any student in the area," Greene said. "We usually have 50 members. We've had dancers from Port Huron, Grosse Ile, Dearborn, Wayne, Westland, Livonia and Brighton. It's our goal to bring dancers of this area together."

All girls auditioning for the Plymouth-Canton Ballet Company must wear black leotard and pink tights, and must wear their hair up in a bun or French braid. Ponytails are not allowed. Boys are required to wear appropriate dance attire and ballet shoes. Scholarships are available for male dancers. Dancers ages 13 and older must also wear pointe shoes.

All dancers are required to submit a resume and photograph, and the $5 audition fee goes toward paying the audition teacher. For more information about the auditions, call (313) 397-8828, or (313) 455-4330.

This season the company will have two performances. The Plymouth Symphony Orchestra along with the company will perform "The Nutcracker" Friday through Sunday, Dec. 12-14. Last year the Nashes danced the lead roles in "The Nutcracker."

There will also be a spring perfor-

A master's degree by choice... not necessity.

It probably didn't happen to you, but it may have happened to people you know. The undergraduate degree taken because of a business requirement...or in preparation for medical school...or law school. Doesn't anyone take a degree for the joy of learning? For the thrill of academic discovery? That's what education used to be about. Well, now it still can be. The degree is a Master of Arts in Liberal Studies.

We won't say it will be easy. After all, this is the University of Michigan-Dearborn. But it will be fascinating. The interdisciplinary courses will develop your critical thinking skills and intellectual flexibility. You will be ready to consider career changes or just be happily more aware of subjects you were always curious about. Offered primarily during the evening, with individualized programs if that's the way you want to go.

Western world's influences are contaminating their cultures. Some of the happiest people he saw were in India where poverty is the worst. Does that speak well for the United States?

It's sad that the country with the most wealth and easiest access to all the riches anyone could possibly want is also the country that threatens to destroy less affluent places. And are we happier because of all we have? No. Are our kids growing up with these expectations? Most definitely, but they, too, will not be happier because of them.

It begins as early as preschool when Junior hears the "Beanie Babies" are the thing to have. "Mama, I wanna a Beanie Baby." Do we hesitate for a moment, and say to ourselves, "This is a fad that I'm not going to buy into"?

Nancy admits that she almost got sucked into the frenzy to buy-and-stash. When she found out she could buy five "Beanie Babies" at a time from a particular store, her head was spinning. "Wow, I could buy five each day and keep them for the kids." But as she was driving over to the store, she realized how foolish this was going to be. Was stockpiling them for her kids the way to happiness? She thought not and bought only two. And, I might add, only to be given out as a precious reward for accomplishment.

Alcoholics Anonymous has a slogan that seems to ring true for more than just the recovering community. "When you want, there's never enough." That is to say that the desires we have will always be for more than what we already possess.

When Steve earned enough money, he bought himself a small powerboat. But it wasn't long before the boat just didn't seem large enough to "have some fun on." So he stepped up to a 30-foot boat with a small cabin. But it just didn't seem large enough to "eat a meal on." So he proceeded to move from a 30-foot to a 40-foot boat and is now purchasing a 45-foot boat with a queen-sized bed, a microwave and TV/VCR combo unit.

And, yet, Steve doesn't appear to be an ounce happier. He may need to have a 124-foot yacht before happiness sets in. What Steve doesn't know is that those who have not learned to appreciate or value what they have, will never ever be happy with the biggest and the best.

How do we teach our children these lessons about valuing our lives and our happiness? We can show our kids the little things in life that bring us happiness. Here are a few that come to mind:

- A big kiss.
- A cold glass of milk when you're really thirsty.
- A windy day.
- Droplets of rain on the pavement.
- A good book.
- A kind remark.
- An act of service for someone else.
- Still waters on a lake.
- A bicycle ride through a forest.
- The bright color of a monarch butterfly.

If we can bring our children the gift of being content with what we have, we will have created a generation of appreciative people who can recognize the diversity and "inside" gifts in other people. This in turn will produce a common thread throughout every community. If the part you play seems minuscule, remember that it's never the majority that change norms, it begins one at a time.

mance. Both shows will be at Plymouth Salem High School auditorium.

"The spring performance depends on what we feel would be appropriate to the public," Greene said. "We've done 'Peter and the Wolf' in the past."

Rehearsals are held all day on Sundays and includes a mandatory rehearsal Thanksgiving weekend. It begins with soloists and continues throughout the day with group rehearsals. Younger children are only required to come in for a few hours, Greene said.

Greene began her ballet training as a child in Scotland. When Greene's parents moved to the United States, she continued her studies throughout her school years and briefly danced as a professional.

A former resident of Texas and Southgate, Greene has run ballet companies in each city where she has lived. Greene explained running a company can be strenuous.

"It's a lot of work," she said. "We have 180 students (at the Grosse Ile Academy). They start at (age) 3 and go through adults. They're at all varieties of levels of dance. We had a lot of girls who are very talented."

She started the non-profit Plymouth-Canton Dance Academy because "we thought it would be a good opportunity for them to experience a professional atmosphere."

Professional atmospheres in local companies, according to Greene, excludes the eating disorders that plague many professional dancers. She added that her company doesn't put pressure on children to be thin.

"With children, you have to be careful you don't do that," she said. "We select children on ability. Of course, they can't be overweight. At that age it (that kind of pressure) can be damaging."

Children who are planning to audition for the Plymouth-Canton Ballet Company should be dedicated, she said.

"They should be prepared to work hard, be dedicated and be focused," she said. "I think too many of our children nowadays try to do too many things."

REAL ESTATE UPDATE
by Chris Knight

REVITALIZING AN OLD LISTING

Your home in the Plymouth and Canton areas has been on the market for six months, and it just isn't moving. What can you do to introduce some extra energy into the sale?

The first thing you should do is to have a frank talk with your agent in order to get feedback from prospective buyers and agents who have shown your home. Does your home look its best? Is it accessible for agents to show on short notice? Is the price in line with the rest of the market? Do you need to consider neutralizing any strong decorating features that may not have wide appeal? Getting your home sold is a collaborative effort between you and your Realtor. It is important for your Realtor to market your property aggressively, but you must do your part to ensure that buyers see a home that is as appealing as it can be. Ask your agent for any new ideas that will create results.

Dingell to speak at YW's Women of Achievement

A national advocate for women and children's issues and the head of corporate giving at the world's largest automaker, Deborah Insley Dingell will be the keynote speaker at the 1997 YWCA of Western Wayne County Women of Achievement Awards.

A Dearborn resident, Dingell is president of the General Motors Foundation and executive director of National Corporate Activity for the automaker.

Each year, the YWCA honors women in six categories for outstanding contributions in Wayne County. The awards will be presented at the organization's Women of Achievement luncheon Nov. 7 at the Fairlane Club in Dearborn.

The six categories includes:

- Arts/communication – a woman who has excelled in the arts, media or public relations. Such fields include visual, literary and performing arts, journalism, television and radio.
- Business/industry – a woman who has exhibited outstanding abilities and accomplishments as an entrepreneur, or at the technical/professional, management or executive level.
- Government/law – a woman who has provided exceptional leadership in government or the legal profession, either in an elected or career capacity.
- Professions – a woman who has demonstrated excellence and commitment as a professional in the field of education, health human service, religion or research.
- Volunteer service – a woman who has made significant contributions to her community through her volunteer efforts.
- Young woman – a young woman age 16-23 who has demonstrated leadership qualities, service to the community and a positive glimpse of tomorrow's woman.

Nominees must either work, live or volunteer in western Wayne County. Nominations should include information on the candidates qualities of leadership, areas of achievement (past or present), commitment to improving western Wayne County through work-related or volunteer activities and helping to provide opportunities for other women in the community.

The deadline for nominations is Sept. 19. To receive a nomination form, call (313) 561-4110 or send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to the YWCA of Western Wayne, 26279 Michigan Ave., Inkster 48141.

A graduate of Georgetown University's School of Foreign Service, Dingell is completing work on a master's degree in business ethics, focusing on ethical issues and social responsibility as it relates to government and business, also at Georgetown.

She also chairs the Michigan Infant Mortality Task Force and a two-year public campaign, "Baby Your Baby," which resulted in reduced infant mortality rates in the state.

She is co-founder of The Children's Inn at the National Institutes of Health, a home away from home for critically ill children, and founding chair of the National Women's Health Resource Center in Washington, D.C.

She also serves on several boards and advisory panels, including, the Barbara Karmanos Cancer Center's breast cancer and government relations committees, Friends of Wayne County Parks, WTVS-Channel 56, the Detroit Area March of Dimes, Detroit Boy and Girl Scouts, The Parade Company of Michigan and the Michigan Women's Foundation.

Dingell also is active in Democratic politics as a member of the Democratic National Committee, an officer of the state Democratic Party, president of the Democratic Congressional Spouses and vice-chair of the House of Representatives Family Activities.

The YWCA is a decentralized, interracial, intercultural agency which supports women and girls and their families so they can realize their full potential and improve the quality of their lives through such services as community organization, crisis intervention, group work and personal adjustment, physical well-being and recreation.

The YWCA of Western Wayne County serves Canton Township, Dearborn, Dearborn Heights, Garden City, Inkster, Livonia, Northville, Romulus, Taylor, Van Buren, Wayne and Westland.

Program marks anniversary of women getting right to vote

■ While she never lived in Michigan, her 1846 speech in the Michigan Hose is believed to be the first time that any woman ever addressed any state legislature.

Next month men and women exercise their right to vote in primary elections, elections that will come two weeks after a very important anniversary: 77 years ago, on Aug. 26, 1920, women won the right to vote.

In recognition of the anniversary, "Votes for Women," will premiere at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 26, in Room 200 of the Liberal Arts Building on the campus of Schoolcraft College, 18600 Haggerty Road, Livonia.

The free presentation is being sponsored by the American Association of University Women, the Greater Detroit section of the National Council of Jewish Women and the college's Women's Resource Center.

The award-winning video, which includes actual footage of suffragists at work, will be screened along with a video of last year's reenactment of Ernestine Rose's 1846 speech before the Michigan House of Representatives, urging the legislators to grant women the right to vote.

The program will serve as a kickoff of a campaign to honor Rose with a U.S. postage stamp.

The AAUW of Michigan spearheaded reenactment on the 150th anniversary of Rose's speech March 26, 1996.

NCJW president Marta Rosenthal portrayed Rose and wore a hoop-skirted costume provided by Oakland University's Meadowbrook Theater. The Michigan Women's Hall of Fame helped with the reenactment.

Born in Poland in 1810, the daughter of a rabbi, Rose sailed for the United States as a newlywed in 1836 and immediately began 33 years of seeking women's rights, the abolition of slavery, free public schools and other reforms before ill health forced her into retirement.

Known as the queen of the platform in an era when women speaking in public anywhere was deemed unseemly, Rose spoke to Michigan audiences on other occasions, appearing in Adrian, Ann Arbor, Battle Creek, Detroit and Ypsilanti.

Last October, she was inducted into the National Women's Hall of Fame in Seneca Falls, N.Y., because of her Michigan connection.

Her national hall medallion is on permanent display at the Michigan Women's Hall of Fame in Lansing, where a rare picture of her, discovered in the attic of Susan B. Anthony's home, will soon join the display.

The Rose speech to the Michigan House came more than two years before the first women's rights convention, held in July 1948 in Seneca Falls. The convention usually marks the beginning of the women's tights movement.

While no record exists of the 1846 legislative reaction to the original Rose speech, the reenactment last year inspired prolonged applause, cheers, a standing ovation – and even a few boos.

LifeLines troupe receives grant

Youth Living Centers has received a $30,000 grant from the Michigan AIDS Foundation to continue its well-received live theater presentations about HIV/AIDS.

Beginning its third year, the LifeLines Theater Troupe's presentation, "The Debate," has already reached more than 1,900 young people.

The program is aimed at youths ages 10-18in metropolitan Detroit who are at risk for contracting AIDS. Encouraging audience participation, "The Debate" seeks to educate young people about the risk factors related to HIV/AIDS.

Performances typically take place at alternative schools, detention centers, runaway shelters, substance abuse program centers and other places where high-risk youth are found.

The Michigan AIDS Fund grant will be used to present 30 dramatizations of "The Debate" during the upcoming year, to provide community information, and to assist with referrals for youth who may need intervention or treatment.

Youth Living Centers is a private, nonprofit agency serving abused, neglected, homeless and at-risk children and families in crisis throughout southeastern Michigan.

The agency offers more than a dozen programs under three service teams : Child and Family Services, Young Adult and Adult Services and Community Education an Recreation Services. For more information, call (313) 728-3400.

Walk benefits CHHCS's Hospice Home project

The phrase walking home can have many interpretations. For Ron Pritchard, it symbolized his final journey.

A patient of Community Hospice and Home Care Services, Pritchard's walk home ended on Aug. 3, 1996, when he died after battling a terminal illness for several years.

As a tribute to Pritchard, his family and friends are holding the first annual "Ron Pritchard's Walk Home" Saturday, Sept. 6, as a benefit for CHHCS.

"Ron was very special, and because CHHCS made the journey easier for him and his loved ones, we are honored to hold this event to help others experience the peace and comfort Ron received from CHHCS," said Andrew Grifka, event chairman.

The seven-mile walk will be held in Edward Hines Park. Registration will be at 8 a.m., followed by the walk at 9 a.m. Walkers are asked to collect pledges. Those with $150 or more on or before the walk day will receive a free T-shirt. People also can make donations to sponsor the walk.

Participants can preregister through Aug. 29 by sending their completed form and pledges to CHHCS, 32932 Warren Road, Suite 100, Westland 48186. Forms also can be turned in the day of the walk at the registration booth in the parks Nankin Mills picnic area on Hines Drive south of Ann Arbor Trail, Westland.

Celebrity chair for the event is ex-Detroit Pistons coach Chuck Daly, while U.S. Rep Lynn Rivers, Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara, Plymouth Township Supervisor Kathleen Keen-McCarthy, Westland Mayor Robert Thomas and Plymouth Mayor Ron Loiselle are among local dignitaries lending their support.

Proceeds from the walk will be used to aid the development and creation of the hospice home project, a 8-10-bed residence within the CHHCS community to provide a compassionate alternative for terminally ill patients who are unable to stay at their home for their final days.

"Our dream is to create a residence that offers a program of skille, professional services, in the comfort of a warm, relaxed setting," said Maureen Butrico, CHHS executive director.

For more than 16 years, CHHS has been offering comprehasive and compassionate care for incurably ill patients and their families. While it offers care in the home or an extended care facility, the organization has recognized the need to provide a "home like" setting for those patients who have limited or no care givers or a place to call home, said Mary Letters, CHHCS marketing and development specialist.

CHHCS also needs help in other ways to make the project a reality – property on which to construct the facility.

The organizations is hoping a company, individual or organization will donate at least three acres of land in its service area of western Wayne, southern Oakland and eastern Washtenaw counties.

"We are interested in a site with good visibility, but one that will allow our patients the ability to share quiet and peaceful times with family and friends," said Butrico. "Once complete, the facility will allow us to meet the needs of those people who want the unique care offered by hospice, but can't spend their final days at home."

For more information about "Walking Home" or the Hospice Home project, call CHHCS at (313) 522-4244.

Gerald's Salon hosts 'Cruise On In' show

You can still catch some of the classics at "Cruise On In," a day-long celebration of classic cars at Gerald's Salon in Northville.

Arranged by The Good Time Wanderers, a local classic car club, the event will be 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 23, at the salon, 41012 Five Mile Road.

Classic cars of the '40s, '50s and '60s will festoon the front lawn of the salon. Car club members and salon employees will wear poodle skirts and bobby socks and other '50s and '60s attire, and hot dogs and Vernors ginger ale will complete the nostalgia theme.

"We thought it would be a fun event for clients visiting the salon that day and for anybody who loves classic cars," said Gerald Haynes, salon owner. "We try to do some unusual things to show our clients how much we appreciate them."

The salon also will present two trophies. One will be the Spectators' Choice, with the recipient selected by a vote of the salon's clients who have appointments that day. The other will be the Salon Manager's Choice.

"Cruise On In" will take place rain or shine and is for both clients and the general public. For more information, call the salon at (313) 420-0111.

Want to see a faster Internet? Want to see it again? Welcome to the fastest Internet connection to your home. One that's up to 50 times faster than the one you have now. You can only get it through Broadband. So what is Broadband? Simply put, it's a wire with two-way capabilities, a wire with enormous capacity. So things can move down it faster. Faster than anything else out there. Right now, Broadband lets you download from the Internet up to 50 times faster than ordinary telephone wire. This supersonic speed is why we call our Internet service MediaOne Express. ⊙ The networks in your area have already been upgraded with fiber-optics. Once your house is hooked up, you won't have to dial up to use the Net. You won't waste half a day waiting for images to download. Searches that used to take forever will be finished in seconds. Work will get done. Games will be played. ⊙ With Broadband you'll no longer simply receive all the exciting material out there. Because Broadband's unique two-way capabilities give your computer the power to send video as well as receive it. And you'll do it all at a speed you never imagined possible. Adding an entirely new level of meaning to the word "interactivity." ⊙ You'll discover the world's fastest Internet is just the beginning of what Broadband will come to mean to you. With this one single wire, your computer will become as entertaining as your TV. Your TV will become as smart as your computer. And you will be able to communicate in ways you never imagined. Broadband has the power to change the way we work, the way we play, the way we learn. ⊙ As for the present, enjoy your new Internet. For information, call 1-313-459-7300 or visit our Web site at http://www.mediaone.com/express

Training camp opens

The Plymouth Whalers open their Ontario Hockey League training camp Thursday, Aug. 28, with 45 players invited to participate — including nine National Hockey League draftees.

The opening three days of camp are open to the public at no charge.

Fifteen players return from last season's squad, including leading scorer Andrew Taylor (32 goals, 39 assists for 71 points), a fifth-round selection of the New York Islanders in 1995; center Harold Druken, a second-round choice of the Vancouver Canucks this year; and goalie Robert Esche (3.60 goals-against average), a sixth-round pick of the Phoenix Coyotes in 1996.

The training camp schedule features Team White vs. Team Blue at 2 p.m. Aug. 28; White-vs.-Blue again at 9:30 a.m. and then at 2:30 p.m. Aug. 29; Team Blue practice at 9 a.m. Aug. 30; Team White practice at 10:30 a.m. Aug. 30; and a regulation game at 7:30 p.m. Aug. 30.

In the opening round on Saturday, Sept. 6, the Otters meet the Spitfires at 3:30 p.m. and Team USA goes against the Whalers at 7:30 p.m. The consolation final is at 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 7, followed by the championship game at 6:30 p.m.

Anderson leaves Canton volleyball position

BY C.J. RISAK

Steve Anderson called it "the trickle down affect."

For anyone familiar with Plymouth Canton's volleyball program for the past two seasons, this trickle has resulted in a flood — and a disaster.

With the cutbacks in the city of Plymouth's Parks and Recreation Department budget, Anderson — the department's assistant director — has been forced to trim his staff in half while assuming more duties.

And that means he won't have time to devote to coaching volleyball.

So on Tuesday, Anderson resigned his Canton HS coaching position.

"It's a big blow," said assistant athletic director Sue Heinzman. "I just don't know how else to put it . . . Canton won its division (in volleyball) for the first time in 20 years (last season)."

It was not a decision Anderson reached easily. In just two years at Canton, he took the Chiefs from also-rans to contenders in the Western Lakes Activities Association. They were 34-10 last season, the school's best record ever.

"I wish I didn't have to (resign)," he said. "If I could coach full-time, I would."

Anderson is also the assistant volleyball coach at Henry Ford CC, but the demands on his time are not as great. "If something at work prevents me from getting to practice on time, Gary (Gray, Henry Ford's coach) can fill in.

"It will help fill the void."

It appears Anderson won't have much free time. His full-time staff of four was cut to two, and he was also handed responsibility for the department's vending machines and concessions.

"Essentially, politics is affecting this whole thing," Anderson said, noting the $180,000 trimmed from the budget. "I almost got laid off. The city had to cut our budget, and I understand that.

"I had a choice: Knowing (if I coach) I won't be able to put 100 percent effort into it, that I'd have to do it half-way — and I don't do anything that way."

Work ethic was a major part of Anderson's program as he built Canton into a powerhouse. His retooling of the team, together with winning the WLAA Western Division title, are high on his list of memories.

But most of all, he relishes the five Canton players he guided into college volleyball in two years.

"That's the bad part," he said. "In my two years, we had five players go on to

The losses are aplenty. But the replacements — they are even more aplenty.

In other words, Plymouth Canton has lost some top-notch talent from last year's 15-3-4 team, a group that was eliminated from the Class A state tournament by the eventual state champion in each of the past two years.

Take it back a year further, and Canton wasn't eliminated — the Chiefs won the state title in '94.

Bottom line is this is a program built on success. Only three other schools can claim the kind of perennial achievement experienced by Canton over the past decade: Livonia Stevenson (the defending state champ), Plymouth Salem (1995 state winner) and Warren DeLaSalle (Class A titlist in '90, '92 and '93).

So even though the Chiefs have lost two of their top three scorers (Nick Wright, 16 goals, and Keith Gniewek, 11 goals) and their two best defenders (Jason Bennett and Matt Ammons), don't expect a lengthy rebuilding period.

Coach Don Smith has had lots to choose from in reworking his squad — so much that he kept 27 players on the varsity.

Why not send them down to the junior varsity, where they would get more playing time, you ask? Because there are 29 players on the JV team.

And 19 others were turned away.

"We had a big, big turnout this year," understated Smith.

It's made the "rebuilding" job he may have envisioned earlier a lot easier. "I was a bit concerned about our defense," Smith admitted, "but they stepped up and played well in our scrimmage Saturday.

"They all did a pretty good job. I didn't know who to drop."

So why drop anyone?

The defense starts with keeper Ben Davis, a senior who started every match for Canton last season. After that, there are two others with experience and a third who will start the season on the "disabled list".

Dan Steinert, a senior who started at sweeper last season after transferring to Canton from Redford Catholic Central, injured his knee playing club soccer early this summer. It kept bothering him, so he underwent arthoscopic surgery Monday. He's expected to miss the first three weeks (at least) of the season.

Jon Page, a senior attacking midfielder who played forward last season, filled in capably for Steinert during the scrimmage.

Then there's junior Mike Bennett, who switched between midfield and defense last year with his brother, Jason. In the state district tournament, Mike scored goals against Northville (a 1-0 Canton victory), Salem and Novi. He finished with five for the season.

Ryan Dyer, another senior with starting experience on defense, also returns. Two others, senior twin brothers Brandon and Trevor Anulewicz, saw plenty of playing time last year and figure to share the stopper position.

Jeffrey Parent, a junior, also figures to fill one of the openings on defense. Jared Page, a senior who played considerably last season, will play a lot more this season.

Even with Bennett switching between midfield and defense, and Page dropping back to defense to fill in for Steinert, Smith will have a lot to choose from at midfield. Jason Fishaw and Mike Riemma, both juniors, return; so does Johnny Demergis, another junior.

Seniors David Meyn, Shawn Kearney and Zachary Kideckel, the last a transfer from Connecticut, will add a lot at the midfield. So will juniors Chris Houdek and Kevin Presley and sophomore Jónathon Johnson, all up from the JV.

Steve Epley, a junior who started in the midfield last season, is moving up to forward this season. He joins junior Scott Wright, the team's second-leading scorer in '96 (13 goals, nine assists); senior Matt Marcos; and junior Pete Andreolli, in the front line.

Bill Tolstedt didn't take it that seriously, the final sentence in the Observer story announcing his hiring as Schoolcraft College's women's soccer coach.

"With team workouts to start in less than two weeks, if Tolstedt just manages to put a team on the field, it wil be a major accomplishment," the story concluded.

"When I first read that article in the Observer, at the time I read it I laughed," he said. "Then when the struggle (to recruit) commenced and I realized I had more coaches than players, I stopped laughing."

Tolstedt is in his first season of coaching a collegiate soccer team. Although the SC administration knew of former coach Nikki Johnson's resignation late last year, they failed to bring in her successor until mid-July — leaving him five weeks to put together a team.

Practices began for real Monday, and one thing was evident: Whatever happens during the regular season, Tolstedt's first year on the job must be considered a success.

Because he has been able to recruit a full team.

Canton golfers looking better

BY C.J. RISAK

It's been a while since something like this happened. In fact, Plymouth Canton golf coach Tom Alles can't remember when his team ever beat Plymouth Salem at the season-opening East Lansing Invitational.

The Chiefs did just that Monday. And they beat Redford Catholic Central, too.

Alles couldn't say where Canton's score of 656 placed it in the 40-team field, since final results weren't available when the Chiefs concluded play. But it was certainly ahead of Salem (the Rocks shot 662) and CC (666) — and it was 20 strokes better than they had ever done there before, at least since Alles has been coaching.

So the good news for Canton this season is, the outlook is brighter. The better news is, the Chiefs are also young.

"This is all preseason stuff," said Alles after Monday's tournament. "I really don't know until after the Brighton Invitational (which is Monday) how it will all shake out in the league."

What Alles did know was that junior Ben Tuck-

Spartans seek repeat as state champs

By Brad Emons
Staff Writer

Throw in whatever detergent you want, the same result generally comes out of the wash for the Livonia Stevenson boys soccer team, a program that's been on spin cycle for nearly two decades.

The record is nearly spotless and normally the tide gets rolling come state tournament time.

Eighth-year coach Walt Barrett has carried on the winning tradition established by Pete Scerri, who retired in 1990.

During his tenure, Scerri won four state titles and had a pair of runner-up finishes.

Barrett, meanwhile, has guided the Spartans to the promise land twice (1991 and 1996), along with a second-place finish (1993).

The Spartans, 19-2-1 a year ago, took the Class A crown last year with a 2-1 overtime victory over Troy.

Stevenson was also hard hit by graduation, losing four first-team All-Observer picks to graduation including leading scorer Mark Dietrich, defender Scott Babinski (Michigan State), goalkeeper Eric O'Neil (Schoolcraft College) and Jason Roy (Madonna University).

Second-teamer Paul Tokarsky (Schoolcraft) also graduated along with three other seniors.

So maybe this is the year the Spartans are hung out to dry?

Not so fast Observerland.

"Some of the people we have coming back didn't get a lions' share of the playing time, but those returning were definitely an element of last year's championship team," the 36-year-old Barrett said. "By the 80th minute of every game, we want to become the hardest hardest working group in the state regardless of what we did last year. We want to repeat."

Third-year varsity performer Steve Roy, Jason's brother, will lead the defense, while Thomas Eller, a member of the under-16 U.S. National team which toured Italy this summer, will anchor the midfield area.

Scoring punch should come from Brandon Good, who played for the under-17 Michigan Wolves club team.

PREVIEW

Joe Suchara, who backed up O'Neil last year, will start in goal.

"Stevenson has always played teams who come ready to play and play as hard as they can, we expect it," Barrett said. "It doesn't bother us to play under that kind of pressure. We proved short-term motivation for teams who want to play us."

The Spartans pick up where they left off last November, meeting Troy in a battle of state finalists in Tuesday's season opener.

Ironically, Stevenson's nemesis could be rival Livonia Churchill (15-7), which reached the state Class A quarterfinals last year before losing to the Spartans, 2-0.

Third-year coach Chad Campau, whose team is expected to battle defending Western Lakes Activities Association champion Plymouth Canton and veteran Northville for the WLAA's Western Division crown, has a team loaded with veterans.

"We haven't won a division (title) since I've been coach and that's a goal to get to the (WLAA) championship game," said Campau, who has eight returning starters. "I could see by the conditioning that these guys worked harder than they have in the past. They (the seniors) want to win it and they know it's their last chance.

"They're hungry and they want it badly. We haven't beaten Stevenson and they want to do well."

Three Churchill standouts — first-team All-Area defender David George, Rob Bartoletti and George Kithas — played on Barrett's club team this summer, the under-17 Birmingham Blazers, which reached the semifinals of the Snickers U.S. Youth Soccer Championships in Phoenix, Ariz.

The Chargers also have an experienced goalkeeper back in Mike Skolnik.

"This team came together well at the end of the year," Campau said. "It's going to be a tough run this year in the conference (WLAA).

"With Stevenson, you want and see who they got, but they're always tough."

Another state Class A quarterfinalist was Redford Catholic Central (13-7-2), which lost two standout midfielders to graduation in Mike Martin and Tony Moucoulis.

The Shamrocks, however, return second-team All-Area goalkeeper Matt Kessler, who played for Barrett's Birmingham Blazers' summer squad.

Livonia Franklin (8-10-2) might be hard pressed to finish among the top three teams in the Western Division of the WLAA, but Patriot third-year coach Dave Hebestreit, who led his team to its first-ever district crown in 1995, likes what he sees in his young team.

With only four seniors, Hebestreit is counting on four freshman to help erase last year's 10-0 district debacle against Churchill.

"Both Churchill and Northville will be very good, but I think in time we can compete with everyone else," said Hebestreit, whose team officially opened the season Wednesday against Dearborn Heights Crestwood.

Westland John Glenn (2-13-2), now in its third varsity season, faces an uphill struggle in the WLAA's Lakes Division.

And last, but not least is Westland Huron Valley Lutheran (7-11), a team which lost only one senior (Curt Guiles) to graduation.

The Hawks, under the direction of second-year coach Matt Henzi, hope to unseat Taylor Baptist Park as champions of the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference.

"Our defense is solid. We return all starters except for White.
"Skolnik is a big key for us. He now has a full year in.
"Our bench should give us some help. We have some juniors off the JV squad that should contribute."

Hebestreit's 1997 outlook: "We have a great crop of kids coming up. We only have four seniors, but we have a much better team this year. I'm so excited. We have an all freshman and sophomore defense and an all underclassmen midfield.
"And it's also rare every kid played somewhere in the spring. This is the best class I've seen of freshman.
"We'll take our knocks because of our youthfulness, but down the road I'm looking forward to what could happen. They're making a commitment. In my previous two years I've never had a bench, now I have senior midfielders, which is nice. We'll definitely be competitive.
"Fischer started as sweeper and now we're looking to him lead in the midfield. Hoelter has improved. Vega, Brennan, Bruckner and Nakonezny are all highly skilled and played at a competitive club level."

Barrett's 1997 outlook: "This year we won't count on size as far as scoring goals or defending goals. We're going to have a little bit different style. Our goal is to be a team that executes faster. We want to accelerate the speed of play.
"We lost a ton to graduation, but we have a lot of people coming back who saw a lot of action last year. The talent sorted out quickly. We have a lot of sophomore-loaded talent.
"Roy is going to be our central defender. He's a third-year (varsity) player and has been an ODP (Olympic Development Program) all his life. He has the intensity and the ability to lead the defense.
"Eller, who is an under-16 National Team player (went this summer to Italy) will shore up our midfield. We'll move him around a lot. He broke his wrist this summer, but he is fine.
"Suchara is solid. He played club all summer."

WESTLAND JOHN GLENN

Head coach: Jerry Poniatowski, third season.
League affiliation: Western Lakes (Lakes Division).

Poniatowski's 1997 outlook: "We graduated seven, but most of the team is intact, which is nice. This is only our third varsity year. We still have some growing to do.
"Even though we have a lot of 10th and 11th graders, we're bigger and smarter.
"Sterling is our top scorer back. Bain is a good all-around player. Gismondi is very enthusiastic. Ballard will start in goal.
"We have all our defenders back.
"I'm looking forward to it this year because this group is real focused. We just want to have fun and play the game."

REDFORD CATHOLIC CENTRAL

Head coach: Dana Orsucci, second season.
League affiliation: Catholic (Central Division).
Last year's overall record: 13-7-2.
Titles won last year: Class A district and regional champion.

Their heart and attitude are so much better than I expected this early. Matt (Kessler) will single handedly win some big games. He is one of the two best in the state, I think."

HURON VALLEY LUTHERAN

Head coach: Matt Henzi, second season.
League affiliation: Michigan Independent Athletic Conference.
Last year's overall record: 7-11.
Season opener: 4:30 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 28 at home vs. Plymouth Christian Academy.
Notable losses to graduation: Curt Guiles.
Promising newcomers: Larry Buss, sophomore forward; Chris Peters, freshman midfielder; Ben Clifford, freshman midfielder.
Henzi's 1997 outlook: "We only lost one senior. Our goal is to win conference. We finished second last year and we should be one of the teams favored. Taylor Baptist Park won it last year.
"We're real strong defensively. We can get the ball up the field quickly. We have some speedy forwards. Look for Adam Davidson (15 goals last year) to score a lot for us again.
"Our depth is a concern. We have just 15 players. We cannot afford injuries.
"Ridenour has improved incredibly. He's a tough player."

OUTDOOR INSIGHTS

BILL PARKER

As a child growing up in the lush green hills of Kentucky, Mary Ashteneau loved to go fishing.

"When I was young I fished a lot with my mom over at Johns Creek, near where I lived in Kentucky," said Ashteneau, who now anchors her boat in Canton. "I'd get my little ole cane pole out and run down to the creek every time I could."

Unfortunately time, or lack of it, took its toll on Ashteneau's angling activity.

As she grew older, began a career and began raising her own family here in southeastern Michigan, there simply wasn't much time to spend fishing. Sure, she'd occasionally take her kids down to the Huron River and fish for carp from the bank, but even that wasn't a regular activity.

"After the kids grew up I decided to start fishing again, so I took my retirement and here I am," said Ashteneau, who retired from General Motors 10 years ago.

Where she is headed is to the National Bass'n Gals XX Classic Star World Championships set for Sept. 21-27 on the Coosa River in Gadsen, Alabama.

A four-year member of the National Bass'n Gals circuit this is the first time Ashteneau has qualified for the Classic Star, which is the women's equivalent to the men's BASSMASTER Classic.

Ashteneau qualified for this year's Classic Star by placing 31st in the national standings after five qualifying tournaments.

Last August Ashteneau fished the first of the five national qualifiers, which was held on the Coosa River. She got off to a great start by placing 33rd, but struggled in the second qualifier, which took place in November on Pickwick Lake in Alabama.

"I didn't do well at all in that one," admitted Ashteneau. "I'm not sure where I finished but it wasn't good. I didn't help myself on that one."

Ashteneau returned to the circuit in March and placed 55th in the third qualifier, which was held on Sam Rayburn Reservoir in Texas. She followed that up with a spectacular 16th-place finish in April on Lake of the Ozarks in Missouri, then iced her berth in the Classic Star by placing 34th in the final qualifier earlier this month on Lake Ten Killer in Cookson, Oklahoma.

"When I placed 16th in Missouri I thought I'd have enough points to qualify, but I knew I'd still have to have a good showing in Oklahoma," said Ashteneau. "It was pretty tough fishing down there and not many limits came in. I was lucky to catch two fish that were over 16 inches on the first day and that really helped me. I was 20th after the first day so I felt pretty good about it then."

With a fully-equiped Ranger Bass Boat going to the winner of the Classic Star, Ashteneau has set high goals for herself.

"I'm excited and I can't wait to get down there," she said. "I'm hoping to get up there in the standings pretty good. I'd like to think I can win it. That's what I'm going down there to do. I just want a limit at first, then I'll go after the bigger fish."

Ashteneau hooked up with the Michigan Bass'n Gals circuit "10 or 11 years ago" and quickly realized she still had a knack for catching fish.

"In fact, I found out I was really pretty good at it," admitted Ashteneau, who won Michigan Bass'n Gals Angler of the Year honors in 1992, '93 and '94. "I could always go out and catch fish so I decided to give the nationals a shot."

Ashteneau is backed by a slew of sponsors including Berkley, Bottom Line, Costa Del Mar, Honey Creek Lure Company, Delco Voyager and Gambler Boats. She works as a Berkley Ambassador and gives fishing seminars and makes personal appearances.

In fact, she'll be on hand all day today and tomorrow and again next Thursday and Friday, Aug. 28-29, at the Brook Trout Station of the Department of Natural Resources Great Outdoors Adventure exhibit at the Michigan State Fair. She'll provide visitors with tips on bass fishing and general fishing techniques.

Anglers and hunters are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information to 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI. 48009. Fax information to (810) 644-1314 or call Bill Parker evenings at (810) 901-2573.

Pick-offs boost Twisters to win

FOOTBALL

An air tight defense, coupled with five interceptions, carried the Wayne County Twisters to a 6-0 Lake Shore Football League victory Saturday over the Motor City Cougars at the Downriver Community Center in Southgate.

The Twisters, who improved to 3-2 overall, limited the Cougars to only five completions for less than a total of 50 yards.

"This is something we have worked very hard to accomplish and it does indeed appear we are starting to see the light at the end of the tunnel," Twisters coach Kevin Bradford said.

Ken Kroll and Chuck Lauber, both of Garden City, along with Westland's Bob Pensari and James Hagelthorn, along with Scott Harris of Livonia, each had pickoffs in the victory.

Kroll's interception and 73-yard return to the Cougars' 11-yard line set up the game-winning score by Wayne's Patrick Bowie.

The former Plymouth Salem High standout ran 6 yards for the touchdown with 25 seconds left.

Bowie had 91 yards in 15 carries.

"The offensive line was solid and punishing," Bradford said. "It takes time to get 11 athletes working together as a unit, and our young men are beginning to bind as one," Bradford said.

The defensive line was led by Inkster's Aaron Brothers, who had eight tackles and two sacks. Westland's Jeff Thompson added five tackles and two sacks.

Other solid performances were turned in by Jason Hagelthorn, Mark Bennetts, Derrick Young, Matt Graca and Mark Wetmore, all of Westland, along with Kenyachta Rucker and Robert Bell, both of Inkster; Damon Frendo, Garden City; Chris Simpson, Browstown; and Robert Berry, Madison Heights.

The Twisters travel Saturday to East Detroit to meet the Detroit Renegades at McCabe Field. Kick-off is at 8 p.m.

The Twisters' next home game is 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 6 against the Fremont (Ohio) Stallions at Downriver CC.

play in college, five kids who otherwise might not have been able to go to college."

A nucleus of five players — Stephanie Chefan, Amy Plagens, Christy Even, Robin Hamilton and Carrie Kovachevich — will return this winter for Canton. But the coach won't.

"Whoever comes in will walk into a great situation," promised Anderson. "Hopefully, I'll still be able to help out — but I don't want to step on the new coach's toes, either."

Anyone interested in coaching Canton's volleyball team should call assistant athletic director Sue Heinzman at (313) 416-2925 as soon as possible.

Also, the school is looking for a volunteer to assist at basketball games this fall at Canton. Russ Maxwell, long-time field supervisor, retired when spring sports concluded. "There are a lot of great benefits, but it's not a paying position," said Heinzman. Again, anyone interested in the part-time job should call Heinzman at (313) 416-2925.

Triathlete battles both his illness and the competition

By Joe Kyriakoza
Staff Writer

PROFILE

Instead of being concerned with the norm while competing in a triathlon — the undercurrent of the stretch of water he must conquer, or the condition of the final stretch of road — Eric Schwartzburg's chief concern is monitoring his blood-sugar level. A diabetic, Schwartzburg must constantly monitor his blood-sugar level and if it gets too low, as it sometimes does during such strenuous competition as a triathlon, he must to give himself a shot of insulin between events.

For seven years, Schwartzburg has competed in over 40 triathlons.

For 22 years, diabetes has inhabited his system. Imagine entering the 12th mile on foot when the conditions of diabetes begin to take effect. Schwartzburg is afflicted with diabetes mellitus, a form which causes the level of glucose in the blood to become abnormally high, leading to excessive urination and constant thirst and hunger. For a triathlete to fight through repercussions such as these and compete at a remarkably high level is truly unbelievable.

Schwartzburg has never won a triathlon. Diabetes, though, he has prevailed over throughout his life.

"It's never stopped me," Schwartzburg said. "I've been competing in athletics my whole life. I've never really looked at it as a handicap. I just kind of took it in stride."

Schwartzburg, originally from West Bloomfield and now living in Atlanta, faces maybe the second-biggest challenge of his life next week — The Ironman Canada Triathlon.

The Ironman Canada, which takes place in Penticton, British Columbia on August 24, is one of the most prestigious triathlons in the world, fielding 1,600 competitors from around the globe. It's also a qualifier for the Ironman Hawaii, the grandaddy of triathlons.

The race involves a 2.4-mile swim in what is described as a sometimes choppy, windy and cold Okanagan Lake. Also, a 112-mile bike route consisting of 40 flat miles, followed by a seven-mile climb and a technical and hilly course for the final 65 miles. The run portion, a full 26.1-mile marathon, is described as an out-and-back rolling course through the town of Penticton, which can be windy on the return.

Schwartzburg's best finish in a triathlon is 250th (800 competitors), and occurred at the Buffalo Springs Half Ironman, June 29 in Lubbock, Texas.

In the Ironman Canada, the longest race he will have ever participated in, Schwartzburg, a West Bloomfield High School graduate, just hopes to finish.

"I just want to finish because I've never done a race this long," he said.

Competing in triathlons is simply a hobby for Schwartzburg, who has "no ultimate goal" and admits "I just do it for fun."

One would wonder how triathlons could be deemed 'fun,' considering the amount of training that goes into it and the level of stamina that must be attained to remain competitive.

Ironman Canada has been on Schwartzburg's agenda since January. He describes his training regimen before a competition almost like climbing a mountain, then hiking back down.

"You have to keep building during your training," Schwartzburg explained. "I might run 40 miles one week, 50 miles the next, or go 80 miles on the bike one week and 90 the next. But about two and a half weeks before the event you have to gradually decrease your miles of training so your body can recover.

"I work out twice a day and about 20-22 hours a week," he said.

During a typical week, though, Schwartzburg's plan includes an incredible 10,000 meters of swimming, 250 miles of biking and 35 miles running — quite a hobby.

Schwartzburg is currently studying to be a chiropractor at Life Chiropractic College in Atlanta, GA and earned a bachelor's degree in economics from the University of Wisconsin.

Surprisingly, Schwartzburg never ran track in high school or in college. Baseball and wrestling were the only prep sports he partook in, and organized sports were not part of his college itinerary.

Instead, becoming a triathlete was something he picked up from friends at Wisconsin.

"I got into it in college," Schwartzburg said. "I always ran and biked with my friends who were triathletes. I enjoyed it, so they said, 'Why don't you try a triathlon?'"

So seven years ago Schwartzburg entered his first meet — the Chicago Sun-Times Triathlon — with 3,999 others and, like his plan for Ironman Canada, he just wanted to finish.

As far as Schwartzburg is concerned, finishing is winning.

er, who was an all-Western Lakes Activities Association all-division choice last season; senior Erik Arlen, a four-year letterman; and sophomore Brendan Wheeler "will be the nucleus of our team."

The Chiefs have three seniors: Arlen, Zach Bornemeier and Matt Heiss. But a junior — Justin Allen — and a sophomore — Derek Lineberry — figure to be the other players of impact for Canton, which was 2-9 in the WLAA last season.

"I would say we'll be vastly improved (over last year) just because of the amount of time they spent playing over the summer," said Alles. "We're finally able to compete against teams we never could compete with before, at least in my tenure.

"We never beat Salem (at East Lansing) before, and we did yesterday."

The Chiefs bettered the Rocks despite some physical problems Arlen struggled with. Tucker led Canton with an 83 on the Forest Akers West Course and a 76 on the East Course for a 159 total.

Lineberry was next (83 West, 81 East, 164), followed by Wheeler (85 West, 82 East, 167); Allen (86 West, 82 East, 168); and Arlen (100 West, 80 East, 180). Arlen had back trouble in the morning on the West Course, but recovered well enough to shoot an 80 in the afternoon on the East.

Salem also has a very young team. Rocks' coach Rick Wilson had two juniors and three sophomores among his top five Monday: Adam Wilson, a junior, led with a 161 total (82 West, 79 East), followed by junior Eric Krueger (85 West, 77 East, 162); sophomore Ryan Nimmerguth (85 West, 86 East, 171); sophomore Matt Leon (91 West, 84 East, 175); and sophomore Mark Doughty (84 West, 96 East, 180).

If East Lansing is any indication, this should be an interesting season in the WLAA for Canton and Salem. Livonia Stevenson figures to be the team to beat, with Walled Lake Western and Westland John Glenn not far behind.

As for Canton, Alles is hoping for at least a .500 finish in WLAA duals. "We have seven home matches (in the WLAA), at Hilltop, and four away," the Chiefs' coach said. "So we have that going for us. If we can defend our turf, we'll do OK.

"We have more experience, we're more seasoned this year because a lot of these kids played this summer."

The Chiefs could be ready to mount a challenge to the leaders. As for the Rocks, there's some work to do.

(which the Lady Ocelots lost 7-2), Tolstedt had a roster of 13 players. His recruiting efforts were not over, either; there were three others he was still actively pursuing.

"We're still looking for more numbers, in terms of players," he said. "I'm hoping for 16 by the 29th, which is when we play Eastern Michigan."

Three of his current roster — Lisa DeShano (from Livonia Franklin), Stephanie Smith (Garden City) and Anne Hokett (Franklin) — played last season under Johnson. That team finished with a 6-8-2 record.

The Ocelots will field two other sophomores: Julie Majewski (Plymouth Canton), who attended SC last fall but did not play soccer, and keeper Samantha Swinkey (Monroe), a transfer from Monroe CC.

The other eight players on Tolstedt's roster are freshmen: Nicole Pampreen (Livonia Ladywood), Angela Pfeiffer (Livonia Stevenson), Stacy White (Canton/Linden HS), Christy Worley (Taylor), Jenny Worley (Taylor), Dianna Dean (Dearborn Edsel Ford), Brittany Rusch (Brighton/Lakeland HS) and Lisa Tolstedt (Northville).

Despite the lopsided loss to Siena Heights, Tolstedt was encouraged. "We walked away from that game with a positive attitude," he said, noting his SC team's next encounter, at Eastern Michigan at 4 p.m. Aug. 29, will be even more difficult.

"After those experiences, we'll be ready for the junior college season," he said.

No doubt they will be humbling encounters. But Tolstedt isn't the type to allow discouragement.

Against the Saints Tuesday, he thought Swinkey performed extremely well in goal despite giving up seven goals. And he added that Smith "did a great job at sweeper."

"We did credibly against Siena," Tolstedt said. "We did a lot of very good things."

Goals were scored by his daughter, Lisa, and by Jenny Worley. Assisting Tolstedt in coaching has been another daughter, and a former SC player, Cindi; Kelly Greaves; and Doug Lyon.

"It's been a struggle," the Ocelot coach admitted. "Based on my salary, I think I'm actually paying them money, with the amount of time I've put in."

The effort may pay off in the months ahead. SC's junior college season begins with the Schoolcraft College Kick-Off Classic Tournament, with the Ocelots playing College of Dupage (Ill.) at 2 p.m. Aug. 30 and Monroe (N.Y.) CC at 11 a.m. Sept. 1.

sophomore, will be looking for playing time on defense. Backing up Davis in goal will be senior Aaron Nephew and junior Doug Koontz.

With so much to choose from, it isn't surprising that Smith can't single out any particular players as stars-in-the-making. "Maybe Bennett, and Wright will get his goals," said Smith. "He works hard."

It's the kind of team Smith relishes: Hard-working, with loads of intra-squad competition.

But are the Chiefs good enough to overtake Stevenson and repel advances of improved teams like Livonia Churchill, Northville and Walled Lake Western?

"I wouldn't know about all that," insisted Smith, "but we've got a nice group of kids."

Don't buy into that. This is no ordinary, run-of-the-mill team; come the end of the season, Smith will have his player rotation refined and Canton will be scrapping with all the front-runners for the Western Lakes Activities Association championship.

Canton opens its season Saturday with the Gary Balconi Tournament at CEP. In the opening round, Salem plays defending tournament champion Redford Catholic Central, and Canton meets Portage Central, both at 10 a.m. Salem-CC play on the main field, while Canton-Northern play on the Joy Road field.

The consolation final is at 3 p.m., followed by the championship game at 5 p.m. — both on the main field.

Use fun to ease transition back to school

LISA LUCKOW-HEALY

It always seems as though school is just dismissed for the summer, and within a few weeks the stores are promoting back-to-school merchandise. By mid-August, the children are bored and the parents are frazzled.

There is no time like the present to start thinking about how to make the new school year transition as smooth as possible. Regardless of what school your child will be attending, preparations are quite similar. You and your child:

- Spend time taking inventory of back-to-school clothes, hoping he or she hasn't outgrown or worn out everything from the previous school year.
- Brainstorm new ways to streamline bedtime and morning routines.
- Venture out to the mall, specialty store or uniform shop for the initial run at a new wardrobe, holding off on buying everything until your child sees what the other kids are wearing.
- Try to cram in all those activities you planned to do over the summer that you haven't yet accomplished (Rollerblading through the Metropark, sailing with friends, a three-day weekend on Mackinac Island).

Try to avoid the added pressure associated with waiting to the last minute to accomplish these tasks.

Make going back to school fun by creating your own family activities that prepare everyone for the transition.

Create a calendar. Most every calendar begins with the onset of the new year. Why not shake conventional wisdom and start with the first month of the school year, ending your calendar year the following summer month before the next school year commences?

Select a favorite family photograph you wish to use as your photo page. Take it to a local copy store to be transferred onto one of the stock calendar formats that feature spiral-bound, tear-off monthly pages.

■ There is no time like the present to start thinking about how to make the new school year transition as smooth as possible. Regardless of what school your child will be attending, preparations are quite similar

If you have the right home computer equipment and a calendar graphics program to create your own, you can often get real creative by scanning your own photographs into each individual month.

Once your calendar format is in place, set aside one evening each week when everyone in the family is available to sit down and write in their upcoming scheduled activities.

If it makes things easier to read, designate a different color pen or fine-tip marker for each family member. This makes spotting someone's activities at a glance much easier.

Pack a 'pack. Preschool and early grade school children will often suffer from separation anxiety when school starts. In most cases, separation anxiety only lasts a few weeks. But there is something you can do to help ease your child's transition back to school.

Because your child will probably be taking a backpack or book bag of some sort to school, now is a good time to pack it with a few objects that help cast your child's anxieties aside.

Include a small photo album your family fills with your child's favorite family photographs. When your child experiences a rough time at school, pulling the album out is likely to help put his or her mind at ease.

A small favorite toy, a child's wallet filled with loose change for a phone call to Mom or Dad, or a favorite book your child can pull out and read during a latchkey program or while waiting for a ride home are all helpful reminders to soothe the anxiety your child may experience during his or her time away from home.

Stack a survival basket. Does your college student prefer to shop for campus trends with friends? Quite possibly. But when it comes to stacking up crucial everyday survival items inside a decorative basket your daughter can use in her dorm room, or a handy wastebasket your son can use for basketball practice, you just might capture their attention.

Ask your child to help you fill the survival basket with the everyday essentials you bought.

Include personal hygiene items, several prepaid calling cards, notepaper, pens, pencils, instant coffee or hot chocolate, a mug, a travel-size heating plate, a large tin of favorite cookies, carry-out restaurant gift certificates, batteries, a flashlight, a can opener, a bottle opener, snack bars and a few favorite music cassettes or compact discs.

Of course, you will want to tailor the survival basket to your child's individual needs. It is an activity the whole family can have fun with, particularly younger siblings who will greatly miss an older brother or sister going away to school.

Creative image: Think of yourself as an artist

MONTE NAGLER

Even though photography has been around for about 150 years, only within the past decade has it been accepted as a true art form with collections found in major museums throughout the world.

Its acceptance is revealed not only by public appreciation of a photograph but also by the economic impact of photography in the marketplace.

Photographs that today sell for many thousands of dollars commanded only $100 to $200 just over a decade ago. People today appreciate fine photography and are willing to pay for it.

Obviously, not all photographs are considered great works of art and are worth little except to the person who shot them.

But the important thing is to develop a state of mind that presumes your photography can be important, that taking photographs can be an art and that as a person deeply interested in photography, you are an artist.

You paint with light and your subject is life itself. What a wonderful opportunity to create!

How can you begin to think of yourself as an artist?

First, by likening yourself to a sculptor. A sculptor begins with a block of marble – his whole. By chipping away with a chisel, he produces his finished work. Thus, by process of elimination and "zeroing in," a sculptor derives his completed art.

A photographer, too, derives his completed work by process of elimination and by "zeroing in" on his subject.

An initial look at the subject is the photographer's "whole." Then, by proper lens selection, camera angle, light direction, time of day, selective focusing, etc., the photographer "chips away" like the sculptor and ends up with his finished art.

Even film choice and paper selection are important for the photographer to express himself artistically. Remember, also, that it isn't the chisel carving the stone – it's the sculptor. Similarly, keep in mind that it's not the camera making the photograph – it's really you!

Learning to visualize in advance is very important in your photography and will help you think in terms of an artist.

When you are composing a scene in the viewfinder, try to visualize the image of a finished print. This is especially true in working with black and white where an interpretation of tones and contrasts is necessary.

Even when you don't have your camera with you, train yourself to look at things as if you were seeing through a viewfinder. You'll be amazed at what you will see.

Yet another way to bring out the artist in you is to try to say in your photography how you feel about your subjects, remembering that you and your subject are the two most important ingredients in making a photograph.

If you love trees, for example, communicate this love through your photographs. Try to make a meaningful statement about trees in your pictures.

The idea of a photograph, as in any art medium, is to create a visual interpretation of what you saw and felt and then to share your vision with others.

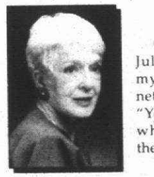
Evening Primrose works wonders at dusk



MARTY FIGLEY

One evening in July I was visiting my daughter, Lynnette, and she said, "You've got to see what happens to these flowers."

Around 9:15 p.m., just at dusk, we gathered around a bed of flowers and watched a miracle occur.

The flower pods on the plants were light green and cone-shaped on the end of a single stem that grew from a small clump of dandelion-like foliage. A white vein ran down the center of some of the leaves.

Rather than one single stem as is on a dandelion, several stems were present on each plant.

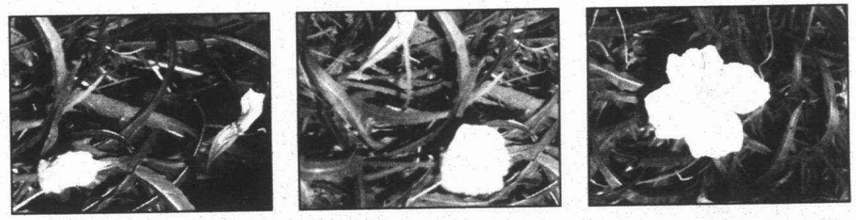
Soon the bottom of the pods, nearest to the stem, began to change color, becoming white then turning luminous yellow.

Ever so slowly each flower unfurled from its one-inch pod and in about 30 seconds a cup-shaped, yellow flower appeared! They were about two inches across in size.

The evening we watched, three or four flowers opened.

The next day, Lynnette said, all that is left is a small withered flower, but by the next generally several flowers are ready to perform again on their own new stems.

We were watching a true Evening Primrose, Oenothera odorata. William Robinson called it the most interesting flower he had ever seen in a garden at night, and H.E. Bates, another famous gardener, gave it great praise.



MARTY FIGLEY

Amazing appearance: The tiny pod of O. odorata turns a lighter color to indicate it's going to bloom (left). The flower unfurls (center). The flower appears in all its glory and lasts for only a few hours (right).

Although some people discern a lemony fragrance, my daughter and her friends were reminded of citronella. My olfactory senses don't work well, so I detected nothing.

About two years ago a friend gave Lynnette three or four tiny divisions and she set them four inches apart in a south-facing garden where they have grown into clumps about six to eight inches across.

Her plants died back last fall and "looked like weeds" in the spring, but they rallied 'round and have been a source of much fascination this summer.

The common Evening Primrose, Oenothera biennis, can still be seen occasionally along roadsides and does also bloom at nighttime, while another primrose in the genus, called Sundrops, blooms during the day.

There are many "cousins," both night- and day-bloomers; originally all were native to America. Of the 124 species, some are annuals, others are biennials or perennials.

My daughter found her plants easy to grow. Because flowering may diminish when they are about 3 years old, they'll need to be divided soon. My research says that O. odorata will reseed itself, but hers behaved like a perennial.

If you are interested in growing Evening Primroses, to find the plants you wish to grow, check with your local nursery, a wildflower group or a botanical garden. What a great way to interest children in gardening.

Inside, outside: Garden, home hold interest

BY MARTY FIGLEY
Special Writer

The plantings of Purple Coneflower on one side of the driveway of Jim and Patsy Carlson's house in Clarkston, and the display of bright Purple Wave Petunias on the other, are show stoppers.

This is the introduction to much color in Patsy's back garden, and works beautifully against the greens of the pine trees, dog wood, rhododendrons and green ground covers in the front garden.

The rhodies bloom in bright fuchsia in the spring. The site was a former Christmas tree farm, and the needles make a perfect base for the other plants. Oaks and maple trees have come up voluntarily and acid-loving ferns are quite at home.

Before I entered the back garden, a Scaveola "Blue Wonder" caught my eye, as did a white-blooming ground cover that Patsy called Barcopa.

In the corner, a Spiny-leafed Bear's Breeches, Acanthus spinosus, with large, dark green foliage has pink blossoms that turn to cream. A purple-veined leaf with spines underneath cups over the blossom. This unusual plant is really a "Southern Belle," but Patsy mulches it heavily with 12 inches of straw and lays pine boughs over it for winter protection.

In the center of the bed is a Katsura Tree, a twisted weeping variety, eight feet tall, which she said "is the best-kept secret in Michigan."

"It has a long tap root, no diseases and is insect free – and hardy."

Background beauty

Behind this scene, a bittersweet vine and several ornamental grasses provide a good screen for the back gardens that consist of several free-form beds around the perimeter of the yard. Antique tiles from Toledo provide a path that leads to these gardens.

Other beds circle out from the low deck and contain shade-lovers such as hostas, ferns and specimen trees. One is an Oriental Spruce with yellow-green foliage. One of the hostas, identified as B-3 Krosso, measures 10 feet in diameter.

An area that is shady until afternoon contains Impatiens, Coral Bells, Veronica and other plants.

Another interesting tree is Harry Lauder's Walking Stick, which produces long catkins before the leaves appear in the spring. This Corylus avellana "Contorta" lives up to its name, with the contorted branches.

Annuals are mixed in with perennials everywhere. One, Osterspernum, has white blooms with a purple center and ray flowers, blue on the underside. Other annuals Patsy has used include orange upright Fuchsias and the pink variety, and a Moon Flower, a member of the Morning Glory family, which "is just spectacular," Patsy said.

By design

Patsy has used the same plants in several places, which provided continuity to the design.

Tree hydrangeas bloom in late fall, as do the ground cover Astilbe and Toad Lily, another late bloomer that she said "look like orchids up the stem; I love this plant."

Tall Monardas add height and color in several places as do the golden blooms of Ligularia "Rocket" that work perfectly.

Two other tall plants – Joe Pye weed, which adds a soft, deep rosy-purple note, and Angelica, with its architectural form – are right at home.

Two fragrant Buddleia, a blue "Nanho" and a purple "Black Night" are strategically placed. Several Clematis vines are being trained up posts and trees in several spots.

"I just dug the lawn up and amended it with Canadian Peat and compost (to create these beds). I don't know why, but I have just a few weeds, so he gardens aren't much labor."

The weeds are absent also from a large perennial bed, an area that was filled with bottom pond soil and some Canadian Peat to lighten the soil. It is stuffed full of perennials and a few annuals. I also spotted some tomatoes.

Stately Hollyhocks (some 12 feet tall) in shades of pink, salmon and black tower over the other lovely plants here – among them white Phlox, blue Globe Thistle, Rudbeckia, Lythrum ("in the garden it seems to stay") and Spiderwort. Many of them self-sow.

Very large antique birdhouses center several of the beds, while other pieces of art are strategically placed. A pair of rabbits, a large deer, and a fox have been created from old farm equipment by sculptor Robert Cumpston.

Patsy believes that waiting until spring to clean the beds helps promote lush growth.

Very early in the spring she tosses Glorious Garden Plant Food from Bordines in the beds and lets the rain soak it into the ground. That's it!

Patsy designed all the gardens and does all the work – except when she needs some "grunt work," which Jim is happy to provide.

Live animals of all types are encouraged in the garden. There is a pet crow (which is fed bacon), a family of woodchucks, rabbits and more. Eight feeders are scattered about the gardens and food is provided for ground feeders. Many butterflies visit, as do hummingbirds.

"I love bright colors and I don't want just one. I want them all, and it works!"

For the butterflies, Patsy has put sand in a plastic pot saucer and added water. When the water evaporates and the sand leaves "fingerprints," like footprints in sand at the beach, the texture is perfect for the butterflies and they will come.

A large terra cotta pot, made in Portland, Maine, in the 1880s, sets on a realistic-looking stump made of the same material.

"I had a wonderful time filling the pot. It contains Licorice plant, Purple Wave Petunia, Upright Fuchsias and Moon Flower."

The distinctive pot sets in the entrance to the home, which is filled with a great variety of antiques.

"We tried to make the yard an extension of the house," Jim said.

Collection welcome to take up residence

BY MARY KLEMIC
At Home Editor

To Jim and Patsy Carlson, collecting antiques is almost child's play.

Many of the antiques that fill the couple's Clarkston house are toys.

And you feel that the friendly, cheery Carlsons – who have published price guides for antiques, have been featured in a magazine, and are hosting a convention of the Antique Toy Collectors of America in May at the Kingsley Inn in Bloomfield Hills – enjoy as well as appreciate the items. They are as comfortable living with them as caring for them.

"We live here. This isn't any kind of sanctuary," Jim said.

"Our house has always been a lived-in house."

"When I clean house it isn't a chore," Patsy said.

The collection also includes folk art and paintings. All of the pieces are at home in the residence, where the family has lived for 23 years. It's as if the rooms were designed for the objects. Different types go together smoothly.

An old teeter-totter makes an unusual architectural element over a doorway. In that room is a corner cupboard in its original bittersweet color, and an assortment of Putz sheep in an old feed box on the wall. Throw pillows were made up to match the Oriental rug in another room.

A room featuring pine floors and matching window trim houses Early American portraits of children. Among the works is one from the Prior/Hamblin school.

On one wall here is a 19th century Noah's Ark set from Germany, consisting of about 200 tiny figures. This is an example of what was called Sunday toys, Jim explained; something with religious significance played with on Sundays. The pairs of animals line a zigzag shelf made by a friend.

It's a special pleasure going through the room, the Carlsons said.

"I think you have to buy things that you appreciate," Jim said.

Folk art covers the walls in a cozy square room. Details on the pieces offer delights, such as the shading in the fruit of a stenciled theorem and the drum-like frame around a military patch. Rectangular signs with one side cut like a profile advise "Follow Your Nose And Let George Do It" (for car sales) and "Follow Your Nose To The Wawataw Inn In Mackinaw City."

In the kitchen, a weather vane in the shape of a bull, its worn gold leaf making a pattern, now serves as a centerpiece on a table ("We like surfaces"), and bunting gathered in the center forms drapes at windows. A bathroom is festooned with political convention paraphernalia.

The Carlsons started their collection with carousel pieces. They are especially fond of a handsome, noble Looff prancer from the early 1880s. The carousel objects led to toys, such as the Schoenhut circus figures arranged under a little big top on a table. Schoenhut made works from the late 1880s to 1933.

Almost everywhere you look are items that make you think you are in an ageless toy shop. Bliss blocks, little cylinders covered with a short story and illustrations and bearing a letter of the alphabet. Pull toys. Rocking horses. Pipsqueaks that move when the underside of the base is pushed. Sheep that seem alive – covered with real goat hair, or emitting soft baas when their bobbing head is tapped. A glider in which a youngster could pull the reins to set a horse springing and take off on an imaginary ride.

The Carlsons are interested in the messages found on items. "To Carl, Xmas 1876" is on a rocking horse. A wooden stand featuring Popeye was made for a Cub Scout event in 1947, according to an inscription.

"These all belonged to somebody," Patsy said.

JOE GAGNON

The little boy named Larry was 2 years old with black curly hair and a face fitting a beauty contest. His mother was cooking pies for the Christmas season in her new electric range as he scampered around the kitchen dashing from chair to chair. She opened the door and left it in the down position so she could remove the four pans and place them on the kitchen sink.

While working at the sink she did not see her baby quickly dash for the open oven door. The heat emanating from the warm oven made the baby step back a few feet but not before he noticed a bright red object at the bottom of the oven. Curious about the bright color and thinking it might be a new toy, he ran back, reached in and grabbed the red item in his little hand.

I was only 10 years old doing homework in my bedroom when I heard screams of both my brother and my mother. I ran into the kitchen to see my mother holding and rocking the little guy trying to add some comfort to his terror and easing his pain.

I thought of this story as I was reading an article which points out that more than 37,000 children age 14 and under are treated for burns by hot liquids, hot food and hot tap water. This annual figure prompted me to get up and walk over to the electric range in my kitchen and turn it on. I let it warm up until the bottom element was red hot and then I opened the door and let it rest wide open. The element stayed on bright red and I must have stared at it for a good two minutes. I thought about how attractive it is inside my oven as it glows, how it stands out inside the dark oven cavity and how easy it is to reach even for a little child. It reminded me of the many times I've sat in front of an open fire on a beach setting and just stared at the flames. It is no mystery why a child can be attracted to such a glowing piece of unsuspected danger, but I'll tell you what the real mystery is.

The story described above happened in the year 1951, some 47 years ago. From then until now, I wonder how many times it has happened with other children. Every year in cold weather climates, there are people who run their ovens full time to heat their homes because of certain conditions. We know that in this country there are 107,900 house fires annually caused by cooking equipment. The figures for people who have suffered burns and been treated by hospitals is more than 5000 per year. You can not tell me that what happened to my little brother 47 years ago doesn't occur today. I'm sure it does and that bothers me to no end.

Install a door switch similar to the light switch on a refrigerator and when the door is open all the way on the range, the element goes off. We'll save a lot of house fires from occurring and we will prevent little children from burning themselves. It didn't take the U.S. Product Safety Commission or Underwriter's Laboratories to figure this out, it took a simple man who writes a column. Let's you and me see if the power of this press can do some good for others in this country. Make a copy of this article and send it to the manufacturer of the range in your kitchen. Ask for a reply and send it to me. I will guarantee they install a shut-off switch and you can tell the world that you made a difference in this world – stay tuned.

Many improvements bring happy returns

Q. My older home has a great view of a lake and we hate the idea of moving. However, we really need another bathroom. We have been told that this is likely to be an expensive venture, and are wondering what the cost vs. value will be at the point we sell the house.

A. One of the concerns that consumers most frequently voice when remodeling is that costs of the improvement might not be recovered if the house is old within a few years.

Remodeling Magazine, the industry's leading publication, addresses these concerns with its annual "Cost vs. Value" report.

It is interesting to note that for the past couple of years many improvements are likely to recover more than their costs, even if the home is sold within the first year, and of course, the return becomes greater as time passes.

Here are some of the figures for Michigan.

Major kitchen remodels average 113 percent return, while minor kitchen remodels average 109 percent return within the first year.

A remodel of an existing bath can return 96 percent of invested cost, while adding another bath within the existing floor plan of the house averages 104 percent.

A 12-by-16 foot, custom-built sunroom averages 105 percent, while a 16-by-25 foot family room averages 97 percent and a 16-by-20 foot deck can return 110 percent of costs.

The study notes that replacing windows and siding tends to return less than 80 percent of cost.

The study doesn't include values for complex projects such as whole house remodels, since these projects vary widely in cost and scope. One valuable resource for identifying the value of projects is the professional appraiser.

These are good general guidelines for this area. However, each situation is different and should be approached on an individual basis.

For instance, a well-planned skylight might dramatically brighten a dark room and thus return more than double its cost, while a poorly situated bathroom might return much less than the study indicates.

One less tangible, but no less important, factor in the value question is that a product's value has everything to do with one's use and enjoyment of it.

It is important to be well informed when making an investment such as this. Using industry professionals, such as members of the Michigan Remodeling Association, will help prevent costly mistakes.

We all have heroes – here's to Julia

RUTH MOSSOK JOHNSTON

We all have to have heroes, someone to look up to – besides my father, Joe Mossok – who comes in first, Julia Child came in a close second. The early '60s for me were filled with The Beatles and Julia – what a combination for a teenager! I may have been watching John Lennon, Paul McCartney, George Harrison and Ringo Starr on Ed Sullivan during prime time, but I was tuned into "The French Chef" by day (or at least during its weekly half hour programming).

Julia Child was for me, the "missing ingredient" of role modeling. Estelle Mossok had etiquette down to perfection – food handling was a specialty – the skill of food preparation, was left to the restaurant chefs. Julia became my teacher, mentor and food icon, and still remains so. After having taken Master Classes with the Master, Julia Child, I count my blessings that she is still here at 85 years old for us all to admire and adore. And adore, they do – chefs, food writers, and "foodies" (people who love food) hold her in the highest esteem. Julia Child is the pillar of culinary knowledge, topped off with a load of wit and graciousness.

Julia in her 85th year is still making memories ... and I'm still watching PBS on Saturdays!

Celebrate Julia Child – read her books, watch her shows, revel in her knowledge, and Master the Art of Cooking (French or otherwise), or at least, attempt to.

From Julia's Hundred and Twenty-second Show (The French Chef) 1960's:

OSSOBUCO

(Veal Shanks Braised with Wine and Herbs and Flavored with Lemon and Orange)

For 4 people

Browning the Veal

3 to 4 veal hind shanks (6 to 8 pounds), or 2 foreshanks (9 pounds including knuckles), sawed into crosswise pieces 1 1/2 to 2 inches thick

Salt and pepper

1 cup all-purpose flour

Olive oil or cooking oil

1 or 2 heavy skillets

A heavy casserole (Dutch oven)just large enough, if possible, to hold meat in one layer

1/2 cup each of sliced carrots and onions

A cover for the casserole

Lay the meat on a tray or a large sheet of waxed paper. Salt and pepper all sides, dredge in flour, and shake off excess. Pour a 1/8 inch layer of oil into the skillet or skillets and set over a moderately high heat. When oil is almost smoking, brown the meat on all sides. (Do not crowd the meat or it will not brown properly; you may have to brown in several batches.)

While meat is browning, pour 2 tablespoons of oil into the casserole, stir in sliced carrots and onions, cover, and cook over moderate heat for 5 to 6 minutes, until vegetables are tender.

Adding the Braising Ingredients

1 cup dry white wine or 3/4 cup dry white vermouth

About 2 cups excellent veal stock, or half and half canned chicken broth and canned beef bouillon

2 to 3 firm, ripe red tomatoes

1 to 2 cloves garlic, crushed

1 orange

1 lemon

When the meat is brown, arrange it in the casserole with the cooked carrots and onions; the meat should fit in one layer, but this is not always possible, especially with foreshanks. Pour browning oil out of skillets and deglaze by pouring in the wine, setting over heat, and scraping coagulated juices into wine with a wooden spoon; pour the wine over the meat. Add stock, or broth and bouillon, to come halfway up the meat.

INTERIOR IDEAS

A QUESTION OF VALANCE

The stationary window-topping treatment known as a valance is quite versatile. It can be either elaborate or minimal, from flat lengths of tailored fabric to yards of gathered or pleated fabric. Regardless of the style chosen, a valance can provide several benefits: For one, it is short and blocks a minimum of light, making it perfect for windows with views or window sills laden with plants. A valance also can camouflage the minimal space above a window frame, thereby making the panes appear to be taller than they actually are. On the other hand, if privacy or energy efficiency are of concern, valances can neatly cover a stack of mini blinds or cellular shades when they are drawn. This pairing allows a sleek look in combination with an unobstructed view, with the option of raising or lowering shades as needed.

Valences add beauty to a room and also serve several practical purposes, as noted in this week's column. Whether you're decorating one room or several rooms, the designers of SCOTT SHUPTRINE can provide you with fresh ideas and help you transform your house into a home. Drop the tomatoes for 10 seconds in boiling water, cut out stems, and peel. Cut tomatoes in half crosswise, squeeze out the juice and seeds, chop the pulp roughly, and add to the casserole. Stir in the garlic and basil. Cut the colored part of the peel off the orange and lemon, then cut peel into very fine julienne strips 1/16 inch wide.

To remove bitterness from peel, simmer for 10 minutes in 1 quart of water, drain and add to casserole. (Recipe may be prepared ahead to this point; bring to simmer before proceeding.)

Braising

Cover the casserole and either simmer over low heat on top of the stove, or set in lower middle of a preheated 325 degree oven. (Oven is preferable because of its more even heat.) Maintain liquid at a slow simmer for about 1 1/4 hours (usually 1 1/2 hours for foreshanks), or until meat is tender when pierced with a fork. Do nor overcook; the meat should not fall from the bone.

Finishing The Sauce

When the meat is tender, remove it from the casserole to a side dish. Tip casserole and skin off cooking fat. Set casserole over high heat and boil down braising liquid rapidly to concentrate its flavor and to thicken it slightly; you should end up with about 2 cups. Taste carefully for seasoning, adding salt and pepper if necessary. If you are not serving immediately, return meat to casserole and set aside, uncovered. To reheat, cover and simmer for 3 or 4 minutes.

Serving

Either serve from casserole or arrange the meat on a hot platter surrounded by rice, noodles, or boiled potatoes. Pour the sauce over the meat.

Jack Pierson

Jack Pierson of Livonia remembers the early days when kids learned about jazz by sneaking into bars.

They don't do that anymore, but they're still interested in jazz. "I was a player and wanted to get kids involved. Some are even making a living at it," said Pierson who plays trumpet and piano.

He traded life on the road for the classroom, and has been inspiring thousands of kids, ever since. "I enjoyed teaching and decided jazz should be looked at the same way as orchestras," he said.

In the summer of 1973 Pierson took students enrolled in Henry Ford Community College's jazz program to the Montreux

JAZZ: A coat of many colors

BY HUGH GALLAGHER
STAFF WRITER

Jim Dulzo, director of the Ford Detroit Montreux Jazz Festival, calls jazz a "coat of many colors" and this year's Labor Day weekend festival at Detroit's Hart Plaza proves the point perfectly.

The 18th annual jazz festival features a dozen national headliners, more than 40 Detroit and Michigan artists and almost two dozen high school and college bands. It offers everything from Dixie and swing to the modern big band sounds of the McCoy Tyner Big Band and the Mingus Big Band to the rich Latin rhythms of Manny Oquendo and Libre.

It's all jazz and all different.

"I don't think about themes," Dulzo said. "I think about quality. I try to get whoever's best at what they do. I try to get balance. Not too far modern, not too far old-fashioned, too far young lions, too far same old names. I want some surprises."

Dulzo said some people like bop and some like swing. He said he is always interested in hearing the new music but admits he's been paying attention to the older music as well.

Sheila Landis

"The older I get, the more I appreciate the past masters, especially from the swing era. For many years I was really into chasing after the bop thing, but lately I've been listening to swing."

Swing to bop to Afro-Cuban to bossa nova, the festival has it all.

Charles Mingus Big Band

Charles Mingus would have been delighted to have had a big band playing his music, but according to Sue Mingus, widow of the great bass player/composer/band leader, the economics of the times just didn't allow it.

When Mingus died in 1978 at the age of 56, he left

Sinead O'Connor focuses on soothing

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Thanks to the birth of her daughter, Roison, Irish pop singer Sinead O'Connor has a new focus in life – comforting troubled souls.

Her latest EP "Gospel Oak" (Chrysalis/EMI Records) is a reflection of that. In the lullaby-like lead-off track "This Is To Mother You," the 29-year-old O'Connor sings "This is to mother you/To comfort you and get you through/Through when your nights are lonely/Through when your dreams are only blue/This is to mother you."

The lyrics "4 my love this night I have/Your baby in my belly/All my life I'll love you for/The life you've given me/So love no longer be frightened/I will never leave you" are wrapped around rolling drum beats in "4 My Love."

The six-song "Gospel Oak," on which she sings the traditional Irish song "He Moved Through the Fair," is dedicated to the people of three war-torn areas – Israel, Rwanda, and Northern Ireland. It is her first album since 1994's "Universal Mother" (Chrysalis/EMI).

"It's quite personal things," O'Connor said of the dedication. "I've always had strong feelings about Israel since I was a young child."

Phoning from Los Angeles, O'Connor said she is appalled behind a rich legacy. Many jazz critics place Mingus with Duke Ellington and Thelonious Monk as the greatest jazz composers. In addition to his own meticulously supervised recordings, Mingus left compositions behind for others to arrange, play and interpret. His music encompassed a wide and ever changing palette of innovative sounds.

Sue Mingus has kept that legacy alive, first with a changing group of musicians recording as Mingus Dynasty in five or seven piece combo settings and, for the last seven years, with the Mingus Big Band.

"We have a home at a club here in New York that's a restaurant, cafe, nightclub combination," Sue Mingus said in a telephone interview from New York. The band plays at the Fez club underneath the Time Cafe in Manhattan.

A performance of Mingus' master work "Epitaph" with a 31-piece orchestra directed by Gunther Schuller in 1989 convinced Sue Mingus that a big band was needed to play Mingus' music.

"Hearing all those colors, harmonies and textures coming from all those instruments," she said.

Though the compositions are all by Mingus, there are only a few Mingus big band arrangements because he usually worked in small combos. Arrangements have been prepared by former Mingus associates such as Schuller and current band members.

"But he was able to make a five piece group sound larger, that was his genius," Mingus said.

In addition to its regular stint at the club, the band has toured throughout the country and Europe. This is its first performance in Michigan.

Mingus' stature as a composer has only increased with the years.

"Part of it is that it is very difficult music," Sue Mingus said. "He liked that and he felt that other musicians felt the same way. It was not just to be difficult but he was interested in voicing, textures, harmonies and he experimented with rhythmic changes all the time. He would take a 4/4 beat and move into a waltz and then into a Cuban beat and back to something else."

She said other musicians enjoy playing Mingus' music because he leaves them a lot of open spaces where they can bring their own playing into the composition, an essential element to preserve jazz improvisation.

Sue Mingus said the band doesn't tightly program their performances and what they'll play is usually "anybody's guess."

"But, they'll probably do 'Little Royal Suite,' a number that Charles originally wrote for (jazz trumpet great) Roy Eldridge," Mingus said.

She said the band has lately been experimenting with some Mingus pieces inspired by Latin percussion music that will be a part of their next album which they hope to record in September.

The band features some first rate young musicians, including Ronnie Cuber, Seamus Blake and John Stubblefield.

"This is a university of experience for young musicians to get their feet wet," she said. "A great musical experience to play this music night after. Charles would have loved to have had the opportunity to compose for a band with this regularity."

The Mingus Big Band performs 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 30, on the Ford/Airtouch Cellular Stage. Also at 3:45 p.m. Saturday, Sue Mingus and band members will meet with young musicians on the Pepsi Jam Academy Stage.

Sheila Landis

While hosting a jazz festival in Pontiac, singer Sheila Landis had a chance to meet the "girl from Ipanema" herself, Astrud Gilberto.

At this year's Montreux Festival, Landis, from Rochester, will present a "Brazilian Love Affair."

"When I was a kid, my parents had albums of Stan Getz, Astrud Gilberto and Antonio Joabim," Landis said. "I just thought what nice, cool, liquid sound that was. I also liked the way Astrud wrestled with the English language."

Landis is a popular local performer who sings in various musical configurations and different jazz styles. On Friday, Aug. 21, she and guitarist Rick Matle will complete their summer "Beans Tour" of performances at Coffee Beanery coffee shops with a set at 8:30 p.m. at the Birmingham store. On Saturday Landis will participate in the "Sisters in Jazz" mentoring program with protege Kristin Ward at 1:15 p.m. on the Bop Shop Stage at Montreux.

The Brazilian set will be rhythmically rich.

"Percussion includes bongos,congas, bells, shakers and maybe I can get him to use a nose whistle," Landis joked.

Landis will be playing with performers she has played with for more than 20 years.

"There's a weird, spooky kind of empathy," she said. "You know what they're going to do and they know what you're going to do. It's like a family situation."

The band features in addition to Matle, Gary Shunk on piano, Paul Keller on bass, David Taylor on drums and Dennis Sheridan on percussion.

Landis said this year is the most involved she's ever been in the jazz festival. She said the festival puts Detroit on the map as an important jazz center.

"It's the greatest hang there is," she said. "Everybody's here and excited. It's a wonderful thing for our community."

Landis recently completed a new CD on her private SheLan label, "The Bird Inside."

The record includes everything from Cole Porter to experimental settings for poems by local writer Margo LaGattuta.

Sheila Landis performs Brazilian music 5:30 p.m. Monday, Sept. 1, on the Bop Shop Stage.

Jazz Festival. One thing led to another, and in 1979 the first Montreux Jazz Festival was presented in Detroit.

College kids were involved in the festival from the get-go, and high school jazzers followed. Three years ago, Montreux Festival director Jim Dulzo invited Pierson, now director of the Michigan School Band & Orchestra Association, and the new Michigan president of the International Association of Jazz Educators, to serve on a jazz education committee.

This year, Pierson, and other professional musicians and educators, with help from the Southeastern Michigan Jazz Association, will present two jazz clinics a day, 1 and 5 p.m. Friday, Aug. 29 to Monday, Sept. 1 on the Pepsi Jam Academy Stage.

Although the workshops are designed for high school and college musicians, anyone is welcome to bring their horn and participate.

Students will receive handouts, and go through a practice session where they'll learn more about jazz and improvisation. At "Meet the Artist," students can meet professional musicians, including Sue Mingus and band members and ask questions.

This year over 20 college and high school big bands and combos will be performing on Hudson's Bop Shop Stage including the Farmington Harrison High School Jazz Ensemble.

"It's a great thing to play in a professional environment, and they have a great audience to play for," said Mark Phillips, band director at Farmington Harrison High School. "It's not like playing for your parents. Montreux is a world-class jazz festival.."

Two of Phillips' students, Chip Chipelli, a bass player who graduated in June, and Derek Lewis, baritone sax, an 11th grader this fall, were chosen to play in the Michigan All Star High School Big Band. Another highlight is "Jazz for a New Generation with Harold McKinney," presented each day at 2:45 p.m. on the Pepsi Academy Stage. "This is for youngsters, it's a nice event," said Pierson." He plays music little kids can relate to."

'Carousel' showcases extraordinary talent

("Carousel" continues 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday at the Louis E. Schmidt Auditorium, 20155 Middlebelt Road, Livonia (between Seven and Eight Mile roads. For ticket information, call 313-425-5782.)

BY VICTORIA DIAZ
SPECIAL WRITER

The Music Theatre of Michigan (formerly Jumpstart the Arts) is a pro-am performance group headed by Michael J. Sawaya and Broadway actor Daniel Cooney. Cooney, a 1985 alum of Westland John Glenn, has returned home for the last three summers to lead the intensive workshops for aspiring performers, which culminate each year in full-staged musical productions. "Jesus Christ Superstar" and "Evita" marked the first two seasons for the group. Currently, MTM is staging the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical "Carousel."

"Carousel," a musical with a slightly shadowy edge, turns out to be a near-ideal choice for showcasing such generous amounts of area talent. That talent is manifested here in everything from performances to sets to lighting to costumes and beyond.

Director Cooney also stars as the tough carnival barker, Billy Bigelow, who often resorts to violence toward those who displease him. This includes his loving wife, Julie (Natalie Ross), who, in that familiar way of so many musical theater heroines, just loves him to death anyway. Here, Cooney manages to imbue the ne'er-do-well Billy with a great amount of appeal. Better yet, his singing talents are well-nigh irresistible, especially when it's his turn with an old favorite like "If I Loved You," or the lesser-known "Soliloquy."

REVIEW

Though her role is not nearly so colorful, Natalie Ross also turns in an engaging performance as the sweet-sad Julie. Much of her appeal lies in her way with tunes like "If I Loved You," and the pensive "What's the Use of Wonderin."

In supporting roles, Jamie Earls is a delight as the irrepressible Carrie Pipperidge, John Sartor is appropriately menacing as the troublemaker Jigger Craigin, and Marsha Rofel as the maternal Nettie Fowler is always fun to watch and listen to (especially when leading this really first-rate chorus in the bubbly "June Is Bustin' Out All Over.")

Other standouts in the large cast include Robert Adamczyk as the stuffy Enoch Snow, Suzanne Celeskey as carnival boss lady Mrs. Mullin and choreographer Lily Tedeschi, who plays the 15-year-old Louise Bigelow.

Musicians seem to overwhelm a voice or two along the way, and players' "marks" seem oddly placed at times, as if director Cooney were set on filling this large stage even when he only has a couple of players with which to do it. (Also, all that "fog" moving in from the wings eventually distracts.)

But any flaw pales next to costumes, lighting, sets, backdrops, scenery, all of which are truly extraordinary (you'll not soon forget the dream-like, glittery carousel).

With the music of Rodgers and Hammerstein added in, plus enough are performance talent to utterly warm your heart, how can you miss?

■ 'I play nothing off the first album because I feel quite far away from it. I'm interested in providing soothing. (Back then) I was feeling angry. It was very painful to be there. I wouldn't expect even my worst enemy to live with that. I want to make people happy.'

Sinead O'Connor at Meadow Brook

at the condition of Israel considering "the leaders of the three great religions were born and spent their life there. I was thinking about the young people there also and how it must be for them."

The young people of Israel must be miserable, she added, being in the middle of conflicts for which they're not responsible.

"We met some people there when we played there a couple years ago. The young people are in a similar situation in Northern Ireland, but in Israel they've only had six months of peace in their whole lives from conception. Children couldn't go to school during the Gulf War. Teenagers were dropping off waiting for the war to finish."

O'Connor, who is also the mother of a son, Jake, with drummer/programmer John Reynolds, said her feelings are the same about Northern Ireland and Rwanda. She explained that the Irish-influenced song "Petit Poulet" is about "the horror and how on earth do you comfort the children and grown ups that have experienced death? It's too horrific to contemplate. I don't think a song can save the world or provide a solution but it can provide some kind of soothing. That's what my intention was with the record in general."

In "Petit Poulet," named for a French term of affection, she sings the passage "There isn't any answer to the question/ You only learn to live with it/There isn't any answer in religion/Don't believe one who says there is."

The question, she said, is, "What are we all doing here?"

"Religion claims to have some sort of explanation but religion can't tell you what we're all doing here. It can comfort you like a song."

O'Connor was born Dec. 8, 1967, in Dublin, Ireland, the third of four children. She has described her mother as physically and emotionally abusive. According to "MusicHound Rock: The Essential Album Guide" (Visible Ink Press), O'Connor blames the Catholic Church for the circumstances of her childhood, believing that the religion condones child abuse and has, for several centuries, conspired with the English to take away the rights of the Irish people.

She made her feelings public by ripping up a photo of Pope John Paul II after an appearance on "Saturday Night Live," and reportedly by writing the song "I Am Stretched On Your Grave" on her 1990 sophomore album "I Do Not Want What I Haven't Got" (Chrysalis). The "Saturday Night Live" incident and others for which she's been criticized, has not had an impact on her sales, O'Connor explained.

"It hasn't been very difficult to keep up with my fan base, contrary to what the newspapers would have you believe. I'm a popular and very loved artist in this country. People they say a lot of things that aren't true," O'Connor said speaking quickly and somewhat defensively.

"I'm misrepresented a lot. They say my record sales kind of plummeted once I started to cause trouble. The fact is the album and the single naturally don't stay there (on the charts) forever. ... It's simply a lie for anyone to say my fan base has been affected by those things," she added about "I Do Not Want What I Haven't Got," the album that is home to the Princepenned "Nothing Compares 2 U."

O'Connor will make a rare appearance at Meadow Brook Music Festival in Rochester on Sunday, Aug. 24. She last performed in this area Aug. 5, 1990, during a sold-out show at Pine Knob Music Theatre. She was scheduled for Lollapalooza 1995 at Pine Knob but she bowed out due to her pregnancy with Roison.

Like her previous show, O'Connor is bringing along a large band. In describing her 11-member band, she is quick to point out that eight of them are women.

"It just so happens that the best musicians for the job (were women). I also tend to work with friends of mine. That makes touring a much less lonely experience. Touring can be a very, very lonely experience. You're away from home and nothing is familiar. You're away from your loved ones."

O'Connor has been "squealing around the room," however, because her children were coming for a week-long visit on Sunday, Aug. 17.

Her Meadow Brook show will include a retrospective of her hits, except those from her 1992 big band album "Am I Not Your Girl?" (Chrysalis/Ensign) ("It's too different from what I'm doing now," she said), and her 1987 debut, "The Lion and the Cobra" (Chrysalis), which spawned the hits "Mandinka," "I Want Your (Hands on Me)," and "Just Like U Said It Would B."

"I play nothing off the first album because I feel quite far away from it. I'm interested in providing soothing. (Back then) I was feeling angry. It was very painful to be there. I wouldn't expect even my worst enemy to live with that. I want to make people happy."

DINING

The West End Grill, comfortable yet dynamic

By Renee Skoglund
Special Writer

If valuable things come in small packages, then The West End Grill in Ann Arbor is a diamond.

It's easy to walk right by this small jewel, tucked away on a busy side street already dotted with a variety of restaurants. But don't. Instead, walk up the steps, open the etched glass door and began savoring one of the nicest restaurant atmospheres in Ann Arbor.

All the details here seem to work: soft green walls with creamy white paneling, paintings and mirrors that adorn rather than dominate, deep rose carpeting, a decorative black tinned ceiling and 17 tables dressed in crisp white and dark green tablecloths.

And, of course, there's candlelight on every table. This place has class. It's definitely worth the two-week wait for weekend reservations.

The West End Grill is open only for dinner, so owners Kaiser Yang, 29, and Roland Pohlman, 30, who met while working on their MBAs at the University of Michigan, have time to concentrate on what's important. Dining at their restaurant is all about service.

"There's three components that make up the perfect dining experience – food, service and atmosphere," said Yang. "We want it to be an intimate experience, where the customers walk away feeling that they have had a very personal dining experience."

That dining experience begins soon after you sit down. Yang and Pohlman, who previously owned a restaurant in St. Louis, have trained their staff to "present" menu items and the evening's specials with a generous portion of adjectives.

There's something about listening to a description of Poulet Montrachet, a boneless breast of chicken rolled and stuffed with spinach, prosciutto ham, montrachet cheese and artichoke hearts that builds anticipation. By the time the waitperson gets to the white wine cream sauce with a hint of nutmeg, you're seduced.

The West End Grill

Where: 120 West Liberty, downtown Ann Arbor
Hours: 5-9:30 p.m. Tuesday-Thursday; 5-10:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday.
Menu: Steaks and fresh seafood dishes with a Euro-Asian influence
Prices: Appetizers, $4.95-$6.25; Entrees, $13.95-$21.95
Atmosphere: Intimate, charming, sophisticated and romantic
Credit Cards: Visa, Mastercard, American Express
Reservations: A must for weekends (313) 747-6260
Almost completely non-smoking

The restaurant's one-page menu refuses to wander. It is disciplined primarily to steaks and fresh seafood, with one or two chicken or pasta entrees. It's classic, but with a Euro-Asian twist. "We call it new American cuisine," said Yang.

Two of the most popular entrees are the Filet Bearnaise at $19.95 and the Asian Salmon at $17.95. No wonder. The filet is stuffed with Chilean langostinos and lobster meat, then grilled and served with the Bearnaise sauce. The salmon is marinated in plum sauce, seared and topped with a Chinese salsa made with shiitake mushrooms. Ah, exotic but accessible.

There's also Chef Siamak Jalali's grilled boneless chicken breast topped with a bourbon-maple syrup glaze, an herb-encrusted pork tenderloin with gorgonzola cream sauce, toasted ravioli (actually wonton skins filled with artichoke hearts, fresh basil, goat cheese and sun-dried tomatoes), and sea scallops served on a bed of spicy Jamaican corn relish.

Of course, to start your heart beating in anticipation, you must lead into your entree with an appetizer. Kaiser recommends trying the veal dumplings wrapped in wonton skins or the Southwestern crab cakes or the blue cheese tarts.

Yang, whose passion is eating, describes the food served at The West End Grill as being "just enough to capture your imagination, yet it isn't risque. It's comfortable but dynamic."

The restaurant also has a full bar, including almost 80 bottles of wine, mostly California. While most selections of wine must be purchased by the bottle, a representative sampling is served by the glass.

Only open for a year and a half, The West End Grill is now known for having the best service in Ann Arbor, according to Yang. It's obvious that Yang and Pohlman know what they're doing.

"The proof for us is that our guests do come back," said Yang.

You gotta believe

Could St. Joseph be seller's friend?

BY NORMAN PRADY
SPECIAL WRITER

Head down? Face up? In the front yard? In the backyard? Looking north? Watching the house? Watching the street?

The possibilities for the proper burial of the St. Joseph statue seem about as varied as the buriers themselves: those home sellers of many regions, cultures and religions who believe that interment of the icon will hasten the arrival of a customer.

What? Bury a statue to help sell a house? What's this all about?

What it's about is a practice that seems to bloom continuously in a gray, fuzzy field of belief that's fertilized by concepts of faith, magic, folklore, legend and superstition.

It's about the idea that Joseph – St. Joseph – husband of Mary, the mother of Jesus Christ, can and will help you make a deal on your rambling ranch or cozy Cape Cod.

It's about the idea that St. Joseph, a carpenter noted for his work as a family provider and protector, will intercede on the seller's behalf and invoke prompt divine assistance to the commercial cause.

And, it appears, hundreds of local sellers say it's so.

"We sell maybe a thousand or more a year," said Joseph Soboslay, who, with wife Pat, runs Catholic Supply House in Warren. "The ones we do the best with are about three inches high."

He offered a possible clue to the St. Joseph real estate legend, quoting from a pamphlet published by a company named Roman Inc.: "European nuns" of no known time or place, "buried a medal with St Joseph's likeness on some property they hoped to acquire for the convent. Gradually, the medal was replaced with statues and the focus changed from buying to selling."

Okay, but if you hear it told by Dr. Michael Bernacchi, professor of marketing at University of Detroit Mercy, they weren't European nuns; they were New Jersey nuns. And they weren't buying, they were selling.

In the story Bernacchi knows, the need was to raise money to save an impoverished convent by selling off some adjoining land. "They had a big, awesome statue of St. Joseph and they let him be close to the soil to work the wonders they needed."

So is the statue's stature a significant factor? Perhaps not, according to Gloria Sinkler, manager of McDevitt's, a Catholic supply store in Royal Oak, where the statues sell for from about a dollar up to $20 or more. "We have real estate people coming in and buying the 99-cent ones, and they work just as well."

Well, how well is well? Sinkler offered a view of the homeowner whose house "has been for sale for a year or six months or whatever, and they bury the statue in the yard and the house goes real fast. It's sold within a week. Could be a month.

"I know for a fact that my daughter's mother-on-law moved out of state and that house was on the market over a year." Her daughter "kind of poohpoohed it and then decided to do it and the house was gone, I think, in less than a month."

Marketing expert Bernacchi, however, raises a question. "Without casting aspersions on their faith," said the self-described fervent Catholic, "but it seems that the longer it's for sale, the more likely the sale date is just around the corner."

On the other hand, Bernacchi thinks that in almost any selling situation those who believe in their products, who know their products, and who have a strong desire to sell are likely more empowered to make things happen than are those less determined, less intense."

Bernacchi also has a theory about the upside-down, or head-first posture: It might have come from the pedestal problem, he says. That is, many of the statues are mounted on small stands which, according to the professor, could be seen as inhibiting necessary meaningful contact with the ground.

Nancy Austin, a Realtor with Coldwell Banker Preferred, Plymouth, said, "I was tempted to do it myself when I was selling my house. Other real estate agents "keep a supply in their desks," according to Carol S. Frick manager of Ralph Manuel Associates, Birmingham.

Frick thinks many sellers speak of the practice "tongue in cheek," but if the house isn't selling, it's time to bury St. Joseph. "I think a lot of people do it. But I don't think it's confined to Catholics.

"I think everybody does it. I had Jewish customers once who did it. They figured they could use all the help they could get." Did it work? "The house sold eventually, so who knows?"

The house of a Protestant customer also sold after being on the market "a long time." This seller had buried two statues, but Frick could not assess any possible increased potency resulting from double digging.

"I don't know how much is fact and how much is fiction," Frick said. Or, as she allowed, how much fits into another category: faith. "I prefer to think that if they'd reduce the price to a reasonable area, it would help God along."

If God is being influenced by all the statue-burying, the Archdiocese of Detroit apparently hasn't noticed. Asked for the Catholic Church's view of it, spokesman Richard Laskos said he had no familiarity with the practice. "I'm trying to think where we'd go for reference," he said.

An unscientific survey of some of the world's other major religious groups produced no evidence of an analogous ritual.

In Judaism, the mezuzah is a symbol placed on the home by its new owners after the purchase. A small parchment scroll with Biblical passages, rolled into a sometimes-ornate container, the mezuzah is fastened to the doorpost.

"A religious icon that probably has a totem origin" offering "semi-magical or divine protection for the house," said Adam Chalom, rabbinic intern at Birmingham Temple in Farmington. But he knew of no pre-sale rituals.

As for the Presbyterian counterpart, Dr. Murray S. Blackadar said he had never heard of the practice or of anything like it. Blackadar is pastor of Church of Our Savior Presbyterian in West Bloomfield.

"It's about as un-Presbyterian as you can get. You ought to have more faith in a good Realtor.

"Presbyterians have concern about faith in 'what' and the burying "would be a kind of a superstitious behavior. Faith is focused on God and Jesus Christ and not on symbols or magical kinds of things.

"Catholic people I know don't do that kind of thing."

Told that metro area statue sales might well be in the thousands, Blackadar said, "Poor St. Joseph."

A kit he paid about $8.50 for fascinates Bernacchi. Called "The Home Sale Practice," it's a box with a window that St. Joseph peers through.

The box features a picture of a house with a sold sign, a picture of someone burying the statue, and the caption: "Can't sell your home? Ask St. Joseph – he's helped thousand. Faith can move mountains – and homes."

The kit tells Bernacchi that the legend has evolved into pure marketing, as evidenced by the development of this product as a formalized marketing tool. He's especially taken with the "Made in USA" logo, and assumes the manufacturer means the box and the statue, not St. Joseph himself.

He also likes the recycling symbol and thinks it means, the box, not the statue. Some buriers, many of whom are said to now wrap their statues in plastic bags to keep them clean, dig them up to recycled them into their future house sales. Another practice, apparently minor, is to leave the statue with the home buyers for their own good fortune.

"One customer," said sales agent Juanita Mallmann, "went to a store to get a statue and they were out and not expecting any for two weeks. They told her they should learn to have more on hand in the spring when so many houses go up for sale."

Mallmann, with Prudential Great Lakes Realty in Rochester Hills, is reluctant to demean the burying practice because she's planning to sell her own house next year and might do some burying herself.

"I've had a lot of people ask me about it. They say, 'What do you think?' I say it's a matter of faith.

"And, like chicken soup, it can't hurt."

Don't be a victim of loan fraud; Part 2

MORTGAGE SHOPPING

DAVID C. MULLY

Part 2 of 2

Do not change your income tax returns for any reason. The Internal Revenue Service has your original returns, and they can be compared with the ones you submit with your application. Falsifying income tax returns is a serious federal offense.

Tell the whole truth about gifts. A gift of money from a friend or relative can be used, but only if it's free and clear, with not strings or obligations to the lender. If anyone suggests that you falsely certify that a relative is giving you money, refuse.

Do not list fake co-borrowers on your loan application. While their income might help you qualify, fake co-borrowers are not going to give you money to pay the monthly mortgage payments. Also, anyone you list as a co-borrower has rights to your property.

Be truthful about your credit problems, past and present. Watch out for people or companies who call themselves credit fixers or credit repair magicians. Often, a written explanation from you may be sufficient to explain a credit problem

Be honest about your intention to occupy the house. To say that you are planning to live there, when you aren't, violates Federal law and is a crime.

Do not provide false supporting documents, such as fake "gift letters," cash on-hand statements, explanations of prior credit problems, statements that you will perform certain repairs on the property, etc.

Don't be discouraged

If your loan application is rejected, find out what the problem is and how it can be resolved. Maybe you need to look for a less-expensive house or save more money. It is better that you wait and solve your problems instead of committing fraud. But do remember, there are many options available for low-downpayment loans, which we've discussed in recent columns.

You don't want to lose the house and the money you have in it and ruin your credit history. Most important, loan fraud is a serious crime that can result in civil liability, criminal penalties, or both.

If someone tries to persuade you to make even a single false statement on your loan application – for any reason – please call the nearest office of the Federal Department of Housing and Urban Development or call the HUD hot line at 1-800-347-3735.

Management company can do better

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q. I am extremely upset with our management company for not advising us of a recent class on community association operation, which I later found out it knew about and ignored. Is this a common occurrence?

A. A good management company will try to apprise its constituent clients of all classes and seminars, as well as other literature that is available for reading by community association officers and directors. I would seriously question why the management company has not chosen to provide you with information that will assist you in that process. Important information should not be left only in the hands of the management company, to the exclusion of its constituent clients. I would seriously consider bringing this to the attention of the management company at your earliest convenience.

Q. I am concerned that my taxes will be increased if businesses do not pay all the sales taxes that are required. Who can I contact to report Michigan sales tax fraud?

A. If you suspect that someone is committing Michigan sales tax fraud, you may wish to contact the Michigan Department of Treasury, Treasury Building, 430 W. Allegan St., Technical Department, Lansing MI 48922. Their telephone number is (517) 373-3190. You can provide them with the information that you have.

Refinancing up, ARMs down in July

Freddie Mac's snapshot of lending activity in July shows refinances grew, adjustable rate mortgages (ARMs) were down and balloon mortgages continued to offer favorable interest rates for borrowers who plan to move within five to seven years.

Refinancing activity continued to pick up in July, rising three percentage points over June figures to 27 percent of applications. Interest rates for fixed-rate mortgages (FRMs) trended downward, breaking through the 7.5-percent threshold. In July, the 30-year FRM averaged 7.5 percent, down nearly 0.2 percentage points from June.

Conversely, the ARM share of applications fell further to 20 percent in July, while the spread between FRMs and ARMs narrowed further. June's ARM share was 23 percent.

"Currently, interest rates for fixed-rate mortgages have rebounded slightly owing to recent economic reports that suggest unexpected strength in the economy," said Frank Nothaft, deputy chief economist for Freddie Mac. "Interest rates may ease back down to their previously low levels and spur further refinancing activity and less ARM lending."

Lenders who offer seven-year balloons on average charged a little more than half of a percentage point discount in the interest rate than on the 30-year FRM. The seven-year balloon averaged 6.94 percent, compared to 7.46 percent for the 30-year FRM.

Lenders offering five-year balloons charged about 0.7 percentage points less in the interest rate than the 30-year FRM. The average rate for the five year balloon was 6.75 percent, which is considerably lower than the 30-year FRM.

"Balloon mortgages are a good, affordable financing option for the borrower who is not planning on staying in their home for more than five or seven years," said Nothaft. "By choosing a balloon mortgage, the homeowner is assured of a fixed rate for the duration of the loan, while enjoying the benefits of a lower interest rate."

Freddie Mac has polled lenders on a monthly basis for their share of refinancings since 1987 and on ARM lending since 1995. Freddie Mac plans to survey lenders on a variety of other housing finance trends on a monthly basis as well, beginning this month.

Freddie Mac is a stockholder-owned corporation chartered by Congress in 1970 to create a continuous flow of money to mortgage lenders. Freddie Mac supplies lenders with the money to make mortgages and packages the mortgages into marketable securities.

Getting the scoop on siding

BY POPULAR MECHANICS
FOR AP SPECIAL FEATURES

Siding is a big part of any house, usually occupying more square footage than anything else including roofing, windows and doors. In many ways, it's the face your house presents to your neighborhood and the community beyond.

If you're in the market for new siding, here's a look at three of several materials that are available.

Once, there was only portland cement stucco. But in the past 20 years, a synthetic stucco has come into wide use. Its formula replaces the portland cement with acrylic resins. It's known as Exterior Insulated Finish Systems (EIFS).

Acrylic resins help form a weatherproof surface. The material is troweled over insulated sheathing with mesh fastened to it. EIFS combines durability with good thermal insulation. Its color is blended right into the finish coat, so you don't have to paint them.

Traditional stucco consists of three coats of a mix containing portland cement and sand (also called portland cement plaster). This is applied over wire mesh on sheathing, or the stucco is troweled over concrete block.

Properly installed stucco is incredibly durable, but details, such as coat thickness, have a major effect on its durability (the same is true of EIFS). While a small number of hairline cracks are considered inevitable, even on properly installed stucco, major cracking, flaking and delamination are not typical. With either type of stucco, ask your contractor for references on jobs that were completed more than a year ago, to determine if the jobs have stood up well.

Brick is the most durable and the most expensive siding. It's considered to be maintenance-free, but sometimes it needs to have efflorescence (minerals that leach from the mortar and brick) cleaned from its surface.

Thin brick siding is made from full-width brick (not plastic or other materials) that is sliced into thin pieces. This system is useful for brick siding in remodeling jobs where installing regular brick presents structural problems. Thin brick is attached with adhesive or grout.

You have the right to demand good workmanship with any siding, but even more so with brick since it is unforgiving of sloppy installation. Ask your contractor for references where the brick was installed several years ago to determine how the installation has stood up.

Metal siding is made from steel or aluminum sheet formed to look like wood siding. It receives a factory-applied coating, and the surface may be smooth or textured. Aluminum siding is durable and if you don't like exterior painting, it will eliminate the need to paint for many years – 20 years or longer depending on climate.

Its color will fade as it ages, but modern siding has a more durable finish than that installed years ago. It can be dented, however, by careless placement of ladders or bouncing hailstones. And, aluminum siding can buckle during heat waves if it's not properly installed.

Steel siding looks like aluminum siding, but it is more dent- and warp-resistant. It tends to be installed in the Midwest where violent hailstorms are common. A drawback is that it will rust if it is scratched on bare steel. Such spots must be painted.

Second-quarter state resales hold steady

> ■ 'Strong consumer confidence, a good economy and a pent-up demand in the trade-up sector have combined with favorable affordability conditions to keep the momentum going.'
> Russell K. Booth
> National Association of Realtors president

WASHINGTON, Aug. 12 /PRNewswire/ -- Sales of existing single-family homes, condominiums and co-ops stood at near-record levels across the country during the second quarter, according to the National Association of Realtors.

Nationally, NAR's latest survey of total existing-home sales showed the volume at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 4.65 million units during the second quarter, which is off a marginal 1.1 percent from the record pace of 4.70 million recorded during the second quarter of 1996. NAR has been tracking the total resale series with state breakouts since 1981.

Twenty-three states and the District of Columbia reported resale increases from the second quarter of 1996. The strongest gains were posted in Nebraska, where activity rose 21.2 percent; Connecticut, which recorded a 21.0-percent improvement; and in the District of Columbia, where resale activity rose 19.8 percent.

NAR President Russell K. Booth said resales have remained heavier than analysts anticipated earlier this year. "Coming off a sales record in 1996, a slowdown was expected but existing-home sales have shown unusual strength," he said. "Strong consumer confidence, a good economy and a pent-up demand in the trade-up sector have combined with favorable affordability conditions to keep the momentum going," he explained.

Recent enactment of tax legislation providing favorable capital gains tax treatment for home sellers could bolster the already strong market, Booth said. NAR is expecting only a slight impact on sales volume. "We expect more sales will be based on actual need rather than tax consequences, particularly in cases involving home owners who either wish to trade down to smaller homes or who are moving from high-cost areas to less-expensive ones," Booth added.

According to the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp., the national average commitment rate for 30-year, conventional, fixed-rate mortgages was 7.92 percent during the second quarter, down from 8.11 percent during the second quarter of 1996.

John A. Tuccillo, NAR's consulting economist, continued to play down the role of interest rates. "We're seeing a market driven more by need and desire," he said. "With good, steady economic conditions, we do expect a slight slowdown, simply because so much housing demand has been filled over the last couple of years, but a strong housing market will continue," he added.

Regionally, the Northeast actually recorded second-quarter resale activity 1.3 percent above the level of one year ago. In addition to the strong gain in Connecticut, existing-home sales rose 15.1 percent in Massachusetts and 13.0 percent in Rhode Island compared to the second quarter of 1996.

In the Midwest, total existing-home sales slipped 0.9 percent from the record pace recorded during last year's second quarter. However, there were pockets of strong activity. Besides Nebraska, Indiana also posted a double- digit increase with resales up 13.5 percent from a year ago; Missouri showed a 2.5 percent gain.

The South experienced a 1.7 percent decline in existing-home sales between the second quarter of 1996 and the second quarter of 1997. The District of Columbia was the only area of the South to record double-digit sales increases. However, Louisiana resales were up 4.9 percent from the second quarter of 1986, while West Virginia recorded a 4.6-percent increase.

Existing-home sales in the West dropped 1.9 percent from year-ago levels. Strong performers included Washington, where sales rose 10.7 percent from the second quarter of 1996; and Montana, up 9.0 percent. In California, which recorded the highest sales volume, resales rose 3.0 percent from a year ago.

The National Association of Realtors, "The Voice for Real Estate," is the nation's largest professional association, representing nearly 720,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate industry.

The seasonally adjusted annual rate for a particular quarter represents what the total number of actual sales for a year would be if the relative resale pace for that quarter were maintained for the year's four consecutive quarters.

Seasonally adjusted rates are used in reporting quarterly data to factor out seasonal variations in resale activity. For example, home sales volume normally is higher in the summer and relatively light in winter, primarily because of differences in the weather.

Safely getting into the swim of things

(NAPS) – It's better to be safe than sorry – especially when it comes to enjoying your swimming pool.

Before you enter the water to enjoy another a refreshing splash, refresh your knowledge of poolside safety with these tips:

■ Prevent accidents by not running near the pool or engaging in horseplay.

■ Wear sneakers or other rubber-soled shoes to avoid slipping on wet pool surfaces.

■ Do not swim during thunder or lightening storms. These storms are common as the summer winds down.

■ If your child can't swim yet, use life preservers or certified flotation devices.

■ Be sure to sanitize your pool to kill harmful bacteria. Besides making it safe to swim in, sanitizing your pool also keeps it sparkling clean and prevents obnoxious odors.

Unpredictable factors such as wind, rain, sunlight, number of swimmers and prolonged periods of warm weather can create varying degrees of chlorine demand.

"Sometimes routine chlorine dosages may not be enough to meet the demand and an extra high dose of chlorine must be added. This is known as a shock treatment," said Dave Knoop, educational advisor to National Spa and Pool Institute and technical service expert for the Olin Corporation.

Free child protection

Olin offers a free pail guard to protect toddlers while supplies last. This special insert is snapped into the top of a 3.5, 5, or 6 gallon pail and prevents the possibility of an infant toppling into a big bucket. For more information/literature on chlorine and your free poolside fun pack, call 1-800-POOL-987. Visit the Olin Pool Care Internet Web site at http:// waterworks. olin. com

Growing and mowing a outstanding lawn

(NAPS) – On the cutting edge: that's the goal for many homeowners, whether they own a small lot or acres of rolling hills. Beautifying your lawn comes down to three easy tips: start early, use the right tools, and stick with it.

Many consumers make the mistake of attending to their lawn at the first signs of spring and all but ignoring its care for the rest of the warm- weather season.

Lawns not only require mowing and seeding, they sometimes require weed killers, nutrient-builders and manicuring tools.

Besides your lawn mower, the most important tool you can buy is a cordless trimmer to handle the edge of your lawn next to the house and around trees and flower beds to give your lawn a well-manicured look.

Two of the most powerful units you can buy are 6-volt and 12-volt cordless battery trimmers from Ryobi. These start with the push of a button, run quiet and clean and require virtually no maintenance.

The powerful 12-volt tool, can trim a path up to a mile long on a single charge, and outperforms most other cordless trimmers by far, easily cutting through all types of weed and grass. It retails under $100.

The lightweight 6-volt model, weighing in at seven pounds, can go 3/4 of a mile on a single charge and is perfect for smaller lots. It retails for under $80.

Each model comes with its own charging station which can mount on the wall in the garage. When the job is completed, hang the trimmer up and it recharges itself. No special transformers or adapters are needed.

For free information call 1-800-345-TRIM.

Bolt against the blue: When Ameritech wanted to have a cellular telephone tower put up at Domino's Pizza's Ann Arbor headquarters at Domino's Farms, Domino's wanted the tower to be a piece of art. The Rudolph/ Libbe company worked with several other firms to test the proposed design and solve the associated engineering problems. The 165-foot tower is visible for five miles as you drive along M-14 between Livonia and Ann Arbor.

Let's Talk About Real Estate

"LOYALTY PAYS OFF"

Finding the right home is not an easy task. If you are a potential buyer, there are numerous hurdles to be jumped before you finally move into the proper home for you.

Some buyers like to leave their name and needs with four or five salespeople. Although this sounds like it is to the buyer's advantage, I have found it to be very ineffective. This approach assumes that a committee can accomplish more than one person. Like most committee assignments, however, results are often postponed and somewhat discouraging. Because the buyer is not committed to one salesperson, no one is spending extra effort on the buyer's behalf.

My advice is to shop for the sales associate that you feel will get the results you want and then stick with him or her exclusively. In this way you will have a dedicated agent who will take on the personal responsibility of handling all the details of your upcoming home purchase. If you give your loyalty to one person, you will be rewarded with results.

Let's look at the tasks that must be performed on your behalf:

1. You will need financing advice on the price range you can qualify for.
2. Your family's specific needs must be learned so that you are shown only those homes that will suit your needs.
3. Appointments must be set and an itinerary established for showings.
4. Offers must be prepared, explained, and presented on your behalf.
5. You must be represented in the negotiating process.
6. Closing documents and final details must be attended to.
7. You must be personally represented at the actual closing of the sale.

If you want all these services, find one Realtor® and stay with him or her!
