■ The second phase of Cherry Hill Point Condominiums didn't pass muster with the Canton Township Planning Commission Monday.

Anyone looking to rent a unit in the second phase of the Cherry Hill Pointe Condominiums will have to wait a while longer.

The Canton Township Planning Commission Monday tabled a vote on the second phase of condominiums at Cherry Hill and Lotz Roads.

The first phase of the Cherry Hill Pointe condominium development was designed for those wishing to buy a unit. The planned second wing will have 132 units to rent over 14.64 acres. It should take seven months to build once the township board approves it, according to Cherry Hill Pointe representative Rick Linnell.

■ 'I don't think they have enough variety ... They essentially all look alike.'

Linnell presented the design scheme during the meeting and was met by an unsatisfied commission. Commissioners made suggestions to reduce the amount or change the location of unnecessary parking spaces and increase the visual appeal of the buildings to "soften" the overall look of the development.

"The whole streetscape is nothing but parking spaces," commissioner Melissa McLaughlin said, adding that it was "too linear."

"I don't think they have enough variety ... They essentially all look alike."

Linnell did point out that the drawings he presented did not have landscaping, a detail he said would soften the feel of the buildings. But the com-

Law prompts flood of CCW activity

Plymouth and Canton police departments felt the effects of the recently passed CCW law when they were inundated with requests from citizens who wish to carry a concealed weapon.

See related story, A12

After the Michigan Supreme Court ruled last week to uphold the "shall issue" concealed weapons law, county clerks, sheriffs and local police departments were flooded with requests for applications on Monday.

By Tuesday, Canton had received over 90 requests, Plymouth Township received 27 and the City of Plymouth received nine.

"We had a sharp increase in our applications," Plymouth police chief Wayne Carroll said. "In one day we've seen more than we usually get in six or eight months. Although it didn't take anybody by surprise to see, the procedure is being worked out right now,

Survey says: Township mapping historic sites

Even though Canton is considered a young, growing community, it's also the site of several significant historic places. Canton will discover if there are more historic gems to be found when it completes its third historical thematic survey next year.

Seven properties – four on Cherry Hill Road and three on Ridge Road – will be thematically surveyed. Two additional properties plus the Cherry Hill village will be nominated to the National Register of Historic places as part of the survey project.

With the rapid development continuing in Canton, particularly in Cherry Hill Village, the Canton Historic District Commission sought to survey historic properties and make nominations to the National Register to ensure cultural information is not lost.

"If we hadn't recognized what this was and how significant Cherry Hill Village is, the village would have been gone. It would have been obliterated by development because no one would have looked past its mothball condition," said Melissa McLaughlin, Canton Historic District Commission co-chair.

The commission began research on

HERITAGE PARK

BY CAROL MARSHALL
STAFF WRITER
cmarshall@oe.homecomm.net

Canton families will break out their tents and pack up their popcorn Friday for the seventh annual Family Camp Out and Movie Night.

Families will camp out near the Heritage Park amphitheater and enjoy the showing of The Emperor's New Groove at dusk.

"It's like a K.O.A. campground here that weekend," said Canton Recreation Supervisor Bob Dates. "Last year we had over 300 tents."

Prior to the movie, campers can enjoy free hot dogs and Max and Erma's will serve up free ice cream sundaes.

Urban wilderness lovers are also welcome to bring their own coolers and snacks for the camp out.

"Families love the camp out because it's something different. It's family camping time," Dates said.

Even though it's tent-only camping – no trailers, please – not everyone who attends is an experienced nature lover.

"It's funny because you can tell which folks have never pitched a tent before in their lives, and are pulling the brand new tent right out of the box from Meijer," Dates said. "Then you have the other extreme, where a family has it down to a science. It doesn't matter. Everyone has fun, and you see the whole gamut of camping experiences."

Besides the food and movie, campers will also delight in the strolling entertainers and stage performers.

Family camping will be free and on a first come reservation basis starting this week. Call 394-5460 between 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. for reservations and information.

The new law states that, to carry a concealed weapon, a person must be over 21 years old, have completed a certified training program and pass a background check.

Plymouth Township Lieutenant Bob Smith said he wasn't fearful of the increase in applicants because only those who are law abiding citizens will be granted the CCW permit. "My problem comes out of people who carry them illegally (without a permit)."

In Canton, public safety director John Santomauro pointed out that, although the police departments have been overwhelmed by requests for application packets, the sheriff's departments have the most work to do because they're the ones who process the requests.

"When the court made its decision, there was a tremendous amount of people that came out (seeking permits)," he said.

Although Santomauro did not wish to express his views on the controversial legislation, he did say that the wording of the law is very clear as to who can get a permit.

The legislation lists a number of reasons why a person would be disqualified, including those who have ever been charged with a felony, dishonorably discharged from the armed forces and those who are mentally ill. Those who have been convicted of misdemeanors are not eligible for three years.

"There's a misconception that this law passed and everyone can now get a gun," Santomauro said.

Some misdemeanors — such as drunk driving or possession of a controlled substance — carry a heavier punishment and put an eight year ban on receiving the permit.

Before the new law passed, those seeking a concealed weapon permit had to prove they needed one. Now, the law states that those who qualify shall be issued a permit.

There is a clause in the legislation that could override the "shall issue" rule under some circumstances, since all requests must go before a board. The legislation, which is included in the application packet, states that the board shall issue or deny the license within 30 days.

It also states, "The board shall not issue a license if they feel that issuing the license would be detrimental to the safety of the applicant or any other individual ... based on clear and convincing evidence ..."

Both Santomauro and Carroll said they were surprised by the number of people who applied for the permit Monday.

"There's probably some kind of mystique to those who don't have that right, or didn't have that right, that now can exercise that right," said Carroll. "However, I don't think they really realize the immense responsibility that goes with it."

Carroll pointed out that it takes a lot of work to own and carry a gun and that it can be a burden from a security aspect.

"I guess we'd like to make sure they understand what they're getting into when they carry a gun," Carroll said. "The first time someone leaves one laying around and some kid picks it up, I'm sure the prosecutor's going to be all over him."

PAIN IN THE BACKSIDE

Piriformis syndrome is a condition in which the piriformis muscle in the buttock irritates the sciatic nerve, the long nerve that originates in the spine and runs down the leg. The result is pain in the buttocks, lower back, and down the back of the thigh. The culprit, the piriformis muscle, is a small muscle located deep in the buttocks that helps rotate the hip. This muscle runs horizontally beneath the gluteal muscles of the buttock, stretching from the lower pine to the femur (thighbone). The sciatic nerve runs vertically and usually passes beneath the piriformis muscle. In about 15% of people, the sciatic nerve goes directly through the muscle, which makes these individuals particularly prone to piriformis syndrome.

If pain and reduced range of motion have you all "locked up," ask your physician for a referral to the HANDS ON CENTER FOR PHYSICAL THERAPY, located in Plymouth, at 470 Forest, Avenue, Suite 20. Our staff of physical and massage therapists treat individuals of all ages who have experienced loss of physical ability due to accident or illness, and also help speed recovery after surgery. To learn more about our practice, please call 455-8370. For your convenience, we offer both day and evening appointments. Most insurances accepted.

P.S. Treatment for piriformis syndrome begins with stretching exercises, as well as deep massage, hip-motion exercises, and perhaps ultrasound.

Arts come alive

Summer camps bring out kids' creativity

BY CARA PLOWMAN
STAFF WRITER
cplowman@oe.homecomm.net

Brightly colored paintings from local artists and the artwork of many children dress the space within the Plymouth Community Arts Council. Here, children come to be creative and make new friends during the center's summer day camp program.

Inside, children ages 6 to 14 work on paintings, drawings, sculptures and collages along with volunteers during the visual arts day camp.

Children attend the week-long camps from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. daily during the summer months.

Kneads work: Amanda Nilles of Canton, 6, kneads some paper pulp during a fiber paper making class during the Visual Arts Camp.

Last week, the center held a performing arts camp where 29 kids prepared three plays, auditioned for parts, memorized lines and performed for an audience.

This week's activities take a more visual route and put kids at easels and drawing tables to make two-dimensional art. On Friday, the center will display the art for the community.

Executive director Jennifer Tobin has worked at the center for six years and founded the Whistle Stop Players program. Tobin said the center aims to increase people's awareness of art and nurture communication skills.

"(They learn how to) communicate a thought, idea or feeling. We suffer as a community because of a lack of communication," she said. "A lot of people don't value the arts and writing."

Another employee, Leslie Grenneisen, has been working at the center since February and is the art education coordinator.

On this particular day, Grenneisen is covered with white speckles of plaster of Paris. She's busy mixing it with water to pour into a plastic mold. When hard, it's an uneven surface on which the kids brush watercolor paint.

Making art is a messy job that requires skill and quickness. If the artist becomes distracted, the thick white goo will turn hard as a rock in no time. Volunteer Katy Truesdell soon realizes how difficult the project is when her ingredients refuse to leave the mixing bowl.

Truesdell, 15, has been with the camp for almost eight years and has been volunteering for five. Before she volunteered, she was in the Whistle Stop Players.

Grenneisen, from Canton, said she is involved because she loves kids. "They're all trouble makers," Grenneisen joked. Truesdell, from Plymouth, added, "The kids are all so good. I've never had a kid that was bad."

The kids seem to love the activities at the center. Half the troupe worked on painting landscapes with Grenneisen and Truesdell, while the other half worked on still-life pencil drawings with volunteer Maire Vint. Helping Vint is 15-year-old Brett Renfer, who is trying to keep the kids interested until lunch.

Vint, who is an art teacher, stepped in for a volunteer who quit. She said she loves the creativity the children have. "(Art) gives them something to be creative with. They pick things up and get inspired, and sometimes they don't stop."

Children sing while they work as the volunteers buzz around watching the creations — and creators — come to life.

Truesdell said she liked the way the kids learned. "I like how you can start off with nothing and teach them so much by Friday."

Tobin is dividing her time between Plymouth and Northville, where she is helping direct a play. "She pulls (creativity) out of every single child she comes across," Grenneisen said of Tobin. "She's got a 99-percent success rate, and the other 1 percent are just too young."

Tobin said the best part of her job is watching the kids graduate and come back to volunteer. "(The graduates) work so well with these young kids. They can reach them in ways an adult can't, because they're teenagers. They really outshine me, and I love it."

There are a few spots available for the August three-dimensional visual arts camp. For more information, call the center at (734) 416-1611.

Amendment would block Willow Run expansion

House Majority Floor Leader Bruce Patterson, R-Canton, has amended Senate Bill 231 (H-1), the Capital Outlay budget, to block state funding for the purpose of extending runways and expanding Willow Run Airport.

Patterson's amendment was adopted unanimously.

With the Patterson amendment, the pertinent part of the Capital Outlay budget now reads as follows:

"From the appropriations contained in part 1 for airport improvement programs, no funds shall be allocated for any runway extensions, taxiway extensions, or apron extensions at the Detroit-Willow Run airport. Further, it is the intent of the Legislature that no state funds shall be expended to improve or repair the airport including, but not limited to, anything approximating a tradeport as that term is defined in the International Tradeport Development Authority Act, 1994 PA 325, MCL 152.2521 to 152.2546."

Vandal cuts down tree

COP CALLS

A Canton resident filled a malicious destruction of property report with the Canton Police Department Monday after she noticed that a tree in her front yard had been cut down.

The woman reported that the tree was damaged because one of its two trunks had been cut off by an unknown person, according to the police report.

The woman suspected her neighbors, but didn't know who had done it for sure, according to the report.

Help yourself

Police looked into a reported unlawful entry call made by a Canton resident Sunday, when the victim returned home to discover that someone had helped themselves to a drink.

The victim told police she returned home from walking her dog to find two empty glasses on a table in her basement. She discovered that a cabinet door was open above the bar. Upon investigation, the complainant found a vodka bottle missing its cap, according to the police report.

The report speculated that a couple of golfers might have left the nearby golf course, entered the home and made themselves a drink.

Commission OKs rezoning for subdivision at Saltz-Ridge

BY CAROL MARSHALL
STAFF WRITER
cmarshall@oe.homecomm.net

A small piece of rural Canton will soon be the site of a 36-lot subdivision. The Canton Township Planning Commission voted 5-0 Monday to recommended approval for the rezoning of 25 acres at Saltz and Ridge.

The land was zoned for rural residential, which allows one home to every five acres. The rezoning increased the density to two homes per acre.

The township board will have final approval on the rezoning.

Even though the property could accommodate 50 homes, Danny Veri of Canton-based Livonia Builders said only 36 will likely be built there.

"That's what we would have come in with even if we could have got some smaller lots there. It's just an easier spot to build on half-acre lots."

The homes will be 3,000 square feet, at a cost of $350,000.

The company has also built the Sheffield Park condominiums on Cherry Hill between Lilley and Haggerty roads, and commissioners encouraged Veri to adhere to the same high quality standards.

"I think you've done a pretty good job in Canton," said commissioner Melissa McLaughlin, adding Veri should look at the development across the street in Antique Forest and Vintage Valley, and nearby Cherry Hill Village, for design themes.

Canton new home buyers have grown increasingly stylish and demand a better quality home, and will pay a high price, said Vic Gustafson, commission chairman.

"Everybody's really tired of looking at the same thing," he said. "It's really blandness across the United States."

League says name change should spur voter interest

BY BRAD KADRICH
STAFF WRITER
bkadrich@oe.homecomm.net

Hoping to expand their network of members and opportunities for its mission, the Livonia League of Women Voters has changed names.

After a unanimous vote of members at its annual meeting earlier this month, the league changed its name to League of Women Voters of Northwest Wayne County.

"With the name change, we hope to increase our membership," said the League's Paula Bowman. "More members means a greater ability to carry out our mission and provide service to the citizens in the communities we serve."

'More members means a greater ability to carry out our mission and provide service to the citizens in the communities we serve.'
Paula Bowman

The original Women Voters of Livonia was founded in 1960. According to Bowman, a Northville-Plymouth-Canton League, probably organized in the 1970s, folded in 1990. The League of Women Voters of Northwest Wayne County is the only league between Detroit and Ann Arbor on the east and west, and Oakland County and Dearborn on the north and south, Bowman said.

The league's mission is to "encourage the informed and active participation of citizens in government, work to increase understanding of major public policy issues and influence public policy through education and advocacy."

The league is active in helping conduct candidate forums, including the Observer's forum for city commission candidates scheduled for July 19 at the Plymouth District Library. The current board of directors is made up of members from Plymouth Township, Westland, Wayne, Livonia and Canton. About a third of the league's members live outside Livonia. Hence, the name change.

"Even before our name change we have provided, and will continue to provide, voter information to 10 communities," Bowman pointed out. Those communities include Canton Township, Garden City, Livonia, Northville, Northville Township, Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Redford Township, Wayne and Westland.

The work of the league is financed, Bowman said, by the dues of members and by contributions from citizens in the community. Membership is open to all citizens of voting age. For more information, call (734) 421-4420.

Hot dog!

Local MSU grad will travel USA by Wienermobile

BY CAROL MARSHALL
STAFF WRITER
cmarshall@oe.homecomm.net

Have bun, will travel: Joan Marquez underwent special training to learn to drive the Oscar Mayer Wienermobile.

Armed with a brand new bachelor's degree, plenty of enthusiasm, and a 27-foot wiener on wheels, Joan Marquez hit the highway.

Marquez is an official Oscar Mayer "hotdogger."

"I thought this would be a great opportunity to see the country," said Marquez, a 1997 Plymouth Salem High School graduate. After graduating from Michigan State University in May, she committed to a one-year assignment touring the western half of the country in the Oscar Mayer Wienermobile.

"I'm looking for kids who can sing their way to fame," she said.

Marquez will spend the summer and fall searching for young talent in the Hasta la Fama contest. She auditions kids between the ages of 4 and 10 who can perform the most creative and entertaining renditions of the Oscar Mayer Spanish jingle. The winner will earn $20,000 in college scholarships.

"Hot dogs are really big in the Hispanic community," she said.

Marquez will make her way to nearly every county in the western half of the United States. Marquez said her hectic schedule won't let her stay in one place too long. After completing her training at Hot Dog High, she and her partner last week fired up the Wienermobile and hit the road. She spent only two days in St. Louis before heading to Oklahoma City for a couple of days, then San Antonio, where she'll work for two weeks before driving to Los Angeles.

The job comes with a few challenges – navigating a 27-foot wiener-shaped truck through strange cities included. But Marquez isn't worried about that.

"I think the thing I'll have the hardest time with is the weather. I guess I got used to Michigan weather," she said.

"The thing I'm most excited about is the travel, the opportunity to give back, and to get to see smiling faces wherever I go," she said.

registering Canton historic buildings in the early 1980s, particularly in Cherry Hill Village, which is now a registered Michigan historic district. McLaughlin said.

"The district was nominated for the state registry then and was turned down in the 1980s," she said. "At that time the state was really focusing on downtowns and were looking over these little villages and hamlets."

Things have changed since then, and the old farm communities are now also viewed as treasures.

"The community of historical preservations started to turn their interests to the whole body of historical buildings as having value," McLaughlin said. "There was this awakening in the late 1980s."

What Canton has discovered as a result of the previous two surveys – in 1996 and 1999, the latter resulting in nine properties being accepted to the National Register early this year – was a rich history of Canton's earliest settlers.

It was in 1999 the commission discovered the truth about one of the village's oldest buildings.

The inn located in Cherry Hill Village was always thought to have been a stage coach stop.

"But that didn't make sense because it was too big," she said. It turned out the owner of the building was a hotelier from New York who built the inn on speculation that there would be a railroad running through Cherry Hill Village.

He later went bankrupt when the speculation turned out to be false.

"If there had been a train coming through there the whole complexion of Canton would have been different," McLaughlin said. "Instead, the village remained a sleepy little agricultural community." Further, the old inn is now considered to be one of the most historically significant buildings in Michigan.

"We had no idea it would turn out to be so significant. We only knew we valued it because it was ours," McLaughlin said. "Kind of like your children. You can think they're pretty cool, but someone else might not see them as anything special."

The information discovered by the surveys is cementing Canton's history and revealing the stories and character of the community's forefathers, according to McLaughlin.

"It's only by their numbers, by virtue of their spirit, grit and integrity they brought civilization to the community," she said. "We have to understand from where we came in order to appreciate who we are."

The Michigan Bureau of History has awarded $7,000 to Canton for the survey. Canton will pay the remaining $8,000 for the project.

mission still agreed that the structure was not ready for approval.

Commissioner Catherine Johnson pointed out that when every building looks the same it's hard to figure out where to go. "It's one of those situations where you hit three doors before you find the one you want."

She offered some encouragement to Linnell. "A lot of times when we start picking at the project it benefits (everyone) in the end."

Commissioner Ron Lieberman complimented the look of phase one. "They've got a lot of character. (Phase two) just doesn't look right. It looks like a flat barn-like thing with some doors on it."

Chairman Vic Gustafson talked at length about the commissions intentions to continue improving the look of Canton. He said the commission has raised the bar and expects new and interesting designs.

Gustafson also noted that some people have said they'll do something the board suggested and don't, adding that some developers don't live in Canton. "It's not up to speed. We want you to go back to the drawing board ... Think about what you would like in your community."

The commission recommended that Linnell not make phase two identical to the first phase, but suggested the developers look at the architecture in the neighborhood. "I would like to see it have a character compatible to those across the street but stronger and better and more beautiful," said McLaughlin, adding that it should be "comparable but not a continuum."

After the commission unanimously decided to table the vote, Linnell said the project will go back to the drawing board and come before the commission again in a few weeks.

"We'll take all their comments and concerns under consideration to hopefully find something they will embrace," Linnell said, adding that they plan to break ground in the fall and start renting out the units in the spring.

ELEANOR ROUSSEAU BALFOUR

Services for Eleanor R. Balfour, 87, were held June 23 at St. Anne's Church in Tecumseh, Ontario, Canada, with burial in Oakview Cemetery in Royal Oak.

Mrs. Balfour was born Dec. 4, 1913 in Windsor, Ontario, and died June 2 in Florida. She was the eldest of seven children, and helped raise her brothers and sisters. While spending several months in a hospital recovering from an automobile accident, she found her vocation in nursing, eventually graduating from the Ontario School of Nursing in London, Ontario. She met her husband, Harry C. Balfour, D.O., while working in a Detroit hospital. The couple established an eye, ear, nose and throat clinic in Detroit, started their family, and changed their residence to Plymouth in 1946. Mrs. Balfour became a naturalized American citizen, proudly voting in every election, including the infamous one in Florida's Palm Beach County.

As her parents had passed their love of classical music and opera to her, so did she to her own children and community. She was one of the founders of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra. She recalled that each week sponsors would volunteer to prepare and serve snacks to the musicians at the break in the weekly rehearsal. She was active in the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth, as a long-time member and officer of the Plymouth Women's Club, and enjoyed discussions with friends in her book club.

Following her husband's death in 1962, she returned to her profession and worked as a psychiatric nurse at Yorkwood Center of Ypsilanti State Hospital until she retired. In 1993 she moved to Hollywood, Fla., and more recently entered an assisted living facility in Tequesta, Fla.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Harry C. Balfour, D.O. and her companion of 21 years, Harry Bell, D.D.S.

Survivors include her daughter, Celia A. Balfour of Tucson, Ariz.; daughter, Cynthia B. Todd of Jupiter, Fla.; son, Douglas J. (Ann) Balfour, D.P.M. of Depere, Wisc.; grandchildren, Gail Blum-Erickson (John), Gordon D. Blum of Duluth, Minn., Jonathon B. Todd (Ilona) of Roanoke, Vir., David B. Todd of Napa, Cal., and Curtis Balfour of Mobile, Ala., and great-grandsons, Trenton J. Blum and Ian C. Erickson of Duluth, Minn.

EDWARD J. MEAGHER

Services for Edward J. Meagher, 69, of Canton were held June 30 from St. John Neumann Church. Burial was at Holy Sepulchre Cemetery.

Mr. Meagher was born Nov. 6, 1931 in Detroit and died June 27 in Ann Arbor. He was an auditor for Wayne County.

He was preceded in death by his granddaughter, Maeve Murray.

Survivors include daughters, Kathleen T. (Richard) Pilat, Maureen A. (Thomas) Murray, and Colleen M. (Vincent) Fedel; son, Michael J. (Lynn); and eight grandchildren.

Memorial contributions may be made to The Maeve Murray Memorial, c/o U of M-Save A Heart, 300 N. Ingalls, N14D06, Ann Arbor, MI 48109-0475.

Arrangements made by L.J. Griffin Funeral Home-Canton Chapel.

JOSHUA ESCH MITCHELL

Services for Joshua "Josh" Esch Mitchell, 25, of Northville were held June 24 from the Vermeulen Funeral Home, Plymouth.

Mt. Mitchell died with a fellow flight instructor from injuries sustained in the crash of an experimental airplane at the Ann Arbor Municipal Airport on June 21. He was born Nov. 22, 1975 in Philadelphia to William H. and Pamela E. Mitchell who now reside in Grand Rapids.

Mr. Mitchell always had a love for flying. He earned a private pilot's license, a commercial pilot's license, and finally became a commercial flight instructor. One of his greatest joys was teaching his father to fly.

His dreams were of flying around the world and experiencing great adventures with his wife, Adrienne, who grew up in Plymouth. They planned to settle in southeast Asia where Josh and Adrienne felt a deep connection to their cultures. Josh studied East Asian culture in college and traveled with his father to China, Japan, and Hong Kong.

In addition to his wife, survivors include his father and mother, William H. and Pamela E. Mitchell of Grand Rapids; father-in-law and mother-in-law, Norman (Susan) Auten of Plymouth; sisters, Tracy Watson Mitchell of Somerville, Maine; sister, Courtnay Sprague Mitchell of Grand Rapids; grandparents, Maurice (Maxine) Esch of McLean, Va.; grandparents, James G. (Dorothy) Mitchell; sister-in-law, Amber (Scott Grandinett) Auten of Livonia; aunts, Linda (David) Williams, Kimberly (Neil) Stott, and Carol (Charles) Stocking; and cousins, Matthew and Natalie Williams, Blair and Lindsay Stott, Andrew, Peter and Lisa Stocking.

Memorial contributions can be made to the Matthaei Botanical Gardens or the Joshua Mitchell Memorial Fund, c/o Vermeulen Funeral Home, 46401 W. Ann Arbor Road, Plymouth, MI 48170.

Say it with Flowers

by Steve Mansfield

BRIGHT AND CHEERFUL

Ask any child to draw a flower and four out of five will produce a brightly colored, daisy-shaped flower that closely resembles a gerbera. With over 200 varieties, gerberas offer an incredibly wide range of colors, including every color except blue. The bright colors automatically conjure up the sunny climate of their original habitat, Africa. Pink and orange go so well with the feelings evoked by late summer and autumn. There are also gerberas in pastel shades. For those with a more classical taste, there is a wide range of reds from which to choose. Gerberas also have a very trendy shape. Being uncomplicated single flowers on stems, they are entirely in line with the current minimalist trend.

What better way is there to bring cheer into your home or office than to deck the room in bright flowers? At HEIDE'S FLOWERS & GIFTS - we we would be happy to help you find the perfect bouquet or plant. We're located at 995 W. Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth, and you can call us Monday through Saturday, at 453-5140, or visit our website at www.heidesflowers.com. Look for our next article in two weeks.

HINT: Breeders have developed gerberas with many variants of their basic shape, from serrated petals to double flowers and extra-wide petals.

Man arrested in stand-off also facing Canton charges

BY KURT KUBAN
STAFF WRITER
kkuban@oe.homecomm.net

A Plymouth Township man was arrested June 25 after township police officers suspected him of holding a 43-year-old mentally limited woman against her will at his apartment.

Officers arrested 39-year-old Arnold Robert Fawley after they broke down his door with a battering ram. The woman, whose name is being withheld, was unhurt.

The incident began when the woman's 59-year-old mother, with whom she lives in Northville, told police that Fawley would not let her daughter leave his apartment. The mother told officers her daughter has the mental capacity of a child and has been on disability since the age of 18.

Around 11 p.m., officers went with the mother to the Heritage Apartment complex where Fawley lives. They waited outside the door while the mother called her daughter on a cellular phone.

Before officers had to break in, the door opened and the woman came out. Fawley immediately shut the door and began to pry the board against it, despite calls from the officers to come out.

Kidnapping charges against Fawley were dropped after police officials determined the mother's story to be "less than accurate," according to Lt. Robert Smith of the Plymouth Township Police Department.

"Based on the information the mother provided us, we thought we had a case of kidnapping and false imprisonment. The intent of the officers on the scene was to protect the woman. They acted properly and did a great job," Smith said.

"However, after further questioning, we determined her disability wasn't as bad as the mother led us to believe. She is a cognizant adult who is able to make her own decisions. We don't believe she was being held against her will."

However, Fawley had at least four outstanding warrants for unrelated incidents: two from Canton Township, one from Detroit, and another from the city of Plymouth.

Fawley also has a warrant for domestic abuse against the same woman from an incident last week. Police officers have been dispatched to Fawley's residence several times in the last couple months for domestic disputes with the woman, Smith said.

Humane Society offers summer pet care tips

As we enter the "dog-days" of summer, Michigan can expect to experience record heat. The Michigan Humane Society (MHS) would like to remind pet owners of the importance of keeping their animals comfortable and safe during the hot days ahead. Rather than placing animals at risk during periods of extreme heat, there are preventative measures owners can take to insure their pet's safety.

Never leave a pet alone inside a vehicle, even with the windows down. On an 85-degree day, the temperature inside a parked car can reach 120 degrees within a matter of minutes leaving your pet susceptible to heat stroke, and possibly even death.

Keep your pets as comfortable as possible. During these hot days an animal is much more likely to enjoy a cool spot on the kitchen tile or basement floor, rather than the sun soaked cement of a driveway.

Bring pets inside if at all possible. If animals must be left outdoors for any length of time, adequate shade and a fresh supply of drinking water is essential.

To report an animal left outdoors without proper provisions, please call the MHS Cruelty Hot line at (313) 872-3401.

Stewart may break ranks on redistricting

BY MIKE MALOTT
HOMETOWN NEWS SERVICE
mmalott@homecomm.net

As lawmakers voted to send their redistricting bill to conference committee Thursday, where a final version can be hammered out, one Republican representative said he might just attempt to derail the plan that has been on the fast track in Lansing.

Rep. John Stewart, R-Plymouth, said he may break ranks with his caucus over the way the district boundaries are drawn.

The loss of just two more Republican votes in the state House would doom the plan, which Democrats strongly oppose.

"Apparently there are several others who have raised objections and they said we better send this back to a conference committee," Stewart explained, although no other Republicans have stated publicly their objections to the GOP plan.

Stewart's immediate concern is the way the 20th House District has been drawn.

"I haven't found one person in my district who thinks this is good common sense to lump Northville, Plymouth together down a 14-mile dog leg to the city of Wayne. It is possibly even more winnable for me ... but this district, on its face, just looks bad. This would come back and haunt the Republican party. It would just look like gerrymandering."

He believes that shape violates the "compactness" standard, one of several criteria in the law for legislative district boundaries.

Patterson disagrees

"John Stewart is wrong," Rep. Bruce Patterson, R-Canton, said. "John Stewart's (district) is far more compact than any number of people around the state because 'compact' suggests to me that it is a certain size ... Compactness is not necessarily square. I would ask him to give you the definition of compactness."

"Compactness does not equal a 14-mile dog leg," Stewart responded.

Actually, according to apportionment laws passed last year, "compactness shall be determined by circumscribing each district within a circle of minimum radius and measuring the area ... inside the circle but not inside the district."

Stewart also noted that GOP designers split the communities of Trenton and Grosse Ile downriver. Democrats have pointed out that the 65th district in Jackson County meanders from Lenawee County to Eaton County.

Other problems

The 81st district in St. Clair County includes the north section of that county and a southern portion, but the sections are connected by only a sliver of land.

The new district boundaries for both the state House and Senate will go into effect in 2002 if lawmakers eventually settle on a plan in the once-a-decade process of reapportionment. The plan is contained in House Bill 4965 by Rep. Andrew Richner, R-Grosse Pointe Park.

Representatives adopted their districts last week. Senators added their districts into the bill Tuesday, June 26, in a strictly party-line vote.

Democrats have been vocal in their opposition to the plan, claiming Republicans are rushing it through.

"Republicans have again demonstrated that their guiding intent in this process has been to draw a politically gerrymandered plan to protect their own political self-interest," Rep. Gilda Jacobs, D-Huntington Woods, said. "Shamefully, the abuse of power by the Republicans in this process comes at a high cost to the people of the state of Michigan, who deserve to have a legitimate, representational system of government and a voice in the workings of it."

Critical of process

"It is wrong that the Republicans excluded the public out of the process. It is not known why the process was accelerated ... by the Republican leadership," Rep. Nancy Quarles, D-Southfield, said.

Patterson, on the other hand, said he is satisfied with the way the process is proceeding.

"It is a highly technical, very expertise-oriented discussion and you could have hearings from now to the general election date in 2002 and real people aren't going to be able to contribute to the discussion to make sure that there is an abiding to the legal standards unless they do an awful lot of research, legal research," Patterson said. "I have done an enormous amount of reading – cases, manuals, statutes" in preparation for redistricting, he said.

As drawn in the Senate, districts would include:

In western Wayne, Livonia, Westland, Wayne, Northville and Plymouth would be placed in the 6th Senatorial District. Canton would be placed with Van Buren and Romulus in the 8th District.

In Oakland, the 12th District would include Waterford, Pontiac and Rochester Hills, as well as Oakland, Addison and Oxford townships.

The 13th District would include Troy, Bloomfield Hills, Royal Oak, Madison Heights and Berkley. The 14th District would include from Oak Park to Hazel Park in southeast Oakland, as well as Southfield and Farmington/Farmington Hills.

The 15th District would include West Bloomfield, Novi and South Lyon, extending north to Rose and White Lake. Orion and Springfield would be part of the 29th district also with southern Genesee County.

In the House, districts as drawn would be:

In Western Wayne, Livonia, Northville, Plymouth and the City of Wayne would be drawn into one district. The 21st District would consist of Van Buren, Belleville and Canton. Westland, Garden City and Inkster would be drawn together in another district.

In Oakland, Rochester and Oakland Township would be drawn into one district. Another district would include townships from Addison to Holly, as well as Rose and Orion. Waterford, northern West Bloomfield and Orchard Lake would become the 43rd District.

Independence, Springfield, White Lake and Highland becomes the 44th. Milford would be included in a district with Brighton and Howell. Southern West Bloomfield and Commerce become the 39th.

Novi, Wixom and Lyon Township would be drawn together. Farmington and Farmington Hills get their own district. Pontiac and Auburn Hills would make another district. Southern Southfield gets its own district. Northern Southfield would be included with Birmingham, Bloomfield and Bloomfield Hills.

Lansing not moved by our funding problem

Officials from the Plymouth-Canton school district have been banging their heads on walls lately, trying to convince legislators – any legislator – something has to be done about public school funding in the wake of Proposal A or districts face financial ruin.

Superintendent Kathleen Booher and trustees Judy Mardigian and Steve Guile recently took their heads to Lansing, where Rep. Bruce Patterson, R-Canton, willingly provided an entreé to the latest wall – the School Aid and Department of Education Subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee.

For roughly 90 minutes, they pleaded their case to what appeared to be willing listeners. At the end of the hearing, Booher, et al, heard what they've been hearing all along:

"Good luck."

The hearing was allegedly about House Bill 4111, introduced by Patterson earlier this year in an effort to drum up support for raising the foundation grant for school districts that meet certain criteria.

At the moment, Plymouth-Canton is the only district that meets the criteria, a fact not lost on the committee members. Of course, growth in some districts could take them to the point, eventually, where they meet these criteria, but such growth is probably fairly distant.

The committee listened as Booher talked eloquently about how the district is having to do more with less – a cry being heard all over the state – and how, in perhaps two years, Plymouth-Canton will be operating from a considerable deficit if help is not forthcoming.

At the end of the hearing, the committee chose to do nothing with the bill, effectively killing it. Even had it passed, the bill as it stood wouldn't have helped much. It would have raised the district's grant to $9,000. But state law only allows the state to provide the first $7,000 or so; the district would have been responsible for the rest.

Rep. Pan Godchaux, R-Birmingham, asked whether the district could get a tax increase passed. Later that day, she floated a bill that would allow districts to go after "relief" taxation, something Proposal A doesn't allow at the moment.

But the district is already facing the probability of going out for a bond issue to get its buildings renovated. The opening of Discovery Middle School this year, Dodson Elementary next year and Plymouth High School the year after that has the district's financial posture doing a fair imitation of the picture of Dorian Gray – with the focus dimming with every outgoing dollar.

A bond issue and a tax question in relative succession would be a tough sell, even for someone as eloquent as Booher in a district as good as Plymouth-Canton's.

District officials knew their plight would fall on semi-deaf ears at this hearing; there simply isn't any real support for altering Proposal A. But, as Mardigian pointed out, they did get to talk to legislators and staffers, got a chance to put a face on what had been a faceless problem.

Patterson's bill was as good as dead before this hearing. He knew it; the district knew it. But the one thing for which Booher was grateful was Patterson's willingness to help bend some ears in Lansing – ears that weren't listening this time, but which might be open when the district comes calling again.

Misguided ruling leaves tough job for petitioners

It was about as clear an expression of voter will as there can be – 260,000 signatures on a petition drive that required just 151,000 to put Michigan's new concealed weapons law to a referendum.

But the Supreme Court found a way to keep that vote off the ballot. In its decision issued late last Friday, in a case known as the Michigan United Conservation Clubs vs. Secretary of State and the People Who Care About Kids committee, the court ruled 4-3 to keep the referendum off the ballot and allow the concealed weapons law to take effect.

The new "shall issue" CCW legislation became law in Michigan on Sunday.

Now, if the People Who Care About Kids committee members still want to have an election on the concealed weapons issue, they'll have to launch yet another petition drive and collect another 242,000 signatures in 180 days to put "initiative legislation" on the ballot.

It would be easy to get discouraged. Running a petition drive is no small amount of work, and to have the court toss it all out, when there is little question the legislature was playing games when it tacked on a $1 million appropriation just to block a vote, must be disheartening.

Still, the committee members promise they'll come back with another petition drive. And we hope they do. There is much that needs to be repaired in the CCW law. No, it wasn't all bad and much is worth keeping. But a long list of changes is needed, too.

The positive side of this is that committee members can now draft "initiative legislation" in their petition to fine-tune the CCW law, rather than simply tossing it out as a referendum would have.

What lawmakers did was change the concealed weapons law from "may issue" to "shall issue." Where county gun boards previously had discretion, the legislature said they must issue permits as long as an applicant met certain criteria. The list of requirements includes being age 21, having a clean record, having no history of mental illness and that applicants take the required training course.

What needs to be fixed in the law includes:

■ Applicants should also be required to "show a need" to carry a concealed weapon. Gun boards in the past typically required that, but there was no agreement on what constituted "a need."

Debate over what was considered a legitimate need to carry a weapon is part of what led to this debate in the first place. Petition authors can address that directly by specifying what constitutes a "need."

If that "showing of need" is added, the "shall issue" wording of the law would make more sense. The shall issue language could be left in the law.

The Michigan Supreme Court's decision on the CCW law was a bad one. But there is an opportunity in it for state voters.

■ The so-called "village idiot clause" needs to be revised. This is a catchall provision in the new law that allows gun boards to reject permits for those who would present a danger to themselves or others, but don't have a criminal history or a background of mental illness. The problem is that, on appeal, the gun board must have "clear and convincing evidence" of that danger to show to the court. The applicant should be able to show evidence that he or she is not a danger.

■ The time period given to gun boards to conduct background checks on applicants is seriously too short. Set in the new law at 30 days, it is half to one third the time given gun boards in other states.

■ Lawmakers' ruled out applicants with a history of mental illness, but there is no good way for gun boards to check on that history. The petition should require the state to create some system for checking on the mental background of applicants.

The court's decision was a bad one. But there is an opportunity in it for Michigan voters.

If petition authors consider carefully their petition wording when they rewrite it, they have an opportunity to vastly improve the new law, not just override it.

■ Contract is too sweet

Well this article ("Schools pop $1.5 M Coke deal," Canton Observer, July 1) hit a nerve. It amazes me that the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools would allow these machines to be placed in their buildings and then plan on using the money to educate the students against drinking these beverages!

Fruitopia and PowerAde are nothing more than corn syrup, artificial flavoring and enough juice to allow them to be called a "fruit drink." Fruit drink is not fruit juice.

I understand the need for schools to find some additional funding, but I would like to see a breakdown on exactly how this money is being spent. I see nothing in your article that alludes to scholarships. I am aware that other districts use the money to create Coke scholarships.

The Coca Cola company is well aware of the importance of brand loyalty at a young age. And will reap the benefits for years and years after these children graduate. The caffeine/sugar addiction that our schools are condoning will indeed follow many of these teens throughout their lives.

I have worked in the dental field for over 20 years and have seen a specific type of decay which develops from drinking sugar laden beverages. The slang term we use is called "Coke decay." The real term is cervical decay (decay which forms at the gum line). This decay is formed by sugar drinks that pool against the gum line and tooth and eat away at the enamel surface. This problem is compounded in children that wear braces.

The money that is placed in these machines is placed there by our children. This money ultimately comes out of the parents' pockets. I see this as yet another form of taxation. Why not then funnel every cent back directly to the students in the form of scholarships? Then hopefully they will become well educated enough to get a job good enough to pay their dental bills!

■ Wrong again

Well he's at it again. Just a few months after raising such a hue and cry about the CCW law supposedly allowing guns to be carried into courtrooms, Wayne County Prosecutor Mike Duggan is now claiming that the new law will allow people to carry guns into airports.

This claim is as false as his claim about CCW holders being allowed to carry guns into court as there are already laws which address this situation. Current federal law prohibits weapons of any kind on aircraft or in "sterile" areas of airports – those areas where people board or service aircraft.

The Federal Aviation Administration also requires airports to provide safe environments for all passengers and employees and gives them broad authority to bar weapons from their terminals and other areas.

As a result of these laws, airports in Michigan already can and do bar people from carrying concealed weapons on airport property and prosecutions are made under more stringent federal laws when the situations warrant it.

This is all, to quote Shakespeare, "Much ado about nothing." Mr. Duggan should be ashamed of himself for once again trying to create a sense of panic by presenting false or misleading information. Residents of Wayne County have a right to expect a lot more honesty from their elected prosecutor than it appears that they're getting.

And, of course, we at Michigan Coalition for Responsible Gun Owners have to point out once again that CCW holders are not a problem for law enforcement. Not in the other 32 "shall-issue" states or in the counties in Michigan which already issue CCWs.

It makes no sense to bar these people from any public place when the lawbreakers in our society are the real problem and can be expected to ignore these laws or use them to their advantage and prey on the rest of us in these areas with the knowledge that their intended victims will not be armed and able to resist.

■ Lions say thanks

A huge roar of success was heard all over the community June 24 as the Canton Lions Club hosted its first pancake breakfast at Heritage Park during Canton's 10th annual Liberty Fest.

By the reaction of the crowd of over 1,000, the $5 breakfast consisting of pancakes, ham, eggs, sausage and beverages was delicious, generous and served piping hot.

The event was held as the Canton Lions Club's primary fund-raiser of the year. According to Bob Boyer, club president, the growth of club membership led to the Lions' taking over the breakfast this year. Boyer said the fund-raiser gives 100 percent of the proceeds back to the community to assist hundreds of Canton residents with their vision related needs."

The Canton Lions Club would like to thank the 95 Placemat Recognition sponsors including Boyer's Meat Processing, Blackwell Ford and Modern Insurance Agency. The club would also like to extend its appreciation to the club members and Friends of the Canton Lions Club, whose hard work made an event of this magnitude possible.

During the event, several door prizes were awarded, thanks to the generosity of the following businesses: Adult Air Swing donated by Outdoor Fun Store; Nokia cell phone donated by Boyer's Meat Processing; pumpkin donated by Bordine's Farm Market; basket of goodies donated by Boyer's Meat Processing and a $30 gift certificate donated by Max and Erma's Restaurant, Canton.

At its June general meeting, the club unanimously voted to host the Lions Club Pancake Breakfast next year on Sunday, June 23,as part of the Liberty Fest activities. For information on membership in the Canton Lions Club, call Nancy Williams at (734) 207-0212.

■ Diatribe was extreme

Tim Richard is certainly entitled to his opinion (Observer column, June 28). And that along with his obvious loathing for organized religion is why he will hide behind the First Amendment while it suits him.

His article was palatable and reasonable up until the very end. And that's where Richard lost my respect.

Near the end of his diatribe, Richard refers to the so-called religious right: "After years of trumpeting that government was hostile to religion, it found a case to support its view. But you have to expect they'll be back. They have lots of hate in their hearts, and lots of lawyers, and they'll file lots of cases."

Certainly those who are pro-life, who want religious values practiced in their homes and taught to their children are at odds with those who support abortion, who would not want prayer or even a moment of silence respected in school. But, I hardly think that anyone who considers themselves Christian, Muslim, Jewish or of another faith that believes in a higher being is "hateful."

Hate is very strong word used by little children and adults who act as such. Hate is something that can never be taken away and that divides people and countries. And, the world has enough of that already. Mr. Richard seems very much at ease with that word.

It's real easy to label people or groups as right or left. Perhaps Tim Richard needs some new material. As I read the article, the only person that came off as "hateful" was Tim Richard himself.

And although I disagree with him and his views, and would probably be labeled by Mr. Richard as "right," I don't hate him.

I wonder, could he say the same about himself?

■ Bad rap

I think Ford Motor and Firestone are taking a bad rap. The reason I think so is because I drive M-14 to US-23 south. It is a zoo.

I like to go 60 to 65 mph until there are several trucks ahead and then I step it up to 70 mph. By the time I pass six or more trucks, I have a back-up from 10-15 SUV's climbing down my rear end. When they pass me, they are doing 80 to over 90 mph.

No one pays any attention to the speed limit any more, and when a light turns yellow, it doesn't mean stop if you can stop safely, it means step on the gas. I haven't seen six State Police on the highways in six months.

People driving the state-owned cars are no example of driving laws either. They drive between 75 and 80, so I guess no one cares anymore.

Get out of my way, I'm in a hurry.

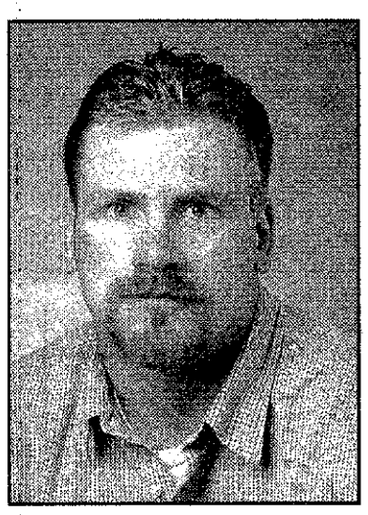
Rouge cleanup effort remains frustrating, exhilarating event

I just couldn't believe my eyes.

Just a day after I led a group of 43 volunteers on a June 23 cleanup effort of the Rouge River in the city of Wayne, one of the nearly three-dozen shopping carts we had yanked from the river already found its way back in.

It was such a discouraging sight.

How could somebody throw the thing back in the river after we had worked so hard? The four hours of sweat and toil we expended the previous day suddenly seemed like a waste of time and energy.



Kurt Kuban

But as I stood there shaking my head in disgust, I realized the thoughtless action of a single individual could not overshadow the hard work and determination of 43 people, from all walks of life, who gathered for Rouge Rescue and decided to take ownership of their river.

Our Rouge Rescue site was on a small portion of the Lower Rouge, which meanders its way through Canton Township and the entire length of Wayne before heading down to Dearborn where it meets the main branch and eventually flows out to the Detroit River.

Back in April when I decided to act as Wayne's Rouge Rescue (now known as River Day) coordinator, I really had no idea who might show up or what to expect. Although the city participated in some of the original Rouge Rescues, it hadn't sponsored a site since the early 1990s.

As a resident of Wayne, I was curious and even a little upset the city wasn't participating in the annual event, which started in 1987. When I called city officials and asked why, they asked me if I would coordinate the effort. Although I had no experience in such endeavors, I agreed to do it, largely because it gave me the opportunity to participate in a cause I believe in.

During the four hours we battled poison ivy and a throng of mosquitoes, we pulled a small mountain of trash from the river. The long list included three bicycles, several bed mattresses, a couch, construction signs, a couple steel drums, a television, wood pallets, a Coke machine and more than 40 bags of trash. And of course there were the 32 shopping carts.

Unquestionably, we were firsthand observers to the years of degradation that nearly choked the river to death.

The Rouge River watershed spans 467-square miles, from Rochester Hills and Orchard Lake down to the townships of Salem and Ypsilanti and east to the Detroit River. Nearly 1.5 million people and one of the world's greatest industrial centers call the area home. In this highly urbanized landscape, the many branches of the Rouge and the surrounding woodlands are a series of green fingers that still cling to the natural roots of our area.

For a century, we viewed the Rouge as nothing more than an open sewer. It was something to be avoided. It absorbed the poisoned runoff from our streets, as well as sewage overflows during heavy rainfalls and chemical waste from industrial facilities.

Despite the fact we have a long way to go, we have made major strides in the last decade. Because of projects like the federally-funded Rouge River Wet Weather Demonstration Project, which has nearly eliminated sewage overflows, the water quality has improved dramatically in many areas of the watershed. Environmental researchers are finding aquatic life thriving in parts of the river that, up until recently, were stagnant and dead.

With these improvements, perceptions of the Rouge have changed. Communities throughout the watershed, which includes most of the Observer & Eccentric readership area, are looking at ways of turning the river back into a recreational resource.

We all have a stake in this effort. The 43 people who came out to help me all seemed to understand that fact. And our site was only one of 24 throughout the watershed that participated this year. Canton alone had more than 200 volunteers.

I know it is too optimistic or naive to think we can ever convince every single person to respect the Rouge. There will never be a shortage of derelicts who get thrills from pushing a shopping cart down its banks. But we can't let that threat impede our determination to save this river system or deter us from doing what is right.

If we continue our efforts, we will be the generation that brought the Rouge back to life. That will be our legacy.

Decades from now, when our grandchildren are safely able to fish from the banks, hike the trails, or even swim in the Rouge, and in the process get a brief reprieve from the sprawling urban landscape, they will thank us.

Armed with such aspirations, a single shopping cart seems such a simple thing to remove from the river.

State justices' legal gymnastics savage constitution

The problem with the Michigan Supreme Court's literalist interpretation of the state Constitution is that it supposes the framers back in 1963 would have, or even could have, anticipated and protected against every devious little scheme legislators might hatch over the next 40 years to twist its wording around to frustrate its meaning and intent.

More likely, its authors assumed the people of this state would want to continue operating as a representative democracy, taking guidance from voters when their will was clearly expressed ... and that the Supreme Court would assist in reaching that goal.

Instead, Justices Clifford Taylor, Maura Corrigan, Stephen Markman and Robert Young recently did 45 pages worth of mental gymnastics to work their way around to the idea that the people of Michigan must have intended to leave a gaping loophole in the state Constitution.

Yes, we reserved for ourselves the right of referendum so we could "approve or reject laws enacted by the legislature." But because when we ratified the constitution, we also accepted wording that exempted "acts making appropriations" from the power of referendum, the court concluded we must have intended to let lawmakers frustrate petition drives by simply tacking a few dollars worth of spending on to any bill.

That's ludicrous. It simply makes no sense.

Yet it is exactly the position taken by those four justices in the case of Michigan United Conservation Clubs vs. Secretary of State and the People Who Care About Kids committee. The decision was issued late last Friday, allowing the legislature's new concealed weapons law to go into effect Sunday and tossing out the referendum petitions.

The case was not about whether Michigan should implement the "shall issue" CCW law approved last year. Nor was it about whether circulators had enough signatures to call for a vote.

It was about whether legislators could use this little constitutional contradiction to "evade a referendum." One lawmaker, an author of the final CCW bill, eventually even admitted that was the reason for adding the spending provision to the bill in conference committee at the 11th hour.

But that doesn't matter, Justice Corrigan said. She dismissed the entire question of a legislative subterfuge by concluding, "The argument is misplaced."

This wording in the constitution has given Michigan residents problems before. Justices cited a case from 1939 on the same issue. Back then, the court didn't let lawmakers get away with it and ordered the referendum election to proceed.

Rather than follow the precedent, Justice Young used a bizarre twist of logic to conclude that voters intended to leave the loophole there because they failed to fix that wording when they rewrote the Constitution 24 years later.

Generally, you don't fix legal wording when the court has interpreted it correctly the first time.

But Young concluded the people were aware lawmakers might try this trick and "did not seek to change the constitutional referral language to preclude the Legislature from capriciously exercising its power of appropriation."

(Don't take my word for it. You can read the tortured logic for yourself. The opinion is posted on the Internet at http://courtofappeals. mijud. net/ds. htm . The docket number is 119274.)

The sad part is that now the members of People Who Care About Kids will have to circulate another petition – after they just got done with the Herculean task of collecting 260,000 signatures the first time around – if they still want to put the question on the ballot. They'll have to launch a second petition drive for "initiative legislation." Members of the committee have already said they will do exactly that.

Sadder still is that the decision demands yet a third petition drive. If the people of Michigan want to win back their right of referendum, they'll have to do it through a constitutional amendment petition drive.

Now that these four justices have effectively crossed out voters' right of referendum, some dedicated public advocates are going to have to circulate petitions for an amendment to repair the savage damage done to our Constitution.

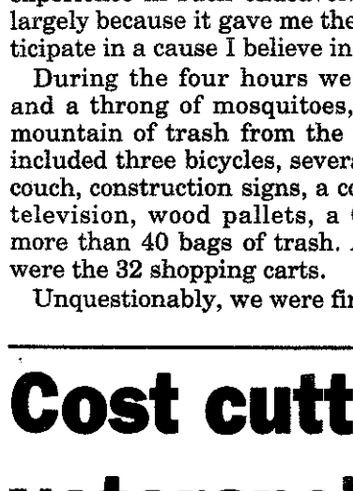
Cost cutting measure threatens veterans' mental health care

The Mental Health Association in Michigan is deeply concerned about veterans with mental disorders in this part of the country becoming victims of cost-cutting measures that threaten patient safety. The Veterans Administration in portions of Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and Ohio belong to region No. 11 of the Veterans Integrated Service Network (VISN), which is testing a "fail-first" policy in the treatment of schizophrenia that could be adopted nationally.



Mark Reinstein

Schizophrenia is a severe and debilitating disease that affects about 1 percent of the population, including tens of thousands of veterans. Without proper treatment, its victims are often unable to function in society. They may suffer from delusions and hallucinations. They may not be able to hold jobs or maintain social relationships. They may wind up homeless and on the street or become incarcerated in the justice system.

"Fail-first" policies can have dangerous consequences for persons with severe psychiatric disorders. Different individuals may react differently to the same drug, and each medication carries unusual potential side effects which have to be weighed by physicians, patients and their families.

Limiting the choices available to doctors and service recipients is unsafe, possibly forcing a veteran to take ineffective medications for an extended period of time.

We know that VISN-11 officials are honorable individuals who don't want to bring harm to their clients.

However, when procedures like "fail-first" and prior authorization are invoked to cut costs, it is impossible to construct "perfect" guidelines to assure no compromise in patient care.

We are also concerned about veterans in our part of the country facing pharmaceutical access restrictions not encountered in many other VISN regions. (It is our understanding that the VISN-11 approach is only being seen in California at present.) When the men and women of our armed forces fulfilled their service, it was on behalf of their country, not the state they came from or the state to which they one day might have relocated.

■ Veterans with schizophrenia already face a daunting fight for their souls. They shouldn't face another battle to have open access to a full range of medication options – and the quality health care they deserve.

It is unacceptable that a veteran and his/her doctor at the Iron Mountain VA Medical Center (in VISN-12) may have open access to all antipsychotic drugs, while doctors of veterans in Michigan's lower peninsula (VISN-11) must work through a specific list of medications and those must fail before the doctor can prescribe the one that may have been most appropriate in the first place.

Veterans with schizophrenia already face a daunting fight for their souls. They shouldn't face another battle to have open access to a full range of medication options – and the quality health care they deserve.

On behalf of the membership of the Mental Health Association in Michigan (the state's oldest advocacy organization for persons experiencing mental disorders), we urge you to write the VA, your U.S. senators and your congressperson, and ask them to halt this practice in Michigan and to not implement this policy nationally until the matter has been further and better studied.

Veterans who have served their country deserve a fair shake.

Persons experiencing mental disorders deserve a fair shake. Let's help them get it.

Opponents to new gun law will start initiative drive

HOMETOWN NEWS SERVICE
mmalott@homecomm.net

The Michigan Supreme Court ruled Friday afternoon, in a split 4-3 decision, to uphold the state's new "shall issue" concealed weapons law.

In doing so, the court's action allowed the law to take effect this past Sunday as scheduled and eliminates any possibility of a referendum election in 2002.

The People Who Care About Kids Committee, the group that gathered signatures to put the law to a vote, immediately promised to launch a second petition drive for an initiative to rewrite that law.

"This issue will be on the ballot for November 2002," David Fink, Oakland County coordinator for the committee, said.

In a written statement, Wayne County Prosecutor Michael Duggan called the decision outrageous.

"Michigan's three branches of government have joined together and stolen the people's constitutional right to vote," Duggan said. "We expected a political decision and that is just what we got. Today four Supreme Court justices took away the right of four million."

Duggan said that starting Aug. 3, People Who Care About Kids will initiate a petition drive on an initiative.

Supreme Court justices concluded that a $1 million appropriation added to the bill protected it from referendum. Supreme Court Justices Clifford Taylor, Maura Corrigan, Robert Young and Stephen Markman concurred in that ruling. Justices Michael Cavanagh, Elizabeth Weaver and Marilyn Kelly dissented.

■ 'This Court has repeatedly held that courts must not be concerned with the alleged motives of a legislative body in enacting a law, but only with the end result – the actual language of the legislation.'

Justice Maura Corrigan
Michigan Supreme Court

The $1 million appropriation was tacked on to the bill in conference committee last December. Critics charged its only purpose was to evade a challenge at the ballot box.

Corrigan took up that point directly. "This argument is misplaced," she stated. "This Court has repeatedly held that courts must not be concerned with the alleged motives of a legislative body in enacting a law, but only with the end result – the actual language of the legislation."

In dissenting, Justice Kelly wrote that the majority ruling would be a "disembowelment of the public's constitutionally guaranteed right to referendum."

Fink said not only did the ruling put the CCW law into effect, it "eviscerated the people's right to referendum. If legislators want to take away our right to referendum, all they have to do now is tack on an irrelevant appropriation."

The ruling allowed the new "shall issue" CCW law to take effect Sunday. Applications for permits to carry concealed weapons were expected to be available Monday. The law requires county gun boards to issue permits as long as applicants meet certain requirements, including that they are over 21, have a clean record, have no history of mental illness, and have received the proper training. The law does create gun-free zones, including schools, churches, daycares and sports arenas.

Fink said the initiative, which will require collection of 242,000 signatures in 180 days, will seek to revamp the law, not simply overturn it, keeping improvements while tossing out the shall issue standard.

Education coverage recognized

The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers were well represented during the recent Tri-County Alliance Print Awards Breakfast at the Golightly Career & Technical Center in Detroit.

Several editors and reporters won Golden Apple Awards or certificates for excellence in public education reporting and editorial writing.

The awards were given by education representatives from Oakland, Wayne and Macomb counties. Each county awarded its own Golden Apple Awards, giving out plaques and certificates for winning entries.

A number of Observer & Eccentric editors and reporters also accepted the President's Award on behalf of Philip Power, chairman of HomeTown Communications, the company that owns the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

Wayne County:

Wayne County RESA presented Golden Apple Awards to Brad Kadrich, editor of the Plymouth Observer, and to Tedd Schneider, editor of the Canton Observer.

Certificates were presented to the following reporters: Hugh Gallagher, The Observer Newspapers, reporting excellence in public education; Julie Brown, Westland Observer, editorial excellence; Tony Bruscato, Plymouth Observer, excellence in reporting; Larry O'Connor, Livonia Observer, excellence in reporting; and Sue Mason, Garden City Observer, excellence in reporting.

Oakland County:

The West Bloomfield Eccentric received a plaque for reporting excellence in public education, based on various articles pertaining to school issues.

Receiving a certificate in reporting excellence was West Bloomfield Eccentric reporter Dan West. Susan Tauber, Mary Iacobelli, Debra Pascoe, Annette Kingsbury and Carolyn Walker, all from the Eccentric newspapers, were also honored.

Oakland Schools presented a Golden Apple Award to Farmington Observer reporter Tim Smith for his classroom series, "Today's Lesson." The Farmington Observer also received a nominating certificate for various other education articles.

Certificates were presented to the Eccentric for "Students embrace MLK legacy" and to the Troy Eccentric for "Pro-voucher forces attempt to strangle debate on proposal."

The King reigns July 14-15

BY CARA PLOWMAN
STAFF WRITER
cplowman@oe.homecomm.net

Break out the blue suede shoes, sequin white jump suits and 1950s memorabilia as ElvisFest invades Depot Town, near Ypsilanti, July 14-15, for a jam-packed weekend to honor the King, Elvis Presley.

Frog Island park in Depot Town will be transformed into a mini-Graceland. A full line-up of Elvis tribute bands will get all shook up as they cover some of Elvis' greatest hit songs.

Impersonator Irv Cass will be on hand as the master of ceremonies on the Frog Island stage. The festival will take guests back to the '50s with its hot rod cars and Elvis movies showing throughout the two-day adventure. Vendors and collectors will gather to show off their goods and add to their Elvis amassment.

Origin

This is the second year the event has been held in Michigan. Jerry French started the event last year with a business partner, and it was so successful that he started planning another one in January.

French currently chairs the oversight committee for the festival and is also the events/ vendor coordinator. Ten people are organizing this year's event and there are 80 volunteers.

Last year, the festival lasted only one day, but over 15,000 people came out to Depot Town.

French got the idea from a news story he saw about a similar festival in Montana. Even though he wasn't a big fan of Elvis, French saw how much fun people were having in Montana and decided to hold his own in Michigan.

Tribute artists

"We have tribute artists coming from all over North America," French said. "These guys are recognized in their field. They're all very good."

Shocked at the wide range of Elvis fans, French said he can't believe how popular the King is, even today.

"Everybody likes a little bit of Elvis. He still hasn't died in the public eye."

Tracy Briggs, director of the ElvisFest said people shouldn't worry that only real, hard-core King fans will be there.

"You're not going to be in the throng of wackos," said Briggs, who has been involved in the ElvisFest for two years. "You are going to run into guys walking around in jump suits."

STAFF PHOTOS BY PAUL HURSCHMANN

Impersonator: Sherman Arnold and his band will be performing at ElvisFest.

Portrait of a king

One of the tribute artists this year, Sherman Arnold, has been impersonating the King since 1956 when he was just 16 years old.

Arnold considers himself among the first people to ever impersonate the singer.

"Elvis was quite a phenomenon," said Arnold, whose tribute band, Interstate II, will play at the festival. Unable to decide, he said, "I have about 20 favorite (Elvis) songs."

Arnold's band plays about 140 shows a year, he said, and begins each show with about 45 minutes of Elvis tunes. The band also plays music by other artists and from other eras.

In a wispy Elvis-like voice, Arnold traced his Elvis-filled life back to his childhood and the first time he heard the music. Almost 35 years later, Arnold was inducted into the Elvis Presley International Impersonators Association Hall of Fame, in 1991, in Chicago, an honor any impersonator would love on his resume.

Arnold, who is from Taylor, is a spitting image of Elvis, even at the age of 61. His North Carolina upbringing gave him a slightly southern accent, and the pictures of him on his fan club Web site expose an uncanny resemblance to the rock 'n' roll pioneer. But Arnold insists, don't call him "Elvis" because there was only one King. "If you weren't born with the name it's not yours to use."

Briggs saw her first tribute band at last year's festival and was surprised. "I guess I was amazed that there are so many people who dedicate their lives to Elvis ... These guys aren't trying to be Elvis, they're trying to pay tribute (to him)."

Something for everyone

Even if you're not a fan of Elvis, French assures that the event is for everyone.

Near the main stage, a children's fair will be set up for parents and kids under 11. From 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. both days, the Children's Fantasy Fair will have mazes, magic shows, art and story telling just for kids.

For all ages, the festival will have amateur contests on a second stage for aspiring wannabes and Elvis-only karaoke. Prizes will be given out for the best Elvis look-a-like costume and the person with the best '50s-style costume.

"Last year was great," Arnold said of the 2000 ElvisFest which was also held in Depot Town. "It blew everybody's mind... It's just like a state fair but with Elvis."

French retained permission from Graceland estate to hold the event and use Elvis' image, which will add to the overall authenticity of the event.

A number of items will be raffled off, such as a trip for two to Graceland, a Corvette and a Harley Davidson motorcycle. All ticket sales and raffle profits will go to the Elvis Presley Foundation and Depot Town, a non-profit organization.

French added that he couldn't believe how excited the audience got during the shows at last year's ElvisFest. "The women from six to 60 were charging the stage," he said, adding that Arnold's band is not to be missed.

"This is the most famous man in the world," French said.

Elvis Fest

When: From 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday, July 14 and 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Sunday, July 15.
Where: Frog Island park in Ypsilanti's Depot Town off I-94 exit 183 on Cross Street at Huron.
Tickets: $5 a day, that includes access to the Frog Island stage, the second stage and the children's fair. Admission to the car show is $2. No charge for children under 10. Tickets will be available at the gate. Remember to dig up your '50s garb before you head out to the festival. Dressing-up is encouraged. Detroit native turns hobby into second career

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER
skowalski@oe.homecomm.net

Author David Poremba wore a flashy tie featuring Detroit landmarks and hot spots during a launch party for his book, Detroit: A Motor City History, last week at the Detroit Public Library.

Pictured in multi-colors were the Hockeytown Cafe, Fox Theatre and Renaissance Center, along with the Spirit of Detroit statue in front of the city council building.

"I'm known for ties," Poremba said. "The Arcadia (Publishing) people saw it on me (at a reception) in Chicago and asked me for a repeat performance."

Nice fashion statement but anyone can buy a tie to fit the occasion.

It's his physical ties to the Motor City that make him the perfect person to pitch a book on Detroit's 300th anniversary.

A lifelong Detroit-area resident, the 48-year-old Poremba saw the city through many eras, including the turbulent race riots of the 1960s. Poremba was raised in Detroit and graduated from Redford Bishop Borgess. He's also lived in Redford and Dearborn and currently resides in Westland, his home for the last nine years, with wife Kathleen.

"It was a scary period (the 1960s)," he remembers. "A decade for change. On the other hand sometimes you have to tear apart something so it can build itself correctly."

A U.S. Army veteran, he continued his foreign relations when he returned, working 11 years as a toll collector at the Ambassador Bridge, which connects Detroit and Windsor. The job involved a little psychology to go with a view of the skyscrapers on each side of the Detroit River.

"I pulled five (people) off the railings," he said, proudly remembering the suicide attempts he stopped.

Always a fan of literature, he gained an interest in writing over the last 12 years while working at the Detroit Public Library, where he currently manages the Burton Historical Collection.

The career move seemed appropriate, he said.

"I was a reader and possessor of books so I said, 'Why not work at the library?' " said Poremba. "And it was always my goal to publish a book."

Goal accomplished, times seven.

For someone with no formal writing background, unless you count the papers he typed in school, Poremba puts out books almost in assembly-line fashion. In three years, he has authored seven books, all on Detroit history, including six through Arcadia, publishers of regional and local interest books.

His job lends him access, with a copyright fee, to published pictures of major events in Detroit history. Since pictures can say a thousand words, that's usually half the battle in book publishing, isn't it?

Poremba said he hasn't gotten rich from a second career.

"They're steady sellers but I've still got my day job," Poremba said.

Poremba is a Detroit sports fan and it's evident in that three of his previous works published by Arcadia are sports related: Baseball: The American League; Baseball in Detroit 1886-1968; and Detroit: City of Champions.

Current Detroit sports fans, who labor through mediocre seasons in three of the four major sports, must think the latter book belongs on the fiction shelf.

Among his other works are Detroit 1860-1890 and Detroit 1930-1969.

His latest release, which has more than 100 illustrations among 18 chapters and 160 pages, is his "most narrative," he said.

"I knew Detroit was coming up on its 300th year and I knew where the photos were, so I presented the proposal and Arcadia gave me the green light," Poremba said.

Poremba's book, Detroit: A Motor City History, is available at Borders, Barnes & Noble and Walden books stores for $29.99.

■ Once again, the Detroit Symphony Orchestra is bringing the classics to the Meadow Brook Music Festival in Rochester Hills for a five-week concert series July 13 through Aug. 12.

Pack the champagne glasses, gourmet salad, a loaf of French bread and a blanket and get ready to enjoy the sounds of the DSO under the Michigan sky.

Once again, the Detroit Symphony Orchestra is bringing the classics to the Meadow Brook Music Festival in Rochester Hills for a five-week concert series July 13 through Aug. 12.

If there's no time to pack a snack, enjoy the symphony with the upscale picnic food available at the theatre.

This year's musical highlights include the debut of several new classical artists plus former member of the pop group Heart, and current solo artist, Nancy Wilson.

Also new this year will be all-Beethoven, all-Mozart and all-Tchaikovsky concerts; and the debut of Puerto Rican conductor Giancarlo Guerrero. Tickets are currently on sale for all the shows.

Fifteen different programs will be performed by the DSO including Friday night Light Classics, geared toward families and followed by fireworks. Saturdays will feature traditional classics with guest artists and debuts. Sundays are the Pops performances with music form Broadway, Hollywood and the Big Band era.

New DSO Resident Conductor Thomas Wilkins will lead the first weekend of the concerts plus conductors Daniel Hege, Emmanuel Villaume and Bernard Labadie will appear on other nights. Finnish Violinist Pekka Kuusistro and Pianist Andrew von Oeyen will also debut.

This year's schedule:

■ Friday, July 13 , 8 p.m., American Fanfare — incorporates American themes like The Cowboys Overture. DSO Principal Timpanist Brian Jones will make his solo debut in a concerto titled Harmonic Rhythm by composer Russell Peck. Other highlights: George Gershwin's An American in Paris. Conductor, Thomas Wilkins.

■ Saturday, July 14, 8 p.m., New World Symphony — including Dvorak's Symphony No. 9 From the New World. Conductor, Thomas Wilkins; Violin, Pekka Kuusisto.

■ Sunday, July 15 at 7:30 p.m. An Evening of Rodgers and Hammerstein — Performed will be Sound of Music, South Pacific, The Kind and I, Oklahoma and more. Conductor, Thomas Wilkins; Soprano, Tamra Hayden; Tenor, Craig Schulman; Baritone, Philip Hernandez.

■ Friday July 20, 8 p.m. Symphonic Blockbusters — Mozart's Overture to The Marriage of Figaro, Brahms' Hungarian Dance No. 5, Bizet's L'Arlsienne Suite No. 2, Elgar's Cello Concerto. Conductor, Daniel Hege; Cello, Alisa Weilerstein.

■ Saturday, July 21 at 8 p.m. Carmina Burana — Haydn's Symphony No. 5 and Orff's Carmina Burana. Conductor, Daniel Hege; Soprano, JoAnna Mongiardo; Tenor, Christopher Pfund; Baritone, Kerry Henderson; and Meadow Brook Festival Singers/ Christ Church, Grosse Pointe Boys and Girls Choir

■ Sunday, July 22, 7:30 p.m. Nancy Wilson — The singer/ songwriter/ guitarist has done it all: jazz, R&B, gospel, and earned No. 1 Billboard Hits with her band Heart.

■ Friday, July 27, 8 p.m., Vive La France! Bizet's excerpts from Carmen, DeBussy's Prelude to The Afternoon of a Faun, Berloiz's Royal Hunt and Storm from Les Troyens and more. Emmanuel Villaume, conductor.

■ Saturday July 28, 8 p.m. Beethoven's Fifth — Overture to Fildelio, Piano Concerto No. 4, Symphony No. 5. Conductor, Emmanuel Villaume; Piano, Andrew von Oeyen.

■ Sunday, July 29, 7:30 p.m. Broadway Under the Stars — Tenor Craig Shulman will perform songs from his performances in Phantom of the Opera and Les Miserables. Conductor, Sue Anderson; Baritone, Chris Groenendaal.

■ Friday, Aug. 3, 8 p.m. Best of Baroque. Handel's Water Music, Rameau's Suite from Dardanus, Vivaldi's 'Spring' from The Four Seasons, Bach's Orchestra Suite No. 3 and Handel's Music for Royal Fireworks. Conductor, Bernard Labadie; Violin, Emmanuelle Boisvert. Fireworks has been a favorite with the public for years — in 1749 the London Bridge was jammed for three hours with an eager crowd.

■ Saturday, Aug. 4, 8 p.m. Mozart in the Meadows Symphony No. 40, Horn Concerto No. 4, Symphony No. 41, "Jupiter" Conductor, Bernard Labadie; Horn, Kar Pituch

■ Sunday Aug. 5, 7:30 p.m. Big Band Bash The tribute to the Big Band Era includes hits of Glenn Miller, Duke Ellington and Tommy Dorsey. Conductor and trumpet Jeff Tyzik; Vocalist, Dee Daniels; Drums, Rich Thompson

■ Friday Aug. 10, 8 p.m. Tchaikovsky Spectacular — Romeo & Juliet Fantasy Overture, Piano Concerto No. 1 (First Movement), Excerpts from Swan Lake and 1812 Overture. Conductor Ginacarlo Guerrero; Piano James Tocco. Born in Nicaragua and raised in Costa Rica, Guerrero is a regular guest conductor with opera companies and symphonies throughout Latin America. In February, the American Symphony Orchestra League honored Guerrero as one of five participants in its Conductor Review.

■ Saturday, Aug. 11, 8 p.m. Tchaikovsky Spectacular. Piano Concert No. 1, Symphony No. 3 and 1812 Overture. Conductor, Giancarlo Guerrero; Piano James Tocco.

■ Sunday, Aug. 12, 7:30 p.m. Marvin Hamlisch - conductor and piano. Hamlisch is a musician who composed the Pulitzer Prize-winning musical A Chorus Line and soundtracks to The Way We Were and The Sting.

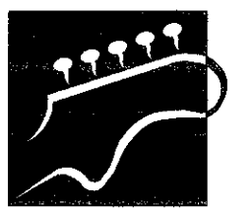
Julie Austin to play in Redford



SongSister Julie Austin and instrumentalist David Mosher will present a sing-a-long, move-a-long concert for children, ages 2-10 in Redford. The event is set for 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, July 17 at Bell Creek Park, at the corner of 5 Mile and Inkster roads.

A veteran musician with five popular children's recordings, Austin sings and plays guitar, recorder, jawharp and nose flute. Mosher accompanies on fiddle, banjo and mandolin. The duo's concerts are known for a high level of audience participation.

From 1986 to 1996, Austin appeared as one-half the well-known duo SongSisters. She recently re-released the SongSister's beloved recording Room In This World, on CD. Previously available only on cassette, the recording includes now-classic hits like When The Rain Comes Down, The Yucky Song and P-I-Z-Z-A.

Fandagumbo, Austin's first record with Mosher, was chosen by Parent's Choice for a Silver Honors award in 1999. To order music by Julie Austin, call the Ann Arbor-based Hand-in-Hand Productions at (734) 677-3575 or order online at www. amazon. com.

Sing: David Mosher and Julie Austin present a sing-a-long, move-a-long for kids in Redford July 17.

"TWICE AS GOOD AS THE FIRST ONE!" Gil Robinson,
"ABSOLUTELY HILARIOUS!" Ron Brewington

"BETTER THAN THE FIRST ONE! A MUST-SEE SUMMER BLOCKBUSTER!" Rick Anthony,
"OUTRAGEOUSLY FUNNY!" Brian Sebastian,
"I LAUGHED EVEN HARDER AT 'SCARY MOVIE 2' THAN I DID AT THE FIRST ONE!" Michael Szymanski,

"YOU'LL LAUGH HARDER, LOUDER AND MORE OFTEN THAN YOU DID AT THE FIRST ONE!" Shawn Edwards,
"THE PERFECT CAST AT THEIR COMEDIC BEST!" Mark S. Allen
"A COMEDIC HOMERUN! PURE FUN!" Kim Fayer

SCARY MOVIE 2
More merciless. More shameless.

Travis: The Invisible Band makes a name for itself

STEPHANIE A. CASOLA

Dougie Payne is far from home. He's in Maryland on tour with Dido and he's calling me to talk about this business of music. Payne doesn't seem to mind the distance, the miles he's traveled, or the fact that he might not make it home to London for several months yet. It's just a way of life for the bassist of Glaswegian quartet Travis. With the success of songs like Why Does It Always Rain On Me and Turn, and a prestigious Brit Award under Travis' collective belt, touring isn't a choice, it's a must for Payne and his cohorts – singer Fran Healy, guitarist Andy Dunlop and drummer Neil Primrose.

Already half-way through the tour with British songbird Dido (who rose to fame in the States as the sweet voice on Eminem's smash single, Stan), Payne sounds ecstatic. "The crowds have been fantastic," he says, like a Thank You to Dido herself. "Every one on the tour is just lovely."

For a man who performed nearly 300 shows last year, Payne doesn't show a hint of fatigue. "Eat your vegetables and lots of water," he suggests is his secret. "It's what you do if you're in a band. We've got to do it the old-fashioned way."

Perhaps that philosophy stems from his musical upbringing. Payne started out playing the saxophone. "My brother gave me his when I was 13. My dad's a piano player." He didn't pick up a guitar until he received one as a gift for his 17th birthday. Payne later met and began playing guitar with Andy Dunlop while attending art school. By 1996 Travis was under way and he'd switched from guitar to what he jokingly refers to "the easiest instrument," bass.

After the release of Good Feeling in 1997 and in 1999 the critically acclaimed The Man Who, Travis set out to work on its latest record, The Invisible Band. Much of the album was recorded in Los Angeles as Travis teamed up once again with its producer-of-choice, Nigel Godrich (Beck, Pavement). "He's the best producer in the world," said Payne. "He's a very inspiring person to work with. There's still the freedom to experiment. He pushed us a bit harder...We're quite populist as far as (our taste in) music. Nigel is almost avant garde."

The balance tends to create a sound that's accessible but innovative, and decidedly Travis. For the past few years the media has tossed around terms like "underrated," "most anticipated" and "most important artists" in reference to Travis.

Still, Payne said there was no extra pressure to live up to the success of The Man Who. "You can't trade in past glories," he said, revealing his rather sunny state of mind. So Travis went in to make another album – one that would reflect the stage the band finds itself in today. Whether that means Fran Healy pleading with his fiancee to Sing, or sharing his innermost secrets on Dear Diary, The Invisible Band sheds light on an even more intimate Travis – one we can all relate to.

As Payne and the record's title suggests, The Invisible Band is about "putting the honesty back in the song." From the nice guys of British pop, we could expect nothing less.

Dido performs with openers Travis and Emiliana Torrini, 7:30 p.m. Thursday, July 5, DTE Energy Music Theatre, Independence Township. Tickets $24.50-$37.50. Call (248) 645-6666, (248) 377-0100 or see www.ticketmaster.com.

Stephanie Angelyn Casola writes about popular music for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. She can be reached at (734) 953-2130 or e-mail at scasola@oe.homecomm.net.

"IT'S THE FILM OF THE SUMMER. MAYBE THE YEAR."
With 'A.I.' Mr. Spielberg has produced one whale of an entertainment even the cynics are heralding as a filmmaking triumph."
-Rex Reed, THE NEW YORK OBSERVER
"Fascinating...bravura moviemaking. It's like nothing else Spielberg has done, though it calls to mind 'E.T.,' 'Close Encounters' and 'Empire of the Sun.' You will also along the way, think of '2001,' 'A Clockwork Orange'... It's a movie that makes us ponder the very nature of love. 'A.I.' exhilarates, frustrates and provokes: it's the most ambitious Hollywood movie in sight."
-David Ansen, NEWSWEEK
"A love story, a prophecy and a fairy tale. 'A.I.: Artificial Intelligence' represents the collaboration and collision of two master filmmakers, Stanley Kubrick and Steven Spielberg. The film is bold, rigorous and sentimental by turns, and often all at once, as should be expected from a two-man movie where both have strong wills to match their great gifts."

DINING

Caribbean influences Bahama Breeze menu

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
SPECIAL WRITER

For just a moment, let go.

Imagine the light splash of salted waves against a Caribbean sundown.

Sip on the finest rum while reggae music rekindles your spirit. Then let the aromas of the richest spices and fruits take you back to a simpler time.

"It's a memorable two-hour island vacation. It's just like when you're down on the islands, but you don't have to go far," said Eric Dresher.

For this general manager of Bahama Breeze, perfection is the guiding force for the restaurant that has almost all the realities of a Caribbean sugarcane plantation. It is his expectation that each of his guests – about 7,000 weekly - soak in the sights, sounds and tropical tastes of the islands.

"We want to make sure every guest has a memorable experience here," said Dresher, the son of a Florida restaurateur. "Bahama Breeze stands for great dinners, great music, a beautiful building."

Owned by Darden, which owns Olive Garden and Red Lobster, Bahama Breeze is all about the culture and cuisine of the Caribbean islands. The same local spices – allspice, hot peppers, nutmeg, cilantro, clove, tamarind and thyme – used long ago by islanders are found in the Bahama Breeze signature entrees, salads, samplers and sandwiches.

House specialty: Spicy Flame-Grilled Fresh Tilapia.

Try something new

Conch. Ever thought of eating it? Not the pretty pink shell that we all put up to our ears on the beach. But the meat. Conch is by far the most popular seafood in the Caribbean. Pounded with a mallet to tenderize it, the prized seafood is found in the restaurant's chowders and fritters.

While Americans may see some of the menu items as "gourmetish," the ingredients are basic. Beans and rice are staples, as are root vegetables, such as yucca, yams, sweet potatoes and eddoes. The same goes for fruits – bananas, plantains, pineapples, mangoes and guava.

Mix the basics with Caribbean spices, fruits and vegetables and you have a delightful – and filling – meal that includes seafood, lamb, beef, pork, as well as stews of chicken, sausage, shrimp or clams.

Also notable at Bahama Breeze is Paella, a traditional island casserole of shrimp, fish, chicken and chorizo sausage. Or there's ropa vieja, which means old clothes in Spanish, but is actually a spicy dish of shredded beef.

"These are hearty meals," Dresher said. "But it is all food people can relate to."

Lunch is not a possibility at Bahama Breeze. The culinary staff, led by executive chef Charlie Reives, spends the day cooking. "Nothing is made in advance. Vine ripened tomatoes are picked everyday. The basil you are eating now was cut a half-hour ago," Dresher said.

The desserts also stand alone. Everything is made from scratch on site. The key lime pie is the most popular with guests. But there is no turning away from the bananas supreme – a taste-boggling dish of sliced bananas, vanilla ice cream on warm banana bread with hot homemade butterscotch brandy sauce.

The drinks – alcoholic and non-alcoholic – are exactly what you would expect in the Caribbean with emphasis on rum, spices and fruits. You cannot leave the restaurant without someone at the table ordering a lemon breeze – topped off with a real piece of sugar cane. The alcoholic version, mojito cubano – served as icy as it can get – combines crushed spearmint, fresh line, sugar cane juice and of course, rum.

island experience: Charlie Reeves, chef and Eric Drescher, owner at Bahama Breeze.

While food and drink are the spice of life that draws their record number of guests, Bahama Breeze has more to offer. It is about atmosphere, relaxation and entertainment.

When you are finished dining, there's the patio that boasts a full bar and white shutters and ceiling fans for hot nights.

Music is just as important to the island experience. Nightly entertainment is dished up in the form of reggae music, steel drums and the like.

Dresher will be honest. The foods are unique and probably not appealing to a child's appetite, as aren't the hours the restaurant is open. While foods are available on the menu that also cater to the strict all-American palate, Dresher makes no apologies.

"They didn't make this restaurant for every person. In the restaurant industry, ideas get diluted. You can't be everything for everyone. We are going to do this and we are going to do it well."

Joanne Maliszewski is a Farmington resident and writes about dining for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

Garden City Yards beautified for Walk in July

Let it flow: A waterfall flows into the Sandzik's pond

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK
STAFF WRITER
kabramczyk@oe.homecomm.net

Bill Sandzik believes he got the gardening bug from both of his grandmothers who had dozens of flowers in their yards.

Sandzik carried that gardening gene into his own yard by building a homemade fence around the front of the house and installing a pond with two separate waterfalls with a waterwheel and a bridge.

And his wife Debra? Why does she enjoy gardening? "She got it from my kidney," Bill jokes, repeating an off-the-cuff comment she made while Bill was on the telephone during an interview for this story.

One year ago, Bill donated his kidney to Debra.

'It's the people, too'

That kind of thoughtfulness, unselfishness and love of these two garden walk hosts make this year's garden walk special, said Zydis Bateson, organizer of the Garden City Garden Walk. "It's not so much the beauty of the gardens, but it's the people, too," Bateson said.

Bateson said said this year's walk includes eight homes instead of six, and was extended another hour.

"We've got a good variety, from small gardens to large ones," Bateson said. "We look for those with a variety of flowers and use different ideas in the way they set them up."

The Sandzik garden is high maintenance, but it's well worth it.

"It's a great way to keep out of trouble," Bill Sandzik said. "It's a high maintenance yard, to take it down in the fall and put up in the spring, but it's fun. You just enjoy sitting there and looking at it."

The Sandziks designed and built their own homemade fence around the front of the house. There's a pond with two separate waterfalls, a waterwheel and bridge.

"The pond is the biggest thing," Sandzik said. "We've got a lot work back here." Water lillies, tiger lillies and cattails grow in the 16-foot round pond. Koi swim in it, too.

They've also grown rhododendrons in the front. A small gazebo "shelters" cement geese.

Day lillies, asters, lilacs and daffodils decorate the yard, while a crabapple and two cherry trees bloom in spring.

Veggies galore

This year's walk doesn't feature only flowers, either. "Ray Jackson probably has the largest vegetable garden in Garden City," Bateson said.

Jackson estimates that his garden covers about a half-acre. He grows three different species of onions, including Walla Wallas, his favorites, along with peppers, beans, corn and potatoes and other produce.

"The garden did badly earlier, but the rain and the heat helped it shape up real well," Jackson said. He has already enjoyed spring crops of lettuce and mustard spinach. The garden contains a dark, loamy soil mixed with sand. "It's beautiful soil," Jackson said. "You can work it well."

Donald Rousseau's yard features a 7-foot magnolia tree with decorative blocks around the tree decorated with flowers. A windmill sits in the middle of a rose garden, while an arbor and trellis are covered with roses. Rousseau has scores of different species of flowers in his yard, including lilacs, hostas, gladiolas, irises, daffodils, hydrangeas and dragonflowers.

Brian Shockley presented arborvitaes, red sunset maples and yuccas. Hardy mums, coneflowers and hostas draw the eyes to various colors.

Bob and Marina Murdock added a Japanese garden to their yard. The Murdock's yard features backyard pond, a butterly and hummingbird garden and a fenced in vegetable garden. Visitors will see dwarf Alberta spruces, variegated hostas, ferns and Rose of Sharon color the yard.

Barbara Bridges garden is highlighted by a curved border with unusual trees, bushes and shrubs, landscape rocks, ferns, astilbes and cannas along the die and two small garden beds.

The gardens at the homes of Mark Walker and Cheryl Guck also will be featured.

Bateson expects this year's show will be one of the best. For many gardening buffs, it is a release, she said.

"Gardening is hard work, but it has a way of helping you unwind," Bateson said. "It's a way to vent your frustrations. When you're done with a day's work of gardening, it makes you feel better."

Questions remain over effectiveness of new refrigerants

APPLIANCE DOCTOR

JOE GAGNON

Do you know the three words that are used by ripoff artists today?

I will give you that phrase later as I do at seminars, but there is another word: confusion. Some salespersons follow this strategy: keep people confused and they won't know what to buy, so they can sell you what they want to sell.

I believe this may be happening in the sales of central air conditioning.

Let me make it clear to everyone that I am not an expert in central air conditioning, but I do know a little about refrigerant that is used in these systems. When the national media started stories on global warming and Freon-22 (the trade name for a refrigerant) was blamed as part of the problem, it got my attention. Scientists debated whether Freon-22 was the cause of the increasing size of the ozone hole in the earth's atmosphere. The Environmental Protection Agency, in accordance with the Montreal Protocol of several years ago, decided to remove Freon-22 from the marketplace by phasing it out.

Will they work?

New refrigerants were quickly tested and put into market. The question was – and still is – will the new refrigerants hold up untested for many years, a question debated. Will it hold up or is it the way of the future with central air conditioning that products will last only a half of what they used to? I know that it is certainly true in the field of major home appliances. All reports indicate that major appliance life spans have been shortened. Why is that?

I now am reading columns about which system is "best to buy" written by wanna-be experts who couldn't change a compressor to save their lives. Advertisements sing songs of praise for this product against that when promoting different refrigerants and their benefits with reminders that the old Freon-22 is being phased out.

■ Scientists debated whether Freon-22 was the cause of the increasing size of the ozone hole in the atmosphere.

Efficiency is another key point of why you should buy something new today and not wait any longer. All of this and more makes me a little mixed up. What is it doing to the consumer who has no knowledge at all about central air conditioning?

Freon-22 still made

Here is a fact you may not know and I don't hear or read it in any advertising: Freon-22 is still being manufactured and will continue to be until the year 2010. Because of government mandated laws regarding refrigerant, all Freon-22 must be recaptured when working on systems. This means that there will be ample supply of it for many years after its production ceases.

Freon-22 is the only refrigerant that is proven to do the job for a long period of time and all others new and used today do not fall into that classification. Many experts don't believe the new stuff will hold up and that consumers will suffer in the end.

If you are thinking about new central air conditioning for your home, you now have a little more knowledge to shop with. This should now be less confusing to you the homeowner.

When I do my consumer seminars, I always bring up three words: fear, greed and vanity. Somewhere in the ripoff artists' method of operation will one or all of these perceptions come up. They take your money and most people don't realize it until after the fact. Stay tuned.

It's summertime, and the carpet cleaning is easy

PRNewswire – Summer has arrived. School is out, the youngsters are home, and friends and family are coming over to barbecue. With children and extra guests in your home, accidental spills and spots are inevitable.

The Carpet and Rug Institute (CRI) has suggestions for removing stubborn summer spills from carpet and rugs.

Responding immediately to spills and performing regular maintenance will help maintain the life and beauty of your carpet.

Follow simple steps for spot removal using the following solutions made from common household supplies:

■ With long, lazy days of summer already here, children and pets are bringing in a little of the outside. For grass stains on your carpet, blot, don't scrub, the spot with a non-acetone nail polish remover.

■ Strawberries, blueberries, raspberries—summer's freshest berries can be one of nature's greatest rewards, until the berries fall to your carpet. Mix 1 cup white vinegar per 2 cups water.

■ The grill is hot and the hamburgers and hot dogs are ready! If a dollop of ketchup or mustard drops on your carpet, simply mix 1/4 teaspoon of liquid dishwashing detergent per 1 cup lukewarm water. Mustard is a natural dye, which makes it very hard to clean.

As with any stain, the key to successful cleaning is immediate removal. Be sure to rinse the area thoroughly after the spot is removed. Detergent residue can cause rapid soiling.

For these summer spills, blot liquids with a dry, white, absorbent cloth or unprinted paper towels.

Before treating any spill or spot, pre-test the spot removal solution in an inconspicuous area. If a change occurs, select another type of solution.

Apply a small amount of the cleaning solution to a clean, white cloth, using only the recommended cleaning solution formula, and work gently into the soiled carpet. Always work from the outside edges to the center of the spot to prevent the spill from spreading, never scrubbing the area.

Allow the solution about 10 minutes to penetrate the spot, and blot gently once again.

Repeat these steps as long as the spot continues to transfer to the cloth. Complete removal of some spills may require the use of a single solution repeatedly or the use of a combination of solutions.

When the spot is no longer visible, rinse the area thoroughly with cold water, blot with a dry cloth until all moisture is removed, and be certain the carpet has dried completely before walking on it.

The CRI Web site at www.carpet-rug.com is a valuable resource for many other spot removal solutions, from avocado to wine.

You may also contact the CRI at (800)882-8846 for tips about removal of spills and spots as well as regular maintenance recommendations and techniques.

Take another walk in Wayne

Green thumbs and gardening wanna be's alike will learn a thing or two from homeowners participating in the Wayne Garden Club - Garden Walk July 21 beginning at Goudy Park.

The rose gardens at the park, off Wayne Road between Michigan Avenue and Glenwood, will be the first stop for individuals and groups who purchase tickets for the event. The Wayne Garden Club maintains the rosebeds that highlight the grounds of the park tucked along the Rouge River.

"It's a good opportunity for people to get suggestions and also just to see how others laid out their gardens and flower beds," said Claudia Rediske, president of the Wayne Garden Club that was founded in 1916, federated in 1945 and presently includes 60 members. The club is a member of the Michigan Garden Club District One.

The third annual event runs from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. and starts in Goudy Park. From there participants can visit approximately nine homes throughout the city of Wayne. The $5 tickets can be purchased at the park or at several other locations, including Norman's Market (next to Daly's on Wayne Road), Wayne Library and Keller & Stein's Florist on Michigan Avenue in Canton.

Rediske's Flora Lane home, one of the stops on the tour, features a water fountain in her backyard that gradually slopes down into a ravine. She said she recently had her entire yard relandscaped and is looking forward to seeing the fruits of the labor. Participants will also be able to enjoy refreshments at her Wayne home along the driving tour.

"We draw from several communities," said Judy Howton, WGC member. "Because the homeowners are home during the tour, people have the chance to ask questions and swap ideas."

The event is open to the public and children are welcome as long as they are accompanied by an adult. Maps will be provided with the $5 tickets and Rediske suggests participants drive, not walk, due to the distance between homes on the tour.

The WGC Garden Walk is being organized by members Sharon Arthur and Lois Press. Money raised from the event is used for civic beautification, landscaping the grounds of the historical museum, planting and maintaining the rose beds at Goudy Park, conservation and club projects.

INTERIOR DESIGN

Design Center offers samples for sale

The Michigan Design Center's semi-annual Floor Sample and Clearance Sale will take place 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. July 28 and noon to 5 p.m. July 29.

The event, which happens twice a year, is the only time the public is invited to shop the fabulous showrooms of MDC and the only time it will find sale savings of 60 to 70 percent off list prices on hundreds of floor sample items, including furniture, Oriental rugs, lighting, original art, ceramic tile and accessories.

Admission is $6, with a portion of the proceeds going to benefit Gilda's Club, which provides free emotional and social support to cancer patients as well as their families and friends.

MDC is at 1700 Stutz, which is north off Maple Road, between Crooks and Coolidge in Troy.

Merchandise will be sold as is and all sales are final. Payment may be made by cash or check, and some showrooms will be accepting Visa or MasterCard.

A delivery service will be available and arrangements can be made at the customer's expense. Delivery must be accepted within 10 days of purchase.

During the sale, MDC's Designer On Call interior designers will be available to answer questions. Designer On Call is an exclusive MDC design program that enables consumers to work one-on-one with a professional interior designer and gain access to the very finest interior furnishings from premier manufacturers across the globe, all under one roof at MDC.

MDC showrooms sell to the trade only. Consumers interested in products from the showrooms may contact Designer On Call from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday-Friday by phoning toll free (888)DIAL MDC, or visit MDC's Web site at www.michigandesign.com

DESIGN CALENDAR

■ Homeowners can learn how to lay their own brick patios, walks and driveways in a one-hour class 3 p.m. the first and third Saturday of every month now through September at Brickscape Gardens in Northville.

■ Michigan Design Center invites the public to meet and hear Lucia and Eames Demetrios, daughter and grandson of renowned designers Charles and Ray Eames, at a fund-raiser breakfast and lecture 9 a.m. Thursday, July 12, in the Mid-America Room at MDC. Proceeds will benefit the Cranbrook Academy of Art and Art Museum. Tickets to the fund-raiser breakfast and lecture are $45. For reservations, make checks payable to Cranbrook Academy of Art and mail them to Michigan Design Center, 1700 Stutz Dr., Suite 25, Troy, MI 48084 by Friday, July 6. Reservations will be held at the door. For more information, call (248) 649-4772. MDC is at 1700 Stutz, which is north off Maple, between Crooks and Coolidge roads. The event is sponsored by MDC, in conjunction with Cranbrook's Serious Moonlight event.

■ Haberman Fabrics, 117 W. Fourth in Royal Oak, presents a variety of home decorating classes. They include the three-session Beginner Pillow, Thursdays, July 12-26, or Saturdays, July 14-28 ($45). Pre-registration is required. Call (248) 541-0010 or visit www.habermanfabrics.com

■ Public tours at Meadow Brook Hall in Rochester are given year-round. During the summer (to Aug. 31), the first hourly tour begins 10:30 a.m. and the last 3:30 p.m. Monday-Saturday; Sunday tours are 1:30, 2:30 and 3:30 p.m. The hall is closed most holidays, and tour hours may change during special events. Public tours won't be offered Aug. 3-7 because of Concours d'Elegance activities.

The Dodge Brothers Motor Car Exhibition is open during regular touring hours now through Sept. 30. This special exhibit focuses on John Dodge and the history of the Dodge Brothers Motor Car Company, with archival material from the collection of Meadow Brook Hall never before on view to the public.

Admission is $8 for adults, $6 for seniors, $4 for ages 5-12, free for ages 4 and under. Tours for groups of 20 or more may be scheduled for other times. Advance reservations are required for group tours. Group rates are available.

Tea on Tuesdays is offered 3-4:30 p.m. the third Tuesday of each month in the Christopher Wren Dining Room or on the Loggia Terrace, now to November. Price is $30 per person and prepaid reservations are required.

Summer luncheons are open to the public now through Aug. 31 (closed for lunch Aug. 2, 3, 6 and 7 because of Concours d'Elegance activities). Seatings are 11:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. Monday-Friday. The price of $15 includes salad, rolls, entrée, beverage, dessert, tax and gratuity. Reservations are required.

Call (248) 370-3140 for reservations and more information. Visit www.meadowbrookhall.org

Meadow Brook Hall, on the Oakland University campus off Adams, is a 110-room, Tudor-revival style mansion that was the residence of OU founders Matilda Dodge Wilson (the widow of auto pioneer John Dodge) and her second husband, lumber broker Alfred Wilson.

■ Cranbrook House, 380 Lone Pine in Bloomfield Hills, is open for walk-in tours 3 p.m. Sundays, now through Oct. 28, for $10. Walk-in tours are scheduled 11 a.m. and 1:15 p.m. Thursdays, now through Oct. 25. Visitors may include lunch at noon Thursdays for an additional $15 by making a reservation. Lunch is available only with a $10 tour. For private or group Thursday lunch and tour reservations, call (248) 645-3147.

After touring the house, visitors may stroll through 40 acres of the surrounding gardens at no additional charge. Tours of the gardens only are $5 any time 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Mondays-Saturdays, open 11 a.m. Sundays.

For guided private and group garden tour rates and reservations, and senior and student discount information, call (248) 645-3147. Free parking is available at Christ Church Cranbrook directly across Lone Pine.

Cranbrook House was the home of Cranbrook founders George and Ellen Booth, principal players in the American Arts and Crafts movement in the early 20th century, and contains beautiful furnishings and works by world-famous artists.

Saarinen House, home of Cranbrook architect Eliel Saarinen, may also be visited; call (877) 462-7262 for times, costs and other information.

■ Homeowners may learn how to lay their own brick patios, walks and driveways in a one-hour class 3 p.m. the first and third Saturday of every month now through September at Brickscape Gardens in Northville. Registration fee is $5 per person, refundable with any brick purchase. Call (248) 348-2500 to reserve a spot and for more information. Brickscape Gardens is on Brickscape Drive, which runs north off Eight Mile just east of Novi Road.

■ As part of Art Van Furniture's Christmas in July sale, artisans will personalize a holiday ornament with an individual name or festive motif, creating a special keepsake for a loved one, 2-3:30 p.m. Saturday, July 7, at the Shelby Township store (14055 Hall Road, phone (810) 566-1490). One ornament per person, while supplies last. The ornament and the artistry are free.

CREATIVE LIVING

Stop to compose and get 'stopping power' in pictures

FOCUS ON PHOTOGRAPHY

MONTE NAGLER

What separates a good photograph from a ho-hum snapshot? What makes your friends and family ask to see more instead of thinking, "I've seen enough!"?

The answer lies in getting impact or "stopping power" in your pictures, and one of the best ways to accomplish this is by good, effective and careful composition.

Composition can be thought of as meaningful placement of the main subject and supporting elements in the picture, including the elimination of unnecessary and unwanted detail.

The next time you look through your camera and are about to press the shutter, stop! Yes, stop and take a really good, second look.

Examine the subject. If it's a person, is there a tree or telephone pole "growing" out of his or her head? Is your subject placed in a dynamically strong part of the frame?

Check all four corners of the viewfinder. Is there something there, perhaps distracting, that doesn't belong?

Good and careful composition begins with a solid look through the camera and a calculated determination of what you, the photographer, want to record on film in the most effective way.

Here are some basic guidelines to help you plan and obtain good composition:

■ Consider vertical vs. horizontal. Most cameras produce a rectangular picture, so try fitting this format to your subject. People and trees, for example, go up and down, so most often a vertical composition should be used. Horizons go sideways, so a horizontal format is appropriate.

■ Move in close! Filling the frame with your subject is perhaps the best way to add stopping power to your shot. This way, your picture is simplified and the viewer's attention isn't distracted. When photographing a person or animal, filling the frame is easily done with a telephoto lens.

■ Check subject placement. Avoid placing the main subject smack in the middle of the picture. Photographs appear static and less interesting this way. Rather, by placing the subject off-center, a dynamic quality will be given to your shot that will make it much more exciting.

■ Frame your subject. Remember to use tree branches, a doorway or window, even an archway to give your picture special impact.

Call for falls: Monte Nagler carefully "surrounded" the waterfall with trees and bushes to effectively frame his shot. The photograph of the falls was taken in upper New York state.

■ Use lead-in lines. Elements in a photograph should help lead attention toward the subject. Lead-in lines can be roads, fences, streams, pathways, etc.

■ Watch your horizons. Remember that a low horizon line will accentuate spaciousness, especially with a dramatic sky. A high horizon line will de-emphasize the sky and instead suggest closeness.

Monte Nagler is a fine art photographer based in Farmington Hills. You can leave him a message by dialing (734) 953-2047 on a touch-tone phone. His fax number is (248) 644-1314.

Weed out difficult people in your garden of life

My friend Michael Angelo Caruso has a theory about difficult people, and I'm beginning to believe him.

It has to do with the fact that we like people who like us back. If you want to get along with someone you don't like, find something to like about that person.

"Remember the platinum rule," he says. "You can never, ever change another person, but you can influence them."

Michael is very good at influencing people – he makes his living showing others how to change their lives, and he's helped me change mine.

I've watched him work – it's amazing. He engages people, gets their attention, makes believers out of them.

"Do unto others as you would have done unto you, and do unto others as they want to be done unto them," he told a group of Canton Rotarians during a luncheon recently. "Treat other people the way you want to be treated."

Simple advice, but so hard to follow.

You're in control

It helps, he says, to realize that you are 100 percent in control of your emotions. You can't take responsibility for what other people feel.

The trick is to learn how to be assertive without hurting another person's feelings.

Take complainers for instance. We all know 'em and avoid 'em.

But you have to have compassion for complainers – they don't know they're being negative. Michael believes they think they're performing a public service by pointing out flaws.

I'll bet you have some absoluters in your life too. People's whose favorite words are – "always and never."

Gripers can get on your nerves too.

While you can't change complainers, absoluters, gripers, and other negative people, you can influence them by changing your reaction.

"Complaining is a form of manipulation," proclaims Michael with ministerial conviction. "You can stop a complainer complaining to you by walking away. You must distance yourself from negative people, even if they're in your family – don't say hello so often."

Sounds easy, but it's so difficult.

"You can't hurt me," is Michael's response. It has to do with imprinting – how you think and react to situations. Take a negative, find a positive, or just get out of the way.

His talk is over, and Canton Rotarians are smiling, ready to deal with the difficult people in their lives.

Common sense

It's not magic – just common sense. If you want to keep getting what you're getting – keep doing what you're doing. But if you want something different – do something different.

It will change your life.

I know because it changed mine.

Keely Wygonik is assistant managing editor of features for the Observer Newspapers. She's been busy weeding negative people out of her life since she lost her husband to leukemia.

FRIDAY'S Child

The old verse "Friday's child is loving and giving" is the basis for an ongoing profile we plan to run to recognize the contributions of children who measure up to the childhood adage.

If you know of a student who volunteers at a nursing home, collects pennies for the Muscular Dystrophy Association, gives toys to a shelter or acts unselfishly in some way for the benefit of others, we want to hear about them.

Please share with us the ways in which the nominee is "loving and giving" either by calling, faxing or e-mailing us the information.

Long live the queen

BY RENEÉ SKOGLUND
STAFF WRITER

The call comes late in the afternoon. I've been expecting it for days. "The Queen of the Night should bloom about 10 o'clock tonight," says my friend Alyce, a bit out of breath. "It looks like there'll be about a dozen flowers. Can you come?"

Alyce and her mother, Sylvia, own Graye's Greenhouse, an 80-year-old treasure trove of rich smells, ancient piping, old shelves, a dirt floor hard as concrete, and aisles of unusual plants and herbs. If the greenhouse were a person, it would be a wise old woman, observant and full of stories.

The greenhouse is home to the exotic Queen of the Night, also known as a "Nightblooming Cereus." Alyce thought the plant may have been indigenous to the Western states, but an Internet check showed it's native to Mexico but widely grown in Hawaii, where it is known as "Panini-o-Kapunakou."

Imagine that, a Panini-o-Kapunakou growing in an old greenhouse in Plymouth Township.

The Queen of the Night is awkwardly gorgeous. She sits in an eight-inch pot and sends her vines, hard as tubing, curling up and over the water pipes. Her leaves are large and gangly, but her flowers ... ah, therein lies her beauty. The stems are shaped like upside-down shepherds crooks, and when they open to their full plate-size glory, their scent is intoxicating. The Queen blooms just one or two nights of the year, and like Cinderella, her flowers wilt at the first light of dawn.

Each year Alyce calls several friends and customers to be part of the Queen's coming out party. This year, as in the past, we arrive carrying flashlights. The greenhouse is totally dark.

"If there's a lot of light before the plant starts to bloom, it stops the process," says Alyce.

I lay out the hodge-podge of snacks I've brought on a wood table, pushing aside the cigar box Alyce uses for small change. There's four bottles of Mexican beer, a jar of asparagus dip, some Danish cheese and a bag of organic tortilla chips. Last year I brought shrimp and champagne. We always salute the Queen in style.

"I've never seen anything like it before," says Cindy Hoganson of Canton, referring to the plant, not my snacks.

In slow motion right before our eyes, the Queen of the Night begins to bloom, her white flowers opening in an array of white, feathery tentacles. Some say the flowers, with their delicate yellow stamens, look like trumpets. I think they resemble jelly fish about to propel themselves through the water.

"It's beautiful," says Renee Merritt of Livonia.

"It smells like patchouli, but not as spicy," says Observer photographer Paul Hurschmann.

"Ohhhh," says Nancy Gask of Livonia.

Most of the Queen's 15 flowers come into bloom. She holds back a few in reserve. "I think 38 was the record for flowers," says Alyce.

We raise our plastic cups in a toast to the Queen. Then Alyce snips off some of the flowers and passes them around. We know they'll be dead by morning. I want to say something profound. I search for some lofty analogy about the brevity of life but nothing comes.

"The Queen is dead. Long live the Queen," I finally say.

"She won't die," says Cindy. "Just her flowers will. Her beauty will fade into the night."

I know there's an analogy here, some secret to a more fulfilling life. I'll have to wait to next year. Meanwhile, long live the Queen.

New course fits players to a tee

BY KIMBERLY A. MORTSON
STAFF WRITER
kmortson@oe.homecomm.net

Kathleen Dul Aznavorian and Sandy Dul Mily are kind of like Kevin Costner's character in the movie "The Field of Dreams."

Kevin hears the ghosts of legendary baseball players egging him on to build a baseball diamond – a little slice of heaven where they'll be able to play their beloved game throughout eternity. So, Costner builds the baseball diamond, in a cornfield, with the conviction that "If you build it, they will come...."

Likewise, Aznavorian and Mily have been listening to their female golfers and the children of their clients for years about designing a course for them: eighteen holes that weren't so intimidating they couldn't finish but challenging enough to attract golfers of varying ability.

So, just like Costner's character they took several hundred acres of land they were farming and turned it over to Plymouth architect Raymond Hearn, who in turn designed The Strategic Fox. The par 3, 18-hole, 2,500 yard course is intended for women and beginners of all ages, including that untapped market of players six through fourteen years old.

Positive feedback

"We learned so many things from our female golfers who said things like they weren't that good, they couldn't keep up, it took too much time to play 18 holes on some courses and they couldn't hit the ball as far as most courses are designed," said Aznavorian, president of Fox Hills Country Club in Plymouth. "We were looking at several options for the land we farmed such as housing or a hotel, but we thought this course was a good idea and a great way for us to round out our facility."

On target: Melanie Mily of Dearborn tees off on the 17th hole of The Strategic Fox — Fox Hills Country Club's newest course.

In the fall of 1999 they started moving earth and the following year the acreage was seeded. This month Aznavorian and Mily will celebrate on July 14 the grand opening of The Strategic Fox, the third course at Fox Hills Country Club in Plymouth. The club also includes the Fox Classic and the Golden Fox.

"We've received rave reviews since the course opened," said Mily, vice president and general manager. "People have told us there's nothing like this out there."

Not only did they pay attention to what their existing clientele was saying, they also organized informal focus-groups of teenagers, seniors and women and asked them what they were looking for in a course. As longtime members of the National Golf Course Owners Association, they were also hearing the demand for golf was flat, but the number of golfers was on the rise at an astounding rate.

"The Strategic is a good teaching course for women and children and it allows our better golfers to work on their short game while still playing and having fun with their own children or grandchildren," added Mily. "This was designed as a championship par 3 where beginners can have a good time."

The layout and the difficulty of the greens weren't the only consideration for Mily and Aznavorian, who have worked in and around golf courses since their parents purchased Shady Hollow in Romulus in the 1960s and Fox Hills in 1974. The sisters felt having a separate club house from the Fox Classic and the Golden Fox was essential to a positive experience at the Strategic Fox.

"We want to break peoples image of the traditional clubhouse," said Aznavorian. They expect to break ground on the building next week and be up and running in the spring of 2002. A safari theme both inside and outside the facility features zebra striped golf carts, tee markers in the shape of animals, staff clad in safari apparel, safari named menu items and furnishing such as tiger striped carpeting, palm trees, animals and animal furniture. "We hope to blow away everyone's perception of a clubhouse."

Grand opening

The grand opening festivities of the Strategic Fox will be open to the public starting at 10 a.m. with a pre-teen (adult and child) golf league registration. In hopes families will introduce the game of golf to their children, the four-week league begins July 14 and costs $72 per player. The fee includes golf each week, 30 minutes of instruction prior to play (each week), hot dog, pop and chips (each week). The age groups range from 6-8, 9-11 and 12-14 years old.

Divot the Clown, a trick shot master, will entertain golfers with his expertise and golf antics; free food, face painting, driving range activities (try out Demo clubs from Taylor, Wilson, U.S. Kids and Titleist) and games/contests such as target golf, closest to the pin, long drive, putting contest, and more are also being planned.

"From a family budget standpoint the rates are very reasonable," said Mily. "It's comparable or even better to taking your family to the movies and buying popcorn and pop. We've kept it very affordable for everyone."

The grand opening of The Strategic Fox (8768 North Territorial Road, Plymouth) is July 14. For information or to arrange a tee time call (734) 453-7272 or visit www.foxhills.com

Couples share secret recipe for a happy, strong marriage

Coinciding with the new Fine Line Features film The Anniversary Party, local couples are sharing their expertise in maintaining a healthy, happy marriage. The universal message deals with lasting love, so the Observer Newspapers sought the answers to happiness in marriage. Here are more responses, in their own words:

Tom Yakonich, Livonia

"I may not be one of the first 25 couples to win two free passes to the movie but I'm fortunate to have won the main prize, a happy 34 years of marriage and a wonderful family. I believe there are many facets that make up a happy marriage – My wife, Linda, is a wonderful mother who is the major influence in raising three wonderful and successful children. She is a very friendly, caring and supportive person. We give each other free space, which is important. We've always been able to fairly divide up the domestic chores in the family. I enjoy and have always done the cooking and shopping since she doesn't enjoy those tasks. On the other hand, I dislike managing the financial matters such as balancing the books, paying the bills, etc. She washes the cloths and I fold them, etc.

Pat and Sandy Mulcahy, Canton

"We have been married 7½ years and have four children, ages 5 months, 2 years, 4 years and 6 years. Our key to happiness in our marriage is taking time out for the two of us. We are equally and actively involved in our children's lives. We always make a point to share dinner together as a whole family even though we work opposite shifts. Occasionally we go on 'dates'. Every night, after the kids have gone to bed, we look forward to enjoying our time together, just the two of us. There is no better feeling than ending the day with your best friend by your side."

Being Helpful vs. Complaining

It is a wise person who knows when and how to tactfully speak up about a situation that may need correcting. When a person is critical of almost everything, they may be looked upon by others as being a "complainer". There is a significant difference between grumbling and honestly trying to be helpful. Most businesses have a customer service department to handle problems and complaints. They usually do not call them "complaint departments" because they know that correcting problems and providing good service are beneficial to good business, whereas complaining denotes a negative tone. In addition, no one likes to listen to someone who is always complaining. The Bible tells us in Colossians 3:13, "Be tolerant with one another and forgive one another whenever any of you has a complaint against someone else. You must forgive one another just as the Lord has forgiven you." We should try to be more positive to reduce the stress in our lives; God wants us to work and live in harmony with those around us.

Do everything without complaining or arguing.
Good News Bible Philip 2:14

Making a good match: Matchquiz.com gets couples talking

BY STEPHANIE ANGELYN CASOLA
STAFF WRITER
scasola@oe.homecomm.net

David and Donna Henderson know what it takes to make a marriage work. The Livonia couple met at Kensington Church in Troy and, six years later, are happily married. The Hendersons entered this bond with a little more experience and insight than most newlyweds. They are raising David's son from a previous marriage, as well as two young boys of their own.

Founders of Matchquiz.com, the Hendersons hope to share their knowledge with other couples – married, engaged or dating. They believe communication is powerful and said most couples don't discuss some important issues until after the honeymoon, issues that could damage a perfect union. The site is meant to shed some light on those subjects that aren't addressed when a couple starts dating.

"It helps them to see whether they're compatible," said David. "A couple at really any stage in a relationship can really get to know each other."

Up and running

Just two months since the launch of the site, www.matchquiz. com poses 70 questions covering seven major categories and rates a couple on their compatibility. Both partners must complete the quiz to obtain a score.

When the Hendersons wed, they were asked to take a personality survey and said it was not helpful. They liked the idea, but felt the "test" should've included more practical questions – questions about finances, ethics and children rather than question that asked about hobbies and interests.

"We definitely cannot claim to be experts," said David. But they do offer ideas from several perspectives. The couple worked together creating this concept. David, who has a background in World Wide Web, created the framework while his wife added another dimension to the quiz.

The objective was to identify seven "problem areas" or touchy subjects in relationships. Those themes are finances, family, couplehood, values, sex, political and social issues, and a final section which sets up a situational story problem and asks what the couple would do to solve it. "What we do with every question, we have another question that says how important it is that you match your partner," said David.

Results reflect matched answers in green, non-matches of little significance in yellow and important non-matches in red. Green answers earn three points. Yellow answers earn two points. Red answers receive no points.

In the family

Donna Henderson, formerly of Lake Orion, feels good knowing her own husband developed this site. She said the survey is balanced for both men and women and goes beyond the surface issues of most compatibility tests to "the fundamental things you never think to ask.

"You realize those are the things that really matter." Even the couple learned more about themselves by taking the quiz.

"We try not to interpret it," said David Henderson. "We don't want to say 'This couple does not have a healthy relationship.' We just want to encourage them to discuss it."

In the future, links to couples and relationship resources will also be available for those interested in seeking help or guidance. Articles and Web site links on related topics will also be included. Matchquiz might even add a separate survey for singles to sort out their own feelings on relationship issues.

David Henderson said the fact that it's a computerized test offers some privacy and might even interest couples to try it out because it is so accessible. "I'm hoping it's useful."

Matchquiz.com charges a one-time fee of $4.95 for unlimited access to your account. Take it as many times as you like. See www.matchquiz.com for details.

Bartnick wins qualifier

Matt Bartnick, who will be a senior this fall at Livonia Stevenson High School, shot a 68 to take medalist honors June 19 at the Westfield Junior PGA Championship qualifier at the Woodlands Golf Course.

Bartnick will play July 11-12 at Bedford Valley in the Michigan Westfield Junior PGA Championship.

On June 29, Bartnick carded a 69 to place fourth in the Michigan Junior Amateur qualifier at Plumbrook Golf Course. The finish qualifies him for the Michigan Junior Amateur July 30 at Coldwater Country Club.

Warner makes field

Shannon Warner, 10, who will be a sixth-grader at Randolph Elementary School, has qualified for the 34th annual Junior World Golf Championships July 14-20 in San Diego, Calif.

Warner will compete in the Girls 9-10 age division against an international field. Some of the tournament's past champions include Tiger Woods (six times), Ernie Els, Amy Alcott, Brandy Burton and Kari Webb.

She recently won her first two tournaments on the Meijer Junior Golf Cour and has qualified for the PGA Junior State Finals July 11 in Battle Creek. Warner recently captured the Oakland County Junior with an 85, beating 24 of 25 boys in the 11-and-under division (using the same tees).

She also competed this winter and summer in the Plantations Junior Golf Tour making trips to Illinois (twice), Ohio, New York and Myrtle Beach, S.C. Competing in the Girls 12-and-under, Warner took her last event in Illinois with an 89.

Westland golfer 5th

Frank Dudek Jr. of Carleton emerged the winner of the 33rd Frank Syron Memorial Golf Tournament held at Pontiac Country Club in Waterford. Dudek, a Ford Motor Co. employee, carded a three-round total of 215 (68-71-76) to beat Charles Renfrow of Pontiac by three strokes.

Bill Sylstra of Westland, just two strokes off the pace after two rounds, finished fifth with a 71-70-80/221.

Other area scorers include Kevin Janasik (Livonia), tied for ninth, 226; Patrick Cenkner (Livonia), tied for 19th, 229; Kevin Ryan (Westland), tied for 33rd, 232; Claud Johnston (Westland), tied for 35th, 233; Garry Dristy (Plymouth), tied for 39th, 234; and Bob Horvath (Garden City), tied for 46th, 235.

Collegiate note

Gannon (Pa.) University sophomore Carrie DiBasio (Livonia) was recently named to the Intercollegiate Women's Lacrosse Coaches Association Division II second-team All-America honors for the second year in a row.

DiBasio, a graduate of Bloomfield Hills Academy of Sacred Heart, led Gannon in scoring with 55 goals and was second on the team in points with 65 (ranking 12th in the NCAA). The midfielder added 10 assists and 25 ground balls during the 2001 season.

DiBasio was one of 10 Division II players to tally six goals in a game this season, achieving the feat three times. She was also named to the Eastern College Athletic Conference All-Star team and earned Player of the Week honors. Her teammates named her DiBasio Most Valuable Offensive Player. Gannon reached the NCAA Division II semifinals and DiBasio was selected to the Final Four All-Tournament team.

Pinta takes over Spartans' soccer

BY BRAD EMONS
SPORTS WRITER
bemons@oe.homecomm.net

The coaching baton has been passed in Livonia Stevenson girls soccer program.

Two-year assistant Chris Pinta, a former Stevenson player and member of the Spartans' 1988 state Class A boys championship team, becomes the school's fourth varsity girls coach.

He takes over for Jim Kimble, who resigned last month after going 113-18-8 in seven seasons, while leading the Spartans to a pair of state titles (1997-98) and one-runner-up finish (1999).

Stevenson athletic director Lori Hyman interviewed three candidates for the job and Pinta emerged as the clear-cut choice.

"Chris has very good communication skills and soccer knowledge," Hyman said. "He's been around some of the best coaches, but he has his own ideas, too.

"He has a strong work ethic and he'll do everything in his power to maintain the tradition and the winning program at Stevenson. He'll work hard to keep the program at a high level.

"Jim (Kimble) did a wonderful job and with Chris he gives us consistency and a smooth transition."

Pinta, who turns 29 today, graduated from Stevenson in 1990 and played under the late Pete Scerri, whom he calls "a great guy."

Pinta continued his soccer career at Schoolcraft Community College before transferring to Western Michigan University where he earned degree in Elementary Education.

He has been employed by the Livonia Public Schools for six years and is currently a fifth-grade teacher at Randolph Elementary.

Stevenson, a perennial top-ten ranked team in girls soccer, has quite a history of success dating back to Zathey will lead Lady Crusaders, Larson goes to Oakland U.

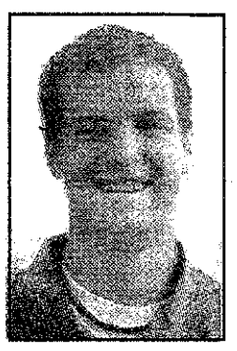
BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS WRITER
cjrisak@oe.homecomm.net

Mark Zathey has been at the beginning a couple of times at Madonna University. Now comes a real test — he gets to start at the top.

Zathey, a 1994 graduate of Livonia Churchill HS, was quickly elevated to become the head coach of Madonna's nationally-ranked women's soccer team Monday, the same day it became official that Rick Larson, the Lady Crusaders' head coach during the first three seasons of the program, resigned to become an assistant coach at Oakland University.



Mark Zathey

Rick Larson

Zathey takes command of a program that figures to be one of the best in the NAIA this fall. Madonna posted a 19-3-2 record last year, winning the Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference and reaching the NAIA Semifinals before losing 3-0 to Simon Fraser.

Not a single player from that team was lost to graduation. But now the coach has been.

Larson's credentials are impressive, to say the least. He built Madonna into a national title contender in just three years, going 36-21-4 in that span; twice he was the WHAC and NAIA Region VIII coach of the year.

Larson also coached Madison Heights Bishop Foley's girls team to a 23-1-1 record this past season, guiding the Ventures to their fifth state title in his seven years at the helm.

New leader: While Madonna's women soccer team returns everyone on the field, including Salem grad Christen Shull (above), the Lady Crusaders will have a new coach in Mark Zathey.

His ties to the regional Olympic Development Program and Nick O'Shea, the former Churchill and Schoolcraft College coach, led Larson to Oakland University, where O'Shea now coaches. Michelle Brach, a Livonia Stevenson grad who was serving as O'Shea's assistant, was forced to resign due to a family commitment.

O'Shea got permission to talk with Larson, who had been considered a candidate to succeed Jim Kimble as Stevenson's girls coach, and from there things moved quickly. Larson accepted the full-time assistant coaching position at OU, an NCAA Division I program, and resigned at both Foley and Madonna.

Larson was out of town earlier this week and was unavailable for com-

Szakal, Foust earn scholarships from WSF

BY PAUL BEAUDRY
STAFF WRITER
pbeaudry@oe.homecomm.net

For many high school seniors, applying for college scholarships can be as much of a full-time chore as doing homework, going to practice or working on a part-time job.

But Plymouth Salem's Kari Foust and Redford St. Agatha's Jenny Szakal found that the hard work can pay off as both earned $1,000 scholarships from Mervyn's and the Women's Sports Foundation Scholarship Fund.

"I was pretty fired up about it," said Foust. "My grandfather's paying for my tuition so every scholarship I get makes him happy."

Both Foust and Szakal earned their scholarships for their participation in athletics as well as their work on an essay – even though neither one could tell you exactly what their essay was.

Jenny Szakal

Kari Foust

"I honestly don't remember what I had to do," laughed Szakal, whose participation in volleyball for the Aggies helped her win the money. "I did so many different applications. I probably did at least 10 applications with essays."

Foust, a swimmer, was equally candid.

"Hey, I applied for at least 16 scholarships, so it's hard to keep them straight and I had to do an essay for every one of them," said Foust. "I think it was something on how sports impacted who I am. I wrote a lot of them on having to deal with swimming and how it formed my outlook on like and how it helps me focus and budget my time."

Foust, who's headed for Hope College in the fall to swim her specialty – backstroke – and major in English while wanting to wind up in pre-dentistry explained how she uses swimming to manage her life.

"Seriously, when something bad, or good for that matter, happens, I have to go swim it out," said Foust. "It gets my mind off of things. If I need a break from school or whatever, I can go swim."

Szakal also remembered her essay topic _ with a little prompting.

""It's how athletics can teach you different things to use later in life," said Szakal, who will attend the University of Michigan-Dearborn for engineering. "Things like sportsmanship and teamwork and how you'd use them in a job. It was tying athletics and life together."

Some 286 girls from around the nation received the one-year scholarship, including nine others from metro Detroit. And both Szakal and Foust did pretty well in defraying the cost of their educations.

Szakal received two other scholar-

Lake Area Rams win fourth straight

LCBL BASEBALL

The Michigan Lake Area Rams ran their winning streak to four on Sunday thanks to a doubleheader sweep over the host Tecumseh (Ont.) Thunder.

The Rams won the opener, 9-1, and the second game, 9-4, to improve to 13-11 overall.

Dale Hayes (Madonna/John Glenn) shut down the Thunder (6-13) in the first game on five hits — three by Justin Martin — to pick up the win, while striking out seven, walking none and allowing only an unearned run in six innings.

Chris Mitchell led the way at the plate by going 3-for-4 with three RBI and a run scored, while Mike Fisher was 2-for-3 with two runs scored, Robby Hudson (Garden City) was 1-for-4 with three RBI and two runs scored, Matt Rigley (Madonna/Redford Union) was 1-for-4 with two RBI, Joe Zacharewski was 1-for-3 with two runs scored and Kevin McKnight and Rob Heumann both had singles.

In the second game, the Rams exploded for five runs in the fifth inning to earn the win.

Hudson had the big bat by going 4-for-5 with a homer and three RBI, while Anderson was 3-for-5 with an RBI, Rigley and Mitchell were both 2-for-4 with Mitchell scoring a run and Rigley having an RBI. Mike Macek (Redford Union) and McKnight both had singles and an RBI, while Zachariewski singled and scored a run.

Brad McCloskey got the win, striking out nine and pitching five innings of no-hit ball. Sean O'Connor (Wayne State/Redford Union) was tagged for all four Tecumseh runs by giving up three hits and four walks in 1 2/3 innings, while Hudson finished up for the final out.

DCI routs Mt. Clemens

LCBL leader Decision Consultants, Inc. swept a doubleheader Sunday from host Mount Clemens at L'Anse Creuse North High School to improve to 18-4-2. DCI won the opener 9-0, then improved on that in the nightcap with a 10-0 win.

Second-place Hines Park Lincoln-Mercury (16-5) kept pace by sweeping the Hurricanes.

DCI won the opener, 9-0, as pitcher Derrick Peterson (3-1) tossed a three-hit complete game. The 6-foot-3, 205-pound right-hander from Eastern Michigan University struck out four and did not issue a walk.

Dave Lusky, a Catholic Central product now playing football at EMU, went 3-for-4 with four RBI and two runs scored. Lusky had a two-run homer, RBI double and RBI single. Tim Andrzejak also drove in three runs with a two-run single and an RBI groundout. Shawn Dobson, Mike Sopo, Jim Nowicki and Randy Ortiz each added two hits. Dobson scored three runs, while Sopo crossed the plate twice.

Bobby Lindsey (4-1), a right-hander from the University of Detroit-Mercy, pitched a five-hit complete game in the nightcap. He struck four and walked one.

Nowicki, a shortstop from Ball State, finished with four RBI and two runs scored. He had a bases-loaded triple and a solo homer.

Madonna University's Chris Woodruff (CC), along with Lusky and Bryan Kay (Canton/Siena Heights) each went 2-for-3 with and RBI.

OBSERVERLAND SPORTS IN BRIEF

FREE BASKETBALL CAMP

The seventh annual Jeff Suspeck Memorial Basketball Camp will be from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, July 28 at Schoolcraft College.

Registration begins at 8 a.m. The camp is free and lunch will be provided by White Castle Systems, Inc.

The non-profit camp is in memory of Jeff Suspect, a former player at Dearborn Divine Child High School and St. Mary's College in Orchard Lake who passed away in 1994 at the age of 24.

He holds several scoring records at St. Mary's including career points (1,785) and holds the National Catholic Basketball Tournament record with 41 points.

The Jeff Suspect Foundation was formed by his family to provide opportunities for underprivileged youth to learn more about the game of basketball.

The camp is run by volunteer players and coaches who knew Jeff.

To obtain a brochure or registration form, or for more information, call (248) 478-0662.

Irish footballers down arch rivals

Detroit Padraig Pearse shed a 10-year albatross of having not beaten its fiercest rival Detroit Wolfetones with a victory June 24 in a Gaelic football encounter at Riley Middle School in Livonia..

Last season, the Pearse and Wolfetones battled to a draw, setting the stage for the latest encounter. Pearce beat Wolfetones 21 (2-15) to 19 (2-13).

In Gaelic football, an Irish sport combining the skills of soccer and rugby, teams earn three points for each goal and one point for a try (a kick through the uprights).

Pearse (2-1) dominated most of the first half and had stellar play from the defense led by Rick Woloszn (Dearborn Divine Child) and Garrett O'Donohue (Redford Catholic Central) keeping the Wolfetones (3-1) at bay.

Wolfetones rallied behind Michael Murray (CC) and trailed by only 2 points at half-time. The play of the Loughran trio (Paul, Nigel and Greg) all from County Tyrone in Ireland, held off Wolfetones. Despite the loss, Wolfetones remained in first place

On Sunday, July 8, Wolfetones host Buffalo (N.Y.) Cuchullian in a 1 p.m. match at Riley Middle School, located off Five Mile, between Merriman and Middlebelt roads.

Padraig Pearse plays Buffalo NaFianna 2:30 p.m. also Sunday at Riley.

Detroit Padraig Pearse will have a fund-raiser 8 p.m. Sunday at the Gaelic League of Detroit, 2068 Michigan Avenue (near Tiger Stadium).

There will be live music, a 50-50 raffle and prizes. Tickets are $10. For more information, call Michael at (517) 332-8684 or Garrett (248) 231-1495.

Norene Divens, who won two state titles (1983, '85) and had one runner-up state trophy (1984).

Mary Kay Hussey then guided Stevenson to a state title in 1990 and Kimble's three-year string state finals appearance (1997-99) produced two Miss Soccers (Allison Campbell and Andrea Sied).

Like Kimble and Hussey, Pinta is a former Stevenson player who well aware of the school's legacy in soccer.

"Playing on that state championship team is a feeling I'll never forget," Pinta said. "And I'll remind the girls from time to time of that. You've got to be thirsty."

After graduating in 1995 from WMU, Pinta assisted Ed McCarthy in the Plymouth Salem boys program and has been Stevenson's JV boys coach the past three years under Lars Richters.

Pinta said he will remain the Stevenson JV boys coach.

"Being under Lars, Ed McCarthy and Jim I picked up a lot of good things and a lot of good techniques," Pinta said. "My biggest challenge is to keep the program running because Jim did a great job for seven seasons. I'll try and continue where he left off and make it a smooth transition.

"I know all the returning players well and have a good rapport with them. The program will be run similar to the way he (Kimble) ran it. It won't be confusing for them. He (Kimble) didn't leave the program to where I have to reinvent the wheel."

Stevenson loses five seniors to graduation, including two All-Staters — Lindsay Gusick, headed to the University of Virginia; and Dana White, bound for Stony Brook University (N.Y.).

But 16 varsity players return, including first-team All-Observer pick Melissa Dobbyn, the team's second-leading scorer.

"I'm pretty excited about it," said Pinta. "I went into the interview with the attitude of really wanting it. That's one of the reasons why I went with Jim Kimble in the first place. I knew some day he had expressed maybe getting out, but I was also interested in the program."

Pinta already his one fan in his corner, his wife Stephanie, who is also a teacher.

"She's very supportive of my coaching and she's excited for me," Pinta said.

U-18 Hawks headed to national finals

BY BRAD EMONS
SPORTS WRITER
bemons@oe.homecomm.net

■ YOUTH SOCCER

All roads to the Final Four lead to Indianapolis — but this time it's the Snickers U.S. Youth Soccer Association girls age-group championships, not the NCAA basketball tournament.

The under-18 Michigan Hawks, featuring several Observerland players, earned the trip for the July 23-29 tournament in Lawrence, Ind. by winning the Region II tourney June 27 in Springfield, Mo. with a 6-3 victory over Carmel, Ind.

Michigan's Miss Soccer, Plymouth Canton's Anne Morrell, the tournament's leading scorer, had four goals in the finals, while Lindsay Gusick (Livonia Stevenson) and Nicole Breger (Madison Heights Bishop Foley) each contributed a goal.

Morrell and forward mate Lindsay Tarpley (Portage Central) are both headed to the University of North Carolina. Meanwhile, Gusick is bound for the University of Virginia.

First-year coach Tim Ernst pretty much tries to stay out of their way. There's no such thing as over-coaching.

"They are special forwards," he said. "We still organize a bit and I give them ideas, but three up-top play so well together, we kind of let them go."

The Hawks earned a semifinal berth by winning their first two preliminary games, a 6-2 victory over St. Croix, Minn. followed by 2-1 triumph over Busch, Mo. (on goals by Gusick and Morrell).

"They (Busch) were a very good team, but we played well, especially in the second half where we could have had a few more goals," Ernst said. "They (Busch) scored on a penalty kick in the 92nd minute."

Ernst then substituted freely in a 4-2 preliminary loss to Ohio Premier.

In the semifinals, Morrell scored a pair of goals in a 5-3 victory over the Milwaukee Kickers to set a date with Carmel in the finals.

Carmel had beaten the Hawks in last year's under-17 region championship, but the 2001 final was a different story.

"When she (Morrell) had to, she turned it up a notch," Ernst said. "She did an unbelievable job."

The Hawks feature six high school Dream Team selections, three other first-team all-staters and a pair of third-team all-state players.

Lauren Monica of Division II state champion Madison Heights Bishop Foley, and Erin Carlson of Portage Central split the goalkeeping duties.

Monica is headed to Purdue, while Carlson will play for Michigan State.

The defense is led by Canton's Amanda Lentz (going to Penn State), Northville's Emily Carbott (MSU), Portage Central's Lisa Grubb (Ohio State) and Portage Central's Emily Wiegand (MSU).

The midfield consists of Milford's Abby Shepard (Connecticut), Bishop Foley's Natalie Galas (Syracuse) and Nicole Breger (Texas), and Rochester Adams' Michelle Peron (an incoming sophomore at MSU).

Other forwards include Stevenson's Katie Beaudoin and Bishop Foley's Michelle Palazzola. Both are headed to Western Michigan.

"This team has been together for awhile and they have unbelievable character," Ernst said. "They play as well has they have to. They have to be the favorite going in (to the nationals)."

The under-15 Hawks also reached the region finals before losing to Busch, while the under-16 and under-19 teams fell in the semifinals.

Wildcats rally for 4-3 win

■ MSHL HOCKEY

Kirk Gurney's goal in the game's final second enabled the Wildcats to withstand a third-period comeback by the Huskies and post a 4-3 victory in the Metro Summer Hockey League Sunday at Farmington's Suburban Training Center.

Trailing 3-1 after two periods, the Huskies had battled back to tie it at 3-all on B.J. Gaylord's goal with 2:17 remaining. But Gurney's goal, assisted by Darrin Fisher, ruined the rally.

Fisher added a goal in the 'Cats' win, and Rob Fleury scored twice. Trent Daavettila had a goal and an assist for the Huskies, with Phil Pietila adding one goal and Mark Pietila getting two assists.

Jamie Ferrara went the distance in goal for the Wildcats; Travis Miller and Rick Marnon (from Canton) divided time in the nets for the Huskies.

Whalers 11, Warriors 9: A five-goal third period led the Whalers to a come-from-behind victory over the Warriors in an MSHL game Sundar.

Eight different players scored goals for the Whalers, with Rich Storm netting two in the final period, including the clincher with :52 left. Storm also had an assist in the game.

Jim Helminen and David Gill (Canton) each netted two goals for the Whalers, with Pat Shannon adding a goal and two assists and Darrin Silvester (Plymouth), Mark Pietila and Dwight Helminen contributing a goal and an assist apiece. Tim Kastamo scored one goal and Keith Pietila had two assists.

Brandon Kaleniecki (Livonia) turned in a superb performance for the Warriors, scoring five goals and assisting on two others. Dave Moss (Livonia) was also outstanding, netting three goals and two assists, and Joe Moreau (Farmington Hills) had a goal and four assists. Pat Donahoe chipped in with two assists.

Mark Lavender (Farmington Hills) was in goal for the Warriors; Brian Whetstone (Plymouth) was in the Whalers' net.

Whalers 8, Spartans 6: The Whalers scored five unanswered goals in the second period to overtake the Spartans and roll to victory Tuesday.

Rich Storm and Dwight Helminen led the assault for the Whalers with two goals and an assist apiece. Mark Pietila added a goal and an assist, while Pat Shannon, David Gill (Canton) and Lars Helminen each scored a goal. Ron Pietila had two assists.

Chris Powroznick (Redford) paced the Spartans with three goals. Pete Mazzoni (Livonia) had a goal and an assist, John Marzolf and Brandon Thom (Livonia) scored goals, and Jim Stephenson (Troy) and Adam Jakubowski (Livonia) got two assists each.

Brian Whetstone (Plymouth) was in goal for the Whalers; Beau Brandeau and Jacob Archer (Livonia) shared time in goal for the Spartans.

Lakers 8, Broncos 3: The Lakers, led by Bryan Marshall (Livonia) and Matt Frick (West Bloomfield), took command early against the Broncos and never let up Tuesday.

Marshall had two goals and two assists and Frick collected two goals and one assist. Nick Jardine (Bloomfield Hills) contributed a goal and an assist, with Sean Baltazar (Plymouth), Josh Shuryan and Mike Vigilante getting one goal apiece.

Paola DeCina (Canton), John Fritz (Plymouth) and Nick Smyth (Rochester Hills) had goals for the Broncos, and Brad Zarem had two assists.

Ryan Davis and Bobby Pruchnik (Livonia) were in goal for the Broncos; John Picklo and Lanny Jardine (Bloomfield Hills) split time in the net for the Lakers.

ships – one from her score on the MEAP test and another from GenCorp in Farmington Hills to use toward her engineering degree – to the total tune of $8,500 for the 2001-02 school year. Foust earned $7,200 toward next year's education, picking up scholarships from the Women's Club of Plymouth, an academic scholarship from Hope College, the MEAP test and a Michael Kilgore scholarship from Salem.

"I was pretty excited about earning this one," said Szakal. "I had filled out so many and only heard back – yes or no – from two before that. I wasn't expecting it because I just found out a few days ago. My mom screamed when she found out."

Both were as productive in their sport as well as the classroom. Foust, who will continue swimming at Hope, was an all-Western Lakes Athletic Association selection, second team all-Observerland and qualified for the Class A state meet in all four years – "though I finished 15th this year and did super bad at states." Szakal was all-Catholic League in volleyball and an all-Academic selection and was an honorable mention pick for the all-Observerland team.

"I've been swimming forever – since I was eight," said Foust, "and I still want to swim. Hope can't give athletic scholarships, so this helps a lot. I feel pretty fortunate to have been selected."

ment.

Zathey was the only one truly considered to take over at Madonna. "It's been kind of a whirlwind," he admitted.

Zathey's background is solid, although he has no previous head coaching experience above the club level. A keeper at Churchill, Zathey enrolled at Madonna and joined the men's team in its first year of existence, playing for Pete Alexander.

As a player, he helped build the men's team into a WHAC championship-caliber squad, serving as team captain in both his junior and senior years. He has served the past three years as an assistant coach for the men's team, helping build the women's program as well during the first two of those years.

Zathey also served as goalkeeper coach at Eastern Michigan under Scott Hall and has coached the Northville Youth Soccer Club program.

"I'm excited," he said. "It's a big challenge. I know these girls pretty well. I know they work hard. I know they're committed to the program."

Certainly it will be a different kind of challenge for Zathey, who helped build both Madonna programs from the ground up. Now he steps into an ideal situation, with all the pieces for a run at a national championship in place.

"They'll have to adjust to me and I'll have to adjust to them," he said. "There are going to be obstacles and challenges along the way. I feel confident I can handle it.

"With (Jenny) Barker, (Kelly) Delaney, (Melissa) Jacobs and (Jamie) Scott, this team is very close-knit. They want to finish the job and win the national title."

Barker, an all-American keeper, and Jacobs are Stevenson graduates; Scott is from Churchill, Delaney is from Clawson.

Zathey, who is currently working on his Master's Degree at Wayne State, feels he has been in the right place at the right time throughout his career. "I've been really fortunate to be around good coaches," he said, referring in particular to Paul Tinnion and Hall at EMU as well as Alexander and Larson at Madonna.

"I've been fortunate to put myself in an environment with good mentors. Now I'm ready to give back to the game."

Following in Larson's footsteps won't be easy. Expectations will be high — none higher than the players' and Zathey's.

Dobson 7th in Forrest Wood Open

Scott Dobson knows Lake St. Clair. A regular on several local bass fishing tournament circuits and a local fishing guide, he has been around the 420-square mile lake more than a few times.

Dobson, of Waterford, parlayed that knowledge into his biggest payday yet by finishing seventh last week in the prestigious Wal-Mart FLW $200,000 Forrest Wood Open. He earned $23,000 for his finish, and an additional $2,500 for representing one of the tournament's sponsors, Snickers Cruncher, on the weigh-in stage.

OUTDOOR INSIGHTS

BILL PARKER

"It was an awesome week and something everyone should experience, either as a pro or a co-angler," Dobson said.

The tournament features 175 of the top professional bass fishermen from across the country, paired with 175 amateurs, or co-anglers. The pros drive the boat and make all the decisions while the co-anglers fish from the back of the boat.

Total weight accumulates for the first two days of the four-day event. The co-angler standings are determined after the first two days. For the pros, the top 10 after the first two days advance to the semifinals. In the semi's and finals, all previous weight is erased and everyone starts from scratch.

The top five placers from the semifinals advance to the finals, where the winner walks away with $200,000.

Dobson advanced to the semifinals by placing sixth after the first two days of competition with a limit of 10 fish that weighed 30 pounds, 7 ounces.

"I was pretty excited then," he said. "I was nervous to an extent, but I just knew I had to go out there and fish."

The third day turned out to be the toughest day of the tournament. Dobson slipped to seventh when he caught just two keepers that totalled 5 pounds 11 ounces.

"It was absolutely my worst day on Lake St. Clair," Dobson said. "It was tough and I struggled all day. It was post-frontal and everybody struggled.

Two guys didn't even catch a keeper and one guy caught one. I didn't have a keeper until 2 o'clock, and I caught the other one right in front of Metro Beach while I was going in to the weigh-in."

Dobson said he caught most of his fish on a soft plastic jerk bait called a "Fluke" and a 6-foot-8 extra fast St. Croix casting rod.

"It's more of a spring presentation, but I caught 90 percent of my fish on it," Dobson said.

Larry Nixon, of Bee Branch, Arkansas, won the tournament. He was tied for first after the first two days with 10 fish that weighed 32 pounds, 13 ounces. He was the top placer in the semifinals with a five-fish limit that went 14 pounds 2 ounces. Nixon wrapped up the title on the final day by bringing in the heaviest five-fish limit of the tournament, 18 pounds, 2 ounces.

While a top-five finish was his goal, Dobson was far from disappointed.

"I was pretty happy with the finish. I'm not disappointed at all," Dobson said. "It was an awesome experience and they're coming back here next year, so hopefully I'll be back in it again."

Dobson' s success is already paying dividends.

"A Ranger (Boats) representative approached me after the tournament about running a Ranger Boat for the Cabela's Team next year," Dobson said. "It might work out real well."

Fly fishermen take note, here's a chance to provide direct assistance to children with special needs while enjoying your favorite pastime at the same time.

Created by fly shop owner and author Kelly Galloup and his wife Penny – who have a three-year-old son, McKenzie, who has autism – the McKenzie Foundation was established to raise money for direct assistance to the children of families in the fly-fishing industry.

In an effort to raise money for the foundation two fund-raisers are taking place.

Wildlife artist Richard Forrest is donating all the proceeds of the sale of a limited-edition steelhead print to the foundation.

In addition, the inaugural McKenzie Foundation Fly Fishing Tournament is scheduled for July 14 and 15 at Ranch Rudolph, on the Boardman River. All proceeds from the tournament will benefit the foundation.

For more information about the print, the tournament or the McKenzie Foundation, call The Troutsman at (800) 308-7688 or visit the shop's website at www.troutsman.com.

Bald Mountain Range closes

The public shooting range at Bald Mountain Recreation Area in Lake Orion will close July 1 to undergo renovations under the Clean Michigan Initiative.

Work planned for the skeet and trap, five-stand and shooting clay ranges is scheduled to be completed by Sept. 1, and construction activities at the rifle, pistol and black powder range are expected to be finished by Oct. 26

Shooters are encouraged to use the public facilities at Pontiac Lake, Island Lake or Ortonville recreation areas while the renovations are being completed.

(Bill Parker writes a weekly outdoor column for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. Hunters and anglers are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information to: Bill Parker, c/o Outdoors, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI 48009.)

CANTON PUBLIC

City might ban flea market

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Our city ordinance says we can't have on our property garbage, rubbish, trash, refuse, junk and other materials.

I'm thinking about running an informal flea market and am wondering whether you think that ordinance would apply to my situation?

In a case similar to yours, the Kansas Supreme Court indicated that an ordinance that prohibits residents from creating an unsightly appearance and went on to specifically design the types of items creating the unsightly appearance wasn't unconstitutionally vague and could be enforced.

The court reasoned that the enumeration of categories in the ordinance, when linked to the detailed notice which you presumably would receive from the municipality, identifies the conduct deemed by the municipality as constituting a nuisance.

The court went on to say that the thrust of the ordinance prohibited conditions which would deteriorate or debase the appearance and general character of the neighborhood and the court believed in context of the entire ordinance, a reasonable person of average sensibilities could determine what was an unsightly condition, which would presumably include the flea market that you're considering.

Keeping a fresh outlook

The year is half over. Bitter cold days of winter evolve into the dog days of summer separated by the rains of spring and fall.

Buyers and sellers connect. Closings follow accepted puchase agreements which, in turn, follow listings. The circle continues day in and day out.

There is no off season in real estate. The show must go on. So how do Realtors stay fresh?

Jim Asbury, associate broker with Jack Christenson Realtors in Troy, has enjoyed 23 years in the business.

From his experience, you make time for yourself, you start each day with a business goal and you keep things in perspective.

"Every chance I get, I go out fishing and golfing," Asbury said. "Fishing once, golfing twice a week. Today, you carry your office with you with a cell phone and beeper. You can be out and accessible."

Flying by the seat of your pants or trying to satisfy everyone's whims isn't going to keep a Realtor fresh, Asbury said.

"You have to have a goal, even for one day. Every morning I get up, I say a prayer that this day will be better than the last one.

"It's a very stressful job. When you deal with people, you're on call 24 hours a day. People want instant results."

Get a life

But Ashby said he's learned that he doesn't always have to jump just because someone might want it.

"You have to put it in perspective. You have to live a life. I tell them I'm not doing brain surgery. The house will be there tomorrow."

Anita Sachs, associate broker with Century 21 Today in Farmington Hills, likes to keep moving in a lot of different ways.

"Physically, exercise helps a lot," she said. "I walk around the neighborhood, walk my dog, every other day. I exercise every morning.

"I hadn't been doing that and I was in a slump. Now I feel great. That projects to your people, too.

"I'm a singer. That helps. I'm in a choir and that's a constant in my life.

"Especially when I'm down and out, I pray, go into meditation away from the office," she said.

Fun, fun, fun

All work and no play makes Jack and Jill dull Realtors, maintains Louise Bisogni, who's affiliated with Coldwell Banker Schweitzer in Clarkston.

"What we try to do is make plans to do something that's fun. If you can do that through work, fine," she said.

"We might have someone come in and do massage therapy, do nails, wine and cheese. Another thing we're planning is a boat trip. It just gives you a fresh outlook."

Some Realtors find that several three- or four-day getaways, rather than one or two longer vacations during the course of a year, better recharge the batteries, Bisogni said.

Regular involvement in professional associations such as the Women's Council of Realtors – which also accepts men as members – and combining business with pleasure at national or state convention also rejuvenate, Bisogni added.

Good memories

Sometimes, a happy outcome in the field can provide a real spark and serve as an instant-replay in the mind when things start dragging.

Joe Nimmo, affiliated with Real Estate One in Livonia, explains.

"I had one the other day. She was 80, he was 85. They bought a house two doors down from where they were living. They wanted a ranch instead of a tri-level.

"They depended on me 100 percent and couldn't give me enough compliments for handling things."

On a more regular basis, Nimmo spends time staying connected with his eight grandchildren, taking short getaways with wife, Pamela, and playing a doubleheader once a week on a church league softball team.

"That kind of lets me vent my anger and frustrations sometimes," he said of the sports activity.

Sandy Doner, associate broker with Remerica Hometown 3 in Canton, makes sure to look out for number one.

"You take off at least one day a week or you get burned out," said the 20-year veteran. "I spend time with my family bike riding, visiting parks, shopping."

Doner also periodically attends work-related seminars to stay current and fresh in the field, regarding the cost is an investment in herself.

MORTGAGE BITS

TIM 'TIMBO' PHILLIPS

How would you feel if you were cleaning out some old files at home and discovered a savings passbook from years ago showing a balance of a thousand dollars? Sure, it is not likely because most of us would know if we had an extra grand lying around. However, if we were not aware of this hidden treasure, it may have been lost forever.

My goal today is to let you know that you (or somebody you may know) may have money due back from the government through the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, HUD. In fact, it may be there for the taking if you just knew to ask for it.

Very few FHA borrowers know that a portion of the money they used to buy their home was put aside to subsidize their monthly payments during the early phases of their loan. This "account" is called the up-front mortgage insurance premium (UFMIP). Last year, most FHA borrowers put 2.25 percent of their new loan amount away to finance their UFMIP. Jan. 1, HUD reduced the UFMIP amount to 1.5 percent.

A year ago, an FHA buyer borrowing $140,000 to buy her home would have put over $3,000 into her UFMIP account. That money did not come from out of her pocket when she bought her home, per se. It was actually financed into the loan.

So where is the hidden treasure? If borrowers sell their FHA-financed property, or if they refinance out of their FHA loan into a conventional mortgage, there is sometimes a balance remaining in their UFMIP account. If the FHA mortgage is less than a few years old, the refundable UFMIP balance could be substantial. After five years, there is normally no refund due.

Even if they have been out of their FHA mortgage for a long time, ex-FHA borrowers can request their UFMIP refunds by hitting HUD's Web site www. hud. gov and clicking on "FHA Refunds," by calling HUD's customer service at (800) 697-6967, or by asking their favorite mortgage loan officer for help.

Tim "Timbo" Phillips is a mortgage loan officer in Plymouth. For a free mortgage pre-qualification or credit assessment, you may contact him at PhillipsHQ@ yahoo. com or at (734) 797-5522 [24 hours]. Homebuyers should always consult a professional for guidance specific to their situation.

Here come the line-clearing tree cutters

In July and August, line-clearance crews will continue or begin work in the following communities:

Auburn Hills, Clarkston, Independence Township, Livonia, Orchard Lake, Oxford, Oxford Township, Rochester Hills, Southfield, Troy, Waterford Township and West Bloomfield Township.

As the summer storm season reaches its peak, Detroit Edison line-clearance crews will work to help ensure that its customers have safe, reliable electric service.

Crews during the next two months will maintain a 10-foot clearance between tree branches and power lines to reduce the potential for power outages.

This year, the utility will trim 800,000 trees near its power lines.

Detroit Edison's line-clearance program is designed to help prevent power outages – especially during wind and ice storms – that result when trees grow into electrical wires. Storm-related outages occur when lightning and wind damage trees and cause them to fall into power lines, which come down along with poles and transformers.

Mortgages

Long-term, short-term rates mixed

WASHINGTON (AP) – Mortgage rates around the country were mixed this week after edging down for three weeks in a row.

The average interest rate on 30-year fixed-rate mortgages held steady at 7.11 percent, unchanged from last week, according to a nationwide survey released by Freddie Mac, the mortgage company.

Fifteen-year mortgages, a popular option for refinancing, dipped to 6.63 percent this week, compared with 6.65 percent the previous week.

At the same time last year, rates for 30-year mortgages averaged 8.29 percent and rates for 15-year mortgages averaged 7.92 percent.

On one-year adjustable-rate mortgages, lenders were asking an average initial rate of 5.77 percent, up from 5.74 percent the week before. Last year, one-year ARMs stood at 7.22 percent.

These rates do not include add-on fees known as points, which averaged around 1 percent of the loan amount for all three types of mortgages.

Michigan Mortgage Reality Check

Consumer Mortgage Advisory #4: Lenders without funds

Believe it or not, some mortgage companies have no funds at closing. Don't let that happen to you. Start with a Premier Mortgage Lender, then look at the rate. It's the only way to guarantee that the money will actually be there at closing and that your deal won't change at the last minute.

MEYERS ON MORTGAGES

INTERNET WOES ROOTED IN ETHICS

by GARY S. MEYERS

This week, The Meyers Report looks at ethics and the Internet, explaining how the challenges of tomorrow can and must be met with the philosophy of ages past.

For all of its advancements the Internet's greatest trouble is ethics, an issue first raised thousands of years ago in the schools of ancient Greece. The risk is far more than philosophical, it is our present and future economy, and our personal freedom.

We seem to be hearing more and more about the dark side of the Internet — everything from pornography and fraud to massive break-ins and deliberate widespread damage. With every new report, politicians and computer experts scurry for answers, expressing shock and dismay, calling for measures to prevent future problems.

But are we truly justified in our horrified response? Perhaps not, said Charles Husson, a Virginia-based computer pioneer and Internet theorist.

"The Internet, for all of its attempts at security, still operates on the honor system," said Husson. "It was made to be totally accessible and user-friendly. The security systems are in place to keep honest people out, to turn them away if they stumble onto a site accidentally, or if they are not serious about causing trouble."

Husson likens the Internet's current state to a small town where most residents leave the doors unlocked, actually hoping for visitors.

"The problem is that there is no provision for ethical breaches," he said. "One assault in a quiet neighborhood terrorizes people for blocks around, when it was the very openness that invited trouble."

Husson, who teaches Internet technology in Virginia, explains that many of his college students regard ethics as irrelevant to the workings of the Internet.

Because the coding used for Internet addresses employs very strict rules, he believes it is easy for anyone who understands them to misuse them. It can be as simple as hacking into a secure site, or as demonstrated recently, shutting down major Internet players by overloading their systems. The only thing holding most people back, is ethics.

"Ethics has to do with the ways in which we abide by our own moral code," Husson said. "If one has no moral code, one has no ethics. Many of my students regard attacking secure sites as interesting challenges, or they rationalize it by claiming that they are helping to expose a site's vulnerability. They're street smart about the Internet, and that leads to a very pragmatic approach — in other words, an approach completely lacking in ethics. Too many young people do things, just to see if it can be done."

This pragmatic approach takes the form of opportunistic and even predatory use of the web on a regular basis. In some cases, websites are used for fraud, to promote illegal activities, or simply to spread lies and propaganda to vast audiences.

"It's like in the early days of printing," Husson said. "There was a time when anyone with a cheese press and a set of letters could put out anything they wanted, and there was no way to protect authorship, ownership or the truth. It got so bad that Sir Isaac Newton refused to publish his theories after dishonest printers had stolen many of his ideas and forwarded them to other academics, who put them out as their own."

Printing guilds, which observed strict guidelines for their work, were established to solve the problem. The printer's "imprimatur" in a book was the assurance of integrity in its publication.

"One of the major problems we have with many of the Internet service providers is that the people who are doing the service, operation and maintenance are selected for their technical skill, and not for their philosophical depth," Husson lamented. "The imprimatur used by early guild printers is not likely to show up in any modern way. Ethics only plays a role in the operation to the extent that their own structures aren't violated from within."

The issue of Internet ethics is not limited to criminals, hackers, and electronic wrecking crews, however. If it were, the discussion would be pointless, since they have already rejected any interest in ethical behavior. More important to the equation is the average user, who faces ethical questions every time he logs in.

"The law is being violated almost every time you turn on your computer," warns Husson. "Remember that copyright law prohibits duplication by any means. If you download copyrighted material without permission, be it a photograph from an online news service or an article passed along by a friend, you have duplicated it, and you have broken the law."

The key, says Husson, is for those who are aware of ethical concepts to be vigilant and not let pragmatism erode the morals that they follow outside the virtual realm.

"If this thing is to truly have a chance," Husson warns, "those who have the capacity to act ethically must do so. If they do, many of the gaping doors will close and lock themselves. If they don't, they might as well invite the rest of the thieves and looters in for dinner."

Faux stone: Homeowners can create the look of natural stone walls without the weight. The artificial stone combines both the stability and ease of installation

Artificial-stone retaining walls look like the real thing

If you're landscaping your home, you might like the look of natural stone walls. But stone can be both costly and difficult to install.

Now there's an attractive, affordable and easy-to-install alternative: new concrete retaining wall products that feature the colors and texture of natural stone.

More than ever before, manufacturers such as Anchor Wall Systems are transforming traditional concrete block retaining walls into the look and feel of natural stone. With the new Anchor Meadow Stone, homeowners can create beautiful, natural-looking retaining walls, terraces, tree rings and other landscaping projects.

A combination of rough-hues, rich blended colors and random patterns enhance the natural looks of Anchor Meadow Stone.

"No two Meadow Stone blocks are alike, which gives the wall a very organic, yet elegant, look," says Jim Mugge of Anchor Wall Systems. "And the blocks' multiple hues combine to create a unique effect that replicates closely what Mother Nature produces."

Using three different size blocks, the installation pattern is simple and easy to follow.

"Most small and moderate-sized projects can be completed by the do-it-yourself homeowner in a day or two," said Mugge.

Get step-by-step guidelines for installing straight wall and tree ring applications with Anchor Meadow Stone at Home Depot.

Anchor Meadow Stone blocks can be bought at Home Depot. Or you can call toll-free (877) 295-5415 for more information.

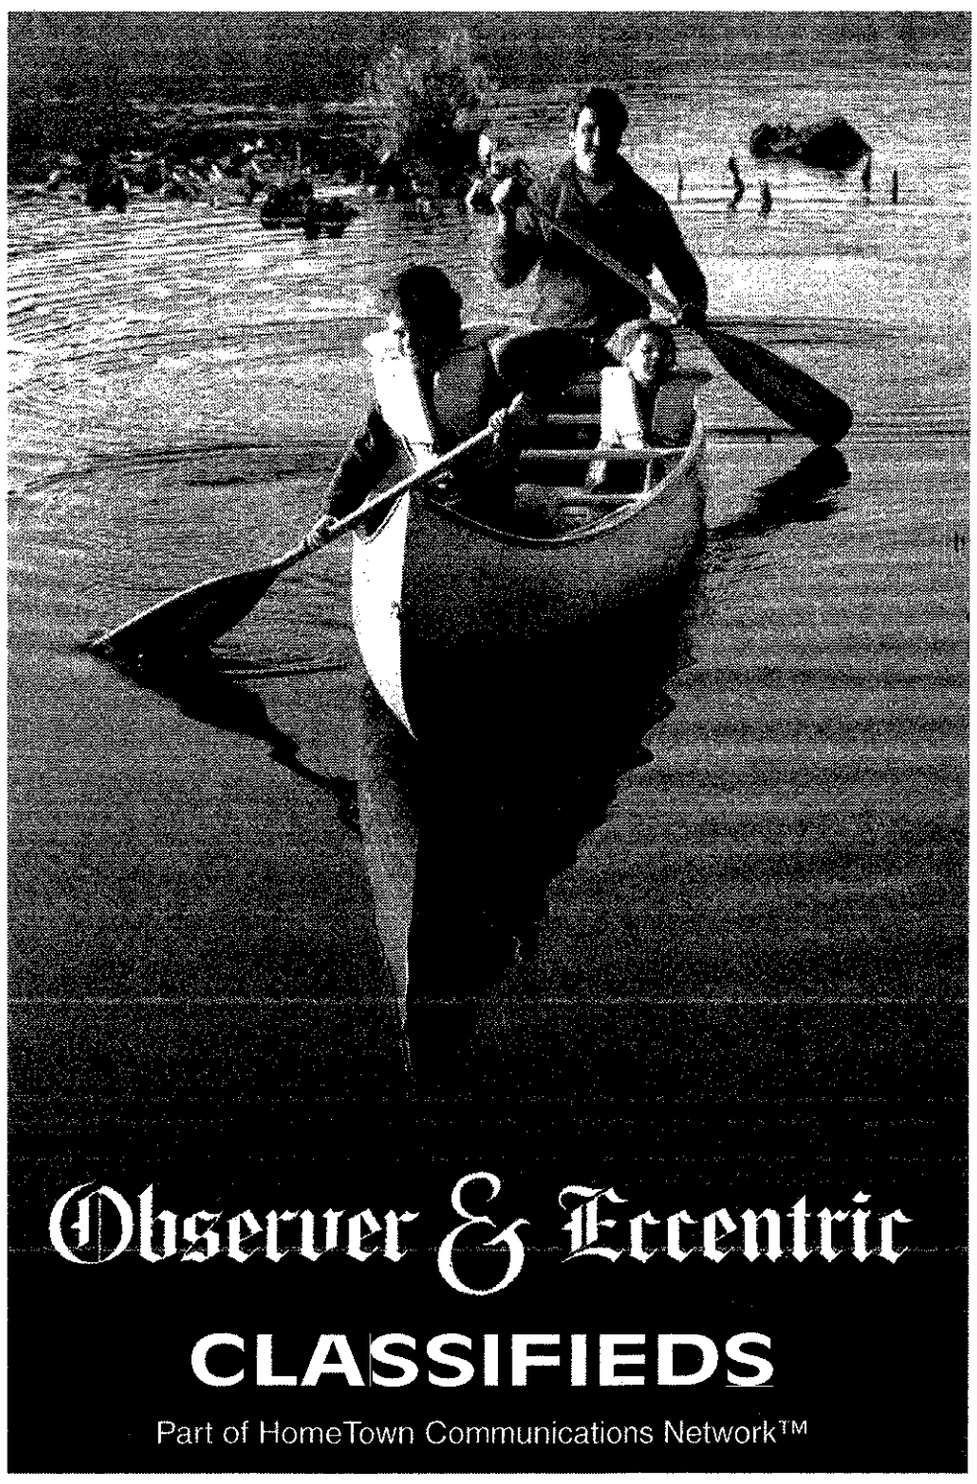
We're a whole lot closer to home.



Families have found some of the best things in our hometown classifieds. Like this really great canoe in the Birmingham Eccentric or that great big, loveable old dog, in the Canton Observer.

Folks take time to look for that special item advertised by a neighbor who sold his cottage or the woman who can't have a dog in her new apartment. They spend time shopping our friendly classified marketplace.

So, if you have something you're not using, or if you're looking for an item and want to buy it close to home, pick up your Observer & Eccentric Classifieds.

Oh and by the way, you can access our classifieds online any time at oeonline.com

Sound Off 729-4006 is an opinion forum for readers' comments. To chime in, please call 729-4006 after 5 p.m. on weekdays and anytime over the weekend. Leave messages on our Web site, www.micomnews.com., anytime. Callers must not slander the good citizens of Western Wayne County. Readers must be aware that Sound Off callers' opinions are neither presented as facts nor as MCN's opinions.

Binge drinking is wrong for adults, who should know better

I agree with your article ("Jenna Bush can't drink to her health," all June 14 MCN editions). The drinking laws unfairly punish young adults.

Binge drinking is wrong for college students. It is at least as wrong for adults, who not only have more responsibilities, but should know better.

Westland has two zip codes and 100 sexual offenders

I'd like to point out to you that there are more than 60 people on Westland's sexual offender list.

The list is by zip codes. There are two zip codes in Westland. You included the zip code with 60 sexual offenders. The other one has 40 for a total of 100.

You asked people to give you their opinion on whether to publish the names on the list. I think that you should.

Westland Mayor Bob Thomas's mouth wasn't made for insulting

I attended the June 18 city council meeting and thought that Mayor Thomas was quite rude to Ivan.

I know of many citizens who have called the mayor and are still waiting for a return call. So Mayor Thomas, if you expect the newspaper reporters to do accurate coverage, then perhaps you should take the time to converse with those reporters who try to talk to you rather than insult them at public meetings.

In fact, it appears that every time you open your mouth anymore, you insult people. If not directly, you do so indirectly by insulting the intelligence of those you are suppose to represent.

Just because a person makes an accusation does not make it true

Vengeance can be a damaging disease. I am referring to yet another edition of Mrs. Hessler-Davis' [apparent] vendettas.

The reason why so many people laughed at her questions at city council meetings was not because her initial questioning of the city expenditures was not valid, but because she backed her endless questioning with innuendoes and offered no basis in fact.

Mud Day offers kids dirty fun

By IVAN HELFMAN
MCN Staff Writer

Not since Close Encounters of the Third Kind has wet dirt been so enticing.

But Wayne County's annual Mud Day at Nankin Mills in Westland has the same dirty appeal.

Mud Day returns to Wayne County on Tuesday, July 10 at 11 a.m.

All kids 12-years-old and under are invited to participate in one of Wayne County Parks' most popular events.

County beavers mix more than 200 tons of topsoil and over 20,000 gallons of water to ensure that the mud is oozing right for the kids frolic in.

Youngsters will be separated into categories based on age to participate in "Mud Limbo," wheel barrow races, or to wallow like hogs in slop.

At the conclusion of the event, Mr. and Miss. Mud will be crowned.

To ensure that parents and children are prepared for this day of dirt, it is suggested that parents make sure that children are wearing old clothes and shoes. Except for Richie Rich, no Sunday school clothes allowed.

Children also need to bring a clean change of clothes.

Ed McNamara

An on-site clean up area will be provided. The Wayne County Fire Department will be on hand with hoses to aid in rinsing mud off the children.

Parents are also advised to bring a supply of towels, as there are no showers on site.

Worried about how to transport the old clothes home? Don't panic, plastic bags will be provided to ensure that all dirty clothes are properly contained for the trip home.

"It's an opportunity for the little ones to get dirty with Mom's permission," said Wayne County Executive Edward H. McNamara. "They really enjoy it, after all, how often does that happen?"

The Hines Park Nankin Mills Area is located on Hines Drive, east of Ann Arbor Trail in Westland. This event has been co-sponsored with the Westland Parks and Recreation Department.

Tradeport funding dead at Willow Run

In WWII, Willow Run to defend the free world against the fascists.In the 21 century, Canton has Rep. Bruce Patterson to defend the suburban world against Willow Run. Last week, an amendment by the Republican House Majority Floor Leader blocked state funding for the expansion of Willow Run's runways.

"When considering the expansion of Willow Run airport for use as a tradeport we need to keep two issues in mind: geography and quality of life," said Patterson, who has fought expansion of the Willow Run airport since serving on the Wayne County Commission.

> "Expanding the airport to allow for larger cargo planes would result in aircraft flying dangerously close to homes and businesses.
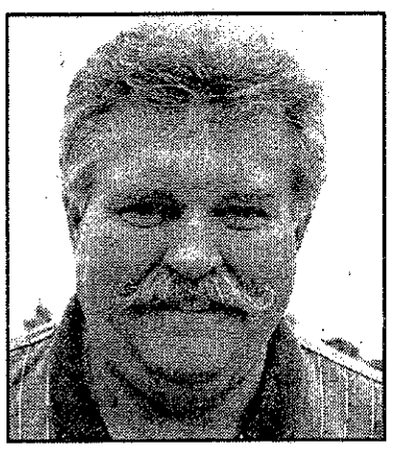
> -Rep. Bruce Patterson

Expanding the airport to allow for larger cargo planes would result in aircraft flying dangerously close to homes and businesses," he said. "The geography of the region simply does not lend itself to the supporting of larger aircraft. Further, larger planes and more frequent takeoffs and landings would greatly diminish the quality of life for homeowners that live near the airport, not to mention the damage it would do to home values."



Rep. Bruce Patterson

Adopted unanimously, the Patterson amendment sayshat no funds shall be allocated for any runway extensions, taxiway extensions, or apron extensions at the Detroit-Willow Run airport.

Going farther, it says that no state funds shall even be spent to repair the airport.

Failure to expand Willow Run has forced some its tenants, such as the multi-million-dollar Connie Kalitta Flying Service, to move some of their airplanes to other airports.

Jet setters toast Freddy G.'s wedding

By BEN E. JET
MCN Special Writer

I'm not going to attempt to count how many gas stations are on Michigan Avenue between Telegraph and Canton Center Road. But if you need gas Michigan Avenue seems to be the place to go. A couple of truck stops, Sunoco, Speedway and the new 7-11 gas stations including an extra big one being built at the corner of Canton Center. This along with a White Castle, a couple of Taco Bells, and a few McDonald's restaurants should keep commuters rolling in the fast lane.

I do think everyone should buy their gas at the cheapest station. This is the American way. The station that gives the best price gets the most business. Prices can vary as much as 20 cents a gallon just on this one strip of Michigan Avenue.

If the guy charging more gets your business, the other stations have no incentive to lower prices. If they see costumers driving across the street for a better price, they will have to lower their price to stay competitive.

The social event of the year happened at the recent wedding of Freddy G., a Belleville resident and the owner of BT's night club.

People from around the world attended the wedding at Freddy's Belleville home. The guest list was a who's who of Belleville society. There were the beautiful BT's girls, great food, DJs, live bands, dancing til dawn, swimming, and valet parking.

Heard from Alicia's friend Tom, who reports the infamous seminude Heath Beach is closed and has a for sale sign on it. I still find it interesting that you can sell water or own a beach.

Heard from Sandra, lead singer for Jeff and the Atlantics. Sandra was sad to report the passing of Detroit Blues legend John Lee Hooker.

Things to Do

Mud Day -- 11 a.m. July 10 at Hines Park-Nankin Mills Picnic Area, in Westland. Combine two hundred tons of dirt and twenty-thousand gallons of water and you have created every child's fantasy and every mother's nightmare. To top off this event, they will crown the champion Mr. and Ms. Mud.

Michigan Elvisfest – July 14-15 in Ypsilanti's historic Depot Town district, Riverside Park and Frog Island Park north of Michigan Avenue. It will feature a classic car show, Elvis fan clubs, a pork cook-off, Elvis movies, and a dozen Elvis impersonators, including Matt King, Doug Church and Sherman Arnold.

Contact Ben E. at (313) 730-1627 or BENNYANDTHEJETS.COM. See the band July 15 in concert with Big Brother and the Holding Company (formerly Janis Joplin's band) at Motown Harley-Davidson on Telegraph Road in Taylor.

Triathlon athletes to brave PCB lake

By IVAN HELFMAN
MCN Staff Writer

Triathlon athletes will be among the first to dive into Newburgh Lake for a swim. But they may be the only people to take a dip in the Hines Park lake this year, despite a highly publicized $15-million cleanup promoted by County Prosecutor Mike Duggan three years ago.

"The water quality in Newburgh Lake is significantly improved," said Barb Farrah, a Wayne County Department of Environment spokesperson. "We do plan on having the swim portion of our August 19th Triathlon at this time. We will continue to have the Environmental Health Dept. do testing up until the few days before the race to make sure the water quality is OK."

Newburgh Lake that has been closed for years because of PCB pollution. PCB, the popular name for polychlorinated biphenyl, is an industrial chemical that can accumulate in human tissue and cause cancer, mutate genes, or cause neurological disorders.

The state of the lake's health was so feared that Westland residents protested in 1996 when Wayne County dug up 300,000 cubic feet of the lake's bottom (what Duggan, then deputy county executive, called "clean clay") and buried it at two sites in Westland. Cooper Elementary School and Holiday Park received more than half of the bottom diggings that lowered the lake eight feet.

Now the problems are not PCBs but overall safety, according to Farrah. Before open swimming returns, the Wayne County Health Department must determine if E. coli bacteria levels are safe and whether there are any underwater hazards.

Once the lake gets the green light, then the county will have to hire an adequate number of lifeguards.

So far, lifeguards have only been hired for the Triathlon.

"We have the race course checked for underwater hazards and have lifeguards on duty that day for the participants safety," Farrah said. "So the triathlon is a one day event that we will allow the swimmers in the lake."

Farrah doesn't know when the costly renovation work will payoff with the return of swimming.

"The Department of Health is actually the designated agency that determines and gives the OK for swimming in any facility in Wayne County," she said.

But Department of Environment workers plan to teach the public how to limit environmental damage to lake from fertilizing lawns and leaky septic systems, two practices that cause E. coli bacteria to breed.

It's hoped that an educated public will result in a clean lake.

NEWS FROM THE CITY OF WAYNE

Take a plunge!

Wayne's lifeguards are among nation's best

The City of Wayne's lifeguards are ranked among the nation's best.

After four random 'Operational Safety Audits in 2000', the Ellis and Associates Risk Management Firm, concluded the Wayne Aquatic Center ranked above safety standards during each of the rigorous evaluations.

And, because of its findings, Ellis awarded the Wayne Aquatic Center a Silver National Aquatic Safety Award.

Kim Fallow, director of Parks and Recreation, attributed the outstanding achievement by the Aquatic Center to her Aquatic Center Supervisor Richard Parker, Assistant Aquatic Supervisor Lindsey Butzin, and the entire lifeguard staff.

"Their hard work and dedication in maintaining a safe water environment for the community to enjoy reflects in this award," Fallow said.

> "Their hard work and dedication in maintaining a safe water environment for the community to enjoy reflects in this award"

Only 165 of the 462 aquatic facilities evaluated in 2000 earned this prestigious award.

Wayne Aquatic Center lifeguards were evaluated on such things as their professionalism, accessibility, and rescue readiness. They also were tested on their ability to demonstrate emergency rescues, extrications, and resuscitation efforts.

A portion of the Safety Award is also based on the operation and the administration of the Aquatic Center. This includes areas such as equipment maintenance, staff supervision, and report and record keeping.

People Helping People seeks volunteers

The popular `People Helping People' program is in need of a few good men and women.

The program assists a senior or handicapped person to fix-up their home.

"We're looking for some volunteers and a commitment from local businesses, service organizations, and community members for material and supplies," said Ed McMurray, chairman of the program. "If you're interested please get a hold of me or Susan Sweet-McMahan."

McMahan may be reached at 722-2000, extension 215.

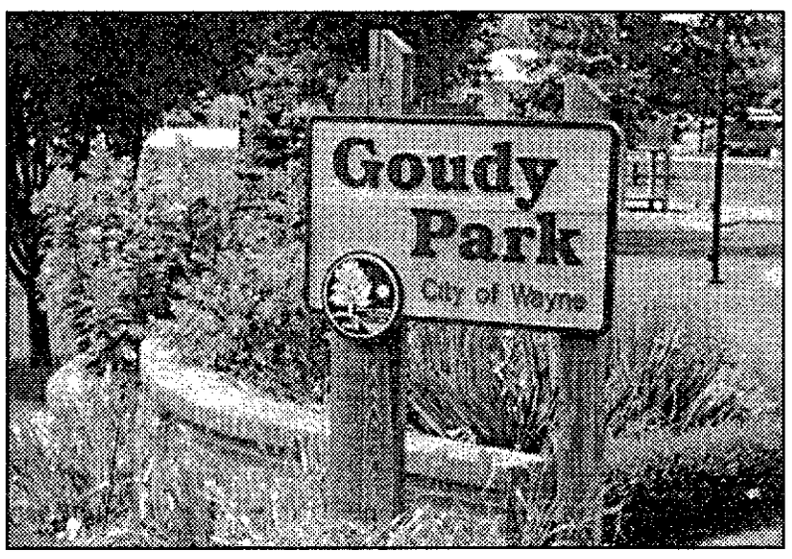
The program, in its fourth year, will be conducted this year on Sept. 15.

The goal of People Helping People is to improve the exterior of a home of a Wayne resident. The home is preselected by program officials. Volunteers are being asked to donate one day to help with projects such as painting, planting, and minor house repairs.

All volunteers will be asked to assemble at 8 a.m. at the Senior Activity Center on the corner of Wayne Road and Sims Avenue. They will be treated to a continental breakfast prior to beginning the work at the site.

Also, volunteers will be provided with all of the necessary materials, a t-shirt, paint hats, bottled water and pop. Lunch will be sponsored by the Wayne Beautification Committee and will be served at the project site.

McMurray has a score of noted Wayne residents working on his committee. The committee consists of Councilwoman Donna McEachern, Kimberly Fallow, Parks and Recreation director; Peter McInerney, Community Development Director; Nancy Noel-Wojewski, Senior Services Supervisor; Susan Sweet-McMahan, Housing Rehabilitation Specialist, and community activist Audrey Tucker.



Dressed in the multicolors of summer, the gardens of Wayne will be on display July 21. The Wayne Garden Club is hosting its annual tour of the gardens, and residents and garden lovers are invited to enjoy the picturesque stroll among the city's many gardens. The tour will begin at Goudy Park (featured in photo above).

A garden walk - Wayne to host tour of summer beauty

Summer is all dressed up in its finest colors.

And members of the Wayne Garden Club want you to enjoy "A Garden Walk" through some of the most colorful gardens the city has to offer. And there are many.

The picturesque season is yours if you just follow the red-brick road to Goudy Park.

"Our tour will begin at Goudy Park, which is located immediately behind City Hall, and we'll take visitors on a walk of splendor," says Judy Howton, a spokesperson for the Wayne Garden Club.

Goudy Park is located at 3355 S. Wayne Road.

The tour is scheduled from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on July 21. Tour tickets, at $5 each, may be purchased at Norman's Meat Market, on Wayne Road; Keller and Steins Florist, on Michigan Avenue, and the Wayne Library, Wayne Road, north of Michigan Avenue.

Tickets also will be available on the day of the Walk.

Garden Club members will have maps available at Goudy Park, or residents may pick them up at the eight tour sites.

Proceeds generated from "A Garden Walk" will be used to promote civic beautification, gardening projects and education and conservation programs in the City of Wayne.

The president of the Wayne Garden Club is Beverly Woodard, and Claudia Redifke serves as co-president. Vice-presidents are Carol Weyand and Diane Malone.

Residents should be aware that the Garden Walk will take place whether it rains or shines.

Artists' mural tribute to people

Two young and talented artists - Vaidehi Merchant and Joya Marsh - collaborated on a mural that paid tribute to those with disabilities and handicaps.

And for their unselfish donation of the mural to the Services To Enhance Potential - Western Wayne organization, Vaidehi and Joya were recently honored.

The two John Glenn students, working under the supervision of their art teacher, Steve Paulson, came up with a mural "that depicts a road running on to the horizon. It honors People with Developmental Disabilities who strive to be accepted as contributing members of our communities, and the STEP program assisting them in going in new directions," according to a media advisory from the organization.

Pauslon is an instructor with the William D. Ford Career and Technical Center in Westland.

"Stepping Out, Growing Strong, Changing Lives" is the motto of Services to Enhance Potential, an organization dedicated to the advancement of persons with developmental and other disabilities.

The mural is displayed on the workshop wall at Services to Enhance Potential's Western Wayne Facility, a City of Wayne business since 1981.

NEWS FROM THE CITY OF INKSTER

Mayor's golf outing, luau dates are set

By THEOLA JONES
MCN Staff Writer

Golfers from all points are making plans to attend and participate in Inkster Mayor Hilliard Hampton's popular annual Golf Outing.

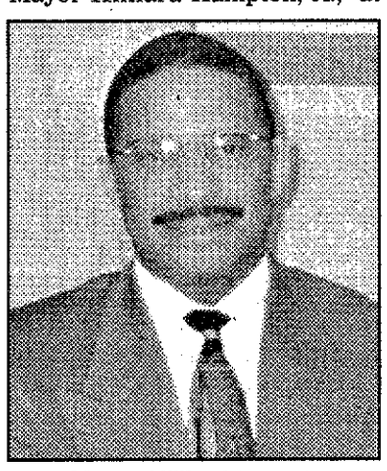
The outing will be staged Saturday, July 14, at the Inkster Valley Golf Course, on Middlebelt Road, about a quarter-mile north of Michigan Avenue.

Registration will begin at 7 a.m., followed by a "shotgun start" at 8 a.m. Tickets are priced at $125 person. The price will include a lunch, dinner and a golf cart.

For non-golfers who wish to attend the program, the ticket price is $35, which will include the dinner.

This year's highlights include a Four-Person Best Ball Contest, and other golf contest. Fabulous prizes will be offered for those who compete (and win) in the Hole-In-One Contest: Cash money, Bahamas cruise, gift certificates to purchase items from the Pro Shop and a set of golf clubs among the items a golfer could win.

To make reservations, contact Mayor Hilliard Hampton, Jr., at 313-561-3067; Dr. Terrel LeCesne at 734-722-3426 or Councilman Marcus Hendricks at 734-722-8321.



Mayor Hilliard Hampton, Jr.

Rudy Hendrix is the program coordinator. He can be reached at 313-963-8856.

The Khamalaw White Memorial Scholarship Fund and other local charities will benefit from the outing.

Tee times are limited, so participants are urged to submit requests for reservations early.

An added attraction this year for the non-golfers is the mayor's Summer Luau. The activity will begin at 5 p.m. at the Booker T. Dozier Recreation Complex, located on Middlebelt Road, directly across the Inkster Valley Golf Course. The complex is at 2025 Middlebelt.

You can take an imaginary trip to the beautiful island of Hawaii, feast upon delectable Hawaiian foods, and enjoy the music of the famous Female Jazz Group, "Straight Ahead."

The swimming pool also will be opened for those who wish to enjoy a swim. Guests will also receive prizes and gifts.

The Mayor Hilliard Hampton, Jr. Summer Luau tickets are $30 per person. They may be reserved by calling program committee members: Theola Jones at 313-561-3918; Rochelle Wells, 734-721-7008; and Marcella Hampton, 313-561-3067.

Starfish Family Services seeks donations for camp

Summer is officially here and the children are invited to enroll in the "Grow and Learn" Summer Camp at the Starfish Family Services.

The eight-week camp is free to low-income families in Inkster, and gives kids ages 6-12 a place to go during the day while their parents are busy.

Camp activities include learning about other cultures, visiting science museums, growing a garden, and arts and crafts.

Though there is no cost for participation, Starfish has to raise the money to pay for the camp. The organization is receiving help from The Skillman Foundation and The Detroit Free Press, which have offered to match donations to Starfish for the summer camp dollar for dollar.

> "This means a $15 gift becomes $30 for the camp, this is a great opportunity to make a difference in the lives of Inkster children."

"This means a $15 gift becomes $30 for the camp," said Greg Nicholson, Starfish development specialist. "This is a great opportunity to make a difference in the lives of Inkster children."

Money donated through The Detroit Free Press will go directly to the summer camp, which is conducted from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. and began last week and runs to Aug. 17.

Camp activities include cultural and academic enrichment, nutritional education, alcohol, tobacco, and other drug prevention education, weekly field trips and recreation.

"It's a very popular camp. There is always a waiting list," Nicholson added. "The more money we raise, the more children can attend."

Donations for the Grow and Learn Summer Camp should be made payable to Children First, and mailed to P.O. Box 64702, Detroit, MI 48264. Note that your donation is for Starfish Family Services and your contribution will be doubled.

For more information, contact Starfish at 734-727-3139.

Inkster to host 'Cruiser Classic'

The City of Inkster, under the auspices of the Parks and Recreation Department, will stage its first "Inkster Cruisers Classic".

"We hope to have seven divisions of antique vehicles here at the parks and recreation complex," said George Thompson, Jr., program director. "Nearby communities hold these car shows and they are very successful, so we decided it's time we held one, too. And I am willing to say that ours will equal, if not top, those in surrounding communities."

The Cruisers' Classic will be staged from 11 a.m. until 6 p.m., July 15, at the Parks and Recreation Complex's parking lot, 2025 Middlebelt Road, a quarter-mile north of Michigan Ave.

Thompson said trophies will be awarded to vehicle owners whose cars are ranked among the top four entries in each of the seven divisions.

"We're urging residents to attend and to support this program. They'll see some of the best antique cars in town," Thompson stressed. "It's really a family affair.

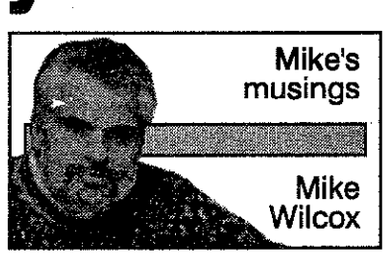
Opinion

Writer has near-perfect marriage after 50 years



Blame it on Tom. Tom Mooradian, that is. You see Tom made me realize the significance of a 50-year anniversary and laid down a heavy guilt trip (on me) for not writing about it.

Little did he know that I had written three typewritten pages for my parent's scrapbook. A book, it is, that brings back thousands of memories of what is now over 50 year's of marriage.

And Tom is right — it is an incredible accomplishment. Marriage counselors, who make a living trying to work out people's problems, readily proclaim over 50% of marriages don't work. Many don't work for 10 years, and an alarming number are ending before one year

So how can my parents, Joann and Dick, as well as many other couples, manage to stay together for over 50 years? As a person who has survived divorce and runs in a circle of friends that beats that 50% rate two-fold, I can honestly say after being a part of their lives it simply boils down to how bad do you want it.

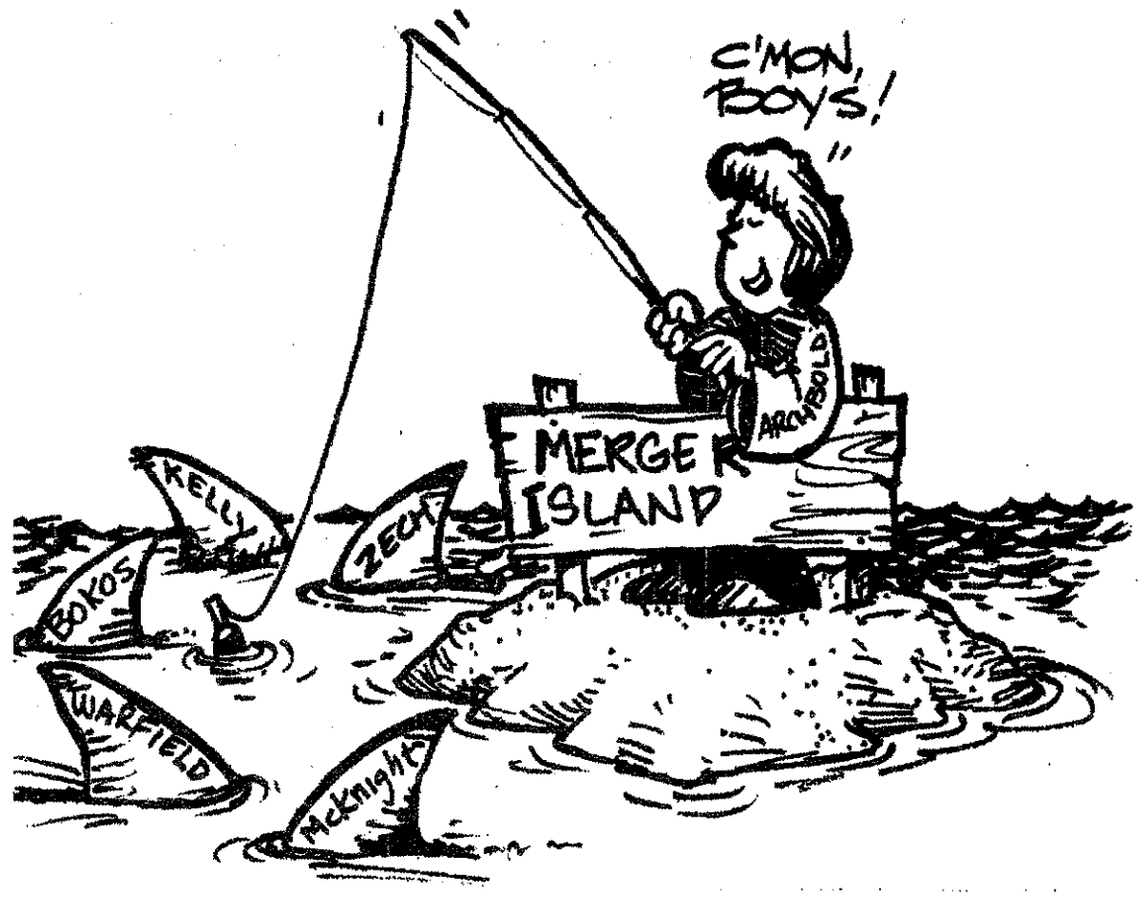
Better said, being successful at marriage takes a mountain of work and a litany of understanding. If you can't compromise then you're better off living single.

My parents now live in Florida where they golf every day, and entertain most nights. They attend church services twice a week and offer us all a great example for the new millennium. They don't meddle in their childrens' lives and they're far removed from preaching right over wrong.

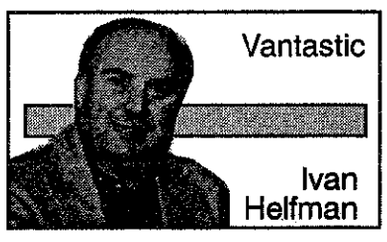
They have raised not one, or two, but five children that have found success in this world. Three are in management, one is a teacher and the fifth is a master electrician. I, one of the managers, honed my skills while working alongside my dad and mom, who both spent many hours publishing weekly newspapers.

In celebration of their anniversary, Dick and Joann invited their children to join them on a cruise to the eastern Carribbean. It was a remarkable affair — not from the standpoint that the cruise was out of this world — but because bonding with our brothers, sisters, mom and dad for a week made it all realize the importance of family.

Although I've said it many times, Tom says I need to say it again. Thank you mom and dad. Your shining examples and fifty years of marriage, have inspired us all. I hope 60-years will bring another scolding from Mooradian, and my second column about an everlasting union.



Land of the hardcore computer worms



Uninvited, a hundred naked floozies appeared. Beautiful women in a porn-star way. Bumping and grinding and doing nasty things. Multiplying by the thousands.

My first thought: How could I get rid of them?

Am I ready for the glue factory, you ask? Too old and useless to appreciate T&A?

The problem was that the women appeared on my computer screen courtesy of the Homepage Worm, a computer virus delivered by E-mail to users of Microsoft Outlook Express.

The message said: "Hi!

"Attachment: Homepage.HTML.vbs."

Homepage then randomly chooses an adult Web page to display on the system's default Internet browser.

In my case, it chose well for an old man who only gets verbal porn from strippers and lonely wannabe strippers on the Howard Stern morning radio show.

Luckily, I rarely use Microsoft products, so I caught the virus with Pocos, a shareware E-mail program that isn't too vulnerable to 'Net-borne viruses and that can be configured to destroy viruses. So I could zap the Homepage Worm before it sent pornography from me to my teenage daughters.

Lucky me.

Otherwise, if they received the pornography before I could explain what happened, they would have thought that I was a pervert.

But others weren't so lucky.

Rep. Glenn Anderson, D-Westland, the Microsoft Outlook Express user who received the virus and who unknowingly passed it on to me, his children, and many others, wasn't lucky.

Fortunately, he contacted everybody in his Microsoft Outlook Express address book and explained what happened.

Ticked off at the time, Anderson considered introducing legislation mandating punishments for hackers who create and spread computer viruses. But last I heard, he had taken no action.

Because, as a conservative who thinks that there should be less laws rather than more, I'm glad that this risque worm won't put people in jail.

To me, turning a prank into a crime is worse than spreading hardcore pornography on the Internet — especially since pornography is a staple of E-commerce, as is porn-filtering software. While even NBC can't make money on the 'Net, dot-com smut pedlars are making millions. The 'Net and porn are like Ford Road and traffic.

It's an everyday thing for desperate people, but not for criminals. With close to 2 million inmates, America doesn't need any more nonviolent ones.

So, I think, Anderson was right to have second thoughts about creating another crime.

Anderson's wise decision preceded a federal appeal court's decision to throw out a lower court's order to disband Microsoft, the 2,000-pound guerilla of software companies. The higher court threw out the lower court's ruling because the lower court judge appeared biased.

I agree.

As a foe of too many regulations as well as too many laws, I'd hate to see the biggest software company destroyed because of a biased judge or people jealous of Microsoft's success.

As stated above, I avoid using Microsoft products where possible. I don't like the company. Not only is Microsoft Outlook Express too vulnerable to viruses, but I refuse to use a word processor with a talking paper clip or an operating system that crashes 10 times a week.

But my opinions belong in a column or at the MCN water cooler, not in a law book.

Love it or hate it, Microsoft did not create a monopoly. If there is a monopoly, it was created by software users.

There is no law that says you have to use Microsoft products.

For example, this column is being written on Kword, a free word processor, on a computer using the free Mandrake-Linux operating system.

If more people would use Kword or Linux or Apple, Microsoft would be cut down to size.

But because Linux doesn't provide software buyers what they want and need — easy software and hardware compatibility — Microsoft rules the desktop and software users are happy. So are people like me who don't like Microsoft.

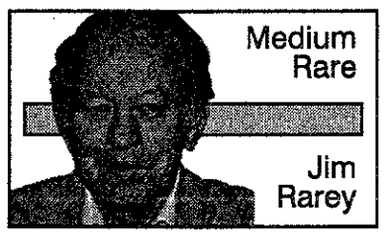
If choice could once again rule the marketplace instead of the US Department of Justice, we could do with a million or so less sharks with degrees in law or government administration.

Likewise, if adults were once again treated as grown-ups capable of self-control and not subject to the recent flood of laws and regulations, many of the new prisons sprouting up all over Michigan under the "Engler Prosperity" could be turned into lofts, factories, or airplane hangars.

Once upon a time, America was the land of the free and the home of the brave.

Thanks to the spate of morality laws, either quality — or even a computer worm — could land you in jail.

Communities achin' acres



Not since Erskine Caldwell's salacious novel "God's Little Acre" stirred public controversy has acreage caused such a public outcry as two developments in the communities of Oxford Township, Huron Township and Romulus.

The 1,400 acre (and growing) Waterstone development in Oxford is a prime example of a developer running roughshod over an inept local government to the outrage of area residents. In Romulus and Huron Township a 1,800-acre Pinnacle project of Wayne County is expropriating private property of long-time residents while local government officials negotiate behind closed doors to become partners in the outrage.

According to an in-depth article in last Sunday's Detroit News, the Oxford Township officials have looked on as a golf course, Meijer's store and some 100 residences have been built without official approval of any site plan. Zoning requirements have been ignored and the city even "forgot" to get a required $500,000 deposit from the developer.

While the development would add significantly to the property tax revenues of the township, residents fear increased traffic problems and a strain on local schools from increased residential housing.

In Romulus and Huron Township, the situation is much different. The Pinnacle project is being undertaken as a "smart zone" authorized by recent state legislation. An authority comprising representatives from Wayne County and the two communities (undoubtedly dominated by the county) would control the increased property taxes generated by the project. Residential property is being condemned and acquired by the county at less than one third of its true market value.

The properties (along with other outright purchases at residential values) will then be resold or leased to private developers or companies at a profit of over $100 million to the project.

The project is being promoted as a mecca for high-tech research and development companies and university related activities. However, it would include some warehousing operations that would increase the already congested truck traffic in the area adjacent to the Detroit Metro Airport.

Prospects for residents to protect private property will be further eroded if current legislation in Lansing is enacted. Bills are in the hopper that would allow local governments to condemn private property not being used as government officials wish, and a scheme to allow the selling of "development rights" bypassing local zoning requirements.

In recent years government at all levels has dramatically increased its control over the use and ownership of private property. Isn't it time for the pendulum to swing back in favor of individual owners?

Sound Off Extra

Why doesn't Westland sell residents' recycled bottles?

We in Westland pay to have our leaves picked up, trucked to the incinerator plant for mass collection, and then transferred to a facility in Romeo, of all places, for composting. Yet we recoup no money for the value of the compost.

Are the recyclable bottles and cans handled in a similar fashion?

Does Westland get any money for those things turned in at either the drop-off location or picked up curbside?

Cement walls around abandoned buildings aren't going to cut it

I agree with some of the comments made by Ben E. Jet about those brick walls with fancy railings and shrubs popping up on area corners. To me it is a big waste of money.

Look at Livonia on Plymouth Road. They wrap these cement structures around Wonderland Mall, leaving up the old Wards sign when everyone knows Wards is long gone.

Kitty-corner is another vacant building, a former bank.

And down on Plymouth and Farmington — hello — the ugly George Burns Theatre turned car lot.

All of this money to replace traffic lights that served their purpose just fine for years and replace existing street lights with quaint lampposts with banners in hopes of creating an image of — I don't know what.

But they are not fooling anyone. This attempt to keep up a downtown area is a good idea, and reducing blight is very important, but give me a break, lampposts and cement walls around abandoned buildings and ugly gas stations are not going to cut it.

Misleading not to verify existence of mayor's review committee

The gentleman who read from a Sound-Off in the May 27 Eyewitness questioned Westland's "Mayor Review Committee." I believe it was Ivan Helfman that used that term in his May 10, 2001 column regarding development, growth and the Golden Corral project.

According to that editorial, Mayor Thomas has an "informal mayor's review committee." The author should, rather than asking the public for information on that committee, provide verification if such a committee actually exists. Otherwise, it is a misleading statement.

Anonymous endorses Richard LeBlanc for Westland mayor

It is early in the campaign, and even though you may choose to not print this endorsement because I'm not giving my name, I prefer that my name not be shown at this time out of retaliation.

It is my opinion that the best person to serve as Westland's Mayor is Richard LeBlanc. I think it is the little things that show a person's true character and I have watched him and listened to him for years.

UM should heed its global warming data

To the editor:

The University of Michigan should heed its global warming research

Seventy-two percent of the public thinks that it is important to act now to counteract global warming. 350 other local governments agree. They have joined Cities for Climate Protection and are meeting this week in Ann Arbor. Unfortunately, the University of Michigan is sadly declining to do its part.

A group of 125 alumni — many of whom are environmental professionals — recently asked the University of Michigan Administration to take responsibility for its own pollution and pledge to reduce campus greenhouse gas emissions to 7 percent below 1990 levels over the next decade.

In other words, voluntarily put the Kyoto Treaty's principles into action. Although the Bush Administration has abandoned this international agreement to fight global warming, there is a compelling need to take strong steps now to reduce greenhouse gases.

However, the University Administration turned down this request by University of Michigan Alumni for Global Warming Action. In doing so, the Administration has effectively ignored the studies conducted by its own researchers.

The University of Michigan is a leader in global warming research. University professors and researchers literally wrote the book "Preparing for a Changing Climate" on the consequences of global warming on the Great Lakes region. Their findings: the Great Lakes region can expect substantial changes in lake levels, plant and animal diversity, and human health unless global warming is constrained. This is the most critical long-term environmental and public health challenge for our generation.

Unfortunately, when it comes to responsible precautionary actions, the Michigan researchers can't seem to convince the University Administration to move outside the ivory tower and rise to their own motto of "the leaders and the best." The Administration claims that the growth the University has experienced over the last decade - and is expected to chart in the future - makes cutting its carbon dioxide emissions to the requested level impractical. Yet that has not proved to be such a barrier in the corporate arena, where growth is gospel. In fact, several large U.S. companies, including IBM, BP, DuPont, Johnson & Johnson and Polaroid, have vowed to reduce their global warming emissions below current levels, far surpassing the University of Michigan.

Other major universities have already instituted plans to do their share to stem global warming. Cornell and Tufts Universities, as well as 56 colleges in New Jersey have all pledged to enforce stringent cuts in carbon dioxide emissions, widening the gap between the University of Michigan and its peers.

The University has compiled a fine tradition of environmental leadership, and that legacy needs to grow every bit as much as the size of the campus. The 125 alumni are making a respectful civic and leadership request to our alma mater: the University of Michigan should create a model for other large public universities, demonstrating that the Administration listens to its own researchers and acts to tackle this global problem locally.

How to do it? Specific opportunities abound. The Administration has yet to harness the full energy-saving potential in its existing campus buildings by bringing them up to the standards for energy efficiency set by the national Energy Star Program, thereby cutting electricity use by 25 percent or more. Nearly half of the University's buildings don't even meet the Energy Star efficiency standard. Any new building must have high energy efficiency standards written into the design guidelines. This is feasible, doable and reasonable.

Vehicle use is also a major source of pollution, and the University is in the process of purchasing new campus buses. It must choose between buying standard, old-fashioned diesel models or modern, clean hybrid electric/diesel buses that are twice as energy efficient. The modern buses would reduce carbon dioxide pollution by the equivalent of driving around the world 30 times.

Another smart choice is to provide subsidies for people commuting by foot or bus, rather than driving cars. The University could also provide free city-bus passes to students and staff.

Finally, the University recently reaped a $1 million savings when it switched its electricity supplier. It can leverage this windfall into an even bigger reduction in both carbon dioxide emissions and costs by investing the money in more energy-efficient technologies on campus.

The University of Michigan has a long-standing commitment to environmental education. The School of Natural Resources and the Environment has long been teaching students "to contribute to the protection of the earth's resources and the achievement of a sustainable society." Its joint program with the Business School instructs students to consider both environmental and economic choices. Now it's time to get out of the lecture hall. Global warming is the most significant threat to the world's environment. Increasingly, the public knows this. The University's faculty, staff, student body and alumni recognize this. Other universities recognize this, too, and they are taking action now. There are leaders, and there are followers. It's time for the University of Michigan to lead. Now that's a lesson worth learning.

Sincerely,
Howard A. Learner
Michigan Alumni for Global Warming Action

Ask David Cox to defend deep well statements

Re: June 28, 2001 Romulus Roman article titled "Bonior Asks Whitman To Hold Well Hearing."

Despite the statements by David Cox there are, in fact, a number of companies currently operating in Romulus which handle materials in large quantities that are far more dangerous to the Community and to the Environment than any materials EDS will handle at its Citrin Drive Facility.

Confirmation of EDS' permitted waste water streams can be obtained from:
Steve Sliver @ MDEQ 517-373-1976
Harlan Garrish @ USEPA 312-886-2939

I recommend that you research the types of materials handled by the following Romulus companies:
Michigan Recovery Hazardous Waste Disposal Facility
High-Po-Chlor Bulk Chlorine Distribution Facility
Chem Central Bulk Chemical Distribution Facility
Safety-Kleen Hazardous Waste Facility
Sun Pipeline Bulk Propane Storage Facility

Detailed information on the types of materials handled by these companies, along with the various evacuation plans currently on file with Romulus, can be obtained from Margaret Leduc, Emergency Coordinator for the City of Romulus @ 734-941-8585.

Upon completion of your research, I respectfully recommend that you ask Mr. Cox to defend his statement that "There has not been a need for these things [moon suits, self-contained breating apparatus and response vehicles] until now."

Cheers for Westland police, firefighters

To the editor:

I would like to commend the Westland Police Department and the Westland Fire Department for the professional way that the standoff situation on June 11 was handled.

Sometimes as citizens we are quick to criticize these departments and their respective chiefs when a negative incident occurs. However, I think that it is just as important to let these police officers and firefighters know when a job was well done.

I don't think any one can downplay the job that was done that day.

Officers Hochstein and Kummert, Sgt. Kennedy, Police Chief Price and Fire Chief Reddy all deserve well deserved recognition for a job well done.

Bill Wild, Westland

Abort funding

To the editor:

H.B. 4655 is necessary to protect the conscience rights of prolife citizens in Michigan.

In 1999-2000 fiscal year, Planned Parenthood, the nation's #1 abortion provider, received upwards of $3 million of our taxpayers dollars in the state of Michigan. Our tax dollars are being used to support an organization that considers abortion to be family planning and promotes and performs partial birth abortions, ripping the arms and legs off of the unborn, while still alive.

Pro-life citizens are being forced to subsidize a procedure we find abhorrent!

If pro-choice citizens are truly pro-choice, they should support pro- life citizens in our desire to choose where our tax dollars are spent.

Family planning services can be provided just as adequately by organizations that do not consider abortion to be family planning.

Urge your representative in Lansing to vote for H.B. 4655. Thank you.

Sincerely,
Debra (Lori) Anderson, Wayne
