Is MDOT plan DOA?

Kurt Heise, a representative who represents Plymouth and Plymouth Township in the Michigan House of Representatives, recently offered a grim assessment of the chances for Gov. Rick Snyder's proposal to raise fuel taxes and vehicle registration fees to give the Michigan Department of Transportation more money to fix the state's roads.

"I don't detect any interest in the governor's plan in either the House or the Senate, so we're all looking for alternatives right now," Heise said. "Basically what we're hearing is we all want better roads, but we don't want to pay for it."

Concrete success

Wayne County's Department of Public Services Field Engineering Office took top honors in the category "Urban Arterials" at the Michigan Concrete Association's annual awards program.

The award-winning project was the reconstruction and widening of Sheldon Center Road between Joy Road and Canton Center Road in Canton Township. The project included widening the existing two-lane hot asphalt mix road to a five-lane concrete pavement, enclosing the gravel shoulder, and opening ditches into a storm sewer system. Crews also realigned the road to accommodate for its widening.

Canton firm invests, adds jobs

By Darrell Clem
Staff Writer

A Canton manufacturing company that provides engine components to the automotive industry is investing $7.4 million and creating 12 new jobs at its facility on Van Born Road east of I-275, on the township's far south-east side.

CBS Boring & Machine Co., which already counted General Motors Corp. as a customer, is expanding its Canton-based operations after landing a new contract with Chrysler.

"It's a major, major project for CBS Boring," Dave Kovalak, company controller, told Canton Township's elected officials Tuesday evening.

Kovalak's statement came as the Canton Township Board of Trustees approved a five-year, 50-percent tax abatement for new equipment the company is installing to accommodate its contract with Chrysler. The measure now goes to the Michigan State Tax Commission for approval.

CBS Boring & Machine Co. began leasing its Canton building in 2009 — one of its six locations. Though largely automated, the Canton facility employs seven employees for its GM operations and already has hired three Chrysler-related workers, with nine more expected this year.

The latest news followed remarks Supervisor Phil LaJoy made during his recent State of the Township address that Canton has made strides in filling industrial-sector vacancies. CBS Boring & Machine is located in the Draw-Tite Industrial Development District.

Innovation guides teaching, learning

By Jill Halpin

On a recent snow day for Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, parent Tonya Barker was surprised to see her 8-year-old son, Barrett, awake at 7 a.m. eagerly reading a book — on his iPad.

Getting her son to read has been an "ongoing battle" since he started school, she said, but this day was different.

Armed with an iPad, the Farrand Elementary third-grader spent his morning happily reading and earning reading minutes for his homework, Barker said.

"To see him wake up so early in the morning just to start reading was amazing," said the Plymouth mother of two. "He really has never liked to read before, but his teacher loaded some books for him onto an iPad app that he can access from home and he loves it."

Barrett agrees that using the iPad played a role in boosting his interest in reading.

P-C, other districts crossing digital divide

By Jill Halpin
Correspondent

Plymouth-Canton Community Schools district is among a host of others throughout the state moving students into the world of digital instruction.

In Northville, Ann Arbor, Wayne-Westland and across the state in Allendale, a suburb of Grand Rapids, school districts are making technology a priority as school leaders seek new approaches to engage learners and boost student achievement.

"It is important students have the tools to go beyond the classroom in terms of student engagement and learning resources," said Daniel Jonker, Ph.D., superintendent of the Allendale district, which serves approximately 2,500 students.

Following a nationwide trend of 1:1 computing in the classroom, all Allendale students in grades four through 12 have had an individual laptop since 2009, Jonker said, funded by the passage of a bond issue in 2007.

"Technology is critically important in our instruction delivery model ... Our students now have the ability to take interactive, virtual field trips — they can travel anywhere from South Africa to speak with apartheid survivors to Alaska to explore sea life."

PAUL SALAH
deputy superintendent for educational services, Wayne-Westland Schools

The 1:1 initiative focuses on providing one digital learning device per student in an effort to increase access and boost student achievement.

In addition, each classroom has a "Smart Board" for interactive teaching and learning as well as a document camera and data projector, Jonker said.

"Technology should be used to enhance the learning process, not determine it. We look at devices in terms of what applications and software is available and how our students will use it," he said.

There is a wide variety of how technology is currently used in education throughout school districts across the state, said Rick Wiltsie, executive director for the Michigan Association for Computer Users in Learning.

Staying competitive

"Students going into the work force need a good grasp of technology skills to be competitive," and more school districts are starting to recognize this, Wiltsie said.

In comparison to other states across the country, "Michigan has always been in the middle of the curve," Wiltsie said, behind states such as Washington, Texas and California that use technology more aggressively.

However, there has been tremendous growth within the last year, he said.

"School districts realize that in order to remain competitive they need to offer the digital learning resources that their

Bishop visits All Saints

It's not often a bishop visits a school, but that's the situation students at All Saints Catholic School in Canton found themselves in recently.

Bishop Francis Reiss of the Archdiocese of Detroit celebrated an all-school Mass March 5 with the Rev. Tom Belczak of St. Kenneth Catholic Community and the Rev. Ken Chase of Resurrection Parish.

"It is not often a bishop visits the school and the children felt very special as Bishop Reiss took the time to connect with them at Mass," said Sue Waters, the school's director of advancement. "The Bishop shared how much God loves each of us. In fact, not only did he say 'God loves us' many times, he also had students from first, second and third grades come up to the front and taught them how to express 'God loves us' through hand motions."

After Mass, Bishop Reiss spent time with the second grade children, sharing about his own education in Catholic schools and letting the children count how many years he studied. Bishop Reiss also visited the eighth graders and talked about the importance of the gifts received at Confirmation. He exhorted the students to make sure they use their gifts in everyday life, Waters said.

Price puts office budget online

By Darrell Clem
Staff Writer

Keeping a campaign promise he made as a candidate, Wayne County Commissioner Shannon Price has placed his office budget online as he marks Sunshine Week, a national effort to promote transparency in government.

Price, the 10th District Republican representing Canton, Plymouth and Plymouth Township, has vowed to continue pushing to get Wayne County's budget online to show residents how their tax dollars are being spent.

"People deserve to know how their tax dollars are being spent, and I am proud to say that I have posted my office budget online," Price, a Canton resident, said in a statement. "We still have a lot of work to do. We need more sunshine in Wayne County government, and it starts by putting the county's checkbook online."

Price had pledged during his campaign against Democratic rival James Amari to push to make Wayne County spending more transparent.

His office's first online budget shows spending in January for office supplies, wages and parking. It can be found at www.wccmichigan.com.

wayncounty.com/commissioner/price10.htm. During his campaign last year, Price called for combating Wayne County's budget woes, getting finances online, slashing the number of political appointees and making county government more transparent, among other issues.

He sought to place his own commission budget online during Sunshine Week, a national initiative to promote open government and freedom of information supported by news media, civic groups, libraries, nonprofits, schools and other organizations. For more, go to www.sunshineweek.org.

Price issued a statement this week calling for Wayne County transparency and lauding Commissioner Laura Cox, R-Livonia, for her earlier efforts to push for open government.

"Commissioner Cox began the call for transparency a few years ago, and now is the time to move to the (next) phase of her plan," Price said.

"The budget should be a searchable database that would allow residents to look for information in any number of categories such as employee salaries, expenditures, tax credits, contracts and more. This has worked in other states; there's no reason not to do here."

Last fall, Price won his first two-year commission term, and he attributed his victory to hard work and his message of "restoring honesty and integrity to Wayne County." He has said efforts to make county spending more open will help toward those goals.

Price's latest move comes as he plans to host the commission's Committee on Ways and Means meeting at 1 p.m. today (Thursday) inside the Canton Township Board of Trustees meeting room, 1150 S. Canton Center. Part of the discussion is expected to focus on transparency in government.

Cox chairs the Committee on Ways and Means, which reviews financial issues related to allocation of resources such as the budget, compensation, bond issues, retirement, tax matters, assessment and equalization of property.

Teachers, district reach three-year deal

By Brad Kadrich
Staff Writer

"because this is where I wanted to be," he said. With the two-year step freeze, combined with the freeze that took place in 2011, Leveille pointed out Tuesday she would be 60 before she reached the top of the scale.

"I can't afford to wait that long," she said. "I implore you over the next year to keep in mind you have a lot of hard-working staff here. They deserve to be rewarded for their hard work."

Not this time

It won't happen with the current deal. In what the union president acknowledged was the "smallest passing margin we've ever had," members of the Plymouth-Canton Education Association agreed to the new three-year contract with the district.

Though union President Ken Fistler wouldn't say what the vote was and he did not tie the historically small margin of passage, he pointed out the contract, which expires after the 2014-15 school year, still passed easily.

"It was closer than any (vote) we've had, though it wasn't that close," Fistler said. "It's a concessionary contract, so there are some giveups, but these are the (economic) times we are in."

PCEA members ratified the agreement March 4. The Plymouth-Canton Board of Education voted 4-0 Tuesday night to approve the deal. Board Secretary Adrienne Davis and Trustee Mark Horvath were absent; Trustee Mike Maloney abstained because his wife, an Allen Elementary School teacher, is in the bargaining unit.

In the contract:

- Teachers agreed to take 1.25 furlough days this year, and 1.5 furlough days in 2013-14.
- No pay increase in the first two years, and teachers' step levels will also freeze for the first two years.
- A 20-percent reduction in pay for extra duties such as meal or testing duty.
- The district agreed to pay 100 percent of teachers' premiums for dental and vision coverage.
- The district will offer less-expensive health care options, according to Fistler.
- PCEA representatives will be included in the annual insurance bid process.

ance bid process. While wages and step increases are frozen the first two years, the sides did agree to a "wage re-opener" for the third year. The contract calls for those talks to start in March 2014; if the sides can't reach agreement by Aug. 1, 2014, either side can sever the contract.

Monica Merritt, the district's executive director of human resources, said the deal saves the district some $2 million in the first two years, with the wage re-opener discussions to come in the third year.

"It's a very good deal," Merritt said. "We're very appreciative of our teachers for stepping up to the plate on this one."

Merritt said there were no discussions about making the contract longer in light of the impending right-to-work laws the state will enact next year. "For us in particular, our contract had already expired," she said. "We've been negotiating since April 2012, so we were far into it and mostly had our language issues worked out

(before the right-to-work legislation was approved). We've been working on the financial component since December."

Best for now

While the vote showed clearly there were teachers unhappy with the deal, it also showed the majority of teachers felt like it was, perhaps, the best they were going to get in the current economic climate.

Cheryl Zuzzo, a first-grade teacher at Bentley Elementary School, said the step freeze — "I should be at the top by now" — is hard to swallow, but she's happy she's not taking a cut in her base pay.

"The way the economy is going right now, it's a pretty terrific contract," Zuzzo said. "In comparison to some other districts in the area, it's a pretty favorable contract."

Zuzzo doesn't blame the district for the losses in the contract — "Our district is doing its best to take care of us," she said — but points the finger at the lagging economy and Lansing.

bkadrich@hometownlife.com
(313) 222-8899 | Twitter: @bkadrich

Science teacher Valerie Leveille knew there wasn't anything she could do about the contract agreement reached between Plymouth-Canton Community Schools administrators and the 1,100-member Plymouth-Canton Education Association last week.

After all, her own union members ratified it with a March 4 vote, and the district's Board of Education was poised to approve it Tuesday night.

But Leveille, who has taught in the district for four years, was at Tuesday's meeting, pleading with the board to stop asking so much of its teachers — and other staff — in the wake of a contract that freezes teachers' step progress for at least two years, provides no pay raises and takes nearly three furlough days over the first two years of the three-year deal.

"I'm not going to be able to afford to be a teacher here anymore," said Leveille, who told board members she took a $6,000 pay cut to come to Plymouth-Canton four years ago

Canton eatery abuzz after Kilpatrick conviction

By Darrell Clem
Staff Writer

Customers inside the Canton Coney Island restaurant praised a jury for convicting former Detroit Mayor Kwame Kilpatrick of charges such as racketeering and extortion, saying the once-rising political star deserves prison for hurting a city already in decline.

"I expected a guilty verdict, and I think it's the right verdict," Canton resident Joyce Akers, 52, said as she dined with 20-year-old daughter Chelsea LaPointe inside the restaurant on Lilley south of Joy. "He just thought he was above the law, and it's finally catching up with him."

Akers lauded a jury for convicting Kilpatrick and longtime friend Bobby Ferguson on the vast majority of federal charges arising from allegations they ran a criminal enterprise while Kilpatrick was in office. Kilpatrick's father was found guilty of a single tax-related charge.

Akers said she feels compassion for Kwame Kilpatrick's children, who could be without a father for decades once sentencing is handed down.

"I feel bad for his kids, but his wife (Carrita) had to know what was going on," Akers said.

LaPointe welcomed the verdict with as much passion as her mother.

"He had it coming," LaPointe said of Kilpatrick. "He had it coming for a long time. I honestly didn't think he was going to be found guilty."

LaPointe said Kilpatrick's father "was lucky" he was only found guilty on one charge. Pausing from a book she was reading inside the Canton Coney Island, customer Marsha Kenney, like other customers, welcomed the guilty verdicts in the federal corruption trial.

"I think the verdict was fair," Kenney said. "I feel sorry for the city of Detroit that this took so long and cost so much money."

Kenney questioned how Kilpatrick, owing Detroit so much money, managed to live in a large house in Texas with his family.

"I definitely feel sorry for his children," she said. "You just have to hope that God will watch out for his children. It's sad what he did to the city of Detroit and the residents of Detroit, who will be paying for his mistakes for a long time."

Suspect pleads in Walmart knife case

By Darrell Clem
Staff Writer

An Inkster man, accused of brandishing a knife and cutting a police officer inside a Canton retail store, averted trial Wednesday by pleading no contest to a reduced charge of unarmed robbery.

Alden Ralph Mays, 57, could face penalties ranging up to 15 years in prison when he is sentenced March 26 by Wayne County Circuit Judge Ulysses Boykin for an incident that occurred in November inside the Walmart store on Michigan Avenue west of Belleville Road.

Canton Police arrested Mays following accusations he wielded a knife while attempting to steal a 42-inch television. Authorities said he wounded a Novi police officer who intervened while at the store investigating an unrelated credit card fraud case.

Mays

Mays' acceptance of a no-contest plea to unarmed robbery on March 6, averting his trial Wednesday and a potential life-in-prison sentence if he had been convicted of original charges of armed robbery, assault with intent to do great bodily harm (less than murder), assault with a dangerous weapon and assaulting, resisting and obstructing a police officer.

Mays was captured during an incident that Detective Sgt. Dave Schreiner has said happened shortly before noon Friday, Nov. 9.

Mays accepted his plea four months after the Novi officer apprehended him and took him to a store office, where Canton Police say a scuffle ensued and a knife was pulled.

Mays then fled the store but Canton Police found him inside a 2005 Cadillac XRS in the Walmart parking lot, where he was taken into custody. A police report said the knife was found under a car seat.

Authorities have said the Novi officer wasn't critically injured when he was cut on the hand.

According to the Wayne County Jail, Mays has remained in jail since his arrest. Plymouth 35th District Judge James Plakas had originally set a $1 million/10 percent bond, which was reduced to $375,000/10 percent in Wayne County Circuit Court.

However, a jail spokesman has said no one posted the $37,500 needed to secure Mays' release. Even if he had left jail, he had been ordered by Boykin to stay away from the Novi officer and the Walmart store.

Heroin bust

Canton Police arrested a woman on heroin charges after she allegedly ignored two flashing red traffic lights while driving southbound on Haggerty Road at the Michigan Avenue intersection, a police report said.

The 23-year-old woman, driving a red Dodge Caravan, was traveling 45 mph when she crossed both the westbound and eastbound lanes of Michigan Avenue without stopping, the report said.

Police trailed the woman and stopped her on Van Born Road west of Haggerty. She told police she was on her way home from a friend's house in Garden City and was on the phone with her father when she ran the flashing red lights, the report said.

The woman said the vehicle she was driving belonged to her fiancé. Police learned she had a suspended license and was wanted for warrants in Dearborn.

Police searched a bag and found what was described as a prescription pill bottle, a glass pipe and heroin, which had been wrapped in lottery tickets, the police report said.

The woman allegedly told police she had bought the heroin the day before. She was taken into custody.

Purse purloined

A 32-year-old woman contacted Canton police to report her purse had been stolen around 9:50 p.m. Monday inside the Chuck E. Cheese location southeast of Ford and Lilley roads.

The victim told police she left her purse unattended as she away from her booth — then learned it was missing when she returned. The purse contained credit cards, a driver's license, keys to a Ford Windstar and $200, among other items.

A friend of the victim reported she had seen a woman walking out of Chuck E. Cheese holding her stomach in a suspicious manner, though she didn't think anything of it until the purse came up missing.

Identity theft

A woman who lives in the Canton Crossings apartment complex, southeast of Joy Road and I-275, notified police Monday of an earlier incident apparently involving identity theft.

The 21-year-old woman told police she had moved from Florida in 2008 and left behind personal effects such as her Social Security card and birth certificate. Over the last two years, she told police, she has received numerous letters and phone calls from bill collectors and attorneys regarding outstanding bills she says she doesn't owe.

The latest letter, mentioned in a Canton police report, involves $3,585 the victim allegedly owed to a Mercury Mountaineer involved in a traffic crash in Florida. The woman indicated that a relative may have stolen her identity.

Phony money

Police received notification Saturday night from the Emagine Theater, southeast of Ford and Lotz roads, that someone had earlier passed two counterfeit $20 bills at the concession stand. An employee discovered the fake money while it was in a counting machine.

Car vandalized

A man notified police Saturday afternoon after he said another driver followed him to the Walgreens store northeast of Ford and Sheldon roads and used a sharp object to cause a 2-inch scratch on the passenger-side rear door of his red truck.

The 42-year-old victim said he was driving his 2013 Chevrolet Silverado westbound on Ford near Sheldon when he changed lanes to get into a right turn lane, making the turn in front of a silver Jeep Liberty, a police report said.

He went to the Walgreens and noticed the Jeep had followed him. When he came out, he told police he noticed the damage to his truck. He described the suspect as a "scruffy" white male in a silver Jeep Liberty.

Failed invasion

A woman who lives in the Academy Point mobile home community southeast of Michigan Avenue and Haggerty Road notified police after someone tried to break in her home Friday afternoon. She said she left for one hour and returned to find pry marks around her door. She said it didn't appear entry was gained.

False return

A 40-year-old man notified police March 6 after someone used his Social Security number when filing income taxes. He said he learned of the identity theft after his wife tried to file their taxes electronically and received notification from the Internal Revenue Service that taxes already had been filed.

One injured in apartment fire

By Darrell Clem
Staff Writer

A Canton apartment fire Sunday afternoon apparently started when a man was smoking while using an oxygen machine, Fire Chief Joshua Meier confirmed.

Firefighters doused the blaze, which sent the resident to a hospital for treatment, and Meier said the incident should serve as a reminder to keep cigarettes and other sources of fire away from oxygen tanks.

Meier said the fire occurred inside a first-floor unit of a two-story building at Lincolnshire Apartments, south of Joy between Canton Center and Sheldon. Canton Public Safety's dispatch center received a 415 p.m. alerting firefighters to the incident. The caller indicated occupants could possibly still be inside the building.

Firefighters quickly determined no one was inside the apartment, and they made an interior attack on the fire while wearing their breathing apparatus and protective gear.

Meier confirmed "significant fire damage" and some water damage to the apartment where the fire began. Otherwise, three other units in the building were affected by smoke damage, the chief said.

Author fair features variety of writers

The Plymouth District Library showcases writing with a local flavor when it hosts its fifth annual "Local Author Fair" 1-3 p.m. Saturday, March 16.

The fair features a wide variety of interesting topics presented in a casual setting and offers an opportunity to meet, mingle and enjoy conversations with published writers.

The spectrum of offerings will be diverse. Included will be Larry Paladino and his "Thank You for Fighting the Bad People," a historical remembrance of Airborne activities in Vietnam. It is a timeline of 1960s history and remembrances of the Vietnam conflict and entails a time capsule of personal and family memories.

"We are honored to highlight so much literary talent as this provides a forum for writers to meet each other and to meet the community," said Marge Sadler, the Plymouth District Library's Adult Services Coordinator.

Two of the other 18 featured writers that will be showcased will be Westland's Brenda Dziedzic with her "Learn About Butterflies in the Garden" and Linda Clancy Kaminski, RD and CDE, and her thought-provoking "You Gotta Eat." Kaminski, who has a pedigree of impressive credentials, presents a thought-provoking review of nutrition topics along with non-sensory diet and exercise advice. She is also a registered dietitian and certified diabetic educator. Her CDE qualifications allow attendees this unique opportunity to network with a specialist who can advise on diabetes management and prevention.

"Into No Man's Land: A Historical Memoir" will be shared by Irene Miller. It is a thought-provoking offering about a Holocaust survivor and the unusual journey through Poland to Siberia to America.

Longtime veteran author, storyteller and retired newspaper writer, Joel Thurtell, will present his children's offering "Mouse Code."

"This is a great event for anyone to embrace, there is a wide range of offerings," library trustee Jackie George said. "There is something for everybody, all ages and for all interests."

The event is sponsored by The Friends of the Plymouth District Library and for more information www.plymouthlibrary.org

Democrats push ethics package

State Rep. Dian Slavens, (D-Canton), announced she will be sponsoring legislation in a Democratic-sponsored package of ethics, accountability and transparency bills that call for an open, honest and accountable Legislature.

"It's disheartening that so many people have such a dim view of their elected officials," Slavens said. "They think politicians are untrustworthy. We need to change that perception, and this legislation will help us do it."

The House Democratic package of bills, if enacted, would create a culture of accountability and transparency in campaigns and in the legislature. Slavens' bill, House Bill 4428, will ban the state from awarding a contract of $100,000 or more to a contractor or vendor that donates to the campaign of officials who award contracts.

Other bills included in the package will:

- Require a corporation that makes independent expenditures to file a notice with the Secretary of State and get permission from shareholders.

- Require committees to file quarterly campaign finance filings in both on and off years to shed more light on campaign contributions.

- Create an ethics act for the administration and its employees to strengthen conflict-of-interest concerns for those individuals.

- Create a lobbying expenditure database.

- Require a candidate who switches parties to pay back with interest any contributions collected before the party switch.

"Elected officials are supposed to serve the people, not their campaign donors or special-interest groups," Slavens said. "We need to make sure politicians are accountable only to the constituents who put them into office."

Money for political TV ads difficult to trace

By Ken Abramczyk
Staff Writer

Throughout this decade, the Michigan Campaign Finance Network has been collecting political spending data from the public files of state television broadcasters and cable systems. MCFN has documented more than $50 million worth of campaign advertising that was not reported in the Department of State's campaign finance disclosure system, according to Robinson.

Robinson used the Michigan Supreme Court as an example. In 2008, the candidates' spending plus reported independent expenditures by PACs and the political parties totaled $3.7 million. MCFN documented $3.8 million worth of candidate-focused advertising by the Michigan Chamber of Commerce and the political parties that was not reported through the state's campaign finance reporting system. Literally, over half the money in the 2008 Supreme Court campaign was "off the books," Robinson said.

"Between 2000 and 2012, there was $61 million in spending and about $35 million was off the books, which means that over half of it is undisclosed," Robinson said.

Just $4.7 million out of the $18.6 million in spending documented by MCFN — 25.4 percent — was reported through the state campaign finance disclosure system in 2012.

Records compiled by MCFN from the public files of the state's television broadcasters and cable systems showed gross sales of $385 million for advertisements about the Supreme Court candidates that were not reported to the Department of State. Those advertisements were purchased by the Michigan Republican Party ($6.67 million), the Michigan Democratic State Central Committee ($6.17 million) and a D.C.-based non-profit corporation called Judicial Crisis Network ($1.02 million).

"Why does it matter? We should have a right to know who supports the candidates, and what positions they have that are supported by the contributors," Robinson said.

Contributors may have a court case or ruling pending that may impact them as well, and the public should know this, Robinson said.

Robinson said Michigan ballot committees raised more than $154 million for advertising to support or oppose the six statewide ballot proposals in 2012.

"We've never had that before," Robinson said. "All six proposals lost at the polls."

Network upgrades, expansions planned

The new service demands by everything from wireless phones and personal digital devices to laptops and more have taken their toll on Plymouth-Canton Community Schools' aging network technology infrastructure.

In addition, new mandates from the state of Michigan Department of Education requiring a switch to online testing beginning with the 2014-15 school year will place additional strains on an already burdened network, said Jim Casteel, district director for integrated technology systems. The state testing program requires a switch from the current MEAP (Michigan Educational Assessment Program) test to the new Smarter Balanced Assessment online testing program beginning in 2014.

"We need to have the infrastructure to support this testing," Casteel said, adding that in order to meet the increasing demands on the network, the district needs to build the infrastructure to ensure connectivity.

"The network is at capacity and needs to be upgraded to support expansion for additional web-based tools in order for students to gain more access," Casteel said.

According to Casteel, there are currently 4,000-5,000 computers in the district.

"As we expand access, we could have close to 22,000 devices to support," he said.

District plans for connecting all buildings together with a 10-gigabyte fiber network that would allow the school to centralize service while providing increased connectivity.

The district currently leases network services from local commercial providers such as Comcast and A&T.

The construction of a district-owned fiber network would be a potential cost savings, Casteel said.

The district is also exploring options with local municipalities such as fire and police services to the fiber infrastructure, allowing them to have their own connectivity, Casteel said.

Installation of the fiber ring would eliminate the service leasing fees, Casteel said. "Once the fiber network is installed, all we would be paying for is the monthly maintenance fees."

students and parents demand. Those moving into a new community may look at how progressively the district is using technology and make comparisons," Wiltsie said.

Voters in the Ann Arbor school district passed a $45.8 million bond in 2012 that focuses on upgrades to an aging infrastructure as well as the purchase of new computers and other learning devices.

The 10-year, three-part bond issue fits with the districts' Strategic Plan for 21st Century Learning," said Liz Margolis, director of communications for Ann Arbor Public Schools.

"For us and for our students, it is about being hyper-linked into the world," Margolis said. "Our kids use technology every day. We look at how we can relate the technology to more effective teaching and learning."

The district is undergoing the first phase of the bond, which focuses on repairs and renovations to the district's technology infrastructure, built before the recent surge in handheld devices such as smartphones.

"Margolis said the need for the upgrades to the system was driven home a few years ago after students returned from a holiday break.

"The students came back from Christmas break with all of the new devices and it overloaded our system; they shut us down," she said,

Barrett Barker says in the iPad played a role in boosting his interest in reading. "I really like reading on the iPad because you can push a button instead of lifting pages. Things are a little bit more interesting on the computer."

"Teachers were unable to get into their portals for grading and instruction."

Second phase

District leaders are now preparing for the second phase of the bond, which will include the purchase of new equipment, including laptops and tablet devices.

"We are looking at other classrooms across the country and the world to see how they are using technology to enrich teaching and learning. In Singapore, for instance, some students use Twitter to communicate with their teachers during the day; it is just another form of communication," she said, adding, "Technology is not isolating; it is how kids communicate."

In Northville Public Schools, a two-phase $20 million dollar bond issue was voter approved in November. The technology bond includes upgrades to the server infrastructure, the district phone system as well as the installation of Here's a look at how other districts are spending bond or grant money on technology.

District	Year	Amount	Technology Purchased
• Ann Arbor	2012	45.8 M*	Infrastructure upgrade, new computers/learning devices
• Allendale	2007	45.4 M*	1:1 Ratio of learning device per student
• Northville	2012	20 M*	Interactive whiteboards and desktop computer replacement
• Livonia	2013 (?)	195 M*	Wifi access, mobile learning devices
• Wayne/Westland	2012/13	3 M*	Smart boards, iPad carts, web cams and software interactive whiteboards in each classroom and the replacement of the school's entire desktop computer fleet.

According to Janice Henderson, curriculum coordinator, the district's focus on technology is essential to enabling students to take their learning to the next level.

"We looked at students in the 21st century and how we can move our students forward," Henderson said. "Our students are digital natives. Technology is an exciting tool for them, and it is very motivating for them," she said.

Virtual labs

The new technology will allow for virtual exploration and virtual labs, "taking them to places that they have never been," she said.

It is important to address students where they are now in terms of technology, Henderson said. "As student learning becomes more interactive, it takes on deeper meaning for them," she said.

It is a view shared by Paul Salah, deputy superintendent for educational services for Wayne-Westland Schools. "Technology is critically important in our instruction delivery model," Salah said.

Salah said that the district used grant dollars from the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 to invest in technology improvements ranging from classroom Smart boards, iPad carts, web cams and software as well as small upgrades to servers. The additions have allowed teachers to enhance instruction in a variety of ways, Salah said. "Our students now have the ability to take interactive, virtual field trips; they can travel anywhere from South Africa to speak with apartheid survivors to Alaska to explore sea life," he said.

Today's Learning

New research on brain development shows that children learn differently today as a result of their exposure to technology, said Salah.

Students today are self-motivated to learn and find answers, he added. "If they want to know how to do something, they just 'Google' it," he said. "We need to adapt to the changes. Finding the money to make technology upgrades can be challenging, acknowledge Steve Woloszyn, technology manager for the Grosse Pointe Public School System.

"There are a lot of districts across the state dealing with funding with regards to technology," he said.

The district recently completed a three-year plan funded by an $800,000 donation from the Grosse Pointe Foundation for Excellence. The project included the addition of smart boards in every classroom as well as cameras and projectors.

The district is currently in a planning phase, looking at "how technology and curriculum interact," he said.

"We are determining what the 21st learning process looks like," said Woloszyn.

instead of lifting pages. Things are a little bit more interesting on the computer," he said.

His mother is thrilled with the tool that started him on a new path in learning and giving him the ability not only to be successful but to become self-motivated as well, she said.

"It is so simple and brilliant. The iPad is something that he relates to; it is how he is going to grow up," she said.

It is also one of the reasons that district leaders will ask taxpayers to approve $114.4 million bond issue at the polls on May 7.

"Using technology is second nature to our students," said Jeanne Farina, the district's assistant superintendent for instructional services. "This is how they learn and we need to adapt to them."

Today's students are motivated and energized by the use of classroom technology, contributing to a growth in student achievement, Farina said. Brian VanDerziel, the district's technology integrationist, said he is encouraged that district leaders are taking the initiative with technology.

Teaching methods change

Recent innovations in technology, such as the iPad, offer teachers a unique ability to individ-ualize classroom instruction for even the youngest students.

"Today's intuitive touch-screen means that technology is now accessible to all students, regardless if they are able to use a key-board," he said.

Spelling City, an iPad app used at the elementary level, allows teachers to input a student's spelling words and then allows the students to play different games to help them learn both spelling and usage, VanDerziel said.

"They can play a word unscramble, a sentence unscramble, definition match and more. The neat thing is that the student can also do it from home if they have a supporting device. It is a much more engaging way to learn," he said, "It takes it to a deeper level of learning."

The iPad's accessibility feature is key with John Porter, the district's supervisor for universal design for learning and instructional technology. Porter, who helps with the process of putting tools and strategies in place for students who have barriers to learning, said that classroom learning differences can be both equality and budget standpoints.

"The iPad has a lot of built-in accessibility features that all students with learning differences can benefit from. There is a built-in speech-to-text feature that allows students to highlight a word and hear the word spoken to them."

Porter said that as she looks at curriculum, she puts plans in place that will benefit all students, whether they have a disability or not.

Everyone benefits

"If you put supports in place for all students, then everyone benefits," she said.

The iPads have "built-in support for all students — not just those with a disability or a difference," said Porter.

"It is so important from a humanity perspective. If you are a student with a difference or disability, imagine the power of sitting in your classroom without having to have something different from the person sitting next to you," she said.

The built-in features also eliminate the need for additional software purchases and equipment and offer potential support for the district, Porter said.

Central Middle School teacher Rick Coughlin teaches English language arts and educational technology, an elective, to seventh- and eighth-grade students. He said he uses some form of digital technology in most of his lessons. A recent biography of the mathematician in students creating video "trailers" for their subject following online research.

"Rather than a written report, the students actually created a presentation that they could post on line and share with the world," Coughlin said. "They still went through the writing process; they just took it to the next level."

Coughlin said schools prepare students for life beyond school.

"It is important that they get the ground-level skills. Adults use technology to manage their lives for daily productivity and we should be teaching our students to do the same," he said.

Engaged learning

Tim Nadon has taught economics and psychology at Plymouth High School for the past 17 years. He said the newer digital devices such as iPads encourage interactive teaching and learning and allow students to move at their own pace. "Lessons that are traditionally taught in two-dimension slide show format with the teacher running the show are very passive. If I can use technology to get students directly involved, then I am helping them to be engaged," he said.

He contrasted the difference between a lesson brain physiology taught using a diagram in a book with a 3-D iPad app that allows students to dissect the brain with a touch of their finger.

"It is extremely motivating for kids — even the novelty of it," he said, "and they learn better when they are engaged." Plymouth High School senior Brad Conley has used technology in some of his classes, including finance. He said using technology in the classroom "helps me get more out of it."

Conley, who will attend Michigan State University in the fall, said adding more technology into the classroom would help kids learn more effectively.

"It just makes it more interesting," he said. Canton resident and school board member Steve Paton concurs. As the mother of two students attending Plymouth-Canton schools — a middle schooler and a high school freshman — he said he has gained insight into the impact of technology in education.

"I have seen first-hand how much more students get out of learning when they are engaged and involved," Paton said. "This (using technology) is how they learn now. If we want kids to get the most out of it, they have to be engaged and involved." Paton, who was among the majority of board members who voted to place the millage on the May ballot.

Samsung delivers fresh camera experience

By Jon Gunnells
Guest Columnist

Many of us own phones, MP3 players, computers and other devices with built-in cameras, but have you ever seen a digital camera with Wi-Fi? With its new line of "smart" cameras, Samsung allows picture-takers to access the Internet on the go and seamlessly share photos to social networks.

I tested a new Samsung Galaxy camera, which featured a full-touch screen and Wi-Fi courtesy of Verizon Wireless. Verizon is just one way to get wireless Internet on a smart phone — free wireless hot spots are another.

Like the Galaxy smartphones, the Galaxy camera may be the coolest camera on the market. It has a number of mind-blowing features, including voice-command so you can talk to your camera and slow-motion video shooting capabilities. Imagine taking videos of sports in slow motion and then uploading them to the Web.

Impressive specs

The Galaxy Smartphone is sleek and easy to use for beginners, but also has impressive specs like a 21x optical zoom for more advanced users. It runs on 3G or Wi-Fi, so you can share photos with groups easily. No more waiting as every person in the group takes a photo with their not-so-cool Galaxy cameras.

The Galaxy also includes a content manager, photo editing wizard and video editing wizard. And in true Samsung Galaxy fashion, the camera features a nearly five-inch ultra-clear screen.

Tech Savvy

more professional shots with less of the cool digital functions, Samsung also has a line of smart cameras, including its NX100 that captures pictures in 20.3 megapixels and records photos in 1080p high-definition. For those of you keeping score at home, the NX100 records higher-definition videos than the iPhone and takes photos with two times the amount of megapixels.

Even Samsung's cheapest smart camera model has features that will make picture taking easy. The DV150 which retails for $139, offers a front-facing LCD screen, self-portrait mode and even jump mode to help users capture the exact type of photos they love to take.

This new line of Samsung smart cameras is just another example of innovative products being developed by the South Korean-based company. While the company is still battling Apple for market share in the mobile and tablet world, there is arguably no company making a full-line of electronics better than Samsung is right now.

Digital March Madness

Important basketball games during your work day are happening this week with major college basketball conference tournaments and next week with the NCAA tournament. There are many ways to follow the action from your cubicle or office — without your boss knowing.

This year, the NCAA — in conjunction with your cable company — is making every game available for free on computers and mobile devices. Users who visit www.ncaa.com/march madness can download an application that will stream games during the entire weekend. And if the games are blocked at work, you can stream them using your wireless connection (just be careful of high data costs).

If you don't need video, keeping up with the tournament is as easy as checking news and scores with an app. Consider using the Sporting News NCAA basketball app for scores. It is free and available for Android and iPhone devices.

Additionally, ESPN is offering a similar app called "Bracket Bound 2013." It provides scores, highlights and access to the ESPN tournament challenge. The coolest app of all might be the Buffalo Wild Wings Big Shot Challenge, where users play a game using augmented reality. Top scorers can even win a $25 Buffalo Wild Wings gift card or a trip to the 2014 Final Four. And as always, the app is free and available on Android and iPhone devices.

Campaign finance Proposals offer accountability

"Transparency in government" has become a catch phrase used by almost everyone elected to office these days. Too bad it isn't used more during political campaigns by those seeking elected office and by those working on ballot issues.

It's too bad, because voters cast ballots and often don't know who is supporting those candidates and issues, and by how much.

"Why does it matter? We should have a right to know who supports the candidates, and what positions they have that are supported by the contributors," said Rich Robinson, executive director of the Michigan Campaign Finance Network, a nonpartisan, non-profit group. Robinson spoke recently before members of the League of Women Voters in Livonia, specifically examining last year's Michigan Supreme Court race.

So how bad is it? Some overt political advertising is not considered such, because it addresses issues and does not necessarily try to get a candidate elected, according to Robinson. Nevertheless, the practice can have a big impact — at an enormous cost.

In fact, the MCFN, which has been tracking campaign expenditures, estimates that about $50 million in advertising went unreported as required in the Department of State's campaign finance reporting system. That money did not spontaneously seep from some well to ground level, only to be siphoned off to fuel someone's campaign. On the contrary, it came from people — or corporations and special interest groups — who could very well have a vested interest in that campaign. That means, in some cases, it was likely more of an investment than a donation — an investment with an expected favorable return in the form of a critical vote.

What is a voter to do? Follow the money. Unfortunately, that is easy to say but pretty tough to do. Some campaigners file financial reports after state deadlines, making it tough to know where their support is coming from.

"The (campaign committee) treasurer is critical to the election process," said Oakland County Commissioner Kathy Crawford, R-Novi. She said the treasurer is responsible "not only to meet reporting requirements, but also to inform candidates of all donations so that they may decide to accept or not."

The situation is not all doom and gloom. Michigan Secretary of State Ruth Johnson, a Republican who had her roots in northern Oakland County as a state representative, has chosen this "Sunshine Week" to cast light on the campaign finance reporting process with a series of proposals. Sunshine Week promotes the state's Freedom of Information Act and openness in government, and Johnson has called the week "a great disinfectant." Those who have ever hung laundry outdoors understand the reference.

At first glance, Johnson's proposals are promising, and they merit quick attention as the election cycle is already beginning with fundraising efforts in some communities, such as in Royal Oak where the Chamber of Commerce is hosting an event for the incumbent mayor.

Her proposals call for expansion

Secretary of State Ruth Johnson is pushing proposals to increase voters' access to candidates' campaign contribution records. The announcement comes during National Sunshine Week, which runs through March 16 and promotes open government and freedom of information.

of electronic reporting, tracking of campaign committee finances in non-election years, "real time" reporting of donations of $1,000 or more and additional finance reporting for ballot question committees.

In western Wayne County, State Rep. Kurt Heise, R-Plymouth Township, said that Wayne County already requires reporting by local candidates, but "that information is often difficult to access." Heise said he likes some of what Johnson has proposed.

Dave Staudt, a Novi city councilman who says he is treasurer for several campaign committees, points out that Oakland County has had online reporting for years. A Republican, he adds that he supports Johnson's measures.

Indeed, Johnson has carried forward to the state level things she had implemented as Oakland County clerk.

"Our goal is to apply some of that sunshine to Michigan's campaign finance reporting so citizens can continue to have confidence in our elected officials," Johnson said in a press release. "Transparency promotes accountability."

With that, Johnson zeroes in on the key to the whole issue: Voters must demand transparency not for its own sake, but for the accountability it provides.

"Elections are one of the most important parts of our American society," said Novi Mayor Bob Gatt. "People have the right to know who is donating money to the candidates running for office and that information should be out in the public view for everyone to see."

Supports 'Barefoot'

As a business owner in Canton, we are always willing to support our local community's artistic endeavors and were lucky enough to have Craig Hane, artistic director for Barefoot Productions, stop in to see us early in their formation. We enjoy theater and music immensely and donate to many types of programs in the community and the schools.

If you haven't taken the opportunity to visit a production done by Barefoot Productions, located at 240 N. Main St. in downtown Plymouth, you are missing the boat for exceptional quality community theater. Craig Hane, artistic director, is incredible at staging productions which force the audience to use their imagination and in casting the perfect actors for the parts.

"Miss Daisy," produced earlier in the season, was an adaptation of the movie and, in our opinion, couldn't have been more perfectly presented. The acting was incredible — perfection in staging — which was not an easy task in their intimate theater.

Whether it is a comedy as we experienced this past weekend with "Kind Sir," an adaptation of the movie "Indiscreet" with Ingrid Bergman and Cary Grant, or a more serious drama such as "Angel Street," an adaptation of the movie "Gas Light," the artistic direction and quality of this theater group takes the audience into the scenario and always creates a feeling that you are part of the action.

If you are looking for a great experience in community theater, nearby without traveling out of our immediate area, you would be remiss not to purchase the reasonably priced tickets and sit back and enjoy some of the best entertainment in the area. For further information and the contact information, check their website at www.justgobarefoot.com.

A gem of this caliber cannot exist without the support of our community. Purchase a reasonably priced ticket and enjoy. What are you waiting for — "Just Go Barefoot."

Canton's safest

Canton township leaders strive to keep Canton residents safe from harm in many situations. A few of the safety situations that occur in spring are strangers stalking and approaching our children walking to/from school; protecting our property during flood events; and reviewing the use of our tornado warning system.

As Canton leadership strives to spend our taxes efficiently and effectively, please watch for safety reminders in mailed Canton publications. Residents are always welcome to express concerns and ideas to keep our neighborhoods safe.

Guns not the problem

With the feverish barrage of more gun control legislation, Democrats and in particular the president himself seem to be foaming at the mouth in a big hurry to take away the rights of the law-abiding citizens of this country, at the same time, hypocritically freeing convicted felons who were arrested, tried and convicted of breaking existing gun laws.

Case in point, on March 1, President Barack Obama pardoned Larry Wayne Thornton of Forsyth, Ga. Because you won't hear about this in the so-called "mainstream media," you should know that Thornton was sentenced to four years of probation for "possession of an unregistered firearm" and "possession of a firearm without a serial number." He is one of 17 people pardoned by the same president who champions more gun control law on the law-abiding while freeing the guilty.

In 2010, out of more than 76,000 firearms purchases supposedly denied by the federal instant check system, only 62 were referred for prosecution and only 44 were actually prosecuted. We don't need more legislation and restrictions. We need a president and a Justice Department who not only enforce current law, but does not circumvent the law by freeing their pals from prison.

Guns in the hands of the law-abiding are not the problem, releasing felons from prison early and not pursuing people who fail background checks at the point of purchase is the problem.

Just fix Central

We do not need to spend millions of dollars to build a new middle school. Central Middle School's structure is solid. There isn't anything wrong with it that it can't be fixed or repaired.

One teacher while back wrote in the Observer that she needed more outlets in her class, problems like this can be fixed. Money should be spent to update any problem we have at the school. The school has a swimming pool and recreation area.

There are homes in Plymouth that are over 100 years old and people live in them and keep them up.

All across the U.S. older buildings are being used. The children are being sent to school to be educated and it is what is being taught in the classes that is important.

We should save where we can due to the poor economy. The Greatest Generation graduated from that school and you didn't hear them complain about the school and they didn't even have a swimming pool.

Realtor's passing 'leaves a hole'

By Brad Kadrich
Staff Writer

The real estate industry lost one of its top local performers when Chris Knight, a Realtor for Coldwell Banker, lost a two-year battle with colon cancer and passed away early Monday.

Knight, 47, was a 1983 graduate of Canton High School who started selling real estate at the age of 19 and, within five years of starting with the company, became one of the top-selling agents at Coldwell Banker.

With more than a half-billion dollars in career sales, the Chris Knight team was Coldwell Banker's top-selling team in the nation in 2010, and hit Number One in the region in both 2011 and 2012.

Mark Guidobono, a builder/developer with Cambridge Homes, has known Knight for 25 years and said his passing has left "something missing."

"Chris was the type of guy that everybody loved," said Guidobono. "When he left this Earth, he left a hole. It's like there's a spot missing now, and I'm sure everyone who knows him feels that way."

Guidobono said he met Knight "in our single days," and that the friends watched each other get married, have their children and succeed in business.

"We've done business together, we've played golf together," Guidobono said. "He was always there for his friends."

He is survived by his wife of 18 years, Susan; daughters Kylie and Alyssa; parents Pamela (Randy) Webster and Gordon (Kathy) Knight; sister Kelly (Robert) Webster; in-laws Gary and Janice Miller; and many aunts, uncles, cousins, nieces and nephews. He was preceded in death by his cousin Jason Rambo and grandfather Gene Bischof.

There will be a funeral Mass 10:30 a.m. Friday, March 15, at Our Lady of Good Counsel Catholic Church, 47650 N. Territorial Rd., Plymouth, with visitation at church beginning at 10 a.m. Friends may also visit 4-9 p.m. Thursday, March 14, at the Schrader-Howell Funeral Home, 280 S. Main in Plymouth. Burying will take place at Riverside Cemetery in Plymouth.

Memorials in Chris' name may be made to St. Jude Children's Hospital or Arbor Hospice.

Eagles clipped in Class D quarters

By Tim Smith
Staff Writer

All throughout the Class D girls basketball tournament, Plymouth Christian Academy had second-half answers to first-half problems. The Eagles tried the same formula after falling behind early in Tuesday's quarterfinal against Athens at Battle Creek Central. This time, unfortunately, PCA could not pull off another big comeback, falling 54-48 to the Lady Indians.

GIRLS BASKETBALL QUARTERFINAL

Athens (22-3) will move on to Thursday night's Class D semifinal at the Breslin Center in East Lansing. The Eagles finished their outstanding season with a 18-7 record.

"I'm very proud of them, they never gave up, not until the buzzer," PCA head coach Carol Gerulis said. "They were fighting for their life trying to stay alive because now if you don't win you're done." A tough-shooting first half put PCA in early trouble, with junior center Jenny Malcolm's eight points before intermission at least keeping the Eagles within range. Athens, sparked by senior forward Chantel Davenport (20 points, 17 in the first half) kept rolling early in the third with back-to-back layups by Davenport and Alysha Beal (10 points) making it 31-17.

Be careful

Lady Indians head coach Calvin Quist, however, emphasized to his players not to get complacent if they wanted to make it back to Breslin for the Final Four (as they did in 2012).

"This team (PCA) is a team that's fought back four times in the tournament," Quist said. "So we knew, they were going to make a run. We just had to sustain that run and we did enough to do that. That's a credit to my girls."

Quist was correct that the Eagles weren't done for the night.

Four treys by PCA junior guard Emily Gerulis (15 points, three steals) and eight points by senior guard Karen Windle — all in the second half — sparked the Eagles, who trailed 10-2 in the first, 27-17 at half.

4 MU cagers All-Academic Four Madonna University players were among 178 student-athletes named to the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics' Daktronics Division II Women's Basketball Scholar-Athlete Team.

The four players, who carried a 3.5 grade-point average or better, included seniors Michelle Lindsey (Birmingham Marian), Kristie Porada (Gibraltar Carlson) and Heather Pratt (Flushing), along with sophomore Rachel Melcher (Marian).

For Lindsey (nursing), Porada (pre-medical) and Pratt (business administration), the selection marks the trio's second straight season of earning the honor, while Melcher (Confoya) is making her first appearance on the squad.

All four were also honored as member of the Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference All-Academic team earlier this fall.

Taylor makes GLIAC squad

Grand Valley State women's basketball senior Brianna Taylor (Livonia Franklin) was recently named to the All-Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference first-team and the All-Defensive squad.

It is the third straight season that the 5-foot-9 Taylor earned first-team honors and first time for the defensive award as voted on by the conference coaches.

Taylor paced the 19-8 Lakers with 15.8 points, 6.9 rebounds and 3.2 assists per game.

She also shot 44.7 percent from the field to rank third on the team and in the top 20 in the conference.

Taylor led the team in scoring 16 times and grabbed a team-high 11 rebounds on 15 occasions. She had five double-doubles on the year.

Barber CCHA rookie honor

Miami University (Ohio) freshman forward Ryan Barber (Livonia) was named to the All-Rookie team in Central Collegiate Hockey Association.

Barber leads the RedHawks offensively with a 36 points and 15 goals and 21 assists in 34 games. The Washington Capitals draft pick has 11 multi-point games and was named CCHA Gongshou Rookie of the Week four times.

Ypsi stops Chiefs' tourney march

By Tim Smith
Staff Writer

Michigan State University's Breslin Center is the venue Canton wanted to reach during this postseason, but the Chiefs' march hit the "Green House" wall at Ann Arbor Huron instead.

There was no shame in that, of course. The way Ypsilanti played in Monday's Class A boys basketball regional semifinal, a lot of teams would have been up against it as the Chiefs were — falling 77-64 to the Phoenix.

Canton couldn't keep Phoenix power forwards Jaylen Johnson and Lavonte Davis from dominating the boards or getting extra cracks around the rim. And when Ypsilanti had open looks out on the perimeter, it often connected.

Conversely, the Chiefs, who finished with a 17-7 record, were forced into taking too many rushed field-goal tries after falling behind by double figures midway through the second quarter.

Those off-the-mark chances often led to dashes by Ypsi players to the opposite end of the floor.

"They're really aggressive, they play full-court. Man, they play hard," said Canton senior point guard Josh Mayberry, who led all scorers with 24 points in his prep finale. "They can shoot the ball, they really didn't miss a lot."

"That was one thing that killed us, they were making a lot of shots and we weren't. That's what it came down to."

For the game, the Phoenix made 28-of-56 shots from the floor and held a 30-16 rebounding edge.

Sharing the offensive load for Ypsilanti (19-4) were senior Justin Bernard and junior Jeneau Joubert (17 points each), freshman Corey Allen (13 points), 6-7 Davis (12 points, eight rebounds, three blocks) and 6-8 Johnson (10 points, nine rebounds).

"We had to execute at both ends and we didn't do a good enough job in the Dribbling down the court Monday night is Canton senior forward Scott Grinn (No. 10), while Ypsilanti's Jeneau Joubert (No. 3) closes in. Grinn's career with the Chiefs ended with the team's 77-64 loss to the Phoenix.

Canton girls bring home the medals

By Tim Smith
Staff Writer

On Friday, the Canton Chiefs experienced the same old routine at the Division I team finals when they were defeated by Grand Ledger — just like in 2012.

The picture was considerably brighter for Canton and head coach John Cunningham at Saturday's DI individual finals at Plymouth High School.

"I only our fantastic Saturday performance, matched with Grand Ledger's mediocre day, had been Friday," said Cunningham in an e-mail to the Observer. "The team really came through, even though they had back to back meets, with 13 medals and two state championships."

Capturing the Division 2 championship on vault for the second consecutive year was Erica Lucas, whose 9.525 score actually tied for first with Grand Ledger's Presley Allison.

Epitomizing the gutsy mindset that prevailed among Canton's squad was sophomore Jocelyn Moraw. Despite dealing with groin and back injuries that hampered her during the team finals, Moraw's 9.55 on balance beam earned her the DI championship.

For good measure, Moraw also tallied a 9.7

on uneven parallel bars (third) and placed fifth in all-around with a 37.225.

"Jocelyn Moraw was the team inspiration," Cunningham said. "Taping up a strained groin and back, finishing Friday's competition for the team and then coming back the next day and winning a state championship... What a gutsy, fantastic display of fortitude."

Winning four medals in DI for the Chiefs was Melissa Green. She finished fourth on floor (9.6) and all-around (37.25), tied for sixth on beam (9.3) and 10th on vault (9.35).

COMPUWARE HOSTS BOYS HOCKEY FINALS

Ice-breaking title for Spartans

By Brad Emons
Observer Staff Writer

They've earned the right to "Spartan On" as Stevenson did what no other Livonia prep hockey team has done in 43 years on Saturday — win a coveted state championship.

The Spartans are the newly crowned MHSAA's Division 2 champions by virtue of their 5-4 victory at Plymouth's Compuware Arena against fellow Kensington Lakes Activities Association member Hartland.

Stevenson, getting a pair of goals each from senior defenseman Travis Harvey and star junior forward Dominic Lutz, survived a wild second period that featured six goals to hoist the state championship trophy.

"You have to do it to feel it," Harvey said. "I'm speechless right now."

For Lutz, who notched his 42nd and 43rd goals of the season, it was surreal moment.

"It's unbelievable," he said. "A lot of my teammates have been playing together for years and it just means a ton to me and it's great accomplish this. We've worked so hard and it's great to be rewarded. It was a real team win."

It was 1-1 after one period as Harvey scored from Mick Sinclair and Blake Backett at 4:55, but Hartland's Austin Flores countered when he beat Spartan goaltender Connor Humitz in the upper right corner from Chris McRae and John Nagel.

McRae then scored unassisted at 54 seconds of the second period to gave the Eagles a momentary 2-1 advantage, but Stevenson answered with three straight goals.

Lutz connected for two in a row, one unassisted at 4:30 and the second from Jake Kierdorf at 7:07 followed by Harvey's second of the game from Ray Chartier at 9:10 to make it 4-2.

"In this kind of game you try and pick your corners, but in the end you've just got to get good shots on net," Lutz said. "My second goal ... I just threw it at the net and it deflected off someone and got in. I shoot pucks all the time, but once it comes down it, you've got to just put it on net and make it to the goal and not wide."

Lutz's first goal, however, was a beauty as he took a pass from Kierdorf between the circles and ripped a shot by Hartland netminder Nick Wineka.

"That time I had no pressure and was able to place it where I wanted," Lutz said. "My slap shot takes more time, but my wrist shot I think I'm way more accurate with it. And it just seems to work for me."

Hartland's Ned O'Boyle, however, made it a one-goal game again with an unassisted effort at 9:56 of the second.

But Chartier's drive from the left point was redirected off an Eagle player to put Stevenson back on top by two again, 5-3, at 12:48.

"We would rather not play that way," Stevenson coach David Mitchell said. "We'd rather play a little more defensive and shut things down, but these guys next to me — when they see opportunities — they tend to go. We saw some opportunities and took some, but give Hartland credit in the world because once we started looking for goals, they caught us. They turned around and buried some of their own."

Although Stevenson held a 40-29 shots on goal advantage, it was no piece of cake as Hartland (19-9-2) made things interesting just 1.8 seconds into the third period when Chris McRae notched his second goal of the game to cut the deficit to 5-4.

Shamrocks stymied in D1 final

By Tim Robinson
Gannett News Service

It was loud, it was suspenseful, and for the Brighton hockey team, it was everything the Bulldogs could ask for.

Brighton repeated as Division 1 hockey champions on Saturday night at Compuware Arena, beating old nemesis Detroit Catholic Central 2-1 to earn its third championship in eight years.

It was the second championship of the day for the RLAA, which saw Livonia Stevenson beat Hartland 5-4 for the Division 2 title earlier in the day.

Saturday's title victory was a lot like last year's. The Bulldogs were out-shot by a large margin — 38-16 — but made the most of the opportunities they had and never trailed.

"I thought that defensively we were making them shoot a lot of pucks and Jimmy (goalie Jimmy Milletics) was seeing a lot of them," Brighton coach Paul Moggach said. "Both goalies played great. It's hard to say a winner and one wasn't, but that's the way it goes."

It went that way because Milletics was superb throughout, and never more so than in the final seconds, when he stopped Michael Babcock Jr., son of the Detroit Red Wings coach, twice from point-blank range before covering the puck with 6.8 seconds remaining.

"He got a shot off and I stuck my leg out, hoping I could get it," Milletics said. "It worked pretty well."

puck go into the corner of the rink, and the Shamrocks couldn't dig it out in time.

"He was a difference-maker today," Moggach said. "He was one yesterday (in the semifinals, a 4-1 win over U-D Jesu- it). Good goaltending. You need good goaltending in really big games. They're a tough team to beat, and I thought he did a great job. We had good team defense as well. Everybody worked hard. They helped him see pucks and kept pucks on the perimeter."

Catholic Central head coach Todd Johnson also had high praise for the netminder, but noted that the Bulldogs "blocked a ton of shots. They had a pretty darn good formula for success."

Johnson added that it was costly to go down 2-0, and that a late penalty also cut into any possible time for a comeback.

Up by two
Michael Yuhaz, in the first period, and Lucas Morgan, in the second, gave the Bulldogs a lead they never relinquished.

Yuhaz got the Bulldogs on the board with 1:53 left in the first period.

"I don't know how it got to me, really. It must have bounced off someone's stick," Yuhaz said. "I just tried to get whatever I could on the puck, and that was a huge difference maker, getting the first goal. That's what we started. It was a good thing for our team."

Luke Morgan, a freshman, scored Brighton's second goal. Yuhaz streaked up the ice to the left of Catholic Central goalie Derek Moore and got off a shot, with Morgan putting the rebound into the net.

"He got it across from the wing, and I crashed the net," Morgan said. "It was a great play carrying it up the ice."

Catholic Central scored when Carson Gatt beat Milletics for a power-play goal with 7:02 remaining, but a stalwart Brighton defense held the Shamrock at bay the rest of the night.

Spirit butterflies under
Avalanche prospects spearhead Whalers to 7-5 victory

By Tim Smith
 Staff Writer

Triggering a proverbial avalanche of offense for the Plymouth Whalers were linemates Garrett Meurs and Mitchell Heard, who combined to score four goals Sunday afternoon as the Whalers defeated Saginaw 7-5. Meurs — who registered a hat trick to now have 30 goals on the season — and Heard could perhaps envision having big games in the not-too-distant future as teammates on the Colorado Avalanche. Both players are property of the NHL team.

Following the matinee played before nearly 3,100 at Compuware Arena, Meurs said the topic of playing to continue on some day on the Avalanche hasn't been discussed that much, with the top priority all about gearing up for the Ontario Hockey League playoffs. "Not really, he (Heard) tells me a little bit of what he did up there in the A (American Hockey League) and I know one of the guys, too," Meurs said. "We haven't really talked about the future yet."

Heard played the first half of this season with Colorado's Lake Erie AHL farm team and has only played 29 games with Plymouth since being returned to juniors. He has 13 goals with the Whalers, including Saginaw's mark-er where he stickhandled through Saginaw defenders before snapping a short-side wrist shot past goalie Nikita Serebryakov.

"He's been great since he's been back," Meurs said, referring to Heard. "And with Matt Mistle on that line, too, we all work hard and try to get pucks to the net and they're going in for us." About the Colorado prospects, Plymouth head coach and general manager Mike Vellucci had nothing but praise for their performance against the Spirit. "That was Heard's best game since he's been back," Vellucci said. "He played really well, he had a lot of speed, using his legs. And Meurs, he plays the same every night. He contributes and he had three big goals." The Whalers (39-17-5-4, 87 points) have already clinched the OHL West Division and, with it, the No. 2 seed in the Western Conference. But they are still bound and determined to keep the positive momentum going into the postseason, which begins Friday, March 22, at Compuware against a to-be-determined opponent. "We're excited, everyone's ready to go," Meurs said. "We just got to keep playing the way we have the last 10 games or so. Keep pucks out of our net and score more than them."

Stemming the tide
 Sunday's game didn't always follow the script as the Spirit took a quick 1-0 lead. Garret Ross netted his 43rd goal of the season at 2:44 of the first.

An opportunity for Saginaw to take a two-goal lead went by the wayside when Plymouth penalty killers Connor Sillis and Danny Vanderviel teamed up for a shorthanded goal at 5:46 to even things up at 1-1. It was Sillis' first OHL marker.

"Using him (Sillis) on the penalty kill, with Vandy, they made a nice play there," Vellucci said. "He probably had a lot of chances throughout the year to score his first one, but he played well." Saginaw's Eric Locke sent the puck past Plymouth netminder Alex Nedeljkovic (23 saves) at 7:50 on another power play.

Back came the Whalers again. Meurs scored on the power play at 15:31 with assists going to Stefan Noesen and Gianluca Curcuruto to send the teams into the intermission at 2-2. It took just 3:29 of the second for Plymouth to take a 3-2 lead and it was Meurs to again light the lamp. Serebryakov (33 saves) made a poor clearing attempt. "That was Heard's best game since he's been back," Vellucci said. "He played really well, he had a lot of speed, using his legs. And Meurs, he plays the same every Vince Trochec made it 4-2 with a power-play marker at 14:59, from Noesen and Sebastian Uvira. Noesen fed the puck between the circles to Trochec, whose slapper caromed in off the left post for his 48th goal of the season and 101st point.

Saginaw's Dalton Young cut the lead to 4-3 with a goal at 16:17, a rising shot from the left point. Meurs banked a shot from behind the net off of the Spirit goal for his third of the game, to put Plymouth up 5-3 at 55 seconds of the third. Assisting were Heard and Mistle.

Saginaw did not go quietly, however, tying the contest at 5-5 on goals from Young and Justin Kea. The equalizer came at 6:30, and the Whalers needed just 1:14 to respond.

Banking the tie with his goal was Heard, putting the finishing touches on a play started by Meurs and defenseman Austin Levi. Uvira capped the scoring at 18:35, skating in from the neutral zone and sending a low shot between Serebryakov's pads.

The loss dropped Saginaw's record to 31-28-3-3 (68 points), but the Spirit clinched the eighth and final playoff spot in the Western Conference. "Right now we're just playing for points against the other division," Vellucci said. "It wasn't a great game. Offensively we played pretty good."

"It wasn't great on the penalty kill, but I used different guys to try to get ready for the playoffs." "Right now we're just playing for points against the other division," Vellucci said. "It wasn't a great game. Offensively we played pretty good." "It wasn't great on the penalty kill, but I used different guys to try to get ready for the playoffs."

WHAT'S NEXT: Plymouth traveled to Sault Ste. Marie for last night's matchup and will wrap up the regular season with a home-and-home this weekend against Windsor. The teams play at 7 p.m. Saturday at Compuware (it will be Plymouth's "Green One" game for St. Patrick's Day), followed by a 2 p.m. game Sunday at Windsor.

Canton senior point guard Josh Mayberry (No. 2) — in what turned out to be his final high school game — looks to maneuver through Ypsilanti defenders including Janeau Joubert (No. 3) during Monday's Class A regional semifinal at Ann Arbor Huron.

first half at either end," Canton head coach Jimmy Reddy said. "In stretches we were OK, but we took way too many bad shots, which you got to credit Ypsilanti for forcing us into."

"And defensively, sometimes we were overhelped and then we didn't block out good enough and they got second and third opportunities. That's one of the best parts of their offense, just keeping those big guys crashing the glass."

Momentum stoppers

Mayberry, as did Canton's other seniors, left it all out on the floor, even after it became apparent in the second quarter what the final outcome would be. Ypsilanti led 22-14 after one quarter and expanded that to 44-27 at halftime.

All game long, whenever the Chiefs made a big play or basket to seemingly grab some momentum, back came Ypsilanti to stick a pin in Canton's comeback balloon. For example, down 61-43 going into the fourth, senior forward Scott Gring stole the ball in the Canton end and Mayberry drained a trey from beyond the top of the arc to make it a 15-point spread.

But not too long afterward, Joubert banked in a triple.

Back-to-back treys by Canton senior guard Ryan Planey and junior guard Greg Williams (the latter following a steal-and-shoot from Mayberry) cut Ypsilanti lead to 71-58 with 2:15 remaining in regulation. Right down the floor came Davis, for a thunderous dunk. Even though Ypsil had the game in hand, the Chiefs never wavered. In the final minute, Mayberry sank another 3-ball and forced a turnover that led to a pair of free throws with 49 seconds left to make it 73-63. A few seconds later, both Mayberry and Gring left the game, receiving applause from Canton fans and hugs from teammates — saluting how they played during the game, not to mention their careers.

"It's over, but you got to move on," Mayberry said. "It's been a fun four years and I appreciate my coaching staff and all my teammates. It's been a fun ride." Planey netted 12 points off the bench, while Gring (six rebounds) had a solid game in the paint. Also seeing action were seniors Adnan Bayz and Matt McKoy.

"It was a heck of a year for all those guys," Reddy said. "Josh and Scott were three-year varsity guys who had 16 wins as sophomores, 16 wins as juniors, 17 wins this year, two division championships, a conference and a district."

"I'm just really proud of the guys, Bayz, McKoy, Planey. They were great chemistry guys."

time and 36-22 with 2:45 left in the third.

Malcolm also fueled the PCA comeback try with three baskets around the rim, finishing the night with 14 points and eight rebounds.

"We've been going through a lot of tough starts the past few games in this whole tournament," said Windle, who had eight rebounds and three steals along with her eight points. "It's just another one of those... Emily really carried us through with her threes and we all just decided we wanted to play strong no matter what to finish." "Win or lose we could leave the court knowing we played our best and that we gave glory to God. That's the most we can do."

PCA did cut the gap to 46-43 with 2:50 remaining following a Geru-lis rainbow trey from well beyond the arc and a putback by junior forward Rachel Smith (eight points, five rebounds). That basket got the purple-clad Eagles' student section noisier than it had been all night.

"We thought we had it in us (another game-winning rally) and Smitty got that rebound, put it back in and kept it at three so that was really awesome," Windle said.

Leading the way

But then Windle was whistled for her fifth foul and had to exit the floor, ending her high school career with 142 remaining. It also was the final game for PCA senior guard Jenna Abraham.

PCA missed on three straight triples in the final 100 seconds, and Athens tacked on free throws by Allison Fuller (10 points) and Leia freshmen," said Gerulis, about Windle and Abraham. "They have the biggest hearts of any kids I've ever coached. They're great leaders, they give you everything they can on the floor."

"Karen just came out and fought, she has a bad ankle from the regional final game. She played on it anyway and gave it everything she got. I'm just really glad I got to coach those two kids." Windle added that the future is bright because of the players who will return in 2013-14 (led by Malcolm, Gerulis, Smith, currently injured Rachel Fuller and Martha Mullett, who scored three Tuesdays).

"They have so much talent within the five of them and I know they can go just as far if not further next year," Windle said. "I know they are going to leave a legacy just like we left."

Pioneer MS cagers win new trophy

Pioneer Middle School boys basketball teams put 'A' and 'B' together and it added up to a championship late last month. Pioneer's two teams combined to sport the best overall record among Plymouth-Canton Community Schools' five middle schools and thus capture the title.

It is the first year for the championship trophy, as Pioneer Middle School team parents on Feb. 28 donated it to the school district. It will travel to the middle school with the best combined record for the A and B teams in future seasons. The A and B teams primarily are comprised of youngsters in grades eight and seven, respectively.

Also at the ceremony, each Panthers coach (Johnson, Palmer and Wallen) received an autographed team ball complete with team photographs.

Madonna's Stoney finishes no-hitter

Jeremy Gooding and Dan Stoney combined to keep Avila University (Mo.) out of the hit column as the Madonna University baseball team closed its 2013 spring trip with a sweep at the RussMatt Central Florida Invitational at Lake Myrtle Park.

The Crusaders took the opener, 2-1, followed by the no-hitter in an 8-0 victory to improve to 12-5 overall. Gooding (3-0), a right-hander from Dearborn Divine Child, went the first six innings for MU, walking five while striking out nine before giving up to Stoney.

The Canton right-hand-

er allowed the lead-off runner to reach, but struck out the final two batters to complete the first MU no-hitter since the 2008 season.

Steve Barron and Victor Pellerier (Farmington Harrison) led MU's 15-hit attack each going 3-for-4.

Alex Charles and Justin Cook combined two hits apiece, while Shane Dokey and Barron each knocked in three runs.

Gooding was also named NAIA National Pitcher of the Week after finishing 2-0, including a 3-2 victory over No. 6-ranked Point Park (Pa.)

University on March 4.

In that game, Gooding allowed two runs on four hits and only one walk while striking out a season-high 10.

Meanwhile, in Game One, MU scored a run in the bottom of the sixth to break a 1-1 tie and pull off a 2-1 win.

Matthew Cook (2-1) threw a complete game for the Crusaders, striking out eight while allowing just a pair of base hits and one walk.

Dokey and Justin Cook combined for four of MU's six hits, while Barron collected the lone RBI.

Avila falls to 7-3 overall.

Speaker shares story of rediscovering her Catholic faith

St. Michael's Arch-angel Parish continues the fourth season of its series, "Why Be Catholic?" at 7 p.m. Thursday, March 21 with guest speaker Kathleen Crombie, director of minority outreach for Right to Life Michigan.

She'll share the story of rediscovering the fullness and truth of her faith.

Of her "awakening," Crombie says, "Sometimes God allows us to see his hand in life-changing ways. We prayed for my son to be healed physically and God granted a miracle. The unexpected bonus round was my own spiritual conversion and healing at the same time — conversion and healing that I didn't even know I needed."

Since rediscovering her faith, Crombie, who has bachelor of science degree in speech from Northern Michigan University and a master's degree in organizational communication and public relations from Wayne State University, has become whole-heartedly committed to the pro-life movement, completed a two-year study of Theology of the Body through the Cardinal Maida Institute, co-founded the first Fatima Family Apostolate Married Marian Couples prayer group in Michigan. She also serves on the board of directors for the Divine Mercy Center in Eastpointe and is an accomplished iconographer.

St. Michael's is located at 11441 Hubbard, just south of Plymouth Road between Farmington Road and Merriman, in Livonia. No charge or reservations are required to attend. For more information including the availability of child care, call (734) 261-1455, Ext. 200, or see www.livonia-st-michael.org.

St. Patrick's Day celebration draws all ages for music, food, dance

By Sharon Dargay
Staff Writer

Mick Gavin hopes you'll attend the annual St. Patrick's Day party Sunday, March 17, at the Hellenic Cultural Center in Westland.

But if you want to stop by the Detroit Symphony Orchestra concert in Detroit first, that's okay with him, too.

"My son, Sean, is playing with the symphony at Orchestra Hall," said Gavin, a Redford resident and member of the Crossroads Cello Band, which is set to play at the Hellenic Center in Westland.

His son will play flute and Devin Shepherd will be on fiddle. Both are members of the band, Bua, which performs traditional Irish songs.

"They are playing Wheels of the World with the symphony. It's an Irish classic. And they're playing Mist Covered Mountains, which is another Irish piece," Gavin said. "The symphony is over at 5 p.m. You can be back in (Westland) to catch the Arden School of Dance at 6 p.m. and supper and a lot more music."

The symphony concert starts at 3 p.m. on St. Patrick's Day, Sunday, March 17, at Orchestra Hall, 3711 Woodward Ave., Detroit. Tickets start at $14 and are available at www.dso.org or call (313) 576-5111.

The 29th annual Saint Patrick's Day Irish Fest runs 2 p.m.-9 p.m. Sunday at the Hellenic Cultural Center, 36375 Joy Road. Admission is $10 and children under 12 are admitted at no charge. In addition to Gavin and the Crossroads Cello Band, entertainment will include The Conor O'Neill's session group, Eddie McGlinchey, Colin Paige, Ray Maguire, members of the Ardan and O'Hare schools of Irish dance, piper Calum MacNeill and the Dolowy family of Plymouth.

"It's an hour earlier this year," Gavin said, noting the start time. "I thought it would be nice for seniors and families who want to come in and have lunch."

With four balladeers

Sean Gavin (left) and Devin Shepherd, both from the Irish band, Bua, will play with the Detroit Symphony on Sunday, March 17. Gavin's father, Mick, will play with his own band that same day at the Hellenic Center in Westland.

Dancers from the Arden School of Dance will perform Sunday, March 17, at the Hellenic Cultural Center in Westland.

performing, the crowd, which will include revelers from as far away as Flint, Lansing and Ohio, can expect to hear more ballads this year. Dance performances are set for 3:30 p.m. and 6 p.m., and pipers will play at 4 p.m. There's also a dance floor for attendees who want to quick step or waltz to the music.

"We usually have a lot of kids out there. They love to dance. The kids get to socialize with each other and run around and be a part of the party. We get babies to grandmas and grandpas. The whole family comes. They enjoy the food and the music. It's a cultural celebration. And it's an opportunity to celebrate the arrival of Christianity in Ireland," Gavin said, referring to St. Patrick, who preached in Ireland.

The Saint Patrick's Day Irish Fest runs through 9 p.m. Corned beef and cabbage dinners, Irish Stew, hot dogs and a cash bar will be available. For more information call (313) 576-3489.

'Hamlet' revised

Schoolcraft College Theater Department stages understandable Shakespeare

By Sharon Dargay
Staff Writer

To be or not to be afraid of Shakespeare? You won't have to ask yourself that question if you watch

James Hartman's edited version of Hamlet, which begins a three-weekend run March 22 at Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

"I expect that when we do Shakespeare, people are afraid of it. If they come to see my edited version they'd love it," said Hartman, professor of theater and drama at the college. "If any Shakespeare scholars were to see my play, they'd know editing was done, but they'd know the entire story is there and it makes sense."

That's because Hartman, who has edited seven other of Shakespeare's plays, carefully considered every word as he worked to make the language in the play more accessible to the audience. He began revising Hamlet five years ago, took a break half way through to edit Romeo and Juliet — which he staged in 2012 — and then returned to Hamlet last year. He finished the revision in June last year, but figures he re-edited it six or seven more times over the summer. With all of his revised Shakespeare plays he also has tweaked the script after each rehearsal.

"I was able to see what worked on stage and what didn't every night while in rehearsal. I thoroughly enjoy doing that."

Hartman stresses that he maintains the Shakespearean-style language in the plays.

"It's not modern language. I replace pronouns with nouns because sometimes when you hear 'he,' 'she,' 'it,' or 'they,' you may not remember what it's referring back to," he explained.

Editing techniques

In Hamlet, he replaced some words, particularly those Shakespeare "made up" and that are difficult to understand, with language that conveys information more clearly. He also

Ronya Mallad of Canton, is the doomed Ophelia.

'HAMLET'

When: 6:30 p.m. dinner, followed by 8 p.m. show, Friday-Saturday, March 22-23 and April 5-6; 8 p.m. show only, April 12-13

Where: Dinner is served in the VistaTorch Center, with the show in the Liberal Arts Theater, both on the Schoolcraft College campus, located on Haggerty between Seven Mile and Six Mile, Livonia

Details: The Theatre Department stages an edited version of Shakespeare's "Hamlet." James Hartman considered every word in the script as he made the language more understandable. Tickets for the dinner theater performances are $24 per person. Tickets for the theater-only performances are $12 per person broke long sentences into two or three to make the script easier to follow. He reduced multiple metaphors into the few "most powerful or most beautiful."

"If you've ever read a contemporary edition, usually at the side (of the script) there are tons of notes. I've taken what would have been notes and I have inserted the note into the line, making it sound like the actual line. Or I've taken the information and made an appositive in the line. It makes it so clear. In some cases where Shakespeare did not supply a subject or verb, I did."

Hartman's editing also shortened the play. He has watched a performance of the full script at Stratford, Ont., Canada that ran three hours and 45 minutes. His version of Hamlet will run about two and a half hours, including a 10-minute intermission.

With opening night a little more than a week away, Hartman, who had been sidelined with health issues during two weeks of rehearsal, is working quickly to ready lighting, sound and programs. Jason Kallias, an English teacher at the college, ran a few of the rehearsals in Hartman's absence.

"I will take over the rest of the play now. He'll stay on as fight choreographer."

The first two weekends of Hamlet at the college. The final weekend is show only. Get tickets from the bookstore on the main campus or call (734) 462-4596.

Spring gatherings

Hatch a delicious brunch with egg recipes

Spring is an exciting time filled with new life and bright colors blooming both in the garden and in the kitchen. Inspired by these hues and flavors, the experts in the McCormick Kitchens have developed a collection of recipes and tips for spring gatherings with a special focus on a star ingredient of the season — the egg.

Celebrate eggs by creating a delicious menu with warm cinnamon and bold mustard to wake up the flavors in savory dishes such as brunch casseroles and deviled eggs. Play up eggs in colorful fresh baked treats paired with lemon, almond and vanilla extracts.

Once the menu is finalized, use these tips and ideas from the McCormick Kitchens to simplify your at-home gatherings:

• Make prep a snap: Enjoy more time with your guests by making no-fuss dishes that are easy to prepare ahead, like casseroles and fruit salads.

• Delicious deviled eggs: Offer guests exciting variations on classic deviled eggs by adding tarragon paired with capers, or season with the unexpected flavor of curry.

• Add a "punch" of color: Make the punch bowl part of the party decor. Start by mixing five to seven drops of food color into a punch bowl filled with your favorite springtime drink. Continue to add more drops to achieve the desired hue.

• Artsy egg dyeing: Kids will love fun techniques like sponge painting, crackle color and tie-dyeing for a unique take on egg decorating. Mix 1/2 cup boiling water, 1 teaspoon vinegar and 10 to 20 drops food color in a cup to achieve desired colors. Repeat for each color.

• Batch Bake: Double-batch a festive dessert recipe like Easter Egg Cake Bites, and vary the extracts and food color to make two unique treats in one effort. Try lemon extract paired with yellow food color, or raspberry extract paired with blue food color.

Keep fire safety in mind at nightclubs, stadiums

The National Fire Protection Association recently marked the 10th anniversary of The Station nightclub fire that occurred in Rhode Island with a plea to the public to be cautious and keep safety in mind when visiting nightclubs or similar venues. The Station fire occurred on Feb. 20, 2003, and killed 100 people.

NFPA recently updated and expanded its resource page on assembly and nightclub fires in light of a January fire at the Kiss nightclub in Santa Maria, Brazil, that killed 238 people. The Kiss nightclub fire is ranked third on NFPA's list of the deadliest nightclub fires in the world; The Station is ranked 10th.

"When selecting or settling into an entertainment venue like a nightclub, sports arena or restaurant for an evening of enjoyment, how to get out if there in an emergency is probably not one of the first things on your mind, but it should be," said Lorraine Carl, NFPA's vice president of Communications. "Fire drills are or should be common practice for businesses and schools, along with family home escape plans, so it's only natural for this level of awareness to be carried over to other places, even if you only plan on being there for a short time."

For those visiting events in nightclubs or other places of assembly, there are basic tips to keep in mind when entering a potentially unsafe gathering place.

- Before you enter:
- Take a good look
 - Have a communication plan
 - Plan a meeting place
- When you enter:
- Locate exits immediately
 - Check for clear exit paths
 - Look for smoke alarms and fire sprinklers
 - Do you feel safe?
- During an emergency:
- React immediately
 - Get out, stay out!

Full descriptions of these steps, along with videos, reports and further analysis, can be found at NFPA's website. NFPA is a worldwide leader in fire, electrical, building, and life safety. The mission of the international nonprofit organization founded in 1896 is to reduce the worldwide burden of fire and other hazards on the quality of life by providing and advocating consensus codes and standards, research, training, and education. NFPA develops more than 300 codes and standards to minimize the possibility and effects of fire and other hazards. All NFPA codes and standards can be viewed at no cost at www.nfpa.org/freecodes.

Pet dropping plan needs legal check

By Robert Meisner
Guest Columnist

Q: I have suggested to the board a more practical way of dealing with pet droppings at our condominium. It entails having a professional come in to pick up the droppings. What do you think?

While that process may be controversial, particularly, because certain people do not have dogs and believe that it is the responsibility of the pet owner to clean up, I am aware of commentators who have suggested that approach, and, it may not be totally unreasonable given the fact that it could be part of the maintenance responsibilities of the association, particularly if there are a number of dog owners who do not mind paying, perhaps by way of an additional assessment for that service. Where it gets more "hairy" is if the cost of cleaning up is distributed among all co-owners although, presumably, the garbage pickup is paid by all co-owners through the association even though some co-owners have more garbage than others and/or some co-owners may not have any garage when they are out of town, perhaps during the winter. It is not an idea, therefore, that should be totally rejected, but I would check with legal counsel for the association before implementing that plan.

Q: I have leaking in my basement. I called the management company and the representative came out and looked at it and I paid a plumber to give me an estimate to correct the problem which included standing water in the sewage pipes for approximately five years. I have problems with my pipes and I think it is the association's responsibility. Do I have recourse with the management company, association, builder, township inspector who signed off on the work or the State of Michigan?

A: You need a good lawyer to give you your answer, but generally speaking, if it is the association's responsibility, you will need to put pressure on the association, as well as the managing agent, to take care of your problem. The State of Michigan and the township building inspector are not in a position to help you any more than your legislators or congress persons. All too often, people look to help from "free sources" when their best recourse is hiring a competent attorney.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles?
Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku
savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
