Monument honors 'ultimate sacrifice'

Family members gather to remember loved ones lost

By Matt Jachman
Staff Writer

A steady drizzle added to the somber mood Thursday afternoon as Wayne County officials and family members of public safety workers lost in the line of duty unveiled the county's First Responders Memorial in Plymouth Township. The $400,000 memorial – granite pillars engraved with the names of 401 fallen, set in a semi-circular plaza at Hines Drive and Haggerty – was dedicated amid presentations from police and fire department honor guards and a performance by the Livonia Franklin High School choir. Police and fire departments from around the county were represented.

The Rev. Tom Belczak, pastor at St. Kenneth Catholic Church, referred to the rain as he offered an invocation.

"Perhaps those are tears of our God for those who made the ultimate sacrifice," Belczak said.

County Executive Bob Ficano, the former Wayne County sheriff, said he was motivated to build such a memorial by a remark he heard, shortly after the terrorist attacks of 9/11,

Leisure Services bags national award

Township one of two Michigan communities to receive honor

Canton, acclaimed for its well-kept parks, recreation facilities and leisure activities, has earned the highest score possible from a national agency that has renewed the community's accreditation after a thorough review of local programs.

Just this month, Canton Leisure Services was singled out for excellence in parks and recreation management by the Commission for Accreditation of Park and Recreation Agencies, or CAPRA. Canton is one of only two agencies in Michigan – along with Dearborn – and one of 119 across the nation on the distinguished list.

Canton Leisure Services Director Debbie Bilbrey-Honsowetz accepted the re-accreditation award in Houston, Texas, during the National Recreation and Park Association's 2013 Congress and Legislative Forum. Canton scored 100 percent based on 156 standards in 10 categories.

"Accreditation has been a great management tool for our organization," Bilbrey-Honsowetz said. "Attaining national accreditation is confirmation of our entire staff's efforts to provide quality facilities, programs and services throughout the Canton community."

Canton has earned a reputation for its parks, which host festivities such as the Canton Cup soccer tournament and Liberty Fest; facilities such as Summit on the Park and the Village Theater at Cherry Hill; and outdoor of-

Group pushes rec complex

Members push idea for Central school property

By Brad Kadrich
Staff Writer

A group of citizens pushing an idea for what to do with the Central Middle School property when it closes following the 2014-15 school year is trying to make the decision easier for the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education.

The Parks and Recreation Complex Committee, which includes representatives of civic groups, sports teams, businesses and residents, wants to see the property repurposed to fit a number of activities, including a performing arts center, a senior citizens center and a fitness center, among other things.

In making a pitch to the school board's finance committee, PARC member Don Soenen said the plan, which could carry a project cost of some $25 million, is "one suggested implementation option" for a community-driven effort "to develop this asset."

"The Plymouth community will never again have an opportunity to provide a facility like this in such a prime location," Soenen told finance committee members. "It is imperative that every effort is made to bring the relevant parties together and to reach an informed and deliberative decision for the benefit of the entire community."

Finance committee member Sheila Paton, who also sits on the Board of Education, was impressed with the presentation.

"It's a very good option, but we're considering every option," Paton said.

The plan includes, among other things, an 800- to 1,200-seat performing arts center, an aquatic park with an up-graded swimming pool, a gym and a fitness center, locker rooms, a daytime senior center, meeting rooms and office space and up-graded athletic fields.

PARC members point out the city of Plymouth has already pointed to the Central Middle School property

Ditch flooding solution sought

By Darrell Clem
Staff Writer

A Canton neighborhood worried about potential flooding from ditch drainage problems along a section of Geddes Road is expected to get some relief.

Wayne County has indicated it will perform work to help ease drainage woes reported by dozens of homeowners in Woodbridge Estates, on Geddes between Denton and Beck, Canton Municipal Services Director Tim Faas said.

"The county is going to perform some ditch maintenance," Faas said, following talks involving township officials, Wayne County, the developer and the homeowners association.

The talks occurred in Wayne County Commissioner Shannon Price's office. Moreover, the parties plan to meet on-site to determine what improvements may be needed for stormwater ponds, Faas said.

The latest development came after 25 homeowners from Woodbridge Estates came to a Canton Township Board of Trustees meeting earlier this month to plead with local officials for help. They said they fear ditch drainage woes could worsen as fall rains approach.

Residents said pumping water from their neighborhood ponds into the ditch because it often is already at capacity. Woodbridge has about 200 homeowners.

Meanwhile, Tom Porter, a resident of the 44-home Woodwind Estates on Palmer west of Lilley, said his neighborhood has had long-term problems with a ditch not draining properly.

"Sometimes it's so full our lift station can't pump any more water into it," he said. "When it rains really hard, our ponds will be really high with water. They can't pump any more out because the ditch is full."

Though it hasn't happened lately, Porter said there have been numerous times in the past when the ditch became so full that water flowed across Palmer Road, posing a potential hazard for motorists.

Porter said he believes the problem is arising from several sources: an overgrowth of vegetation he wishes the county would clear out; some nearby underground pipes he believes are too small to accommodate much water; and additional development in the area.

Porter said a Woodwind Estates lift station

"burned up" a few years back, forcing an estimated $9,000 in repairs.

"Every time it rains hard, I always worry that we might get backed up with water again because the water flow is restricted," he said.

Faas said homeowners who are having ditch drainage problems should contact Canton's engineering services division. The phone number is 734-394-5150.

O&E, Goodfellows seeking 'Pennies'

The Canton Goodfellows have a mission of making sure every child has a good Christmas and later this month local residents get a chance to make that happen.

The Canton Goodfellows, in partnerships with O&E Media, Inc., the parent company of the Canton Observer, will be accepting "Pennies from Heaven" as part of O&E Media's annual Make a Difference Day.

The event takes place Saturday, Oct. 26, at the Summit on the Park, 4600 Summit Parkway in Canton.

Representatives of the Canton Goodfellows and the Canton Observer will be on hand to accept donations of pennies or other spare change — or additional donations — from 10 a.m. to noon. Residents should feel free to stop by, have a doughnut and some cider and make a donation.

Proceeds will benefit the Canton Goodfellows, a group of community volunteers dedicated to providing food, clothing and Christmas gifts to families with young children. Donated funds are used to purchase new clothing, toys and food to provide Christmas gifts and food for the holidays for the families.

Many of the children are "adopted" by members of the community who purchase and donate new clothing and toys for those children.

The need has grown over the years. According to information on the Goodfellows' website, the group helped 42 families as far back as 1985. By 2012, 473 children in 181 families, along with 30 seniors, were recipients of Goodfellows baskets.

The Goodfellows work out of the Canton Township office, located at 1150 S. Canton Center Road. Contact the Canton Goodfellows via email at cantongoodfellows@gmail.com.

"We're still trying to recover the diamond from it," Baugh said. Good was arrested about 4 p.m. Tuesday on the job. Baugh said information obtained from Crystal Creek and the suspect helped police in their investigation.

He said the jewelers and Crystal Creek were all cooperative during the police investigation.

"The jewelry stores did everything according to state law. They were very cooperative," Baugh said. "Crystal Creek did a great job with their administration coming to us immediately and not handling it within their organization."

"It's the whole quality-of-life thing," Canton Township Supervisor Phil LaJoy said. "There's a lot tied to this accreditation. It's a commitment to doing everything the right way and looking into best practices and making sure we're implementing them."

LaJoy said Canton continues to rank high as a place where families and businesses want to move. His analysis was supported by a new ranking on the national Move-To blog, a real estate site that ranked Canton third in Michigan, behind only Midland and Novi, among places to live in the state.

Canton also was recently featured in a flattering magazine article in Michigan Township Focus.

"It doesn't get much better than raising kids in Canton Township because of the variety and all the components that make up quality of life in Canton," LaJoy said.

Officials say Canton's CAPRA honor reflects that Leisure Services had to survive three rigorous phases before being selected for self-assessment, hosting an on-site peer review performed by a CAPRA-approved team and a final review and decision by the national agency.

Canton Leisure Services received its first accreditation in 2004 and was re-accredited in 2008. The latest accreditation is valid for five years.

Family members of the two elderly women realized necklaces were missing and notified the Crystal Creek administration, which contacted police.

Baugh said police recovered one 4-carat gold necklace from a Westland jewelry shop. He said police learned from a second jeweler in Westland that the other old necklace already had been melted down, though a diamond family heirloom was missing.

as a major factor in its recreation master plan. They believe such a complex is an opportunity for the city of Plymouth, Plymouth Township and the school district to "develop this asset into a complex that would serve all residents of the community from toddlers to seniors, athletics to the arts, while promoting health and fitness."

Plymouth City Manager Paul Sincoc has already said city officials would be happy to talk to school officials about such a plan. Plymouth Township Supervisor Richard Reaume isn't quite as enthusiastic, but said the township, too, would listen when further details are firming up.

"This once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to develop the property for the benefit of the community needs to be seriously considered before any final disposition determination of the property is made," Soenen told the finance committee.

PARC members said a project of this magnitude will require a combination of public and private funding. Based on similar projects of this type, Soenen pointed out in making the presentation, costs can vary significantly, but it is anticipated that land, infrastructure and construction costs could be in the range of $20 million to $25 million.

While the district will make it a priority to get fair-market value for the property, the PARC said, a variety of funding mechanisms may be possible, one scenario would be:

- » Use public funds from a bond issue to build it.
- » Solicit donations to fund an endowment to ensure sufficient cash flow for startup costs and early operations.
- » Charge user fees to cover continuous operating expenses.

In their presentation to the finance committee, PARC members said it would take 0.7 mills to generate the approximately $1.5 million annual debt service obligation for a $25 million bond. Committee members said that works out to approximately $6.30 and $7.20 per month for the average Plymouth and Plymouth Township homeowner, respectively.

"The PARC Committee is convinced there is broad community support for such a center," Soenen told the finance committee.

Same-sex parents 'every bit as good'

By Brad Kadrich
Staff Writer

For gays and lesbians fighting for the same rights to marry and adopt children that are afforded heterosexual couples, justice delayed isn't necessarily justice denied.

Dana Nessel is so convinced change is coming, in fact, she doesn't even mind waiting a few more months to see it happen.

Of course Nessel, the Plymouth attorney representing April DeBoer and Jayne Rowse in a federal lawsuit challenging the state's ban on same-sex marriage and adoption, was disappointed U.S. District Judge Bernard Friedman declined to rule in the case Wednesday. Friedman instead set a February trial date for the case.

But since Nessel believes she already had a rock-solid case, a few more months to fine-tune it suits her just fine.

"We're disappointed we didn't have an immediate ruling in our favor and we look forward to a trial in this matter,"

Nessel said Thursday, the day after Friedman declined to rule. "We're very confident we have a myriad of experts who will be testifying to the fact gays and lesbians are every bit as good at parenting children as their heterosexual counterparts."

Instead of ruling on motions for summary judgment filed by both sides, Friedman held off, telling a courtroom packed with gay rights supporters there are "issues that have to be decided ... as a matter of law."

"I wish I could sit here today and give you a definitive ruling," Friedman said. "I'm a little nervous. I've never had a case like this before."

Hazel Park nurses DeBoer, 42, and Rowse, 48, are challenging the state's ban on same-sex marriage and same-sex adoption (Michigan is one of 35 states with such bans either by law or by constitutional amendment), arguing the bans unlawfully violate their right to get married and adopt each other's children.

The couple filed their lawsuit in January 2012. Rowse has two preschool-aged boys; DeBoer has a 3-year-old girl. They argue the state has no "rational basis" for denying them the right to get married and adopt children together.

The case is a bit of deja vu for Nessel, who argued a similar case in 2009 – initially won, but overturned by the Michigan Court of Appeals – involving a lesbian couple in Wayne County who lived together for 19 years and had three children before breaking up in 2008.

After the breakup, the birth mother refused to let her partner see their children. The partner filed suit requesting parenting time. But the birth mother denied any parent-child relationship had existed and asked the suit be dismissed due to lack of legal standing.

Wayne County Circuit Judge Kathleen McCarthy refused to dismiss the case, but the Michigan Court of Appeals dismissed it because the partner did not and cannot qualify as a parent under Michigan law.

In Nessel's opinion, more such cases should be filed, and when she met DeBoer and Rowse, she thought their case was a perfect one.

Of course, not everyone supports the idea of getting rid of the ban, approved by Michigan voters in 2004. Lisa Dresser of Farmington Hills doesn't believe the law should be struck down.

"If it's voter-approved, it should be upheld," she said.

Nessel, who has fought the case alongside fellow lawyers Carole Stanyar (a former Plymouth resident), Ken Mogill and Robert Sedler said there are "hundreds of surveys" that show there's no drop-off in parenting skills between same-sex couples and heterosexual couples.

"The state will not be able to prove to the court that gays and lesbians parent any worse than heterosexuals do," Nessel said. "The state has a better chance of digging up the body of Jimmy Hoffa than finding any credible experts to testify gays and lesbians make worse parents. It's a fallacy."

Staff writer Aileen Wingblad and Gannett Michigan contributed to this report.

Freeman takes post as Lakeshore chief

By Brad Kadrich
 Staff Writer

Growing up, Phil Freeman can remember traveling up north to the family cottage, situated on a dirt road, where life is much different than it is in the big city.

It's a place where people stop and say "hi" to them and wave a greeting to drivers going by. It's a place where there's always time to greet neighbors and meet new friends.

It's a philosophy Freeman applied to his teaching style when he was long-time principal at Pioneer Middle School. And now it's a style Freeman, Plymouth-Canton's assistant superintendent of programs and services, will take with him to his new job.

Freeman, who has worked in the Plymouth-Canton district since he became the assistant principal at Pioneer in 1998, has accepted the position as the superintendent of Lakeshore Public Schools. The district, located in Berrien County on the shores of Lake Michigan, serves the communities of Stevensville and Baroda.

Details of Freeman's contract with Lakeshore are still being finalized, but he said he expects to take over there in early November.

"When I explored what Lakeshore Public Schools and its community had to offer, I found that its values were consistent with mine: a focus on the child as the center of all we do, high academic standards with supports for students at all levels, emphasis on co-curricular activities as a platform on which students can flourish and build confidence, the view that schools are an integral part of the community at large and, maybe as important as anything else, the value placed on the people that do the work each and every day," Freeman said. "The sharing of these values made the decision much easier."

But not that easy, Freeman, who left Pioneer in 2011 to become the assistant superintendent for facilities and operations, said it was the second of the two hardest decisions he's had to make in 15 years with the district.

The first was leaving the instructional environment at Pioneer to take an administrative position. But at the time, he said, he felt his experience would help support the many new central office administrators who came aboard that year.

This year, he decided it was time to pursue his aspiration of becoming a superintendent, even if it meant leaving the district. It has been, he said, his most difficult decision.

"I moved to Canton to raise my family 20 years ago," Freeman said. "Being a member of the community as well as a leader in the district has been a wonderful experience for both me and my family. I am proud to have served in the many rules I have and will greatly miss the neighbors, friends, students and co-workers with whom I've crossed paths. As people often say, however, the time just felt right to explore new options."

Freeman's positive style hasn't always been admired. He said he drew some light criticism from others "for putting so much emphasis on building a positive culture" during his time at Pioneer. But Freeman, still a popular figure at Pioneer nearly three years removed from his tenure there, believed students, teachers and others involved thrived better in a nurturing and supportive culture.

"It was in that environment that teachers took calculated risks and pushed students to their highest potential," Freeman said. "It was a place where students grew in confidence each year as they prepared to take on high school and beyond."

Kurt Tyszkiewicz, the district's director of student services, has known Freeman nearly 30 years as a wrestling coach, principal and administrator. He called Freeman a "sincere person who treats people with respect."

"I've learned a great deal from him over the years," said Tyszkiewicz, who worked closely with Freeman on the Facility Utilization Study two years ago. "I admire how committed he is to educating kids. He has always had a collaborative style of leadership. He's going to do a great job at Lakeshore."

A lot got done during Freeman's tenure. His three top accomplishments:

- » Facilitating the Facility Utilization Study through a collaborative process that involved all stakeholders.
- » While many were not pleased with the outcome, going through the process helped the community understand the need for the recommended changes," he said.
- » Getting the Starhawk alternative education program a new home. "Renovating the former Fiegl Elementary School with new science labs, a computer lab and ample space for our students gave the program credibility and supported many outstanding students," he said.

» Passing a $14 million bond in May. "Helping the community understand the need for equity among our schools and the move toward 21st century classrooms led to a 65 percent vote in support of our efforts to improve," Freeman said.

His regret is not being around to see the new middle school, approved as part of the May bond, completed.

"I would have liked to have seen (the new middle school) become a reality," Freeman said. "It really is the catalyst for many of the other changes I believe the district needs to make to continue move forward in reaching its vision."

Despite the early criticism of his style, Freeman wouldn't change it. In fact, it's what he would like people most to remember about him, less about what he accomplished than how he went about it.

"I ended every promotion day speech with these words: 'You will always have a home at Pioneer Middle School and you will always have a special place in my heart,'" Freeman said. "I want the people who make up this district—the students, staff, parents and community members—to know that I value them deeply and will carry them forever in my heart."

Students have blast with engineering club

"We were like astronauts!" That was the feeling shouted out by second-grader Jeyea Patel after attending the first night of South Canton Scholars Charter Academy's new engineering club.

The club provides a hands-on approach to teaching science, technology, engineering and math, also known as STEM skills. The after-school program is offered to students ages 7-11 who are interested in how things work.

"Students are natural engineers," club adviser and dean Fletcher Morgan said. "The students will benefit from the class by learning math and science concepts in a different way, reinforcing what they are learning in the classroom."

For the next six weeks, students will design, create, test and refine a variety of experiments in aerospace and mechanical engineering, including straw rockets, parachutes, air-powered rockets, zip sails, dragsters and roller coasters.

"Engineering for kids helps reinforce STEM skills by focusing on how using science, technology, engineering and math will assist in solving real-world engineering problems," Morgan said. "We present the information in such a way that students enjoy learning and applying each concept with hands-on experiments."

One of the upcoming projects involves constructing a shock absorbing system to protect two marshmallow astronauts in a lunar vehicle—something that Patel is really excited to learn. But first she had to get the astronauts to space by building a rocket.

"It was fun," she said. "We made rockets and wore goggles and shot the rockets into the air. Then we counted how far they went."

Twenty students have signed up for the class, which is run by two teachers so the student-teacher ratio is very low. The class is held every Thursday night until Dec. 5.

A second session will begin Dec. 12.

Spotlight Players bring Hitchcock to stage

Spotlight Players present their first ever Radio Play show, just in time for Halloween, Oct. 25-26, at The Village Theater at Cherry Hill in Canton.

The production revisits the 1940s Radio Play tradition, remembering family nights spent around the radio, listening to the voices weaving stories of intrigue and entertainment. Theatergoers will be the "live studio audience" to Spotlight Players' latest production. In the spirit of Halloween, they present two suspense-filled, classic radio plays, The Birds and Rebecca, adapted from the classic Daphne du Maurier stories and made famous by the master of suspense, Alfred Hitchcock.

Director Rebecca Winder said there's something "so endearing about the radio play tradition."

"Even when you're being scared out of your wits, you can't help but feel nostalgic for the style and time period it represents," Winder said. "This is a project our entire team has been thrilled about from the beginning. The focus on the vocal delivery permits the actors a certain level of freedom and melodrama that is not appropriate in a typical staged play."

A radio play presents certain logistical challenges, most notably the generation of live sound effects. When asked how they have approached this particular challenge, Winder said, "One of the things that draws people to see a live radio play is the chance to see the creative way individuals involved attempt to create the action sounds that establish the setting and atmosphere of any given play. The wind-maker we have is particularly impressive."

The wind-maker, a contraption made of wood and canvas, imitates the sound of wind and was built by the director's husband, Eric Winder.

"Our goal for this show was to create as many sound effects live as we could, and limit the number of recorded sounds," he said. "The recorded sounds have the advantage of being more accurate, but there's an element of fun to the generation of live sound effects that cannot be denied."

Winder said reaching for Hitchcock to create suspense was a pretty easy choice.

"There is no greater synonym for suspense than the name Hitchcock," she said. "We hope the familiarity of these two Hitchcock titles will draw people to the theater for the chance to see a creative interpretation of these suspense classics."

Winder, a Livonia resident, will be directing actors Anne Cloutier, Eric Donohue and Lindsay Frischmuth of Plymouth, Sarah Faix of Ypsilanti, John Henderson of Belleville, Siamak Davaran of Ann Arbor and Drex Morton of Canton.

Performances are at 8 p.m. each night, with a run time of some 90 minutes. Tickets are $15.

The Village Theater at Cherry Hill is located at 50400 Cherry Hill in Canton.

Canton man pleads no contest in real estate scheme

By David Veselenak
Staff Writer

A Canton man has pleaded no contest to charges that arose earlier this year in a suspected real estate scheme.

Samir Salami, 33, pleaded no contest in early October in Wayne County Circuit Court to charges of conducting a criminal enterprise, embezzling $100,000 or more, using a computer to commit a crime and false pretenses.

Judge David Groner set Salami's next court date for Jan. 29 and sentencing is to take place Feb. 12. A no-contest plea is not an admission of guilt, but is treated as such during sentencing.

The maximum sentence for charges against Salami is 20 years in prison.

Prosecutors say Salami was arrested earlier this year after a lengthy investigation by Wayne County into his business practices while he worked as a real estate agent at Villa Realty in Redford.

Prosecutors say Salami convinced mortgage lenders Freddie Mac and Fannie Mae to sell homes to a side company Salami operated in addition to his work at Villa Realty. It's alleged Salami then sold those properties at a higher rate, keeping the profits from those sales.

Prosecutors say Salami made more than $265,000 off the sales during the time he completed them, which took place between August 2007 and April 2010.

Two of the homes listed by prosecutors are located in Redford: one in the 9500 block of Fenton, the other in the 9700 block of Woodbine. The rest were located in Dearborn Heights and Detroit.

Salami was bound over from 17th District Court in Redford in April and initially had a not-guilty plea entered. He remains out of jail on a $750,000 cash or surety bond while awaiting sentencing.

Flexibility is key to successful investing

Q: Dear Rick: I did a reverse mortgage and I used the proceeds to pay off my first mortgage, which has dramatically improved my cash flow. Now my pension and Social Security more than cover my living expenses. An annuity that I have currently pays me 4 percent and that rate is guaranteed for another two years. My agent approached me with an annuity he wants me to roll my current annuity into. He told me there are no penalties and that it has a 5-percent bonus. It is an equity-indexed annuity as opposed to a guaranteed annuity, which I currently have. The new annuity has a 12-year penalty period and, at my age, I'm a little concerned about locking my money up for 12 years. I'm in my mid-70s. My agent says I shouldn't worry, because I could take out a least 10 percent a year from the annuity if I need it. What do you think?

Rick Bloom

world, that is a very good rate of return. I see no benefit to tie your money up for a dozen years. You would be better off to keep your existing annuity until the guaranteed period is up and, at that point in time, make a decision.

Unfortunately, seniors who own annuities all too often find that their agents constantly want them to move their money from one annuity to another.

The enticement is these so-called bonuses that the annuity companies pay. It is nice when they tell you you're going to get a 5-percent bonus. However, what they don't tell you is how the bonus works. It makes no sense. The only not a bonus the way that you and I would think of it.

If you invested $100,000 and were told you would receive a 5-percent bonus, you should then have $105,000. Unfortunately, in the annuity world, it doesn't work that way. The bonus can be offset by returns, which in effect means, it's not a bonus at all.

What many annuity agents don't tell you is the reason they want you to move your money from one annuity to the next is so they can make more money on commissions.

In addition, the reason why many of these agents want you to lock your money up for 12 years is that they receive higher commissions.

I cannot think of any reason in today's low-interest-rate environment why anyone would want to lock up into an annuity for 12 years. It makes no sense. The only one it makes sense for is the annuity agent, who receives higher commissions.

about photos and video of rescuers heading into the doomed World Trade Center towers while others rushed out. Ficano also remembered William Dickerson, a sergeant in the sheriff's department who was killed in an incident at the county jail while Ficano was sheriff, in his remarks.

Honor roll

The 401 names on the monument are of police officers, firefighters and medical rescuers who lost their lives while on duty for a Wayne County community or whose on-duty injuries later caused their deaths. The first name on it is John Miller, a Detroit firefighter who died in 1867 of injuries suffered in a fall from a ladder; the last is Rodney W. Jones, a Detroit police officer who died this year of a medical condition while participating in a motorcycle skills event.

"They may have lost their lives, but surely their memories will live on," Ficano said. Family members of three of the men whose names are on the monument shared stories during the ceremony.

"We survivors remember that person every day," said Diane Philpot, whose husband, Jerry F. Philpot II, a Detroit police officer, was killed in a 1995 shooting. Philpot talked about working to overcome the loss. "It's not closure, it's just — it's a journey that we're on," she said.

Todd Pugh of Plymouth Township told of his grandfather, Charles Strull, a Dearborn firefighter who was injured in a 1928 house fire, suffered declining health and died in December 1929. At the outset of the Great Depression, Palgut said, the city gave Strull's widow Ida a pension to help her support her five young children, including Palgut's mother, who was just 2 at the time.

"If it weren't for that pension, Ida Strull would've had to split up her family," Palgut said.

Bob Woehlke, brother of Brian A. Woehlke, a Wayne-Westland firefighter who died in May of injuries suffered when the roof of a burning building collapsed on him, fought tears after saying the rainy day reminded him of fall days spent on soccer fields with his younger brother. "Brian loved soccer," he said.

Woehlke said his late brother "did everything with enthusiasm and an amazing zest for life," was a rock of support for his wife Jen and a proud father to their daughter Ava. At a Woehlke family outing to a college football game this season, he said, "there was a huge void without our fourth brother."

Jeffrey Collins, deputy county executive, was the master of ceremonies Thursday, while Ed Glomb, chief of the Detroit Metropolitan Airport Police, also spoke briefly. The ceremony ended with a rifle salute by the Van Buren Township Police Department, a rendition of Taps by a lone bugler, a mournful bagpipe version of "Amazing Grace" and a medley by the Franklin choir that included My Country 'Tis

Air Museum events focus on B-24 bomber plant

By Sue Mason
Staff Writer

In October 1943, a meeting took place in Detroit, Mich., between the U.S. government and the American auto industry being organized for war production.

Seventy-three years later, the Yankee Air Museum is holding two events Saturday, Oct. 26, to explore the Motor City's role in World War II and the bomber plant where the B-24 Bomber was built.

The first event, a conference, will be held at the Yankee Air Museum on the grounds of the Willow Run Airport and will look at the Willow Run bomber plant in its larger historical context as a critically important part of the Arsenal of Democracy.

Speakers will include Charles Hyde of Wayne State University, author of The American Auto- mobile Industry in World War II; Michael Davis, author of Detroit's Wartime Industry: Arsenal of Democracy; and the Yankee Air Museum's own Randy Hotton, one of the authors of Willow Run: Birthplace of Rosie the Riveter.

The program begins with a light lunch at 11:45 a.m. and will conclude by 2:45 p.m. The conference will conclude with a brief presentation on the future of the Willow Run Bomber Plant site.

The second event will be at 3 p.m. and take place in Bay 8 of the airport's Hangar 1 on Kirk Profit Drive at the east end of the airport. According to Mike Montgomery of the Michigan Aeronautical Foundation, people will get a chance to see the area of the bomber plant the museum plans to purchase as well as help the "community understand what's going to happen."

"It will give the public a last look at the Bomber Plant as it has been and a first look at plans for the future of the site," he said. "People will be able to get close to the plant for sure and look inside. The big doors are open and people will be able to get a sense of the size."

The conference is free, but pre-registration is required by calling the museum at 734-483-4030.

Montgomery added that there's still time to save a portion of the historic Willow Run Bomber Plant as a new home for the Yankee Air Museum. A donation of $30 will save 1 square foot of the plant. Visit www.savethebomberplant.org to make a donation.

Concert to help fund breast cancer research

Plymouth Salem High School and Eastern Michigan University graduate Kim Gnagey will join Benny Edwards and his volunteer team of local musicians and singers, known as The Flamingo Incident, in a performance to benefit breast cancer research.

The musicians will perform live at the Farmington Civic Theater 8-11 p.m. Friday, Oct. 25. With the support of area businesses, this concert evening will raise money for Botsford Cancer Center's breast cancer research in honor of Breast Cancer Awareness month.

"It's an opportunity to bring new faces into Farmington and support a good cause," Edwards said. Many Farmington retailers and restaurants are directly sponsoring the event or offering special discounts to concert attendees as a show of support.

The Flamingo Incident will present this benefit concert with all overhead expenses paid, allowing 100 percent of ticket and

ON THE GROUNDS OF SOCIAL SECURITY

Many people are wrongly rejected when they apply for Social Security Disability benefits. Money was taken out of their paychecks for Social Security taxes to ensure that they would receive disability benefits if they could no longer work full-time. Sadly, the government denies approximately 60% of those who apply for disability benefits.

Attorneys Bieske and Alfonsi offer a winning difference at the application stage. And, if an appeal is necessary they will have several hundred hours before a court case is even set.

Those denied can appeal on their own but statistics for many years reveal that those represented by attorneys with a much higher percentage of appeals. And attorneys who specialize in Social Security Disability cases win a much higher percentage yet.

In addition to practicing only Social Security disability law attorney Bieske has written a book for attorneys about the subject and has been interviewed on various television programs. Both attorney Bieske and Alfonsi have also been interviewed on radio programs and have given speeches to many groups.

Attorneys Bieske and Alfonsi offer free phone or office consultation. If they represent you, there will be no fee charged until after the case is won. The fee is a percentage of retroactive benefits.

Bieske and Alfonsi represent clients from all over the state of Michigan. Their Livonia office is on Six Mile Road just west of I-75. Their Novi office is located on Haggerty Road just north of 12 Mile Road. Call them at 1-800-331-3530 for a free consultation if you have been denied, or if you are thinking of possibly applying for Social Security benefits.

Suspects in rash of car break-ins flee through Ohio

By David Veselenak
Staff Writer

Members of a nationwide organized crime ring are suspected of striking in Livonia last weekend, leaving more than a dozen cars vandalized and broken into.

Livonia Police Sgt. Steve Petsch said several suspects broke into about 15 cars parked at the tennial Park and Dickerson Center field on Sunday, gaining entry by smashing side windows. Petsch said the suspects waited until the owners left their cars and then took purses, identification cards, cash and other items with the intention of using that information to steal the victims' identity.

He said the individuals are most likely members of a larger, more organized crime ring that attempts to steal people's identities across the country.

"They're in Wisconsin, Florida," he said. "There's more than just these few people."

Ohio State Highway Patrol said they were notified by Livonia Police Tuesday of the suspects fleeing south and entering Ohio. Troopers followed the suspects, who were in a Dodge Durango, along the Ohio Turnpike and US-24 in Ohio until losing their trail. Troopers believe the vehicle then drove across state lines to Indiana.

At about the same time, Ohio Troopers driving a Lincoln SUV dived in Auglaize County in central Ohio that appeared to be connected with the Durango wanted in the Livonia case. Police pursued the vehicle more than 100 miles before the car was stopped in Sharonville, a suburb of Cincinnati.

Three suspects are currently being held on fleeing and eluding charges in Ohio. A fourth suspect was also in the Lincoln SUV, but fled on foot. Ohio police were not able to locate or arrest him. Staff Lt. Alan Raistron of the Ohio Highway Patrol said the three arrested are not suspected in committing the crimes in Livonia.

She said the Durango had not been located as of Thursday afternoon.

Petsch said it is unlikely the suspects, if found, would face criminal charges in Livonia, as police would need to obtain a confession or more evidence.

Similar incidents were reported last week in Royal Oak, where several cars had their windows broken out and items stolen from them at Starr-Joyce Park and Red Run Golf Course. Royal Oak police believe the suspects are connected with those suspected of the crimes in Livonia.

Livonia police remind residents to be aware of their surroundings and to keep an eye out for any suspicious activity when at an area such as a park. They also recommend taking valuable belongings out of the car with them or locking them in the trunk of the vehicle so they are out of sight.

Fair a 'charitable, community effort'

By Lonnie Huhman
Staff Writer

The Michigan State Fair has grown and succeeded over the last two years since it's been in Novi - and, for that, its organizers want to give back to the community that supports it.

An $8,000 donation was presented by Blair Bowman, owner of the Suburban Collection Showplace, home to the State Fair, to the city of Novi at its city council meeting Monday night.

"The event was a huge success in every respect," Bowman said of this year's fair, which was the second in its new home after then-Gov. Jennifer Granholm pulled funding in 2009. It was called the Great Lakes State Fair last year and renamed the Fifth Third Bank Michigan State Fair for 2013.

In 2012, attendance hit 50,000. This year that grew to 80,000 over Labor Day weekend, with 150 volunteers making it happen. Bowman said the ultimate goal is to make it the best family event in the state.

He described the fair as a charitable, community effort. More than one-third of the ticket proceeds are going to fair supporter Detroit Shriners' efforts to help children hospital needs. In addition, $10,000 each was given to support 4-H Club and urban youth scholarship programs. Another $4,000 was put back into Novi service groups like the Rotary Club.

Over the last two years, $32,000 has been donated back into the community from this privately-run operation.

Monday's donation was a way to recognize the city of Novi's efforts and the support it has given to the fair.

"We're making this donation on behalf of the city of Novi employees and departments that helped enormously with making this event a success," Bowman said.

The donation will be primarily devoted to the Novi Public Library, the Police/Fire Benevolent Association and Parks, Recreation and Cultural Services.

"On behalf of the city council, City Manager Clay Pearson and all of the residents of Novi, we thank you and the Shriners and everybody involved for their hard work," Novi Mayor Bob Gatt said. "We do want to make it the best family event of the state. Novi is a perfect venue for the State Fair and the State Fair is something the state deserves."

Bowman expects the fair to grow in its charitable efforts in the coming years with further help from its local sponsors like Walmart, Bright House Networks and Guernsey Farms Dairy.

Jillian to Livonia Town Hall: 'As long as we're here, we might as well make the best of it'

By David Veselenak
Staff Writer

Hundreds of attendees had all eyes on Ann Jillian as she sang Wind Beneath My Wings as a part of her presentation during the Livonia Town Hall lecture series Wednesday morning.

Her message, both in song and speech, was something that captivated first-time attendee Debra Haffey.

"I'm so into positive people," the Bloomfield Hills resident said. "I loved it."

Jillian, a performer best known for her role as Cassie Cranston on the 1980s sitcom It's a Living, spoke before several hundred people Wednesday morning at St. Mary's Cultural Center on Merriman north of Six Mile. Her talk, the first in the series for this season, focused on several topics, including facing adversity, her family and her struggles with breast cancer, which she was diagnosed with in 1985. She even included a few musical numbers.

She said she didn't bring her husband with her to the doctor until it was all but confirmed she had cancer and told the audience to keep those in their lives close by in times of need. She told a parable of a man who was drowning and denied the help of a man in a canoe, a motorboat and a helicopter, saying he believed God would save him. When the man died and got to heaven, he asked God why he didn't save him and God pointed to the three men who offered their help as his intervention.

"Share your lives with the people you say you share your life with," she said. "We are all someone's canoe, motorboat or helicopter. It's up to us to make use of them." Highland resident Pat Hutchison listens to Ann Jillian's presentation.

Gail Perrin, who has attended the lecture series for many years, said Jillian was one of the best she had seen. She said she truly felt a connection to Jillian's words during the talk, especially as she spoke of her struggles with breast cancer.

"She was giving a lot of good information about getting checked early," Perrin said. "This is no fluff. She's just like one of us."

'Like one of us'

She spoke of her time performing overseas with Bob Hope, entertaining soldiers in places such as Beirut. She told of how she flew with Hope to a hospital ship, which her parents had always told her was the boat she was conceived on.

"You really had to work with him to be in this industry called show business," she said. "Every time we did a skit or something together, I'd look and I'd try to see where did this happen?"

In addition to It's a Living, she was also featured in such works as Babes in Toyland, Hazel and The Ann Jillian Story, a story based on her life and struggles with cancer. She received a Golden Globe for Best Actress for the television film.

Challenges are a routine occurrence in life, she said, and while they can be difficult to muster sometimes, Jillian said it's best to tackle them and enjoy life as much as possible.

"We've all had our challenges, we've all had our problems to overcome," she said. "As long as we're here, we might as well make the best of it."

Ruth Serrinck, a Farmington Hills resident who has attended the series for several years, was quick to heap praise onto Jillian's performance and words of wisdom.

"She's one of the best we've had," she said.

Livonia Town Hall is celebrating its 50th season this year. Future speakers this season include: U.S. Attorney for the Eastern District of Michigan Barbara McQuade on Nov. 20, DIA Director Graham Beal on Jan. 15 and literary lecturer Elliot Engel on March 19.

All lectures include lunch. They begin at 10:30 a.m. at St. Mary's Cultural Center, 18100 Merriman Road, Livonia. Tickets are $140 for the season or $170 for priority seating.

Rocks put on a show

High-flying Salem mercies Patriots, 8-0

By Tim Smith

After overcoming a tentative start, Salem went into full run-and-gun mode to rout Livonia Franklin 8-0 in the nighttime of Thursday's Division 1 boys soccer district twinbill.

And with the victory at Plymouth-Canton Educational Park's varsity soccer stadium, the Rocks (13-2-0) ensured themselves a rematch against No. 2-ranked Canton in Saturday's district final, which took place after this issue of the Observer went to press. Canton (17-1-3) won Thursday's first district semifinal, 4-1 over Westland John Glenn.

"I respect a ton of guys they have over there (Canton)," said Salem head coach Scott Duhl, whose team has one win and two ties against the Chiefs. "They're going to cause us fits with some good players centrally and up front."

"It's going to be a matter of who is going to put away some opportunities."

KENSINGTON CONFERENCE TITLE GAME

Chiefs hammered

Northville offense romps in 42-30 triumph

By Tim Smith
 Staff Writer

Canton defender Jalen Cochran (No. 81) closes in on Northville quarterback Joe Hewlett (No. 7) during Friday's game. ANN ESPINOZA

Things got off to a shaky start Friday night for the Canton Chiefs, with a costly penalty and fumble virtually handing Northville an early touchdown.

The Mustangs took it from there to win 42-30 in the KLAAs Kensington Conference football title showdown at Plymouth-Canton Educational Park.

Led by Northville senior quarterback Joe Hewlett and his favorite wide receiver — senior Sean Conway, back after missing a few games due to injury — the Mustangs prevailed to win the conference championship for the first time.

Hewlett completed 18 of 23 passes for 252 yards, with Conway grabbing nine for 122 yards and two TDs.

Northville led 21-15 at halftime and broke the game wide open with 21 points in the third. The defeat spoiled an outstanding game by Canton senior running back Westen Price, who scored on touchdown runs of 22, 65 and 85 yards and tallied 262 yards overall on 20 carries.

Won't be forgotten

"I don't know whether we played well or not," Northville head coach Matt Ladach said. "But I know we played hard and tonight wasn't a fluke. We put it on them pretty good, we feel really, really proud of that."

"But the reality is it's very likely we're going to be in a district with these guys, and Canton looks at this and they're not going to forget this night. We could very easily see them in two weeks or three weeks."

Both teams will enter the final week of the regular season sporting 7-1 records.

According to Chiefs' senior James Hall, who was one of the players trying in vain to stop Northville's constant offensive pressure, watching an opponent seize the conference title on their turf was a bitter pill to swallow.

"It's tough, but it's a wake-up call," Hall said. "We'll just go back to the drawing board and work really hard next week."

Hall admitted that Northville is "a big team, but that's no excuse for us. We might be small, but hey, we can't get our physical- and that's what happened."

Great protection

Gripping the game ball along a fence as Northville fans pounded his shoulder pads for a game well done, Hewlett said the impressive win was due to hard work, preparation — and having the 6-3, 197-pound Conway back in the lineup.

"It's just unbelievable," said Hewlett, who added to Canton's misery by running 14 times for 142 yards and three scores. "The protection all night was great, they opened up great running lanes for us and having Conway

GIRLS CROSS COUNTRY

Salem second in Kensington meet

By Brad Emons

How good was Northville's performance in Thursday's KLAAs Kensington girls cross country meet?

The Mustangs, the Wayne County champions, went one-two-three and garnered five of the top seven places in the 12-school meet held at Huron Meadows Metropark.

Ironically, Northville's eighth- and 12th-place individual finishers had to be tossed out of the scoring as the Mustangs totaled a mind-boggling 18 points.

Rounding out the top six teams were Salem (58), Canton (100), Livonia Franklin (114), Livonia Churchill (130) and Livonia Stevenson (159).

Northville senior Taleen Shahjahan seized the 5,000-meter race in 17:59.84 followed by teammates Lexa Barrott and Cayla Eckenroth, who took second and third, respectively, in 18:15.23 and 18:18.68.

Rachel Coleman added fifth (18:48.73), while Erin Zimmer took seventh (18:58.62) as the Mustangs repeated as Kensington champs.

Able to break up the Northville domination were two Salem runners as senior Kayla Kavulich took fourth in 18:35.57 and junior Anya Cho added sixth in 18:55.02.

Considering Northville's domination, there was no shame in finishing second in the team standings.

"I think we raced very well," Salem coach Dave Gerlach said. "It's tough going into a meet like this when you have a front-runner like Northville, a team that is ranked first, and our second, in Division 1, along with the firepower that they actually have."

Fighting for second place in the KLAAs Kensington Conference boys cross country meet isn't such a bad thing after all — just ask Plymouth coach Jon Manz.

That's because it would have taken a natural disaster to unseat Northville as the defending champion.

The Mustangs, putting five runners in the top 10 led by individual winner Dan Sims (15:54.2 for 5,000 meters), appear to be in peak form after running away

PRIMETIME PLAYERS

Freshmen Steelers pumped for Ford Field cameo

By Ed Wright
Staff Writer

Move over, Megatron. Step aside, Stafford. The Plymouth-Canton Steelers freshmen football team is taking over Ford Field Sunday afternoon.

OK, it's only for a six-minute halftime cameo during the Detroit Lions' game against Cincinnati, but, hey, you have to start somewhere.

The Steelers, who have started their season 6-0, will scrimmage against the Berkeley Steelers in a dream-come-true matchup for both young squads.

Both teams' cheerleading squads will also perform. Each team will receive a three-minute set of plays on offense and defense in front of the expected sellout crowd of approximately 60,000 people.

"It's going to be a little scary, playing in front of that many people," admitted Steelers middle linebacker/right end Aidan "Foot Soldier" Tafelski, "but the coaches told us to just go out and have fun, so we will."

When Tafelski initially found out about the once-in-a-lifetime experience that was planned for him and his teammates, he had a hard time containing his joy.

"I shouted, 'Yessss!'" Tafelski recalled prior to Wednesday's practice, while throwing in an emphatic fist pump for effect. "I'm very excited. We all are."

The Steelers can thank longtime coach Paul Hult for what promises to be an unforgettable adventure. Hult has been on a seven-year mission to get a Steelers team involved in the Lions' halftime shows.

When he received an affirmative response from the NFL team in August, his reaction was probably similar to Tafelski's.

"I've been submitting our team every year since 2006, and we finally got it this year," said Hult. "When I told them we had a good shot of getting it at the 'Meet the Coaches Night' in early August, they just erupted. It will be an exciting day."

Hult will arrive at Ford Field around 10:30 a.m. with all the team's equipment. The players and their families will watch the first quarter of the game in a specially-reserved section before heading to the locker room during the second quarter to get padded up.

Once halftime hits, as the Steelers walk out toward the field through the tunnel, they will no doubt cross paths with the Lions, who will be headed toward their locker room, which means Tafelski may get to share a quick high-five with his favorite player: Calvin "Megatron" Johnson.

"That," Tafelski added, "would be very cool."

Salem victorious in OT at Franklin; Lions stymie Plymouth

Salem's Christian Pearson recovered a fumble in the end zone in overtime Friday to give the Rocks a 31-24 KLAAs cross-over victory at Livonia Franklin.

Franklin lost despite out-gaining Salem, 464-223. The Patriots (3-5) got TD runs from Caleb Finamore (53 yards) and Brandon Davis (1 yard) while Kyle Riley hit Nathan Rodgers with a touchdown pass.

Alejandro Castillo also added a 25-yard field goal in the third quarter to give Franklin a 24-17 advantage.

Salem's Drake Jordan returned the opening kickoff 99 yards for a score to spark the Rocks, who improved to 2-6 on the season. Jordan had an outstanding game, with 210 all-purpose yards.

Rocks quarterback Alex Nicholson threw a pair of TD passes, including a 22-yarder to Chris Collow followed by a 48-yard screen pass to Jordan during the fourth quarter to send the game into overtime.

Nicholson was 13-of-33 passing for 171 yards while Rodgers led Franklin's rushing attack with 111 yards on 12 carries.

Franklin blocked two Salem field goal attempts in the final period.

Wildcats stopped

Plymouth fell to 5-3 for the season with Friday's 19-6 loss at home against South Lyon.

The Lions (6-2) opened the scoring in the KLAAs crossover when Vince Candela connected on a 22-yard field goal in the first quarter.

South Lyon added to that lead before halftime, when Nico Woods (24-107) scored on a 17-yard run.

That lead was padded to 16-0 in the third when quarterback Anton Skupin threw an 8-yard scoring strike to Joe Newman.

Plymouth finally got on the board before the end of the frame when quarterback AJ Convertino scored on a 3-yard run. He finished with 51 yards in seven rushing attempts and completed nine of 22 passes for 147 yards.

Another Candela field goal completed the night's scoring.

Other Wildcats of note included running back DJ Rossell (15 carries, 45 yards) and receivers Connor Stella (4-79) and Matt Busch (2-46). Stella and Busch each caught a pass for 41 yards.

LUTH. WESTLAND 48, CHAVEZ 20: On Friday, host Lutheran added two more TD runs before the half ended going 36 and 3 yards.

Leading 27-6 at the half, the Warriors increased their lead to 33-6 on Davenport's 5-yard TD run. He also scored on a 2-yard TD run before the quarter ended.

Lutheran Westland led 14-0 after one quarter thanks to a 2-yard TD run by Austin Olson followed by another 2-yard run from Jacob Davenport.

Davenport's interception set up the first score, while the second TD came on a 12-play, 54-yard drive.

Chavez scored early in the second quarter on the first of three Omar Salih TD passes, but Olson added two more TD runs before the half ended going 36 and 3 yards.

Leading 27-6 at the half, the Warriors increased their lead to 33-6 on Davenport's 5-yard TD run. He also scored on a 2-yard TD run before the quarter ended.

back, first week back in a few weeks, we really missed him.

"He's one of our top receivers and it's awesome to have him back. He's such a reliable target to throw to."

Canton did gain 400 rushing yards in 51 attempts, led by Price, junior Chuck Turfe (12-64, one TD) and senior Chase Winningham (7-53).

Northville, however totaled 470 yards of offense.

The contest perhaps turned right from the get-go as Canton wasted an opportunity to grab some early momentum.

Fall returned five kickoffs for 74 yards overall, but a penalty nullified his big gainer on the opening boot.

Adding insult to injury, the Chiefs fumbled the ball over to Northville's David Moorman inside the Canton 30.

Northville converted a few plays later when senior Patrick Hannah scored from the 1-yard line with 9:24 remaining in the first.

Quick response

The Chiefs bounced back to even the game at 7-7 with under two minutes to play in the frame when Price drove through the middle of the line for a 17-yard TD.

Winningham helped spark the 87-yard touch-down drive with carries of 17 and 14 yards.

The Mustangs regained the lead early in the second quarter on an 11-yard run by Hewlett and tackled on another TD for good measure with 58 seconds to play in the half for a 21-7 edge.

Hewlett moved his team quickly — the scoring drive took only 30 seconds — with passes of 23, 32 and five yards to Conway.

Undaunted, the Chiefs showed some fight when Price took a handoff from junior quarterback Greg Williams and romped 64 yards for a touchdown.

Williams then completed a 2-point conversion pass to Turfe to make it a 21-15 game at halftime.

Any thoughts the Chiefs might have had of making a game out of it were dashed when the Mustangs needed just 1:30 to open the third quarter with a touchdown.

Hewlett broke away from tacklers and took it down the right side of the field for a 58-yard score and a 28-15 lead.

After Canton had a three-and-out series, the Mustangs opened up a 35-15 spread with 8:59 remaining in the third.

Following a 42-yard pass from Hewlett to senior Evan Wieland, the quarterback carried it into the end zone from seven yards out.

Hewlett hurdled a Canton defender at the goal line to put an exclamation point on the play.

Late redemption
Before the third ended, Hewlett completed a 10-yard pass to Conway in the back of the end zone and it was 42-15.

Canton scored twice late in the fourth to make the outcome more respectable.

With 2:56 remaining, Turfe tallied a 3-yard TD run to finish an 80-yard drive that took 14 plays.

Then, with just 30 seconds on the clock and Canton stuck at Northville's 15-yard line, Price took the first-down handoff and went the distance.

Madonna softball coaching legend White takes over Canton's program

By Tim Smith
Staff Writer

As far as Al White was concerned, he was retired from coaching softball.

But there was just one job the longtime Madonna University women's softball coach might scrap those plans for — to take the helm at Canton High School.

"It definitely is the job I would have applied for," White said. White, a Canton resident since the mid-1970s and with the Crusaders for a quarter century (first as a pitching coach, since 1999 as head coach).

"There's a lot of talent that goes through that area."

"And I've lived in Canton now for almost 39 years, and I thought I could give something back to those girls. And try to prepare them to play at the next level."

White, who would disclose his age only to say coaching keeps him "young at heart," will take over the program from Jim Arnold, who was not retained following the 2013 season.

"I had the utmost respect for Jim Arnold," White said. "I thought he was a fantastic coach."

Urging his players on is one of the many attributes Al White brings to coaching. MADONNA UNIVERSITY ATHLETICS

He always had his kids prepared. And no matter what type of girls he got, year in and year out (his was one of the best programs around. No doubt."

White — owner of a 513-268 record at MU, along with three trips to nationals in the past four years — said he was watching his granddaughters play during a tournament in July when a Canton softball parent planted the seed about there being a coaching vacancy with the softball team.

Planting the seed

Someone else called his wife with the same idea. After letting the possibility of coaching in his backyard percolate for a month, he decided to apply.

"Really and truly I think it is a challenge," White said. "I'm excited about it. As you know, there's a lot of talent there."

"He (Arnold) lost six seniors and four of them were starters. We definitely got to replace those four kids. I'm just going in there with the attitude of just being aggressive, playing hard. Knowing what your responsibilities are."

Helping on the Canton sidelines will be former Chief and Eastern Michigan University softball player Lauren Delapaz (who briefly coached the sport at Livonia Stevenson last season) and White's son, Salem Alan Curt White.

White minced no words when asked if Delapaz would be groomed to take over the Canton program in a few years.

"You better believe it," White said. "That's what (co-athletic director) Sue (Heinzman) asked me, she wanted to know what my plans were, what I was going to do with Lauren. I said, hopefully, in three to four years she can take this program and take to the next step."

"I have a lot of confidence in her. I've known her for about 10 years. I recruited her (for Madonna) when she was in high school but I knew she was going to go to Eastern."

But first, there's work to do getting ready for the 2014 Canton season and Al White can't get started.

Salem doubles duo meld teamwork, friendship into success

By Tim Smith
Staff Writer

Whenever high school tennis coaches assemble to pick the best of a particular season, they always give the most props to those athletes who fill the singles flights.

But as in the case of Salem's Jon Clark and Lou Devoto, it takes a special blend of athletic talent, teamwork and chemistry to form a successful doubles team. At 2 doubles for the Rocks, Clark and Devoto teamed up for a team-best 19-3 record, were undefeated and won gold medals in tournament play, including the KLAAs tournament.

For senior Clark and junior Devoto, they knew each other's strengths and weaknesses. They knew what made each other tick. And each did whatever they could to make the pairing work. "We anticipated each other's moves on the court, on offense and defense," noted Clark, Salem's 2 doubles tandem of junior Lou Devoto and senior Jon Clark were undefeated in tournament play this season.

who just finished his third season with the varsity. "We talked to each other in play for placement, strategy and position strength."

Concurring was first-year varsity player Devoto.

"We had great teamwork and our play styles meshed well together," Devoto explained. "We are both great at the net and very aggressive."

After individual working hard over the summer to gear up for the high school season, they kept it going from the very first practice — especially after coach Bill Nelson put them on the same doubles team. "I am very proud of the game, during the game and post-game. "Where one is weak at any given time, the other is strong."

This season's success was gratifying for both that all their hard work paid off.

They also revel about being part of the Salem tennis program itself, about the lessons learned and how the overall experience helped them mature as student-athletes. "I played Salem boys tennis for four years, the last three as a varsity player," Clark noted.

"During all four years, the most enjoyed part was the team itself. Without one exception, every person on our team was a true friend and fully supported each other."

The Rocks as a team also had plenty of success. They went 5-3 in conference play, captured first-place trophies in the KLAAs Conference Silver Division and Woodhaven tournaments and took home a runner-up prize from the Monroe Invits.

Other key teammates included seniors Amol Carvalho, Jake Sealy, Shivan Patel, Grant Kulk and Anthony Zorney. Rounding out the roster were Ryun Karim, Charlie Liu, Keerthi Sajja, Ben Stanz and Abi Thiruvankat.

Clark will be graduating in 2014, and attends Schoolcraft College for two years before transferring to a major university.

Yet tennis won't be far off his yetty planner, either. He intends to continue playing in the United States Tennis Association and "carry it forward in life."

As for Devoto, there's still one more season of Salem Tennis, even though he'll have to work with a new partner. That is, unless he moves up to the singles lineup. After high school, he also intends to continue playing in the USA.

"I am going to be practicing a lot of tennis over the winter and summer," Devoto said. "Hopefully, I will be playing singles next year."

Regardless of where Devoto is in the 2014 Rocks lineup, he'll look back fondly on the 2013 season and how well he connected with his doubles partner.

"Jon and I have become great friends," Devoto concluded. "I am sad that we won't be able to play with me next year."

Road warriors: Whalers win back-to-back

The Plymouth Whalers are seeing the long road starting to smooth out, thanks to a pair of 3-2 victories Thursday and Friday.

Plymouth defeated host Sudbury 3-2 on Thursday night and followed that up Friday night with a 3-2 overtime victory at North Bay against the Central Division leaders.

Against North Bay, Carter Sandlak's goal at 2:19 of overtime provided the Whalers with the victory, evening their record at 6-6-0.

Also scoring for the Whalers against the Battalion were Ryan Hartman (on the power play) and Danny Vanderweil. Plymouth scored on three of 17 shots against North Bay goalie Brendan O'Neill.

Making 33 stops for the victory was Plymouth netminder Alex Nedeljkovic.

Hartman opened the scoring at 11:29 of the first, from Victor Crus Ryberg and Matthew Henderson.

But North Bay scored in the second (by Dylan Blujus) and early in the third (by Vincent Prapian) to take a 2-1 lead.

The Whalers got back to even at the midway point of the third on Vanderweil's goal, from Yannick Rathgeb and Connor Sills.

That's how the game remained until Sandlak scored his fourth of the season to win the contest.

Livonia native composes musical tribute to Upper Peninsula towns

By Sharon Dargay
Staff Writer

Blake Morgan got his 'ear' for music from his dad, Richard.

Blake Morgan wants to take you on a musical trip to the Upper Peninsula.

All you need to do is listen to his new CD, Houghton-Hancock Hum-Alongs.

"When I was living in Houghton I was blown away by the experience," said Morgan, 22, a Livonia native who is finishing his undergraduate degree at Western Michigan University. "I worked for a summer youth program at Michigan Tech. I was blown away that in the middle of hundreds of miles of nature that there existed this city with so much spirit and character. It was so appealing to me."

The experience, along with subsequent summer visits to the city located in the Keweenaw Peninsula, inspired Morgan to pen a collection of songs. The 2009 Churchill High School graduate also performed and recorded the vocals tracks, drum, piano, bass and guitar parts for the CD, later adding "the orchestration of strings, horns, and funky sax solos to many of the songs." Musician friends perform the woodwind, string, brass and harp parts.

Fundraising

Morgan plans to release the CD after finishing his semester of student teaching in December. He'll receive a degree in vocal music performance and in music education, along with teaching certification.

In the meantime, he hopes to raise $3,000 on the crowdfunding website, Kickstarter.com, to pay for professional mixing, mastering, CD manufacturing and duplication, and design and promotion. If he raises more than his funding goal, he will apply it to a CD release concert in Houghton.

If he doesn't raise $3,000 by Nov. 4, he'll lose all money pledged to the campaign, according to Kickstarter rules.

But Morgan, who records and often performs under the name, "Esto," is well on his way to achieving his goal. As of Friday, visitors to his campaign page had pledged a little more than $2,700.

Backers also receive incentives for giving. A digital download of the album, hard copy of the CD, T-shirts, private music lessons, a photo book, and a private concert are among some of the gifts.

Musical trip north

Morgan gives viewers a taste of the CD and a tour of Houghton in a 10-minute video that humorously pitches the project idea and offers a glimpse into his musical experience and motivation.

"I want each song to build upon the other," said Morgan, during a phone interview with the Observer. "The record starts out upbeat and full of energy. That tapers out and the middle of the record is a more melancholy approach to Houghton. The record ends with a chorus ... with sunset. I didn't just pick a bunch of random songs. It's more of a listening experience of being in Houghton. The whole record tells a story."

Morgan's own story as a composer started at Coolidge Elementary School when he parents, Rayleen and Richard, for supporting his childhood interest in music.

"My dad was very involved with music. He made an extension kick pedal drum on the drum set because I couldn't reach it as a 3-year-old," Morgan said. "When he was younger he played with Tina Turner. I got my 'ear' from him."

"I love a lot of things, but music takes the cake for me," he added. "Writing songs is the way I breathe. It's a way to connect with what comes out of me naturally."

Get into the Halloween spirit for a good cause

By Sharon Dargay
Staff Writer

Chicks4Charities' second annual Fright Night Road Rally is more than a scavenger hunt on wheels.

After drawing 500 participants last year for a nighttime cruise through Plymouth, the event has turned into a full-blown festival.

"We had such a great turnout last year for our rally and feedback from people who came to it. We decided it needed to be bigger," said Lisa Swanson, Chicks4Charities president. "We were approached by some individuals in Northville and we found opportunities to make it bigger. It will give us a good stage for our cause."

All proceeds from the Fright Night Festival & Road Rally will fuel the organization's "No Child Goes Hungry" campaign, which funds local food programs.

The rally is the centerpiece of the festival, which will run 3-11 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 26, in downtown Northville. Teams can register in advance online or at the festival. Cost is $30 for individuals or $140 for teams of five. The rally starts at 6 p.m. and will challenge participants to decipher clues, solve puzzles and complete specific actions — sometimes snapping photos as proof — along a route through the Northville area. Correct answers net points that are totaled at the end of the game to decide the rally winners. The first place team will receive $500.

One requirement of last year's Chicks4Charities Fright Night Road Rally was to find chickens. This team did.

"We tried to make it hard," Swanson said, referring to the route through Plymouth last year. "We tried to go even harder this year."

Teams last year had to find a chicken and take a photo with it, figure out which items at a local Taco Bell added up to $6.66 with tax, and photograph a ouija board in a cemetery, among other tasks.

"We found people loved it," she said. Swanson, a South Lyon resident, and Janice Reissenweber of Plymouth are coordinating the rally. Chicks4Charities also received lots of volunteer help with the festival.

"We added about 50

The Flutter & Wow, a local band, will perform at the Fright Night Festival in Northville. It won second place in the road rally last year.

volunteers since last year and partnered with a lot of groups. Chrysler is sending a lot of people," Swanson said.

Paying it forward

Swanson's mother-in-law, Pat Swanson, founded Chicks4Charities in 2008 as a way of giving back to the community. About a dozen women came together to donate money for charitable causes and form the group's core membership. They've raised nearly $100,000 for numerous nonprofit organizations, such as Cleaners Food Bank, The Miracle League of Plymouth and the Breast Cancer Center at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital.

The group's mission is to "encourage and empower women to step up and pay it forward by helping those in need" in southeastern Michigan. It offers guidance, information and resources to help women make positive changes in their communities.

In addition to the rally proceeds, the entry fees for a wine and beer tasting, canine costume contest, adult costume contest and children's treasure hunt will benefit the No Child Goes Hungry campaign. Participants can sign up for those activities at the event.

Festival activities

The Flutter and Wow, a local band that participated in the first rally, will return as festival entertainers this year. They will kick off the event at 3 p.m. Other musical acts include The School of Rock House Band at 6 p.m., Bocco from 6:45-11 p.m. on the outdoor stage and The Dale Hicks Band from 6-11 p.m. on the Brick's of Northville stage. The American Dance Academy will perform at 5:45 p.m.

Carnival games will run from 3-6 p.m. and children, 12 and under, can participate in a Haunted Fairy Door Treasure Hunt.

"Northville is known for its fairy doors. We'll use 10 of them," Swanson said. Youngsters will follow maps to find the tiny doorways hidden inside and outside of downtown stores. Everyone will receive a prize.

Food trucks will be on hand during the festival and live music with dancing will continue to 11 p.m. The canine costume contest is set for 4 p.m. and an adult costume contest will end the rally at 9 p.m.

PERIODIC SYNDROMES

Periodic syndromes are medical conditions that re-occur with each episode repeating the same pattern.

The best known periodic syndrome is Familial Mediterranean Fever. It starts with intense abdominal pain as if a person had acute appendicitis or an inflamed pelvic ulcer. Often the individual undergoes an emergency bowel operation as the condition looks like a medical emergency.

When the pain returns and has the same appearance as the previous episode, physicians are alerted that the patient may be experiencing a periodic syndrome. In the case of Familial Mediterranean Fever physicians can do testing to prove the diagnosis. Since therapy exists in Familial Mediterranean Fever that will stop the additional pain from re-occurring, diagnosis is important.

A number of arthritic conditions exhibit the same periodicity. In people with Lupus, a stimulus such as prolonged exposure to sunlight will set off a response of malaise, fever, 102 F or higher, joint swelling and rash. Several of these episodes and their resolution with steroids allows the physician to make a diagnosis and initiate therapy before prolonged debilitating effects of the Lupus can take effect.

An unusual expression of a periodic syndrome is in Muckle-Wells disease. In this case, a protein meant to restrict inflammation goes awry with the result that inflammation flares throughout the body. The individual becomes deaf and experiences painful joint swelling. In addition, the person develops welts over the body called angioedema. These welts are itchy and painful. Diagnosis is important because medications specific for the condition can stop the flare that is occurring and prevent a future episode.

Healthy cooking

Congratulations to Pink Fund Founder and CEO, Molly MacDonald, who has been named a 2013 Pink Power Mom by the Pink Power Mom program.

The honor is well-deserved. MacDonald and the Pink Fund have been especially busy this month, including their first-ever, highly successful Dancing with the Survivors event at Art Van Furniture. The Pink Fund will next benefit from special local appearances of the Twice Baked Twins, Judy Vig and Joy Paoletti, Celebrity Chefs and Food Network Challenge winners. Vig and Paoletti will demonstrate healthy cooking and will sign books at noon, Sunday, Oct. 27 at the Old World Olive Co. store in downtown Plymouth; noon, Monday, Oct. 28 at its downtown Birmingham store and 6 p.m. Monday, Oct. 28 at Henry Ford West Bloomfield Hospital. Vig is a breast cancer survivor. Ten percent of the book sales through October will be donated to The Pink Fund.

Clinical trial tests new treatment for rare adrenal cancer

One of the most challenging cancers to treat is also one of the rarest, which only adds to the challenge of finding potential new therapies.

New adrenal cancer researchers at the University of Michigan Comprehensive Cancer Center are ready to apply the results of their laboratory studies to a clinical trial to test a potential new therapy in patients.

Researchers Tom Kerppola, Ph.D., and Gary Hammer, M.D., Ph.D., collaborated to test a new compound, ATR-101, in cell lines and mice. Their studies found that ATR-101 selectively killed the adrenal and adrenal cancer cells with very little effect on other cells in the body.

Less than a year after these findings, ATR-101 is now in a phase I clinical trial at the University of Michigan Comprehensive Cancer Center and the University of Texas MD Anderson Cancer Center, testing the safety of the compound in people with advanced adrenocortical carcinoma. The trial, which is the first time this compound is being tested in humans, will enroll 21 participants. The drug is a pill taken orally.

The ATR-101 study is offered by Atterocor Inc., a Michigan-based company that was co-founded by Hammer to develop new adrenal cancer therapies. Hammer serves as a consultant to Atterocor and is chairman of the scientific advisory board. He is not involved in the clinical trial at U-M.

"Many adrenal cancer patients are desperate for new therapeutic options, and ATR-101 is one of the few compounds in the world directed at this ultra-rare disease," said Gary Hammer, M.D., Ph.D., Millie Schemb-

Hamner S. SODERBERG

Chief Professor of Adrenal Cancer at the U-M Comprehensive Cancer Center.

Hammer's endowed professorship is the result of years of fundraising by legendary U-M football coach Bo Schembechler, whose wife Millie died of adrenal cancer. This funding directed specifically at adrenal cancer has allowed U-M to create a level of expertise — both research and patient care — in this extremely rare disease.

Adrenal cancer is one of the most deadly forms of cancer, with few treatment options available. Standard therapy, which causes severe side effects, has been the same for more than 40 years. About 500 people will be diagnosed with adrenal cancer this year in the United States and most will die within five years. The disease is often diagnosed at a late stage and surgery is rarely an option.

Patients interested in learning more about this study, Phase I Study of the Safety and Tolerability of ATR-101 in Adrenocortical Carcinoma, can call the U-M Cancer AnswerLine at 800-865-1125.

Robert Half International CareerBuilder.com Editor

The interview is the most critical point in the job search process. While you might look great on paper, the real test starts when you get in front of a hiring manager. You've got the skills, now you need to prove that you'll be a good fit with your future co-workers and company. And it's oh-so-easy to sabotage that much-coveted and highly-valuable face time.

According to a recent CareerBuilder.com survey of 866 hiring managers, almost 70 percent recalled unusual behavior by job candidates. While the usual suspects did come up, some of their experiences were downright jaw-dropping. Here are some examples of how not to behave in an interview:

Hugh Hefner Wants His Pants Back

Clothes make the man (or woman) and what you wear has a direct impression on a hiring manager. Comfortable clothes will curb your nervousness, but that doesn't mean you should wear pajama bottoms like one job seeker did. The company dress policy may be casual, but save the Goth clothes and socks with slippers until you get the job. If you're hitting the beach after your interview, it doesn't give you license to wear your bathing suit and flip flops. And seriously, the flashy medalion on a bed of chest hair will not impress anyone.

I'm With The Band

Unless you're in need of a seeing eye dog, you shouldn't bring an animal or another person with you to an interview. It seems like common sense. Nevertheless, many a job seeker has brought a companion along on the interview including a child, spouse, friend, pet and even the entire family. An invitation to a job interview never includes a guest.

Have You Tried Hypnosis?

They might be normal to you, but to others, some personal quirks are downright frightening. Those things you do in the privacy of your own home are not meant to come out in front of someone you are trying to impress. During an interview candidates have chewed gum, lit cigarettes, picked their nails, passed gas, burped, picked their noses, scratched various body parts, laughed erratically and even spit. Make sure to check this behavior at the door.

Truth is Stranger Than Fiction

Intoxicating Wags

Some things are strictly taboo at work, and you should behave in an interview like you would on the job. Alcohol impairs your judgment, as do drugs (not to mention they're against the law). They should be off limits -- but some job seekers don't think so. Job seekers openly admitted drug use and arrived at the interview high, intoxicated or hung over. One thirsty candidate requested whiskey, while another brought his own wine. Another asked if he would get the job even if he didn't pass the drug test. And one candidate simply left the interview after finding out about company drug testing.

And then there are the incidents that are just plain bizarre, perhaps provoked by ambition, a desire to impress, or anxiety. One candidate constructed a shoebox diorama of himself on the job. Another did a Ben Stiller imitation. One job seeker offered a sexual favor to the interviewer. Still another knitted during the entire interview. And another barked at the hiring manager.

CNG Power Will Only Add to Chevy Impala's New Allure

By Dale Buss

It's time for a new kind of "hybrid" to take to the American roads, one that leverages the realities of the green-power marketplace rather than tries to buck them. That's why General Motors is betting big on a new "bi-fuel," natural-gas-powered Chevrolet Impala that it plans to whisk to market by next summer.

In the meantime, GM executives and dealers are high on the recently introduced, vastly overhauled new 2014 Chevrolet Impala that has aimed the nameplate at the U.S. retail market more effectively than in generations. The new car — sleekly styled on a platform shared with the Buick LaCrosse and Cadillac XTS — gives Chevy dealers the most creditable entry they've had in the full-size sedan segment in quite some time.

And while sales trends for the new Impala versus the old one don't yet show it, because Impala always has been a popular car with fleets, it's clear that the improved fuel economy, composed ride, precise steering and interior appointments of the new Impala are getting notice from full-size sedan shoppers. It's now a worthy competitor to the Chrysler 300, Ford Taurus and Toyota Avalon.

As far as the future of Impala is concerned, GM CEO Dan Akerson himself announced the new bi-fuel version at an energy-security conference in Washington, D.C., that was convened on the 40th anniversary of the start of the OPEC oil embargo.

Akerson cast the 2015 bi-fuel Impala as a potential game-changer that will help GM, the auto industry, and the American consumer take proper advantage of burgeoning domestic supplies and falling prices of natural gas with a high-mileage, clean-burning fuel that would allow Impala drivers to go up to 500 miles on a single stock-up of fuel.

"We know that U.S. energy security won't come from a one-off moonshot," Akerson said. "It will flow from our systematic investment in technology and innovation, our drive to get more from existing energy sources and renewables, our commitment to conservation -- and it will be assured by fully and safely exploiting our shale gas reserves."

Not only that, but the key innovation behind the high-mileage, clean-burning Chevy Impala CNG vehicle promises to make it commercially appealing from the get-go. There already are natural-gas powered Honda Civics, sales of which have been steadily rising. And Ford has begun offering a CNG version of its popular F-150 pickup truck.

But Impala will be the first mainstream vehicle to be a "bi-fuel" hybrid, with the capacity to be powered either by onboard CNG or by gasoline. It will feature a factory-engineered and fully guaranteed powertrain that switches seamlessly between the two fuels and could carry the car up to 500 miles at a filling. GM expects initial demand to be a few thousand as it promotes the new car not only to rank-and-file Americans but also for commercial fleets -- which long have liked the Impala nameplate.

Significantly, the bi-fuel feature should remove any "range anxiety" of the type that now attends fully electric vehicles, whose drivers must worry about running out of juice before they can recharge their batteries. There are few CNG filling stations yet around the U.S., but more are popping up all the time. In the meantime, owners of the bi-fuel Impala can depend more heavily on gasoline.

Further, the car likely won't carry any heavier price premium than hybrid or all-electric versions of vehicles do today. Hybrid and EV price premiums can range up to several thousand dollars. Akerson told reporters, according to Automotive News, that GM's cost premium for the bi-fuel Impala will be "a couple thousand dollars, at least." But however that is manifested in pricing of the car when it debuts next summer will be quickly offset by the fact that CNG prices now are the equivalent of $1.50 to $2.50 a gallon.

Some argue that the real revolution being wrought by plentiful American-sourced hydrocarbons will be in keeping the price of gasoline low enough that it will persist as the US fuel of choice for generations, undercutting any kind of long-term significance for CNG.

In any event, Akerson clearly is looking to steal a march on competitors with the bi-fuel Impala. At a green conference a few months ago, where he was discussing GM's overall sustainability strategy, he took pains to note the possibilities presented to the auto industry by cheap and plentiful American natural gas.

"We have this moment," he said, "and it has to be grasped." Perhaps by grasping the steering wheel of a 2015 bi-fuel Chevrolet Impala.

GM CEO Dan Akerson personally announced new CNG-powered Impala.
